Fidel Castro was once respected by thinking people in this country as well as other free nations of the world. It was hoped that, through his revolution in the late 1950s, Cuba would emerge a democratic nation and the Cuban people would enjoy the freedom and human dignity due all under democratic rule. However, Fidel Castro betrayed not only the trust allowed him by those outside his country, but also the trust of his own people.

Castro chose to bow to Moscow. He chose to embrace Khrushchev, failing to recognize that a bear hug is not necessarily a sign of affection. Fidel may soon follow the path blazed before him by other puppets of the Kremlin. The Cuban crisis has proven him nothing but a figurehead. It has proven beyond a doubt that Castro is dreaming when he sees Cuba as a "sovereign" state. Fidel Castro is one of the real losers in this, the most serious international crisis since Korea, perhaps since World War II.

The Judge Says . . .

By Capt. Hugh Peterson Jr.

"I made a fortune in my spare time. You can too."

Such words are a common sight in advertising today. The explanation which usually follows proclaims that a veritable pot of gold sits at the end of some course of instruction or can be achieved by the proper use of a very simple sales kit.

Many an ambitious but unthinking person has eagerly snapped up the bait offered by these advertisers anticipating the fast accumulation of a fortune, only to end up somewhat wiser and very much poorer.

No doubt many of these advertisers and their subject matter are both sincere and genuine. Many of them are honest attempts to procure agents for the selling of some product or the honest offer of a course of instruction.

However, there lurks among them a great number of frauds and cheats who take advantage of the fact that someone ordering by mail cannot see what he is ordering until it is too late. They also rely on the amazing gullibility of the average person when easy money is dangled in his face.

One example of this was referred to recently by Federal Trade Commissioner Seigurd Anderson in a speech before Washington Host Lions Club. The ad read in part: "Tired of retirement? Earn $8,000.00 a year in your spare time. . ."

Many an oldster bit into this gilded apple and ended up with a costly cellar full of idle vending machines. The ad tells restless retirees that all they need

Maj. Gen. Harrell Lauds Troops on TIC Anniversary

The following message directed to all personnel of The Infantry Center was issued by Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell, TIC commanding general, on Thursday, Nov. 1.

On the occasion of the 16th Anniversary of the establishment of the United States Army Infantry Center, I extend congratulations to all personnel.

The past year placed unusually heavy responsibilities on each of you and required a maximum effort to achieve the objectives of our assigned mission without lowering the high standards for which the Home of the Infantry is noted. Your devotion to duty, professional competence and willing cooperation are worthy of highest praise. You may well be proud of your personal contributions to the security of our Nation.

I am confident that you will continued your exemplary effort in the future and will maintain the high standards of proficiency you have so ably exhibited in the past.

CHAPLAIN'S CORNER

Secret of Greatness

BY CHAPLAIN (1st. Lt.) HENRY F. ACKERMANN

An African prince, while on a visit to England, asked Queen Victoria the reason for England's greatness. The queen did not send him to London Tower to look upon the iron-guarded jewels of the realm, but presenting him with a Bible said, "Here is the secret of England's greatness".

This too, is the secret of America's blessedness. Our common law and our enlightened customs and social practices are based upon the Bible. Our early settlers founded this nation not only upon Plymouth Rock, but upon the sure word of Him who is the "Rock of Ages."

Many of our illustrious statesmen have pointed to the Bible as the solid foundation and the principal structure upon which American greatness has been built. Ulysses S. Grant, great military leader of the Union forces, said, "The Bible is the anchor of our liberties. Write its principles upon your heart, and practice them in your lives." Horace Greely, of early American fame, was confident of this country's future because, as he said, "It is impossible to enslave a Bible-reading people."

Former President Woodrow Wilson summed it all up when he said, "Our civilization cannot survive materially, unless it be redeemed spiritually. It can be saved only by becoming permeated with the spirit of Christ and being made free and happy by the practices which spring out of that spirit. Only thus can discontent be driven out and all shadows lifted from the road ahead."

America must acknowledge anew her dependence upon God, if she wishes to continue to proclaim her independence from slavery and tyranny. Only with repentance in our heart and renewed dedication to God and His Word can we hopefully raise the the prayer: "America, America, God shed his grace on thee!"

Experts Run Florida Ranger Camp

SURVIVAL TYPE BAR-B-QUE
Includes Swamp Delicacies

HELP WANTED: Pleasant work in Florida swamps. Must be qualified herpetologist, survival expert SCUBA diver, boatman and parachutist. Contact Col. J. W. Jackson, Director, Ranger Dept., USAIS.

Although many Infantry units require a wide variety of occupations to operate organizations, few demand the diversity of skills needed to maintain Lt. Col. Robert W. Hakala's Florida Ranger Camp.

This camp operates the final phase of training for Ranger students who have completed their training at Ft. Benning and at the Mountain Ranger Camp, Dahlonega, Ga. All of the 15 officers and 35 non-commissioned officers who comprise the cadre of this small but closely knit team must be adept at several military specialties.

As a foundation, all must be accomplished instructors and must be experts in small unit tactics and patrolling. Among the more unusual skills to be found are those of the herpetologist (reptile expert), the survival expert, the SCUBA diver, the amphibious and small boat expert, and the parachutist.

Semitropical Region

The Florida Camp, located in the semitropical region of the north Florida Panhandle bear Eglin Air Force Base, is a natural habitat for wildlife, particularly reptiles. A multitude of snakes, turtles, and alligators inhabit the region.

For the benefit of the students who attend the Ranger Course, a continuous study is made of the reptiles in the area. A reptile farm is maintained at the Camp by MSgt. Walker M. Good, stocked with both poisonous and non-poisonous snakes as well as alligators and turtles. As part of his training, the Ranger student loses his normal fear of snakes by handling nonpoisonous varieties. However, he also gains a healthy respect for the poisonous types, such as the Coral, the Water Moccasin, the Cooperhead, and the Pigmy and Diamondback rattlesnakes.

In a course of instruction that teaches the individual the techniques of operating behind enemy lines, it is not difficult to understand the importance of survival skills. On many occasions, the Ranger student may find himself "living off the land" while accomplishing his tactical mission.

"Bar-B-Que"

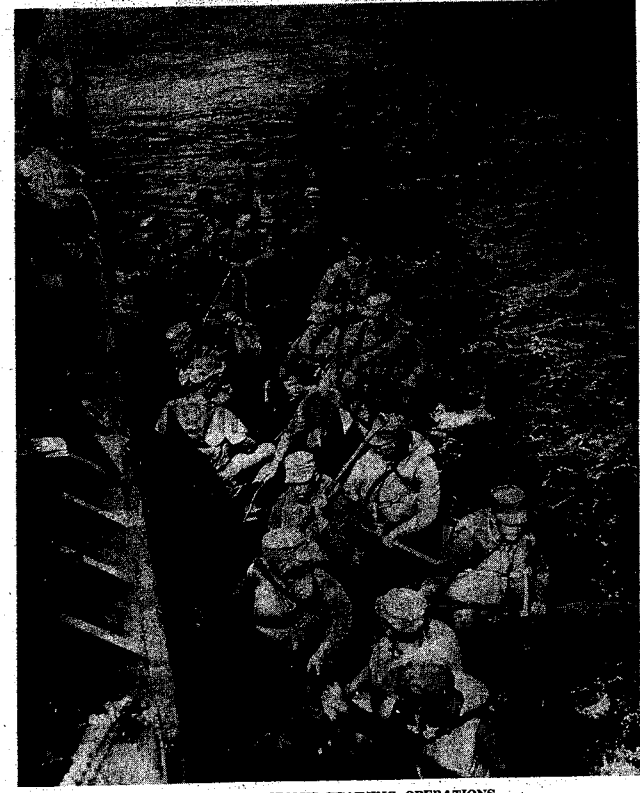
Highly qualified instructors, such as SFC Herman F. Long, instruct students in the techniques of survival in this semitropical area. The students are shown how to start fires without the use of matches, improvise shelters from palmetto leaves, and trap fish and snare wild game.

During the latter part of their survival training, the Ranger students are given the opportunity to prepare and eat such delicacies as broiled rattlesnake, turtle soup, and roasted alligator steak at a survival type "Bar-B-Que."

During tactical waterborne missions, SCUBA - qualified cadre participate as reconnaissance elements preceding Rangers, students conducting night beach landings. Cadre are also available to the student for underwater demolitions work. Aside from tactical missions, SCUBA divers prove to be a valuable asset in salvage operations by recovering weapons lost by students in the riers and streams.

Tactical operations on the numerous inland waterways of the region require special techniques in the use of small boats. This amphibious training is a major element in the Ranger course of instruction. On one patrol, the Ranger student travels silently many miles on a river to raid an objective deep behind enemy lines. On another, he is debarked from a ship in the Gulf of Mexico, required to paddle to shore, attack an objective near the beach, and return to the mother ship.

Each operation requires a different technique. Current amphibious techniques are continually reviewed and are revised in conjunction with other services and allied nations.



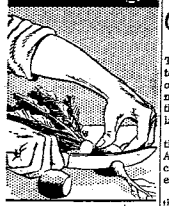
LCU Operations

The amphibious and small boat specialist also works closely with the crews of Army landing craft which support Ranger students in their varied operations. The LCU (Landing Craft Utility) is used extensively for waterborne operations near the coast.

In airmobile operations, which land Ranger patrols far behind enemy lines, cadre personnel parachute in as pathfinder teams to secure the landing zones. Special operations employing parachutists as pathfinders enable Ranger students to employ helicopters realistically and effectively on patrols. These parachute - qualified specialists also aid the Ranger in his movement behind enemy lines and in the aerial resupply of food and ammunition during extended operations deep in enemy territory.

These unusual occupational skills, together with those of demolition experts, aircraft pilots, communications specialists, weapons experts, divers, and power boat operators, provide as wide an array of occupations as will ever be found in one unit.

Each is essential to the smooth efficient teamwork that characterizes a unit of Rangers.



DURING AMPHIBIOUS TRAINING OPERATIONS
Students Utilize Both Rubber Rafts and LCU

Ladies Club Holds Fall Conference

The Fort Benning-Columbus Toastmistress Club was host to the annual fall conference of Council No. 1 of the International Toastmistress Club at the Ralston Hotel in Columbus last Saturday.

Approximately 40 representatives of clubs in Georgia and Alabama, which comprise the council, attended the conference.

In honor of the visitors to the city, Mayor Steve Knight declared Oct. 27 as Toastmistress Day in Columbus.

Mrs. Eleanor Hicks Wood, supervisor of the Toastmistress Club, Southeastern Region, was one of the principal speakers at the conference.

She was 1961 Woman-of-the-Year in Huntsville, Ala. and was runner-up to the winner of the speech contest conducted by Toastmistress International in San Antonio, Tex., in July.

Mrs. John Passarella was program chairman for the conference.

There was a luncheon for the conferees at the Ralston Hotel. A program of vocal and piano music was provided by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Allen.

Entertainment during the luncheon included a fashion show of millinery from a local shop.

Custer Terrace Site of G-4 Tech Wives' Luncheon

Ladies of the G-4 Tech Services held their October luncheon recently at the Custer Terrace Branch of the Main Officers' Mess.

New members introduced and welcomed were Mrs. F. F. Krauskoff and Mrs. H. W. Merchant.

Tables were decorated with black and orange streamers and Halloween figures. The centerpiece was orange gladioli, and black-eyed yellow daisies.

Quartermaster Corps ladies were hostesses.

MISS GLADYS PAULICK

Miss Paulick To Marry 2nd Lt. Patrick O. Kelly

Col. and Mrs. Michael Paulick announce the engagement of their daughter, Gladys, to 2nd Lt. Patrick Oseth Kelly, United States Army, son of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. John E. Kelly.

The marriage will be solemnized by Chaplain Lt. Col. Arthur J. Eaton on Dec. 23 at the Main Post Chapel here.

The bride-elect is the granddaughter of Mr. Paul Paulick and the late Mrs. Paulick of Newark, Ohio, and of Mrs. Mark A. Romohr Sr., and the late Mr. Romohr, of Gresham, Neb. She is the sister of Myra, Patricia, Michael, Jr., Mark, and Melvin Paulick.

Miss Paulick attended high school three years in Munich, Germany, and was graduated from Columbus High School. She attended the School of Education, Auburn University, Auburn, Ala.

Lt. Kelly's grandparents are the late Maj. (United States Army, retired) and Mrs. Michael A. Kelly of New York, N. Y. and Col. (United States Army, retired) and Mrs. I. M. Oseth, Bismarck, N. D. He is the brother of Mrs. Stanley Quigg of Sydney, Australia, Cadet Candidate John E. Kelly Jr., of Fort Belvoir, Va., and Richard, Maureen, Timothy, and Erin Kelly of Fort Benning, Georgia. He was graduated from Leilehua High School, Honolulu, Hawaii, and from the U. S. Military Academy, Class of 1962.

Lt. Kelly is currently attending various courses at The Infantry School here. Upon completion of these course, he will report for duty with the 101st Airborne Division, Fort Campbell, Ky.

Entertainment has been planned after the final session Nov. 9, according to officials.

Pelham Breaud Honored at Fall Coffee Recently

"Autumn Harvest" was the theme of a coffee given by Mrs. Lawrence W. Smith at her home for Mrs. Pelham Breaud, recently. Mrs. Breaud's husband, SFC Pelham Breaud, will retire from the Army on Oct. 31.

Centering the refreshment table was a fall arrangement of yellow and green gourds, fruit, and fall flowers tumbling from a blue horn of plenty. On the walls were sprigs of white and red peppers arranged against backgrounds of handwoven wicker trays.

So that I won't be accused of showing favoritism to any certain high school, I won't dwell on the result of the Baker — Columbus game — But wasn't it a wonderful night to be outside and cheering for your team?

Last Saturday night proved to be even more fun than anyone expected. At the JADA party, there were doctors, flappers and Brownie Scouts, though the prizes for the most original costume went to a pair of scarecrows. . .Terry Stacey and Halice Midgett.

At 10 p.m., the JADAs and their dates moved en masse to Brat Barracks, where the "Abstracts" were raising the roof, as many "Grubs" twisted.

During the evening about 200 people enjoyed the music, doughnuts, cider, cookies and cokes.

Thanks are definitely in order — to Mr. and Mrs. Max Spurlin, long-time sponsors of Brat Barracks, to Maj. and Mrs. J. F. Hare and Col. and Mrs. W. E. Walters, chaperones of the JADA party, and to Mrs. J. E. Stacey, who told fortunes for the JADAs.

Special recognition should be given to Bob Chambers, president of Brat Barracks, and to Johnnie Hare, chairman of the JADA dance, and to their respective committees for the really great jobs they did with decorations and with keeping everybody happy Saturday night.

Earley, sergeant major of Match Headquarters of The Infantry Center, will display the plaque in his front yard until next month's winner is chosen.

MSgt. Earley Recipient Of Yard of Month Plaque

MSgt. Walter K. Earley has won top honors for having the most attractive Yard of the Month in October.

Earley, sergeant major of Match Headquarters, was given a letter of appreciation signed by Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly, deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, and a plaque.

The plaque will be displayed in Sgt. Earley's front yard until end of the month.

The award is given to the winner among enlisted and officer families in the Main Post, Capehart Housing, Upatoi Terrace and Wherry Housing areas.

Letters of appreciation from Gen. Kelly were presented to five other post personnel for beautifying their home areas and having attractive yards.

They included Maj. Henry H. Parr of 312 Austin Loop, Main Post officers quarters, U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit; Capt. James R. Green, 125-B Butts St., Capehart officers quarters, U. S. Marine Corps; 1st Lt. J. W. Laffert, 202-B Christian Lane, Custer Terrace officers quarters, Student Brigade; 1st Lt. Gerald C. Cappelle, 810-D Terry Drive, Upatoi Terrace officers quarters, Student Brigade, and Sgt. Maj. Bilbo Newel, 859-A Arrowhead Road, Capehart noncommissioned officers quarters, 4th Battalion, 29th Infantry.

243 Earn Parachutist Wings Here

After three weeks of intensive training, including five parachute jumps from altitudes of nearly 1,200 feet, 243 servicemen were awarded Parachutist Badges in graduation ceremonies here recently.

Lt. Boose was one of 26 Army officers in a class that included 213 Army and four U.S. Marine Corps enlisted men.

Two young soldiers with a family background of airborne experience continued the tradition as they received the silver Parachutist Badge at the graduation.

They are Pvt. Bruce H. Jones Jr., whose father, WO Bruce H. Jones Sr., served with the 82nd Airborne Division, and Pvt. Charles L. Carrigan, whose stepfather, George Echols of Alpharetta, Ga., was with the 101st Airborne Division.

Jones, Sr., is stationed in Italy.

Retiring? Consider These Job Tips

The basic principle for a retiring officer or enlisted man to follow when mapping a course for himself in civilian business life is this: "Make the most of experience accumulated through your military occupational specialty."

So says Richard Sanzo, senior editor of Dun & Bradstreet's Business Education Division, which teaches better, more profitable management practices to thousands of businessmen-students.

This basic principle might seem obvious; yet, notes Sanzo, it is surprising how many go into lines for which they are both unsuited and unprepared. The result can be failure and a loss of life-time savings. Sanzo points out that both numbers of business failures and total liabilities have been mounting steadily in recent years.

In order to avoid winding up as one of these unhappy statistics, the retiring serviceman should select fields of enterprise for which military life has given him certain clear-cut advantages.

Sanzo is convinced that the principles of organization, discipline, thorough record-keeping, control of buying and inventory, emphasized in the military can be of crucial value in the management of any business. Aside from these general advantages, however, the military man often has long and thorough experience in a specialty which closely parallels a civilian occupation.

For example, veterans of Quartermaster Corps experience should fit well into businesses requiring careful keeping of large inventories such as hardware, independent specialty stores, and the like. Transportation Corps men may find a solid niche in service station or trucking operations —there always is a demand for skilled mechanics. Men with experience as Adjutants or in JAG fit readily into personnel work, while those who have professional credentials may find adjustment to civilian practice immediate and natural.

For the military man who has shuttled about in a variety of assignments, Sanzo recommends particular fields—and warns against others. For example, the retail liquor business is an excellent line for a retired officer. His service record can win him the cooperation he needs from government officials in this closely regulated line. He should choose little about merchandising and nothing about pricing, for these things are largely pre-determined.

Real estate is another excellent field for a retired officer, though he must check closely the increasingly complex state regulations governing both real estate and insurance. On the other hand, the D&B expert warns against the apparent glitter of some lines such as coin-operated laundromats, motels and bowling alleys. While there are still fine opportunities in all these fields, "gold mine" fever has resulted in some overbuilding in all three. And businesses of this type require a sizable initial investment—a fact which dictates special caution.

Many a retiring serviceman will want his wife assisting him in a joint venture. In retail operations the help of a wife can be of great value, for while she graciously serves the customers her husband can devote more of his time to the many complex details of management. And many women enjoy sharing such an enterprise, for it is a welcome change from the routine of housework.

Aside from utilizing his MOS, a serviceman can capitalize upon hobbies and personal interests, too. The combination of his military experience and an interest in hunting and fishing could, for example, make a sporting goods shop an ideal choice. The sergeant who has both run a supply room and devoted spare time to landscaping the company area would fit well into a garden supply business.

In general, Sanzo recommends that retiring servicemen shy away from retail food or clothing businesses. Both demand long hours and specialized experience and can, therefore, be a severe drain on one's physical stamina. Unless profit is of utmost importance, he feels that less demanding lines are more suitable for supplementing an income guaranteed by the government.

An exception in the food line is gourmet foods, but, though less competitive, this highly specialized field demands careful locating and assessing of community interests and income. Another exception is the combination food and dry goods store—the general store —in a rural location. This often frees the owner from intense competitive pressures, and is a good choice for the retiring serviceman.

For a Signal Corps man, the radio and TV repair business offers possibilities. Sanzo points out that it sometimes takes many months to become established in this field, particularly in the case of someone not already well known in the community. Nonetheless, it is a business requiring relatively little capital, yet offering supplementary income.

UNITED STATES ARMY READY FORCE

Fort Benning, Ga. FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 2, 1962

187 YEARS OLD . . . This civil war scene shows soldiers working with their then "devastating" artillery piece. Artillery as a branch of the U. S. Army celebrates its 187th birthday this month. See story, page 14.

'We Servers' Start Buildup For Oversea Rotation Plan

Like its "Rotaplan" 38th Infantry predecessor, the Germany-bound 23rd Infantry "We Servers" have begun a strength build-up program to bring up to par its required strength before the overseas rotation plan is set in motion.

During the past month, the influx of newly assigned enlisted personnel almost reached the one hundred mark, with the majority of new arrivals being in the lower pay grades, especially the E-2 and E-3 grades. Of the 96 total, Headquarters Company and Company A received the largest number, 20 each, followed by Company B's 18, Companies C and D with 13 each, Company E with eight, and the battle group's Combat Support Company with four.

This week's training consisted of "brushing-up" on such subjects as dismounted drill, physical training, bayonet training, mine warfare, hand to hand combat training, and care and maintenance of equipment.

Refresher map and compass reading was also included and dry and wet net training.

Nine Retire At Division

One officer and eight noncommissioned officers retired Tuesday from active duty in a ceremony at 2nd Division headquarters.

Retiring were Maj. John J. Petorock, 122nd Signal Battalion's former S-3 officer; MSgt. Clinton W. Cooper, 12th Artillery; MSgt Hudnell M. Durham, 23rd Infantry; MSgt Ralph Register, 69th Armor; SFC Albert J. Hellmandel, 17th Artillery; SFC Virgel O. Nelson, 23rd Infantry; SSgt. Utner U. Grugett, 9th Infantry; Sgt. Clarence A Gmey, 23rd Infantry; and SpS John P. Shenosky, 2nd Medical Battalion.

FROM NETHERLANDS Lt. Col. Hartman

Helps Form 7th and Joins As Executive

By 7th Infantry PIO

After having assisted in planning associated with the recent activation of the 7th Infantry, Lt. Col. Durell B. Hartman has been assigned as the battle group's executive officer.

The lieutenant colonel comes from a previous assignment as operations and training officer, Army section, Military Assistance Advisory Group, The Hague, Netherlands.

Prior to his Netherlands assignment, Col. Hartman served four years, from 1955 to 1959, with the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics, Department of the Army.

He was last stationed at Fort Benning in 1953-54 with the 30th Infantry Regiment, then located in the Sand Hill area. During the Korean Conflict, Col. Hartman spent two years with the 2nd Division's 9th Infantry.

Previous assignments include duty with the Virginia National Guard as a battalion instructor; the 5th Infantry Division in 1948-1950 as an infantry company commander and the 78th Infantry Division in Europe during World War II.

Among the awards and decorations received by Col. Hartman are the Bronze Star Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster and "V" device, the Army Commendation Medal, the Purple Heart, and the Combat Infantryman's Badge with Star.

Born in Emmaus, Pa., he entered service in 1942. Receiving a battle field commission while assigned to the 78th Division, he was subsequently integrated into the Regular Army.

He attended the University of Maryland. Military schools include the Regular Infantry Officer Advanced Course, 1950-1951, and the Command and General Staff College, 1954-1955.

7th Cav. Completes Tank, Recon. Fire at Stewart

By 7th Cavalry PIO

The 7th Cavalry returned recently from Fort Stewart, Ga., after completing the Annual Tank Gunnery Program and the Reconnaissance Platoon Live Fire Exercise.

The squadron and attached units began their firing Sept. 29 and fired Tables IV, V, VI, VII, and VIII for tank crew qualification. Basic tank gunnery fundamentals and crew duties were stressed in Tables IV-VII in preparation for Table III. Table VIII is the tank crew's final examination for crew proficiency in both day and night firing.

The award for high scoring crew went to Sgt. John Montgomery, PFC Murl Farley, PFC Terry Foreman, and PFC Otis Snelling, all of Headquarters Troop. The award for high individual scorer went to SSgt. Loran Irvin and Sgt. John Montgomery of Headquarters Troop.

Upon completion of the gunnery qualification, all "Garry Owen" personnel participated in the Reconnaissance Platoon Live Fire Exercise. The live fire exercise, written and conducted by Maj. Venon H. Ison, allowed the platoon leaders to employ all organic weapons, personnel, and equipment of a reconnaissance platoon in a realistic type combat situation. The live fire exercise terminated the annual activities at Fort Stewart.

BERLIN RECORD

Citizen soliers called to active duty in the Berlin crisis were brought to full combat readiness in record time. In 10 short weeks they progressed from initial shakedown to battalion, battle group and division field exercises.

Gets ACM For Service With TIS

By 23rd Infantry PIO

Recipient of the Army Commendation Medal award this week at the 23rd Infantry was the executive officer of Company E, Lt. Bruce W. Pound.

The award was presented by Lt. Col. Richard A. Perkins, commanding officer of the 23rd, for "performance of meritorious service during his assignment as an instructor on the Small Arms Committee, Weapons Department, The Infantry School," his last assignment before coming to the 23rd Infantry.

Lt. Pound was born in Washington, D. C., and received his secondary education in the public schools of Virginia. He attended Virginia Military Institute, majoring in English, before entering the U.S. Army as an enlisted man in November 1957. He applied for Officer Candidate School, and completed the course and received his commission in December 1958. An overseas tour of duty in Korea followed, and his return to The Infantry School, before coming to the 23rd.

7th Inf's DCO Arrives Here From Hawaii

Lt. Col. William D. Preston recently arrived in the combat-ready 2nd Infantry Division and has been assigned as deputy commander of the 4th Battle Group 7th Infantry.

Col. Preston joined the battle group from a previous position as Chief of G-1, Plans Branch, Headquarters, U. S. Army Pacific, Hawaii. As an additional duty, he was J-1 of Task Force 116.

Col. Preston entered the active service in 1941, and his service has been continuous except for a short period of time in 1946. During World War II, he served with the 4th Infantry Division in the European Theater of Operations.

Subsequent principle assignments since World War II include duty as an advisor with two armored infantry battalions of the 49th Armored Division, Texas National Guard; advisor to a Vietnamese Infantry Regiment Inspections Division, Office of the Inspector General, Headquarters, Fourth Army; and plans officer, Office of the Chief of Psychological Warfare, Department of the Army.

Col. Preston's awards and decorations include the Silver Star Medal, the Bronze Star Medal with "V" device, and the Combat Infantryman's Badge.

The colonel's military schooling includes the Infantry Officers Advanced Course in 1949-50, and the Regular Course at the Command and General Staff College in 1953-54.

Arabia's Capt. Al-Kadi Joins 9th Rifle Squad

By 9th Infantry PIO

The 9th Infantry played host recently to a Saudi-Arabian officer, Capt. Mohamed Sulayman Al-Kadi, who is here to observe and actively participate in regularly scheduled training.

Capt. Al-Kadi was met at Lawson Army Air Field by his appointed escort, 1st Lt. Ned G. Patrick, 9th Infantry assistant adjutant, and was taken to his temporary quarters at Fort Benning.

After a day of rest the Saudi-Arabian Army captain was escorted to Company A, which is commanded by Capt. Donald B. Smith, where he was introduced to the commander, executive officer, and platoon leaders.

He spent his entire first day with Company A. In the morning he was assigned to a rifle squad as a member and participated in live fire exercises involving squad technique of fire.

After lunch at Munninger Range Capt. Al-Kadi observed 106 millimeter recoilless rifle and 81 millimeter mortar demonstrations.

Later in the afternoon he visited the 9th Infantry S-2 and S-3 sections.

During his visit Capt. Al-Kadi met the staff and unit officers of the 9th Infantry and observed and participated in different types of training with most of the individual companies.

His schedule included .45 caliber pistol qualification at Kearin Range with Combat Support Company, squad in the attack of Wilson range and squad in the night defense at James Range with Company B, and tours of the motor pools and the S-4 section.

He was familiarized with the purpose and operation of the M41 Tank, the M59 Personnel carrier, and the M113 Armored Personnel Carrier.

Capt. Al-Kadi was also shown films of combat operations of the U. S. Army during World War II and the Korean Conflict.

Former Sgt. Is 9th S-3 Liaison Off.

By 9th Infantry PIO

Lt. Charles A. Hines, former mortar section leader of the 9th Infantry's Combat Support Company, was recently assigned battle group S-3 (Training and Operations) liaison officer.

Lt. Hines came to the 9th Infantry in February 1962.

He enlisted in the Army February 1952 and was discharged in January 1957 as a sergeant (E-5). During most of this period Lt. Hines was stationed at Ft. Sherman, Panama Canal where he instructed Latin American army officers in artillery fire and direction. Lt. Hines speaks fluent German and Spanish.

Upon discharge from the Army in 1957, Lt. Hines enrolled in the five-year physical education and health course at Howard University, Washington, D. C., and graduated in January 1962 with a Bachelor of Science Degree. At Howard University he was a member of the Reserve Officer Training Corps and was a Distinguished Military Graduate.

Upon his graduation from the university Lt. Hines was commissioned a second lieutenant and rejoined active duty.

His first assignment as a commissioned officer was at The Infantry School, Fort Benning, where he took the Infantry Officer Orientation Course. Upon the completion of this course he took Airborne Training and received his Parachutist Badge June 8, 1962.

By 23rd Infantry PIO

The 23rd Infantry's new assistant adjutant, Capt. John A. Cooper, was a college instructor in English and literature before his return to active duty last month, after serving six years in the Reserve.

Capt. Cooper holds a Bachelor of Arts and a Master of Arts Degree from the University of Kentucky, and has two years post graduate work at the University of Cincinnati in Ohio.

Commissioned through the Reserve Officers Training Corps at the University of Kentucky, Capt. Cooper first entered active duty in July 1954, and was sent to The Infantry School at Fort Benning, Ga., for the Basic Infantry Orientation Course. Upon completion he was reassigned to the 38th Infantry, which was then stationed at Fort Lewis, Wash., and finished the remainder of that active duty stint as a platoon leader with the 38th. During the 1955 Exercise Sagebrush conducted in Louisiana, Capt. Cooper participated as an umpire.

At present he and his family reside at 4660 Craig Drive, Fort Benning reservation.

9th Infantry S-1 Officer Rejoins Unit

By 9th Infantry PIO

Maj. Robert H. Hight, 9th Infantry S-1 officer and adjutant, recently returned from a tour in South East Asia.

Assigned to the battle group recently, Maj. Hight arrived after a year of duty with the Military Assistance Advisory Group in Laos, where he served in G-3 (training) and G-3 (planning) branches.

During World War II he served with the Americal Division in the Pacific and participated in the campaigns at Guadalcanal, Beugonsville, and in the Philippines.

In Korea in 1951 and 1952 he served with the 5th Regimental Combat Team as commander of Company K.

Maj. Hight holds the Silver Star, Bronze Star with Two Oak Leaf Clusters, Purple Heart with Two Oak Leaf Clusters, Army Commendation Medal, and service ribbons for campaigns during World War II and Korea.

His previous assignments at Fort Benning include duty with the Ground Mobility Department at The Infantry School from 1958 to 1961.

Maj. Hight is the father of three sons. He and his family presently reside in Columbus.

26th Expands Skills By Going Amphibious

BY 26TH INFANTRY PIO

In an effort to broaden their military skills to better serve as a combat ready member of the "Second to none" Division, the 26th Infantry Blue Spaders have begun training in amphibious operations.

This week the officers and key NCOs of the battle group were treated to an informative class on the basic concepts of amphibious operations. The speaker was Lt. Col. V. A. Kleber, USMC, the Marine's representative at Fort Benning.

Col. Kleber explained to the assembled "Spaders" the place in overall strategy, types and purposes, advantages and disadvantages, essential planning factors, and sequence of events of an amphibious operation. He also gave a brief history of amphibious operations and stressed the need for inter-service cooperation in this maneuver.

In addition to the orientation class, practice landing nets at Kelley Hill were filled with men of the 26th as they began practice in ship debarkation techniques.

A promotion party was held at the Fort Stewart Main Officers' Open Mess on October 12 in honor of the recent promotions of Lt. Thomas J. Mahon, liaison officer; Lt. Jack E. Thomas, executive officer of Troop A; and Lt. Charles D. Ludlum, squadron motor officer. The officers were promoted from second to first lieutenant.

The party also celebrated the successful completion of the Annual Tank Gunnery Qualification program and the Reconnaissance Live Fire Exercise.

Bakers and Buyers Meet for Bake Sale

By 23rd Infantry PIO

Members of the 23rd Infantry turned bakers and buyers Wednesday as the annual Bake Sale of the unit was conducted with the aid of wives of officers and non-commissioned officers of the battle group, who contributed the baked goods sold at the sale.

Seven different locations of the sale, each of the company mess halls, gave the buyers ample opportunity to select and buy their choice of the goods offered, such as cakes, cookies, brownies, cupcakes, and fudge.

The annual event is conducted by the battle group to raise funds to sponsor a Christmas Party each year for all the children ages two to ten in the battle group. Toys, fruit, and candy, with old Saint Nick, always provide an enjoyable treat during the Christmas season for the kiddies.

Coordinating the activities for the sale with the ladies was Lt. Joel W. Breeding, assistant adjutant. The officers' wives participation was headed by Mrs. Lucien F. Keller, while Mrs. Lory Bell acted as chairman for the NCO wives.

Two Lieutenants Promoted at 26th

By 26th Infantry PIO

In a ceremony held recently in battle group headquarters, two young officers of the 26th Infantry advanced to 1st lieutenant.

Lt. James L. Allen and Lt. Arlis W. Adickes were promoted to their present rank by Col. Arlin J. Kehe, 26th Infantry commanding officer.

Lt. Allen is executive officer of Company A while the assault weapons platoon of Combat Support Company boasts Adickes as its leader.

Lt. Allen is a native of Lynchburg, Va. He entered the Army in April 1961 after graduating from Morgan State University of Baltimore, Md. He joined the 26th Infantry in September 1961 and has served as rifle platoon leader and weapons platoon leader before taking over the job of executive officer.

Lt. Adickes was born in Golied, Texas. He attended Texas A & M University, entering the Army shortly after graduation in April 1961. He has served as a rifle platoon leader in "Bravo" Company before assuming his present duties.

By 9th Infantry PIO

Recently named 9th Infantry Career Soldier-of-the-Year was PSgt. David L. Clark of, Company A.

This is not the first time that honors of this type have been bestowed upon Sgt. Clark. He was selected 7th Division Career Soldier-of-the - Year in 1958 while serving with the 8th Administration Company at Camp Casey, Korea, and in July 1958 he was chosen 8th Army Soldier-of-the - Month while serving with the same unit.

Sgt. Clark enlisted in the Army at Norman Park, Ga., in March 1946. After 18 months service he returned to civilian life and attended Abraham Baldwin Agricultural College, Tifton, Ga.

He attended the college for two years and returned to the Army as a private.

He completed Basic Airborne Training at Ft. Benning in 1951 and became an instructor at the Airborne School.

Sgt. Clark came to Company A in June 1958 from the Basic Airborne Committee.

Among other awards and decorations he holds the Expert Infantryman's Badge, Good Conduct Medal, and the Army Commendation Medal. He also holds the Master Parachutist's Badge, is a nationally ranked skydiver, and has competed in three national skydiver tournaments.

The 32-year-old platoon sergeant lives in Columbus with his wife and five children.

Named Runner-up

PSgt. Melvin M. Hanson of Company E was named runner-up 9th Infantry Career Soldier-of-the-Year for the second time, the first time being in the 1960 contest.

Prior to coming to the 9th in April, 1960, he served with the 2nd Battalion Combat Team in Iceland.

Besides being twice runnerup in the 9th Infantry contest, Sgt. Hanson was selected 16th Infantry Soldier-of-the-Month in Berlin, Germany, in 1950.

He entered the Army in 1948 and has attended the Instructor Training Course at the Infantry School, Ft. Benning and the Seventh Army Non-commissioned Officer Academy, Bad Tolz, Germany.

He served with the Reserve Officer Training Corps as an instructor at the University of Miami in Florida, from 1954 to 1957.

Sgt. Hanson holds the Expert Infantryman's Badge, Occupation Ribbon with Berlin Airlift Device, Humane Action Ribbon, Good Conduct medal, and the National Defense Ribbon.

He presently resides at Ft. Benning with his wife and family.

187-Year-Old Artillery Poses Psychological Threat on Modern Day Battle Fields

Modern, Devastating . . .

The artillery's awesome Honest John rocket, a guided missile with a nuclear capacity, represents that branch's claim to power on the modern battlefield.

By Bob Garner

Congress established artillery as a branch of the U. S. Army in mid-November, 1775, choosing Col. Henry Knox as its commander. Since that date the artillery has prepared the way for the individual soldier with his smaller weapons. Today the "guerrilla war" has expanded the mission of the artillery. What it loses today in accuracy in pursuing the elusive guerrilla force, it gains in psychological effect.

In the days of the Civil War, when Federal artillery was organized into batteries of four to six guns each and the Confederate Army of Northern Virginia at the time of Gettysburg was organized into battalions of four batteries each, the tactics and mission of field artillery was formal and conventional: it contributed to the action of the entire force by giving close and continuous fire support to forward combat elements and by giving depth to combat by counterbattery fire, fire on hostile reserves, fire to restrict movements in rear areas, and fire to disrupt command agencies. Artillery was in the Civil War, and remains in modern wars, the greatest killer on the battlefield.

Preparing Way

Field artillery was used to attack and defend temporary fortifications; demolish obstacles and means of cover, preparing the way for successful use of other arms; breach enemy lines or prevent them from forming; crush enemy masses dismount enemy batteries follow and support pursuits; and cover and protect retreats.

Nuclear physics had not yet been married to artillery and projectiles, as the war itself, could be called conventional. Solid shot or shell was used for the long-range destruction of enemy infantry, cavalry, and artillery; and either canister or shrapnel was called upon for immediate annihilation of the enemy. Today, artillery fire is capable of nuclear retaliation.

But, just as nucleonics was responsible for many physical changes in artillery weapons, what some governments may call "wars of liberation" are partially responsible for innovations in the psychology and mission of artillery fire.

Whereas the tactics in conventional wars are somewhat formal, those of the "wars of liberation" or guerrilla wars appear extremely chaotic. The evasiveness of the guerrillas does not allow, as does the relative order of conventional wars, for artillery to be emplaced in consistently good locations for any length of time. A guerrilla target is elusive.

However, the fleeting guerrilla target is not the only problem confronting the counter-guerrilla artilleryman. Since the current "liberation" wars are taking place in jungles, the bulk of field artillery weapons often have proved cumbersome. Although weather and terrain often precludes the use of heavy weapons, light artillery is adaptable to counter-guerrilla operations. In many cases, the 75mm pack howitzer has been invaluable; and in almost every case, deployment of heavier caliber weapons has been successfully achieved by another modern enemy of the guerrilla — the helicopter.

As was already mentioned, as early as the Civil War, artillery operations were conducted on the battalion level. However, counterguerrilla forces, which are designed to destroy not only the guerrilla units but also their sources of supply and communications — so important in this type of war! — must remain extremely flexible; hence, artillery support in a counterguerrilla war will seldom require units of more than battery size. In fact, single sections have been used successfully in both defensive and offensive action against small guerrilla bands.

Another problem arises in that conventional fire direction control cannot be achieved in a guerrilla war. The reasons for this are the large area to be covered, the elusive tactics of the enemy, and the decentralization of control required by the use of small artillery units. However, coordination between ground and aerial observers tends to alleviate this problem. The aerial observer can make corrections in fire by using firing charts, tables and regular graphical equipment.

Obviously, with the artillerymen changing positions so often, the famous accuracy of field artillery is bound to be reduced somewhat. This is true, but in the counterguerrilla situation described, it is not necessarily a loss. Accuracy is not the most important factor in a counterguerrilla operation. Guerrillas are known to hit and run, and artillery is invaluable in the pursuit of escaping guerrilla elements. The demoralizing effect of artillery fires on a guerrilla force often will serve to turn their retreat of hasty defense into surrender. True, accuracy suffers; but in these wars in which it is said that they "battle for men's minds," the psychological effect of field artillery is more important.

Therefore, to the questions which have arisen recently regarding the adaptability of artillery to guerrilla wars, the artilleryman answers: whether it's called the Civil War or the guerrilla war, artillery will provide the most effective and economical support for the ground-gaining forces.

NOW FIRST . . . Promoted recently to the rank of 1st lieutenant is Lt. Edward R. Hinson Jr., 87th Infantry.

PAIN IN KNEES

By Dr. R. P. Spillane

For some time this person had experienced re-occurring pain in his knees. Occasionally, the pain would be in one knee and then switch to the other knee. He noticed most discomfort when sitting or kneeling. Also, he could relieve the knee pain by simply extending the leg straight out. Previous treatment proved unsatisfactory and be decided to follow the advice of a friend. After Chiropractic treatment his condition completely cleared up. Write or call our clinic about your condition.

Reserve Division Artillery Commander Welcomed; Tours Second's Artillery

By DivArty PIO

The commanding general of the 83rd Reserve Infantry Division Artillery, Fort Hayes, Ohio, recently visited 2nd Division Artillery Headquarters and the 12th Artillery Battalion.

Brig. Gen. Raymond Mason was welcomed here by Col. Sydney E. Sacerdote, who is acting Division Artillery commander in the absence of Col. Stanley L. Harding.

After a briefing on Division Artillery operations, Gen. Mason and Col. Sacerdote visited the 12th Artillery. Lt. Col. Terence W. Huck, commanding officer of the 12th, greeted both officers. This visit to 12th Artillery also was the first for Col. Sacerdote.

While at the 12th Artillery, Gen. Mason and Col. Sacerdote visited the battalion's communications section, the Headquarters Battery mess hall, barracks and motor pool, and the S-3 (Operations) section.

ADDS SIX . . . Reenlisting recently for six years for his own vacancy as a heavy weapons infantryman with Company E, 87th Infantry, is PFC W. T. Wilson.

Traffic Quiz

When Was Fisher's Indianapolis Opened

BY DAVID M. WINKLER

Most drivers try to be careful. There are a few who are actually criminals, but accidents are usually the result of a moment's thoughtlessness. A good experienced driver may be inclined to be over-confident. All most of us need is a little reminder. Make a mental note to yourself every time you open the car door.

This is one in a series of quizzes designed to test the motorist's general knowledge.

QUESTIONS

1. Between the years 1775 and 1960, 1,130,393 Americans died in all the U.S. wars. How many Americans died in U. S. highway accidents between the years 1900 and 1960?
   a. 900,000 c. 1,100,229
   b. 1,000,000 d. 1,303,545
2. The speed in built-up areas and on unimproved roads (not hard surfaced, and trails, unless otherwise posted is:
   a. 15 mph c. 30 mph
   b. 25 mph d. 35 mph
3. A two-and-one-half mile oval track, brick-paved and perfectly graded, conceived by Carl Fisher, called the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, opened in:
   a. 1887 c. 1909
   b. 1900 d. 1919
4. Personnel selling or otherwise disposing of their registered vehicles:
   a. will have the registration decals removed prior to the time of sale or disposal.
   b. will have the registration decals removed at the time of sale or disposal.
   c. need not remove the decals as it is the new owners responsibility.
5. In one test with shoulder harness as well as a belt, Col. John Stapp rode a rocket sled to a speed of 632 mph and stopped in less than one-and-one-half seconds without serious injury. This is equivalent to a car striking a barrier at what speed?
   a. 15 mph c. 45 mph
   b. 25 mph d. 60 mph
6. All changes concerning registered vehicles will be reported to the Registration Branch Office of the Provost Marshal within:
   a. 24 hrs.

SFC Spence Is Warrant At 38th

By 38th Arty PIO

SFC James E. Spence of Headquarters Battery, 38th Artillery was recently appointed to the rank of warrant officer W-1. WO Spence entered the service at Mobile, Ala. on June 23, 1948, and took his basis training at Fort Jackson, S. C.

After basic he went to Fort Sam Houston, Tex., to take medical training.

In 1949 he went to Japan serving with the 17th Infantry, 7th Infantry Division. By the end of his tour in October of 1951 WO Spence had advanced to the rank of sergeant. After a 13-month tour to Korea he was assigned to Fort Polk, La., where he helped train the 37th Division, a National Guard Unit from Ohio.

Overseas duty for WO Spence includes tours to England, Germany, Japan and Korea. Among his awards are the Purple Heart, Korean Service Ribbon with Five Battle Stars and the Combat Infantryman's Badge.

WO Spence is married to the former Mary Alice Pope of Moultrie, Ga. The Spences and their three children reside on Gardner Drive, in Columbus.

After a short vacation to Arkansas WO Spence and his family will proceed to his new duty station at Fort Chaffee, Ark.

SFC R. E. Neff Leaves One 38th To Join Another

SFC Russell E. Neff of Battery A, 38th Artillery was reassigned recently to Headquarters Company, 38th Infantry as motor sergeant.

Sgt. Neff reported to the 2nd Infantry Division in September 1956 and was assigned to Battery A, 38th Artillery in October 1959. In Battery A he served as motor sergeant and has been commended on numerous occasions both for his service to his unit and for his knowledge of maintenance. He is married and resides at 304 Lumpkin Road.

SFC Neff entered the Army in 1943 and was released from active duty in 1946. After a six-year break in service he came back on active duty and was assigned to the 424th Field Artillery. He served with this unit at the Kumwha Valley during the Korean Conflict.

DivArty Lists Reup Figures For October

By DivArty PIO

Two first-term regular Army men from Division Artillery recently reenlisted for their choice of assignment under the Army's reenlistment program.

PFC Owen P. Grugan Jr., Battery B, 27th Artillery, chose a three-year enlistment to the Far East. Before coming to 2nd Division Artillery he was assigned in the Far East, and his status as first-termer entitles him to return.

To Lockport

Spt Kenneth M. Owens Jr., Battery B, 15th Artillery, elected to reenlist for six years. He received an assignment to Lockport Air Force Station, N. Y.

PFC Lee C. Storey, an inductee from Battery A, 17th Artillery, also reenlisted for three years for assignment in the Far East.

Other Division Artillery men who reenlisted in the first two weeks of October are SFC James L. Jordon Jr., Battery A, 15th Artillery, who enlisted for three years and received an assignment to 10th Artillery at Fort Benning; SFC Donald L. Robeteck, Battery B, 12th Artillery, who reenlisted for three years and is going to the 806th Engineers; Harmony Church Area; SFC Joseph C. Sweeney, Headquarters Battery, 17th Artillery, who will begin a six year enlistment in the Far East; and SFC Bradley R. Bruce Jr., Battery B, 15th Artillery, who reenlisted for six years and will go to Europe.

Indiana Grad Makes Captain At 1st Infantry

By 1st Infantry PIO

Capt. Charles A. Miller was recently promoted to his present rank. The ceremonies were held at the 1st Infantry headquarters.

Col. Edgar R. Poole, battle group commander, pinned the new tracks on the captain's lapel. Capt. Miller was congratulated by members of the battle group staff.

He has served with the "Always First" as executive officer and commanding officer of Company D. Capt. Miller is now serving as assistant S-4 officer of the 1st Infantry.

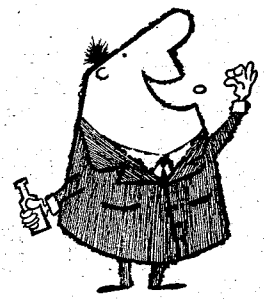
He is a graduate of Indiana State Teachers College, Indiana, Pa., where he received his bachelor of Science Degree in 1957.

Capt. Miller was commissioned as a Quartermaster Corps officer and attended the Quartermaster School at Fort Lee, Va.

Prior to joining the 1st Infantry in August 1961, he served as platoon leader in Company D, 9th Infantry, and as executive officer of Headquarters Company, 9th Infantry.

LARGEST APPROPRIATIONS

On August 10, 1961, Congress passed the largest peacetime defense appropriations act to that time — $46.6 billion for fiscal year 1962. With its share — $12.1 billion — the Army increased its strength to more than a million men, programmed an increase in truck procurement of 49.5 per cent, in aircraft of 61.7 percent, and in M-14 rifles of 25 per cent.



FORCES IN DEPTH

The phrase "Forces in Depth" is fact not fiction. Last year 113,254 officers and men of the Army National Guard and Army Reserve helped make possible the Army's rapid expansion from 860,000 to over a million men.

The 26th Infantry, recent addition to the 2nd Division from the 8th Division in Germany, returns to its home state.

The 26th was organized on February 22, 1901, at Fort McPherson, Ga. For its first duty in the Philippines it engaged in scouting and skirmishes with the island insurgents and in 1903 was returned to the United States for garrison duty along the Mexican border.

Sails For France

When the United States entered World War I the Regiment sailed for France where it served with conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity. At the close of the war it remained a part of the Occupation Force in Germany until 1919 when the Regiment returned home for station in Kentucky.

In August 1942, the 26th Infantry sailed for England, from whence, in November, it because part of "Operation Torch", the invasion of North Africa. The "Blue Spaders" fought thru Algeria, Tunisia and Sicily. After Sicily, they returned to England and prepared for the invasion of France. On D-Day, they landed on the Normandy coast near the town of Colleville - sur-Mer on the right flank. After crossing France and Belgium, they penetrated into Germany.

At the end of the war the 26th was again selected as part of the occupation forces. Today it is a battle-ready member of the Strategic Army Corps' 2nd Infantry Division.

Commanding the unit is Col. Arlin J. Kehe, a 1940 graduate of the State University of Iowa, also holding a Master of Science Degree in Public Administration from Ohio State University.

Deputy commander is Lt. Col. Charles A. Morris. Lt. Col. Lewington S. Ponder serves as executive officer.

Staff Officers

Staff officers are Maj. Leroy W. Smith, S-1; Lt. Peter K. Keogh, S-2; Maj. Abraham N. Sternfield, S-3; and Capt. Dewayne P. Flanigan, S-4.

Commanding the eight companies are: Capt. Joseph A. Canty Jr., Headquarters Company; Lt. George W. Miles, Company A; Lt. Arthur D. Gewan, Company B; Capt. Ellis R. Morris, Company C; Capt. John M. Arnold, Company D; Lt. Ronald R. Coleman, Company E; and Capt. Paul F. Sommerville, Combat Support Company.

Heading the 26th Infantry enlisted men is Sgt. Maj. Benjamin C. Franklin, battle group sergeant major. Serving as first sergeants in the companies are: 1st Sgt. Michael S. Reis, Headquarters Company; 1st Sgt. Robert L. Burton, Company A; 1st Sgt. Felix E. Labiszewski, Company B; 1st Sgt. Charles W. Cruse, Company C; 1st Sgt. Albert E. Jones, Company D; 1st Sgt. Three Air Force Officers Attached to 2nd Division

The second Infantry Division has received one Air Liaison Officer and two Forward Air Controllers, all Air Force officers of the Tactical Air Command.

The ALO is Maj. Dana T. Moore II and the FACs are Capt. J. J. Keller and Capt. L. C. Edlund.

Air Liaison Officers advise Army commanders and their staffs on tactical air operations, assist in target selections and identification for air attack and coordinate FAC activities within their areas of responsibility.

Forward Air Controllers are responsible for target identification, insuring safety for friendly ground units during an air strike, and acting as forward advisers during a battle situation.

Air Force ALOs and FACs will remain current in their basic aircraft and will be encouraged to fly in and become familiar with Army aircraft during their assignments.

Air Force officers were also assigned to the XVIII Airborne Corps, the 82nd Airborne Division, the 101st Airborne Division, the First Infantry Division and the III Corps.

122nd Signal Battalion Unveils Its Communications

A communications exhibition was given Tuesday by the 122nd Signal Battalion, demonstrating to all division and unit staff the communications facilities available and used in the division.

The exhibition was set out in a "county fair" style at Wetherby Field, with guides and instructors to take and talk visitors through the various stations.

In Two Areas

There were basically two areas; the first at the north end of the field showing the communications facilities at the main command post, and the second showing the signal center at a battle group command post.

The complete tour took approximately two hours. Three tours were held throughout the day.

Brig. Gen. Charles Billingslea, division commander, accompanied by Col. John T. Corley, assistant division commander, and Col. Louis A. Kunzig Jr., chief of staff, and other major unit commanders, were present during the morning demonstration.

Lt. Col. Gus H. Grissard, 122nd Signal Battalion commander, welcomed the general and his party, accompanying them on their tour.

The tour began at the Division Tactical Operations Center, the heart of the command post. Here the type communication system used by the division was explained.

Under the area system concept, additional signal centers or switching points are established throughout the division area to support the dispersed divisional elements. The signal centers are interconnected by multichannel radio relay and when the situation permits, by field cable, in such a manner as to provide alternate routes between any two points in the system.

The area coverage capability of the system and the use of multichannel trunks, in lieu of field wire, facilitate the dispersion and operation of the headquarters and supporting units at more extended distances. The provision of dispersed signal centers and alternate routes of adequate capacity between them decreases the vulnerability of the system to damage and increases its flexibility of employment. This system increases the operational ability of division units, since elements of the division may be shifted rapidly throughout the division area with greater ease.

Common-user Circuit

The division area communication system is comprised mainly of common-user circuits. To meet special requirements, a sole-user circuit may be provided. Sole-user circuits are those circuits which are allocated for fulltime use on a point-to-point basis. The establishment of these circuits is based either on traffic volume (where the sole-user circuit can be kept busy during most of the 24-hour day) or on traffic precedence (where normal routing, because of the high precedence of traffic, would result in unwarranted delay in transmission).

The signal centers or switching points in the division area communication system provide points of entry into the system for supported organizations and terminal, testing, patching, and switching facilities for circuits in the system. In addition, they provide local communication center facilities, to include message center, messenger (except at forward signal centers), cryptographic, teletypewriter, and telephone switchboard service for designated headquarters and for other units and installations as required to supplement organic capabilities.

The trunk lines in the division area communication system provide a means of communication from the echelons of division headquarters to immediate subordinate elements and between these elements. They also provide long lines and channels for the use of other divisional elements in lieu of, or to supplement, organic communications.

The division area communication system is supplemented by a.m. and fm radio net of the using organization and in some cases by a separate wire net.

Radio nets within the division and divisional units are provided primarily for internal organizational communications and for communications between major divisional units. Additional radio equipment is provided for air-warning systems and communication with echelons above division. Radio can be used in an emergency or fast-moving situation to supplement a segment of the radio relay system.

Fm and a.m. radios are normally used as initial means of communication particularly when other means are unavailable or unsuitable. As other means become available, the use of radio may be minimized, and, where possible, radio stations placed on standby or listening silence as the situation permits.

Designated By Traffic

The individual radio nets of the division are designated by the type of traffic they are designed to handle. Some of these are the Division Command, intelligence, and administrative - logistic nets (a.m.-ratt), Division CG — command net (fm-voice), division warning and broadcast net (a.m.-voice), Air request radio nets (a.m.-voice-cw), Army logistics net (a.m.-ratt), and Spot report receiver system (uhf-voice).

An fm-voice radio-wire integration station is operated at each signal center (except the rear echelon) to connect mobile fm radio stations into the division area communication system on a push-to-talk basis. The system of integration stations is used to establish communication between mobile fm radio stations and elements connected to the area system by telephone.

The operation of the radio-wire integration system concerns not only signal personnel employed in the division area communication system, but also a large number of other fm radio users throughout the entire division. To accomplish a link-up through the integration system, standard proceedures for radio operators, integration station operators, switchboard operators, and users are set forth in the standing signal instructions (SSI) prepared by the division signal officer's section. Special frequencies for use in the integration system are listed in the division signal operations instructions (SOI).

The radio-wire integration system may be used by the commanding general, division staff, and other designated key personnel in the division, when operating from a mobile CP, to contact division elements connected to the division area communication system, and for the initial establishment of telephone service from the division area communication system to using units until wire lines can be installed.

It is also used for communication between low - flying Army aircraft operating in distant parts of the division area and airstrips or flight control points connected to the division area communication system when direct fm contact cannot be maintained; for communication between forward air controllers and the air liaison officer's communication facilities (normally at the division FSCC) when connected into the division area communication system; and for voice communication between mobile combat units in the division forward area and supporting division logistic elements in the rear area.

The radio-wire integration system may also be used during displacement of CP's to keep commanders and staffs in contact with subordinate and higher headquarters as required, for connecting two switchboards and for spanning a break in a wire circuit between units.

STRENGTH IN DEPTH

Grocers Advise

Fight Colds With Juice, Hot Meals

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fight fall colds with cold orange juice and a warm kitchen, neighborhood grocers might advise this weekend.

They are featuring a variety of roasts—beef, pork and lamb—that invite stoking up the oven on nippy days.

Frozen orange juice concentrate is a sale item at many stores and at lower-than-average price in almost all of them, in view of a heavy pack.

A record Florida citrus crop is just beginning to flow into the market, and that will affect both concentrate and fresh fruit prices.

Among meats, the most widely featured are rib and chuck roasts of beef. Loin roasts are stars of the pork offerings.

Other meat and poultry attractions include porterhouse, sirloin and rib steaks, smoked hams, bacon, sausage, broiler-fryers and turkeys.

Cheese continues a feature as another good protein source and eggs continue to ride at relatively low levels.

Weekend fruit attractions include apples, cranberries, grapes and pears.

Vegetable specials include cauliflower, artichokes, broccoli, brussel sprouts, pole beans, kohlrabi, turnip greens and rutabagas.

MAJ. GEN. LARSEN
Assigned To Europe

General Larsen Is Reassigned To Europe Duty

Maj. Gen. Stanley R. Larsen, commander of the Army's XXI Corps and a former Fort Benning commander, has been reassigned to duty with Headquarters U.S. Army, Europe, in Heidelberg, Germany.

Gen. Larsen will be serving under USAEUR Commanding General Paul L. Freeman Jr., for whom Larsen served as assistant commandant at Fort Benning from 1957 to 1959.

Gen. Larsen, who in 1956 as a brigadier was recognized as the Army's youngest general, is 45. He is a 1939 graduate of the U. S. Military Academy, and was stationed in Hawaii at the outbreak of World War II.

He served in the Pacific Theater of Operations successively as commander and regimental commander of the 35th Infantry Regiment, participating in the Central Pacific, Guadalcanal, North Solomons and Luzon campaigns.

Begin at Age 6

Child's Curiosity Absorbs Science

BY LYNN POOLE
The Johns Hopkins University

The inherent curiosity of children is the key to teaching them basic science for understanding the universe, and the time to begin is when the children are six years old. This is the belief of four University of California scientists who are in the midst of a five-year study on how to introduce young children to science.

By using a child's natural tendency to approach the physical world directly, scientists and teachers can guide children to methods of scientific critical observation, and habits of thought useful throughout life, whether or not they become scientists.

Led by Dr. Robert C. Stebbins, a group of scientists are testing their theory with first grade students in elementary schools. In the experimental classes, conducted during regular classroom school hours, children are being taught to form sound scientific judgments on such important and complex matters as atomic structure, evolution, gravity and all physical forces.

At this age children are open-minded, interested and not yet cast in rigid molds of merely accepting facts handed to them by teachers. Children question facts and will argue; thus can be led to think for themselves and prove to their own satisfaction the basic facts of science.

Scientists know that there is an undefined period in the growth of children in our present cultural context when most seem to lose their sense of curiosity about the natural world. They are no longer as interested in insects, birds, rocks, stars and natural phenomena. At some point they enter into an adult world of more passive acceptance and conformance. That point is probably reached before teen-age.

In some school systems, educators wait until high school before introducing children to a scientific approach to the universe. Before that time they have had a smattering of facts and nature studies, without delving deeper into the scientific approach to facts and studies.

Delight in Projects

While in elementary school children delight in projects and in "taking part" in activities. The scientists are capitalizing on this innate interest by giving them direct participation, by manipulation and direct sense experience through touch, sight, hearing and smelling.

Army Blasts Missile From Sandy Ground

WASHINGTON (ANS)— The Army successfully fired its Pershing ballistic missile recently from unprepared sandy ground at Cape Canaveral.

The firing marked the first time a ballistic missile has been launched from anything other than the concrete and steel pads built to give missiles a smooth and stable take-off surface.

The missile was fired from its erector launcher as it would be in a tactical situation after airlift by helicopter to an unprepared firing site, according to Col. O. M. Hirsch, Pershing Project manager at the Army Missile Command.

The tactical ground support equipment performed the countdown with all power supplied by the tactical primary power pack. The countdown was monitored from the blockhouse.

Pershing and its ground support equipment was positioned on a slight slope to the left of the concrete pad where the missile has been fired during previous research and development firings.

The blast from the missile's first stage solid fuel motor stirred a cloud of dust and sand as Pershing roared into the night sky and streaked out over the Atlantic Ocean on a long range mission.

Brilliant flares were ejected from the missile's warhead after powered flight ended to aid in tracking the nose cone. Preliminary data available immediately after the nose cone impacted in the preselected target area indicated that all test objectives had been met.

The Martin Company, Orlando Division, Fla., is prime contractor for the Pershing under the technical supervision of the Army Missile Command at Redstone Arsenal, Ala. Personnel from both organizations participated in the firing, another in the continuing series of the Pershing development program.

Company A received two new platoon leaders. They are Lt. William R. Dydell and Lt. Rodney E. Hurt.

Lt. James R. Brown, has been assigned as a platoon leader with Company B. Lt. Allen P. Sloan has been assigned to Company C as a platoon leader. Assigned as a platoon leader in Company D was Lt. Manfred H. Stibbe.

Combat Support Company was strengthened by the assignments of Lt. Fred Smith as heavy mortar platoon leader and Lt. Tommy R. Houston as section commander.

'Earthy' Woes Seen in Moon Flight Plans

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Gen. Bernard A. Schriever, Chief of the Air Force Systems Command, speaking to the American Society of Civil Engineers in Detroit, Mich., inferred that future space travel would be limited by facilities established on the ground.

As an example, the Air Force is working on its RS-70, a plane designed to travel three times the speed of sound, or about 2,100 mph.

If this plane were used commercially it would cross the continent in less than two hours.

However, the time saved on such a flight would in most cases be lost by the traveler getting to and from the airport.

Gen. Schriever thinks this makes it obvious that we will not solve all our transportation problems merely by building faster airplanes.

Landing fields and launching stations must be made easily accessible to the potential space traveler, for no matter how fast it travels, the space vehicle must be launched and landed.

Gen. Schriever says, "This will require the development of facilities suited for such problems. There will undoubtedly be unique construction problems involved."

At this point, Gen. Shriever discussed the "spaceports" that must be considered along with spacecraft.

"The formation of the Spaceport Committee in the Aerospace Transport Division is an example," he said, "of the kind of foresight that is needed if we are to tackle tomorrow's problems realistically."

He pointed out that spacecraft personnel and equipment all have to be transported to a launch site and that roads and bridges must be capable of handling the traffic. He also noted that the spaceport should be located near facilities needed for maintenance and repair operations.

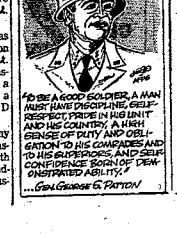
In short, Gen. Schriever said "The journey to the launching pad is the necessary first step to the journey into space. We must plan adequately for both, because both are part of the transportation challenge of the Space Age."

Sp4 Wins All-Service Chess Title

Washington (AFPS) — An Army enlisted man walked away from the week-long chess finals here as the undisputed champion of the Armed Forces for 1962.

Sp4 Roy D. Mallett of the 4th Armored Division, U. S. Army, Europe, claimed the title after chalking up a record of seven wins and two draws.

Another Army player, Pvt. Harry Mayer from Ft. Knox, Ky., placed second with a score of six wins, two draws and one loss.



Capt. Charles D. Mott of the Bureau of Naval Weapons here took third honors, nosing out Cdr. Eugene Sobezyk of he Puget Sound Naval Shipyard, Bremerton, Wash.; Airman Ross F. Sprague of Chanute AFB, Ill.; and Airman Robert W. Walker of Lowry AFB, Colo.

Capt. Mott had four wins, three draws and two losses.

The Thomas Emery Armed Forces Chess Championship Trophy was presented to Maj. Gen. Joe C. Lambert, Adjutant General of the Army. The trophy had been held by the Air Force during the past year.

Dr. Edward L. Katzenbach Jr., Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense (Manpower), was the keynote speaker at the award ceremonies.

Presiding at an awards dinner was Walter J. Fried, President of the American Chess Foundation. The Foundation sponsors the annual Armed Forces Chess Program in cooperation with the Department of Defense, the U. S. Chess Federation and the USO.

Liaison Officer Heads New Command at 23rd

By 23rd Infantry PIO

Taking command of the 23rd Infantry's Company B recently was former battle group liaison officer, Capt. Frank B. Harbor, a 1955 graduate of Mississippi State University.

Capt. Harbor received his Regular Army commission as a result of his being a distinguished graduate of the Reserve Officers Training Corps at MSU.

Capt. Harbor entered active duty in January 1956 and came to Fort Benning for the Basic Infantry Officer Career Course, followed by jump school. He then received an assignment to Fort Polk, La., where he served as a platoon leader.

Following this assignment, Capt. Harbor underwent flight training at Fort Rucker, Ala. He was then given an overseas assignment at Verona, Italy, with the 110th Aviation Company, affiliated with SEATAF.

Upon his return to the U. S., Capt. Harbor took another officer career course at The Infantry School. He then went to Camp Walter, Tex., for the U. S. Army Primary Helicopter School. Upon completing this, he again returned to Fort Benning and was assigned to the 23rd Infantry.

Hometown for Capt. Harbor is Tremont, Miss. At present he and his family are residing at Fort Benning.

Nurse, Teacher, Linguist - That's Mrs. Lucien Keller

BY JAMIE ROEDER

Have you ever wished to walk into the atmosphere of culture and charm so long paralleled with the traditions of the Orient? Your reporter had her wishes answered when she entered the home of Mrs. Lucien Keller this past week. The eastern decor is a perfect stage for the poised charm and warmth which surrounds and highlights "the Colonel's Lady" of the 23rd Infantry. Col. and Mrs. Keller and their two sons arrived at Fort Benning this summer and joined the 2nd Infantry Division.

To go back a little, Anita Gouge Keller was born at Fort Totten, Long Island. She attended Paulsboro High School in Paulsboro, N.J., and then took her higher professional training at the Presbyterian Hospital School of Nursing in Pa. After finishing school she became a Red Cross Nurse and a member of the American Nurses Association.

Miss Anita Gouge became 2nd Lt. Anita Gouge of the Army Nurse Corps during World War II and spent two years in Iceland stationed at a military hospital. It was during this tour of duty that she met the man she would later marry in Texas. We know him as Col. Keller.

Gallantry in Action

The return trip from the Icelandic tour proved to be a dangerously exciting and trying period of time for the lieutenant. During the mountainously high seas and on hundred-mile-an-hour winds, the ballast shifted and knocked holes in the Merchant Marine ship, the "Fairfax", on which Lt. Gouge was travelling. The storm had also washed away all the lifeboats.

To compound the situation the ship's captain had suffered a heart attack and was being cared for by our lieutenant. No food was available and many injuries had been incurred by the passengers. Lt. Gouge made her way to sick-bay in order to aid the doctor. King Neptune continued to oppose them and the seas answered his biding forcing Nurse Gouge to be lashed to the operating table in order to complete her duties. She was told that the ship could not sustain the beating it was taking and that it would sink in a few moments. She should leave sick-bay and go topside. Lt. Gouge elected to remain where she was and to care for the injured. There she remained for two days and a night without relief.

For her voluntary work in caring for the passengers and crew of the stricken ship, Lt. Gouge received a letter awarding her a commendation ribbon. The ribbon itself was presented to her at Fort McPherson, Georgia by Lt. Gen. Alvin C. Gilliem, now retired, who at that time was Third Army Commanding General.

Korean Tour

The Kellers were married at Camp Walker, Tex., in 1943 and then had assignments in Germany, the Philippines, and the Far East. Mrs. Keller names the Korean tour of duty as her favorite because she could speak and understand the language.

This blond, vivacious Army wife spent threee years in Seoul, Korea when Col. Keller served as military attache of the United States Embassy there. Prior to leaving the United States the Kellers were a year at the Language School learning Korean, one of the three most difficult languages in the world. At the time, Mrs. Keller became the only Army wife to graduate with one year of Korean language instruction. As such, she also reads and writes Korean.

Mrs. Keller feels very strongly on the subject of service wives studying a foreign language when the opportunity arises. Overseas tours can be made much more pleasant and enjoyable when a wife can speak the language of the country. It will help her husband, her family and her country.

Language Teacher

Anita Gouge Keller was truly an ambassador of good will while she was in Seoul. She held weekly classes in English conversation and American etiquette for about sixty girls of the Poong-Mun Girls' High School. This was an extra-curricular class, but its popularity soon surpassed the available accommodations and so the roster of students had to be limited. She also held the same type of class each week in her own home for girls of a younger age.

A number of English oratorical contests are held each year in Seoul and Mrs. Keller was asked to be a judge at many of these contests. After the contest itself Mrs. Keller would be asked to speak to the audience and, of course, she spoke in Korean. She felt that it was a personal step in the right direction for Korean-American relations.

Hobbies

In our interview, Mrs. Keller told of her special interest in bridge, golf and, quite obviously, languages. She confessed that her hobbies are french poodles, making friends, and number painting. Speaking of French Poodles, the family pet is a "personality" poodle with an Oriental name and I strongly suspect him of also being a language expert.

The Keller's elder son, Lucien, is a pre-med student at North Georgia College and a member of the Army's ROTC. At home is Roland a sophomore at Columbus High School and a member there of the Army ROTC Honor Guard. Both sons speak some Korean and taught English Conversation to Korean youths at their home in Seoul. They still correspond with some of their Korean friends.

Officers' Wives Plan For November Luncheon

A coffee at the home of Mrs. William Patrick was a scene of great activity last Friday when the ladies of the 87th Infantry gathered to put final touches to their plans for hostessing the November luncheon of the 2nd Division Officers' Wives Club, Mrs. Leroy Jones co-hostessed the function.

The Division luncheon will be held on Tuesday, November 13 at the Main Officers' Open Mess. With this date being just around the corner, Mrs. Ralph Hughett and her committees are busily making the appointments to complete their chosen Thanksgiving and Pilgrim theme.

Committee chairmen for this luncheon are Mesdames Richard Stewart, decorations; George Crosbey, name tags; Robert Smith, menu; Stewart Cosby, head table; Norwood Kratzer, refreshment tables. Ladies assisting Mrs. Kratzer are Mesdames Roy Dunaway, Filbert Ellis, William Patrick, Herbert Smith. Mrs. Dunaway and Mrs. Smith will also be in charge of foliage decorations.

Mrs. Bryan Evans, 1st Vice President of the Club, has arranged for an informative and interesting program on home decorated to be presented by a local company.

Mrs. Green Entertains With Bridge

The ladies of 12th Transportation held a bridge party in the home of Mrs. Frank D. Green Jr. last Wednesday afternoon. Light refreshments were served during the party.

This is a new function for the unit and they plan to hold monthly Battalion Bridge parties in the homes of various members. The next meeting of this group will be at 1:00 p.m. on 31 October. Mrs. James D. O'Bryan will be hostess.

Normandy Room Is Coffee Scene For 38th Ladies

The Normandy Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess was the scene recently of the monthly coffee for ladies of the 38th Infantry. Hostesses for the affair were Mrs. Ralph Kennedy and Mrs. George Massey.

The hostesses chose an arrangement of dried straw flowers and wheat grouped in an Early American motif as a centerpiece for the serving table.

Mrs. John T. Corley, wife of Col. Corley, division commander, was an honored guest at the event.

She also presented the program, speaking on the topic, "How to make a success of our lives while our husbands are overseas."

New arrivals to the group were introduced. They were Mrs. Benjamin Owen and Mrs. Larry Ayers.

'23rd' Monthly Coffee Hosted At Bolen Home

The monthly coffee of the 23rd Infantry Ladies were held at the home of Mrs. Charles H. Bolen Jr., on October 18.

Hostesses were Mesdames Charles H. Bolen Jr., Edwin Crowley Jr., Kurt Peterson and Clyde K. Cleveland.

Mrs. Benjamin S. Silver Jr. poured. A seasonal floral arrangement decorated the refreshment table.

Mrs. Lucien F. Keller, wife of Col. Keller, 23rd Infantry commander, welcomed newcomers Mrs. Cleo C. Parker Jr. and Mrs. Charles Shockley.

Mrs. Lawernce W. Drinkard won the doorprize which was a candy dish.

Serving Coffee

Serve coffee immediately after brewing. It is then at its peak flavor. If you must prepare coffee ahead of time, keep it over a very low heat. Never allow it to boil!

Birth Announced At 12th Artillery

Lt. and Mrs. Charles Williams Jr., announce the birth of their son, Charles Don Williams III, on October 13.

Lt. Williams, 12th Artillery S-3 officer, is a 1961 graduate of Florida State University. Mrs. Williams, the former Marilyn Jones, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Jones of Branford, Florida. Mrs. Williams is also a 1961 graduate of Florida State.

They reside at 69 Pelham Drive Benning Hills, Columbus.

13th Trans. Hold Coffee

Mrs. Jack J. Lynn recently held a coffee in her home for the ladies of 13th Transportation. She arranged a centerpiece of yellow, white and buff mums in a Halloween motif for the table decoration. Mrs. H. F. McFeely poured.

New arrivals welcomed into the unit were Mrs. James D. O'Brian and Mrs. Alfred Kelmm. Mrs. Edward C. Pogue and Mrs. Harris Cathay were bade farewell.

Guests for this coffee were officers' wives of Post Transportation. Mesdames Harris Cathay, H. F. McFeely, Paul Brown, Noble Taylor.

'23rd' Men Score Tops In Sunday Chess Exhibition

By 23rd Infantry PIO

A simultaneous chess exhibition conducted last Sunday at Service Club Two was dominated by five members of the 23rd Infantry, with two of them taking first and second places in the event.

Under the direction of Lt. Robert Karch, 2nd Military Intelligence Detachment, the exhibition had nine entrants, all playing Lt. Karch simultaneously. Playing longest against "expert" Karch was Pvt. Harris P. Laskaris, with Pvt. Yuri Koral runner-up. Both men are from the 23rd Infantry's Company E. Other participants include Sp4 John M. Spratling, Company B, Sp4 John Bauman, Combat Support Company, Pvt. Donald M. Devore, Company D, Pvt. Samuel O. Mandia, 2nd MI Det., Sp4 Peter J. Seitanaris, Company E 9th Infantry, and PFC's Raymond Servant and Byron F. Wood, both of Headquarters Company 9th Infantry.

According to Miss Madelyn Parks, director of Service Club Two, the exhibition was held to spur interest in the game and possibly organize a chess club for the enlisted men at the service club.

38th Fires Annual Test; 37th's Next

By DivArty PIO

The 38th Artillery Battalion went to the field recently for its annual battery firing tests; and the 37th Artillery is scheduled soon to do the same.

The tests, conducted under simulated combat conditions, are designed to measure the speed and accuracy of the firing batteries.

Lt. Col. Francis A. Chance Jr., commands the 38th Artillery. Battery A of the 38th is commanded by Capt. William F. Doherty, and Battery B by Lt. Jackie D. Sims.

The 37th, whose two firing batteries will complete this phase of the artillery tests, is commanded by Lt. Col. John E. Connolly. The commander of Battery A is Capt. Charles E. Avery Jr. and of Battery B, Capt. Donald D. Tucker.

Battalion level tests were held Oct. 30 and 31 for the 12th Artillery. The remaining artillery units will test fire their battalions early next year.

RESERVES ARE OLDER

The role played by the Reserve in the defense of the United States is older than the nation itself. As far back as 1636, the old North Regiment of Massachusetts was guarding Middlesex County. Today, the Reserve Components still provide our Army with its "Forces in Depth."

Lt. Hoitt Assigned To Airborne School

First Lt. Harold E. Hoitt has been assigned here as operations officer of the Infantry School's Airborne-Air Mobility Department.

He comes here from Korea where he served from Aug. 6, 1961, to Sept. 22, 1962, with Company A, 1st Battle Group, 5th Cavalry.

Col. Paulick Heads Tour Of Academy

Thirteen members of The Infantry School's Airborne - Air Mobility Department, headed by Col. Michael Paulick, department director, departed Thursday for a four-day visit to the U. S. Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, Colo.

The invitation for the visit came from Brig. Gen. William T. Seawell, commandant of cadets.

While there the members of the instructional staff of the Army's only paratrooper training school will tour the training facilities of the Armed Forces' newest service academy.

In July, 83 Air Force cadets took jump training here. Many of the department members accompanying Col. Paulick had a personal hand in teaching the future officers the fundamentals of basic parachuting.

Included in the group are Maj. Richard A. Fite, executive officer of the Basic Airborne Committee; 1st Lt. William R. Lehrfeld, an instructor in airborne techniques with the Jump Training Subcommittee, and 10 enlisted instructors from committees in the department.

They are scheduled to return Sunday.

Lt. McClendon Gets Silver Bars At 2nd Engineers

By 2nd Engineer PIO

Promoted recently to the rank of 1st lieutenant was Lt. Miles R. McClendon, assistant S-3 of the 2nd Engineer Battalion.

The new 1st lieutenant received his silver bars from Lt. Col. William C. Carter Jr., commanding officer of the engineer battalion.

Lt. McClendon has been with Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 2nd Engineer Battalion, since June 19, 1962.

Col. M. W. Kendall Assigned To Command and Staff Dept.

Lt. Col. Maurice W. Kendall has been assigned to the Attack Committee (Intelligence & Operations) Command and Staff Department, of The Infantry School.

He comes to Fort Benning from the 15th Division in Korea where he was Chief of Plans and Operations Branch. His other overseas assignments include duty with the 15th Infantry Regiment, 3rd Infantry Division, during World War II Section, Headquarters, AFFE in Japan from 1953 to 1954, and in Okinawa from 1954 to 1956.

Col. Kendall was an instructor at TIS from April, 1947, to August, 1950, where he was assigned to Staff Department, now part of Command and Staff Department. He was also at Fort Benning for OCS in 1948, followed by assignment to the 124th Infantry Regiment. In 1951 he returned as a student in the Infantry Officer Advance Course and upon graduation was assigned to the AFF Board, also at Fort Benning.

Col. Kendall has been awarded the Silver Star, the Bronze Star with Three Oak Leaf Clusters, the Army Commendation Medal, the Purple Heart and the Combat Infantryman Badge.

Col. Kendall and his wife, Aura, have two children, Karen R., 15, and John M., 13.

Special Report

Gives His Life Training Natives Fighting Viet Cong Communists

By Jim Wilson

Another American soldier has given his life fighting communism.

Army Capt. Terry D. Cordell, of Sanford, Florida, was killed when the spotter plane he was flying in went down in the rugged central highlands of Vietnam on October 25.

Close to Benning

Such a report as this brings the war, presently going on in South Vietnam, much closer to Fort Benning. It was only in 1957 after graduating from The Citadel that Capt. Cordell was a student at The Infantry School. He was known here by many.

Shortly before "Terry's" death, he briefed the assistant division commander of the 2nd Infantry Division, Col. John T. Corley, on what he was doing in training native Montagnards tribesmen (the native Indians of Southeast Asia), at Bou Ena village, six kilometers east of Ban Me Thulet, Vietnam.

His training was aimed at teaching the Montagnards to protect their village and to defend themselves and their families against the communist invaders.

During Col. Corley's visit in mid-August, Capt. Cordell as commander of a small group of Special Forces men, was operating four training centers in native villages in the central highlands of Vietnam. In October, he had expanded his operations to six training centers in additional village areas.

In August, the Viet Cong were making small attacks and setting ambushes. In October, prior to Capt. Cordell's death, Viet Cong attacks increased to bands of 100 to 200 men strong to include setting up large road ambushes. A strong propaganda effort with particular emphasis on influencing the people against their government and the American advisors assisting the Vietnamese, was put into effect.

However, the Montagnard tribesmen trained by Capt. Cordell are hurting the Viet Cong.

Operations Pick Up

Two weeks prior to his death, Capt. Cordell wrote Col. Corley as follows: "Operations have picked up in the past three weeks. The Viet Cong were relatively quite for almost two weeks but now started in against us with large scale units and attacks.

"During the past two weeks the Montagnard tribesmen have killed and wounded many of the Viet Cong. We have lost one man with two severely wounded. (I really shouldn't say "man" for the one killed was a three - year - old child during an ambush of vehicles. They had a mine in the road which failed to detonate or we would have lost quite a few in that action.)

"The monsoon season is now upon us in full force. Most of the roads are impassable — particularly near the training centers. . ."

At the time of Col. Corley's Southeast Asia tour, Capt. Cordell was in complete charge of the situation. Speaking of the captain, the 2nd Division's assistant division commander said, "He was operating in a top-notch manner and performing his assigned duties to the best of his knowledge and ability. I gained the impression of a young, outstanding officer performing his duties under difficult conditions in a highly professional manner. Capt. Cordell was at his peak as a Regular Army officer."

Here was an Army captain who could easily be described as a model Infantry officer. He received his basic infantry training, Airborne and Ranger training at The Infantry School, and was integrated into the Regular Army.

He had just received his Master's Degree in Business Administration from Louisiana State College prior to leaving for Vietnam for a Special Forces assignment.

Div. Flag Football Again Put Off

Units Set Drill Games

By Bob de Camara

Flag football at the division level has been postponed once again.

Originally rescheduled from October 25 to November 1, flag football is this time suspended indefinitely.

Several of the units have arranged to play some unofficial games. These are not for the most part formally scheduled nor will they count towards any trophy or award. They are practice games to keep the units in shape and to keep the teams' enthusiasm high enough to swing into regular league play at any time. The games were casually set up in the Special Services office Tuesday afternoon at a units' sports representatives' meeting gathered to discuss the sports schedule in the division.

Many of the units have been practicing for weeks for the league football games and are anxious to begin the regular season. Flag football is the final sport in the summer-fall commanding general's trophy. The results of the football play will determine the winner of that trophy.

The unfinished division golf tournament has been declared over and standings as they now exist will be entered for the CG's trophy.

Here are the dates of the unofficial flag football games agreed upon last Tuesday. October 31, 9th Infantry vs. 7th Cavalry; November 1, 9th Infantry vs. Division Artillery; 7th Cavalry vs. 87th Infantry; November 2, 87th Infantry vs. 9th Infantry; November 3, 7th Cavalry vs. Division Artillery.

The Separate Battalions, excluding the 69th Armor, will hold a play-off to determine their entry in the postponed division league.

Lt. Coleman Heads 26th's Company E

By 26th Infantry PIO

Lt. Ronald R. Coleman has taken command of the 6th Infantry's Company E. He replaces Lt. John Bond, who has taken over the duties of S-3 liaison officer.

Lt. Coleman, has just arrived from Mainz, Germany, where he served with the 1st Airborne Battle Group, 505th Infantry. He entered the Army in August 1958.

'Always First's' Charlie Gets Softball Trophies

By 1st Infantry PIO

The 1st Infantry recently held a battle group review to present softball trophies to Company C, the softball champions of the "Always First."

Col. Edgar B. Poole, battle group commander presented the members of the Company C softball team with the trophies.

First Sgt. Henry Siejka accepted the trophy for Company C. Capt. Thomas M. McAniff, commander of the company, accepted the trophies for the personnel that were not present for the battle group review.

The members not present for the presentation were Thomas A. Storey, now with the 38th Infantry; James Banks Jr.; Jose A. Santiago; and Marion S. Flint Jr.

Present for the presentation were Marion T. Fairris, Robert L. Sellers, Clyde L. Pine, John R. Griffin, Harold D. Babb, Emmitt Journey Jr., George Penno, and Gerald W. Jones.

23rd Wants Five V-Ball Conquests

Scheduled to get back in action and complete unplayed games in the 2nd Division Volleyball Tournament are the 23rd Infantry netters.

With five games to be played, the 23rd has a chance of changing the standings of the tournament and causing a scramble for the berths below the 87th's first place.

The 23rd was prevented from playing its schedule by a trip to Oxford, Mississippi. During the stay there in the Oxford area, an almost daily practice by the 23rd players could prove to be the deciding factor on whether or not the last five games will be victories for the 23rd Infantry.

Doughboys Schedule Rugged Daytona Beach Eleven

Semi-Pro Thunderbird Contest To Replace Scheduled Knox Tilt

BY BILL GARDNER

The undefeated, untied Fort Benning Doughboys will host the high scoring Daytona Beach "Thunderbirds" of the semi-pro Florida Football League in a game at 8 p.m. tomorrow in Doughboy Stadium.

An earlier scheduled game with Fort Knox, Ky., was canceled, as were games Nov. 9 and Nov. 17 with Fort Belvoir, Va., and Fort Dix, N. J. The only remaining contest on the original schedule that hasn't been canceled is a Dec. 1 fray with Fort Campbell, Ky.

Officials at The Infantry Center Special Services Section have sent out feelers to various clubs, including service teams in the Southwest, in hopes of filling the open dates.

Capt. Leslie Cofield, coach of the most successful team in Fort Benning's history, 7-0 so far, feels they were lucky to arrange a game with a team of the Thunderbirds caliber.

"There are some mighty good former college players in their lineup," he stated, "and they'll be the heaviest team we've played so far."

As if to underline this last combined weights of the starting backfield, a hefty 460 pounds.

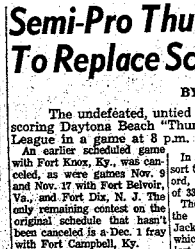
This includes Jack Moynihan, a 210-pound quarterback who played with Holy Cross and the Boston Patiots of the American Football League, and Charles Barnes, 220 - pound halfback who played with the University of Arkansas and Dallas of the same league.

Thier line averages over 236 pounds and is anchored by mammoth right guard Chuck Dickerson at 256 and right tackle John Coyne, who only weighs a paltry 250.

Dickerson toiled for the University of Illinois and Buffalo of the American Football League, while Coyne played for Clarion College and Los Angeles of the National League.

In 10 games this year the resort town eleven has an 8-2 record, and scored an average of 33.9 points a game.

They are in second place in the Florida league, behind Jacksonville, a team over which they have won one and lost one.



Fort Benning and the Thunderbirds have met one mutual opponent, the Orlando Rebels. In two games with them, Daytona earned a split, capturing one by the score of 39-6, and losing the other 45-30.

In their third game of the season, the Doughboys won over Orlando, 21-7, in a contest that was marred by heavy penalties.

A second scheduled game last week was canceled.

In its last game, Oct. 20, Fort Benning beat a rugged Quantico, Va., team 14-3, whose passing has figured in a number of doughboy scores, played for Virginia State.

The public is invited and admission is free.

COMFORT COUNTS . . . Any bowler will tell you to be as comfortable as possible when participating in the game. It adds to your relaxation and enjoyment of the sport. To be as comfortable as possible, loose-fitting clothing should be worn. Slacks should allow freedom of movement; shirt should have plenty of shoulder room. In fact, for comfort and complete freedom there are special bowling shirts which may be purchased. These shirts have pleats along the shoulders, insuring free movement of arm as it is stretched out to follow through when bowling.

Shough's Sports Scope

By Pete Shough

Is college football finally settling down? If last weekend is any indication, it is.

Last weekend was the first since the 1962 college football season opened that were no major upsets. The only startling score last Saturday was the Texas-Rice game. Rice caught the Longhorns off balance and battled them to a tie. This seems to be the role of the winless Owls this season. Back on Sept. 29, the Rice Owls scored a big upset when they tied LSU.

It is hard to believe that football is more than half over for most of the country's colleges. The surprising thing is that there are so many teams that still have a perfect record. In the Associated Press top ten, there are five teams that have not suffered a defeat and two that the only mark against them is a tie.

This past week undefeated Northwestern was named the nation's best. There is no doubt the 1962 season is the best the Wildcats have seen since pre-war years, if ever. And, by giving their schedule a quick glance, it looks like they should finish the season with a clean bill. The only team remaining on the roster that could propose a problem is a big, tough Michigan State 11.

The Ohio State Buckeyes caught fire last weekend against Wisconsin. The Bucks 14-7 victory over the Badgers should give them the spark to cover the rest of the season without a defeat. Of course, their schedule doesn't contain any teams that should be real problem to the Buck defense.

Alabama is finally reaching the toughest end of their schedule. Their next four games will tell the tale. Is the Crimson Tide the team it was last year — can they finish the season with a clean slate?

This Saturday the Tide will tangle with Mississippi State. The Bulldogs should propose some opposition to Alabama, although the Crimson Tide will come home with the bacon. But, the coming weekends will not be so easy for the Tide.

Nov. 10, the Miami, (Fla.) Hurricanes come to Alabama to test one of the nation's top defensive teams. The following weekend, the Rambling Wrecks from Georgia Tech meet the Crimson Tide. But Alabama's greatest challenge is yet to come. The Auburn Tigers and the Crimson Tide will meet in Birmingham on Dec. 1 to decide the Southeastern Conference's top team.

If Alabama can survive its last four weekends of action without a defeat, they are more than worthy of being named to the nation's top slot. The test is coming for the Tide. Have they been winning just because of their poor schedule or do they deserve the credit they have been getting?

Tomorrow, football action will reach a peak across the country. Several of the country's top rivalries will be renewed.

Notre Dame over Navy — The Middies have more victories in their pocket than the Irish but the Navy schedule don't match Notre Dame's.

Southern California over Washington — Southern Cal packs too much of a punch for the Huskies.

Mississippi over Louisiana State—This contest is a toss up, but I don't think the Fighting Tigers have the stuff since Dietzel left.

Georgia Tech over Duke — This one could go either way but the Rambling Wrecks will sneak by the tough-luck Blue Devils.

THE UPHILL LIE . . . Quite often the golfer is called upon to hit uphill. For most, this is an easier shot than downhill or sidehill. Open the stance slightly and compensate for the tendency to let the weight settle on the right foot. A shorter swing will aid balance. Less pivot, more control. Bending the left knee slightly may further compensate for the unnatural weight distribution.

OUTDOOR OUTLOOK

By PFC Stephen O. Able

HUNTING SEASON

Yesterday marked the beginning of deer, turkey, and squirrel seasons, on the Georgia part of the reservation.

If each hunter will follow a few simple suggestions, the coming season will be both successful and pleasant.

You must report each deer and turkey kill to the Fish and Game Association, Bldg. 4050, Harmony Church, (545-6028). Failure to report kills may result in the loss of your hunting privileges on the post.

If it is possible to reach the Fish and Game Association Headquarters before 6 p.m., bring your deer so that it might be weighed logged and checked. In any event, the deer must be reported.

Also remember your guns must be registered with the Provost Marshal. Remember to wear red or yellow headgear while hunting during the deer season. Each hunter is urged to keep safety as the first thought in his mind.

If each hunter will keep these suggestions in mind, and put safety first, we can have the safest and most pleasant hunting in Fort Benning history.

FISHING AROUND POST

Johnson's Pond is now open for fishing. This pond was stocked with catfish, and is now ready for harvesting. A limit of 12 channel catfish, has been established.

In general, fishing on the post has been quite satisfactory, and should continue to improve as the weather stays cool. Surface fishing for bass and bream should improve with the cool weather.

See Early Completion of Bridge Over Chattahoochee

Construction of the new permanent bridge over the Chattahoochee River on the Fort Benning reservation is proceeding rapidly and will be completed ahead of schedule, according to the Savannah District Engineer Office here.

The roads from the Georgia and Alabama sides of the river have been paved and three of 12 concrete deck sections have been poured. Also completed are the substructure piers and prestressed concrete beams.

Brandon Kneller, resident engineer of the Savannah District, said, "We will soon erect the structural steel beams on top of the piers and then cover them with poured concrete."

He added, "When the beams are erected, we will install rope safety nets under the bridge to protect the workmen. The nets will be suspended from the bridge by steel cables."

Good weather has been a boon to the bridge construction, Kneller said. "Our contract with the Henry Newton Company of Decatur, Ga., which is building the bridge, called for an April 26, 1963, completion," he stated.

He added, "We are shooting for the completion date of March 1. Only poor weather will handicap us."

The new bridge, being built with civil works funds, will be completed in connection with the building of the Walter F. George reservoir at Fort Gaines, Ga. The lock and dam, when completed, will provide Columbus with a gateway to the world by connecting inland waterways with sea - going ships.

The bridge will be 702 feet long and will have a 26-foot runway, Kneller said. Containing about 256,000 pounds of reinforcing steel and some 2,000 cubic yards of concrete, it will have a half million pounds of structural steel.

Constructed under Georgia State Highway specifications for interstate bridges, the new structure is about a half mile downstream from the present Fort Benning pontoon bridge.

Designed for a pool elevation of 172.6 feet above sea level, it will have an ordinary high water figure of 194 feet. At the high water point, clearance under the bridge will be 37.31 feet, Kneller said.

He added, "When the Chattahoochee River is high and the Walter F. George Dam, when completed, is full, the river will be navigable."

Roads leading to the bridge will branch off from Dixie Road on the Georgia side and from the 101st Division Road on the Alabama side. Gross length of the bridge will be one and three-tenths miles.

Completion of the new structure is expected to result in a sub-division building boom on the Alabama side of the river, Kneller pointed out.

"Many post civilian personnel living in Alabama some distance from Fort Benning have indicated their desire to move to the area across the river," he added. "We have already received many inquiries about new housing on the Alabama side."

The bridge will not be a throughway for interstate traffic but will provide a dependable access to the post for personnel living in Alabama. When the pontoon bridge is closed, these people have a 22-mile drive to the post, Kneller said.

When the construction of the new causeway is completed, one of Fort Benning's historic landmarks will pass into history. The pontoon bridge, which connects 82nd Airborne Division Road on the Georgia side with 101st Airborne Division Road in Alabama, will be eliminated.

The pontoon span, operated by the 586th Engineer Float Bridge Company, was authorized for use at Fort Benning in 1942. It will remain in place until the new bridge is open to traffic.

SUPPORTING NEW SPAN . . . These concrete piers, deeply imbedded in the bottom of the Chattahoochee River, will provide the support for the new $576,000 permanent bridge being built from Fort Benning to the Alabama side of the river. It is expected to be completed by March 1 if the weather permits.

U. S. Military Doctors Set Annual Meet

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The 69th annual meeting of the Association of Military Surgeons will be held here at the Mayflower Hotel Nov. 12-14, with an attendance of more than 2,000 U. S. and foreign physicians and medical personnel expected.

Theme of the meeting this year is "A United Front Against Common Killers." Some 50 scientific papers will be read on subjects from a new theory on shock to changing concepts in lung cancer. Maj. Gen. William C. Westmoreland, superintendent of the U. S. Military Academy, will deliver a special address on "Mental Health — an Aspect of Command."

The AMS, the only U. S. organization representing military medicine, has the mission of advancing all phases of medicine related to the Federal services. Organized before the Spanish-American War, it was incorporated by Act of Congress in 1903.

At first its membership was limited to medical offices of the National Guard; later it embraced doctors, dentists, veterinarians, nurses, medical specialists and allied medical personnel of all the Armed Forces, the Public Health Service, the Veterans Administration and foreign military medical services.

'Liberty Bell Slept Here' Is the Boast of Allentown

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (AFPS)— This busy industrial city, laid out as a town just 200 years ago, has its own perky rejoinder to other communities dating from the colonial era that proclaim: "George Washington Slept Here."

No doubt the Father of His County also slept in Allentown, but the city boasts another historical distinction. Allentowners will tell you proudly that "The Liberty Bell slept here" in the days when it was still known as Northampton Town.

The bell's hibernation began some 15 months after it had pealed out the adoption of the Declaration of Independence in Philadelphia. Patriots removed it from what is now Independence Hall when the British moved on the city.

Why? They feared that once the redcoats were in control they would melt down Philadelphia's bells to be made into bullets. The 2,080-pound Liberty Bell was one of 11 laboriously carted 56 miles northward to Allentown in September 1777 as Washington's army retreated to spend a miserable winter at Valley Forge.

To this day the descendants of two Pennsylvania farmers of the time, John Jacob Mickley and Frederick Lesser, argue about which had the honor of carrying the precious bell to safety. Once in Allentown it was hidden in the cellar of the Zion United Church where it remained until late June of 1778 when the British pulled out of Philadelphia.

Today the Liberty Bell is a prized attraction at Independence Hall, but Allentown also has its bell — a replica presented by the state of Pennsylvania. Visited by more than 200 people a day, it rests in the same cellar where it "slept" through the bitter winter months of 1777-78. The cellar was discovered in 1958 under the modern church that now occupies the site. Around the bell hang the flags of the original 13 states of the Union, forming a shrine to commemorate Allentown's role in the Revolution.

5 Civilian Employees Recognized for Work

Five civilian employees were honored in Incentive Award ceremonies at The Infantry School today for improvements expected to save $2,709 per year and for outstanding and sustained superior service.

The awards were presented by Brig. Gen. Royal Reynolds Jr., assistant commandant of the school, in a series of ceremonies conducted at the departments or activities where the recipients are employed.

Outstanding job ratings and cash awards for sustained superior performance were presented to Mrs. F. L. Ratcliff and Mrs. E. T. Jenkins.

Mrs. Ratcliff, who is an accounting supervisor in the Operations Office, was commended for superior performance from May 21, 1961, through May 31, 1962. She received $150.

Mrs. Jenkins was presented $100 for sustained superior service from July 1, 1961, through June 30, 1962. She is a clerk-typist in the Command and Staff Department.

Gen. Reynolds presented $15 to Mrs. John H. Dixon for proposing the use of an electric letter opener in the Army Extension Course Committee of the Department of Nonresident Instruction where she is student adviser.

By expediting the opening of approximately 30,000 lessons and other student communications per month, the proposal is expected to result in annual benefits to the government of $179.

Larry S. Bledsoe was awarded $25 for proposing a centralization of cadre officers personnel records and pay jackets at one location. The suggestion, by reducing the time required to post changes to the records, will result in annual benefits of $585.

Bledsoe made the suggestion while employed at the Student Brigade. He is now a military pay clerk at The Infantry Center Finance and Accounting Office.

Carl A. Keth received a Letter of Commendation for two suggestions and a letter of appreciation for a third proposal.

He proposed a card system to maintain control over work processed at the Army Field Printing Plant where he is chief of the Composition Section. Adoption of the suggestion provides a means of checking the status of any order being processed at the plant.

A second suggestion made by Keth provides for mending torn corners of pages during a reproduction process, using gum tape squares rather than entire sheets of paper.

Keth's third proposal provides a fast, economical method of clipping typed corrections to be pasted on copy, using a trimming knife, according to officials.

The three suggestions are expected to save the government approximately $1,945 per year.

Capt. Orr Assigned To Engineer Group

Capt. Charles R. Orr has been assigned to the Engineer Committee, Command and Staff Department and has completed the Instructor Training course at The Infantry School.

This is Capt. Orr's second assignment here as he completed Ranger and Airborne training following his graduation from the U. S. Military Academy in 1954. This was followed by an assignment with the 3rd Division until 1957, when he was assigned to Japan.

He resides with his wife Carol and son Robert at 3846 Rockdale Drive, Columbus, Georgia.

What's All This Talk Concerning Fluoride?

By Lt. Col. H. W. Merchant
Preventive Dentistry Officer

Every day someone asks about fluorine in the water, fluoride treatments and fluoride toothpastes, so let me devote the column this week to questions and answers about fluorides.

Q—What are the different types of fluoride used to reduce tooth decay?

A—Sodium fluoride is used in water supply — one part sodium fluoride per million parts water. This reduces decay as much as 60 per cent and costs about ten cents per year per person.

Sodium fluoride tables or liquid taken by the child daily is next best but costs about $10 per year per child and must be used from birth to age eight to be most effective. This is obtainable only with a prescription.

Stannous fluoride solution may be applied topically to the teeth. This must be repeated at yearly intervals or in some cases more often.

Fluoridated toothpaste used after each meal has been shown to be of value, too. However, at present only one brand has been proved effective and acceptable to the American Dental Association which evaluates these products.

Q —Does fluoridation really save money?

A —It sure does. As I mentioned above it only costs about a dime a year per person to provide a 50 per cent or more reduction in decay in children's teeth. It has been estimated that each dollar spent on fluoridation saves $40 in dental bills. We are fortunate at Fort Benning in having had fluoridated water since 1957.

Q — Do any foods contain fluoride?

A —Yes. Almost all foods contain minute quantities of fluorides and some contain large amounts.

LEADERS OF FINNISH DEFENSES . . . Getting a close view of 81-mm mortar ammunition used in weapons demonstrations at Hook Range are four high ranking Finnish officers who toured training facilities of The Infantry School last week. Left to right are Gen. Jaakko S. Simelius, commander-in-chief of the Finnish Defense Forces; Maj. Henrik I. Anttila, assistant military, naval and air attache, Embassy of Finland in Washington, D. C.; Maj. Jaakko J. Valtanen, aide to Gen. Simelius; Col. Raymond B. Marlin, director of The Infantry School Department; Maj. Paavo Kairinen of Washington, Department of the Army tour director; Lt. Col. James E. Echols, chairman of the Command and Staff Department Artillery Committee, and Capt. Clement K. Hauanio, an instructor on the Weapons Department Mortar Committee.

OSA Defense College Open In Capital

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The first Inter-American Defense College opened at Ft. Lesley J. McNair on Oct. 9 as Secretary of State Dean Rusk turned several renovated Army buildings over to Maj. Gen. Thomas F. Van Natta, USA, director of the college.

Dr. Jose A. Mora, Secretary General of the Organization of American States (OAS) gave the key address.

The college is an advanced military studies institute for senior military officers of OAS member nations.

The 22-week course will present each student officer with the chance to compare the military, economic, political and social factors that constitute essential components of Inter-American defense.

Operating costs of the school will be borne by all participating countries under a formula established by the Pan American Union.

Kids Really 'Dig' Space--Mail to NASA Proves It

HOUSTON, Tex. (AFPS) — "Are you ever going to send women up to the moon? I always know you are sending men and animals. I would lik to try a rockite I don't care if I land in Russia or another countrey I could take stuff up with me and do stuff so I wouldent get sick or lonesome I don't care if it takes my life."

When officials at the headquarters of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration here find letters like the above in their mail, they're not surprised. Such letters from young Americans in the seven-to-14 age group come in to NASA by the hundreds each week — and although many of them, like little Pat Desmond's, are a bit on the wobbly side in the spelling department, they reflect a lively interest in the nation's space program.

Writes Geoff Shurtleff: "I would like to be an astronaut. I am 11 years old and could easily be the youngest astronaut in the world."

And to Astronaut M. Scott Carpenter from seven-year-old Lane Scott comes this cheerful communique: "I never thought you would make it. When I grow up I want to go to the moon, Mars, Pluto, Saturn, Uranus and Jupiter. I have a telescope. I think the stars look like bumpy things. The moon has holes. Please write to me."

But if a good many of these letters from America's younger set make droll reading, occasionally one of them makes the NASA people sit up. Take this one, received from Jerry Gold of the Bronx, N. Y. 'I am puzzled," writes Jerry, "on one thing. This Apollo capsule (alone) will orbit the earth in 1965. In 1966 it will make circumlunar missions. In 1967 or '68 it will make a landing. Here lies my trouble — will the capsule be shot to the moon directly from earth with a Saturn C-5 booster or will the capsule mate in orbit with those rockets (with the legs) and travel on to the moon?"

The fact is, Jerry put his finger on a problem that NASA still hasn't figured out.

Army OKs New Basipac System

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Basipac, a rugged new medium size computer designed by Philco Corp. under Army contract, has completed all "torture" and operational acceptance tests.

The new computer was engineered for use with division-size Army units under the rigors of warfare.

Five Basipacs are already working for the Army, controlling the flight of drone aircraft, directing fire - support systems and training future Army computer operators.

Asks ROA Members To Back Legislation

Officers who have retired from the Armed Forces and who conducted their military duties successfully when the survival of the country was at stake are not fulfilling their obligations in retirement, Lt. Gen. (Ret.) Reuben E. Jenkins told some 100 members of the Georgia Retired Officers Association here Oct. 20.

Gen. Jenkins added that retired service officers are free to advise the local constituency and to use their influence to gain support for or against any legislation.

"It is our duty to exercise this freedom, once denied us, in any legislation that may affect the personnel or posture of our national defense forces," he said.

The retired general added that it is unthinkable that these former leaders should sit back in complacent confidence when legislation is being considered which is unjust to those officers in retirement or on the active list.

Gen. Jenkins pointed out that retired officers should obtain greater civilian support in other communities for national legislation that affects matters of importance to retired and active personnel.

As the principal speaker at the state association's one-day convention, he said political leaders are responsive to the wishes of the people they represent.

He added, "We cannot expect congressional support of our views unless they are backed by a vocal and responsible segment of our civilian constituency."

He continued, "We must have the support of responsible civilians who must shoulder the bulk of any added financial burden. And we have few causes that do not involve some increases in the defense budget."

The association, which included retired officers of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Air Force, Coast Guard and the Georgia Survey and Public Health Service, was welcomed by Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly, deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, and Columbus Mayor Steve Knight.

Gen. Kelly emphasized the need of well-trained Infantrymen in the United States' defense effort.

"In spite of all the new weapons that are available to our fighting forces, it is still the Infantrymen who have to accomplish the necessary mission of closing with and often destroying the enemy," he said.

Speaking before the association members, Georgia Veterans Service Director Pete Wheeler said that Berlin is one of the chief trouble spots of the world.

Wheeler, who toured U.S. and NATO military reservations in Europe recently, visited briefly the Communist sector of East Berlin.

"The best feeling I ever had was when I crossed from East to West Germany and seeing the flag of our country," he said.

He also told about the guard maintained by the Communists at the Berlin wall to keep East Berliners from escaping.

Wheeler added that three-fourths of West Berlin has been rebuilt and is occupied by some two million people. East Berlin, however, is less than 11 per cent rebuilt, he said, and reported that few people are seen on the streets.

During the convention, Col. (Ret.) Henry S. Matthews of Augusta, Ga., was elected president of the association. He succeeds Col. (Ret.) Martin H. Steffen of Columbus. Col. Matthews was first vice president of the group for the past year.

Other officers elected include CWO (Ret.) Robert L. Helle of Columbus, first vice president; Maj. (Ret.) Georgia V. Beidle of Columbus, second vice president; Col. (Ret.) H. W. Schultz of Atlanta, chaplain, and Lt. Col. (Ret.) Frank J. Campbell of Columbus, judge advocate.

Lt. Col. (Ret.) Roy E. Bevel, Atlanta regional representative of the association, installed the newly elected officers. He was the first president of the state association from November, 1960, to October, 1961.

Pistol Meet Scheduled

The regular monthly pistol tournament, sponsored by the Rifle and Pistol Club of Fort Benning, will be held this weekend, Nov. 3-4, according to Tom Kirkman, club secretary.

The two-day event will include a 2700-point aggregate fired with the .22 caliber, Center Fire and .45 caliber pistol as well as team events with each weapon.

Competitors must be members of the National Rifle Association, a citizen of the United States, and 16 years of age or older.

Entires close next Tuesday, Kirkman said.

Merchandise award and gift certificates will be used in this tournament with an award going to the winner of each match and class awards based on the number of entries in each class.

Individual events with the .22 and Center Fire pistols will be fired Saturday Nov. 3. The .45 caliber individual match and all team events will be shot Sunday, Nov. 4.

The Army's supersonic Hawk missile, also deployed with the Seventh U. S. Army in Europe, is a surface-to-air weapon system, carrying a lethal modern warhead, designed specifically for defense against enemy attackers flying at extremely low altitudes.

6 Civilians Are Honored In Award Presentations

James R. Boswell, one of six civilian emplnyees honored in awards ceremonies recently, received a Department of the Army Certificate of Achievement and $50 for a suggestion to save the government an estimated $24,171 annually.

Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly, deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, presented the awards.

This is the first time in three years that an employee on the post has received a Certificate of Achievement for a suggestion, according to Frank Spear chairman of the Incentive Awards Committee of The Infantry Center Civilian Personnel Section.

The committee recommended the certificate rather than the usual Suggestion Award Certificate because of the large monetary saving resulting from the suggestion, he said.

Boswell, central office foreman of telephone exchanges of the post Signal Section, proposed an alarm system at the Main Post Exchange with connections at Milliken, Sand Hill and Harmony Church Exchanges.

Mrs. Eunice Willfong received a Department of Army Suggestion award Certificate and $50 for a proposal to include an officer's Chemical, Biological and Radiological Warfare (CBR) Training status in his permanent record. This suggestion will result in a revision of an Army regulation.

Mrs. Willfong is military personnel records clerk at The Infantry Center Adjutant General Section.

Two other employees of the Adjutant General Section were given job rating awards. They are Mrs. W. C. Franch and Mrs. Mildred A. Crews.

Mrs. French, who is chief clerk of the Information Files Section, Military Personnel Division, received an outstanding rating and a sustained superior performance award of $100 for her work from June, 1961, through June, 1962.

Mrs. Crews received $150 for sustained superior performance from July, 1961, through June, 1962, as management improvement officer of the section.

Maurice D. Sanders was awarded $150 for sustained superior performance from May, 1961, through April, 1962, as lead foreman in the Fire Control Instrument Repair Branch of The Infantry Center Ordnance Section.

Mrs. Georgia W. Ferlazzo received an outstanding job rating and $150 for sustained performance from August, 1961, through May, 1962.

During the period of the rating, she was an administrative assistant secretary in the Pentagon in Washington, employed by the Air Force Security Service. She is now employed as a court reporter at The Infantry Center Troop Command.

Singing Instructor Communicates With Wire at TIS, Discs at Home

Whether it's teaching a class in "Applied Communications" or singing his heart out in a recording session, Maj. James V. Chriss is in his "element."

Communications have been his Army job for a long time but the recording is something new.

It all dates back to a home talent show The Infantry Center Communications Department staged in January, the major said. His part in the show was to sing a few songs as he strummed a guitar.

"After the party, I just decided to write a song of my own," he said. "The tune seemed to come first and then the words fell into place. In 30 minutes I had my first song on tape."

"Since then I've written 11 songs. My second, third and 11th are the ones I recorded in Nashville last month," Maj. Chriss said. "Right now I'm writing one called 'Infantry.'"

His first record, "Loneliness Valley," with "A Date With the Blues" on the flip side, appeared in Columbus last week. The third song he recorded in Nashville soon will have a flip side and appear as his second record.

The label will list J. and E. F. Chriss as composers.

"The J stands for Jim," Maj. Chriss said, "and E. F. is my wife who helped edit my lyrics."

Maj. Chriss formed his own company to record his songs.

"I have no idea of getting rich off my records," he said. "I just hope someone enjoys them."

Maj. Chriss said "Loneliness Valley" is his favorite.

"It took longer to record it than the other two songs because I kept trying to perfect it," he added.

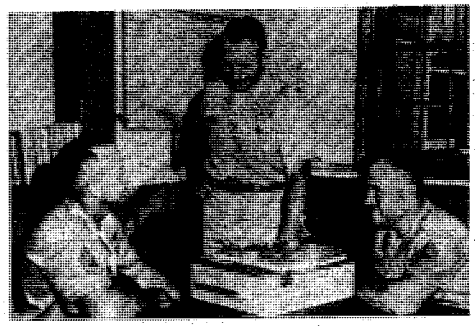
"I found that making a recording is a lot like teaching a class in communications," the major said. "When you get through with your 'pitch' (presentation), you always think, 'Now if I could do it just one more time I could do it better.'"

Maj. Chriss was born in Mountain Park, Okla., but was reared in Denton, Tex. He can't remember when he wasn't a singer. He sang at all school programs and had leads in school plays.

Jim Chriss joined the Army in November, 1944, and served in the Pacific with the 11th Airborne Division.

He received a direct commission as a second lieutenant in the Infantry in 1952 at Fort Bragg, N. C., where he was a master sergeant with the 82nd Airborne Division.

During the Korean conflict, Maj. Chriss saw combat with the 22nd Regiment, 40th Infantry Division. He has served overseas 7½ years.



Maj. Chriss came to Fort Benning in 1959 from an assignment in Europe. He attended a communications officer course and an advanced Infantry officer course at The Infantry School.

Since June, 1960, the major has been assigned to the Communications Department. He is chief of the Radio-Wire Subcommittee of the department's Applied Communications Committee.

Among his awards and decorations are a Silver Star, Bronze Star Medal with "V" for Valor and Oak Leaf Cluster, an Army Commendation Medal with Metal Pendant and two Oak Leaf Clusters, a Combat Infantryman Badge and many campaign ribbons.

He is a master parachutist who has made more than 100 jumps.

Maj. and Mrs. Chriss have two sons, Mark, 6, and Mike, 4, and a daughter Cheryl, 6.

SNEAK PREVIEW . . . Maj. Chriss (C) gives two of his instructors a sneak pre-release airing of a record he cut recently in Nashville, Tenn. Maj. Chriss composed and recorded "Loneliness Valley" and "A Date With the Blues." Listening are Jesse M. Tew (L) and MSgt. Rural Martin, both members of the Applied Communications Committee of The Infantry School Communications Department.

Smoking Prolongs Medical Conditions

By Lt. Col. Forrest Pitts
Chief, Dept. of Medicine
MAB

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of two articles appearing in the Bayonet concerning the effects of smoking.)

It is unfortunate that pills, psychotherapy and other measures have been rather ineffective aids in helping these patients break deeply ingrained habits of long duration. Self determination, will power, and motivation are the only means for success.

Almost daily I encounter patients who have medical conditions which are adversely affected by smoking but the indications for complete cessation of smoking are less compelling than illustrated by the preceding examples. Most common problems in this category are hardening of the arteries (arteriosclerosis) and peptic ulcer.

Many patients who have experiesced a heart attack, angina pectoris, stroke, or ulcer prefer to rationalize that smoking is a minor but pleasant vice that cannot be given up unless mounting deleterious effects become compelling. Accordingly, many physicians prefer to discourage the habit rather than absolutely forbid it.

In a separate category are healthy individuals who smoke more than a package of cigarettes per day. They feel badly as a result of smoking 40 to 60 cigarettes per day but feel worse if they do not. Excessive smoking to this extent is manifested by chemical irritation of the mouth, nose, throat, trachea, major and minor bronchi, and the small air sacs of each lung.

The "scratchy feeling" in the throat, impaired sense of taste and smell, chronic cough productive of scant quantities of mucoid sputum, the yellow stain on the index and middle finger are acceptled by the individual as "normal". Statistics which clearly link lung cancer to prolonged and excessive cigarette smoking are both frightening and, to some extent, boring to him.

He is much more interested in factors other than cigarette smoking which are associated with an increased incidence of the most common cause of cancer deaths in males.

Although there is still much to be learned about he cause of bronchogenic carcinoma, it is no longer possible to deny or minimize the fact that the death rate from cancer of the lungs is 70 times greater in heavy smokers than in non-smokers.

The most common type of lung cancer is described by pathologists as a "squamous cell" malignancy; most physicians have never seen this type of tumor in a non-smoker. Although some scientists may deny or minimize the importance of prolonged and heavy cigarette smoking as a contributing cause of lung cancer, most physicians believe that these facts clearly indicate a significant "cause and effect" relationship.

When smoking becomes excessive to the extent that it produces symptoms, it should be reduced to a level which affords pleasure without chemical irritation. If it is not possible to control smoking, one should stop completely.

Many individuals enjoy good health and smoking in moderation. Why then, should they stop? There is no medical reason to recommend cessation of smoking under these circumstances—unless they wish to set a good example for their children.

Medical Specialist Reserve Plan Told

A new reserve program to commission graduates of approved schools of nursing, and those men and women qualified as dietitians, physical therapists, or occupational therapists in the Army Nurse Corps (ANC) and the Army Medical Specialist Corps (AMSC), has been announced.

Under the new program, these officers will be given six months of active duty training, and then will return to their civilian positions while completing the balance of their Reserve commitment.

Army-Wide Use Is Seen For Benning Suggestions

Four Fort Benning management improvements with an estimated annual savings of $34,000 may be adopted Army-wide.

Headquarters, U. S. Continental Army Command (CONARC) at Fort Monroe, Va., published the suggestions in a directive as management improvements being typical and applicable to other installations.

The improvements selected by CONARC were originated by The Infantry Center Provost Marshal and Engineer Sections and The Infantry School.

The main gate of the Post Stockade has been equipped with an electric modification of a prison-type lock. A mirror used in conjunction with the electric lock provides the guard a view of personnel entering or leaving the stockade. The improvement makes it unnecessary for the guard to leave the main gate house.

A modified cable sewer cutting machine was devised by the Engineer Section. A rod reel from a salvaged rod machine was mounted on a cable machine trailer. An adapter makes it possible to use both cable and rods with the cable sewer cutting machine. The device is flexible and saves man-hours, officials said.

The Infantry School improvements include a rotary filing system for student records and a change in procedure in delivering drinking water to students at outdoor instruction sites.

BIG MONEY

The San Francisco Giants have two of the highest paid athletes gracing their fair city. Wilt Chamberlain tops all salary owners with the replaced NBA, and Willie Mays of the Giants is reported to get the top wage in the major leagues.

New Army Circular Tells Proper Clothing Markings

Washington (AFPS) — The Army has spelled out, in a new circular, the proper method for marking of shoes and boots, head gear, belts, helmet liners and duffel bags.

According to Circular 746-10, all but the duffel bag will be marked with the full name, including middle initial and the person's serial number minus such prefixes as U.S. and R.A.

Where space permits, the serial number will be centered beneath the name. Otherwise it will follow the name with a dash separating the two.

Foot gear marking is to be located inside the right quarter near the top; bead gear, on the sweatband, except that when the band turns down it will be placed on the underside of the band; belts will be marked on the inside directly from the metal tip, and helmet liners marked on the inside of the band.

Duffel bags will be marked with the individual's first name, middle initial and last name, or first initial, middle and last name, and the full serial number.

The name will be positioned parallel to the handle so that the tops of the letters are on a line two inches below the web patches securing the handle.

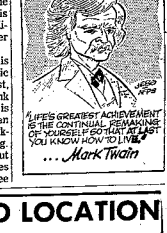
All markings other than the duffel bag will be made with indelible water-proof ink, using white ink on dark items and black on light items. The duffel bag marking, with characters not less than one inch or more than two inches in height, will be made with red paste paint.

Chess Better for Country Than Poker, Official Says

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — A high government official and doctor of philosophy believes we would be much better off as a nation if the game of poker were outlawed and a chess board set up in each first grade classroom.

The official, Dr. Edward L. Katzenbach Jr., Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense for Education and Manpower Resources, offered some expert analytic reasoning to substantiate his belief at the Armed Forces Chess Tournament Awards dinner here.

Recognizing that we are and have been a nation of poker players, Dr. Katzenbach spoke facetiously of the game as "front and bluff, with some odds thrown in."



"For those of us for whom candor is high in our system of values, and for whom the mathematics of propability is low on the list of our abilities, the game is little better than handicy.

"Besides," he said, "it is very dangerous in strategic treme" for three reasons: first, poker tends to make one think in terms of odds. Second, it is not a game in which one can exercise flexibility. Third, poker leads to circuitous thinking.

Dr. Katzenbach pointed out how, on the other hand, it takes very little perception to see the relevance of chess to the strategic problems of our time — to counterinsurgency, to guerrilla actions and to the resolution of the cold war.

"The chess player understands, as we all must understand, that there are many tactical advantages to retreat in seeking victory.

"He understands the most important factor of all — that a pawn is not something to be taken lightly, for the least of the powers cannot only get in the way but can actually bring about the downfall of figures more powerful."

Artillerymen Top CAA Fund 100%

The 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade, has exceeded its "fair share" goal in the 1962 Community Activities Association Fund drive by six percent. Their 106 percent leads the brigade which has met 75 percent of its goal.

PERIOD OF ADJUSTMENT is the story of a misunderstood marriage that was the talk of the town. Two pairs of newly married couples discover, with hilarious results, that it's a lot easier to walk down the aisle than to walk through a marriage. Some wise and wonderful comments on modern marriages emerge from a riotous series of unforeseen events. It stars Jane Fonda, Jim Hutton and Anthony Franciosa.

LOVER COME BACK stars Rock Hudson, Doris Day and Tony Randall. Rock appears as an advertising mastermind whose outstading gifts as a lady - killer are renowned over all the happy hunting grounds of Manhattan. The tempting bait placed in his fast-paced stride is the captivating Doris Day.

THE TARTARS is an outstanding drama starring Orson Welles and Victor Mature. When a Viking beauty is stolen from the arms of her warrior prince, a raging war breaks out between the savage Tartars and the battle-weary Vikings.

GEN POWELL VISITS HERE . . . Gen. Herbert B. Powell (C), commanding general of the Continental Army Command, Fort Monroe, Va., on a visit here Monday confers with Brig. Gen. Charles Billingslea (L), commanding general of the 2nd Infantry Division, after the four-star general's arrival by plane at Lawson Army Airfield. Accompanying Gen. Powell is Maj. Gen. Derrill M. Daniel, deputy commanding general of the Third Army. The generals were met at Lawson Field by the commanding general of The Infantry Center, Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell. They left later the same day.

Belvoir Sergeant First to Qualify Under Bootstrap

Fort Belvoir, Va. (AFPS)—The Fort Belvoir Education Center is justly proud of MSgt. John C. Carson.

Carson, a senior instructor in the training branch of the Nuclear Power Field Office, has participated in the Center's off-duty time college program since 1959.

Now, under the Army's recent extension of Operation Bootstrap to include warrant officers and enlisted men, he becomes the first enlisted man eligible for fulltime campus college training.

Currently enrolled in George Washington University in Washington, Carson expects to receive a bachelor of arts degree in January.

THE TASK FORCE
This is a generic term for an organization established to perform a specific mission, and "tailor-made" to that end. It may be composed of elements of any one Armed Service, any two of them, or all three.

FIRST PLACE SHOOTER . . . Sgt. Willie D. Jordan (R) of the Marksmanship Training Unit is presented the first place grand aggregate award by Lt. Gen. William W. Dick Jr., commanding general of the Army Air Defense Command. Sgt. Jordan won the Second Annual Midwestern Inter-service Hi-power Rifle Championships with a record score of 977 and 76 v's. His prize was a five-piece Lancaster Rose Tea Set.

Engineers Work At Ranger Camp

Fifty-six men from "D" Company, 806th Engineer Battalion, are currently assigned to the Ranger Mountain Camp at Dahlonega, Ga., for the purpose of repair and construction of facilities.

Repair is expected on 34 buildings, one and a half miles of Yonah Mountain Road and roads within the camp area. Also anticipated is the construction of a new PT area, two latrines and four culverts along Yonah Mountain Road.

Target date for completion of this project is Nov. 17.

Marine Corps to Observe 187th Anniversary

Members of the U. S. Marine Corps at Fort Benning will observe the 187th anniversary of the corps Nov. 10 with a formal party at the Salerno Officers' Mess at 8 p.m.

They will join other Marine Corps units throughout the world in commemorating the event.

Some 200 Army officers and their wives, in addition to 10 Marine Corps officers and an enlisted man, are expected to attend the party. Dress will be formal. There will be a cake cutting ceremony at 8:30 p.m.

Among the Army officers to be present are Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center and commandant of The Infantry School; Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly, deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, and Brig. Gen. Royal Reynolds Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School; Brig. Gen. Charles Billingslea, commanding general of the 2nd Infantry Division, and Col. John T. Corley, assistant division commander.

The Marine Corps representative to The Infantry School at Fort Benning is Lt. Col. Victor A. Kleber Jr.

Lt. Col. Arthur E. House Jr. is the corps' liaison officer to The Infantry Board.

The Continental Marines, an organization of Marines as a regular branch of the nation's military service, were established by Congress, Nov. 10, 1775. The Marine Corps, as it exists today, was formed by the Act of July 11, 1798.

In every battle since the birth of the corps, Marines have fought with great distinction and have won high honors. From colonial revolutionary days to the Korean conflict, the "Leatherbeckes" have earned the name of being one of America's greatest fighting forces.

Their familiar emblem of the globe and anchor, adopted in 1868, embodies the tradition of world-wide land and sea traditions. The spread eagle, the symbol of the nation itself, carries in its beak a streamer on which is inscribed the corps' motto, "Semper Fidelis," meaning "Always Faithful."

Commemoration of the corps' anniversaries originated in November, 1921, when the 13th commandant of the corps, Maj. Gen. John A. Lejeune, directed that the birthday of the organization be observed yearly on Nov. 10.

Gen. Lejeune, who commanded the 2nd Infantry Division in World War I, is the only Marine Corps general to command an Army division. In October, 1918, when the commanding general of the American Expeditionary Forces requested units to furnish insignias for approval, Gen. Lejeune submitted the "Indianhead" patch.

The patch was accepted and Nov. 14, 1918, the division headquarters announced the patch had been made official.

Gay Life In Samoa

"The gayest and best entertained inhabitants of our planet," Robert Louis Stevenson called them, and they have not changed greatly since the Scotch writer lived among them from 1888 until his death in 1894.

They are the 20,000 natives of American Samoa, five volcanic islands and two coral atolls lying 2,276 miles south of Hawaii. The group has been a ward of the United States since 1902; before that a U. S. naval and coaling station was situated there.

Life in American Samoa, often called "one of the last island paradises," quickened in the past year when the islands were spruced up to be the site of the 1962 South Pacific Conference which met to discuss the region's health, social and economic problems.

But now, says the National Geographic Society, Samoa "is relaxing from a building boom and returning to its slow-paced South Sea life. . . new houses have mushroomed; old ones have been repaired and painted. Macadam now covers dirt roads, and jet runway provides direct connections with the outside world."

Supervised by the Department of the Interior, the group has a total land area of 76 square miles. Most of the Polynesian natives live on Tutuila, largest of the islands which has the port of Pago Pago.

Their casual and carefree mode of living is one to attract the harried tourist fleeing big city life. A Samoan house has no walls; it consists of a thatched roof supported by poles — with screens to keep out tropical rains. No other shelter is needed for temperatures go no lower than 60 degrees and rarely pass 90.

Until 1951 the Samoans were governed by the Navy from its naval station on Tutuila, but their own rule is characteristically communital. Today, despite the relatively small population, there are upwards of 900 registered chiefs and countless unofficial leaders.

WOOTTEN

Francis Wootten is First Sergeant of 52nd Company, 5th Student Battalion, The Student Brigade.

Sgt. Wootten entered the service in 1943 and took basic training at Camp Tannin, Tex. From there he was shipped to Europe with the 79th Division and saw his first action in the Battle of the Bulge. At the end of the war in Europe, he returned to the United States and was discharged a year later.

Two years after discharge Sgt. Wootten re-enlisted in the Army and was assigned to the 28th Infantry of the 1st Infantry Division in Bamberg, Germany, as a weapons platoon squad leader. Returning to the U. S. in 1949, he was assigned to Company K, 22nd Infantry, 2nd Infantry Division. In July, 1950, he went to Korea with the 2nd Division.

Sgt. Wooten returned to the U. S. in June of 1952 and spent 20 months as First Sergeant of Company A, 81st Medium Tank Battalion, 5th Armored Division.

He was next assigned to the 1st Armored Division Trains as sergeant major. In January, 1958, he was transfered to the 1st Battle Group, 11th Infantry, 2nd Division. He was promoted to First sergeant (E-8) in February, 1961, while a member of the 11th Infantry and was later shipped to Korea with that unit.

Upon completion of his tour in Korea, Sgt. Wootten was assigned as first sergeant of Company C, 2nd Battle Group, 1st Infantry, 2nd Division. In September of this year he was assigned to 52nd Company, 5th Student Battalion, TSB as first sergeant.

Among Sgt. Wootten's awards and decorations are the Combat Infantryman's Badge (2nd Award), The Bronze Star and the Purple Heart with Oak Leaf Cluster.

Cites MARS Importance

Maj. Gen. Herbert L. Scofield, deputy chief signal officer, Department of the Army, was an honored guest at the Midwest Amateur Radio Convention, American Radio Relay League, held in Cleveland, Ohio, recently.

In his address to a large group of Army, Air Force and potential Navy MARS members, Gen. Scofield related the advantages of MARS membership to the individual amateur and the value of the MARS program to the military service.

He stated, "Under present circumstances, where needs of civil defense may some time in the future assume tremendous proportions, the benefits (of MARS) to the nation would be incalculable.

"Under the conditions of great chaos and confusion of a nuclear attack, it is the individual who is well trained and well equipped, self sufficient and dedicated, that will get many messages through.

"The success or failure of our mission and our survival could conceivably hinge on one individual passing a single, fateful message — and doing so in time. That individual might be you."

2 WOs With 57 Years Join Signal

Two chief warrant officers with more than 57 years combined service have been assigned to The Infantry Center Signal Section at Fort Benning.

They are CWO Leo K. West and CWO Thomas J. Walsh.

Mr. West entered the Army in November, 1939, at Fort Knox, Ky., as an enlisted man. In May, 1944, while a member of the 1st Infantry Division in England, he was commissioned a warrant officer.

In World War II he served with the division in England, North Africa, Sicily, France and Germany. For meritorious service he was awarded the Bronze Star Medal.

Before assuming his present duties he was a member of the U. S. Army Communications Agency in Germany.

Mr. Walsh, who arrived at Fort Benning from the 143rd Signal Battalion, 3rd Armored Division in Germany, entered the Army in April, 1928, as an enlisted man. He was commissioned Sept. 5, 1950.

A World War II combat veteran with the 229th Field Artillery Battalion in France and Belgium, he has completed more than 34 years of military service.

As assistant signal operations officers, both warrant officers aid in maintaining the post communications system which includes radio, teletype and telephone service.

ON NORMANDY

In World War II, the 2nd Infantry Division landed on Normandy Beach in June 7, 1944, going on to capture Tichersbrey and liberate Brest in bitter house-to-house street combat.

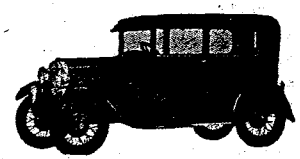
Congo Airlift Biggest in Air Force History

Scott AFB, Ill. (AFPS) — Two years and three months after it went into operation, the Military Air Transport Service's Congo Airlift has set two records—it is the longest military airlift in history and it has flown the longest distances, some round-trip missions exceeding 23,000 miles.

It is also one of the most hazardous for its crews. Without their stamina and plucky spirit the vital mission of strengthening United Nations forces to prevent all-out war in the Congo could not have been performed.

Item—Crew members of a MATS C-124 Globemaster who had not slept in real beds for 15 days spread their blankets on a Congo runway apron and stretched out to grab some shut-eye. Their sleep was broken by furious hissing sounds around them. Cobras. They had to sleep in their stifling plane.



Item — In August 1960, a MATS crew from Dover AFB, Del., was savagely beaten by a howling mob at Stanleyville.

Item — At Elizabethville a Globemaster from Donaldson AFB, S. C. was hit by small arms fire while landing equipment. By the time it came to a halt its fuel tank and one engine were aflame.

The list could go on and on. Every MATS base has its saga of perils and the courage that survived them. And every MATS crew member knows the Congo Airlift's stunning score. As of last July 2 it had flown 2,015 missions, airlifting 10,557 tons of cargo and 45,984 U.N. troops.

"I Wish I Could Buy Another MODEL A"
You've Heard This Many Many Times . . .
—HERE'S WHY—

It has been over 30 years since Ford Motor Company stopped production of the Model A. It has always been the standard of simplicity, economy and ruggedness. It was not oversized or overpowered, but even today they are best sellers on a used car lot and you can still buy parts for the A Model. A close parallel can be drawn with the Mercury Comet line of today. See it, drive it and let us tell you the story of its economy, simplicity and toughness.

to do is install the machines, keep them stocked with goods; and clean out the coins now and then.

The trouble is that after the old folks exchange several hundreds of dollars for the machines, they find that their neighborhood has all the vending machines it can absorb. They learn too that all the sales are final and that they are stuck with the vending machines.

Other gimmicks in the phoney ad racket which keep government authorities busy and which relieve an unbelievable amount of cash from gullible citizens are:

Unscrupulous furriers who get large sums from ladies by labeling coats made of low quality dyed rabbit and marmot furs as "electric seal," "Florida mink" and "Baltic lion".

Merchants who pedal such phoney bargains as $15 watches "marked down from $75." — that are actually worth $5.00.

— Correspondence schools which take a girl's $300 for a stewardess course, knowing all along that dumpy figure and buck teeth will never land her a job with any air line.

These are just a few examples. They of course, do not indicate that all such advertisers are fraudulent, but they do indicate that he who answers such ads is taking a big risk. Remember a few basic points and you may save yourself a lot of money.

First and foremost, you cannot see what you order by mail until it is perhaps too late. You may have no chance to test what you order to find out whether it is actually of the quality alleged. Therefore, it is best to order only from reputable firms. The same goes for get - rich - quick schemes and courses of instruction, beautification and body building.

Second, as for the money making schemes, just stop and ask yourself, if this man had such a tremendous secret for success, why does he want to share it with others, and if it is such a secret, why is he offering it, on the pages of national magazines to the 180,000,000 citizens of the United States.

Third, read the advertisements over carefully to make perfectly sure you know what you are getting into. Often, millions of dollars are made simply through the use of a trick phrase or a misleading sentence.

These simple rules and a good dose of common sense will save you from stumbling into some venture which might have broken not only your heart, but your pocket book as well.

BUY IN BEAUTIFUL
STARMOUNT FOREST

STARMOUNT FOREST is quiet, shady and restricted. Beautiful winding streets take full advantage of the beauty and topography of the land and provide more leisurely traffic and maximum safety for the children. STARMOUNT FOREST extends from Buena Vista Road to Bull Creek. With the completion of the Water Shed (already approved), residents of STARMOUNT FOREST will be able to enjoy boating and fishing with less than a five minute drive.

Approximately 1200 feet of frontage on Buena Vista Road has been set aside for future commercial use; thus assuring close by shopping facilities and increased land values as STARMOUNT FOREST grows.

STARMOUNT FOREST is within walking distance of elementary school. It is very near the right of way of the Lindsay Creek By-Pass. This assures quick transportation to Downtown Columbus, to Fort Benning or to any other residential area of the city.

These features assure STARMOUNT FOREST home owners the maximum value per dollar and continued protection of his home investment.

FORT BENNING, GEORGIA, HOME OF U.S. ARMY INFANTRY CENTER

VOL. 21, NO. 9 — FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 1962 — FORT BENNING, GA. — 28 Pages — 5c

Fifth Tripartite Nears Completion

Senior Infantry officers from Canada and the United Kingdom joined their U. S. counterparts here Monday in the first official discussion of the Fifth Tripartite Infantry Conference.

The biennial conference, which ends Saturday, is designed to insure that the Armies of the three countries cooperate successfully on the battle field, according to Lt. Gen. John P. Daley, commanding general of the Army Combat Developments Command at Fort Belvoir, Va., who delivered the opening address.

Gen. Daley was introduced by Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center and official conference host.

The senior representative from the United Kingdom is Maj. Gen. Paul Gleadell, director of Infantry. The Canadian director of Infantry, Col. William De N. Watson, heads his country's delegation.

Gen. Harrell is senior representative for the United States.

The conference officially began with colorful opening ceremonies held beneath The Infantryman Statue.

As the honor guard, formed by Company C, 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, commanded by 1st Lt. James W. Addicott, presented the colors of each nation, The Infantry Center Band, directed by CWO Clyde W. White, rendered each country's national anthem.

Before moving inside to the conference tables, the delegates watched The Infantry Center's Special Services Section's presentation of the epic poem, "I Am the Infantry," in tableau.

Activities of the day include opening addresses by each delegate and organized discussions on the current status and methods of warfare as applied to Infantries of the three countries.

Ceremonies Here on Wednesday Will Honor Third U. S. Army CG

Fort Benning will bid its official farewell to Lt. Gen. T.J.H. Trapnell, retiring commanding general of the Third U.S. Army, Wednesday with honors ceremonies at Chapel Field.

The three-star general retires at ceremonies at Fort McPherson, Ga., later in November after serving continuously since graduating from the U.S. Military Academy in 1927.

He has served as Third Army commander since October, 1961.

Participating Units

Taking part in the 11:10 a.m. ceremonies will be The Infantry Center Band and Honor Guard, formed by Company C, 4th Battalion, 29th Infantry. Reviewing officer will be Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center and commandant of The Infantry School.

Gen. Trapnell will deliver a farewell address to post officers at 11:40 at Wharton Hall in The Infantry School.

Following an official luncheon at the Main Officers' Open Mess, the general will visit the 2nd Infantry Division in the Sand Hill area.

He is scheddled to depart

92% Reached In CAA Drive

Ninety-two per cent of the military and civilian personnel here have made their contribution to the 1962 Community Activities Association Fund Drive Campaign, bringing the collections to 72 per cent of the estimated "fair share" for the post, officials report.

Ten units that have achieved 100 per cent participation and reached or exceeded their "fair

The 1st Infantry Brigade, a supporting unit of The Infantry Center, has been reorganized under the new Reorganization Objective Army Division (ROAD) concept.

Post Troops To Observe U.S. Holiday

Fort Benning personnel will join the civilian community of the Columbus area and over 22 million veterans throughout the United States in celwill be held the following day.

This number includes 15,202,000 veterans of World War II and 5,482,000 veterans of the Korean conflict. The remainder served in other wars or during peacetime.

With Veterans Day falling on Sunday this year, the annual parade and memorial services won't be held until the following day.

Monday is also a holiday for post civilian and military personnel. The parade which will feature elements from Fort Benning and the 2nd Infantry Division as well as local high school bands and veteran's orginations marching together ss groups, is scheduled for 4:30 p.m.

Participants from the post include the Infantry Center Band and the 2nd Division Band, Honor and Color Guards.

The parade will begin at the corner of Third Avenue and 13th Street in downtown Columbus, proceed down 13th Street in downtown Columbus, proceed down 13th Street to Broadway, down Broadway to 9th Street, and finally down 9th Street ending at the USO.

Earlier Monday, at 11 a.m. The Infantry Center will send a firing squad from the 197th Infantry Brigade and a bugler to participate in memorial services at Riverdale Cemetery on 10th Ave.

Since the Veterans Day holiday will combine with Saturday and Sunday to form a three-day weekend, post safety officials are concerned with the possibility of a rash of accidents.

In the past, holiday weekends have been connected with a flood of traffic on the highways resulting in an ever increasing number of automobile accidents. Stress is being placed on careful driving.

Such things to consider are excessive speed, fatigue, drinking and driving, and whether or not your vehicle has safety belts or is in good safe driving condition, officials say.

Posters are being displayed

LEST WE FORGET . . . On Armistice Day, Nov. 11, 1921, the Medal of Honor was pinned to the flag-draped coffin of the American Unknown Soldier by President Harding during services at Arlington National Cemetery. A special bill was passed by Congress permitting the award to an unknown as "Typifying the gallantry and trepidity, at the risk of life above and beyond the call of duty, of our beloved heroes who made the supreme sacrifice in the World War." Medals of Honor were also awarded by special legislation to the Unknown Soldiers of Belgium, Great Britain, France, Italy and Romania.

Review

from Lawson Army Air Field at 2 p.m.

Gen. Trapnell, who made his 137th career parachute jump recently, commanded the 505th Airborne Regiment of the 82nd Airborne Division from 1947 to 1956, the 187th Airborne Regimental Combat team in Korea in 1951-52, and assumed command of the 82nd Airborne Division in 1955.

Japanese POW

During World War II, he became a Japanese prisoner while commanding the 26th Cavalry (Philippine Scouts) and was not released until Aug. 20, 1945. During this time the general survived the Death March and two sinkings of POW ships.

His decorations include the Distinguished Service Cross, Silver Star, Legion of Merit with two Oak Leaf Clusters, the Bronze Star Medal and the Purple Heart.

Brigade

ed combat veteran of both World War II and Korea.

Under the new concept, the commander will have much increased mobility and command control. In addition, he will have the capability of tailoring his organic units to best meet the requirements of his mission.

The familiar brigade motto, "We Show the Way," now more than ever before, will characterize the performance of the unit in the all-important mission of supporting The Infantry School in conduct of instruction along the new concept.

The new organizations calls for a mechanized Infantry battalion and a composite artillery battalion; a full tank battalion—the 4th Battalion, 69th Armor—and three line companies of the 1st Battalion, 39th Infantry, in addition to a normal Infantry battalion.

Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center and commandant of The Infantry School, said the reorganization will insure "that the junior leaders of the Infantry are being trained in accordance with the most modern concepts and trends of warfare."

Veterans

in prominent locations throughout the post emphasizing safety. Notices will be published in the Daily Bulletin.

Another concern of the Safety Section is a possible increase in the number of hunting accidents.

Post officials recommend that hunters wear bright clothing, such as fluorescent red or orange jackets, and never fire at a movement in the bushes or anything else until it has been positively identified as game.

Infantry Center Safety Director Norman M. Evans says, "Veterans Day is a holiday in which Americans traditionally pause in honor of all servicemen who have fought in defense of this nation and its ideals."

"Many of these men gave their lives, serving this cause," he added, "and it would be tragic for anyone to give their life in so fruitless an effort as a traffic or hunting accident."

Originally Nov. 11 was set aside to commemorate the end of World War I, and as a result of a proclamation by President Woodrow Wilson was known as Armistice Day from 1918 to 1953.

In 1954, President Dwight D. Eisenhower proclaimed Veterans Day, when he stated the day should be set aside to honor the servicemen of the U. S., living and dead, and the victories they have won in the nation's wars.

CAA

share" are the officers of the commanding general, Main Officers, Open Mess, Inspector General, Signal Section, Chemical Section, American Red Cross, Data Processing, Supply Center, Command and Staff Department, and Special subjects Department.

Exceed Goal

Four units achieving or exceeding their "fair share" are The Infantry Center Troop Command, 197th Infantry Brigade, Comptroller and Post Exchange.

Seven units have attained 100 per cent or more participation although they have not yet reached their estimated "fair share." They are the Advanced Marksmanship Unit, 428th Medical Battalion, G-1, Safety, Quartermaster, Ordnance and Dental Sections.

With the CAA drive scheduled to end Nov. 9, Col. Richard W. Keyes, fund drive chairman stated, "We are now entering the decisive period which will determine whether we will go over the top or fall short of our established goal. With the over-all participation at 62 per cent and the 'fair share' figure at 72 per cent, we are optimistic that the next four days will see both of these categories reach 100 per cent and succe fully conclude this three - month endeavor."

Team captains and keymen in the drive are urged to make an all-out effort to contact each individual so the "fair share" and 100 per cent participation goals will be met.

The money raised in the campaign will be proportionately distributed to designated post activities with a major contribution being presented to United Givers agencies in the Columbus-Phenix City area.

DOD Issues Instructions For Shelters

WASHINGTON (ANS)— The Department of Defense has issued an Instruction to the military services and Defense Agencies within the United States to prepare fallout shelter utilization plans for military installations under their jurisdiction.

Under the Instruction, plans for shelters on military installations will be closely coordinated with civil defense plans in adjacent communities to provide for full use of fallout shelter spaces available. The shelter spaces at military installations were identified as part of the National Fallout Shelter Survey of the Department of Defense.

The public shelter spaces made available will be allocated to troops, other than those required to sustain operations, and to civilian employes and dependents. An excess or deficit in space is to be reported to local civil defense authorities. Excess space will be available for use of unsheltered persons from adjacent geographical locations.

Shelters at military locations which meet requirements for public use will be provisioned with National Fallout Shelter Program supplies.

MOWW Meet Is Postponed

The Nov. 15 meeting of the Military Order of World Wars has been postponed until Nov. 28, according to an announcement by MOWW commander, Maj. Gen. (Ret.) P. E. Gallagher.

AF to Aid Santa Claus This Year

SCOTT AFB, Ill. — During this Christmas season Army personnel can again make sure their children get a real letter from Santa Claus, postmarked "Santa Claus House, North Pole, Alaska."

Following success of the past seven years' Santa letter programs, in which more than 26,000 letters have been remailed to service kids, members of Detachment 1 of the 5th Weather Reconnaissance Squadron at Elelson Air Force Base, Alaska, have again volunteered to help make this Christmas a memorable one for local kids.

These far-north Air Weather Service weathermen will use their free time to forward Santa Claus letters to children all over the world.

Here is the way it works. You write a letter to your child and sign it Santa Claus. Address the letter to your youngster and affix the proper return air mail postage from Alaska.

Place the letter or letters in a larger envelope and address it to Santa's Mail Bag, care of Detachment 1, 5th Weather Reconnaissance Squadron, APO 927, Seattle, Wash. Add the proper air-mail postage and drop it in the mailbox.

A few miles from Elelson AFB is a post office officially called Santa Claus House, North Pole. When the volunteer AWS mailmen get your letter, they will remail the Santa letter from his post office.

A few days later your child will receive his or her letter from Santa, complete with authentic postmark.

A deadline of Dec. 15 has been set for mailing letters to Santa's Mail Bag, to permit receipt of the remailed letters by Christmas day.

Provost Marshal Issues Auto Registration Shifts

A number of modifications have been made by Infantry Center Provost Marshal officials concerning the registration of privately owned vehicles driven on the post.

The most important of these concern changes, such as insurance renewal, changes in color or motor number, or disposal of vehicle, and the penalties that may be assessed for not informing proper officials of the changes.

All changes concerning registered vehicles will be reported to the Registration Branch, Bldg. 316, within 48 hours, military police officials said.

If they are not reported, vehicle operators are subject to penalties ranging from a 10 to 30-day suspension of driving privileges for the first offense, a 30 to 60-day suspension for the second, and a 60-day suspension to possible revocation for the third.

This is less than the original penalties which began with a possible 60-day suspension for the first offense.

Other Changes

Another change concerns the replacement of the old triangular shaped patches with the month of renewal punched out that were placed on the windshield with new bumper stickers.

The new stickers consist of a number corresponding to the month insurance renewal comes due and are placed on the bumper stickers issued at the time of initial registration.

The stickers are to be conspicuously displayed on the left side of the front and rear bumpers.

Every Car Registered

As stated in the pamphlet concerning vehicle registration and traffic regulations, all military personnel and their dependents, active or retired, civilian employes, concessionaires and their employees, representatives of commercial firms authorized to conduct business on the reservation, and military dependents of sponsors stationed elsewhere who regularly operate their cars on or about the post must register the vehicles with the Provost Marshal Section.

Registration may be accomplished by obtaining proper forms from the Registration Branch, having the car inspected to insure it meets required mechanical safety standards, presenting proper proof of ownership or authorization to drive the auto under question, and have it adequately insured.

The minimum amount of insurance considered adequate is $10,000-$20,000 public liability and $5,000 property damage.

Initial registration should be immediate. If circumstances preclude immediate registration, a temporary registration or pass may be authorized. This authorization will not exceed 15 days except under unusual circumstances, according to officials.

Veterans Day Unites U. S. at Time of Need

Veterans Day 1962 — it's always a solemn event. This year it's more so because we've faced the worst national crisis since Korea and have not been found wanting. Never have we been more united as Americans; never has a President's bold, sure action to meet a military threat had greater popular support.

It's not over, of course. Far from it. Cuba even without Soviet missiles will be an ugly problem as long as Castro and his crew are around. The issues in Berlin remain unsolved. Agreements on a nuclear test ban and the larger problem of controlled disarmament have not been reached. In other words, it's no time for hosannas.

And yet a feeling is widespread that the President's resolute stand on Cuba and Mr. Khrushchev's sensible backdown may have marked a turning point in the cold war. Had the Soviet's persisted in their intransigence, who knows what the state of the world would be on this November 11? It is terrible to contemplate even now that reason has prevailed.

As members of the Armed Forces, let's be proud that American military might and the President's grim determination to use it if necessary was the decisive factor. We are that might — each and every one of us. In the world we have proved ourselves not in war but as a deterrent to war. We are keepers of the peace.

Yes, perils lie ahead. We can expect other tests of American grit and fortitude. But the heartening fact that the Cuban issue has passed into the authority of the United Nations; the demonstrations of solidarity by our NATO allies and the Organization of American States — these are grounds for hope. And hope is the spirit that predominates this Veterans Day.

The Judge Says . . .

By 1st Lt. Lawrence Sledge

Do you live off-post and apply your quarters allowance to rent payments on your residence? If you do, or if you plan to do so, then you should be aware of your legal rights and powers in negotiating favorable terms into your contract.

When you find a desirable location you will probably enter into a simple rental agreement or a written lease with your landlord. The terms of this agreement or lease will depend on your success in bargaining with your future landlord. The following are some of the points you should look for, and negotiate when you are renting.

Ordinarily there is a great deal of difference between an oral rental agreement and a lease. The oral agreement applies to a short term arrangement, running from month to month, terminating at the end of any certain month, if nothing is stated as to a termination date.

The law requires that the tenant give the landlord 30 days written notice previous to abandoning the premises. If no such notice is given, the agreement runs for another month. If less notice is given, the landlord is entitled to demand payment for the portion the premises are unoccupied.

Also, according to Georgia law, the landlord must give the tenant 60 days written notice before he can be expelled from the premises, in the absence of another justifiable cause.

A lease contemplates a longer and more definite period of tenancy. This provides security to the landlord, protection to the tenant and usually will result in lower monthly rental payments. this agreement, as in any other contract, is subject to conditions and limitations and other provisions for the benefit of either party.

When negotiating a lease always remember that you have the power to take or leave the property if the terms aren't suitable for your purpose. So bargain for beneficial provisions and have them written into the contract. You should be aware of two general types of provisions as a general rule.

The first of these is the "termination clause." This provides for the time and conditions upon which the contract may come to an end. The provision for month to month rentals, i.e., the 30-60 day provision, is standard.

Also, the tenant may bargain for a clause providing for such contingencies as PCS military orders requiring sudden and unexpected departure, or for such provisions as on-post housing becoming available.

Often off-post housing is accepted pending availability of on-post quarters, and the tenant finds himself faced with the problem of having orders

CHAPLAIN'S CORNER

Distinguished Roll Call

BY CHAPLAIN (Col.) SILAS E. DECKER

An apology should not be necessary to quote from the Bible, the greatest work in the realm worthy of note has quotations from this Great Book of books.

In the 11th chapter of Saint Paul's letter to the Hebrews, the author calls the roll of national greats: Abel, Enoch, Noah, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Sarah, Moses, Gideon, David and Samuel. He continues, "What more, can I say; for time would fail me."

On Veterans Day, Sunday, Nov. 11, it is well for us to consider another Distinguished Roll of our own National Greats, "Who through faith subdued kingdoms, wrought righteousness, obtained promises, quenched the violence of fire, escaped the edge of the sword, out of weakness were made strong, waxed valiant in fight, and turned to fight the armies of the aliens. These all having obtained a good report through faith, received not the promise, God providing better things for us."

With unison we can chant, "Rise up O Men of God." From the pages of our history they stand before us: Washington at Valley Forge, and MacArthur in the Pacific. This is not the entire roll of good and great men. From each of our families and from among our friends we could add to this Distinguished Roll Call hundreds of men who gave their lives for the Union, to save the world for Democracy, and to keep the lamps of liberty burning among the nations of the earth.

At the end of this Roll may each of us renew our patriotic vows that these have not lived and sacrificed in vain, all free men will "Wax valiant in the fight," so our world may not long be divided between those who are free and those who are in the chains of oppression.

Veterans Day Messages

Veterans Day gives all Americans an opportunity to express their gratitude to those who have defended our freedom and advanced the cause of world peace. Our veterans, by their courage, devotion and dedication to the ideals which have made America great, have been and continue to be an inspiration to those who have followed them and who now wear their nation's uniform.

In keeping with the Proclamation of the President, I urge the personnel of our Armed Forces to participate in or attend appropriate ceremonies on Veterans day.

I ask each of you to join with me in expressing our sincere appreciation to our veterans and to reaffirm our determination to carry forward the heritage for which they have fought so gallantly and so well.

—Robert S. McNamara, Secretary of Defense

It is our privilege to celebrate, once again, Veterans Day and pay tribute to those men and women who have worn the uniform of our country. In each generation, these Americans have been living embodiment of our Armed Forces motto, 'Power for Peace.'

In today's complicated international enviroment, members of our Armed Forces are called upon not only to protect the security of our Nation, but to assist in maintaining the freedom of other nations. This global responsibility affords one of the most challenging periods of our history.

Even as our soldiers, sailors and airman of yesterday had their feet firmly fixed on the present and reached out to the future, so we the members of the Armed Forces of today are reaching out into a new and boundless frontier. We are America's Minutemen ready to respond to the cause of freedom. As President Kennedy said, 'Our primary purpose is neither propaganda nor provocation — but preparation.'

In honoring our Veterans, we remember their faith — faith in their leaders; faith in their families; faith in their training and equipment; faith in their country; faith in their future; and above all faith in their God. To those who are living, I would like to say that the torch of faith is burning today. With gratitude, we have accepted our heritage. God is with us; and in His name, we shall use our power for peace.

—Chaplain (Maj. Gen.) Robert P. Taylor, Chairman, Armed Forces Chaplains Board

To honor the members of the Armed Forces who have given their lives in the service of their country, together with those now actively engaged in the defense of this Nation, 11 November has been designated as Veterans Day. On this day we are called upon to recall the sacrifices which others have made to preserve our freedom.

As members of the Armed Forces, you are encouraged to dedicate your efforts to those principles of freedom which have guided your forefathers throughout the history of our country.

The military and civilian personnel of Fort Benning will join with the citizens of Columbus and Phenix City to observe this hallowed day. It is fitting that we pause to offer our prayers of respect and gratitude for those who gave so much to preserve the freedom we all enjoy.

P-TA Round-Up Set at Schools

A P-TA "Membership Round-Up" will be conducted during Open House to be held at each of the post's children's schools at 7 p.m. Tuesday.

Parents who have already joined are asked to wear their P-TA membership cards pinned to the left shoulder. New members will be enrolled and given cards when they visit the schools.

A representative of the P-TA Membership Committee will be stationed at each school to enroll parents.

The P-TA budget is financed entirely by membership enrollment fees, according to Col. Edward M. Foxworth, P-TA president. No fund-raising activities are conducted throughout the year and no special contributions are requested.

Enrollments to date this school year have reached more than 1,800. The goal is to exceed 2,600, Col. Foxworth said.

"In order to carry out the objectives provided for in the P-TA budget for 1962-1963, we must enroll at least 800 more parents," he said.

Mrs. James D. Clark, membership chairman, has announced that a fifth grade class at Faith School is the first on post to attain 100 per cent parent membership in the P-TA.

The class, taught by Miss Colleen O'Brian, will receive $10 as an award.

Several other classes are nearing the 100 per cent mark, Mrs. Clark said. For a class to be 100 per cent, the post P-TA requires that both parents join the organization. A parent who is overseas is exempt from this requirement, she said.

"The Membership Committee hopes that the 'Round-Up' will not only bring the enrollment up to our goal but make it possible for many classes to reach 100 per cent enrollment," Mrs. Clark added.

Ladies Luncheon Set for Tuesday

The bi-monthly luncheon for the ladies and guests of the Headquarters and Academic Staff offices will be held on Tuesday, Nov. 13, at the Custer Terrace Officers' Club. Preluncheon activities commence at 12:30 p.m. followed by lunch at 1 p.m.

Reservations can be made by calling Mrs. Jeanne Douglas, 545-3890 or Mrs. Jewel Delaune, MU 9-1359. Cancellations should be made no later than Sunday.

Jan Rose's

Woman's Club Diary

It is less than a month until the December luncheon.

The new Main Officer Club will be the scene for the annual Christmas luncheon, always a colorful affair with an excellent program. Ladies of the Infantry Board, Mrs. William Summers, chairman, will sponsor the arrangements and the program will be under the direction of Mrs. Robert Whitehead, choral director for the Woman's Club. Although the invitations will not be out for a few more weeks, you may assure a reservation early by calling Mrs. Ray Inman, 545-2207.

The Atlanta trip last week was quite successful, with three busloads of ladies on our spend the day trip. Our thanks to Mrs. Olva Butler, and Mrs. Richard Jarrett for chairing the event.

If you want to take advantage of the many programs and activities of the Woman's Club, remember to get a membership now if you haven't already done so. The ceramics classes, sewing, knitting, luncheons, and trips are a small part of the more than 20 activities your membership entitles you to participate in. Call Mrs. George Johnson, 545-1827.

Don't forget your tickets for the Distaff Dinner - Dance, Saturday, Nov. 17, at the Main Officers Club.

EPO Halloween Party Held at MOOM

The Editorial and Pictorial Office of The Infantry School, held a Halloween party at the Main Officers' Open Mess to welcome new officers and bid goodbye to departing ones.

Those welcomed were Col. and Mrs. Henry St. Clair, Maj. and Mrs. Robert Coveny and Lt. and Mrs. Douglas Babcock. Col. St. Clair is the new Chief of EPO, Maj. Coveny is in charge of the Film Section and Lt. Babcock will head the Visual Aids Section.

Goodbyes were bid to Lt. Col. and Mrs. Alfred Leonard. Col. Leonard is retiring after 20 years, the last six of which were spent as film production chief for EPO. He will work for the Army Pictorial Service, New York, in duties closely allied to his past work.

Also departing from EPO were Capt. and Mrs. Raymond Tomlinson, Lt. and Mrs. Joseph Tomko. Lt. Tomko, after attending Airborne School, will travel to Fort Slocum. The surprise of the evening came when Capt. Tomlinson was presented with a silver cigarette box, containing a set of captain's bars. This was Capt. Tomlinson's first notification of his recent promotion.

Also present at the party were Mr. and Mrs. Gelke, parents of Capt. Donald Gelke. Mr. Gelke was responsible for many of the Halloween decorations at the party. The senior Gelkes are on a visit from Cincinnati.

Dinner followed the party.

Wives of Officer Candidates Have Monthly Coffee

The ladies of the 51st Officer Candidate Company held their monthly coffee in the company day room recently.

A guest at the coffee was Mrs. George McLendon, wife of the battalion commander. Welcome was extended to Mrs. Bowen and Mrs. Belding.

Officers elected for the group are as follows: Chairman, Mrs. Richard Stoll; Co - chairman, Mrs. Robert Whitaker; Hospitality Chairman, Mrs. John Adler; Treasurer, Mrs. Michael Haynes; and Publicity Chairman, Mrs. Thomas Fickle.

Hostesses for the affair were Mrs. Raymond Rupcic, Mrs. Richard Wilhelm, Mrs. John Phillips, Mrs. Richard Stoll, Mrs. John Adler, and Mrs. Robert Whitaker.

Christmas Seal Sale Plans Set

Plans are under way for the annual Tuberculosis Christmas Seal Sale here, according to Maj. Russel M. Brami, post campaign chairman.

Mrs. John E. Kelly, wife of Brig. Gen. Kelly, deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, is honorary chairman of the drive.

Post officials are working closely with Mrs. Edward A. Smith, president of the Columbus Area TB Association.

Christmas Seals will be mailed to all personnel listed in the Fort Benning telephone directory. Unlisted personnel may obtain seals by telephoning Maj. Brami at LJ 5-9531.

Members of the Woman's Club of Fort Benning recently held a "stuffing party" to place the seals in envelopes for mailing.

In addition to the sale of Christmas Seals, funds for the TB Association will be raised by placing canisters for donations at strategic locations on the post, Maj. Brami said.

Homecoming is today's password for all Baker students. Tonight the Lions will battle Warner Robbins at Memorial Stadium. This contest will be interrupted by a half - time show climaxed by the crowning of a queen and followed by a dance at the Baker auditorium.

Pacelli's Vikings played their way to a 13-13 tie with Mt. De Sales last Saturday night. A Homecoming Queen and her court were crowned at this new school's first Homecoming.

The Pacelli team is now tentatively ranked second in the Region 3C league, with only two more games to play.

Tomorrow night will be the last game of the season for the "surprize team", the Columbus High Blue Devils.

The classic contest between Columbus and Jordan will be heralded by the traditional parade of gaily and symbolically decorated cars from both schools through the city.

I guess now is the best time to apologize to all the boys who have been upset with me for my somewhat less than expert coverage of the sports scenes this fall.

Even if I don't know the exact difference between a touchback and a safety (do you), I've tried not to mess up too much by just saying who beat which team when, and what was the significance of the score if any.

In case any of you missed it in the papers, Greg Jones, former Benningite and Pacelli football star, was seriously injured in a ball game last weekend. Greg is a team member of the Valdosta Wildcats.

While at Pacelli, Greg, son of Lt. Col. (Ret.) and Mrs. Freeman Jones, won several oratorical and debating awards, as well as making an outstanding academic record.

Those dramatic Baker people are at it again! "Bye Bye Birdie", which has been selected as the musical production of the year will be presented Nov. 29-30. Kay Johnson, of Fort Benning is in the cast.

Butch Saleme has again snagged an important part in "Antigone", a modern version of a Greek drama, which will be an event of Jan. 28-29 at Baker.

Talk to almost any senior for more than three minutes and the chances are better than excellent that the conservation will soon get around to college.

From now until Christmas (can it really be so near?) we will be filling out applications, getting teachers' recommendations and exchanging catalogues. Conferences with Guidance Counselors, long "mooey" talks with fathers, and "clothes" discussions with mothers as well as wonderful dreams of roommates, fraternity parties, and college football games fill these busy weeks while we "offer" ourselves to the schools of our choice.

Under classmen think it extremely funny that suddenly they are getting little lectures on studying, getting on the good side of teachers, and joining worthy clubs from seniors. Of course they won't listen any better than we did a few years ago, but we'll try to pass along our newfound truths.

A lot of the tenseness of the day is due to the prospect of taking College Boards next month. . . Dec. 1.

The first definite plans for holiday parties have reached me. The Junior Army Daughters of America have set Dec. 22, for the night of their annual Christmas Ball, and the senor class at Baker has reserved the ballroom of the Ralston Hotel for a New Year's party on Dec. 31.

Post Pan Hellenic To Meet at MOOM

The Pan Hellenic Society of Fort Benning will meet at 10 a.m. Nov. 16 at the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Reservations for the meeting should be made by telephoning Mrs. W. B. Crites, MU 9-9466.

The society met at the Officers' Mess Oct. 26. The guest speaker, Maj. Anna A. Turek, Army health nurse at Martin Army Hospital, presented a program which included films on first aid.

Mrs. John Jeter Jr., past president and guest of honor, poured coffee.

Distaff Dance Features Roaring 20's

Flappers from the Tenth Artillery will "Charleston" us back to the Roaring 20s as they lead off the witty, fast-moving floor show to be presented at the Distaff Dinner-Dance on Nov. 17 at the Main Club.

Written and directed by Mrs. John Corley, the program, "Music in Orbit," also features Col. Sidney Sacerdote at the piano, Miss Barbara Downes, who recently starred as Lola in the Masquers production of "Dam Yankees", and a male chorus of Col. Stacey, Lt. Col. Victor Kleber, Maj. Daniel French, Lt. William Putman, and Lt. Michael Downes. The show is choreographed by Mrs. James Cannon, and the above mentioned Flappers include Mesdames Thomas Page, Herbert Knight, William Green, Robert Soderstrom, Carol Davis, and Helmut Roeder.

Tickets for the dinner dance may be purchased from Mrs. N. E. Smith, 545-2496. The proceeds will go to the Army Distaff Foundation in Washington, D. C. Mrs. John Kelly is post Distaff chairman.

Heads 806th Engineers

Lt. Col. Felix R. Moss assumed command of the 806th Engineer Battalion (Const.) recently. Col. Moss succeeds Capt. Alexander W. David who became the battalion executive officer.

After graduating from the University of Alabama with a B.S. degree in Civil Engineering, Col. Moss entered the Army as a private in August 1943. He graduated a Second Lieutenant from the Officers Candidate School at Fort Belvoir, Va., in April 1946.

During World War II, Col. Moss served in Europe and Okinawa with the 1333rd Engineer Regiment. He served in Korea with the 14th Engineer Battalion (C), 1169th Engineer Group and HQ I Corps during the Korean conflict.

Col. Moss received a Masters Degree from New York University in 1955, and is a 1959 graduate of the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

Prior to being assigned to the 806th Engineer Battalion, he was with Engineer District at Fort Clayton, Canal Zone, as area engineer. In that capacity, he directed the construction of many facilities for the use of the Caribbean and the Caribbean Air Command.

Unit Maps New Land Navigation Instruction

Land navigation training took another step forward when the Army Infantry Human Research Unit here designed a 16-hour program of instruction in advanced land navigation.

This new program is designed to replace the present 10 to 16 hours of navigational instruction that is being given in advanced individual training (AIT).

The new advanced land navigation program, while reviewing dead reckoning procedures as taught in basic combat training, also presents a more sophisticated navigational procedure that is usually called map - terrain association.

Theodore R. Powers, task scientist of the Army Infantry Human Research Unit, when asked about the new land navigation program said, "This program presents a worthwhile contribution to the area of land navigation in that a compass-holding technique is taught that permits the soldier to use the compass without laying his rifle down or taking off his helmet."

"Another worthwhile contribution to the area of map reading is the use of raised plastic relief maps and a flat topographic map of the same area at the same time to teach the concept of contour interpretation," Powers added.

The advanced land navigation program was recently evaluated here. Supporting this evaluation were 10 AIT instructors who came from training centers at Fort Jackson, S.C., Fort Dix, N. J., Fort Gordon, Ga., and Fort Ord, Calif. In addition, 110 soldiers from the 197th Infantry Brigade, The Infantry Center Troop Command, 151st Engineer Group and 428th Medical Battalion acted as subjects.

The U. S. Army Infantry Human Research Unit is a field unit of the Human Resources Research Office (HumRRO), staffed by both military and civilian persons. Director of research of the unit is Dr. Carl J. Lange. Military acting chief is Capt. Harry K. L. Tom.

HumRRO Official Will Visit Here

Dr. Howard H. McFann, recently appointed deputy director for program development of the Human Resources Research Office (HumRRO) at the George Washington University, Washington, D.C., will arrive here Nov. 13 to visit The Infantry Human Research Unit.

Dr. McFann, who is making a periodic visit to the field unit, will be oriented by officials on the progress of the many tasks being conducted by the local agency.

A member of the original staff of The Infantry Human Research Unit, Dr. McFann was here from 1953 until 1956.

He served as leader of Task Trainfire (rifle instruction) until appointed director of research for The Armor Human Research Unit at Fort Knox, Ky., in November, 1956.

He also served as director of research at The Leadership Human Research Unit at the Presidio of Monterey, Calif., before assuming his present position.

The Human Resources Research Office is a non-governmental research agency supported by a continuing contract between the Department of the Army and the George Washington University.

ARC Volunteer Stays in Cuba

GUANTANAMO BAY, Cuba (AFPS) — While American Red Cross workers at Norfolk, Va. were assisting military dependents arriving from here, a woman representative stayed behind to assist the servicemen.

She is Miss Beryle A. Trombley, a veteran of 17 years in Red Cross service and one of nine women field directors serving at military installations.

Miss Trombley volunteered to stay on duty when the commander of the Navy base requested that Red Cross services be maintained. She was alone until an assistant arrived from the states, since her secretary and all her volunteer workers were among those evacuated.

Miss Trombley, a native of Bay City, Mich., has been here since May, 1961, and is scheduled for rotation to Europe.

Veteran's Day Letter From the 2nd Division Commanding General

TO THE OFFICERS AND MEN OF THE 2ND INFANTRY DIVISION

This Sunday, November 11, heralds another anniversary of a day most solemn and dear to Americans—Veteran's Day.

For our men in uniform this day has a special significance. Throughout the nation's history, in conflict and wars, our soldiers have contributed immeasurably to the freedom of the United States and the growth of democracy.

It is appropriate at a time like this for all of us to reflect on the countless sacrifices made by military men since the nation's founding. These are memorable examples which serve to inspire us as we carry out our daily tasks.

23rd Initiates Transoceanic Conversation

Exchange Ideas With 4th (Mech)

By 23rd Infantry PIO

Winging its way over the Atlantic Ocean at this time is a letter. Not just an ordinary letter, it has significance in the fact that as it is delivered to its addressee, correspondence between two of the Army's infantry battle groups scheduled to exchange places next February will have been initiated.

To 4th Infantry

The letter, mailed this week by the 23rd Infantry's Adjutant, is directed to the Adjutant of the 2nd Battle Group, 4th Infantry (Mechanized), 8th Infantry Division in Bamberg, Germany. The two units, under the Army's new overseas rotation plan, "Rotaplan," are scheduled to exchange physical locations next February.

More or less a questionnaire, this initial letter is full

First Star To Colonel S. Harding

A new general officer received his first 11-gun salute at 2nd Infantry Division Headquarters last Thursday.

Commander of 2nd Division Artillery since July 1961, Brig. Gen. Stanley L. Harding was promoted to his present rank following Thursday's announcement by the Department of the Army. He has since been named the 2nd Infantry Division's assistant division commander.

Receives Star

Gen. Harding received his star from Brig. Gen. Charles Billingslea, commanding general of the 2nd Division, during ceremonies at division headquarters. Following promotion ceremonies, Gen. Harding reviewed an honor guard on the division headquarters parade field.

Making up the honor guard for the general's review were men of the 23rd Infantry's Company E, commanded by Capt. Everett M. Yon Jr. The general's first 11-gun salute was fired by the division's 17th Artillery, commanded by Lt. Edward F. Mostovani.

Following the review, the general followed a route to Division Artillery Headquarters, lined by artillery battery commanders, first sergeants and battery colors.

Gen. Harding was born in New Durham, N. J., November 30, 1913. He was graduated from the University of New Hampshire with a bachelor of Science degree in mathematics in 1935 and a Master of Education degree in 1938. He has done graduate work at Boston College, Boston University, George Washington University and the University of Pittsburgh.

Collecting Toys For Christmas

By 9th Infantry PIO

The men of the 9th Infantry have begun their annual Christmas toy collection campaign.

A large covered box has been erected near 9th Infantry Headquarters at the corner of Bovington and 3rd Streets where the men are depositing repairable toys and clothing that their children have outgrown.

The articles will be repaired by the men and wives of the battle group and distributed among needy families at Christmas.

Local Community Better By $31,000 Drive Total

As the last figures began arriving in the 2nd Division's Community Activities Association Fund Drive, the division's total surpassed $31,300; more than 87 per cent of the division's fair share goal.

Units achieving their fair share potential included the 12th Artillery, Headquarters, Division Trains, and Administration Company, 13th Transportation Battalion, 702nd Ordnance Battalion, 2nd Aviation Company, the 303rd Army Security Agency Battalion, the Sand Hill Noncommissioned Officers' Open Mess, and six sections of division headquarters.

The six headquarters sections achieving their maximum were the Office of the Commanding General, Chief of Staff, Chaplain's Section, Commandant's Office, Provost Marshall, and the Inspector General.

Meeting the minimum goal set were the 1st Infantry, 9th following Thursday's announcement by the Department of the Army. He has since been named the 2nd Infantry Division's assistant division commander.

From May 1941 to January 1943 he served on the staff of the commanding general, Harbor Defenses of New York. He was graduated from the Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kan., in April 1942.

In 1944, Gen. Harding was ordered to the European Theater where he served as assistant operations officer with the British 21st Army Group and the U. S. 12th Army Group. At the end of the war he served in England for six months as executive academic director of Shrivenham University.

Following a brief tour as executive, Harbor Defenses of Boston, he was ordered to duty with the War Department General Staff in April 1946. In June 1948, he was graduated from the Armed Forces Staff College and later served on the staffs of the commanding general, U. S. Army, Pacific, and the Commander - in - chief, Pacific, until 1952 at Fort Shafter, Hawaii.

In August 1952, Gen. Harding returned to the U. S. and assumed command of the newly activated 33rd Anti - Aircraft Artillery Gun Battalion at Fort Bliss, Texas. In July 1953, he took over command of the 1st Group, Anti-Aircraft Artillery Replacement Training Center. From December 1953 to July 1955, he served as Secretary of the Air Defense School.

Upon graduation from the Army War College in June 1956, he served as Chief, Army Section, U. S. Military Training Mission in Saudi Arabia. In 1957, Gen. Harding was assigned to the Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense for International Security Affairs.

Gen. Harding assumed command of the 2nd Infantry Division Artillery on July 11, 1961.

Also attending the promotion ceremony was the general's wife, the former Florence Louise Fisher of Rochester, N. H., and their daughter, Mary, a student at Georgetown University.

Each section of the 23rd was given the opportunity to submit information thought to be important to the 4th, or questions to the 4th that will be helpful in planning a smooth change-over for the 23rd.

In addition, the 23rd sent along copies of its history, elaborated on its diversified training program during the past year, explained training areas and facilities, and informed the 4th of the current 2nd Division set up on public information publications.

It is anticipated that with the formation between the two units before the change of places occurs, the two battle groups can perform a more smooth and less incidental exchange of places next February.

T-4 Truman Kimbre, Company C, 2nd Engineer Battalion, gave his life during World War II by endeavoring to halt the German Armor by placing mines directly under the advancing tanks. For this deed, he was posthumously awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor.

ASSISTANT G-2
Maj. Williamson

New to G-2, He Christened 'Army Green'

The man who named the Army uniform "Army Green" is now serving with the 2nd Infantry Division. He is Maj. Norman L. Williamson, the new assistant G-2.

In 1959 Maj. Williamson entered the Army-wide contest to name the then new Army green uniform, suggesting that the official name should be "The Army Green". The judges immediately concurred, but had some difficulty in awarding the $300 prize money as 33 others had entered the same suggestion. Maj. Williamson's reason for selection, however, broke the tie. He wrote, "The Army Green most effectively joins the old traditions with the new."

Maj. Williamson enlisted in the Army in 1942 and graduated from Officers' Candidate School at Fort Benning in 1944.

In 1948 he served with the U. S. Forces in Austria and was for a time stationed in the divided city of Vienna.

In 1959, he became the professor of military science and tactics of the Reserve Officer Training Corps in the junior high schools at Shreveport, La. From there he was ordered to Bad Tolz, Germany where in 1959 he served as the chief of the map reading committee and subsequently the academic director of the 7th Army Noncommissioned Officers' Academy.

He remained in Germany for three years and was then assigned to the 2nd Infantry Division arriving here October 24.

RA Commission Awarded 9th's Lt. A. C. Tinker

By 9th Infantry PIO

Lt. Andrew C. Tinker, a new arrival to the 9th Infantry and to the U. S. Army was awarded a Regular Army second lieutenant commission recently by Col. Clifford P. Hannum, 9th Infantry commander.

Lt. Tinker's first Regular Army assignment is as platoon leader at Company E, 9th Infantry.

He received his reserve commission upon graduation from East Tennessee State College where he participated in the Reserve Officer Training Corps program and was a Distinguished Military Graduate and also a Distinguished Military Student.

Lt. Tinker holds a Bachelor of Science degree in business management and plans to make a career of the Army.

After two years' service as an infantry officer he will be permanently assigned to the adjutant general branch.

Lt. Tinker is scheduled to attend the Infantry Officer Orientation Course at The Infantry School, Ft. Benning, early next year.

In college he was a member of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity and the Society of the Scabbard and Blade.

Devoted Artillerymen Line Route Awaiting Promoted Commander

BY DIVARTY PIO

When Brig. Gen. Stanley L. Harding recently was promoted to his present rank, the artillery battalions sent representatives to the Division Artillery Headquarters to congratulate their commanding general.

As Gen. Harding was being honored with a review on the field at Division Headquarters, the artillerymen were excitedly lining both sides of 14th St. from Division Artillery Headquarters to Bourg St. Every artillery battery commander, sergeant major and first sergeant, as well as three additional non-commissioned officers from each battalion stood at attention alongside their individual guidons as announced.

With Anxiety

The anxiety of the men was indicated by the fact that several "false alarms," anticipating the arrival of the general, brought the men to a bristling, colorful attention.

On top of the hill, cutting a diagonal from the street to the door of the Division Artillery Headquarters, were the battalion commanders, flanked by the artillery color guard carrying the national and 2nd Division Artillery colors. A slight wind, usually unwanted, was welcome on this day as it lifted the rippling colors from their wooden staffs.

At last the green sedan came into sight. The men, now unflinching, waited. The car slowly approached the parallel lines of men, and with uncanny intricate timing they were ordered to "present arms!" The general, accompanied in the sedan by his wife and daughter, acknowledged respectful attention of the men of his command. Splendor was the order of the day.

The sedan halted at the door of the headquarters, and Gen. Harding stepped out returning salutes, simultaneously reaching to shake the many hands extended toward him in congratulations.

After shaking as many hands as he could reach, Gen. Harding, his wife and daughter, the headquarters staff and the battalion commanders went inside where they were served coffee and cake. The cake—with red icing, white letters: "Congratulations Gen. Harding," and a blue star in the center—retained the spirit of the review that had just ended.

Finally, the sign over the headquarters door, which previously had read "Commanding Officer," was replaced with "Commanding General," and a day of pride for 2nd Division Artillery was over.

9th Infantry Cake Sale Brings CAAF Drive Collections Over $3,240 Fair Share Goal

By 9th Infantry PIO

The 9th Infantry held its second cake-baking contest and cake sale recently, and brought its Community Activities Fund Drive collections to $3,240.25, exactly 25 cents more than its fair share quota.

The two sales, the first of which was held last September 30, accounted for a substantial portion of the battle group's total collections.

The cake selected most attractive at the October 31 contest was a double layer Halloween cake decorated with white sugar frosting with orange and brown swirls and miniature witches and cats. The cake was prepared by Mrs. George McCulley, wife of PSgt. George McCulley of Company A.

The second most attractive cake was prepared by Mrs. Richard B. Alford, wife of PSgt. Richard B. Alford of Company D.

This was a triple layer cake with chocolate frosting and green leaf trim encircling the top and bottom. Clustered at the top were candy white roses.

The first cake-sale and contest was conducted September 30, and first prize was awarded to Mrs. Thomas Early, wife of Sgt. Thomas Early of Headquarters Company.

Second prize went to Mrs. Harry L. McBee, wife of First Sergeant Harry L. McBee of Company D.

The judges of the more recent sale included two officers, Lt. Robert E. Bates of Company B and 1A. Andrew C. Tinker of Company E, and two enlisted men, PSgt. David L. Clark of Company A and PFC John R. Grant of Headquarters Company.

PSgt. Clark is 9th Infantry Soldier-of-the-Year.

The winners of both contests gathered at the office of 9th Infantry commander, Col. Clifford P. Hannum, Saturday morning, and were awarded certificates and prizes. First prize winners received ten dollars each, and second prize winners were awarded five dollars.

In both contests the cakes were judged on attractiveness alone, and in each contest the judges deliberated for almost an hour before announcing their decisions.

Association President Pays Call on Second

The National President of the 2nd "Indian Head" Division Association arrived last week for an overnight visit with active members of the combat-ready 2nd Infantry Division.

Mr. Percy J. Terwilliger, recently re-elected to a second term as number-one man in the Division Association, was met at the Division Headquarters by Brig. Gen. Charles Billingslea, division commanding general.

Mr. Terwilliger, of Kansas, Mo., was on his way to Florida where he will open a new chapter of the Association.

On Thursday evening he, Mrs. Terwilliger and Gen. Billingslea were the guests of the Warriors Branch of the 2nd Division Association at an informal dinner held at the Non-Commissioned Officer's Open Mess.

Also on the guest list were Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Stanley L. Harding, the division chaplain Lt. Col. James H. Fiser and Mrs. Fiser, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Jack E. Compton, and Sgt. Maj. and Mrs. Robert L. Brown.

Col. Compton and Sgt. Maj. Brown are two of the six vice presidents of the association.

Sgt. Maj. Brown is serving his second term.

Last July the Association held its 41st Reunion, highlighted by the dedication of the two new wings to the 2nd Division "Flaming Sword" monument in Washington, D. C. Next year's reunion will be held in San Antonio, Tex.

THREW AWAY CERVICAL COLLAR

By Dr. R. P. Spillane

This patient experienced the discomfort of a cervical collar for quite some time. Yes, he did have a minor whiplash injury. He did not have a fractured vertebra or dislocation — but he did have a subluxation (misaligned) (vertebra). Your doctor of Chiropractic is the only licensed practitioner that confines his treatment to specific spinal adjustments of subluxations. This is why he obtains excellent results without methods that involve the discomfort of braces, etc. If you should have difficulty in the area of your neck, or back, consult your doctor of Chiropractic. You, too, will be able to throw away that out-dated horsecollar when your condition involves a subluxation.

New Captain H. Lyon Combines Writing With His Aide Assignment

By George Anbin

A member of the Army's "new breed" of lean, tough, skilled soldiers was promoted to the rank of captain recently.

Capt. Harold C. Lyon Jr. belongs to that group of career men who are going "all the way" to make themselves the best fighting men in the world today.

Of West Point

Capt. Lyon graduated from the U. S. Military Academy, West Point, N. Y. in June 1958. He went almost immediately to Fort Benning where he went through both the Ranger and Airborne Schools. Upon completion of these rugged courses, Capt. Lyon was assigned to the 101st Airborne Division for the next two-and-one - half years. One of these years was spent as commanding officer of a rifle company of the 501st Infantry.

From July 1961 to August 1962, he was the assistant S-3 of the 2nd Battle Group, 34th Infantry, 7th Infantry Division, stationed in Korea.

In September 1962, Capt. Lyon was assigned to the 2nd Division as aide to Brig. Gen. Charles Billingslea, division commander, a position which he now holds.

Capt. Lyon is quite a writer in his own right. He has had nine stories published in "Army" and "Infantry" magazines. His last article appeared in the August issue of "Army" and was about new concepts in counter-guerrilla tactics. It was titled "Cancer Action."

His next article will appear in the November - December issue of "Infantry" and will be about the infantryman as the ultimate weapon.

Capt. Lyon is married to the former Cinda Smith of Washington, D.C. They have two children, both boys, aged 15 months and two weeks.

THIS WEEKEND DRIVE SAFE.

Big Indianhead Ladies Hit Hospital, Form Ward Party

The Ladies of the Big Indianhead held a ward party for about thirty patients at Martin Army Hospital last Tuesday afternoon.

This was not the first ward party the ladies have given. Many times before they have gone to the hospital and held similiar parties to help cheer up the patients. But last Tuesday's party was special in that it was held only for those patients confined to their beds in the orthopedic ward. These patients are unable to get downstairs to the Red Cross Lounge for refreshments and entertainment.

The party was planned several weeks in advance. A committee of five ladies, headed by Mrs. Kenneth Hangartner, was set up to organize and coordinate the affair.

At 1 p.m. on Tuesday the ladies arrived at the hospital and were taken to ward A-6. There they began serving their home-made cakes, cookies, punch, fudge and other candies, and began organizing bingo games which ran throughout the afternoon. Cigarettes, cakes, and shaving lotion were awarded as prizes to the lucky bingo winners.

Along with Mrs. Hangartner and Mrs. Joe M. Foy, who ran the bingo, were Mrs. William Cunningham, Mrs. Phyllis Maynard, and Mrs. Fred S. Schaser.

The affair lasted for about two hours, two very enjoyable hours for the patients of the orthopedic ward at Martin Army Hospital.

INTERESTED IN THE HU-1B . . . Prior to the Tripartite Conference at Fort Benning, officers of the British and Canadian armies visited the 2nd Division's 2nd Aviation Company to become familiar with their new HU-1B helicopters. Greeted by Maj. Albert H. Becker, left center, aviation company commander, the officers were briefed and flew in the aircraft. At right, Canadian officers, Maj. T. W. N. McGrath, Maj. H. T. Harkes and Maj. J. R. Morgan, strap themselves in for a ride.

ARRIVES AGAIN
Maj. Harman

Maj. Harman Joins Second For 3rd Time

For the third time in his Army career Maj. William C. Harman, the newly appointed assistant G-1, has sewed on the "Indianhead" patch, making him again a part of the 2nd Infantry Division.

Maj. Harman joined the division for the first time immediately after his commission in 1942. As a lieutenant he served with G company of the 38th Infantry at Fort Sam Houston, Tex. He went with the division overseas and participated in the invasion of France on D-Day-plus-one and also in the Battle of Brest.

In March 1955, Maj. Harman was stationed with the 86th Infantry, 10th Division at Fort Riley, Ka., when the division was "gyroscoped" to Germany. Returning with the division to Fort Benning, Ga., in 1958, Maj. Harman took up the "Indianhead" patch again when the 10th Division was redesignated the 2nd Infantry Division.

Maj. Harman left the division for Korea in July 1961 when the 2nd battle group, 1st Infantry took part in the Overseas Unit Replacement Program (OVUREP). In Korea he served as the battle group S-1.

7th Cavalry Greets Several Officers; Two for Staff

By 7th Cavalry PIO

Several new officers including key staff personnel have reported for duty with the "Garry Owen" 7th Cavalry.

Maj. William B. Hill has arrived to head the cavalry's S-3 section. Maj. Hill comes to the 7th Cavalry from a previous assignment with the Military Assistance Advisory Group, Laos.

The major received his Regular Army commission in 1948. He resides at Fort Benning.

Capt. James L. O'Neill, new S-1 officer, was formerly a member of the 2nd Division G-1 section where he was principally involved in officer and warrant officer assignments within the division.

A graduate of Infantry Officer Candidate School, he attended the Armor officer Orientation Course and Associate Advanced Course.

Capt. O'Neill saw service during World War II with the 1st Cavalry Division in the South Pacific area. He returned to civilian life in 1945 and was recalled in 1951 during the Korean Conflict.

Capt. O'Neill, his wife, Eleanor, and their six children reside at Fort Benning.

Communications

Lt. Donald E. Hobbs, the new squadron communications officer, is temporarily attached to the 7th Cavalry from the 4th Infantry Division. He graduated from the University of Illinois with a Bachelor of Science degree in vocational Agriculture in February 1961.

Lt. Hobbs completed the Basic Armored Officer Orientation Course in March 1962. He was formerly the communications officer for the 34th Armored Battalion at Fort Lewis, Wash..

Lt. Robert R. Brookshire II recently arrived after completing the Armored Officer Orientation Course at Fort Knox, Ky. He graduated in February 1962 from Kansas State with a Bachelor of Science degree in Social Science. He is a platoon leader in Troop B, 7th Cavalry.

2 Officers Awarded Commendation Medal

Two officers of the 122nd Signal Battalion were presented Army Commendation Medals in battalion ceremonies held last Saturday.

Receiving Army Commendation Medals were Capt. Anthony Suso and Lt. Richard C. Axtell. Capt. Suso was presented the Army Commendation Medal for his performance of duty during the period April 25, 1960 to April 29, 1962, while serving as communication officer, 4th Battle Group, 10th Infantry, Fort William D. Davis, Canal Zone. The citation which accompanied the award stressed, in addition to his performance as communication officer, his outstanding duty performance as signal advisor to the Military Assistance Program in Chile. The second recipient, Lt. Richard C. Axtell, was awarded the Army Commendation Medal for his duty performance during the period April 12, 1960 to July 22, 1962, as an instructor, Antitank and Missile Committee, Weapons Department, The Infantry School. The citation accompanying the award stressed his contributions to the development of the Light Antitank Weapon, M72, the formulation of current doctrine and techniques and the implementation of Light Antitank Weapon, M72, instruction at The Infantry School.

Within the battalion, Capt. Suso serves as company commander of the Forward Communications Company and Lt. Axtell serves as platoon leader in the same company.

Following presentation of the two individual awards, battalion commander, Lt. Col. Gus H. Grisard, presented Minuteman Awards to Headquarters Company and the Forward Communications Company for attaining 89 and 100 per cent respectively in Savings Bond participation. In addition, Col. Grisard recognized the Command Operations Company and the Forward Communications Company for their 100 per cent participation in the Community Activities Association Drive. The final presentation was the Commander's Sports Trophy given to the Forward Communications Company for attaining the largest number of points in sports activities within the battalion during the period January 1, 1962 through June 1, 1962.

Field Dedicated in Korea to Lt. Lombardo

Former West Point Football Star Was With 2nd Division in Conflict

LT. THOMAS A. LOMBARDO

The Seoul Area Command Football Field on South Post, Yongsan Military Reservation, Seoul, Korea, will be dedicated in the memory of Lt. Thomas A. Lombardo, former West Point football hero who was killed in action early in the Korean Conflict.

At the time of his death, Lt. Lombardo was the commanding officer of Company I of the 2nd Infantry Division's 38th Infantry Regiment.

The dedication ceremony will be held during the halftime intermission of the SAC Mountaineers - I Corps football game on November 17.

Lombardo, a three-year letterman at the U.S. Military Academy, West Point, N.Y., led the 1944 Army eleven, one of the greatest teams ever turned out by West Point, through their first undefeated football season since 1916.

The 1944 team, called "Storybook team" by Col. Earl "Red" Blaik, coach, was voted the "Team-of-the-year", won the National Championship and was the recipient of the Lambert Trophy, symbolic of Eastern Football supremecy.

This was the powerful team that rolled over Notre Dame 59-0, thundered over Penn 62-7 and climaxed the season by sinking what was considered one of the greatest Navy teams of all time 23-7.

Lombardo graduated from the US Military Academy on June 1, 1941, upon completion of the three-year accelerated course then in effect, and was commissioned in the US Army as a Second Lieutenant, Infantry.

In 1946 and 1947 he was selected by Coach Blaik to be his field assistant on the football team at West Point.

Lt. Lombardo was killed in action on September 24, 1950.

'Flag' Games Set After 2 Put-Offs

By Bob de Camara

There's some good news today for the division's flag football fans.

This evening, after two postponements, division flag football gets under way with six of the eight league teams competing.

The Separate Battalions - 1st Infantry game scheduled for 6:30 this evening on Sand Hill has been put off until Tuesday, November 13. Part of the reason for this postponement is that the Separate Battalions have been unable to arrange a play-off to determine the Separate Battalions team entry.

Volleyball Trophies

An additional highlight of tonight's football games will be the presentation of the first place division volleyball trophy to the 87th Infantry between halves of the 87th Infantry 22nd Infantry game. The 87th was undefeated this season in volleyball play.

The 1st Infantry, runners-up to the 87th in volleyball this year, will receive their second place trophy at half time of the Tuesday evening 1st Infantry - Separate Battalions game. Although the 1st Infantry and DivArty deadlocked in second place in the volleyball standings with identical 9-3 tabs, the "Always First" squad won over DivArty in a play-off.

There are four battalions represented in Separate Battalions. Only two, the 122nd Signal and the 7th Cavalry, will be vying for battalions' nominee in league play. A play-off had been arranged for 2 p.m. Wednesday afternoon but had to be cancelled as the 122nd Signal was in the field. Another play-off is tentatively set for tomorrow morning.

A meeting was held at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning in the Special Services' office on Sand Hill, headquarters of the sports program, to smooth the wrinkles in the present football schedule and to set up a new schedule. (Results of the meeting were too late to make the BAYONET press deadline.)

The only games scheduled up to that meeting were this evening's. They include: 9th Infantry against Division Artillery on Sand Hill at 8 p.m.; 26th Infantry against the Division Trains on Kelley Hill at 6:30 p.m.; 87th Infantry against 22nd Infantry on Kelley Hill at 8 p.m.

BE 'SECOND TO NONE!!' DRIVE SAFE THIS WEEKEND AND RETURN SAFE AFTER VETERANS DAY.

HUNTERS BAG 'MOUNTAIN GOAT'
Sp5 Furr (R) And PFC Coffee Make Kill

Hunters Bag 'Mountain' Goat Here

Two hunters bagged what was first reported as a "mountain goat." Later it was fairly well established that what the animal really was, was a "plain old billy goat," and an old one at that.

Sp5 L. W. Furr and PFC Richard Coffee, both of the Aviation Section, 151 Engineer Group, got their goat on the opening day of the deer season in the vicinity of Cody Landing on Sunshine Road. They were hunting squirrel.

According to the men, Furr hit the goat first with 00 buckshot, but didn't knock him down. Coffee dropped him 100 yards down the trail with a deer slug.

Onlookers theorized that the old billy wandered from the herd many years ago, found good grazing, and remained a "loner."

Company-Level Basketball Play Gets Under Way

The 1962-63 Infantry Center Troop Command basketball league got under way last Monday evening at Briant Wells Field House with two games being played.

In the opening contest which started at 6:30 p.m., Company B, 1st Battalion, The Infantry Center Troop Command, out classed the 54th Quartermaster Maintenance Repair Company, 39th Transportation Battalion TICTC, 42-23.

In the 7:30 p.m. game a fast-breaking Company C, 1st Battalion TICTC, squad defeated a slower Military Police Company, CTC, team, 39-23.

Company C, which got off to a slow start, broke to a 10-point lead near the end of the first half and then coasted the remainder of the way.

Doughboys Extend String to Eight With Victory Over Thunderbirds

DICKERSON RACES FOR A TD.
Quillen (36) Closes In For Block

Defensive Unit Sharp Against Aerial Game

Fort Benning withstood several goal line threats by the pass-happy Daytona Beach Thunderbirds last Saturday at Doughboy Stadium and edged out the Florida Professional Football League team, 21-19.

The Doughboys, who ran their undefeated victory skein to eight straight, watched Daytona quarterback Jack Moynihan unlimber his passing arm 49 times.

Moynihan's aerial bombardment was only 11 shy of the National Football League record set by Dave O'Brien of the Philadelphia Eagles in December, 1940.

The Thunderbirds could only connect on 22 of their passes, however, in picking up 205 yards through the air. A rugged Fort Benning defense held them to 78 yards on the ground.

Fort Bening rambled for 138 yards rushing and picked up 204 yards through the air on seven completions in 17 attempts.

The Doughboys broke into the scoring column early in the first quarter following a Daytona punt that rolled dead on the Fort Benning 40.

Quarterback Marvin Tibbetts quickly fired a flat pass to Ron Quillen and the speedy halfback raced 54 yards to the Daytona six.

Bobby Towns and Wallace Johnson moved the ball to the one-foot line from where Tibbetts sneaked in for the score.

Sam Stellatella booted his 18th consecutive extra point of the season and the scoreboard read 7-0.

With little time left in the initial stanza the Thunderbirds came flying back to score their first touchdown.

With a third down and four situation on the Fort Benning 42, Moynihan arched a long pass to Bill Almashy and the big end gathered in it for the score.

Joe Hergert's extra point attempt was wide and the quarter ended 7-6.

Fort Benning added a second tally following the second half kickoff. With the ball resting on its own 34, Fort Benning's Tibbetts lofted a pass to Robert Dickerson and the lanky end galloped all the way to the Thunderbird five - yard stripe.

Johnson then bucked the middle of the Thunderbird line twice, the second time for the score, and Stellatella booted the extra point making it 14-6.

Fort Benning came right back moving the ball to the Doughboy 32 where Moynihan rifled a long pass to an intended receiver near the goal line. Bobby Towns pickled it off and scooted all the way out to the Fort Benning 30 before being hauled down.

Towns, who gave the Thunderbirds fits on defense all night, also received tremendous help from Wayne Everhart, who was also instrumental on defense.

Fort Benning moved the pigskin quickly to the Daytona 36 from where Tibbetts hit Robert Dickerson again on the 22 and the big Floridian raced the remaining distance for the score.

Stellatella made it 20 in a row for the season and it was 21-6.

The Thunderbirds started the final period by driving inside the Doughboy one-yard line where Moynihan sneaked in for the TD.

Hergert's kick again was wide and Fort Benning led 21-12.

With 2:18 remaining in the contest, Moynihan, the former Holy Cross star signal caller, whipped a five-yard TD pass to Almashy to cap an 87-yard drive.

Hergert converted this time and the final score was 21-19.

Fort Benning picked up 30 yards in penalties to 93 for Daytona.

For the Doughboys it was 18 first downs against 24 for the Thunderbirds.

Former Penn State Star Outstanding in PAT Role

By PFC Dave Braun

First Lt. Sam Stellatella is a valuable member of the undefeated 1962 Fort Benning football team.

Twenty consecutive times this season, in seven games, the 190-pound guard from Nutley, N. J., has come through to kick the extra point after a Doughboy touchdown. He also added a 44-yard field goal in Fort Benning's 30-7, victory over the Pensacola Navy Goshawks Sept. 29.

Besides his ability as a kicker, the former Penn State University star has excelled at guard while on offense and has been an outstanding linebacker on defense.

The six-foot athlete, loved to kick a football when he was a boy. When he entered Nutley High. School in 1952, he became the team's kicker.

He played center then and eventually became good enough to make the 1954 and 1955 New Jersey All - State high school football teams.

Stellatella entered Penn State in the fall of 1956 on a football scholarship and by the time he was a sophomore on the "Nittany Lions" he was a starter.

A stalwart on the 1957 and 1958 squads, which achieved a 6-3 record, he did not begin his collegiate kicking career until his senior year in 1959.

Stellatella was the third leading scorer on the Penn State team in 1959, picking up 26 points. During the 1959 season, he kicked 13 consecutive extra points and two field goals, one for 20 and another for 34 yards.

His outstanding play at Penn State in his senior year earned him a berth on the All-East team.

After being graduated from Penn State in June, 1960, he served as a physical education instructor at Central High School in Patterson, N.J., from September until November, 1960.

He entered the Army Nov. 26, 1960, as a second lieutenant.

Asked what he thought of this year's Fort Benning football team, he said, "We have a great team. It's close knit, has lot of spirit and a lot of material."

"Much of the success of this year's team can be attributed to the fine handling of the men by head coach Maj. Leaton C. Cofield," he said. "He's the type of coach who makes you want to play football."

In comparing the Doughboys, who have streaked to seven straight victories this season, to the top college teams in America today, Stellatella commented, "We have as good material as any college team in the country."

Doughboys to Play Tough Fort Lauderdale Eleven

The undefeated Fort Benning Doughboys travel to the Sunshine State this weekend to engage the Fort Lauderdale Tigers of the Florida Professional League on Sunday.

The Doughboys, who are averaging 26 points a game while holding the opposition to a near seven points per game average, will be out to run their consecutive victory skein to nine.

Head Coach Maj. Leaton C. Cofield will have Marvin Tibbetts at quarterback with Ron Quillen, Bobby Towns and Wallace Johnson rounding out the starting backfield.

Workhorse Allen Everhart at tackle heads rugged Fort Benning first team line. Others who'll be lining up against the Tigers this Sunday will be ends Fred Murphy and Dan House tackle Lindel Lovellette, guard Joe Wendryhoski and Sam Stefatella and center Elliott Mosley.

The Daytona Beach, Fla. Thunderbirds, 21-19 victims of Fort Benning on Saturday have met the Tigers twice this season. In their first meeting the Thunderbirds won by a 35-27 margin while the second game they grabbed a comparatively easy 28-6 victory.

With Nov. 17 an open date at the present, the Doughboys will return home on Nov. 24 to play another game with the Tigers at Doughboy Stadium. They'll round out the season with a Dec. 1 battle with the highly touted 'Screaming Eagles' from Fort Campbell, Ky.

At the present Fort Benning is the number one ranked service team in the country and is gunning for the 1962 Intersevice Football Crown. The game with Fort Campbell could be a decisive one with the 'Screaming Eagles' having tasted defeat but once this season.

OUTDOOR OUTLOOK

By PFC. Stephen O. Able

America grew up eating venison and wearing buckskin. We were weaned as a nation on deer meat, took our first toddling steps in deerhide moccasins, and came of age at King's Mountain and New Orleans when our deer-trained riflemen cut down foreign regulars in long scarlet swaths.

Our most famous and familiar big-game animal is an immigrant. The white-tailed deer is not original American livestock, but a wanderer that first picked its way across the Asian-American land bridge in the Middle Miocene Period, over 15 million years ago.

From the time this country was first settled the white-tailed deer has been the most important source of meat and the most sought after game animal in North America. Deer season has again come to the reservation.

As of this writing deer kills have been slow in coming in. To date only 15 deer kills have been reported. The first deer kill of the season goes to Mr. J. V. Hall, of Columbus, Georgia, a disabled veteran. The largest kill to date is a nine-point buck which weighed 127 lbs., field dressed, killed by MSgt. J. E. Eatheart, Hq. Co., 13th Transportation Battalion.

TURKEY SEASON

Turkey season is also in on the Georgia portion of the reservation. As of the date of this writing, four kills have been recorded. I would like to clear up a point which has been misunderstood by many hunters concerning Turkey.

During the fall season, each hunter is entitled to kill either gobblers, or hens, on the Georgia portion of the reservation. Each hunter is entitled to two turkeys per season including the spring season. If a hunter kills both his turkeys during the fall season, he may not kill any turkeys during the spring season, which begins March 26, 1963.

Under no conditions, will hen turkeys be killed in the spring season or on the Alabama portion of the reservation at any time. Each hunter is entitled to kill two turkeys, or two deer for the entire reservation, regardless of whether the kills are made on the Georgia or Alabama portion, of the reservation. Just two of each per hunter.

REPORTING KILLS

I would again like to stress, that each turkey or deer kill must be reported to the Fish and Game Association, Bldg. 4050, Harmony Church. The failure to report a deer kill or turkey kill, will result in the loss of all hunting privileges for the remainder of the hunting season.

If possible, each hunter is asked to bring his deer to the Fish and Game Assn. Headquarters, Bldg. 4050 Harmony Church, before 6 p.m. each day, so that your deer might be inspected and weighed. If this is impossible, you must report your deer kill by telephone, (545-6028) within 48 hours of the kill.

REPORTING DOE KILLS

Should any hunter accidentally kill a doe, this kill must be reported to the Fish and Game Office immediately. This regulation also applies to the accidental killing of a deer of either sex by an automobile.

FIRST KILL

As many people have said in the past, the Fort Benning reservation, abounds in game. The first kill of the season happened to be not a deer, but a 125 lbs. Angora billy goat. This goat was killed in A area on the opening day of deer season.

SAFETY

I would like to say again that safety should be the first thought in every hunters mind.

One soldier was killed during the past week in a hunting accident. Although this did not happen on the reservation, it could have. Be sure of where you shoot, and what you're shooting at. Let's all play safety first, and have a fine and safe hunting season this year.

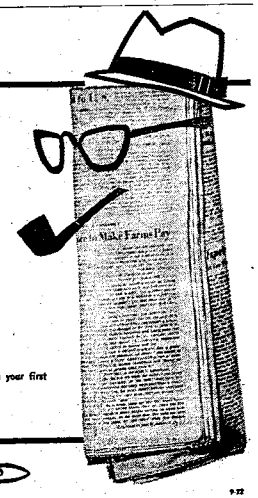
Basketball Play Is Set

The Infantry Center 1962-63 basketball program will begin the week of Nov. 19.

A post team selected on an "All-Star" basis by Maj. Roger L. Miller, Special Services officer, will represent Fort Benning in the Third Army Basketball Tournament in March.

The Major Unit League will consist of a double round robin. The winner of each half of the league will play the best two out of three games to determine the championship.

In the event two teams tie for first place in the first or second half, one game will be played to determine the half winner. If the same team is the winner of both halves, that team will be the league champion.



Major unit grouping of teams is as follows: Lawson Army Aviation Command; Student Brigade; The Infantry School; The Infantry Center Troop Command; 1st Battalion, 58th Infantry, 197th Infantry Brigade; 2nd Battalion, 19th Artillery, 197th; 4th Battalion, 29th Infantry, 197th; 151st Engineer Group; 428th Medical Battalion, and Martin Army Hospital.

Shough's Sports Scope

BY PETE SHOUGH

College football across the country suffered from another week frustration as several of the nation's top teams got knocked down a peg or two.

Probably the most outstanding upsets occurred in Yankee land and especially in the Big Ten. The north's biggest and most renown football conference is making things difficult for the average football fan. It is almost impossible to pick a winner, that is, other than Northwestern.

Last Saturday saw Michigan State go down in defeat to what was supposed to be a weak Minnesota team, Ohio State get trampled by Iowa, Illinois win its first game in 22 games, and Northwestern, the nation's top team, just barely slipped by Indiana.

But that isn't all of the upsets up north: Navy was soundly beaten by Notre Dame, who previously had won only one game. Of course, the game was played in somewhat difficult conditions.

Pitt's victory over Syracuse was also a clock-stopper.

The south didn't go without its upsets as we all know. All the area fans are aware of a tough-luck Florida team's victory over previously 10th ranked Auburn. The question still remains; Was this really an upset? By looking at the won-loss column, it certainly was, but, Florida has bumped heads with some pretty tough customers during the early stages of the season. They have been beaten by Duke, Georgia Tech and Louisiana State, all of which were picked high in the national picture in pre-season ratings.

Some consider the biggest upset of the day was Mississippi's victory over LSU. My personal opinion is that although LSU is a team to be respected, they just are not the team they were when Paul Dietzel was at the helm. They seem to have lost some spirit that Dietzel had installed in them.

Tomorrow is going to be another day of rough college football action and it's time to stick my neck out and pick some winners.

Miami over Alabama—This, I hope, could be the biggest upset of the 1962 season. It's probably wishful thinking more than anything else.

Northwestern over Wisconsin—This will be a passing game for sure, with Northwestern sophomore quarterback leading the way.

Auburn over Mississippi State — The Tigers will be fighting mad after their Florida loss.

Florida over Georgia — The Georgia Bulldogs won't even be a fair match to the Gators now that they know what it feels like to win.

Jim Crawford, Post Office Department artist, designed the stamp which went on sale Nov. 1 and will be available through Dec. 31. It is planned to make the special Christmas stamp an annual issue.

Post Office First Hails Christmas

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—The first stamp in U.S. postal history commemorating the Christmas Season has come off the presses of the Bureau of Printing and Engraving in an unprecedented intitial printing of 500 million stamps.

The Post Office, with an eye to its long-standing deficit, hopes that millions of Americans exchanging Christmas cards this year will use the four-cent stamp rather than send cards unsealed at the three-cent, third-class rate.

The stamp is of normal size —a rectangle buttressed by oblong panels at the left and bottom margins. The rectangle contains an evergreen wreath tied with a red bow. Two burning candles in the left panel illuminate the initials U.S. in Old English type which also marks the "Christmas 1962" in the bottom panel.

LT. COL. MERCHANT

Named Chief Dental Officer

Lt. Col. Hubert W. Merchant has been named chief of the Preventive Dentistry Division of The Infantry Center Dental Section at Fort Benning.

He succeeds Maj. Charles W. Dobson who has been assigned to the Medical Field Service School at Fort Sam Houston, Tex.

Col. Merchant is the son of Dr. G. H. Merchant of Deposit. He was graduated from Deposit High School and attended Park College at Parkville, Mo. He was awarded a doctor of dental surgery degree from the University of Buffalo, N. Y.

During World War II, he served with Company D, 328th Medical Battalion, 103rd Infantry Division.

From 1952 to 1955, he was dental surgeon of the Berlin Command in Germany.

Col. Merchant served at Brooke Army Medical Center, Fort Sam Houston, Tex., from 1955 to 1956, Walter Reed Army Medical Center, Washington, D.C., from 1956 to 1957, and Fort Knox, Ky., from 1957 to 1961.

He has served overseas five years.

Col. Merchant has attended the Army Medical Field Service School at Fort Sam Houston, where he took an advanced course, and Walter Reed Medical Center, where he studied oral diagnosis, advanced denistry and oral pathology.

Col. Larson Joins Ground Mobility Dept.

Lt. Col. James C. Larson has been assigned to The Infantry School Ground Mobility Department here.

He will serve as operations officer and instructor, succeeding Maj. Kyle Forinash, who recently retired.

Col. Larson came to the post Sept. 1, 1961, from an assignment with the Military Assistance Advisory Group (MAAG) on Taiwan. He served a year with the 2nd Infantry Division before joining the Ground Mobility Department.

He was graduated from the University of Wisconsin in Madison with a bachelor of philosophy degree.

Col. Larson was commissioned Dec. 13, 1943, upon graduating from the Officer Candidate School here.

During World War II, he served in the European Theater, and the China-Burma-India Theater in the Office of Strategic Services. He made a combat jump behind enemy lines in France and served with a Chinese commando unit on the mainland of China.

From 1949 to 1953, Col. Larson was assigned to the 1st Infantry Division in Germany.

Returning to the United States in 1953, he served in the Logistics Office, Department of the Army, in Washington, D. C., until 1957.

Col. Larson was a member of MAAG on Taiwan from 1958 to 1961.

Service schools he has attended include The Infantry School and Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

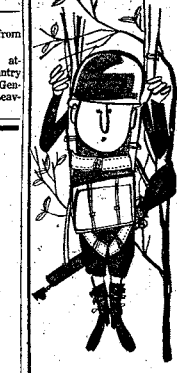
'Gitmo' Acquired After Spanish-American War

A seeming paradox that has mystified many Americans is 45 square miles of hilly terrain and deep bay situated 800 miles from the Panama Canal. Here at the southeast end of Cuba the American flag flies proudly — while in Havana at the other end of the island Fidel Castro, the Soviet puppet, rants against U. S. "imperialism."



Guantanamo is Castro's own "bone in his throat," but for the U. S. Navy the sprawling, fenced-in base is a keystone of our Caribbean defenses. We acquired it by lease under treaties following the Spanish-American war which liberated Cuba from Spanish rule. The lease, which cannot be broken without mutual consent, provides for an annual rental of 2,000 gold dollars — $3,386.25 today—paid by the United States.

Like it "Gitmo," as generations of Navy Men have known it, was a pleasant affair in pre-Castro days when the base population mingled freely with the genial Cuban people. Long before President Kennedy ordered the evacuation of dependents, however, the hostility of the Communist regime had restricted the movements of American service people to base boundaries.

Guantanamo's security problem today is immensely complex. A seven-foot-high, chain-link fence extends over some 24 miles of terrain, patrolled by Marines and sailors in jeep and helicopter. At night German shepherd dogs accompany sentries at key points.

The base depends heavily for maintainance upon thousands of Cuban living in nearby towns. For them Castro's hate-America campaign has meant a double search as they enter and leave the base—by Marines and also by castro's militia at outside check points. The Communist regime, much as it dislikes this daily Cuban-American contact, is aware that the $7 million these workers earn annually is a stabilizing factor in the island's jittery economy.

Pathfinder Detachment CO Named

First Lt. Kent M. Elliot has been named commander of the 187th Pathfinder Detachment here.

He succeeds Capt. Earl L. Bessent who retired after more than 22 years service.

Pathfinders serve as vanguards during airborne assaults. One of their main functions at Fort Benning is to support Ranger operations. The unit is assigned to The Infantry School's Airborne-Air Mobility Department for operational control.

Lt. Elliott was executive officer of the Pathfinders before assuming his new position. He also has served as tactical officer of the Officer Candidate School, executive officer of Headquarters and Supply Company, 4th Student Battalion, and commander, 43rd Company, 4th Battalion, Student Brigade at Fort Benning.

From December, 1958 to December, 1959, he served in Korea with the 19th Infantry, 4th U.S. Army Missile Command.

Entering the service as an enlisted man in April, 1957, he attended the Infantry Officer Candidate School at Fort Benning, receiving his commission in June, 1958.

Lt. Elliot is a qualified parachutist and wears the Ranger tab.

He is married to the former Nancie Carol Echols of Flora, Miss. They have a son, Kent, Jr., one year-old.

Army Sgt. Awarded 4th Patent

YUMA TEST STATION, Ariz. (ANS)—SFC Adolphus Samms, the "Soldier Scientist of Yuma Test Station," has been granted another patent for his scientific and technical contributions to the space age.

Information made available recently confirmed Sgt. Samms' expectations on his newest invention called, "Air Frame Center Support," U. S. Patent No. 3,048,107, the fourth patent awarded to the Army Airborne sergeant, was issued covering the device.

The revolutionary system for multi-stage rocket development is designed to eliminate the engines in the second and third stages of a three or four stage rocket.

PX Being Remodeled

The Fort Benning Post Exchange on Scott Ave. in the Sand Hill area is being extensively remodeled to provide self-service for customers.

Renovation of the building's interior will include abandoning the use of the coal-fired furnace, cleaning the warm air ducts and installing an oil burner to eliminate smoke and soot, laying a new tile floor and constructing new counters and self-service shelves.

In addition, the building will have new aluminum and glass front doors installed, and an extension of the steps leading to the porch.

The remodeling, which is scheduled to be completed by Dec. 15, will provide 90 per cent self-service for patrons. Cash registers will be relocated at the front of the building near the doors.

The Smith-Raymond Company of Columbus, Ga., received the contract to install the oil burner and a 1,000-gallon fuel oil tank in the ground at the rear of the building.

Cost of the conversion from coal to oil heating is $2,430.

Arts, Crafts Honors Given

The 1962 Army Arts and Crafts Week here ended Wednesday with 1,937 visitors having viewed the displays of articles made by post military personnel, dependents and civilian employees in the post's nine crafts shops.

The display of the articles, woodcrafts, leathercrafts, glaze and stain ceramics and model airplanes and boats, was exhibited in Crafts Shop No. 1 in the south wing of Doughboy Stadium Nov. 3, 4 and 5.

Purpose of the Army Arts and Crafts Week was to introduce to military personnel, their dependents and civilian employees the opportunities available through participation in the program.

This program, observed at all Army installations in conjunction with American Art Week, stimulates the use of crafts facilities and affords recognition for skilled craftsmen by awarding of prizes.

A total of $345 was awarded to contest winners by a panel of nine judges, men and women who are professionals in arts and crafts work.

Dental Health Series

Health as Important As a Trusty Weapon

By Lt. Col. H. W. Merchant
Preventive Dentistry Officer

As a military man, you are required to give first echelon care to your weapons and your vehicles.

Frequent inspections are necessary to provide the commander with information regarding the performance capability of his unit. He can, however, have the most advanced weapons system, the ultimate in vehicles, the finest of equipment and in short the best of everything in perfect working order and if he doesn't have the individual soldiers to perform the assigned tasks, his mission is doomed to failure.

He needs you. He needs your training, your skill, your courage and your strength. He needs your training, your skill, your courage and your strength. He needs a healthy you, physically able to perform your duties.

What does this have to do with your oral health? Plenty!

If you don't take care of your mouth and teeth, your general health suffers, you may fall when you are needed.

A weapon can't take care of itself. A vehicle can't take care of itself, but you can. You can perform first echelon maintenance on the vehicle and you an perform first echelon maintenance on your mouth and teeth.

It is so simple it's almost ridiculous. Memorize the basic rules, then follow them so that you won't be out of action when you are needed.

(1) - Brush your teeth and gums after each time you eat.

(2) - Eleminate sweets—especially between meals.

(3) - Visit your dentist regularly for checkup and higher echelon maintenance.

(4) - Take advantage of fluoridated water, fluoride treatments to your teeth (by your dentist) and fluoridated tooth paste.

If you have questions about your dental and oral health which you would like answered in this column, address them to Preventative Dentistry Officer, Dental Section, Fort Benning, Ga. Telephone 545-7741.

Human Research Unit Celebrates Ninth Anniversary

By SP4 Ron Claxton

The U. S. Army Infantry Human Research Unit here celebrated its ninth birthday Nov. 1.

It is one of five field units of its parent organization, the Human Resources Research Office (HumRRO) of George Washington University, Washington, D. C. The research office is operated under contract between the Department of the Army and the university. Director of research of the unit is Dr. Carl J. Lange, while military acting chief is Capt. Harry K. L. Tom.

The combat replacement, despite sincere efforts to train him properly, has often been forced to learn critical aspects of his job while face to face with the enemy.

Dr. Thomas F. Nichols, senior staff scientist and leader of Task Rifleman, said the project, one of the many tasks being coped with by the unit, has the mission of reducing hazardous trial-and-error learning through research, emphasizing important details of combat proficiency during formal individual training of the light weapons Infantryman.

In fulfillment of this mission, the unit has made notable contributions to the Army training program.

Two outstanding contributions include the Trainfire rifle marksmanship course accepted by the Army in July, 1957, to replace Known Distance (KD) rifle marksmanship training, and land navigation, 12 hours of instruction for basic combat training on map, compass and land navigation, which was accepted for implementation in Novemper, 1959.

In addition to Army-wide implementation, the Trainfire concept is either being implemented or being considered by Allied countries and Military Assistance Advisory Groups (MAAG).

The Trainland film program is also a product of research conducted on leadership.

At present, the Infantry unit is conducting research in four areas:

Task Lead, which is devoted to improve officers training in the critical skill required for effective combat leadership in small Infantry units.

Task Unifect, whose basic purpose is the development of procedures for increasing the effectiveness of small Infantry-type units.

Task Rifleman, which is conducting research in the area of advanced individual training for the 1962 light weapons Infantryman to improve his future combat proficiency.

Task Swingswift, whose purpose is to identify training problems peculiar to Infantry operations during limited visibility, and to develop training methods for those operations at both the individual and squad level.

In conducting these tasks, the personnel at the unit coordinate closely with the military personnel of The Army Infantry School.

This close liaison is a further extension of the broad definition of the Human Resources Research Office, "A military-civilian partnership using the methods of scientific research to improve the training of the American soldier.

Studies are conducted by six research groups, the Army Training Methods Division in Washington, and five Human Research Units at Army Centers. Continental Army Command is the principal user of HumRRO research products and it exercises military command of the HumRRO field units.

Col. Seawell Assigned Post Ord. Officer

Lt. Col. Vergil L. Seawell, deputy ordnance officer of The Infantry Center since December, 1960, has been assigned post ordnance officer.

He succeeds Col. John M. Woestenburg.

Col. Seawell entered the Army Sept. 9, 1940, at Richmond, Va. At the time Pearl Harbor was bombed, he was a platoon sergeant with the 489th Bombardment Squardon, Hickman Field, Honolulu, Hawaii.

On Sept. 5, 1942, he was commissioned upon graduating from Officer Candidate School at Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md.

After receiving his commission he served in World War II with the 456th Ordnance Aviation Company in North Africa, Corsica, Italy and France. For wartime wounds he received a Purple Heart.

From 1952 to 1954 he was a member of the Military Assistance Advisory Group (MAAG) on Taiwan. From the MAAG unit he was assigned to Aberdeen Proving Ground as a student officer commander from 1954 to 1957.

Before arriving at Fort Benning, Col. Seawell was assistant ordnance officer of the 4th Armored Division in Germany.

As post ordnance officer, he will be in charge of the procuring, maintenance and issue of a wide variety of supplies and equipment. They include small arms and artillery, ammunition, tanks, gun motor carriages, armored personnel carriers, trucks, land mines, rockets and launchers and guided missiles.

Col. Seawell and his wife, the former Virginia Habib of Norfolk, and their two children, Linda and Glenn, live at 2431 Rice St., Columbus, Ga.

LT. JEFFERY IS TOP IOOC GRAD
Col. Coghill (L) Presents The Certificate

Top IOOC Graduate

Second Lt. Brian L. Jeffery, graduated Infantry Officer Orientation Course, Class No. 4A, 2nd Student Battalion, The Student Brigade recently with top honors. Lt. Jeffery completed the eight-week course of instruction with the highest overall average in his class, receiving a 95.00 percentile.

Col. C. W. Coghill Jr., The Infantry School's Career Course Class Supervisor, the guest speaker for the graduation exercises, was introduced to the class and guests by Col. Otto R. Koch Jr., commanding officer, The Student Brigade. Col. Coghill congratulated the class on their efforts during the course, and presented the honor graduate with his graduation certificate.

Addressing the graduating body, Col. Coghill spoke about patriotism, and what it means to officers in the Army. Patriotism is one of the biggest factors in making a good officer, he stated. It gives them something to fight for, and a cause to champion.

Col. Coghill added that we should talk more about patriotism and instill it in men so that when men are faced with a decision they will make the right one. The word itself he said has become obsolete but, it should be revived and used to make us better citizens and soldiers.

Surgeon Says

Splints Reduce Pain; Stop Further Injury

By Lt. Col. Daniel E. Stalker
Chief, Orthopedic Service.

"Everybody talks about it, but nobody does anything about it." This statement applies nearly as equally to the splinting of fractures as to the weather.

Almost everyone knows a fracture should be splinted both for prevention of pain to the patient and the possibility of increasing the injury by poking the bone ends through the skin or into nearby nerves and blood vessels.

However, a very high percentage of fractures are brought to the emergency room without having been splinted. Perhaps if the subject of splinting were simplified and everyone would learn one simple, effective way of giving first aid to fractures, the overall results would be more satisfactory.

Slings Recommended

Any injury of the shoulder or arm can be treated with a sling with the addition of another sling tied around the body and the arm to give stability. This arrangement holds the extremity against the body, which actually acts as the splint. In loose fractures of the forearm, rolling a magazine around the forearm inside of the sling is a simple way of adding a little more support.

For fractures of the legs, the other leg makes a good splint. A pillow, folded blanket, or jacket placed between the legs makes the patient more comfortable. Strips of cloth or slings can then be used to tie the legs together. If the injured leg tends to rotate outward, as usually happens, an additional strip should be placed around the feet to keep the toes pointing in the same direction.

As a general rule, no attempt should be made to reduce a fracture, however occasionally the extremity is in such a deformed position that the patient cannot be moved. In this case, no harm will come from gently realigning the extremity to allow splinting and to improve function of kinked nerves and blood vessels.

If the skin is broken, further dirt should be kept out of the wounded with some type of dressing. If the bones are protruding through the skin they should not be replaced, except in the operating room.

Dislocations Difficult

Dislocations of joints are painful injuries which are frequently reduced by athletic trainers and others who are acquainted with first aid. However, too often it is impossible to distinguish between a dislocation and a fracture, so x-rays should be taken prior to reduction.

An exception to this rule is a shoulder which has dislocated repeatedly and which the patient knows how to reduce. It is permissible for anyone to assist him as he directs.

Splinting of dislocations is not necessary, but any movement of the dislocated joint is painful so the patient should be assisted in preventing this motion as he is being transported to the hospital.

It is particularly important that splints or bandages never constrict the circulation or cause undue pressure to bony prominences. This interference with circulation causes increased pain of a throbbing or burning nature. The presence of this type of pain should always lead to investigation of the splinting to be sure that further damage is not being done by the attempted treatment.

Judge

to move on post within two or three days, or forfeit the on-post housing.

This in these cases the 30 day notice can't be satisfied, and moving out would justify the landlord in collecting the month's rent during a month when the tenant won't be receiving his quarters allowance. Consider this when you are entering into a lease.

Another important provision is the "assumption of risk clause." This essentially means that you would absorb the damages to any person or property resulting from defects of the rented property. This is often inserted for the protection of the landlord.

This would mean that if a drain became clogged and flooded, or if a roof leaked doing damage to your imported carpet or to your expensive furniture, then you, not the landlord, would have to suffer the loss.

Post Bids Farewell to Gen. Trapnell

GEN. TRAPNELL (L) RENDERS FAREWELL SALUTE
Gen. Harrell Salutes Colors With Retiring Third Army CG

Third Army CG Will Retire Soon

Fort Benning bade its official farewell to Lt. Gen. T.J.H. Trapnell, retiring commanding general of the Third U.S., Wednesday during honors ceremonies at Chapel Field.

A 15-gun salute sounded for Gen. Trapnell who will retire later this month at Fort McPherson, home of Third Army Headquarters. He has served continuously since graduating from the U.S. Military Academy in 1927.

Since October, 1961, Gen. Trapnell has served as Third Army commander.

Troops for the honor guard and the firing battery were members of the 197th Infantry Brigade. Music for the ceremonies was provided by The Infantry Center band.

Reviewing officer was Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell, Infantry Center commanding general and commandant of The Infantry School.

Following the ceremonies, Gen. Trapnell visited with Gen. Harrell and Brig. Gen. Charles Billingslea, commanding general of the 2nd Infantry Division.

Gen. Trapnell, who made his 137th career parachute jump recently, commanded the 505th Airborne Regiment of the 82nd Airborne Division from 1947 to 1950, the 187th Airborne Regimental Combat Team in Korea in 1951-52, and assumed command of the 82nd Airborne Division in 1955.

During World War II, he became a Japanese

Education Section Observes NEW With Open House

In observance of National Education Week, the Education Section here will hold open house from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. today to better acquaint military and civilian personnel with the educational opportunities available.

The post Education Center is prepared to help soldiers complete elementary, high school or four years of college training.

In addition to assisting the individual soldier toward his desired education goal, the program is aimed at developing better soldiers and better citizens, according to officials.

An increased awareness of the role of education in the Army's future is producing two trends in education on the post, according to Leonard S. Ozley, education officer.

One is a rising interest among officers for more college training and the other is an increased effort by non-commissioned officers to complete high school studies, he explained.

For those who have not completed elementary education, preparatory classes in English, arithmetic, history, science and geography are offered. Successful completion of these courses earns students eighth grade certificates and qualifies them to take the high school General Educational Development tests.

A high premium is placed on the General Educational Development tests which measure both high school and college educational development. The high school tests are accepted for admission by many colleges and universities. The college level test may be taken to obtain recognition of educational ability equivalent to completion of the first year of college work.

Through the center, military personnel can enroll in U. S. Armed Forces Institute (USAFI) courses, available on a correspondence basis. Some 200 courses of both high school and college level are offered through USAFI.

The American University, Columbus College, University of Georgia and Albany State College lure about 1,600 Fort Benning students annually. The Army pays up to three-fourths of the tuition costs for military personnel enrolled in civilian schools and colleges.

Special impetus for the Fort Benning academic activities has been provided during the year by the commanding general of The Infantry Center, Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell, who urged all military to increase their technical proficiency and to broaden their understanding of the role of the modern Army in today's world affairs.

Post Goes Over Top Of CAA Drive Mark

Fort Benning personnel have been commended by Major Gen. Ben Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center, for their enthusiastic participation in the annual Community Activities Association Fund Drive which carried the post "over the top."

In a letter addressed to all military and civilian personnel of the command, Gen. Harrell said, "At the conclusion of the 1962 Community Activities Association Fund Drive, I wish to express my appreciation for the interest, enthusiasm and active participation displayed by Fort Benning personnel in this highly successful campaign.

"The high percentage of individual participation and the oversubscription of the established goal reflect efficient planning and concerted effort by all concerned.

"The support rendered by Fort Benning personnel is most gratifying. It clearly indicates that our people realize their moral and civic responsibilities in making our community a better place in which to live."

This is the first time in the history of the Community Activity Association Fund Drive

GEN. GEE

Gen. Gee Will Speak At AUSA Meet Here

Brig. Gen. Samuel E. Gee, director of Army programs, Office of the Chief of Staff, Department of the Army, Washington, D. C., will be the principal speaker at the Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning Chapter of the Association of the U. S. Army semi-annual meeting Nov. 20 at 8 p.m. in the Supper Club, Main Officers' Open Mess.

More than 500 members and guests are expected to attend. The association's activities will begin with a social hour at 7 p.m., followed by dinner.

Tickets for the dinner and meeting have been distributed to all major units on the post, including the 2nd Infantry Division. Additional tickets and advance reservations may be obtained in Room 114, Bldg. 35, or by telephoning the AUSA office at LI 5-3444.

Gen. Gee, a native of Virginia and 1933 graduate of the U. S. Military Academy, West Point, N. Y., served in World War II in the Central Pacific, Guadalcanal, Northern Solomons, Leyte and Southern Philippines Campaign.

For his combat service he was awarded the Silver Star, Bronze Star Medal with two prisoner while commanding the 26th Cavalry (Philippine Scouts) and was not released until Aug. 20, 1945. During this time the general survived the Death March and two sinkings of POW ships.

His decorations include the Distinguished Service Cross, Silver Star, Legion of Merit with two Oak Leaf Clusters, the Bronze Star Medal and the Purple Heart.

AUSA

Oak Leaf Clusters, Army Commendation Medal and Combat Infantryman Badge.

After the war he was staff officer of the Personnel and Administration Division, U. S. Army General Staff, Washington. Later, he was assigned as the director of military psychology and leadership at the Military Academy and then attended the Army War College at Carlisle Barracks, Pa.

Gen. Gee was chief of staff of the 1st Infantry Division, then became regimental commander of the 16th Infantry, 1st Division, at Fort Riley, Kan. Before assuming his duties with the chief of staff in Washington, he was chief of the Combat Developments Division, U. S. Continental Army Command, Fort Monroe, Va.

He was then named assistant commander of the 7th Infantry Division in Korea until August, 1958, when he returned to the United States.

Gen. and Mrs. Gee have two daughters, Mrs. James N. Bowers and Mrs. Donald B. Smith Jr.

Mrs. Bowers is married to Capt. Bowers, who left Fort Benning last summer after serving three years with the Ranger Department of The Infantry School. He is presently attending the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

Mrs. Smith is the wife of Capt. Smith, commander of Company A, 2nd Battle Group, 9th Infantry, 2nd Infantry Division.

Drive

that the post has exceeded its goal, officials said.

Donations have been made by more than 90 per cent of the military and civilian personnel on the post. The drive has exceeded the estimated "fair share" dollar goal.

Col. Richard W. Keyes, fund drive chairman said, "The wholehearted response of the command is indicative of the generosity and consideration of post personnel for those who are less fortunate.

"The success of the drive is entirely due to the energy and enthusiasm of key men who made it a point to contact every person on their respective lists to insure that everyone had an opportunity to participate."

No Holiday Accidents Recorded

Fort Benning personnel posted a clean accident record over the long Veterans Day weekend.

"We received no reports of fatalities stemming from traffic, hunting or any other type of accident," Norman Evans, Infantry Center safety officer, said.

"Everybody on the post is to be congratulated in this effort," he added. "It is an indication of responsible conduct on their behalf."

With the big Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays just around the corner, Evans and other members of his section are hopeful that the results of the Veterans Day safety effort are a favorable indication for the same results over the upcoming holidays.

Social Workers Schedule Meet

The Central Georgia Chapter of the National Association of Social Workers will meet Saturday at 10 a.m. in the Main Conference Room of Martin Army Hospital.

Reservations may be made by contacting Maj. Fergus Monahan, 545-6304 or 545-2984.

Gen. Harrell Will Address Post DACs

Maj. Gen. Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center and commandant of The Infantry School, will speak to all civilian employees of the post in a series of five sessions which began Thursday.

The first group, which heard Gen. Harrell was comprised of key management and supervisory personnel from all activities except Martin Army Hospital, Post Dental Service and The Infantry School.

At 11:30 a.m. today at the theater, the general will speak to civilian personnel of the technical services, excluding supervisory and key management staff.

On Saturday, Gen. Harrell will address employees of general and special staff sections, personnel from major subordinate units, excluding supervisory and key management staff, at Briant Wells Field House.

Personnel attending these addresses are asked to be seated in the theater by 11:30 a.m.

The schedule for addresses to Martin Army Hospital, Dental Service and Infantry School employees will be announced later, according to T. A. Barefoot, civilian personnel officer.

New Warehouse Scheduled Here

The Quartermaster Section of The Infantry Center is to be furnished with a new warehouse and cold storage facilities for perishable food.

Construction of the warehouse and installation of the equipment will be an addition to Bldgs. 98 and 99 on Upton Avenue.

The present cold storage warehouse, also on Upton Avenue and built in 1923, has become inadequate for service and will be torn down, according to officials.

The Williams Construction Company of Columbus, Ga., has been awarded the contract for the job at a cost of $257,780.

DR. MURRAY

2nd Career Is Started By Teacher

Dr. Wallace L. Murray of San Saba County, Tex., is beginning his second academic career as a visiting professor of history at the American University here after retiring from teaching almost three months ago.

Dr. Murray retired in June after 33 years at LaGrange College, LaGrange, Ga., where he had progressed from an instructor to head of the history department and finally to head of the division of social sciences during his last five years with the college.

He served two years with the Army in World War I, spending one year in France.

Upon his return to the U. S. he enrolled at North Texas State Teachers College for his B.A. and B.S. degrees. He went to the University of Texas for his M.A. in economics and history, and finally to the University of North Carolina where he earned his PhD in Modern European History.

In addition to his former studies at LaGrange, Dr. Murray is no stranger to Columbus and the Fort Benning area. He taught for the University of Georgia several quarters in its extension center and for one quarter at Fort Benning.

During World War II, Dr. Murray served as an economic analyst with the National War Labor Board.

He is also past post commander of the Baxter L. Schaub Post, American Legion; past state chairman of the Americanism Committee, American Legion of Georgia; a member of the American Academy of Political and Social Science; and Kiwanis International.

Post Bank OKs Stock, Cash Extra

The shareholders of the National Bank of Fort Benning held a special shareholders' meeting on Nov. 10 to approve a stock dividend of one share for each 11 shares now held.

The dividend is payable after final approval of the comptroller of the currency on a date chosen by him.

Brig. Gen. (Ret.) M. B. Bell, chairman of the board, and William A. Lyman, president, announced that the board of directors of the bank have approved, in addition to the stock dividend, a cash dividend of 50 cents per share. The cash dividend was payable on Nov. 15 to shareholders of record on Nov. 1, 1962.

MOWW to Hear University Dean At Nov. 23 Meet

George C. Griffin, dean of students at the Georgia Institute of Technology, will be principal speaker at the Military Order of World Wars meeting at 7 p.m. Nov. 23 in the Supper Club of the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Originally scheduled for Nov. 15, the meeting will feature Ladies Night.

The session is scheduled to begin with a social hour, followed by dinner at 8 p.m.

Dean Griffin's topic will be "Leadership on the Modern College Campus."

Associated with teaching and coaching for over 40 years, he holds a B.S. degree in civil engineering and an M.S. degree in industrial management from Georgia Tech. He also has served as track and assistant football coach at Tech.

These positions were followed by placement officer, faculty member and associate dean of students. In 1946, he was appointed dean.

In 1955, Dean Griffin was selected by Georgia Tech as the recipient of the Alumni Distinguished Service Award.

U. S. Athletes Will Compete In '63 CISM

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The United States will enter teams or individuals in a dozen International Military Sports Council (CISM) championships in 1963.

The U. S. delegation to the 17th annual general assembly of CISM pledged entrants in skiing, cross-country, boxing, basketball, wrestling, track and field aerial pentathlon, fencing, military pentathlon, swimming, shooting and volleyball.

CISM member nations include France, Belgium, Denmark, The Netherlands, Argentina, Austria, Brazil, Ecuador, the Republic of Korea, Luxembourg, Norway, West Germany, Spain and the United States.

During the 1962 assembly at Washington an invitation was forwarded to Japan to join the group.

Gen. Harrell Lauds Post for CAA Giving

At the conclusion of the 1962 Community Activities Association Fund Drive, I wish to express my appreciation for the interest, enthusiasm and active participation displayed by Fort Benning personnel in this highly successful campaign.

The high percentage of individual participation and the over-subscription of the established goal reflect efficient planning and concerted effort by all concerned.

The support rendered by Fort Benning personnel is most gratifying. It clearly indicates that our people realize their moral and civic responsibilities in making our community a better place in which to live.

The Judge Says . . .

By Capt. Robert Poydasheff

If one is forced to borrow money, he is well advised to examine the loan provisions of his life insurance policy before contacting commercial lending agencies. Many insurance companies will grant a policy loan with a minimum of delay and at a nominal rate of interest.

Guaranteed cash surrender values accumulate in all life insurance policies except those providing for term insurance. This includes both National Service Life Insurance policies and those offered by the commercial insurance companies. This cash surrender value serves as collateral and security, against which the insurance company will lend money to the policy-holder.

Most companies will lend up to one hundred percent of the cash surrender value, however, a National Service Life Insurance policy-holder may borrow only up to 94 per cent. The rate of interest on policy loans is usually five percent; however, National Service Life Insurance policyholders may borrow at the rate of four percent.

That portion of the loan plus interest not reapid at the death of the policyholder will be subtracted from the amount payable at death. In like manner, any portion of the loan not repaid when the policyholder elects to cancel the policy will be deducted from the cash surrender value.

To illustrate the workings of the policy loan, we shall consider a $10,000 Ordinary Life plan taken out at age 20.

The cost of this coverage, as offered by leading companies, is about $155 per year. The cash surrender or loan values build up slowly during the early years of the contract so that at the end of the second year of payment the cash surrender value will be only $80 although $310 in premiums would have been paid.

At the end of five years, the cash surrender value has risen to $500 while the total premiums paid amount to $775. Some $1,160 may be borrowed on the policy at the end of ten years for a paid premium of $1,550.

After 20 years $2,530 will be available as a loan compared to the $3,100 paid as premiums. Thus we see that each year the cash surrender or loan value becomes greater as compared to the total premium paid.

In addition to guaranteed cash surrender or loan values, many companies return a portion of the premiums paid by the policyholders. These are called "dividends" and may either be left with the company to accumulate at compound interest or withdrawn.

If left with the company, they will be held separate from the guaranteed cash values. Before borrowing on the policy, it is well to check the dividend accumulation, for it may be sufficient to make borrowing unnecessary.

One should not borrow money from any source unless it is absolutely necessary, but if creditors are beating on the door or an emergency arises, the life insurance policy may be an excellent instrument for obtaining the necessary funds.

Unlike most lending agencies, most insurance companies do not add carrying charges, interest rates are comparatively low, no additional security is required, and the loan can be procured with a minimum of delay. Some policyholders have received their loans in a matter of hours and the time seldom runs beyond a week.

If you desire advice on a policy loan, either contact your insurance agent, the Post Insurance Office, or the Legal Assistance Office.

CHAPLAIN'S CORNER

The Meaning of Charity

By Chaplain 1st Lt. Harold A. Collins

Charity is a topic which we hear mentioned, which we seldom practice, and which we know little about.

How often this attitude toward charity is displayed "I have given to my favorite charity therefore I feel that I have dispensed my responsibility to charity." But have we really dispensed our responsibility? We are still our brother's keeper as implied in the Bible. As long as humanity exists, there will be people needing charity.

Must I dare suggest that one usually gives just enough that it will not hurt him, or that the individual will never miss the amount he has given. In this charity?

Jesus had a good way in measuring charity in his day. He was watching various ones giving their tithes into the treasury. He noticed how some of the Pharisees were giving large sums of money into the treasury. Then he saw a certain widow who gave two mites. This prompted him to make a statement—"She hath given more than they all". Now if Jesus was measuring charity on the basis of monetary value, we would have to call him a liar. For many had given larger sums of money than the widow. But he was not measuring charity on the basis of monetary value, but on true condition of the heart. This poor widow, out of the love of her heart gave all that she had. True charity demands the greatest amount of love that the human heart can release.

Therefore we can close by defining charity as love in action with the purpose of pleasing God and helping our fellowman.

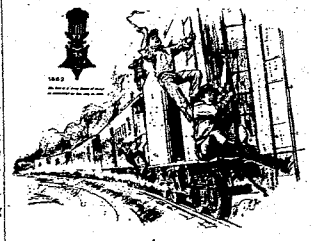
Why We Give Thanks: We're a Free People

Is there any American holiday quite like Thanksgiving as an expression of the way we live?



What are we thankful for? For our churches and temples where we can worship according to our conscience and convictions? For our schools and colleges and universities, for our newspapers and magainzes and books, our radio and television, our movies and theater?

Certainly. And thankful for the Constitution that guarantees them free expression of ideas and opinions.

Modern housing, sleek cars, television sets, a wonderland of household appliances and comforts — thankful for them? Sure thing. And for the free competitive society that puts them within our reach — not the resch of a ruling elite but of the average American.

Some people think we put too much emphasis on material blessings in our observance of Thanksgiving. Actually it is a curious fact that in 1621, when the Pilgrims celebrated their abundant harvest with their first Thanksgiving feast, they held no religious service — at least the official records of the period make no mention of one. Their second Thanksgiving two years later, however was religious as well as festive.

But on the matter of materialism — Americans really aren't guilty of overstressing this aspect of the fourth Thursday in November. They give thanks not alone for the good life but for the way of life — their free society — that makes it possible. And did you ever see a church empty of worshippers on Thanksgiving Day? (AFPS)

FIRST MEDALS OF HONOR . . . The first Medals of Honor awarded following enactment of the law which established the decoration went to 19 Union Army volunteers. The awardees were members of the Mitchell raiding party sent by Gen. Mitchell in April, 1862, to sabotage the vital Confederate rail link between Atlanta and Chattanooga. Disguised as civilians, the raiders captured the locomotive General at Big Shanty, Ga., 200 miles deep in enemy territory. Under close pursuit by the Confederates, the party fled north, attempting to burn bridges and destroy track along the way, but after 90 miles, the "Great Locomotive Chase" came to an end. In a few days, all of the raiders were captured and eight were tried and executed. On March 25, 1863, six of the party arrived in Washington after parole from a Confederate prison, and these six men were the first to be presented with Medals of Honor by Secretary of War Stanton. Medals were subsequently awarded to 13 other members of the raiding party, some posthumously.

Odd Requests Are Their Specialty

You Want 30 Live Hens? Try TIS's Logistical Unit

There was a scraping of chairs followed by a hushed silence as the assembled officers stood at attention for the entrance of the staff officer.

"Seats!" he barked and all pencils were poised to make permanent the "frag" warning order which would follow.

"We've got our work cut out for us. No slip-ups, no 'good tries.' Nothing but getting there 'fustest with the mostest' will be acceptable."

"Harry, Command and Staff Department will pitch 'Battle Group in the Attack' to Career Class Number One in the Old Hospital area all next week. Coordinate with Post Engineer's representative to insure janitorial services — and be sure we don't have any torn movie screens."

"The OCS graduation is going to need our three best sets of bleachers at The Infantryman Statue, Dick. Don't forget to have the flags cleaned and pressed at Quartermaster."

"Orient Five is firing the M-60 on Roosevelt Range, Tom. Have you received their request for 215 weapons? All right, good."

30 Live Chickens

"And finally," he said, turning to Malcolm, "Ranger Four is going to need about 30 live chickens for their patrolling problem Saturday. Also, expedite the repairs on Communications Department's lawnmower and get Harry half a dozen paint rollers for Theatre Eight."

"That wraps it up for now but keep loose. The situation can change at any moment." The chairs scraped again as the standing officers saluted in unison.

That the preceding narrative is highly overdramatic is granted. However, this is the story of the not - completely-routine business of procuring, providing, cleaning, repairing and storing the multitude of items needed to run The Infantry School.

Support for Infantry School instruction doesn't just appear at the right place at the right time. Instructors who need supplies and equipment must make their needs known; that's where the Logistical Section of the Operations Office comes into the picture.

Located in Building 1235 — next to the Infantry Museum —Maj. John F. Chambers, chief of Logistical Section, heads an operation that is authorized six officers, 163 enlisted men and 44 civilians.

Subordinate units within the section are Property Branch, under Capt. Thomas C. Lodge, 1st. Glen E. Cutting's Service Branch, and the Main Post and Harmony Church Weapons Pools, supervised by Capt. James J. Wallace and Lt. David Lowe, respectively.

Expedites Requests

Personnel of "Log" Section work closely with representatives of the Post Engineer, Ordnance, Quartermaster, Signal, Chemical and Transportation Sections. These ("technical services" are the Army's prime logistical movers. The Logistical Section actually serves to expedite Infantry School requests to those Infantry Center activities.

Most of the personnel in the section are supply clerks, construction helpers, and small arms repairmen. The enlisted men are assigned to G and F Companies, Infantry School Battalion, commanded by Capt. Keith West and Lt. John Squire, respectively.

One small group in the Operations Office whose efforts are essential to logistical activities is Capt. Benjamin Ranieri's Budget-Fiscal Section.

This element knows how much money the Infantry School requested for the year's operation, how much it was actually allotted, how much has been spent, and how much is earmarked for spending within the next few days or months. When Instructional Departments request any support, Maj. Chambers' office presents the project and its cost to Capt. Ranieri with the question, "Do we have enough money?"

Just as the section has a wide variety of interesting jobs to perform, it also has many interesting people assigned to perform them. For example, Pvt. Paul Horvat was born in Prague, Czechoslovakia. His family fled the country to Argentina in 1948. After being graduated from high school in Buenos Aires, he came to the United States. Now a small arms repairman at Harmony Church, he speaks Czech, Spanish and English fluently.

Sgt. Stephen C. Gover's last name is the first five letters of "Government." It was taken from a sign on the Pawnee-Skeedee Indian Reservation in Oklahoma which read "Government Property." The Pawnee Indian is a Supply Specialist assigned to Property Branch.

The Log Section's job is a big and far ranging one. If Rudyard Kipling's immortal waterboy, "Gunga Din," had ever been assigned to The Infantry School, he might well have found a slot in the Logistical Section, too.

Mrs. W. E. Lyon was welcomed back to the department as a guest. Mrs. Jackson then turned the program over to Mrs. Nett who introduced Mrs. Robert Whitehead who played the piano while Mrs. Hollis Lewis sang "The Lord's Prayer."

Mrs. Juanita Passarella, chief PBX of Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph, presented a program with illustrations and recordings entitled "Putting Your Best Voice Forward."

Small Arms Wives Host Luncheon

The ladies of the Weapons Department, The Infantry School, enjoyed a luncheon recently, in the Corrigedor Room of the Main Officer's Open Mess.

Hostesses for the occasion were the ladies of the Small Arms Committee under the direction of Mrs. Leon G. Simmons. Mrs. William W. Gray and Mrs. Elmer E. Watson were the chairmen for the decorating committee.

Guests included Mrs. Richard Taylor, Mr. Larry Fair and Mrs. Albert Brever. Mrs. Edwin W. Bunij and Mrs. William Cargo were welcomed as new members.

The Thanksgiving theme was beautifully carried out with individual place mats of autumn colors over white table cloths. Table decorations included cornucopias filled with fruit. Ceramic pheasant and quails completed the arrangement.

Bonelle Fabiani spoke on informal entertainment for the holidays. She also presented the ladies with favors.

Benningites Richard Hodges and Eddie Filipczuk proudly wore their jerseys Monday to tell the world that the Columbus High Blue Devils are the Bi-City Champions!

Baker had a joyous homecoming Friday night when they stomped Warner Robbins. The "Abstracts" played at the dance afterwards.

Pacelli's victory made the weekend complete, though many seniors were heard to remark: "Where did the season go? Our last football game!"

Eleven girls, from Columbus, Baker, and Pacelli have been initiated into Sigma Delta Beta Sorority of Fort Benning. Cheryl Ely, Liz Costigan, Ann Eckland, Susie Wells, Micki Scott, Lloyd Heflin, Linda Taft, Priscilla Moore, Kathy O'Donnell and Emily Heckin were the girls asked to join the club this fall.

Sunday, the sorority will honor the new members and their mothers with a tea at the home of Maj. and Mrs. L. G. Brickhouse.

Georganna Dillon, Nancy Williams and Lynn Kennedy are the Fort Benning girls who reported for practice for the annual CHS "Powder - Puff" game to be held Dec. 7.

This game is the only money-making project the senior class has during the year at Columbus.

The girls will be practicing for at least an hour everyday until the big night.

Georganna and Lynn are "Powders," while Nancy and another Williams girl (who has always wanted to be a halfback, but will wind up being a 'block') will represent the post as "Puffs."

Fort Benning will be losing one of its hardest working teens when Judy Goodman leaves the post later this month.

Judy, who has lived here since January, 1959, is a sophomore at CHS, where she has been a member of French Club, Pep Club and the Tri-Hi-Y.

She is the daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Thomas K. Goodman and has a brother, John, who is a junior at Arlington State College. The Goodmans have lived in Germany, Okla. and Texas (You can tell they're from Big D — where Judy was born on March 1, 1947.)

While at Benning, this active teenager has taken piano lessons and has been an ever-ready worker in the Junior Army Daughters of America. This summer, she worked at Martin Army Hospital as a Staff Aid.

Judy is a girl with a future and she knows she has to plan for it now: "After high school, I plan to attend college at Baylor University in Waco, Texas. I want to study medicine although I am not certain as to which field."

She is also a normal, fun-loving young lady who enjoys swimming and water - skiing, and collects stuffed animals and ceramics.

It's hard to say, but I have to say it: "Good-bye, Judy. It's been wonderful knowing you; may you have the best of everything in the future."

48 IOCC Wives Meet For Bridge

The women of the Infantry Officers Career Course No. 2 held a bridge party Nov. 6.

The hostesses for the evening were Mrs. J. G. Adams, Mrs. L. A. Bell, Mrs. T. T. Glidden, Mrs. Jim Hysinger, and Mrs. D. W. Patton. Refreshments were served to the 46 ladies attending.

Mrs. T. C. Brennard won high, Mrs. Jim Hysinger second, Mrs. B. M. Talbot third and Mrs. J. G. Adams low.

Dec. 4 will be the next monthly Bridge for the group.

Mrs. C. D. Bussey, Mrs. R. L. Feeney, Mrs. L. G. Gibbings, Mrs. J. D. Blanton and Mrs. P. A. Pryor were hostess for last month's bridge party attended by 40 ladies.

Mrs. M. J. Lally won high, Mrs. J. P. Snooks, second, Mrs. E. G. Schwoppe, third and Mrs. D. W. Bourland, low.

The chairman would like to thank all the ladies attending this function for their prompt attendence.

Children's Choir To Sing Sunday

The Fort Benning Children's Choir of 30 voices will sing at the 9:30 a.m. service Sunday at The Infantry Center Protestant Chapel.

The choir is open to military dependents from the fifth through the eighth grades.

Rehearsals are conducted at the chapel from 10 a.m. to 12 noon each Saturday.

Director of the choir is Miss Norma Dowling.

Fall Motif Sets Theme Of Dance

The ballroom dance class recently held its Harvest Moon Dance.

A traditional motif of autumn colors set the decorating theme. Pumpkins formed the centerpieces for the tables. Corn silk and stocks, plus scarecrows, added to the illusion of a festive fall gathering.

Harvest style refreshments were served to the dance class and their guests, Girl Scout Troop No. 138.

Various dances were performed by members of the class. Jim Garvin and Linda Davis did the Swing, a jitterbug type dance. Tedder Dickerson and Brenda Edwards did the Cha-Cha. The Sway, a Tango style dance, was done by Fred Garvin and Dawn Copple while Jessee Chambers and Caroline Early rendered a Tango.

The class meets for two hours every week, on Tuesday evening and Saturday morning.

Corregidor Room Site Of Coffee

Command and Staff Department held its monthly luncheon recently in the Corregidor Room of the Main Officers Open Mess. Hostesses were the ladies of the Company Tactics Committee, headed by Mrs. William I. Lynch.

Mrs. Edgar Egeland was chairman of the Decorating committee. Decorations included two golden cornucopia as the centerpiece for the head table and trailing ivy scattered with chrysanthemums and candle lit hurricane lamps. The colors on the tables added to the main feature of the affair, which was a program presented by Mrs. B. B. Hudson of a local firm, who spoke on "decorating problems."

Guests present were Mrs. John McClaren and Mrs. Ray Marlin. New members introduced were Mrs. William A. Mrs. Crews M. Blanc, Mrs. Maurice W. Kendall and Mrs. Luther Vaughn.

Special Subjects Dept. Wives Hold Meeting Recently

The Normandy Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess was the scene of a luncheon for the ladies of the Special Subjects Department, The Infantry School.

Hostesses were Mrs. Carroll D. Shealy, Mrs. Philip J. Clements and Mrs. Robert J. Whitehead. They chose autumn colors of gold, brown and wheat for decorations and table appointments carrying out the Thanksgiving theme.

Mrs. William H. Birdsong Jr., wife of Col. Birdsong, presided over a brief business meeting and welcomed a new arrival, Mrs. Warren J. McDonald.

Cub Scouts Presented Promotions

Cub Scout Pack 37, of Wilbur Elementary School, recently held its monthly meeting in the school auditorium. Leading the pack through their opening ceremonies was CWO John H. King, 138th Transportation Detachment, Lawson Army Aviation Command.

CWO King presented a group of cubs with eagle feathers which represents their attaining the rank of "Bobcat".

They were: Chip Steele, Bill Barbare, David Taylor, David Bremby and Drew Forshaye.

Also in line for "promotions" were: Chester King, Edward Kelly, and Mike Booth. They received medals signifying their attainment of the rank of "Lion".

The parents of each boy had the honor of making the official presentation.

Medical Wives Hold Monthly Meet

The Fort Benning Medical Services Wives Club's monthly meeting was held at the Custer Terrace Officers' Club recently.

The hostesses were medical services corps wives, with Mrs. Howard M. Scroggs, chairman and Mrs. Edward R. Youngs, Mrs. Michael J. Pavlo and Mrs. Frank E. Blakely, co-chairmen.

Thanksgiving was the decorating motif for the tables. The head table held an apothecary scale weighted by grapes flanked by heavy brass candelabra. Cornucopias, pumpkins, corn, squash, fruits and nuts entwined with ivy vine was placed down the center of each table representing our overflowing supply of blessings.

Mrs. George Schonaltz, presided over the meeting and introduced the following newcomers: Mrs. C. J. Faulk, Mrs. George Reswick, Mrs. E. S. Forrester, Mrs. Harold Abrams, Mrs. Richard Dorr, Mrs. John D. Loefler, Mrs. William C. Tubbs and Mrs. John C. Mitchell.

Guests introduced were: Mrs. A. W. David, guest of Mrs. George Kimita, Mrs. Harry D. Bishop, guest of Mrs. J. E. Yarbrough and Mrs. William Parker, guest of Mrs. Henry J. Redd, Jr.

Goodbyes were said to Mrs. Harold Evans and Mrs. Albert G. Hennessey.

Mrs. Louis Dubilier, program chairman, introduced Capt. Robert S. Poydasheff, executive officer, Office of the Staff Judge Advocate, who presented an informative talk on legal problems relating to the wives of service personnel.

The December luncheon will be hosted by the wives of Obstetrics - Gynecology, Urology and Preventative Medicine.

Tile Cleaning

When the grout or mortar around the tiles in your bathroom becomes discolored, fill an empty plastic catsup or mustard squeeze container with one-half chlorine bleach and one-half water. Run the container along the grout lines and allow to remain approximately fifteen minutes. Rinse away with clear water.

Skilled EM Give Nature a Boost in MAH Brace Shop

By Ida C. Evans

The Brace Shop at Martin Army Hospital is more than a place where cold, hard steel is combined with leather or fabric according to an impersonal diagram.

It is a place where gentle but firm hands of highly skilled enlisted men translate a doctor's wish into reality — a wish to make a patient stronger, more comfortable and more useful.

The patient may be a baby who needs a device to aid proper growth and development. Perhaps it is a soldier who needs an adjustment on an artificial limb that has made it possible for him to remain on active duty since World War II.

Whoever the patient is, he and the doctor alike depend on the skill and ingenuity of the men in the Brace Shop when nature needs a helping hand.

Everything made in the shop is individualized. It is made from a handdrawn pattern designed in the shop according to a doctor's instructions and actual body measurements of the patient.

The shop supervisor is Sp5 Calvin L. Plumley. He received his initial training in brace work at Walter Reed Army Medical Center in Washington, D.C., and has had nine years experience in brace work.

Plumley has an experienced staff of three orthopedic brace specialists. They are Sp6 Joseph P. Mines, SFC Early E. Griffin and Sgt. Roland E. Alcott.

Brace making is something no man can learn in a few weeks nor months, according to SSgt. Joseph E. Walsh, noncommissioned officer-in-charge of orthopedic technicians at the hospital.

"No school can produce a skilled brace maker," he said. "A man who is mechanically inclined and interested in this type work can learn the basic skills necessary to working with metals, leather, felt, woven fabrics, foam rubber and plastics, either in a school or shop, but he becomes a brace maker through experience."

"A brace maker must know anatomy," the sergeant said. "He must know the functions of the various muscles and the location of major nerves and arteries."

Other skills the brace maker needs include reading and interpreting diagrams and charts, the operation of shoe repair equipment, making shoe corrections, rebuilding a shoe to which a brace will be attached and making plaster molds, Walsh continued.

"There are certain definite personal qualifications necessary in a good brace man," he said. "Tact and consideration for the patient are of the utmost importance."

Part of Patient

Walsh said a good brace maker does next work, keeping in mind that "the brace is to become a part of the patient's very being."

A phrase heard frequently in the Brace Shop is "the general cosmetic appearance" of a brace. It is the goal of the shop to make each brace something that will not only help the patient but contribute to his good grooming, Walsh added.

The Brace Shop processes from 300 to 350 orthopedic devices each month, Plumley said.

Lt. Col. Daniel Easton Stalker, chief of the hospital's Orthopedic Service, said wearing braces in some cases is temporary and in others, permanent.

"We brace to enable a patient to walk to prevent a deformity from developing, to avoid a recurrence of a disorder we have corrected, or to provide protection after surgery or injury," the doctor said.

A doctor prescribes the correction his patient needs and the technicians in the Brace Shop make it," he continued, "but it isn't as simple as it sounds. Providing the proper support for a particular case requires a lot of ingenuity. Each device is tailor made for the patient."

After a brace has been made and fitted in the shop, the patient is examined again by the doctor who may suggest some change.

The shop at Martin Hospital was established in 1949 by Col. John F. Blatt who was then chief of orthopedics at the old post hospital. The shop was housed in a wooden building, not equipped with a forge for welding metals.

When a brace technician was ready to weld a piece of metal, he had to take it to the hospital maintenance shop, according to Clarence A. Auger, a retired warrant officer.

Auger, who is administrative assistant to the hospital's Department of Surgery, said brace work on the post actually dates back to that maintenance shop where Sgt. Charlie Shaw, a medical repairman who retired 15 years ago, used to work with doctors in fitting splints and appliances as early as 1938.

Auger was in charge of the maintenance shop from 1938 to 1940.

Recalling the influx of orthopedic cases from overseas during World War II, Auger said most of the men were sent from here to Walter Reed where contracts were given out for braces to be made by civilian concerns.

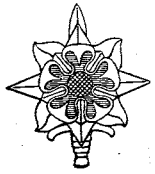
"After the Brace Shop was established in 1949, they still came to the maintenance shop to weld," Auger said. "This was a matter of safety. However, when Martin Army Hospitol was built in 1958, a complete forge with a hood was included in the Brace Shop in the basement of the building."

From these technicians at Fort Benning's hospital come a skill that aids many persons each year in leading a normal life.

A TRUE SPECIALIST . . . Sp5 Calvin L. Plumley, orthopedic brace specialist and supervisor of Martin Army Hospital Brace Shop, molds a leather "lacer" (legging) to be attacbed to a long leg brace for a patient who has a bone disease. The lacer is molded over a cast of the patient's leg to insure fit.

Army Branch Is Assigned New Insigne

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Department of the Army has established colors and an insigne for the newly formed Intelligence and Security Branch.



Oriental blue and silver gray were selected as the organization's primary and secondary colors.

The design incorporates an heraldic sun in gold charged with a blue rose superimposed on a dagger. The sun, composed of four straight and four wavy rays, is the symbol of Helios, Greek god of the sun, who saw and heard everything. The straight rays also allude to the four points of the compass and the world-wide mission of the new Branch.

The placement of the rose—an ancient symbol of secrecy—refers to the operations of the Branch forbidding disclosures. The dagger alludes to the aggressive and the elements of physical danger inherent in the Branch's mission.

Gold signifies accomplishment and the dark blue of the rose indicates vigilance and loyalty.

The insigne will be worn by all personnel in the Intelligence and Security Branch, active Army and Reserve.

Army Education Level Reaches All-Time Record High

FORT MONROE, Va.—General educational accomplishments of soldiers in the United States Continental Army Command are at an all-time high, the headquarters has reported.

In commenting on these accomplishments, CONARC chief, Gen. Herbert B. Powell, stated in part, "This educational trend is one of the most favorable things we have . . . today's soldiers comprise an educated army — better than we have ever had before."

The largest command in the Army, CONARC has some 500,000 active duty personnel distributed throughout more than 70 installations in the six continental U. S. Armies and the Military District of Washington. In carrying out its responsibilities for educational development of all soldiers within the 48 contiguous states, the command maintains 95 education centers staffed with 136 directors and advisers.

Statistical Report

CONARC educational authorities recently released a statistical report which tells a story of achievement in every area of the educational development program.

Highlighting the accomplishments was the fact that a whopping 23,884 soldiers — predominantly noncommissioned officers and specialists — earned high school diplomas and certificates. College degrees were earned by 617 officers and 40 enlisted men — an overall increase of 9.6 per cent over baccalaureate degrees awarded the preceding year.

Completing their first year of college were 3,681 officers and enlisted men, while 667 officers completed the second year of college. College courses satisfactorily completed totaled 48,512.

Achievements of all CONARC's six Army areas and the Military District of Washington were satisfactory with 342,477 units and courses completed in all program areas, officials announced. Course completions exceeded programmed objectives by 11.7 per cent—an 8.4 per cent increase over completions of the preceding fiscal year.

Cricks Not Factor

Total accomplishments exceeded those of any previous and corresponding period, despite the turblence of the August - December period last year.

The favorable trend is attributed largely to the personal interest taken in the program by Gen. Powell in encouraging greater educational opportunities for the soldier. The energetic four-star boss of CONARC has been a frequent and outspoken advocate of educational advancement and improvement for all ranks.

His interest has been emphatically demonstrated in guidance to field commanders, from whom it has passed to installations. Gen. Powell cited "the increasing need for greater educational achievement by Army personnel" and stated that all active duty personnel should be given "added encouragement to develop educationally to their maximum potential."

Increased and meaningful command support at each echelon, maintenance of adequate facilities to support educational activities, capable and understanding guidance, and payment by the Army of an adequate portion of tuition costs were cited by General Powell as factors needed for a strong-er program.

Such command thinking is reflected in the generally high educational level of soldiers today. Nearly 70 per cent of the Army's officers hold college degrees (many of them graduate degrees) with 86.2 per cent having completed two or more years of college.

Among enlisted men, 82.2 per cent of NCOs and specialists are high school graduates or higher. Ninety-eight per cent in the lower three enlisted grades have successfully completed eight or more school years.

Soldiers completed 22.1 per cent more preparatory and preparatory - high school courses during the last fiscal year than in Fiscal Year 1961, and 9.1 per cent more courses related to their Military Occupation Specialties (MOS). Percentage gains were also registered in completions of high school and college courses through correspondence study. Nearly eight per cent more persons completed college General Education-al Development tests than in the previous year.

The rise in MOS-related and preparatory - high school program areas demonstrates that commanders continued to use these activities in preparing soldiers for service school instruction, enlisted evaluation testing, and in support of unit and on-the-job training.

CONARC officials feel that education plays an essential role in the professional development of the career soldier.

Expressing optimism about the favorable trends continuing, officials stated that college-area achievements are expected to rise because of an increase in tuition assistance from $7.50 to $13.50 per semester hour.

Freedom is a continuing challenge for each new generation of Americans. Let's help meet that challenge of tomorrow with purchases of U.S. Savings Bonds today!

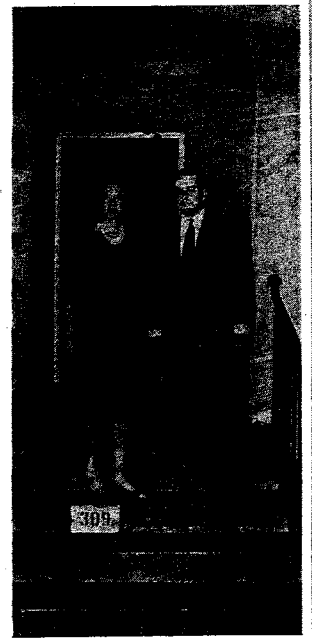
British Liaison Officer to Depart

McLarens Are Avid Grid Fans

Lt. Col. John S. McLaren, British liaison officer to Fort Benning departs the post this weekend after two years of duty here.

The colonel and his wife, Mary, will return to England for about three months before going to the Aden Protectorate where he will command the Training Battalion of the Federal Arabian Army.



Col. and Mrs. McLaren, preparing for their departure, said:

"Two years ago we arrived at Fort Benning, and from the first, we felt very much at home and amongst friends. The continuous kindness and hospitality are impossible to repay, and we would like to take this opportunity to thank all of you who have made our tour of duty here such a happy one. Wherever it has been —the Post Exchange, library, garages, cleaners, Post Office, in fact, everywhere throughout the post —your helpfulness and cooperation have been overwhelming.

"We shall never forget our two years at Fort Benning and as it is quite impossible to see you all personally to say goodbye, we hope this message will reach you one and all.

"The very best of luck to everyone."

An avid fan of American football, Col. McLaren had the opportunity to try his hand at the game during the recent Tri-partite Conference as ranking representatives from the United States, Canada and Great Britain observed.

In the top photo, the colonel (76) smashes through for yardage as blocking "happened" to be perfect.

Law Diploma Goal of JAG Excess Leave

Regular Army Officers now serving in the grade of lieutenant or captain may apply for the Judge Advocate General's Excess Leave Program.

The purpose of this program is to secure a law school education with a view to ultimate commission in the Judge Advocate General's Corps.

The program is authorized by AR 601-114 and allows those qualified to be granted excess leave for up to three and one-half years for the purpose of attending law school.

While attending law school, the excess leave will be counted for the purpose of promotion and longevity as well as retirement credit. The officer involved will be able to continue to take advantage of post exchange, commissary and medical care privileges.

For more information concerning this program, contact the Office of the Staff Judge Advocate (545-4423).

Army Reenlistments Due 'Major Changes' Jan. 1

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — In a move almost overlooked during the Cuban crisis, the Army announced major changes in the reenlistment rights of its career soldiers. It also placed a limitation on the draftee that equalizes his position compared to the Regular Army enlistee.

The new regulations are scheduled to go into effect Jan. 1, 1963.

Three of the new policies apply only to those enlisted men with four or more years service for pay purposes.

First, a soldier must reenlist to fill his own vacancy within 24 hours after discharge.

Second, a soldier placed on overseas orders whose ETS is due before the completion of a full tour, must either extend or write a letter of intention to reenlist.

Third, each soldier must serve the full overseas tour. He cannot take a discharge, come home and then reenlist unless he has completed his tour.

ABDOMINAL TENDERNESS

By Dr. R. P. Spillane

Was the paramount symptom in this patient's back condition. Oh! There was a dull noticeable ache in the back — but the abdominal area was so tender to the touch, patient felt there must be something wrong with the internal organs. After much time and a multitude of various examinations; patient tried Chiropractic.

Examination of reflex and pain pattern points, indicated existing nerve pressure, due to misaligned vertebrae in spine. The nerves, of course, radiated from spine around into the abdominal area. This accounted for the patient's pain and confusion. Chiropractic treatment enabled the patient's condition to clear up with a general improvement in health. Consult your doctor of Chiropractic now.

Former Aide Receives ACM

The aide-de-camp to the former division commander, Maj. Gen. Charles H. Chase, received the Army Commendation Medal recently for "the meritorious manner in which he performed his duty as aide-de camp to the commanding general."

Capt. Ishmael Pack, who is now assigned to G-3, served as Gen. Chase's aide from August 10, 1961, to September 25, 1962.

Throughout this entire period Capt. Pack was not only the division commander's senior aide, but also his sole aide, since the division commander elected to use but one of the two aides authorized by division Table of Organization and Equipment.

His duties called for a mass of official coordination with the major unit commanders and with the division staff, in addition to constant personal as-

Staff Plans Amphibious Instruction

By George Aubin

In continuation of specialized training in the 2nd Division, a special amphibious staff planning course will be held beginning Monday at Kelley Hill. Only selected men of division units will attend.

The men will be chosen by their commanders and must be experienced in normal land warfare staff planning procedures and the current tables of organization of the Army Division.

Training Team

The course will be taught by a mobile training team from Little Creek, Va., which is composed of 12 officers and 12 enlisted men of the Navy and Marine Corps and is headed by a Marine Corps colonel. Classes will be held beginning Monday and lasting through December 8.

The purpose of the course is to provide battle group and supporting arms staff personnel instruction and practical application in the principles, techniques, and coordination required in planning for amphibious operations.

The men will attend classes five hours a day for 15 training days. The course itself is composed of three phases. All

Division Sends an Honor Guard Company, Band for Columbus Veterans Day Parade

By Colin Higgins

Dressed in their "Army Green" uniforms and carrying M-1 rifles at right shoulder arms, members of the 2nd Division paraded in downtown Columbus Monday as part of the ceremonies held in commemoration of Veterans Day.

The troops marched down 13th St. to Broadway, passed a reviewing stand at Broadway and 12th and continued down Broadway to 9th St.

On the reviewing stand were Brig. Gen. Charles Billingslea, division commander, and Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center and commandant of The Infantry School.

The reviewing officers watched as the elements of the 2nd Division, along with units from The Infantry Center and representatives of local veterans organizations, passed in review. The elements of the 2nd Division comprised three platoons of the 26th Infantry, along with the 2nd Division Band and division colors. The honor guard company was

OFFICE OF THE COMMANDING GENERAL
FORT BENNING, GEORGIA

TO: Members of the 2d Infantry Division and their Families

As we prepare to observe Thanksgiving Day 1962, I extend my best wishes to all members of the 2d Infantry Division and their families.

This Thanksgiving Day comes at a time when our liberty and the freedom of mankind is facing a severe test. Let us, who stand between the forces of communism and the safety of the free world, be truly thankful and resolute that our sacrifices will preserve for future generations, the freedom of the world.

I urge each of you to pause on this day and take stock of your blessings and be thankful that you are able to enjoy them freely under our American way of life.

Thanksgiving Will Be Festive This Year for the 2nd

Thanksgiving, a day that conjures up turkey and cranberries, pilgrims and indians, feasting on the autumn leaves, and an American family attending the church of their choice thanking their God for the blessings of the past year, will be celebrated next week in the 2nd Division.

Next Thursday, November 22, the festive Thanksgiving spirit will again be celebrated throughout the division with all the accumulated tradition.

At most mess halls there will be two sittings for the noon day meal. The first will be for the troops, the second for families and invited guests of the unit.

The families of division members will also be especially welcomed at the Service Clubs on both Kelley Hill and Sand Hill where a special Thanksgiving program of entertainment has been arranged.

Special church services for both Protestants and Catholics will be held at the 2nd Division Chapels. On Kelley Hill Chaplain (Maj.) Hugh C. Keown will hold Catholic mass at 9:30 a.m. and later at 10:30 a.m. Chaplain (Capt.) Lee A. Smith will hold Protestant services.

On Sand Hill Chaplain (Capt.) Robert C. Harlee will hold Protestant services at 10:30 a.m. at Chapel Four. Catholic services on Sand Hill will be at Chapel Two at 11 a.m. by Chaplain (Lt.) Besil A. personnel will attend all phases of the instruction.

Phase One will last 15 hours. After a general introduction, the men will be given those selected background subjects which affect planning at battle group landing team and reinforced division level.

Upon completion of the 15 hours, the men will go into Phase Two of the instruction. During Phase Two, the men will be broken up into specific groups and given concurrent, separate sub - courses. Those separate subjects to be taken up are Intelligence, Operations, Logistics, Supporting Arms, and Communications. This instruction will last for 22 hours.

The last and longest part of the course is Phase Three, the Battle Group Landing Team Organization. A total of 37 hours will be spent on this subject. The men will be taught the preparation of operation plans for the amphibious landing of a battle group landing team on a separate mission. Emphasis will be placed on student application in the preparation of staff estimates, the operation and administrative plans and appropriate annexes.

Although quotas have been predetermined as to how many men can be sent to the course, anyone who would like to attend one or more specific classes should get in touch with the G-3 section and make arrangements to do so.

In the field he accompanied Gen. Chase on exercises at Fort McClellan, Ala., Fort Stewart, Ga., Elgin Air Force Base, Fla., Chattahoochee National Forest, Ga., Little Creek, Va., and the Carolina maneuver area.

His citation for the Army Commendation Medal read "His meritorious service reflected great credit on himself, on the 2d Infantry Division and on the United States Army."

The medal was presented to Capt. Pack by the division commander, Brig. Gen. Charles Billingslea in his office. Also present at the ceremony were the assistant division commander, Brig. Gen. Stanley L. Harding, the chief of staff, Col. Louis A. Kunzig, the adjutant general, Maj. Daniel L. French, and Gen. Billingslea's aide, Capt. Harold C. Lyon.

Capt. Pack is married to the former Anna Medley. They have three boys, John, 12, Roger, 10, and Charles, 3.

Medal Awarded for Work On Dutch Missile System

By 7th Infantry PIO

An Army Commendation Medal has been awarded to a 7th Infantry officer who was instrumental in the successful introduction of the first surface-to-surface missile system in the Royal Netherlands Army.

Lt. Col. Darrell B. Hartman, executive officer of the 7th Infantry, recently was awarded the medal in a ceremony held at the unit's headquarters.

Presenting the award was Lt. Col. William D. Preston, deputy battle group commander.

The Commendation Medal reads, "for meritorious service as Training Officer Army Section, Military Assistance Advisory Group, Netherlands, United States European Command, during the period July 1959 to August 1962." It went on to say that Col. Hartman, monitored the highly successful introduction of the first surface to surface missile system in the Royal Netherlands Army."

the indominable will of the infantry and a selfless devotion to duty, you have fully justified the trust and confidence placed in you."

After the dedication of the colors, the "Conquerors" marched by the reviewing stand filled with 87th Infantry guests.

On the Job Since August

General Harding Choses Aide

By DivArty PIO

It was during Exercise SWIFT STRIKE II in August that the Aide-de-Camp for Brig. Gen. Stanley L. Harding, 2nd Division Artillery commander, was given a "trial run" preparing him to be the general's aide; but with the general's recent promotion, it became official.

When the long list of nominees had been reduced to three officers, the then Col. Harding was to make his choice. He was acquainted with two of the officers, but one — Lt. Francis J. Pomper — was unknown to him.

Notified to Report

After the colonel had seen the list, Lt. Pomper was notified by Brigade Headquarters that he was to report the next morning with all his equipment to Division Artillery Headquarters. Col. Harding had decided that to become acquainted with Lt. Pomper he wanted him to act as his aide during the SWIFT STRIKE II maneuver.

Lt. Pomper, originally from Clifton, N. J., received his commission on June 19, 1960. After attending the Officer Orientation Course at Fort Sill, Okla., for two months in the Summer of 1961, the lieutenant came to the 2nd Division.

His first assignment here was as the assistant executive officer of Battery B, 27th Artillery. After that he had the same assignment in Battery A of the 27th.

When the SWIFT STRIKE maneuver ended, Lt. Pomper once again was called to Division Artillery Headquarters. This time, he was asked if he would like to be the aide-de-camp upon the promotion of Col. Harding to brigadier general. His affirmative answer resulted in his being transferred to Division Artillery Headquarters on Aug. 20.

Lt. Pomper, who received a Letter of Commendation for his participation in Operation Clean - Sweep at Blairsville, Ga., holds a Bachelor of Science degree in business administration from Seton Hall University, South Orange, N. J. He majored in accounting, with minors in English and philosophy, and is a graduate of the Reserve Officer Training Corps. Before entering active service, he worked as a junior accountant working toward his C.P.A.

Re-Ups to Extend Career Begun in German Army

A squad leader in the 7th Cavalry's Troop B has reenlisted for an additional six years of active duty.

SSgt. Stanley Roszack, a native of Frankfurt, Germany, adds six years to an Army career which began in 1952 under the provisions of the Lodge Alien Enlistment Act.

Entering the German Army in 1944, Sgt. Roszack served as an anti-aircraft gun helper until the end of the war. He resumed his military career in 1952, this time with the U.S. Army; taking advantage of the Lodge Alien Enlistment Act, providing for a five year tour in the U. S. Army for a foreign-born to obtain U. S. citizenship.

Basic Training for this sergeant was conducted at Fort Dix, N. J., during which time he was named "Outstanding Soldier" of his class. He stayed on as an instructor at Fort Dix after basic training.

Sgt. Roszack has served as a qualified German Language interpreter at the Psychological Warfare Unit at Fort Bragg, N. C.

Prior to coming to the 7th Cavalry his previous assignments were with the 371st Armored Infantry Battalion, the 20th Armored Division and the 2nd Battle Group, 4th Cavalry.

In 1961, Sgt. Roszack was a member of the 20th Infantry Division Rifle Team. He is currently an infantry squad leader of the 3rd platoon, Troop B, 7th Cavalry.

German Records and Textbooks Pile Up for Language Instruction

BY 23RD INFANTRY PIO

Arriving at the 23rd Infantry Headquarters last week were several large boxes containing phonograph records and textbooks. Both records and books make up lesson plans in spoken German for the "We Servers" before they depart for Bamberg, Germany, next February as part of "Rotaplan."

The lessons, designed to give the average person a vocabulary of about 600 words, are to be scheduled through 20 one-hour class periods between now and the scheduled departure date for the 23rd.

At Education Center

The course itself was obtained from the Sand Hill Education Center, and is one of the courses offered by the United States Armed Forces Institute. Like the 23rd, the 38th Infantry, already in Germany for six months, included the course in its preparation for the overseas tour.

The course is designed as a 'general introduction to the German language. It contains all the essential grammatical cabulary is built around a number of the most useful common situations and current topics. It is based on the principal that one must hear a language if spoken, and that one must practice it in order to master its sounds and forms.

After having completed the course, it is anticipated that substantial steps will have been taken to break the "language barrier" before the 23rd Infantry arrives at its German any destination.

More EM Here For Rotation

By 23rd Infantry PIO

More enlisted strength for the 23rd Infantry, scheduled for a six-month tour in Bamberg, Germany, next month as part of "Rotaplan", arrived last Sunday in the form of 90 privates from the Replacement Section.

Further information reveals that all but six of the new arrivals have just completed advanced individual training at Fort Gordon, Ga., and hold military occupation specialities of 111 or 112. The remaining six are 120's, having just completed the engineering school at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo.

Added to the total influx of new personnel arriving in the battle group since October 1, this latest gain brings the total to near 150 new enlisted men.

Capt. Robert Clarke

Captain Clarke Promoted Upon Return From Miss.

By 9th Infantry PIO

Capt. Robert L. Clarke, commander of Company B, 9th Infantry, who recently returned with his company from Oxford, Miss., was promoted to his present rank recently in a ceremony at the office of Col. Clifford P. Hannum, 9th Infantry commander.

Present at the ceremony were Col. Hannum, Lt. Col. Donald T. Paul, deputy commander of the battle group; Lt. Col. James M. Halpin, executive officer; Maj. Robert H. Hight, adjutant, Maj. Wendell F. De La Mare, S-3 officer; and Maj. Roy J. Herte and Maj. Charles W. Peer of the S-4 section.

The new silver bars were pinned on by Capt. Clarke's wife, Mrs. Nancy Clarke.

Capt. Clarke graduated from Marshall College, Huntington W. Va., in 1958 with a Bachelor of Arts degree in business administration. He was enrolled in the Reserve Officer Training Corps program at the college and is a distinguished military graduate.

Shortly after his graduation Capt. Clarke entered the Army as a second lieutenant. His first assignment was at The Infantry School, Fort Benning, where he took the Basic Officer Course and later completed the Ranger School.

In January 1959 he transferred to the 48th Artillery at Neckarsulm, Germany, where he served as security platoon leader until April 1962.

He came to the 2nd Division May 17, 1962 and was appointed commander of Company B shortly thereafter.

Capt. Clarke is a native of Welch, W. Va., and presently resides at Custer Terrace, Fort Benning with his wife and four children.

Chief Firer Of the 27th Is Promoted

By DivArty PIO

The chief of firing Battery B, 27th Artillery, who first arrived at Fort Benning in 1955, recently was promoted to sergeant first class.

SFC Nathan W. Burgess enlisted in the Army in February 1946 and went to Japan, where he remained until 1948. Returning to the United States, he joined the 58th Treadway Bridge Company, Engineers, at Ford Hood, Tex., and remained with that unit when they went to Korea.

The sergeant was retrained for artillery in 1955 at Main Post's 23rd Artillery. He attended the Chief Firing Battery Course there, and at various times was section chief for the 8-inch gun, and the 75, 105 and 155 milimeter howitzers. In 1958, Sgt. Burgess was shipped to the 3rd Armor Division, Germany, where he was chief of a 105 millimeter howitzer section. In 1961 he joined the 2nd Division's 27th Artillery.

New Quarter-Tons Are at 9th; Transfer Nears End

By 9th Infantry PIO

With the arrival of 58 new M151 quarter-ton vehicles, the 9th Infantry recently became the first 2nd Division unit to replace its now obsolete M38A1 "Jeeps" with the new type.

So far all quarter-ton vehicles at the 9th have been replaced except two which are specially adapted for use by the Davy Crocket section of Combat Support Company and six which are used by the battle group medical section.

Same Boxy

The new vehicles, which were designed and manufactured by the Ford Motor Company under government contract, have generally the same boxy appearance of the older type; however, there is considerable differance, the main features being that the new vehicles are 327 pounds lighter and present a lower silhouette.

The first experimenial model of the M151 was developed in 1959, and production began in 1960. United States Army units received a few of the vehicles in late 1960; however, a number of changes have been made since then.

The M38A1 was manufactured by the Willys Division of the Studebaker - Packard Corporation. This and previous models have remained faithful to the Department of Defense as economical and durable workhorses for more than 20 years.

Like the M38A1, the new M151 is designed as a general purpose personnel or cargo type carrier for use over all types of roads as well as cross-country terrain. It will ford hard bottom streams to a depth of 21 inches and with special adaptation equipment may be driven through water up to the driver's neck.

The engine of the M151 is 71 horsepower, the same as that of the old engine; however, the new engine has overhead valves and an electric fuel pump.

In Transmission

Another significant differance is in the transmission. A four-speed syncro-mesh transmission with transfer case transmits power to all four wheels. Noticeably absent is the high-low range selector common to the "Jeep," which is accounted for by a four-speed transmission.

The M38A1 had only a three-speed transmission but could be put into low range for extra heavy loads.

In the new shifting pattern the reverse position is in the upper right hand corner, and the lowest of the four forward speeds is in the upper left. The other shifting lever positions are similar to those of the "Jeep".

All four wheels have individual suspension utilizing coil springs. Said one driver, "It drives and rides like a car."

The body and frame are integral with all welded construction. Space is provided for radios, equipment, and four men including the driver. The body can be enclosed with a removable canvas top, side curtains, and doors, and the windshield can be folded forward to produce a lower silouette.

The cruising range, which is increased by the lightness of the vehicle and economic qualities of the new engine is 300 miles.

First's Choice Is Company B Machine Gunner

By 1st Infantry PIO

A machine gunner this week earned the title of 1st Infantry Soldier-of-the - Month for November.

Thanksgiving Decorations Highlight Ladies Luncheon

The Ladies of the Big Indianhead held their November luncheon last Thursday afternoon at the Sand Hill Noncommissioned Officers' Open Mess.

The luncheon, which featured a Thanksgiving theme, was hosted by Mrs. Wayne Cliff and Mrs. Thomas Hovatter, assisted by Mrs. Lawrie Rentrop, Mrs. Gardell Kaney, Mrs. Billy McDonald, and Mrs. Leroy Vollmer.

Wax figures of symbols of Thanksgiving were used along the tables to carry out the Thanksgiving motif.

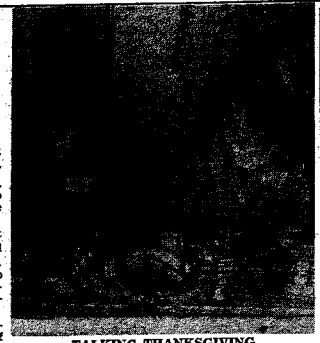
Mrs. James A. Scott, the Club President, began the proceedings by welcoming the new members. They are Mesdames Alvin Craft, Thomas Mingey, Joseph Rodzen, James Tolbert, Charles Major, Walter Jones, and Catherine Staton.

She then introduced Mrs. Melos Baity, from Louisiana, who is visiting her daughter, Mrs. James Speer. Other guests introduced were Mesdames Warren A. Adams, Jerry Anderson, Robert Crable, and Ruth Martina.

Mrs. Scott also presented her mother, Mrs. Helen Ritter of Munich, Germany. Mrs. Ritter has been visiting with the Scotts and plans to return to her home in Germany soon.

Bingo was played under the supervision of Mrs. William McKinney and Mrs. Robert Knowles. Mesdames LeRoy Arnold, Billie Nowell, Patrick Diener, Charlie Cranford, Melvin Hanson, Eubert Linthicum and Leroy Vollmer were the winners.

A turkey for her Thanksgiving dinner was won as a door prize by Mrs. Patrick Diener. Mrs. Charles Major also received a door prize of a cookie jar.



The entertainment chairman, Mrs. LeRoy Arnold, announced that the next dinner dance to be held by The Ladies of The Big Indianhead will be on Saturday, November 17, beginning at 6:30 p.m. Dinner will be served at 7:30 p.m. This dinner dance is free to members of the Ladies of The Big Indianhead and their sponsors. Reservations should be made with Mrs. Arnold, telephone 544-3119, no later than Friday, November 16.

Mrs. Scott reminded members that the business meeting will be Thursday, November 15, at 1 p.m. at the Club House. All members were urged to come and take part in the club's activities.

The president also noted that the Christmas Luncheon will be on Thursday, December 13. Members are reminded to bring a gift costing approximately one dollar to this luncheon.

The Ladies of the Big Indianhead sponsor a number of social events, as well as welfare activities. All ladies whose noncommissioned officer sponsors are in the 2nd Division are eligible to join. Those ladies whose sponsors are not in the 2nd Division, including those whose sponsors are either overseas, retired, or deceased, can join the club as associate members.

Any ladies desiring further information about the Ladies of the Big Indianhead are invited to call Mrs. James Scott, MU 7-0696, or Mrs. Warren Freeman, 544-3227.

87th Welcomes Ladies of 26th

A welcoming coffee for the ladies of the 26th Infantry was held last Friday in the Girl Scout's "Little Hut" by the officers' wives of the 87th Infantry.

The morning's festivities were staged in a setting of Harvest Time decorations. Serving tables were covered with vibrant green table linens and decorated with mums, leaves, and berries. The main centerpiece consisted of Autumn foliage arranged in a set of tall brass scales. Refreshments were offered to the guests from silver serving pieces and two hollowed pumpkins containing a melon compote.

All guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. Ralph Hughett, wife of Col. Hughett, commander of the 87th Infantry. The guest list included Mesdames Charles Billingslea, Stanley Harding, Arlin Kehe, John Corley, and Louis Kunzig, each of whom received a corsage of Autumn flowers.

Coffee was served to all by Mesdames William A. Patrick, Gilbert Ellis, Herbert Sink, Lee Smith, Raymond Murphrey, and Albert F. Coost.

Div. Trains Ladies Hold Fall Coffee

The ladies of Division Trains were feted this past week with a coffee held in the home of Mrs. John F. Staples. The hostesses were the ladies of 13th Transportation. This event will be held monthly in Mrs. Staples' home.

The serving table featured a centerpiece of green and yellow gourds highlighted by the use of red and yellow leaves. The arrangement was displayed on a silver tray. From this scene Mrs. Staples poured coffee for the guests.

New arrivals welcomed to Division Trains were Mesdames Robert B. Zion, Headquarters; Noel McLaughlin, 702nd Ordnance; and Herschel H. Duren, 13th Transportation. A guest of the coffee was Mrs. Walter Marshale.

This month the ladies of 13th Transportation will also hostess the Division Trains Bridge Club. This is a new facet of the ladies' functions and is planned to be held in the homes.

Farewell Bid To Petorocks

A "Farewell" party was held by the officers and ladies of the 122nd Signal Battalion recently in the Lounge of the Supper Club.

The occasion was the departure of Maj. and Mrs. John J. Petorock upon his retirement from active duty.

Maj. Petorock was presented an engraved pen set, cigarette lighter and a mug as gifts from the battalion by Lt. Col. Gus H. Grisard.

New arrivals to the unit were welcomed by Col. Grisard. They were Capt. Anthony Suso and Lt. Harold Kannan.

Guests included Col. and Mrs. Brapton Small and Mrs. Joe T. Ely.

Mrs. John Petorock was also honored recently with a farewell coffee held in the home of Mrs. Gus Grisard, wife of Lt. Col. Grisard, commander of the 122nd Signal Battalion. Mrs. Grisard hostessed the event.

A floral arrangement of yellow gladioli and mums decorated the serving table which was covered with a white linen cloth.

Ladies of 69th Feted Recently

Mrs. Dan McCall and Mrs. Robert Smith were co-hostesses recently for a coffee given for the ladies of 69th Armor. The monthly event was held in the home of Mrs. McCall.

Appropriate Autumn refreshments were served from a table decorated with a beige tablecloth and highlighted by a basket centerpiece filled with hawthorne berries and branches.

Sergeant's Impulse Gets Top Prize at Craft Shop

A 23rd Infantry soldier took first prize, a check for $25, in the Arts and Crafts Display Competition sponsored by the Main Post Crafts Shop last Sunday.

The contest was held in the crafts shop, with the competitors displaying their handiwork on tables. The judging was based on craftsmanship and appearance.

SSgt. Kenneth F. Huffman, of the 23rd's Combat Support Company, entered his radio control model of the aircraft carrier "The Enterprise," on a sudden impulse. He reports that all during the building process, working both at the crafts shop and at home for a period of about five months, he was only building it for his two young boys.

SSgt. Huffman is no stranger to the crafts shop, having made a number of woodwork articles, including a stereo outfit for his home. He thoroughly endorses the crafts shop as a constructive and rewarding way to pass one's time.

In Their European Training

Weather Conditions Played Important Role

BY 26TH INFANTRY PIO

The 26th Infantry Blue Spaders, having recently returned from assignment with the 8th Infantry Division in Germany, have buckled down to adapting themselves to the climate change and primary training requisites that are a part of Fort Benning and the 2nd Infantry Division.

While in Europe, the 26th Infantry was assigned to the Seventh U. S. Army, the United States' part of the NATO team in Central Europe. The very nature of the weather and terrain conditions there made certain training imperative. For instance, the cold weather that is predominant for the greater part of the year makes it important to learn cold weather survival; and the fact that a good deal of the German countryside is spotted with small towns and villages makes it a necessity for the combat ready soldier to learn house-to-house fighting techniques.

'Not The Best'

The need to move over great distances on roads that are conservatively called "not the best" requires the use of tracked vehicles such as the M-113 Armored Personnel Carrier, which was part of the battle group's equipment.

Spader soldiers have become experts at these skills. The names WINTERSHIELD II, MAIN BARGE, WIND DRIFT, and BAYONET BLUE may not mean much in the U. S., but to a member of the 26th Infantry, each of these exercises represents a test of all his skills. During their three years in Europe, the Blue Spaders have participated in over 20 major exercises ranging from division level tests to vast operations such as WINTERSHIELD II which included thousands of men, and NATO exercises in which troops of many countries participate.

In addition to the major exercises, the 26th Infantry has served both as aggressor forces against fellow units and as friendly forces on other exercises and training tests, all the while keeping their battle group training at a high level.

To awaken at 2 a.m., travel 200 miles to the border area, and participate in a practice training mission in the same day is nothing extraordinary to a Blue Spader. Dangers incurred in his everyday routine ranged from the constant threat of possible enemy attack to the dangers of frostbite and trenchfoot.

Here in the 2nd Division they are faced with a new challenge. Gone is the cold weather, and the personnel carriers. What remains of the old ways is the indomitable spirit of the Spader soldier.

9th Grinds Out Win Over DivArty

Quarterbacks Sparkle As Flag Football Opens

By George Anhin

The powerful 9th Infantry ground out a 7-6 win over the determined but outmanned DivArty squad last Friday night at Bennett Field.

Despite the closeness of the score, the 9th was way ahead in the statistics. The "Manchu Men," using a balanced attack, tore through the middle of the DivArty line for repeated gains and when the middle became bunched, took to the air. The 9th threatened several times in the first half, but failed to score as a game DivArty team held each time.

All of the scoring took place in the fourth quarter and both scores came as the result of passes. The 9th scored first on a 7-yard pass over the middle and added the extra point. Resurging DivArty then scored the daylights out of the "Manchu Men" as they scored on a spectacular 35-yard pass play down the middle. The all-important try for the extra point was no good as the 9th linemen put on the rush, forcing the DivArty quarterback to unload quickly and miss his target.

The game started with the 9th winning the toss and choosing to receive. On the ensuing kickoff, the 9th was dropped for little gain.

Running from the T, the 9th had trouble getting untangled. On the first play of the game, a lineman jumped offside. With 25 yards to go for a first down, Allen Carlisle, the 9th quarterback, threw an 8-yards pass over the middle. On a razzle dazzle double reverse, a handoff was fumbled and the 9th lost two yards. DivArty held, and the 9th was forced to punt.

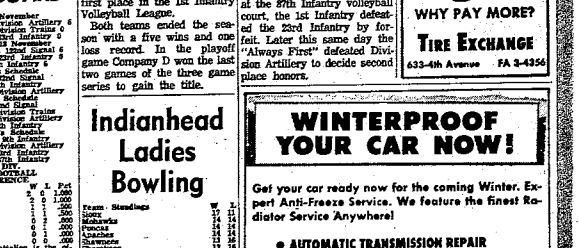
DivArty took the ball and started out as if they were going all the way. They got six yards on a reverse, one yard off tackle, six yards up the middle, and three yards up the middle again for the first down of the game. The attack bogged down and on fourth down, DivArty chose to go for the first down. Donn Yoder, DivArty quarterback, fired a long pass to William Wiggins which was knocked out of his grasp by an alert 9th defender. The 9th took over on downs.

Under the direction of Carlisle, the "Manchu Men" came to life. His short quick passes over the middle picked the DivArty secondary apart. The 9th's Maulers made a great one-hand catch of a Carlisle pass for the first down. Several more completed short passes left the 9th short of a first down. On fourth down, Carlisle brought his team out in the shotgun and threw a six yard pass which fell short of the first down and DivArty took over.

DivArty failed to move on the ground and took to the airways. A long pass from Yoder was picked off by the 9th's Ernest Hayes.

The half ended with the 9th in possession of the ball. Score 0-0.

Second Half



The second half opened with the 9th recovering as onsides kick. However, the "Manchu Men" failed to move the ball and DivArty took over. Yoder wasted no time as he unlimbered with a 30-yard pass to Wiggins which went to the 9th's 20. Again DivArty's attack sputtered and stalled as the 9th held and took over on downs. Neither team could mount a sustained attack as the game went into the final quarter with the score still 0-0.

The 9th was forced to kick and the ball went out of bounds on DivArty's 20. Here, the "Manchu Men" got a "big break as Johnson literally stole the ball out of a surprised DivArty halfback's hands. Two plays later, Carlisle fired a pass over the middle to Andrew Brown for the score. Robert Bates scored the extra point which later proved to be the margin of victory for the 9th.

DivArty came storming back and the 9th had to fight for its life. Yoder filled the sky with passes as DivArty struggled to get back into the game. His first pass fell short, but his next one hit Wiggins for six yards. After another over - thrown pass, Yoder faded back and looked long downfield. Ignoring the onrushing 9th linemen, Yoder threw 35 - yards down the middle to Gerald Brown who went up between two 9th defenders to make a sensational one-hand catch for the touchdown. Now came the crucial try for the extra point. This time the 9th linemen would not be denied as they forced Yoder to underthrow his target.

DivArty kicked off to the 9th who took the ball and ran out the clock.

FINAL SCORE: 9th Infantry 7-DivArty 6

Play Closes For Season

After a lot of false starts and false finishes, the 2nd Division's volleyball season is all wrapped up.

The 22nd Infantry games which remained to be played have been concluded by the teams concerned as forfeits, and no change has been made in the top ranks by these games.

The 87th Infantry is still the number one team with an undefeated season. Although the second place is a tie between the 1st Infantry and Division Artillery, in a play-off for the next-to-best spot the "Always First" netters downed DivArty in three games, 15-9, 13-15, and 15-11.

The 23rd, back from Mississippi, was faced with five unplayed league games. Last Friday night, the 23rd forfeited a game each to Division Artillery and the 1st Infantry.

Here are the final standings:

Team	Won	Lost
87th Infantry	12	0
1st Infantry	9	3
Division Artillery	9	3
23rd Infantry	7	7

OUTDOOR OUTLOOK

By PFC Stephen O. Able

Deer Season 1962

As of this writing the deer kill on the reservation has reached 39 reported kills.

Saturday, Nov. 10 and Sunday, Nov. 11, accounted for more than half of this total. The rain and cold weather of last week, have improved the hunting conditions on post 100 per cent.

Perhaps the most interesting kill of the season was made by Mrs. Darlene Wallis, wife of Capt. Wallis of the Marksmanship Unit. On her first time hunting Mrs. Wallis bagged an eight-point buck, weighing approximately 140 pounds, field dressed. This may act as an inducement to some of the people on post who have not hunted before to get out and try the sport.

Complying With Regulations

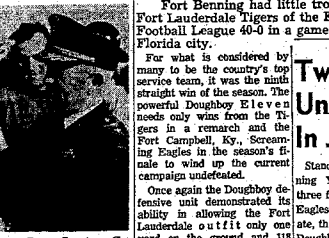
I would like again to urge each hunter to check and comply with all garrison regulations on hunting. Recently the MP range guard has repeatedly warned hunters of several violations of regulations.

While hunting during deer season you must wear either red or yellow headgear. All weapons used for hunting on the reservation, must be registered with the Provost Marshal. This includes weapons not kept on post.

Each hunter is urged to check The Infantry Center pamphlet dated Aug. 23, 1962, entitled Hunting Seasons and Bag Limits for 1962-63. This pamplet may be obtained at the Fort Benning Fish and Game Headquarters, Bldg. 4050, Harmony Church.

Fishing Around Post

The past week was an exceptional week for fishing on post. Weems Pond yielded one of the largest catches on post since last fall. Between the hours of 9 a.m. and 6 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 11, SFC Fred C. Snyder, Company G, Infantry School Battalion, landed 21 bass. Sgt. Snyder, who is probably one of the most ardent fishermen on the post, says this was one of the busiest afternoons spent on a pond in all his days fishing. Of course the creel limit for bass on post is 10, so the 10 bass Sgt. Snyder kept weighed 24½ pounds.



The largest fish caught on post the past week was a 6¾ pound lunker, landed in Harps pond, Sunday by Sp4 Walter Hammond, Hdqs. Co. 2nd Engineer.

Sportsmanship

Monday, while driving along 1st Division Road, Between Red Diamond Road and Hourglass Road, I came upon a sight which turned my stomach, as it would any person who loves hunting.

I saw lying in the road six squirrels, not in one pile, but spread along the road from 100 to 200 yards apart. All of these squirrels had been shot and casually tossed out of a moving car, or appeared that way. This is the most unsportsmanlike display I have ever had occasion to witness anywhere. The unwarranted killing of game just for the sake of killing, is the greatest waste of natural resources. Persons killing just for the sake of killing in my estimation should lose their hunting privileges for life.

SPORTS

COACH NOW A MAJOR . . . Capt. Leaton C. Cofield, head coach of the Fort Benning Doughboys, is shown at his recent promotion to the rank of major. Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell presents the gold leaf to Maj. Cofield. Maj. Cofield is in his second year as head coach and has led the team to the best season on record, currently enjoying a 9 and 0 mark. Maj. Cofield enjoys the distinction of coaching the No. 1 service team in the nation.

Shough's Sports Scope

By Pete Shough

Alabama's strong bid to be named number one in the country became a reality this week after their lopsided victory over the Miami Hurricanes last Saturday.

The Crimson Tide was given the nod over Southern California by the slim margin of 10 points, but the nation's sports writers backed the Tide by giving them 22 first place votes.

Last Saturday's victory showed many fans and sports writers alike that Alabama is definitely the team to beat in the nation today. Many fans, including myself, believed that Alabama's fine defensive football would shatter when they were opposed by the passing genius of George Mira. But the Tide reacted to the situation by showing equal talents that many did not know existed.

Now, the Crimson Tide occupies the top slot, and by all indications they will hold on it for the remainder of the year. Georgia Tech and Auburn are the only threats to Alabama's second perfect season in two years. This, by the way, is the first time the trick could be turned in the Southeastern Conference since the Tennessee Volunteers did it back in 1938 and 39.

Auburn had the time of their lives overcoming a 3-0 deficit against little Mississippi State. It seems something has happened to the fine Tiger spirit that carried the area eleven over some fine SEC opponents in the early stages of the season.

Auburn is going to have to throw some logs on the fire to beat an up-and-down Georgia Bulldog team.

The Big Ten saw another day of upsets as Purdue downed Michigan State and Wisconsin topped Northwestern. With Minnesota chalking up another victory over Iowa, picking the Big Ten champ and Rose Bowl representative becomes more difficult. Four teams in the North's top conference are tied for first and all four are crying for a Rose Bowl berth.

One thing is settled, Southern Cal will be the Big Five Conference's entry to the grand-daddy of bowl games.

Tomorrow is another football Saturday and again it is time to pick some winners. After last week's poor showing, I am hesitant to make an attempt, but here goes.

Alabama over Georgia Tech — Last week taught me a lesson, I'll stick with the Tide for the rest of season.

Auburn over Georgia — The Bulldogs just don't have it but it won't be an easy victory for the Tigers. Georgia is hungry for a victory.

Minnesota over Purdue — The Gophers are dreaming of roses but so is Purdue so it could go either way.

Florida State over Florida — Georgia Tech saw what FSU had and now they would like to forget it. Florida will be surprised too.

Tibbetts Passes Fiery Doughboys To Ninth Victory

Fort Benning had little trouble in taming the Fort Lauderdale Tigers of the Florida Professional Football League 40-0 in a game last Sunday in the Florida city.

For what is considered by many to be the country's top service team, it was the ninth straight win of the season. The powerful Doughboy Eleven needs only wins from the Tigers in a rematch and the Fort Campbell, Ky., Screaming Eagles in the season's finale to wind up the current campaign undefeated.

Once again the Doughboy defensive unit demonstrated its ability in smothering the Fort Lauderdale outfit only one yard on the ground and 118 through the air.

The offensive unit of the Army machine ground out 131 yards on the ground and behind the arms of Marvin Tibbetts and DeWayne Jeter picked up 283 yards via aerials.

Tibbetts, former Georgia Tech signal caller, hit on three touchdown passes.

The Doughboys opened their scoring early, tallying twice in the first stanza. The first score came on a 35-yard pass play from Tibbetts to Ron Quillen.

Sam Stellatella then missed his first extra point of the season after kicking 20 straight, and the scoreboard read 6-0.

A little later in the same period Wallace Johnson banged in from the two-yard stripe for the second score. Stellatella then arched the ball between the uprights to make the score 13-0.

Jeter opened the second quarter with a 28-yard aerial to the Tiger two, where Quillen went in on the next play for his second score of the game. Stellatella converted to make it 20-0.

Late in the second period Tibbetts launched a long aerial that Quillen hauled in as the two combined for a 55-yard touchdown play. Stellatella missed his second point of the game, leaving the score 26-0 at halftime.

Tibbetts came roaring back after the intermission to strike through the air again, hitting his favorite target, 2nd Lt. Fred Murphy, and the big end raced all the way to paydirt for a 57-yard touchdown. Stellatella booted the ball accurately and it was 33-0.

The last touchdown came in the final quarter as Bobby Towns ripped off tackle for four yards. Stellatella ended the scoring, booting his 24th extra point.

Fort Benning garnered 24 first downs while limiting the opposition to eight. Passing totals saw the Doughboys complete 12 of 23 with three interceptions. The Tigers hit nine of 25 with no thefts.

The all-winning Doughboys have an open date this weekend. The following Saturday (Nov. 24) they play a return match in Doughboy Stadium with the Tigers.

They will wrap up the season Dec. 1 in a home contest against the once-beaten Fort Campbell aggression.

Two Teams Undefeated In Jr. Play

Standings in the Fort Benning Youth Activities Club's three football leagues have the Eagles leading the Intermediate, the Packers in front of the Doughboys and the Browns ahead in the Biddy group in games played through Nov. 8.

The Eagles are the only undefeated team in the 13 to 15-year-old Intermediate League. They have a 5-0 record.

A similar record has been posted by the Browns in the group for children from the ages of 8 to 10. They have posted five consecutive victories in the Biddy League.

Despite a defeat and a tie, the four victories logged by the Packers of the Doughboy League are enough to hold them in first place. The 11 and 12-year-olds hold a slight margin over the second place Rams, who have three victories.

LES ELGART

Les Elgart Orchestra Concert Set

The nationally famous Les and Larry Elgart Orchestra will appear Dec. 3 at Theater 1 for two concert performances at 6:30 and 8:30 p.m.

The leaders of the orchestra, which is known as the "First Choice of Dancing America," are alumni of some of America's greatest dance bands, such as Harry James, Bunny Berrigan, Tommy Dorsey, Woody Herman and others.

The sound of the Elgart band is unmistakable. Larry leads a dynamic and colorful saxophone section, while brother Les leads a sharp and biting brass section which frequently features unison trombones.

In May of 1953, the band recorded the popular "Sophisticated Swing" dance album which became the best selling dance album in the industry.

Although primarily a dance band, the orchestra's arrangements are spiced with original musical and ear-arresting sounds that provide maximum listener interest as well.

They have been acclaimed the number one dance band by the National Ballroom Association poll, and recently won the number one spot in a poll conducted by the Associated Press.

Free Phone Calls Offered For Christmas

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—Service personnel the world over will be allotted free telephone calls home under a program jointly sponsored by the Communications Workers of America, AFL-CIO, and the United Service Organizations (USO).

These Christmas calls will be scheduled during the period of Dec. 1 through Jan. 5, 1963.

All USO staffs around the world have been briefed on the Christmas message program and military authorities are making efforts to insure that troops in remote areas not serviced by USO will have an equal chance to telephone home.

At the Movies

WHO'S GOT THE ACTION is a comedy starring Dean Martin and Lana Turner. Dean Martin and Lana Turner form an unbeatable entry in this fast-moving comedy about a well-to-do couple whose marriage is facing difficulties. The husband's attentions have switched from his beautiful wife to the Racing Form — with hilarious situations from starting post to the finish line.

WONDERFUL TO BE YOUNG is a bouncy musical starring Cliff Richard, Carole Gray and Robert Morley. Cliff Richards, the idol of millions of teenagers throughout the world, sings and dances through this lively, rollicking story of a young songster whose millionaire father tries to purchase an area of land housing a small youth club run by Cliff and his friends. How they thwart the land-grab provides a fast moving, hilarious climax.

KILL OR CURE stars Terry-Thomas and Eric Sykes in a mystery with comedy interlaced. A bungling private detective stumbles upon murder in wholesale lots at a healthcure resort. He suspects a number of the eccentric guests, is himself suspected of the crimes but is accidentally solving the murders while risking his own life.

Surgeon Says

Vision, Most Reliable of Senses, Can Deteriorate Without Warning

By 2nd Lt. William E. Oakley
Optometry Clinic, MAH

Vision is only one of your five senses, but you rely on it more than all the other senses together.

No other organ of the human body offers greater aid in aiding life to the years than the eye. It can deteriorate without notice, without pain and at any time. When the tang of seeing sharply is lost, you lose much that is vivid in experience.

Most vision problems are due to refractive errors or inability of the eyes to focus light rays in the proper way. Glasses are the most common remedy for these errors. By relieving strain and permitting the eyes to function normally, they serve to prevent a condition from growing worse.

Astigmatism is the most common refractive error. It is caused by a slight "warping" in one of the surfaces of the eye. Light rays do not focus at one point and images are blurred. Corners and curves in objects are indefinite. The astigmatism usually is different in kind and degree in the two eyes, but modern science can almost always correct the condition.

Farsightedness, or difficulty in focusing at close range, is another visual shortcoming of the refractive type. The farsighted individual is often one that spends a great deal of time outdoors and is used to looking at distant objects, or he may be the person past forty years of age. Lenses help him to focus at the desired near distance. His rigid posture while reading relaxes, too, when lenses make reading easier.

Nearsightedness, or myopia, a third visual problem of the refractive type, should be detected and treated early. The reason is that the nearsighted child, who has difficulty focusing on distant objects, will choose activities that can be performed within arm's length and avoid sports and outdoor activities where normal vision is necessary. He runs the danger of growing up as a one-sided personality unless his condition is corrected in time.

Strabismus is a Greek word meaning "squint" and describes what is commonly recognized as cross - eyedness. This is usually caused by unbalance in the eyes. The two eyes do not function as a matched team and the ability to see three dimensionally suffers. The child with strabismus will be handicapped in close precision work requiring binocular co-ordination of the two eyes.

Let us imagine the eye as a camera, and this camera focuses from distances of three inches to several miles. This camera can take clear pictures by the light of a match or adjust instantaneously to a very bright day. In addition, this camera can develop its own film at the same time it takes the picture. It turns automatically at any target it desires to see. And, of course, as would be true of any three-dimensional camera, it is twins.

Vision is in the brain. It is quite obvious that the camera which could do all this has not yet been devised. If your process of seeing were as simple as operating a camera, there would be little to it. The eye is attached onto a brain and without the attachment of the two, all seeing would be meaningless. The eyes take the pictures while the brain records what is being transmitted to it in the form of nerve impulses. The translation of these impulses into meaning is very complicated. There is a constant sorting, comparing, analyzing and interpreting of material.

There are many changes that take place in our vision as we grow older. The most common change noticed is an inability to focus on close work. This is technically known as presbyopia and practically no one passes 50 years of age without exhibiting some evidence of it.

Inside everyone's eye is a small transparent lens about the size of a pea. The purpose of this lens is to enable us to see clearly at all distances. This is accomplished by a constant activity of little muscles, which allow the lens to change shape and make a clear focus for us.

Around the age of 40, certain sclerotic changes begin to take place throughout the body. These changes manifest themselves most clearly in the blood vessels and in the lens of the eye. The lens becomes less elastic and is unable to change shape as it did in youth. The most common relief provided for presbyopia is reading glasses, bifocals or trifocals.

Some people have the belief that the use of the eyes wears them out. There is no scientific evidence whatsoever to support the belief that the use of healthy eyes under proper conditions will damage them in any way. In fact, one would wonder if just the opposite wouldn't be true in adults. Any function which is not used is soon lost or greatly reduced in efficiency. While we would never forget a skill like reading once it was thoroughly learned, we can lose speed of reading and comprehension very easily if we do not keep at it.

Proper periodic care of our vision becomes all the more necessary in this time of life.

Changes of vision take place so slowly that we scarcely realize it. A minor discomfort or nervousness at the time of reading, an inability to keep at close work, a gradual dislike of reading or lack of enjoyment which one used to have or even an inability to concentrate on written material may all be subtle symptoms of the need of a small lens change. We all know when we outgrow our glasses because we can no longer see fine print or thread a needle. Regular examinations and proper care are the only way efficient comfortable vision can be maintained.

Another reason for periodic eye examination is the higher incidence of eye disease with increasing age. Every complete eye examination includes a thorough inspection of the inside of the eye. The eye doctor can see the end of the optic nerve, check the retina of the eye, and even examine the condition of the blood vessels, which may be an early symptom of cataracts. Quite often diseases of the eye, such as cataracts, glaucoma, and retinal diseases, can be detected several years before the patient experiences any symptoms of trouble.

Valuable indications of general diseases can often be gained by an internal eye examination. Diabetes, high blood pressure, arteriosclerosis and brain tumors to name only a few, that show up in the eye oftentimes before the patient is aware of any general symptoms.

As you can see, this complex gift of vision is one of our most priceless possessions next to life itself. Many changes taking place in our vision seems to be a natural part of the aging process. Optical science has developed aids for most of these changes.

Col. Davies Lauds MAH Programs

Lt. Col. Elizabeth J. Davies, chief of the Physical Therapy Section of the Army Medical Specialist Corps, Washington, D.C., said during a recent visit here that physical therapy, occupational therapy and dietetics programs at Martin Army Hospital are "very impressive."

"I am deeply impressed with what I have seen here," the colonel said. "The physical therapy program and all Medical Specialist Corps activities at the hospital are a credit to the corps."

The local visit was part of a tour of the three installations which began in Washington Nov. 3 and will continue through Nov. 20, Col. Davies said.

After visiting the commander of Martin Hospital, Col. William A. Todd Jr., she toured hospital facilities and conferred with personnel working in the medical specialist fields of physical therapy, occupational therapy and dietetics.

Eight Post Personnel At Omaha U

Eight military men from Fort Benning have enrolled under the fall "Operation Bootstrap" program at the University of Omaha (Neb.).

They are Lt. Col. Lyman H. Clark, 1st Lt. Billy Whorton, Capt. Ralph Eggemaier, Capt. Robert E. Pavey, Capt. William F. Smith, Capt. Arnold Stallman and Dennis J. Harrison.

They are among 266 career military men and women enrolled under this program at the university.

The Bootstrappers began their OU "tour of duty" Sept. 7. Most will be candidates for degrees by March 15, 1963.

Airborne Seeks 105 From Post

A directive from Third U. S. Army Headquarters at Fort McPherson, Ga., has established the number of volunteers needed for airborne training during November for Third Army posts, including Fort Benning.

The Infantry Center's quota has been set at 75, while 30 volunteers are requested from the 2nd Infantry Division.

The establishment of the quota is necessary to meet the increased requirements of the airborne forces, officials stated.

Permanent personnel, as well as personnel in the Army training centers and recruiting service, are urged to volunteer for the three-week basic airborne course conducted at The Infantry School.

SOLDIER OF MONTH . . . PFC Meredith E. Roberts, Co. A, 1st Battalion, The Infantry Center Troop Command, was selected Soldier of the Month for October.

Ground Mobility Dept. Continues Expansion

The Ground Mobility Department of The Infantry School is continuing a program of expansion and development of instructional facilities which began with the acquisition of five additional buildings in the 4300 block on the post early in the fall, officials said.

Recent developments range from installation of late model training aid engines to painting and beautification of grounds, according to Lt. Col. Henry Kuchinski, chief of the Instructional Group of the department.

"The Engines Committee has installed six CI (compressed ignition, multifuel engines in the Advanced Engines Section," he said. "Four more of the versatile engines will be installed in the near future."

The CI engines will "run on almost anything," the colonel said. "Considered a major break through in the field of ground mobility means, the multifuel engine will operate on gasoline, diesel fuel, cleaning fluid or any combination of these and many other fuels. The Army has, however, developed a new CI fuel."

Instructors on the Engines Committee were trained in the theory, operations and maintenance of CI engines.

Another innovation is the installation of rear view projection screens in three of the classrooms, Col. Kuchinski continued.

Advantages of the screens are a clearer and bigger picture and a more flexible instructional technique, he said. The rear view screen also makes it unnecessary to darken a classroom when using a projector.

Improvements in welding facilities in the Running Gear Section of the Chassis Committee are under way.

Canvas curtains between welding "bays" will be replaced by partitions. The change provides more space for welding instruction and better ventilation, and will reduce distractions during instruction.

"A primary advantage of the more permanent welding bays," Col. Kuchinski said, "is a reduction in the danger of 'flash burn' sometimes resulting from reflection of the glow from electric welding by the walls and ceiling."

One bay has been completed and others are under construction, the colonel said.

The Running Gear Section has designed and constructed training aids to be used in instruction on the new M-151 quarter-ton truck.

The Vehicle Capabilities Committee has designed improved tie-down devices for rail loading of vehicles. The tie-downs, which are reusable devices, are included in instruction for all classes at the Ground Mobility Department.

The Vehicle Capabilities Committee recently has incorporated in its instructional program various counter-guerrilla subjects, including techniques for rapid recovery or destruction of vehicles, Col. Kuchinski said.

The Preventive Maintenance Committee, in conjunction with the department's Logistics Section, has completed renovation of Bldg. 4317 in Harmony Church.

The Track Q-Service Section of the committee is now using the building for quarterly maintenance of M-113 armored personnel carriers.

ENGINEER SOLDIERS

The 2nd Division's 2nd Engineer Battalion was first organized on August 3, 1861, from one existing company and three new companies of Engineer soldiers.

Dental Health Series

Cavities Still Appear After Constant Care

By Lt. Col. Hubert W. Merchant
Preventive Dentistry Officer

The other day a mother asked why her daughter had cavities every time she went to the dentist.

She said, "Doctor, I take my daughter to the dentist every six months and she always has new cavities. I've had the dentist give her fluoride treatments and she brushes her teeth twice a day every day. What can I do? I want to know."

This is not an unusual situation. It is quite typical of thousands of fine parents who try to give their children a good start on the road to dental health.

At first it would seem that the fluorides were not doing the job. This is partly true because this family lives near Fort Benning, but in a area where there are not adequate nutritional elements in the water to give maximum protection. Yes, nutritional elements, because this is what fluorine is in the amount of one part per million in the water supply.

The process of fluoridation is restoring to the water the amount of fluorine necessary for proper nutrition, like adding vitamins to bread or milk. So, you see, this girl is not getting enough protection in her teeth during their formation. She is getting some protection from the topical application of fluorides by the dentist, but in her case this is not enough. Let's see why.

Talking to one mother further, I found out more about her daughter's teeth and diet. She does brush after breakfast and after supper and this is good. But she doesn't brush after lunch and this is bad. This allows food particles to remain around the teeth for about five hours.

It only takes fifteen minutes for the bacteria to start acid formation here, and each day teeth are exposed to these acids for at least four hours and 45 minutes. Of course, there are some foods which form acids more readily than others, and it happens that these are the ones she likes.

I'm sure you know what they are. The pastries and sweet rolls, cupcakes and cakes are the things she eats at the school lunch room at noon.

What can be done about this? She could carry a folding toothbrush to school. This, I think, is not unreasonable. If this is not possible, she at least could and should rinse very thoroughly with water to remove as many food particles as possible and to dilute the sugars and wash them out.

Finally she should be cautioned about her diet. She should be told to finish the meal with an apple or an orange, if possible. If a child must eat pastries and candies and I know of no reason why they must as far as good nutrition is concerned, they should be followed by brushing or rinsing or by eating a detergent food such as a raw apple, raw carrots or celery.

You know, we eat our meals backwards as far as our teeth are concerned. The desserts should be eaten first so the other foods we eat can help to remove them and dilute them.

Unfortunately for their teeth, we have many children in the same situation. If your child is one these, help him or her to learn the rules of good oral health.

If you have questions about your dental and oral health which you would like answered in this column, address them to Preventive Dentistry Officer, Dental Section, USAIC, Fort Benning, Ga., or telephone 545-7741.

Allied Officers Learn Lingo in Modern Lab

"Dessert - desert - some-sun."

These are just a few of the sounds heard during an English language class for Allied officers at the Army Education Center here.

The officers, from points all over the globe, attend classes at the Education Center as part of a program of instruction for all Allied students on the post.

The Allied officers are either at Fort Benning for nine or five months of intensified command and staff training.

Students at the post for nine months attend The Infantry School's career classes, while those at the school for five months attend associate career courses.

Time in Lab

During the first week at The Infantry School, they spend part of the time in the language laboratory. This is a regular portion of the post orientation given to Allied officers at brigade and battalion staff levels.

These students spend their free on-duty time at the Education Center participating in classes. Free time for Allied officers is time when classified instruction is held for other students.

Approximately $15,000 worth of the most modern equipment for the study of English, French, German, Spanish and Russian is in the laboratory. There are between 5,000 and 7,000 laboratories such as the one at the Education Center scattered throughout the country.

Through the processes of electronic teaching, students listen to a record of a person speaking a language, then record their own voices and play them back.

The Education Center has not only increased emphasis in Allied officers, but also in such subjects as American history, government and geography.

The Allied officers studying English are under direction of William F. Freeman, an education adviser in the Coordinator of Instruction's Office.

He explains to the officers the proper use of such instruments as the tape recorder and microphone in practicing English.

The Allied officers receive an intensified course in English, along with various other subjects that will give them maximum information concerning the United States and how the American government functions.

Purpose of the English course is to give them increased confidence, and to help them to participate more freely in class discussions.

Courses in Spanish and German are offered Tuesdays from 7 to 9 p.m., classes alternating each hour. The Spanish courses are taught by Mrs. Mary Elizabeth George, while the German class is under the direction of Mrs. Eva Hunter.

Capt. A. T. Lindholm teaches Russian, which is offered from 7 to 9 p.m. Mondays and Wednesdays. Capt. Lindholm is a student at the Education Center and also a former instructor of Russian at the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y.

A French course is expected to begin in the near future.

"Now that we have a new and interesting way of learning foreign languages at the center, we hope we will continue to have more people participating in language studies," Freeman said.

Blankenship Sets New Pistol Mark

SFC William B. Blankenship, Marksmanship Training Unit, current national pistol champion, set a new national record in the .22 caliber rapid fire pistol event while participating in the Indoor Pistol Tournament held here last weekend.

Sgt. Blankenship fired a 200-19x's to break the old mark of 200-12. He also compiled an aggregate total of 883 out of a possible 900 to take the individual championship in the two-day tournament.

SFC Sam Hunter, MTU, took top honors in the Timed Fire Event with a 199 out of a possible 200 points while Capt. Clyde Metts, Third Army AMU, placed first in the National Match Course event with a 293 out of a possible 300.

The Army "Blue Team" composed of SFC Ralph O. Thompson, SFC Arthur Ogden, Blankenship, and Hunter captured the lone team event by compiling a team total of 1169 out of a possible 1200 points.

The Triumph TR-3 has been the most influential sports car of the past decade. It has taken home more silverware from more rallies than any other car — bar none. It is known in 87 countries as the best piece of machinery you can buy for under $3,000. It is America's most popular sports car. It even has a fan club with 10,000 members. Most interesting of all, the TR-3 is the car that proved to housewives, doctors, students, and 60,000 other Americans who never dreamed of owning a sports car, that sports cars are easy to handle, practical and fun.

LEBANESE 'EXPERT' RIFLEMAN . . . Capt. Raymond Zaatar (L) of the Lebanese Army, receives the Expert Rifle Badge from Col. Robin G. Montgomery (R), commanding officer of the Marksmanship Training Unit, while Capt. Buck L. Russell looks on. Capt. Russell served as coach for the Lebanese Officer during his three-week training course of rifle marksmanship. Capt. Zaatar qualified as an expert after only one week of practical experience with the M1 rifle. Upon his return to Lebanon, Capt. Zaatar will pass along to other Lebanese soldiers the many skills and techniques of rifle marksmanship that he acquired from the Marksmanship Training Unit. (Photo by Sp4 Halloe O. Robinson)

Lt. Col. Kelly New Deputy Chief of WAC

The Army has announced the appointment of Lt. Col. Mary Elizabeth Kelly to be deputy director of the Women's Army Corps, effective Jan. 3, 1963.

Col. Kelly will succeed Lt. Col. Lucille G. Odbert, who will retire from the Army in February.

Born in Des Moines, Iowa on May 15, 1914, Col. Kelly received her bachelor of arts degree in business administration Des Moines, and masters degre in business administration from the University of Maryland. She is also a graduate of the Army Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

Prior to entering the Army in January, 1943, she was an auditor with the Iowa Agricultural Conservation Commission in Des Moines.

Since July, 1960, Col. Kelly has been assigned to the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics, Department of the Army, in the Pentagon.

Post Safety Officials Ask Hunters To Observe Ten Rules in Hunting

The hunting season for certain game, notably deer and turkey, has opened and Fort Benning safety officials are expressing concern over a possible increase in hunting accidents.

Since the season will continue until as late as Feb. 28 in some instances and each year the number of hunters increases, Norman M. Evans, Infantry Center safety officer, stresses the need for individuals to familiarize themselves with certain common sense rules.

Evans has a list of 10 safety rules for good hunting distributed by the Third Army headquarters at Fort McPherson, Ga. They are available to anyone who desires a copy.

The copies are readily folded to wallet size and may be picked up at Bldg. 215.

Three of the rules are never shoot at objects indistinctly seen through trees or bushes, never lay a loaded gun down or in a car, and never lift a loaded gun by the barrel, either to carry it or pull it through a fence.

Also don't fire at game when there is a house, barn, road or person in the line of fire, or leave your gun or shells near a fire, fireplace or stove.

Things to do include keeping the safety lock on at all times except just before shooting, inspecting the gun before going hunting, and familiarizing yourself with the boundaries and landmarks of the area.

A most important thing not to do, according to Evans, is drink either before or during the time you are hunting.

"It makes no more sense to drink and hunt than does to drink and drive," Evans said.

A study of hunting accidents by the National Rifle Association conducted several years ago showed there were two major categories of mishaps, intentional discharge of firearms and accidental discharge.

The principal causes in the first category were the victim moved into the line of fire without warning, was shot by an excited hunter firing quickly at game, was not seen by the shooter, or was mistaken for game.

Causes in the accidental discharge category included the hunter stumbling or falling, the trigger catching in brush, the gun discharging while the hunter was climbing gates or brush, bumping or jolting gun during removal from vehicle or boat, the gun falling from an insecure rest, the gun discharging while the hunter crossed a fence carrying it with the muzzle toward him, carelessness, and lack of precaution during loading and unloading.

One way, Evans added, to avoid being mistaken for game is to wear brilliant red or orange jackets, or caps. These items are readily obtainable at any number of stores, or for military personnel at the Post Exchange.

Hunting on the reservation is restricted to military personnel assigned to or living on the post, their dependents, and members of the Fort Benning Fish and Game Association.

All guns brought onto the reservation must be registered with the Provost Marshal Section. Registered guns are checked for their mechanical safety, and guns without a safety lock will not be registered.

Daily permits, as well as state licenses, are required.

Information on bag limits, open areas and hours may be obtained from the Fish and Game Association in Bldg. 4050.

2 Amphibians Are Termed Radically New

FT. CUSTER, Mich. (AFPS) — The Marine Corps has demonstrated two radically new land and water vehicles it feels could play a major part in future amphibious warfare.

The two amphibians — a highspeed cargo carrier that can transport tons of supplies at 35 mph on land or water and a troop or weapons transport that will go literally "any place on earth" — were designed and built for the Marine Corps under research and development contracts with the Navy's Bureau of Ships.

The cargo - carrier, called LVW (landing vehicle, wheeled) is a large aluminum-hulled boat capable of speeds unprecedented for this type of craft. Weighing 14 tons unloaded, it can exceed 35 mph when water-borne, then can lower its wheels and move across a beach at similar speeds.

Earlier military cargo amphibians have a water speed of about 10 mph.

The 36 x 11 x 11-foot amphibian is powered by a 1,500-h.p. gas turbine engine and has a range of more than 180 miles on water.

The manned vehicle is a tracked amphibian called "Airoil I," equipped with 26 big flotation tires and designed to negotiate swampland, mud, tundra and deep snow as well as water. With a 1,000-pound payload it can move at 6½ mph on water or 25 mph on land.

The 16½-x8x8-foot Airoil has twin sets of 13 free-rolling tires mounted on chain systems resembling tank tracks. It has a range of 75 miles on land and 30 miles on water.

Sailor Claims Sit-Up Record; Does 4,001

SAN FRANCISCO (AFPS)—Sit-ups, anyone? An electrician's mate aboard the submarine USS Ronquil now being overhauled at the Naval Shipyard here, thinks he's established an unofficial all-Navy record — possibly all-service as well.

With officers and crew members looking on, 21-year-old Edward C. Jolly completed 4,001 sit-ups and added 65 push-ups for good measure. Time: three hours, one minute.

Jolly, who was taking his quarterly physical fitness test, was aiming at a 5,000 sit-ups goal. He was forced to stop because of a severe hip bruise and a blister that developed.

Previous sit - ups record, claimed by a Navy lieutenant, is 3,250 in two hours and 46 minutes.

Captain Takes Post With Jump School

Capt. Ronald E. Strauch has been named administrative officer of The Infantry School's Airborne - Air Mobility Department.

He succeeds 1st Lt. Harold J. Brand who has been assigned to the department's Basic Airborne Training Committee as an instructor.

Reservist, 70, Asks Activation Because of Cuba

MANCHESTER, N. H. (AFPS) — When the Cuban crisis alerted the Armed Forces, one Air Force Reservist who didn't want to be called up was Sgt. Roy H. Baxter of Alton, N. H.

A patriot and then some — for Sgt. Baxter, now 70, claims to be the oldest airman in the Regular Air Force or the active Reserve.

Assigned to the 9116th AF Reserve Recovery Sq. at Manchester's Grenier Field, Baxter is a veteran of WWII and Korea. He entered the Army Air Corps in 1942 at the age of 50, months after his son, Lt. Roy Baxter, was killed in the Pacific on a B-26 bombing mission.

Personnel Pause to Offer Thanks For the Heritage of A Free Nation

Holiday Banquet Consumed Here

Military personnel here and around the world paused Thursday to observe a holiday distinctly American . . . Thanksgiving Day.

The tradition of gathering each year to express gratitude to God for harvests and well-being which began over three centuries ago in Plymouth on Massachusetts Bay was carried on in troop mess halls as well as at the tables of the thousands of men with families here.

Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center and commandant of The Infantry School, and Brig. Gen. Royal Reynolds Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School, visited troop mess halls, as did Brig. Gen. Charles Billingslea, commanding general of the 2nd Infantry Division, and Brig. Gen. Stanley L. Harding, assistant division commander.

An estimated 90 tons of food were put away by troops in mess halls with Tom Turkey, monarch among birds each November, providing the main course.

More than 23,000 troops and guests converged on mess halls for one of the year's biggest dinners.

The Infantry Center Quartermaster Section provided 23,144 pounds of turkey and 7,256 pounds of dressing, 6,385 pounds of mashed potatoes, 5,798 pounds of candied sweet potatoes, 3,472 pounds of buttered peas, 56,000 rolls, 7,868 pounds of butter and 2,025 pounds of cranberry sauce.

Also on the menu was 3,472 pounds of shrimp cocktail sauce, crackers and assorted crisp relishes.

For dessert, the Quartermaster Section provided pumpkin and mincemeat pies made from 1,447 cans of pumpkin and 220 gallons of mincemeat. Topping the pies were 579 quarts of whipped cream.

Rounding out the menu were 13,020 pounds of assorted fruits, 1,736 pounds of candy and 434 gallons of mixed nuts.

Washing down these tons of solids were 1,680 gallons of coffee, 7,000 gallons of milk and 1,000 gallons of tea and juices.

In his Thanksgiving Day message to the nation, President John F. Kennedy said:

". . .It is fitting that we observe this year our own day of Thanksgiving. It is fitting that we give our thanks for the

Gen. Watson To Command Third Army

WASHINGTON — Maj. Gen. Albert Watson II, commander of U. S. forces in Berlin, will assume command of the Third U. S. Army in January, according to the Associated Press.

The assignment was announced Monday by President John F. Kennedy, AP reports.

The wire service also noted the President has approved a recess appointment of Gen. Watson to the rank of lieutenant general.

Current Third Army commander is Lt. Gen. T.J.H. Trapnell who is scheduled to retire soon. Gen. Trapnell was honored at farewell ceremonies at Fort Benning last week.

Gen. Watson has commanded U. S. forces in Berlin and served as U. S. representative in negotiations with Allied and Soviet commanders on problems arising in the divided city since May, 1961, AP noted.

Chief of Chaplains' Thanksgiving Message

"Thanksgiving is traditionally American. Over three hundred years ago the Pilgrim Fathers turned their backs on a world of entrenched selfishness to build a nation under God. They met on that first Thanksgiving Day to express their thanks to God for His many blessings. Their earnest and sincere efforts were based on a faith founded in the God of the universe. Thus, they reaped their reward which later resulted in a representative form of constitutional democracy, and brought us freedom. For these efforts we can be truly thankful.

"One of the finest features of Thanksgiving in this land is the privilege of living in a country where each individual may unite to share in the protection and defense of the American principle of life. Our way of living has more regard for the sanctity of the individual than any other system of government devised by the mind of man.

14,000 DUE PROMOTION

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Army will promote more than 14,000 enlisted men during its December go-around.

A break-down by grade shows 7,867 new stripes allotted to E-4; 4,187 to E-5; 484 to E-6; 309 to E-7; 670 to E-8 and 229 to E-9.

"As a people, we are rich in heritage. Our founding fathers were men of vision. They were individuals of tremendous faith. We are their descendants. May we now be like them in giving thanks. May we pattern our future after their vision. May we in possessing their intimate faith in God behold a vision more glorious.

"Surely we can with sincerity join the Psalmist in saying, 'O Give thanks unto the Lord; for He is good: For His mercy endureth forever!'" safety of our land, for the fertility of our harvests, for the strength of our liberties, for the health of our people. We do so in no spirit of self-righteousness. We recognize that we are the beneficiaries of the toil and devotion of our fathers and that we can pass their legacy on to our children only by equal toil and equal devotions. We recognize too that we live in a world of peril and change — and is so uncertain a time we are all the more grateful for the indestructible gifts of hope and love, which sustain us in adversity and inspire us to labor unceasingly for a more perfect community within this nation and around the earth.

". . .Let us renew the spirit of the Pilgrims at the first Thanksgiving, lonely in an inscrutable wilderness, facing the dark unknown with a faith borne of their dedication to God and a fortitude drawn from their sense that all men were brothers.

"Let us renew that spirit by offering our thanks for uncovenanted mercies, beyond our deserve or merit, and by resolving to meet the responsibilities placed upon us.

"Let us renew that spirit by sharing the abundance of this abroad. Let us renew that spirit by seeking always to establish larger communities of brotherhood.

"Let us renew that spirit by preparing our souls for the incertitudes ahead — by being always ready to confront crisis with steadfastness and achievement with grade and modesty.

"Let us renew that spirit by concerting our energy and our hope with men and women everywhere that the world may move more rapidly toward the time when Thanksgiving may be a day of universal celebration.

"Let us renew that spirit by expressing our acceptance of the limitations of human striving and by affirming our duty to strive nonetheless, as providence may direct us, toward a better world for all mankind. . ."

CG's Message

Gen. Harrell said in his message to all post personnel:

". . .I extend best wishes for an enjoyable Thanksgiving to all the military and civilian personnel of Fort Benning.

"While participating in the festivities of this occasion, let us be ever mindful of the true meaning of this day of thanks for our blessings. In the same spirit that prompted the Pilgrim Fathers to express their gratitude for a bountiful harvest after the rigors of that first winter in America, we must give thanks for the freedom and way of life that we enjoy in our great country today. Let us at the same time resolve to defend our blessings should it ever be necessary.

"Although many of us are unable to be with our families and loved ones, I hope that all will have an opportunity to participate in the traditional festivities of an American Thanksgiving."

Army's Strength Up in September

WASHINGTON (ANS)— The U. S. Army strength on September 30 was 962,712 as compared to the end of August figure of 961,020.

Strength of the Army on September 30, 1961 was 893,322.

Ceremonies Will Honor 17 Civilians

Seventeen post civilian employees will be honored for length of service to the government in ceremonies Monday at 2 p.m. at Service Club No. One.

Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center and commandant of The Infantry School, will officiate at the ceremony.

Five employees will be presented 40-year service emblems. They are Miss Mary E. Reynolds, chief of the Budget Review and Analysis Division of The Infantry Center Comptroller Section; William H. Lamb, a binder worker at the Army Field Printing Plant; John Kissel, supervisor-clerk at The Infantry School Department of Nonresident Instruction; John McCraine, a warehouseman in the Publications Branch, Administrative Center Adjutant General Section, and Nichols Scott, a laboratory porter at Martin Army Hospital.

Twelve employees who will receive 30-year emblems include Luther L. Nelson, warehouseman - foreman; Willis J. Fortson, a clothing and shoe fitter; Mrs. Indiana Nelson, laundry presser, all members of the Quartermaster Section.

Norman H. Hobbs, and Hoover H. Dees, signal warehousemen, and Andrew Barnes, engineer equipment handler, all of the Infantry Center Supply Control and Storage Section.

Crawford H. McIntruff, small arms repairer, and Bishop E. Horton, automotive mechanic, both members of the Ordnance Section.

Walter A. Williams, material classifier in the Supply Section; J a m e s Houston, school bus driver in the Transportation Section, James C. Colwell, an assistant foreman in the Engineer Section, and James A. Powell, a supervisor in the Visual Aids Section of the Infantry School Editorial and Pictorial Office.

Sp4 Capehart Is Engineer 'SOM'

The 151st Engineer Group Soldier of the Month for November is Sp4 George Capehart, an aviation mechanic for the group Air Section.

On Nov. 30, Sp4 Capehart will receive a $25 bond and be awarded a three-day pass from Col. Mahlon E. Gates, commander of the 151st, for his selection as "Soldier of the Month."

First Army Features Do-It-Yourself Lunch

GOVERNOR'S ISLAND, N. Y. (ANS) — The First U. S. Army Quartermaster Section demonstrated the latest "quick-serve," precooked, dehydrated combat ration at a luncheon for military and civilian food industry guests at Governors Island, N.Y.

Exactly as would be done by front-line troops, each guest, including the First Army Commanding Gen., Lt. Gen. Garrison H. Davidson, prepared a segment of the compactly-packaged meal.

The luncheon consisted of seven separate menus, whose main entrees included chicken and gravy; chili con carne with beans; beef in onion gravy with rice; spaghetti with meat and tomato sauce; swiss steak; sliced beef loaf with tomato gravy; and meatballs with brown gravy.

Six guests were assigned to each table, and provided with step-by step preparations instructions. As an example, menu number seven "at a" balls and brown gravy" instructed guest number one to do the following:

The quick-serve meal was designed for feeding isolated groups of soldiers under modern warfare conditions requiring mobility, speed, and dispersion. The ration is available in six-man packages of laminated foil disposable packages. It consists of individual meals, available in 21 separate menus which can be prepared without trained mess personnel. Each meal contains 1300 calories. Any three of the meals will provide the minimum daily requirement of 3600 calories.

Graveside Tradition To Continue

A tradition of 19 years will be continued here Saturday at Fort Benning when flowers will be placed on the grave of Lt. Osvaldo Marcado at the Fort Benning National Cemetery.

On Nov. 24, 1943, Lt. Marcado of Santurce, Puerto Rico, then a member of the U. S. Air Force, was killed in a plane crash near Del Rio, Tex.

His brother, U. S. Army Lt. Col. Luis Fernando Marcado was stationed here at the time. With the consent of his family and because of war conditions and the difficulty of getting transportation to Puerto Rico, the colonel requested his brother be buried here.

Mrs. Mario Marcado, Lt. Marcado's mother, wrote Puerto Rican chapter of the Red Cross requesting that flowers be placed on her 20-year-old son's grave at her expense.

Each year, since Nov. 1943, Mrs. Marcado has sent funds through the Puerto Rican Red Cross chapter to the Fort Benning chapter to purchase flowers to be placed on her son's grave.

Lessons of Past Valuable in Crisis

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Strength, determination and restraint are some of the qualities of the American veterans and those very qualities have been — and are—needed in the current crisis.

That was the theme of Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara's remarks at the Annual National Veterans Day Ceremony in Arlington National Cemetery here.

Regarding American determination, McNamara said:

"We know that a nuclear holocaust would be a disaster of unimaginable proportions, but we know also that unless we are prepared to place everything at risk, we cannot hope to save anything from disaster. We must be resolute enough to commit ourselves to the ultimate test, if our adversaries put us to that test."

Of "restraint," McNamara said, "Once we are prepared for a thermonuclear showdown, we can afford to use all our patience and all our ingenuity to avoid one — and we cannot afford to do otherwise. We must constrain ourselves to employ the least amount of force that is effective to determine the immediate issues between our adversaries and ourselves."

"Two world wars have taught us," he said, "that weakness, not strength, invites war in a world which is still only beginning to see the possibility of a rule of law. We must be strong enough to defend ourselves, with our allies, against any nation that would try our strength and the strength of the alliance."

McNamara recalled President Kennedy's words of one year ago when the President observed that, "There is no way to maintain the frontiers of freedom without cost and commitment and risk." The President added, "There is no swift and easy path to peace in our generation."

Secretary McNamara then noted that, "The hard truth of his (the President's) remarks has been demonstrated for all of us by the events of the last few weeks."

Explaining the lessons, McNamara first gave his views on "strength."

Engineer's New Exec Assigned

Maj. William O. Whittle has been assigned as the new executive officer of the 806th Engineer Battalion, succeeding Capt. Alexander W. David. Capt. David has been reassigned to the Fort Benning Post Engineer Section.

Maj. Whittle entered the service in May 1943 and received his commission in November, 1950.

During World War II he served in Europe and the Pacific as an enlisted man.

Prior to being assigned to the 806th Engineer Battalion, Maj. Whittle was with the 12th Engineer Battalion in Korea.

Maj. Whittle's wife, Betty, daughter, Peggey, and son William, reside at Treasure Island, Fla.

Performance Needed To Secure Freedom

This is an era of challenge. The individual American is challenged daily by the demands of his occupation; his family; by the advances of technology. As a Nation, we face challenges, too — brought about by opposing forms of government; by the emergence of new nations; by aggressive acts; by the elusive nature of peace. The Armed Forces, as the nation's instrument for achieving peace, are faced with the particular challenge of being instantly ready for warfare, regardless of its nature — sublimited, limited, or general.

The challenge to the Army is that of "top performance" at all times, and the one word which encompasses all of the qualities associated with this performance is "professionalism." Today, an Army — Active, National Guard, and Army Reserve — of professionals is indispensable to our national security and to world peace.

The qualities denoting "professionalism" are many. They are found in a versatile and dedicated officer corps, a dependable and seasoned non-commissioned officer corps, and in career and citizen-soldiers of high caliber. Improved physical, mental, and moral standards are producing a quality soldier who is physically fit, technically qualified, skilled in leadership, and who can — and does — serve as teacher, bumanitarian, linguist, and diplomat in far-flung cold war posts, in addition to his major task of being ready for the tough, demanding battles traditionally required of him.

The Army places a premium on the qualities of professionalism not only to the degree they exist today, but to ensure their continued and fullest development. These words of Army Chief of Staff, Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, are especially appropriate:

"True professionalism demands that we send constantly for new concepts in organizing, equipping and employing ground combat and supporting forces; that we challenge and be ready to discard old ways if better ones are developed. Initiative, combined with clear thinking, is the fountainhead of progress, as well as of economy, efficiency, and flexibility. The mark of the professional soldier of our Army must be a constant reaching out toward the future, initiating as well as anticipating military developments. It is equally important that these efforts be based upon thorough analysis and grounded in a sound professional background."

Professionalism, in the final analysis, is that Army characteristic which, for over a century and a half, has enabled it to guard successfully this Nation's hallowed traditions of liberty and freedom, of right and justice, and which places it today in the front line of American strength.

CHAPLAIN'S CORNER

Our Thanksgiving

CHAPLAIN (Capt.) JAMES F. BRAY

Thanksgiving is distinctly an American holiday. There is no day exactly like it anywhere else in the world. The American Thanksgiving Day is the expression of a deep feeling of gratitude by our people for the rich productivity of the land, a memorial of the dangers and hardships through which we have safely passed, and a fitting recognition of all that God in His goodness has bestowed upon us.

In early New England it was the custom at Thanksgiving time to place five grains of corn at every plate as a reminder of those stern days during that first winter when food was so scarce that the Pilgrims rationed only five grains of corn to an individual at a time.

The early New Englanders wanted their children to remember the sacrifice, suffering, and hardship which made possible that first Thanksgiving. They wanted to keep alive the memory of that long 63 day trip taken in the small Mayflower. They desired to keep alive the thought of that stern and rock-bound coast, its inhospitable welcome, and the first terrible winter which took such a toll of lives.

We, too, need to keep alive the spirit of the Piligrims today. If they, amidst their hardships and suffering, felt the need to give thanks, how much more should we feel the need to pause and give thanks to God for the blessings that are ours.

All Housing Under G-4

A new housing section, a special staff unit, has been established here under the G-4 office by a Department of the Army directive to provide more adequate support for The Infantry Center.

The directive ordered that all family housing activities on an Armywide basis be placed under the command of the logistical officer of each post. Maj. Edward L. Whitehead, housing section chief and billeting division officer, said.

Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell, commanding officer of The Infantry Center, after studying the Department of the Army communication, directed that all activities of the former U.S. Army Infantry Center billeting office be placed under the newly created housing section.

Under the new set-up, billets for bachelor and visiting officers, ROTC and Army marksmanship units, Reserve components and Special Services Groups are under the jurisdiction of the housing section, Maj. Whitehead said.

New arrivals and visiting groups who are assigned quarters on the post may obtain the keys from the housing section in Building 5 instead of the quartermaster furniture warehouse.

World's First Lady Touched All Hearts

Heads of state have paid her tribute and the "little" people of the world have voiced their own sense of loss. They're not really little, of course, and it was one of Eleanor Roosevelt's great attributes that she identified herself with them and profoundly understood their aspirations.

It was right that of all of the eulogies spoken, the simplest and yet most eloquent came from our ambassador to the United Nations. Mr. Stevenson's words, like Mrs. Roosevelt's life, are part of our history.

"The United Nations," he said, "has meaning and hope for millions, thanks to her labors, her love, no less than to her ideals—ideals that made her, only weeks after Franklin Roosevelt's death, put aside all thoughts of peace and quiet after the tumult of their lives, to serve as one of this nation's delegates to the first regular session of the General Assembly. Her duty then—as always—was to the living, to the world, to peace.

"My country mourns her . . . But even as we do, the sadness we share is enlivened by her faith in her fellow man and his future which filled the heart of this strong and gentle woman. She imparted this faith, not only to those who shared the privilege of knowing her and of working by her side, but to countless men, women and children in every part of the world who loved her even as she loved them.

"For she embodied the vision and the will to achieve a world in which all men can walk in peace and dignity. And to this goal, a better life, she dedicated her tireless energy and the strange strength of her extraordinary personality." (AFPS)

The Judge Says . . .

If someone asked the question, "Who is the best automobile driver in the world?" what would your answer be?

Regardless of your answer, everyone feels very strongly that he is the best driver in the world. Yet, these same people have accidents.

For example, one of our "best" drivers, PFC John Doe, was driving a government sedan on Highway 27 on the post. The road was slippery and because of ice fog, visibility was only about 100 feet. It was dark as he left the main gate at the post. PFC Doe was tired and he wanted to get back to the motor pool so he could check in and go home. He knew the road well, every bend, curve and bump.

As he drove along, he came up behind an automobile. Checking his speedometer he said to himself, "That creep is only doing 30—what is the matter with him anyway?"

Doe passed the vehicle with ease and noted he hardly skidded. About 10 minutes later Doe looked down to check the heater control knob. When he looked up again, he saw the back end of a bus, with stop lights flashing, dead ahead.

Doe stepped on the brakes —nothing happened. He frantically turned the wheel to the left—still nothing happened. Then something did happen—the sedan hit the back of the bus with a sickening crash of metal and glass.

Fortunately, PFC Doe wasn't seriously injured physically. His injuries were financial.

After the collision, the following things happened to him: (1) He was arrested by the military police for negligent driving. (2) He was tried by court - martial and forfeited $50, as well as having his driving privileges suspended for six months. (3) A report of survey concerning the damaged sedan held PFC Smith liable to the government in the amount of $750.

If Doe had been driving his own car, he, or his insurance company would have had to pay for damages to the bus and injuries to passengers, but as it was, the government paid those claims with tax money.

Because PFC Doe was such a "good" driver that he didn't have to be cautious, it cost him a lot of money. His "skill" cost the taxpayers a lot of money. Let's speculate for a moment on what PFC Doe was going to do if he had gotten home five minutes early as he planned. Don't you imagine that the first thing he was going to do was sit down?

Being able at all times to prevent an accident, regardless of what happens or what the other fellow does (sometimes called defensive driving) is one of the characteristics of a good driver. Since you feel that perhaps you are the best driver, it should be a characteristic of yours.

It certainly will save not only your life, time and money, but the lives, time and money of other people and incidentally, keep you out of trouble with the law!

44 Years Pass Since Third Army Formed in France

The Third U. S. Army, famed in both war and peace, celebrated its 44th anniversary Nov. 15.

It was on that day in 1918 that Third Army was activated at Ligny-en-Barrois, France, composed of World War I combat units. First mission of the newly formed Army was occupational duty on the Rhine.

Gen. George S. Patton Jr. led the Third Army into its baptism of fire in 1944. Its mission then was to drive to and capture the Brittany Peninsula and open the Brittany ports. In 281 days of combat the Third Army forged across France and into Germany, Austria and Czechoslovakia.

Once again Third Army assumed occupational duties, moving back to the United States with headquarters at Fort McPherson in Atlanta in 1947.

Third Army's area includes Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Mississippi, North and South Carolina, Tennessee and a portion of Kentucky.

The following congratulatory messages were received at Third Army installations on the occasion of the anniversary:

To The Officers and Men Of The Third United States Army

On the occasion of the forty-fourth anniversary of the Third United States Army, I extend congratulations and best wishes to all of its members on behalf of the United States Army.

Since its organization, the Third Army has contributed significantly to the military strength of the United States in both war and peace. Its record in Europe during World War II indelibly inscribed the Third Army on the scroll of our Nation's combat history. Today, the Third Army continues its contribution to the security of the Free World through the training and support of key elements of the One Army team.

It is a pleasure for me to join my fellow soldiers in saluting the achievements of the Third United States Army as it completes another year of valuable service to the Nation and to the Free World.

EARLE G. WHEELER
General, United States Army
Chief of Staff

On behalf of the United States Continental Army Command I extend greetings and congratulations to the officers and men of the Third United States Army on the forty-fourth anniversary of your activation.

In 1944 and 1945 soldiers under the command of the late General George S. Patton set the pace in the race to crush Hitler's Nazi regime following successful landings on the bloody beaches of Normandy. During World War I, with headquarters at Coblenz, the Third United States Army administered military occupation of the Kaiser's defeated Germany. Twenty-six years later the same town of Coblenz fell before the onslaught of Patton's mighty "Blood and Guts" tankers. That year, 1944, saw Third Army as one of history's most devastating fighting forces.

Today Third Army's monumental chronicle of epic deeds and mighty victories serves as an inspiration to present members of the modern One Army team.

My continued respect and wishes for future success go with each member of your splendid command as they prepare to launch another year of faithful service to the United States.

HERBERT B. POWELL
General, U. S. Army
Commanding

Thursday, 15 November 1962, marks the forty-fourth anniversary of the activation of the Third United States Army at Ligny-en-Barrois, France, in 1918.

For us, the men and women who comprise the Third United States Army today, this is an occasion for proud remembrance — of occupation duty in Germany following World War I, of the historic dash across Europe under General George S. Patton in World II, and of a continuing program of readiness and training. But this should also be a time of looking toward the future, which promises to present challenges even greater than those previously faced by Third Army.

We live in a time of constant danger, and only through constant vigilance and unquestionable readiness can that danger be averted. I therefore ask all of you to join me in a rededication of our great Army to its mission of providing strength as part of the American Defense team, in order that aggression by potential enemies may be deterred, and in order that the future record of Third Army may be as proud as that of its past.

BEST MESS AWARD . . . Lt. William Dellinger, (L), commanding officer of the 147th Ordnance Company, looks on as SFC Fred E. Bass (C) is presented 'The Infantry Center Troop Command's "Best Mess for Temporary Buildings" plaque by Col. John H. Lattin, commanding officer of TICTC.

DNRI Has New Deputy Director

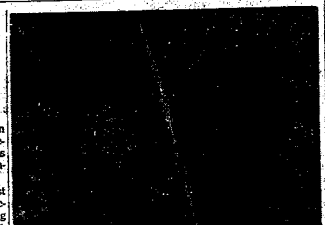
Lt. Col. Earl W. Buchanan has been named deputy director of The Infantry School's Department of Nonresident Instruction (DNRI).

Col. Buchanan will assist Col. G. Harry Hoppert, director of DNRI, in furnishing Infantry, airborne and Ranger training literature in support of The Infantry School nonresident instructional programs and in maintaining liaison with the agencies supported.

Before coming to the school, Col. Buchanan served as inspector general for the U.S. Army Security Agency, Pacific, at Camp Zama, Japan.

Previous assignments include a tour of duty with the 180th Infantry, 45th Infantry Division during World War II, in the Mediterranean and European Theaters, where he was platoon leader, company commander and S-3 (operations officer).

While participating in the Sicilian, Italian, French and Rhineland campaigns, Col. Buchanan received the Silver Star. He also received the Bronze Star Medal with "V" device for valor.



During the Korean conflict, he served as regimental S-3 with the 27th Infantry, 25th Infantry Division, known widely as the "Wolfhound Division."

Taking part in the initial five campaigns of the conflict, he received another Silver Star and the Legion of Merit.

The highly decorated Infantryman also holds the Combat Infantryman Badge, the Purple Heart and campaign stars and arrowheads, signifying his part in 12 invasions.

The Newport High School graduate entered the Army in February, 1941. He is a member of the Memphremagog Lodge 65 in Newport and the 32 Degree Army Consistory at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

Col. Buchanan and his wife, Ellen, have two sons, Bucky, 9, and Terry, 6.

FIRST FIRING OF SERGEANT . . . The first firing of a Sergeant ballistic missile by an Army tactical unit was conducted by troops of Battery A, 3rd Missile Battalion, 38th Artillery, Fort Sill, Okla., at White Sands Missile Range, N.M., Oct. 24. Fired from its mobile erector launcher, the Sergeant sped out of sight in seconds, leaving only a cloud of dust and a snowy trail of vapor. The demonstration was witnessed by American and NATO military leaders. The Sergeant will be deployed overseas early next year.

EARNED MOH . . . Capt. Ola L. Mize (R) presents to the U.S. Army Infantry Museum here the carbine he used in Korea in earning the Medal of Honor. Receiving the weapon is SFC James A. Prichard, non-commissioned officer in charge of the museum. Capt. Mize used the carbine to fight off a numerically superior enemy force near Surang-ni July 10-11, 1953. At the time of the action he was a 21-year old sergeant.

Medal of Honor Recipient Donates Rifle to Museum

A former Fort Benning officer who received the Medal of Honor for outstanding valor in the Korean conflict has presented the weapon he used in combat to The U. S. Army Infantry Museum.

Capt. Ola L. Mize donated the now battered weapon, a carbine, to SFC James A. Pritchard, non - commissioned officer in charge of the museum.

The carbine has been place in a glass case with a picture of Capt. Mize's Medal of Honor certificate and a copy of his citation. It is on display along with other Infantry weapons, photographs and relics of America's past wars.

Capt. Mize originally was issued an M-1 rifle but, upon going into combat in Korea, he exchanged it with a PFC Neel for the carbine. "I wanted to use a carbine against the enemy because it fired faster than the M-1," he explained.

The battle in which he won the medal for supreme courage and skillful leadership in fighting off a numerically superior foe took place near Surang-ni June 10-11, 1953. The then 21 - year old sergeant was assistant platoon sergeant in Company K, 15th Regiment, 3rd Infantry Division.

At the time of the battle his unit was defending an important outpost when the enemy launched a violent attack. Despite being blown back into the bunker by enemy shells and a concussion grenade, Capt. Mize continued to fight off the Chinese and killed 60 of them. On the way back to his command post he accounted for five more.

Capt. Mize has been in the Army since April 18, 1950. He was commissioned Oct. 13, 1956, at Fort McClellan, Ala., and was stationed here from June until October of this year.

Previously he completed Airborne and Ranger training and, upon graduation from Infantry Officers' Career Course No. 5, he was assigned to the Fifth Special Forces at Fort Bragg, N.C.

1st Lt. Longenecker New Company CO

Company D, 806th Engineer Battalion, has a new commanding officer, 1st Lt. George W. Longenecker.

He is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin where he received his bachelor of science degree in landscape architecture. He did graduate work at the University of Illinois where he had a part-time teaching assistantship. He received a master of fine arts degree from the University of Illinois last June.

Women-of-the-Chapel Plan Joint Meeting Wednesday

A joint meeting of four Protestant Women-of - the-Chapel groups will be conducted at 9:30 a.m. Nov. 28 at the Religious Education Center, Bldg. 2955.

They are The Infantry Center, Student Brigade and Sand Hill Chapel No. 1 and 2 Women-of-the-Chapel.

Invited to attend are members of the Women of St. Michael's Episcopal Mission.

Theme for the program is "The Protestant Woman and Her Community."

Mrs. Pearl Brakonecke will discuss "The Protestant Woman in Public Education," and Mrs. William J. Erwin will have as her topic "The Protestant Woman and Christian Education."

Mrs. Lillian Kennedy will sing "I Love a Little Schoolhouse" by Jeffrey O'Hara.

Hostesses for the meeting are Mrs. Silas E. Decker and Mrs. J. B. Blunk.

Mrs. Brakonecke and Mrs. Erwin are considered authorities in their respective educational fields.

Mrs. Brakonecke is a B.S. graduate of Troy State College and holds an M.A. degree from Peabody College in Nashville. She has done additional graduate work at Florida State University in Tallahassee and State University of Education, Plattsburgh, N. Y.

She taught in the post Children's School System from 1950 through 1955. After three years with the Wyandotte, Mich., school system, she returned to Fort Benning. She served as assistant principal of Faith School in 1959-1960, principal of the former Hospital Area School in 1960-1961, and has been principal of Edward A. White School since it opened in January.

Mrs. Erwin is a graduate of Greensboro College. She taught music a year at Brevard College and for two years was director of children's work for the North Carolina Conference Board of the Methodist Church.

Mrs. Erwin has served as director of children's work in the South Georgia Conference and is a certified director of leadership and laboratory schools for the conference.

NCO Wives' Distaff Doings

By Marie Fowler

Autumn leaves, fall flowers in shades of bronze, brown and burnt orange, pilgrims and turkeys decorated the tables of the NCO Wives' annual Thanksgiving Luncheon at Crane Hall recently.

Presented with corsages were Mrs. Ben Harrell, wife of Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center; Mrs. Campbell, mother of Mrs. Harrell, and Mrs. John F. McLaren, wife of Lt. Col. John McLaren, British liaison officer here who departed last weekend. The three were honored guests.

Members of the executive board and Mrs. Robert E. Lamb, club president, also received corsages.

Mrs. John McCombs was winner of a savings bond for having "recruited" the most new members during the recent membership drive. New members joining at the luncheon were Mrs. William T. Cash, Mrs. W. K. Edens, Mrs. Eugene Blanton, Mrs. Kenneth Reid, Mrs. Lewis W. Leary, Mrs. Ollan Woodham, Mrs. Robert Bugh and Mrs. Charles N. Hobbs.

The centerpiece of mums was presented to Mrs. McLaren.

Chairman of the event was Mrs. Wade D. Rothwell, assisted by Mrs. Paul E. Smith and Mrs. Otham O. Valent. Serving at the door were Mrs. Oscar Mercer and Mrs. Dave Howell.

Our sincere thanks to these ladies for a job well done, and, lest we forget, to Mrs. Kay Deaney and her telephone works so diligently in our behalf and contributes so much to the success of the organization.

We are happy to have our president, Mrs. Robert E. Lamb, with us again following her recent illness. Presiding at the monthly business meeting, Mrs. Lamb outlined plans for the coming holidays.

Special events include a teen-age dance, children's parties and a dinner-dance for members and their husbands. Now is the time to join our organization and be in on these affairs.

Mrs. Charlie M. Blanton was presented a farewell gift at a coffee held recently in the clubhouse. We regret losing Ruby, who will make her home in Portland, Ore., during MSgt. Blanton's tour of duty in Korea.

Also honoring Mrs. Blanton was a coffee held at the Doyle.

Bridge Players! We need you! Come to our clubhouse any Tuesday morning at 9:30 or call Bertha Ellis at 544-3697 for information.

Post Dental Wives Hold Luncheon

The Fort Benning Dental Wives recently held their November luncheon in the Anzio Room of the Main Officers Open Mess.

The tables were decorated with various original center pieces in keeping with the theme, by Mrs. B. B. Lefler and Mrs. R. H. Heal.

The luncheon hostesses were Mrs. R. K. Morrow, Mrs. M. Klein, Mrs. J. T. Pullen and Mrs. C. R. Wood.

Mrs. S. M. Mitchell bade farewell to Mrs. Thomas Goodman who is leaving for Texas.

Mrs. H. F. Sawyer, the chairman, introduced the following new members: Mrs. H. N. Askin, Mrs. P. M. Opin, Mrs. H. T. Schramm, Mrs. R. P. Dishler, Mrs. A. S. Farber, Mrs. T. R. Marshall and Mrs. G. H. Putnel.

Door prizes were won by Mrs. T. K. Goodman, Mrs. B. B. Lefler and Mrs. W. J. Bolbat.

Col. Joseph Welcomes New Wives

The wives of the student officers, Orientation Course 9, Detachment 23, 2nd Student Battalion, met in the dayroom recently for an orientation coffee.

Lt. Col. Vern L. Joseph, commanding officer, 2nd Student Battalion, welcomed the ladies and described The Student Brigade, emphasizing the part they and the officer students would have while stationed here.

Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Arthur Estes, Student Brigade chaplain, spoke next about religious activities and the opportunity for participation. First Lt. Richard I. Lewis, company commander, Detachment 23, added his welcome to the ladies and explained the course. Mrs. Richard I. Lewis invited the ladies to join in the planning of future activities. Mrs. Vern L. Joseph gave the ladies honorary membership to the Woman's Club.

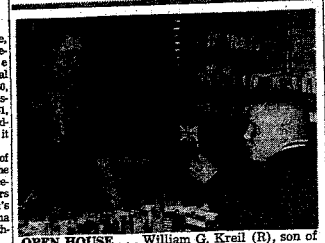
Refreshments were served to the 36 ladies while they became acquainted and discussed future plans.

The centerpiece was an arrangement of fall mums.

MUSCLE SPASMS

By Dr. R. P. Spillane



Violent, involuntary contraction of a muscle or group of muscles.

Muscle spasms can occur in many parts of the body. Most people who experience them can attribute the cause to nerve root pressure—even though there may be other associated factors.

Pills, injections, traction, may afford relief of a temporary nature, but contribute little to the removal of the cause. Thus treatment of this nature usually allows the condition to persist and reoccur. The application of scientific, relaxing Chiropractic adjustments will remove the Nerve pressure—thus avoiding serious complications and permanent damage. All you need do to eliminate painful muscle spasms in your neck and back is to call FA 7-9454 and arrange for your appointment.

Follow-Up Coffee Held

The day room of Detachment 23, 2nd Student Battalion, was the scene of the Follow-Up coffee for the wives of student officers, Orientation Course 9.

Mrs. Richard I. Lewis, wife of detachment commander, 1st Lt. Richard I. Lewis, discussed future plans and activities with the wives during their stay here. A luncheon and casserole dinner were planned.

The guest attending was Mrs. Charles Bowie, wife of Lt. Charles Bowie.

Refreshments were served to the 25 ladies attending. The centerpiece was an arrangement of red and white mums.

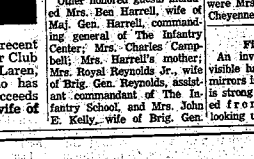
DNRI Club Plans To Give Holiday Assist to Needy

Mesdames Richard N. Lang and Claude W. Sites presided over the November luncheon held recently in the Anzio Room of the Main Officers Open Mess by the ladies of the Department of Nonresident Instruction.

The group voted to assist a needy family for the forthcoming holiday season. Mrs. Dwight Carr was elected chairman of the project.

The table centerpiece was composed of a fall flower arrangement and was presented to Mrs. Paul Morrow as the door prize.

Mrs. Lang was also hostess for the monthly bridge group at her home on N. Valdez. The high prize was awarded to Mesdames Morrow and Egenmair.

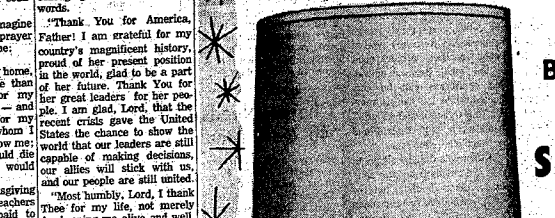


Anzio Room Site Of Wives Brunch

A brunch took place recently in the Anzio Room, Main Officers Open Mess, for the wives of Detachment 1, 2nd Student Battalion.

Mrs. Russell M. Clark welcomed the ladies to their last function, and they were thanked for their help while at Fort Benning. Mrs. John M. Hall, wife of detachment commander, Capt. John M. Hall, was the guest.

An arrangement of asthuriums, a native flower of Hawaii, was the centerpiece surrounded with candies in the form of turkeys.



Nineteen ladies attended.

Two British Ladies Are Feted Here

The wives of two British Army officers were honored at a luncheon recently at the Supper Club of Fort Benning's Main Officers' Open Mess, given by the ladies of The Infantry Combat Developments Agency.

The honorees were Mrs. John S. McLaren, wife of Lt. Col. McLaren, British liaison officer who will soon depart the post, and Mrs. John E. Dent, wife of Lt. Col. Dent, who will succeed Col. McLaren.

Other honored guests included Mrs. Ben Harrell, wife of Maj. Gen. Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center; Mrs. Charles Campbell; Mrs. Harrell's mother; Mrs. Royal Reynolds Jr., wife of Brig. Gen. Reynolds, assistant commandant of The Infantry School, and Mrs. John E. Kelly, wife of Brig. Gen. Kelly, deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center.

Places were laid for 18 in the Supper Club Lounge.

Table appointments were in an autumn motif on gold cloths.

A centerpiece of bronze and gold chrysanthemums and gold stock was flanked by bronze candelabra holding tobacco colored tapers.

Handpainted place cards were decorated with fall leaves and gilded acorns.

Hostesses for the luncheon were Mrs. Paul E. Nottage of Cheyenne, Wyo., and Mrs. Gordon Gunton of Victoria, B.C., wife of Maj. Gunton, Canadian liaison officer here.

Report Card

By Mary Beth Williams

Yesterday the nation celebrated Thanksgiving Day. School was out; churches held special services. You were reminded to be grateful for your health, your family, your country.

I cannot help but imagine that your own personal prayer went something like mine:

"Dear God,

"I thank Thee for my home, which is so much more than many people have; for my family, which loves me — and Thee. I am grateful for my friends — both those whom I know, and those who know me; for the friends who would die for me and those who would live with me.

"On this day of thanksgiving I thank Thee for my teachers —for those who are paid to teach me government, French and trig; for those who teach me self-control, patience, kindness, to hope, to overcome difficulties (or not let them overcome me), to have faith in myself — by example and encouraging looks, smiles, and words.

"Thank You for America, Father! I am grateful for my country's magnificent history, proud of her present position in the world, glad to be a part of her future. Thank You for her great leaders for her people. I am glad, Lord, that the recent crisis gave the United States the chance to show the world that our leaders are still capable of making decisions, our allies will stick with us, and our people are still united.

"Most humbly, Lord, I thank Thee for my life, not merely for keeping me alive and well, but for giving me the chance to grow up, secure in the love of family and friends, under the guidance of wise and good people, in a nation which deems it necessary to have a national day of thanksgiving—to make of my life something of which Thou will be proud.

GEN. JOHNSON VISITS POST . . . Maj. Gen. Harold K. Johnson (R), commandant of the Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kan., is greeted at Lawson Army Aviation Command by Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center. Gen. Johnson, who also is commanding general of the U.S. Army Combined Arms Group of Combat Developments Command at Fort Leavenworth, recently visited the aviation, infantry and chemical, biological and radiology branches of the Combat Development Agencies at Fort Rucker, Ala., Fort Benning and Fort McClellan, Ala.

Gen. Harrell Lauds Work Of Post DACs

Fort Benning civilian personnel came in for some praise last week when Major Gen. Ben Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center, thanked them for their support and cooperation.

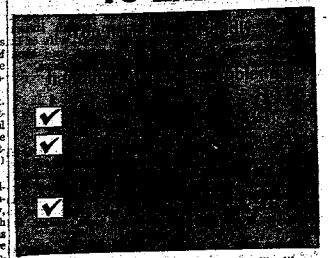
The two-star general, who said he has wanted to meet with the civilians for some time, expressed his "heartfelt thanks" for their outstanding work during the 14 months since he assumed command of The Infantry Center.

Gen. Harrell said, "Ever since I came to Fort Benning a year ago last August, I have wanted to talk to all of you.

"This will not be a 'pep' talk to spur you on to greater effort. On the contrary, I want to tell you that I do recognize the dependence we, the military, place on you in running this post.

"During recent months, you have had several opportunities to demonstrate what a tremendous job you can do, even under unusual circumstances.

"I am most appreciative and you have my heartfelt thanks," he concluded.



Capt. Regel CO Of TICTC Unit

Capt. Thomas J. Regel has been named commander of Company C, 1st Battalion, The Infantry Center Troop Command.

Capt. Regel succeeds Capt. Bobby E. Crews who will attend a special warfare school at Fort Bragg, N.C., before reporting to his Military Assistance Advisory Group (MAAG) assignment in Viet Nam.

The new company commander comes to The Infantry Center from Sandhofen, Germany, where he was assigned with 8th Infantry Division as weapons platoon leader and executive officer of Company C, 18th Infantry. The captain was graduated from Tulane University in 1958 with a bachelor of arts degree in anthropology.

Copters Used For Unloading Moving Ships

The Army has developed and successfully tested a technique for quickly unloading cargo from moving ships using helicopters and portable platforms extending over the sides of ocean cargo vessels.

Elements of the system include a 65 - foot long aluminum "wing" (foldable to 40 feet for storage on the deck), a movable cargo platform or dolly capable of holding pallet loads of 9,000 pounds, and a base-unit mounted on the deck which permits the rotation of the "wing". An electro-hydraulic winch provides the power to move loads from the outboard end to cargo holds in 30 seconds.

The "ship's wing" device was designed and developed by the Army Transportation Research Command at Fort Eustis, Va., a field agency of the Army Materiel Command. It will give Army terminal service troops the means of making rapid helicopter delivery of priority cargo or personnel from any type of ocean transport at any point in the world. Because unloading operations can be conducted while the ship is moving, the technique offers great potential in both limited and nuclear war situations.

Although initially designed to load and unload helicopter sling loads, direct landings on the "ship's wing" have been made by the OH-23 Raven observation helicopter. The platform is now being adapted to allow the larger UH-1 Iroquois utility helicopter to land and take aboard a squad of troops or evacuate wounded.

CAA Drive Surpasses Set Goal

Ninety-four per cent of Fort Benning civilian and military personnel participated in rocketing over their "fair share" goal by six per cent in the final tabulations of the 1962 Community Activities Association Fund Drive, officials said.

Without the support of the CAA, fund requests for the operation of three principal Fort Benning community activities — the Visiting Nurses and Preventive Dental Health Programs and Youth Activities Club — would not be possible, officials added.

The CAA also makes a contribution to the Muscogee and Russell Counties United Givers Fund Drive. The UG fund supports 34 local and national health, welfare and character building agencies, including the YMCA and USO Clubs in Columbus, which provide recreation and entertainment for servicemen.

CG Praises 2nd Division On Fund Total

Goal Reached Despite Crisis

The 1962 annual Community Activities Association Fund Drive has drawn to a close for another year.

General Billingslea expressed pride in the part played by the men of the 2d Division throughout the drive in a letter which states as follows:

"It is very gratifying to me to report that the SECOND-TO-NONE Division reached the Community Activities Association Fund Drive goal which we pledged to meet.

I am exceedingly proud of this accomplishment. I recognize that the drive was conducted concurrent with our operations in Mississippi and during the current Cuban Crisis. These two activities created many difficulties for keymen, Drive Captains and Commanders. In spite of this many units achieved their full Fair Share Potential, or better than the minimum goal, thereby making the fund drive a success.

Please extend to all officers and men of your command my sincere appreciation for their efforts and their generosity. Our Fort Benning-Columbus - Phenix City area community will benefit from every dollar contributed.

It Was a Great Day for Mess Halls

11,480 Pounds of Turkey Is Proof Thanksgiving's Not for the Birds

By George Aubin

According to history books, the Pilgrims and Indians at the first Thanksgiving sat at tables that were indeed bountiful — and no one went away hungry.

According to the 2nd Quartermaster Company, men of the 2nd Infantry Division not only didn't go away hungry, but they probably didn't go away.

In the course of yesterday's annual Thanksgiving Day feast, men of the 2nd, their families and visitors consumed 11,480 pounds of turkey, 3,148 pounds of white potatoes, 2,862 pounds of candied sweet potatoes, 1,717 pounds of buttered peas, 1,002 pounds of lettuce, 143 pounds onions, 296 pounds of radishes, 715 pounds of celery, 1,002 cans of cranberry sauce, 2,576 dozen rolls and 429 pounds of butter.

For those who had room for it, there was 141 pounds of fruit cake and pumpkin and mincemeat pies made from 715 cans of pumpkin and 143 cans of mincemeat.

To wash down all of this food, there were 572-5 gallon cans of sweet milk, 286-5 gallon cans of chocolate milk and 215 cans of coffee.

At the conclusion of the meal, the men relaxed with a smoke and nibbled on 2146 pounds of apples, 2146 pounds of grapes, 2146 pounds of

German Signs Bustin' Out Around Sand Hill

By 23rd Infantry PIO

Amid whirring saws, pounding hammers, and swishing paint brushes, the 23rd Infantrymen this week exerted themselves and accomplished another phase of their preparation for Germany program.

Completed and placed into position throughout the battle group's Sand Hill area, the German road signs are catching the eye of the general public as well as the "We Servers".

Getting Acquainted

The idea behind the project stems from the fact that if the men of the unit acquaint themselves with the road signs before they arrive in Germany, less confusion and fewer accidents should occur on the German highways.

Two complete sets of signs, consisting of 64 signs each, have been prepared and a special driver's course has been set up especially for the military vehicle drivers, in order that they can become fully familiar with the various signs, and can become accustomed to obeying their directions.

The German signs differ from our standard road signs in that the majority of them are circular and triangular shaped. On most of the signs, a picture depicts the message the

Winter Term Classes Set On Sand Hill

Center Offers 6 Free Courses

The winter term off-duty study classes began in the 2nd Division this week at the Division Education Center on Sand Hill.

There are six courses offered this term. Four of these are at the high school level (Practical English Usage, General Mathematics, General Science, and American Government) and two are at college level (Parts I and II of American Government).

There are no fees for these courses. Textbooks are furnished on a loan basis from the U. S. Armed Forces Institute. Classes are held one night per week for each course at the Education Center from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Although three of the classes have already had their first meeting, enrollments are still being accepted. The classes in American Government do not begin until November 29.

The American government courses help to prepare for Part II of the high school or the college General Education Development (GED) test and any one of them qualifies individuals for the high school or

Christmas Interviews Being Held

Have you heard the word about the greatest thing that ever happened in the 2nd Division?

All day, November 20 and 21, the Public Information Office on Sand Hill was tape-recording Christmas interviews to be sent to hometown radio stations. And it's not too late to be interviewed. PIO is going to continue taping these after Thanksgiving, starting on the 26th and continuing to the 30th. Soldiers who can't make it home this Christmas can have a tape of their own voice sent to the radio station in their own home town.

The hours for interviews at PIO are from 8 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. and, after supper, from 6 p.m. until 9 p.m. It only takes about two minutes per interview. Soldiers may drop by the Information Office (Bldg. 3019) on Sand Hill anytime it is convenient for them.

NEW TO 7TH
1st Sgt. Schildhauer

Now With 7th, Atom Wagon Was His Job

By 7th Infantry PIO

A Commendation Medal winner returns to the "Second to None" with the 7th Infantry as first sergeant of Company B.

First Sgt. Wayne F. Schildhauer comes to the "Cottonbalers" from Headquarters, Military Assistance Advisory Group, Laos.

Entering the service in February 1949, the sergeant was assigned to the 88th Ordnance Company (heavy maintenance) from September 1949 to December 1952. During this time, Sgt. Schildhauer was chosen with 14 officers and men of the 7th U. S. Army for temporary duty to Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Md., to work on the experimental "Atomic Wagon," later adopted by the Army to haul the highly potent 280 milimeter cannon. Upon completion of his tour in Germany, he returned to Aberdeen Proving Grounds where he was on the Ordnance Board to develop and test tools and equipment. Sgt. Schildhauer returned to Germany with the 58th Ordnance Company in July 1955.

His next assignment was to the 10th Infantry Division, Fort Benning, later redesignated the 2nd Division. He was stationed in Laos from September 1961 until October 1962 when he came to the 7th.

Sgt. Schildhauer was awarded, in addition to the Commendation Medal which he received while at Fort Benning, the National Defense Service Medal, and Army Occupation Medal (Germany). He was Honor Graduate of the post Chemical, Biological, Radiological School in 1958 and Honor Graduate of the 2nd Division Non - Commissioned Officer Academy in 1958.

Sgt. Schildhauer recalls as his most memorable experience the time he was stationed with the 88th Ordnance Company in Germany in 1951 when he and his men processed four divisions' ordnance equipment shipped from the U.S. working 18 hours a day for six months.

Sgt. Schildhauer, his wife, Augusta, and son, Wayne live at 224 Highland Ave., Columbus.

the college Part II retest. Many states require this course in addition to satisfactory completion of the (GED) test prior to awarding a state high school diploma.

Individuals who have finished high school should enroll for the two college level American Government courses as each are three semester hour college credit courses and are accepted by most colleges and by Department of the Army.

The English course helps to prepare for the high school or the college GED test and qualifies individuals for the high school or college Parts I and IV retests. It includes useful grammar, spelling and punctuation drill for better expression and understanding of the language.

The mathematics course helps to prepare for Part V of the high school GED test and qualifies individuals for retest on Part V. Emphasis of this course is useful interest, percentage, and fraction problems and practices.

The general science course helps to prepare for Part III of the high school or college GED test and qualifies individuals for retest on Part III.

Planning in coordination with the quartermaster section at The Infantry Center, Lt. Col. John V. Stoecker, division quartermaster, was in charge of seeing that the food reached the soldiers.

Visiting the division mess halls in Sand Hill and Kelly Hill were Brig. Gen. Charles Billingslea, division commander, and Brig. Gen. Stanley L. Harding, assistant division commander. Also touring mess halls in Sand Hill and Kelley assistant division commander, and Col. Louis A. Kunzig Jr., division chief of staff.

TASK FORCE HOWZE

The 27th Armored Field Artillery Battalion was a component of Task Force Howze which left Castiglone April 27, 1945 for Gergamo, continued to Brivio, a village at the mouth of the Adda River about halfway between Bergamo and Como, Italy, during World War II.

9th Infantry Medal Holder

During the latter days of World War I, when the 2nd Division was still fighting its way through France, Pvt. Frank J. Bart of the 9th Infantry so distinguished himself in action that he was awarded the Medal of Honor. Pvt. Bart, when his battalion advance was held up by enemy machine gun fire, voluntarily picked up an automatic rifle, ran out ahead of the line, and silenced the hostile machine gun nest, killing the German gunners. Shortly afterward the advance was again hindered and Pvt. Bart repeated his bold exploit by putting a second machine gun out of action.

sign conveys to the motorist. Foor instance, a "Watch Out for Wild Animals" sign depicts a deer in motion, while the "Watch Out for Domestic Animals" sign shows a cow lazily grazing. Another difference—the German signs give the speed limit in kilometers per hour as opposed to miles per hour on the American signs.

Maj. C. Peer Is 9th's S-4 From Munich

By 9th Infantry PIO

Recently arrived at the 9th Infantry from Munich, Germany, is Maj. Charles W. Peer, the battle group's new S-4 officer.

Maj. Peer has recently returned from a two-year tour as S-4 officer of the 21st Infantry, 24th Infantry Division.

Entered In 1944

He first entered the Army in December 1944 at the age of 18 and was discharged in 1946 as a T-5, the equivalent of today's Specialist Four.

Upon his discharge Maj. Peer entered San Jose State College at San Jose, Calif., and majored in civil engineering for two years.

In 1949 he reentered the Army and was commissioned a second lieutenant. His first assignment as an officer was at The Infantry School, Ft. Benning, where he took the Basic Officer Orientation Course and later the Advanced Officer Course.

As S-4 officer, Maj. Peer replaces Maj. Roy J. Herte Jr., who recently became the 9th Infantry S-3 officer.

Maj. Peer presently resides at Ft. Benning with his wife and two children.

Mrs. Billingslea Welcomed By Officers' Wives Club

The November luncheon of the 2nd Division Officers' Wives Club, held recently at the newly decorated Main Officers' Open Mess, was graced by the arrival of Mrs. Charles Billingslea, wife of Brig. Gen. Billingslea, the commanding general of the 2nd Division.

This was Mrs. Billingslea's second social engagement subsequent to her arrival at Fort Benning, having previously been present when the ladies of the 87th Infantry welcomed to the club the ladies of the newly arrived 26th Infantry. But this was the first time she had a chance to meet the club's full membership.

Mrs. James T. Kolb, the club president, introduced Mrs. Billingslea to the ladies.

Hostesses for the function were Mrs. Ralph Hughett and the ladies of the 87th Infantry. They selected a Thanksgiving motif with which to decorate the tables and the ballroom.

This was carried through with Pilgrim women serving refreshments, Indians selling the Division Engagement Calendar, and tables arranged with gold streamers, autumn foliage, brass candle holders, and wicker cornucopias filled to the brim with Nature's reminders of the harvest.

A program of home decorating hints and suggestions followed the luncheon and was presented by a local company.

Big Indianhead Ladies Sponsor Coffee Hour

The Ladies of The Big Indianhead sponsored one of their monthly coffee hours in the Red Cross Hall at Martin Army Hospital last Friday, from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m.

Coffee and doughnuts were served to patients and hospital staff by Mrs. Kenneth Hangartner, Mrs. William Redican, Mrs. Fred Schaser, and Mrs. Joe M. Foy.

Providing several choral selections during the coffee hour was a group known as The T'ons. The T'ons is composed of Charles Webb, John Pearson, Branchot Bryant, Floyd Nickerson, and Richard Mills, from Co. "C", 26th Infantry. Michael Woodham rendered several enjoyable selections on his electric guitar.

The next coffee hour to be sponsored by the Ladies of The Big Indianhead will be held December 7, from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m.

New Arrival

On 8 November 1962 a baby boy, David Duayne, was born to Lt. and Mrs. Vester L. Shuman at Martin Army Hospital. David's big sister is named Vienna. Lt. Shuman is with Company B, 702d Ordnance.

Mrs. McBride Holds Coffee

The home of Mrs. Dennis McBride was the scene of the monthly coffee held by the ladies of the 122nd Signal Battalion. Mrs. Billy Nave cohostessed the event held recently.

Silver serving pieces were used at the refreshment table which was adorned by an arrangement of Autumn foliage and greenery. Mrs. McBride poured.

Mrs. Fred Koerber was presented with an engraved silver dish and bade farewell. The door-prize was won by Mrs. B. Lancaster.

During the short business meeting Mrs. Richard Axtell was elected to be Red Cross Chairman.

1st Lady of Div. Trains Enjoys Many Pastimes

BY LUCILLE BEARD

A happy birthday was wished recently to a little boy in California by one of Fort Benning's proudest grandmothers, Mrs. John F. Staples, wife of Col. John F. Staples, Commander of Division Trains.

Charles Joseph Olivares, whose mother is the former Sandra Staples, was one year old on November 1. Sandra is one of the two children of Col. and Mrs. Staples; her brother John is a freshman at the University of Miami.

In 1937, when Col. Staples graduated from the University of Kentucky and was working for Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company in Akron, Ohio, he married Virginia Glover. The Staples remained civilians until May 1941, when John Staples became a 1st. Lieutenant in the Reserves, and Virginia Staples began to know the life of an Army wife who is so often left behind. Both of the Staples' children were born while Col. Staples was away; their son was two and a half years old before he ever met his father.

When Lt. Staples first went into the Army, his wife stayed in Ravenna, Ohio, where Sandra was born in July 1941. In December of that year, Mrs. Staples joined her husband at Fort Benning and for the next two years lived in whatever housing was available. Mrs. Staples laughingly remembers one house where she carried coal from an alley to a pot bellied stove.

When Col. Staples went overseas in 1944 to join in the invasion of Normandy, Mrs. Staples stayed with the colonel's family in Lexington, Ky., for the birth of their son, John; but shortly thereafter moved to Columbus, Ohio, where she lived with her sister's family until the end of the war and Col. Staple's return.

A nulled family again, the Staples spent a year at Fort Monmouth, N. J., until Col. Staples was assigned to the Infantry Officer Advanced Course at Fort Benning. In 1948, the family moved to Fort Sill, Okla., a post which Mrs. Staples enjoyed very much; and which was home for three years. It was here that the family learned to know fishing and camping, and when, after attending Command and General Staff College, Col. Staples received orders for Alaska, the family knew they could enjoy their hobbies in the finest setting. Alaska, from November 1952, until July 1954, was the Staples' favorite tour.

With Mrs. Staples to and from Alaska travelled her prized African violets, and today they are beautifully displayed, well cared for, growing profusely under fluorescent lighting in the Staples' den.

Upon their return from Alaska, Colonel Staples was assigned to Fort Leavenworth, Kan., where he was Chief of Operations and later an instructor in The Department of Infantry Division.

Then came orders for Korea and another separation. Mrs. Staples and the children stayed in Leavenworth, where Sandra graduated from high school. This army wife found that it was much harder to be separated when the children were older than it had been when they were so small; however, Mrs. Staples kept busy with her many activities. She was Chairman of the Gray Ladies, she had worked for eleven years with the Girl Scouts, she knits, she sews, and she has a remarkable ability to find old furniture and refinish it to its original charm.

In September, 1959, Col. Staples returned to the States, and the family moved to Annandale, Va., near the Pentagon, where Col. Staples was assigned to the office of Deputy Chief of Staff, Operations. Daughter Sandra was married here, in October, 1960.

Because John was a senior in high school, Mrs. Staples did not go with Col. Staples to the Army War College in 1961, but remained in Annandale so that John could graduate with his friends.

Fort Benning welcomed Col. and Mrs. Staples in July, and the ladies of the post have come to know the first lady of Divisions Trains as an avid golfer and bowler, and adept ceramics worker, and surely a devoted army wife.

ON D-DAY

On D-Day, June 6, 1944, one officer and 69 enlisted men of the 2nd Engineer Battalion, 2nd Division, walked ashore on Omaha Beach at H-Hour to blow obstacles in the path of assault boats and landing craft carrying the infantry.

Hip 'Hobos' Take Over At 12th Artillery Party

To be or not to be a hobo! The officers and their ladies of 12th Artillery decided "to be hobos" and held a party under this title at The Infantry Center Recreation Area last Saturday night.

The dress for the occasion was, of course, hobo style with a prize of two containers of canned heat and a stale piece of bread going to the best-dressed member of the clan. Winning the prize was Mrs. Terence W. Huck, wife of Lt. Col. Huck, 12th Artillery commander.

After eating a hardy meal prepared straight from the grill, dancing and other festivities highlighted the remainder of the evening.

Col. Huck welcomed Capt. Seeley H. Eastman, Lt. Frederick C. Niebaur, Lt. Willis S. Jacobs and Lt. Claude A. Vaughan Jr. to the battalion. Farewells were bade to Lt. and Mrs. George I. Coulbourn, Lt. Stephen R. Wax, and CWO and Mrs. Jack W. Carter. Lt. and Mrs. Charles D. Williams Jr. were presented a baby cup for their new arrival, Charles D. Williams III.

The Hobo Feast was prepared and sponsored by A Battery commanded by Capt. Robert A. Farr.

Festivities Herald 87th Infantry's 21st Anniversary

The "Conquerors" have come of age. A parade, a fly-by of Army planes, accompanied by music of the 2nd Division Band, ushered in the 21st birthday of the division's 87th Infantry recently, at Kelley Hill's Essebagger Field.

Nick-named "The Conquerors," the men of the 87th were dressed in battle dress for the occasion, marking another important moment in the history of what began as a mountain infantry regiment.

The review took place at Essenbagger Field, complete with a parade of the full battle group and its fighting equipment. Army planes flew over the review trailing red, yellow and blue smoke streamers.

In Reviewing Stand

Seated in the reviewing stand were Brig. Gen. Charles Billingsles, division commander, and the assistant division commander, Brig. Gen. Stanley L. Harding.

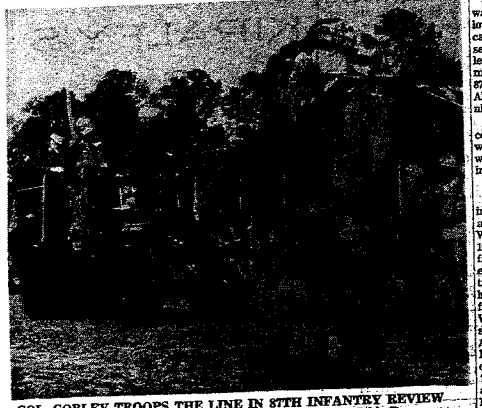
The 21st Birthday celebration of the 87th Infantry was officially opened with a reading of the Organization Day Orders. While the division band played "Around the World in 80 Days," the reviewing officer, Col. John T. Corley, division brigade commander, Col. Ralph H. Hughett, 87th infantry commander, and Lt. Col. Richards O. Stewart, the 87th's deputy commander, trooped the line of assembled troops in an open jeep.

Following the main address by Col. Corley and some precision flying by planes and two helicopters which unfurled a scroll reading "Happy Birthday, Conquerors," the troops and equipment of the 87th Infantry passed in review.

A red, white and blue cake was cut by Col. Hughett following the ceremony. On the cake, prepared by the mess sergeant of Company A, were letters spelling out the three major campaigns in which the 87th has participated — the Aleutian Islands, North Apennines and Po Valley.

Commander of troops at the ceremony was Lt. Col. Stewart. Participating troops wore combat uniforms including light field packs.

Unit History



The 87th, this year celebrating its 21st Anniversary, was activated at Fort Lewis, Washington, on November 15, 1941, as the 87th Mountain Infantry Regiment. The 87th's early training included ski training and training with horses and mules. The unit's first foreign assignment in World War II was in an assault on Kiska Island in the Aleutians, on August 15, 1943. Following this, the 87th received additional mountain and "flat land" training in the U.S. and in January 1945 sailed for Italy. Here the regiment distinguished itself in the Apennines Offensive, spearheading the Fifth Army's drive.

The attack began on April 14, 1945. After nine days of continuous fighting, the regiment stormed through the Po Valley and across the Po River on April 22, becoming the first allied soldiers to cross that river. The campaign ended on May 2 with the cessation of hostilities in Europe.

The 87th was inactivated on November 21, 1945, at Camp Carson, Colo. It was redesignated the 87th Infantry and reactivated on July 1, 1948, as part of the 10th Division at Fort Riley, Kan. During the Korean Conflict, the unit provided replacements for infantry combat units in Korea.

With the advent of the pentomic concept of modern warfare, the 87th Infantry Regiment was reorganized on July 7, 1957, as the 1st Battle Group, 87th Infantry. It remained in West Germany with NATO until 1958. On April 23, 1958, the 87th was reassigned to its present station and on June 14, 1958, was reassigned to the 2nd Infantry Division.

Since then the 87th Infantry has fulfilled its mission with the 2nd Division, first as a training unit and later, along with the rest of the division, as a part of the Army's fast-reacting, hard - hitting Strategic Army Corps.

38th Infantry Is Touring

By 28th Infantry PIO

BAUMHOLDER, Germany—In keeping with the Army's desire to better acquaint its personnel with the people of Europe and their customs, the 38th Infantry is sponsoring tours during their six-month "Rotaplan" tour of duty in Germany.

Men from the battle group have already traveled to Heidelberg and Garmisch, Germany, and feature tours are planned for Frankfurt, Amsterdam, Paris, and other European cities of interest.

The 38th also plans to give as many of the men as possible an opportunity to travel through Communist East Germany to Berlin to gain a first-hand look at that divided city and the people of East Germany.

The Heidelberg trip included tours of the historic Heidelberg Castle, Heidelberg University, many old churches, and other landmarks in the picturesque city on the Neckar River.

After a motor trip by bus through southern Germany to the Austrian border, many men of the 38th recently spent four days leave at Garmisch, an Army recreation area

Proficiency Pay Is Won

By 23rd Infantry PIO

Nine 23rd Infantry soldiers have been awarded proficiency pay (P-2) in their field, infantry communications specialist (Military Occupation Specialty 311.)

Of the nine, seven are in Headquarters Company. They include communications chief, MSgt Busey L. Jackson, SSgt. Gilbert McCullough, Sgt. Kenneth A. Dorsey, Sgt. Roscoe E. Jenkins, Sgt. Hollice N. West, Sp5 Homer Stevens, and Sp5 Leon Terrell. Sgt. Robert Cunningham of Company D, and SSgt. Kenneth F. Huffman, Combat Support Company, are the remaining two new P-2'ers.

All nine men were drawing P-1 pay, and scored high enough on their last proficiency pay test in the 311 MOS to be eligible for the P-2 pay, which is $60 per month per man.

For This Action He Was Given Medal of Honor

While a member of a reconnaissance patrol in Mouzon, France, during the latter part of World War I, sent out to ascertain the defense conditions of a damaged bridge, Sgt. Ludovicus M. Van Iersel, of the 9th Infantry, 2nd Division, volunteered to lead a patrol across the bridge in the face of heavy fire. Crawling along the debris of the ruined bridge, he came upon a trap, which gave way and precipitated him into the water. In spite of the swift current he succeeded in swimming across the stream and in spite of heavy enemy fire, made a careful examination of the hostile defense position. He returned to the other bank of the river and reported this valuable information to the battalion commander. For this action he received the Medal of Honor.

Aviation Selects Sp5 Mechanic Month's Soldier

By 2nd Aviation PIO

A 20-year-old school trained helicopter mechanic has been named Soldier-of-the-Month by the 2nd Division's 2nd Aviation Company.

The Soldier - of - the - Month award is given for military bearing, job knowledge and attitude. After appearing before the Division Trains board, the aviation candidate was chosen to represent Trains units in the highly competitive 2nd Infantry Division Soldier-of-the-Month competition.

Sp5 John G. Foight IV, up for the top soldier honor, has been with the 2nd Aviation Company for a year and a half. In 1960, after graduating from Area Joint High School in Murryaville, Pa., he joined the Army. The specialist is contemplating making the service a career.

New Sgt. Maj.

By 13th Trans PIO

The enlisted men of the 2nd Division's 13th Transportation Battalion are headed by a new sergeant major, a recent arrival from France.

Holding the post of battalion sergeant major is Sgt. Maj. Fabian R. Pervinich, who previously served with the 37th Transportation Command (Motor Transport) in Orleans, France.

The sergeant major's military career began in 1936 when he enlisted in the Illinois National Guard.

New S-2 Officer Reports to Cavalry

By 7th Cavalry PIO

A new S-2 (Intelligence) officer reported to 7th Cavalry Headquarters recently.

Lt. Paul L. Brougham Jr., recalled to active duty during the 1961 Berlin Crisis, served with the 100th Infantry Division at Fort Chaffee, Ark., prior to his arrival here.

Born in Holyoke, Mass., the lieutenant is single and resides at Fort Benning.

Two Leave 38th After Two Years

The 38th Artillery recently lost two lieutenants who have served with that unit for the past 22 months.

Leaving the 38th were Lt. John J. Cowden and Lt. Guy C. Arnall, both graduates of the Field Artillery Officer Orientation Course at Fort Sill, Okla.

After completing the orientation course at Fort Sill, both officers were assigned to the 38th Artillery in the role of platoon leaders. During this time the 38th had the mission of a training battalion.

In August 1961, Lt. Cowden and Lt. Arnall had a change in mission and were assigned as forward observers.

ASA, 2ND MED. BASKETBALL STRETCH
ASA's Woods, center, Staves Off Bryant, May

Medics Edge 303rd In Basketball Start

By Bob de Camara

The game, which had the partisan crowd stomping and yelling at times, went right down to the final whistle with both teams battling like end-of-the - season veterans looking for a championship. The game was the opener in the Division Trains company level basketball tourney.

2nd Med. led all first half but not by much, and the largest point spread at the end of any period was after the first when 2nd Med. was 19-14 over the ASA. At halftime, the shadow of a one point deficit hung over the ASA, but a 26-25 score was no sign for 2nd Med. to relax in the following period.

Mid-way through, Walter Clark was leading the 2nd Med. scoring with five baskets. And at the half, Ken Supernaut, the ASA ball-handling pro, led his tigers in scoring with four.

Back on the wood, the squads went through their best routines, both sides flashing red and blue uniforms up and down court and loud noisy crowd seated on wooden bleachers. With the fast pace and quick scoring ability of both units, it was often hard to tell the pale blue, red-numbered blur of the 303rd from the red-numbered royal blue of the "doctors." It wasn't hard though to see that ASA was going to give 2nd Med. in this half more trouble than they did in the first.

Putting on the extra effort, the ASA team passed 2nd Med. and whipped themselves to try and polling away. With 11 minutes left, the score stood 35-35 for the 303rd ASA team. With five minutes remaining and the score seesawing back and forth, ASA still led. In desperation, 2nd Med. put on a full-court press and rattled their opponents enough to gain a 50-45 decision with 24 seconds left in the game.

Volleyball and Golf Trophies Given in General's Office

Volleyball and golf trophies were presented Saturday morning in the office of the 2nd Division's commanding general.

The first place volleyball trophy was handed to Col. Ralph H. Hughett, commander of the 87th Infantry, by Brig. Gen. Charles Billingslea. The 87th Infantry was undefeated this past season in volleyball, ending with a 12-0 record.

Golf trophies were presented to winners in three golf categories. A first place was awarded in the senior and handicap divisions. The second place was awarded in the open division as the first place winner, Lt. Joe R. Hamby of the 69th Armor, was not available for the presentation.

Brig. Gen. Stanley L. Harding, assistant division commander, received the senior division golf award from Gen. Billingslea.

The next award was the second place trophy in the open division to Lt. Pat Patrick of the 9th Infantry.

The winner of the handicap division, Lt. David K. Williams, was not present to personally receive his trophy. Lt. Williams is in Korea. The trophy was received for Lt. Williams by Lt. Joel W. Breeding, assistant adjutant of the 23rd.

The only golf division which counts towards the unit's score in the commanding general's trophy is the open division. Each unit nominates a player to be represented in that division. The winning place consists of 20 points to the unit's standing, and second place is worth 10 points.

Signal Loses To 9th Inf.

The 122nd Signal Battalion flag football team was defeated by 9th Infantry 25-6 in Division play, to mark the second defeat for the team in the Division tournament.

Scoring the lone touchdown for Signal was Elijah Williams on a 25 pass play from Gene R. Ervin.

1st's Delta Lauded

By 1st Infantry PIO

Company D, 1st Infantry recently held a retreat review to honor the members of the volleyball team after winning the battle group volleyball championship.

Col. Edgar R. Poole, battle group commander, presented the team with embossed desk sets for their participation in the volleyball tournament.

The company trophy was received by First Sergeant Daril K. Broaddus. Members of the team receiving the desk sets were Isaac W. Davis, Ralph B. Barnard, Miguel Diaz-Rivera, Arzola Abraham-Rivera, Edward T. Collins, John M. Welch and Hyland E. Wars.

Army Sets Sights on Win Over Navy's Midshipmen

WEST POINT, N. Y. — The first of December is football "D-Day" for the cadets of West Point and the midshipmen of Annapolis.

Their invasion target is Municipal Stadium in Philadelphia where the two academies will pit their 11 best football players against each other in an historic gridiron clash that dates back 63 years.

Past experience has shown that season records cannot guage a winner, for this is a rivalry as old as football itself. No one can predict its outcome. But one thing is certain. The eyes of every soldier and sailor around the world will be turned toward Philadelphia on this day for a perennially colorful struggle — the Army-Navy game.

What sort of man plays in this football classic? Is he a gridiron giant, a would-be professional who is out to win the laurels of post-college football scouts? One might think this if he didn't know the story behind the contestants who play to the cheers of 100,000 fans and before a national television audience of millions.

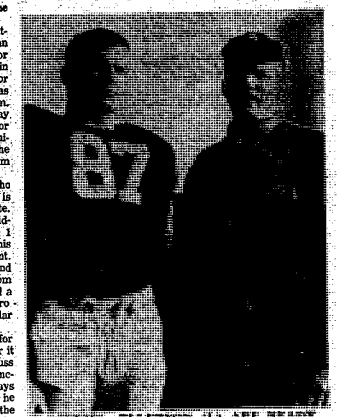
The service academy football player's primary objective is that of every member of his school—to become a regular officer in the service of our country. The requirements for this goal include a sound body — agile, tough and well conditioned. Another is a quick mind, capable of logically solving some of the complex problems that will confront the nation in the next three or four decades.

Primarily, the objective at the U.S. Military Academy is to produce men fit to lead in ground combat — men who, in time of war, can lead others from low flying airplanes, through steaming jungle swamps, over rugged mountain terrain, and up jagged snow covered peaks.

In reality, the football player who dons a West Point suit of armor to meet the gridiron foe has a most difficult role. He has elected to play a highly competitive specialized sport that has become a national pastime. At the same time he must bear the heavy academic burden required of all West Point cadets.

He lives the life required of every cadet at West Point. It begins at 6:30 a.m. and proceeds through what typically would include at least three academic classes of an hour and a half each, and a laboratory period every day.

His time is tightly scheduled from the required study period on Sunday evening, until completion of classes at noon on Saturday. Each daily class he attends will require outside preparation. With only 14 cadets in each, he will be called upon to participate in a discussion of the days lesson, solve required problems at the blackboard, the computer or in the lab.



Each minute of his day is budgeted and in a week's time he will spend some 20-25 hours in study. His outside reading is heavy, and he will be required to write an average of one lengthy thesis a week.

The ball player takes the same academic courses required of all cadets. Typical of these are literature and advanced exposition, analytic geometry and calculus, mechanics of solids, inorganic chemistry, international relations, economics and one of five foreign languages.

He will be tested frequently in every subject and can expect to receive two or three grades each week in every class. This goes for the athletic field as well as the academic classroom. The cadet is expected to stay abreast of every course for if he falls below the minimum standard in any one he is subject to dismissal from the academy.

The West Point cadet, who plays for the Army team is more than just an athlete. His participation on the gridiron in Philadelphia Dec. 1 is only an extension of his requirements at West Point. Monday morning will find him back in the classsroom continuing his work toward a bachelor's degree and a professional career as a regular officer.

His is a tough job, for study comes first. Whether it be an assignment to discuss Stokes' theorems of advanced calculus or football plays for Saturday's big game, he is fit for the task. It's the same for every man in the corps.

24 Golfers Presented Turkeys

Winners of first, second, third, fourth, fifth and sixth place were awarded turkeys at the recent Veterans Day Turkey Golf Tournament held at the Country Club.

Turkeys weighing 15 pounds each were presented to eight golfers who tied for first and second place with a low net score of 58.

They were: Majors Jack Lynch, Charles G. Gagliano and Wilbur J. Thiel, Capt. Clyde H. Orr, 1st Lt. Robert H. Black, Capt. Edward R. Dean, 1st Lt. Gerald K. Wilmart and Capt. Gwynn A. Teague.

Twelve other golfers each received a 12-pound turkey for tying for third, fourth and fifth place with a low net score of 60.

Four additional golfers each received a 10-pound turkey for sixth place low net scores of 61.

The golfers were: Col. (Ret.) Gustus Lockett, Lt. Col. Daniel A. Schrieber, Lt. Col. Buenaventura Esteves and Maj. Garmon O. Aure.

Better Bowling

HOW TO GRIP . . . Since a bowling ball weighs between 11 and 16 pounds, grip is important if only to keep from dropping it. Most bowling balls are three-finger balls. There are basically two ways to grip one, the natural grip and the compact grip. The natural grip is when fingers are spread out; the compact, when the fingers are close together. Aside from these common grips, there are at least a score of others recommended by as many experts. Although either one of the two explained above is considered best for the beginner, the best grip is that which feels most comfortable to the individual.

Of all game birds, the bobwhite may be the most popular and most familiar.

Bobwhite! Bobwhite! You have often heard him cheerfully telling you his name and have probably seen him many times. He is notifying other cock quail that this particular piece of real estate is his and warning them to stay out.

Bobwhites could be called "birds of the feather," for all winter long they live together amicably, eating, sleeping, and covey roosts in a unique circular formation on the ground, tails together and heads outward, radiating from the center like spokes of a wheel.

By May, the covey splits up and individuals pair off, interested only in building nests and rearing young. Bobwhites are devoted parents. Both parents construct the nest, share the responsibility of the brood, and if one dies or is killed, the other takes charge of rearing the young.

The cock also gets credit for helping in incubation duties, but it seems he prefer to perch on a nearby fence post and whistle. For during the nesting season, the familiar "bobwhite" is most frequently heard.

Perhaps everyone has come across the hen quail with a broken leg, or wing. This is the famous ruse used by quail, to lead a preditor away from its young.

Quail season started again on the reservation on Tuesday. Bag limit for quail this season is 12 per day, 30 per week. Fort Benning is stocked in the finest quail hunting area in the United States. This is a form of hunting which has delighted thousands for years.

Also, Tuesday marked the beginning of the season for the most sought after small game animal in the United States. This animal is hunted in all parts of the United States, from Florida to Washington. Many a hunter has cut his hunting teeth on none other than the cottontail. Rabbit season began Tuesday and continues to Feb. 28, 1963. The daily bag limit on Mr. Cottontail, is six per day.

SAFETY

I would again like to urge all to observe safety, and be sure of your target. Also remember each person must wear red or yellow headgear while hunting during the deer season.

STRANGE WOODBIRDS

Recently a strange species of birds have come to inhabit the reservation. Although these birds are not recorded by the Audubon Society, they are nevertheless in existence. The birds in question are all related to the lark family. These are the migratory woodland creatures that make increasing use of forests, lakes and streams, while out on a lark. These flighty visitors include many annoying birds, some comic, some foolish and some dangerous.

The most common of these woodland pest is the MIGRATORY LITTERBIRD. Spoor of this species is evident the year around. Seldom are you able to identify the home nesting ground of the litterbird. But there is ample reason to believe that it must prefer to live in pig pens, barns or garbage dumps.

Today's Sportrait

Today's sportrait spotlights PFC Ralph Maru, Company E, Infantry Battalion, The Student Brigade, from Tarrytown, N. Y., and a member of the 1962 Third Army baseball championship team.

PFC Maru started his baseball career while attending high school in his home town where he also lettered in track, basketball and football. He played his collegiate ball at Oswego College, Oswego, N.Y., where his major was in education.

In 1960 he played Class D ball with the Elmira League, the Alabama-Florida League in 1961, and was with the New York-Penn League in 1962 before entering the service.

PFC Maru joined The Student Brigade baseball team on his arrival last May and took over the second base spot for the post top team. His team went on to win the 1962 Major Unit Baseball League title and copped the Third Army crown at Redstone Arsenal, Ala., in August where he played second base throughout the tournament.

Maru is looking forward to seeing action with the Student Brigade team again this season.

Grid Rally Set by West Point Grads

All graduates of the U. S. Military Academy are reminded by the West Point Society of Philadelphia that the annual pre-game Army-Navy Rally will be held Nov. 30 at the Quartermaster Center, 2800 South 20th Street, Philadelphia.

In 1961, the rally was the gathering place for approximately 1,400 graduates, their friends and guests. Officials hope this year's gathering will be even more successful.

The affair will begin at 8:30 p.m.

Doughboys Turn Down Bowl Bid

Contrary to early reports, Fort Benning's undefeated football squad, the Doughboys, will not participate in the Missile Bowl this year.

The Doughboys will conclude their regular season Dec. 1, facing the Fort Campbell "Screaming Eagles" here.

Reason for declining participation in the bowl game was lack of a suitable opponent, officials report.

Shough's Sports Scope

By Pete Shough

Well, it has happened! The long string of 26 games without a defeat maintained by Alabama for the past three football seasons has been broken.

The Crimson Tide suffered a heart-breaking 7-6 defeat at the capable hands of Bobby Dodd and his Rambling Wrecks.

In looking back over last Saturday's play, it is easy to see several spots in the game where you can say the fatal error was made. Any grandstand quarterback can say, "If I were running the team, I would have gone for the one-point extra point after the Alabama TD or the field goal in the closing minutes of the game."

It is easy to say this when you are not actually calling the shots.

But think it over. Alabama did the right thing in going for the two points. The Tide needed the victory — not the tie. A tie would still have knocked them out of the nation's top slot in the press ratings. Their only hope was a pushing a two-point PAT into the end zone.

After grabbing a loose ball on the kick-off and moving it down to the nine yard-line, why did they pass instead of going on the ground or kicking a field goal? Alabama's play can be explained simply by the fact that an incompleted pass stops the clock, giving the Tide more time to organize for the final push into the coveted end zone. A field goal was out of the question on first down, especially on the nine yard-line with four downs remaining to score.

The Crimson Tide just ran into Georgia Tech when the breaks were running the wrong way and the breaks certainly determined the outcome.

The state of Alabama was shocked a second time last Saturday when highly touted Auburn was soundly drubbed by Georgia. This was a game that few fans, even the strongest Bulldog fans, figured to go the way it did.

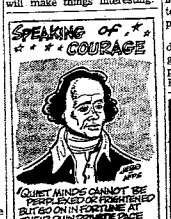
No one believed that Georgia, who is just able to make ends meet on the gridiron, had a chance to beat formerly 10th ranking Auburn.

Again last Saturday, the north and particularly the Big Ten continued the present ways of the 1962 season. Upset! Upsets! Upsets!

Northwestern's loss to the Spartans of Michigan State was probably the biggest upset and shocker on everybody's list. Michigan State apparently recovered from their defeat at the hands of Purdue two weeks ago.

Purdue, by the way, came closer to going to the Rose Bowl than it has in several years. The Boilermakers, who are suffering from a mediocre season's record, are full of fire in the Big Ten. Until last Saturday's defeat by Minnesota, the Boilermakers were right in contention for the cross-country jaunt to the nation's top bowl.

Ohio State proved that they still have a little spark left by their knocking off the bowl-hopeful Webfoots of Oregon.



Another Saturday with top-notch college football across the country in a last-minute scramble to pick up a bowl bid or insure their conference's top slot. Those are the weekends that indicate what teams have the strength to go all the way. It also is time to see if I can come up with winners.

Ohio State over Michigan—This is one of the country's greatest rivalries, so anything could happen. But Michigan just doesn't seem to have enough to make it happen.

Northwestern over Miami — The Wildcats have been beaten two weekends in a row and I don't think they plan to make it three.

Wisconsin over Minnesota — This should be one of the hardest fought games in the Big Ten this year with the tough Badgers coming out on top.

Auburn over Florida State—One Florida team cost Auburn more than they bargained for and surprising Florida State will make things interesting.

Tigers Cancel Game

The Fort Lauderdale Tigers of the Florida Professional Football League have canceled their scheduled Saturday night football game here, according to the Special Services Section at The Infantry Center.

Fort Benning handed the Tigers a previous 40-0 shellacking Nov. 11 in the Florida city.

This leaves the Doughboy 11 with only one remaining scheduled contest, a Dec. 1 clash with the Fort Campbell, Ky., "Screaming Eagles" on the Fort Benning gridiron.

Fort Benning currently has a 9-0 record this season and a win over the Kentucky team would produce the first undefeated team in Fort Benning history according to Special Services officials.

Shull TD Gives Unit Pigskin Title

In The Infantry Center Company - Level Touch Football championship playoff, Company B, 29th Infantry, edged Headquarters Company, 151st Engineer Group, 8-2.

With less than one minute left to play in the fourth quarter, Earl Easley, quarterback for the Infantrymen hit Dick Shull with a 30-yard TD pass for six points and ran the point after touchdown around left end for the two points.

Quarterback James Hill of the Engineers was credited with the two point safety.

In the second game Hdqs. and Hdqs. Company, 197th Infantry Brigade, defeated Headquarters Company, 577th Engineers Battalion, 6-0. Brigade's quarterback Michael McGlinch, tossed a TD pass to Thomas Gregory for the six points.

Second Battalion, The Student Brigade, won the third game by a forfeit from Company C, 58th Armored Rifle Battalion.

There is no charge for Columbus Symphony Orchestra concerts. A free nursery will be maintained by Jr. Red Cross Aides at the school for the convenience of parents attending the concert.

Outdoor Outlook

woods creatures is the RED-EYED SWALLOWER. He usually has a deservedly short life, and is often ostracized by better behaved birds. His cry, of course is "hic." His resting place on the ground is recognized by a collection of beer cans or whiskey bottles. Those bottles, by the way, when catching the sun's rays, sometimes start fires just as efficiently as a magnifying glass.

That brings us to the one bird that should be shot on sight. That's the ADDLEPATED SNIPE FLICKER. Fires are still the greatest threat to our forests and rangelands.

The cigarette snipe-flicker and his buddy, the BONFIRE BUZZARD must be exterminated.

Perhaps the most intolerant of the fowl we have to put up with is the REDHATTED LOON. Fortunately, this rare species is seasonal and does damage only during a five or six-week period in the fall. Biologists have determined that the loon has to have meat in order to survive. One of its more noticeable habits is that of shooting first and looking afterwards. This list of undesirable species is not complete, nor does it include the many crossbreeds and mutations that will be afield during the camping and hunting season this fall. Be alert to all these birds, and let's each search our own selves and be sure we have no relatives, or belong to any of the above species. Have you looked lately?

To Replace Out-Dated Transports

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—220 new Army busses will begin to replace 10-year-old obsolete and uneconomically reparable models in January. Delivery is expected at a rate of 30 per month.

The majority of the 45-passenger buses will go to Europe with a lesser number earmarked for Alaska and a few scheduled for stateside installations.

Built along standard commercial designs, the new vehicles have been modified with folding and stowable seats to allow conversion of the busses to ill-litter ambulances.

Funds for 540 additional busses are included in the FY 1963 budget and delivery of these is expected soon after the current order is filled.

By eliminating the more expensive special - military designs of busses and certain other vehicles, the Army expects to save $35 million in replacement costs during a five-year modernization program now in effect.

Simulated Atom Blast Researched

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—The Air Force will soon be able to simulate the tremendous shocks created by nuclear explosions.

A new facility to do the job is nearing completion at the Air Force Special Weapons Center, Albuquerque, N.M.

Already scheduled for early testing is the shock isolation system of an underground ballistic missile site launch control center.

The Air Force Systems Command said a full scale launch control center weighing over 25 tons will be suspended within the facility for the shock tests.

Since a control center has both launch personnel and electronic equipment, it must be protected from the shock generated by a nuclear blast.

The shock isolation system provides protection much like shock absorbers do for an automobile on a bumpy road.

But while a bumpy road produces shock from just one direction, a nuclear blast creates shock from several directions. This makes it necessary to completely isolate a launch control center because the surrounding ground may go up, down or sideways.

The new facility is the first of its kind, the Air Force said, in which shocks of this magnitude from more than one direction can be produced simultaneously.

Students Told Infantry Role Is Important

The role of the Army Infantry leader is the most important phase of military service in training and in combat, Lt. Gen. (Ret.) Reuben E. Jenkins told 180 officer graduates of The Infantry School's Orientation Course No. 5 here last week.

"Combat Infantrymen have been and always will be the determining factor in every war," Gen. Jenkins, who served in World Wars I and II and Korea, added.

He continued, "There has been a belief in high political circles that the development of atomic weapons will outmode the use of ground troops. But individuals who have expressed this belief have never been in combat and have never heard a shot fired in anger."

The job of the Infantry leaders is to succeed where diplomats and statesmen fail, Gen. Jenkins, who retired in 1954, pointed out. He added that Infantry leadership demands a deep decision to service and a willingness to make sacrifices.

"Our leaders also must have the traits of character that enable them to gain the trust and confidence of their subordinates," he said.

"On the training fields and in battle lines we see in the leaders' faces their traits of leadership and character," he concluded.

Honor graduate of the class was 2nd Lt. James R. Ellis. He received a certificate signed by Brig. Gen. Royal Reynolds Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School. Lt Ellis attained the highest academic class record, 94.2 points out of a possible 100.

For attaining the highest score in the Expert Infantryman Badge test, 2nd Lt. Ardeen R. Foss received a silver cup. Lt. Foss scored 1,356 points out of a possible 1,428 points.

Special Fee Offered At FDR Shrine

WARM SPRINGS, Ga. — All Service men, either in or out of uniform, are admitted at all times to President Franklin Delano Roosevelt's Little White House and Museum here at half rate.

This half rate also applies now to any member of the service man's family accompanying him. If not in uniform, showing of the ID card at the entrance ticket window is all that is required.

The Little White House grounds have been beautified and a new museum added within the last year. The museum contains a priceless collection of personal belongings, gifts, photos; documents and mementos associated with the late President's part-time residence in Georgia from 1924 till his death in 1945.

Warm Springs is 35 miles northeast of Columbus, 75 miles southwest of Atlanta and about 60 miles west of Macon.

Dr. Kleiner Takes Post As AU Prof

Dr. Jack Kleiner recently arrived here to assume the duties of assistant professor in business administration for the American University at The Infantry Center's Education Center.

This will be Dr. Kleiner's second assignment in Georgia, having served two years in the Army at Fort Gordon, Ga., 1951-1953.

He comes to Fort Benning from Washington, D.C., where he was a part-time instructor for the American University in addition to being general manager for a life insurance company.

DR. KLEINER

He completed two years at New York City College before being drafted into the Army in 1951.

While at Fort Gordon he took several courses at the University of Georgia's Extension Center in Augusta, Ga., and after his discharge from the Army in 1953 he attended the University of Georgia in Athens, receiving his bachelor of business administration in 1955.

Dr. Kleiner returned to New York to serve as a full-time professor of business administration at Farleigh Dickerson University in New Jersey for three years.

While teaching he also attended New York City College at night where he received his master of business administration degree in 1957 and a doctor of judicial science degree in 1961.

He also received a bachelor of law degree in 1958 and a master of laws degree in 1959.

The professor also has written a book on life insurance which was published in 1961.

YMCA Sets Dates of Glee Club Musical

Selected production numbers from "Flower Drum Song" will be presented Saturday at 9:30 p.m. by the Central High School Glee Club at the Armed Services YMCA.

The complete musical will be presented by the Glee Club the following week, Nov. 30 and Dec. 1, at the Palace Theatre in Phenix City under the direction of Mrs. B. F. Register, glee club sponsor. The choreography for the dance numbers is under the supervision of Miss Shirley Wooten, a member of the Girls Service Organization which is sponsoring the preview performance.

"Grant Avenue" will be sung by Linda Clark, portraying Linda Low, accompanied by dancers Joan Moseley, June Parks, Joan Barefoot, Terry Booker, Brenda Williams, Gail Griffin and June Branch.

"Don't Marry Me" will feature David Coggins as Sammy Fong and Debra Stillwell, as Mei Li, the female lead in the musical.

"Fan Tan Fanny", one of the big dance numbers, will be presented by Jane Self, Frankie Gullatt, Beverly Burks, Debra Wells, Sheryl Denson and Cathy Brown.

"Love Look Away," sung by the character, Helen, is the number which won for Miss Jenny Webb the title of "Miss Phenix City" for 1962. Miss Webb will be featured in this number.

"You Are Beautiful," the hit song of the male lead, Wong Ta, will be sung by Jerry Tisdell, and the entire group will join Jerry in the finale to the preview performance. Fans of Johnny Mathis will recall his hit recording of this number.

Mrs. Register, a teacher at Central High School is sponsor for the Glee Club as well as director for the popular Broadway musicals which the Glee Club presents each year.

All servicemen are cordially invited to the performance at Armed Services YMCA. The public is invited to the full performance to be given on Nov. 30 and Dec. 1, at the Palace Theater, Phenix City.

RECAP WITH DUKE'S T-150 RUBBER

In France It's Wine; But in U.S., Coffee Is Traditional Table Drink

The Army has provided coffee, the traditional American table drink, for its troops for the past 130 years, Col. (Ret.) William J. B. Cline of Atlanta, representative of the Coffee Brewing Institute of New York, said here recently.

Col. Cline, Post Quartermaster Section food adviser from April, 1955, to June, 1956, added that Army mess halls now make an average of about three cups a day for each soldier.

"If we can improve the quality of coffee everywhere, each person will drink more coffee," he said. "Our aim is to encourage people through a program of education and research to make and enjoy better coffee," he added.

Col. Cline, who neither sells nor represents any brand of coffee, said, "Coffee is more than just a beverage to the American people. It is a symbol of comfort and an expression of good living."

Some two and a half billion pounds of coffee are imported into the United States annually, most of it from South America. From more than 100 types of coffee available, the American people drink about 130 billion cups a year.

The purpose of making coffee is to extract and preserve the flavor from ground coffee. Properly made, coffee will have the optimum color, aroma, flavor, body and temperature. Anyone can make good coffee simply by following the proper directions, Col. Cline pointed out.

Because green coffee beans are devoid of aroma and a water infusion is bitter and unpalatable, they must be heated under controlled conditions to bring about the desired changes in chemical composition.

Soft water, freshly drawn from the tap, should be used in coffee making, Col. Cline pointed out. Hard water contains calcium, sodium and magnesium carbonates that precipitate when the water is heated. In time, coffee pots and urns can be ruined by lime deposits from these carbonates.

No single formula meets every coffee drinker's taste, the retired officer said. But most people like a brew of two gallons of water to a pound of ground coffee. The use of more water may be acceptable to some people but it results in weak coffee. However, once the desired ratio has been ascertained, it should be maintained.

The most satisfactory coffee making equipment is the urn, Col. Cline said. The thermostatically controlled heat keeps the coffee at the proper temperature regardless of how infrequent the demand for the brew may be.

Water used to make coffee in an urn should be poured only once through the bag. Then the bag should be removed or the steam from the hot coffee will draw bitter substances from the coffee into the bag and spoil the flavor.

Also, Col. Cline pointed out, the last cup or two left in the urn should be discarded. If it is not, solid matter from the coffee will settle at the bottom of the urn and fill the remaining brew with dregs.

No equipment in Army mess halls needs more careful cleaning than coffee urns, the colonel said. All urn bags should be rinsed in hot water after use and then submerged in cold water. Soaps and detergents should be avoided to prevent ruining the flavor.

Col. Cline gave coffee making demonstrations and talks in mess halls of the 197th Infantry Brigade, 151st Engineer Group, Lawson Army Aviation Battalion, Infantry School Battalion and 2nd Infantry Division.

RE-UP PLAQUE WINNER . . . Receiving the congratulations of Col. Mahlon E. Gates, commanding officer of the 151st Engineer Group, is Capt. Strzok (R), commanding officer of the 586th Engineer Company. The captain's company was cited as having the best reenlistment rate for the group for the month of October. At left, holding the award, is SFC Joseph A. Yandell, operations sergeant.

294 Awarded Silver Wings Of Parachutist

Parachutist Badges were pinned on 294 servicemen during recent graduation ceremonies of the U.S. Army Infantry School's basic airborne class.

Honor graduate of the course, the only airborne training course operated by the Army, was U. S. Marine Corps Pvt. Dennis C. Redmond, a member of the 2nd Forces Reconnaissance Company, Camp Lejeune, N.C.

In addition to the honor graduate, there were two other Marine Corps enlisted men in the class, and 57 Army officers and 232 enlisted men, two U.S. Air Force officers and one U.S. Naval officer.

The lone Navy representative was Lt. Cmdr. Wendell Webber, a member of Underwater Demolition Unit One, U. S. Naval Amphibious Base, Coronado, Calif.

One of the Army officers is what airborne personnel call a "second generation paratrooper," or the son of a former airborne soldier.

Second Lt. William S. Geimer's father, Lt. Col. (Ret.) E. N.C., had a long association with airborne units.

During World War II, he served with the 17th Airborne Division and in the Korean conflict was with the 187th Regimental Combat Team.

From 1956 to 1958, he served with the 11th Airborne Division and from 1958 until retirement this year was with the 82nd Airborne Division at Fort Bragg, N.C.

He'll Retire With Hotel In Ireland

SCHOFIELD BARRACKS, Hawaii (AFPS) — When Sgt. James Joseph Morrison of the 25th Infantry Division retires next March 20, he can expect a monthly check for about $120. Hardly enough to enable a man with four children to sit back and take it easy.

But Morrison's anything but worried. With the luck of the Irish he's just learned that he's heir to a hotel in Ireland and almost $56,000 after taxes.

It all began a year ago when the sergeant, in New York for his mother's funeral, visited his godmother, a nun whom he hadn't seen in 30 years. Mother Superior Julia Agnes told him that when the Church had sent her to Ireland she had looked into his family history and believed he was the heir to the Morrison estate in Killaloe, south of the River Shannon, where the counties Limerick, Cork and Kerry meet.

There followed negotiations by mail with English lawyers. Morrison began receiving letters. Next a Honolulu bank notified him that 400 English pounds ($1,120) had been deposited in his name. After that came an additional deposit of $5,000.

That settled it for Morrison. "Stop sending money until I find out what's going on here," he told the lawyers. Their next communication with him was a copy of the Morrison will establishing him as the heir. He'll see his property in person after his retirement.

Could Popeye's Diet Of Spinach Be Poor?

By Lt. Col. Hubert W. Moreland
Preventive Dentistry Officer
(Part One of Two Parts)

Is Popeye wrong? Did you know that spinach in the amounts Popeye eats could be harmful?

Too much of anything in fact can be harmful but spinach contains oxalic acid which easily combines with calcium to make a compound your body doesn't use. So, if you eat excessive quantities of spinach it could deprive your body of needed calcium.

What about milk? Should you drink lots of milk? No, not necessarily. In fact, for most children, a pint to a pint and a half a day is enough until they reach adolescence. Too much milk may curb the appetite and actually hinder the consumption of good proteins like meat, fish and eggs.

Milk may be used as a "washer down" of other foods and deprive the chewing apparatus of exercise. Some dietitians even advise against its use during pregnancy and substitute calcium and phosphorus in other forms.

A parent tells me that Johnny or Susie won't eat vegetables and she just knows she or he won't get his vitamins and minerals.

Well, I'm on Johnny and Susie's side. I despise cauliflower and eat green beans only to be polite, but that doesn't help Johnny or Susie. If they don't eat vegetables, so what. Give them fresh fruits - without sugar please. Fruits are just as nutritious and taste a lot better.

If they won't eat either, then you do have a problem. Maybe you need a new cookbook. And what about raw vegetables? They are nutritious too and much tastier than limp soggy cooked ones.

There is another side to that record too. Some parents feel that if the children have their daily vitamin pill and calcium pill and iron pill they don't need to worry about what foods are eaten. This too is wrong.

Certainly minerals and vitamins are needed but they are not a substitute for a well-balanced diet. As a matter of fact, if your children get a well-balanced diet they should normally have no need for additional vitamins and minerals. A well-balanced diet will provide these in a form that is readily used by the body.

If you have any questions on oral health, please write to Preventive Dentistry Officer, Dental Section, USAIC, Fort Benning, Ga., or telephone 545-7741.

Caribbean Crisis Throws Light on Roosevelt Roads

"A big, unique naval station with the potential of becoming the world's best weapons training complex."

That, in the words of its commander, Capt. Walter Bridges, is Roosevelt Roads—the Navy's $113 million Caribbean base that controls 37,000 acres of 10 islands and is certain to be a factor in future Cuban developments.

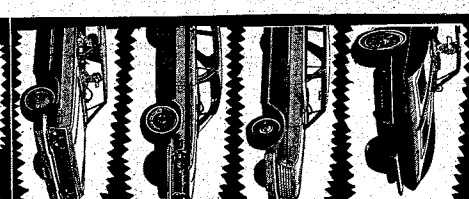
Facing Vieques Island where the services stage large-scale amphibious maneuvers, the Puerto Rican bastion dates from the early years of WWII when Hitler's armies, across the English Channel in a prostrate France, were a powerful threat to the British Isles.

The 800-acre base was intended as a refuge for the British fleet and possibly the Royal Family if the Germans launched an invasion. It never came; Roosevelt Roads fell into disuse until 1956 when the Navy reactivated and modernized it.

Today the base has a stateside American population of 4,600 and a $4 million payroll annually for 600 Puerto Rican employees. Twenty miles of fencing mark its boundaries; among its 84 miles of paved roads are some 1,400 buildings that include an elementary and a high school and 755 family homes.

Capt. Bland Named To TIS Committee

Capt. Crews M. Bland has been assigned to Command and Staff Department as an instructor in Engineer Committee.



His most recent assignment was with the 809th Engineer Battalion in Thailand.

He is a graduate of the Army Engineer Officer Associate Career Course at Fort Belvoir, Va. His decorations include the Army Commendation Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster and the Good Conduct Medal.

Capt. Bland and his wife, Marion, are from Augusta, Ga. They and their son Bruce, age 11, reside at 484 Craig Drive.

Intelligence School Is Under DIA

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Department of Defense has established a Defense Intelligence School to be an advanced or post-graduate professional educational institution attached to the Defense Intelligence Agency (DIA).

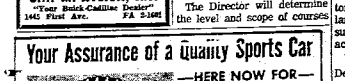
Although no site has been selected, elements are presently operating as part of the Army Strategic Intelligence School and the Naval Intelligence School, both located here.

When established the school will be commanded by a general or flag officer with the rank of brigadier general or the equivalent.

The school will conduct courses related to DOD intelligence functions to prepare selected military officers and key civilian personnel for important command, staff and policy-making positions in national and international security positions.

It will also prepare such personnel for duty in military attache positions and assist in career development of personnel assigned to intelligence functions.

Officer students in the 27-week intelligence course will generally be lieutenant colonels or commanders. This course is expected to have classes of approximately 200 persons, military and civilian.



The attache course will be for officers in the grade of colonel or Navy captain.

The Director of the Defense Intelligence Agency will operate the school under the direction of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The Director will determine the level and scope of courses of instruction, establish criteria for selection of students for resident courses, provide for correspondent courses, and handle budget and administration matters.

The DIA Director will also select the school's commandant from nominations submitted by the services. According to the directive, the Commandant and Deputy Commandants will normally be from different military departments, while the staff and faculty will be selected on an approximately equal basis from the various services and will include civilian associates.

New Army Language Institute Established

WASHINGTON (ANS) — The Department of the Army will establish a new Defense Language Institute to provide technical direction and monitor all Department of Defense language training other than such classes at the service academies.

Under a new Department of Defense Directive (5160.41), the Army will assume responsibility for conducting a major portion of the full and part time language instruction now under way in the various military services. The Directive is based on an Army plan prepared under instructions from the Deputy Secretary of Defense.

The Defense Language Institute (DLI) will set academic standards and supervise classes and facilities for both part time and full time foreign language instruction in the United States and overseas. It also will direct the English program for foreign military personnel visiting the United States. Both civilian and military linguistic experts will be on the staff.

No immediate change is planned in language programs at existing centers such as the Army Language School at Monterey, Calif., or at civilian universities.

An instruction facility in the Washington area also will be maintained by DLI, using as a nucleus the Language Department of the Naval Intelligence School at the U. S. Naval Station, Washington, D. C.

While the above schools will be controlled by the Department of the Army, the Air Force will continue to operate its English Language School at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas. Its curriculum, methods and standards will be under the technical control of DLI, however.

Agreements and contracts with the State Department's Foreign Service Institute, civilian universities and commercial language schools will supplement these facilities.

Among the benefits to be expected from creation of DLI are:

1. All Defense language requirements can be assembled and studied in one place to determine the best way of meeting them.

2. Greater economy and efficiency are anticipated in conducting those language programs which lend themselves to Defense Department - wide treatment.

Some consolidation or other changes may take place later in language instruction facilities to further increase efficiency and economy.

Disabled Civilian Workers Receive Praise From DOD

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Defense Department has long recognized that persons with major physical disabilities can do good jobs as civilians.

In accordance with this idea, the Defense Department, the world's largest employer, recently called on the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force to provide examples of handicapped employees doing exemplary jobs in Federal Government service.

National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week, observed Oct. 7-14, was the occasion for this request. One example gives dramatic evidence of how the program of employing the handicapped succeeds.

Ralph Jones, an attorney, has worked in the General Counsel's office since 1955 and is actively engaged in the evaluation of space activities as related to law.

Aided by his guide dog "Barron," Jones moves around the Pentagon with ease. His secretary reverses the normal secretary-boss relationship as she requested passages into a recording machine for him to evaluate.

Termed a highly competent, dedicated man with a phenomenal memory by his fellow workers, he has overcome his handicap so well one forgets that he is totally blind.

He served in the Army from 1943 and until 1949, when he was retired after losing his sight. He graduated from the University of Pennsylvania Law School in 1954 and was admitted to the District of Columbia Bar in Oct. 1954.

FORT BENNING, GEORGIA, HOME OF U.S. ARMY INFANTRY CENTER

VOL. 21, NO. 12 — FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 30, 1962 — FORT BENNING, GA. — 48 Pages, 5c

Col. Harwood Named to OC Hall of Fame

Lt. Col. Victor K. Harwood has been named to the U. S. Army Infantry Officer Candidate School Hall of Fame.

Eligible for the honor are Infantry OCS graduates who have earned the Medal of Honor, who have attained a high state or federal government position, or who have attained the rank of lieutenant colonel or higher while on active duty. Selection of eligibles is by nomination.

Col. Harwood, who was promoted to his present rank in March, is chief of the Operations Section, Airborne-Air Mobility Department, The Infantry School.

He has been with the department since January, 1959, serving as chairman of the Air Mobility Committee, Advanced Airborne Committee and the Test and Evaluation Sub-Committee.

The airborne officer, who has more than 200 jumps to his credit and manages to jump at least once a month, entered the Army Feb. 24, 1942.

Two months later he arrived for his first tour at Fort Benning as a member of the OCS. In August of the same year he was graduated with class No. 55 and commissioned a second lieutenant.

During the latter stages of World War II, 1944 and 1945, he served in Europe as a member of the First Allied Airborne Army. This unit was composed of a British and two U. S. airborne divisions.

Before coming to the Airborne-Air Mobility Department, Col. Harwood served with The Infantry School's Ranger Department from July, 1958, to January, 1959.

From July, 1957, to July, 1958, he was with the Military Assistance Advisory Group to Vietnam. From July, 1956, to June 1957, he was with the 101st Airborne Division at Fort Campbell, Ky., and from December, 1953 to February, 1956, with the 187th Airborne Regimental Combat Team at Kyushu, Japan, and Fort Bragg, N. C.

During his career, the holder of the Army Commendation Medal, Combat Infantryman Badge and Master Parachutist Badge has completed five service school courses.

They include OCS, basic airborne, Ranger and Infantry officer advanced courses, all at Fort Benning, and the Armed Forces Far East command advanced intelligence refresher course in Tokyo.

Col. Harwood and his wife, Martha, have five children, Victor K., 10, Alan R., 9; Mark T., Donna, 6, and Gary M., 5.

Two General Officers Tour Post During Brief Visits This Week

Lt. Gen. Russell L. Vittrup, deputy chief of staff for personnel, Department of the Army, and Maj. Gen. Richard J. Meyer, deputy chief of staff for individual training, Continental Army Command, visited here this week.

Gen. Vittrup called on Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center and commandant of The Infantry School.

Thursday the three-star general was briefed by The Infantry Center G-1 Section and later visited the 31st Transportation Company at Lawson Army Aviation Command.

A visit to the 2nd Division Aviation Company with Brig. Gen. Charles Billingslea, commanding general of the 2nd Infantry Division, was also scheduled at Lawson.

Gen. Vittrup and Gen. Billingslea flew by helicopter to the Sand Hill area for a tour of the 2nd Division.

An official luncheon was held at the Main Officers' Open Mess. The general departed post following the luncheon.

During his stay, Gen. Meyer observed machine gun marksmanship by Officer Candidate Class No. 2, operations aspects of residual radiation conducted by Career Course No. 2, and problems of evasion, escape and survival by Associate Career Course No. 1.

Gen. Meyer also was slated to participate in a discussion of basic airborne training and procedures of combined programs of instruction and language training for orientation students.

The general was scheduled to return to Fort Monroe Wednesday morning.

Post University Branch to Offer Saturday Class

Beginning Feb. 2, the American University Branch here will offer classes on Saturday morning.

In addition to the eight-week classes meeting twice a week —Tuesdays and Thursdays — the Saturday morning classes will run for 16 weeks, the last class on May 18.

These classes are designed by the American University primarily for personnel and dependents unable to attend evening courses.

Several courses in education will be offered as well as courses in liberal arts.

A firm schedule for the classes beginning in February should be available by mid-January, according to Dr. John Timour, director of the American University at The Infantry Center's Education Center.

The American University also is expected to offer for the first time a course in international relations.

Swift Strike II Participants Again Lauded

For exemplary conduct and devotion to duty, Fort Benning personnel who took part in Exercise Swift Strike II in and around Sumter, S. C., in August have been highly commended by the city's civic officials.

A resolution signed by Sumter Mayor Clinton G. Brown and W. S. Heath, civilian coordinator of the Shaw - Sumter Community Council, citing the troops' accomplishments has been sent to all post units which participated in the exercise.

The resolution commends officers and enlisted men for reflecting credit upon themselves and the Army.

It reads: "The citizens of Sumter County desire to express their sincere and heartfelt appreciation for this outstanding accomplishment.

"It helped immeasurably in maintaining close, cordial and amicable relations and understanding between the military and civilian populace. Be it resolved and decreed that the actions of all personnel involved in the operation have left a lasting favorable impression on the citizens of Sumter."

A copy of the resolution was included in the minutes of the city's Community Council meeting.

Operation Swift Strike II was the largest peacetime maneuver conducted by the Armed Forces and involved more than 70,000 troops.

Holiday Here Injury Free, Officials Note

Fort Benning personnel came through Thanksgiving and the weekend without any fatalities or serious injuries resulting from accidents.

Norman M. Evans, Infantry Center safety officer, praised the responsible effort of hunters and motorists from the post.

However, there were enough people on the highways and in the woods at sometime during the period to put renewed faith in the results of constant safety vigilance, Evans added.

Fort Benning also went through the long Veterans Day weekend without fatalities.

The longest holidays are yet to come, Evans commended, referring to the Christmas and New Year season.

He cautioned everyone to keep safety as one of the main words in his vocabulary and keep up the good work.

Navy, Air Force End Extensions Caused by Crisis

Washington (AFPS) — The Secretary of Defense has authorized the Navy and Air Force to terminate the extension of tours of duty and to release those Reservists called to active duty in connection with the Cuban crisis.

The active duty extension for Navy and Marine Corps personnel was ordered by the Navy on Oct. 23. The call-up of 24 troop carrier squadrons from the Air Force Ready Reserve was ordered by the Air Force Oct. 27.

Col. Wilson Is Assigned With School

Lt. Col. Gerald R. Wilson has been assigned as deputy chairman, Defense Committee (Personnel and Logistics), Command and Staff Department, The Infantry School.

This is Col. Wilson's third tour of duty at Fort Benning. In 1942 he attended Officer Candidate School and from 1953 to 1955 he served as G-2 of the 3rd Division.

Colonel Wilson served with the 25th Division in Europe from 1944-1946. In 1946 he completed the regular war-time course at Command and General Staff College. He served with the 3rd Division in Korea from 1951 to 1952. Other overseas service included post commander in Bamberg, Germany, from 1955 to 1956 and duty as senior adviser in Song MAO, Vietnam from Oct., 1961 to Oct., 1962.

From 1959 to 1961 Col. Wilson was commandant of Third U. S. Army NCO Academy.

His decorations include Bronze Star with Oak Leaf Cluster, the Army Commendation Medal with two Oak Leaf Clusters, the Combat Infantryman's Badge with Star and the Purple Heart.

Col. and Mrs. Wilson's oldest son, Gerald R., Jr., is at the Citadel. Their other children, Dale, 15, Cynthia Lynn, 13, Clark Lee, 9, reside at 213 Sigerfoos Road with their parents.

NCO HONORED . . . Sgt. Bobby W. Berry of Company D, 577th Engineer Battalion, was recently named "Noncommissioned Officer of the Month" for November 1962. Sgt. Berry will be awarded a $25 Bond and a three-day pass from Col. Mahlon E. Gates, 151st Engineer Group commander, today. (Photo by Sp4 Watkins)

TSB Tops Mark In CAA Drive

The Student Brigade went over the top in the recent Civilian Activities Association drive with an overall total of $18,224 in contributions and 110.11 per cent of its goal.

The leaders in the drive were the 2nd Student Battalion with 121 percent of their goal, $6,452. The 5th Student Battalion was the first to reach its goal of $2,411 and went on to collect a total of $2,830, which was 17 percent above the goal.

In all, the three student battalions contributed more than 54 percent above their fair share for this campaign.

14th Atom Sub Is Due In January

GROTON, Conn. (AFPS)—The 14th nuclear-powered submarine to be launched here at General Dynamics' Electric Boat Division is named for the Revolutionary patriot whose dying words were: "I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country."

The Polaris-armed Nathan Hale will slide down the ways Jan. 12, christened by Mrs. George W. Anderson Jr., wife of the Chief of Naval Operations.

Blimp-shaped, 42 feet long and displacing 7,000 tons, the Nathan Hale is sister-ship of the Lafayette, launched last May 8 and the Alexander Hamilton, launched Aug. 16.

Nathan Hale is equipped for underwater launching of the 1,500-mile-range Polaris missile and the 2,500-mile missile now being developed.

Appropriately she honors the New London, Conn., schoolmaster who, as a lieutenant in the Revolution, volunteered as a spy for Gen. George Washington. Disguised as a Dutch teacher, Hale was captured by the British Sept. 21, 1776, and hanged at the age of 21.

BLOOD PROGRAMS

Through 54 regional blood programs the Red Cross obtained 2,422,000 volunteer donations in 1960-61. Blood was provided for 4,000 civilian and federal hospitals.

President Lifts Naval Quarantine of Cuba

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—President John F. Kennedy announced at his news conference, Nov. 20, that the quarantine on Cuba-bound shipping had been lifted.

He instructed the Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara to halt the ban after Chairman Khrushchev agreed to remove all IL-28 bombers now in Cuba, under United States observation.

Chairman Khrushchev said the planes will be withdrawn within 30 days.

"In addition," the President said, "the Soviet government has stated that all nuclear weapons have been withdrawn from Cuba and no offensive weapons will be reintroduced."

Our inspection of ships carrying Soviet missiles posing an offensive threat to the United States and the Western Hemisphere had been carried out during the quarantine. At the same time U. S. surveillance planes kept a continuous watch on the dismantling of offensive missile sites in Cuba.

"Evidence to date indicates that all known offensive missile sites in Cuba have been dismantled," the President said. He also noted that the count of missiles leaving Cuba "closely corresponded to our own information" and agreed with the number reported by the Soviet Union.

But the President made it clear that the United States was not yet satisfied with the carrying out of the agreement over Cuba. Cuba's government has still refused to allow the United Nations to carry out a ground-check on the island.

As long as this safeguard, "an important part" of the agreement, is lacking, we have no assurance that future introduction of offensive weapons will not be made.

"Consequently," Mr. Kennedy said, "if the Western Hemisphere is to continue to be protected against offensive weapons, this Government has no choice but to pursue its own means of checking on military activities in Cuba."

The President also remarked that a peaceful solution of the Cuban crisis "might well open the door to the solution of other outstanding problems" in the world.

He also said there was much to be "grateful" for during the week of Thanksgiving. "The unity of this hemisphere, the support of our allies and the calm determination of the American people."

99 Qualify For Prized Ranger Tab

Nine students from three Allied countries were among the 99 servicemen recently completing The Infantry School Ranger course.

Receiving the Ranger tab with U. S. servicemen were two officers from the Republic of Korea, one from Iran, and three officers and three enlisted men from Canada.

Honor graduate was Canadian Army Sgt. Henri Laporte of Camp Bakeatley, Quebec.

For the extra effort required to become the honor graduate, Sgt. Laporte was awarded a plaque from the Association of the U. S. Army given to the outstanding graduate of each class, and a year's subscription to the professional journal, INFANTRY Magazine.

Also included in the class were 78 U. S. Army officers and 11 enlisted men, and one U. S. Marine Corps enlisted man.

EQUADOR ACTION

Four U. S. officers and 26 enlisted technicians assist with the Civic Action Program in Equador. . . 17 major projects costing about two million dollars. Its success means a higher standard of living for thousands of individuals, greater prestige for the Ecuadorian armed forces in the eyes of the people, and a better understanding between the people of Equador and the United States.

Gen. Gee Cites National Defense Programs' Growth

The Army's programs for national defense are progressing and gaining in stature, Brig. Gen. Samuel E. Gee, director of Army programs, Office of the Chief of Staff, Department of the Army, told more than 400 members of the Columbus - Phenix City - Fort Banning Chapter of the Association of the U.S. Army here Nov. 20.

Gen. Gee, a 1933 graduate of the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y., told the AUSA members the Department of the Army structure has been streamlined in a reorganization that has created new major commands. These commands have improved Army planning, training, research and logistics.

"Within recent months the Army has made many significant improvements in its combat readiness capability," he said. "We have increased our combat divisions, more than doubled the personnel of the Special Forces and have received substantial increases in funds to obtain modern material."

Gen. Gee pointed out that the present Army programs structure conducts five control programs. They include the troop program, which provides guidance in procurement and training troops.

There is also the material program that sets supply and equipment goals to support both peacetime and mobilization needs. The installation program handles Army real property from its acquisition to its disposal. The Reserve Components, including the ROTC, are under the Reserve Components program. The research and development program conducts research and development of projects, he said.

This new programming structure was announced by the Office of the Secretary of Defense early in 1961. The plan was developed because of the need to identify military programs in terms of missions, Gen. Gee added.

"It was presented mainly in terms of major military missions instead of in the needs of the individual services," he continued. "Quantities of weapons and equipment were indicated not only for fiscal year 1963 but also through 1967."

In this five-year period the Army's entire defense activity has been organized into eight major functional type programs.

The Strategic Retaliatory Forces Program includes the nation's manned bombers, intercontinental ballistics missiles and Polaris submarines. The Continental Air and Missiles Defense Forces program incorporates the warning and defense system against airborne attack.

The General Purpose Forces contain some 65 per cent of the Army's personnel and dollar "resources. Among these forces are Air Force tactical units and virtually all the active Navy and Marine Corps forces. The Airlift and Sealift program includes Military Sea Transportation Service, Military Air Transport Service and troop carrier squadrons of the Air Force.

The General Support Program covers all support activities not assigned to other major programs. It includes recruit and technical training, construction and operation of military installations, medical services and military retired pay.

"This revision in the programming system will be of great value to Army management," Gen. Gee said. "It will facilitate management of the five-year program structure and will permit ready identification of program and budget data in terms of major Army commands at the department level."

The new system will enhance the Department of the Army's ability to justify its requirements by more closely relating resource needs to specific missions and the operating Army organization charged with implementing these missions, he concluded.

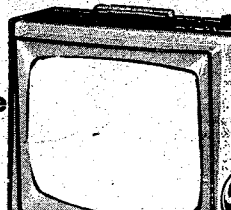
Help 197th Help a Tot Be Merry

Men of the 197th Infantry Brigade will play Santa Claus this Christmas for the underprivileged children of the Columbus area.

Plans are being made to collect discarded or unserviceable toys and clothing which the men and their wives will repair after duty hours.

The operation, which includes a pre-Christmas delivery to the needy, has been appropriately named "The Red Nose Express."

A pick-up schedule will be announced. Further information may be had by calling 545-1065.



1st Lt. Downes Admitted to Bar

First Lt. Michael M. Downes, legal officer of The Infantry Center Troop Command, was recently admitted to the practice of law in Georgia.

After receiving his undergraduate degree in 1957, Lt. Downes was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Army Reserve. He received his law degree at the University of Georgia in 1960. In 1960 he was called to active duty here and attended the Basic Infantry Course, Ranger, Airborne and Pathfinder training.

Military Aid to India Containment in Action

India is another crisis in the Free World's struggle to contain the political cancer of Communism — a new battlefield where Western arms can help scotch this latest Red territorial grab. In brief, what helps India helps us.

In the beginning it looked like a border clash over Himalayan real estate — a flare-up of an old dispute. With the Cuban crisis making headlines around the world, Red China's aggression seemed a military sideshow that would eventually simmer down to negotiation.

But now Prime Minister Nehru in rallying his people speaks of an "all-out war . . . a full-fledged war . . . a kind of brutal and callous war." His words must be giving the leaders of the so-called "neutral bloc" some disquieting second thoughts. For the Chinese invasion of India is naked aggression against a peaceful neighbor comparable to North Korea's lunge across to 38th parallel in 1950.

Mr. Nehru calls it "the grossest form of imperialism functioning across our borders . . . a travesty of truth and decency in international behavior."

We can be encouraged to hear him say "We must stand up to it. Not only we, but all decent-minded persons and decent-minded countries who value their freedom anywhere — in Asia, Africa, Europe and America."

Such words have been uttered before by brave men who cherish liberty. It's heartening to hear them again from Mr. Nehru. (AFPS)

CHAPLAIN'S CORNER

Educational Opportunity

By Chaplain (Col.) Silas E. Decker
The Post Chaplain

The Army, with its MOS program of training plus its programs with schools and colleges, is one of the great educational organizations in the world. In addition, it offers on post, on-campus courses provided by some of our country's great universities.

Having attended some of our Army's outstanding schools and having participated in the Army's extension university program, I consider the highest praise inadequate to properly evaluate the real worth of this educational program.

The learning process should never end for any of us. We learn from our instructors and our daily associates. Each of us has had experiences and acquired knowledge worthy of sharing. The chaplains' program is certainly a teaching process.

This generation lives under considerable mental tension affecting each of us as members of Army units, family units and as individuals; nevertheless each young man is fortunate to face the challenges and opportunities now afforded. This is certainly true of the educational opportunities which, if successfully pursued, can open many new doors to knowledge and lead to experiences which will make each new day a thrilling experience and a new adventure. "It is a great time to be alive!"

Each of us should take advantage, daily, of this learning process, for the good of our country and for our own personal advancement. Inquire at your headquarters for more information.

Army to Document Parts of Missiles

A new concept in documentation that will catalogue for the first time all common-use type Army missile parts in a small, readily accessible package will be put into effect early in January by the Army Missile Command at Redstone Arsenal, Ala.

The new system will give contractors a comprehensive file on Army missile parts, assisting them in designing new missiles or components using parts already in use in other Army missiles. It will reduce duplication in missile design through documentation of the parts in each Army missile and by use of a rapid retrieval system.

Employment of this concept is expected to save more than $3 million per year through increased efficiency of design and production engineers. It is also expected to increase standardization of missile parts.

Safety, Quality Goals of Airborne

How safe is military parachuting?

If military parachuting was as dangerous as most "jump stories" indicate, few Airborne soldiers would be able to purchase life insurance. However, rigorous training and absolute adherence to necessary safety practices have made parachutists as eligible for insurance as any chairborne file clerk.

In fact, the Airborne-Air Mobility Department was recently named as custodian of The Infantry Center Safety Award for Fiscal Year 1962, as a result of its outstanding safety record. During this period, the department conducted over 5,600 parachute jumps with only 46 injuries, none of which were fatal. This is an injury rate of less than one-tenth of one percent.

During the same period, automobile accidents resulted in 17 fatalities and 136 injuries to Fort Benning military personnel alone.

This does not imply that parachuting is child's play. A parachutist must, by necessity, maintain excellent physical condition and be so trained that he reacts instinctively in the event of an emergency or potential danger. Safety and quality, therefore, are the keynotes of training conducted by the Airborne-Air Mobility Department.

As Col. Michael Paulick, department director, says, "The objective of the Airborne Course is to produce qualified military parachutists. A military parachutist must be physically able to fight upon landing. If he injures himself on the jump, he may jeopardize his own life or the lives of others and — as a result — the entire mission may fail. Therefore, a student who cannot be expected to make safe parachute jumps will not be awarded the badge of the military parachutists."

The only way to become a military parachutist is to complete the Airborne Course offered by the Airborne-Air Mobility Department here at The Infantry School. To see how these men are taught to parachute safely from an aircraft flying 1,250 feet above the ground, let's look at the Airborne training conducted by this department.

The Airborne Course currently is of four weeks duration. Each week is a definite training phase and is known as either Physical Conditioning and Motivation (PC&M), Ground, Tower, or Jump Week. PC&M Week consists of administrative in-processing, training apparatus, and intensive physical training.

At the end of this week the Airborne PT test is conducted. Failure to pass this test means the student must repeat the week with the PC&M Sub-Committee, and build-up physically to an acceptable level.

Ground Week

The student who completes PC&M Week satisfactorily progresses to Ground Week. Ground Week is devoted to additional physical training, safe exit from an aircraft, parachute landing falls, and pre-jump procedures in the aircraft. All practical work is on an individual basis, and each student is critiqued strictly on his personal performance.

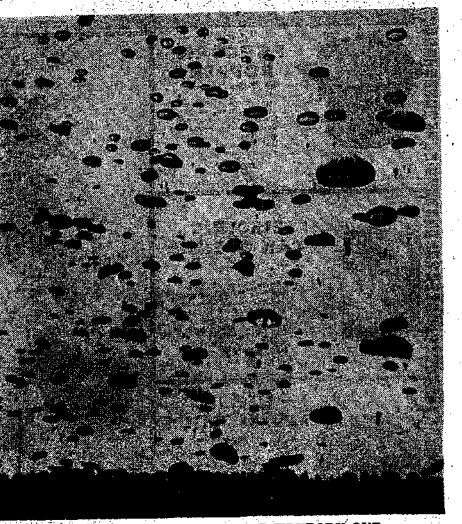
In Tower Week, the student continues training on techniques previously learned, with emphasis on his performance as part of a "stick" of jumpers making a mass jump.

He is dropped from the 250-foot free tower and is taught how to maneuver his parachute during descent. He also learns emergency landing procedure, use of the reserve parachute, and procedures for landing in high winds. Formal physical training requirements increase daily throughout the course.

Jump Week is the final week of course. It's during this week that each student makes five qualifying jumps from an aircraft in flight. He also receives instruction on pre-flight and in-flight procedures, preparation of weapons and equipment for jumping, and techniques of assembling with his unit following a jump.

The culmination of the course is the graduation ceremony, at which time each graduate is pinned with the coveted badge of the parachutists by the cadre who taught him.

Must Be Proficient



No student is allowed to progress into the succeeding week of training until he has proficiency on the current week's training. If not fully capable, he is required to repeat the week of training.

A student is never permitted to make a parachute jump until he is fully qualified in every respect. Before a jump, each individual and his equipment are thoroughly inspected to insure proper fit, rigging and serviceability.

All Airborne instructors are qualified parachutists and most of them are master parachutists. They strive through intensive training and personal supervision to remove the hazards of parachuting. They are well aware that in parachuting, one mistake could be fatal.

The Airborne Course is not designed to be easy. It is designed to train volunteers who have the determination, ability, and courage to be military parachutists. It is through careful selection and training that safety in parachuting is maintained.

The jump wings are a symbol of the qualified military parachutist who may be expected to jump safely and perform his mission effectively as part of a team — in the best traditions of the Airborne.

Engineer Ladies Hold Luncheon

The appearance of The Infantry Chorus, under the direction of 2nd Lt. Reuben Garwood, highlighted the recent luncheon of the 151st Engineer Group Wives at the Main Officer's Open Mess.

The chorus entertained the ladies of the group and their guests with several songs.

Honored guests at the luncheon were Mrs. Ben Harrell, wife of the commanding general, and her mother, Mrs. Campbell, visiting from Eugene, Oregon, and Mrs. John E. Kelly, wife of the deputy post commander. Other guests included Mrs. Riel S. Crandell, Mrs. Cason Callaway Jr. and Mrs. Alexander David, her mother, Mrs. H. B. Laws and her aunts, Mrs. M. C. Phelps Jr., and Mrs. L. F. Chambers, all of Arkansas. Mrs. S. C. Gates, mother of Col. Mahlon E. Gates, commander of the 151st Engineer Group, was also a guest.

As the ladies were seated for the luncheon, a Thanksgiving prayer was offered by Mrs. Mahlon E. Gates. The tables were attractively decorated with candles in hurricane lamps, surrounded by chrysanthemums and ivy, and a bountiful basket of fruits and vegetables added further decoration. The latter served as the door prize, which was won by Mrs. Calloway.

Corsages were also given as prizes to Mrs. M. C. Phelps Jr., Mrs. George Reswik, and Mrs. Thomas MacMurray.

Plans were announced by Mrs. Gates for a Salvation Army Christmas project. Ladies of the group will meet at Mrs. Gates' home to wrap Christmas packages for the agency in Columbus.

Hostesses for the gathering were Mrs. Willis C. Corder, head hostess, assisted by Mrs. William K. Jordan and Mrs. Felix R. Moss. Also on the committee were Mrs. Robert Maddux, Mrs. Kenneth Dimond and Mrs. Robert Long.

Operation Santa Claus Under Way

"Operation Santa Claus" is under way here with about 3,000 toys already collected, with only one-third of the Scout collector units on the post reported in.

Boy and Girl Scouts, Brownies and Cub Scouts are assisting Santa by collecting toys that children on the post no longer use or are broken and in need of repair.

The toys are taken to the Logistics Section of the Operations Office at The Infantry School to be repaired and will be distributed to needy children in Columbus as Christmas gifts.

Scouts have distributed leaflets to family quarters on the post, giving the date the Scouts will make collections.

Toys will be collected and taken for repair until about Dec. 20, according to SFC James R. Morrison, in charge of the operation.

Anyone who has not been contacted and wishes to donate toys may deliver them to Bldg. 1235, next to The Infantry Museum.

Additional information may be obtained by telephoning Sgt. Morrison at 545-7580.

MATHEMATICS ENGLISH

It was homecoming at Fort Benning last week as many college students found their way back.

Mike Busch reports that Florida State University is all it's cracked up to be and John Staples says he and Hal Hiestand are reaping full benefits from life at the University of Miami (Fla.). Ted Cleary and Jack Jackson were home from Springhill College in Mobile, as were Bill Callahan and Adrian Syple from North Georgia.

Joe Fly (Texas A&M) and Carlyle Park (University of Wesern Kentucky) visited their parents and friends here over the holidays. Kay Jones and Marsha Nottage, who attend Auburn, were home also. The University of South Carolina let Barbara Hare, former writer of the REPORT CARD come back, too.

Others home were Steve Huppert and Jack Mott from the University of Georgia, Norman Sasser from North Georgia, and Dave Ingle from the Miami University in Ohio.

Those were the people I ran into (or heard that others had seen at the parties held over the long week-end.

Kathy and Joffe Gueymard started with a bridge, dancing and conversation party Thursday night.

Then, Saturday, Vivienne Johnson celebrated her birthday with a luau for about 30 people. Hula lessons, a limbo contest, and home - made guitar music were highlights of this party. Guests were asked to come in Hawaiian dress.

Shiela O'Connell's house was the scene of another rocking party that night. Everybody had fun - dancing, playing bridge, talking! Guests at this party were treated to a series of fantastic dances by a couple which would prefer to be known as "Mutt and Jeff," I'm sure.

There was hard work involved during the Thanksgiving holidays also, especially for the Junior Army Daughters of America who conducted a project to raise funds for their Christmas charity project.

Winners of free turkeys in a contest sponsored by the girls was Mrs. Anna Jarvi, 308 Austin Loop, and Mrs. Harry L. Hoffman, 218 Miller Loop, according to Terri Stearo, chairman of the project.

UNITED STATES ARMY READY FORCE

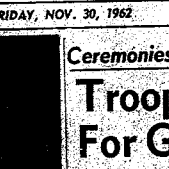
Fort Benning, Ga. FRIDAY, NOV. 30, 1962 Page 11

First Group For Europe Set at 23rd

By 23rd Infantry PIO

Preparation for overseas movement by the Europe-bound 23rd Infantry continues at a rapid pace, with the selection of the advance party completed. Personnel making up the advance party will depart for Bamberg, Germany, in January, followed in February by the main body.

Heading the group of men on the advance party will be Lt. Col. Benjamin S. Silver, executive officer for the battle group.



To Inventory

This party will inventory and receipt for unit and station property in Europe, establish local supply and other accounts necessary for the operation of the 23rd once it assembles in Bamberg, replacing the 2nd Battle Group, 4th Infantry (Mechanized, 8th Infantry Division. It will also orient the 4th Infantry on the procedures set up within the 2nd Infantry Division at Fort Benning.

The 23rd, since being designated by the Department of the Army Jan October as the second of the stateside battle groups to participate in "Reforger," has experienced a steady influx of personnel, filling vacancies before departing time, However, unlike its predecessor the 39th Infantry, the 23rd procures most of its personnel from outside the Division.

An advance party from the 4th Infantry will come to Fort

TO MAIN POST
Lt. Col. Clark

Col. Clark Gets Main Post Job, Departs 27th Arty.

By DivArty PIO

The commanding officer of the 27th Artillery Battalion, who is scheduled to leave 2nd Division Artillery soon for assignment with the U. S. Army Infantry School's artillery committee, will be honored Nov. 30 at a farewell dinner given by the officers of the 27th at the Main Officers Open Mess.

Lt. Col. James D. Clark and his wife, Ruth, both will attend the dinner.

Col. Clark, once an artillery sergeant, joined the division in July 1961 after spending nearly three years in Germany. He was first the assistant fire support coordinator, Headquarters, 2nd Division Artillery; then on Aug. 1, 1961 became the battalion commander of the 27th Artillery.

While in Germany, Col. Clark was the executive officer, 269th Field Artillery Battalion — an outfit he joined at Fort Carson, Colo. in July 1957 and followed to Germany the following December. In 1958 he became their S-3 (operations officer).

Col. Clark also served in Germany with Headquarters, 3rd Howitzer Battalion (8-inch) 37th Artillery; and Headquarters, VII Corps Artillery. In August 1960, Col Clark returned to the states and attended the Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kan. It was immediately after completing the 38-week regular course there that the colonel came to 2nd Division Artillery.

In addition to his foreign service experience (European theater, Japan, Korea, Germany) and his experience in combat (Northern France, Ardennes - Alsace, Rhineland, Central Europe, Korean Summer - Fall 1952, 3rd Korean Winter, Korean Summer - Fall 1953) Col Clark takes to the Artillery Committee his experience as an instructor and supervisor at the Artillery School, Fort Sill, Okla.

Col. Clark has been awarded the Bronze Star Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster; the American Campaign Medal, the European - African - Middle East-

2nd Medical Receives New Commander

The 2nd Division's medical unit received a new commander Thursday upon the retirement of Lt. Col. D. E. Pittman, commander since September 1958.

A change of command ceremony took place Thursday in the office of the commander of the 2nd Medical Battalion, welcoming Maj. Jack D. Wallace.

Incoming Commander

Maj. Wallace, incoming commander, arrived recently from a previous assignment as chief of the education and training branch at the Letterman General Hospital, San Francisco.

The major entered the Army at Camp Blanding, Fla., in 1941, attending Officer Candidate School in 1942. He was commissioned a 2nd Lieutenant in the Medical Administrative Corps in January 1943.

Joining the 41st Evacuation Hospital, he went overseas, serving both in England and France. He returned to the U. S. with this unit and was separated from the Army in March 1946.

After being recalled to active duty in October 1950, Major Wallace served a year at Fort Stewart, Ga., before going to the Seventh U. S. Army surgeon's office in Stuttgart,

2nd Aviation Safety Is an Army Record

The 2nd Aviation Company of the 2nd Infantry Division has established a safety record that is unequaled throughout the entire Third Army Area. Statistics have shown that no comparable unit has developed a more competent safety program.

For the past five years, since the conception of the 2nd Aviation Company, an average of 1200 flight hours per month has been flown. During this period, not a single fatality due to an aircraft mishap has occurred. The number of aircraft accidents has been held to a near non-existent minimum. The type flying done by the 2nd Aviation Company is normally of a tactical nature, simulating combat usage of airborne mobility. Helicopters fly many missions a scant few feet above the tree tops and land in small confined areas to give reality to the tactical troop problems. Fixed-wing aircraft fly into unimproved landing fields providing durability and mobility tests for the aircraft and their crews.

The man directly responsible for the 2nd Aviations welfare and Mission Accomplishment is Major Paul B. Robinson, company commander. Major Robinson, who has logged over 4000 flight hours, fully realizes the importance of flight safety. Since his early career as a naval aviation cadet in 1942 through the many B-36 bombing missions in the South Pacific as a Marine Officer, to his present Command of the "2nd to None" aviation, Ma-

Elements of the 2nd Division left yesterday and this morning for Fort McPherson, Ga., to take part in the retirement ceremony being held for the Third U. S. Army Commander, Lt. Gen. T. J. H. Trapnell, today.

The ceremony is scheduled for 4 p.m. this afternoon at Fort McPherson's Hedekin Field.

Main Elements

The main elements representing the 2nd Division, the 9th Infantry and the 7th Cavalry, left Fort Benning this morning at 5:30 a.m. by commercial bus and will return this evening at approximately 10 p.m.

The 9th Infantry commanding officer, Col. Clifford P. Hansen, is the senior officer from the 2nd Division and is accompanied by his seven company commanders. 141 enlisted men, the sergeant major, Sgt. Maj. James L. Runyon, and four staff officers, Capt. Charles R. Latta, Capt. William L. McMullen Jr., Capt. Milton A. Snow and Capt. Sam S. Younger Jr.

The 7th Cavalry commander, Lt. Col. Quintus C. Atkinson, is accompanied by a staff of four officers, Maj. William B. Hill, Lt. Paul L. Brougham Jr., Lt. Eugene C. Neihold

Personal Touch

3-Star General Ups Lieutenant

Lt. Gen. Russell L. Vittrup, who visited the 2nd Division yesterday morning, will long be remembered by a young lieutenant in the 69th Armor.

Gen. Vittrup added a personal touch at a promotion ceremony of 1st Lt. William J. Hickey by changing his gold bar to one of silver.

Present during the promotion ceremony were: Col. John T. Corley, 2nd Division Brigade Commander; and Lt. Col. James T. Kolb, commanding officer, 69th Armor.

Amphibious Classes Swing To Final Phase at Kelley Hill

By George Aubin

A total of 142 officers and non-commissioned officer students are currently swinging into the third and final phase of a special amphibious staff planning course being held by a mobile training team from Little Creek, Va.

The students are to start the third phase of the course at 10 a.m. today.

Headed By Marine

The training team is headed by Col. J. A. Bruder, U.S.M.C., and has seven Marine officers, four Army officers, and two Navy officers who serve as instructors. In addition, there are 12 enlisted men headed by Marine Gunnery Sergeant H. D. Riccio, administrative chief, who act as assistant instructors and handle administrative details.

The purpose of Phase III is to have each separate battle group staff including special staff officers, prepare in written form the staff estimates and operation and administrative plans with appropriate an-

Once Again

12th Artillery Turns Out Another 'Best Soldier'

By DivArty PIO

The 12th Artillery Battalion, commanded by Lt. Col. Terence W. Huck, once again has claimed the Artilleryman-of-the Month from 2nd Division Artillery.

The November award, presented last week to Sp4 Lawrence L. Holshnecht, an Honest John Rocket launcher crewman from Battery B, 12th Artillery, represents the 39th time September 1958 that the 12th has won this Division Artillery award. Stated as an average, the 12th Artillery has won the award better than every other month for the last four years.

In addition to the artillery citation the 12th has won the 2nd Division Soldier - of - the-Month award 13 times since December 1958. This means that almost 25 percent of the 2nd Division's outstanding Soldiers-of-the-Month have come and Lt. Joseph E. Herzog, four troop commanders and a main body of 144 enlisted men.

Both of these units will have unit and national color bearers and there will also be unit color bearers from all major units in the division.

Rehearsals for the 9th Infantry and 7th Cavalry were held Tuesday and Thursday at Fort Benning. There was also another rehearsal scheduled for 9 a.m. this morning at Fort McPherson.

Gen. Vittrup, accompanied by Brig. Gen. Charles Billingslea, division commanding general, visited the 2nd Aviation Company and the division headquarters during his tour.

Lt. Hickey, a native of Sparta, Tenn., entered the Army in May 1961 as a Distinguished Military Graduate of Middle Tennessee State College, Murfreesboro, Tenn. All of his Army career has been spent in Company A, 69th Armor, where he has served as platoon leader, executive officer and now company commander.

Lt. Hickey has attended the Armor Orientation Class at Fort Knox and the Embarkation Course (LPTU-4) at Little Creek, Va.

Lt. Hickey is married to the former Nancy Johnson of Old Hickory, Tenn. They reside in Battle Park Homes at Fort Benning, Georgia.

ern Campaign Medal, American Defense Service Medal, National Defense Service Medal, World War II Victory Medal, Army of Occupation Medal, Korean Service Medal, United Nations Service Medal, four overseas bars, Republic of Korea Presidential Unit Citation Badge, and the Armed Forces Reserve Medal.

In addition to the Command and General Staff College, Col. Clark attended Artillery Officer Candidate School, U. S. Army Artillery and Guided Missile School and the U. S. Army Armor School. He also attended the University of Tampa, Tampa, Fla., and availed himself of individual courses from the U. S. Armed Forces Institute and the University of Maryland.

Col. Clark, who is originally from Plant City, Fla., and his wife live at Fort Benning along with their daughter, Sally Louise, who celebrated her 12th birthday on Nov. 30, the same day her father is to be honored. Another daughter, Mary Sue, is married and lives in Atlanta, Ga.

nexes for an amphibious operation. The separate staff estimates are to include those pertaining to Personnel, Intelligence, Operations, Logistics, Naval Gunfire, Air, Artillery, Engineer and Communications. The Operation Plan is to include annexes on: Task Organization, Intelligence, Fire Support Plan, Operations Overlay, Army Aviation Plan, Anti-Mechanized Plan, Engineer Plan, Command Relationship, Landing Plan, Signal and Distribution. The Administrative Plan is to include the following annexes: Administrative Overlay, Plan for Landing Supplies, Air Delivery Plan, Shore Party Plan, Personnel and Civil Affairs. A total of 27 hours will be devoted to this part of the course and will allow the students a chance to put into action the subjects that they have been taught.

With a limited number of students attending the course on Kelley Hill, division units are sending the following number of officers and noncommissioned officers: 1st Infantry — 15; 9th Infantry — 15, 39th Infantry — 12, 87th Infantry — 15, Division Artillery — 6, 12th Artillery — 4, 15th Artillery — 8, 17th Artillery — 8, 27th Artillery — 8, 57th Artillery — 8, 38th Artillery — 8, 7th Cavalry — 6, 2nd Engineer Battalion — 8, 122nd Signal Battalion — 9, Division Brigade — 4, Division Trains — 4 and one each from the 2nd Medical Battalion, 702nd Ordnance Battalion, 2nd Quartermaster Company, and the 15th Transportation Battalion.

The students have just finished 22 hours of concurrent separate sub-courses in the fields of Intelligence, Operations, Logistics, Supporting Arms and Communications. In this phase of the course, the 142 men were broken down into the fields listed above with this breakdown: Intelligence — 27, Operations — 30, Logistics — 22, Supporting Arms — 24 and Communications — 29. Such subjects as Aerial Reconnaissance, Anti-Tank Defense Planning, Shore Party Planning, Nuclear Support Planning and Worldwide Naval Communications System and Shipboard Facilities were studied intently by the students. According to GSGT Riccio, the course has been running smoothly and the men have been doing an excellent job of learning the difficult material.

During the first phase of the course, the men were given those selected background subjects pertaining to amphibious operations which are of interest to all officers and senior non-commissioned officers in the division. Such subjects as The Amphibious Operation, Organization and Command Characteristics of Amphibious Ships, Craft and Vehicles; Organization for Ship-to-Shore Movement and Troop Life and Training Aboard Ship were introduced to the students at this time. The phase lasted a total of 15 hours. In addition to the subjects taught, the students were given a 44-page booklet of Amphibious Terminology with which to familiarize themselves.

The course is scheduled to finish next Saturday.

NEW RADARSCOPE . . . Working with the Army's new short range Ground Surveillance Radarscope are Sp4 John Ross, Standing, and PFC Daniel Dix, both of Combat Support Company, 87th Infantry. This radarscope is designed to pick up moving targets with stationary backgrounds.

This Sergeant Received The Medal of Honor

During World War II when the 23rd Infantry, 2nd Infantry Division, was fighting near Krinkelt, Belgium, a sergeant in Company K distinguished himself and was awarded the Medal of Honor.

Company K was being overrun by advancing enemy infantry supported by tanks when Sgt. Jose M. Lopez with his machine gun stood in a foxhole offering no protection above his waist and protected their withdrawal. Twice he changed positions as the enemy drew closer but before he finally withdrew he had killed at least 100 of the enemy. His seemingly suicidal mission was wholely responsible for allowing Company K to avoid being enveloped, to withdraw successfully, and to give other forces coming up in support time to build a line which repelled the enemy drive.

23rd's S-3 Is Assigned To Viet Nam

By 23rd Infantry PIO

The 23rd Infantry's assistant S-3 officer, Capt. Roger B. Woods, left this week for an assignment with the Military Assistance Advisory Group in Viet Nam. Enroute to Viet Nam, Capt. Woods will attend the U. S. Army Special Warfare Training Center Course at Fort Bragg, N. C.

Capt. Woods is a graduate of Indiana University, with a Bachelor of Science degree in physical education. He received his commission through the Reserve Officer Training Corps at the University.

Fort Benning first saw Capt. Woods in October 1955, when he attended the Basic Infantry Officers Course. This was followed by Ranger and Airborne training at the Infantry school. In 1957 he attended the 15 Week Intelligence School at Fort Holabird, Md.

His first assignment with the 23rd Infantry was in Feb. 1961, when he arrived and was assigned executive officer of Headquarters Company. Subsequent 23rd duties include mortar platoon commander, Combat Support Company from Sept. 1961 to Feb. 1962; commanding officer of Combat Support Company from Feb. 1962 until Aug. 1962, and assistant S-3 since Aug.

Rotaplan Unit Processes In Enlisted Men

By 23rd Infantry PIO

With not even a breather from the constant flow of incoming personnel into the 23rd Infantry, the battle group last week processed almost 150 new enlisted personnel into the unit, a step further in filling required duty positions before the scheduled "Rotaplan" trip to Bamberg, Germany, next February.

Since the announcement last month by the Department of the Army that the 23rd had been selected to be the second stateside battle group for "Rotaplan," the build-up in strength program began and continues to develop momentum.

Most of the arrivals carry infantry military occupation specialties, and have just completed advanced individual training. A small number of non-commissioned officers have arrived.

With the present rate of build-up in progress, bringing itself up to the required strength should not be too difficult nor take too long for the "We Servers."

15 Enlisted Men Are Promoted

Promotions of enlisted men for November within the 23rd Infantry reached a total of 15 last week with ten new sergeants and five new Specialists Five upped from E-4 pay grade.

New sergeants include James G. Etheridge, Company A; Theodore D. Blaine, Charles M. Clagg, and Richard L. Jones of Company B; Roy L. Harrison of Company C; Charles E. Nation and Clyde R. Steely of Company E; Victor B. Bragg and Dewey W. Hogan, Combat Support Company; and Edward D. Johnson, Headquarters Company.

The five enlisted men making specialist five include Headquarters Company's Gerry W. Butler, Jack E. Fulford, and Jack F. Woody. In Combat Support Company, John F. Albright and John Bauman joined the specialist five ranks.

Physical, Mental Alertness Sparks 9th Infantry Training Program

By 9th Infantry PIO

Men of the 9th Infantry have been working hard in recent weeks to maintain the high degree of physical and mental alertness required of today's combat infantrymen.

The battle group will continue regularly scheduled combat readiness training until shortly before Christmas, at which time it will begin a less intense holiday schedule. During this period, which begins December 23 and ends January 5, training is scheduled for mornings only, and the men will have a chance to rest in preparation for forthcoming field training exercises.

Phases Completed

During the last few weeks the 9th's line companies have completed several phases of combat readiness training including combat reactions tests, hand and rifle grenade training, crew-served weapons drill, tactical road marches, trainfire and target detection.

The combat reaction test, a realistic exercise in which blank ammunition is used, is designed to test the individual's ability to act as a member of a combat team and to test his reactions to different combat situations.

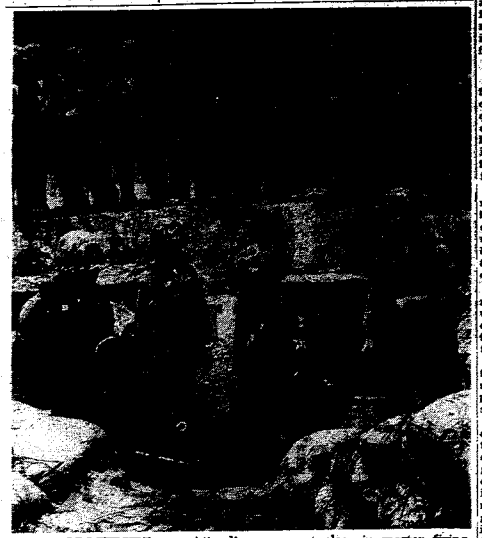
During this test individuals run a course over rough, varied terrain, and are required to deal with combat situations which suddenly confront them.

The grenade training is of the dry-wet run type and instructs the individual in the proper use of different types of grenades.

The instruction is broken down into a number of stations and includes safety procedures, nomenclature of the grenade's parts, circumstances under which each grenade is used, disarming of grenades, characteristics of each grenade, and techniques used in landing the grenade on a target.

The instruction ends with individual throwing a live fragmentation grenade at a target.

Battle group personnel have also reviewed the operation of the .30 caliber light machine gun, 81 millimeter mortar, and other crew served weapons.



This training begins with dry fire exercises, in which crews receive instructions in sighting, aiming, and technique of fire, and ends with live fire exercises.

The 9th Infantry is currently undergoing the complete Trainfire course at the recently constructed Malone Trainfire Ranges.

The instruction begins with the most basic elements of marksmanship, such as sight alignment and sight picture and progresses to qualification firing with electrically operated pop-up targets.

Trainfire also includes classes in target detection.

Looking to the future, the 9th Infantry is scheduled to go to Ft. McClellan, Ala. January 13 for a two-week field training exercise and later will conduct amphibious training and river-crossing training.

87th Infantry's Heavy Mortar Platoon Designed to Give Fire Power, Mobility

By 87th Infantry PIO

Only as close as his telephone, Col. Ralph H. Hughett, commander of the 87th Infantry, has his own organic artillery support — the heavy mortar platoon of Combat Support Company. Organized to give the battle group the fire power plus the mobility demanded by the infantry in modern warfare, the mortar platoon is a highly complex unit.

The platoon consists of nine parts; platoon headquarters, liaison section, three forward observer sections, fire direction center, wire section, survey section, counterfire section, red firing section and blue firing section. The coordination of these units is the responsibility of platoon commander Lt. Bobbie Chavis and Platoon Sergeant Warren Metz.

Busy Coordinating

While the liaison officer is busy coordinating with other artillery units at battle group headquarters, the commanding officers of the rifle companies, along with their forward observers, stand by to send target information in the form of a fire request to the fire direction center. The FDC, presently under Lt. David L. Petry, converts the request into fire commands. The wire section insures that wire is strung to each section. Sgt. Gene Brown, the comme chief, and his men, insure that communications remain operational 24 hours a day.

Sgt. David Lewis and his survey team measure angles and distances which are converted by Sp4 John Curtis into the exact coordinates of the mortar positions, the forward observer positions, the target positions and sometimes the position of the enemy. Somewhere between the mortars and the enemy, the counterfire squad, under the surveillance of Sgt. Garland Dodson use sound ranging sets to precisely locate enemy artillery and mortar batteries.

When employed in a tactical situation, these nine sections combine efforts to place as many as 120 rounds per minute on a target or are capable of engaging six targets at the same time.

This is not all of the capabilities that are built into the heavy mortar platoon. In August of this year the Davy Crockett section, under the leadership of Lt. William Frandsen, was added to this family of firepowr and is ready to stand by to deliver the "Big Punch" whenever needed.

7 Cannoneers Assigned to 38th Artillery

By 38th Arty PIO

Assigned to A Battery, 38th Artillery this week were seven recent graduates of the United States Army Training Center at Fort Sill, Okla.

To be cannoneers on A Battery's 105 mm self - propelled howitzers are the following enlisted men: Miguel Arce, Harold D. Bates, Addrell Brewer, Charles C. Carter, Robert L. Cooper, James E. Lawrence, and Theron L. King.

They will be assigned to a gun section as cannoneers where they will put the knowledge of their learning in Artillery School at Fort Sill to practical use in their first TOE Battery.

From the men of A Battery a hearty welcome to the men who have just joined their unit.

1st's Charlie Is Studying

By 1st Infantry PIO

Company C, 1st Infantry commanded by Capt. Thomas J. McAniff has set up an intensive educational program for the benefit of their men.

This program was set up by Lt. James R. Davis troop information officer, with the aid of Sgt. Charles L. Templeman, troop information non - commission officer for Company C.

At the present time there are 43 enlisted men attending high school English classes on Monday evenings, and 88 enlisted men are attending high school math classes on Tuesday evenings.

The instructors are furnished by the 2nd Infantry Education Center on Sand Hill.

Also planned for the near future is a German language course in which Lt. Davis hopes to receive a 100 per cent participation. Instructions for the German course will be given by a company officer on after duty hours.

These courses are designed to improve the everyday knowledge of the men and to prepare them for their college and high school General Educational Development Tests.

There is at the present time a 95 per cent participation in the courses set up through the efforts of Lt. Davis.

Snakes Flee! From Artillery

By 38th Arty PIO

When A Battery, 38th Artillery takes to the field all snakes on the reservation should seek hibernation.

In the dayroom of this unit hangs mute testimony to that fact. A diamondback rattlesnake measuring 6 feet captured by Harry Dean Lyons.

Lyons, a Private First Class from Jacksonville, Fla., has been an avid snake hunter for a number of years. Says Lyons "it's really quite simple though I would not recommend it as a hobby for a person with a weak heart."

A chart operator in A Battery's Fire Direction Center, Lyons uses only a simple five-foot bamboo pole with a small wire loop on the end. There are no snakes in North America that seek to attack. Only when they have no avenue of escape do they strike back, states Lyons. On his left forearm Lyons bears two small holes, "a small mistake made while I was learning," says Lyons.

Hey Soldier!

You Know What You're Wearing?

By Kenneth D. Goodman

Ever give any thought to the origin and meaning of that "Fourragere" you're wearing soldier?

Although there are literally thousands of servicemen wearing the fourragere, there are very few that can tell you of its very remote origin. After research on this decoration, the following accounts seems most logical.

Forage Rope

The fourragere first had its origin as a forage rope. A long cord was fastened around the neck, then wrapped twice around the body, from the right shoulder to the left hip, and attached finally on the chest where it ended with two large plaits and two tassels.

Later the cord became a simple ornament of the uniform in the fashion of a braided cord fastened to the left shoulder by a double tassel and on the chest at the second vest button. The metal "aiguillettes," or "ferrets" as we refer to them, are said to date from the 18th century. It is at this point that several versions appear as to the origin of the metal ferret.

One version is that the Duke of Alba, general of Charles V and Philip II's armies had received orders to suppress the uprisings in the Low countries. A Flemish regiment retreated and the Duke, to show his dissatisfaction, decided that in the future, the punishment reserved for men of that regiment would consist of the torture of the gallows.

The Flemish, stung to the quick, replied proudly that they would from then on wear a rope and nail on their shoulders so that they would always be ready to be hung.

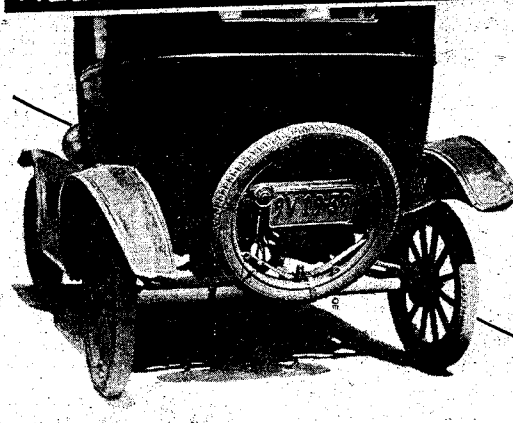
Since that time they distinguished themselves so valorously on the battlefield that the token that would formerly have covered them with disgrace became a glorious insignia for which other regiments envied them.

According to another version, the origin of the fourragere was a trifle different, and took place in a different time and place. In the time of Napoleon, a regiment received orders to defend, at all costs, an important position. The commanding officer of the unit subsequently ordered his men to "hang themselves" before surrender, As a reply to this order, and to show that they were willing to hang, the men decided to wear a cord and nail in order to have in readiness the necessary materials for their own hanging.

Special Insignia

After the War of 1870, the fourragere was no longer used in the French Army and did not come into usage again until World War I, during which time it became a special insignia granted to the personnel of units who were cited in an Army Order. Several degrees of the fourragere may be awarded:

In the colors of the Croix de Guerre for two citations; in the colors of the Medaille Militaire for four and five citations; in the colors of the Legion of Honor for seven or eight citations. Finally in September 1918, three more degrees for double fourragere in mixed colors were created; the Legion of Honor and Croix de Guerre from nine to twelve citations. Legion of Honor and Medaille Militarie, from 12 to 14 citations; and Legion of Honor for both cords from 15 citations up.



The award of the French citation to an American unit entitles the unit to display the colors of the Croix de Guerre as a streamer on its flag, standard or guidon. Individual wearing of the Croix de Guerre is not permitted unless the individual has been specifically named in the citation. When a unit has been awarded two citations for gallantry in action, the French government, by separate official decree, may award the fourragere to be worn by all members of the unit.

In the Division. . .

Members of the 2nd Infantry Division are authorized the wearing of a fourragere in the colors of the French Croix de Guerre for World War I.

Those belonging to the 7th Infantry and 26th Infantry wear the French fourragere in the colors of the Medaille Militaire for World War II.

Progress Report: Doing Fine

'Rota Wives' Family Center' Is a Service Showcase

By Peter Tatischeff

When the 38th Infantry "Rota Wives' Family Service Center" was established in mid-October of this year, a boast and a promise were made. Only a month has passed and already the boast is earned and the promise fulfilled.

The 38th Infantry left for Germany in October to participate in the Army's newest unit rotation plan. The excitement of spending a six-month tour in Europe was coupled with a nagging concern for dependent families left behind, creating a need for some unifying and helpful service; something to take the place of fathers and husbands temporary overseas.

On October 6, a modest ceremony at Fort Benning's Old Hospital Area opened building 1101 as the "Rota Wives' Family Service Center." It was boasted to be the first of its kind in the Army; a service established for families of servicemen abroad; a service that could offer advice, assistance and security.

Those in command promised the 2nd Infantry Division "would take care of its own." This center would insure that families could depend on the 2nd Division to be a "friend indeed."

As wife of the 38th Infantry commander, Mrs. Maurice C. Holden spoke recently of the successful Rota Center. "The center is just picking up momentum, really. It's going to take a little time," she said. Yet, we have quite a few ladies who say they don't know what they would do without it."

She stressed how the center helped bring wives together, gave them a friend to call when problems arose and was instrumental in helping people out of embarrassing situations. "We emphasize that the women be independent," Mrs. Holden remarked. "It would be wonderful if we could feel this center was not needed and that the women could be totally independent. But whenever they need help they know they can rely on us."

He Is Busy

As noncommissioned officer in charge of the center, Sgt. Lester Gibbs attested to being busy. "Over the first month," he said, "20 assistance cases have been handled. There are an average of 12 calls per day to the center from 38th Infantry wives."

The job of administering the center has been carefully planned and handled through committee systems and rotation of responsibility. All work there is voluntary, relying upon two ladies each day answering telephones and staying at the center. The office committees include emergency, casualty and hospital, and publicity. The center is designed for wives and families of both officers and enlisted men. Everyone chips in to help. Current figures show that over 400 hours have been put in by about 25 women.

Up to date files are kept on every man in the battle group, showing vital information including addresses of next-of-kin and friends. Every file is strictly confidential.

According to Mrs. Holden, "the women are helping themselves. What's more important, no one is feeling sorry for themselves. When they have a problem they may call the center and be referred to a reliable source of help."

The center does not presume to be qualified to solve the various financial, marital, and generally personal problems that come up. However, they know whom to get in touch with.

Handle Most Anything

Case histories give some idea of the virtuosity of those involved with the center. They are prepared to handle most anything. One 58th Infantry lady, trying to do without a delayed monthly check from her husband, helped herself until she could not go on any more, called the center and got emergency aid. She called for food and people rallied to help. Her problem was further complicated because she had bought an old car and needed money to fix it. The center called a sergeant to take a look at it. He assured her it was a wreck and not worth the trouble. The center even persuaded the original owner to take the car back. In the long run this person's problem was solved when the center arranged employment for her. Women on the post took care of her children and saw that she got to the commissary. "Last report," Mrs. Holden said, "she is doing just fine."

A less grave incident occurred when a woman called up and said that her child's kitten had been run over and wanted to know how she could get another one. "We got her another kitten," said Sgt. Gibbs, "but it was too late. They made up their minds they really wanted a dog and took care of that themselves."

A "Rota wife" walked meekly into the center one day holding a parking ticket and said, "What do I do with it?" One of the chairmen said to go down to the Military Police and just smile sweetly. She called back later and said, "Thanks, everything went fine."

Mrs. Holden emphasizes that the center is "invaluable." "In our opinion the mere existence of the Rota Center is a great boon to the morale of the families remaining here. The knowledge that the center is available for advice and social get-togethers has a terrific stabilizing effect in their lives. Of course without the volunteer workers," she said, "our center would not function. We are more grateful than we could express for the whole hearted cooperation of the Rota Wives."

As a center for activities, the building is well used. Rota wives receive an information bulletin with a special section called "Activities At Your Center." The last bulletin listed coffees the second Thursday of each month for enlisted wives. The third Thursday features a coffee for the entire "family." Officers' wives meet the first Wednesday of each month for coffee and business.

The second Sunday of each month has been set aside to be sponsored by ladies of the 38th at the Kelley Hill Chapel.

Pot luck suppers are held the second Friday of each month. Those interested in swimming classes at Bryant Wells indoor pool have been informed that Special Services is willing to provide free classes.

A Christmas party is being planned for December 22 for the children.

Auto Artist Now at 87th

An 87th Infantry soldier has had one of the most interesting of all civilian jobs.

Born and educated in New York City, Spc Patrick W. Furey has been a designer for the General Motors Corporation since 1957. To specialize further in the field of automotive designing, he attended the Art Center College in Los Angeles. While at General Motors Furey worked on interiors for the latest Cadillac models.

Very much interested in sports car racing he raced an Alfa Romeo in Detroit's 1958-9 events taking many top honors.

Specialist Furey entered the Army in February of last year and is presently assigned as a senior rifleman in Company B. In addition, he works with training aids where his artistic talents are put to the best possible use.

Often asked about future developments at General Motors, Furey can only politely say, "Sorry, Top Secret."

Most Highly Decorated 7th Infantry Is 'Willing, Able'

7TH COMMANDER
Col. Morgan

By 7th Infantry PIO

"Volens et Potens." These words, to the men of the 7th Infantry, indicate the undying attitude of the unit.

"Willing and Able." Willing and able to put forth the necessary punch for complete annihilation of the enemy.

The "Cottonbalers" were organized in the War of 1812 when the 7th Regiment, under the command of Gen. Andrew Jackson, courageously set down the British in the Battle of New Orleans. A century later, in 1929, this feat formally was recognized by the War Department as a decisive victory. The New Orleans Battle Honor was authorized the 7th Infantry Regiment, allowing it to be the official custodian of the entire "family." Officers' wives meet the first Wednesday of each month for coffee and business.

Fought Indian Wars

In the Indian Wars against the Greeks and the Seminoles and the rescue of the survivors of the Little Big Horn enabled the "Cotton balers" to continue their outstanding reputation.

Five campaigns in the Mexican War, twelve in the Civil War including Gettysburg, Chancellorsville and Atlanta, Santiago in the Spanish-American War and Samar in the Philippine Insurrection depicted time and again the vicious assaults on the enemy.

World War I brought on Champagne - Marne, St. Mihiel and the Isle de France. In World War II the 7th overwhelmed its foes at Tunisia, Anzio, Rhineland and others.

Again the 7th Infantry pushed on in Korea engaging in eight campaigns; the Pusan Landing, the capture of Chorwon and the "Boomerang Occupation" in addition to being the last unit to leave Hungnam. In Korea four Presidential Unit Citations were awarded the men of the 7th Infantry for bravery and courage above and beyond the call of duty.

In their 150-year history the "Cottonbalers" have earned 72 battle streamers participating in every major conflict since the Revolution. Not only has the 7th Infantry engaged in more campaigns than any unit in the U. S. Army, it is the most decorated.

Activated in 1812

Constituted in 1812 and organized in Tennessee, the 7th Infantry is the fifth oldest unit in the Regular Army.

The esteemed Regimental Coat-of-Arms and the host of battle streamers tell the story of the 7th Infantry's combat history. During the grueling assaults of the Korean War, seven members of the 7th Infantry received the Congressional Medal of Honor.

Many things, however, can not be told in the language of heraldry as read from a list of campaigns. The 7th Infantry's 170 mile march in 19 days during World War II, for example, in which it fought several engagements; the historic landing on enemy laden Pusan; the "Cottonbalers" attack at San Juan Hill.

The 7th Infantry's shield is blue and white. The cannon is for the battle of Cerro Gordon, where the 7th and the 3rd Infantry carried out the decisive attack by an assault on Telegraph Hill in the Mexican War. The wall signifies the battle of Fredricksburg in which the regiment held for 12 hours a position only 80 yards in front of a stone wall protecting the enemy.

The base is the shoulder insignia of the 3rd Division with which the regiment served in World Wars I and II and the Korean Conflict. The Cotton Bale symbolizes the regiment's battle at New Orleans.

Designated the 4th Battle group, 7th Infantry, recently at Fort Benning, under the command of Col. William O. Morgan, the unit will be billeted in the Harmony Church area in the near future.

Lt. McCoy, 9th's Co. E, Promoted

By 9th Infantry PIO

Recently promoted to the rank of first lieutenant in a ceremony at the office of Col. Clifford P. Hamnun, 9th Infantry commander, was Lt. William J. McCoy, Company E executive officer.

From Kentucky

Lt. McCoy, a native of Ekron, Ky., graduated from Western Kentucky State College, Bowling Green, Ky., in June 1961.

He majored in social science at the college and participated in the Reserve Officer Training Corps. Upon graduating he accepted a position at Meade County High School, Bradenburg, Ky., where he taught English for one year.

In May 1961 Lt. McCoy entered the Army as a second lieutenant and came to Ft. Benning. His first assignment was at The Infantry School, where he was enrolled in the Infantry Officer Orientation Course. He graduated in July 1961 and came to Company D, 9th Infantry as a platoon leader.

In September 1962 he was transferred to Company E as weapons platoon leader and later became executive officer, the post that he presently holds.

Lt. McCoy is a member of the military fraternity, Scabbard and Blade and has been awarded the Expert Infantryman's Badge.

He currently resides in Columbus with his wife and daughter.

Goal Surpassed In CAAF Drive

By 1st Infantry PIO

The 1st Infantry recently surpassed its goal in the Community Activities Association Drive. In the drive a goal was set at 90 per cent of which the "Always First" exceeded by reaching 96 per cent.

Company B, 1st Infantry commanded by Lt. William G. Smith led the battle group in the percentage status with 106 per cent.

Final Thrust Puts 23rd Over Goal

By 23rd Infantry PIO

Exerting a final thrust for the Community Activities Association Fund Drive, personnel of the 23rd Infantry last week hit their goal with a total of $4,382 contributed by the "We Servers."

The 23rd's minimum desired goal was the highest of all Division Units.

The CAA is a cooperative effort of both military and civilian members of Fort Benning and Columbus. Proceeds go toward care of needy and youth activities, and assistance and entertainment of military personnel by activities and facilities such as YMCA and USO.

The drive has been underway since August 24 and team captains and keymen for the drive have worked vigorously until the goal was attained.

A Platoon Ldr. To 1st Infantry From TIS Class

By 1st Infantry PIO

Returning to the "Always First" after two months temporary duty at The Infantry School is Lt. James H. Dillard.

Originally from Reidsville, N.C., Lt. Dillard is a graudate of The Citadel, Charleston, S.C., where he majored in business administration.

He graduated in June of this year and was designated as a "Distinguished Military Graduate" of the school.

At The Infantry School he attended the Infantry Officer Orientation Course and completed the Airborne Course to earn his Parachutist Badge.

Lt. Dillard is assigned to Company E, 1st Infantry as a platoon leader.

Into Columbia's Tower March the Undaunted

BY COLIN HIGGINS

Into the auspicious circled tower of Columbia Records in Hollywood marched a resolute young man. Through the glass door, up the elevator, down the thickly carpeted hall he marched, arriving finally at the hallowed portals of the executive offices. Undaunted he walked in. Several minutes later he was, politely but firmly, thrown out. And so ended James Moulton's first encounter with the "Big Time."

GUITAR PLAYER
Sp4 Moulton

The James Moulton Story really begins when he was seven years old. Toddling about one day, the future singer, musician, composer, found an abandoned guitar. It had only three strings but by "tuning it his own way" he was soon able to play and before long could imitate (at least to his satisfaction) his boyhood heroes, Roy Rogers and Gene Autry. From then on Jim was hooked. Music was to be his life.

While attending Highland High School in his hometown of Albuquerque, N.M., Jim's serious interest in music was increased. He played with the school band and with a local musical group. After graduation he set out for California, for fame, and for Columbia Records.

With Subsidiary

Although his hopes at Columbia were not entirely fulfilled, he managed to land a job with a subsidiary company, Elde Records. Here he cut his first Big League record. It sold, but it sold modestly.

Taking to the road, he sang his way across various counties, starring on these tours with young performers, who, like himself, were just beginning. On these tours were now such famous performers as Chubby Checker, Sam Cook, and Bobby Vee.

James Moulton is currently doing a tour with the United States Army. Sp4 Moulton is assigned to Company A of the 87th Infantry.

Although his time is limited as a member of the Strategic Army Corps he has continued his musical career playing at many local functions, including dances and shows at Kelley Hill, Main Post and in Columbus night spots. Furthermore he has cut a new record for Mark V records in Atlanta called "Bonny" which is scheduled for release this winter.

Lt. M. Calderon Upped to 1st Lt.

By DivArty PIO

The commanding officer of Headquarters Battery, 38th Artillery, recently was promoted to first lieutenant.

Lt. Miguel Ramon Calderon, originally from Puerto Rico, and a graduate of the University of Miami, was promoted prior to the Thanksgiving holiday. He is a graduate of the Reserve Officer Training Corps at the University of Miami, and has a Bachelor of Science degree in zoology.

Lt. Calderon came to the 2nd Division and the 38th Artillery Battalion in August 1961, at which time he was assigned as the Headquarters Battery assistant S-3 (operations).

Before coming to the 2nd Division, Lt. Calderon attended the eight-week officers' orientation course at the U. S. Army Artillery and Missile School, Fort Sill, Okla.

FOR IBM SCHOOL . . . Reenlisting for three years to train at the IBM Repairman's School at Fort Monmouth, N.J., is PFC Leroy H. Barton, former company clerk at Company B, 9th Infantry.

Night Training Highlights Preparedness for 23rd

By 23rd Infantry PIO

Highlighting this week's training program at the 23rd Infantry is night training.

OVERSEAS SCHOOLS

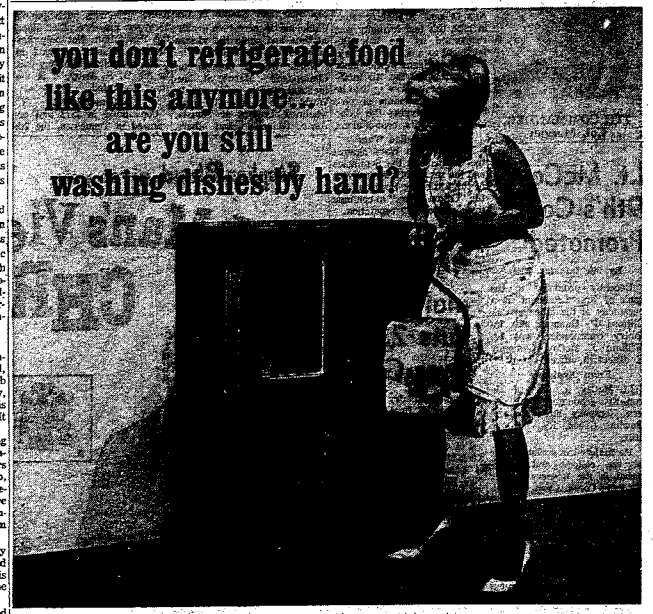
Besides the Special Warfare Center at Fort Bragg, N. C., the Army conducts Counterinsurgency training for U. S. and Allied officers in three overseas schools: One in Panama, one in Europe, and the third in Okinawa.

Movement to the bivouac area began on Wednesday morning, and the return trip completed by late Thursday afternoon.

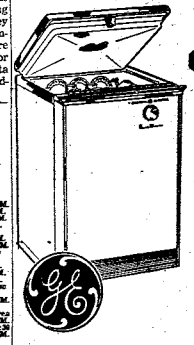
Included in this week's training program in night tactics was perimeter defense, night defense, night patrolling, night raids, and night withdrawals.

Blackout Driving

Last week the infantrymen underwent training in blackout driving conditions of convoys, infrared night vision, night firing, and the laying of mortars and night lighting.



In addition, the troops were confronted with a grenade obstacle course, whereas different targets and distances were set up during the daytime to test each individual's proficiency at handling grenades.



The Engineer Platoon of Headquarters Company supported the other companies in the training by laying mine fields and constructing tactical wire obstacles. The mine fields included antitank mines, surrounded by clusters of antipersonnel mines.

Other subjects taken up this week included patrolling, flank security, attack and reorganization, reverse slope defense, combat in cities, and bayonet training.

GREATEST EMPHASIS

Counterinsurgency is a mixture of political, military, social and economic measures used to prevent, suppress or defeat subversion and insurgency. Of the three components of special warfare (unconventional warefare, psychological operations and counterinsurgency), it commands greatest emphasis today.

This Season's 'Tall' Tale Is of a Deer That Failed To Get Away or a Weigh

By DivArty PIO

The notorious tall story about "the one that got away" has been modified at Headquarters Battery, 2nd Division Artillery.

It's too cold for many to be fishing, so the altered tale does not involve that sport. But it's not too cold for deer hunting, and that's where our story begins.

Our honest deer hunter in this little episode is Sp4 David Day, Headquarters Battery, Division Artillery. His story, as many modern tragedies, is at the same time happy and sad. He recently went deer hunting decked out in a glowing red cap ("If anyone shoots me it'll be premeditated murder.") and — this is where this tale departs from the original — the buck did not get away. In fact, Day landed himself a nine - pointer ostensibly outweighing the one that the post Fish and Game Association lists as the largest this season. This is the happy part of the tragic tale.

The sad part, the very sad part, is that Day, after enlisting the aid of three men to lift his catch, forgot to have it weighed. At the time, the biggest deer reported weighed 137 pounds, and everyone who saw Day's said it weighed anywhere from 150 to 180 pounds.

"They told me I may have just lost the record," says Day. "But I'm going hunting some more, and when I do, I'm not shooting unless he's at least as big as this one. And this time you can be sure I'll weigh it!"

Well, that's it. The one that always seems to get away didn't. But as far as official record goes, it might as well have.

BEST SOLDIER . . . Chosen by the 9th Infantry as November Soldier - of - the-Month is Sgt. Henry Lawrence of the 9th's Company B.

38th's Sgt. Weiss Now Staff Sergeant

By 38th Arty PIO

Sgt. Richard T. Weiss, of Headquarters Battery, 38th Artillery, was recently promoted to the grade of staff sergeant.

Sgt. Weiss has been assigned to the S-4 section of the 38th for a period of approximately four months. Previously he was assigned as Supply sergeant in Battery B, after tours in Germany and Korea. The Illinois native has spent more than 15 years in the Army.

Sgt. Weiss resides with his family in Columbus, Ga.

TRAINING ALLIES

Officer representatives from 51 free world nations have attended one or more of the regular courses conducted at the Army's Special Warfare Center at Fort Bragg, N. C.

New S-2, Liaison Officer Here for 38th Artillery

By 38th Arty PIO

The 38th Artillery has been assigned seven new officers including a new liaison officer and battalion S-2 (intelligence) officer.

Coming to the 38th are Capt. James M. H. Shugart Sr., Capt. James L. Jackson, and Lieutenants Billy D. Tucker, Thomas R. O'Connor and Al Reisz. Warrant officers arriving include CWO James R. Mabry and WO Johnie B. Eidson.

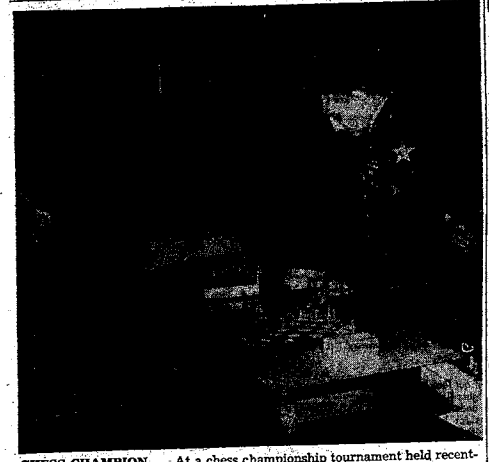
Capt. Jackson, coming to the 38th from Headquarters, U.S. Army Troops, Fort Lewis, Washington, will take over the duties of battalion liaison officer. Capt. Shugart will take over as battalion S-2 officer. He comes to the 38th from Headquarters, Special Troops, Fort Bliss, Texas.

Lt. Tucker and Lt. O'Connor, both from Fort Carson, Colo., have been assigned to Headquarters Battery as forward observers. Lt. Reisz, who is assigned as assistant executive officer of Battery B, comes from the Army Training Center, 5th Battalion, Fort Sill, Okla.

CWO Mabry and WO Eidson have been assigned as personnel and property book officer respectively. CWO Mabry's last assignment was with the 7th Infantry Division Artillery, and WO Eidson comes from the U. S. Army Petroleum Distribution Command, in Europe.

'We Servers' Serve VIPs To a Thanksgiving Feast

By 23rd Infantry PIO



Highlighting the Thanksgiving Holiday festivities at the 23rd Infantry last week, the "We Servers" put their best foot forward, playing host to the Division Commander, Brig. Gen. Charles Billingslea, Chief of Staff, Col. Louis A. Kumzig Jr.; and their own battle group commander, Col. Lucien F. Keller.

The guests and their families ate the Thanksgiving Day noon meal in Headquarters Company mess hall.

Gen. Billingslea and Col. Kumzig arrived at the 23rd after having visited other units within the Division. They visited briefly each of the seven company mess halls; halls that Col. Kumzig, as a former 23rd Infantry commander, had at one time been very familiar with.

The unexpected presence of Col. Keller, 23rd commander currently assigned to temporary duty in the Orford, Miss., area, made the 23rd "family" complete for the holidays. During Col. Keller's absence, Lt. Col. Richard A. Perkins, deputy commander, commands the battle group.

A variety of activities, including religious programs, tournaments in football, basketball, volleyball, and horse shoe pitching rounded out the four-day week-end for the battle group.

CHESS CHAMPION . . . At a chess championship tournament held recently at Service Club Two Lt. Robert Karch (right) of the Military Intelligence Detachment challenged all present to play him simultaneously. Sixteen tables were set up in a circle and sixteen players silently began their chess strategems. After defeating fifteen the lieutenant fell on the sixteenth. The winner was Pvt. John J. Robins of Division Artillery.

DivArty Holds Numerous Thanksgiving Coffees

HEADQUARTERS

The ladies of Division Artillery Headquarters held their monthly coffee prior to the Thanksgiving holidays in the home of Mrs. Ralph K. Jones, wife of Lt. Col. Jones, Division Artillery executive officer.

Special guest at the event was Mrs. Sydney E. Sacerdote, wife of Col. Sacerdote, the new commander of Division Artillery. She was asked to pour. Also welcomed to the unit was Mrs. William J. Spencer, wife of Capt. Spencer, the Division Artillery Surgeon.

12TH ARTILLERY

Mrs. Robert C. Quinn and Mrs. Charles D. Williams Jr. recently co-hostessed the monthly coffee for the ladies of the 12th Artillery. The event was held in the home of Mrs. Quinn in Battle Park.

A silver container holding an extensive arrangement of pink, yellow and white chrysanthemums formed the centerpiece for the serving table. Pale green table linen was used to complete the setting. Mrs. Quinn poured for her guests.

Part of the morning's activities included each of the ladies bringing a baby gift for the Quinn family. During the business portion of the coffee, Mrs. Don F. Simanton was appointed to be the new publicity chairman effective in January.

15TH ARTILLERY

November's Coffee Call for the ladies of 15th Artillery was held recently in the home of Mrs. Thomas C. Elwards. Mrs. Edmund D. Rozecki poured refreshments for those attending, including newcomers Mrs. William J. Lundberg, Mrs. T. W. Simonsovich, and Mrs. Fred E. Glascock.

27TH ARTILLERY

The home of Mrs. Robert Slaughter was the scene recently of an informal coffee held as the monthly function of the ladies of the 27th Artillery.

Mrs. James D. Clark, wife of Lt. Col. Clark, commander of the battalion, won the door-prize.

A kitchen accessory demonstration provided an added interest for those attending.

17TH ARTILLERY

A Thanksgiving motif was chosen by co-hostesses Mrs. Lonnie V. Wharton and Mrs. Robert A. Morrison Jr. when they entertained the ladies of the 17th Artillery at their monthly coffee recently. The event was held in the home of Mrs. Wharton.

The seasonal centerpiece was a floral arrangement of bronze and yellow chrysanthemums designed to form a turkey. Golden palm leaves formed the head and tail.

A new arrival to the unit and welcomed at this coffee was Mrs. Granville L. Deatherage.

37TH ARTILLERY

A coffee held at the home of Mrs. D. D. Tucker in Custer Terrace was the monthly event of the ladies from the 37th Artillery. The Thanksgiving theme was carried out in both the table decorations and the linen. Mrs. Tucker poured.

New arrivals welcomed to the battalion were Mrs. Charles Wendt and Mrs. Duke Burnett. Mrs. F. Fallis was bade farewell.

38TH ARTILLERY

Mrs. Donald J. Witt recently hostessed the November coffee for the ladies of the 38th Artillery in her Columbus home.

New arrivals welcomed to the unit were Mrs. Irwin L. Davis and Mrs. Johnnie B. Eidson.

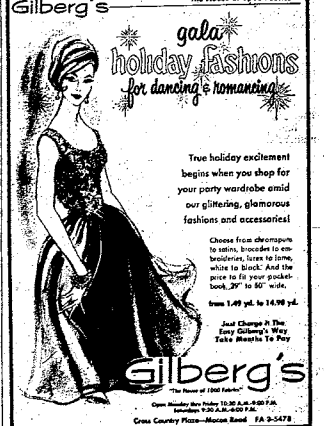
This Week's Social Notes

12th TRANS.

Company A ladies hostessed the monthly coffee of the 12th Transportation Battalion last Thursday at the home of Mrs. Alfred E. Klemm. They selected as their centerpiece a basket of leaves to highlight the main figure of a paper turkey nestled in colors of yellow, orange and brown.

Plans for December feature a Christmas Gift - Exchange Luncheon instead of the regular coffee.

69th ARMOR



An Italian menu featuring lasagne was prepared recently for the ladies of 69th Armor. The evening function was hostessed by Mrs. James T. Kolb, wife of Lt. Col. Kolb, commander of 60th Armor, and was held in her home. These wives also gathered together last Sunday for a Pot-luck Dinner in the home of Mrs. Dave Termin. A newcomer welcomed to the battalion was Mrs. Russell H. Platt.

The friendliness and amiability for which Richmond, Va., is noted are basic characteristics of one of its daughters, Mrs. Edgar R. Poole, wife of Col. Edgar R. Poole, commander of the 2nd battle group, 1st Infantry. Her awareness of people as individuals and her inate curiosity have led the first lady of the 1st Infantry toward her varied interests. From selling advertising for her own shopper's manual to her wish to do Gray Lady work in clinics and wards, she demonstrates her desire to know better the people around her.

Having attended the Richmond Professional Institute, a division of William and Mary, as an art and advertising major, Mrs. Poole had a fine preparation for the work she has done both professionally and as a hobby since her school years. Since marriage, she has enjoyed combining commercial art with writing advertising copy.

At Fort Monroe, Va., she and a friend sold space, wrote, edited, and published "Shop Hounds," a shopper's guide. Mrs. Poole feels that she best manifests her ability artistically with water colors; her range of subjects is evidenced in her own living room, from fragile flowers of Panama to fishermen in Virginia.

Jeanne Louise Sterritt married the recently commissioned Lt. Poole in 1942 in Richmond. The first two years of their marriage were spent at army posts in the south, until Col. Poole was ordered to Monterey, Calif., with the III Corps. It was here that the Pooles' daughter, Linda, who is now a freshman at Mary Washington College, was born on the Fourth of July, 1944.

When Linda was twenty seven days old, she and Mrs. Poole returned to Richmond, for Col. Poole had by then gone to Europe with the III Corps. Upon the colonel's return, the family was stationed at Camp Polk, La., until being sent to the Military Government of Occupation School at Carlisle, Pa. Mrs. Poole and Linda returned to Richmond. Here they remained when Col. Poole went to Korea.

Korea

In January of 1947, the ladies of the Poole family joined Col. Poole in Taegu, Korea, and were shocked by the conditions of this small country that had been dominated and occupied by Japan for forty years. Mrs. Poole feels that every American should spend a month under such conditions to appreciate her own country.

There was one American dependent in Taegu when Mrs. Poole arrived. They lived in quarters that had at one time been a Japanese officers' compound. There was electricity, but it was controlled by the North Koreans, and consequently very unreliable; at best, the power was so low as to be of little use. Equipped with a stove that burned diesel fuel, two tent stoves, and a wood stove that was so mammoth the floor caved in when it was installed, Mrs. Poole managed to prepare meals and to keep her family warm during the bitter Korean winters.

Never did Mrs. Poole leave the house without a weapon. Now she can laugh at the memory of herself driving a jeep, the only available means of travel, and wearing an issue parka with a "45" tucked in the pocket.

Japan

The fifth of Taegu in 1947 was unforgettable; lepers lived in the area adjacent to the American compound. A leave in Japan at the Fujiya Hotel for two weeks during their tour in Taegu, where Col. Poole was Chief of the Bureau of Home Affairs, was a highlight of the Pooles' two years in the Far East. The Fujiya Hotel, crowded with Americans involved in the Japanese war trials, was a most welcome change.

Happy to return to the States, Col. and Mrs. Poole arrived at Fort Benning in July, 1949, for the Advanced Infantry Course. Upon graduation, Col. Poole was stationed at Sand Hill with the 3rd Division for a year, after which he remained at Benning to instruct in the Infantry School. In 1952, the Pooles went to Fort Leavenworth, Kan., to Command and General Staff College. Mrs. Poole obviously has enjoyed the years her husband has spent as a student and refers to them as "fun duty."

When, in 1953, Col. Poole returned to Korea for sixteen months, Mrs. Poole and Linda stayed with Mrs. Poole's family in Richmond. Upon the colonel's return, Ft. Monroe, Va. became home. It was at this time that "Shop Hounds" was published, and also where the Pooles became avid square dancers, with Col. Poole serving as president of the square dancing group.

Panama

Next came a favorite tour, the Panama Canal Zone. The lovely quarters, combined with so many things of interest to paint, caused Mrs. Poole to say that she would happily return anytime.

Col. and Mrs. Poole came to Fort Benning this summer after attending the Naval War College in Newport, R.I. While there, the versatile Pooles, assisting backstage, helped present a variety show for Navy Relief.

Because of her awareness of the world around her, Mrs. Poole has always actively participated in community life wherever she has lived. Fort Benning will surely be enriched by her tour here.

Mrs. Hamilton Hosts 2nd Avn. Bridge Porty

Mrs. Everett T. Hamilton recently hostessed the ladies of 2nd Aviation Company with a bridge party in her home. First prize was won by Mrs. Rayburn D. Huckabee, second prize went to Mrs. Neil Johnson, and the floating prize was awarded to Mrs. Milton Rothleitner.

Mrs. Silver Has Coffee

Mrs. Benjamin Silver hostessed in her home the November coffee of the 23rd Infantry. Co-hostesses were Mesdames Milo P. Johnson, Jon M. Hansen, and Lawrence W. Drinkard. Coffee was served to the guests by Mrs. Richard A. Perkins Jr., wife of Lt. Col. Perkins, deputy battle group commander.

The serving table was decorated with a centerpiece of assorted dried harvest vegetables, Indian corn, and gourds arranged in a Horn of Plenty.

Lt. Col. Benjamin S. Silver spoke to the ladies on the activities and composition of the battle group. He also explained "Rotaplan" to the wives.

Mrs. Charles Billingslea, wife of Brig. Gen. Billingslea, 2nd Infantry Division commanding general, was introduced to the ladies of the 23rd Infantry by Mrs. Lucien F. Keller, the battle group commander's wife. At this time Mrs. Billingslea was presented with a 23rd Infantry Cookbook and a lighter, adorned with the battle group crest.

Farewells were bade to Mrs. Roger B. Woods and Mrs. Kurt S. Peterson. New arrivals to the 23rd Infantry welcomed at this coffee were Mesdames William T. Hayes, John A. Cooper, Frank B. Harbor, Phillip C. Cox, and Louis H. Buhrmaster.

'Old Sarge' Reminisces With Troops

A retired master sergeant who spent more than 33 years on active duty paid a recent visit to a former units' headquarters, the 2d Battle Group, 23rd Infantry.

Former MSgt. Leroy C. Lumnus, who retired from active duty in October 1959, served with Company A, 23rd Infantry, from 1925 to 1931 during the units stay at Fort Sam Houston, Tex. Following this, he spent a year with the 2nd Tank Company of the 2nd Division, and two years with Company G of the 9th Infantry, all of Fort Sam Houston. He recalls that he participated in the 23rd's sports program, playing basketball, football, and baseball.

The Hattiesburg, Miss., native met and married his wife in Phenix City, Ala., during an assignment at Fort Benning with Company C, 66th Tank Battalion. At present, he and his wife reside at Fort Walton Beach, Fla.

When the separation of the old Army-Air Force occurred, making two distinct branches of the service, MSgt. Lumnus switched to the Air Force, and remained there until his retirement in October 1959.

FIRST EDITION . . . Triumphantly holding up the first edition of the 87th Infantry's newspaper "The Conqueror," PFC Eugene Breeskin, Headquarters company, marks a new page in the 87th's history. The newspaper will be printed on a bi-monthly basis.

23rd Welcomes 4 New Officers

By 23rd Infantry PIO

Four new officers, three of whom just completed Officer Candidate School this past September, arrived in the 23rd Infantry last week from The Infantry School. All are former enlisted men with prior active duty service.

Named a platoon leader in the battle group's Company C was Lt. Philip C. Cox, a native of New Castle, Ind. Prior to his OCS commission last February, he had served as an enlisted man for about nine years, with overseas tours of duty in Japan and Korea. He has been awarded the National Defense Service Medal, the second award of the Good Conduct Medal, and the parachutist's badge.

Company A gained a new platoon leader in Lt. Thomas M. DeMartino. Before his commission through OCS this past September, Lt. DeMartino served as an enlisted man for a year. He is a graduate of Lafayette College in Easton, Pa., with a Bachelor of Science degree in business administration. He is a native of Brooklyn, N. Y.

The remaining two officers, Lt. Clifford G. Bath and Lt. Charles J. Ferris, were both assigned to Combat Support Company. Lt. Bath was given the duty position of forward observer. He, too, had a year of enlisted service before completing OCS last September. He is a graduate of Oklahoma State University and has a Bachelor of Science degree in hotel - restaurant administration. Santa Rosa, Calif., is his hometown.

Another Californian, Lt. Ferris is from Berkley. In Combat Support Company Lt. Ferris serves as the mortar section commander. He served as an enlisted man in the California National Guard until his commission through OCS in October 1961. At the time he was ordered to active duty, this past Nov. 1, he was executive officer of his National Guard unit.

Since arriving at Fort Benning and the 23rd Infantry, Lt. Ferris has enrolled in the American University located on post.

They're Identical

The Sergeants Are Getting Second Glances

By 23rd Infantry PIO

Causing quite a few turned heads and second glances within the 23rd Infantry since their arrival are two enlisted men assigned to the battle group's Company E.

It seems that the two men have grown accustomed to seeing inquisitive facial expressions on the part of almost everyone during their first encounter with the two men. The reason — the two men are identical twins, the first to be assigned to the 23rd Infantry in quite some time.

A Big Family

Coming from a family of eight children, the two brothers, Sergeants Creston and Preston Dawson, entered the Army together, and have never been given separate assignments during their military career which began almost six years ago, and includes overseas tours in Korea and Germany. One other member of the family, a younger brother, is presently stationed at Fort Jackson, S. C.

Mistaken identity has proven a little bothersome at times the twins relate. Creston recalls an assignment where Preston was completely omitted from the duty roster, since the company clerk was not aware there were two "Dawson's". The matter was clarified, however, when it became obvious that Creston was performing duties and Preston was not. Who could blame Creston for not wanting his other half to have equal opportunity?

The two, both squad leaders in Company E, agree that they have mutual likes and dislikes, in typical twin fashion. Even agreeing on wanting a set of twin offsprings of their own. Wouldn't this be risking added confusion and mistaken identity? Well, maybe one of them will have a set of boys, the other a set of girls. Or, perhaps one could become the father of a boy and a girl set, while the other has a girl and boy. Still confusion! With a little luck, and the aid of Old Mother Nature, there's the chance there won't be anymore Dawson twins!

6 Assigned To 1st Inf.

By 1st Infantry PIO

The 1st Infantry welcomed three new officers and three top noncommissioned officers to the "Always First".

Capt. Ralph D. Miller, a graduate of Officer Candidate School in 1953 was recently assigned as assistant S-3 air.

He has attended the Army Language School in California and served in three campaigns during World War II.

Lt. Wallace K. Yashima is platoon leader in the 1st Infantry's Company E. A graduate of the University of Hawaii, Honolulu, Hawaii, Lt. Yashima received his Bachelor of Science degree in 1956.

Assigned to Company B as a platoon leader is Lt. Fred L. Hasen.

Headquarters Company received SFC Caswell Edwards assigned as chief supply sergeant and SFC Arnos E. Stacey, the new engineer platoon sergeant. SFC Rondal G. Burrell is assigned as squad leader in Company B.

COUNTERINSURGENCY

Counterinsurgency is a mixture of political, military, social and economic measures used to prevent, supress or defeat subversion and insurgency. Of the three components of special warfare — unconventional warfare, psychological operations and counterinsurgency — it commands greatest emphasis today.

Football Field Dedicated in Korea to Memory of Division Soldier

SEOUL, Korea — The Seoul Area Command football field was recently renamed in honor of the late Lt. Thomas A. Lombardo, a former West Point football player and team captain who was killed on September 24, 1950 during Korean Conflict action. He served with the 2nd Infantry Division.

During halftime ceremonies of the football game between the SAC "Mountaineers" and the I Corps "Bullseyes," Col. Cyril D. Sterner, commanding officer, Seoul Area Command, read messages from General of the Army Douglas MacArthur and former West Point football coach Col. Earl "Red" Blaik.

In his message praising the fallen soldier, Gen. MacArthur said, "It is highly appropriate that this gridiron, carved out of ground hallowed by American bloodshed that men might be free, be dedicated to honor the memory of Lt. Thomas A. Lombardo.

For he brought to the battlefield the fighting spirit and leadership acquired on the football field. He capitalized West Point's 1944 eleven and later gave his life in the consolidation of our victory at Inchon.

He knew no compromise with duty nor sought any but to his final breath gave implacable devotion to the immortal legend by which he was trained to serve 'Duty, Honor, Country.'

Let those who struggle here for supremacy in sport remain ever conscious that here are sown the seeds that upon other fields, on other days, will bear the fruits of victory."

Former Coach Blaik said, "It is a source of inspiration to all who were associated with Tom to learn that a football field was being dedicated to the memory of this soldier-athlete.

On behalf of his teammates and the coaching staff, may I express our sincere gratitude for the honor you have bestowed on our former colleague. From the sons, West Point expects the best . . . Tom Lombardo always gave his best."

Lt. Gen. Samuel L. Myers, deputy commanding general, Eighth United States Army, unveiled a plaque during the halftime ceremonies at mid-field.

Upon his graduation from the Academy, Lt. Lombardo was assigned as a platoon leader, in 1945, with the 1st Cavalry Division in Japan. In 1947 he returned to West Point as an assistant football coach.

While attending West Point, 1942-1945, he captained the 1944 team, the first undefeated West Point football team since 1916. In 1950 he was sent to Korea as commanding officer, Company I, 38th Infantry Regiment, 2nd Infantry Division. It was with that unit, during the Inchon battle, that he was killed.

2 First Sergeants Report for Duty

By 122nd Signal PIO

First Sergeants Nevel L. Butler and Walter R. Lang recently reported into the 122nd Signal Battalion for duty.

Sgt. Butler comes to the Battalion following a tour of duty as first sergeant, Company A, 8th Signal Battalion, 8th Infantry Division, Bad Kreuznack, Germany.

Prior to this assignment, Sgt. Butler was stationed at Fort Kobbe, Canal Zone, with the 33rd Infantry Regiment where he served as first sergeant of Company B, 1st Battle Group, 20th Infantry.

During his 18 years in the Army, Sgt. Butler has received several decorations. These include the European Theater Ribbon, Victory Medal and Occupation Medal (Germany).

Within the battalion, Sgt. Butler has assumed duties as first sergeant of the Command Operations Company.

Sgt. Butler is married and lives with his wife, Mathilde, and daughter Evelyn at 155 McGrath St., Fort Benning.

Sgt. Lang, before reporting into the 122nd Signal Battalion, served as first sergeant with the 58ist Signal Company, Ponytack, Korea. Preceding this assignment, Sgt. Lang served as sergeant major of Post Signal at Fort Campbell, Kentucky.

During his 19 years in the Army, Sgt. Lang has been presented a number of outstanding awards. These include the Bronze Star for valor in the Normandy Invasion during World War II, the Army Commendation Medal for his performance of duty as sergeant major with Post Signal, Fort Campbell. In addition, he was awarded the Purple Heart with three clusters for action in Sicily and Germany during World War II.

Sgt. Lang has assumed duties as first sergeant of the Forward Communications Company of the Battalion.

GEN. HARDING PRESENTS THE AWARD

A Distinguished Marksman Badge Presented to 23rd Inf. Soldier

By 23rd Infantry PIO

In ceremonies held recently in the office of Brig. Gen. Stanley L. Harding, assistant Division Commander, a 23rd Infantry Soldier, Sp4 Robert E. Albert, received the Distinguished Marksman Badge. Since it was first issued in 1884, the award has been given fewer times than the Congressional Medal of Honor.

To receive one of these coveted honors, a soldier must first gain three Army Excellence in Competition Badges, called "legs on Distinguished." One leg must be gained in the National Trophy Matches or in the U. S. Army Championship Matches.

Arrived Last Month

Currently assigned to the 23rd's Company C as a gunner, Sp4 Albert arrived in the battle group only last month from an assignment at Fort Kobbe, Canal Zone.

He entered military service in July 1955 at Kansas City, Mo. After undergoing basic training at Fort Chaffee, Ark., advanced individual training followed at Fort Carson, Colo. In December 1955, he arrived in Korea for his first overseas tour of duty. Completing this, he returned to the continental U. S. and was assigned to the 12th Infantry at Fort Lewis, Wash.

Next came the Canal Zone assignment, where he was assigned to the 20th Infantry at Fort Kobbe, first as a radar mechanic then as a senior rifleman.

The Springfield, Mo., native also holds the Good Conduct Medal.

BECOME INFANTRYMEN

On June 15, 1944, the 2nd Engineer Battalion was committed as Infantry in support of the 38th Infantry on Hill 31. Lo, to take the place of an infantry battalion which had been driven back off the hill by a vicious counterattack.

Medical

Germany. Returning to the U. S. in December 1954, he served at Fort Jackson U. S. Army Hospital before attending the Army Medical Service School Advanced Course at Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

Subsequent assignments took him to the Fleximmoux General Hospital, Denver, Colo., and Headquarters, I Corps Korea. From Korea, the major was assigned to the Letterman General Hospital in California.

The outgoing commander, Lt. Col. Pittman, arrived to take command of the medical battalion in September 1958 following two year's duty with Headquarters, Seventh U. S. Army, Korea.

Retirees

enlisted men honored with this review are scheduled to retire today. All but four are leaving after completing 20 years' service.

Retirees include: Lt. Col. Dudley E. Pittman, 2nd Medical Battalion; Maj. Vernon H. Ison, 7th Cavalry; CWO Charles L. Merredith, 702nd Ordnance Battalion; Sgt. Maj. Wallon M. Torres, Headquarters, Division Trains; 1st Sgt. Joseph F. Browning, 57th Infantry; M-Sgt. Jessie C. Chambliss, 13th Transportation Battalion; MSgt. Clifford Livingston, 13th Transportation Battalion; SFC Granvel O. Dority, 69th Armor; SFC Elmer S. Glickrist, 69th Armor; SFC John H. Grimm, Troop B, 7th Cavalry; SFC Ernest C. Meeks, Headquarters, 2nd Division; SFC Horace Revis, 17th Artillery; SP5 Alfred P. Davison, 702nd Ordnance Battalion; Sp5 Edison Scott, 2nd Engineer Battalion; Sp5 Howard Trahan, 2nd Engineer Battalion and Sp4 William H. Chester, 7th Infantry.

Reviewing troops was Brig. Gen. Charles Billingslea, 2nd Division commander. Commander of troops for this occasion was Col. Frederick V. Harris, deputy brigade commander.

505 Motorists Paid For 4-Day Holiday

BY DAVID M. WINKLER

For the majority of us, the expectation of an up and coming holiday is a pleasant one. It may mean, for some, the opportunity of spending a little more time with one's family or a chance to catch up on some odd jobs or maybe just a chance to get away from it all for a while.

But for 505 Americans the past Thanksgiving holiday meant just one thing...DEATH. In a 102-hour period, from 6 p.m. Thanksgiving eve to midnight Sunday, 505 people paid the most precious price, their life, merely trying to enjoy the "holiday."

It's time we stop looking around at other motorists when we hear these tragic figures and started examining our own driving attitudes more closely.

This is one in a series of quizes designed to test the motorist's general knowledge.

QUESTIONS

1. Speed plays an important part in the life expectancy of tires. As speed increases, the rate of tread wear also increases. The motorist who drives at 40mph can expect a "home" of 41 per cent over normal tread wear. "Normal" is the average tread wear at 50mph. On the other hand, the motorist who drives at 80mph can expect only:
   a. 20 per cent of normal tread wear.
   b. 35 per cent of normal tread wear.
   c. 45 per cent of normal tread wear.
   d. 60 per cent of normal tread wear.
2. Before entering a roadway, the driver of a vehicle emerging from an alley, driveway or building:
   a. Will stop the vehicle immediately before reaching a sidewalk or the sidewalk area extending across the alley or driveway.
   b. will yield the right of way to any pedestrian
   c. will yield the right of way to all vehicles approaching on the roadway.
   d. All three of the above
3. What percentage of traffic deaths occur within 25 miles of home?
   a. 30 percent
   b. 55 per cent
   c. 75 per cent
   d. 47 per cent
4. Pick out the incorrect answer. The driver or owner of any vehicle involved in an accident will give his name, address, and vehicle license number, and exhibit his operator's license upon request to:
   a. Any person injured
   b. Any person who witnessed the accident but was not involved in it.
   c. To any occupant of the vehicle collided with
   d. To any person acting for such persons
5. The winner of the first 500 - mile Memorial Day race at Indianapolis in 1911 driving a Marmon and averaging 74.59 mph was:
   a. Peter DePaolo
   b. Tommy Milton
   c. Hules Goux
   d. Ray Harroun
6. Rear license plates must be illuminated during the hours of darkness by a taillight or a separate light directed on the plate making it clearly legible from a distance of:
   a. 25 feet to the rear
   b. 50 feet to the rear
   c. 75 feet to the rear
   d. 100 feet to the rear
7. At Daytona Beach in 1927, the first human to travel over 200 mph, 203.77 to be exact, was:
   a. Wilbur Shaw
   b. Major H. O. D. Seagrave
   c. Billy Arnold
   d. Duke Nalon
8. Contrary to the notion that it may often be preferable to be thrown from a crashing car, statistics indicate that the chance of death is how many times greater if the victim is catapulted out than if he stays aboard?
   a. two times greater
   b. five times greater
   c. eight times greater
   d. thirteen times greater

ANSWERS

1. A	5. D
2. D	6. B
3. C	7. B
4. B	8. B

LONG-TIMER . . . After having spent eight years with the 2nd Infantry Division, 1st Sgt. Joseph Browning, is scheduled to retire from active duty. This long time member of the division serves as top sergeant of Company A, 67th Infantry.

New S-3, Three New Lts. Arrive

By 23rd Infantry PIO

Arriving last week in the 23rd Infantry and increasing the battle group's officer strength were four officers, one a captain and three lieutenants.

Given the position of assistant S-3 officer was Capt. Harold M. Serven. His last assignment was as a professor of military science at the University of Vermont, as a member of the U. S. Army Reserve Officer Training Corps Instructor Group. He had been there since June 1960. Capt. Serven was graduated from Boston University, with a Bachelor of Arts degree in history. He received his commission through the ROTC. Lynn, Mass., is Capt. Serven's hometown.

From Devens

Joining the 23rd from Fort Devens, Mass., is Lt. Joseph M. Acosta. Lt. Acosta served as executive officer of Company A, 2nd Battalion, 2nd Infantry Brigade at Devens. He has served overseas tours of duty in Korea and Japan, and holds the Parachutist Badge and Ranger tab. In addition, Lt. Acosta has been awarded the Good Conduct Medal, the Army Occupation Medal, the National Defense Service Medal, the Korean Service Medal with three bronze stars, and the United Nations Medal.

Lt. Reynold Vaselka received his commission just this year through the Reserve Officer Training Corps at the Texas College of Arts and Industries, where he obtained a Bachelor of Arts degree in accounting. He is a native of Robstown, Tex.

Commissioned last February through the Reserve Officer Training Corps at Morgan State College, Baltimore, Md., was Lt. Joseph C. Dunnington. He holds a Bachelor of Science degree in math from Morgan State. Lt. Dunnington first came to Fort Benning for the Infantry Officer Orientation Course at The Infantry School, followed by airborne training. His duty with the 23rd Infantry is that of a platoon leader.

Baumholder Promotions Listed for 4 Lieutenants

By 38th Infantry PIO

BAUMHOLDER, Germany — Four July 1961 graduates of the same Infantry Officer Orientation Course at Fort Benning have been promoted to first lieutenant in the 38th Infantry.

They are Lieutenants Wilfred Foster and John Hitti, platoon leaders in Company B; Carl Hickey platoon leader in Company C; and Carroll J. Kraus, assistant adjutant.

Also recently promoted to his present grade in the 38th was Capt. Benjamin Owen, battle group motor officer.

Capt. Owen was commissioned in 1958 from Ouchita Baptist College, Arkadelphia, Arkansas and first served with the 4th Infantry Division at Fort Lewis, Washington. From May 1960 until he joined the 38th Infantry in August of this year, he was assigned to the Quartermaster Research and Engineering Field Evaluation Agency at Fort Lee, Va.

The newly promoted first lieutenants are all ROTC graduates. Lt. Foster from Virginia State College; Lt. Hickey from Marshall University, West Virginia; Lt. Hitti from Colorado College and Lt. Kraus from the University of Nebraska.

Sergeant Returns To Benning Scene Of Basic Training

Battery A, 38th Artillery, has been assigned a new motor sergeant, a native of McCorley, Ark.

Taking over in the motor section is SFC John S. Mauldin, returning to Fort Benning, the scene of his basic combat training in August, 1940.

After his first assignment at Fort Benning, the sergeant was assigned to ordnance and served in North Africa. He received five battle stars for campaigns in North Africa and Italy.

At the end of World War II, Sgt. Mauldin took a three-year break in service and then re-enlisted in August 1948. He later served in Korea, fighting in two major campaigns.

Liaison Officer, Platoon Leader Promoted to 'First' at 1st Infantry

By 1st Infantry PIO

In a ceremony held recently in battle group headquarters, two 1st Infantry officers were advanced to 1st lieutenant.

Lt. Alan F. Kilburn and Lt Jesse L. Madden were promoted to their present rank by Col. Edgar R. Poole, 1st Infantry commander.

To Company E

Lt. Kilburn is assigned to Company E as a rifle platoon leader while Lt. Madden is assigned as liaison officer with Combat Support Company.

A graduate of the University of Maine, Orono, Me., Lt. Kilburn received his Bachelor of Science degree in education in June, 1960. He has attended the Infantry Officer Orientation Course at The Infantry School, Fort Benning.

Lt. Madden received his Bachelor of Science degree in business administration from Western Michigan University, Kalamazoo, Mich. He received his commission in June, 1960 after graduating from Reserve Officer Training Corps at the university.

AT HEADQUARTERS
Capt. Matheson

Commander Has Spent Five Tours at Benning

By 87th Infantry PIO

The newest company commander in the 87th Infantry is Capt. Robert G. Matheson, who has assumed command of Headquarters Company.

Captain Matheson comes to the "Conquerors" from the Advanced Infantry Officer Career Course. Other service schooling includes Airborne training and Officer Candidate School at Fort Benning and the Army Aviation School at Fort Rucker, Ala.

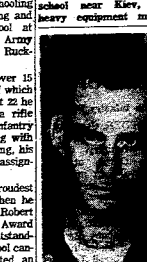
Capt. Matheson has over 15 years of service, eight of which were enlisted service. At 22 he was first sergeant of a rifle company with the 24th Infantry Division in Korea. Along with five tours at Fort Benning, his overseas duty lists an assignment in Iraq.

Capt. Matheson's proudest moment was in 1956 when he was the recipient of the Robert P. Patterson Memorial Award given annually to the outstanding Infantry Officer School candidate. He was presented an engraved .45 pistol and a check from the Secretary of the Army.

Residing in the Custer Terrace area, the Matheson have two children.

Russian Born Soldier Serving With 23rd

By 23rd Infantry PIO



Listening to his almost perfect English, with just a hint of a foreign accent, it may seem difficult to believe the early childhood surroundings that for the first 17 years of his life meant living in Communist Russia and being separated from his family.

Yet the winning smile Pvt. Yuri Koral always displays, together with his eagerness for friendship are proof that America has taken part in a remarkable transition, erasing hardships that now belong to the past, and giving the 23rd Infantry soldier a fresh, new outlook on life and the Free World.

Born in Russia

Yuri was born in Ivanovo, Russia, about 300 miles from Moscow. His parents were immigrants from Poland. At the age of three, both his parents were sentenced to prison for political reasons. Yuri was placed in a Russian School for orphans. Naturally he soon forgot his parents, and all contact with them was lost until his teen years.

While he was in a technical school near Kiev, learning heavy equipment mechanics, his mother finally established a correspondence with Yuri. It was then that he learned his parents were in New York City. They had been sent to Poland upon their release from the Russian jail, and had proceeded to America by way of Israel. He also learned that he had acquired a baby sister, born while his parents were in Israel.

A strong desire to be united with his family and come to America developed and Yuri and his family began the usual long procedure involved in such cases. Finally, in April 1960, after having been personally counseled by the United States Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson, Yuri boarded a plane in Moscow and arrived in New York City, a stranger in a strange and different land.

First Impression

He reports that his first impression of the people of New York was that everyone was going someplace in a hurry, all the time. Later, he admits noticing the free and happy manner with which the people presented themselves, and the abundance of food for everyone.

Since coming to the States, he has made recordings for Radio Free Europe, speaking in Russian to the people behind the Iron Curtain, relating to them his impressions and the opportunities he has found here. Prior to his coming into the service, he worked for a year with International Business Machines and hopes to continue after his service.

Now 23 years old, he openly admits an ambition to own an automobile for himself so that he can "go wherever and whenever" he wants in this free country.

Also first on his list of "wants" is to be a good soldier and become a U. S. citizen.

Prominent Citadel Grad Made Captain at 9th Inf.

By 9th Infantry PIO

Capt. Kenneth L. Willoughby, Company C, 9th Infantry, was promoted to his present rank recently in a ceremony at the office of Col. Clifford P. Hannum, 9th Infantry commander. He has been transfered to Combat Support Company as leader of the Heavy Mortar Platoon.

Capt. Willoughby entered the Army and was commissioned second lieutenant July 1, 1958, shortly after his graduation from The Citadel, a military college in Charleston, S.C.

At The Citadel, Capt. Willoughby participated in the Reserve Officer Training Corps program and was a Distinguished Military Graduate and Distinguished Military Student.

He majored in political science.

His first assignment as a U.S. Army officer was at The Infantry School, Ft. Benning, where he took the Infantry Officer Leadership Course.

Upon completion of the leadership course he went to Airborne school and later completed Ranger school at Ft. Benning.

Capt. Willaughby came to the 9th Infantry September 5, 1962 as executive officer to Company C, under the command of Lt. Shane N. Soldato.

He had 34 months in grade as a first lieutenant.

Present at the ceremony were Col. Hannum, who conducted the ceremony; Lt. Col. James M. Halpin, 9th Infantry executive officer; Maj. Wendell F. DeLaMare, adjutant; Maj. Charles W. Peer, S-4 officer; Maj. Roy J. Hertz Jr., S-3 officer, and Maj. Robert H. Highi, 9th Infantry S-2 officer.

The new silver bars were pinned on by the captain's wife.

Capt. Willoughby, a native of Atlanta, Ga., plans to make the Army his career. He presently resides with his wife and daughter at Columbus.

Certificate To 38th Sergeant On Europe Duty

By 38th Infantry PIO

BAUMHOLDER, Germany—SSgt. Frank Graham Jr., Company D, 38th Infantry, has received a Certificate of Achievement for service with the Medical Company (Provisional), 2nd Brigade, 8th Infantry Division (Mechanized), at Fort Devens, Mass.

The certificate was signed by Col. R. L. Utley, Brigade Commander.

The citation to the certificate stated that Sgt. Graham, during the period of March 1961 to September 1962, performed in an outstanding manner as unit Motor Sergeant. He was cited for professional knowledge, initiative, and attention to detail.

Personnel Clerk Is Commended By Post AG

By 7th Infantry PIO

A Letter of Commendation was awarded recently to a personnel clerk of the 7th Infantry.

PFC Paul S. Puro, Headquarters Company, was presented the award by Lt. Col. William D. Preston, deputy battle group commander.

The Letter of Commendation, written by Col. M. G. Schneider, adjutant general of The Infantry Center, reads "for outstanding achievement as the Honor Graduate of the Personnel Records Course conducted by this office during the period 8 through 24 October 1962. Thirty-three students were enrolled in this class." The letter went on to say, "Your alertness to instruction and thorough comprehension of the personnel records procedures presented is indicative of your desire for outstandin accomplishment and reflect great credit upon yourself and the military service."

Brig. Gen. Charles Billingslea, 2nd Division commanding general, also extended his personal commendation for PFC Puro's outstanding academic achievement as Honor Graduate.

PFC Puro works in the personnel section of the 7th as a records clerk.

"Rotaplan" provides for the rotation of three battle groups to Europe with one rotating to the U.S. every two months. The battle group returning here will be replaced in Europe by a battle Group from the United States. The units returning to the states will be assigned to the Strategic Army Corps (STRAC), and normally will remain here for a period of 18 to 30 months, before redeploying to Europe.

SPECIAL WARFARE

"This is another type of warfare, new in its intensity, ancient in its origin; war by guerrillas, subdversives, insurfents, assassins; war by ambush instead of by combat, by infiltration instead of aggression — seeking victory by eroding and exhausting the enemy instead of engaging him." (President Kennedy)

Medal of Honor

For This. . .

During World War II when the 2nd Division was fighting near Rocherath, Belgium, Cpl. Truman Kimbro of the 2nd Engineer Combat Battalion led a squad assigned the mission of raiding vital crossroads. Because of the heavy guard on the crossroads and the incessant enemy fire the mission seemed impossible. But Kimbro, crawling alongside the road managed to put the mines in place despite the wound he received in the leg. Returning, he was riddled with rifle and machine-gun fire and died from these wounds. For this action he received the Medal of Honor.

'Rock 'n Roll' Guitar Wows Artillerymen at Hq. Battery

By DivArty PIO

Possibly the best entertained unit in the Army since Elvis Presley became a civilian is Headquarters Battery, Division Artillery.

The artilleryman, as he walks through the freshly painted door of the first platoon barracks, may hear coming down the stairs the rhythmic melody of "Return to Sender," the flowing words of "Teenage Idol," or a clear guitar soloing the old hit, "Honky Tonk."

The men who have been in Headquarters Battery for a while are no longer surprised to see PFC Pete Willcox open his tan guitar case, remove his highly polished guitar and begin to sing. They have assumed an air of indifference, perhaps feeling that it would be unbecoming for an "old-timer" to openly reveal his enjoyment of the "music to shine boots by."

But the newcomers — those who have not yet heard PFC Willcox — their's are the faces to watch, because they are the ones who unmistakably register the pleased expressions that the others are withholding. They are the only ones you'll hear say, "Hey Elvis, how about 'Hound Dog'." And they are the only ones you'll see gather around his bed when he sings. But don't let appearances fool you: the others are listening too.

PFC Willcox, who took his basic training here with Battery A, 38th Artillery, says he didn't do much entertaining as a civilian, but he has been encouraged by the members of the band he joined while in the Army, and those who have heard him insist that he should be encouraged.

The band — comprised also of men from the 69th Armor Battalion — has played at the American Legion Post on Victory Drive, and recently has been appearing every weekend at the American Legion in La-Grange, Ga.

26th Dumps 1st to Win 5 Straight

26th, 87th Keep Tie for Top Spot

By 26th Infantry PIO

Quarterback Harold Shankles passed for two touchdowns last Monday as the 26th Infantry "Blue Spaders" defeated the 1st Infantry's "Always First" 13-6 in an exciting test of power in the 2nd Infantry Division Flag Football tournament.

This is the 26th's fifth victory in as many league football games and keeps the undefeated "Spaders" in a deadlock for first place with the lossless 87th Infantry. The "Conquerors" are 4 and 0 in tournament play. A game originally scheduled for November 21 between the titans was cancelled at the last minute due to weather conditions.

In Monday night's game with the 1st, Wardell Ross made a splendid catch as he held on to a long pass from Shankles to give the "Spaders" their first scoring edge late in the third period of the game. Failing to complete a pass for the extra point, the game remained 6-0 as the final minutes of the third period drew near with the "Spaders" out in front by only one touchdown. Seconds before the third period ended, the "Spaders" were blessed with an interception by Leroy Hayes which brought the ball from deep "Spader" territory to mid-field. With the help of a 15 yard penalty against the 1st Infantry, the "Spaders" managed to hold on for four plays before the third period whirred to a dramatic finish.

The fourth period found the 1st Infantry's "Always First" in possession of the ball as they drove deep into "Spaders" territory. Picking up three first downs in three plays the 1st Infantry began to move the ball with marked determination for the first time in the game. With the ball on the "Spaders" nine, the 1st Infantry began to take to the air with wild passes. After failing to complete two passes, the third was intercepted by "Spader" John Wells as he brought the ball to the 1st Infantry's eight. Quarterback Shankles began calling the offensive tactics for the "Spaders" as he took his team to the air with long passes. In a third down squeeze Quarterback Shankles hurled a plunging pass to Anthony Showell which gave the "Spaders" their second touchdown of the evening. Shankles threw a short pass up the middle for the extra point as he ended a terrific evening of performance for the "Spaders".

The "Spaders" ace kicker Frank L. Bennson put the ball far into the 1st Infantry's territory as the "Always First" took over from their twelve. With ten minutes left in the fourth period the 1st Infantry made a spectacular passing drive which gave them their only score for the evening. This was done by a pass to Alvin Williams from Gerald Smith. Williams made the catch as he moved with speed through "Spader" blockers. Failing to complete the extra point, the 1st Infantry was held to one touchdown for their game with the proven-invincible 26th Infantry "Blue Spaders."

With only three more games left in the Flag Football Tournament, the 26th Infantry "Blue Spaders" are yet to be defeated. The team has shown marked improvement with each opponent met since the tournament began.

Coach Harold Hambrick is very optimistic about clinching the championship, as his "Spader" team draws a dramatic season of Flag Football competition to an end.

38th Inf. Basketball Overseas

By 38th Infantry PIO

BAUMHOLDER, Germany — The 38th Infantry basketball team has begun serious workouts with an eye towards the beginning of the 8th Infantry Division Basketball Tournament, scheduled to begin late this month.

Although the "Marne men" finished out of the money in last year's 2nd Infantry Division competition, the return of most of last winter's star performers plus the addition of some much-needed height gives hope for a winning season.

Lt. Carl Hickey Jr., Company C platoon leader and coach of the 38th, and manager, Sgt. Howard Garrett, Company E, are presently working with 12 players from six companies to pick a starting five.

The "Rock of the Marne" squad will play 24 regular season games against the 8th Infantry Division's 504th and 505th Airborne Battle Groups; the 1st Battle Group, 16th Infantry; 1st Battle Group, 18th Infantry; DivArty, and Division Trains.

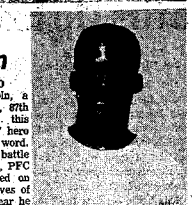
These seven squads form the National League in the tournament, while the American League consists of six teams from battalion-sized units.

7 Postponed Games Set Later in Season

The rescheduling of flag football games cancelled during regular season play will lengthen the life of tournament competition this year.

Due to training problems and weather conditions, seven games have been put off to be played at the conclusion of the formally scheduled season.

These seven games have been tentatively re-set by the Special Services office. They will be played on or around the dates of the three 1st Infantry games unplayed at the season's beginnings. Slow in fielding a team, the 1st Infantry withheld entering league competition until November 19, three match dates off football's start.



On December 3, the 23rd Infantry meets the 9th Infantry and the 1st Infantry goes against 122nd Signal. Division Artillery and the 1st Infantry and the 23rd Infantry and Signal are set on December 5. On December 7, the 87th faces Artillery and, moved up two days from December 9, Division Trains stands the 1st Infantry.

December 10 is the new date for the four cancellations in November 21. Barring further surprises, the four games on December 10 will wrap up the flag football division tournament.

MAJOR H. LINCOLN
87th's Sports Punch

PFC Major H. Lincoln, a member of Company C, 87th Infantry, has emerged this month as a "Conqueror" hero in the true sense of the word.

A member of the battle group flag football team, PFC Lincoln has been scouted on occasion by representatives of several colleges. Last year he was the star player on the team which won the 2nd Division championship with only one loss. Out of a team total of 526 points, "Linc" scored 264 playing right end offensively and safety on defense. This year he plans to do better.

Standing at six feet, one inch and weighing 193 pounds, he runs the hundred yard dash in 10.1 seconds. Rated the most valuable player on the 1961 team, he recently was offered a football scholarship to Southern Louisiana Institute.

Also a member of other battle group teams such as volleyball (first in the division this year) and track, he recently achieved his company's highest score on the new Army Combat Proficiency Test, scoring 451 points out of a possible 500.

87th, 26 Football Clash Stirs Up Excitement Here

By Bob de Camara
2nd Division Sports Editor

The long-awaited bout between the 87th Infantry and 26th Infantry undefeated football squads was stormed out Wednesday night a week ago, but the prospect of their future meeting continues to generate high feeling here.

This battle between the two most competent and eager teams in the division was a natural sell-out. Clamping a wet, indelicate hand on the evenings festivities on Kelley Hill, Mom Nature saw to it that the "Conquerors" and "Spaders" don't play until December 10 after all originally scheduled games are finished.

If these teams continue their winning ways, as everyone seems to think they will, the league football victor will be undecided until that game. Right now, the "Spaders" exhibit a 5-0 string. The "Conquerors" are 4-0.

Similar Scores

Taking a look at the game statistics with common opponents, the 26th and 87th show a more than close similarity. Against the 23rd Infantry, the "Conquerors" triumphed 41-0 and the "Spaders" took it 21-0. Against the 9th, 7-6 for the "Conquerors" and 20-18 for the "Spaders." The largest point spread occurred in the 1st Infantry games. Here, the 87th walloped "Always First" in the 1st's opener, 25-7. A week later, the 1st Infantry scared the 26th before losing by one TD, 13-6. This might be credited to experience gained by the 1st Infantry in the opening game.

In five games, the 26th Infantry has scored 122 points and been scored against to the tune of 28 points. In four games, 113 points went to the "Conquerors" against 20 for their opponents. On an average, the 26th gained 24.4 points per game and allowed 7.6. Offensively and defensively, the 87th outdid this with 28.25 points to their credit and 5 points to their opponents.

Any way it's looked at, the meeting between these two league powers is going to produce a close, frantic game. Unless something unforeseeable happens to either of these teams' outstanding players or ambition, December 10 will produce the football battle of the year. Partisan feeling is running strong in both battle groups, and they should be at a peak of readiness fom the contest.

SLIPPED THROUGH . . . A 9th Infantry ball carrier goes for yards gained in a league football battle with Division Artillery. (The 9th Infantry won their single round robin game against DivArty by a squeaking score of 7-6. All scores came in the fourth quarter).

38th Boxes Over There In Division

By 38th Infantry PIO

BAUMHOLDER, Germany — Five boxers from the 38th Infantry are currently members of the Baumholder Combatants boxing squad, one of four teams competing in the 8th Infantry Division Boxing Tournament.

"Marnemen" boxers include Sgt. Allen Russell Jr., Company A; Sgt. Booker T. Anderson, PFC Ronald E. Lindsey, and Sp4 Felipe Valdivia, Company B and PFC Andrew K. Wilson of Company C.

Besides the Baumholder squad, Bad Kreuznach, Mainz and Mannheim posts have teams composed of 8th Division men.

The entire Baumholder squad consists of personnel from the 38th, the 1st Battle Group, 16th Infantry; 68th Armor, and Division Artillery.

Flag Teams Play Each Other Once

By BOB DE CAMARA

The usual double round-robin tournament will not be played this year in flag football. In order that the division flag football league will not run into or delay the league basketball games coming up, flag football will this year be limited to a single round-robin. Each team will play every other team once rather than twice.

There are eight teams entered in this year's competition. They are: 1st Infantry; 9th Infantry; 23rd Infantry; 26th Infantry; 87th Infantry; Division Artillery; Division Trains; and Separate Battalions.

The 1st Infantry has not organized a team as yet and has postponed its first three originally scheduled games. The 1st Infantry started in the flag football league on November 19 and will have to sandwich in the missed games during its regular schedule. This means the 1st Infantry may wind up playing several games a week.

Division league basketball games have not been set for any definite starting date as yet. Basketball may begin in early December in order to squeeze in as many games as possible before the Christmas holidays. Or basketball may start following the holidays.

87th Trains After Hours

By 87th Inf PIO

Extracurricular sports and athletic activities are well known throughout the 87th Infantry, but Combat Support Company has added a new twist — a voluntary physical training program after duty hours. At about six p.m. a small but growing hardy band can be seen double-timing their way around Kelley Hill, doing airborne pushups or something equally as strenuous.

The group is led by master parachutist Lonnie Barber, the assault gun platoon sergeant. The program itself was first inspired by the platoon leader, Lt. Howard Koonce to improve the physical condition of the men.

The idea became popular since the first day and is now enthusiastically being tried by other platons in the company.

Doughboys to Climax Season With 'Eagles'

By Dave Braun

The Fort Benning Doughboys climax a brilliant, yet frustrating football season tomorrow at 8 p.m., when the once-beaten Fort Campbell, Ky., Screaming Eagles invade Fort Benning in what promises to be a real battle.

Fort Campbell, with only a 22-19 heartbreaking loss to the Quantico, Va., Marines blotting an otherwise perfect record, comes to Fort Benning with a talent-laden ballclub that includes eight former West Pointers among whom is Bill Carpenter, the U. S. Military Academy's famed "lonesome end."

For Fort Benning it will be its first stiff contest in three weeks, having watched three scheduled service opponents cancel remaining games with Fort Benning this month.

Head Coach Maj. Leaton C. Cofield is confident that his Doughboy team is still "up" for the game despite the enforced idleness of the past three weeks.

Fort Benning has defeated two Florida professional league teams and played an intersquad game to compensate for the canceled contests.

It will be a strong Fort Campbell team that takes the field against Fort Benning Saturday night, led by quarterback Tom Blanda, former U.S. Military Academy star and younger brother of George Blanda, professional football star, now quarterback with the Houston Oilers of the American Football League.

The Kentucky team has an 8-1 record this season and has limited the opposition to a six point per game average while running at a 27-point per game clip offensively.

It has defeated Fort Knox, Ky., twice, 62-0 and 47-0, crushed Gordon Military College of Georgia, 52-0, clipped Fort Eustis, Va., 13-3, downed Camp Lejeune, N.C., 17-0, beat Southern Illinois University, 14-7, upended Lackland, Tex., Air Force Base, 21-12, and defeated Austin Peabody State College of Memphis, 19-7, last weekend.

For Fort Benning it will be the same explosive lineup that has produced an identical 27-point per game average while giving the opposition six points per contest.

Fort Campbell will have its hands full trying to put a stopper on the passing touch of

TSB, 10th Artillery Notch Victories in Unit Action

By SFC Bismarck 58th

The 1962-63 Major Unit Basketball League got underway this week with eight teams seeing action.

In the season opener, the 10th Artillery "Redlegs" edged the 428th Medical Battalion 61-60 in an overtime thriller. At half-time the Medics led by one point 21-20, but both teams played a close game in the second half with the game ending in a 52-52 tie calling for overtime play.

Artilleryman Charles Barnett, dumped in three field goals. Jarvis Banks tossed in one while teammate Ben Colston made a free throw in the overtime to cinch the win over the Medics.

Barnett's 23 points along with Keith Dierke's 15 was high for the Redlegs. George Bell, a guard for the Medics dropped in 29 points to pace the losers.

29th Whips CTC, 72-57

In the second game, the Two-Niners whipped The Infantry Center Troop Command, 72-57. The Infantrymen were in command from the start. At half-time, they led the Troopers by 10 points, a margin they kept throughout the contest.

Jimmy Norsworthy tossed in 31 points while teammate Artie Bain followed with 21 for the winners. Chavis and Farley were high scorers for TICTC with 19 and 17 points.

TSB Wins Two

The 58th Infantry's Armored Rifle Battalion suffered two setbacks in two starts. The Student Brigade dumped the Riflemen, 70-39, with every member of the team seeing action. At half-time Bob Kinard's cagers led 37-16. Victor Rasberry was the high scorer for the winners with 17 points.

Carvy Jones's 11 points along with Ralph Maru's 10 also helped the brigade "Tigers" to victory. Don Helmke's 13 points and Prince Pointer's 11 points were high for the losers.

With two minutes left to play, the 10th Artillery Redlegs breezed by the 58th for a 55-50 victory, and their second straight win. Charles Barnett and Ben Colston both contributed 17 points for the winners while Pointer hit the net for 19 points.

TSB Defeats 29th

The Student Brigade kept its season slate clean by handing the Two-Niners a 73-61 setback. Climon Lee dumped in 25 points for TSB while Artie Bain was high for the losers with 17 points.

Sam Stellatella's Toe Provides Blue Margin

The Fort Benning Doughboy number two unit gave the first team a real tussle in an inter-squad football game last Saturday afternoon at Doughboy Stadium as the Blue team barely escaped with a 20-17 victory over the Whites.

The 10-minute-quarter workout was a must for the idle Doughboys since they face a stiff test Saturday at 8 p.m. when the Screaming Eagles of Fort Campbell, Ky., invade the post.

For Coach Maj. Leaton C. Cofield, it was a satisfying battle since both squads went all out to sharpen up for the season's finale.

Sam Stellatella provided the winning margin for the Blue team as the talented kicker booted a field goal in the waning seconds of the contest.

The Doughboy number one unit, with 21 players suited up, scored first in the initial quarter when Marvin Tibbetts set up a scoring opportunity with two consecutive 35-yard aerials to Fred Murphy putting the ball on the one-yard line.

Wallace Johnson, the Doughboys "bread and butter" man then cracked in for the score and Stellatella's point after touchdown made it 7-0.

The White team, also with a 21-man squad, bounced right back as Brewster Hobby grabbed a 45-yard pass from De Wayne Jeter and Robert Dickerson followed with another reception to the Blue 35.

With Jeter taking over at the quarterback slot Dickerson snared another pass and raced to paydirt. William Johnson kicked the PAT and it was tied up at 7-7.

Just before the half Jeter and John Saylor engineered a drive which resulted in a field goal by Johnson, making it 10-7 at the half.

Joe Wendryhoski put the Blue team in the lead early in the third stanza when he pounced on a blocked kick by Dickerson in the end zone.

Stellatella arched the ball between the uprights and the score was 14-10.

Later in the third quarter Stellatella split the uprights again with a 25-year field goal and the Blue team led 17-10.

Saylor tightened the score for the White team in the final quarter as the third team quarterback hit Dickerson with a 30-yard toss and a first down on the Blue 10. On the next play he rolled out on the option for the score.

Johnson made it 17-17 with the PAT and set the stage for Stellatella's game winning field goal in the closing seconds.

Top Army Boxers Will Invade D. C.

WASHINGTON (AFPS)— If Washington, D. C. is not the military boxing center of the world in early 1963 it will not be the fault of Lt. Col. Leo F. Gaffney, the Military District of Washington's Special Services Officer.

Col. Gaffney was credited with reviving Army boxing when he instituted the Annual Military District of Washington Interservice Invitational Tournament last year.

Following this tourney Col. Gaffney was named coach of the Army squad that won the Interservice Championship for the first time in three years.

Three big military fistic events are currently scheduled for the Washington area—The Annual MDW Invitational, Feb. 5 through 8; the All-Army eliminations, culminating in the finals March 9 and the Annual Interservice Championships, March 10 through 15.

OUTDOOR OUTLOOK

BY PFC STEPHEN O. ABLE

DEER SEASON

Deer season is now in full swing, and the expected kill will be larger than last year's record kill of 404.

Already 125 bucks have been bagged on the reservation so far this fall. This exceeds by 21, the number of kills recorded for the same date last year.

An even more amazing fact concerns the turkey kill. Some 21 turkey kills have been recorded this fall. The entire fall season on turkey last year yielded only seven turkeys.

HUNTING WITH DOGS

Recently a notice appeared in the Daily Bulletin concerning hunting deer with dogs. Deer hunting with dogs is now legal on the Alabama portion of the reservation, on Saturday afternoons, Sundays and holidays only.

Hunting with dogs is being made legal because of the overpopulation of deer in the Alabama area and the reduction of range that will result when the Walter F. George Reservoir fills. Current Fort Benning bunting season and bag limits remain unchanged.

Remember, that hunting with dogs is legal on the Alabama portion of the reservation only.

LOST DOGS

Recently a large number of beagle hounds have been lost by several parties on the reservation. Several notices are posted on the bulletin board at the Fish and Game Headquarters, Bldg. 4050, Harmony Church. Anyone finding a dog on the reservation is urged to use all means to help find the owner.

DEER COOKING

Although this writer does not claim to be a gourmet, here is a recipe for the preparation of deer loin steak. Cut a slice of deer loin one end one-half inches thick. Place it in a skillet with one tablespoon butter. Cook deer loin five minutes on each side. Reduce heat. Add glass of port wine and simmer 20 minutes.

I will not try to say that the above dish will melt in your mouth or be the most savory dish you have ever tasted, because I have never truthfully tasted it. But it is taken from a good source and should be outstanding. Next week, Deer haunch in cream.

Water-Styled 'Creation' Set By Swimmers

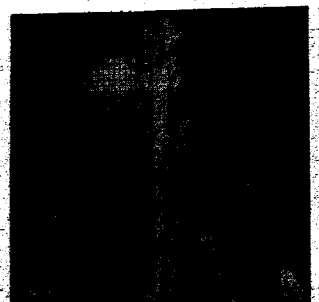
The Youth Activities Club at Fort Benning has added a new water activity and attraction in the field of water ballet.

The program, the first of its kind on the post, is under the direction of 2nd Lt. Reuben A. Garwood, Infantry Center sports officer and YAC Water Activities chairman.

The troupe has been rehearsing for three months in preparation for their first performance, "The Creation," scheduled for 7 p.m. Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, Dec. 6 to 8.

The premier show will be based on the biblical account of the world's formation.

Fully narrated, and accompanied by such musical writing as "The Ten Commandments," "Exodus," "Around The World" and many other famous soundtracks, the production opens at the time, when there was nothing but darkness and space.



The swimmers portray the creation of the world, going from the time of Adam, Eve, the Garden of Eden and through the times of Babylon, Pharoah, Moses and Noah.

Many colorful costumes and scenery are used to provide as realistic a setting as possible.

Colored lights are shone on the bubbling water and smoke rises from the pool through the use of dry ice.

There will be 33 members of the club participating.

They are: Helen Dryer, Kathy Henson, Karen Daniels, Kenny Jordan, Anita Brawn, Abe Valentine, Pam Gates, Kathy Leashure, Joanne Leashure, Nancy Williams, Carl Braun, Barbara Sheridan, Candy Walding, Laurel Jordan, Jerry Walding, Carol Ingel, Sandy Duke, Diane Baumgardner, Sylvia Rogers, Cynthia Rogers, Linda Rogers, Magda Valentin, Mary Ellen Mallick, Ellen Corley, Del Lewis, Nancy Creeds, Linda Spurlin, Sherry Spurling, Kathy Cringley, Teddy Maculley, Linda Taft, Phyliss Wilson and Caroline McFarland.

AQUA QUEENS . . . Members of the Youth Activities Club swim around one of the decorations set up for the club's water ballet to be presented Thursday through Saturday, Dec. 6, 7, and 8, at Briant Wells Field House. Swimmers are (L to R) Joanne Leasure, Magda Valentine, Karen Daniels and Kathy Henson.

Marvin Tibbetts and his favorite target Fred Murphy, also of Atlanta. The two players have combined for six touchdown passes this year.

"We've got two clubs and I can't see any difference in them," Cofield said. "The second unit is faster and better offensively, I believe, while the first is better defensively."

Most of the strength on the first team line is focused on the right side where Allen Everhart and Joe Wendrykoski pack a two-way wallop.

Swim Team Has Vacancies For This Year

Second Lt. Reuben A. Garwood Jr., chairman of YAC water activities, has announced several openings for competitive and ballet swimmers on this year's team.

Persons interested in swiming on this year's team should contact Lt. Garwood at the Special Services office or call 545-3604.

Both the ballet and competitive teams are planning on entering several inter-state and AAU meets this coming season, Sp4 Robert Shea, coach of the team stated. Experience in competitive swimming is not necessary to become a team member, he added.

Persons entitled to military benefits are eligible to participate.

Martindale Wins Tourney

First Lt. William P. Martindale captured the Fort Benning Fall Handicap Golf Tournament Sunday afternoon at the post's Country Club by downing Capt. William E. King in the finals.

Lt. Martindale birdied four holes on the front nine of the 18-hole tournament and then clinched the match on the 14th role to win 5-4.

The tournament began Oct. 15 with six flights consisting of 16 players each competing for the championship.

The low scorer of each flight then competed in a playoff during November, with Lt. Martindale and Capt. King advancing to the finals.

The winners of the six flights are listed as follows:

First Flight: 1st Lt. W. P. Martindale, winner; Maj. G. O. Auer, runner-up.

Second Flight: Capt. W. E. King, winner; Maj. J. Sokolowski, runner-up.

Third Flight: Lt. Col. L. R. Daems, winner; Col. W. H. Birdsong, runner-up.

Fourth Flight: Maj. J. C. Sherwood, winner; Capt. R. R. McGee, runner-up.

Fifth Flight: Lt. Col. J. S. Miles, winner; Lt. Col. H. W. Hoffman, runner-up.

Sixth Flight: Col. L. S. Reynolds, winner; Lt. Col. (Ret.) G. Luckett, runner-up.

Presentations of awards were made at the Main Officers' Open Mess last Wednesday by Col. J. G. Cornett, president of the Board of Governors.

U.S. Academy Teams Renew Grid Rivalry

NEW YORK (AFPS)—Two battered and oft. bewildering football teams representing the U.S. Military Academy and the U.S. Naval Academy will climax their 1962 seasons tomorrow at Philadelphia's Municipal Stadium.

This 63rd meeting of Cadets and Midshipmen has the expert prognosticators groggy. Both teams have played in-and-out football throughout the year. Army has won 6 and lost 3. Navy is 4 and 5 in its nine contests.

Penn State, Syracuse and Pittsburgh have been common foes. Army took the measure of Penn State, 9 to 6, and of Syracuse, 9 to 2. Pittsburgh upset the Cadets 7 to 6 in Army's last outing before the Navy struggle.

Navy lost to Penn State, 41 to 6, and to Syracuse, 24 to 6, while soundly thrashing Pittsburgh, 22 to 9.

Army lost games to Oklahoma State, 12 to 7, and Michigan, 17 to 7. The Black Knights won from Wake Forrest, Virginia Tech, George Washington and Boston University.

Navy dropped games to Notre Dame, 20 to 12, Minnesota, 21 to 0 and the University of Southern California, 13 to 6. In the U.S.C. game, Navy's last before Army the Middies almost pulled off the upset of the 1962 season. Navy scored victories over William a n d Mary, Cornell and Boston College in addition to the Pitt conquest.

Going into this 63rd clash Army has 30 wins to Navy's 27. Five of the conflicts have ended in stalemates. Army's biggest margin of victory was 38 to 0 in 1949. Navy's largest margin was made in 1951 when the Middies won 42 to 7.

The expected crowd of 100,000 this year are in for some top hi-jinks. Army is introducing a new coach, Paul Dietzel, who in turn will be introducing the Chinese Bandits, as he has named his defensive team. The Cadets in the stands will don coolie hats and chant ancient Chinese victory slogans each time the "Bandits" take the field.

This renewal of the Army-Navy game is best described by the late Grantland Rice who in 1925 wrote "The Army-Navy football game now steps forward as the greatest of all shows, the most vivid and most spectacular ensemble in the world of sports."

FEMALE FANS . . . Sp5 Joyce Henry and Marsha Lee Furman, SA, display the intent of their favorite team in the Army-Navy game to be played in Philadelphia tomorrow. Both ladies are assigned to the Washington, D. C. area.

Shough's Sports Scope

BY PETE SHOUGH

With several of the top teams in the Associated Press Poll out of action last Saturday, the standings were not altered greatly.

The most notable change was Wisconsin's big jump into the second position, while idle Mississippi slid into third. The Longhorns of Texas hung onto the fifth position, as resting Alabama grabbed the number six slot. Last week's number six team, Minnesota, slid down to tenth after the loss to their neighboring state's Badgers.

Of course, the undefeated, untied Trojans received 19 first place votes and top honors. Louisiana State gained two notches to move into seventh slot, with Oklahoma, Penn State and Minnesota rounding out the positions.

The big talk of every football fan are the renewed battles that are scheduled in the nation's holiday bowl games. So far, bowl officials have lined up the country's finest football powers for action in the greatest of holiday thrills. Every team scheduled to go into action in the major bowls over the season of holiday cheer is ranked high in national standings.

Set to go in the Rose Bowl are Wisconsin and Southern California. The meeting of these two teams will possibly be the greatest game played anywhere in the country during the '62 season. It is the first time in several years that the nation's number one and two teams will face each other in a bowl game, especially one as great as the Rose Bowl, to determine the country's true champion.

Tomorrow is the last big day of college football for the 1962 season. Although it is the last day, it is by no means an easy day for teams scheduled to see action. I am going to make my last attempt to justify my record by picking tomorrow's winners.

Alabama over Auburn — You can bet your bottom dollar that Alabama won't lose another one.

Navy over Army — This is definitely not the way to make friends in the Army but the Black Knights have certainly lost pep the last couple of weeks.

Georgia Tech over Georgia — There is nothing I would rather see than a Bulldog victory but I just don't think they can do it.

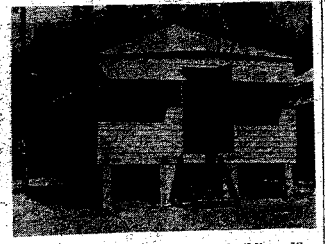
Florida over Miami—What a game this will be! I hat to get involved but a Gator victory is the way I see it.

Two Pros Feel Effects of World Crisis With Cuba

FORT KNOX, Ky. (AFPS)—Because of the Cuban crisis, two baseball players selected for the 1962 All-Star Rookie Team were unable to be present at the annual award banquet in New York City.

Both Bernie Allen, Twins second baseman, and Al Luplow, Cleveland outfielder, had their passes cancelled along with thousands of other servicemen due to the President's quarantine on Cuba.

HIGH SCORERS



The Fort Benning Doughboys have been a fast starting, strong finishing team this season. The team has scored a total of 92 points in the first quarters of their nine games while scoring 62 in the final quarters. The second and third quarters have not been as productive as only 95 total points have been scored.

SURGEON SAYS

Peptic Ulcer Strange But Common Disease

By Capt. Robert V. Diserens
Martin Army Hospital

Peptic ulcer is a common disease of civilized man. From 10 to 20 per cent of our population will have an active ulcer sometime during their lives. It is estimated that about one out of every 100 adults has an active ulcer at any given time. Men are affected more commonly than women.

Peptic ulcer is not synonymous with stomach ulcer. The word "peptic" refers to the enzyme, pepsin, produced by the stomach. Acid is also produced, and these act together to digest food.

Under certain circumstances these substances act on the intestinal lining and actually digest away a portion of this lining to produce an ulcer. The stomach is more resistant to this action than the intestine, and for this reason we find most peptic ulcers in the first part of the small intestine. This portion is called the duodenum; thus most peptic ulcers are duodenal ulcers.

We don't know exactly how or why these ulcers occur. We do know that if large amounts of stomach juices are produced, the chances of an ulcer's being produced are increased. Acid is more harmful than pepsin, and investigators have shown that most people with a peptic ulcer produce much larger amounts of acid than people who don't have an ulcer. Why they produce larger amounts of acid is not known.

Acid and pepsin are produced by the stomach after varied stimuli. Just thinking about food causes impulses to go over the nerve to the stomach to produce stimulation of stomach juices. Another stimulus is contact of food with the lower end of the stomach. When food touches this area, a hormone is released which acts on the rest of the stomach, stimulating secretion. Chemicals and hormones produced by other organs in the body can augment the above stimuli.

When we become nervous or upset, hormones are released from the adrenal gland that may have this effect. This accounts for the popular belief that peptic ulcers are more commonly found in nervous people.

Our principle of treatment is to stop acid secretions from the stomach or to neutralize these acids with antacids. We have drugs which will slow down impulses of the nerve to the stomach, but no drug has yet been developed which will safely stop all nerve impulses to the stomach; thus we must rely on antacids to neutralize this acid.

It is necessary to take these antacid liquids every hour while awake so that the acid is constantly neutralized as it is secreted. If this is done for about three months, we can be fairly certain that the ulcer has healed to a firm scar which is now very resistant to ulcer formation. Most failures of medical treatment are the result of undertreatment of the ulcer.

The surgeon utilizes the above principles when he operates on a person with an ulcer. He cuts the nerve to the stomach and removes the lower part of the stomach which produces the stimulating hormone.

Although ulcers are common, it does not follow that all pain in the abdomen is from an ulcer. Anyone with pain in the abdomen should see his doctor for a complete evaluation.

Nutritious Diet Aids Growth, Combats Ills

By Lt. Col.
Hubert W. Merchant
Preventive Dentistry Officer
(Second of Two Parts)

This week we shall continue discussing diet and nutrition.

We are concerned with diet from two points of view. (1) Good nutrition is essential to the proper formation of the bone, gums and teeth, and (2) good nutrition is essential to maintain the health of the oral structures and to help prevent decay and periodontal disease.

Some of us are so concerned with our children's eating habits that we try to force them to eat so they won't starve. Thinking about this for a few minutes makes you realize how silly it is. No normally intelligent child will starve himself.

However, if he is urged, coaxed and nagged at mealtime, eating at this time becomes unpleasant and he may refuse to eat and in some extreme cases may even vomit if food is forced on him.

But, he won't starve. Not on your life! He will fill up between meals on cookies, crackers, candy, sandwiches and soft drinks. He won't starve but he won't get a well-balanced diet either, and you can't begin to guess the harm he can do to his teeth from eating between meal snacks of this type.

He may even develop a true case of malnutrition because a child will not usually choose healthful foods of his own accord when he is allowed to eat what, when and where he pleases.

If you want your child to eat well, make mealtime a pleasant time. Feed him the nutritious foods he likes. These may not be the ones you like but you are old enough and smart enough to eat what's good for you.

Instead of saying "Bobby, if you don't eat your carrots, you can't have dessert," say nothing. Give him dessert, but let it be something just as nutritious as the carrots he doesn't like.

Fruit makes wonderful dessert. In season, fresh strawberries and cream or blueberries, raspberries or most any kind of berries are delicious. PLEASE don't use sugar on them. They have a natural flavor which doesn't need it, and if you use sugar, you help contribute to tooth decay.

Do You Have A Question?

If you have questions on oral health, write to the Preventive Dentistry Officer, Dental Section, USAIC, Fort Benning, Ga., or telephone 545-7741.

McNamara Sends Praise For Efforts During Crisis

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara expressed his personal thanks to all members of the Department of Defense the day before Thanksgiving "for the inspiring manner" in which they are responding to the present challenge.

The complete text of McNamara's message follows:

"At Thanksgiving time each of us, in our own way, gives thanks for our many blessings. One of these blessings is the peace we enjoy.

"In recent weeks this particular blessing has been threatened. We are thankful and grateful that the danger to our peace, although not eliminated, has been lessened. During this Thanksgiving season I know each of you joins me in a fervent hope that we shall continue to enjoy peace, that it will continue to be among our most cherished blessings.

"I take this opportunity to express my personal thanks to all personnel of the Department of Defense for the inspiring manner in which you are responding to the challenge which we face."

SPECIAL WARFARE

"Special warfare is another type of warfare, new in its intensity, ancient in its origin; war by guerrillas, subversives, insurgents, assassins; war by ambush instead of combat, by infiltration instead of aggression — seeking victory by eroding and exhausting the enemy instead of engaging him." (President Kennedy).

151st Engineer Group Personnel Managers Are Rated Superior

The 151st Engineer Group has been rated "superior" on personnel management, according to The Infantry Center adjutant general, Col. M. G. Schenider.

CWO Mars Wampler, chief of The Infantry Center's Personnel Management Team, said the group, consisting of the 151st Headquarters and the 577th and 806th Engineer Battalions, received the top rating after a recently completed three-week inspection.

In expressing the extent of the 151st accomplishment, Col. Schneider said, "This is an unusual and noteworthy accomplishment. We are well pleased with the results of the inspection. Surely it's something for every unit on post to strive for."

Wampler explained that the superior rating has been achieved by just four individual units in the past two years.

"To my knowledge this is the first time every component of a major command has reached this peak of efficiency in the difficult task of personnel management," he said.

Continuing, Wampler said, "The criterian for a superior rating is very high. A minimum of 0.7 per cent error must be met. Actually, the 806th came well under the limit for a superior rating. It had the lowest percentage of error of any unit we've ever seen on the post."

Wampler's team of six inspectors checked each record thoroughly for completeness and accuracy. Personnel administration specialists keep all records concerning pay, promotions, leave, immunizations, medical and dental care, and awards and decorations.

"By coordinating with the officer in charge of the inspection team prior to the inspection, we were able to determine which areas were more vulnerable to error, and by concentrating most of our effort on these areas, we were able to come up to our present high standard," CWO Frank A. Turman, group personnel officer, said.

The 806th Battalion personnel officer, CWO Howard C. McCray, passed along to other units the key to attaining a Superior rating.

"We did it with just plain hard work," he stated, "and we're still working hard. It's the only way to maintain the standard we've set for ourselves."

WO George R. Kobaly is personnel officer of the 577th Battalion.

Leadership Dean's Topic For MOWW

George C. Griffin, dean of students at Georgia Institute of Technology, discussed leadership, its qualities and characteristics, at a meeting of the Military Order of World Wars recently in the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Speaking at the Ladies Night dinner meeting, Dean Griffin defined leadership as the imposition of one will on another.

He also described the two types of leadership, democratic and military.

The speaker said democratic leadership is concerned primarily with the method of achieving its goal. Military is more concerned with the objective rather than the means, he added.

Basic mission of a leader is to accomplish his task and to insure the well-being of his subordinates, Dean Griffin stated.

The essential attributes of a leader include honesty, loyalty, perseverance, common sense and initiative, the educator said. Modesty, humor and self-control are also needed, Dean Griffin pointed out.

According to the speaker, one of the greatest ways to succeed in life is with good manners. Allied to this he considered tact the most important aspect of life.

He also noted how the Army takes a man directly from Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) and immediately thrusts responsibility on him. He contrasted this process with that of civilian life where responsibility does not come for four or five years, commenting, "I am a believer in ROTC."

He summarized his remarks by mentioning that a successful leader must have originality.

Among those attending were Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell, commanding general of the U.S. Army Infantry Center, and Lt. Gen. (Ret.) Thomas Wade Herren, former cavalry instructor here.

SUPPLY AGENCY

The Defense General Supply Center, a field activity of the Defense Supply Agency, is responsible for distribution of survival supplies: 190 million pounds of survival biscuits, 265 thousand medical kits, one million sanitation kits and six million drums for water storage.

Georgia Boy Scouts Tour LAAC, Airborne, Museum

A group of 81 Explorer Scouts and their leaders from the Flint River Council Boy Scouts of America, Griffin, Ga., were guests here last weekend.

The group arrived Friday and was met by Sp5 James Stroud, scout representative, Youth Activities Club, who was their official host and guide throughout the tour. The group was billeted within The Student Brigade and ate at the Match Headquarters mess hall. They attended a movie at Theater I, Friday night.

The group arose at 6:15 a.m. Saturday to start a full day of sightseeing, demonstrations and activities.

After breakfast, the group was taken to Lawson Field where they were met by 1st Lt. Willis M. Townsend, 2nd Aviation Company, who represented the commanding officer, Lt. Col. John Stephens Jr. The group was first shown a film and slides on the different types of aircraft in an aviation company. Then, under the guidance of officers of the 2nd Aviation Company, the group was shown different types of air craft.

After lunch at the Match Headquarters mess hall, the group was taken to Eubanks field, where SFC George Shoemaker, Airborne sub-committee, took the group on a guided tour of the training area and explained what each trainee must do to fulfill the requirements of becoming a Paratrooper.

Then the group went to Briant-Wells Field House where they were permited to swim. After getting their swim, they were taken to the Infantry Museum, and given a complete tour and explantion of items found within the museum.

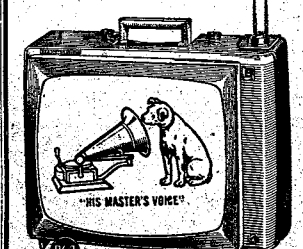
Tactical Parts Are Accepted

ORLANDO, Fla. (ANS) — The Army has accepted, ahead of schedule, the first tactical Pershing missile equipment from the prime contractor.

The Pershing equipment will be issued to artillery and ordnance units at Fort Sill, Okla., and Redstone Arsenal, Ala. Special ceremonies marking the delivery were conducted at Orlando, Fla., with key contractor and Army officials participating.

Delivery of the tactical equipment met, and bettered, a target date set by the Army four years ago. Delivery of the artillery equipment was a month ahead of schedule, and the target date for delivery of the ordnance gear was bettered by 15 days, the Army said.



Pershing, a selective range artillery missile capable of delivering nuclear warheads, has undergone extensive flight testing at Cape Canaveral. The missile was recently successfully fired from an unprepared, battlefield type site at the Cape.

Pershing is built by the Martin Company's Orlando Division under the technical direction of the Army Missile Command, Redstone Arsenal.

CIVIL DEFENSE

By June 30, 1963, enough Civil Defense supplies to care for 30,000,000 people for 14 days will be installed in fallout shelters in major U. S. cities.

From Long Gray Line Come Our Top Military Leaders

At the U. S. Military Academy only the hardiest survive—for the training of the professional soldier is challenging, vigorous — both mentally and physically.

A cadet's student years at the academy prepare him to be a leader of men, an ambassador in uniform, as athlete, and an expert in solving space age problems. His four years earn for him a bachelor of science degree and the gold bars of a second lieutenant.

A West Pointer's life is a full one. Academy classroom time is devoted to science-engineering, the social sciences and humanities. The basic academic curriculum is supplemented by elective courses and an advanced studies program.

Completing classes for the day, all cadets participate in some form of athletics.

An intercollegiate program of 18 sports keeps nearly half of the Corps of Cadets actively engaged throughout the academic year.

For the non-intercollegiate contender, there are intramural sports — "inter-murder" the cadets call it — a highly competitive athletic slate pitting each cadet company against one another for championship in nearly 20 sports.

More than 60 extracurricular activities are administered and directed almost entirely by cadets themselves. Student government, publications, hobby clubs, the Glee Club, language, literature and science clubs, sky-diving, symphonic orchestra, and art are but a few.

On Sunday the cadets attend one of the weekly chapel services. Some cadets devote part of the day teaching Sunday School to children living on the post.

In the summer months, normally thought of as vacation time, training for the corps switches from academics to in-the-field practicalities. Hundreds of cadets travel to combat ready units in Germany and Hawaii to train as "third lieutenants" others travel to arms indoctrination.

Strenuous through the life may be, it can seldom be boring for the challenges are many. Those who succeed in meeting those challenges — within themselves — are prepared to continue the military leadership which has marked Academy graduates throughout its 160-year history.

Maj. Gen. William C. Westmoreland, class of '36, returned to his alma mater, West Point, to become its 45th Superintendent in July, 1960.

The soldier-educator brought with him a background of distinguished and varied military service, the latest as commanding general of the 101st Airborne Division.

His colorful combat record includes service during World War II with the famed 9th Infantry Division as it fought in North Africa and Europe, and during the Korean War as he led the 187th Airborne Regimental Combat Team during 1952-53.

The soldier - educator role is not new to General Westmoreland as he has served on the faculties of the Army War College and the Army Command and General Staff College.

His service to his country epitomizes the traditions of the "Long Gray Line" — leadership, excellence of character, and excellence of knowledge.

Airborne Branch Chief Awarded ACM for Service

CWO Anna H. Kryniski, chief of Airborne Branch Personnel, The Student Brigade, was awarded the Army Commendation Medal by Brig. Gen. Royal Reynolds Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School, recently.

Miss Kryniski received the award for her work in organizing and directing the Airborne Branch Personnel when all airborne training was transferred here. She also had to train all her personnel in the procedures needed to administer matters personal and financial for the large number of students who go through the airborne course here each month. Airborne Personnel Branch must process, pay, and administer all records of students who are in the four-week course.

ARMY AID

Each month during 1960-61 an average of 27,200 service-women was served by the Red Cross in military hospitals and at military stations in this country and overseas.

Free Phone Calls Home Are Offered

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Service personnel the world over will be allotted free telephone calls home under a program jointly sponsored by the Communications Workers of America, AFL-CIO, and the United Service Organizations (USO).

These Christmas calls will be scheduled during the period of Dec. 1 through Jan. 5, 1963.

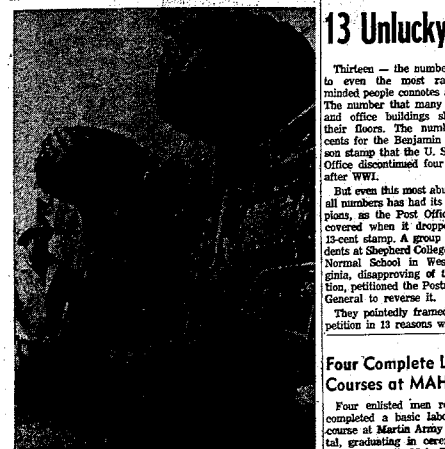
All USO staffs around the world have been briefed on the Christmas message program and military authorities are making efforts to insure that troops in remote areas not serviced by USO will have an equal chance to telephone home.

DEPARTURE GIFT FROM CHAPEL . . . Lt. Col. John S. McLaren (L), former British liaison officer here, receives a Bible and certificate at recent Sunday services in appreciation for his voluntary service to The Infantry Center Protestant Chapel. He served as chairman of the 11 a.m. usher team and as an usher himself for two years. Making the presentation is Chaplain (Col.) Silas E. Decker (R), post chaplain, and Col. (Ret.) Robert M. Gant, former president of the Third Army Personnel Actions Board.

Ex-Soldier Still Hunting for Gold

FORT HUACHUCA, Ariz. (AFPS) — Robert Jones isn't a man to call it quits — back in the days of WWII he was on a training problem in the Huachuca Mountains and there was this hole in the ground and in fell Jones.

Fell right into a cave filled with bars of gold, that's Jones' story. He's been searching for that cave ever since and now, having reached an agreement with the Treasury Department on the disposition of any gold he may find, he's back here from Dallas, Tex., for another try.



The ex - Army man's persistent treasure hunt gained him national publicity three years ago when Life magazine did a picture story about him. In that 1959 digging operation he was helped by Army troops and equipment. This time, however, he'll go it alone.

West Point Cadets To Hear Dr. Lange

Dr. Carl J. Lange, director of research for The Army Infantry Human Research Unit, has been invited to address the third classmen of the U.S. Military Academy Dec. 3.

Dr. Lange, who spoke last year to the West Point cadets, will discuss current views of psychology and leadership.

13 Unlucky? U. S. History Not Affected

Thirteen — the number that to even the most rational-minded people connotes a jinx. The murder that many hotels and office buildings skip in their floors. The number of cents for the Benjamin Harrison stamp that the U. S. Post Office discontinued four years after WWI.

But even this most abused of all numbers has had its champions, as the Post Office discovered when it dropped the 13-cent stamp. A group of students at Shepherd College State Normal School in West Virginia, disapproving of the action, petitioned the Postmaster General to reverse it.

They pointedly framed their petition in 13 reasons why the stamp should be retained, as follows:

1. America was discovered on the eve of the 13th of the month. 2. The original Republic consisted of 13 colonies. 3. The first official flag had 13 stripes and 13 stars. 4. Our national emblem, the American Eagle, requires 13 letters to spell it; so does our motto E Pluribus Unum. 5. The first word to pass over the Atlantic cable was sent on the 13th of the month. 6. Our silver quarter is written all over with 13. Around the branch with 13 leaves is one of the eagle's claws and 13 thunderbolts in the other. On his breast is a shield bearing 13 bars and from his breast is a shield bearing 13 bars and from his beak is a ribbon bearing the 13-letter motto. Each wing has 13 feathers and it takes 13 letters to spell "quarter dollar."

The petition continued: 7. There are 13 letters in John Paul Jones' name. 8. There were 13 ships in the first American Navy. 9. Perry's victory on Lake Erie was won on the 13th of the month. 10. The Stars and Stripes was raised over Ft. Sumter on the 13th of the month. 11. Gen. Pershing reached France on June 13, 1917. 12. The 13th Amendment to the Constitution freed the country of slavery.

The students' 13th and final reason? — It wouldn't cost any more to make a 13-cent stamp than any other one. (AFPS)

A SPECIAL SOLDIER

The special Forces soldier is at once a soldier, a human being, a teacher, a friend, an ally, a technician, a trainer, an advisor, a fighting machine. He can fight with the team or alone. He can be lovably efficient or warmly sentimental. He leads, he directs, he guides, he instructs. He is America's grass - roots ambassador. He is not all things to all men—he is a soldier doing a soldier's job.

Revenuers Took to Sea Early in U. S. History

FIRST OF CUTTERS
Named for Thomas Pickering

By Clark Kinnaird

The combat sea service of the United States with the longest continuous history is not the Navy, but is a force brought into being by act of Congress 172 years ago to crack down on tax evaders.

Smuggling, which had been a patriotic activity during British rule of the Colonies, continued to be so common after the War of Independence that the new government was hard-pressed for supporting revenues. (It had been intended for customs duties to be a main support of the Federal establishment.) The Secretary of Treasury, Alexander Hamilton, asked Congress for ten boats with which to enforce the customs laws.

The name given to the organization originally, Revenue Marine, was changed to Revenue Cutter Service after the boats were sent to sea. All were of either types—that is, heavy keeled schooners that could carry plent of sail for speed. Named respectively the Massachusetts, Scammel, Pickering, Diligence, Active, Argus, Vigilant, Virginia, South Carolina and General Greene, they were from 30 to 70 tons and carried from three to six swivel guns each. Maximum crew was ten, of which generally two were boys.

First man commissioned "Master of a Cutter in the Service of the United States" was Hopley Yeaton, who had served under Capt. John Barry on the frigate Raleigh during the War of Independence.

The Navy built up during the latter war had ceased to exist. The Revenue Cutters were the only armed vessels under the U. S. A. flag (except merchant ships equipped to protect themselves from pirates) from 1791 to 1798, when frigates were built to protect U. S. shipping from French Communistic raiding vessels.

The Revenue Cutter Service, which always remained under authority of the Treasury Department in peacetime, was merged with the Lifesaving Service in 1915 to form the Coast Guard. It subsequently took over the Lighthouse Service.

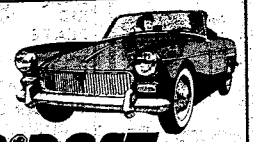
ARTILLERYMEN IN FIELD . . . Several members of the 2nd Battalion (Composite), 10th Artillery, 197th Infantry Brigade, erect a tent during a three-day field training exercise. The exercise was conducted with all elements of the brigade and provided the artillerymen with additional training in their basic mission as Infantrymen.

Artillery Plans Yule Family Fete

Dependent children of members of the 2nd Battalion (Composite), 10th Artillery, 197th Infantry Brigade, will, in keeping with unit tradition, be guests at an annual Christmas party.

The event, to be hosted by Battery B, commanded by Capt. Jack H. Percival, will include movies, gifts, "goodie-bags," cakes, cookies, assorted refreshments and a visit from Santa Claus.

Second Lt. John R. Wooldridge Jr., project officer, announces plans are near completion with only the date to be set.



DISASTER RELIEF

In the fiscal year 1960-61, the Red Cross conducted 325 disaster relief operations in 44 states and 2 insular territories.

Special Glasses Protect Sight of Civilian Employes

By Bill Gardner

Over 800 Fort Benning employees have been equipped with eyeglasses with extra tough frames and lens strong enough to withstand the force of a seven-eighth steel ball dropped from a height of 50 inches.

The glasses only weigh a little more than normal eyewear, and are being distributed to employees working in jobs that have been classed as eye-hazardous.

The 50-inch height is only the minimum specification the lens must reach. According to Norman Evans, Infantry Center safety officer, those used at the post are even stronger.

Evans said he went to a demonstration by the company which makes the glasses and saw the same size ball dropped from 100 inches.

"This didn't happen once," he commented, "but went on the whole day, and I never saw them break."

A dramatic testimonial to their strength and value as a safety aid comes from Charley L. King, property book officer for the Signal Activities Supply Section.

Among his many tasks King unpacks boxes to check their contents against an inventory list. Most of these boxes are made secure by a band of metal wrapped around either end.

One day recently King picked up a pair of clippers, inserted them on a metal strip approximately five-eighths of an inch wide and clipped. The result of freeing the tension on the band caused one of the several ends to fly up and hit his eyeglasses.

The glasses were knocked to the floor and aside from being slightly startled and momentarily without spectacles, King suffered no ill effects.

King said safety officials told him after the incident had been reported that if the metal band had cracked into a normal pair of glasses, they would have broken and the band and shattered bits of glass would have gone into his eye, probably causing the permanent loss of it.

Had the incident occurred three weeks earlier, he may have lost his eye. For before then he had not been issued his safety glasses.

"I've cut many a metal band off boxes, but never had anything like that happen," he observed. "I'm grateful I had those glasses. If I had not been wearing them the story might have been different."

Andrew J. Baldwin, assistant safety officer for The Infantry Center and the man most directly responsible for the conduct of the safety glasses program, readily agreed with this.

"This is actually the second example of the wisdom of the program," he said. "In August a civilian employee in the Ordnance Automotive Shop had an eye saved because of them."

The program actually began in 1960 when an occupational vision consultant from the U.S. Army Medical Service made a survey of the post.

The program consists not only of determination of eye-hazardous jobs and the issuance of safety glasses to the personnel concerned, but includes analysis of jobs for vision requirements, promotion of proper lighting, supervision of eye protection and eye hygiene and special vision - testing of all personnel to determine their visual abilities and defects.

The consultant furnished working guides for post officials.

The eye testing part of the program is conducted by the Preventive Medicine Division of Martin Army Hospital.

Such trained personnel as preventive medicine specialist PFC Marion W. Treece test employees' eyes, both civilian and military, on a stereoscopic vision machine.

If the person's vision fails to meet the standards required by the Civil Service Commission or the Department of the Army, he is given a prescription and referred for lens fitting.

It only takes about five minutes to check a person's eyes. The machine is set up adjacent to the work area to create a minimum of confusion.

Since the screening process started in March, more than 1,500 pairs of eyes have been checked.

Officials are continually checking employees of various sections and so far have completed testing most of the employees in the Signal, Ordnance, Engineer, Finance and Adjutant General's Sections.

Not all jobs require safety glasses. For instance a typist with the Finance Section might need glasses to correct her vision and enable her to do a better job with less eye strain and fatigue, but she would not need the safety lens King has.

In this sense the two parts of the program are almost independent. The only place they really overlap is where a person working in a job that has been labeled eye-hazardous is found to need corrective vision.

If a man's eyes need no corrections, he is given a set of plano-lenses; or lenses that do not alter the visual field.

Civilian employees who are found to have faulty vision are referred to their optometrist for a prescription. If they work in an eye-hazardous job the prescription is filled with corrective safety lenses by the Army.

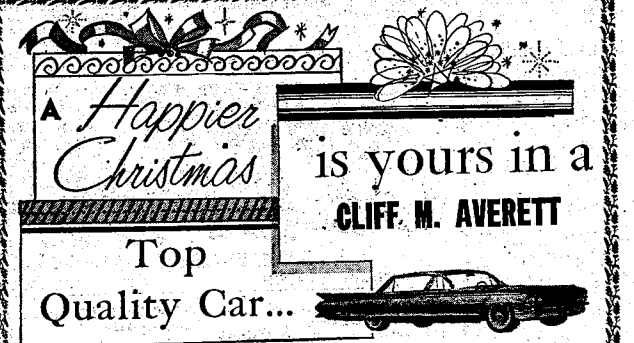
These are available to the employee for as long as he works for the Army. If he decides to resign, he is given an option to purchase them. If not bought, they are turned in at termination of employment.

Glasses for non-hazardous jobs must be purchased by the civilian concerned.

Evans and Baldwin are satisfied with the progress of the program.

"We hope to examine everybody's eyes as quickly as possible," Baldwin stated. "Accidents, if they have to happen, should all be like King's."

TOP SOLDIER . . . PFC Duane E. Richards, Company C, 1st Battalion, 58th Infantry, has been selected as Soldier - of - the-Month in the 58th Infantry. PFC Richards was selected on the basis of his military appearance, knowledge of his job, and current events. He is a native of Austin, Minn., where he entered the Army in November, 1959.



NG Units Now Armed With Nike

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (ANS)—The first Army National Guard units in North America to be armed with Nike Hercules missiles for air defense have moved onto defense sites in the Washington - Baltimore area, according to Lt. Gen. William W. Dick Jr., commanding general of the Army Air Defense Command ARADCOM).

Gen. Dick said the four National Guard batteries soon to become operational in the Washington - Baltimore defense represent the beginning of the on-site Hercules program for the National Guard.

Until now, active Army units have manned all of the North American Air Defense Command's (NORAD) Nike Hercules missile sites employed in the air defense of the North American continent. The active Army units will continue to man the bulk of the Army's tactical Nike sites engaged in continental air defense, the ARADCOM commander said.

New Copter Completes Flight Test

FORT WORTH, Tex. (ANS) —The Army's YUH-1D, Iroquois (Y indicates test model) helicopter has successfully completed its 1000-hour logistical flight evaluation at Fort Rucker, Ala., in just 108 flying days.

Test operations for the new 13-place turbine-powered helicopter began in June. A total of 1029 flight hours were logged by Army aviators attached to the U. S. Army Aviation Test and Evaluation Command.

The grueling flight program is designed to provide raw data on which the Army bases its logistical support of the aircraft.

Six other YUH-1D Iroquois either have completed or are still undergoing additional procurement dollar. flight and static test programs. The YUH-1D Iroquois is built all aimed at giving the military maximum benefit of its per Company. for the Army by Bell Helicop-

Missile Guiding System Shown At AUSA Confab

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Among the many new types of equipment demonstrated at the recent Association of the U.S. Army Convention here was the MIRTRAK.

The MIRTRAK is a new device which can be used to guide a short range missile to its target, direct two space vehicles to a rendezvous or bring a jet fighter to a blind night landing.

In general, the system has two parts — a light source and the tracker itself, which is sensitive to infrared light of a predetermined frequency and automatically calculates its location.

MIRTRAK has demonstrated a high degree of accuracy — less than one foot error from two miles away.

The experimental unit has no moving parts and is almost invulnerable to jamming. An operational version would weigh about 15 pounds and take up less space than the ordinary portable television set.

Junior Can Have a Letter From Santa With AF Help

SCOTT AFB, Ill. — During this Christmas season Army personnel can again make sure their children get a real letter from Santa Claus postmarked "Santa Claus House, North Pole, Alaska."

Following success of the past seven years' Santa letter programs, in which more than 25,000 letters have been remailed to service kids, members of Detachment 1 of the 5th Weather Reconnaissance Squadron at Eielson Air Force Base, Alaska, have again volunteered to help make this Christmas a memorable one for local kids.

These far-north Air Weather Service weathermen will use their free time to forward Santa Claus letters to children all over the world.

Here is the way it works. You write a letter to your child and sign it Santa Claus. Address the letter to your youngster and affix the proper return air mail postage from Alaska.

Place the letter or letters in a larger envelope and address it to Santa's Mail Bag, care of Detachment 1, 55th Weather Reconnaissance Squadron, APO 937, Seattle, Wash. Add the proper airmail postage and drop it in the mailbox.

A few miles from Eielson AFB is a post office officially called Santa Claus House, North Pole. When the volunteer AWS mailmen get your letter, they will remail the Santa letter from his post office.

A few days later your child will receive his or her letter from Santa, complete with authentic postmark.

A deadline of Dec. 15 has been set for mailing letters to Santa's Mail Bag, to permit receipt of the remailed letters by Christmas day.

Men in Germany Boast 100% Aid To Post Museum

The Infantry Museum's membership drive has left the bounds of Fort Benning, reaching at least one overseas post.

Official's of the museum society recently received 88 in membership fees from eight officers of Kaiserlautern Post Headquarters, Germany, representing 100 per cent participation by Infantry officers at that installation.

Those contributing to the museum were Lt. Col. Ruel H. Lewis, Maj. Howell D. Cobb, Maj. William B. Stallings, Capt. Perceville B. Anderson, Capt. John M. Eisenbraum, Capt. Harold E. McCullough, Capt. Richard M. Oltman and 1st Lt. Robert G. Hilchey.

Top Unit Chosen By 58th Infantry

Company C, 1st Battalion, has been selected as Company of the Month in the 58th Infantry.

Capt. Richard S. Johnson, commanding officer of C Company, accepted the award from Lt. Col. John L. Kennedy Jr., commanding officer of the 58th Infantry. Company C was also awarded a trophy for having emerged victorious in the Battalion Touch Football tournament.

Headquarters Company received the re-enlistment plaque for having 75 percent re-enlistments for the month of October. This makes the second time Headquarters Company has received the award in recent months.

Little Theatre Group's Cast Is Selected

17 Civilian Employes Honored at Ceremony

Seventeen civilian employes here, whose years of service to the government add up to 560 years, were honored Monday afternoon at an award ceremony and tea at Service Club No. 1.

Attending were approximately 85 officials of The Infantry Center and Infantry School, friends and members of families of the honorees.

Col. William A. McKee of Marion Ia., chief of staff of The Infantry Center, presented 40-year service emblems to five employes and 30-year emblems to 12 employes.

Addressing the group, Col. McKee said the combined service of the employes "equals the combined service of three entire companies of soldiers for one year."

Giving an even more dramatic picture of the 560 years of service, the speaker said, "If these years of service had been rendered consecutively, they would date back to 1402, or 90 years before Columbus discovered America."

After the presentation of the emblems, an anniversary cake was cut by Miss Mary Reynolds, assisted by Col. McKee.

Receiving 40-year emblems were Miss Reynolds, who is chief of the Budget Review and Analysis Division of The Infantry Center Comptroller's Office; Willis H. Lamb, a binder worker at the Army Field Printing Plant; John Kissel, supervisor-clerk in The Infantry School Department of Non-resident Instruction; John McCraine, a warehouseman in the Publications Branch, Administrative Services Division, Infantry Center Adjutant General Section, and Nichols Scott, a laboratory porter at Martin Army Hospital.

Thirty-year emblems were presented to Luther L. Nelson, warehouseman-foreman; Willis J. Fortson, a clothing and shoe fitter, and Mrs. Indiana Nelson, laundry presser, all members of the Quartermaster Section.

Norman H. Hobbs, signal warehouseman; Homer H. Dees, signal warehouseman, and Andrew Burres, engineer equipment handler, all of The Infantry Center Supply Control and Storage Section.

Crawford H. McIntruff, small arms repairer, and Bishop R. Horton, automotive mechanic, both of Columbus and the Ordnance Section.

Waller A. Williams, a material classifier in the Supply Section; James Houston, a school bus driver in the Transportation Section; James C. Colwell, an assistant foreman James A. Powell, a supervisor in the Visual Aids Section of The Infantry School Editorial and Pictorial Office.

Mobility Theme For Next Edition Of Army Digest

WASHINGTON (ANS) —"To get that fastest with the mostest" is still the number one goal of the modern Army.

The latest means of accomplishing this aim will be the theme of the December Army Information Digest. In this issue, Maj. Gen. Alden K. Sibley will describe the functions of the new U. S. Army Mobility Command and the important role it will play in making the Army a more mobile force.

His article will be followed by a pictorial feature cataloging the Army's current stable of mobile mounts and mobile weapons.

In other features: Maj. Gen. Charle S. D'Orsa will tell of Army advances in leadership training; the operations of the giant Communications Zone, Europe, will be discussed by a former commanding general; and an index to the 1962 issues will conclude the year's publishing activities for the offical Army magazine.

Wonders of Yellowstone Dazzled First Explorers

2-24 Wonders of Yellowstone

They called themselves "the cavalcade to hell"—15 intrepid men led by Gen. Henry D. Washburn, Surveyor-General of the Montana Territory. In the autumn of 1870 they had pushed deep into the wilderness and found natural wonders that defied description.

One member of the party, returning to civilization, won himself the title of "Champion Liar of the Northwest"—all because he attempted to put into words the fabulous scenery of what was to become the world's first national park.

Two million acres of terrain that has delighted generations of tourists and campers since it was set aside by Congress in 1872 as "a national park and pleasuring ground." Members of Washburn's expedition, staggered by the area's roaring geysers, hot streams and mountain of black glass, had at first thought of stating private claims. One of them, Judge Cornelius Hedges, was strong for the national park idea.

At his urging they all dedicated themselves to arousing public interest and persuading Congressmen to give their support. When it became a national park Yellowstone was still primitive country where adventurous visitors armed themselves against hostile redskins.

Responsibility for Yellowstone's 3,471,511 square miles of Wyoming, Montana and Idaho has been delegated to the Department of the Interior since 1916 when the Army ceased its supervision from Ft. Yellowstone at Mammoth Hot Springs. Today the park attracts more than half a million visitors annually and is famed as one of the world's most spectacular wonderlands.

Col. Keyes Visits Troop Mess Halls

A traditional Thanksgiving Day visit to the mess halls of the 197th Infantry Brigade was "a national park and pleasuring ground." Members of Washburn's expedition, staggered by the area's roaring geysers, hot streams and mountain of black glass, had at first thought of staking private claims. One of them, Judge Cornelius Hedges, was strong for the national park idea.

His itinery included visits to the 58th Infantry, 29th Infantry, 10th Artillery, 72nd Engineer Company, and the 197th Infantry Brigade chapel for services.

Col. and Mrs. Keyes returned to Headquarters Battery, 2nd Battalion (Composite), 10th Artillery, as guests of Lt. Col. Wallis E. McClain, 10th Artillery commander, and Capt. Carol D. Davis, Headquarters Battery commander.

Training in Field Keeps Engineer Unit in Shape

Company D of the 806th Engineer Battalion, commanded by 1st Lt. G. W. Longnecker, recently participated in three-day field exercise which began with a tactical motor march on the morning of Nov. 13.

During the field exercise, the men of Company D were trained in the establishment of a tactical bivouac area, with a perimeter defense, as well as receiving training in CBR warfare, reorganization as Infantry and extensive engineer work.

The engineer work portion of the exercise was provided by several interesting and challenging projects. One of them was an earthmoving project on 151st Engineer Road and another was the renovation of Company D mess hall in the battalion area.

Aggressors were present at various times during the entire problem. They attacked the company several times during both the day and night and were successfully repulsed.

Captains Take Duties With S-3

Captains Cyrus L. Williams and James L. Magness have recently been assigned to the 39th Transportation Battalion of The Infantry Center Troop Command.

Capt. Williams succeeds Maj. Jack Sherwood as battalion S-3 with Capt. Magness as his assistant.

Capt. Williams comes to the 39th from Headquarters, 2nd Transportation Battalion, in Europe, where he was Headquarters Detachment commander and assistant S-3.

A helicopter and fixed - wing pilot, Capt. Maynes comes here from the Army Aviation Detachment, Caribbean.

Units Alerted in Crisis Are Praised

Post units alerted during the Cuban crisis have received commendations from President John F. Kennedy, Gen. Herbert B. Powell and Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell.

In a personal message to Gen. Powell, commanding general of the Continental Army Command and commander-in-chief of U. S. Army Forces Atlantic, the President said:

"You are to be commended for the fine response of the Army units which were gathered in this situation . . . As the commander of the Army element, I am sure you will convey my commendation to all of the units in this operation, and will include those post and station troops who made the movement and supply of these task forces a possibility in such a short time."

Gen. Powell has issued a congratulatory message directed to all officers, enlisted men and women, and civilian employes from all six CONARC Army areas and the Military District of Washington for outstanding accomplishment in attaining maximum operational readiness on short notice during the crisis. The message said:

"The success of this highly complex operation was made possible by a high degree of professional competence and dedicated and enthusiastic performance at all levels of command and by units of every type.

"This demonstration of readiness has been a major factor in the decision to withdraw hostile offensive weapons from Cuba and the success of our national effort.

The obvious effectiveness of your operation has gained high praise from the President of the United States, the Joint Chiefs of Staff, commander-in-chief Atlantic, and the commander-in-chief, STRIKE Command.

"I appreciate your efforts and sacrifices. I am confident that you will maintain the same high standards of training and readiness for any future operations which may be necessary for the defense of our country.

"No soldier could have had a greater honor than to command such a magnificent team. I am proud to march with you."

Noting the President's commendation, Gen. Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center and commandant of The Infantry School, said:

"Please convey to all personnel under your command, including those temporarily located away from Fort Benning, my appreciation for their dedicated performance of duty during the recent crisis.

"The high order of professional competence and selfless devotion displayed by all personnel concerned were instrumental in accomplishing so successfully the important missions assigned Fort Benning and resulted in a significant contribution to the national security."

Facilities of OCS To Nearly Double

The Infantry School has expanded facilities to accommodate an almost 100 per cent increase in the number of students attending the world-famous Infantry Officer Candidate School.

The expanded facility is the result of a new Army regulation which has opened the way for male graduates from colleges without ROTC programs to enlist for two years for the specific purpose of attending Officer Candidate School (OCS).

The regulation applies only to the OCS training at The Infantry School here and the Artillery School at Fort Sill, Okla.

At present, the two OCS centers turn out approximately 600 new officers a year. During the 1962 fiscal year the Fort Benning OCS graduated 562 new second lieutenants from the 23-week course.

The new regulation, AR 601-226, is designed to help meet the Army's increasing need for qualified officers by supplementing the sources from which officers are now obtained.

Under the old plan enlistees had to sign up for three years and take their chances on being selected for OCS.

The new option gives college graduates a chance at a commission with only a minimum of Army service.

With the new plan open to college graduates facing military service, it is Army officials' hope that the two schools will award second lieutenant commissions to 1,200 men annually.

The plan is open to two categories of graduates, those who finished from non-ROTC colleges and graduates from colleges with ROTC units who for valid reasons could not participate in the program.

Requirements include a baccalaureate or higher degree

Troops Over 40 Included In PT Policy

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—The Department of Defense's new physical fitness program has been broadened to include military personnel over 40 and those not on active duty.

A new directive sets forth broad policies for the physical fitness program formulated by C. B. "Bud" Wilkinson, of the President's Council on Youth Fitness, and members of his staff who worked with the Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Manpower.

The directive provides for programs which will include Ready Reserve personnel who are members of organized units or who are otherwise on a drill pay status, and Army, Navy and Air Force ROTC personnel.

It sets weight control standards for all personnel with special emphasis on personnel over 40. Formerly those over 40 participated in physical fitness programs only on a voluntary basis.

Aden Protectorate where he will command the Training Battalion of the Federal Arabian Army.

Col. Dent arrived here Oct. 14, as a planning member of the Fifth Tripartite Infantry Conference and stayed through the meeting in November. Before coming to the post he served as planning officer in the 1st Battalion of the Queen's Own Baffs.

From 1958 to 1960 he was with the unit in Germany; from 1955 to 1958 he was in Uganda with the 4th Battalion of the King's African Rifles; from 1953 to 1955 he was back in England with the Buffs, and from 1951 to 1953 he served with them in Egypt and Kenya.

During the latter part of World War II until 1948, he was in Burma and India with the 9th Battalion, Border Regiment, 17th Indian Division.

He was born in East Malling, Kent, and enlisted in the Army in August, 1941, receiving his commission in December, 1942.

Col. Dent, his wife, Beryl, and their 16-year-old daughter, Elizabeth, reside on post.

Two other children, Richard, 17, and Jeremy, 12, will remain in England, to attend school. They are expected to visit during school holidays.

OCS

from an accredited college or university recognized by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Applicants must be between the ages of 18½ and 27, must enlist in the Regular Army for two years, and must successfully complete basic combat training.

College seniors may submit applications as many as 135 days before graduating. However, acceptance will be contingent on presentation of documentary evidence of their degree.

Each applicant will be administered a series of tests which he must pass. His application then must be considered and approved by the OCS examining board.

Candidates failing to complete the OCS program will be required to serve out the remaining portion of their enlistment as enlisted personnel.

Quotas will be allocated by the Army for this option as soon as OCS training facilities are expanded to meet the expected increase.

In addition to extending the OCS program, the Army is encouraging qualified enlisted personnel presently serving in the ranks to apply.

Officials say the increased need for officers presents an excellent chance for such personnel to go to OCS.

The Army is also planning to streamline the ROTC program in an effort to increase the annual output of officers from this source from 12,500 to 16,000.

Armor Units Will Observe Anniversary

Armor units here will observe the 186th anniversary of their branch of the Army Wednesday at the Supper Club of the Main Officers' Open Mess.

The ceremonies will begin with a formal reception at 7 p.m. and will continue with a dinner at 8 p.m. Later in the evening a dance will be held in the ballroom.

Lt. Gen. (Ret.) Alvan C. Gillem Jr. of Atlanta, has been invited to be guest speaker.

Among the guests who have accepted invitations to the anniversary party are Brig. Gen. Charles Billingslea, commanding general of the 2nd Infantry Division, and Brig. Gen. Stanley L. Harding, assistant commander of the 2nd Division.

The annual event is sponsored by the major Armor units here. They include the Armor Committee, Infantry School Command and Staff Department, directed by Lt. Col. Albert E. Seifert; 3rd Reconnaissance Squadron, 7th Cavalry, 2nd Division, commanded by Lt. Col. Quintus C. Atkinson.

The 2nd Medium Tank Battalion, 69th Armor, 2nd Division, commanded by Lt. Col. James T. Kolb, and the 4th Medium Tank Battalion, 69th Armor, 197th Infantry, commanded by Lt. Col. William T. Van Atten.

The history of Armor encompasses the history and heritage of the U.S. Army Cavalry, established in 1776. From the birth and subsequent expansion of the nation, the cavalry played a vital role in securing the lengthening frontiers.

During America's wars, the cavalry successfully introduced tactics which helped form the doctrines of mounted combat. Eventually the task replaced horse cavalry units as a result of World War tank achievements.

U. S. Grateful To Servicemen Says President

FORT STEWART, Ga. (AFPS) — President Kennedy, stopping here on his tour of bases alerted during the Cuban crisis, made it clear that the United States is grateful to its servicemen.

He recited a poem that he said had been found many years ago in a sentry box on Gibbralter:

God and the soldier; all men adore
In time of danger and not before.
When danger is passed and all things righted,
God is forgotten and the old soldier slighted.

"The United States," the President said, "forgets neither God nor the soldier upon whom we both now depend."

S-3 Post Assumed By Capt. Strzok

Capt. Peter P. Strzok recently assumed the duties of S-3 of the 577th Engineer Battalion, succeeding Capt. Charles L. Pigg, who is leaving the service.

Capt. Strzok comes to the 577th Engineer Battalion from the 586th Engineer Company (Float Bridge) where he was company commander from October, 1961, to November, 1962.

Aerial Photo Units Honored

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—President John F. Kennedy has personally awarded decorations to the military units that took aerial photographs disclosing the build-up of Soviet offensive weapons in Cuba.

The award of unit citations was the high point of a day-long inspection tour by the President. The tour took in the Army, Air Force and Navy installations in Georgia and Florida that played leading roles during the Cuban crisis.

Air Force units at Homestead AFB, Fla., receiving "outstanding unit" awards were the 4080th Strategic Wing which took the original high level photographs of Soviet missile sites on Oct. 14; and the 363d Tactical Reconnaissance Wing.

The latter group followed the discovery of the missiles with detailed photos taken while flying at high speed at treetop levels.

Engineer Company Honored by Group

Company A, 577th Engineer Battalion, has been selected as Honor Company of the 151st Engineer Group for the first quarter of FY 1963.

First Lt. Luther E. Oswalt, commanding officer of Company A, accepted the award from Col. Mahlon E. Gates, commanding officer of the 151st Engineer Group.

Army Basic Expanded; Draft Hiked

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — A temporary expansion of Army recruit training has been authorized by the Defense Department to provide trained replacements when the Berlin build-up inductees are released from active duty next year.

The rapid expansion of the active Army last year was accomplished by increased draft calls over a five-month period beginning in September. When these soldiers complete their two-year terms of service the trained portion of the Army will drop significantly.

Temporary expansion in recruit training will permit the Army to begin training replacements early in the year to be available when needed in the late summer or early fall of the next year.

To achieve this, the Army has been authorized to increase its June 30, 1963, military strength from 960,000 to 980,000. This will be accomplished by slightly increased draft calls during the next six months and will create only a small increase in the average strength for the year, the figure on which annual costs are based.

ASSAULT ADVANCE

In preparation for assault elements of a helicopter-borne force, a specially trained group called a Pathfinder Team is delivered into the landing zone. Once at the site the Pathfinders provide reconnaissance of the landing zone and initial guidance.

100 Per Cent Effort Vital in Army Tasks

During the 1962 Honors Luncheon at the Fourth Annual Meeting of the Army Aviation Association of America, the Hughes Army Aviation Trophy was awarded to the 45th Transportation Battalion for its contribution to the success of the Army's mission in South Vietnam. Each year, this trophy is presented to the Army Aviation unit which has done the most to further the use of aircraft in support of the over-all Army mission.

In accepting the award, Maj. Milton P. Cherne, commanding officer of the 57th Aviation Company of the battalion, stated in part:

". . . Any commander would be very proud to stand before his troops and say, 'We won this Award.' However, I do not feel that this year this Award was won — I feel it was earned.

"It was earned by the cooks who could put a hot breakfast on the tables at four o'clock in the morning and serve a hot supper at eight o'clock at night.

"It was earned by the clerks who forgot what a day off was, or what a few hours of freedom meant. . .by the motor pool people who kept the vehicles running and got them to the proper place at the proper time. . .by the mechanics who worked under a tropical sun when the metal of the aircraft was too hot to touch . . . by the new chiefs who pampered and coaxed their aircraft into one or two more flights before going down for maintenance. . .by the dedicated and devoted flight crews who, on many occasions, went someplace they had never been before to do a job that had never been done before.

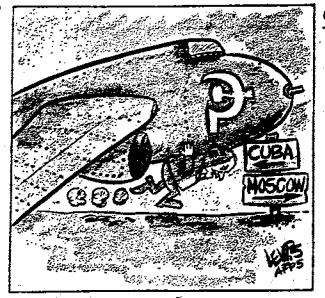
"These men — these close-knit teams — operating under the most adverse conditions, never faltered in their desire to do well. . ."

Maj. Cherne's words underscore the "team" nature of the entire Army effort, from the national level all he way to the individual. In the performance of each of our vital tasks, every soldier on the Army team makes a significant contribution. Simply stated, the Army's ability to accomplish its worldwide missions depends upon an effective team effort—from the national level all the way to the infiremen in the front lines. All are soldiers with responsible tasks. All have a vital and demanding role.

Serving America for over 187 years, the U. S. Army has never failed it in time of crisis. With each member contributing a 100 per cent effort, this record of a winning team will remain unblemished in the years ahead.

Hails Dead Of KATUSA

KOREA (AFPS) — When a young officer in the 7th Infantry Division left Korea recently for rotation to the States, he had the satisfaction of having remained is the Land of the Morning Calm long enough to see a cherished project carried through.



Lt. Vernon R. White conceived his idea early this year at dedication ceremonies for a new field house. It struck him then, he said, that the division had no fitting memorial to the members of the Republic of Korea Army who died while attached to U. S. combat units.

"I finally decided on a pagoda honoring the KATUSA dead, and the idea was approved by the proper authorities. From there it was chiefly the work of my house boy, Hwang Kuh Hyon, and a Korean carpenter, Choe Sing Chung, that made the pagoda possible," said White.

"Hwang found a Korean architect to design it for us. Different units from the division donated wood and materials. Choe spent three weeks building the roof which is all interwoven into one piece."

The brightly decorated pagoda, all wood except for the tile roof, was built on a concrete foundation in the division replacement center area. After months of work it was dedicated with appropriate ceremonies.

And Lt. White one day later, was off to Fort Ord, Calif.

Kilroy Was Common Name in World War

Kilroy 60 years old? Far worse—Kilroy dead?

Yes, that's the melancholy truth—news to sadden the hearts of millions of World War II veterans for whom Kilroy was one of the war's great legends. Wherever American troops traveled the words "Kilroy Was Here" were sure to turn up—often with the little sketch of a man peering over a wall. To the illustrious names that came out of the war—MacArthur, Eisenhower, Nimitz, King, Bradley—historians are certain always to add the one and only Kilroy. He was the U.S. fighting man—everywhere at once.

How did the Kilroy saga begin in the first place? Well, James J. Kilroy, who died recently in Boston at the age of 60, got a job in a Bethlehem Steel Co. shipyard at Quincy, Mass., two days before Pearl Harbor. As an inspector he began marking "Kilroy Was here" on equipment so test crews would know he'd checked it.

It wasn't long before the phrase caught on with the troops and from then on there was no stopping it—from Guadalcanal to Murmansk, from Normandy to Okinawa, Kilroy was there.

Mr. Kilroy became known as the Kilroy after the war when the American Transit Assn. ran a nation-wide contest to learn his identity. Still employed at the shipyard, Kilroy submitted proof that the legend had begun with him. As a prize the ATA delivered a 22-ton trolley car to his home.

And now that Kilroy's gone the war stories won't ever sound quite the same because the veterans who swap them will he feeling on so much older! (AFPS)

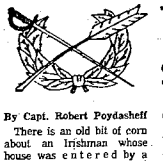
CHAPLAIN'S CORNER

Has God Failed?

By Chaplain (Lt. Col.) James B. Blunk



Have you ever felt that God has failed you? That was the way the people of Israel felt when they battled against the Philistines! The account is found in chapter four of I Samuel.

The men of Moses conceived a sure plan of victory: They would send for the Ark in which God was supposed to live and carry it into battle. Then, victory — they thought — would be certain. However, Israel was defeated, the Ark was captured, and the people thought God had failed them.

You see, it was not that God had failed, but rather their idea or concept of God had failed. They had the wrong idea of the Almighty! God cannot be imprisoned in an Ark or geographical location. The idea that they would win because God was on their side of the battle line was a false idea. They had not done their home work either in the preparation of their understanding of God, or in their preparation for the responsibility which confronted them.

How often today we meet people who are depressed because they feel that God has failed them! Yet all the time it is our idea of God that is inaccurate. Some people think that God should be most undependable and violate his own laws of nature. For instance, a young mother thinks her child should be able to breathe water when he is left alone in a bathtub. Because his lungs were designed for air and he drowns when he fills them with water, the mother blames God. Again, we want God to permit two objects to occupy the same space at the same time, and when there is a wreck and a loved one is killed, we often blame God for the death. Or again, we want to violate every rule of health, and when one of the vital organs of the body ceases to function and a loved one meets death, we say that God has failed.

In each of these cases, God did not fail, but rather our idea of God failed! This is only one of many areas where inadequate preparation and thinking about God results in disappointment. It is enough, however, to show that we need to be active in the program of religious education and chapel worship that we might grow in our understanding of the nature and character of God.

The Judge Says . . .

By Capt. Robert Poydasheff

There is an old bit of corn about an Irishman whose house was entered by a burglar one dark night.

Thrusting a pistol in the face of the sleepy and much bewildered Pat, the burglar demanded, "Your money or your life." "Take me life," sputtered Pat, "I want me money for me auld age."

Now, here was a man really carried away with the principle of long range savings — savings to provide for the comforts of life following retirement or savings for the proverbial "rainy day."

There are a number of ways open to anyone who desires to save money, whether for a long range or short range purpose. The man who has no faith in the economy or the government may bury his money in a tin can, hide it away in an old sock, or use it for mattress stuffing.

If he is lucky and can remember where he put it, and if no one beats him to it, he will have saved money successfully—but that is all. He will have no more than his principal, the amount deposited, when he makes his withdrawal in time of need.

On the other hand, there are smarter ways to save money; ways wherein not only the principal is available to the saver but wherein he also receives additional money at the time of withdrawal. This additional money is called interest, money paid by a financial institution or the Government for the use of the depositor's money — a sort of rent for the use of money.

Women-of-Chapel Meet At Post Religious Center

Protestant women play an important role in Christian education, 32 members of four Women-of-the-Chapel groups at Fort Benning were told at a joint meeting recently at the Bldg. 2606.

"The responsibility of Protestant women in Christian education begins in the home and moves on into the church and community," according to Mrs. William J. Erwin, one of two guest speakers at the meeting.

Mrs. Pearl Brakonecke discussed the role of the Protestant woman in public education.

"We do not teach secular practices in the schools," Mrs. Bakroneck said, "but we do try to instill in the child a moral conscience just as the church does."

Mrs. Brakonecke is principal of Edward A. White School on the post, while Mrs. Erwin is a certified director of leadership and laboratory schools for the South Georgia Methodist Conference.

Mrs. Thomas K. Goodman was presented a certificate of appreciation for her work as president of the Protestant Women-of-the-Chapels for two terms and principal of the post Vacation Bible School for three consecutive years.

Chaplain (Col.) Silas E. Decker Infantry Center chaplain, made the presentation.

Mrs. Goodman is the wife of Lt. Col. Goodman, post deputy dental surgeon who has been assigned to Viet-Nam.

Sponsoring the joint meeting were Protestant Women-of-the-Chapels of The Infantry Center, Student Brigade and Sand Hill Chapel No. 1 and 2. The Women of St. Michael's Episcopal Mission were guests.

Col. Helen Brecht to Wed Col. Virgil Homer Drissel

Lt. Col. Helen Frances Brecht of Fort Monroe, Va., chief of Women's Army Corps Recruiting for the U. S. Continental Army Command, and Col. Virgil Homer Drissel, Staff Judge Advocate here, have jointly announced they will be married at the Post Chapel, on Saturday, Dec. 22.

Col. Brecht is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Brecht of Crook, Colo., who will be celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary on Dec. 10.

Col. Drissel is the son of the late Roger Drissel, U. S. State Department Aide for 40 years, and Mrs. Roger Drissel of Silver Springs, Md.

Col. Brecht entered the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps, World War II predecessor to the WAC, in February, 1943. She attended basic training at the First WAAC Training Center, Fort Des Moines, Iowa, and served as an enlisted woman until her graduation from Officer Candidate School in May, 1944.

Ordered to Europe in September, 1944, she went to Litchfield, England, to help organize and operate a WAC Basic Training Center for American citizens residing in Great Britain.

Later, she escorted the new WACs to Paris and helped integrate them into the 3341st Signal Battalion composed of over 1,000 American and British WACs, and charged with operating the center of communications for Allied Forces in Europe.

Col. Brecht remained in Paris until the Spring of 1946 when she transferred to Frankfurt, Germany. She returned to the U. S. in January, 1947.

Her second tour of foreign service took the WAC officer to the Far East Command during 1949-52 for the consecutive assignments of commander of the Tokyo, Japan, WAC Battalion and WAC Adviser to the Japan Logistical Command. Her outstanding contributions to the Army in expanding WAC support of Medical and Signal units in Japan during the Korean War won her an award of the Bronze Star Medal.

Later, she also was assistant chief of enlisted assignments for the Sixth U. S. Army; action officer for the Department of the Army branch charged with worldwide enlisted assignments; and Personnel and Administration Officer of the WAC Center, Fort McClellan, Ala.

She became the first chief of Women's Army Corps Recruiting for the Continental Army Command last August following two and a half years as WAC Staff Adviser of the Third U. S. Army Area.

Colonel Drissel, who entered the Army in 1940, is a native of Washington, D. C. A member of the District of Columbia Bar, he received the B.S. degree in economics at the University of Virginia in 1934 and the LL.B. degree at Georgetown University in 1938.

Outstanding among his Army assignments have been duty tours as Staff Judge Advocate to the 1st U.S. Cavalry in Japan and to the Army installation of Fort Carson, Colo., and Fort Benning. He also served in Germany in 1948-52 and was legal counsel to the Physical Evaluation Board at Walter Reed Army Hospital, Washington, in 1958.

Widowed in 1958, he is the father of two teen-aged children—Elizabeth Jean, 19; and Geoffrey Dennison, 13.

Ladies Day Sponsored By Rangers

The monthly luncheon of the Ranger Department Wives was held recently in the headquarters Building of the Ranger Department.

"Ladies Day" was sponsored by the Headquarters wives who were assisted by members of the department.

Informal box lunches of fried chicken were catered for the wives and those husbands who were able to join them for lunch. Col. J. W. Jackson, director of the Ranger Department, gave the group an orientation on the mission of the department and on the scope of its activities.

Mrs. Jackson held a short business meetings and announced that the December meeting will be a Christmas tea at the Main Officers Club. She also thanked Lt. R. P. Bonnette and the other Department personnel for their efforts in arranging the program.

After the meeting, the ladies visited the various sections of the Department to get a glimpse of their husbands offices. They then formed a convoy to Spottsylvania Hall where Capt. W. D. Kelley explained the intricacies of a terrain board and demonstrated snake handling.

31st Helicopter Trans. Company Coffee Is Held

The wives of the 31st Helicopter Transportation Company held their monthly coffee recently in the Corregidor Room.

The bostesses were Mrs. Donald J. Kucera and Mrs. Charles J. Novak.

Mrs. Curtis L. Hankins decorated a layer cake for one of the door prizes. The two door prizes were won by Mrs. Howard L. Willis and Mrs. Ernest H. Francis. Rita McGuffey made a flower-filled straw hat centerpiece which was won by Mrs. Charles Novak.

Next month's coffee will be held in the Normandy Room on Dec. 14.

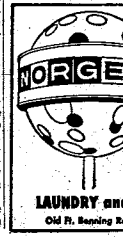
Wives Aid Gift Project For Needy

Officers' wives of the 151st Engineer Group and its subordinate units, the 577th Engineer Battalion, 806th Engineer Battalion, and the 586th Engineer Company, met at the home of Col. and Mrs. Mahlon E. Gates recently to wrap gifts for the Columbus Salvation Army.

The gifts were delivered to the Columbus Salvation Army, and accepted by Maj. Kinlaw, wife of the commanding officer of the local Salvation Army.

The distribution of the gifts will be to the Young Peoples Group, Bealwood Corps, and the Salvation Army Ladies Auxiliary for further distribution to the underprivileged.



ISB Wives Hold Monthly Coffee

The wives of the cadre of The Infantry School Battalion, The Student Brigade, held their monthly coffee recently at the home of Mrs. Clinton C. Carr, wife of the commander of The Infantry School Battalion.

A brief business meeting was held and Mrs. Charles E. Purser was elected to succeed Mrs. James F. Youree as treasurer for the group.

Mrs. Howard L. McAllister was guest of honor.

Mrs. Carr served coffee, assorted fruits, and coffee cake for the social hour.

MISS ELLIS

Miss Ellis Joins Staff Of AU Here

Miss Frances H. Ellis, an English instructor for the American University branch here, is back in the South again after many years of traveling.

Except for the two years from 1952 to 1954, she has not been in her native state for any length of time in 20 years.

She received her bachelor of arts in history at Duke University in 1947, and went on to Columbia University where she received a master of arts in English in 1948.

In the summer of 1948, Miss Ellis moved to St. Louis where she became associate director of research for the Episcopal Education Center.

During her four years in St. Louis she also did post graduate work at New York University and at Washington University during the summer months. In the summer of 1952 she traveled to Europe where she worked as a bicycle hostler for three months.

Miss Ellis was in Atlanta from 1952 to 1954 where she assumed the duties of director of Christian education at the Cathedral of St. Philip.

She left Georgia and went to Wilmington, Del., to become director of education at the Cathedral of St. John until 1956.

She went to Europe again in 1956 to work as executive secretary for the Cambridge Language Research Unit in England. The unit was an English team of scientists working on a U. S. National Science Foundation grant, doing research in machine translation of languages.

In January, 1960, Miss Ellis traveled homeward as far as Seattle where she spent one year in the Cascade Mountains doing research in conference camping.

Finally in February, 1962, she returned to Georgia as an English teacher with the American University at the Robins Air Force branch near Macon. In September, 1962, she came to Fort Benning.

OVERSEAS SCHOOLS

Besides the Special Warfare Center at Fort Bragg, the Army conducts Counterinsurgency training for U.S. and Allied officers in three overseas schools: one in Panama, one in Europe, and the third in Okinawa.

Lions Club to Fete Allied Officers

Thanks to the civic mindedness of the Columbus Lions Club and the work of a Fort Benning member, Lt. Col. Walter R. Braun, 36 Allied students of The Infantry School will be feted at the annual Lions Club Christmas dinner Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the Ralston Hotel.

Each year club members give the dinner for students from Allied countries who are here taking Infantry School courses. Last year 24 Allied servicemen attended the holiday function.

Col. Braun, deputy G-1 and a Lions Club member since early 1961, is project officer for the affair.

Many of the officers who will attend the Lions Christmas function either have been guests at the club before or have heard comments from fellow countrymen who have.

The club's hospitality isn't restricted to once a year for almost every Tuesday throughout the year Col. Braun, at the club's request, brings along an Allied student. Col. Braun said that from August, 1961, to last August more than 70 officers were guests at the regular weekly dinner meetings.

The Lions program was in effect when Col. Braun joined the organization. As a career military man he was the logical choice to see to it that a guest was brought each week.

During the Christmas dinner, each student will be paired with a club member. The last Christmas dinner was conducted in a similar manner and Col. Braun said a number of lasting friendships developed.

"Quite a few of the Allied officers were invited to members' houses to eat the Christmas meal with them and their families," he added.

Each guest is presented a pamphlet containing the president's Christmas message; the Lions code of ethics and a list of the objectives of the organization.

Training Ends For Battalion From Lewis

The 90th Replacement Battalion of Fort Lewis, Wash., which has been training here since its arrival in October, departed for its home station Tuesday from the Muscogee Airport at 6 p.m.

Commanded by Lt. Col. Francis A. Olig, the unit was attached to The Student Brigade.

While at Fort Benning the 90th's duties consisted of planning and supervising the processing, orientation and equipping of replacements and casuals. The unit also gave limited training to these personnel.

Part of the 90th's mission included providing necessary records and equipment to incoming personnel. The unit also checked the records of new arrivals to ascertain that they had fulfilled the requirements of chemical, biological and radiological training, weapons qualification and receiving medical shots.

Activated in England in 1944 the 90th served in World War II in the Normandy, Northern France, Ardennes - Alsace, Central Europe and Rhineland Campaigns.

Army Discloses Actions Taken During Cuban Crisis

Actions of the U. S. Army during the Cuban crisis have been outlined by the Department of Defense.

In preparation for possible operational missions throughout the Cuban crisis, the Army pre-positioned combat forces, established a logistical base in Florida, and intensified training of all alerted forces.

U. S. Army Forces, Atlantic (USARLANT), was created on Oct. 16, 1962, when Department of the Army notified the U. S. Continental Army Commander, Gen. Herbert B. Powell, that he was designated as Army component commander, responsible for all Army forces, to assist Admiral Robert L. Dennison, commander - in-chief, Atlantic, (CINCLANT) in contingency planning.

Gen. Powell's first task was to enlarge plans for Army participation in CINCLANT's operations and to be prepared to carry out whatever actions were required. To his headquarters at Fort Monroe, Va., he added 218 officers to assist in the planning task. Men in the USARLANT part of the headquarters worked on a 24-hour basis to accomplish these objectives.

Another concurrent task was to establish, under Maj. Gen. George T. Duncan, USA, USARLANT Forward, co-located with U. S. Air Forces, Atlantic advance headquarters at Homestead Air Force Base, Fla.

USARLANT Forward represented Gen. Powell on the ground and coordinated all Army activities in the base areas in the southeastern United States. This small staff was to be the nucleus on which Gen. Powell would expand his operating headquarters if operational plans were put into effect.

Lt. Gen. Hamilton H. Howze, commander of the XVIII Airborne Corps, was designated Joint Task Force commander under Admiral Dennison for control of possible future joint operations. In this capacity he and his staff were involved in greatly expanded planning and supervisory missions.

Major elements of Strategic Army Corps were withdrawn from the U. S. Strike Command and designated for use as USARLANT forces—altogether more than 100,000 officers and men. All elements were put in an advanced alert status during the early days of the Cuban crisis in mid-October. Forces included infantry, armored and airborne divisions, and logistical troops.

The 1st Armored Division began moving from Fort Hood, Tex., to Fort Stewart, Ga., on October 22. The move required 2,000 flat cars, 299 other equipment cars, and 200 passenger cars carrying some 5,000 troops. A major segment of the personnel of the division moved by air to Georgia, while the remainder of the personnel moved with the division's equipment by rail.

All units began a series of intensive training exercises to maintain their combat readiness. Airborne troops participated in exercises involving battle group air movements and parachute drops while the 1st Armored Division engaged in amphibious exercises on the Florida beaches.

The 2nd Logistical Command, commanded by Brig. Gen. Horace G. Davisson, was expanded into a new organization, the Peninsula Base Command, with headquarters at Opalocka Air Force Base, Fla. The mission of this command was to provide logistical and administrative support to all Army troops in the Florida area. The Peninsula Base Command was composed of medical, engineer, ordnance, transportation boat and terminal service units, with a strength of more than 10,000.

Army Air Defense battalions equipped with HAWK and HERCULES missiles, were moved to Florida by rail and air from points as far away as Texas and the northwestern U.S. After occupying tactical positions in Florida, these units went on around-the-clock alert under the operational control of commander-in-chief, North American Air Defense Command.

Also, plans were perfected for the call-up of high-priority Army National Guard and Army Reserve units which might have been needed in the event assault operations were initiated. Every possible readiness action, short of informing units and individuals, was taken by Army and corps headquarters in the U.S.

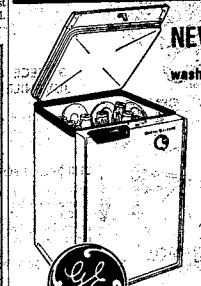
Lt. Ray Honor Graduate Of Infantry Officer Class

First Lt. James F. Ray graduated Infantry Officer Orientation Course, Class No. 6, 2nd Student Battalion, The Student Brigade, recently with top honors.

Lt. Ray completed the eight-week course of instruction with the highest overall average in his class, receiving a 94 per cent.

Brig. Gen. Royal Reynolds, Jr., assistant commandant of the Infantry School, gave the opening remarks and introduced the speaker for the graduation exercises, Col. L. E. Chloupek, deputy director of the Weapons Department of The Infantry School.

In his remarks to the graduates, Col. Chloupek stated what a commanding officer would expect of a new officer.



He said, "A commander will have a highly educated, young, and physically fit, but inexperienced officer." He will be able to learn and learn fast and he will have experienced men above and below him who will help him become a good Infantry Officer.

The new officer must have an inquiring mind so that he can keep up with the latest changes within the Army, Col. Chloupek stated.

Application Deadline Set At University

Monday is the deadline for application for admission to the University of Georgia's Columbus branch for the winter quarter.

Evening courses will be offered on Tuesday and Thursday at the new Columbus College campus. Previously, night courses were offered on Monday and Wednesday evenings.

Classes will begin on Thursday, Jan. 3, and continue through March 19. The schedule allows students to earn 10 hours of credit per quarter.

An official transcript of previous work must be requested from the institute last attended. All records will be reviewed and applicants interviewed by a university representative for acceptance.

Registration will be held Jan. 2 from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and 6-8 p.m.

All fees are payable upon registration with a registration fee of $1 per quarter and tuition costs of $7 per quarter hour or $35 for a five-hour course. All courses scheduled are five quarter hours.

Information concerning financial aid for military personnel can be obtained through education officer or the Education Section.

Additional information may be gained by calling Mrs. Eleanor C. Meadow, FA 4-3436.

UNITED STATES ARMY STRAC READY FORCE

SNOWBOUND IN GERMANY . . . Some division soldiers were getting used to a new weather condition this month as they plodded their way through the snow-laden mountains of Germany. Men of the 38th Infantry, accustomed to the mild Georgia weather at Fort Benning, found themselves learning a new kind of survival technique —bundling up against sub-zero temperatures. Fifteen Units Entitled To Wear Fourragere

Members of fifteen units of the 2nd Infantry Division are entitled to wear the French Fourragere.

The French Fourragere in the colors of the Croix de Guerre may be awarded by the French Government when a unit has been cited twice for the French Croix de Guerre. The award of the Fourragere is not automatic, but requires a specific decree of the French Government.

The following units are entitled to wear the Fourragere:

7th Infantry
9th Infantry
23rd Infantry
38th Infantry
12th Artillery
15th Artillery
17th Artillery
122nd Signal Battalion
2nd Medical Battalion
2nd Engineer Battalion
2nd Quartermaster Company
Headquarters and Headquarters Battery, 2nd Infantry Division Artillery
Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 2nd Infantry Division (includes Brigade)
2nd Military Police Detachment

The 38th Infantry wears the French Fourragere in the colors of the Medaille Militaire having been cited twice for the Croix de Guerre during World War I and again twice cited during World War II.

69th Armor Rolls In From Stewart Training

BY BOB DE CAMARA

The 69th Armor, comprising a major portion of the 2nd Infantry Division's tank support, is back at Fort Benning following a call to Fort Stewart and the U.S. Military buildup triggered by the Cuban crisis.

The 69th Armor, commanded by Lt. Col. James T. Kolb, returned to Sand Hill last Monday after spending five weeks training at Fort Stewart, Ga.

Back By Bus

The majority of the men arrived Monday afternoon. The day before, an advance element had arrived by train, returning 69th Armor tanks. By Tuesday, the entire battle group was reassembled at Fort Benning following the arrival of a company of tanks by train with five guards on board.

Fort Stewart, located near Savannah, Ga., is the United States Army Antiaircraft and Tank Training Center. The 1st Armored Division from Fort Hood, Texas had also been at the center. Last week, President Kennedy personally visited with the troops at Fort Stewart.

The 69th Armor was originally sent to Fort Stewart during the buildup of U. S. forces to meet tension in the Caribbean. During five weeks away from their home post, the armor battalion followed a heavy training schedule and participated in a training mobility exercise, maintaining their combat - ready condition.

Aside from the mobility, exercise and staging a battalion command post exercise, men of the 69th completed individual proficiency testing, conducted live-fire tank platoon problems, sent four tank platoons through the annual training test, and fired Table VI, a firing of .30 and .50 caliber tank weapons.

They also completed record firing of the M-1 rifle, had a chemical chamber exercise, went through tactical tank platoon training, and attended numerous classes and training demonstrations.

New Section at 87th Is Training With Infantry Ground-Level Radar

By 87th Infantry PIO

For the past several months a new section of Combat Support Company, 87th Infantry, has been using equipment that looks like an illustration from a science fiction magazine.

These men comprise the new radar section attached to the headquarters platoon of Combat Support Company. Their mission: to provide ground radar surveillance to the infantry battle group.

What does this mean to the individual soldier in the foxhole? It means simply that this new instrument can detect a moving object, no matter what the conditions; in rain, fog, snow, dense jungle, or the blackest night, thus eliminating almost completely the element of surprise attack by an enemy.

This new infantry radar unit differs from conventional radar which simply bounces back an echo from a target that stands alone with no other objects around it, such as a ship at sea or an aircraft in the sky, and can not function efficiently in congested areas that contain anything besides the target itself.

Such radar was almost useless to the infantry which operates only on the ground. This conventional radar, known as coherent radar, or the new infantry radar, uses stationary ground targets for back ground or reference in the detection of moving targets. The signals from moving targets are received at a different frequency than those from the stationary targets. The infantry radar measures the difference in these frequencies, which by means of a headset and ear phones, an operator with signal ones can interpret as a moving object. An experienced and trained operator can determine range, azimuth, elevation, direction, speed, type and size of the target. Recognition of the reflected echo frequency returning from a moving target is a complex signal as each moving part of the target generates its own moving mass, the spinning wheels and perhaps flopping canvas. Another example would be the combined frequencies generat- (See RADAR, Page 12)

Rivals Matched Monday In Championship Football

Beneath the bright lights of Esebagger Field on Monday night, and with the "Indianhead" band entertaining, the 26th goes against the 87th Infantry for the division football championship.

Both teams hold identical 6-0 records and are tied for first place in the league. This is the last game of the football season here.

Following the game, the commanding general has been invited to present the division football trophies. Winner of the battle will receive a first place prize while the loser is assured the league's second spot.

The game, to be held at 7 p. m. on Kelley Hill, will lack none of the luster of a championship game anywhere. It will be announced play by play over a special loudspeaker network. For 15 minutes prior to the game, the band will play, and at 7 p.m., the starting players of both units will charge onto the field and be introduced individually to the crowd. Following the National Anthem, the contest will be underway. Again at half-time the band will entertain.

Game programs will be distributed. Military Police will be on hand to control traffic, and the game will be handled by four selected officials.

A crowd numbering at least 1500 is expected to attend.

(See SPORTS, Page 12)

DOUBLY SIGNIFICANT . . . As he took command of the 2nd Medical Battalion last week, Lt. Col. Jack D. Wallace was promoted to his present rank. Congratulating him on both a promotion and assumption of command is Lt. Col. D. E. Pittman, (R), 2nd Medical's former commander.

New Sergeant in 7th Infantry Helped Construct First Rhine Railroad Bridge

By 7th Infantry PIO

One of a group of men who built the first railroad bridge across the Rhine River during World War II joins the 7th Infantry as first sergeant of the Combat Support Company.

First Sergeant Joseph J. Straub comes to the "Cottonbalers" from the 1st Cavalry Division, Korea.

Upon completion of his first two years of service, Sgt. Straub was sent to England with the 555th Engineers from October 1943 to July 1944. While stationed with the 335th in Wesel, Germany, Sgt. Straub, along with 3,000 others of three different units, constructed the first Rhine River railroad bridge, a giant structure more than 2,500 feet long. The most remarkable feat of this endeavor was the time element. The whole job was completed in just 10 days. Despite constant attacks by enemy planes and artillery in which three men lost their lives, the engineers finished on time. The urgent need for supplies at the front which was 15 to 25 miles away prompted the speedy completion.

As the last steel span was welded into place, 1,000 railroad cars, filled with vital supplies for the advancing Allied armies were ready to cross the bridge.

After the war the New York City native returned to the States and Fort Dix, N. J., where he remained until 1950 when he again was assigned to Augsburg, Germany, with the post engineers.

Upon return to the U.S. in 1954, Sgt. Straub was stationed with the Ceremonial Detachment at Fort Totten, N.Y., where he and his 23 men conducted approximately 600 ceremonial burials a month for six years.

In August of 1960, Sgt. Straub returned overseas until October 1962 when he came to the 7th Infantry.

Among his many awards, the sergeant has received the American Defense Service Medal, National Defense Service Medal, European Theater Service Medal, World War II Victory Medal and the United Nations Service Medal.

Sgt. Straub's wife, Sara, and sons, Robert and Peter live at 835 Edgewater Drive, Fort Charlotte, Florida.

Maj. Named To Head 27th Arty

By DivArty PIO

A college buddy of Army football coach Paul Dietzel recently assumed command of 2nd Division Artillery's 27th Artillery Battalion.

Maj. Robert S. Menefee, who attended Miami (Ohio) University with the Army coach, became the commanding officer of the 27th with the departure of Lt. Col. James D. Clark to the artillery committee of Fort Benning's Infantry School.

After coming to the 2nd Division in October 1961 as the assistant S-3 (operation) at Headquarters, Division Artillery, Maj. Menefee went in February 1962 to the 27th Artillery as the battalion executive officer. A former enlisted man, Maj. Menefee received his commission after completing the Officer Candidate School course.

AIDE PROMOTED. . .Upped recently at division headquarters to the rank of first lieutenant is Lt. Francis J. Pomper. Promoting the lieutenant is Brig. Gen. Stanley L. Harding, assistant division commander. The lieutenant serves as Gen. Harding's aide de camp.

BIVOUACING IN EIGHT INCHES OF SNOW FOR AN EXERCISE
Tent Villages Take on New Kind of Camouflage

THANKSGIVING INVOCATION FOR COMPANY E
Chap. (Capt.) Irving Njus Leads Men in Prayer

Think It's Cold?

The 38th's Snowbound

By Peter Talistcheff

Some men of the 2nd Infantry Division spent Thanksgiving, 1962, snowbound while their fellow soldiers at Fort Benning basked in sunny autumn luxury.

The division's 4th Infantry, less its brigade, was committed by Col. Sherwin [illegible] with the fighting weather conditions unheard of at Benning. Snow, piles of it, eight inches to be exact, cascaded upon the bivouaced 38th near Thanksgiving, plunging them into cold weather they can expect for at least the next three months.

For members of Company E, C. Holden, is currently in Europe, in Baumholder, Germany, serving six months overseas duty under the Army's rotation plan, "Rotaplan."

Wending their way daily to training areas a few miles from their barracks, men of [illegible] it caught them during a 21-day exercise. Tent villages fell buried along with the mountainous landscape under a blanket of snow; their new "public enemy number one."

Training for the 38th has included road marches and exercises in the mountainous terrain of Germany, and with them goes the 2nd Infantry Division Patch. Temporarily stationed in Germany and attached to the 8th Infantry Division there, this battle group has not abandoned wearing the 2nd Infantry Division's Indianhead patch. Now it is visible on two continents.

Mobile infantrymen of the 38th Infantry often resort to marching by foot to their new training areas. Vehicles must have chains to make any headway or be useful under their weather conditions. This phenomenon, at least, is something other division members in the States have to look forward to.

9th Infantry Conducts Live Fire Attack at Benning

By 9th Infantry PIO

All 9th Infantry rifle companies have recently completed a live fire exercise dealing with platoon in the attack at O'Brien Range.

This realistic exercise is designed to familiarize the individual infantryman with platoon offensive tactics under live fire conditions and to train him to coordinate with other members of the combat team.

In Eight Hours

Eight hours is required for each platoon to complete the exercise, and each platoon is graded on the actions and orders of the platoon leaders and squad leaders, movement of the platoon, actions of the platoon while under enemy artillery fire, the platoon's overall efficiency in the attack, and the conduct of the reorganization and consolidation.

Upon the arrival of each platoon at the assembly area at O'Brien Range the chief umpire, who acts as company commander, issues the attack orders, and the problem becomes tactical. Using a sketch map, he explains the general situation to all members of the platoon.

The platoon moves out, and as it approaches the line of departure, it is hit with enemy mortar fire. This fire is indicated by umpires firing simulated hand grenades in the vicinity of the platoon.

Throughout the exercise the utmost safety precautions are taken, and each platoon is accompanied by a safety officer.

The platoon passes through the mortar fire, and as the lead element reaches the vicinity of the assault position of the intermediate objective, which is hypothetically designated Hill 498, it comes under enemy small arms fire.

Silhouette targets representing approximately the number of men in an enemy squad are displayed in the vicinity of the hill.

When the platoon has reached a suitable assault position, the assault is launched, and enemy fire from Hill 498 becomes weak and sporadic. All supporting fire is shifted to nearby Hill 507, and the platoon continues the attack to seize Hill 507.

During the attack supporting platoons are laying live 81 millimeter mortar and .106 recoilless rifle rounds and 3.5 inch rockets on the objectives.

As soon as Hill 507 is captured, the platoon reorganizes and consolidates and prepares to repel a counter-attack.

Upon completion of the exercise a detailed critique is held.

Their Live Fire Scores Set Pattern

By 87th Infantry PIO

From all indications it looks like a pattern is being established at the 87th Infantry.

For the past two weeks the 87th has been conducting a live fire platoon exercise. At the time of this report all platoons of the battle group had completed the exercise with the exception of three from Company C. The second platoon of Company E has made the highest score on the test so far.

In September, when the rifle platoons were taking the Army Training Tests, the second platoon also had the highest score in the battle group. MSgt Edward Peckham, the platoon leader, is making it a habit to finish first in almost everything his platoon participates in. Although three scores are still not determined, the 87th is sure the second platoon of Company E will again be first.

The second place platoon in the battle group was the third platoon of Company E, lead by Lt. Loey Griffin.

No Mistake, They're Army AND Air Force

Three Air Force officers are wearing Army patches, working with the 2nd Infantry Division. Serving both the Air Force and the Army under a new officer exchange program between the Tactical Air Command and the U.S. Continental Army Command, Maj. Dana T. Moore II, Capt. John J. Keller and Capt. A. W. Webb are here to promote understanding of concepts, doctrines and tactics between the two services. Maj. Moore, air liaison officer, advises the division commander on tactical air operations and assists in target selection. For the major this is his second tour away from the Air Force. He spent two years assigned to the Navy, flying jet fighters off the carrier USS Intrepid. Both Capt. Webb and Capt. Keller serve as air controllers, responsible for target identification, insuring safety for friendly ground units during an air strike. Jump qualified, both have flown the F-100 supersonic jet fighter.

87th's Unit Works First

By 87th Infantry PIO

While the 87th Infantry relaxed recently during an enjoyable half holiday following the 87th's Organization Day activities, the Headquarters Company Communications platoon moved to the field for a two day communications exercise.

New equipment was given a practical field test and the several new non-commissioned officers in the platoon gained new insight in the responsibilities of the assignments.

The initial phase of the exercise was hampered by equipment failure, but excellent support by the signal repair teams quickly rectified the defects. The balance of the problem continued smoothly.

The exercise was completed on noon Friday, and during the brief critique which followed, all participants were commended by assistant division commander Col. John T. Corley.

Promotion Brings a New First Sergeant to 87th

By 87th Infantry PIO

A new first sergeant came to Company A, 87th Infantry, last week who is a familiar person around the company and the battle group.

First Sgt. George E. Wells, who for the last few months has been working with former 1st Sgt. Joseph Browning (now retired) as acting first sergeant, received his promotion November 21 after more than 17 years of service.

The sergeant's career began when he was inducted on the last day of 1942. After basic training at Camp Bowie with the 816th Tank Destroyer Battalion, he went in April 1943 to an Army specialized training unit at Texas A. and M., where he studied basic engineering. The program was cut short after a year and Sgt. Wells joined the 12th Armored Division at Camp Barkley, Tex.

1st Sgt. Wells

The division went overseas in September 1944 and entered combat December 7 in France. Sgt. Wells participated in the campaigns of Ardennes-Alsace, Rhineland, and Central Europe and was one of the first Americans across the Danube.

The sergeant, his wife and three children reside in Columbus, Ga. His eldest son attends Columbus College.

Army Awards Commendation Medals to 10

Army Commendation Medals were awarded this week to 10 former members of the 2nd Infantry Division by direction of the Secretary of the Army.

Receiving awards for their meritorious service with the division were two officers and eight noncommissioned officers. Three of these awards were for the First Oak Leaf Cluster to the Army Commendation Medal.

Those honored were: Maj. Venon H. Ison, 7th Cavalry; Capt. Kossie C. Atkins, 2nd Engineer Battalion; 1st Sgt. Joseph F. Browning, 87th Infantry; MSgt. Jessie C. Chambliss, 13th Transportation Battalion; MSgt. Clifford R. Livingston, 13th Transportation Battalion; SFC James A. Rich, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 2nd Infantry Division; and SSgt. Wayne W. Ensign, 69th Armor.

Awarded the First Oak Leaf Cluster to the Army Commendation Medal were: Sgt. Maj. Lige Hilton, 27th Artillery; Sgt. Maj. Walton M. Torres, 2nd Infantry Division Trains; and SFC Ernest C. Meeks, 2nd Military Police Detachment.

Gen. Billingslea Reviews

PSgt. Alford Presented Commendation Medal During 9th Infantry Ceremonies

By 9th Infantry PIO

The 9th Infantry, commanded by Col. Clifford P. Hannum, conducted a battle group review at Wetherby Field, Saturday morning with over 100 spectators in attendance.

Reviewing officers were Brig. Gen. Charles Billingslea, 2nd Infantry Division commander, and Col. Hannum.

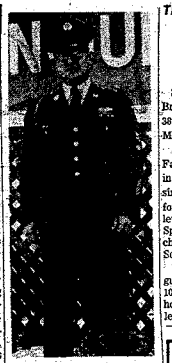
Commander of troops was Lt. Col. Donald T. Paul, deputy commander of the 9th.

Proceeding the review was a ceremony in which Brig. Gen. Billingslea presented the Army Commendation Medal to PSgt. Richard B. Alford of Company B, 9th Infantry P. Sgt. Alford was twice selected 2nd Division Soldier - of-the-Year, in 1958 and again in 1961.

Assisting in the ceremony was the 9th's Sgt. Maj. James L. Runyon. The citation was read by Maj. Wendell F. DeLaMare, 9th Infantry adjutant.

After the ceremony PSgt. Alford took his place on the reviewing stand with Brig. Gen. Billingslea, Brig. Gen. Stanley L. Harding, assistant division commander; Col. John T. Corley, assistant division commander, Col. Hannum, and Mrs. Eunice Alford, the sergeant's wife.

A total of over 1,000 officers and enlisted men participated in the review, including all seven 9th Infantry companies, the battle group color guard, and the 2nd Division Band.



Representing the S-1, S-2, S-3, and S-4 sections respectively were Capt. Sam S. Younger, Capt. Milton A. Snow, Capt. Charles R. Latta, and Capt. William L. McMullen.

Adding to the color of the precision review were neatly pressed uniforms, shining boots and brass, and steel helmets with camouflage covers.

Headquarters Company, commanded by Capt. Ernest E. Cress, led the battle group as it passed in review and was followed in order by Company A, commanded by Capt. Donald B. Smith Jr.; Company B, commanded by Capt. Robert L. Clarke; Company C, commanded by Lt. Shane N. Soldato; Company D, commanded by Lt. John C. Lamb; Company E, commanded by Lt. William C. Graham and Combat Support Company, commanded by Capt. Robert S. Sage.

WITH OAK LEAF . . . Receiving an Army Commendation Medal with First Oak Leaf Cluster is CWO Ralph C. King, 87th Infantry supply officer.

NEW TOP SGT. . . . PSgt. George E. Wells is the new first sergeant of Company A, 87th Infantry. He replaces First Sergeant Joseph F. Browning who retired at the end of November after 20 years of Army service. Sgt. Wells has been with the 87th since July 1954.

Sp4 Brown Cited By 38th Artillery

By 38th Arty PIO

Specialist Four Arthur W. Brown has been chosen as the 38th Artillery's Soldier-of-the-Month for November.

Specialist Brown is from Fairfield, Fla. and has served in Battery A, 38th Artillery since June 1961. As a reward for attaining the battalion level of Soldier-of-the-Month, Specialist Brown earned a chance to compete for DivArty Soldier-of-the-Month.

In his duty as an assistant gunner on one of Battery A's 105 millimeter self-propelled howitzers, the award cites his leadership and ability.

'Extraordinary Heroism Above The Call . . .'

A member of Company E, 9th Infantry, 2nd Infantry Division, during the Korean conflict displayed extraordinary heroism far above and beyond the call of duty and was thus awarded the Medal of Honor. He was PFC David M. Smith, a gunner in the mortar section who saved the lives of at least five persons by throwing himself on an enemy grenade and sacrificing his life.

College Age Group Chair Keeps Mrs. Jones Busy

BY JAMIE BOEDER

Illinois gave us charming Mrs. Ralph K. Jones who is the College Age Group Chairman for the 2nd Infantry Division Officers' Wives Club. She is the wife of Lt. Col. Jones assigned to Headquarters, Division Artillery, as the executive officer.

Evelyn Schwager Jones was born in Chenoa, Ill., and attended the Chenoa Community High School. Upon graduation she continued her plans for college with entry into the College of Commerce at the University of Illinois. Miss Schwager majored in commercial subjects and graduated from the university with a Bachelor of Science Degree in Education. During her four years of university study, she lived at the Kappa Delta sorority house. She was also a member of the Accountancy Club, the University Chorus, and worked on the school yearbook called the "Illio".

Ralph K. Jones and Evelyn Schwager met on the University of Illinois campus at the beginning of their junior year. By the time Miss Schwager graduated from the University, Cadet Jones was finishing his "plebe" year at West Point. There would be three years of waiting before they could be married. Fate did step in, however, and gave them a bit of good fortune. Evelyn Schwager's job applications were steered eastward and she was offered and accepted a position at Edgewood Park Junior College, Briarcliff Manor, N. Y., as Secretary to the Dean and a member of the Commercial Department's faculty.

She remained at Briarcliff Manor until June, 1943 at which time Cadet Jones graduated and was ordered to Ft. Sill, Okla. as a lieutenant of Artillery.

World War II

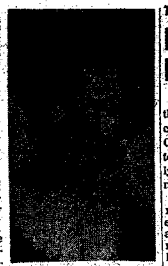
World War II separated the lieutenant from his wife, but 1946 brought them together again when Mrs. Jones and her son Patrick sailed on the "Thomas Barry" with the first group of dependents to arrive in Germany. They joined Maj. Jones in Frankfurt. Many memories parallel this tour. Mrs. Jones recalled the life in a fenced-in military compound and the shopping days in the commissary where she found no fresh vegetables, milk or eggs and only cans of green beans, peanut butter, baking powder, kitchup, et cetera. About six months later, however, the fences came down around the compound and by the time the major and his family made ready to return home, the commissary began to look more like a stateside commissary.

The family was separated again in 1953 when Lt. Col. Jones was assigned for a year as a United Nations Observer in Kashmir. His wife and three children stayed in Pontiac, Ill.

Mrs. Jones chose Schofield Barracks, Hawaii as her preference of posts overseas and among her favorites stateside were Fort Benning and Fort McPherson, Ga., and Fort Monroe, Va.

Whether living in a civilian or a military environment, Mrs. Jones finds herself always taking an active part in helping with activities of the church, school, and community. Here at Fort Benning she is a member of the 2nd Infantry Division Officers' Wives Club Board as chairman of the College Age Group. Mrs. Jones is also a volunteer worker at the Thrift Shop, a member of the Fort Benning Ladies' Golf Association, and she serves on the Troop Committee of the Fort Benning Girl Scouts.

Women's Clubs, golf and bridge have been special interests of Mrs. Jones. She laments that there isn't enough time for her greatest pleasure which is golf, but the handsome trophies in her possession lead one to believe that the time allowed to the sport has been used to great advantage. She has served many years as an Army wife on the boards of golf associations and wives' clubs.



The Jones family includes Patrick who is a freshman studying Pre-Medicine at the University of Illinois; Michael who is a sophomore at Baker High School in Columbus; and Nancy, an eighth grader at Faith School here at Fort Benning.

College Age Group

With all Mrs. Jones' experience in the teaching profession and working with young people, together with having a son in college, the College Age Group holds great interest for her.

Organized for only two years, the College Age Group has proved to be an excellent way for the young people eligible to attend to make friends. They must, however, be the dependent of a parent or sponsor who is a member of the Main Officers' Open Mess at Fort Benning and who lives in this area. They must also be of college age though not necessarily a college student.

Mrs. Jones assisted by Mrs. Lucien Keller and Mrs. John V. Stoecker are now planning the Christmas Party to be held at 8 p.m., December 23 in the Country Club Ballroom. These ladies are also very interested in learning of new and eligible members in the Columbus-Fort Benning area.

GUEST LECTURER AT SAIGON UNIVERSITY
Capt. Davies and Vietnamese English students

Now With AG

Stationed With MAAG, Viet Nam He Lectured at Saigon University

A fluent linguist in Vietnamese returned from a 13 month tour in Saigon recently and has taken up duties with the 2nd Division Adjutant General's Office.

He is Capt. Richard A. Davies who is the Chief of Military Personnel in the division.

Capt. Davies left Viet Nam last August and arrived in the division in October. While in Viet Nam he was assigned to the Military Assistance Advisory Group Headquarters as the civilian personnel officer and the officer in charge of the translator pool. His duties consisted of interviewing and selecting English and Vietnamese speaking interpreters for work with MAAG and being responsible for all translations used by MAAG in Viet Nam. He processed and tested the Vietnamese applicants and then assigned them their duties.

Traveling

As the supply of translators and interpreters dwindled around the capital Capt. Davies was forced to go to many of the outlying towns and villages to recruit personnel. As a result he had an opportunity to travel extensively, to see the country and to meet the people, who he found to be universally friendly.

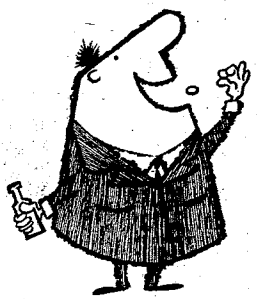
In his off duty time Capt. Davies increased his contacts with the local populace. He guided tours for Vietnamese on the U. S. medical ship "Hope" while it was visiting Saigon. He taught English and lectured at Saigon University in the Vietnamese students studying English. He spoke to them in English of the methods used by the Army in teaching languages at The Army Language School in Monterey, Calif.

Capt. Davies graduated from The Army Language School in June, 1961, after spending 11 months studying an extensive course in Vietnamese.

The Language School is noted for its methods of teaching. It emphasises the continual and constant "living" of the language. Students after spending 6 class hours a day studying not only the grammer and literature of the language but also the social, economic, and political situation of the country, will return home at night, spend two to three hours on memorizing homework, and then be encouraged to take part in the extra-curricular activities which their department operates. For example, Russian students are encouraged to join a choir which specializes in the stirring renditions of old Cossack folk songs.

The Vietnamese students were encouraged to learn and sing the Vietnamese folk songs and once a month they met for Vietnamese Independence Day, the wives of the Vietnamese teachers (who were all Viet Nam nationals) held a party to introduce the students to Vietnamese customs and food.

Capt. Davies went to the language school from Fort Hancock, N.J., where he was a platoon leader with the Nike Hercules Battery which was part of the New York City Defense System.



He was commissioned in May 1953, after graduating from Michigan State University and completing the Reserve Officers Training Corps program.

Championship Football Tilt Monday

Strong Rivalry Keynotes 26th, 87th Inf. Contest

By Bob de Camara

Monday night's game between two undefeated, tied-for-first place teams looms large in the near football future. This game will decide the division flag football championship.

With sentiments of loyalty and pride sweeping the 87th, notes, letters, signs, and words are being exchanged between the "Conquerors" and "Spaders" in an atmosphere of friendly but real rivalry.

But is it a spade?

Consider a recent message from the 87th Infantry to the 26th. Concerned as to the proper designation of "Spader," the 87th Infantry inquired as to whether the arrow worn on the 26th Infantry insignia is in reality a shovel rather than an arrow or "Spade." The 87th concluded that from all gathered evidence "a spade by any other name is still a shovel to us." The 26th got the message—through normal distribution.

Probably the note stems from a prank pulled off on Kelley Hill which the 26th Infantry shares with the 87th and 1st. Newly-arrived at their stateside home from Baumholder, Germany, the 26th announced their arrival by painting a huge "Spade on the Kelley Hill water tower. Charmed by the gesture, the 87th lost no time replying and signed the note "W. E. Conquer."

This in turn received an answer. However, the 87th declined to disclose the contents of the letter.

This is a part of the communications that have been shooting back and forth in one form or another between these two battle groups prior to their upcoming joust for the division football championship.

As new members of the division, the 26th Infantry is going to have to prove to the 87th that they're really as good in sports as they say they are. They've made a more than good start of it, but the real test comes up Monday at 7 p.m. on Eisenhower Field when they face the best the old guard units have to offer on the football field.

Whatever happens, loyalty among the two battle groups does not take a back seat to football ability.

1st's Company A Stocks BG Team

By 1st Infantry PIO

Company A has made a large contribution to the 1st Infantry's Flag Football Team this year. The total contribution of Company A to the team is seven players all of whom are possible first string material.

This group of seven players is headed by Donald L. Thames. Thames was Company A's contribution to the 1st Infantry's "Career - Soldier - of - the-Year" contest and winner of that coveted award.

Other members of the team are Paul R. Walker, William C. Taliferro, Gene C. Bradford, Wallace R. Brown, Leon C. Motz, and Paul E. Romain.

All indications are that the team will try to carry out the 1st Infantry's motto "Always First".

'Always First' Sets Back 9th Inf. in 19-14 Victory

The 1st Infantry flag football squad struck pay dirt again team rolled to a 19-14 win over a stubborn 9th Infantry team only to lose the game 19-14.

To start the game the 9th won the toss and elected to receive. On the very first play after the opening kickoff the fired up 9th Infantry team went all the way to score and made the extra point to take the lead 7-0.

But the "Always First" team was not to be halted. Jesse Madden, 1st Infantry quarterback, tossed a 35-yard touchdown pass to Alvin Williams for a touchdown and another pass to Williams for the point after touchdown which tied the game 7-7.

Setting up another score in the third quarter, Williams ran long to the ten yard line. A pass play from Madden to Williams gave the 1st Infantry the lead 13-7 and they were not to fall behind again.

In the fourth quarter the 1st scored again on long pass plays by Madden. A lead of 19-7 was boasted by the 1st Infantry in the closing minutes of the game. With about a minute left the determined 9th

9th Infantry Airborne School Graduate Now Competes in Sport Parachute Meets

By 9th Infantry PIO

The 9th Infantry Soldier of the - Year, PSgt. David L. Clark of Company A, is also an expert skydiver and competed in a sport parachute meet recently at Deland, Fla.

He participated in two events at the meet, one in which the contestant was judged upon style and form and another in which he was judged upon the accuracy of fall.

Sport parachuting takes a maximum of courage and skill, the same as regular military parachuting. In the style and form competition the contestant was required to do a series of timed maneuvers while in free - fall. In the Deland meet he was required to fall straight away for five seconds, flip over on his back and remains for five seconds, turn back over on his stomach and do a back loop, make a complete turn to the right, a complete turn to the left, and end with another back loop.

All this is done before the parachute is opened. In the accuracy event the contestant tries to land on a target below by computing the speed of the wind and his rate of fall and by maneuvering his opened parachute.

Sgt. Clark, who is a member of the board of directors of the Ft. Benning Sport Parachute Club and who is also the Georgia area Parachute Club of America safety officer, has competed in three national skydiver meets. He has made over 420 jumps.

He graduated from the Airborne School at Ft. Benning in 1961, returned as a member of the Airborne Committee in 1958, and made his first civilian jump in 1959.

He was assigned to Company A, 2nd Battle Group, 9th Infantry in October 1961.

In addition to the two competitive events Sgt. Clark participated in two exhibitions, the first being an altitude jump from 30,000 feet. In the second exhibition he and his teammate, SSgt. Danny Bynard of the Airborne Committee at Ft. Benning, did a baton pass while in free - fall which was followed by a precision landing.

BOWLING SPECIALIST . . . Sp4 Leonard Shoemaker, Headquarters Company, 87th Infantry, recently bowled high series in the Sunday night Mixed Doubles League at the Main Post Alleys. A 190 average bowler from Annville, Pa., his three game scores were 235, 229, and 207 for a total pinfall of 671. Shoemaker's team is currently in the league lead which is nearly half completed. This was Shoemaker's third highest three game total—his alltime high is 705.

Completes Infantry Center CBN Class

By 38th Arty PIO

Returning to Battery B, 38th Artillery after two weeks is SFC Bruce Dingus, after completing Chemical - Biological-Nuclear school at The Infantry Center.

A 12-year veteran of both World War II and the Korean Conflict, his last duty station was in Hawaii with the 25th Infantry Division. The sergeant entered service from Virginia.

Communications Whiz Placed With 7th Inf.

By 7th Infantry PIO

A pioneer in the U. S. Missile Command Operations has been assigned to the 7th Infantry as communications chief.

SFC Thomas A. Hovatter comes to the "Cottonballers" from Company A, 38th Infantry, a unit which has left Fort Benning for six months duty in Germany.

During Sgt. Hovatter's assignment at Fort Bragg, N. C. in 1956, the sergeant was the communications chief of the Special Planning Staff to activate the 3rd Missile Command, the first operation of its kind in the U. S. Sgt. Hovatter was instrumental in setting up the highly complicated communications center. The center, still in operation, is used strictly for defense purposes.

CODED SIGNAL

A radar beacon, usel by vessels or aircraft to determine range or bearing, is a receiver-transmitter combination. It sends out a coded signal when triggered by the proper type of pulse. A vessel or aircraft can determine range or bearing from the beacon by tuning its radar to the beacon frequency.

Sgt. Hovatter entered the service in 1948. Upon completion of basic and advanced training, the sergeant joined the 1st Cavalry Division in Japan. In July 1950, he went with the division to Korea. Sgt. Hovater, in April 1951, returned to the states for 19 months during which time he was stationed at Fort Meade, Md. In January 1953, he again went overseas, this time to Germany with the 4th Division. He returned to Fort Bragg, N. C., in January 1956, where he joined the 82nd Airborne Division and took part in the communications center operations.

Among other awards, Sgt. Hovatter has received the Combat Infantryman's Badge, Army Occupation Medal (Germany and Japan), National Defense Service Medal and the Korean Presidential Citation.

The sergeant was selected the Non-Commissioned Officer-of-the-Month for September 1956 while stationed with the 1st Battalion, 325th Airborne Infantry Regiment, Fort Bragg.

Sgt. Hovatter, his wife, Lekadja, and children, Thomas Jr. and Lydia, live at 1108 Emerson Ave., Columbus.

Doughboys End Season Undefeated

Last Period Touchdown Gives Victory to Benning

Fort Benning climaxed the 1962 football season last Saturday night at Doughboy Stadium with a 13-6 victory over the bowl-bound Fort Campbell, Ky., Screaming Eagles.

The win assured the Doughboys of the 1962 Service Championship and also the first undefeated football season in Fort Benning's gridiron history.

Fort Campbell, which has already accepted to play in the annual Missile Bowl in Orlando, Fla., Dec. 15, put up a determined effort to knock Fort Benning from the ranks of the unbeaten.

The big play of the contest came in the third quarter when the Screaming Eagles had the ball on the Doughboy nine-yard stripe facing a fourth down and five to go with the score knotted at 6-6.

The Kentucky eleven was called for illegal motion at that point and Fort Benning took over on down.

Second team quarterback DeWayne Jeter took the ball on a keeper play for a touchdown three downs later and the Doughboys were in the lead for keeps.

Fort Benning rolled to 149 yards on the ground and 119 through the air for the game. The Doughboys passed but 13 times; completing only four.

The Screaming Eagles could only garner 86 yards rushing and 54 via the air as quarterback Tom Blanda was kept under constant pressure, completing only six of 19.

With two rugged defenses giving it all they had the game developed into a punting duel. Marvin Wheels punted six times for the Doughboys averaging 33.1.

Fort Campbell's Ted Searle put on a real punting exhibition as he booted seven for 41.8.

Fort Campbell picked up 10 first downs to Fort Benning's eight.

With the first quarter coming to a close, the Doughboys started their first substantial drive. With Jeter directing the attack, Fort Benning moved from its own 29 to the Fort Campbell two as the quarter ended.

Fullback Raymond Eddy then banged in for the score on the first play of the second period and the Doughboys led 6-0.

Sam Stellatella missed the conversion attempt and Fort Benning went to the locker room at halftime with a six-point lead.

The Screaming Eagles wasted little time in bouncing back as the 101st Airborne Division team took the second half kickoff and marched 70 yards to paydirt.

Powerful fullback Ernie Wheelwright, who sat out almost all of the first half with an ankle injury, climaxed the drive by pile-driving through the middle of the line for the score with 8:44 left in the quarter.

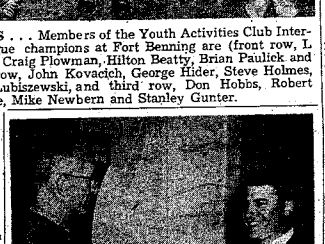
Blanda's extra point attempt was wide and the scoreboard read 6-6.

Fort Benning came roaring back quickly to move all the way to the Fort Campbell five-yard line before being halted.

Curt Baker Leads Team To Crown

The Packers of the Youth Activities Club are Intermediate Football League champions, sweeping five victories in their last six games to grab the league crown.

The team, composed of boys 13, 14 and 15 years old, copped six victories during the season while suffering only two setbacks.



In eight games the league champs scored 175 points while limiting the opposition to 80 points.

Curtis Baker, the Packers' speedy halfback, picked up 519 yards on the ground and scored 90 points to pace the champions' attack. Baker's average yards-per-carry was 8.5.

Other stars in the Packers' backfield were George Heider at quarterback, Steve Holmes at fullback, and Craig Plowman at halfback, all of Columbus.

The light Packer line (an average of 89 pounds) was extremely fast and maneuverable and played well defensively.

The team was coached by SFC Lorenzo E. Plowman and PFC Ted Martin members of the Military Police Company at The Infantry Center.

WINNER'S TROPHY . . . First Lt. William P. Martindale (R) accepts a silver service set for capturing the Fall Handicap Golf Tournament, sponsored by the Main Officers' Open Mess, by edging Capt. William E. King in a play-off round. Making the presentation is Col. J. G. Cornett, chairman of the Officers' Mess board of governors and chief of the Academic Staff of The Infantry School. Lt. Martindale defeated Capt. King 5-4.

Lady Golfer Scores Ace

Mrs. Marge Carter saw a lifetime dream come true recently at the Country Club when she recorded a hole-in-one.

The shot was only the second hole-in-one in history made by a woman at the post golf course, according to club officials.

In October, 1961, Mrs. A. T. Stafford, wife of Lt. Col. (ret.) Stafford carded a hole-in-one.

Mr. Carter's ace came on the 16th hole when she drove 107 yards into "heavy" air. The ball dropped on the ravine-surrounded green and rolled about six feet to the cup.

"I've come close before — as close as six inches, but never a hole-in-one," Mrs. Carter said.

Her husband, Maj. (Ret.) Martin S. Carter turned the trick in 1955 when he blasted a hole-in-one at the Country Club course.

The Student Brigade Captures Early Lead

By SFC Bismarck Stith

The Student Brigade's high riding Tigers notched another victory to their undefeated record in Major Unit Basketball play last week.

The Tigers now have three victories in the same number of starts. In their last game they handed the 10th Artillery Redlegs their first defeat of the young season by an 80-40 margin.

The Student Brigade held the Redlegs to 22 points while scoring 31 themselves. Second half action saw the Tigers increase their lead as they heated up the hoop with 49 points.

Brigade's Carvey Jones paced his team with 31 points while teammates David Ricereto contributed 17. Charles Barnett tossed in 27 for losers.

After dropping their lone setback to the league - leading cagers, the 10th Artillery Redlegs came back strong and walloped 151st Engineer Group, 73-50. This was the Engineers' third setback in the same amount of starts.

Artilleryman Charles Barnett dumped in 30 points to up his season total to 97, the league's highest. Clarence Marble hit the net for 20 points to lead the Engineers in the scoring department.

In other games around the loop, 38th Infantry won their first game by downing Lawson Army Air Command, 71-35. The Infantrymen held the LAAC to 15 points in the first half while tossing in 38 points themselves. The airmen were able to pick up 20 points in the second half and suffered their third setback. Stanley Traymore led the Infantrymen by dropping in 17 points. Robert Walsh was high for the losers.

LAAC also suffered a 91-58 setback in the hands of the 29th Infantry. Jimmy Norsworthy paced the Two-Niners with 26 points, to bring his total to 72 in three games. Teammate Artie Bain tipped in 17 buckets for the winners. Thomas' 15 points and Salley's 14 were high for the airmen.

CTC Whips 58th Infantry

Coach George Dorer, guided his troopers to an 83-57 victory over 58th Infantry. The Infantrymen were held to 22 points during the first half, while the troopers poured in 50. Herb Chavis and Hudson Ray both tossed in 21 points each for the winners while Prince Pointer and Stanley Traymore both contributed 17 for the losers.

In other action 428th Medical Battalion defeated 151st Engineers, 86-49. Fay Bradley and George Bell led the Medics by tipping in 27 and 26, respectively.

Clarence Marble's 24 points was high for the Engineers.

GOOD FORM . . . The pushaway in bowling is like the waggle in golf. When properly executed, it gives a smooth, effortless start, setting the proper motion for other phases of footwork. Push the ball straight out and down, guiding it with the non-bowling hand. Keep elbows close against the body. Most of all be relaxed. A pushaway gets the ball out where it can pick up momentum for the backswing. A bad pushaway leads to bad form which leads to bad bowling.

OUTDOOR OUTLOOK

By PFC Stephen O. Able

DEER SEASON

Deer season has run its first month, and the kill is still exceeding last year's record of 404.

An ever increasing number of hunters take the field on the reservation and continue to bag game on the post. However, hunters are not the only ones bagging game. Recently a fine 8-point buck was found lying alongside the road where he had been struck and killed by a vehicle.

Many deer are killed on the post each year in this manner. Most of the time when a deer is killed by a car or truck, and not reported to the Fish and Game Association, only one thing can be done, and that is to take the deer to the sanitary fill, for the meat is spoiled.

If you should kill a deer accidentally, please call the Fish and Game Association (545-6028) and report the kill. All deer killed on the post regardless of the method, must be reported to the Fish and Game Association.

DEER HAUNCH IN CREAM

As promised here is another recipe for preparing that deer you killed this fall. Mix two cups cooked haunch meat, chopped with 1-2 cup sweet cream. Simmer until liquid is reduced. Add one cup sweet cream, simmer until reduced. Cover with grated cheese, brown and serve. Next week: Broiled venison steak.

FISHING ABOUND POST

Fishing around the post is still good, though spotty.

Bass of the lunker size are still being landed at Weems Pond. Also reports are filtering in that pan fish are being caught at Kings Pond.

With hunting season in full swing, we tend to overlook fishing. Some of the finest fishing in the State of Georgia can be found the months of December and January.

YAC FENCER . . . Sherrel Ely, 17-year-old daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Joe T. Ely, will represent Fort Benning in a fencing match to be held in Atlanta tomorrow at 9:30 a.m. The match is being conducted by the Georgia Division of the Amateur Fencing League of America. Miss Ely, who has been fencing for only 10 months, is sponsored by the post Youth Activities Club.

Maj. Odom Is Named To SS Post

Maj. (Ret.) Hubert L. Odom has been named athletic director of The Infantry Center here.

A native of Albany, Ga., Maj. Odom is the holder of the Army's second highest decoration for "extraordinary heroism in connection with military operations against an armed enemy," the Distinguished Service Cross.

He has had a long association with the Army Athletic and Recreation Program as a participant, coach and athletic director.

As a participant he starred in basketball, baseball, football, track, and was once the welterweight boxing champion of Fort Benning.

After his retirement in 1957, he served as sports supervisor of the Third Army area.

Maj. Odom is married to the former Sybil Jane Kreilick of Columbus.

Though's Sports Scope

By Pete Shough

The nation's most talked about gridiron rivalry is now history, with the midshipmen of Annapolis winning their 28th game in 63 meetings.

Although a bigger, stronger Army team swept into Philadelphia Stadium last Saturday, a fired-up Navy eleven, loaded with rabbit's feet, signs and even Chinese hexes, carried and passed the pigskin to a sound victory over the Black Knights of the Hudson.

Wayne Hardin's men completely out-styled the Army eleven in everything except a fashion innovation that Paul Dietzel perhaps thought would bring victory to the floundering eleven, namely, white football shoes.

But aside from new football fashion, the game was an exciting one to watch. Navy was never assured of victory until the last quarter of play, when interceptions seemed to hurt the Army spirit.

With only one game remaining on the country's grid slate, sports fans are rapidly shifting their attention to basketball and other indoor sports.

This past week most of the top college basketball teams went into action against what most like to consider, sure wins. United Press International's top rated team, Cincinnati, scored easy victories over DePauw and Virginia. Second rated Duke dumped Davidson, third ranked Kentucky received the shock of the young season as they lost to Virginia Tech, their first opening game loss since Adolph Rupp has been coaching at the school.

Other schools mentioned in the UPI poll are West Virginia, fourth; Loyola (Ill.), fifth; Mississippi State, sixth; with St. Bonaventure, Wisconsin Stanford and Bowling Green rounding out the top slots.

New Army Training Film Will Star Men From Post

Men from seven companies in the 29th Infantry, 197th Infantry Brigade, went on temporary duty to Fort Polk, La., recently to make the training film, "'Rifle Squad and Platoon Attack Course."

Commanded by Lt. Jay Reakirt, they will return here Dec. 21.

A demonstration will also be staged by the men Dec. 14 for representatives of National Guard and Army Reserve divisions.

Some 150 officials from the Continental Army Command headquarters, Third and Fourth U. S. Armies and Reserve component divisions are scheduled to witness the simulated attack.

The demonstration has been planned by the Continental Army Command to insure that commanders understand the training requirements of Infantry squads and platoons on live fire squads and platoon attack courses.

The exhibiton will be conducted in conjunction with the making of "The Rifle and Platoon in Attack" training film. The film, which will be shown to students of The Infantry School as a supplement to their regular training, is being made by men from seven companies of the 29th and 39th Infantry, 197th Infantry Brigade.

Maj. William H. Guinn will be in charge of the demonstration and will act as narrator.

He is deputy director of the Platoon Tactics Committee, Ranger Department of The Infantry School.

The film-makers include: Sgt Robert Elder, Sp4 Hezekian Bradley, Sp4 Kenneth Ferrell, Sp4 Elmer Harris, Sp4 John Snyder, Sp4 William Stinnett, Sp4 John Tyrus, PFC Lawrence Armstrong, Pvt. Percy Askew, PFC Robert Miller, Pvt. Ronald Riley, Pvt. William Davis, PFC Joseph Harte, PFC John Hogan, PFC Jerome Jackson, Sp4 William Kokell, PFC John Morgan, PFC Gerald Morrison, PFC Richard Pope, Sp4 Wayne Rose and Pvt. Freddie Azbill, all from Company B, 39th Infantry.

Sgt. Wyley Brady, Sgt. Istvan Selinger, Sp4 Austic Blake, Sp4 Sidney Kirk, Sp4 Kenneth Towe, Sp4 Thomas Shinkle, Pvt. Frank Cesario, PFC Charles Huber, PFC Andrew Cable, PFC Marvin Barton and PFC John Beck of Company C, 39th Infantry.

Participants from Company A, 39th Infantry are Sgt. John Davis, Sgt. Carroll Rampley, Sp4 William Bell, Sp4 Clyde Peterman and Sp4 Stephen Muehl.

The remainder are 29th Infantry personnel: Pvt. Mario Conti and Sp4 Thomas Latham of Headquarters Company; PFC James Battle of Company A; Sp4 Claude Bates and Sp4 Ramond Phillips of Company B and Pvt. Billy Hanback of Company C.

Dental Health Series

Sugars in All Foods Are Causes of Decay

By Lt. Col. Hubert W. Merchant
Preventive Dentistry Officer

"Look, Mom! No cavities!"

This could be your child, even without using the particular toothpaste generally associated with that statement on the one-eyed monster.

Already most parents are aware of the damage done to teeth and general health by candy, but they are not aware of the damage done by sugars in other foods and snacks. Take chewing gum for instance. It has sugar in it and while the amount is small, the gum stays in the mouth for a long time, slowly releasing the sugar and helping to feed decay bacteria.

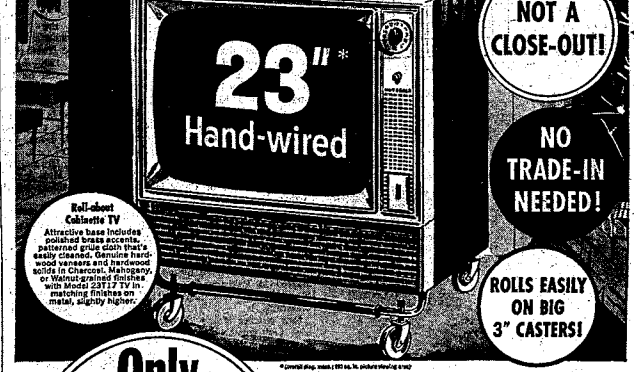
In addition to candy, we have many sugar containing substances which help cause damage too. Did you stop to think about the soft-drinks, the jams, jellies, cake, pie, cookies, crackers, ice cream? Have you looked at a label lately?

Check your cupboard and your pantry. Read the fine print on the ketchup bottle, the mayonnaise jar and the rest. Now, answer your own questions about why Judy's teeth decay even though you don't let her have candy.

Still, she needn't. She could be the happy child running home from the dentist's office with the little piece of paper shouting, "Look, Mom! No cavities."

You must help her though. Make sure she has the advantages which can be hers from fluoridated water and topical fluorides but above all make sure she has a proper diet and follows each meal with thorough brushing. Cut out those between-meal snacks with the sugar-containing tidbits, and when you do have desserts, serve fruits with no extra sugar. Watch out for canned fruit which is packed in sugar syrup.

If you must serve sweets, use the sugar substitutes. Some taste differently than others so if one is not to your liking, try another. Above all, avoid the treats if you want to avoid the treatments.



If you have questions about your dental and oral health which you would like answered in this column, address them to Preventive Dentistry Officer, Dental Section, Fort Benning, Ga., or telephone 545-7741.

REPORT CARD

by Mary Beth Williams

In the past months this column has chatted about social activities and recognized various honors received by Benning teenagers. Now it is time to take a look at three clubs which probably do more to help young people than any other post organizations.

The "Follow Me" Club is composed of Protestant boys and girls of high school age who meet every Sunday night in the Adult Building of the Religious Education Center on Dixie Road.

Earle Wilder and Sharon Estes serve as president and vice-president, respectively of this club. The secretary is Susan Gibbs, while Richard Shealy is treasurer. Betsy Adams handles the publicity for the group. Refreshment chairman is Becky Lewis.

The activities of this organization vary from such things as trips to Martin Army Hospital to the pizza party held at the home of Sharon and Sue Estes last weekend. A standing project is the supporting of a little Korean orphan boy through World Vision, Inc.

The Christmas season contains many plans for the club. On Dec. 16, the members will attend the Candlelight Service at the Student Brigade chapel at the invitation of Chaplain Arthur Estes, and will serve coffee and cake to the worshippers after the service.

Making and filling stockings for 40 Pakistani orphans was a large project of the season. These stockings have already arrived in Pakistan to make 40 little girls very happy at Christmas.

New officers of the "Follow Me" Club will be elected Sunday evening to take office in January. Sponsors of this fine club are Maj. and Mrs. W. E. Hawkins.

On Nov. 11, the Episcopal Youth-of-the-Chapel celebrated their first birthday as an active young people's group of Saint Michael's Mission with a parents' night program.

It is truly amazing to go over the number of projects this club has handled this year. The members help in the nursery and in the Sunday School, as well as keeping the grounds neat around the chapel.

This organization is unique in many ways. Though it is non-denominational, every Sunday evening the members meet in Saint Michael's, where two of their number conduct an evening prayer service. Then the meeting is adjourned to the lounge for a program.

One Sunday a month is dedicated to a study of the Episcopal Church. Very interesting to many members was the study of Catholicism a few weeks ago.

At Halloween they threw a party for the children on the pediatrics ward at MAH. Regularly, the club makes a donation to the Appleton Home for Girls in Macon.

For the past three weeks the EYC has been having a "Leaf Raking Campaign" to make money in order to make Christmas happier for an unfortunate Army family. A cake sale in two weeks will further finance this project.

On Jan. 6 the members of the club will present the "Feast of Lights." This play, which depicts the life of Christ, is a traditional service held by the Youth-of-the-Chapel on the 12th day of Christmas. This will be the second such ceremony at St. Michael's.

Lynn Kennedy is president of the club. The other officers are Joy Birdsong, Lee Short, Jean Dixon, and Charles Pollman. Mr. and Mrs. Nicewarner and Mrs. John L. Kennedy are sponsors for the group.

The EYC and the "Follow Me" clubbers will go caroling together on Dec. 23.

The EYC will host a hot chocolate party at the Lounge later that evening.

CAREER PROFITABLE . . . SFC Willie Wiltz (R) receives a check for over $16,000 from 1st Lt. Philip H. Sullivan Jr. for the Soldier Deposits he saved during his 20 years in the Army. Sgt. Wiltz is retiring this month.

Atlanta USO Activities

The Atlanta USO, located at 240 Spring Street, N.W., Atlanta, is open to all servicemen and dependents.

Visiting military personnel may contact USO for information on church services, theatre tickets, hotel rates and social activities during their stay in Atlanta.

Visit the USO Open House on every Sunday afternoon from 1 to 5 p.m. and also the USO dance every Saturday night.

The Atlanta USO will sponsor a special musical show this Friday and Saturday nights entitled "Trouble in Tahiti". All visiting service men are invited to attend.

Conference Planned For WAC Advisers

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — A conference of WAC Staff Advisers of the Army commands is planned for March 18-22.

The tentative schedule calls for the parley to be held in two locations — three days at Department of Army Headquarters here and the final day at the WAC Center, Fort McClellan, Ala.

Inspector General Section Will Observe 185th Year

By Ida C. Evans

The 185th anniversary of the Office of Inspector General of the Army will be observed here Thursday with a coffee at 9:45 a.m. in Bldg. 5 for guests and members of The Infantry Center Inspector General Section.

The Infantry Center Band will play a 30-minute concert on the lawn during the coffee.

The inspector general of the Army and inspectors general on his staff are confidential agents of the secretary of the Army and chief of staff.

At an installation such as Fort Benning, annual and special inspections of units and activities are made for the commanding general, according to Lt. Col. Robert P. Galer, inspector general of The Infantry Center.

The inspections concern matters the commanding general is interested in but cannot spare the time to investigate personally.

In additon, Col. Galer said, inspections are made for Continental Army Command (CONARC), Fort Monroe, Va. Such inspections pertain to CONARC or Army Material Command units on the post.

The IG receives complaints or requests for assistance. He and his staff investigate, conduct inquiries and make detailed studies of conditions on the post, the colonel continued.

Col. Galer said his office inspects nonappropriated funds. The investigation includes checking the books, operation and personnel handling the money as well as giving advice on the operation of funds.

Lt. Col. Wilbur McCormack is chief of the Inspection Division, while John Miller is chief of the Funds Division.

Col. McCormack heads a five-man inspection team, including MSgts. James A. Boggs, Edward A. Dantzler, Arthur Gless, Roy H. Miller, and SFC Bruce C. Tait.

Other members of the section are MSgt. Paul A. Anderson, chief clerk; Mrs. H. R. Thornburg, reporting stenographer, and Mrs. H. G. Haggard, clerk - stenographer.

The Continental Congress established the IG office Dec. 13, 1775, in compliance with a request by Gen. George Washington, after consultation with his general officers.

Washington and his staff asked the Congress, then sitting at York, Pa., to establish an "inspectorship."

The request grew out of a need for standardization of regulations, governing both drill procedures and individual conduct.

The Continental Army was a hodge-podge of brave and determined men who did not know the meaning of defeat.

Supplies were short, clothes insufficient and food almost nonexistent, yet none of these was considered the greatest handicap of Washington's Army in winter quarters at Valley Forge in 1777.

When the general and his staff met to discuss the situation, they did not ask for weapons, ammunition, uniforms, medical supplies nor rations but for regulations and inspection.

That early team of military strategists knew they must coordinate the rules and regulations of 13 Colonial militias composing the Continental Army. They knew from dire experience the necessity for uniformity in methods, techniques and drill orders.

The first inspector to function as such was Baron Frederick W. A. Von Steuben, a Prussian who began working with Gen. Washington Feb. 25, 1778, and was formaly appointed to the position May 5, 1778. He was given the rank of major general.

Looking at the hungry, cold men at Valley Forge, Gen. Von Steuben saw an Army that was "licked but didn't know it." History records that the Prussian officer considered Washington's troops the "finest soldier material he had ever seen."

Finding no manual of drill at Army headquarters, Von Steuben wrote, by hand, the first drill regulations. He wrote first in German, and then translated the regulations into French, for he did not speak English. A young lieutenant named Benjamin Walker translated from French to English, while other officers made hand written copies for brigade inspectors.

Von Steuben then memorized the English orders and conducted drill.

The American Army was introduced to drill by Gen. Von Steuben, inspector general, on the Grand Parade at Valley Forge, March 19, 1778, a day that could well have been the turning point of the American Revolution.

On March 3, 1812, an Act of Congress established the Inspector General's Department. In 1885, the duties of the department were defined as including "all matters pertaining to the military art or having interest in a military point of view," broadening the sphere of activity to cover every branch of military affairs.

In 1874, inspection of disbursements was added to the duties of the department, making inspectors responsible for any misappropriation or misapplication of public monies or property which "an act of vigilance on their part might have detected."

The end of the department came in 1950 with the Army Organization Act. Public Law 581, passed by the 81st Congress, made no provision for an inspector general's department nor branch, but specified that under certain conditions officers may be detailed as general staff officers and as inspectors general.

Know Your Senior NCOs

Sgt. Maj. Theron C. Barron, senior noncommissioned officer of the 2nd Battalion (Composite), 19th Artillery, 197th Infantry Brigade, is a veteran of more than 25 years service.

Sgt. Barron entered the Army at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., in 1936 and was assigned to Battery B, 12th FA Regiment. Four years later he was assigned to the 60th Artillery at Fort Bragg, N.C.

In August, 1942, Sgt. Barron was reassigned to the 60th Infantry Regiment, Fort Bragg, and two months later was enroute overseas with the unit. They landed on the shores of French Morocco on Nov. 8, 1942, for the initial invasion of Africa and the Tunisian Campaign. In 1943 they proceeded to Sicily and the Sicilian Campaign.

Returning stateside in Oct. 1943, he was assigned to the 410th Infantry Regiment at Camp Howze, Tex. The year

BARRON

1944 saw his return overseas with the 410th for combat thru Southern France, Germany, and Austria for the war's duration.

He remained in the states during the Korean Conflict, serving with the provost marshal's office at Fort Sam Houston. A later assignment in 1956 was with the 287th Artillery in Germany.

In Dec., 1959, while serving with Battery A, 11th Artillery at Fort Campbell, Ky. Sgt. Barron received his first "super-grade" — promotion to E-8. His second "super-grade" promotion came in 1961 while serving with the 19th Artillery, 1st Cavalry Division, in Korea. He returned to the states from Korea and was assigned to his present duty on April 20.

Included in Sgt. Barron's decorations are seven awards of the Good Conduct Medal, the Army Commendation Medal, the Purple Heart with Cluster and the Combat Infantryman Badge.

Sgt. Barron resides with wife, Sybil, and daughter at 129-B Baker Street.

447 Join Elite Ranks Of Airborne

The Army supplied the most men in the graduation of The Infantry School's basic airborne course recently but the Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps each added men to the group of 447 newly qualified parairoopers.

The United States' northern neighbor, Canada, also had a hand in swelling the total to one of the largest in the course's history as Canadian Army Sgt. Michael McDonnell of the Joint Air Training Center, Rivers Camp, Manitoba, received his Parachutist Badge.

Honor graduate of the three-week course was Army Pvt. Michael G. Parker.

Highest ranking member of the class was Col. William E. Depuy of the Office of the Secretary of the Army.

SURGEON SAYS

Dependent Care Plan Offers Much to Many

By Maj. Frank E. Blakely

Members of the military service should be familiar with the basic aspects of their Dependents Medical Care in order to be properly advised concerning medical benefits available to them.

All too frequently we find that the word "dependent" has a different meaning to many of us. Some dependents who are eligible for medical care are not considered as dependents for quarters allowance purposes. Also, there are dependents for whom a member of the miliary might be receiving a quarters allowance, yet they are not eligible for medical care.

A dependent's eligibility for medical care benefits and a military member's entitlement to basic allowance for quarters for his dependents are authorized by two different laws, and each law has its own definition of dependents.

Dependents eligible for medical care benefits are defined in paragraph 2 d, AR 40-121 (Dependents Medical Care), whereas those for whom a member is entitled to receive basic quarters allowance are defined in Section II, Chapter 5, AR 37-104 (Pay and Allowances of Military personnel).

AR 40-121 provides that children (legitimate and unmarried including adopted children and step-children under 21 years of age are eligible for medical care without regard to actual dependency. Children, including adopted children and stepchildren, who have passed their 21st birthday are also eligible for medical care if incapable of self-support because of physical incapacity that existed prior to reaching age 21 and are dependent on the military member for over one-half of their support.

Under this same regulation, children, including adopted children and stepchildren, over 21 but under 23 years of age, are also eligible for medical care if they are enrolled in a full time course of study at an accredited educational institution above high school level. These dependents are not included in the Finance Regulation authorizing quarters allowance.

Furthermore, certain regulations might recognize a minor brother, brother-in-law, sister or sister-in law as being dependent upon the military member, however these dependents are not authorized to receive medical care at a military medical facility.

Parents and parents-in-law are also eligible for medical care of dependent on the member for over one-half of their support and residing in a dwelling provided or maintained by the military member.

However, step-parents, grandparents, parents by adoption or persons who have stood in loco parentis to the military member are not authorized medical care.

Yet a military member is entitled to quarters allowance for a father and mother, if the parent is dependent on the military member for over one-half of his or her support, including step-parent, parent by adoption, or any person who has stood in loco parentis to the member at any time for continuous period of not less than five years during minority of such member.

Another point concerning eligibility which is often overlooked is the fact that there is no requirement in the Dependents Medical Care law that a child under 21 years of age or a wife actually be dependent on the member for his or her support to be considered a dependent eligible for medical care.

Also, a wife may be legally separated from her husband or an interlocutory divorce decree may be in effect, however she does not lose her eligibility to receive medical care under the Dependents' Medical Care Act until the relationship of the military sponsod and wife has been terminated by a final divorce decree.

For further detailed information concerning eligibility of your dependents to receive medical care, you should contact your unit personnel officer.

3 Services Will Enter Pistol Shoot

The regular monthly pistol tournament sponsored by the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club looms as an inter-service battle this weekend.

Thomas Kirkman, club secretary, said Tuesday that entries have been received from all branches of the armed services.

In addition to the men from the Marksmanship Training Unit and the Third Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit here, there will be shooting teams representing the U. S. Naval Base at New Orleans, La.; U. S. Marine Corps Recruiting District in Atlanta and the Air Force from Chennault AFB, Ill.

"We will also have a number of civilian shooters as well as police entries," Kirkman added.

The two-day tournament will consist of 12 fired matches totalling 2700 points for individual honors and three team matches. The events will be fired with the .22 caliber, center fire, and the .45 caliber handguns.

The individual matches will be fired Saturday and Sunday while the team events will be fired Sunday afternoon.

Announce Holiday Work Schedule; Highway Safety Campaign Begins

Gen. Harrell Urges Accident-Free Holiday

The importance of safety during the approaching holiday season cannot be over-emphasized. As you know, accidents resulting in injury and death occur more frequently during holiday periods such as Christmas and New Year's.

The Commanding General, United States Continental Army Command, in a message to CONUS Army Commanders, pointed out the responsibilities of all personnel for conserving life, limb and property. In forwarding this message, the Third Army Commander expressed the desire that all commanders counsel military personnel to exercise self discipline and mature judgment in the operation of their private automobiles.

I urge that all personnel of this command adhere to common sense safety rules — on the highway, in recreational pursuits, and in their homes. Only in this way can we assure a happy holiday season — free from accidents and "home safe" for Christmas.

Ben Harrell
BEN HARRELL
Major General, USA
Commanding

With a holiday safety campaign moving into full swing, officials of The Infantry Center have announced the official Christmas - New Year holiday period will extend from 5 p.m., Dec. 20 to 8 a.m. Jan. 4.

On tap for the period are three legal holidays and a number of non-duty and half-duty days. All personnel, both military and civilian, will be off on the legal holidays, Christmas Eve, Christmas Day and New Year's Day.

Other non-duty days for military personnel include Dec. 22, 26 and 29, and Jan. 2. The military also will have off the afternoons of Dec. 21, 27 and 28, and Jan. 3.

Civilians to Work

Civilians will work on these days unless they take leave. So will a number of military personnel performing duties considered essential to the operation of the post.

Infantry Center safety officials are conducting an extensive campaign to alert personnel to the need for highway safety during the holidays.

Among the things being done are insuring that commanders and supervisors orient personnel on the causes of holiday accidents and the safety practices which can prevent them, and on the control of leaves and passes to discourage driving late at night, and where practicable in units conduct safety checks of private vehicles before departure.

There is also an effort being made to counsel persons granted leaves or passes on the necessity for safe driving, self discipline and courtesies of the road, and on the dangers of driver fatigue and other hazardous conditions prevalent during the holiday season.

Distribute Leaflet

One unique method of keeping safety constantly in the mind of the military is a leaflet which is attached to the soldiers' pass, reminding them that the best gift to their family is their presence.

Other safety posters and leaflets also are being distributed to the units, as well as weather and road conditions for major routes of travel.

Accidents other than automobile wrecks that usually cause injuries over the Christmas period are fires, altercations, carbon monoxide, being struck by an auto while walking along the side of a road

Sp5 Austin Neesmith Earns Rescue Award

Sp5 Austin H. Neesmith, a member of the 31st Transportation Company, Lawson Army Aviation Command, was recently presented the Sikorsky Air Rescue Pin for his part in a rescue mission while on duty in Korea.

The pin is awarded to persons participating in a rescue mission utilizing a Sikorsky aircraft.

Sp5 Neesmith, at the time of his rescue mission, was a crew chief on an H-19 Helicopter assigned to the 49th Medical Detachment, 65th Medical Group, Seoul, Korea.

The 49th Medical Detachment was primarily a Medical Evacuation unit, used in cases of extreme emergency. In the case of Sp5 Neesmith, a grave emergency arose one cold Dec. night in 1961.

Neesmith

Korean-based troops were being put through their paces on Exercise Snow Tiger near the De-Militarized Zone. One man fell seriously ill and was in need of immediate medical attention. Because of the lack of adequate hospital and transportation facilities, the medical evacuation unit, of which Neesmith was a member, received the call.

Two pilots, a team of medics and the crew chief, Sp5 Neesmith, manned their craft and hastily moved out to evacuate the stricken man.

As the award winner tells it, "Helicopter crews such as ours, are on 24-hour alert and at the time of the call, we were all standing by. During the flight, the medics and myself usually prepare our medical facilities for the injuredman, depending on the circumstances. In this case, our only alternative was to make the man as comfortable as possible and get him to the hospital with no delay."

"Fortunately we were able to put the aircraft down near the aid tent and the medics were able to make the transfer quickly. The last leg of the mission was to the ASCOM Hospital and it was made post haste. I learned later that he recovered, but unfortunately, I never did learn his name," he said.

Since the rescue mission, Neesmith has been on the move and the Sikorsky Aircraft Factory representatives had trouble pinning him down. They finally caught up with him here at Lawson Field, and promptly gathered up all the letters of commendation, citations and the Rescue Pin.

The presentation of winged "S" Rescue Pin was made by Neesmith's present commanding officer, Maj. Paul O. Bailey, before the staff and commander meeting at the Headquarters Building, LAAC.

American Traditions Proud, Inspirational

Early American colonists fought, and died to win the rights and freedoms we enjoy today. The heritage they bravely passed on was an inspiration to the Americans who defended this country in two world wars and the Korean Conflict.

How well do we stand up? What heritage will we leave to future generations? Could we face a hangman's noose and say "I regret that I have but one life to give for my country?"

Nathan Hale did at the age of 21.

Americans occasionally forget the significance of John Paul Jones' words when asked by the gunner of the Serapis if he would ask for quarter.

Jones threw his pistols at the gunner's head and replied, "I have not yet begun to fight!"

Jones' Bonhomme Richard was sinking and many of his crew were killed or injured. Yet he rallied his remaining men and after three and one-half hours of heroic battle with the ships locked together, the Serapis struck her colors.

Then Jones and his crew boarded the Serapis and saw their own ship sink with the stern and mizzenmast uppermost and with her colors flying.

This same spirit and determination was demonstrated by Maj. Gen. Anthony C. McAuliffe, when the Germans asked him to surrender his 101st Airborne Division during the Battle of the Bulge.

His reply was simple but to the point. . . "Nuts!"

During the bitter winter fighting at the Chosin Reservoir, Maj. Gen. Oliver P. Smith and two regiments of his 1st Marine Division were surrounded by three divisions of the chinese Communist Forces. Realizing his situation, he ordered his Marines to head south.

Press correspondents asked him if he was planning a retreat and he replied, "Retreat, Hell! We're just attacking in another direction."

These Marines emerged at Hungnam as unit carrying their wounded and equipment. They didn't relish suffering and death. They were fighting and dying so that Americans might worship as they please; that they might voice their opinions; that they might elect leaders of their own choice.

IMMORTAL SGT. YORK . . . Cpl. Alvin C. York, later to become the immortal "Sergeant York," received the Medal of Honor for his deeds of Oct. 8, 1918, in France. After his platoon had suffered heavy casualties, York assumed command and led seven men in a daring assault upon an enemy machine gun nest that had been pouring deadly and incessant fire upon the platoon. York's spectacular marksmanship and audacious leadership completely demoralized the enemy, and the nest was taken, together with four officers, 128 men, and several guns.

CHAPLAIN'S CORNER

Look At Today

By Chaplain (1st Lt.) Thomas F. DesChamps

Let's take a look at today. We each have done some work, rested a few hours, eaten varying amounts of food, and wasted some time and effort. We each have been confronted already with some situation or problem about which we have been required to make a decision. Perhaps we made the worst possible choice or one that was better. Maybe we had to choose between two answers, neither of which was really good.

One choice with which we are faced daily is whether or not we will worship our God. Each of us has this choice; the responsibility is our own. The offer of faith to each man is made from God. The response, however, is from man to God.

Faith knows of real and human freedom and responsibility in the ages of history. It also knows of evil. God allows history to be written according to the acts of men. Thus we see something of the seriousness of our acts. The reality of today is a fact of history tomorrow. Therefore, is not this choice of worship one of importance?

Temptation levels itself on the reality of this day and we are menaced by unbelief and doubt if we remain alone without God. Today, as we are faced with decisions, let us see the problem under the clear light of God. No problem is too small nor too large to bring to Him—and no manner of praise from us to Him is forgotten. With God, today is better than it would have been without Divine guidance in the past. Let's take a look at today; tomorrow it will be history.

The Proven Value of Measured Response

Now that the Cuban crisis has lessened in intensity — although Cuba will remain a hemispheric nuisance as long as it has a Communist dictatorship — what have we learned from the series of events that followed President Kennedy's Oct. 22 address to the nation?

Many lessons. And paramount among them is the effectiveness of what has been called "measured response" — in the case of Cuba the quarantine that quickly called a halt to Soviet shipment of offensive weapons to Fidel Castro and initiated removal of those he already had.

Obviously there were stronger measures to meet the Cuban threat, but none so wise and statesmanlike as that chosen by our Commander-in-Chief. Our OAS and NATO allies were unanimously behind him in whatever action he might take; it was no lack of support in the Free World that motivated his choice.

No, it was as the acknowledged leader of that Free World, commanding its greatest ground, sea and air forces, that Mr. Kennedy upheld the Monroe Doctrine with his firm statement of policy. And in so doing he achieved his objective by compelling Premier Khrushchev to call off his Cuban adventure that imperiled the peace.

It was a proud hour for the President, for the nation and for its Armed Forces. The arsenal of democracy has gained a new weapon, economic as well as military, in the quarantine — the measured response to international banditry. (AFPS)

Reactivation Date Marked

Saturday marks the fourth anniversary of the reactivation of the 428th Medical Battalion which was originally established as a medical ambulance battalion during World War II.

Following the termination of European and Japanese hostilities, the unit was deactivated in 1945. The latter part of 1958 the unit was reactivated to replace the 54th Medical Group here.

At the outbreak of the Berlin Crisis in 1961, three National Guard Units and two Reserve Units were recalled to active duty bringing the battalion strength to nine units. In the summer of 1962, these five units were deactivated in conjuction with an Army - wide demobilization of the Reserve Units.

On Oct. 26 the 54th Medical Detachment was assigned to the medical battalion bringing the battalion to its present strength of five units. The other units are: Hdqs. and Hdqs. Detachment, 3rd Field Hospital, 50th Medical Company and 630th Medical Company.

All units of the battalion are Army Command. The battalion, commanded by Lt. Col. Raymond J. Caldbeck with Maj. Charles G. Braden as executive officer, is an administrative headquarters having the responsibility of providing command control, planning and logistic services for the attached units. The units of the battalion also provide ambulance and sero-medical support for The Infantry Center.

The battalion was awarded streamers for campaigns in Normandy, Northern France, Rhineland, Ardennes - Alsace and Central Europe during World War II.

Dividend Pay Is Scheduled

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Both the regular and the special dividends on National Service Life Insurance policies will be paid in January according to the Veterans Administration.

The two dividends will total more than $327 million. About $222 million is the regular dividend. A special dividend of $90 million will go to World War II NSLI policyholders and $15 million to World War I veterans who hold U. S. Government Life Insurance policies.

With one exception in 1961, regular NSLI dividends have been paid on the anniversary dates of individual policies. In 1961 there were paid by mid-March. Also paid in 1961 was a special dividend on World War II NSLI policies.

The special dividend will be paid from the contingency reserve fund due since study and experience indicate that the fund is more than ample to meet the needs of the insurance program.

VA officials are reminding policyholders that the preparing and mailing of the dividend payments is automatic and requires no correspondence from veterans or their families. In fact, such correspondence might delay the disbursement, they said.

Infantry Board Plays Big Role in Making Army Modern

Saturday will mark the 43rd anniversary of the U. S. Army Infantry Board and its assignment here.

The two events occurred Dec. 15, 1919, only a little more than a year after the establishment of Camp Benning, as the post was then known.

The actual history of the Board begins somewhat earlier than the 1919 date.

It was March 31, 1905, that an Infantry Board was established at Fort Leavenworth, Kan. The 1903 orders called the unit, "A board to which may be referred from time to time, subjects relating to the operations and equipment of the Infantry Arm, upon which their opinion may be desired."

This board was disbanded in March, 1911, when the 13th Infantry left Fort Leavenworth for the Mexican border.

Before the establishments of the Leavenworth board, new equipment was either sent to a selected regiment for testing, or turned over to a board convened especially for that purpose.

The immediate forerunner of the present Infantry Board was the Lewis Board, which met in France in April, 1919, to consider the lessons to be gained from the experience of World War I, insofar as they applied to the tactics and organization of the Infantry.

Eight months later, the Infantry Board was created and given the function of considering with continuity of effort the improvement of the Infantry. A statement from the most recent definition of the board's objectives further clarifies this function:

"All testing and reporting is governed and guided by the overriding consideration of providing the Infantry and the United States Army with the most efficient weapons and equipment within the capability of industrial techniques and skills."

While their purposes have remained relatively unchanged during the past four decades, there have been considerable changes in the type of equipment tested.

One of the special boards convened in 1909 wound up its sessions by eliminating the old blanket roll. This board consisted of five Infantry officers and one Ordnance officer.

Today rockets, recoilless rifles, radar, mechanical ditch diggers and the like are the subjects of test and evaluation. However, tests are still conducted that are concerned with the comfort of the individual soldier.

In 1958 the board conducted tests on a then new combat boot. Other tests resulted in the adoption of dehydrated food that provides a tasty meal when cooked with boiling water.

Most of the work done is classified and the average military man isn't aware of what the board is doing until the Infantry has adopted the equipment or material and it is issued for field use.

The board is actually a unit apart from Fort Benning and falls under the command of the U. S. Army Materiel Command.

The president of the board, who is its commander, is Col. William M. Summers. The deputy president is Col. Robert C. Williams.

Assigned to the organization as liaison officers are Lt. Col. John E. Dent of England, Maj. Gordon A. Gunton, Canada, and Lt. Col. Arthur E. House Jr., U. S. Marine Corps.

A number of distinguished officers have seen service with the board during its history. Included among these are Generals of the Army George C. Marshall and Omar N. Bradley, Gen. Courtney H. Hodges, Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch and Lt. Gen. Rueben E. Jenkins.

Organizations within the structure of the board include the directorate, which consists of the president, deputy president, chief of the Operations Division and chiefs of the four test divisions, Small Arms Division, Rocket and Recoilless Division, Mortar and Surveillance Division, and Field Equipment and Special Projects Division.

Since the Christmas holidays fall so close to the anniversary, no specific celebration is planned. Instead all the personnel will gather at the annual Christmas party. During the summer, a unit day picnic is held for all the board members and the personnel of Headquarters Company.

INFANTRY BOARD TESTING . . . The soldier on the left prepares to throw an M-26 hand grenade with an M-217 impact fuze, during evaluation tests conducted on the grenade by the U.S. Army Infantry Board at Fort Benning. The board is celebrating its 43rd anniversary and assignment here. Since Dec. 15, 1919, the board has been an integral part of the Infantry and the Army.

General Jones' Visit Here Ends Today

Maj. Gen. Stanley W. Jones, chief of the Army Audit Agency concludes a four-day visit here today.

Gen. Jones, accompanied by Mrs. Jones arrived Wednesday.

Gen. Jones met members of the Army Audit Agency team who are conducting an installation audit.

The first conference with the team was Wednesday afternoon after the agency chief called on Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center and commandant of The Infantry School.

An honors ceremony for the two-star general was held on Chapel Field at 2 p.m. Wednesday.

On Thursday Gen. Jones received briefings on The Infantry Center and School, and toured the post.

From 10 a.m. to noon Thursday he conferred with Gen. Harrell and members of his staff, Brig. Gen. Charles Billingslea, commanding general of the 2nd Infantry Division and his staff, and the staff of major units.

After the conference, an official luncheon was held in Gen. Jone's honor in the Fountain Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess.

The remainder of the day was devoted to on-site visits with the auditing team.

After a final conference with the team this morning, Gen. and Mrs. Jones will depart from the Muscogee Airport at 10:15 a.m.

TIS Is Visited By Col. Stewart Of Fort Holabird

The deputy assistant commandant of the Army Intelligence School, Col. Matthew C. Stewart, visited The Infantry School this week.

He arrived Sunday and departed Thursday morning.

One of the highlights of Col. Stewart's visit was a briefing on the intelligence training supplied Infantry School students by the Command and Staff Department.

The Intelligence School at Fort Holabird, Md., trains selected personnel for intelligence and security duties in the fields of counterintelligence and field operations and combat intelligence.

The colonel saw a number of Infantry School demonstrations, including parachutist training, artillery used in support of a rifle platoon, methods of mob and riot control and methods of disarming knife or bayonet assailants.

Monday afternoon Col. Stewart called on Brig. Gen. Royal Reynolds Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School.

Dental Health Series

Healthy Teeth, Jaws Need Exercise, Too

Have you exercised your teeth and jaws today?

President Kennedy has expressed his concern over the state of physical fitness of our nation's youth. Everyone accepts the fact that we need regular exercise as well as proper food and rest for good health. Our masticatory apparatus —(that's really a mouthful, isn't it?) — our teeth and the tissues around them as well as the muscles of the jaws need exercise, too.

Several years ago a patient came to me with what appeared at first glance to be a beautiful set of teeth. She had all 32 teeth and not a spot of decay, no fillings and only a small amount of tartar.

However, her xray pictures told a much different story. There was a lot of bone loss around her back teeth, but the bone around her front ones was in good shape. My curiosity was aroused because this was not exactly like what we see in the usual type of oral disease.

Finally, after much questioning she said she never chewed on the back teeth because she didn't want anything to happen to them. Fortunately, we put a stop to this before too much damage has been done. She could have lost these teeth because of lack of use.

Now many of us don't go to that extreme, but we do almost the same when we eat ground and chopped meat, when we take the crust off bread before we make sandwiches, when we order mashed potatoes or don't eat the chewy skins of baked ones, and do many other similar things.

We are like one of my sons when he was young and we were in Germany. He didn't like the bread with hard crusts on it and used to ask me to buy "easy bread." If you want your masticatory apparatus (there's that mouthful again) to be healthy — exercise it. Chewing rough foods helps to keep your teeth and gums healthy and to some extent helps to clean them.

If you have questions about your dental and oral health which you would like answered in this column, address them to Preventive Dentistry Officer, Dental Section, USAIC, Fort Benning, Ga., or telephone 545-7741.

Decorating Contests Put Christmas Spirit To Work at Hospital

Patients at Martin Army Hospital are putting their Christmas Spirit to work designing and creating original holiday decorations in an annual ward decorations contest which began Dec. 10.

In the contest, each ward chooses a theme and constructs decorations from supplies provided by the American Red Cross. Judges will visit the wards Dec. 21, to select first, second and third place winners.

On the ward winning first place, each patient will receive a gift. The ward will be honored with a party and will be given a basket of fruit.

The ward winning second place will receive a basket of fruit and a gift for each patient. On the ward placing third, there will be gift for each patient.

The winners of the contest will be announced during the Hospital Commander's Open House from 2:30 to 3:30 p.m. Dec. 21, in the Red Cross Recreation Hall in the hospital basement.

The Woman's Club of Fort Benning will sponsor a coffee call at the Recreation Hall at 10 a.m. today, featuring a Christmas concert by the 2nd Infantry Division Band and Chorus.

The Fort Benning Chapter of Junior Army Daughters will sponsor Christmas parties on Wards 6-A and 6-B at 2 p.m. Saturday.

The annual Hospital Detachment Children's Party will be held at 2 p.m. Sunday in the Recreation hall.

Also scheduled for Sunday is a Christmas carol tour of the hospital by members of the post's Catholic Youth Organization at 7 p.m.

The staff and volunteer workers of the Red Cross Field Office will sponsor a Christmas party from 3 to 5 p.m. Monday in the Recreation Hall for hospital personnel and invited guests.

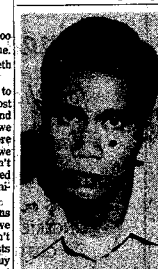
On Tuesday, the 7th Cavalry of the 2nd Infantry Division will sponsor a party in a ward not yet selected.

The U. S. Army Infantry Center Protestant Chapel Choir will sing carols at the hospital at 9 p.m. Wednesday.

Christmas trees will be set up in wards, mess halls, lobbies, Recreation Hall and some of the clinics on Thursday. Trees in the wards will be decorated by patients.

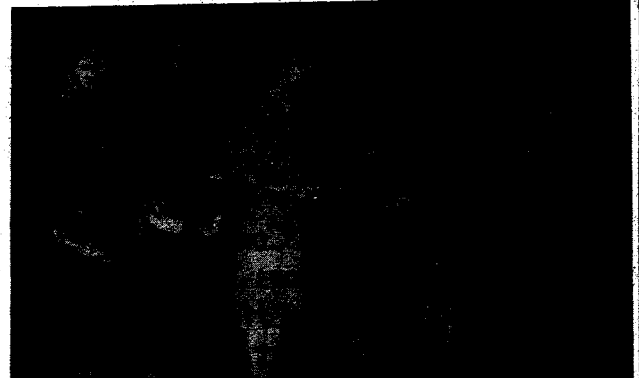
Members of 10 Brownie Scout Troops will sponsor a coffee call at 10 a.m., Dec. 21 in the Recreation Hall.

At 2:30 p.m., Col. William A. Todd Jr. will receive members of the hospital staff and invited guests during the Hospital Commander's Open House in the Recreation Hall.



On Dec. 22, Senior Girl Scout Troop No. 57 will decorate the Christmas trees in the hospital mess halls.

The Sand Hill Chapel Chorus will sing carols at the hospital at 6:30 p.m. Dec. 23.



Santa Claus, assisted by two pixies, will distribute Christmas Stockings to the patients on Christmas Eve. The stockings, made by 27 Intermediate Girl Scout Troops on the post, will contain gifts furnished by civic organizations throughout the surrounding community.

The gifts were collected by the local American Red Cross chapters of Columbus, West Point and Phenix City. The stockings were stuffed by Senior Girl Scout Troop No. 98 of the post.

Selected patients will make long distance calls to their homes on Christmas Day. This activity was made possible by a donation of $30 by the Multiflora Garden Club of Columbus. Patients who will make the calls will be selected by official hospital personnel.

TSB S-3 . . . Capt. Herman G. Misajon recently assumed the duties of The Student Brigade S-3, succeeding Maj. Herbert D. Stegmeier who is currently assigned to Fort Sam Houston, Tex. Capt. Misajon was TSB personnel officer before assuming his present position.

Hold First Coffee Here

Officer candidate wives of the 52nd Company, 5th Battalion, Student Brigade, held their first coffee in the company dayroom recently.

Honored guests were Mrs. Royal Reynolds Jr., wife of Brig. Gen. Reynolds, assistant commandant of The Infantry School; Mrs. Otto R. Koch Jr., wife of Col. Koch, Student Brigade commander; Mrs. George P. McLendon, wife of Lt. Col. McLendon, 5th Student Battalion commander, and Mrs. Dratie A. Miller Jr., Mrs. Willie O. Carr, and Mrs. Ray L. Sandlin, wives of the 52nd Company tactical officers.

Presiding was Mrs. Edward Vaughn Jr., wife of Capt. Vaughn, company commander.

After coffee, served by hostesses, Mrs. Jack Stewart, Mrs. Ian Shearer, Mrs. Ronald Aljets, and Mrs. Joseph Drew, a briefing on the Officer Candidate School was given by Capt. Vaughn.

Wives were then escorted by the tactical officers on a tour of the candidates' rooms.

Following a talk by Mrs. Carr on written invitations, an election of officers was held.

Voted in were: chairman, Mrs. Martin Andree; co-chairman, Mrs. Richard Ebersole; hospitality chairman, Mrs. Martin Craft; treasurer, Mrs. Aljets, and publicity chairman, Mrs. Donald Kimsey.

Activities on the agenda include future coffees and the Eleventh Week Party which is to be held Dec. 15.

Chapel Women To Hear Reading By Mrs. Waldrop

A Christmas reading by Mrs. John L. Waldrop will be featured at a meeting of the Fort Benning Infantry Center Protestant Women of the Chapel at 9:30 a.m. Dec. 19 at the Religious Education Center, Bldg. 2605.

Mrs. Waldrop, who will present "Only the Heart Can Celebrate" by Margaret Lee Runbeck, is director of religious education on the post.

Mrs. W. G. Freeman, will give the devotional and direct the group in singing Christmas carols.

Hostesses will be Mrs. V. R. Reyes and Mrs. Freeman.

Woodyard Home Site Of Coffee

The home of Mrs. Jean K. Woodyard Jr., was the scene of a recent coffee for the ladies of the Headquarters and Associated Arms Groups, Command and Staff Department at The Infantry School.

Garlands of evergreens framing the doorways and stairs accentuated the Christmas decorations throughout the house.

The coffee table was covered with a white linen cloth, with holly leaves on the sides. An arrangement of "snow" covered branches in a base of massed red ornaments centered the table.

Finger sandwiches, fruit cake, cookies and assorted candies were served with coffee, tea and holiday punch.

Mrs. Sydney E. Sacerdote, Mrs. James O. Jones, Mrs. Norman I. Shapira and Mrs. Victor A. Kleber poured.

Miss Ann Nebille was the guest of her sister, Mrs. Clinton D. Harvey.

Schools Close On Wednesday

Fort Benning Children's Schools will observe Christmas holidays from Dec. 20 through Jan. 2, according to officials.

The last day of school, Dec. 19, will be a full session.

Regal Giving Adds Spirit And Joy to the Holidays

Do you have an extravagant streak?

Don't deplore it. Extravagance is the gesture which turns a limited supply of dollars into an unlimited act of love. A truly extravagant nature is as rare as a 20th-century king.

Like all other arts, the art of extravagance takes talent — yet has certain learnable techniques. Here are some suggestions on choosing gifts with a regal touch.

Learn from your mate. A man's idea of extravagance often differs from a woman's. Both tend to find the other's extravagant gesture a little hard to understand — at first.

High on the list of women's perplexities about men is: "Why does he spend so much on a little wisp of feathers or lace for me and ignore all those beautiful leather handbags?" High on the list of men's bewilderments about women is: "Why does she go to so much trouble with that wonderful beef tenderloin for guests, set the table with good china and glassware — then spoil everything with poor refreshments?"

The moral: Each can learn a lot by agreeing that men are often natural experts in one department — women in another.

Buy the best of a small item, rather than the cheapest grade of a large one. Showman Billy Rose said that if he only had a dollar with which to buy his wife a Christmas gift, he wouldn't try to get something which looked like $1.98. Instead, he'd buy a single bar of soap — so that she'd feel like a queen while bathing.

Find a unique — or unusual — version of a common item. If Uncle Harry is crazy about contract bridge, you know he loves playing cards and owns several packs of the ordinary variety. But try scouring antique shops to find him an antique pack — or a very unusual set.

Double up on your gifts. Instead of just buying someone a handbag, include a compact — or a gift certificate to her favorite store. A tie-clasp is a thoughtful accompaniment to a tie, a cigarette lighter to a carton of cigarettes, a tobacco pouch and a humidor to a pipe.

A "bouquet" of wash cloths can be used as part of the gift wrapping for a set of towels. For a new pot or pan — include a small package of appropriate spices: chives and tarragon for a fish mold; rosemary, onion powder, bay leaf — or countless others, for a stewpot.

Make it a luxury. Remember your disappointment as a child when you received gifts of clothing? You knew that during the year, if you needed a sweater, you'd get a sweater. Part of the fun of receiving a gift is the glee of owning something not ordinarily in your budget.

Keep it useful. A useful item needn't be useless. If it is, it's not a luxury — it's a waste. So keep in mind the basic needs of your recipient. Thus, instead of giving mom a dust-gathering figurine, why not treat her to some gleaming stainless steel casserole dishes? They are not only useful, but because stainless is easier to clean than light, cheaper materials — it will save her work all year long.

Personalize it. Show someone a group photograph and odds are he'll look at himself first. Face it: everybody's convinced he's pretty important. So, whenever possible, personalize your gift. Maybe it lends itself to monogramming.

Or take an outstanding event in a person's life and buy a tiny symbolic charm commemorating it. Did your sister just graduate? Pick up a tiny golden diploma for her bracelet. Did Dad recently bowl a 200 game? Wouldn't he like bowling ball cuff links?

Make it easy to care for. Be sure that what you give is a gift — not a chore. Easy-to-wash, not-too-fragile materials are best. Otherwise, when your recipient is picking up the pieces, polishing the metal or coaxing the dirt from the fabric — the thought of you and your "bright ideas" will dominate.

To go one step further, choose a gift which can easily be repaired or added to at some future time. If it's fine china, buy open stock from reputable dealers — the kind who advertise their wares and stand behind their products.

Wrap it with flair. You can't tell a book by its cover, but a pretty cover makes you want to open the book. A gaily-wrapped package with a fanciful ribbons can add glamour to any gift. There are many inexpensive materials on the market, or if you're not a do-it-yourselfer, your favorite store will do a masterful job at a nominal price.

Pay a compliment to your recipient by your choice of a present. If he says he's determined to see Paris, come what may, give him language records — telling him you know that, one way or another, he's going to make it.

If you have an intellectual teen-ager on your list give him a serious, authoritative grown-up book on oceanography, rockets, or whatever interests him — not a splashy popularization fit only for "little kids." If in doubt, ask the most intelligent-looking salesman in the bookstore.

A dance at Brat Barracks will kick off the 1963 membership drive of the Fort Benning Catholic Youth Organization on Dec. 30.

The Benning CYO has about 40 members. Officers are: Jim Wein, president; Mike Cerrone, vice-president; Lloyd Heekin, secretary; Bill Higgins, treasurer. Jack Guernsey, Kathy Gueymard, and Joffe Gueymard serve as religious, social and physical chairmen, respectively.

Last Sunday morning the club had a communion breakfast. They are going Christmas caroling at St. Francis Hospital on Dec. 16.

Other projects of the CYO have been the making of Advent wreathes and baptismal robes. A Halloween dance to which all the Columbus CYO's were invited was a highly successful get-together. The members are now trying to get a bowling team started.

This organization, which meets every Sunday night at Brat Barracks at eight o'clock, is open to all Catholic high school students. Father James A. Peterman is the adult sponsor.

Many thanks to all the teenagers who gave up so much of their valuable time to prepare "The Creation," which we saw last weekend. The water-ballet was lovely, and everyone did a fine job.

The Junior Army Daughters of America celebrated their eighth anniversary Saturday at the December Luncheon. After a business meeting, including the voting for the Christmas Court which will not be announced until the dance, the girls were entertained with a program. Christmas carols, arranged by Sharon Estes, Shirley Borrom, Earle Wilder and Sandy Duke, were sung by the group.

Members of JADA are reminded that if they wish to have a part in the club's Christmas charity project they must have their food donations at Linda Taft's house (302-C Lumpkin Road) by Saturday.

All girls who are planning to go caroling with JADA the night of Dec. 20 should be at the Main Post Protestant Chapel at 6:30 p.m.

JADA's may buy invitations from Karen Price at Pacelli, Sandy Roche at Baker, and Sara Walters at Columbus for the Christmas Dance to be held Dec. 22 at the Main Officers Open Mess.

Tomorrow this organization will hold parties on two wards at Martin Hospital.

The "Abstracts" will be back to play for you at the Brat Barracks semi-formal dance on Dec. 29.

Supper Club Site Of Engineer Ball

The appearance of 2nd Lt. Royal Colson and his wife, Anita, doing an exhibition of Latin American dancing, highlighted the 151st Engineer Group Ball, held at the Supper Club of the Main Officers' Open Mess recently.

Honored guests at the ball were Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center, and Mrs. Harrell; Brig. Gen. Royal Reynolds, assistant commandant of The Infantry School, and Mrs. Reynolds; Brig. Gen. Charles Billingslea, commanding general of the 2nd Infantry Division, and Mrs. Billingslea; Col. William A. McKee, post Chief of Staff, and Mrs. McKee; Col. R. S. Crandall, post engineer, and Mrs. Crandall; Col. A. L. Parsons Jr., chairman of the Engineer Committee, and Mrs. Parsons.

Highlight of the decorations was the familiar red Engineer Castle, 12 feet by 24 feet in size, and illuminated by red lighting at the entrance to the Supper Club.

The project officer in charge of the ball was Capt. Licto P. Dipietro, executive officer of the 577th Engineer Battalion, a subordinate unit of the 151st Engineer Group.

Supper was by candle light. Scale models of all types of equipment used in the Engineer Corps, approximately 40 in all, and scale models of bridges used and built by the Engineers provided table decorations.

Hosts and hostesses for the formal affair were Col. and Mrs. Mahlon E. Gates, commanding officer of the 151st Engineer Group; Lt. Col. and Mrs. William K. Jordan, commanding officer of the 577th Engineer Battalion (Const); and Lt. Col. and Mrs. Felix R. Moss, commanding officer of the 806th Engineer Battalion (Const).

Evergreens, A Necessity In Christmas Decorating

Achieving distinctive and beautiful effects with Christmas evergreens is easier than you may think, even if as a decorator you are greener than the materials you will be working with.

For large wreaths, consider the fine, graceful, gray-green foliage of white pine, or a blackish-green fir that doesn't shed. English ivy is perfect for making flat wreaths, as are the heart-shaped green or bronzegalax leaves, which are especially fine for table decorations.

Wreaths, boughs or table decorations can be given an especially festive sparkle with push-button ease. The trick is accomplished with new spray enamels that dry in minutes.

Cranberries, textile pieces, crepe paper, cardboard, nuts, fruits and cellophane — plus imagination — are some of the other ingredients you can use to make displays more dazzling.

Decorating starts at Saint Nick's doorway — the fireplace. A gleaming plate glass mirror over it provides the frame for sprays of holly tied with bright red ribbon, and boughs of white and silver bring tasteful beauty.

If you have no fireplace, a large mirror centered over a bookcase, serving chest or long table (to hold packages or Christmas cards) will "center" your room decorations and provide a focal point—while reflecting Christmas from every view.

English holly, with its glistening foliage and splendid large red berries, is a most attractive leaf for large wreaths outside your home. To brighten up your door — and perhaps to distinguish it from similar doors in houses next to yours — coat of bright red paint makes a good beginning.

Then, either hang the usual garland, or experiment with special treatments; (1) an A-shaped figure of greens cut out of cardboard to resemble the silhouette of a Christmas tree; (2) an overhead mantle of spruce or hemlock (fine for outdoors but impractical inside the house because of their excessive shedding) or (3), a display of nuts, pine needles and fruit mounted on a panel board.

To create a figure A, cut a squat pyramid in the form of a tree. To this backing, sew or wire evergreens so that the cardboard is completely covered. Top it off with the addition of small cones or berries —or even mistletoe.

To mount a mantle of greens over the doorway, use thin lengths of wire braided together to hold the greens in their individual places. When mounting it, be sure to keep a firm grip on a stepladder. A variation on such overhead decorations is an old hula-hoop, wound with greens and decorations, mounted flush with the porch ceiling. A string of colored lights gives it drama by night.

To make the panel display from a board, as mentioned above, drive nails in from the back side of it long enough to hold fruits or gourds. You can also glue nuts in position, with pine needles as a background. Again, cover the entire board with your decoration pieces. Dime-store picture-hangers (the kid with adhesive) can then be used to attach the whole frame to the door without injuring the finish.

For simpler Christmas doorways, wire cones together in a pendant cluster, adding evergreen branches to cover the wires. Or tie three small bells to a door frame with a bow of gay ribbon and a few pine branches. Sleigh bells are ideal.

For window decorations try a candle, a wreath, or a spray of evergreens, remembering, though, how easily window decorations can become overdone and garish. You may like to let your child try water paints for a "stained glass window" effect — or try them yourself.

For your Christmas table use a long tray upon which you put ten candles of various heights, ranging in color from deep scarlet to pure white. Space springs of holberries for a finishing touch.

Let whatever table arrangements you prepare be low enough not to obscure views of faces or inhibit free conversation. And whichever way your creative bent carries you, use plenty of color and keep the effect harmonious. Too much unrelieved green becomes monotonous in artificial light; avoid this monotony by spraying on a touch of color. According to the experts, pale gold, silver, or coppertone spray enamels are perfect for holiday wreaths, pine boughs or miniature trees. For traditional effects, sprays of white, green, or red colors are ideal.

As you add decorative cheer to your halls, be sure to include plenty of mistletoe. An old custom says that whoever steals a kiss from beneath the mistletoe has to pick one of its berries—and you certainly don't want to run out of berries!

Battle Gear Ready, STRAC Unit Moves Out in Crisis

It began late Saturday night. Units of the 1st Armored Division at Fort Hood, Tex., a Continental Army Command unit, switched lights on. People tumbled out of bed. Combat gear was packed in duffle bags, water-proof bags and combat packs.

Troops marched to the Fort Hood motor pools to make last minute adjustments on their weapons, tanks, artillery pieces, and vehicles. Men and machines participating in a current exercise, Three Pairs, from the field. All training exercises were cancelled.

In the 501st Administration Company, as in other units, men began working around the clock. Off-post personnel slept on barracks floors between shifts. Lights burned in the division staff sections throughout the night. Tension mounted.

Monday night, Oct. 22, the 1st Armored Division, as well as the rest of the country, heard the words of the President, "... I have directed that the following initial steps be taken immediately."

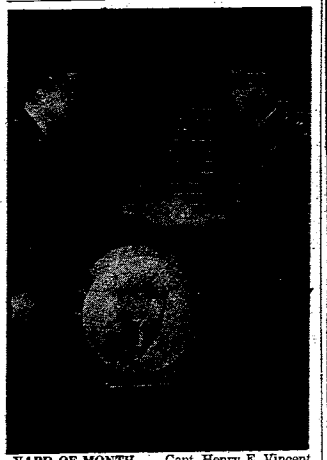
As these words were being flashed to the world, the men of the 1st Armored Division stepped up the already torrid pace.

The railheads at the south end of Fort Hood became the center of activity and the focal point of attention. Dazzling floodlights illuminated the scene of furious activity.

Tanks, armored personnel carriers, trucks, 105-mm, 155-mm and 8-inch howitzers were loaded on flat cars. Chocks were jammed under the tracks of the vehicles and hammered into place. Green tape covered all vehicle markings. The insides of the tanks and tracked artillery pieces bristled with the points of rounds. They were primed, piled, adjusted and ready to fire.

The men filing onto the trains carried their weapons with them.

Under the cover of darkness, the division moved out for Fort Stewart, Ga.



When the 1st Armored Division was dubbed "the young division in a hurry," they didn't realize then how hurried it would be. Reactivated in February of this year to meet the Berlin crisis, it now rushed to meet another crisis in Cuba.

The intervening weeks since that October night have been a test of the training, ingenuity, skill, and courage of every man. The results of this test are best evidence in the words of President Kennedy when he traveled to Fort Stewart to inspect the division and personally thank the soldiers.

He said that the men and their comrades in arms are "the keystone of the arch of freedom." He also expressed to Maj. Gen. Ralph E. Haines Jr., the division commander and the more than 15,000 officers and enlisted men, the nation's appreciation "for your past service and most especially your present actions during the difficult period of the last four or five weeks."

Less than a year ago, most of the men of Old Ironsides were civilians. Today they are a part of the elite STRAC, Strategic Army Corps — a tested, tried and combat ready member of the modern Army.

Four-Star General Hamlett Visits With Indianheads

By George W. Ashba

With all the pomp and ceremony accorded a four-star general, the United States Army's Vice Chief of Staff was welcomed to the 2nd Infantry Division Tuesday.

ARRIVING, SALUTED BY SGT. MAJ. BROWN

At the Division Headquarters Review Field, Gen. Barksdale Hamlett was rendered a 17-gun salute while he trooped the line with Capt. Gilbert Y. Ellis, commander of the 87th Infantry's Company C.

Coming to the division from Main Post, Gen. Hamlett was met by Brig. Gen. Charles Billingslea, 2nd Division commander, as he stepped from an HU-1B helicopter at Wetherby Field. The four-star general was accompanied by his aide, Maj. A. A. Davis, and by Maj. J. L. Davis of The Infantry Center. The party was then driven to the review field for ceremonies.

At the conclusion of the honor ceremony, Gen. Hamlett and his party were taken to Gen. Billingslea's office for a 30-minute briefing. Those in attendance besides Generals Hamlett and Billingslea were Brig. Gen. Stanley L. Harding, assistant division commander; Col. John T. Corley, assistant division commander; Col. Louis A. Kumrig Jr., division chief of staff; Lt. Col. Jack E. Compton, G-1; Lt. Col. Richards O. Stewart, G-2; Lt. Col. James M. Connell, G-3; and Lt. Col. Edwin T. O'Donnell, G-4.

Following coffee and refreshments, Gen. Hamlett met and talked to the Division Artillery commander, the battle group commanders, the Division Trains commander, the deputy brigade commander and the Separate Battalions commanders.

After a brief drive through the 2nd Division area, Gen. Hamlett returned to Division Headquarters where he boarded a helicopter which took him to his quarters at Marshall House on Main Post.

Italian-Born Col. Sacerdote Takes Command at Artillery

By DivArty PIO

An Italian-born colonel and linguist who once helped train elements of the Chinese army in India, has taken command of 2nd Infantry Division Artillery.

Col. Sydney E. Sacerdote, who was born in Turin, Italy, and speaks Italian and French in addition to English, served in the Burma campaign in the China - Burma - India theater from 1942 through 1945. During this period, he helped train a pack artillery battalion of the Chinese army's 38th Division stationed in India. Col. Sacerdote also was the combat liaison officer to the artillery units of the Chinese 38th and 22nd Divisions during their struggle with the Japanese.

Began In Reserves

Originally commissioned as a second lieutenant in the Army Reserve, Col. Sacerdote was called to active duty as a company officer in Civilian Conservation Corps camps in the Missouri-Kansas district from 1934 until 1938. The CCC, a U. S. federal agency pushed through Congress in ten days during the famed "100 Days" of the Franklin D. Roosevelt administration, was established to furnish work and training for unemployed young men and to advance a nationwide conservation program building up the country's natural resources. Commanded by military officers, the CCC had an average enrolled strength of 300,000 during its tenure as a government agency.

Integrated Into the Regular Army in 1948, Col. Sacerdote is a graduate of Field Artillery School, the Army Forces Staff College, and the Army War College. In addition to his instruction in India during World War II, and his work with the CCC, Col. Sacerdote brings with him to Division Artillery

Tuberculosis Drive Features Unparalleled Division Support

By Colin Higgins

"Fabulous", "Fantastic", "Far better than ever before," are just some of the superlatives being tossed around the 2nd Division this week in referring to the unparalleled support of the Columbus Area Tuberculosis Association Fund Drive.

Over 170 canisters were distributed throughout the division just before last month's payday. These were largely located in mess halls, day rooms, orderly rooms and small clubs.

The first reports began arriving pay day afternoon. Combat Support Company, 1st Infantry, requested more canisters as their original two were already overfilled. The company's first sergeant, 1st Sgt. Joseph N. Volker, totaled the then collected money to an unprecedented $54.

Headquarters Company, 122nd Signal Battalion, was the next to call for more canisters. Discontented with the regular small plastic cylinder they painted a one gallon pickle jar and began steadily to fill that.

Mrs. Marianna Gallops, the chairman of the TB Association, says the 2nd Division has "gone over the top" in their support of the TB crusade.

The money collected will be used in association with the nationwide Christmas Seal Campaign to help in the fight against tuberculosis. Health, education, research, case find-

Christmas Display Contest Featured Among Units; to Be Judged Thursday

By Colin Higgins

A large five-point shining star will rise over the division's parade field Wednesday, stay overhead for approximately five minutes and then sink slowly until it disappears behind the trees.

This is just one of the special effects planned for the 2nd Division Annual Christmas Carol Community Sing which will be held at the Division Headquarters Parade Field (Marne Field) beginning at 7 p.m. and to which all post personnel and the general public are cordially invited.

The highlight of the program will be when Brig. Gen. Charles Billingslea, division commander, presses a switch and lights up all the Christmas lights in the division. The public will then be invited to take a bus tour and see the Christmas lights and displays throughout the division.

The program will begin with a serenade by the 2nd Division Band followed by an invocation by Chap. (Capt.) William J. Barragy, the assistant division chaplain.

Everyone will then be asked to participate in a group caroling of "O Little Town of Bethlehem" and "The First Noel". The division chaplain, Chap. (Lt. Col.) James H. Fiser, will read the Christmas Story and while he is reading, the star attached to a helicopter from the 2nd Aviation Company, will make its way across the heavens.

"Hark the Herald Angels Sing," and "It Came Upon A Midnight Clear" will be sung by everyone followed by a concert of special Christmas music rendered by the 2nd Division Band directed by CWO Darrell G. Blumm, the 2nd Division Chorus directed by Sp4 Norman D. Smith, and the Combined Choir directed by Sgt. Lester B. Gibbs. The organist will be Sp4 Morice W. Horne.

During the community singing of "Silent Night" all lights around the headquarters will be turned off. Gen. Billingslea, after giving a short Christmas message, will push a switch which will turn on all the Christmas lights around the headquarters and, by means of a radio net, throughout the whole division.

Everyone will then join in

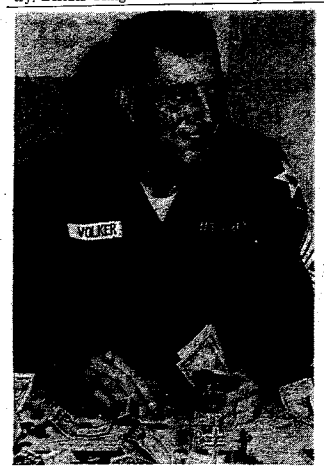
Col. Stewart Is Assigned To G-2 Post

An officer who was born in Walter Reed Hospital, went to elementary school at Fort Benning and celebrated twenty years of active service Thursday, has been assigned as the new division assistant chief of staff, G-2.

Lt. Col. Richards O. Stewart, new G-2 (Intelligence) officer, served as the deputy commander of the 87th Infantry before taking over his new position after the departure of Lt. Col. John B. Wine.

Graduating from Officers Candidate School at Fort Benning in 1944, Col. Stewart served during World War II in Europe with the 14th Armored Division and, later with the 3rd Infantry and 16th Infantry in Berlin.



In 1949 he served with G-2 at the Pentagon and was then transferred to the Eighth U.S.

Applauding His Outstanding Performance

The 2nd Division's Soldier-of-the-year for 1959 and 1961, (R), is presented an Army Commendation Medal by Brig. Gen. Charles Billingslea, division commander. A highly-trained infantryman (insert), PSgt. Richard B. Alford, is a platoon sergeant in Company D, 9th Infantry. Besides being selected twice as top soldier in the division, Sgt. Alford was an honor graduate of the Division's Noncommissioned Officer Academy in 1957, after which he became an instructor there. He set an all-time record at the Third U. S. Army NCO Academy by winning two of the three top honors given by the institution.

ings, rehabilitation and patient services are some of the areas into which the money will flow.

Reports from the TB Association office in Columbus are that 5,068 letters with Christmas Seals were mailed to military personnel at Fort Benning and the 2nd Division with 758 replies with money. To date a total of $10,550.25 has been raised in the overall campaign with $1,366.80 coming from letters from military personnel.

The coin cannisters will remain in their locations until shortly after the Christmas Holidays according to G-1. Companies are urged to support the TB campaign to the fullest to help the Columbus Area TB Association make the area a healthier community for all.

with the group caroling of "O Tannenbaum". Through the use of black lighting the lyrics will be displayed in front of the stands, readable to all.

A benediction by Chaplain (Capt.) Robert C. Harlee, 9th Infantry chaplain, will end the formal ceremony but all are invited to the refreshment stand where coffee and cake will be served.

Five buses will also be leaving the area to take parties of sightseers on a tour of the Christmas lighting displays throughout the division. The tour is to begin in the Sand Hill area, extend through Kelley Hill and conclude back at division headquarters.

The displays, which all units large or small are encouraged to build, will be judged on Thursday for their good taste, ingenuity and originality and on the effectiveness of their use of lighting and sound. The contest is an effort to stimulate interest and to insure appropriate outside Christmas Decorations throughout the division during the Holiday Season.

Competition amongst the units is expected to be keen and prizes will be awarded to the winners and runners-up in both categories; the battle group and large size units, and the company and small size units.

All preparations are subject to change in the event of inclement weather.

an array of additional command experience.

In 1954 he was assigned as the Chief of Army Section, Military Assistance Advisory Group in Rome, Italy. Following that, in 1957, he went to Fort Sill, Okla., where he was the Deputy Director, Department of Tactics and Combined Arms for the U.S. Artillery and Missile School.

Also at Sill

Still at Fort Sill, Col. Sacerdote commanded the 41st Artillery Group in 1958, and was Deputy Commander of the 2nd Artillery Brigade in 1959. In 1960 the colonel was assigned as the Artillery School's Deputy Director of Instruction, an assignment which he held until August 1960 when he arrived at Fort Benning as the Chief, Associate Arms Group, Command and Staff Department, The Infantry School.

On temporary duty with the division from The Infantry School, Col. Sacerdote arrived on Oct. 22, 1962.

Col. Sacerdote's wife, the former Yvonne Olson, of Fargo, N. D., enjoys preparing Japanese flower arrangements, and frequently does work with the Humane Society.

A Captain Is Promoted At 26th Inf.

By 26th Infantry PIO

The commanding officer of Company E, 26th Infantry was promoted recently to the rank of captain.

The promotion took place in the office of Col. Arlin J. Kehe, 26th Infantry commander. All company commanders and first sergeants of the battle group, were present at the ceremony.

Capt. Ronald R. Coleman, who recently joined the 26th, previously served with the 1st Airborne Battle Group, 505th Infantry, Mainz, Germany.

He is a graduate of Texas Christian University, Fort Worth, Tex., where he received a Bachelor of Science Degree and completed the Reserve Officer Training Corps program. Capt. Coleman entered the Army in August 1958.

He completed Airborne and Ranger training at Fort Benning before being assigned to Europe and duty with the 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 48th Infantry at Worms, Germany. During his duty with the 48th, he earned the Expert Infantryman's Badge.

Orders to Korea Come for 1st's Assistant S-2

By 1st Infantry PIO

The assistant S-2 officer, 1st Infantry, recently received orders for assignment to the 8th U. S. Army in Korea.

Lt. Leonard G. Katsarsky graduated from the United States Military Academy, West Point, N. Y. in June 1959.

A native of Battle Creek, Mich., he served within the 2nd Infantry Division as assistant S-3 at Brigade Headquarters. He has also served with the 9th Infantry, 11th Infantry and the 38th Infantry, now serving in Germany.

Prior to his assignment to the "Always First" he served as executive officer of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 38th Infantry.

He has served within the 1st Infantry as S-2 officer and more recently as assistant S-2 officer.

Lt. Katsarsky has been awarded the Parachutist Badge.

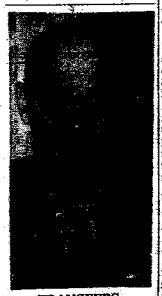
At Artillery Ball

Gen. Harding Addresses Post Artillerymen

Artillery officers stationed at Fort Benning celebrated their 187th birthday with the Annual Artillery Ball recently in the Supper Club of the Main Officers Open Mess.

Acting as hosts for the evening and heading the receiving line were Col. S. E. Sacerdote commanding officer, 2nd Infantry Division Artillery and Mrs. Sacerdote. As guests of the artillery for the evening, and also in the receiving line, were Brig. Gen. S. L. Harding, assistant division commander, Col. John T. Corley, assistant division commander, Col. Louis A. Kunzig Jr., chief of staff, and their ladies.

A keynote address was given by Gen. Harding, who congratulated all members of all artillery commands on the post for their accomplishments during the recent crisis in reaching a state of readiness to perform any mission to which the unit might be assigned. He particularly recognized the valuable contributions made by the officers who, on short notice, had been assigned temporarily to the 2nd Infantry Division Artillery to bring the unit up to strength. In conclusion, Gen. Harding told the gathering it was incumbent upon each to use the intervening time between now and the next alert to become even more skilled, competent and ready for commitment.



The 276 artillery officers and their ladies present for the ball represented the Artillery Committee of The Infantry School under chairmanship of Lt. Col. James E. Echols; 10th Artillery, commanded by Lt. Col. Wallace E. McClain; 12th Artillery, commanded by Lt. Col. Terence W. Huck; 15th Artillery, commanded by Lt. Col. John M. Evans; 17th Artillery, commanded by Lt. Col. Francis P. Sheridan; 27th Artillery, commanded by Lt. Col. James D. Clark, 37th Artillery, commanded by Lt. Col. John E. Connolly; 38th Artillery, commanded by Lt. Col. Francis A. Chance Jr.; student members of the Infantry Career and Airborne courses for the USAIS, and members of the 2nd Aviation Company.

The tables for dinner were set with floral displays on white linen cloth. Ribbons of the artillery colors bisected the length of the tables. Miniature red cannons, made by Capt. Thomas D. Carnes, 10th Artillery were used as place cards to facilitate seating of the guests.

After the dinner, a short program was presented. A humorous opening tableau, "I Am the Artillery," was depicted by Capt. Phillip S. Hurd who is assigned to the Artillery committee, USAIS. A skit satirizing a course of instruction at Fort Sill was portrayed by Col. Echols as instructor, Col. McClain, Col. Huck, Col Evans, Col. Sheridan, Col. Clark, Col. Connolly and Col. Chance as the students.

Col. S. E. Sacerdote awarded certificates to Brig. Gen. S. L. Harding appointing him as an "Esteemed Gunner" in the artillery. Honorary Gunners certificates were presented to Col. John T. Corley and Col. Louis A. Kunzig Jr. Mrs. Florence Harding, wife of Gen. Harding, together with the wives of all officers departing by Jan. 31, 1963, were presented "Gunners Mate First Class" certificates.

Lt. Col. Preston Leaves 7th Inf. For Conquerors

By 87th Infantry PIO

Lt. Col. William D. Preston, former deputy battle group commander of the 7th Infantry, has been assigned to the 87th Infantry Conquerors' as deputy commanding officer.

He succeeds Lt. Col. Richards O. Stewart, who has become the new division G-2 (intelligence) oficer.

Prior to his assignment to Fort Benning, Col. Preston was assigned with the G-1 section at Fort Shafter, Hawaii. From 1957 to 1956 he was the inspector general with Headquarters, 4th U.S. Army, Fort Sam Houston, Tex.

Col. Preston has been in five campaigns, and has been awarded the Silver Star, Bronze Star Medal and the Belgian Fourragere.

Born in Lexington, Ky., he is in his 20th year of military service.

Medal of Honor For This. . .

During the latter part of 1950 Sgt. John A. Pittman of Company C, 23rd Infantry, 2nd Infantry Division, was leading his squad in a counterattack near Kunjangdong, Korea. Despite wounds and heavy enemy fire he continued to lead his men against the hostile strong point. An enemy grenade was thrown in the midst of the squad. Without hesitation, Sgt. Pittman threw himself on the grenade and absorbed its burts with his body. When a medical aid man reached him, his first request was to be informed as to how many of his men were hurt. For this action Sgt. Pittman was awarded the Medal of Hogor.

Going to Viet Nam

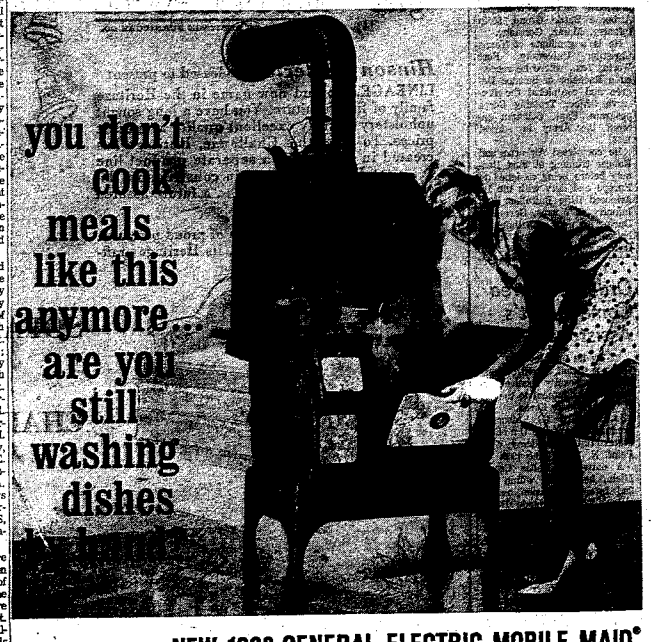
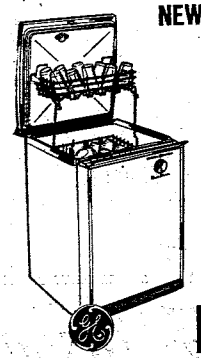
The 87th Infantry's S-2 (intelligence) officer, Capt. Charles R. Kelly, was recently reassigned to Viet Nam.

Capt. Kelly came to the 87th Infantry in September of this year.

87th Officer Scheduled to Attend His 6th Service School Since '60



By 87th Infantry PIO



Lt. Leroy E. Jones, of Company D, 87th Infantry has attended five service schools since his induction into the service in 1960, and is presently on orders to the sixth.

After basic and advanced individual training, Lt. Jones quickly followed with a succession of Army schools which included the NCO Academy, Officer Candidate Ranger, Airborne and Jungle Warfare School which he completed this year. He is now on orders to Flight School at Camp Wolters, Tex.

Lt. Jones graduated from Tennessee State University in Nashville and taught school at Southern University at Baton Rouge, La., for four years.

Since coming to the 87th Infantry, Lt. Jones has participated in many athletic events including swimming, football and basketball. In the last division swim meet he captured three firsts—the 50 meter free-style, the 100 meter free-style and the relay.

23rd High In Club Two Tourneys

By 23rd Infantry PIO

During the long Thanksgiving weekend Service Club two conducted small games tournaments in pinochle, chess, pool, tennis, and checkers, with the winners announced this week and presented trophies. Of the five trophies presented in each individual tournament, three went to members of the 23rd Infantry.

In the chess tournament, Pvt. Yuri Koral, Company E, 23rd, again proved his skill at the game by taking the event in close competition. Another member of Company E, Pvt. Harlen Griffin, took the checkers title after losing out in the chess competition to Koral. The third winner from the 23rd Infantry, Pvt. Jesus Perez, captured the pool trophy, and received the award, along with the other winners, from Maj. Daniel F. French, representing the special services and Miss Madeline Parks, Service Club director.

Other winners include Sp4 William White, combat support company, 9th Infantry, who proved himself a better pinochle player than his competitors. The tennis champion, Sp4 Gerald Garruth, represented the 702nd Ordnance Battalion.

Tournaments are conducted each Sunday at the Service Club, with prizes for all winners.

New 1st Sgt. At 9th Inf.

By 9th Infantry PIO

Company A, 9th Infantry recently acquired a new top sergeant, 1st Sgt. John Mathews.

Sgt. Mathews came to the 9th from Camp Paige, Korea, where he served as first sergeant of Company C, 19th Infantry for 13 months.

He enlisted in the Army in 1935 at Birmingham, Ala., at the age of 19. He took basic combat training at Ft. Benning and earned the Combat Infantryman's Badge while serving with the 3rd Infantry Division in Germany during World War II.

He saw more combat service in Korea in 1950, and among his awards and decorations are the Army Commendation Medal and the Good Conduct Medal.

Sgt. Mathews attended the Senior Non-Commissioned Officer Academy at The Infantry School, Ft. Benning, in 1960 and was promoted to his present rank March 7, 1961.

'Always First' Gives Four New Silver Bars at Hqs. Ceremonies

By 1st Infantry PIO

Four 1st Infantry officers are now wearing the insignia of their new rank.

Lieutenants James R. Davis, Edison E. Scholes, Gerald Lord and Guy M. Lovelace were recently promoted to the rank of first lieutenant in ceremonies held at battle group headquarters.

Lt. Col. Jack Samson, deputy battle group commander pinned the silver bars on the lapels of the new first lieutenants.

Present to congratulate the newly promoted officers were Major William W. Woodside, 1st Infantry S-1; Capt. Lowell L. Ballard Jr., commander of Company A; Capt. Robert Sabnabria, Company D commander; and Capt. Thomas J. McAniff, Company A commander.

All four officers graduated from North Georgia College, Dahlonega, Ga., in the class of June, 1961.

Top Div. Soldiers Seen by Marine

Three 2nd Division Soldiers-of-the-Month, including the recently selected November soldier, were congratulated at division headquarters recently by generals of two services.

Capping an unusual ceremony in the office of Brig. Gen. Charles Billingslea, division commander, visiting Marine Corps Brig. Gen. J. C. Miller Jr. congratulated the division's October Soldier, Sgt. William J. Tyler, himself a former Marine.

Visiting Division

The Marine Corps general, visiting the division in conjunction with amphibious training classes being held here, serves as commander of the Landing Force Training Unit, U. S. Naval Amphibious Base, Little Creek, near Norfolk, Va.

Together with the division's commander, Brig. Gen. Miller presented the three distinguished 2nd Division Soldiers with their special citations.

Present as latest division Soldier-of-the-Month was Sp5 John G. Foight, a helicopter crew chief with the 2nd Aviation Company. A native of Murrysville, Pa., the specialist has been with the 2nd Aviation Company for a year and a half. He is a graduate of the Aircraft Mechanics School at Fort Rucker, Ala., which he attended following basic training at Fort Knox, Ky.

The October soldier, Sgt. Tyler, also serves with the 2nd Aviation Company. He is a flight operations chief. This soldier, a Florida native, is a former Marine, having served a three-year sea-going tour in the Marine Corps prior to joining the Army.

The other Soldier-of-theMonth cited in these ceremonies was Sgt. Clyde R. Steely of the 23rd Infantry. Winner of these honors in September, this soldier serves as a squad leader in Company E, 23rd Infantry. He has spent is entire military career at Fort Benning.

Liberian Army Officer Spent Week With 1st Inf.

LIBERIAN OFFICER SEES EARTH MOVER
PFC T. Stephens (R) Shows Equipment

By 1st Infantry PIO

Departing the 1st Infantry recently was Lt. Arthur Benson, an officer of the Liberian Army, who has spent a one week visit with the unit.

Lt. Benson was presented with a unit crest by Lt. Col. Jack Samson, deputy battle group commander when the lieutenant visited the colonel prior to his departure.

Present to bid farewell to the visiting officer were members of the battle group staff and the company commanders.

Lt. Benson's interests were centered around the tactics and weapons used in the important role played by the infantry in the modern Army.

He was briefed and escorted by Lt. William L. Philpott. The visiting officer observed rifle companies in the night attack, communications training, and had an on-the-job tour of the battle group motor pool.

Hand-to-hand combat interested the visiting officer so much that he joined in the class.

Lt. Benson's real interest lay in the engineer section of the 1st Infantry since he served as an engineer platoon leader in the Liberian Army.

This Division Poses as a Model Assignment for West Pointers

They See How COs Command

Cadets at the U. S. Military Academy, West Point, N. Y., graduating in 1963, recently attended a class entitled "Branch Orientation," touching on various assignments an infantry officer might encounter during his first 20 years of service.

The 2nd Infantry Division, a combat - ready member of the Strategic Army Corps, modeled as a typical assignment a "doughboy" might receive as a company commander.

Pictures showing company commanders on the job in the 2nd Division were shown to the graduating class. Taking them through various duties of these officers was Lt. Col. Charles E. Spragins, senior infantry instructor in the infantry section at West Point.

Of particular interest in this class were three commanders responsibilities. These consisted of a commander conducting a briefing of subordinate leaders during a tactical operation, counselling members of his unit, and inspecting his company.

Posing as model 2nd Division company commanders were Capt. Eugene E. Cross, commander of 9th Infantry's Headquarters Company; and Capt. Everett M. Yon Jr., commander of Company E, 23rd Infantry.

Your Blood Can Save LIVES

Today is the last day that men of the 2nd Infantry Division have a chance to give a pint of their life-giving blood to the American Red Cross Bloodmobile.

The bloodmobile is located at Service Club No. 2, Sand Hill, and will be in operation until 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Those units and their respective quotas in pints of blood to be met today are as follows: Division Artillery 75; 38th Infantry - 125; 7th Cavalry - 75; 23rd Infantry-125; 69th Armor - 75; and 2nd Engineer Battalion - 75.

Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 2nd Infantry Division and 2nd Aviation Company may donate with any units scheduled above.

Those units which donated blood yesterday were: 9th Infantry, Division Trains, 1st Infantry, Division Artillery, 87th Infantry, 122nd Signal Battalion, and 7th Infantry.

For those who wished to donate blood but could not do so at this time, the American National Red Cross Bloodmobile is sponsored by the 2nd Division every other month and you will be notified by your commanding officer when it will be available in your area.

Harmony Church Is Thing Of Beauty for 7th Infantry

By 7th Infantry PIO

"I hope we're here to stay." This is something heard time and again as one makes the rounds through the Harmony Church area, the new and permanent home of the 7th Infantry.

Since being organized over two months ago, requirements have dictated that the battle group be moved from one area to the other within the division. Subsequent to organization, the battle group moved to the 2nd Division marksmanship area and shortly thereafter to the 34th armored barracks. Last week the "Cottonbalers" completed their move to the new block at Harmony Church.

Instantly impressed by their new environment, the men hurried to get "set up" in their living quarters. As soon as everything was organized, scouting parties were formed to inspect the area.

First on the agenda was the old mess hall with the new look. "What happened to the tin trays?" was the first question posed. They have been replaced by plastic ones. Further inspection brought to light additional changes, for example; the roominess of the dining area and the strategic location of the other necessities of the kitchen. Almost a KP's paradise; but not quite.

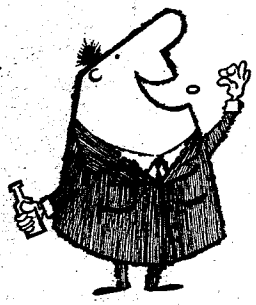
"Look at that new equipment," exclaimed Pvt. Terry Sigmon, battle group clerk. "My own desk and typewriter, fantastic!" This is indicative of the enthusiasm of all the men of the unit. A trip through battle group headquarters, the staff sections, personnel and the remaining barracks brought favorable comments from all sources.

Harmony Church is farther from town than the rest of Fort Benning, but it is definitely one of the exclusive spots on the reservation.

7th Inf. Has Honor Grad.

By 7th Infantry PIO

An honor graduate of the 7th Army Non-commissioned Officer Academy in Europe, comes to the "Cottonbalers" as a scout section leader of Combat Support Company.



SSgt. Wilbur G. Hawthorne arrived at the 7th Infantry from the 12th Cavalry, 3rd Armored Division in Germany.

Sgt. Hawthorne has to his credit the Combat Infantryman's Badge and the Maurice Rose Award which he won while stationed in Germany. That award was won for being the outstanding Soldier-of-the-Month in the 3rd Division for March 1962.

Headquarters 9th Receives Two Officers

By 9th Infantry PIO

Recently arrived at the 9th Infantry from Korea are two new officers, Capt. John J. Cassidy and Lt. Robert M. Collins.

Capt. Cassidy, the new battle group communications officer, came to the 9th after a year of duty with Brigade Headquarters of the 7th Division, Camp Kaiser, Korea, where he served as S-2 officer.

He entered the Army under the conscription program in March 1945 while attending the University of Notre Dame, South Bend, Indiana, and took Basic Combat Training at Fort Gordon, Ga. He completed Airborne School, Airborne Communications School, and Jump Master School at Fort Benning 1947 as a staff sergeant.

Capt. Cassidy spent most of his enlisted service at Fort Bragg, N. C., and upon discharge returned to college, this time at Santa Monica City College at Santa Monica, Calif., his hometown.

He returned to the Army in 1952 and graduated from Officer Candidate School, Ft. Benning in November 1953.

Capt. Cassidy again left the Army in 1956 and returned to Santa Monica, where he served as a reserve officer with Battalion Headquarters of the 253rd Infantry Regiment. While serving with this reserve unit he attended the Associate Infantry Officer Advanced Course at Ft. Benning and in August 1961 returned to active duty with the regular Army and was sent to Korea.

Lt. Collins, the 9th's new assistant adjutant, arrived at the battle group from Seoul, Korea, where he served as executive officer of the Honor Guard Company, 8th U. S. Army Headquarters for over two years.

Lt. Collins graduated from Omaha University, Omaha, Neb., where he majored in history, in 1958.

He participated in the university's Reserve Officer Training Corps program for four years, but since he had completed his junior and senior years of high school at Wentworth Military Academy, Lexington, Mo., he was commissioned a reserve second lieutenant at the end of his sophomore year.

Lt. Collins came on active duty in February 1960. His first assignment was at The Infantry School, Fort Benning, where he completed the Infantry Officer Orientation Course.

Upon completion of this course he was sent to Fort Riley, Kan., and in September 1960 went to Korea.

Ballet Demonstration Hit of Coffee Held at Fort Benning Ballet School

A coffee and ballet demonstration was held in the Girl Scouts' "Little Hut" recently for the parents of students enrolled in the Fort Benning Ballet School. The School is sponsored by the 2nd Infantry Division Officers' Wives Club. Rossie Gilmore of Columbus is the professional instructor employed by the School.

Invitations were sent to the parents of each student to come and meet Rossie Gilmore and to afford them the opportunity of meeting other parents. Mrs. Ralph Hughett, Dancing School chairman; her assistant, Mrs. James Peabody; and Mrs. James T. Kolb, president of the Division Officers' Wives Club hostessed the morning function.

A demonstration of the seven basic movements of ballet was given by Jennifer Lowe, daughter of Major and Mrs. William Lowe of Fort Benning. Jennifer is twelve years old and has studied for four years with Rossie Gilmore following one and one-half years of study in Germany. She is a seventh grader at Faith School. Jennifer wore a white and yellow classic ballet costume for the demonstration. Her father is assigned to Headquarters, 2nd Infantry Division Artillery.

Following the ballet demonstration Mrs. Gilmore spoke to the mothers attending the coffee on the art of teaching dancing to children, the correct ages to begin a child's dance study, explained the demonstrated basic movements of ballet, and told of the plans for the Spring program to be held in May. A question and answer session followed.

Later the ladies were invited to enjoy a cup of coffee and home-made refreshments. The serving table was covered with an ivory linen cloth and adorned with a floral centerpiece of artificial flowers in the colors of red and gold.

Antiques, Dogs Favorites Of Division's First Lady

BY JAMIE ROEDER

A feeling of anticipation was expressed by the 2nd Infantry Division with the arrival in November of their new "First Lady", Mrs. Charles Billingslea. Brig. Gen. Billingslea was assigned as the commanding general of the "Second to None" Division in September. The third member of the family is a vibrant, brown-haired, five and one-half-year-old lad who is named after his dad, but nick-named "Tuck".

The traditional British customs and mannerisms brought to our New England shores by our forefathers and adapted to the modern modes of today describe the early family instructions given to Bettina Hill Billingslea. Her mother called London home prior to arriving in the United States and her father came from Warwickshire. They settled down in Chesnut Hill, Mass., and founded their American home.

English Parents

Being a first generation descendent of English parentage, Bettina Hill grew up and was given instruction in the English school of living. For her early formal education she was sent to a private boarding school in Lowell, Mass., and upon graduation continued her higher scholastic studies at a Boston finishing school. In both "Halls of Learning" she was active in various school organizations and activities.

As a young woman Bettina met and married Lt. Col. Charles Billingslea. Her first military post as a new bride was Fort Leavenworth, Kan., where the colonel served on the faculty of the Command and General Staff College. She was soon to experience the disappointment of many new Army brides as her husband was sent on maneuvers for an extended period of time shortly after their arrival.

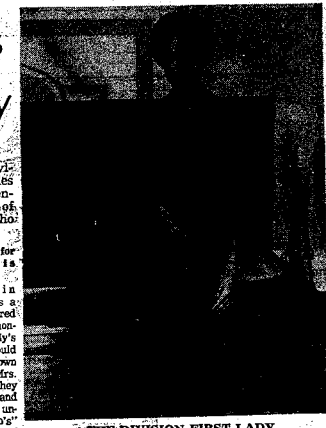
Immediately thereafter Mrs. Billingslea found herself faced with yet another hurdle to master. War broke in Korea and the colonel was reassigned to that theater of operations. The recent bride returned to Boston. While there she assisted in hospital volunteer work and became a Gray Lady.

Paris

Several years later, when the general was assigned as chief of plans at SHAPE Headquarters in Paris, Mrs. Billingslea had her first experience with the problems of an Army family's move on an overseas tour. While in France they lived in St. Cloud.

Coming from a purely civilian background to the life of an Army wife, Mrs. Billingslea has found that the many moves and almost constant packing and unpacking, the distances travelled, disappointments and pleasures, and the raising of children under these circumstances provide not always an easy life but a most rewarding life.

During the general's various assignments in Washington, D. C., the Billingsleas have found great pleasure and satisfaction in remodeling several homes to fit their design for family living and to house their antique furniture. Fondness for antique home furnishings is also a joint hobby.



Another shared interest in the Billingslea household is a love of dogs. A fawn colored English bulldog with the moniker "Peabo" is this family's loving canine pet. He could easily depict the well-known sketch of "John Bull". Mrs. Billingslea explained that they have always had a dog and prefer the rarer or more uncommon breeds. "Peabo's" predecessors include a breed known as the Scottish Deer Hound, but now he is "the lone canine guardian of the hearth".

Antiques

Mrs. Billingslea expressed a great interest in antique furniture and its care, gardening, painting, and home management. When hobbies were mentioned, she stated that food and its preparation was fascinating to her, but like so many busy homemakers, she couldn't always find the time to delve into the adaptation of directions and measurements to produce gourmet fare.

The 2nd Infantry Division Officers' Wives Club is one of the organizations at Fort Benning to which Mrs. Billingslea belongs. She is the Club's honorary president. She is also an honorary member of the Women's Club of Fort Benning.

Co. C Hosts 9th Infantry At Coffee

By Carolyn Holaday

The ladies of the 9th Infantry gathered for their monthly coffee recently in the Normandy Lounge at the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Hostesses for the event were the wives of Company C. Mrs. Shane N. Soldato and Mrs. Eldridge C. Childress used a Christmas theme in the decorations and table appointments. The centerpiece was a silver Christmas tree with red ornaments and the name tags were made in the form of a Christmas card.

Mrs. Clifford P. Hannum, wife of Col. Hannum, commander of the 9th Infantry, welcomed the guests who were Mesdames Allen O. Beasley, Stanton Williams and Robert M. Collins. Farewells were given to Mesdames Charles R. Latta, Sam S. Younger Jr., Robert C. Harlee, Robert S. Sage, Ned G. Patrick II, Robert C. Herr and Bill E. Patterson.

Mrs. Herman L. Goldman, chairman of Bridge and Canasta, announced that this group will meet on December 12th in the Normandy Lounge. Hostesses for the function will be Mrs. Robert A. Given and Mrs. Kenneth L. Willoughby.

Mrs. Willoughby was appointed publicity chairman and Mrs. Stanton Williams was appointed assistant chairman.

Soldiers Are Aware Of Study Programs

By S. W. Schlitzkus
Education Counselor

At least 73 artillerymen from the six battalions and Headquarters Battery of Division Artillery have enrolled in the present off-duty group study classes being conducted nightly at the Sand Hill Education Center. Twice that number are furthering their high school and college educations by availing themselves of U.S. Armed Forces Institute and other accredited correspondence courses offered under the Army's General Educational Development (GED) program.

In keeping with the 2nd Division's recently reiterated endorsement of a memorandum from the Department of Defense encouraging all active duty military personnel to participate in the GED program, these division artillerymen demonstrate that they are aware of the importance today of an adequately educated soldier in the increasingly diversified struggle to protect the freedom of the individual mind.

Army Man Counts

It has been said that a ship may synnoize the Navy, and an airplane, the Air Force. However, the only adequate symbol of the United States Army is the combat soldier—the individual man himself. He is the Army; and the success of himself, as the Army, hinges on his ability to fully understand the world struggle as one against poverty and illiteracy; as one of differing ideas striving to prove their individual correctness; as the competitive engagement of one well-educated power against another. Education is the key to this struggle, and the individual is the key to education; and in the Army, the key to individual education is the Education Center.

Through so simple an act as a visit to the Army Education Center on Sand Hill, every 2nd Division soldier, like these men from Division Artillery, is able to open the door to any formal academic or technical education he may require. Here, the education adviser gives him professional assistance and provides educational services tailored to his individual needs. Here, the education adviser introduces him to the ammunition which makes the Army's ultimate weapon — the educated man — so powerful. Here, the education adviser learns what the man wants and shows him the way to achieve it. Here, he may be administered tests, enrolled in specific courses aimed toward a high school diploma or a college degree, acquire or maintain proficiency in a foreign language, or enroll in a course related to his military occupational specialty. Here, the man — the Army — improves himself.

The educational level of the men in the six continental armies is at an all-time high. It is recognized here in the 2nd Division that this level cannot merely be maintained, it must be improved. By their actions, the more than 200 men from Division Artillery who are helping themselves to the generous educational facilities of the Army have agreed: if improvements are to be made in today's public, education is the way to do it.

Soldiers Awake!

There's Pie in the Morning Sky

Did you ever wake up on a Sunday morning with gnawing hunger pains and hastily dress and race to the mess hall only to find that, as usual, you had overslept and missed breakfast?

Well, for you lucky souls on Sand Hill, a means has been provided to quelch those insistent pains.

Starting last Sunday, December 9, the Lunch Bar in Service Club No. Two opened at 9:30 a.m. for late breakfast. And don't think that you men on Kelley Hill have been forgotten because on December 16, the PX snack Bar will open at 9:30 a.m. Sunday mornings.

With the above knowledge, you men can go to bed Saturday night knowing that when you awake, somewhere, someone will be serving chow.

7th Infantry Officer Has National Award

By 7th Infantry PIO

CAPTAIN FARMER
Capt. Collier

The holder of the highest national award for agricultural proficiency recently arrived at the 7th Infantry as S-3 officer.

Capt. Gary D. Collier comes to the "Cottonbalers" from a previous assignment at Headquarters 2nd Division as Brigade S-2.

While attending Oklahoma State University and majoring in Agronomy, Capt. Collier was presented the agriculture award for his high scores on the national exam and practical knowledge on the subject. The captain had access to the agricultural field in that he was raised in the heart of the western U. S. farm land.

Upon receiving his Reserve Officer Training Corps commission in August 1955, the captain came to Fort Benning to enter the Basic Infantry Officer School from September 1955 to January 1956.

He served with the 1st Cavalry Division in Korea as company commander from Sept. 1957 to Dec. 1958. While there, Capt. Collier had the distinction of commanding a company that twice was chosen to represent the 1st Division as the outstanding company in the Pacific Area Command. For his part in this, Capt. Collier was awarded the Army Commendation Medal.

Upon return to the States, the Oklahoma native was assigned to Fort Holabird, Md., where he attended the Intelligence Course. He enrolled in the Career Officer Course from August 1961 through May 1962. Upon completion of the course, Capt. Collier went to Headquarters, 2nd Division Brigade. Assigned to the 7th Infantry on Oct. 1, the captain was attached to Brigade as the S-1 officer until recently when he returned to battle group headquarters.

The captain has been awarded the Ranger Arc Tab, Expert Infantryman's Badge and the Army Commendation Medal.

Capt. Collier, his wife, Audrey, and children, Elizabeth, Rebecca, David and Deborah live at 1019B Ray Court, Fort Benning.

Christmas Party For Little Fella's

By DivArty PIO

Christmas is traditionally the time for children. With his thought in mind, the officers and men of the 15th Artillery are planning the Christmas party for their children to end all Christmas parties.

Lt. William C. Temple, executive officer of Battery B of the 15th Artillery, is coordinating the party to be held Thursday.

The festivities will begin in the Battery mess hall at 1 p.m. and will be completed with a Christmas movie, cartoon show, games, prizes, refreshments, and, of course, a visit from Santa Saint Nick is expected to arrive from his long trip from the North Pole about 2 p.m. and will stay until he has had a chance to visit with all the little guests. Naturally he will bring with him a few surprises for both young and old 'kids'.

Artilleryman Speaks His Mind About His Command

By DivArty PIO

"We take the high scores of other artillery batteries and make them our minimum goal." With these words Capt. Charles E. Avery Jr., commanding officer of Battery A, 37th Artillery, recently expressed his feelings toward the men of his command.

Capt. Avery, who assumed command of the battery 15 months ago after the men had had only four weeks of basic training, says that he is "very proud" of the men in his battery. "When I came here, the 37th was a basic training outfit," says the captain. "However, that status was soon changed after I arrived, and we undertook 18 weeks of intensive combat training." During that period, Capt. Avery's men spent four days out of every week in field training.

"Now," says Capt. Avery, "I think Battery A, 37th Artillery, is the second-to-none battery in the Second-to-None division."

After witnessing an almost complete changeover in his section chiefs, Capt. Avery says that the men in his battery know their responsibilities and do their work in an "excellent manner". He says they are fully aware who is in command of the battery, but the non - commissioned officers and his executive officer, Lt. Orlan Briant, fulfill their leadership responsibilities in such a way that the normal chain of command is fully realized.

Capt. Avery's executive, Lt. Briant, was recently was promoted to his present rank of first lieutenant, was a school teacher before he entered active service; thus, his knowledge of leadership is not newly learned. He graduated in 1960 from Florida Southern College, Lakeland, Fla., with a Bachelor of Science degree in education; and was employed by the Hillsborough County School Board in Tampa, Fla., teaching junior high school mathematics and science.

Lt. Briant also is a graduate of Florida Southern's Reserve Officer Training Corps.

Capt. Avery, who is from "right up the road about 50 miles" at Five Points, Ala., commanded an Officer Candidate School battery at Fort Sill, Okla., before coming to 37th Artillery. In 1960, he was Chief, Allied School Division at Fort Sill.

1st Infantry Gets Hot Near Football Finish

By 1st Infantry PIO

The 1st Infantry defeated 122nd Signal by the score of 25-12 in a football game Monday evening at Bennett Field. It was their second consecutive win of the season.

To start the game Signal won the toss and elected to receive. On long pass plays the Signal squad marched to the 1st Infantry's 5-yard line. A play later, they scored to go into the lead 6-0.

Later in the first quarter the "Always First" began to move, hitting on long pass plays that brought the ball deep in Signal territory. Jesse Madden, 1st Infantry quarterback, faked a pass and raced around left end for a 15-yard score. Missing the extra point, the 1st tied the game 6-6.

The 1st came back to take the lead in the second quarter on a 60-yard punt return by William Taliferro. Ahead 12-6 now, the 1st refused to let go for the remainder of the game.

In the closing minutes of the second quarter, Madden looked for a receiver and, not finding one open, ran 60 yards for a TD. This brought the score to 18-6 at the close of the first half.

Opening the second half, Madden again took to the air and tossed one to Leon C. Motz for another score. The extra point was good, making the score 25-6.

Late in the fourth quarter, Signal scored again, too late, and lost to a fired-up 1st Infantry team 25-12.

Jesse Madden, Leon C. Motz, and Pablo Cruz-Romain played an exceptionally fine game for the 1st. Infantry.

15th Artillery's Battery 'A' Shuts Out Battery 'B'

By 15th Artillery PIO

In an intra battalion football clash between the two firing batteries of the 15th Artillery Battalion, Battery A routed its arch rival, Battery B, by a score of 19-0.

Shortly after the opening kickoff, Jack Hayes snagged Cofield and raced into the end zone. Alpha converted on a pass to Frank McCarthy, and at the end of its first quarter the score read, Alpha 7, Bravo, 0.

In the second quarter, with Joe Lawyer and Denny Hiles clearing the way, Cofield sneaked over from the four, and the half ended 13-0.

Both teams battled evenly in the third period, with the ball staying near mid-field except for one deep penetration by the Alpha team. However, at the four yard line, Bravo dug in and its defensive team led by Beadle, Pugh, Whitehead, and Davidson, forced Alpha to give up the ball on downs.

Early in the last period, Cofield spotted McCarthy in the open, and this combination chalked up six more points for Battery A to make the final score 19-0.

Referees for the game were Lt. Bill Tempel of Battery B, and Lt. Warner Cole of Battery A.

Signal Finishes Football Season

The 122nd Signal Battalion flag football team ended its season with a record of one win against six losses in division league games.

Signal's lone win was against 23rd Infantry, 19-6, with a passing attack which put Signal out front for its first and only win.

Those making it across the line for points during the season were as follows: Robert A. Volkmann, 20 points; Robert O. Boalsi 20 points; Elijah Williams, 12 points; Fred C. Lackland, 6 points; Gene R. Ervin, 8 points; Paul Booterbaugh, 6 points.

Dennis P. McBride and Paul Booterbaugh served as coach and assistant coach respectively.

'Spaders' Blast 87th Inf. 24-6

By Bob de Camara
2nd Division Sports Editor

The end-of-the-season game that showed the 26th Infantry "Blue Spaders" a 24-6 victory over the 87th Infantry and gave the "Spaders" undisputed supremacy in division football couldn't have been matched by a Sunday afternoon at Green Bay's Packer Stadium.

Every bit as cold as Packer Stadium, Essebagger Field showed hundreds of spectators on Monday night a game between two undefeated teams that warmed everybody but "Conqueror" fans and ball players.

The brilliant quarterbacking of "Spader" Harold Shankles and outstanding defensive work by Shankles and a beefy 26th team gave the 26th the way to win.

Winning the coin toss, the "Conquerors" received the opening kick-off and marched due east for a first quarter touchdown that set them up in an early 6-0 lead. The TD came on a diving catch in the end zone by Chester Berroud who took a short pass from quarterback William Francis.

In the second quarter the 26th came back with two touchdowns on an interception and a pass. At half time the score stood 12-6 for the "Spaders."

Two More TDs

A third quarter touchdown interception by the 26th and a fourth quarter touchdown pass ended the game 24-6 for the happy "Spaders." At the gun the ball rested on the 26th's 5-yard line, moved that far by a second wind "Conqueror" advance.

Monday night's championship game kicked off at 7 o'clock. By 6:15 both sides of the field were packed and fans sat on temporary wooden stands and lined the banks above the field. Cars surrounded the field which was roped off and lined with colored pennants.

Before the game's start while "Conqueror" football players exercised on the field, Rockie Marne, the 38th Infantry's mascot mule on TDY to the 26th, nosed about the telephone pole to which she was tethered. With scarcely a cheerful look for "Spader" or "Conqueror" alike, Rockie looked like anything but the mascot of a soon-to-be championship team.

In the first quarter, the 26th got the ball for the first time following the opening TD. They then marched the ball down next to the "Conqueror" goal line before giving it up on downs. In the second quarter attempting to move the ball away from his blue goal, the 87th's Francis on third down tossed one which was intercepted by Shankles and run in for a "Spader" first score. All extra points in the game were unsuccessfully attempted on pass plays.

Major Lincoln ran the 26th's kick back to the 26th's 30. This was as far as the 87th got in this series, and they gave up the ball on downs. On the first 26th down, Shankles passed to John Wells in the end zone for the second "Spader" score. After the "Spader" kick, the 87th managed to get off two plays before the half ran out leaving them on the short end of a 12-6 score.

Third Quarter

Opening the third quarter, the 26th received but couldn't move. Forced to get rid of the ball on fourth down, Ralph Bean angled a sideline kick that gave the "Conquerors" possesson on their own 22. And plagued by fatal interceptions this night, the "Conqueror" quarterback saw his third down pass intercepted by John Wells and raced into the end zone. This was the third "Spader" score, 18-6.

Taking the kick again, the "Conquerors" moved fitfully against a much tightened "Spader" defense. On second down in the only draw play of the game, "Conqueror" fullback Richard Scott ran up the middle for good yardage and close to a first down. On the next play, Lincoln made short yardage for the first down. Now the "Spader" defense took over. Hitting the 87th quarterback, the 26th's defensive unit forced the 87th back towards their own goal. The "Conquerors" kicked short on second down. The "Spaders" now ran a series that ended with a TD toss from Shankles to Sherrell in the end zone for the final score of the game 24-6. Following the 26th's kick, the "Conquerors" rallied to bring the ball to the 26th's 5-yard line as the game ended.

For the first half of the game, Brig. Gen. Standley L. Harding, assistant 2nd Division commander, sat with the "Spaders" on the south side of the field. At halftime, 40 men from each of the battle groups formed two lines across mid-field and the general, accompanied by his aide and the acting commander of the 26th Infantry, Lt. Col. Charles A. Morris, walked toward the "Conquerors" stands between the two lines of soldiers. Met in the middle of the columns by Col. Ralph E. Hughett, the commander of the 87th, Gen. Harding was escorted to the 87th stands to watch the game's second half. Col. Morris officially represented the 26th Infantry at the game in the absence of Col. Kehe, 26th commander who is presently at Fort Knox.

Today's Sportrait

Today's Sportrait spotlights SFC John J. Mallick, Company B, 1st Battalion, The Infantry Center Troop Command, a native of New York, N.Y.

Sgt. Mallick has been active in sports since attending high school in his hometown where he lettered in swimming, baseball and basketball.

He enlisted in the Army in 1940, and saw action with the 517th Parachute Combat Team, 82nd Airborne Division in Europe, where he was wounded twice.

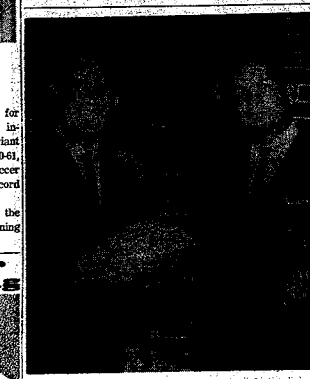
In Wurzburg, Germany, 1950 he was sports NCO of that area where he participated in organizing the first Soccer Clinic for Army personnel. He also was manager of the Regimental football team and officiated baseball, basketball and volleyball.

Sgt. Mallick managed the Fort Dix, N.J., football team 1954-55, and was a member of the First Army volleyball team for Fort Dix that played in the All - Army championships in Fort Ord, Calif., in 1955.

He piloted the 1957 Fort Benning WACs basketball team to runner-up in the Third Army playoffs.

Sgt. Mallick has been manager of the Fort Benning Doughboys football team for the past four years. He instructed handball at Briant Wells Field House in 1960-61, and guided the post soccer team to a 4-2 season record the same year.

He also was manager of the 1962 undefeated Fort Benning Doughboys football team.



SLIDE, THEN RELEASE . . . The slide and release, like everything else in bowling should be natural. The slide begins just as your ball has reached the top of the back swing. The toe of the sliding foot is pointed ahead, shoulders are straight, swing is straight, arm and wrists are rigid. At release, body is bent slightly forward, arm is reaching forward toward target. Meanwhile, the hand carrying the ball is doing its tasks. As the ball leaves the hand, the thumb should come out first. Fingers then carry the ball over the foul line and give the ball lift. Don't watch these actions; keep your eyes on the target, whether it be pins or spot, at all times.

Special Services Sports Carnival Heads Holiday Athletic Schedule

Four Sports Included On Carnival Program

AUTOGRAPHED FOOTBALL . . . Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell (L), commanding general of The Infantry Center, presents an autographed football and a trophy to Maj. Leaton C. Cofield, head coach of the 1962 Interservice Football Champions, the Fort Benning Doughboys. The 10-0 season was climaxed at a banquet recently at The Infantry Center. Forrest Towns, University of Georgia chief recruiter and assistant football coach was principal speaker. (Photo by SSgt. Betty Farmer)

The Special Services Section of The Infantry Center will conduct a Sports Carnival during the Christmas-New Year's holiday period for all military personnel.

The carnival will consist of competition in basketball, bowling, golf and volleyball.

A company level basketball tournament will be held Dec. 21 through Jan. 5 from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. at the Old Post Gym.

The type of tournament will be determined by the number of teams entering.

Competition will be governed by the 1962-1963 National Collegiate Association basketball rules with each team limited to nine players and one coach.

A meeting will be held in Service Club No. 1 at 3 p.m. Dec. 17. The coach of each team must be present for the meeting to outline the tournament.

A "No Tap" bowling tournament will be held Dec. 22 through Jan. 6 with the exception of Friday night, Jan. 4. All bowling will be through 4 p.m. at the Main Post Bowling Center.

Individuals or mixed couples desiring to enter the tournament may do so at the bowling center. Further information may be obtained by telephoning LI 5-2927.

A single elimination handball tournament, both in singles and doubles, will be conducted Dec. 21 to Jan. 5.

Individuals desiring to enter must submit entries to the USAIC Athletic Department by Dec. 19.

Match play golf will be held with a 32-hole tournament to be conducted at the Sand Hill course Dec. 27 to 30 at 10 a.m.

Individuals desiring to enter the tournament may do so no later than Dec. 22 at the golf course. For additional information telephone LI 4-7180.

All entries will play 18 holes to qualify for the championship flight, which will consist of the eight lowest qualifiers. All other flights will be comprised of eight men each.

Added attractions will be hole-in-one, driving and putting contests.

A company level volleyball tournament will be held Dec. 21 to Jan. 5 from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. at Briant Wells Field House.

The type of tournament will be determined by the number of teams entering. Teams will be limited to eight uniformed players and a coach.

Competition will be governed by the U. S. Volleyball Association 1962-163 rules.

Appropriate awards will be presented to the winners of all sporting events.

Post WACs Nip Gordon

By SFC Bismarck Stith

Over 300 cheering Fort Gordon basketball fans were on hand last Saturday night to witness the Fort Benning WAC basketball team tally its season's opener, 33-21, over Fort Gordon cagerettes.

The Benning team took control at the sound of the buzzer and never was in serious trouble throughout the game. The Gordon gagerettes failed to score in the first quarter, 6-6, but the Benning WACs bounced back and held the lead the rest of the game.

At half time the Benning girls held a 15-9 lead, paced by Collye Gray dumping in eight points along with teammate Josephine Grassia's seven points.

The Benning team slowed down the pace in the second half and played a defensive game allowing Gordon only 12 points.

Gray added six more points in the second half to bring her total to 14, high for the winners. Grassia also was in the double figures with 10 points followed by teammate Harriette Blankenship with nine.

Jessie Smith was high with 12 points for Fort Gordon. Phillis Galbreat also contributed six points for the losers.

The Benning WAC's first scheduled home game will be played at Briant Wells Field House Saturday. Jan. 12, against Fort Rucker WACs.

CISM Adds Ten Nations To Roster

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—Ten nations have been invited to join the 30 members of the Conseil International du Sports Militaire (CISM), sponsors of the "Military Olympics."

Japan, Canada, Australia, Bolivia, Cambodia, Chile, Colombia, Paraguay, Uruguay and Venezuela were recipients of invitations to take part in the 1963 sports program.

CISM, known in English as Sports Council, is dedicated to the promotion of world-wide good will through athletic competition by military personnel.

During the 1963 CISM boxing competition an innovation in the method of judging will be used. The judge will announce at the end of each round how he has scored the fighters. In the past CISM has used the standard method of judging with the winner and points announced at the fight's conclusion.

The 1963 boxing championships will be sponsored by the United States, a founding member of CISM, and probably will be held in West Germany.

Antlerless Deer Season Announced

It has just been announced by the Wildlife Coordinator that an antlerless deer season will begin on Dec. 21, and continue through Jan. 1, 1963.

This is a 10 day hunting period, and no hunting will be allowed on the reservation, from 12 noon on Dec. 24 through 6 a.m. Dec. 26, 1962.

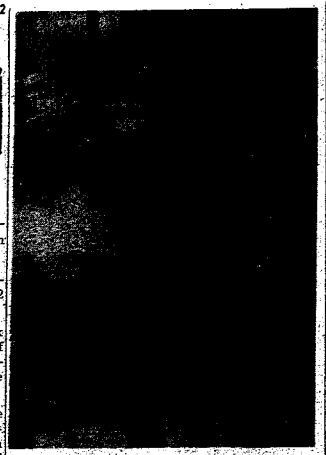
The total limit of the deer season is one buck and one doe, or two bucks, but not two does. If you have already killed a deer before the antlerless deer season begins, this deer counts in the total bag.

Each antlerless deer must be brought by the Fish and Game Association Office, Bldg. 450, Harmony Church, so that it might be tagged with a special antlerless deer tag. Any deer killed and not tagged with this tag, will be an illegal deer, both on and off the reservation.

During the first three days of the antlerless deer season, Dec. 21, 22 and 23, a representative of the Game and Fish Commission, State of Georgia, will collect specimens of the reproductive organs of the female deer.

Hunters killing does on these days are requested not to field dress their deer. Please bring them directly to the Fish and Game Association Office, and they will be field dressed there.

Broiled Venison Steak



Here is the last of my suggestions on how to prepare your deer meat. Cut steak 1 1-12 inch thick. Mix the following: one tablespoon flour, one clove, crushed, 1-8 teaspoon powdered ginger, 1-8 teaspoon thyme, one juniper berry, crushed, 1-8 teaspoon garlic salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1-2 teaspoon salt. Pound this mixture into the steak, sear both sides and turn every half minute several times. Sear for two minutes, reduce heat to very slow heat and cook slowly for 15 minutes or until done to individual taste.

Range Clearance

Each hunter is reminded it is his individual responsibility to secure range clearance before embarking on a hunting trip.

There are only two ways to obtain official range clearance. The first is by personally checking range maps posted at Range Control Office, Main Post or the Fish and Game Association, Bldg. 4050, Harmony Church. The second is by individually calling Range Control to obtain oral clearance. No other type of clearance, regardless of who gives you the information is official.

Please do not call the Fish and Game Association by telephone for clearance, as they cannot give you clearance by telephone. Be sure you have range clearance before you go into any area, for your protection and the protection of any troops which might be in that area.

The Two Fight It Out Under The Net

Shough's Sports Scope

By Pete Shough

Collegiate basketball is again looking as though it is falling into a pattern similar to the past several seasons, with two Ohio teams — Ohio State and Cincinnati — fighting it out tooth and nail.

The two top teams over the 1960-61 and 1961-62 season again look as if they are on their way to the NCAA playoff game next March. Cincinnati, picked as the country's top basketball quintet in pre-season polls, has racked four victories in a row and if things keep going will grab 20 more.

Ohio State, on the over hand, was picked far down in the pack since they lost three-time All-America Jerry Lucas to the pro ranks along with their other top starters, Mel Nowell and John Havlicek. But, the Bucks have given everyone a surprise as they have come home with the bacon for the fourth time in as many outings. The Scarlet and Gray pulled off one of the biggest upsets of the young season when they beat third ranked West Virginia.

Another perennially top team, Kentucky, picked third in pre-season polls, is suffering from problems after their loss to Virginia Tech last week. Their super-star, Cotton Nash, is not living up to

TICTC, 151st Engineers Head Major Unit Basketball Standings

By SFC Bismarck Stith

As of Tuesday, The Infantry Center Troop Command and the 428th Medical Battalion were deadlocked for first place in the Major Unit Basketball League 4-1 record.

In Monday night's action, fans witnessed the fast breaking TICTC eagers hand Lawson Army Air Command their fourth straight setback, overpowering the airmen, 72-52.

The first quarter ended with the airmen holding a three-point lead, 23-20, after the score was tied five times during the quarter. The flashy Troopers came back strong in the second quarter allowing the airmen only seven points while they hit the net for 21 to lead at intermission by a score of 41-30. Herb Chavis dumped in 16 and teammate Joe Tillman tossed in 13 for the troopers in the first half.

In the third and fourth quarter Coach George Dorer's chargers played more of a defensive game with all of his players seeing action. Chavis paced the winners with 25 points followed by Tillman with 17. Dave Tayborn also hit the double figures with 12 points. Bob Walsh popped in 20 points for the airmen and was aided by James Klutz with 14.

In the second game of the night 59th Infantry kept the 151st Engineers in the losing column by giving them their fifth setback, 81-70. The Engineers have not been able to win in five starts. In every game the Engineers played they have put up a rambunctious fight but just been unable to move into the winning bracket. Prince Foster and teammate, playing for coach Stanley Traymore both shared the scoring honors for the Infantrymen with both hitting the net for 24 points each. Bob Davenport also contributed 13 tallies for the winners.

The Engineers made a furious comeback attempt in the third period, at one time they were within three points of evening the score, but the 15' Infantryman shooter turned feeler rallied a hustling and rebounding spree that put the determined Engineers in the behind 11 points at the sound of the final buzzer.

Easome Smith dumped in 22 points to pace the Engineers in the scoring department. Bob Griffin's 15 points and Clarence Marble's 12 also shared the scoring honors for the losers.

Construction for Rangers Completed by Engineers

On Dec. 4, Company B, 66th Engineer Battalion (Const.), commanded by 1st Lt. Claude S. Thompson, put the finishing touches on its Eglin Project after working three months.

During this three month period, facilities to supplement the Ranger training problems were constructed in and around Eglin Field, Eglin Air Force Base, Fla. The work was accomplished by a contingent of Company B, under the direction of 2nd Lt. Clarence D. Griffith Jr., project officer.

On phase two of the project, the men erected structures to serve as a mess hall, an administration building, two barracks and a latrine. All, but the mess hall were completed by the end of October. Construction of these buildings included the preparation of the concrete sites, erection of the buildings and installation of electrical and plumbing facilities.

While construction was proceeding on phase two, work was also being done on phase one. This part of the project included construction of bridge approaches at Holly Creek; repair of a footbridge and a bleacher site; construction of an ammo storage area; three helicopter pads; a 30 - foot bridge across Little Bolling Creek; and Whitmire Island Road.

The largest of these field projects was the Whitmire Island Road, where 2,000 cubic yards of clay were spread and compacted on the three mile stretch of road and 11 culverts were placed at eight different sites.

In addition to satisfying annual maintenance requirements, the completion of these projects provides facilities for the Infantry Support Company that is required for each cycle of Ranger Training.

TSB Units Lend Aid To Orphans

Again this year the men of the 4th and 2nd Student Battalions, The Student Brigade, will make Christmas a happy one for the children of the Anne Elizabeth Shepard Home in Columbus.

In 1953, the 4th Student Battalion began supporting the Anne Elizabeth Shepard Home. It is an orphans home for girls. Since then the Anne Elizabeth Shepard Home Association has been formed by the students and cadre of the 2nd and 4th Student Battalions to help the home meet the needs of girls ages 5 to 18 years.

The contributions to the Anne Shepard Home Association over the past nine years have greatly aided in the growth of the institution.

In the spirit of Christmas giving, the Anne Elizabeth Shepard Home Association opens this year's campaign for contributions.

Persons interested in making a contribution can do so by contacting the Fund Custodian, adjutant, 4th Student Battalion, at 545-2401.

NEW FOOD CHIEF . . . MSgt. Robert L. Lindsey recently assumed the duties of food service supervisor of The Student Brigade, succeeding MSgt. John T. Nelson who is retiring.

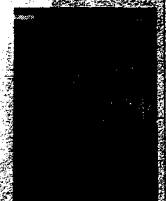
Know Your Senior NCOs

Frederick J. Hartmann is first sergeant of 50th Company, 5th Student Battalion, The Student Brigade.

Sgt. Hartmann entered the service in 1943 in New York. He took basic training at Fort McClellan, Ala., and was sent to the 80th Infantry Division in Luxembourg in December, 1944.

In 1945, Sgt. Hartmann returned to the United States as a corporal and a year later, as a sergeant, he went to Germany to join the 1st Infantry Division. He stayed with them until 1952. Returning to the U. S. while serving with the 1st Infantry Division, Sgt. Hartmann was promoted to sergeant first class.

In February of 1958, Sgt. Hartmann joined the 15th Field Artillery, 2nd Infantry Division, in Korea. In November, 1953, he was promoted to master sergeant E-7.



E-8 Hartmann next went on ROTC duty to the University of Connecticut where he served as instructor of Military History and Small Arms.

He stayed at this post until 1956, when he joined the 7th Infantry, 3rd Infantry Division. In April, 1958, he went with that unit to Germany.

Sgt. Hartmann became an E-8 while serving as first sergeant in the 7th Infantry, 3rd Infantry Division, in June, 1960.

He assumed his present assignment as first sergeant, 50th Company, 5th Student Battalion, in September of this year.

Sgt. Hartmann, holder of the Bronze Star Medal with an Oak Leaf Cluster, resides with his wife, Erna, and children, Charles, 7, and Linda, 3, in Columbus.

Zeus Missile 'Blows Top' On Command

REDSTONE ARSENAL, Ala. (ANS) — The Army's Nike Zeus is creating its own world of individual distinction.

It is the only anti-ICBM missile system presently in advanced development in the Free World.

It also is the only missile designed to "blow its top" when given the ignition command.

Because a decision to launch the missile may require instant action, no motion can be wasted. Thus, the Army's Zeus literally blows off its "roof"—at the same instant leaping from its underground cell at Kwajalein Island in the South Pacific.

The Zeus' hot temper and its constant tendency to "blow its top" is explained by Col. Ivey O. Drewry Jr., Zeus project manager at Redstone Arsenal, Ala.

Housed in an underground cell, the Zeus missile naturally requires some sort of protection from environmental conditions.

These underground cells are covered by a low-cost roof made of material which resembles styrofoam. It covers the cell at a slight pitch.

However, this lid may be blown to bits whenever the Zeus is fired. Escaping motor gases which are released when the Zeus is ignited blast fragments of the light-weight roof into the sky above the launch complex.

After the Zeus has thundered from its cell, the missile zips past the styrofoam fragments in the air. Shattered pieces fall harmlessly back to earth around the launch area.

If, by chance, the missile hits a piece of styrofoam as it jumps from its cell, the result is negligible. The missile's course, or guidance, will not be altered.

The cover also can be rolled back, away from the cell for maintenance.

Largest Class Is Graduated

The largest number of servicemen to complete the paratrooper course here since the consolidation of airborne training schools was graduated recently as 649 received the badge of the qualified parachutist.

Honor graduate was Pvt. David T. Van Meter.

Van Meter outpointed a class that included 113 Army officers and 526 other enlisted men, one U. S. Air Force officer and four enlisted men, one Navy officer and three Marine Corps enlisted men.

One of the class members, Sp4 Jerry Sikorski, a native of Copenhagen, Denmark, had two jumps on his fellow students, both of them in combat when he was serving with the 2nd British Commando Group during operations in Malaya.

Sikorski after completing a successful tour as a member of the U. S. Army will be able to qualify for citizenship.

Three sons of former airborne personnel and the son of a military parachutist still on active duty were also among the graduates.

Pvt. Patrick J. Cassidy is the son of Brig. Gen. Patrick F. Cassidy, assistant commanding general of the 101st Airborne Division at Fort Campbell, Ky.

Chaplain Of Year Is Named

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Reserve Officers Association has named Lt. Col. Maurice S. Kleinberg, now stationed in Korea, the Armed Forces Chaplain of the Year.

Col. Kleinberg, 54, served as assistant staff chaplain of the Military District of Washington from 1953 to July of this year.

The ROA citation said that "As special consultant on Jewish religious affairs to the Chief of Army Chaplains, the U.S. Army Chaplain Board and the Armed Forces Chaplain Board, he consistently demonstrated outstanding leadership, efficiency and professional skill."

Special Training Is Offered NCOs

The non-commissioned officers of the 4th Battalion, 29th Infantry, and attached units are engaged in a training program to better acquaint them with combat assignments.

Instruction is also provided to give the NCO a thorough knowledge of material that is covered on proficiency pay examinations.

Under the direction of Sgt. Maj. Norman B. Mekkelson, courses in leadership, map reading — both basic and advanced — the M-14 rifle and M-60 machine gun are covered in detail. Squad platoon and company tactics round out the program.

Civilians Receive Service Awards

Six civilian employees of The Infantry School Department of Nonresident Instruction received length of service emblems and Department of the Army certificates in recent ceremonies.

Col. O. H. Huppert Jr., department director, presented 20-year pins to Mrs. S. W. Huff, headquarters clerk, and Gustus Luckett, executive officer of the department's Army extension Course Committee, both of Columbus, Ga.

The colonel presented 10-year pins to Mrs. J. W. Vestal, editorial clerk, Charles E. Knight, clerk, Joseph L. Mingo, warehouseman, and Sidney James, clerk.

AMC Gets New Patch

WASHINGTON (ANS) — An especially designed shoulder sleeve insignia, symbolizing the joint role of the U. S. Army and American industry in support of national defense, has been authorized for eventual wear by the 20,000 military personnel of the Army Materiel Command (AMC).

The insignia design, which consists of a red, white and blue shield, will also be used by the AMC as a decorative identifying symbol. The insignia "On a shield two and one-half inches over-all in height, divided per pairly (three sections) white, red and blue, a white lozenge in fess (center) point all within a one-eighth inch white border."

The lozenge and the white area represent the command and control elements of the organization with the red area used to represent the Army and the blue area to represent industry. The white lozenge also symbolizes the flow of materiel through the combined efforts of the Army and industry.

It is anticipated that the shoulder sleeve insignia will be available for troop issue and purchase through post exchanges sometimes in 1963.

The AMC, the largest and most complex new element created by the reorganization of the Army, consists of a nation-wide network of more than 250 military installations and activities engaged in developing, producing, supplying and maintaining weapons, equipment and other materiel for the Army.

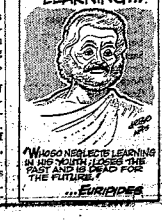
Suggestions Net Savings

Adoption of money saving suggestions recently made by five civilian employes of The Infantry Center Engineer Section is expected to result in annual savings of nearly $8,500.

The employes are William S. Padgett, Johnnie D. Rigsby, Richard F. Askew, Henry H. Hartzog and Horace B. French.

Through the Incentive Awards Committee of the Civilian Personnel Section, they received checks totaling $100 for acceptance of their suggestions.

Padgett received $45 for proposing that electric fan bolts be modified in size. His plan will prevent irrepairable damage to the blades and guards and will serve an estimated $1,389 a year.



Rigsby earned $15 for recommending modification of door guides and top braces for dishwashers. Expected savings of $539.30 annually will result from his suggestion, which was co-submitted by Hartzog, who also received $15.

For suggesting and devising an air-operated machine to be used in attaching new screen wire to metal frames, Askew received $25. The machine, which replaces the hand method, is expected to save $500 a year.

French, a supervisor, was given a Letter of Commendation signed by Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly, deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, for his suggestion.

It proposed a new method of cleaning condensers on refrigeration compressor units to effect annual savings of $5,526. It will also increase the life of the units by .10 to .11 years, according to officials.

Presentation of the checks and letter was made by Col. Riel S. Crandall, post engineer.

expectations, according to the long time Kentucky coach, Adolph Rupp.

The Wildcats got a scare last Saturday from the Temple Owls, with Nash pushing 34 points through the nets. Kentucky is coming up for another toughie tomorrow against Northwestern.

Mississippi State, another Southeastern Conference power house, has replaced previously favored Kentucky to grab top conference honors. The Bulldogs have climbed up to the fourth slot in the United Press International poll this week with an unblemished 3-0 record.

Other teams included in the UPI listings are Cincinnati, first; Duke, second; Loyola of Illinois, third; Ohio State, fourth; and Mississippi State, fifth. Oregon State, Stanford, Illinois, Bowling Green and once beaten West Virginia round out the roster.

Football is heading into its final stages, with the pros winding up their schedules tomorrow and Sunday.

Probably the most watched games of the weekend will be the Green Bay Packer — Los Angeles Rams and Detroit Lion — Chicago Bear outings. The Lions still have a slim chance to win the title, or at least force a play-off game, if the losing Rams can muster enough spark to beat the Packers and Detroit wins their final game.

The odds of this happening are slim but it does make an exciting finish for the country's finest football league.

AT THE Movies

THE WAR LOVER is a drama starring Steve McQueen, Robert Wagner and Shirley Anne Field. The American fliers in England during 1943-44 were a dedicated group who daily flew the B-17s to bomb the enemy and pave the way for the invasions which would speed the end of the war. Almost all of the men detested their job of destruction, but this is the story of one hotshot pilot whose only love was war.

JACK THE GIANT KILLER is the story of a swashbuckling adventurer who bravely matches his wits and ability against an evil sorcerer who has bewitched a beautiful princess in order to capture the throne of 11th Century England. Stars Kerwin Mathews and Judi Meredith.

FROM THE TERRACE, starring Paul Newman and Joanne Woodward, is the story of a veteran who returns home from the war to find his father is still as distant as ever to him. He leaves home, marries society girl Joanne Woodward and enters a promising career as a stock broker. Over the years, through misunderstanding, a slow dissolution of their marriage takes place.

BOY'S NIGHT OUT is a comedy in color starring Kim Novak, James Garner, Tony Randall, Howard Duff and Patti Page. A bachelor and his three restless pals seek diversion on their one night out. When a beautiful blonde enters the picture, the hilarity begins and they think they have the answer to a perfect evening.

USO Show Of Atlanta Visits Post

A show troupe and junior hostesses from the Atlanta USO visited Fort Benning over last weekend to entertain servicemen.

The group, headed by bullwhip artist Rusty Ryan, performed before a packed house Saturday evening at Service Club No. 2 and also Sunday afternoon at Service Club No. 1.

Ryan, who also doubled as a master of ceremonies and kept the show going at a rapid, entertaining pace, made many tape recordings for servicemen to send home to their families for Christmas.

Other entertainers included Buddy Clark, baton whirler; Diane Lawrence, acrobatic dancer, and Carl Veal, tap dancer.

The Fabulous Impressions," an Atlanta band, provided music for the shows and dances.

An act called "Comedy Guns" was the surprise of the Sunday afternoon show. The group, which made the trip from Atlanta especially to be in the show, was sponsored by the Special Services Section at the U. S. Army Infantry Center.

RECAP WITH DUKE'S T-150 RUBBER

Dependents' O'Seas Status Is Clarified

WASHINGTON (ANS) — Army members stationed overseas in places or circumstances under which their dependents could not accompany them to their station are sometimes joined later by their dependents who have made the journey at personal expense.

Such travel on the part of these "individually - sponsored" dependents (the term "unauthorized dependents" formerly applied to such persons, is no longer applied because it is misleading) is a right of citizenship, so long as the travel is performed in compliance with United States and international laws.

When oversea commanders become aware of the presence of individually sponsored dependents, distinguished by the length of their stay from tourists merely passing through, they are required by regulation to "recognize" the presence of these families.

This acknowledgement of dependents in this command is not merely a matter of the oversea commander bestowing privileges upon them, such as entry into the PX, commissary, dependent schools and the like. The commander becomes responsible for the health, welfare and safety of these wives and children of the people under his command.

In consideration of this recognition by the commander, however, the Army member who is then in fact accompanied by his dependents, must serve out the "accompanied" tour for the area in which he is stationed, rather than a briefer tour prescribed for "unaccompanied" personnel. These provisions are set forth in detail in paragraph 4f, AR 614-30.

New Name for Missile

REDSTONE ARSENAL, Ala. (ANS) — "Lance" has been selected as the name for the Army's newest missile, previously known as Missile B.

Scheduled to replace the Honest John rocket and the Lacrosse missile as an Army division support weapon, the Lance will significantly increase the nuclear and non-nuclear fire support capability and effectiveness now available.

The Lance has been designed for use in general and limited war and will operate in all types of terrain and weather.

The Chance-Vought Corp., a division of Ling - Temco-Vought, is prime contractor for the new weapon system.

Sgt. York Very Content on Ground

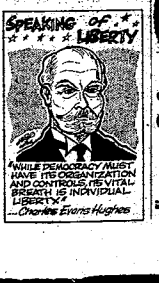
SEWART AFB, Tenn. (AFPS) — Sgt. Alvin C. York — most decorated hero of WWI — at 74 is content with his combat record of that pre-airborne era.

When asked if he yearned to wear the badge and jump boots of a paratrooper, the chipper old Infantryman said with conviction:

"Not me. I'm a foot soldier who has to be on the ground to breathe."

What brought it up was the presentation by Col. William G. Moore, commander of Sewart's 314th Troop Carrier Wing, of a model C-13. That aircraft today airlifts troopers of the 82nd Airborne Division, a unit which evolved from York's own outfit, the 82nd Infantry Division of his day.

York, who received the Medal of Honor for his feat of killing 25 enemy and capturing 132 during the Battle of the Argonne Forest in 1918 has been bedridden as his Pall Mall, Tenn., home since suffering a stroke in 1954.

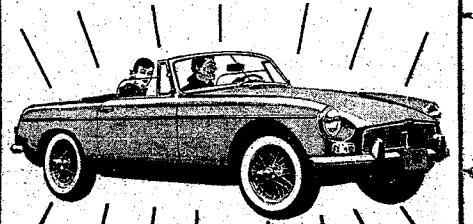


But he is anything but lonely or forgotten. People come from near and far to visit him in the white house with the American flag billowing out front in the mountain breeze.

He receives them hospitably from his specially made bed which has an odd hoop-like contraption like a roll bar around it.

"This bed here," he says, "a man, president of the American Legion up in Michigan, came down and showed it to me. He said it cost $913 and I told him I just couldn't sleep in that thing.

"Then he said, 'I'm not trying to sell it to you. It's a gift.'



"I told him I guess I could sleep in it then."

Surgeon Says

Cutting Extra Weight Begins With Waistline

By 2nd Lt. K. L. Richmond
Food Service Division

Once again we are reminded that the soldier can neither feel, look, nor do his best when he's carrying around excess weight.

Those extra pounds cut down efficiency, impair health and shorten life, no matter how tight you can make your stomach under that flab.

Extra pounds start piling up when we eat more than we need for physical activity and bodily processes. That's simple enough. The hard job is to eat less than your energy requirement while maintaining a state of nutritional health, until you have reached a satisfactory weight.

Then you must match food intake with energy needs or the fat will come right back. This may mean that you have to change long - established food habits.

No one will say it is an easy thing to do. First you have to want to reduce. Then use self-restraint and common sense until you succeed — and you will.

A visit to a medical officer is the place to begin. He can best evaluate your physical condition, energy requirement, and ideal weight. He'll then suggest a diet regimen which will allow you to lose slowly, sensibly, and still feel good without becoming run-down.

A common excuse is that it's impossible to reduce while eating in a troop mess. It isn't necessary to heap your plate, eat several pieces of bread and butter, and rich dessert just because it's available. Anyway, here's a hint; a menu plan that will average about 1,500 calories per day, and can be followed in any troop mess:

Breakfast

1 serving fruit or juice
2 eggs, 1 slice dry toast, or
2 french toast, no syrup, or
2 pancakes, no syrup
1 strip bacon or 1 pat butter
1 glass of milk, plain coffee as desired

Dinner and Supper

1 medium serving meat or substitute
If stew or spaghetti, etc., do not take potato or bread serving potato, or rice, or beans or bread
No gravy!
1 serving cooked vegetable
Green salad
1 pat butter or salad dressing (1 tbsp)
1 glass milk at either dinner or supper
Fruit for dessert, if available
Plain coffee or tea, as desired

While reducing, here are a few things to keep in mind:

1. Always eat breakfast
2. It's important to get as much food value in as few calories as possible. Fats and alcohol top the list of calorie carriers and provide little or no food value.
3. Drink plenty of water. This is necessary to maintain body function and the normal person will keep a fluid balance. A fluid loss, besides being harmful, doesn't mean you have lost any fat.
4. It may take as long as two weeks for an initial weight loss to show. Don't get discouraged. After that, two pounds per week is considered a safe rate of loss.

One last word; beware of fad diets or any plan that offers a simple way to reduce, including liquid formula diets. These are crutches which may prove harmful and do not teach you good food habits that will allow you to maintain health and proper weight for the rest of your life, which is the goal of any pattern of eating.

Calories do count and the battle to control your own appetite may be the toughest one you've ever fought, because the enemy is you.

The rewards of victory are great; better appearance, more stamina and endurance, and you've rid yourself of a silent but eloquent reminder to your commanding officer that perhaps he isn't working you hard enough.

'Souvenir' Beads Can Be Fatal

(By Armed Forces Press Service)

It's a small oval bean from a quarter to a half inch long. It may be all black or it may be red with a black spot at one end — something like a ladybug.

It's the jequirity bean which grows in tropical areas of India, Mexico, Brazil, Haiti and Florida. Botanists are again spotlighting the fact that this hard-shelled bean contains an alkaloid which can prove fatal if even a single bean is chewed or swallowed.

Reasons for their warning is that jequirity beans are once again appearing on the market as rosary beads and in necklaces, earrings, belts and ornaments. They sell at low cost in novelty and souvenir shops often patronized by military families in their travels.

A program is underway to stop further imports and sales of objects and articles made with the poisonous beans, but public health authorities believe that hundreds of such items probably are already in homes and within easy reach of children who may mistake them for candy.

These authorities urge that any items suspected of containing jequirity beans be mailed to the nearest poison control center, botanical garden or botany department of an academic institute for identification.

Bad Exhaust Mufflers Take Lives Of Drivers Without Any Warning

THE UNKNOWN KILLER

The car, its windows rolled up against the crisp night air, was a total wreck and, by the time the police and ambulance arrived, the driver was dead.

No one had witnessed the accident, but it was possible to reconstruct the event and determine the cause. The car had left the roadway at the midpoint of a gentle bend, sped down a slope and smashed into a tree. The absence of tire marks on the pavement indicated the driver had not swerved to avoid another vehicle. Had not skidded off the road . . . had not even applied his brakes.

Despite the extensive impact damage, it was found that the steering, brakes, and tires had not been at fault. The official verdict: the driver had driven straight off the road while unconscious.

The real cause of the accident, however, was traced to a mechanical component almost totally unknown to a majority of drivers — the exhaust muffler. In a sense, the driver's own ignorance and neglect in trying to stretch extra use from a defective muffler had contributed to the accident.

Corrosion within the muffler had, over a period of months, eaten away at the shell until it was as thin as tissue paper in several spots . . . and about as sturdy. In the weeks prior to the accident, a series of tiny holes peppered the shell — opening a path for the escape of deadly carbon monoxide. As he drove along, on the night of the accident, the accumulation of this deadly poison directly beneath him slowly seeped into the passenger compartment.

First its effects dulled his reflexes. Gradually it affected his vision. As the monoxide concentration increased it caused a feeling of discomfort. Finally it drugged the driver into a state of unconsciousness.

What sharpens the tragedy of this death is that it was not an "accident" and it could have been prevented. Competent maintenance work and early replacement of defective components would have eliminated a danger that grew more severe with each mile driven. Unfortunately, this danger is not uncommon. It can be present in your own car.

If you own a '61 or earlier model very likely the muffler requires replacement right now — or will in the near future. Only regular exhaust system inspections by a qualified mechanic can tell for sure. Safety surveys have indicated that as many as four out of five cars more than a year old have faulty exhaust system components, and in most cases the driver is unaware of the defective condition.

What makes carbon monoxide so dangerous is its complete lack of warning. Without expensive instruments not usually available to the average driver, it's impossible to detect. It has no color, no taste, no odor.

Carbon monoxide can asphyxiate you while you think you're breathing good, clean air. It has an affinity for the hemoglobin in your blood and displaces the oxygen needed by body tissue. About one part of CO in 100,000 parts of air can cause illness. A heavier concentration of one part of CO in 750 parts of air can cause death in a short time.

As long as your car's exhaust system is in sound condition, the carbon monoxide produced by burning fuel in the engine follows its intended route through the muffler and out the tail pipe. Depending on climate and the kind of driving you do, the life span of your muffler may range from two to three years to eight short months.

For maximum safety, all drivers should follow these few simple rules to protect against the dangers of carbon monoxide on the road:

— Have your car's entire exhaust system — mufflers and pipes — checked regularly by a competent mechanic. If you hear an increase in engine exhaust noise, or a rattling, banging, or sputtering sound from beneath the car while driving, have the system inspected immediately. A corroded tailpipe, which you can see beneath the rear bumper, is a sign of a potentially defective muffler. Don't ignore the warning.

— At the first sign of nausea, headache, dizziness, drowsiness, poor coordination, increased pulse and respiration, or sudden perspiration while driving, stop your car. These are symptoms of carbon monoxide poisoning. Get out and breathe deeply in the fresh air.

— Always drive — winter and summer — with at least one front vent window open, preferably with vent window and air-heat intake open. Never drive with all windows closed or with only the rear windows open.

— Avoid crowding the car in front of you. Fumes from that car's exhaust system can reach you through your car's air and heat intakes. In slow-moving, close - spaced traffic — or in a vehicular tunnel — close these intakes. Don't park close behind a car that has its engine running. A combination of closed windows and operation of your car's heater could suck a quantity of carbon monoxide into your car.

— Never warm up your car in a closed garage or other enclosure. A lethal concentration of carbon monoxide can be generated in a matter of minutes. The suddenness of its effects may prevent your taking proper emergency action.

— Quick first-aid action can save the life of one overcome by carbon monoxide. Get him into the fresh air immediately; apply artificial respiration if necessary; and have someone call a doctor and emergency squad. Keep the victim warm to minimize danger of shock; aid circulation by rubbing his arms and legs. Do not give the victim any stimulants; they may cause heart strain.

The automobile is capable of delivering much convenience and pleasure, but ignorance or neglect of vital components can pose a serious threat to safety. Just as you wouldn't want to drive with faulty brakes, you shouldn't attempt to stretch extra mileage from a defective exhaust system. Those extra miles can cost dearly.

Lt. Wright Named Adjutant of ICDA

First Lt. Dean W. Wright has been named adjutant of the Infantry Combat Developments Agency at Fort Benning.

The post unit is a component of the U. S. Army Combat Developments Command with headquarters at Fort Belvoir, Va.

Lt. Wright, who holds a degree in psychology, was commissioned as a second lieutenant in 1958 through the Reserve Officers Training Corps (ROTC) at the University of Minnesota.

LT. COL. CAPRINO

Col. Caprino Is Assigned Duty in India

Lt. Col. Charles T. Caprino, deputy commander of the Infantry Center Troop Command, has been assigned to the U. S. Military Group in India.

Before departing the U.S., Col. Caprino will receive an orientation course at the Military Assistance Institute in Arlington, Va.

Col. Caprino came here in February, 1960, from Columbia University where he completed the requirements for a B.S. degree in government and public law. He is a graduate of Marion Harding High School in Marion, Ohio.

The colonel entered the service in Marion in 1940 and was commissioned two years later upon completion of Infantry Officer Candidate School here.

During World War II, he served in the Pacific Theater with the 2nd Battalion, 306th Infantry, 77th Infantry Division.

In Korea, he was with the 3rd Battalion, 180th Infantry, 45th Infantry Division, and the 180th Infantry.

Col. Caprino was a special assistant to the chief of staff, Allied Forces, Southern Europe from 1957 to 1959.

Among his awards are a Bronze Star Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster and an Army Commendation Medal.

Crisis Sees 1,000 TAC Craft in Air

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—The Tactical Air Command deployed almost 1,000 aircraft to southeastern United States bases during the Cuban crisis.

The headquarters of the command at Langley AFB, Va., did not say how many additional planes had been provided by other Armed Forces units.

In a brief resume, the command said the air fleet under its control included RF-101 reconnaissance jets, EB-66 reconnaissance jet bombers, F-100, F-104 and F-105 jet fighters and KB-5 aerial tankers.

The resume also said C-130 and C-123 troop carriers had delivered 7,800 military personnel and 3,300 tons of equipment to the deployment bases.

Equal Employment Backed by Gen. Harrell

Fort Benning's commanding general has issued a letter to all elements of his command in support of a recent executive order of President John F. Kennedy regarding equal employment opportunities.

Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell, commanding general of the U. S. Army Infantry Center, said, "The President of the United States, in Executive Order 10-25, makes it clear that the existence of any discrimination in Federal employment is contrary to the Constitutional principles and policies of the United States.

"The President's policy will receive full and unequivocal support in this command. All employment actions will be based solely upon merit and fitness without regard to the race, color, religion or national origin of the individual concerned.

"Supervisory personnel will assure that this policy is understood and complied with by all employes under their administration."

The order established the "President's Committee on Equal Employment Opportunity."

Heading the committee is Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson.

In addition to members the President might appoint from time to time, the committee includes the secretary of labor, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, secretary of commerce, attorney general, secretaries of Defense, Army, Navy and Air Force, administrator of General Services, chairman of the Civil Service Commission and the administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

President Kennedy has charged the committee with responsibility for providing procedures and policies to implement the order.

Under provision of the order, the committee will study overall employment practices of departments and agencies will make such studies on their own levels.

Santa Mails Cards With Army's Aid

The Columbus Post Office, faced with the annual deluge of Christmas cards and packages, has supplemented its delivery fleet with 27 Army trucks, 15 of them from Fort Benning.

The vehicles, ranging from 1¼-ton vans to ½-ton pickups, will be used to supplement the delivery of parcel post and on the regular mail routes in Columbus and West Point, Ga., and Phenix City.

Some of the trucks were put in use as early as Dec. 4. All of the vehicles are operating now, the biggest rush period.

Last year the same number of trucks were borrowed and postal officials said it would be nearly impossible to handle the Christmas mail without them.

The process is started at the post office headquarters in Atlanta. Local postal officials then submit a request to Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center.

The request goes to The Infantry Center Transportation Section, where survey is made of the vehicles that can be spared.

This year seven vehicles came from the Transportation Section's motor pool, and eight from the 577th Engineer Battalion. The others came from the 560th Engineer Battalion, a Georgia National Guard unit from Columbus.

The trucks probably will be returned around Jan. 1.

Cartographers Produce Turk's 16th Century Map

WESTOVER AFB, Mass. (AFPS) — When Air Force pilots fly jets capable of clipping off a mile in five to 10 seconds — hardly enough time to unfold a map — it's a modern - day miracle that they ever learn where they're going.

But they do, thanks to map-makers like those in Westover's Eighth Air Force Reconnaissance Technical Squadron cartographic section.

Besides drawing "tons" of jet-age maps, these cartographers are now busy trying to help a nationwide research team find out how one early map maker, Piri Reis, collected data to draw amazingly accurate maps for his time.

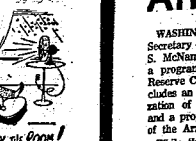
Piri Reis, a turn-of-the-16th century Turkish admiral and a contemporary of Christopher Columbus, drew maps at a time when map - making was a strange mixture of rudimentary navigation techniques, legends and myths.

Strangely enough, Adm. Reis maps show areas of the world that supposedly had not yet been discovered One is the Princess Martha coast of Antarctica's Queen Maud Land on the Atlantic Ocean.

How he got the data to include this island in his map no one knows. A mile - thick icecap covers the island. Geologists estimate that the ice has been there for at least 4,000 years.

So Piri Reis either had modern sounding equipment, which is unlikely, or copied a map made by someone with near-modern map-making and navigational ability who had charted the area 1,000 years before the Egyptian pyramids were built, when there was no ice.

Using a section of a Reis map dated 1513 the Air Force cartographers have started on a voyage of their own through ancient history, mythology, anthropology and geology.



Adm. Reis drew the map 2 years after Columbus sailed off "the edge" of the flat Old World into the New World. Although Columbus collected accurate data, some of it valid to this day, most 16th century map-makers still had a hazy idea of world geography.

Army Reserve Bolstered; Guard Change Proposed

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara has announced a program for strengthening Reserve Components which includes an immediate reorganization of the Army Reserve and a proposed reorganization of the Army National Guard.

While the Reserve reorganization was being ordered, Secretary of the Army Cyrus Vance was contacting various their acceptance of a revised troop allocation for National Guard units in their respective states.

An Army spokesman said he believed the proposed Guard program would meet with the approval of the governors.

The Defense Department said the major objectives of the program are to:

Provide a Reserve Component structure which will produce at the right time the numbers and kinds of units in the state of readiness required by the current contingency defense plan. This requires reorganizing new units to meet modern demands and converting or eliminating units no longer essential.

Provide the Active Army with the quick re - enforcement needed to meet crises while retaining the present capability to support a general mobilization. This requires the development of a high-priority force of strongly - manned, well trained and adequately equipped units.

Improve the combat readiness of Reserve Component units by increasing personnel strength in high-priority units, raising recruiting standards, providing a higher level of skills in units, and reducing reliance on individual fillers from the Ready Reserve Reenforcement Pool.

Retain certain of the low-priority units needed as a basis for general mobilization.

Perfect the use of individual fillers through a program of predesignation and annual summer training with specified units.

Take advantage of the lesson learned as a result of the call-up of the Reserve Components during the Berlin crisis in 1961.

Provide more and better equipment for the priority elements of the Reserve Components.

Under the plan, eight divisions (four National Guard and four Army Reserve) not required by current plans, are to be realigned into eight brigades under the new ROAD concept.

These units are the 34th, 35th, 43rd, and 51st Infantry Divisions of the National Guard and the 79th, 94th, 96th, and 103d Infantry Divisions of the Army Reserve.

Except for the 43rd Division, the headquarters of each of these divisions is to be retained as an operational headquarters with responsibility for the training and administration of designated non-divisional units. They will keep their unit designations, colors and histories. In the case of the 43rd Division, the proposal is to form two brigade headquarters and one artillery corps from the existing division.

The Army Reserve order calls for the reorganization or elimination of some 1,600 excess units currently on the troop list and the addition of about 630 new units. After adjustment for 35 units which were provided for on the previous troop list, but had not been organized the net loss of Army Reserve units in 893.

As reorganized, the Army Reserve will consist of six combat divisions, 13 training divisions, four brigades, two maneuvers area commands, and 2,155 other units.

The National Guard proposal calls for reorganization or elimination of 800 excess units and the addition of 386 new units. A total of 78 units, now authorized, but not organized, will bring the adjusted net loss of Guard units to a total 338. In all, the National Guard would have 23 combat divisions, seven brigades and approximately 1,743 other units.

Reservists Given Stiff Drill Rules

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—Reserve component personnel who fail to attend drills or perform satisfactorily will be referred to the Selective Service System for priority induction, according to the Defense Department.

This was included in the Army Reserve and National Guard reorganization plan announced early in December.

The plan provides that recruiting standards for the Reserve Components will be the same as those for the Active Army and that a minimum of 20 per cent of the personnel in all units must meet specific skill qualifications.

No units will be permitted to exceed authorized strength levels.

The higher manning and skill levels called for by the plan will reduce the number of individual fillers required to raise to full strength units called to active duty and the filler problem will be further alleviated by advanced selections and designations of filler personnel for assignment to specific units.

It is planned to have individual fillers take annual summer field training with units requiring their particular skill.

FIRST MOTTO

The first motto placed on a coin by the United States was Mind Your Business, on the 1787 cent.

Portable 'Doctor' Will Run Checks On Field Troops

NEW YORK (AFPS)—When the Army Medical Service completes development of a lightweight telemetry system and transmitter some soldiers will be carrying an unusual field pack.

The new device will enable Army scientists to measure physiological data while soldiers are actually carrying out their duties.

Even paratroopers will be able to pack the portable device. In their case, the system will measure body temperature, pulse rate and respiration while they are in the jump plane and during the jump.

Measurements will be transmitted to ground stations of about 21,000 feet for the airborne soldiers and at least one-half mile in ground-to-ground operation.

Minonette Is Popular Service Team Sport

What would you plan to do if your commanding officer told you to alert your unit for "Minonette"?

Few of the popular team games played in America today are more American in their origin than the game first called "Minonette" and now known the world over as volleyball.

Volleyball was invented in 1895 by William G. Morgan, then the Physical Director of the YMCA at Holyoke, Mass.

Morgan's game was devised after he noticed the growing popularity of the indoor sport, called basketball, originated across the Connecticut river in Springfield, Mass., by D. John Naismith.

In place of Naismith's "peachbaskets" placed at each end of gymnasium, Morgan placed a lawn tennis net across the middle of the floor. The object of the game was to keep a ball alternating from one side of the net to the other without touching the ground.

Morgan's ball was the "bladder" or the inside of a basketball. He made this selection because of its lightness which made it possible to bat it across the net without injury to the players.

It took some time for the game to catch on since indoor athletes thought that handball and basketball were enough diversion for their spare time.

A Dr. A. T. Halstad, of Springfield, Mass., suggested the name of "Minonette" be dropped and "Volleyball" substituted. His reason was that during the play or the game the ball was constantly being volleyed across the net.

Once the game moved outside the gymnasium it caught on like wildfire and soon every beach resort and summer outdoor gathering included volleyball games.

During WWII, especially during the island-jumping in the South Pacific, the game rated number one on the rest period Hit Parade.

Later, during the Korean conflict, rice paddies, frozen or dusty-dry were often the base for the game originally called "Minonette."

Two Lieutenants Take DNRI Posts

Recently assigned to the Department of Nonresident Instruction were 1st Lt. Amherst H. Turner Jr., and 1st Lt. Billy C. Arnwine who both recently completed tours of duty with the 1st Cavalry Division in Korea.

Lt. Turner, a 1961 graduate of the University of Michigan, attended the Infantry Officers Orientation Course at Fort Benning prior to departure for Korea in August, 1961.

Lt. Arnwine, a 1958 graduate of Lincoln University attended the Basic Officers Orientation Course, Airborne, and the Communications Officer Course here and was assigned to Fort Dix, N. J., prior to departing for Korea in June, 1961.

Both lieutenants have been assigned as publications officers in the Instructional Materials Preparation Committee.

Sgt. Snavely Takes Club's Pistol Match

MSgt. George Snavely of the Army's Marksmanship Training Unit, firing steadily through 12 matches, captured the monthly pistol tournament sponsored by the Post Rifle and Pistol Club last weekend with an aggregate of 2639 points out of a possible 2700.

SFC Sam Hunter, MTU, was runnerup with 2629. The two-day match, which drew entries from the three services as well as civilians, was sanctioned by the National Rifle Association.

Two of Sunday's three team matches went to the MTU Grey Team. Third Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit took the other.

The Grey squad, composed of SFC John Langle, Sgt. Leland Wessel, MSgt. Fred Schaser and SSgt. Herschel Anderson, won the Center Fire and .22 caliber matches with respective scores of 1169 and 1170.

Third Army's winning total in the .45 caliber match was 1146. On the team were Sgt. Charles Bootle, Sp6 John Weihs, MSgt. Walter Schneider and SFC Jake Wise.

In the individual events Sgt. Snavely also placed first in the Center Fire aggregate with 884x900; Sgt. Bootle grabbed the .22 caliber aggregate with 888x900, and Sgt. Schneider topped all competitors in the .45 caliber aggregate with 873.

Match results were as follows:

.22 caliber: Slow Fire. SFC Hunter, 196; Timed Fire, Hunter, 200; Rapid Fire, Sgt. Bootle, 190; National Match Course, SFC Langle, 297.

Center Fire: Slow Fire, MSgt. Herbert Roberts, MTU, 195; Timed Fire, SFC William Blankenship, MTU, 200; Rapid Fire, Blankenship, 200; National Match Course, Blankenship, 294.

.45 Caliber: Slow Fire, SFC R. L. Cochran, MTU, 194; Timed Fire, MSgt. Schaser, 200; Rapid Fire, SFC Jake Wise, 198; National Match Course, MSgt. Roberts, 294.

CONARC at Work on Reserve Realignment

The Continental Army Command has set a machinery in motion for speedy implementation of the long-awaited reorganization and realignment of Army Reserve components.

At CONARC headquarters, Gen. Herbert B. Powell indicated that all US Army Reserve units concerned will be reorganized before annual active duty for training next summer. Gen. Powell, who is responsible for the organization and training of the Army Reserve, expressed confidence that the transition to the "new look" would be made quickly and smoothly.

Behind his matter-of-fact confidence, however, is the assurance that long months of planning by the CONARC staff and key members of his major field commands have already anticipated and eliminated most of the problems in advance.

Gen. Powell's orders, timed to reach Army commanders almost simultaneously with the public announcement by the Secretary of Defense, came as no surprise to commanders of the Reserve units affected. Each had been alerted earlier. The orders call for immediate steps to carry out carefully detailed reorganization plans designed to make the Army Reserve more responsive to actual Army mobilization requirements geared to the changing international situation.

The Department of Defense plan calls for conversion of four Army National Guard and four Army Reserve divisions to brigades under the new "ROAD" organization being adopted by the active Army, for the elimination of some 1,300 obsolete or surplus Reserve component units, and for the creation of approximately 1,000 new units of types currently needed to support the modern Army.

The plan will be implemented by ordering the reorganization of the Army Reserve and simultaneously requesting the governors of the individual states to accept the new allotment of National Guard units which the Army says it needs. Since reorganization of the Army National Guard of each state is a prerogative of the governor, some individual delays in the implementation of the reorganization plan may be experienced in the National Guard.

For the Army Reserve, however, there will be no delay. rapid activation of the new brigade headquarters and operational headquarters to be used in supervising and training the units. Army Reserve units which are scheduled to be inactivated have been ordered to reduce their strengths as rapidly as possible to the bare minimum necessary to close out the unit and transfer records and equipment.

Affected units which are to be retained have been told to bring their strength up to new authorization and devote their maximum effort to achieving a high state of readiness consistent with the Reserve Priority System and the Army's Reserve components program.

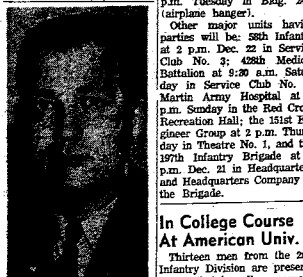
CONARC's orders call for the reorganization as it coordinates the activation, inactivation, reorganization or redesignation of units. Monitoring the overall operation, CONARC headquarters will be called to identify any new problems for early resolution.

At the same time, training of the Reserves will continue to go forward according to plans which have been carefully synchronized to the reorganization.

"Everyone had to burn the midnight oil to get the implementation plans ready," according to Gen. Powell. "Now that the reorganization has been announced, however, we are faced with the job of informing the Army Reserve and the public that there never will be a point where change is not required, especially in a military organization.

"With constant changes taking place in technology, strategy, tactics and emergency plans, the active Army itself must constantly change its organization and forces structure to accommodate these factors. The international situation requires forces capable of rapid deployment to trouble spots wherever these may develop.

"The Reserve components must change as the active Army changes to provide units capable of blending with active Army forces into an effective, cohesive force capable of implementing all emergency plans on schedule. I am confident that the reorganization and realignment will bring us much closer to the realization of this goal."



Units to Hold Yule Parties

Most major units here will hold Christmas parties for children on the post, according to the Special Services Section.

Special Services will provide Christmas tree decorations, Christmas films and cartoons, Santa Claus costumes, and other equipment for the parties.

Those units having parties will be: 29th Infantry at 10 a.m. Dec. 22 in the 4th Battalion classroom; 10th Artillery at 2 p.m. Dec. 21 in B Battery Mess Hall; the Student Brigade at 7:30 p.m. today at Victory Lodge, and Lawson Army Aviation Command at 4 p.m. Tuesday in Bldg. 2491 (airplane hanger).

Other major units having parties will be: 58th Infantry at 2 p.m. Dec. 22 in Service Club No. 3; 428th Medical Battalion at 9:30 a.m. Saturday in Service Club No. 1; Martin Army Hospital at 2 p.m. Sunday in the Red Cross Recreation Hall; the 151st Engineer Group at 2 p.m. Thursday in Theatre No. 1, and the 197th Infantry Brigade at 2 p.m. Dec. 21 in Headquarters and Headquarters Company of the Brigade.

PERSONNEL OFFICER . . . 1st Lt. Harry H. Ferguson, Jr., recently assumed the duties of Personnel Officer for The Student Brigade succeeding Capt. Herman G. Misajon who has become TSB S-3. Lt. Ferguson's last assignment was Chief of Student Officer Branch Personnel TSB.

In College Course At American Univ.

Thirteen men from the 2nd Infantry Division are presently enrolled in college courses at the Fort Benning extension of American University, and four of those men are from Headquarters Battery, 37th Artillery.

PFC Theodore A. Ellinger, battalion clerk, and Sp5 Udo V. Westernhagen, survey computer, are studying personal finance; and PFC Gerald E. Tschirhart, radio - telephone operator in the survey section and PFC Richard Schroth, survey section, are both studying German.

VICTORY GUN . . . Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell (L), commanding general of The Infantry Center, examines the "Doughboy Victory Gun." Showing off the success symbol are PFC Max R. Sanford (R) and Sp4 Jimmie Sykes. They are members of The Infantry Center Troop Command's honor guard which manned the gun throughout the Doughboy's undefeated season. The gun was fired at each Fort Benning touchdown. (Photo by SSgt. Betty Farmer)

Gen. Harrell Sends Christmas Greeting

With the approach of the Christmas season, I wish to extend best wishes to the military and civilian personnel at Fort Benning and their families for a Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

I am pleased at this opportunity to express my appreciation for the splendid support and devotion to duty displayed by the members of this command throughout the past year, and particularly during the recent threat to the security of our country. All of you may reflect with satisfaction and pride upon your contribution to our mission as guardians of our nation.

Here at home where we enjoy the blessings of peace and freedom, we should bend our efforts toward the realization of this way of life for all mankind. I hope that each of you will be able to attend the religious observances of your choice and that you will enjoy the festivities planned for you on and off the Post.

'62 Christmas Cards Stress the Traditional

"It seems that the faster our modern world changes, the more people cherish the traditional in Christmas art."

So says a representative of one of the nation's leading card manufacturers, who advises us not to look for spaceships on this year Yuletide greetings "because Santa still rules the skies—and the cards show it."

Nevertheless, she adds, the religious motif is enjoying mounting popularity. Out of 600 new Christmas designs, a survey shows that one of every six has a devotional theme—Madonnas, the Nativity, the Wise Men and related Biblical subjects.

Likewise the enduring popularity of Victorian sentiment is reflected in card manufacturer's application of new designs to familiar materials — carol singers, old - fashioned family scenes and jolly Dickensian types beaming good cheer.

"Our job," says the card manufacturer's spokesman, "is to give a new design flavor to the old holiday symbols." To this end, she adds, some designers are combining artwork with photographic techniques to create a feeling of depth.

They are grouping such staple Yuletide objects as bells, flowers, holly, pine cones and candles in new and arresting patterns against textured backgrounds and using heavy parchment to give an antique effect.

Not all of this year's cards are designed for a single seasonal purpose. In the upper price bracket one finds such remembrances as a red leather book of Christmas verse stamped with gold lettering—a permanent item for the library; not to be thrown out after New Year's Day.

On the Cover

The colors of the Advent season decorate the altar of the Main Post Protestant Chapel as PFC James Gant, Company B, 1st Battalion, The Infantry Center Troop Command, kneels in prayer. Sunday is the fourth Sunday in Advent and will be observed in services here. For Christmas services, the purple altar covering is replaced by white as poinsettias take their traditional place on the altar. — Color photo by SSgt. Betty Farmer.

Staff Chief Sends His Greetings

To the soldiers, civilians, and families of the United States Army serving throughout the world, I send my warmest good wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. Your efforts and sacrifices in pursuit of our Nation's global mission help greatly to preserve, for all men, the values symbolized in the observance of this Holy Season. Good luck and God bless you.

GEN. EARLE G. WHEELER
Army Chief of Staff

Chaplain Renders Greeting

Everything of value and worth having costs something. Involved in the manufacture of articles are necessities which originally required them: ideas, plans and resources which provided the finished products.

Christmas was made possible because humanity needed a Redeemer and God sent His only begotten Son to be born of the Virgin Mary, in the Bethlehem manger. For 33 years Jesus deprived Himself of heaven. He lived among us, enduring the hardships of the poor of that day, and earning His daily bread as a carpenter's son. This was not the complete story. Also for three of those years He was an itinerant preacher, proclaiming the gospel of the kingdom of heaven and went about the land healing all types of diseases. He was rejected by the religion which trained him and was condemned by his own countrymen upon the Cross of Calvary. He gave himself as a sacrifice for all the sins of humanity. Therefore Christmas costs something.

When we participate this year in all of the many wonderful activities related to the anniversary of the Saviour's Birth we should remember that "For God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life.

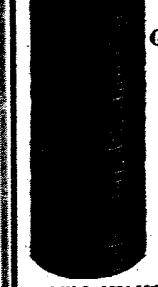
Carols Once Folk Dances

Today's Christmas carol is a domesticated descendant of a lively folk dance.

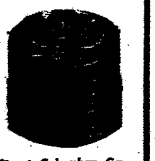
The carol started out in the Middle Ages as a circular "carole" in French according to World Book Encyclopedia. Some of the early Christians looked askance at dancing, however, and the carol soon lost its steps.

The lyrics of the songs that had accompanied the dance began to change, too, and eventually the "macaronic" style appeared. This consisted of tacking a Latin phrase on to the popular lines so that the people sang:



Make we joy now in the feast
In qua Christus natus est

They didn't necessarily understand the Latin although it carried on the sense of the song, but the stately Latin words gave them a religious image.



In 1223, St. Francis of Assisi started the custom of placing a creche, or miniature Nativity scene, in the church at Christmas time. People began to act out the events of the Nativity — one of the steps in the development of mystery plays — and then to compose carols to sing with the plays. These led to the French noels, strictly Christmas songs, which, in turn, inspired the English carol.

Carols, both secular and religious, flourished in England until the Puritans substituted their more spiritual hymns.

The Holiday Spirit: Who Can Resist It?

Christmas is many things, depending on where we happen to be—and many of us are far from home and family on this happiest of holidays.

Christmas is carolers singing the traditional airs and it is Irving Berlin's White Christmas. It is the giant tree in New York's Rockefeller Plaza and it is the dazzling Christmas Tree Lane in Fresno, Calif. It is wreath, holly, poinsettia and mistletoe. It is the time hearts are gladdened and spirits lifted by the magical story of Christ's birth.

For some Christmas is the jam-packed mail box, for others it is the jumbo mail call and the tireless Bob Hope touring for the troops. Christmas is snow and Christmas is tropical palms. It is Dickens' A Christmas Carol and Judy Garland in The Wizard of Oz. It is Dr. Clement Clarke Moore's A Visit from St. Nicholas and Francis P. Church's editorial, "Yes, Virginia . . ."

Above all, Christmas is for kids. We plan and spend and work to make it their happy time and their happiness rubs off on us—presto, we're all Santas without sleighs! And Christmas is a feast, whether at home or dining out, whether on base or aboard ship.

It would be great, wouldn't it, if the Christmas spirit could overflow its season and change the world? No wars. No hatreds. No suspicion. No envy. Utopia.

Well, Utopia's a long way off from Christmas 1962. But at least the season brings out the man of good will in most of us. The spirit is so infectious that we'd have to hide in a cave to get away from it. (AFPS)

Army Has Heroically Met Foe at Christmas

"We are giving our country and loved ones a Christmas present." So spoke Brig. Gen. Anthony C. McAuliffe to his embattled soldiers during the darkest hours of the siege of Bastogne during Christmas, 1944.

These inspiring words reflect well the tradition of the U. S. Army for the past 187 years. For the Army has bravely met many challenges during the season of Christmas. The willing sacrifices made by soldiers at Valley Forge, Trenton, Bataan, in the Ardennes and in Korea remain as monuments to unselfish giving for the peace and security of our nation.

At the moment, only the weapons of cold war can be heard — the arms of insurgents, guerrillas and other aggressors. As we gather in the warmth of our homes amidst friends and family during the yuletide, it must not be forgotten that many American soldiers are forcefully demonstrating to those who would shackle liberty that the essential force for freedom does not take a holiday.

During these hours commemorating the birth of the Prince of Peace, it seems fitting to include in our thoughts and prayers those soldiers who stand guard at the frontiers of the free world, that citizens of this nation may always enjoy their most cherished inheritance — freedom. And with this thought in mind, we say to all of our soldiers at home and overseas—"May your Christmas be peaceful, joyous and quiet."

We Guard Heritage Of Free Worship

As this Christmas Season draws near, it is my happy privilege as Chief of Chaplains to extend personal greetings and best wishes for a Blessed Christmas to all members of the Army and their families.

Christmas awakens our strongest and deepest emotions, namely those of the family and more especially the Holy family. A tone of solemn and sacred feeling blends with our conviviality and lifts the spirit to a state of hallowed and elevated enjoyment. The services in our chapels will re-tell the beautiful story of the origin of our faith and the pastoral scenes that accompanied its announcement. Our spiritual vitality will increase during the season of Advent, until it breaks forth in full celebration of the Holy Event that brought the Prince of Peace into the world.

As modern shepherds in the Free World, men and women in the Army are safeguarding among other freedoms our priceless heritage of the freedom of worship. The spirit of Christmas will prevail and prosper if we are alert to our every opportunity of spiritual discipline.

I commend you for your dedication. Your work at home and abroad continues to be in the finest tradition of the Christian soldier.

May God grant to each of you His richest Christmas blessings and may the New Year give you renewed strength to witness this new birth of faith at home and among all peoples of the earth.

Revising of Reserves Shows Their Value

Announcement of the program for strengthening the Reserve Components underscores the increased emphasis being given to improve their state of readiness to support the nation's total defense effort.

Under the reorganization plan, for example, improvement in the combat readiness of reserve units will come from increasing personnel strength in high-priority units, raising of recruiting standards, and providing a higher level of skills in units.

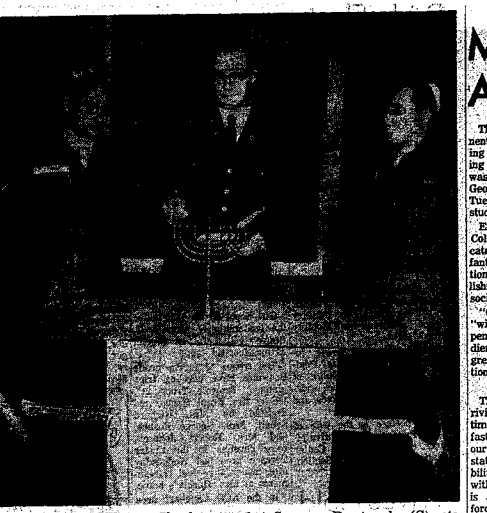
These actions serve to underline further the point that One Army has moved from a concept to a full-fledged reality. This fact was vividly demonstrated by the combined team effort of the Active Army and the Army National Guard and Army Reserve in the 1961 Berlin crisis. One Army is a three member team, but it is one team with one mission: immediate response to defend the nation and the free world.

The capability of all Army components to respond rapidly in an emergency is the key to military readiness today. Recent events have demonstrated that we can no longer regard the Reserve Components as "bench strength" to be called out only under general war conditions. Berlin in 1961 shattered this concept. Gone, too, is the luxury of time we enjoyed in World Wars I and II when we were able to mobilize at a comparatively leisurely pace behind the protection afforded by the oceans and our allies. Cuba, in October 1962, is grim testimony to this fact.

Today's active Army is not only flexible and versatile in organization, modern in weapons, and forward-looking in strategy and tactics, it is also ready around the clock to cope with Communist aggression wherever it occurs. Immediate responsiveness is more than a by-word; it is a fact.

As the principal source of Army strength in depth, the Reserve Components must be equally responsive in providing the numbers and kinds of units in the state of readiness required by current war plans. Certainly, the new look in the Reserve Components will contribute to greater mobilization readiness in the future. For, now, Reserve Component units, in their reinforcement role, will be aligned more closely with current contingency plans—plans which call for the combined efforts of the One Army team.

Head of Chaplain's Board Sends Holiday Greetings



In behalf of the Armed Forces Chaplains Board, I extend Christmas greetings and sincere good wishes to each man and woman in the Armed Services. May this be a blessed Christmas for you wherever your duty assignment requires your services.

The present hour in history demands, more than any hour in the past, that we who know and believe in man, freedom, truth and God, be on the offensive at every front. This requires moral courage, willingness to make personal sacrifices, and the ability to respond to the highest call of duty.

It is tragically evident today that the real "community" for which mankind is longing has not been established. It can be built only when the imagination and will of the peoples of the world are captured by Him whose greatness was that He came not to be ministered unto, but to minister.

This is the call of Christmas 1962. This can bring peace on earth and good will to all men.

HANUKKAH RITES . . . Chaplain (1st Lt.) Seymour Prystowsky (C) sets up an eight-branched Menorah for celebration of the Hanukkah Festival as PFC David L. Schack (L) and PFC Harvey A. Birnholz assist. Hanukkah will be observed at the Jewish Center, Bldg. 1071, Saturday through Dec. 29 with candle lighting services at 6 p.m. each day.

Hanukkah Observance Scheduled

Jewish personnel here will observe the Hanukkah season Dec. 22 through 29 with candle lighting services each day at 6 p.m. at the Jewish Center, Bldg. 1071.

Other scheduled events include a Hanukkah party for children at 2 p.m. Sunday, and one for adults at 8 p.m. Saturday at The Center.

The annual celebration of Hanukkah among Jews the world over focuses attention upon a story of military valor and epic bravery with significance for freedom - loving men of all faiths.

Hanukkah commemorates a military victory in 167 B. C., the first recorded struggle for human liberty rather than material gain.

Palestine was ruled by the oppressor, Antiochus IV, king of Syria. Under the leadership of Judah Maccabee and his brothers, the Jews threw off the yoke of oppression and set about cleansing the Temple.

Sacrifices were offered and lights were burned in an eight-day joyous celebration. Throughout the centuries since that victory, Jews have lighted one candle each day for eight days in commemoration of Hanukkah.

JOINS RANGERS

First Lt. Arthur D. Osborne Jr. has been assigned to The Infantry School's Ranger Department. The officer comes to the department from Korea, where he served with Company E, 2nd Battle Group, 34th Infantry from Sept. 26, 1961, to Nov. 2, 1962.

President Kennedy Sends Yule Tidings

"At this season, when men's hearts and thoughts are alight with the hope of a lasting peace in a world of good will, I would like to express the appreciation of a grateful Nation to the men and women of our Armed Forces — to you, our guardians of peace in a world of danger.

During the past months, your quiet readiness has proved vital to the preservation of peace at times when world freedom has been in hazard. Those whom you defend send their thanks to you — and we all express our gratitude that the strength of our Armed Forces is thus used to assure the blessings of liberty for all men everywhere.

To each of you, I extend warmest good wishes for a joyous Christmas and for a New Year of happiness and tranquility."

JOHN F. KENNEDY

Merry Christmas, Says Mr. Vance

I extend to all of you in the United States Army—our men and women in uniform and our civilian employees—my best wishes for Christmas and the New Year.

During the past year many of you have been called upon to make great sacrifices in the interest of your country's continuing search for a permanently peaceful world. In the year to come these requirements for sacrifice on your part will undoubtedly continue. To all of you go my heartfelt thanks for what you are and will be doing in this great cause.

May you and your families enjoy the full blessings of this Holy Season, and may the world be guided into the way of justice and lasting peace.

Military Editor, Columnist Addresses Students of TIS

The role of Reserve components in supporting the increasing role of the Army in achieving U. S. national objectives was stressed in a speech by George Fielding Eliot here Tuesday to Infantry School students.

Eliot, the military editor of Collier's encyclopedia, syndicated columnist, author, ex Infantry major, defined our national objective as the establishment of environs where free societies can flourish.

"Gaining this goal," he said, "will in the last analysis depend on trained and armed soldiers standing between the aggressor and the threatened nation."

Key to Success

The key to the success of arriving at this position with the timeliness required in today's fast moving events depends on our freedom of mobility, he stated, and our freedom of mobility depends on the speed with which the United States is able to bring its Reserve forces into a state of combat readiness.

"At present," he continued, "the United States has 16 divisions, eight of these are overseas and eight are in this country."

He outlined a situation where the United States could be confronted with two or three emergency situations at one time, pointing out that if one were to occur in Europe our NATO commitments are such that we must be able to provide six divisions.

"This is where the Reserve forces come into play," he said. "We must be able to bring forth Reserve divisions to replace those sent out of the country."

Referring to the recent crisis in Cuba, he said five divisions were alerted and moved, and ready go to on the island. If an invasions had taken place Russia would have been forced to respond with something and the most likely place would have been in Berlin, necessitating an immediate response to our NATO obligations, the speaker told the group.

Without a ready Reserve force to reconstitute the active Army our national defenses would have been seriously impaired, he added.

Cuba 'If'

"If Cuba had been invaded," he stated, "five or six National Guard divisions would have been called into active duty," and it would have been necessary to make them combat ready at once.

"The vital element is time," he said, "the time it takes between the time the emergency is noted and the time they (Reserve forces) can be brought to combat readiness."

He pointed out he call-up of the Reserves in 1961 showed the need for certain Reserve and National Guard elements to be combat ready. These have been given high priority, Eliot stated.

"The high priority divisions are expected to be combat ready in eight weeks," he said, adding that the experience gained in the 1961 call-up indicates that about 12 weeks would be required.

The success of the Reserve program depends on the citizen soldier and the dedicated nucleous of professional or semi-professional officers and non-commissioned officers who run the units, and the training the men deceive, he commented.

"We should give the Reserve units back to the company commanders," he emphasized, pointing out that the bringing together of Reserve divisions for 15 days during the summer is unrealistic.

"Such training only benefits the higher echelon commanders and does little for the average Reservist," he said.

By giving the units back to the company commander Eliot felt the available training time would be more effectively utilized.

Suggestion

As an example he suggested as a substitute for summer training camp, realistic maneuvers in which company size units would participate, because it is these small units that are the backbone of the Reserve forces.

Introducing Eliot the members of the Infantry officer career classes was Brig. Gen. Royal Reynolds Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School, saying the writer was a fellow Infantryman, referring to his combat service during World War I as an Infantry platoon leader and later as a battalion commander.

Earlier Eliot held a press conference with several members of the Columbus Ledger and Enquirer newspapers.

Topics touched on ran the gamut of current events from the recent Cuban crisis to the Skybolt missile program, the subject of a meeting in the Bahamas between President John F. Kennedy and England's Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

The Skybolt missile is a manned aircraft nuclear weapons system and Eliot feels the values to be gained from carrying out the program do not warrant its continuation.

By continuing the program we could possibly commit Britain to a type of weapon that air defense systems will have made obsolete.

Eliot feels that the United States came out of the Cuban crisis with a definite advantage.

For the first time in a long time, he said, U. S. citizens are confident and are ready for positive action.

By removing the threat of nuclear blackmail, which was removed by Premier Khrushchev's backdown, we and our Allies are in a much better position for positive action, he said.

The noted author was guest at an official luncheon in the Main Officers Open Mess after the 11 a.m. speech. The luncheon was hosted by Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center and commandant of The Infantry School.

Gen. Taylor Recalls Past Yule Periods

As the Christmas season draws near, we in the Armed Services once again pause to offer our thanks for the blessing of peace and freedom which our nation enjoys. This year, again, we are faced with militant communism testing our strength and determination. We have learned from bitter experience that there are those who would destroy not only Christmas, but our religion, our way of life, even the bonds of family.

The Armed Services can look back on many seasons when they have kept vigil on the ramparts of freedom on the frontiers of many countries. The obligations of service require many of our men and women to be separated from home and family. This is a sacrifice which is particularly keen during the Christmas season. Our families abroad can take a deep satisfaction in the knowledge that by their service in defense of peace, they are giving a priceless Christmas gift to their country and to the entire Free World.

To all men and women of the Armed Services and their families, overseas and at home, I send my warmest wishes for a Merry Christmas, together with my sincere hope for a joyous New Year.

GEN. MAXWELL D. TAYLOR
Chairman, Joint Chiefs of Staff

Allotments Will Change In January

Class Q allotments to dependents of Army personnel in pay grades E-4, with more than four years of service through E-9 will be discontinued as of the end of January.

These individuals may, however, establish Class E allotments for their dependents.

All echelon commanders urge enlisted personnel in pay grades E-4 through E-9 to give immediate consideration to the discontinuation and to initiate new allotments necessary for support of their families.

Particular attention should be given to planning for contingencies such as unexpected transfers which separate Army members from their families. A primary purpose of the Army's allotment system is to help individuals to transmit funds to support their dependents.

Enlisted personnel will be counseled to use this service when appropriate.

Woman's Club Christmas Luncheon Held at MOOM

A Nativity scene in tableaux climaxed a Christmas program at a luncheon recently attended by 220 members of the Woman's Club in the ballroom of the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Guests of honor included Mrs. Ben Harrell, wife of Maj. Gen. Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center, honorary president of the club; her mother, Mrs. Charles Campbell; Mrs. Royal Reynolds Jr., wife of Brig. Gen. Reynolds, assistant commandant of The Infantry School; Mrs. Stanley L. Harding, wife of Brig. Gen. Harding; Mrs. John T. Corley, wife of Col. Corley, and Mrs. Robin Montgomery, wife of Col. Montgomery.

The program was arranged and directed by Mrs. Robert J. Whitehead and narrated by Mrs. John L. Waldrop.

Principals in the pageant were Mrs. George H. Neroutsos as Mary; Mrs. George Kraft, Joseph; Mrs. William D. McMonagle, angel; Mrs. Charles W. Chapman, Mrs. James P. Snooks and Mrs. Edward R. Castle, wisemen; Mrs. Charles F. Lenzi, Mrs. William E. King and Mrs. Kenneth Miller, shepherds.

Soloists were Mrs. Donald S. Gelke, Mrs. Walter F. Wall and Mrs. Richard Lamb.

Members of the chorus were Mesdames James S. Douglas, Albert H. Krapf, Raymond F. R. Tomlinson, Roland W. Young, Gelke, Warren D. Hodges, Hollis C. Lewis, Peter Dawkins, Wall, Charles E. Feuerbacher, John C. Snodgrass, Eugene A. Doerfler, Thornton W. Cutler, John M. Barnes, Lamb and J. C. Hileman and Miss Carol Nichols.

Accompanist was Mrs. George F. Marko, while the production chairman was Mrs. James H. Phillips. Lighting was arranged by 1st Lt. William Bloemsma and make-up by Mrs. Leander R. Hathaway.

Decorations were provided by ladies of The Infantry Board, with Mrs. William M. Summers as chairman. Two members of the decorations committee, Mrs. A. E. House Jr., and Mrs. Joe Martinez, designed the decorations, featuring angels and candles.

Other members of the committee were Mesdames John C. Cougill, Leonard E. Daems, Gordon E. Gunion, George E. Hudson, Roy L. Inmao, Warren Walters and Robert C. Williams.

Mrs. John Kelly Named Area Seal Chairman

The First Lady of Christmas Seals for the Columbus Area is Mrs. John E. Kelly, wife of the deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center. Mrs. A. Edward Smith, president of the Columbus Area TB Association, announced her appointment as honorary chairman of the annual Christmas Seal Campaign recently.

Her position is the local parallel of that held by First Lady Jacqueline Kennedy, honorary chairman of the national campaign.

She opened the campaign here early in November by presenting the Columbus area's first sheet of Christmas Seals to Mrs. Ben Harrell, wife of the commanding general of The Infantry Center and organizing Army wives to volunteer service to the local TB Association.

In making the announcement, Mrs. Smith spoke of the singular problem the Christmas Seal Committee faced. "For our own First Lady of Christmas Seals, we wanted someone, who, like Mrs. Kennedy is a woman of warmth, charm and accomplishment, a woman who has won the love and respect of the community.

"Our list of candidates grew by the day. Our difficulty came in selecting one among them. Truly, one of Columbus' greatest assets is its large number of women who work unselfishly for the community good," Mrs. Smith said.

As a symbol of her position, Mrs. Kelly received a hand-lettered certificate for meritorious service in the crusade against tuberculosis.

Mrs. Kelly, in accepting said, "It is an honor to be named Columbus Area's First Lady of Christmas Seals. To have Mrs. Kennedy as national First Lady is indeed, an inspiration. I share with her the hope that this year's contributions will be the most generous ever. They are needed for the case finding, research and health education which can eradicate tuberculosis and control other respiratory diseases which have caused so much suffering in our land."

Mrs. Kelly reported that 5,088 letters containing Christmas Seals were mailed to military personnel here. Some 758 persons have responded with contributions in the amount of $1,366. She said that "reminder notes" have been mailed to those who have not yet answered their Christmas Seal letter urging them to join the crusade against the number-one infectious disease killer.

Bride-Elect Is Honored At Shower

Miss Gladys Paulick, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Michael Paulick, was honored at a bridal shower Thursday at the home of Mrs. Robert S. Poydasheff.

Miss Paulick's engagement to 2nd Lt. Patrick O. Kelly, son of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. John E. Kelly, was announced recently, the nuptials to be solemnized Dec. 23 at The Infantry Center Protestant Chapel.

Gen. Kelly is deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, while Col. Paulick is director of The Infantry School Airborne-Air Mobility Department.

Guests at the shower included Mrs. Kelly, Mrs. Paulick, Mrs. Stanley Quigg of Australia, sister of the bride-elect, and other relatives and close friends.

The hostess is the wife of Capt. Poydasheff, executive officer of The Infantry Center Staff Judge Advocate Section.

Wives Hold Christmas Luncheon

The Medical Services Wives Club met at the Custer Terrace Officers' Club, Dec. 14 for their December luncheon.

Wives of Obstetrics—Gynecology, Urology and Preventive Medicine, with Mrs. John M. Lauderdale and Mrs. Edwin L. Adair as chairmen, were hostesses. The club was decorated in the Christmas tradition. Wreaths hung from the windows and each table had a distinctive centerpiece.

The members brought food and toys and three baskets will be given to needy families to brighten their holiday season. Mrs. George Schonhaltz, president, thanked each one for their generosity and introduced the folliwing new members: Mrs. William Black, Mrs. Clement A. McGarry, Mrs. Bruce Kehl, Mrs. Donald W. Thomas, Mrs. George Trick.

Goodbye was said to Mrs. John D. Farrell.

Mrs. Louis Dubilier, program chairman, introduced Miss Judy Davis who in turn presented Mrs. Albert L. Coughey. Mrs. Coughey gave a demonstration on wrapping Christmas packages and ribbon decorations. Each member was given a booklet on "gift wrapping magic."

The January luncheon will be hosted by the wives of X-ray—Laboratory and EENT Services.

Girl Scouts and Brownies Sing Christmas Carols

Tonight will conclude a three-day period of Christmas caroling by the post Girl Scout and Brownie troops.

The Main Post area was serenaded by Scout Troop 161 whose leader is Mrs. Datie Page.

Girl Scout Troop 116, under the leadership of Mrs. C. J. Benge, will carol at Martin Army Hospital tonight.

The troops of fourth grade Brownies have caroling trips planned. Brownie Troop 217, led by Mrs. Frank Harbor and assisted by Mrs. Richard Schott, Mrs. George Foshee, and Mrs. Robert Johnson, were caroling in the Custer Terrace area last Wednesday after which they had refreshments at Mrs. Harbor's home.

In the NCO Capehart area caroling will be done tonight from 6 to 8 p.m. by Brownie Troop 85, led by Mrs. Donnelly and assisted by Mrs. Crytzer and Mrs. Harloam. The carolers will include Linda Brines, Debra Baumgardner, Karen Steele, Kathy Brown, Sandra D'Eredita, Peggy Gordon, Judy Harloam, Deborah Newbern, Donna Newbern, Denise Crytzer, Anna Crawford, Laura Presnell, Patricia McGrossin, Jackie Howk, Catherine Belcher and Miriam Lopez.

Last Wednesday Brownie Troop 170, under the leadership of Mrs. Charles Holl, met at the home of Mrs. Daniel A. Gale. They sang Christmas carols in the Custer Terrace area, after which they will be served refreshments at the home of Mrs. R. C. Kaufman. Members of Troop 170 are: Jackie Austin, Cathy Bowen, Deborah Brown, Elizabeth Collier, Jane Gale, Carolyn Ginger, Joyce Holl, Dorothy Hooker, Jane Kaufman, Cheryl Moore and Dianne Scott.

Armor Birthday Marked By Formal Dinner Dance

Armor officers in the Fort Benning-Columbus area recently celebrated the 186th anniversary of their branch with a formal dinner dance at the Supper Club of the Main Officers Open Mess.

A display of the newest tank in the Army inventory, the M-60 main battle tank, and one of the earliest models, the M-3 light tank, was located near the Supper Clubs main entrance.

Guests were greeted by doormen dressed in the uniform of the early cavalry trooper.

Highlights of the evening included an address by Lt. Col. A. E. Seifert, chairman of the Armor Committee of The Infantry School, outlining the history and role of Armor, and the traditional cake-cutting ceremonies.

Paintings of the ageless cavalry trooper, "Old Bill," and evolution of Armor provided a backdrop for the occasion.

Decorations illustrating the combined arms concept of armor — red for Artillery, blue for Infantry and yellow for Armor — adorned the dining tables.

Sponsoring units were the Armor Committee, Command and Staff Department, The Infantry School; 2nd Medium Tank Battalion, 69th Armor; 3rd Reconnaisance Squadron, 7th Cavalry, and the 4th Medium Tank Battalion, 69th Armor.

And so comes Christmas, 1962, to Fort Benning! We have all celebrated many Christmases in different parts of this country and in foreign lands. What then makes this year's holiday so unique?

I would venture to say that it is because this is the first Christmas that all of us have been together, that we feel that this combination of young people that call Fort Benning "home" now has got to produce something good.

Though snow in this part of the States is rare, a blessed cold snap is predicted, so the holidays will still have something of the atmosphere of a Winter Wonderland. The beautiful decorations adorning houses and other buildings make it impossible to ignore the fact that there is something special in the offing.

The JADA Christmas Ball with its theme of "Green and Gold" will be a night of beauty and festivity for many tomorrow evining at the Main Officers' Club. Brat Barracks will be filled with gaiety on the 29th as Benning teenagers enjoy a semi-formal dance. The Sigma Delta Beta Sorotiy will hold their Christmas Social this same night.

Not only will we be exchanging gifts among ourselves this month, but most of us, through some club, will be sharing our blessings with needy families and individuals here at Fort Benning, in Columbus, and as far away as orphanages in Korea and Pakistan.

The Catholic Youth Organization, the Episcopal Youth of the Chapels, the "Follow Me" Club, the Junior Army Daughters of America, and Sigma Deta Beta all have charity projects as well as having made plans to sing Christmas carols on post, at Martin Army Hospital and at St. Francis Hospital.

The "big kids" are home from college or from jobs in other places! Saturday night I ran into a gang of people at the Gueymard's house. I recognized Bill McMonagle, Adrian Syple, Steve Huppert, Norman Sassner, Bill Heath, Bill Calahan and Jack Mott. By now many more should be home.

Though busily greeting old acquaintances, we have also had to say goodbye to two very hardworking girls. Johnnie and Barbara Hare are moving to Fort Leavenworth, Kan., this week. Johnnie was a sophomore at Columbus, and Barb, a freshman at the University of South Carolina. Both girls, the daughters of Maj. and Mrs. John F. Hare, were active members of JADA and Sigma Delta Beta. Barbara wrote this column last year.

In closing, I'd like to wish all the most wonderful blessings of Christmas to you and your family.

Make Tree-Trimming Fun With Unusual Ideas

It's fun to break out and try some new tree-trimming ideas. As a start, why not have several trees, to spread Christmas 'all through the house"? There are lots of possibilities.

Whether or not your living room is big enough to welcome the traditional big tree, you can buy additional table-sized ones specially treated to be fire-resistant and with a base containing a special formula to retain their freshness for weeks.

A white tree decorated with red roses will be dazzling in the dining room, and a kitchen tree laden with cookies (the kind that come with a hole in the center) will delight the kids. For dad's den or a boy's room, spray a tree with aerosol shaving cream — it puts up to look like real snow!

For a Christmas party for grown-ups, try a tree with olives and other firm canapes impaled on cocktail picks and hung tantalizingly on its branches.

Making a colorful ribbon tree — with snippets left over from your package wrapping — won't keep you tied up very long.

The birds on the windowsill will welcome a special tree tied with suet on its branches — and provide you with a merry Christmas morning watching them at work.

Start your "special tree" on its way to becoming a real masterpiece by deciding on the basic color — green, pink, white, blue or silver — you want to work with. Today's processed, table-size trees are available in a variety of colors.

Investigate different colors and shapes of lights on the market. These include lights with bubbles inside, those which flash on and off, and those which come in special, decorative bolders. Always keep outlet plugs some distance away from the tree for safety's sake.

If possible, allow yourself plenty of time for tree decoration — and share the job! Waiting until 2 a.m. on Christmas morning to make a great surprise for the children, but you should at least assemble your decorations, tools, stepladder — and a hiding place for the tree — beforehand. Tree decorating may take longer than you think, as does the assembling on complicated toys to go under it.

Don't forget the Christmas star — to go on the very tip of the highest branch. To make one, take an ordinary paper cup and mark the side of the rim in five even divisions (using a piece of string); then with scissors cut down to the base and press out flat.

Cut each petal into a point. Next, with a piece of aluminum foil, cover the star on either side — snipping off excess bits of foil. Star can be held to tree with cellophane tape.

Anzio Room Site of MTU Wives Party

A monthly luncheon for the officers' wives of the Marksmanship Training Unit was held last Friday at the Anzio Room of the Main Officers Open Mess.

Mrs. William C. Pullum, Mrs. Charles E. Feuerbacher, Mrs. William C. Morris, and Mrs. John W. Torbush served as hostesses.

The room was decorated throughout with silver and blue Christmas arrangements, including two silver Christmas trees with blue ornaments; silver candles "tarkers" with blue candles. The reservation table was graced with a blue cloth and held a silver and blue arrangement. A mother-of-pearl nativity set added a final touch to the trees.

Welcomes were extended to Mrs. Lewis B. Sharp and Miss Gail Storey.

Mrs. William S. Brophy gave a nice appreciation report from our recent project of helping the needy.

Everyone was reminded to attend the Kiddjes Christmas party Dec. 24, and was also that reservations are now being accepted for the New Year's Eve party where the Marksmanship Training Unit will have tables together.

Christmas Cheer Shines In Second

LITTLE BOY PUZZLED . . .
(See ORPHANS, Page 10)

By Colin Higgins

The big news in the division this week, is of course, Christmas.

Carols ring out from loud speakers, colored lights shine through the frosty air, life-like figures in pine-branched stables depict the Christmas Story, and Santa Claus, shouting "Season Greetings," merely rides his sleigh in front of Division Headquarters.

Christmas activities throughout the division are in full swing with both Service Club Two and Four preparing special Yuletide activities.

The 2nd Division Annual Christmas Carol Community Sing was held Wednesday. In front of a crowd of both civilian and military spectators Brig. Gen. Charles Billingslea, division commander, pressed a switch lighting up all the Christmas lights at Division Headquarters and, through radio remote, all the Christmas lights in the entire division.

After the benediction by Chaplain (Capt.) Robert C. Harllee, 9th Infantry chaplain, many of the spectators took the opportunity to tour the division area to see the Christmas displays built by the various units. Five buses took the sightseers through Sand Hill and Kelley Hill and returned them to Division Headquarters.

The outdoor Christmas displays were judged yesterday by a committee comprised of the Division Staff Judge Advocate, Lt. Col. Daniel A. Lennon, Jr., the Division Chaplain, Chaplain (Lt. Col.) James H. Fiser, the Division Inspector General, Lt. Col. George E. Armstrong, the Division Special Service Officer, Capt. Benjamin Vazquez, and

'Christmas Greetings' From Gen. Billingslea

I want to wish you and your families hearty greetings and best wishes for a happy Christmas season.

We as members of a busy Combat Ready Division have had little time during this last year to capture the true spirit of holiday occasions with our families and friends. I trust that on this Christmas season many of you will be afforded this opportunity.

I hope that we may all be touched by that Christmas spirit of "Peace on earth, good will toward men", during this yuletide season and use it to the benefit of our fellow man.

May each of you have a Merry Christmas, and may the New Year bring you success and happiness.

Seahorse I Sets Up Combat Test

Representatives of all units of the division participated in command post exercise SEAHORSE I Monday and Tuesday under the direction of Brig. Gen. Stanley L. Harding, assistant division commander, and Lt. Col. J. M. Connell, assistant chief of staff, G-3.

The purpose of the exercise was five-fold: (1) to exercise the division communications system (2) to provide training for commanders and staffs in a simulated combat situation; (3) to provide training for the fire support elements of the division in the employmeot of conventional and nuclear force and the employment of chemical, biological and radiological means in a simulated combat situation; (4) to provide training in the employment of Air Liaison Officer and Forward Air Controllers; and (5) an exercise of the division intelligence system.

Gen. Harding and Col. Connell, in coordination with Headquarters, 2nd Infantry Division, Brigade and other staff sections, planned and

Maj. Daniel French

Second Division Adjutant General Named New Information Officer

A new information officer has been appointed at the 2nd Infantry Division to head the division's public and troop information programs.

Serving now as the 2nd Division adjutant general, Maj. Daniel L. French is scheduled to assume full-time duties of information officer after the first of the year. During the interim, Lt. Jimmie E. Wilson, assistant information officer, will take on most of the responsibilities of information officer.

The division's new "IO" is a native of Springfield Mass., where he attended Classical High School and the American International College.

He enlisted in 1946, spending one and a half years as an enlisted man. Receiving his direct commission in 1948, Maj. French came to Fort Benning to attend the Special Associate Basic Officer Course.

He then joined the 34th Infantry Regiment in Japan as a platoon leader, later serving as battalion S-2 officer. He was with this unit at the outbreak of hostilities in Korea.

Going to Korea with the 34th, the major was wounded in 1950 and returned to Japan. His next assignment was as aide-de-camp to the commanding general of the Northern Com-

A Thousand Dollars!

26th Sends Orphans Love, Money

By 26th Infantry PIO

"A little from you means a lot to them" was the thought that guided the 26th Infantry "Blue Spaders" as they passed through the pay line recently and collected one thousand and five dollars to send as a Christmas gift to the St. Vincent's Orphanage in Neunkirchen, West Germany.

To realize the circumstances of this gift, we must go back to a dreary, snowy and cold day in 1959. It is Christmas Eve, and at a window in the St. Vincent's Orphanage of Neukirchen, a small town in the Saarland region of Germany, a small boy wipes away the mist and peers out on the whiteness of the surrounding terrain.

As he stands transfixed by the peaceful scene, a strange sight interrupts his solitude. A convoy of U. S. Army trucks and jeeps is approaching the orphanage, his home for as long as he can remember. Alarmed by this intrusion on his little world, and somewhat uncertain and apprehensive, he runs to the Mother Superior with news of "an invasion". He is told not to worry as this is a friendly visit by an American Army Unit called the 26th Infantry "Blue Spaders."

Dismounting their vehicles, the men of the 26th Infantry mingle with and befriend the children. "Santa," in the person of a "Spader" soldier appropriately costumed, steps from his 140 horsepower "sleigh" (a 2½ ton truck) loaded down with gifts. Children's eyes brighten, soldiers' hearts warm, and the first Christmas party given by the 26th Infantry at St. Vincent's is under way.

Many months have passed since that cold winter night in 1959 when the 26th Infantry, which had recently arrived in Germany under Operation Gyroscope, decided to informally adopt the children of St. Vincent's.

During the ensuing three years that the 26th was in Europe, the activities that were sponsored on behalf of the children became one of the much enjoyed and heralded highlights of the "Spader" social calendar. Numerous parties and gatherings took place, both at Neunkirchen and at the Spaders' home station in Baumholder. When the 26th Infantry left Germany in October, a gala, but somewhat sad, farewell party was held for the children at Baumholder.

The Spaders did not, however, stop with parties. A new washing machine, bicycles, baby carriages and cribs, a phonograph and numerous other items which, to these children, are never-before-enjoyed luxuries, were made possible by the men of the 26th Infantry. Willingly and generously responding to the frequent appeals on behalf of our "adopted" kids, the Spaders contributed more than five thousand dollars to St. Vincent's during their tour in Germany.

Due to the recent move to Fort Benning via ROTAPLAN, the Spaders will be unable to be physically present at St. Vincent's during Christmas, 1962. This, however, will not prevent them from being present in spirit. To this end, and to convey our fond wishes for a Merry Christmas to "our adopted kids" in Germany, the 26th Infantry sends this Christmas present to them.

SEAHORSE I moved into action at noon on Monday as the 2nd Division attacked the northern part of Fort Benning. The 2nd Division less the Brigade established an initial penetration of enemy territory for subsequent operations.

The Brigade, under the command of Col. John T. Corley, also participated in the exercise.

mand, a part of the Japan Logistical Command.

In 1952 Maj. French returned to the U. S. and Fort Benning, spending over three years as company commander and S-3 officer of the Infantry Officer Candidate School.

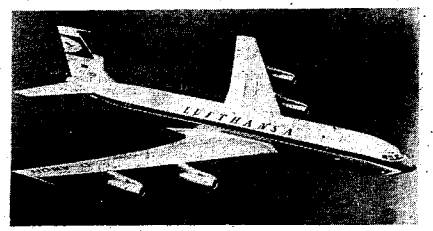
Joining the 25th Infantry Division as company commander and battalion S-3 officer with the 35th Infantry Regiment, he served a three-year tour in Hawaii.

Among Maj. French's awards and decorations, he holds the Silver Star, the Purple Heart, and the Combat Infantryman's Badge.

Lt. Wilson

Serving since the departure of Maj. Darwin C. Miller, former information officer, Lt. Wilson has held various public information positions throughout his 15-year military career. From 1951 to 1954 he was editor of the "Pointer View," the newspaper of the U. S. Military Academy, West Point, N. Y.

Later he was manager of the Armed Forces Radio Station on Eniwetok Atoll, Marshall Islands, with the Atomic Energy Commission. He also edited their daily newspaper, "The Atomic Times."



From there the lieutenant went to Florida and the Florida Military District as public relations executive officer and editor of the "Florida Reservist."

In 1959 Lt. Wilson traveled to Verona, Italy, and the Southern European Task Force to be manager of the Southern European Radio Network.

Following this tour in Italy he returned to Florida for a year to be administrative assistant to the commander of what is now known as the Florida Sector Command.

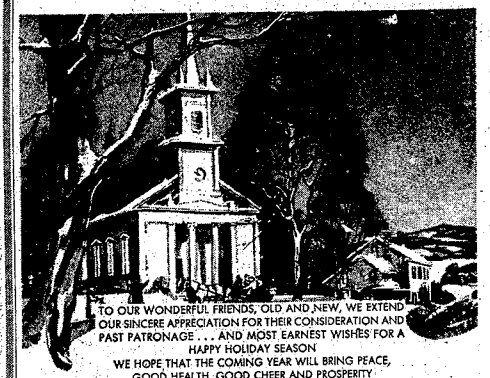
Ho! Ho! Ho!

A Miracle: Santa Claus Comes Home

For a while, things were looking rather bad for the 23rd Infantry.

The reason for all this was the loss of the perennial Santa Claus, MSgt. Raymond O. Dube. For the past three years, Sgt. Dube has played the role of Saint Nicholas to the delight of hundreds of 23rd kiddies at the annual kiddie party. Perfect for the part, his big robust voice can echo a hearty "Ho-Ho-Ho" so convincingly that even some of the grown-ups become transfixed and let their minds wander to the wonderful world of make believe.



But disaster struck in October when Sgt. Dube received orders for an assignment in Viet Nam, halfway around the world from Fort Benning and the Christmas Party. A sad battle group reluctantly said good-bye, even then wondering who could replace this rotund, jovial master of holiday cheer.

Then word was received last week that Sgt. Dube's orders had been changed, and that he was staying with the 23rd and his old job of assistant intelligence sergeant at the S-2 section.

2nd Division's Only 'Combat Secretary' Added Woman's Touch to Brigade Force

For soldiers asking the question "Who was that lady I saw you with at Brigade?" the answer is, "That wasn't just any lady. That was the only lady secretary I know of that ever worked for the 2nd Division.

Walking calmly into Brigade Headquarters recently and what might be referred to as a "combat situation," the 2nd's "combat secretary," Mrs. Virginia F. Davis, took up her battle station behind a Brigade typewriter. Some days she left as late as two or three o'clock in the morning.

Personal Secretary

The lady giving the valuable assistance has worked for 13 years in various capacities at Fort Benning. Her most recent assignment was as personal secretary to Col. Milton G. Schneider, adjutant general of The Infantry Center.

Considered a precious commodity, Mrs. Davis found her way to the 2nd Division's own brand of garrisoned battlefield recently to aid in the formation of Task Force Cobra, a most intricate and essential nucleus or "Go-Force" in the division.

A native of Jacksonville, Fla., Mrs. Davis worked with the Post adjutant general for six years. Her specialties make her a wizard at taking dictation, screening incoming calls, interviewing visitors, keeping appointment schedules and in treating dependent problems.

Drafted by the 2nd Division, she came to the Sand Hill area for the second time in her Fort Benning career. In 1951-1953 she was a receptionist in the Sand Hill Dental Clinic, helping get the 4th Infantry Division ready to go overseas.

Began at TSB

Her career at Fort Benning began at The Student Brigade. There she was a company clerk in charge of the complex handling of 300 personnel records.

Shifting later to The School Brigade, Mrs. Davis became travel pay clerk. Next came an assignment at the Officer Candidate Battalion as a stenographer in the evaluation section.

She continued on in evaluation when taking her next position with the 3rd Student Battalion. It was from the 3rd Student Battalion that she was called, six years ago, to come to The Infantry Center's Adjutant General's section.

Cited by Col. J. T. Corley, assistant division commander, for her four-day stand in the unprecedented around-the-clock operation at Brigade Headquarters, Mrs. Davis displayed "highly skilled performance, loyalty, diligence and thoroughness," qualities she has displayed in all her work for the military at Fort Benning.

Officer Graduates From CBN Class

By 15th Artillery PIO

An officer of the 15th Artillery Battalion has gained the distinction of graduating as honor student of a Chemical, Biological and Nuclear Warfare class held recently at The Infantry Center.

Lt. James G. Voss, reconnaissance and survey officer of the 15th, received a letter of commendation from Col. Sydney E. Sacerdote, Division Artillery commander, for having emerged top student in his class.

Lt. Voss, a distinguished military graduate of De Paul University, in Chicago, received a Regular Army commission in June.

Lt. Voss was assigned to the 15th Artillery in October, upon his completion of the Artillery Officer Orientation Course at Fort Sill, Okla.

2nd Div. Association Sends Actives Cheer

Blessings and best wishes from the 2nd Division Association to the active division were received recently in a letter from the Association's president, Mr. Percy Terwilliger.

"The 2nd Infantry Division Association wishes a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to all members of our Association in our active division" began the letter from the Association president.

Telling how the Association has grown to a membership of more than 10,000 the message went on to pledge continued close ties between active members and former soldiers of the "Indianhead" Division.

The letter also mentioned the upcoming Association reunion in San Antonio, Tex. Scheduled for sometime in July of the new year, President Terwilliger expressed confidence of as large a turnout as possible from the active division for the reunion.

"We plan on making this one of the all-time bang-up reunions for our Active Division, as San Antonio really was the home of the 2nd Infantry Division."

Following this, the letter returned to Christmas and the new year and the problems of world peace and the necessity for potent, combat-ready military forces to keep world peace.

"At this Christmas time we think of peace in the world, but we who have formerly served in the Indian Head Division are fully aware that only a strong, well-trained military force, such as our Second-to-None Division, can actually keep the peace in this troubled world.

Once again your Association wishes all of you a wonderful Christmas and New Year and that you may find 1963 to be one of the finest years of your life."

NOW AT 23RD
Capt. Menetrey

7th Officer Now at 23rd

By 7th Infantry PIO

An honor graduate of the Ranger School, Basic Infantry Officer Course and the Advanced Infantry Officer Course, all of Fort Benning, was recently assigned to the 23rd Infantry's Combat Support Company as commanding officer.

Capt. Louis C. Menetrey arrived at the unit from the 7th Infantry where he served as adjutant.

After serving four years as an enlisted man in the U.S. Navy from 1947 to 1951, Capt. Menetrey entered the University of California at Los Angeles (UCLA) where he received his Bachelor of Science degree in political science. Upon receipt of his Reserve Officer Training Corps commission in June 1953, he was assigned to The Infantry School where he attended Ranger and Airborne training. A year of duty in Germany and Fort Campbell, Ky., saw the California native assigned to the U.S. Army Administrative Detachment on the Eniwetok Atoll in the Marshall Islands.

The captain returned to Fort Benning where he attended the Advanced Officer Course from May 1959 to May 1960. He was a nuclear weapons instructor there from that time until September 1962 when he joined the 7th Infantry. During the Cuban Crisis he served additional as the assistant S-3 of the 2nd Division Brigade.

Among his awards and decorations are the Army Commendation Medal, Ranger Tab, Parachutist Badge, Army Occupation Medal of Germany, National Defense Service Medal and the Expert Infantryman's Badge.

Letter From 38th Wishes Merry Christmas to All

Second Division soldiers who left families and friends at Fort Benning to rotate to Germany with the "Rock of the Marne" 38th Infantry, sent greetings recently to their relatives and friends through a letter signed by battle group commander, Col. Maurice C. Holden.

Unable to join their friends in the Fort Benning-Columbus area, men of the 38th communicated Christmas and New Years greetings through a letter now on display at the 38th Infantry's Rota-Wives Family Service Center, Building 1101, Fort Benning.

Col. Holden, writing on behalf of his entire unit now training on temporary duty with the 8th Infantry Division in Baidholder, Germany, addresses all wives, families and friends of the 38th Infantry.

Chaplain's Christmas Letter

Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Fiser

In this season of Christmas time our minds are usually filled with thoughts of good will, peace, love, and brotherhood. We know that such fillings are not always prevalent, and we of the Army have seen much evidence of this fact. In the past year, we have seen violence and greed and the lack of brotherhood. But we have also seen the finer and higher ideals of mankind expressed in many acts of love and peace.

So at this Christmas time let us look back on the blessings of the good side of man and express our firm belief in the ultimate victory of good and meet the challenge for the future with a renewed faith in the message of a child born in a manger at Bethlehem.

To this end, we greet each member of this Division, your families and your friends and say to each of you, "May your Christmas feeling last you throughout the coming year."

Christmas Party Thrown by Wives

The 2nd Division Officers' Wives Club met last week in a festival atmosphere to hold their Christmas luncheon at the Main Officers' Open Mess. Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. Clifford P. Hannum and the ladies of the 9th Infantry.

The Club was beautifully decorated in the red and green of Christmas. The luncheon tables followed the same theme with sprays of holly and pine cones along with miniature Christmas trees adorning the scene. Tiny red and white Christmas stockings marked each place setting. A hand-made ceramic Christmas tree highlighted the head-table and was given as a doorprize. Accenting the traditional Christmas tree was a large gold Ming tree decorated with gold sweet-gum pods and tiny red bows. This modern arrangement was mounted on a table covered in white cloth with the base of the tree draped in red velvet. Nestled around the base of the tree were hand-made white ceramic figures of the Nativity.

Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus were present for the afternoon's events. They found their niche from which to sell the 2nd Division Engagement Calendar for 1963 located in front of a backdrop featuring a sleigh and reindeers.

Special guests for the afternoon's festivities were Mrs. Louis Kunzig of Washington, D. C., mother of Col. Louis Kunzig Jr., chief of staff of the 2nd Division, Mrs. Thomas J. Cassidy of Tyler, Tex., mother of Mrs. Louis Kunzig Jr., and Mrs. F. T. Berry of Indianapolis, Ind., mother of Mrs. Clifford P. Hannum. Mrs. Sara Spano from the Society Section of the Columbus Ledger was also a guest at the luncheon.

Members of the Columbus College Choir led by Larry McClure, assistant director, gave a program of varied Christmas carols.

CHAIRMEN

Chairman of the decorations committee for this luncheon was Mrs. James M. Halpin who was assisted by Mesdames Roy J. Herte, Raymond P. Komaniecki, Nathan Turner, Robert C. Harlee, William C. Graham, and Andrew C. Tinker.

THE CLAUSES DISPLAY THE ENGAGEMENT CALENDAR
From left, Mesdames Hannum, Clark, Berry, Harris

Mrs. Clifford P. Hannum and Mrs. Donald T. Paul arranged the menu aided by Mrs. Charles R. Latta and Mrs. Eldridge C. Childress. Mrs. Wendell F. DeLaMare and Mrs. S. N. Soldato planned the doorprizes. Refreshments were served before the luncheon by Mesdames Robert S. Sage, Kenneth L. Willoughby, Hiram Ballou, John C. Lamb, R. W. Douglas, R. A. Given, R. K. Gann, and H. H. Owen. Publicity was submitted by Mrs. Richard K. Holaday.

The Nativity scene was made by Mrs. R. K. Gann while Mrs. Wendell DeLaMare was in charge of fashioning the ceramic Christmas Tree. Mrs. Raymond P. Komaniecki designed the gold Ming tree.

There will be no January luncheon. February's program will be a presentation of "I Am The Infantry".

Division Trains Party

The officers and their ladies of Division Trains held their Christmas event on Thursday, December 13th, at the Custer Terrace Officers' Club. Host and hostess for the evening's festivities were Col. and Mrs. John F. Staples.

Special guests attending were Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Charles Billingslea, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Stanley L. Harding, Col. and Mrs. Louis Kunzig Jr., and Col. and Mrs. Sydney Sacerdote. Lt. Col. and Mrs. Edwin O'Donnell, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Richard O. Stewart, Lt. Col. James Connell, and Lt. Col. and Mrs. Jack Compton were also special guests of the evening. Mrs. Thomas J. Cassidy, mother of Mrs. Kunzig, was also in attendance.

THE LINCOLN CENT

The Lincoln cent, minted first in 1909, was the first regular issue one-cent piece to bear the likeness of an actual person.

Indianhead Ladies Set Yule Parties

Two parties will be held by the Ladies of the Big Indianhead to round out their Holiday Season activities.

Both parties will be held tomorrow at the ladies club house.

The first will be for the members' younger children, up to 12 years old. It will begin at 1 p.m.

The second will be a teenage party, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

All children of members of the Ladies of the Big Indianhead are cordially invited to attend.

Mrs. Kolb Has Coffee to Fete Armor Ladies

Mrs. James T. Kolb and Mrs. Dave Termin Jr. co-hostessed the Christmas coffee held for the ladies of 69th Armor in Mrs. Kolb's home recently. Mrs. Termin poured.

Table decorations were arrayed on a red tablecloth trimmed with white fringe and included a red and white toothpick Christmas tree highlighted on each side by hurricane lamps filled with Christmas tree ornaments.

Mrs. Russell H. Platt was welcomed to the unit at this coffee. Mrs. Robert J. Thomson will be the unit's new publicity chairman.

I think that we shall always see God's gifts upon our Christmas Tree, You cannot touch them with your hand, Yet they are there at your command. There's joy and faith and hope renewed, There's laughter for a happy mood, There's gratitude for each new day, A time to think, a time to pray. The Christ idea with holy light Shines clear to make your pathway bright. These things are yours if you can see God's gifts upon your Christmas Tree

French Cooking Speciality Of Mrs. Acey Atkinson

BY JAMIE ROEDER

Have you ever heard of a completely military family tree? Well, one belongs to Acey Atkinson, wife of Lt. Col. Quinton C. Atkinson, commander of the 7th Cavalry.

When Acey Williams Atkinson was born at Fort Snelling, Minn., she began a life which would afford her a lengthy education in moving from one end of this world to the other as a military dependent. When looking over her family tree and that of the colonel's, she tells of two families whose participation in the military covers many branches of the Army.

For Acey it all began with being the daughter of an infantryman, Col. Norman P. Williams, (Ret.), now of Springfield, Va. Her brother is Lt. Col. Norman L. Williams, Corps of Engineers, stationed at Fort Belvoir, Va. Cols. Atkinson and Williams were classmates at West Point. A bit of the international flavor [illegible] Norman L. Williams is the daughter [illegible] Kay Williams.

Mrs. Atkinson

Acey's father was stationed with the Army at the Conway Senior High School of Conway, Ark. Later she attended the College of New Rochelle in New Rochelle, N. Y. and also Syracuse University at Syracuse, N. Y. as a Liberal Arts Major.

Wishing to satisfy her interest in the art of interior design, Acey entered the Traphagen Art School in New York City. Cadet Atkinson soon entered the scene and Acey Williams met her future husband. She became a June bride several days after Lieutenant Atkinson graduated from West Point in 1943.

Mrs. Atkinson lists bridge, reading, and dogs as her hobbies. Two eager wire-haired Dachshunds are the focal points of one of those hobbies. Dainty "Miss Mizzou" is better known as "Miss Priss" while "Benny" is nicknamed "The Lump". This family is very fond of animals as evidenced by the fact that while in France they had in their household 18 dogs including puppies and eight cats including kittens. Mrs. Atkinson hastily added that these animals did not join the family all at one time.

At Fort Benning Mrs. Atkinson is a member of the 2nd Infantry Division Officers' Wives Club, the Club's Board and the Gray Ladies.

When asked about an ambition, Mrs. Atkinson stated that she always had the desire to parachute from a plane. She added that she would prefer to do it under pleasant circumstances and not as the result of an emergency.

And now let's complete this family's tree. The Colonel's father is Col. P. J. Atkinson, retired, and a former Artillery man. In far-off Taiwan and the Conway Senior High School of Conway, Ark. Later she attended the College of New Rochelle in New Rochelle, N. Y. and also Syracuse University at Syracuse, N. Y. as a Liberal Arts Major.

Eighteen-year-old Terry Atkinson, son of the colonel and his lady, is attending West Point Prep School at Fort Belvoir, Va.

Ladies of Big Indianhead Celebrate Holiday Season

The December luncheon of the Ladies of the Big Indianhead was held recently at the club house.

Baked ham, with various delicacies was served buffet-style to approximately forty ladies. Catering service was done by the 2nd Division Noncommissioned Officers' Open Mess.

Hostesses for this affair were Mrs. Thomas Hovatter and Mrs. Wayne Cliff, assisted by Mrs. Clyde Hardin. They selected a Christmas motif to decorate the lounge and dining area. Greenery, pine cones, wreaths and a Christmas tree helped to carry out the theme. Ceramic angels, candles and greenery graced the tables.

Each lady placed a gift under the tree and after the luncheon these gifts were exchanged among the ladies.

Mrs. James A. Scott, president, introduced as guests Mrs. Veronica Forester, Mrs. Raymond Hammer and Mrs. Lillie B. Neal.

Mrs. William McKinney, program chairman, led the ladies in playing bingo. She was assisted by Mrs. Robert Knowles and Mrs. Charlie Cranford. Bingo winners received surprises wrapped as Yuletide gifts.

Mrs. Norma Skarpness won a turkey as a door prize. The second door prize, an electric candelabra, went to Mrs. Robert Steele.

The Ladies of the Big Indianhead is an organization for wives of noncommissioned officers of the 2nd Division. Ladies whose sponsors are outside the division may join as associate members.

Season's Greetings from 2nd Infantry Division Officers' Wives Club

By Jamie Roeder

A familiar and popular song states "there's no place like home for the holidays and no matter wherever you may roam" and so on. But military families do roam the world over and many times find themselves away from the traditions that they have long associated with home and the holidays. It is possible that a small tinge of homesickness forces us to complain about Christmas with no snow?

Christmas, however, has never been "just a place." People have always been away from their homes at Christmastime. Mary and Joseph were travellers when Jesus was born. The Wise Men came from afar to offer gifts to the Holy Child. Even the shepherds were away from their families when the angel appeared unto them.

Capt. David S. Karne of the United States Air Force described our nomadic life during the holiday season with a few lines entitled:

"A SERVICE CHRISTMAS"

Ravioli, lasagna, Chianti wine, spaghetti, mancotti, it seems; Cachiatorri, like a Christmas story, Mama mia, tortoni ice cream.

Turkey and dressing, a Christmas blessing, approved cranberries from the store; Sugar cured hams and candied yams, pumpkin and mince pies galore.

Bully roast beef in England is chief, Yorkshire pudding, and more; A Christmas goose, cooked in the juice, and plum cake from days of yore.

Weinerschnitzel fine and old Rhine wine, or good Bavarian beer Sauerkraut and goose, leberknodel soup, fills Fasching time with cheer.

Chalupa con queso costs less than a peso, including chile and beans; Tortilla, tamale, tequila, gaucomale, is part of the Mexican scene.

Noel, Monsieur, is time for cheer, croissants and a crepe suzette; Pate, souffle, parfait, frappe, cognac and Nicolette.

Throughout the globe in each service abode, we again celebrate Christmas joys, With drink and food and brotherhood, and naturally, children's toys.

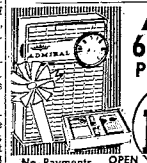
Though we move along, we still belong to the service family. We're here today, then on our way, either ZI or over the sea.

But where e'er we go, we always know, we've friend both far and near, Whom we which the best in this season blest, and peace in the coming year.

Merry Christmas to all from the 2nd Infantry Division Officers' Wives Club and your writer.

PRESENTS FOR THE MOTORCADE . . . Mrs. Eubert Linthicum (R) on behalf of the Ladies of the Big Indianhead presents to Mayor Steve Knight of Columbus the club's Christmas-gifts for the "Motorcade to Milledgeville". The gifts will be distributed to the patients at the Milledgeville State Hospital by the mayor.

702nd Bn. Ladies Bid Goodbye



By Nancy McLaughlin

A "Hail and Farewell" coffee was held by the ladies of the 702nd Ordnance Battalion recently in the Anzio Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess. The event was in honor of Mesdames Edwin M. Chandler, Wallace Landford and John E. Terrill.

Hostesses for the November coffee were Mrs. Noel R. McLaughlin and Mrs. Thomas J. Smith.

Mrs. Phillip Talf, wife of Lt. Col. Talf, commander of the 702nd Ordnance Battalion, poured. A floral arrangement of maroon, white and gold chrysanthemums decorated the refreshment table.

New arrivals to the unit attending the coffee were Mrs. John Crawford and Mrs. Max Grigg.

87th Retires CG's Sports Trophy for 3 Wins in Row

By Bob de Camara

As the 87th Infantry sat watching Saturday morning in the Kelley Hill Field House, Brig. Gen. Charles Billingslea presented Col. Raph H. Hughett, commander of the 87th, a trophy to keep "for the next hundred years or so."

The trophy was the Commanding General's Summer-Fall Sports Trophy, and Col. Hughett accepted it on behalf of his battle group which had just won it for the third time in a row. In the words of the division commanding general, "for the next hundred years or so" means that the 87th has retired the trophy.

This is the first time in division history that the trophy has been won three times in a row. Nevertheless, the general's words came as a surprise to the 87th. The men of the battle group were unaware that three consecutive wins retires the award.

The Commanding General's Sports Trophy is presented twice annually, the Summer-Fall trophy and Winter-Spring trophy. The five Fall sports for which the 87th won the trophy are, in order of their playing, tennis, golf, cross country, volleyball, and flag football. The trophy which has been in the 87th's possession for the past 12 months is now theirs to keep.

Here is how the 87th Infantry amassed more points than any other division unit. Over a six month span, the "Conquerors" accumulated a total of 363 points. Second place in division flag football was worth 85 points, and 25 points were awarded for completing the company level tournament.

SPORTS VARIETY

Sports activities within the 23rd Infantry during the Christmas holiday season are getting prime consideration by Lt. Louis A. Buhrmaster, battle group athletics and recreation officer.

In addition to basketball, contests in ping pong, pool, chess, and horseshoe pitching are to be conducted, with a battle group champion being chosen in each.

GEN. BILLINGSLEA (L), COL. HUGHETT
Col. Hughett Receives Sports Trophy for 87th

First place in division volleyball netted 135 points plus another 25 for company level competition. Second place in cross country earned 55 points, and golf and tennis rounded out the final figure, worth 10 and 8 points respectively.

Here are the final division standings:

Units	Points
87th Infantry	363
1st Infantry	348
Division Artillery	316

23rd Infantry Gets Ready For Basketball

By 23rd Infantry PIO

Tension is mounting within the 23rd Infantry as the annual battle group basketball competition draws near, and possibly a new battle group champion is in the making.

Ready to defend their title with three returning players from last year's winning team, Combat Support Company promises to be tough competition for all the challengers. Retaining the title is uppermost in their minds.

Showing early enthusiasm and promising victory to their supporters, the "Delta Devils" have made it clear to the current champions that holding on to the championship won't be easy. To back up their boasts, the average height of each of the "Devil" cagers is 6'2".

The other five company teams cannot be cast aside as "also-rans" before the competition gets under way. Headquarters Company has a reputation of springing upsets when least expected. And Company A, surprisingly, is maintaining complete silence on their plans, clearly indicating to those who know Company A that they have something big planned. "Charlie's Cougars", the current softball champions, seem content to just sit back and "purr," possibly because they are confident of a winning season. Activity noted on the Company E basketball court points out that they are determined for a crack at glory, and the basketball crown might just meet with their satisfaction.

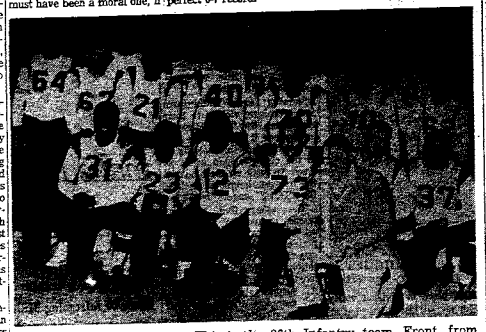
2nd Div. Flag Football Season Standings Tell Story of Units' Sports Competition

By Bob de Camara
2nd Division Sports Editor



Flag football season ended on a high note this year with the championship meeting between two undefeated battle group teams, the 26th and 87th Infantries. With the 26th's jarring 24-6 victory in that game, the 26th took the division title and pushed the 87th firmly into the second-place slot.

Third place ended in a three-way tie between Division Artillery, the 1st Infantry, and the 9th Infantry. The 1st Infantry got underway in the flag race late this year. Not starting until other teams had had three meetings, "Always First" dropped their first two games to the league powerhouses, the 87th and 26th teams. Following these, the 1st got rolling and won two games on the field and two by forfeit. Their only other loss was to Division Artillery, an outfit tough but inconsistent.

Artillery shared a fate common with the other teams in the league. Two of its disasters came at the hands of the "Conquerors" and "Spaders." Their third loss was a squeaker of a season-opening game which they lost to the 9th Infantry, 7-6.

The third third-place team, the 9th Infantry, suffered the same trouble as DivArty. Strong but not strong enough, the "Manchu Men" dropped the ritual two games to the 87th and 26th and then went on to complete the third-place cycle, losing to the 1st Infantry. This cycle saw the three third-place teams form a tight circle, whipping each other in turn. The 1st Infantry beat the 9th Infantry, the 9th Infantry beat Division Artillery, and Division Artillery beat the 1st Infantry.

In fourth place because of a bye, for them, team 2nd is third place, was Division Trains. Trains' only victims this year were 122nd Signal, representing the Separate Battalions, and the 23rd Infantry. Signal's only victory this year was the 23rd Infantry. The 23rd's only victory this year must have been a moral one, if anything, as they obligingly lost every league game. Turn about the league - leading 26th Infantry's final 7-0 record, and the 23rd comes out with a perfect 0-7 record.

By 26th Infantry PIO

The coach of the 26th Infantry's Division Champion Flag Football team has decided to retire from coaching after 15 years of participation in football which culminated recently in his "Spader" team's division victory.

SSgt. Harold "Mike" Hambrick has been the "brains" behind the "Spader's" brawn during this season. The balding (a hazard of the coaching profession), ex-marine assembled his team from scratch just scant weeks before the beginning of the season. He guided it to an undefeated season which climaxed at Essebagger field last week with the "Spaders'" 24 to 6 victory over the 87th Infantry "Conquerors". Commenting on the game, Hambrick said, "They couldn't have given me a better farewell gift, or a better birthday present." Hambrick was 45-years old the day after the big game on December 10.

"Mike" Hambrick has always been an avid devotee of football. He played on his high school varsity team in Forsyth, Ga., played service ball while serving in the Marine Corps, and semi-pro ball in Los Angeles in 1946, before turning to coaching.

His record as a football coach is impressive. His championship teams include the 1953 4th Infantry Division Touch Football champions, the Iceland Base Champs of 1956, and the 1958 Fort Jackson Post Flag Champs. (This team, the 1st Training Regiment, also took runner-up honors in 1959 and 1960). The sergeant has also coached the 1961 26th Infantry champions, D Company. In addition, he coached the 1955 Fort Meade "Generals" to a 7 and 2 record.

428th Medics Win First Half Major Unit Basketball

Medical Unit Takes Crown With Double Overtime, 104-103 Win

The 428th Medics took first place by defeating The Infantry Center Troop Command, 104-103, as first half of play came to an end in the Major Unit Basketball League.

It took the fast-breaking Medics two overtimes to down the TICTC cagers in a game that saw the score tied 14 times.

The Medics struck quickly in the opening minutes of the first period, building up a 9-1 lead behind the shooting of Harold Deane and Joe Sandbury. TICTC then called for a time out to regroup their defenses and tied the score midway in the second period at 31-31. As the half drew to a close TICTC regained the lead on a last second shot by Joe Tillman.

Both teams employed a full-court press defense throughout the game and at the end of regulation time the score was knotted at 83-83, as George Bell's two free throws for the Medics.

The first overtime saw the score tie four times until TICTC's Herbert Chavis put what appeared to be the winning toss through the nets with 0:11 left to play. However, Harold Deane gave the Medics their second life by tying the score at 91-91 as the first overtime came to an end.

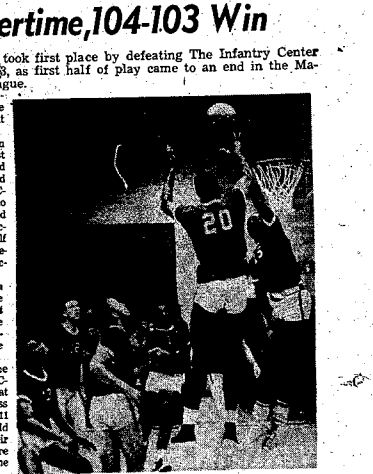
The second overtime was an exact replica of the first until the Medics George Bell stepped to the free throw lane to add the last two points of the night and cement down first place for the Medics.

High point man for the Medics was George Bell with 43 points while Harold Deane scored 29 points doing a backup job.

TICTC had three men hitting over 20 points. Hudson Ray and Herbert Cravis both scored 24 points while Bob Farley completed the trio scoring 21 points for the losers.

Infantrymen Win

In the first game of the night, the 30th Infantry went into a two-way tie for second place in the league when they handed the 56th Infantry their 5th loss 84-65.



Playing possession basketball all the way the 29th took a commanding 45 - 26 halftime lead and was never touched after that.

Jim Norsworthy led the 29th in scoring with 35 points with teammate Artie Bain contributing 26 points.

High point man for the 58th Infantry was Traymore with 26 points.

Department of Army Schedules Training Camps in Four Sports

By PFC Leo A. Zani

The Department of the Army soon will conduct a series of sports training camps to select individuals and teams to participate in the 1963 Interservice Championships, National Championships and the Armed Forces Pan American Games trials.

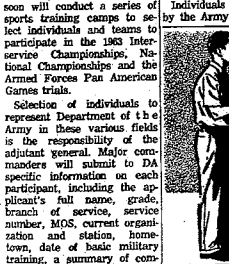
Selection of individuals to represent Department of the Army in these various fields is the responsibility of the adjutant general. Major commanders will submit to DA specific information on each participant, including the applicant's full name, grade, branch of service, service number, MOS, current organization and station, hometown, date of basic military training, a summary of competitive experience, and a statement attesting to the amateur standing of the applicant.

Commanders will carefully screen all prospects to insure that only those athletes of proven ability are nominated. The proficiency of an athlete must have been proven in the sport in actual competition during the past year. Nominees must be available and have sufficient service time remaining to cover the period of training and competition.

Training Sites, Dates

The training camps will be held in various parts of the country and will be scheduled under the Army eliminations. The dates for these events and the training sites are as follows:

Boxing—Feb. 7 to March 9, 1963, at Fort Myer, Virginia.



Basketball — Feb. 11 to March 13, 1963, at Presidio of San Francisco, California.

Volleyball—Feb. 19-25, 1963, at Oakland Army Terminal, Oakland, Ca.

Tennis — July 29 to Aug. 11, 1963, at Fitzsimmons General Hospital, Denver, Col.

Golf — Sept. 17 to 21, 1963, at Fort Monmouth, New Jersey.

Individuals will be selected by the Army to represent the team in these various fields.

STAND LIKE A FIGHTER . . . A bowler, like a professional fighter, can be made or broken by stance and footwork. Coupled with release, stance and footwork are the keys to successful bowling. Stance, for example, is basically a matter of balance. From the foul line, back off as many steps as you take. With body leaning partly forward, knees bent, shoulders facing pins squarely, distribute weight evenly on both feet. Positioning of feet is a matter of comfort. They can be together, slightly apart or one behind the other. Weight of ball should be supported by the nonbowling hand entirely. Now you are ready to start the chain reaction which should net you a good score every time.

All individuals must be of amateur standing. Nominations for boxing are due Jan. 15, 1963.

Individuals will engage in a concentrated training and physical program for 30 days under the guidance of competent coaches and officials. The selection of the team to represent the Army in the interservice competition will be based upon th boxing competition between the squad members.

Basketball nominations are due Jan. 15, 1963. The selection of the teams to represent the Army in the interservice competition and Armed Forces Pan American Game Trials will be based upon the athlete's ability during the training program.

Golf candidates are due Aug. 30, 1963. Candidates may include amateur and-or professional players.

Candidates for volleyball are due Jan. 15, 1963. Individuals must undergo a 15-day physical and concentrated training program under competent supervision.

Candidates for Tennis are due on July 13, 1963. Individuals may include amateur and or professional players.

Selection of military and civilian coaches and other officials will be accomplished by the adjutant general.

Fort Benning personnel who possess the qualifications outlined here are urged to contact the Atheletic Department of Special Services for entry in the various sports events.

USUALLY TERRAIN

In military operations a phase line is used for control and coordination. Usually this phase line is a terrain feature extending across the zone of action.

Instruction Offered by Flying Club

The Fort Benning Flying Club is presently conducting a series of courses in Aviation Ground School for student and private pilots in the Columbus area.

The classes, employing auro-visible aids system, are held on Monday and Wednesday nights for two hours at the Flying Club, Bldg. 2422. Classes begin at 7:30 p.m.

For further information concerning classes or lessons, contact Sgt. Ingle at 545-2949.

Though's Sports Scope

By Pete Shough

Last Saturday, with the north locked in sub-freezing temperatures, four college football teams opened the bowl season with the second annual playing of the Gotham Bowl at New York's Yankee Stadium and the Oregon State - Villanova classic at the Liberty Bowl in Philadelphia.

Although these bowl contests are considered minor and usually draw schools that aren't too highly rated in national standings, the brand of football played in these two bowls was certainly not sub-caliber.

In the Gotham Bowl, All - American quarterback George Mira stole the show and the hearts of the some 6,000 plus chilled fans with the passing wizardry of his golden arm. Mira set a University of Miami passing record tossing the pigskin 46 times with a completion record of 24. Mira certainly proved he is by every right an All-American.

On the other hand, Nebraska's junior quarterback, Dennis Claridge, was not to be counted out, as he moved the Cornhusker offense on the ground, through the air and eventually to a two-point victory over the orange and green. Claridge aired the pigskin only 14 times but completed nine. His most impressive drive was just before the end of the first half, when Nebraska received the ball on a Miami kickoff. Claridge calmly engineered the Cornhuskers to a tally in the remaining two minutes.

Up in Philadelphia at the Liberty Bowl, another All-American and Heisman Trophy winner, Terry Baker, led his chargers to a 6-0 victory over Villanova. Baker proved to the nation's sports writers that they were right in choosing him as the country's best back in college football when he ran 9 yards over the frozen turf to a touchdown and the game's only score.

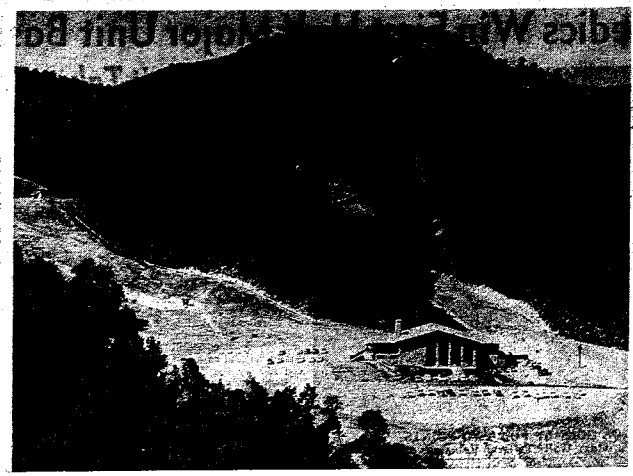
All and all, last Saturday was a day for quarterbacks, two of whom are juniors with next year to play. The college passing game may see a few new innovations with such passing greats as Mira, Claridge and Northwestern's Tom Meyers returning to the gridiron scene.

Tomorrow, post-season play gets another shot in the arm with two more bowl games set.

Ski Resort Day's Drive From Post

With the opening this month of a ski resort near Gatlinburg, Tenn., Fort Benning personnel with a love for winter sports can enjoy excellent slopes 300 miles from post.

Atop Mount Harrison, the $2 million resort offers two double chair lifts of Italian design with a capacity for carrying 800 persons an hour. Skiers last Saturday worked the chair overtime.



Some 1,300 feet above Gatlinburg, the resort's "expert" slopes extend 3,500 feet above the lodge on a 760-foot verticle with turns ranging to 40 degress. Intermediate and beginner skiers are able to enjoy runs of 2,900 feet.

Nestled in the Smoky Mountains, Gatlinburg is not unlike a small Swiss or Bavarian village. Since this is considered the "off season" the area's quality motels and restaurants are both inexpensive and plentiful.

Rental equipment including boots is available at the lodge at a nominal cost.

The best route from Fort Benning is to Atlanta; then Highway 23 through Gainesville, Clarkesville and Clayton, Ga.; then Highway 441 to Cherokee, N.C., and across the Smokies to Gatlinburg.

The trip in itself is excellent, as motorists will pass through some of the most scenic country in the southeast.

Immunization Is Scheduled

A mass oral polio immunization of post personnel, both military and their dependents, will be conducted in January, officials said.

All personnel are advised to take the oral (Sabin) vaccine, regardless of age or previous immunization with Salk vaccine.

The oral immunization campaign has been scheduled on the advice of the surgeon general of the Army and the U.S. Department of Public Health.

A schedule of immunization dates will be announced Jan. 4, according to Capt. Leonard P. Greenberg, chief of the Preventive Medicine Division of Martin Army Hospital.

Who Brings Your Gift Depends on Location

Who brings Christmas gifts? Throughout the ages, the act of giving has been shrouded in an air of mystery that surrounds both giver and gift. Since three Wise Men appeared suddenly out of the desert and myrrh for the new-born Infant at Jerusalem, Christmas gift-bearers have appeared and disappeared mysteriously every year.

In Spain, the three Wise Men still bring the presents and distribute them on January 6th, the Epiphany. Spanish children put their shoes out on the window sill and fill them with straw for the camels—then awake to find that the straw is gone and presents have been left in its stead.

In Italy, the gift-giver is La Befana—who is reputed to eat bad children as well as reward good ones. Legend has it that Befana was a woman who had been too busy with her housework to offer hospitality to the three Wise Men — and asked them to return when she was not so busy. They did not come back and Befana watches for them every Epiphany.

French children know that Le Pere Noel will come down from heaven and bring good things if they are well behaved—but if they are not, Le Pere Fouettard — Father Spanker—may arrive with a load of switches.

In Mexico, gifts come tumbling from a pinata —a gay clay bird or animal filled with fruit, candy, nuts and small gifts. The pinata is hung from a doorway or tree and the child, blindfolded, breaks the pinata with a stick. In the mad scramble that follows, each child strives to pick up as many gifts as possible.

In Denmark, presents are brought by the little gnome said to dwell in the family attic or barn—and in some parts of Scandinavia, gifts are brought by two gnomes—an old woman carrying a basket of gifts and an old man with a white beard wearing a red hood.

In Russia, Grandfather Frost often is assisted in his gift-bearing by the Snow Maiden. And in Holland, St. Nicholas rides upon a white horse while his black-clad servant, "Black Pieter," carries the gifts.

In ancient times, the gift-giver was a local bishop accompanied in a procession by demons who scattered at his approach. Perhaps one of these oldest Christmas processionals was one in which two "ghosts of the fields" dressed in straw led the way, followed by Pan, and behind Pan a masked and horned creature who carried a birch to chastise sinners.

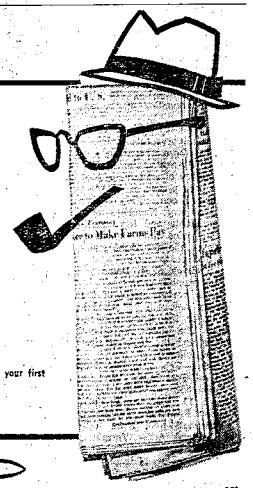
Patrolman Gives Talk On Safety

Pre-holiday safety briefings were given in two sessions here Monday for the benefit of military and civilian personnel of The Infantry Center's Signal Section.

The annual Christmas and New Year holiday boost to accident statistics provided the impetus for the orientations.

Sgt. Joe White of Americus, Ga., a safety director for the Georgia State Highway Patrol, headed the program which included two movies and a question and answer program.

The first part concerned hunting safety and the value of wearing clothes visible to other hunters.



Sgt. White was emphatic about the folly of carrying loaded weapons in cars, boats or any other moving vehicle.

"Don't load your gun until you actually begin hunting," he said. "The only place for a loaded gun is in the field or on the range."

NHA Drive Scheduled

NEW YORK (AFPS) — The seventh annual National Health Agencies drive for Federal service personnel overseas is scheduled for January and February, 1963.

The campaign is strongly endorsed by President Kennedy, who said that the agencies "need our generous support in order to serve us effectively."

The goal of the overseas campaign will be 100 per cent participation of military and civilian personnel of the Federal establishment.

The 10 health agencies included in the campaign are: National Association for Retarded Children, National Multiple Sclerosis Society, National Society for Crippled Children and Adults, National Society for the Prevention of Blindness.

Also the United Cerebral Palsy Associations, American Cancer Society, American Heart Association, Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation, Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America and the National Association for Mental Health.

President Kennedy, urging substantial support for the drive, said these agencies provide "the means to continue the fight for better health for all of us."

Air Intelligence Center Is Set

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Secretary of the Air Force has been given authority to establish an Armed Forces Air Intelligence Center under a new DOD directive which establishes a management system for such training.

The directive also provides that the Air Force collect and maintain, for the use of all DOD components, a current record of all DOD air intelligence training requirements, programs and courses.

Personnel of all services may serve on the staff and faculty of the training center which will conduct common air intelligence training programs and courses to satisfy the requirements of more than one defense component.

Christmas Party At Hacia Home

The ladies of the 4th Student Battalion held a coffee recently at the home of Mrs. Joseph E. Hacia.

The theme for the coffee was in keeping with the Christmas season and gifts were exchanged.

Honored guest for the occasion was Mrs. Otto R. Koch, wife of The Student Brigade commander.

A farewell gift was presented to Mrs. Chumley W. Waldrop, who is leaving for Europe with her husband. A welcome was extended to Mrs. Robert F. Schriver, a newcomer to the Battalion.

Co-hostesses for the coffee were Mrs. James E. Watson and Mrs. Hacia.

Third Army Acts to Better Materiel Readiness

FORT MCPHERSON, Ga. — Combat readiness requires both ready personnel and ready material.

CONARC has issued a directive that certain action be taken to improve the material readiness posture within CONARC and stresses that materiel is just as vital to combat readiness as personnel.

Third Army has taken action. In July, under staff control of the Army G-4, Col. R. S. Moore, three Command Materiel Readiness Inspection Teams and a Maintenance Assistance Team were formed.

The Command Materiel Readiness Inspection Teams, with five officers and 28 enlisted men on each team, are completely functional and are programmed to inspect all organizational units in Third Army during the year.

Established at Fort Bragg, Fort Benning and Fort McPherson, their function will be to identify and evaluate the status of maintenance through "on-the-ground" inspection of all Third Army active Army TO&E units. Each unit will receive four hours notice prior to an inspection.

The teams are responsible for inspecting the majority of the units at the station where they are physically located. They are assigned a sufficient number of the nearest installations to bring the number of units inspected up to approximately 280 per team per year.

The team at Fort Bragg inspects the majority of the units at Fort Campbell, both being airborne types and the team at Fort McPherson inspects a number of units at each installation.

To assure uniformity and thoroughness in the evaluation of a unit's maintenance, a training course was established providing members of the CONARC Teams with a common understanding of Army policies, procedures, and rating systems. This training was administered in three basic phases: group training at Third U. S. Army Headquarters, specialized training at the Senior Officer Preventive Maintenance Course, Fort Knox, Ky. and on-the-job training at Fort Benning.

The Maintenance Assistance Team at Fort McPherson will include one military and eight civilian technicians.

PROPAGANDISTS

Back in 1956, a study made by William Benton, publisher of the Encyclopedia Britannica, revealed that "through out the Soviet Union, there are about 6,000 special schools devoted exclusively to training professional propagandists. . . . [illegible] must be obtained from the

Urge Caution in Lighting

As the Yuletide holiday season approaches, post personnel are urged by The Infantry Center Engineer Section to exercise caution in the use of Christmas tree lighting and decorations.

Families who want pine trees for individual quarters may cut them along Red Diamond Road from Lafayette Road eastward to the reservation boundary.

Larg trees suitable for units or parties may be cut between Patton Range and First Division Road east of Dianda Range. Greenbriar is available in the Harmony Church area along the bank trail near Ammo Holding Area. Clearance must be obtained from the range control officer at 545-7633 before entering the areas.

Post fire regulations require that trees and flammable decorations used inside a government building must be chemically treated to reduce the fire hazard. All military personnel including those living off post, may obtain this service at Fire Station No. 2.

To prepare the tree for placing it in quarters, the Engineer Section advisers chopping it about an inch above the original cut. Then put it into a tub of water or wet sand and brace it securely. Locate the tree in a cool area and away from heat sources. Do not let it obstruct an entrance, even if it should fall.

TIC Chorus Is Recruiting New Singers

The Infantry Chorus is recruiting new members in an effort to bring its membership to 40.

The chorus, under the supervision of The Infantry Center Special Services Section, performs at post command and official functions.

All male personnel on active duty at The Infantry Center are eligible for membership.

Prospective members should have some background in music or choral activities such as school, church or community projects.

Final acceptance of applicants will be based on an interview or audition and approval by the choral director, 2nd Lt. Ruben A. Garwood.

After acceptance of an applicant, request will be made to the individual's unit commander for permission to have the applicant become a regular member of the chorus.

The chorus rehearses twice weekly, on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 1 to 5 p.m.

Anyone interested in becoming a member may contact Special Services at 545-7414 or 545-5641 between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m., Mondays through Fridays.

Tops His Chute Packers Class

Sp4 Ronald E. Padgett, Parachute Maintenance Section, 41st Company, 4th Student Battalion, The Student Brigade, recently graduated from the Parachute Packing, Maintenance and Aerial Delivery Course, Class 4, at Fort Lee, Va., with top honors.

Sp4 Padgett completed the 12-week course with the highest grade point average of 92.8 per cent.

In addition, E-4 Padgett won the Abbott E. Dodge Award for being the outstanding Airborne soldier in his class. This is the first time in several years both the top honors for the class and the Dodge Award have gone to the same person.

The class was composed of 33 enlisted men and officers including members of the U. S. Marine Corps and several Allied students.

Preventive Dentistry Officer

To begin the column this week, I want to wish all the readers a Merry Christmas. I hope and pray that you all will celebrate this happy season in the true spirit of the holiday.

Christmas time is a festive occasion as it well should be. Christmas candy has come to play an important part in the food customs which we observe. Fruit, nuts and candy are so frequently given by Santa Claus and his representatives as to be traditional.

This column is going to deviate just a little from its usual stand. We don't recommend that the candy be dispensed with nor any of the other treats. This is a very special occasion and we recognize this. We will ask you to be careful in how much you let your children have.

Candy as a treat is probably harmless. If this sounds like an unusual statement for us to make, stop and think. My dictionary says a treat is "anything that gives great or unusual pleasure; a delight". Now, if candy is a daily or even a frequent gift it then gives neither great nor unusual pleasure, does it?

If, on the other hand, you let your child have candy only on rare occasions, such as Christmas, Easter and birthdays, then it becomes a real treat. However, no matter whether his Christmas candy is a real treat or just another part of his regular diet, make sure he does what he should to avoid a dental treatment.

Just the minute he finishes that piece of candy, send him to brush his teeth. Don't let him spoil his enjoyment of Christmas with a toothache.

As far as tooth decay is concerned, a pound of candy at once will do less harm than a part of an ounce every hour, without brushing after each time a piece is eaten. We are not going to recommend that anyone eat a pound of candy at one time. This could be truly sickening.

But, I do want to make a point that continuous or frequent eating of small amounts of candy is much more harmful to your teeth than eating the same total amount at one time. Whether you eat large or small amounts, frequently or infrequently, brushing your teeth immediately after each time you eat it will help greatly to prevent tooth decay.

Surgeon Says

How Much Freedom Should Child Have?

By Capt. Roderick Comunale

How much independence and freedom should I give my child?

This question plagues many parents and is not an easy question to answer. A good many people, however, feel that if they relegate this problem to the back of their mind, it has been solved.

Does a two or three-year-old have enough intelligence to roam about our unfenced yards without supervision? Should a child of this age be allowed to play in the roads without reprimand? Should older children copy some of our unfavorable adult habits with parental consent? When should children of various ages be left in the home alone at night?

These questions are all offspring of our major question. When do parents fail in their responsibility to their children and society? When is the magical line crossed from excessive freedom to over protection? Certainly there must be a balance of these factors but when is the scale adjusted properly?

The two to six-year age group is an area where we must concentrate our interest. This is a period of slow physical growth compared to the first two years of life, but it is the age group in which dramatic emotional upheavals are occurring. These children are rapidly acquiring a feeling for independence, and as they grow older they begin to demand it.

There must be a mixture of parental approval and disapproval. There must be no parental conflict in the child's presence concerning his problems. If any exists, it should be postponed to a better time and place.

It is not wrong to limit your child's actions as the situation presents itself. Every child must have limits imposed upon him, and within these limits he is offered independence. As the child develops, these boundaries will be broadened to increase the experiences of the child.

It is unreasonable to allow your child free rein in all areas. Every child expects supervision and those who do not receive it at this age have many more problems at a later date.

The method of expressing disapproval is an individual matter and need not be expanded upon at this time.

A parent is not a parent solely to please his children. He has certain responsibilities toward them and must fulfill these duties in spite of the emotional hardships it incurs.

MAH Civilians Receive Honors In Ceremonies

Thirty civilian employees of Martin Army Hospital were honored recently for length of service to the government.

Col. William A. Todd Jr., hospital commander, presented 20 - year service emblems and Department of the Army certificates to Roy C. Graham, James E. Patterson, Benjamin F. McGruder, Fletcher W. Carter, R. J. King and Harper McKnight.

Mrs. James E. Foster, Mrs. Mack Hollis, Michael Jackson, Timothy Sanders, Eugene Pleas, William R. Almon, Ton H. Thornell and James E. McGhee.

Receiving 10 - year emblems and certificates were Mrs. Dewitt Thomas, Mrs. Ralph Nelson, Roy Z. Pickard, Mrs. Bertha M. Jones, Miss Eva L. Nichols, Roscoe E. Duncan and Mrs. Marlin R. McCaghren.

Mrs. Carl M. Phillips, Mrs. Richard B. Traugh, Mrs. W. C. Rhodes, Nester A. Grafals, Howard C. Roney, Moses Williams, Mrs. Margaret M. Wood, Miss Rose B. Burt and Mrs. Roberta S. Mayhue.

Christmas Festivities Not Always Allowed

Christmas is a time of re-joicing, and Americans customarily think of it in terms of a Merrie England sort of festivity — carol singing, plum puddings, roasts on the fire, a glittering tree and heaps of presents.

Yet one of the oddest sidelights in the history of the holiday is that at one time the British were forbidden by law to celebrate Christmas with good cheer.

Oliver Cromwell's Parliament in 1644 passed an act that made all the traditional Yuletide fixin's illegal. Roast a turkey or a fat goose for the holiday and you were a dead duck. You ended up before a glowering Puritan judge the next morning.

Not only was rich food forbidden, but Cromwell's regime made Christmas a day of compulsory fasting. It was held to be strictly a religious event at which any show of lightheartedness or high spirits was nothing short of blasphemy.

So Christmas celebrations became a thing to be carried on behind locked doors and shuttered windows. However, Cromwell's Roundhead cavalry, although it could prevent public observance of the day as more than an occasion for church-going and pious meditation, could not stifle the sturdy Briton's love of a good time.

There is evidence that plenty of cheery frolicking went on in private and that people danced and feasted as they had in days of King Charles I before Cromwell came to power. And there is evidence that the Puritan ban on non-religious Christmas celebrations was a powerful factor in turning the people against him.

When the throne was restored to Charles II, in 1660, the Yuletide lights blazed again; the carols rang out and all the genial traditions of the holiday were back in fashion.

OUT OF GROUND

Did you know that thousands of the precision instruments the U. S. soldier is using to keep the Army rolling along across mountains and plains are coming out of a hole in the ground? These instruments are made by the trained technicians of the Brunson Instrument Company, Kansas City, Mo., in the depths of a brightly lit, air conditioned cave bored out of the heart of a limestone mountain.

Hospital Volunteers 'Capped' in Ceremony

Hospital volunteer workers are carrying out an American "help-a-neighbor" tradition that dates back to pioneer days, 71 Nurses Aides, Staff Aides and Gray Ladies were told during recent capping ceremonies here.

Brig. Gen. Stanley L. Harding, assistant commanding general of the 2nd Infantry Division, told the class, "You are serving in the cause of humanity as an act of Christian charity, and thereby keeping alive a neighborliness established by our pioneer forefathers."

"The service you render the hospital is badly needed now," he continued, "but in the event of a disaster, this same type service would be a key of means of alleviating suffering."

Referring to the world-wide conflict of ideologies, Gen. Harding said, "We will succeed only to the degree that our competence and our dedication surpass those of the enemy. There are some powerful, unseen forces capable of tipping the balance one way or the other. They are the prayers of holy women, helping hands and a dedication to a useful common cause."

"These forces," the general said, "are our great unseen national treasure. This treasure provides a strength impervious to assaults from without—a strength that will inevitably triumph in the contest for human minds."

Graduates of the volunteer courses were welcomed to the exercises by Col. William A. Todd Jr., hospital commander.

Chaplain (Lt. Col.) James Blunk, hospital chaplain, gave the invocation and pronounced the benediction.

Mrs. William Summers of Portland, Ore., presided at the ceremonies. She is chairman of Volunteer Service on the post.

Lt. Col. Marguerite Lines, chief nurse at the hospital, capped the volunteers. Pins were presented by Mrs. Harding, wife of Gen. Harding.

D. F. Young of Columbus, chairman of the Muscogee County Chapter of the American Red Cross, presented certificates.

Nurses Aides capped include Mrs. John S. Ampa, Mrs. James Clodfelder, Mrs. James Compton, Mrs. Harold Evans, Mrs. William C. French, Mrs. Clyde Gerhard, Mrs. James Hancock, Mrs. Ralph Inman, Mrs. Anthony Jezior, Mrs. Manfried Kelman, Mrs. Robert Lambert, Mrs. Clifford Max, Mrs. Herman Misajon, Mrs. Robert Mosher and Mrs. Don Mullins.

Mrs. Joseph Murray, Mrs. Lloyd Payne, Mrs. Thonius Robinson, Mrs. Albert Seifert, Mrs. Stewart Sherard, Mrs. Francis Sheridan, Mrs. Jimmy Smith, Mrs. William Spencer, Mrs. James Thomas and Mrs. Charles Yoder.

Staff Aides include Mrs. Peter Bodette, Mrs. Amos Bryant, Miss Beverly Anne Chapman, Mrs. Harry Dorsey, Mrs. Frederick Doten, Mrs. James Green, Mrs. Edgar Egland, Mrs. Billy Heaton and Mrs. John Jeter.

Miss Joanne Leasure, Mrs. Bill McBroom, Mrs. Dennis Moore, Mrs. Robert Moore, Mrs. Robert Shelman, Mrs. Walter Smith and Mrs. Warren E. Walters.

Gray Ladies capped include Mrs. Sidney Anderson, Mrs. James Barnett, Mrs. George Booth, Mrs. Frank Bullock, Mrs. Ralph Burr, Mrs. Norman Carlile, Mrs. Maury Cralle and Mrs. Herbert Deiss.

Mrs. Robert Dickinson, Mrs. Richard Dow, Mrs. George Fisher, Mrs. Andrew Goodwin, Mrs. Kenneth Hangartner, Mrs. Joseph Hopkins, Mrs. Lester Lawrence and Mrs. James W. Napier III.

Mrs. Allison Nicholson, Mrs. H. W. Nieuwboer, Mrs. Phyllis Maynard, Mrs. Richard McMillen, Mrs. Leslie Preston, Mrs. James Raupach and Mrs. Robert Ricks.

Mrs. Sidney Roche, Mrs. R. L. Saxon, Mrs. Wade Smith, Mrs. William Stewart, Mrs. Clover Street, Mrs. Ben Walton, and Mrs. Barry Winkelman.

Certificates of appreciation for 200 or more hours of volunteer service during the year were presented to Mrs. Albert Beckerm, Mrs. Charles Busch, Mrs. Edward Carroll, Mrs. Robert Cook and Mrs. Robert Culverhouse.

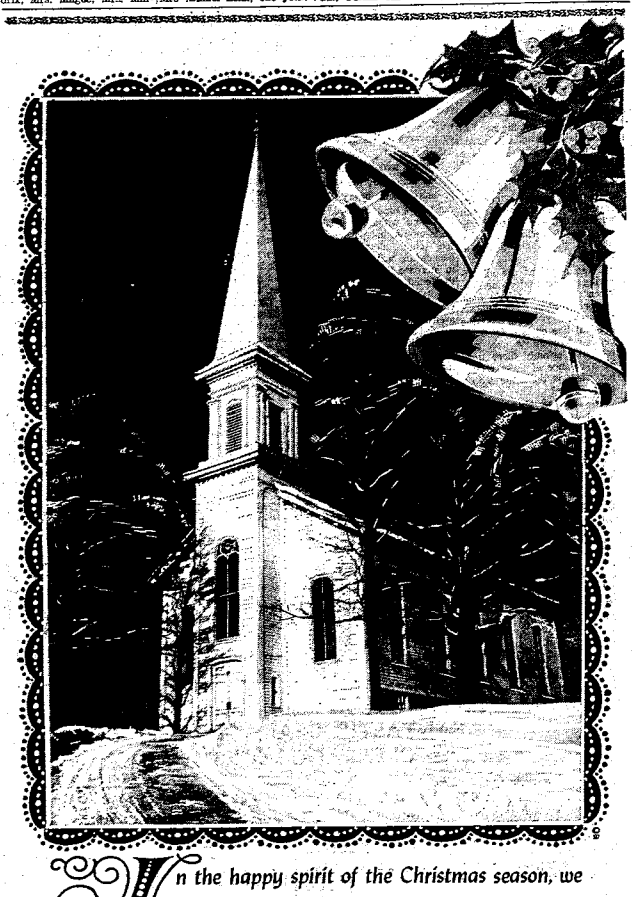
Mrs. Eugene Doerfler, Mrs. Joseph DeMarco, Mrs. Edgar Peddie, Mrs. Clinton Harvey, Mrs. Robert Magee, Mrs. Howard McCamy, Mrs. Russell Tandy, Mrs. William Summers, Mrs. Robert Marble, Mrs. Frank Harden, Mrs. Luther Hendrix, Mrs. Forrest Pitts and Mrs. Charles Yoker.

Service emblems for length of volunteer service were awarded to Mrs. McCamy, six years; Mrs. Edgar Kelly and Mrs. Peddie, five years; Mrs. A. D. Dunn, four years; Mrs. John Arthur, Mrs. Carroll, Mrs. Culverhouse, Mrs. Doerfler, and Mrs. Ralph Whitt, three years.

Mrs. Jackie Baum, Mrs. Busch, Mrs. Cook, Mrs. DeMarco, Mrs. Harden, Mrs. Harvey, Mrs. Warren Ottley, Mrs. Richard Reardon, Mrs. Albert Seifert and Mrs. Summers, two years.

Mrs. Waine Archer, Mrs. Robert Bass, Mrs. Becker, Mrs. Melvin Cohen, Mrs. Hendrix, Mrs. Magee, Mrs. Marble, Mrs. Thomas Martin, Mrs. Paul Mitchell, Mrs. Joseph Mordente, Mrs. Pitts, Mrs. Ray Rogers, Mrs. Tandy, Mrs. Chesterveit, Mrs. Yoder and Mrs. Daniel Zenk, one year.

RADIO SERVICE



Did you know that the U. S. Army Home Town News Center in Kansas City, Mo., services more than 2,000 radio stations in the 50 states and Guam, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands? It does, and during its 11-year existence it has processed more than 125,000 home town tape recorded interviews.

Hold Symposium For 125 Dentists

Approximately 125 dentists attended a dental symposium here last week conducted by Col. Robert B. Shira, chief of the Aral Surgery and Dental Service at Walter Reed Hospital in Washington, D. C.

The dentists represented Fort Rucker, Ala., Fort Gordon, Ga., Turner Air Force Base, Ga., Fort McPherson and Third U. S. Army headquarters, Atlanta, and the Western District Dental Society of Georgia.

Host for the symposium were Col. Stuart M. Mitchell of Brodhead, Wis., post dental surgeon, and his staff.

In the happy spirit of the Christmas season, we send sincerest greetings to our loyal friends and customers, with hearty thanks for their patronage.

Red Growth Topic of Gen. Harding's Address at TIS

The greatest threat to the world in which the American people have a reasonable chance to work toward a better life has been for the past 15 years the specter of Communism, Brig. Gen. Stanley L. Harding, assistant commanding general of the 2nd Infantry Division, told 108 graduates of The Infantry School Dec. 14.

"On this specter the hammer and sickle have been imposed," he added, as he spoke to officers associate career class No. 1 in Theater No. 1. "The mating of this pair has produced a dynamism in revolution that has engulfed the nations of the Slavic line. It has swept across the Asian continent and set into the social fabric of a dozen countries in other parts of the world."

Gen. Harding said the image projected is that of a great rolling juggernaut. It moves inexorable, keeping its rendezvous with history, capable of being slowed but not stopped.

"This juggernaut is like a driving revolutionary force, combined with technological potency and carrying the banner of the underprivileged to inevitable triumph," he told the group.

He added that it is a force with constancy of purpose, unified in aim, homogenous in composition, monolithic in character and impervious to assault from without.

"Communist leaders are peasants and bear every characteristic attribute of northern European peasants," he continued. "From their earliest years they have been defensive in nature against a hostile environment."

Gen. Harding pointed out that Communist rulers had to compete for bare subsistence against their neighbors, meddling officials, powerful landlords and the catastrophies of nature.

"The Communist leaders have had to be cautious, suspicious, shrewd, ruthless and treacherous as a way of life and a means of survival," he added. "They know no other way. In studying the Russian peasant, we learn much about the mental gyrations of the Kremlin's bosses. We learn that many of their actions fall into pattern. Many of these actions to some extent even become predictable."

In our government there are men who have predicted with considerable precision the Soviet reaction to our stand in Cuba, he said.

"The Communist cause is in large measure the least common denominator of mutual distrust and inbred suspicion in a mass struggle for survival and besting their competitors," he continued.

"Where unity exists, it is the recognition of mutual though temporary need," he added.

Gen. Harding said a popular belief is that the Kremlin leadership is geared to shift fast in tactics and application of national power. This belief is wrong, he stated.

"It took the leaders a year to recover from our counteraction in Greece, nine months for the Berlin airlife, three years for Korea," he added. "And they still haven't recovered from the impact of NATO"

The coordination, bargains and concessions that must be arranged in an atmosphere of suspicion and distruct must be a monumental task, he continued.

"Who of his underlings dares tell a dictator the full facts? Who dares be other than optimistic and complimentary? Who dares assess a limited competence to the machine that the dictator has established? Who dares access to capacity or vitality to oppose the Great Man?", Gen Harding continued.

The general concluded his speech by saying the Soviets are moving ahead rapidly in industry and technology. But the facts of history show clearly that no Communist movement has ever remotely approximated the ideas of Karl Marx and Friederick Engels, two frustrated and misguided incompetents, he added.

"The facts are that Communist dogma is determined by the practical rquirements of overthrowing the existing order," he said.

Honor graduate of the class was Capt. John D. Inhof, a member of the 1st Training Regiment, U. S. Army Training Center, Infantry, Fort Dix, N. J. He attained an academic score of 93.9 points out of a possible 100.

In July, 1952, Capt. Imhof, then a warrant officer with the 17th "Buffalo" Regiment of the 7th Infantry Division in Korea, applied for and received a battlefield commission.

The necessary papers were signed by Brig. Gen. Royal Reynolds Jr., now assistant commandant of The Infantry School, at Kumwha-Cherwon.

Among the graduates of the 19-week course were 24 students from Allied countries. From Viet-Nam there were 15; Republic of China, three; Thailand, three; Indonesia, two, and Burma, one.

Ranger Tabs Are Earned By 98 Men

Ranger tabs were presented to 98 graduates of The Infantry School's Ranger course during ceremonies here Dec. 15.

Guest speaker was Brig. Gen. Royal Reynolds Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School.

With the exception of two Allied officers, the class was composed entirely of U. S. Army officers. The two exceptions were Lt. D. O. Christie and Lt. D. A. Godfrey, members of the British Army.

Honor graduate was 2nd Lt. Glen A. Blumhardt, A 1962 graduate of the U. S. Military Academy, he has been assigned to the 82nd Airborne Division at Fort Bragg, N. C.

The nine-week course is considered one of the most exacting in the Army. It includes three weeks of physical conditioning, three weeks of mountain patrolling techniques in North Georgia, and three weeks of jungle patrols in the swamps of Florida.

Gen. Heintges To Lead Division

WASHINGTON (ANS)—Maj. Gen. John A. Heintges will become Commanding General of the 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized), Fort Carson, Colo., in January it has been announced by Secretary of the Army Cyrus R. Vance.

General Heintges, who is presently assigned as Deputy Director, Joint Staff, Office of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Washington, D. C., will replace Maj. Gen. Ashton H. Manhart, who has been commanding general of the 5th since it was formed in February, 1962. Gen. Manhart is being reassigned to the Office, Joint Chiefs of Staff, in Washington.

Loyalty Bond Is Important, Officers Told

Loyalty is what holds the Army together, 197 officers were told here Dec. 14 in a graduation speech at Theater No. 1.

Maj. Gen. (Ret.) Phillip E. Gallagher addressed a class of nine Allied and 188 U. S. students completing an Infantry officers orientation course at The Infantry School.

"Loyalty is needed in every walk of life but the loyalty you need as officers is deeper — with something added," Gen. Gallagher said. "It includes loyalty to your superiors and to your subordinates. It means loyalty to your equals in rank. Loyalty is what holds the Army together. Failure to be loyal in one direction or the other affects the entire chain of command."

Three other necessary qualities an officer must have, according to Gen. Gallagher, are integrity, decency and dignity.

"These qualities make a good leader and pay dividends far beyond any monetary compensation," he added.

Gen. Gallagher was introduced by Brig. Gen. Royal Reynolds Jr., assistant commandant of the Infantry School, who also welcomed the students, their families and guests to the graduation exercises.

Gen. Reynolds commended the Allied students on their work at the school. Five of the students are from Thailand and four from Viet-Nam.

"The greatest value in your course of study with us is the opportunity it gives us all to be associated with each other," Gen. Reynolds said.

Each of the Allied students was pinned with a "Follow Me" emblem, symbol of The Infantry School.

Honor graduate of the class was 2nd Lt. Frank B. Mapel. He was presented an Infantry School letter of commendation for his achievement. His over-all average on 20 examinations was 95 per cent.

14 EM Complete Engineer Course

The classroom of the 577th Engineer Battalion (Const) was the scene of a graduation exercise for students in a 79-hour course in operation and maintenance of the D-8 caterpillar tractor recently.

Course instructor was the regional engineer maintenance technician, Joseph E. Haynes. A total of 14 men graduated. This total included nine men from the 577th Engineer Battalion (Const), three men from the 806th Engineer Battalion (Const), and two men from the 566th Engineer Company (Float Bridge).

Colonel Mahlon E. Gates, commanding officer of the 151st Engineer Group (C), assisted by Sgt. Maj. John E. Conevit, 151st Engineer Group (C), awarded Certificates of Achievement to the graduating enlisted men.

FORT BENNING, GEORGIA, HOME OF U.S. ARMY INFANTRY CENTER

VOL. 21, NO. 16 — FRIDAY, DECEMBER 28, 1962 — FORT BENNING, GA. — 44 Pages — 5c

'62 Is Busy Year As Post Fulfills Its Vital Mission

The training and eventual demobilization of National Guard and Army Reserve units on active duty, the deployment of troops to Oxford, Miss., and the altering of post units in the Cuban crisis highlighted the news here during 1962.

News of the post's expansion and improvement that began early in the year gave support of The Infantry Center's belief that Fort Benning is one of the leading posts in the country.

FEB. 8 — Secretary of the Army Elvis J. Stahr Jr., accompanied Mrs. Robert P. Patterson, widow of the former secretary of war, to Fort Benning for presentation of the Patterson Award to 2nd Lt. John H. Hayes of Clarksville, Tenn., and Fort Campbell, Ky., outstanding Infantry Officer Candidate School graduate of 1962-61.

On the same day the resident engineer of the Savannah District announced that the old pontoon bridge over the Chattahoochee River would be replaced by a permanent structure, construction of which was to begin Feb. 20 and be completed in 360 days.

FEB. 16 — First Sgt. Marine F. Damvelt, Company C, 156th Signal Battalion, a Michigan National Guard unit, was chosen by Infantry Center officers to visit Germany with a group of 50 non-commissioned officers for an orientation on the mission and readiness of U. S. Forces.

MARCH 2 — A citation signed by Secretary Stahr was received by Pvt. Lenwood A. Bratten, a jump school student credited with saving the life of a fellow paratrooper at Fryar Field Feb. 21. Bratten seized the improperly opened parachute canopy of Pvt. Andrew B. Bray as it was about to pass him and held it until both jumpers reached the ground safely.

MARCH 9 — The post PTA, with an enrollment of 2,641 parents and teachers, and representing 3,100 dependent children, was the largest PTA organization in Georgia.

MARCH 16 — Brig. Gen. Royal Reynolds Jr., deputy commander of the 2nd Infantry Division, was named assistant commandant of The Infantry School, effective in April, to succeed Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles Jr., who was assigned to the U. S. Element of Allied Forces, Southern Europe, Naples, Italy.

MARCH 28 — Some 300 rifle and pistol marksmen of The Infantry Center assembled to hear Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly, deputy commanding general of TIC, launch the post's annual championship matches which ended March 30 with the presentation of awards to winners.

APRIL 13 — Sgt. William Carrion of Fort Benning won the International free rifle 300-meter championship in the an-

Happy New Year

Ringing in the New Year a few days early is The Bayonet's Mr. 1963, Dennis Edward Ferrell (left), son of Capt. and Mrs. M. H. Ferrell.

Eight-month-old Dennis, though a few days ahead of schedule, hit the hour exactly, according to the grandfather clock which was made by Maj. Albert C. Hunt of Martin Army Hospital.

Monday is New Year's Eve and Infantry Center safety officials urge you to make it a safe one.

Gifts Galore Due Post's 1st Baby In Bayonet's '1963 Stork Derby'

A host of gifts awaits the first baby born to a military family here in 1963.

The year's first Fort Benning baby will be showered with gifts from Columbus merchants who have made up the treasure chest for the winner of the 1962 Stork Derby.

The contest is sponsored annually by The Bayonet and its publishers, The Ledger-Enquirer Company.

To qualify for the derby the baby must be born at Martin Army Hospital.

Exact time of birth must be specified in a written statement by the attending physician. Applications must be submitted to The Bayonet at The Ledger-Enquirer Co. offices on 12th Street in Columbus no later than 5 p.m. Jan. 4.

Contributing gifts to the winning family's treasure chest are the following merchants:

Brooks, Super Market No. 1, $5 worth of Gerber Baby Food; Valley Brand Meat Co., five pounds T-bone steak; Brooks & Thomas Motor Co., lubrication and wash job; Western Auto Associate Store, $5 free merchandise; Bill Heard Chevrolet, $5 worth of free service; Livingston's Gulf Supreme, free lubrication job.

Walt's TV and Appliance, $15 allowance on anything; Radford Auto Parts, five gallons of gasoline; Miller-Taylor Shoes, $5 Gift Certificate; Plantation Pit Bar-B-Q, two dinners; Gussie Pope Children's Wear, one quiltex blanket; Kiralfy's Children Dept., baby exerciser.

Southern Casuals Women's Fashions, choice of $5 costume jewelry; Circle Shoe Store, bedroom slippers for mother; Lane Drugs, Traffic Circle, $5 worth of infant supplies; Carp's Department Store, Traffic Circle, Evenflo bottle and sterilizer kit; Book Store, Fort Benning, engraved silver cup; Davison's, two dozen diapers; Miller's, $5 gift certificate; Goo-Goo Restaurant, dinner for mom and dad; National Bank of Fort Benning, $10 savings account for baby; Sears, crib blanket; Midas Brake Shop, brake adjustment and front wheel packing; Columbus Ledger-Enquirer Co., one 8x10 Sepiatone portrait.

1962 Was a Busy Year for Fort Benning

nual Third U. S. Army area matches.

SFC Thomas E. Schumann, 2nd Division, took first place in the rapid fire pistol competition by scoring 288 of a possible 300 points and The Infantry Center's Sgt. Jacob Scott broke the record for the .22 caliber rapid fire match by eight tie breaking X's with a 200-14X.

APRIL 27 — The planned multi-million dollar academic building for the Infantry School moved toward reality as the Jordan Construction Company of Columbus was named successful bidder on the major part of the building with a bid of $6,580,100.

MAY 1 — Thirty-two military attaches and five assistant attaches from 37 Allied countries arrived on the post for a tour of installations and facilities.

MAY 4 — The 19 National Guard and Army Reserve units, called to active duty at Fort Benning in October, 1961, were notified they would return to their home stations Aug. 1 in 9.

MAY 10 — Some 200 guests of the Department of Defense and the Army left the post after witnessing the Army phase of the 32nd Joint Civilian Orientation Conference (JCOC).

MAY 14 — Searchlight Tattoo ceremonies at the Columbus Municipal Auditorium were witnessed by 5,000 people. Tattoo was part of the Armed Forces Week program.

MAY 18 — A parade of military might and precision highlighted the Columbus - Fort Benning Armed Forces Week in downtown Columbus.

MAY 19 — Armed Forces Day, as proclaimed by the President, was commemorated in the area by demonstrations of "Power For Peace" by post units.

The Airborne - Air Mobility Department of The Infantry School observed its 20th anniversary with a celebration at Eubanks Field.

MAY 22 — A task force for Exercise Clear Lake arrived on the post to set up the marshaling area for the STRIKE Command training exercise at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla. The maneuvers continued until June 10.

JUNE 6 — More than 500 cadets of the U. S. Military Academy, West Point, N. Y., arrived on the post for orientation on the various roles played by Infantrymen. They remained until June 11.

New Mortar Registration Nets Army Savings

By Capt. Seymour E. Byrom II

For the past several years the 4.2-inch mortar, organic indirect fire support weapon of the ROAD battalion, has used the "precision" method of registration.

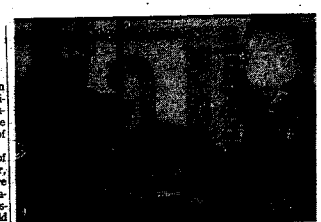
This registration was used to obtain accurate firing data which could later be used in determining firing corrections, checking map data and for accurately placing fire on unobserved targets. "Precision registration" involved complicated procedures and required the expenditure of considerable amounts of ammunition and time.

To find a better method to procure this data, the Mortar Committee, Weapons Department, The Infantry School, conducted extensive tests.

These tests proved the feasibility of a method of registration that would retain the inherent accuracy of the mortar and yet reduce the undesirable features of "precision registration." It consists of conducting an adjustment on a designated point until a 50-meter bracket has been split or a target hit, whichever occurs first.

Assuming that the rounds fired during the registration fall within the normal dispersion pattern, registration would be ended; should they not fall within the normal pattern, confirming rounds would be fired. This method is very similar to the method of registration used for the 81mm mortar.

During conduct of the tests, an average of 4.95 rounds per mission were used to complete the registration. This was compared with an average of 12 rounds for a "precision registration" conducted on the same point.



Using high explosive ammunition with "quick" fuze action, at a cost of $18 per round, this difference in ammunition cost results in a savings of $126.90 for each registration conducted. The average deflection and charge difference between the two methods of registration was 2.9 mils in deflection and less than one-eighth of a charge in range.

The time savings cannot be estimated as closely as can the monetary savings due to the basic differences in the two techniques. Generally speaking, however, as a result of the tests conducted, it can be said that the savings in time is comparable to that of the monetary savings by use of the new method.

This method of registration simplifies procedures used in computing data, cuts down on the amount of ammunition utilized, reduces the time expended and is still in consonance with the inherent accuracy of the mortar.

Throughout the courses of instruction during one year, the Mortar Committee will fire an average of 256 registrations. Using "precision Registration" methods this would result in a cost of $55,296.

Using the new method of registration results in a cost of $22,940. The new method, then, results in a savings of $32,356 per year.

BEST MESS . . . SFC Fred Bass (L), receives a plaque from Col. John H. Lattin, commanding officer of The Infantry Center Troop Command, for maintaining the best mess hall in temporary buildings.

NEW PLANE FOR LAAC . . . Another new arrival at Lawson Field here is the L-23-F Seminole, command aircraft. The newly painted aircraft was ferried here by Col. Curtis E. Hinton, commanding officer of Lawson Army Aviation Command, and Capt. Lubert Wing. Some of the features of this new model command craft are four deluxe seats in the passenger compartment, with room for a fifth seat, and large windows which have been termed "picture windows." Another feature which this model apart from its predecessors is that most parts are interchangeable with the L-23D model.

Need Addresses On GI Insurance Policy Holders

Many scheduled to receive GI insurance dividends in January may have their payments delayed because the VA does not have correct addresses for the policy holders, Georgia Veterans Service Director Pete Wheeler warned this week.

The VA is scheduled to pay more than $327 million in January in special and regular dividends, he said. The total of the two dividends will average about $61 per person with a maximum of $250 and a minimum of $1 to GI policy holders.

The VA does not have up-to-date addresses for thousands of its insured veterans and these dividend checks are sure to be returned by the post office.

Georgia veterans who have not informed the VA of new addresses should immediately send their new address along with their name, policy number and old address to the VA insurance center where premiums are normally sent.

Except for reporting changed addresses, inquiries about the dividend checks should not be made to the VA at this time, as the payments are automatic and inquiries will only tend to delay mailing.

Set Nursing Instruction In January

The American Red Cross Field Office here is accepting registrations by telephone for first aid and home nursing courses scheduled to begin in January.

Personnel interested are requested to telephone 545-5101.

Classes will be formed according to the number of registrants.

When the meeting time and place for the classes have been determined persons will be notified by the Red Cross.

First aid classes will meet in five two-hour sessions. A tentative schedule for the course includes meetings from 7 to 9 p.m. Jan. 8, 10, 15, 17 and 22. Officials are also considering offering a morning course in first aid.

The home nursing course requires seven two-hour sessions. One period will be devoted to Civil Defense and disaster training.

New AR Aimed Toward Strong History Program

WASHINGTON (ANS) — Recently published Army Regulation 870-5 represents a new and greatly strengthened charter for Army historians, according to Brig. Gen. Hal C. Pattison, Army Chief of Military History.

"It confirms the Army's view that history is at the heart of planning, of setting doctrine, of forging new and effective military technique. In today's complex defense environment, history has become an increasingly responsive tool for the strategist, the tactician, the logistician, for the high-ranking general, and for the private in the ranks. The new Army Historical Program and the new AR will help keep the tool sharper than ever," Gen Pattison said.

Engineers' Yule Party Fetes 325

Santa, toys, and candy was the theme of the 151st Engineer Group (C), Children's Christmas Party Thursday at Main Post Theatre No. 1.

Over 325 children attended the party and received toys from Santa, watched movies, and sang Christmas Carols. Children attending were from the 151st and its subordinate units, the 577th Engineer Battalion (Const), the 586th Engineer Company (FD), and the 898th Engineer Battalion (Const).

In charge of the Christmas Party were Chaplains John D. Logan and William W. Rivers. Assisted by Sgt. Maj. John E. Canevit of Headquarters, 151st

Service Revives Famous Poster

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Army Recruiting Service has revived one of its oldest and most famous recruiting posters.

That poster is James Montgomery Flagg's picture of a stern, bearded Uncle Sam pointing his finger over a legend that reads: "I want YOU for the U.S. Army."

Mr. Flagg did the painting in 1917. There were 4,000,000 copies printed by the Army and it turned out to be the classic recruiting poster of WWI.

CHAPLAIN'S CORNER

A Paratrooper's Faith

BY CHAPLAIN (LT. COL.) ARTHUR J. ESTES

From the sidewalk in front of my office I can see the airspace over Fryar Field, the parachutist "drop zone" over on the Alabama side of the Chattahoochee River.

Recently I took a break from counseling, sermon preparation and administrative duties and stepped out of the office. An Air Force aircraft was on its run toward Fryar Field. Soon, 18 Army parachutist students stepped out into space, 18 canopies fully deployed against the backdrop of the sky and I breathed a "Thank you, Lord."

These men who safely reached the ground are in training to assume positions of combat readiness with one of the nation's elite paratrooper units. There they will frequently face the danger of bodily hurt or death to keep themselves ready to perform any task our nation may assign. As their chaplain, I too have stepped out into space and have known the blessed jerk of an opening parachute. I know their fears and also their weakness — their trust in material things.

I shall use the "trooper's" trust in his parachute as an illustration of what God asks of those who come to Him in faith. For, I am convinced that the only difference between trust in a parachute and trust in God rests in the object of the faith. The faith itself is the same. He asks of us that we trust in His love and in His power to save.

"Oh, Lord, help us not only to understand but also to accept Thy promise—on faith. Amen."

Reorganization Year's Top Story in 197th Brigade

A complete reorganization, a new commander and an almost complete sweep of the post rifle and pistol matches are but a few of the events crammed into the versatile 197th Infantry Brigade's 1962 calendar.

One of the biggest events of the year was the reorganization of the brigade under the new Reorganization Objective Army Division (ROAD) concept which saw the famed 1st Infantry Brigade become the 197th Infantry Brigade.

Under the new concept, the commanders' control and the brigade mobility were greatly increased. In addition, the commander's capability of tailoring his organic units to best meet the requirements of his mission were greatly enhanced.

In the middle of the year, Col. Richard W. Keyes, former deputy assistant commandant of The Infantry School, was welcomed as brigade commander, succeeding Col. William Birdsong, Jr., who was reassigned to The Infantry School as director of the Special Subjects Committee.

Kicking off the calendar year were the Infantry Center Rifle and Pistol Matches which saw brigade marksmen set 11 new post records while taking 21 of 23 individual and team matches.

Also in the beginning of the year, Mrs. Lawrence Dearborn, wife of Sgt. Lawrence Dearborn of Company A, 29th Infantry, became the mother of the first baby born at Martin Army Hospital in 1962.

First Sgt. Marvin F. Damvelt of the 156th Signal Company, a Reserve unit attached to the brigade, was picked to go along with 49 other Reserve and National Guard non-commissioned officers to attend an orientation and tour of European defenses.

As the year progressed, the 72nd Engineers received a new folding bridge which can be set up in three minutes and is capable of spanning a 60-foot gap. The 58th Infantry received a new chapel center in the Harmony Church area. The 29th Infantry emerged as first-half champs in The Infantry Center Major Unit Basketball League and Hazel Walker's all-girl Arkansas Travelers sent the 111th Signal Company, a National Guard unit assigned to the brigade, down in defeat at the Briant Wells Field House before a crowd of 3,600 spectators.

The second half of the year started off with most of the brigade units celebrating their birthdays.

The 29th had three days of competitive events and demonstrations in celebrating its 61st birthday.

The 10th Artillery and 58th Infantry both celebrated their 45th anniversary with events and demonstrations.

In July, the new commander, Col. Keyes, took the brigade to the field for a three-day command post exercise, setting Brigade history.

Col. Warren D. Hodges took over the reins of the 29th Infantry in July, succeeding Col. Lawrence S. Reynolds.

Also in July, Battery B, 10th Artillery, commanded by Capt. Jack Percival, won the Commanding General's Trophy for being the outstanding military unit on post.

In August, a group of brigade Reserves got the green light and were released from active duty to Reserve status.

The year saw many firsts for the brigade and among those was the 100 per cent membership in the Infantry Museum Association reached by B Battery of the 10th Artillery. This was the first time that any unit achieved full membership in the Infantry Museum Association.

In the latter part of the year members of the brigade were to do a movie. Some 45 Infantrymen packed up and went to Fort Polk, La., to film "The Rifle Squad and Platoon in Attack" training film.

The 197th's primary mission is to support the Infantry School with its wide array of Infantry and support units. The brigade insures that the Infantry School students observe the best possible demonstration in order that they may understand the objectives of Infantry in combat.

In accomplishing its mission, the brigade is continually engaged in demonstrations and static displays many of which are seen by civilian and military visitors from this country and Allied nations.

PLANNING PROJECTS . . . The Marksmanship Training Unit's officers ladies club met Dec. 14 at the Main Officer Open Mess to finalize plans for their Christmas projects. Discussing plans are (L to R) Mesdames Arlene Pullum, Minnie Torbush, Rosemary Morris, Dee Montgomery and (seated) Priscilla Feuerbacher.

49er Party Plans Now Under Way

The Daughters of the United States Army (DUSA) have begun plans for the annual 49er Party, a gala charity event and traditional highlight of the Fort Benning social calendar, scheduled for Feb. 9 at 7 p.m. in the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Proceeds from 49er Parties go to worthwhile post projects, such as the Youth Activities Club, Martin Army Hospital, PTA, Brat Barracks and many other organizations.

Military co-ordinator of this year's event is Col. John F. Staples, commander of Headquarters, 2nd Division Trains.

Col. Staples' most recent tours before coming to Fort Benning have been at the Army War College, Carlisle Barracks, Pa., and with the Department of the Army in Washington.

Serving with Col. Staples as committee chairmen will be Mrs. Michael M. Downes, entertainment; Mrs. Frederick V. Harris, JADA; Mrs. Robert E. Camp, cigarette girls; Mrs. Charles O. Arnecke, food; Mrs. William R. Lehrfeld, publicity; Mrs. Charles P. Saint, decorations, and Mrs. Nelson I. Fooks, games.

ENGLISH .....

I hope your Christmas was as nice as mine was, and that you will have a Happy New Year. Next week I'll try to have a complete round-up on the season's parties.

Now, however, I'd like to take this space to thank the Junior Army Daughters of America for allowing me to be their Queen at the Christmas Ball.

The JADA's also elected a Court of Honor which was presented at the intermission of the dance. These ten girls were elected in recognition of their outstanding service to JADA.

The freshman representative was Johnette Brickhouse, daughter of Maj. and Mrs. G. L. Brickhouse. Johnette, who was escorted by Dickie Peluso, attends Pacelli.

Kathy O'Donnell and Lee Short were the sophomores elected to the Court. Kathy, escorted by Ray Lynch, attends Columbus High, and is a member of Sigma Delta Beta. She is the daughter of Lt. Col. E. T. O'Donnell.

Lee's parents are Lt. Col. W. D. Short. At Columbus High, she is vice president of the French Club. Her escort was Roland Keller.

Three juniors were elected to the court. Jeff Scott, of Fort Belvoir, Va., escorted Sara Walters. Sara, who goes to CHS, serves as hospitality chairman of the Junior Army Daughters. She is the daughter of Col. and Mrs. W. E. Walters.

Cathy Ewart, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. J. A. Ewart, is hospital chairman of JADA. She was escorted by Mike Minzell. Cathy is a junior at Columbus High.

Sandy Duke, escorted by Carlyle Park, was the third junior on the court for 1962. Sandy, the daughter of Maj. and Mrs. J. O. Duke, is historian of JADA and secretary of Sigma Delta Beta. She attends Columbus High.

Choosing the four seniors who best deserved to be on the court, was a difficult job, but the JADA's satisfied almost everyone with the selection of these four girls.

Find a harder worker than Nancy Williams? You'll never do it. This little bundle of energy will tear through any job assigned in record time and with maximum efficiency. And she still volunteers! Nancy was escorted by Tommy Monahan. She is the daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. J. W. Williams. She is chaplain of Sigma Delta Beta.

Richard Shealy had the honor and the pleasure of escorting Earle Wilder to "her" dance. Earle has been working since June on the details of dance. The dance was lovely, Marie Earle thank you! Earle's parents are Lt. Col. and Mrs. H. W. Wilder. She is treasurer of Sigma Delta Beta and a past president of "Follow Me" Club.

Georganna Dillon, vice-president of the Junior Army Daughters, was escorted by Joffe Gueymard. Georganna, the daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. L. R. Dillon, is a senior at Columbus High, where she is an ROTC sponsor. She is a member of Sigma Delta Beta Sorority. She was in charge of the decorating committee of the dance.

The fourth senior of the court was Cheryl Ely, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. J. T. Ely. Cheryl attends Baker, where she is secretary - treasurer of the Civinettes and an ROTC sponsor. She is Corresponding Secretary of JADA and a member of Sigma Delta Beta. Her escort was Richard Reardon. Cheryl was elected to the beauty section of the Baker annual this year.

Col. J. W. Jackson announced the court. Capt. and Mrs. Robert Craft, Capt. and Mrs. Michael Cornwell, and Capt. and Mrs. Michael Lally were chaperones with Col. and Mrs. Jackson.

Nancy Heekin, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. D. P. Heekin, and Les Dillon, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. L. R. Dillon, served as flower girl and ring bearer

Christmas Reading Is Given Here

Thirty-one members and guests of The Infantry Center Protestant Women-of-the-Chapel heard a Christmas reading by Mrs. John L. Waldrop at a meeting Dec. 19 at the Religious Education Center, Bldg. 2605.

Mrs. Waldrop, who is director of religious education on the post, presented "Only The Heart Can Celebrate" by Margaret Lee Runbeck.

Depicting the real meaning of the season, Mrs. Waldrop said, "Christmas must come to us from within and must be an inner event, for it is part of the kingdom of God that is within us."

Two duets, "Sleep, My Jesus, Sleep" by H. Dickinson and "O Holy Night" by A. Adam, were presented by Mrs. Donald E. Gelke and Mrs. John Snodgrass.

Mrs. Waldrop presented a certificate of appreciation to Mrs. Robert J. Whitehead who is scheduled to depart the post in January. She was commended for faithful service to the Protestant Women-of-the-Chapel while at Fort Benning.

Guest of honor at the meeting was Mrs. Steve Knight, wife of the mayor of Columbus.

STRAC Training, Exercises Highlight Medics' Year

By Sp4 Thurlow C. Morgan

As the calendar year of 1962 comes to a close the 428th Medical Battalion looks back on one of the most eventful years of its history. There have been many changes in the unit composition of the battalion as well as numerous new faces in the chain of command.

"STRAC ready" has been the familiar phrase as the 428th participated in training that included, field training exercises, Army training tests, physical fitness tests, maintenance and unload maintenance and unload hours of practice necessary in maintaining the high degree of readiness required by STRAC.

The battalion has been put to the test during 1962 and has proved that in time of international strife, under emergency conditions, the personnel are capable of performing their mission in a superior manner.

The unit strength was bolstered when three National Guard units and two Army Reserve units joined the battalion in connection with the Army-wide Reserve callup during the Berlin Crisis of Nov.-Dec. 61. The five units adapted quickly to the intensive training program of the battalion and, when released from active duty in August, left behind an admirable record of accomplishments.

They made high scores on their Army training tests and performed well enough in all their duties to become first class units.

The National Guard units were the 128th Medical Company (Ambulance) from Fairhope, Ala.; the 129th Medical Company (Clearing) from Springhill, Ala.; and the 216th Medical Company (Clearing) from Lake Village, Ark.

The two Reserve units activated were the 893st Medical Detachment (OA) from Atlanta, Ga., and the 389th Medical Detachment (KF) from Cleveland, Ohio.

During the month of August, while the Reserve units were being inactivated, three units of the 428th were participating in Exercise SWIFT STRIKE II, the largest maneuver ever staged by STRICOM on American soil. The maneuver evolved around the ability of a subversive organization (Red Forces) to propagandize, infiltrate and destroy the existing democratic government and ultimately gain control of the people of the land (Blue Forces).

The simulated situation was closely related to many existing political struggles in the world today and proved to be valuable in pointing out the tactics used in overthrowing existing governments.

The 690th Medical Company had the mission of providing ambulance support for the Red Forces. They provided medical evacuation for two divisions, four hospitals, the 50th Medical Company, support units, staging areas and the drop zones. As a result the unit logged over 95,000 miles on its vehicles during this maneuver.

The 50th Medical Company set up and operated a clearing station for both real and simulated casualties. In addition they provided medical coverage for several staging areas and sent teams to cover some of the drop zones.

Following the cry of the Engineers — "First in, last out" — the 50th Medical Company and the 600th Medical Company arrived in the objective area well ahead of the main elements to provide medical care for the advance units. Both these units left evacuation and treatment personnel at the completion of the exercise to cover those units involved in the cleanup of the areas used for the maneuver.

Headquarters and Headquarter Detachment was attached to the 2nd Log Command and was responsible for providing command control for attached medical units.

In order to achieve and maintain the necessary state of readiness required by the Strategic Army Command, all STRAC units are periodically tested for proficiency in performing their assigned missions. The month of May witnessed the 428th convoying across the Fort Benning Reservation under the critical eyes of Infantry Center umpires, (the judge and jury in determining the effectiveness of the 428th to operate as a Medical Battalion).

Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment, 3rd Field Hospital 50th Medical Company and the 690th Medical Company achieved excellent or superior ratings in this STRAC Mobility Test. The primary objective in this test is to measure a unit's ability to be readily deployable with both equipment and personnel to any corner of the world.

In September the 3rd Field Hospital received a rating of excellent on the Army Training Test. The ATT gives the personnel the opportunity to practice their mission under simulated combat conditions. Many hours are spent in preparing this test in order to properly evaluate each man's individual performance as well as his ability to act collectively with his compatriots. The remainder of the battalion will complete their ATT in the third quarter of fiscal year 1963.

Aero-medical support facilities became an additional mission of the 428th when the 54th Medical Detachment was attached to the battalion in October, 1962. The detachment, commanded by Capt. Charles L. Kelly, is comprised of seven officers and 22 enlisted men and five utility helicopters.

The year 1962 was not all work, as the 428th participated in many civilian activities, sports programs and battalion celebrations.

In May the battalion provided medical support for the Joint Civilian Orientation Conference. This annual conference brings the civic, business and industrial leaders of the nation together to witness the latest Army firepower and techniques.

The Infantry Board Recreation Area was filled with over a thousand military and their dependents as the 428th Medical Battalion celebrated its biggest "Organization Day" in its history on April 23, 1962. There were competitive games and contests for the wives and children as well as the military. In the heated competition between the units for the unit trophy the 3rd Field Hospital emerged the victors.

Athletics have been a major part of the physical fitness training. Morale remained high during the intra-unit competition in baseball, volleyball and football. The battalion boasts a fine record in post competition.

In the 1961-62 basketball season the battalion team grabbed the championship by rolling over all major units on the post by an average 29-point margin. The 1962-63 basketball season is proving to be another fine showing for the fighting 428th. Under the coaching of 2nd Lt. Maurice Weatherton, the team presently shares first place with The Infantry Center Troop Command roundballers.

The battalion commanding officer is Lt. Col. R. J. Caldbeck.

TAKES TSB UNIT . . . First Lt. Carl A. Coapstick recently assumed the duties of commanding officer of Detachment 23, 2nd Student Battalion, The Student Brigade. He succeeds 1st Lt. Richard T. Lewis who is currently attending flight training.

Many Honors Taken By TSB During Year

The Student Brigade in fulfilling its mission at The Infantry School during the past year has an enviable record of accomplishment. These accomplishments have been acknowledged by The Infantry School in the form of awards.

One such award is the Management Improvement Award for raising the standard of efficiency within TSB. It was the first time this award was given.

TSB also won The Infantry Center All-Catagories Re-enlistment Award for a higher percentage of re-enlistments than any other unit in The Infantry Center.

This year TSB received a Certificate of Merit for educational development. TSB had the greatest percentage of participation in educational programs.

Individual members of The Student Brigade, civilians and military, have won numerous incentive awards for suggestions submitted and services rendered. A former member of TSB also won the coveted Patterson Award, for the outstanding Officer Candidate of the year.

In sports, TSB has won the softball and touch football championships at The Infantry Center. The TTC baseball championship went to TSB for the third straight year.

The past year has brought several changes in The Student Brigade. One of the greatest changes was the consolidation of Airborne training here at Fort Benning. TSB has developed a highly efficient organization to cope with the administrative problems of the hundreds of students who go through the Airborne course each month.

For the first time in its history TSB ran an Expert Infantryman's Badge Test. It was for the Infantry Officers Orientation Course, Classes 3 and 5. The tests were given as in any other unit, except that those tested were all student officers.

This year TSB again supported the Army Reserve Schools. Reservists from the 2nd, 3rd, 4th, and 5th Army Areas became a part of The Student Brigade while they took courses at The Infantry School.

Combat Training Exercises Highlight the Year

This year the combat-ready 2nd Infantry Division has built an impressive record to celebrate its 44th anniversary and its first year as a member of the "Bullet - Tough - Ready-Armed - Fit - Clock" Strategic Army Corps (STRAC).

Specialized combat training, brigade exercises and joint Army-Air Force maneuvers have enabled members of the "Indianhead" division for any mission or emergency in the world, from a show of force to general war.

Brigade Travels

The first major exercise of the year came in January when the two separate occasions, elements under the command of 2nd Division Brigade traveled to Fort McClellan, Ala., to practice logistical and administrative support of units under simulated combat conditions.

The call to become a member of the Strategic Army Corps came February 15.

In April, the division packed up and moved by road, rail and air to Fort Stewart, Ga., and Exercise SENECA SPEAR. Led by their commander, Maj. Gen. Charles H. Chase, the division formed two forces and fought on unfamiliar terrain to perfect concepts of modern warfare tested in previous training.

Quick Kick

In early May the 2nd Division Brigade took to the sea at Charleston, S. C., and made an amphibious landing in Exercise QUICK KICK, the first all-service field exercise held by the joint forces of the Atlantic Command.

During a three-month period beginning in May, five battle group task forces were introduced to amphibious warfare at the joint Navy - Marine amphibious training site at Little Creek, Va. A realistic amphibious assault landing culminated each two-week training phase.

Called by the U. S. Strike Command to assist in conducting a joint service training exercise, elements of the division moved to Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., to make up a total of 7,000 Army and Air Force personnel fighting in Exercise CLEAR LAKE. Lasting from May 23 through June 10, the exercise spotlighted live fire and Airborne operations, developing joint operational tactics and techniques.

Guerrillas

Following a growing trend, the 87th Infantry settled itself in the Chattahoochee National Forest outside Blairsville, Ga., for more specialized training—a ten-day guerrilla warfare exercise involving both military and civilian personnel. Concurrently, the division continued with specialized training, including air mobility, counter-guerrilla, river crossing, and rail movement training.

Units of the 2nd Infantry Division conducted operational readiness training during the biggest effort of the year — Exercise SWIFT STRIKE II, a joint Army-Air Force exercise directed by U. S. Strike Command in North and South Carolina. Picked to play the "aggressor" uniforms, the entire division simulated hostile conditions to participate with the best equipped combat-ready units stationed in the continental U. S. in the largest and most realistic maneuver ever conducted by the U. S. Strike Command.

Gen. Billingslea

In September Maj. Gen. Chase left the division for new duties with the U. S. Army

At NCO Review

Rare Day Sees Sgts. Troop Ceremony Line

A rare event occurred in the 2nd Division recently at Marshal Bowl. The 2nd Engineer Battalion held a non-commissioned officers review.

The noncommissioned officer review, a military tradition dating back into Army antiquity, occurs very rarely and only at the discretion of the commanding officer. The senior sergeant major reviews the troops and takes the salute, and other ranking noncommissioned officers fill the other duties usually performed in a review by officers.

Takes Salute

At the rieview the division sergeant major, Sgt. Maj. Robert Brown, took the salute as the entire battalion in full combat gear passed in review.

Acting as the battalion commander was Sgt. Maj. Edward B. Leavitt, the battalion sergeant major. The commander of troops was 1st Sgt. Terry M. Rimes, the first sergeant of Company A.

Honored guests in the reviewing stands were Brig. Gen. Charles Billingslea, division commander, and Lt. Col. William C. Carter, the battalion commander. Other guests included the battalion officers, the sergeant majors from other units in the division, and many of the enlisted men's wives and families.

Refreshments Served

After the parade and review refreshments were served. The guests were then invited to observe a static display put on by the battalion, showing some of the various activities in which the battalion participates and the different types of equipment it uses.

On display were tank dozers, graders, 5-ton dump, shop vans, communications equipment, a radio station jeep, an operating water point, an air compressor, a light tactical infantry unit, communications bridge trucks, and two armored vehicle launched bridges.

FIRST PLACE WINNER E Company, 87th Infantry

Unit Yule Display Winners Named

By Colin Higgins

The winners of the 2nd Division Annual Christmas Unit Display Competition were announced Monday with the 87th Infantry and the 13th Transportation Battalion taking top honors.

Santa Claus with a division patch on his shoulder and his sleigh being pulled by armored personnel carriers was the winning entry in the large unit category entered by 13th Transportation.

(See Picture, Page 10)

Following a close second was 38th Artillery with Santa on a tank, and Division Trains with Santa in the Yuletide - decorated covered wagon which stands outside Trains Headquarters.

In the small unit category the companies of the 87th Infantry swept the board. The winning display featured a silhouette Nativity scene put up by E Co. Last year they finished third in the division contest. Headquarters Co. followed in second place and A Co. took third.

The 2nd Quartermaster Company received honorable mention for their parachuting Santa.

All winners will receive a distinctive plaque for their award.

Judges

The Christmas displays were judged by a committee comprised of the Division Staff Judge Advocate, Lt. Col. Daniel A. Lennon, Jr., the Division Chaplain, Chaplain (Lt. Col.) James H. Fiser, the Division Inspector General, Lt. Col. George E. Armstrong, the Division Special Service Officer, Capt. Benjamin Vazquez, and the Assistant Division Information Officer, Lt. Jimmie E. Wilson.

Large Units

There were nine entries in the major unit categories: 1st Infantry, 23rd Infantry, 26th Infantry, 87th Infantry, 2nd Medical Battalion, 13th Transportation Battalion, 37th Artillery, 38th Artillery, and Division Trains.

Small Units

There were sixteen entries in the small unit category: A, B, C, D, E, and Combat support Companies of the 87th, Headquarters and E Companies of the 26th, Headquarters, Combat Support, A, and C Companies of the 23rd, Headquarters and A Companies of 122nd Signal Battalion, Headquarters and Headquarters Battery of Division Artillery, and the 2nd Quartermaster Company.

The displays were judged on their appropriateness and good taste, their ingenuity and originality, and their effective use of lighting and sound.

Year's Highlights

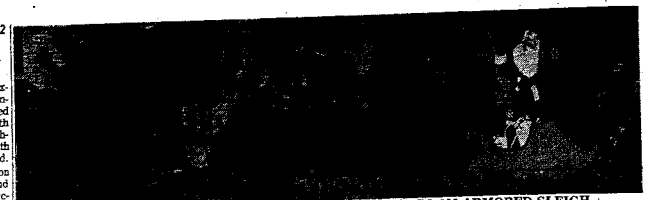
Command in Florida and the division welcomed its new commander, Brig. Gen. Charles Billingslea.

The 4th Battle Group, 7th Infantry was activated as a part of the 2nd Infantry Division in September. The 7th Infantry has established itself as the most highly decorated infantry organization in the Army.



The 2nd Infantry Division was chosen to initiate the Army's new U.S.-to-Europe unit rotation system — "Rotaplan." On October 15, the 1st Battle Group, 38th Infantry, left for Germany for six months European duty. In its place arrived the 1st Battle Group, 5th Infantry, previously assigned to the 8th Infantry Division in Germany.

Rapid Road

In October, the 2nd Division was called upon by Presidential command to quell disorder and rioting in and around Oxford, Miss. The operation, named RAPID ROAD, involved the 23rd Infantry with the 9th Infantry's Company B attached and the 1st Infantry with the 9th's Company A attached.

During November as tension in the Caribbean mounted and the United States Armed Forces went on a worldwide alert status, the STRAC "Second to None" Division maintained itself in constant combat readiness. The division's 69th Armor traveled to Fort Stewart, Ga., as part of the military precautions taken and returned to Fort Benning when the situation was eased.

Today the 2d Infantry Division, under the command of Gen. Billingslea, looks forward to another year full of continued challenges in training and battle exercises as it grows in stature, living up to the reputation that made it truly "Second to None."

'Outstanding Achievement'

Award Presentations Made at 87th

By 87th Infantry PIO

At last Saturday's award presentation ceremony held at the Kelley Hill gymnasium, division commander Brig. Gen. Charles Billingslea presented two members of the 87th Infantry awards for outstanding achievement, in addition to retiring the coveted Commanders Sports Trophy to the Conquerors.

The first presentation on the program, which was seen by the entire battle group which was assembled in the stands, was an Army Commendation Medal with first Oak Leaf Cluster won by the 87th Infantry's new S-2, Maj. David O. Kramer.

The citation, read by adjutant Lt. Floyd W. Blunk, said in part: "During the period July 1961 to September 1962, Maj. Kramer performed duties in Viet Nam involving the preparation of counter-insurgency tactics and techniques. His professional competence constitutes a significant contribution to the success enjoyed by the Military Assistance Advisory Group Viet Nam and reflects great credit upon himself and the United States Army."

The second award went to Sgt. Barnabas Czikora, of Company B, who won the Department of the Army's highest honor for rifle marksmanship—the Gold Distinguished Qualification Badge.

Upon giving the award to Sgt. Czikora, Gen. Billingslea remarked that he greatly envied Sgt. Czikora's achievement because he had been trying to win that same award "for the past 26 years."

To earn this coveted award, an individual must earn at least three Excellence in Competition Badges in Army area competition or higher. These awards are given to the top six per cent out of the top 10 per cent who achieve a total score of more than 227 hits out of a possible 250.

Sgt. Czikora won his first excellence at Fort Benning in 1961 in the All-Army Championship Matches with a score of 246. He achieved his second excellence award in the Caribbean Command Championships with a score of 241. His third excellence was won at the National Matches at Camp Perry this summer with a score of 242.

Ranger, Jungle Warfare School Graduate Upped

By 9th Infantry PIO

Recently promoted to the rank of first lieutenant in a ceremony at the office of Col. Clifford P. Hannum, 9th Infantry commander, was Lt. Robert W. Sheffield, platoon leader of the weapons platoon, Company D, 9th Infantry.

Lt. Sheffield graduated from North Georgia College, Dahlonega, Ga. in 1961 with a Bachelor of Science degree in physical education and history. He participated in the Reserve Officer Training Corps at the college and is a Distinguished Military Graduate and a member of the military fraternity, Scabbard and Blade.

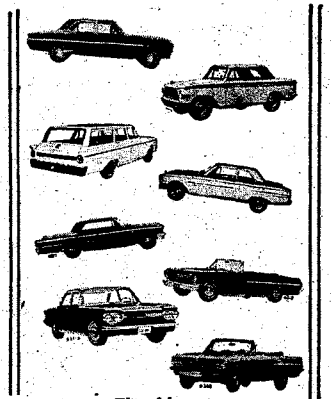
He was commissioned a Regular Army second lieutenant upon entering the Army June 4, 1961 and was assigned to Company D the following day.

Lt. Sheffield completed Ranger School at Fort Benning in February of 1961 and later completed Jungle Warfare School at Camp Sherman, Panama Canal Zone.

Besides the Ranger Tab he wears the Expert Infantryman's Badge.

Lt. Sheffield is a native of Huntsville, Ala. and presently resides at Custer Terrace with his wife.

Present at the promotion ceremony were Col. Hannum, who conducted the ceremony; Lt. Col. Donald T. Paul, deputy commander of the 9th; Lt. Col. James M. Halpin, 9th Infantry executive officer; Maj. Wendell F. DeLaMare, adjutant; and Maj. Charles W. Peer, 9th Infantry S-4 officer.



Lt. Sheffield intends to make the Army his career.

AT THE ANNUAL 1ST INFANTRY DINNER
Gen. and Mrs. Billingslea (L), Col. Poole

Wives Hold Yule Party

The officers and ladies of the 1st Infantry recently held a Christmas Dinner Party at the Main Officers' Open Mess. A reception hour was held in the Anzio Room prior to dinner.

Receiving the evening's guests were Col. and Mrs. Edgar R. Poole, commander of the 1st Infantry and his lady. Special guests joining Col. and Mrs. Poole were Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Charles Billingslea, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Stanley L. Harding, Col. and Mrs. John T. Corley, Col. and Mrs. Louis O. Kunzig Jr., and Mrs. T. J. Cassidy, mother of Mrs. Kunzig.

Following the reception the guests retired to the Supper Club for a Candlelight Dinner. After dinner Col. Poole gave a report on the battle group which covered the months since June. He also presented silver trays to the 1st Infantry's newlyweds, Lt. and Mrs. Graham N. Lowden and Lt. and Mrs. Joe A. Garner.

The junior officer of the battle group, Lt. Manfred H. Stibbe, was then asked to offer a toast to the unit. Gen. Billingslea, commander of the 2nd Infantry Division, added the final touch to the evening by raising a toast to the ladies of the 1st Infantry.

Plans for this function were co-ordinated by all the executive officers in the battle group under the chairmanship of Maj. Sherman W. Hardman. Table decorations were arranged for by Lt. Clay N. Mobley and place cards were planned by Lt. Jerry D. Geer. These adornments included Christmas arrangements on each table with Christmas ornament place cards at each place setting.

Large Christmas trees completed the scene.

Farewells were bade to those officers and their ladies leaving during the months to come. Those receiving good wishes were Capt. and Mrs. William G. Smith, Capt. Charles Millier, Lt. and Mrs. Marion T. Farris, Maj. and Mrs. John W. McKelvey, Capt. and Mrs. William R. Colvin, Capt. and Mrs. Byron Powers, Lt. and Mrs. Jerry D. Geer, Maj. and Mrs. William W. Woodside, Lt. and Mrs. Karl J. Sydor, Lt. and Mrs. Harry Skeins Jr., and Lt. and Mrs. Wayne Winchester.

DivAtry Ladies Attend Holiday Season Coffee

The 2nd Infantry Division Artillery ladies held their Christmas coffee in the Anzio Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess recently. Because of the holiday season, this was a combined unit coffee. Hostesses for the event were Mesdames Ralph K. Jones, Floyd L. Johnson, Millard R. Allen, and William A. Lowe from Division Artillery Headquarters. Coffee was poured for the attending guests by Mesdames Stanley L. Harding, Sydney E. Sacerdote, Ralph K. Jones and Floyd L. Johnson.

A red taffeta tablecloth adorned the serving table which featured a centerpiece of Christmas ornaments and snowmen arranged with Alaskan fir boughs which had been sprayed white.

Farewells were bade to Mrs. Charley O. Chisley from Headquarters, Mrs. James H. Price from 12th Artillery, and Mrs. David M. Keller from 37th Artillery. New arrivals to the various artillery units welcomed at this coffee were Mrs. Ralph Mobley from Headquarters, Mrs. Thomas E. Callahan from 12th Artillery, Mrs. William F. Lundberg of the 15th Artillery, and Mrs. Fred E. Glasock also from the 15th Artillery. Also welcomed were Mrs. Daniel B. Redner of the 17th Artillery, Mrs. Charles R. Wendt Jr. from 38th Artillery and Mrs. Walter H. Powell of the 38th Artillery.

Mrs. Stanley L. Harding was the special guest of the morning's festivities. Mrs. Ralph K. Jones announced that Mrs. Kie O. Doty would be the new reservations chairman from Division Artillery for the Division luncheons. She will replace Mrs. Robert G. Mencfee Jr.

Bingo Tomorrow

Bingo will be held at Service Club Two in the Sand Hill area on Saturday December 29. Game time is 8 p.m. Prizes will consist of cigarettes and cakes baked by members of Ladies of the Big Indianhead.

Any lady who will contribute a cake for this event is asked to telephone Mrs. Gardell Kabney at 544-2140 or Mrs. Lennie Rentrop at 687-4420. Please call today or early Saturday.

Applying Eye Shadow

Use eye shalow in a subtle color and apply it sparingly, blending it softly into the most flattering shape with an outward motion.

38th Arty. Hold Coffee

The officers' wives of the 38th Artillery held their monthly coffee at the home of Mrs. William F. Doherty recently. Guests attending the morning event were Mrs. Molly Pitcher, mother of Mrs. Harry T. Hannon, and Mrs. D. M. Hooper, mother of Mrs. Maurice H. Schregel.

Mrs. Doherty selected a table centerpiece in the Christmas motif with which to adorn her serving table.

Rota-Family Center Gives Xmas Coffee

The Rota - Family Service Center was the scene for a coffee recently, held by the officers' wives of the 38th Infantry. Hostesses for the event were Mrs. Dennis J. Harron and Mrs. Frederick A. Rall. Mrs. Harron also poured.

Division Will Choose Best Soldier and NCO for 1963

By George Aubin

The 2nd Infantry Division is about to embark upon the new year with the selection of two outstanding enlisted men to represent the division for the year 1963.

Under the division's new program, a 2nd Infantry Division Soldier - of - the - Year - 1963 and a 2nd Infantry Division Noncommissioned - Officer - of - the - Year - 1963 will be chosen.

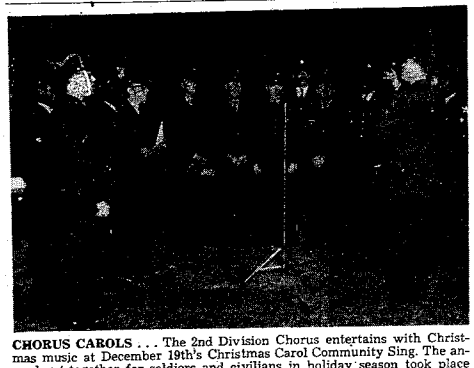
Those eligible for the Soldier-of-the-Year award are grades E-2, E-3, and all specialist grades. Those eligible for the Noncommissioned - Officer - of-the - Year award are grades E4 through E7. Under the new program, Grades E8 and E9 are excluded.

Picking Entries

There are several ways that men of the 2nd Division may be chosen to compete for the awards. The first is their selection by unit commanding officers to compete in the division finals. The name, grade, service number and unit of candidates selected must be submitted to Headquarters, 2nd Division Brigade not later than January 4.

Each battle group, the 7th Cavalry, 69th Armor, 2nd Engineer Battalion, 122nd Signal Battalion and Brigade Headquarters, Special Staff Sections and Headquarters and Headquarters Company are entitled to one candidate apiece for the awards.

In addition, the brigade commander, chiefs of General and Special Staff sections and the commanding officer of Headquarters and Headquarters Company may submit the name, grade, and service number of two candidates to the assistant chief of staff, G-1, not later than January 1. One candidate for each of the honors will be selected by a headquarters board to compete in division-level competition.



Determination of the Division Soldier - of - the - Year and NCO - of - the - Year will be made by Division Selection Boards based on appearance and military bearing, overall record of service, outstanding military achievements to include character of service during assignment to the division, educational development, instructional ability, physical fitness, knowledge of military subjects. This includes customs and traditions of the Army, history of the 2nd Infantry Division, unit history and general military subjects, and current national and world-wide events.

The actual testing itself will be conducted in four phases. Phase One is the Physical Combat Proficiency Test which will be given at 7:30 a. m. January 7, at Wetherby Field, Sand Hill. Candidates will wear fatigues with soft cap and will compete in the 40-yard low crawl, horizontal ladder, dodge, run, and jump, grenade throw and one-mile run.

Phase Two will be the written examination designed to test the candidates' overall military knowledge. The test will be given at 1 p. m., January 7, in Building 3458 (Division Artillery Conference Room-Sand Hill). The uniform again will be fatigues with soft cap.

Phase Three consists of the Instructor Evaluation. Each candidate is required to present a thirty - minute period of formal instruction on one of the following subjects: first aid, map reading, instructor technique, M-60 machine - gun, military leadership, CBR, military courtesy, 3.5 rocket launcher, M-14 rifle or interior guard. Each candidate must bring his lesson plan, training aids, demonstrators and-or assistant instructors. This part of the testing begins on January 8 and the Noncommissioned - Officer - of - the Year candidates will report to Building 9508 (Kelly Hill Classroom located on Marne Road). The Soldier - of - the - Year candidates will report to Building 3081 (MP Detachment Orderly Room).

The fourth and final phase of the testing consists of the candidates appearing before the Division Selection Boards. Current events will be the principal subject taken up before the boards. The uniform will be Army Green, service cap and low quarter shoes. The Noncommissioned - Officer - of-the - Year candidates will appear before Division Selection Board Number One Board Number One at Building 3458. The Soldier-of-the-Year candidates will appear Board Number Two at Building 3081.

CHORUS CAROLS . . . The 2nd Division Chorus entertains with Christmas music at December 19th's Christmas Carol Community Sing. The annual get-together for soldiers and civilians in holiday season took place at the Headquarters Review Field.

'We Servers' Give Blood

A total of 101 pints of blood were donated by "We Servers" of the 23rd Infantry last week during the annual American Red Cross' Blood Donation Drive within the 2nd Infantry Division.

Personnel from all over the Division converged on the Sand Hill Area and Service Club Two to be met by the staff of doctors and nurses as well as the Red Cross officials. Coffee and soft drinks were served to the donors while they waited their turn for donating.

One official stated that the number of donors exceeded by far the number that had been anticipated; thus making the drive a tremendous success.

Members of the 23rd donated strictly on a volunteer basis, and after the donation, were given the remainder of the day off.

'Frenchy's' Beret Led the Play When 122nd Took to the Field

By 122nd Signal PIO

A necessary player on any team is the participant who exemplifies spirit, determination and, most important, a sense of humor, one to whom the other members of the team can depend on for a laugh when the going gets rough and the breaks just don't happen.

The 122nd Signal Battalion flag football team had such an individual in Fred C. Lackland, better known as "Frenchy" to the members of the team.

Lackland's green beret was a constant source of humor for the team, and his determination to wear it during the games brought about his nickname "Frenchy." Though several opponents tried to capture the green beret, the end of the season found Lackland still wearing his trademark.

Lackland played a variety of positions on the team moving from fullback and right end to defensive guard.

Lackland's participation in sports didn't start with the 122nd team. He played fullback on the Booker T. Washington High School team in his hometown of Memphis, Tenn. and was the recipient of three letters for his efforts. Besides football, Lackland was a member of the basketball team and was awarded a letter for his efforts in this area also.

Lackland's interest in sports continued when he entered the Army, and while stationed in Germany with the 29th Signal Battalion, he again made himself a valuable part of the battalion's basketball and football teams.

Lackland says he feels lucky when he's wearing a bright beret and for that reason, he is never without a bright colored one in any sports activity. Lackland admits to having no special requirement as to a particular color for his beret, but he believes the orange and green ones have brought better luck than any of the other colors.

Lackland is assigned to the Command Operations Company in the battalion where he serves as a wireman.

Lackland's beret might not have helped signal team to win any games, but it and the presence of its owner accounted in great part for the spirit and determination to win which marked each game.

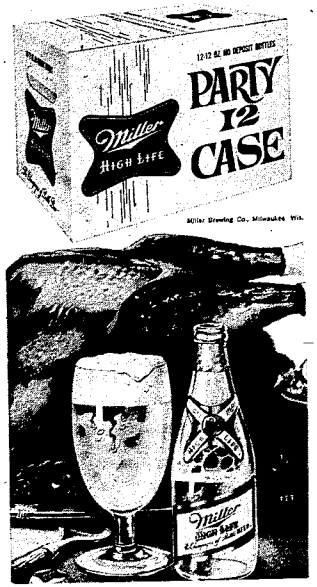
Assistant Coach Returns to 87th Inf.

By 87th Infantry PIO

Lt. Bobby Boylston recently returned to duty with Company A, 87th Infantry after a special assignment as an assistant coach of the undefeated Doughboy football team.

Working close with head coach Maj. Leaton Cofield, the coaching staff forged a team that was unofficially rated as the number one service team in the country. They beat such noted teams as the Quantico Marines and the 101st Airborne Division's "Screaming Eagles."



Lt. Boylston gained his football experience at the University of Alabama where he played under coach "Bear" Bryant for four years. While at Alabama, Lt. Boylston, playing tackle, captained the 1960 team, one of the top 10 in the nation. He played in the Blue-Grey All-Star game in 1960, the Liberty Bowl in 1959 and the Blue Bonnet Bowl in 1960.

Surgeon Says

Guard Your Eyesight With Frequent Checks

By Capt. Norman Sanders
Chief Eye Service, MAH

The eye physician, along with colleagues in other branches of medicine, recognizes and emphasizes the fact that preventive medicine, or, in other words, prevention of disease before it begins, is the best form of treatment available.

How can we prevent serious eye disease? First, a yearly visit to the eye doctor for all people 40 years old and over will detect any early development of glaucoma. This is a disease of increased pressure in the eyes and without warning slowly, but surely, robs its victims of their sight. This disease is more common than diabetes, and probably half the people who have this affliction have not been discovered, and, consequently, are not being treated.

Secondly, serious eye injuries can be prevented by the use of safety glasses. All children who wear glasses should wear safety glasses. Carpenters, machinists, and all those people in industrial trades who run the risk of being struck in the eye by particles flying at high speeds should wear safety glasses. In addition, acids and lyes are potential hazards, and goggles should be worn when around these chemicals. One-eyed individuals should wear safety glasses whether they have a refractive error or not, and this is especially true for one-eyed children.

Thirdly, an immediate visit to the eye doctor is necessary when the symptoms of a red eye, loss of vision, or persistent pain with or without the loss of vision appears.

A red eye in itself is usually of little significance if the patient recognizes its cause to be something like over indulgence in alcohol or smoking. However, if the red eye is accompanied by even the slightest loss of vision, there is very definitely something of a serious nature taking place. Decreased sight, without pain, is very common since cataracts are painless. Optic nerve and retinal diseases are usually painless as are intra-ocular hemorrhages. Pain in the eye may be a symptom of inflammation within the eye known as uveitis or may occasionally be one of the symptoms of glaucoma.

In another sphere of eye problems are the children with crossed or turned eyes. This is not something that will go away. Any child whose eyes are not straight after the ninth month should be taken to the eye doctor.

In summary, it is important to remember that the ophthalmologist can often prevent blindness if the patient will come to him before irreversible damage has been done. The public can prevent themselves from becoming eye patients by the proper use of safety glasses; and yearly check-ups, after the age of 40.

DOD to Increase RS-70 Allocation

WASHINGTON (AFPS) —

The Secretary of Defense has announced that, with the approval of the President, he is adding $50 million to the currently approved development program for the RS-70 aircraft.

This raises the estimated cost of the program from $1,300,000,000 to $1,350,000,000.

The FY 1963 segment of the development will be increased from $171 million to $221 million, utilizing a portion of the additional funds appropriated by the Congress.

TOP MEDIC . . . Sp4 John S. Krause was recently named "Soldier-of-the-Quarter" in the 428th Medical Battalion where he serves as an X-ray specialist in the 3rd Field Hospital. He attended medic courses at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., and Womack Army Hospital, Fort Bragg, following basic training at Fort Jackson, S.C.

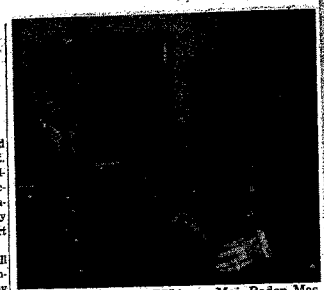
Norsworthy Tops League In Cage Season's 1st Half

By Lee A. Zani

The 428th Medics, showing a balance of power and depth, copped first place in the Major Unit Basketball League as the first half came to an end.

The fine shooting of George Bell, the league's second highest scorer, combined with the defensive and backboard playing of Harold Deane enabled the Medics to post a 6-1 record over the field of seven other contenders. The Medics' lone defeat came at the hands of the 10th Artillery in an overtime contest 61-60.

Bell, a former Jackson State, Mississippi, player, took the first half individual game performance by scoring 43 points in one game; and Deane, an ex-Virginia star who was forced to miss the first three games, came back to score 9 points in the last four games.



Second place honors in the Major Unit Basketball League were shared by three teams. The Infantry Center Troop Command, 29th Infantry, and The Student Brigade. The three way tie resulted when TICTC lost its final game to the 428th Medics in double overtime 104-103, while the 29th Infantry pulled abreast with TSB and TICTC winning its final game against the 15ist Engineers 84-65. All three teams finished the first half of league play with a record of 5 wins and 2 losses.

Individual scoring honors went to the 29th Infantry's Jim Norsworthy from Campbellton, Fla. Norsworthy, who scored 172 points in seven games for a 24.4 average per game, led the league in this department.

TICTC, displaying a well-balanced scoring quintet, placed three men among the league's top ten performers. They were Hudson Ray, Herbert Chavis, and Joe Tillman.

The second half of play will get under way Jan. 7. The winner of the second half of play will meet the winner of the first half, the 428th Medics, to determine the post championship.

To determine the post runner-up Team, the runner-up in the second half will meet the runner-up in the first half. Should the 428th Medics finish first in the second half of play, they will be the post champions.

GIFT FROM INDONESIA . . . Maj. Raden Mas Jono Atmodjo (L) of the Indonesian Army, presents an intricate hand-crafted magazine rack to Brig. Gen. Royal Reynolds Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School. Maj. Jono completed the school's associate officer career course recently and is en route to Fort Bragg, N. C., for counterintelligence and psychological warfare training. The gift was from Maj. Jono's Indonesian commander, Brig. Gen. Soerachman of the Kementerian Kearnanan Nasional in Djakarta.

TIS's Last Class of '62 Nets 555 Paratroopers

The last class of The Infantry School's basic airborne course for 1962 was graduated Dec. 20 as 555 newly qualified paratroopers received the Parachutist Badge.

A U. S. Marine Corps officer, 1st Lt. Charles E. Davis, a member of the 2nd Forces Reconnaissance Company, Camp Lejeune, N.C., was honor graduate. He is the son of Col. and Mrs. Charles I. Davis. Col. Davis is stationed in Europe.

The class included 146 Army officers and 383 enlisted men, one Marine Corps officer and five enlisted men, and one Navy enlisted man. In addition there were five Army Reserve officers and 14 enlisted men from Special Forces units.

During the ceremonies two members of The Infantry School's Airborne - Air Mobility Department were presented Army Commendation Medals. Department members are responsible for training the paratroopers.

They were SFC Albert W. Edwards and SSgt Billy J. Morrison.

Also singled out for special recognition were four sons of former airborne soldiers. These men, all members of the graduating class, are called second generation paratroopers by department personnel.

They are Pvt. Jack Porter, son of 1st Lt. (Ret.) Hubert C. Porter, St. Charles, Ill.; Pvt. James M. Walker, Huntington, W. Va.; Pvt. Robert A. Lee, son of Sgt. Maj. (ret.) Ernest W. Lee of Littington, N. C., and Marine Corps PFC Robert G. Labelle, son of Elzar Labelle, Chomedey, Quebec, Canada.

The men's fathers served with airborne units during World War II. Lt. Porter and Walker were with the 101st Airborne Division. Sgt. Lee was with the 82nd Airborne Division and Labelle saw combat with the Canadian Army paratroopers.

A REAL LOAD

In rarified mountain air a climber's blood has little reserve of oxygen and he must pause every few steps to catch his breath. Bearing 30 pounds at 19,000 feet is as difficult as carrying 210 pounds at sea level.

MISS POU

Miss Pou Named to Club Post

Miss Clara Pou, a native of Winston-Salem, N.C., was recently named program director of Service Club No. 1, by The Infantry Center Special Services officer.

Miss Pou received her bachelor of music degree at Salem College, Winston-Salem, N.C., where she majored in piano and pipe organ.

She has served as a religious education director in several churches throughout the states of North Carolina and Tennessee.

Miss Pou started her recreational work some time ago with municipal recreation work at Drexel and Winston-Salem, N.C.

In 1954-56 she served as program director with Special Services in Erlangen and Fuessen, Germany. Miss Pou has also done work in the recreation field with the YWCA in Houston, Tex. She lists her hobbies as music, fishing, photography, reading and all sports.

New Adult Education Degree Being Offered

A new degree in adult education is now being offered through the University of Oklahoma, according to the Education Center here.

At the recent Fourth Annual Armed Forces Educational Conference sponsored by the University of Maryland in Baltimore a representative of the University of Oklahoma, Dr. Howell McGee, announced that the degree of bachelor of liberal studies has been approved by the regents of the University. Interested members of the Armed Forces are invited to apply.

Instead of a specific number of hours and specific courses, the new degree is patterned on the European idea of individual study and examination.

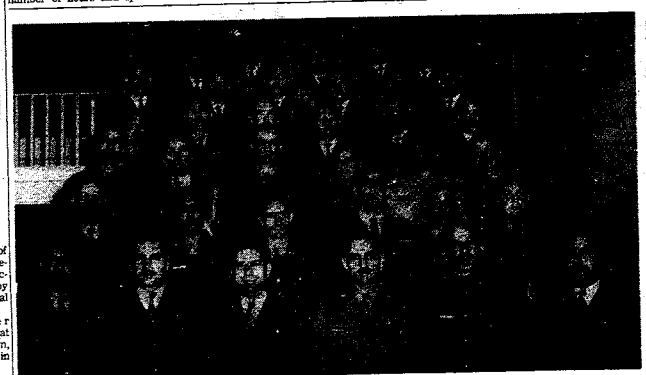
Each applicant is given a placement examination, either at the University or at his post, which enables the student's advisor to evaluate his background.

Each student may proceed through the program at his own pace.

There are three broad areas to be covered: social science, natural science and the humanities.

For each area the student is given books and materials which he reads at his own rate. When he and his advisor feel he is qualified, he takes an area examination and if he passes, is admitted to a three-week seminar at the university during the summer months.

After completing all three areas and the respective seminars, he is enrolled in the inter-area seminar of four weeks. Following this last seminar, the student is given an oral and a written comprehensive examination, and upon their successful completion he is awarded the BLS degree.



Last summer the inter-area topic of discussion was "The Emergent Nations of Africa".

This new degree was designed for the physically isolated individual, and one of the current students is a member of an oil-exploration team in the middle of the Sahara Desert.

It should be ideally suited to officers and enlisted men in the Army who have not yet completed their degrees, officials commented.

Under this new program they can continue their degree work through the university even while on tours of duty. All of the residence seminars which total only 13 weeks, may be taken on leave status.

The Judge Says . . .

By 1st Lt. David E. Rebbin

The next time you purchase an automobile, do not forget that all that glitters is not chromium. Do not be carried away by the sight of a shiny new paint job, and forget all about what may be under that paint.

This is the first of a three-part series dealing with the purchasing of automobiles. It will deal with the car itself. Subsequent articles will deal with the contract of sale and the "easy payment plan."

Now, to get down to business. The first thing to watch out for is that shiny coat of new paint. If a car is over three years old and the paint looks as though it were new, watch out. That new paint may cover up large rust spots that will bleed through in a short while.

Look at the tires on the car. Do not just look to see that they are shiny, a coat of tire paint can fix that up. Look to see if there is much tread left on the tires and look in the tread itself to make sure that the tread has not been recut into the cord, a favorite trick to make old tires look like new.

Next, look at the speedometer. If it appears that the car has been driven an exceptionally low number of miles, look to see if the speedometer has been turned back. It is sometimes possible to tell this by the presence of small scratches where the speedometer has been pried out of its mount.

One of the best ways to look and get a good estimate of how a car has been treated is to inspect the trunk and glove compartment. If these have been abused, it is a safe bet that the rest of the car has also.

If the car has extra accessories on it, check to make sure that all of them work. That new top on the convertible will do you little good unless you get it up and down when you want to. The same holds true for the radio, power windows and heater.

Of course, one of the most important things to check is to see if the car will run properly. It is usually best to take the car to a mechanic and pay him the few dollars to really check it out, but if you do not want to do that, here are a few things to look for.

First, take the car out on a side road where you won't bother anyone, and make sure that it has been run enough to warm the motor up. Then, accelerate smoothly several times, making sure that the gears mesh correctly and without any unnecessary noise. Next make a series of stops from about 30 miles per hour to see the condition of the brakes. Put the car in low gear and at a speed of about 20 miles per hour, slowly apply the brakes with one foot while continuing pressing on the accelerator with the other until the motor is operating under a considerable load. This is a good test to see the condition of the motor. As a caution, do not continue this for more than a few seconds as you may burn the motor out.

Now that you have checked the motor and the rest of the car, buy it with confidence that you will not have to spend more money getting the car in running shape than you would to buy it. But, remember, the sale of a used car carries no guarantee other than that the seller has title to the car. The buyer takes the car "as is" unless the contract provides otherwise.

If a friendly car dealer makes any promises or guarantees to you, insist that he put it in writing. An oral promise or guarantee that has been made a part of the written contract of sale is worthless.

(NEXT WEEK: Can you really afford that car?)

Red Nose Express Aids Needy

The "Red-Nose Express," a charity drive sponsored by members of the 197th Infantry Brigade, left here last week bound for the Columbus Salvation Army Headquarters.

It took one three-quarter ton and six 2½-ton trucks to carry the cargo of food, clothes and toys to the charity organization. Members of Headquarters Company, 197th Brigade, estimated there were over 10,000 articles of clothing in the various trucks. The convoy was led downtown by a military police and a Columbus police escort.

Included in the distribution, in addition to the Salvation Army, are the 6th St. YMCA, Seventh Day Adventists, two Cub Scout Packs and a Boy Scout Troop from Columbus, and a Fort Benning teen-age group, the Episcopal Young Churchmen.

Master Planning Post Topic at AFMA Meet

Planning new buildings and facilities at a military installation requires a "long range" view, 80 members of the Fort Benning Chapter of the Armed Forces Management Association were told at a luncheon meeting recently at the Black Angus Ranch Restaurant.

Col. Riel S. Crandall, Infantry Center engineer, discussed "Master Planning at Fort Benning."

The address is part of a series of programs scheduled for the chapter on developments in the area, which interest both the civilian and military communities.

Col. Crandall said planning for a military installation is simpler than for a civilian community because each post or base has a specific mission. The mission is stated not only in terms of types of activities to be provided for, but in terms of the number of personnel the installation will be expected to accommodate, he explained.

"Every post in the Army has a mission, a post engineer, and a post planning board," Col. Crandall said.

In addition to the mission to be accomplished by a post, planners must consider "time phasing," Col. Crandall said. "For instance, a project approved in the fall of 1962 may not be ready to move into until 1963."

Planners study the mission of a post and determine its needs in the way of buildings and facilities, the colonel said.

The location selected for a new facility must take into consideration "land use," he continued.

To illustrate proper land use, Col. Crandall pointed out that Fort Benning is bisected by two railroads that existed before the government bought the reservation. The roads constitute a "non-firing" area he added.

"During World War I, when Fort Benning was established, planners took the long range view," the speaker told the group. "In the years since that time other planners have continued to take the long range view. Our predecessors have built the Main Post and other activities and housing areas in the vicinity of the railroads bisecting the post. This foresight has left open areas for development of firing ranges and other training facilities that could not be placed near the railroads."

Planning for a post must take into consideration developments in the civilian community that affect the military installation, the speaker said.

"To foster better cooperation between the civilian community and the post, the city and county engineers and the post engineer keep each other informed," Col. Crandall said.

The speaker showed viewgraph transparencies to illustrate long range plans for Fort Benning to include, in addition to a new academic building now under construction, a projected plan for supply and storage facilities, instructional material warehouses, a central training aids center, and other necessary accompaniments of the business of conducting a school.

Authorities on Personnel, Automation Join in Meet

WASHINGTON (ANS)—Personnel of The Adjutant General's Data Services and Administrative Systems Command, along with representatives of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel, attended the First Annual Conference on Automation and Personnel Administration conducted by the Society for Personnel Administration in Washington, D. C.

The conference afforded a valuable opportunity for leaders and experts in the areas of Automatic Data Processing (ADP) and Personnel Administration to get together for an exchange of information on the most recent developments in both areas and to discuss mutual problems.

Personnel managers, military and civilian alike, are becoming increasingly aware of the benefits that can accrue from the use of ADP as a tool for more effective personnel management. The U. S. Army is well aware of the fact that its manpower, military and civilian, constitutes its most valuable resource. By intelligently exploiting the capabilities of ADP to the maximum extent, a major breakthrough is envisioned to the number one personnel problem of the Army—"getting the right man to the right place at the right time."

The Adjutant General's Data Services and Administrative Systems Command is devoting a major effort to the development of advanced ADP systems to service the personnel administration subject matter area. The concept involves the establishment of "data banks" containing detailed personnel information on each individual on ADP magnetic tape. These data banks will be located at the various Army organizational levels concerned with personnel management.

Season's Greetings!

As Nineteen-sixty-two draws to a close, and people throughout the world look forward to their various holiday celebrations, all of us at McDonald's feel doubly blessed. First, that we live in a country such as ours, where there is room for all of us to build our lives in freedom and peace. Secondly, that we have been fortunate enough to live and work in a community such as this, where so very, very many of you have honored us with your patronage. May we take this opportunity to extend the greetings of the season and to say thank you, while we wish you the very best for the future.

AT THE Movies

THE PASSWORD IS COURAGE concerns the amazing but true exploits of a so-called captive who hoodwinked the high command during World War II, outwitting the Luftwaffe and escaping so many times it gave ulcers to the Third Reich. It stars Dirk Bogarde and Margaret Whiting.

TERM OF TRIAL stars Laurence Olivier, Simone Signoret and Sarah Miles in a drama in which a dedicated teacher finds himself unjustly accused of improper behavior by a charming young student who gives a distorted version of the teacher's innocent act of kindness.

GUNS OF DARKNESS is a suspense drama starring David Niven and Leslie Caron. Triggered into action when his heroics upon the wounded ex-president of a small South American country, a non-violent man makes a desperate flight for freedom with the revolutionary forces in close pursuit.

HELL IS FOR HEROES is the true story of a place called Murder Ridge and one Infantry squad whose heroism made an immortal legend. The film stars Steve McQueen, Bobby Darin, Nick Adams and Fess Parker.

'Decay-Free for 63' Makes Good Slogan

By Lt. Col. Hubert W. Merchant

Didn't this year fly by in a hurry? Here it is already time to take stock of what we did last year and plan for next.

This week I shall begin by expressing the hope that you all help yourselves and your children to better dental health for next year. Maybe we could make "Decay-Free For Sixty-Three" our dental health slogan. It's a goal we can work toward.

It's difficult to do everything at once, so why not start now to remember about brushing after each time we eat. Tomorrow when you go to the PX you can buy your new tube of fluoride - containing toothpaste and your new brushes if you need them. Then, Sunday, you can get a head start on next year by resolving then and there to cut out between meal snacks for yourself and your children. Not only resolve it, but do it.

The last thing to do is to resolve to get those regular dental check ups that you have put off and put off for so long. I left this until last, because I'm reasonably sure you can't get an appointment until after the first of the year anyhow. But don't forget it.

Predictions are often made at this time. Do you know that shortly we will have even more effective methods to prevent decay than we have now. However, we aren't making such rapid progress in periodontal disease (disease of the gums and supporting structures of the teeth). I'll go out on a limb and predict that we will make progress rapidly in this area in a short time, and I wish I could predict (and I know all other dentists do, too) that your children would be free of both decay and periodontal disease for their lifetimes.

Nike Zeus Again Hits Flying Mark

The U. S. Army's Nike Zeus anti-missile missile system on Dec. 12 successfully intercepted another re-entry target vehicle launched by an intercontinental ballistic missile in another re-entry target vehicle launched by an intercontinental ballistic missile in another of a series of continuing development tests, the Department of Defense has announced.

The Nike Zeus missile was fired and controlled from the Army test installation, at the Pacific Missile Range Facility, Kwajalein Island in the Southwest Pacific.

Two Zeus missiles were fired in salvo during this engagement, the first of which made the successful intercept.

The Army said ground tracking equipment indicated that the target vehicle was well within the lethal radius of a Zeus operational warhead.

The second missile was automatically destroyed because of a technical defect during the second stage.

Neither the intercepting missile nor the target vehicle carried a nuclear warhead.

Ground distance from Kwajalein and the altitude at which the intercept took place were not disclosed.

The target vehicle was boosted to ICBM velocity on a 5,000 mile trajectory from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif., using an Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile booster fired as a training exercise by a crew of the Strategic Air Command.

The capability of intercepting single ICBM's under research and development conditions is a valuable contribution to our understanding of the basic factors involved in problems in this field. The tests do not represent an offense-defense contest but from the performance of components of the Nike Zeus and the behavior of re-entry bodies, a better estimate will be possible following the test series of the capabilities of the Nike Zeus system.

Testing of the Nike Zeus system using ICBM-launched target vehicles will continue on the Pacific Missile Range.

Gen. Daniel Discusses International Commitments Before MOWW

Since the end of World War II the United States has recognized its responsibility to assist new and war-torn nations in developing democratic societies of their own choosing, Maj. Gen. Derrill M. Daniel, deputy commanding general of the Third U. S. Army, said here Dec. 20.

Speaking to the Columbus-Fort Benning Chapter, Military Order of the World Wars, the general said, "When the fighting ended in 1945 the power of the United States had grown too great and the technological advances had shrunk too much to let us ever again return to our old policy of avoiding foreign entanglements."

Gen. Daniel added that the United States' international commitments inevitably grew, and as they grew, changes in supporting military policy were required.

"The first step to strengthen the military posture of the Free World was the establishment of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) in 1949 and the resultant commitment of our military forces to defense of Western Europe," he said.

"Two World Wars proved we could not divorce ourselves from events in that part of the world," he continued. "Other military agreements followed, including the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization and a number of smaller alliances."

In 20 years the United States has made the transition from a philosophy of security through isolation to one of national security through collective security, Gen. Daniel pointed out.

But collective security has many aspects, of which military security is only one, he said.

"Economic, political and moral factors all play major parts," he added.

Gen. Daniel said no weak nation can long support a strong military establishment.

"'And people who are vulnerable psychologically, economically or politically are easy prey to communist pressure,'" he continued.

"Our enemies will fight on any front — not that of armed force — as long as there is reasonable prospect of furthering their ultimate goal of world domination," he said.

"As a matter of fact, the communist leaders have given ample evidence that they prefer to conquer by subversion," he continued. "But they have also shown they will resort to force when it is advantageous to them."

The political basis of our collective security system is a series of treaties through which the United States has committed itself to military alliances with more than 40 countries, Gen. Daniel said.

"But treaties must be supported by good faith and determination before they can have much meaning," he added. "The United States shows its good faith through the commitment of our military strength by helping them to improve the effectiveness of their own forces."

To assist our Allies in their military, technical and economic development, we established the Mutual Security Program in 1951, Gen. Daniel pointed out.

"This program involves activities with some 80 countries and territories and serves our interests by contributing to the welfare and security, and hence to the strength of the Free World," he said.

"We also have a Mutual Weapons Development Program aimed at increasing the defensive capability of the United States and our Allies by accelerating research and development of non-nuclear weapons," Gen. Daniel said.

When military aid is involved in defense programs, the chief of the Military Assistance Advisory in defense programs, the chief of the Military Assistance Advisory Group (MAAG) is a team member. It is the responsibility of a MAAG to recommend to a nation and its own commander the types and amount of equipment needed, Gen. Daniel concluded.

Gettysburg Vet's Leg Displayed at Museum

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The veteran of Gettysburg paid an annual visit — not to that battlefield where he had lost a leg but to the leg itself, displayed in the Army Medical Museum in the nation's capital.

And often Maj. Gen. Daniel E. Sickles would invite friends to join him in this anniversary ritual. That was Dan Sickles — a fabulously colorful character even in an age of flamboyant types.

Last year alone some 684,606 visitors stared at Sickles' leg bone in the Independence Avenue museum, now part of the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology which is celebrating its centennial. There are many other historical items on display — a bone sliver from Lincoln's skull and a lock of his hair, bullet-smashed vertebrae from his assassin, John Wilkes Booth, and from assassinated President James A. Garfield—but Peg Leg Sickles' missing member continues to fascinate.

As do the Union general himself and his full-length biography, "Sickles the Incredible." Long before the Civil War he was in the limelight. As a New York politician he was instrumental in obtaining Central Park for the city in 1852. He went on to Congress and made lurid headlines in 1859 when he shot Philip Barton Key, son of the author of our National Anthem, because of Key's liaison with Sickles' wife.

His subsequent murder trial made legal history for Sickles was acquitted on the grounds of temporary mental abberation — the first case in which such a defense was presented.

Dan Sickles' role in the Civil War, where he commanded the III Corps at Chancellorsville and Gettysburg was no less controversial. Historians still argue about his deployment of troops in the "peach orchard" phase of the latter epic battle, when a Confederate cannonball shattered his right leg.

After its amputation the general was shown a circular directing medical officers "diligently to collect and to forward to the office of the Surgeon General all specimens of morbid anatomy, surgical or medical, which may be regarded as valuable.

Sickles cooperated characteristically. He had his leg packed securely in a coffin-like box and sent it along with his formal calling card on which he had written, "Compliments of D.E.S."

Sages of Old Peeked Into Future of World

Ever speak of "seeing which way the wind blows?" To our early ancestors, this was no idle phrase.

They thought they could read the future in the sweep of clouds or the dart of lightning across the sky, and in the direction of birds in flight. Omens from the east were deemed lucky, while those from the west boded ill.

Some problems of prediction were tougher: suppose an eastbound bird was heard to sing? To solve such questions, the Romans appointed a college of augers or omen - readers, leading citizens who had as much prestige as our Supreme Court, and like court members, could hold office for life.

While some Greek poets were detailing the unreliability of a woman's words, other Greeks were traveling miles to hear priestesses' matter predictions supposedly inspired by Apollo, god of propricy. Some of the answers given by these women would have turned our political pollsters green with envy.

Asking if he should go to war, wealthy King Croesus was told that if he did, he would destroy a great nation. Overjoyed, he marshaled his troops against the enemy — but the country eventually destroyed in the war was his own!

Not all the prophets of old were so vague. The French St. Odile, born in 671 A.D., wrote of a time when "German shall be called the most bellicose nation on earth . . . when from her bosom shall arise the terrible man who will make war upon the world."

She went on to describe war tactics amazingly similar to Hitler's blitzkrieg — and to foretell "Antichrist's" eventual defeat, after early victories, by an alliance of more than 20 nations.

The 16th century astrologer Nostradamus not only predicted a German defeat after a disastrous campaign in the East, but foretold the birth near Italy of a man destined to control the French army and become emperor. This proved to be a neat thumbnail sketch of Napoleon.

"Carriages without horses shall go
And accidents fill the world with woe.
Around the world thoughts shall fly
In the twinkling of an eye
Under water men shall walk,
Shall ride, shall sleep, shall talk.
In the air men shall be seen,
In white, in black, in green."

The prophet? Mother Shipton, a legendary 15th century English witch. She also predicted that "Women shall dress as men and trousers wear. . .and cut off all their locks of hair."

Perhaps overcome by this melancholy phospect, she stalled that "The world to an end shall come . . . In eighteen hundred and eighty one!"

Is it really possible to predict the future. Sure. It's done in industry all the time. Thousands of store buyers all over the country rely on the predictions of the fashion stylist as to what will be "in" this year, and what will be "out." If she's right, she saves chain stores from investing hundreds of thousands of dollars in unwanted merchandise.

On the strength of weather predictions — which, incidentally are right 85-90 per cent of the time on short-range forecasts of six to 36 hours — a bakery manager can predict whether or not husbands told to "please pick up dessert on your way home" will go to neighborhood bakeries or to chain bakeries in protected subway stations and bus terminals.

As you wait for an elevator, operational research scientists can even predcit how long it will take before you start fuming. Answer: 30 seconds!

Army Cites Shortage Of Nurses

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Army is faced with a shortage of nurses.

Secretary of the Army Cyrus R. Vance, speaking before the Ninth Annual Conference of Civilian Aides at Ft. Myer, Va., announced that the nurse shortage is one of the Army's most serious personnel problems.

He said that while the lack of sufficient nurses is a national concern, the Army's present need is "acute."

Mr. Vance said that the Army would have a shortage of 2,000 nurses this year despite the fact that in many cases civilian nurses had been employed in Army hospitals.

Cuban Crisis Role Is Lauded

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—The Air Force's Military Air Transport Service flew 18,800 hours supporting and deploying U. S. combat forces and also flew more than 17 global airlifts during the short period of the Cuban crisis.

In the latter half of October, MATS airlift, air rescue, air weather and air photographic forces flew more than 500 missions.

The Air Force said that more than half of these missions were flown to deploy combat ready Marines as well as air and ground battle gear to Guantanamo and the Southeastern U. S.

These missions also included the airlift of several hundred tons of conventional ammunition and battle equipment for Tactical Air Command composite air strike forces deployed to Florida bases.

The MATS Air Weather Service flew special weather reconnaissance flights around Cuba, while MATS Air Rescue Service accomplished special search missions for the missing SAC reconnaissance aircraft plus precautionary missions in the area.

The MATS Air Photographic and Charting Service flew special photo reconnaissance missions over the Atlantic Ocean area for the Navy.

OUTGOING, INCOMING . . . Lt. Col. James E. Echols Jr. (L), outgoing chairman of the Artillery Committee, presents the Artillery School crest to Lt. Col. James D. Clark, his successor. This is the only duplicate of the plaque that hangs in the office of the commandant, U.S. Army Artillery and Missile School, Fort Sill, Okla. Col. Echols departs in January for the University of Mississippi Southern where he will study under the Army's Bootstrap Program. Col. Clark has commanded the 1st Howitzer Battalion, 27th Artillery, 2nd Infantry Division, for the past 16 months.

Many Injured in Falls Each Year

During the past year, two million workers in the United States suffered accidental injuries while on the job. The resultant wage losses of these employees totalled more than two billion dollars, according to the National Office of Vital Statistics.

Contrary to popular belief, defective machinery and mechanical breakdown are not the most common causes of industrial accidents. The National Safety Council reports that the three things highest on the list are: (1) handling of objects (mainly tools) manually; (2) falls; and (3) being struck by falling or moving objects.

Council statisticians estimate that 400,000 Americans were seriously injured last year because they literally fell down on the job. In fact, five people within the next two hours will die as a result of falls.

You can largely eliminate yourself as a candidate for this type of accident by taking just ten simple precautions.

1. You may feel like doing a hop, skip and jump as you go merrily down the stairs, but you'll be a lot safer if you always hold the handrail and stay on the alert.

2. When you have to reach for something, use a ladder rather than just any old chair that's handy. What's more, be careful when tilting back in swivel chairs — and never tilt back in straight chairs. Look before you sit.

3. Telephone and machine cords should be kept out of the way, either attached to, or concealed under, desks. Loose cords are a tripping hazard that should be reported.

4. Beware of your footwear! A loose sole or shoe lace can be the cause of a major accident, and even run-down heels can be hazardous — because they throw you off balance and place strain on your ankles. Where there is a high degree of risk from slipping, wear wooden- or rubber-soled safety shoes.

5. Keep access clear to exits, fire escapes, stairs and fire equipment; keep aisles and passageways clear. Always put trash in waste cootainers instead of leaving it to accumulate in corners or on the floor.

6. Make sure you don't carry so many cartons, packages and boxes that your vision is blocked. Look where you're going at all times.

7. Follow the safety rules suggested on the slogan-posters. They've been put there as a daily reminder that "safety is everybody's business."

8. Don't stand in front of doors or open doorways—unless you insist on being graduated from the school of hard knocks!

9. File waste materials neatly and safely when you're through with them. Stack boxes and crates so that one can be removed without toppling the whole load. Keep yours tools neat and in order —and off overhead ramps.

10. Remove anything you spill from the floor immediately — especially oil.

Don't ever encourage someone who has fallen to get up. If he prefers to remain where he is, let him do so—and call for medical aid. Avoid moving him if you possibly can. If he has broken a bone, moving him may cause severe internal injuries.

Copter Will Lift Missile

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The future battlefield mobility of the Army will be demonstrated when the Pershing missile and the new CH-47A Chinook helicopter are combined in tests.

The tests, being conducted at McCoy AFB, Fla., are designed to test the tactical capability of the helicopter to move the missile.

Activities

Fund Drive, Fort Benning exceeded its goal.

NOV. 22 — Military personnel at Fort Benning and around the world observed a holiday distinctly American, Thanksgiving, as more than 28,000 troops and guests converged on post mess halls to feast on some 90 tons of food.

NOV. 30 — Lt. Col. Victor K. Harwood, chief of The Infantry School's Airborne-Air Mobility Department Operations Section, was named to the U. S. Army Infantry Officer Candidate School Hall of Fame.

DEC. 1 — The First Benning Doughboy football team ended its first undefeated season by downing the Fort Campbell, Ky., Screaming Eagles, 12 to 6, at Doughboy Stadium. The victory gave the post team the 1962 service championship.

DEC. 7 — The Infantry School announced the expansion of its facilities to accommodate a 16p per cent increase in the number of Officer Candidate School students.

The expansion resulted from a new Army regulation that opened the way for male graduates of colleges without ROTC programs to enlist for two years specifically to attend OCS.

DEC. 19 — Gen. Barksdale Hamlett, Army vice chief of staff, was briefed on the history and organization of The Infantry Center and School at the 52nd Infantry Division and addressed students of officer career classes.

DEC. 14—The Infantry Center announced the Christmas-New Year holiday period will extend from 5 p.m. Dec. 20 to 8 a.m. Jan. 4.
