Just as every medical service provided in the patient's home was accompanied by the individual care and attention of the doctor, every hospital service is administered individually to meet the needs of each patient. Hospital people are highly trained to provide the exact treatment the doctor prescribes. Additionally, patients have specific needs that can be met only by watchful human beings. Machines cannot replace the nurse who notes an alteration in a patient's coloring.

Hospital people strive to provide this support by means of individual and personal services for patients and their families. Additionally, hospitals are adding many services which make each patient's recuperation more pleasant.

The care provided in today's hospital scientifically exceeds that provided from the little black bag of 50 years ago, but the "tender loving care" which accompanied the doctor's visit is also still present in the hospital.

This combination of personal interest and scientific advances found at Martin Army Hospital is summed up in this year's National Hospital Week theme — "Your Hospital . . . Uniting Science and Patient Care".

TIS 'Small Arms Theater Group'

Machinegun Committee Earned Name for Skits

Some call them the "Small Arms Theater Group," while others call them the "Rapid Fire Thespians," but to many students who witness their act they are the funniest thing this side of Broadway.

The actors, performing for the benefit of students receiving machine gun training, are Major Loren R. Lester, Capt. Bernard J. Fox, M-Sgt Harold P. Peoples, and Sp4 Billie J. Kendrick.

The "act" is designed to add humor to the important task of instructing students in the use of the machine gun. This instruction is the responsibility of the Machinegun Committee of the Infantry School's Weapons Department.

In the 43 years since its inception, the Machinegun Committee has instructed and assisted in training 228,000 students of Officer Candidate, Orientation, Career, Reserve, and Refresher Courses.

Orientations on machineguns, related equipment, and techniques are often presented to Allied and American civilians along with military dignitaries. It is here that the "act" provides a respite from the normal routine of instruction and makes explanation less technical while demonstrating the accomplishments of the weapons.

The most complete course of machinegun instruction is given to the Officer Candidates. Practical work is emphasized to teach the candidate to train and employ crews and weapons under all conditions.

The orientation classes receive an abbreviated course of 14 hours in which the essentials are stressed. This instruction begins at Red Cloud Range with a briefing by Major Lester, committee chairman, on the contents of the course and procedures to be followed.

Second Lt. Robert L. Saxon presents basic marksmanship with the M60 machinegun to include goals, methods, and facilities that will best enable the training of soldiers of the future. After a demonstration, the students fire portions of the courses discussed. The purpose of the Transition Range is discussed by 1st Lt. Wade C. Smith at Wagner Range.

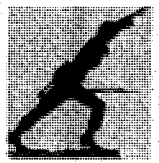
There are four instructional stations where the "round robin" or "county fair" type of instruction is used. Students are divided in groups of three, each group being instructed by a member of the Committee.

At the first station, each student fires the weapon and is then critiqued by the instructor. The next station is devoted to mechanical training with the M60 machinegun.

The third station provides mechanical training with the .50 caliber machinegun, taught by assistant instructors Sfc Thomas F. Staggs and Sgt. Radford Morris.

At the last station students receive instruction on how to obtain and use data from the M60 machinegun and its tripod which will enable the gunner to hit a target at night or under conditions of poor visibility.

On Galloway Range, Capt. Roberts L. Bass discusses the techniques for engaging combat-type targets on immediate surrounding terrain when visible to the firer. Again the student fires or observes firing at various types of targets. He also supervises firing of other students and critiques their performance.



Capt. John W. Johnson teaches preparation of range cards, selection and use of final protective lines, and sectors and principal direction of fire. These permit the employment of machinegun fire when the target cannot be seen.

The student prepares the range card, places the data on the machinegun, and with his vision obstructed, he proves to himself that he can hit specified targets despite his inability to see them.

This 14-hour block of instruction to Infantry Officer Orientation Class will serve as a foundation for subsequent learning. In addition to receiving the fundamentals of machinegun training and participation in training on each type of range, the student has fired the weapon and developed confidence in it and in himself.

Tomorrow members of the orientation class can join a unit and effectively supervise its machinegun training. Meantime, the "Rapid Fire Thespians" or "Small Arms Theater Group" rehearse for the next performance. The show must go on.

Engineer Wives Hold Luncheon

The Engineer Wives of the 151st Engineer Group, The Infantry Center and The Infantry School met at the Supper Club on April 18 for their monthly luncheon.

The theme was a pirate voyage with a hidden treasure. Hostesses for the occasion, dressed in pirate garb, were The Infantry Center Engineer Wives, headed by Mrs. Riel (Capt. Kidd) Crandall, with Mrs. James (Long John) Phillips acting as first mate and narrator.

A large painting of a pirate ship, beneath which was displayed an antique truck covered with garments of brocade and satin, set the atmosphere.

Each guest was presented with a scroll map of Treasure Island which routed them to specific tables for each of the three courses of the luncheon. The tables, placed in the form of a ship, were decorated with miniature treasure chests brimming with gold and jewels and bore names, such as "Ye Spye Glass Hill" and "Rum Cove", reminiscent of pirate days.

Mrs. S. Y. Coker, chairman of the 151st Engineer Wives Club, welcomed newcomers and introduced the guests of honor who were Mrs. Ben Harrell, wife of the commanding general, and Mrs. John E. Kelly, wife of the deputy commanding general.

NCO Wives Chit-Chat

By Dottie Rentrop

The Thursday night group was treated to good food served by Mrs. Eurika Danaj and Mrs. Janeba, who were hostesses. Next time these women are hostesses, don't eat at home as you will miss out on some good food.

Everyone praised the ladies for their extra effort in preparing such a treat.

The crazy hat honors went to Mrs. Ruth Klien and Mrs. Addie Lang.

See what talent can do! Every ladies' hat deserved a prize, which gave the judges a hard decision to make. Mrs. Klien's hat consisted of tin foil, a salt box used as a vase holding a display of flowers. The edge was lined with egg shells, spaghetti, knife and fork and matches, all ready for a quick meal. The title "The Alert" was very appropriate.

Mrs. Lang's hat displayed a vase with colorful flowers and insects. It was a very original idea and the extra ceramic work made this a crazy, but cute hat.

After the refreshments, the women had coffee and a sociable chit-chat.

A picnic is in the planning by Dottie Rentrop and Ruth Klien. Lots of fun is in store, so wear your old clothes, but best of all bring your sense of humor. For further information on the picnic call Ruth, 544-3097 or Dottie, 544-2119. See you at the picnic?

Last but not least is the election date, May 9 at our Clubhouse. Remember, put on your thinking caps. Ladies are requested to bring a luncheon dish.

Some Fashion Answers

"What's the rule on matching accessories?"

"How can I select a high-fashion coat that will look smart for at least three years?"

Answering questions like these is all in the day's work for the staffs of America's fashion magazines. Some questions, of course, recur more often than others. Here are some of the most typical, with answers by Ann Campion, fashion editor.

1. All of these flared skirts and loose-fitting clothes are fine for tall girls, but what about the ones under 5'2"?

Make sure clothes fit neatly at bosom and hip, and don't overdo bulky sweaters.

2. How should a person with a small bosom and not-too-petite hips dress?

In this year's "wandering waistline" dresses, with flared or full skirts.

3. How can I get a high fashion coat? My coats must last a good three years!

High fashion can be both basic and practical, it it's well-chosen. The best way to assure that your coat will look great three years from now is to make sure that it looks great the first (and most important) year. Look for non-faddy newness; avoid the too-safe along with the too-extreme. Whatever your budget, you should always buy fashion—never just clothes.

4. I like separates and casual clothes, but want something more sophisticated than the schoolgirl look.

Wear the same sort of thing you wore in school — only look for better fit, more chic and subtlety in fabric and color, and above all, better matching of separates. The parts of an outfit should look made for each other, not for everything. For a look of sophistication, top sweaters and jerseys with bold jewelry or big paisley scarves.

5. I love black but it doesn't love me — how can I make it do more for me?

For one thing, don't wear it to death — many women rob black of its subtle allure by regarding it as a "safe" fashion choice to be worn like a uniform. When you do wear black, accessorize it imaginatively — forget black-with-pearls for a good long while. Contrary to popular myth, black isn't an ideal foil for every skin: if it isn't for yours, steer away from high-necked, long sleeved black dresses (or apply camouflage in the form of a brilliant scarf at the neckline).

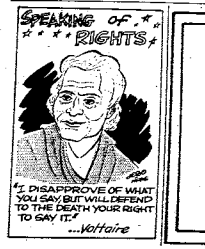
6. What's the rule on accessories: Must bag and shoes match — or should all accessories match for a really smart look?

No, bag and shoes need not match in color or texture — though they must be related. (It's fine to wear a fur or imitation fur bag with leather shoes, not fine to wear a velvet bag with lizard stacked-heel pumps). As for the question of how many matching accessories to have, top editors agree that two is company and three definitely a crowd for a smart ensemble.

7. Can you give me some new ideas in color combinations? I'm tired of the same old white blouses and black calf shoes.

Instead of "safe" black calf, try the newest neutral — wine-red lizard shoes! They can go with black, navy, camel, red, pink, green, white, gold — to name a few. For some fresh, good - looking color combinations, try camel with gray, tangerine with gray, azure blue with earth brown, red with brown, pink with green.

8. How can I pick clothes that will be a hit at the office without attracting the boss' glare?



The clothes you want stand out — but don't show off. If bright colors are frowned on at your place of work, take your fashion news in the silhouette instead. Dress for the office as you would for an important luncheon.

9. How can I look my best after five without spending a fortune?

Keep occasion in mind: there's no such thing as the all-purpose basic dress. Some fabrics, of course, are more versatile than others: crepe is one of them. Black crepe is a time-honored standby, but this year's pastel crepes are news, can be worn as effectively in mid-winter as on a spring or summer eve. Silks in strong, clear colors know no season, and a silk-and-wool weave can be worn during the day and on into evening. Avoid over-accessorizing: if a fabric is rich-looking, it needs little in the way of costume jewelry glitter to enhance it. Taboo: plastic shoes and plastic peek-a-boo bags.

PRE-KINDERGARTEN SCHOOL . . . Gregory Phillips (C) is shown with his mother, Mrs. Robert H. Phillips (L) and Mrs. Alexander Page, assistant principal, as he is being enrolled for another year. Pre-registration for the fall term will be held at the school, Wednesday, May 9, from 9-11 a.m. Children who will be three by September 15 may be registered now. The school is located in Building 1182. More information may be had by calling 545-2217.

TSB Ladies Hold Luau in Authentic Atmosphere

Student officer's wives of the fourth platoon, Detachment 2, 2nd Student Battalion, The Student Brigade, sponsored a "Hawaiian Luau" recently at the Main Officer Open Mess. The evening social featured a south sea atmosphere.

Under the direction of the program chairman, Mrs. F. C. Taylor, the affair opened with an island dance, the "Hukelau". Participating in the dance were Mrs. James Page, the choreographer, and Mesdames Henry Boyer, Gary Williams, Raymond Barry, John Steakley, Thomas Ward, Steven Canby, James Cashwell, John Meese, Mary Sloan and Robert Phillips.

The master of ceremonies, Capt. Frederick Butcher of the British Royal Army, presented the next attraction, Mrs. Harry Tom, a native of Hawaii. Mrs. Tom performed to two musical selections, Lovely Hula Hands and Anapu.

Officers and ladies in attendance were given an added treat when Mary Beth, 15, and Peggy Lee, 11, daughters of Lt. Col. Vern L. Joseph, 2nd Student Battalion commander, performed to the Hawaiian Wedding Song and Green Rose Hula. In addition, Pfc Charles Pariso of the 1st Infantry Brigade played the Hawaiian War Chant on the ukulele.

At the conclusion of the dinner, which consisted of a barbecued, spit roasted pig with all the native trimmings, the guests were given an island drink, called a "Mai Tai", or more easily termed, a fruit and coconut mixture, served in coconut shells.

A "Bird of Paradise" and island fruit delicacies, as well as tropical blooming flowers were flown in from Hawaii especially for the Luau, said Mrs. Taylor.

Decorations for the evening social were prepared and designed by the decoration's chairman, Mrs. William DeCamp, and assistant chairman, Mrs. Bynum Westall.

Col. Dixon, Mrs. Hotchkiss

AFMA President and Secretary Re-Elected for Second Terms

Col. Dale D. Dixon has been re-elected president of the post Chapter of the Armed Forces Management Association.

At a meeting April 25 at the Custer Terrace Branch of the Main Officers' Open Mess, the association approved a slate of officers for fiscal year 1962-1963, giving second terms to two incumbent officers, Col. Dixon, and WAC Major Jessie A. Hotchkiss, secretary.

Other officers elected include Dr. Harold S. Tate, first vice president; Lt. Col. Charles F. Walrath, second vice president, and Capt. Don B. Huff, treasurer.

Three executive council members elected are Lt. Col. Frederick W. Hindley, Clarence J. Hammond and Mrs. Frances W. Alford.

Awards Presented

Two Army Infantry Center management improvement awards were presented by Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly, deputy commanding general.

The awards are made quarterly as part of a Management Improvement Program.

A certificate for the activity attaining the highest percentage of participation in the program during the third quarter of the fiscal year went to The Infantry Center Safety Section. Norman Evans, safety officer, accepted the award.

A certificate for the activity accomplishing the greatest monetary saving during the quarter was presented to The Infantry Center G-4 Section.

The section was cited for the establishment of a central holding facility which permits lateral transfer of items on a free basis, loan of non-expendable items on a temporary basis and issue of expendable items without charge to customers.

The facility has resulted in savings in installation consumer funds of approximately $230,000 since August, 1961.

Col. Dixon, Infantry Center logistics officer, accepted the award.

Gen. Kelly Speaks

After making the presentations, Gen. Kelly spoke on "Management."

"A good manager should sit back and look at his job now and then," he said. "He needs to see how his job fits into the over-all effort with which he is concerned."

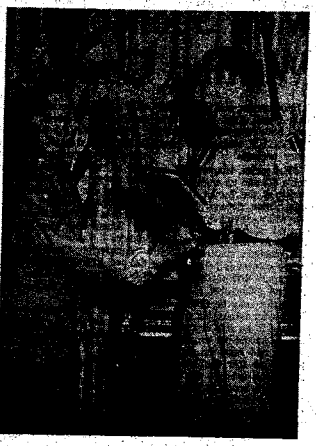
"Go to visit other units," he advised. "Taking a little time off from your desk to visit other activities on the post will improve the effectiveness of your particular phase of the work."

Gen. Kelly said a good manager will keep up with advances in his profession by study and participation in group activity, both on the post and in the surrounding civilian community.

The general told the members to look at new ideas critically but remain receptive to new ones.

"Progress can sometimes be effected better by improvement of current methods than by drastic change," he affirmed.

Gen. Kelly added that a good manager must establish and maintain high standards. Equally as important, he said, a manager must "have compassion for others and an understanding of people."



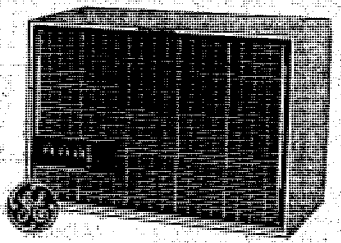
Academic Bldg. Pact Awarded

A $6,580,100 contract for construction of the proposed Academic Building for The Infantry School has been awarded, according to the Defense Department.

Receiving the contract was the Jordan Company of Columbus. The contract will be administered by the Savannah District Corps of Engineers.

The building, to centralize classes of TIS, is to be erected on Sightseeing Field on Main Post.

It will contain classrooms, communications laboratories, various shops, an auditorium and offices for more than 1,000 command, staff, instructional and administrative personnel.



FOR MONETARY SAVINGS . . . Accepting an Infantry Center quarterly Management Improvement Certificate presented recently at a meeting of the post Armed Forces Management Association is Col. Dale D. Dixon (L), Infantry Center G-4. Presented by Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly, deputy post commander, the award cites the G-4 Section for accomplishing the greatest monetary saving during the third quarter of the fiscal year.

Mag Sponsoring Writing Contest

Infantrymen with literary talents in all Free World countries have been invited to enter INFANTRY magazine's short story contest.

First prize winner will receive $75 and an engraved statuette of the famed Infantryman statue. Second place winner will receive $45 and an engraved statuette. The entry awarded honorable mention will receive a statuette.

The contest is being held in honor of INFANTRY'S 40th year of publication.

Entries may be fiction, serious or humorous, but must be related to an Infantry subject. Stories should not exceed 3,000 words and must be typed or printed in ink, double-spaced, using one side of the paper.

Authors must inclose their rank and military address and a short biographical sketch with their entries.

Deadline Set

Entries must be postmarked not later than July 15, 1962. All entries will be acknowledged. Manuscripts will be returned if a self-addressed stamped envelope is provided.

Winners will be announced in the special anniversary issue of the magazine in November, at which time the winning story will be published.

Judges for the contest will be the magazine staff and the sergeants major of The Infantry School and The Infantry center.

Manuscripts should be addressed to INFANTRY Magazine, EPO, USAIS, Fort Benning, Ga., ATTN: Writing Contest.

Further information regarding the contest is contained in the May issue of INFANTRY.

'62 'Freedom Bond Drive' Is Launched

Two hundred canvassers and 41 division chiefs participated in a "Freedom Bond Drive" kick-off meeting at Theater 1 Wednesday.

Initiating the post's 1962 U. S. Savings bond Drive was Col. Milton G. Schneider, adjutant general of The Infantry Center, principal speaker at the meeting.

An 18-minute film, "The Freedom Way," was shown.

Troop units, departments of The Infantry School, and sections of The Infantry Center were represented at the kick-off meeting by division chiefs, who will direct canvassers within units.

Each unit was represented by canvassers selected on a basis of one for every 25 personnel.

The campaign will continue throughout May, under the general supervision of Lt. Col. Howard F. Mumford, assistant adjutant general of The Infantry Center.

Assisting Col. Mumford, will be 1st Lt. Richard D. Taylor, chief of personal affairs, Adjutant General Section.

Frank Spear will be assistant general chairman for civilian personnel. He is supervisor of special projects, Civilian Personnel Section.

Canvassers will contact officers and civilians in Infantry School departments and Infantry Center sections on the job.

Officers assigned to duty with troops and all enlisted personnel will be contacted within their units.

Special emphasis will be given to buying bonds on the payroll deduction plan.

Employees already enrolled in the plan will be asked to increase their bond allotments.

CWO's Letter About Call-Up Is in 'Record'

A letter by CWO William H. Drew on the call to active duty of National Guardsmen and Reservists last fall has been entered into the Congressional Record of April 25, by Senator John L. McClellan of Arkansas.

WO Drew is assigned to the post Staff Judge Advocate Section as a legal assistance officer; Senator McClellan is chairman of the Senate Committee on Government Operations.

In a letter to WO Drew, the Senator said: "I was so impressed with your letter that I took the liberty of having it printed in the Congressional Record along with another one that I had recently received from an Arkansas serviceman."

The Guardsman's letter on the call to active duty praised the "Regular. . . both officer and enlisted, who not only knows his job, but is proud of his work."

Though "inconvenienced" by the call, he wrote that the active duty requirement "could be classified as nothing more than just compensation for the benefits received and to be received" as members of Reserve or National Guard units.

"Our presence in the National Guard or Reserve, as the case may be, was primarily for our own benefit," he wrote.

COMBAT DEVELOPMENT STUDY . . . Col. Thomas B. Ross (R) of the Weapons Department, The Infantry School, discusses a phase of a joint Army Combat Development Experimentation Center-Infantry School experiment somewhere on the 250,000-acre Hunter Liggett field Laboratory in California. Shown are (L to R) York Lucci, project scientist of the Stanford Research Institute; Capt. Walter S. Deyerly, commander of Company A, 3rd Armored Rifle Battalion, 41st Infantry, an unidentified soldier, and Col. Ross. The experiment concerns evaluation of the optimum rifle company organization.

Current 'Infantry' Issue Features Allies' Articles

The May-June issue of Infantry Magazine, scheduled to appear today, features articles by two Brazilian officers, an Australian officer and a sergeant from The Netherlands.

Published by The Infantry School's Editorial and Pictorial Office, the magazine is a bimonthly professional journal for Infantrymen, with subscribers throughout the world.

"Brazil's Infantry" was written by Col. Ivanhoe de Oliviera and Lt. Col. Flavio M. Meireles of the Brazilian Army.

From Australia came an article on "The Australian Jungle Training Centre" by Col. O. H. Isaksson of the Australian Imperial Forces.

"Change of Command" is the title of an article by Sgt. A. Kok of The Netherlands, in which he discusses assumption of command by platoon leaders.

A. U. S. artillery officer is the author of an article on "ROAD (Reorganization Objectives of the Army Division) Artillery." He is Major John F. McCarthy, an instructor on the Artillery Committee of The Infantry School Command and Staff Department.

The cover of the magazine also will feature artillery.

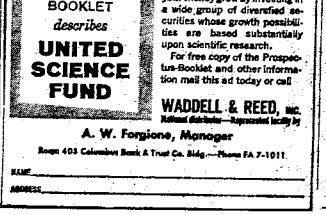
Airlines Will Carry Pets From Area to 220 Cities

Pet owners may now ship their pets unaccompanied by air freight from Fort Benning via the Muscogee County Airport, according to the post's Joint Airline Military Traffic Office.

Previously it was necessary to ship pets overland to Atlanta, at which point they were put aboard planes. With the new system, multiple or mixed modes of transportation and carrying charges are eliminated.

Pets may now be air-freighted from post to approximately 220 cities.

Air freight shipments of pets normally originate at JAMTO. In all instances advance arrangements are recommended to insure that proper documentation (health, rabies, vaccinations, etc.) can be complied with according to destination requirements.



Advance arrangements are mandatory for international shipments of pets. No charge is made for JAMTO's assistance in making reservations. However, charges are made for medical preparation of pets plus the general cargo rates.

Assistance in procuring acceptable, comfortable and reusable kennels is offered by JAMTO.

The JAMTO office is located in Building 19, corner of Vibbert and Gillespie Aves. Commonly known as "The Airline Ticket Office," JAMTO represents over 30 scheduled airlines.

Brigade, Control Group In Joint Beach Landing

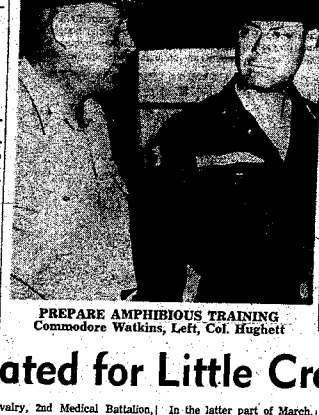
Elements of the 2nd Infantry Division are leaving Fort Benning today to participate in an Atlantic Command Exercise, Exercise QUICK KICK.

The exercise will commence Monday with an assault on the beaches of Camp LeJeune and Cherry Point, N.C., by combined forces of the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines.

A Brigade force of the 2nd Division, consisting of more than 100 officers and enlisted men, plus a control group also from the 2nd Division, are scheduled to leave today in ten aircraft of the Military Air Transport Service.

Depart for Sea

Arriving at Charleston, S.C. later today, the division personnel will load on troop landing ships and depart for sea tomorrow.



The landing on the North Carolina beaches will commence Monday. The Brigade force, commanded by Colonel Louis A. Kunzig Jr. will land in the follow-up echelon. Immediately upon landing, the division elements will set up operations to participate in the exercise until May 11.

The overall operation of the exercise will be directed by Vice Admiral John McN. Taylor, commander of the U. S. Navy's Second Fleet and Joint Task Force commander for the exercise. Admiral Taylor will direct operations from his flagship, the heavy cruiser Newport News.

Army and Air Force units participating in the exercise are being provided by the U.S. STRIKE Command, headed by General Paul D. Adams, USA, with Headquarters at MacDill Air Force Base, Tampa, Fla.

Lieutenant General H. H. Howze, USA, commanding general, XVIII Airborne Corps, will command the Army personnel participating. Vice Admiral Alfred G. Ward, USN, will command the participating naval forces from the USS Pocono. Commander of the Marine Corps elements for QUICK KICK will be Lieutenant General R. B. Lucky, USMC, command-

700 From Division Helping Tell The Infantry's Story at JCOC

More than 700 2nd Division officers and men will help show what the Infantry is made of at the Army phase of the Joint Civilian Orientation Conference.

Division men and equipment will participate in two key demonstrations Tuesday and Thursday at JCOC, sponsored by the Department of Defense. Fort Benning will host for the occasion a cross section of selected business, cultural, professional, military and governmental leaders in a program designed to show the Army's capabilities and limitations.

The opening phase of the program at 8:50 p.m. Tuesday will feature a reinforced rifle company in defense in which all weapons organic to such a unit will be fired.

Participating in this demonstration will be two rifle platoons, a weapons platoon and a rifle squad from the division's 38th Infantry, a 4.2 inch mortar platoon minus, including six 4.2 inch mortars complete with crews, from the 9th Infantry, and an atomic simulator team from the 2nd Engineer Battalion.

The division's 69th Armor will furnish four tanks and two safety officers and Division Artillery a 105 millimeter howitzer battery in this demonstration.

This demonstration will include attack of an objective by a company of men, with a gradual increase in fire as the attack progresses. This attack reaches a climax with the final delivery of protective fire, a moment often referred to as

87th Infantry First Unit Slated for Little Creek

By 87th Inf PIO

A 2,100 man battle group landing team, (BGLT) comprised of the 87th Infantry and elements of about a dozen attached supporting units from the 2nd Division will participate in two weeks of amphibious training this month.

A 750 mile motor trip is scheduled to begin May 9 and is expected to last three days, the final destination being Little Creek, Va. While in Virginia the BGLT will get one full week on practical amphibious training while the last minute details are worked out by the joint Army - Navy staff sections.

Beginning Monday of the second week the landing force will board five ships, commanded by Commodore Thomas P. Watkins, Commander of Amphibious Squadron II, Atlantic Fleet. The 87th Infantry landing team will be under the command of Colonel Ralph H. Haghett.

The climax of the training will be an actual amphibious landing for training purposes, assaulting a portion of the Virginia coastline. After the landing, the force will assemble at Fort Story, Va., to prepare for the return trip.

In matters of equipment, the landing force will use approximately 400 vehicles in the motor convoy and will ship about 35 track vehicles by rail. All of the equipment will be loaded aboard the ships and unloaded during the beach assault.

Units supporting the 87th Infantry during the exercise will be elements from the 27th Artillery, 69th Armor, 7th Cavalry, 2nd Medical Battalion, 122nd Signal, 702nd Ordnance, Division Artillery, 2nd Engineer Battalion and 13th Transportation Battalion.

Training for this amphibious mission actually began around the first of the year when members of this command were given swimming tests and instruction on the wearing of life jackets. In addition, many officers and non-commissioned officers attended special courses of instruction at the Naval Amphibious Base located at Little Creek.

In the latter part of March, a special mobile training team from Little Creek came to Fort Benning and conducted a two week planning course for the staff members of the battle group. Planning resumed after Exercise Seneca Spear at Combat Support Company where Commodore Watkins and a staff comprised of about 12 naval officers have been rehearsing the entire operation using scale models of equipment and ships.

Troops who make the trip will be advised to take with them one khaki "class A" uniform Relatives and friends who live in the Virginia area will be allowed to visit with members of the force. Regular passes will be granted and some soldiers may get a chance to visit Washington, D.C., about 100 miles north of the training area. In addition, a special representative of Special Services will conduct tours of historical points of interest and will offer inspections of the naval fleet anchored near Norfolk.

Division G-3 Section Watches Over Training, Operational Readiness

Overseeing the operational readiness and training operations of the 2nd Infantry Division is the Assistant Chief of Staff, G-3, Lieutenant Colonel Jack Samson, backed up by his staff of eight officers and 11 enlisted men.

The Office of the Assistant Chief of Staff, G-3, is divided into several branches and sections including an office services section, training branch, troop training section, range control section, schools and budget section, plans and operations branch, plans section and organization and operations section.

This is the second in a proposed series of articles spotlighting 2nd Division General and Special Staff Sections. These articles are intended to better acquaint the Soldier with the function and duties of the many sections of 2nd Division Headquarters. The next section to be featured will be G-2 (Intelligence).

ASSISTANT CHIEF OF STAFF, G-3
Lieutenant Colonel Jack Samson

G-3 Responsibilities

As G-3, Lt. Col. Samson is responsible to the division chief of staff for planning, directing, coordinating and supervising the mission and functions of the G-3 section. He secures and studies information pertaining to the organization, operations and training of the 2nd Division.

He furnishes estimates, advice and information to the commanding general pertaining to training and operational planning, translating decisions on these subjects into directives to the elements of the command. He also receives and implements training directives from higher headquarters.

In the name of the commanding general, he plans, coordinates and supervises training activities of the command to include the preparation of orders, plans and training directives.

Executive officer of the G-3 section is Major James R. Jess, who coordinates the activities of other officers of the section on day-to-day matters and who may be employed to coordinate the staff for specific programs involving activities of several sections. He also acts as project officer for non-routine operational functions.

The executive officer's duties include coordination of the activities of the division competitive marksmanship program. He also coordinates activities relative to briefings and visits of dignitaries to the section.

In the case of a temporary absence of the G-3, Major Jess must also act on his behalf.

New Appointments

In January of this year, the G-3 Executive Officer was appointed the Assistant Records Management Officer, Assistant Reports Control Officer and Assistant Forms Management Officer.

The office services section is under the control of the Chief Operations Sergeant, Sergeant Major Gerard Chenard. He supervises all enlisted personnel within the section, advising the G-3 on such matters as pertain to enlisted appointments, leaves and assignments.

He transmits to the section enlisted personnel plans, policies and decisions of the G-3 where they are applicable. He also organizes and trains his assistant clerks and draftsmen to function in his absence.

This section performs office services for the G-3 section, including maintenance of a file of pertinent regulations, directives and other essential publications. It procures and distributes office supplies and equipment.

Enlisted men working under Sergeant Major Chenard include Master Sergeant Edward H. Phillips, operations sergeant; Master Sergeant Albert A. Contois, training noncommissioned officer; Sergeant First Class Frank L. Culver, range NCO; Sergeant First Class William Wallace, G-3 inspection team representative; Specialist Four John R. Gregory, stenographer; Specialist Four Kenneth C. Flemming, chief operations specialist; Specialist Four Michael J. Cybulski, operations specialist; Private Ralph W. Musall, training clerk and Private John C. Pettee, administrative clerk.

Training Branch

The training branch supervises the functions of the troop training section, schools and budget section and range control section. Officers working in these sections include Major John A. Burns, assistant G-3 (training); Captain Robert D. Johnson, artillery training officer and schools and budget officer; Captain James W. Phillips, Infantry training officer, and Captain Abraham F. Muscari, Armor training officer.

The troop training section prepares, implements and coordinates matters pertaining to such diverse subjects as training programs, directives, facilities, orders, memorandums, notes, tests and exercises.

Annual and quarterly training calendars reflecting the proposed training for all organic elements of the command are prepared and sent out by this section.

When these calendars are in effect, the personnel of the troop training section maintains the responsibility of monitoring the training as it is conducted in the battle groups.

The allocation of space where various training may be held is also their responsibility. All demonstrations, programs of instruction, lesson plans, training aids and material for training is prepared under their direct supervision.

Other duties include securing ammunition for training, armor and artillery training and support of training, coordinating training to be held at other installations, and planning air transportability training whenever it is required.

The range control section schedules the use of ranges put at the disposal of the 2nd Division, and supervises their maintenance. They also supervise the construction of new ranges.

Schools and Budget

The schools and budget section establishes quotas based on unit needs, quotas allocated by higher headquarters determining amount of funds available.

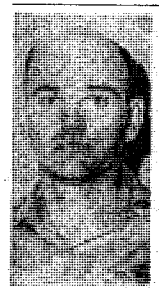
It also interviews all newly assigned officers to establish their school training status, recording this information for planning officer schooling programs.

The plans and operations branch supervises the functions of the plans section, organization and operations section and the troop requirements section. Officers working in these sections include Major Rutland D. Beard Jr., assistant G-3 (Plans and operations), Captain James R. Shelnut, plans officer, and Lieutenant Michael D. Johnson, assistant operations officer.

Tactical plans, including basic emergency and contingency plans are coordinated and prepared by the plans section. This may include operation orders, plans and annexes. The officers and enlisted men of the section distribute and prepare field orders and operation orders relative to exercises and plans.

The organization and operations section studies, reviews and advises the assistant chief of staff G-3 in all matters concerning the division's current table of organization and equipment. The personnel receive, coordinate and consolidate all division equipment modification lists and recommended changes to the TOE's.

All parades, reviews and ceremonies conducted under control of the 2nd Division are coordinated and supervised by this section. Personnel of this section must also be prepared to support with division units various elements of the Reserve Officer Training Corps, National Guard, U.S. Army Infantry Center and U. S. Army Infantry School when directed.



Lastly, the organization and operations section advises the division G-3 in matters pertaining to employment of nuclear weapons.

Division Aviators Take Part in JCOC Wednesday

By 2nd Avn. PIO

With approximately 25 aircraft operating in a five mile radius, tanks rumbling across the terrain, artillery fire thundering, Infantry assaulting, and smoke blinding, an aviator's plight can leave much to be desired.

Fifteen pilots of the 2nd Aviation Company supporting the 31st Aviation Company will be faced with such a dilemna next Wednesday during the Joint Civilian Orientation Conference demonstration.

The JCOC will undoubtedly be the largest ever presented at Ft. Benning. All firing will be with live rounds and practically all of the Army's weapons will be employed.

Two-Day Exercise

To be executed on two days, the exercise will require for the aviators several days of practice firing and tactical maneuvering.

All flying in the demonstration will be as close to simulated combat conditons as possible with a margin of safety. The spectators will be able to observe the maneuverability and versatility of various Army and Air Force aircraft. Flight paths will be made utilizing "nap-of-the-earth" flying techniques.

Six pilots from the 2nd Aviation will fly .30 calibre machine-gun armed H-13s with Lt. John Whiteside leading the flight. Four aviators from Ft. Rucker, Ala., will also fly in the flight to make a total of ten Scout ships. The Scouts are responsible for entering an offensive zone in advance of the larger aircraft and recon for potential enemy. If an enemy is observed, the Scout ship is capable of engaging in a defensive withdrawal type of fire. When the larger ships come in with troops, supplies, etc., the Scout ships can lay down a base of fire to protect the more vulnerable aircraft. The pilots firing in the exercise received live-fire experience in the Air Cavalry Troop which merged with the 2nd Infantry Division last October.

Air-Ltr Support

The 2nd Aviation also has to provide guaranteed minimum availability of four H-34 Chootaws to be used in conjunction with the 31st during the air-lift portion of the demonstration. Also an H-19 is available for use as medical evacuation if needed.

The smoke which will blanket the objective will be supplied by an L-19 of the 2nd, piloted by Lt. Frank Harris.

The drone section of the Aerial Surveillance Platoon will be employed in order to capitalize on the speedy means of obtaining aerial photos by the radar-controlled drone.

Major A. R. Suddaby, company commander, (also one of the Scout pilots for the demonstration) says "the experience gained by the participating personnel in an exercise such as this is invaluable. To be an effective aviator in an actual combat situation, a pilot must be flexible, alert, and calm enough to react efficiently without aggravating the ever-present danger. Exercises such as these enable both ground-gaining forces and aviators to realize the need for effective communications and cooperation."

Armed Forces Week Plans Mapped by Div

Parades and displays and commitments of men and equipment to several cities and military installations figure in this year's observance of Armed Forces Week by the 2nd Infantry Division.

In Columbus, Major General Charles H. Chase, commanding general, will be the principal speaker at this year's Massing of the Colors and Searchlight Tatoo Ceremony at the Municipal Auditorium at 8 p.m. May 15.

Reserved Seats

Some 875 seats in sections N through R-1 will be reserved for 2nd Division personnel and dependents at the auditorium, according to Captain John L. Padgett, project officer.

A downtown parade on May 18 will include 1,500 2nd Division men and all of the division's colors. In addition, window displays at 14 business establishments will feature the 2nd Division.

The 2nd Division Band, directed by Warrant Officer Darrell Blumm, will lead an Armed Forces Day parade on May 19 in Miami, Fla., and will appear in concert that night at Miami's Municipal Auditorium.

Other 2nd Division commitments include an Infantry company and Artillery units to Turner Air Force Base, Albany, Ga., and a display of an "Honest John" rocket, SS-10 anti-tank missile, 105 millimeter howitzer and wrecker at the Governmental Employees Exchange and Lennox Square, Atlanta. This same display will appear at Dobbins Air Force Base, Marietta, Georgia.

Cav Completes Recon Training

BY 7TH CAV. PIO

The 7th Cavalry recently returned from Fort Stewart, Georgia, where they completed a reconnaissance platoon live-fire exercise, emphasizing tank-infantry team training. The reconnaissance platoon exercise began immediately after Exercise SENECA SPEAR ended.

The exercise was in three phases, the first was boresighting and zeroing of tank weapons. The second phase consisted of the live-fire exercise.

Platoon Assembles

The exercise began with a platoon in the assembly area, where the platoon was briefed by the platoon leader, conducted pre-combat checks and loaded ammunition.

The platoon was given the general and special situation in the assembly area, stating the troop was conducting a security mission with two platoons on the north (left) flank and one platoon on the south (right) flank of the division.

The problem platoon was to assume blocking positions on order. The division was moving to attack the aggressor, which had set up strong defensive positions at Richmond Hill, Ga., delaying the friendly forces from reducing the beachhead at Savannah, Georgia.

At a predetermined time, the platoon moved out in the actual problem. The scouts led, with the tanks, infantry and mortar squads following in that order. The scouts moved up the route and were confronted by a road block with no bypass.

After calling in the situation to the platoon leader the scouts were ordered to return to a check point, which was a crossroad on the route the squad took. The scout section was ordered to send the second squad up the alternate route, whereupon they were confronted with enemy small arms and mortar fire.

Enemy Engaged

This action was called to the platoon leader and the scouts were told to engage the enemy. After firing at the enemy, the squad leader called back to his platoon leader that his machinegun jeep had been disabled and all three crew members were casualties.

The platoon leader then ordered his first scout squad (the squad waiting at the crossroad) to continue the mission and to take the ambulance to evacuate the casualties (giving the aid men training and a part in the problem).

The first squad arrived and moved forward, encountering heavy resistance. This was reported to the platoon leader. The platoon leader then ordered his mortar to take up a position at a predesignated check point and prepare to support the platoon. Then the platoon leader mounted the platoon sergeant's tank, sending the platoon sergeant to his jeep to check the mortars.

The platoon then moved forward; but the platoon met increasing resistance and the platoon leader called for mortar fire and adjusted it.

After the mortar fire was called for, the platoon continued its advance. Both tanks engaged armor targets with armor ammunition, then fired high explosive ammunition at trucks and infantry.

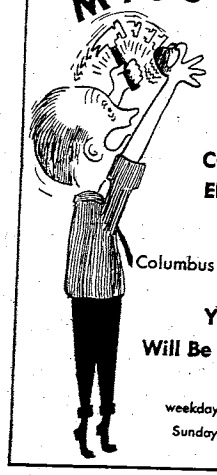
After the engagement of these targets, the platoon leader notified the second tank and his infantry to assault the objective, which had been predetermined as a blocking position in case of resistance, and take the objective with his tank supporting. The infantry dismounted and, along with the tanks, assaulted the position. During the attack, a 6.5 rocket launcher target was presented, enabling the 3.5 crew to fire their weapon.

M-41 TANK ZEROES IN ON TARGET AT STEWART
Where Live-Firing Problem Was Conducted by 7th Cavalry

With the securing of the objective, the problem ended and the platoon returned to the assembly area for a critique.

The entire course covered the complete employment of all platoon weapons (many weapons used simultaneously) with live ordnance. This enabled the members of each platoon to see the platoon in operation under simulated combat conditions using this live ordnance.

The problem was written entirely by the "Garry Owen" S-3 section and gained much interest from personnel at Fort Stewart, Ga. This was the first such problem ever run at Fort Stewart in many years and used many new phases that had never been used before.



Fort Stewart officials expressed interest in the problem and requested both the details and all literature published for possible adoption by post.

Div Signal Holds Organization Day

By 122nd Sig PIO

The 122nd Signal Battalion celebrated its Organization Day Friday with a review, battalion picnic and sports activities.

The present day 122nd Signal Battalion, though able to trace its origin back to 1898, based its Organization Day on the founding of the 2nd Signal Company formed on April 23, 1921.

Highlights of the day's activities included a review conducted by the non-commissioned officers of the battalion, a picnic for members of the battalion and their families, display of signal equipment and a softball game between the officers and non-commissioned officers of the battalion.

Organized 1898

The parent unit of the 122nd Signal Battalion, Company E, was organized on May 28, 1898 at Manila during the Philippine Insurrection. From here the Battalion's ancestry has been traced down through Companies E and I to the First Signal Battalion which was organized on October 10, 1916. The Battalion was then assigned to the 2nd Infantry Division on September 20, 1917.

During World War I, the First Signal Battalion, 2nd Infantry Division, was awarded six campaign streamers, two French Croix de Guerre, and the French Fourragere for outstanding performance during the hostilities. The French Fourragere is authorized for wear and is worn by all individuals assigned to the 122nd Signal Battalion.

After the war, the Battalion became part of the Army of Occupation. On April 23, 1921, while stationed in Coblenz, Germany, the unit was reorganized and redesignated as the 2nd Signal Company.

European Campaign

In 1943 during World War II, the 2nd Signal Company was sent to Europe. Arriving in North Ireland on October 19, the unit conducted extensive training in preparation for the coming invasion of "Fortress Europe". On June 9, 1944, the company landed on Omaha Beach, Normandy and by May 1945, after engaging in many bitter encounters, the organization was presented five campaign streamers. In addition, for accredited action during this war, the company received its first Meritorious Unit Emblem and its first Distinguished Unit Emblem.

Korea Bound

On July 8, 1950, shortly after the outbreak of the Korean Conflict, the 2nd Signal Company was alerted for overseas movement. The first elements departed on July 19 and landed in Pusan, Korea, on July 31, 1950. The company in its role of furnishing signal communications to the 2nd Infantry Division, engaged in every campaign throughout the entire war, and was awarded the corresponding streamers. It was during this conflict that the unit received its second Meritorious Unit and Distinguished Unit Awards as well as two ROK Presidential Unit Citations. The first "Unit Day" was celebrated on April 23, 1954 while the company was still in Korea.

The company returned from Korea on October 7, 1954, and was stationed at Fort Lewis, Washington. In August 1956, the unit "gyroscoped" to Alaska for duty at Fort Richardson. On June 25, 1957, the 122nd Signal Battalion was reorganized from the nucleus of the 2nd Signal Company. On December 15, 1957, while in Alaska, the unit went to zero strength; shortly thereafter the Battalion was inactivated and returned to DA control.

During the reorganization of the 2nd Infantry Division at Fort Benning, the 122nd Signal Battalion was reorganized, effective June 14, 1958. Since that time, the 122nd Signal Battalion has been occupied with the mission of providing signal support and maintenance for the 2nd Infantry Division.

1st Inf Sergeant Major Honored at BG Review

VIEWS PARADE
S-Maj. Hatfield

Sergeant Major Archie E. Hatfield was honored Tuesday with a battle group review at the 1st Infantry.

Sergeant Hatfield was cited for his retirement after more than 21 years' service.

Colonel Walter B. Todd, 1st Battle Group commander, presented Sergeant Hatfield the Army Commendation Medal for "exceptional and meritorious service in the 1st Infantry and "to the United States Army."

"Through his enthusiasm, tact, and leadership ability," the citation said, "Sergeant Major Hatfield was able to win the confidence and respect of all personnel with whom he came in contact."

"In all of his actions, he demonstrated a high degree of professional knowledge, an awareness and appreciation of all aspects of any problem, and a desire to render assistance. His worth to his various units of assignment cannot be overestimated, as he contributed greatly to the successful accomplishment of their missions."

Sergeant Hatfield has served in many varying assignments including a tour of duty with the United States Pacific during World War II, and a second tour in the Far East during the Korean Conflict.

During the ceremonies, Sergeant Major Wilson R. Mouser was promoted to his present rank by Major General Charles H. Chase, 2nd Infantry Division commanding general. General Chase presented Sergeant Mouser with his promotion orders and extended his congratulations.

Sergeant Mouser has assumed the duties as sergeant major of the 1st Infantry upon Sergeant Hatfield's retirement. His prior duty was as 1st Sergeant of Headquarters Company.

A veteran of more than 19 years of active duty, he entered the Army in 1941 and was sent to the Philippine Islands where he was captured with other American troops in the Fall of Bataan. He survived the "Bataan Death March," which took the lives of many fellow prisoners, both American and Philippine.

He has served two tours in Germany, in 1951, and in 1956 with the "gyroscoped" 3rd Armored Division. Upon his return to the United States in 1959, he was assigned to the 30th Infantry at Fort Sill, Oklahoma until June, 1961 when he was assigned to the 1st Infantry.

"The Mad Minute." Here, all weapons are fired at once, and the spectator is able to follow the projectiles through their trajectory via tracer ammunition.

The other demonstration in which the 2nd Division will participate will be the Firepower and Airmobility Assault, to be held at Underwood Range Thursday morning.

In this demonstration, in which heavy equipment and over 200 men will be airdropped, division elements which will be airlanded will include three rifle platoons, along with a weapons platoon (minus 81 millimeter mortar section) and a 4.2 inch mortar platoon from the 38th Infantry, and a 4.2 inch mortar section from the 23rd Infantry. Also participating in this demonstration will be 20 M-59 armored personnel carriers and crews from the 13th Transportation Battalion and two M-84 mortar carriers and crews from the 7th Cavalry.

Artillery

The heavy artillery support in this problem will include the following elements from Division Artillery: two 105 millimeter howitzer batteries, two 155 millimeter howitzer batteries, two 762 millimeter rocket launchers, a metro section, an 8-inch howitzer battery and three ARC-27 (VHF) radios, mounted on three-quarter ton trucks.

The 2nd Engineer Battalion will provide 56 enlisted men with demolitions permits for this demonstration.

Rounding out division participation in this massive demonstration will be six H-34 helicopters, an H-19 helicopter, an L-19 fixed wing aircraft and drone section from the 2nd Aviation Company; a tank platoon with five M-48 tanks from the 69th Armor, and two MRC-69 (VHF) radios on two-and-a-half-ton trucks and a field photo processing lab with crew from the 122nd Signal Battalion.

The men utilized in this drop will be supplied by the 101st Airborne Division, Fort Campbell, Kentucky.

Post-assault strikes, air drop and landing of Army personnel including the brigade force of the 2nd Division will continue throughout "D" Day.

Subsequent operations will include consolidation of the beachhead and airhead, juncture of the Army and Marine Assault Forces, and consolidation of the exercise objective area. Air Force and Navy supporting operations will continue throughout the week.

During the assaults at Onslow Beach, Navy elements at sea will be conducting anti-submarine warfare, anti-air warfare, anti-raider and anti-sneak craft attack operations, mine warfare and mine countermeasure operations.

This exercise is designed to test the latest methods and weapons of warfare and is the major Atlantic Command exercise of the year.

Participating personnel of the 2nd Division are scheduled to return by air May 11 or 12 from Cherry Point.

ing general, Fleet Marine Force Atlantic.

Commanding the Air Force elements will be Major General M. A. Preston, commanding general, 19th Air Force.

The 2nd Division elements will be among 40,000 military personnel taking part in QUICK KICK. Among the forces will be 24,000 Navy personnel, 12,500 Marines, 2,800 Army Airborne troops and 2,200 Air Force personnel, plus 370 Navy, Marine and Air Force aircraft and 70 U. S. Navy ships.

Forces involved in the exercise will make amphibious and airborne assaults in the Camp LeJeune, N. C., area. "D" Day, Monday, will mark the beginning of the airborne and amphibious assaults on the "enemy" held territory.

"D" Day begins with elements of the Second Marine Division hitting the designated Blue and Red beaches at Onslow Beach, N. C., from the sea, employing landing craft and helicopters. Army airborne units from the XVIII Airborne Corps will be dropped on an objective area near the Camp LeJeune Marine Base area.

AF Units

Air Force units involved in QUICK KICK will start flying at first light Monday to conduct pre-assault tactical air operations.

Retiring

15th Artillery S-2, Sergeant Major Cited

By 15th Artillery PIO

The 15th Artillery Saturday held its first review since becoming combat-ready last fall.

The review honored the 15th's retiring S-2 and sergeant major.

Lieutenant Colonel Donald B. Roof, commanding officer of the 1st Howitzer Battalion, 15th Artillery, was reviewing officer. He trooped the line with the retirees: Captain Henry F. McLaughlin, the S2, and Sergeant Major Edward W. Fraley.

Ceremony

The retirement ceremony, viewed by approximately 100 persons, was held at Division Artillery. All personnel of the battalion participated, along with the 2nd Infantry Division Band.

Captain McLaughlin was awarded the Oak Leaf Cluster to the Army Commendation Medal, a Letter of Appreciation and a Certificate of Retirement. Sergeant Fraley was given the Army Commendation Medal, a Letter of Appreciation and a Certificate of Retirement. The presentations were made by Colonel Roof and read by Lieutenant George W. Ashworth, who acted as adjutant.

Commander of Troops for the ceremony was Major J. F. Kania, battalion executive officer. His staff was comprised of Major Ray J. Rogers, S-3; Lieutenant David W. Saul, acting assistant S-3; Lieutenant Richard R. Sandall, communications officer, and Lieutenant Warner B. Cole, reconnaissance and survey officer. Captain Herbert F. Rankin, Lieutenant Lamar W. Riggs and Lieutenant Clement T. Fitzpatrick commanded Headquarters Battery, Battery A and Battery B, respectively.

A certificate recently received by the battalion attesting to the awarding of the Distinguished Unit Citation to the 15th was read at the ceremony. The citation was given "for extraordinary heroism in military operations against an armed enemy 16 to 22 May 1951, Hongchon."

After the orders were published, Colonel Roof spoke to the battalion. He cited the Distinguished Unit Citation as an indication of the past record of the 15th Artillery and noted his confidence in the ability of the battalion to continue its proud traditions. The colonel also commended Captain McLaughlin and Sergeant Fraley for their service with the battalion.

Captain McLaughlin enlisted in the Army in October 1940. His first assignment was with the 83rd Field Artillery Regiment (horse-drawn). He was commissioned in 1950. Before being assigned to the 15th last September, he was an instructor at the Army Artillery and Missile School at Fort Sill, Okla., and, later, a member of the G-3 section of the Army Artillery and Missile Center, Fort Sill. He plans to raise beef cattle on his farm at Waverly Hall, Ga., where he lives with his wife and two children.

Sergeant Fraley was sergeant major of the 4th Armored Division Artillery before coming to the 15th in August 1960. A former Sailor and Marine, he entered the Army in 1949. He originally enlisted in the Marine Corps in 1937. He lives in Columbus with his wife and two children.

RETIREMENT CERTIFICATE TO 15th S-MAJ. S-Maj. Fraley Congratulated by Col. Roof

23rd Inf. Men Take EIB Test

By 23rd Infantry PIO

Members of the 23rd Infantry underwent testing last week for the Expert Infantryman's Badge.

Only those men who had previously passed a physical training exercise, fired "sharpshooter" or better with the M-1 rifle and successfully run through the bayonet assault course were allowed to complete for the highly - prized award.

Various stations at the EIB testing site were set up to determine the Soldiers' proficiency at such tasks as first aid, camouflage, probing for land mines and throwing hand grenades. An individual Soldier could fail as many as four of these stations and still be qualified for a re-test. All men successfully passing the EIB test will be awarded Expert Infantryman Badges. Results of the test should be available by next week.

Chap. French Leaves 38th For Far East

By 38th Inf PIO

Chaplain (Captain) William R. French has departed the 38th Infantry for an assignment in the Far East, ending more than three years' service in the 2nd Division.

Chaplain French joined the 38th Infantry in early 1961 after previously serving with 2nd Division Artillery.

His first duty assignment was with the 69th Armor.

Chaplain French entered the Chaplains Corps while attending the Nazarene Seminary in Missouri where he graduated in 1957 with a bachelor of divinity degree. Upon graduation he entered the Basic Course at the Chaplains' School at Fort Slocum, New York.

He is the son of a Methodist minister and was born in Topeka, Kansas, but calls Central, South Carolina his home. He attended Central Wesleyan College and Marion College, Marion, Indiana before going to the Nazarene Seminary.

His wife, Mary, has been active in assisting with chapel activities and has been a music teacher on Main Post.

Two Leave 1st Infantry For New Assignments

By 1st Inf. PIO

An officer and a non-commissioned officer are leaving the battle group S-4 section on reassignment orders. Major Kless Gyzen, S-4 officer, will report to the United States Advanced Marksmanship Unit at USAIC. Master Sergeant Leroy J. Allmendinger has received orders of reassignment to Headquarters and Headquarters Service Company, Thule Air Base, Thule, Greenland.

Assuming new duties as S-4 will be Major Robert C. Kendrick, former S-2 officer, and Sergeant First Class Henry C. Atkin, former supply sergeant of Company D.

Captain William R. Colvin moves from Company A, where he served as company commander, to assume duties as S-2 officer.

Captain Lowell L. Ballard Jr., recently reported to the 1st Infantry and has assumed the command of Company A. Captain Ballard has served most of his Army career in the field of aviation. He served as assistant S-2, Lawson Army Air Command, in 1956.

Captain Ballard is a qualified fixed wing and rotary wing aviator and has received the Army Aviator Badge.

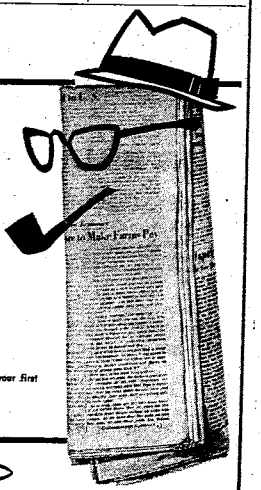
criteria used in selecting each month's SOM.

Before taking top honors in the division, Sergeant Cain had won the SOM competition on the battle group level, his third since last January.

From there he was selected by an Infantry board to represent the Infantry in the overall division contest.



He entered the Army in 1954 at Fort Jackson and gyrosceped to Germany with the 10th Division. Returning to Fort Benning in April of 1956, he was assigned to the 87th Infantry where he has been ever since.

Recently a recipient of the Expert Infantryman Badge, Sergeant Cain also has a Korean Service Ribbon and a Presidential Unit Citation. A native of Macon, Ga., Sergeant Cain is an all around athlete having participated on many unit level teams. At present he is a member of Combat Support Company's infield in the current company-level softball tournament.

37th Arty Fires the First Rounds

By 37th Arty PIO

The 37th Artillery, under the command of Major Peter Rose, had the distinction of firing the first live and simulated artillery rounds in Exercise SENECA SPEAR.

The simulated round was fired by Battery A and the live round by battery B.

The 37th Artillery is normally in direct support of the 23rd Infantry. However, during the first two days of the exercise the 37th was in direct support of the 7th Cavalry which had the mission of screening the flanks and front of the division.

Self-Propelled

Battery A, commanded by Captain Charles E. Avery Jr., using self-propelled 105 millimeter howitzers, was well suited for this mission because of its great overland mobility and speed with which it can go in and out of position.

This speed was used to the utmost as the cavalry advanced at a very rapid pace thus putting itself out of range in short order.

Battery B, under the command of Capt. Donald D. Tucker, having 155 millimeter howitzers, was able to provide long range and continuous support throughout the problem.

The live firing exercise, which included 125 live rounds, was extremely accurate and finished in record time.

Headquarters, under S-3 Major Joseph Mordente, was well prepared to take care of all problems arising.

The Fire Direction Center, working smoothly with survey and the forward observers, was able to finish the battalion live firing in record time.

Major Peter Rose, battalion commander, praised the exercise as being "fast moving, well organized, and close to actual combat."

NEW M-SGT . . . Recently donning the stripes of the master sergeant's rank was M-Sgt. Winfield F. Montgomery, Headquarters Battery, 15th Artillery. Sgt. Montgomery was promoted in ceremonies at the office of Maj. Gen. Charles H. Chase, commanding general.

15 Advanced to Sp4 At 1st Infantry

The promotion board of the 1st Infantry recently promoted 15 enlisted men to the rank of specialist four.

Those promoted were Specialists Four Herman F. Baker, Gerald R. Barnhart, Ronald Rodemeijer, Jose G. Casansovas-Rodriguez, Thomas J. Eastman, Thomas O. Finch, Edward P. Hyche, Ernest Johnson, Vytautas Kilikevicius and Anselmo M. Malcolm.

12 EM Leave 1st For USAIC Duty

Several enlisted men have departed the 1st Infantry on reassignment to the United States Army Infantry Center on Main Post.

Departing last week were Sergeant First Class Wilburn R. Sorrells, Company A, Sergeants Raul N. Porto and James H. Shepherd, of Headquarters Company, Specialists Five-Cecil Adams and Edmund S. Reed, of Headquarters Company, Specialists Four Robert W. Guy, Headquarters Company and Alvin R. Roland, Company D.

Also departing were Privates First Class Anthony Baresicano, Company C, Richard W. Boyce, Headquarters Company, Billy Shollings, Company C and Joseph R. Yost of Company E and Private James D. Ticson of Company B.

12th Artillery Provided General Support for Blue Forces During Exercise Seneca Spear

By 12th Artillery PIO

The 12th Artillery's misssion is to provide general support to division. The battalion received valuable training in this mission during Exercise SENECA SPEAR by providing general support to the Blue forces with both nuclear and non-nuclear fires.

Throughout the exercise the 12th Artillery, led by its Battalion Commander, Lt. Col. Robert J. Craig, fired 20 missions. These missions consisted of both actual and simulated fires. The results assessed by the umpires testify to the devastating fire power and the overall value of this unit to the division.

At one point in the exercise, the 12th was credited with knocking out the Yellow Forces Command Post and Trains while inflicting losses of over 120 personnel and 75 vehicles. All of this from only one fire mission.

By displacement of the Honest John Rocket and 8-inch howitzer batteries by echelon, the 12th Artillery never once lost its ability to fire on enemy targets and thus was able to provide continuous general support to the division.

Although harassed every night throughout the exercise by guerrilla forces, the battalion was able to maintain its perimeter and continue its fire missions.

The flexibility of the long famous Artillery Communications System was demonstrated by the various ways in which the 12th received its fire missions. The battalion received requests for fire from Division Fire Support Control Center, Division Artillery, observers of the direct support artillery battalions and the 12th's own organic observer both from air and ground observation points.

Exercise Seneca Spear was a valuable training vehicle to the 12th Artillery requiring each unit and staff section of the battalion to perform their mission under a wide variety of conditions and situations.

The consensus of the officers and non-commissioned officers of the 12th is that SENECA SPEAR was a true test of both men and equipment, and both passed the test in an outstanding manner.

2 Who Served At 1st Infantry Awarded ACM

Two former 1st Infantry officers have been awarded the Army Commendation Medal.

Captain Fred A. Darden, former Company B commander, and Captain John F. C. Kenney, Jr., former adjutant of the battle group, received the awards "for meritorious service" to the battle group and the United States Army.

Captain Darden served with the 1st Infantry from June 16 to November 22. Captain Kenney served from June 23 to February 8.

Lt. Leatherwood Upped at 38th

By 38th Inf PIO

Lieutenant Thomas Leatherwood Jr. changed his gold second lieutenant bars for silver ones during a "battlefield" promotion ceremony during Exercise SENECA SPEAR.

Lt. Leatherwood, a platoon leader in the 38th Infantry's Company E, received the insignia of his new rank from Lieutenant Colonel Cecil M. Sanders, deputy battle group commander.

The 2nd Division Officers' Wives Club meeting for May will be held a week later than usual — on May 15 at the Salerno Mess.

All members are urged to attend this election luncheon to vote for their candidates.

Mrs. J. Compton Invites Div G1 Section Ladies

The ladies of the G-1 section of the Second Infantry Division were the guests at the home of Mrs. Jack E. Compton for a Wednesday morning coffee hour.

Assisting Mrs. Compton with the duties of hostesses, were Mrs. Hugh Naughton, and Mrs. William Cosgrove.

The house was decorated with spring roses, and an Easter theme dominated the table.

Mrs. Ralph Jones, wife of Lieutenant Colonel Jones, poured.

Farewells were said to Mrs. Hugh Naughton, whose husband, Lieutenant Naughton leaves soon for an overseas assignment, and to Mrs. Farris Alexander, whose husband has been transferred to Division Trains.

There were greetings extended to two new arrivals to the G-1 section: Mrs. Ralph Colley, wife of Captain Colley, Safety Officer, and Mrs. David Dixon, wife of Lieutenant Dixon.

Mrs. Roxie Bradshaw, mother of Mrs. William Cosgrove was a visitor.

'Shipwreck Party' Held Fri. by 38th

A marine atmosphere filled the Skeet Club at the 38th Infantry's shipwreck party, held Friday night, April 27.

Fishnets filled with sword fish and life preservers were draped across windows, the fireplace and bar. "S.S. Rock of the Marne" was inscribed on the preservers. Fish were also suspended from the ceiling of the club, which was decorated with tropical foliage.

Most officers and their ladies wore appropriate costumes to the buffet dinner, which was followed by dancing to the music of Joe DeMarco and the Modernaires.

On behalf of the 38th Infantry, Col. Maurice C. Holden, battle group commander, presented wedding trays to Lt. and Mrs. Robert A. Warfield and Lt. and Mrs. Leon N. Tomlinson. Capt. Harvey Knowles won the door prize.

The party was arranged by the officers wives' social committee, headed by Mrs. Harold W. Darden Jr. The other members are Mrs. Weldon E. White, Howard J. Nolan and Donald B. Abel Jr.

23rd Monthly Coffee Set in the Anzio Room

The officers' wives of the 23rd Infantry met for their monthly coffee recently in the Anzio Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess.

The hostesses were from Companies D and E, and they included: Mrs. Dudley De Bouen, Mrs. Waylon D. Hawkins, Mrs. John H. Moss, Mrs. William L. Nelson, and Mrs. Charles E. Feuerbacher.

Spring Flowers

Mrs. John V. Swango and Mrs. Feuerbacher poured coffee and tea at a table centered with an arrangement of fresh spring flowers.

Mrs. Louis A. Kunzig Jr., wife of Colonel Kunzig, welcomed Mrs. Sidney J. Roche, wife of lieutenant Colonel Roche, newly assigned battle group executive officer.

Farewells were said to Mrs. David S. Moore, Mrs. Charles E. Feuerbach, Mrs. William L. Nelson, and Mrs. John V. Swango.

The May coffee will be sponsored by the ladies of Combat Support company, and the S-1 section.

15th, 37th, 38th Artilleries Hold April Get-Togethers Over Coffee

The monthly coffee of the 15th Artillery was held recently at the home of Mrs. Richard Boone, wife of Warrant Officer Boone at Blue Ridge Drive in Columbus.

There were two new arrivals welcomed. They were Mrs. Charles Patton and Mrs. William Temple.

The ladies of the 15th Artillery presented Mrs. Henry McLaughlin with an engraved silver tray. Captain McLaughlin retired recently.

Mrs. L. Hansmann, wife of Captain Hansmann, was a guest at the coffee.

37th Artillery

The Custer Terrace Officer's Club was the scene of the recent 37th Artillery coffee.

Mrs. George B. Callahan, and Mrs. Wade H. Whitley II were the hostesses.

Major Joseph Mordente's mother, Mrs. Germano Mordente, his sister, Mrs. Stephen Dillie, and his niece, Miss Stephanie Dillie, and Mrs. Wade H. Whitley III were guests of the morning.

38th Artillery

The recent 38th Artillery coffee was held at the home of Mrs. John B. Finnegan, wife of Lieutenant Colonel Finnegan, battalion commanding officer.

Mrs. Edmund D. Rozecki served as co-hostess with Mrs. Finnegan.

The table was festive with a centerpiece of white roses.

Mrs. Arthur Doherty, mother of Captain William Doherty was the group's special guest.

H. Scotts, Cavalry, Host Ladies

Mrs. Harvey Scott, wife of Lieutenant Colonel Scott, commanding officer of the 7th Cavalry, gave an informal coffee for the distaff members of the Cavalry Squadron at her home on Rainbow Avenue.

Fifteen ladies attended the get-together.

A welcome was extended to Mrs. Gary McRoberts, whose husband was recently assigned to Troop B as a platoon leader.

A farewell was said to Mrs. Donald Turner. Lieutenant and Mrs. Turner are shortly to return to civilian life.

Mrs. Scott conducted a short business meeting, at which final plans were made for a squadron cook-out to be held at the Scott's home later this week.

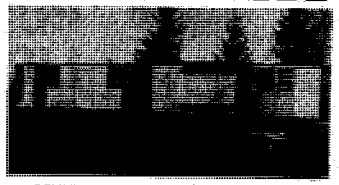
Trains Coffee Is Hosted By Trans Ladies

The Fort Benning Country Club was the scene Friday of the monthly Division Trains Coffee.

Hostesses for the event were the ladies of the 13th Transportation Battalion. Mrs. Walter Hibbard, Mrs. Donald Alberti, Mrs. David B. Barnhill and Mrs. James L. Pierce were in charge of the centerpiece.

The centerpiece consisted of purple, yellow, and white wild flowers and greenery. A mexican hat of straw formed the base of the arrangement.

Mrs. F. V. Harris conducted a short business meeting. Newcomers were welcomed to the group. They include Mrs. Frank Miller, Mrs. Richard Hel, Mrs. Donald Blumm and Mrs. C. O. Goodwyne.



Farewells were bid to Mrs. Thaddeus F. Blackstock, Jr. and Mrs. Ray E. Donham.

Engineers Bridge River During Seneca Spear

By 2nd Engr. Bn PIO

Last month, while participating in Exercise Seneca Spear at Fort Stewart, Georgia, a forward command post of the 2nd Engineer Battalion was moved under the cover of darkness to a position near the Canoochee River where the Engineer River Crossing operations could be supervised.

The Engineer effort was devoted to clearing obstacles from the far shore, ferrying assault Infantry companies, erecting three aluminum footbridges, which were handled by Company D and A, building of an M4T6 Float Bridge through the efforts of Company B and the construction of Light Tactical Rafts by Company E.

The 114th Engineer Panel Bridge Company erected a Bailey Bridge.

Members of Companies A, B, D, and E of the 2nd Engineer Battalion, and of the 114th Engineer Panel Bridge Company, a Third United States Army unit attached to the Engineers, participated in the erection of these various type bridges. Vehicles, equipment and personnel from several Infantry units were transported from the edge of one shore to the other in an assault wave.

On assault crossing "Utah", personnel of the 2nd Engineer Battalion began preparations for the movement of an Armored Vehicle Launched Bridge to the far shore by use of a M4T6 Raft, which weighs about 60 tons and is capable of supporting a capacity of 60 tons.

Members of the Bridge Platoon, Headquarters Company, 2nd Engineer Battalion, were in charge of the operations.

Yellow Force Supported By 27th Artillery Fire

The 27th Artillery, commanded by Lieutenant Colonel James D Clark, was assigned the mission of general support for the Yellow forces during Exercise SENECA SPEAR.

The men and equipment of the 27th Artillery moved by motor convoy to Fort Stewart, Georgia, April 11, 1962. After a march of 240 miles, without incident, the battalion moved into an assembly area on the east side of the Fort Stewart reservation to await further orders.

Upon receipt of the operations order, the 27th Artillery occupied positions to cover the advance of the Yellow forces. Continuous ground and air observation was furnished by the battalion, to facilitate a 24-hour operation.

The maneuver proved that the 27th Artillery is capable of fulfilling its mission of direct and general support of the Infantry. The battalion remained in continuous close support by rapid displacement and occupation of new positions throughout the difficult Fort Stewart terrain.

Asst. Div. Engineer

Back From Ecuador; Was Army Advisor

By 2nd Engineer PIO

Returning to the 2nd Engineer Battalion from temporary duty this past week, after a period of 90 days duty in Quito, Ecuador, was Major Ruddie E. Irizarry, formerly the Division Engineer Supply Officer and the battalion S-4 (Supply).

While enroute to his assignment in Ecuador, Major Irizarry received several periods of briefings at Fort Gordon, Georgia; Washington, D. C., and then Fort Gulick, Canal Zone.

With Civic Action

Major Irizarry was a part of a Civic Action Team which consisted of a Signal Officer, Medical Officer, a Psychological Warfare Officer, Civil Affairs Officer and Engineer Officer.

The job of this team was to advise the Ecuadorian Army in matters pertaining to projects which would benefit the civilian populace, such as health and sanitation, education, public works, and communications. It was felt that assistance in developing and applying civic actions would help the Ecuadorian Army to improve its relations with the public and be utilized productively in support of the population.

Upon his return to the 2nd Engineer Battalion, Major Irizarry recently assumed new duties as the Assistant Division Engineer.

Major Irizarry, and his family, reside at Fort Benning, Georgia.

Major Ives, USMA 46, XO at 87th

By 87th Inf PIO

Major Albert R. Ives was recently assigned to the 87th Infantry as executive officer.

A 1946 graduate of the U. S. Military Academy, Major Ives comes to the 87th after an assignment as an ROTC instructor at the University of Mississippi. A veteran of the Korean Conflict, he has been awarded the Combat Infantryman's Badge and the Bronze Star Medal.

Originally from Oklahoma, Major Ives is married and has five children. He professes an avid interest in gymnastics, golf and photography.

Re-Up Award Made

The revolving First Term Enlistment-Reenlistment Plaque of the 1st Infantry has been awarded to Company D.

Lieutenant Charles E. Miller, company commander of Company D, received the plaque on behalf of the company.

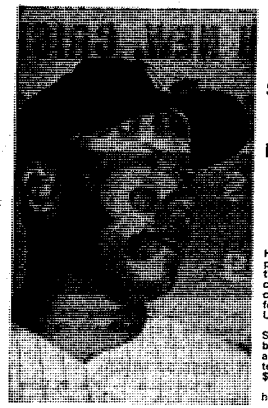
Third Army Visitors See 23rd Inf.

Four distinguished visitors toured the 23rd Infantry combat area during the assault phase of the recently completed Exercise SENECA SPEAR. They were Lieutenant Colonel T. C. Butsch of G-3, U. S. Continental Army Command; Colonel J. F. Ballentine of G-4, Third U. S. Army; Colonel J. W. Lawson and Major J. E. Tyler of G-3, Third U. S. Army.

The four officers received a briefing at the 23rd Infantry's advanced command post as to the unit's progress in attacking the aggressor force. Major Charles M. Bolen Jr., battle group training officer, (S-3), pointed out on a map where the various companies were situated. He also called in Sergeant Wilmer Nelson of Combat Support Company to report the findings of his patrol that day deep inside enemy territory.

Spear Awards Given at 23rd

Nearly 100 23rd Infantrymen have received awards based on their performances in the field during the recent Exercise SENECA SPEAR.



Heading the awards list are Lieutenant John Lybrand and Sergeant First Class Charles Darnell, both of Company C. Each was recommended for the Distinguished Spear, the Silver Spear and the Bronze Spear.

To date, 43 Bronze Spear, 31 Purple Spear, six Silver Spear, two Distinguished Spear and two Outstanding Spear awards have been awarded.

Division Softball Tourney Begins

The 2nd Infantry Division Softball Tournament got underway last night with all eight teams of major commands seeing action.

In the first game at Kelley Hill's Essebagger Field, Separate Battalions took on the 1st Infantry, whose predecessor OVUREP battle group took the championship in 1961. Nightcap action was a contest between the 38th Infantry and Division Trains.

At Sand Hill, the 9th Infantry Manchus dueled with Division Artillery in the first game and a contest between the 23rd Infantry and the 87th Infantry capped the evenings action there. Sand Hill games are played at Admin. Field.

The division's softball tourney, an integral part of the Commanding General's Sports Trophy Program, is conducted by the Special Services Officer.

Scheduled to end June 18 and subject to training commitments, the event is a double round-robin tournament with the best won - lost record determining the winner.

In the event of a tie for first, second, or third place a playoff of one game will be played immediately following the regular league schedule.

Also in the event any team is ahead by ten or more runs at the end of five innings of play, the game shall be considered complete and the team ahead will be declared the winner, according to a Special Service Office letter distributed this week.

The division Special Services Officer will be responsible for the assignment of officials, marking of the ball diamonds, providing game balls and score books, and for the selection and presentation of awards.

Additional responsibilities require the "home team" to furnish one medical aidman and one person to operate the scoreboard.

Requests for points toward the Commanding General's Sports Trophy are to be submitted within five duty days following the completion of the tournament.

Div Trains Team Winner

Scott Individual Champ In Division Bowling Final

James Scott, Combat Support Company, 87th Infantry, captured both the individual high game and the individual high series, in the 2nd Infantry Division Bowling Championship, which concluded last Friday.

Scott rolled off a single game total of 244 and a series total of 616 to take the two individual titles in the nine-game scratch roll-off tournament.

Division Trains, with a team total of 8204, was the winner of the team title over the 87th Infantry, 8076, and the 38th Infantry, 7906, in the tournament which was conducted by the division's Special Service Office.

Division Trains team members included Cecil J. Huff, Headquarters and Headquarters Company (team captain), Thomas V. Ramsey and Richard Avnham of the 2nd Administration Company, James T. Watts, 2nd Quartermaster Company, Harry L. Beglau and Gilbert M. Powell of the 2nd Aviation Company.

Conquerors Again Lead In 'Trophy' Competition

By 87th Inf PIO

The Conquerors regained undisputed possession of first place in the standings for the Commanding General's Sports Trophy last week by taking second place in the division bowling tournament.

Behind Division Artillery last week by 20 points, the 87th bowlers accumulated 36 points to Div Arty's none to take a slim 16 point lead, 305-289 to 255. Separate Battalions and Division Trains are close behind with 270 and 260 points respectively.

Although the 87th finished nearly 200 pins behind Division Trains in the final tally, the winner was not actually determined until the final frames of the 9 game roll-off. At one point, at the end of the eighth game, the Conquerors pulled to within 30 points but couldn't keep up the pace.

James A. Scott of Combat Support Company established himself as the top bowler in the tournament taking just about every individual honor. The list includes high-game (244), high series (616), high average (191) and total pinfall. The division will reward Scott with a like number of trophies for his prodigious bowling feats.

Other members of the Conqueror team were Glenn McCannon and Burl Withers, Leonard Shoemaker, Raymond Cline, Paul Suding and Kenneth Allen.

This tournament completed the first half of the division sports program and leaves only two sports remaining, softball and swimming.

Conqueror Hits 191 Avg In Roll-Off

By 87th Inf PIO

James A. Scott, First Sergeant of Combat Support Company, 87th Infantry, may not be the best bowler in the 2nd Division but as far as the records show, it would be hard to prove that he isn't.

Although the Conqueror team finished second in the recent division tournament, Sergeant Scott had to settle for high game, high series and high average. Normally a 182 average bowler, Sergeant Scott averaged 191 for the nine game roll-off. Included was a high series of 515 and a high game of 244.

Began in '57

These records are just a part of Sergeant Scott's trophy-filled bowling career which surprisingly dates back to only five years. It was in 1957 that he began to bowl over king pins, having previously limited his game to an occasional try at duck pins.

Sergeant Scott recalls that bowling for the Alpine Knights while stationed near Garmisch, Germany, was the most "rewarding" experience of his Army career having won the regional championship five consecutive times.

In 1958 he was selected to bowl with the Southern Area Command All-Stars. It was during this competition that Sergeant Scott hit his high game, 266, and his highest three game series, 681. It was also during this time that he accumulated most of his trophies that presently total 44.

Sergeant Scott proudly recalled another bowling achievement. Together with his wife, Cornelia, the Scotts took high honors in a recent local tournament that included individual high games. Also worth mentioning is the Conqueror bowling league currently in progress in which Combat Support Company is running ahead of all other competition with a record of 21½-2½.

League Ends With Awards for Wives

The Officers Wives' Bowling League climaxed its season Monday morning with a coffee and awards presentation at the Fort Benning Country Club.

Presenting the awards were Mrs. Royal Reynolds Jr., wife of the assistant commandant of The Infantry School and former assistant division commander, and Mrs. Gustav M. Bacharach, wife of the division's chief of staff.

First place team in the league was the Hot Shots, captained by Janise Pierce, which won 67, lost 45 and had a total pin score of 53,231. Other members of the team were Dorothy Horan, Mollie Hannon, and Pauline Keebaugh. All were awarded ice buckets.

The Foul Balls Team was a close second with a record of 66½, 45½, and 53,045. Team members Betta Yeosock (captain, Shirley Briscoe, Betsy Dryer and JuDelle Sessions were awarded covered casseroles.

Gravy boats and warmers were awarded to the third-place Twisters whose season record was 66, 46, and 52,889. Captained by Reva Harman, the team was composed of Marge Marcello, Dusty Cornwell and Misao Askine.

The Twisters also received aspic servers for having the high team series with handicap.

Sally Heape received a tray as the most improved bowler award.

Other awards presented included: Vertie Crooks, first high average of 154, a water pitcher; Reva Harman, second high average of 145, a chip tray; Ruth Robinson, high series of 511, a covered casserole; JuDelle Sessions, high game of 511, a covered casserole; JuDelle Sessions, high game of 193, a gravy boat; Betta Yeosock, high series with handicap 586, a vegetable dish; and Marge Marcello, a high game with handicap 225, a covered casserole.

Marnemen's Softball '9' Is Selected

By 38th Inf PIO

The softball coach of the 38th Infantry, Lieutenant Johnny M. Moses, has completed tryouts for the battle group softball team and selected 15 personnel, 15 of whom will make up the 38th entry in the division tournament.

Included on the team are Fred J. Gibson, Ronnie D. Hopkins and Antonio Rios of Company A; Bobby S. Dalrymple, James F. Dawes and Telford Ross of Company B; Martin L. Flynn, Clarence Barrett, Robert Marshall, Jerome E. Przekop and Bennie W. Scott, Company C; Robert E. Banks, Paul M. Doss, Louis Dunson and Robert L. Shipley, Company D; and Thomas L. Leatherwood, Merle C. Strole and Melvin E. Rice, Company E.

The play in the battle group's company league has been temporarily suspended while a major face-lifting job was done on the 38th's main softball field. The home plate, pitcher's mound and base line area has been dug out, with red clay packed in, and soil covering the top of this.

Two-Niners Take Over Lead With Two Victories

By Sfc Bismarck Stith
Photos By MSgt Wm. Smith

In major unit baseball action, the standings shifted with the 29th Infantry coming out on top. Their record of four wins and two losses was enough to lift them from second into first place.

At the beginning of the season, 156th Signal Battalion dropped three games in a row; the 428th Medics won three; and the 10th Artillery lost their opener to the 29th Infantry (6-1); clobbered The Student Brigade (15-3), and bowed to the 156th (4-1).

IBS bounced back and bombarded the 428th Medics (17-5). 156th Signal came back strong and won their last three games. 151st Engineers picked up their second victory from 29th Infantry (11-7).

The Engineers blasted the Infantrymen for four hits and eight runs in the fifth paced by Paul Snyder's three run triple. Parker Humphrey was credited with the win while Clifton Johnson suffered the loss.

Curt Gentry led the 29th at the plate with three for three, two doubles and a triple.

The 29th Infantry won two games and moved into first place by edging the 428th Medics 5-4, and downing Center Troop Command 2-1.

Ray Bowers was the winning pitcher in the first 29th win with James Battle taking the second. Curt Gentry led the club in both wins, getting a double against the Medics and two for four against CTC. Dick Shull had a solo homer in the second win, also Valetine of CTC blasted a homer in the sixth.

Joe Winchester hurled a four-hitter for the 10th Artillery win with Ken Smith and William Ray each blasting a two-run homers.

156th Signal edged the 10th Artillery 4-1. Charles Lumpkin of the Redlegs and Harold Dennis from 156th Signal had two for four respectively.

Although Douglas Turner struck out 17 batters he suffered the loss. Paul Bando was credited with the victory.

The 10th Artillery trounced Center Troop Command 12-2. Houston Turner got credit for the win and Marty Leight was the loser. J. B. Larrimore paced the winners with two for two and Leight had one hit for CTC.

Special Services Slates Amateur Boxing Bouts

By Sfc Bismarck Stith

The Infantry Center Special Services Athletic Department announces that the 1962 Infantry Center Amateur Boxing Program, in major unit level, will be conducted July through December.

Major unit commands should select their teams in the near future to give ample time for training. The teams must meet the requirements for the opening bouts on July 4 during the annual YAC Carnival held at the post.

All military personnel in amateur status stationed here are eligible to participate. An individual must be assigned or attached to the unit entering him as a contestant. Qualification records on all boxers participating will be maintained.

Units entering teams will submit a roster to the Athletic Department with information of name, organization, hometown newspaper; and resume of boxing experience of each boxer listed.

A representative from the Athletic Department will conduct the weigh-in at 9 a.m. on the day of the matches. All contestants will have three hours from the time of the initial weigh-in to make the weight.

The following organizations may enter teams as indicated: 1st Infantry Brigade (3); Center Troop Command (1); The Student Brigade (1); 428th Medical Battalion (1); 151st Engineer Group (1); Martin Army Hospital (1); Lawson Army Aviation Command (1) and 2nd Infantry Division nine (9) teams with the concurrence of 2nd Division commanding general.

The USAIC Boxing Program will be governed under the 1962 Official Amateur Athletic Rules.

The weight classes will be as follows: Flyweight, (112); Bantamweight, (119); Featherweight, (125); Lightweight, (132); Light Welterweight, (139); Welterweight, (147); Light Middleweight, (156); Middleweight, (165); Light Heavyweight, (178); Heavyweight, over 179 pounds.

Arrangements will be made to insure that all contestants are given a physical examination by a medical officer on the day of the bout at 7:30 a.m. at Dispensary B.

Contestants in each weight will initially be placed in class 1, 2 and 3. Class 1; boxers who have won a championship or have participated in a championship tournament. Class 2; boxers who have had 10 fights or more. Class 3; boxers with five fights or less. Contestants who have not previously participated in matches at this post will be classified by the Athletic Department Boxing Board.

For further information concerning the 1962 USAIC Boxing Program please contact Sfc Larry Jones (545-3604 or 545-5073).

The hands must work together as you swing, the right pulling, the left pushing.

IMPROVED POST FISHING

Post anglers were making some nice catches of bream this past week at Kings Pond while bass activity was still a bit slow. Those anglers who found bream "beds" were able to have a field day and bag their limit without difficulty. Most bream are being taken on red worms, however a few avid anglers have been having good luck with small flies and poppers.

Several good strings of bass have been taken from Weems and Headleys pond. Many of the beaver ponds on post are beginning to produce some good fishing with bream and catfish filling the creels at the present time.

NESTING TIME

Recently the Fish and Game Association has received inquiries concerning regulations for running dogs other than during the regular hunting season. Although there is no specific regulation which forbids running and training dogs anytime during the year, dog owners are urged to keep their dogs out of the field during the spring nesting season.

This is the time of the year when the young game, particularly deer and turkey are very susceptable to all predators. Although dogs may not directly pursue the young game birds and animals, it often causes them to move from their nesting areas hence becoming subject to natural predators. In another month most game will have passed this critical stage and will be less subject to predation.

Modern Biathlon Proves to Be Olympic Games' Toughest Test

The modern winter Biathlon is one of the most difficult events on the Olympic program because it combines in one competition two sports which are so different from one another as to require entirely different skills. These two events include; racing on cross - country skis over a 12.5 mile course over all types of terrain and shooting with a rifle at four different ranges situated along the track.

The difficulty of the Biathlon derives, not only from the fact that a great of stamina and skill is necessary in order to compete the course, but the exhausted state in which the competitor reaches each range.

Mrs. Carter Wins Ladies Golf Title

The lady golfers of Fort Benning recently completed their handicap championship tournament. Marge Carter won the championship flight over the 18-hole course. Lu Kearns was runner up, while Betty Britto took consolation honors.

Col. John W. McClain, chairman of the men's golf committee, presented the winners with trophies.

Winners of the 18 hole flights are:

Championship flight; Marge Carter, winner; Lu Kearns, runner up; Betty Britto, consolation.

First Flight; Joan LaPorte, winner; Tillie Mead, runner up, Chinky Sogard, consolation.

Second flight; Gadys Fowler, winner; Molly Ross, runner up; Eva Nell Heliker, consolation.

Winners of the 9 hole flights are;

First flight; Nancy Pigg, winner; Mary Wagner, runner up; Mary Caldbeck, consolation.

Second flight; Lavern Munson, winner; Isabell Schofield, runner up; Carls Caprino, consolation.

Quote Of The Week

Fort Benning Wins Men's Doubles At Bowling Tourney

In the recent Third Army Tournament at Fort Rucker, Fort Benning won high honors in the Men's Doubles Event. Sp4 Kelcy R. Allen and Sp4 Ronald C. Hitz teamed up to take the doubles event title with the score of 1158. Allen had the high game in the competition, rolling a 236.

Fort Benning also made a strong bid in coming home with high game honors. Lt. Col. James Miles placed among the leaders with a score of 266.

RANGE PROTOTYPES . . . Pictured here are a number of trainfire ranges erected by Company C, 577th Engineer Battalion, 151st Engineer Group, recently. Tests show that the range on the far right is best for training needs. Firers assume their positions in front of the opens and fire into the tubes.

Reserves Would Use New Range

When Reservists now on active duty return to their home districts they are likely to find a new type of rifle range awaiting them.

A unique 25-meter trainfire range prototype was constructed here recently by Company C, 577th Engineer Battalion, 151st Engineer Group.

If adopted by the Army ranges of this design would be constructed in the home districts of Reserve Components.

On the new range, firers discharge their weapons through a closed tube, thus eliminating excessive noise and the danger of richocheting bullets. This closed tube range would enable Reserve components to train new enlistees in marksmanship in their home areas.

The range was designed under the supervision of Major L. G. Simmons, administrative officer, Weapons Department, The Infantry School. Construction was supervised by 2nd Lt. William H. Nabors and 2nd Lt. Kenneth D. Johe.

The general construction platoon of Company C undertook the range project as a field problem.

Local AUSA To Aim For First Place

The Columbus-Phenix City - Fort Benning Chapter of the Association of the U. S. Army is conducting its annual membership drive through May and until June 5.

The 24 - man membership committee is attempting to regain first place in membership among the 124 chapters of the association on an Army - wide basis. The post chapter is second to the Tennessee Valley chapter in Huntsville, Ala.

Conducted by Col. John Bisbing, Infantry Center Comptroller and secretary-treasurer of the local chapter, the drive will endeavor to increase its present membership of some 1,550 civilian members and military personnel of all ranks.

The local chapter of the AUSA, which had the highest membership total last year, was awarded a certificate by the National Association of the U. S. Army in Washington, June 30, 1961. After that date the Tennessee Valley chapter took over first place.

Objectives of the AUSA are the fostering of esprit de corps, the promotion of efficiency in the Army components of the Armed Forces and by local action to further the aims of the Association. Its national goal is to contribute its resources and capabilities in advancing the security of the nation.

Earnest W. Higgins of Columbus, a colonel in the Army Reserve, is president of the local chapter of the AUSA.

Civilians and military personnel who are interested in joining the AUSA are urged to apply at Building 35, room 114 or call 545-3444.

Look-Alikes Attending IOOC Here

Presently attending Infantry Officer Orientation Course, Class 13, 2nd Student Battalion, The Student Brigade, are a pair of identical twins, 2nd Lt. James H. Bedingfield and 2nd Lt. Joseph P. Bedingfield.

The young officers are due to graduate the orientation course on May 15. Upon completion of the course, James and his wife, Pamelia, will leave for his next duty assignment, Fort Polk, La., while brother Joseph, is scheduled for a tour in Germany.

Successfully completing Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) at the University of Alabama, the "look - alikes" received their commissions in June 1961.

While in school both were members of Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity. Joseph, was elected president of the University of Alabama Men's Glee Club, and James was selected by his college to appear in Who's Who on American Campuses.

Work Simplification Proves Dollar-Saver

By 1st Lt. John Van Wezel

Recent progress in the Combat Developments Office is an example of how government dollars can be saved through work simplification.

Several months ago the CDO, by using two techniques of work simplification; in particular those of layout studies and work distribution, reorganized a portion of its Administrative Section.

CDO personnel studied in detail the physical organization of the work area and tasks assigned to each individual. The conclusion was that a reorganization and realignment of responsibilities would result in a more efficient operation.

Change Facilities

The physical facilities were reorganized, based on the layout studies. Reorganization resulted in administrative personnel having to walk 576 feet less each day. This step-saving should prove an annual savings of $25.06 for the government.

Redistribution of responsibilities resulted in 32 work-hours saved each week. The hours previously had either been nonproductive or duplications of effort.

The net annual savings to the government through this redistribution of responsibilities amounts to $3660.80.

It can be seen that, by applying the techniques of work simplification, CDO was able to gain a considerable amount of money for the government.

The techniques of work distribution and layout studies, along with other work simplification techniques, have proven time after time their value by saving time and money.

GAMES HIGHLIGHT ORGANIZATION DAY
Members of 391st Compete in "Dizzy-Izzy" Race

391st Engineers Celebrate Founding

Competitive events and a party were highlights of the 391st Engineer Battalion's organization day celebration held recently.

The 391st, a Reserve unit called to active duty last October, celebrated its founding at Cannham Field.

Opening the competitive events was platoon and squad drill. Company B took first place while Pfc Ervin A. Fulgham of Company A was selected as the best drilled soldier.

Company B also proved tops in softball and volley ball competition and in the "piggy-back" relay.

Placing first in the grenade throw was Company A which also routed other competitors in the tug-of-war.

One of the humorous events of the day was the "dizzy-izzy," a relay race in which contestants must run around an upright baseball bat with their foreheads touching the upper end of the bat. Winning this event was Headquarters Company.

Concluding the day's events was a battalion party at Victory Lodge, directed by Sgt. Floyd H. Fanjoy and Spt Samuel L. Diggle of Company C.

During the evening, entertainment was provided by each company.

MACHINIST'S SAMPLE . . . An example of the precise machine work performed by Pfc Roger D. Barron, an Army Reservist on active duty with the 414th Transportation Company, Lawson Army Aviation Command, on LAAC equipment is presented to Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly, deputy post commander. An engraved, aluminum, copper-tipped swagger stick, the sample will be retained by Gen. Kelly. Commander of the 414th is Capt. Ullrich Hermann. The unit is from Greenville, S.C.

$$-Saving Idea Brings Honors To Lt. Privette

A suggestion submitted by 1st Lt. Foy E. Privette, Jr., is expected to save the government some $2,000 annually.

He was presented a letter of appreciation for his suggestion recently by Brig. Gen. Royal Reynolds, Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School.

Lt. Privette's suggestion called for using transistorized public address systems. It was the second suggestion submitted by Lt. Privette during the three months he has been assigned to the Communications Department, TIS.

Stock Fund Conference Held At This Post by CONARC

Continental Army Command headquarters at Fort Monroe, Va., sponsored a Command Channel Stock Fund Conference at this post this week.

Staff officers, finance and accounting officials, and G-4 representatives from all major Army installations in the country attended the conference, which opened Monday and was in formal session through Wednesday.

Major Gen. Ben Harrell, post commander, welcomed the conferees Monday morning in Wigle Hall, Building 2767.

Major Gen. F. A. Hansen, director of the Army Stock Fund, Department of the Army, Washington, D. C., spoke on "Material Readiness and the Army Stock Fund."

Major Gen. Richard D. Meyer, deputy chief of staff for logistics, CONARC, spoke on the command's logistics role under the reorganization of the Army.

A fourth two-star general, Major Gen. Daniel J. Manning, commanding general of the 322nd Logistical Command, a Reserve unit from Chicago, recalled to duty at Fort Lee, Va., spoke on the "Role of the 322nd Log Command in the Channel Stock Fund."

Purpose of the conference was stated as to outline command policies, review procedures, answer questions and provide a means for responsible staff officers and individuals from the logistics, comptroller and accounting fields to meet and discuss the implementation and operation of the Command Channel Stock Fund.

The conference emphasized the purpose and objectives of the relatively new system, and clarified capitalization and operative procedures.

Formal conclusion of the conference was Wednesday with a panel discussion of the program. A question and answer period followed.

Any of the more than 200 conferees who desired on-the-site indoctrination in the program's operation remained on the post Thursday and today to visit commodity managers, logistic stock managers, the Comptroller Office's Budget Branch and the Finance and Accounting Office.

Airborne Requisites Discussed

Approximately 30 officers from Army posts throughout the country were on post Wednesday for a conference on physical and administrative problems pertaining to qualification for Airborne training.

Representatives came from the Continental Army Command Headquarters, the six Army areas, Department of the Army, XVIII Airborne Corps and eight Army training centers.

Col. Michael Paulick, director of The Infantry School's Airborne-Air Mobility Department, led the program.

The training centers represented included Forts Ord, Calif., Jackson, S. C., Gordon, Chaffee, Ark., Leonard Wood, Mo., Dix, N. J., Carson, Colo., and Sam Houston, Texas.

Battle of Shiloh One of Civil Wars' Most Costly Fights

One of the first great battles in the West during the Civil War, the Battle of Shiloh took place in southeastern Tennessee. Both the Union and Confederate Armies suffered heavy casualties. Nearly 24,000 were killed, wounded or reported missing — a number equal to one-fifth of the combined Union and Confederate battle strength. By their failure to destroy the Federal Armies at Shiloh, the Confederates were forced to return to Corinth, Miss., relinquishing all hold on west Tennessee, except for a few forts on the Mississippi.

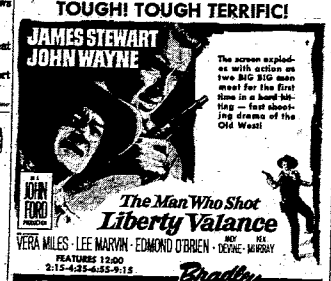
'Two for the Seesaw'

Columbus College Group Presents Broadway Hit

The Columbus College Playmakers are presenting Carolyn Creatore and Jim Hughes in Two for the Seesaw, a Broadway hit that ran for 750 performances in 1958 and 1959. Keith Sugden will direct the Playmakers in their first three-act play tonight and tomorrow.

Carolyn Creatore plays Gittel Mosca, a struggling dancer in New York who has found only loneliness in her many love affairs. While trying, not too hard, to sell an old refrigerator, she meets Jerry Bryan, played by Jim Hughes. The young lawyer has come to the metropolis to forget an unsuccessful marriage and career, and needs Gittel's friendship as she needs his.

The contrast in personalities makes for lively comedy in the fast-moving play. Called the only true two-character play ever successful on the American stage, William Gibson's Two for the Seesaw offers sprightly dialogue enhancing the interplay between conflicting needs of Gittel and Jerry.



The play begins at 8:30 p.m. both evenings in the Columbus College auditorium on Talbotton Road. Tickets are now on sale at the college, and will be available at the door. The adult admission is $1, student, 75 cents. With Columbus College Activity cards, admission is 50 cents.

The New York production of Two for the Seesaw, starring Anne Bancroft and Henry Fonda, opened in January, 1958, and ran through October, 1959. On tour the play met with repeated success, and a movie is now in production, to star Shirley MacLaine and Robert Mitchum.

BOOKS in REVIEW

NAVY DIVER by Joseph S. Karneke. (Putnam, 1962)

In the summer of 1937 a Pennsylvania farmboy joined the Navy to 'take a trip.' A trip he got. It spanned two wars and lasted 20 years, during which Joe Karneke saw not only the surface but also the bottom of the seven seas. And although the science of deep-sea diving was still highly experimental when Karneke first donned his diver's suit, he survived to reach the top of his profession, qualifying as Master and thus becoming one of an elite group whose members are rarer than admirals.

THE BACKSIDE OF WASHINGTON by Dick West. (Doubleday, 1961)

Not a physical thing. . .it is not a tangible. It is more a way of life, or at least what passes for life, in the U. S. Capital. It is composed of governmental flotsam and jetsam, flora and fauna, which eddy and swirl near the banks of the Potomac, seldom spilling over in the Mainstream of America. In this respect, the Mainstream of America is lucky. This is an exceedingly funny book about a town that takes itself very, very seriously.

PENGUINS HAVE SQUARE EYES by Patrick Trese. (Holt, 1962)

This is the wary beginning of a delightful book — a book which, we hasten to add, is not about penguins. It is about a 'young man in a grey flannel suit' who went to the Antarctic for several months to prepare a film on Operation Deep Freeze. His account of the venture is at once hilarious, heartbreaking, cynical, and irreverent — in short, the kind of book that some men manage to write about war.

Don't Mow Your Toe— Play Safe With Mowers

Though lawn mowers are specifically designed for trimming grass, they have been known to take an occasional finger or toe . . . and even a life.

Mowers, particularly power mowers, have been dusted off, tuned up and refueled for another summer season. Post safety officials are hoping this season will be accident-free.

In past years on post there have been a number of accidents which had the operators been more thoughtful, could have been prevented.

Case Histories

Take the case of the weekend gardener whose mower stalled. The man began cleaning debris away from the blade area when the mower suddenly started again, taking a few fingers in its swath. This could have been prevented had the operator disconnected the spark plug wire before cleaning the blade.

Another lawn keeper lost his footing while mowing a terrace slope. He fell and his foot slid beneath the mower. The foot was amputated.

Injuries have also been reported caused when the mower struck such objects as a coat hanger or scrap metal. The whirling blades hurled the metal at high velocity at bystanders. Several have been injured in this manner.

Safety Check-List

Thirteen simple safety instructions will bring good luck to mower operators this summer if kept in mind. Here they are:

1. — Protect yourself with safety glasses, gloves, heavy shoes and snug clothes. Never wear open-toed shoes or brief clothing.

2. — The mower should be equipped with proper guards and be well constructed with a handle long enough that the foot does not go under the machine if you take a long step or your foot slips.

3. — Take time to familiarize yourself with the manufacturer's instructions.

4. — Refuel outdoors while motor is cool with spark plug wires disconnected. Fuel container should be tightly sealed, of the approved type, and plainly marked, "GASOLINE."

5. — Clear the mowing area of children, pets, debris, rocks, toys, etc. Remember, the high speed rotating blade will throw objects at great velocity.

6. — Check your mower for worn or loose parts. A systematic schedule for inspecting mowers and for lubricating all moving parts should be observed.

7. — When starting your mower, stand clear. Get a firm grip on the mower when pulling the starter cord. Keep your feet in such a position that they will not be run over should the mower move.

8. — Be certain of footing and balance. Shut off and disconnect power when moving mower from one level to another such as over curbs, down a terraced slope or any raised object.

9. — Mow across slopes. If your foot slips, it will not go under the mower.

10. — Do not use a power mower when grass is wet and slippery.

11. — Before clearing the machine of debris, shut off the power and disconnect the spark plug wire so that the motor will not start if you should move the blade.

12. — While the mower is running, stay with it. Keep it flat and keep your hands and those of curious children away from moving parts.

13. — Injury sometimes results from lifting mowers. Remember the way to lift — back straight, lift with legs and get help if the load is too heavy.

Electric Mowers

The above rules pertain primarily to gasoline - powered mowers. But electric - powered mowers can also be hazardous.

If an electric mower does not have a ground wire as a standard part of the machine, grounding can be effected by securing one end of a wire to the motor housing and the other end to a water pipe or similar positive ground near the supply outlet.

The added ground wire must be several feet longer than the power cable. It should also be wrapped around the cable or taped securely to it in order to prevent entanglements.

The cable and ground wire should not be frayed or worn, and the male plug should be maintained in good condition.

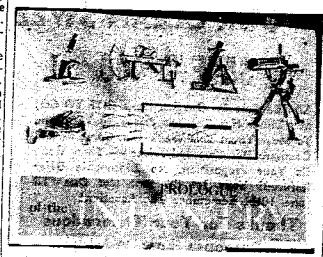
Poster Tells Army Weapons Story

An historical poster depicting many of the Army's weapons used in more than a century of America's wars reposes in The Infantry Museum at Fort Benning.



The 22 by 42-inch poster, planned and designed by the Department of Non-Resident Instruction of The Infantry School, was presented at the museum to Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly, deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center.

The poster, named "Prologue of the Infantry," was presented in a brief ceremony to Gen. Kelly by Dwight W. Carr, a writer for the department and project officer for the poster.

Shown on the poster are charcoal designs of Infantry weapons dating from pre-Civil War days to the Korean conflict. Among them are the Harper's Ferry and the Robbins and Lawrence breech loading rifles, M-1850, Smith's breech loading M-1857, the Spencer repeater M-1863, Remington hammerlock single shot M-1869, Springfield hammerlock M-1870, St. Etienne breech loading, M-1874, and Springfield carnlock, 45-70 caliber, M-1884.

Memories of a bygone military era are revived by reproductions of Gatling's battery gun, M-1862, donated to the museum through the efforts of Gen. Herbert B. Powell, former commanding general of The Infantry Center and now commanding general of the Continental Army Command.

Also reproduced is Gatling's battery gun, M-1876, donated in March, 1960, by Dan Mario Echandi Jiminez, president of Costa Rica.

MUSEUM'S NEW ADDITION
Traces History of Weapons

The DART antitank guided missile, donated by the U. S. Military Academy, and 37-mm antitank gun of World War II vintage are also shown.

Duplicates of the poster will be seen by some 274,000 Reserve Officer Training Corps cadets in nearly 650 high schools, colleges and universities throughout the United States.

The museum has on display such representative weapons of Infantry combat as mortars, machine guns and recoilless guns used in World War II and Korea. Also hundreds of photographs, documents and memorabilia donated by Infantry veterans and their families are in the museum.

WASHINGTON'S RANK

While the creation of the rank of General of the Armies was undoubtedly to confer the title upon George Washington, no record has been found to show that the appointment was ever made.

Ranger Class Graduates

Sixty-seven students of The Infantry School were awarded Ranger tabs in recent graduation ceremonies.

Honor graduates of the course were 2nd Lt. Patrick D. Stockton, a member of the Infantry Training Center, and Sgt. David T. Gibson, a member of Company E, 1st Battle Group, 58rd Infantry, 82nd Airborne Division, Fort Bragg.

Sgt. Gibson was awarded a year's subscription to The Infantry Magazine, often called the professional journal of the Infantry. A one-year subscription is given to the top enlisted graduate of each Ranger class.

Among the graduates were 40 Army officers and 21 enlisted men, four Marine Corps enlisted men from the 1st Marine Division at Camp Pendleton, Calif., and two Army officers from Chile.

Col. Bernard G. Teeters, director of the Ranger Department, congratulated the students, and said, "By taking this course you have increased your country's military force significantly."

SOVIET TRADE

At first glance at Soviet trade figures it would appear that the USSR dominates the European continent. However, when the data for the eastern satellites is considered, the picture is radically altered. All but about 17 per cent is with the satellites.

Col. Lattin Elected YAC Head

Fort Benning's Youth Activities Council has installed a new board of governors.

The new president is Col. John H. Lattin, commander of The Infantry Center Troop Command.

He succeeds Col. Samuel W. Koster, director of The Infantry School's Command and Staff Department.

Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly, deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, presented Col. Koster with a plaque thanking him on behalf of the council for his service during 1961.

Outgoing vice president, Lt. Col. Terrence W. Huck, the 2nd Battalion, 2nd Division.

Infantry Division Artillery, was presented a letter of appreciation.

He is succeeded by Lt. Col. Herbert W. Colburn, battalion commander of the 122nd Signal Battalion, 2nd Division.

Lt. Col. Everett V. Mead, chairman of the Defense Committee, Command and Staff Department, was elected to the board.

Other members of the governing body who were re-elected are Major James E. Rogers, executive officer, 2nd Engineer Battalion, 2nd Division; Major Frank Plass, Infantry Center Troop Command sergeant major, and 1st Lt. John A. Olzewski, custodian.

In addition to Col. Huck, Gen. Kelly also presented letters of appreciation to Olzewski and Plass.

POW'S IN WW-I

During World War I the U.S. held 49,968 German prisoners in France and 5,688 in the U.S. Of those held here, 1,346 were members of German auxiliary cruiser crews which were in U.S. ports when war was declared.

Forbenteta

By Kay Jones

Easter in all its glory has again slipped by. Mother nature appeared decked in beauty resounding the story of life forevermore.

The one thing she forgot this year I really missed—the dogwood. Fort Benning is like a dream-land when its in bloom. These trees seem to transform this home of ours and enrich Easter. Perhaps the pure blooms will grace our next Easter.

Along with this season came the well deserved spring vacation. Text books forgotten, we relaxed and soaked up sun. Lucky Benningites joined the crowds, some visited friends and relatives, the rest of us held the ole Fort down. Weren't the four carefree days great?

The only thing that could possibly spoil this atmosphere of fun is report cards. You know they're here again. The consoling fact is that they will appear just one more time this year. Maybe we'll survive!

There's one more important date to mark on our calendar. Bill Heath, the president of Brat Barracks, tells me that they're planning a dance for either next weekend or the following. The Abstracts will be asked to provide the music. This band is a favorite, so plan to attend and join in the merriment.

Part of our population migrated to Panama City last weekend. Members of Sigma Delta Beta loaded onto chartered buses eagerly awaiting their first dip into the Gulf. I understand the water's quite icey, let's hope it didn't chill their spirits.

The Baker Friday night sock hops seem to be quite popular. They provide a night of casual relocation.

Junior Army Daughters of America are sponsoring a monthly visit to a ward at Martin Army Hospital. This month punch and homemade cookies were served as bingo was played. This service project is loads of fun for the girls and is looked forward to by the patients. For a warm smile and a kind hello the girls receive immeasurable looks of gratitude.

Girls, the cadets are here. Yes, the dance is tonight at the Country Club from eight until eleven. They're bringing their own band so look out—fun's ahead. The cadets are seniors at Georgia Military Academy.

Talking about seniors, the class of '62 at Columbus High has started preparations for the annual Class Day. This year it's a take-of on My Fair Lady. We call it My Fair Students. The cast includes approximately 290 people. Several Benningites have already dedicated their talents to its success.

It's time for Pacelli to have its Ring Dance again; it will be tomorrow night. The sophomore class honors the junior class in this manner when they receive their rings. It promises to be quite an evening for your memory book, juniors.

What would we do without sports? Track meet after track meet prove that Baker has quite a group of sportsmen. I must not forget golf and tennis. They're also playing a big part this year. Keep it up boys, we're cheering for you.

G-r-a-d-u-a-t-i-o-n. Ten letters that mean so much. It's not long now. This is quite evident as we begin to receive gift certificates from down town, best wishes for the future from friends, and the challenging question — What are you going to do now? Do you think we'll last?

In the past few weeks several of you have asked me the name of this column. It's simple — For—as in for all of us; ben—as in Ben Casey; te—as the tea we had for dinner; and ta—as in taboo. Where did it come from? This column has always been named Teen Talk. So Teen Talk is left and Fort Benning added. Forbenteta is the first three letters of Fort and Benning and the first two letters of Teen and Talk.

Temporary Work Platforms Built Below Pontoon Replacement Site

Army engineers announced last week that a temporary work bridge is being erected on the Chattahoochee River about one mile below the pontoon bridge on the post for use by construction workers building a new permanent bridge across the river.

The new bridge, which will be completed by the time the reservoir to be formed behind the Walter F. George Lock and Dam innundates the old pontoon bridge, will have a clear span high enough to accommodate commercial navigation through the reservoir.

The work bridge being erected will consist of two sections, one extending from each side of the river, leaving an opening of 174 feet across the main channel for the passage of small boats. Navigation lights will be installed on the piers at the channel end of each section. Both sections of the work bridge will be moved around the first of March, 1963.

ROTC PROGRAM

There are 248 universities and colleges presenting the Senior ROTC program with a total enrollment of 155, 871 cadets.

Memorial Day Cites American War Dead

Memorial Day is less than seven years short of being a century old. The Civil War dead it originally honored have since been joined by the Americans who fell in four other conflicts. This spring, as in past year, May 30 will see their graves bright with wreaths and flowers.

Memorial Day, also known as "Decoration Day," is especially associated with the Army's history and traditions.

Taught Through 'Indicator Course'

Diagnosis of Engine Trouble

Almost 800 officers and noncommissioned officers have completed the first nine classes of the preventive maintenance indicator course being held here.

The course, conducted by The Infantry Center's Ordnance Section, is designed to point out to the students by demonstration the need for a sound preventive maintenance indicator system.

If this system is properly utilized, authorities say, areas where maintenance has been neglected can be spotted before complete breakdown occurs.

The importance of this aspect of keeping material functioning properly was stated in a letter by Major Gen. Ben Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center, to each of the students attending the class.

He said, "The quality of firepower and mobility rests not only on scientific knowledge and experience, but also on the ability of our personnel to perform the maintenance necessary to keep equipment and material in effective operating condition."

The course covers preventive maintenance on a variety of equipment. Among these are trucks, trailers, track vehicles, such as tanks, mortar carriers and troop carriers, artillery pieces, small arms, fire control instruments and ammunition.

An example of recent developments making maintenance an ever expanding problem requiring up-to-date study and methods is the M-35A1 truck with multifuel engine. This engine will run on any one of five types of fuel. Though maintenance of the M-35A1 is 'simplified', it complifies the fast changing line-up of military vehicles.

Each area of equipment is represented by a station. In the stations there is an instructor, most of whom are Ordnance Corps maintenance technicians.

They instruct the classes, through the use of visual aids and other demonstrations, in the places in which to look for preventive maintenance indicators.

Most of these indicators can be easily seen. Among the most obvious are leaks, loose or missing parts, noises, cracks and cleanliness. Some are more subtle and require a more comprehensive knowledge of the equipment.

Each class lasts 12 hours, 50 minutes of which are devoted to the various stations.

ing to indoctrinate its members and to instruct them to a course whereby they will strike when the leaders feel the circumstances permit, action by the Government is required."

Nevertheless, when prosecuted in U. S. courts, Communists and their lawyers invoke all the civil rights guaranteed to all persons, whether citizens or not, in the Bill of Rights of the Constitution. Invariably, the courts have recognized these rights and have accorded Communists all the guarantees under the same Constitution they are pledged to destroy.

In the case of the 11 Communist leaders mentioned above, the trial judge went to extreme limits to safeguard their constitutional rights. Patiently, Judge Harold Medina allowed the Communists and their lawyers to attack the American judicial system and even to heap insults on himself. As a result of these extraordinary tactics, the trial consumed ten months —the longest criminal trial in American history.

The convicted Communists appealed their case to higher courts, and were allowed their freedom on bail. The convictions were upheld by the U. S. Supreme Court. But, in the meantime, four of the Communists skipped bail and disappeared.

press agency and implied agency is always to determine by the facts whether a party represents another, or is acting for another, and NOT what the parties may have designated their relations to be. Once the agency exists, it will be an agency whether the parties understood the exact nature of the relation or not. Therefore, unless the husband can be said to have made his wife either his express or implied agent, he should not promise to pay or be advised to pay a debt created by his wife.

State Department Official Addresses Career Classes

Edward A. Jamison, director of the Office of Inter-American Regional Political Affairs, State Department, Washington, D. C., addressed members of The Infantry School's officer career courses last week.

His presentation in Theater 1 dealt with Latin American affairs.

While at the post, he visited Brig. Gen. Royal Reynolds Jr., assistant commandant of The School. An official luncheon was given in his honor.

Armed Forces Week Activities Affirm U.S. 'Power For Peace'

JCOC Guests See Power of U.S. Infantry

Some 200 guests of the Department of Defense and the Army departed the post yesterday after witnessing the Army phase of the 32nd Joint Civilian Orientation Conference here.

As in all past JCOCs, comments by conferees ranged from appreciation for small details to shocked awakening at disclosure of the changes reflected in present day Infantry capabilities and equipment.

"The 'old Army' was never like this," some were heard to say.

Changing needs for the hardware involved in ground combat and increased emphasis on individual ability in the Army were dramatically shown to the top civic, professional and business leaders by units and personnel of The Infantry Center, The Infantry School and the 2nd Infantry Division during the tightly packed two-day schedule.

The conferees had arrived Tuesday afternoon and were formally greeted Wednesday at a reception where the principal speaker was Gen. Herbert B. Powell, commanding general of the Continental Army Command.

Wednesday and Thursday morning the selected guests saw demonstrations of the Army in action, aimed at establishing better appreciation and understanding of the "Power for Peace" embodied in the U. S. Army.

Before coming to Fort Benning, the DOD guests, some 71 strong, had attended the Air Force phase of the overall conference, at Offutt Air Force Base, Omaha, Neb. They went yesterday to Norfolk, Va., where they will witness Navy demonstrations and a Marine Airborne assault from the USS Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Colors Mass for Municipal Auditorium Ceremony on Monday and Tuesday

'Searchlight Tattoo'—Top AF Week Feature

A salute to the United Nations will highlight a "Massing of the Colors and Searchlight Tattoo" ceremony at 8 p.m. May 14 and 15 at the Columbus Municipal Auditorium.

Part of the observance of Armed Forces Week in the area, the colorful military event will be sponsored by the Columbus Chapter of the Military Order of World Wars. Cooperating in the production will be The Infantry Center and 2nd Infantry Division and the Jordan Vocational High School Band.

The public is invited to attend the traditional ceremony. There is no admission charge.

Participating in the salute to the UN will be Infantry School Allied students and liaison officers from member nations. Each representative and the flag of his country will be spotlighted in turn.

Guest speaker May 14 will be Major Gen. Ben Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center and on May 15, Major Gen. Charles H. Chase, commanding general of the 2nd Infantry Division.

The massing of the colors will include flags of the U.S., U.S. Army, Third Army, The Infantry School, 50 States, the UN, and the flag of each member nation represented at the ceremony.

Two drill teams will appear on the program each evening. They are a team from Columbus High School and "Bates Brigade and Millsaps Rifles" from Chattanooga, Tenn.

There will be Highland dancers, tableaux, and traditional band music.

Members of Baker High School Reserve Officer Training Corps will present a historic ceremony, the "Firing of the 'Rifle'", including crack drill and the consecutive firing of 60 weapons.

The Infantry Center Special Services Section will present "I Am the Infantry", depicting in narrative and tableau, the role of the foot soldier in the growth and development of the U.S.

The Infantry Center Museum will set up a display in the corridor of the Municipal Auditorium, to remain in place throughout the two performances.

City and Post In Combined Celebrations

Emphasizing the slogan, "Power for Peace," post personnel will participate in Armed Forces Week activities next week on the post, in the surrounding civilian community and at points throughout the southeastern U.S.

Armed Forces Day, May 19, set aside by Presidential proclamation, will culminate a week of colorful programs and displays of the Army's might and prowess in the local community, presented in the interest of public understanding of the role of the Armed Forces.

The celebration in the area will represent joint efforts of Columbus and post personnel.

Mayor J. Steve Knight of Columbus has issued a proclamation naming the week of May 13 to 19 as Armed Forces Week, while Major Gen. Ben Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center, has addressed a message to all post personnel stressing the importance of Armed Forces Day.

Searchlight Tatoo

Setting the stage for the week's activities will be two presentations of the dramatic and historic "Military Searchlight Tattoo," a musical event established more than 300 years ago in England.

Combined with a "Massing of the Colors," the Tattoo will be performed at 8 p.m. May 14 and 15 at the Columbus Municipal Auditorium.

There will be a parade in downtown Columbus at 4 p.m. May 18.

'Blue Day' Review

The public is invited to attend a "Blue Day" review at 10 a.m., May 19, on Stilwell Field.

The Army's "turning blue" parade will be staged by approximately 120 Infantry officer candidates of class 3, members of 50th Company, 5th Battalion, Student Brigade of The Infantry School.

"Blue Day," a senior status review, marks the beginning of the final phase of 23 weeks of officer candidate training.

AF Week

idents of the surrounding area are invited to see the colorful event and all other activities on the post that day.

Seven special performances will be given by The Infantry Center Band, 29th Infantry Drill Team and 25th Infantry Scout Dog Platoon.

The demonstrations will be May 14, at 4 p.m. at the Oakland Park Shopping Center in Columbus, and at 6 p.m. at the Phenix Plaza Shopping Center.

On May 15, at 4 p.m. at the Traffic Circle Shopping Center, and 6 p.m. at the Jordan City Shopping Center; May 16, at 4 p.m. at the Rossmont Shopping Center, and May 17, at 4 p.m. at Wynnton School and at 6 p.m. at the Cross Country Plaza Shopping Center.

Equipment Displays

Four displays of equipment will be exhibited on the central parkway on Broadway in Columbus from May 14 through 20.

Two displays between 10th and 11th Streets will be arranged by the 428th Medical Battalion and by TIC Chaplains Section.

The 151st Engineer Group will set up a display between 11th and 12th Streets, and the 1st Infantry Brigade, between 12th and 13th Streets.

Demonstrators will be present with the displays from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. each day.

Window Displays Set

Approximately 40 Broadway merchants will provide space for window displays of equipment and material depicting Armed Forces activities.

Window displays will be set up May 14, and remain in place until May 21.

Displays will be arranged by the Ground Mobility, Communications, Ranger and Airborne - Air Mobility Departments of TIS, Martin Army Hospital, 151st Engineer Group, 1st Infantry Brigade, Lawson Army Aviation Command, Army Marksmanship Training Unit, Third Army Training Aids Subcenter, TIC Quartermaster and Chemical Sections and the 2nd Infantry Division.

Other window displays will be arranged by the Air Force and Navy Recruiting Stations and the Navy Reserve Unit in Columbus.

The Infantry Museum will set up a display at the Municipal Auditorium for personnel attending the Searchlight Tattoo.

Fort Benning will furnish Armed Forces Week speakers for meetings of civic groups throughout the surrounding community.

Scout dog, hand-to-hand combat, judo and drill team demonstrations will be presented on request.

Other Areas

The Infantry Center and 2nd Infantry Division will send aircraft for static displays to Birmingham and Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala.; Greenville, Raleigh and Seymour-Johnson Air Force Base, N. C.; Fort Jackson; Greenwood and Columbus Air Force Base, Miss.; Newnan, Milledgeville, Rome and Dobbins Air Force Base, Ga.

Skydivers from the post will stage a demonstration at Fort McClellan May 19.

The local observance of Armed Forces Week is sponsored by the Military Order of World Wars, whose commander is Lt. Col. (Ret.) Louis T. Kunze of Columbus.

Armed Forces Week chairman is Brig. Gen. (Ret.) W. G. Skelton of Columbus.

Chairman of the Searchlight Tattoo is Robert M. Barr of Columbus. Co-chairmen are Brig. Gen. (Ret.) Marcus B. Bell and Major L. P. Johnson, professor of military science at Jordan Vocational High School, both of Columbus.

Parade chairman is Col. (Ret.) Nelson L. Fooks of Columbus.

Lt. Col. Wiliam C. Hacker is TIC project officer, and Major G. R. Henderson is coordinator for Armed Forces Week activities.

JCOC

said the tour so far was "very excellent."

"We have seen a lot of on-the-ball service people — people who are very adept at organizing and giving demonstrations — it has all been very excellent," he said.

Objective of the JCOCs is to establish closer cooperation and understanding between forces ready to actively defend freedom and the general public who must support the drive for world freedom and peace.

Service Schools Personnel Attend JCOC This Week

Nearly 500 students and members of the staffs and faculties of service schools throughout the country attended the Army phase of the Joint Civilian Orientation Conference here this week.

Heading the list of staff members were Air Force Major Gen. Leo P. Dahl, commandant of the War College, Air University, Maxwell A1r Force Base, Ala.; Navy Rear Adm. William M. Nation, acting commandant of the Armed Forces Staff College, Norfolk, Va., and the acting assistant commandant, Air Force Brig. Gen. Philip H. Greasley.

Accompanying Gen. Dahl were 27 members of the staff and faculty, 121 Air Force, three Air National Guard, 15 Army, 10 Navy and six Marine Corps students.

Allied students with the Air University group include three officers from the British Royal Air Force and one from the Royal Canadian Air Force. In addition there were four civilian students from the State Department, U. S. Information Agency, National Security Agency and the Central Intelligence Agency.

Members of the Armed Forces Staff College, in addition to Adm. Nation and Gen. Greasley, include 16 faculty members, and 67 Army, 54 Air Force, 53 Navy, 11 Marine Corps and two Coast Guard students.

Civilian agency representatives include five from the National Security Agency, Central Intelligence Agency, State Department and Information Agency.

Representatives from other service schools included four faculty members from the Transportation School at Fort Eustis, Va., three from the Industrial College of the Armed Forces at Fort Lesley J. McNair, Washington, D. C., and three officers and three civilians from the Army Signal Training Center, Fort Monmouth, N. J.

The Women's Army Corps School at Fort McClellan, Ala., sent 12 staff and faculty members, two officer from the Republic of Korea, 17 WAC officers and six WAC officer candidates.

Tattoo

back approximately 300 years to a simple custom of sending a drummer through a village at 9:30 p.m. to sound a call for British soldiers to return to their billets.

At the sound of the drums, innkeepers in the "Low Countries" where the British Army campaigned around 1690, gave the order "Doe den tap toe," indicating that the taps should be turned off for the night.

A drummer's call to troops at night came to be called "Toptoe" and later "Tattoo."

In the course of time a flute player accompanied the drummer as he sounded "Tattoo." Later whole corps of drums, flutes or pipes and eventually bands made the routine call to billets a source of entertainment for the garrison.

Since World War II, the Grand Military Searchlight Tattoo has become an established custom.

The Columbus Chapter of the Military Order of World Wars will sponsor the two Searchlight Tattoo ceremonies. Lt. Col. (Ret.) Louis T. Kunze is commander of the local chapter.

Brig. Gen. (Ret.) W. G. Skelton is Armed Forces Week chairman.

Searchlight chairman is Robert M. Barr with co-chairmen, Brig. Gen. (Ret.) Marcus B. Bell and Major L. P. Johnson.

Project chairman for the Tattoo is Major George R. Henderson.

Local Divers Take Honors At Area Meet

The Fort Benning Sport Parachute Club played host to the Fort Rucker Parachute Club in a skydiving meet at Fryar Field recently with the local divers taking the bulk of the honors.

Due to low overcast, all competition jumps were made from 2,500 feet with no grading for air work or maneuvers.

In Class A competition, Sgt. Frank Norbury of the Airborne Mobility Department took first place. Placing second was Sp4 Gary L. Mason, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, while SSgt. Robert D. Hankapiller of the 2nd Infantry Division pulled down the third place slot.

Taking top honors in Class C competition was Pvt. Denny Clark of the Fort Rucker Club. First Lt. Charles Mullins of the 197 Pathfinder Team placed second with 1st Lt. Charles H. Fry of the Airborne Air Mobility Department coming in third.

The Fort Rucker club won the team event when three of the four team members dropped within the 100-foot target circle.

Liberty and Communism

Equality Under the Law

Fifth of An AFPS Series

For centuries the relation of liberty and equality has been a moot topic of political philosophy. Some reformers have insisted that democracy calls for complete equality of all men as well as for liberty. They have insisted on a "leveling" process. Yet equality in all things is often inconsistent with complete liberty.

For instance, liberty usually insists on the right to acquire property, and some men have little desire for property. The American Declaration of Independence declared that, "all men are created equal." But it is clear that Thomas Jefferson did not mean that all men are born with equal capacities. Some men, by their nature, are physically strong, and others weak. Some have greater intelligence than their fellow citizens.

In the writings of Plato and Aristotle, equality meant the equal rights of all citizens of the Greek city - states to the protection of the law and to participate in government. This was also the assumption of Locke, Montesquieu, Rousseau, and Kant.

In England, as early as the seventeenth century, equality of civic rights under law had already appeared in common law in the form of guarantees of due process of law or procedures in court conforming to the "law of the land." Equality of rights under the law was the meaning of the American Declaration of Independence (1776).

It was also emphasized as a leading principle of the French Declaration of the Rights of Man and Citizen (1789), and became one of the permanent achievements of the French Revolution. It was a feature of the Bill of Rights (the first ten Amendments) of the U. S. Constitution, adopted in 1791. And it was conspicuously emphasized in the Fourteenth Amendment (1868), which reads in part:

All persons born or naturalized in the United States and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they reside. No State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor deny to any persons within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.

Similar guarantees are found in the constitutions of all democratic nations. For instance, Article 3 of the Basic Law (Bonn Constitution, 1949) for the Federal Republic of Germany declares: "All men shall be equal before the law. Men and women shall have equal rights. None may be prejudiced or privileged because of his sex, descent, race, language, homeland and origin, faith or his religious and political opinions."

These constitutions carry out the old American proverb: "Equal rights for all, special privileges for none."

Equality under law also came to include the Greek concept of the right of all adult male citizens to participate in government, including the right to vote and to run for office.

The Fifteenth Amendment (1870) of the U.S. Constitution sought to guarantee the right of Negro men to vote. The Nineteenth Amendment (1920) removed the restriction on all women as voters.

The Surgeon Says:

Protect Yourself From the Heat

By Capt. Leonard F. Greenberg, MC

As hot weather approaches, we must be alert to the heat. This can be quite a problem in the Fort Benning area.

Today's column is devoted to the study of various types of heat injury.

Heat Cramps: These are painful cramps of the voluntary muscles that may occur following exposure to heat. They result primarily from excessive loss of salt from the body. The muscles of the extremities and of the abdominal wall are usually involved and the body temperature is normal. Heat cramps are promptly relieved by replacing the salt loss from the body.

This is best accomplished by drinking water containing one-quarter teaspoonful of table salt (or 2 salt tablets) to each quart of water. Plain salt tablets should not be ingested directly since they disintegrate within two minutes, and salt in concentrated form is not readily absorbed and may cause stomach upset.

Heat Exhaustion: This occurs as the result of excessive loss of water and salt from the body. It is characterized by profuse perspiration, paleness of the skin, confusion, dizziness, weakness and vomiting.

Occasionally, cramps of the extremities or abdominal muscles occur. Consciousness is rarely lost. The body temperature is usually slightly elevated. The skin is usually cool and there is profuse perspiration, and the pulse is rapid (160-200 per minute).

A person suffering from heat exhaustion should be moved to a cool place where he may rest. Elevation of the feet, and moving or massaging the extremities are helpful. The deficit of water and salt should be made up by the administration of large quantities of

(See SURGEON, Page 10)

The Judge Says . . .

By Capt. Robert S. Peyssakeff

This is the concluding article of a series of two.

We now come to the third type of agency — an agency created by law or statute. Such laws or statutes often express the agency so created, in the following: "The husband shall be bound to support and maintain his wife, and his consent shall be presumed to her agency in all purchases of necessaries suitable to her condition and habits of life, made for the use of herself and the family."

Note that the law presumes the agency of the wife. The law permits the agency to be rebutted by proof. The law is further qualified by other laws, which are in effect: If the wife shall be living in adultery with another man, the husband shall not be liable for her support or necessities if she shall voluntarily abandon him without sufficient provocation. Notice by the husband shall relieve him of all liability for necessaries furnished to her; if a court states a certain amount or not, amount for temporary alimony pending a bona fide separation by virtue of the said order a husband is relieved of the liability to support his wife. We should note here that a father is never relieved of supporting a minor child except when relieved by court order.

The above agency created by statute does not allow the wife to purchase chatels or service which are above the means of the husband. Luxuries are not necessaries.

In defining necessities or necessaries suitable to her condition and habits of life, we find the term to mean food, shelter, and clothing and things incidental to reasonable enjoyment thereof which are within the purchase power of the husband's income or estate. A house renting for $200 per month is not a necessity for the wife or a husband with a salary of $78.00 per month and no other separate estate. One trip a month to the beauty parlor may be a necessity suitable to the wife's condition and habits of life, but once a week would not be.

It was stated that the presumption of agency could be rebutted. The husband is not liable for rent simply because it constitutes a necessity of life, where it appears that the wife expressly contracted with the landlord to pay rent for the dwelling abode of the family. If the credit is extended to the wife solely and with no intent to hold the husband liable, the husband cannot be held liable for the debt. Further, if the seller has knowledge that the husband has furnished ample allowance to the wife for her needs as is often the case of soldiers' wives (merchantile establishments on and around military installations generally have knowledge of the Class Q allotment) the husband cannot be held liable for debt created by furnishing the necessaries.

The chattels of service purchased by the wife must be used by the wife and family. A purchase of a hat to give to a friend does not bind the husband.

Unless the husband has made the wife his express or implied agent to make or create the debt, he will not be liable for that debt, providing that the debt was not created for necessities suitable to the wife's condition and habits of life, made for the use of herself and the family and were not contracted or expressly with the wife and the seller did not have the knowledge of an ample allowance furnished the wife for necessities.

Armed Forces Day '62 A Report to the People

For still another year the slogan for Armed Forces Day is "Power for Peace"—a slogan almost as old as the day itself. It would be hard indeed to find another phrase that so simply and clearly sums up the aim of our national defense effort. And, as President Kennedy has said, this year "there is a more certain unity of effort among the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps than ever before in our history."

We in the service know it is a unity of free men working together to maintain a great military machine and protect a way of life that is the best the world has ever known. It is not a machine to be used to coerce, to bully, to threaten. It is not made up of men whose behavior and thinking have been ruthlessly regimented and controlled for more than 40 years. It is a machine of individuals banded together by the precious bond of patriotism.

From May 12 to 20, at home and overseas, we will be hosts to our fellow Americans and our friends abroad. They will see us in action, in readiness, strong and confident. We don't brag and we don't strut — we don't have to. We know that there is fact in our Commander-in-Chief's assertion that "Today Americans everywhere can view with pride the performance and preparedness of their Armed Forces." And we who wear our country's uniform would be less than human not to take pride in his words.

'Singin' in the Rain'

BY CHAPLAIN (MAJOR) RUSSELL K. LEE

While driving leisurely down the road recently during a shower, my thoughts turned to the song, "Singin' in the Rain".

Then I remembered times when my thoughts had not turned to singing while driving along that road—times when I was hurrying along to work in the rush hour and I had become impatient when the traffic did not move to suit me.

But my becoming impatient had not helped the situation nor had it improved my disposition. I began to see that the philosophy back of "Singin' in the Rain" can be applied to many situations in life, that when things do not go to suit us we can still keep our chin up.

Even in times of great trial men of faith have found inspiration to carry on, for they have learned the wisdom of turning like the sacred writer of old to God their maker "who giveth songs in the night."

These Women Admit Their Age— As A U.S. Army Corps, That Is

Fort Benning's Wac's will celebrate the 20th anniversary of the corps this year with an open house in the WAC Company area Monday from 9:30 to 11 a.m.

All former Wac's who are now living in the Columbus area are invited to attend.

Even before the outbreak of World War II, farseeing national leaders recognized that world conflict would create a serious man-power shortage and necessitate the employment of women in jobs previously performed only by men.

Shortly before the attack on Pearl Harbor, legislation to create a women's Army was introduced in Congress, and on May 15, 1942, the Rogers Bill was approved by the Senate.

When signed by the president, this bill became Public Law 544, an act to establish a Women's Auxiliary Army Corps for service with the Army.

In March, 1943, less than a year after the corps was established, 146 Wac's from Fort Des Moines, Iowa, arrived at Fort Benning. The first unit was named the 43rd WAAC Post Headquarters.

A second unit arrived a month later and the 103 women were organized into the 84th WAAC Unit, which was assigned to The Infantry School and quartered in the Harmony Church area. Both units were welcomed by male units with many social invitations.

In May, 1943, on the first anniversary of the WAAC, 2,000 post troops passed in review for 300 members of the two companies. The corps was then 60,000 strong.

Later the 43rd was divided into complements, A' post unit, the 772nd Post Headquarters Company, was assigned to Lawson Field.

WACS Given New Title

The first major change in the corps came on July 1, 1943, when the official title was changed to its present form, the Women's Army Corps (WAC), and made an integral part of the Army two days later.

There was a celebration on the post. Waac's were discharged and on August 5, sworn into the Women's Army Corps en masse. The commanding general of the post presented 100 WAAC ribbons to members of the old organization at a review soon after.

According to a written history of the post companies, the Wac's received many letters of appreciation in 1943 and 1944 for visiting hospital patients, 100 per cent participation in donating blood and in bond drives (the average monthly pay was then only $50).

Although non - combatant, the primary mission of the corps is the same as the other components of the Army — to assist in the defense of the U.S.

While most Wac's are assigned in clerical positions, seven of the 10 occupational fields in the Army are open to WAC enlisted personnel and eight to officers.

Women Have Unusual Jobs

Some of the Wac's on post have unusual jobs. One of these is Pfc Sandra L. Stewart, who works in The Infantry Center's Signal Office.

Besides her job in the Signal Office, that of processing messages and operating a teletype machine, the 21 year-old Wac remains active in several outside activities.

Pfc M. D. CROWE; ARMY ILLUSTRATOR
She Works At Editorial Pictorial Office

During the Third Army Basketball Tournament held here this year, she played guard for the detachment team.

She also competed with The Infantry Center Troop Command Pistol Team in the .22 and .45 caliber events in the tournament at the post this year.

Pfc Stewart, who has been at the post since October, 1961, is preparing herself for the WAC Officer Candidate School at Fort McClellan, by taking a pre - commission correspondence course.

Orders for overseas duty in Europe have been received by the Wac who joined the Army because of educational and travel opportunities.

Artist

Another Wac who is making the most of her time in the service is Pfc Myrtle D. Crowe, an illustrator in The Infantry School's Editorial Pictorial Office.

After graduating from Wicomico High School in Salisbury, Maryland, she studied commercial art at William and Mary College in Richmond, Va.

The 22 year-old once received a letter of commendation for making an outstanding series of illustration slides for secret briefings at the post.

Pfc Crowe has applied for a direct commission as a second lieutenant in the Army.

She also played basketball with the detachment team this year.

Photographer

Many of Fort Benning's important events are photographed by a Wac, she is SSgt Betty J. Farmer, of The Infantry Center's Signal Photo Lab.

Arriving here from Fort Bragg in April, 1961, this is her second tour of duty at the post.

Sgt. Farmer has been quite active in two organizations, the Federation of Business and Professional Women's Club, and Pilots International.

Asked to join the Business Women's Club in November, 1958, she served as the club's state publicity chairman for nearly two years, photographing and reporting all important events.

She was instrumental in the October, 1960, organization of the Fayatteville, N. C. chapter of the Pilots Club, and served as its first vice president until she left to assume her duties here.

For her outstanding service in photographing an aircraft rescue mission during hurricane "Flossie" on September 25, 1956, Sgt. Farmer received an Army Certificate of Appreciation. She was stationed in the Office of Information, XVIII Airborne Corps at that time.

Besides these club activities, she manages to golf at least once each week and listen to her extensive collection of classical records. Sgt. Farmer was women's champion in the Fort Benning Golf Club last year.

Special Training

Two Wac's participated in a special training exercise in March, 1962, the purpose of which was to test the effectiveness of the Military Police against female dope smugglers.

The women are Sp5 Earlene Surles and Pfc Margaret Reilly, both of the WAC Company.

Sp5 Surles, who graduated from South Rowland High School in June, 1959, entered the Army in September, 1959, and attended the Army Medical School at Fort Sam Houston. She came to Fort Benning where she is now a nurse in the recovery ward in Martin Army Hospital.

The 24 year-old Pfc Reilly attended the Dental Technician School at Fort Sam Houston, and is now in the Dental Clinic working as a technician.

First Sergeant

The WAC Detachment first sergeant is Mabel I. L. Stephen. She is in her second tour on post. The first was in 1946, when she was a student in a clerk-typist course.

Since that time, Sgt. Stephen has been stationed in countries in both Europe and Asia. Her latest overseas assignment was in Orleans, France, where she was chief clerk of an Inspector General section, Third Logistical Command.

The Wac, who assumed her position here at Fort Benning last month, is the wife of MSgt Max Stephen, also stationed at the post, in The Infantry Center's G-3 Troop Requirement Division.

The women in today's Army well-represent the men they stand behind.

The Wac has a colorful and exciting past to look back on and a challenging future to look forward to.

Mrs. Evers T'Mistress Council Level Winner

MRS. EVERS

Mrs. Richard E. Evers, junior past president of the Fort Benning - Columbus Toastmistress Club, was selected first place winner from nine participants in the International Toastmistress Speech Contest at council level held April 28 at the Whitley Hotel in Montgomery.

Miss Vivian Griffith of the Air University Club was runner-up.

On May 19 Mrs. Evers will compete in the Southeast Regional Conference ITC Speech Contest. Winners of the regional contests will participate at the International Convention to be held in San Antonio, Texas, in July.

Mrs. Evers was given three impersonal subjects from which to base her speech only 48 hours before the actual contest. She selected "Sand in My Shoes" and presented a travelog or word picture of the days she spent in Italy in the state of Tuscany several years ago.

Mrs. Evers is one of the founders of the Fort Benning-Columbus Toastmistress Club, junior past president of the club and served as an Eastern debate champion on her college debating team at Penn State.

A highlight of the council meeting was the selection of Mrs. Evers as "Woman of the Hour" in Montgomery. This honor was made possible through an official act of the mayor of Montgomery by his proclaiming the day as Toastmistress Day which will be observed annually.

Additional honors bestowed on the local Toastmistress Club was the selection of Mrs. John Passerella as vice chairman of Council 1 of ITC.

Mrs. Passarella serves locally as club representative chairman of the Community Service and Public Relations Committee and is assisting Charles Thomas, chairmen of the Girl Scout Fund Raising Campaign, as coordinator for members of the Toastmistress Club to speak to various clubs and organizations on behalf of the Girl Scouts during the drive.

Members of the local club attending the council meeting were Mrs. Abraham Muscari, Mrs. Fred Koerber, Miss Avis Gordee, Mrs. William D. McMonagle, Miss Mae Johnson, Mrs. Royce Hunt and Mrs. C. B. Ingram.

Mrs. Ingram served as alternate club representative at the council meeting. Miss Johnson served in a workshop which held a panel on "Public Relations."

Anyone interested in Toastmistress may contact Mrs. William Collins, president, at FA 4-1641.

DUSA Officers Are Elected At May Meet

The monthly luncheon of the Daughters of the U. S. Army was held May 1 on the East Porch of the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Guests were Mrs. James P. Leight, Mrs. Charles F. Muller, Mrs. Howard H. Rice and Mrs. Joses C. Jordan, Jr.

New members introduced were Mrs. Robert R. Jackemeyer and Mrs. Charles P. Saint.

Annual elections were held. Elected were Mrs. Michael J. Lally, Jr., president; Mrs. George M. Wallace, vice president; Mrs. Bryan Evans, Jr., secretary, and Mrs. Peter C. Withers, treasurer.

CTC Ladies Honored at May Day Luncheon

The wives of the 39th Battalion were hostesses at a May Day luncheon given at the Main Officers Open Mess recently for the ladies of the Center Troop Command.

Bernie Brouillette, a local businessman, gave a hair styling demonstration and conducted a question and answer period. His models were Mrs. Nicholas Antonazzo and Mrs. Billy Storry.

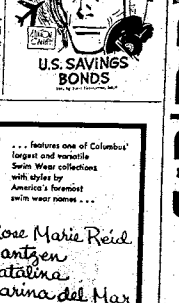
Door prizes were won by Mr Raymond Schrump, Mrs. Joseph Cetko, Mrs. Louis Marticle, Mrs. Wilbur Portee, Mrs. George Wright and Mrs. Ben Harrell.

Guests for the event were Mrs. Ben Harrell and Mrs. John Kelly. Goodbyes were said to Mrs. Charles Carney and Mrs. Louis Buckner, whose husbands are leaving CTC. Mrs. William E. Porter and Mrs. Raymond Schrump were introduced as new members.

To carry out the May Day theme, the tables were centered with small baskets of May flowers. These were also won as prizes by one lady from each table.

Cadre Ladies' Monthly Coffee Held at Home of Mrs. Joseph

Wives of the cadre of the 2nd Battalion, Student Brigade, held their monthly coffee May 2 at the home of Mrs. Vern L. Joseph on Rainbow Ave.



Mrs. Donald H. Harris was cadre co-hostess.

A welcome was extended to Mrs. Charles E. Purser and Mrs. Ernest Gunn, newcomers to the battalion.

A business meeting was conducted by Mrs. Joseph. The offices of treasurer and hospitality and publicity chairmen were filled by Mrs. James E. Bristol, Mrs. Roy L. Gilbert and Mrs. Purser, respectively.

At the conclusion of the business, Lt. Col. Joseph, commander of the 2nd Battalion, spoke on the purpose and type of demonstrations to be held by the Army for Joint Civilian Orientation Conference 32.

Cookies, coffee and iced tea were served.

ARMED FORCES DAY MESSAGE - 1962

TO ALL FORT BENNING PERSONNEL

Saturday, the nineteenth of May, has been set aside by Presidential Proclamation to increase public understanding of the role of the Armed Forces as a defensive shield in partnership with our allies of the Free World. It is a day on which the citizens of our great nation are given an opportunity to see for themselves that "Power for Peace" is not an idle slogan, but a tangible evidence that our men and women in uniform, backed up by a modern arsenal of weapons, ships and planes, will ever be alert to the need for the preservation of our freedoms.

Power for Peace stems from the dedicated efforts of the entire American people, whose understanding and support contribute so immeasurably to the strength of our defense. Armed Forces Day 1962 provides us an appropriate occasion to show the American people that their confidence in the men and women of the Armed Forces is truly deserved.

In order to further their understanding and support, we at Fort Benning are displaying our military skills and equipment for the citizens of our neighboring communities. I urge all members of this Command to participate in this joint observance with our civilian neighbors, and I call upon you to join me in rededicating our efforts to merit the profound trust which the American citizen has bestowed upon us.

Management Plan Under Development

The Infantry Center Management Improvement Plan for fiscal year 1962 is now in its development stage.

First steps in the program call for section chiefs and commanders of non-tactical units to review all activities within their areas of responsibility. The object is to search out areas which can be improved.

Military and civilian supervisory personnel are called upon to analyze their operations. Through this action it is hoped that increased effectiveness, efficiency or economy will result.

The overall objective of this review of operations is to find and institute ways of getting the job done faster, cheaper and better.

Improvements based on the studies will be made during FY 1963, giving priority to those areas promising greatest benefits.

Past studies have aided greatly in saving many tax dollars. Results through the third quarter of the present fiscal year, FY 1962, show that about 400 improvements have been made at a savings of over one million dollars.

In addition, highly favorable results have come from the Work Simplification training. Supervisory and key personnel completing this training were responsible for 97 improvements that have saved an estimated $78,000.

Coordinating and monitoring the plan for FY 1963 is Col. John Bisbing, comptroller.

'B' Selected Honor Battery Of the Month

The 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade, has named Battery B, commanded by Capt. Jack H. Percival, Honor Battery for the month of April.

The unit amassed a total of 144.6 points in 20 areas of competition to beat Battery B, 29th Artillery, by six-tenths of one point. Battery B, 29th Artillery, is commanded by 1st Lt. Helmut A. S. Roeder. Headquarters Battery, commanded by Capt. Carol D. Davis, placed third with 133.4 points.

Battery B also has a 114 point lead in cumulative total points to date. The battery having the greatest number of points each year is awarded a permanent Honor Battery Plaque at Organization Day festivities on June 1. This year will be the unit's 45th anniversary and second annual Honor Battery award.

Alaska Firers Named

Major Army Command Shooters Arrive for Army Championships

Rifle and pistol shooters from major Army commands throughout the world have started converging on Fort Benning for the "All-Army" shoot-off June 7 to 15.

First to arrive from overseas commands were six shooters from the Caribbean area, in April. They were joined last week by the remainder of the USARCARIB team.

Members of the Army Alaska teams departed from their stations Monday and arrived here last Tuesday. The USARAL shooters, who twice broke the existing All-Army team record in practice under Alaskan firing conditions, expect to make an excellent showing next month, according to Major Vernon L. Underwood, officer-in-charge.

Last year, the USARAL team placed second in All - Army team competition, and had shooters place in good standing in the National Matches at Camp Perry, Ohio.

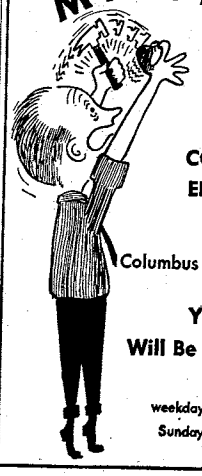
USARAL team members are: rifle — Capt. Billy R. Brown, 1st Howitzer Battalion, 37th Artillery; MSgts Marvin B. Fitzpatrick, Harold W. Hankins, Lawrence J. LaCau and Peter A. Kuznar, all of the USARAL Advanced Marksmanship Unit; Sfc Ira V. Barnhart, AMU; Sfc Leonard Harman, AMU; Sfc Orville L. Garrett, Company D, 40th Armor; Moses Rodriques, 1st Battle Group, 23rd Infantry; Sfc James C. Walters, 37th Artillery; Sgt. Everett A. O'Shields, AMU; and Sp5 Billy R. Jones, 56th Engineer Company, all from Fort Richardson.

Also, from Fort Wainwright, 1st Lt. Charles L. Byrd, Headquarters, Yukon Command; Pfc Richard K. Voiles, Headquarters Company, Yukon Command; and the following men from the 1st Battle Group, 9th Infantry: Sfc Dean M. Joiness, SSgt Odell Lewis, Sp4 Howard W. Braditke and Pfc Harry C. Tomsick.

On the USARAL pistol team are (from AMU) SSgt Maurice E. Belisle, Sgt. Allen H. Archer, Sgt. Meriweather Jones, Sgt. Edward M. Szczepanski; Sfc Eddie D. Giles, USARAL Headquarters Command; Sgt. Holis T. Howard, 1st Battle Group, 23rd Infantry; Sp4 William E. Reynolds, Jr., 23rd Infantry; Sp4 James L. Hoppes, Fort Richardson Military Police Company; and Sp4 Peter E. Desideri, Army Garrison at Fort Greely.

Bikes Claim More Lives Than Planes

Bicycles take more lives each year than domestic airline crashes, according to The U.S. Junior Chamber of Commerce. An average of 450 children die annually in bicycle accidents. Plane crashes in the U.S. took 360 lives last year. The Junior Chamber of Commerce suggests reflective tape on bicycles for night-time safety.



Two Finish Course In Administration

Capt. John V. Lamp, adjutant, and Sgt. Robert E. Holdaway, chief of the Classification and Assignment Section, 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade, have successfully completed the five-week Personnel Administration Course at the post Administrative Staff School.

LANDING OPERATIONS . . . After observing a demonstration by an Amphibious Operations Team from Fort Eustis, Va., the men of Company E, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade practice simulated landing operations from a 35-foot tower. They are lowering a 3.5-inch rocket launcher.

Special Ranger Course Now Under Construction

By Spt Ron Chrisco

Construction work began recently on an all-new 26-acre Combat Conditioning Course for the Ranger Department of The Infantry School. The Course will be located on Dixie road adjacent to Sightseeing Field and will be built by Company A, 489th Engineer Battalion, 151st Engineer Group.

First Lt. Troy D. Laha, executive officer of Company A, and project officer for the Course, said it will be the only one of its kind on the post.

Plans for the course call for sixteen different types of training obstacles. Among the larger ones to be included are a 30-foot high confidence climb, a horizontal ladder 22 feet long and eight lanes wide, a 45-foot timber trestle bridge, a quarter-mile cinder track for running, and a hand-to-hand combat pit 200' in diameter and four feet deep.

The Engineers will also construct a half-mile of road within the course for transportation of troops and maintenance crews between training areas, plus an orientation area with bleachers and an instructor's area. Also included in the plans is a parking lot adjacent to the course large enough to accommodate 16, 35-passenger buses.

Work on the project got underway early in April when a 12-man surveying crew began laying the course out. Following that, work crews and heavy equipment under the direction of Sfc Warren H. Pittman, NCOIC for the project, moved in and began clearing stumps and undergrowth from the site.

The only portion of the course to be constructed by any unit other than Company A is a cargo net mock tower, which has already been completed by Company C. The tower will be used to simulate the unloading of men from a troop ship into landing crafts.

Completion date for the project is set for May 27, Lt. Laha stated.

AIR FORCE GROWS

In a little over half a century, the Air Force has evolved from a minor experimental activity of the Army Signal Corps to one of the three Armed Services of the nation.

Mrs. Buckner Will Direct Choir Concert

The Infantry Center Protestant Chapel Choir will present an annual spring concert at the 9:30 and 11 a.m. services May 20.

Directing the choir will be Mrs. David Buckner, with Mrs. Robert Whitehead at the organ.

Theme of the concert will be "The Christian Soldier."

The choir will sing "God Is a Spirit" by Oncley, "The Last Words of David" by Thompson, "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God" by Mueller, "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" by Wilhousky, "Give Me Your Tired, Your Poor" by Waring, and "Onward Christian Soldiers" by Harry Simeone.

Mrs. Buckner has directed the chapel choir for the past three years. She has appeared in concerts on post and in Columbus. She was soprano soloist in the post's 1958 and 1961 presentations of Handel's "The Messiah" and directed the 1961 production.

Mrs. Buckner is the wife of Capt. Buckner, a student in an officer career course at The Infantry School. Capt. and Mrs. Buckner will depart the post in July for an assignment in Europe.

Mrs. Whitehead is the wife of 1st Lt. Whitehead, a member of the 1st Infantry Brigade. She is a private piano teacher on the post.

Capt. Dietrich Assigned to TIC Dental Section

Capt. Fred Walter Dietrich, Jr. has been assigned as a dentist at Dispensary A, The Infantry Center Dental Section.

Capt. Dietrich was graduated from Camden Ark. High School. He attended Hendrix College in Conway, Ark., three years before entering the University of Tennessee College of Dentistry in Memphis.

Upon graduation from dental school in March, 1961, he served as an intern at Kennedy Veterans Hospital in Memphis until April, 1962.

Capt. Dietrich was commissioned in December, 1961, and entered the active service April 10, 1962.

POTOMAC COMMANDER

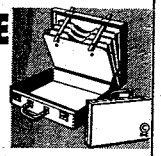
Major General Joseph Hooker replaced Burnside as the Commander of the Army of the Potomac, January 25, 1863.

Major Anderson Assigned to G-4 Section at TIC

Major George Anderson has been assigned to the G-4 Section of The Infantry Center as assistant installations officer.

He entered the Army in July, 1942, as an enlisted man. In November, 1944, he received a battlefield commission while serving with the 88th Infantry Division in Italy.

After completing 20 years of military service in July, Major Anderson will retire from the Army. He and his wife, Juanita, will make their home in Columbus.



Though Now Retired, 'Sgt. 22-5' To Continue Answering Queries

Even though MSgt Clifton G. Hobbs retired April 30 at Fort Hood, Texas, those who have relied on the Army's "Number 1 Drill Master" for years to set them straight on details of FM 22-5 will still be able to reach him, for he will be right back here at Fort Benning.

As a civilian, the veteran of more than 20 years service will receive and answer all mail dealing with dismounted drill and interior guard duty addressed to him at P.O. Box 1763, Fort Benning.

Until he was assigned to Fort Hood as first sergeant, Headquarters Company, III Corps (STRAC), Sgt Hobbs served here in The Student Brigade, where he became known as the foremost expert on his favorite subjects. He has been called the "man who wrote 22-5," and "Sgt. 22-5."

COMMANDING GENERAL'S MESSAGE: . . . A letter from Major General Charles H. Chase, 2nd Infantry Division commanding general, to the officers and men of this command on the occasion of Armed Forces Week, May 13-19, is superimposed upon a picture taken during the recent reinforced rifle company in defense demonstration for the Army phase of the Joint Civilian Orientation Conference. Silhouetted at bottom right are men of the division's 38th Infantry who, along with men of other division units, helped provide firepower for the demonstration. (See story page 12)

Armed Forces Week

Div Units Parade For Active Week

A Massing of the Colors and Searchlight Tattoo ceremony and a parade through downtown Columbus are key items on the 2nd Division's agenda during Armed Forces Week observances.

Major General Charles H. Chase, commanding general, will be the principal speaker at the ceremony at the Columbus Municipal Auditorium, to be held at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

Men and equipment from three 2nd Division battle groups, Division Artillery, Division Trains and 7th Cavalry will take part in the mammoth Armed Forces Day parade, which gets underway at 4 p.m. next Friday. Commander-of-Troops for the parade will be Colonel Louis A. Kumzig Jr., 23rd Infantry commander.

Battle groups taking part are the 1st Infantry, 23rd Infantry and 38th Infantry, each furnishing approximately 265 officers and men. They will be joined by a composite Division Artillery group, Division Trains and mounted elements of the 7th Cavalry.

During Armed Forces Week, exhibits sponsored by the division will be on display in windows of some 14 downtown business establishments.

For the Massing of the Colors and Searchlight Tattoo Ceremony, some 875 seats for division personnel and dependents will be reserved at Municipal Auditorium. These will be found in sections N through R-1.

Out-of-town commitments to neighboring states and military installations have also been completed, according to Captain John L. Padgett, project officer.

The 2nd Division Band will be in Miami, Fla., Saturday, May 19, to lead an Armed Forces Day Parade and take part in a concert at Miami's Municipal Auditorium. The band is conducted by Warrant Officer Darrell Blumm.

Division aircraft are scheduled to participate in Armed Forces Week observances at Dobbins Air Force Base, Ga., Rome, Ga., Fort Jackson, S.C., and Raleigh, North Carolina.

In addition, an observance at Turner Air Force Base, Albany, Ga., will include an Infantry company and Artillery units from the division. A display consisting of an "Honest John" rocket, SS-10 anti-tank missile, 105 millimeter howitzer, and wrecker will be seen in Atlanta at the Governmental Employes Exchange and Lenox Square shopping center. The same display will appear at Dobbins.

The band also will take part in the ROTC field day at Fort Valley (Ga.) State College today.

Units Help Show Infantry Prowess

Members of 10 units of the 2nd Division took part this week in the Joint Civilian Orientation Conference at Fort Benning, giving onlookers a glimpse at the modern Army in action.

Men of the "Indianhead" Division participated in two major demonstrations, a reenforced rifle company in the defense with assistance from all weapons organic to such a unit and an airmobility assault, where heavy equipment and men were brought in by air in a lightning-fast maneuver.

The 38th Infantry supplied two rifle platoons, a weapons platoon, a mortar platoon and a rifle squad for use in the two demonstrations. The 69th Armor had a total of nine tanks roaring through the mock combat situations.

The 2nd Engineer Battalion contributed an atomic simulator team and made available 56 other enlisted men with demolitions permits who staged explosives demonstrations.

Not to be outdone in the destructions department, Division Artillery supplied five howitzer batteries and two rocket launchers which were used in both demonstrations.

Swooping overhead during the airmobility demonstration were helicopters, fixed wing craft and a surveillance drone from the 2nd Aviation Company. Meanwhile, land movements were aided by armored personnel carriers from the 13th Transportation Battalion and the 7th Cavalry.

Helping with communications for the airmobility exercise were men and radios from the 122nd Signal Battalion. The 122nd also had a complete field photo processing laboratory on hand.

Assisting in the reenforced rifle company in the defense demonstration were mortar crews from the 9th Infantry and the 23rd Infantry.

Maj. Johnson Named New AC of S, G-4

Major Charles M. Johnson has been named Assistant Chief of Staff, G-4, for the 2nd Infantry Division.

Major Johnson assumed the duties of G-4 effective May 1, succeeding Lieutenant Colonel James C. Larsen. Colonel Larsen is currently serving as Deputy Battle Group Commander, 2nd Battle Group, 1st Infantry.

Major Johnson was first assigned to the 2nd Division in October, 1961, and served as Materiel Officer, 702nd Ordnance Battalion, until he was assigned to the G-4 section March 23, 1962.

Served in WW II

Major Johnson served as a platoon sergeant in a combat engineer battalion during World War II, and following his discharge in 1944, attended the University of Cincinnati.

Upon graduation, Major Johnson received a direct commission as a Regular Army officer.

Prior to his assignment to the 2nd Division, Major Johnson served two years as Chief, Inspection Division, U. S. Army Ordnance Procurement District, San Francisco, California.

Attended Schools

Major Johnson has attended several service schools during his career, including the General Ground School, Armor Officers Basic Course, Ordnance Officers Basic Course, and Ordnance Officers Advanced Course. He received a master's degree in public and business administration from the University of Syracuse in 1956, under the Army Comptroller's Program.

Major Johnson resides with his wife, Sally Ann, and two sons, Daniel, 13, and Timothy, 11, at 308-D Lumpkin Road.

Maj. Richard Stewart

Maj. Stewart Assigned XO At 87th Inf.

By 87th Inf PIO

Recently assigned to the 87th Infantry as executive officer is Major Richard O. Stewart, who comes to the 87th after a two year tour as the assistant Army Attache with the U. S. Embassy in Seoul, Korea.

A graduate of the Command and General Staff College, the Infantry Advanced Officer's Course and the Strategic Intelligence School, Major Stewart's service record dates back to 1942.

Commissioned at Fort Benning in 1944, he worked in the field of photo interpretation during World War II with the 14th Armored Division in Europe. Following a three year tour with the 3rd and 18th Infantry in Berlin, he was reassigned as an intelligence officer with the Department of the Army. From 1953-56 he was with 8th U. S. Army Headquarters intelligence in the Far East.

Div. Band Performs At Ft. Valley, JCOC

The 2nd Infantry Division band left today by bus for the Fort Valley (Ga.) State College's sixth annual Military Science Field Day after having participated this past week in the Joint Civilian Orientation Conference on post.

The 31-member band, directed by Warrant Officer Darrel G. Blum, and the United States Army Infantry Center Band added a touch of music to the JCOC demonstrations where representatives of business, cultural, professional, military and governmental leaders observed the Army's various methods of firepower and maneuverability. The "Second to None" musicians performed at the special Warfare Presentation and two demonstrations on Tuesday and provided music on Wednesday at Victory Lodge for the distinguished guests.

Army Ordnance Celebrates Its 186th Anniversary

Monday marks the 186th anniversary of the founding of the Army Ordnance Corps.

As early as 1775, a definite need for a method of procurement was seen through the eyes of the Continental Congress for obtaining weapons and munitions. Consequently, during that year a committee composed of nine members of Congress was appointed and charged with that mission. This group was known as the Secret Committee.

War, Ordnance Board

In 1778, the Ordnance Department, as it was then known, was assigned two Engineer and two Artillery officers to function under the Commander in Chief as the Board of War and Ordnance. This board was charged with the supply and maintenance of ordnance supplies in camps and ordnance facilities.

The procurement of weapons and munitions was much simpler during the early days of the Ordnance Department than it is today. Two basic methods were used, these being either to purchase from friendly countries or to capture enemy material on the high seas.

As the size of the Continental Army grew, it became apparent that these two methods were not sufficient to meet the growing demands, and it was during this period that manufacturing facilities were constructed in this country. It was in 1777 that Springfield Armory was established and charged with both the manufacture and storage of small arms. This facility is still in existence today. The "Old Shot Tower" in Baltimore, Maryland is also still standing as a monument to the Ordnance Corps.

New Responsibilities

From the date of it's formal organization in 1812, the Ordnance Department grew rapidly in both strength and assigned mission, taking on new and more complex responsibilities, until in August 1950, when the Ordnance Department was formally redesignated as the Army Ordnance Corps, it had assumed responsibilities for the design, procurement, maintenance, and distribution of weapons, motor transport, and combat vehicles.

Today, with well over one hundred installations and activities spread across the nation, the Ordnance Corps has trained personnel, many of whom have been trained through the Ordnance Schools at Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Maryland, and Redstone Arsenal, Alabama, maintaining and repairing equipment ranging in size from the binoculars used by a Field Artillery Forward Observer to the 280 millimeter cannon and Redstone Missile.

The "Flaming Bomb," the insignia of the Ordnance Corps, is the oldest insignia in the United States Army and came into being after the war of 1812 as a result of the combining of the Artillery and Ordnance branches. When these two branches were divided in 1834, the insignia was retained by Ordnance.

"Mend the Broken Sword"

The 2nd Infantry Division has one battalion of personnel such as this in it's ranks; the 702nd Ordnance Battalion, with its motto, "Mend the Broken Sword."

Now composed of Headquarters and Company B "Main Support," and Company "A" its forward support unit, the 702nd Ordnance Light Maintenance Company, as it was originally known, was formed on September 14, 1942, for the purpose of furnishing the 2nd Infantry Division with third echelon maintenance and supply, and became the 702nd Ordnance Battalion on February 1, 1953 in Korea, with concurrent activation of Companies A and B.

Company A, the forward support unit, has maintenance platoons attached to and working in the Infantry battle group motor pools. During wartime conditions, the men of Company A might, upon a minutes notice, be required to drop their mechanics tools and assume the role of Infantrymen in order to defend their positions. Even though operating under combat field conditions, the men of Company A are capable of changing engines, transmissions, and other major component parts of vehicles under the most primitive conditions.

Also a not-too-be-forgotten part of Company A is the armament and instrument shop. This section performs needed third echelon repairs to rifles, machine guns, field artillery, and fire control instruments while operating in the field. This unit has actually performed these tasks while participating in the recent maneuver at Fort McClellan, Alabama, and at the Second Division's most recent action, Exercise SENECA SPEAR at Fort Stewart, Georgia.

The "other half" of the 702nd Ordnance, Headquarters and Company B, while also operating in the field, is a more stable type of unit. This company operates the "main support" half of the battalion. In addition to operating a third echelon vehicle repair shop, Company B also operates a welding shop, canvas repair shop and a mobile machine shop. All of these sections are capable of repairing broken and worn parts, and when necessary, can manufacture new parts in order to get the job done.

For Parts Supply

Another very necessary part of Ordnance, that of parts supply, is performed by the technical supply section of Company B. This section, in addition to supplying all the parts needed by the Ordnance Battalion, also supplies the remainder of the 2nd Division with repair parts, and when the situation warrants it, can issue complete new vehicles. Company B also participated in Exercise SENECA SPEAR at Fort Stewart, Georgia.

Commanding Company A is Captain John Terrill, Captain Richard W. Walpole is at the helm of Company B.

The 702nd Ordnance Battalion has a rich and envious history for a unit only twenty years old. Unit colors carry fifteen campaign streamers for its participations, five from World War II, and ten for Korea. In addition to the campaign streamers, this unit has been decorated 11 times, including a Distinguished Unit Citation and four Meritorious Unit Emblems.

702nd Commander Doubles as Division Ordnance Officer

ORDNANCE CO
Lt. Col. W. Myers

The Commanding Officer of the 702nd Ordnance Battalion is Lieutenant Colonel Woodrow H. Myers, who also serves in the capacity of Division Ordnance Officer. From Munday, Texas, Colonel Myers entered the Army in May, 1942, and during his career, has served a total of 91 months overseas. No newcomer to Fort Benning, Colonel Myers commanded an Ordnance Company here in 1942 which he took to the Philippine Islands, and his most recent assignment, prior to assuming command of the 702nd Ordnance Battalion on September 11, 1961, was three years with the Infantry Board here at Fort Benning. Colonel Myers holds a bachelor of science degree from Texas A&M College.

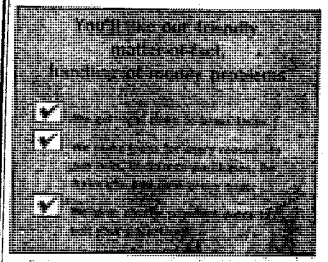
69th Welcomes Four Lieutenants

Four new officers recently were assigned to the 69th Armor. They are Lieutenants Robert I. Smith, Homer L. Rudisail, Eugene G. Gibson and Leonard M. Jones.

Lieutenant Smith completed a tour of duty in Germany before being assigned to the division's armor battalion. Lieutenant Smith is assigned to Headquarters and Headquarters Company.



Lieutenants Rudisail and Gibson are both natives of Greer, South Carolina, and graduates of Clemson College. Lieutenant Rudisail is assigned to Company C and Lieutenant Gibson is assigned to Company A.

Lieutenant Jones is a graduate of the A&T College of North Carolina.

Signal Graduates Ten New Projectionists

Graduation ceremonies were held today for ten men attending the 2nd Infantry Division Projectionist School operated by the 122nd Signal Battalion.

During the 40 hour block of instruction, the class received instruction in the operation and maintenance of projectors and the handling of motion picture screens.

The class studied and became familiar with the 35 millimeter, 16 milimeter, master viewgraph and the lantern slide projector. Following instruction on each projector, a practical exercise was held to insure understanding of all elements of operation.

In addition to the instruction on the operation of projectors, the class was shown the operation of the Division Film Exchange and the procedure for requisitioning films.

Men receiving projectionists' licenses today were: Specialist Four Hilton L. Beasley, 1st Infantry, Specialist Four Famicus Stephenson, 1st Infantry; Privates First Class Carlton A. Devlin, 38th Artillery, Donald R. Eady, 37th Artillery, Frank O. Johnson, 17th Artillery, Rufus Taylor, 13th Artillery, Charles W. Washington, 12th Artillery, Horace P. Beard, 1st Infantry, Ronald O. Army Relief Fund Drive Is Underway in Division

The annual Army Emergency Relief Drive has officially gotten underway at Fort Benning. Heading the 2nd Division portion of the drive is Captain Ralph C. Colley of the G-1 section.

According to Captain Colley, this year's campaign will not aim for a specific collection goal as such but will concentrate on encouraging "Indian-head" personnel to give to the AER. "We are emphasizing that the Army should take care of its own," Captain Colley said.

The AER Drive continues through August, when all contributions will be turned in.

In pointing out the value of the AER program, Captain Colley said that 914 loans and 22 grants totaling $101,477 were made by that organization last year to members of the 2nd Division.

The Army Emergency Relief Fund exists solely to assist military personnel, both officers and enlisted men, in times of financial difficulty, especially when aid from other similar organizations may be unable to render immediate assistance. Applications for AER loans and grants are made through each unit's company commander.

69th Lts. Back From Li'l Creek

Four officers of the 69th Armor returned last week from Little Creek, Virginia, where they were enrolled in an amphibious course.

Officers successfully completing the course are Lieutenant William J. Hickey, Company A, Lieutenant John M. Horvath, Company B, Lieutenant Dan C. McCall, Company C, and Lieutenant Douglas Smith, Company B.

Mrs. O'Donnell calls Sandusky, Ohio home but comes to Fort Benning from Washington, D. C. Lieutenant Colonel O'Donnell currently commands the 2nd Engineer Battalion.

The O'Donnells have four children ranging in age from eight to 14 years. When time permits, Pat's hobbies are golf, reading and swimming, as well as women's club work. Pat was the president of the Murnau Officers Wives' club in Germany, was an area hostess for the Engineer Wives' Club in Washington, D. C., and is currently on the board of the Officers Wives' Club of Fort Benning as club custodian.

Also a candidate for the office of President, is Mrs. James Kolb, known as "Inkie".

Lieutenant Colonel Kolb currently commands the 2nd Medium Tank Battalion, 69th Armor.

The Kolb's last duty station was Fort McPherson in Atlanta, where Mrs. Kolb's enthusiastic interest in Little Theater was widely known. She served as president of the Little Theater group, as well as chairman of the Gray Ladies. During the years the Kolbs spent in Germany, "Inkie" served on the board of the Bamberg Officers Wives' Club.

Div. OWC Meets At Salerno Mess

The Second Infantry Division Officers' Wives Club will hold its monthly meeting at a different time and place for this month only.

The May Election Luncheon will be held on Tuesday at the Salerno Mess, at 12:30 p.m.

All members are urged to attend and vote for the candidates of their choice. Mrs. Charles Austin, second vice president, said that any club member who is unable to attend the luncheon but wishes to vote may do so by presenting herself at Salerno Mess between 11:30 and 12:30 on the day of the luncheon. Mrs. Austin will be there to issue a ballot to any member in good standing who presents her membership card so that she may vote.

Mrs. Ralph H. Hughett, first vice president, promises a "delightful" program to consist of humorous tableaus representing the various club activities during the past year.

New officers will be announced and installed at this luncheon. Members are urged to make reservations and to attend the final luncheon of the year.

Fashion Carnival Staged by Ladies

"Summer Carnival of Fashions" was the theme of the Ladies of the Big Indianhead fashion tea held at the Sand Hill Non-Commissioned Officers' Open Mess on Thursday, May 3rd.

Centering the refreshment table was an arrangement of pink snapdragons, white and blue delphiniums, white and yellow daisies, reminiscent of an old-fashioned garden, flanked by Sheffield silver coffee and tea sets. The showing was presented in a garden setting of fresh green leaves and lilacs. Fashions ranged from novelties designed to lighten morning chores to glamorous creations devised to add allure to the gaiety of after five hours.

Honored Guests

Honored guests were Mrs. Gustav M. Bacharach, wife of the division chief of staff, Mrs. Louis A. Kunzig Jr., wife of the 23rd Infantry commander and Mrs. Stanley L. Harding, wife of the DivArty Commander.

Models, all club members, were: Mrs. Harry Butler, Mrs. Charlie Cranford, Mrs. William Cunningham, Mrs. Geo. Funyak, Mrs. Eubert Linthicum, Mrs. Basil Plumley and Mrs. James Tighe.

Tap and ballet numbers were presented by Miss Susan Butler, daughter of Master Sergeant and Mrs. Harry Butler. Background music was provided by Private Donald Barnette. Private Robert Deubel played for Miss Butler. Narrator for the showing was Mrs. Alphia Mae Whitley.

The fashion tea was under the direction of Mrs. Joseph Browning, Mrs. Kenneth O'Connor, and Mrs. Linthicum. Stage decorations were by Mrs. Pelham Breaud and Mrs. Bilbo Nowell. Mrs. Stephen J. Regan, Mrs. Lawrence W. Smith, Mrs. Browning and O'Connor poured. Mrs. Richard O. Funk and Mrs. James Talbert served.

2 Iranian Army Officers Visit 2nd Engineer Bn

By 2nd Engineer PIO

Last week the 2nd Engineer Battalion played host to two officers from the Imperial Iranian Army.

The officers, Lieutenants Mohamad Kalarestaghi and Nasratolish Nasseri, accompanied by Lieutenant Edmund J. Glabus, Company D, 1st Infantry, who acted as interpreter, met with Lieutenant Colonel Edwin T. O'Donnell, 2nd Engineer Commander, for a briefing on the functions and points of maintenance of all engineer equipment assigned to the battalion.

Upon completion of the briefing, Chief Warrant Officer Charles Fisher, 2nd Engineer Battalion Engineer Equipment Maintenance Officer, was on hand to escort the visiting dignitaries on a tour of the battalion motor pool. During their tour, the officers had an opportunity to see several items of engineer equipment in operation, to include the actual launching of the armored vehicle launched bridge.

A Cook-Out Held For Cav. Staff

Members of the 7th Cavalry Squadron and their ladies attended a cook-out at the home of Lieutenant Colonel and Mrs. Harvey Scott on Rainbow Avenue last Thursday evening.

The 7th Cavalry traditional "Fathership Award" was presented to Lieutenant Donald R. Turner. Mrs. Turner was given a silver cup for their new baby daughter. At the same time a farewell was said to the Turners who are soon to return to civilian life.

Farewell plaques with the words "To Remind You of Friends" were presented to Lieutenant and Mrs. Turner, Lieutenant and Mrs. Joseph Gross and Lieutenant Karl Sidor.

Welcomes were extended to new members of the "Garry Owen" Squadron.

'Germany' NCO Wives Club Theme

The Ladies of the Big Indianhead recently held their monthly luncheon at the Sand Hill Non-Commissioned Officers' Open Mess.

This month's theme was "Germany" and it was carried out in the table arangements, using beer steins, carved figurines and the ever-amusing whistler lamps. A typical German dinner, schnitzel, was served. Several members added authenticity by appearing in German attire.

Mrs. Walter D. Hutchko, club president, announced a nominating committee to select candidates for the coming elections.

Guests were also reminded of the new summer bowling league, which will begin soon. Information regarding bowling may be obtained by calling Mrs. Charlie Cranford, FA 4-3030.

Mrs. W. G. Bailey was presented the club's farewell gift, a silver tray.

Mrs. Robert Hawkins, Mrs. Howard Flora and Mrs. Eddie L. Dabiel assisted Mrs. Wayne Cliff, hospitality chairman, in preparing the luncheon.

87th C. O. Cooks Out For Guests

Colonel and Mrs. Ralph H. Hughett entertained at a cook-out at their home on Rainbow Avenue.

Guests present at the gathering were Lieutenant Colonel and Mrs. Raymond Rush, Major Albert R. Ives, Major and Mrs. Howard M. Steel, all members of the 87th Infantry staff. Also in attendance were Captain and Mrs. Ronald Berkey, Captain John F. Collier, Captain and Mrs. Gilbert Y. Ellis, Captain and Mrs. Edwin M. May, Captain and Mrs. Raymond E. Murphrey, Captain and Mrs. William L. Patrick, Captain and Mrs. Kenneth J. Sweeney, Captain and Mrs. James G. Gritz and Captain and Mrs. Robert V. Hubbard.

Incidental Intelligence

The Martin Army Hospital Bond Drive began simultaneously with the coffee sponsored by the Ladies of the Big Indianhead. The orchestra and the entertainment were by courtesy of the Post Special Services Unit.

Hostesses for the day were, in addition to the Chairman, Mrs. Lawrence W. Smith, the Mesdames Bilbo Nowell, Walter E. Hutchko, Eubert Linthicum, and Kenneth Hangartner.

Bridge

Mrs. James Gritz was the hostess for the ladies bridge group of the 87th Infantry recently at her home.

High honors for the afternoon went to Mrs. George Krajeck and to Mrs. Worline, a guest.

Mrs. O'Donnell Hosts Coffee For 2nd Engineer Bn. Ladies

The wives of the 2nd Engineer Battalion held their monthly Coffee on Thursday at the home of Mrs. Edwin T. O'Donnell, wife of Lieutenant Colonel O'Donnell, 2nd Engineer Battalion Commander.

Co-hostess with Mrs. O'Donnell was Mrs. Richard Trummer.

Mrs. John R. Marcello poured at a table centered with an arrangement of fresh gladioli and mums.

Farewells were said, and silver trays were presented to departing wives, Mrs. John R. Marcello, and Mrs. Robert M. Willeford.

After a short business meeting the ladies saw a jewelry fashion show. Mrs. James Wright won the door prize, a silver necklace.

Ballet Will Begin At Benning in July

Ballet classes for children of all ages are now being formed. The classes will be held in building 1053, Tuesday and Thursday mornings, during the months of July and August.

The classes, sponsored by the 2nd Division Officers' Wives Club, will be taught by Rossie Gilmore.

Opns. Officer Promoted at 17th Arty

By 17th Arty PIO

In a surprise ceremony held in the office of Colonel Stanley L. Harding, 2nd Division Artillery commander, Major Marion R. Carrigan was promoted to his present rank.

Also at the ceremony was Lieutenant Colonel Francis P. Sheridan, commanding officer of the 17th Artillery.

From the Citadel

Major Carrigan, who is presently operations officer of the 17th Artillery, began his service to the Army in 1950 when he graduated from The Citadel and was awarded a commission. Since that time, he has served in infantry, armor and airborne divisions, and was decorated three times in the Korean Conflict.

For meritorious action in Korea with the 3rd Infantry Division, Maj. Carrigan was awarded the Bronze Star. While with the same unit, he received the Belgian Croix-de-Guerre with Palm, and the Belgian Knight of the Order of the Belgian Crown with Silver Palm for distinguishing himself by heroic actions in combat.

Major Carrigan came to the 17th Artillery in December 1960, and has been operations officer for the battalion since that time.

Officers Attend USAIC Schools From 38th Inf.

By 38th Inf PIO

Two 38th Infantry officers have returned to the battle group after attendance at military schools and another is presently attending an 11-week long course.

Lieutenant Donald B. Read of Company D returned to the battle group just prior to the beginning of Exercise SENECA SPEAR after attending the Infantry Officers' Orientation Course and Airborne School at Fort Benning.

Lieutenant Daryl F. Brost of Combat Support Company has finished the six-week Officers' Heavy Mortar Course at The Infantry School.

Captain James R. Hoover, assigned as the 38th Infantry's communications officer, is presently attending the 11-week Signal Maintenance Course at the Infantry Center and is due to return to the 38th Infantry in June.

LEAVING 87TH
Lieutenant Bopp

Lt. J. Bopp To Go West

By 87th Inf PIO

Lieutenant James E. Bopp, after completing a three year tour of duty with the 87th Infantry, recently received orders which will take him to new assignments in California and Hawaii.

Formerly the executive officer of Company B, assistant adjutant and most recently the assistant air operations officer, Lieutenant Bopp will depart for the Sierra Ordnance Depot located in Herlong, California.

While there, Lieutenant Bopp will have three months to organize an infantry security company, after which the unit will be assigned for a three year tour in Hawaii.

QM's Sgt. Hallowell Gets New Assignment

Recently departing the 2nd Quartermaster Company enroute to the 15th Quartermaster Company, 1st Cavalry Division, Munsanni, Korea, was Master Sergeant Norman S. Hallowell.

He served as chief clerk in the office of 2nd Division Quartermaster since February 5, 1961.

Sergeant Hallowell, drafted in 1943, spent his first tour of duty at Fort Douglas, Utah. From there he was assigned to Camp Callan, California; and then to Camp Tyler, Texas.

In 1944 he was assigned to the 82nd Airborne Division in Europe and served with the 325th Glider Regiment, 401st Battalion. It was with this unit that he participated in the invasion of Holland in September 17, 1944. After the war, he was assigned to a Re-enlistment Depot in Metz, France, serving there for one year.

Sergeant Hallowell remained in Europe until 1948 serving with the 787th Military Police Battalion and the 539th Military Police Company, respectively. Returning to the states, he was assigned to Fort Lee, Virginia as First Sergeant of the 519th Bakery Company until 1953.

Again assigned to Europe, Sergeant Hallowell served with the S-4 Orleans Area Command, Communications Zone, Europe. As chief clerk until May 1957. He was reassigned to Fort Lee in 1959 and served as operations sergeant, G-4 section until being transferred to the 2nd Infantry Division.

Among Sergeant Hallowell's awards are the Combat Infantry Badge, Bronze Star, Army Commendation Medal, and Good Conduct Medal (four awards). He attended The Army Administration School, Fort Benjamin Harrison in 1953.

Memorizing Bible Verses No Sunday School Picnic

Sixty-three members of the Sand Hill Sunday School's Junior Department attended a picnic recently at The Infantry Center Recreation Area.

Accompanying the group were Mrs. Robert Young, superintendent of the Junior Department, Mrs. Marion Hicks, Mrs. Warren Freeman, Mrs. Jesse Metcalf, Sergeant William Garrett and Sergeant John Ross, who teach the various Junior classes.

During the past months Mrs. Young and the teachers have been encouraging the department to memorize Bible verses. Class members who memorized the most of their assignments were awarded prizes.

Kay McGuire, daughter of Sergeant and Mrs. David McGuire, won first prize. Others receiving special recognition for memory work were Lynda Stewart, daughter of Sergeant and Mrs. Louis Stewart; Lynn Young, daughter of Chaplain and Mrs. Robert Young; and Lynda Robinson, daughter of Sergeant and Mrs. Thomas Robinson.

Trains, 1st, 87th Post First Wins

By 2nd Inf Div PIO

At the end of the first week of play in the 2nd Infantry Division's Softball Tournament, Division Trains, 1st Infantry and the 87th Infantry remain undefeated, while the 38th Infantry, 122nd Signal Battalion (Separate Battalions representative), 22rd Infantry and Division Artillery have yet to win a game through Monday night.

Division Trains defeated the 38th Inf. in a real squeaker 1-0, Thursday evening, May 3, at Kelley Hill's Essebagger Field and then beat the 122nd Signal Bn., through forfeiture, 7-0, in a game scheduled for Monday night at Sand Hill's Admin. Company Field. (A forfeiture is an automatic 7-0 defeat for the forfeiting team.)

The 1st Infantry beat Separate Battalions 13-6, Thursday night at Kelley Hill and trounced Division Artillery 12-2, Monday evening at Sand Hill.

Meanwhile, the 87th Infantry powered over the 22rd Infantry, 20-0, at Admin. Co. Field, Thursday, May 3, in a game called after five innings due to the league rule which gives the win to the team leading by ten runs after the fifth inning.

The 22rd Inf. versus the 38th Inf game scheduled for last Monday has been changed to 3 p.m. today.

The 9th Infantry withdrew its team prior to the start of the season, with all scheduled games involving the 9th Infantry cancelled.

Last evening's action included: 87th Inf. vs. Div Arty, at Essebagger Field; Div. Trains vs. 1st Inf. and 22d Inf vs. Sep. Bns., at Admin. Co. Field.

Monday's schedule includes: 38th Inf vs. Div. Arty, at 6:30 p.m. and 1st Inf. vs. 87th Inf., at 8:00 p.m. both at Kelley Hill; and Div. Trains vs 22d Inf., at 6:30 p.m., Sand Hill.

122nd Signal Battalion Wins Sep Bns 'Playoff'

By 122nd Signal Bn

The 122nd Signal Battalion softball team defeated 69th Armor and 2nd Engineer Battalion to win the Separate Battalion Championship, and thus earned the right to represent Separate Battalions in the 2nd Infantry Division Softball Tournament.

The team handed 69th Armor a 10-0 defeat in its first contest and won over the 2nd Engineers 11-0 in its second game.

Henry C. Edens, Jr., pitched both games and was credited with two shutouts and allowing only a total of five hits for the opposing team in both contests.

In the game against 69th Armor, William W. Kube and Richard McCoy hit home runs. Robert Paceili, in the game against the 2nd Engineers hit a three run homer which won the game for the 122nd Signal Battalion.

Players and positions on the team are: Charles H. Cheseweth, catcher; Charles Burns, first base; Richard McCoy, second base; William W. Kube, third base; Conrad Epps, shortstop; Frank C. Farella, left field; Robert C. Eveluth, right field; Robert A. Paceili, center field; Henry C. Edens, pitcher and Henry C. Petiford, pitcher.

Frank C. Farela serves as coach for the team and Richard McCoy is the captain.

87th Beats 23rd 20-0

By 87th Inf PIO

The 87th Infantry softball team, playing their first game of the year, defeated the 23rd Infantry last week by the decisive score of 20-0.

Displaying massive hitting power and strong pitching, the "Conqueror" nine scored in every inning while holding down the 23rd Infantry to only two hits.

Leonard Goodwin, the "Conquerors'" first string pitcher racked up the win, besides driving in his share of the runs. On the other side of the plate was strongman catcher Ronald Guy.

87th Inf Man In Rucker Dive

Four members of the Fort Benning Sport Parachute Club, all assigned to Company A, 87th Infantry, participated last Saturday and Sunday in a meet between the Benning Club and the Fort Rucker Sport Parachute Club.

1st Inf Has 2-0 Record

By 1st Inf PIO

The 1st Infantry softball team posted two victories in the 2nd Infantry Division Softball Tournament to start the season with a two won and no loss record.

The "Always First" team defeated Separate Battalions 12-6 in a come - from-behind performance. Separate Battalions lead 5-5 after six innings of play and the 1st Infantry scored seven runs on seven hits in the last inning to take the contest 12-6.

Monday night, Division Artillery clashed with the 1st Infantry, and came out the losers in a 13-5 battle. The 1st Infantry looked good as they scored five runs in the 4th inning, two in the 5th, four in the 6th and two in the 7th. Division Artillery scored two runs in the 6th and three runs in the 7th inning.

Pitcher Marion S. Flint won both games for the 1st Infantry.

Umpire Newman Gets Set to Call The Play

Four Shutouts Recorded

29th Infantry Maintains Lead; TBS Grabs Second

By Sfc Bismarck Stith

Four shutouts were posted in the major unit baseball loop this week, with the standings changing and records broken.

Larry Oates tossed a five hit shutout for The Student Brigade while his teammates blasted out 13 hits for eight runs. In the first inning, Jesus Herrons, Jessie Joyce, Reid Armstrong, Bill Silva all pounded out singles while R. Kenlow smacked a double for a total of five hits and four runs. In the fifth Bill Silva drew a base on balls; Jim Podgett and James Brown, both racked out doubles for three more runs.

29th Infantry righthander, James Battle gave TSB their third setback with a 4-0 shutout. Battle gave up four hits to claim the victory. Charles Spell, who suffered his first defeat, was the loser. Albert Rockwell paced the winners by hitting two singles and accounted for three RBI's. Jessie Joyce tapped a double in deep center to pace the losers.

Robert Steward's single in the bottom of the ninth along with two stolen bases accounted for the Artilleryman's 1-0 win over the 151st engineers.

Turner pitched a six-hitter to collect the win. Charles Bishop tossed a four-hitter only to suffer the loss.

Steward's two singles and his stolen base for the lone tally paced the Artillerymen for the victory. Robert Rose had a double and a single for the 151st.

The 428th Medics blasted the 156th Signal for 12 hits and a 12-2 victory behind the pitching of James Williams. Williams, Ed Stansbury and Rex Turner's two singles each along with Gary Hess's double controlled the batting department for the Medics. Paul Bando was charged with the setback. Richard Siesua's two-run homer in the fifth inning accounted for the Signalmen's two runs.

Curt Gentry, 29th Infantry center fielder, scored in the first on an error by the center fielder. He scored in the third, seventh and ninth to account for four runs of the 8-6 win over the 10th Artillery Redlegs. Gentry's two doubles and a single also paced his team at the plate. Roy Bowers was credited with the win. He also blasted out two singles for his winning cause. Joe Winchester was charged with the defeat.

J. B. Larrimore's three run homer in the first and a single in the third inoing paced the Artillerymen.

TSB's Charles Spell hurled a three hit shut out against the 428th Medics for a 1-0 victory. TSB scored their lone run in the fifth inning when Jesus Herrans led off with a single and scored on Reid Armstrong's blast, a single to center. Ed Stansbury, Gary Hess and Ben Florianai each hit singles accounting for the Medics hits. John Orsini was charged with the setback.

Home Run Contest Is Announced

A jackpot of prizes awaits American servicemen in the $12,000 Mickey Mantle-Roger Maris Home Run Sweepstakes just announced by Lever Brothers Company.

With interest in the homer-hitting exploits of the two New York Yankee sluggers expected to be maintained at fever pitch throughout the baseball season, the contest invites entrants to guess the number of home runs that will be hit by either Mantle or Maris by midseason (July 15) or for the entire season running through September.

The Mantle-Maris Home Run Sweepstakes thus consists of several separate contests — for the half-season totals and another for the full season records. The $500 U.S. Savings Bonds will be awarded in each of these contests and all correct entries will then have a chance in a drawing for the grand prize of $2,000 in U.S. Savings Bonds.

With entries limited to members of the U.S. Armed Forces and their immediate families, the Home Run Sweepstakes is loaded with prize-winning opportunities. Any one contestant can win a $500 Bond in both contests and, at the same time, become eligible for the $2,000 grand prize. What's more, a person can enter as often as he wishes, picking home run totals for either Mantle or Maris each time.

Contestants have only to write a guess for each entry in either contest — picking either Mantle or Maris in each case — on the back of a wrapper for on the back of a piece of paper indicating the brand name) of one of the seven sponsoring products: Dove, Lux, Praise or Lifebuoy Soap, Stripe Tooth Paste, Pepsodent or Pepsodent Fluoride Tooth Paste.

Entries must be mailed to contest headquarters ("Mantle-Maris Contest," Post Office Box 11-L, Mount Vernon 10, N.Y.), postmarked not later than June 25 for the mid-season contest and Sept. 10 for the full season competition.

Outdoor Outlook

Increased Activity at Kings Pond

The majority of post ponds have been closed during most of this past week due to JCOC activities. During the open hours however, fishermen took to the water and many reported bagging their limit of 25 bream at Kings Pond. Most anglers have been having the best luck with red worms although the fly fishermen have been having good success in the late evening.

It looks like the bass fishing is on the upswing after several months lull. Sfc Jim Graham, Headquarters Battery, 12th Artillery, netted three fine bass from the bank at Kings Pond. All were taken on shiners and the largest tipped the scales at 4½ pounds. Sgt. (Ret.) John Ebbers of Columbus netted the daily limit of 5 bass at Kings, each weighing 2¾ pounds except one which weighed in at 3 pounds. Ebbers reported all the bass were taken on worms.

Kings Pond was restocked with bass and bream in June 1960 and it seems like the bass are developing as expected, some gaining as much as two pounds per year. The average size of the bream is smaller than expected and it is believed an understocking of bass has resulted in a slight overpopulation of bream.

This crowding of the bream probably accounts for the decrease in their average size. Additional bass will be stocked in Kings Pond this summer in an effort to get the bass and bream population ratio in proper proportion.

Clear Creek Pond

The activity at Clear Creek Pond is rather spotty but this year there has been several nice catches. Most recently, 1st Lt. Harold W. Darden, Headquarter Company, 36th Infantry, landed a 6 pound largemouth while fishing from the bank. The lunker was taken on pink worm.

The Big Ones Get Away!

If any pond on post is known as the one where the big ones get away it is probably Harps Pond. There haven't been any reports of fish being caught that had a month full of books but for every fish caught, there are probably two lines broken. The early spring fishing verified the fact that the big ones are there as several 8 and 9 pounders were brought in.

Again the bass are on the war path at Harps Pond as reported by one angler who let four bass slip from his hook, two taking the lure with them. Both bass and bream are hitting surface lures near the stumpy banks in the late evening and early morning.

Naylor Credited With 2nd Win

Sgt. Ervin E. Naylor, softball pitcher for Headquarters Battery, 2d Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade, scored his second win in three games played in the 10th Artillery Softball League. His 4-2 victory was scored against the 111th Signal Company.

Sp4 George O. Dyer started with Sgt Naylor finishing for the victors. Absorbing the loss for the 111th was Sp4. Ted Colcolough. Both teams were limited to scattered hits. Sgt. Romeo A. Griffin, catcher for Headquarters Battery, tallied two RBI's at the plate.

Sgt. Naylor's first win was in the opening game with Battery B, 29th Artillery which was defeated by a 20-6 score. The second league game was played between Batteries A and D with Battery D emerging the 12-0 winner.

Todays Sportrait

Today's Sportrait spotlights Pfc Thomas S. Dawson, Jr., Headquarters Company, 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade.

Pfc Dawson got his start in athletics while attending high school. He lettered in four sports: cross country, basketball, indoor and outdoor track.

Dawson began boxing in 1954. He won the Novice Division Middleweight Crown in District of Columbia Golden Gloves.

In his second year of boxing in the novice division he copped the light heavyweight title in the District Golden Gloves. All winners of this meet traveled to New York City to appear in several exhibition bouts.

In 1956, Pfc Dawson entered Howard University, Washington, D. C. and competed in the Light Heavyweight Division in the open class. He won the title and trip to the Eastern Division Boxing Tournament in New York City, where he also became the eastern division champ.

After losing in the finals in Hartford, Conn. championship fights he returned to Howard University.

He was drafted in the Army in January 1961. He took basic training at Fort Jackson, S.C. and advanced Infantry training at Fort Hood, Texas. He came to Fort Benning in June and was assigned to his present organization as clerk typist.

Pfc Dawson began boxing again after receiving information that his unit, 29th Infantry, had won The Infantry Center Boxing Championship for the past five consecutive years.

He participated on the 29th Infantry 1961 boxing team which won the team and individual honors.

Dawson says that Sfc Larry Jones, four time All-Army and Inter-Service Champ, and Pete Rademacher, 1952 olympic champion really helped him with their experience in the Florida Silver Gloves Championship fights held in Florida.

3rd Field Hospital Leads in Medical Battalion Softball

Sp4 Louis H. Cook pitched a shut-out to put the 3rd Field Hospital on top in 428th Medical Battalion softball competition as the unit swept over the 690th Medical Company 10-0.

Sp4 Herman Wells hit the longest ball of the day, a triple, with two on. Sgt. John D Cox, Pfc Delbut W. Steward and Sp4 Paul R. Martin each also got doubles.

Pfc J. M. Olive gave the signals as catcher for the winning team. Pfc Johnnie Loftis pitched for the losers.

Profile of a Man Doing a Man's Job

Members of Reserve and National Guard components called to active duty last year brought many unusual backgrounds to the Regular Army.

One is that of Sp4 William D. Johnston, Company B, 1st Battalion, Center Troop Command.

Johnston entered the Army early in 1941 and served until 1945. During this tour of duty he served with Artillery, Quartermaster, Transportation and Combat Engineer Corps. He was discharged a staff sergeant.

He then traveled to Europe where he spent 17 months studying European history. Upon his return to this country he entered the University of Alabama to study biosocial and natural sciences.

From there he moved on to San Jose State College, San Jose, Calif., where he studied occupational therapy and fine arts. In 1962 he was graduated with an AB degree in fine arts.

Johnston then decided to work toward a masters degree and entered Mexico City College, Mexico City, D. F. Returning to this country with his masters degree in 1963, Johnston took a research position with Wire Inc. in Evansville, Ill.

Returning to the field of higher learning, Johnston accepted a post as assistant head of the fine arts department at Texas Southern University, Houston.

In 1955, Johnston traveled to Okinawa to supervise a craft shop for the U. S. Air Force. After a year on that island he returned to the states, taking a part time job at Wiley College as an instructor in the fine arts and European history departments.

Next stop for Johnston was Southern University in Baton Rouge, La., where he accepted a job as critic-teacher in the fine arts department. At the same time he did off-campus work toward a PhD degree through the University of Chicago.

The final college tour of Johnston was with A&M College, Huntsville, Ala.

In December, 1961, several months after being called to active duty, Johnston reenlisted and is now a member of the Regular Army.

At present he is an entertainment specialist with Service Club 1.

Engineer Co. Undertakes 'Facelifting'

In line with the current emphasis on area beautification, Company B, 577th Engineer Battalion, 151st Engineer Group, has undertaken an extensive program of facelifting.

Many improvements have been made during the project which is under the supervision of Capt. Charles D. Bakeman, commanding officer, and MSgt Charles E. Stull, first sergeant.

Besides the seeding of new grass and whitewashing, curbs have been placed along walks and streets. A more effective drainage system has come about under the project along with the improved appearance.

The facelifting has also reached the dayroom where the interior is being remodeled and redecorated. Plans include the addition of a TV lounge, a reading room, and a game room complete with new equipment.

In addition to company projects, the 3rd Platoon, is currently engaged in placing forms and pouring concrete curbing throughout the battalion area.

Operation Facelift is expected to be completed by May 18.

OK Purple Heart in Viet Nam

Though the U. S. is not at war in Viet Nam, members of our armed forces killed or wounded in that country will be awarded the Purple Heart.

The award was made possible by President John F. Kennedy recently in an executive order.

The President authorized the medal for those men "serving with friendly foreign forces engaged in armed conflict against an opposing force in which the United States is not a belligerent party."

Regulations previously limited the awarding of the Purple Heart to those injured in conflict "against an armed enemy of the U. S."

Scale-Size Models

Up on Latest Missiles? They're on Display Here

Missiles and more missiles, rockets and yet more rockets are on display at the Infantry School's Book Store. Not the real McCoy, but scale-size models ranging in length from several inches to several feet, all looking fit and ready for a fast trip into the wild blue yonder.

Sponsor of the display is the 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade. Included in the showing are models of the Redstone, Corporal, Nike Hercules, Sergeant, Nike Ajax, Pershing, Honest John, Lacrosse, Hawk, Little John, Jupiter, Jupiter "C", and the Nike Zeus.

The 10th Artillery is the major support team of The Infantry School and puts on all artillery demonstrations for The School as well as Third Army. They also fire salutes for arriving and departing VIPs, fire the cannons in front of the "Big House" for retreat; and they are the only unit on post with a searchlight battery.

Since the opening of the display last Monday, May 7, there have been large crowds of military and dependents on hand to look over the models.

BOOKS in REVIEW

A TIME OF KILLING by William M. Hardy. (Dodd, 1962)

The submarine Mullet was on war patrol in the treacherous waters of the Yellow Sea — a last patrol before the cease fire of August, 1945. Only hours might remain to avenge the three crew members who had just been killed by the Japanese planes, to seek out the enemy and destroy him. Within the Mullet's steel hull two strong men opposed each other. Burt Engle, the hate-filled executive officer, demanding his full share of killing; but for Vince McGuire, the commander, this was a time of agonizing decision.

MIGNON by James M. Cain. (Dial, 1962)

Mignon is a beautiful young widow who, with her father, has come to New Orleans at the close of the Civil War in the hopes of improving their war-reduced fortunes. But the risky trade in contraband cotton has landed her father in jail and Mignon at the hotel room door of Bill Cresap.

COMMUNIST CHINA'S STRATEGY by Alice L. Hsieh. (Prentice, 1962)

An analysis of Communist China's response to the nuclear age — and the implied challenge to the U.S. The author discusses and interprets (1) The development of Chinese military thinking in response to a realization of the implications of nuclear warfare; (2) the debate within Chinese military circles on how to meet the threat of nuclear war; (3) The basis for China's decision to develop nuclear weapons; and (4) The effect of changing attitudes about warfare on Communist China's foreign policy — in particular, on China's relationship with Soviet Union.

WOOD, FIELD, AND STREAM by John W. Randolph. (Holt, 1962)

Assembled here for the enjoyment of outdoorsmen are nearly 100 of Randolph's most memorable pieces, selected by a friend and hunting companion, an expert on techniques of shooting and angling.

American U. Plans Summer Schedule

The American University classes will meet on Tuesday and Thursday evenings at the Army Education Center. Two periods are scheduled for each class night, permitting qualified students to earn six semester hours credit per semester. Summer semester begins June 5 and ends July 28.

Registrations of those with a high school diploma will be accepted May 31 or who have successfully passed the high school General Educational Development test will be eligible to attend.

Tuition fees are payable upon registration. Fees are $15 per semester Hour, or $45 for a three semester hour course. $33.75 of this amount will be paid by the Government for those eligible for tuition assistance.

A late registration fee of $5 will be charged for official registrations after June 5.

Qualified military personnel must present completed DA Form 2171 at time of registration. Forms are available at the Educational Development Section, Building 2512, or Building 3337 at Sand Hill.

Donahue Named Soldier of Month

Sp4 Robert R. Donahue has been named "Soldier of the Month" of the 2d Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade. Sp4 Donahue, a member of Headquarters Battery, is a fire direction computer and mail clerk.

Knowledge of his job, related jobs, general military affairs, civil affairs and his personal appearance led to his being selected over five others vying for the honor.

PSYCHOLOGICAL WAR

Military psychological warfare as we know it today had its beginnings in World War I. Fighter pilots carried bundles of leaflets in their cockpits and dropped them by hand over enemy positions.

Medic NCO Re-Enlists NG to RA

Sgt. Charles M Fell, one of the first National Guard Soldiers recalled to active duty at Fort Benning last year, re-enlisted in the regular Army recently.

As a member of the advance party of the 128th Medical Company of Fairhope, Ala., Sgt. Fell was here to arrange for billeting, messing, quarters and many other jobs when the National Guard unit arrived at the start of the military build up to join the 428th Medical Battalion.

This is the second time the former National Guard soldier has been called to active duty. He was with Company G of the 200th Infantry, of Foley, Ala., when it was called to active duty at the start of the Korean War. He served with this unit a short time and was discharged to return to the National Guard medical unit.

His recent enlistment will take him to the 1st Armored Division at Fort Hood, Texas.

HERE'S PROOF MERCURY COMET HAS THE HIGHEST RESALE VALUE OF ANY COMPACT as reported in the February 17 issue of Business Week magazine
A study of depreciation costs proved once and for all that Mercury Comet is the big saver among compacts! Business Week reports that Mercury Comet depreciation, over a two-year period, ran not only lower than any other compact, but also $185 lower than the best performer of the standard-size cars. Proof positive that Mercury Comet is still the smartest buy among compacts. And Mercury Comet is still priced with or below the compacts of other makers! See us today . . . start saving right away!

Signalmen Honored By School

Thirteen men of the 223rd Signal Company, 1st Infantry Brigade, recently returned from Fort Gordon where they distinguished themselves as graduates of the Southeastern Signal Supply and Parts Specialists School.

The class of 18 men graduated with an average of 92.8, the highest in the history of the school.

Another first was scored by honor graduate Pfc Aaron W. Everett, whose 98.8 average eclipsed all other record highs for the course.

Three other men graduated with averages of over 95. They were SSgt John F. Riley, 97.5, Sp4 Robert W. Bell, 95.4 and Pfc Kenneth B. Clements, 97.8, all of the 223rd Signal Company.

Capt. John R. Kerr, commanding officer of the unit, received a congratulatory letter from Col. John M. Raleigh, assistant commandant of the school commending the men for their outstanding achievement. He also sent a special word of merit for Sgt Riley for his leadership abilities.

The men are now using their knowledge in various facets of signal supply. Several will be setting up and operating a Signal Supply Depot at The Infantry Center. Some men will be used at company level in supply operations.

Barbara Hare's Report Card...

On Saturday, May 5, the Junior Army Daughters of America held its election for officers. girls were chosen to lead the organization. Report Card takes pride in saluting the new officers as each one steps into our spotlight.

First, Mary Beth Williams takes our spotlight because she is JADA's new president. Mary Beth has proven herself capable of this high office by serving in many positions. She is the past vice-president of JADA, secretary of the French Club and the new president of the Sigma Delta Beta sorority. Mary Beth has been a previous vice president of Follow-Me-Club and teaches Sunday school now. Next year she will be the assistant editor of the Bluestreak, the Columbus High School paper. Mary Beth was born on March 26, 1946 in South Carolina. This talented rising senior is the daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. L. A. Williams.

Georgianna Dillon is our next personality. She was born on November 27, 1945 in San Antonio, Texas. Georgianna enjoys many hobbies which include art and sports. Having held office in several clubs, she is well qualified for her duties as JADA's new vice-president. Presently, Georgianna is secretary of Follow-Me-Club and teaches Sunday school. She is the daughter of Major and Mrs. L. R. Dillon, Jr.

Neville Brickhouse was re-elected to the office of recording secretary. Neville, daughter of Major and Mrs. G. L. Brickhouse, was born on August 16, 1946. She is secretary of her Junior Achievement Company and historian of the Library Club. Neville also holds membership in the Sigma Delta Beta sorority, Geography Club, and the Student Council.

The next new officer is a Baker Junior. Cheryl Ely was elected to the office of corresponding secretary at Baker. she is a member of the French Club, Civinettes, and the Alpha Tri-Hi-Y. Last month she was a representative from Benning to the Georgia Woman's Fencing Championship Tournament in Atlanta. Cheryl, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. J. T. Fly, was born on June 2, 1945 in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma.

The new Treasurer, Kathy Aure, was born on May 14, 1946. She is the daughter of Major and Mrs. C. O. Aure. Kathy is a member of the Sigma Delta Beta sorority. Tri-Hi-Y, French Club, and Follow-Me-Club. She enjoys golf and swimming in her spare time.

Historian Sandy Duke is a native of LaGrange, Georgia. Sandy was born February 15, 1946. She is the current vice-president of Follow-Me-Club, and a member of the Sigma Delta Beta Sorority and the C.H.S. Girls' Glee Club. Sandy's parents are Major and Mrs. J. O. Duke.

Louise Williams is the new chaplain of JADA. She is the secretary of the Sigma Delta Beta Sorority. She was a member of the VAC championship girls basketball team. Louise is the daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. L. A. Williams. She was born on October 17, 1946 and calls South Carolina "home."

Report Card is proud to salute the new JADA officers. At sail solution as described above.

Heat Stroke: This is a very serious condition with a high mortality rate. It is characterized by extremely high body temperature between 106-110 degrees, usually with coma.

The development of heat stroke represents a breakdown of the body's heat regulating mechanism, and is particularly prone to occur in individuals who are not acclimatized to heat. Physical exertion, alcoholism, and diarrhea are factors in the development of heat stroke.

After the disturbance of the heat - regulating mechanism occurs, the individual may absorb heat from the ground or the surrounding air. In the great majority of cases, there is absence of sweating. Headache, dizziness, mental confusion, weakness and nausea are symptoms which may occur prior to the onset of heat stroke.

Usually, however, the onset of heat stroke occurs with dramatic suddenness with collapse and loss of consciousness. Deep coma is usually present and convulsing may occur.

In the early stage, the patient's skin is usually hot, red and dry; there is absence of sweating. Death may occur rapidly. One attack of heat stroke predisposes to a second attack and care should be taken by the individual upon recovery to avoid a second exposure to extreme heat.

The lowering of the patient's body temperature as rapidly as possible is the most important objective in the treatment of heat stroke. If there is any source of cool water nearby, the patient should be immersed in water; otherwise water should be sprinkled over the patient and its evaporation hastened by fanning.

In addition to these cooling measures, the patient's extremities and trunk should be rubbed briskly to increase circulation to the skin. The patient should be transported to the hospital immediately. During transportation, the passage of air currents through an opened door of the vehicle will aid cooling.

You should be aware of these dangers of heat, and take steps to prevent yourself from becoming a heat casualty. Knowledge of the first aid treatment of a heat injury can prevent further damage, and may even prevent death.

1963 Army

Reduced Strength Analized

What will happen to the Army's combat strength when authorized manpower drops from 1,118,000 to 960,000 in Fiscal Year 1963? In the lead article, "Manpower Magic," appearing in the May issue of ARMY, contributing editor Forrest Kleinman provides a realistic appraisal of the possible effects the reduction may have on the Army's real strength.

Editor Kleinman expresses concern over public apathy towards reduction in Army strength. He takes the position that announcement of the formation of two new divisions to replace two National Guard has created a false illusion regarding the Army's strategic posture and real combat strength.

The article carefully surveys available Army manpower to perform FY '63 multiple tasks and responsibilities. Upon analyzing possible courses of action that may be taken to maintain 16 divisions, Kleinman concludes that net savings in manpower could be 22,000 —not enough to man two new divisions.

Kleinman pictures the Army's strength under the new budget as — "At worst, better than presented by the pre-Korean budget . . . at rosy best, it hardly jibes with the public image."

Church of God Revivals Slated Starting Monday

A special invitation to servicemen and post civilian personnel and their families has been extended by the Downtown Church of God, to attend revival services beginning Monday evening.

The services will begin at 7:45 p.m. each evening, and continue for two weeks at the church located at 1st Avenue and 7th Street, according to Reverend J. E. Thornton, local pastor.

The Downtown Church of God is a member of the Church of God with headquarters at Reverend James A. Cross is general overseer.

HOW?

The Tuba City, Ariz., sportsman's club, whose members are Navajo Indians, reported interest in a new course offered—how to use the bow and arrow.

the last meeting the members presented their old officers with silver discs. The ex-officers were President Mary Mike Magner, Vice-President Mary Beth Williams, Recording Secretary Neville Brickhouse, Corresponding Secretary Tilda Todd, Chaplain Barbara Hare, Historian Gaile McClain, and Treasurer Donna Davis.

The Benning Chapter of the Junior Army Daughters of America has been a very active club. Report Card wishes JADA and her new officers much luck and success for the future.

INSPECTING VEHICLES are the 428th Medical Battalion's two "drivers of the month." The men, Sp4 Jimmie Johnson, (T); 50th Medical Company, and Pfc Donald J. Garris, (B); 129th Medical Company, tied for the award of the month of April. Sp4 Johnson, a former University of Missouri student, took his basic at Fort Riley before coming to the medical unit. He played basketball with the "Medics" during the past season. Pfc Garris took medical technician training at Fort Sam Houston following completion of basic at Fort Jackson. He came to Fort Benning when the National Guard unit in Mobile, Ala., was called to active duty last year.

June Promotion List New High

A record-breaking enlisted promotion quota for the month of June has been announced by Department of the Army.

Figures on the number of promotions allocated to Fort Benning are expected to be available shortly after June 5. Promotions will follow the announcement in several days.

Totalling 46,990 authorized promotions for grades E - 4 through E-9, the June quota is 22 per cent more than that for May which was the highest allocation in several years.

All Grades Up

All grades felt the impact of the increased number of promotions.

The E-9 quota of 195 is 66 per cent higher than May. A 10 per cent increase brought E-8 authorizations to 594.

May authorizations for E - 7 are topped by 71 per cent by the new authorizations, and the E-6 total of 4,917 is 54 per cent higher.

Some 14,051 slots will open for E-5 personnel, an increase of 43 per cent.

Current Pfc's waiting for E-4 promotions will not see an exceptional increase. . .only a .07 rise. However, the allocations for E-4 total 24,833, largest of any enlisted rank from E-4 to E-9.

45th Year Celebrated By AMSC

For 84 Army Medical Service Corps (MSC) officers here, today marks the 45th anniversary of their branch.

An outgrowth of the world War I Sanitary Corps, MSC is one of the six components of the Army Medical Service. The mission of the Corps is to provide scientific, technical, and administrative support to the Army Medical Service. The other corps are Medical, Dental, Veterinary, Nurse and Medical Specialist.

Of the 84 MSC officers on post, 37 are members of, or attached to, the 428th Medical Battalion. Twenty - three are assigned to Martin Army Hospital, 21 to the 2nd Infantry Division, two on the Medical Committee of The Infantry School Special Subjects Department, and one a member of the 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry.

17 Career Fields

The Corps consists of specialists in 17 career fields.

Scientific and technical personnel in the corps include bacteriologists, biochemists, clinical psychologists, social workers, pharmacists, entomologists, immunologists, optometrists, parasitologists, podiatrists, nuclear medical science officers and sanitary engineers.

The Corps' administrative personnel include hospital administrators, comptrollers, statisticians, specialists in management, logistics, manpower, teaching, intelligence, staff and command, training, management research and improvement and operations and planning.

The Medical Service Corps has a variety of professionally qualified members. A baccalaureate degree is required for a commission in the corps.

Jump School Is 20; Celebration Planned

In observance of the 20th anniversary of The Infantry School's Airborne - Air Mobility Department, an anniversary celebration will be staged at Eubanks Field Saturday beginning at 9 a.m.

Department officials have invited the general public, civilian as well as military, to attend the festivities. The department's function as a paratrooper training center will be explained to the guests.

An orientation will be held at 9 a.m. at Eubanks Field under the direction of department members.

Cadre of the department will gather with their families for a separate celebration following the public demonstrations.

Visitors with a yen for dropping from high altitudes will have an opportunity to experience some of the sensations felt by Airborne troops.

The 34-foot mock tower and the 250-foot jump tower equipped with "buddy seats" will be available for public use. Any visitor may jump from the 34-foot tower or ride in a seat to the ground from 250 feet during the celebration.

Children wishing to jump must have the written permission of their parents.

The 34-foot tower simulates for the Airborne trainee the exit from an aircraft. The trainee jumps from the tower

City Parade Highlights A. F. Week

A parade of military might and precision will highlight Columbus-Fort Benning Armed Forces Week activities today.

Scheduled to begin at 4 p.m., the parade through downtown Columbus will include personnel and equipment from the U.S. Army Infantry Center and the 2nd Infantry Division. The annual event is sponsored by the Military Order of World Wars of Columbus.

Parade Route

The parade will form on 4th Ave. between 9th and 10th Streets, move West on 13th St. to Broadway and proceed south on the west side of Broadway to 9th St.

Marching elements of the parade, Streets, move east on 9th St. to the assembly area, while vehicles will continue down Broadway to 5th St. and be dismissed in the area of 5th St. and 4th Ave.

A reviewing stand will be located on Broadway near 12th St. Dignitaries on the reviewing stand will include officials of the Fort Benning-Columbus area.

The week of May 13 to 19 is being observed in the local community as Armed Forces Week, a prelude to Armed Forces Day, tomorrow, as proclaimed by the President.

Stage Set

The stage was set for the area's demonstrations of "Power for Peace" by a traditional massing of the colors and "Military Searchlight Tattoo" Monday and Tuesday nights at Columbus Municipal Auditorium.

Throughout the week, post personnel addressed various civic groups on Armed Forces Day topics.

Street shows were staged at strategic locations featuring handlers and dogs of the 25th Infantry Scout Dog Platoon, The Infantry Center Band and the 29th Infantry Drill Team.

Displays of equipment are on exhibition this week on the central parkways of Broadway between 10th and 12th Streets.

Units responsible for the displays are the 428th Medical

Armed Forces Day

Summit Summary

The President

"Today, Americans everywhere can view with pride the performance and preparedness of their Armed Forces. Much is still to be done, but much has been accomplished. In 1962, we could well dedicate this observance to closer unity and common effort between the civilian effort — industry, education and civil defense — and our Armed Forces. . .Our national security depends equally on both efforts — civilian and military. To field a winning combination, neither half can be in international second place."

Secretary Stahr

"Fully alert to its increasingly grave responsibilities as a key element of our Nation's deterent and defensive strength, the United States Army is proud to join in demonstrating to the American people the capability of their Armed Forces to carry out their vital mission at this critical moment in history."

Gen. Decker

"We welcome our fellow citizens to Army installations and activities on this day, and to join us in rededication of our lives and our purposes to the preservation of America and its ideals."

Battalion, 151st Engineer Group, 1st Infantry Brigade and The Infantry Center Chaplain Section.

The week of special emphasis on the nation's Armed Forces will be concluded with a "Blue Day" review at 10 a.m. Saturday on Stilwell Field.

Marking the achievement of senior status, the Army's "turning blue" parade will be staged by approximately 120 Infantry officer candidates of class 3, members of 50th Company, 5th Battalion, Student Brigade of The Infantry School. The public is invited.

Infantry Center units participating in the Columbus parade include an Honor Guard, Color Detail and Drill Team from Company C, 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry; the 26th Infantry Scout Dog Platoon; The Infantry Center Band and a WAC Company.

Second Division units to march in the parade include the 1st Infantry, 23rd Infantry and 38th Infantry Battle Groups, elements of Division Artillery, Division Trains and mounted elements of the 7th Cavalry.

In addition to Fort Benning personnel, the parade will include a Marine color guard; Navy Reserve marching unit; and float representatives of the Veterans of World War I and Auxiliary; the 560th Armored Engineer National Guard Battalion; the 81st Infantry U.S. Army Reserve Division; 218th U. S. Army Reserve Transportation Company.

National Sojourners, Benning Chapter; Gold Star Wives of America; Salvation Army; Boy Scouts of America; American Legion Post No. 35 and Auxiliary and Post No. 135; Disabled American Veterans, Columbus Chapter No. 44 and Muscogee Chapter No. 7; Muscogee County Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Navy Mothers; U. S. Coast Guard Auxiliary; 9th St. USO; Button Gwinnett Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution; American Legion Auxiliary, Muscogee Unit 151; the Columbus Fire Department; the Reserve Officer Training Corps and bands of Jordan, Columbus and Baker High Schools, and the South, Columbus Junior High School Band; and a U. S. Naval Reserve sweetheart.

Airborne

was organized here. Some 48 men were selected from 200 volunteers to fill the platoon on July 11, 1940.

During the course of their training the men moved to Hightown, N. J., for a week's work-out on drop towers which had formerly been used in the New York World's Fair and were then standing on the premises of the owners.

Results of the training were so satisfactory that two of the towers were purchased by the government to be erected here. Later, two more were purchased. Three 250-foot towers still stand on the post and are still in use.

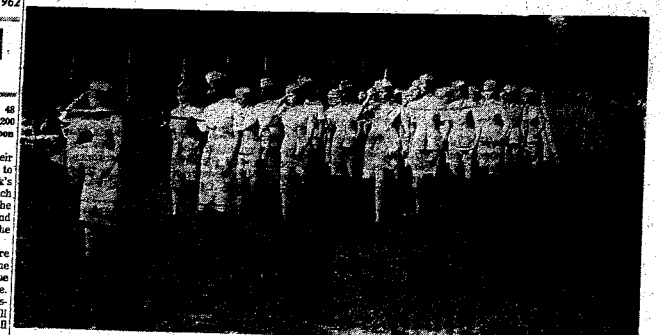
The first jump from a plane in flight was made by members of the Test Platoon over Lawson Army Air Field on August, 16, 1940. On August 29, 1940, the first mass jump by a platoon of the United States was staged over LAAF.

With the apparent need for a unified Airborne training command, The Parachute School was organized here. Training had previously been conducted at various locations in the nation.

Groundwork for one of the nation's greatest fighting forces was thusly laid.

Nov. 8, 1942 was the day American Airborne troops made their debut in combat. Members of the 2nd Battalion, 509th Parachute Infantry Regiment, clouded the skies of Algeria.

Since that time, Airborne units have grown in size, honor and tradition. They fought valiantly in World War II as well as the Korean War.



The spirit of Airborne is reflected in the final paragraph of "The Parachutist's Creed." "I belong to the finest unit in the Army. By my actions and deeds alone, I speak for my fighting ability. I will strive to uphold the honor and prestige of my outfit, making my country proud of me and of the unit to which I belong."

The AUSA meeting will get underway at 7 p.m. with a social hour on the terrace behind the Main Officers Mess. At 8 p.m. the members will be served dinner in the Supper Club.

Tickets for the dinner may be obtained by calling SFC Ira Thompson at 545-3444 or 545-7211.

the MSC officers on active duty have Ph.D. degrees; 13 per cent have masters degrees, and at least 4 per cent have completed one or more years of postgraduate training leading to higher degrees.

In addition to the educational and technical requirements, an MSC officer must also be adept in the application and techniques of combat arms.

The Medical Service Corps is comprised of four sections. They are Supply and Administrative Section; Medical Allied Sciences Section, Sanitary Engineering Section and Optometry Section.

Public Invited to OCS Parade; Senior Candidates 'Turn Blue'

The public is invited to a "Blue Day" Review at 10 a.m. Saturday on Fort Benning's Stilwell Field.

Scheduled as part of the post's celebration of Armed Forces Week, the event is a highlight of the Infantry Officer Candidate Course at The Infantry School.

"Blue Day," a senior status review, marks the beginning of the final phase of 23 weeks of officer candidate training.

120 Paraders

The parade will be staged by 120 candidates in class No. 3, members of 50th Company, 5th Battalion, Student Brigade.

Brig. Gen. Royal Reynolds, assistant commandant of TIS will be the reviewing officer.

Established in 1951 by the First Officer Candidate Regiment, the senior status review usually falls on the Saturday morning of the 19th week of training for an officer candidate company.

An intermediate goal in the training, second in importance only to graduation, "turning blue" gives a candidate four weeks experience as a "junior officer."

As a "senior officer," a candidate has special privileges. He wears the traditional Infantry blue tabs on the epaulets of his uniform and a blue patch on his cap

From "Blue Day" to graduation the senior candidate is known as a "Blue Beetle". He is permitted to make on-the-spot corrections and give advice to junior candidates.

Extra privileges for "Blue Beetles" includes overnight passes on weekends.

The "Blue Day" review marks the last event of the local observance of Armed Forces Week.

Gen. Kelly Speaker At Searchlight Tattoo

The security of the free world today is threatened by an implacable adversary that recognizes no god but the god of force and honors no flag except the flag of despotism, Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly, deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, told an audience of 3,000 at the Searchlight Tattoo ceremonies Monday evening at the Municipal Auditorium.

In the impressive observance of massing of the colors of the United States, the 50 states, the UN and allied nations represented, Gen. Kelly added, "The adversary holds that freedom and liberty are outmoded concepts which must give way to a dogma that subjugates the individual and calls religion the opium of the people."

Rededicate Flag

Amid a fanfare of band music, cadet drill teams, displays of the flags of Allied nations and intermittent rifle firing, the rededication of the American flag was one of the highlights of Searchlight Tattoo.

Gen. Kelly said, "All that stands between this adversary and his ugly design of world conquest is the determination of the American people and our allies. We should ponder this fact tonight as we pledge our allegiance to the flag."

"We should remember that our flag not only symbolizes the security of America but also represents the strength of our Armed Forces which are dedicated to support freedom throughout the world," he added.

"The American flag represents more than military strength and determination. It is a symbol of hope and encouragement for oppressed millions behind the iron and bamboo curtains," he continued. "It stands for the alliance for progress in Latin America, it means tangible help in food, in machinery, in technical aid to the people in Asia, Africa and elsewhere, who are working to build better lives and to free themselves from poverty, disease and ignorance."

As the audience listened solemnly, Gen. Kelly's words carried to the far reaches of the auditorium. "It is well to remember with pride as we look at our flag that America has never been defeated and will not be defeated so long as we have the will to defend at all costs the principles for which our flag stands."

As part of the colorful annual ceremonies, personnel of the Army, Marine Corps, Navy and Air Force took the salute to the Armed Forces.

The Columbus High School ROTC Drill Team, the Bates Brigade from Chattanooga City High School and the Millsaps Rifles of Chattanooga Central High School gave a crowd pleasing demonstration of close order drill and rifle manipulation.

Tableaux by the 6th Marine Corps Reserve and Recruiting District, Atlanta, commemorating the historic flag raising on Iwo Jima in World War II and The Fort Benning Special Services representing "I Am The Infantry," portraying the historic role of the foot soldier, also were well received by the audience, consisting of military personnel and civilians.

Will Install New AFMA Officers

The Fort Benning chapter of the Armed Forces Management Association will hear an address Thursday by Leavitt S. White of Atlanta, Southern manager of DuPont Company's Extension division.

The meeting, scheduled for 7 p.m. at the Custer Terrace Branch of the Main Officers' Open Mess, will include installation of officers.

Reservations for the dinner meeting may be made by telephoning LI 5-1033 or LI 5-3614 before 5 p.m. Monday (May 21).

White will speak on "Growth Unlimited," reviewing factors which have spurred U. S. economic growth in the past and their application to growth in the 1960's.

The speaker has been with Dupont company since 1941. He has edited the company's two magazines, "Better Living," and the "Dupont Magazine," and is the author of articles on economics subjects.

Underwrite U. S. Might With Bonds, Not Bondage

People in the Armed Forces and their families are being urged, this month and through June, to take part in the 1962 Freedom Bond Drive — the first such campaign to be launched by the Treasury since the Korean War. The fact is, none of us should need much persuasion to act in what is so obviously our own best interest—Savings Bonds are a bargain, as Americans have demonstrated by buying more than $44 billion worth in the past 21 years.

You might say, in short, that these bonds have become a fixture of what we call "the American way of life." Every time we add to our Series E or H collection we are practicing democracy in its most fundamental form — we are investing in the future. That future is two-fold—it is the nation's, as the greatest power of the Free World, and it is our own, for each bond we acquire strengthens our own financial security.

How unique this opportunity is, which the Savings Bond program offers us — a chance to be patriotic in a practical manner and make a tidy profit in so doing. Can we think of any other investment offering greater satisfactions? Can we think of a safer one?

Underwrite Your Country's Might — Keep Freedom in Your Future. These are the slogans of the Freedom Bond Drive. They should bring enthusiastic response from Americans of all groups. But if there is any one group that should demonstrate a special kind of alacrity in answering their call, that group is surely us — the men and women of the Armed Forces. Like Savings Bonds, we are a vital part of America's security. Our leadership in the weeks ahead should set a pattern for others to follow. (AFPS)

The Surgeon Says:

By Major Paul E. Siebert, MC

When entering the hospital or dispensary as a patient, you are seen by either the ward physician or the dispensary doctor. He determines the nature of your illness and the best method of treatment and cure.

Many times the only physician you see will be the one who takes your history, examines you, and prescribes your treatment. There are, however, many facilities he calls upon for assistance, such as the laboratory and the specialty clinics.

When your doctor examines you he determines what tests and examinations are necessary. One of these examinations may well be some study done in the X-ray clinic.

Upon being directed to the department, you will be given an X-ray request slip indicating the nature of your difficulty, the area to be examined, and all information necessary to enable the X-ray physician to interpret your films.

Information will be obtained from you so that your record can become a permanent X-ray service file. You are assigned an X-ray number which your doctor uses to locate your records or to transfer to other hospitals.

At Martin Army Hospital a card system is used. You will be given an orange card with your name and X-ray number which should be retained by you. If, at any time, you are re-X-rayed or need to pick up your films the card should be presented.

A radiologist is in charge of the X-ray service. His job is to assist the clinical physician who is taking care of you in every way possible. Since he functions as a consultant, only very rarely will you see him.

The person with whom you will be primarily concerned is the X-ray technician. The technician has been trained in the technique of taking X-rays. The positioning and types of examinations are determined by the radiologist, the technician is carrying out the radiologist's orders to get the best films possible for evaluation of your particular problem.

Many of the positions you will be asked to assume may be strange, but these have been determined over many years to be the best for obtaining the maximum amount of information.

The technician is not a physician but a specialist in obtaining films of the highest quality.

An X-ray film is a picture much like any other photograph. The amount of X-ray that passes through the various portions of the body expose varying degrees of darkness to the film. The X-ray film, which is similar to a photograph negative, shows bones as white and various

'I Am an American' Day Every Day in the Year

There couldn't be a better time for observance of "I Am an American Day" than the third Sunday in May which this year falls on the 20th. For that date is the final day of Armed Forces Week, and Americans young and old, both in and out of uniform, will have been quickened by the demonstrations and displays of the military might, the Power for Peace, that guards their freedoms.

When Congress set aside this day 22 years ago the nation was only a year and a half away from entering the greatest war in its history. We did not know then—although the portents were numerous—that years of American sacrifice and bloodshed lay ahead. But we came out of the war with a deeper, clearer personal sense of what it means to be able to say, "I am an American."

One basic meaning must be that of affirmation—not the negative hysteria of the extremist who cries from his housetop that he is more of an American than the next man and that anyone who disagrees with him is suspect of disloyalty. The third Sunday in May must never become a day of "I Am an American But You're Not!" For to love your country is, after all, a sheer impossibility if you malign the character and integrity of your fellow countrymen whose patriotic service in public life is indisputable.

To be an American, then, is to turn a deaf ear to zealots and extremists intoxicated by their group-fanaticism. It is to maintain a rational perspective on the dangers that beset us as a nation from without and on the leaders best qualified to cope with them. Healthy patriotism is marked by assurance and a belief in unity.

Are You Really A Man?

By Chaplain (Capt.) Robert A. Salemme

Are you really a man?

This question may seem absurd and may even cause some to question the intelligence of the person making the inquiry.

This question does not refer to the biological make-up of an individual, but the qualities, character, and virtues that differentiates a mature person from one who is immature. Therefore, the question is asked that it might stimulate self-analysis. For a "Man," or mature person, is first of all a rational being, one able to reason things in his own mind and reach logical conclusions.

You may ask the question, "When does an immature person reach maturity?" or, "When does a boy become a man?"

This is truly in line with reasoning on the part of you who are confronted with such a question. Therefore, to answer such questions we must note the true make-up of a man.

Being a rational person, one must then assume a sense of responsibility, for himself, his family as well as others. Responsibility is a definite mark of a man, and a man is always considered to be a leader, whether in his home or at work.

To a rational person, would a man be considered a "Man", if he turned his back on his own family in need? No, I believe you would consider him a "lout" a "good for nothing," a "shirker." So is the reflection each of us makes upon those viewing our activities. Either we are considered a "Man" or a "good for nothing" as we assume or shirk our responsibilities each day.

Responsibility involves how we care for ourselves physically, mentally and spiritually as well as our relationships with our fellowmen with whom we must work.

Responsibility leads us many times into the face of ciriticism. . .some constructive, some destructive. Can we face such criticisms and still remain the leader capable of great responsibilities, or would we become disturbed, fly off the handle and say or do things irrational? This is one point when a man truly proves himself to really be a man by accepting criticism in any form and with determined courage pursue the course that would bring about unity in any given situation.

The Judge Says . . .

Use Care in Installment Buying

There are times when all of us should learn to say no! Certainly not in the line of duty. However, let us take for example a typical day in the life of Sgt. and Mrs. I. Needit (or Lt. and Mrs. I. Wantit.) Mrs. Needit is busily cleaning her home when a knock is heard — lo and behold an encyclopedia salesman, persuasive and slick, is at the door. No time is lost in convincing Mrs. Needit that she must have these encyclopedias. After all how can Sergeant Needit achieve his coveted E-8 without these books?

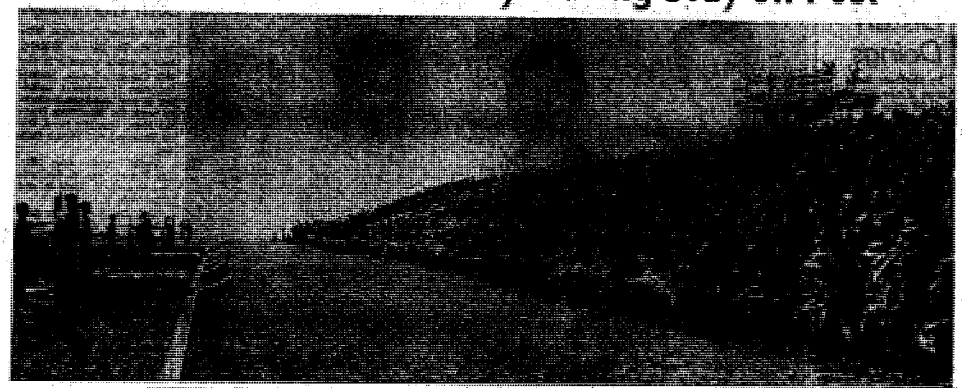
Of course, the Needits (and others like them) are living comfortably but they have budgeted their monthly income to include payments for the family car, a dishwasher, a wash machine (and dryer) and other desirable household impedimentia, and they cannot afford to further encumber their budget with additional outlays.



Mrs. Needit knows that she cannot pay for these books, but alas and alack, she can't say no. Problem is how to get rid of this "guy" without hurting his feelings. Well, Mrs. Needit signs the little paper (with all those words—you know the ones I mean) thinking that she can always cancel, or if not, have her husband refuse to pay, and that will settle the matter.

Ha! Sergeant Needit returns from the field and he is met with an accomplished situation — his basic pay plus some is signed away for over a period of a year in neat installments.

There enters the legal assistence officer because the first people the Needits tear-

Engineers Support Demonstration

Men and equipment of Headquarters and Company A, 489th Engineer Battalion, were used in support of 5th Special Forces, from Ft. Bragg, N.C., recently for demonstrations held at Victory Pond.

The demonstrations were given to show the combat capability of the Army's specialized force to conferees in the Joint Civilian Orientation Conference. The men of the 489th were used to assist in setting up the area at Victory Pond for the displays, exhibits and demonstrations.

The Engineer's were also active in the combat demonstrations portraying roles as friendly foreign forces receiving the assistance of the Special warfare.

WASHINGTON MONUMENT

The Washington National Monument is a tapering shaft or obelisk of white marble, 555 feet, 5⅛ inches in height and 55 feet, 1⅛ inches square at the base. Eight small windows, two on each side, are located at the 500 foot level, where Washington points of interest are indicated.

NCO's

Distaff Doings

By Marianne Kelly

Election of new officers was held at the NCO Wives Clubhouse recently.

The following are new officers: Mrs. Robert E. Lamb, president; Mrs. William E. Krilling, first vice president; Mrs. Claude Valentine, second vice president; Mrs. Rocco Di Lorenzo, secretary; Mrs. Othon O. Valent, treasurer, and Mrs. George Boothe, assistant treasurer.

Good luck to all these ladies. We are sure they will do a fine job.

A pot luck luncheon preceded the election. The table looked like a gourmet's convention with the variety of delicacies.

Change of Pace

For a change of pace the NCO Wives got together for a picnic at Victory Lodge. Too bad so many had to miss this.

Some of us traveled out there rather reluctantly but we sure weren't sorry we made the trip. Everyone had a barrel of fun playing volley ball, participating in sack races, three-legged races and other sports.

Again there were tables laden with delicious food and the idea of a softball game was quickly abandoned in favor of relaxation indoors.

Some of us were brave enough to practice the "Twist."

We finished off the afternoon with bridge and all went home dusty but happy. We'll have to try that again soon. It was all Dottie Rentrop's idea and it was a brilliant one.

Installation

New officers will be installed Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the Clubhouse. A candle-light buffet supper is planned for the evening. Be sure to attend the gala affair.

No Summer Bridge

There will be no bridge games during the summer, as participation has dropped off considerably. If interested players can be found, we will be more than glad to start our Tuesday sessions again. Any one willing to play please call Bertha Bleis at 544-3967.

LIKELY STORY

Grand Rapids, Mich., policeman finally caught a 70-year-old woman motorist he had been chasing. She had backed into a parked car and drove off. She denied that she had hit anything, and when asked how she got the dent in her bumper, she replied, "That's not my bumper. Someone has taken my bumper and put that one on."

(L TO R) MESDAMES SETTLE, PORTERFIELD, DIPPOLD, And Aubuchon Were Hostesses For Signal Ladies Coffee At MOOM

May Pole Sets Theme Of Signal Ladies Coffee

A coffee table decorated with the traditional May Pole and miniature May Baskets in light pastel colors set the scene for a recent coffee held by ladies of the 156th Signal Battalion, 1st Infantry Brigade, at the Main Officer's Club.

Ladies of Company C, 204th Signal Battalion, were hostesses. Mrs. John Hare, wife of the 1st Infantry Brigade adjutant, poured the coffee for the Spring festivity.

Entertainment for the social affair was provided by Mrs. Virginia Settle. Mrs. Settle rendered vocal selections from two Broadway shows. The renditions included 'Wouldn't It Be Lovely' from "My Fair Lady" and 'Til There Was You' from "Music Man." Mrs. Gladys Gaylord was her accompanist.

Mrs. Settle has appeared with the St. Louis Civic Opera Association, singing the part of Flora in "La Traviata" by Verdi. She also sang with the St. Louis Symphony as soprano soloist in "Martyrdom of St. Sebastian."

During the coffee, silver baby's cups were presented to Mrs. Grant Swift and Mrs. Robert Noren by Mrs. Bertine Dye. Both are mothers of baby boys.

Ladies of the 204th Signal Mesdames Aubuchon, Dippold, Settle and Porterfield. Hostess for the next coffee will be Mrs. Swift.

DRASTIC MEASURES

A London woman told a court recently that she would stand bail for her 17-year-old son under these conditions: that he get his hair cut and stop wearing jeans.

OC Wives Club Holds Coffee at 50th Company

The Officer Candidate Wives Club, The Student Brigade, held a coffee recently in the 50th Company lounge. Attending were 47 members including 18 new members. Hostesses were the Mesdames Dorothy Reno, Charlotte Reed, Hilda Trammel and Viriene Griffin.

Special guests were Mrs. Ben Harrell, Mrs. R. Reynolds Jr., Mrs. O. R. Koch Jr. and Mrs. Vern L. Joseph.

Capt. Douglas Fingles gave a briefing on Blue Day activities, including the parade, coffee and dinner-dance. "Blue Day" marks the reaching of senior status for the candidates, and is second in importance only to graduation.

Command, Staff Ladies Have Lunch At MOOM

Ladies of the Command and Staff Department held their bimonthly luncheon at the Supper Club recently. Invitations to the affair told the horoscope of those attending. More than 65 ladies were present. Mrs. Royal Reynolds was honor guest for the occasion.

Golden spheres centered with mobile of zodiac birth signs directed the ladies to their proper table. The head table was centered with a larger version of the sphere containing a mobile with all twelve zodiac signs. Ivy and pink rambler roses completed the table decor.

Members of the Associate Arms Group, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Sydney E. Sacerdote, were in charge of decorations and arrangements.

Col. Sydney E. Sacerdote, the surprise guest for the luncheon, entertained the ladies with a series of piano monologues and readings.

After the program, Mrs. Samuel W. Koster welcomed the new ladies to the department, Mrs. Douglas Schneeman, Mrs. W. C. Camper, Mrs. C. H. Orr, and Mrs. T. L. Graham. Farewells were extended to Mesdames Theodore Leonard, W. L. Maloney, J. P. Starker, L. S. Stickney, T. S. McLean, A. H. Weisenfeld, L. E. Barlow, M. D. Vancil, M. G. Stafford, A. H. Anderson, L. B. Fitzmorris, J. E. Bagley, A. C. Page, and Roy M. Hirano.

Mrs. Richard W. Keyes and her mother, Mrs. W. L. Blair were special guests of the Command and Staff Department. Other guests included Mesdames W. M. Summers, Cyril Sterner, Neol Messesly, Rutland Beard, John W. Williams, L. J. Williams, L. R. Hathaway Sr., J. P. Leighton, F. L. Berlin, R. W. McDowell, Merit Booth and J. H. Craig Sr.

Assisting Mrs. Sacerdote with arrangements for the luncheon were Mrs. Albro L. Parsons, Mrs. Albert E. Seifert, Mrs. James H. Phillips, Mrs. Andrew H. Anderson, Mrs. Elton E. Buchanan, Mrs. Douglas S. Smith, Mrs. Lawrence B. Fitzmorris, Mrs. M. L. Waring, Mrs. James E. Echols, Mrs. John F. McCarthy, Mrs. James E. Bagley, and Mrs. Bernard Turkla, reservations.

The luncheon was concluded by Mrs. Sacerdote with a rendition of each lady's horoscope for the day.

Corregidor Room Site Of May Tea

The ladies of the Weapons Department, The Infantry School, held a tea recently in the Corrigedor Room of the Main Officers Open Mess.

Hostesses for the occasion were the ladies of the Small Arms Committee under the direction of Mrs. Paul T. Ingle. Mrs. Thomas O. Richardson was chairman of the committee on arraagments which included Mrs. Elmer E. Watson, Mrs. Robert Byrum, Mrs. Troy N. Baxley, Mrs. Glenn T. Garner, and Mrs. William H. O'Conner and Mrs. William W. Gray.

A May Day theme was carried out by a May Pole with pastel streamers at one end of the room. The serving table, appointed with silver, and spread with a pink cloth overlaid with green net, was centered with a floral arrangement of roses in crystal. Pink candles completed the scene.

Medical Wives Gather

A Medical Wives Club brunch was held Friday, May 11, at the Custer Terrace Officers' Club.

Reorganization of the club was discussed, with five proposals being put before the membership. It was voted that, for the Summer months, volunteers will serve as the hospitality committee, and in the Fall the membership will select a nominating committee to present a slate of officers. Coffees and-or brunches will continue during the summer months at the Custer Terrace Club.

The gifts for the Martin Army Hospital Pediatric Service, voted on at the April meeting, were on display.

Thanks and appreciation were given to the 1961-62 officers and committee chairmen by the out-going president, Mrs. George B. Skipworth. She was presented with a silver dish by the Martin Army Hospital commanding officer's wife, Mrs. William A. Todd Jr.

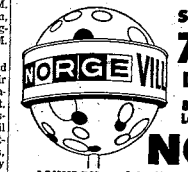
Mrs. Louis D. Dubilier was welcomed and farewells were said to Mesdames Leroy B. Dodd, Robert H. Carpenter, Sr., Sam McManus, Alan H. Wilde, Jonas Weissman, Ernest A. Showman, Jr., and Henry Fuller.

Bridge was played after the meeting and decorations included both brunch and bridge motifs.

Hostesses for the occasion were wives of the Obstetrics-Gynecology and Anesthesiology Services of Martin Army Hospital.

Wives of the X-Ray, Laboratory and EENT Services are the hostesses for June.

TSB Holds May Dance At MOOM



A Spring Formal Dinner and Dance sponsored by The Student Brigade was held recently at the Main Officer Open Mess Supper Club.

Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Royal Reynolds, Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School; Col. and Mrs. Richard W. Keyes, deputy assistant commandant of The Infantry School, and Col. and Mrs. Otto R. Koch, Jr., The Student Brigade commander, received the guests as they were announced by Capt. Birchard Roberts, 5th Student Battalion, TSB, adjutant.

Seated at the head table were: Gen. & Mrs. Reynolds, Col. and Mrs. Keyes, Col. and Mrs. Koch, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Lowell W. Hesser, TSB executive officer, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Gerald W. Smith, Infantry School Battalion commander, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Vern L. Joseph, 2nd Student Battalion commander.

Lt. Col. John H. Ramsburg, 4th Student Battalion Commander, Lt. Col. and Mrs. John W. McClain, 5th Student Battalion commander, and Lt. Col. and Mrs. Arthur J. Estes, TSB Chaplain.

Decorations for the evening social were comprised of blue and white streamers. Garnishing the head table was an arrangement of lavender irises, white gladiolus, baby breath and Margarette Daiseys.

Engineers Display Special Equipment

The preparedness of Army Engineers was displayed for Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly, deputy commander of The Infantry Center, recently when he toured the 577th Engineer Battalion area.

Four pieces of engineer equipment were on hand for the general's inspection.

First of these was a three-quarter ton contact truck, employed for on-the-spot field repairs. The vehicle is equipped with tools required in second echelon maintenance.

The general next saw the Pioneer Tool Trailer, containing electrically powered saws, drill presses, and power hammers. All are powered by a three-kilowatt generator mounted in the trailer.

Present Momento

At the shop truck, the third display pieces, Gen. Kelly was presented with a hammer which was machine-tooled on the truck.

Made from steel, the head and hollow handle of the hammer were turned on a lathe mounted in the truck. Finishing touches were put on the hammer in Gen. Kelly's presence.

The final display item was a mobile water purification unit mounted on a two and one-half ton truck. This piece was furnished by the 469th Engineer Battalion.

Consisting of a series of pumps and filters, the Erdalator purifies the most stagnant water in a few hours.

To prove its effectiveness, water contaminated with red, Georgia mud was put through the system. At the conclusion of the process, Gen. Kelly was served lemonade made from the purified water.

Accompanying Gen. Kelly on the tour were Col. S. Y. Coker, commanding officer of the 151st Engineer Group, and Lt. Col. James H. Boykin, 577th commander.

Jews Hold Special Conference

A five day "Creative Jewish Living" project will be conducted at Fort Benning tomorrow through Wednesday, Chaplain (1st Lt.) Naftali Friedman, post Jewish chaplain, has announced.

The program is part of a Jewish religious project to be conducted at selected Army installations.

Sponsored by the Army in cooperation with the Commission on Jewish Chaplaincy of the National Jewish Welfare Board, the project is expected to be a highlight of the Jewish chapel program for the year.

The five-day period of the project will include discussion groups to consider problems of family life, religious training of children, ethical values in the Bible and ideals of the Prayerbook.

There will be seminars, workshops and forums, conducted by outstanding leaders in the educational field, Chaplain Friedman said.

Vacation Bible School Meeting Slated Monday

A planning meeting for Fort Benning's annual Vacation Bible School will be conducted Monday at 9:30 a.m. at the Religious Education Center, Bldg. 2605.

Mrs. John L. Waldrop, director of Christian Education for The Infantry Center Chaplain Section, has announced a staff of approximately 200 will be required to operate the school.

Interested personnel are invited to attend the planning meeting.

Lt. Col. Huck Takes Helm At Div's 12th Artillery

BY 12TH ARTILLERY PIO

In a change of command ceremony held on Knight Field, Lieutenant Colonel Terence W. Huck assumed command of the 12th Artillery.

Lieutenant Colonel Huck accepted the battalion colors from the departing commander, Lieutenant Colonel Robert J. Craig. Lt. Col. Craig had been battalion commander since May 1, 1961 and has been reassigned to the Special Warfare Center, Fort Bragg, North Carolina.

Lt. Col. Huck comes to the 12th Artillery from Headquarters' 2nd Infantry Division Artillery, where he served as S-3 since his arrival at Fort Benning July 25, 1960. He has over twenty-two years service and was commissioned a Second Lieutenant upon graduation from Artillery Officer Candidate School in August 1942.

He has two tours of overseas service in Europe, having served other with the 179th Field Artillery Battalion in World War II and with Headquarters, V Corps Artillery from 1953 to 1956. He has also served in the Asiatic - Pacific Theater and Korea. Immediately preceding his assignment to Fort Benning, he served as Assistant Operations and Training Officer of Headquarters, I Corps (Gp) Artillery in Korea.

Col. Huck completed the Associate Course at the Command and General Staff College in 1959, and has also completed the Special Weapons Staff Officer Course, and the Ranger Course.

He is married and has two sons and three daughters. His oldest son is also in service and is currently stationed at Fort Myer, Virginia. The colonel and his family reside at 239 Austin Loop, Fort Benning.

'Tattoo' Talk In Columbus Features CG

Members of the 2nd Infantry Division participated this week in the fourth annual Searchlight Tattoo ceremony, an integral part of the Columbus, Ga. observance of Armed Forces Week.

Keynoting the Indianhead Division's role was a speech Tuesday night at the Searchlight Tattoo ceremony by Major General Charles H. Chase, division commander.

Gen Chase Speaks

Speaking at the Columbus Municipal Auditorium to a near - capacity crowd, General Chase said our flag is the symbol of our peoples' national heritage. "We are gathered here to rededicate ourselves to the flag," he said, "and to the spirit and determination of men who fought for this country even before the flag was formed. This is what the flag represents today and is what we must be willing to fight for."

At the conclusion of his speech General Chase led the audience in the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag of the United States.

Members of the 2nd Division participated in several portions of the Searchlight Tattoo program including a Color Guard composed of Headquarters and Headquarters Company personnel in the Parade of Colors and Sergeant Donald L. Parker, representing the U. S. Army in the Salute to the Armed Forces. Not to be overlooked was the large number of uniformed 2nd Division men who attended the program and sat in a specially reserved section of the auditorium.

Adding color to the Tuesday night program was the Massing of the Colors. Flags of the

Div's G-2 Staff Section Insures Security With Intelligence Mission

This is the third in a proposed series of articles spotlighting 2nd Division General and Special Staff Sections. These articles are intended to better acquaint the Soldier with the function and duties of the many sections of 2nd Division Headquarters. The next section to be featured will be G-4 (Supply and Logistics).

The 2nd Infantry Division's G-2 section, headed by Lieutenant Colonel John B. Wine, assistant chief of staff, G-2, deals with matters pertaining to the enemy, weather and terrain, particularly where they fall into the categories of intellegence and counterintelligence.

Four general responsibilities and duties highlight the G-2 mission.

Intelligence

Generally, the G-2 directs, supervises and coordinates the planning, administration and operation of unctions pertaining to military intelligense and counterintelligence.

Secondly, for each projected operation within the division, the G-2 section prepares the intelligence and counterintelligence planning program, schedule or time table.

In keeping the command generally informed on matters of intelligence and counterintelligence activities, the Assistant Chief of Staff, G-2, aided by his staff of four officers and eight enlisted men, coordinates and directs the dissemination of all intelligence to the commander and all other interested staff sections and headquarters.

Since the overall success of the intelligence mission depends upon the alertness of every member of the command, the G-2 section coordinates with the G-3 training section in planning and supervising intelligence and counterintelligence training of all assigned or attached troops in the division.

Providing administrative support for the G-2 section is the administrative branch. Major Dave Termin Jr., the assistant G-2, has principal duties with the administrative branch. He is assisted in turn by the section's senior enlisted man, Master Sergeant Raymond W. Conover, intelligence sergeant.

Also in this branch are Specialist Four Steve Humphries, intelligence assistant and Specialist Four Thomas W. Glymph Jr., stenographer.

Administrative Support

In providing administrative support for the G-2 section, this section operates a section message center, maintains the section journal, control files and records, prepares section personnel reports and duty rosters. Lastly, when the G-2 section moves into the field or changes field positions, the administrative branch supervises moving and arranging with the Headquarters Commandant for transportation and allocation of space in the new area.

Captain Raymond D. Wentz, combat intelligence officer, heads the second major branch of the 2nd Infantry Division's G-2 section — the combat intelligence branch.

Enlisted men active in this branch are Specialist Four Ronald Wolff, intelligence assistant, Private First Class Kenneth L. Shipe, intelligence analyst and Private First Class Stan Virgulto, intelligence clerk.

This branch provides for collection and processing of information and dissemination of intelligence.

They maintain enemy situation maps, a G-2 work sheet, collection plan and reconnaissance and surveillance plans. The branch also conducts briefings on the economy situation and area of operations.

Preparing intelligence estimates, analyses of area of operations, plans, annexes, summaries and intelligence portion of the division field Standing Operating Procedure, the combat intelligence branch indicates parts of these documents to be prepared by other branches and consolidates their work.

Future Operations

Also listed among their responsibilities are such things as conducting research and planning for future operations, arranging intelligence liaison with higher, lower and adjacent headquarters, supervising the procurement and distribution of maps throughout the division and supervising the prediction of radioactive fallout from enemy weapons, monitoring and surveying radioactive contamination from all weapons.

Also in conjunction with the last duty, the combat intelligence branch maintains a record of potential nuclear targets.

A responsibility that rounds out the operations of this branch is the processing of applicable security clearances for all officers and men of the 2nd Infantry Division.

The division's G-2 Air is Captain Arnold Dryer Jr., heading the coordination, collection and dissemination of all information concerning the location, strength, disposition, military installations and movements of the enemy as usually observed, sensed or photographed from the air. Capt. Dryer is assisted by Captain David S. Moore, the assistant G-2 air.

The enlisted men working with these two officers is Specialist Seven Jackson J. Busch, currently on special duty to the G-2 section from the 2nd Military Intelligence Detachment.

There are nine basic functions of the 2nd Division's G-2 air.

First, he serves as the principal staff advisor on matters pertaining to air reconnaissance and surveillance.

He determines overall air surveillance and air reconnaissance requirements.

The G-2 Air recovers, processes, assigns priorities to, approves and requests fulfillment of requirements such as supervising and coordinating activities of imagery interpretors.

From Air Sources

He supervises dissemination of information and photography obtained from air sources. He also provides for briefing and debriefing of pilots on surveillance missions.

Rounding out his duties are the supervision of the division's aerial surveillance platoon, distribution and dissemination of weather information, and participation with the G-3 air in close air support planning.

When the division participates in an exercise or maneuver, the G-2 section receives an attached combat weather unit which initiates, coordinates and consolidates division requirements for weather information and the submission of requirements to the Army Weather Squadron for action.

It informs subordinate weather-capable units of weather data requirements established by the Army Weather Squadron.

Duties of the attached weather unit include providing required interpretation of weather intelligence, disseminating weather information and weather intelligence and coordinating with the Assistant Chief of Staff, G-3, on weather training of subordinate units.

Also attached to the G-2 section is the 2nd Military Intelligence Detachment, a Third U. S. Army unit commanded by Captain Richard E. Evers. This unit combines various intelligence and counterintelligence missions designed to maintain the security of the division.

MRS. ARTHUR A. TRITSCH, Publicity Chairman, Officers Wives Club ☆ ☆ ☆ MRS. JAMES J. TIGHE, Publicity Chairman, Ladies of the Big Indianhead

Mrs. James Kolb is Elected President of 1962 OWC

Election of officers for the coming year was the main order of business Tuesday at the 2nd Infantry Division Officers Wives' Club. The newly elected President is Mrs. James T. Kolb. First Vice President is Mrs. Bryan Evans Jr., Mrs. Robert C. Kendrick was named Second Vice President, Mrs. Kenneth D. Grade was elected Secretary and Mrs. Harry T. Hannon was named Treasurer.

The ladies of Division Trains were hostesses for the affair with Mrs. F. V. Harris acting as over-all chairman. In charge of decorations were Mrs. Walter Hibbard, Mrs. Woodrow Myers and Mrs. Samuel P. McManus, who chose a spring motif as a decorating theme. The tables were adorned with maypoles of lavender, pink and yellow flowers, entwined with ivy. Multicolor streamers were strung and caught with additional flowers at each place.

The head table centerpiece was a large maypole of fresh spring flowers in pink, yellow, blue and lavender. From the maypole streamers were strung and held with small figures of people made of pipe cleaners with wooden heads. The figures were designed to tie in with the events of the past year in the 2nd Division. The head table arrangements were made by Mrs. Dudley E. Pittman.

Mrs. C. O. Goodwyne and Mrs. Walter Smith had charge of name tags. The corsages worn by the nominees for office were made by Mrs. Charles M. Johnson and Mrs. T. J. Smith.

Mrs. Ralph H. Hughett, program chairman, presented a program of twelve tableaus, depicting the activities and accomplishments of the ladies of the 2nd Division during the past year. The Division Artillery units presented "College Age Socials"; the 122nd Signal ladies enacted "Fashion Shows"; Division Trains ladies portrayed "Mr. Morales and His School of Music"; and the 69th Armor distaff group presented "The Best Dressed Women in Columbus." Also included in the program were the 2nd Aviation group with "Bowling"; Headquarters ladies with "Soldier of the Year Uniform"; 38th Infantry group with "Dancing School"; 9th Infantry distaffs doing "Hospital Coffees"; and the Engineer ladies with "49ers and Distaff Projects."

The wives of the 1st Infantry presented "Gray Ladies and Nurses Aides," and the 23rd Infantry group did a tableau depicting the presentation of china and cutlery to the Kelley Hill Chapel. The 87th Infantry group enacted "A Day in the Life of a Club President," and the 7th Cavalry ladies closed the program with a mock fashion show from "The Thrift Shop."

Special guests for the afternoon were Mrs. Royal Reynolds Jr. and Mrs. Frank A. Osmanski. Mrs. Reynolds presented a silver tray to Mrs. Louis A. Kunzig Jr., outgoing president, for her leadership during the past year.

Ballet and Tap Dancers Present Spring Recital May 20 at Auditorium

The Fort Benning Ballet School, sponsored by the 2nd Division Officers Wives' Club, will present its dance pupils in a spring recital on Sunday evening, May 20th at the Faith School auditorium.

Under the direction of Rossie Gilmore and assisted by Jean Smith, the program will be divided into two parts. Part one opens with tap dancing choreographed by Jean Smith, and featuring the tap students. Vicki Morales will perform a traditional ballet number, "Swan Queen Variation," with music by Tschaikowsky.

The second half of the program will be a ballet featuring all the ballet students in an original dance entitled "The Ballet Master," with choreography by Rossie Gilmore.

Music for the evening is by Mr. and Mrs. George Johnson.

Ballet classes for children are being held at building 1053 on Tuesdays and Thursday mornings during July and August.

Persons interested in enrolling their children in the dance classes should contact Mrs. Rossie Gilmore, FA 3-3072.

15th, 17th Arty. Set May Coffees

Two artillery units held social events recently.

The home of Mrs. Edward McDaniel was the setting for the 17th Artillery's monthly distaff coffee.

16 ladies attended the event, which was co-hostessed by Mrs. Marion Carrigan.

Mrs. James Gorum, whose husband, Chief Warren Officer Gorum, has been transferred, was asked to pour.

The 15th Artillery ladies held a coffee for May at the home of Mrs. Richard R. Sandall.

Mrs. Donald B. Roof, wife of Lieutenant Colonel Roof, battalion commanding officer, poured at a table centered with an arrangement of red roses.

A farewell was said to Mrs. Richard Boone.

Honored guests for the morning were Mrs. Donald H. Ruby and Mrs. Leonard J. Hansmann.

New Jobs for Officers Announced at 7th Cav

The 7th Cavalry recently went through a new shift in officer personnel.

Captain William E. Griffiths, former commander of Troop B, and Lieutenant Richard R. Maglin, the former S-3 Air, have exchanged places.

Captain Griffiths took command of Troop B in November of 1961 after returning from the Associate Advanced Armor Officers Course at the Armor School, Fort Knox, Kentucky.

Lt. Maglin was assigned as S-3 Air in April 1962 after being transferred from the 38th Infantry as their Reconnaissance Platoon Leader. Lt. Maglin is a graduate of the United States Military Academy and was a member of the Class of 1959. He is a graduate of the Ranger and Airborne Courses.

Lieutenant Frank Brown, who was the Support Platoon Leader upon his assignment to the squadron, was transferred to Troop A as their Executive Officer. Lt. Brown's successor is Lieutenant Joseph Herzog, formerly of Troop B, who was a platoon leader. Both officers were assigned to the squadron after attending the Armor Officers Orientation Course, Fort Knox, Kentucky.

Lieutenant Jack Thomas, who was a platoon leader in Troop C, was transferred to Troop A as a platoon leader. Lt. Thomas was assigned to Troop C upon his arrival at "Garry Owen" in June 1961, from the Armor Officers Orientation Course.

Lieutenant James Newton and Lieutenant John Ames, both former members of Troop C, have been assigned to the S-3 Section as liaison officers. Both officers have been with the squadron since September 1961.

Lt. Col. John Finnegan, Left, and SFC James Garner

Two Become 1st Lieutenants in 15th

By 15th Artillery PIO

Two officers assigned to the 15th Artillery have been promoted to the rank of first lieutenant.

Lieutenant George S. Green was promoted to his present rank during a field exercise near Kyle Range. Lieutenant Green was acting at the time as an artillery forward observer and was working with Company A, 1st Infantry, and Company D, 69th Armor. The commanding officer of the 15th Artillery, Major J. F. Kania, presented Lieutenant Green with the insignia of rank shortly after the critique of the problem.

Lieutenant Green, 24, is a graduate of Bucknell University, Lewisburg, Pennsylvania.

Lieutenant James K. Mawhorr was promoted at a ceremony at battalion headquarters. Major Kania presented Lieutenant Mawhorr with his insignia. Lieutenant Mawhorr is assistant executive officer of Battery B, 15th Artillery. Before taking over his present job, he was the battalion's liaison officer.

Armed Forces Week

Third U. S. Army, U. S. Army Infantry School, 2nd Infantry Division, the 50 States, the United Nations and the flag of each friendly member nation were displayed.

The Searchlight Tattoo was originated in Columbus by Robert M. Barr, director of the Jordan Vocational High School Band, and was sponsored by the Columbus Chapter of the Military Order of World Wars.

Parade Today

Today, a giant Armed Forces Day parade will be staged in Columbus. Units from the 2nd Division furnishing men and equipment in the parade are to be the 23rd Infantry, 1st Infantry, 38th Infantry, Division Artillery, Division Trains and the 7th Cavalry.

Exhibits sponsored by the division have been on display this week in windows of numerous downtown Columbus business establishments. On public view are several weapons displays, medical, communications and portable electric power equipment, mannequins dressed in combat gear, experimental food items, battle streamers and silver trophies and a giant map outlining the routes followed by the 2nd Infantry Division in World War I, II and the Korean Conflict.

According to Captain John L. Padgett, division project officer, the Indianhead Division has made numerous commitments to supply men and equipment for out - of - town Armed Forces Week displays.

Earlier this week an L-19 and L-20 fixed wing craft were sent to Moody Air Force Base, Valdosta, Georgia. H-34 helicopters will be on display this weekend at Fort Jackson, S. C. and Raleigh, N. C. An H-13 helicopter was sent to Rome, Georgia.

Members of Company C, 23rd Infantry, as well as three field pieces from artillery units in the division will appear at Turner Air Force Base, Albany, Georgia. An "Honest John" rocket, an SS-10 anti-tank missile, a 105 millimeter howitzer and a wrecker will be on display at three separate sites in Atlanta, (The Government Employees Exchange, the Lenox Square shopping center and at Dobbins Air Force Base, which is located between Atlanta and Marietta, Georgia.)

An M-48 tank from the 2nd Division will be placed on display tomorrow at Dobbins Air Force Base and at Robbins Air Force Base, Warner Robbins, Georgia, on Sunday.

An Infantry weapons display will be flown down to Fort Lauderdale, Florida tomorrow. Both the plane and the weapons will be set up for public viewing.

Another 2nd Division section on the move this week is the Division Band, directed by Warrant Officer Darrel G. Blum. The musicians flew to Little Creek, Virginia Tuesday, returned Thursday and left again today for Miami, Florida. There, the band will take part in that city's Armed Forces Day parade and will present a concert at Miami's Municipal Auditorium. The band returns to Fort Benning on Sunday.

38th SFC Looks to 28 Yrs Service

Sergeant First Class James A Garner, having experienced 22 years active service in the U. S. Army, re-enlisted recently for six additional years duty.

Born in Rolling Fork, Mississippi, Sergeant Garner enlisted in the Army in 1940. Since then he has served at Ft. Hancock, New Jersey, Camp Chaffee, Arkansas, Ft. Polk, Louisiana, Ft. Riley, Kansas, and presently is Mess Steward for Headquarters Battery, 38th Artillery, where he received the Best Mess Award four times.

He served with the 1st Infantry Division in Germany where he experienced three years of combat during World War II. Also, he has served in Yokohama, Japan, and Taegu, Korea where he participated in six months combat during the Third Korean Winter and Korean Summer-Fall campaigns of 1953.

LEAVES 23RD . . . Lt. Col. John V. Swango recently departed the 23rd Infantry for duty in the Far East. He served as executive officer of the 23rd Infantry since December 1961.

2nd QM Wins Trains Award

Lieutenant Colonel Frederick V. Harris, 2nd Division Trains commander, recently awarded the Division Trains best mess award to the 2nd Quartermaster Company.

Sergeant First Class Porter T. Davis received the plaque for the third time in six months of actual competition.

Col Larson Succeeds Col Austin at First

Lieutenant Colonel James C. Larson has assumed the duties of deputy battle group commander of the 1st Infantry. He succeeds Lieutenant Colonel Charles F. Austin who has left the battle group for an overseas assignment.

Colonel Larson comes to the 1st Infantry from his prior assignment as Assistant Chief of Staff, G-4, 2nd Infantry Division.

A native of Stoughton, Wisconsin, Colonel Larson entered the service in March 1948, after graduation from the University of Wisconsin. He then attended Officer Candidate School, receiving his commission in December of the same year.

His first assignment was as a platoon leader with the 69th Infantry Division.

A veteran of World War II, he participated in the invasion of Northern France and made a combat parachute jump in France into enemy-occupied territory.

Colonel Larson has attended parachutist training school and the mountain and winter ski warfare school.

In 1958 he traveled to Taiwan, where he served with the Military Assistance Advisory Group, Republic of China. He returned to the United States in June 1961, to the 2nd Infantry Division for duty as the Divison G-4.

7th Cavalry Gets A 'Garry' Owen

The 7th Cavalry recently gained two new officers. Lieutenant Tommy R. Mason and Lieutenant Garrett O. McRoberts have recently joined the "Garry Owen" squadron from the Armor Officers' Orientation Course, Fort Knox, Kentucky.

Lt. Mason has been assigned to Troop C and Lt. McRoberts has been assigned to Troop B, both as platoon leaders.

Lt. McRoberts has the nick name of "Garry" and his middle initial "O." stands for Owen. The squadron is "pleased" to have Garry Owen join "Garry Owen".

INSPECTING NEW MULTI-FUEL TRUCK AT 702ND ORDNANCE

New Multi-Fuel Trucks Begin Arrival in Division

By 702nd Ord. PIO

The new, high performance, multi-fuel powered two-and-one-half ton truck has started to arrive in the 2nd Infantry Division.

This vehicle, designated the M35A1, is scheduled to replace all other two-and-one-half ton cargo trucks within the 2nd Infantry Division in the near future.

In appearance, the M35A1 closely resembles the two-and-one-half ton "Reo" Cargo with the US Army, with a few minor differences. However, the major difference will be noted when this vehicle is re-fueled. As the name implies, this vehicle is capable of, and does operate on gasoline, diesel, kerosene, and several other types of engine fuel, and will perform equally as well on any of these fuels.

Div. Trains Leads Divarty, 1st, Next

By Donald J. Lopata

A great deal of action took place during the second week of the 2nd Infantry Division's Softball Tournament, with Division Trains remaining undefeated, while both the 1st Infantry and the 87th Infantry suffered their first defeats of the season.

While the 23rd Infantry still has yet to win a game, 122nd Signal Battalion, 38th Infantry and Division Artillery have all gained their first victories this week.

Division Trains defeated the 1st Infantry 10-0 last Thursday, at Admin. Company Field. Because of the league rule which gives the win to the team leading by ten runs at the end of five innings, the game was called after the 1st Infantry batted in the first half of the fifth inning.

SPORT NEWS

Monday, May 14, Division Trains defeated the 23rd Infantry 5-1 in a game also played at Admin. Co. Field.

Separate Battalions (122d Signal Battalion) defeated the 23rd Infantry 13-5 in a game played last Thursday at Admin. Co. Field.

Division Artillery beat the 87th Infantry 8-6, last Thursday, at Kelley Hill's Essebagger Field, and then came back Monday, at Kelley Hill, to defeat the 38th Infantry 4-0.

In the only other game played last week, the 38th Infantry defeated the 23rd Infantry 8-7 at Kelley Hill. This game, played last Friday, was a make-up of the game originally scheduled for May 7.

Due to the power failure at Essebagger Field the game scheduled for last Monday between the 1st Infantry and the 87th Infantry has been postponed until a later date.

Last evening's action included: 1st Inf. vs. 23rd Inf. and 87th Inf. vs 38th Inf., at Kelley Hill; Sep. Bns. vs Div. Arty., at Sand Hill.

Monday's schedule includes: 87th Inf. vs Sep. Bns., at 6:30 p.m. and 1st Inf. vs 38th Inf., at 8:00 p.m., at Essebagger Field; Div. Arty. vs Div. Trains, at Admin. Co. Field, at 6:30 p.m.

BOWLING CHAMP . . . James Scott, Combat Support Company, 87th Infantry, appears to be contemplating the proper approach for scoring a strike. It must have paid off, for Scott, in the 2nd Infantry Division Bowling Championship, held April 27, took individual high game and individual high series trophies.

38th Beats 23rd Inf 8-7

The 38th Infantry evened up its season record at one win one loss in the 2nd Infantry Division Softball Tournament by edging out the 23rd Infantry 8-7 in a game last week at Kelley Hill.

The "Marnamen" nine jumped of to a 6-0 lead in the bottom of the third inning before the 23rd Infantry came storming back for four runs off 38th Infantry's hurler Telford Ross in the top of the fourth.

Pfc Lochow Tops in Both Golf, Bowling

High-scoring on the bowling alleys and low-scoring in the golf greens.

Those plaudits describe Private First Class William D. Lochow, a clerk in the S-1 section of the 38th Infantry.

Averaging a whopping 192 bowling average, he maintains a more than respectable 71 golfing average, with a one handicap. And after another year of Army service, he plans to go further in golf — eventually hoping to hit the professional tournament "gold dust" trail.

PFC Lochow, who is 23, has played golf since he was six years old. His home in Seattle was right next to a golf course, and he pursued his favorite sport with a passion, playing every night of the week after school, "rain or shine."

A four-year high school golf letterman, he finished fifth in the Pacific-Northwest Amateur Tournament when he was 16 and when 17 was one of the Washington state qualifiers for the U. S. Amateur Tournament but did not compete in the meet.

Just prior to this time, PFC Lochow started to try his luck as a bowler. In early 1961, he won the scratch singles tourney sponsored in Seattle by Boeing Aircraft Company, which employs some 60,000 employes there.

He put together a series of 264, 247 and 203 to top the competition and won $210. But just before his 714 series in the singles of this tourney, he pitched a wobbly 438 in doubles competition.

He also was among the top three keglers in the recent 2d Infantry Division Bowling Tournament held at Main Post.

Outside-Born Pros Number Record High

NEW YORK (AFPS) — Major league baseball reached an all-time peak in 1962 for the number of players born outside of the Continental United States.

California leads the nation in sending native sons to the majors, but for the first time in history there are more players born outside the Continental United States on major league rosters than there are natives of any other American state.

Reporting for training this spring were 75 Californians, but there were 71 "outsiders," giving them a wide edge over the second-place American state — Pennsylvania, with 59.

Players born outside the Continental United States came from Cuba (27), Dominican Republic (12), Puerto Rico (11), Canada (8), Venezuela (4), the Virgin Islands (3), Panama (2), and one each from Italy, Poland, and the Bahamas and Nicaragua.

Every club in the majors has at least one "outsider." The San Francisco Giants, with 10, top them all.

The Minnesota Twins and K. C. Athletics have seven each and the Pirates six.

Of the 50 states, Alaska, Hawaii and Nevada failed to provide even one representative. Maine, New Hampshire, New Mexico, both Dakotas, Utah, Vermont and Wyoming have one each.

Although Pennsylvania still rates second among the United States, third place New York closed the gap with 54 caodidates.

HUGH ROYER

Royer Takes Second In Magic City Open

Sp4 Hugh W. Royer, 128th Medical Company, 428th Medical Battalion, placed second in the Magic City Open Golf Tournament at Birmingham recently.

Bob Toski, winner of the 1956 Tam O'Shanter Open, took top honors by defeating Royer by one stroke. Royer's second prize money amounted to $650.

Sp4 Royer is no new comer to local golfing circles. After graduating from the University of Georgia in 1958, he won both the Georgia State Amateur Tournament and the Southern Amateur Tournament.

He made a professional golfing tour the following year. While on the tour, Royer won the Lake Charles Open Tournament and later placed eighth among the entries in the Texas Open at San Antonio.

He was recalled to active duty with the 128th Medical Company during the Berlin build up last year. Since coming to the post he has taken a part time job working at Ida Cason Callaway Gardens as a golf pro.

Royer is looking forward to the Post Tournament which will host the outstanding players of this area. The four low qualifiers in the open division and the two low qualifiers in the senior division will compete in a 3rd Army Tournament to be played on the Armed Forces Golf Course at Augusta.

GOOD GOLF

THE OVERLAPPING GRIP . . . No grip, no game. Settle on a grip only after you have tried the main variations and found the one with which you're most at ease.

The overlapping or Vardon grip has much to recommend it. The club in held in the last three fingers of the left hand and the first finger and thumb of the right. The left thumb setties into the right palm. The right thumb rides above and parallel to the left thumb. The hands overlap with the little finger of the right hand placed over the forefinger of the left.

The grip places the club under the authority of the fingers without sacrificing the needed power of the hands.

UMPIRING NOW

For the first time in nearly 30 years, Hal Martin, one of the "old pros" of Army baseball, will not be playing, instead he will be working as an umpire. Martin is stationed in Korea.

Teams Take Early 489th Softball Wins

Play got under way recently in the 489th Engineer Battalion softball league with opening game victories by Headquarters and C Companies.

In the opening game Company C dumped Company B, 9 to 2, and in the second contest Headquarters Company came out on top with a 17 to 8 trouncing of Company A.

The four team league will play a six game schedule, with each team playing the other two times. Winner of the league competition will play other league champions within the 151st Engineer Group in a group championship tournament.

Games will be played each Wednesday afternoon at Stroup Softball Field and will be officiated by members of the 151st baseball team.

Ty Cobb Named Greatest Pro

Tyrus Raymond (TY) Cobb, the "Georgia Peach," is named the greatest all around star in baseball's history. Batting left-handed and throwing right-handed, he played in 3,033 games, scored 2,244 runs, hit 297 triples and nine years made more than 200 hits in a season.

TSB Dumps 156th Signal Battalion to Grab First

By Sfc BISMARCK STITH

The Student Brigade moved into first place by defeating 156th Signal Battalion 8-5.

Charles Spell (4-0) registered 14 strikeouts to collect the victory while Paul Bando suffered the loss.

Bill Silva blasted a two-run homer and a single and Jesus Herrans smacked a home run and a triple to pace the winners. Milan Puregraski and Bill Hamilton led the losers with three singles each.

Engineers Split

151st Engineers split their two-game series by whipping The Infantry Center Troop Command 8-3 and bowing to The Student Brigade behind Larry Oates' (1-1) four hit pitching.

Behind the winning effort of Charles Bishop, who fanned 15 batters, the Engineers handed CTC their seventh straight setback. Harry Estes was hanged with the loss.

Leslie Lambert had four for four, all singles to lead the attack while Donald Kidd smacked out a pair of doubles for CTC. Harry Rhodes placed an inside-the-park homer for the losers.

In the TSB win over the Engineers, Reid Armstrong and James Brown cracked a pair of hits each for TSB and Herman Bayless had a solo homer for the Engineers.

Larry Oates got the win and Parker Humphrey suffered the setback.

10th Artillery Wins

The 10th Artillery picked up their fifth victory by defeating 156th Signal Battalion 9-3, with Joe Winchester (3-2) picking up the win and Don Rumvelt (2-2) taking the setback.

Robert Stewert's two - run homer sparked the winning attack while Paul Bando banged out three singles for the losers Houston Turner also contributed a pair of singles for the Artillerymen. Dick Siebert's one-run double paced the Signalmen.

Williams' Two-Hitter

James Williams (3-1) tossed a neat two-hitter as the 428th Medics rolled to a 9-0 win over CTC.

Rex Turner slammed a triple, double and single while teammate Gary Hess had a double and two singles to power the Medics to victory. Losing pitcher Floyd Olczak cracked a double for CTC. William Howard's single accounted for the loser's other hit.

Quote Of the Week

Los Angeles boxing promoter George Parnassus was dead serious when he announced in Madison Square Garden, that, "I'll give Rocky Marciano $1 million to fight Archie Moore." He went oo to say, "Rocky is a kid compared to Archie, even if he has been retired a while." When Marciano retired as undefeated heavyweight champion in 1956 he was 32. His last bout ended in a ninth-round knockout of Archie.

Frenchman Rides A Bicycle 109.6; Sets World Mark

Jose Meiffret, a French florist and former bicycle racer, using an old racing car as a windbreak, rode a bicycle for one kilometer at an average speed of 109.6 mph — faster than any man had pedaled the distance before. In doing so he broke his own previous record of 109.05 m.p.h., set in 1951.

COFIELD

Sound Call For More Post Gridders

Football silently creeps back into the sports spotlight here at Fort Benning and Doughboys' head coach, Capt. Leaton C. Cofield, states that he does not want to be caught short of a first class football team for the lack of players.

In a recent interview, he stated, "In order to have a good team, you have to show that you are trying to help them. In return, they'll play good ball for you."

He also said that, being from The Infantry Center, a lot is expected from the Doughboys. The post is nearly pressed into having a successful team. More players are needed to form a solid nucleus for the 1962 squad.

Light work-outs are scheduled to get underway the last week of July.

Anyone interested and with football experience is asked to contact him at 545-2812 or 545-3604.

Today's Sportrait

Pfc Gary F. Hess, 128th Medical Company, 428th Medical Battalion, was in the limelight for some time before entering the service.

His athletic career began in Munhall High School, Pittsburgh, Pa. He lettered in baseball, basketball and volleyball. In his senior year he was captain of the baseball team.

Hess entered Wesleyan College in West Virginia, in 1955 and continued his athletic career by lettering in track, baseball and basketball. While at college he participated in 141 basketball games. In West Virginia State Conference play Hess averaged 21 points per game leading his team to the State Championship in 1958-59.

While playing baseball in college, Hess was scouted by more than 15 major league scouts. After summing up the offers from each scout he selected the Red Sox in the American League.

HESS

Before being called up by the Reserves he played with Corning, N.Y. Class D, New York-Penn League. In 1961 he played with Winston-Salem, Class B, in the Carolina League.

Hess is now under contract with York, Pa., in the Class A, Eastern League. It is regarded as one of the best Class A Leagues in the country.

He is looking forward to being released from active duty under the 90 day ruling pertaining to professional baseball players. This means that Hess would be released on or about July 9 to join his teammates for the remainder of the season.

Pfc Hess played outstanding basketball here this year with the 428th Medical Battalion which captured The Infantry Center championship. He also started with the post team in the Third Army Basketball Championship play-offs held here in March. The Benning cagers came through as Third Army Runner-Up.

At present Pfc Hess is pilot-ing the 428th baseball team in the Major Unit Baseball League.

New Aviation Unit Would Battle Communist Insurgency From Air

FORT BRAGG, N. C. (ANS)—The Army has increased its ability to deal with Communist inspired insurgency with the creation of the 22nd Special Warfare Aviation Detachment here at the U. S. Army Special Warfare Center.

Current Special Warfare operations against Communist insurgency in Laos and Viet Nam have demonstrated the need for an aviation capability. The 22nd Avn. Det. is designed primarily to conduct counterinsurgency operations. It is anticipated aviation teams will be deployed in underdeveloped areas at the invitation of a friendly government.

The aviation detachment represents the Army's first operational requirement for armed helicopters. Four of the unit's eight H-34 helicopters will each be armed with forty-eight 2.75 inch rockets. Four smaller H-13 helicopters will be armed with twin .30-cal. machine guns. The unit's two L-19 light liaison planes and two AC-1 Caribou cargo planes will be unarmed.

Maj. Marquis D. Hilbert, Special Warfare Center aviation officer, says, "The detachment will be equipped with both helicopters and fixed wing aircraft to provide greater mobility. The airplane can carry greater loads greater distances, whereas we can take the helicopter into more confined areas."

In addition to providing firepower, the special forces aviation detachment will have the mission of civic action operations such as disaster relief, medical evacuation, transport of food, fuel, medical supplies, civic leaders and our own MAAG (Military Assistance Advisory Group) personnel. The light liaison planes will conduct reconnaissance missions over guerrilla held territory.

Five teams of the 22nd Avn. Det. will remain at Ft. Bragg permanently to develop and test tactical doctrine. The detachment commander, Maj. Lawrence M. Flannagan, says, "We have the double duty of being an experimental unit as well as an operational detachment. Since the concept of Army Special Warfare aviation is entirely new, naturally we will undergo a period of trial and error as we develop and test tactical doctrine."

Maj. Flannagan has assumed command of the aviation detachment with a great deal of enthusiasm. "I think we have an enormous potential." He considers the combination of Special Forces and Army aviation "the most natural mating you can imagine."

ARMY CATCHER

One of baseball's 1960 bonus players, Joe R. McCabe, is a private at Fifth Army Headquarters in Chicago. Joe was a catcher for the Minnesota Twins.

Headquarters, Co. A Chalk 489th Wins

Headquarters Company battled from behind to defeat Company B, 15 to 11 in a game that was played under protest from the fifth inning. Company B lodged the protest on an interference play at second base.

In the other game Company A turned a close contest into a rout in the fifth when they broke a 5 to 5 tie with 8 runs and tromped Company C 13 to 5. The game was stopped after five and one-half innings because of time limit.

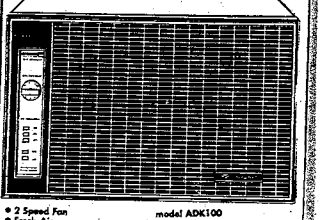
Engineers Celebrate Founding

The 806th Engineer Battalion recently celebrated it's "Organization Day" with equipment displays, games, and refreshments.



Intra-company competition in volleyball, tug-o-war, blindfolded horseshoe, three legged races, and wood chopping was held. The games were climaxed by the entire battalion participating in the "greased pig" chase. Sp4 Jerry D. Frazer of Company A, was the lucky winner. (His duty assignment — COOK).

Company D attained the highest number of points and won the Battalion Trophy.

AT THE Movies

LONELY ARE THE BRAVE stars Kirk Douglas and Gena Rowlands. It is an outdoor adventure of a cowboy rebelling against restrictions while respecting the free life of the open range. He plots a daring jail break for his imprisoned friend. The plan is perfect but the conscience - stricken prisoner refuses to escape and the cowboy becomes the target of a relentless police man-hunt.

FIVER FINGER EXERCISE is the story of a self-made business man who is unable to cope with his wife's excessive efforts to hold both her youth and her ambition. Unable to make their marriage work any longer, they find themselves at odds with each other and with their teen-age children. It stars Rosalind Russell, Maximillian Schell and Jack Hawkins.

soft tissues as shades of black or grey. There is no way to focus X-rays, so the X-ray "picture" is the same size as the part examined.

There is one case in which you may see the radiologist. This is at fluoroscopy. Many studies are done using the fluoroscope, which makes it possible for the doctor to see through the patient. With this examination it is possible to examine the living, moving, inside portions of the human body.

The heart size and shape and the nature of its beat can be directly examined. In many cases it is necessary for the patient to swallow some material which can be seen under the fluoroscope to outline the part studied. In one case it is barium.

As the patient drinks barium, the radiologist can see it in the patient's esophagus and stomach. By this method it is possible to outline ulcers and other conditions of the esophagus and stomach. Although fluoroscopy shows the parts of the body in action much of the fine detail cannot be seen except on films.

The final stage of the entire procedure is the film interpretation. The radiologist studies the films, correlates the information on the request slip with the findings on the film. He then renders a report to the physician.

The information in the report is integrated with all information obtained from the physical examination and from various laboratory studies. In the majority of cases, a diagnosis can be made and treatment begun.

Service Club Seeks Acting Talent

Tryouts for the musical play "1880" will be held at Service Club 3, Harmony Church, on May 17 at 8 p.m.

The play, planned as an outdoor presentation, will be given sometime in June. It is the story of two rival families of the 1880 period. The musical selections are choosen from popular Broadway musical comedies.

There are openings for interested personnel in all phases of the production. Musicians to construct a 10 piece band, actors and actresses who can sing, prop and stage assistants are all needed.

Know Your Senior NCOs

Charles G. Vickers is first sergeant of the 42nd Company, Airborne, 4th Student Battalion. The Student Brigade. Vickers is formerly of the 87th Infantry, 82nd Airborne Division, Fort Bragg.

Upon entering the Army in 1942 in Cumberland, Pa., the Airborne sergeant received his basic training at Camp Wheeler, Ga.

At the conclusion of his initial training, Vickers was sent to Camp Blanding, Fla., where he joined the 18th Infantry, 1st Infantry Division. Vickers stayed with the 1st Division throughout World War II until October 1945, when he was discharged from the service.

After a three-year lapse, E-8 Vickers reenlisted in October 1948, and was sent to Fort Hays, Ohio, on escort duty. At the completion of this tour of duty, the senior NCO joined his old outfit, the 18th Infantry, in Germany, where he stayed until August, 1952.

On his return to the U. S., Vickers was assigned duty at Fort Knox in August of 1954. The master jumper, with over 75 jumps to his credit, remained with the 11th Division when the unit was rotated to Germany. Upon the 11th's deactivation, Vickers joined the 24th Divison until July 1959, when he returned to the U.S., rejoining his former unit, the 82nd Airborne, at Fort Bragg.

The first sergeant, makes his home with his wife, Mary, and five children, Charles 15; Christine, 14; Tim, 11; Carl, 8, and Nickey, 10 months.

Charles, better known by his father as Bud, is already following in his father's footsteps, as he now is a veteran of 2 jumps from a civilian aircraft.

Top 100C Graduate Is Lt. Guinn

Lt. Guinn completed the course with an overall average of 95.5 per cent. Second in the class was 2nd Lt. John G. Spangler who scored 95.4 per cent. The class was of the 2nd Student Battalion, The Student Brigade.

Attending the ceremonies was Brig. Gen. Royal Reynolds, Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School. Gen. Reynolds congratulated graduating laison officers and presented each a "Follow Me" crest.

Col. Lattin spoke to the class of more than 150 on the importance of retaining techniques and principles taught during their course.

The graduates were urged to further their educations, both military and civilian, and become respected members of their communities.

Col. Lattin told the men to always remember they are graduates of The Infantry School, and Infantrymen.

MTU Shooters Are Facing European Marksmen

A power-packed group of shooters from the Army Marksmanship Training Unit are in Europe for two weeks of competition against European shooters. The matches are being hosted by shooters in Germany, Switzerland, Norway and Sweden.

"With the CISM (Conseil International du Sport) Matches and World Championships taking place this year our competitors need all of the experience they can get in this type of firing if we are to have a chance of winning," Col. Robin G. Montgomery, commanding officer of the Army's elite shooting unit, said.

While in Europe the firers, all of whom are candidates for the U. S. Team in the international events this year, are competing with the rifle, pistol, shotgun, and in Running Roebuck matches.

The Running Roebuck crew is led by U. S. International Champion, 1st Lt. Willis Powell and veteran international competitor, Sfc Loyd Crow Jr. With them is 1st Lt. John W. Turbush Jr., and Sgt. Norman L. Sharpness.

They fired in Oslo, Norway May 14-18, and wil fire against the Swedes in Copenhagen tomorrow and Sunday.

There are nine men on the pistol squad plus two others who will join the MTU shooters from the U. S. Army Europe Marksmanship Detachment.

Sfc William Blankenship, current National Pistol Champion, and Sfc Sam Hunter the U. S. International Free Pistol Champion are two of the topguns making the trip.

The handgunners faced a German team in Wiesbaden today, and were to journey to Biel, Switzerland, to compete in free pistol events Monday.

Capt. Daniel Puckel, wimner of the U. S. International Free Rifle 300-Meter Crown; Capt. Tommy Pool, Smallbore Prone Position International Champ; and veteran competitors, M. Sgt. William Krilling and MSgt. Eugene Spradlin anchored a nine-man rifle squad which will face the Germans in smallbore and free rifle matches today and tomorow.

The riflemen will then go with the pistol crew to Biel, Switzerland, to fire smallbore and free rifle events Sunday and Monday.

Completing the 38-man team are eight members of the unit's shotgun division. First Lt. Jimmy Clark, who holds the U. S. International skeet diadem, along with current Georgia State Trap Champion, 2nd Lt. William Brauer and 1st Lt. Gordon Horner, former the U. S. International skeet pion, will be in the vanguard of this strong team.

They fired 100 targets in trap at Darmstadt, Germany, on Wednesday, and 100 targets in skeet the same day in Wiesbaden. Today they will fire an additional 100 targets in both events at the same places.

The trap shooters will go to Berne, Switzerland for a 100-target match on tomorrow, while the skeet crew shoots at LaChaux-de-Fonds, Switzerland. Both teams will fire an additional 100 targets in the same cities Sunday.

All of the MTU shooters will return to the U. S. Wednesday except the trap team which will remain to compete in a match at Frankfurt, Germany, 26 and 27.

Major Fremont Burdick is officer-in-charge of the men while they are in Europe.

Others making the trip are: pistol: Capt. Cecil Wallis, M. Sgt. Frederick Schaser, Sfc Loyd Burchett, SFC Arthur Ogden, Sfc Henry Weinbrecht, Sgt. James McNally, and Sgt. Janusez Sicinski; rifle; Capt. Robert Lang, Capt. Phillip Cannella Jr., 1st Lt. Thurston Banks, 1st Lt. Robert Trew, 2nd Lt. Lones Wigger; shotgun; Major Henry Parr, S-Maj. Harold Grewe, MSgt. Henry Shaw, Sfc Kenneth Gilbert and Sfc. David Dunamoor.

Added to the team from Europe are Sfc Lawrence Moseley, Sgt. A. E. Smith, Sp5 J. Gunnerson, Sgt. William Davis and Capt. Henry Wentworth.

Officer's Wife Teaches 'Substitute Homemakers'

"Substitute homemakers" are being trained in a 60-hour course coordinated by a Fort Benning officer's wife.

Mrs. Thomas M. Scovill an experienced home economist, is conducting the third class in the course for home technicians.

The course opened last Monday with classes meeting from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Friday, at the Adult Education Center.

Successful completion of the course entitles a student to a home technician diploma, signifying that the graduate is prepared to take over the responsibility of managing a home in an emergency.

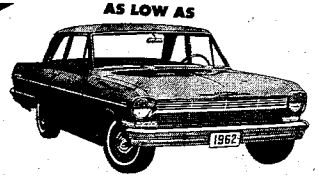
The diploma is presented by the Adult Vocational Department of the Muscogee County School District.

Graduates of the course may be employed to care for a sick person, manage a home while the parents are away on business or vacation, or help out in any emergency, Mrs. Scovill said.

To secure the services of a home technician, telephone the Georgia State Employment Service, FA 3-7371, or the Adult Education Center, FA 3-1261.

"Until this course was started in February, it was almost impossible to find a mature woman qualified to substitute for the regular homemaker in an emergency," Mrs. Scovill continued.

Mrs. Scovill is a graduate of the University of Georgia where she was awarded a bachelor of science degree in home economics.



She has taught home economics in high school and has served as a district home management supervisor of 23 counties in South Georgia.

She is the wife of Major Thomas M. Scovill, an instructor in the Doctrines Section of the Infantry School Command and Staff Department.

Airborne Personnel Section Moved

The Airborne Personnel Section, a branch of The Student Brigade, Personnel, has recently moved into a new building. The opening ceremonies at the new Basic Airborne Branch Personnel building were performed by Lt. Col. John H. Ramsbury, 4th Student Battalion commander, TBS. The building is designed to employ a new system in which Airborne trainees can be administered and returned to their duty assignments in a minimum amount of time.

The section, under the direction of CWO Anna Kryniski, and personnel sergeant, SSgt. Riley F. Chrestman, processes 700 students into the Airborne school weekly. They are also required to out-process one graduating class weekly.

It is the responsibility of this section to handle all personnel management, administration and pay records for all basic Airborne trainees assigned to the 4th Student Battalion.

The basic Airborne program has been in operation since December 1961, and since the recent consolidation of all Airborne training to this post, the members of the personnel section are now responsible for administering almost 2500 students monthly.

Padre Island, off the coast of Texas, has the longest reach of undeveloped seashore in the United States outside of Alaska.

Lt. McClain Honor Grad

2nd Lt. William J. McClain graduated Infantry Officer Orientation Course (IOOC), Class No. 13, 2nd Student Battalion, The Student Brigade, recently with top honors.

Lt. McClain completed the eight - week course with the highest overall average in his class, receiving a score of 94 per cent.

Col. John C. Cougill, chief, Field Equipment and Special Projects Division, The Infantry Board, was guest speaker for the graduation exercises. Col. Cougill, congratulated the honor graduate and presented him with his graduation certificate.

Col. Cougill spoke to the class of more than 170 on the importance of good leadership.

Courage does not mean physical strength, but is exemplified in continuance of a job until completion. Some of our forefathers, scientists, mathematicians and doctors have been called fools, dubbed dishonors to their professions. Columbus, Edison, Einstein, Doolittle, Patton and many others can be listed as men who stuck to their tasks amid all disheartenment, yet brought together the opposition in unity with the results of continued labors.

Yes, to really be a man, one must be ready to sacrifice time, talent and expend much energy to bring his given task, regardless of its minuteness or greatness, to a satisfactory completion. Then and only then can a man stand before others and accept the honor and praise of really being a man.

fully turn to are the attorneys comprising the Staff Judge Advocate Section and we are faced with the problem of convincing the Needits (and others) that they have, in fact, entered into a legal contract. Mrs. Needits signature is valid and binding even if Sgt. Needit did not sign or approve the bargain, and the company may hold her to it.

Tearfully, Mrs. Needit argued that because of "pressure" she was forced to sign and should not be held accountable. Unfortunately for Mrs. Needit, that is not the law. The contract is binding.

Many reputable concerns, for their protection and the buyers, have policies of refusing to contract unless both husband and wife sign. Regardless, the point of this article is that unless you really want something — and are able to afford it — say "no" and sign nothing.

IT'S A FACT

You can fry an egg in the waters of Lake Pontchartrain, near New Orleans, La. The water must first, of course, be heated.

EXERCISE CLEAR LAKE . . . Members of the 2nd Infantry Division (See story in 2nd Division section) will meet aggressor forces during exercise Clear Lake, at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla. Face to face with bayonets are (L) Sp4 James C. Long, "aggressor," and Sp4 Harold R. Miracle, both of the 2nd Division.

Firers Will Seek Top Titles Here

More than 1,000 rifle and pistol marksmen representing every major U. S. Army command throughout the world will compete in the 1962 All-Army Rifle and Pistol Championship Matches here June 7 through 15.

The championships are the Army's final test of the past year's progress in shooting, coaching and training skills and technical advancement in the small arms field and technique of training. This is a test in the soldiers' basic skill-proficiency in arms.

All major commands through area competition have selected teams to represent them. The teams bring the Army's most proficient shooters together in competition.

The Third Army, which finished its competition in April, shows tremendous potential in both rifle and pistol competition, according to officials. This was seen in the record-breaking victories posted in the area matches, they added.

Capt. Donald M. Blauvelt, commander of the Third Army team said, "Our prospects for the All-Army matches are outstanding. We have ten 2,600 individual pistol shooters this year which is nine more than any previous year."

He referred to marksmen who have fired 2,600 points or more in a grand aggregate match, the summation match in individual pistol competition.

Capt. Blauvelt added, "We have three winners from last year's All-Army Rifle Matches with us, due to transfers, and they show great promise. Teaming with Fort Benning's record-breaking Infantry Troopers Capt. Blauvelt spoke of, and poses a great threat to all veteran contenders, according to records and officials.

SFC William B. Blankenship, a member of the Marksmanship Training Unit, three years the winner of the individual All-Army pistol honors and a national champion, will be on hand again this year to try to take his fourth All-Army title.

Other commands participating will be the First, Fifth and Sixth Armies, Alaskan Command, Caribbean Command, Military District of Washington, and individuals and teams from the Army's Reserve components.

He is one of the new shooting winners, our rifle team promises to be very strong."

In summing up, he said, "The prospects are very good, not only in veterans but in the new shooter category, too."

A bright new pistol shooter, PFC Rexford V. Baker, Headquarters, XVIII Airborne Corps, Fort Bragg, broke five records in Third Army competition and was only one point under the coveted 2,600 point mark in the grand aggregate match.

He is one of the new shoot-

'Clear Lake' Underway

Members of the task force for Exercise Clear Lake arrived here Tuesday to set up the marshaling area for the STRIKE Command training exercise, being held at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla. It will continue through June 10.

Heading the group is Maj. Gen. Richard T. Coiner, Jr., commander of the Ninth Air Force at Shaw Air Force Base, S. C. He has been named by Gen. Paul D. Adams, commander in chief of STRIKE, to direct the maneuvers.

Accompanying him is Brig. Gen. Hallet Edson, assistant division commander of the 101st Airborne Division, Fort Campbell, Ky., serving as deputy commander, and Col. Franklin A. Nichos, deputy for operation, 837th Air Division, also at Shaw, who is chief of staff.

Reserve's Support

Supporting the marshaling phase of the exercise is the 391st Engineer Battalion, a Reserve unit composed of elements from Rock Hill and Greenville, S. C., and Asheville, N. C.

Units participating include the 1st Battle Group, 502nd Infantry, 101st Division, which arrives from Fort Campbell today, and the 1st Battle Group, 38th Infantry, 2nd Infantry Division.

There wil be more than 7,000 men involved in the maneuvers.

Troops from the 101st will air drop into the area around Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., Tuesday, at which time they will begin to secure for the arrival later of the headquarters group.

Members of the 38th will be flown in as reinforcements.

The Army will display its fighting power from light hand

Cyrus R. Vance To Head Army

Cyrus Roberts Vance, general counsel for the Department of Defense, has been named by President John F. Kennedy to succeed Elvis J. Stahr Jr. as secretary of the Army.

Vance, 45, will take the position June 30, the date Stahr resigns to assume the presidency of Indiana University.

The appointment is subject to Senate approval.

A native of Clarksburg, W. Va., Vance graduated from Yale University and Yale Law School before joining the Navy in 1942. He served aboard destroyers in both the Atlantic and Pacific during his four years in the Navy.

Vance began his government service in 1957 when he took a position as special counsel to the Preparedness Investigating Subcommittee of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

VANCE

He served in that capacity during the inquiries into the missile and satellite programs in 1957 and 1958. He also worked in the hearings on the defense program and space activities in 1958.

In 1958, Vance acted as consulting counsel for the Senate's Committee on Space and Aeronautics while that group was drafting the National Space Act.

Before taking his present position, Vance was a partner in the New York law firm of Simpson, Thacher and Bartlett.

He lives in Georgetown, a Washington suburb, with his wife and five children.

600 Attend Local AUSA Dinner Meet

An estimated 600 persons attended the spring dinner meeting of the Columbus-Phoenix City-Fort Benning chapter of the Association of the U.S. Army.

Principal speaker was Maj. Gen. Harvey J. Jablonsky, Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel, Department of the Army.

A report on the association's membership drive revealed that 115 new members have joined the roster since the

Memorial Day Rites Are Planned on Post

Post personnel will observe Memorial Day next Wednesday with services at 10 a.m. at the Post Cemetery and a flagstaff ceremony at 11:45 a.m. in front of The Infantry School.

For all except personnel engaged in essential duties the day will be observed as a legal holiday.

On Sunday, post personnel will participate in a memorial service sponsored by the Columbus Veterans Council. The service will be conducted at 2 p.m. at the Prisoner of War Monument at the intersection of Cusseta and Fort Benning Roads.

The Memorial Day service at the post cemetery will be preceded by a 15-minute concert by The Infantry Center Band, beginning at 9:45 a.m.

The invocation will be given by Chaplain (1st. Lt.) Naftali Friedman. Chaplain (Col.) Silas E. Decker will deliver a Memorial Day address.

A general officer of TIC will lay a wreath on a grave, assisted by a Boy Scout and a Girl Scout.

The benediction will be pro-where he operated a radio station before his entry into military service in 1942.

He was commissioned in August, 1943, and was subsequently assigned for duty as a radio broadcast officer with Armed Forces Information and Education.

Later assignments included tours of duty with the XVI Army Corps in the Far East during the Korean conflict, and at Camp Roberts, Calif., as an instructor in the field artillery before his arrival at Fort Benning in August, 1959.

As a member of the G-3 Section's staff, Col. Boatright was marksmanship officer before becoming match director, a position he held for the past two years.

He was responsible for the conduct and operation of the Army's competitive marksmanship program hosted annually by the Infantry Center.

A graduate of the Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kan., Col. Boatright is survived by his wife, the former Doris R. Kimball of Fort Worth, Tex., and three-year old son, Curtis Randall.

Interment will be at Barstow.

Lt. Westwick's Article Appears in Russian

If 1st Lt. John E. Westwick has any complaints about the publication of a scientific article he recently wrote, he will have to travel a long unfriendly road to lodge his complaint.

Westwick, an electronics engineer and an activated Reservist with the 223rd Signal Company, has received word from a consultant firm in England that a Russian technical magazine has reprinted an article he wrote while a civilian, working with Allison Division of General Motors.

Unclassified

The unclassified article, entitled "Dynamic Data Analysis by Digital Computers," was originally printed in a U. S. monthly technical journal called "Instruments and Control Systems."

The Russian version of the article was spotted by the British firm while engaged in a study of western literature published in Russia. The firm forwarded the text to Westwick.

Unable to read Russian, Westwick forwarded the article to a cousin serving as a Russian language specialist with the Air Force in the Aleutian Islands.

When the translation is received by Westwick, he will compare the original to the Russian version.

Hard to Understand

"It must have been hard for them to understand," Westwick commented. "They (the Russians) left out all the pictures and graphs that went with the original article."

Westwick is presently serving as radio maintenance officer and motor officer with the 223rd Signal Company which is attached to the 156th Signal Battalion at Harmony Church.

After receiving a degree in electrical engineering from the University of Iowa in 1956, Westwick took a job with the Rocketdyne Division of North American Aircraft in Calif.

Three years later he went to work for the Allison Division of General Motors Corporation in Indianapolis, Ind. Westwick now has six years experience with Analog and Digital Computers.

To date, Westwick has presented four papers on computers and Missile Control Systems. He is presently working on consignment for the TESLA Research Foundation, Salt Lake City, Utah, preparing a corespondence course on "Digital Computer Programing".

WESTWICK

Westwick's outside interests include rifle shooting and tennis. He was a member of the All-American Rifle Team in 1962. His less vigorous activities during his leisure time include science fiction reading, music, and spending time with his wife Carol and their three children.

After release from active duty, Westwick will return to Alison Division where he will assume his duties working with missile guidance systems and digital computers.

AUSA Elects New Slate of Officers

Lt. Gen. Milton G. Baker, Pennsylvania National Guard-Retired and Superintendent of Valley Forge Military Academy, Wayne, Pa., has been elected to an unprecedented third term as president of the Association of the United States Army (AUSA).

Elected to a first term as vice president was Major Gen. William J. Sutton, Army Reserve, of San Antonio, Texas. Active in San Antonio civic and military affairs, Gen. Sutton succeeds Karl R. Bendetsen, president of Champion Paper and Fiber, Hamilton, Ohio.

Ernest L. Massel, Jr., Fayetteville, N. C., has been elected to a three-year term on AUSA's Council of Trustees, replacing Paul L. Davies, chairman of the board for FMC Corporation of San Jose, Calif.

Rounding out the slate of newly elected officers was Lt. Gen. (Ret.) Edward H. Brooks, executive director of The Association of Military Schools and Colleges, Concord, N. H. Gen. Brooks will be serving his second term on the association's Council of Trustees.

Bendetsen and Davies did not seek another term.

A distinguished educator, soldier, and civic leader, Gen. Baker was elected to his first term as AUSA President in 1958. At that time, he succeeded another well known Pennsylvanian, the late Anthony J. Drexel "Tony" Biddle, who at the time of his death was ambassador to Spain.

Baker and Sutton will serve one-year terms in office while Massei and Brooks will serve three years each. All will take office on June 15.

Special Forces Officer Honored Among 307 Airborne Graduates

Parachutist Badges were given to 307 graduates of The Infantry School's basic Airborne course in ceremonies recently.

Included in the class were two officers from the Republic of China, eight officers and one enlisted man from the U. S. Air Force, an enlisted man from the Marine Corps, 29 Army officers and 266 Army enlisted men.

Col. Michael Paulick, director of The Infantry School's Airborne-Air Mobility Department, congratulated the class. Honor graduate of the class was 2nd Lt. Joseph H. McDaniel, a member of the 5th Special Forces Group, Fort Bragg.

The Chinese officers were 1st Lt. Tsung-Yen Wang and 2nd Lt. Lo Chun-Wu.

Also included in the class were three sons of former paratroopers, or as members of the Airborne call them, "second generation paratroopers."

Col. Paulick told the group he was especially proud to see the sons of former troopers carrying on the tradition of the Airborne.

LAAC Receives Busiest Period During JCOC

Lawson Army Aviation Command experienced one of its busiest periods when aircraft in support of the demonstrations for the 32nd Joint Civilian Orientation Conference recorded almost 7,000 landings.

Several weeks before the conference, various types of aircraft which were to appear in the demonstrations began to arrive at Lawson Field.

As Col. Curtis L. Hankins, commander of Lawson Command, stated, "It's a big task and we do our utmost to provide the best aviation support possible."

Liberty and Communism

The Declaration of Independence

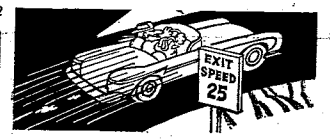
The American Declaration of Independence, drafted by Thomas Jefferson, followed John Locke's theory of Natural Law as well as the political experience of the American colonists. The phraseology of this famous document was chosen, of course, as a rallying cry for all Americans who preferred liberty to the oppressive connection with the British Empire. But the tone of the Declaration showed a "decent respect to the opinions of mankind."

In the first sentence of the Declaration, the argument for American liberty was based squarely upon Natural Law. It read:

When in the course of human events it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

The Declaration then goes on to say that the natural rights of the colonial subjects of the British Crown had been trampled upon, and therefore the colonists had a natural right to select a new government.

In the course of the concise argument, the following concepts of liberty are expressed: (1) "all men are created equal;" (2) "they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights;" (3) "among these (rights) are Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness;" (4) "to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed;" (5) "whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends (namely, the protection of all the natural rights), it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government;" (6) in instituting the new Government, care should be given by the people to "laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness;" (7) "Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes."



This statement on liberty and government is contained in exactly 127 words. It is doubtful whether, in the entire history of the struggle for liberty, there has been a more succinct and comprehensive exposition. It covers natural rights as the source of civic rights, the general content of liberty, the purpose of government, the consent theory of government, and the right to change government. In the end, it counsels the prudence and moderation emphasized by all the great philosophers from Aristotle to Locke and Burke.

The Declaration of Independence served both as a formal notice by the Continental Congress of the separation of the Colonies from Great Britain and also as an eloquent appeal to all freemen to rally on to the cause of independence.

As to natural rights and Natural Law, the Declaration of Independence reflected the ideas of liberty prevalent in the colonies as well as in Great Britain.

But while the men who adopted the Declaration of Independence emphasized liberty, the men who in 1787 drafted the Constitution emphasized stable federal government. The Fathers were more intent on a frame of government that would prevent tyrrany than on guaranteeing the particular rights of individuals.

This series is taken from Ideas in Conflict, Liberty and Communism (DOD Pam 8-11), published by the Directorate for Armed Forces Information and Education, Department of Defense.

"You certainly proved you could exit at 75."

SURGEON SAYS —

Meet Your Druggist

By Lt. Col. John L. Hassig, MSC

Let's step up and meet the man in the pharmacy window at Martin Army Hospital.

He is an enlisted man, looking like any other soldier dressed in whites. But, more than likely, he is a college graduate, licensed to practice in one or more states as a registered pharmacist.

At present, we have four registered pharmacists at MAH. If the man who waits on you is not one of these four, he is a pharmacy specialist who has undergone considerable training and instruction and performs his duties under the supervision of a registered man.

Education A Must

A great deal of education is required in order to become a pharmacist. He undergoes an intensive course of training in both the liberal arts and in the scientific and professional areas in a college of pharmacy. All colleges of pharmacy require five years of study for graduation.

In addition to a Bachelor's Degree from an accredited college of pharmacy, a period of internship is required before the graduate is entitled to take a state board of pharmacy examination. Upon successful completion of this examination, the pharmacist is registered and receives a license to practice.

Stated as briefly as possible, the field of the pharmacist is drugs. He must know how drugs are made; their chemical, animal or vegetable source; the chemical reactions of the drugs; the action of the drug upon the body; the proper dosage; the various forms in which it is used, such as capsules, tablets, and syrups. He must know the dangerous effects a drug may have and antidotes for poisoning. He must know not only when to dispense drugs but also when not to dispense them. Most drugs hold within them the power to do harm as well as good, and should never be used without medical supervision.

Responsibility Great

By law and tradition, the responsibility for compounding prescriptions rests with the pharmacist. It is an important responsibility to which the pharmacist must bring technical skill, a keen sense of accuracy, and a scientific knowledge of the composition, properties and uses of the drug he handles.

He does less compounding today than in former years. But, today, filling prescriptions takes less handwork and a lot more headwork.

His responsibilities include careful checking of each prescription. He takes his responsibility seriously.

This is the man who fills our prescriptions and who plays such an important role in our Army lives. He is happy to meet you and give you the best and most competent service the Army Medical Service can provide.

All American War Dead Honored Memorial Day

There's a sign on Route 322 in Pennsylvania that reads "Boalsburg — An American Village —Birthplace of Memorial Day." It's in recognition of a Miss Emma Hunter who, by bringing flowers to the tomb of her father, a casualty of Gettysburg, is believed by many people to have instituted the melancholy but beautiful holiday we observe on May 30.

Others will tell you Memorial Day has its roots in the South where the women of Columbus, Miss., in 1866 brought flowers to the graves of their Confederate war dead and, compassionately, also scattered magnolia blossoms on the graves of union casualties nearby.

And there are other versions. It doesn't matter much, really. Memorial Day long ago shed its limited application to the war that was raging 100 years ago. It is a day when we honor all Americans who have fallen in battle, the known and the nameless, the humblest farm boy and the most gallant general. The taps that the bugler sounds in Arlington National Cemetery at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier makes no distinction of class or race; it is our simple but heartfelt tribute to men whose lives were cut short because they served their country. It resounds wherever they rest.

Let us not think of them as closeted in the past — historic entities to be mourned respectfully from the distance of time. If Memorial Day embraces our war dead from the ragged soldier who fought in the Revolution to the infantryman who never returned from Heartbreak Ridge in Korea, it goes further still. It is a day to honor two sergeants of our Special Forces in Vietnam, Wayne Marchand and James Gabriel, who were murdered by Communist guerrillas in April 1962. The taps and the wreath of flowers are for them too, for the tragedy of their sacrifice harshly reminds us of our role as defenders of freedom. It is our privilege and responsibility to live and bow our heads in memory of those who no longer live because they served in honor. (AFPS)

The Judge Says . . .

Did you realize that if you are a borrower from a small loan company in Georgia, you may be paying as much interest as 1,000 per cent per year?

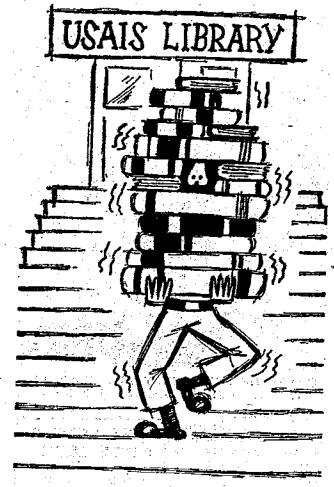
Under the provisions of the Georgia Industrial Loan Act, instead of a single all-inclusive percentage per month charge this act contains a complex maze of service fees, fees for make-premiums, legal fees, renewal fees and provisions, recordation fees, etc.

A small loan operator can conceal the total cost of the loan and advertise "low interest rates" which sometimes will be lower than bank rates, but this will only be a part of the total charge.

The legal "interest" charge in Georgia is eight per cent. This does not include an eight per cent "fee" for making the loan" or a $1 allowable service fee. This $1 service fee and the "fee for making" can be recharged periodically upon renewal or refinancing of the first loan, and a delinquency or default charge, a charge for many types of insurance, and other enumerated legal and technical charges are allowable.

The renewal charges are allowable every two months on loan balances of $100 or less, and every six months on larger loans in Georgia. Under these provisions, lenders are able to charge the same "fees" as often as six times per year, depending on the size of the loan.

The delinquency provision in the Georgia Act is five per cent of the amount delinquent, not five per cent per annum.



Most small loan operators are conscientious and honorable, however there are a few who operate improperly. When you are in urgent and legitimate need of an emergency loan, always first consult your Army Emergency Relief Fund. Only in certain instances will you qualify here, but in the event this request is denied, select your lender with care.

Marshall Award Winners Learn Value of Written Communications

Class Honors Are Taken By Drudik, Schwarzkopf

Long hours of research, writing, crumpling manuscripts and rewriting has paid off for two student career officers.

Capt. Robert L. Drudik, Career Officer Course One, and Capt. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, Career Officer Course Two, realized the value of their labors when they each received the Gen. George C. Marshall Award plus a $100 savings bond for excellence in military writing.

The career officers received their awards during graduation ceremonies held for their classes yesterday. Presenting the awards was Maj. Gen. Harvey J. Jablonsky, director of officers assignments, Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel, Department of the Army.

Both winners received plaques. They will also have their names placed on a permanent plaque which hangs beside a portrait of Gen. Marshall on the third floor of The Infantry School.

The award is the culmination of the Effective Writing Program of the Training Committee, Special Subjects Department, The Infantry School. Under this program the officers are provided a working knowledge of written communication.

It's Important

A wise man counseling a would-be soldier in Mika Waltari's "The Egyptian" said, "Anyone who can write is fit for command, but a man who cannot scribble pothooks will never have even as many as a hundred under him. Thus it is, and thus it will be — and so, my lad, if you would command men and lead them, learn to write."

These are also the sentiments of TIS.

What is this "effective writing" ability? Is this an innate skill belonging to only a chosen few?

Hardly so! The ability to write effectively, like the ability to shoot, is not born in an individual. It is a skill which can be developed by applying certain fundamentals and principles. The fundamentals and principles are taught in the effective writing class.

Follow Progress

Let's follow Capt. Drudik, Capt. Schwarzkopf and their fellow students as they progress through the writing program.

Both classes receive 10 hours of formal classroom instruction. During the first hour they are taught the importance of accuracy, brevity, clarity, coherence and unity. They are made aware of common writing deficiencies.

After being grounded in the principles of effective writing they are exposed to the principles of staff writing. Here the students learn that their efficiency as staff officers and commanders is often judged by their ability to write.

Through a series of practical exercises, each student has the opportunity to apply the techniques of effective staff writing. They write disposition forms, indorsements and letters which are commonly used throughout the Army.

Rounding out the effective writing program is the assignment of two major writing projects. The first is a staff study on a problem having direct bearing on Army operations. The other is to prepare an article suitable for publication in a professional magazine, the highlight of the course and the basis for the Marshall Award.

Article Published

The award - winning articles will be published in the July issue of INFANTRY Magazine. The many runners - up will have their work published in future issues.

An an added incentive, all authors who have their work published are paid as professional writers.

These major writing assignments require much research and preparation. The center of activity for research is the TIS Library where a wealth of documentary information is available to students.

It has been found that students spend an average of 30 hours of off-duty time on the writing phase alone. Research requires many more hours.

Selected officers from all departments and offices of TIS assist the Training Committee in administering the program.

These experienced faculty advisors are the nucleus of the effective writing program.

. . . TO EARN THE HONORS

In addition to counseling students on academic problems, they grade and evaluate the staff studies and articles submitted by students.

Individual Attention

The students are broken down into small groups with faculty advisors assigned. Because of the small size of the groups, the advisors are able to give individual attention to each paper.

At the conclusion of the academic year each student receives an evaluation of his writing ability. This evaluation is place don his academic efficiency report and becomes part of his official record.

Although the overall impact of the writing program on the Army cannot be accurately determined, the Career Course graduates begin their new assignment impressed with the need for good written communications.

They have also learned that good writing, like other skills, must be practiced continually if proficiency is to be retained. They realize that good ideas are often lost because they are poorly written.

Next year the cycle will be repeated. The new students will learn what Capt. Drudik and Capt. Schwarzkopf now realize . . . that effective writing and the many rewards it brings can be attained through diligence and hard work.

Do You Know Lingo Of This 'Cold War?'

Are you familiar with these terms relating to cold war activities?

Increased emphasis on U. S. Army cold war activities has increased the number of people who must use and understand terminology like cold war, special warfare, unconventional warfare, psychological warfare, etc.

According to the Third U. S. Army pamphlet number 350-1 the definitions of cold war terminology listed below "are in line with the official revisions."

Cold War

Cold War is the use of political, economic, technological, sociological and military measures, short of overt armed conflict involving regular military forces, to achieve national objectives.

Wars of Subversion

Wars of subversion or covert aggression are terms used to define the Communist-inspired actions designed to subvert free governments through development of indigenous resistance movements, including the eventual organization of guerrilla forces and the support of these movements from external sources. The aggression is characterized by a rising scale of violence passing from persuasion to coercion, reprisals, terrorism and guerrila warfare aimed at gaining control of a country.

"Wars of liberation" is the propaganda term used by the Communists to dignify their efforts toward covert aggression.

Special Warfare

Special warfare is a term used by the U. S. Army to embrace all the military and paramilitary measures and activities related to unconventional warfare, counterinsurgency and psychological warfare.

Unconventional Warfare

Unconventional warfare includes the interrelated fields of guerrilla warfare, evasion and escape and resistance. Such operations are conducted in enemy-held or controlled territory and are planned and executed to take advantage of or stimulate resistance movements or insurgency against hostile governments or forces. In peacetime, the United States conducts training to develop its capability for such wartime operations.

A Resistance Movement

A resistance movement is an organized effort by some portion of the civil population of a country to resist the legally established government or an occupying power. Initially, such resistance may consist of subversive political activities and other actions, designed to agitate and propagandize the pop-

Toastmistress Trophy Is Won by Mrs. Holland

Miss Marian Holland was selected as winner of the rotating Speaker of the Evening Cup at the regular Fort Benning - Columbus Toastmistress Club held recently at Fort Benning. She presented an enthusiasm speech, "Adventures Ahead," about her forthcoming teaching position this fall at Ramey Air Force Base in Puerto Rico.

Other speakers participating in the evening program were Miss Avis Gordee with a research speech on "Blessed Art Though Among Women" and Mrs. Robert Scala with a book review on "Pale Horse, Pale Rider" by Katherine Anne Porter.

Mrs. Richard Evers presented her council winning speech "Sand in my Shoes" as a special feature of the evening.

Critics for the speakers were Mrs. C. B. Ingram, Mrs. Williams McMonagle and Mrs. Wilfred Lossee. Table topics were conducted by Miss Mae Johnson who asked members to speak on "What would you say" to certain situations which she described.

Mrs. Mildred Lossee, Mrs. Richard Evers and Mrs. Abraham Tuscari were selected to serve on the nominating committee for the club's forthcoming election of officers.

Miss Avis Gordee was chosen as the official delegate to attend the Regional Toastmistress Conference in Nashville, Tenn.

Publicity chairman, Mrs. Robert Scala, announced that a radio and TV skit about toastmistress had been prepared and would be presented over local stations later in the month.

Plans for a June Installation Banquet were discussed and the theme "Toastmistress Lights the Way" will be used.

Guests attending the meeting were Mr. D. L. Oesterich-er and Mrs. G. M. Entrekin.

YOUTHFUL APPROACH

When a Hellesdon, Englander wrote to the army for a booklet called "Join the Modern Army," a recruiting sergeant came to his home to sign him up. His mother would not let him join; she said that 9 years of age was too young.

Hobo Haven Sets Scene Of CC Fete

Huppert's Hobo Haven was held by Department of Non-Resident Instruction (DNRI) last Saturday night at the Country Club under the direction of Mrs. Daniel Schreiber and Mrs. Richard Long.

The club was changed into a "hobo haven" for the traveling brotherhood.

The walls were stringed with tin cans and old newspapers. The mantle was arranged with an assortment of tin cans holding colored candles, topped by the Huppert's shield with crossed hobo sticks. Stuffed hobos flanked the fire place.

The guests sat at small tables covered with red and white checked table cloths, centered with tin can candlelabras.

Mr. Arthur Xantarelli and Lt. Col. Daniel Schreiber won prizes for the most original costumes. The Manhattens combo provided music for the event.

Capt. and Mrs. John D. Hutton were guests of Capt. and Mrs. Gene Sharon. Capt. and Mrs. Robert Evans and Capt. and Mrs. Arion Pattakos were guests of Lt. Col. M. R. Dame.

Cowboys Still Dealing Death... Automobiles Are Their Weapons

BY PFC BON CLAXTON

The death-dealing cowboy is not dead. In fact, today's cowboy is more menacing than the cowboy of yore.

His weapon is not a pistol to draw faster than his contemporaries. Rather, it is his four-wheeled steed, his mode of transportation that is turned into a lethal weapon more dangerous than all gun-slingers of the old west on the prowl together.

Kill Millions

These cowboys and their steeds of death littered the nation's highways with 3,194,600 casualties in 1961, the second largest total in history.

Motor casualty recordings began when the first motor vehicle rattled down the street. This dreary record has become a monument to the carelessness and indifference of the American motorist.

Studies of motor vehicle history have consistently shown that the majority of vehicles involved in accidents were in good mechanical condition and that road and weather conditions were negligible factors.

Although our highways, byways and freeways appear crowded at times, their adequacy is sufficient if the speed limits are adhered to.

After sifting through statistics too numerous to mention, the jockey of the highway is left bare-faced as the basic factor in more than 70,000,000 casualties in the past 60 years.

Theme Prevails

Through all statistics a tending theme prevails ... too much speed for the time and the place and driving under the influence of liquor or when weary or ill. The afterthought is plain ... in most accidents the guilty party is the throttle-jockey and not his steed, mind and not motor, reflex and not roadway.

Plans such as safety belts, higher licensing requirements, stiffer penalties for violations and even mechanical highways have been proposed. There is no doubt these would have an effect. But the real problem lies with the jockeys and it is there we must find an answer.

In an article written by Capt. William A. Gruber of the Connecticut State Police, the question was asked, "Does liquor play a significant part in motor vehicle accidents?"

The reply, "Sixty persons I know would probably say 'Yes' — if they could. Unfortunately, they were among the 330 who lost their lives in 110 fatal accident investigations by Connecticut State Police in 1961."

So called "drunken driving" is not the concern because the drunk is not going anywhere. He usually can't if he wants. The chief concern is the driver under the influence of liquor.

What's Illegal

It is not illegal to drink in Georgia but it is illegal to mix drinking and driving. Intoxicating beverages lower inhibitions, give a false impression of well-being. Coupling this with "I can drive better after a few drinks" attitude, spells out the problem.

The amount of liquor a person takes is purely personal. But, when that decision includes the use of public roads, a line must be drawn.

The throttle jockey and their steeds have rolled merrily along killing and maiming each other at an ever increasing rate, ignoring advice, persuasion, example and even threats.

Has the carnage reached its high point? Will the millions of words of safety propaganda finally have an effect? Are safety belts, padded dashboards, flexible steering wheels lessening the effects of careless driving?

You, the motoring public are the only ones who can answer these questions. Remember, more than 85 per cent of motor vehicle casualties are a direct result of driver error.

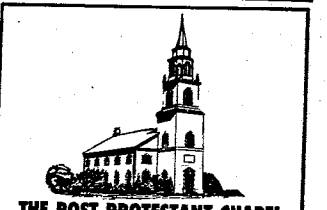
Boys' Choir Will Sing At Chapel

The Columbus Boys' Choir will appear in concert at The Infantry Center Protestant Chapel at 7:30 p.m. Sunday.

Approximately 40 boys will participate in the program.

This is the last of the 1961-1962 series of secular concerts presented on the post by Mrs. Harold W. Roeder.

The choir will sing folk songs, selections from operas and songs from motion pictures and Broadway shows.



There will be solos, piano numbers and two five-minute declamations.

Two Fort Benning piano students will play two numbers each. Mike Melner, son of Maj. and Mrs. Sinclair Melner, will play "Etude" by Thompson, and "The Fox Hunt," an English hunting song. Mike Muscari, son of Capt. and Mrs. Abraham Muscari, will play adaptations of "Largo" from "The New World Symphony" (Lullaby)" by Chopin.

Director of the Boys' Choir is William Wesley Collins who also directs the choir of St. Luke Methodist Church.

The choir is sponsored by the Columbus Optimist Club.

The public is invited to the concert.

Col. Foxworth Takes PTA President Post

Col. Edward M. Foxworth was installed as president of the Fort Benning PTA recently at Faith School Auditorium. He succeeds Col. Sears Y. Coker.

Other officers installed include Lt. Col. Walter Hibbard, Jr., first vice president; Sgt. Maj. Norman B. Meikelsen, second vice president; Mrs. Frank J. Spettel, Jr., third vice president; Mrs. Ishmael Pack, secretary; Mrs. Jean P. Doerr, Assistant Secretary; SFC Willard N. Hill, treasurer, and SFC Kenneth R. Reid, assistant treasurer.

Exchange Pledges

Col. Coker installed the new slate of officers with an exchange of pledges between PTA members and their elected officials, committing themselves to a year of enthusiastic and loyal service.

Before relinquishing the gavel to Col. Foxworth, Col. Coker presented PTA life membership certificates to Mrs. J. H. Murray, Mrs. William L. Maloney, Capt. Abraham F. Muscari.

The life members were honored for outstanding service to the PTA during the school year.

Guest speaker at the meeting was Maj. Fergus T. Monahan, chief of the Psychiatric Social Work Service, Department of Neuropsychiatry, Martin Army Hospital.

Maj. Monahan Speaks

Maj. Monahan spoke on "The Family as a Source of Strength."

He said the cornerstone of family strength is the relationship between the parents. There are times in all families when relationships are not perfect and this is reflected in the children, he continued.

Naming eight sources of strength in the family, Maj. Monahan listed approval, encouragement, stability, rules to guide the children, positive punishment, friendship, love and the encouragement of independence.

"The family itself is a source of strength and mankind has found no substitute for it," he said.

Forbenteta

Parched, smiling Benningites appear going through the motions of school as the count down for this school year begins.

Why parched? Well, the swimming pools are open. This can only mean sunburns.

Why smiling? The only answer is that the finish line is now in sight. We've rounded the last curve in the 1962 school year. Some Benningites will continue, but many of us have completed our final round. We leave this cycle and go on to the next.

Dates for the graduation exercises are Pacelli, May 25; Baker, June 6; and Columbus, June 7. Seniors, our graduation marks the end and the beginning. Think for a minute. Isn't that right? Caps, gowns, diplomas — the symbols of success . . . success in the past twelve years and encouragement for the future.

JADA Slate

Junior Army Daughters of America have announced their new slate of officers. They are as follows: president, Mary Beth Williams; vice president, Georgeanne Dillon; corresponding secretary, Cherly Ely; recording secretary, Nevlle Brickhouse; treasurer, Kathy Aure; chaplain, Louis Williams; and historian, Sandy Duke.

Congratulations, girls. You have a big job ahead of you.

Postage Stamps Can Bring You a Fortune

Look closely at the next postage stamp you buy or receive on a letter. It may be worth a fortune.

Three years ago, a Canadian woman noticed something funny about the five-cent St. Lawrence Seaway stamps she had just bought: all had inverted centers. Before she pointed out the mistake, 300 of the 2,000 misprints had passed from Canadian post offices into the public's eager hands. A few weeks later, a collector paid a Winnipeg dealer $16,000 for 16 of the stamps. Today, these stamps are bringing more than $2,000 each.

A similar American goof — the famous 24-cent upside-down airmail stamp of 1918 — netted a cashier, W. T. Robey, $15,000 for a 100-stamp sheet that same year. Last June just one of these historic stamps was auctioned off for $9,750. That single sheet which Robey bought for $24 would now bring nearly one million dollars!

These philatelic long shots are only one of the many things that make stamp collecting so fascinating and exciting. The hobby, practiced by 20,000,000 Americans today, is crammed with dramatic contrasts and record-book superlatives.

Biggest Stamps

Biggest postage stamps ever issued were the Special Delivery stamps of China in 1913, measuring nine and three-fourths inches by two and three-fourths inches. Smallest, printed between 1863-6 in the Colombian province of Bolivar, measured only five-sixteenth by three-eighth inches. Leading candidate for the title of world's cheapest stamp is the French one-half centime stamp of 1919, which cost letter-writers the equivalent of one-twelfth cent. At the other extreme was the King George V Malaya stamp of 1115: over the counter at the local post office, it would have cost you $500!

Leading candidate for fantastic modern-day inflation is the 500,000 trillion pengo stamp of Hungary. Had this been issued in 1940, when a pengo was worth seventeen American cents, the stamp would have represented the impossible equivalent of $83,000 trillion. In 1946, within months after the actual date of issue, its value was less than one-half cent!

The world's most valuable stamp, of which only one specimen is known to exist, is the one-cent British Guiana stamp of 1856, found by a small boy in an attic, last sold for about $45,000, and now insured for $100,000. One of its former owners, the late Baron von Ferrari of Paris, lavished about 50 years and $1,600,000 on his stamp collection.

But the Ferrari collection was not the world's most valuable — at least in terms of auction prices. That honor belongs to the Caspary treasure trove. In 16 auctions held between 1955 and 1958, the New York stockbroker's collection brought a total of $2,895,000!

Cheapest Hobby

Yet stamp collecting is also one of the world's cheapest hobbies. Over 90 per cent of the stamps going into albums today cost only pennies each. Fifty cents will bring you a packet of stamps from many dealers.

The value of stamps bought and sold each year by collectors? Estimates range from a low of $40,000,000 to a high of $125,000,000.

Yet it all began much later than most people suppose. Numismatists have been collecting rare coins for a thousand years or more — but philately is only a little over 100 years old. Blame it on the late debut of the postage stamp, which first appeared in England in 1840, after stormy Parliamentary debates in which it was denounced as a wild and visionary scheme!

The first United States postage stamp was not issued till 1847, and the U.S. has never been as quick as other nations to print collectible stamps. But when philatelist Franklin Delano Roosevelt entered the White House, the stamp presses began to burn — 134 commemorative and 49 new ordinary stamps were issued during his four terms of office.

"First day cover" service turns many a little town into a temporary metropolis. Every time a commemorative stamp is issued, a town in some way associated with it is chosen as the place of first-day issue. Bands play and citizens march as self - addressed envelopes from all over the country come pouring in for their "first day of issue" cancellation. The Boy Scout Golden Jubilee stamp got 1,420,000 covers — the Masaryk Champion of Liberty issue drew over 1,700,000!

Why Collect?

Why do stamp collectors collect? Some for the sheer joy of collecting, others to satisfy curiosity about faraway places, and many — some experts place the figure as high as 50 per cent of all collectors — in the hope that their collections will prove a good financial investment. Students find philately a pleasant way to absorb history and geography; therapists often recommend it to keyed-up patients.

Sixty per cent of stamp collectors are dedicated buffs, according to one leading dealer; 20 per cent are casual collectors, and another 20 peel stamps off letters in the hope of some day making a lucrative find.

Sometimes, of course, it turns up. In the meantime, agree most of the hobbyists, no collector who is sensitive to the beauty, color and historic drama of stamps can really ever get stuck.

In Europe

MTU Shooters Break Records

Rifle, pistol and shotgun shooters from the Marksmanship Training Unit currently firing in Europe set two world records in Germany and dominated the Running Deer matches in Oslo, Norway.

All are members of a 36-man squad from MTU competing in international matches in Norway, Sweden, Germany and Switzerland in preparation for the forthcoming Consell International du Sport (CISM) and World championships.

In Germany, the smallbore rifle, three position team, fired a 1466x1500 in the standing position to better the old mark by four points. They then defeated entries from seven other countries with a 4355-point effort.

Puckel Ties Mark

Capt. Daniel Puckel tied the world mark with an individual effort of 1149 out of a possible 1200 in the same event. He also took the Free Rifle 300-meter match with 1135.

In the Center Fire pistol matches the Army, led by SFC Sam Hunter, who won the individual title with 588 out of 600, broke the international record by 11 points by posting a four-man score of 2337.

The Army riflemen added one more laurel to their wreath when they garnered the Free Rifle Team match with 4490.

Win in Norway

In Oslo, Norway, the Running Deer firers took everything in sight.

SFC Loyd Crow won the Singles event with a 229-point effort. He was followed by teammates 1st Lt. Willis Powell and SFC Norman Skarpness who had scores of 215 and 214 respectively.

In the Doubles, Powell had 211 while Crow and Skarpness garnered 210.

MSgt Henry Shaw was top man in the individual skeet match in Germany with a winning 196x200 score. The Skeet Team captured the event with 771.

The shooters will return here this week.

Reorganized Infantry Chorus Determined to Live Up to Past

By Miss Beryl Torgensen

Recently reorganized, Fort Benning's Infantry Chorus is rapidly becoming known as the award - winning male vocal group it has been in past years.

After a brief period of inactivity, the Infantry Chorus was reorganized in January. During recent weeks it has delighted audiences with rousing military songs.

military melodies in its repertory. The ladies of the 1st Infantry Brigade heard a more sentimental program at a luncheon held recently.

The Infantry songsters once again displayed their versitility at a departure dinner held in honor of Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles. Italian melodies appropo to the departing general's new station in Italy pleased the guests.

Visiting dignitaries are a favorite audience for the chorus. Some who have heard their vocal presentations include King Hussein of Jordan; England's Lord Mounthatten; Secretary of the Army Elvis J. Stahr; Gen. Maxwell B. Taylor; Lt. Gen. Clark L. Ruffner and Senator Richard Russell of Georgia.

Civilian Aides Conference, World-Wide Infantry Conference and numerous Joint Civilian Orientation Conferences have been the setting for the chorus' activities.

Continually receiving high praise for its performances, the group has distinguished itself as an award-winner.

During the past four years, the chorus has emerged victorious in post-level and Third Army competition. In 1961 it won second place at the Department of Defense level.

Directing the group is Pfc Robert Binkley who is able to offer much to the group through his own musical experiences.

A Reservist called to active duty, Binkley received BM and MM degrees from Peabody College, going on to do advanced study at Julliard School of Music.

Dummy Charge Training Device Is Money Saver

Good management practices are saving tax dollars daily, as is pointed up in a recent development in training devices used in schooling Davy Crocket missile men.

Dummy propellant charges are used to train the enlisted cadre. Made of a special paper, the casings of these charges did not withstand constant handling necessary.

To reduce the cost of replacing these dummy charges, identical charges made of aluminum are now being used. The new casing withstands maximum handling indefinitely.

Cost of the paper charge was $25 and 60 were usually worn out in a six month period.

Cost of the new propellant is $250 to $257.

CLEAR LAKE SITE SUPPORT UNIT LEAVES
PFC Robert Thomas Directs Trucks

Units Sent to Florida

Elements of the 2nd Infantry Division Wednesday began participation in exercise CLEAR LAKE, a U.S. Strike Command training exercise employing more than 7,000 Army and Air Force personnel.

Set at Eglin Air Force Base, Florida, the exercise is to continue through June 10. Supervising the exercise is General Paul D. Adams, commander in chief, the U. S. Strike Command.

Commanding Blue Forces

Commanding Army elements of the Blue forces is Colonel Louis A. Kunzig Jr., commanding the 2nd Infantry Division Brigade. Colonel Kunzig is also present commander of the division's 23rd Infantry.

The first division element to arrive at the Florida base was a site support headquarters made up of the 9th Infantry's Headquarters Company and Company C. Site Support Commander is Colonel Clifford P. Hannum, 9th Infantry commanding officer.

Leaving 7 a.m. Tuesday from Wetherby Field, Sand Hill, for Florida were Companies A, B, D, E and Combat Support of the 9th Infantry with support units making up the aggressor force for the exercise. They are commanded by Major Venon H. Ison, S-3 (Operations) officer of the 7th Cavalry.

Supporting the five 9th Infantry companies as aggressor forces are a platoon of the 7th Cavalry, a platoon of the 122nd Signal Battalion, a signal detachment of the U. S. Army Infantry Center and a platoon of the 13th Transportation Battalion.

Scheduled to depart Tuesday by air from Ft. Benning's Lawson Army Air Field for Eglin Air Force Base are the 68th Infantry, commanded by Colonel Maurice C. Holden, the 12th Artillery, commanded by Lt. Col. Terence W. Huck and elements of the 17th Artillery, 2nd Engineer Battalion, 7th Cavalry, 13th Transportation Battalion, 2nd Medical Battalion, 702nd Ordnance Battalion, 2nd Quartermaster Company, 2nd Aviation Company and the division's 2nd Military Police Detachment. They will make up part of the exercise CLEAR LAKE Blue forces under the command of Col. Kunzig.

Also participating is a U.S. Army Reserve unit currently on active duty at Fort Benning. It is the 391st Engineer Battalion from Rock Hill, S.C.,

Aggressors Off To 'Clear Lake'

BY 9TH INF PIO

The 9th Infantry aggressor force Tuesday moved to Eglin Air Force Base, Florida for their part in Exercise CLEAR LAKE. The Aggressor Unit, Commanded by Major Venon H. Ison, made the journey from Fort Benning by motor convoy to Eglin Air Force Base arriving Wednesday.

This aggressor force will oppose the 2nd Division's 38th Infantry and the 101st Airborne Division's 502nd Battle Group. The "Manchumen," outfitted by the Army Aggressor Center from Fort Riley, Kansas, will offer realistic opposition and training for the two battle groups they oppose.

The aggressor force is made of teams selected from Companies A, B, D, E, and Combat Support of the 9th Infantry reinforced by members of the 7th Cavalry and 2nd Engineer Battalion. These teams have been equipped and trained to operate in small numbers with hit-and-run-type tactics. Captain Walter D. Ginger, commanding officer of the 9th's Company A, warned that anyone found asleep by the aggressors will be taught a lesson.

These 500 aggressor troops and their officers will spend the week prior to the kick off of Exercise CLEAR LAKE, becoming familiar with the Florida terrain. Lieutenant Wil-

'Ist' on the Road For Amphib Tng

BY 1ST INFANTRY PIO

The second major unit to participate in the amphibious training at Little Creek, Virginia, will be the 1st Infantry. Comprised of nearly 1,900 men, the battle group and its 17 attached units have already started the move to Little Creek.

Their exercises made "Operation Tiger Shark," is a joint Army-Navy maneuver to familiarize the soldier with sea transportation and the techniques of an amphibious landing.

Convoy Out Wednesday

The movement to Little Creek commenced Wednesday as the motor convoy pulled out of Kelley Hill. Approximately 270 vehicles and 922 troops departed on the three-day motor trip of nearly 800 miles by military convoy distance. With overnight stops at Fort Gordon and Fort Bragg, the convoy will reach Little Creek late this afternoon.

Yesterday, members of the battle group staff and their assistants left Lawson Field by plane. They will spend today and the week-end in observing the landing of the 87th Infantry and making the necessary co-ordination with the Navy.

An objective of the exercise, which will include live-fire and airborne operations, is to develop further joint operational tactics and techniques to insure that U.S. Strike Command Army and Air Force units can deal decisively as a team with all types of contingencies from a show of force to a general war.

The U.S. Strike Command, a unified force of combat-ready units drawn from the Continental Army Command and the Tactical Air Command, has its headquarters at MacDill Air Force Base, Tampa, Florida.

Site Support Set for 'Clear Lake'

By 9th Inf PIO

With most of the preparations completed, the 9th Infantry's Site Support Headquarters is ready for the official start of Exercise CLEAR LAKE.

The 8th is now double checking its communication lines, supply needs, and orienting its personnel on the coming events.

Targets are being constructed and will be placed strategically on three different impact areas. The targets consist of shell buildings, salvage vehicles, pill boxes, and artillery pieces. Air Force planes and Army artillery will fire live ammunition on June 2nd and 3rd.

To Shell Targets

The Honest John rocket as well as the other organic types of division heavy artillery will be used to shell the targets. Lieutenant Joseph Machado, the project officer from Company B of the 2nd Engineer Battalion will have the targets ready to be fired on this week.

Members of the 122nd Signal Battalion, led by First Lieutenant Paul J. Kluczniik, have set up communications to reach all areas including direct lines to Fort Benning. They have combined their own portable equipment with the fixed station equipment the Air Force has provided.

All calls made by radio or wire will be transmitted through one switchboard making it possible to have direct lines from Eglin Air Force Base to Fort Benning with little complication.

One of the remaining factors is the air drop to be made by the 1st Battle Group, 502nd Airborne Infantry of the 101st Airborne Division Tuesday. After landing they will fight their way to Auxiliary Field Two where they intend to seize the air field.

This air field would afford an opportunity for the 38th Infantry to be air landed and reinforce the airhead. Preparation will then be made to seize the Auxiliary Field One several miles away.

Col H Coburn Names Asst. Signal Off.

By 122nd Signal PIO

Captain Robert M. Wiggins, 122nd Signal Battalion, has been named Assistant Division Signal Officer by Lieutenant Colonel Herbert W. Coburn, battalion commander.

He succeeds Lieutenant Colonel Joe T. Ely, who departed the battalion for duty with Main Post Signal.

Was Company Commander

Prior to his appointment as Assistant Division Signal Officer, Captain Wiggins served as company commander of the Forward Communications Company of the battalion.

In addition to his tour of duty with the battalion, Captain Wiggins served with the 34th Signal Battalion, 7th U.S. Corp in Ludwigsburg, Germany as Radio Officer.

Prior to reporting into the battalion, he attended the Associate Signal Officers' Course at Fort Monmouth. He is also a graduate of the Infantry Officers' Communication Course at Fort Benning.

During his command of the Forward Communications Company, the company maintained 100 per cent participation in the U. S. Savings Bond program, received two superiors in inspector general inspections and participated in the Intensified Combat Training Program.

Three New PT Fields Are Readied For Division Proficiency Testing

Second Infantry Division troops will soon be tested on the Army's latest physical training requirements.

Three new physical combat proficiency testing fields designed for this purpose are in the final stages of completion in the area.

Begun May 11 by Companies A and C, 2nd Engineer Battalion, with Major Henry C. Farmer in charge of the construction project, the three fields should be ready for the first test to be run June 1.

One PT field is located behind Essebagger Field at Kelley Hill, another is at Knight Field, and the third is at Wetherby Field. The latter two sites are on Sand Hill.

The new physical training tests consist of a 40-yard low crawl, (maximum time limit, 36 seconds), a horizonal ladder, (each man must cross at least 36 rungs), a dodge-run-jump course, (maximum time limit, 28 and a half seconds), a one-mile run, (eight and a half minutes to complete), and a grenade throw, (each man must score at least 15 points.)

Maximum score on the course is 500 points. Persons taking the test must make at least 300 points, or they will be required to undergo additional physical training consisting of half-hour sessions five times a week for a month. Then, they will take a re-test.

All 2nd Infantry Division personnel under 40 years of age will be required to take the test. Persons 40 years old or older may take the test if they wish.

Infantry Units First

Infantry units within the division will take the tests first and should be completed by July 1. Other division members will take the test between July and September 15. It has been estimated that 200 men can run through the entire course in half a day.

The physical combat proficiency test fields were designed by the U. S. Army Infantry Center, and the course procedures are purposely tailored to combat - related skills.

After all Indianhead Division personnel have taken the test in September, future testing will be conducted according to a two-cycle schedule, October-to-March and April-to-September.

Liaison Officer Gets The Adjutant's Duties

By 7th Cavalry PIO

Lieutenant Ronald P. Richards, the Assistant Adjutant of the 7th Cavalry, has recently been assigned to his present position from the S-3 section where he served as the liaison officer for the squadron.

Lt. Richards is assuming many of the duties of the adjutant, Captain David M. Johns, who is presently at Shaw Air Force Base on temporary duty.

Lt. Richards has been with "Garry Owen" since April 1960, when he arrived from Fort Knox, Kentucky, where he attended the Armor Officers Basic Course. Prior to attending the Armor Course at Fort Knox, Lt. Richards was assigned to Company B, 70th Regiment, a reserve unit stationed at Camp Atterbury, Indiana.

During Lt. Richard's tour with the 7th Cavalry, he has served in Troop B as a platoon leader and executive officer and participated against the battle groups as an aggresser during their time overseas replacement training. He was later assigned as a platoon leader in Troop C during the Basic Training cycles and during a portion of the intensified combat training program. In October 1961, Lt. Richards was assigned to the S-3 section as the liaison officer.

Lt. Richards went with the squadron to Fort Stewart, Georgia, in May 1961 for tank gunnery program and tied for the highest individual tank gunnery score.

He also participated in SENECA SPEAR Training Exercise, held at Fort Stewart and the reconnaissance live fire problem which the squadron conducted at the completion of SENECA SPEAR. He assisted in the writing of the reconnaissance problem. Lt. Richards also attended the Chemical - Biological - Radiological school at Fort Benning, Georgia.

Lt. Richards is married and has two children. He resides on the post.

1st Infantry Task Force Prepares for 'Operation Tiger Shark'

leave Fort Benning will be the buses with the balance of the task force. Due to depart tomorrow morning, the buses will make the complete trip in less than 24 hours.

Beginning Monday, the task force will be trained in methods of amphibious operations, with specialized training in naval gunnery and for personnel engaged in the medical, communication and mechanical work.

The last three days of the second week, the task force will board five ships of the Atlantic Fleet, commanded by Commodore Thomas P. Watkins, Commander of Amphibious Squadron II, Atlantic Fleet.

The task force will embark and travel out to sea and make a "dry run" of the landing during the preliminary staging phase. The next day, "Ready-Day," will be spent in preparation for the actual tactical assault landing to take place the following day. The last day of "Operation Tiger Shark" will be the actual amphibious landing as all troops and equipment of the task force hit the beach, drive the "enemy" back and secure the beach before moving inland.

To Ft. Story, Va.

After the landing, the task force will move to Fort Story, Va., to pull necessary maintenance and make repairs in preparation for the trip to Fort Bening.

The 1st Infantry Task Force consists of the 1st Infantry and supporting units from Company A, 2nd Engineer Battalion, Batteries A and B, 15th Artillery, Company B, 69th Armor, Troop B, 7th Cavalry, Company B, 122nd Signal, Company A, 702nd Ordnance and Company, B, 13th Transportation.

Also supporting the unit will be elements from the 2nd Quartermaster Company, 2nd Aviation, 2nd Administration Company, Military Intelligence Detachment, 2nd Medical Battalion, Headquarters, 2nd Infantry Division, Headquarters, 69th Armor, Headquarters, Division Artillery, 17th Artillery and 38th Artillery.

While at Little Creek, the soldier will not lack all the comforts of the Kelley Hill area. Billets will be set up in buildings at the Naval Amphibious School. Troops will be fed in a consolidated mess hall which will be worked on a rotation method of feeding.

Many hours have been spent in preparation for this exercise. Special courses of instruction given at the Naval Amphibious Base at Little Creek have been attended by officers and non-commissioned officers of the battle group. This nucleus of personnel and a team of Navy specialists have been planning the exercise for several weeks.

A tower has been constructed near the battle group area which is draped with climbing nets. Here, the combat soldier has been instructed how to scale the net, both up and down. Lashing and lowering of the individual equipment and weapons has also been practiced.

Hard work will not always be expected of the troops who participate in the exercise. They will have off-duty time that they may spend as they please.

Recreational facilities are readily available at Little Creek. Preparations are being made for many sports activities. Tournaments will be scheduled with games between companies and attached units.

Personnel who make the trip will have a chance to see many of the sights and landmarks of the eastern coast and states. Special Services representatives will conduct tours of historical points of interest and will conduct tours of the Norfolk Naval Base and many of the ships that are gathered there.

PROMOTED . . . Newly promoted to the rank of platoon sergeant is Sgt. Norman O. Deckard, Company A (Amb), 2nd Medical Battalion.

Maj. Gen. Chase Speaks to 69th; Congratulates on Year's Progress

By 69th Armor PIO

Major General Charles H. Chase recently spoke to the officers and men of the 69th Armor.

Speaking to the battalion at Unit Training Area Three, General Chase congratulated the tankers for the progress they have made over the last year and encouraged them to strive for even higher proficiency. General Chase acknowledged the professional attitude of the 69th Armor which is evident by the "professional manner in which the Battalion discharges its duties and responsibilities."

In reviewing the past, present, and possible future missions of the division, General Chase charged each individual with the responsibility of maintaining a high state of readiness for any eventuality.

General Chase was presented to the battalion formation by the 69th Armor Commanding Officer, Lt. Col. James T. Kolb.

87th Task Force Hits Va Beaches Today

BY 87TH INF PIO

The 87th Infantry Task Force, comprised of nearly 2,000 soldiers, are scheduled to "invade" beaches in the vicinity of Pendleton Beach, Va. today in an amphibious assault climaxing two weeks training at the Naval Amphibious Training Center, Little Creek, Va.

As "Operation Conqueror" gets under way, visitors observing from a distance will see the results of training conducted at the Naval base as a combined Army-Navy effort.

Formal classes officially began May 14 and included a welcoming address by Marine Brigadier General Austin R. Brunelli, commanding officer of the Landing Force Training Unit at Little Creek. Subsequent classes dealt with an introduction to amphibious operations, dry and wet net training, characteristics of amphibious ships, crafts and vehicles and care and maintenance of equipment to counter the effects of salt water, air and sand. Also included in the training program were many hours of physical training.

Task Force Liaison Headquarters had been set up highlighted by a large sign depicting the 2nd Division Indian sitting in a canoe. Here all of the staff sections from the Navy and Army elements coordinate planning for the exercise under the over-all command of Colonel Ralph H. Hughett, 87th Infantry commander.

Sundays being training holidays, members of the task force indulged in recreational facilities available in the Little Creek area, which include two large gymnasiums, many beaches and lakes, an 18-hole golf course and three non-commissioned officers' clubs. Later, Special Services representatives conducted tours of Williamsburg, Va., and an inspection of the Naval Fleet anchored at nearby Norfolk.

17th Artillery's Day Marked With Parade

BY 17TH ARTY PIO

A parade by the non-commissioned officers and men of the battalion, and a demonstration of the battalion equipment recently highlighted the Organization Day of the 17th Artillery.

The birthday celebration for the battalion started by honoring the unit's two outstanding soldiers, Specialist Four Walter G. Gray and Private First Class Ernst Pobloth. Then the men of the "17th" passed in review under the command of the non-commissioned officers, while Major General Charles H. Chase, 2nd Infantry Division commander, and Lieutenant Colonel Francis P. Sheridan, commanding officer of the 17th Artillery observed.

Following the review, the organization of the unit was explained, and the equipment was displayed.

To conclude the festivities, a championship softball game was played to determine the first place team in the battalion.

Decorators Hit Signal Bn Remodeling 2 Mess Halls

By 122nd Signal PIO

Two mess halls in the 122nd Signal Battalion are in the process of getting "facelifting."

"Alpha Manor" of the Command Operations Company has been repainted from the front door to the back, new tablecloths and curtains purchased to round out the improvements, "Interior Decorator"

Sergeant First Class Edward Filipszuk is mess steward and has served as the "interior decorator" during the remodeling.

Right up the street from Alpha Manor is Headquarters Mess. Its interiors are also receiving a working over.

A fresh coat of paint, white for the walls and orange for the window frames, new tablecloths and curtains are gracing their respective areas and artificial flowers on the tables are adding to the home atmosphere.

Directing the use of the paint brushes in this mess hall is Sergeant First Class Jack Fox.

Mrs. Tritsch Entertains Cav. Ladies

The distaff members of the 7th Cavalry held their monthly coffee last Thursday at the home of Mrs. Arthur A. Tritsch.

Mrs. Raiford F. Mullins acted as co-hostess.

A welcome was extended to Mrs. Tommy R. Mason, whose husband, Lieutenant Mason, is new to the 7th Cavalry. Mrs. Mason served punch. 7th Cavalry guest, Mrs. Robert Tarpenning, pourned coffee.

The table was set with a white cloth and centered with a pottery lazy susan filled with fresh fruit. A decorated birthday cake in honor of Mrs. Walter D. Hall adorned the table.

Ladies Hold May Dance

The Ladies of the Big Indianhead held a dinner dance recently at the Sand Hill NCO Open Mess.

The 46 couples were seated in an "E" arrangement; the tables being decorated with red roses and pink snapdragons placed intermittently among pink candles.

The Sand Hill NCO Open Mess was the scene for the recent luncheon held by the Ladies of the Big Indianhead.

Guest speaker was Capt. David H. Fink, SJA, who spoke on "Indebtness." Capt. Fink stressed the pitfalls of too much installment buying and the different schemes used to lure away the serviceman's pay.

Mrs. Warren Freeman, nominating chairman, presented the election slate as follows: President, Mrs. Carlie Cranford and Mrs. Eubert Linthicum; First Vice President, Mrs. Patrick Diener; Second Vice President, Mrs. Kenneth Staveness, Mrs. Stephen J. Regan, Mrs. Wayne Cliff; Secretary, Mrs. James Scott and Mrs. C. McKinney; Treasurer, Mrs. Samuel Clash.

The election will be held at the June 7 luncheon. The business meeting also will be held one week earlier than usual on June 21st.

Mrs. Thomas Mingey and Mrs. Janeba were the luncheon guests.

New members joining in June were Mesdames Lawrie W. Rentrop, Leroy Arnold and Stanley Danaj.

Coffee Is Held For Sig Ladies

Twelve ladies of the 122nd Signal Battalion held their monthly coffee in the Norman-dy Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Mrs. Robert Wiggins and Mrs. Atlee Troyer were hostesses. Mrs. Herbert Coburn, wife of Lieutenant Colonel Coburn, battalion commander, was asked to pour.

The centerpiece was a floral arrangement of yellow mums and snapdragons, which was later won by Mrs. Coburn.

The group bid farewell to Mrs. Martin Tinker, whose husband is bound for an overseas assignment.

Mrs. Kolb Has Coffee to Fete Armor Ladies

Mrs. James Kolb, wife of Lieutenant Colonel Kolb, commanding officer of the 69th Armor, held a monthly coffee at her home on Lumpkin Road. The coffee honored Mrs. Bruce Davis, wife of Major Davis, battalion S-3, soon to retire.

Mrs. Davis was presented with a corsage of red carnations. She was asked to pour at a table set with a white linen cloth and a centerpiece of talisman roses in a milk glass bowl.

The ladies of the 69th presented Mrs. Davis with a farewell gift of a brass Revere bowl and matching candlesticks.

One new arrival was greeted by the group. She is Mrs. Robert Smith, wife of Lieutenant Smith, new liaison officer of the 69th Armor.

38th Inf. Kids, Moms Attend Outside Party

Officers' wives of the 38th Infantry recently met at the home of Colonel and Mrs. Maurice C. Holden for an informal outdoors coffee and brought along their small children to make it a party for the kids, too.

Mothers and children paused long enough to pose for the photographer at the get together which stressed visiting rather than business.

The ladies did discuss one piece of finished business, however, the recent bake sale held in mess halls of the battle group.

Mrs. Richard D. Freeman was chairman of the sale.

Former '1st' of Co E Now Becomes S-Major

By 38th Inf PIO

First Sergeant William J. Conway has joined 38th Infantry headquarters as sergeant major with the departure of Sergeant Major Edward Minnick for a Far East assignment.

Sgt. Conway, who has been assigned as first sergeant of Company E of the 38th, is a veteran of nearly 19 years of Army service, including World War II and the Korean conflict.

Entered in 1941

Sgt. Conway first entered the Army in July 1941 and served at Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri, and in California before departing for the Southwest Pacific in September 1943.

He remained in that area until August 1945 when he returned to the United States and left the service, having been awarded the Bronze Star Medal, Purple Heart and Combat Infantryman's Badge.

Self-employed as a hunting guide for nearly two years, he reenlisted in the Army in July of 1947 and has served continuously since.

After two years at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, Sgt. Conway left for Japan and the 32nd Infantry. In July 1950 he arrived in Korea with the 19th Infantry, spending nearly a year there until returning to the United States as a Reserve Officer Training Corps instructor in Detroit high schools.

In February 1955 he was assigned to the 87th Infantry at Fort Riley, Kansas, and in September of that year accompanied this unit to Germany where he spent two and one-half years.

He returned to the States in March 1958 and has served since that time at Fort Benning, including positions as first sergeant in the 87th and 23rd Infantries as well as the 38th.

An Army Commendation Medal winner, Sgt. Conway is married and has three children.

Div's Kelley Hill Library Boasts Modern Facilities

The Kelley Hill Library is the newest library in the 2nd Division area and had a modest beginning when it was first organized in its present location October 25, 1958 with one professional librarian and one library assistant.

When the library was organized, the furniture consisted of a collection of borrowed, used and salvaged items from various sources. There was only an overhead light in the library and it was considered inadequate for good reading purposes.

But, with support and cooperation from the Special Services officer, the library gradually has been modernized and equipped with fluorescent lighting, drapes, carpeting, table lamps and new library furniture.

The library study area has been furnished with comfortable study tables, desks, chairs and lounge furniture in attractive pastel colors, with deep cushions conveniently arranged for comfort and decor. A separate music room is equipped with a new stereophonic record player, classical music recordings, comfortable chairs, writing tables, floor lamps, carpeting and drapes.

The music room is tastefully decorated with bouquets of flowers and an oil painting to add to the atmosphere.

In addition, the library has an office, storage room and a special workroom where damaged books are repaired and processed.

The first books transferred to the Kelley Hill Library were those from the Reserve Officers' Training Corps Library. Periodicals, newspapers, a phonograph record player and records were transferred from the Branch Library Five in the Harmony Church area. The collection numbered 5,171 catalogued circulating volumes, 99 periodicals, six newspapers, 145 musical recordings and two sets of foreign language recordings. The collection contained only four contemporary military volumes.

The card catalogue is arranged by author, title and subject. The books on the shelf are arranged according to the Dewey Decimal System in numerical and alphabetical order. The books are checked out for a two-week period and are subject to renewal on request. Patrons are given assistance when annalitical subjects are in question for reference and for writing term papers.

The library program at Kelley Hill is geared to general library service. Its collection now numbers almost 8,000 catalogued volumes, more than 400 reference volumes a set of Great Books of the Western World, a complete set of contemporary military books, 64 current popular periodicals, seven newspapers, 224 classical music recordings, seven sets of foreign language recordings and a collection of military school periodicals. The library is also stocked with United States Armed Forces Institute books and renders service in their circulation in connection with the 2nd Division Education Officer.

During the first month of the library's operation, there were only 69 registered borrowers. Some 332 volumes were circulated and 1,197 period visited the library. Over a period of three years, these figures increased considerably in collection, circulation and attendance. For the month of March 1961, there were 818 registered borrowers, 1,506 volumes were circulated and 6,228 people visited the library.

The library's collection consists of non-fiction and fiction books. In the non-fiction area, there are books on general information, religion, philosophy, journalism, social sciences, military science, languages, mathematics, useful arts, recreation, fine arts, classical literature, histories and biographies. In the fiction field, the books are divided into novels, science fiction, mysteries and western categories.

The stacks are open and easily accessiable to patrons. The library is operated by one professional librarian and two assistants.

Chief SH Dental Clinician Cited, Receives an ACM

The Army Commendation Medal was presented Saturday to Lieutenant Colonel Robert M. Ziehm, Chief Clinician, Sand Hill Dental Clinic.

The medal was presented by Major General Charles H. Chase, commander of the 2nd Infantry Division.

Lt. Col. Ziehm was cited for his direction and supervision of a dental survey of all 2nd Infantry Division personnel last year to qualify them for overseas shipment. This undertaking necessitated the shifting of significant numbers of personnel both into and out of the division.

In turn, this required a major rearrangement in dental clinic records and the development of a phased work schedule to accomplish the dental check within a relatively short period of time.

Lt. J. O'Connor At 7th Cav's A As Commander

By 7th Cavalry PIO

Lieutenant John P. O'Conner has recently transferred from the 87th Infantry to the 7th Cavalry.

Upon arrival at the 7th Cavalry, Lt. O'Conner was assigned as the commander of Troop A, succeeding Lieutenant Jackie L. Welch, who has returned to civilian life.

Lt. O'Conner attended the Armor Officer Basic Course at Fort Knox, Kentucky in August 1956, and on completion of the course, was sent to Company D, 3rd Armored Cavalry as a platoon leader. During the Lt.'s tour with the 3rd Cavalry he completed Airborne and Ranger School.

In December 1960, Lt. O'Conner was assigned to the 87th Infantry at Fort Benning, Georgia where he was the Reconnaissance Platoon Leader and in March 1961 the Lt. was further assigned to the 7th Cavalry as Commander of Troop A.

Lt. O'Conner attended Seton Hall University and majored in Business Management. He graduated from Seton Hall in 1959 and was commissioned a second lieutenant.

Assistant S-3 Receives Tracks At 1st Infantry

By 1st Infantry PIO

Captain Robert L. Ament was promoted to his present rank in a surprise ceremony at the 1st Infantry.

The promotion took place in the office of Lieutenant Colonel Ted E. Gordinier, battle group commander in the absence of Colonel Walter B. Todd, of the 1st Infantry. Mrs. Ament pinned the new tracks on the captain's lapel.

The former assistant S-2 is the first officer of the battle group to receive the silver bars of captain since the 1st was organized last June. Captain Ament assumed the duties of assistant S-3 in February.

Upon graduation from Ohio State University, Captain Ament received his Reserve Officers' Training Corp commission.

Five Promotions Spark 87th Inf

By 87th Inf PIO

Five promotions became official recently for non-commissioned officers in the 87th Infantry who were promoted to platoon sergeant (E-7).

A copy of the orders was presented to each man by Battle Group Commander Colonel Ralph H. Hughett at an informal ceremony in his office. Receiving the orders were Platoon Sergeants William A. Baldwin of Company D, George R. McGee of Company E, Joseph H. Ibach of Headquarters Company, John W. Pruitt of Company A and Bobby Pylant, formerly of Combat Support Company but recently reassigned to Company E.

Capt. W. Patrick 87th's Co. D CO

By 87th Inf PIO

Captain William L. Patrick recently assumed command of Company D, 87th Infantry. He replaces Captain Raymond Whittaker, who has received an assignment to the Far East.

Captain Patrick comes to the 87th after an assignment as the aviation operations officer with the 7th Aviation Company, 7th Infantry Division in Korea. Before that he was a fixed wing flight instructor at Fort Rucker, Alabama from July of 1956 to December 1961. To date Captain Patrick has accumulated nearly 3,000 hours in the air.

Commissioned upon graduation from the University of South Dakota, where he got a degree in mathematics in 1953, he became an Army aviator in April of 1955, taking his flight training at Gary Air Force Base at San Marcus, Texas.

Originally from Salem, Oregon, he now lives on post with his wife and two children. His hobbies include hunting and fishing.

27th Artillery Lt Promoted by CO

The silver bar of First Lieutenant was pinned on Lieutenant Wayne M. Gennon recently by Lieutenant Colonel James D. Clark, Commanding Officer of 27th Artillery.

Lt. Cannon has served as Executive Officer of Battery A, 27th Artillery since August 5, 1961. The promotion ceremony took place recently in the Motor Pool of Battery A.

Best Mess Awards To 9th Avn.

The 2nd Infantry Division's monthly Best Mess Awards were presented recently to the outstanding mess halls at Kelley Hill and at Sand Hill.

Taking the honors for Kelley Hill was Sergeant First Class Johnnie B. Hardnett, mess steward of the 2nd Aviation Company. He was accompanied at the ceremony by Major Arlan R. Suddaby, company commander.

The Sand Hill winner was Sergeant First Class Aubra Phillips, mess steward of Company A, 9th Infantry. He was accompanied by his company commander, Captain Walter D. Ginger.

Best Meas plaques were presented to the sergeants by Major General Charles H. Chase, commander of the 2nd Infantry Division.

Three Receive Awards at 23rd

The 23rd Infantry held a battle group review recently on Knight Field to honor three persons.

A most unusual award went to Brigadier General Royal Reynolds Jr., former assistant division commander and present deputy commandant of the Infantry School. General Reynolds was made an honorary corporal of the 23rd Infantry "with all rights and privileges attached thereto."

Sergeant First Class Charles Darnell, Company C, was presented the Army Commendation Medal for meritorious service in this unit.

Private First Class Hamor R. Hatson, also of Company C and the 23rd's "Soldier-of-the-Month" for March, received a $25 savings bond and a miniature replica of the unit Commander's Trophy for his achievement.

All awards were presented by Colonel Louis A. Kunzig Jr., commander of the 23rd Infantry.

The General, Colonel Kunzig and the two honored guests then watched as the battle group passed in review.

Lt J R McIntosh Commo Officer At 38th Infantry

By 38th Inf PIO

Lieutenant John R. McIntosh has been named 38th Infantry communications platoon leader to succeed Lt. Rodney A. Pimental, who has received orders to flight school.

Lt. McIntosh, a former rifle platoon leader in Company B, entered the Army in June of 1960 as an enlisted man and took basic and advanced training at Fort Jackson, South Carolina. He next attended the Third Army NCO Academy at Fort Jackson before entering Officers' Candidate School at Fort Benning.

After graduation from OCS, Lt. McIntosh attended Ranger and Airborne schools and joined the 38th Infantry in October of 1961.

Another of the 38th's rifle company officers, Lt. Leonard G. Katsarsky, has left the battle group. A former platoon leader in Company D, he has been assigned to Brigade Headquarters as an assistant S-3.

Construction Specialist Wins S-O-M at 1st

By 1st Infantry PIO

Private First Class Roland Dixon of Headquarters Company was selected as the 1st Infantry's "Soldier - of - the-Month."

The selection was made by a board composed of two company first sergeants and the battle group sergeant major.

In the competition held last week, PFC Dixon won over representatives from all companies. Dixon is a combat construction specialist in the Headquarters company engineer platoon.

Selection for the monthly honor is based on the individual's appearance, military knowledge and bearing, job competency and knowledge of current world-wide events.

87th, Div Trains Tied In Softball

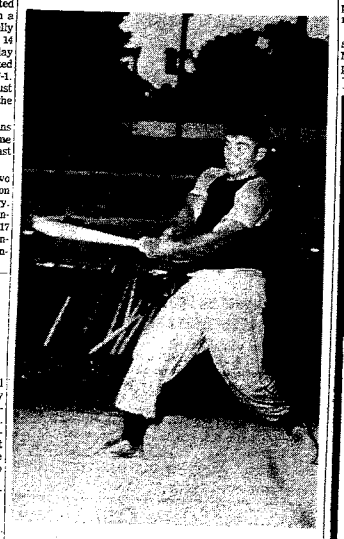
By Donald J. Lopata

The 87th Infantry has tied Division Trains for the lead in the 2nd Infantry Division's Softball Tournament as a result of last week's action.

Each team now has identical four won and one lost records with the 1st Infantry close behind with a four won and two lost record.

The 87th Infantry defeated the 1st Infantry last week in a makeup of a game originally scheduled for Monday May 14 by a score of 5-0. Thursday May 17, the 87th smacked down the 38th Infantry 7-1. While last Monday the 87th just managed to edge past the 122nd Signal Battalion 5-4.

Meanwhile Division Trains lost their only scheduled game to Division Artillery 7-2, last Monday.



The 1st Infantry did add two wins to its record in addition to its loss to the 67th Infantry. The 1st smashed the 23rd Infantry 11-2 Thursday May 17 and also came back last Monday to defeat the 38th Infantry in a tight match 8-7.

The 122nd Signal Battalion beat Division Artillery 9-7 last Friday in a game that was a makeup of the previous day's schedule.

Due to the training requirements of this division, the Softball Tournament will be postponed until after June 18 while all of the softball teams take their amphibious training with the 1st Infantry.

Student Brigade Holds First Slot

By SFC Bismarck Silth

In major unit baseball action, The Infantry Center Troop Command edged the 10th Artillery 9-8 and the Student Brigade rolled to an easy decision over the 428th Medics, 16-3.

In the CTC victory, Marty Leight was the winning pitcher and John Couch was charged with the loss. William Howard paced the winners with a double and single, while William Ray went five for five for the Artillerymen, including four singles and a double.

In TSB Action, Bob Kinlaw led the hitting attack for TSB with three doubles. Gary Hess had a solo homer for the Medics. Charles Spell hurled the victory and John Orsini was the loser.

Medics Win

The 428th Medical Battalion tripped the 29th Infantry 7-5 in other action around the baseball loop.

John Orsini was credited with the win and James Battle was tabbed with the setback. Rex Turner paced the winner's batting with two singles and a double in five trips. Dave Lynn clubbed three singles in five trips to head the 29th batting attack.

Shutout

George Rogers' two-run homer along with Fred Martin's double, Curtis Gentry's base on balls and Jay Mitchall's single, all in the eighth inning, accounted for a 4-0 victory over the 151st Engineers. James Battle tossed a two-hitter to collect the win. Paul Snyder was charged with the loss, giving up only five hits. William Tewksbury paced the losers with two singles.

Artillery Nips 428th

The 10th Artillery put on an eight-hit attack for a 9-2 win over the 428th Medics.

Joe Winchester, with the help of reliefer Douglas Turner in the eighth inning, was credited with the win. James Williams was charged with the setback.

Eldred Schrifils and Roy Lewis paced the winners with two-baggers. Edgar Rovsey's solo homer led the Medics at the plate.

CTC Ends Streak

Center Troop Command stopped the Two-Niners four-game winning streak 8-6 in a thrilling contest in the baseball circuit.

Fred Valentine blasted his second home run of the season, a two run blast. He also smacked a single in the fifth to pace the winners. Curtis Gentry hit his second four-bagger in the ninth inning for the big blow for the Infantrymen.

Harry Estes was credited with the win with help from teammate Marty Leight in the ninth. Clayton Johnson was tagged with the loss.

Artillery Wins

The 10th Artillery came from behind in the top of the ninth inning, by rallying four runs to defeat the 29th Infantry 8-5.

Douglas Turner with the help of Joe Winchester in ninth was credited with the victory. James Battle suffered the loss.

Robert Stewart's two singles and a double along Roy Lewis's three singles paced the Artillerymen at the plate. George Roger's double and single paced the loser. Jay Mitchell also contributed two singles for the Infantrymen.

Matches will be held on the courts at the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Fort Benning military and retired military personnel living in the vicinity of the post are eligible. Entries will be on an individual basis and must be submitted before 5 p.m., June 8.

Competition will be in three divisions, the men's open, men's senior and women's divisions. Included in each division are singles and doubles events.

Senior division participants must be 40 or older. Persons eligible to compete in the senior grouping may enter the open division. However, if they do, they forfeit the right to compete in the senior division.

All play will be single elimination with the winner of the best two out of three sets being the victor.

During the semifinals and finals, it will be the best three out of five for the men's open singles and doubles.

Quote Of the Week

Venerable Archie Moore after disposing of Howard King in 1:15 seconds of the first round: "Floyd Patterson and Sonny Liston better toughen up their chops. I'm looking for them and I smell blood."

Foust Successfully Retains Singles Title

A record number of players, 49 in the singles and 24 teams in the doubles, competed for championships at the Main Officers Open Mess Spring Tournament.

1st Lt. Arthur Foust, commander of Company B, 2nd Engineer Battalion, 2nd Infantry Division, successfully defended his singles title.

He defeated Capt. Paul C. Young, a pathologist at Martin Army Hospital, in two sets by identical 6-0 scores.

Revenge

Young achieved a measure of revenge when he teamed with 2nd Lt. John M. Sterling, a member of Headquarters Company, 151st Engineer Group, and defeated Foust and Brig. Gen. Royal Reynolds Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School, 7-5 and 8-6, in the doubles championship.

Senior Singles

Gen. Reynolds came back and won the senior singles, defeating Maj. Gilbert Procter Jr., analysis and review officer with The Infantry Board, in two sets, 6-1 and 6-2.

Still to be played are the championship sets in the men's senior doubles.

In the doubles, Lt. Col. Robert F. Galer, inspector general of TIC and Maj. Procter will go against the winners of a semifinals match still to be played.

Slated to appear in this match are the teams composed of Maj. Gen. Charles H. Chase, commanding general of the 2nd Infantry Division, and Gen. Reynolds against Lt. Col. Ted E. Gordinier executive officer of the 2nd Battle Group, 1st Infantry, 2nd Division and Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Bernard Burns.

Women's Division

In the women's division, Mrs. John F. Kearns defeated Gayle Baker, 6-4 and 6-2, for top honors in the singles.

In the doubles Mrs. Kearns teamed with Mrs. Gordinier to defeat Miss Baker and Jo Patton, 6-1 and 7-5.

Miss Baker and Miss Patton teach at the post children's schools.

GOOD GOLF

FEET IN RELATION TO BALL . . . A poor stance spawns an erratic swing. The sketches above illustrate how most pros stand for the various shots. The general rule is to move the ball backward between the feet as the clubs decrease in length. At the same time the stance changes from closed on drives, to square on fairway and long irons, to open on short irons. Flex knees slightly to distribute weight more toward the heel than on the ball of the foot. This produces a smoothness to the back swing, at contact and following through.

OUTDOOR OUTLOOK

BY SP4 DON GIRTON
ATTENTION POST FISHERMEN

"Attention Post Fishermen!" Such is the heading of a seven-line anonymous public notice in the classified section of the May 18 "Bayonet" calling for a fishing rodeo, prizes for big fish and big strings. Apparently unable to find his way to one of the post's several picnic areas and furthermore not having an autobahn to the same, Mr. Anonymous is calling on the Fish and Game Association to lead him out of the dark.

At first glance an uninformed reader might think that here is some enthusiastic soul trying to offer some constructive criticism.

But, why didn't he bring his suggestions to the Board of Directors of the Fish and Game Association which is composed of representatives of major units on post along with civilian representatives.

I am sure the Board of Directors will always be willing to listen to the suggestions of members and consider all reasonable ideas that will benefit the fish and game program here. They would indeed be neglecting their obligation if they did not accept bona fide constructive criticism. It is a gross injustice to imply or make accusations with no intention of standing behind them.

Any member of the Fish and Game Board or staff can give a full report of what has been done in the way of pond, picnic area and road improvements that have been made in only the past several months. Better still, the Wildlife Management Section personnel will be more than glad to enlighten the anonymous writer on the scope of the wildlife management program here at Fort Benning and personally show him road improvements and improved picnic areas, only to mention a few of the numerous projects.

How about it Mr. Anonymous? Would you care to come out from behind your disguise and get the real facts?

Junior Hunt Club Promotes Riding for Post Youngsters

Fort Benning youngsters from eight to 18 have the opportunity of participating in an active riding club this summer.

The organization is the Junior Hunt Club and is under the auspices of the Fort Benning Hunt Club. There are 26 children participating in the group's activities. They meet the first and third Fridays of each month at 5 p.m.

The goal of the club is to learn about horses, and this is not restricted just to riding. In the fall they will form groups to study the breeds of horses and the history of each.

Plan Reading

They plan to read as many books on horsemanship and horsemastership as is practical. This is a major undertaking because writings on these subjects appeared as early as 1200.

During the summer their primary activities will take place outdoors. Among these will be moonlight rides, hunt breakfasts and overnight rides.

The overnight rides are generally restricted to 10 or 15 persons and the group is adequately chaperoned by members of the senior Hunt Club.

The summer program also is devoted to improvement of the youngsters' abilities as riders. To do this they work, under guidance, for three awards—Bronze, Silver and Gold Medals.

The first medal they try to earn is the Bronze. Some of the requirements are demonstrations of the ability to lead a horse from a stall, corral or field, and of the general care of the animal after riding.

They also must mount, walk the horse in a straight line for at least 60 feet, make a half circle of not over 16 feet in radius at the walk, and conduct similar exercises at other gaits.

Requirements for the Silver and Gold Medals are progressively more difficult.

The biggest event of the season is the horse show, which will be held this year June 3.

Company A Gets Third Softball Win

PFC Thomas Awtrey, softball pitcher for Company A, Infantry School Battalion, The Student Brigade, held a previously unbeaten Company B, TSB team to one hit in a 4-0 victory recently.

Awtrey, missed a perfect game by a lone single by Sp5 Michael Janicki, in the sixth inning. The Company A pitcher faced 22 men, walked none, and sent 14 back to the bench on strike-outs.

Sp4 Richard Duvall, the losing pitcher, allowed five free passes, one walk, and gave up seven hits.

Both teams were held scoreless for five innings, until in the sixth. The A Company team rallied with singles by Pvt. John Contarino and Pvt. Salvatore D'Aquino, and bunts by PFC Awtrey, Pvt. Carl Durst and PFC James Fiat to bring home a third straight win.

RACE DRIVER

Cpl. Tim Mayer, stationed at Fort Brooke, Puerto Rico, won the Governor's Cup Race at Marlboro, Md., with a brand new English Cooper formula car.

AT THE Movies

THE COUNTERFEIT TRAITOR stars William Holden and Lilli Palmer in an action-packed adventure story. No man since time began ever lived with more suspense in every waking and sleeping moment—or lived with more desperate intensity.

A MAJORITY OF ONE is the story of a warmhearted Brooklyn widow romantically pursued by a Japanese industrial tycoon. Highlighting the many comic fireworks is the way she deals with her oriental admirer and single - handedly solves a diplomatic hassle. It stars Rosalind Russell and Alec Guinness.

THE GUNS OF NAVARONE is a gripping military drama staring Gregory Peck, Anthony Quinn, David Niven, and James Darren. Chosen by British Military Intelligence during WW II, a brave and courageous Commando team embarks on a desperate mission to land on the German - held Greek island of Navarone to destroy the huge guns that threaten an Allied Force with total annihilation.

BOOKS in REVIEW

THE SCARLET BOY, by Arthur Calder-Marshall. (Harper, 1962)

This story begins with a haunted house. George Grantley, middle-aged conservative, a quiet distinguished biographer, had played in the house when he was a boy. Anglesey House had been uninhabited for years when George began to check his friends—and he found out that it was said to be haunted. Sir Christopher laughed at the notion of haunts, the house was put into shape, and the Everness family moved in.

HITLER'S SECRET BOOK, by Telford Taylor. (Grove, 1962)

Recently discovered and now published for the first time, the long-suppressed sequel to MEIN KAMPF. Nowhere else did Hitler set forth his foreign policy so frankly and fully.

SYLVA, by Vercors. (Putnam, 1962)

In Sylva, Vercors has created as appealing and beguiling a heroine as can be found in contemporary fiction—and in this bizarre, sophisticated, fantastic, evocative, wonderfully charming book which bears her name.

EAST MINUS WEST-ZERO by Werner Keller. (Putnam, 1962)

This book is part of the Cold War. Those who are too fastidious, too frightened, too frivolous or too stupid to join in the struggle that is now taking place to decide humanity's future, and even more those who desire a totalitarian victory, will dismiss it. But for those of us who are interested and engaged it states an important thesis.

THOU SHALT NOT FEAR by Bud Collyer. (Revell, 1962)

This refreshingly readable and remarkable in style, depth and comprehensiveness, book presents limpid and reverberant observations on essential Christian truths — sparkling spiritual gems to carefully contemplate and imbed in mind and heart.

'Blue Day' Parade Held; OC's Enter Final Weeks

One hundred and six officer candidates, members of the 50th OC Company, 5th Student Battalion, The Student Brigade, conducted their "Blue Day" exercises last Saturday. The day marked the beginning of the final phase of their 23 weeks of training.

"Blue Day" is so named because the candidates now wear Infantry blue epaulet tabs and blue helmet liners. After the reading of a General Order the candidates were officially in senior status. At this stage of training the senior cadets do not have office privileges, but receive the same respect as due a commissioned officer from lower classmen.

Highlight of the day's activities, the Senior Status Review, was held at Stillwell Field.

Reviewing officers of the official ceremonies were Brig. Gen. Royal Reynolds, Jr., AC, USAIS; Col. Otto R. Koch, Jr., Commanding Officer, The Student Brigade; Lt. Col. John W. McClain, 5th Student Battalion Commander; Capt. Douglas O. Fingles, 50th OC Company Commander.

Student Staff

The Student Company's Staff of the Blue Day Review consisted of: OC Theodore J. Dolloff, Student Battalion Commander; OC Ronald D. Hogue, Adjutant and S-1; OC Dannie L. Swain, S-2; OC Patrick L. Migliaccio, S-3; OC Michael J. Wolk, S-4; OC Bernard W. Vaughan, senior company commander.

On the evening of "Blue Day", 50th Company held its 18th Week Party at the Gold Bar Club. Honored guests at the formal reception and dinner dance were Gen. and Mrs. Reynolds; Col. and Mrs. Koch, Lt. Col. and Mrs. McClain, and Capt. and Mrs. Fingles.

Entertainment and decorations were handled by officer candidates and their wives. A "Blue Moon" depicted the theme of the evening social. Entertainment included songs by the "Twilighters", four officer candidates, OC's Eugene E. Neves, Donald M. Moulder, Ronald L. Minnich and Dudley W. McIvers, III.

A guitar solo and duet were performed by OC's Garfield C. Schexnayder and Jerry E. Sheffield, and piano solo by OC Robert E. Bergquist. All entertainment for the evening's gathering were introduced by the master of ceremonies, OC Harold W. Allen, Jr.

West Point, A.F. Cadets To Visit Here

Approximately 520 cadets from the U.S. Military Academy, Class of 1963, will arrive here June 6 for a five-day visit, and on June 30 over 700 cadets from the U. S. Air Force Academy, Class of 1965 will make a similar visit.

During their stay the West Pointers will receive instruction and training in Infantry weapons, Infantry and mechanized Infantry tactics and guerrilla warfare activities and techniques.

They also will participate in leadership training exercises, receive an orientation on airborne training, and be familiarized with new developments and future trends in the Infantry.

Learn of Infantry

The Air Force cadets will be oriented on the role of the Infantry in warfare and be familiarized with the Army's weapons, equipment and tactics, Airborne and Ranger training, and the role and capabilities of Army aviation.

They are scheduled to participate in as much field training as is practical during their seven - day stay to gain an understanding of many of the skills required by the Infantryman.

Formal dances are scheduled to be held for each of the visiting groups. On June 8 in the Main Officers' Open Mess, the Military Academy cadets will be feted and on July 3 a similar function will be held for the future Air Force officers.

1st Lt. Robert Rose Assumes Command

Company D, 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, recently welcomed a new company commander.

Succeeding Capt. Wallace E. Viau is 1st Lt. Robert S. Rose. Lt. Rose formerly held the position of aide-de-camp to Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles, recent assistant commandant of the Infantry School.

Officers Eat Jungle Diet In Training

Four Fort Benning officers recently returned from Fort Sherman, Canal Zone, where after three weeks of patrols in the rain forests of Panama, and an occasional menu of boa constrictors and coati-mundies, they completed a three-week survival course.

The course was jungle warfare training, and for the uninformed, coati - mundies are racoon-like, flesh-eating animals.

First Lt. Arnold G. Bothrock, a member of The Infantry School's Ranger Department, was one of the honor graduates finishing third out of a class of 103.

Others completing the course included 1st Lt. Virgil Fernandes, also of the Ranger Department; 2nd Lt. John F. Rooayne, a member of the 586th Engineer Company, and 1st Lt. Joseph J. Burn, 690th Medical Company.

Eat 'Delicacies'

During the three weeks, students were familiarized with mountaineering techniques, river navigation and cross-country patrols over the rugged Central American terrain, characterized by razorback mountains and dense vegetation.

Expert Infantry Badges Won by 63 Officers

"It's been proven time and time again. . .it is the 'Expert Infantryman' who decides the final outcome of any battle."

With these words Col. Lawrence S. Reynolds, 1st Infantry Brigade commander, expressed his sentiment to the 63 graduating members of the latest Expert Infantryman's Training in the Brigade classroom recently.

The men, all officers assigned to The Student Brigade Career Course, accomplished this feat on their own time. Normally, the training is conducted during duty hours, but it was nothing to see members of this class working in the classroom or in the field on weekday nights and weekends.

Harmon Is First

Top man in the class after the vigorous three-week course was Capt. Marsden A. Harmon. Capt. Harmon scored a 1107 points. Following in the second and third slots were Capt. Edward L. Trobaugh with 1102, and Capt. Warren G. Lawson with 1096.

In combat dress, Capt. Bradley E. Eyers, broke the 12-mile EIB marching record during the course of training with a two hour, two minute and five second march time. Normally the time given for the march is three hours.

Capt. Ayers, speaking of his record-breaking feat stated, "I believe that with the increased emphasis on mechanization in the Army today we sometimes forget that the Infantryman's basic means of mobility are his two feet.

"A large percentage of the earth's surface does not permit the use of a mechanized force. The footmobile Infantryman will continue to be the key to combat success, particularly in these areas.

"It is imperative that the fundamental Infantry capability of rapid, cross-country foot movement receives due emphasis in training. In this connection, we, the officers responsible for such training must be capable of setting the example. I hope and expect that this march record will be broken very soon by another Infantryman."

Prior to taking the Expert Infantryman's Badge Test, a candidate must be a sharpshooter with his individual weapon and have excellent character and efficiency ratings.

337 Men Earn Wings Of Airborne

Graduation exercises last Friday saw 337 members of The Infantry School's basic airborne course receive Parachutist Badges.

Included in the class were 23 Army officers and 306 enlisted men, a U. S. Air Force officer and seven airmen.

Honor graduate was Pvt. Richard O. Nichols.

Four members of the group are sons of former paratroopers, or as members of TIS's Airborne-Air Mobility Department call them, "second generation troopers."

One of these is Pvt. Roland A. Nielsen, son of PFC Albert Nielsen, who was killed during World War II while serving with the 101st Airborne Division.

Pvt. Gordon A. Hill's father, Maj. (Ret.) F. T. Hill of Alexandria, Va., served with the 11th Airborne Division during World War II.

Earl Carson of Kansas City, Mo., whose son, Pvt. Tyrone Carson, was among those who were graduated, saw action in the same war with the 82nd Airborne Division. He was with the 82nd during the Battle of the Bulge.

Pvt. Araldo F. Gomez's father, 1st Lt. Joe Gomez, is still in the Army. At present he is stationed in Europe.

NOW WAIT A MINUTE! . . . That fellow swearing MSgt James B. Hatley in for another enlistment term looks suspiciously like . . . By golly, it is. It's MSgt James B. Hatley. This trick photograph was cooked up by Sp4 Vasken Bayenderian but the story is not a hoax. Sgt. Hatley recently reenlisted to take the post of career counselor supervisor for The Infantry Center. He was previously career councilor for the 428th Medical Battalion.

Protestant Women Plan Discussion

The Infantry Center Protestant Women of the Chapels will meet at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday in Bldg. 2905.

The theme for the program will be "Jesus, His last days on earth." Mrs. William Ray will be the discussion leader.

A nursery will be provided for small children during the meeting.

489th Engineers Rebuild Running Deer Range Here

By Sp4 Ron Chrisco

Running Deer Range, located on 1st Division Rd. between the Ft. Benning Pistol and Rifle Range and Easley Range, is being rebuilt by Company A, 489th Engineer Battalion.

This unusual range, the only one of its kind in the United States, is used to perfect firing accuracy.

The main body of the precision built structure is a wall 97 meters long and 60 meters high at its tallest point. The wall, built in a tapering fashion, conceals a life-size silhouette of a deer which runs on an electrical operated track and is fired upon as it crossed a 22-meter opening in the wall.

Plans call for the wall to be constructed with 600 concrete cinder blocks, according to 1st Lt. Troy D. Lahe, project officer for the range. The plans also call for a concrete culvert to insure drainage from the site.

One of the major improvements of the new range over the old one is the modern electric track on which the target operates. The old one was hand operated. This new and unusual range when completed will be used by teams from all over the world in international matches.

LAAC Units In Ft. Bragg Exercises

Four units from Lawson Army Aviation Command left post recently to participate in Department of the Army directed exercises at Fort Bragg.

The exercises are slated to last 13 weeks and will test Army Aviation capabilities.

The units, with a complement of over 700 personnel, include Headquarters Detachment of the 3rd Transportation Battalion, the 1st Aviation Company, 31st Transportation Company and 138th Transportation Detachment.

They joined units from Fort Rucker and Fort Knox and will operate as an aviation transportation battalion.

Lt. Col. Donato N. Vincent, commander of the 3rd Battalion, will direct the combined units during the exercise.

WALTER REED

Walter Reed Army Medical Center has three locations. The headquarters at 6825 16th D. C., comprises Walter Reed Army Hospital, Walter Reed Army Institute of Research, Central Dental Laboratory, and the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology.

TIS Bleachers Plus Ingenuity Spell Big Savings for Government

The Infantry School has proven that bleacher seats and a little bit of ingenuity can add up to a government saving of thousands of dollars.

Portable bleachers are used by TIS at 325 instructional sites on post. The seats are moved from site to site as required.

In the past, only high quality domestic lumber provided the qualities of strength and durability required for bleachers. Quality is essential to withstand the elements and hard usage by thousands of students throughout the year.

Replacement boards were previously purchased at a cost of $8 to $11 each.

In an effort to reduce operating costs, a study was conducted to determine if these qualities existed in lower-priced grades of lumber.

The investigation revealed that Sitka Spruce, grown in Alaska, satisfied the requirements of strength and durability and could be purchased for $3.20 per board.

Since TIS uses approximately 2,000 of these boards each year, the minimum annual savings under the new purchase plans amounts to $13,600.

Additional savings were experienced in the bleachers when the system of painting all temporary bleachers each year was abolished.

It was found that periodic inspection and painting only on an "as needed" basis was sufficient to preserve the bleachers without a deterioration of the high standard of appearance characteristic of TIS.

This plan brought an annual savings of $2,500.

As an additional economy measure, approximately $600 worth of useable lumber is salvaged annually from bleacher boards which have deteriorated to the point where they cannot be used for their intended purposes.

Such salvaged lumber is utilized in the fabrication of training aids and in making minor repairs to classrooms and instructional areas.

These examples serve to illustrate the savings which can accrue through a simple combination of cost - consciousness and careful review of established procedures.

HONORED . . . Sp4 Harry B. Persinger, 50th Medical Company, was selected as the Soldier of the Month in battalion competition recently.

NCOs Couch, Fanning Are Upped To SFC in First Inf Ceremony

By 1st Infantry PIO

Sergeants First Class Herman O. Couch and William T. Fanning of the 1st Infantry were promoted to their present rank last week.

Sergeants Couch and Fanning were presented promotion orders and were congratulated by Colonel Walter B. Todd, battle group commander.

Sgt. Couch has been a member of the 1st Infantry since June 1961, serving as a platoon sergeant of the reconnaissance platoon of Combat Support Company. He served with the 194th Tank Battalion, 2nd Armored Cavalry, 14th Armored Cavalry and the 7th Cavalry before being assigned to the 1st Infantry.

Among his awards and decorations are the National Defense Service Medal, Army of Occupation Medal, Germany, and the Good Conduct Medal with three loops.

Sgt. Fanning is a platoon sergeant of Company C. He also holds a reserve commission of first lieutenant in the Military Police Corps. He has served at Fort Rucker, Fort Gordon, Fort Bragg, Fort Dix and at Managua, Nicaragua.

Sgt. Fanning has received the National Defense Service Medal, Good Conduct Medal with two loops and the Combat Infantryman's Badge.

PARKING TICKET? . . . Getting an overtime parking ticket from Columbus Policewoman Lottie Cotton is SFC Lawrence Williamson, C Battery, 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery. Williamsons tracked twin-40mm self-propelled gun was parked overtime during Armed Forces Day displays on Broadway in Columbus. Williamson felt better when informed that the ticket was a joke.

ulace to distrust and lose confidence in the legally established government of occupying power. If not suppressed, such resistance can result in insurgency by irregular forces.

Guerrilla Warfare

Guerrilla warfare is the conduct of combat operations inside a country in enemy or enemy-held territory on a military or paramilitary basis by units organized from predominantly indigenous personnel. The aim is to weaken the established government of the target country by reducing the combat effectiveness of the military forces, the economic means and the over-all morale and will to resist.

Irregular Forces

Irregular forces refer in a broad sense to all types of insurgents to include, for example, partisans, subversionists, terrorists, revolutionaries and guerrillas.

Paramilitary Forces

Paramilitary forces are those existing alongside the armed forces and are professedly nonmilitary, but formed on an underlying military pattern as a potential auxiliary, or diversionary military organization.

Evasion and Escape

Evasion and escape are those operations whereby friendly military personnel and other selected individuals are enabled to emerge from enemy-held or unfriendly areas to areas under friendly control.

Counterinsurgency

Counterinsurgency includes all military, political, economic, psychological and sociological activities directed toward preventing and suppressing resistance groups whose actions range in degree of violence and scope from subversive political activity to violent actions by large guerrilla elements to overthrow a duly established government. The basic military problem is to maintain or restore internal security so that other elements of the counterinsurgency program can operate. Comprehensive, national, counterinsurgency plans are required to integrate and coordinate the use of all means, including available outside assistance, to suppress and eliminate all forms of insurgency.

Counterguerrilla Operations

Counterguerrilla operations are those active and passive measures taken by the armed forces and nonmilitary agencies of an established government and its allies against guerrilla forces.

Counterinsurgency Forces

U. S. Army Counterinsurgency forces comprise special forces, civil affairs, psychological warfare, engineer, medical, light aviation, signal and other elements as required. They are capable of operating in disturbed areas, if invited by a host government, to provide training and operational advice and assistance to indigenous military forces engaged in maintaining or restoring internal security.

Special Forces Groups

U. S. Army special forces groups are specially trained and organized to train and assist indigenous leaders and forces in measures, tactics and techniques required to prevent or eliminate hostile resistance and guerrilla groups. Other Army elements extend and complement the activities of special forces groups. Assistance and training provided to indigenous forces may include operational advice.

The wartime mission of special forces groups is to organize, supply train and direct predominantly indigenous forces in the conduct of guerrilla warfare in enemy-held or controled territory to support the over-all military effort.

CUT CALORIES

The sheriff of Peoria, Ill., says that one of his inmate's sweet tooth will go unsatisfied. Five candy bars left for the inmate contained hack saw blades.

Veteran's Club Arrives Here

Forty-five members of the Atlanta Veterans Luncheon Club arrived here today for a tour of post facilities.

The group, most of whom are retired military personnel, is scheduled to observe members of The Infantry School's officer candidate course in an artillery fire request and adjustment of fire problem.

They also will see a scout dog demonstration by members of the 16th Infantry Scout Dog Platoon.

They will depart later today.

HIS BROTHER'S KEEPER?

Stephen Foster wrote "Oh Susanna" in Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1846 after his arrival to act as his brother's bookkeeper.

Mrs. Skipworth Attends Meet On Girl Scouts

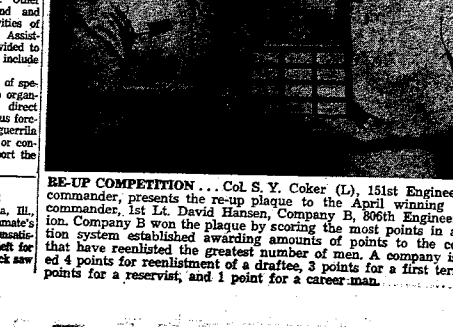
Mrs. Charles Skipworth, president of the Concharty Council of Girl Scouts, attended the presidents' meeting in Atlanta May 9, 10, 11. This meeting involved presidents of Girl Scout Councils from four states.

The three day meeting included intensive training on Girl Scout program changes effective in 1963. Mrs. Steve Knight, Concharty Council program coordinator, Mrs. Richard Hecht, member Region VI committee and Mrs. J. N. Miner, executive director of the council, also attended.

Mrs. Skipworth was chosen to hostess a luncheon for Mrs. Charles Culmer, national president of the Girl Scouts of the U.S.A.

The Concharty Council has jurisdiction in twelve neighboring counties in Georgia and Alabama.

St. James Church Plans Soldiers And Veterans Day



Mrs. C. D. Edwards, program committee, of St. James AME Church, 1002 6th Ave., Columbus, announces that the church is sponsoring a St. James Soldiers and Veterans Day on Sunday, June 3, beginning with morning services at 11.

All soldiers and veterans are cordially invited to attend both morning and evening services with family and friends, have dinner and enjoy the afternoon program of music.

Capt. Viau Takes Company Command

Capt. Wallace E. Viau recently assumed command of Company A, 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry.

He succeeds Capt. James R. Steverson who has taken the position of Battalion S-3 officer.

BE-UP COMPETITION . . . Col. S. Y. Coker (L), 151st Engineer Group commander, presents the re-up plaque to the April winning company commander, 1st Lt. David Hansen, Company B, 806th Engineer Battalion. Company B won the plaque by scoring the most points in a competition system established awarding amounts of points to the companies that have reenlisted the greatest number of men. A company is awarded 4 points for reenlistment of a draftee, 3 points for a first term RA, 2 points for a reservist, and 1 point for a career man.

VOL. 20, NO. 38 | FRIDAY, JUNE 1, 1962 | FORT BENNING, GA. | 52 Pages — 5c

Expect 900 Shooters For All-Army Matches

By MSgt. Charles Quinn

The Army will open its 1962 rifle and pistol championship at Fort Benning, Thursday when some 900 marksmen from all over the world will compete for "All-Army" shooting honors.

Sgt. Willie D. Jordan is scheduled to defend the individual rifle crown he won in 1961 as a member of the U. S. Army Europe squad. Jordan was subsequently picked up by the Marksmanship Training Unit which has its home station here and will do his 1962 defending under MTU colors.

Also shooting for the 1962 crown will be MTU's SFC Antonio Miranda, who holds the all-time record for the championship rifle course, 992-87V out of the 1,000 points possible to attain in the seven individual matches comprising the event.

Official entries show that, behind Jordan and Miranda, some 450 riflemen are tightly massed and waiting for the opening gun.

Among these are the riflemen of U. S. Army Europe's "Gray Team" which holds the all-time record for the famed Infantry Trophy Team Match.

Beside them are Third Army's Infantry Trophy squad members, who are confident the Europe team's all-time 1,138 won't stand up.

"That score was fired last year and this is another year," said MSgt. Jesse L. McCaskill, mentor of the Third Army squad, who added there were teams on the 1962 range which were fully capable of knocking the old mark into the proverbial cocked hat.

"This should be so because we've had a full year in which to progress in the conduct of this particular type of competitive shooting," he said and noted that the Infantry Trophy Team award was the most coveted in the huge array of trophies awarded annually at the close of All-Army competition.

Unlike the conventional matches fired on "bulls-eye" targets, Sgt. McCaskill explained, the Infantry Trophy Match was fired by teams of six riflemen at silhouette targets at ranges of 600, 500, 300 and 200 yards respectively. Scores were tabulated on the number of hits and "distribution of fire" attained by the firers. Heavy stress is being placed

Children Cautioned Of Sprayer

Fort Benning parents are asked to keep children away from vehicles that spray the cantonment and dependent housing areas with bug-killing fog.

Excessive inhaling of the fumes could result in lung and skin irritation, according to officials. Since the mixture of DDT and diesel oil in the fog-generating trucks is heated to a temperature of 700 to 1,100 degrees, touching one of the spray nozzles would cause severe burns.

Spraying of the post areas, including Benning Park, which began May 21, will continue until about Oct. 1.

Coveted Medals Presented Here

Two coveted military medals were presented in ceremonies here Saturday — one, the Purple Heart, for wounds received in Vietnam.

MSgt. Walter E. Vick, a member of the Infantry School's Ranger Department, received the Soldier's Medal for heroic actions.

Capt. Edward W. Nidever of TIS's Airborne Air Mobility Department, was awarded the Purple Heart.

Executive Order

A recent executive order authorized the Purple Heart to individuals killed or wounded in action with an opposing armed force while serving with friendly forces engaged in an armed conflict against such opposition.

The incident in which Nidever was wounded occurred while he was serving as an advisor with the Military Assistance Advisory Group to Vietnam.

Accompanying the 2nd Platoon of the 342nd Ranger Company on a training patrol on Oct. 28, 1961, he was shot in the left leg by a sniper.

He made his way back to camp where the wound was treated. Nidever was subsequently transferred to the U.S. and Fort Benning.

Action in Germany

Vick received his medal for heroic actions during a serious accident that occurred while he was stationed in Germany.

Then an SFC serving with Company A, 1st Airborne Battle Group, 505th Infantry, Vick was a witness to a head-on vehicle collision July 14, 1961, near Pforzheim, Germany.

The wreck occurred on the Stuttgaret-Heidelberg Autobahn

Col. Jackson Is New Ranger CO

Col. John W. Jackson has been named director of The Infantry School's ranger Department here.

He succeeds Col. Bernard G. Teeters who has been assigned to Cambodia as the deputy chief of the Military Assistance Advisory Group.

Col. Jackson, a graduate of the University of Washington, Seattle, comes to the Ranger Department from TIS's Operations Office, where he has served as operations officer since November, 1960.

In Pacific Theater

He saw combat duty during World War II with Headquarters, Armed Forces of the Pacific, and during the Korean conflict he fought with the 5th Regimental Combat Team.

Among his decorations are the Silver Star, Bronze Star Medal and the Army Commendation Medal.

He received his commission in June, 1934. After active duty, he returned to civilian life, and from 1935 to 1940, he resided in Seattle, Wash.

After World War II, he resumed his civilian job in the Washington city.

In August, 1950, he was called back into active service and has remained ever since.

He was assistant professor of military science and tactics at his Alma Mater from September, 1952, to June, 1954, and from then until January, 1956, he was G-3 for the Military District of Arizona.

In April, 1956, he was assigned to the 5th Regiment, 8th Infantry Division, until August, 1958, in Fort Carson, Colo., and in Germany.

From August, 1958, until August, 1959, he was G-3 for Headquarters Seventh Army in Germany.

500 West Point Cadets Coming To See U. S. Infantry in Action

Much of the Army's might will be displayed to over 500 cadets of the U. S. Military Academy's Class of 1963 when they visit here Wednesday through June 11.

Slated to be seen by the West Pointers are such demonstrations as a mounted rifle platoon in attack, an Infantry-tank task force in attack and a reinforced rifle company in defense.

In the latter demonstration all weapons organic to and utilized in support of a forward rifle company in defense will be fired simultaneously.

'Mad Minute'

This barrage of fire has often been called "The Mad Minute," and it is particularly effective because full tracer ammunition is used, enabling the spectators to see the rounds from the time they are fired until hitting the targets.

In addition to learning more about the Army's firepower, the future officers will receive orientations designed to show

Group From Florida Set To Tour Post, Facilities

A group of approximately 40 people from the Orlando, Fla., area will arrive at Lawson Army Air Field at 10 a.m. Wednesday for a tour of the post and facilities.

Included in the group will be members of the Central Florida Civilian Military Orientation Committee, the Orlando Chamber of Commerce and military personnel from posts in the surrounding area.

After receiving the commandant's welcome they will visit The Infantry School's officer candidate classes, be briefed on the history and organization of The Infantry Center and the organization and mission of TIS.

They will also get a chance to see much of the firepower of the Army when they witness upon Infantry Trophy practice as the record day nears, he said.

The Fourth Army team took 1961 "KD" (Known Distance) team honors and the Army Rifle Team Championship when they posted a 1,467 score, a single point behind the record of the Second Army squad. Both these teams will be punching holes in McAndrews Range V-rings in defense of their respective titles.

The title of Army Pistol Champion has been established as a synonym for the name "Blankenship" by SFC Bill Blankenship.

Blankenship has won the Army's handgun title for the past two years and in both years went on to win the U.S. individual pistol crown.

"Naturally, I'd like to repeat the performance this year," he said, "but competition gets rougher all the time."

The MTU shooter holds the all-time individual pistol record over the Army championship course, a total of 2656-123X out of 2,700 points.

Army Pistol Team honors are currently held by U. S. Army Europe's "Blue Team" which wears 1961 laurels and holds the all-time team mark by virtue of it's last year's total of 1,140-40X with the service pistol.

The championships are scheduled to continue until June 15 and match officials indicate that they expect most match records to fall during the week's interim.

Following close of the competition and award of trophies the annual selection of marksmen to represent the Army in nation - wide competition at Camp Perry, Ohio, will be made by officers of the MTU.

and resulted in both cars catching on fire.

With full knowledge of the possibility of an explosion, he ran to one of the burning vehicles in which the occupant was trapped unconscious and attempted to free him. The car did explode and the rescue was carried out amidst flames and flying metal.

After freeing the victim and removing him to what appeared to be a safe distance, Vick went to assist the occupants of the second vehicle.

Before he made it, the first car exploded a second time and, wheeling, Vick saw the man who had been removed had caught on fire again.

With complete disregard for his own safety, the airborne sergeant, ran through the flying debris, extinguished the fire and administered first aid until the arrival of medical assistance.

In recognition of his brave actions, Secretary of the Army, Elvis J. Stahr, Jr., signed a citation which reads in part, "Sgt. Vick's presence of mind and quick and heroic action in this hazardous situation represent exemplary conduct in the most cherished traditions of the U. S. Army and reflect the utmost credit upon himself and the military service.

Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell, commandant of The Infantry School, made the presentations.

Gen. Howze Plans Visit

Lt. Gen. Hamilton H. Howze, commanding general of the 18th Airborne Corps and STRAC Forces at Fort Bragg, N. C., is scheduled to visit Fort Benning for three days beginning Wednesday.

He will be briefed on the history and organization of The Infantry Center and the organization and mission of The Infantry School.

He also will be familiarized with the use of the post in training support.

Special visits on his tour will be made to many units in the 2nd Infantry Division, commanded by Maj. Gen. Charles H. Chase, and the 650th Medical Company, 428th Medical Battalion.

He is slated to depart the post Friday.

'Best Yard' Award Is Presented

Maj. Lowell C. Wooten has won top honors here for having the "Yard of the Month" in May.

An instructor in the anti-tank missile committee of the Weapons Department, The Infantry Center, he was given a letter of appreciation signed by Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly deputy commanding general of TIC.

A plaque will be displayed in Wooten's yard until the end of the month.

The award, which is made on the second Monday of each month, is given to the winner among enlisted and officer families at the Main Post, Capehart, Upatoi Terrace and Whery housing areas.

New Director Addresses NCO Leaders

First Lt. William White, course director of the newly inaugurated NCO leadership course, gave his opening address to the first class recently. First Lt. Kenneth Rodarmer, is assisting Lt. White in the administration of the course.

The goal of the two-week course is to raise the standards and quality of performance of noncommissioned officers and to prepare potential NCO's for leadership positions in the 156th Signal Battalion.

The course consists of 88 hours of classroom and practical work in leadership, methods of instructions, tactics, administration, map reading, and drill and ceremonies. Certificates will be awarded to those who successfully complete the course during graduation ceremonies.

Instructors for the course are qualified noncommissioned officers and officers of the 156th Signal Battalion. Instructors are 1st Lt. William White, A Company; SFC Robert Hyne, A Company; 1st Lt. Kenneth Rodarmer, C Company; SSgt. Joseph Bryant, C Company; Sgt. Leonard Yoas, D Company; and SFC Ronald Perryman, C Company, 204th Sig Bn.

Personnel now attending are from the 156th Signal Battalion. However, members of the two attached units, 233rd Signal Company and Company C, 204th Signal Battalion will attend Class No. 2.

Critics of U.S. A-Testing Should Check the Record

Now that we have resumed nuclear testing in the atmosphere, compelled to such a course by the adamant Soviet opposition to international inspection, the voices of the Ban the Bomb group have again been raised in criticism of President Kennedy's decision. And, to no one's surprise, these critics are piously egged on by apologists for communism.

But they would do well to take a hard and honest look at the record before repeating their reproaches and lamentations. We as a great world power desire that world to be peaceful and ruled by law, not brute force. To this end we have been the chief supporter of the United Nations, both morally and financially.

In keeping the U.N. resolutions we have submitted draft treaties for both a test ban and for progress toward complete disarmament under a U.N. peace force. We have offered new concessions on the issues in Berlin to achieve at least a modus vivendi pending a broader European peace agreement. We have supported U.N. efforts to liquidate by peaceful means the colonial empires of the West. And we have set such a course even though at times we courted the disfavor of our allies.

Right now in Southeast Asia we seek a neutral Laos. In the Congo the United Nations has our stout support in trying to bring peace and unity to that vast land without intervention by the great powers. We are, too, firmly behind U.N. policies to keep peace in the Middle East.

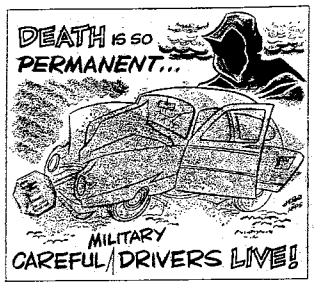
It is all on record for those who sincerely look for it. And the record shows also that since WWII we have spent more than $80 billion to help the recovery of other nations, including those behind the Iron Curtain. Our sole objective has been an unselfish one—world peace and prosperity. And peace of our objective when, however unwillingly, we resume the nuclear testing that is necessary if we are to remain the leader and the hope of the Free World. (AFPS)

The Judge Says . . .

Last evening after supper Sgt. Jim's troubles started. It began something like this:

"Honey, guess what? Today a salesman was here and he had the most wonderful books for sale. They were really nice. The most recent edition of all the current world events; anything that is worth knowing is printed in them. And so cheap, too. They'll be just the thing when little Susie starts school."

This is not to be construed that Mrs. Smith was the sole person responsible for the events that followed, for on the following evening, when the salesman returned, Sgt. Smith readily agreed with is wife, and within a matter of minutes, they had purchased a set of books costing $149.50.



The result of this ill-planned maneuver was yet to come. Sgt. and Mrs. Smith, by signing their names to a valid and binding contract, had obliged themselves to accept the books on arrival, and to pay the price agreed. Little did they know that such worry and bother was yet in store for them. As so many others, they had not read the contract before they signed it, and contained therein was a that the books could not be returned if the buyer was dissatisfied with them.

One month went by and the books had not arrived; then at the end of the second month in came the postman with several boxes full of books. By the terms of the contract $10.00 was to be remitted upon receipt of the books by the buyer. But not having planned on the books arriving when they did, Sgt and Mrs. Smith were caught short of funds and had to borrow from their neighbor to make their first payment.

Now, two months later Sgt. and Mrs. Smith find that they have the books plus the obligation to pay. During the meantime they had incurred other obligations and had thrashed over the matter of the books a little more thoroughly. The two had unanimously agreed that maybe it wasn't the best thing to buy the books right at this time. What with prices the way they are, and little Susie won't be able to use them for quite some time.

This leaves but one alter-

SURGEON SAYS

Beware of Rabies

By 1st Lt. Gerald A. Kelso, VC

Rabies is a disease of animals and man from which, once symptoms are manifested, there is no cure. It is important to everyone to be familiar with the basic dangers of this disease.

Rabies is a disease of all warm-blooded animals that is caused by a virus. It is transmitted almost exclusively by the saliva of an infected animal via a bite. Symptoms of rabies vary greatly in different species, in animals within a species and with different stages of the disease in a given animal. They may vary from loss of appetite and uneasiness to the occasional animal that has the viciousness associated with a "mad" animal.

Since symptoms are so varied and so easily confused with other diseases, it is necessary to quarantine any suspected animal. If the animal has rabies the symptoms will progress in rapid order and the animal will die in a few days; however, death of the animal is not definite proof of rabies. Positive proof can only be established after certain tests are made by a qualified laboratory.

Vaccination Vital

Rabies has an especially high incidence in wild skunks, foxes and bats. Since dogs and cats, by their nature, often have access to these wild animals, they constantly have a chance to be infected with the disease. Therefore, annual vaccination of all pets is a vital step in prevention of rabies.

Any bite by an animal must be considered a potential source of rabies. Whenever bitten by an animal, first make sure the animal is confined and properly identified and then see a physician. The animal should be placed under quarantine for at least a ten-day period and observed by a qualified individual to determine if the animal is in the incubation stages of rabies.

If at the end of the quarantine period the animal is not showing any symptoms of rabies, it can be presumed that there is no danger of rabies to the person bitten.

At Fort Benning, a report of animal bites treated at the hospital is given to the military police. They pick up the animal and take it to the Station Veterinarian where it is observed for ten days.

Preventive treatment is given people bitten by an animal that is positive for rabies and to those bitten by an animal that escapes and can not be observed for the prescribed period.

Rabies is not a disease to be taken lightly, but neither should it be any problem to people observing basic preventive procedures. These are: vaccinate all pets annually, handle with caution any animal acting strangely; and if bitten by an animal, identify and confine it and then see your physician.

Liberty and Communism

Liberty for All Mankind

The Twentieth century saw the development of the concepts of national freedom and the liberties of the individual raised to the global level.

Woodrow Wilson, in an address to the U. S. Senate in 1917, enunciated the doctrine of "self-determination," or the right of every people to determine its own government and way of development. This principle he later incorporated into his famous "Fourteen Points," which formed the basis upon which he believed a lasting peace could be established after WWI.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt stressed freedom of the individual for all men in an address to the Congress on Jan. 6, 1941, when he declared: "In the future days, which we seek to make secure, we look forward to a world founded upon four essential human freedoms." These four freedoms were:

". . . freedom of speech and expression — everywhere in the world.

". . . freedom of every person to worship God in his own way — everywhere in the world.

". . . freedom from want —which, translated into world terms, means economic understandings which will secure to every nation a healthy, peaceful life for its inhabitants — everywhere in the world.

". . . freedom from fear— which, translated into world terms, means a worldwide reduction of armaments to such a point and in such a thorough fashion that no nation will be in a position to commit any act of aggression against any neighbor—anywhere in the world."

After several years of study and debate, the Human Rights Commission of the United Nations Social and Economic Commission drew up a list of fundamental rights that all people should have.

This "Universal Declaration of Human Rights" was adopted by the U. N. General Assembly on Dec. 10, 1948, as a "common standard of achievement for all peoples and all nations, to the end that every individual and every organ of society . . . shall strive by teaching and education to promote respect for these rights and freedoms. . ."

The 30 articles of the "Declaration of Human Rights" are based on (1) "recognition of the inherent dignity and of the equal and inalienable rights of all members of the human family (as) the foundation of freedom, justice and peace of the world; (2) the "four freedoms;" (3) "human rights. . . protected by the rule of law."

An unprecedented step toward international enforcement of human rights was taken in September 1958 when the European Court of Human Rights was established. This Court, designed to protect certain basic individual rights, was created under the "Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms," signed at Rome on Nov. 4, 1950, by members of the 15-nation Council of Europe. This is how it works:

A Human Rights Commission receives complaints from individuals, organizations and nations about alleged violations of human rights by member governments. Any dispute the Commission is unable to settle may be referred to the new Court, which is empowered to make decisions that are binding on the governments concerned.

It was a historic occasion on Oct. 3, 1960, when the Court of Human Rights received its first case — the complaint of one Richard V. Lawless against the Irish Republic for being held five months without charge or trial. The Irish Government agreed to appear in the case.

CHAPLAIN'S CORNER

What's A Steward?

By Chaplain (Capt.) James L. Webb

The most common usage of the term steward is that applied to the Church official. The Church steward is to be concerned about the physical and spiritual business of the Church.

A Steward

The stewardess on an airplane has the job of attending to the needs of the passengers. She may distribute pillows and meals or just talk to someone who has become panicky.

A mother of a vivacious brood is a steward since she has the responsibilities of keeping the household running on an even keel. The husband too is a steward as he provides for the home and provides for the family.

According to the Bible there is one word that sums up this job of being a steward and this word is "faithful". The scripture reference is: I Corinthians 4:2.

"Moreover brethren it is required of a steward that he be found "faithful". The stewardess performs her duties as she travels above the earth. The mother does her work knowing she has a investment in eternity. We are stewards of our lives and bodies before God and being faithful to Him is the key to being a good steward.

REMOVED CLOTHING AND EQUIPMENT AS WELL AS INDIVIDUAL MOBILITY
Will Be Used On Tomorrow's Battlefield. Maximum Protection Against All Hazards Will be The Goal Of Combat Uniforms.

Future Trooper to Carry Less Weight, More Power

Armored Clothing to be Light, Durable; Would Protect Against Nuclear Effects

Will the Infantryman survive on the future battlefield? Will he still be a "pack mule" as he is today? What will he look like in his battle raiment of tomorrow?

As visualized by The Infantry School's Combat Development Office, the Infantryman's combat clothing and equipment will consist of, among other things, a lightweight, tougher-than-steel helmet with a polaroid face shield which, when slipped down, will provide facial protection from effects of nuclear and chemical agents.

Additionally, it will provide a light intensifier which will assist the soldier in conducting successful operations at night.

Fitting within the helmet will be a small radio which will enable the soldier to transmit and receive messages in the vicinity of squad-level action.

The clothing will be light, durable, and impervious to nuclear effects. Through the use of battery-fed circuits printed on cloth, constant body temperature will be maintained. A lightweight armored jacket will provide protection from the neck to the hips.

Special Boots

The Infantryman's boots will be constructed to withstand the elements as well as CBR contamination and small nuisance mines. The individual fockale-digging aid will be carried in packets on the chest.

For improved mobility, the soldier will be equipped with an anti-gravity lift device which will enable the soldier to cross fire-swept areas rapidly and negotiate both man-made and natural obstacles.

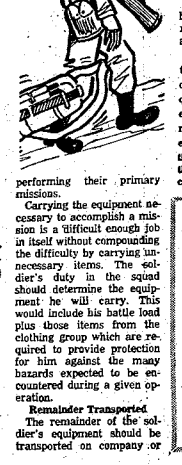
According to CDD, future conflicts will find the combat soldier exposed to more numerous and deadly weapons than ever before. New and improved weapons systems, vehicles, communication equipment, and surveillance devices are under development to improve the Infantryman's combat potential.

Unless the individual soldier can be provided with better means of survival against the expected hazards, both natural and manmade, all of these new and improved tools of the trade will be of little value. Not only must the soldier survive, but also he must be capable of performing his mission under greater physical and mental stress than his predecessors.

Study Load

An analysis of the load that the Infantry combat soldier now carries reveals several areas which require immediate corrective action if he is to survive and be effective in his future battlefield environment.

Today the combat soldier's load weighs almost 93 pounds. This load can be divided into three major categories: clothing — 23 pounds; battle load — almost 33 pounds; and existence and comfort items — 37 pounds.



The subject of loads carried by the individual Soldier has been explored extensively by military analysis, research and development agencies, and commanders at all levels for many years. Study of numerous writings and reports reveals agreement in one major point: the load of the individual soldier must be lightened.

Experience has shown that Infantrymen tend to load themselves down with unnecessary items of clothing, food, equipment, and knick-knacks. During World War II and the Korean conflict, some individuals were so loaded down with "extras" and "nice-to-have items" that they were incapable of performing their primary missions.

Carrying the equipment necessary to accomplish a mission is a difficult enough job in itself without compounding the difficulty by carrying unnecessary items. The soldier's duty in the squad should determine the equipment he will carry. This would include his battle load plus those items from the clothing group which are required to provide protection for him against the many hazards expected to be encountered during a given operation.

Remainder Transported

The remainder of the soldier's equipment should be transported on company or battalion transportation and made available to the soldier as required.

The immediate solution to the perplexing problem of reducing the soldier's load requires that the weight of each item of equipment be reduced, and that commanders at all echelons insure that the soldier carries only those items needed to accomplish his unit's mission until resupply can be effected.

In this regard, development of a lightweight all-purpose integrated combat clothing and equipment system is currently being pursued. This ensemble will constitute the soldier's normal field clothing and personal equipment.

This integrated uniform will provide protection for the individual against climatic and temperature extremes; against shell and mine fragments, small arms fire, and other wounding agents of similar type; against toxic and incapacitating chemical agents in vapor, aerosol, and liquid form; and against effects from nuclear weapons including thermal, high intensity flash or flame, and radiological fallout.

Personnel assigned to the Combat Developments Office are working hand-in-hand with other agencies to insure that the combat Infantryman will continue to be the best equipped soldier in any Army and will be capable of living and fighting under the most trying conditions posed by both natural and enemy - imposed obstacles.

Summer Vacation Bible School Registration Set

Approximately 1,000 children are expected to enroll in the annual Vacation Bible School to be conducted June 11 through 20.

Registration was held yesterday and will continue today between 9 a.m. and 12 noon at the Religious Education Center, Bldg. 2606.

Parents of children from three years old through the eighth grade are invited to enter them in the school.

Comprises Sunday Schools

Sponsored by The Infantry Center Chaplain Section, the Vacation Bible School comprises the two Protestant Sunday Schools —Main Post and Sand Hill — the Spanish Protestant Sunday School and St. Michael's Episcopal and the Lutheran Sunday Schools.

Sessions will be conducted daily from 8:30 to 11 a.m. Monday through Friday, June 11 through 15, and Monday through Wednesday, June 18 through 20.

There will be a recess period each morning with refreshments.

The school will be operated in 15 departments according to age groups.

Approximately 200 teachers and administrative personnel will assist with the school.

Daily Program

The daily program will include Bible study, worship, lessons in applied Christian living, and handcraft.

Director of the school is Mrs. John L. Waldrop.

Mrs. Thomas K. Goodman will serve as principal.

4-Year-Old Graduates; Can It Be?

RECENT GRADUATION . . . Four-year-old Rob Kunzig (C) accepts his diploma from Mrs. Jack H. Murray (R) at prekindergarten graduation exercises held recently. The school, sponsored by the Woman's Club, graduated 100 military dependents. Also ready to receive her diploma is Susan Carlson.

Four - year - old graduates wearing mortarboards marched forward to receive their diplomas at graduation ceremonies at the Pre-Kindergarten School recently.

Following a program of music under the direction of Mrs. S. O. Middleton, music teacher, the three-year-old "undergrads" and four-year-old "old grads" were treated to an ice cream party on the playground. Parents and friends attended the program and observed the children's work.

The graduation ceremonies climaxed a year of activity especially designed to develop social skills and encourage self-reliance in the Pre-School set.

The Fort Benning Pre-Kindergarten School is a project of the Woman's Club and open to all children of personnel on active duty at Fort Benning.

Plans are underway now for moving the school into new quarters before the opening of the Fall term. A balanced program of work and play with constant supervision in small groups marks the schedule of the school.

Mrs. Jack Murray, principal, will accept registrations throughout the summer for the September term. Call her at 545-4628 for more details.

29th Infantry Is Celebrating 61st Birthday With Competitive Events and Demonstrations

Three days of sporting events, highlighted by individual and unit competition, began Thursday and will continue through Saturday, marking the organization day of the 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade.

The 29th Infantry, commanded by Col. Lawrence S. Reynolds, is observing its 61st birthday during the three days of festivities. Dependents, relatives, and friends of the members of the unit have been on hand to celebrate the gala occasion.

Competition between the unit commanders of the Battle Group in a .45 Caliber Pistol match began the three - day celebration Thursday morning.

Two other events listed on the day's itinerary were an M1 Rifle match between the first sergeants of the battle group, and a cross-country run, pitting teams of six enlisted men from each unit against each other.

Today's Competition

Today's competition which got under way at 8 a.m., will feature a PT test, one-quarter ton truck driving contest and a grenade throw. Competition for the battle group's "Outstanding Soldier" will climax the events this afternoon.

The schedule of events starting at 8 a.m. tomorrow will be highlighted by two tug-of-war games -- one between the unit commanders and first sergeants of the battle group, and the other between six-man teams from each of the 10 member units of the battle group. Other events include a grease-pole climb and a three-legged race.

A scout dog demonstration and trick drill team maneuvers staged by the 29th Infantry Platoon (Scout Dog) and the Company C honor guard, respectively, will entertain during the day. Booths will be operated by the 29th Infantry ladies, and refreshments will be available.

Award Trophies

Gate prizes and individual and unit trophies will be awarded to the winners of the competitive events by Col. Reynolds.

The 29th Infantry was organized on March 3, 1901, as the 29th Infantry Regiment at Fort Sheridan, Ill. This was a month after it was first authorized by the War Department on Feb. 2, 1901.

A year later, in Feb., 1902, the 29th Infantry Regiment was alerted for shipment to the Philippine Islands. There it participated in the control and subdual of enemy bandit groups that were still operating in the island. For this action the regiment received the campaign streamer for the Philippine Insurrection.

During its history, the 29th participated in "Operation Overlord" (the stockpiling of equipment and supplies in England to maintain the effectiveness of the D-Day punch against Germany), the security of the Red Ball Express Highway (cutting off supplies in Northern France) during World War II, and the campaigns of the Rhineland, Ardennes-Alsace, and Central Europe, also in World War II.

During the Korean War, the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd Battalion of the 29th Infantry assisted other units in battle.

Here in 1919

The 29th Infantry came to Fort Benning in Oct., 1919, after being previously stationed at posts in Arizona, Utah and New York. After World War II, it was deactivated on Oct. 31, 1946, and it remained on the inactive list until May 1, 1949. The unit was reactivated at Camp Napunja, Okinawa, and it returned to Fort Benning on Nov. 20, 1954.

The present 29th Infantry was organized on May 25, 1957, after the deactivation of the old 29th Infantry Regiment. It has gained a history of 61 years as a demonstration unit and school.

216 Will Get Diplomas At Faith School Tuesday

Two-hundred and sixteen military dependents will graduate at Fort Benning's Don C. Faith School Tuesday.

The students, completing the eighth grade, will hear a commencement address by Col. John M. King, president of the Fort Benning childrens' School Board. He will be introduced by Lt. Col. (Ret.) Calvin T. Roush, school officer.

Mrs. Hazel J. Scudder, superintendent of schools, will present awards to three honor students and announce the winner of the Don C. Faith Award.

The honor students are Jeffry Alan Smith, son of Col. and Mrs. Norvin E. Smith; Joyce Elizabeth Payne, daughter of Maj. and Mrs. Bruce R. Payne, and Anita Joseph, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. John T. Joseph.

The honor graduates were chosen for academic excellence.

The Don C. Faith Award honors a student selected by the faculty for academic achievement, leadership ability and contribution to the success of the school's program for the year. The name of the honoree is a closely guarded secret until graduation night.

Diplomas will be presented by Dr. Joseph T. Confortl, director of instruction, assisted by John B. Edge of Columbus, principal, and Mrs. Mildred Carter, assistant principal, of Faith School.

Intelligence Best Weapon in Viet Nam, Says General

Intelligence is the United States' number one weapon in Viet Nam, Maj. Gen. Harvey J. Jablonsky told members and guests of the Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning Chapter of the Association of the U. S. Army.

Gen. Jablonsky, in charge of officer assignments in the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel, Department of the Army added that time and patience are needed to establish conditions which will lead to the best use of the Allied intelligence effort in Viet Nam.

In January the general headed the first Department of the Army tour group to visit countries in Southeast Asia confronted with insurgency.

Unity of Effort

"It appears that insurgency and counter - insurgency will be on the center of the military stage for several years to come," he said. "The Army and our Allies are learning that unity of effort, which is more than a military principle and is required in counter-insurgency operations, needs coordination and cooperation of the highest order."

"In Viet Nam unity of effort is hard to achieve between indigenous military and civilian agencies," he said.

Gen. Jablonsky pointed out that province chiefs control their own military forces consisting of the civil guard, self-defense corps and attached regular Army units. They can conduct operations without notifying the division commander in whose tactical zone they are located, he said.

In the need for united effort in organizations and operations in Viet Nam, there is a great opportunity for the U.S. to lead the way, he added.

"The lesson we are learning is that our civil and military agencies must work together as a team and our assistance must be efficient," he advised. "This will encourage the Vietnamese to emulate us."

Single Goal

The general added that the over-all lesson is that civilian and military agencies, U. S. and Vietnamese, must agree on a unified program and then make an all-out effort to move toward their single goal with all deliberate speed.

Vietnamese troops in U. S. H-21 helicopters have been provided with submachine guns which they can use against the enemy when the helicopters land, he said. This means of attack has proven more feasible than mounting machine guns on the aircraft which vibrate so much that effective firing is difficult, the two-star general explained.

"In all aspects of the counter - insurgency operations in Viet Nam we must make long-term investments in the loyal Vietnamese and let them carry the ball," Gen. Jablonsky said.

Infiltration A Must

He added, "The use of loyal agents to infiltrate the Viet Cong is an absolute intelligence necessity. And to get intelligence we need Vietnamese loyal to their government."

To support our Allies and our advisory effort in Viet Nam, we have an urgent need for certain types of U. S. equipment, he said.

"The M-1 rifle is too long and too heavy for a five-foot, 95-pound Viet Nam soldier to use in counter-insurgency operations."

The small, lightweight and automatic firepower of the U.S. M-2 carbine makes it an ideal weapon for the Vietnamese combat troops, the general stated. Early action to provide them is being considered, he pointed out.

The Vietnamese Army has no liaison aircraft and division and corps commanders must rely on the Vietnamese Air Force for aerial observation, liaison and artillery spotting, the officer asserted.

Construction Units

The use of Army construction units to work with and assist indigenous engineer units in solving immediate urgent requirements for roads and public works may be of great benefit, Gen. Jablonsky said.

"The Vietnamese are not adept in handling and maintaining heavy engineer construction machinery because of their lack of experience and education," he added.

Gen. Jablonsky continued, "There is an urgent need for the Caribou aircraft to support U. S. advisory teams at division and regimental level. Its versatility, capacity, aerial delivery and landing capabilities make it an ideal aircraft for the resupply and evacuation missions required."

In concluding, the general pointed out, "We and our Allies are learning counter-insurgency lessons in Viet Nam of great value. If these lessons are applied with vigor and resourcefulness, we can approach the future in Viet Nam with optimism."

A dynamic, unified program implemented by well-trained and led Vietnamese forces and assisted by Army advisers who are trained in the latest counter - insurgency techniques and supported by the proper equipment will do the job, he said.

"There is one more thing needed, the determination to help our Allies, the determination to defend the Free World and the will to defeat communist insurgency wherever it is used as an instrument of aggression," he declared.

Gen. Jablonsky was introduced to the local chapter members by Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell.

Festivities Are Planned

10th Artillery Celebrates 45th Anniversary Today

Had any artillery battalion possessed equipment of today's 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, during past wars, the enemy would have felt fire-power of insurmountable proportions.

Today the 10th Artillery observes its 45th birthday with a full day of celebrating at Peden Field. The site of the festivities is significant in that it was named for one of the unit's two Medal of Honor winners.

The 2nd Howitzer Battalion, commanded by Lt. Col. Wallis E. McClain, has a primary mission of supporting The Infantry School. The objective is to insure that the students receive the background necessary for understanding and applying the principal missions of the artillery with those of Infantry when support fire is needed in combat.

To fulfill this mission the unit has 77 artillery pieces, more than enough to equip an artillery division, a unit ten times its size.

But the 10th Artillery has performed heroically in combat with its authorized equipment. In these cases its mission has been of a distinctly different nature. . .to defeat a stubborn enemy.

Formed June 1, 1917, from elements of the 6th Horsedrawn Artillery Regiment at Fort Douglas, Ariz., the unit was attached to the 3rd Infantry Division at Camp Green, N.C., in November, 1917.

The division fired its first combat rounds in support of the 30th Infantry Division to help repulse the infamous German Peace Offensive of July 14 and 15, 1918.

During this action, the "Second Battle of the Marne," Lt. Gen. George P. Hays (Ret.), then 1st Lt. Hays, became the division's initial member to earn the Congressional Medal of Honor, the Nation's highest award for heroism.

Lt. Hays established liaison between his unit and two French batteries. Under severe enemy fire, Lt. Hays had seven horses shot from beneath him. Though severely wounded, he completed his mission and was given sole credit for accurate fire from these units.

When the 3rd Division was dubbed the "Rock of the Marne," the 10th Artillery became "The Rock's Support," a title well earned during the Northern French Campaign.

Following occupation duty in Germany the 10th Artillery returned to the U.S. in August, 1919, for garrison duty at Fort Lewis, Wash.

The 10th Artillery Regiment was redesignated the 10th Artillery Battalion in October, 1940. The change produced excess personnel who were put to work training men for the 39th and 41st Field Artillery Battalions.

War clouds in Europe linked the 10th Artillery and the 3rd Division for a second time. The unit's big guns provided support for all 10 of the division's campaigns. During this fighting the 10th Artillery was active on 532 combat days, an unusually high number.

Arrowhead, or initial assault landing force, citations were won by the 10th during World War I invasion of Algeria-French Morocco, Sicily, Anzio and Southern France. The unit also was instrumental in crossings of the Rhine, Doubs, Volturno, Main and Muerthe Rivers.

The enemy felt the 10th Artillery's thunder during campaigns in Tunisia, Naples-Foggia, Rome-Arno, Ardennes-Alsace, Rhineland and Central Europe. For these came more battle streamers.

Medal of Honor

The second member of the 10th Artillery to win the Medal of Honor was Cpl. Forest E. Peden, who made the supreme sacrifice at Biesheim, France, the night of February 3, 1945.

Cpl. Peden was a forward observer with an Infantry unit when it was outnumbered four-to-one in an enemy ambush. After courageously rendering aid to two wounded soldiers, Cpl. Peden ran 800 yards, secured reinforcements and led them in an attack. The enemy was driven back but Cpl. Peden was killed.

The 10th Artillery returned to the U.S. in August, 1946, after serving as an occupation force at Felsberg and Friedberg, Germany.

Communist aggression in Korea caused the 10th Artillery to join with the 3rd Division for a third time. It was August, 1950.

Direct support was given the 7th Infantry Regiment, 3rd Division during its campaigns. One two-week period saw the 10th pouring more than 250,000 rounds on aggressors in its port mission.

Assigned Here

Following hostilities the 10th Artillery was assigned here along with the 3rd Division. It was here that the 10th was reorganized into two battalions. The 1st Howitzer Battalion was assigned to Germany while the 2nd Field Artillery Batalion was attached to The Infantry Center as school support unit.

The 2nd Field Artillery Battalion underwent a change of command and was redesignated the 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade, on May 16, 1960.

Usually found in a battalion this size are six 155mm howitzers and six 105mm howitzers or four 8-inch howitzers and two Honest John Rockets.

The battalion's enlarged arsenal is used to ensure school support mission.

The battalion's demonstrations are also staged for visiting military and civilian dignitaries, many of whom represent Allied nations.

REBEL BREAD

Dr. Bell Wiley, Civil War historian, tells of two Confederate soldiers who were discussing "hardtack," their daily ration of bread. "I bit into a piece yesterday and struck something soft," said one. "What was it?" asked the other. "It was a ten-penny nail," he answered.

ASSAULT! . . A boatload of 2nd Infantry Division Soldiers, part of the 87th Infantry Task Force ending amphibious training last week, storms the beach in "Operation Conqueror" held at Camp Pendleton, Va. Troops to TUSA As DCG Retires

Five units, the division color guard and band represented the 2nd Division Thursday in a retirement review held at Fort McPherson, Georgia in honor of Major General Walter B. Yeager, Deputy Commanding General, Third United States Army.

The five 2nd Division units participating were the 23rd Infantry, 1st Infantry, 9th Infantry, 38th Infantry, and 87th Infantry.

Each of the five units was composed of an acting commander, seven guidon bearers, two officers and two non-commissioned officers, five supernumeraries, and a marching unit ten men deep with an eight-man front.

Commander of Troops was Lieutenant Colonel Cecil M. Sanders, 23rd Infantry commander.

Captain Abraham F. Muscari, 2nd Division G-3 Armor training officer, was in charge of the project and held rehearsals Monday and Tuesday at Knight Field, Fort Benning.

The participating units left Fort Benning by bus Thursday morning and arrived at Fort McPherson at 1:00 P.M., in time for preparation for the review, which took place at 5:00 P.M.

Head Named For AGASD

Captain William C. Cosgrove is the newly assigned chief of Administrative Services Division of the Division's Adjutant General's office. He succeeds Captain Frank G. Treadgill.

Captain Cosgrove entered the Army in March 1954 after completing his college work at the University of Miami. He majored in Business Administration and was sent to transportation school when he entered the Army.

Upon completion of this schooling, he was assigned to Ft. Benning until October 1954 when he was sent to Eniwetok, Marshall Islands. In November

Paratroopers, Jet Fighters Highlight Massive Army-Air Force Maneuver

Army and Air Force personnel participating in Exercise CLEAR LAKE took an administrative break today after a week of action in northwest Florida.

The joint Army-Air Force exercise, being held at Eglin Air Force Base, Florida, by the U. S. Strike Command, got underway May 21 and will continue through June 10 when the final exercise critique is completed. More than 7,000 Army-Air Force personnel are participating in the exercise.

"CLEAR LAKE" is patterned to depict a limited war situation in a unified command where semi-tropical zone terrain and climatic conditions exist. In this hypothetical situation the independent country of Freedonia, which strangely resembles the state of Florida, has been invaded from the northwest by Sippia, a satellite of evil Aggressorland. The United States has a mutual defense pact with Freedonia, and the Freedonian government requests U. S. military assistance when the Sippian forces attack. The country of Labam to the northeast maintains friendly relations with both the U. S. and Freedonia, and the U. S. uses this area for staging its military move to assist Freedonia.

502nd Infantry Jumps

Action began Tuesday when men of the 502nd Infantry, 101st Airborne Division of Fort Campbell, Kentucky, flew from their staging area in Lebam, (Lawson Field), and hit the silk near their target, Eglin Auxiliary Air Field Two. The air strip was secured by that afternoon, and U. S. aircraft began arriving with men and equipment of the 2nd Infantry Division Brigade.

Pierce fighting occurred Wednesday and Thursday as the combined Freedonian-United States STRIKE forces clashed with Sippian troops. By Thursday the allied soldiers had secured their second objective, Eglin Auxiliary Air Field One, some 25 miles northeast of the initial combat area.

Aggressor troops were supplied by the 9th Infantry which journeyed to Eglin early last week.

Today's administrative break is being held in order to withdraw the Sippian men and equipment from this area, since

Twenty Retire in Division Min Review

By John R. Grant

Twenty retiring members of the 2nd Infantry Division were honored with a miniature review Tuesday morning at the 2nd Infantry Division Parade Field.

The review, beginning at eight o'clock, was observed by representatives of division units with relatives and friends of the retirees.

The 23rd Infantry, 87th Infantry, Division Artillery, 13th Transportation Battalion, and the 2nd Medical Battalion, participated in the review. The 12th Artillery, 15th Artillery, 17th Artillery, and the 702nd Ordnance, who did not participate because of requirements for Exercise CLEAR LAKE and Amphibious Training at Little Creek, Virginia.

Those retiring included: Major Bruce A. Davis, 2nd Medium Tank Battalion, 68th Armor, retiring after more than 20 years service; Chief Warrant Officer William B. Merrill, Headquarters and Headquarters Battery, 2nd Infantry Division Artillery, retiring after more than 20 years service; Chief Warrant Officer Michael Joyce, Headquarters and Head-

Visitor Bureau Busy Showing 'Clear Lake'

BY 9TH INF PIO

Greeting officials and observers at Exercise CLEAR LAKE is a visitors' bureau administered by Site Support Headquarters and headed by Captain Robert K. Gunn, 9th Infantry S-2.

Captain Gunn is assisted by Lieutenant Robert Austin of the 2nd Aviation Company, five Army and 15 Air Force officers.

Numerous General officers and Washington officials are greeted as observers for Exercise CLEAR LAKE. The escort officers take the observers to the field where a first hand view of the exercise progress is available.

A daily briefing is conducted by Joint Task Force Headquarters. Visitors and observers are briefed on operations and tactics by a joint Army-Air Force briefing team. At this time an up to the minute report on the progress of the exercise is given by the briefing committee.

After the briefing, observers and escort officers head for prearranged vantage points where the operations of the 1st Battle Group of the 502nd Airborne Infantry, 101st Airborne Division, and the 1st Battle Group of the 38th Infantry can be viewed.

Memorial Mass Held for Soldier Hit by Lightning

A memorial mass was held Tuesday at the Kelley Hill Chapel for Specialist Five Robert A. Tyron of Company E, 87th Infantry. Members of his Company attended the service.

Specialist Tyron was struck and killed by lightning during a thunderstorm last Saturday night at Fort Story, Virginia, where his unit was bivouaked. The 87th Infantry had completed an amphibious assault at nearby Camp Pendleton, Virginia that morning.

A native of McColl, South Carolina, Specialist Tyron is survived by a wife and three children, who reside in McColl.

a joint Army-Air Force live-fire Exercise will be held there tomorrow and Sunday.

The demonstration will feature jets swooping low to drop napalm bombs and to fire rockets. The Army will fire one battery each of the following guns: 105 howitzers, 155 howitzers and 8-inch howitzers. Also, an Honest John rocket will be launched against a target down range.

The combat phase of Exercise CLEAR LAKE begins again Monday when allied ground forces secure additional objectives and territory from the invaders.

The units will be deployed to their home stations on Tuesday when critiques on the exercise will begin, lasting through the following Sunday.

G-4 Section Handles Logistics; Quarters, Transport and Supply

The 2nd Infantry Division's Assistant Chief of Staff, G-4, Major Charles M. Johnson and staff, including three officers and seven enlisted men, handle details of transport, quartering, and supply of troops.

This is the fourth in a series of articles spotlighting 2nd Division General and Special Staff Sections. These articles are intended to better acquaint the soldier with the function and duties of the many sections of 2nd Division Headquarters. The next section to be featured will he the Aviation section.

The division G-4 plans, coordinates and supervises activities of the G-4 section with general supervision of logistics activities of the command. The broad category "logistics" covers the three items already stated: transport, quartering and supply of troops.

Logistics Activities

In supervising the logistics activities of the command, the G-4 estimates administrative plans and orders, allocations and priorities, area damage control and boundaries.

In the day-to-day needs of division units and technical services this section helps keep them supplied and functional in whatever mission they perform. Whereas it is the responsibility of the G-3 (training) section to insure that each man receives the best possible training available in the Army, the G-4 section insures that the soldier has the equipment with which to train.

Special duties of the Assistant Chief of Staff, G-4, include responsibility for the Budget Execution Program as it pertains to the "2,000" Logistical Support program.

In connection with the quartering of troops, the G-4 performs duties as a member of the Installation Planning Board, a committee which studies the facilities and needs of the post which houses the division troops and equipment.

He also performs duties as a member of the Installation Program Budget Advisory Committee, advising the command in such things as "overhead" costs of maintaining the installation.

Division beautification and "Police," coming under the category of quarters, falls into the G-4's area of responsibility.

Officers

The three officers working with the Assistant Chief of Staff, G-4, are Captain Leonard J. Hansmann, assistant G-4, Captain Paul J. Osborne, maintenance officer and Captain Charles L. Laakso, movements officer.

The structure of the G-4 section is divided into three main branches: Plans and Supply, Maintenance and Command Maintenance Inspections, and Installation and Surveys.

The plans and supply section supervises all activities within the G-4 section. It coordinates supply activities within the division and maintains close liason with division technical services and other staff sections concerning division supply.

In line with plans, this section prepares Field Standing Operating Procedure guides, administrative orders and overlays.

This section also prepares and posts the logistics situation map when the command participates in field maneuvers or combat.

The Assistant G-4 for plans and supply performs duties as section classified documents control officer. He also performs duties as division budget and program management officer.

Lastly, this officer supervises the activities of 2nd Division Brigade S-4 personnel.

Division Maintenance

The second assistant G-4 performs duties in connection with division maintenance and command maintenance inspections. In this line, he is responsible for all functions pertaining to maintenance, transportation movements and highway regulations.

He coordinates and prepares reports concerning results of spot check inspections of engineer, ordnance and signal equipment.

He is also the officer in charge of the division Command Maintenance Inspection Team. As such, he coordinates and schedules inspections, supervising members of the team and preparing required reports.

In inspections of the Adjutant General's Inspection Team, this officer performs the duties of officer in charge of that portion of the inspection dealing with supply records and technical services.

The assistant G-4 for installation and surveys has eight principle functions. He prepares quarterly reports of operational losses. He prepares and analyzes inventory adjustments.

Gratuitous issues and division area police fall under his area of responsibility.

He deals with the division Space and Utilities Utilization Program, serving as a member of the Post Utilities Utilization Committee.

In line with his installation activities, he supervises the activities of the division "police" non-commissioned officer.

Lastly, the assistant G-4 for installation and surveys is the G-4 section property officer.

The administrative work of the G-4 section is supervised by Sergeant Major Wattie T. St. John Jr. Enlisted men working under the sergeant major include Master Sergeant Walter D. Hutchko, supply non-commissioned officer; Sergeant First Class Thomas Bailey, supply and the command maintenance inspection non-commissioned officer; Specialist Four John J. Wasinda, senior clerk-typist; Specialist Four Wayne R. O'Connor, report of survey clerk; Private First Class Charles Barnett, clerk-typist and Private First Class Roy R. Bonner, clerk-typist.

Operate Section

The functions of the administrative branch of the G-4 section include operating the section message center, maintaining section files, maintaining policy files, preparing the section journal and maintaining the situation map if the section participates in field maneuvers or combat. Sergeant Major St. John supervises the activities of all section clerks.

Several technical services fall under the responsibility of the Assistant Chief of Staff, G-4.

Four of these services rely upon the G-4 for supervision over their logistical functions.

The Division Chemical officer, Engineer Officer, Aviation Officer and Signal Officer have their logistical functions supervised by the G-4.

Other technical services' officers under the G-4 are the division Quartermaster Officer, Ordnance Officer, Division Surgeon and Transportation Officer.

Officers occupying these positions are: Lieutenant Colonel John V. Stoecker, division quartermaster officer; Lieutenant Colonel James W. Talley, division chemical officer; Lieutenant Colonel Edwin T. O'Donnell, division engineer officer; Lieutenant Colonel Woodrow A. Myers, division ordnance officer; Major Albert H. Becker, division aviation commander; Lieutenant Colonel Herbert W. Coburn, division signal officer; Lieutenant Colonel Joseph G. Rube, division surgeon and Lieutenant Colonel Walter Hibbard Jr., division transportation officer.

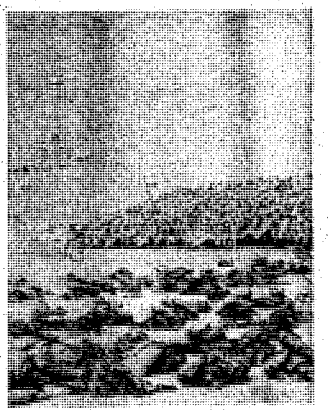
Amphib Landing Climaxes Training

MEMBERS OF THE 87TH FILE ABOARD NAVY SHIP FOR TRAINING
Soldiers Took Wet Net Training On Special Training Ships

Gens., Adm. Watch 87th

LITTLE CREEK, Virginia—Two thousand troops of the 2nd Infantry Division stormed ashore at nearby Camp Pendleton, Virginia, Friday in a realistic amphibious assault.

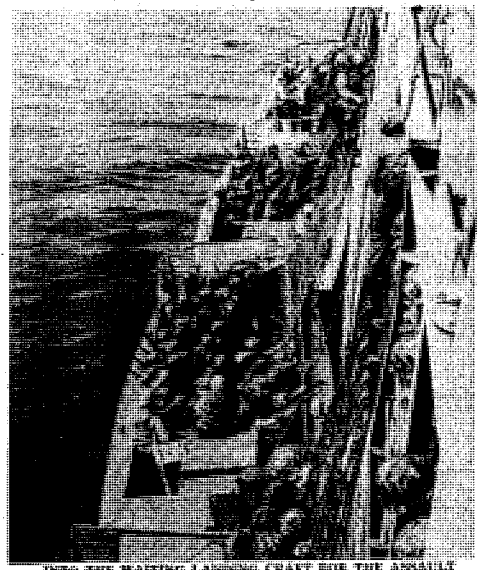


The landing lasted less than half a day but culminated nearly eight weeks of planning and training. It was the first of five such assault landings scheduled this summer for men of the Indianhead Division. The group, referred to during the exercise as 87th Infantry Landing Task Force, was composed of the 1st Battle Group, 87th Infantry, commanded by Colonel Ralph H. Hughett, and various participating elements of other division units.

Among the high ranking officers on hand to view the amphibious landing were Lieutenant General T.J.H. Traphell, Commanding General of the Third U.S. Army, Major General Charles H. Chase, Commanding General of the 2nd Infantry Division, and Rear Admiral John S. McCain Jr., Commander of the Atlantic Fleet Amphibious Training Command, Little Creek, Virginia, where the task force was trained.

Planning for the amphibious assault began March 30 when 34 Indianhead Division officers began a month-long Embarkation Course at Little Creek where they learned the principles of loading men and equipment aboard ship for amphibious assault.

The 87th Infantry Landing Task Force began amphibious assault training on May 14. After a course in basic procedures the group began specialized sub-courses, which lasted anywhere from four hours to four days. Following that, all troops of the task force practiced simulated ship debarkation, first from mock-ups on land and later from a training ship docked at Little Creek. Training was climaxed at the end of the second week by movement of men and equipment onto assault ships which steamed approximately 35 miles to sea and stood offshore Camp Pendleton pending the assault last Friday morning.



In addition to the 87th Infantry the task force was comprised of elements from the 23rd Infantry, 27th Artillery, 7th Cavalry, 69th Armor, 2nd Engineer Battalion, 13th Transportation Battalion, 2nd Medical Battalion, 122nd Signal Battalion, 702nd Ordnance Battalion, 2nd Division Headquarters Company, Division Artillery, 2nd Administration Company, 2nd Aviation Company and 2nd Quartermaster Company.

2nd Division Men Take a Lesson In Craft Loading From Air Force

By John R. Grant

At Lawson Army Air Field the coordinated efforts of the Army and Air Force were employed to teach 22 men from the Second Division to prepare, check, and control the loading of cargo and personnel into C124 and C130 aircraft in preparation for the airlift portion of Exercise CLEAR LAKE, which is currently underway.

Across from the Lawson Field operations building are tents containing the Air Force traffic control and loading supervision teams who were acting as instructors. Here they were training the 2nd Division men to make up and operate their own traffic control and loading supervision teams. It is the job of these 22 2nd Division Men to supervise the loading of all equipment, supplies, and personnel into the planes being used in the airlift.

In command of the Army personnel involved is Captain Edmund Rondeau, 13th Transportation Battalion, who is in direct liaison with Colonel Roland J. Burnick, USAF; Lieutenant Colonel Sidney Smith, USAF; and Major Clyde Cassidy, USAF.

Some of the Army men learning traffic control and load supervision are Sergeant First Class James R. Little, Sergeant First Class J. C. Essary, Sergeant First Class Herman C. Bands, Staff Sergeant Kenneth F. Williamson, and Sergeant Homer F. Dimsdale, all of the 13th Transportation Battalion.

Gen. Harrell Praises 2nd

The 2nd Infantry Division's participation in the recent Joint Civilian Orientation Conference held at Fort Benning has earned the praise of Major General Ben Harrell, commander of the U.S. Army Infantry Center.

Expressing his appreciation "for outstanding cooperation and support," in a letter to Major General Charles H. Chase, 2nd Division commander, General Harrell applauded the enthusiasm, efficiency and attention to duty displayed by members of the 2nd Division who participated in the joint effort.

"The fine appearance of the troops," said General Harrell, "and the effectiveness of their performance elicited many favorable comments from the distinguished guests. The entire operation was a credit to the 2nd Infantry Division and the Infantry School.

"The exemplary performance of all participants greatly enhanced the prestige of the U.S. Army."

Those participating in JCOC demonstrations from the 2nd Infantry Division included members of the 38th Infantry, 2nd Engineer Battalion, Division Artillery, 2nd Aviation Company, 122nd Signal Battalion, 9th Infantry and 23rd Infantry.

Air Movement Work Undergone By 23rd Infantry at Lawson Field

By 23rd Inf PIO

Last week individual companies of the 23rd Infantry completed a continuous week-long course of instruction involving the preparation of an air movement of an entire company.

Included in the instruction was the organization of loading and lashing teams, familiarization with the aircraft to be used and of unloading vehicles and equipment.

The use of C-124 aircraft parked on an inactive runway at Lawson Army Air Field added considerable realism to the training cycle. Special emphasis was placed on driver training to insure that all drivers were oriented in the difficulties that may be encountered while loading aircraft.

Cav's Scott to Germany

BY 7TH CALVARY PIO

Lieutenant Colonel Harvey Scott, commander of the 7th Cavalry, will be departing in mid-June for a new assignment in Germany.

Colonel Scott will be assigned to the Staff and Faculty, U. S. Army Armor School, Ft. Knox, Ky. with duty station at the Tanzertrutppenschule, Munsterlager, Germany.

Prior to Colonel Scott's departure for Germany he will attend two schools in the United States. He will attend a special orientation at Fort Knox, Kentucky for six days, then go to Washington, D. C., to attend a school for eight weeks in commercial language training in German.

Upon Colonel Scott's arrival in Germany he will attend the Battalion Commanders' Course at the German Armor School.

For Liaison

Colonel Scott will be the liaison officer between the United States Army Armor School and the German Army Armor School, and he will serve on the staff of the Commandant, German Army Armor School as an advisor and instructor.

Colonel Scott's mission as the United States Army liaison officer will be to coordinate and expedite the direct exchange of information on tactical and organizational concepts in being and in development; concepts and experiences in the field of training and supply management; technical developments testing and evaluation; and others as required by the Commandant, U. S. Army Armor School, Fort Knox, Kentucky.

Colonel Scott has been with the "Garry Owen" since July 1961 when he arrived from the U. S. Army Infantry School armor committee. He arrived at the beginning of the Intensified Combat Training Program and injected many ideas to better the cavalry combat readiness.

Colonel Scott entered the army as a draftee from Grand Rapids, Michigan on June 19, 1941. He was commissioned at Fort Knox, Kentucky in November 1942. He served in Europe during World War II as a tank company commander through five campaigns, winning the Bronze Star, Purple Heart, and the Belgian Croix de Guerre and Fourragere.

Col. Scott returned to civilian life in 1945, residing in Sparta, Michigan, where he served a term as city councilman. He returned to active duty with the Army at Fort Knox, Kentucky in December 1948. In January 1949, he was transferred to Germany where he served for two and one-half years with the 6th Armored Cavalry Regiment on the Czechoslovakian border and one year in Headquarters, 7th U. S. Army. Upon returning to the United States he was assigned as a student with the U. S. Army Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth.

Maj Venon Ison Tops Aggressors

By 7th Cavalry PIO

Major Venon H. Ison, the 7th Cavalry, is Aggressor Forces Commander at CLEAR LAKE Exercise being held at Elgin Air Force Base, Florida.

The following units comprise the aggressor organization: Companies A, B, D, E, and Combat Support, 9th Infantry, 2nd platoon, Troop B, 7th Cavalry, Engineer platoon, signal forward support platoon, and an ordnance detachment. Injected into the problem are 30 to 40 personnel to act as guerrillas and operate behind "friendly" lines. The guerrillas are under the control of Major Ison and report "friendly" movement, attack friendly command posts, create disturbances behind friendly lines and harass the main supply route.

Master Sergeant Cornelius Hobbs, the Operations Sergeant of the 7th Cavalry is with Major Ison as his operation's sergeant during CLEAR LAKE. Major Ison utilizes Armor tactics during the conduct of the problem. He also is utilizing mobile defenses and ambushes to create problems for the "friendly" force.

He has participated in many combat operations, both actual and training exercises. During World War II, he fought with the 4th Marine Division and participated in the assaults of the Marshall Islands, Saipan, and Iwo Jima. During the Korean War he saw action with the 24th Infantry. In fall 1959, he participated in the testing of the serial reconnaissance Troop at Fort Stewart and recently participated in SENECA SPEAR.

Army-Born, Mrs. Harris Has Busy Life at Benning

This is the first of a proposed series featuring the wives of major unit commanders in the 2nd Infantry Division. In the spotlight this week is Mrs. Frederick V. Harris, wife of Lieutenant Colonel Harris, commanding officer of 2nd Infantry Division Trains.

ARMY-BORN
Mrs. Harris

Betty Harris has spent her lifetime with the Army, having been born at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. (Mrs. Harris noted that both she and her second daughter, Carol, were born in the same room in the same hospital at Fort Leavenworth). Her parents, Colonel (Retired) and Mrs. Walter B. Fariss now reside in Summit, New Jersey.

In typical Army fashion, Mrs. Harris has lived in three foreign countries and eleven states. She and her family have been stationed at Fort Leavenworth four times and at Fort Benning four times. She jokingly says that they "commute" between these two Army posts.

Among foreign tours she has enjoyed are a three year tour in Austria, a two year tour in Panama and a two year tour in Japan. While in Japan Mrs. Harris attended and graduated from the Benedictine School of Cooking in Tokyo.

Her earlier education included graduation from the University High School in Ann Arbor, Michigan, and then attendance at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, where she took a bachelor of arts degree in English.

While in college she was a member of Kappa Alpha Theta Sorority.

In 1942 she was married to Captain Frederick V. Harris at Fort Sam Houston, Texas. They are now the parents of three daughters, Martha, Carol, and "Bini".

This tour marks her third association with the 2nd Division. Her father, Colonel Fariss, previously served with both the 9th Infantry and the 38th Infantry. Before coming to Fort Benning for their current tour, Lieutenant Colonel and Mrs. Harris were stationed at Fort Leavenworth.

In addition to her considerable duties as head of the ladies of Division Trains, she is a member of the Daughters of the United States Army, the Panhellenic Society, the Red Cross Gray Ladies and is also involved with Thrift Shop operations.

Golf and Chinese cooking top the list of her hobbies. She frequently delights guests with a meal entirely of Chinese cuisine.

SWEET (?) MUSIC FOR OWC . . . Pictured above is one of 12 tableaux recently presented at an Officers' Wives Club Meeting. The tableaux depicted OWC activities during the past year. Here, "Mr. Morales' Music School" is interpreted by the Division Trains ladies. From left, Mrs. Clifford L. Kindel, Mrs. William C. Dunlap, Mrs. Homer E. Wright and Mrs. David B. Barnhill.

BEST-DRESSED WOMAN . . . Members of the Officers' Wives Club also did a spoof of the choosing of the Best-Dressed Woman of the Year during their tableau presentation. In the above photo two 69th Armor ladies, Mrs. Robert H. Miles and Mrs. Charles S. Lenzi, present two rather drastic extremes of competition.

JOINS 1ST
Major Woodside

New S-1 Off. Joins 1st Inf From Calif.

By 1st Infantry PIO

Major William W. Woodside has joined the S-1 staff section of the 1st Infantry.

He has assumed the duties of battle group adjutant. Lieutenant William G. Smith, former acting adjutant, has assumed the duties of assistant adjutant.

Major Woodside, a combat veteran of World War II and the Korean Conflict, attended the language school at the Presidio of Monterey, California, before assignment to the 1st Infantry.

Entered in 1940

He entered active duty with the U. S Army in 1940 and served with the 456th Parachute Artillery Battalion and the 508th Parachute Infantry Regiment. Major Woodside completed the Company Grade Officer School, Third U. S. Army, in November 1946, and was assigned as a platoon leader in the 19th Infantry Regiment.

He participated in the Rhineland, Central Europe, Normandy and Ardennes campaigns.

Following duty at various posts in Europe and a tour of duty with the 30th Infantry Regiment, Fort Benning, he was assigned to Korea during the Korean Conflict. There he was assistant adjutant and the S-3 officer with the 7th Cavalry Regiment. In December 1951 he was assigned as assistant secretary to general staff, Office of the Chief of Staff, Washington, D. C.

He attended the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, in 1957-1958.

Major Woodside was then assigned to John Hopkins University, Baltimore, Maryland, as an instructor of military science and tactics. In July 1961 he departed the school to attend the Presidio of Monterey.

Among Major Woodside's decorations are the World War II Victory Medal, American Campaign Medal, Croix de Guerre (France), with Bronze Star, Fouragere (France and Belgium), United Nations Service Medal and the Combat Infantryman's Badge.

Major Woodside is married and lives with his wife and daughter at 68 Benning Road, Fort Benning.

Two 12th Artillery Lieutenants Promoted to First

By 12th Artillery PIO

Two officers assigned to the 12th Artillery have been promoted to the rank of First Lieutenant.

Lieutenant George I. Coulbourn Jr. and Lieutenant Stephen R. Wax were presented the insignia of their new rank in ceremonies held in the office of the 12th Artillery Commanding Officer, Lieutenant Colonel Terence W. Huck.

Lieutenant Coulbourn is assigned to Battery A, 12th Artillery as executive officer. He is a 1960 graduate of the Virginia Military Institute, Lexington, Virginia, and majored in physics. Prior to his entry on active duty he was employed by the E. I. DuPont Company, Aiken, South Carolina, as a nuclear physicist.

Lieutenant Wax is assigned to Headquarters Battery, 12th Artillery as battalion ammunition officer. He is a graduate of the University of Maine, having majored in general mathematics. Since his entry on active duty in November 1960, he has completed the Field Artillery Officer Orientation Course at the U. S. Army Artillery and Missile School, Ft. Sill, Oklahoma.

Sand Hill's Life Guards Teach Troops to Swim

Head lifeguard, Specialist Four Charles Walls, reports the Ninth and 22nd Infantries have been sending men to the Sand Hill pool for swimming tests.

Water safety instructors and lifeguards work with the non-swimmers teaching them to control their fear of the water. They receive instruction on basic strokes, floating, gliding, underwater control, breathing, and kicking.

Some battle groups have qualified lifeguards in their own ranks; these men are proving valuable in helping in the swimming instruction.

A good average of non-swimmers is 25 out of a group of 70. Most of the men who took the swimming lessons are at Little Creek, Virginia or at Exercise CLEAR LAKE now. As the exercises progress, more swimming tests will be given.

For those who wish to be at the pool during off-duty hours, it is open from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. There will always be enough lifeguards. Regulations prescribe that there be a proportionate number of lifeguards for the number of Soldiers living in the area of the pool.

During the weekends the pool will handle 500 to 900 people. There is not as much traffic during week days, but there is enough so that the pool always has an active group until closing time.

For those who are interested there will be a diving competition to be announced later in the summer. It will be held at Keary pool and Bryant Wells Pool late in July. 2nd Division Special Services will announce the exact dates.

Softball Tourney Resumes In June

By Donald J. Lopata

The temporary halt due to training at Little Creek of the 2nd Infantry Division's Softball Tournament until June 18 gives us a chance to look at the respective standings of the units.

Co-leaders of the tournament are Division Trains and the 87th Infantry each with 4 wins and 1 loss.

These teams were originally scheduled to meet each other on May 24, the week the tournament was postponed.

Close behind the two leaders is the 1st Infantry. The 1st Infantry was not scheduled to play May 24 and will automatically move into a second place tie with either the 87th Infantry or Division Trains when tournament play is resumed.

In fourth place is Division Artillery, the only team to beat Division Trains. Scheduled to meet the 23rd Infantry in their next game, a win against them would also put Division Artillery into a tie for second place.

Of the rest of the units in the tournament, Separate Battalions (122nd Signal Battalion), 2 wins—3 losses, looks like the only team which might improve its ranking in the tournament standings.

The 38th Infantry, 1 win — 4 losses and the 23rd Infantry, no wins — 5 losses, look as if they will continue to bring up the rear guard of the tournament competitors.

The games scheduled for May 24, if they had been played, would have marked the end of the first round of the double round-robin tournament.

All teams will meet each other again in the second round with the losers in the first game trying to beat the winners.

Sgt Withers A-R NCO At 87th Inf

By 87th Inf PIO

Former medic, military policeman Infantryman, Sergeant Burl Withers of the 87th Infantry has had a stormy 17 years of military service.

Assigned to the 87th since January of last year, Sergeant Withers owes allegiance to two companies; Company E to which he is assigned, and Headquarters Company, where he has been the athletic and recreation non - commissioned officer since last April.

"The man in the hot seat" as he often describes himself, Sergeant Withers has during the past year accumulated vast numbers of trophies and honors for Conqueror teams. The list includes first in swimming, second in bowling, first in cross - country, and firsts in both foothall and basketball, losing only one game in each of the latter tournaments.

His efforts were climaxed by the 87th winning the Commanding General's Sports Trophy for the period July - December of last year. In current competition for this year's division events, the Conquerors are again on top if only by a few points.

Sergeant Withers began coaching Army teams in 1955, but said that he has played basketball, baseball and football in every place he's ever been since his high school days in Oregon. A solid volleyball player, he also holds down a 170 plus average in bowling.

Joining the Army in 1943, Sergeant Withers spent his first few years of service as a medic in various hospitals on New Caledonia, Saipan and Guam. He reenlisted for military police and spent the next 10 years at various Army posts all over the world including four years at Walter Reed Hospital in Washington, D. C., and three years with the 728th MP Battalion in Korea.

The burly ex - lumberjack from Oregon now calls Brooklyn his home and it is where his wife and two children are presently residing. "Man in the hot seat" Withers has achieved an enviable reputation in division sports circles while he has been winning for the 87th Infantry and it will be a long time before someone comes along and does a better job.

1st Inf Specialist Reups for Six

By 1st Inf PIO

Specialist Four Edward P. Hyche of Company E, 1st Infantry, took the oath of reenlistment to add another six years to the three he has already served.

Specialist Hyche was sworn in at the battle group field headquarters in Fort Stewart during Exercise SENECA SPEAR. Lieutenant William G. Smith, 1st Infantry adjutant, gave the oath as Colonel Walter B. Todd, battle group commander, looked on.

Specialist Hyche is presently assigned as a team leader in Company E. He has reenlisted to attend the Basic Helicopter Maintenance School at Fort Rucker, Ala.

Specialist Hyche reports to the school in June. He plans to make the Army his career.

Electric Automobiles Came in What Year?

BY DAVID M. WINKLER

The motor car can be an instrument of good or evil, of life or death.

The Commandment, "Thou shalt not kill," applies as much to the man or woman driving a car as it does on every other occasion throughout the day or night. It applies perhaps in greater degree because so many people drive cars and because the average person overlooks the fact that an automobile can be a deadly weapon. This is one in a series of quizzes designed to test the motorist's general knowledge.

Questions

1. Motor vehicle accident deaths in the age groups 25-44, where a drinking driver is involved, account for over how many times the number of deaths as all the infectious diseases combined?
   a. two times as many deaths
   b. four times as many deaths
   c. six times as many deaths
   d. eight times as many deaths
2. The Provost Marshal may suspend or revoke the registration privileges of the owner:
   a. when a vehicle fails to meet the mechanical standards established in paragraph 10 of post vehicle regulations. The vehicle will be removed from the Fort Benning Military Reservation and will not be returned onto the reservation until all deficiencies have been corrected.
   b. upon the expiration of required liability insurance covering the vehicle.
   c. when an uncooperative attitude is displayed towards the Military Police.
   d. when excluded from the Post.
   e. all of the above.
3. The first electric automobile in the United States was made by William Morrison of Des Moines, Iowa in:
   a. 1830
   b. 1823
   c. 1910
   d. 1891
4. All changes concerning registered vehicles will be reported to the Registration Branch, Office of the Provost Marshal, within:
   a. 24 hours
   b. 48 hours
   c. 72 hours
   d. five working days
5. The shape of a sign on a highway used to indicate information or regulations is:
   a. octagon
   b. rectangle
   c. diamond
   d. triangle
6. Personnel selling, or otherwise disposing of their registered vehicles, will have the registration decals removed:
   a. prior to the time of sale or disposal
   b. as soon after the sale or disposal of the vehicle as possible
   c. at the time the sale is completed
   d. none of the above
7. Each year about 15,000,000 drivers are involved in accidents causing a disabling injury or death. What percentage of the drivers involved in all accidents were women?
   a. 79 per cent
   b. 29 per cent
   c. 22 per cent
   d. 4 per cent

OUTDOOR OUTLOOK

BY SP4 DON GIBTON

KING'S POND STOCKED

The Wildlife Management Section reports 7,500 fingerling largemouth bass were released in Kings Pond during the past week. The bass arrived from the National Fish Hatchery at Warm Springs, Ga.

Fishery biologists recommended this supplemental stocking of bass in hopes of obtaining a better bass-bream population ratio. Currently there is an over population of bream at Kings Pond which has resulted in bream being smaller than normal due to overcrowding. The additional bass should help reduce the number of small bream and allow proper size development.

POND FERTILIZATION CONTINUES

Six post ponds continue to be fertilized with the seventh application this year being made during the past week. The ponds are treated with a special fish pond fertilizer which stimulates growth of microscopic plants upon which small fish feed and at the same time gives the water a greenish color which helps to control water weeds by shading them out in all but the very shallow portions of the ponds.

King's and Headley's ponds have been receiving fertilizer treatment for several years while Johnson's, Kirk's, Patterson's and Stephen's ponds were not included in the fertilizing program until this year.

FISHING SLOWS UP

Continued dry weather seems to be affecting fishing on most of the post ponds as water temperature has increased sharply in the past several weeks and water flow through most ponds is very small. There is virtually no overflow at Kings Pond which is usually running except under dry conditions.

The lack of water movement and increasing water temperature apparently is causing fish to head for deeper water as activity at King's and Harp's ponds has been very slow even during the evening hours when bass and bream are usually active.

Last Sunday at Harps Pond water conditions seemed to be ideal for bass and bream activity but very few of either were breaking water even after sunset.

DEER ON THE ROAD

A surprising number of deer are killed each year by autos on post. Last year seven deer were found dead along post roads, all killed by autos. Undoubtedly there were many more hit but able to run off into the woods to be crippled or die. So far this year, six dead deer have been picked up by wildlife aides.

A record is kept of location where deer have been killed by autos. The record reveals the most dangerous spot for a deer-auto collision is on 1st Division Road between Main Post and Harmony Church, particularly at the curve near Patton Range.

GOOD GOLF

UNLAPPED GRIP . . . Some pros favor—and teach — the unlapped, 10-finger grip, sometimes called the baseball grip. For golfers with small or weak hands it is especially effective. Lay the club across the middle joint of the left hand's index finger into the palm so that it barely touches the little finger. Forefinger - thumb "V" should point over the right shoulder. Right-hand fingers wrap around the shaft just below the left hand. All fingers are on the club with right little finger barely touching the index finger of your left hand. Your left thumb points down the shaft, resting lightly against the top joint of the forefinger.

LADDER FISHING

Fishermen in the Canadian Maritime Provinces go fishing with ladders and nets. They use the ladders at low tide to hang their nets along the shale cliffs. After the tide goes out, they return, climb the ladders and take home their day's catch.

Hunt Club Schedules 12 Events for Horse Show

Horse enthusiasts will have a chance to see some of the area's top steeds and riders in action Sunday at the Hunt Club's June Horse Show.

Starting at 12:30 p.m., the show will feature 12 events at the Hunt Club grounds on Marne Road.

Pleasure Classes

Among these will be English and Western pleasure classes for children, 12 and under, and a pony class for the same age.

Also featured will be open English and Western pleasure, equitation, pole bending, bareback, barrel race, equitation over jumps, and intermediate and advanced jumping classes.

In some events like the English pleasure class, the horse is judged, while in others, as the equitation class, judging is strictly on the rider's ability and control of the animal.

In pole bending, contestants ride individually down the course, return weaving in and out and alternating around poles until they reach the finish line.

The riders are judged by the amount of time necessary to traverse the course.

Another event in which time is of prime importance is the barrel race.

Three barrels are set up in a triangular formation for this event, and riders, on a signal from the starter, ride around all three points of the triangle.

Toughest Event

One of the toughest events in the show will be the equitation over jumps class.

The course will include six obstacles, some two and one-half feet high. It must be ridden at a hunting pace.

Contestants will be judged on performance over obstacles, on seat and hands, and guidance and control of the horse throughout the course.

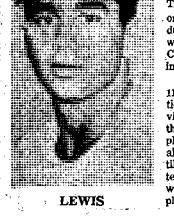
Admission to the show is free. The public is invited.

Scheduled For Doughboy Field

The 1962 Infantry Center Track and Field Meet will be held here June 23 at 9 a.m.

Events to be conducted at Doughboy Stadium are the 100, 220 and 440-yard dashes, 880-yard and one-mile runs, 440-yard and mile relays, 120 and 440-yard low hurdles, pole vault, high jump, broad jump and the hop, step and jump.

Today's Sportrait



Today's sportrait features PFC Roy Lewis, a native New Yorker who now resides in Augusta, Ga., and Miami Beach, Fla. His main sports interest is baseball.

Lewis, an outstanding shortstop and second baseman, attended Miami Beach High School where he played baseball for three years, lettering each year. His baseball interest continued after he was called to active duty in 1959 at Fort Jackson. On subsequent assignments to Fort Leonard Wood, and Fort Gordon, he managed to play baseball on major unit teams. He was a member of the Fort Gordon team which won the 1960 Third Army Baseball Championship played here at Fort Benning.

Released from active duty in July of 1961, Lewis returned to August where he played on and captained the Young Men's Hebrew Association's Softball and Basketball teams in the City Church League. The softball team placed second in city competition but rose to first place honors in division level action. The basketball team emerged in third place in city competition.

Lewis has had offers from the Pittsburgh Pirates, Detroit Tigers and Chicago Cubs. Prior to being recalled to active duty from the Reserves he worked out with the St. Louis Cardinals at their spring training camp at Augusta.

Lewis, a member of the 111th Signal Company, a National Guard unit from Greenville, S. C., hopes to attend the University of Georgia and play baseball there. Lewis is also a member of the 10th Artillery "Redlegs" baseball team which is currently tied with the 29th Infantry for third place.

TSB Still in the Lead; CTC Out of the Cellar

Action around the major unit baseball loop saw The Student Brigade win three games to remain in first place.

They blasted The Infantry Center Troop Command for 11 hits and a 10-5 victory with Larry Oates hurling for the win. They took two games from 29th Infantry. One was a replay of a protested game dating back to May 6.

Charles Spell collected both wins to bring his total of league victories to eight wins against no defeats.

151st Blasts Artillery Men

The 151st Engineers came through with a 9-1 win over the 10th Artillery for their fourth victory, but were tagged in the next game, 7-3 by the 428th Medics.

Paul Snyder tossed the win against the Artillerymen while Joe Winchester suffered the loss. In the Medics game, Medic's fireball artist, John Orsini, struck out 13 batters and posted his fifth victory. Engineer's Hurbert Gossett smacked his first homer of the season off Winchester of the Artillery.

CTC Takes 3rd In A Row

CTC tripped 156th Signal 3-2, in 94 degrees blistering sun to post their third straight victory. Harry Eates tossed a four-hitter for the win while Paul Bando suffered the setback. The CTC club scattered 11 hits but were only able to put three runs across for the win.

TIC Golf Play Slated For June 25

Links play in the 1962 Infantry Center Golf Tournament at the Country Club will be held June 25-28.

The meet will consist of 72 holes and will be divided into an Open, Senior and Women's Division.

To enter the senior class, contestants must be over 45. Entries in both the Senior and Open Divisions are not allowed. However, persons otherwise eligible for the senior's may enter the Open.

Competitors will play 36 holes and then the field will be cut to the 30 lowest scores plus ties.

After an additional 36 holes, division championships will be determined by the lowest scores for the 72 holes.

The eight players, four in the Open, two each in the Senior and Women's Divisions, who card the lowest scores will be chosen to represent the post in The Third Golf Tournament.

All post military personnel and retired service living in the Fort Benning area are eligible to participate. Deadline for entries is 5 p.m. June 22.

Entries must be made in person at the Country Club Pro Shop.

Benning Bowling Association To Hold Tourney

The Fort Benning Bowling Association is sponsoring a tournament June 2-3 at the Main Post Bowling Center. This roll-off is a sanctioned handicap tournament.

The tourney will include team, doubles and singles events. The team events will be held this Saturday and Sunday, while the double and single events will be rolled on the following week-end.

Your handicap will be determined by finding the difference between 70 percent of your highest official 1962 league average (as of Mar. 31) and 200.

Deadline for entries is midnight, June 1. Applications are available at the bowling center.

Pro Joins 58th Infantry

The 58th Infantry welcomed 2nd Lt. Joseph S. Wendryhoski as a platoon leader with Company D, 58th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade.

Hailing from Franklin, Ill., Lt. Wendryhoski has an extremely active athletic background. From high school through college at the "Big Ten" University of Illinois, he has played football.

After college he went on to play professionally for the Vancouver (British Columbia) Lions. He was chosen as an All-Canada Guard in 1961.

Wendryhoski received his commission through the Reserve Officer Training Corps in 1960.

Local Girl Has Editorial Published in Service Paper in Korea

An editorial written by a Fort Benning 12-year-old girl for her school paper showed up in "Pipeline" in Korea as "guest editorial" for the May 14 issue.

Susan Henderson, daughter of Maj. and Mrs. George Henderson, is editor of "The Tatler," school paper at Our Lady of Lourdes School in Columbus where she is in the seventh grade.

A recent edition of "The Tatler" was mailed to MSgt. Donald F. Duggan in Korea, by his daughter, Patricia, who is in the fifth grade at Our Lady of Lourdes.

Sgt. Duggan, who is on the staff of "Pipeline," an authorized publication of the 7th Logistical Command in Korea, found two items of special interest in "The Tatler." First there was an article by his seventh grade daughter, Mary-Ellen, and second, an editorial on "Freedom of Speech" by Susan Henderson.

Other members of "The Pipeline" staff agreed with Sgt. Duggan that "The Tatler" editorial was worthy of distribution to their 15,000 readers.

Susan's editorial reads:

"Our Constitution grants Americans freedom of speech.

"Mainly, this means that we may freely and openly criticize our government. Many people interpret it the wrong way. They think that because they have freedom of speech, they may gossip about another, sometimes spreading lies which might ruin his reputation or name.

"They say as an excuse, 'We have freedom of speech.' They forget that the laws of the United States abide with God's laws and that our Constitution is based on them.

"The deeply religious men who wrote 'Freedom of Speech' had in mind the Eighth Commandment, 'Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor.'

"Remember, a country will be strong only if it agrees with God. He has blessed our country with many freedoms. If we wish to keep them, we must work for our nation and God together, obeying our country's laws and God's."

Sgt. Duggan went to Korea in May, 1961. He was formerly assigned to Radio Station WMAH at Martin Army Hospital and also has served with The Army Infantry Center.

His family resides in Columbus.

President Kennedy Speaks on Thailand

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is the text of a statement made by President Kennedy in regards to the U. S. decision to send troops to Thailand.

"Following joint consideration by the Governments of the United States and Thailand of the situation in Southeast Asia, the royal Thai government has invited and I have today ordered additional elements of the United States military forces, both ground and air, to proceed to Thailand and to remain there until further orders. These forces are to help insure the territorial integrity of this peaceful country.

"The dispatch of United States forces to Thailand was considered desirable because of recent attacks in Laos by Communist forces, and the subsequent movement of Communist military units toward the border of Thailand.

"A threat to Thailand is of grave concern to the United States. I have, therefore, ordered certain additional American military forces into Thailand in order that we may be in a position to fulfill speedily our obligations under the Manila Pact of 1954, a defense agreement which was approved overwhelmingly by the U.S. Senate, and to which the Secretary of State and Foreign Minister of Thailand referred in their joint statement of March 6, 1962. We are in consultation with SEATO governments on the situation.

"I emphasize that this is a defensive act on the part of the United States and wholly consistent with the United Nations charter,which specifically recognizes that nations have an inherent right to take collective measures for self-defense. In the spirit of that charter, I have directed the Secretary General of the United Nations be informed of the actions that we are taking.

"There is no change in our policy toward Laos, which continues to be the reestablishment of an effective cease-fire and prompt negotiations for a government of national union."

8 Major Units, Sections Make 100% in Bond Drive

Eight major units and sections achieved 100 per cent participation in the "Freedom Bond Drive" held here.

Units reaching the 100 per cent mark include The Infantry Center G-2, G-4, Inspector General, Civilian Personnel, Education Developments and Purchasing and Contracting Sections and the Post Exchange and Main Officers' Open Mess.

Since the U. S. Savings Bond Drive opened May 1, there has been a 32 per cent over-all increase in the number of military and civilian personnel on the post buying bonds on the payroll deduction plan.

Among the military there has been an increase of 19 per cent from 38 per cent on May 1 to 57 per cent on May 17. The civilian participation has increased from 52 per cent on May 1 to 65 per cent on May 17.

Post officials hope to enroll employees in the payroll savings plan for purchasing bonds and to encourage those already enrolled to increase bond allotments.

Units reaching a high percentage in the drive will be eligible for awards including the Secretary of the Army U. S. Savings Bond Citation, U. S. Treasury Minute Man Awards, Third Army special citations and Commanders Savings Bond Citations.

The Treasury Department will award Minute Man flags to installations that meet certain participation requirements in the drive.

Chairman of the Bond Drive on the post is Lt. Col. Howard F. Mumford, assistant adjutant general of The Infantry Center. Assistant general canvass chairman is 1st Lt. Richard D. Taylor chief of personal affairs, Adjutant General Section.

Frank Spear of Smiths, Ala., supervisor of special projects, Civilian Personnel Section, is assistant general chairman for civilian personnel.

Calls Pathet Lao Fighter Both Slippery, Ruthless

The Communist - trained Pathet Lao soldier who faces U.S. troops across the Mekong River that separates Thailand from Laos rates as a formidable adversary. He is "slippery as an eel — well trained, well fed, well equipped, and ruthless. . . .his weapons are generally first class, and plentiful. And he knows how to use them."

So speaks a veteran of the gallant but hopeless stand of the French at Dien Bien Phu eight years ago. A combat officer with years of experience in Southeast Asia, he is now contributing his extensive knowledge of that area and its peoples to Allied Intelligence.

The Pathet Lao, he says, hates and distrusts anything occidental, particularly if it is American. He is adept at jungle warfare, at techniques of ambush and camouflage, and he kills ruthlessly.

"But perhaps his biggest asset is patience," says the Dien Bien Phu veteran. "The Red Laotian soldier, the Pathet Lao, has none of that 'significant drive' you'll find in a Western fighter. There is no compulsion to smash in, clean up and get on with the war to get it over.

"The Pathet Lao thinks nothing of crawling on his belly for days at a time. He lives off a handful of cold rice as he goes, and can cover eight to 10 miles a day, slithering along like a snake.

"He rarely makes a sound. He'll 'freeze' so still in the face of danger, you may well step on him before you know you're in the middle of a war party. But then it's like stepping on a train of ants. You may collar a handful in the immediate vicinity, but even as you're capturing them, you can hear the others scuttling off in the bush."

Invasions Old Story To Laotians

Somewhat larger than the state of Idaho, Laos presently represents the chief trouble spot of southeast Asia.

Trouble, however, isn't anything new to the Laotians. Laos has been invaded by practically everyone including Tibetans, Mongols, Javanese, Annamites, Indians, Chinese, French, Khemers and now Communists. The Laotians have in time always gotten rid of their invaders.

The Laotian villages consist of thatched cottages on stilts in palm and banana groves.

The country's 89,000 square miles are inhabited by 2 million people, predominantly of the Buddhist religion.

The town of Vientiane serves as the capital.

The principal race is the Thai. The main crop is rice. Before Communist trouble began, life in Laos was slow and sleepy. The working day was short and the siesta was long.

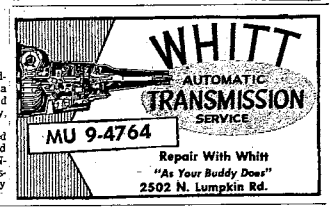
Laos in ancient time was called Lang Xang, "land of a million elephants." Now it may be more aptly called "land of a million Communists."

Ranger Class Graduates Include Sailor, Lawyer

Two precedents were set at Fort Benning recently when the first members of the U. S. Navy and the Army's legal section were graduated from The Infantry School's Ranger course.

The first sailor to wear the Ranger tab is GM 2 (Gunner's Mate Second Class) Barry Enoch, a member of Seal Team One, Underwater Demolition Team, Pacific Fleet, U. S. Naval Amphibious Base, Coronado, Calif.

First Lt. John J. Cleary, a member of the Staff Judge Advocate's Section of the 101st Airborne Division, Fort Campbell, Ky., become the first lawyer to complete the nine-week course.



Allied Officers

They were among 61 men, 32 other Army officers and 20 enlisted men, one U. S. Marine Corps officer and two enlisted men, two Allied officers from Denmark and two from the Republic of China, receiving Ranger tabs.

Honor graduates were Marine Corps Capt. Teddy R. Wiley and Army Sgt. Leon E. Harris.

Wiley is a member of the 1st Marine Division at Camp Pendleton, Calif., and Harris is a member of Company B, 2nd Battle Group, 187th Infantry, 101st Division.

As the outstanding enlisted graduate, Harris was awarded a one-year subscription to INFANTRY Magazine and an Association of the U. S. Army plaque.

HAND-IN-HAND . . . The Army Reserves and members of the Regular Army work hand-in-hand at Lawson Army Aviation Command. Here, Sgt. Melvin L. Burdette (L), a Reservist of the 414th Transportation Company, directs Pvt. Stanley B. Wheatley (C) and PFC Randolph H. Pilgrim in engine repairs on an L-20 aircraft. Pilgrim and Wheatley are members of the Regular Army.

Reserves Maintain Aircraft

After undergoing a series of Army Training Programs, members of the 414th Transportation Company's Fixed Wing Section are now actively engaged in aircraft repair and maintenance.

On a recent busy day at Lawson Army Aviation Command, the group was assigned the task of removing the wings of an L-20 aircraft and repairing them as well as the engine.

The L-20 is one of several aircraft worked on by the 414th since the unit became operational at LAAC.

The company is an Army Reserve unit from Greenville, S.C.

The 414th was called to active duty during the Berlin crisis last fall. A Regular Army unit, the 335th Transportation Company, will take the place of the 414th when it is released from active duty.

New Baseball-Type Hat Now Worn by Personnel

The men of the 586th Engineer Battalion at Fort Benning are wearing a new baseball-type fatigue cap that makes them look like ball players.

In fact, the players of the unit's softball teams wear the cap in league games and also for field duty.

Since April 24, the new headgear has been a part of the 586th's fatigue uniform Adopted by the Army recently and tested under field conditions by the engineers in conjunction with the Infantry Board, Continental Army Command, the headgear is expected to be available for other troops at Fort Benning in August.

The new cap, which has a foam rubber bill designed to prevent excessive distortion after laundering, can be washed by hand in lukewarm water or in a washing machine. It also has a nylon mesh support to help it retain its proper shape.

Comments about the new headgear usually deal with such military nomenclature as "field training," "motor pool duty" and "human factors engineering."

Translated, these terms refer to wearing of the cap while training in the field, working in the battalion motor pool and fitting the headgear to various sized heads, compatability with military activities, comfort, fabric durability and shape distortion.

Since the units of the 586th are well used to playing softball, building bridges and conducting river operations in the rain, on cool nights and hot days, through dense undergrowth and in open areas, the cap that may eventually replace the block-type cap now used by other units, is being thoroughly tested.

MODELING NEW HAT . . . PFC Carl L. Nonemaker, a company clerk with the 586th Engineer Company, models the new baseball-type fatigue hat.

Special Class Underway At War College

WASHINGTON (ANS) — The Army War College, Carlisle Barracks, Pa., has begun special three-week counterinsurgency courses for selected senior Army officers.

Responding to the President's interest in this area, the Army War College is the first of the Armed Forces' senior educational institutions to inaugurate such an intensive course of study.

In addition to guest lecturers from the Department of the Army, State Department and leading universities, the War College will bring in representatives from the Department of Defense, U. S. Information Agency, Office of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and other government agencies to form a panel for seminar discussion of special problems in the area.

Counterinsurgency is not limited solely to military considerations. It includes all military, political, economic, psychological and sociological activities directed toward preventing and suppressing resistance groups.

Dental Health Series

Toothbrush Best Bet Against Oral Germs

By Maj. Charles W. Dobson
Preventive Dentistry Officer

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first in a series of articles on dental health.)

There are many things that you can do to keep your mouth healthy. We will discuss them in this column in weeks to come.

The most important thing you can do to keep your smile bright and cheerful is to brush your teeth immediately after eating. Not just after meals, but after snacks too, after every time you eat. How you brush your teeth is not as important as how often you do it, and the best criterion of success is whether your mouth is clean.

Teeth and gums that are properly cared for will last a lifetime. Have your teeth cleaned by a dentist or a dental hygienist periodically to remove soft and hard deposits that are irritating to the gums. Regular periodic visits to the dentist enables him to discover and treat dental diseases before they progress too far. When tooth decay is treated early there is little discomfort and less tooth structure is lost than if you wait for the danger sign of a toothache.

Gum Disease

Gum disease is one of the worst threats to good dental health because it leads to destruction of the tissues needed to support the teeth. Neglect is the most common cause of gum disease because it permits tartar to form on the teeth. As a protection, regular check-ups are necessary. They enable the dentist to remove the tartar, and make it possible for him to treat gum disease in time to prevent serious trouble.

Wouldn't it be nice if everyone could have handsome, healthy teeth with no toothaches or cavities or gum troubles?

Dental researchers have been looking for some painless, inexpensive, simple cure-all. Much progress has been made in recent years. For instance the addition of fluorine to drinking water as we have it at Fort Benning, or the development of fluorides to be painted on the teeth.

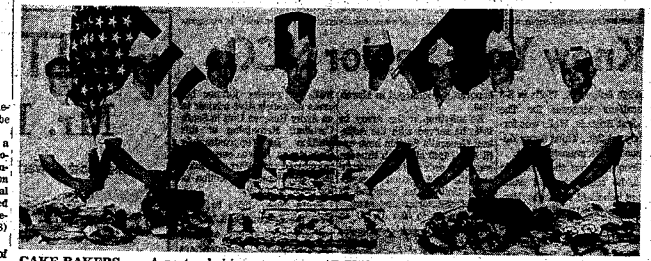
At Fort Benning we have a Preventive Dental Health Program, sponsored by the Community Activities Association and supervised by the Dental Service, which is conducted on a continuing basis for dependent children (ages 2-16) of military personnel.

The program consists of cleaning and the application of a fluoride solution to the children's teeth. Appointments for this service can be made by calling the Dependent Dental Clinic at 545-4494.

The nearest thing we have at present to a cure-all is a toothbrush, however it must be used properly to receive the full benefit. If you are in doubt about proper brush techniques you should arrange to have a demonstration by your dentist. This service is offered at the Dependent Dental Clinic in Old Hospital Area.

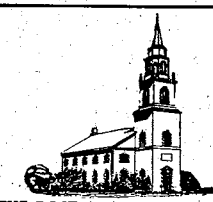
Col. Dixon New Head Of AFMA

Officers for the 1962-63 year were installed a recent meeting of the Armed Forces Management Association.



President of the group for the coming year is Col. Dale D. Dixon. Other officers are Dr. Harold S. Tate, first vice president; Lt. Col. Charles F. Walrath, second vice president; Maj. Jessie A. Hotchkiss, secretary, and Capt. Don B. Huff, treasurer.

The induction ceremony also included three executive Council members, Lt. Col. Frederick W. Hindley, Clarence J. Hammond and Mrs. Frances W. Alford.



Installing officer was Col. Stuart M. Mitchell a past president of the chapter.

Student Honored

An award of $100 was presented by the chapter to Michael O'Bryne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. O'Byrne of Columbus, winner of a management essay contest.

July Draft Quota Set At 5,000

WASHINGTON (ANS) —The Department of Defense has requested the Selective Service System to provide the Armed Forces Induction Stations with 5,000 men during July for assignment to the Army.

From the beginning of the build-up of the Armed Forces in August 1961 through July of this year, Selective Service will have called 146,500 men in order to maintain the Army at the strength objective established for the Berlin build-up.

The July call, in accordance with established policies, has been computed by the Army to cover losses, thereby maintaining approved active Army strength of 960,000 after the release of the Army National Guard and Reserve units in August.

Know Your Senior NCOs

MSgt Aubrey E. Wells is S-3 operations sergeant for The Student Brigade. Wells was formerly 1st Sgt., Third Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit.

Upon entering the Army in 1932, he received basic training at Schofield Barracks, Honolulu, Hawaii. He then became a battery clerk with the 15th Field Artillery Regiment. Wells stayed with this organization until his discharge in 1936.

After a lapse of five years, Wells returned to the service in 1941. At the outbreak of World War II he volunteered for Airborne Training, completed the course, obtained his "silver wings", and became an instructor at The Parachute School as it was then called.

Receiving orders in Sept. 1944, he saw action with the 517th Parachute Infantry Regimental Combat Team, which has since been deactivated.

Wounded in combat during the Battle of the Bulge, was hospitalized both in Europe and the United States, and was honorably discharged in March 1946.

Re-enlisting in the Army in 1946, he served with the Adjutant General's Section here until Aug., 1949 at which time he received orders for Germany and the 7801 Station Complement Unit as 1st Sergeant in Kassel and surrounding area.

Returning to the U. S. in 1952, the master jumper became administrative advisor to an Army Reserve Unit in South Carolina. Remaining at this position for approximately three years, he was once again reassigned to Fort Benning with the Personnel Section of the 29th Infantry.

WELLS

From Nov., 1955, to Oct., 1957, the operations NCO was put on special assignment with the G3 Section, Headquarters Third Army. At the completion of this assignment, he was given the position of 1st Sgt. of the Third Army Rifle and Pistol Team here. Retaining this position until Feb., 1962, he was transferred to The Student Brigade and promoted to his present rank of master sergeant, E8. On April 13th MSgt Wells assumed the duties of operations sergeant, S-3, TSB.

The six stripper resides on post with his wife, Jeanne, and their three children, Lucia, 15, Dudley, 14, and Aubrey, Jr., 13. Lucia and Dudley attend Baker High School while Aubrey attends Faith School.

FROM BRITAIN . . . Capt. Frederick L. Butcher (L) of the British Army presents a plaque for The Infantry School to Brig. Gen. Royal Reynolds Jr., assistant commandant of the school, on behalf of his unit, the Loyal Regiment. Capt. Butcher is a student in Infantry Officer Career Course No. Two.

All-Army Photo Contest Is Set

Post camera bugs will have an opportunity to try for awards in the 1962 All-Army Photography Contest.

The commanding general, Military District of Washington, will host this contest in November.

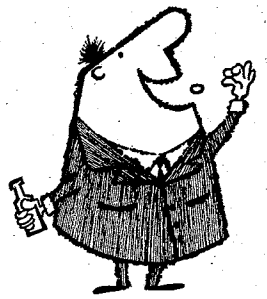
One hundred entries selected by the judges in the Army eliminations will compete in the 10th Interservice Photography Contest to be conducted by the Navy in December in Washington, D.C.

All military personnel on active duty for 90 days or more are eligible to compete in this contest by submitting entries in installation level contests. Installation winners will be entered in area level contests conducted by the six continental U. S. Armies, military District of Washington and the major overseas Army commands. Winning entries from the area level command contests will be submitted to the Department of the Army contest.

Competition will be conducted in both black and white and color in the following categories: Portraits, Babies and Children, Sports or Action, Scenic, Military Life, Experimental.

Entries will be photographs taken on or subsequent to Dec. 1, 1960. Black and white entries may vary from a minimum of 8x10 inches to a maximum of 16x20 inches. Color transparencies up to 4x5 inches in size may be entered.

The Army will provide trophies for the first three place winners and three honorable mentions in each category of competition, making a total of 84 awards.



Entry forms and detailed contest rules will be available at installation crafts shops or Special Services offices.

As Summer Returns, So Does Poison Ivy

By Peter Shough

Now that summer is rapidly approaching, the threat of poison ivy, oak and sumac returns as one of the problems of the field soldier.

These plants can cause severe sickness and, in some cases, hospitalization.

The majority of the cases of ivy poisoning are caused when the soldier is not able to recognize the plant. Poison ivy is often mistaken for a variety of blackberry or strawberry because of the similarity in leaf patterns.

However, the poison ivy leaf is easily distinguished by one simple characteristic. The leaves of poison ivy are smooth-edged and oily in appearance. They do not have the notched, rough edges of the blackberry and strawberry leaves.

Poison oak is the rarest of the poisonous plants in this area. However, its effects are usually much more serious. Poison oak requires professional medical attention, often times hospitalization.

This plant can be readily detected by its leaf characteristics and growing habits. The leaf is semi-lobed and has a rough, heavy-veined appearance. The plant sprouts berries in early spring.

Poison oak usually grows in high, dry regions. The plant, 12 to 14 inches high, has a bushy appearance and woody stems.

The rash caused by poison ivy or oak can be obtained in several ways. The most common is physical contact. The oil on the surface of the leaves is easily rubbed onto the skin causing the rash.

This oil can also be passed to the skin by brushing or handling an object that has come in contact with the plant. The object could be clothing, tools or even a weapon.

Another way the rash-causing oil can be passed is through the air. This is frequently done when an area in which the plant grows is set aflame. The smoke and heat of the fire cause the oil to circulate through the air for short distances.

If exposed to the plants, the best method of reducing the rash is take a bath in lukewarm water, using plenty of soap. "Luke-warm" water should be used since hot water will only open up the skin pores allowing oil to enter the sensitive areas. Launder the clothes once contact with the plant has been made.

During the poison ivy and oak season, remember these basic rules to minimize the danger of contracting the rash.

1. Keep as much of the skin surface covered with clothing as possible.
2. Make reconnaissance of training areas and avoid or bypass heavily infested areas.
3. If rash develops, get immediate medical attention to prevent spreading.

NOMINATED . . Maj. Gen. Philip E. Gallagher of Columbus, president of the West Point Society of Fort Benning - Columbus, has been nominated for membership on the board of trustess of the Association of Graduates of the U.S. Military Academy. Gen. Gallagher will be the regional representative of the Third Army area.

'Skyhook' Will Speed Rescues

Washington (AFPS) — A "skyhook" that can retrieve personnel or cargo on land or sea is being developed for the Army.

Elements of the system include the Army's Caribou aircraft, fitted with a wide fork constructed of light weight tubing and attached to the nose of the aircraft, a 'sky anchor' (a device which locks a nylon line to the nose of the plane), a compact drop package containing an aerodynamically shaped balloon, a gas cylinder to inflate it, 500 feet of nylon line, and a harness for the man or cargo.

To effect a pickup, the package is paradropped. The man awaiting rescue puts on the harness, attaches the line to the balloon which carries it aloft and sits down facing the direction of the rescue plane's approach.

The aircraft flies straight and level into the line which locks via the 'skyhook anchor' to the nose-mounted fork as the balloon breaks away.

As the line streams out along the fuselage, the crew retrieves it into the plane by use of a special book, attaches it to a winch and the man or cargo package is then reeled up and into the plane.

1st Lt. Buckbee Appears on TV

First Lt. James Buckbee, executive officer of Company C, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, Honor Guard Company, recently appeared on television for the second time this month.

Lt. Buckbee was the officer in charge of demonstrations given by a the Drill Team, Scout Dog Platoon and Infantry Center Band during Armed Forces week. He also appeared on a local children's program and discussed the meaning of Armed Forces Week and Fort Benning's participation.

He visited the children's program once again on Memorial Day to remind viewers of the meaning of the holiday.

Give Warning On Abuse Of Import Laws

Washington (AFPS) — Military and civilian personnel along with their dependents in overseas areas are being reminded of the temporary nature of the law which allows tax-free importation of household goods, privately owned automobiles and other personal property. They are warned against abuse of the privileges granted by this law.

The law, unless extended, will expire this year and violations could result in the loss of these privileges by preventing either extension of this law or the passing of a permanent free-import law.

Commanders have been instructed to take necessary action to assure that all personnel shipping personal property be reminded of their responsibilities. These persons are required to read and understand the contents of the Owners U.S. Customs Declaration and Entry and Inspecting Officer's Certificate (DD Form 1252) which covers duty-free entry of such property.

Specifically, the commands are instructed to make persons aware of the fact that they are not allowed to ship, duty free, any item as an accommodation for others, or for sale, barter or exchange.

Additionally, items shipped must be only personal and household effects for the shipper's personal use or the use of members of his family who have been residing with him overseas.

Personnel are also reminded of the seriousness of violating provisions of the customs declaration. Not only do such violations jeopardize the privilege, but persons making false statements on DD Form 1252 are subject to criminal prosecution under the Federal Law or the Uniform Code of Military Justice, whichever is applicable.

NEW STANDARD IN RIFLE . . . This quartet from the Marksmanship Training Unit set a new world mark for the standing position in the three-position smallbore rifle match. They fired a total of 1466, four points better than the old mark. Pictured are (L to R) Capt. Daniel Puckel, Capt. Tommy Pool, MSgt. William E. Krilling, and Capt. Verle Wright who set the mark during competition with shooters from seven nations.

2600 Mark Surpassed By Master Pistol Firer

An Army marksman recently entered the coveted "2600" circle of pistol shooters when he fired a 2605-116X out of a possible 2700 in the three-gun aggregate event during the Pensacola (Fla.) Fiesta of Five Flag Rifle and Pistol Matches.

Sp5 Jack D. Elliot fired an 876-41X out of a possible 900 over the .22 caliber course to take first place.

Elliot, a member of the U.S. Caribbean Command team, is curently on post for the All-Army Rifle and Pistol Championship Matches which begin Thursday.

In this event and in the center fire and .45 caliber events, a 50-yard slow fire match and a rapid fire and timed-fire match at 25 yards comprise a course of fire.

The "2600" shooter posted wins in the remaining two events with scores of 866-38X and 863-36X to completely sweep the aggregate in his class. Elliot is a lifetime Master Shooter.

The "2600" score cracked for the first time by Elliot is regarded by pistol marksmen as the four-minute mile is by trackmen. The Missouri marksman also holds the National Distinguished Pistol Marksman Badge, the nation's highest tribute in shooting.

The pistoleer also set the .22 caliber national record during the Camp Perry (Ohio) National Matches in 1958.

NRA-Sponsored Competition Set; Prelude to Big All-Army Shoot

A pair of major weapons tournaments will be held on post starting tomorrow under the sponsorship of the National Rifle Association in cooperation with the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club.

Fort Benning is the site of both the Southeastern Regional High Power Rifle and Regional Pistol Championships.

Competitors are expected from major Army commands all over the world, Thomas Kirkman, who handles the entries, said this week. The two events will serve as a prelude to the All-Army Rifle and Pistol Matches.

In addition to the service competitors, who will include SFC Bill Blankenship, the current U. S. Pistol champion, from the Marksmanship Training Unit, civilian entries are expected from several Georgia cities as well as entries from other branches of the service.

Commencing tomorrow the pistol shooters will fire the .22-caliber pistol in four separate events to determine the champion with this weapon.

The riflemen will start the first of their seven matches scheduled for the weekend.

On Sunday the handgunners will fire the Center Fire matches (any weapon of .38 caliber or larger) and will complete the individual portion of their events on Monday with the .45 pistol.

The pistol shooters will fire their team events on each of the three days of competition at 1500 hours each day with the weapon scheduled for firing that day.

The riflemen will compete in a four-man team match starting at 0800 hours Monday. Their course of fire will consist of once over the National Match Course — 10 shots standing at 200 yards, 10 shots rapid fire, standing to sitting or kneeling at 200 yards, 10 shots rapid fire, standing to prone, 300 yards, and 20 shots prone at 600 yards.

In addition to the matches listed above there will be a 'leg' match with each weapon.

The pistol event will be fired at 4 p.m. Sunday, and the rifle match will be shot at 1 p.m. the same day.

These events are open to any citizen of the U. S., 16 years of age or older, and are sponsored by the National Board for the Promotion of Rifle Practice.

Once over the National Match Course, prescribed for each weapon, is the standard for competition.

No entry fee is required and ammunition is provided at the firing line.

Retirement Taken By Top NCO

Sgt. Maj. Alton T. Phipps, sergeant major of The Infantry School, retired at ceremonies held recently on Chapel Field.

Phipps had been at Fort Benning since November, 1957. He came to this post from the 8th Infantry Division in Europe.

The sergeant major also served with the 11th Airborne at Fort Campbell and the 9th Infantry Division in Europe.

During the Korean conflict he saw service in 1952 and 1953 with 7th Infantry Division, and during WW II he was in Europe with the 101st Airborne Division.

Enlisting in August, 1937, Phipps received his commission at Fort Hood, in November, 1942, after graduating from the Tank Destroyer Officer Candidate School.

Phipps retires as a lieutenant colonel.

Rites Planned For Jewish Children

A Jewish childrens' service will be held at Fort Benning's Jewish Center, Bldg. 1071, at 8 p.m. today.

The entire service will be conducted by dependents of post Jewish personnel, according to Chaplain (1st Lt.) Naftali Friedman, post Jewish chaplain.

"Oneg Shabbat" will be served at the Center following the service.

233rd Signal Mess Hall Takes Honors

The 1st Infantry Brigade's monthly "Best Bess" award for April was presented to the 233rd Signal Company at a recent ceremony in the company mess hall.

Col. Lawrence S. Reynolds, commanding officer, 1st Brigade, presented the Best Mess Plaque to SFC Charles Walker, 233rd Signal Company Mess Steward.

The 233rd Signal Company, commanded by Capt. John R. Kerr, is an Army Reserve unit from Indianapolis, Ind., and has won three previous "Best Mess" awards at summer camps.

The Brigade Food Service Section selects the "Best Mess" on the following criteria: preparation and service of food; administration and accounting; receiving and storage of subsistence; mess sanitation; improvement and beautification.

The 233rd Signal Company mess personnel who were instrumental in capturing this award were SFC Charles Walker, mess steward; Sp5 Oscar Boyd, assistant mess steward; Sp5 Everett Alexander, Sp5 James Hyten, Sp4 Jim Feerll, Pfc Robert Burton, Pfc Si Burger, Pfc John Hemmer and Pfc Paul Hornaday.

Overseas Areas Get 'Sergeant'

Washington (AFPS) — Sergeant missile battalions will be deployed overseas early next year, according to Army Secretary Elvis J. Stahr.

The number of battalions and their locations were not revealed.

Secretary Stahr also said that by June 30 the Army will have activated two more Sergeant missile battalions at Ft. Sill, Okla.

The new units will be the 3d Missile Battalion (Sergeant), 81st Artillery and the 5th Missile Battalion (Sergeant), 77th Artillery. They will join the 3d Missile Battalion (Sergeant), 38th Artillery, which is already in training at Ft. Sill.

The solid-fuel Sergeant will replace the liquid-fueled Corporal missile, which has been in Europe for more than six years.

Sergeant is a more mobile system and can be set up and fired under all conditions of weather and terrain by a smaller crew than that needed for the Corporal. Its inertial guidance system makes Sergeant immune to known counter-measures.

Albany Parade Features 23rd's Company C Trps

The 23rd Infantry's Company C recently participated in an Armed Forces Day celebration at Albany, Georgia.

The unit, commanded by Captain Michael J. Lally, traveled by bus to and from Albany, and were supported by members of Combat Support Company, also of the 23rd.

The display booth was set up in a local establishment in Albany. On hand in the booth answering questions and explaining the various functions of the equipment were Sgt. William Joyner, Sp4 Frank Reilly, and PFC Johnny Bates.

TOPS May Be Answer to Many Suffering Overweight Problem

Have you ever beard of TOPS? If you are over-weight it may benefit you.

TOPS (Take Off Pounds Sensibly) is a national club designed to help over-weight individuals lose unwanted pounds.

Mrs. Jack H. Scott is attempting to start a TOPS Chapter on post. She would like all women who are interested in applying the TOPS method of losing pounds to contact her. Arrangements for the preliminary meeting will be forwarded to you by calling her at 544-1800 after 4 p.m.

The club advocates two basic principles in obtaining its goal. First, that weight reduction can be carried out most satisfactorily through consultation with one's physician, and secondly, that 'fads' and 'diets' have no place in any such program.

It's sucess is based primarily on the fact that TOPS has no commercial interests, but concerns itself only with finding relief and correction of a common problem. A member is placed on a weight-losing program by his own physician, and is not subjected to a sure-fire method of reducing. A sincere desire to lose weight must be held by every member.

TOPS was founded in Milwaukee, Wis. by a house wife who suffered from overweightness. With the aid of her doctor, she decided to start a club, employing group therapy to lose weight. The idea behind the therapy was to make the members of TOPS use competitive play in order to retain a youthful figure.

In helping others, club members also help themselves. Individuals are provided with a means of discussing the underlying causes of obesity by attending weekly meetings. Successful ideas, proven by the various clubs, are passed to other chapters by means of monthly bulletins printed at national headquarters.

The headquarters, in Milwaukee, serves as a media to pass information to nationally located chapters. This method not only puts weight reduction on local competition, but on a national one. Awards are given to chapters that have the highest average of pounds lost during the year. Individuals are awarded for acquiring personal goals.

Caution Vets On U. S. Loan

Veterans with government loans should be careful they are formally relieved of responsibility for the loan if they sell the property to another person.

This can be accomplished only by formal approval by the Veterans Administration, unless the transaction is completely re-financed. In cases where the buyer assumes the veteran's loan without VA acceptance, the veteran will be called upon to pay-off the governments loss in case of a foreclosure.

Meanwhile, the deadline of July 25 for government loans for many World War II veterans draws nearer. Veterans have ten years plus an additional year for each 90 days of active wartime service to complete a VA loan. For many World War II veterans, this means July 25 or a few days thereafter.

Some direct VA loans, which have been unavailable since last fall, are expected to become available again sometime this month. Most will go, however, to veterans who have been on the waiting list for several months. They can be made only in counties where guaranteed VA loans are not available from conventional lending institutions.

Normally, VA loan applications are made directly to the Veterans Administration or through a builder or lending institution which makes government loans. Veterans needing advice or assistance about their eligibility for a loan or concerning being relieved from the responsibility for a loan following a sale should contact the nearest office of the Georgia Department of Veterans Service.

This Week In History

June 2, 1784 — Congress again directs disbandment of Army, stating "standing Armies in time of Peace are inconsistent with the principles of republican government," but retains a core - taking establishment of 80 artillerymen.

June 3, 1784 — Congress authorizes the raising of 700 untrained militia to garrison the western posts.

June 3, 1940 — War Department releases war material to Great Britain upon appeal to U. S. by Prime Minister Churchill.

June 4, 1864 — Petersburg Campaign.

June 4, 1944 — Fifth Army enters Rome.

June 5, 1945 — France, Great Britain, Russia, and the United States issue Berlin Declaration, announcing their assumption of supreme authority in occupied Germany.

June 6, 1944 — Normandy Campaign. Allied forces land on Normandy coast on 6th, supported by air and naval bombardment.

June 7, 1942 — Japanese land on Attu and Kiska, Aleutian Islands.

Today's Hero Is Different Variety Than Yesterday's

Are you a hero? What makes a hero? It's not physical strength, for many women have achieved heroism — Dolly Madison, Florence Nightingale, Anna Rosenberg.

So have children; remember the boy who plugged the hole in the dike? Great statesmen and scientists with no special physical prowess — have won the plaudits of a grateful world.

Historically, heroism has always been associated with triumph. A million years before the pyramids were built — when tropical forests thrashed with the great war for world supremacy between man and beast—the hero was the hunter who triumphed over animals. He was the unarmed man, unaware that a pointed stick makes a good spear, who was first to leap naked on the wild lion's back, wrapping his arms around its neck while his companions grabbed tail and legs.

Even after man mastered beast, triumph in battle remained the key to heroism — only now it was triumph over man that won the cheers. There was little David, who bested Goliath ... Caesar, whose legions triumphed over all armies that dared oppose him ... the Spanish soldier who won the battle to "civilize" Montezuma's tribe ...the Indian brave whose collection of scalps proved his triumphs in helping to keep un-colored people out of the area. In every age, triumphs made heroes.

It was less than 1,000 years ago that triumphs — and heroism — became possible without physical violence. When sea-going ships came into their own, the greatest heroes were the bold explorers who sailed into the unknown in search of gold and glory. They brought back stories of painted savages and unicorns, of eluding sea-serpents that could struggle a three-master. The hero-worshippers listened with open mouths and wide eyes.

Triumph over man was more widely understandable than triumph over distance, however, and so wars fought for glory continued. Then, non-violent forms of triumph over man became popular.

You could triumph by becoming a millionaire, triumph by breaking an athletic record, triumph by becoming a famous personality — all feats which other men had tried without success.

Today, traditional forms of heroism are losing popularity. Heavyweight championship bouts are rare and less exciting. College foothall has become commercial. Few lands remain to be explored. Even war, now fought with buttons and missiles, has lost much of its glamor.

But now, that triumph over beast, man and distance are becoming old hat, a new form of triumph — and heroism — is emerging. The triumph: over environment!

Jonas Salk is the new type of hero. He triumphed over an enemy no man conquered since the dawn of time. Rocket scientist Werner von Braun is another such hero; so is the local man who offers less world-shaking suggestions for improvement. The wonderful thing is heroism breeds heroism. When triumph in dueling brought honor and glory, dueling study and practice brought even more skill, greater triumphs. Today, in the same way, students from Cape Canaveral to Seattle are displaying renewed interest in physics, chemistry, mathematics, biology.

A good example of the new form of heroism is shown by the research team that discovered the remarkably effective antibiotic, Terramycin. The story of the men who developed this powerful weapon against disease is a seldom-told tale that illustrates the art of quiet heroism.

In the late 1940's, scientists knew that somewhere in the soil of the world were organisms that could be developed into new antibiotics that might be effective against diseases untouched by penicillin and streptomycin. American pharmaceutical companies were well equipped for this global treasure hunt. Their experience with the earlier antibiotics told them what to look for and how to evaluate what they found. Nevertheless they faced a staggering task.

The scientists of one firm had developed an ingenious screening procedure that enabled them to do in months what otherwise might have taken years. Arrangements were made with hundreds of persons whose jobs took them to distant parts of the world — airline pilots, missionaries, commercial travelers, explorers. From these "prospectors" came more than one hundred thousand soil samples.

With less risk than the lion-fighters, more conservatism than the yarn-spinning sailor of old, purer motives than many who sought millions or fame, the world's research scientists are crashing through the frontiers of knowledge. They're building a better world. Their triumphs are making them ... and will make them to an even greater extent tomorrow ... heroes!

TOO TOUGH FOR TEDDY?

President Theodore Roosevelt was responsible for the change of rules in football that called for four downs to make 10 yards instead of three to make five yards. It seems the fans were complaining of the damages suffered by the players during those rough and tough days.

New Regulations Cite Off-Duty Employment

Washington (AFPS) — The circumstances under which off-duty employment of active duty Army personnel can be authorized is a part of a new Army Regulation, 600-50.

The new regulation, titled Standards of Conduct for Department of the Army Personnel, governs both military and civilian personnel and covers numerous subjects.

Among these are such areas as conflict of interest, acceptance of gifts, use of Government facilities, contributions or gifts to superiors, use of motor vehicles and the restrictions placed on retired military in regard to doing business with the Government.

Authorization for off-duty employment follows the same guide lines as before.

Such authorization can be given if the employment does not interfere with military duties.

The employment may not be such that it would possibly create a conflict of interest or bring discredit upon or cause unfavorable criticism of the Government.

Use of a military title, position, designation or military address, if the use of such an address indicates a connection with the military service, is forbidden.

The off-duty employment may not be authorized if it interferes with the customary employment of local civilians. The employment may not be such as to require the soldier to be separated from his unit or organization.

Other regulations concerning certain types of off - duty employment are contained in AR 210-10 and 220-5. Regulations applicable to off-duty employment of civilian employees appear in paragraph 2-2, CPR C2.

1st Lt. James Foley Assumes Command

USING NEW ROTARY FILE
Is Mrs. Gloria Dixon, A Records Clerk

Student Records Are Kept As Bank Books

With an estimated 45,000 members of the Regular Army, and Reserve Components enrolled in the five extension courses offered by The Infantry School, keeping records would easily become quite a problem.

Thanks to an efficient, modern business filing system recently replacing the old system for non-resident student records, the task is much easier.

The new system complements electronic accounting machine procedures and is employed in the Army Extension Course Non-Resident Instruction.

Under the supervision of Lt. Col. Daniel A. Schreiber, Capt. Alfred A. Zamparelli, Capt. Paul R. Morrow, Gus Luckett, MSgt Alton K. Halso and SFC William G. Harrison, the military educational progress of each student is recorded and evaluated before new shipping instructions are issued to the Army Extension Course mailing and distribution departments.

Each week this section also provides information and answers to approximately 700 student letters. They also compile statistics for higher headquarters.

The student records are comparable to bank books issued by commercial banks. Upon enrollment, the student opens his academic account.

The date and number of every subcourse sent to the student is recorded. Course completions are posted and the next course is sent out to the student.

The student deposits academic grades earned through hard work and draws out millitary knowledge plus recognition for his efforts.

The new filing system ensures the same careful treatment given to the civilian bank account.

The old filing system consisted of 38 homemade wooden boxes placed on two-tier wooden racks. Since each clerk handles up to 400 records each day, considerable motion was wasted in withdrawing, locating and returning student cards.

The new rotary filing system arranges the student records in a series of rotating drums, always at the fingertips of the clerk. This type system is used in civilian businesses as well as by governmental agencies.

'Shavuos' Rites Are Planned

Fort Benning Jewish personnel will observe "Shavuos," the Festival of Weeks, from sundown next Thursday to sundown Saturday.

Services will be conducted at the Jewish Center, Bldg. 1071, at 8 p.m. Thursday, 9:30 a.m. and 8 p.m. Friday and 9:30 a.m. Saturday.

Shavuos commemorates the proclamation of the Ten Commandments to Moses at Mount Sinai. The Israelites fled their bondage in Egypt at the Passover Season. Fifty days later, gathered at the foot of the mountain, they heard the Law read, as revealed to Moses by Jehovah.

Tell Structure Of Reserve, NG

The Army plan to reorganize the National Guard and Reserve is not limited to its effect on divisions but affects non-divisional units as well. It is designed to modernize them and to make them more responsive to the needs of the Army in the event of rapid mobilization.

Non-divisional units must be completely compatible with Active Army units both in terms of organization and training. They must be capable of entering upon active duty and assuming important missions without requiring extensive additional training, without having to be issued new weapons and equipment with which they are unfamiliar, and without having to go through a time-consuming reorganization or change of mission after call up.

In order to accomplish this important reorganization, some new types of units will be created within the Army National Guard and Army Reserve structure. At the same time, some types of units will be eliminated inasmuch as there is no longer a requirement for them. There will be an increase in the number of certain types of units within the Reserve forces; there will be a decrease in others.

The changes in units have been made necessary not only by the fact that time has made the weapons and equipment of some of the Reserve Component units ineffective on a modern battlefield, but also by changes in the size and organization of the active Army itself.

This year the U. S. will have 16 active Army Divisions, compared to 14 last year. Moreover, three of these divisions which in the past were engaged in training recruits now have been brought to full strength and are combat ready.

As a result of this increase in Army combat strength, the need for units within the Reserve which can support this active Army in sustained combat has increased greatly.

The plan for reorganization of these non-divisional Reserve Component units is the result of a thorough study of the actual needs of the Army. For example, there is a clear need for additional self-propelled artillery battalions to support the mechanized Infantry and Armored Divisions.

Plans call for the elimination of some towed guns and replacing them with fast-moving self-propelled guns which can keep pace with armored striking forces. Not all towed weapons would be eliminated, however, for they still have an important role.

Engineer construction battalions in the Reserve forces are to be reduced in number — to be replaced by Engineer combat battalions. The uses to which construction battalions can be put is limited inasmuch as they must be employed behind the zones of combat. On the other hand, Engineer Combat battalions can be used effectively in the combat zone or behind it.

Quartermaster Direct Support and General Support battalions will be created in order to provide the most efficient supply to our divisions. At the same time, numerous separate Quartermaster companies which previously performed this mission will be eliminated. The direct support and general support battalions have demonstrated their superiority over the old system. Control is centralized and response to demand is infinitely faster and more efficient than can be obtained from numerous separate companies.

All 90-millimeter anti-aircraft gun battalions in the National Guard will be eliminated. These weapons were phased out of the Active Army several years ago and were replaced with more modern and efficient air defense missiles. The 90-millimeter anti-aircraft gun is not effective against modern jet aircraft. For some years now, the program to equip the National Guard with air defense missiles has been underway and these weapons are now an important part of our continental air defense system.

Ten combat aviation units will be added to the Reserve structure and their war-time mission will be support of field armies and corps. Fixed wing tactical transport companies will be reduced from four to two because of an increase in such companies in the Active Army.

These changes all serve to advance the One Army concept. They are based on a balancing of military needs on the one hand, and of the joint capacities and capabilities of the active Army, the National Guard and the Reserves on the other.

DA Guest Will Visit On Post

Brig. Gen. and Mrs. James E. Graham will visit Fort Benning June 5 to 7.

Gen. Graham is director of personnel training, Office of the Surgeon General, Department of the Army.

Expected to arrive on the post Tuesday by private automobile, Gen. Graham will confer with officials of Martin Army Hospital concerning medical personnel training.

Gen. Graham will visit Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell, The Infantry Center commanding general, Wednesday morning.

There will be an official luncheon for Gen. Graham at noon Wednesday at the Main Officers Open Mess, with Col. William A. Todd Jr., hospital commander, as host.

During the day, Gen. Graham will visit the Medical Committee of The Infantry School, and the post dispensaries.

Gen. Graham is expected to depart the post June 7.

RETREAT FROM DUNKIRK

Retreat from Dunkirk by British Expeditionary Forces took place May 26 through June 4, 1940, when 900 vessels took 338,226 troops across the English Channel, 26,175 of them French.

Service Centers Offer Soldiers O'Seas Home-Away-From-Home

Right now, there are approximately two and one-half million Americans serving their country's armed forces. Well over a half million are stationed overseas. And when you consider their dependents, the overseas figure rises to more than a million.

Who's looking after them? Who is there to prevent them from getting lonely? From getting into trouble?

Since the men are not fighting a "hot" war, they have more leisure time than otherwise. This means more time off-base and in town. Some are lonely; some are on what has been called "an eternal quest for excitement."

Even a Marine officer has admitted: "We spend hundreds of thousands of dollars to provide recreational facilities on-base, but the men leave the base and go to town. . ."

One source of comfort and recreation for our soldiers is provided by churches.

For example, the 75,000 troops stationed in the vicinity of Kaiserslautern, Germany (the largest NATO base in that country) have a sure cure for nostalgia. If they yearn for a homey place to relax, where they can loaf through a magazine, listen to music, watch a TV show, or just enjoy a cup of coffee amid American hospitality, they go to the Lutheran Service Center.

It is operated by the Lutheran Service Commission. The LSC is a joint agency of the National Lutheran Council and the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod with headquarters in Washington, D. C. The Kaiserslautern facility is the first permanent Lutheran Service Center in postwar Europe and is open to military personnel and their friends—regardless of denomination and nationality.

Over 40 such service centers and other facilities are operated by the Lutheran Service Commission — without public contribution or government aid —around the world, including Alaska, Okinawa, Japan, Puerto Rico, Philippine Islands, and Seoul, Korea.

Since 1954, when the Center was opened, it has been visited by more than 170,000 persons. In one month, 4,000 servicemen have dropped in.

The Center is located in the heart of the downtown district, and a neon light shines a welcome to all passersby. "The location," says the Rev. Carl M. Siller, service pastor, "is ideal for servicemen wondering how to spend an evening on a pass."

To whom does credit for the Center belong?

According to a statement by Dr. Carl F. Yaeger and Chaplain Raymond C. Hohenstein, associate executive secretaries of the Lutheran Service Commission, "Much credit for the effective program of the Center is due to Service Pastor Siller. He pioneered and has directed the Kaiserslautern program from its inception in December 1954. . .We are pleased that the U. S. Armed Forces now regard the Kaiserslautern Service Center as one of the outstanding facilities serving military personnel and their dependents in Western Europe."

A veteran of two World Wars and a retired Navy commander, Chaplain Siller has served on every type of vessel from a destroyer-tender to a battleship. During World War II, his ship, the U. S. S. Maryland, was torpedoed off the island of Saipan.

Since he has worked with military men all his life, the chaplain feels he understands the military man. And he adds: "I will do all I can to help any serviceman have a successful tour while stationed in Europe. My door is always open."

The Lutheran Service Center offers regular church services as well as providing a haven for weary troops. And even housing problems come within its domain. The Germans prefer listing apartment vacancies with the Center's officials, hoping that way to get reliable tenants. Of course, there is no charge for this service.

Then there are the Center's complete recreational facilities — a comfortable lounge with TV, radio, tape recorder, and phonograph; a reading-writing room with current newspapers and magazines; equipment for table-tennis and other games; 35mm slide and 8mm movie projectors; German classes(for both beginners and advanced students); and a snack room, where free refreshments are served by volunteer hostesses. In the summer, the Center sponsors tours through the Rhineland.

The best endorsement for the Kaiserslautern Lutheran Service Center came from one serviceman who said simply: "This has become a sort of second home to me and to lots of other guys here. It's a wonderful feeling to know that our Church cares this much for us."

Further, as Dr. Yaeger and Chaplain Hohenstein point out, "While the Kaiserslautern Service Center's primary function is to serve military personnel and their dependents, it also makes a worthwhile contribution in community affairs.

"Several years ago, when a U. S. Air Force armed fighter plane crashed into a building across the street from the Center, the Center's facilities were placed at the disposal of the civilian and military fire-fighting and rescue squads. It served as a focal point of emergency operations. For the service performed during this tragedy, the Center received a commendation from the military."

Of course, the Lutheran Service Center in Kaiserslautern is not the only Service Center. Other denominations cooperate in providing such facilities overseas too. And the U. S. O. has been continuing its grand efforts on behalf of our servicemen.

A "home-away-from-home" is more than a nice sounding phrase to men in uniform who use the centers in Kaiserslautern and others parts of the world. To them it is a real expression of interest and concern from those back home who remember.

New Howitzer Moves Fast, Packs Punch

WASHINGTON (AFPS) —Pilot models of a new self-propelled 105mm howitzer, which is amphibious and can be air dropped or transported by helicopter, are being built by the Army Ordnance Tank Automotive Command in Detroit, Mich.

Brig. Gen. J. Frederick Thorlin, commanding general of the Detroit ordnance organization, described the new gun as an answer to the Army's urgent request for a "heavyweight punch with featherweight mobility."

Designated the XM-104, the howitzer will be able to travel at 35 mph, carrying a four-man crew.

It will negotiate swamps and desert sand, and cross rivers and lakes. Ready to travel the gun weighs 6,400 pounds.

Called a "scatback" artillery piece, the XM-104 could go anywhere in the world with airborne troops and go into action almost as soon as the first rifleman fires a shot.

Once on the line, it could follow right behind Infantry and Armor units in combat.

native, send the books back; and back they go. All's well for about a month, then comes the letter. "Mr. Smith, you contracted with us for the purchase of a set little proviso to the effect of — and further, unless payment is remitted within the next 30 days, legal action will be taken to collect." Sgt. Smith cringes with horror; how did I get myself into this?

BLESSED IS THE MAN WHO READS WHAT HE SIGNS. Sgt. Smith did not read far enough or he would have known he could not send the books back. He agreed to purchase and pay the company to deliver.

Flag 'UP' for Matches

More than 900 of the Army's top flight "guns" at Fort Benning are impatiently awaiting the traditional opening shot on Saturday at 8 a.m. to open the 1962 Army Rifle and Pistol Championships.

Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center, will be on hand to greet shooters and guests on behalf of the Army and its commanders during the opening exercises.

Immediately following the ceremonies at MacAndrew Range, the shooters will take the firing line. Rifle competition will begin with the Service rifle 200-yard slow fire match. The .22 caliber Camp Perry course will kick-off the pistol events.

Due to service weapons concentration this year, International type shooting has been dropped from the program, the Army's match director, Lt. Col. Edgar S. Burroughs explained.

Sgt. Joseph L. Graham, match headquarters chief clerk, queried as to the duties of Marksmanship Training Unit, explained, "MTU personnel will conduct range and match operations.

He continued, "They will su-

Col. Keyes Commander Of 1st Infantry Brigade

COL. KEYES

Col. Richard W. Keyes recently assumed command of the 1st Infantry Brigade, succeeding Col. William H. Birdsong Jr. who has been assigned to the Office of the Assistant Commandant of The Infantry School.

Prior to his command position at the 1st Infantry Brigade, Col. Keyes was deputy assistant commandant of The Infantry School. The veteran of more than 22 years active duty has also served as director of the Command and Staff Department here.

Col. Keyes spent a three-year tour of duty in London as chief, Army Element, Military Assistance Advisory Group, United Kingdom, before coming to Fort Benning, in September, 1960.

Commissioned in 1936

Commissioned at the University of Florida in 1936, Col. Keyes went to Europe as commander of the 2nd Battalion, 311th Infantry Regiment, 78th Infantry Division in October 1944. He held this position until being named executive officer of the regiment in July, 1945. He was commander from October to January, 1946.

During the Korean Conflict, Col. Keyes commanded the 3rd Battalion, 27th Infantry, 25th Infantry Division, from Sep-

ARMY'S WINNERS . . . The Army's "Gold Team" won the National Rifle Association's Southeastern Rifle Team Championships here recently over 79 teams entered in the annual tourney. Top shooters are (Kneeling L to R) Sgt. Willie Jordan, SFC Cecil Stevens, Capt. Frank Lohmann and MSgt. Alfred O'Neill. Standing are Lt. Col. Raynold S. Dobak and SFC Leslie Drake. All are members of the Marksmanship Training Unit.

The U. S. Military Academy's Class of 1963, numbering over 500, arrived here Wednesday for a six-day visit that will be highlighted by training in Airborne, Infantry and mechanized Infantry tactics and techniques.

For training purposes the class is split into three groups which separated after the welcoming address given Thursday by Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell, commandant of The Infantry School.

Training will not be limited to observation, but will include active participation in many phases of TIS's instruction.

(See CADETS, Page 2)

After a reception Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the ballroom of the Main Officers Open Mess, there will be a dinner in the Supper Club at 8:30. Gen. Wilson will be the guest speaker.

Invitations have been extended to the general officers of Fort Benning, the presidents of the Georgia Engineering Society and the Georgia Professional Society of Engineers and post engineer technical representatives.

The activities will continue Thursday at 9:00 a.m. with a parade of all post engineer units at Weatherby Field near Sand Hill. At least one piece of each type of engineer equipment will be displayed in the parade.

Units taking part in the two-day ceremonies will include the 151st Engineer Group commanded by Col. Sears Y. Coker, the 72nd and 588th Engineer Companies; the 2nd, 577th and 606th Engineer Battalions, all of Fort Benning; the 114th and 186th National Guard Engineer Companies of Washington, D. C., and Brewton, Ala., respectively, and the 391st and 498th Engineer Battalions, Reserve units from Greenville, S. C., and Pine Bluff, Ark.

The Corps of Engineers has the distinction of being both a combat arm and a technical Post personnel will participate in Flag Day and Army anniversary observances Thursday, both on post and in the civilian community.

At 4:30 p.m., The Infantry Center Band will participate in a Flag Day parade in Columbus and in a ceremony to follow at the Muscogee County Court House.

A Color Guard for the parade and ceremony will be furnished by Honor Guard Company C, 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade.

On the post, Flag Day and Army anniversary celebrations will be held in conjunction with the commemoration of the June 16 anniversary of the Corps of Engineers, beginning at 9:30 a.m. on Weatherby Field.

Engineers to Observe 187th Year

Engineer units at Fort Benning will join their Army counterparts the world over Wednesday and Thursday in observing the 187th anniversary of the Corps of Engineers.

The local ceremonies will get under way Wednesday at 11:15 a.m. with the arrival of Lt. Gen. Walter K. Wilson Jr., Chief of Engineers, Washington, D. C. Gen. Wilson will tour installations and projects of the 151st Engineer Group and will visit post engineer activities.

Engineers

service. Since its foundation on June 16, 1775, the Corps has established an outstanding record of service to our nation in peace and war.

Operated USMA

It was the Corps of Engineers that was first given the responsibility for the organization and operation of the U.S. Military Academy at West Point. The Corps has developed such outstanding officers as Robert E. Lee, Douglas MacArthur, Lucius Clay, William Hoge, Bruce C. Clarke and many others.

The two-day celebration will open with the arrival of Lt. General Walter K. Wilson Jr., chief of engineers, on Wednesday. Gen. Wilson will be guest speaker at the cocktail and dinner party to be held at the Supper Club in the evening.

On Thursday morning at 9:30 a massive parade of all post engineer units will be staged at Wetherby Field in honor of the anniversary. Gen. Wilson will be the reviewing officer and the public is cordially invited to attend. In addition, there will be a display of many items of engineer equipment around the USAIC headquarters, building 35.

Keyes

tember, 1950, until the following March. Col. Keyes then became G-2 of the 25th Infantry Division and held that post for five months.

From February, 1952 to June 1953, Col. Keyes was assigned to Army War Plans Division, Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations, Department of the Army, and from July, 1953, to August, 1956, served as a member of The Standing Group of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in Washington.

Col. Keyes' military schooling includes the Infantry School's Communications Officer Course in 1941, the Division Officer Course in 1942 and the Refresher Course in 1948.

Col. Keyes was a student at the Command and Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, from February to May, 1943. He is a 1951 graduate of the Armed Forces Staff College at Norfolk, Va., and completed the National War College at Fort McNair, Washington, D. C., six years later.

Decorations held by Col. Keyes include the Distinguished Service Cross, Silver Star with Oak Leaf Cluster, Legion of Merit, Bronze Star Medal with three Oak Leaf Clusters, Army commendation Medal, Purple Heart and the British Distinguished Service Order.

Col. Keyes is married to the former Alice Blair of Houston, Tex., and is the son of Mrs. Belva D. Keyes of Washington, D. C.

Cadets

Included in this is an orientation by the Airborne Air Mobility Department.

Cadets will participate in such phases of Airborne training as parachute landing falls, swing landing, exiting from the mock door and jumping from the 34-foot tower.

The Ranger Department's Platoon Tactics Committee will give the future Army officers an opportunity to participate in an attack by a mounted rifle platoon.

The Special Subjects Department's Leadership Committee will run the cadets through the leaders' reaction course.

Shows Ability

This course, which is usually given to members of the officer candidate and infantry officer's courses, gives the young officer, or potential officer, a chance to show his leadership ability by providing provocative situations. Each situation is designed so that its successful completion depends upon ingenious solution in a prescribed period of time.

As non-participating observers, they are scheduled to witness and infantry tank task force in attack and a reinforced rifle company in defense.

A dance is slated for the cadets Friday tonight. Most of Saturday and Sunday will be free time. Departure is scheduled for 7:30 a.m. Monday.

Matches

persive the 39 individual and team matches scheduled this year in which marksmen from a dozen major Army commands will take part."

These commands represented will include the six continental area commands, the Seventh Army Command of Europe, the Army's Air Defense command, the Military District of Washington, the Alaskan Command, the Caribbean Command, and the Pacific Command.

All shooters are competing for selection to the All-Army Team as well as for trophies in this competition which lasts through June 15.

Flag

ner Group, the event will feature an address by Lt. Gen. Walter K. Wilson, chief of the Corps of Engineers.

The anniversary of the founding of the Army in 1775 is celebrated each year on June 14. The date is also designated each year on June 14. The date is also designated each year as Flag Day by the President of the United States.

The Continental Congress passed a resolution establishing the "Stars and Stripes" June 14, 1777. The Army had been established two years earlier when on June 14, 1775, Congress voted to raise 10 companies of riflemen.

The bill also provided for a committee to prepare regulations for the Army.

The story of the origin of the National flag parallels the history of the young Nation. The "Stars and Stripes" adopted in 1777 reflect the varied heritage of the early Americans.

From the star worshippers of ancient Egypt and Babylon to the starred or striped banners of modern countries, these two symbols have represented man's aspirations and hopes for a brighter future.

The resolution establishing the "Stars and Stripes" did not specify the actual design of the flag. The 13 stars for the 13 colonies were arranged in varied patterns on a blue field.

The first Army flag, known as the Betsy Ross flag, had the stars arranged in a circle to indicate equality of position within the Union.

The pattern of stars has changed through the years to accommodate the growth of the Nation, the blue field now proudly displaying the stars of 50 States.

CG's Message Praises LAAC

Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center, recently extended congratulations to members of Lawson Army Aviation Command on the occasion of Unit Day.

"Your personnel have displayed enthusiasm and ingenuity and have demonstrated a high degree of efficiency and skill in performing the numerous missions assigned to your command," Gen. Harrell said in his letter to Col. C. L. Hankins, LAAC commanding officer.

"The support you have furnished has been of substantial assistance in accomplishing The Infantry Center mission," Gen. Harrell continued.

Freedom Holds Sway Where the Flag Flies

Can any man or woman in the service see it rise in the morning light and descend in the evening to the hugler's notes without feeling a sense of its beauty as a symbol? Generations have worked and fought and died that its original 13 stars might multipy to 50. And as it flew over them, so it shines for us and for free men everywhere as the embodiment of the liberty to which men throughout history have aspired.

Our flag — this June 14 as in past years we honor it, for on that date 185 years ago it was adopted by the Continental Congress. By seeing it in "the rockets' red glare" Francis Scott Key was inspired to write our National Anthem, and in our own time the greatest Yankee Doodle dandy of them all, George M. Cohan, set the country to whistling "It's a Grand Old Flag" and meaning every note of it.

Ask any WWII veteran who was on Corregidor what it feels like to see the Stars and Stripes dragged down by an exultant enemy—for no veteran of Bataan will ever forget May 6, 1942, when our resistance ended. Nor will the troops who in February of 1945 fulfilled Gen. MacArthur's pledge to return forget the sight of the flag rising triumphantly in vindication of dead and captive Americans.

"The emblem of our unity, our power, our thought and purpose as a nation," Woodrow Wilson called it. "We celebrate the day of its birth; and from its birth until now it has witnessed a great history, has floated on high the symbol of great events, of a great plan of life worked out by a great people." Almost half a century of great events since Wilson's Flag Day message of 1917 have given his words new luster. (AFPS)

The Judge Says . . .

Have you audited your personal checking account this month?

The issuance of a so-called "bad" check is a serious matter and is considered an act below the standards of conduct prescribed for military personnel. The person who writes such a check must establish some fault on the part of the person, to whom the check is written, or on the part of some subsequent holder of the check in order for him to defend himself on the check he wrote. This fault of the other persons may consist of such circumstances as undue delay in cashing the check, of carelessness on the part of the bank in handling or recording deposits, or of alteration of the check by a third person.

Because you are mistaken in the amount of cash you have on deposit is not, in itself, a criminal act when it results in a check's being returned to the cashing agency for insufficient funds. It does, however, cause trouble for the bank and cashing agency, a great deal of embarrassment to you, and loss of confidence in you by all concerned, as well as extra cost to the payee. You will eventually find yourself in the same situation as the shepherd boy who cried "Wolf" when there was none, and eventually when there was a wolf and he cried, no one would believe him, and so the wolf ate up all his sheep.

A check, like any other written instrument upon which you sign your name, is good only insofar as is your word as a man and as a member of the United States Armed Forces. Your word will generally be accepted by the civilian public until proven to be false, and then, it reflects not only upon the individual, but also upon the Armed Forces he represents.

When a check issued by military personnel assigned to Fort Benning is returned by the bank to the cashing agency, the individual is notified through his major unit commander. The unit commander will get the check and issue the agency a receipt. The Adjutant General's Section will then conduct an investigation pertaining to the surrounding circumstances and contact the individual's unit company commander in order to bring the matter to his attention.

In the severe cases when an individual cashes checks on nonexistent or insufficient funds, he may be subject to non-judicial punishment under Article 15 by his unit commander. In repeated instances he may be subject to a summary, special, or

The Totalitarian Attack on Liberty

Anti - Democratic and anti-libertarian ideas were in the air long before the appearance of Mussolini and Hitler. Both fascism and nazism, as well as communism, drew heavily upon the ideas of a German professor, Georg W. F. Hegel, who taught philosophy, until his death in 1831, at the University of Berlin.

Hegel extolled the state as the supreme power on earth, and held that citizens exist for the glory of the state rather than the state for the good of the citizens. Of course this view was the exact opposite of the idea that the purpose of the state is to promote "the greatest happiness of the greatest number."

The Hegelian philosophy had a wide influence upon the Prussian military autocracy and the founding of the German Empire in 1871. It also inspired Marx and Engels, the founders of communism, as well as Mussolini, the founder of fascism.

Communism

Totalitarianism was destroyed in Italy and in West Germany as a result of the Allied victory in WWII. Paradoxically, in the Soviet Union, the war strengthened rather than weakened totalitarianism.

Communist totalitarianism has many similarities with, and numerous differences from, fascism and nazism. The latter have been thoroughly discredited since WWII. Now they have little more than limited nuisance value even in those areas of the world where once they had great effectiveness and widespread acceptance.

Communist propagandists frequently try to pin the brand of "Fascist" or "Nazi" on ideas, programs and personalities of the free world they particularly oppose in order to create a feeling of hostility against them.

Communism is the greatest threat to human freedom in the modern world. Paradoxically, communism promises workers more freedom than anyone enjoys in the United States or Great Britain or any other democracy.

But before they can attain these liberties, according to Communist doctrine, workers and peasants must pass through the stage of the dictatorship of the proletariat. When all classes, save workers and peasants, have been destroyed and when socialism has been transformed into communism, the dictatorship will be dissolved and the state will "wither away" and disappear. In this last happy stage, associations of workers will manage all production, distribution and consumption of economic goods, and there will be no restriction of personal freedom.

Communism, in both theory and practice, has been more destructive of human liberty than any other totalitarian system. But the theory of communism is so permeated with philosophic tricks, and the practice is so completely camouflaged by this spurious philosophy, that mil-

CHAPLAIN'S CORNER

What Is Religion?

By Chaplain (Maj.) Clement P. J. Krug

Religion is living a life according to the laws of God found in nature and revelation.

Religion is not a mood or a state of mind. It is that which permeates every act of a human being, giving each act direction toward the fullfilment and the perfection of man in this world and in the next world.

Religion seeks the highest possible truths by which man is to live. These truths can be found scientifically and philosophically by man's own intellectual ability and also by man's humble assent to revelation which is God's information to man expressed in the Bible.

With the practice of the combination of both these sets of truths (never in conflict) will man find the highest possible peace in this world.

History, the experience of mankind in the past, gives ample evidence that those who conform to these truths obtain this peace personally, socially and internationally.

Many naturally ask: "What is the truth?"

Truth is far more simple and obvious than one is willing to admit. It is nothing more than the agreement of the mind with reality. A wall is a wall. One sees it. It is real. One knows by experience he cannot walk through it. The simple truth is that the wall is an obstacle one by nature cannot permeate.

If one is blind he does not see it. If he does not see it, he does not have the right to say it is not there. Even the blind man cannot walk through a wall. It is not of the nature of man.

When one talks about truths religion fastens, one is talking about truths or realities men must live by.

Not to be religious, i. e., not to seek the highest possible truths that engender peace and happiness among men, is to be mediocre in living.

Mediocrity is the curse of all ages. Man never reaches his goal in this life. This is an obvious truth. If the goals are mediocre, man never reaches mediocrity and ends up with less!

Is this why so many are so unhappy and restless? How many really give religion an honest try!

SURGEON SAYS

Sunburn Dangerous

By Capt. Leonard F. Greenberg, MC

On these hot, humid days, more and more people are taking to the great outdoors seeking relief from the heat.

Sunshine is beneficial, as we all know. However, caution and moderation must be exercised at all times. Overexposure can be painful, sometimes crippling, and even fatal.

Sunburn is caused by overexposure of the skin to the ultra violet rays of the sun. Overexposure to sun causes tiny blood vessels in the skin to dilate, and pigment changes in the skin to occur, thus causing the skin to become red.

As further exposure occurs, more damage is done to the skin. The tissues become injured, swelling of the skin occurs, and blisters may appear. If these blisters are broken, infection can occur.

Sunburn has the same general effects on the body as any other type of burn. If severe, damage to the kidneys may occur.

Severe sunburn causes great discomfort, and in many cases complete bed rest is required for days, incapacitating the working man and curtailing the summer fun of all.

Since different skins contain different degrees of natural protection, no single rule can be made which will dictate the amount of sun one can take.

Persons with tender skin (fair-skinned, redheads, and/or ruddy complexion) must be doubly careful, especially when swimming or in boats, since the sun's rays are increased by reflection from the water.

Although most commercial sunburn - protective preparations and sunglasses give some protection, the best rule is to know how much sun you can take without being burned, and limit yourself to that amount. The first exposure should not exceed 15 minutes.

Many people think that sunburn can occur only on bright days, and that a tan prevents further burning. This is false! Dull, cloudy days, particularly at a beach, are deceptively hazardous. Tanning may hide sunburn, but it does not prevent it.

Caution should be observed when purchasing lotions and creams for the prevention of sunburn. Some of them can be irritating to the skin, and may cause allergic reactions.

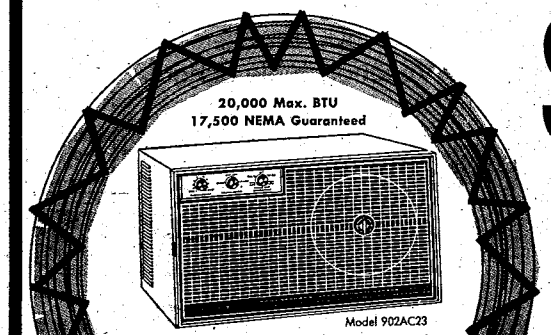
First Aid Treatment

1. Wash hands thoroughly before applying medication.

2. Coat the burned area with an antiseptic or anesthetic ointment. This relieves pain and may also prevent the damaged skin from drying out and cracking. Any ointment so used should be of the type that is readily washed off.

3. Drink a lot of fluids. This will help to eliminate some of the poisonous substances which may accumulate in the body as a result of severe sunburn.

4. Do not break any blisters that may occur. This can cause infection.



5. Aspirin or similar medication will be helpful in relieving general discomfort.

6. If you have a severe case of sunburn, seek medical attention.

Remember, it is better to be safe than sorry. Do not subject yourself to long periods of exposure to the sun. When in doubt about prevention or treatment of sunburn, consult your physician.

NCO Wives Install Slate Of Officers for 1962-63

By Marianne Kelly

Members of the NCO Wives of Fort Benning attended a candle light supper at Crain Hall recently to observe the installation of new officers.

Seated at the head of the horseshoe-shaped table were outgoing as well as newly-elected officers of the club.

After a steak dinner, Mrs. Laurie Rentrop gave an account of all the doings during the past year.

Mrs. Floyd Hightower, parliamentarian for the club, installed the new slate of officers.

They are: Mrs. Robert Lamb, president; Mrs. William Krilling, first vice president; Mrs. Claude Valentine, second vice president; Mrs. Rocco Di Lorenzo, secretary; Mrs. Othon Valent, treasurer, and Mrs. George Boothe, assistant treasurer.

Mrs. Raymond Faust, outgoing president, was presented with a gift from the members of the club.

A special thanks went to the committee in charge of the gala affair. Committee members were Mrs. Valent, Mrs. Krilling and Mrs. Di Lorenzo.

Over 500 Enrolled For Vacation Bible School

More than 500 boys and girls have already enrolled for the 1962 Vacation Bible School to be conducted on post June 11 through 20.

With additional enrollments received daily at the Religious Education Center, Bldg. 2606, and those expected to enroll on the opening day, the school is expected to go above the 1,000 mark.

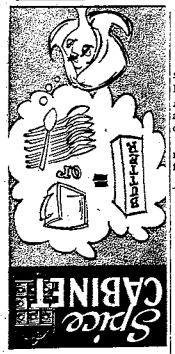
The Bible school, open to children from age three through the eighth grade, will be conducted from 8:30 to 11 a.m. June 11 through 15 and 18 through 20.

The program of activities in each of 15 departments has been geared to the needs and interests of the various age groups.

Among special attractions planned for the teenage groups are films, lessons in good grooming and talks by a psychologist.

Mrs. T. M. Day of Columbus, will discuss "The Christian Teenage Girl and Good Grooming."

Teenage boys will hear a presentation by Capt. Jack H. Scott, a clinical psychologist at Martin Army Hospital.



Chaplain for the Bible School will be Chaplain (Col.) Silas E. Decker, The Infantry Center Chaplain.

The director will be Mrs. John L. Waldrop of Columbus, director of Religious Education for TIC Chaplain Section. Mrs. Thomas K. Goodman will act as principal.

The Post's annual Vacation Bible School embraces five Sunday Schools. They are the two Fort Benning Protestant Sunday Schools — Main Post and Sand Hill — the Spanish Protestant Sunday School, St. Michael's Episcopal and Lutheran Sunday Schools.

Know Your Senior NCOs

PAZ

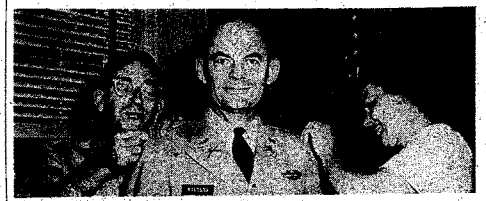
MSgt. (E-8) Isaac Paz of the First Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, is battalion operations sergeant.

Among his numerous duties, assisting the S-3 Officer is the most important but by no means his only job.

Besides being in charge of daily training, he has the responsibility of coordinating The Infantry School Commitments with the seven assigned or attached Companies of the Battalion.

After screening the commitments he sends the necessary information to the troop requirements, transportation and company training NCOs for final processing.

When these duties have been completed he manages to find time to file and record all of the Battalion's incoming and outgoing correspondence.



Reared in Anesco, Puerto Rico, Paz entered the Army there at Fort Buchanan and was soon on his way to the Panama Canal Zone for basic training. He remained there as a member of the 777th Quartermaster Battalion until 1947.

Being fluent in both Spanish and English, he was transfered to the Command and Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kan. as an interpreter. After serving his tour of duty there he again returned to Panama, this time with the 65th Infantry Regiment. He accompanied the Unit when it was shipped to Korea as part of the famed Third Infantry Division.

In 1951 he returned home to Puerto Rico for assignment with the 296th Infantry Regiment. Paz spent a four of duty in Germany with the 2nd Battle Group, 4th Infantry before beig transferred to his present assignment with the 58th Infantry.

Included among his many awards is the Silver Star.

He presently resides in Columbus with his wife, Julia, and son, Victor.

NEW COLONEL . . . Col. Warren E. Walters, chief of the Small Arms Division, The Infantry Board, has the silver eagles of a colonel pinned on his shoulders during recent promotion ceremonies here. Doing the pinning are Col. William M. Summers, president of The Infantry Board, and Mrs. Walters.

Reservists Arrive Here

The first group of 10,900 National Guard and Army Reservists who will train here this summer arrived last Sunday.

Members of the 479th Ordnance Company, an Army Reserve unit from Clarksdale, Miss., will participate in two weeks of training, during which they will receive instructions from The Infantry Center Ordnance Section.

TOP CHAPLAIN GRAD . . . Chaplain (Capt.) John D. Logan (C) of the 151st Engineer Group, is shown after receiving a plaque for being honor graduate of The Army Chaplain School. Flanking him are Maj. Autrey J. Maroun (L), office of the deputy chief of personnel, Department of the Army, and Chaplain (Col.) Charles E. Brown Jr., commandant of the Chaplain School.

Engineer's Chaplain Is Top Graduate

Chaplain (Capt.) John D. Logan, chaplain of the 151st Engineer Group, has returned from the Army Chaplain School as the Career Course Honor Graduate.

Chaplain Logan had a 92.8 average, the highest score of the 34 officers attending the course. He was awarded a special plaque by the Association of the U. S. Army for being honor graduate.

The Chaplain School is located at Fort Slocum, N.Y., and is commanded by Chaplain (Col.) Charles E. Brown Jr. The Chaplain Career Course lasts 17 weeks and covers all Army Career Course Common Subjects besides those of chaplain affairs.

Chaplain Logan graduated from Gettysburg College in 1952 with a B.A. He later received a B.D. (Bachelor of Divinity) degree in church history from the Lutheran Gettysburg Seminary.

He came to the 151st Engineer Group in September, 1961, and has been serving the engineer family ever since.

Chaplain Logan is married and has two children, Douglas, 6, and Katherine, 5 weeks, who was born while he was away at school.

T.V.

The following message was sent to Army Aviation commanders by Gen. Herbert Powell, Continental Army Command commander, on the occasion of Army Aviation's anniversary:

"On behalf of my command I salute Army Aviation on its 29th anniversary.

"While this Army activity is stripling in years, it stands tall in its mission of supporting the ground soldier, the focal point of all Army effort.

"Army Aviation has taken a giant stride forward in its two short decades. The beginnings were humble — a few artillery pilots flying 70-mile-an-hour cub spotting planes.

"Today, Army Aviation has developed into a potent, versatile organization of professional ground soldiers with wings. Their knowledge and skill and the tools at their disposal—300-knot combat surveillance aircraft, sizable transports which can live in the field with the troops! Armed aircraft, air cavalry — give them ground - soldier support capabilities ranging the spectrum of warfare.

"Army Aviation will have an ever increasing role as our ground forces move toward complete mobility in enhancing the capability of the Army to perform its vital missions.

"Speaking as a ground soldier who is privileged to wear the Army Aviator's wings I can say that I am mighty proud of my association with those whose motto is "Above the best."

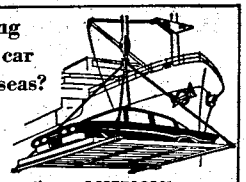
10th Artillery Organization Is Celebrated

In celebrating the 45th anniversary of the 10th Artillery on June 1st, personnel of the 2nd Howitzer Battalion, commanded by Lt. Col. Wallis E. McClain, participated in numerous competitive events with Battery B, commanded by Capt. Jack H. Percival, taking top honors to win the Organization Day Trophy.

Also included in the day's events were an open house, displays of weapons and equipment, and a baseball game featuring the 10th Artillery "Redlegs" and the 156th Signal Battalion.

Presentation of individual awards earned during Organization Day competition and the coveted Organization Day Trophy was made by Col. McClain at Gowdy Field prior to the ball game.

The baseball game ended in a 5-1 victory for the "Redlegs".



Taking part with the 10th Artillery in its celebrations were Col. Richard W. Keyes, 1st Infantry Brigade commander; Col. William A. Todd Jr., Martin Army Hospital commander; Col. Stuart "M. Mitchell, Post Dental Section; Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Roy D. Hidy, 1st Infantry Brigade Chaplain; Lt. Col. Norman Shapira, Command and Staff Department, TTS; and Lt. Col. James E. Echols Jr., a former battalion commander now with The Artillery Committee.

Takes Command Of Rifle Company

1st Lt. George Burt has succeeded 1st Lt. James H. Weaver as commander of Company C, 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry. Lt. Weaver is scheduled to attend flight school.

Lt. Burt received the green leadership tabs from MSgt. Henry Boggs on taking over the command.

515th Trans Company Returns Here After 9 Weeks on Florida Exercise

The 515th Transportation Company, 39th Transportation Battalion, The Infantry Center, Troop Command has returned from nine weeks of participation in Exercise "Spring LOTS", 1962.

This logistical, over - the-shore exercise is conducted annually by the Army Transportation Command, Gulf, New Orleans, La., and was held this year at Saint Joseph Spit near Port Saint Joe, Fla.

The primary mission of the 515th Transportation Company was to transport the 354th and 394th Tranportation Battalions and maneuver support personnel to and from Camp Leroy Johnson, La., and Port Saint Joe. Support at the maneuver site consisted of ration distribution from Tyndall Air Force Base, Fla.; ordinance parts resupply hauls from Camp Leroy Johnson, and other administrative trips.

During this exercise the vehicles of the 515th Transportation Company were driven a total of 354,397 vehicle miles, and 1,811,000 passenger miles with only one minor accident. There were no injuries to personnel or any damage to government equipment.

The drivers received experience in driving in sand and in transportation of vehicles and supplies over water by LCM's (Landing Craft Mechanized) in addition to convoy operations over congested highways.

Upon the 515th's return, the unit was greeted with a "Welcoming Ceremony."

Words of praise and appreciation for a job well done were spoken by both Col. John H. Lattin, commanding officer of TIC, TC, and Lt. Col. Gus A. Wolman, Commanding Officer of the 39th Transportation Battalion.

Re-Up Honors Are Taken By Engineer Co.

The 586th Engineer Company (Float Bridge) won the 151st Engineer Group re-enlistment award for May. The 586th had the most re-enlistments in the group this month.

The award is a plaque given monthly by the engineer group to the company with the best reenlistment rate. This award has developed keen competition among companies and has increased the reenlistment rates for the 151st Engineers.

The plaque will be presented by Col. S. Y. Coker, commanding officer of the 151st Engineers to 1st Lt. Peter Strzok, commander of the Bridge Company, when Lt. Strzok returns from school at Fort Belvoir.

Matches Are Benefit To Each Army Firer

By MSgt. Charles A. Quinn

The approximately 900 marksmen competing in the Army's 1962 shooting championships here are but a fraction of its members who benefit from its annual cycle of marksmanship competition.

Lt. Col. Edgar S. Burroughs Jr. recently said additional thousands of Army members are better marksmen because of the competitive training received.

"The men now here at Fort Benning are those who have been sifted out through eliminations which commenced last October," the colonel explained, "and progressed from unit-level matches through battalion or battle group on up through post and division competition to their present positions as representatives of their respective Army areas."

Commenting on the objectives of the week-long competition, Col. Burroughs said they were far from the matter of finding out who could out shoot whom.

"Competitive - type activities have been found by CONARC (Continental Army Command) to be the best vehicles for approach to its annual marksmanship training objectives," the match director said.

He then cited several of the Continental Army Command's training targets.

"Trophies won add to individual morale and spur competition," Col. Burroughs added, "but they are secondary to the main reasons for CONARC's conduct of the huge annual program."

He said championships were actually final tests of individual progress in shooting skill, advancement in arms and munitions, training and coaching techniques, and a score of other phases of combat proficiency.

"For example," the director said, "we find the roster of our 1962 championships shows a large number of younger marksmen have reached the peak of Army competition."

This revealed, he stated, a growing interest in competitive shooting by young firers who once stood little chance against a hard core of old timers.

"The CONARC rule that each year's competition must see of least 50 per cent new shooters at each level of competition has opened the door wide for them," Col. Burroughs said.

Another revealing trend noted this year, he continued, is the extreme interest of Army riflemen in the combat-type Infantry Trophy Team Match.

That the riflemen are aware of CONARC's promotional requirements concerning combat proficiency could not be better expressed in any other way, he said.

Two Are Awarded Sr. Aviator Wings

Two members of Lawson Army Aviation Command were recently awarded Senior Aviator Wings.

They are Capt. Billie A. Davidson, assistant S-3 for Lawson Command, and CWO Homer A. Allison, a pilot with the 222nd Transportation Company.

Complete Sergeant Test Fire

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Final research and development firing of the Army's Sergeant ballistic missile system has been completed.

Future firing of Sergeant will be conducted by Army troops and test personnel for proof of characteristics, to check quality of production line missiles, and to train Army combat units in use of the missile system.

The solid fuel Sergeant, already in production, is being readied to replace the Corporal missile which uses liquid propellants and requires more time to check out and fire.

Sergeant is a more mobile system and can be set up and fired under adverse conditions of weather and terrain by a smaller crew than needed for the Corporal. Its inertial guidance system makes Sergeant immune to known countermeasures.

25 Volunteer Workers Capped In Recent Ceremonies at MAH

Twenty-five volunteer Staff Aides, Nurses Aides and Gray Ladies were capped in recent ceremonies at Fort Benning's Martin Army Hospital.

The ceremony was conducted in the American Red Cross Recreation Hall at the hospital.

Officiating at the capping was Lt. Col. L. Marguerite Lines, chief of Nursing Service. Mrs. Robin Montgomery, volunteer co-chairman, pinned the graduates with emblems of their chosen service.

In a welcome address to the graduates, Col. Morris E. Brackett, deputy commander of the hospital, said, "The people you will be helping are your Army neighbors."

Col. Dale D. Dixon, G-4 of The Army Infantry Center, delivered the graduating address.

Presiding at the ceremony was Mrs. William Summers, chairman of volunteer services.

Harry McCulloh of Columbus, American Red Cross field director on the post, officially welcomed the volunteers to the organization, while B. F. Young of Columbus, vice chairman of the Muscogee County chapter, presented certificates.

Young also presented certificates of appreciation to volunteers with 200 or more hours of service and chevrons for years of service.

Chaplain (Major) James B. Blunk of Rusk, Texas, hospital chaplain, gave the invocation and pronounced the benediction.

MSgt. Frank G. Hardin played the organ during a reception following the capping.

Mrs. Eugene A. Doerfler served as chairman of the arrangements committee for the ceremony.

The graduates included Staff Aides, Mrs. Bobby W. Berry, Mrs. Roger Craddock, Miss Mary E. Detorres, Mrs. E. W. Duskin, Mrs. Robert R. Jackemeyer, Mrs. Anthony C. Potenza, Mrs. Richard Smith and Mrs. Harry T. McDaniel.

Nurses Aides, Mrs. Charles G. Gagliano, Mrs. Richard B. Lansing, Mrs. F. E. Mead, Mrs. Freddie Lee Neal, Mrs. Paul W. Orvis, and Mrs. Louis P. Paiumbo.

AUSA Membership Drive Is Launched at Luncheon

The Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning Chapter of the Association of the U. S. Army began its annual civilian membership drive with a luncheon recently at the Fort Benning Country Club.

Among the more than 50 members and guests present were Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center; Carl L. Patrick, chairman of the local membership committee, and Ernest W. Higgins, president of the local chapter.

Organized in 1950, the association has grown to about 70,000 members in 124 chapters on an Army-wide basis and 64 Reserve Officer Training Corps units. The local chapter has some 1,700 members among civilian and military personnel.

In the past 12 years an industrial membership program has been an integral part of the AUSA. Each of the 81 business concerns affiliated with the association may provide annual membership for 50 persons at a yearly cost of $1,000.

In outlining the goal of the AUSA, Gen. Harrell said, "The association's purpose includes informing the American people of the fundamental facts pertaining to national security and the dissemination of information relating to the proper position of the military profession and the opportunities of those who pursue a military career."

He added, "The association will actively foster public understanding and support of the U. S. Army."

After the luncheon, a film, "There is No Easy Way," was shown. In the movie which showed U. S. Army battle scenes, Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, former U. S. Army chief of staff, declared, "We of the Association of the U. S. Army say there is no easy way to victory. We stand for a U. S. Army that is strong in its convictions."

Oral Polio Vaccine Set For Military

The Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force plan to use the new Sabin oral polio vaccine starting next fall.

The new vaccine will replace the injectable, inactivated (killed) Salk vaccine, which proved highly effective in preventing paralytic poliomyelitis during its seven years of use by the Armed Forces.

The Sabin vaccine is easier to administer to large groups of people, because it can be swallowed, thus eliminating the necessity of injection by needle or jet injector apparatus.

Given by mouth, the attenuated (weakened) live polio viruses in the vaccine multiply in the intestines, causing a state of local resistence to develop in the gastrointestinal tract.

Upon subsequent exposure to naturally occurring polio viruses (wild viruses), this resistance limits or prevents their intestinal multiplication. Polio antibodies, or those substances produced by the body to protect against specific disease infections, develop quickly as a sequel to the gastrointestinal infection.

Because of this rapid development of serum antibody as well as gastro-intestinal resistance, the attenuated polio-virus vaccine may be used during an epidemic of poliomyelitis to prevent further spread of the wild virus.

According to the schedule of application, those who will receive the new vaccine are military and civilian personnel and their dependents traveling overseas under Armed Forces auspices, and personnel entering the Armed Forces.

Military personnel and their dependents who are now stationed at stateside posts will receive polio vaccines according to the local civilian health schedule of administration. Those who have already received the inactivated poliomyelitis vaccine may be given the oral vaccine.

All three types of the new vaccine will be administered. Type I is administered by placing a few drops on a lump of sugar or in liquid solution. About a month later types II and III are administered simultaneously. A month after that, a combination of all three types is given.

PROCTER & GAMBLE

Offers Management Opportunities in Advertising-Marketing

If you are a college graduate interested in beginning a career in Advertising-Marketing Management when you return to civilian life, we believe that Procter & Gamble offers advantages unexcelled by any other organization.

Advancement on Merit Basis Alone

Promotion with us is on the basis of merit, rather than seniority. Our rapidly expanding business constantly generates new opportunities to move ahead, and we always promote from within. No other organization, anywhere, offers greater opportunity for advancement on the basis of merit alone.

Training is Pointed at Rapid Development

Experience is not necessary. You will be trained on the job by highly qualified and experienced people who will take a personal interest in your early growth because the rapid development of young management talent is a major concern with P&G.

Early Responsibility in Challenging Work

As a result of this emphasis on early growth, men in their 20's are commonly handling major responsibilities in our Advertising Department, with even greater responsibility an early possibility.

Advertising-marketing is a vital function with us, covering a broad range of activities and products. You will find such work at P&G to be unusually stimulating and personally rewarding.

A Climate of Management Excellence

The American Institute of Management has, for ten consecutive years, named P&G as among the best managed firms in the country. The business practices that led to this distinction will be part of your career training in our Advertising Department.

Your Academic Background

Your college degree can be in business, science, liberal arts, or engineering, but you must have an academic record of accomplishment and be able to show evidence of personal leadership and achievement.

These are unusual career opportunities for the right man. Whether or not your service exit is imminent, write us if you are interested. Your letter will get prompt attention. Address:

MOCK TANK PLAYS SITTING DUCK AT 'CLEAR LAKE'
One of Many Engineered Targets for Air Force Bombers

Clear Lake Targets

Wooden Tanks 'Defend'

Squads of 9th Infantry "Manchumen" formed a defense for the attack of 38th Infantry Troops, Air Force fighter planes, and Paratroopers of the 503rd Airborne Battle Group at Exercise CLEAR LAKE.

Their support consisted of three "tanks" and two "artillery" pieces ready for action.

A closer look by the enemy might have revealed the fact that these "big guns" were actually constructed of wooden frames with cloth and stovepipe cannon to complete the effect.

Over 70 such pieces were constructed through the joint efforts of the 9th Infantry and the 2nd Engineer Battalion to add realism and create problems for the attacking forces. There were also mock armored personnel carriers, mortar implacements, and truck convoys which were used as targets for the live fire maneuvers of Exercise CLEAR LAKE at Eglin Air Force Base, Florida.

Brig. Gen. A. A. Lipscomb and Staff See Ranger Training, River Crossing

Deputy Commanding General of the XVIII Airborne Corps, Brigadier General Andrew A. Lipscomb and his staff arrived at Lawson field Wednesday afternoon to visit the 2nd Infantry Division.

Members of General Lipscomb's party included Colonel Paul F. Smith, Colonel Gus S. Peters, Colonel Ernest P. Lasche, Lieutenant Colonel Arnec Christiansen, Lieutenant Colonel Woodrow Shrawder, Lieutenant Colonel Paul J. Godisman and Lieutenant Ronald C. Baldwin.

The Corps general staff officers were treated to a full round of activities yesterday. An Honors Ceremony was held at 7:30 a.m. at the division parade field followed by a command post exercise conducted by the 122nd Signal Battalion.

Elements of Division Trains demonstrated medical proficiency testing for the group. Range training by the 7th Cavalry was observed next by the officers.

The 87th Infantry was then observed in counter - guerilla training. After seeing rail movement training by the 12th Transportation Battalion, the morning activities were concluded.

That afternoon the group watched the 2nd Engineer Bn. construct a bridge and raft during a unit alert. At Upatoi Creek the officers observed the 23rd Infantry in wet net training.

The officers then advanced to the armor training site and saw operations on the miniature tank crew proficiency course with the 69th Armor participating in the training. At the artillery firing range, the Corps officers observed the 27th Artillery training for a fire mission.

Later that afternoon a rifle company alert was demonstrated by the 87th Infantry, and then the group moved to Lawson field to observe the 2nd Division units returning from Exercise CLEAR LAKE.

Today's activities includes a visit to a Main Post unit this morning. This afternoon the staff group will receive a critique before their departure for Fort Bragg, North Carolina.

Special Forces Request Volunteers Command Letters Sent to Div Units

Command letters requesting Special Forces volunteers have recently been distributed to 2nd Division units by the Adjutant General's office.

While all enlisted ranks in any Military Occupation Specialty will be encouraged to volunteer for Special Forces, specific recruiting efforts are being directed toward those men qualified in the following fields:

911, Medical Specialist; 051, Intermediate Radio Operator; 063, Radio Teletype Operator; 113, Infantry Operations and Intelligence Specialist; 112, Heavy Weapons Infantryman; 111, Light Weapons Infantryman; 121, Combat Engineers; 768, General Supply Specialist.

Applications for assignment to Special Forces must be forwarded to 2nd Division Headquarters, ATTN: AG-MPM.

The first special force, organized in 1942, was specially trained in demolition, skiing, mountain climbing, parachuting, self - preservation, and hand-to-hand combat.

The Special Forces are organized to conduct combat operations within denied areas on a sustained basis. They are trained for unilateral, joint, and combined operations and have the unique capability to integrate with foreign personnel to accomplish important missions. Foreign language training, to the degree of fluency required, is available for certain Special Forces positions.

To qualify one must complete airborne training, pass the Army physical fitness test with a minimum score of 200 points, and have completed at least four months of active military service.

Also, one must qualify for secret security clearance and be able to swim. He must have a minimum of 18 months remaining in his current enlistment at the time of assignment to Special Forces unit or training center, and he must complete the Special Forces Selection Battery Test.

USMA Cadets Observe Live Fire Demonstration by 2nd Inf Div

Cadets from the United States Military Academy were shown a "Mad Minute" demonstration yesterday, and they are being introduced to the action of a mounted rifle platoon in the attack today by elements of the 2nd Infantry Division.

Yesterday, elements from the 87th Infantry, 7th Cavalry and 69th Armor conducted a live fire "Mad Minute" demonstration at Ruth Range. This involved six officers and 164 enlisted men from the 87th Infantry, two armored mortar carriers from 7th Cavalry and five tanks from the 69th Armored.

This morning the cadets observed units from the 13th Transportation Battalion and 69th Armor. They demonstrated the mounted rifle platoon in attack. Twenty armored personnel carriers from the 13th Transportation Battalion and 13 tanks from the 69th Armor took part in the demonstration. The cadets are at Fort Benning on a six-day tour of the post in connection with their summer camp activities.

Spanish Major Sees Company E, 23rd Infantry

By 23rd Inf PIO

Lieutenant Lawrence M. Malone, commanding officer of Company E, 23rd Infantry recently escorted Major Prilidiano Sanchez-Munoz of the Spanish Army on an inspection tour of Company E.

The lieutenant, who is said to be the first American to complete the Spanish Army's Airborne Jump School, served in Spain in 1961. He conducted the Spanish visitor through an inspection of troop billets, supply room and motor pool.

Major Sanchez was assigned to the General's Staff of a mountain division before coming to Fort Benning for a course of instruction with The Infantry School.

Two World War II Buddies Meet While on the Job at 'Clear Lake'

9th Infantry PIO

Exercise CLEAR LAKE was the scene of a long over due reunion for two combat buddies of World War II.

First Sergeant Aleus C. Stokes of Headquarters Company, 9th Infantry and First Sergeant Kelly C. Bath of the 101st Airborne Division met by chance at Site Support Headquarters of the 9th Infantry.

Veterans of 21 years service, the two sergeants met in 1941 at Camp Wheeler, Georgia. They both entered the 504th Airborne Battalion School where Sergeant Stokes was an acting squad leader. The combat Soldiers trained together and were assigned to the 502rd Airborne Regiment in 1942 and sent to England.

Jumped Together

In November 1942 they were the first airborne unit to enter combat. They jumped over North Africa and fought for several months.

Sergeant Stokes made his third combat jump in December 1942 and was captured in North Africa. He spent 53 days behind enemy lines as a prisoner of war until he and several others broke from the camp and made it back on foot 20 miles to their own lines.

During the same period Sergeant Bath made a jump over Salerno and was wounded. They met in Italy for a brief period, but Sergeant Stokes was returned to the States while Sergeant Bath remained to fight the Battle of Baltrino River and the invasion of Anzio. He was wounded twice and returned to the states with a Purple Heart and two clusters, the Silver Star, the Bronze Star, and the Commendation Medal.

In 1944 the two met again at Fort Benning's Airborne School where they were both cadre members. Sergeant Bath then served two tours in Korea with several combat jumps. Sergeant Stokes' career took him to Fort Bragg, North Carolina with the 82nd Airborne Division and back to Fort Benning and assignment with the Military Police Detachment. He went to Japan in 1953 with the 187th Regimental Combat Team and back to Airborne School at Fort Benning in 1955.

The 32nd Infantry, 7th Division in Korea during 1959 was Sergeant Stokes' last assignment before returning to Fort Benning in 1960.

In March 1961 Sergeant Stokes became a member of the "Manchu" 9th and was the First Sergeant of Company A, 9th Infantry, before assignment to Headquarters Company in March of 1962. Sergeant Stokes has been awarded the Combat Infantryman's Badge, Master Parachutist's Badge, and the Bronze Star. Sergeant Bath also wears the Master Parachutist's Badge.

Sergeant Stokes and his wife Catherine reside in Columbus, Georgia and have one son. Sergeant Bath and his wife Pearl reside at Fort Campbell, Kentucky, where he is now stationed, with their three daughters. They are both natives of LaGrange, Georgia.

During Exercise CLEAR LAKE Sergeant Bath was assigned to the Joint Task Force Headquarters as the First Sergeant and Sergeant Stokes remained First Sergeant of Headquarters Company, 9th Infantry.

2nd Engrs Raise Tng Tower Aid

A wooden training tower to be used to prepare troops for amphibious training at Little Creek, Virginia has recently been completed on the northwest bank of Upatoi Creek by the 2nd Engineer Battalion.

The training tower, begun April 23 and completed last week, is built with 20,000 board feet of lumber.

Lieuteuant Kenneth J. Haveman, 2nd Engineer Battalion, was in charge of construction.

The tower training simulates disembarkation from ships into assault craft. Troops climb to the top of the tower by a stairway and then climb down a cargo net to the assault craft, anchored on the stream 35 feet below.

Div Brigade Returns As 'Clear Lake' Ends

Victorious men of the 2nd Infantry Division began returning to Fort Benning Tuesday from Exercise CLEAR LAKE at Eglin Air Force Base, Florida.

For five grueling days 2nd Division troops fought their aggressor enemy there, pushing him in a northeasterly direction from their initial point of entry. With the capture of two key objectives, the training exercise ended and was dubbed complete.

A 40-hour airlift operation moved the 2nd Division Brigade to Eglin last week as they flew in to support men of the 502nd Infantry, 101st Airborne Division, who had parachuted in and had made initial contact with the enemy forces.

Exercise CLEAR LAKE, a U.S. Strike Command-directed training exercise, began May 25. In the play of the exercise Eglin Air Force Base was designated as a "friendly country" that had been threatened militarily and had asked for U.S. aid. Men of the 101st Airborne and 2nd Infantry Division Brigade, located in a "neighboring country," were dispatched to render that aid.

Troops of the 2nd Division fought on both sides in this exercise. Elements of the division's 9th Infantry served as aggressors from the mythical country of Sippia while other elements of the 9th served in a site support capacity, readying the facilities at Eglin and manning them during the exercise.

Exercise CLEAR LAKE was a test of U. S. Strike Command forces and utilized more than 7,000 men. Its purpose was to develop further operational tactics and techniques of the Army and Air Force units involved.

23rd Co. D Gets Kaney As Top Sgt.

By 23rd Inf PIO

The 23rd's newest first sergeant is Gardell K. Kaney, who fills the capacity of first sergeant of the battle group's Company D.

Sgt. Kaney arrived in the battle group in September 1961 and has served as a platoon sergeant with Company C, before going to Company D.

Upon his return from a tour of duty in Hawaii in August 1960, Sgt. Kaney spent a year with the ground mobility department at Main Post as an instructor. He has almost 23 years of active duty to his credit, and his current enlistment expires in October.

A native of Homerville, Georgia, he resides with his wife and one daughter on the Fort Benning reservation.

3 Sergeants Upped to E7

Three sergeants from Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 2nd Division, have recently been promoted to the rank of sergeant first class.

Sergeant First Class Henry F. Brackett, who has been with the chemical section since May 15, 1961, came into the Army in June 1945.

Sergeant First Class John A. Long received his promotion after having been with 2nd Division Brigade since July 18, 1961. He came into the Army June 13, 1955.

Sergeant First Class James A. Rich was with Headquarters Company from December 1959 until October 1961. He served with the 9th Infantry from October 1961 until March 1962, when he returned to Headquarters and Headquarters Company, where he received his promotion. Sergeant Rich has been in the Army since March 1942.

Two Join Signal Bn.

One officer and one noncommissioned officer reported for duty recently with the 122nd Signal Battalion.

Lieutenant Clarke and his wife Barbara reside at Fort Benning with their children.

Cavalry Undergoes 1-Week Ranger Tng

By 7th Cavalry PIO

The 7th Cavalry recently completed a week's training in Ranger Operations, utilizing patrolling and related subjects.

The operation established guidance in Ranger techniques using patrolling and related subjects. The related subjects consisted of classes on survival, hand to hand combat, snake identification, water expedients. Upon completion of the classes the troops conducted a eight-hour patrol problem starting in the afternoon and running into the night. This provided for practical work; day, night patrolling; survival; and other related ranger subjects.

The classes were held in the 7th Cavalry Unit Training Area Six and the problem was conducted in the area west of Moye Road, Ft. Benning.

Snakes and Survival

Lieutenant Vincent V. Elequin, the medical service officer at "Garry Owen" taught classes on snakes and survival first aid. Lt. Elequin has a collection of snakes which he obtained on his travels around Fort Benning and Fort Stewart. He taught the identification of poisonous and nonpoisonous snakes, physiological and biological characteristics and treatment of bites.

Hand to hand combat classes covered the various blows, holds, foot work, arm work, and other maneuvers used to disable or kill the enemy. The classes on survival were given to show the importance of surviving when small units are fighting in widely dispersed areas or on special missions forward of friendly lines.

The use of nature to survive is very important and instructions in animal and vegetation camouflage, first aid and other directional guides were used. Water expedient instruction was created to acquaint patrol members with river or stream crossing expedients. The troops utilized the Upatoi creek which runs behind the 7th Cavalry Unit Training Area Six.

The patrolling class covered the definition of patrols, types of patrols, importance of patrols, methods of patrolling and leaving an objective area, planning and preparation of patrols, and patrol responsibilities.

What followed was a practical exercise. The Troops were brought out, given food and told when to be back. During the problem, they integrated chemical, biological, and radiological training with the ranger subjects.

AWARDED COMMENDATIONS . . . Sergeant Robert J. Baker, left, and Specialist Six Gary F. Staton, both of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 2nd Infantry Division, received Army Commendation Medals recently. The medals were presented by Colonel Gustav M. Bacharach, division chief of staff.

4 Officers, 6 NCOs Get Promotions

27th Artillery

Four officers and six noncommissioned officers of the 27th Artillery were promoted in ceremonies last month.

Receiving the silver bars of first lieutenant were Lieutenants George Reading, Ollie Askew, Frank Miechia and Augustus Burgdorf.

Lieutenants Reading, Askew and Miechia will serve as forward observers. Lt. Burgdorf is assigned as battalion liaison officer.

Promoted to E-7 were the following non - commissioned officers: From headquarters Battery Sergeant First Class Earl Perkins Jr., battalion survey chief; Sergeant First Class Morgan L. Elliot, battalion communications chief; and from Battery B, Sergeant First Class Joseph D. Toomey, chief of firing battery.

Promoted to E-6 were Staff Sergeant Jack C. Hallaran, gun section chief from Battery A. Staff Sergeant Jack L. Haywood, battalion personnel sergeant and Staff Sergeant Gustav H. Sandbeck, Battery B, motor sergeant.

Engineers Set Targets In Florida

Upon arrival at Eglin Air Force Base, Florida, for participation in Exercise CLEAR LAKE, members of Company B, 2nd Engineer Battalion, started immediate building of mock-ups.

These items represented enemy trucks, tanks, many artillery pieces, mortar batteries, armored personnel carriers and other equipment.

These mock-ups were used as targets by the Air Force. Using jets, the air force would fly over the target area, make an aerial reconnaissance to determine the location of enemy equipment, and then return to make another run over the same area, bombing or strafing the spotted location.

87th Inf's Combat Support Co. Builds Impressive Winning Streak

By 87th Inf PIO

No matter what the activity, the soldiers of Combat Support Company, 87th Infantry, have established themselves as the "team to beat."

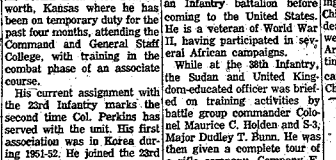
Under the command of Captain John F. Collier, who is assisted by First Sergeant James A. Scott, the company has accumulated an impressive majority of "firsts" in individual honors, training and sports.

At present, Combat Support Company is the holder of the Battle Group Commander's Trophy. This is a semi-annual award given to that company which has the most favorable over-all record in the battle group. Considered are such things as battle group and division soldier of the month winners, athletic participation, inspections and training.

During the recently completed Expert Infantryman competition, Combat Support Company produced more winners than any other single company in the division. Including the company commander, 32 men won the award. Moreover, the company's assault weapons platoon, under the supervision of Platoon Sergeant Ronald L. Green, constructed the EIB test area on Kelley Hill that will remain as a permanent training site.

Individual Honors

Monopolizing individual honors, Combat Support Company has produced six of the last eight "Conqueror" Soldiers-of-the-Month. Last year, Sergeant Green was the 87th Infantry's Division Soldier of the Year nominee and Sergeant Kirk Keeney won a Division Soldier of the Month Award. More recently, Sergeant James H. Cain took honors as April's Division Soldier of the Month.



In group projects Combat Support Company is also tops. Every man is a member of the 2nd Division Indianhead Association. "Army Emergency Relief has helped many of our men in the past year," Sergeant Scott reminded, "and the men responded 100 per cent." And so the list goes, Minute Man award for Savings Bonds, most generous contributor to the battle group children's Christmas party and the Red Cross.

Over and above their soldiering ability, the men of Combat Support Company have still not been outdone on the athletic field. The 87th Conqueror championship basketball team had Sergeant Frank Byrd, one of the mortar squad leaders from the company. The current softball team have several C-S starters: Lieutenant Joseph S. Gross III, Specialist Thomas H. Reeves, Private First Class Larry Hall and Specialist Willie Price. Division bowlers will remember Sergeant Scott who recently walked off with top honors in the division roll-off. Lastly, Captain Collier, who coached last year's championship swimming team, won five first place medals to rank as the highest individual scorer in the meet.

What do the men think of these achievements? Captain Collier says, "Of course the men of this unit are exceptionally proud. You can see this in their appearance, bearing and attitude towards their superiors. Whether its Sergeant Sandt coming out top man in the USAIS Davy Crockett Course or of Sergeant Cain winning another SOM award, the spirit of the men is "we are the team to beat." What more can a company commander ask for?"

RED THAN DEAD?

"We and all others who believe as deeply as we do, would rather die on our feet than live on our knees." . . President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

With a Proud History, the 12th Artillery Is Now 45

By 12th Arty PIO

The 2nd Infantry Division's 12th Artillery Thursday celebrated its 45th anniversary.

Organized at Camp Asiahs, Virginia, from the 2nd Battalion, 3rd Field Artillery, the newly created unit was named Battery A, 12th Artillery, an element of the 2nd Infantry Division.

Horse-Drawn

The 12th Artillery during its first years was armed only with a few horse-drawn three-inch guns. Out of this unit came the present day 1st Rocket Howitzer Battalion, 12th Artillery, armed with eight-inch Howitzers and "Honest John" rockets.

The 12th Artillery has a history, dating back to the early days of 1918. On January 10, 1918 the unit sailed on the S.S. Olympia for duty with the American Expeditionary Force, arriving in Liverpool, England on January 18th. Shortly after, it arrived at LeValdocs, France for training. It trained in France until March 18, 1918 when it took to the field in combat.

The standards of the 12th Artillery carry battle streamers for action at Aisne, St. Mihiel, Loraine Aisne-Marne, Meuse - Argonne and Ile-de-France. Here was the beginning of a proud history.

The unit was awarded the Fourragere in the colors of the French Croix de Guerre by the French Minister of War. The insignia includes a single fleur-de-lys in silver, taken from the arms of the city of Soissons where the 12th's most distinguished service won it the award of the Croix-de-Guerre with palm from the French Government; the golden crown on the fleur-de-lys, which is taken from the city of Verdun; a green Aztec war banner on the canton and a field of artillery scarlet.

Following eight months in the United States Army of Occupation in the Coblenz area, the unit shipped with the 2nd Division to Brest and embarked for the United States in late July 1919. For the next 23 years the 12th was stationed at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, where the unit engaged in rigorous field training and defense preparations until the outbreak of World War II.

During World War II in Europe, the 12th Artillery was to earn five battle streamers for action in Normandy, Northern France, Rhineland, Ardennes-Alsace, and Central Europe.

Normandy Assault

During the early morning hours of June 6, 1944, the troops of the 12th Artillery with the Allied invasion force made an assault upon the beaches of Normandy and established a firm beachhead. During the 11 months of combat, the battalion had the distinction of being among the first medium artillery units to establish a foothold on the Normandy beaches. Fighting courageously, the 12th fought from the Normandy beaches, across northern France, the Rhineland, Ardennes-Alsace and on into Central Europe.

Throughout the conflict that followed, the 12th Artillery poured over 80,000 rounds into the enemy lines, contributing greatly to breaking the fighting spirit of the well disciplined German Soldier.

For gallant action shown in the battles of Ardennes and Eisenborn Crest, the battalion was twice cited by the Belgian Army for its performance and courage in the face of powerful German forces.

The unit also gained great recognition for the high standard of maintenance performed on its heavy weapons throughout the period of combat. Nine of the 12 guns initially landed on the Normandy Beaches were still operational at the end of hostilities.

The battalion also abounded in numerous individual awards for gallantry in action and meritorious service performed.

Awards amounting in all to 227 were given to officers and men of the "fighting" 12th." Four Silver Stars were awarded as were 36 Bronze Stars for gallantry in action, 78 Bronze Stars for meritorious service, ten Air Medals and 79 Purple Hearts.

On July 13, 1945, the 12th Artillery left from LeHavre, France to return to the United States, where they were stationed at Camp Swift, Texas. Less than a year later, the 12th moved to California and then on to Ft. Lewis, Washington which remained its home until the outbreak of hostilities in Korea.

From autumn 1946 until it was alerted for Korea, the battalion took part in a series of large-scale maneuvers which prepared it for any further aggression against the freedom loving people of the world.

The year 1950 was to see the 12th Artillery again distinguish itself, this time in a new part of the world — Korea. This marked the third time in its history that the 12th had been called upon to help in defense of free countries. It was to prove to be the greatest test for the battalion.

During the Korean Conflict, Battery A won its second Distinguished Unit Citation for heroism with the 23rd Regimental Combat Team in May 1951. When the combat team, operating as a rear guard, was cut off and surrounded, the cannoneers refused to give ground and stuck with the guns, firing direct fire at the hordes of Chinese Communist forces their deadly accurate fire until they were in the gun positions. The Artillerymen of Battery A continued to fight bravely with carbines and axes until the Chinese were driven back leaving behind an untold number of casualties. The Battery suffered 90 per cent casualties in this heroic action against overwhelming odds.

After Korea, the 12th returned to Fort Lewis, Washington. In 1958 its home became Fort Benning.

Tent Chapel Is Attended At Exercise

By 9th Infantry PIO

The 9th Infantry and Site Support Headquarters for Exercise CLEAR LAKE did not neglect spiritual activities amidst the heat and pressure of the field problem.

Protestant Chaplain (Captain) Horace Sams led the 9th's Site Support Headquarters in daily devotions as well as Sunday services.

Services were held last Sunday in an open tent using the portable altar kit and organ all chaplains have for field duty. Chaplain Sams constructed an altar rail which added to the effectiveness of the service.

Catholic Chaplain (Captain) James D. Dolan also participated in the Site Support religious activities as well as in aggressor maneuvers and the 38th Infantry's operations.

New Lt. Arrives At 7th Cavalry

By 7th Cav PIO

Lieutenant Thomas J. Kaplan, Troop B, 7th Cavalry, recently joined the squadron after graduation from Florida Southern College. Upon his arrival at the "Garry Owen" he was assigned as a platoon leader of Troop B.

Lt. Kaplan finished college as a distinguished military graduate and was offered a regular Army commission, which he accepted. Lt. Kaplan's primary branch is transportation, and he is detailed to Armor. He will attend the Armor Officers' Orientation Course at Fort Knox, Kentucky in August of this year.

Lt. Kaplan calls Winter Haven, Florida his home. He is married and has one child.

Sudanese Col Visits 38th Sees Training

By 38th Inf PIO

A Sudanese Army colonel, a recent graduate of the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, visited the 38th Infantry recently to observe training and take a look at the battle group's equipment and buildings.

Colonel Ghandour S. Muzzamil, due to return to the Sudan about two weeks after his 38th Infantry tour, commanded an Infantry battalion before coming to the United States. He is a veteran of World War II, having participated in several African campaigns.

While at the 38th Infantry, the Sudan and United Kingdom-educated officer was briefed on training activities by battle group commander Colonel Maurice C. Holden and S-3, Major Dudley T. Bunn. He was then given a complete tour of a rifle company, Company E, and observed pistol marksmanship qualification at Gill Range.

Sgt. Aaron Troy Reenlists at Cav

Sergeant Aaron Troy Jr., Troop B, 7th Cavalry has reenlisted for his own vacancy.

In a recent, informal ceremony at squadron headquarters, he was sworn in by Lieutenant Ronald P. Richards, the assistant adjutant. Sgt. Troy is presently serving Troop B as a rifle squad team leader.

Arriving in March 1959, Sgt. Troy came from Company A, 32nd Infantry, in Korea. He was assigned to Troop B as a rifle squad leader and remained in this position until August 1960. He was then transferred to Troop C as cadre to train soldiers. In April 1961, at the completion of basic training cycle, he was transferred back to Troop B where he is presently assigned as a team leader in a rifle squad.

Mass of Rations Mainstay of 9th

Eglin Air Force Base, Florida — If it's true that an army travels on its stomach, then the Infantry and airborne units that participated in Exercise CLEAR LAKE this week were among the best travellers in northwest Florida.

Supplying food for a fighting force was one of the problems which received its share of attention in this training exercise the U. S. Strike Command used to develop further joint air and ground force operational tactics and techniques.

Formidable Supplies

The supply of rations that the Army brought in to feed its men was as formidable as the fire power the Army and Air Force unleashed in a live fire demonstration June 2-3. At "CLEAR LAKE" reached high gear, more than 1,800 hungry troopers had to be fed three meals every day.

One man who was well aware of how much chow a hungry army needed was Specialist Four Orson Matthews of Headquarters Company, 9th Infantry. Specialist Mathews was in charge of ration breakdown for the "Manchus" of the 9th. He received ration requests from the units, consolidated them and turned them over to the Quartermaster.

Surrounded on all sides by piles of ration cartons, Specialist Mathews ticked off an impressive array of food figures, many of which sounded like a month's business at a local supermarket. For example, the Army in Exercise CLEAR LAKE consumed 200 pounds of bacon a day, or four times as much as an average American family of five uses in a year; 900 pounds of Swiss steaks were required for one meal, or six times as much as that average family would eat in a year.

Friday meals at "CLEAR LAKE" required 500 pounds of fish and 1,500 pounds of potatoes a day as compared to the 500 pounds an average family needs in a year; 200 pounds of butter a day, or 50 pounds more than that average family consumes in 365 days; 1,000 dozen eggs were needed, or six times as many dozen as that family would eat in a year; they drank 406 gallons of milk every day as compared with the average family needs of about 150 gallons a year.

When the troopers were in the field, they substituted with C-rations, or field rations in boxed form. A C-ration carton usually includes goodies like hamburger pattieis, beans and franks, chicken and noodles, vegetables, cigarettes, powdered milk, instant coffee, spaghetti, crackers, candy bars and jam.

Digging his can opener into a C-ration can of vegetables, Specialist Mathews said, "The Army got plenty of chow out there. The men were well fed."

7th Cavalry Platoon Ldr To Tex Post

By 7th Cavalry PIO

Lieutenant Garrett O. McRoberts, a platoon leader in Troop B, 7th Cavalry, will depart for Camp Wolters, Texas to attend the Officer Observation Helicopter Aviation Course.

Lt. McRoberts will be on temporary duty at Camp Wolters for five months, and at Fort Sill, Okla. for one month. Upon completion of helicopter school he will return to the squadron and resume duties as platoon leader.

"Garry Owen" McRoberts joined the SENECA SPEAR exercise at Fort Stewart, Georgia after attending the Armor Orientation Course at Fort Knox, Kentucky. He was assigned platoon leader to Troop B and participated in the remainder of Exercise SENECA SPEAR.

Lt. McRoberts also participated in the Reconnaissance Platoon Live Fire exercise conducted at Fort Stewart.

Company B, 69th Armor Promotes 8

By 69th Armor PIO

Eight members of Company B, 69th Armor were promoted recently.

Those men promoted to the rank of Specialist Four were Specialist Four George A. Lane, a tank mechanic from Headquarters Platoon; Specialist Four Leroy Flickinger, wheel-vehicle mechanic also from Headquarters Platoon; Specialist Four Edward Nichols, a gunner from the 1st Platoon.

Also promoted to Specialist Four was Specialist Four Howard Hofstetter, a loader from the 3rd Platoon.

Other promotions include Private First Class Indulis Brickmanis, turret mechanic; Private First Class James Collins, tank driver; Private First Class Kenneth Grisham, loader and Private First Class Ronnie Hannah, driver, all promoted to their present rank.

Notifications of their promotions was given by the company commander, Captain Stephen C. Kovacs, who extended his congratulations to each man.

Two Awards Go To 2nd Div For US Bond Record

The 2nd Infantry Division has won the Army Special Savings Award and the Minuteman Award for a record set in the annual U. S. Savings Bond Drive, completed last week.

The record 47 per cent participation for the 2nd Division in 1961 was brought up to 70 per cent during this year's campaign.

Recognition for 100 per cent participation went to the 12th Artillery.

The 7th Cavalry received the Treasury Department's "Minuteman Flag". This award goes to units of 500 members who have a record of 90 per cent participation. A record of 91.8 per cent was set by the 7th Cavalry.

Cav's Sgt. H. Watkins Is Div's Tactical SOM Title

By 7th Cavalry PIO

Sergeant Hammond D. Watkins, Troop C, 7th Cavalry, was recently selected the Tactical Soldier-of-the-Month.

Sgt. Watkins was selected from among members of the tactical support elements of the division.

Sgt. Watkins entered the Army in May 1953. Since that time he has served both in the Far East and Europe. A graduate of the 7th Army Noncommissioned Officer's Academy, Sgt. Watkins is also a graduate of the Ranger School at Fort Benning. Proficient in many fields, he is used throughout the squadron as an instructor.

Sgt. Watkins is presently a scout squad leader with the 3rd Platoon, Troop C. It is his job to keep the platoon leader informed at all times of the enemy situation and their activity through the use of his two scout squads.

During the Exercise SENECA SPEAR at Fort Stewart, Georgia, Sgt. Watkins took a patrol behind Yellow force lines and returned with many positions and locations of enemy command post and units.

Sgt. Watkins joined "Garry Owen" in August 1960, from Headquarters Company, 2nd Armored Rifle Battalion stationed in Germany.

23rd Infantry Busy Preparing for Virginia Trip

By 23rd Inf PIO

With the aid of the U.S. Navy and the U.S. Marine Corps the 23rd Infantry has been busily preparing for the forthcoming amphibious assault landing exercise scheduled at Little Creek, Virginia.

The group of Navy and Marine Corps officers who assisted the 23rd personnel in setting up plans for the intensified training involved in preparation for the amphibious assault landing was headed by Commodore Nelson P. Watkins, U.S.N., and Major W. F. Young, U.S.M.C.

Also in the group were Lieutenants (Jg) J. E. Evans and D. L. Gothie, U.S.N. Lieutenant Commander G. G. Miller, U.S.N. and Captain D. R. Martin and Lieutenant E. B. Ringley, U.S.M.C.

Personal quide and escort for the group was Lieutenant Clifford H. Burns, from division headquarters.

HUNGARIAN REVOLT

Hungarian revolt against the Soviet-dominated regime began Oct. 23, 1956, and was crushed Nov. 4, 1956 by Soviet armed forces.

Incorporated in the training of the 23rd for the Virginia "beach landing" is the task of familiarizing the infantrymen with the naval tactics and procedures involved in loading equipment and personnel onto the assault vehicles, disembarkation, and unloading of equipment once the landing has been made.

2nd Av. Ladies Attend Friday Lunch Honoring Two Ladies at MOOM

2nd Aviation Company

The Corregidor Room of the Main Officers Open Mess was the scene last Friday of a welcome luncheon for Mrs. John M. Stephens.

Mrs. Albert H. Becker, Mrs. Arlen R. Suddaby and Mrs. James W. Grimes acted as hostesses for the affair. Guests included the ladies of the 2nd Aviation Company.

Presiding over the sherry table were Mrs. James M. Rice and Mrs. Caroll Heape.

A special guest at the event was Mrs. Joseph Sladen Bradley, mother of Mrs. Stephens. Mrs. Bradley is the widow of the late Major General Joseph Sladen Bradley, who was the assistant commander of the 2nd Infantry Division in 1950.

Both Mrs. Stephens and Mrs. Bradley were recipients of white carnation corsages.

A short skit was presented by Mrs. Frank Gundaker, Mrs. Warren E. Griffith and Mrs. David L. Starkey.

The door prizes were won by Mrs. Gundaker, Mrs. Griffith and Mrs. E. M. Kelly.

Hobbies, Coffee Blend Into A Unique Theme For 2nd Avn. Ladies

Twenty-seven ladies attended the "hobby coffee" held by the 2nd Division Aviation Company in the Normandy Room of the Main Officers Open Mess.

Mrs. Eugene F. Kappenman, Mrs. Louis F. Palumbo and Mrs. Robert A. Inglett were hostesses for the occasion.

Mrs. Paul Wickliffe poured at a table set with a white cloth and decorated with a miniature maypole of blue and white. A fresh fruit bowl was the centerpiece.

Each lady attending the coffee brought her hobby to display. Sewing, painting, ceramics and flower arrangements were some few of the hobbies displayed.

Following the social hour, a short business meeting was held.

Mrs. John D. Jenks won the door prize of a wine-colored brandy snifter.

A farewell was said to Mrs. Bruce Stoner, whose husband is soon to return to civilian life.

Costa Rica Her Favorite Says Travel-Loving Wife

Mrs. Maurice C. Holden, wife of Colonel Holden, commander of the 38th Infantry, is the featured personality of this week.

To spark up a lively conversation with Mrs. Maurice C. Holden, just mention Costa Rica, and the petite, brown-haired woman will tell you about the friendly people in that Central American country.

Lorena Holden will also tell you that the Costa Ricans like us very much, and that she and Colonel Holden picked up the local custom there of shaking hands with everyone upon entering or leaving a party or gathering.

Mrs. Holden, who is very enthusiastic about Army life and traveling, lists Costa Rica as her favorite station. When Col. Holden served there as mission chief from July 1957 to June 1960, he and his wife became very close to the Costa Ricans while participating in their social and charitable activities. The Holdens treasure a picture of themselves taken with the Costa Rican president and his wife.

After their tour in Costa Rica Mrs. Holden accompanied her husband to Canada, where he attended the National Defense College. She also joined Col. Holden at Fort Ord, California and in Washington, D. C. when he was assigned to the Pentagon.

A native of San Antonio, Texas, Mrs. Holden believes that the life of an Army wife is most interesting because she is able to see the world and meet so many interesting people, and Mrs. Holden says, "Each place is just better than the last one."

Lorena Holden was graduated from San Antonio Junior College and also from Schmidt's Business College. She worked as both a receptionist and a hygienist before her marriage 11 years ago.

She formerly piloted an airplane, and due to her photogenic facial features, she once worked as a photographer's model. She has been a bit player in a Hollywood movie made in Texas and also has played a part in a children's radio serial.

She likes to paint for relaxation and specializes in oil landscapes. She also enjoys collecting Indianhead pennies and buffalo nickels and is presently taking Spanish lessons.

Besides her activities with the 38th Infantry, Mrs. Holden participates in activities of the 2nd Division, Fort Benning and Protestant Women's Club, works in the Thrift Shop and is secretary of a section of the Main Protestant Chapel Sunday School.

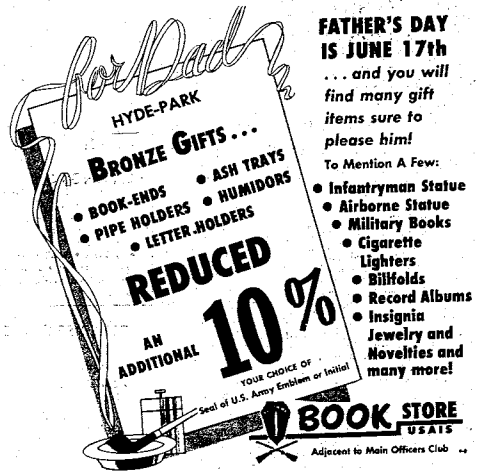
Capt Griffin To Virginia For Training

Capt. George A. Griffin Jr., the S4 (logistics) of the 7th Cavalry, recently departed for Little Creek, Virginia to attend a Staff Officers' Embarkation Course.

The instruction course will consist of familiarizing the student with the techniques of determining the shipping requirements for large combat units and planning the allocation of personnel, supplies, and units or elements for amphibious operations at division and battle group level.

The course will run for three weeks and upon Captain Griffin's return he will resume his duties as Squadron S4.



Captain Griffin has been with the squadron for more than two and one half years. During his tour he has commanded Troop B as aggressor commander during the overseas replacement training, conducted by the battle groups during 1960. He later assumed the position of S4 which he is presently holding.

Since Captain Griffin's assignment as S4 he has changed the supply system to a central control operation run by the S4 section.

Villula Tea Gardens Is Scene Of Luncheon For G-2 Ladies

The G-2 Section of Division Headquarters held a luncheon recently at the Villula Tea Gardens in Seale, Alabama. Mrs. John B. Wine was in charge of the affair.

The event marked the departure of Mrs. Royal Reynolds Jr., wife of the former assistant 2nd Division commander and Mrs. Gustav M. Bacharach, wife of the former 2nd Division chief of staff. Both were presented with silver Revere bowls.

Special guest at the luncheon was Mrs. Maurice C. Holden, wife of Colonel Holden of the 38th Infantry.

New arrivals to the group were introduced. Mrs. Louis A. Kunzig Jr., wife of Colonel Kunzig, Brigade Commander, was among the newcomers. Others include Mrs. Stanley L. Harding, Mrs. Preston L. Johnson, Mrs. Charles A. Laakso and Mrs. Jerry Lea Cole.

Farewells were bid to Mrs. John W. Thompson, Mrs. Herbert W. Coburn, Mrs. James C. Larson Mrs. Aubrey A. Davis, Mrs. Farris D. Alexander, Mrs. Abraham F. Muscari and Mrs. Eugene Smallwood.

Mrs. Scott Hosts Cav Ladies With Two Informal Coffees

Mrs. Harvey Scott held two informal coffees in her home on Rainbow Avenue this past week.

Mrs. Scott chose to give these informal coffees as a way of thanking the ladies of the 7th Cavalry for their cooperation during the past year.

Coffee was served from a "chow" table in the living room.

Lieutenant Colonel Scott, currently commanding the 7th Cavalry, is leaving early next month for an overseas assignment. His family will accompany him.

Ladies of 38th Host Div Arty Luncheon Fete

A luncheon was held by the ladies of Division Artillery recently at the Custer Terrace Officers' Club. Hostesses for the event were the ladies of 38th Artillery.

Mrs. John Finnegan Jr. was general chairman of the affair. She was assisted by Mrs. Harry Hannon, Mrs. William Doherty, Mrs. Albert Muehlberger, Mrs. Robert Parsons and Mrs. Anthony Rouchan. Also assisting were Mrs. Edmund Rozecki, Mrs. Harold Ford and Mrs. Byron Wamble.

The centerpiece was an arrangement of spring flowers including pink gladiolas and fuchsia, yellow and white chrysanthemums. It was donated as the door prize and won by Mrs. Charles Chisley.

Kelley Hill Gets Med-Dental Bldg.

A new medical-dental building on Kelley Hill is now open to provide men in that area with facilities previously available to them only on Sand Hill. Housed in building 9052 next to the chapel and the 1st Infantry Headquarters, the building is scheduled to be the scene of an open house this afternoon from 1 to 4:30.

The public has been invited to attend as well as Main Post and 2nd Infantry Division Commanders, Martin Army Hospital officials, the Third U. S. Army Surgeon and Dental Surgeon and members of the Western District of Georgia Dental Society.

Tours of the building will be conducted this afternoon. Colonel Stuart M. Mitchell, Main Post Dental Surgeon. Lieutenant Colonel Robert M. Ziehm, Chief Clinician of Kelly Hill, and Lieutenant Colonel Joseph G. Ruhe, 2nd Infantry Division surgeon, will be on hand to greet the visitors.

The medical section occupies one wing while the dental section fills the rest of the building. Patients will utilize a common waiting room.

The medical staff will be composed of three surgeons to handle sick calls. The 2nd Medical Battalion plus medical technicians from the 1st, 38th and 87th Infantry will provide assistants. Open 24 hours a day, the medical section will have an ambulance standing by and a pharmacy to fill prescriptions.

There will be 12 dental chairs with a complete surgical setup and prosthetic facilities. The normal dental staff will consist of ten doctors plus assistants.

One feature of the dental section is the installation of high speed air turbine drills which can reach 250,000 revolutions a minute. These drills are designed to cut down vibration and to increase the speed of this type work.

2d Div Gets Marine-Type Camouflage

Each member of the 2nd Division is scheduled to be issued an Official STRAC Helmet Camouflage before the end of August.

These accessories will be constructed of Marine camouflage fabric; however, since the Official STRAC Helmet Camouflage cloth is not expected to arrive until sometime in August, the 2nd Division will improvise with foot-and-a-half squares cut from parachutes.

Each man in the Division will receive two squares of this material and will attach it to his headgear in a manner which will be prescribed by the division Quartermaster.

2000-Man Task Force Enters 2nd Week Amphib Tng at Little Creek, Va.

By 1st Infantry PIO

Approximately 2,000 Soldiers of Task Force 2-1st Infantry have entered the second week of amphibious warfare training at Little Creek, Virginia.

Upon arrival at Little Creek, Marine Corps Brigadier General Austin R. Brunelli, Commanding General, Landing Force Training Unit, Atlantic, introduced the men to the school. He commented that the purpose of the school was to teach the approved safe methods of an amphibious landing with the most up-to-date tools now available. Colonel Walter B. Todd, 1st Infantry commander, also welcomed the attached units to the task force.

During the first week of training, the Soldiers practiced dry net training on land and then practiced wet net methods from an actual ship into landing crafts along side.

The dry net training consisted of two phases. The first phase was practical work with dry nets. Here, the Soldier was taught the proper way to wear life jackets, carry a weapon and wear his equipment. A steel tower facilitated the training of climbing the nets. The troops were organized into "boat teams" and each team assigned to a training net.

They then conducted a practice exercise. Lowering themselves into stationary landing craft, each man carried the prescribed combat equipment.

The second phase taught the combat Soldier methods of landing on the beach from larding craft and how to cross beach obstacles.

Wet net training was conducted on the Burleson, a stripped, stationary ship used for training only. The instruction given by the Marine Corps included off-loading by net into landing crafts and again loading onto the ship by the nets.

A final part of the wet training was the practice assault of a beach. The troops once more loaded into the amphibious vehicles and landed at the training beach. Once the troops were ashore and the beachhead was established, the "boat teams" were organized into their regular fighting units.

Study of special subjects was given to personnel engaged in medical and communications and other fields. These subjects included the waterproofing of vehicles and communications equipment, indoctrination in a ship's characteristics, logistics support techniques, shore party organization and equipment stowage.

Drivers were given training in sand driving and water fording. All of the shore training is conducted by the Marine Landing Force Training Unit.

The second week of training consists of introduction to the various details of shipboard life. The Task Force spends three days aboard ships of the Atlantic Fleet Amphibious Force. Here they receive realistic, on-the-spot instruction in embarkation procedures of an amphibious assault.

During the last day of training, the battle group off-loads into landing craft and carries out a practice invasion at Camp Pendleton, Virginia.

Bad weather has been a constant visitor at the base. However, the low temperatures and rain have not halted the men from touring nearby Little Creek.

Some of the men have visited colonial Williamsburg, Norfolk and Portsmouth, Va. and Washington, D. C. The base has regularly scheduled dances, movies and sports events. Naval Special Services have conducted tours of many of the ships docked at the Naval Yards.

The Task Force 1st Infantry is the second such group to attend the training at the Atlantic Fleet Amphibious Training Command. During the summer and fall, more than 40,000 men will receive training in the latest amphibious assault techniques by the Navy - Marine Corps Team.

Capt Garrell Leaves 87th

By 87th Inf PIO

Chaplain (Captain) Hubert Garrell, having been the 87th Infantry chaplain since July of last year has recently been reassigned to the 8th U. S. Army in Korea.

Major Bunn S-3 Officer At 23rd Inf

By 23rd Inf PIO

The new battle group S-3 officer, Major Dudley T. Bunn, comes to the 23rd from the 38th Infantry.

Maj. Bunn, while in the 38th, served in the capacity of S-2 officer upon his arrival in that unit in July 1961. Later, he became the S-3 officer for the 38th and was performing duty in that area upon his reassignment to the 23rd.

After having completed his grammar and secondary schooling in Fairfax, Georgia, Maj. Bunn entered The Citadel in South Carolina and, through the Reserve Officer Training Corps, began his military career. He was graduated from the Citadel with a bachelor of arts degree in political science.

Maj. Bunn succeeds Maj. Charles M. Bolen in the 23rd S-3 position. Maj. Bolen was reassigned to the 38th Infantry.

Sand Hill Golf Course Develops Fairway Phase

Sand Hill's Golf Course is in further development. Sergeant Paul L. Wolfe, the course professional, reports plans are being made for a new club house and a new pro shop. There are facilities for the functions of these buildings, but the need for better equipped buildings has presented itself.

The aspiring golfer will find Sand Hills Golf Course to have nine holes. The ninth hole has a 504 yard fairway and a par five. This represents a good example of the other eight holes. Sergeant Wolfe says it is an excellent course for tournament-type play.

To further develop this potential, a new watering system is being installed. All the greens are in good condition. A putting green is available for those who would like to improve their skills.

As plans are put into operation, Sergeant Wolfe will get the teaching and tournament phases into full operation. At present he is working on a one day tournament. He extends invitations to all military personnel and their dependents. Those fans among the ladies who are avid golfers or who want to learn the game are urged to come out and participate.

The course has been averaging 150 players a weekend. Sergeant Wolfe is hoping the summer will bring more to the course as the days get longer.

Green fees are set up on a monthly and daily basis. Green fee dues for the month are $3.00. (This doesn't include the price of rental clubs.) For those who don't find it convenient to use the course on a daily-weekly basis, there is a daily green fee. This amounts to 75 cents a day, all day. On holidays and weekends it is $1.00 per day. Rental clubs are available for 25 cents and golf balls are on sale, also for 25 cents.

Tourney Play In July Is Planned

By Donald J. Lopata

Two sports tournaments are being planned for the month of July to open up competition for the 1962-1963 Commanding General's Sports Trophy.

The present softball tournament marks the end of 1961-1962 competition for the trophy.

Tentative plans are being made by the division's Special Service Section for tournaments in tennis and in swimming.

The swimming meet is being planned for the third week in July. It will consist of team competition in twelve different events.

The tournament will consist of the following events: 50 meter free style; 100 meter free style; 100 meter free style relay (two men); 100 meter butterfly; 150 meter free style; 200 meter free style; 100 meter back stroke; 300 meter medley relay (consisting of three men, the first of which will use the breast stroke, the second, the back stroke, and the third, the free style?; 400 meter free style; 800 meter free style relay (consisting of four men to a team); one meter diving (five mandatory dives and one free choice) and three meter diving (also consisting of five mandatory dives and one free choice).

Each participating team may have a maximum of 20 members plus one non-competing coach and one non-competing manager.

Any one individual on a team may not enter more than two individual races and two relays or three individual races and one relay.

No team can enter more than four men in individual events or more than one team in relay events.

All competitors may enter either one or both diving events.

The tennis tournament is being planned for the fourth week in July in the courts behind Service Club Two.

It will be open to all members of the 2nd Division but not to their dependents.

Singles and doubles, open and senior competition are being planned. Points will be given for the Commanding General's Sports Trophy in the open division.

It will be a double-elimination tournament; that is, two losses and you are out of the running for the title.

Quartermaster Supports Friends and Aggressors

By 2nd QM Co PIO

Supporting 9th Infantry aggressor and friendly forces during Exercise CLEAR LAKE was a provisional platoon of the 2nd Quartermaster Company.

The company provided troops with rations, bathing facilities, fuel and oil.

Rations for Meals

Having enough rations to feed 9,000 men, the platoon delivered "C" rations and rations for hot meals to Companies A, B, D, and E of the 9th Infantry who acted as aggressors for the problem.

While capable of providing petroleum in the form of oils and lubricants for vehicles and aircraft, the quartermaster unit was prepared to issue 120,000 gallons of gasoline to support the exercise.

Whether the forces were aggressor or friendly, they received the facilities at the shower point furnished by provisional platoon.

Under the command of Lieutenant Ivor C. Manderson, platoon leader of the quartermaster unit, the provisional platoon provided an unlimited supply of hot water at all hours of the day and night.

Breeding Named 23rd Inf Hq CO

By 23rd PIO

This week Headquarters Company acquired a new commanding officer, with the departure of Lieutenant Donald B. Whitmarsh, who is returning to his basic branch, the military police corps. Lieutenant Joel W. Breeding, former executive officer of the company, now commands the company.

Prior to his assignment as executive officer of Headquarters Company, Lt. Breeding served as executive officer of the battle group's Company B.

Tennis Lessons At Svc. Club 2

By Div PIO

Service Club number two is offering free tennis lessons every Wednesday during the month of June from 7:00 p.m. until 9:00 p.m.

The non-commissioned officer in charge of service club number two, Sergeant Jessie F. Green, is the instructor. He is giving the lessons on the tennis courts directly behind the service club.

This is an ideal time to take lessons as the Division's Special Service Office is planning a tennis tournament in late July.

Today's Sportrait

Today's Sportrait spotlights PFC Charles K. Spell, 15th Finance Company, The Student Brigade.

As the first half of play in major unit baseball ends, Spell has posted a 8-0 record for his team. Spell's pitching experience goes back to his high school days where he lettered in baseball, basketball and football.

He played one year of baseball with Southwestern Louisiana University and set a strikeout record with 134. Spell finished the year with an 5-3 record. In 1958, at S. L. U. Spell began to climb to the top in the baseball circuit. He was signed by the Los Angeles Dodgers farm system in the Alabama - Florida Class D League.

In 1958, he played with the local Columbus Foxes and posted a 7-3 record. Spell moved into Class A ball in 1959 with

SPELL

Macon, Ga., in the Sally League. Although Macon finished the '59 season in the cellar, Spell completed the season with a 9-15 record, and a promotion to Class AA bracket with the Atlanta Crackers in the Southern Association. He helped his teammates win their 19th pennant by posting a 11-5 record.

In 1960, Spell moved into Class AAA circuit at Omaha, Neb., in the American Association. He led the association in strike-outs with 170, and posted a 8-16 record.

In October of 1961, PFC Spell received a major league contract from the L.A. Dodgers, but was drafted into the Army two weeks later.

He is still carried on the Dodgers roster and will be until released from the service sometime in October, 1963.

He says he will keep active in baseball while in the service by playing with service teams wherever he is stationed. Spell stands six feet, two inches and weighs 180 pounds.

STANCE IS IMPORTANT . . . After the grip has been mastered, the next factor in a good golf game is the stance. Generally speaking, stances fall into three types — the square, the closed and the open. In the square stance the feet are parallel to the line of flight, toes pointed slightly outward. The ball is played off the left heel. The right foot is drawn slightly back from the line of flight in the closed stance. Ball is played off the left instep. Some pros use this to hook deliberately. In the open stance the left foot is drawn back a trifle. Pros like this one for pitching short irons to the green.

First Half Of Engineer Ball Over

By SP4 Ron Chrisco

Headquarters Company captured the first half title in the 469th Engineer Battalion softball league recently with a 9-to-2 win over Company C.

This victory leaves Headquarters Company on top of the loop standings with a 3-and-0 record after the first round of play.

In the second game of the day Company B won a wild run-scoring victory over Company A, 22-to-12, in a game that was called after five innings due to a time limit.

Boxers Ready for Action

The Infantry Center Amateur Boxing Program will begin in July and continue until December.

The first matches are slated for July 4 during the annual Youth Activities Club Festival.

Classes and maximum weights are flyweight, 112 pounds; bantamweight, 119; featherweight, 125; lightweight, 132, light welterweight, 139; welterweight, 147; light middleweight, 156, middleweight, 165; light heavyweight, 178, and heavyweight, no limit.

All post military personnel in amateur status are eligible to enter. An individual must be assigned to the unit entering him as a contestant.

Contestants in each weight division will be further grouped into a threefold classification.

In Class One will be boxers who have won a championship or have participated in a championship tournament; Class Two, those who have had 10 fights or more, and Class Three, boxers with five fights or less.

Any contestant who has not previously participated in a fight at this post will be classified by The Infantry Center Boxing Board.

Matches will be held July 4 and 19, Aug. 2, 16 and 30, Sept. 13 and 27, Oct. 11 and 25, Nov. 8 and 22. Individual championship matches will be conducted Dec. 5-7.

Matches will begin at 7:30 p.m. Each fight will last three rounds.

Trophies will be awarded to winning teams and individual champions.

Student Brigade in Lead As First Half Play Ends

By SFC Bismarck Stith

As the end of the major unit first half of play nears, The Student Brigade nine wins the crown.

At press time the Student Brigade topped the league with a 13-2 record; 428th Medics and 29th Infantry are tied with 9-7; while the Infantry Center Troop Command controls the fifth spot. 156th Signal Battalion has dropped 12 games for sixth place and 151st Engineers remain in the cellar with 4-and-10 record.

In recent action around the loop, TSB handed 10th Artillery a 13-4 setback and clobbered 156th Signal 11-1. Linwood Oates hurled both wins while Douglas Turner suffered the loss in the artillery game and Dick Rumvelt was tagged for the defeat in the 156th contest.

Jessie Joyce banged out three singles in five trips to the plate to spark the win with teammate Bill Silva blasting a two-run homer.

Ken Smith's pair of singles in three appearances paced the artillery's attack.

The Brigadeers blasted 156th Signal for five hits and seven runs in the first inning and collected three runs on two hits in the second frame. The signalmen were able to scatter only three hits during the seven innings of play. The game was called at the completion of seven innings under the 10-run league ruling.

The 10th Artillery Redlegs edged the 156th signalmen for a 5-1 victory. Douglas Turner tossed the win while Paul Bando was charged with the loss. Larry Covey paced the winners at the plate with four-for-four, all singles. Turner and Robert Stewart's two singles and a double respectively also aided the Redlegs to their victory.

CTC Victorious

CTC posted its fifth straight win by defeating 428th Medics 10-4. Fred Valentine smacked out three singles for five trips to pace CTC, and Rex Turner had a double and two singles for the Medics.

29th Infantry also handed the Medics a whipping in a night game Sunday, 13-4. Clifton Johnson pitched a five-hitter for the win while James Williams took the setback.

The Two-Niners rapped out 13 hits for the same amount of runs for their ninth season victory. Eloy Zamora's three singles, and George Rogers's two singles and a double paced the winners in the hitting department.

NOW LOOK HERE . . . Base umpire George Brown made his decision and intends to stick with it. George Brown of the 29th Infantry finds this out in a game with the 428th Medics.

Benning Team Places 3rd In Inter-Service Bowling

By SFC Bismarck Stith

The Inter-Service Traveling Bowling Classic was recently completed with Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., winning the crown.

Gunter AFB, Ala., was runner-up with Fort Benning third; Fort Rucker, Ala., was in the fourth spot; Maxwell AFB, Ala., the fifth place while Turner AFB, Ga., finished in sixth place.

The league season got underway last September and ran through April. Each team met every two weeks for league action at each base or post. They met three times during the bowling season.

Representing Fort Benning were Jack Kiggins, Dan Gorman, John Norris, Don Walding and Ken Maloney.

Maj. Paul L. Beckmon, The Infantry Center Special Service Officer, presented trophies to the following members of the Benning team for their outstanding performance during the season of play: Ken Maloney, Replacement Company, U.S.A. Garrison, the league 3rd high average, with a 189; John Norris, Martin Army Hospital, had the season 3rd high game average, 255, and Jack Kiggins, Company B, 1st Battalion, USAICTC, was the 5th high average in the league with a 183.

The organizing of the coming season's league will be held in Gunter Air Force Base in July. Don Walding will be representing Fort Benning at this meeting.

'Fair Arden' Takes 3 Blue Ribbons in Horse Show

By Bill Gardner

A large crowd of spectators at the Fort Benning Hunt Club's June Horse Show received plenty of thrills last Sunday as they watched a beautifully trained horse by the name of "Fair Arden" walk off with three first-place ribbons.

Under the superb handling of a pretty Columbus miss, Edith Ann Landrum, "Fair Arden" captured first place in the divided English pleasure, equitation and bareback events.

Two young ladies from Fort Benning managed to take some of the thunder from the talented twosome from Columbus by taking first place in advanced jumping and the other half of the split English pleasure event.

Donna Davis, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Chester H. Davis, aboard "Mr. Panola," showed the other competitors how to do it as they sailed above the three-foot markers with grace and ease.

Susan Holbrook, daughter of Maj. and Mrs. Robert W. Holbrook, and her mount "Cookie," took first position in the English pleasure. This event was divided because of the large number of entries.

In other events during the day, Sara Bussey of Claiymore Plantation, Phenix City, riding "Bright Penny" took the children's pony class.

In the western pleasure class for children 12 and under, John Woods, son of CWO and Mrs. James R. Woods, rode "Fuzzy" to top honors.

Jim Woods, John's brother, proved himself to be a cowboy at heart as he took first place laurels in the western pleasure, barrel race and pole bending events.

The latter two are timed and Jim spurred "Fuzzy" home in 15 seconds in the pole-bending and in 118 seconds in the barrel race.

Another one of the talented Bussey girls, Eleanor, aboard "Colonel Joe," won the English pleasure class for children 12 and under.

Her sister, Sara, finished right behind her in second place.

Not to be outdone by her younger sisters, Connie Bussey and "The Grey Fox" leaped over six obstacles while riding at a hunting pace and took home the first place ribbon in the equitation over jumps event.

The intermediate jumping event was taken by Lucile Schloth of Columbus, riding "Spanish Morse."

Judges for the show were Mrs. Carole Pritchard of Auburn, Ala., and Capt. Durward D. Gosney of The Infantry Board. Col. Davis served as ringmaster.

Fishermen's Barbecue

The Board of Directors of the Fish and Game Association has announced the Fishermen's Barbecue will be held Friday, June 15, beginning at 6 p.m. All activities will take place at TIC Rest Camp on Second Armor Division Road.

Activities will include a barbecue supper with drinks and all trimmings, entertainment to include some of the latest wildlife films and the awarding of over 20 items of hunting and fishing equipment as gate prizes.

The affair is open only to members of the Fish and Game Association. All members are urged to attend. Membership cards should be presented at the check-in point for meal tickets and registration for gate awards.

Those individuals who have not yet joined the association and are intending to do so are urged to join prior to the barbecue so they can fully benefit from the association's activities.

THEY'RE HITTING AGAIN

The recent rains seem to have brought about some improvements in the post fishing. Considerable activity was noted at several post ponds, particularly Harp's, Weem's and King's Pond. Reports reaching the Fish and Game office indicated probably one of the best catches in recent weeks was a bass in the 10-pound class taken from McMurrian's Pond. Not a regular producer of large bass, this pond occasionally comes up with some lunkers.

First Sgt. John Donnell, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, The Student Brigade, netted an eight-pound largemouth at Harp's Pond early Sunday morning. The lunker was taken on a large shiner and the proud angler did some fancy maneuvering as he landed the trophy using six-pound test line after a 10-minute tussle.

Weem's pond continues to yield some good catches of bass. SFC (Ret.) Henry E. Enfinger of Columbus weighed i na five-pound bass taken from Weems Pond. Enfinger reported the bass was taken on a shiner back in the lily pads and was one of several he hooked and was unable to land.

FALSE BELIEFS

One false idea held by many anglers is that it is wise to throw the little ones back. If each pair of bream produced only one pair of offspring each year this would probably be true, but their offspring mount into the thousands during each spawning, and depending on food supply, bluegills spawn two or three times each year.

Therefore, don't throw back the little ones if you want to improve fishing conditions. There should never be a size limit on bass, bluegills, catfish, crappie, and other warm water fish, according to fishery biologists.

'Look See' Planned for NG, Reserves

Gen. Herbert B. Powell, commanding general, U. S. Continental Army Command, has announced that a select group of 100 officers and non-Army National Guard and Reserve units on active duty since last fall will be flown to Germany this month to participate in "Operation Look See III and IV," an intensive on-the-spot orientation on the mission, training and combat readiness of U. S. forces stationed there.

Traveling in groups of 50 each, the field trip is designed as a training program for troop information purposes. Its objective is to prepare the participants to conduct troop-level briefings on Army training and operations in Europe before personnel of their own and nearby Reserve units upon returning to home stations.

The first group, consisting of 50 company-grade officers, was scheduled to depart McGuire Air Force Base, N. J., via Military Air Transport Service (MATS) last Sunday. The remainder, all key non-coms, will follow today. Each participant occupies leadership positions in combat arms and technical service units.

During the field trip, both groups will observe tactical units of U. S. Army Europe undergoing field training. They will also get a close-up look at the "Wall of Shame" that separates West and East Berlin and the Iron Curtain in the vicinity of Fulda, 50 miles north of Frankfurt.

Gen. Powell sent each member of "Look See II" a letter upon completion of their field trip in which he said, "The most important phase of your trip will take place when you share your observations with members of your unit. You have been afforded a rare opportunity to see in person at close range the troubled situation in Western Europe. After talking to soldiers much like yourselves who carry out their daily operations within range of Communist guns, you have undoubtedly gained a broader and deeper understanding of your importance as citizen-soldiers backing up the Regular members of the Modern One Army Team."

YAC Swim Team Set For Meets

The Youth Activity Council has announced its coming swimming team schedule.

This Saturday the YAC team will meet swimmers from the Columbus YMCA at 1:30 p.m. The Columbus team will return the meet here at Cary Pool next Friday at 9 a.m.

Next Saturday the Benning team will visit the Fort Rucker, Ala., YAC swimming team. On June 19-20 they will participate in an AAU Swimming meet at East Point, Ga.

To round out the month of June they will attend the AAU meet at Albany, Ga., June 29 and 30.

Gunter Air Force Base YAC team in Montgomery, Ala., will host Benning's YAC team on July 7.

Girl swimmers to participate in the meets are as follow: Mary Ellen Mallick, Beth Hunt, Kathy Krivling, Helen Dryer, Paty Hoffman, Barbara Sheridan, Shiia Finnegan, Magda Vallentin, Rolie Gordy, Jackie Carter and Nancy Woodall.

The boy swimmers include Mark McFarland, Carl Braun, Carl Clark, Andy Wolffinger, Tom Male and Abe Valentin.

The participants range in age from 8 to 14 years.

Teams will be judged on free style, backstroke, breast stroke and the butterfly stroke.

Aberdeen Has War Lab

The Army has designated Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md., as the site of its new Limited War Laboratory.

The laboratory will provide the Army with an organization for development of specialized weaponry and other materiel for use in such field as guerrilla and counter - insurgency operations.

Col. Sterling C. Holmes was selected as the command officer of the laboratory. Col. Holmes, a former combat infantry officer, was formerly assigned to Redstone Arsenal, Huntsville, Ala.

The laboratory staff of approximately 70 military and civilian personnel, will represent a wide variety of scientific fields, and will work closely with key agencies of the Army's Combat Development System.

Included will be chemists, physicists, electronic scientists, natural scientists, analysts and engineers who will conduct research and development to provide highly effective weapons and techniques to meet requirements of forces in the field.

AT THE Movies

RIDE, VAQUERO is a hard-shooting, outdoor drama starring Robert Taylor and Ava Gardner. A trigger-quick foster brother of a ruthless outlaw, Vaquero, is indifferent to his brother's power-mad ambition until he meets the bride of a rancher who attempts to establish a cattle empire.

DEAD TO THE WORLD is the story of a man accused of treason. A desperate State Department security officer goes on a 72-hour manhunt in search of a mystery man who leaves a trail of intrigue and violence in the nation's capitol. It stars Reedy Talton and Jana Pearce.

• • •

THE BRIDGE is a powerful war drama that stars Fritz Wepper and Michael Hinz. Seven German high school boys are conscripted to defend their town's bridge from advancing American forces in the closing days of World War II.

This Week In History

June 8, 1942 — European Theater of Operations established.

June 9, 1913 — School of Musketry, forerunner of present Infantry School, established at Fort Sill, Oklahoma.

June 9, 1918 — Montdidier-Noyon Campaign.

June 10, 1801 — War with Tripoli. Two batteries of U.S. Artillery serve with the fleet.

June 11, 1944 — VI Corps drives nearly 65 miles north of Rome.

June 12, 1942 — U. S. air forces bomb oilfield at Ploesti, Rumania.

June 13, 1776 — Continental Congress establishes Board of War and Ordnance, composed of five members of Congress. First step in evolution of War Department.

June 14, 1775 — Birth date of United States Army. Continental Congress votes to raise 10 companies of riflemen in Continental service, and appoints a committee to prepare regulations for the Army.

June 14, 1777 — Congress adopts American flag with 13 stars and 13 stripes.

DOG TAGS
Some of the first "dog tags" were devised by Civil War soldiers. A soldier often wrote his name and address on a piece of paper and pinned it to his uniform before going into battle.

Film Actors Take Basic Training

HOLLYWOOD — Prior to beginning work in Warner Bros.' "The Gallant Men" the seven regular players in the new TV series had to undergo a week of rugged basic training. The show is set in Italy in World War II.

Maj. Richard Lauer and SFC Robert McClintic of the Army, both of whom fought in Italy, put the actors through their military paces. Starring are Robert McQueeney and William Reynolds and featured are Robert Hidgely, Richard X. Slattery, Eddie Fontaine, Roland LaStarza and Robert Gothie.

LaStarza is an ex-heavyweight who boxes Rocky Marciano for the world's championship. Filming has begun on "The Gallant Men" and the series is scheduled to start on the ABC network in fall. McQueeney enacts a war correspondent. The others are soldiers.

Ballet Recital Planned

Daughters of many military personnel will participate in a dance recital tomorrow night presented by students of Margaret LaForest's Classical Ballet School.

The recital, entitled "Around the World in 80 Minutes," will be held at South Columbus Junior High School, beginning at 8 p.m. There will be no admission charge.

Featured will be dances from "south of the border," Europe, and the Orient as well as classical ballet. Choreography, direction and costume designing is all the work of Mrs. LaForest.

She is the wife of SFC Robert D. LaForest of Martin Army Hospital.

The public has been invited to the recital.

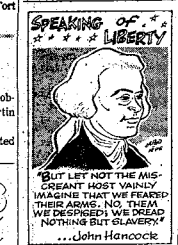
16th YAC Carnival Is Planned

Fort Benning's Gowdy Field and Doughboy Stadium will be the scene for the Youth Activities Club sixth annual carnival, July 4.



Rides, games and food concessions, band concerts, boxing, baseball, awards ceremonis and a gigantic fireworks display will be part of the holiday festivities.

Proceeds from the event will be used to support the post's youth activities. Among these are sport and scouting programs and a youth employment bureau.

Leading the planning for this year's carnival is a new slate of officers, which includes Col. John H. Laitin, commander of The Infantry Center Troop Command, president, and Lt. Col. Herbert W. Colburn, 122nd Signal Battalion, 2nd Infantry Division, vice-president.

Other members of the board hard at work on the plans include Lt. Col. Everett V. Mead, chairman of the Defense Committee, Command and Staff Department of The Infantry School; Maj. James E. Rogers, executive officer, 2nd Engineer Battalion, 2nd Division; 1st Lt. John A. Olszewski, YAC custodian, and Sgt. Maj. Frank Plass, Infantry Center Troop Command sergeant major.

'Shutterbugs' Awake; Enter Photo Contest

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Armed Forces "shutterbugs" can unlimber their cameras any time now in preparation for the 10th Interservice Photography Contest.

As host for this year's contest, the Navy has put out information for both its own 1962 all-Navy photo contest and the service-wide competition.

Here are the general eligibility rules:

All military personnel on active duty for 90 days or more are eligible to enter the interservice contest (only those entries from Navy and Coast Guard personnel will be entered in the all-Navy contest).

Armed Forces personnel assigned to the Navy are considered members of the Navy for the purpose of competition on the base, district and fleet level.

But all entries submitted by Army, Air Force or Marine Corps personnel are to be forwarded to the Special Services officer of their closest parent organization (post, camp, station or base).

Naval ROTC and Reserve units are excluded from participating in either contest.

Judging for the interservice contest will be held in December 1962. The Navy will judge its contest in October 1962.

Any photographs which have been taken by a contestant subsequent to Dec. 1, 1960 may be entered in the 10th Interservice Photography Contest.

There are seven categories, or types, of pictures in two groupings which may be submitted. They are: portraits, babies and children, animals and pets, sports or action, scenic, military life and experimental.

Group one consists of black and white single photos. Enlargements may vary from a minimum of 8 by 10 inches to a maximum of 16 by 20 inches. The entries will be unmounted and unmatted and are not to be tinted, but toning is permitted.

In the group two category, color transparencies take the spotlight. These may be up to 4 by 5 inches in size and enclosed in plastic envelopes or other protective covering. All transparencies must be mounted and marked with a red dot in the lower left-hand corner of the mount.

Winners and selected entries from the interservice contest will be exhibited at both the Pentagon and the Smithsonian Institution at the conclusion of the contest.

58th Infantry Will Celebrate 45th Birthday; Competitive Events, Festivities Tomorrow

The 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, will celebrate its 5th anniversary with festivities tomorrow.

The unit may be called "Fort Benning's oldest" since officers of the 58th were selected as cadre to establish The Infantry School here in 1918.

Lt. Col. Charles T. Caprino, 58th Infantry Commander, has invited the dependents, relatives and friends of the members of the battalion to attend the day's events and festivities which will be held at Todd Field.

Competitive events will be divided into two categories, military and athletic. They will run simultaneously from 8 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. Saturday morning.

The military portion will consist of eight events. First will be an eleven man squad drill competition between the various companies of the battalion. This will be followed by assembly of the M-1 rifle and .45 caliber Pistol, PT test, hand grenade throw, manual of arms, and jeep driving contest. A tire changing contest will round out the military phase of the day.

The athletic competition will consist of six events. Starting off with a cross country speed march over a marked course, there will also be events in the 100-yard dash, broad jump, greased pole climb, softball throw, and 440-meter relay race.

Two trophies will be awarded to highest-scoring companies. One will be awarded to the company with the highest total score in the military events and the other to the unit with the top athletic score.

Plaques will be presented to the two individuals compiling the highest totals in each phase of competition.

Engraved lighters bearing the distinctive 58th Infantry crest will be presented to the winner of each event.

Spectators will view a display of armored vehicles assigned to the 58th Infantry and its attached Armor Units Company C, 66th Armor and Company D, 69th Armor.

The highlight of the exhibit will be a showing of the battalion's newly acquired "Davy Crockett."

As an added attraction there will be "jeep" rides for children of battalion members.

Three refreshment stands will be placed around Todd Field.

The 58th Infantry was organized in 1917 from the 4th Infantry Regiment. After organization, the 58th Infantry joined the 4th Infantry Division enroute to France and served with the division in 1918 and 1919.

Upon arrival in France the 58th Infantry was assigned to the 8th Brigade, 4th Infantry Division, which served with the American Expeditionary Forces under the command of General of the Army John J. Pershing.

The 58th Infantry saw its first action in combat July, 18, 1918, when elements took part in the Aisne-Marne by attacking with the French 13th Chasseurs. This action carried the French far beyond their objective.

The 58th Infantry participated in five campaigns during World War I.

In the memoirs of General of the Armies Pershing, he wrote, "The fortitude and courage of the Fourth Division (of which the 58th Infantry was a key unit) in these operations was inspiring."

Nine days after the Armistice the regiment marched into Germany to begin a tour with the Army of Occupation. Because of its outstanding record, the 58th Infantry was selected as parade troops for the City of Koblenz.

As the occupation came to an end, the 58th Infantry returned to the U. S. and was deactivated with the 4th Division on June 21, 1922, at Fort George Wright, Wash.

During World War II, after being reactivated at Fort Lewis, Wash., the regiment was divided into separate battalions and earned battle credits in two different combat zones under the designations, 203rd Infantry, 204th Infantry, 205th Infantry, and the 58th Armored Infantry. The latter Unit saw the bulk of the World War II combat action.

The 58th Infantry served with the 8th Armored Division in Germany until July, 1957. When the Army reorganized under the Combat Arms Regimental System in July, 1957, the unit was redesignated the 2nd Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry.

The 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry was formed as part of the 1st Infantry Brigade on May 16, 1960.

In its main task of supporting The Infantry School, the 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, has maintained the spirit and devotion to duty of the first members of the unit at Aisne-Marne and Central Europe.

The reason is best stated in the 58th Infantry motto which appears at the bottom of the unit's insignia, "Love of Country".

Don't Neglect Teeth; Follow 3 Basic Rules

By May. Charles W. Dobson
Preventive Dentistry Officer

There are three basic rules to dental health. You've heard them before. But it's impossible to stress them too much. Here they are:

Always brush your teeth immediately after eating.

Cut down on sweets, especially between meals.

Have regular dental checkups.

How much is a tooth worth? That's an unfair question, because there isn't really any answer to it. If you look in the mirror you won't see any price tags attached to your teeth.

Perhaps a better way to put the question is: How much are your teeth worth to you?

Are you eager enough to keep your own teeth for your lifetime to spend the time and effort needed for preventive care?

Avoid the high cost of dental neglect, for neglect now you will have to pay later — in terms of pain, increased dental expenses and lost teeth.

Your teeth can last a lifetime. Whether or not they do depends on the value you attach to them and the care they receive.

Your teeth are worth the effort it takes to keep them. Observe the three basic rules for dental health.

Post Credit Union Rates Reduced

The Infantry Center Federal Credit Union has reduced interest rates on two types of loans from one per cent to three-quarters of one per cent on unpaid balance.

Loans on new cars and loans covered by shares qualify for the new rates.

Established in 1956, TIC Federal Credit Union has 1,847 members and assets of $578,- and one-half per cent on shares compounded semi-annually.

Civilians employed on post may become eligible to apply for loans by investing at least $5 in the Credit Union and paying a 25-cent membership fee.

President of the union is Dock B. Slaughter, an employe in the G-4 section of TIC.

NEW ARMY SECRETARY . . . Cyrus Roberts Vance (R) looks on attentively as Secretary of the Army Elvis J. Stahr Jr., acquaints him with Army business to prepare him for the role of Army secretary when he succeeds Mr. Stahr on July 1. President Kennedy announced Mr. Vance's appointment, subject to Senate confirmation, May 20. Presently serving as general counsel for the Defense Department, the 45-year-old former Naval officer and Yale-educated Wall Street attorney entered government work in 1957 as special counsel of the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee, then headed by Vice President Johnson. Mr. Stahr resigned to accept the presidency of Indiana University.

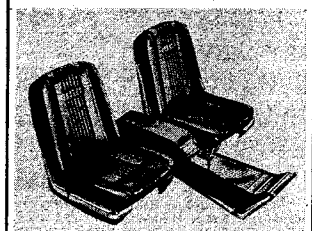
Parachutist Badges were pinned on 420 graduating members of The Infantry School's basic airborne training class during ceremonies at Fort Benning recently.

Honor graduate was SF1 (Ship Fitter First Class) Francis H. Perry. A member of the U. S. Navy, Perry is assigned to Seal Team One, Naval Amphibious Base, Coronado, Calif.

The class roster included 50 Army officers, 362 Army enlisted men, three Naval officers and six enlisted men.



Four were sons of former paratroopers, or as they have come to be known at TIS's Airborne-Air Mobility Department, "second generation troopers."

Pvt. Richard L. Harris is the son of Sgt. Price Harris, who was killed in action in 1950 during the Korean conflict.

Second Lt. Charles Bartlett, whose father, Lt. Col. Eden Bartlett, has over 100 jumps to his credit, was among those graduating.

Another newly pinned trooper, Pvt. Melvin J. Benson, is the son of Melvin Benson, who served with the 82nd Airborne Division during World War II.

MTU Firers Take Honors in NRA-Sponsored Shoot

An Army marksman won the Southeastern Regional Rifle Championship here when SFC Cecil S. Stevens posted an aggregate score of 499-58V out of 500 points possible for five matches composing the championship.

Stevens, a member of the Marksmanship Training Unit here, defeated nearly 500 riflemen entered in the event sponsored annually by the National Rifle Association.

To prove his right to individual honors he then proceeded to shoot a perfect score of 250 out of a possible 250 points over the National Match Course to spark his Army "Gold Team" to a record-smashing win over 78 four-man team entries.

The MTU team posted a score of 995 out of a possible 1,000 points to take the NRA's Regional Team Trophy. SFC Leslie Drake coached the squad to its big win.

Pistol activities of the Regional championship saw nearly 300 entries in the matches at the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club range.

The MTU's S-Sgt. James H. McNally annexed the Grand Aggregate award for winning the 1962 Southeastern Regional Pistol crown with a score of 2,685 out of a possible 2,700 points.

Three sub - championships leading to the big crown were all won by Army shooters.

The .22 caliber trophy was won by Sixth Army's PFC Norman L. Banta, while Third Army's PFC Rexford V. Baker won Center Fire Pistol laurels.

Banta fired a total score of 888 out of a possible 900 points, while Baker's 881 was good for the Center Fire win.

Center fire Team honors were snatched by Third Army's "Blue Team" sparked by the shooting of MSgt Harold Wilson of Fort Campbell, Ky. Wilson shot out a score of 294 out of 300 points to take top scoring honors among the team's members.

The .22 caliber pistol team award for first place was taken by the "Blue Team" of the MTU with a score of 1183-59X. SFC William B. Blankenship posted an individual effort of 295-15X out of 300 to lead in his team's scoring.

The matches were conducted under the direction of Thomas Kirkman, Fort Benning Club secretary. Operating personnel were provided by The Infantry Center.

YOUTHFUL MARKSMEN . . . Receiving expert marksmanship awards recently were two members of the Senior Boy's Rifle Club, James G. Smith (L), son of Lt. Col. and Mrs Olin E. Smith, and John P. Dring Jr., son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. John P. Dring, from Lt. Col. Robert A. Guenther executive officer of the Weapons Department, The Infantry School.

'Highest Grade' Retirement Bill Goes to U. S. Senate

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Legislation that will allow members of the Armed Forces to retire in the "highest grade satisfactorily held" in any service has passed the House and gone to the Senate for consideration.

The Air Force recommended enaction of the legislation, and the Bureau of the Budget interposed no objection.

Basically, the legislation amends existing law. The Defense Department believes that individuals who have served in one service and later transfer to, or enter, another should not be penalized because of such transfer.

Under present law, as interpreted by the Comptroller General, an individual who has served in one branch of service and later retires, receives full credit for all service performed except in one particular.

Here's what happens: In computing his retired pay, a grade held in the first armed service cannot be considered even though that grade may be higher than any grade which he held in the other service. The same situation exists with respect to computing disability and severance pay.

Also under present law, an individual who has held a permanent grade on active duty which is higher than the grade in which he is serving when retired or separated for disability, may not receive retired pay or disability or severance pay based on the higher grade.

The old law, which authorized retired pay or severance pay based on grades formerly held, refers only to temporary grades.

Under the new legislation this situation will also be remedied. It would authorize computation of retired pay based on the highest permanent or temporary grade held satisfactorily on active duty in any branch of service.

The new legislation also affects Air Force personnel previously serving in the Army other than in the Army Air Corps or Army Air Force.

Prior to 1958 the Air Force assumed that personnel who formerly served in the Army would be entitled to consider their Army service as equivalent to that in the Air Force in determining the grade on which retired pay or disability severance pay could be computed.

Under the proposed legislation the situation will be remedied by authorizing computation of retired pay and disability and severance pay based on the highest grade held satisfactorily in any branch of service.

Floridians Take Tour Of Benning

Approximately 40 members of the Central Florida Civilian Military Orientation Committee, the Orlando (Fla.) Chamber of Commerce and military personnel from posts in the surrounding area, arrived here Wednesday.

While here the visitors from the Sunshine State witnessed demonstrations designed to familiarize them with the capabilities of the Army's firepower and ground mobility means.

They received briefings on counterguerilla activities, airborne training and the history and organization of The Infantry Center and Infantry School.

They departed Thursday.

VISITS LAAC . . . Capt. Gunnar A. Hasselrot, assistant commandant of the Swedish Army Helicopter School, is greeted upon his arrival at Lawson Army Aviation Command by Col. Curtis L. Hankins, LAAC commander. During his stay, Capt. Hasselrot will observe tactical and training operations at LAAC. He is a dual-rated pilot in both fixed and rotary-wing aircraft. During his 20 years as an infantry officer, he has been through Ranger Training and has served with one of the oldest units in the world, The Royal Life Grenadier Regiment.

She Knits to Thwart 'Cold' War

LOS ANGELES, Calif. (ANS) — Mrs. Leonard Eaton, 67, of Los Angeles, has one of the most unusual occupations ever engaged in by a senior citizen.

Attack

lions of people are wholly deceived.

Communism, like fascism and nazism, can be appraised in part by an examination of what communism actually does with the lives of people under its control. But this appraisal does not explain why millions of victims are deceived by Communist propaganda and deception. In order to assess communism accurately, it is necessary to evaluate the theories of Marxism-Leninism.

The idea of the common ownership of all property and the management of all human activities under this system is an old concept. It has appeared in many ages. The concept has appealed to many idealists who like to speculate upon the ideal commonwealth. It has appealed to some reformers who seek an end to all human misery and injustice. It has also attracted ambitious revolutionists who see in communism an opportunity for acquiring power over men and women.

Today communism generally means the practice of the "dictatorship of the proletariat" in the Soviet Union and in other Communist states. To be specific, modern communism includes: (1) government ownership and control of all means of production, distribution and consumption of economic goods; (2) the abolition of private property; and (3) the maintenance of a police state to control and enforce this order of human life.

This series is taken from Ideas in Conflict, Liberty and Communism (DOD Pam 3-11) published by the Directorate for Armed Forces Information and Education, Department of Defense.

of America. She is knitting sweaters for little boys and girls she has never seen.

Mrs. Eaton's novel occupation began in 1954 when she responded to a call to help the California Army National Guard's 40th Inf. Div. drive to supply and maintain the Kenneth Kaiser Memorial School, constructed by the Division at Kapyong, Korea, 35 miles from Seoul.

Young Kaiser, a member of Co. A, 160th Inf., was the first man in the 40th Div. to die there. "Operation Sweater" was a part of a mammoth drive to ship 400 tons of supplies and equipment to the school. Mrs. Eaton responded as a leading contributor to that operation and she is still contributing.

From Mrs. Eaton's lightening fast fingers, marvelous energy and abounding faith through the years, have come over 1,600 pull-over sweaters—every stitch knitted with care and by hand. Add to this 1,000 caps, 258 pairs of socks, 375 pairs of mittens, 447 pairs of bootees and 12 afghans and you have a picture of a busy woman — busy adding comfort and sometimes life itself to Korean youngsters orphaned by the war.

Public awareness of what she is doing has helped with yarn. Yarn companies and churches have been generous, in addition to private contributors.

At first Mrs. Eaton had ample aid, but now she knits alone, except for a few loyal friends and supporters who still share her enthusiasm and know the need.

The sweaters are sized, sorted and distributed in Korea according to need. Chaplains have helped and at the present time distribution is in the hands of Army Civil Affairs.

John A. McReynolds of the Eighth U. S. Army Civil Affairs Section, is happy with the present distribution arrangement. Mr. McReynolds, who knows of the orphans' needs first hand, said, "We love that woman and we want her to come over here. We don't know how we will get her here but we will find a way."

Mrs. Eaton, naturally, would like to go. She would see there at first hand the results of her labors, her day to day work that has brought happiness and warmth to destitute youngsters.

Mrs. Eaton's reply to these and other equally gracious words of thanks is always the same, "I have had only happiness in helping these wonderful boys and girls."

Medics Are Leaders in Bond Drive

With reports on the 1962 Savings Bond Drive at Fort Benning still coming in, the 428th Medical Battalion is leading the field with an increase in participation from 24 to 88 per cent.

Lawson Army Aviation Command reports an increase of from 45 to 71 per cent; 2nd Infantry Division, 45 to 70 per cent, and 1st Infantry Brigade, 28 to 69 per cent.

Conducted from May 1 through 31, the Savings Bond Drive goal, established by the Department of the Army, was a 25 per cent increase in participation in the payroll deduction plan for purchasing bonds. All except two of the major units on the post that have reported results of the drive have reached or surpassed 65 per cent participation. Fifty per cent of the staff sections have surpassed the 65 per cent mark.

Although a final report is not yet available, there is every indication that some Fort Benning units will be entitled to U. S. Treasury Minute Man Awards, according to 1st Lt. Richard D. Taylor, assistant general canvass chairman for the drive.

Will Receive Scholarships

Georgia war orphans who are graduating from high school this month should begin immediately to qualify themselves for college training next fall under the Veterans War Orphans Education Program, Pete Wheeler, Georgia Veterans Service Director states this week.

A war orphan, under the law, is any child who lost either parent to disease or injury incurred or aggravated in line of duty on active military service.

Many young people who are eligible for the educational benefits do not recognize themselves as "war orphans" because one of their parents is still living, he added. Also, some are not aware of their eligibility because the parent may have died several years after the war, though of a disability incurred in service.

Judge

even a general court-martial for violation of Article 134, UCMJ, as conduct amounting to the prejudice of good order and discipline in the Armed Forces. Either of these actions would, of course, mar the service member's military record. A general court-martial could result in confinement and a punitive discharge. Where the infraction is intentional and severe enough, it may amount to obtaining money under false pretenses or larceny which is, of course, a felony or major crime.

The pitfalls of financial trouble, loss of personal integrity, and of a scarred military record can be alleviated by abiding by an old safety maxim, paraphrased — "Stop, Think, Reason. Before Writing."

July 4th Fun Is Planned by YAC

Ever yearn to ride in a Military Police car? As a guest, that is.

If so, the opportunity will present itself here when the Youth Activities Club holds its sixth annual Fourth of July Carnival on Stillwell and Gordon Fields.

This is only one of the many opportunities that will be offered to the public.

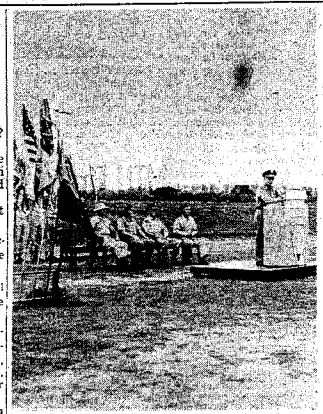
Others will include cable rides from junior jump towers, buddy seat rides from the 250-foot training towers, and rides on ponies, jeeps and a merry go round.

In addition to providing entertainment forpeople living in the Fort Benning area, the carnival serves two other purposes. The first of these is support of YAC's many activities for youths. The other is to give personnel an opportunity to participate in events on post rather than convergiog on overcrowded highways.

Col. Richard W. Keyes, commanding officer of the 1st Infantry Brigade, is chairman of the YAC Carnival.

The day of festivities will begin at 8 a.m. with a parade on French Field by cadets from the U.S. Air Force Academy's Class of 1965. Following this, there will be a sky-diving exhibition by members of the Fort Benning Parachute Club.

At 11 a.m., the fair grounds will open. In addition to rides, carnival booths, such as fish ponds, dart throwing and nail driving, will be available.



Throughout the day, various competitive events will take place. For the public there will be golf chipping, baseball throws, archery and horseshoe contests.

Entries 14 years and under will compete in the junior bracket, while those over 14 will be in the senior.

For the military, there will be competition to decide the outstanding unit on post.

Categories of competition include a cross country run, physical fitness tests, platoon drill, grenade throwing, jeep driving, and M-1 rifle and .45 caliber pistol firing tests.

Climaxing the day will be a fireworks demonstration on Gordon Field at 9:30 p.m.

1962 MATCHES OPEN
Gen. Harrell Greets Firers

Records Set In All-Army 1962 Shoot

As the 1962 All-Army Rifle and Pistol Matches draw to a close, records have been shattered and new champions made.

At press time final results of the matches were being tabulated. These results will be carried in full in next week's Bayonet.

Fifth Army's MSgt. James E. Cole fired a record-breaking 100-14V out of a possible 100-20V to take first place and exceed the old mark by one V in the rifle combined rapid fire event.

Following the Fifth Army winner were Sgt. Roy Garrido, Marksmanship Training Unit, and Third Army's Sgt. Ansel Kelly.

On the pistol scene, the U.S. Army Pacific's SFC Donald D. Korb fired a 195-07X out of a possible 200-20X over the .22 caliber, 50-yard slow fire course for first place.

Taking second and third places were SSgt. Leland A. Wessel, Fifth Army team, and Fourth Army's SFC Alvin J. Moore.

The next match, fired over the .22 caliber, 25-yard timed fire course, went to SFC Ralph O. Thompson, U. S. Army, Europe, for a 200-16X out of a possible 200-20X.

Runner-up was Third Army's PFC Rexford V. Baker with a score of 200-13X. Fourth Army's SP4 Richard F. Stengel took third place.

The third .22 caliber event fired at 25 yards, rapid fire went to Third Army's Sgt. Howard W. Gulliksen for a 200-16X out of a possible 200-20X.

Down only 1X, SFC Alvin J. Moore, Fourth Army firer, and the Military District of Washington's PFC Marvin D. Black took second and third places, respectively. This decision was made also by tie-breaking procedures.

First place in the .22 caliber National course went to Sgt. Thompson. He fired a 298-22X out of a possible 300-30X.

Sgt. Meriweather Jones, U.S. Army Alaska, took second place, followed by Fourth Army's SFC Moore.

The second day firing saw Sixth Army's SSgt. David E. Mills smash the standing mark for the combined slow fire rifle event when he registered a 150-15V out of 150-30V score.

Ten shots were fired at 200 yards standing and 20 at 600 yards prone, slow fire. The old mark was 149-16V.

Behind Mills came MTU riflemen, SFC Loyd G. Crow Jr. with 148-16V, and MSgt. Chester F. Hamilton of New Market, Va., also with a 148-16V but with a lesser score at long range.

The second rifle match of the day, a grueling 40 shots, slow fire at 600 yards, was won by Sgt. George L. Black-

Military Study Projects Are Listed

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—The Defense Department has released a list of projects either under study or already started that it hopes to have firmed up during the next 10 months.

The listing covers all aspects of the military establishment from vital personnel problems to the question of what measures can be taken to improve the amount and reliability of programmed warning systems.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara explained the "project list" and said it covered 75 per cent of all defense projects with the remaining 25 per cent being classified.

Here is a partial rundown of the projects:

Analyze all authorized military personnel positions to determine which of these are properly filled by military and which could be filled by civilians. Compare the cost of civilian vs. military personnel for such positions.

Undertake a thorough study of the military compensation structures and recommend changes which will remove inequities and increase the efficiency of operations.

Prepare a five-year housing construction program and a standard housing control report showing the housing inventory, maintenance costs, disposition of surplus property and the losses thereon, unused quarters, status of financiog of Capehart and Wherry housing, housing shortages, etc.

Review all major development projects (Midas, Dynasoar, Advent, Zeus, etc.) and report to the Secretary of Defense what action can be taken to better achieve project objectives and reduce project costs.

Under the projected listing the Secretary of Defense would expand the actions taken to minimize the gold flow associated with military operations abroad.

Included in the action to stem the gold flow is a series of special studies, of which these are a part:

Institute a short tour unit rotation system for portions of Army and Air Force personnel in Europe.

Mr. McNamara said these actions would not mean the withdrawal of combat units abroad; that there was no firm estimate as to when action would be started but the study was now underway.

He also said the Defense Department didn't think it wise to maintain forces abroad on a long tour basis without dependents, but that the gold flow problem was still acute.

Some of the other ways the Defense Department hopes to

Allied Leader Is Scheduled To Visit Here

Gen. Sir Hugh C. Stockwell of the British Army, deputy supreme Allied commander, Europe, will visit here Monday and Tuesday.

The military visitor is a knight of the Grand Cross of the Most Honorable Order of the Bath and a Knight Commander of the Most Excellent Order of the British Emplre. He also holds the Distinguished Service Order.

Scheduled to arrive at Lawson Army Airfield at 3:15 p.m.

Craft Shop Provides Area for Auto Work

Fort Benning personnel will have a chance to develop a new skill or further an old one as The Infantry Center's Special Services Section opens an auto craft shop on Main Post today.

The latest addition to the post's do-it-yourself operations will be formally opened in a ribbon cutting ceremony at 1 p.m.

The new shop will accommodate 24 cars and the facilities include nearly every type tool used in the maintenance of automobiles, from a pair of pliers to an acetylene welding rig.

In addition to all this equipment, six instructors, headed by shop director, SFC Daniel L. Jennings, will be on hand to assist old hats at the mechanics business, or teach the novice.

Jennings says he has over 18 years experience in automotive maintenance and his particular speciality is automatic transmissions.

The shop will be located in Building 2057, and, like all other craft shops, will be opened on Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m., and Tuesday to Friday from noon until 9 a.m. and on Saturday and holidays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

All totaled, including Sand Hill, there are 10 craft shops on post. Hobbies available for soldiers and civilian employees to pursue in their off hours include woodworking, ceramics, photography, leatherworking, model airplanes and boat building.

Mr. Stahr Sends Salute To U. S. Army

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following message concerning the 187th anniversary of the Army, observed yesterday, was sent by Secretary of the Army Elvis J. Stahr Jr.)

"One hundred and eighty-seven years ago the United States Army came into being when "ten companies of riflemen" were enlisted in the Continental service to help wrest control of the American Colonies from Great Britain and establish a free and independent Nation. On this anniversary, we look back with pride on the Army's magnificent record of valor, devotion and sacrifice in the cause of National liberty and human freedom. It is a record which should inspire every member of the Army today to meet with equal vigor and dedication the ever more urgent requirements of our present and future.

"The 'destructive power which has been placed in the hands of man dictates that we strive even harder to prevent another war than we have ever fought to win one. But preventing a major clash of arms is not enough. We must also prevent the communists from attaining their goal of global domination by lesser means, such as insurgency and guerrilla aggression — the cancer of creeping conquest which is well, Sixth Army team, with a perfect score of 200-27V.

Second place went to 1st Lt. Ivan W. Flowers, Third Army team, who fired a 199-29V score, followed by SSgt. William R. Medina, a U. S. Army Pacific rifleman who listed the same score of 196-29V which was ranked into third place.

In pistol firing, the individual .22 caliber champion was Fourth Army's SFC Moore who accumulated 892-46X out of a possible 900-90X score in the .22 caliber composite score.

Europe's SFC Ralph O. Thompson followed with an 890-56X and taking third place was Sgt. Maj. Huelet (Joe) Benner, First Army team, with an 887-42X score.

In the individual Rapid Fire aggregate championship, Europe's SP4 Earl L. Waterman collected a perfect score of 400-placing 30 of his shots in the tie breaking V ring, the inner circle of the bulls-eye to smash the old record of 399-34V.

Behind the record - breaker came MTU's Sgt. Henry P. Edwards who also posted a perfect score but had only 29V's. Third place went to SFC Tolani Teleso, MTU, for a 399-36V score.

In the individual Off - hand Championship, Europe had another winner, SFC Clinton D. Stephens, with a 196-10V score out of a possible 200-46V score.

Sgt. John P. Kingeter, Third Army, followed with a second place 196-7V score and Sgt. Abelardo A. Lopez, U. S. Army Pacific team, took third place just one X under Sgt. Kingeter's score.

The final aggregate of the day, the 600-yard Rifle Championship, saw Third Army's Sgt. Hector A. Andujar post a winning 397-35V score out of a possible 400-36V score. SFC Vernon R. Read, MTU, with a 396-46V and previous record breaker. SP4 Waterman with 396-39V took second and third place respectively.

The Individual National Match Course went to MTU's SFC Cecil L. Stevens for a 248-26V score out of a possible 256-50V score. MSgt. Kenneth L. Harding of Fourth Army, and Sgt. Robert Farnham, Third Army, both posted 248-25V scores, but Sgt. Harding won second place with the greatest number of V's at long range.

Allied

Monday, Gen. Stockwell will receive honors at 3:20 p.m. on Chapel Field.

After a visit to Brig. Gen. Royal Reynolds Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School, Gen. Stockwell will see a demonstration of airborne training on Eubanks Field.

Official Reception

He will be honored at an official reception and dinner at 7 p.m. at the Supper Club of the Main Officers' Open Mess.

The next day will be devoted to TIC and TIS orientations, a weapons demonstration on Hook Range, and visits to Ranger and Infantry officer candidate training areas.

There will be an official luncheon for Gen. Stockwell at noon at the Supper Club.

Accompanying the British general on the visit to Fort Benning will be Maj. George Dulaurey of the French Army, and Capt. A. C. Vivian of the British Army, aides-de-camp.

Gen. Stockwell is scheduled to depart the post at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Stahr

fraught in the long run with comparable danger to our country and all it stands for. These are the tasks of our time. The army is addressing itself to them throughout the world as a primary instrument of our national determination to achieve lasting peace with freedom and justice.

"I salute an Army which is the finest in our peacetime history, an Army which is fully capable of performing successfully the vital modern missions which have been entrusted to it, an Army of robust Americans with faith in freedom and in themselves.

"I am confident that, no matter how long, hard and rocky the road lies ahead, the United States Army will carry on in the same spirit of dedicated service to the Nation which has been its distinction for 187 years. I extend to all its members my sincerest best wishes."

Projects

reduce the gold flow include:

Expand and formalize the credit sales program.

Consider the possibility of purchasing from other NATO nations support for U.S. combat troops in Europe in lieu of retaining troops there for that purpose.

Analyze support functions performed by U. S. personnel or U. S.-owned property for the western European nations.

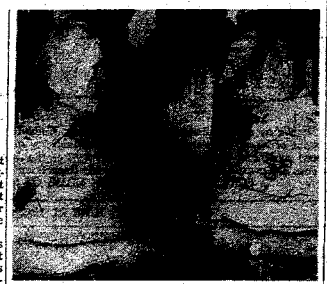
Record-Size Exercise Planned Here

The largest full - scale test exercise ever written and staged by an Army Reserve unit will be conducted here next week by the 87th Maneuver Area Command, a Reserve unit from Birmingham, Ala.

In its first week, the unit is conducting schools for test exercise personnel and also is providing training in field operations and administrative duties.

"Chief Acorn" which will be staged four days beginning June 18. In this exercise the 87th, commanded by Maj. Gen. Leon L. Mathews, will conduct the maneuver in conjunction with two battle groups of the 2nd Infantry Division.

5,000 Troops



About 5,000 troops, including some 500 of the 87th, will participate in the exercise in an area north of Buena Vista Road.

During the exercise, the 87th will be given logistical support by another Reserve unit, the 3220th Army Garrison of Jacksonville, Fla., commanded by Col. George W. Greer, Jr.

In "Chief Acorn," which will consist of realistic maneuvers, controlled orders and a simulated atomic blast, aggressor forces will attack the Fort Benning area from the south. One of the 2nd Infantry Division battle groups will act as aggressors.

A large battle group of the 2nd Division and the 87th, a counter-attacking group from the west, will attempt to drive off the invaders.

The 87th is divided into two main groups, the command and umpire sections. Exercise "Chief Acorn" was planned and conceived by command section members in Birmingham. The men of the command section will work with both the attack and defense groups to evaluate the exercise.

FIRST TICKET . . . Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell (L), commanding general of The Infantry Center, buys a ticket to the Youth Activities Club's 4th of July Carnival. Selling the ticket is Col. John M. Lattin, commander of The Infantry Center Troop Command.

MTU Firers Take Honors

Marksmanship Training Unit shooters added a pair of laurels to their weapons crowns this week when the National Rifle Association released the results of a postal International-type rifle and pistol tourney held earlier this year.

SFC Sam Hunter won the 30-shot, 50-feet handgun event with a score of 281 out of a possible 300 points.

Gary L. Anderson, now a civilian residing in Axtell, Neb., but a corporal in the Army with MTU when the matches were fired, captured the 60-shot, three-position rifle title with a score of 578 out of a possible 600 points.

Both matches were fired with .22 caliber weapons.

In the rifle match second and third place also went to the Army marksmen. Lt. Lones Wigger Jr., was runnerup with 567 and Lt. Robert B. Tree took the show spot with an identical score.

Artillerymen 'On the Spot'

When the call for help was sounded recently, the American Red Cross and members of Battery B, 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade, were "Johnny on the spot" with the necessary aid.

Sp4 Homer Dunn of Battery B was home on emergency leave in northern Tennessee when he found out his sister, Mrs. Betty Gouge, was seriously ill and in immediate need of 20 pints of blood to undergo an operation.

Upon receipt of this information, Dunn's first sergeant, Lorenzo Colon, notified the Red Cross here which assured delivery of the necessary blood to the Duke University Hospital, Durham, N. C., where Mrs. Gouge was hospitalized.

The entire battery, after finding out about a member's plight and realizing the Red Cross depends entirely upon volunteer blood donors to maintain an adequate supply of the precious fluid, volunteered to more than replace the amount of blood used.

Dunn said of the Red Cross and members of his battery, "I can't think them enough for what they have done for us."

COL. CLIFFORD

Col. Clifford Is Assigned To MAAG

Department of the Army has selected Col. Paul T. Clifford for assignment to duty with the Military Assistance Advisory Group in Viet Nam.

Col. Clifford has been director of the Ground Mobility Department, The Infantry School, since August, 1958.

Prior to his assignment here he was regimental commander, 47th Infantry, 9th Infantry Division, in Ulm, Germany, and subsequently, the assistant chief of staff (G-4), VII Corps at Stuttgart, Germany.

USMA Graduate

Col. Clifford attended Bates College, Lewiston, Maine, prior to graduation from the U. S. Military Academy in 1939.

His military assignments have been primarily as an Infantry combat leader and he has filled these leadership positions from the platoon through the regimental level. In addition, he has served at all staff levels from battalion through the Department of the Army.

Col. Clifford served in nine combat campaigns during World War II and in Korea as an Infantry battalion commander. As battalion commander, 2nd Battalion, 9th Cavalry Regiment, he led his 1950, and although seriously wounded in August, resumed command of his battalion in September.

His battalion spearheaded the attack north in September and October, and was the first American unit to cross the 38th Parallel. His battalion led the attack and was the first American unit to enter the North Korean capital of Pyong Yang.

The unit fought a two-day delaying operation in late November, 1950, against elements of two Chinese Communist Divisions which permitted two America divisions to withdraw the bulk of their forces south of the North Korean capital.

Decorations

Among his decorations are the Combat Infantry Badge (two awards), Silver Star with two Oak Leaf Clusters, Legion of Merit with Oak Leaf Cluster, Bronze Star Medal with two Oak Leaf Clusters, Purple Heart, Parachutist's Badge, Army Commendation Medal and the War Department General Staff Device.

Col. Clifford is married to the formner Reba Hunt of Columbia, S. C. their daughter, Patricia, has attended the University of South Carolina for one year, and their son, Paul Jr., graduated from Columbus High School this year.

All Have Same MOS; What Is Required?

The Army is now re-examining its system of Military Occupational Specialties (MOS).

The many skills required of a modern soldier are identified by a code: the Military Occupational Specialty numbers indicate the special knowledge and training of the individual who has earned them. These special skills have received so much attention and have been the subject of so much controversial discussion in the recent past that they sometimes obscure the basic and often intangible requirements of a soldier.

Perhaps every member of the Army should pause a moment, take stock of himself, and reconsider the fundamental characteristics required of a soldier and see whether or not he measures up.

Dedication to service, duty and country must come first. His many skills are complementary; his technical skills must be identified and developed in our modern Army, but the basic ingredients of the soldier's makeup are the foundation upon which his special skills are built and without which his technical competence may prove unreliable or uneffective at the crucial moment in battle.

MOS: SOLDIER

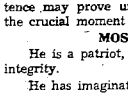
He is a patriot, is highly motived, and has integrity.

He has imagination and initiative.

He has a willing spirit, and will never give up.

He has normal human fears but stays and fights.

He willingly endures hardship in war and peace.



He understands his job and his weapons.

He is versatile and can do more than one thing well.

He is a team player and, as such, understands the necessity for discipline.

He promptly and willingly assumes the responsibility of leadership.

He places country before self. (ANS)

The Judge Says . . .

Sergeant E. Z. Hooked decided he wanted to trade his 1955 auto in for a later model car. He had finished making payments on his auto and it had a trade-in value of about $400. Hooked went to Shady Deal Car Lot and found a 1958 Suckeroo that had a cash price of $2,200.

The dealer told Hooked that he would sell the Suckeroo for $200 cash down payment and trade-in of Hooked's car. Because it was Saturday and no secretary was available, the dealer told Hooked that the contract wouldn't be typed and asked Hooked to sign in blank. Hooked agreed.

How many mistakes do you think Hooked made? Here are some:

A. Hooked never knew the total price of the car, because the time price for purchasing the car over a period of months is considerably greater than the cash price that appears on the windshield.

B. Hooked should have had the car inspected at his own expense by his own mechanic to determine its performance. Where there is no warranty as to the performance of a second-hand car, the dealer only guarantees that he has free title to the car.

C. Hooked shouldn't have signed the contract in blank no matter what the circumstances. Under the applicable law, Hooked is presumed to know and understand the full contract, and he is bound by all entries which appear on the contract.

About one week after Hooked got the car, he received a payment book and letter from Soakem Finance Company, telling Hooked that his payments would be $60.00 per month for 36 months. Hooked never multiplied these two figures to determine how much he was actually paying, but he thought $60 per month did not sound too stiff. After making five payments Hooked got behind and before he knew it the finance had picked up the car. At this point in the game, how much do you think Hooked has lost?

"DO YOU THINK THEY KNOW WE'RE MARRIED?"

SURGEON SAYS

Physical Therapy

By Maj. Ruth Bradley

One of the forms of medical treatment becoming more familiar to the public today is physical therapy.

Physical therapy may be defined as the science which deals with the management of disease and injury by physical means. These agents are light, heat, cold, water, electricity, exercise and massage.

However, it is no modern treatment or miracle cure. It is one of the oldest treatments known. The primitive man who crawled into the sunshine to receive the benefit of its warmth started the practice of heat therapy. The first man who bathed a wound in a stream started hydrotherapy. The first man who rubbed a bruised muscle and tried to maintain normal motion in a joint introduced massage and therapeutic exercise.

The basic aim, then as now, is the desire and effort to overcome physical limitations and handicaps; to keep and maintain maximum use of the body.

It is one of the newest practices in the medical field because only in the past 40 years has it come to be recognized as a necessary part of regular medicine. The Army Medical Service has been outstanding in pioneering and developmental work in physical therapy.

The inception of physical therapy as a professional entity began in the Army Medical Service during World War I. The first professional course in physical therapy was established by the Army at Walter Reed General Hospital in 1922.

During World War II, physical therapists were employed as civilians in the Army Medical Service until 1943 at which time they received temporary commissions. Permanent Army commissions became available to physical therapists in 1947 with the organization of the Women's Medical Specialist Corps. It was redesignated the Army Medical Specialist Corps in 1955 when an act to amend the Army Navy Nurse Act of 1947 to authorize male nurses and medical specialists to be appointed as reserve officers, was passed. Army physical therapists wear a gold caduceus with a black "S" superimposed on it.

Physical therapy is concerned not only with the early stages of medical care as applied to conditions such as poliomyelitis, orthopedic injuries, nerve injuries, and chest surgery, but it is essential throughout the recovery period for shortening

Representative Government

Modern representative government follows two forms. In the presidential form, the chief executive is elected to office for a definite term, and holds office irrespective of the legislature. In the United States, the President, as chief executive, may be elected for a second term but not for a third term, according to the Twenty-second Amendment (1951).

Under a parliamentary government such as that of Great Britain, the voters elect the members of the principal house of Parliament or legislature, while the legislature, in turn, selects and controls the Prime Minister and other Ministers, namely, the chief executive officials or heads of the various departments of government.

As concerns liberty, the virtues of the representative system of government are as follows:

(1) In large modern democracies, pure democracy or direct participation of everybody in government is impossible.

(2) Representative government is the only other system that permits full indirect participation of all the people in government.

(3) Under the presidential form, the chief executive is responsible to the voters who can change the President and Vice-President at the next election.

(4) Under the parliamentary form, the Prime Minister and other Ministers are chosen by the parliamentary parties in a legislature which, in turn, is elected by the voters, while the legislature can change the executive officers at any time.

(5) In both the presidential and the parliamentary forms, the members of the legislature are chosen by the voters.

(6) Under both forms, the legislature determines how far the laws shall limit the liberty of individuals in the interest of promoting the welfare and security of the entire community.

(7) In systems of representative government which, like the American system, follow the principle of supremacy of constitutional law, the Supreme Court can check the legislature.

(8) Under both the presidential and the parliamentary forms, the legislature exerts a check upon the executive which is the most likely of these two branches of government to develop into dictatorship.

The Ideal Form

Representative government is the ideal form of government for modern states. Under it, the liberty of the individual is best safe-guarded while progress in promoting the general welfare is best assured. But, as implied earlier, the ideal form may not be the best government for any given people at any given time.

The full representative system presupposes universal suffrage, wide popular education, long experience in local self-government, a sense of moderation, respect for law, abiding tradition and customs, and considerable national solidarity.

The free peoples of the modern world have moved progressively toward the goal of representative government. This form of government is the only modern system that permits self-rule. It has proved the best safeguard for the rights of the individual. It meets the test of promoting the "greatest happiness of the greatest number" as well as the test of developing the good qualities of all citizens.

This series is taken from Ideas in Conflict, Liberty, and Communism (DOD Pam 311), published by the Directorate for Armed Forces Information and Education, Department of Defense.

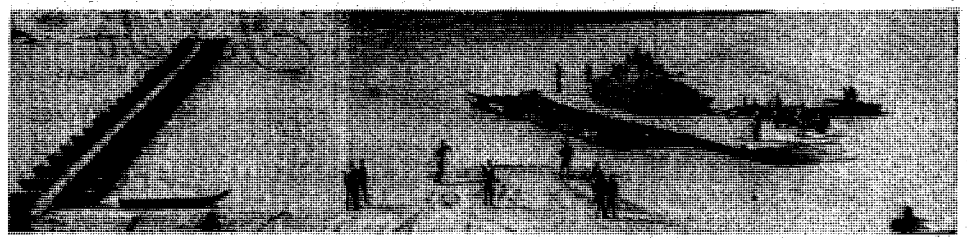
CHAPLAIN'S CORNER

Where Are You Going?

By Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Bernard M. Burns

An American riding on a train in Northern China found the behaviour of a native vendor extremely interesting. He leaned over each traveler in turn, apparently extolling his wares; but didn't make one sale.

Despite that, he would ask each person some further question and the answer was invariably a startled look on the face of the passenger.



Finally the curiosity of the American led him to call the vendor to ask him what it was that upset the travelers.

"Well," the native explained, "I ask them: 'Where are you going?' and they usually answer, naming this city or that. But then I tell them that isn't what I meant —that what I meant was: 'Where are you going when you die?'. . . it seems to make every one of them stop to think."

The eternal destiny of every human being is the same. We have all been created by our God for Himself, so ultimate possession of Him in heaven is our end. God makes known to us how we are to accomplish our end. But, since He made us free, He does not force us.

Knowing the purpose of our existence, we must subordinate our daily thoughts, words and actions to that end. It might be well for us each day to ask ourselves: "Where am I going——when I die?"

Keeping our thoughts, words and actions in line with our end, we'll always be able to answer the question in a favorable manner: "I'm going to the God Who made me for Himself, Whose possession will be the complete satisfaction of my human nature."

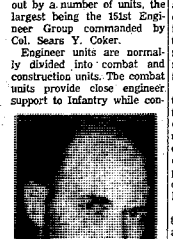
The 72nd Engineers Put On Rafting And Bridging Demonstrations As Part Of Their TIS Support Mission.

Engineers Celebrate 187th Year; Have Proud History

Fort Benning's approximately 3,500 engineers join with their counterparts in other stations today in celebration of the 187th anniversary of the Corps of Engineers.

The engineers, a combat arm as well as a technical service, are always prepared to reorganize as Infantry should the need arise.

Here at The Infantry Center, Engineer missions are carried out by a number of units, the largest being the 151st Engineer Group commanded by Col. Sears Y. Coker.



Engineer units are normally divided into combat and construction units. The combat units provide close engineer support to Infantry while constructing Logistical and administrative support is given these units.

Engineer units within the group have organized teams and units to implement war plans and support domestic emergencies. These fire-fighting, water supply, rescue and recovery teams are available on a 24-hour base basis.

One major mission is the operation of the Float Bridge across the Chattahoochee River at Bradley's Landing which is located on the access route to the Alabama side of the reservation. The bridge carries both military and civilian traffic.

The parent organization of the 151st Engineer Group was the 1115th Engineer Combat Group in December, 1942. This unit landed on Omaha Beach on June 17, 1944, and proceeded across France winning campaign streamers for Normandy, Northern France, Rhineland, and Central Europe.

The most distinguished actions were the river crossings at St.-Lo, Vire, The Seine, The Maas, and The Roer. Deactivated after the World War II. The Combat Group was reactivated here in June, 1954, as the 151st Engineer Group (Combat).

COL. COKER

391st Engineer Battalion

The 391st Engineer Battalion is a rescue combat battalion from Greenville, S. C. The parent unit was the 52nd Engineer Regiment (Combat). Organized in May 1942, this unit was redesignated a battalion and campaigned in the Philippines. The campaign streamers include Western Pacific (with arrowhead awarded for participation in an assault landing) and the Philippine Presidential Unit Citation Embroidered "17 October 1944 to 4 July 1945."

The Unit was deactivated after the war. Reactivated in 1947, it was redesignated the 391st Engineer Battalion (combat) in May 1953. The 391st has been commanded by Lt. Col. Karl E. Nuessner since 1959. The unit was recalled to active duty last October and is scheduled for release in August.

489th Engineers

The 489th Engineer Battalion is also a reserve battalion recalled to active duty last year and scheduled for release in August.

The parent unit was organized in Hawaii as the 1st Battalion, 367th Engineer Regiment (Special Service). The battalion served in the Pacific and the Ryukyus, and was awarded a Meritorious Unit Streamer Embroidered "Asiatic-Pacific Theatre."

Redesignated the 489th Engineer Battalion, the unit was deactivated in 1950. In 1955 it was reactivated as a Ready Reserve unit under the command of Lt. Col. Frank R. Allen.

577th Engineer

The 577th Engineer Battalion is a Regular Army unit under the command of Lt. Col. James H. Boykin. The battalion traces its lineage to April, 1942, when the 377th Engineer Battalion was organized. The unit operated in the European Theatre during World War II and received campaign streamers for its operations in Northern France and the Rhineland.

The battalion is actively engaged in support of TIC. During the last year the 577th rehabilitated Malone Rouge, moving 118,000 cubic yards of fill; rehabilitated Crain Hall, the Main NCO Club; designed a mile and a half of Marne Road; and erected a 40-foot by 100-foot Prefabricated Butler Building.

806th Engineers

The 806th Engineer Battalion has been in existence as a Regular Army unit since its activation in August, 1942. During World War II the 806th served in the Ryukyus and was awarded the "Asiatic Pacific Theatre" campaign streamer.

After the war, the battalion did Air Force work in the British West Indies where it built airfields and also constructed down-range facilities for the Atlantic Missile Range. In 1959 the unit moved to Fort Benning.

The battalion is presently commanded by Lt. Col. W. H. Wilson, and is actively engaged in projects on post. The most notable of these during the past year have been the con-

72nd Takes Active Part In School

The 72nd Engineer Company is part of the 1st Infantry Brigade and is actively engaged in The Infantry School support under the command of 1st Lt. Jery N. Huguley.

The company furnishes troop support for demolition, river crossing, pioneering, and field fortification problems. Most recently the 72nd staged nuclear simulators for the Joint Civilian Orientation Conference.

The 72nd also has a distinguished history. It landed on Normandy on "D Plus Two Day" and worked across France into Germany, engaging in five major campaigns.

In Korea, the company performed its mission so effectively that it was awarded five Republic of Korea Presidential Unit Citations and nine campaign streamers.

Birthday Messages

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following messages were directed to members of the Corps of Engineers by Lt. Gen. W. K. Wilson, chief of engineers, and Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center.)

GEN. WILSON

Once again on 16 June, the 187th anniversary of the establishment of the Army's Corps of Engineers, we find ourselves mindful of both our accomplishments and of the steadily increasing importance of our work to national security and advancement.

Although the Army is under reorganization to make it a harder - hitting force more responsive to requirements of defense in an ever-changing international environment, the Chief of Engineers retains his continued operational responsibility for programs in Military Construction; building ground facilities for the exploration of space in support of NASA; as head of the major Federal planning and construction agency for water resources development; for the production of topographical maps for the Armed Forces and as manager of real estate for the Army and Air Force. In addition, the Chief is the principal staff officer responsible for monitoring the worldwide military engineering effort of the Army.

As we enter upon the 188th year of our existence, the Corps' missions are more challenging than ever before. All of us, both military and civilian personnel, must give our best to the job at hand, whatever it may be, if we are to maintain our traditionally high standards of performance and accomplishment.

Today, you of the Corps are helping to write new and exciting chapters for national history. I am proud of your work in the past and confident of your capabilities of carrying it forward in the future.

GEN. HARRELL

On the occasion of the 187th anniversary of the Corps of Engineers, I extend congratulations on behalf of the personnel of the United States Army Infantry Center.

The distinguished record of the Corps of Engineers is replete with examples of leadership, individual initiative and perseverance, professional skill and outstanding efficiency. The high level of performance of challenging missions in peace and war has earned for the members of the Corps "a respected place as valued members of the United States Army.

I feel confident that the Corps will meet its future commitments with the same proficiency it has displayed in the past.

Anniversary Celebrated With Large Parade Here

Engineer units here celebrated their 187th anniversary of the Corps of Engineers Wednesday and Thursday.

The local ceremonies started Wednesday with the arrival of Lt. Gen. Walter K. Wilson Jr., chief of engineers, Washington, D. C.

After a visit with Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center, Gen. Wilson toured installations and projects of the 151st Engineer Group and visited post engineer activities.

That evening there was a reception for all engineer officers at the Main Officers Open Mess. Gen. Wilson was guest speaker at a dinner at the Supper Club.

Activities continued Thursday morning with a parade of all post engineer units at Weatherby Field near Sand Hill. The units were reviewed by Gen. Harrell and Col. Sears Y. Coker, 151st Engineer Group commander. At least one piece of each type engineer equipment was displayed during the parade.

Units taking part in the two-day celebration were the 151st Engineer Group, 586th and 72 Engineer Companies; the 2nd, 577th and 806th Engineer Battalions; 114th and 186th National Guard Engineer Companies of Washington, D. C., and Brewton, Ala., respectively; and the 391st and 489th Engineer Battalions, Army Reserve units from Greenville, S. C., and Pine Bluff, Ark.

Tropical Island Theme Sets Scene At Luncheon

Thousands of orchids and gardenias transformed the Custer Terrace Officers Club into a tropical island Wednesday when ladies of the 1st Infantry Brigade met for the monthly luncheon. The 58th Infantry ladies were hostesses for the event.

The club became "Hawaii" for the afternoon, with driftwood, posters, leis, shells and sand all brought to focus with the Hawaiian Tiki god.

The luncheon marked goodbye to Mrs. William H. Birdsong Jr.

Mrs. Richard W. Keyes, wife of the new brigade commander, was welcomed into the group. Also welcomed as new members of the unit were Mrs. Marvin O. Tibbetts and Mrs. George C. Dabignon of the 29th Infantry; and from the 58th Infantry were Mesdames James W. Bennett, Berkley F. Badgett, Vanik S. Eaddy, David McCleery, Robert S. Rose, and John Smith.

Following the luncheon, a program featuring Hawaiian dancing was presented by teenagers. The girls, attired in grass skirts and orchid leis, were trained by Miss Anita Braun, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Walter R. Braun, and Miss Mary Beth Joseph, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Vern L. Joseph.

The dancers included Jane Wallace, Cathie Jestice, Carla Sophira, Peggy Joseph, Holly Lynn, and Johnnie Hare. Solo numbers were danced by Anita Braun and Mary Beth Joseph.

Narration for the program was handled by Mrs. James W. Bennett Jr. whose home is Hawaii. The original material was developed by Mrs. William F. Dellinger, also a native of the islands.

The luncheon was planned by Mrs. Charles T. Caprino and a committee from the 58th Infantry. Those working included Mrs. Mead R. Bramblet, decorations; Mrs. Darrell W. Truitt, arrangements; Mrs. Richard Schaeffer, Mrs. Joe D. Huddleston, Mrs. Travis W. White, Mrs. James Clodfelder, Mrs. Wallace Viau, Mrs. Joseph Prescott, Mrs. Larry T. Walker, Mrs. Berkley Badgett, Mrs. John Allen, Mrs. Edgar Burch, Mrs. Thomas Atwood, Mrs. Edward L. Shank, Mrs. Robert Rose and Mrs. James F. Foley.

Those ladies who are leaving the Brigade before the next luncheon, scheduled for September, are Mesdames Mead R. Bramblett, Thomas Atwood, Edward L. Shank, Stefano Bianchi.

The door prizes, beachbags and airplane totebags, were won by Wallace Viau, Mrs. Travis White, Mrs. Vanik Eaddy and Mrs. Jack J. Lyan.

Presented with orchid leis were the guests of honor, Mrs. William Birdsong, Mrs. Richard W. Keyes, and Mrs. Keyes' mother, Mrs. Blair, Mrs. Charles T. Caprino, Mrs. Wallis McClain, Mrs. Lawrence S. Reynolds, Mrs. Paul C. Embley, and Mrs. Harvey R. Barker.

Souvenir leis and flowers were presented to each lady attending.

Spring Luncheon Held By Student Wives Recently

The Custer Terrace Branch of the Main Officers Open Mess was the scene of a recent luncheon for the student wives of the Communication Class Three, 2nd Student Battalion, The Student Brigade.

Mrs. Lawrence Willoughby and Mrs. James Rogers acted as hostesses for the affair. Special guests were Mrs. Hubert E. Strange, Mrs. Vern L. Joseph and Mrs. Arthur P. Wourms Jr.

The program was presented by a local bakery. Three cakes were decorated and then donated as door prizes.

Yellow and white summer flowers, flanked on either side by silver candlesticks, were used as a centerpiece.

A social hour preceded the luncheon.

TICTC Ladies Greet Arrivals At Maricle Home

The home of Mrs. Louis J. Maricle was the scene of a coffee given recently for the ladies of The Infantry Center Troop Command. Hostesses were wives of Troop Command Headquarters.

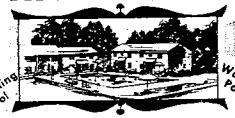
Mrs. Ben Harrell was introduced as a guest and special recognition was given to newcomers to TICTC. These included Mrs. Gus A. Wolman Jr., Mrs. Eugene Stivender, Mrs. Dennis Leffler, and Mrs. J. M. Reaves.

Follow-Up Coffee Held

The wives of the Infantry Officer's Orientation Course 16 held their Follow-Up Coffee recently in the lounge of Detachment 24, 2nd Student Battalion, The Student Brigade.

Maj. Jessie A. Hotchkiss spoke in regard to articles and books obtainable at the Post Book Store and the two branch locations.

Mrs. Carl E. Kasemeir spoke regarding social activities for the ladies. A luncheon was planned for the month of June.



An arrangement of assorted spring flowers was used by the cadre hostesses, Mrs. James A. Miller and Mrs. Ernest R. Gunn, on the serving table.

TSB Wives Welcomed At Coffee

The ladies of the Infantry Officers' Orientation Course 17 attended the wives' coffee recently in the day room of Detachment 23, 2nd Student Battalion, The Student Brigade.

Mrs. Richard Q. Lewis made the welcoming speech. Plans were made for a luncheon and casserole dinner to be held during the latter part of June.

Maj. Jessie Hotchkiss spoke briefly to the ladies about the Post Book Store, outlining the many services available and its branch locations.

A floral centerpiece of spring flowers was used as decoration.

Mrs. Vern L. Joseph was guest of honor.

Quartermaster Corps Observes 187th Year

Today at 2:30 p.m. The Quartermaster Section of The Infantry Center, under the direction of Col. Edward M. Foxworth, will observe the 187th anniversary of the Quartermaster Corps.

The observance of Quartermaster Day will be held at Building 2594 (Parachute Maintenance Building).

The Quartermaster Corps began June 16, 1775 when, during the Revolutionary War, the Second Continental Congress passed a resolution providing: That there be one Quartermaster General for the Grand Army, and one deputy under him for the Separate Army...."

Col. Thomas Mifflin was appointed as the first Quartermaster General Aug. 14, 1775. Mifflin's duties were relatively few, compared with the duties of today's Quartermaster Corps. He was responsible for collecting intelligence information, planning marches and distributing march orders. He also laid out camps and assigned quarters. He was literally a "Quartermaster".

In the Civil War period, an Army of more than one million had to be fed, transported and clothed. The Quartermaster Corps met this problem and handled it successfully.

Gen. Ulysses S. Grant wrote: "There never was a corps better organized than was the Quartermaster's Corps with the Army of the Potomac in 1864."

During the Spanish-American War, Quartermaster developed the khaki uniform, marking the first use by the Army of a camouflage color for combat use.

In World War I, an Army of four million men was raised and half that number sent to Europe. More than 48 per cent of supplies sent to Europe were Quartermaster items.

Supply figures were far greater in World War II. More than 55 million tons of food were supplied, 28 million pairs of combat boots, 96 million pairs of shoes, 360 million pairs of socks and 178 million pairs of trousers.

The Korean Conflict brought about an expanded air-supply operation. The Quartermaster Corps delivered thousands of tons of food and clothing and other supplies to forward areas in Korea by air, while conducting normal Quartermaster ground supply operations.

Today the Quartermaster Corps is guided by the traditions of service to the troops which have been developed during the past 187 years.

convalescence and improving ultimate function.

In the rehabilitation of the disabled, the physical therapist teaches both young and old, military and their dependents how to walk using crutches, how to walk in casts, how to increase strength and function of weak muscles, how to avoid stiffening of joints and shortening of muscles and how to decrease muscular pain.

The work involved has as its basis the firm foundation and knowledge of a normal working body capable of doing average activities. The treatments are administered and supervised by physical therapists who are graduates of approved schools of physical therapy and who are commissioned officers of the Army Medical Specialist Corps. They are assisted by enlisted technicians who have been thoroughly trained in their field both in Army schools and through on the job training.

Physical therapy in the hospital today is no independent clinic. At Martin Army Hospital it functions under the direct supervision of the Orthopedic Service. This service is offered to all patients who can benefit by it on prescription of a medical officer together with other related services.

Physical therapy plays an important role in aiding the patient to acquire physical, occupational and social independence.

EM AWARD . . . Sp4 James B. D. Ward, Company C, 156th Signal Battalion, is honored as the enlisted man, E-4 and below, who has contributed most to the betterment of the company during the past year. Presenting the trophy is 1st Lt. Gordon E. Wallace. The award is in the honor of Maj. Arthur D. Bush who commanded this former Infantry unit during World War II. The unit is a Michigan National Guard company. Ward is a filler personnel, recalled and assigned to the company.

Then on top of everything else about three weeks after the finance company had picked up the car, Hooked received a letter stating that the car had been sold for $1400, and after allowing credit for all paymeots, Hooked still owed $460.00.

Does Hooked owe $460? Legally he is so indebted and may be sued for the amount in a civilian court.

If you have any doubts about buying a car see your legal assistance officer.

Signalmen In Exercise

Four Reserve and National Guard signal units selected one officer and 35 enlisted men to take part in "Exereise Clear Lake", now being conducted by the U. S. Strike Command at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla.

Participating units are the 156th Signal Battalion; Company C, 204th Signal Battalion; the 223d Signal Company, and the 111th Signal Company (Large Base).

The men left their units for Florida on May 21 and are expected to return after June 10, when the exercise will be completed.

PROMOTED
Maj. Shelnut

Maj Shelnut Is Promoted At Div G-3

Major James R. Shelnut was promoted Monday to his present grade in ceremonies at the Division G-3 office. Major Shelnut entered the Army in 1946. His first tour of duty was at Fort Jackson, South Carolina.

In 1947 Major Shelnut was sent to Japan where he served with the 6th and 7th Divisions. He returned to the United States in 1949 and was stationed with the 82nd Airborne Division at Fort Bragg, N. C. In December 1951 he was once again sent to the Far East where he served in Korea until November 1952. He returned to Fort Bragg and the 82nd Airborne and served there until he came to Fort Benning to attend the Career Officers in 1955 and 1956.

He was sent to Europe in November 1956 and served with the Army Security Agency, returning in 1959 to Fort Benning.

Go-to-Chapel-Sunday Scheduled This Weekend by Div. Chaplains

By Chaplain (Major) Clement P. J. Krug

Editor's Note: This Sunday, Fort Benning is scheduled to observe Go-To-Chapel-Sunday. The following article, written by Assistant Division Chaplain, (Major), Clement P. J. King, explains the purpose of this service and why all military personnel are urged to attend the chapel of their choice this Sunday.

The 2nd Infantry Division has observed semi-annually a day of religious emphasis for the past two years. Consistent with this program June 17, Go-To - Chapel - Sunday, will again highlight this observance.

The purpose of Go-To-Chapel-Sunday is to bring all the Division officers and enlisted men and their families to the post chapels to worship together. When a division worships together, there is instilled in each individual a sense of religious awareness whereby the command not only reconfirms its recognition of the great ideals of God and country, which we profess and fight to protect, but also prays with the awareness of our need for God's help in achieving these ends.

One is aware that the members of the division do worship with these ideals in mind when they attend their respective churches near their homes; but when they all meet within garrison chapels for this purpose, one becomes cognizant of a greater unity of worship and hence a greater strength for action. If we worship Him with unity and strength in the present, then we can be confident of His blessing for our country in the future.

A special invitation is extended to each member of the 2nd Division to attend Go-To-Church-Sunday.

Each major unit has planned a luncheon or a tea to follow the services.

Listed below are the various chapel services that will be held Sunday in the 2nd Division area:

Protestant

Sand Hill
Chapel No. 1, 11 a.m., Chaplain Lam
Chapel No. 2, 11 a.m., Chaplain Lee

(Although there are no special Jewish services planned for this weekend, Jewish personnel are urged to attend regular Friday night services at the Post Jewish Center, Building 1071, Main Post. A special program sponsored by the National Jewish Welfare Board and the Department of the Army will be presented next Friday at the Jewish Center.)

See The Judge

Another in a series of articles concerning personal financial management appears in this week's issue of The Bayonet.

See "The Judge Says," page 4.

Brigadier General Andrew A. Lipscomb, (left), Deputy Commander of the XVIII Airborne Corps, discusses phases of troop training with Lieutenant Colonel Cecil M. Sanders, the 23rd Infantry commander.

The training at this point involved dry and wet net amphibious operations at Upatoi Creek. While on post last week, General Lipscomb also saw Ranger training, demolition training, and loading and securing of heavy vehicles.

Gen. Chase Visits Task Force in Va

By 1st Infantry PIO

Major General Charles H. Chase, Division commander, visited the 1st Infantry Task Force at Little Creek, Va., on Tuesday, June 5th. Colonel Walter B. Todd, commander of the 1st Infantry and the Task Force, greeted the general and immediately briefed him on the operations of the exercise "Operation Tiger Shark."

General Chase arrived Tuesday morning at the Naval Air Station. He began his visit with a tour of the Army's Hampton Roads Terminal where the loading of vehicles on the Naval ships was in progress.

The general was escorted to the USS Fremont commanded by Captain Loyd V. Young. While there Captain Young explained the operation of the ship and many of the tasks that are carried on.

General Chase next visited the USS Wyandot and observed the loading of vehicles. Captain F. R. Whitby, ship commander, explained the methods used for loading the vehicles into the holds.

DEPARTED
Lt. Col. Scott

Lt Col Scott Is Assigned To Germany

By 7th Cavalry PIO

Lieutenant Colonel Harvey Scott, former commander of the 7th Cavalry, has recently departed for his new assignment in Germany. Colonel Scott will be assigned to the staff and faculty, United States Armor School, Fort Knox, Kentucky, with duty station at the Panzertruppenschule, (German Armor School), Munsterluger, Germany, as liaison officer.

Prior to Colonel Scott's departure for Germany, he will have to attend two schools here in the United States. He will attend a special orientation at Fort Knox, Kentucky, for six days and then go to Washington, D. C., to attend a school for eight weeks in commercial language training in German. Upon Colonel Scott's arrival in Germany, he will attend the Battalion Commander's Course at the Germany Armor School.

Assigned as repair advisor with the 702nd's Headquarters and Company B during the period of May 1959 to January 1962, Sergeant Campbell was instrumental in preparing his unit for the Annual General and Command Maintenance Inspections which resulted in ratings of Superior.

During the months of May, June and July 1959 through 1961, Sergeant Campbell was responsible for the superior condition of ordnance material of the division that was used for display and instruction in connection with the Infantry ROTC program. His efforts were rewarded by many complimentary remarks received from higher headquarters and from the ROTC cadets.

In February 1962, Sergeant Campbell was promoted to the grade of master sergeant (E8) while working as the division ordnance sergeant.

At present, Sergeant Campbell makes his home in Columbus with his wife, Jurgen, the son of Sergeant and Mrs. Campbell, is a freshman at Auburn University.

Sergeant Campbell Will Leave 2nd Div for Korea

Master Sergeant Keith I. Campbell is leaving the 2nd Infantry Division for a new assignment in Korea.

Assigned as division ordnance sergeant with the 702nd Ordnance Battalion, Sergeant Campbell leaves behind a long list of accomplishments.

Sergeant Campbell joined what is now the 702nd Ordnance Battalion at Fort Riley, Kansas in 1955 prior to that unit being moved to Germany under Operation Gyroscope. After serving three years in Germany with the 710th Ordnance Battalion, Sergeant Campbell returned to Fort Benning with that unit and remained on the same job when the 710th was re-designated as the 702nd Ordnance Battalion and assigned to the 2nd Infantry Division.

87th Gains 4 Officers

Four officers joined the ranks of the 87th Infantry last week.

Lieutenant John E. Watts has received an assignment with Company C. A former student at Gordon Military College, he received his reserve officer's commission from the University of Georgia last year.

Lieutenant Robert W. Boylston has been assigned as a platoon leader with Company A. Receiving his bachelor of arts degree from the University of Alabama in 1961, he was commissioned in the same year from ROTC.

Lieutenant Randolph J. Moore has been assigned to Combat Support Company. Having attained a degree in Industrial Relations from City College on N. Y. last year, he was commissioned in November.

Lieutenant William W. Francis is also with Combat Support Company as the heavy mortar fire direction officer. A graduate of Presbyterian College, S. C., with a bachelor of arts degree in sociology, Lt. Francis was commissioned in July 1960. He received a masters degree from Springfield College in Massachusets.

9th Infantry Holds Flag Day Review Tomorrow; Unit Flag, 47 Streamers, Commemorate Battles

By 9th Infantry PIO

At the 9th Infantry's Flag Day review tomorrow at Weatherby Field "Old Glory" will be the predominent feature as her stars and stripes flow in the breeze. Flying slightly lower will be the 9th's regimental colors with its 47 battle streamers secured at the top of its mast. Colonel Clifford P. Hannum, 9th Infantry commander, will attend the ceremony and will review the troops.

The hard-fought-for streamers commemorate honors earned in eight wars and two campaigns. The 9th Infantry can well be proud of this and rightfully is.

First organized in 1798 when the war with France appeared immenent, the 9th Infantry was subsequently disbanded. The regiment was organized anew for the War of 1812 and the War with Mexico in 1846. The fourth constitution of the 9th dates from March 1855.

The year 1962 marks the 107th year of continuous service for the 9th. The second battle group recognizes June 14th as the date of its fourth birthday, being activated in 1958.

The fight to win the West provided the incentive for organizing the 9th Infantry at Fort Monroe, Virginia, in 1855. From December of that year until 1892, a span of 37 years, the regiment colors flew in the West. With its mission of protecting the settlers and towns of the West, the 9th fought in more than 400 battles and skirmishes against the Indians.

Initially based in the Washington Territory, the 9th and its colors served in California, Wyoming, Nebraska, Montana, Idaho, Utah, the Dakotas, Oregon, Nevada and Arizona.

Battle honors from the Civil War were accrued by the 9th Infantry in 1863 when the personnel and colors of the old 27th Infantry Regiment were consolidated with the 9th. This consolidation brought streamers earned in campaigns in Tennessee, Georgia, and Kentucky to the 9th Infantry colors.

In 1892 the regiment was transferred to Madison Barracks, New York, for six years of garrison duty. In 1898, however, the regiment fought in the war against Spain. Following the short war, the 9th returned to New York. The following year, the 9th embarked for Manila to aid in suppressing Philippine insurgents. On June 16, 1900, the regiment sailed for action against the fighters in the Chinese Boxer Rebellion.

It was in China that the 9th acquired three of its most valued possessions: the Liscum Bowl, (a silver punch bowl trophy valued at $50,000), the "Keep Up the Fire" motto, and the "Manchu Regiment" nickname. In July 1900, the regiment assaulted Tientsin and lost its commander, Colonel Emerson Liscum. As the Colonel fell before the walled city, his dying words to his command were, "Keep up the fire!"

Following the Boxer Rebellion, the 9th returned to the Philippines for more campaigning against the insurrectionists. From 1902 through 1907 the regiment engaged in peacetime duties.

In 1914 the 9th Infantry sailed for France. Beginning its long period of service with the newly organied 2nd Infantry Division, the 9th Infantry met and defeated the elite of the German Army in such battles as Lorraine, Ile de France, St. Michiel, and Meuse Argonne. For its gallant action the "Fighting Ninth" received the Fourragere in the colors of the French Croix de Guerre.

After a short tour of occupation duty, the 9th returned to the United States and for the next 23 years served the longest continuous non-combat period in its history as part of the 2nd Division at Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

In World War II, the 9th entered combat in Normandy on D-Day plus one. Campaigning in France, Germany, and Central Europe, the regiment added many more battle honors to its distinguished record. These included the right to wear the Belgian Fourragere for gallant conduct in the bloody Battle of the Bulge. During the war, 5,818 individual awards were given to the Manchumen including one Medal of Honor, 11 Distinguished Service Crosses and 169 Silver Stars.

A short period of peace ensued before the 9th Infantry was again committed to battle with the Indianhead Division in the Korean Conflict. The first 2nd Division unit to land in Korea, the 9th Infantry pushed further north than any other element of the Indianhead Division.

After three years of fighting in Korea and 10 campaigns, the 9th returned with the parent Division to Fort Lewis, Washington in 1954. In 1958 the 9th rotated to Alaska under Operation Gyroscope. In November 1957 the 9th terminated 40 years of continuous service as part of the Second Division when control of the Division was passed to the Department of the Army. The 9th's 1st Battle Group remained on active duty as part of the Alaska Command.

By 7th Cavalry PIO

Major Charles A. Busch, former executive officer of the 7th Cavalry, has assumed command of the squadron upon the departure of Lieutenant Colonel Harvey Scott, who recently left for a new assignment in Germany.

Major Busch joined the squadron in September 1961, and was assigned as the S3 for a short time. In November 1961, he became the squadron executive officer.

Major Busch joined the Army in 1941, and, after attending Officers' Candidate School in 1943, was commissioned. During World War II he served in the campaigns of Normandy, Northern France, Rhineland and Central Europe. Major Busch has been awarded the Bronze Star and the Combat Infantry Badge in addition to other decorations.

He has had many varied experiences and assignments. He served with the 14th Armored Cavalry Regiment in Germany and the 2d and 1st Armored Divisions at Fort Hood, Texas. In 1953 he was assigned to MAAG, Taiwan, as an advisor to the Chinese Army Armor School. In 1955 he returned to Fort Knox with the US Army Armor Board, and in 1959 he was assigned to the US Army Arctic Test Board at Fort Greely, Alaska.

First Summer Coffee Is Held By Second Div Officers' Wives Club

The first summer coffee of the year was held last Tuesday by the 2nd Division Officers' Wives Club. The event was held in the Custer Terrace Officers Club.

The ladies of the 2nd Medium Tank Battalion, 69th Armor, served as hostesses. They included Mrs. Robert Culverhouse, Mrs. Arno Apel, Mrs. Harold W. Roeder, Mrs. Robert Miles, Mrs. Douglas Smith, Mrs. Joseph Breznicky, Mrs. Charles Lenzi and Mrs. Joseph Kelly.

Mrs. Stephen Kovacs and Mrs. Robert Smith presided at the coffee table. Mrs. Kelly was in charge of the punch bowl.

The theme of the coffee was "June is bustin' out all over." The centerpiece for the main serving table was an arrangement of spring flowers in yellow, green and white. Placed on the side tables were straw hats filled with fresh fruits and vegetables. The name tags for the hostess unit were tiny white lace garden baskets filled with yellow and white flowers tied with green ribbon.

Mrs. James T. Kolb presided at a short business meeting. She presented Certificates of Merit to Mrs. Albert H. Becker and Mrs. Herbert Coburn. Mrs. G. M. Bacharach was presented with a large silver tray as a parting gift from the ladies.

Mrs. Kolb introduced Colonel G. M. Bacharach, 2nd Division chief of staff, the guest speaker of the day. Colonel Bacharach gave a short talk on the management of the family income and how important a role the wife has in it.

The centerpieces were donated as door prizes. The large floral arrangement was won by Mrs. Jack Sampson. Mrs. H. T. Kelman and Mrs. Ray Walch won the smaller baskets.

NCO Wives Profile

Mrs. Hutchko Retires; Reflects on Busy Year

Mrs. Walter D. Hutchko retiring president of the Ladies of the Big Indianhead, can look back upon the club's past activities with a sense of accomplishment.

From wielding a paint brush to presiding at teas, luncheons, etc., the president's job is a busy one. During Mrs. Hutchko's tenure, donations and contributions were made to 2nd Division Museum, Millegeville Hospital, Sand Hill Nursery, needy families, Benning School for library and special classes, Girl Scouts and Soldier of the Year.

In addition there was also the social side which included the quarterly dinner dance, seasonal parties, such as Christmas and Easter, were given for the children.

Mrs. Hutchko will officially hand over the reins of the club to Mrs. James Scott of June 21 at the monthly business meeting. Shortly after performing her final duty as president, the Hutchkos will depart for Johnstown, Pa., where she and her son Donald will reside while Sgt. Hutchko serves a tour of duty in Korea.

Corps of Engineers Anniversary Observed By 2nd Engr. Battalion

By 2nd Engr PIO

This week members of the 2nd Engineer Battalion joined with engineer units throughout the world in observing the 167th anniversary of the Corps of Engineers.

On June 16, 1775, the Continental Congress passed a resolution providing for one Chief Engineer of the Grand Army with two assistants, and thus the anniversary day of the Corps of Engineers was originated.

Since 1824 the Corps of Engineers has had responsibility for civil works construction required for navigation and flood control measures need for our expanding country. This organization of the Corps of Engineers for river and harbor construction also undertakes contract construction for the Army and Air Force, assists in civil emergencies such as floods and hurricanes, wartime expansion of armed forces facilities and gives peacetime training.

Elements of the Corps of Engineers include the combat engineers, engineer special brigades and the aviation engineers.

Lieutenant General Walter K. Wilson Jr. is the present Chief of the Corps of Engineers.

The 2nd Engineer Battalion, 2nd Infantry Division, presently commanded by Lieutenant Colonel Edwin T. O'Donnel, was first organized on August 3, 1861 from one existing company and three new companies of Engineer soldiers. It was designated the "Battalion of Engineers, Army of the United States."

During the civil War from 1861 to 1865, this Engineer Battalion fought with the Army of the Potomic. Again in 1898 the battalion went to war in the Spanish-American War.

SEAL
Corps of Engineers

Years of peacetime service were interrupted in 1916 when members of Pancho Villa's Mexican revolutionaries attacked Columbus, New Mexico. The 2nd Engineers participated in the expedition to defeat the invader.

The next year the United States entered World War I, and from September 1917 to August 1919 the 2nd Engineers served in France.

During World War II the 2nd Engineers participated in the Normandy invasion in 1944 as well as the Battle of the Bulge and at Leipzig.

In 1950 the 2nd Engineers were swept into the Korean Conflict. Then followed one of the most heroic and tragic action in the unit's history. During a delaying action fight 229 officers and men were killed or captured. The unit later regrouped, was brought up to strength and participated in other battles.

The 2nd Engineers, upon being relieved in Korea, moved to Alaska. The battalion was redesignated the 2nd Engineer Battalion (Combat) on March 1, 1954.

On June 14, 1956, the 2nd Engineers were reborn at Fort Benning, Georgia, with the reactivation of the 2nd Infantry Division.

The 2nd Engineer Battalion currently has the responsibility of providing general engineer work and tactical support for the 2nd Division. The engineer combat battalion is one of the most versatile of the engineer units in infantry combat.

In furnishing engineer work or tactical support for the Division it can provide engineer staff planning and supervision, including that required for attached and supporting engineer troops. The capabilities of the battalion covers construction, repair, improvement, maintenance of roads, trails, fords, bridges and culverts; demolition and munitions; transporting of infantry elements across rivers with assault equipment; and removal and construction of obstacles, including mine fields.

The new Kelley Hill Medical-Dental Building gleaming in the summer sun was officially opened last week. Attending the open house Friday were Major General Ben Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center, Major General Charles H. Chase, commanding general of the 2nd Division, as well as Fort Benning medical and dental officers, their staffs and interested persons. The new facility contains 12 dental chairs, a pharmacy and medical treatment rooms. It is completely air conditioned.

38th Inf. Gets Donkey Mascot

By 38th Inf PIO

A five month old donkey named Rockie Marne has been presented to the 38th Infantry.

Recruit Marne was officially sworn in as the 38th Infantry's mascot by Colonel Maurice C. Holden, battle group commander, at a review ceremony held at Kelley Hill.

The donkey will attend all battle group formations and ceremonies in the official capacity of mascot and will be cared for by units in the 38th on an alternating basis.

A native of Marbery, Alabama, Rockie lived on a cattle ranch before entering the Army. He was donated to the battle group by Mr. Hugh Dorough, father of First Sergeant Harry Dorough, Company C.

Miniature Tank Crew Proficiency Course Reopened by 69th Armor

By 69th Armor PIO

The 69th Armor recently reopened its miniature Tank Crew Proficiency Course (TCPC) which is located along the tank trail between 2d Armored Division Road and Saint Mary's Road. The course is designed to test the individual tank crew in quick reaction to a situation and the performance of crew duties.

The one mile long, thickly wooded course permits the tested crew to react toward six different situations which occur rapidly and continuously. The tank crew is graded on its ability to react quickly and correctly to the situation, and to perform the proper crew duties to eliminate the target. The course employs live aggressors who utilize riflemen, a 3.5 inch rocket launcher team, jeep mounted machine-gun teams and tanks.

1st Infantry Task Force Returns From Va 'Operation Tiger Shark'

By 1st Infantry PIO

The 1st Infantry Task Force returned from "Operation Tiger Shark" in two increments this week. Nearly one-half of the task force arrived at Kelley Hill Sunday night and Monday morning by bus and the remainder by motor convoy Wednesday.

The exercise, held at Little Creek, Va., familiarized the soldier with the operations of an amphibious assault landing and was climaxed with an "invasion" of the beaches at Camp Pendleton, Va.

All instruction was given by the Landing Force Training Unit at Little Creek. A Marine unit, it is commanded by Brigadier General Austin R. Brunelli.

Colonel Walter B. Todd commanded the 1st Infantry Task Force, which was composed of the 1st Infantry and seventeen attached units.

A joint Army, Navy and Marine operation, the exercise was conducted over a two week period. The first week was devoted to formal classes on the loading, embarkation and debarkation of naval ships.

The second week of training consisted of various details of shipboard life. Tuesday, June 5, was spent in the loading of vehicles on the various Navy ships. Five ships of the Atlantic Fleet, commanded by Commodore Thomas P. Watkins, were used in the exercise.

On Wednesday, June 6, the troops loaded on the ships and "set sail" that afternoon. The next day the Task Force conducted a practice run on the beaches at Camp Pendleton. In this exercise the vehicles were not unloaded and the troops only "hit" the beach and then reloaded on the landing crafts and returned to the ships.

Friday morning, June 8, the "invasion" of the beaches was carried out as the men were up early on the ships and preparing for the final day of the operation.

Approximately 55 minutes before H-Hour, the appointed hour for the landing of troops, an air strike began. Planes of the Carrier Air Group Six strafed the beaches as they flew in low formations over the beach.

At this time the inland strafing of the naval gunfire support teams began. Underwater demolition teams of the Navy approached the beach to clear underwater and beach obstacles.

With only four minutes until H-Hour, the beach strafing moved inland in an attempt to clear the beach of aggressors.

As H-Hour neared, activity on the ships was moving at a very fast pace. The troops were climbing down the nets to load on the landing crafts, and the vehicles were being readied to be lifted from the ship's holds onto their crafts.

The first assault element to land on the beach consisted mainly of "foot-soldiers" who drive the last "enemy" from the beach and into the thick underbrush around the beach.

Followed closely by more troops and heavy equipment, the Task Force soon had the beach secured. Elements of the 2nd Engineers were at work clearing roads for the advancement of the quarterton and ¾-ton vehicles. The 69th Armor pushed their tanks into the underbrush to prevent a reorganization of the enemy.

After the beach was secured and the enemy powerless, the LST Dodge County began unloading vehicles on a causeway that extended approximately 150 yards from the shore. The ship was equipped with doors that opened at water level and permitted vehicles and troops to debark. The Dodge County carried a variety of vehicles, from jeeps to the large tanks of the 69th Armor.

The exercise culminated after the Task Force had penetrated and captured the enemy-held beach and organized for a possible counter-attack by the enemy.

At the termination of the problem, the troops were transported to nearby Fort Story where they set up an administrative bivouac.

23rd Infantry Begins Training at Little Creek

By 23rd Inf PIO

More than 1,900 troops of Task Force 23rd Infantry have entered the first week of amphibious training and Operation Seahorse at Little Creek, Va.

Formal training began June 11 with a welcoming address by Marine Brigadier General Austin R. Brunelli, commanding officer of the Landing Force Training Unit at Little Creek, Va. He pointed out the purpose of the school, that of teaching the approved safe methods of an amphibious landing with the most up-to-date tools currently available.

Training undertaken during the first week consists of practicing dry net training on land and wet net training methods from an actual ship into landing crafts alongside.

Personnel of Task Force 23 engaged in medical and communications and other fields are given instruction in such special subjects as the waterproofing of vehicles and communication equipment, indoctrination in a ships characteristics, logistics support techniques, shore party organization, and equipment stowage.

PFC King

PFC Marvin King, 87th Infantry, Likes Unconventional in Sports

By 87th Inf PIO

Private First Class Marvin S. King, a personnel clerk assigned to the 87th Infantry, likes the unconventional in sports.

Throughout most of his 24 years he has combined travel with a number of sports which include skin diving, water skiing, flying, rodeo, hunting and track.

Although his personnel work puts certain limitations on him, PFC King has found time to participate in two of the more conventional types of sports for the battle group during he past year, volleyball and softball.

His first love, however, is water sports, and his favorite is skin diving with a scuba which King describes as "a self contained underwater breathing apparatus which enables a man to dive to depths of 200 feet." Having fished and explored the waters of Florida, California and Mexico, King remarked that he is "fascinated by the eerie effect of moving about in a strange and beautiful underwater world."

On top of the water, King is an expert water-skiier, having taught and competed all over his home state of Florida, including some competitive skiing while attending the University of Florida in Gainsville.

He is looking forward to seeing this year's water-skiing nationals which will be held at Ida Cason's next month. Outside of the water, King has ridden broncos and bulls at rodeos in Colorado, flown about the country in small-type aircraft, hunted reptiles in Florida and competed in long distance track events.

King also lists an interesting civilian occupation to his credit. He has directed television programs in both Tallahassee, Florida and Phoenix, Arizona, specializing in children's shows and "soft sell" commercials.

Maj. Ison, 7th Cav S-3, Returns From Aggressor Duties at Eglin

By 7th Cavalry PIO

Major Venon Ison, the S-3 of the 7th Cavalry, recently returned from Eglin Air Force Base, Florida where he had participated in Exercise CLEAR LAKE as the aggressor commander. Upon his return he reported on the actions and achievements on the aggressor side of the Exercise.

The aggressor elements consisted of Companies A, B, D, E and Combat Support of the 9th Infantry; the 2d platoon Troop B, 7th Cavalry; an engineer platoon; signal forward support platoon; an ordnance detachment; and a guerrilla company.

On May 29 the aggressor headquarters received information about possible airdrops in the vicinity of Eglin Auxiliary Air Field One. Major Ison sent his reconnaissance elements to recon the area and alerted the guerrilla company. A short-time later the aggressor headquarters was informed of a parachute drop which had actually taken place at Eglin Auxiliary Field Number One.

Major Ison instructed the guerrilla leader to attack in the area of the drop and for his reconnaissance elements to determine the strength and direction of movement. At noon on May 29 the main aggressor force began moving forward to take up positions to the north and northeast of the penetrated area. Due to the lack of aggressor air support and predominant air support of the U. S. forces, they were able to secure all of the Auxiliary Field Number One by that evening.

That night and next day U.S. forces landed additional troops in the air head and on the morning launched an attack.

When it became apparent to Major Ison that he could not contain the U. S. forces, he decided to employ hit and run tactics. He organized the aggressors into four task forces with the mission of destroying the U. S. force's rear communications installations, attacking command posts, and harassing the resupply lines.

The aggressors launched 11 counter attacks against flanks of U. S. forces, inflicting a considerable number of casualties on the U. S. forces.

On June 3 the U. S. forces broke free to secure high ground and to sever supply lines of the aggressor force. On June 4 it became apparent the aggressors were out numbered four to one and would not be able to survive the onslaught of the U.S. forces so the aggressor army began to evacuate.

OUTDOOR OUTLOOK

By Sp4 Don Girton
Weekend Catches

The daily summer thunderstorms seem to have put the fishing back in a favorable light. Recent dry weather brought fishing to an abrupt halt, but the rains of the past two weeks have perked up activity.

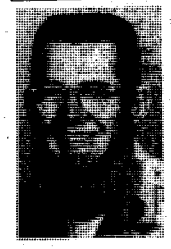
Reports of the biggest catches have been coming from Harps Pond. Several nice largemouth were taken again this weekend. Sp4 James Tuten, 18th Engineer Company netted a five-pound bass at Harps. Tuten reported taking the lunker on artificial bait.

Major (Ret.) Gene Stalcup of Columbus tangled with an eight-and-three-quarter-pound lunker largemouth using a plastic worm for bait.

Other bass catches at Harps included a string of three bass taken by 1st Sgt. John Donnelly, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, The Student Brigade. The largest weighed in at six pounds, slightly under the 8 pounder he landed last weekend.

Fishing at Harps seems to be best in early morning hours. Bass apparently have headed for the deep water as most catches have been made using minnows or deep-running artificial lures. There have been some nice strings of bream taken at Harps Pond in addition to the large bass.

POST SPORTSMEN MEET



Members of the Fish and Game Association are expected to turn out in force today for the Fishermen's Barbecue being held at The Infantry Center Rest Camp. Barbecue will be served from 6 to 8 p.m. followed by awarding of prizes and showing of several outdoor films. Attendance awards include an electric motor, tackle boxes, rods and reels, picnic coolers, boat chairs and an assortment of fishing lures.

The affair is open only to members of the Fish and Game Association. Membership cards should be presented at the check-in point for meal tickets and registration for gate awards.

POND BEING STUDIED

Fishing in several post ponds is seriously hampered by heavy infestation of water weeds. Although some anglers believe water lilies, cattails and other types of weeds in ponds make an ideal place for little fish to hide, it actually results in smaller fish and poorer fishing. The weeds induce overpopulation of bream which results in smaller fish. We want large fish and good fishing, so weeds are unnecessary.

Three portions of Weems pond have been treated with different types of chemicals in hopes of finding one which will suitably control water weeds. Weems is a 40-acre pond located along Jamestown Road. Approximately 30 acres of the pond is covered with water lilies. The chemicals used affect only certain plants and have no effect on the fish. If suitable results are obtained a considerable portion of the pond will be treated.

SOLDIER OF MONTH . . . PFC Harold R. LeClar was recently honored as The Infantry Center, Troop Command Soldier of The Month. LeClar, of Headquarters Company, USAICTC, is chief clerk in the S-1 Section of USAICTC. He was awarded a wristwatch by Col. John Lattin, commander of USAICTC and his name was inscribed on the unit's SOM plaque.

Gold Medal Winner Now Army Private

FT. DEVENS, Mass. (AFPS)— At the 1960 Olympics in Rome, Wilbert McClure made headlines and won a Gold Medal when he pounded his way to the light-middleweight title.

Now, two years later, the 23-year-old Army private has turned professional and won eight straight fights to start his climb up the middleweight ladder.

As an amateur, McClure won 134 fights out of 145. He was twice national Golden Gloves champ and twice National Amateur Athletic Union champion.

At Devens McClure keeps in shape with road work before reveille and does his sparring after retreat. A University of Toledo graduate (with a B.A. in English) the fistic champ also writes short stories and one-act plays.

McClure thinks he and Olympic champ Cassius Clay, the undefeated heavyweight, have similar goals — both hope to be world champions in two years or less.

THE BACKSWING . . . Par is attainable if you master the fundamentals. Ranking high among these is the backswing. Check your swing for these essentials: As club moves back, body turns naturally. Left knee bends slightly as the weight shifts from left to right leg. Wrists cock naturally about halfway in the backswing. Wrists are fully cocked at top of swing. Left shoulder is under chin. At top of backswing, right hip is completely out of the way. Hands at this point are under the club shaft, which should be parallel to the ground. Weight is entirely shifted to right foot. Right elbow is close to the body. The left arm forms an almost straight line.

CTC Dumps Engineers For Eighth Straight Win

By SFC Bismarck Stith

The hottest team in the major unit baseball loop is the high riding The Infantry Center Troop Command nine. Skipper George Dorer, has piloted his team to eight consecutive victories. After a few minor changes Coach Dorer says his team will be fighting for the top spot in the second half of play. TICTC is still fighting for the control of the runner-up position in the first half of play.

Dorer's team won the opener over the 156th Signal Battalion, but dropped the next seven games, won over 29th Infantry, bowed to the league leading Student Brigade, 10-5. In the next seven appearances, they stopped the 156th, 4-2; 428th Medics, 10-4; 151st Engineers, 4-1; 29th Infantry, 7-4; 10th Artillery 9-5; 156th Signal, 3-2, and 10th Artillery, 9-8.

151st Edges 29th, 6-5

The seventh place 151st Engineers caused the 29th Infantry trouble by edging them, 6-5, in the last of the ninth. The loss eliminated the Infantrymen from all hopes of second place in first half action.

With the scores 5-5, Curt Drummond drew a walk, Bill Tewksbury rapped out a single, James Hill hit into a fielder's choice, sending Drummond to third. Charles Emerson tagged the first pitch for a Texas leaguer over second base scoring Drummond and was credited for the RBI. Paul Snyder tossed a six-hitter to claim the victory while the Two-Niners' reliefer, Clifton Johnson, suffered the loss.

TICTC Whips 151st, 6-3

The Infantry Center Troop Command collected their eighth victory yesterday, when they gave 151st Engineers their 12th setback in the first half of major unit baseball play.

Don Lindy was credited the win with the help of southpaw Marty Leicht. Leicht came to his rescue in the six inning. Parker Humphrey was charged with the loss. Donald Miller paced the winners with two doubles for three trips at the plate while Hurbert Gossett led the hitting attack for the Engineers with three doubles for four trips.

ROBERT KINLAW, TSB Greeted After Solo Home Run

LARGE LARGEMOUTH . . . 1st Sgt. John Donnelly, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, The Student Brigade, netted an eight-pound largemouth bass recently at Harp's Pond. The fish was landed after a battle of approximately six minutes.

Quote Of The Week

Joe E. Lewis, comedian and horse player, makes this comment on the retirement of Eddie Arcaro: "He quit when he was ahead. That was always the trouble with his horses when I bet on them."

INVITATIONAL WINNERS . . . Mrs. Thomas Bean (C) of Montgomery, Ala., won medalist honors in a recent invitational golf match between ladies from Fort Benning and Maxwell Air Force Base. Mrs. Leslie E. Wood (L) of Columbus took first flight honors, while Mrs. Walter Waclawski of Montgomery won the second flight.

Today's Sportrait

Today's Sportrait spotlights 1st Lt. Alvin S. Aucoin, Infantry Center Athletic Director, from Bourg, La., who has a colorful football background.

His football career dates back to 1950 while at Terrebonne High School, he lettered four years in football. He was voted captain of the 1953 team, and most valuable player his senior year. In 1953, he was selected All State and high school All America.

He played his collegiate football with Louisiana State University. Aucoin held down the tackle slot on the squad while attending LSU. He also was selected as captain of the '57 team and made All Southeastern Conference that year.

Aucoin entered service in August, 1958, and served with the 2nd Infantry Division, before being assigned to The Infantry Center Special Services Section. He played with Fort Benning's Doughboys. 1960 - 61. In 1961, he was voted to the All-Army football team for his outstanding performance as tackle for the Doughboys. Head coach Capt. Leaton C. Cofield says "Big Al" was always fighting hard when he was in the game, which made him an outstanding player.

AUCOIN

Lt. Aucoin started every game since his sophomore year during his football career, with the exception of one '62 Doughboy game.

At present he is scouting football players for the 1962 Fort Benning Doughboys season.

Summer Brings Safety Hazards

Post personnel are advised to become more safety conscious as health and accident hazards increase during the summer months.

The hazards include heat exhaustion, sunburn, lightning and accidents incurred in water sports and vacation traffic.

In a letter to general and special staff sections, Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center, said, "The prevention of accidents is a command responsibility which requires your personal attention and that of your subordinate commanders."

Post personnel apparently have become more safety conscious in the past year as the number of disabling injuries and fatalities showed a marked decrease in fiscal year (FY) 1962.

Figures released this week by the office of TIC safety Director revealed that for FY 1962 there were 419 disabling injuries and eight deaths among Fort Benning military and civilian personnel.

In commenting on the lowered accident rate, Gen. Harrell said, "It is of paramount importance that we maintain this favorable record. To step up our accident prevention effort and continue our favorable rate, I desire that safety programs at all echelons be without inhibiting operations or compromising the vigorous training needed to maintain our combat effectiveness."

Show to Play Here On Sunday

A musical variety show formed at Fort Rucker's Service Club will perform here at Service Club Number Two on Sunday at 7 p.m.

The show is similar to variety shows seen on TV. However, it is unique enough to make it original and entertaining. There are seven separate acts with the MC, Don Thieme, and his female cohort, Eloise DeMars, furnishing laughs and humor between each number.

The show, entitled "Summer on the Rocks," opens with "June's Bustin Out All Over" which is sung by Mrs. Obla Tibbit backed by the choraleers and the Mac Gayden Combo. For a complete change in music the next act features five Puerto Rican lads known as the "Los Amigos" who entertain with a trio of rhythmic and vivacious songs.

Betty and Shirley Brantley, two civilians working with the show, sing the novelty tune, "Itsy-Bitsy Teenie Weenie Yellow Polka Dot Bikini." They are followed by folk singer Hans Pornschlegel from Germany who sings the "Wooden Heart," closing with a yodeling number.

The Brantley Sisters return with "Lonesome Town." Tom Evans, popular blues and pops singer, comes next to sing two numbers.

The finale, as the MC introduces it, is a situation where four girls are applying for jobs as recreation specialists. After a brief dialogue the girls break out with "Hey, Look Me Over" after which the interviewer questions their ability to twist. This is proven quickly when the combo cuts loose on a twist number where everybody in the show twists as the MC makes the closing remarks.

The director for the show is Don Thieme with John Lemendilla as associate director and script writer, and the musical director, Bill McCarthy.

Service Club Two is located in the Sand Hill area.

Reserve Engineers Are Busy During Duty Tour Here

By SFC George McBurney

The 489th Engineer Battalion, an Army Reserve unit from Pine Bluff, Ark., called to active duty here in the Berlin crisis last October, will return to its home state late this summer.

The departure is scheduled for Aug. 5. On that day the Arkansas Reservists will begin the move back to their homes and former civilian jobs.

After their official welcome to the post Oct. 26, the men of the 489th began the serious task of training to live up to the unit's mission to increase combat efficiency of corps and Army by means of general engineer operations.

Commanded by Lt. Col. Frank R. Allen, the 489th has accomplished this mission.

Ready. . .Able

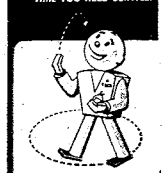
"If called upon we would be ready and able to go on a wartime mission now as far as our training is concerned," he said. "We have successfully completed our Army Training Test and an intensive combat training program.

"This program included combat engineer training such as building airstrips, roads, and fixed and floating panel bridges over Fort Benning's streams and ravines," he continued.

The battalion consists of Headquarters Company and two platoons of Company B from Pine Bluff, Company A of Hot Springs, Company B of Malvern — except for two platoons — and Company C of Little Rock.

Company A of the 489th has begun the construction of a 25 - acre combat conditioning course for the Ranger Department of The Infantry School. Located on Dixie Road, the course will be the only one of its kind on the post.

The course will provide 16 training obstacles. It will include a 30-foot high wall for confidence climbing, a horizontal ladder 32 feet long and eight lanes wide, a 45-foot timber trestle bridge, a quarter-mile cinder track and a hand-to-hand combat pit four feet deep and 200 feet in diameter.



Within the course the engineers also are building a half-mile road for the transportation of troops and maintenance crews between training areas, and an orientation site with bleachers and an instructor's area.

Looking back over the months since the 489th arrived at the post, the engineers have trained and worked hard. When they leave in August, they will carry with them additional knowledge and confidence. They also will leave some of the results of their work and training at Fort Benning.

The 489th and Fort Benning have mutually gained from their stay.

Cadets Depart After 4-Day Training Visit

The U. S. Military Academy Class of 1963 left here early Monday after receiving four days of extensive training in the Infantry's role in today's Army.

The class's next stop on its summer training program is the Army Artillery and Guided Missile Center at Fort Sill, Okla.

While at the home of the Infantry, the cadets received briefings on "The Infantry Today" and counterguerrilla activities, and actively participated in The Infantry School's training.

Divided into three groups, the more than 500 cadets were treated to a sample of what many of them will undergo after they are commissioned.

Included in this was an introduction to parat-ooper training by The Infantry School's Airborne - Air Mobility Department.

For two and one half hours, the future officers practiced parachute landing falls, swing landing, exiting from the mock doors, and jumping from 34-foot towers.

In an entirely different phase of Infantry training, the West Pointers, led by members of TIS's Ranger Department and organized into rifle platoons, conducted an assault on an "enemy" objective.

Led in the first stages of the assault by tanks and riding in armored personnel carriers, the cadets ultimately had to depend on the rifle and man's most dependable means of transportation, the foot.

After securing the objective, they were critiqued by Ranger instructors on the conduct of the mission.

The Special Subjects Department's Leadership Committee ran the three groups through a dozen practical combat situations which tested their leadership ability and the quickness and accuracy of their reactions.

In addition to the problems in which they participated, the cadets saw an Infantry - tank task force in attack and the firepower of the Army displayed in a three-hour problem, a reinforced rifle company in defense.

Taking time out from their training schedule last Friday night, the cadets relaxed at a formal reception and hop.

Artillerymen Lead in AER

The 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery of the 1st Infantry Brigade, has taken the lead in contributions to the 1962 Army Emergency Relief fund drive.

By collecting $1,051, the unit exceeded its goal and became the first major unit on post to report more than 100 per cent donations to AER.

The total amount contributed by the brigade to date is $1,295.

As of June 8, the overall amount of money reported to the AER is $2,287.80. The amount donated, however, is believed by the AER to be much higher, since only a few of the post's units have reported their collections.

The 428th Medical Battalion reported $755 collected, and the 2nd Missile Battalion, Turner Air Force Base, Albany, Ga., gave $97.

The AER fund drive will continue until Aug. 10.

Fallacies of Folklore Can Ruin Your Teeth

By Maj. Charles W. Dobson
Preventive Dentistry Officer

"If one wishes to be free from toothache, one should eat a whole mouse twice a month."

So wrote one of the scholars of the first century. Other superstitions that were once held to be true are just as fantastic, for example:

Kissing a donkey stops a tooth ache.

If your teeth bother you, just run three times around the church without thinking of a fox.

Dental Diseases are caused by worms in the teeth.

Unfortunately, many of the things we think we know about teeth today, while not so amusing or so transparently false, are untrue and harmful. Following are some of the fallacies about teeth that are still widely believed.

Fallacy: A mother loses a tooth for every child.

Fact: There is no foundation for this statement. It simply is not true.

Fallacy: It is dangerous to have your teeth worked on during pregnancy.

Fact: Unless you are told by your physician not to have any dental work done, it is as safe then as at any other period in your life.

Fallacy: Pregnant women develop more cavities in their teeth.

Fact: The higher rate of new cavity formation if it occurs, is due to an increase in sweets and a decrease in adequate tooth brushing. Proper home and professional care is as important during pregnancy as at any other time.

Fallacy: Everyone can expect to lose his teeth and will eventually have to wear dentures.

Fact: Teeth were meant to last a life time. Given proper home and professional care they will.

Fallacy: It is not important to take care of baby teeth because they will be replaced anyway.

Fact: The first teeth are needed like the permanent ones, for chewing, for speech and for appearance. In addition, they maintain the shape

Fallacy: "Six-year" molars are eventually replaced by permanent teeth, so it is not necessary to take care of them.

Fact: "Six-year" molars are permanent teeth, the first that appears in the mouth they will never be replaced, except by artificial teeth.

Fallacy: Teeth decay because they are soft.

Fact: There is little difference in hardness of teeth, and this difference has no bearing on tooth decay.

Fallacy: Large fillings weaken the teeth.

Fact: Unfilled cavities weaken the teeth much more than large fillings do.

As you can see, our modern beliefs indicate a great need for education in the field of dental knowledge.

struction of a 24-foot mock jump tower for the Airborne Department, the renovation of the Victory Lodge NCO Club, and the rehabilitation of 78 buildings for ROTC Summer Camp use. Company C, stationed at Fort Rucker, Alabama, built a dam to impound water for a reservoir.

114th Engineer Company

The 114th is usually part of the District of Columbia National Guard, and was brought to active duty in October, 1961, under the command of Capt. Arthur S. Welch.

The unit has been a pontoon bridge company since 1959. While here, the 114th first went through the Intensified Combat Training Program to get ready for the Army Training Test, and then in April was attached to the 2nd Division during operation "Seneca Spear".

186th Engineer Company

The 186th is a National Guard Unit from Brewton, Ala. It was called to active duty last October under the command of Capt. Joe B. Thompson Jr.

The unit is a light equipment company. While on post it has supported many earth-moving projects. The latest is the construction of the New Ranger Combat Conditioning Course on Sightseeing Field.

586th Engineer Company

The 586th is a Regular Army Float Bridge Company commanded by 1st Lt. Peter P. Strzok. Its mission here is to support TIS io river crossing operations. In addition, it operates the pontoon bridge across the Chattahoochee at Bradley's Landing.

During operation Swift Strike, a gigantic maneuver in the Carolinas last August, the 586th was employed as the river crossing unit for both the 82nd and the 101st Airborne Divisions. The company bridged the Pee Dee River three times and successfully crossed division forces in both directions on four different occasions.

WORTHY GOALS

The goals of the United Nations are: to maintain peace and security in the world; to develop friendly relations among nations; to work together to remove poverty, disease and illiteracy in the world and to encourage respect for each other's rights and freedoms; to be a center for helping nations achieve these goals.

Army's New Champs Score Match Records

By PFC Ron Claxton

Twelve match records fell to the blazing guns of Army marksmen during the 1962 Army Rifle and Pistol Championships here.

Two Marksmanship Training Unit firers took top honors as All-Army individual rifle and pistol champs.

MSgt. James B. Manning, an MTU rifleman, blasted out 200 shots in seven different courses of fire to roll up an aggregate 984-68V out of a possible 1000-200V score to take the Army's highest championship in individual rifle fire.

SFC William B. Blankenship Jr., also of MTU, in a great come-from-behind-rally nosed out Fourth Army's SFC Alvin J. Moore by one point and one X, with an aggregate 2634-128X score out of a possible 2700-270X score to claim first honors as the Army's top pistolman.

Five Rifle Records

In rifle competition the Army's most proficient riflemen wrote five new match records into the books.

MSgt James E. Cole was the first to break the ice. In the individual combined rapid fire match the Fifth Army marksman zeroed all 20 shots into the five-point bulls-eye for a perfect 100 score, placing 14 of them in the tie-breaking "V" ring, the inner circle of the bulls-eye, to exceed the old record by one "V."

SP4 Earl L. Waterman Jr. firing for the U. S. Army Europe team, fired a perfect score of 400 points in the individual rapid fire championship to break the old match record by one point. The European rifleman went on to place second in the All-Army individual rifle championship behind MSgt. Manning.

Rifle team firing saw a strong Third Army "Red Team" paste their long-range team match targets for a 591-75V score out of a possible 600-120V score to break the old record by four points and 13 "V's."

SSgt. Milton Nagrone, firing a 249-17V score out of a possible 250-50V score, led his U. S. Army Pacific "Blue Team" to a record-breaking 1475-131V score in the Army Rifle Team Championship. The old record was 1468-152V.

The last rifle match, in which records fell, saw 33 points added to the old record. An underdog Sixth Army "Blue Team," supposedly outranked by the favored Third Army "Red Team," blasted out an amazing 1169 score in The Infantry Trophy match to beat the Third Army team by 25 points.

SFC Blankenship, the top Army individual pistolman, kicked things off in pistol firing when he blasted a perfect 300 score with 28 of his 30 shots hitting in the tie-

Committee OK's Housing Pay Bill

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Further hearings on the quarters allowance legislation now in Congress have been held and a step closer to final action reported.

The Senate Armed Services Committee, in executive session, reported favorably on the bill after hearing earlier testimony by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

The committee added an amendment, however, in the nature of a substitute bill, HR 11221. The legislatioo is expected to be considered on the Senate floor in the near future.

The amendments were (1) to make the effective date of the bill Jan. 1, 1963, and (2) to delete that section which would have made permanent the Dependents Assistance Act.

'Too Early'

A spokesman for the Senate Armed Services Committee said it was too early yet to determine if the package would have to be referred to a joint committee for ironing out.

Secretary McNamara, in his statement to the committee said: "I am appearing before the committee this morning in support of HR 11221. This bill has modified to some extent, in the case of enlisted grades, the legislative proposal originally submitted by the Department of Defense.

"However, the changes do not alter the basic principles which the Department's proposal sought to incorporate in the allowance structure. We support the House bill."

At this point Mr. McNamara went into the history of basic allowance for quarters and told the lawmakers how in September 1961 he had established the Advisory Panel on Military Family Housing Policies and Practices.

He said the panel finally ac-

Engine Runs On Six Fuels

An engine that runs on "almost anything" is being installed as a training aid at The Infantry School Ground Mobility Department.

Swinging a heavy "multi-fuel" engine into place on a steel mount be built for it, SFC Woodrow W. Bain, talked about the engine.

"This engine," he said, "will burn any one of five fuels or any combination of the five. That makes it a six-fuel engine."

"It will burn high or low octane gasoline, jet propulsion

To Allow Some Promotions in Frozen MOS's

Washington (AFPS) — It is now possible for Army enlisted personnel to be promoted to grades E-7, E-6 and E-5 even though they are serving in an overstrength MOS.

A newly - announced Army policy, effective in July, will permit commanders to promote a small percentage of those best qualified in frozen MOSs.

The number to be promoted to any of these grades will be computed on the following basis: For every quota total of 20 E-7 grades a command receives, it can allocate one to a man in an overstrength MOS, to grade E-6, one of each 25 appointment slots can go to a frozen MOS, and for E-5 the ratio is one out of 30.

Where commands do not receive a monthly allocation large enough to promote an individual on this basis, the commander can accumulate the quotas to permit such a promotion. The Army quoted an example as follows: If a command received consecutive quotas of seven, seven and six to E-7 in three months, it could promote one man in an overstrength MOS.

The Army emphasized that this type of promotion will be given only to "outstanding" soldiers and only the best qualified within overstrength MOSs will be selected. These will be men the Army desires to retain in their particular MOS even though it is overstrength.

1,306 Expected At ROTC Camp

Some 1,306 cadets from 34 colleges and universities throughout the Third Army district are scheduled to attend the annual Reserve Officers Training Corps summer camp at Harmony Church.

The cadets are expected to arrive on post tomorrow and remain through Aug. 3 for a six-week training period.

The camp acitivities will be officially opened by a cadet review, featuring an address by Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly Jr., deputy commanding general, The Infantry Center. The ceremony is scheduled for 10:40 a.m., Monday.

The cadets will receive supplementary work to that studied in the classroom during the academic year. It will include application of theory in field problems, intense physical conditioning, firing combat problems, cross country marches during daylight and darkness, patrol exercises and several special demonstrations.

Emphasis on Leadership

Emphasis during this training will be on leadership in order to prepare the cadets for their future role as lieutenants in the Army. Those cadets who have completed their military requirements and pass the summer camp exercises successfully, will be commissioned during ceremonies at the conclusion of the 1962 summer camp.

Col. Robert E. O'Brien Jr., professor of military science at the University of Georgia, has been assigned as deputy camp commander to Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell, The Infantry Center commanding general, for the 1962 Summer Camp.

Col. O'Brien was commissioned upon graduation from the U. S. Military Academy in 1936. During World War II he served as commanding officer of the 38th Cavalry Squadron,

Distinguished Visitors Here

Heading the list of distinguished visitors here during the week were Gen. Sir Hugh C. Stockwell deputy supreme Allied commander, Europe, and Lt. Gen. Thomas J. H. Trapnell, commanding general of the Third Army.

Gen. Stockwell was greeted to the post with a 17-gun salute on Monday. The British general visited with Brig. Gen. Royal Reynolds, assistant commandant of The Infantry School, and observed an airborne orientation demonstration at Eubanks Field.

breaking "X" ring in the .22 caliber Camp Perry course, bettering the old record by five "X's."

Europe's SFC Ralph O. Thompson, with a perfect 200 score placed 16 of 90 shots in the "X" ring to break the individual center fire Camp Perry course record by one point.

In the .22 caliber rapid fire match, Third Army's Howard W. Gulliksen fired another perfect score of 200 points with 16 "X's" to add two "X's" to the old match record.

SFC Robert E. Moats, a Fourth Army firer, was next in the record-breakers class with a 284-12X score out of a possible 300-30X score over the .45 caliber National Match course. He broke the old record by one point.

The last individual record to fall went to SFC Samuel W. Hunter, an MTU firer, with a perfect 200 score and 12 tie-breaking "X's." Sgt. Hunter tacked six "X's" on the old record.

In the .45 caliber pistol team championship, Europe's "Blue Team," spearhead by Sgt. Emil W. Heugatter, with 297-14X out of a possible 300-30X score, pushed the old mark up from 1140-40X to 1158-38X.

SFC Barry W. Slack, with 296-17X out of a possible 300-30X score, led his Third Army "Blue Team" to a nine-point betterment of the old record in the .22 caliber pistol team championship.

Following the championships Maj. Gen. Charles H. Chase, commanding general of the Second Infantry Division, addressed the more than 900 marksmen at an awards ceremony.

He explained, "The word 'shooter' is synonomous with the word 'soldier.' A soldier's main tools are his weapon, his spirit and his basic know-how. Each of you as soldiers have convincingly demonstrated in these matches that you can use these tools with superb skill."

Visitors

stay. Gen. Stockwell attended several demonstrations and briefings on the role of TIS.

During his visit, Gen. Trapnell conferred with Maj. Gen. Leon L. Mathews, commanding general of the 87th Maneuver Area Command, a Reserve unit from Birmingham, Ala., on the phases of Exercise "Chief Acorn."

The three-star general also observed several reserve units conducting summer training here.

Gen. Torres

A 19-gun salute welcomed Lt. Gen. Juan Flores Torres, deputy secretary of defense of Mexico, to the post yesterday.

Gen. Torres, accompanied by Col. D. E. M. Graciliano, was briefed on the history and organization of The Infantry Center. He was also oriented on the roles of the modern Infantryman in combat situations.

Majors Bassey, Nwawo

Two majors of the Nigerian Army visited here early this week. The officers, Maj. Omu Bassey, camp commandant of the 2nd Brigade Headquarters, and Maj. Conrad Divia Nwawo, commander of the 1st Battalion, 2nd Brigade Headquarters, were shown the role of the modern Infantryman and briefed on the organization of TIC.

Allied Students

Some 26 Allied students at the Intelligence School, Fort Holabird, Md. arrived on post recently.

The students were briefed by The Infantry School's Communications Department and the Officer Candidate School representatives. They were also oriented by the Airborne-Air Mobility Department and shown demonstrations of the weapons of a battle group.

Gen. Riahi

Lt. Gen. Esmail Riahi, deputy chief of the Supreme Commander's Staff in the Imperial Iranian Armed Forces, will visit the post for four days beginning Sunday.

His itinerary includes briefings on the role of TIC and mission of TIS.

Gen. Riahi will also be oriented on courses of instruction offered the Infantryman.

Promotions

en MOS is optional with the commander and be is permitted, but not required, to promote such people.

Adoption of these limited appointments at this time is a result of considerable progress achieved in reducing MOS imbalances, the Army said. It added that this progress is attributable to several factors including the MOS Production Control Program and measures taken by field commanders to reduce MOS overstrengths.

ROTC

attached to the V Corps, First Army, in its five campaigns in Europe. During this period of service he earned the Silver Star for gallantry in action.

A reception for all officers in charge of the summer training program was held Thursday night at the lounge of the Supper Club of the Maio Officers Open Mess.

Quarters

cepted a Federal Housing Administration report reflecting the housing expenses of civilians according to their incomes as the best possible source for computation of the BAQ rate structure for the following reasons:

The analysis directly reflects current cost conditions requiring no comparisons with cost data of a preceding period.

It includes the information necessary for establishing a graduated allowance for all ranks in that it reflects expenditures for housing by income groups.

The data is regularly available and can be used for future BAQ adjustment studies at no additional cost to the government.

In his statement Mr. McNamara also made these points ". . .I consider adequate housing for our service families to be of vital importance in our efforts to make military careers sufficiently rewarding to enable us to attract and retain high caliber personnel in both the officer and enlisted rank structure. . .

"We owe to those military personnel for whom we cannot provide housing, quarters allowances more in line with current costs in the civilian community.

"We consider the proposed increases to be very modest and request your favorable consideration."

The committee also voted to postpone until "early next year" consideration of the recomputation of military retired pay.

Volunteers Are Sought For Elite Unit

Qualified enlisted personnel at Fort Benning are being encouraged to volunteer for assignment to the Army's Special Forces, according to officials of The Infantry Center Adjutant General Section.

The Special Forces Program offers many opportunities for training and advancement, Capt. K. R. Cartwright, acting adjutant general said.

Enlisted personnel may submit volunteer applications, regardless of grade and MOS, if otherwise qualified.

Requirements include passing a physical fitness test, final or interim Secret clearance, completion of at least four months of military service, ability to swim at least 200 yards, and at least 18 months remaining service. Applicants who are not airborne qualified will be expected to signify willingness to undergo airborne training.

Engine

fuel Number One or Number Two, kerosene, diesel fuel and even solvent (cleaning fluid)," he continued.

"Let's say you are overseas where transportation of fuel for gasoline engines is a problem. With this engine, you can burn whatever is available in that country," he said.

'Away You Go'

"And," he added, "if you are almost out of fuel, just pour everything you have left in the tank, and away you go."

The Army is already using the multifuel engine on an M-35-A1 2½-ton cargo truck, the sergeant said.

"Eventually, this engine, or one similar to it, will replace all gasoline fuel internal combustion engines used by the Infantry," he added.

The engine is the first of 10 multifuel engines that will be used as training aids in the Ground Mobility Department's Mechanical Training Committee where he serves as an instructor.

Beginning July 1, students studying advanced engine trouble-shooting, a course for mechanics, supervisors and motor officers, will receive instruction on the multifuel engine.

July 4 Carnival Work Continues

The fireworks, rides, concessions and competitive events to be offered the public July 4 at the Youth Activities Club Carnival here, require a lot of work and coordination among project officers and units concerned.

Responsibility for the over 40 games belongs to The Infantry Center Troop Command and the 2nd Infantry Division. In charge of arrangements for CTC is Maj. Jean P. Doerr, while Maj. Robert A. McDade will handle the division's part.

Food concession stands, including hot dogs, hamburgers, soft drinks and ice cream, will be operated by personnel from Lawson Army Aviation Command. Lawson project officer is 1st Lt. William A. Bloemsa.

Engineers Busy

The construction necessary to build the needed booths and other facilities is being handled by 1st Lt. Kenneth D. Jobe and the 151st Engineer Group.

The financial end of the carnival is being handled by 1st Lt. John A. Olzewski, YAC custodian. Assisting him is SP5 Eugene L. Gray.

Barbecue, enough to feed 1,000 people, will be available at the main Post Snack Bar. Working with this massive amount of pork are members of The Student Brigade. Project officer is Maj. Dominick J. Orlando.

Rides galore for the kids will be available and men from the 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, have this responsibility. Capt. Richard B. Schaffer is project officer.

Competition

The military competition that will be run throughout the day to decide the outstanding unit and individual soldier will be under the control of TIC's G-3 section, with Capt. Charles B. Rothrock serving as project officer.

Non - military competition which will include baseball throws, archery and horseshoe contests, will be run by the 428th Medical Battalion and Capt. Charles H. Ogden.

An extensive fireworks display will climax the Independence Day festivities. Capt. Richard L. Bryan and members of 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, are in charge of this.

Any function as large as this year's carnival couldn't operate without Inform and Entest and found booths, and efficient traffic control.

The latter task has been delegated to the Provost Marshal's Office, with Lt. Col. Joseph A. Mitchell Jr., serving as project officer. 1st Lt. John M. Turner and members of the Military Police Company will operate the other two.

Chairman of the coordinating committee is Col. Richard W. Keyes.

Maj. John F. Hare is the chief project officer.

YAC Needs Summer Volunteers

The Youth Activities Club needs volunteer off-duty adult assistance in conducting its more than a dozen recreational programs for the post's youth.

Among the activities are archery, football, baseball, basketball, bowling, boxing, Boy and Girl Scouts, fencing, golf, junior rifle and pistol competition, swimming and tennis.

In addition to sports and scouting, YAC officials are responsible for a youth employment bureau and "Brat Barracks," a club where teenagers may enjoy social activities.

To insure an active and successful program, especially during the summer, there is a continuing need for coaches, instructors, umpires and general assistance from post personnel, officials said.

Those interested are urged to submit their name, rank, address, home and duty phone numbers to their major unit commanders before June 27.

Reswik Named To New Position

Chaplain (1st Lt.) George Reswik has been named plans and training officer of The Infantry Center Chaplains Section.

He succeeds Chaplain (1st Lt.) James N. Layne who has been assigned to Germany.

Chaplain Reswik was formerly assigned to the 577th Engineer Battalion, 151st Engineer Group.

Can Apply Now For Destin Camp

Applications are now being taken by The Infantry Center Special Services Section for reservations at Destin Rest Camp, Fla., for the month of August.

Deadline for applications is July 10. Information on the camp and reservations may be obtained at the Special Services office, Building 394.

Engineers Give In Blood Drive

Members of the 151st Engineer Group recently donated 502 pints of blood to the Red Cross in the units' semi-annual Red Cross Blood Drive.

The 151st Group had 539 persons participating in the drive.

The 428th Engineer Battalion was the high battalion in the group with 131 persons participating.

Men Compete During 58th's Celebration

The 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, celebrated its 45th Organization Day recently with competitive events and festivities.

Opening the competitive events was squad drill and tactics. Company B won this event with its squad led by Sgt. Harold Allen who was also chosen as top all-round military competitor of the day.

Pvt. Bobby Lovelace of Company A won first place in the Cross - Country Speed - March with Sp5 Lewis Barnes close on his heels.

The M-1 Assembly was won by Sgt. Allen of Company B; the 45 Cal. Pistol Assembly by PFC Zane Gaylan of Co. D, 69th Armor; the Fire-changing contest by Sp4 Francis Trostle of Company A; the Hand Grenade Throw by Pvt. Thomas A. Tucker of Company B; and Pvt James R. Stuhr of Company D, 69th Armor, made the top score on the PT Test.

In the athletic events Sgt. James Booth of Company C won the Softball Distance Throw. The Broad Jump was won by Pvt. Alexander Marks of Headquarters Company. A team composed of PFC Marine, Sp4 Pete Pelster, Sp4 Nevels and Sgt. Barns, all of Company C, 66th Armor, sprinted to a victory in the 440-Meter Relay.

There was a tie for 1st place in the 100-Yard Dash as PFC Millender and Pvt Marks, of B and Headquarters Companies, respectively, both covered the distance in 12.1 seconds.

The Greased-Pole Climb provided the humorous highlight of the morning, but proved to be too much of a challenge for the competitors. Although no one reached the top successfully, PFC Dale Lloyd of Company D, 69th Armor, was named the winner because he reached the highest point on the pole.

During the morning Maj. General Ben Harrell, The Infantry Center commanding general, visited the Field Day activities. He was greeted by 58th Infantry commander, Lt. Col. Charles T. Caprino, and 1st Infantry Brigade commander, Col. Richard W. Keyes. Gen. Harrell was shown a display of the battalions heavy equipment and weapons. The display included the Battalion's newly acquired Davy Crockett.

Children of members of the battalion enjoyed "jeep" rides around Todd Field, and everyone enjoyed the refreshments.

Concluding the days events was the award ceremony presided over by Col. Caprino. The award for best individual in the military field went to Harold A. Allen of Company B. Best individual in the Athletic events was Pvt. Alexander Marks of Headquarters Company. Both men received engraved plaques.

Company C, 66th Armor, one of the attached armor units of the 58th Infantry, commanded by Capt. Thomas Attwood, compiled the highest total score in the athletic phase of the competition and was given the Best Company Award in that field. Capt. Richard B. Schaeffer, commander of Company B, accepted the award for Best Company in the military events.

He added, referring to the men becoming airborne qualified, "You have enhanced your military potential, and that of your country by acquiring a new skill."

Gen Reynolds also congratulated the members of the department on the excellence of their instruction, saying it enabled the students to approach the aircraft before jumping with a great deal of confidence.

312 Earn Parachutist Badge Here

A total of 312 officers and enlisted men representing three branches of the Armed Forces received Parachutist Badges in graduation ceremonies here recently.

Included were seven Army officers and 293 enlisted men, two Navy officers and seven enlisted men, and two Air Force officers and one enlisted man.

Honor graduate of the three-week course, conducted by The Infantry School's Airborne-Air Mobility Department, was Army Pvt. Donald Torrini.

Addressing the class, Brig. Gen. Royal Reynolds Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School and a paratrooper, said, "I offer my personal congratulations to each and every one of you."

45 Signalmen In TIC Problem

Approximately 45 enlisted men from the 156th Signal Battalion recently took part in a specialized problem of the Officers Map Maneuver Course held at The Infantry Center.

Lt. Col. Martin F. Schroeder, who was in charge of the problem, praised the efficient communications carried out by the men of the 156th. Sgt. Joseph F. Conn, signal NCOIC for the problem, was singled out for special praise.

The mission of the signal men was to simulate actual combat conditions while providing communications for the problem.

Units Receive Letters for Role In Bond Drive

Lt. Col. Charles T. Caprino commanding officer of the 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, recently presented letters of appreciation to two company commanders for their unit's outstanding participation in the Bond Drive.

The first letter went to Capt. Thomas Attwood, commander of Company C, 66th Armor. His company was one of the few units in the brigade that attained 100 per cent participation.

Also receiving an award was 1st Lt. James B. Foley, commander of Company D, 69th Armor. His company achieved 82.3 per cent participation in the drive.

UNITING FOR PEACE

The General Assembly of the United Nations passed a resolution in 1950 that allows it to consider solutions to a threat to the peace when the Security Council is deadlocked because of a veto.

BENNING'S FIRST . . . Welborne A. Callahan (R), sergeant major of The Infantry Center, is promoted to the permanent grade of E-9, the first NCO on post to receive this permanent grade. Officiating at the promotion ceremony is Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell, commanding general of TIC.

Suggestions Sought From Civilian Workers

Fort Benning's civilian employees will be asked to "put on the thinking cap" Wednesday in a drive to meet the 1961-1962 goal of the Army Suggestion Plan, 26 per cent participation for the fiscal year.

Supervisors will allow one hour during duty hours for the preparation of suggestions for improvement of methods or techniques used by their units, the post or throughout the Army.

Three activities on the post have met or exceeed their annual quota during the first three quarters of the fiscal year. They are The Infantry Center G-2, Civilian Personnel and Provost Marshal Sections.

Fort Benning, with an overall participation of 13.6 per cent, is in fourth place in the Third Army.

Third Army has announced that estimated savings expected from suggestions already adopted during the fiscal year amount to more than $781,000. The savings can be attributed approximately equally to suggestions submitted by civilian employees and military personnel, according to officials.

The Army sets no goal for military participation in the program, but individuals are urged to submit suggestions to improve operations and increase economy of unit, installation or Army-wide practices.

Takes Top Spot In CBR School

The top spot in class of 49 at the Chemical, Biological and Radiological Warfare (CBR) School here was copped by Sp5 Amaro N. DeLlacher. He is from the 129th Medical Company, 428th Medical Battalion.

Prior to recall to active duty last fall he attended the University of Alabama as a predental student. Since coming to Fort Benning he has worked as a pharmacy specialist with Martin Army Hospital.

Col. Kutchinski Attends Confab

Lt. Col. Harry P. Kutchinski, a member of the Ground Mobility Department of The Infantry School, recently was at the Combat Developments Evaluation Center at Fort Ord, Calif., for conferences.

Wednesday he went to the Ordnance Tank Automotive Command at Detroit for a two-day liaison visit. Col. Kutchinski visited an armored personnel carrier plant in San Jose, Calif., last Friday.

Laugh a Little, Men; Wit Relieves Tension

How often have you heard it said of a man that "he's a character — always making with the wisecracks even when things go badly" — or words to that effect? The implication seems to be that wit is reprehensible at certain times, and indeed it is. Nobody laughs at a funeral.

The fact is, though, that the perennial "comedian" in a group — say a military unit in combat or a detachment living under conditions of semi-isolation — very often is a valuable functionary. This is currently being borne out by the field studies of an Air Force psychologist, Dr. Ewart E. Smith, who is researching the function of humor and the role of the wit in groups under stress.

Perhaps it will come as no surprise to men who have survived harrowing experiences in combat that the deliberate with consistently was found to be the more active and self-confident individual. Also, that he is present in groups whose efficiency and morale are significantly higher under stress than exist in other groups.

One example of this comes to mind. In a war movie some years ago comedian Mort Sahl portrayed a member of a squad of infantrymen pinned down at an advanced outpost under enemy sniper fire. Throughout the night tension mounted; dawn broke and the men stared at each other desperately. Then the field telephone jangled. Sahl, answering it, began jauntily: "Good morning, this is WWII—"

Let's not be too quick to deprecate the man who deliberately used his gift of quick thinking, coupled with a wryly humorous outlook on life, to sound off even when the going is grim. For, says Dr. Smith, he's the man who exhibits the characteristics generally associated with leadership. (AFPS)

Liberty and Communism

Purpose of State or Society

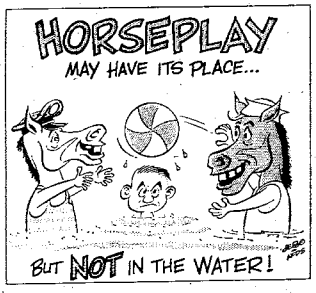
Defenders of a governmental regime, whether they be philosophers, politicians, or dictators, generally base their defense upon their respective concepts as to the purpose of the state or society (the community of men and women).

There statements are illuminating, especially if they come from men who hold high office in the government they are defending. For they serve as an explanation of, or apology for, the kind of government or society the author supports or advocates.

They also give clues as to the treatment of individuals under such regimes and the degree of liberty or lack of liberty to be expected.

Advocates of democratic or representative government generally insist that the state exists for the good of the citizens, and that the citizens do not exist merely for the good of the state. This idea clearly implies that each citizen must enjoy the largest latitude of freedom consistent with the freedom of his fellow citizens.

The Fascist concept of the state held that citizens exist for the glory of the state, and not the state for the good of the citizens. On the other hand, the Nazi concept held that the state exists for the advantage of the Nordic race. Hitler called his state a Volkstaat, or racial state.



Obviously, the Fascist and Nazi concepts of the state implied a strict limitation on all personal freedoms.

Communist doctrine maintains that the dictatorship of the proletariat is destined to "smash" what Communists call the "bourgeois" (middle-class) state.

The supreme purpose of the dictatorship is the promotion of the revolution, the abolition of all classes and the creation of a Communist society in which the workers control all production, distribution and consumption of economic goods.

Communists admit that the dictatorship of the proletariat is the most complete form of democracy, but that it is necessarily a harsh one. It is a dictatorship, they say, because it must use force, violence, terrorism and "iron discipline." All this, of course, means rigid restriction of individual liberty.

The Judge Says . . .

Recently our legal assistance officer has received several inquiries from various landlords in Columbus in regard to service members settling their rental accounts. The landlord matter is one which continually plagues our office. The following case is illustrative of a typical dispute between Landlord and Tenant.

1/T. ROLLIN STONE rented a house from Mr. Gethers Kno Moss without any written agreement or oral agreement except that the rent would be $90 each month. There was no mention of how long Stone would occupy the house. There was no stipulation of how much, if any, notice Moss should receive in order to secure another tenant without loss of income.

Rollin Stone lived in the house almost two months when he was disposed to move on. He said "you know a Rollin Stone, Gethers Kno Moss!" This was three days before the end of the month. Mr. Moss immediately claimed Stone must pay the next month's rent because he had given no notice. Stone claimed nothing was mentioned about any notice when he moved in and that he didn't intend to pay for an extra month's rent or any part for a house he was not occupying.

SINCE BOTH these parties are partially right in their positions but are for the most part wrong, let's examine their respective rights. The Statutes of Georgia provide that where there is no agreement to the contrary, either written or oral, a tenant is required to give his landlord 30 days notice prior to vacating. It is also provided that the landlord must give his tenant 60 days notice to vacate. The statute does not provide that a tenant must pay for 30 days irrespective of whether or not the premises is subsequently rented. Nor does it provide he must pay any sum in advance prior to moving.

SOME SERVICE members assume that when they receive short notice from the Army to move pursuant to military orders they are required to give their landlords no greater notice. This is an incorrect assumption. One must actually enter into an agreement substantially to this effect;

"In the event tenant receives PCS orders, he shall not be required to give notice to vacate in excess of that given him by the army," in order to avoid the 30-day notice required.

The best possible manner to avoid the misunderstanding of Rolling Stone and Gethers Kno Moss is to enter into a written lease for a suitable premises setting forth the desired stipulations of the parties.

Reputation, Character

By Chaplain (Lt. Col.) James H. Fiser

Someone said, "Reputation is what you fall for and character is what you stand for." Or again, "Reputation is what folks think you are, while character is what you are."

Perhaps the best description is to be found in the words: "Character is what you are when you are dead-sure no one is looking." It might be said that it is what you do in the dark because character is that which is within you and comes out because you are what you are.

It is something that no man can take away from you and yet you can lose it very easily.

No man can make you give it up but you can give it away.

Character is that quality upon which our homes are built and upon which we base all the common decencies of mankind.

You have a precious gem within you. Keep it safe because once your character is gone, then you are no longer of any use to yourself, your family, your country, or your God.

SURGEON SAYS

Keep Children Cheerful

Maj. Fergus T. Monahan MSC, Chief Social Worker

Crash, bang! Little Rollo has just interrupted the calm of the home because he tripped over a lamp cord while racing through the house as his parents watched their favorite TV program.

Father reprimands Rollo and adds that when he was a child he was never permitted to race through the house. The reprimand was in order but father failed to understand his child's need to run through the house. His action was based on past life experiences and not on understanding.

Cheerful children need certain measures of approval and understanding in order to remain cheerful and happy. Since summer puts us in closer contact with our children, let's review some tips helpful to improving parent - child relationships.

All children need to feel approved, accepted and enjoyed by their parents. Children reared in such an atmosphere have confidence in themselves. Parents who can express dissatisfaction in a positive way will be seen by their children as being helpful.

Encourage Initiative

Discipline that is rigid and repressive keeps children from expressing initiative. Parents overlook the fact that their children's clumsiness is due to their lack of experiness. Generally, children will do a better job if parents avoid standing over them and directing their every move.

The wise parent will permit children to do jobs at their own pace because they recognize that the children will be more willing to take on other jobs.

Children need stability and strive for it through freedom of action within reasonable limits. Too often the opinions of neighbors get in the way of parents' handling of situations. Mary's mother wonders what the neighbors will think of her if Mary wears a wrinkled dress.

Guide Rules

The rules should not be so many that the childrens' activities are restricted in all ways. They should be clear, understandable and reasonable.

Punishment for breaking a rule should be fair and understandable to both parents and children. Children need to understand that they are being treated in accordance with the immature way they have acted. Also, to know they have to forfeit the right to decide for themselves this time.

Positive Punishment

Avoid punishing without knowing why you are doing it. Try to get across the idea that it is the behavior that you disapprove of and not the children.

Attempt to have the children see that you think they will do better the next time because this will strengthen their belief in themselves. As a rule of the thumb, try to give three praises for every reprimand.

The application of the above principles will assist your children in being cheerful. In conclusion, let us recognize the reality of life today. The family is the focal point of frustrations and tensions but it is also the source for resolving frustrations and releasing tensions. Through sympathy, understanding and support the family has the capacity to mend personalities bruised in the course of competitive daily living. In this capacity the family can enable its children to be cheerful.

USAFI Has New Courses

New York (AFPS) — Two courses, World Geography I (C 225) and II (C 226), are now being offered by the United States Armed Forces Institute (USAFI). They compare with world geography courses usually offered at high school junior and senior year levels.

The first semester, C 225, outlines in detail man's existence in the world from prehistoric to modern times. In the following semester, C 226, a description of the world in cultural terms is laid out to give the student a comprehensive background of world geography.

C 152, General Mathematics II, is a continuation of C 151 and is basically designed for students desiring a full year course in general mathematics.

Female Firer Baffles The Men at Matches

By PFC Ron Clarion

As the ominous black clouds approached the firing line, M1 rifles barked a defiant staccato in hopes of beating the oncoming rain.

Shot after shot drew the end near. The bolt flew back and the last spent cartridge jumped to the ground.

Receiving a tap on the shoulder, to signify a clear weapon, the shooter stood up and walked confidently from the firing line.

Firing from 500-yards, the last stage of the National Match course, the rifle shooter had fired out 20 shots in eight minutes, 12 minutes short of the allotted time.

WAC Sp4 Barbara Hile, a rifle firer with the Sixth Army team during the 1962 Army Rifle and Pistol Championships here and the only female entrant, had fired a 98-point score out of a possible 100, placing 11 of her shots in the tie-breaking "V" ring, the inner-circle of the bulls-eye.

Competing in these All-Army Championships the second year in a row, the Woman's National Rifle Champion was being watched dubiously by opposing coaches because of last year's performance.

Sp4 Hile held her own against the Army's most proficient marksmen, with excellent chances of winning the All-Army Individual Rifle crown.

Shooting consistently over every course of fire, her threat became greater and greater. Coaches watched in mounting amazement. Then the fateful 600-yard rifle championship course was fired and coaches let out their breath as the "riflewoman" dropped 15 points.

Even after dropping the all-important 15 points, the WAC sharpshooter lost out by only seven points, placing 20th among the more than 500 shooters.

For her excellent showing, Sp4 Hile was picked to represent the Army in Inter Service competition along with 62 men from the All-Army match lists.

She will go to Quantico, Va., with the All-Army team to fire in the Inter-Service Match sponsored by the Marine Corps School.

Following the Inter-Service shoots she goes to the National Matches at Camp Perry, Ohio. There, a woman's division is set up and Sp4 Hile will defend her Woman's National Championship which she won last year at Camp Perry.

Engineers Hailed by Gen. Wilson During Anniversary Celebration

The 187th anniversary of the Corps of Engineers was celebrated June 13 and 14 with a banquet and a review of all engineer units stationed here, some 3,500 troops.

Lt. Gen. Walter K. Wilson Jr., Chief of Engineers, arrived on post June 13 to attend the Birthday Banquet. Col. Sears Y. Coker, commanding officer of the 151st Engineer Group, and Mrs. Coker were hosts for the banquet.

Gen. Wilson spoke before some 350 guests at the Main Officers Open Mess, citing the work of the Corps of Engineers as vital to national security and economic advancement. He stated the Corps of Engineers has made tremendous strides in developing the great resources and strength of the Nation.

Makes Contribution

"I am proud to say that the Corps of Engineers is not only abreast of the engineering advances being made, but is making a substantial contribution to the knowledge of the scientific community and the engineering profession," he said.

Gen. Wilson also asserted his belief that the Army Engineers are well ahead of the field in their studies for a development program that will enable the first lunar explorers to have shelters and utilities for living and operating safely on the moon.

Following the speech, Gen. Wilson and Col. Coker cut a cake honoring the anniversary.

The banquet was preceded by a reception in the Main Ballroom of the Main Officers Open Mess. Gen. Wilson, Col. and Mrs. Coker, Col. and Mrs. Riel S. Crandall, and Maj. John E. Kelly, adjutant of the 151st Engineer Group, formed the receiving line.

Reviews Parade

Reviewing officer for the June 14 parade was Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center, accompanied by Col. Coker.

Gen. Harrell spoke briefly, congratulating the Corps of Engineers on its anniversary, and commending the engineer troops for their excellent record.

Commander of troops for the review was Lt. Col. James H. Boykin. On his staff were Capt. Arthur Long, Capt. John J. Cook and 1st Lt. John M. Sterling Jr.

In addition to the approximately 3,500 troops participating in the parade, some 35 pieces of equipment common to one or more of the participating engineer units passed in review.

Among the unusual features of the parade was the execution of "eyes right" by the boom of a 20-ton truck-mounted crane. This required a high degree of skill and timing on the part of the operator. Another feature was the detonation of a primacord line strung between two high poles in the center of the parade ground releasing the more than 30 battle streamers won by the various units in combat.

Participating Units

Participating in the review were the 2nd Engineer Battalion (Combat), 2nd Infantry Division, commanded by Lt. Col. Edwin T. O'Donnell; 391st Engineer Battalion (Combat), a Reserve unit from Greenville, S. C., commanded by Lt. Col. Karl E. Nuessner; 489th Engineer Battalion (Combat), a Reserve unit from Pine Bluff, Ark., commanded by Lt. Col. Frank R. Allen Jr.; 588th Engineer Company (Float Bridge), commanded by 1st Lt. Peter P. Strzok.

Headquarters Co., 151st Engineer Group (Combat), commanded by Capt. Alexander G. Fewsmith Jr.; 72nd Engineer Company (Combat), 1st Infantry Brigade, commanded by 1st Lt. Michael G. Glass; 186th Engineer Company (Light Equipment), a Reserve unit with home station at Brewton, Ala., commanded by Capt. Joe B. Thompson Jr.; 114th Engineer Company (Panel Bridge) Reserve unit from Washington, D. C., commanded by Capt. Arthur Welch; 577th Engineer Battalion (Construction), commanded by Lt. Col. James H. Boykin, and the 806th Engineer Battalion (Construction) commanded by Lt. Col. William M. Wilson.

All units in the review with the exception of the 2nd Engineer Battalion and the 72nd Engineer Company are assigned to the 151st Engineer Group.

LT. GEN. Walter K. Wilson Jr., Chief of Engineers, and Lt. Col. Sears Y. Coker, commanding officer of the 151st Engineer Group, cut the cake commemorating the anniversary of the Corps of Engineers. Eight of these exhibits were set up for the Birthday Banquet.

Following the review, Gen. Harrell and Col. Coker cut a cake commemorating the anniversary. Refreshments were served to the many spectators attending this colorful and outstanding review.

Awards Are Presented Artillerymen

Battery B, 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade, commanded by Capt. Jack H. Percival, received four of six awards made by Lt. Col. Wallis E. McClain, battalion commander, at a parade and ceremony. Batteries A and C received the remaining two.

The monthly "Best Motors" award and "Honor Battery" streamer for the month of May were won by Battery B. These two wins placed them in position to be further honored with the annual awards of "Best Motors" and "Honor Battery."

The monthly "Best Mess" award, won by Battery A, was not enough to jockey them into position for the annual award which was won by Battery C.

The Honor Battery Competition program of the 10th Artillery, now entering its third year, has proved to be a foremost incentive in promoting friendly intra-battalion competition for the best, thereby effecting a greater degree of efficiency.

Elect Col. Lattin As President of Parachute Club

Col. John M. Lattin was installed as president at the recent monthly meeting of the Fort Benning Parachute Club.

Col. Lattin, commander of the Infantry Center Troop Command, succeeds 1st Lt. Charles L. Mullins who has been assigned to Fort Bragg, N. C.

Other officers are SFC George W. Williams, vice president; 2nd Lt. Thomas Hodgson, secretary, and Capt. Carroll F. Herron, custodian.

PISTOL TEAM CHAMPS . . . U.S. Army Europe's "Blue Team" won the .45 caliber pistol team championship in the All-Army Rifle and Pistol Championship Matches with a record-breaking 1156-38X score. Kneeling (L to R) are SFC William D. Booker, team coach; Sgt. Charles J. Kalani and Sgt. Emil Heugatter. Standing are Maj. Leslie F. Krueger, officer in charge; CWO Jesse Armiger, team captain; SFC Ralph O. Thompson and SFC Thomas L. Teagle.

TOP RIFLE FIRERS . . . Capturing the Long-Range Rifle Team Championship in the All-Army Rifle and Pistol Championship Matches was the Army's "Red Team" with a record-breaking 591-75V score. Kneeling (L to R) are SFC Eugene W. Houser, Sgt. Clyde E. Grooms, SFC Robert L. Vassar and SFC William H. Brushwood. Standing are SFC Marcus A. Hayes, SFC Patrick J. Vigoletti, (Team Coach), MSgt. Jessie McCaskill (Team Captain) and Sgt. Raymond J. Calvez.

Post Exceeds Army Bond Drive Goal

Fort Benning has exceeded the Army's goal for the 1962 "Freedom Bond Drive" conducted on the post during May.

The Army-wide objective for the canvass was to get 25 per cent of non-participants to enroll in the payroll savings plan for buying Savings Bonds. The post's drive resulted in 31.2-per cent increase.

During the month-long canvass of military and civilian personnel, 4,650 people who were not previously participating in the payroll deduction plan enrolled.

The increase has brought the post's total participation up from 43 per cent May 1 to 62 per cent on May 31.

Reporting 100 per cent participation are The Infantry Center G-2, G-4, and Inspection General Sections, Post Exchange, Supply Center, Civilian Personnel, Educational Development and Purchasing and Contracting Sections.

Other units or sections attaining a high percentage include the Signal Section, 91 per cent; 428th Medical Battalion, 88 per cent; Special Services, 85 per cent; Third Army Training Aid Subcenter, 80 per cent; Quartermaster Section, 79 per cent; Ordnance Section, 75 per cent; Provost Marshal Section and Lawson Army Aviation Command, 71 per cent; 2nd Infantry Division, 70 per cent; 1st Infantry Brigade, Transportation and Finance and Accounting Sections, 69 per cent; Comptroller's Office, 68 per cent; Engineer Section, 63 per cent; G-3 Section, 60 per ceot; G-1 Section, 58 per cent; Infantry Center Command Section, 53 per cent, and Information Office, 50 per ceot.

June Is Vacation Bible School Month Throughout The Country

By Ida C. Evans

June is Vacation Bible School time on post as it is in hundreds of civilian communities throughout the United States.

Probably the only difference between VBS on the post and VBS in most civilian churches is the size of the school.

More than 1,000 children from three years old through the eighth grade and more than 200 volunteer teachers and helpers comprise the school, which opened June 11 and will continue through Wednesday.

WW II Barracks

Housed in barracks - type World War II temporary buildings, the VBS occupies most of the area bounded by Dixie Road, Collins Loop and Kanopsky Street. A few of the buildings in this area are family quarters or government offices.

Regular school on the post closed June 6. Like approximately five million other children throughout the nation, many of the young military dependents immediately enrolled in Vacation Bible School.

With grade school teachers still winding up the academic year with reports and records, the volunteer faculty of the Vacation Bible School began an eight-day term.

Just as Army families take "home life" with them wherever they may be assigned, these volunteers help to provide "church life" at Army posts throughout the nation and overseas.

Among the members of the VBS faculty this summer at Fort Benning are women representing churches and communities all the way from Jacksonville, Fla., to Billingham, Wash.

The superintendent of one department is from Munich, Germany, Mrs. James A. Rumpacz, who also taught in last year's school.

This is the eighth Vacation Bible School Mrs. Thomas K. Goodman has worked in. Before her husband, Lt. Col. Goodman, entered the service, she helped with the VBS in the First Baptist Church in nearby Lawton. The school this year on the post is her fourth at an Army installation.

Finding Help

As principal of the VBS, Mrs. Goodman started lining up her teachers in February. Beginning with the list of those who helped last year, she found that, true to Army life, many had departed the post or were on orders.

On the other hand, true to the spirit of dedicated chapel workers, many newly arrived teachers just walked into the Religious Education Center and volunteered, Mrs. Goodman said.

"Because of the size of our school," she continued, "We can't have a VBS graduation exercise and invite the parents. There just isn't an auditorium available large enough for that."

"Each department conducts its own closing exercises," she continued.

Another veteran VBS worker is Mrs. William R. Nettles. This is her 10th school, all at Army installations either in the United States or Japan.

This year Mrs. Nettles is in charge of refreshments. During the school, she and her helpers will serve 552 gallons of punch and 14,074 cookies.

Five Sunday Schools

The five Sunday Schools comprising the Vacation Bible School are the two General Protestant Sunday Schools, Main Post and Sand Hill, the General Protestant Spanish Sunday School, St. Michael's Episcopal and Lutheran Sunday Schools.

Director of the school is Mrs. John L. Waldrop director of religious education for The Infantry Center Chaplains Section.

Chaplain of the Bible School is Chaplain (Col.) Silas E. Decker, Infantry Center chaplain.

OCS Wives' Club Holds Recent Orientation Tea

The 52nd Officer Candidate Company Wives' Club, held a coffee in the day room of the company recently.

The meeting began with an introductory talk given by Capt. Edward J. Linsin. He greeted the candidates' wives and reviewed the course of study the candidates are encountering. Following his talk, the tactical officers were introduced and the wives were conducted on a tour of the barracks.

After the tour, coffee and tea were served from a table with dogwood, gardenia and sweetpeas of pastel colors, arranged in a white scalloped china bowl. A yellow linen table cloth was used with silver tea and coffee services to accent the table.

Serving as hostesses were Katrina Price, Pat Kinare, Linda Wells, and Glenda Lesesne.

Next on the program was election of officers. The new slate consists of Pat Kinard, chairman; Katrina Price, assistant chairman; Linda Wells, treasurer; Jill Johnson, publicity chairman; and Jackie McNeal, hospitality chairman.

Honored guests at the coffee were Mesdames Ben Harrel, Royal Reynolds, O. R. Koch, John McClain, and Edward M. Vaughn.

Also honoring the coffee were the company advisors: Edward J. Linsin, Robert V. Shaw, R. S. O'Neal, Thomas T. H. Hayes, D. A. Miller, C. B. Moore and Paul N. Finlayson.

Mrs. D. A. Miller gave a talk on invitations to help the wives who will hostess at the following coffees.

After a short question and answer period conducted by our new chairman, Pat Kinard, the meeting was adjourned until the July coffee.

Local Girl Elected As Rollins College Choir Recorder

The Rollins College Chapel Choir has elected Betty Drissel as recorder for the 1962-63 academic year.

The chapel choir, which sings choral literature masterpieces of all periods from medieval to contemporary, is scheduled to appear on the CBS network television program "Look Up and Live" at 5 p.m. July 1, 8, and 15.

Miss Drissel, a freshman at Rollins, is the daughter of Col. and Mrs. V. Homer Drissel.

Jewish Sisterhood Installs Officers

The Jewish Sisterhood of Fort Benning elected new officers at its June meeting.

The slate includes Mrs. Martin Malt, president; Mrs. Murray Schooner, vice president; Mrs. Melvin Cohen, treasurer; Mrs. Peter Enan, secretary; Mrs. Martin Gerbitz, publicity chairman; Mrs. George Alter, refreshments chairman, and Mrs. Edward West and Mrs. Martin Tragarz, welcome chairmen.

The officers will serve for 12 months.

GOVERNMENT COSTS

The average cost of all government — federal, state and local — to each man, woman and child in the U. S. is $700 per year. About three-fourths of the taxes collected go to the federal government.

Signal Corps Celebrates 102nd Anniversary

Army Signal Corps personnel here, numbering more than 1,900, have received congratulations from the Army's chief of staff on the 102nd anniversary of the corps, celebrated yesterday.

Gen. George H. Decker, in a message to the corps, said, "From the simple flags represented on your insignia to the communications satellite, the Signal Corps has matched the pace of science and technology in meeting the requirements of the Army in the field."

"The future promises even greater challenges to the professional skill, energy and devotion to duty that are the hallmark of the men and women of the Signal Corps," he continued.

Officers, warrant officers and enlisted personnel of the Signal Corps here are members of the 156th Signal Battalion; 233rd Signal Company; Company C, 204th Signal Battalion; 111th Signal Company, or the 122nd Signal Battalion.

They are also assigned to the 1st Infantry Brigade; The Infantry Center Signal Section, The Infantry School Communications Department or Combat Developments Office.

The signal flags on the insignia of the Signal Corps represent more than a simple communication device. They are a tribute to an Army doctor who originated the idea of transmitting messages by "wigwagging."

Maj. Albert J. Myer, then assistant surgeon, who devised the signal system, became the world's first Signal officer on June 21, 1860. The corps dates its birth from this event.

Since its significant but simple beginning, the Signal Corps has grown to encompass development and procurement of communication, electronic, meteorological and photographic equipment.

The corps distributes, installs, operates and maintains communications equipment in Army networks. It trains and furnishes Signal Corps specialists and units and performs photographic and meteorological duties.

The scope of the means used by Signal officers and men to transmit intelligence runs the gamut from Maj. Myer's simple flags to intricate infrared and radar signaling devices.

Far more than mere purveyors of orders, messages and military documents, men of the Signal Corps engage in combat surveillance, collecting essential information about the enemy. They provide the equipment and signals essential to gun-laying, air navigation and guided missile control.

The Signal Corps contributes its "know how" to the Army's clerical and logistical activities by providing electronic computers radio and wire service to facilitate and expedite supply.

Generals To Attend Conference

Photography Contest Open to 'Shutterbugs'

Camera fans at Fort Benning will have a chance to test their mettle in a contest announced by The Infantry Center Special Services Section.

The competition will be the first step to the 10th Interservice Photography Contest.

It is open to all military personnel on active duty for 90 days or more and, assigned, attached or station in the Columbus - Phenix City area.

Deadline for entries is Aug. 10.

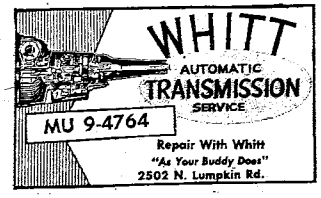
Winners in the post competition will be entered in the Third Army contest. Third Army winners go on to the Department of the Army competition, whose winners go to the Interservice contest.

Competition is divided into two groups. Group one consists of black and white single photographs. Enlargements may vary from a minimum of 8 by 10 inches to a maximum of 16 by 20 and must be unmounted and untinted. Negatives are not required in the post and Third Army contests.

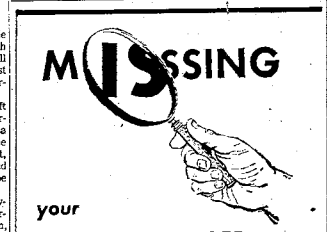
The second grouping is color transporencies which may be, at a maximum, four by five inches.

Because of the possible danger of damage through breakage, glass mounts will not be accepted. Entries must be mounted in plastic coverings.

The face of the lower left hand corner of each transparency must be marked with a red dot. In addition, the home and grade of the contestant, together with the title and category entered must be printed on the mount.



In each group there are seven subject categories: portraits, babies and children, animals and pets, sports or action, scenic, military life and experimental.



Instruction in photography is available to interested personnel at the Special Services Photo Laboratory, Bldg. 394.

Entry blanks may be obtained at any of the post craft shops.

Lt Gen Trapnell Visits Record-Size Maneuver

HERE TO VISIT UNITS PARTICIPATING IN 'CHIEF ACORN' Lieutenant General Trapnell Arrives for Briefing

Some 5,000 men and 1,000 vehicles from the 2nd Division participated this week in Exercise CHIEF ACORN, a maneuver exercise conducted by the 87th Maneuver Area Command, a reserve unit here from Birmingham, Alabama.

The exercise which began on Monday and ended yesterday was the largest maneuver exercise ever written by a reserve unit. It was written, staged, and tested by the 87th MAC.

Gen. Trapnell Visits

Lieutenant General T. J. H. Trapnell, Commanding General, Third United States Army visited Fort Benning Tuesday to inspect the units taking part in the exercise.

In theory the problem began when aggressor forces landed in Florida and pushed into the Georgia - Alabama area. The general situation was that forces of the United States Army launched a counter-attack in the Fort Benning area.

The problem was designed to be as realistic as possible and included a simulated atomic attack, air strikes, mass movement of troops, night patrols, attacks, and guerrilla actions.

The friendly forces included the 1st Infantry, Companies A and B of the 38th Infantry, 12th Artillery, Company B, 13th Transportation Battalion, Headquarters and Operations Platoon of the 122nd Signal Battalion and the 2nd Division Brigade.

The aggressor forces consisted of Companies C and D, 38th Infantry, 38th Artillery, Company B of 69th Armor, Troop C of 7th Cavalry; 3rd Combat Support Flight of 2nd Aviation Company, the 3rd Forward Area Support Platoon of Company B of 122nd Signal Battalion, the Evacuation Platoon of the 702nd Ordnance and sections of the 2nd Quartermaster Company.

The 87th MAC is one of two such maneuver commands in the United States Army, both of which are reserve units. The 87th is the larger with a strength of 500 officers and enlisted men and is located in Birmingham, Alabama.

The 87th Maneuver Area Command is unique in that it is one of the few reserve organizations that actually works

(See 87TH MAC, Page 10)

He Done It!

Never let it be said it can't be done.

For those who have taken or will take the division's map proficiency examination, an example was set recently by Lieutenant James D. Johnson, Company E, 69th Armor.

Out of 9,000 division personnel who have taken the test this year, Lt. Johnson is the first to achieve 100 per cent.

9th's Support Hq Big Effort Over

BY 9TH INFANTRY PIO

The few remaining personnel left at Eglin Air Force Base, Florida, from Exercise CLEAR LAKE, returned home last Thursday evening leaving Site Support Headquarters once again the "ghost town" it was before the 9th arrived in early May.

Exercise CLEAR LAKE ended June 8 after weeks of simulated war exercises complete with tough aggressors and a mass airdrop of airborne troops.

Colonel Hannum Heads

Site Support Headquarters and its support units were commanded by Colonel Clifford P. Hannum, commander of the 9th infantry. The problem began May 29 and went through June 8. There was a total of approximately 800 enlisted men and 65 officers teamed together and billeted at the Pierce Air Strip contonment area.

The mission of Site Support was to establish necessary forces and organizations to provide Aggressor and Controller personnel and furnish administrative and logistical support for participating units.

Butane Tanks Herald Clean Cooking Days

Operation Cost Total $79,042

One dream is fast becoming a fact in the lives of division enlisted men whose duties include "kitchen police".

Sprouting near mess halls throughout the Sand Hill area are long silver butane gas tanks—prophecying an end to coal stoves, coal dust and smoke.

Working at 23rd

Installation of gas operated stoves, hot water heaters, and booster heaters is in progress at different units on Sand Hill at this moment. The 23rd Infantry area is being worked on this week. The 2nd Division Quartermaster reported that approximately 52 mess halls would receive new gas facilities and equipment.

A local firm has contracted for supply of certain items of equipment and installation of all equipment. The stoves will be an item of government supply.

The reported price of installation and supply for one mess hall is $1,491.36. Cost of the total operation for Sand Hill is $79,042.

The gas will be turned on in each mess hall as soon as the final installation and testing is completed.

Getting Skilled, Tough

STRAC 2nd Division Soldiers Are Kept on-the-Go

By John R. Grant

Called upon to be "skilled, tough, and ready around the clock", 2nd Division units are diving head first into many specialized training areas designed to maintain the division's status as a member of the Strategic Army Corps.

The training includes such phases as amphibious operations, air mobility, and counter-guerrilla exercises.

Six weeks ago the 87th Infantry, along with elements of about a dozen attached units from the 2nd Division, began the 750-mile motor trip to Little Creek, Virginia, marking the beginning of the 2nd Division's initial introduction to amphibious operations.

Training Began May 14

The actual wet training began on May 14, after the three-day trip with overnight stops at Fort Gordon, Georgia and Fort Bragg, North Carolina.

To date, the 87th Infantry and the 1st and 23rd Infantries, who followed the 87th on May 28 and June 11 respectively, have completed amphibious training at Little Creek. The 9th Infantry will leave tomorrow morning and will be followed July 9 by the 38th Infantry, last 2nd Division unit to undergo the training.

The travelling schedule allows one unit to be going to the amphibious training area while another is returning to Fort Benning.

38TH SOLDIERS PRACTICE AMPHIBIOUS ASSAULT IN FLORIDA Scheduled to Train in July, They Practiced During Exercise CLEAR LAKE

The training begins with a three - day basic amphibious course and encompasses techniques of embarkation with full combat equipment, debarkation from transports, debarkation at the beach, penetration and assault of the enemy - held beach, troop life aboard ship, ship movements, and communications.

The amphibious training is being conducted in five increments, with each battle group serving as the nucleus of a task force. While one battle group is at Little Creek, the other four battle groups can continue their regular training here at Fort Benning.

87th Takes To Air

After having completed amphibious training, the 87th Infantry took to the air and completed a week of instruction in air mobility. This instruction, conducted by the 52nd Aviation Company at Todd Field, includwith regular Army units during its annual two weeks of active duty training.

During World War II maneuvers were conducted by temporarily assigned maneuver personnel. However, it was proved that organized maneuver commands on a permanent status would be more effective. These commands would be capable of writing, staging and training umpires for maneuvers up to and including corps in size.

The 87th Maneuver Area Command was activated in February 1957. Prior to that time it was Headquarters, 87th Infantry Division Reserve.

The commander of the unit is Major General Leon L. Mathews. Deputy Commander is Brigadier General Edward Friend Jr., and chief umpire is Brigadier General Lewis C. Pattillo.

Exercise CHIEF ACORN marks the second time that the 87th Maneuver Area Command has worked in conjunction with the 2nd Division on a maneuver of this type.

ed an introduction to Army aviation, flight demonstrations, introduction to helicopter operations, practice loading and unloading of H-34 helicopters and a helicopter orientation ride to Kelley Hill.

This week the 1st Infantry and the 38th Infantry have been in the field participating in Exercise CHIEF ACORN, a four-day maneuver exercise being conducted here by the 87th Maneuver Area Command, a reserve unit from Birmingham, Alabama. Upon the completion of the exercise, the 1st Infantry will receive its air mobility training, which will be followed by Expert Infantryman's Badge testing.

The 22rd Infantry, which is expected to return from Little Creek this weekend, will begin the annual qualification in arms on Monday.

The 9th and 38th Infantries, who are scheduled to leave for Little Creek, Virginia, June 23 and July 8 respectively, will receive instruction from the 2nd Engineers in the movement of troops and equipment across rivers upon the completion of their amphibious training.

9th Infantry Hits the Road To Little Creek

Loaded down with heavy equipment the 9th Infantry, commanded by Colonel Clifford P. Hannum, moved out for Little Creek, Virginia, this week. Personnel of the 9th will arrive by bus tomorrow and begin training with an introduction to amphibious operations.

The first week will consist mainly of familiarization with Navy ships and landing craft with particular emphasis on attack transports, attack cargo ships, dock landing ships, tank landing ships and landing craft for vehicles and personnel.

Later, training in dry net and wet net procedures will be taught with troop participation. The organization and duties of boat teams and water-proofing of vehicles and equipment will follow.

The shore training will be broken down in groups of 200 in order that personnel will receive the training in which they specialize and also that which is most unfamiliar to them.

On July 3, water training will commence, and the newly acquired skills of the 9th Infantry will be put to test. Loading and unloading of amphibious craft plus an actual amphibious assalt at nearby Camp Pendleton will be the highlight of the trip.

The 9th will storm the beach on July 6 and move to Fort Story, Virginia, to prepare for the trip to Fort Benning. The "waterborne" 9th will arrive at Fort Benning on July 7.

9th Inf Is Reviewed By Col. Hannum, CO

9th Infantry PIO

Colonel Clifford P. Hannum, commander of the 9th Infantry, last Saturday reviewed his command in a full battle group review at Wetherby Field.

As the battle group passed in review Colonel Hannum was flanked by Sergeant Major James L. Runyon and the first sergeants of each company.

After a welcome speech to members of the 9th Infantry and their families Colonel Hannum briefly recalled several past exercises and then looked to the future. He commended the 9th on the progress made in recent field problems and spoke of the next two exercises to come and the Battle Group ATT to be administered in October.

Colonel Hannum then made several awards to three different companies. Company A received an award for having the best mess for the month of May and also a best maintenance award for vehicles and weapons. Both awards were accepted by Captain Donald B. Smith Jr., new commander of Company A.

A safety award for Company D was accompanied by Captain Richard H. Morton the company commander. Lieutenant Shane N. Soldate, commander of Company C, accepted the 1st Quarter Reenlistment award for his unit.

The review was the first in several months due to the extensive field training and problems in which the 9th Infantry has participated.

87th Completes Air Mobility Tng

By 87th Inf PIO

Fresh from amphibious training, the 87th Infantry took to the air last week and completed a phase in air mobility training.

The instruction, both classroom and practical, was conducted by the 2nd Aviation Company at Todd Field in the Harmony Church area.

The scope of the eight-hour block of instruction included an introduction to Army aviation, flight demonstrations of aircraft, static display of aircraft, introduction to helicopter operations, practice loading and unloading of the H-34 helicopter and finally a helicopter orientation ride to Kelley Hill.

Upon arrival at Essebagger Field, each plane load of personnel dispersed into their regular infantry tactical groups. The 87th Infantry was the last battle group in the division to complete air mobility.

Trainees Tour Va. Base; See U. S. Navy's 'Largest'

BY 23RD INFANTRY PIO

Troops of Task Force 23rd Infantry took time out from training at the Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base last week to visit the U. S. Navy's largest base, the Norfolk Naval Operations Base.

Training groups made half-day trips to the base for tours aboard destroyers and a helicopter - type aircraft carrier and while at the Norfolk base got a look at all types of vessels ranging from tugboats to cargo craft to submarines.

Some of the troops also viewed the USS Intrepid, the carrier which picked up Astronaut Scott Carpenter after his orbital flight last month.

Before the trip, the men from the Army task force, which was made up of the 22rd Infantry, 37th Artillery, and a number of attached units, were briefed on Navy customs and such courtesies as saluting the national flag and the officer of the deck while boarding ship.

Seven NCOs Now E6, E7 In Cavalry

By 7th Cavalry PIO

The 7th Cavalry recently promoted one enlisted man to the grade of E-7 and six to the grade of E-6. Sergeant First Class Jerry L. Daniels was promoted to his present rank of E-7. Staff Sergeants Hammond D. Watkins, Robert E. Johnson, Elzie L. Gross, Kenneth M. Rouse, Donald L. Gillians and Robert L. Pate were promoted to their present rank of E-6.

Sgt. Daniels is assigned to the S-2 section as the assistant intelligence sergeant. He has been assigned to the "Garry Owen" for over a year.

Both Sgt. Pate and Sgt. Gillians are scout squad leaders. Sgt. Gillians is assigned to Headquarter Troop and is the headquarters supply sergeant, presently working in the S-4 under the new central supply system.

Sgts. Watkins, Johnson and Rouse are all assigned to Troop C. Sgt. Watkins is a graduate of the Ranger school and was recently chosen the Division Soldier-of-the-Month.

Florida Reserve MPs Train Here With Div's Police

Reservists from Fort Lauderdale's Military Police Detachment of the 3220th U. S. Army Garrison of West Palm Beach are receiving on the job training while on two-week active duty at Fort Benning.

Through the cooperation of 2nd Division's 2nd Military Police Detachment, the 45 Florida reservists are perfecting their abilities by serving with their exact counterparts in the Regular Army 2nd Division during this year's summer encampment.

Working closely with 2nd Division Military Police, the reservists take training which includes such duties as traffic control, dispatching operations and general patrol duties.

Amphibious Tng Planned At 38th Inf

By 38th Inf PIO

Officers of the U. S. Navy and Marines were guests of the 38th Infantry last week for an Amphibious Planning Conference in preparation for the 38th's amphibious training at Little Creek, Virginia in July.

At the conference, the Navy, Marine and 38th Infantry personnel coordinated final plans for an assault landing on the Virginia coast which has been designated as "Operation High Orbit." The three day operation will culminate over a week of "dry" amphibious training at the Virginia Naval base.

Embarkation plans were formulated and statistics were extended for the loading of the five ships.

Two Arabian Officers See Exercise With 38th

Two officers from Saudi Arabia received a first hand look at a U. S. Army Infantry Battle Group operating under simulated combat conditions this week.

Captain Abdullah Ali Barrak and First Lieuteanant Abdul Aziz Ohaly accompanied the 38th Infantry on Exercise CHIEF ACORN where they observed various phases of the four day exercise.

Before going into the field, the two officers were briefed on garrison activities of the staff sections and rifle companies and observed the amphibious planning conference the 38th is conducting with Navy and Marine personnel in preparation for training at Little Creek, Virginia.

After moving with and observing the Battle Group's deployment to CHIEF ACORN, Captain Barrak observed the activities and functions of the staff while Lieutenant Ohaly witnessed infantry unit training.

Local Ballet Instructor Plans Summer Lessons; Sponsored by Div OWC

Miss Rossie Gilmore, director of the Fort Benning Ballet, will offer dancing lessons at Fort Benning during the months of July and August.

The classes are sponsored by the 2nd Division Officers' Wives Club.

According to Miss Gilmore, competent ballet instruction can give a child good posture, coordination, strength and, most important, poise.

Miss Gilmore is a permanent resident of Columbus. This will be her fifth season as director of the Fort Benning Ballet. She is also a member of the Ballet Guild of Columbus, which presents a program each year. There has been an increased interest in dance during the past few years largely through her efforts and other teachers in the area.

Off To New York

She will travel to New York City this month to study under Igor Youskevitch and Oreste Sergisvisky. She will also study ballroom dancing in the John Clancy studios and modern jazz with Luigi, one of this country's foremost jazz dance instructors.

From there, Miss Gilmore will travel to Montgomery, Alabama, where she has been invited to conduct classes for both teachers and students at the Certified Teachers and Dancers Guild on June 25 and 30. This is the first dance teacher's organization of the southeast.

Vicki Morales, a student of Miss Gilmore for the past four years and also a member of the Ballet Guild, will accompany her to Montgomery as an assistant.

For further information about dance lessons, call Mrs. James S. Peabody at MU 9-1209 or Mrs. Mariano Morales at MU 9-2497.

A Varied Life in the Army Pleases Mrs. Walter Todd

By INGRID KRAUS

"This life is cut out for me. I like variety and would be terribly bored leading a very settled life."

These enthusiastic remarks about Army life were made by Rosemary Todd, wife of Colonel Walter B. Todd, commander of the 1st Infantry. She has ben an Army wife since 1942, when she was married to then Lt. Todd, who was stationed at Ft. Gordon, Ga.

The charming Southern lady who was born in Laurence, S. C., and holds a bachelor of arts degree in music from Furman University, considers music both her profession and hobby. Until last summer she either directed choirs or taught public school music both here and abroad. On several occasions she has also been a choir soloist.

Rosemary Todd has served as director of the Ft. Benning Episcopal choir and has also taught music in the pre-kindergarten here.

When Col. Tod was stationed in Ankara, Turkey, on a Military Assistance Advisory Group assignment, his wife taught music there in the American public school.

The slender, blond woman especially liked Turkey since the absence of dependent housing required living among the natives and thus made it easier for the Todds to get to know the Turks and learn their language.

Mrs. Todd, who has already seen the Orient, having been stationed in Japan from 1948 to 1951, will return to the Far East this fall when she and her 15-year-old daughter Tilda, will accompany Col. Todd, who has been assigned to 8th Army Headquarters in Seoul, Korea.

Their 18-year-old son, Walter B. Jr., will remain in the United States and enter Presbyterian College in South Carolina.

The colonel's lady lists Fort Benning as her favorite stateside post and says that she has enjoyed very much her association with the 1st Infantry. The Todds have been at Fort Benning for four years. Before taking over the 1st Infantry last year, Col. Todd was assigned to The Infantry School.

Mrs. Todd has served as hospitality chairman of the Ft. Benning Woman's Club and has also been active in the bowling league and various other activities of the 2nd Division Officers' Wives Club.

Fifty-Two EM Get Promotions

By 22nd Inf PIO

Topping the list of 52 promotions this month in the 22nd Infantry are those in the E-5 category.

Twenty-four EM in the battle group are now wearing their new E-5 stripes. The next highest number of promotions occurred in the E-4 pay grade. Fifteen former PFCs are now wearing the specialist E-4 chevrons on their sleeves.

Of the 52 promotions, nine went to EM upped to an E-6 rating, and four went to those promoted to an E-7 pay grade.

Not considered in the 52 is the promotion of an E-6 within the battle group. Company D's first sergeant, Gardell Kaney, was upped from MSG E-7.

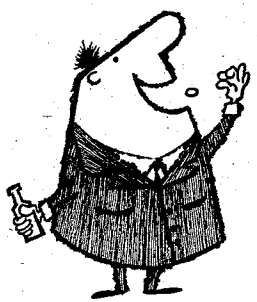
Sgt. Phillips Upped to E-8 At 2nd Engrs

By 2nd Engr PIO

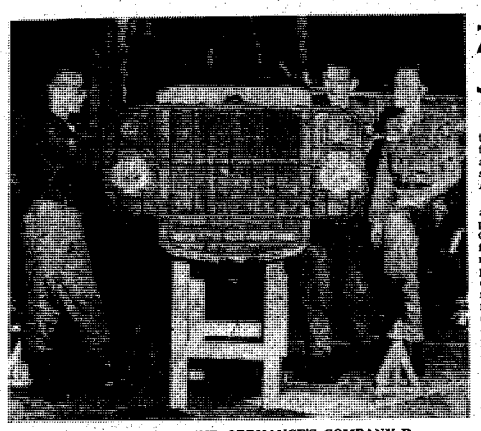
In a ceremony held recently in the office of Lieutenant Colonel Edwin T. O'Donnell, 2nd Engineer Battalion commander, promotion orders to the grade of master sergeant, E-8, were presented to Samuel E. Phillips.

Sergeant Phillips joined the Army in 1943, spent his first tour of duty at Jefferson Barracks, Missouri, and was later transferred to Europe. From there he went to Fort Campbell, Kentucky, and was subsequently sent overseas to the Far East. After serving there, Sergeant Phillips was assigned to Fort Benning, Georgia, where he served as first sergeant of Company B, 10th Engineer Battalion.



Once again in 1955 Sergeant Phillips was headed for the Far East where he served as first sergeant of Company A, 13th Engineer Battalion.

In 1956 he was again assigned to Fort Benning, where he served with the 3rd Infantry Division. In 1958 Sergeant Phillips moved with the division to Germany, where he remained until June 1960.



On July 27, 1960, Sergeant Phillips joined the 2nd Engineer Battalion as a platoon sergeant.

On April 27, 1962, having succeeded Master Sergeant Paul D. Bradley, who was transferred to the Infantry Center, Sergeant Phillips assumed the duties of combat construction foreman in the office of the division engineer.

702nd Ordnance Has Big Repair Job for 2nd Division Vehicles

By John Tucker

"Ordnance? Do I know what they do? Sure, they . . .Thats the branch that . . ." A typical answer from the average person when asked about the Army Ordnance Corps.

Lets take a tour of the shops and facilities of the Main Support Company of the 702nd Ordnance Battalion and see for yourselves just what ordnance really does. This company, designated as Headquarters and Company B, is responsible for third echelon repair and maintenance of the division combat wheeled vehicles and a portion of tracked vehicles. Company B also furnishes back-up support to Company A, the 702nd's forward support company.

Commanded by Capt. Richard W. Walpole, this unit performs several different and seemingly unrelated jobs. In addition to their maintenance and repair operation, Company B operates the ordnance technical supply section for the 2nd Division. Through the offices and warehouses of this section pass the parts and supplies necessary to keep the division's vehicles on the road. This is also the section that is responsible for the appearance of the new multifueled trucks in the Second Infantry Division. Lets go on.

As we walk into the office of the vehicle recovery section, the telephone rings. Sergeant Robert McLendon, recovery chief, answers the phone, talks a minute and replaces the phone. "Recovery mission," he says. "There's a tank bogged down in the mud and its engine won't start. We will need a wrecker and the "Dragon Wagon." As he assembles his crew and prepares to depart on his mission, we discover that this "Dragon Wagon" is the biggest trailer truck we have ever seen. It is correctly identified as a tank transporter and is built to haul tanks, armored personnel carriers and self propelled artillery.

As we walk further, we note the presence of a canvas repair shop, a glass shop, and, of all things, a machine shop mounted in a van on a two-and-a-half ton truck. These facilities, we learn, are part of Company B's service section. We also hear that in this same section is a welding, body and fender, and paint shop.

We enter a huge building. This place, we observe, is large enough to house several basketball courts. We are told by Staff Sergeant William Cox, the shop foreman, that this is the main shop of Company B. There are many vehicles parked in this shop in various stages of repair. Sgt. Cox further explains that his mechanics replace engines, transmissions, differentials and all other major components of Army vehicles in this shop. This shop is buzzing with activity.

We move on to the shop office where we are greeted by Sergeant First Class Kenneth Hall, the shop operations sergeant. He explains that this is the nerve center of Company B's operation. Customer job orders are received here, repair parts for jobs in process are issued here, and the flow of work is regulated to the various sections.

Prior to leaving, we talk for a few minutes with Lieutenant Michael Petryszak, the shop officer. He explains, "In a nutshell, Company B receives unserviceable vehicles, radiators, canvas, batteries and many other items too numerous to mention, repairs or replaces them and gives back to the using organization a combat serviceable piece of equipment."

Thus, after a visit to ordnance, a visit as brief as ours was, we will be able to answer that question, "What is Ordnance?", if we are ever asked.

SERVICE CLUB ENTERTAINMENT
The Moonlighters From Kelley Hill

Blood Is Donated To Red Cross By 1st Inf Troops

By 1st Infantry PIO

Members of the 1st Infantry recently donated 143 pints of blood to the American Red Cross blood drive.

The Red Cross bloodmobile program was well underway at the Service Club Two, Sand Hill, as the men of the "Always First" unit arrived.

Especially noteworthy was the donation by Sergeant Fred A. Lind, Headquarters and Headquarters Company. Sgt. Lind has donated 26 pints of blood since entering the service.

Company D and Company E had the largest participation with 24 and 23 members donating respectively.

The American Red Cross was assisted by the 2nd Medical Battalion in the drive for blood donations which totaled more than 600 pints.

To Entertain At Club 2, Sunday

"Club Continental" is coming to Service Club Two Sunday at 7:30 p.m.

Made up of Kelley Hill personnel, this show has played for many of the post service clubs, major command parties, and at Martin Army Hospital.

The featured band is called the "Moonlighters". Even though some of its original personnel have been transferred to other posts, the group still functions as an instrumental combo. It is directed by Specialist Four George Joyner and Specialist Four James Brown.

Last night the Moonlighters were featured at a dance at Service Club Four. Hostesses from local organizations helped to entertain the men at the semi-formal social.

Bowling Facility Reopens After Remodel, Repair

87TH INF PITCHER
Leonard Goodwin

The Sand Hill Bowling Alley has recently reopened after being closed for remodeling and repairs.

Sergeant First Class Grover E. Wilkerson, manager, reported that the lanes have been resurfaced, floors have been remodeled and new interior decorations have been added.

Located off Scot Avenue and across from the Sand Hill post office, the bowling alley has added new signs to better identify its location.

The bowling alley has 6 lanes. It operates from six to 10 p.m. during the week and from 3 to 10 p.m. during the afternoon on weekends.

87th Takes Lead in Ball Competition

By 87th Inf PIO

Leonard Goodwin pitched the 87th Infantry softball team into first place last Friday night, with a one-hit win over Division Trains, 8-0.

Goodwin faced only 20 batters in six innings and struck out 14. The Conquerors banged out 14 hits including two home runs.

Trains, which was tied for first place with the 87th Infantry before the game started, trailed the Conqueror nine by only one run up to the fifth inning, but the 87th hitters pounded Trains' pitcher Frank Meyers for seven runs in the last two innings.

Jerry Handy and Lawery Jordan provided most of the hitting power for the 87th, each collecting one home run. Handy, playing shortstop and batting in the leadoff position, scored three runs.

DOVE FIELDS

The Wildlife Management Section reports 10 dove fields will be planted for this fall's dove season. Six fields have already been planted on the Georgia portion of the reservation while the four fields planned for the Alabama area will be planted within the next few days.

Dove fields are prepared in a manner similar to land tillaged for commercial farming except foods especially attractive to doves are planted. The fields are generally five to fifteen acres in size. Brown top millet is being planted in dove fields and should be mature in mid-September for the opening of the dove season.

Dove hunting has attracted much interest on post in the past several years. It brings in the fall hunting season, giving hunters an opportunity to get their equipment in shape for the fall hunting which opens about a month later.

AVERETTS POND NEAR COMPLETE

Renovation of the dam at Averett's Pond is expected to be completed this week. Engineers and wildlife personnel are installing a new overflow pipe which will complete the construction work at the pond. The pond was drained last month and the center portion of the dam rebuilt.

Upon completion of the construction work, the pond will be refilled and a stocking program initiated. Details of the stocking program will depend on availability of fish from the hatchery.

Initial stocking will probably get underway this summer with additional fish being released in the spring. The pond will be stocked with bass and bream and probably will remain closed to fishing for about a year.

WHAT WAS THAT?

Occasionally fishermen report seeing or even catching creatures in local ponds and streams that include a variety of reptiles and animals.

Most recently there have been reports of alligators in several post ponds. Several have been spotted in Weem's Pond. During the past week an angler indicated an alligator had been making passes at his float while fishing at Harp's Pond.

A small alligator had been seen sunning itself on the boat pier at King's Pond last fall.

Where they come from or where they stay is still a mystery but from time to time they appear and undoubtedly one of these days one will be hooked.

Another creature common to many of the post ponds is the beaver. Being a nocturnal creature he is rarely seen by the average daylight fishermen. However, if you have ever done any night fishing at King's Pond, particularly at the upper end, you probably have been jarred from your boat seat by the loud splash of a beaver's tail, his warning device that danger is near.

Next to fish, the turtle is probably the biggest bait robber of the waters. Being rather common in almost all ponds, most fishermen have hooked one at sometime or another. Speaking of big turtles, MSgt. Robert W. Sheedy, acting sergeant major, The Student Brigade, caught a 32-pound fresh water turtle at Bussey Lake, Phenix City. The land was made on an eight-pound test line with a minnow being used as bait.

Young Takes 1962 TIC Tennis Title

In three straight sets, Capt. Paul Young defeated last year's Infantry Center tennis champion, 1st Lt. Art Foust to take the 1962 singles championship here.

Young, a pathologist at Martin Army Hospital, won by scores of 6-0, 6-2 and 6-2.

In the senior's division, Brig. Gen. Royal Reynolds Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School, won the singles title, defeating Maj. Gilbert Proctor J.r. 6-3 and 6-0.

Teaming up, Gen. Reynolds and Maj. Proctor captured the senior doubles, defeating Lt. Col. Robert F. Galer and Sgt. Maj. Archie E. Hatfield.

Young and 1st Lt. John M. Sterling won the open doubles championship by default.

Ladies' Golf Club Plans Schedule

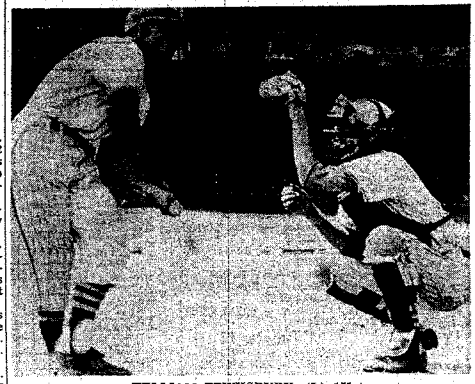
The Ladies Golf Club has installed new officers for the coming season.

They are: Mrs. Steven Doer, chairman; Gladys Rush vice-chairman; Barbara Johnson, 2nd vice chairman and Lew Kerns, secretary-treasurer.

The new slate of officers has made plans for an interesting golf year. Weekly tournaments will be announced each month that are geared to interest the high scorers as well as the expert. Golf clinics will be held periodically to help those who need assistance.

The schedule of summer golf tournaments planned by the ladies includes a Nassau Tournament scheduled for today. Eighteen holes will be played with prizes being awarded for the best first nine holes with full handicap and the best second nine with full handicap.

To round out the schedule for the month, Odd-Hole Tournament will be held on June 29. Only the scores on the odd holes count.



The next coffee will be held June 27 at the Country Club.

TIC Major Unit Track Meet Set

Athletes from most of the major units on post will show their talents tomorrow at 9 a.m. when The 1962 Infantry Center Track and Field Meet gets under way at Doughboy Stadium and Stilwell Field.

Individual and team honors will be up for grabs in 17 events ranging from the 100-yard dash to the hammer throw.

Sandwiched in between these are the 220 and 440-yard dashes, 880-yard and mile runs, 440-yard and mile relays, 120-yard high hurdles, 440-yard and low hurdles.

First-Half Honors Taken By The Student Brigade

By SFC Bismarck Stith

Charles Spell, The Student Brigade's righthander, ended The Infantry Center Troop Command's eight-game winning streak and posted his ninth consecutive victory.

This game rounded-out the first half of play in the major unit baseball league.

TSB finished with a 16-2 record to take the first-half championship. The 428th Medical Battalion came in second with a 10-8 sheet followed by TICTC in third place with a 9-9, slate.

TSB Swamps TICTC

TSB blasted four TICTC pitchers for 19 hits and 21 runs to halt TICTC's eight-game winning drive. Jessie Joyce, Bob Yerger and Charles Spell hit three singles apiece. Robert Kinlaw hit his second home run of the season along with two singles to pace the TSB's hitting attack.

Fred Valentine's two - run homer, his fourth, and Henry Rhoden's triple and two singles led the losers in the hitting department.

The opening game of the second half of play in the major unit baseball league got underway last night with 29th Infantry nine blanking the 10th Artillery Redlegs, 3-0, behind the four-hit pitching of Roy Bowers.

The Two-Niner's scored their three runs in the sixth inning when George Rogers drew a free pass when he was hit by a pitch. Rogers stole to second on the next pitch scoring on a passed ball. Dave Lynn drew a walk and scored on Hank Derleth's single. Derleth scored the third run of the inning on Victor Rivera's single.

Curt Gentry's double in the first inning was the big blow for the Infantrymen.

Robert Steward's, Percy Shaw's and John Couch's singles along with Dwight Fulton's double accounted for the Redleg's four hits.

John Couch was charged with the setback.

The schedule calls two for two games to be played on Saturday. TSB will meet the 29th Infantry at 1:30 p.m., while TICTC will be matched against 156th Signalmen that evening at 7 p.m.

Sunday's action will see the 428th Medics matched against 151st Engineers in the afternoon, while TICTC will meet the 10th Artillery Redlegs in the night contest.

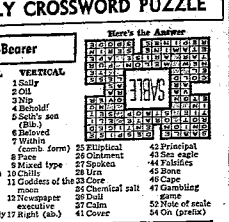
Seek Talent For Coming Production

Fort Benning's little theater group, The Masquers, will hold readings for "Damn Yankees," a musical comedy scheduled for production in early September.

The readings will be held at The Playhouse, Building 2519, on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

A special invitation to audition for the show has been issued to all military personnel, members of the WAC Company and dependents.

Non-singing roles are available for persons theatrically but not musically inclined. The show also calls for singers and dancers.



A general meeting will be held for members Monday at 7:30 p.m. at The Playhouse.

Two Spring Dances Set By YMCA

The Armed Services YMCA has scheduled two dances to welcome servicemen of various units returning from maneuvers. The first dance is a Hawaiian Luau slated for tomorrow night, while the second, set for June 30, is a formal dance honoring the GSO Girl-of-the-Year.

A hula dance program will be presented during intermission by Mary Jane Andrews, Minnie Qualls, Sharron McKinney, Jane Patterson, Ellen Wachob, and Shirley Wooten. Miss Wooten, who has done the choreography for musicals presented by Phenix City's Central High School, will direct the program.

The Luau will be given on the patio with all the comforts of Hawaii. Exotic island foods will be served to guests.

The GSO Girl-of-the-Year Formal Ball on June 30 will honor Miss Loretta Parker who was announced as winner of the coveted award during the recent Armed Forces Day parade in Columbus.

Runners-up and members of the court will be Miss Charlotte Brawner, Girl-of-the-Year for 1961, and Miss Barbara Brown. Former winners of the award over the past 10 years will be honored guests at the dance.

Both dances will begin at 8:30 p.m. with the intermission programs beginning at 9:30. The Five Shadows will provide music for dancing.

YMCA

Honors Go to Three Faith School Grads

An eighth grade graduating class of 216 military dependents at Fort Benning's Faith School recently was described as "typical Army boys and girls."

Mrs. Hazel J. Scudder, superintendent of Fort Benning Children's Schools, said the class represented 32 states and 12 foreign countries.

"Although three of the graduates started kindergarten at Fort Benning, the intervening years have taken them to schools in many parts of the world," Mrs. Scudder said.

She described the graduates as "the product of many school systems" and commended the teachers for the "splendid job of pulling them together into a well-coordinated class."

Mrs. Scudder presented the Don C. Faith Award to Richard Harvey Gasperini, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Silvio Gasperini.

The award, honoring Medal of Honor winner Don C. Faith for whom the school is named, is presented each year to a student selected by the faculty for academic achievement, leadership ability and contribution to the success of the school year. The winner each year receives a fountain pen.

Mrs. Scudder presented pens to the top three honor students, Jeffrey Alan Smith, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Norvin E. Smith Jr., first honor; Joyce Elizabeth Payne, daughter of Maj. and Mrs. Bruce R. Payne, second, and Anita Joseph, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. John T. Joseph, third.

The commencement address was delivered by Col. John M. King, president of the Fort Benning Children's School Board.

Commending the graduates for their success in completing the first stage in their education, Col. King stressed the importance of a college degree both in civilian and military life.

"In military life," a degree has a bearing on promotions and in civilian life, it opens doors you could not otherwise enter," he said.

Participating in the graduation exercises were the three honor students. The welcome was given by Anita Joseph. Joyce Payne spoke on "Greater Opportunities." Jeffrey Smith discussed "Faith in the Future."

Dr. Joseph T. Conforti, director of instruction, presented the diplomas.

He was assisted by John B. Edge and Mrs. Mildred Carter, assistant principal of Faith School.

Army Strength Drops in April

WASHINGTON (ANS)—Based on preliminary reports, the strength of the Armed Forces on April 30 was 16,532 down from the March 31 figures.

The end of April saw the Army strength at 1,080,847 as opposed to 1,092,174 for March, a decrease of 11,327.

Says Morale High in Thailand

SCHOFIELD BARRACKS, Hawaii (ANS) — "People back here are more excited about our being in Thailand than we are," said Sgt. Maj. Robert W. Arnold of the 1st Battle Group, 27th Infantry, 25th Infantry Division.

Back home in Hawaii on a brief emergency leave after a month in Thailand, the top-ranking NCO of the "Wolfhounds" also emphasized that the troops "aren't worried about going into combat," either.

The 27th left Schofield Barracks in mid-April to participate as the major U.S. ground component in the SEATO "Exercise Air Cobra," then remained there at the invitation of the Thai government to train with units of the Royal Thai Army.

It was during this training period that the 1000 "Wolfhounds" were informed they'd remain in Thailand for an indefinite period during which they would be reinforced by the 200 men of the unit who had remained in Hawaii, plus other 25th Infantry Division units.

"Nobody got excited about staying in Thailand and we weren't worried about going into combat, either. It's just part of our normal duty to train and we learned a lot from the Thai troops."

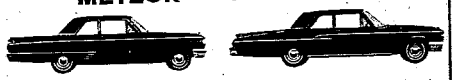
Following "Air Cobra," the 27th's men went into the field with the Thai Army's 3rd Regimental Combat Team, an "elite unit," according to Arnold, "something like our Rangers."

Training in Thailand, says the veteran of jungle warfare in the Pacific during World War II, isn't much different from the 25th Division's training in Hawaii. "The jungle is a bit denser, but all-in-all the terrain and brush are very similar to the areas where we train in the Koolau Mountains of Oahu."

"Morale is high and our equipment is good," according to Arnold. He pointed out that the 27th's soldiers had learned some tricks of jungle living from the Thai Army, too, such as the best methods of constructing off-the-ground shelters and how to locate "water trees" when water was otherwise scarce.

"Our relations with the people over there have been good, too, and I think we've made a lot of friends for the United States."

FIRST GHETTO



First use of the word "Ghetto" to separate Jewish communities of cities seems to have been the name for Jewish sections of Italian cities.

Amphibious Training Is Given Medics

"To be trained as a medical technician is just not enough," Maj. E. V. Bunger said recently. "They must be able to soldier with the best of the Army, as well."

Medics from STRAC units of the 428th Medical Battalion were selected to take amphibious training at Little Creek, Va., during the month of June.

This training is conducted by the Amphibious Naval Command in cooperation with other branches of the military services.

Personnel from the medical battalion were placed on orders to travel to and from the Virginia Training Center with the 29th Infantry.

These included MSgt. Charles L. Romans, SFC Paul P. Brown, Sgt. John D. Cox and Sgt. Jerry Y. Sauls of the 3rd Field Hospital; Sgt. Fred C. Johns, Sgt. Charles P. Busbea and Sp4 Robert E. Campbell, 650th Medical Co; Sp5's Meloyn A. Murali and William M. Gray, 50th Medical Company, and Sgt. William H. Black of Headquarters Detachment.

"These men will serve as instructors to teach classes in amphibious training for their parent units," Maj. Bunger explained to commanders of the medical units. He is serving as battalion commander in the absence of Lt. Col. Raymond J. Caldbeck, commanding officer.

25 Students Named to Dean's List

Twenty-five students at the Columbus Center of the University of Georgia were placed on the Dean's List for the Spring Term.

Completing two courses with a "B-plus" average and ranking in the top five per cent of the class were:

Capt. Larry J. Baughman, Miss Randa Kay Blunk, Mrs. Geraldyne Benton Britt, 1st Lt. Seymour B. Byrom III, Mrs. Priscilla Cooper Fuerbacher, Capt. Robert K. Golden, Capt. Joseph Orlowski Jr., Capt. Alvin Ornstein, Hugh B. Pharis, Lt. Col. James W. Talley, Franklin D. Slocumb and Maj. Thomas F. Whalen.

Enrolled for one course and making grades of "A" were:

Miss Patricia Anne Bennett, Mrs. Donna A. Bentley, Nathan Dykes Carmack, Mrs. Frieda E. Carter, Maxwell Taylor Courson, Eugene L. Craig, Mrs. Mary McCollum Garrett, Mrs. Carolyn Holtrey, Miss Sandra J. Johnson, CWO Elmer C. Miller, Capt. Robert E. Pavey, 1st Lt. William J. Trunkes and 2nd Lt. Thomas A. Zagner.

Dental Health Series

Post Children Lucky; Fluoride Aids Teeth

By Maj. Charles W. Dobson
Preventive Dentistry Officer

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fourth in a series of articles on Dental Health.)

Children born and reared here will grow up with teeth that are resistant to decay.

In fact, research has proved that they will probably have about 60 per cent fewer cavities than if they had been raised in an area where the water contained no fluoride. The story behind the discovery of the miraculous effects to fluoride is interesting.

There are several areas in the U.S. where dentists noticed years ago that people just didn't have many cavities. The people assumed that it was "something in the water" that gave them good teeth, but didn't know what it was. Finally, in 1901, scientists discovered that it was fluoride that made the difference.

They found that most water contains little or no fluoride, but that if the water contains just a trace of fluoride, (one part fluoride per million parts of water) children growing up in that area form tooth enamel that is resistant to decay for life.

As soon as scientsts studies proved beyond doubt that the addition of fluorides to water was safe and effective, communities throughout the nation and some foreign countries started regulating the amount of fluoride in their water.

Among the big cities that are giving their citizens the benefit of fluoride in the water are Chicago, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, D. C., Pittsburgh, Louisville, Cleveland, Milwaukee, San Francisco, St. Louis, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Indianapolis and Miami.

Fort Benning (and most Army posts) have been adding fluoride to the water since 1956. Last year Phenix City started to add fluoride to its water, but didn't complete the project. Columbus as yet has not added fluoride to its water system.

The addition of fluoride is done by the water department in the same way that chemicals are added to purify the water. It costs about 10 cents per person per year, and does not alter the odor, taste, color or hardness of the water.

Army Wants Bids On Support Missile

The Army is asking industry to submit proposals for a new missile, now designated Missile "B".

Missile "B" is planned as a division support missile that is simple, rugged and reliable. It will be deployed to provide greater fire support for Army divisions.

MAIN POST WINNER . . . For maintaining the "Best Mess" on Main Post during the month of May, SFC Thomas R. Barnes, mess sergeant of Headquarters Detachment, 1st Battalion, The Infantry Center Troop Command, receives a plaque from Col. John Lattin, TICTC commander.

Highway Will Close

The portion of State Highway 193 (Buena Vista Road) that runs through the Fort Benning reservation will be closed to traffic from 8 to 10 p.m., July 5, officials at The Infantry Center announced.

The closure is due to firing demonstrations in connection with the training visit of the U. S. Air Force Academy Class of 1965.

Food Radiation Lab Construction Ends

Construction of the Quartermaster Radiation Research Laboratory, the first radiation facility specifically designed for food irradiation research, will be completed Thursday at the Army Quartermaster Research and Engineering Center, Natick, Mass.

EARNS HONORS . . . Accepting a plaque from Lt. Col. James H. Boykin, 577th Engineer Battalion commander, is SSgt. Thomas H. Fulgham, engineer equipment supervisor of Company C. The plaque is for the battalion's "Best Maintenance Company of the Month." The company had a negative deadline for ordnance equipment for nine consecutive weeks. Observing the presentation is 2nd Lt. Kenneth D. Jobe, Company C commander.

Holidays Often Spell Tragedy

By Norman M. Evans
TIC Safety Director

People have become conditioned to expect a high accident toll on holidays. Just as ham and eggs go together so do holidays and accidents.

For days prior to the Fourth of July news media will report and editorialize on the expected toll. State and national safety councils will announce predictions of holiday death predictions which have been amazingly accurate in the past.

Based on the record of previous holiday periods a fatal accident will occur about every five minutes. For the families and friends of the victims the expected pleasures of the holiday will be changed to that of grief.

In the same five minutes about 30 injury cases will be rushed to the hospital. Add to this toll the hundreds of vehicle and boat property damage accidents together with many more hundreds of arrests for traffic and boating violations. For all of these the holiday will certainly not be a happy one.

Here at Fort Benning the holiday records of previous years have been good. As a matter of fact there have been less accidents on holidays than on average non-holidays. This favorable record indicates that Fort Benning personnel in increasing numbers are accepting their individual responsibility for safe conduct in traffic and holiday activities.

In a recent letter addressed to all personnel Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center, noted the previous favorable holiday record and stated "I am confident that through an increasing awareness of our own responsibilities and through a strong determination to protect our own lives and the lives of our families and neighbors we can maintain and improve our good record. I count on each of you to do your part in making this an accident-free holiday."

Due to the one-day holiday this year Forf Benning personnel are being urged to avail themselves of the many on-post recreational activities so as to

U.S.A.F. Academy Cadets Arrive To See Infantryman Tomorrow

On Saturday at 4:45 p.m. the first of 12 planes carrying the over 700 members of the U. S. Air Force Academy Class of 1965 will land at Fort Benning's Lawson Army Airfield marking the beginning of "Falcon 62."

Falcon 62 is an Air Force training mission in which cadets receive introductions to the actual operations of elements of the U. S. Armed Forces.

The Infantry Center and Infantry School will familiarize the Air Force cadets with the role of the Army particularly Infantry training and tactics.

On Sunday the group will be free to visit Ida Cason Calloway Gardens at Pine Mountain and the Little White House at Warm Springs, Ga., or Columbus.

Their training will begin Monday at 7:30 a.m. with a welcoming address by the commanding general of The Infantry Center and the commandant of The Infantry School, Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell.

Later that morning they are scheduled to receive orientations on the concept of leadership and Ranger training and witness a demonstration of Infantry weapons.

The cadets will be divided into four training groups and at one time or another during the week will participate in small arms familiarization firing, airborne training including swing landing, training parachute landing falls and exits from a 34-foot tower and see live firing demonstrations of an Infantry-tank team in attack and a reinforced rifle company in defense.

To See Army Aviators

In addition the future Air Force officers are slated to see demonstrations on the capabilities and limitations of ground mobility means and Army aviation.

Tuesday night there will be a formal reception and hop at the Supper Club Annex of the Main Officers' Open Mess.

In celebration of Independence Day the cadets will hold a wing parade and review at 8 a.m. Wednesday on Blue Field.

TIC Featured On TV Sunday

This Sunday the Army's nationally televised "The Big Picture" will feature "This Is The Infantry" on WRBL-TV Channel 3 at 4 p.m.

This same program was scheduled last Sunday but was pre-empted due to the added length of Sunday's baseball game. The documentary was filmed in its entirety at Fort Benning.

The Byword At Carnival Is 'Safety'

As the national holiday commemorating the 187th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence approaches, so does the day for the Youth Activities Club's Fourth of July Carnival.

The carnival to be held on Stillwell and Gordon Fields, has a dual purpose.

First, is to give post personnel and people from the surrounding area an opportunity to celebrate the holiday without converging on traffic filled highways.

Second, it is an effort to raise funds for the many activities sponsored by YAC to provide the post's young people with constructive athletic and social activities.

Cadets to Parade

Featured during the day which will begin with a wing parade review by cadets from the U. S. Air Force Academy, Class of 1965, at 8 a.m. on Blue Field and end with a gigantic fireworks display at 9:30 p.m. on Gordon Field, will be rides, games, concessions, barbecue, military and spectator competitions.

Among the activities will be a 15-minute concert by The Infantry Center Band at Chapel Field and a 50-gun salute at 11:30 Wednesday by Battery A, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade.

There will be a chance for guests to experience the thrill of taking a buddy seat ride from the 250-foot Airborne training tower or a cable ride from a junior jump tower.

There will also be rides on ponies, fire engines, and jeeps.

Carnival booths galore will be spread over Stillwell and Gordon Fields, and kids and parents will have a chance to test their skill at such things as dart throwing, nail driving and fish ponds.

Athletic Events

Events requiring more athletic ability will also be held. Among these will be football and baseball throws, horseshoe pitching and golf chipping.

Food concession stands, offering cold drinks to the hot and

Col. Cornett Is Named To TIS Post

Col. J. G. Cornett, formerly chief of The Infantry School's Editorial and Pictorial Office, has been named chief of The School's Academic Staff.

Col. Cornett directed the activities in the Editorial and Pictorial Office from December, 1961, through May, 1962.

A 1937 graduate in business administration from the University of Arkansas at Fayetteville, he received his commission at the university in 1936.

He entered active service in January 1941, participated in the Normandy campaign during World War II, and in 1953 saw combat duty during the Korean conflict.

During his 21 years of service the Pettigrew, Ark., native has attended numerous service schools including the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., and the Army War College at Carlisle Barracks, Pa.

Holiday

avoid the rush of long trips in the relatively short period of time. In this connection the Youth Activities Club is sponsoring the YAC Carnival with activities planned to interest almost everyone.

There are many other activities and facilities on post that will be in operation such as swimming pools bowling alleys theaters and craft shops.

With the on-post recreational facilities available to Fort Benning personnel there is no reason why this can't be a "safe and sane" Fourth of July holiday.

Carnival

thirsty and hamburgers and hot dogs to the hungry, will be scattered throughout the area.

Roving vendors will offer ice cream.

For the really hungry people, barbecue plates will be available in the Main Post Snack Bar.

Units to Compete

Competition among the major units on post to decide the outstanding unit and individual soldier will be going on all day, starting with a cross Country run in the wee hours of the morning, and including such tests as physical fitness, platoon drills, jeep driving and M-1 rifle and .45 caliber pistol shooting.

Trophies will be presented to the winners of this competition at 9 p.m.

The work needed to present the carnival required a united effort on the part of YAC officials, the various project officers, and the personnel of many of the post's major commands.

Participating Units

Among the units are The Infantry Center Troop Command; 151st Engineer Group; 2nd Infantry Division; Lawson Army Aviation Command; 428th Medical battalion; 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery; 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry; The Student Brigade; Provost Marshall and the Military Police Company.

Project officers, 13 of them in all, were headed by the chairman of the coordinating committee, Col. Richard W. Keyes, and Maj. John F. Hare, chief project oficer.

YAC officials include Col. John H. Lattin, president, Lt. Col. Herbert W. Colburn, vice president Maj. James E. Rogers, Lt. Col. Everett V. Mead and Sgt. Major Frank Plass, all members of the governing council, and custodian, 1st Lt. John Olzewski.

Complete Training

Members of the first graduating class of the 156th Signal Battalion's newly organized NCO Leadership Course received their diplomas last Saturday at Chickamauga Hall.

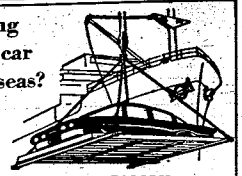
Fifteen NCOs and enlisted men graduated from the course. Honor graduate was S-Sgt Stanley Hyne, of Company A. Sgt. Alrno Stracela of Company A was second in the class academically. Tied for third place honors were Sgt. James Walch and Sgt. Robert Swift, both of Company C. The class scholastic average was 82.8 per cent.

SMOKELESS COOKING . . . The shift from coal to gas burning stoves is being made on post. Col. Guster M. Bacharach (L), 2nd Division chief of staff, Col. Riel S. Crandall (C) post engineer, and Lt. Col. Cecil B. Sanders, 23rd Infantry commander, are present as PFC Josue Ruiz, Company A, 23rd Infantry, gets set to put the first stove into operation. The stoves will be installed in 50 mess halls.

Officers Entertain 1st Brigade Chief

1st Infantry Brigade commander Col. Richard W. Keyes was entertained recently by the officers of the 58th Infantry at a party at the Main Officers Open Mess.

Col. Keyes was welcomed by Lt. Col. Charles T. Caprino 58th Infantry commander. Also present were Col. Lawrence S. Reynolds commander of the 1st Battle Group 29th Infantry; Lt. Col. Paul C. Ely signal operations officer Post Signal and Maj. Raymond A. Major, 1st Brigade S-4.



Cadet Hopefuls Will Be Tested

This is the last reminder concerning the July Civil Service Designation Examination used by many members of Congress in making Service Academy nominations.

The test is to be given July 9 and prospective candidates are urged to contact their senators and representatives immediately to obtain approval to take this test, if congressmen require this action.

So Mighty a Power— How Young a Nation!

Every Fourth of July we celebrate brings us closer to the bicentennial of our independence — in the mileage of history you might say it's just around the corner. Well, and how do we feel at the ripe old age of 186? Old and apathetic? Sleek and fat? Ready to let others take over for us?

Of course we don't. Our growth to the leadership of the Free World in less than two centuries is a miraculous chapter in the annals of man. Our youth is our triumph, acknowledged by nations whose history is as old as civilization.

Only a few weeks ago we had occasion to realize afresh just how young we are when Mrs. James Longstreet, widow of the Confederate general, died at the age of 99. For with her passed another link with the men who founded our country.

Helen Longstreet was considerably younger than her husband when they were married in 1897, seven years before his death. Longstreet had been born in 1821, the Age of Jefferson, and was five years old when our third U.S. President died. Thus for us Mrs. Longstreet was, in a sense, a connecting bond with the man who drafted the Declaration of Independence. To realize that she lived into our nuclear space age is to feel most of our history as a nation telescoped into the lives of a man and his wife.

Indeed, our nation destiny was apparent to foreign observers when we were still a newcomer on the world scene. A visiting Frenchman, J. Hector St. John de Crevecoeur, who was a contemporary of Jefferson, recognized it when he wrote, 'Here individuals of all nations are melted into a new race of men, whose labor and posterity will one day cause great changes in the world." A new race of men, yes, and it came into being as free man on July 4, 1776. The date is like a shaft of burning ligbt on the calendar — our proudest secular holiday. (AFPS)

CHAPLAIN'S CORNER

Antidote for Fear

By Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Arthur V. Estes

Someone has said that our age is marked by fear. Fear is one of the bases for neurosis, alcoholism, broken homes, divorces and many other ills of humanity.

We know that life is full of trouble and suffering, and we are afraid something terrible will happen to us. No one can see beyond the horizon. No one is wise enough to tell us what is ahead or what the end will be.

However, God does not want a single child of His to live in fear. Again and again He calls upon us to "fear not," and He assures us that provision has been made for us to live above fear. It was while the Lord's disciples were in a state of fear that He said to them, "Peace I leave with you.My peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid." (John 14:27)

God's antidote for fear includes first of all the assurance of Himself — that God exists. Such assurance, however, must go further to include a certainty that God is for us.

God not only likes to see us triumph, but is busily engaged in our behalf. If we will but follow His will, He makes all things work together for our good. Fear cannot harass a man with such conviction. No matter what his position, no matter what the situation, a man with the knowledge that God is with him is unbeatable.

The second element in God's antiode for fear is the knowledge that God has set That ideal Paul alludes to in Romans 828, where he says that God's children are all predestined "to be conformed to the image of His Son, that he might be the first born of many brethren."

God is now at work to lead us into conformity with the image of Jesus Christ.

Therefore, God's antidote for fear is assurance that God is working for us, with us and in us. I am not alone, the power of God is mine if I am ready to appropriate it through faith.

Liberty and Communism

Relation of Citizen to State

In general supporters of democratic or representative government have favored a state - citizen bond under which the powers of government to encroach upon personal freedom are sharply curtailed by constitutional law.

Defenders of totalitarian regimes such as fascism and nazism have reduced the individual to a cipher in relation to the state.

Communism a form of totalitarianism also degrades the individual almost to the position of cattle in the dictatorship - citizen relationship. In other words, it is the right of the elig, the Communist Party, to rule and the duty of the citizen to obey.

The real relation of citizens to the Soviet state is concealed under the gigantic verbiage of Communist doctrine. Communist propaganda is too clever to say outright that the workers are stupid and ignorant of their own best interests. Communist doctrine, however, specifically says that the workers must be led by the vanguard of the masses, the Communist Party.

The Communists recognize two social classes, the workers and the peasants, together with another class, the intelligentsia, which the Communists call a stratum, in order to avoid the use of the term class.

The Communist leaders, of course, belong to the intelligentsia. Thus the Communists claim that they have abolished classes in the U.S.S.R. is false.

The Communist deny that there are any inherent or natural rights of men as asserted in the American Declaration of Independence (1776) or the French Declaration of the Rights of Man and Citizen (1789). They call these ideas mere myths or deceptive legends concocted by the rulers of the bourgeois state in order to delude the masses.

In Communist doctrine whatever rights the citizen may possess are implied in the Socialist (Communist) state. But the interpretation of the powers of this Communist state, as well as the rights of citizens, is in the hands of the Communist Party.

Surgeon Says

'Leaves of Three'

Maj. George B. Skipworth MC
Chief Dermatology Service

"Leaves in three leave them be"

Fort Benning houses various jezebel species of the plant kingdom. The Rhus family (poison ivy, oak and sumac) is the most common cause of allergic contact dermatitis in the United States.

To recognize the plant is not enough. A sensitive person to the Rhus family may also cross react to mango rind, cashew nut shell oil (toys), india marking nut (laundry), Japanese lacquer (furniture), various copying papers and other interesting possibilities.

The world is not big enough for a really sensitive person. He must be careful what he eats, handles, wears, breathes, leans on and steps into.

Contact usually occurs 1 - 2 days before symptoms are noticed. The result is a red, itchy, blister eruption which usually requires 2 to 3 weeks to run its course, barring complications or re-exposure to the source of contact. The most common compliation is adverse reactions from various commercial remedies advertised as "cures" for poison ivy.

No Cure Known

No cure exists. Treatment is aimed at making oneself comfortable while the dermatitis resolves spontaneously.

If the eruption is not too severe use cool, face towel, soaks (Ex: one level tablespoon of table salt to one quart of cool water), or colloidal baths (Aveeno or corn starch — 1 cup to 8 inches of lukewarm water) several times daily. If the symptoms are too uncomfortable check with your medical facility for stronger medications.

Severe complicated dermatitis is best treated by the physician with various anti-"itch" tablets and shots which reduce the swelling and redness. Avoid salves and ointments until the swelling and blisters have dried.

Non-Volatile Oil

All memers of the Rhus family and their relatives contain an allergic oleoresin (non-volatile oil which evaporates very slowly). Re-exposure most commonly accounts for a prolonged siege of dermatitis.

The contents of the blisters do not contain the oils. Thorough washing within the hour after exposure does not prevent a severe dermatistis in highly sensitive persons. It may, however, reduce the reactions in those who are less sensitive. Harsh soaps, organic solvents (turpentine, kerosene etc.) vigorous scrubbing offer no advantage over simple soaking in cool water. The allergen may be transferred to sensitive persons by smoke, children, hairy pets, clothing, furniture and athletic equipment. The average golfer does spend time in wooded areas. Barrier creams, tropical detoxicants and the like give inadequate protection.

Temporary "Immunity"

Temporary "immunity" (hyposensitization) is possible. It is, however a rigorous procedure demanding strict supervision. The danger of side effects is great. Large amounts of active allergen must be ingested over long periods. When therapy is stopped, sensitivity rapidly returns.

The crude oleoresin is commercially available. Most "over - the - counter" preparations are either entirely inactive or so dilute (20-30 times), that their use is valueless for prophylaxis. In summary the value of an allergy series is limited and in general not recommended.

Unless you're itching to visit the hospital, check your own yard and halls for ivy. Remember when it comes to groups of leaves; two's company, three's a public menace.

The Judge Says . . .

When you purchase an automobile you will gain title to the car by the seller signing and delivering a certificate of title or a bill of sale to you.

Many states have what is called a "Motor Vehicle Certificate of Title" law. Legislation of this nature usually provides for the following.

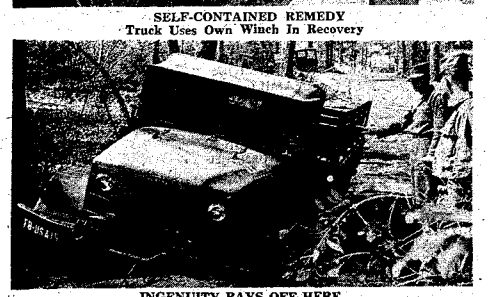
The owner (including the manufacturer importer distributor or a dealer) of any motor vehicle must, before making a sale or transfer of any interest in the vehicle, procure a certificate of title for the automobile from the office which keeps a permanent record of all motor vehicles in that state.

An office of this type is usually within the motor vehicle division of the state's highway department.

No sale, mortgage, or other transfer of an interest in a motor vehicle is valid unless the seller and buyer complies with the law and regulations.

No sale may be made unless the owner designated in the certificate of title transfers the certificate of title by signing it over to the buyer.

No lien or debt against the automobile is valid as against the parties without actual notice of lien or debt unless a notation of the lien or debt has been made on the certificate of title.



The central office maintains a permanent record of each vehicle indicating the owner and the persons having a mortgage lien or debt against the motor vehicle.

Muddy Schooling Best Insurance For Mobile Army

Since time began, adverse weather has caused the loss of many battles.

Our distant cousin, the Neanderthal man, probably lost many of his battles because he couldn't ford a raging stream caused by a flash flood. The Roman charioteer probably lost his share of battles when his conveyance became bogged in mud.

Because tracked and wheeled vehicles become immobilized even today by adverse weather conditions, The Infantry School's Ground Mobility Department trains Army personnel in the fundamentals of vehicle recovery operations.

Lack of vehicle recovery know-how was the deciding factor in a battle that took place a century ago. A military "almost" happened to the Army of the Potomac during the Fredericksburg Campaign of the Civil War.

The fields in front of Marye's Heights were littered with bloated and rotting corpses stripped of everything except their blue uniform coats. Lee's Army of Northern Virginia rested secure in the knowledge that any future assaults by the Federal forces, commanded by Burnside, would do little more than add to the Yankee's growing casualty lists.

To avoid another frontal attack against the massed Confederate artillery pieces, Burnside attempted to turn Lee's left flank by crossing the Rappahannock in force at Bank's Ford.

Execution Impossible

His plan was sound. Its execution became impossible, however, when a mid-winter rain storm made a quagmire of the Federal Army's approach route. Horses and wagons became mired and had to be abandoned. Cannon and caissons sank out of sight. Men died on the road from sheer exhaustion.

For months thereafter, tons of equipment were recovered from the route taken by the Union Army to the ford on the Rappahannock. This cruel twist of fate resulted in Burnside's ill-fated venture being remembered as "The Mud March."

Today, the Army uses the finest equipment in the world. Diesel and gasoline powered tracked and wheeled vehicles have replaced the horse-drawn wagons of 1863. Versatile rocket artillery has replaced the muzzle loading field pieces used by the Blue and Gray.

Can Happen Today

Even today, our newest equipment can be immobilized as the result of accidents, mechanical failures, or becoming mired. In order to avoid another "Mud March," the Ground Mobility Department's vehicle recovery team devises up-to-the-minute recovery techniques for the Infantry's organic vehicles.

When a new technique is adopted, the team includes it in its 11-hour course of instruction here at the school. The first five hours are used in teaching the student to operate recovery equipment including the booms and winches on the two-and-one-half-half and five-ton wreckers and the winches on the various cargo trucks.

The remaining hours are devoted to six practical work stations. Students are divided into groups to recover stalled or mired vehicles.

At one station, students may find a personnel carrier mired deep in Georgia clay, while at another they may find a "jeep" deep in a ditch at the side of a road.

Intentionally Mired

Putting into practice what he has learned in the classroom, the student recovers tracked and wheeled vehicles that have been intentionally mired in mud or sand, deep in ditches, or grounded on stumps.

At station Number One, after a brief orientation presented by SFC Leonard E. Cooley, noncommissioned officer in charge of the recovery instructional team, the student teams are dispersed to their assigned stations to begin recovery operations.

Each student must recover a vehicle. According to Sgt. Cooley, the student is given a free hand in recovery operations under the supervision of an enlisted instructor.

SFC Henry Tillman, assistant recovery team chief, says of the recovery training program: "We have never lost a vehicle or a student. We continually make the obstacles tougher; and next year we hope to increase the recovery stations to 11 rather than the present six."

If today's "charioteer" finds his vehicle mired in mud or inoperable because of an accident or mechanical failure, there's "no sweat." Your Soldier - driver has the recovery know - how. The Ground Mobility Department has seen to that.

4 Benningites To Attend National Girl Scout Camp

Four Fort Benning girls will attend the 1962 Senior Girl Scout Roundup July 18 to 30 at Button Bay, Vt.

They are Jo Ann Acton, daughter of MSgt. and Mrs. Joel R. Acton; Cathy Fitch, daughter of WO and Mrs. Ralph M. Fitch; LaJuan Lawrence, daughter of MSgt. (ret.) and Mrs. Lester Lawrence and Gail Brophy, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. William S. Brophy.

In addition, there will be 14 other Senior Girl Scouts representing Concharty Council at the Roundup. They are members of troops in Columbus, Auburn and Eufaula, Ala.

Nineteen alternates are in training with the Roundup selectees. The 37 girls will receive from 150 to 175 hours of special instruction before the Roundup.

Alternates who take the special training but do not attend the Roundup will participate in a trip to a point of interest in the eastern United States. The trip will be scheduled at the approximate time of the Button Bay session.

Selectees to attend the Roundup are chosen on a basis of camping experience and skills, demonstrated understanding of Scouting principles and ways of work, maturity of judgment, ability to work and play with others and experience and active participation in the Girl Scout program.

The roundup is an annual international encampment of Girl Scouts between 15 and 17 years old.

At the camp site, on the shores of Lake Champlain, approximately 8,000 girls will set up a tent city. Working in patrols of eight, the Scouts will cook their own meals and plan special activities for their group.

Two adult advisers will be provided for every 32 girls. The theme of the 1962 Roundup will be "Honor the Past, Serve the Future."

Amid many fresh cut gardenias, 35 members of the 50th Company OCS Wives Club held a recent coffee. Time was spent in recalling the first days o fthe club and looking ahead to coming events.

Mrs. Douglas Fingles talked on budgets, calling cards and courtesy calls. Capt. Douglas Fingles answered questions.

Hostesses for this coffee were Mrs. Robert Refior, Mrs. Gary Roth, Mrs. Ronald Honaker and Mrs. Wesley Mason.

Special guests were Mrs. Otto Koch, Mrs. John McClain, Mrs. Douglas Fingles and Mrs. David Miller.

MOOM's Anzio Room Is Scene of Recent Coffee

The Fort Benning Ranger Wives and Ranger Course Student Wives met at a coffee in the Anzio Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess recently.

Under the direction of Mrs. Robert Nett, the wives to the Platoon Tactics Committee planned and decorated the serving table with the theme of June graduates and June weddings. Two dolls in caps and gowns were surrounded by diplomas and wrapped presents. The name tags carried out the theme with mortar boards and ribbon tassels.

Mrs. John W. Jackson, wife of the Ranger Department director, extended a welcome to the following new arrivals to the group: Caroline Barker, Jo Ann Drouin, Mary Ellen Gannon, Pat Meyer and John Tullington. Mrs. Jackson also introduced Nancy Skaife, Ellen June Buskner, Carole Sudduth and Norma Trdla, whose husbands are presently undergoing Ranger training.

Mrs. John Meads then presented silver shell dishes engraved "Ranger" as farewell tokens to Madeline Brice and Peggy Blank.

At the coffee, plans were made to form a convoy of cars to drive out to Victory Pond, for a grandstand view of "Rangers in Action."

Post Chaplain's July 4 Message

By CHAPLAIN (COL.) SILAS DECKER

When we think of Independence Day, our national anniversary, we think of our people who explored and subdued a continent from the shores of the Atlantic to those of the Pacific. In the whole of God's Creation, people are the most important subject, for upon each of them the Creator left a touch of immortality and some characteristics of Divinity.

Our forefathers brought from across the seas many cultures from as many lands. They brought unrealized desires, dreams and ambitions. They brought great expectations of freedom and personal liberty. They left behind national and personal failures. In this new land they gave hand, mind and heart to the struggle for a new way of life and a new national framework of government.

With zeal they breathed into each new home and each new settlement the spirit of democracy, with the faith to believe that God created his children to be free of tyrants who would shackle the bodies and minds of men.

Jesus of Nazareth was born at the cross roads of the great political powers, at a time when Greek mythology was no longer believed and Imperial Rome was morally rotten at its core.

He was born in the midst of tyrants. Some were of Rome and some of his own country. Jesus said (St. John 8:32) "You shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free", and (St. John 8:36) "If the Son therefore shall make you free, you shall be free indeed." The churches accepted this teaching in its proper spirit in America and sent missionaries to preach the freedom of the Gospel to outlying and neglected areas of the world.

With the missionaries were teachers, doctors of medicine, and specialists who put into daily practice the results of the Gospel in their own lives. Schools, hospitals and colleges were built as agencies to teach the personal freedoms as taught and lived by the man of Nazareth. As direct results, new nations are being born with the contagion of American freedom in their national governments.

What is American Freedom? It is not two cars in each family garage, the "twist," scandals of Hollywood and lawlessness. American Freedom is a government of people, by the people and for the people. Here on election days our citizens meet to choose by secret ballot representatives of the people, from the people, to represent them at all echelons of government.

American Freedom is the freedom of worship, speech, press and assembly. American freedom is expressed when the policeman protects children at intersections of congested traffic, when volunteer teachers give time and talent in Sunday Schools, when men usher in church, when people give their time and talents to sing in choirs and when we contribute to worthy causes.

God bless America, the oceans which wash our shores, friendly neighbors at our borders, our rivers, plains and mountains, our cities, villages and our farms. God bless America, our magistrates, chief executives, legislatures and our Congress. God bless America, our Army, Navy, and Air Force maintaining vigils in lonely places over seas and in military reservations at home. God bless America, our schools and universities, our hospitals and our institutions of social welfare, our churches and synagogues. May we always be strong and above all, may we always be right!

Top Grad In 100C Is Hicks

Second Lt. Richard C. Hicks graduated Infantry Officer Orientation Course, Class number 15, 2nd Student Battalion, The Student Brigade, recently with top honors. Lt. Hicks, completed the orientation course with an overall average of 95.6 percent.

The newly commissioned officer was congratulated and presented with his graduation certificate by the guest speaker, Col. Kenneth E. Eckland, Chief, Combat Developments Office, The Infantry School. Col. Eckland, in addition, presented 2nd Lt. Thomas O. Morris, with a certificate of achievement for attaining the next highest grade average of 95.5 percent.

Attending the graduation exercises was, Col. Otto R. Koch Jr., TSB commander, who introduced the guest speaker and congratulated the class on their efforts during the course.

Col. Eckland spoke to the class on the importance of being a good officer, "Continue to better yourselves," he said. "Be courteous, neat in appearance, and when you reach your first duty assignment do your best to gain the respect of your subordinates. In order to accomplish this, you must know your men, your job and your unit."

80 Receive Ranger Tab

Eight Allied officers were among the 80 students who were graduated from The Infantry School's Ranger course in ceremonies held recently.

Three of the officers were from Iran two from the Republic of China and one each from Australia Ethiopia and Norway.

In addition to the Allied students the class roster showed 50 U. S. Army officers and 16 enlisted men and six Marine Corps enlisted men.

Honor graduates were Army 1st Lt. Eugene E. Lednicky and Marine Sgt. Billy T. Branch.

Reserve MP's Can Handle 15,000 Prisoners of War

FORT LEE, Va. (ANS)—One of the most unusual Reserve units to arrive recently at Fort Lee for two weeks active duty training was the 402nd Military Police Prisoner of War Camp from Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

In time of war the 402nd would have the mission of building, organizing, and operating prisoner of war enclosures. The Unit is capable of providing command administration over three POW enclosures, each one having a capacity of 5,000 enemy prisoners.

The operation of the POW enclosure calls for many specialties and skills. Each enclosure is self-sufficient and self-sustaining. The 402nd is able to provide clothing, food, medical care, recreational services, and religious services for 15,000 prisoners; maintain utilities such as heat, light, and water sanitation for each POW compound; organize work parties and supervise projects where POW labor is utilized; and provide vocational training for the POWs in the compounds.

Units such as the 402nd are an out-growth of the experience of World War II and the Korean conflict. It was discovered during these conflicts that the handling of prisoners of war was a task calling for troops with special training and knowledge if enemy prisoners were to be controlled and effectively utilized with a minimum expenditure of manpower.

Father-Son Team's Diversified Background Adds Depth to Reserve Medical Component

A father and son officers with the 330th General Hospital, an Army Reserve unit from Memphis, Tenn., training here for two weeks, provide an unusual combination to help train the members of their entourage.

Col. James G. Hughes, commander of the 330th, is a medical doctor with a highly diversified background. He is a university professor, pediatrician, linguist, world traveler, scholar, the author of medical textbooks and an Army Reserve officer.

His son, 2nd Lt. Allen H. Hughes, aide to Col. Hughes while the 330th is at Fort Benning, is a student at the University of Tennessee Medical School in Memphis.

Son Studys Medicine

The lieutenant, continuing his medical studies to emulate his father's career, entered the medical school after his graduation from Southwestern in Memphis where he received a bachelor of arts degree in 1961.

Col. Hughes graduated from Southwestern of Memphis in 1932 and the University of Tennessee Medical College in 1935.

After entering the Reserve Corps in February, 1936, Col. Hughes has made many notable contributions to the Army's medical program and to medical science.

In World War II he became commanding officer of the 225th Station Hospital which was formed here. Col. Hughes served as commander of the hospital unit during its stay in North Africa and later in Italy until the end of the war.

Awarded Medal

For his wartime service he was awarded the Legion of Merit for his duties in support of the Cassino campaign in Italy.

Since 1947 Col. Hughes has been commander of the 330th General Hospital which for the past 10 years has conducted its annual summer training here.

While his duties as head of the University of Tennessee College of Medicine, Department of Pediatrics, keep him well occupied, he finds time to travel abroad and lecture on pediatrics, the branch of medical science which deals with the hygiene and diseases of children.

Col. Hughes, who speaks Spanish fluently, has spent much time in Latin America evaluating medical education for the care of children and has given numerous postgraduate lectures in Spanish.

At DOD

His duties have taken him to the Department of Defense where in 1954 he served as a consultant in the Office of the Surgeon General, U. S. Army. On this assignment Col. Hughes conducted an evaluation and a study of all pediatric services in Berlin, West Germany, France and Austria.

A year later he served for three months as consultant to the World Health Organization of the United Nations, evaluating the level of training in the medical schools of Mexico, Central America and South America in diseases of children, and the status of the care of children in hospitals and clinics.

In 1956 Col. Hughes was consultant to the Rockefeller Medical Foundation in Brazil and Uraguay. He also made a study of the quality of pediatric training and made recommendations for improvement. In the same year he was consultant to the World Health Organization for a medical education seminar in Guatemala.

Once again in 1958, the World Health Organization called on him to re-evaluate pediatric education and practice in Venezuela and Colombia. He is charged with aiding in programs affecting child health throughout the world.

Col. Hughes has been named honorary professor of the University of San Carlos de Borromeo in Guatemala and also of the Autonomous University of Guadalajara Mexico. He is also an honorary member of the pediatric societies of Argentina, Uraguay, Venezuela, Colombia, Cuba and Guatemala.

He was recently appointed a member of the International Committee on Child Health of the American Academy of Pediatries. He is charged with

BARRETT

It is a source of deep satisfaction and pride to witness a self-reliant, capable man successfully dispatching a difficult job. First Sgt. (E. 8) Joseph P. Barrett, first sergeant of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 577th Engineer Battalion, is such a man.

Sgt. Barrett's Army career started in 1942. His first overseas assignment was with the 8th Air Force in the European Theater, lasting until the end of World War II when he left the Army temporarily for a civilian job.

Returning to the service in 1948, Sgt. Barrett joined the Corps of Engineers, and there he has stayed. Stationed in Hawaii immediately upon his return, he remained there until January, 1951, when he was transferred to McDill Air Force Base in Florida. Here Sgt. Barrett received his first experience as first sergeant of an engineer company, a role he was to fill at each of his later duty assignments.

Towards the end of 1951 he was transferred to Korea to serve with the 822nd Engineer Aviation Battalion. Then he returned to the U.S. where he was stationed at Orlando Air Force Base, Fla. From there he made a brief stop at Wolters Air Force Base, in Tex., before sailing for France in 1953.

The year 1955 found him with the 518th Engineer Aviation Battalion in Germany. Returning again to the U.S. he was stationed in Fort Rucker, Ala. in 1956. In 1958, this well-traveled soldier returned to Korea to serve in Headquarters and Service Company 802nd Engineer Battalion.

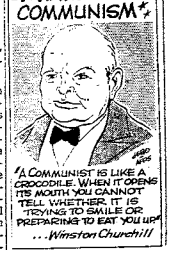
In November, 1958, Sgt. Barrett suffered two broken legs in a jeep accident which caused him to be sent back to the U. S. After almost a year of recuperation, he was assigned to the 577th Engineer Battalion here. In the 577th he worked briefly in the S-2 Section before assuming the duties of first sergeant of Headquarters and Headquarters Company in November, 1959.

Sgt. Barrett's dynamic leadership and professional competence had made their mark, and the unit received a readiness status of superior in May, 1960. Sgt. Barrett has never had a company inspection rating below high-excellent.

Today Sgt. Barrett directs a smooth-running organization and backs in the respect that hard work has earned for him.

Sgt. Barrett was an All-State football tackle in high school and continued to play until his accident in Korea. Since that time he finds his relaxation in hunting and fishing. As a sideline he prides himself on being able to solve any crossword puzzle in the Ledger-Enquirer in 15 minutes or less.

He and his wife Lida have five children: Joseph Jr., 19; William, 16; Elizabeth, 14; David, 12; and Linda, 10. They consider Clover, S.C., as their home.



JEWISH LEADERS . . . National and local Jewish leaders plan activities for a workshop in "Creative Jewish Living" in session here last week. The workshop was sponsored by the Commission on Chaplaincy of the National Jewish Welfare Board at the request of the Department of the Army. Left to right are Mrs. S. Gershon Levi, of Jamaica, N.Y., a member of the Board of the National Women's League of the United Synagogue; Rabbi Levi of the Jamaica Jewish Center; Chaplain (1st Lt.) Naftali, post Jewish chaplain; Chaplain (Lt. Col.) rabbi of B'Nai Israel, Albany, Ga., and Rabbi A. E. Michelson of Flushing, Long Island, N.Y., staff member of the National Jewish Welfare Board. Chaplain Freedman is a Reserve officer on 13 days active duty at Fort Benning.

Eligible For USMA

Sons of wartime veterans who were killed in service or who have died since of service-connected injuries or diseases are given special preference in appointments to the U. S. Military, Naval, and Air Force Academies.

To be eligible to compete for appointment to one of the academies, young men must be at least 17 years of age and not yet 22 years of age on July 1 of the year in which they enter the academy. They must also be high school graduates, never married, in good health, and exhibit potential leadership qualities.

All such eligible young men may compete for regular appointments to the academies from their senators and congressmen. The advantage given sons of men who died as a result of service-connected disabilities is that they compete in examinations on a nation-wide basis only among themselves for special presidential appointments. Such young men if otherwise qualified are usually able to secure an appointment.

ROTC Summer Camp Opened by Gen. Kelly

The Reserve Officer Training Corps cadets who began a six-week course of intensive training here Monday have a great opportunity to prove themselves to be officer material, the deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, told some 1,200 prospective second lieutenants at opening ceremonies at French Field.

"For getting the most out of your training, you will be better officers," Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly said. "With the world situation what it is, you never know when you may be needed in the Army."

After the ceremonies, the cadets were divided into seven companies of about 190 men each. On the agenda for the first day of training were first aid and interior guard duty.

Other subjects to be covered during the summer camp will be Trainfire, mine warfare, map reading, communications, bayonet combat, knowledge of atomic weapons and the Infantry squad in attack and defense.

Throughout the summer camp the trainers, officers and enlisted men assigned to ROTC schools in the academic year, will emphasize leadership to prepare the men to become second lieutenants.

None of the cadets have been commissioned. From 10 to 15 per cent of them have completed their college educations and need only to meet the ROTC summer camp requirements to be eligible for commissions.

More than 100 of the cadets are expected to be commissioned by the end of the training Aug. 3.

All the ROTC cadets attending the summer camp are under contract with the Army. The contracts obligate the men to endeavor to earn commissions. If they have college degrees and successfully complete the summer camp requirements and maintain high academic averages, they will become eligible for commissions in either the Reserve or Regular Army.

The Enemy: Important Training Aid

Newly designed uniforms testify to the growing importance of the Army's foremost training aid—the Aggressor enemy.

Visiting the 2nd Division recently was Captain Homer Cuff of the U. S. Army Aggressor Training Center, Fort Bragg, North Carolina with samples of new aggressor uniforms to be used in future large scale maneuvers.

BORN IN 1946

The Aggressor Enemy concept, growing in importance since its birth in 1946, provides a common and realistic basis for the development of command post exercises, field training exercises, maneuvers, and other tactical training exercises. The Aggressor Enemy concept places emphasis on intelligence training; however, it also adds realism to training and instills an awareness in exercise participants of the basic differences between United States and potential enemy forces.

The Aggressor concept was formulated by the U. S. Army in 1946 in conjunction with the establishment of the Ground General School at Fort Riley, Kansas. Analysis of the training given to U. S. Army units prior to combat in World War II and an appraisal of battlefield performance during the war revealed specific gaps in the intelligence fields, the most important being the lack of command emphasis on intelligence at division and lower levels. Another intelligence inadequacy was the selection and training of suitable personnel by units and commanders.

In 1946 a group of senior officers was convened in order to devise a realistic maneuver enemy. The result was the establishment of an entirely fictitious country with a different type of government and its own national history. Its political aims are opposed to those of the United States. The Aggressor soldier wears a unique jungle green uniform with his own insignia of rank and his helmet has a distinctive ridge running lengthwise over the crest. He has his own order of battle, his own flag and he may speak Esperanto, his own Latin based language.

LIKE REGULAR UNIT

The Aggressor Center is set up along the same lines as a regular battle group unit. The commander is a colonel and has the normal staff sections for administration, security, operations and training, and supply, plus a special section

2nd Division CPX 'Juliet' Ends on Post

Portions of 2nd Division units participated this week in Command Post Exercise "Juliet," conducted in the field on Tuesday and Wednesday.

The objectives of the exercise were to familiarize the division staff with proposed plans and operating procedures of III U. S. Army Corps, as well as the areas of operations for future exercises to be conducted on the east coast, to exercise division headquarters air movement plans, to exercise the division intelligence net in the reporting and dissemination of information, and to exercise the division staff in planning and executing tactical operations.

Attack Order

The CPX play opened with the issuance of III Corps attack orders at 2:00 A.M. Monday and began with a simulated air and surface movement by the 2nd Division to Fort Jackson, South Carolina.

The Division Tactical Operations Center, with supporting elements, moved by aircraft loads to Lawson Field. Eight of the aircraft loads actually loaded became airborne and returned to Lawson Field for

New Combat Fire Course Bows Today

O'Brien Range Live-Fire Scene

The 2nd Division is scheduled to introduce today a new phase of infantry training. Called the Infantry Company Combat Fire and Drill, the exercise will be held on a specially prepared course by "Indianhead" Division personnel.

The live-fire exercise will be conducted at O'Brien Range, located adjacent to the old Macon Road. The range was formerly used for recoilless rifle firing.

'Primus' Is First

Company A, 1st Infantry, is slated to run the initial exercise. Eventually, every rifle company in the 2nd Division will complete this phase of training and will subsequently be required to run the course twice a year.

The infantry company combat fire and drill is a controlled training exercise which demonstrates the roles taken by a company in the attack and in support. It is another drill utilized in maintaining the 2nd Division's mission of being STRAC-ready.

According to Captain Ernest E. Cross, G-3 project officer, the infantry combat fire and drill will provide training in fire and maneuver at the company level. In the past similar training was offered on platoon and rifle squad levels.

Dry Run

A dry run was held at O'Brien Range yesterday to familiarize Company A personnel with the course.

Today, two platoons will attack three objectives located on the course. Firing begins at H-Hour minus five minutes when the company's 81 millimeter mortars open up on objective one. At H-Hour the 4.2 millimeter mortars, recoilless rifles and a battery of artillery ing Soldier Award will include the following events: the physical combat proficiency test, competitive firings with pistol and rifle, military appearance, manual of arms, and general military appearance are the events for individual competition.

Scoring for these individual competitions break down in the following categories: the highest possible number of points for rifle and pistol marksmanship is 30 for each weapon, a total of 30 points each is the highest possible score for the physical combat proficiency test, military appearance, and general military knowledge. Manual of arms scores 25 points. The highest possible total score is 175 points.

Unit competitions include the cross country run, platoon drill competition, physical combat proficiency test, drivers rodeo, and competitive marksmanship with rifle and pistol.

Top Units Gain Awards

Awards will be made to the top three units. A tie will be played off or ruled on by the judges. These events will be conducted at Blue Field, Sightseeing Field, Post Pistol Range, and McAndrew Range.

Ten units from the 2nd Division will operate ten types of concessions. They will be located at Stillwell Field. The 1st Infantry will operate two nail driving concessions. Dual booths for a ring toss will be operated by the 22rd Infantry. Two ball toss concessions will be operated by the 38th Infantry. Division Trains will oversee three dart board concessions. Division Artillery will have charge of the darts and balloons concessions. The 69th Armor and the 7th Cavalry will be in charge of the fiskponds. Second Engineers will be in charge of the ring toss at canes. Concessions for the penny pitch will be operated by the 2nd Aviation Company and the 122nd Signal Battalion.

Prizes will be offered for those who win at the booths. Concession scripts will be sold at three centrally located booths. Cash will not be handled at the concession booths. Responsibility for establishing and operating the individual booths lies with assigned units.

commence firing on objective two. "Red" and "green" platoons then begin advancing on their objectives, alternating in the roles of attack and support. After taking objectives one and two the platoons converge jointly on objective three. The platoons switch roles, and the problem is run again.

Conversion of O'Brien Range into a live-fire combat fire and drill course was carried out early this week by Company A, 2nd Engineers. This principally involved the clearing of brush and trees to provide a clear field of fire across the range. Both the range's depth and width may be extended later.

WORLD'S FAIR

Gen. Trapnell Sees 1st Inf In Exercise

By 1st Infantry PIO

Lieutenant General T. J. H. Trapnell, commanding general, Third U. S. Army, visited the 1st Infantry last week during Exercise CHIEF ACORN.

General Trapnell arrived on Tuesday morning, the second day of the exercise, and was greeted by Colonel Walter B. Todd, 1st Infantry commander.

By Helicopter

General Trapnell and senior officials of Third Army Headquarters and Fort Benning arrived by helicopter.

Colonel Todd briefed the general on the organization of the 1st Infantry and the organization and tactical situation of the exercise.

After outlining the mission of the 1st Infantry, Colonel Todd escorted General Trapnell and his group to the forward edge of the battle area. Here they observed Company C, commanded by Captain Thomas J. McAniff, move forward of the front and attack enemy held territory.

Upon completion of his tour of the 1st Infantry forward combat area, General Trapnell boarded the helicopter to return to the 87th Maneuver Area Command Headquarters.

Portions of the 1st Infantry, 38th Infantry, 69th Armor, 7th Cavalry, 2nd Engineer Battalion, units of Division Artillery, and Division Trains participated in the exercise, while personnel from Brigade Headquarters, 9th Infantry, 23rd Infantry, and 87th Infantry represented their units in a player-controller role.

1st Inf Assists in Training ROTC Cadets

By 1st Infantry PIO

Personnel of the 1st Infantry, are playing a large role in the future careers of many men.

With the arrival of some 1,300 cadets from colleges and universities throughout the Third Army area, nearly 380 officers and enlisted men of the battle group will be participating in their instruction.

The six-week training period will be conducted on ranges and facilities of Fort Benning. The Infantry Center is in charge of the over-all instruction of the cadets.

Lieutenant Marion T. Fairris is the liaison officer for the battle group and is in charge of the coordination with summer camp officials.

Lieutenant Byron L. Powers, battle group S-3 section, is in charge of the coordination of support personnel.

Brigadier General John E. Kelly Jr., deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, addressed the cadets Monday morning.

Formal instruction began Monday afternoon as the cadets, billeted in the Harmony Church area, moved out to their respective classes.

Classroom study was given this week covering communications, engineering and medical subjects. Other subjects of instruction were squad in the attack, tactical training of the individual soldier, platoon in the attack, platoon in security during movement and field fortifications.

CHOW PROBLEM

Feeding the entire Army is no easy task, but it becomes especially complicated at The Infantry School, where an average of 300 Allied officers from as many as 38 countries are fed.

Instruction and firing of the M-1 rifle will cover a two week period ending next week. The Malone complex ranges near Sand Hill are being utilized for this training.

Future training will include application of theory in field problems, physical conditioning, combat problems, patrol exercises and day and night tactical marches.

8 Awards Presented At 87th's Ceremony

By 87th Inf PIO

An Army Commendation Medal, a reenlistment plaque, a soldier-of-the-month award and five sports trophies were awarded to men of the 87th Infantry at a battle group awards formation held last week.

While assistant adjutant Floyd W. Blunk read the list of winners, Deputy Commander Lieutenant Colonel Raymond J. Rush Jr., made the presentations.

Staff Sergeant Charles H. Jenkins was the first recipient, winning an Army Commendation Medal for outstanding performance of his duties while serving as G-3 Schools NCO at 2nd Division headquarters. At the 87th he is the assistant operations sergeant.

Next in line was Company A Reenlistment Sergeant Clyde Harding who accepted the battle group quarterly reenlistment plaque. Soldier-of-the-Month Sergeant Kirk Keeney was then presented with a certificate of merit and a $25 bond.

The remaining trophies were presented for various achievements in sports. Accepting the trophy for first place in the company level basketball tournament was Specialist Four Donald Roberts of Company B. The volleyball trophy was accepted by Private Chester Berroud of Company E. "Echo" Company's Sergeant Percy Edwards accepted the bowling trophy.

The next presentation was made to Colonel Rush by First Sergeant James A. Scott, who presented him with the second place division bowling trophy. Sergeant Scott was then repaid with two trophies — one for high game and another for high series. The ceremony was concluded by presenting individual trophies to the remainder of the bowling team: Sergeant Glenn McCammon and Specialists Four Leonard Shoemaker, Kenneth Allen, Raymond Cline and Paul Suding.

Lt Galambos Is Promoted Aboard Ship

By 23rd Infantry PIO

Promoted last week to first lieutenant while aboard the USS Wyandot, one of the naval vessels used in the 23rd Infantry's "Operation Seahorse," was Joseph G. Galambos, heavy mortar platoon commander of the 23rd's Combat Support Company.

Lt. Galambos entered the Army in March 1959 as an enlisted man, entered Officer Candidate School at Fort Benning in 1960, and received his commission in December of the same year. Subsequently, he was assigned to the 23rd Infantry and Combat Support Company as a platoon leader.

Review Planned Today For New Aviation C.O.

A review this afternoon and a reception this evening will highlight the arrival of the 2nd Division's new division aviation commander.

Lieutenant Colonel John M. Stephenes succeeds Major Albert H. Becker who assumes the duties of the assistant aviation commander.

At Lawson Field

A review for Lt. Col. Stephenes will be held this afternoon at 5:30 at Lawson Field with all 2nd Division aircraft on static display as a backdrop for the 2nd Aviation Company personnel formed in front.

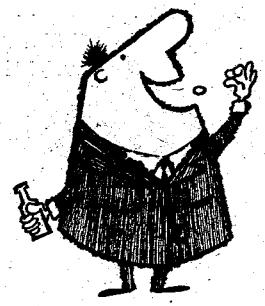
An official reception will be held at 6:30 this evening at the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Prior to his assignment as division aviation commander, Lt. Col. Stephenes attended the Rotary Wing Qualification Course at Camp Wolters, Tex. The new division aviation commander, his wife Susan and their two children reside at 300-C Lumpkin Road.

Sgt. Kirk Keeney Chosen as 'SOM'

By 87th Inf PIO

Sergeant Kirk Keeney was recently selected as the 87th Infantry Soldier-of-the-Month for June.



He was awarded a citation and a $25 bond by Lieutenant Colonel Raymond J. Rush Jr. at a battle group formation held last week.

For Sergeant Keeney, a fire team leader with the reconnaissance platoon of Combat Support Company, this was his second "SOM" award, having won it last April.

129 Levied At 23rd Inf

By 23rd Infantry PIO

Department of the Army levies for the months of August and September have been received by the 23rd Infantry, and a combined total of 129 enlisted men from the battle group have been named for overseas assignments to Europe, Alaska and Korea.

With the majority of the men levied possessing a 111 MOS, (Military Occupational Specialty) there are seven other MOSs on the two levies, including 768, 156, 113, 911, 953, 311 and 631. Rank-wise, the grades E-2 through E-6 are respresented.

This marks the first levy for the battle group since last April, when the levy for the month of August was cancelled. Personnel on the levies will be departing Fort Benning from July 10 through August 10 in order to arrive at their destinations on time.

NEW LT. COL. . . . Newly promoted to his present rank is Lieutenant Colonel John F. Kearns, 2nd Division's deputy staff judge advocate.

27th Arty Ups Four to Sgt E5

By 27th Artillery PIO

Four men of Battery A, 27th Artillery were recently promoted to the grade of sergeant (E-5).

They are Sergeants Curtis T. Montgomery Jr., Roosevelt Sanders Jr., Harvie L. Thornton and Squire L. Wise.

Sgt. Thornton is presently serving as chief of a howitzer section. Sgts. Montgomery, Sanders and Wise serve as gunners.

Sgt. R. P. Martin Reenlists at 9th

9th Infantry PIO

Sergeant Rupert P. Martin, a squad leader in Company E of the 9th Infantry, this week took the oath for a first term reenlistment of three years.

Sergeant Martin entered the Army in July 1959 and was assigned to Korea before coming to the 9th Infantry in July 1961. He is a native of Buford, Georgia.

Tucker Reenlists For 6 at Engrs.

By 2nd Engr. Bn. PIO

Last week Sergeant First Class James Tucker, Company C, 2nd Engineer Battalion, took the oath of reenlistment for six years. He has served a total of 11 years.

Sergeant Tucker joined the 2nd Engineer Battalion in November 1959 and is presently assigned to Company C as an engineer squad leader.

Sergeant Tucker has seen service in Japan, Korea and Germany. Among his decorations is the Combat Infantry Badge, which was awarded to him in 1951.

The 23rd Infantry Task Force of 1,900 Invades Virginia Beach in Amphib Operation 'Seahorse'

PASSING IN REVIEW BEFORE THE SQUADRON COMMANDER
7th Cavalry troops viewed by Major Busch, Lt. Col. Scott

By 23rd Inf PIO

The 23rd Infantry Task Force comprised of more than 1,900 soldiers, "invaded" Virginia beaches last Friday in an amphibious assault climaxing two weeks' training at the Naval Amphibious Training Center, Little Creek, Virginia.

During "Operation Seahorse" observers saw the results of training conducted at the Naval base in a joint Army-Navy-Marine effort. The operation was composed of the 23rd Infantry, commanded by Lieutenant Colonel Cecil M. Sanders, and some eighteen participating elements of other division units.

Army, Navy Coordinate Plans

Task Force liaison Headquarters for the exercise has been highlighted by a large sign depicting the 2nd Division Indian sitting in a canoe. Here all staff sections from the Army and Navy coordinated planning for the exercise under the over-all command of Col. Sanders.

Formal classes for the amphibious assault began on June 11 for the 23rd Task Force. After a course in basic procedures the group began specialized subcourses which lasted anywhere from four hours to four days. Also included in the first week of instruction were the practice embarkation and debarkation of assault vehicles in addition to a practice assault.

During the second week of training, which ended with Friday's assault, the troops were introduced to the various details of shipboard life. The task force boarded the ships of the Atlantic Fleet Amphibious Force and underwent realistic on-the-spot instruction in embarkation procedures of an amphibious assault.

The assault ships, after having been loaded with personnel of the task force and their equipment, steamed approximately 25 miles to sea and stood offshore pending Friday's assault.

After completion of the assault, preparation for the return trip to Fort Benning began with the main body departing via commercial busses on Sunday June 24.

In addition to the 23rd Infantry, the task force was made up of elements of the 38th Infantry, 13th Transportation Battalion, 2nd Medical Battalion, 2nd Quartermaster Battalion, 2nd Aviation Company, 2nd Military Intelligence Detachment, 2nd Infantry Division Headquarters, 702nd Ordnance Battalion, 122nd Signal Battalion, 428th Medical Battalion, 2nd Administration Company, 666th Transportation Battalion, 138th Transportation Battalion, 674th Transportation Battalion, 585th Transportation Battalion, 39th Transportation Battalion and 131st Ordnance Battalion.

2 Officers Get Korean Assignment

Two 1st Infantry officers recently received their orders for reassignment to Korea. Scheduled to depart near the end of the month are Captain Robert L. Ament and Warrant Officer (W-2) Joseph C. Parsons.

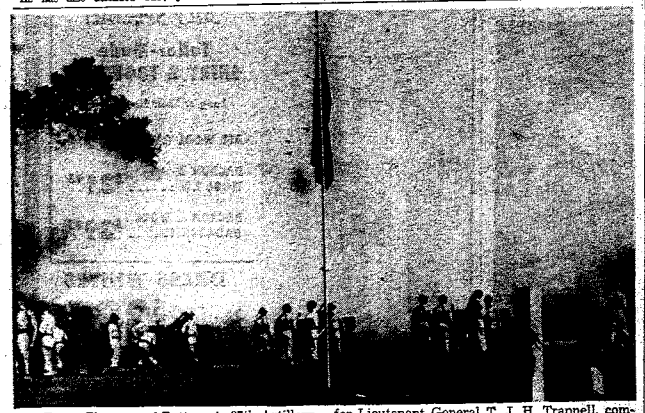
Captain Ament, battle group assistant S-3, was commissioned in June 1956 after graduation from Ohio State University. He has served with the 33rd Armor, 35th Armor and the 3rd Infantry prior to coming to the 1st Infantry.

He has also attended The Armored School, United States Chemical Corps School and the Amphibious Staff Planning Course.

Mister Parsons, battle group maintenance officer, received his promotion to Warrant Officer (W-1) in October 1960. Before his commission, Mr. Parsons was a master sergeant with Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 2nd Infantry Division.

'Garry' Parades

7th Cav Reviews at Knight Field



By 7th Cav PIO

The "Garry Owen," 7th Cavalry, recently held a review in honor of its former commander, Lieutenant Colonel Harvey Scott, who has departed for a new assignment in Germany.

The parade was held at Knight Field on Sand Hill, with Headquarters, A, B, and C Companies participating. The 2nd Division band was also on hand to play for the "Garry Owen" unit.

The cavalry troops used the old red and white guidons which were used during the Custer era and the winning of the West. Colonel Scott gave his farewell address, wishing everybody good luck and turning the command over to Major Charles A. Busch. Major Walter D. Hall was the commander of troops and led the squadron through the review.

Sergeant Major John A. Carnahan and the First Sergeants of each troop presented Colonel Scott with a plaque which had a pair of authentic cavalry spurs, the crest, and crossed sabers mounted with an inscription: "To Lieutenant Colonel Harvey Scott from the Non-Commissioned Officers of the 7th Cavalry".

FIRE! . . . The guns of Battery A, 27th Artillery roared 47 times in three salutes last week for visiting dignitaries. A 19-gun salute was fired last Thursday in honor of Lieutenant General Juan Flores Torres, deputy secretary of defense for Mexico; a 15-gun salute was fired Saturday for Lieutenant General T. J. H. Trapnell, commanding general of the Third United States Army; and a 13-gun salute was fired Friday for Major General Leon L. Matthews, commanding general of the 87th Maneuver Area Command.

Aggressor Enemy

for the study and analysis of combat developments.

Two companies of troops are assigned for support — an engineer platoon, which handles the artillery simulators and pneumatic targets, and a headquarters platoon for staff support. Also, there is a signal company which has all the communication equipment necessary to support the Aggressor side of the exercises.

Specifically, it is the duty of the Aggressor center to provide United States Army Aggressor Center Field Advisory Teams and support units for commanders responsible for the preparation and conduct of designated tactical training exercises and maneuvers, to prepare background scenarios and similar materials for use in tactical training exercises, to prepare and revise Department of the Army training literature, to provide advice and assistance to commandants of service schools on the employment of Aggressor, to supervise the preparation and conduct of tactical training exercises, and the conduct of intelligence training, and to make timely evaluation of the utilization of the maneuver enemy to the commanding general of the United States Continental Army Command.

The center also maintains a combat development section to conduct studies on the development of special equipment, such as electronic, chemical, sonic, and simulation devices to be used in training. They study and develop techniques to be employed by Aggressor forces in conformity with approved current doctrine and direct and supervise the training of United States Army Aggressor Center Field Advisory Teams and support units at home stations.

Highly Qualified Personnel

The personnel who support the Aggressor portion of the exercises are highly qualified in the Aggressor concept and in their specialized fields, as the levels at which these personnel operate require a professional competence unique in the Army. The officers of this organization must be able to give immediate and precise advice to personnel ranging in grade from general to squad leader.

Although the Aggressor Center at Fort Riley may furnish the suggestions as to scenario, Aggressor order of battle, and conversion of United States units to Aggressor units, the actual "enemy" force is made up of regular units assigned to the exercise.

Personnel of the United States Armed Forces engaged in tactical training sometimes feel that they are actually subjected to some of the rigors and uncertainties of real war. They are meeting the Aggressors—a force that is continually striving to emulate tactics and techniques which would be encountered under combat conditions. The Aggressor has become the most effective training aid used to prepare the Soldier for his final objective.

New XO and S3 Officer Are at Thirty-Eighth Inf.

By 38th Inf PIO

The 38th Infantry has gained a new executive officer and S-3 (training and operations) while its former deputy commander and S-3 have departed for new posts with the 23rd Infantry.

New 38th "XO" is Lieutenant Colonel Sidney J. Roche, who formerly held the same job with the 23rd Infantry, and new S-3 is Major Charles M. Bolen, who also served as operations officer in the 23rd.

Lieutenant Colonel Cecil M. Sanders, formerly deputy commander of the 38th, has assumed command of the Sand Hill battle group, and Lieutenant Colonel James R. Sessions of the 38th has moved up from his executive officer post to deputy battle group commander of the Rock of the Marne unit.

Major Dudley T. Bunn has become S-3 of the 23rd, the same position he held with the 38th Infantry.

A ceremony honoring Lt. Col. Sanders and Major Bunn was held at Kelley Hill at which all troops of the battle group passed in review before the two officers and Colonel Maurice C. Holden, commander of the 38th.

The 38th's new executive officer, Lt. Col. Roche, is a veteran of more than 18 years of Army service.

4 1st Inf Sergeants Are Promoted to E8

By 1st Infantry PIO

Four sergeants of the 1st Infantry were recently promoted to the grade of E-8.

First Sergeants Darl K. Broaddus, Company D; Marvin D. Hovey, Company A; John E. Meeker, Headquarters Company and Master Sergeant Karl A. Neudorff, Headquarters Company were presented a copy of their promotion orders by Colonel Walter B. Todd.

In the brief ceremonies held at battle group headquarters, company commanders and battle group staff members were present to congratulate the men.

WW II Veteran

First Sergeant Broaddus is a World War II veteran and has served three tours in Europe. His prior assignment was as administration supervisor of Company C, Infantry School Brigade, Main Post.

First Sergeant Hovey is a Korean veteran and reported to the 1st Infantry in June 1961 after duty as a light weapons instructor at Fort Jackson, South Carolina.

First Sergeant Meeker was a combat construction foreman of Company C, Infantry School Brigade, prior to reporting to the 1st Infantry in June 1961. He has served tours in Korea, Germany and the Caribbean.

Master Sergeant Neudorff is the battle group chief supply NCO. He is a veteran of World War II and has spent the majority of his service in the supply field.

Sergeant Neudorff also holds a reserve commission of Chief Warrant Officer (W-2) in the Quartermaster Corps.

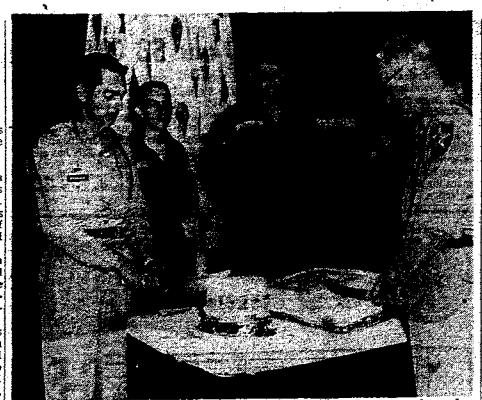
'Ripley' Story About 2d Div Found at 9th

By 9th Infantry PIO

Sergeant Major James L. Runyon of the 9th Infantry Headquarters proved recently that a man's wallet can be just as much of a "catch-all" as his wife's purse.

While cleaning out an accumulation of cards and papers collected throughout the years, Sergeant Runyon came across a clipping taken from the St. Louis Post-Dispatch dated January 10, 1945. The clipping, a "Ripley Believe It or Not" column, depicts the Indianhead patch of the 2nd Division and a brief epilogue telling its readers that the "Second to None" unit earned more honors and decorations in World War I than any other unit.

The clipping, which also states that the Indianhead was designed by a truck driver who had painted it on his vehicle, was given to Sergeant Runyon last year by a former lieutenant, now Mr. John W. Wilford of St. Louis, Missouri. Then-Lt. Wilford was assigned to the 9th Infantry's now-extinct Company L when the paper was put to press 17 years ago.



Two 9th Inf Men Re-Up For 6 and 3

By 9th Infantry PIO

There were two reenlistments in the 9th Infantry this week. Sergeant Obbie L. Williams and Specialist Four Roscoe E. Mason reenlisted for 6 years and 3 years respectively.

Sergeant Williams, a member of Company A, took the oath for six years and has three years already to his credit. He has been a member of the 9th Infantry since September 1961. He has also served one tour in Germany and was awarded the Expert Infantry Badge last March.

Specialist Mason took the oath for another three years. The ordnance supply specialist has been a member of the 9th Infantry since November 1959.

23rd Infantry Gets a New Commanding Officer

By 23rd Inf. PIO

Lieutenant Colonel Cecil M. Sanders of North Little Rock, Ark., has recently been assigned as commanding officer of the 23rd Infantry.

Since March 1961, Lt. Col. Sanders had served as deputy commander of the 58th Infantry. Prior to that, he was the special staff officer of the United States Army Infantry School, responsible for the coordination of all activities, to include the plans and justification of the construction of the new academic building at Fort Benning, which is now under construction.

Earlier in his military career, he spent more than three years at Fort Benning, first as a student in the Officers' Advanced Course at The Infantry School from July 1949 to June 1950, and afterwards as an instructor of G-1 functions in the staff department of the school from July 1950 to January 1953.

Lt. Col. Sanders entered the Army in July 1939 as an officer and was assigned to the Sixth Infantry (Armored), First Armored Division at Fort Knox, Kentucky, until he went overseas in late 1940 to the Philippine Islands, where he participated in the defense of Bataan and Corregidor at the outbreak of World War II.

From July 1946 until August 1948, Col. Sanders was connected with the Army's experiments with captured V-2 rockets and the development of American rockets including the NIKE and CORPORAL missiles, first as technical operations officer of the First Anti-Aircraft Artillery Guided Missiles Battalion at the White Sands Proving Ground, New Mexico, and later as S-3 and executive officer of the First Guided Missile Regiment at Fort Bliss, Texas.

He was next assigned as commander of the 47th Armored Infantry Battalion of the Fifth Armored Division at Camp Chaffee, Arkansas, from August 1948 to July 1949.

Following his first tour at Fort Benning, as a student and instructor at The Infantry School from 1959 to 1953, he was assistant Army attache in Morocco until November 1956. He then became chief of plans and operations in the G-2 section of the Second United States Army at Fort George G. Meade, Maryland, before returning to Fort Benning as an instructor in division and battle group tactics and staff functions of the Command and Staff Department at The Infantry School in April 1959. In January 1960, he was assigned as a special staff officer at the school.

In addition to the Officers' Advanced Course at The Infantry School, he attended the Army Language School, the Strategic Intelligence School and the Command and General Staff College. Colonel Sanders holds a bachelor of arts degree from Ouachita College in Arkadelphia, Arkansas.

Colonel Sanders wears the Bronze Star, the Army Commendation Ribbon with an oak leaf cluster, the Purple Heart with two oak leaf clusters, the Combat Infantryman's Badge, The Philippine Presidential Citation and the United States Presidential Unit Citation with two oak leaf clusters.

Colonel and Mrs. Sanders are the parents of two daughters, Janice Lynn, 14, and Joan Leslie, 12, and they reside at 100 Eames Ave.

Capt. Sweeney To Leave 87th For Korean Duty

By 87th Inf PIO

Captain Kenneth J. Sweeney, 87th Infantry S-2 since December of last year, recently received orders to Korea. He is scheduled to depart this week.

Captain Sweeney's previous assignment was company commander of Headquarters Company. As yet, no replacement has been named.

Before Captain Sweeney's tour of duty began at Fort Benning in June 1960, he was stationed in Chicago, Ill., with the U. S. Army Military Installation and Headquarters, Northern Illinois Sector, XI U.S. Army Reserve Corps.

Captain Sweeney obtained his commission upon graduation from the United States Military Academy, West Point, N. Y., in 1953. He is married and has five children.

Traffic Quiz

Traffic Signs Save Lives . . . Know Them?

By David M. Winkler

The automobile could easily supplant the hearthstone as a symbol of family activity and togetherness. Think of how many family activities center around, even depend upon the family car. . Sunday picnics, mother and daughter shopping sprees, father and son fishing jaunts and the routine trips to school, to work, etc.

Yet, this same automobile is a constant threat to the family's happiness and security. During the next year thousands of children will lose at least one parent in an automobile accident. Thousands of families will lose their sources of income because Dad is seriously injured in a car. More youngsters between the ages of one and 16 years will die in automobile accidents than because of any disease.

While the family as a unit suffers most from the toll our traffic accidents take, the family can also be the greatest single force in preventing accidents. The parents, by their training, their example and their attitude, can do more to make their children safe on our streets and highways than any governmental or educational authority. The father, who is conscious of the effect his driving actions may have on his entire family, will be a safer motorist. The wife and mother who fully accepts her responsibility can influence her husband and her youngsters to drive, walk and play with care.

The motorist's attitude is of great importance in the safe operation of his vehicle. Mere knowledge of the law is of little value unless you are willing to abide by the rules of the road, both legal and moral. "Thou Shalt Not Kill," is as applicable to our conduct behind the wheel of an automobile as it is in any of our human relations.

In this day of super highways and high horsepower automobiles, a thorough knowledge of and compliance with traffic signs and signal devices is important. Traffic signs are put up only after a careful study. Every sign has a definite purpose and is placed to instruct you in the correct and safe use of the highway. The smart driver knows these signs and obeys them. Uniform standards provide six basic shapes.

Match the questions below with the follow sign shapes: a. round, b. diamond, c. rectangle, d. octagon, e. crossbuck, f. triangle.

1. Used only for the stop sign, which means you must come to a full stop, and make sure the way is clear before proceeding.
2. Means that you must yield the right-of-way to traffic on the highway you are crossing or entering.
3. Always carries a warning of some hazard or unusual condition found on the road ahead. It calls for caution and usually for reduced speed. Sometimes the maximum advisory speed is shown on another sign displayed just below.
4. Informs you of certain laws and regulations for the purpose of safety and convenience. Such signs show speed limits, regulations regarding turning movements and passing, keeping to the right, parking, walking on the left, etc.
5. Carries only one message: it cautions drivers of a railroad crossing just ahead.
6. Used only to mark highway - railroad crossings. It means reduce the speed of of your vehicle, look and listen before crossing the tracks.

Answers

1. d
2. b

As part of his orientation on an Infantry Division Signal Battalion, Commander Ribsskog is spending an equal amount of time in each of the companies. In Headquarters Company, operations of the Division Photo Lab, Division Signal Supply and Maintenance were explained. The Radio Terminal and Carrier Section gave a demonstration on the use on the AN-MSC 68 radio to include operational capabilities and limitations.

At this orientation on the Command Operations Company and Forward Communications Company, Commander Ribsskog visited the field locations of these units during their support of Exercise CHIEF ACORN.

He will depart Wednesday for his home station.

Troop C, 7th Cavalry Goes To Virginia

By 7th Cavalry PIO

Troop C, 7th Cavalry, recently departed by bus for Little Creek, Virginia, for amphibious training. The "Garry Owen" troopers are under the command of Lieutenant Charles D. Ludlum, the troop executive officer.

Lieutenant Mullins, Troop C commanding officer, will arrive later to assume command.

The 7th Cavalry is attached for training to the 9th Infantry.

Training consists of practicing dry net training on land and wet net training methods from an actual ship into landing craft.

The personnel in the 7th Cavalry will engage in such special subjects as waterproofing of vehicles and communication equipment, indoctrination in a ship's characteristics, logistics support techniques, shore party organization and equipment storage.

702nd Ordnance Promotes 13 Enlisted Men With Allocations

13th Trans PIO

Receiving the largest number of enlisted promotion allocations in several years, the 702nd Ordnance Battalion promoted 13 men between last Friday and Tuesday.

Master Sergeant (E-8) Charlie M. Blanton was elevated to his present grade in a surprise promotion ceremony at Headquarters, 702nd Ordnance Battalion on Friday. A veteran of 20 years Army service, the new master sergeant is assigned to Headquarters and Company B, with duties as division ammunition sergeant. A native of Alabama, Master Sergeant Blanton is presently residing at Fort Benning with his wife, Ruby.

Promotions to Sergeant First Class (E-7) went to Kenneth A. Hall and Nason Wrench. Sergeant Hall, a member of Headquarters and Company B, is assigned as that unit's repair advisor and has been in the Army for 18 years. Sergeant Wrench, a member of Company A, has 19 years service and is platoon sergeant of that unit's maintenance platoon.

Both men are married. Sergeant Hall, being the father of two girls and one son, resides in Columbus with his family. Sergeant Wrench, his wife and two children, also reside in Columbus.

Advanced to Specialist Five (E-5) on June 15, 1962, were Robert M. Farmer and Ernest Clark of Headquarters and Company B, and David R. Ash of Company A. Specialist Farmer is a Senior Ammunition Specialist and Clark is a cook, while Specialist Ash is an anti-tank missile repairman.

A member of the 69th Armor's Company A negotiates the horizontal ladder at one of the division's three new physical combat proficiency test fields. The new physical training tests also consist of a 40-yard low crawl, a dodge-run-jump course, a one-mile run and a grenade throw. All members of the 2nd Division under 40 years old will have completed the test by September 15. The new testing fields were designed by the U.S. Army Infantry Center, and the course procedures are purposely tailored to combat-related skills.

Captain Ball Commands Headquarters Company

By 1st Infantry PIO

Captain Harry N. Ball recently assumed command of Headquarters Company, 1st Infantry. He succeeds Lieutenant Stephen H. Schor, who has received orders for Special Forces duty in Okinawa.

The new commander served with the United States Navy on board the USS Chicago in the South Pacific during World War II.

In Navy Reserves

After returning to civilian life in May 1946, Captain Ball was a member of the United States Navy Reserve until entering Middle Tennessee State College in 1950. He transferred to East Tennessee State College in 1952 and received his commission through the Reserve Officer Training Corps program in 1953.

Upon completion of the Basic Infantry Officer's Course at The Infantry School, Captain Ball attended the Ranger Course and the Basic Airborne Course at the Infantry School. His first assignment was as a platoon leader of Company E, 325th Airborne Infantry Regiment, Fort Bragg, North Carolina.

He later served as machine-gun platoon leader, 81mm mortar platoon leader, motor officer, company executive officer, battalion S-1 and S-4 in the 325th Regiment.

In August 1956 Captain Ball reported to the 82nd Airborne Division Headquarters and served as supply officer and commanding officer of Headquarters Detachment.

His next assignment was with the 7th Infantry Division, Korea, as custodian of the central post fund.

He returned to the United States in December 1958 and was assigned to the 1st Ranger Company, Eglin Air Force Base, Florida. He instructed on the Tactical Jungle Training Committee prior to his return to Fort Benning and The Infantry School. Captain Ball instructed in platoon tactics for the Attack Committee, Ranger Department.

He completed the Infantry Officer Career Course before coming to the 1st Infantry.

Captain Ball is a graduate of the Ranger Course, Aerial Delivery Course, Air Transportability Course, Jumpmaster Course and the Pathfinder Course.

He wears the American Campaign Medal, World War II Victory Medal, Navy Occupation Medal with Asia clasp, Asiatic Pacific Campaign Medal with Bronze Star, China Service Medal, National Defense Service Medal, Army Commendation Medal and the Good Conduct Medal. He also holds the Senior Parachutist Badge and the Expert Infantryman's Badge.

Formerly from Bristol, Tennessee, Captain Ball now lives at Fort Benning with his wife and son.

Now With 9th; Captain Webster To Join Aviation

By 9th Infantry PIO

Captain Grady F. Webster, adjutant of the 9th Infantry Headquarters, will depart the 9th this week. Captain Webster will report to the division's 2nd Aviation Company for his new assignment.

Captain Webster has been with the 9th Infantry since October 1960 when he was executive officer of Company B. He became adjutant in February of this year. Captain Webster will report to Camp Wolters, Texas for helicopter school on September 30.

A native of Atlanta, Georgia, Captain Webster attended Georgia Tech and graduated in 1955. He majored in industrial management. Captain Webster is married and resides at Fort Benning with his wife and two children.

Germany-Bound, Mrs. Bacharach Looks Forward to New Adventure

By Kaye Lee

The ladies of the 2nd Division lose one of their most energetic behind-the-scenes contributors early next month when Mrs. Gustav M. Bacharach leaves for Germany with her husband, Colonel Bacharach, division chief of staff.

Mrs. Bacharach has only been on one tour outside of this country, Panama, and she is eagerly anticipating her impending trip to Europe. She hopes to "see and do everything" while she is there. She specifically expressed the desire to take German lessons.

LEAVING
Mrs. Bacharach

Philadelphia Native

She is a native of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. She graduated from the University of Pennsylvania, taking a B.S. degree in education. She was a member of the Kappa Kappa Gamma Sorority.

She married Colonel Bacharach in Philadelphia June 29, 1940. They are the parents of Susan, a sophomore at Washington State University, and Gustav Moore, a sophomore at Columbus high school.

Mrs. Bacharach said her favorite tour was Panama. She said it "was a hub of activity and practically the crossroads of the world." Colonel and Mrs. Bacharach have also been stationed in Washington D. C., South Carolina, Washington state and Georgia. When questioned about how many moves she had made since becoming an Army wife she smiled her shy grin and said, "I quit counting after 33!"

Loves To Travel

She loves to travel and always welcomes each new assignment. To remember each post to which she and her husband have been assigned, she has collected various paintings and prints of the individual posts. Mrs. Bacharach enjoys Army life and claims she likes to be constantly on the move. She loves Fort Benning and has enjoyed the time spent here very much, but, at the same time, she is anxious to reach the next assignment.

Golf, sewing and refinishing furniture top the list of her hobbies. She laughingly says she only plays "at" golf and can hardly find the time to sew or refinish furniture.

She attends the Main Post Catholic Chapel. She is a member of the 2nd Division Officers' Wives Club, Nurses Aids and Panhellenic Society. She also serves as a worker at the Thrift Shop.

Mrs. Bacharach has contributed much to the life of the Post. She is a most charming and modest lady. She will be missed by all.

MEMBERSHIP DRIVE . . . The 2nd Division Officers' Wives Club is currently conducting its annual membership drive, and Mrs. James T. Kolb, club president, Mrs. Charles M. Johnson and Mrs. Maynard Kelman are busy preparing membership cards. In connection with the membership drive effort the club will hold a free coffee July 10 at the Custer Terrace Officers' Club for all eligible ladies.
