New Benning School Dedication Set Today

Named For Korea Hero

Fort Benning will dedicate the "Edward A. White School" today.

The new 11 classroom elementary school is named for Distinguished Service Cross winner, 1st Lt. White who was killed in action in Korea in 1950.

Ceremonies will be held at the school site in the old hospital area.

Participating in the dedication will be the Infantry Center Band and a color guard from the Honor Guard, Company C, 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry.

Major Gen. Ben Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center, will accept the new school, which will be formerly presented by Col. John M. King, director of instruction at The Infantry School.

Gen. Harrell will officially name the school.

Major Gen. (Ret.) Charles H. White, father of Lt. White, will unveil a plaque on which his son's name has been inscribed.

The color guard will officiate at a flag raising ceremony.

Chaplain (Col.) Silas E. Decker, Infantry Center chaplain, will give the invocation and pronounce the benediction.

After the ceremony, guests will inspect the new school.

In addition to 11 classrooms,

Revised ETS

Infantry Center has distributed a revised letter giving new ETS dates for extended personnel.

The letter stated commanders will insure that ETS are adjusted so that those enlisted personnel who have been extended longest be released first. It also said commanders will insure that enlisted personnel are advised of correct ETS as soon as possible and will insure that separation is effected on the new adjusted ETS.

Personnel whose original ETS is June, 1962 will be released on their normal ETS. Other ETS are as follows:

ORIGINAL ETS	ADJUSTED ETS
1 Oct. thru 30 Nov. 61	February 1962
1 Dec. thru 31 Jan. 62	March 1962
1 Feb. thru Mar. 62	April 1962
1 Apr. thru 31 May 62	May 1962

Post Reservists Tell Feelings In Signed Letter to President

The 111th Signal Company, a National Guard unit from South Carolina, one of the many units recalled to active duty here in the Army's build-up program, recently decided to do something about the accusations that all was not well with the morale of Reserve and National Guard units.

Members of the 111th combined their literary talents to write a letter to President Kennedy expressing their sentiments.

The letter, signed by 36 men, said, "Infused with the gay spirits and glowing lights of this Christmas season, the light of freedom shines throughout our nation and many parts of the world.

"This is true because Americans have sacrificed on many occasions to refill the oil in the glimmering lamp of freedom. This oil has been replenished because Americans revere freedom."

"It is the basic principle on which our nation is founded. However, during the past sev-the school facilities include a library, administrative offices for the principal and secretary, a nurse's clinic, conference room and an all-purpose room which can be used as a cafeteria, auditorium, or meeting room for group activities.

Classes temporarily housed in the old hospital area will use the new building. Five kindergarten classes will continue to meet in temporary buildings.

Lt. White graduated from the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, N. Y., in 1948.

Two years later he was killed in action in Korea at the age of 24.

The son of an Army family, Edward White spent his early life at various Army posts throughout the United States.

He graduated from Brown Military Academy, California, in 1942. After a year of further study at Georgia School of Technology, Atlanta, he entered West Point.

After graduation, Lt. White attended the Ground General School at Fort Riley, and the Infantry School.

While here he married Miss Barbara Miller, daughter of Brig. Gen. (ret.) and Mrs. Maurice L. Miller.

From July to October, 1949, Lt. White served in Japan with the 5th Cavalry Regiment, 1st Cavalry Division.

He was an instructor in a leadership school in Japan from October, 1949, until the outbreak of the Korean conflict June 25, 1950.

Lt. White went to Korea with Company F, 5th Cavalry Regiment, arriving on July 18.

On a mission near Kumchon on August 2, Lt. White was killed in action.

For his conduct in this action, he was posthumously awarded the Distinguished Service Cross.

The citation reads, in part, "he distinguished himself by extraordinary heroism in connection with military operations against an armed enemy on August 2, 1950, near Kumchon, Korea.

"Lt. White was in command of an outpost comprising eleven men when an enemy force of two platoons launched a predawn attack.

In the face of overwhelming odds, Lt. White calmly withheld the order to fire until the enemy approached within twenty-five yards. Then his outpost delivered such devastating fire from small arms and grenades that thirty of the enemy were killed.

"During this action, the outpost expended nearly all ammunition. Lt. White, although the road was swept by heavy machine gun fire, drove a jeep to the rear for more ammunition.

"Obtaining ammunition, he started back through the concentrated enemy fire.

"During the return trip, Lt. White was killed.

"The extraordinary heroism displayed by Lt. White on this occasion reflects the highest credit on himself and the military service."

In a letter to Lt. White's parents, Brig. Gen. Frank A. Allen (now a major general, retired) assistant commander of the 1st Cavalry Division, said, "Edward was among the first of the young officers in the 1st Cavalry Division to give their lives in the Korean action, but his death in battle served as an inspiration for all officers of the Division.

"Edward gave his life that other elements of his regiment might survive and continue the action.

"He exemplifies the finest traditions of the military profession."

Guests of honor at the dedication of Edward A. White School will be Lt. White's father, Gen. White, and brother, Brig. Gen. Charles A. White, Jr., Deputy Chief of Staff, J-4 (Logistics) NORAD (North American Air Defense), J-4 CONAD (Continental Air Defense), Ent Air Force Base, Colo.

matches held at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla.

Both the four man team plaque and the two man team plaque were brought back to Fort Benning as the Army shooters set national records in both events.

First Lt. Robert Trew and Cpl. Gary Anderson combined their talents for a record score of 791 out of a possible 800 to win the two man match. Cpl. Anderson fired a 396x400 and Lt. Trew posted a 395x400 score.

Anderson continued his hot shooting in the four-man event, firing an outstanding 399x400 and his three team-mates were right behind him as they posted a record-smashing 1589x1600 effort. Lt. Trew shot a 398, Capt. Daniel Puckel had a 397 and 1st Lt. Tommy Pool rounded out the effort with a 395.

Both of the Air Force match plaques are now resting in the MTU trophy room.

At 86, He Recalls Day When Wrights Went Up

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AFPS)—When the Alan B. Shepard Jr. Convention Center was dedicated here, in honor of America's first space man, among those present was an octogenarian whose memories take him back to the earliest flights of the Wright Brothers.

Alpheus W. Drinkwater, now 86, was a telegrapher and line repairman for the U. S. Weather Bureau at Currituck, N.C., in 1903 when Orville and Wilbur Wright made their first flights in a power-driver, heavier-than-air machine at Kitty Hawk, some miles to the south.

He recalls that the telegraph wire between Currituck and Nags Head had broken down on Dec. 17, and at 8:30 p.m. he was asked to relay two "trivial" telegrams. One of them was from "those crazy Wrights to their sister, Catherine Wright, in Dayton, Ohio.

"Flight successful," it read. "Be home for Christmas. Wilbur and Orville."

On that day the brothers had taken their plane, the Kitty Hawk, aloft four times. Wilbur made the longest flight, covering 852 feet in 59 seconds.

"The newspapers ignored it," says Drinkwater, for whom the Wrights were a familiar sight on the North Carolina dunes. "I found out later that only three papers in the world even mentioned it briefly, and they only printed parts of a story by Harry P. Moore, a cub reporter with the Norfolk Virginian Pilot."

When the Wrights returned to Kitty Hawk five years later to test their new biplane, Drinkwater was chief telegrapher on the Outer Banks. This time he wired 42,000 words for reporters on the scene to their various papers.

But, he says, the papers were anything but enthusiastic. When a Cleveland, Ohio reporter wired that he had seen the biplane leave the ground, his editor shot back: "Cut out the wildcat stuff. We can't handle it."

Even a story filed to the New York Herald brought this cool rejoinder: "Confine yourself to facts."

By now Drinkwater's curiosity was aroused. He went to the brothers' flight test area and saw what he remembers as "a two-winged contraption of split fur and cloth," carry a man aloft.

"The New York Herald never did believe it," he says. "After all, they never even saw an airplane until 1909."

Family Protection Plan

Sound Planning Leads To Security in Future

The family man who wants to provide for his dependents usually develops a financial program for future security based on savings accounts, life insurance, investments and the like.

These factors — together with service, Veterans Administration and Social Security Administration benefits — can insure a comfortable future for the serviceman and his family after he retires.

When making such plans, the serviceman must determine the total amount of retirement and survivorship benefits he and his family will be eligible to receive. The unit personnel or insurance officer can supply necessary data and help plan a program based on these benefits.

Here are some points to remember when planning for the future:

Servicemen retired or separated with a disability can apply for a special VA "service disabled veterans' insurance."

Depending on their income, survivors of wartime veterans who die of non - service-connected causes may receive pensions from the VA.

Individuals, including retired servicemen, who are totally and permanently disabled are eligible for social security payments if they have worked in "covered" employment long enough.

Survivors of individuals who die of service-connected disabilities also are entitled to social security payments.

With these possibilities in mind, the serviceman can develop a supplemental savings and insurance program to provide adequately for himself and his family when he retires. He should also consider the financial needs of his family should he die while they are dependent on him.

Family Protection Plan annuity payments to a survivors of a retired member are subject to Federal income tax. For tax purposes, the payments consist of (1) a return on the retired member's investment, and (2) taxable income.

The annuity is also subject to Federal estate tax, based on the value of future payments to survivors, which can be determined by Treasury Department tables at the time the member dies.

Local YMCA Plans Hillbilly Music Contest

The Armed Services YMCA, 14 West 11th Street, in Columbus, is planning a Hillbilly Guitar Contest for the evening of January 16.

For further information, interested persons have been asked to call Mrs. Sallie Martin, program secretary, at FA 3-6421.

The dance instruction classes, which began this week will continue next Tuesday evening at 7:30 p.m. The dance presently being taught by Miss Mae Swafford, is the Cha-Cha.

58th Infantry Opens Chapel Center Here

The new 58th Infantry Chapel Center was officially opened by Lt. Col. Charles T. Caprino, 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry commander, in a ceremony December 19. Also present at the tape-cutting ceremony were Major Joseph F. Hackett, 58th Infantry XO, and Chaplains George Foshee and John Stannard representing the post Chaplain.

The Chapel Center was initiated to furnish a suitable place for meditation and recreation for the men of the 58th who have, up to the present time, been dependent upon facilities available only at Main Post for activities exclusive of normal chapel functions. Bible study, religious discussion, and recreational group meetings will become an integral part of the activities at the Chapel Center. Movies will also be shown periodically.

The marked enthusiasm shown by the men in the unit has brought to light the added advantages and religious opportunities made available by the 58th Infantry Chapel Center.

USAFI Opens New American History Courses

MADISON, WIS. (AFPS) — The United States Armed Forces Institute (USAFI) is now offering two new courses on the history of the United States from colonial times to the present.

American History I (F-200) covers political developments up to about 1868 and economic, social and cultural history up to the 1890s. It also trains students in such skills as interpreting maps, charts and graphs, reading and thinking critically, and drawing sound conclusions from historical data.

A continuation of F-200, American History II (F-201) brings the history of the United States up to the present. It emphasizes the emergence of the nation as a modern, industrial, world power and leader of the free world. The course continues practice in the skills developed in American History 1.

Both these courses, which are designed to help the student gain an understanding of the origin, growth and values of American democratic life, are available from USAFI in both correspondence and group study.

Newspapers Not Given True Complaints Facts

By Lt. Frank Johnson

Recently, there have come to the pages of many newspapers instances of criticism as voiced by Americans who have been called back to active duty in view of the Berlin crisis. The facts are that a majority of those who have been recalled are not complaining and are fairly well adjusted to their new life. However, a handful of dissidents have made their views known as to their dissatisfaction with their new duties, and their complaints have reached the mass media of this nation.

Army Secretary Elvis J. Stahr, Jr., reported that the complaints received were offered by only a fraction of the men who are currently serving their active duty tours, and the Pentagon released a report this week which confirmed this fact by citing that less than one percent of those recalled had expressed any real negative opinion about their status.

Naturally, it is difficult for some men to sever their civilian employment, to leave their families, and return to the service. However, even the fraction of complaints received points out an alarming fact of life in our country today. We are warned again and again to be thankful for what we have in this land of ours, and too many have cast a deaf ear to pleas to remember this fact in the midst of the crisis today. To many, it is "old hat" to be told that we are a lucky people to have all the benefits which we enjoy.

However, let us remember a simple fact of life. Our government was formed on the theory of what is known as "contractual government." This is to say that we have a vast amount of privileges, e.g., the right to vote, to worship freely, to write or print what we wish. These are but a few of the rights we enjoy. In return to these freedoms, it is only natural that we should render to our government certain services which enable it to continue to aid us in the continuance of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.

We have to pay taxes to support our government financially, and we are all aware, naturally, that a majority of the male population must serve in the armed forces to aid the government militarily. Now, is this too great a price to pay in return for what we enjoy as citizens of the United States? We have not known dictators in this country, and we have not known war on our shores; these are instances not of good luck or fate. The reason for the sanctity of this nation is simply because the men who founded our government created the most workable and enduring form of jurisprudence ever known to man. It is up to the people themselves to maintain what we have.

Therefore, no matter how small and insignificant we feel while performing our present duties here in the Army or in any phase of our lives, we must recognize that we are vital cogs in the machinery which goes into the making of the greatest workable system of freedom in the world. It might be well for all to remember this now, more than ever, as we enter into the most trying epoch of our country's turbulent history. When all is said and done, a glance to the enslaved millions behind the Iron Curtain should bring this fact home with startling emphasis.

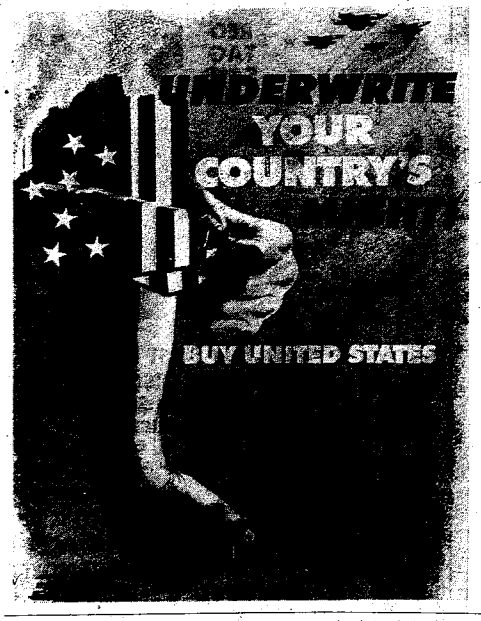
Byron K. Elliott Tells:

How You Can Help Your Country

Today our country is in a peculiar position unlike any we have ever known. As a nation we are powerful and wealthy, with a standard of living which has no parallel in history. Yet we live in fear of an ever-growing threat to our liberty and our peace.



We live in an era of uncertainty — and the aim of battle, no decisive action to be taken. The cold war is slowly increase that uncertainty, to seal silent and formless, impossible to pin down. Ready make us doubt ourselves and make others doubt us. The far war, we must balance hope of the Communist world that readiness with a readiness is to divide and conquer by breaking down our sense of unity and purpose.

We prepare to win a war if necessary to fight because, as George Washington said 171 years ago, to be prepared for war is one of the most effectual means of preserving in the past we have done only

Today there is no real war to fight, no enemy to be met in certainty — and the Communist world is to attack. Other countries believed that

We prepare to win a war if be won without change and as sacrifice.

Today there is no real war to fight, no enemy to be met in certainty — and the Communist world is to attack. Other countries believed that moments of crisis — and we must do them with no expectation of clean solutions, under the constant shadow of a war we hope not to fight. Ever since the United States was born, the world has looked at us in wonder as a people who took the love of independence which is in all men and made it work as a way of life. somehow our success had meaning for their future, that our example could lead mankind to great material and social advances.

What is it that sets us apart? Our belief in the equality of men and the promise of men, and that rare and evasive thing called liberty which so little of the world knows. Where do we go from here? How, when we feel our own existence is threatened, can we further democracy in a world which is changing so bafflingly? Surrounded by revolutions — in communications, in weapons, and in societies — with Asia, the Middle East, Africa and Latin America emerging into the modern world, how are we to retain our leadership?

We must show others by our dedication that we believe our way is right, that the vigilance demanded by liberty is worth the price, and that our belief in the individual man is the only way to a better world for all men.

How secure we can be in this dedication is in the hands of our Armed Forces — in your hands. You are doing something big and important — how important only history will show. In the awareness of what you are doing, and why, lies the traditional strength of our military services, the willingness to do things beyond the strict line of duty with enthusiasm.

Only by facing the dangers which confront us can we measure them; only by being actively committed to our society's values can we begin to overcome these dangers. We must believe, even as the Communists on their side believe, that we can and will prevail without war.

"This government," said Washington in his Farewell Address, "the offspring of our own choice, uninfluenced and unawed, adopted upon full investigation and mature deliberation, completely free in its principles, in the distribution of its powers uniting securely with energy, and containing within itself a provision for its own amendment, has a just claim to your confidence and support."

Those who do not have democracy do not understand it! those who never open ranks to allow free speech find it difficult to believe that we are ever capable of closing ranks to take a united stand. We in our turn find it difficult to explain democracy to them, to reply to accusations founded in fact but exaggerated out of all bounds.

The picture others have reflects what they know of their own lives, and behind their attacks are questions, pleas for sound reasons on why they should follow us and not communism.

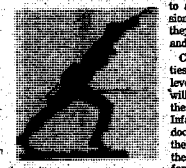
Do Reds Remember United States Aid in 1921?

The Soviet Union has just celebrated the 44th anniversary of the beginning of the Bolshevik Revolution. Two generations of Russians have grown up under the Communist system, taught that it is the best of all possible systems and must inevitably triumph over "decadent" capitalism.

There are, of course, great yawning gaps and fissures in the education of the Russian under communism. History is warped and perverted to serve the ends of his masters. It is unlikely that in studying the sequence of violent, bloody events in which the Soviet state was born, this Russian is aware of America's unselfish humanitarian effort which, exactly 40 years ago, save some 20 million of his countrymen from starvation.

The official Communist line is that American and British "imperialists" sought to undermine the fledgling Bolshevist state. The true fact is — as former President Herbert Hoover demonstrates in the third volume of his history of American relief during and after WWI, An American Epic — the Communist regime might well have toppled in the great famine of 1921-22 had not this country undertaken a massive program to alleviate human suffering.

Does Ivan know this? Probably not — unless he heard about it from people who lived through those famine years — because it doesn't serve the purpose of the men in the Kremlin to foster the image of an America quick to answer the appeal of starving humanity.



Yet the fact is that Americans, throught charitable and religious organizations, sent the Russians upwards of $80 million worth of food and medical supplies. For two winters our supplies meant the difference between life and death for some six million Russian children and 14 million adults in a vast area of the Ukraine and the Volga Valley. And the record shows that what Mr. Hoover calls the "great enterprise in American compassion" actually was carried out despite harassment and obstruction by the Soviet government.

It is all there in the record, even if few of the Russian people ever have access to the true story. Mr. Hoover, who served as American Relief Administrator, says he believed at the time that there was "a remote possibility that a generous action by a free people might have some moderating influence upon the bloody regime in the Kremlin."

We as Americans can point with pride to this chapter in our traditional history of generous giving. In the words of our ex-President, "Our consciences told us that we had to do the best we could where 20 million people were about to die."

Corps of Engineers Helps Train Infantry Students

Gen. Surles' Infantry School Report

In World War II and Korea, the close, effective Infantry-Engineer teamwork wrote a history of success in battle from North Africa to Normandy and Berlin, from New Guinea to Tokyo, and from Pusan to the Yalu River.

The blood-brother kinship in battle between the Infantryman and the Engineer, the teamwork, and resultant success will continue through any future conflict.

The Corps of Engineers, one of the few branches which is both a combat arm and a technical service, is represented at the Infantry School by seven officers and six noncommissioned officers of the Engineer Committee.

Acting under the direction of the Associate Arms Group in the Command and Staff Department, this committee demonstrates to over 11,000 students annually not only what Engineer units can do to assist them in their missions but also teaches what they can do for themselves and how to do it.

Concentrating their activities on that organizational level at which most students will soon find themselves, the committee brings to the Infantry student the latest doctrine and developments of the Engineers as applied to the battle group and the Infantry Division.

Besides individual instruction in various techniques, the committee participates in the preparation of integrated tactical problems, inserting sufficient situations involving Engineer units and methods to ensure that the student has a good working knowledge of Engineer employment.

In addition to lectures and demonstrations, individual participation is stressed. In many classes, the Infantry students themselves practice the techniques which they will later use or teach to their units. It is in these practical exercises that the NCO's of the committee are invaluable.

MSgt Frank C. Kawalek, for example, first shows the students basic techniques in constructing a barbed wire entanglement, then forms students into teams to erect a sample of the wire obstacles which will later protect their tactical defense positions.

MSgt Homer B. Hatley guides the students through a display of field shelters and emplacements, pointing out how each can protect the Infantryman with materials at hand, then shows them the tools available in the battle group to use in this construction.

These are parts of the fields fortifications classes taught by Capt. James H. Phillips and Major Alexander C. Page to nearly all classes. The obstacles shown in these classes give the student a vivid picture of those they will employ later in Lt. Col. Albert E. Pokorny's class in Barrier Planning.

The demolitions classes probably arouse as much student interest as any, since it is here the student, with a natural wariness of explosives, actually makes up his own explosive charges, then detonates them. With the size of the classes and the stringent safety precautions, these problems require the full Engineer Committee when they are presented.

MSgt William M. Brooks and Sfc Frank L. Bevan double as both demonstrators and Safety NCO's — not responsibilities to be taken lightly. As important as the ability to make up an explosive charge is knowing where and when to use it and how much explosive should be used. This, along with improvised mines and grenades, is demonstrated by Major Bernard Turkis at the Kings Pond Site.

River Crossing Expeditions also attract a lot of attention when shown in combination with standard equipment on the Upatoi Creek at Eiler Hall; where, as an example, a field expedient such as a bundle of brush wrapped in a truck top becomes a raft.

All of these things bring home to the Infantry students — Officer, Officer Candidate, or Ranger — an appreciation of how they can use their Engineer support and what to expect of them, and what the Infantryman must do to help himself and how to do it.

UPATOI CREEK . . . is one of the crossing sites used by the Engineer Committee to demonstrate river crossing techniques to Infantry students. The support troops, 72d Engineer Company, have spanned this 200-foot water obstacle in two minutes 54 seconds.

He Pushes Plunger ← and Dante's Inferno! →

SFC FRANK L. BEVAN . . . tells student officers that explosives will reduce the required "pick and shovel" work when constructing field fortifications.

FOLLOWING . . . "Fire in the Hole," 2nd Lt. William Franklin (L) and 2d Lt. Thomas C. Hamilton (R) pull firing pins of nonelectric primers they have prepared and placed in firing pit. Sgt. Franklin Morrison (2d from L) and M-Sgt. Homer B. Hatley, Safety NCO, observe action of students.

Forbenteta

Donna Davis And Kay Jones

Celebrations are now over, but we would like to make the last wish for the very best New Year to all of our readers. The past 12 months have been filled with many incidents —some are fond, others are simply remembered as space fillers. Yes, we're sure that each of us will remember 1961 in some way.

The holiday season has kept Fort Benning swinging, to say the least. Parties were held almost nightly during the two weeks as Benningites relaxed from the strain of school work. The TWIST added quite a spectacular taste to the style on the dance floor as exhausted dancers panted and limped from the dance floor. More power to the Peppermint Lounge and its regulars.

Sigma Delta Beta had its Christmas Dance at the Main Officers' Club on the 29th. The girls and their dates danced to the dreamy music and soaked in the holiday atmosphere. Jerry Vassar, sorority president, received a gold gavel engraved with these words—"I hate arguments." The sorority sisters hope this will solve their problems.

With the coming year, Benningites are turning over new leaves. Some of them are very interesting, as we think you'll agree.

Bonnie Boyle resolves to find some hair-do that will please everyone.

Maty Mike Magner is determined to smile more.

Bonnie Male plans to stay home at least one day a week from school. Good idea, don't you agree?

Jack Jackson resolves to graduate this year. Good luck, Jack!

Kathy Anre is going to keep track of every cent she spends.

Joe Bruce plans to be a good boy.

Galle McClain says, "I've decided not to make any resolutions because I know that I'd only break them." Morepower to you, Gaile.

Mary Beth Williams resolves never to be the chairman for the JADA Christmas Ball again. While she says this, let us say that she did a marvelous job.

Dallas Patterson swears he'll never go to the JADA Ball with the chairman.

Doris Collins plans to be more cheerful and study harder. Doris, we hope that you can do these at the same time. If you find a way that works, we'll be glad to publish it.

Greg Franklin resolves to make straight F's next six weeks. We hope that Gaile's reasoning works for you, Greg.

We're keeping our fingers crossed for Carlyle Park. He resolves to pass physics.

Roger Weis plans to hunt only on the weekends from now on.

Carol Hoffman plans to study harder. We're behind you all the way.

Buzz Healy is going all French. — Period.

Henry Bolton's resolution is commendable. We'll leave it with you, Henry.

Vic Brown isn't going to hold his breath while he waits for that letter from Henry.

Cheryl Ely says that she isn't going to act silly.

Gail Brophey is determined to make the honor roll. Our wishes are behind you.

Connie and Johnny Swearingen are still undecided. Maybe they are satisfied with things as they are.

I, Kay Jones, sincerely resolved to begin FORBENTETA sooner than twelve hours before its deadline. (Amen, brother, amen: Editor)

Georgeanne Cain resolves to learn the TWIST. Take it slow, Georgeanne.

Walter Todd is keeping his resolutions locked within himself. Maybe this is the best way.

Chris Youngs is determined to organize an anti-boys club. Chris, you already have some people interested in joining.

These are a few of the new leaves that are being turned over by Benningites. Whether they'll make 1962 a better year remains to be seen. Who can say what is to be?

CLEAN SHADES

"Laundering" washable window shades should be a regular part of every housekeeping schedule. The method is to sponge both sides with soap or detergent suds.

Woman's Club Shares Xmas

The Woman's Club of Fort Benning is sharing Christmas with the children of the Little Wanderers' Orphanage, a project of Detachment L Military Advisory Group in Korea.

Brig. Gen. L. A. Walsh, Jr., who left Fort Benning in June to become senior adviser to the ROK Army, requested help from the Woman's Club to establish a home for the homeless children in that area.

A check for $200 was forwarded to Gen. Walsh, which was used to provide winter clothing for the children.

YANK SLATE RELEASED

The New York Yankees have scheduled 24 night games and 2 double headers for the 1962 season. They will open their 162-game schedule at home against the Baltimore Orioles on April 10.

Recent Ceremonies Honor Several Volunteers That Work at MAH

Forty - eight volunteer workers at Fort Benning's Martin Army Hospital received caps and service pins in ceremonies recently in the Red Cross Recreation Hall.

Lt. Col. Miriam Schaupp, chief nurse at the hospital, capped 18 Gray Ladies, 19 Nurse's Aides and 11 Staff Aides who successfully completed training for volunteer service.

Mrs. Ben Harrell pinned emblems on each graduate as she was capped. Mrs. Harrell is honorary chairman of Volunteer Services for the post.

Col. William A. Todd, Jr., hospital commander, introduced the guest speaker, Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly, deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center.

Certificates of appreciation for 200 or more hours of service to the hospital this year were presented to 14 ladies, whose combined record is 5,302 hours. The certificates were presented by Henry D. Tuberville, executive director of the Muscogee County Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Forty - six workers received chevrons representing from one to eight years of volunteer service.

Honor guests at the ceremony included Mrs. Harrell, Gen. and Mrs. Kelly, I. W. Gregory, chairman of the Muscogee County Chapter, and Miss Ruth Kennedy, Red Cross field representative.

Presiding at the capping ceremony was Mrs. Robin Montgomery, chairman of Volunteer Services at Fort Benning.

Chaplain (Major) James Blunk, hospital chaplain, gave the invocation and pronounced the benediction.

During a reception following the ceremony, background music was furnished by MSgt. Frank Harding, chief clerk in The Infantry Center Caplain Section.

GRAY LADY . . . Capped and pinned with the emblem of a Gray Lady in recent ceremonies at Fort Benning's Martin Army Hospital is Mrs. Oliver H. Aspinwall, left, one of 48 volunteers qualifying as Gray Ladies, Nurse's Aides and Staff Aides. Left to right are Mrs. Aspinwall, Lt. Col. Miriam C. Schaupp, chief nurse, who capped the graduates, and Mrs. Ben Harrell, who pinned on the emblems. Mrs. Harrell is honorary chairman of Volunteer Services on the post.

PRESENTS CHECK . . . Mrs. A. D. Surles, Jr., Distaff Foundation chairman for Fort Benning, presents a check for $1,506, the proceeds from the annual Distaff Dinner Dance sponsored by the Woman's Club of the post, to Major Gen. Ben Harrell, commander of The Infantry Center. The Army Distaff Hall for widows of Army officers is scheduled to open in January in Washington D. C.

Utah Mule Deer Kill Tops U. S.

Utah's 1960 mule deer take was highest in the nation.

Hunters in the Beehive State killed 130,945 deer that year.

Colorado ranked second in the recent harvest report released by the U.S. Department of Interior which listed deer kill by states for 1960.

Top 1961 Army Stories Concerned Reserves Call

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The news that gained the most attention both in the Army and outside it was the fall callup of Reverse and National Guard personnel.

President Kennedy first proposed the military buildup on July 25 in the face of increasing Soviet pressure in Berlin and elsewhere. His plan allowed the Army an increase from 870,000 to 1,008,000 in personnel strength alone.

Eight combat-ready divisions were to be ready for duty in the United States by the end of the year. Two of these — the 49th Armd. Div. (Texas) and the 32nd Inf. Div. (Wisconsin) — were National Guard units ordered to active duty Oct. 15.

In preparation for the strength increase, the Army added to its training facilities by expanding such bases as Ft. Gordon, Ga. and Ft. Lewis, Wash., and reactivating Ft. Polk, La., Ft. Chaffee, Ark. and Camp Irwin, Calif.

In the missile field during 1961, the Army achieved considerable success in test firings of the field-support Pershing and the Nike - Zeus anti-missile missile. Another missile, the Hawk, demonstrated its versatility by intercepting and destroying a Corporal ballistic missile—in flight.

The year 1961 saw the Army's air defense program bolstered by the introduction of a transistorized coordination system called Battery Integration and Radar Display Equipment (BIRDIE), which zeros in Nike - Ajax and Nike - Hercules fire on approaching aircraft.

Conventional weapons also made news in 1961. By the end of the year, the new, fast - firing M-14 rifle had been issued to the 101st Abn. Div. and to combat elements of the Seventh Army. M-60 machine guns were also being issued, while M-60 tanks and M-113 personnel carriers were soon to be delivered.

The military buildup, for- many soldiers, meant extensions of overseas tours and of certain enlistments. By the middle of October, some 40,000 Army troops were in Europe augmenting forces already there.

October also brought an order stopping all travel of dependents to Europe at government expense.

The soldier in the field will benefit from three items developed by the Army during 1961: the first mobile radar set for combat use; a new anti-tank rocket grenade fired from its own disposable packing container; and an all-purpose survival food packet for use in any part of the world.

'Change' Keynotes Eventful 1961

By Peter Tatistcheff

1961 was a year of change for the 2nd Infantry Division—change in commanding generals and change in mission — in what proved to be a year of high accomplishment.

Five generals commanded the 2nd Infantry Division during the past year. Major General Frederick W. Gibb, who commanded during the opening days of 1961, began his assignment at commander of the "Indianhead" division on December 4, 1959.

ADC Commands

Following an illness during which time the division was headed by its assistant division commander, Brigadier General William L. Hardick, General Gibb announced his retirement on June 1.

General Hardick, who had been serving as the division's commanding general during General Gibb's illness, became commanding general for the remainder of June.

Second Division units gathered at Wetherby Field June 24 for a retirement ceremony bidding goodbye to their second 1961 commanding general. General Hardick, formally retired from active service June 30 after more than 30 years active Federal Service.

Next to assume command of the 2nd Division was Brigadier General Charles H. White, Jr., who returned to the United States from Greece in February 1960 and assumed command of the 2nd Division Artillery in March of the same year.

July 1961 saw him as the Second's commanding general.

Once again the division's commanding general was changed as General White was reassigned to the U. S. Army Element, Continental Air Defense Command effective in September.

General White remained long enough to brief the incoming temporary commander, Brigadier General Royal Reynolds, Jr., who arrived from a previous assignment as Deputy Chief of the Military Assistance Advisory Group in Spain.

General Reynolds, who had actually been assigned as the 2nd's assistant division commander, headed the unit until the arrival of Major General Charles H. Chase.

General Reynolds was born in San Francisco, California, graduating from the United States Military Academy in 1933.

Latest Commander

A miniature review August 15 honored the division's current commanding general, Major General Chase. At this time General Reynolds presented the 2nd Infantry Division colors to General Chase, who arrived to the division from his previous assignment as Chief of the Military Assistance Advisory Group in Cambodia. He is a 1933 graduate of the United States Military Academy.

Prior to the arrival of General Chase and General Reynolds, the division's training mission halted and what was considered the most important event for the division in 1961 took place. The division was ordered to get "Combat-Ready."

As the division's ranks approached its complete Table of Organization and Equipment the Intensified Combat Training Program was started. It was designed to bring this division to a combat-ready status in a minimum of time.

The program was climaxed by a full division-size field training exercise November 17-22.

Through articles in national newspapers and periodicals the 2nd Division received nationwide publicity focused upon its provocative intensified training.

The division's accomplishments provoked such remarks as "this is strength, not paper" — this comment being made by Jerry Greene, military editor for the New York Daily News.

Change

Despite the continuous atmosphere of change which characterized the 2nd Infantry Division during 1961, its officers and men maintained an admirable record of participation in Army and local events.

Notable among the list of Army events were two exercises —"Lucky Footrot" and "Swift Strike." One hundred and thirty-six members of the division participated in the Personnel of the 2nd Infantry Division appeared to be headed toward a fatality-free holiday period this week.

Lieutenant Carl Melton, safety officer for the Indianhead division, said Wednesday no fatalities had been reported to his office.

Prior to the holidays, a special effort was made to make each man aware of traditional holiday hazards whether he took leave or remained in his quarters.

Safety reminders were placed on unit bulletin boards, mandatory classes on safety were held and further attention was called to the dangers of the holiday in radio announcements and newspaper articles.

Csanyi, Henderson, Pugh Return To Benning in 'Rolling Along'

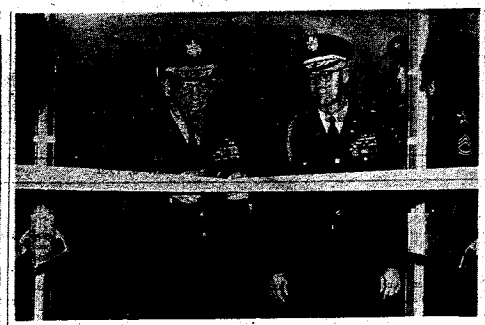
When the Army's "Rolling Along" show rolls into Fort Benning next week it'll mean homecoming for three 2nd Division members of the troupe.

Specialist Four David Csanyi, the show's featured artist, should have an especially attentive audience among one-time barracks mates when he sings from the stage of Theater Seven at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Csanyi, a tenor who developed his powerful lungs while working during high school days in a Pennsylvania coal mine, is a former 9th Infantry chaplain's assistant and mail clerk.

Helping to provide background music from the orchestra pit will be another ex-Indianhead, Private Joe Henderson, saxophonist. Until joining the "Rolling Along" show, Henderson performed with the 2nd Division Band.

Also appearing with the widely - traveled troupe is Private First Class Ted Pugh, comedian, a former member of the 2nd Division's 1st Infantry.



The "Rolling Along" show, featuring 20 hand-picked entertainers from widely-scattered Army posts, will be stopping at Fort Benning during its tour of Third U. S. Army installations. An east coast tour and an extensive European engagement will follow.

In addition to Tuesday's performance at Theater Seven, the show will be seen at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Main Post Theater.

Admission is free.

Correction

In a front-page photograph last week, the Bayonet erroneously identified the mess hall being visited by Major General Charles H. Chase, commanding general, as that of Combat Support Company, 11th Infantry.

The photograph showed Gen. Chase at the mess hall of Combat Support Company, 1st Infantry.

The Bayonet regrets this error and is glad to make this correction.

Third U. S. Army's fifth annual command post exercise—"Lucky Foxtrot" — held at Fort Gordon, Georgia, in mid-April.

During the period August 6-20, over 200 Second Division officers and men supported the joint Army-Air Force maneuver — Exercise "Swift Strike" — held in North and South Carolina.

Summer training held at Fort Benning demanded the continuous support of many men from the division throughout the summer. A separate company was formed to handle the 2nd Division's participation in Reserve and National Guard summer training support.

Notable on the list of local events which demanded participation by the 2nd Division was the observation in five cities of Armed Forces Week.

Troops and equipment were sent to five Georgia cities — Columbus, Milledgeville, Athens, Sylvester and Albany. A general support platoon of the 2nd Aviation company was sent to Washington D. C. to furnish an aerial firepower demonstration with H-13 helicopters armed with .30 caliber machine guns.

With the division's mission changed, new equipment flowed into the division along with a growing manpower. The Kelley Hill area was brightened by the addition of two new buildings — a new chapel in September and a new gym in October.

The division welcomed visiting generals throughout the year — notably General George H. Decker, General Herbert B. Powell, General Paul D. Adams, Lieutenant General T. J. H. Trapnell and Lieutenant General Paul L. Freeman Jr.

Organization Day 1961 marked the first time at Fort Benning that the 2nd Division had staged a full-division review. Applauded at the Organization Day review was the new "Soldier-of-the-year," Platoon Sergeant Richard B. Alford of the 9th Infantry.

More than 3,000 Second Division Infantrymen watched as the Division Artillery demonstrated its proficiency at supplying firepower to an Infantry Division. Held December 19th, it marked the first time that the 2nd Division Artillery had fired a full firepower demonstration.

A Veterans' Day ceremony was held in Washington, D.C., breaking ground for the addition of two wings to the 2nd Division Memorial. General Chase and Percy Terwilliger, president of the Second "Indianhead" Division Association participated in the ceremony.

These and many more events, changes and accomplishments made 1961 an important year in the history of the 2nd Infantry Division.

Sun Dial, Switch Blade, Gas Mask 'New' Mementoes at Div Museum

Items of interest continue to arrive at the 2nd Infantry Division Museum.

The latest batch of mementoes is from the World War I era, and was donated by Mrs. Andrew M. Parash, Kingston, Pennsylvania.

Among the items given the museum were three compasses, one of the standard type, one combined with a sundial, and a marching compass, designed to sight along the route of march.

Other items include a World War I type switch-blade knife (not an item of issue) carried by an Allied soldier, a British gas mask and a military map indicating positions of units of the 2nd Division during a phase of the Great War.

A complete German gas mask, including different types of filters and carrier, and a brass match-box cover, embossed with the Prussian crown, are among the other items included in the display.

Mrs. Parash is the widow of Lieutenant Andrew M. Parash, 51st Company, 3rd Marine Regiment, 2nd Infantry Division.

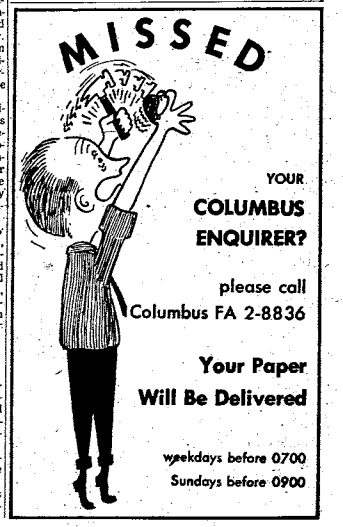
Cook Top Firer At 9th Infantry

By 9th Infantry PIO

After a month of firing on Darby Range, the men of the 9th Infantry have completed their M-1 qualification with the top firer being Specialist Five Fabon J. Henriquez. Henriquez fired a blazing 241 of a possible 250.

The Manchu expert is a member of Combat Support Company, and his duties are those of first cook.

Before coming to the 9th Infantry in January of 1960, Specialist Henriquez was assigned to 542rd Transportation Company in Etain, France.



Specialist Henriquez is a native of San Juan, P. R.

1st Infantry Trying New Firing System

By 1st Inf PIO

A new Pre-Mobilization Proficiency Course, based on the Trainfire Program, is in the experimental stage by the "Always First."

The course, under the direction of Lt. Stephen H. Schor, executive officer of Headquarters Company, is being held on Brinson Firing Range. The future course, if approved by USCONARC, will be used by the Army Reserve and National Guard for the zeroing and qualification of the rifleman with the M-1 and M-14 rifles in place of 20-meter firing.

The course, set up for 1000-inch or 25 meters, is begun with the zeroing of the weapon. The zeroing consists of three shot groups with three rounds fired in each group.

Before the actual proficiency firing, a trial run is made, consisting of a total of 42 rounds.

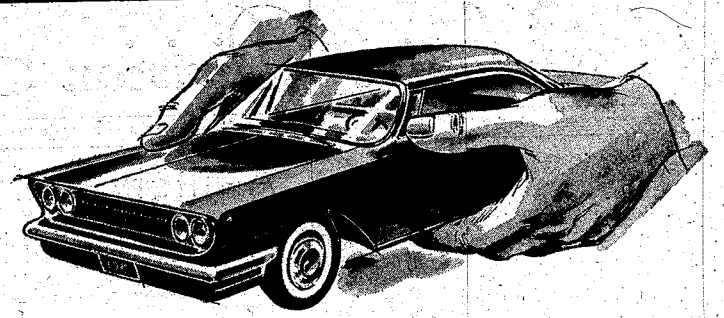
In the actual qualification, firing is begun from the foxhole position. The firer has four minutes to fire four rounds, each round being loaded separately. The prone supported position is then fired, with the same amount of time and rounds being fired.

Following the prone supported comes the kneeling supported, squatting, kneeling, and standing positions. In each position, the firer has 60 seconds to "squeeze off" four rounds.

The firer then has 60 seconds to fire nine rounds, coming from the standing to the prone position. At the completion of the standing to prone position, the firer has 60 seconds to fire nine rounds from the standing to sitting position.

To qualify as an "expert," the firer must make a total of 31 hits. With 20 and 11 hits, a firer would qualify as a "sharpshooter" and "marksman," respectively. The tentative scoring system was the result of a survey run between Trainfire, known-distance and 1000-inch ranges.

Adjutant



Capt Horwedel Major Barbuto's Successor at 9th

By 9th Infantry PIO

The 9th Infantry bade farewell this week to Major Rocco J. Barbuto, the battle group adjutant since last March. The major will report to the XIII United States Army Corps in Boston, Massachusetts, which is his home town as well a new duty station.

Taking over the duties of adjutant will be Captain Alan T. Horwedel, who joined the 9th Infantry last April and took over the duties of the liaison officer. Captain Horwedel holds a bachelor of science degree in military science from West Point. He graduated from the Academy in 1953.

Captain Horwedel, airborne-ranger-qualified, has earned the Expert Infantryman's Badge and the Master Parachutist's Badge during his military service. The new adjutant is married and has two children.

The Key: Point Count

BY JENNI JOHNSON

Lt. Col. and Mrs. William Gordon evaluated the hand below. Col. Gordon, former commander of Division Trains, has left for Viet Nam. The Gordons were enthusiastic party bridge players during the recent year they spent assigned to the 87th Infantry. So it was a special favor to have them take time to analyze this hand before they left. The hand was actually dealt at the ladies of the 87th bridge party held at the home of Mrs. W. Bacon.

The players found it hard to contain themselves with the hands below.

Point count, and accurate interpretation of partner's and opponents' bidding is the key to this hand. No conventions were employed in the bidding, so the bidding was based on point count, length of suit and anticipation of simply what contract could be made. In reviewing the bidding, count the points carefully in each hand above. North, who bravely goes to 6 diamonds, has 16 points. Her partner has indicated 10 points, which is exactly what she has. This is 26 points in the partnership and it takes a lot of distribution in her favor to consider even 5 diamonds, as it takes 28 points for game in minor suit. However, her void in spades is indicative of unusual distribution in the other hands and she can anticipate it to be in her favor up to a 5 diamond bid, but it is unthinkable to bid 6 with a 26 point partnership. The opposition is not vulnerable and there is no justification for bid-

At a recent 13th Transportation Battalion Retreat formation on Knight Field, Master Sergeant William Lowery was awarded the Army Commendation Medal (Second Oak Leaf Cluster).

Lieutenant Colonel Clarence G. Collins, commanding officer, presented the award for Sergeant Lowery's performance of duty while serving as the operations sergeant, center transportation section, U. S. Army Air Defense Center, Fort Bliss, Texas. The citation read in part: "Sergeant Lowery, a highly - motivated, tactful noncommissioned officer, has greatly increased the prestige of all noncommissioned officers by the outstanding examples he set in leadership. His acceptance of responsibilities, planning and supervising are in keeping with the highest tradition of the United States Army."

Sgt. Lowery has completed over 18 years of service, beginning in January 1943 at Fort Belvoir, Virginia. Other duty assignments included: Camp Plauche, Louisiana, Camp Van Buren, Arkansas; Derby, England; Cherbourg, France; Leige, Belgium; Masstricht, Holland; Augsburg and Wurzburg, Germany; Fort Eustis, Virginia, and Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri.

A BOTTLE OF 'OLD SCHOONER' PFC Starr, 23rd Inf., Inspects Work

23rd Infantry's Nautical Artist Does His Best Work in a 'Pinch'

By 23rd Infantry PIO

It's not an uncommon sight to see Private First Class Robert C. Starr, Headquarters Company, 23rd Infantry, in the barracks working on a liquor bottle. However, he's not performing the kind of "work" you might suppose.

Actually, Starr is more concerned with putting things into bottles than in emptying them. His hobby is building ships in glass decanters.

Spare Time

Using his spare time to construct these tiny, glass-encircled vessels, Starr has produced four sailing ships. His latest product is a barkentine, which he constructed inside a "pinch" bottle.

The barkentine represents not only Starr's best work to date, but it also is a dream he hopes will soon come to reality. The craft is an exact replica of the U. S. Coast Guard training ship, "Eagle," and Starr is counting on shipping out on it some day. He has applied for admission to the Coast Guard Academy and is scheduled to begin classes there this fall.

In pursuing his hobby Starr has had to improvise with both his material and tools. He read a book entitled "How to Make Ships in Bottles" and learned what types of equipment he would need. Aside from the bottle he used putty to form the base. A fragment of white pine from an ammunition box was whittled into the shape of the ship's hull, wooden spoons from the Snack Bar were fashioned into masts, and tissue paper was formed into sails. He used "thread, paint and patience" to add realistic touches.

His primary tool is a thin, 18-inch rod with a hook on one end. With this "finger" Starr shapes wet putty into ocean waves and later fixes the hull and masts in place. Starr estimates that each of his four ships has required some 72 hours of work, all done during his off-duty time.

The San Rafael, California, native has been building scale-model boats since he was a small boy. He has been especially fascinated with sail-powered craft, and his handiwork reflects it.

He Enlisted for a Year In '41, Has Stayed 19

By 11th Inf PIO

"After I serve these three years I'll try to decide whether or not I want to make a career of the Army."

That was the tongue-in-cheek comment of Master Sergeant Charles W. Daniels of Headquarters Company, 1st Battle Group, 11th Infantry, after reenlisting for the fifth time in some 19 years and two months of Army service. The battle group motor sergeant was sworn in recently at a ceremony in the office of Colonel John E. Arthur, commander of the 11th Infantry.

Sgt. Daniels initially entered the Army on April 3, 1941, having volunteered for a year's duty. Then came World War II and Sgt. Daniels wasn't discharged until September of 1945. He has served continuously since that time.

Sgt. Daniels, who has been in maintenance work practically all his 19 years in the Army, has been stationed overseas four times since he first took his oath of service in 1941.

Medics Preserve Fighting Strength In an Inf Division's Battle Groups

"Preserving the fighting strength" is the motto of an Infantry battle group's medics when they go to the field with their unit for training.

Taking for example the 9th Infantry medics during the recent division Field Training exercise—

Led by their senior non-commissioned officer, Master Sergeant Michael Ditchko, platoon sergeant in charge of the medics, the men moved out with their battle group to set up their two aid stations.

The Medics' Job

The medics' job is two-fold: to give immediate first aid and to evacuate the wounded.

They establish a forward aid station utilized for immediate first aid and quick evacuation to the rear for further treatment, if necessary. For the 9th Sergeant First Class Ethan C. Robbins is the non-commissioned officer in charge of evacuation.

These aid men administer whatever medication they can to wounded Soldiers and then transport the wounded to the aid stations if the injury is serious enough to require extensive treatment.

Senior aid men man the aid stations along the lines. Senior aid men for the 9th Infantry are Sergeant First Class Hugh Taylor and Specialist Five Albert S. Slivinski.

Carrying their individual weapons, the medics secure their forward and rear aid stations and "preserve the fighting strength" of the battle group's Soldiers.

PX POINTS

The exchange serves active, reserve, and retired military personnel.

The rear aid station is used for further and more extensive treatment of combat casualties. Both stations operate independently of each other and carry enough surgical equipment to perform almost any type of emergency operation required.

Supplies are carried in a surgical instrument kit. This kit contains everything necessary to set up an emergency operating room complete with overhead lighting.

Company Aid

Besides the personnel needed to operate the aid station there are two aid men assigned to each company.

'TIPSY 25' SHARPENS HEARING OF ARTILLERY OBSERVERS
Used Specifically for Ground Surveillance

Arty's Transportable 'Tipsy 25' 'Sees' Troop, Vehicle Movements

BY DIV ARTY PIO

Near the end of World War II, it was discovered that radar could be used effectively as a surveillance device during periods of darkness or poor visibility.

Methods have been devised to adapt many different radars to this use. In every case, two major difficulties were encountered. The equipment was too bulky and too complex to be moved as often as required for this mission, and the equipment had to be withdrawn from its primary mission and therefore was frequently not available.

Ground Surveillance

The AN-TPS 25 radar is one of the first radars designed specifically for ground surveillance that has been issued to troops. The AN-TPS 25 radar is now a part of the equipment authorized Division Artillery's Headquarters and Headquarters Battery.

The "Tipsy 25," as it is commonly called, is a transportable battlefield surveillance radar intended to detect and locate moving ground targets at ranges up to several miles. In normal operations, it is able to locate a moving man up to a range of approximately four miles and a moving vehicle up to the maximum range of the set. This radar set is used to supplement Artillery observer surveillance of the battlefield.

Unlike most other radar sets, the "Tipsy 25" has two means of target indications: visual presentations and audible presentation on a loudspeaker and/or earphones.

Target locations on the "Tipsy 25" are presented in both Polar and Cartesion coordinates counters. This system gives swift accurate locations that are rapidly passed into the intelligence function. It gives an early warning of enemy activity and relates the intensity of this activity. It unveils many troop and vehicle movements which previously would have gone undetected.

— RUDDY DUCK

The ruddy duck, one of the smallest in the waterfield, lays eggs larger than those produced by any other North American duck.

9th's Sgt. Cox, Ex-Sheperd, Earns His Share of Honors

Among those receiving awards at the recent 9th Infantry battle group review was an ex-sheep rancher who certainly is no stranger in the ranks of the "Keep Up the Fire" unit.

Staff Sergeant Dalmer S. Cox — a veteran of 13 years service with the 9th Infantry— was cited at the review by Colonel Clifford P. Hannum, battle group commander, as the 9th's "Soldier-of-the-Month" for October and November.

Forward Observer

Currently on his second tour of duty with the 9th, Sergeant Cox serves as a forward observer with the Combat Support Company's mortar platoon.

Sergeant Cox entered the ranks of the Army in March 1942 after three years of college in his native Vale, South Dakota. After a first hitch of five years, he returned to farming at Vale, where he remained for two years, tending sheep and cattle.

Then Sergeant Cox began to feel the Army "itch".

He reenlisted with the rank of Sergeant First Class and was transferred to Germany as the first sergeant of a heavy mortar company. In 1949 he came "stateside" to the 9th Infantry and was assigned to a heavy mortar company until the 9th shipped to Korea.

In September of 1950, while "dug in" on the banks of the Naktong River defense line, Sergeant Cox was wounded in action and sent back to the states with a Purple Heart and the Combat Infantryman's Badge. He was assigned to Camp Roberts, California, until reassignment to Germany in 1952.

Back to Vale

By 1954, Sergeant Cox returned to shear sheep and stack hay in Vale. For six years he farmed but soon began to miss the thrill of world travel and the deep pride Sergeant Cox feels when serving his country.

After so long an absence he returned with the grade of private and made a second trip to Korea. By June 1961 Sergeant Cox returned to the 9th Infantry, where he has since remained and has attained the grade of staff sergeant.

Sergeant Cox's versatility has made him a well-known figure in the 9th Infantry. His knowledge of current events and military subjects, along with his military appearance and leadership qualities are considered enviable traits by his fellow soldiers.

87th's Tomaka Given Tracks

By 87th Inf PIO

Captain Karl S. Tomaka, the former executive officer assigned to Company A, 87th Infantry was recently promoted to his present rank. The new sets of silver bars were pinned on by commanding officer, Colonel Robert E. Connor.

Captain Tomaka will be leaving the 87th Infantry early next month. A former transportation officer at Fort Story, Va., he will be going to Korea in that capacity in April.

Born near Lackawanna, N.Y., Captain Tomaka got his bachelor of science degree in economics at Canisius College in 1956. His first assignment was at Fort Story as a stevedore officer supervising the delivery of cargo to the North East Atlantic Command (NEAC).

87th's Walls Wins 3 Firsts At Holiday Swimming Meet

By 87th Inf PIO

At the individual holiday swimming meet held recently at the Briant Wells Field House, an 87th Infantry man walked off with most of the honors.

Our man in the 87th was Charles W. Walls, of the weapons platoon of Company C.

Walls was the only competitor from the ranks of the 87th and dominated the meet by capturing three first places and one second place. He was awarded four individual trophies at the final ceremony.

On the first day of competition, Walls placed second to an Olympic swimmer who swam with the Chinese Nationalist team in 1959. The winning time was a blazing 59.3 seconds. Later in the day Walls finished ahead of four others in winning the 400 meter free style with a time of five minutes and 48 seconds.

On the second day, Walls won both the 200 meter free style and the 100 meter back stroke which was the last event of the tournament and one in which Walls does not ordinarily compete.

Second Division sports fans may remember Walls when he won the division swim meet last June by capturing two first places, a second and a third.

Before entering the Army, Walls was a swimming and diving instructor at some of the resort areas near Miami Beach, Fla. His home town is Manchester, New Hampshire. However, he got most of his swimming experience at the University of Miami.

11th Inf Wins Post Holiday Hoop Classic

Defeats CAR No. 1, 35-28, in Finale

By 11th Inf PIO

A hot-shooting Company C of the 11th Infantry posted four straight wins at Briant Wells Field House to net the USAIC Christmas basketball tournament crown.

The 11th Infantry five dropped the Career Officers' Class No. One 35-28 in the final game of the eight-team double elimination tourney.

After a seesaw contest for the first three-quarters of the game, Company C, led by guard Robert Marshall and forward Ronald Pinner, pulled away late for the victory.

In earlier games, "Charlie" Company defeated teams from Company D of the 23rd Infantry, and Company D of the 9th Infantry, besides topping the officers' class in a previous game.

Other members of the winning team were player - coach Newell Owens, Johnny Moses, Carl Hickey Jr., John Crumpton, Bennie Scott, Glen Luse and Frank Williams.

All members of the team as well as the company commander, Captain Richard Rowland, were presented individual USAIC trophies.

2nd Division Basketball Contest Set

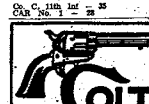
The 2nd Division Basketball Tournament gets underway January 15 when eight teams take to the hardwoods at Kelley Hill gymnasium and Harmony Church field house.

Starting the action at Kelley Hill will be Separate Battalions and the 1st Infantry with the 11th Infantry meeting Division Trains in the second game.

At the Harmony Church field house, the 9th Infantry meets a Division Artillery five in the opener while the 87th Infantry meets the 23rd in the nightcap.

First games start at 6:30 p.m. with the second games scheduled to get underway at 8 p.m.

The tourney is to continue through March 1 and is a double round robin affair.



In the event of a tie for first, second or third place a playoff consisting of one game will be played to determine the team standing. Should such happen, playoffs will be scheduled immediately following league play.

The Division Special Services Officer will be responsible for the assignment of officials, providing game balls and the selection and presentation of awards.

The 2nd Infantry Division Basketball Tournament is a part of the Commanding General's Trophy Sports Program, and the request for points are to be submitted within five duty days after the completion of league play.

The hand will not make 6 of anything. Six spades by west looks possible but her clubs will not set up. When west leads a club, which is inevitable, north will go up with the king, by the second round of clubs if not the first, west must cover with the ace and her clubs won't hold.

Since the bid was not west's, let's go back to north's problem. The lead is the ace of clubs, followed by the ace of hearts and they are down one. Even if the lead is a spade, east's partner's suit, and north can trump in her hand, she can not get around two of the 3 aces out against her. Down one doubled. When all four suits have been bid at the three level and higher, assuming none of those bids are false, a slam cannot be considered with insufficient point count.

9th's Co D Wins BG 'Best Mess'

By 9th Infantry PIO

Delta Company, 9th Infantry, recently won the Manchu unit's Best Mess award for December.

Company D is no stranger in the "best mess" circle. In 1960, Delta was honored with this title nine times in that 12-month period and in 1961 they won it five times.

The man principally responsible for the record compiled by Delta Company is Sergeant First Class Paul A. Phillips, mess steward.

Michigan's 156th Signal Battalion Makes Transition

MSGT. CHARLES A. QUINN

The five companies were lined up in front of their barracks in Fort Benning's pine-studded Harmony Church area, green fatigue uniforms serving as a contrasting backdrop for a sign, lettered in bright orange, which read: "156th Signal Battalion—Michigan National Guard".

Afternoon "Work Call" had sounded, the crackling voices of the units' first sergeants could be heard making company announcements.

"Immediately after this formation all members of this unit will draw protective masks and proper fit assured under supervision of the training officer."

"Several changes have occurred in guard and KP rosters — remember to read the bulletin board at least twice a day."

"The Christmas-New Year's leave policy for this command is as follows . . ."

With a full two months of active duty marked down in its official records, the battalion from Detroit appeared no different from any other organization stationed at The Infantry Center.

Quartered in the area usually reserved for thousands of Dixie Reservists and National Guardsmen who take annual summer training here and fresh from a dinner of baked ham, the Michigan Guardsmen were in the middle of another day.

"Problems?" asked the battalion's Sgt. Major Everette E. Bailey of Detroit, "sure we got problems."

A veteran Guardsman with 17 years of service behind him, the former Novi police officer pointed to regulations lying on the desk in front of him.

"We're still in a period of transition from operation under National Guard Regulations to Army Regulations which govern operation under active duty status," he said.

As he spoke, Major Fred N. Scott of Farmington, the battalion's commander, entered the headquarters.

A veteran of combat in World War II with a total of 24 years service, Major Scott headed a Detroit construction firm before coming on active duty.

In answer to a query as to whether the battalion found its quarters adequate, the major said the Harmony Church barracks were equal to or better than any occupied during summer training.

"So far as this 'Why active duty' business is concerned," he added, "the battalion held orientation sessions down through platoon level to explain each man's part in a movement dictated by national strategy."

In the orderly room of Company B of Adrian, 1st Sgt. Paul M. Hill, a graduate of The Infantry School's basic airborne course and a qualified paratrooper, viewed the situation from the position of the veteran guardsman.

"This call to active duty came as no surprise to the old-timer for, after all, that is what the Guard is for," he said. He added it did come as a shock to many of the "filler" personnel, individuals ordered to active duty to bring the battalion up to active duty strength.

According to 1st Lt. Robert A. Hagan, commanding Headquarters Company A of Detroit, the battalion has settled down to a steady schedule which includes training in the battalion's technical field of signal communication and in the organization's secondary mission — to fight as Infantry.

His first sergeant, Charles T. McCoombs, formerly employed by a Detroit transportation firm, remarked on the quality of the battalion's "filler" personnel.

The Headquarters first sergeant said he had observed the effects of speedy activation wear off to be replaced by a general buckling down to the job at hand.

"Of course," he said, "we still hear a few growls about having been called up."

He hesitated a moment and then added that National Guard "top-kicks" were no different from their Regular brethren.

"If we don't hear a growl now and then we'd think the men were sick," he grinned.

Company A's 1st Sgt. John W. Schoen of Utica echoed the point that the older Guardsmen had always been oriented on the subject of possible active duty, but younger troops among filler personnel of the battalion were impressed in another way.

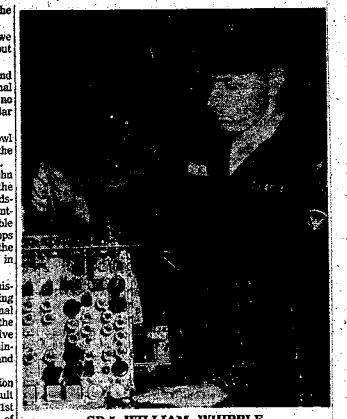
The officers and non-commissioned officers kept steering the subject to the National Guard of the future — how the call-up action and the active duty would effect future training, equipment allowances and personnel strengths.

"It's my personnel opinion that all of this can only result in a better Guard," said 1st Sgt. Marine S. Damvelt of Kalamazoo's Company C.

An employee of Michigan's National Guard, Company C's "first soldier" said analyses of problems which arose from such swift mobilization were sure to bear out need for an even stronger National Guard.

"We of the 156th might sound a little prejudiced in favor of the Guard," he said, "but the battalion's record in the past can do our talking for us."

A product of the "Pentomic" concept of modern warfare, the units of the 156th are proud descendants of Infantry, artillery and armor predecessors.



The battalion's executive officer pointed out most of the organization's officers and old-timer enlisted men have Infantry backgrounds and still have leanings toward their old outfit.

"A large number," Major Chester S. Rarus of East Detroit, said, "were members of the Michigan Guard's 126th Infantry Regiment and the status of the battalion today can be attributed largely to their Infantry backgrounds and dedication to the Guard."

Architects, lawyers, firemen, accountants, chemists, businessmen and government employees, to name a few, the officers and enlisted men of the 156th Signal Battalion are welded by active duty into an even closer knit organization than that which occupied armories of Detroit, Monroe, Adrian and Kalamazoo less than 90 days ago.

Infantry Board Is Testing New Radar Equipment

The Infantry Board is testing a new piece of radar equipment which enables the Infantryman to be aware of personnel and objects which would be out of range of normal vision.

The equipment (the AN-PPS-4) is described by the Infantry Board as ". . . a lightweight, man - portable, partially transistorized radar unit designed primarily for short range terrestrial surveillance."

According to Capt. James W. Bricker, test officer for the project, radar was used by ground forces experimentally as far back as World War II. The equipment used at that time was designed for air use. Results obtained from the use of this equipment were unsatisfactory, he said. However, they were encouraging to the development of special radar units for ground troops, the captain added.

Since 1956 the Infantry Board has been developing and perfecting the present radar sets.

Earlier versions of the sets were powered by generators. This made the unit heavy to carry and noisy to operate.

The equipment now being tested weighs only 57 lbs., including power supply. Because it is powered by a battery, the portability of the set has been greatly increased. This battery also makes the operation silent.

A prototype of the present equipment was approved by the Infantry Board in 1960 after extensive testing. In the near future the sets will be issued to units, according to officials.

The present test project is to make certain that production sets will perform as effectively as the models did.

Capt. Bricker stated that the Infantry Board was faced with a manpower shortage in conducting extensive tests of the equipment in the field. The difficulty was overcome by enlisting the cooperation of the 2nd Infantry Division.

Over 20 men from various units of the division were selected to operate the equipment during field trials.

These men, who will be required to use such equipment in their units in the near future, are receiving valuable training in the use of ground radar for target detection, Capt. Bricker said.

The operator of radar equipment must be highly trained, according to the test officer. The range of the set being used is 80 to 7,000 meters. By listening to tones in his headset, the operator is able to determine the nature of the object picked up by radar and the distance from his position.

When the equipment is put into use by ground units, it will enable the individual fighting man to be aware of enemy personnel or equipment which is too far away to be seen or is obstructed from vision by adverse weather conditions or terrain, the captain explained.

First Five Years

'Troop Leading' Slated For Army Infantry Officers

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Increased "troop leading" is in store for young infantry officers—and they can expect at least the first five years of their career to revolve around it.

Brig. Gen. Harvey J. Jablonsky, the Army's Chief of Infantry Officer Assignments, expressed this view after a recent tour of Army training centers.

"Infantry officers can expect a steady diet of troop leading for at least the first five years of their careers," he said, "and more assignments with troops in succeeding years than has been possible in the past.

"It's good for the individual and for infantry training in general," he added.

This emphasis on more troop duty, the general said, stems from the present buildup of the Army, including expansion of the 11 infantry training centers and opening of more centers—Ft. Carson, Colo.; Ft. Chaffee, Ark.; and Ft. Gordon, Ga.

Gen. Jablonsky explained that career planning has always called for company-level duty during the first three years of an officer's career with subsequent assignments at battalion or regimental level until ordered to the branch career course after a minimum of five years' service.

But strict adherence to this pattern has not been possible to the extent desired by the assignment division, he said, particularly in the case of command.

Primarily to blame for this, he declared, was the shortage of command slots and too early specialization.

Gen. Jablonsky's visit to the Army's infantry centers was to discuss with infantry commanders what they can expect for future assignments, schooling and overall career development.

He noted that the officer assignment directorate places heavy emphasis on the "personal approach" to all problems affecting officer assignments.

"In many cases," he said, "the individual officers find it difficult to get in from the field to see us—although visits to our section average about 4,000 annually—so we get to them as often as funds permit."

Letters written to the infantry officer division average 10,000 each year, he said.

The general said he talked to hundreds of infantry officers on his trip and was impressed with their knowledge of why they were serving.

Reservists' Letter

eral weeks, in the present Berlin crisis especially, many of our citizens have turned their backs on the American way of life. They have shirked their American responsibility by developing or conceding to the idea that the sacrifice for freedom in Berlin and the world is greater than the reward.

"The men of the 111th Signal Company of Greenville, S.C., now serving actively at Fort Benning, Ga., wish to express their faith in the American type of freedom. We desire it for all people everywhere and proudly make our sacrifices that this may become a reality.

"We are amazed and somewhat horrified that many so-called loyal Americans have deluged the national mail and press media with complaints concerning sons, husbands, relatives and friends who have been called to active duty.

"Freedom has been preserved because our forefathers sacrificed. If the rays of freedom are to continue to fall upon the world, we in the present day must render our sacrifices just as our forebearers did at Bunker Hill, Valley Forge, Heartbreak Ridge and many other places."

"These brave men faced truth in the real American tradition. Their "blood, sweat and tears" acted as oil in the lamp of freedom and helped to keep it aglow in the world.

"Today, freedom's call is once more being heard, and we as citizen-soldiers are confident that it can rest well, for America is awake. We call on our fellow Americans to stop this shedding of tears because of their sacrifices. These tears should flow into the lamp of freedom to give strength to its glimmering light.

"Americans should shoulder this burden with pride and face the present challenge as a unified force. By doing so — when all civilians share the burden equally — the load on those called to active duty will be lightened.

"We call on Americans to about-face and lift the lamp of freedom to infinite heights so that its splendor will shine as never before."

No member of the 111th refused to sign the letter, copies of which were sent to Senators Olin D. Johnston and Strom Thurmond, Representative Robert Ashmore of South Carolina; Major Gen. Frank D. Pinckney, Adjutant General of the South Carolina National Guard, and Major Gen. Ben Harrell, Post commander.

The men of the 111th know that the Army's need for increased strength could be met only by the call-up of trained units, such as National Guard and Reserve units.

One man said, "The United States is the leader of the free world today and must be strong enough to combat the threat to its foundations. To maintain the Army's strength, the President had no alternative but to call-up the National Guardsmen and Reservists.

"Increasing the draft would not have provided the Army with adequately trained men. But the Reserve and National Guard units have given the Army many thousands of skilled and experienced soldiers who are ready to do their duty for their country."

Sfc Jack S. Todd, acting first sergeant of the 111th, said, "We just don't agree with the comments that the morale of the National Guards men is low.

"We have men who served in World War II and in the Korean conflict, and we have others who have been in the National Guard for many years. There is no griping among these men because they know their obligations and are fulfilling them when they know the country is in danger.

"Some of our men made sacrifices when they were called to active duty but they haven't complained. This talk about low morale is not true."

Todd lives in Simpsonville, S.C. He has been in the National Guard for 13 years.

First Lt. Robert S. Bruns of Greenville, S. C., executive officer of the 111th, said, "We are proud of our unit. The men realize their duty to the country and don't complain about it. Some of them have suffered hardships but they are not griping."

Lt. Bruns added, "No man in our company refused to sign the letter our unit sent to the President. We want him to know that we are solidly behind the call-up.

"Among all the men of our unit who were called to active duty, one man was deferred so he could complete high school. Five others were released because of health conditions. The fill-ins who replaced them are good soldiers.

"We have had quite a laugh over the unjust complaints by a few disgruntled individuals."

'Digest' and 'Infantry' Salute U. S. Reserves, Guard

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — "They Meet the Needs" is the title of a feature in the January 1962 Army Information Digest telling why particular categories of Reservists were called to active duty to transform strength in Reserves into immediate power for peace.

Also in January, 21 infantry divisions of the Army National Guard are saluted in Infantry magazine, an issue which has both covers decorated with NG division patches.

Infantry is the official publication of The Infantry School. In addition to honoring the NG in its forthcoming issue—several of the articles either concern or were written by NG infantrymen — the magazine continues its current program of publishing the latest infantry tactical doctrine to be effective when the Army's reorganization is complete.

Author of "They Meet the Needs" is Pulitzer Prize winner Mark S. Watson, military correspondent for the Baltimore Sun. Mr. Watson, a WWI veteran, was officer-in-charge of the Stars and Stripes in 1919.

The Sergeant missile is featured in the coming Digest. Two articles, one by Gen. Herbert B. Powell, C. G. of CONARC, and another by Brig. Gen. R. M. Hurst, Deputy C. G. for Ballistic Missiles, Army Ordnance Missile Command, are devoted to the Sergeant.

Among the articles in the January Infantry is a discussion of the art of tracking by spoor (following tracks in snow or soft earth), written by Lt. Col. R. G. P. S. McNamara of the Australian Regular Army.

A Prayer For The New Year

By Chap. (1st Lt.) G. R. Ristau

As we walk into the New Year, grant, O Heavenly Father, that the beauty and peace of the Christmas season may go with us to hallow our daily living. Ignorant of the experiences before us, the joyful and sorrowful alike, we pray that we may begin the year set free from needless fears and anxieties, knowing only that we have Jesus Christ beside us as our guide and sufficiency.

Help us to remember that He is our Light. Let the boundaries of the darkness of sin be pushed back from our lives. And grant that we may not only walk in the Light, but that we may also let it shine to those around us who are in darkness. Then shall they see Thee and come to glorify Thy Name.

Keep us, mindful that He is our strength. Let this strength sustain us not only during the crises of life which shall come this year, but also during the performance of the simple, everyday routine tasks which so often annoy and tire us. Grant that this strength in us may encourage and fortify those who are weak and wavering in faith.

Give us the knowledge that He is the refuge for the whole weary world. Let the Christ Child who found shelter in a Bethlehem stable so cover our lives that we may come nearer and nearer Thy Holy Presence. In the stillness of that shelter, let us hear the cries of distress, yes, even of defiance from those who are outside Thy household. And make our feet swift, our hands willing, our voices clear to further the good tidings of the angel choir, the tidings of Thy great love. Then shall this year be hallowed with the beauty and peace of the Christmas season.

We pray in Jesus' Name. Amen.

The 204th's Co. C Takes A Big Step To Active Duty

BY SFC GEORGE MCBURNEY

From carpentry work, glass grinding, bricklaying and healing sick animals to active Army training here is a long step, but Company C of the 204th Signal Battalion has taken it.

The 204th, a Missouri National Guard unit from Festus, recently called to active duty in the Army's buildup program, has men from many civilian fields of activity.

Today they are here for signal training. And to a man they like it.

Some of the men are veterans of many years of military duty; others are young men with little service. All are well qualified to fulfill their military obligations through the on-the-job training they receive.

"More than half of our men have 10 years or more of service and have re-enlisted at least five times," Capt. Earl D. Aubuchon, commander of Company C, said.

"About 95 per cent of them live in the Festus-Crystal City area and have known each other for many years. Our company is like a big neighborly group of people," he added.

Last October, after receiving orders to report to Fort Benning, the Third Army's vast Infantry training center, Company C began the 730-mile trip. The unit arrived by truck convoy 14 hours later.

Company C, with the addition of a few men from Wisconsin, Indiana and Illinois, is training with the First Infantry Brigade.

Much of the unit's instruction consists of on-the-job training, known as "OJT," which enables the men to learn their jobs by actually working in them. At present 58 men of the company are taking OJT at Fort Benning. At Fort Gordon, 18 men are training, mostly for Army Signal duties. Since Company C arrived in the Third Army area, 13 men have graduated from signal training courses at Fort Gordon.

The length of the training varies with the kind of instruction given.

"Radar repair training requires 33 weeks of study and working on the job," Capt. Aubuchon said. "Other courses take less time to complete."

First Sgt. Edward J. Stoll said, "Through this training, the 204th can provide signal supply and maintenance for a full field Army. You can see that our training pays off."

The company is training for the operation and maintenance of radios, power generators, radar equipment, wire communications, cryptography machines, surveying instruments, electronic devices and all other equipment normally used by an Army signal unit.

The morale of the Festus-Crystal City men is high, like that of other National Guard and Army Reserve units training at Fort Benning.

"Everybody at this post is willing to go out of his way to cooperate with us," Capt. Aubuchon said. "We get all the equipment we need as soon as it's available. We don't have to wait long for it, either. There just isn't anything to complain about."

First Sgt. Stoll added, "Our men are in the unit because they want to be in it. Since they volunteered to join the 204th, they know that being called to active duty is part of their duty requirements."

Company C can boast a father - son team.

The father, Sfc Joseph R. Audiffered, is the unit mess steward. His son, SP4 Robert F., is a cook.

The senior Audiffered has been in military service 17 years. He joined the National Guard unit in 1947 and has been a member of it ever since.

"I come from a military family," he said. "My son works in the mess hall with me. My father was a major in the Mexican Army until he retired in 1939 after 30 years of service."

"I guess I've been in military service so long I can't get away from it," he added. "How do I like being called to active duty? I like it fine. The company's training is interesting and is valuable for the country's defense."

Young Audiffered nodded his assent. A carpenter when not on active Army duty, he joined the company in January, 1957. Asked how he learned to cook, he replied, "The Army taught me — and so did my dad."

SP5 Dennis L. Vineyard, a receiving and requisitioning clerk, was a veterinarian's helper in Festus before his call to active duty.

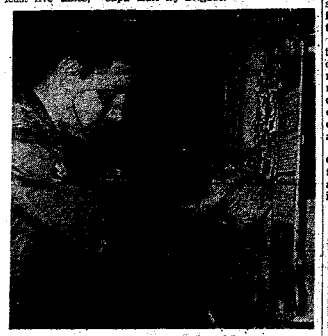
"There is a lot of difference between the two jobs but I like Army duty because I'm learning something new," he said.

Another specialist fifth class, James M. Hill, was a bricklayer in his hometown. Now he is a photo equipment repairman.

"I liked bricklaying but I'm glad to be here with the 204th," he observed. "It's a good company."

The men of Company C are unanimous in their approval of the Army's on-the-job training. SP4 Leonard F. Riebold, a former building contractor, is training in the wire section of the post telephone exchange.

"Among all the Army units I've been assigned to since I entered military service, this company of the 204th is the best," he said. "We are getting excellent training here.



"The Regular Army sergeants of The Infantry Center Signal Section sure know their business. We are learning more from OJT than we would in a school."

The Fort Benning instructors—sergeants and civilians—returned the compliment.

The non-commissioned officer in charge of the post Signal Section field maintenance shop said, "The men of the 204th do every bit as good work as the Regular Army men. They are highly cooperative too."

Civilian instructors in The Infantry Center Ordnance Section agreed the National Guardsmen cooperate well and learn their work quickly. "They are fine soldiers," one civilian employee said.

"We learn our jobs quickly through OJT because experience is the best teacher," SP4 Carl W. Schneider, said.

Engineers Tackle New Dams to Tame More Rivers

U.S. Is Not The Only Country With Ultra-Modern High Dams

Man has grappled rivers since the dawn of history. One of Egypt's fabled pharaohs built a dam across the mighty Nile in the 19th Century B. C. Ancient Romans were busy dam-builders. The Pueblo Indians developed irrigation dams in the Southwest some 800 years ago. Locally, engineers are now working on the Walter George dam near the post.

But it was not until the 20th Century that dam - building achieved prominence as a challenge to the finest engineering skills.

By making it economical to build dams in remote areas, electric power opened the way for such gigantic structures as the Grand Coulee, which contains over seven times as much masonry as the Great Pyramid of Cheops, in Egypt, and the majestic Hoover dam, at 726 feet the highest in the United States.

Before electricity, dams were built for irrigation, flood control, water-storing reservoirs, and channels of navigation. In some ways, early dams rivaled modern counterparts as engineering marvels.

In Ceylon many centuries ago, a reservoir was formed by a manmade dike 11 miles long and 70 feet high, with total volume of 17 million cubic yards of earth. In ancient India, water was impounded behind a manmade barrier stretching 30 miles—and they did it without bulldozers!

Archaeologists have turned evidence that early inhabitants of the Chama River basin — in what is now New Mexico — built a fairly extensive network of small dams and canals to irrigate their fields.

Dams come in all shapes and sizes. Some are squat and long, others high and narrow. Some are arched, some straight, some Z-shaped. Key factors governing a dam's size and shape are location, purpose, and cost.

California's Trinity dam, a 573-foot embankment, is one of the world's highest earthfill dams, and work has started on Oroville dam, near Trinity, which will rise 735 feet to become the highest dam of any type in the United States and the biggest man-made earth project anywhere.

For the sight-seer, high masonry dams like Hoover, the Shasta on California's Sacramento River, and the Bartlett on Arizona's Verde River are most spectacular. High dams originated in Spain three centuries ago. Later, French dambuilders pioneered the designs that whetted world-wide interest in the mammoth structures.

Dam-building in this country entered its modern era in 1902 when Congress passed the Reclamation Act, and such great dams as the Roosevelt in Arizona and the Shoshone in Wyoming were built in early 1900's.

But engineers rewrote their record books several times in the decades to follow, as dambuilding passed important milestones.

In 1927, engineers poured 700,000 cubic yards of concrete across the flood-swept Susquehanna River to shape the mile-long Conowingo dam and harness electricity for Philadelphia 70 miles away. At that time it was the largest power project ever built in one step.

In 1936, the huge Hoover dam tamed the surging Colorado River. This colossus, on the Arizona-Nevada border, surpassed anything ever before attempted in man's unceasing quest to dominate his rivers. It was the highest, biggest, mightiest.

In 1942, new records were set by the Grand Coulee on Washington's Colombia river. Containing 10,600,000 cubic yards of concrete, it was the world's largest masonry structure. Over its spillway could pass 1,000,000 cubic feet of water per second, or five times the normal flow at Niagara Falls.

In other lands, dam-building has picked up momentum since World War II. Italy has just completed the 870-foot Valont dam, highest in the world. India is finishing the 680-foot Bhakra dam. Switzerland is building the massive Grand Dixence dam in the Swiss Alps in the face of incredible obstacles — snow and threat of avalanche limit work to five months a year. When finished in 1966, Grand Dixence will be world's loftiest at 922 feet.

Cream of the 1961 crop of U. S. dams is Rocky Reach, a $273 million hydroelectric project on the Columbia river near Wenatchee, Washington. Out of this huge facility will soon flow 775,000 kilowatts, and eventually over 1,200,000, to help power the Pacific Northwest's wheels of industry.

Youth Activities Club Plays Important Role

By Sfc Bismarck Stith

Fort Benning's YAC Program plays an important role to over 3000 dependents children here.

This well-organized youth activities program is headed by the YAC Board of Governors. They keep the club alive with a soundly planned year round program.

The Board of Governors is under the guidance of Col. Samuel W. Koster, president. The board consists of a chairman of sub-activities; and representatives of each major command on post. Members of the Board are Col. Terrence W. Huck, vice-president; Lt. Col. Albert E. Pokorny, member; Major Rodgers, member; 2nd Lt. John A. Olszewski, custodian, and SMaj Frank C. Plass, member. The sub-activities chairmen are Col. Hubert E. Strange, football; Col. R. B. Martin, Jr., NRA; Lt. Col. J. W. Hofman, swimming; Lt. Col. E. T. O'Donnell, playgrounds; Lt. Col. E. V. Mead, baseball; 1st. Col. Clinton Male, boxing; Major Jerry F. Bradley, Youth Employment Bureau; Major J. P. Doer, golf; Major R. W. Hornbuckle, membership; Chaplain (Capt.) Richard Carty, and Brig. Barracks; Capt. Dion Johnson, fencing; MSgt David E. Lee, bowling; MSgt Charles Pollman, tennis; Mr. Max Spurlin, Athletic Director; Mrs. C. D. Sterner, Girl Scouts; Mr. C. John-Keaney, basketball.

During the year of 1961, it took over 500 volunteers to keep this expanded YAC program active. As 1961 ended the YAC records showed 36 baseball fields were maintained with 44 teams seeing action. There were three football leagues consisting of 18 teams, ages ranging eight through 18. In basketball, 42 teams saw action including four high school girls teams. The YAC is also in charge of the up-keeps of 25 playgrounds for youths throughout the post. Other active activities are boxing, swimming, golf, bowling, fencing, tennis, and archery.

A Youth Employment Bureau is operated through the YAC during the out-of-school season for active members to earn their own spending money.

The records show that a total of 2,065 trophies, patches or scrolls were awarded to YAC members for participating in the sports porgram.

The teenagers of the YAC have their own Teenagers Club Board of Governors which operates from YAC Headquarters. At Brat Barracks they plan all of their entertainment and sponsor their own dances.

Col. Koster congratulated 2nd Lt. John A. Olszewski, YAC custodian and Mr. John V. Szymanski, YAC supply membership clerk on a job well done for helping to make 1961 a successful year in the Youth Activities Program. He also stated that all parents are encouraged to attend the YAC to see what this organization is offering dependents.

Roots of Freedom Are Deep In Time, History Shows Us

"Our Constitution does not copy the laws of neighboring states. We are a pattern to others rather than imitators. Its administration favors the many instead of the few and this is why it is called democracy. . ."

Whose words are these? Were they written by George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, John Adams or some other of the men of vision and lofty purpose who founded our nation?

No, but the framers of our Constitution — some of them excellent classical scholars—undoubtedly were familiar with them. They are the words of the great Greek statesman Pericles who led the government of Athens for 30 years.

"If we look to the laws," said Pericles, "they afford equal justice to all. If we look to social standing, advancement in public life and class considerations are not allowed to interfere with merit, nor does poverty bar the way."

Words 2,500 years old — but they must have been bright in the minds of the delegates to the Constitutional Convention who gathered in Philadelphia in 1787 to frame the great document that would make a nation of 13 disunited states.

"Wealth we employ more for use than for show, and place the real disgrace of poverty not in being poor but in not struggling against it."

This from a man of noble birth who, in 457 B.C., achieved his greatest reform by making it possible for the poor of the Athenian city-state to hold any state office.

The delegates at Philadelphia who argued heatedly all through the sweltering summer of 1787 to resolve their differences — small states understandably wary of the aspirations of the larger states — must also have taken counsel from Pericles' judicious words:

"Instead of looking on discussion as a stumbling block in the way of action, we think it an indispensable preliminary to any wise action at all."

WASHINGTON

MEMORANDUM FOR THE HEADS

OF EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENTS AND AGENCIES

The Federal Service Joint-Crusade provides an opportunity for us in the Federal service to demonstrate again our belief in the dignity and importance of man as an individual. Through the three organizations which conduct this joint campaign -- Radio Free Europe, The American-Korean Foundation and CARE -- each of us can voluntarily contribute to our nation's fight against the fear, poverty and hopelessness which are still the daily expectations of so much of humanity.

The Honorable Eugene M. Zuckert, Secretary of the Air Force, is the Chairman of the Joint Crusade, which will be conducted in the United States concurrently with the National Health Agencies' Campaign during a six-week period early in 1962. I urge your wholehearted, generous response to his able leadership so that the crusade organizations may continue to advance in their vital work.

ISB Message Center Chief Has Driven at Le Mans

By Pfc Bruce N. Yuffee

"There is much more to being a good driver than the average person is aware of," says Sp-5 Thomas Pathanos, Co. A, Infantry School Battalion, The Student Brigade.

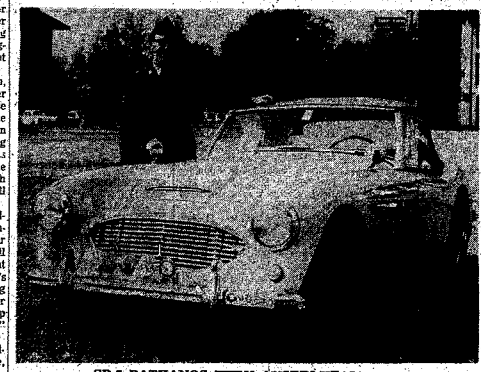
Specialist Pathanos, ISB message center chief, receives great pleasure and satisfaction from a most common, but least perfected accomplishment, the art of driving.

Now the owner of a swift 1960 Austin-Healey 3000, Pathanos is most often associated with a Triumph TR-3, which won him the honor of officiating at the 1960 Tuskegee Racing Classic. Sports car enthusiasts in the Fort Benning-Columbus area also remember Pathanos as the TR-3 driver who placed fifth in the grueling Sowega Midnight Rally, a rigorous six-hour test of night driving abilities."

The people of Verdun, France, will also remember the flashy Triumph, whose driver appeared in many of the racing classics in the Verdun area. Sometimes hurtling along at speeds of nearly 100 miles per hour in these races, he consistently placed high in both the Triumph 3 and overall class competition.

"The maneuvering and handling of a car on a course consisting of many turns is a far greater test of a driver's skill than a completely straight course in which the driver's main concern is in depressing the accelerator to the floor board and forcing the top speed out of the machine," Pathanos said.

The Gymkhana which is almost wholly an obstacle race, is another event in which Pathanos proved his ability in handling a vehicle. After a running sprint to their cars, the drivers shoot down a short straightaway to encounter a number of erratic turns, and other obstacles.



A subscriber to practically every piece of literature published on racing and driving, combined with his practical knowledge in handling an automobile has earned Pathanos the respect and admiration of all sports car fans who have come in contact with the mild manner and level headed man.

A member of no less than five European and American sports car associations, Pathanos is always up to date with the latest developments in the sports car field.

His unblemished driving record is a clear indication that he "practices what he preaches." Pathanos has been driving for over 19 years, and in that time has never had a speeding or reckless driving ticket, however, he did receive a ticket for illegal parking in Paris, France.

Most all who know Pathanos will agree that he is an authority on the subject of automobiles and their care and handling, so in this light he advises all drivers to remain cool-headed while driving, and to pamper rather than abuse their means of conveyance. Referring to fuel economy, he stated, "drivers should avoid making sudden starts and stops, and if possible to keep a steady speed". As a final word of advice, never drive when tired, or after the drinking of alcoholic beverages.

"A word to the wise should be sufficient, especially in view of the holidays, and the number of drivers that are on the roads. Think before you act, and you may be around for next year's holiday festivities."

Southern Bell Telephone Company Gives Long Distance Area Dialing Information

The Southern Bell Telephone Company has issued a reminder to post personnel of a new system for placing long distance telephone calls. This new system, known as the area code system, enables calls to be placed with a minimum of effort and time.

The United States and Canada are divided into more than 100 telephone areas, each identified by a three-digit area code. A map has been placed in the back of the official Fort Benning telephone directory showing the state and their respective area code divisions.

The current Columbus - Phenix City, telephone directory does not have this map, however the desired area code number may be obtained by calling the long distance operator and requesting this information from her.

Once you have the area code number it should be written down, officials say, and in the future when making long distance calls, simply dial the operator and give her the area code number and the number of the person you are calling.

If the person you are calling lives in the same telephone area you are calling from, tell the operator "Home Area" and the number of the person you wish to speak to, they added.

Eventually, area code numbers and distant telephone numbers will be dialed directly by the individual placing the call. This system is already in effect in many areas.

Strength Buildup Heads List of 1961 Military News Events

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Thousands of men, of the Reserve components leaving homes, jobs and schools to bolster their country's deterrent power; two men, a small chimpanzee and their space capsules; two missiles, one rumbling into the sky from a hole in the ground, the other boiling up into the air from its silent, underwater launching pad: these men and machines made the big news in 1961.

The Reserve and National Guard callup was the biggest. It affected more people personally than any other news event of the year. As 1961 drew to a close, more than 155,000 men of the Army, Navy and Air Force reserve components had been ordered to active duty.

The callup showed the determination of Americans to stand up to Soviet belligerence. National pride had been stirred earlier when Cmdr. Alan B. Shepard rode his space capsule, Freedom 7, above the atmosphere and back to earth. Capt. Virgil I. Grissom soon duplicated Astronaut Shepard's feat, and at the end of November the nation cheered Enos, the chimp, after his two-orbit trip around the earth.

It was a year for missiles as well as men. A Minuteman ICBM, protected from attack in an underground silo, was successful in its first, full-distance flight from a launching pad. The advanced Polaris A-2 missile, with a range of 1,700 miles, was also successful in firings from submerged submarines.

Some of 1961's military news didn't provide the headlines that space shots and callups did. Yet it was equally important to the man in uniform.

That uniform, in fact, was the subject of study by the military in 1961. The result is a near-future standardization of eight items of clothing — from khakis and fatigues to belt buckles and boots — for the separate services.

Other new weapons beside missiles made their appearance. The new M-14 rifle had been issued by year's end to the 101st Abn. Div. and to combat elements of the Seventh Army. Delivery of the new M-160 machine gun was nearly completed, and M-60 tanks and M-113 personnel carriers were on their way.

The year saw the reopening of some military installations, and the closing of others. In March the Defense Department announced it would discontinue or modify operations at 72 bases at home and overseas. But with the coming of the strength buildup, the Army reactivated Ft. Polk, La., and Ft. Chaffee, Ark., and expanded other facilities.

World tension in 1961 centered mainly in West Berlin, resulting in an order, issued in October, stopping all government-sponsored travel of dependents to Europe.

Yet good news for dependents came from the new Advisory Panel on Housing Policy. It recommended, among other things, an increase in on-post family housing construction during FY 1963 and subsequent years.

If West Berlin created tension in 1961, events in Southeast Asia pointed up the need for limited and guerrilla warfare capability. Our limited war effectiveness was increased when the Strategic Army Corps and the Tactical Air Command were combined to form the U.S. Strike Force. Our guerrilla capability was improved by the expansion of the Army's Special Forces.

The services began 1961 with a new Commander-in-Chief, President John F. Kennedy. Besides his inauguration, January saw the swearing in of Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, Army Secretary Elvis J. Stahr Jr., Navy Secretary John B. Connally Jr. and Air Force Secretary Eugene M. Zuckert. Mr. Connally resigned on Dec. 20, and Mr. Fred Korth was named to succeed him.

In May Gen. Curtis E. LeMay was named Air Force Chief of Staff, and in the following month Vice Adm. George W. Anderson became the Navy's new Chief of Naval Operations.

NCOs Hailed For Club Membership

Another "first" has been scored by the 9th Infantry.

Combat Support Company, commanded by Captain Franklin M. Nichols, became the first and only company in the division to have a 100 percent membership in the NCO Club.

At a dinner in the main ballroom of the Sand Hill NCO Club, Combat Support Company celebrated the occasion by having as their honored guests some of the distinguished officers and enlisted personnel of the Manchu unit.

The Surgeon Says:

The 'Strep' Throat Problem

By Captain Leonard F. Greenberg, MC

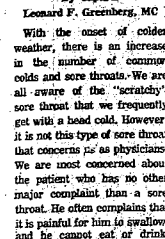
With the onset of colder weather, there is an increase in the number of common colds and sore throats. We are all aware of the "scratchy" sore throat that we frequently get with a head cold. However, it is not this type of sore throat that concerns us as physicians. We are most concerned about the patient who has no other major complaint than a sore throat. He often complains that it is painful for him to swallow, and he cannot eat or drink. This patient usually will have a fever of 100 degrees or more. When we examine him, we find that his throat is red, and his tonsils, if they have not been removed, are often enlarged. Frequently we will see patches of pus on the tonsils or in the throat. Many times the glands in the neck are swollen and quite tender when they are touched. This is the picture of the "strep" throat.

The organism that causes all this discomfort is a small bacteria known as the streptococcus. You will notice that the doctor often swabs your throat with a cotton-tipped applicator when you have a sore throat. This swab is then sent to the Bacteriology laboratory where it is tested for the presence of the "strep" organism. It is not only the fact that "strep" is present that is important, but the type of "strep" is of equal importance. Medically the most important type is known as Group A, Betahemolytic streptococci. When the doctor examines your throat, it is sometimes difficult to determine if your sore throat is due to "strep" or to a virus. When "strep" is present as determined by laboratory tests, treatment is begun with penicillin, or other appropriate antibiotic. However, if it is determined that the sore throat is caused by a virus, these wonder drugs are of little value.

Now why do we consider the "strep" throat to be of such great importance. After an attack of "strep" throat, some patients, usually children, will have an after-effect of the sore throat. This usually occurs several weeks after the onset of the sore throat, and will show up in one of two ways.

First, an inflammation of the kidney may occur. This condition is known as acute glomerulonephritis. Blood is passed in the urine, the blood pressure may become elevated and some degree of kidney failure may occur with this disease. However, with proper treatment, most of these cases clear up without any after effects.

Christmas Decorations Contest Winners Released



The winners of Fort Benning's annual outside Christmas decoration contest for 1961 have been announced.

First place in the headquarters or battle group size unit display was won by the 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade; Second place was captured by the 13th Transportation Battalion, 2nd Infantry Division, and third place went to Headquarters, U. S. Army Infantry Center.

First place in the company size unit display was awarded to the 72nd Engineer Company, 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, second place went to the 41st Company, 4th Student Battalion, The Student Brigade, and the third place winner was Company E, 47th Infantry, 2nd Infantry Division.

The 58th Infantry's winning decoration consisted of a carousel with reindeer on it rotating around a Santa Claus figure. Standing outside and encircling the carousel were several figures looking upon this scene.

The winning contribution of the 72nd Engineers was a nativity scene display, with Mary, Joseph, the Christ Child and the three wise men being depicted. A bulldozer replica on cables drawn to the top of a house, representing a modern version of Santa's sleigh, was also highlight.

Controversial Mr. Whiskers

Two States Claim 'Uncle Sam' Whiskers

Troy, N. Y. claims him for its own, and it has a marker over a grave in Oakwood Cemetery to support the claim. But Merriam, Ind. says it isn't so; that he migrated from New York to Pennsylvania and then to Merriam where he died.

"He" is Sam Wilson, and more than a century after his death the Troy meatpacker is a subject of controversy. One group of New Yorkers wants Congress to recognize him officially as our national symbol — like France's Marianne and Britain's John Bull.

How, in the first place, did Sam Wilson become Uncle Sam? Legend has it that as a meat inspector during the War of 1812 he approved beef supplied by a man named Elbert Anderson.

On each barrel of beef were the initials E.A. — U.S. A teamster is said to have told soldiers near Albany that "the E.A. stands for the man who supplies the meat and the U.S. stands for the man who accepts it — Uncle Sam."

Soon newspapers were referring to "Uncle Sam's teams," "Uncle Sam's payroll" and "Uncle Sam's troops," and the next step was for cartoonists to conceive the lanky gentleman we know today.

Sam Wilson's New York partisans have lobbied vigorously to establish the fact that he died at Troy on July 31, 1854. Two Congressmen from the area introduced a bill in the House to make his grave a national shrine. A Troy delegation brought Thomas I. Gerson, Uncle Sam's biographer, to Washington to state their position.

"Sam Wilson not only inspired the symbol of Uncle Sam," Gerson told a House subcommittee on public lands, "but his own life epitomizes the spirit of American independence. As a small boy in 1770, Sam witnessed the burial of victims of the Boston Massacre. Later he served as a messenger for the Committee of Public Safety, meeting John Hancock, Samuel Adams and many other patriots.

"Sam's father, Edward was one of the 'Indians' who dumped English tea into Boston harbor. Edward also took part in the Battle of Lexington. Sam himself ran away from home at the age of 14 to enlist as a 'service boy' in the American Army in which two of his older brothers also served."

Many Congressmen of both houses looked favorably upon the bill to make Sam Wilson's grave at Troy a national shrine. Not so Illinois' Rep. E. Ross Adair who is of the Merriam group. He succeeded in blocking passage of the bill and, he says, will oppose it in the future.

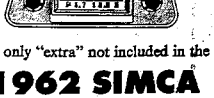
Polaris Enters A-2 Stage; One Year Old

(AFPS)— The Polaris missile, having marked its first birthday, enters the new year with the last of its first generation A-1, 1,200-mile models delivered to the Navy.

The new, longer-range A-2 version, giving submarines an additional 90,000 square miles of maneuvering room, is scheduled for delivery to the fleet in 1962. This 1,500-mile solid propellent missile will expand the range of the Polaris system to cover virtually every inch of the globe.

To date, the Polaris fleet consists of five submarines of the George Washington class; a sixth, the Ethan Allen, the first of the larger class, is slated to become operational early in 1962.

All of the underseas boats to follow the Ethan Allen will be capable of firing the A-2 and also the 2,500-mile A-3, now under development, which President Kennedy has called for by 1964.



When three more of the larger submarines — the Sam Houston, the Thomas Edison and the John Marshall—are deployed in 1962, as scheduled, the Navy will have a total of nine Polaris-armed submersibles. So far, a total of 29 such craft has been approved, and Adm. George W. Anderson Jr., Chief of Naval Operations, has said the Polaris fleet may in time total from 40 to 50.

Saluting the missile's recent birthday, Navy Secretary John B. Connally noted that "In the last 10 consecutive firings from our submerged Polaris submarines, the Navy scored 10 out of 10 perfect shots.

"These shots," he added, "went down range considerably more than 1,200 miles to land squarely on their targets with accuracies that exceeded our expectations by far."

The only "extra" not included in the 1962 SIMCA

Here's what Simca's new low price does include: Heater/defroster, windshield washers and electric wipers, pleated vinyl upholstery and door panels, vinyl roof liner, bumper guards, directional signals, deluxe wheel caps, twin sun visors, vanity mirror, license plate brackets (front and rear), rear license plate light, glare-proof dash, map pocket, instrument panel safety pad, deluxe chrome trim. PLUS all these extra features:
5-Bearing Crankshaft—Gives amazingly smooth, quiet ride by taming vibration.
65-Horsepower Engine—plenty of reserve power.
Exclusive Centrifugal Oil Filter—saves oil, engine wear, money.
12 Month/12,000 Mile Warranty*—same as expensive cars.
And Simca '5' delivers even better mileage than before!
Hard to believe? Sure. So test-drive the 1962 Simca '5'. Come see, feel and hear Simca's great differences for yourself. You'll forget all your old ideas about economy cars!

*Dealer must correct at usual or replace parts defective in material or workmanship in first 12 months or 12,000 miles, whichever comes first. Only tires and normal maintenance items as specified in owner's manual (plugs, condenser, ignition points, filters, etc., are excluded.

General Powell On Post Tuesday

Gen. Herbert B. Powell, CONARC commander, was welcomed to post Tuesday by a 17-gun salute on Chapel Field following his arrival at Lawson Army Airfield.

Gen. Powell reviewed the Infantry Center Honor Guard troops of Company C, 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry. The salute was fired by Battery A, 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, and The Infantry Center Band furnished music for the arrival ceremonies.

Tuesday afternoon the four-star general attended briefings on the status of Army Reserve and National Guard units on active duty at the post, on the Infantry Board, personnel, including Infantry School and especially basic airborne instruction, and on the annual funding program.

Wednesday Gen. Powell visited two National Guard units.

He observed on-the-job training of the 131st Ordnance Company, an Alabama National Guard unit from Oxford, Ala., and viewed field training of the 138th Transportation Company (Light Truck), a Florida National Guard unit from Cocoa.

Gen. Powell formerly served as commandant of The Infantry School and commanding general of The Infantry Center at Fort Benning from August, 1956 to April, 1958.

Col. James B. Leer, CONARC information officer, and Lt. Col. Jess W. Wals, aide-de-camp to Gen. Powell, accompanied the general to the post.

Gen. Powell departed Lawson Army Airfield Wednesday.

MTU Shooters In Match Here

By SSgt Lee LaCombe

United States Army Marksmanship Training Unit (USAMTU) will be out to defend its 1961 team championship in the 1962 National Rifle Association Open Sectional Indoor Pistol tournament.

The tournament will be held here on January 19, 20, 21. There will be approximately 34 participants from USAMTU, including Sfc William Blankenship, International Free Pistol Champion. MSgt Richard Stineman, former USAMTU shooter, will not be back to defend his 1961 individual title.

There will be approximately 155 participants in the match according to Mr. Thomas Kirkman executive officer of the match. Some of the other participating teams are: Lockheed Aircraft Co. of Marietta, Ga., Coast Reserve unit of Atlanta, Marine Recruiting group of Atlanta, Riverbend Gun Club of and the Unit of San Antonio, Texas.

All individuals or teams that are affiliated with the NRA are eligible to compete in the tournament in their region. Any .22 caliber pistol or revolver is eligible to be used in the tournament. The distance will be 50 feet, and the NRA official 50-foot target will be used. There will be four individual matches, one aggregate match, and one team match.

Each contestant that enters the tournament will automatically be entered into the Nation-

'Song of the Infantry' Slated For Display in Fort Benning Museum

A poem, dedicated to Infantrymen, will be given a place of honor in the Infantry Museum here.

Written by Robert L. Hertzman, a Denver attorney, "Song of the Infantry" will be displayed in the museum at the request of Major Gen. Ben Harrell, post commander.

Copyrighted by Hertzman last year, the poem is being studied by the Army Adjutant General's Bands Branch in Washington, D. C., with an eye to having it set to music.

In a letter to Gen. Harrell, Hertzman said he is looking into the possibility of having the poem adopted by the Army as its official battle song if music is written for it.

The poem reads:

"If the Infantryman colorless? Does he lack
The glamour, thrills, the color packed
By services that some might choose?
No! Courage born and bred in strife
Of Infantry in death and life
Is written in these battle hues:
Brown for the dust and dirt he travels through
Black for the mud in which he makes his bed:
Grey for the mist through which he walks his weary way
Metallic tones of iron and

Col. John H. Lattin Named New Troop Command Chief

Col. John H. Lattin has assumed command of the Infantry Center Troop Command, succeeding Lt. Col. Glen A. Soderström, who remains at Troop Command as deputy commander.

The new commander of The Infantry Center's administrative and logistical support troops served during World War II in Burma with the 5332nd Provisional Unit, better known as Merrill's Marauders, from 1943 to 1945.

He later was assigned as personel officer and a battalion commander in the 11th Airborne Division; Army attache to the Republic of China; commander of the 504th Airborne Infantry Regiment, 82nd Airborne Division; deputy chief of staff and chief of staff, XVIII Airborne Corps; chief of the Virginia Military District, and chief of the Army Field Training Team in Turkey.

Col. Lattin is a graduate of the advanced officer's course at The Infantry School, of the Command and General Staff College, Armed Forces Staff College, Strategic Intelligence School, Army Language School and Army War College.

He wears the Master Parachutist Badge and the Chinese Army Master Parachutist's Wings, and he holds a sky diver's license.

An ex-enlisted man, Col. Lattin was originally commissioned at Fort Benning following completion of Infantry Officer Candidate School in 1941.

Col. Raymond Speaks at Rotary Club

Col. Daniel A. Raymond, Army district engineer, Mobile, addressed the Columbus Rotary Club Wednesday in the Ralston Hotel.

The National Fallout Shelter Program was the subject of the talk, according to Col. William A. McKee, Infantry Center chief of staff, who is the club's program chairman for January.

Col. Raymond became district engineer at Mobile July 8. He was graduated from the U. S. Military Academy in 1942 and subsequently received a masters degree in civil engineering from Harvard University.

A member of the Society of American Military Engineers, Col. Raymond has been a member of the Army Corps of Engineers since 1942.

From 1957 to 1960 he served in Korea as commander of the 13th Engineer Combat Battalion and as division engineer and assistant chief of staff, G-3 (plans and operations officer) of the 7th Infantry Division.

Following this assignment, he was deputy district engineer at Okinawa, until he went to the Army War College in August, 1960.

Col. Raymond has been awarded the Bronze Star Medal twice and the Purple Heart once.

Fallout Safety Booklets Issued

Fort Benning recently received 400 booklets issued by the Office of Civil Defense entitled "Fallout Protection; What To Do and Know About Nuclear Attack."

The booklet is a digest of the information that the Department of Defense feels that the American public needs to know about the dangers of thermonuclear attack and what preparations can be made to protect themselves.

We Goofed

Due to an error in typesetting, the 151st Engineer Battalion's total of blood donated to the Red Cross Blood drive was left out.

The 84 Engineers contributed 694 pints of blood in two separate visits and had 763 officers and men volunteer to donate.

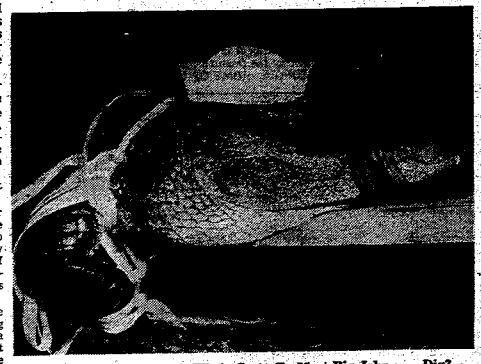
Albert the Alligator Meets Army Rangers, Male Companion. . .Wow!

PENSACOLA, Fla., NAS (AFPS)—Eighteen years is a long time for anyone to stay Navy and then up and leave it. But Albert at the Navy's Pre-Flight School here isn't just anyone. And as for shipping out — to join the Army at an Air Force installation — Albert's got no choice in the matter.



Albert is an alligator, and he's made the school's survival exhibit his lair since 1944 when he checked in as a nine-inch long infant. Today, if the Navy had an alligator recruiting program, Albert would be ideal poster material for it. He's grown to eleven and one-half feet and tips the scales at more than 700 pounds.

Having been viewed by upwards of 15,000 students and visitors each year of his Pensacola tour of duty, Albert is now set to continue his role as an example of what to eat in a jungle survival situation—but under new sponsorship. He's moving to Eglin AFB, Fla., for duty with the Army's Ranger survival exhibit at the base.

This doesn't mean he's deserting the Pre-Flight School entirely. As part of their training, all the fledgling naval aviators take a three-day survival field trip on the Eglin reservation, so Albert will be on hand to give a gaping, toothy welcome to the Pensacola students. Says Marine Corps Maj. C. H. Church, in charge of Pre-Flight survival: "This is not retirement, just a change of duty."

But if Albert the Alligator will always be Albert to the thousands of Navy pilots who trained at Pensacola, now that he's due for a change of scene, "his" secret is out. Albert, says Maj. Church, is really a female.

And that should make life with the Rangers interesting for this longtime Pensacola pet. At Eglin Albert will meet Sgt. Big John, one of the largest male alligators in captivity.

Like, This Is ALBERT, Who's Gone, To Meet Big John . . . Dig?

1st Infantry Brigade Matches Open at McAndrews Range

The 1st Infantry Brigade rifle, pistol and AR matches are now underway. Col. William H. Birdsong Jr., Brigade Commander, fired a perfect V from the 200 yard line to officially open the 1962 program Tuesday morning at McAndrews Range.

Col. Birdsong was introduced by Maj. John L. Kennedy Jr., Brigade S-3. The colonel told the three units entered in the competition (29th Inf, 58th Inf., and 10th Arty) that he was proud of the brigade consistently winning the USAIC Commanding General's Trophy. He also stated that last year's defending champs will be off and running again this year trying to retain their titles. He noted that the Brigade's scores on the matches get increasingly better each year. At the conclusion of his speech, Col. Birdsong awarded the Distinguished Rifleman's medal to Sgt. Hector A. Andujar of Company A, 29th Infantry.

The Rifle Matches were conducted Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday of this week. The 29th Infantry was defending its National Match Course Trophy won in 1961 by its Gold Team and also the Infantry Trophy Match which was won last year by the Blue Team.

Automatic Rifle Matches will be held today and tomorrow January at McAndrews Range. The 58th Infantry will be defending this championship.

The 58th will also be defending its fir- and second place positions in the National Match Pistol Team championship. Pistol Matches will be held January 15 and 16 at Post Pistol Range.

The results of these matches will determine which individuals and teams will represent the 1st Infantry Brigade in the upcoming Infantry Center Matches.

The awards will be furnished by the Rifle and Pistol Club of Fort Benning and the National Rifle Association.

BILLOWING SCARVES

Scarves will be billowing in spring breezes, New York designers promise. Scarves are tied, babushka-fashion, around the head. Long, slim rectangles of scarves tie high on the neck, when suits and coats are collarless. Some designers like cowpoke style handkerchief scarves in colors coordinated with the costume.

Dental Health Week

Questions and Answers

(February 4 through 10 is the 14th annual National Children's Dental Health Week. As part of the observance, the Bayonet, in cooperation with the post dental surgeon, today, begins a series giving typical questions asked about dental health, and the authoritative answers.)

My daughter is two years old and sucks her thumb when she is going to sleep.

Dental and medical authorities generally agree that thumbsucking in the young child in itself is not bad. There is a strong basic instinct in the infant for sucking. This instinct is one of the larger factors in the start of thumb and finger sucking. Because of this, when a young infant starts to thumbsuck after a feeding, the usual suggestion is to prolong the feeding — by using nipples with smaller holes, for example, in the case of bottle-fed babies. A pacifier may be of help in this respect.

Thumbsucking can be harmful when it is practiced (1) vigorously and (2) during the incisors — from the age of about six to nine years. Under these circumstances malocclusion or protruding teeth can result.

My child is six months old and does not have any teeth yet. Is there something wrong with him?

No. Eruption of the first teeth may start as early as the fourth month and as late as the eighth and still be considered normal. Some authorities believe that teeth erupt and are shed earlier in slender children than in stocky children, but even here there are exceptions.

The first teeth to erupt are the lower central incisors. The first molars erupt about the time the child is a year old. All of the 20 deciduous (first) teeth are normally present by the time the child is two and a half or three years old. This is when the first visit to the dentist, for an inspection, should be scheduled.

It should also be noted that eruption of the teeth has no relationship to intelligence, old wives' tales to the contrary.

When the dentist cleans and scales my teeth, doesn't that scrape off enamel? Can't the teeth be damaged this way?

No . . . to both questions. There is no evidence that dental prophylaxis is harmful to the teeth. On the other hand, there is very definite evidence that it is beneficial. Cleaning of the teeth in this way prevents a dangerous accumulation of calculus on the teeth. In this cleaning the most important factor is the careful removal of deposits (sometime called tartar) from around each individual tooth. This is an important measure in preventing periodontal (gum) diseases.

Col. Lennon Commended By Lawyers

A Fort Benning officer was commended by the Columbus Lawyers Club in a resolution adopted at a recent dinner meeting at the Ralston Hotel.

The resolution expressed appreciation to Lt. Col. Daniel A. Lennon, Jr., for assistance rendered the club while he was assigned here.

It read, in part, "He has contributed much, personally and in an official position, to the good relationship which exists between the community of Fort Benning and the community of Columbus."

"During his tour of duty at Fort Benning, he has constantly assisted us in perfecting our program of legal aid to servicemen, and stood ready, willing and able to cooperate with us in every way," the resolution continued.

Col. Lennon has served since September as executive officer of the Infantry Center Staff Judge Advocate Section.

No Post Holiday Fatality

Fort Benning had a death-free traffic record over Christmas and New Year's.

With thousands of post personnel traveling to and from home throughout the nation, not a single Fort Benning soldier was killed in traffic.

More than half the injuries sustained by Fort Benning personnel in all categories of accidents during the year-end period resulted from one accident in which six soldiers were injured in one car. The accident was not caused by their driving error, according to officials.

Inspections of vehicles, intense programs of safety orientations and warnings, and advance planning of schedules and routes of travel are credited with lower accident rates in recent years despite greater speed and a greater number of vehicles encountered in travel during holiday periods.

Safety officials said increased personal interest by all commanders and campaigns aimed at informing everyone of the most common causes of accidents have been responsible for lowering fatalities and injuries in all holiday activities.

Programs at the post which have been successful in the past will be continued, they added, and new policies, wherever they may reduce accidents, will be sought.

DOD Begins Survey On Fallout Aids

NEW YORK (AFPS) — The Department of Defense has initiated the first national fallout shelter survey.

Physical surveys of all buildings, mines, tunnels and any other structures that may be used as shelters against fallout for 50 or more people will be carried out by architect-engineer firms in all 50 states.

Steuart L. Pittman, Assistant Secretary of Defense for Civil Defense, is directing the program. He is also responsible for direct supervision of surveys placed with the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers and the Navy Bureau of Yards and Docks.

Survey teams will go to cities all over the country within a few weeks. By year's end 200 contracts will have been awarded with participating survey teams carrying out the program's first phase.

Phase two will consist of marking acceptable shelters and determining the feasibility and estimated costs of modifying present facilities.

DOD officials believe enough shelters will be identified to protect 50 million people — one quarter of the population —from radioactive fallout.

The Surgeon Says:

Preventive Medicine

By Captain
Leonard F. Greenberg, MC

Most people have heard of Preventive Medicine, but what does it really mean? Its main concern is in the prevention of disease and the maintenance of good health. Fort Benning has a very active program in this respect.

First let us look at the people who make up the Preventive Medicine Division. The chief of the division, who is also known as the Preventive Medicine Officer, is a medical doctor who has had special training in the field of preventive medicine and public health. He works in close association with the commanding officer of the hospital in all matters of your health. He also consults frequently with other specialists in the hospital when a problem in their field arises.

Working in the division of Preventive Medicine is an Entomologist, or a bug specialist. His training in college enables him to identify the bugs and household pests that are everywhere, and to recommend methods to get rid of them. He will recognize when a particular insecticide no longer does its job, and when a different one should be used. Together with the Post Engineer, he works to keep your house free of bugs and pests. The Sanitary Engineer is also a member of the Preventive Medicine team. His training enables him to make sure that the drinking water is safe and pure, and that the sewage and all waste products are disposed of in a sanitary manner. His work also requires close association with the engineers.

The section has a number of Preventive Medicine technicians whose specialized training enable them to recognize health hazards and unsanitary conditions in the many areas that are inspected, and to recommend corrective measures when unsanitary conditions are found. The health nurses, too, are a part of Preventive Medicine.

Two of these nurses are Army Health Nurses and two of them are Public Health Nurses of the Visiting Nurse Society, who are supported by your contribution to the Community Activities Association.

Now let us talk about some of the work that is done by the Preventive Medicine Division. Every place where food is served at Fort Benning, including clubs, snack bars, and beer gardens, is inspected at least once a month, and if an unsanitary condition is found, it is inspected more often. The people in charge of these places are aware of good sanitary practices, and few unsanitary conditions are found. In addition, all barber and beauty shops and theaters are regularly inspected for sanitary conditions. The sanitary fills, where rubbish is dumped daily, is inspected for the presence of health hazards.

The ever familiar dempster-dumpsters are examined regularly for cleanliness, as unclean containers are a good breeding place for flies and other disease carrying insects. A very important inspection which is made each week is that of the post stockade to be certain that the highest health standards are maintained there.

All places where repair work is done such as motor pools and engine shops, and other places where solvents may be used are surveyed for adequate ventilation and the presence of poisonous solvents such as carbon tetrachloride. The air in these places is also examined for deadly carbon monoxide and other toxic fumes which can kill without warning in an inadequately ventilated room or garage.

The sanitary inspection of eating places is not limited to the Fort Benning reservation. Restaurants and snack bars in the area surrounding Fort Benning are surveyed regularly to see that they meet the same standards of sanitation that is required at Fort Benning. Any establishment not meeting these standards is reported to the Armed Forces Disciplinary Control Board, and then to the commanding general for further action.

Inspections do not stop with food. Troop barracks are inspected regularly to see that there is adequate room and ventilation as well as bathroom facilities for each soldier. The barracks are also checked for the presence of undesirable bugs and insects.

Robert E. MacNeal Tells:

How You Can Help Your Country

More than 500,000 American servicemen are on foreign duty today. Another two million Americans will travel overseas in 1962. The men and women in these two groups are potentially our country's most effective instrument in international affairs. Their daily contacts with the citizens of other countries can be decisive in an age when public opinion has such a powerful influence on foreign relations.

Each of us when abroad shares a responsibility for the image foreigners hold of America. By what we say and do, they judge our whole country. Living in their midst, we are America to them. We are just as truly ambassadors representing the United States as are our official emissaries, and if we are to represent it at its best, we too must act and speak intelligently, with friendly tact, and with sympathetic understanding.

Perhaps there was a time when just behaving decently was about all that was expected of us. People of other countries often regarded the light-hearted and free-spending American in their midst as an engaging and humorous specimen. If the American knew little about his own country except how to make a living there and if his understanding of the problems of other countries was almost non-existent, it made no great difference. It created no great admiration for him certainly, but neither did it produce much resentment.

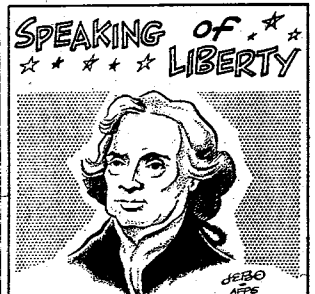
Of course, a few of our thoughtless fellow citizens, freed from the customary restraints of home, have made spectacles of themselves and in the process destroyed some of the tremendous respect which our servicemen of World War II and Korea won for America in their liberation of invaded and oppressed people. Former President Eisenhower once commented that Americans who travel abroad are sometimes shocked to learn what the people of other countries generally think of us. Their opinions may all too often have been formed from the antics of such thoughtless Americans as these.

Today a great deal more than just decent behavior is required of us. America and our democratic way of life are on trial as never before in history. A cold, ruthless enemy blares out to the rest of the world the propaganda that democracy is "decadent" and that the capitalist system "exploits the workingman for the benefit of the privileged few." It tells the nations uncommitted in the East-West struggle that "imperialist America" is a "warmonger" bent on subjugating the weak and extending its power over the entire globe. It boasts that Communism will one day "bury" the United States and that our grandchildren will "enjoy the benefits" of the Communist system.

We know these are lies, of course, but we also know they will be believed if we fail to refute them by our words, our actions and above all by our attitudes. We must ask ourselves, therefore whether, as custodians of the American image abroad, we are doing all we can to win this battle for the minds of men in other countries. On the outcome may depend our very survival.

How, for instance, do we refer to our country — with pride or with vanity? Do we boast of its better living standards and its superior material things — its millions of chrome-trimmed autos, its 21-inch TV sets, its gleaming skyscrapers, its super-highways, its better housing with the bright tiled bathrooms? Do we draw invidious comparisons between these things and those of poorer, less fortunate countries?

We claim democracy is government by the people and that it provides an opportunity for the individual's highest development. If we, the people, then, are the government, are we able to explain the system simply and convincingly? Do we know how our government works, are we acquainted with the major issues of the day, do we know something about the foreign policy of the United States? If not, isn't it just possible that in some of the more internationally-minded countries we may encounter people who know more about us than we know about ourselves? We may, for it has actually happened to more than a few of us.



Above all, what is our attitude toward people of other countries? Do we hold ourselves aloof; or do we try, even if to a very limited extent, to become adjusted to their way of life? Do we indicate an interest in learning their language and something of their history? Do we show an interest in their national sports and other recreational activities, or do we insist that only baseball and football have any real merit as pastimes?

What is our attitude toward living conditions? Are we ready to modify our standards of discomfort to show that we are a flexible, adaptable people? Or are we cool weather advocates assigned to the tropics who complain unceasingly about the heat? Or warm weather devotees assigned to regions in the Arctic Circle who gripe constantly about the cold?

Are we outgoing and friendly and do we exhibit a real sense of give and take? Do we appreciate the fact that we are an aggressive people who "like to get things done" but that the people of other countries often have a different pace, and don't like to be "pushed" in their tasks? Do we realize fully that we may be living among people who have a different temperament, a different religion, a different value system, and a different tempo of life? Finally, do we exhibit that genuine desire to help others that has made Americans, in times past the most admired and loved people in the whole world?

Such are some of the considerations we should give to this important task. How do we rate ourselves? An examination in what has been called "overseasmanship" would be of no less importance than tests we take to qualify for other important tasks. Few responsibilities in our lifetime could be more important than this one. If we are truly proud of America it will be worth the effort to make ourselves effective ambassadors of good will and mutual understanding.

President Says Role of Guards, Reserve Is Great

When President Kennedy, at a recent press conference, saluted the Reservists and National guardsmen who have answered his call for a buildup of service strength, he was speaking for all of us in uniform. The men who have left jobs, families, homes, their families to reinforce us rate our warmest welcome.

As the President said, many of the Reservists and Guardsmen are making a heavy sacrifice at a time when we are not at war. But it is their great role as Americans to be preventive instruments in averting a war that might be tragically disastrous for themselves and the families they have left—the "holocaust" the Chief Executive spoke of.

In a very real sense these citizen soldiers, back in uniform, are helping to shape events in Berlin and Southeast Asia. The buildup of our Armed Forces has encouraged our allies to similarly augment their ground forces to better fulfill their commitment to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. This determined show of strength by the NATO powers could be the important factor in a solution of the Berlin crisis.

That crisis, as Secretary of the Army Stahr has pointed out, was anticipated by the end of this year when, the Soviets said, they would sign a peace treaty with East Germany which could affect the allies' rights in West Berlin. If the crisis is delayed, it is no less a crisis, and our militant insistence on those rights is the best — the only — way of protecting them.

And to this end the Reservist and Guardsman is the key. He symbolizes his country's unwavering will to honor its commitments. He would be ashamed as an American if it did anything less. The buildup of our military manpower is in the national tradition. "To be prepared for war," said George Washington, "is one of the most effective means of preserving peace."

The Voice of Command Must Be Loud and Clear

Gen. Surles' Infantry School Report

"Attack and seize Hill 808!"

"Wilco, Out."

This short cryptic message transmitted by radio from one commander to another put the wheels in motion to seize the important military objective.

In order to command, one must have positive and instantaneous communications. Tactical radios provide the Infantry and Airborne Infantry with this requirement.

The use of radios as a means of communications has become increasingly important during the last 20 years. This fact becomes self-evident when one compares the 14 radios found in the 1943 Infantry Regiment with the 272 radios currently authorized the 1961 Infantry Battle Group.

The Electronics Committee of the Infantry School's Communications Department conducts the only academic course in the United States for Infantry radio mechanics. Personnel attending these courses represent Active, Reserve and National Guard units — the One Army Team.

In order to provide radio mechanics required to support the One Army Team, 14 Infantry Radio Maintenance courses are conducted annually. Each class has approximately 56 students.

The instructors, all qualified Signal Corps field radio repairmen, are trained to perform all echelons of maintenance and are specially selected to meet the stringent requirements of an instructor at the Infantry School.

Senior instructor of the Electronics Committee is MSgt George R. Stoner, who has 18 years of service and experience in the field of radio repair. A typical instructor assigned to the committee is Sfc Naoma B. Reynolds, who has had 22 years of service in Infantry and Signal Corps units.

A commissioned officer is assigned to each class as Faculty Advisor to aid and assist the students in any problems which would affect the student's successful completion of the course.

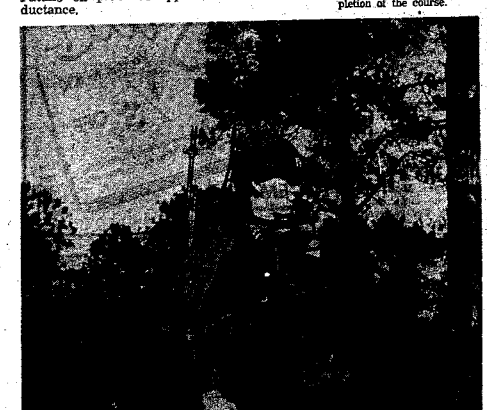
The course is designed to provide the student with formal instruction followed with periods of practical application in the laboratory. Approximately one-half of the course is devoted to the fundamentals of electricity and radio theory; the other half of the course to the application of those principles to actual military radio sets.

After demonstrating a satisfactory proficiency in the fundamentals of radio repair, the student receives the instruction on actual radio sets. Each student is issued a complete tool kit and test equipment similar to that used by his unit.

He is now given detailed instruction on the troubleshooting of specific radio sets organic to the Infantry Battle Group. He is tested on his ability to determine faults in each of these sets.

In addition to receiving instruction on the repair of these radio sets, he is also trained on the maintenance of the Sound Ranging Set AN/TNS-3. During the course he spends 273 hours in practical application on military radios.

Allied officer and enlisted personnel attend this course also. Seven Allied students are enrolled in the current Radio Maintenance Course.



The Communications Department, headed by Col. Hubert E. Strange, exercises direct supervision over the Electronics Committee.

Three Signal Corps officers, headed by Major William R. Tripp, assisted by Capt. Robert B. Cook and 1Lt. Lawrence R. Woodland, are assigned to the committee to render technical supervision and guidance in the preparation and presentation of the course.

Maintenance, the lifeline of communications, is in good hands with an Infantry School trained radio mechanic. This Soldier, properly utilized, will insure that "The Voice of Command" is loud and clear — not the whisper of despair.

Needed Support is Given The Distaff Foundation

By Members of The Woman's Club

The women of Fort Benning have devoted a large part of their time during the past two years to raising funds for the Army Distaff Foundation.

The Foundation is a non-profit, charitable corporation incorporated in the District of Columbus in February, 1959, for the purpose of providing elderly widows and other feminine relatives of Army career officers with housing facilities and other needs.

Over $9,000 has been raised for the charity, with most of the funds coming from the proceeds of the last two annual Distaff Foundation dinner dances. The post chairman for the foundation is Mrs. A. D. Surles, Jr., wife of Brig. Gen. Surles, Assistant Commandant of The Infantry School.

A part of the foundations program will become a reality on January 17, when the Distaff Hall will have its official opening and the 100 women who have already been accepted are expected to be able to move in.

The admission charge to the hall varies from a minimum of $4,000 to a high of $9,000. An efficiency unit with bath and one window will have a monthly service charge that will not exceed $75.

Food will be supplied by a catering firm and special diets may be ordered for residents by their doctors. A monthly charge of $65 for three meals has been set for the first year. These rates are subject to revisions as costs vary and meals may be arranged on a single, two, or three meal basis by the day, week or month.

If a woman is unable to meet the full financial charges, she may apply to the Fellowship Assistance Fund and the Admissions Committee will decide if a particular widow is in need of financial aid.

Woman's Club Diary

Now that the Christmas rush is over, and the last cookies and cake have been duly consumed, you may find that Santa left you with a few extra pounds, which seem to have settled around the middle.

A surefire way to dissolve extra pounds is the Slim 'N Trim classes sponsored by the Woman's Club. Mrs. Neil Stewart, Chairman, will be happy to register you in this popular course which accepts new members each month. For information call Mrs. Stewart at 545-2517.

Other classes which begin before the end of the month include the popular Sewing, Tailoring and Upholstering classes. They are just in time to give both your family and your home a "new look" for the coming spring season. Mrs. Thomas Scovill, 545-1006, will furnish starting dates and registration details on these classes.

Ann Roberts is again conducting both Charm and Modeling classes. The Charm course, which includes points in fashion, appearance, poise and figure control, will be starting on Wednesday evening January 17, Modeling classes will begin, January 16, and be conducted for eight Tuesday evenings. Mrs. B. F. Dobson, MU 9-7340, is chairman.

Fencing classes will also begin this month. Call Mrs. Orville Bohofner, MU 9-3016, for details on this popular sport.

Today's Headwear Has A New Look

A designer of men's headwear, has created a fur topper for winter that, from the standpoint of bulk, will offer the bouffant female hairdo some busy competition.

Called fur fun, the topping is made of raccoon and designed in the hunting cap tradition with a bow in the center of the crown.

For the female taste in headwear the newest boudoir caps look like Oriental turbans or gypsy-like hair coverings.

Many are made of printed floral cotton with a bow on the side.

Report Card...

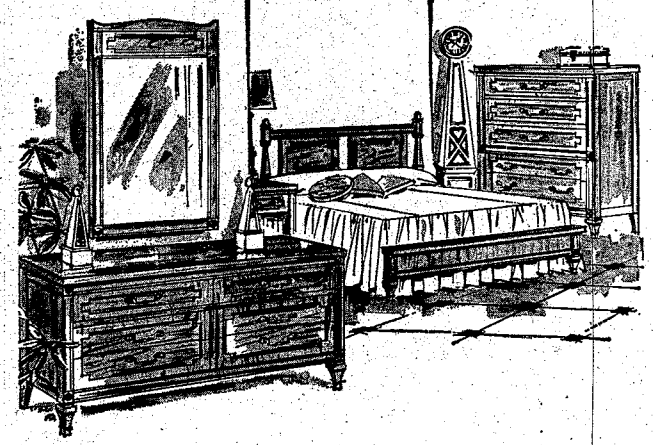
GAILE MCCLAIN, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. John W. McClain, is the subject of todays REPORT CARD. Gaile is one of Fort Bennings more popular teenage girls.

A native of Fort Worth, Texas, Gaile was born March 30, 1944. She has two brothers; John, a Plebe at West Point, and Steve who is a freshman at Columbus High School. Another proud member of the McClain family is "Gus," their two year old dog. After leaving Texas, Gaile has visited many parts of the world. She has lived in Oklahoma, Arkansas, Colorado, the Philippines, Japan, Germany and now Georgia.

After coming to Benning in June 1959, she enrolled in Columbus High School where she is now a senior. Gaile is a member of the Footlighters, which is the school dramatic club. She was also a member of the French Club and several championship sport teams during her sophomore year.

This year she played in the "Powder-Puff" football game as the Puff team's center. She was also elected "A" team captain and referee for the basketball team by her gym class.

While in Germany, Gaile was a member of the Student and Dorm Council, the Pep Club, Future Teachers of America Club, and held positions on the newspaper and annual staff. She also participated in sport activities and played on the USAREUR football team. Not only does Gaile enjoy sports but she also enjoys collecting stuffed animals for a hobby.



Since coming to Benning, Gaile has taken an active part in post activities. She has been a member of the Junior Army Daughters of America (JADA) for the past three years. At present she holds the office of historian and was a member of the 1961 JADA Christmas Court. She is also the vice-president of Brat Barracks, an organization which she has been a member of for the past three years. On Sundays Gaile teaches a third grade Sunday School class, and attends the Main Post Protestant Chapel. She has taken an active part in the Youth Activities Club's (YAC) program, and has played on several sport teams.

This year Gaile's schedule includes government, English, typing, shorthand, and public speaking. Her favorite subject is study hall! Gaile is planning to attend North Texas State College in Denton, and major in education. The reason that she chose this field is that through it she can relay to others the experiences she has gained from traveling.

Gaile's philosophy of life is, "Life to me is like any sport. By the time you learn how to play the game, you are too old to make the team". Her ambition is "to be more than just another addition to the population boom".

Lt. Col. McClain is the commander of the Officer Candidate Battalion and his family resides on Rainbow Avenue. REPORT CARD salutes this popular teenager and knows that she will be successful in all that she undertakes.

Writers League Holds Lunch

Lt. Col. (Ret.) and Mrs. A. T. Stafford, who are leaving for Europe at an early date, were honored at a one o'clock bon voyage luncheon at the Black Angus Restaurant on Friday, December 30th. The luncheon was given by the Armed Forces Writers League of Fort Benning, of which Mrs. Stafford is the retiring president.

Those in attendance, in addition to the honorees, were: Lt. Col. and Mrs. Charles F. Austin, Mr. George Gingell, Capt. John Hook, Chaplain (Lt. Cmdr. Ret.) Roy Le Moines, Mrs. Frank Armstrong, Mrs. R. A. Kohs, Mrs. Paul H. Brown, Mrs. Christopher Burns, Mrs. Tilmon Taylor, Miss Rebecca Porter, and Sfc and Mrs. Lawrence W. Smith.

An engraved silver trivet was presented to Mrs. Stafford with the club's best wishes by the new president, Mrs. Lawrence W. Smith.

Quickly Made Fudge Is Tasty

Rushed for time in meal planning? Make this speedy version of fudge for dessert or snacktime.

In a medium saucepan, combine 1½ cups of sugar with ⅛ teaspoon of salt, 3 tablespoons each of peanut butter and butter or margarine and 7 tablespoons of milk. Bring slowly to a rolling boil, stirring constantly. Cook 1 minute without stirring.

Remove from heat. Let stand until cool. Stir in ¾ cup of quick rolled oats and ¼ teaspoon vanilla. Beat until thickened.

Pour into greased plate and chill until set. Cut into squares and its ready to serve.

LAAC Luncheon

The ladies of the 64th Transportation Company were hostesses for the Lawson Army Aviation Command luncheon held January 3, at the Custer Terrace Branch of The Main Officers Open Mess.

Mrs. Joe Harris, of the Village Beauty Salon, spoke on the styling and tinting of hair. Her models were Mrs. Jerry Wade, Charles Neal, Homer Allison, Max Conner and Gene Dill.

Guests were Mrs. Mildred Schaefer, Zetta Burhae, Henry K. Reed, Jack Kincaid, Howard Stone, O. B. Butler, Orval H. Sheppard and Guy M. Covington.

Door prizes were won by Mrs. Sheppard and Mrs. Reed.

69th Leader Gets Orders To D.C. Area

Lt. Col. Hiestand Ends Third Tour At Fort Benning

By 69th Armor PIO

Lieutenant Colonel Harry H. Hiestand, commanding officer of the 2nd Medium Tank Battalion, 69th Armor, will soon depart the 2nd Infantry Division for assignment to the Washington, D. C. area.

Colonel Hiestand has been with the 69th Armor since July 8, 1960, following his graduation from the 1959-1960 regular course at the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

This was the third tour of General Powell, CONARC CG, Pays Visit to 2nd Division Wed.

The Commanding General of the United States Continental Army Command, General Herbert B. Powell, visited the 2nd Infantry Division Wednesday.

General Powell arrived at division headquarters and was greeted by the acting Division Commander, Brigadier General Royal Reynolds Jr.

General Powell then received a briefing on division activities by General Reynolds.

General Powell, who commanded the Third United States Army from February 1959 to October 1960, visited the 2nd Infantry Division during his tour of Fort Benning.

Commanding General's Sports Trophy Presented 87th

Conqueror Stars Lauded By Brig. Gen. Reynolds

BY 87TH INF PIO

The Commanding General's Sports Trophy was awarded Saturday to the 87th Infantry.

Colonel Robert E. Connor, 87th commander, accepted the three-feet-high trophy from Brigadier General Royal Reynolds Jr., acting as commanding general.

Gen. Reynolds, in speaking to a representative battle group gathering at ceremonies at Kelley Hill's Theater Nine, congratulated the 87th's athletes for their participation in the division's sports program, declaring "There is no substitute for victory."

Col. Connor then commended the men and their units for winning the trophy, a feta accomplished by amassing the most points for successful participation in the summer-fall sports season of 1961. This season encompasses tennis, volleyball, cross-country and flag football play.

The 87th will retain the trophy for six months.

The winter - spring sports schedule will see division teams competing for honors in basketball, indoor volleyball, swimming and bowling.

Points for company - level competition in these events will count heavily in the final standings.

'Foxtrot' Exercise To Begin Tuesday

The 2nd Division will put its tactical experience to a test next week in a Division Command Post Exercise — CPX "Foxtrot."

Scheduled to begin Tuesday, the two-day exercise will follow a format similar to that of CPX "Echo" held last month. Objectives are:

1. To establish and operate division communications nets at normal distances and to minimize processing and transmission time of messages, and

2. To provide all staffs practice in preparation of estimates and orders.

Division Headquarters

Primary emphasis is to be placed on the activities of Division Headquarters and supporting elements. Headquarters participation is to include a Division Tactical Operations Center, Fire Support Control Center, G-1, G-4, G-5, Division

BACKSTAGE SHENANIGANS AT 'ROLLING ALONG' SHOW
Pugh, Left, and Csanyi 'Show Approval' of Henderson's Notes

Fast-Moving 'Rolling Along' Show Finds Appreciative Audience Here

BY DON BAIRD

The Army's "Rolling Along" show, spitting out song, dance and what-have-you with the velocity of a .30 caliber machinegun, rolled into Fort Benning for two performances this week.

And, in a two-hour, rapid-fire display, soldier-civilian audiences intermittently laughed, patted feet and hummed before an entertainment machine that teemed with the champagne of Army talent.

A survey of the program informed the audience that there was no paucity of Third U. S. Army personnel represented. The 2nd Division, with three performers, Fort Bragg with four and Fort Benning with two members of the show's staff, helped to complement the always-receptive troupe.

Ran Gamut

The show amounted to a colorful, well-planned program that ran the gamut from a deeply-sensitive dramatic reading from "Moby Dick" to two-man vaudevillian comedy to abstract dance interpretations.

The show's featured vocalist was blond Dave Csanyi, a tenor who sorted mail for the division's 9th Infantry before joining the globe - trotting troupe. No stranger to the bright lights, the versatile ex-coal miner from Kent, Pennsylvania, was as adept at warbling tunes such as "Young and Foolish" to executing the elaborate choreography.

And there was Joe Henderson, once a 2nd Division bandsman, who was amply displayed as a master instrumentalist. Henderson, who played Las Vegas and other choice night club stints before Army days, was equally at home on the tenor sax, flute or bass. But his virtuosity was probably best shown in his sensitive, saxophone reading of Gershwin's "Summertime."

No one was probably on stage more or changed costumes more often than dancer Ted Pugh, the 2nd Division's third representative. The lithe ex-1st Infantryman earned his money as a member of the swirling terpsichorean entourage and came to the fore as a Shakespearean scholar in a brief lampoon of the poet.

Too numerous to mention were the show's rapid-fire suc-

1st Inf. Man, Ex-Sailor, Helped Save Chinese From Sinking Ship

By 1st Inf PIO

Private First Class Graden H. Smith, Headquarters Company, 1st Infantry, once played a small but important role in the rescue of 130 Chinese.

Prior to joining the U.S. Army, Smith served a hitch with the U.S. Navy aboard a cruiser, the USS HELENA. The Helena was in port at the Philippines taking on provisions when a message was received from the Hoi Wong, a Norwegian vessel. It had hit a reef on its way to Singapore and could not break loose. Waves were reported to have been 15 to 20 feet high, and the passengers' lives were in great danger.

The Helena, with one of the boilers dicassembled for majors overhauls, could not leave port until it was reassembled. The boiler crew, of which Smith was a member, was asked to reassemble the boiler in record time. With maximum team efforts, it was done!

Within minutes after receiving the message, the USS HELENA was speeding toward Subic Bay, Paracel Islands, to pick up her helicopter, plus an additional helicopter and crew assigned to aid in the rescue mission.

At 0630, the USS HELENA sighted the stranded vessel. Attempts to transfer the passengers by boat were futile, and the helicopter crews prepared for the arduous undertaking. Their participation enabled the operation to be completed by 1630, when the last of the passengers was brought aboard the Helena.

While aboard, the guests enjoyed ice cream (a treat which many had never had), movies, cartoons and the warm hospitality of the crew. Their pleasure was amply expressed as they left the ship on the following morning via Hong Kong Ferry . . . a spontaneous round of enthusiastic applause trang through the air.

SGT. HOLTON PROMOTED . . . Staff Sergeant Clarence A. Holton, Headquarters Battery, 27th Artillery, is congratulated by Captain Roy L. Sherrard, S-3, following his promotion to the pay grade of E-6. Sgt. Holton serves as chief computer for the battalion's fire direction center.

23rd Officer Set for TDY To College

By 23rd Infantry PIO

Lieutenant Colonel Richard A. Perkins, deputy commander of the 23rd Infantry, leaves early in January for four months temporary duty to the Command and General Staff College, Ft. Leavenworth, Kansas. Col. Perkins will receive training in the combat phase of the associate course.

During his absence, Col. Perkins' duties will be assumed by the 23rd's executive officer, Lieutenant Colonel John V. Swango. Col. Perkins will return in May. His family will remain at Fort Benning while he attends the college.

Col. Perkins, serving with the 23rd Infantry for the second time, entered the Army in 1942 through the ROTC program at Virginia Polytechnic Institute. He was in the European Theater during World War II. He also has served at the Pentagon, Washington, D. C., and in Hawaii.

Captain Alvarez, Asst. G-2, Retires; Was Agricultural Agent in New Mexico

Captain Theodor P. Alvarez, 2nd Division's assistant G - 2 since February 1960, retired from active duty recently, completing over 20 years' service with the Army.

Captain Alvarez was commissioned in the Reserves December 12, 1939 and served his first tour of duty in 1940 with the 9th Infantry Regiment at Fort Sam Houston, Texas. He received his Regular Army Commission December 24, 1940.

From N. Mexico

A native of Las Cruces, New Mexico, Capt. Alvarez is a graduate of New Mexico State College and holds a bachelor of science degree in agricultural economics.

Following his retirement he will become an assistant field director for the American Red Cross at Fort Benning.

Capt. Alvarez served in the Mediterranean Theater of Operations during World War II and received the Bronze Star, Purple Heart and five campaign ribbons for action in Africa and Italy.

He later saw action in Korea, earning Korean campaign ribbons and the Combat Infantryman's Badge with star.

Following duty from 1940 to 1941 with the 9th Infantry, Captain Alvarez was separated from the Army for less than a year. He returned to service in March 1942 and was separated again in January 1946. In June of 1946 he again returned to active duty, serving with the 38th Infantry Regiment of the 2nd Infantry Division at Fort Carson, Colorado, until January 1947, when he attended the Counter Intelligence Corps school at Fort Holabird, Maryland.

C.I.C.

After graduating from the school, he was assigned to a C.I.C. Detachment in Japan, remaining there until June, 1950.

During the period of August 1950 to April 1951 Captain Alvarez attended the advanced officers' course at the U. S. Army Infantry School, Fort Benning.

In February of 1960 he joined the 2nd Infantry Division's G-2 Section.

Prior to his military career and during his years of separation from the Army, Captain Alvarez was a county agricultural agent in New Mexico.

When the former assistant G-2 assumes his duties with the American Red Cross, he will continue to live at 2460 Wise Street in Columbus with his wife and son Ronald, who is a junior at Columbus High School.

COMMUNICATIONS OPERATIONS EXPLAINED TO IRANIANS
11th's Sgt. Marvin Warren with Lts. Nejati, Amanollakhani

Iranian Officers See 11th Commo Setup

By 11th Inf PIO

Two Iranian Army officers finished a week-long visit to the 1st Battle Group, 11th Infantry, after viewing the communications equipment a modern U.S. Army battle group has to offer.

Guests of the 11th were Lieutenants Ali-Asghar Nejati and Amanollakhani Jr., who arrived in this country Oct. 3 to attend radio repair school at The Infantry Center's communications department.

Communications

Last Thursday they visited the communications platoon of Headquarters Company and the communications room of Company B of the 11th. Later trips were made to Combat Support, Companies A and D and the battle group message center, with an emphasis on communications equipment and procedures.

Capt. Glenn H. Wilson, battle group communications officer, was escort.

The two young Iranian officers will return to Iran on Jan. 19. The trip to the 11th Infantry provided them their first look at Table of Organization and Equipment radio and telephone equipment found in an American infantry unit.

The officers probably will be assigned positions as communications instructors upon their return home.

NEW AIDE
Lt. Putman

Lt W Putman Named Aide To Div. ADC

Lieutenant William Perry Putman, formerly assistant S-3 with the 11th Infantry, recently was named aide-de-camp to Brigadier General Royal Reynolds, Jr., the 2nd Division's assistant division commander.

Lieutenant Putman, whose hometown is Laurens, South Carolina, is a graduate of Laurens High School and Presbyterian College in Clinton, South Carolina, where he was a member of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps.

Presbyterian College

Lt. Putman received a Reserve commission following his 1955 graduation from Presbyterian College and spent approximately 18 weeks with The Infantry School at Fort Benning attending the Basic Infantry Officers' Course.

He was later assigned as Company A commander with the Infantry School Battalion. While a member of this battalion he also served as Company G executive officer and assistant battalion S-1.

In August 1958 he left active duty and returned to Laurens. He was a member of the U.S. Army Reserve while employed by a furniture store in Laurens.

He received his Regular Army commission August 1959 and returned to active duty in September, assigned as a member of the training committee with the 22nd Infantry.

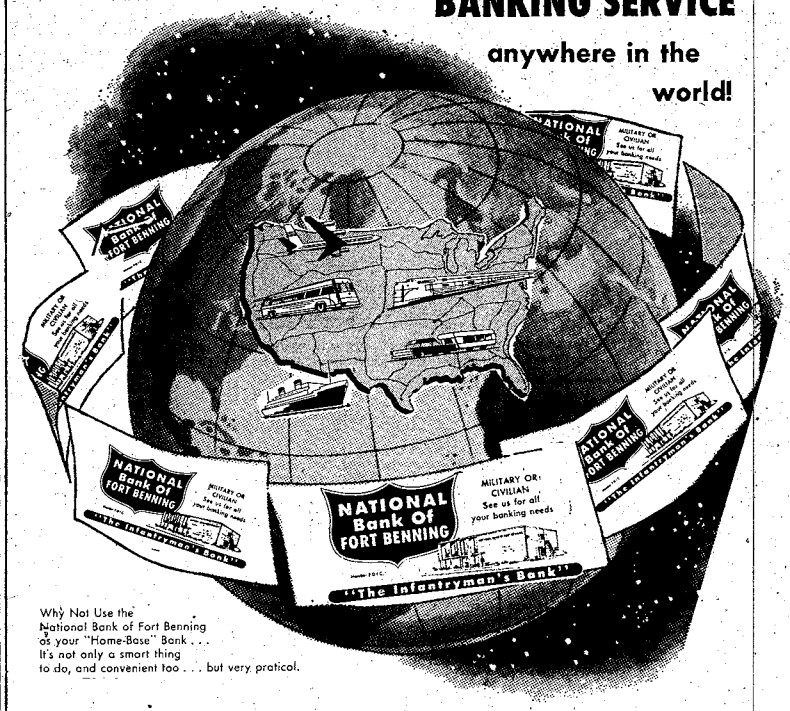
In January 1961 he was assigned to the 11th Infantry as assistant S-1 and later in the year became assistant battle group S-3.

Organist

The new aide-de-camp is an accomplished organist, having played the organ while in college and at the First Presbyterian Church in his hometown, where he was also junior choir director.

His musical experience includes membership in bands while in high school and college.

While at high school, he was elected a member of the Beta Club, a High School Honor Society.



Lt. Putman has been a member of the United States Army Infantry Center Protestant Chapel choir since his first assignment at Fort Benning.

Col. Hannum Hosts 9th For Dance

More than 170 officers and ladies of the 9th Infantry gathered Saturday evening in the Main Ballroom of the Main Officers' Open Mess for the battle group officers' formal dinner and dance.

Hosted by Colonel Clifford P. Hannum, 9th Infantry commander, the assemblage was served a choice of lobster or roast beef dinner.

Presentations

Colonel Hannum made presentations of engraved baby cups to Lieutenant and Mrs. Evan E. Smith, Lieutenant and Mrs. Robert A. Given and Lieutenant and Mrs. Lindell J. Lovellette.

The Colonel also bade farewell to four officers who are receiving new assignments.

The highlight of the evening's events was a skit. The "theater guild" was directed by Major Wendell F. Delamare. "Actors" were Captains Charles R. Latta, Grady F. Webster, Aylwyn D. Williams, Alan J. Francisco, Franklin M. Nichols, William G. Peters, Frank G. Whiteley, Lieutenant Shane N. Soldato and CWO H. M. Owen.

Chaplain James F. Dolan also contributed to the evening's entertainment by singing several Irish tunes and leading the entire group in a sing fest.

Music for dancing was provided by the New Yorkers.

69th First Lady Feted At Farewell Luncheon

Mrs. Harry H. Hiestand, wife of the commanding officer of the 69th Armor, was the guest of honor at a farewell luncheon at the Custer Terrace Officers' Club on January 4.

Hostesses were Mesdames Arno M. Apel, Cecil O. Burbank, Robert C. Culverhouse, Bruce A. Davis, Eugene E. Reardon and William A. Rusher.

A formal centerpiece of pink carnations and snapdragons decorated the luncheon table.

A side table was covered with a hat tree emerging from a hatbox. On the branches of the tree were styrofoam heads wearing appropriate hats to match Mrs. Hiestand's seven major talents.

They included a golf hat with little golf clubs, a Gray Lady cap, a chef's hat, feather duster, and switch for her role as mother and housewife, an artist's beret, an old-fashioned bonnet for her job as chairman of the '49er party, an afternoon hat for the presidents of the Daughters of the United States Army and a gold crown and scepter for being the first lady of the 69th Armor.

87th Ladies Publish Recipes, Hints to Conquer Men and Kitchens

"Kitchen Conquerors" is the title of a cookbook compiled by the ladies of the 87th Infantry.

The men of the 87th inspired the symbol for the cookbook's title page, based on the battle group crest, with the motto Vires Kitchi Vincimus or "We Conquer Men and Kitchens." Needless to say, the men inspired most of the recipes too.

Recipes and Hints

The book consists of contributions from each of the ladies in the categories of drinks, entrees, salads, vegetables, main dishes and deserts. Household hints and recipes by the men are also included.

Three committees worked on the cookbook. In charge of planning were Mrs. H. Steele, Mrs. K. Tomaka, Mrs. W. Bacon, Mrs. R. Sharp; printing — Mrs. R. Comer, Mrs. J. Gritz, Mrs. R. Marley; assembling — Mrs. C. Warren, Mrs. C. Lucky, Mrs. G. Krajack. General chairman was Mrs. D. Johnson.

The ladies have, in this book, a practical souvenir from their tour with the 87th. Complete with waterproof cover, the book cost only a few cents a copy to make.

The ladies of the 87th would like to exchange cookbooks with other units, such as the 11th Infantry, which recently completed a similar project.

Protestant Women of Chapel 3 Meet, Discuss Projects, Hear Bible Study

The Protestant Women of Chapel Three held their December meeting at Chapel Three, Sand Hill.

Mrs. Phillip C. Morgan, president, called the meeting to order. Mrs. Frank C. Schoendorfer gave the devotionals.

Committee reports were given by the following:

Mrs. Bruce A. Davies (Hospitality) presented booklets that will be given to newcomers to interest them in PWOC.

Mrs. Bob E. Murdock (projects) discussed the long range project — The Wycliffe Bible Translators, Inc. In January, children's books will be presented to the pediatric ward at Martin Army Hospital.

Mrs. Robert C. Harllee (program) introduced Chaplain Robert C. Harllee, who gave a Bible study on the Lord's Prayer.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. William E. Garrett and Mrs. Robert C. Smith.

All ladies of the 22rd Infantry, 7th Cavalry and 69th Armor are urged to call Mrs. Bruce A. Davis (544-2617) for further information concerning PWOC of Chapel Three.

The home of Mrs. Charles P. Frinks on Broadmoor Drive in Columbus was the scene of the 7th Cavalry Ladies monthly coffee recently. Mrs. John W. Ames was the co-hostess for the occasion.

Mrs. Harvey Scott, wife of Lieutenant Colonel Scott, squadron commander, welcomed a guest, Mrs. Robert W. Lynch, mother of Mrs. Walter D. Hall, who was visiting from Atlanta. A welcome was also extended to Mrs. Karen Brown, a new bride, wife of Lieutenant Frank O. Brown, Support Platoon leader.

A farewell was said and a card given to Mrs. Richard O. Edwards, wife of Capt. Edwards, formerly commander of Troop A, who departs for an overseas assignment later this month.

Coffee was poured by Mrs. Brown from a table overlaid with a white cloth, with a centerpiece of yellow gladioli and mums. After the coffee hour, plans were made for a squadron "Covered Dish Supper" the ladies of the 7th Cavalry have scheduled for later this month.

Are You Driving Yourself to Death?

By David M. Winkler

Driving an automobile is in itself a great responsibility. However, as the winter months roll around, an additional hazard comes into being. The problem of carbon monoxide poisoning is one that affects more people than are aware of it.

Take the case of the head-on collision involving two cars, killing six people and seriously injuring one.

Witnesses, standing at the side of the road, saw the southbound vehicle swerving on the roadway as it approached them, as if the driver were falling asleep. They watched the vehicle closely, sensing the oncoming disaster, but were unable to do anything about it.

Across Line

As the vehicle approached, it swung across the double white line, dividing the highway, and slammed into a north-bound vehicle. In the north-bound vehicle, a man, his wife, and two of his three children were killed, the other child was in serious condition. Both occupants of the other vehicle were killed.

Moments later, the police were on the scene and began their investigation, hearing the accounts of the witnesses. The officers noticed that the occupants of the south-bound vehicle had pale skin color, yet their lips were unusually red. This indicated carbon monoxide poisoning to them. They then made a careful inspection of the vehicle.

They found a faulty exhaust system; the exhaust pipes from the manifold were rotting and the mufflers were in very bad condition. Medical examination confirmed that death was due to carbon monoxide poisoning.

Carbon monoxide is formed by the incomplete combustion of carbonaceous materials. It is also produced by burning carbon-containing fuel in a deficiency of air or oxygen. Common producers are automobile engines, stoves, furnaces, mine explosions, and burning electrical insulation.

Cause

Carbon monoxide poisoning results from breathing atmospheres containing the gas. Because of its ability to combine with the hemoglobin of the blood, forming carbonyl hemoglobin, phosgene blocks off the supply of oxygen to the body and produces asphyxiation. One volume of carbon monoxide in 800 volumes of air kills within 30 minutes. Very small quantities of carbon monoxide are, however, capable of producing fatal results if breathed for a long enough time. The gas is colorless, tasteless, odorless, which makes detection very difficult.

A 20 horsepower engine is estimated as being capable of emitting a cubic foot (28 litres) of carbon monoxide per minute. This is sufficient to render the atmosphere of a single car garage deadly within five minutes if the engine is run while the garage doors are closed.

Death from carbon monoxide does not occur only in the winter, but the serious effects from it are greatly reduced in summer driving. During warm weather, vehicles are usually driven with one or more windows open, allowing proper ventilation throughout the car thus minimizing the danger.

Symptoms

1. Skin pink or pale
2. Lips red
3. Headache
4. Weakness
5. Nausea
6. Fainting
7. Paralysis of nervous system
8. Slowing of pulse and respiration

Treatment

1. Remove victim to fresh air
2. Apply artificial respiration
3. Administration of pure oxygen
4. Stimulation of circulation

Things To Do

1. Have your vehicle checked for carbon monoxide leaks, paying particular attention to the exhaust system.
2. Whenever operating your vehicle be sure to have proper ventilation.
3. Know the symptoms of carbon monoxide poisoning.
4. Know the different steps in the treatment of carbon monoxide poisoning and how to apply them.

It must be remembered that the speed with which you handle the situation is of the utmost importance. Carbon monoxide poisoning may cause death or permanent mental deterioration unless treatment is prompt and efficacious.

New 7th Cav Mural Relates Past, Present, Future Mission

The role of the Cavalry—past, present and future—is depicted in a mural now hanging in the office of Lieutenant Colonel Harvey Scott, 7th Cavalry commander.

7TH CAVALRY MURAL SHOWS EVOLUTION OF MISSION
Lieutenant Vincent Elequin, Artist, Touches Up Painting

This mural was painted in oil by Lieutenant Vincent V. Elequin, the medical service officer of the squadron. The picture's concept is the phases of progression in the Cavalry from the original horse-mounted Cavalry to the present.

The first phases are in the clouds, which are in the upper right and left corners of the picture. In the upper left corner of the picture in the clouds is the horse-mounted Cavalry in combat, depicting the colorful history of the Cavalry. In the upper right corner in the clouds are the old World War I Mark Eight tanks.

In the lower left corner of the picture is the World War II Sherman tank. Above the tank are two World War I aircraft used for early reconnaissance during the first World War.

Next to the World War II tank is an M-14, used by the Cavalry until recently, when the M-48 tank took its place. Above the M-41 tank are two helicopters depicting the new air Cavalry which will soon be in use. Slightly to the right rear of the M-41 tank is an M-29A1 jeep depicting the scout jeeps used for modern reconnaissance units.

69th, 87th Team for Demonstration

By 69th Armor PIO

A demonstration of the tank — infantry team in the attack was presented last week by the Division's armor battalion at Fournier Range.

Company C, 69th Armor was in charge of the problem, which featured a medium tank platoon and an infantry company in a coordinated assault on two converging axes. The infantry support for the problem was furnished by the 87th Infantry.

The demonstration was one of several problems which will be conducted by the individual companies in the battalion in conjunction with each of the five battle groups.

The Fournier Range course is a live-fire problem with .30 caliber and .50 caliber machinegun, .90 milimeter, and .81 milimeter mortar fire.

Brigadier General Royal Reynolds Jr., assistant division commander, and the battle group commanders were the guests of the 69th Armor for the presentation. Lieutenant Colonel Harry H. Hiestand, commanding officer of the 69th Armor, narrated the demonstration and conducted a critique following the exercise.

PHOTOGRAPHER WITH PRIZE-WINNING WORK
23rd Infantry's Specialist Four Tony M. Rumple

Newshawk Now Clerk In 23rd Inf. Supply

By 23rd Infantry PIO

From pretty girls to bome run kings, from high fashion wardrobes to twisted automobile wrecks — these and many other exciting and interesting events have been recorded by the sensitive camera of Specialist Tony Rumple.

Rumple, presently holding down the job of supply clerk, Company C, 23rd Infantry, was a professional news photographer prior to his induction last year. An avid camera bug, Rumple began free-lance work during his high school days at High Point, N.C. His first taste of news photography came with a local paper. Later, he moved to Durham, N. C. to work for The Morning Herald and The Sun.

Honors

A number of photographic honors have come Rumple's way. In last year's North Carolina State Fair photo contest he placed first in portraits, features and sports. The 24-year old lensman owns four cameras and has worked with most of the more popular models, such as the Leica M3, Speed Graphic, Graflex and Rolleiflex.

Although his favorite photographic work is divided between commercial and sports pictures, Tony plans to return to news photography when he gets out of the Army next November.

Of more pressing importance to him, however, was his recent leave during the holidays in order to go home in North Carolina and take some photos of his brand new daughter, who was born last month.

11th Infantry's Cross Returns

By 11th Inf PIO

Private First Class Thomas K. Cross has rejoined the information section at 11th Infantry headquarters after spending eight weeks at the U. S. Army Information School at Fort Slocum, New York.

The school trains personnel to disseminate news of Army activities to the military and civilian public. The course included newswriting, military, United States and world affairs, policies and regulations governing the Army information field and a survey course in radio and television news.

Lieutenant Carroll Kraus has assumed the duties of information officer and athletic and recreation officer of the 11th Infantry and Sergeant First Class Edward Landon has been assigned as Battle Group athletic and recreation NCO.

27th Artillery Man Re-Ups

Sergeant First Class Morgan L. Elliot, Headquarters Battery, 27th Artillery, recently re-enlisted for another six-year tour of duty. The battalion communications chief has worked several years in the communications field and is an experienced combat veteran.

Here's How the Soldier of Today 'Gets The Word'

By Clay Lacy

The young Soldier turned to his buddy as they walked away from the formation. "Where the heck did the 'first shirt' ever get that word?" he queried.

"Beats the heck out of me," was the rejoinder. "I guess it's what they call 'giving out the word'."

"Well, I'd sure like to know how this stuff finally gets to us."

That Soldier and many like him would probably appreciate learning just how the "word" comes down the chain of command. While gathering material for another story recently, I had the good fortune to see this very aspect in operation.

Overheard

I had wandered into a unit messhall at one of the five battle groups in the 2nd Division. As I sipped gratefully on the coffee offered by the mess sergeant, I noticed activity in a small dining room adjacent to the main dining area. Closer listening told me that a meeting was in order.

Moving quietly to a position where I could hear the conversation, I listened to what proved to be a first sergeants' meeting being conducted by the battle group sergeant major.

It was a valuable lesson that I learned as I observed this meeting: a lesson in leadership.

The sergeant major was covering major points with the first sergeants, points that the battle group commander wanted emphasized. He was discussing the detail personnel necessary over the holiday period.

"Now, you know as well as I do that we're going to have certain commitments during the holidays. I want to handle it fairly and distribute the load throughout the entire battle group. What are your suggestions?"

The first sergeants were silent for a moment as they pondered the best solution. Suggestions were offered. One said that he would prefer to see a specific unit handle all detail assignments on a given day, rotating the dates among the units. Another said that had not functioned too well in previous years. One company got both holidays to work.

The sergeant major listened intently to his first sergeants, taking notes occasionally. When they had finished, he summarized the comments, and then made his announcement on how the detail roster would operate this year. The 'top kicks' were satisfied.

"Now about the area police," the sergeant major continued. "Make a note of this so that your people are aware of it. Coal bins must be thoroughly policed each day. Let's not have lumps of coal lying all the way out in the street."

"The battle group commander has asked for emphasis on church attendance," he moved into his next topic smoothly. "Now I know you can't make your men go to church. But you can set the example. A Soldier sees his first sergeant in chapel on Sunday and he's glad he went. Don't worry, the word will soon get around and more of your men will go to church."

After each phase of discussion the sergeant major asked for comments from the first sergeants. On some subjects there were many, on others only a few passing remarks.

He did not discourage the 'top kicks' from griping on certain points. But when they finished their declaration of "beefs," he summarized them and made recommendations to improve the situation that had provided the gripe.

Leadership

The sergeant major sat a little straighter before going to his next topic. Before him were seated seven senior non-coms with a combined total of more than 120 years of military service to their credit. They knew leadership inside out. But the "star" was about to discuss that very subject.

"We've got a little problem in military courtesy which you first sergeants can solve for us," he stated. The first sergeants were challenged in an area that they knew well and responded with full attentiveness. "Military courtesy must go both ways on the command street," explained the sergeant major.

"A man must salute an officer when he sees one, rendering it with an appropriate greeting. That's fine. But, too, when a Soldier comes into your orderly room, he gets an impression. It should be a good one. If you are in the habit of talking off the cuff to higher ranks, remember you are being observed by that Soldier.

We non-coms can improve our courtesy with our dealings with both those above us and those below us in rank. Enough said."

Comments

Vehicle maintenance, holiday safety, suspense dates on correspondence; these and many other topics were discussed as the seregant major checked off the topics in his notebook. When he had finally finished and asked for any comments, criticism or questions from the first sergeants, I felt that he must have covered every major phase in the successful operation of a unit as large as a battle group.

He had made his points emphatic where needed, offered others for discussion and still others for consideration. He had supported his battle group commander, he had instituted those things he felt necessary to keep the unit functioning.

In short, the sergeant major had passed the "word."

cession of acts. Too elaborately to adequately describe were the colorful, undulating lighting effects and the staging, which offered much in amplifying the performers' individual talents.

There were weak points, occasional rashes of amateurism. But these were usually immediately overshadowed by a song-dance sketch, instrumental, monologue or comedy skit that placaded the dissatisfied.

And the acoustics and electronics arrangement in Theater Seven, where the reviewer saw the show, did not always serve best in the performers' interest.

Certainly not to be overlooked was the performance of jazz-singer Errol Robinson, Fort Sill, Oklahoma. His "Angel Eyes" and up-tempoed version of "You Make Me Feel So Young," coupled with superb backing from the show band, left the impression that this young Washington, D. C., man will be heard from in the future.

"Rolling Along" stopped off at Theater Seven Tuesday night, at Main Post's Theater One Wednesday night as part of its world-wide tour of Army installations.

Fort Benning also was represented in the troupe by Captain Thomas Adams, advance officer, and Lieutenant Ronald Weimer, tour stage director.

Basketball Tourney Opens

Hoop Action Monday

Division sports fans will have a chance Monday night to see their favorite team in action as eight squads take to the hardwoods in the opening games of the 2nd Infantry Division Basketball Tournament for 1962.

At the Harmony Church field house, the 9th Infantry clashes with Division Artillery in the 6:30 p.m. opener. Capping the evening's action will be a contest between 87th and 23rd Infantry.

Hitting the backboards first at the Kelley Hill gymnasium will be the Separate Battalions and the 1st Infantry, while the 11th Infantry and Division Trains conclude the night's slate there at 8 p.m.

Thursday night at Kelley Hill, the 87th takes on the 9th Infantry, to be followed by a clash between the 11th and 23rd Infantry.

Division Artillery and the 1st Infantry begin the Thursday night contests at the Harmony Church field house with Separate Battalions meeting Division Trains in the nightcap.

The 2nd Infantry Division Basketball Tournament is a part of the Commanding General's Trophy Sports Program and the request for points is to be submitted within five duty days after the completion of league play to the division's Special Services Office.

9th Slates New 1962 Hoop Squad

By Bill Gibson

The 9th Infantry Manchus, in listing their New Year resolutions, resolved to have a successful basketball season as announced by their playing action in the first full scale workout in the Kelley Hill gymnasium last Monday afternoon.

A complete new squad will make its circuit debut in the 1962 tourney, coached by Augustus Dawson, a Manchu newcomer. Invulnerability to defeat was the ticket in the 1961 season when the "Keep Up The Fire" unit enjoyed an undefeated record and took the division crown.

Team Captain

J. J. Shields, captain of the Manchu quintet, will perform in the forward slot guarding the boards beside Bobby Potts who is also a talented speedster and superb jumper.

In the guard positions will be Melvin Bradford, a powerful driver with a Paul Arizin-type jump shot, along with Harold Dawson, the quintet's "ball hawk" and spirited playmaker.

At center will be Ben Nordell, an experienced ball handler formerly of the University of North Dakota before entering the service in 1960. The reserve forces consist of Jan Jankowski, Willie Branic, Joe Godfrey, Stan Moose, Melvin Royal and Jimmy Fox.

Manchu coaching duties will be performed by Augustus Dawson of Company B. Dawson is a former student assistant coach to Abbie O'Neal at Albany State College. Out to defend the Manchu title, Dawson will launch his team into action Monday at the Harmony Church field house in the night's opening contest against Division Artillery.

The Manchus, similar to other division clubs, will perform a 14-game schedule, divided into two rounds. This is one of the outstanding sports events in the marathon for the Commanding General's Trophy.

'Conquerors' Complete Holiday Sports Slate

By 87th Inf PIO

Men of the 87th Infantry recently completed a holiday sports program that included eight separate events.

For those men who stayed behind during the two week period, each company organized teams in volleyball and basketball and provided individual company champs in chess, checkers, ping pong, pool, pinochle and handball.

The battle group play-offs were supervised by the three men who were responsible for the entire program, Lieutenant John Land and Sergeants William Doty and Burl Withers.

Volleyball

The first tournament completed was outdoor volleyball. All the companies entered a team and the finals resulted in a two-out-of-three play-off between Company E and Company C with the Echo team emerging the winner.

The basketball tournament also saw Company E in the finals pitted against Bravo Company. The Bravo team played a sparkling game and swamped the Echo team, 61-38. The scoring attack was led by Warner Johnson with 19 points and Ronald E. Brooks with 14 points.

Honors in the pinochle tournament went to William Layton and Richard Scott of Bravo Company. Checker champ was George Jackson of Headquarters Company. The chess championship was decisively won by Company A's Clements Crosbie. Ping Pong was won by Edward Pearson, of Headquarters Company, who defeated John Walborne in exciting match play.

The pool tournament was captured by Eugene Breeskin, of Headquarters Company, who won a tense three-out-of-five finale with Jerry Rowe. William F. Terry of Company A defeated John A. Dennis in the finals of the handball tournament to complete the winner's circle.

Armor, Signal Win 1st Round Of Bn. Playoff

The 69th Armor and the 122nd Signal Battalion posted wins Monday night in the first round of the Separate Battalions double-elimination basketball play-off.

Tankers defeated the 7th Cavalry quintet, 59-46, with Carle Fleming dropping in 20 points for the victors. Ernest Holley led the Cavalry's scoring column with 13 points.

Maynard Nagelhout recorded 14 points to lead the 122nd Signal Battalion to a 65-40 victory over the 2nd Engineer Battalion.

11th Announces Div. Basketball Tourney Team

By 11th Inf PIO

Sixteen men have been chosen to represent the 11th Infantry in the 2nd Division Basketball tournament, which gets underway this month.

The men of the 11th will take on Division Trains Monday at the Kelley Hill gymnasium to start off the season.

Selected for the team were Albert Abney, David Kirwin and Bernard McLaughlin of Headquarters Company, Russell Anderson and James L. Allen of Company A, James Dawes and Garland Patrick of Company B, Robert Mahon, Barry McLaughlin and Preston Pierce of Company D, Rane Jarrett and Merle Stroie of Company E and Robert Marshall, Bennie Scott, Ronald Pinner and Johnny Crumpton, all of Compdny C — winner of The Infantry Center Sports Carnival basketball tournament.

Coaching the team is Leonard Karsarsky assisted by Newell Owens.

4-Sport Tourney Won At 23rd by Company D

By 23rd Infantry PIO

The sports-minded 23rd Infantry conducted an extensive athletic program within the battle group during the Christmas and New Year's holidays.

Each of the seven companies participated in the four-sport competition, with seven points going to the eventual winner, six to second place, etc. Total scores from participation in touch football, volleyball, ping pong and horseshoes indicated how each company placed in the holiday tournament.

First Place

Taking first place with 25 points was Company D while Company E was a close runnerup with 21 points.

Listed below is a partial breakdown of the winners in each of the four contests:

Volleyball—Delta, 1st place; Charlie, 2nd place, Alpha, 3rd place.

Football — Echo, 1st place; Delta, 2nd place; Bravo, 3rd place.

Ping - Pong — Delta, 1st place; Headquarters, 2nd place; Echo, 3rd place.

Horseshoes — Charlie, 1st place; Echo, 2nd place; Delta, 3rd place.

Points accumulated by each company during the tourney go toward the battle group sports trophy, which is presented at the end of the year to the highest ranking company. However, smaller trophies will be presented to the companies that won in the holiday tournament games.

C-S Co. Wins 1st's Holiday Sports Slate

By 1st Inf PIO

In the recent holiday sports activities, composed of volleyball, softball, and horseshoe, Combat Support Company won the 1st Infantry honors after defeating "Charlie" Company in a play-off.

In the first event, Combat Support Company won the volleyball title by defeating Companies B and C. Horseshoes was then won by Company C after they defeated Combat Support Company and Company E in two well-pitched matches. Company E was crowned the winner of the softball tournament by defeating Company B and Company C.

The activities, based on the point system, left Combat Support Company and Company C with 41 points each. In the play-off, Combat Support Company defeated Company C four out of five games in horseshoes. Company C bowed to Combat Support in volleyball by losing the first two games.

Here's How 87th Won CG's Trophy

Here's how the 87th Infantry amassed more points than any other division unit to win the Commanding General's Sports Trophy:

Over a six-months' span, the Conquerors from Kelley Hill accumulated 366 points in various sports contests.

Fifty points were awarded for winning the division's flag football contest after the 87th defeated the 1st Infantry in dramatic playoff.

The Conquerors amassed four points in division-level volley ball, 50 in the cross country run, 25 in company-level flag football and 65 for their 13-1 record in regular season play of the division flag football tournament.

Three Undefeated Seasons

1944-46 West Point Gridders Re-Wrote Football Record Book

WEST POINT N. Y. (AFPS) —If you can imagine a college pigskin team that could roll up 1,179 points during three straight undefeated seasons to win the '44 and '45 National Championships, plus having 10 men selected to 16 first-team All-America slots during 1944-46, you can get an idea of the explosive offensive power of the Black Knights of the Hudson.

Coached by Red Blaik, who resigned in 1958, the cadets were paced by a pair of three-time All-Americans — fullback Doc Blanchard and halfback Glen Davis — and the Army eleven literally rewrote football's record book.

During the 1944 campaign, West Point averaged eight touchdowns per game to amass the grand total of 504 points. This was the year the cadets trounced Notre Dame, 59-0, Villanova, 83-0 and Pittsburgh, 69-7. No one team managed to cross the Army's goal line more than once and only 35 points were recorded by the nine teams the Black Knights played.

It was 1944 when Glen Davis carried the ball into the end zone for 20 touchdowns to record the most points any West Pointer has ever scored in a single season — 120.

The same year, six Army players — Blanchard, Davis, guards Joe Stanowicz and John Green, quarterback Doug Kenna and end Barney Poole — were named All-Americans.

The following year, the Black Knights' offense really got rolling. This was the season Army gained 4,121 yards in 528 plays to etch a West Point record that stands today. It averages out to 459 yards per contest on the ground. This was the year that West Point walked over Pennsylvania 61-0 and trounced Navy 32-13.

Repeat All-America honors in '45 went to Davis, Blanchard and Green. Newcomers to football's elite were tackles Dewitt Coulter and Albert Nemetz, and end Henry Foldberg.

Most experts feel it's doubtful that another college will ever assemble the talent to match the running attack of the 1944-46 Army team.

Benning Clips Marines For Six Ring Victories

The Fort Benning boxing team took the measure of the Camp Lejeune fighters last week, defeating the Marines in 6 of 8 matches at the North Carolina base.

The boxers won four of the fights by knockouts and two by decisions, while the two losses came by decisions.

The first bout saw post flyweight champ Desirdo Petoffi go against Robert Palermi. Petoffi, formerly of Frankfort-Am-Main, Germany, and now Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, lost a decision to the Marine.

The second match Robert Richter, Combat Support Company, 9th Infantry, 2nd Battle Group, 2nd Infantry Division, defeated Juan Garcia. Richter was awarded a decision over the Marines' lightweight representative.

Fort Benning's light welterweight champion, James Harris beat Dennis Moore. Harris, assigned to Company A, 806th Engineer Battalion, decisioned the All-Marine light welterweight champion.

The first knockout of the evening came in the fourth fight when Charles R. Allen of Company E, 39th Infantry, 1st Battle Group, 1st Infantry Brigade, floored Tim Davis. Allen delivering the knockout punch in the second round.

Howard Fields kayoed the Marine welterweight champ, Robert Hennessy. Fields, assigned to Battery D, 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, is the welterweight champ of Fort Benning.

Another kayo resulted when Booker Anderson, Company B, 11th Infantry, 1st Battle Group, 2nd Division, floored All-Marine light middleweight champ, Don Kinenlen. Anderson dealt the knockout punch in the second round.

In the next to the last bout of the evening, Leon Hall, Company D, 25th Infantry, 1st Battle Group, 1st Infantry Brigade, floored Dan Phillips for the full count in 15 seconds of the first round.

The blow caught the All-Marine, All-Navy, Interservice middleweight by surprise and left Hall the victor in the briefest of the evening's fights.

The last bout of the evening saw Fort Benning heavyweight champ, Charles (Chuck) Garlington lose a close decision to the All-Marine, All-Navy, Interservice heavyweight champion, Dale Price.

Garlington is assigned to Headquarters Company, 2nd Medium Tank Battalion, 69th Armor, 2nd Division.

Biathloneers Leave Jan. 8

By Sfc Bismarck Stith

FT. RICHARDSON, Alaska (AFPS) — The U. S. modern winter Biathlon team left on its annual tour of international competition Jan. 8, according to Lt. Col. Kenneth Floto, OIC of the team.

The team is slated to compete in cross-country events on the east coast; the military three part championships (giant slalom, cross country and shooting) along with the four-man military patrol races in Germany, and biathlon meets in Norway, Finland and Sweden.

On Jan. 14 at Hanover, N. H. and at Putney, Vt. on Jan. 21, the team will vie in cross-country races against Dartmouth, Middlebury College, St. Lawrence College, U of Vermont and other major ski squads.

The American crew will pit its abilities against other NATO nation army teams in Garmisch, Germany, at the International Military Sports Council.

The Ft. Richardson trained skiers will climax their tour in the national championships in Norway and Sweden and the Biathlon World Championships in Finland.

Navy Selects All-Opponent Grid Eleven

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AFPS)—After votes were cast by Navy's varsity footballers for selection of an annual All-Opponent grid eleven, Detroit's Jerry Gross was named the best quarterback the Middies faced all season as well as "the outstanding individual player."

West Point placed one player on the first string, guard Mike Casp, and two members on the honorable mention squad, guard Barry Butzer and fullback Al Rushatz.

Penn State and Notre Dame each placed five members on the Navy's honor lineups.

Navy's All-Opponent first string for 1961 includes:

Ends — Larry Vargo, Detroit; Bill Miller, Miami.

Tackles — Art Gregory, Duke; Ron Gessert, Virginia.

Guards — Norb Roy, Notre Dame; Mike Casp, Army.

Center — Jay Huffman, Penn State.

Quarterback — Jerry Gross, Detroit.

Halfbacks — George Sefcik and Angelo Dabiero, both of Notre Dame.

Fullback — Dave Hays, Penn State.

Air Force Academy Has 5 Returning Lettermen

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, COLO. (AFPS) — "Small, slow inexperienced but spirited," is how Air Force Academy hoop Coach Bob Spear sizes up the Falcons' hardcourt situation for this season.

On the negative side of the ledger, the Falconites lost three starters from last year's team that included the first and second leading team scorers over the last two campaigns — Terry Norris and Jim Uhm.

However, Coach Spear has five lettermen returning. Of these, 6'5" center Henry Vicellio was third leading team scorer last year. Also, part-time starters last season, 6'3" Bob Schaumberg and 6'0" Jim Diffendorfer, are back. Two other vets, 6'2" Bill Knipp and 6'1" Roger Zoeller, are expected to round out the starting five.

Having never posted a losing season during five years of varsity competition, the Academy will be giving away four to six inches in height to just about every opponent. In this regard, speed, determination, hustle and a pressing defense have been the main ingredients employed by the Falcons to win games.

Asked to comment on the team's outlook, Spear said, "We have worked harder than ever this fall. The players have a wonderful attitude and are determined to improve on their 12-12 record of last year.

"A few new wrinkles have been added to our offense, and combined with an improved defense, we hope to surprise some people this winter. In Butch Vicellio we have one of the top men of his size in the region, but our biggest problem is to find someone to assume the floor-leadership of the departed Terry Norris.

"All in all, in the face of our tough schedule, we cannot be too optimistic, but I feel we will have a representative team."

Winners in Fort Benning's Holiday sports Carnival were officially announced recently by the Infantry Center Special Services officials.

The basketball title was captured by Company C, 11th Infantry, 2nd Division with runner-up honors taken by Officer Career Class No. 1 of The Student Brigade.

Topping the six teams entered in the volleyball competition was Company B, 702 Ordnance Battalion, 2nd Division. A team from Career Class No. 1 won second place, giving them two runner-up trophies.

Firsts Lt. Severin D. Vouso won the individual handball tourney, defeating runner - up Capt. Nathan C. Vail in the final eliminations, 21-6 and 21-5.

The swimming competition was dominated by 2nd Lt. Li Tsen Sheng and PFC Charles Walls, each capturing three of the eight events. Sheng won the 100 meter Free style, 100 meter breast stroke and the 200 meter breast stroke events. Walls won titles in the 200 and 400 meter free style and the 100 meter back stroke competition. The other two individual winners were SP4 Ray Gonzalez who won the 200 meter backstroke, and Sgt. Roy Ollinger who took first place in the 100 meter butterfly stroke event.

In the bowling tournament, Capt. Ron Cairns captured the all-events title, a grand total of the scores of each individual entered in singles, doubles and team competition. SFC Mont J. Kiggins was all-event runner-up with third place going to M-Sgt. David Lee.

Winning the team competition was a four-man team composed of M-Sgt. James Fulcomer, Pvt. Dan Gorman, Sgt. John Norris and PFC Kenneth Maloney. Members of the second place team were Major James Halpin, Major Francis Franklin, Capt. Charles Carney and M-Sgt. James Farmer.

First place in the doubles competition was won by M-Sgt. David Lee and Capt. Cairns with second place going to PFC Bill Walkins and 2nd Lt. William Nabors. In the singles event of the tourney, Sfc. Kiggins took top honors with Capt. Philip Bird placing second.

Army, Air Force Holding Exercise Long Thrust II

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Army and Air Force units stationed in the United States are combining in a test of reenforcing NATO defenses in Exercise Long Thrust II during January and February. The exercise will include airlifting to Europe three STRAC battle groups by MATS aircraft.

The 4th Inf. Div., Ft. Lewis, is providing the three battle groups, the 1st Battle Gp., 22nd Inf., 2nd Battle Gp., 39th Inf., and the 2nd Battle Gp. 47th Inf. These groups will be supported by their normal attachments of artillery, armor and other combat and logistics support units.

For MATS, Exercise Long Thrust II will be its largest jet strategic airlift to date. Ten C-135 troop transports will be a part of the approximately 100 transports to be used in the movement. All air transports will be drawn from MATS units within the United States with tactical jet fighters provided by the Air Force in Europe.

MATS will also provide Air Rescue Service, Air Weather Service and Air Photographic and Charting Service with the Air Force Communication Service providing necessary communications assistance.

Two of the Army battle groups from the 39th and 47th Inf. will remain temporarily in Germany after the exercise for additional overseas training. They will be under U. S. control and will be in the strategic reserve of the Supreme Commander, Allied Forces Europe.

The Defense Department said other battle groups from the 4th Inf. Div. may be moved from time to time to Europe to participate in NATO exercises and remain afterwards for further training, thereby providing for rotation of earlier elements.

A SHAPE announcement, released in Paris said, "The exercise in Europe will be under the control of Gen. Lauris Norstad, Supreme Allied Commander.

"He has assigned responsibilities for planning and conduct of the exercise to his Commander-in-Chief, Allied Forces Central Europe, Gen. Pierre Jacquot, French Army."

Army's Suggestions Win Annual Award

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Response to the Army's suggestions program in fiscal year 1961 was nearly double that of the preceding year. The increase won the annual award of the National Association of Suggestions Programs.

Secretary of the Army Elvis J. Stahr Jr. received the award from Harold V. Bostock, president of the association and manager of the suggestion system of the Illinois Central Railroad.

MUTT Scheduled To Replace Jeep

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Production of the Army's M-151 military utility tactical truck (MUTT) has been stepped up and troops will be getting them in increased numbers, according to the Army.

An Army Ordnance official said the vehicle does not have an "official" name as yet, but added that a careful check of its unofficial title pretty well sums up what the little 2,300-pound vehicle will be called by the troops who use it.

Uniterians Change Place of Meetings

The Unitarian Fellowship of Fort Benning and Columbus has changed meeting places.

Formerly the group met at the post Jewish Center. They now gather at the Seventh Day Adventist Church at 1420 17th Street in Columbus.

Meetings are held at 11 a.m. on Sundays and there are Sunday School classes at 10 a.m.

AT THE Movies

FLOWER DRUM SONG is a heart-warming love story staring Nancy Kwan and Miyoshi Umeki. This screen version of the Broadway smash hit, literally explodes with color and musical merriment woven around a delightful and rib-tickling conflict between the age-old customs of the Orient and the ring-a-ding flavor of life in San Francisco's Chinatown today. This movie will have advanced admission prices.

TOO LATE BLUES is a modern jazz drama which features Bobby Darin and Stella Stevens. A dedicated jazz musician, with an artist's approach toward high ideals and standards, sells himself and his talents to rank commercialism and then begins a desperate struggle to find his way back to self respect and creativity.

TOWN WITHOUT PITY stars Kirk Douglas, Richard Jaeckel and Christine Kaufman. On trial for their lives before a U.S. Military Court Martial, four soldiers are defended by an aggressive defense attorney whose ruthless cross-examination technique shatters the key witness' testimony.

BOOKS in REVIEW

PLOUGH THE SEA by Robert Wilder. (Putnam, 1961)
Here, in an area of deceptive beauty, men have long contested for power and wealth and for the bodies and minds of those they subjugated. For centuries pirates, slaves and adventurers have ravaged it. Revolution had stained the white beaches crimson. It has been pillaged by black and white alike and torn by the conflict of color and prejudice, greed and ambition.
BLUE FEATHER by Zane Grey. (Harper, 1961)
In Blue Feather Zane Grey tells a legendary Indian tale of treachery and courage in the magnificent canyon country of the Southwest before the coming of the white man; of a tribal war between the remnants of two mighty nations battling for survival, and of the love beween a proud warrior on one side and the daughter of the chief on the other which determined the outcome of the fierce struggle.

The Army Circular Lists Pharmacy Specialists as a Critical Shortage

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Army has announced that a critical shortage of pharmacy specialists now exists.

A review of qualifications of enlisted personnel has been ordered to indentify individuals qualified in the field (MOS 932) and to reclassify eligibles who are not working as pharmacy specialists.

To be reclassified into the 932 MOS individuals must meet certain standards:

1. The individual's present primary MOS was acquired at a course which required not less than 20 weeks of Army service school training.

2. He is eligible for a permanent change of station in accordance with current regulations. PCS restrictions do not apply to those who can be utilized in their present area of assignment and those not eligible for a PCS are to be reported to the Adjutant General.

Privates and specialists will be reclassified according to whether or not they are graduates of schools of pharmacy. Non-graduates who have had formal training in an accredited school or college of pharmacy for at least two years will be assigned to on-the-job training in MOS 932.1 in pay grades E2 through E4.

Graduates of an accredited school or college of pharmacy will be classified in MOS 932.2, pay grades E2 through E5. Noncommissioned officers who are graduates will be awarded MOS 932 with skill levels appropriate to their grade. Skill digit "6" will be used for NCOs E4 through E6 and skill digit "7" will be given NCOs in pay grade E7.

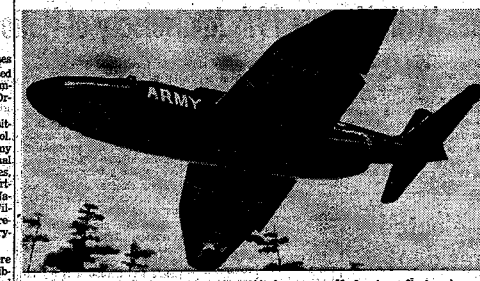
Florida Military Group Visits Reserve Units

Nine military officials and members of the press from Florida arrived at Lawson Army Airfield Tuesday to visit two Florida National Guard and Army Reserve units training at Fort Benning.

Major Gen. Mark W. Lance, adjutant general of Florida, headed the group.

Following their arrival the visitors were scheduled to inspect billets and facilities of the 138th Transportation Company, a National Guard unit from Coosa.



Following a visit Wednesday with Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly, deputy post commander, and a briefing on the status of Army Reserve and National Guard units on the post, the party observed the 138th undergoing field training.

Two members of the group, Lt. Col. William H. Simmons of Archer, and Lt. Col. James P. Smith of Gainesville, visited the 674th Transportation Company, a Reserve unit from Orlando, after the briefing.

Other military officials visiting the Florida units were Col. Robert S. Cain, senior Army adviser of the Florida National Guard; Col. Vernon F. Sikes, commander of the 50th Quartermaster Group, Florida National Guard, and Lt. Col. William R. Kidd, personal representative of Gov. Farris Bryant of Florida.

Members of the press were Vern Bradford, Tampa Tribune; George Prentice and George Goetz, Florida Broadcasting News, and Don Mickle-john, John H. Perry Newspapers.

The Florida visitors departed Wednesday.

Civil Service Employees Will Participate in Study

Civil Service employees here whose Social Security numbers end in "5" will participate in a nationwide statistical study.

Along with the records of holders of these numbers throughout the service, personnel actions affecting these workers will provide a continuing "profile of the Federal career service," according to T. A. Barefoot chief of The Infantry Center Civilian Personnel Section.

The Finance and Accounting Section of The Infantry Center is working with the Civilian Personnel Section to screen data affecting the 3,097 civilian employees on the post.

Information on personnel action affecting all workers with Social Security numbers ending with "5" will be forwarded to the Civil Service Commission in Washington, D. C., to provide a sample of the work force.

Under the study program, the commission will convert Fort Benning's and other installations' data to an automatic processing medium. By keeping the data current at all times, the record will provide timely, useful information on a representative cross - section of the Federal career service.

The study is expected to result in more efficient Federal personnel management, Barefoot said.

Army Film On Berlin Problem

BERLIN (AFPS) — The Army's television documentary series "The Big Picture" will tell the story of the Berlin crisis with films shot in this beleaguered city by camera crews of the 69th Signal Co. (Photo), the only Army unit of its kind.

Titled "The Berlin Story," it will show the city before and after the East Germans erected their dividing wall in mid-August. Work on the documentary commenced just before the wall went up.

The film is slated to be televised early in 1962 and will be seen by more than 100 million Americans.

Photographers and technicians of the 69th in the past two years produced 23 "Big Picture" documentaries. Had they been made commercially it is estimated they would have cost almost $20 million.

The 69th sends its photo teams throughout Europe "not to make news but to be there when it happens."

Civilian Employees Will Observe 79th Anniversary of National Civil Service Act

Fort Benning's 3,097 civilian employees will observe the 79th anniversary of the Civil Service Act of 1883 from Jan. 14 to 20.

The week will be observed throughout the nation and overseas by approximately two million Federal employees, according to T. A. Barefoot, chief of the Infantry Center Civilian Personnel Section.

The Civil Service Act was a milestone in the progress of government service. It replaced the antiquated and inequitable "spoils" system with an impartial merit system.

From 1853 to 1883, the majority of government employees were appointed by the administration in power.

This system frequently stopped all regular Federal activities for a month after a change in administration to allow for appointments.

Under the merit system, a citizen who applies for a Federal job or one who is already a Federal career worker is guaranteed certain rights. He may qualify for the job on a basis of ability to do the work without discrimination with regard to politics, national origin, religion nor race.

The act entitles him to consideration for promotions on the same basis. It provides protection from arbitrary dismissal and from obligation to render any political service or tribute.

The Civil Service Act is a protection to the taxpayer. The merit system guarantees selection of the best qualified people available for public service, and requires of government employees high standards of conduct and competence in performing their duties, according to officials.

To all citizens, the Civil Service Act means a stable government service, capable of preserving the continuity of essential programs required by the American people, officials said.

In recognition of the value of the merit system, Theodore Roosevelt said, "The observance in letter and spirit of the Civil Service law is the first requisite in obtaining clean, decent, efficient government service in any branch or bureau of the government."

Many chief executives since have expressed high regard for the merit system.

Soon after his inauguration, President John F. Kennedy said, "In meeting the grave problems confronting us at home and abroad it is my intention that the Career Civil Service be a full partner. Together we can lead our nation to new peaks of achievement."

In a joint statement to the career work force, Civil Service Commission Chairman John W. Macy Jr., and Commissioners Frederick J. Lawton and Robert E. Hampton said, "It is not too much to say that the government work being done today could not have been done under the spoils system that existed prior to 1883. Only a highly competent scientist could design a rocket for the space program. Only a top-notch, trained accountant could operate a social security accounting system.

"In taking stock the Federal employe can take satisfaction in knowing that he is one of a corps that have been picked for their competence in their work."

"He can also take satisfaction in the fact that the government has developed an up-to-date personnel system, complete with employee benefits and privileges, that compares favorably with the practices of progressive private industry. He can take pride in serving a government that is the leader of the Free World."

MSgt Bruce Re-elected Local ARAS President

The newly elected officers of the Association of Regular Army Sergeants at Fort Benning were sworn in Jan. 8 at a dinner in the 2nd Infantry Division Non-Commissioned Officers' Open Mess.

At its election Nov. 28 the association chose MSgt. William W. Bruce as president.

Sgt. Bruce, a member of The Infantry Center Engineer Section, was named to succeed himself by ARAS, which numbers some 400 sergeants on post.

Other officers elected include MSgt Elbert H. Longmire, 151st Engineer Group, first vice president, and MSgt Frank H. Reynolds, First Battalion, Infantry Center Troop Command, second vice president.

Sgt. Edward P. Burgess, Company B, Infantry School Battalion, secretary, and Sfc Harry R. Leonard, Jr., Headquarters Company, Infantry Center Troop Command, treasurer.

Named to the board of trustees were MSgt Ismael Nazario, Third Transportation Battalion, Lawson Army Aviation Command; MSgt Ernest A. Rollins, Company A, First Battalion, Troop Command, and Sfc Lewis W. Leary, Headquarters Company, 1st Infantry Brigade.

New Chaplain Assigned Here

Chaplain (1st Lt.) John B. White, has been assigned here.

He will serve as chaplain to the 91st Engineer Battalion, a Reserve unit from South Carolina recently called to active duty.

A bachelor of arts and bachelor of divinity graduate of Texas Christian University in Fort Worth, Chaplain White did postgraduate study in psychology at Furman University in Greenville, S. C.

He and Mrs. White, have three sons, Dan Allan, 7, Timothy John, 5, and Michael Craig, 3.

SAFE WAY

Wash a dirty light bulb—but don't dunk it. Dunking dampens the cement holding the base to the glass, causing it to come apart. To clean, wipe bulb with a damp, soapy cloth. Remove suds and dry well before turning it in the socket, experts suggest.

Army Tests Explosive Anchor To Aid Off-Shore Unloading Methods

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—An explosive driven anchor, using solid-rocket fuel and a revolutionary new design, has been developed by the Army. Tankers unloading oil from off-shore positions to shore by pipe lines will be the main users.

The mooring system consists of a platform type buoy and the anchor. The buoy is towed into position and the anchor is released by remote control. Hitting the bottom, the solid rocket fuel is detonated, which drives the anchor deep into the ocean bottom. Tests have made penetration 34 feet into a hard bottom.

With the anchor in place, an incoming ship moors itself to the buoy, attaches its piping to a base assembly on the buoy and begins to pump oil ashore by way of a pipe line connecting the buoy to the shore.

Off-shore unloading of tankers was developed to speed delivery of oil from the giant tankers developed since WWII and as a means of reducing their exposure to enemy attacks on harbor installations.

Much of the time consumed in dockside unloading is in maneuvering into harbors and mooring at unloading docks.

Should it become necessary to abandon an off-shore site, the buoy can be cut loose from the anchor, leaving it imbedded in the ocean floor. Because of its relatively low cost, the explosive driven anchor is considered expendable.

The new anchor will not eliminate the need for conventional anchors carried by ships, but is intended for this special use only.

Cooperating with the Navy and private industry, the Army Engineers tested experimental mooring anchors weighing only 225 pounds and capable of a minimum holding power of 50,000 pounds in sand, silt coral and rock bottoms.

Results are expected to lead to development of similar anchors with 300,000 pounds holding power.

American Facts In New Booklet

NEW YORK (AFPS) — A pamphlet, "Facts About the U.S.," intended to help Americans answer questions asked them by people of other nations, is available through Service information offices.

Often asked questions are answered in the 78 page pamphlet made available by the Directorate for Armed Forces Information and Education. It is fully illustrated and covers many of the major aspects of life in the United States.

In addition, some of the latest statistics on America are included. Areas covered are: the land and the people, the U. S. Government, natural resources, industry, agriculture, commerce, communications, transportation, the arts; the American way of life, health and medical care, education, social security, labor and labor unions, American women, youth, recreation and religion.

Also included is a map of the United States and a list of important dates in American history, plus a table of federal holidays.

Three Bid Sales For Surplus This Month

Three sealed bid sales of government surplus items at Quartermaster Property Disposal here will be held during January.

Deadlines for submitting sealed bids for the sales are 1 p.m., Jan. 18; 9 a.m., Jan. 190 and 10 a.m. Jan. 30. Bids must be sent to Bldg. 3500, Marine Corps Supply Center, Albany, Ga.

Items in the first sale include aluminum scrap, automotive, webbing and canvass scrap; second sale, helicopter parts, vehicle parts, clothing, boots and tires, and third sale, a 125,000 gallon per hour water treating plant with pumps, motors and filter units.

Items may be inspected between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. Mondays through Fridays at Fort Benning.

For further information, contact James F. Rhodes, Bldg. T-1123, Fort Benning, or phone LI 5-4022.

Benning Schools Observe Traffic Safety Week Here

Fort Benning Children's Schools observed this week as Traffic Safety Week.

Special emphasis will be given to bicycle safety.

A traffic safety assembly program will be presented at each school.

At Wilbur School the program began Jan. 8; Hospital Area School, Jan. 9; Loyd School, grades one, two, and three through six, Jan. 10; Patch School, Jan. 10; Faith School, grades five, six, seven and eight Jan. 12.

Two films were shown at the assembly programs. They were "I'm No Fool With a Bicycle" and "Safe for Two Wheels."

A member of The Infantry Center Provost Marshal Section spoke after the films. The talk featured both bicycle and pedestrian safety rules.

Each school child who owns a bicycle received easy-to-read bicycle regulations and a questionaire to be completed.

The questionaire on bicycle operation must be completed by the child and signed by the parent to indicate answers have been checked for correctness.

A copy of bicycle operation regulations was posted in each classroom.

The week of emphasis on bicycle safety grew out of the findings of a special study group of the PTA.

The bicycle regulations and questionaires were provided by Lt. Col. James E. Farmer, provost marshal. Col. Farmer is chairman of the PTA Safety Committee.

Norman Evans of Columbus, Ga., safety officer for The Infantry Center, provided posters to be displayed in the schools during the week.

Nike-Zeus Trio Scores Antimissile Tests Success

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The successful interception of a supersonic Nike - Hercules missile by the Nike-Zeus antimissile missile at the White Sands Missile Range, has been announced by the Army.

Two other Nike-Zeus accomplishments, scored on the same day at other locations, were announced simultaneously.

One of these was the longest and highest flight to date in a firing at Point Mugu, Calif. The other was a launch from the Kwajalein Island complex which will be used in future intercept tests against nose cones launched by ICBM boosters fired down the Pacific range from California.

In the White Sands intercept, the missile defense system acquired and tracked the highly maneuverable Nike - Hercules missile with its radar, then guided a Nike-Zeus to intercept it.

Ground distance from the Nike-Zeus launching point and the altitude of the intercept were not revealed. The Zeus did not carry a live warhead.

The intercept was scored by electronic measuring devices which recorded how close the Zeus came to the target Hercules. Although the distance was not disclosed the Army said it was well within the lethal radius of the Nike-Zeus operational warhead.

A Postman's Yearly Plea Repeatedly Said in Vain

By Pfc Bruce Yuffee

Each year post office bulletins are circulated across this country, asking gift givers using the mailing system to "Please mail your Christmas packages and cards early", and each year there is still a certain number that do not heed their request.

The Student Brigade is proud of the exemplary manner in which its post office personnel performed their duties during the past holiday season. Although blanketed by parcels and letters the brigade postmen were able to keep the mail moving.

Working both day and night, SFC Gerald W. Joy, TSB Postal Supervisor, and his men were in a ponder as to whether or not they could meet the onslaught of mail that was pouring into their office. It was only when the last package and letter was headed for its destination did these men rest.

During a normal working day the brigade post office receives on an average of 6000 letters, 500 flats (newspapers & magazines), 100 packages and 40 pieces of accountable mail (Registered - Insured - and Certified). These figures were nearly doubled during the Christmas season.

A large portion of their time is devoted to the redirecting of mail to students and personnel that have departed the brigade. Approximately 9000 to 10,000 pieces of mail are redirected each week, and these figures will jump considerably when the newly arriving airborne classes are in full strength.

Now the brigade postal personnel, comprised of Sgt. August W. Goeldner, Asst. Postal Supervisor, and postal clerks, Pfc Frank W. Jones and Pvt. James L. Lively, and the section chief, SFC Joy, are almost back to normal pace. However, they are still being plagued by late arriving Christmas packages that must be distributed throughout the brigade.

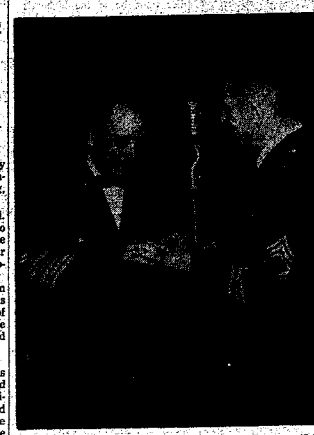
Col. Spencer Named New USAIC G-3

The new G-3 at The Infantry Center is Lt. Col. Houck Spencer, a native of Harrisburg, Pa.

Col. Spencer succeeds Col. Chester M. Freudendorf, who will study journalism at the University of Alabama under the Army's educational program.



Before coming here, from 1958 to 1961, Col. Spencer was assigned to the Department of the Army General Staff, Office of the Chief of Research and Development.

AWC Graduate

From 1957 to 1958 he was battle group commander and G-3 for the 7th Infantry Division in Korea, and in 1956 and 1957 he was a student at the Army War College, Carlisle Barracks, Pa.

Col. Spencer also served as battalion commander and G-3 with the 82nd Airborne Division, Fort Bragg, from 1954 to 1956, and as logistics plans Officer, Headquarters U. S. Forces Austria, Salzburg, from

American University Classes Start Tuesday, Courses Listed

Winter semester classes at the American University facilities on post will begin January 23.

Registration which began January 8, will be accepted until opening day.

Classes will meet on Tuesday and Thursday evenings at the Army Education Center, with two periods scheduled for each night, allowing qualified students to earn six semester hours credit per semester.

Military personnel and their dependents with a high school diploma or who have passed the high school GED test are eligible to attend.

Fees are $15 per semester hour or $45 for three semester hour courses. Persons eligible for tuition assistance may apply to have half the amount paid by the Government. Forms and information regarding tuition assistance are available at the Educational Development Section, Building 2512, or Building 3337 in the Sand Hill area.

Subjects tentatively listed for the first period, 6:15 to 8:45 p.m., are: English Composition I and II, Survey of Mathematics I; General Psychology; Introduction to Sociology; Elementary Russian I; Science of Physics; Business Law I; Public Relations Theory and Practice; History of the United States I and School and Modern Social Problems.

Second period subjects, also subject to change, and scheduled from 8:45 to 11:15 p.m. are: English Composition I; Introduction to Philosophy; Survey of Mathematics I; Abnormal Psychology; Elementary Spanish I; Introduction to Economics I; Human Biology; Introduction to Business; Fundamentals of Real Estate; Backgrounds of Civilization I and Orientation to Education.

All are three semester hour courses except Orientation to Education, which is a one-hour credit course, and Introduction to Business, listed as a two-hour credit course.

WHITE SANDS MISSILE RANGE, N. M. (ANS) — It was another bumper year at White Sands Missile Range, where — by coincidence — 1,961 missiles were fired in 1961.

However, these dual figures are only part of the story for the year at the nation's busiest misalle range, where at least three scheduled operations requiring use of range facilities have been running simultaneously every hour for the past two years.

Other highlights include the firing of the 15,000th missile since White Sands began operations in 1945, numerous major advances in the NIKE ZEUS anti-ICBM system, and the firing of four giant REDSTONE missiles by North Atlantic Treaty Organization troops back from Europe.

The missile most frequently fired at White Sands was HONEST JOHN, the Army's reliable artillery weapon, with 114 missions. Others which experienced heavy testing were LITTLE JOHN, 75 missions and HAWK, 57 missions.

Ernest Higgins AUSA President

Election Held Last Night; Division Sergeant Honored

Ernest W. Higgins of Columbus was elected president of the Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning Chapter, Association of the U.S. Army, at the chapter's annual election meeting in the Selerno Mess last night.

Four other officers and 10 members of the board of directors were also elected at the meeting. All were simultaneously installed in their new positions.

Officers

Other officers of the organization are: 1st vice president, Carl W. Patrick; 2nd vice president, William A. Lyman; secretary-treasurer, Col. John Bisbing, Infantry Center comptroller; and, assistant secretary-treasurer, Major Sidney J. Roche, G2, 2nd Infantry Division.

Directors

New members of the 30-man board of directors are Phenix City Mayor John Barbee, Felix Patrick, Lynn Smith, C. W. Curry, James Blanchard, Louis T. Kunze, Major Gen. (Ret.) George E. Lynch, Oscar L. Betts and Col. John Lattin, commander of the Infantry Center Troop Command, all for three year terms, and SMaj Robert L. Brown, sergeant major of the 2nd Division for an unexpired two year term.

The new officers were nominated by a committee comprised of Maynard Ashworth, chairman, James A. Byars, J. W. Feighner, L. T. Kunze, T. G. Reeves, Col. (Ret.) W. V. Rattan, Lt. Col. (Ret.) Guy E. Snavely and R. L. Hinson.

AUSA Award

In other business conducted at the annual meeting, Sfc Richard B. Alford of the 2nd Division was presented an AUSA plaque as the division's Career Soldier of the year for 1961.

Last night's meeting was held at 8 p.m., following a social hour and dinner.

The local chapter was honored last year as the largest in the AUSA, and has been a leading power in the world-wide organization.

TRAINING VISIT . . . During a recent visit to the training area of the 136th Transportation Company, a Florida National Guard unit on active duty here, Gen. Herbert B. Powell (L), Major Gen. Mark W. Lance (C), adjutant general of Florida, and Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly, deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, observe a soldier checking out a jeep's electrical system.

Beware That Dud May Not Be a Dud

Post safety officials are placing emphasis on the dangers of handling ammunition (duds) found on the reservation.

Information compiled by The Infantry Center Safety Office shows that many persons handle explosive materials when there is no reason for them to pick it up except out of curiosity.

A majority of all accidents involving "duds" can easily be avoided, safety officials said, because there is just one rule to follow: Don't touch it.

Cases are on record of explosive items blowing up many years after they were lost on battlefields, they pointed out, so a rusty or innocent looking projectile may be as deadly as one just off the arsenal's assembly lines.

Steps are constantly being taken to warn military personnel of the dangers in handling ammunition, and every means will be taken to pass the warning on to all civilians who enter the reservation.

All these warnings boil down to one thing: When you see ammunition lying about, leave it alone.

A-Attack Defense Of CONUS Posts Discussed Today

Col. J. R. Dean, chief of the Plans Branch, G-3 Section, Third Army, will conduct a briefing here today on "Post Attack Mobilization Plan — Department of the Army Study."

The briefing will be conducted at 1 p.m. in Room 249, Building 35.

Col. Dean is the Third Army representative of a committee established by Continental Army Command to prepare a program to accelerate and augment current passive defense programs and reduce the vulnerability of the Zone of Interior Army to thermonuclear attack.

Decorations

Among his decorations and awards are the Silver Star, the Legion of Merit and the Army Commendation Medal.

No stranger to Fort Benning, Col. Spencer was a member of the staff and faculty of The Infantry School from 1948 to 1951, and a student in the school from 1947 to 1948.

Col. Spencer is married to the former Audrey Hatsell of Chapel Hill, N. C., and they have three children, Audrey, Mark, and Atticus.

General To Address Rotary Club

Major Gen. Ethan A. Chapman, commanding general of XII Army Reserve Corps Atlanta, scheduled to tour the post January 23 to 25 will be guest speaker at the Columbus Rotary Club Wednesday at 12:30 p.m. at the Ralston Hotel.

He will speak on the Reserve program.

Gen. Chapman is expected to arrive on the post Tuesday at noon.

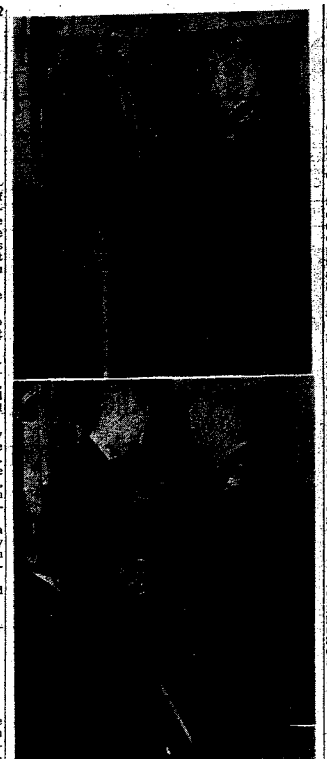
After a visit to Major Gen. Ben Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center, Gen. Chapman will be briefed on activities of the Center and The Infantry School.

His schedule for Wednesday includes an orientation on the Reserve program on the post.

The general will visit the 414th Transportation Company, a Reserve Aircraft unit from Greenville, S. C. recently called to active duty.

His itinerary also includes a visit to the professor of military science and tactics at Jordan Vocational High School in Columbus.

Gen. Chapman is scheduled to depart the post Thursday.



DOD Booklet Gives Facts On Castro's Cuba

NEW YORK (AFPS) —The facts on the Castro regime in Cuba are presented in a pamphlet provided by the Directorate for Armed Forces Information and Education. It is available through service information offices.

These facts are covered in view of the challenge Castro's regime presents to the Western Hemisphere and the inter-American community. "Cuba has already become a base and staging area for revolutionary activity throughout Latin America," the pamphlet states.

A detailed account is given of Castro's guvernament in its attempts to bring the Western Hemisphere under Communist domination. Through following the underlying causes of the Cuban revolution the pamphlet reports how the revolution was betrayed after Castro seized power.

Featured is a specially drawn map displaying Cuba's strategic geographical position in relation to Latin America with lines showing the mileage between Cuba and other Western Hemisphere countries.

92 YEARS SERVICE . . . Sydney G. Redding (Top L) with 48 years of Federal service, and Lawrence L. Wollbright (Bottom L) with 44 years, represent a total of 92 years service as they retire in ceremonies last month. Major Gen. Ben Harrell (R) commanding general of The Infantry Center, here presents both with Meritorious Service Awards, the Army's second highest award for civilians, during the retirement ceremonies. Redding was superintendent at The Infantry Center Quartermaster Laundry, and Woolbright was executive officer of the Quartermaster Section.

New Poster Released In TI Program

"Man — The Ultimate Weapon" is the title of the third in a series of posters distributed in support of the Army Information Program for Fiscal Year 1962.

The poster points up two facts: that modern military equipment merely supports the soldier, and that today's soldier must be of the highest possible quality to make effective use of this equipment and to operate within modern tactical concepts.

Quality and quantity are demanded in today's Army, and both are obtained, in both men and equipment.

Depicted in the poster are representative Infantrymen, ready for action after being delivered by Army helicopters. The radio helmet worn by the central figure is an example of the supporting items constantly being developed to help man complete his mission in any necessary use of military power.

The words on the poster, "Man" — the Ultimate Weapon," make clear the Army's first, and ultimate, need.

PX POINTS

The PX has become as deeply-rooted a part of the military as the uniform and the salute.

Project Mercury Used To Develop Space Crafts

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — In pursuing a national goal of a manned lunar landing by 1970 the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) is using its Project Mercury to produce a two-man space vehicle.

This space craft, capable of coupling to another vehicle in an earth orbit, is being developed to work out space rendezvous techniques.

Another plan is carrying out the later Project Apolo manned lunar landing expedition is a direct flight. It uses a multi-million pound thrust Nova booster.

The two-man craft will look like the single-seat Project Mercury spacecraft. However the slightly larger craft will be two or three times as heavy as the one-man Mercury vehicle.

An Agena stage will serve as the target vehicle. It is similar to vehicles used in Discoverer and Ranger projects.

In practice, the Agena stage will be launched into an earth orbit by an Atlas booster. With information culled from telemetry, optimum launch time wil be found, and the Titan booster sent on its way.

When the rendezvous craft is orbiting small rockets on both vehicles will be used to maneuver them into coupling position.

Yes, There Are Such Things; Post Has A 'Kentucky Colonel'

By Ida Evans

Fort Benning has a full-fledged "Kentucky colonel"—a female one, no less.

The honorary rank was recently given to Mrs. Hazel J. Scudder of Lexington, superintendent of the post's Children's Schools.

Kentucky Gov. Bert Combs commissioned Mrs. Scudder "to all whom these presents shall come, greetings. Know ye that Honorable Hazel J. Scudder of Fort Benning, Ga., is commissioned a Kentucky colonel. Done at Frankfort, the 4th day of December, in the year of our Lord, 1961, and the 170th year of the commonwealth."

Reserved for citizens who have brought distinction to Kentucky, the honorary rank has certain privileges.

A letter which accompanied the commission informed "Col. Hazel" she is entitled to "all the privileges of a Kentucky colonel, including two tickets to the governor's 'Burgoo Picnic'."

The picnic is held the day following the Kentucky Derby and honors all Kentucky colonels.

"I hope this means grandstand seats for the Derby, also," Mrs. Scudder said.

Mrs. Scudder was one of 20,000 outstanding women of the nation selected to appear in "Who's Who of American Women." She is also listed in "Who's Who in Education."

She is one of six members of the Committee on College and University Relationships, Department of Elementary School Principals of the National Education Association.

In 1955, Mrs. Scudder was delegate-at-large for military dependent schools at the White House Conference on Education.

Editorial

The Holidays Are Over But How Are The Bills?

Inevitably, after the holidays many of us fall victim to a midwinter letdown—a sort of January jaundice of spirit that in most cases isn't alleviated a bit by the weather. The fun-making's over; Santa and his jingle bells, bringing cards and gifts, have been replaced by the postman bringing anemic bank statements and bills.

The natural human tendency is to recoil from these mementos of December's open-heartedness. Actually there's no better time to look our financial condition in the face and, if it's ailing, to make sensible plans to get it out of the red. If we've committed ourself to time payments on loans or installment buying, now is the time to determine to honor them. For, as a wise man once said, if you want the time to pass quickly, just give someone your promissory note for 90 days.

Let's not gloss over the truth that some people just won't admit that when they incur a debt they are involving themselves in a contract which includes their promise to pay within a stipulated time. "Let them chase me to get it"—that's their muddled thinking. And, brother, chased they are.

True, in this character defect service people are no different from many civilians. But men who wear their country's uniform are expected by the service to discharge faithfully the moral obligations and standards it symbolizes. A man who fails to live up to his contract with a civilian bank, loan agency or business establishment is giving the military a black eye. He is inviting disciplinary action; he has no grounds for complaint when it is taken.

So this—in the wake of Christmas spending—is the ideal time for an inventory of our personal finances.

The Surgeon Says:

Latest Equipment, Methods, Help to Prevent Diseases

By Capt. Leonard F. Greenberg, MC

Last week we discussed the personnel of the Preventive Medicine Division and some of the work that they do to preserve your health. Let us continue with that subject.

Prevention of disease among military personnel and dependents is accomplished in large part by immunization against such diseases as typhoid fever, polio, smallpox and tetanus. When the soldier travels to a part of the world where cholera, typhus or yellow fever are prevalent, immunization against these is performed.

The Preventive Medicine Division operates a heat alert warning system based upon information obtained by the newest scientific equipment. This takes into account not only the air temperature, but also humidity and the wind.

When a reading is obtained which indicates that heat injury may occur, a heat alert is sounded, forewarning of the heat problem. This prevents many cases of heat stroke and heat exhaustion. As a result of this warning system, only one serious case of heat injury occurred last year.

Lectures are given each year to unit representatives covering preventive measures for heat injury, and enabling them to recognize it when it occurs.

Every unit on the post has a vector control team whose job it is to keep their unit free of insects and rodents through special training that they receive on management of those pests, and proper use of insecticides. This instruction is given by the Preventive Medicine Division.

In an effort to reduce the venereal disease rate among the military personnel at the Post, interviews are conducted with all persons infected in an effort to find the contacts of the disease. The local health authorities cooperate in this respect with examination and treatment of those contacts found to be infected.

The function of the Army Health Nurse is a very important part of Preventive Medicine. At present she is conducting a lecture series on prevention of accidental poisonings because of the large number of children brought to the Emergency Room each week after swallowing some poisonous substance.

We have not said much about the post veterinarian. He works in close conjunction with the Preventive Medicine Division.

His staff daily inspects quartermaster cold storage facilities, central meat processing facilities and commissaries to make certain that all food is government approved.

He is also responsible to see that all meat packing plants and food distributors in the area which sell food to the post are sanitary and meet certain regulations.

What Is a Newspaper?

The News You Read: 'Liaison With World'

(Members of the Armed Forces of the U. S. are the best informed military personnel in the history of the world. All the modern media of mass communication contribute to this healthy condition of a free country. To help you understand your newspaper better, the American Newspaper Publishers Assn. has prepared a series of six short articles. This is the first in the series.)

The primary purpose of a newspaper is to bring you the news and enable you to keep that news with you as long as you wish.

In terms of its cost to you, the newspaper costs almost nothing . . . a few cents.

In terms of what a newspaper means to you . . . everything.

What happens in Paris, Vienna or Cambodia, in the snowy wastes of Siberia, or the jungles of Africa, affects Main Street, U. S. A., and you — whether you are in the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, Coast Guard or in civies.

People invariably turn to newspapers for information ranging from the practical arts to the abstract sciences, for entertainment ranging from crossword puzzles to comic strips. Newspapers supply both information and entertainment.

Nearly everybody, everywhere, every day reads a newspaper. Some buy it at a newsstand, others have it delivered to their doorsteps. Some read a morning paper, some favor an evening paper, many others take both. The newspaper is our liaison with the world.

Why is this so? Well, Americans want to know — about everything, and promptly.

U. S. daily newspapers print an average of more than 2½ billion pages a day to satisfy news-conscious Americans. And they do it at a price that permits everyone to own the world for only a few pennies a day.

Man's Need To Follow Example

By Chap. (Capt.) R. H. Hawn

Why did Jesus Christ take upon him our nature and our sins? Primarily that He might redeem us and bring us to the glory of God, but perhaps there is another reason...that of love

... He suffered to serve us, through His love and left an example, for us to follow in his footsteps.

We first see Him as an infant, then as a boy in his Father's House, then as a man carrying God's mission for Him. In all of these He gives us much to learn and follow for all He did He did in the ordinary relations of life. We see Him among friends surrounded by His enemies. We see Him teaching the ignorant, healing the sick, curing the blind and deaf, feeding the hungry, caring for the destitute. He rebukes the presumptions, He talks with the sincere seeker of the truth, He disputes publicly with His impugners, He receives the repentant sinner with love and mercy. We can see Him under authority of His parents, teaching in the temple, looking for a place to sleep, walking in the public street, eating with the Publicans or going into a house of a Pharisee, and we can see Him on a journey and finally we can see Him in Jerusalem hanging on the cross. In every one of these situations, He is the perfect model of what we should be.

How would your life change, if in every action, word or thought, you were to ask the question, "How would Jesus have acted?" and then try to mould your conduct to conform to His.

The public life of Christ was the interpretation of His hidden life. He was helpful, patient, humble, kind, obedient loving, compassionate, charitable, and forgiving throughout His life in all that He did. Can we mould our lives to include the humility He displayed among men? His kindness towards His Disciples? His sympathy for the poor?...He condemned or spurned no one. He did not flatter the rich. He was not concerned for temporal necessities. He showed patience under insult. He did not fight back with bitter or sharp words but triumphed through humble and gentle replies. He suffered poverty, was compassionate toward the afflicted, and helped the weak. He avoided scandal sought out the sinner and always was calm in word and gesture. He was fervent in prayer, prompt in the service of others and in all things was concerned about the salvation of souls, for love of whom He came to us.

"Take my yoke upon you and learn of Me, for I am meek and lowly of heart; and ye shall find rest for your souls" (St. Matt: 11-29). These are Christ's words by which He would tell us to sanctify each path of life by following in His footsteps.

What shall I say..when my life is set side by side with His example? When Christ's humility is compared to mine? When His sweetness is compared to my anger and impatience, when His pureness of intention is held up to me, when all the wonderful attributes he displayed are set up beside me, what can I say except—

Grant, O my Lord, that, since Thou hast condescended to be my Teacher, I may be willing and ready to be Thy disciple. Where Thou leadest, I will not hesitate to follow.

In every action of my life may I endeavor to conform myself to thy image. O may my daily and hourly occupation be to see Thy example before me, and to approach to it as nearly as my weakness will permit. In trials and difficulties may I study Thee more intently and meditate on Thee more deeply, until I imbibe Thy Spirit and am guided by it entirely. O Lord, meek and humble of heart, make my heart like Thine.

'61 Statistics Give Bright Space Picture

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—The United States has increased the size of its list of space accomplishments with the addition of some important "firsts" during 1961.

Among these were:

Transit navigational satellites carried the first nuclear power generators into space.

A weather satellite spotted a hurricane for the first time in history. Hurricane Esther was discovered two days earlier than usual by Tiros III.

Vital data in regard to magnetic fields in space, sun-earth relationships, and the earth's radiation belts was collected by the Explorer X and XII satellites.

From October 1957 through 1961 the space age box score between Russia and the United States read:

Successful satellites and probes to date: U. S. 62, Russia 16.

Capt. Stafford Is Assigned to Infantry School

Capt. Medane G. Stafford has been assigned to the Command and Staff Department, The Infantry School, as an instructor with the Armor Committee.

He was last assigned as S-3, 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade.

Before reporting to this station, Capt. Stafford was assigned duties in Viet Nam in 1958-1959.

RANGERS PRACTICE ROCK DESCENT
Students Quickly Manage Steep Face

At Dahlonega Camp

The Rangers Learn The Ropes

The Mountain Ranger Camp, located in the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains near Dahlonega, Ga., where gold was first discovered in the U. S., is the site of one of the most vigorous and demanding training programs in the Army.

Instructors at the Mountain Range Camp teach officers and enlisted students of our Army and sister services and our Allies how to operate under simulated combat conditions in difficult and rugged mountainous terrain.

In accomplishing this task, the aspiring Ranger is taught basic military mountain climbing techniques, evacuation of casualties in rough terrain, use of Army aircraft, and conduct of patrols over extended periods of time.

Mountain training begins for the Ranger student prior to his arrival at the camp proper. The convoy by which he has moved from Fort Benning is stopped some two miles from camp. The class is dismounted and divided into patrols, the basic teaching formation used throughout the Ranger course.

Each student undergoes a complete inspection to insure that he and all his equipment is up to the standards expected of the Army Ranger.

After the inspection, each patrol moves by foot to the camp area. Along the way, instructors point out the various types of terrain and vegetation, explain where the best routes of movement generally are found, tell how to avoid the more dense thickets, how to walk over steep terrain with minimum effort, and bring out many other points to assist the student during future training.

This is the only time during the stay at the Mountain Ranger Camp that patrols will be "cadre led." From this point forward the Ranger is required to apply the principles and techniques taught at Fort Benning and on this walk to camp.

Actual training received at the mountain camp is divided into two broad areas: military mountaineering techniques and tactical military patrolling.

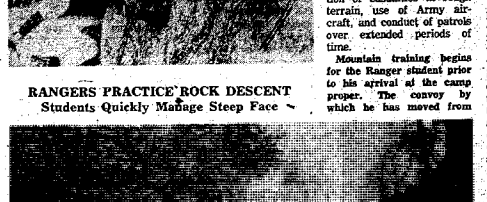
During mountaineering techniques instruction, each Ranger student is taught how to use ropes and special items of equipment in constructing bridges, moving troops and equipment up vertical rock faces, and how to climb or descend these rock faces.

One of the course highlights for the student is the rappel — lowering oneself down a steep face using only a rope. These rappels vary in height from 30 feet to 240 feet.

To the individual never before required to lower himself over a 240-foot sheer, rock face or, on the other hand, to climb this same rock face, there are initial moments of apprehension.

However, under the guidance of expert military mountaineers, such as MSgt Adolph Delso and MSgt George H. Wolcott, both of whom held the Soldier's Medal for high altitude rescues, the apprehension is soon overcome and the student confidently goes about his work.

Not only is the student required to lower himself by ropes, he must also make a descent with his buddy (a simulated casualty) tied on his back. This operation causes some discussion between personnel involved and results in increased confidence between individuals.



Tactical patrols conducted by the student vary in complexity from a short daylight reconnaissance patrol to combat patrols lasting for several days.

These patrols are conducted over extremely rugged terrain and require detailed planning as to the routes to be followed, equipment to be carried, clothing to be worn, patrol organization, and plans for resupply of ammunition and rations.

On certain problems, the student is required to plan for use of Army aircraft to deliver the patrol behind enemy lines and pick it up upon completion of the mission. Army aircraft are used also in resupply operations when patrols are out over extended periods of time.

Throughout all tactical operations, these patrols are subject to enemy action at any time. The aggressor enemy is furnished by units of the 1st Infantry Brigade.

During the mountain phase of training, the student has traveled great distances over rugged terrain, undergone long hours without rest in all types of weather, and been subjected to long periods of hunger. Upon completion of this training, the student is well on his way to becoming a Ranger, capable of operating anywhere at any time.

At P-TA Meeting

450 Told of Advances At Children's Schools

Approximately 450 members of the Fort Benning P-TA were given a graphic picture last week of expanded services of the post's Children's Schools.

Meeting in the auditorium of Faith School, the parents and teachers inspected new instructional equipment, physical fitness charts and plaques attesting to the athletic skill of military dependents.

Dr. Joseph Conforti of Lexington, Ky., director of instruction, explained the use of modern machines in the curriculum of post elementary schools.

A caliphone, he said, with ear phones for the students is used for instruction in languages and music.

Tape recorders, record players and TV sets play an important part in the expanded program of the schools.

An audiometer is used to test the hearing of the children. Vision is tested with an orthorater.

Other equipment presented to the parents included projectors, and a "controlled reader."

Four Speakers

Giving special emphasis to various phases of the expanded program were four speakers, each highlighting one particular area.

Lt. Col. James E. Farmer, provost marshal of The Infantry Center, explained an intensified program on safety in progress in post schools.

Although bicycle safety is receiving primary emphasis in the safety programs, Col. Farmer stressed the importance of cautioning children to stay away from excavations and construction projects.

Fitness Tests

Max L. Spurlin, director of physical education, presented information on the results of physical fitness tests administered to the school children recently.

The tests were given six weeks apart with an interim of special exercises.

Scores made by the children of post schools will compare favorably with national norms, Spurlin said.

The physical education director urged parents always to specify the nature of the disability when writing a note to excuse a child from participation in the program.

Nurse Program

The school nurse program was presented by Mrs. Lou Ella Williamson of Columbus.

Every illness and injury should be a learning experience for the child, the nurse said.

If he is sent home from school because of illness, it is explained to him that the move is made for his own benefit and to protect the teachers and other pupils from exposure.

Mrs. Williamson stressed the importance of accurate completion of health forms. The new records are cumulative and follow the pupil throughout his elementary school education regardless of transfer.

All allergies should be listed by the parents on the health form.

Although the school nurses seldom give medication, it is imperative they have a record of allergies.

The nurses work in close cooperation with the clinics at Martin Army Hospital, she said.

"If a child is taking medication on the order of a doctor, the prescription should be brought to the school nurse if a dose will be due during school hours," Mrs. Williamson said.

"Do not allow the child to keep his prescription at his desk," she urged.

Parents of early teen-age students should see that the boys and girls get enough sleep and eat a hearty breakfast, according to the school nurse.

"The tired school child is usually one who has stayed up too late the night before or skipped breakfast," she said.

School Library

The library is an added resource, a "child museum," Mrs. Mae Craighead told the parents.

"You can no longer think of a school library as just a place to check out a book or look up a reference," she said.

Although the libraries in the post schools have a circulation of 1,900 books per week, a large part of their work is furnishing classroom teachers models of the human eye, ear, and teeth, preserved reptiles, ant colonies and other material to enrich the curriculum.

"A librarian's greatest resource is a friendly atmosphere and a sympathetic manner," she said.

Program chairman for the meeting was Mrs. Samuel W. Koster.

Col. Sears Y. Coker, PTA president, presided.

Ted Weems and his orchestra will appear at the Main Officers' Open Mess Supper Club for one night only on January 21. For reservations call: 545-1420.

FIRST 49ER PARTY TICKET SOLD

Annual Charity 49er Party Set

Members of the Officers' Open Mess and their guests will be transported back to the wild and wooly days of the Gold Rush of 1849 during the 49er Party to be held Saturday, February 10.

The fun and entertainment, reminiscent of the western frontier days, will begin at 8 p.m.

The annual charity benefit is sponsored by the post chapter, Daughters of the U. S. Army.

Costumes

Costumes worn by the revelers will be judged and prizes awarded for the most appropriate, funniest, prettiest, most original and best couple.

Authentic frontier food will be served from Maggie's Chuck Wagon during the evening.

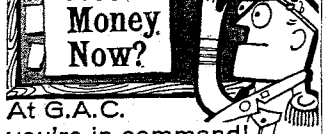
A bevy of beautiful "taxi dancers" will be available to twirl around the dance floor for a donation to charity. Others will perform the can-can.

Games will test abilities and luck of those attending.

Tickets may be purchased at the Main Officers' Open Mess, Martin Army Hospital, major units of the 2nd Infantry Division, Infantry Center Troop Command, Student Brigade, Infantry Board and from members of the Junior Army Daughters, according to Major Raymond W. King, ticket chairman.

Col. Sydney E. Sacerdote is the 1962 49er chairman and Mrs. Harry H. Hiestand is president of the Army Daughters.

PX POINTS



In 1960, the Exchange Service bought about $87 million worth of cigarettes, $42 million worth of beer and soft drinks, and more than $15 million worth of phonograph records.

Mid-Week Chapel Services Started

A committee of sergeants will conduct mid-week services at the Main Post Protestant Chapel.

Members of the committee are MSgts Frank Hardin and B. F. Collins, SFc Henry White and SSgt James C. Lewis.

Jenni Johnson on Etiquette

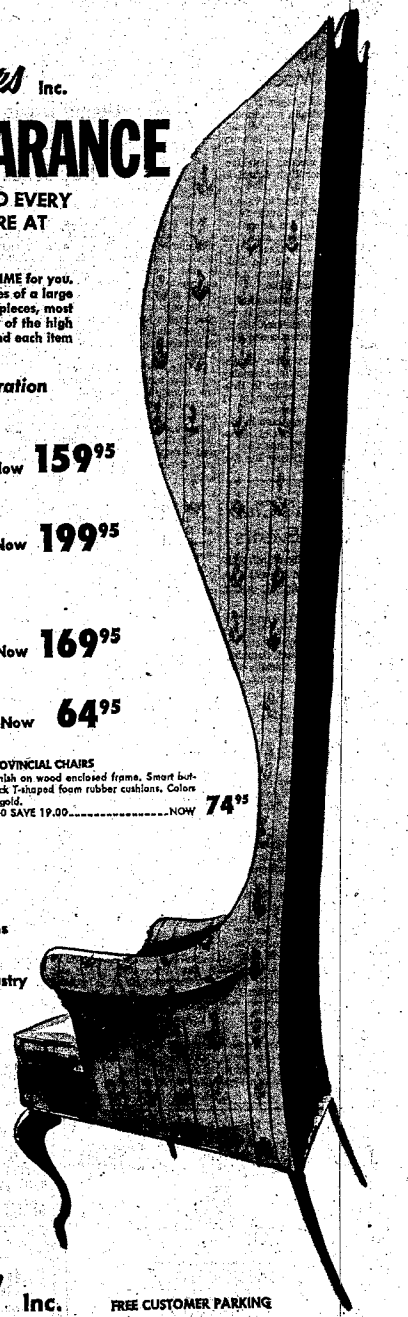
DEAR JENNI: We often go to the movies or little theatre productions with the couple next door. My husband always wants to sit between the women, and I say he is wrong. In what order should he enter the row in which our seats are situated?

SEAT SITUATION

DEAR SEAT SITUATION: It is now customary and acceptable for the two women to be seated next to each other. So, one of the men enters the row first followed by the two women, and then the second man. I would like to add that your husband may have a motive for sitting there. Could it be annoying conversation between you two gals?

JENNI

DEAR JENNI: I attended an informal dinner party recently and the hostess passed cigarettes after the meal. Some guests declined and smoked their own. Weren't they being rude?



POLITE SMOKER

DEAR POLITE SMOKER: Yes, they were rude. They should have accepted the cigarette offered by the hostess. However in this time of fad cigarettes, your hostess should have provided both filter and non-filter brands or none. If the brand is one you simply can't smoke then decline the cigarette and wait until they have been removed before taking out your own brand. Since the hostess passed the cigarettes it would not be necessary to offer your dinner partners your brand.

Allies Talk At Columbus P-TA Meet

Education in Argentina, Burma and Australia was discussed by Allied officers attending classes at The Infantry School at a Parent - Teacher Association meeting last Monday at Baker High School in Columbus.

Major Adel Edgardo Vilas of Argentina, Capt. Aung Si of Burma and Lt. Ian John Gollings of Australia, spoke on "Education in My Country."

Arrangements for the Baker School meeting were made by Mrs. Robert Heller.

Major Vilas, a veteran of 15 years military service, is the father of two children. He is from Goya-Corrientes and Buenos Aires.

Capt. Si has three daughters, was born in Mandalay and makes his home in Rangoon. He is a veteran of 11 years military service.

Lt. Gollings was born in Victoria, and now lists his home as Tasmania. He has been in the Australian Army for five years.

Next week brings the close of the first school semester. To seniors especially, this is an important period. Time is short to raise lower grades, but long enough to let even the best grades slip.

The only way to make the good grades for college is caring and studying every night, and not only the night before a test.

To the underclassmen college may seem distant, but a low average is hard to pull up in the last year. The very important college board scores from December are now available at the high schools. This past Saturday many students took these long and tedious tests.

The National Guard Armory housed Senior Beatniks of Baker. The decorations were good mood setters for the casual dance.

All Sophomores are invited to Sniffy Smith Social on January 20. The school cafeteria is going to be the ballroom. Sweat shirts and blue jeans should be worn.

Baker's Student Council is seeking two iron lions to represent their mascot. They are also sponsoring a talent show.

The Lion's roar on the basketball court was softened after they lost to Columbus High recently.

This week has been filled with semester exams for Pacellians. After all the hard work they will be given a holiday on Friday.

An enjoyable time was had by all those attending the March of Dimes Benefit Dance. Parents also attended the dance and "twisted" with their sons and daughters. The Walkathon is to receive the proceeds.

Although they lost both games everyone had a good time at Macon. In an overtime the girls lost 51-29. Liz Reynolds was their high scorer. A nice dance with plenty of refreshments was given by the host team.

Federal Aid to Education was debated at Cuthbert last week by the Debator's Club. Unfortunately they received a loss by five points. Fort Benning members include Mike Cerrone, Peter Connor, Jack Guernsey, Bill Higgins, Greg Jones, Larry Magner, Johnny Meads and Jim Wein.

Last night Bell Book and Candle was presented by the Columbus High Footlighters. Many Benningites participated in the production. Modern New York City was the scene in which the present day witches practiced their art. Gillian tried to put a spell on Shep, a bachelor portrayed by Ted Franklin.

Nicky, Hal Geithsian, was Gillian's brother involved in his own black magin. A match making aunt, also a witch, added to the confusion. A party which was given by another member of the witch clan led to a dance line made up almost entirely of Benningites.

Miss Chandler, the speech teacher, directed the play.

The sets were done professionally in Atlanta.

Victory over Jordan High last Friday increased the "Blue Devils" chance for a Bi-City championship this year. A pep rally bolstered school spirit.

Saturday was "Play Day" for all girls in P. E. Basketball teams of one class played those of another period to see how they compared and to have fun.

In preparation for the 49er Party, JADA will collect White Elephants January 27th. Several girls are in charge of collections on each street. Please dig in your closets and contribute to this sale.

During the remaining semester lets work to make this a year we can be proud to think of in the future.

Toastmistress Officials To Attend Installation

Three officials of International Toastmistress Clubs, Inc., will attend a banquet at 8 p.m. tomorrow sponsored by the Fort Benning-Columbus (Ga.) Toastmistress Club at the Main Officers' Open Mess.

They are Mrs. J. H. O'Donnell, national secretary, and Mrs. Gene Passmore, director of the Southeast Region, both of Birmingham, and Mrs. Nell Bedsole of Montgomery, president of Council No. 1 composed of nine clubs in the Georgia-Alabama area.

The banquet will be followed by a program on the theme, "Journey Toward Leadership."

Winner of the club's "Speaker-of-the-Term" contest will be announced at the banquet.

A slate of new officers will be installed. They are Mrs. Bill Collins, president; Miss Mae Johnson, vice president; Mrs. Fred Koerber, recording secretary; Mrs. Abraham Muscari, treasurer, and Mrs. Royce Hunt, corresponding secretary.

Dance Program Feature At Department Lunch

The Supper Club was the scene of the Command and Staff Department Ladies' luncheon January 11. Hostesses for the occasion were ladies of the Defense Committee.

Mrs. Samuel Koster welcomed the members and guests. Special guests were Mrs. Koster, Sr., mother of Col. Koster and Mrs. Hugo Lauer, mother of Mrs. Jean K. Woodyard, Jr.

A special welcome was extended new members Mrs. Michael Thiel, Mrs. Thomas G. Ziek, Mrs. Mowlon L. Waring, Jr., and Mrs. Mehane Stafford who was a guest of Mrs. Albert E. Seifert.

An interesting program was presented by students from the Women's Club School of Dance, under the direction of Mrs. Howard Wilson and Mrs. James Wingate.

The tables were decorated with pink tulle, artificial roses and pink ballet slippers to carry out the theme of the program. A ballerina doll was the centerpiece for the head table.

The next luncheon will be a style show in March.

Child Training Is Subject at Annual Meet

Seeing the world through the eyes of a child will be discussed by Capt. Jack H. Scott at a meeting of Fort Benning's Women-of-the-Chapels January 24 at the Religious Education Center, Building 2606.

Subject of the talk at the 10:30 a.m. meeting will be child training.

Capt. Scott, clinical psychologist at Martin Army Hospital, will make the keynote address in a program on "What Makes a Christian Home — How to Raise Christian Children."

Training Set at Fort McClellan

Three Inf Battle Groups, Three Artillery Battalions, Other Elements in 10-Day Exercise at Alabama Post

What Goes On Here?

Private First Class Harold Hall, 11th Infantry, seems to be calling for help. But that's not the case. (See Story, P. 10)

Three battle groups, three artillery battalions, and companies and elements of other division units will participate in field training at Fort McClellan, Alabama, January 29 through February 7.

Objectives of the ten-day exercise are to conduct major unit tactical maneuvers on unfamiliar terrain, provide training in planning and conducting long - distance motor movements, provide tactical and supporting units the opportunity to work together for an extended period in task force organizations, and to gain experience in organization, control and support of independent brigade-type operations.

Units to go to Fort McClellan include the 1st, 23rd and 87th Infantries; battalions of the 15th, 37th and 38th Artilleries; Companies A, D, and E of the 2nd Engineer Battalion; Company A, 13th Transportation Battalion; elements of Companies A and B, 122nd Signal Battalion; 2nd Aviation Company, 2nd Quartermaster Company, 702nd Ordnance Battalion, 2nd Medical Battalion, Division Trains Headquarters and the bridge platoon of the 2nd Engineers.

A similar battle group field training exercise involving other division elements and units is scheduled for February 26 through March 7 at Fort McClellan.

The division units will go to Fort McClellan in an administrative motor movement.

During the ten-day exercise the reinforced battle groups will participate in non-firing exercises as prescribed and prepared by Division Brigade.

Test Tests

First Expert Infantryman's Badge tests will be given to members of the 9th Infantry from January 29 to February 10.

A tentative schedule calls for the 87th Infantry to be tested in March, 23rd Infantry in April, 1st Infantry in June, 11th Infantry in July. Tests for each battle group will last two weeks.

At present the men of the 9th Infantry are undergoing preparatory training for their forthcoming EIB testing.

Preparation for the test consists of refresher courses in bayonet training, grenade throwing, patrolling, adjustment of artillery fire, military courtesy and discipline, intelligence, physical fitness, first aid, field sanitation, demolition, mines and boobytraps, map reading and camouflage.

In each of the 13 different categories, the Infantrymen must attain a minimum of 70 per cent in order to pass.

Master Sergeant Edwin H. Knueppel, of the division's G-3 training section, is non-commissioned officer in charge of EIB training and testing. For the past month, he has been preparing the EIB testing area, coordinating preparations as the testing dates draw near.

According to Sergeant Knueppel, when EIB tests were offered last June, approximately 20 men achieved high enough scores to earn the coveted badge. Army Regulation 600-73, states that the purpose of the Expert Infantryman's Badge is to provide tangible recognition of the attainment of a high degree of professional skill, proficiency and excellence as an Infantryman and to promote esprit, and provide incentive to greater effort.

More of the requirements for the badge include a forced march of 12 miles with light pack, to be completed in three hours. Before a man may qualify for the test he must have rated sharpshooter or above with the M-1 rifle.

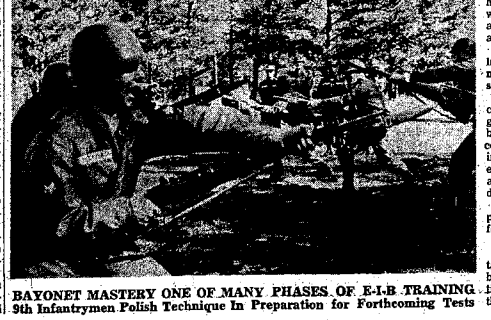
Div 'Foxtrot' Players Back From Two-Day Field Exercise

2nd Infantry Division Headquarters and supporting elements returned yesterday from the field and a two-day command post exercise—CPX "Foxtrot."

Beginning Tuesday, the officers and men established and operated division communications nets. The purpose was to minimize processing and transmission time of messages. The exercise also provided all staffs with practice in preparation of estimates and orders.

Support

Supporting elements active in CPX "Foxtrot" included a Division Tactical Operations Center, Fire Support Coordination Center, G-1, G-4, G-5, Division Trains Headquarters, Division Logistical Control Center, signal support and message center.



Command posts capable of 24-hour operation were furnished by Division Artillery, all battle groups, the 2nd Engineer Battalion, 69th Armor, 7th Cavalry and the 2nd Aviation Company.

Maps of Europe were used to simulate the division's participation in the "Campaign."

The general situation confronted by division elements in CPX "Foxtrot" was the following:

After launching an invasion of Europe from the major cities of Posen, Breslau and Brunn, the Aggressor Nation attacked in a westerly direction on three axes of ad-

Beginning Jan. 29

EIB Testing Scheduled For All 2nd Division BGs

Members of the 2nd Division's five Infantry battle groups will be given the opportunity to earn the Expert Infantryman's Badge again this year.

A committee of 64 men, E-5 and above, has been formed to supervise testing. The men, drawn from most division units, are headed by Major Dudley T. Bunn, 11th Infantry S-2 (Intelligence) and chief of the division's EIB testing committee.

The Soldier's Survival Aptitude to be Tested

To earn the Expert Infantryman's Badge the 2nd Division Infantryman will have to prove himself in 16 basic Infantry skills.

Training in EIB test subjects will be intergrated into the regular battle group training programs. According to the Army Regulation 600-73, dated August 1961, requirements will be:

Sharpshooter

1. Weapons qualifications: The individual must qualify as a sharpshooter or better with his individual weapon or as a first class gunner or better with his crew-served weapon. He will be able to field strip and assemble his individual weapon and one crew-served weapon.

2. Forced road march: Each individual will complete a 12-mile road march in three consecutive hours.

3. Military courtesy and discipline: A written test will be given and each individual will be tested in reporting to the company commander, challenging as a sentry, recitation and explanation of general order's and articles of the Code of Conduct.

4. First aid: A written test plus practical work in five different first aid procedures.

Hygiene

5. Field sanitation and military hygiene: six subjects will be covered, including precautions for avoiding disease in the field and demonstrating a method of water purification.

6. Demolitions, mines, and boobytraps: Individuals will be tested in the preparation and proper use of a demolition charge, knowledge of mines, method of locating mines by probing, minefield marking signs, common types of boobytraps and identification of different types of firing devices.

7. Patrolling: The candidate will be tested in methods of observing and changing positions, selection of day and night routes, movement and observation, various arm and hand signals for squad and platoon and combat formations for squad and platoon.

8. Map reading and compass course: the candidate will pass both a day and night compass course, plus a written test of his knowledge of maps.

Intelligence

9. Military intelligence: Individuals will have to demonstrate methods and procedures for recording and transmitting information pertaining to the enemy. He will also demonstrate the proper method for handling and processing prisoners of war and captured documents. Finally, he will demo-

NCOs Honor Departing 69th Leader

By 69th Armor PIO

The 69th Armor's Non-Commissioned Officers held a farewell luncheon January 11 in honor of their departing commander, Lieutenant Colonel Harry H. Hiestand.

Following lunch, Colonel Hiestand spoke briefly. He was presented a plaque by Sergeant Major Stephen J. Regan.

Col. Hiestand, 69th commander since July 8, 1960, has been reassigned to the Washington, D. C., area.

'Searchlight' Award Won By 87th NCO

By 87th Inf PIO

Sergeant First Class William Baldwin, a member of Company D, 87th Infantry, recently won an award from Operation Searchlight for suggesting a modification of the quarter-ton truck which carries the 106 millimeter recoilless rifle.

Sergeant Baldwin suggested that a center track should be added to the bed of the jeep. By supporting the weight of the gun, primarily on the track, tension of the sides of the bed is relieved.

Before this improvement, a great deal of time and money was spent repairing damages caused by the weight of the weapon on the unsupported bed of the vehicle.

For having his suggestion accepted, Sergeant Baldwin received a $15 check and a letter of commendation.

Live Mortar Fire Trains Rifle Squad

The rifle platoons of the 23rd Infantry are becoming closely acquainted with the devastating fire power of Combat Support Company's heavy mortar platoon.

For almost two weeks platoon after platoon have come within 400 meters of the impact of the high explosive 4.2 inch rounds. Delivered with deadly accuracy, the constant hammering of mortar rounds on the same hilltop has made the hill almost void of vegetation and man-made objects.

From 1,700 meters away Lieutenant Clyde K. Cleveland and one squad of his section provide this supporting fire twice a day for rifle platoons undergoing the live-fire problem. Using only one mortar, Lt. Cleveland delivers 20 rounds over a period of approximately seven minutes. A rate of fire of one round every 30 seconds is initially used and is increased to one round every five seconds as the rifle platoon approaches its objective. The cease fire limit is cited at 400 meters.

Hunting Guide

11th Infantry Man Knows How to 'Converse' With Elk, Pheasants, Ducks, Raccoons, Geese

By 11th Infantry PIO

Ever wake to the roar of a bull elk while on a field problem in the Fort Benning woodlands?

Most 2nd Division personnel undoubtedly haven't. But more than one man of Company E, 1st Battle Group, 11th Infantry may have expected a rampaging elk to appear out of the morning mist.

The reason: Private First Class Harold Hall, a professional guide from Idaho, who hasn't only developed calls designed to attract elk, but pheasants, ducks, geese, "chuxer," crows, frogs, quail and raccoon as well.

'Chuxer'

Hall, an assistant rocket launcher gunner in Company E, has spent several winters in the Owhyee Mountains region along the Snake River near Boise, Idaho, guiding hunters toward conquests chiefly of deer, and sometimes of "chuxer," a game bird sired between the Hungarian partridge and the pheasant.

Hall, who grew up in the midst of wildlife on his father's ranch along the Snake River, is an avid hunter and fisherman himself and chiefly has gone into guiding as a hobby. But after he serves his tour in the Army, he has plans of going back to the business — after getting to know more about the Boise hills area and perhaps changing his aim to elk.

So far, Hall's customers have been generally from the Boise area, including a number of Air Force personnel from Mountain Home, Idaho, Air Force Base. He obtains his business chiefly by word of mouth, by making it known that "for fellows who want to get a mule deer, I'll take them and show them where to get it."

Although there is no call for deer, which he describes as a generally mute animal, he leads hunters to the ridges where deer are apt to be found, and lets them take it from there.

Both Hall and his father, Ray L. Hall of Melba, Idaho, have had close calls in hunting game animals.

The elder Hall, having wounded a black bear cub, temporarily lost the wounded animal and started through the brush to find it. He heard a lot of noise in the bush, then moments later heard a branch snap behind him.

The mother of the cub had got Hall's scent and was about to pounce on him when he whirled and calmly fired a bullet through the 300-pound animal's head. He then found and finished the wounded cub and one of its brothers for a three-bear haul.

Near-Tragedy

Hall's near-tragic experience occurred with a four-point buck deer.

After wounding the animal in a rear leg, the Company E soldier began looking for it to end the animal's suffering. He found and began chasing it, hoping for a close shot since he had only one shell left. Both man and deer began to tire, and finally the deer kneeled down in fatigue and Hall took aim and fired—but only creased the buck's skull.

Temporarily stunned, the 300-pound animal saw the hunter-guide and roared after him, missing the slightly-built Hall only by inches.

Then the 11th Infantryman grabbed for some large rocks and with the second throw hit a horn and again stunned the beast. Hall then took out his hunting knife to cut the deer's throat and accomplished his job—but only after the animal had caught Hall with his horns and tossed him six feet in the air.

Finally, the battered hunter brought his battered prize home.

69th Armor Officers Salute Departing CO

The officers and ladies of the 69th Armor bade farewell to Lieutenant Colonel and Mrs. Harry H. Hiestand Saturday night at a buffet at the Lawson Field branch of the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Following the buffet, Colonel Hiestand presented engraved cigarette lighters to several officers who will soon depart the battalion.

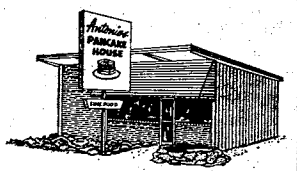
These include Captain Eugene E. Reardon and Captain Frank F. Grandone who will soon depart for duty in the Far East. Lieutenant Benjamin Boswell, also reassigned to the Far East was not present. Captain James O'Neill will soon depart the battalion, but not the division. His new assignment will take him to the office of the 2nd Infantry Division G-1 (personnel).

New Parents

Baby cups were presented to the new parents of the battalion. Presentations were made to Lieutenant and Mrs. Joseph D. Kelly, and Lieutenant and Mrs. Charles F. Lenzi, both the proud parents of girls.

Former members of the battalion, Captain and Mrs. Abraham Muscari and Captain and Mrs. Donald Modica were introduced to the members of the battalion.

Colonel Hiestand, 69th commander since July 8, 1960, has been reassigned to the Washington, D. C., area. He was assigned to the division following his graduation from the 1956-69 regular course at the Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.



As 69th commander, it marked Col. Hiestand's third tour of duty at Fort Benning. He is a 1942 graduate and a former instructor at the Infantry Officer Candidate School.

TAKE SIX

Sergeant Jesse W. Locke, of the S-3 section, 9th Infantry, recently reenlisted for another six years to add to the ten that he has already served.

Taiwan Lt Sees Ist's Operations

By 1st Inf PIO

"There is so much happening at one time!" This was a comment made by Lieutenant Yung-ch'ang Chiao of the Taiwan Army during his brief assignment with the 1st Infantry.

Lt. Chiao, a graduate of the Taiwan Officer Candidate School, recently completed observer and on-the-job training with the "Always First" battle group. The young officer worked with members of the communication platoon and saw first hand the battle group's communication structure in operation.

Signal

A signal officer in the Army of Taiwan, Lt. Chiao recently completed the Infantry Communications Officer Course at Fort Benning. The intensive 12-week course covered Infantry communications and associated equipment organic to Infantry and airborne battle groups.

Lt. Chiao, escorted by Lieutenant Bobby R. Wilkins, battle group communications officer, visited Company C while in the field to observe communications support to an Infantry company and use of equipment within the company.

A highlight of his assignment was a tour of the 122nd Signal Battalion, where Lt. Chiao observed communications repair facilities in operation.

The young Taiwanian officer received a brief interview with the 1st's commander, Colonel Walter B. Todo. Colonel Todd wished the young officer success in his coming assignments and presented him with a "Semper Primus" crest for his brief assignment with the 1st Infantry.

Prior to his departure for Taiwan, Lt. Chiao said, "I have learned much in your country and wish to thank everyone for their kind help."

Wives' Club Sponsors Piano Lessons on Post

BY INGRID KRAUS

Piano lessons are being sponsored by the Second Division Officers' Wives' Club.

Donald Carr of Columbus is giving the lessons, which are open to all grade and high school students.

Chapel Organist

Carr, who has been teaching piano and organ for the past ten years, is organist at the Main Post Protestant Chapel, where he has also given several concerts in both piano and organ.

Born in Manhattan, Kansas, he began to study piano when he was six; later studying violin, cello and voice. Carr was educated at Kansas State University, Washburn University and the Kansas City Conservatory of Music.

Since 1952, he has made seven concert tours, appeared weekly on a television program sponsored by the Air Force and entertained in many of the nation's finer clubs as well as the Kansas Governor's mansion. He has also served as choir director for several churches, including St. Michael's Mission-in-the-Woods when he was stationed at Fort Benning and St. Thomas' Episcopal Church in Columbus after returning to civilian life.

The instructor was accompanist to the Fort Benning Infantry Chorus when, in 1959, it won the first command trophy on the Third U. S. Army level of the All Army Entertainment contest.

PIANO TEACHER
Donald Carr

Purposes

Mrs. L. R. Hathaway, lessons chairman, said that the Second Division Wives' Club is sponsoring Carr for two reasons:

1. To have a permanent teacher instead of temporary instructors.

2. To keep from having to send the children downtown for lessons.

The 30-minute individual lessons are being held Tuesday through Friday afternoons after school at the Spanish Sunday School building next door to the Tot Town Nursery on Main Post.

The Second Division Officers' Wives' Club is also planning an evening adult class on the chords and a class on musical instruments for children and adults.

To enroll students in Carr's classes and for further information on any of the lessons, call Mrs. Hathaway at 545-3518.

18 Officers Attend Div's Aerial Observer School

Eighteen officers have enrolled in the 2nd Infantry Division Aerial Observer School. The school, which began last week and is scheduled through January 27, is a division wide project, but is limited to those units having need of aerial observers.

The 2nd Aviation Company is conducting the school in two phases, ground school and in-flight training.

In the ground training phase, the officers will undergo a total of 73 hours of training, including such subjects as map reading, communications, principles of intelligence, principles of air observation and elementary navigation.

The in-flight training phase lasts 24 hours, and includes reconaissance, observation and survey, and conduct of fire.

Upon successful completion of the course, the students will be designated Aerial Observers . . . "the eyes of the 2nd Division from an aerial platform."

Engineers School 1st In River Crossings

By 2nd Engineer Battalion PIO

The 2nd Engineer Battalion's Company A and bridge platoon have been lending support to the 1st Infantry in assault river crossings.

Classes were presented to the battle group by the engineers on orientation, familiarization and practical exercises in assault river crossings.

The engineers demonstrated the various methods, which included crossings by assault boats, light tactical rafts and by aluminum footbridges.

12 Infantrymen

The assault boats can be used to transport up to 12 infantrymen, and three engineers to assist in the crossings, and to bring the boat back across for another trip. The light tactical raft can transport loads equal to the weight of a two-and-a-half ton truck and a 105 millimeter howitzer.

Both the assault boats and the light tactical raft are found in a combat engineer battalion. The aluminum footbridge can cross up to 75 men-per-minute across a body of water.

Practical exercises were conducted in final preparation for actual crossing conducted under combat conditions.

Other battle groups, along with the 7th Cavalry, will receive similar instruction in the near future by the 2nd Engineer Battalion's Companies B, C, D and E.

Capt. A. A. Tritsch To C-B-R Course

Captain Arthur A. Tritsch, S-2 section of the 7th Cavalry, has departed for Fort McClellan, Alabama, where he will attend the four week Chemical-Biological - Radiological Officers' School.

Upon Captain Tritsch's return, he will resume his duties as S-2 of the squadron and will also continue his additional assignment as Squadron CBR Officer.

Berths on 1st Inf Rifle Team Goal of Hard-Working Shooters

By 1st Inf PIO

"Get a good spot weld and hold it!"

How many times during Basic Combat Training have you heard these familiar words by the instructor?

Soon, members of the 1st Infantry will hear this — and more — as they try for a berth on the "Always First" Rifle and Pistol Team.

Project Bullseye

Captain John D. Rinedollar, assistant S-3, will be chief coordinator for "Project Bullseye," which, when completed, will have the best of the "Always First" marksmen to represent the battle group during the 2nd Infantry Division Commanding General's Championship Matches.

The division matches, to be held February 20-24, will consist of competitive shooting with M-1 rifle, the .45 Caliber pistol and the automatic rifle.

Captain Rinedollar has selected some of the outstanding marksmen within the battle group to assist him in the training program. Master Sergeant Charles Roberts, also a holder of the Distinguished Marksmanship Badge, will assist the captain in rifle instruction. Chief instructor for the pistol will be Specialist Five Jesse L. Yearta, who has won many competitive pistol matches as a member of the Third U. S. Army Pistol Team.

"The program will be divided into three phases," said the young captain. "The first phase will be a marksmanship clinic conducted by experienced competitive marksmen within the battle group. In doing this, we hope to instill correct competitive shooting habits in the maximum number of shooters."

"In the second phase," he said, "we will conduct battle group matches in all the weapons. Awards will be given during competitive matches and the most consistent and outstanding marksmen will be chosen to enter the third phase."

"The third and final phase of our training will probably be the most difficult because members will undergo intensified training by experienced marksmen."

23rd Infantry Hosts Iranian Officers' Visit

Two Iranian officers toured the 23rd Infantry this week.

Captains M. Eshkevari and P. Chaffari were shown the 23rd Infantry Trophy Room, where they were briefed on the unit's history and traditions. During the week they observed a rifle squad attack on an armed position, organized athletics, platoon tactical training, a troop information program and motor pool operations. Special emphasis was placed on observing the operating procedures of Headquarters and Combat Support Company.

Capt. Eshkevari was especially interested in the operations of the 23rd's personnel, intelligence, training and logistics offices. Capt. Chaffari concentrated on rifle company training.

The two allied officers have been attending the Associate Career Course at The Infantry Center.

You May Hitchhike, But Don't Block Traffic?

This short traffic quiz was prepared by the 2nd Division Provost Marshal's Office in an attempt to better acquaint you with the safe and legal methods of operating a motor vehicle. All information is taken from Fort Benning Pamphlet 385-3, Vehicle Registration and Traffic Regulations.

True or False

1. At the sound of a siren, whistle, bell or horn, accompanied by a red light indicating an approaching emergency vehicle, all motorists within the intersection should pull to the right hand edge of the intersection and wait until the emergency vehicle has passed.

2. A pedestrian crossing a roadway, other than at an intersection or marked crosswalk has the right of way and all vehicular traffic must stop and allow them to cross.

3. Pedestrians must remember that where sidewalks are not available, they must walk on the left side of the roadway, facing traffic.

4. It is permissible to solicit rides on the reservation providing you do not block the normal flow of traffic while doing so.

Answers

1. False. At the sound of a siren, whistle, bell or horn, accompanied by a red light indicating an approaching emergency vehicle, all motorists within the intersection should pull to the right hand edge of the intersection and wait until the emergency vehicle has passed. (see 17-f)

2. True. Pedestrians, including small troop details, will use sidewalks. Where sidewalks are not available, pedestrians will walk on the left side of the road, facing traffic. (see 17-h)

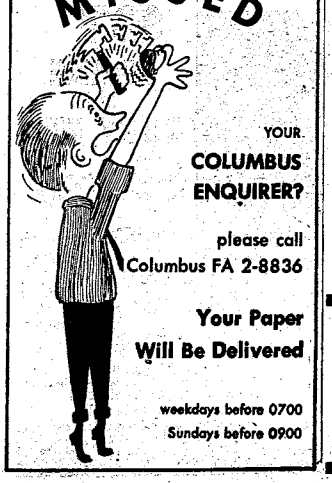
3. False. Hitchhiking on roadways is the reservation is prohibited. (see 17-f)

Lt. J. Welch New Troop A Leader At 7th Cavalry

By 7th Cavalry PIO

The 7th Cavalry bids farewell to Captain Richard O. Edwards, commander of Troop A of the squadron since last June.

The captain will report to the Far East and Pacific Area after taking leave to settle his wife and two sons in Rome, New York.



Captain Edwards saw service in the Korean Conflict and was wounded during this time. The captain also served in Germany, and before joining the 7th Cavalry, he attended the Armor Officers' Career Course at Fort Knox, Kentucky.

Taking over the duties of Captain Edwards will be Lieutenant Jackie L. Welch, the executive officer of Troop A and formerly commander of Troop B, 7th Cavalry.

Dancers to Compete Jan 23 In Service Club Two Contest

BY CLAY LACY

A dance contest sponsored by Service Club Two in Sand Hill should allow all members of the Indianhead Division to demonstrate their agility in any one of over a dozen dance specialties.

The latest craze, pushed to gyrating headlines by Chubby Checkers, "the twist," will be one of the categories of the contest, scheduled for the evening of January 23 at the Service Club.

Miss Madeline J. Parks, Club Director, says of the contest: "I've seen many a wild step in my more than a decade of Service Club work, but this calypso, the "Madison", jitterbug and the tango. For those with energy to spare are the mambo, the Charleston, the cha cha and the "limbo." For those of less strenuous nature there will be the waltz.

Other specialties for the limber contestants are the "slop," "Bristol stomp," the "Madison", jitterbug and the tango. For those with energy to spare are the mambo, the Charleston, the cha cha and the "limbo." For those of less strenuous nature there will be the waltz.

Trains, 87th Inf, DivArty, Sep Bn Record Hoop Season's First Wins

FROM UNIT PIO'S

A spirited seesaw battle between the 11th Infantry and Division Trains led the excitement Monday night as competition began in the 1962 edition of the 2nd Infantry Division Basketball Tournament.

The 11th-Trains tilt ended with Trains on top, 52-44, after a tied half-time score and a nip-and-tuck second half.

Scores

In other games, the 87th's Conquerors defeated the 23rd Infantry quintet, 70-45; Division Artillery downed the 9th Infantry Manchus, 87-52, and Separate Battalions (69th Armor) posted a win over the 1st Infantry, 70-46.

Both the 11th and Trains had trouble mounting a successful offense in the early stages of the game and midway through the first half only 12 points had been scored with the 11th leading, 9 to 3.

After both teams settled down considerably, the lead seesawed with the half ending in a knotted score of 21-all.

In the final stanza, neither team could build up more than a two-point lead until the final five minutes when Trains pulled ahead by 10 points and stayed out in front to take the win.

Walter Clark led Trains with 14 points; James L. Allen posted 12 points for the 11th.

87th Inf	70
23rd Inf	45

Height plus the deadly accuracy of four 87th men contributed to the Conquerors' victory over the 23rd Infantry.

Ronald Brooks paced the 87th quintet with 14 points to be followed by Lawery Jordan with 12 points. Leading the 23rd Infantry in scoring was Clint Johnson with 14 points.

Aiding the 87th was their almost unerring accuracy at the free throw line. Out of 16 tries a total of 13 points were scored.

Both teams utilized a fast break, trying each other's stamina.

The 23rd Infantry started the second half with a more effective scoring attack, but could not sustain the drive.

DivArty	87
9th Inf	52

The 9th Infantry Manchus, hustling behind their high scorer Ben Nordell, who poured in 18 points, fought a losing battle against a tough DivArty club 87-52.

Scoring came easy for the lanky Artillery squad as they took the lead in the opening minutes of the contest and kept a ten-point lead over the Manchu five throughout the first period.

Behind the superb shooting of Arty's Don Yoder and Hubert Barksdale, the winners moved away to a commanding lead against the constant threat of the 9th's ace rebounder, Nordell.

High men for the evening were Barksdale, with 28, and Nordell, with 18.

Sep Bn	70
1st Inf	46

The 69th Armor, representing Separate Battalions, defeated the 1st Infantry, 70-46.

Carrie Fleming of Company A led the Tankers with 22 points while Jimmie Chandler of the 1st Infantry dropped in 16 points.

Lt. Brown Leaves 37th Artillery

Lieutenant Melvin H. Brown is leaving the 37th Artillery for an assignment in Germany.

Lieutenant Brown came to the 37th on May 2, 1960. He became executive officer of the 37th's Battery A on February 1, and shortly thereafter, on February 22, was promoted to first lieutenant.

New Bowling League Starts

The 122nd Signal Battalion Handicap Bowling League, consisting of ten teams, is scheduled to start competitive play Tuesday.

The series will last for a period of 12 weeks with trophies to be awarded for first and second place teams. Trophies will also be given in individual high games for scratch and handicap and to the most improved bowler.

The first nights' bowling will be used for individual team elimination due to the large response for participants.

John Riccobene organized the teams and is serving as league secretary.

Benning vs Campbell

Three KOs Top Boxing Results

Three first-round knockouts and a technical knockout highlighted a 12-bout boxing card as Fort Campbell defeated Benning, 7-5, in matches held recently at The Infantry Center.

In the shortest bout of the evening, Benning's Robert Simmons decked his middleweight opponent, Lewis Sherrin, twice in 35 seconds to win by a TKO.

Two KO's were scored by the local team as light welterweight Charles Allen floored Gardner Strong for the full count in 1:44 of the first round of their bout, and Charles Garlington, Benning's 255-pound heavyweight, stopped Felix Bennett in 2:29 of the first round of their match.

Fort Campbell scored one lone knockout in the 12 fights, as Johnny Joiner sent Elzie Singleton to the canvas in 2:35 of the first round in their lightweight bout.

Other results:

Flyweight—Kenneth Adams of Campbell decisioned Dezso Petofi.

Lightweight — Allen Webster, Campbell, decisioned Robert Richter; Charles Taylor, Campbell, decisioned Fred Rutherford, and James Harris, Benning, decisioned Ted Wildfield.

Welterweight—"Sugar Ray" Owens, Campbell, decisioned Booker T. Anderson.

Light heavyweight-Charles Scruggs, Campbell, decisioned William Burroughs, and Melvin Lonas, Benning, decisioned Isaiah Davis.

Heavyweight—James Johnson, Campbell, decisioned Leon Clark.

Post Team Cops Judo Trophies

Two members of the post Judo Club brought home second place trophies from an invitational tournament held last Saturday at Savannah, in which five club members participated.

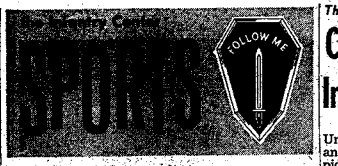
Capt. M. G. Stafford was runner-up in the heavyweight division, winning six out of seven matches. He was defeated by Ernie Cates, All-Marine heavyweight champion, in the finals.

Pfc. Thomas Nakamura, competing in the 140-pound class, won six out of seven matches to gain runner-up honors.

The other three post Judo Club members competing in the tournament, 1st Lt. Owen Saiki, Sgt. John Petsche and Sgt. George Harrington, were eliminated in early matches under the point-type elimination system.

Fort Benning compiled 19 wins and 8 losses in the tournament.

Touchdown Club Honors Herzbrun



Lon Herzbrun, Fort Eustis, Va. football center, received the Washington Touchdown Club's service football "Player of the Year" award. Herzbrun starred for the University of Tennessee from 1955-57 when the Vols won the Southeaster Conference and participated in the Sugar and Gator Bowls. While playing for Eustis all-service football champions, Herzbrun played an average of 55 minutes per tilt during the Wheels' 10-game schedule.

Al Vanderbush At Fort Benning

Al Vanderbush, former West Point varsity football guard from 1957-60, is serving at Fort Benning. During his senior year, Vanderbush captained the Black Knights' team.

Former U of Utah Players at Lewis

Two former All-Army basketball players, former University of Utah All-American Jim Boyce and Bob Bobbitt, are pounding the boards for a Fort Lewis, Washington, team.

OUTDOOR OUTLOOK

By Pfc Don Girton

The past year was not only marked by a great number of sportsmen using the variety of outdoor recreational facilities at Fort Benning but was a year of significant advances in the wildlife management program.

Post hunting and fishing attracted an all time high of participants. Over 20,000 hunting trips were made by Benning personnel last year.

The deer hunters constituted the largest single group when the last several weekends of the season attracted over a 1,000 hunters daily.

Although big game hunting was a new experience for many hunters, there were more successful hunters than ever before. The harvest for the season stands at 403 deer reported taken on post with 165 of them antlerless deer brought in during the special six day season the last two weekends of the year. In previous years the most deer taken was in the 1959 season when 102 hunters reported deer.

Fishing on post sported even a greater number of participants who made use of the 22 ponds or numerous streams and rivers throughout the post. Over 60,000 fishing trips were made during 1960 with the peak month being June when nearly 3,500 nimrods were at the opening of King's Pond. During the first two days anglers took nearly a ton of fish from the pond and since has been one of the post's favorite fishing spots. Early last year trout were stocked in Johnson's Pond which attracted the more hearty fishermen who braved the cold January weather. Just last month rainbows were planted in the newly constructed pond above Russ swimming pool on main post. With the more convenient location, considerably more fishermen were able to take advantage of the stocked pond. Another shipment of trout is scheduled early this year.

One of the most significant developments in the wildlife program was the Commanding General's appointment early in the year of a wildlife coordinator to head fish and game program on post and formulate long range plans for a sound management program through the assistance of State and Federal agencies. This was a formal recognition of the wildlife management program which in the past was essentially solely supported by the Fish and Game Maintenance Association.

Although a reduction in personnel at midyear curtailed management activities, a program was initiated to create permanent wildlife opening throughout the reservation. During the past year some 40 such openings were cleared and planted with game food and cover plants. These openings are generally 4 to 6 acres in size and will be maintained as permanent openings for wildlife through the planting of certain grasses or annual cultivation. Records are maintained for each opening as to its size, location and treatment. Through this information it is hoped that data can be obtained as to the types of food and cover best suited for the various species of game in the Benning area.

The Georgia Game and Fish Commission, the Alabama Department of Conservation and the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service continued to render valuable technical assistance and cooperation. Personnel of these agencies have made numerous trips to the reservation during the last year to help solve problems of fish and game management.

Post Fighters to Meet Bolling USAF Team Next Week at BWFH

Fort Benning's boxing team will meet the fighters from Bolling Air Force Base, Washington, D. C., January 25 at Briant Wells Field House.

The post team was defeated last week by a strong Fort Campbell squad, 7-5, in a 12-bout card held here.

The team posted victories in the Southern Silver Gloves Boxing Tournament in Jacksonville, Fla., in November and over the Camp LeJeune Marine team early this month.

The post boxers are coached by Sfc Larry Jones and MSgt Jack Rivolte. Trainers are Sgt. Lou Prolago and Spt Buddy Edenfield.

Cage Leaders Widen Lead In 4 Lop-Sided Victories

Pace-setters in The Infantry Center Major Unit Basketball League, first-place 29th Infantry and second-place 428th Medical Battalion, each picked up two wins during last week's play to increase their lead.

Third-place 156th Signal Battalion, picked up one victory to remain in contention for one of the top slots.

Fighting to stay on top of the loop, the 29th scored lopsided victories, sinking the 58th Infantry, 84-65, and the Student Brigade, 63-41.

The Medics, the only team to defeat the league-leading Infantrymen, coasted to 96-45 win over The Infantry Center Troop Command and dumped the 10th Artillery, 95-65.

Playing only one game last week, the 156th Signal Battalion edged the 10th Artillery, 64-60.

In other loop action, the 58th Infantry downed winless 609th Radar Squadron from Eufaula, Ala., 88-45.

Individual scoring leaders are Freddie Morris; 58th Infantry, 253; Gary Hess, 428th Medics, 224; Bob Whitehead, 29th Infantry, 205; Alvin Flagg, 10th Artillery, 179, and Curtis Gentry, 29th Infantry, 169.

The Formation of NATO Has Helped Keep Peace

The countries of the Atlantic Community signed an alliance in Washington, D. C. on April 4, 1949, forming the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) and pooling their resources for collective defense before aggression starts, in the hope and conviction that in this way they would preserve peace.

To safeguard their security, the member nations agreed that an attack against one of them shall be considered an attack against them all.

The members also pledged to work together to increase their ability to defend themselves by self-help and mutual aid. They have no intention of launching an attack upon anyone anywhere, at any time.

When the United States signed the treaty in 1949, it broke its tradition of peacetime isolation and joined in company with 11 other free nations: Great Britain, Canada, France, Belgium, The Netherlands, Denmark, Portugal, Italy, Iceland, Luxembourg and Norway. Greece and Turkey became members of the alliance in 1952, and in 1955 the Republic of Germany joined.

The creation of the alliance did not violate any of the principles of the United Nations, whose constitution expressly provided for such defensive agreements among its members.

Nor did it mean that the United States was sacrificing any of its national sovereignty, as NATO is not a "superstate" and its members retain all their individual freedoms.

NATO was created to halt the piecemeal country-by-country subjugation of the Atlantic community by international communism. Since the 15 nations pooled their efforts in common defense, not one of them has surrendered any of its political independence or a square inch of territory to the threats or blandishments of the U.S.S.R.

This was accomplished primarily by the development, through the co-operative efforts of the Alliance, of sufficient armed strength to provide an effective deterrent to Communist ambitions and threats.

In 1949 when NATO began, the pattern of Soviet expansion was internal subversion coupled with the menace of intervention by external, that is by Soviet, armed force.

But by establishing armed forces of sufficient strength to negate the Soviet threat of force, the freedom of the 15 organization nations has been preserved.

JOINT SERVICE

It may seem to be a paradox that a retail enterprise should be as basically military as the salute or the uniform. Yet the Army and Air Force Exchange Service and military commanders jointly operate more than 11,000 retail, food and service outlets world-wide for servicemen and their families.

Among Smallest in Army

Two Reserve Units Here Authorized Just 16 Men

BY SFC GEORGE MCBURNEY

Two medical Reserve units recently called to active duty here in the Army's buildup program have the odd distinction of being among the smallest units numerically in the service.

The 891st Medical Detachment of Atlanta and the 389th Medical Detachment of Cleveland, Ohio, with a combined authorized strength of 16 men, are pooling their talents for refresher training with the post's 428th Medical Battalion.

Despite their small numerical size, the 891st and the 389th are ably helping to do the job the Army wants done — make the nation stronger.

In the dispensaries, in Martin Army Hospital and in the pharmacies, the young men of the Reserve units work side by side with Regular Army men in Benning's medical installations.

In their on-the-job training the men of the two units rotate their duties every 10 days. They give physical examinations, make blood tests, give shots for the prevention of tetanus, typhoid fever, malaria and smallpox.

They prepare simple medicines under the careful supervision of well trained and experienced Army doctors and at other times they maintain the medical records of the men in their units.

Though most of the men of the 891st who are assigned to dispensary duties are trained medics, the detachment had not operated as a dispensary unit before its call-up.

Pvt. Ransom D. Braswell, an Army doctor's assistant in the 891st, said, "We have learned about medical dispensary work in the field since we came here. There is nothing to complain about in the Army's call to active duty. What we didn't know we are learning from other units."

Braswell, a 1960 graduate of Auburn University, is a former claims representative for the Social Security Administration of Atlanta. He was a member of the XII Army Corps, Atlanta, before being called-up as a fill-in with the 891st.

Sp5 Paul H. Miller, also a fill-in with the 891st, was a heavy equipment mechanic with a construction company before being called to active duty.

At the time of President Kennedy's call-up of Army Reserve units, Miller, who has four years of previous Army service, wrote to the Third Army Headquarters at Fort McPherson, requesting he be called to active duty. He is now a medical aid man.

"I wanted to return to military service," he explained. "I intend to remain in the Army but I would like to be with an ordinance or engineer unit."

Pfc Dan M. Edwards, a former self-employed farmer, is also a medical aid man with the 891st. He served as a medic for two years in Korea before his discharge in 1960.

"The call-up to active duty provides good training as a refresher course if we ever have to be in a war," he said.

Pfc Cecil W. Gaddy, Jr., formerly assigned to the 158th General Hospital, is a medical specialist with the 891st.

He entered the Army in May, 1960, and two months later he completed basic training at Fort Jackson. Gaddy completed the medical specialists' training course at the Medical Training Center at Fort Sam Houston, Texas., before being discharged. He was recalled to active duty last fall.

Sgt. Bertram A. Gordy, a former oil salesman in Atlanta, entered the Army in 1958 after his graduation from Auburn University. He was trained at Fort Sam Houston for Army medical duties. After his discharge, he was recalled to active duty last October.

The 389th Medical Detachment is a mobile unit that can be moved to any sector of a field of operations. Commanded by Capt. James E. Nevin, III, its primary mission is to provide medical aid to casualties suffering injuries of the upper chest, the lungs, heart and throat.

Capt. Nevin, a 1953 graduate of Bowdoin College of Brunswick, Me., was an assistant resident in surgery at University Hospital in Cleveland and later attended Tufts University Medical School in Boston before entering the Army in July, 1959.

Capt. Nevin said, "We are well satisfied with the fine training our men receive at Fort Benning. We will be ready if we are ever in combat."

Your BAYONET is a "Civilian enterprise" post newspaper, written and edited by Army personnel, assisted and advised by newsroom officials of The Ledger-Enquirer Newspapers. Your BAYONET is published each Friday by The Ledger-Enquirer newspapers and is 100 per cent free to the military establishment.
Its publication and free distribution is made possible by the advertising merchants of Columbus and Phenix City, and the BAYONET Management sincerely appreciates your first consideration of these firms when you shop in the civilian community.

THE BAYONET

AT THE Movies

BOBBY stars Donald Crisp, Laurence Naismith, Alex Mackenzie and Kay Walsh. This is Bobby. . .the begrimed, bewitching little Skye Terrier who lived an astonishing adventure that sparked a city-wide uproar and wrought a heart-stealing miracle without equal.

TWIST AROUND THE CLOCK is a comedy with music and features Chubby Checker, Clay Cole and Vicki Spencer. An unemployed band manager spots a brother-sister dance team in a small mountain village and persuades them to bring their new dance routine to New York, where it zooms to national and international popularity.

FEAR NO MORE, a mystery for mature and young people, stars Mala Powers and Jacques Bergerac. A ruthless quintet of conspirators, whose leader has murdered his wife, devise an intricate and seemingly foolproof scheme designed not only to have the girl convicted of the slaying but also to make her believe she may have done it.

MYSTERIOUS ISLAND is a movie for the whole family and stars Michael Craig, Gary Merrill and Joan Greenwood. A band of Union Soldiers use an observation balloon to stage a daring escape from a Confederate prison camp. Swept by a violent storm to a lonely Pacific Island, the hardy band of adventurers is plunged into strange terrors among mammouth birds and beasts.

SAVO by Richard F. Newcomb. (Holt, 1961)

Admiral Gunichi Mikawa, Imperial Japanese Navy, stood on the bridge of his flagship in the darkness of Savo Bay, spotted the enemy fleet, and gave the fateful order: "All ships attack!" It was early Sunday morning, August 9, 1942—just eight months and two days after Pearl Harbor. Surely, thought the Admiral, the Americans would not be caught sleeping again! But asleep they were—and as a result the U.S. Navy lost four heavy cruisers in forty minutes at the hands of inferior Japanese force.

Syracuse Official to Visit Post

Major Gen. (Ret.) William O. Reeder, 3 professor of business administration at Syracuse University, will visit Fort Benning Monday to discuss comptroller area activities.

The general will use the information he gathers in his classes in executive management at Syracuse.

Gen. Reeder will meet with the post comptroller, G-4 and finance and accounting officer.

He will be briefed on such subjects as budgeting and programming, financial management, and the cost and performance report.

His itinerary will include visits at Fort McPherson, Fort Gordon, Fort Bragg, and Fort Monroe, Va. He then will return to Syracuse.

A graduate of the U. S. Military Academy, Gen. Reeder has a master of science degree in electrical engineering from Yale University. He is a former deputy assistant chief of staff in logistics for the Department of the Army.

He is currently consultant of the Army Comptrollership School at Syracuse University.

Canadian Infantry School Commander Pays 4-Day Visit

Col. T. R. McCoy, commandant of the Royal Canadian School of Infantry, Camp Borden, Ontario, Canada, arrived at Fort Benning at 8 p.m. Tuesday for a four-day visit.

Plans for Col. McCoy include orientations on activities of The Infantry School.

He will visit the school's Combat Developments Office for a briefing on current projects in the weapons field.

15 ROTC Cadets Here From N. D. For Orientation

Cadets from the University of North Dakota, Fargo, arrived at Fort Benning yesterday for a Reserve Officers Training Course Orientation Program.

According to Capt. Charles J. Boice, chief of the Training Division, Reserve Component Section, The Infantry Center, the 15 cadets are accompanied by an escort and a representative from a television station.

The program, which begins today, consists of a briefing and a training film, a tour of a 2nd Infantry Division unit, where they will see training, and an aircraft familiarization demonstration at Fryar Field.

The cadets will leave Fort Benning the morning of Jan. 20.

Speaker Set

Party Held By Jewish Sisterhood

Approximately 50 personnel attended a party last Saturday at the Jewish Center, Building 1071.

Prizes were donated by merchants of Columbus.

The party was sponsored by the recently organized Jewish Sisterhood on the post.

Further information about the Sisterhood may be obtained from Mrs. Edward C. West, president, at MU 9-4509, or Chaplain (1st Lt.) Naftali Friedman, 545-5722.

Next Meeting

Rabbi Alfred L. Goodman of Temple Israel, Columbus, will be guest speaker at a meeting of the Sisterhood on post February 3.

The meeting will be at 8 p.m. in Building 1071.

Rabbi Goodman will speak on his experiences on a recent tour of Israel. He will illustrate the talk with slides.

Husbands of members of the Sisterhood and other interested personel are invited.

PX POINTS

Nurse Corps Chief Slated To Visit Post

The chief of the Army Nurse Corps, Col. Margaret Harper will visit Fort Benning January 25 to 28.

She will be accompanied by Lt. Col. Alice E. Weinstein, chief of the Nursing Division, Third Army.

Their schedule includes a visit to Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly, deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center.

Cols. Harper and Weinstein will be welcomed to the post by Col. William C. Todd, Jr., commander of Martin Army Hospital.

They will meet with the assistant chief of Nursing Service, Lt. Col. Helen L. Palmer.

Facilities Cols. Harper and Weinstein will visit include the 3rd Field Hospital, 428th Medical Battalion and the Army Health Nurse Program in the Old Hospital area.

They will tour clinics and wards of Martin Hospital and confer with key personnel.

Social events planned for the visitors include two luncheons and a reception at the Main Officers' Open Mess.

A luncheon January 25 at 12 noon will be attended by Col. Todd, Lt. Col. Thomas Laughlin, Jr., hospital executive officer, and nursing service supervisors.

At noon January 26, a luncheon will be attended by head nurses of the hospital wards.

Invited to attend the reception that day at 7 p.m. are Major Gen. Ben Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center, Gen. Kelly, Cols. Todd and Laughlin, and chiefs of hospital services and their wives.

Hostesses will be all Army nurses on the post.

Motors Award Given Battery A

Battery A, 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade, received the brigade's Best Motors Award recently after having topped all other batteries during December. 1st Lt. Helmut A. G. Roeder, battery executive officer, received the award from Lt. Col. Wallis McClain.

The Student Brigade Is 'College' to Infantrymen

By Pfc Bruce Yuffee

The Student Brigade, like many private institutions of learning, is the result of adaptation and development. The need to alter and improve the facilities and capabilities of the brigade is an unending task, due to the ever changing world conditions. Through the years, the institution has provided for wants and needs of Infantrymen in war and peace. Today, a legend, it stands as the "alma mater" for Infantrymen the world over, the Infantryman's campus, The Student Brigade.

In the beginning, there were three student training battalions, each of which had a population of about 900 men. Today, there are still three student training battalions, and the Infantry School Battalion, which is comprised of personnel to support The Infantry School. At present there are better than 5000 men within the brigade; this figure fluctuates with the changing of its classes.

At one time or another, all Infantry career officers attend the courses of instruction at The Infantry School, and are assigned to The Student Brigade.

Courses vary from the intricacies of radio and wheeled vehicle maintenance, to the extremes of Ranger training in the Georgia mountains and basic principles of Infantry leadership, to the many problems which will be facing the Infantry battle group commander and his staff. It is a fast never ceasing cycle.

Through it all, The Student Brigade, in fulfilling its mission, keeps many hundreds of students and cadremen fed, billeted, councilled, guided, and disciplined by means of the finest facilities, both physical and human, which the Army can offer.

The Student Brigade is the home for students of Infantry, its cadremen, superior in appearance and behavior, and seasoned with experience, bind the students to The School and The School to the brigade. The blending of the administrative with the academic, has resulted in an institution of learning which is the pride of The Infantry Center, the memorable home for Infantrymen the world over.

Assigned to TIS

Major James C. Barroum has been named chief of the Operations, Doctrine and Electronic Development Section of The Infantry School Communications Department. He succeeds Major Henry B. Edwards, Jr., who will attend the Armed Forces Staff College at Norfolk, Va.

TIS Officer Assists With Record System

A post officer is writing instructional material to accompany a new maintenance record system for the Army.

Capt. Royce L. Porter has departed for Fort Knox, where he will represent The Infantry School in the project.

He is expected to return in April to resume his duties as motor officer of the Ground Mobility Department.

First Lt. Roxie R. Hart, assistant operations officer of the department, preceded Capt. Porter to Fort Knox for a four-day liaison visit.

MRS. BUCKNER

Mrs. Buckner To be Soloist In Fourth of Concert Series

Mrs. David L. Buckner, soprano soloist, will appear in concert at 7:30 p.m. January 28 at The Infantry Center Protestant Chapel.

She will be accompanied by Don Carr of Columbus.

This is the fourth event in the 1961-1962 series of secular concerts on the post.

Mrs. Buckner has planned a program of American songs. Her repertoire for the evening runs the gamut from early American songs to contemporary music.

She will sing numbers from the composers Hopkinson, Lubin, Barber, Sacco, C. Shaw, Guion, Menotti, Watts, Giannini and Carpenter. Three of her songs are joint works of Shaw and Parker, Finney and Franklin, and Naginski and Whitman.

Selections

From Hopkinson, Mrs. Buckner has selected "O'er the Hills Far Away" and "My Days Have Been so Wondrous Free." "Johnny Has Gone For A Soldier" by Shaw and Parker and "Epitaph on a Talkative Old Maid" by Finney and Franklin complete her early American songs.

Four unusual numbers will form another group. They are Lubin's "Must a Little Weep Love," Barber's "Sleep Now," Naginski and Whitman's "Moon Over Gettysburg" and Sacco's "Rapunsel."

The nation's folk songs and spirituals will be represented on the program by "The Nightingale" and "He's Gone Away" by C. Shaw and "Marmselle Marie" and "Voodoo Gal" by Guion.

Contemporary and romantic songs Mrs. Buckner will sing include "Stressa" by Watts, "Tell Me O Blue, Blue Sky" by Giannini and "The Sleep That Flits on Baby's Eyes" and "Serenade" by Carpenter.

Mrs. Buckner is director of The Infantry Center Chapel Choir.

Directed Messiah

In December, she directed the 1961 production of Handel's "The Messiah" by the choir. The program was taped for rebroadcast over Armed Forces Network and Radio Free Europe.

Mrs. Buckner has sung with symphonies throughout the Southwest. She was featured last spring in a concert by the Columbus Symphony Orchestra. Last summer she sang with the Atlanta Symphony.

Mrs. Buckner received her early education in Atlantic, Iowa. She was graduated from the University of Eastern New Mexico in Portales with bachelor and master of arts degrees in music.

She was a member of the music faculty of the university for two years.

Mrs. Bucker taught in the Carlsbad, N.Mex., public school system two years. She is now teaching at James B. Key Elementary School in Columbus.

Three Attending Meet at Athens

Three members of the staff of Fort Benning's Children's Schools are attending the 15th annual Teacher Education Conference at the University of Georgia in Athens. The conference began yesterday and ends today.

They are Dr. Joseph T. Conforti, the schools' director of instruction, Rupert C. Nunally, principle and Mrs. Evelyn Southwood, librarian, both of Wilbur School.

Dr. Conforti is also attending a meeting of a research and special publications committee of which he is a member.

The conference is meeting at the Georgia Center for Continuing Education.

SPEAKER . . . Col. Daniel A. Raymond, Army District Engineer, Mobile, discussed the National Fallout Shelter Program at a recent Columbus Rotary Club meeting.

NG Patches On Display At Book Store

A colorful display of division patches at The Infantry School's Book Department pays tribute to Army National Guard divisions.

The display was prepared in support of the January-February issue of Infantry Magazine, an official publication of the school.

The magazine, which went on sale January 10, features a salute to the National Guard.

The display includes a map of the U. S., showing the location of National Guard State Officer Candidate Schools and Army Reserve Schools throughout the nation.

Also on exhibit are samples of instructional material prepared at The Infantry School in support of these schools, Reserve Officer Training Corps units, National Guard and Army Reserve unit staff training and Army pre-commissioning and Infantry School extension courses.

The display was arranged by the Department of Non - Resident Instruction which is responsible for these programs for the Infantry School.

This Week In History

JANUARY 20, 1781 — Mutiny of New Jersey troops ended by the execution of two leaders.

JANUARY 21, 1903 — An act of Congress, the "Dick Bill," was an important step in the development of the National Guard.

JANUARY 22, 1932 — Six Army bombers dropped over five tons of rations to snow-bound Navajo Indians near Winslow, Arizona, saving hundreds of lives.

JANUARY 22, 1943 — The Papuan Campaign ended in the first decisive defeat of Japanese troops in World War II.

JANUARY 23, 1940 — An entire battalion was Airborne for the first time in American history as Regular Army troops flew 500 miles in 38 bombers and landed deep in enemy territory.

JANUARY 24, 1923 — The American flag was lowered from Fortress Ehrenbreitstein at Coblenz, ending the American occupation of Germany after WWI.

JANUARY 25, 1907 — The Coast Artillery Corps and the Field Artillery were established as separate branches of the army.

EDWARD L. KATZENBACH

Washington Officials Announce Post Visit

Edward L. Katzenbach, Jr., of Washington, D. C., the Army's deputy assistant secretary of defense for education and manpower resources, will visit the post next Tuesday through Thursday.

He will be accompanied by Jeffrey C. Kitchen, deputy assistant secretary of state for politico-military affairs; John Broger, director, and James Ruehli, staff member, Armed Forces Information and Education, Department of the Army; Col. Tom Kenna, a representative of the assistant secretary of defense for international security affairs, and Major Arthur G. Harris, a member of the Army's Office of the Chief of Information, all of Washington.

The visit is part of a tour of three military installations to obtain information on the orientation and training of Allied officers and on democracy and communism information programs for U. S. officers and enlisted men.

Before coming to the post, Secretary Katzenbach and his group will visit Fort Bragg and Fort Gordon.

Plans for the Fort Benning tour include briefings at The Infantry School on courses of instruction, orientation and training of Allied officers, and methods and materials used to orient U. S. military personnel on communism and democracy.

The visitors will observe instruction and interview students.

Secretary Katzenbach was born in Trenton, N. J.

He received a doctor of philosophy degree at Princeton (N. J.) University in 1953. He has served as instructor in history at Princeton, assistant professor of history and as research associate at the Institute of War and Peace Studies, Columbia, University, New York, N. Y., director of the Defense Studies Program at Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass., and director of academic development at Brandeis University, Waltham, Mass.

Secretary Katzenbach was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Marine Corps in 1941 upon graduating from the Officer Candidate School at Quantico, Va.

During World War II, he served as commander of the 4th Marine Division's Reconnaissance Company Company in the Pacific Theater, participating in campaigns at Kwajalein, Eniwetok and Saipan.

Separated from the service after the war, Secretary Katzenbach was recalled to active duty in 1950. He served with the Fleet Marine Pacific and the Joint Chiefs of Staff. He is a Lieutenant Colonel in the Marine Corps Reserve.

Army Command Reorganization

For a comprehensive outline of plans for reorganization of the Army high command, as compiled by the Armed Forces Press Service, see page 8.

Mayors, Newsmen

Lt. Governor, Eight Others From Michigan Due Sunday

Nine men from the Michigan Military Board, to include Lt. Gov. T. John Lesinski and newsmen, are scheduled to arrive at Fort Benning Sunday, at 4 p.m., for a briefing on the reserve program and a visit to Michigan National Guard units on active duty.

Mayor Paul E. Morrison of Kalamazoo, Mayor Walter F. Bohn of Adrian, and Mayor Laurence A. Frost, of Monroe will be among the group visiting the 156th Signal Battalion. The Battalion is made up of men from these cities.

Also making the trip will be Kenneth McCormick, of the Detroit Freepress, Charles E. Harmon, Boothe Newspapers, Donald Knutson, WKZO - TV, Lee Pettijean, of the Adrian Daily Telegraph, and Dave Bagnall, of the Monroe Evening News.

Project officers for the visit are Lt. Col. Ralph C. Phillips, G-3, 46th Infantry Division, Major Robert V. Baird, information officer, and Eugene Baril.

The group is scheduled to leave post Tuesday from Lawson Army Aviation Command.

Adm. Storrs Heads Visit By Canadians

Rear Adm. A. H. G. Storrs commandant of the Canadian National Defense College, heads the list of staff members and students of the Allied military school, who will arrive here next Wednesday at 5:45 p.m.

Four staff members, including the commandant, and 29 students, will begin a tour of post facilities the following day.

After an honors ceremony at Chapel Field for Adm. Storrs, the group will go to Wharton Hall for a welcome by the commandant of The Infantry School, Major Gen. Bee Harrell.

During the day, they will observe two problems in the Airborne-Air Mobility and Ranger Departments, in addition to seeing a weapons demonstration and an Infantry-tank team in attack.

There will be a reception for the Allied visitors at 6 p.m. in the Main Officers' Open Mess.

The group will depart at 8 a.m. next Friday.

400 at TIS Hear Leadership Expert

Approximately 400 students at The Infantry School were told Monday that one elemental characteristic of all great leaders is consideration for others.

Major Gen. (Ret.) Edmund B. Sebree of Carmel, Calif., spoke to the combined career officers classes at 10 a.m. in Theater 1.

He is consultant to the Army Leadership Human Research Unit at the Presidio of Monterey, Calif., a unit of the Human Resources Research Office at George Washington University, Washington, D. C.

"If I were called upon to define leadership in one word," the general said, "that one word would be 'consideration.' Consideration for others is the 'hall-mark' of the leadership trade.

"A self-absorbed leader is doomed," he continued. "Leadership should not be confused with career success.

"Consideration for others does not mean bowing and scraping all the time. Sometimes it may require tying a can to someone," the veteran leader said.

Discussing other qualities of a good leader, Gen. Sebree said any man intelligent enough to earn a commission is intelligent enough to become a leader.

"Leadership is an art, not a science," he affirmed. "It requires experience, maturity and reflection."

Ambition is necessary to good leadership, but should be motivated by the desire to serve with respect and affection for others, he said.

"Leadership demans of the leader, character and integrity," the general added.

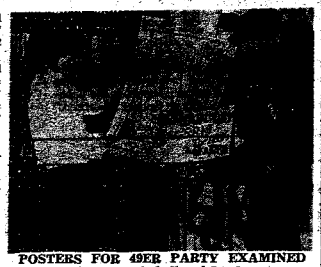
MORAL BY MAGIC . . . Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Arthur J. Estes, Student Brigade, The Infantry School, practices one of his magic tricks used to develop a moral during his sermons. This Sunday's services will be sponsored by Officer Candidate Class 3, at 9:30 a.m. in the brigade chapel. Ten candidates will assist in the services. Practical Christianity will be the sermon title.

Post Agencies Benefit From 49er Party



The annual 49er Party will be held in the Main Officers' Open Mess from 7 p.m. to 2 p.m., February 10.

All MOOM members and guests have been invited to the affair which is sponsored by the Daughters of the United States Army to raise funds for various post functions.

Last year Tot Town Nursery, administered by DUSA, received $3,051 for maintenance, $80 was given to the post emergency fund for Army visiting nurses and $220 was donated to Martin Army Hospital for redecoration of the pediatric ward.

In addition, the Sand Hill Sunday School, along with other post activities, received funds.

Several personnel of Headquarters Company, 1st Infantry Brigade, are donating their time as part of the property committee to take care of necessary party preparations.

POSTERS FOR 49ER PARTY EXAMINED
By Mrs. Peggy Twitchell and Lt. Armstrong

Sp-4 Donald Jenkins is assisting 2nd Lt. Edward Armstrong with the various administrative duties. The carpentry, including game booths and scene board, is being handled by Pfc Bradford Pearson, of the brigade craft shop.

Pfc Henry Gladstone will do painting of all display equipment and handle flyers for publicity. Pfc Gale Stauring has worked on the menu sheets and painted table place flyers. Driving has been done by Pfc Orval Taylor.

414th Transportation Company

First Reserve Unit Hit Rates an IG 'Superior'

The 414th Transportation Company of Greenville, S.C., a Reserve unit recently called to active duty, has been rated "Superior" on an annual Infantry Center IG inspection.

The inspector general, Lt. Col. Robert F. Galer, said, "The 414th, part of the Lawson Army Aviation Command, was the first Reserve or National Guard unit to be formally inspected by the IG.

"We were highly pleased at the progress made by this type unit, during its short period of active duty, toward the accomplishment of its mission," he continued.

Areas considered superior by the inspection team included administration and unit funds, supply administration and operations, motor pool operations and chemical property.

Commander of the 414th is 1st Lt. Byron L. Clark.

The first sergeant, William P. Frazier, supply sergeant, Charles E. Gilreath, and motor pool clerk, Sp4 Frank L. Elrod.

Lt. Clark commended the assistance he and the 414th have received from post personnel since the unit arrived on October 12.

This assistance is reflected in the high standards the 414th has attained, according to Lt. Clark.

Engineer SOM

Pfc Richard A. Kieffer of the 114th Engineer Company has been named Soldier of the Month representing the 151st Engineer Group for January.

Military bearing is important to leadership, the speaker asserted, but is not dependent on the size or the build of the man.

Gen. Sebree used examples of leadership from the lives of outstanding generals he has known from World War I to the present.

The address was followed by a question and answer period.

Gen. Sebree arrived Saturday for a four-day visit. He was the house guest of Col. (Ret.) D. A. Fry of Columbus.

During his stay, he was briefed on activities of the Infantry Human Research Unit. The orientation included films relative to projects of the unit, a presentation of the mission and operation and a review of research products completed in the past.

There was an official luncheon for Gen. Sebree Monday at the Main Officers' Open Mess with Major Gen. Ben Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center, as host.

Guests at the luncheon included key personnel of The Infantry School staff and personal friends of Gen. Sebree.

Gen. Sebree departed Columbus Tuesday.

Red Cross Shows $94,862 in Aid in 1961

The American Red Cross at Fort Benning provided financial aid to 1,391 individuals in the amount of $94,862 in 1961.

Mr. John A. Cramer, retiring field director of the ARC at the post, reported that the Red Cross had contributed $64,296.62 for emergency leaves, $28,539.60 for family assistance and $2,025.83 or personnel needs.

In addition the Muscogee County and Russell County chapters of the ARC serviced 3,497 cases involving servicemen and their dependents and gave financial aid in 542 cases for the amount of $31,928.42.

The ARC in 1961 received 7,316 pints of blood for use in military, public health, Veterans' Administration and civilian hospitals which participate in the Red Cross blood donor program. The 1961 blood donations were the greatest in number since the program began at Fort Benning.

In the past year the ARC at Fort Benning conducted a water safety training program at the Briant Wells Field House which qualified 17 servicemen to teach life saving, swimming and water safety courses.

During the year the ARC taught 22 classes, nine in senior life saving, three in junior life saving and 16 in swimming. A total of 647 men received certificates for passing the courses.

The Red Cross provided the post safety director with 1,250 water safety posters and gave to the 2nd Infantry Division films that covered three phases of water safety. The films were shown to 7,877 troops in 75 releases.

The ARC staff conducted 1,594 recreation events and 668 motion pictures for patients of the Martin Army Hospital wards and recreation rooms. Patients numbering 1,730 were given an opportunity to take part in bedside games and other activities.

Red Cross volunteer workers — Gray Ladies, nurses aides, staff aides, volunteer nurses and others — gave 28,188 hours of service at the hospital and in the blood-donation program.

Active volunteer nurses averaged 100 per month. During the year the ARC conducted three training classes for volunteers.

We Are Members of An Army in High Gear

Most of us in the military have one big disadvantage — one which was not a serious drawback 20 years ago, in what you still hear referred to as "the old Army." This drawback is a lack of knowledge of what is going on in the very Army we're a part of.

Back "then" most every career soldier knew all about advances in technology and equipment almost as soon as they were off the drawing board, whether they were developments of Ordnance, Signal, Quartermaster or whatever branch.

The problem today is: There are so many things going on, so many advances, that few have the time to keep up with them. No wonder career counseling personnel keep after us to come in and talk over our qualifications, desires and future assignments. It takes people dedicated to a study of the fluid situation to advise those already firmly entrenched in a career field as well as the younger soldiers who may want to change.

Conversations on this subject have brought out examples from nearly all involved — of having a few minutes to spare, picking up the Army Times, Army-Navy-Air Force Journal, Army Information Digest, Infantry Magazine, or daily newspaper, and reading of something never before heard of. And when read about, it's usually something already made, done, tested or in use.

The same holds true of radio programs, news broadcasts, and popular weekly or monthly publications by the score.

Combined into one big pool, these improvements, economies and research programs would impress anyone who for a moment may have thoughts that the Army is in any sort of a rut, at any level.

We know what it takes in the way of study and application in the many critical skill areas, just to keep up with changes in ones own MOS scope. But we heartily recommend a little more time each week with the leading publications and other outlets which report on military advances: Trade periodicals listed above, the Big Picture television show, newspapers and many others. It's time well spent, as advocates will agree.

We are members of an Army on the move, and it isn't easy to keep up with it, even for those of us who are career soldiers.

What Is a Newspaper?

No Holiday For News For Our 1,744 Dailies

Because news never takes a holiday, the presses of American newspapers roar around the clock to get more than 60 million copies into the hands of readers on time. For members of the Armed Forces, this means their hometown newspapers or their post, camp or base newspaper.

The foreign news for America's 1,744 daily newspapers is harvested by a complex network of wire services, foreign correspondents and special writers. Highly talented local staffs gather the local news.

Additionally, newspapers employ specialists who are skilled writers and authorities in specific fields, including those who cover military, labor, education, politics, science, finance, insurance, advertising, drama, film, radio, television, music, art, real estate, sports and photography.

The combined news output of the more than 250,000 men and women runs to countless billions of words every day.

Their pay runs into the hundreds of millions of dollars annually.

The daily newspaper is the end product of many crafts, professions and talents. The need for speed in getting the newspaper to its readers is urgent.

Nothing is as perishable as news.

A 'Nation of Spectators' Should Not Mean U. S.

When President Kennedy said not long ago at the Football Hall of Fame dinner that we have become "a nation of spectators," it isn't likely that he was thinking of the armed Forces. But his remarks did point up the growing tendency of many Americans to take their recreation passively instead of being active participants.

This raises the matter of the role we service people can play in supporting the President's fitness program. Was there ever a better time than now for the men and for all Americans to emulate? All the services maintain splendid athletic and recreational programs and encourage their maximum use. The healthy man who is physically and mentally active is the best man for his country's uniform. The more he takes part in group activities instead of sitting on the sidelines, the more he's a member of the team. And teamwork is fundamental to the military.

Will Durant, in his study of Greek civilization, makes the interesting point that, while religion failed to unify the ancient Greeks, athletics succeeded. "Men went to Olympia, Delphi, Corinth and Nemea," he writes, "not to honor the gods . . . as to witness the heroic contests of chosen athletes.' And he continues, "Under the erubic of athletics we find the real religion of the Greeks—the worship of health, beauty and strength."

Reading Durant, we see that the decline of Greece as a great power coincided with the tendency of the people to leave the great athletic games, such as the Olympics, in the hands of specialists and become mere spectators. This President Kennedy surely had in mind in stressing the national need for greater activity as against passive observation. We who know the necessity for teamwork in battle can appreciate its tonic value in our personal lines.

Sojourners Elect CWO Eaby

CWO EABY

The National Sojourners Chapter 8 on the post conducted its annual election of officers recently at the Custer Terrace Branch of the Main Officers' Open Mess.

The Masonic fraternal organization elected retired CWO William D. Eaby of Columbus as president for 1962. He succeeds Chaplain (Lt. Col.) James H. Fiser.

Other officers chosen include Col. Milton G. Schneider, first vice president; Major Howard E. Lippincott, second vice president; Lt. Col. Howard F. Mumford, third vice president, and Capt. Truman A. Todd, secretary-treasurer, all of Fort Benning.

The Sojourners named Col. Clarence H. Cohen, a Reserve officer of Augusta, installing officer. He is the Most Worshipful Grand Master of Free and Accepted Masons of Georgia.

Appointed officers who were installed were Chaplain (Major) Alfred P. Lam, Capt. Charles F. Mills, marshal, and Capt. Vernon R. Jestice, assistant secrtary-treasurer and historian, all of Fort Benning.

Officers named for the Daniel Morgan Camp, a chapter of the Heroes of '76, are MSgt. Wade D. Rothwell, 1st Battalion, Center Troop Command, commander; Major Lippincott, chief of staff, and Capt. Todd, adjutant.

The installing marshal is Brig. Gen. (Ret.) Marcus B. Bell of Columbus.

Two Civilians Attend Two-Day Supply Seminar

James J. Baker of Phenix City, and John J. Passarella of Columbus, civilian employees at the post, attended a two-day seminar at Fort Lee, Va., yesterday and Wednesday on the Department of the Army's new requisitioning, receipt and issue system.

They are employed in The Infantry Center G-4 Section.

All property accounts will be converted to the new system July 1. The seminars are designed to familiarize the selected supply personnal with its procedures.

Three more seminars will be held, the last one February 4.

Chaplain's Corner

It's God's World

By Chaplain (Lt. Col.) James H. Fiser

Did you ever sit down and study or amuse yourself with a globe? This globe is a miniature reproduction of the world.

You can sit there and turn that globe and the reproduction of the world spins before your eyes; you can see the oceans, the mountains, and the countries; your eyes can leap from the Andes to the Alps, from Paris to Berlin to New York, and you can see there various locations of areas.

You can travel on that globe from New York to Stuttgart in the second that it takes your eyes to focus.

However, that globe is merely a reproduction or a symbol of the great globe of our world. As that globe is to us, so is our real world to our God.

The big difference is that you can spin your world in any direction or you can reverse the rotation or the poles as you please while God's globe goes on and on following a definite plan of creation, following natural law and an orderly procedure.

Because of this plan of God's world, we can know that each morning the sun will rise in the east and that each evening it will disappear in the west. God's world is an orderly world and as creatures in that world, we must fit ourselves into His overall plan and we must obey that order and follow it or we will be crushed in our rebellion.

We do not break the laws of God, we can only break ourselves against them. Paul said it this way, "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."

Infantry Magazine

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

OF, BY and FOR The U.S. Infantryman

"The Voice of the Infantry." That might well be the name of a play or a TV series, but it isn't. It is the place INFANTRY Magazine holds in the Army today.

The Infantry's own magazine has grown to the point where it has ardent fans not only in our own Army, but also in 50 Allied countries. It even has faithful subscribers in the Navy, Marine Corps and the Air Force.

It numbers among its audience non - commissioned officers and officers of other Army branches. One of its most caustic (and usually correct) critics is a lady Civil Service employee at another Branch School.

Those who have read or who have seen movies about the typical editorial office might be disturbed by the simplicity of INFANTRY'S offices. No green eye shades, no dangling cigarettes, no (or at least not too often) jangling telephones, and very few secretaries adorning the desks.

The noisest part of the whole operation is the IBM machinery cranking out mailing lists or punching subscriber cards.

Eight people do all the publishing of this magazine. This means editing manuscripts, having them cleared, finding the artwork or having it drawn, keeping up with subscribers—and the Army keeps them moving at about 2500 subscribers an issue — and preparing everything for printing.

Because it is a non-appropriated fund activity, INFANTRY must contract, on a competitive basis, to use commercial printers, not military, according to Lt. Col. J. S. Douglas, editor.

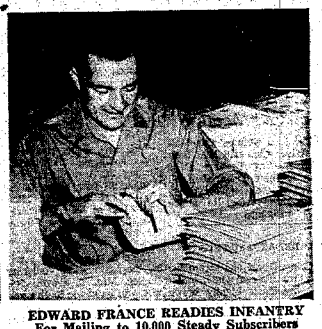
Among the personnel who share this responsibility — 70,000 words an issue to 10,000 subscribers — other than Col. Douglas, are: 1st Lt. Leon P. Alexander, assistant editor; Capt. Roger M. Deming, production head; Hoshiaki Murano, illustrator; Mrs. Esther L. Jones, secretary; and Mrs. Martha L. Biskup, circulation manager, who is assisted by Edward France and William Champion.

INSIDE THESE TEN RECENT COVERS ARE ARTICLES OF LASTING INTEREST

Publishing a magazine requires many skills. Two technicians working for INFANTRY, France and Murano, possess special attributes that help make the magazine the sucess that it is.

Francis is a factory trained IBM operator who does all work, including wiring, for the IBM processing. He says of his work, "The worst thing we face in the circulation department is that many people fail to give us their change of address until two or three months have gone by. They eventually get their magazines, but naturally they are late.

Illustrator Murano has completed three years of study toward a degree in commercial art at UCLA.



Murano says, "I sometimes get in so far over my head with demands for art work that I have to send out an SOS for help. Two who have pitched in and helped me out are Sp4 Clifford R. Hatcher and Pfc Ted Wollovich. They are both assigned to the Visual Aids Section of the Editorial and Pictorial Office."

INFANTRY is not the only name under which the magazine has gone according to Col. J. G. Cornett, chief E.P.O. Its first title was MAILING LIST started in 1922 by then Lt. Col. George C. Marshall. In the early '40s the title was changed to INFANTRY SCHOOL QUARTERLY. In 1957 the magazine became INFANTRY.

No green eyeshades, no dangling cigarettes, nothing but plain hard work for the artisans who publish INFANTRY Magazine. Infantrymen, read your magazine. It's of, by, and for today's Soldier. INFANTRY will help you professionally in becoming what you want to be — a top notch Infantryman.

NCOs

Distaff Doings

By Marianne Kelly

After a most wonderful holiday social whirl and a much needed rest following dances, children's parties etc., the members of the NCO Wives Club settled down again to a more or less normal routine.

Hope all you girls will make a belated New Year's resolution to come out and meet with us again every week!

On Wednesday, January 17, we all gathered in the clubhouse for a luncheon. And what a feast it was! Mrs. Martina, program chairman for this month, dreamed up and prepared a variety of Mexican delicacies.

The gaily decorated clubhouse and the tasty food made this one of the most enjoyable luncheons in a long time. We would like to express extra special thanks to Mrs. Martina and her helpers, the Mesdames Chenard, Di Loreme, Sauer, Criswell and Klein who made the afternoon a memorable occasion.

One of our guests, Mrs. George Bass, gave us a most informative and interesting talk on the latest developments in the textile industries. We also welcomed another guest, Miss Mary Bayer and a new member, Mrs. Frederick Sellers.

Our lucky door prize winners were the Mesdames Fortes and Blanton, whom we find in this week's:

SPOTLIGHT

Alice Fortez, member of the NCO Wives Club since 1957 and now treasurer of the club.

Alice is doing a great job balancing our budget, which keeps her rather busy, but she always enjoys a good game of cards and loves to crochet and embroider.

Ruby Blanton has been an active club member for the past two years and is presently working as welfare chairman. After her husband's retirement later this year she plans to do lots of sewing, which is her favorite hobby.

A reminder aout our last meeting this month: It will take place January 31, at 1 p.m. in the clubhouse. Games and refreshments are planned for that day.

Woman's Club Diary

Plans for "Showcase 62", the luncheon scheduled by the Woman's Club for Wednesday, February 7, at the Main Officers Club, are going ful steam ahead.

Mrs. G. T. Britton, program chairman, has arranged for the chief decorator from Rich's in Atlanta to present a stimulating program on home decor, a subject dear to the hearts of all Army wives, who redo a new set of quarters many times in their husband's career.

Just as colorful will be the displays in our showcase which will feature activities sponsored by the club.

Mrs. S. Y. Coker and the other engineer ladies will sponsor this luncheon, and are already at work on the colorful decorations and displays. Reservations may be made by calling Mrs. Cecil Sanders, 545-2235.

Bridge Invitation

The girls who meet for party bridge each Friday afternoon at the Woman's Club Building next to the Pizzeria invite you to join this informal "for fun" group. It's a good way to pick up pointers and show your spouse that you DO know the difference between a king and an ace.

Flower Course

Mrs. G. Harry Huppert, 545-2210, is accepting registrations for the new spring course in flower arranging which begins January 31. A wonderful way to perk up your house which may look rather timid after the splash of holiday decorations have been stored away for another year.

And

There is still time to enroll in the sewing or tailoring classes. Mrs. T. Scovill, 545-1906, will be happy to give you more information on this popular and rewarding hobby, which can save you $$$'s.

Infantry Board Ladies Hold 'Italiano' Lunch

Italian cuisine headed the menu for the January luncheon held recently by the Infantry Board ladies, in the Roman Room of Villa Nova.

Roman murals, depicting an ancient Roman era, helped to create the setting and atmosphere for the luncheon Italiano.

Mrs. S. D. Cromwell was welcomed back to the group by Mrs. William Summers. Major and Mrs. Cromwell recently returned from Fort Leavenworth.

Included on the guest list were Mrs. Anna Jarvi, mother of Mrs. Arthur E. House and Mrs. Woodrow Myers.

The door prize, a shampoo and set by a beauty salon, was won by Mrs. Marshall L. Mott.

Mrs. John C. Cougill will hostess the February ladies bridge to be held at the Country Club.

Hostesses, ladies of the Rocket and Recoiless Division, included Mrs. Roy L. Inman, Mrs. John C. Swearingen and Mrs. Stewart D. Cromwell.

Corregidor Room Meet Held By Weapons Department Ladies

Ladies of the Weapons Department, The Infantry School, held a coffee recently in the Corregidor Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Hostesses were members of the Antitank Missile Committee, under the direction of Mrs. George N. Prestridge.

Mrs. Lowell C. Wooten was in charge of the table decorations; Mrs. Darrell E. Best, menu; Mrs. Prestridge, Mrs. Robert B. Haller and Mrs. Earl H. Hale, reservations and Mrs. Wayne L. Seeley, tickets.

The table was decorated in pastel shades of lavender, pink and white which were combined in a centerpiece of coral, driftwood, sea shells and Japanese fish floats.

Mrs. Raymond B. Marlin welcomed the guests. Mrs. Clarence Graham, a new member of the department, also was welcomed.

Prize for the event was a lavender, crystal candy dish won by Mrs. James E. Morrow.

Report Card...

A Baker High School senior who is an outstanding athlete is the subject of today's Report Card.

Frankie Holbrook, son of MSgt and Mrs. H. F. Holbrook, is the personality of this salute. Born on May 27, 1943, Frankie is a native of Augusta, and calls Augusta "home".

Two Lester Man

Frankie has attended Baker High for four years and has excelled in two sports — football and track. He is a two year letterman in football and played halfback on the Baker Lion's team.

Frankie has lettered for the past three years in track. He runs the 100, 200 and 440 meter in the main events.

In Montgomery February 3, he will run the 60 yard dash and the mile relay for Baker. When I asked Frankie about Baker's chances in the track events he said, "Baker has the best chance of taking the Bi-City, Columbus Relays and the Regionals due to our head coach, Mr. Sam Roberts".

Who's Who

Besides sports, Frankie participates in other activities. He was elected to Who's Who in Baker. Frankie is the "Best Dressed Boy" and also "One of the Ten Most Handsome" in the Senior Class.

For the past four years he has been a member of the "B" Club, Baker's Letter Club.

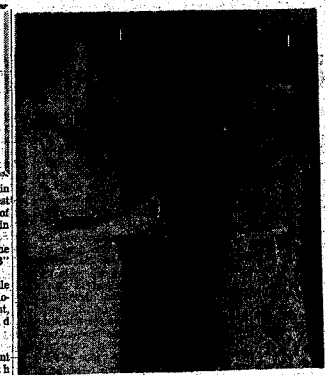
This year Frankie's schedule includes Sociology — Psychology, English IV, Government, Typing, Electrical Shop and Physical Education.

Many Awards

Awards have been important in Frankie's life. At Faith School, he was the Best Athlete in the sixth, seventh and eighth grades due to winning the field day competition held each year.

During his freshman year, Frankie was a member of the winning team in the YAC Bowling League. He was awarded first place in the region and second place in the State General Metal Division of the Industrial Arts Department with a pair of lamps which he made during his sophomore year.

Frankie received a trophy for marksmanship from the National Rifle Association. Last year he was presented a medal for track for participating in the Bi-City Mile Relay.



Active on Post

Frankie is a member of Brat Barracks, the Benning Teen Club and attends the 1st Infantry Brigade Catholic chapel. He enjoys sports and collects knives as a hobby.

The Holbrooks reside at 945D Gillespie Street. Frankie has three sisters, Skippy, 22; Cindy, 4; and Beth Anne, 2. Msgt Holbrook is the pro at the Fort Benning Golf Course.

After graduation from Baker High, Frankie plans to enlist in the Marine Corps.

Frankie, an outstanding Baker Senior and athlete, is an example of a Benningite who gives his very best to his school and its traditions. Report Card is proud to salute this Benning personality and wish him luck for the future.

TOP SPEAKER . . . Mrs. Dion Johnson, right, is awarded a silver cup as "Speaker-of-the-Term" at a banquet last Saturday staged by the Fort Benning-Columbus Toastmistress Club at the Main Officers' Open Mess. Making the presentation is Miss Avis Gordee.

In Streamlining Move

Army Announces New High Command Organization

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Army Secretary Elvis J. Stahr officially announced on January 16 plans for reorganization of the Army bringing sweeping changes to its current structure.

They both expressed confidence in the effectiveness of the plan which will consolidate numerous responsibilities now under various Technical Services, commands and other agencies, and place them under new commands.

The objectives of the reorganization, according to Secretary Stahr, are:

Eliminate duplication of efforts and excessive fragmenting of functions, responsibilities and resources.

Consolidate responsibilities for personnel management, training, combat development, research and development, and logistics functions in the smallest number of commands and agencies.

Provide an organization which is better aligned to change in the general defense environment which has evolved since 1953, the date of the last comprehensive study of the Department of the Army organization.

Improve effectiveness by more clearly fixing responsibility for accomplishment of major tasks and by simplifying and strengthening the command and management structure.

Provide for more flexible use of the skill and capability of military personnel and for corresponding broader technical opportunities.

Delegate to subordinate commands and agencies all functions which need not be performed at the level of the Secretary of the Army and the Army General Staff.

The six main actions in the reorganization plan are:

(1) The establishment of a Materiel Development and Logistic Command which will take over the materiel development, procurement and supply tasks now spead over various technical services, and the service tests and evaluation function now assigned to the Continental Army Command.

(2) A new Army Combat Developments Command will perform all the functions in this field now being done by CONARC, the various technical and administrative services, and other agencies.

(3) Give the Continental Army Command responsibility for almost all individual and unit training throughout the Army. This will place all training centers and service schools under CONARC including those now operated by the technical and administrative services.

(4) An office of Personnel Operations will be established at the DA Special Staff level to control centrally the career development and assignment of military personnel, both officer and enlisted, except officers of the Judge Advocate General's Corps, the Chaplains and the Medical Services. This action consolidates personnel operations now dispersed among some 20 different agencies.

(5) Relieve the Army General Staff of certain command-like and operating functions to permit greater emphasis on planning, programming, policy making and general supervision of the overall effort.

(6) Realign the DA Special Staff and Operating Agencies to reflect the establishment of the two new commands, the expansion of CONARC's training responsibilities and centralized control of military personnel managment.

Concurrent with the announcement of the reorganization a Department of Defense Reorganization Order was released. It abolished seven chiefs of technical and administrative services and transferred their functions to the Secretary of the Army along with some of the functions of the Chief of Engineers, an office which was not abolished.

The abolished offices are: Chief Signal Officer, Adjutant General, Quartermaster General, Chief of Finance, Chief of Ordnance, Chief Chemical Officer and Chief of Transportation.

This order will become effective if the Armed Services Committees of Congress take no action to veto it within 30 days of receipt of the order by the two committees. It was delivered on Jan. 16th.

Mr. Stahr explained that the realignment means that the technical services transferred their materiel functions to the Materiel Development and Logistic Command, their training functions to CONRC, their combat development functions to Combat Development Command, and their personnel functions to the Office of Personnel Operations. The staff functions and certain of the Army-wide services now performed by chiefs of technical and administrative services will be performed by officers on the DA Special Staff.

He emphasized that these changes do not mean that the technical and administrative branches will be eliminated or career opportunities reduced.

"On the contrary," he said, "the technical and administrative branches will retain their identities; but, like the Infantry, Armor, and Artillery branches, they will not be directed by separate chiefs. Career opportunities will be broadened by the utilization of specialists in any assignments for which they are qualified and by corresponding opportunities for each such officer to be considered for a number of high-level positions."

The reorganization plan is the result of recommendations of a committee of some 60 Army officers and DA civilians appointed last February by Secretary Stahr, under direction of Secretary McNamara, for the purpose of studying the functions, organization and procedure of the Department of the Army. Heading the committee was Deputy Comptroller of the Army Leonard W. Hoelscher.

The committee returned its report in October and it was then submitted to the Army Chief of Staff for examination and review. A special committee of senior officers on the Army Staff conducted this examination.

Their report and recommended revisions were considered by Secretary Stahr and the Chief of Staff along with their principal military and civilian advisors. The resultant reorganization plan was then approved by both the Secretary of Defense and President Kennedy.

Secretary Stahr said the reorganization will get underway in the near future but at least 18 months will be required to put the plan completely into effect. Another spokesman stated the Office of Personnel Operation and the Combat Development Command are expected to be completely operational in nine months and the other actions will take the longer period of time.

The main impact will fall on Department of Army Headquarters, Headquarters CONARC, and the Headquarters of the two new commands. According to the Army Secretary, units and installations subordinate to these headquarters will not be effected materially. At these levels, he said, the impact on personnel stability will be negligible.

Concluding a press conference on the new Army structure plan, Secretary Stahr said, "I should like to reiterate that this reorganization is the product of the progressive thinking and extensive experience of extremely competent groups and officers and civilians drawn from all branches of the Army. I am certain that it will produce marked improvement in the management and efficiency of the Army, thereby strengthening the Army's contribution to national security."

Local West Point Society Members To Elect Officers

The West Point Society of Fort Benning and Columbus will hold its annual election of officers and business meeting at a supper January 30 at 6 p.m. in the Corregidor Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess.

The supper is not the annual Founder's Day dinner scheduled for a later date.

Members of the society and all graduates or former cadets of the U. S. Military Academy are invited. For reservations, telephone LI 5-5392 before 3 p.m. Monday.

Decorated Sergeant Dies Here

Sgt. Bob A. Vaughan, one of the most highly decorated enlisted men at Fort Benning, died earlier this month at Martin Army Hospital at the age of 45.

He had been assigned to the 35th Ordnance Detachment, a small arms repair unit attached to the 7th Ordnance Battalion.

A native of Union City, Tennessee, Sgt. Vaughan first entered the Army in 1936, and saw combat duty in the Pacific during World War II.

Among his decorations were the Distinguished Service Cross, Silver Star Medal, Legion of Merit, Distinguished Flying Cross, Bronze Star Medal, Air Medal with four Oak Leaf Clusters, and Purple Heart with one Oak Leaf Cluster.

Survivors include the widow, Mrs. Ruby Vaughan, Phenix City; one sister, Mrs. Nita Wylie, Baird, Texas, and several nieces and nephews.

Advance Party To McClellan

Signal, QM, Engineers Depart Thurs., Others Leave Sun., Mon. for Exercise

An advance detachment composed of personnel of the 122nd Signal Battalion, 2nd Quartermaster Company and the 2nd Engineer Battalion departed yesterday for Fort McClellan, Alabama, to prepare for the remainder of the units selected to train there January 29 through February 7.

A quartering party from Brigade Headquarters is to leave Sunday, while the remainder of the units will begin movement Monday with the departure of task force quartering parties, beginning at 3 a.m.

Task Forces

Remaining units — divided into three task forces—will head for Fort McClellan at 8 a.m., each taking a separate route. Movement to the Alabama post is to conclude between 4 p.m. and 5 p.m. Monday.

During the ten-day exercise the reinforced battle groups will participate in non-firing exercises as prescribed by Division Brigade.

Units to participate in this first of two exercises include the 1st, 22nd and 87th Infantries; battalions of the 15th, 37th and 38th Artilleries; Companies A, D and E of the 2nd Engineer Battalion; Company A, 13th Transportation Battalion; elements of Companies A and B, 122nd Signal Battalion; 2nd Aviation Company, 2nd Quartermaster Company, 702nd Ordnance Battalion, 2nd Medical Battalion, Division Trains Headquarters and the bridge platoon of the 2nd Engineer Battalion.

A second battle group field training exercise involving other division elements and units is scheduled for February 26 through March 7 at Fort McClellan.

The objectives of the ten-day exercise are to conduct major unit tactical maneuvers on unfamiliar terrain, provide training in planning and conducting

9th Inf. Trains All Men Eligible

First Results Released on Bayonet Assault Course, PT, Road March

BY PETER TATISTCHEFF

To get every eligible officer, non-commissioned officer and enlisted man into the testing area is the 9th Infantry's goal in its Expert Infantryman's Badge training program.

Testing on the division level begins Monday with EIB candidates from the 9th Infantry being the first over the line. Though every eligible man will be tested, the 9th's training program includes every man regardless of military occupational specialty.

All Train

Only men carrying an Infantry MOS will receive awards. But the valuable training, directed by Captain William M. Hannen, EIB training project officer, includes every man in the battle group.

Captain Hannen has devised a station-type setup through which each of the 13 specialized infantry subjects gets detailed treatment. Qualified training NCOs and officers carrying either the EIB or the Combat Infantryman's Badge teach subjects like grenade throwing, basic signal communication, military intelligence and adjustment of artillery and mortar fire.

Every effort is made to conduct training and pre-division level testing as it will be con-

PERFECT SCORE
Sgt. Baker

NCO Finishes With Perfect Mark at USAIC CBR School

A 2nd Infantry Division noncommissioned officer, Sergeant Robert J. Baker, was graduated with a 100 per cent average from the United States Army Infantry Center's Chemical - Biological - Radiological School Friday.

Sgt. Baker is assigned as a squad leader in the security platoon of Headquarters and Headquarters Company.

Two Others

Sgt. Baker's average was followed by those of two other division NCOs, Master Sergeant Charles Sproles, 96, and Sergeant First Class Farnell W. Bethune, 95.9, both of the 11th Infantry. School officials said Sgt. Baker's perfect score was the first of its kind in the 10-year existence of the school.

The course, called the Commander's CBR School Class Number Seven, was two weeks in duration.

Presenting certificates at the class's graduation last Friday was Lieutenant James T. Branan, the school's director as senior instructor.

Some 67 men completed the course; the class average was 84.

Asst Chiefs of Staff To Usher in Chapel 5

Encouraged by the leadership of the new Division Trains commander and Trains chaplains, special religious services Sunday in Chapel Five will initiate a program re-emphasizing chapel attendance.

The 2nd division's four Assistant Chiefs of Staff will usher Sunday at a special service the service conducted by Chaplain (Major) Alfred P. Lam at 11 a.m. Sunday.

Chapel Five, located near division headquarters, serves personnel from Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 122nd Signal Battalion, 2nd Administration Company, 2nd Replacement Detachment, the 2nd Division Band and their families.

This service is sponsored by Headquarters and Headquarters Company. Ushers will be Lieutenant Colonel Ralph K. Jones, G-1; Lieutenant Colonel John B. Wine, G-2; Lieutenant Colonel Ralph H. Hughlett, G-3 and Lieutenant Colonel James C. Larson, G-4.

Chaplain Lam, Division Trains Chaplain, will speak on the topic "The Paradox of Life."

Chaplain (Major) Clement P. J. Krug will conduct the Catholic Mass in Chapel Five at noon Sunday.

Chapel Five, informally called the "Division Trains Chapel," actually serves only two Division Trains units. Under the leadership of Lieutenant

Assn. Memorial Fund Drive Committee Receives 11,060 Names of Div Donors

By Div PIO

A list of 11,060 names of active 2nd Division members who contributed to the division's memorial fund drive has been received by the memorial committee in Washington.

Memorial committee chairman Ralph O. Lundgren reported that the names of all donors will be placed in a copper box to be encased at the dedication on July 20. The dedication will coincide with the Second Division Association's annual reunion.

The present "Flaming Sword" monument of the division now honors the division's dead in World War I. The new addition will consist of two wings, each bearing a base supporting 50 - foot flag poles which will be dedicated to the dead of World War II and the Korean War.

Stone for this addition, Mr. Lundgren said, is now being cut, polished and inscribed. The monument is expected to be completed by late Spring.

Sgt Walden, 23rd, Heads EM Council

By 23rd Infantry PIO

A 23rd Infantry NCO has been elected president of the Sand Hill Enlisted Men's Advisory Council.

Master Sergeant Robert G. Walden was named to head the group at its meeting last Friday. He has represented the 23rd Infantry at the Council for the past six months.

Named as vice president was Sgt. Herbert Pearsall, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 2nd Division. Private First Class Joseph W. Keating Jr., 27th Artillery, was selected committee chairman.

MINIATURE RANGE HELPS INSTRUCTION

87th's Mortar Platoon Finishes 81mm Training

By 87th Inf PIO

The 87th Infantry's mortar platoon recently completed the first phase of 81 millimeter mortar training for the battle group.

Training in forward observer and fire direction center techniques will have been covered when the 32-hour block is complete. The course started with fundamentals and will progress to a final firing examination at Concord Outpost.

During the past week, the mortarmen received eight classroom hours on ballistics, fire planning, forward observer and fire direction center procedure. Then they moved to the mortar platoon's miniature mortar range for 16 hours of practical work, using the mortar platoon's 4.2 mortars.

A final 12 hours will be spent on the range firing and testing.

"We feel that we are well qualified to give this instruction," says Lieutenant Richard Sharp, mortar platoon commander. "From our view of the picture we have learned much about fire planning and utilization of mortars at all levels, and we want to pass along our knowledge to our younger brothers of the weapons platoons."

Iranian Officers At 9th Inf

BY 9th Infantry PIO

Three Iranian Army officers are finishing a month-long visit to the 9th Infantry, where they have viewed the operation of a modern U. S. Army battle group.

The officers are Major Akbar Kobabi, Captains Houshang Shadrar and Amir Kamran, who arrived at Fort Benning in July. Since their arrival the officers have visited with numerous units and have attended the Associate Infantry Officer Career Course at Main Post.

While on their tour of the 9th Infantry the officers had the opportunity to take part in the different aspects of training that the men of the 9th Infantry have been undergoing.

Of special interest to them was the preparatory training for the Expert Infantryman's Badge, being conducted at that time.

Specialist Is 11th Inf. SOM

Specialist Four Dale G. Kurth has been selected as the "Soldier - of - the - Month" at the 11th Infantry.

Kurth is a team leader with the first platoon of Company A.

This marks the second month in succession that the 11th Infantry's top enlisted man has come from Company A.

Since completing basic training at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., Kurth has worked in supply with various units for most of his four years in the Army.

The native of Wisconsin first served with the 2nd Battle Group, 34th Infantry in Korea for 13 months as senior clerk with the S-4 section and upon returning from overseas duty, was assigned to the office of the Adjutant General, 2nd Infantry Division Headquarters.

After acting as supply sergeant with the division's 87th Infantry, Kurth was assigned to 11th Infantry Hqadquarters in January 1961 where he worked as supply clerk with the S-4 until his transfer to Company A in November.

Min. Review Slated Today For Retirees

Two 2nd Infantry Division officers and three enlisted men — all with more than 20 years' Army service — will be honored today upon their retirement with a miniature review at 1:30 p.m. at division headquarters parade field.

Closing out their military careers are Captain Andrew J. Kilgariff, 15th Artillery, who retires in the grade of major; Captain Renwich W. Speer, 2nd Medical Battalion; Master Sergeant Alex Branch, 7th Cavalry; Master Sergeant Charles L. Jones, 23rd Infantry; and Sergeant Lawrence E. Hellings, 15th Artillery.

Commander

Commander of Troops for the miniature review will be Colonel Maurice C. Holden, deputy brigade commander.

Each will receive a Certificate of Appreciation from General George H. Decker, chief of staff, United States Army, presented by Major General Charles H. Chase, 2nd Infantry Division commanding general.

The certificates read:

"On the occasion of your retirement from active service, I wish to extend to you my personal thanks and the sincere appreciation of the United States Army for the many years of outstanding service which you have given to our country.

"You have helped to maintain the security of this nation during a most critical period in its history with a devotion to duty and a spirit of sacrifice in keeping with the proud traditions of the military service.

"I share your pride in the contributions you have made to the Army and its ability to accomplish its mission. I trust that you will maintain an active interest in the Army and its objective during your retirement.

"You take with you my best wishes and those of your comrades for happiness and success in the years that lie ahead."

ALL SMILES . . . The reason for SFC Burl Claborn's apparent glee is the fact he has just been presented the permanent best mess award for Kelley Hill by Brigadier General Royal Reynolds Jr., assistant division commander. Sgt. Claborn's Headquarters Co. mess hall, 87th Infantry, won the Kelley Hill award five times last year and the right to retain the award permanently.

Traffic Quiz

Allowed to Leave Car With Engine Running?

This short traffic quiz was prepared by the 2nd Division Provost Marshal's Office in an attempt to better acquaint you with the safe and legal methods of operating a motor vehicle. All information is taken from Fort Benning Pamphlet 385-3, Vehicle Registration and Traffic Regulations.

True or False

1. You may leave your vehicle unattended with the engine running, providing you are not blocking traffic and you do not leave it unstended any longer than is necessary.

2. When parking on a perceptible grade it is not necessary to turn the front wheels to the curb or side of the road as long as the emergency brake is in good condition and is adequate to hold the vehicle.

3. Due to the fact that some vehicles have a greater passenger capacity than others, there is no legal limit to the amount of adults which may ride in the front seat.

4. When a vehicle is so loaded as to obstruct the driver's view to the front, sides or rear it is considered a traffic hazard and shall not be operated.

Answers

1. False. No vehicle will be left unattended before stopping the engine, setting the brake, locking the ignition, and removing the keys. (sec 18-c)

2. False. No vehicle will be left unattended on a perceptible grade without first setting the brake and turning the front wheels to the curb or side of the road. (sec 18-c)

3. False. A vehicle will not be operated with more than three adults in the front seat. (sec 18-d)

4. True. A vehicle will not be operated which is so loaded as to obstruct the driver's view to the front, sides and rear, or interfere with his control of the driving mechanism. (sec 18-d)

Deputy CO Leaving 9th For Far East

By 9th Infantry PIO

The 9th Infantry bids farewell this week to Lieutenant Colonel Frank J. Tolocka who is being transferred to the Far East area.

Colonel Tolocka has served as deputy battle group commander for the 9th Infantry since October.

Before arriving in the Far East, Colonel Tolocka will report to the Military Assistance Institute in Arlington, Virginia. He will undergo a four-week course to acquaint him with the background of his new assignment. The Colonel also will have an opportunity to visit with several officers who have recently returned from similar assignments.

Maj. Kirk Assigned To Washington

Major Robert J. Kirk, former assistant G-1 (personnel) has departed the 2nd Infantry Division for an assignment with The Infantry Officers' Career Branch, Washington, D. C.

Before being assigned to the division's G-1 section, Major Kirk served as S-1 of the 9th Infantry. While at G-1 he also served as Assistant Chief of Staff, G-1.

He was awarded a certificate of achievement by Colonel Gustav M. Bacharach, division chief of staff, before leaving Fort Benning.

Maj. Roche Studying At Monmouth

The 2nd Division's assistant G-2, Major Sidney J. Roche, departed January 19 for Fort Monmouth, New Jersey, to attend the Electronic Warfare Officer Course.

The 45-year-old Major joined the G-2 section last October, following a three-month assignment as the division reenlistment officer.

The course, which ends in early February, deals with security in communications during war. Major Roche attended the Army Language School in 1954. He is an associate member of the American Rocket Society, Inc.

2nd Div EIB Program Begins at 9th Infantry

ducted next week on the division level.

Captain Hannen has released results of their forced 12-mile, three hour road march, stating that a total of 330 men have qualified from the 9th in this category.

Less complete results were available in physical training and the bayonet assault course. In physical training, Company A has qualified 18, Company E, 23, and Company D, 44.

More Results

Two results have come in on bayonet assault course qualification: Company E has qualified 20 men and Combat Support 28. These figures include only those men who hold an Infantry MOS. Many more have qualified in each category who do not hold an Infantry MOS and thus are not eligible for the EIB.

The largest number of men failing the road march in a company was five men. Captain Hannen specified that failures in physical training, the road march, and bayonet assault course will be given an opportunity to requalify before final tests.

Division-level EIB testing, which begins Monday for the 9th Infantry, is to continue until February 10.

Officers competing for the EIB include Major George E. Wallace II, S-3, Captain Allan J. Francisco, assistant S - 2, Captain Hannen, battle group liaison officer, and two company commanders.

EIB training, whose first goal is to qualify as many Infantry soldiers as possible, has also afforded the 9th a program providing for progressive and continuous physical and mental conditioning integrated into their regular training program.

Under the direction of Captain Hannen, the systematic handling of 13 complex Infantry subjects has given the 9th high hopes for an enviable record.

11th Inf. Officer Gets Company, Another Bar

By 11th Inf PIO

An 11th Infantry officer in the space of eight days was promoted to captain and given command of a rifle company.

Capt. William T. Wade was promoted to his present rank Dec. 28 and, on Jan. 3, succeeded Capt. Richard R. Robland as commander of Company C, 1st Battle Group, 11th Infantry. Capt. Robland has been assigned to Division G-1.

Capt. Wade had served as battle group assistant S-3 for about a month and prior to that was executive officer of Company C.

After serving in the Navy from 1950-1954, Capt. Wade came on active duty with the Army in 1955, obtained his commission through Officers' Candidate School in 1957 and from there went to flight school.

In April, he joined the 11th Infantry for 18 months to two years of ground duty to become abreast of the changes in his basic branch, Infantry.

Capt. Wade has spent overseas duty in Korea and the Panama Canal.

Lt. Winchester Gets Silver Bar

By 1st Inf PIO

Promoted to his present rank was First Lieutenant Wayne Winchester, weapons platoon leader, Company B, 1st Infantry.

The promotion took place in the Battle Group Headquarters of the "Always First." Colonel Walter B. Todd, commander, pinned the insignia of the new rank on Lieutenant Winchester.

Lieutenant Winchester, from Sherman, Texas, is a graduate of Tuskegee Institute, where he received his bachelor of science degree in physical education.

An Old Fashioned Party

Col. and Mrs. Scott Host 7th Cavalry for Supper

An old fashioned "covered dish supper" set the mood for the recent informal 7th Cavalry party held at the home of Lieutenant Colonel and Mrs. Harvey Scott on Rainbow Avenue.

The ladies of the unit each prepared her own specialty and the result was a delicious supper. The bachelor officers were the honored guests, and they voiced unanimous approval of the ladies' culinary efforts.

Presentations

After dinner, several presentations were made in keeping with the 7th Cavalry traditions. A silver tray was presented to the newly wed couple, Lieutenant and Mrs. Frank O. Brown.

Captain and Mrs. Thomas J. Plott were presented with a baby cup. Capt. Plott, the S-3 air of the squadron, was also given the Fathership Award. This trophy is passed on to each new father in turn, and is his to keep until the next "trooper" is born.

Captain and Mrs. Richard O. Edwards were given a plaque, on which is inscribed: "to remind you of friends." In addition, Capt. Edwards was presented with a tape recording of farewell messages from the officers in the squadron. Capt. Edwards departs this week for an overseas assignment.

Group singing rounded out the informal evening, as the members of the 7th Cavlary joined voices in the traditional cavalry songs, accompanied by Captain Charles Franks, on his guitar.

Tribute Given Mrs. R. Connor By 87th Ladies

Ladies of the 87th Infantry raised their coffee cups recently in a farewell toast to Mrs. Robert Conner, wife of the battle group commander.

Further tribute was given to Mrs. Connor with gifts of a monogrammed silver plate and a scrapbook of photos and clippings about the ladies' activities during the past year.

Colonel Connor will be leaving Fort Benning for Korea soon and Mrs. Connor and their five children have gone to Cincinnati, Ohio, to be near their grandparents.

Mrs. Raymond Bush and Mrs. Douglas Syverson were cohostesses for the event, which took place in Mrs. Syverson's home.

The Bayonet Cookbook

This week's recipe is a pudding submitted by Mrs. Charlie E. Cranford, wife of Master Sergeant Cranford of 12th Artillery.

The Cranfords and their three daughters live at 1070 Rosewood Drive, Columbus. Mrs. Cranford enjoys bowling, sewing and fishing.

1 Cup Butter or Shortening
2 Eggs
½ Teaspoon Baking Powder
2 cups Cake Flour
1½ Cups Sugar
1 Cup Butter Milk
1 Teaspoon Soda
1 Teaspoon Salt

Cream butter and sugar, add flour, baking powder, soda and salt together. Add flour mixture and milk alternately. Add:

1 Tablespoon Orange Juice
1 Tablespoon Orange Rind
2 Packages Dates — Chopped
1 Cup Nuts — Chopped

Bake in tube pan at 325 degrees — about one hour or until cake springs back. While cake is baking, warm the following: 1 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon orange rind and 1-1-3 cups orange juice. As soon as cake is removed from oven turn it out of pan and spoon this warm mixture over the cake.

Coffee Hour

The ladies of the 23rd Infantry helped to serve coffee and doughnuts at the Martin Army Hospital Staff-Patient Coffee hour on Friday, January 19. Sharing hostess duties were Mesdames Louis A. Kunig, Jr., Richard A. Perkins, Jr., Del L. Briscoe, David S. Moore, William H. McGondel, James O. Duke, David K. Williams and Joel W. Breeding.

Bridge

The couples' bridge group composed of officers and wives of the 1st Infantry, gathered recently at the Bridge Corner of the Wynnton Shopping Center. The three high scores were won by Lieutenant and Mrs. Patrick Beal, Captain and Mrs. John Rinedollar and Lieutenant and Mrs. John Yeosock.

Mrs. McCoy Hosts Sergeants Major Wives; Mrs. Coburn Guest of Honor

Mrs. R. J. McCoy, wife of Sergeant Major Richard McCoy, 122nd Signal Battalion, was this month's hostess for the sergeants major wives' coffee.

The table, covered with a white damask tablecloth, was decorated with a mixed arrangement of chrysanthemums, gladioli and irises, flanked by silver candelabra. In the center of the table was a large chocolate cake with a sergeant major's insignia as decoration.

Mrs. Herbert W. Coburn, wife of the 122nd Signal Battalion commander, was guest of honor. Other guests included Mrs. W. J. McCoy, mother of Sergeant McCoy, and Mrs. R. L. Brown, Mrs. B. Nowell, Mrs. W. T. St. John, Mrs. R. B. Patterson, Mrs. D. Moon, Mrs. F. A. Lee, Mrs. H. Merry, Mrs. J. L. Runyon, Mrs. S. J. Regan and Mrs. E. A. Owens.

Don't Yell 'Hey, Willie' Around the 11th Infantry

BY 11TH INF PIO

It's downright dangerous to say, "Hey, Willie" in the 11th Infantry.

Chances are about 100 heads would turn your way.

. . . Wilson, Billie . . .

For in the 11th, some 28 individuals have last names running from Williams through Wilson. Wilcox, Wilkes and Willer and 68 more have first names of William, Willie, Willmore are named Billy or Billie.

You'll find the most interest in your call from Headquarters Company, where no less than 15 persons have the letters "w-i-l-l" somewhere in their names.

And in Company E, a "Hey, Tom," might perk up the ears of a half-dozen individuals with last names of Thomas, Thompson and Thomason. And that's not to mention the company's three Bells and three Johnsons.

And in Company D of the 11th, five persons are bound to listen when they hear the name Smith mentioned.

Although "Hey, Mac," sometimes is a common term used to get the attention of almost anybody, in the 11th it means just a little more to 29 soldiers, with "Mc" starting off their surnames.

Capt. F. Widrig Mortar Platoon C-O at 1st Unit

By 1st Inf PIO

Captain Frank C. Widrig has been assigned to succeed Captain John D. Rinedollar as the commander of the mortar platoon, Combat Support Company, 1st Infantry.

Prior to reporting to the "Always First," Captain Widrig served as the battery commander of Battery C, 3rd Howitzer Battalion, 40th Artillery, Camp Drum, New York.

A native of Oswego, New York, Captain Widrig is a graduate of Philadelphia Military College, when he received his bachelor of science degree in accounting. Upon graduation, he worked as a private auditor and accountant before entering the Army in June 1953.

Captain Widrig makes his home in Oswego, where his wife Marion and three daughters are now residing.

VIP FACT

In 1959, the post played host to 13,856 U. S. official visitors, and 461 Allied VIPs.

Signal Hosts 6 Iranians

The 122nd Signal Battalion recently was host to six Iranian officers.

The officers, who had just completed a four-months radio maintenance course on Main Post, were given a tour of the battalion as the last activity on their itinerary before returning to Iran. The group was shown the major pieces of signal equipment within the battalion and its operation. In addition to the signal tour, the officers were shown the mess hall operations and the administration operation of the orderly room.

They were given a chance to see the actual operation of the equipment during CPX "Foxtrot." The officers were taken to each signal center and were shown the setting-up and operations of each.

ACM Presented To Sgt. Borris, Ex-9th Inf Man

Sergeant First Class Thomas W. Borris, formerly of the 9th Infantry, has been awarded an Army Commendation Medal.

Sgt. Borris, presently a member of Headquarters, 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, received the medal for his "outstanding service" as a career counselor. The medal was recommended for him by Major General Charles H. Chase, division commanding general.

Presenting the medal to the former 9th Infantry career counselor was Lieutenant Colonel Charles T. Caprine, 58th commander.

Sgt. Borris, a native of Dunbar, Penna., entered the Army in January 1947. He assumed his present duties with the 58th Infantry in August.

Sgt Smith S-O-M At 9th Infantry

Sergeant Eddie L. Smith has been selected as the 9th Infantry's "Soldier-of-the-Month."

Sergeant Smith serves as a weapons squad leader in the 9th Infantry's Company D, commanded by Captain Sam S. Younger Jr.

Sergeant Smith is from St. Louis, Missouri. He entered the Army in January of 1955 and was assigned to Fort Riley, Kansas, for basic Infantry training. He has been in the 9th Infantry since July.

A Variety of Missions Are Assigned To 11th Infantry's Engineer Platoon

By 11th Inf PIO

A small stream cuts across a road in a 2nd Division training area leaving a gap of a dozen feet, obstructing the passage of wheeled vehicles, especially large ones.

The 11th Infantry was training in the area. It needed the road so its vehicles could pass through to companies on either side without taking a long detour.

Five Hours Later

The battle group's engineer platoon in Headquarters Company got a call and put eight men to work. Five working hours later they had completed a bridge capable of supporting any wheeled vehicle—and for several years to come.

The 14 and a half foot long, 12 foot wide "timber trestle," made out of logs, will support up to 15 tons and will last until the wood rots.

The 11th Infantry engineers also recently received a request from battle group S-3 to see what they could do about building ranges for mortars equipped with pneumatic equipment capable of shooting small projectiles by compressed air for short distances.

A week after work started, the engineer platoon had completed not only one but three separate ranges at Kelley Hill training areas — two for use by the 81 millimeter mortar sections of the battle group rifle companies and another for use by Combat Support Company's 4.2 inch mortar platoon.

Tall mounds of dirt — 40 truckloads worth at the 4.2 mortar miniature range—were placed in front of the actual mortar positions, three positions having been prepared at each 81 range and six at the heavier mortar range site. The mounds keep the gunner and loader of the mortar from actually seeing where their small rounds drop in relation to the target.

This eliminates any tendency they might have to make their own adjustments — instead of getting the word from the fire direction center to the rear. A forward observer station on a mound to the side of the tubes passes his observations on the strike of the shells back to the FDC.

Thus all parts of the mortar team get realistic training in small areas at a low cost.

Besides the earthmoving part of the job, the engineers assigned to the project had to collect and place in logs — 66 eight-footers at the 4.2 range —for support of the guns. They also built target kits of lettered gallon can targets and numbered stakes for use in range determination. An inch of distance on the ranges is equivalent to two yards in the mortarmen's work of the problem.

The engineer platoon also spread sawdust at the sites.

Besides the value of the new ranges to battle group mortar crews, the construction work served as valuable on-the-job training for drivers of the earthmoving equipment used, according to Staff Sergeant Masato Yamada, squad leader in charge of the project.

The bridges and the ranges are just two of the items the platoon has built to aid the battle group in its training mission. These items also serve as semi-permanent improvements for division training areas.

The things this platoon builds — the ranges, the bunkers, the demolition pits, the bridges—often "may not appear sophisticated, but there's a lot of engineering behind them," according to Lieutenant John C. Terebessy, platoon leader.

This combat engineer outfit has a double-pronged mission—to increase the fighting effectiveness of the battle group through engineering work and advice and to fight as Infantry if necessary.

Typical assignments it must carry out during normal training days include the building of training aids, bridges and demolition pits, earthmoving, road improvement and drainage, and carpentry work.

NEW 1st SGT . . . First Sergeant Troy Patrick recently was promoted to his present rank and the pay grade of E-8. He is "topkick" at the 15th Artillery's Battery A.

The platoon has prepared an "attack of a position course," which included the construction of demolition pits and bunkers and the placing of barbed wire.

Lieutenant Terebessy and his non-commissioned officers also are called on to give classes and demonstrations to the battle group on such things as mine welfare and demolitions.

When the 11th Infantry moves to the field for a battle group or division exercise, the engineers will be found helping breach simulated minefields; making reconnaissance of main supply routes; and advising commanders on the organizing of defensive terrain through the use of minefields, barbed wire and obstacles.

And during the division FTX last November, the engineer platoon built two bridges on schedule so mess trucks could reach companies with on-time chow.

The platoon, with its dump truck, saws, scoop loader, rope and other equipment can even build a small airfield if necessary, Lieutenant Terebessy says.

In direct contrast to building, if the time should ever come, the platoon might be given an opposite mission — destruction of all these things through the use of explosives.

27th Unit Builds Roving Fire Direction Center

The 27th Artillery's Battery B has come up with the "new look" in the form of a fire direction center van mounted on a three-quarter ton vehicle.

Inside the van is mounted the necessary equipment to operate a fire direction center. The van can comfortably seat five people and contains two writing tables, two plotting tables and three radios, each of which operates, respectively, in the battalion command net, battalion fire direction net and the air warning net. It also contains four field telephones used by recorders and computers.

The capabilities of the van were demonstrated to the Division Artillery Commander, Colonel Frank Osmanski, during a recent inspection and won generous approval.

The idea for the mobile FDC was suggested by Captain Don F. Hancock, battery commander, and was formulated and constructed by Lieutenant Robert G. Slaughter, executive officer. The van was completed in three weeks and its durability has been tested repeatedly over the past two months on field problems.

23rd Inf. Revives Old Custom-- Supernumerary Is Col.'s Orderly

By 23rd Infantry PIO

An old Army tradition has been reinstated in the 23rd Infantry's guard mount system. Begun on January 10, the supernumerary of the guard is now named the colonel's orderly. He is chosen from the 22 men on guard mount on the basis of appearance, knowledge of his general orders, military courtesy and chain-of-command.

The following morning, he is presented to Colonel Louis A. Kumzig Jr., battle group commander, who inaugurated the Colonel's Orderly designation.

The honor is a much-sought-after prize among the companies, for it carries with it not only the advantages of the supernumerary, but also the personal congratulations of the battle group commander.

DivArty Defeats 87th 66-64 in Tight Contest

FROM UNIT PIOs

Division Artillery nailed down first place in the 2nd Infantry Division basketball Tournament Monday night as the Cannoneers defeated the 87th Infantry, 66-64, in a photo-finish.

The Conquerors led throughout most of the first half except for the final seconds when DivArty pushed ahead, 34-33.

The second half became a scoring duel between the 87th's George Krajack and DivArty's Don Yoder, each ringing up 14 points.

The last 30 seconds were the most feverish as the 87th missed three of four opportunities to tie the game.

Hubert Barksdale, Melvin Turner and Yoder turned in for the Cannoneers, while 87th coach Krajack poured in 24 points along with an almost perfect shooting percentage.

Scoring honors for DivArty were shared by Yoder with 19 and Barksdale with 14.

9th Inf	46

The 11th Infantry, behind a fast offense and a tight defense, rolled past the 9th Infantry, 64-46, Monday night.

Manchus took the lead 3-0 in the opening minutes but the scoring of the 11th's Robert Marshall and the rebounding of James Allen led the 11th to run up the score to 32-14 at intermission.

The 9th fired up the second half behind the scoring of Ben Nordell and the ballhandling of John Dawson only to see the 11th extend their lead 43-20 in five minutes.

The 9th's quintet managed to close the gap to 56-45 with 5:20 to go in the game. But an 11th Infantry drive only allowed for one more point as it increased its lead 15 points.

Scoring honors went to Marshall of the 11th who scorched the nets with 21 points, Nordell poured in 17 for the Manchus.

1st Inf	65
Div Trains	59

The 1st Infantry broke into the winning column by defeating Division Trains, 65-59, in a see-saw game in which the lead changed several times.

Precision meant decision as the "Always First" team alternated the first and second teams freely, with the first team using the full-court press and the second team playing in the zone.

High man for the 1st Infantry was Jimmie Chandler with 18, while Walter Clark, of the 2nd Medical Battalion, led the Trains quintet with 23.

69th Armor	65

The 23rd Infantry scrapped out a 68-65 victory from a determined 69th Armor quintet in a nip-and-tuck match in which the lead swapped constantly.

At the half, the 23rd squad held its head above water with a narrow lead of 36-34 and secured the victory in the second stanza.

Leading scorers for the 23rd were Clint Johnson with 23 points and Williams Powers with 18.

Top man for the Tankers was Casey Fleming with 27 tallies, while Maynard Nagelhout was runner-up with 18.

Monday night's victory was the 23rd's first in three attempts.

Run-away Marks Are Recorded In Three Games

One-sided scores were run up last week in three of the four games played Thursday night.

Posting wins were the 87th Infantry, Division Artillery and the 69th Armor, the team representing Separate Battalions, while the 11th Infantry recorded its first win of the season.

The 87th Infantry's Conquerors defeated the 9th Infantry Manchus, 65-33, with George Krajack scoring 14 points for the Kelley Hill team.

Ben Nordell poured in 17 for the 9th quintet.

In the closest game of the evening, the 69th Armor defeated Division Trains, 56-49, behind a balanced scoring attack in which Maynard Nagelhout recorded 14 points. Walter Clark scored 16 for the losers.

Division Artillery downed the 1st Infantry, 83-60, with Hubert Barksdale pouring in 28 points. The 1st Infantry's Jimmy Chandler also had 28.

The 11th Infantry posted a 76-40 triumph over the 23rd Infantry as Russell Anderson scored 22 points.

Army's Newest Football Mentor Tells His Coaching Techniques

West Point, N. Y. (AFPS)—Paul Dietzel, who gave up his post at Louisiana State to become head football coach at Army, claims his coaching techniques have been strongly influenced by three men, Col Earl "Red" Blaik, Paul "Bear" Bryant and Sid Gillman.

Dietzel served as an assistant to Army before he came to LSU in 1955. Before that he was on the staffs of Bryant, when he was at Kentucky and of Gillman, at Cincinnati.

"I guess my coaching techniques are more like Gillman's, who is now coach of the San Diego Chargers in the American Football League," the former Miami U. of Ohio grid player stated. "But I use Bryant's methods in handling the squad and Blaik's careful planning procedures — he was a great organizer."

The 37-year-old pigskin strategist, first non-West Pointer to take over the top slot since 1911, also announced that he planned to employ the same three-team system at Army that proved so successful when he guided LSU to the national championship in 1958 and three bowl tilts during the last four years.

The four assistants Dietzel said will be coming with him are George Terry, who will head the defense and coach the defensive line; Larry Jones, who will assist Terry; Charlie Peevy, who will be in charge of the offense and will lead the offensive backs; and Bill Shalosky, who will work with the offensive line.

Asked how he felt about returning to Army, Dietzel said, "You can't be at West Point and not have something rub off on you. Deep in my heart, I have always wanted to be head coach at West Point. Army has a special place on the American scene as far as I am concerned."

MORE POINTS . . . Alyce Sims (left) and Earline Surles, members of the post WAC basketball team, score in the team's two recent victories over a Fort Jackson team last week-end. The score in Saturday's game was 38 to 24 and Sunday's was 48 to 25.

NBA Votes OK For GI Players

Executives of the National Basketball Association voted to allow players on active duty with the Armed Forces to participate in league games. The new rule states that one serviceman from each club will be permitted to participate in league competition.

'Two-Niners' Take First Half In Cage League

By Sfc Bismarck Smith

The 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade wrapped up the first place spot in the Maor Unit Basketball League Monday night when they handed the 609th Radar Squadron their fourteenth straight set-back, 81-50, and became the league first-half champs.

The Infantrymen finished the first-half play with a 13-1 record. Their lone defeat came from the second place 428th Medical Battalion, in their second meeting.

The Medics halted a seven game winning drive by handing the undefeated Infantryman a 78-67 setback. Earlier in the season the Infantryman had edged the Medics in a closely contested 81-79.

Looking back at the 29th Infantry first-half cage record shows that they chalked up a total of 1293 points for a 92.3 average per game. It also shows that each player on the Two-Niners quintet has over 100 points to his credit.

The 428th Medics rounded out the first-half in second place with only two setbacks. The 156th Signal Battalion nipped the Medics in a 68-62 contest.

As competition ended in the first-half the standings were as follows: 29th Infantry; 428th Medical Battalion; 156th Signal Battalion; The Student Brigade; 58th Infantry; Center Troop Command, and 609th Radar Squadron.

Div Cage Team Has Experience

John Davis, head basketball coach at Fort Dix, N. J., can boast of leading a team that has 11 former college players.

The list of stars includes Charles Forte, three year varsity starter at Wake Forrest College, and returnee Charlie West, ex-Wagner College harkourier who scored 585 points for Dix last season.

INSTRUCTOR SHIN THROWS CARLES
During Demonstration For Post Judo Team

Judo Instructor Visits

Kyungun Shin, fourth degree Black Belt judo instructor at Georgia Southwestern College, Americus, visited the Fort Benning judo team recently at Briant Wells Field House.

Shin gave instructions in all types of Judo, he also answered questions for members of the team.

Marcel Carles, third degree Black Belt holder from Columbus, an ex-ranger at the post, helped Shin in demonstrating different falls.

Capt. M. G. Stafford, president of the Fort Benning Judo Club, expressed appreciation for helpful hints his team gathered from Shin.

A Broken Leg Didn't Stop Him; He Won His Judo Crown Anyway

FT. DIX, N. J. (AFPS) — Not only did Pvt. Sheldon Goodhart win in Inter-Zone American judo championship with a broken leg in a cast last year, but he claims to have been the only American to earn a black belt in judo at the age of seven.

In addition, Goodhart holds a third-degree black belt in ju-jitsu and a second degree black belt in karate.

Now an Army judo instructor, Goodhart is one of 25 Americans entitled to wear fifth-degree judo belts. He studied under Professor Ishikawa, an eighth — degree black belter, at the Kodokan Institute of Japan.

Advancing rapidly through the white, yellow, green and brown-belt ratings, he had to defeat 10 men to garner his first-degree black belt.

To achieve his present rating, the 21-year-old soldier pitted his abilities against eight sixth - degree black belt wearers, three seventh-degreers and two men on the eigth-degree level. He won all the matches, except one on the eigth-degree level. It ended in a draw.

Post SCUBA Club Election Set Tonight

The Fort Benning SCUBA Club will hold its annual election of officers tonight at 7 p.m. at Service Club 1.

The club's plans include a complete display of SCUBA equipment and a series of short films on SCUBA and skin diving.

One of the objectives of the post Club is the furtherance of military application of diving. The club trains volunteers to don SCUBA gear and traverse and explore the depths of the shores along the Florida Gulf and other divers' haunts in South Georgia and Florida.

Fundamentals and the basics of diving are first mastered at the Briant Wells Field House swimming pool.

Last fall the club made two trips to the Florida Keyes, more in the line of recreational diving - spear fishing and searching for shells and coral formations—than applying the military aspects of SCUBA diving.

Membership in the club includes many Ranger qualified personnel as well as a large number of paratroopers.

"Our principal training officer, Capt. Tony Labrozzi, was an instructor at the Ranger Camp, Destin, Florida in 1959-1960," says Major Gilbert Proctor, Infantry Board, the club president.

"Capts. James Bowers and Jim Tucker, both members and SCUBA qualified, were instructors at the Ranger Mountain Camp up until recently. We encourage—even solicit—Ranger and Airborne qualified personnel to join up. The membership includes many senior and master parachutists. This is not to say we discourage the novice interested in having a good time skin and SCUBA diving," he added.

Membership has grown from a handful of experienced divers to some 70 members of varying qualifications. The club's most experienced diver is Pfc Wayne W. Eyres, Martin Army Hospital.

Pfc Eyres has over 5 years of diving experience to include several dives under iced over lakes and up to depths of 150 feet. Eyres instructed SCUBA diving and sold SCUBA equipment prior to entering the service. He is presently an aidman at one of the hospital dispensaries.

The club is sponsored by Post Special Service and meets every Tuesday evening from 7 to 9 p.m. at Briant Wells Field House.

Volleyball Clinic Set For February

A five day volleyball clinic will be held at Briant Well Field House February 5 to 9.

This will be an individual clinic to familiarize officials with the rules, playing, officiating and the 1962 changes. The clinic be held from 9 a.m. to 12 noon daily.

Sfc Billy Ross, USAIC Athletic Department, will be the instructor.

SPEAKER . . . Leavitt S. White of Atlanta, southern manager of the Extension Division of the Du Pont Company, will address the Columbus Rotary Club luncheon next Wednesday at the Ralston Hotel.

INSIDE JOB

An Ardmore, Okla., painter parked his truck in front of an office building and cannily stuck a note on his windshield which read: "Painter working inside." Upon his return, he found his note gone and in its place was a parking ticket with a note attached: "Policeman working outside."

Special Programs Mark National YMCA Week

National YMCA Week, January 21 through Sunday, is being observed by all Young Men's Christian Associations in North America, according to announcements made by Robert B. Eubanks, general secretary of Columbus YMCA, and Wade H. Stokes Jr., executive secretary of Columbus Armed Services YMCA.

The YMCA was the first organization to provide large-scale aid to troops and the fighting men of both North and South. The Centennial of this program was observed in 1961 and will continue through 1964.

YMCA
ARMED SERVICES

The Armed Services YMCA, 14 West 11th Street, is open daily from 9 a.m. to 11 p.m. and continuously from 9 a.m. on Fridays to 11 p.m. on Sundays.

Friday — Decorating party, 7:30 p.m. Dormitory accommodations available after 9 p.m.

Saturday — Orchestra dance, 8:30 p.m., featuring "The Five Shadows". Observing National YMCA Week. Dormitory accommodations available at all times.

Sunday—Morning coffee and java club, 9 to 11 a.m. Church call, 10:45 a.m. Home hours, 3 to 5 p.m. Dramatic club, 4 p.m. Fellowship Supper and Hour, 5:30 to 6:30 p.m., sponsored by Wilson Williams Chapter Number 73, Order of Eastern Star.

Monday — Game night and table game tournament.

Tuesday — Chess Club, 7:30 p.m. Dance instruction, 7:30 p.m. Miss Mae Swafford, instructor. Square dance, 8:30 p.m., L. B. Hickson, caller; guests from Benning Hills Teen Club.

Wednesday — Open house featuring weight-liftings, pool and ping pong.

Thursday—Citizenship classes, 7 p.m.

In World War I, the Army-Navy YMCA provided 90 per cent of the welfare services to the AEF, according to Gen. Pershing. It also carried on special programs with war prisoners.

When the USO was organized in 1941, the YMCA joined with the National Catholic Community Service, National Jewish Welfare Board, Young Women's Christian Associations, Salvation Army, and Travelers Aid to establish that far-reaching service.

Many things were invented, developed, or pioneered by the YMCA. Among them are: the drive to establish a shorter work-week (1885), night schools (1900), first gymnasia and physical fitness programs (1856), first water safety campaigns (1906), invention of basketball, now a national sport (1891), pioneered boys camping (1885), fostered the Boy Scout movement (1910), organized the Y-Indian Guide movement (1909).

YMCA Sunday was observed in Columbus and Phenix City on January 21 and will again be observed this Sunday. Many churches will feature the YMCA in their Sunday activities.

Columbus Armed Services YMCA will feature the observance at a YMCA Week Dance tomorrow night, beginning at 8:30 p.m.

From State Department

Middle East 'Continuing Crisis' Outlined by TIS Guest Speaker

The impact of modern technology and sudden oil wealth on the clan system is one of the most important effects on the Middle East's continuing crises, a State Department representative said here last Friday.

Speaking to The Infantry School's career classes, Edwin M. Wright, director of career studies at the School of Foreign Affairs, Foreign Service Institute in Washington, outlined the interelationship of the psychological, sociological, economical and political situations in that part of the world.

"The tribal system is a personal thing and not geographical," he said, "and no matter where one goes he is still a member of that tribe. This creates confusion, since people in many of these areas are related through generations of intermarriage."

"Most of the boundaries that exist there," he continued, "were created by European nations, who earlier in the century were involved in a struggle for economic control of the area."

He added that Iraq, Iran, Kuwait and Saudi Arabia each individually produce more oil than the United States, and the production comes at a cheaper cost due to peculiarities of the Middle East's geological structure.

"They want to industrialize, and they look to the West for models, but they lack the natural resources," he said.

"An internal power struggle results," he continued. "A new regime comes in, bringing with it reforms that call for an austerity program, in an effort to stabilize the economy."

Wright said crises are nothing new in this area, and stated that they have been going on for at least 4,000 years.

He pointed out that three different continents come together geographically in this area, with one having population, one having industry and the other just emerging from a primitive way of life. Throughout history many conflicting thoughts and ideas have diffused through this point, the speaker said.

"The best solution to the problem," he added, "would be to unite this area in a common group, but this is going to be difficult due to the tribal kinship structure of their society."

He concluded by reminding the students that the problems existing in the Middle East are human ones, problems of politics, ownership and relationship, and the best way to understand human problems is by understanding human nature.

Wright was born in Iran of American parents and has spent most of his life there since 1937.

He received a bachelor of arts degree from the College of Wooster, bachelor of divinity from McCormick Theological Seminary, and a masters degree from Columbia University.

During World War II, he served with the Army, rising to the rank of lieutenant colonel. He was awarded the Legion of Merit and received an honorary doctorate degree from the American School of Oriental Studies.

Since the end of the war he has been with the State Department, assuming his present position in 1957.

Post Credit Union Sets 1962 Meet

Charles E. (Chuck) Lyda of Columbus, president of the Chattahoochee Valley Credit Union Chapter, will be the featured speaker at the annual membership meeting of The Infantry Center Federal Credit Union January 30.

The meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. at the Carpenters Union Hall, 4 East Ninth St., Columbus.

Heading the business will be the election of the board of directors and special committees, and a report of the year's activities.

Two $25 prizes will be given away at the meeting, according to Dock B. Slaughter of Columbus, president of the local Credit Union.

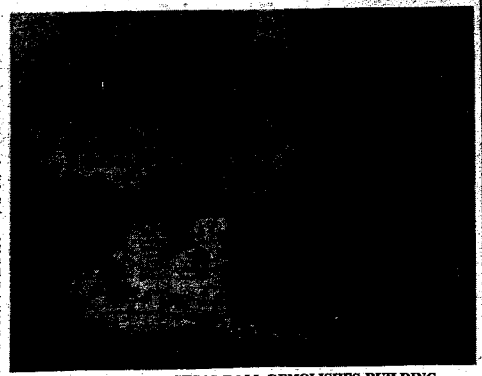
Engineer Unit Knocks Down Old Eye-Sore



Company D, 806th Engineer Battalion, has nearly completed demolition of the old raw water pumping station on the post, which was built in September, 1920.

It was decided in October, 1961, to destroy this building as it had become an eyesore and was also a safety hazard due to deep uncovered wells of water. The building, composed of one and one half feet thick concrete walls reinforced with inch thick steel rods, is being razed by a crane and wrecking ball.

The building, located between Martin Army Hospital and the Hunt Club, has been a minor landmark at Fort Benning due to its age and longivity of use. It was used to lift water from the Upatoi Creek to the purification plant for treatment. Full capacity of the treatment plant was 3,000,000 gallons per day.

A new treatment plant and raw water pumping station was built in 1940 which provides 8,000,000 gallons per day. This plant has an emergency capacity of 12,000,000 gallons per day.

In 1953 the pipes from the old pumping station were disconnected, and the station was at this time put completely out of use.

NCO of Month

SSgt Samuel M. Inman Jr., 114th Engineer Company, was selected as Non-commissioned Officer of the Month for the 151st Engineer Group for January.

Specialist Jenkins 1st Brigade SOM

Sp4 Donald R. Jenkins has been named Soldier of the Month for January at the 1st Infantry Brigade.

Jenkins, a radio-teletype operator, graduated from Winston High School in Double Springs, Ala.

He entered the Army in March 1959, and completed basic training at Fort Jackson, South Carolina.

Prior to his arrival to the brigade, he was assigned with Headquarters Company, 5th Cavalry, 1st Cavalry Division, in Korea.

Chaplain Honored

A post officer was one of 17 chaplains recently honored by their Alma Mater, Yeshiva University in New York City.

Chaplain (1st Lt.) Naftali Friedman post Jewish chaplain, received a certificate of appreciation from the school at a banquet in honor of graduates who are on active duty as chaplains with the Armed Forces.

The certificate reads, in part, "Yeshiva University records its genuine appreciation to Chaplain Naftali Friedman for his dedicated and loyal service to our beloved country as a chaplain in the Armed Forces; for his particular devotion to and concern for the spiritual welfare and morale of our Jewish military personnel; for representing in his person the dignity, integrity and idealism of true Torah leadership; for promulgating the noble eternal concepts of Judaism which proclaim the ultimate triumph of universal justice and brotherhood."

Chaplain Friedman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elias Friedman of Chicago.

New White School Staff Holds Open House For Educators

Teachers of Edward A. White School held an open house recently for the staff and faculty of the post Children's Schools.

The principal, Mrs. Pearl Brakanecke, displayed a portrait of 1st Lt. White for whom the school is named, presented by his father, Major Gen. (Ret.) Charles H. White Sr., of Washington, D.C.

Also on display was a scrapbook of photographs and clippings depicting the dedication ceremony held at the school January 5.

Lt. White, who was posthumously awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for heroic action in Korea, attended elementary school at Fort Benning.

A cake on the tea table was a replica, in color, of the new school.

Arrangements for the open house were made by Miss Sherry Ann Gibson, teacher, and Miss Margaret Pemberton, librarian.

STILL THERE

Builders in Milwaukee, Wis., discovered two underground, ventilated chambers with walls eight inches thick when they razed a garage. The two ready-made fallout shelters were believed to have housed a moonshine whisky still.

OC ANDERSON (L) PREPARES TO FIRE MACHINE GUN
OC Lynwood Berg Assists as Anderson Scores 98 to Top Class

OC Anderson Scores High At MG Range

Officer Candidate Roger A. Anderson took top honors in OCS class 2 machine gun basic marksmanship firing last week at Red Cloud Range.

Anderson scored 98 out of a possible 104 points, the highest mark attained among the 136 officer candidates of the 52nd Detachment, 5th Battalion, Student Brigade. He is a former instructor on the Patrolling Committee of the Ranger Department.

Officer Candidate Kerry J. Howe was second highest scorer with 97 points.

The machine gun record firing was part of the training of the officer candidates who are in the 16th week of their 23-week course.

The weapon the men fired was the Army's new M-60 model, air-cooled, gas operated machine gun.

The M-60, a 7.62 - mm machine gun that weighs 23 pounds was approved by the Department of the Army in 1958. It fires a 100-round belt of cartridges from a canvas bandolier attached to the gun.

FLYING . . . Helen Henson, daughter of MSgt and Mrs. J. O. Henson of Fort Benning, has graduated from an airline stewardess school and will now be serving aboard mainliners flying from New York. Helen is a graduate of Baker High School and Perry Business School in Columbus.

Tax Course Slated on Post

A 15-hour course for unit income tax advisers at post will be conducted Monday and Wednesday in Building 35.

Monday, the class will be conducted in Pratt Hall from 8 a.m. to 12 noon and 1 to 5 p.m.

The class will meet in Walker Hall Wednesday from 9 a.m. to 12 noon and 1 to 5 p.m.

Interested personnel are advised to consult the unit adjutant or courts and boards officer to determine eligibility to attend.

The income tax course is held annually by members of The Infantry Center Staff Judge Advocate Section.

Two members of the Federal Revenue Service will assist in the instruction of unit advisers. They are George Jeter and Frank Donovan who are assigned to the Columbus area.

For further information about the course, telephone 1st Lt. David B. Sledge, 545-4892.

March of Dimes Canisters Placed Throughout Post

March of Dimes canisters have been placed in key locations throughout the post.

In addition, contribution envelopes have been distributed in children's schools.

In the Columbus area during 1961, financial assistance was given to 20 old polio cases and one new case, a young man who failed to take vaccine.

The National Foundation also has made progress with its research in the fields of arthritis and birth defects, according to reports.

The March of Dimes will be able to continue these programs with contributions from the public, officials said.

NEW STEEL FOLDING BRIDGE MOUNTED ON M-48 TANK
Can Span 60-Foot Gap, And Be Set Up in Three Minutes By Driver

Engineers Demonstrate Folding Bridge

The 72nd Engineer Company, 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, has kept up with the Army's steady march of progress by using a new implement of modern warfare.

The engineers, one of the few branches of service that are both a technical service and a combat arm, now have a new tank-mounted folding steel bridge which the unit demonstrated last week for the first time.

Mounted on a 48-ton tank, the 13-ton armored vehicle launch bridge can span a 60-foot chasm or stream. The bridge can be erected and set in place in three minutes by a tank driver using the launcher's hydraulic controls while under small arms fire.

Over its 12-foot wide runway, troops, armored vehicles, trucks and two rows of jeeps can cross within seconds. The bridge needs only 18 inches of "toehold" at each end of its extension shafts to anchor it firmly in place.

First built in 1958 and modified and improved in 1961, the AVLB can support safely 60 tons of weight at one time.

The 72nd, commanded by Capt. Joseph S. Wood Jr., is training its engineers in the assembly, operation and maintenance of the folding bridge.

For Second Year

Adm. Radford Heads Freedoms Roll Call

Valley Forge, Pa. (AFPS)—For the second successive year, Adm. Arthur W. Radford (Ret.), former head of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, will serve as chairman of Freedoms Foundation's annual Freedoms Roll Call, to be conducted February 15-28.

Adm. Radford said this year's slogan will be "What Have You Done for Freedom Today?" It is designed, he said, "to tug at the conscience of every citizen, awakening him to the necessity to think, speak and act in behalf of freedom every day in the week."

Only if each and every citizen can make an affirmative answer to the question "every day in the week, every week in the year, will Americans be meeting the daily challenges of communism," the admiral said in accepting the 1962 Roll Call chairmanship.

"Today," he added, "the nation is engaged in a cold, all-out, total war with the Communists for the hearts and minds of men all over the world, and half-way measures, on a sometime basis, will not win. It's the day-to-day, every day championing of Americanism that will carry our way of life to victory."

Freedoms Foundation, a non-profit, non-sectarian, non-political organization, was founded in 1949 with the purpose of inspiring all Americans to rededicate themselves to the freedoms inherent in the American form of Constitutional government. Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower is honorary chairman, and former President Herbert Hoover is the organization's honorary president.

Since its founding it has received more than one million entries on Americanism from school - children, servicemen and women, and citizens from all walks of life, as well as newspapers, magazines, and radio and television stations.

From these the foundation has made more than 12,000 awards in ash, medals, citations and pilgrimages.

Mess Hall Trays Are Going Out

An Army tradition of long standing will be discarded when soldiers at the post eat their meals from glass dinnerware in garrison and field messes.

Slated for oblivion are the old stainless steel compartmented, plastic trays and plastic cups and bowl which have been stand-bys in mess halls and in the field for as long as most Army men can recall.

Initiated by the Department of the Army, the change will

Patterson Award Presentation Set

The 10th annual Robert P. Patterson Award will be presented to 2nd Lt. John H. Hayes in ceremonies at 11 a.m. February 8 at the Infantryman Statue on Eubanks Field.

Participating in the ceremony will be Mrs. Patterson, widow of the former secretary of war, in whose honor the award is made, and Secretary of the Army Elvis J. Stahr Jr.

The commanding general of the Third Army, Lt. Gen. Thomas J. H. Trapnell, will be among the dignitaries attending the ceremonies. The general will arrive on post February 8 at 10:15 a.m. He is scheduled to leave the same day.

Mrs. Patterson and Secretary Stahr, accompanied by a number of other officials from Washington, D. C., are scheduled to arrive on the post at 10:30 a.m. February 8.

Lt. Hayes is expected to arrive Tuesday from Fort Campbell, where he is assigned to the 101st Airborne Division.

The award will honor Lt. Hayes as the outstanding Infantry Officer Candidate School graduate of fiscal year 1960-1961. He was honor graduate of class 1961.

Lt. Hayes was selected from among the honor graduates of Infantry OCS classes for the year. The selection is made by the Department of the Army after a review of the records.

The lieutenant was top man in a class of 100 graduates. He competed for the award with the honor graduates of class 2 with 101 graduates, class 3 and class 4 with 113 each.

The first Patterson Award was presented in 1953, honoring the memory of the late secretary of war.

The award consists of a scroll, an inscribed service pistol and $250.

More than 100 close friends of Secretary Patterson established the award by creating a fund in the New York Community Trust to provide for the annual presentation. Among these friends were Winthrop Rockefeller and the late Major Gen. Julius Ochs Adler.

The award is presented each year by Mrs. Patterson.

Lt. Hayes was born in Chickasha, Okla., September 15, 1939. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Jackson Hayes. The youngest of eight children, he was graduated from Chickasha High School in 1956.

His military career began when he joined the Oklahoma National Guard. Serving with the 45th Infantry Division, he was awarded a Meritorious Service Medal.

On January 7, 1957, Lt. Hayes entered active service, receiving basic and advanced training at Fort Chaffee, Ark.

Upon completing training, he was awarded a certificate as outstanding trainee.

Converted to the Regular Army in September, 1957, Lt. Hayes was assigned to Fort Campbell.

Upon completing a basic Airborne course, he served as a

Nurse Corps Anniversary Observed Today at Martin

Seventy-six nurses at Martin Army Hospital will mark the 61st anniversary of the Army Nurse Corps today.

Although the corps was not established until 1901, Army nursing in the nation dates back to the American Revolution.

Women who nursed wounded patriots during that conflict were given official status by Gen. George Washington. He asked the Continental Congress for a "Matron to supervise nurses" and "nurses to attend the sick and obey the matron's orders."

During the Civil War, nurses were recruited for the Army. They were supervised by Dr. Elizabeth Blackwell and Dorothea Lynde Dix.

Dr. Blackwell was the first woman in the U. S. to be awarded an M.D. degree. She was born in England in 1821 and died in 1910.

Dorothea Dix is better known for her prison and mental hospital reforms than for her connection with Army nursing. American born, she lived from 1802 to 1887, devoting her life to teaching, philanthropy and writing. She was responsible for changing mental institutions from a place of confinement to a place of treatment.

1,200 Served

During the brief Spanish-American War, 1,200 nurses served on a contract basis in the U. S. and overseas.

On February 2, 1902, the Army Nurse Corps was established by Act of Congress.

In 1903, the first licenses for nurses were issued. Nurses of World War I were the first registered nurses to serve in action. By the end of the war, there were 21,480 registered nurses on duty with the corps.

To 57,000

The number of nurses on active duty was reduced to 625 by 1939, only to rise again to 57,000 during World War II.

The name had been changed from Nurse Corps to Army Nurse Corps. Members were given relative rank to the Army's male officers from second lieutenant to a major, who was designated chief of the corps.

Only registered professional nurses are admitted to the Army Nurse Corps.

Review Board Formed

President Asks for a Restudy Of the Military's Pay System

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — President Kennedy has asked for a sweeping reappraisal of military pay, allowances and related matters.

This announcement revealed the formation of a Defense Study Group on Military Compensation to review and evaluate the present setup.

It is anticipated the study will be completed during October 1962, and that any recommended legislation will be made ready for Congress early in 1963.

The last comprehensive study on military compensation was completed in May 1957.

The announcement said the Military Study Group will look into the "entire spectrum" of military pay, allowances and benefits, including retirement, and all other facets of the military pay system.

The group is being requested to identify and evaluate the several benefits available to military personnel which supplement actual pay and allowances.

It will also consider the feasibility or desirability of retaining these in their present form or translating them to the basic pay structure.

In addition, the study will look into the question of financing certain of these benefits through individual contribution or through a combination of individual and government contributions with the possibility of providing some benefits on an optional basis.

Another consideration will be given to whether the translation of some elements of compensation into basic pay would effect the incentive values which assist in recruitment and retention of personnel, achieve greater equity for the individual and possibly result in direct or indirect savings to the government.

(In recent years, as a result of the Military Pay Act of 1958, which followed the 1957 study, recruitment and retention in the Armed Forces have improved, but are continuing problems.)

The group undertaking the study will consist of personnel from the Office of the Secretary of Defense, the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps and Coast Guard.

Representation will also be provided from the Civil Service Commission and the Bureau of the Budget. Liaison will be maintained with the U.S. Public Health Service and the U.S. Coast and Geodetic Survey, the other uniformed services paid under the Career Compensation Act.

The deliberation of the group and recommended legislative proposals will be considered by the President's Panel on Federal Salary Systems.

The Group will also review and evaluate, from the standpoint of the Federal government as the employer of various types of personnel, the relationship between total compensation received by members of the uniformed services, that received by other employees of the Federal government, and that received by employees in private industry.

As a collateral problem, a study of techniques will be undertaken for use in determining future pay adjustments in relation to Civil Service, foreign service and industrial pay scales.

The new study will in no way affect the Department of Defense legislative proposal for an adjustment in the basic allowance for quarters, which has been approved by the President and is now being processed for submission to Congress.

Capt. Poydasheff Named Executive

Capt. Robert S. Poydasheff has been named executive officer of the Infantry Center Staff Judge Advocate Section at Benning.

He succeeds Lt. Col. Daniel A. Lennon, Jr., who departed the post January 24 for Norfolk, Va., to attend the Armed Forces Staff College.

First Lt. Hugh Peterson, Jr., became chief of the Military Affairs and Claims Branch, a position formerly held by Capt. Poydasheff.

MTU Rifleman Scores First Perfect Score

A veteran Army rifleman, Sp6 Robert L. Meeks, became the first member of the Army Marksmanship Training Unit to shoot a perfect score with the M14 Rifle over the standard National Match Rifle Course.

Meeks, who has competed in major rifle events since 1955, fired his 250x250 under the same match conditions applied to M1 shooters on the course.

Members of the MTU are testing the M14 in preparation for the time when it will replace the M1 in competition.

The weapon used by Meeks had been accurized by gunsmiths of the unit.

20,000 More Payments

DOD Seeking Increase In Fiscal '63 Pro-Pay

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Defense Department has allocated more than one quarter of a million proficiency payments for the separate services in its Fiscal Year 1963 budget.

AT TIS . . . Major Nurettin Ersoy, commandant of the Turkish Armed Forces Detachment assigned to the U. S. Joint Headquarters in Arkara, Turkey, has arrived at The Infantry School and is attending the Allied Infantry Officers Career Course Class 3. Major Ersoy was cited by Major Gen. Edwin J. Messinger, chief of the Joint U. S. Military Mission for Aid to Turkey, for outstanding duty with the mission.

The exact figure — 253,665 — amounts to about a 20,000 increase over last year with the biggest percentage of the new spaces earmarked for P-2.

Altogether, 19,000 increases were set aside for $60-a-month P-2 payments.

For example, in FY 1962 the grand total is expected to reach 234,000 for both the $30-a-month P-1 and $60 P-2 spaces. In FY 1963 P-2 payments will total nearly 61,000.

Although there are no specific plans at present for institution of P-3 pay, there has been a general indication from the separate services that they would like to begin the $90-a-month P-3 pay.

The program apparently has not matured to the point where specific allocations can be made, but officials indicate it is a distinct possibilty for the future.

A breakdown of the total proficiency payments for FY 1963 shows the Army was allocated 94,549 spaces of which 23,576 are authorized P-2 payments. This was an increase of more than 5,000 slots over last year.

The Navy showed a total increase of some 3,500 spaces with a Fiscal '63 total of 58,495. Some 13,807 of these spaces are destined for P-2.

The Marine Corps jumped from 10,500 in FY '62 to 18,580 in FY '63, with 2,880 P-2 payments authorized in the package.

The Air Force went up over 2,000 authorizations in FY '63. Some 80,000 were authorized by the Defense Department in FY '62. The new budget calls for 82,041 pro-pay spaces and more than 20,000 of these slots are authorized P-2.

It was also emphasized that the pro-pay slots authorized in the Defense Department's budget must now go before Congress for approval along with the rest of the military establishment's spending program for FY '63.

The separate services are now in the process of preparing their programs for FY '63 and details can be expected in the near future.

Generally speaking, there will be thousands more servicemen and women drawing the extra $30 P-1 and $60 P-2 when June 30, 1963 rolls around.

Instructor Cited For Saving Life

Sfc William E. Richards, 41st Company, 4th Student Battalion, The Student Brigade, an instructor with the Advanced Airborne Air Movement Committee, was recently awarded the Army Commendation medal for his quick thinking in the saving of a fellow soldiers' life.

On August 9, 1961, a student in one of the Basic Airborne Classes suffered a heat stroke; Sfc Richards accompanied the student to the hospital in an ambulance.

While enroute the sergeant noticed the trainee showing signs of shock and heat exhaustion due to the stroke. He recognized this could result in death, and administered mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, the citation said. He continued application of artificial respiration until the ambulance arrived at the hospital.

His quick thinking, attitude and knowledge of emergency medical procedures in applying immediate and continued first aid treatment for heat stroke, and mouth-to-mouth resuscitation when the student stopped breathing, were instrumental in reviving the student and saving his life, the citation concluded.

Lincoln Proved Value Of a Self-Education

Each year with the approach of Lincoln's birthday we are reminded afresh of how this man emerged from rural obscurity into public life through stages of self-education that no American growing up today has to improvise. From kindergarten on, our learning is supervised. We have teachers to consult, libraries to explore, authorities to guide us.

But consider what it must be like to have none of these and still be fired by the urge to develop, to grow in mind as well as body, to understand and to express one's self. Would we have had the tenacity to pursue the goal of more than literacy in a frontier environment where the barest rudiments of an education sufficed? "There were some schools, so called," Lincoln remembered in later years, "but no qualification was ever required of a teacher beyond readin', writin' and cipherin' to the rule of three."

Today's Americans—especially in the Armed Forces—have the tools of self-education within easy reach. Imagine what Lincoln, during his brief military service, would have done with the opportunities offered by the United States Armed Forces Institute if USAFI had existed in his day—a youth who had access to only a few books such as the Bible, Robinson Crusoe and Pilgrim's Progress, a youth who had to do his arithmetic sums on a smooth board because paper was scarce.

Lincoln thought of himself as shiftless; but would a shiftless man, after painfully acquiring the fundamentals of an education, have forged ahead to study for the bench, using borrowed law books? Not likely. As an example of resolution and pursuit of a goal, Lincoln has few if any peers among the great Americans we venerate. In moments of self-doubt and discouragement we can look to him for a renewal of our own sense of purpose. (AFPS)

Violent Temper Marked The Youthful Washington

When we study Gilbert Stuart's portrait of the 64-year-old Washington on a dollar bill, we see the face of a man of wisdom, poise and serenity. But for the Father of His Country these were not natural traits of character; he acquired them the hard way and he did it by self-discipline.

For George Washington in his youth was impatient and passionate, eager for glory in war, wealth in land and success in love. His temper was legendary.

But while he was still young he learned a great truth: man can only be free by mastery of himself. Instead of allowing his passions to run wild, he restrained them. Instead of surrendering himself to a life of pleasure, he placed duty first and achieved self-liberation.

Evidence of the amazing confidence, even reverence which Washington inspired at an early age is found in a letter from 27 officers of his Virginia regiment, written when they thought he was about to resign his command.

"Sir," they wrote, "We your most obedient and affectionate Officers, beg leave to express our great Concern, at the disagreeable News we have received of your Determination to resign the Command of that Corps, in which we have under you served...

"It gives us an additional Sorrow, when we reflect, to find, our unhappy Country will receive a loss, no less irreparable, than ourselves. Where will it meet a Man so experienc'd in military Affairs? One so reknown'd for Patriotism, Courage and Conduct? Who has so great knowledge of the Enemy we have to deal with? Who so much respected by the soldiery?

"We with the greatest Deference, presume to entreat you to suspend those thoughts (of resigning) for another year. . .

"With how much Respect and Esteem we are, Your most affectionate and most obedient humble Servants."

The letter, written at Ft. Loudoun in December of 1758 carried 27 signatures. Reading it, we can imagine it being addressed to a grizzled veteran of many campaigns, a white-whiskered commander of 60.

But Col. George Washington at the time was just 26.

The Surgeon Says:

By Major M. J. Palvo, MSC

It is probably a safe bet to assume that the majority of military personnel admitted to Martin Army Hospital are not aware that they are either assigned or attached to the Medical Holding Detachment.

Each military "fixed" hospital has established a Medical Holding Detachment. Records of this detachment account for all hospitalized military patients.

Military patients expected to return to duty within a short time are usually attached to the Medical Holding Detachment. In general, this includes those directly admitted or admitted by transfer from dispensaries; personnel assigned to organizations in the continental U.S. who are hospitalized while in an overseas command; those assigned to organizations in overseas commands who are hospitalized while transferred from another hospital in an attached status; most personnel in prisoner status, whether sentenced or unsentenced; personnel on active duty for training under the provisions of the Reserve Forces Act of 1955; Air Force members, except at Army hospitals where an Air Force Medical squadron has been organized; Navy (including Marine Corps) personnel, and all other active duty Army personnel not admitted in an assigned status.

Unless otherwise directed, patients who are in an attached status will be returned to their former organization when ready for duty.

Army personnel will be initially assigned to a Medical Holding Detachment only by authority of a hospital transfer order issued by the hospital commander, by special or letter orders transferring a patient in an assigned status from one hospital to another hospital, or by Department of The Army special orders.

Army patients whose period of hospitalization will result in a "non-return-to-duty" or a prolonged period of time, are usually assigned to the Medical Holding Detachment. This includes patients who will be hospitalized in excess of 90 days; those evacuated from overseas hospitals to the continental U. S. who do not have a unit assignment in CONUS; patients scheduled to move with a unit who will not be returned to duty prior to the date of departure of the unit; patients hospitalized while en route to an overseas replacement station, Army terminal, or port of aerial embarkation who will require hospitalization beyond the assigned reporting date; patients who are evacuated for definitive treatment from an area designated as a combat zone and are admitted to a hospital with a Medical Holding Detachment; and patients who require active hospitalization and probably will be retired or separated for disability.

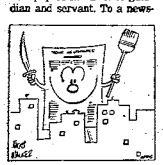
Personnel records of patients in an attached status in a hospital are retained in the patient's organization until receipt by the organization commander of a hospital transfer order assigning the patient to the Medical Holding Detachment.

Upon receipt of a hospital transfer order reassigning a soldier to a Medical Holding Detachment, the organization commander will forward the individual's personnel records to the hospital. All individual clothing will be forwarded to the hospital for storage.

When an assigned patient is to be returned to duty, normally he will be reported by the hospital to the Adjutant General for assignment instructions.

In the event assignment instructions have not been received by the time a patient completes hospitalization, the hospital command will issue orders placing the patient on special duty with a unit designated by the Army commander. When this action is medically contraindicated, the patient may be placed on special duty with the hospital detachment.

The Medical Holding Detachment staff at Martin Army Hospital consists of a commanding officer, a first sergeant and a company clerk. The majority of administrative actions pertaining to pay, travel, retirement, assignments, etc. are processed within the military personnel branch at Martin Army Hospital.



What Is a Newspaper?

The Press Purveys News And Creates It as Well

(Third of an AFPS Series)

Whether you are now in uniform or in civvies, you should know that newspapers are more than purveyors of news; they also have a hand in creating it.

They — the newspapers — are as much a vital part of the community as the people themselves to whom the newspapers are at once guardian and servant. To a newspaper, service to the community it serves is always paramount.

Newspapermen and women have solved dozens of baffling murders, uncovered hundreds of frauds, and turned over tons of evidence to legal authorities.

Newspapers collect food, clothing and money for the needy; they teach youngsters how to swim; they clamor for better schools, more hospitals and less civic waste.

They show a kid from the streets of a big city the eighth wonder of the world — a real, live cow.

They keep a wary eye on taxes and radioactive fallout; they spark agricultural development and polio inoculations. They sponsor symphony concerts, soap box derbies, flower shows and tennis tournaments, cha-cha contests, spelling bees, boxing matches and tours to the Middle East.

They call for conservation of natural resources, keep tab on Congressmen and legislators, and take readers to the front lines of war. Eighty-two reporters were killed in World War II and in Korea, gathering news.

Newspapers battle the ills of mankind. They move mountains.

TSB's Drill and Command Section

Have Question?--They'll Answer . . . Accurately

Gen. Surles' Infantry School Report

"Why does an adjutant half trot and half fly when he takes his position during a ceremony?

This question was asked of his aide-de-camp by the commanding general of a military installation in an adjoining state recently during a military review.

The aide didn't know the answer, but being a recent graduate of Fort Benning's OCS, he knew just where to get it. He wrote to the Drill and Command Section, 5th Student Battalion. The Student Brigade, and he got his answer — but fast.

Questions by the hundreds are sent to this small section, coming from privates to generals, from churches, veterans' organizations, ROTC units, and just plain puzzled citizens who want answers to problems pertaining to drill and command, ceremonies, reviews, the proper method of displaying flags, etc.

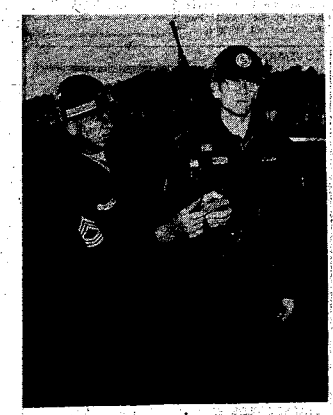
The five-man Drill and Command Section is headed by M-Sgt Henry J. Billups, a rugged Infantryman with 21 years of service to his credit. The group totals 57 years of service as Infantrymen, most of which has been spent as instructors in drill, drill, and yet more drill.

Sergeant Billups says, "Most of our duty time is taken up in instruction on drill and interior guard to officer candidates, but our day doesn't begin at 8 a.m. and end at 5 p.m. If a candidate thinks he needs individual attention—and most of them do at one time or another—we are available before classes begin in the morning and stay as late as we are needed in the evening. We try to make drill masters and experts of all candidates."

All their work, however, is not confined to candidates. They get many requests from units throughout the post, from veterans' clubs, and Columbus ROTC units to act as judges of drill competitions. They oblige whenever possible.

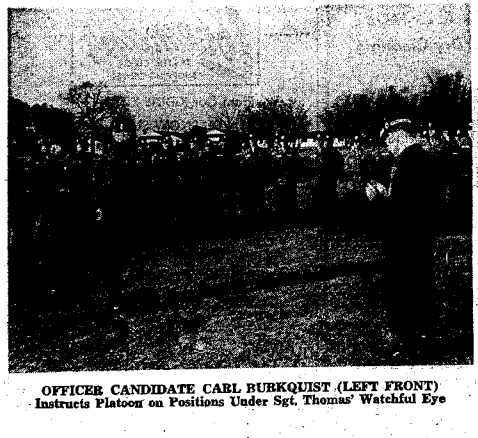
All officer candidates receive 22 hours of instruction on drill and command and interior guard. All, that is, except the National Guard OC's who receive four hours.

According to Instructor SSgt Jesse D. Woodward, "Only six hours of instruction is actually presented by the assigned instructors. The remaining 16 hours the candidates themselves give under our supervision. We watch them like hawks and the least mistake is corrected immediately."



All instruction is not confined to officer candidates. The Drill and Command Section is also responsible for instruction of 5th Student Battalion cadre personnel on such subjects as troop informaton, instruction on firing the rifle, map reading, military, courtesy, intelligence, CBR warfare and first aid.

Not the least of their diverse jobs is making suggested changes or revisions to the Drill and Command Manual as upon Department of the Army's request. A recent submission to this body concerned the problem of how to stack arms with the new M14 rifle.



After much thought, talk, and actual tests, the section came up with the suggestion that the rifle's sling be used in lieu of the stacking swivel as used for the M1 rifle. The idea was accepted and adopted by DA and is now in use Army-wide.

Members of the Drill and Command Section, other than Sergeants Billups and Woodward, are SSgts Lewis W. Browne and Ronald C. Mathews and Sgt. Donald R. Thomas. They are experts in their field. They have the right answers.

In the event the reader wants to know why an adjutant half trots and half flies when he takes his position during a ceremony, or if you have any other problems along this line you would like solved, call TSB's Drill and Command Section at 545-1389.

One TIS Class Has 20 Football Stars

Boasting 20 former college football players, including five professional and one semi-pro player, officer orientation class 9 at The Infantry School could field a team capable of holding its own in any gridiron contest.

The athletes, all second lieutenants taking the eight - week course, include Jim Houston of the Cleveland Browns, Robert Towns, formerly with the St. Louis Cardinals and now with the Boston Patriots, Danny House of the Dallas Texans, and two players from the Canadian League, Ron Quillen of the Edmonton Eskimos and Joe Wendryhoski of the Vancouver Lions.

One former semi-pro football player, 2nd Lt. Bobby North of the Dallas Hornets, and 14 college football lettermen round out the list of football players of the orientation class.

In addition to the many football players, the roster of class 9 includes 22 college athletes who participated in other sports. Among them are six track men, three baseball players, three basketball players, two swimmers, lacrosse and soccer players and one man each in rowing, wrestling, hockey and tennis.

'White Elephant' Sale Will Be 49er Feature

The "Frontier General Store", open only once a year on the post during the annual 49er Party, has announced a giant white elephant sale.

Other features of the party, scheduled for 7 p.m. February 10 at the Main Officers' Open Mess, include an "All Star" vocal group, "can-can girls," male "can-can dancers," minstrels and soloists.

All Stars

The stars in the vocal group are reportedly the stars of three or four brigadier generals who have consented to sing at the charity event. Acting as agent and accompanist for the "All Stars" is Col. Sidney E. Sacerdote.

Miss Jerry Vasser is in charge of the white elephant sale at the Frontier General Store.

Can-Can Dancers

Can-Can girls, now in rehearsal, include Mesdames Michael Downes, Thomas Mullen, Arlan R. Saddaby and Robert Phillips. Their instructor is Mrs. James E. Morrow.

The male can-can dancers are Major Daniel L. French and Capts. John Sloan, Todd Graham, Charles . Johnson and Douglas Williams.

Minstrels are . Mrs. Bryan Evans Jr., and Capt. and Mrs. Thomas W. Valenteen.

'Taxi' Dancers

Fifteen "taxi dancers" will be on duty at the party. They are Misses Barbara Peterson, Linda Moore, Pat Sanford, Ann Spencer and Mary High, and Mesdames John Sloan, Joseph Neely, John R. Meese, Gary Williams, Charles Saint, Charles Johnson, Todd Graham, Rufus Hart, Keith Barlow and L. N. Crosby. Mrs. Sloan is chairman of the group.

And

Cigarette girls will be Mesdames L. W. Dyment, chairman, John Crowley, Heath Twichell Jr., Daniel J. French, Thomas McGregor, M. J. Lally Jr., Kenneth Gintner and Thomas McLaine.

Entertainment chairman for the party is Mrs. Evans.

The 49er Party is sponsored for Main Officers' Mess members and guests each year by the Daughters of the U.S. Army to raise funds for various post projects.

Benefiting from the 49er Party of 1961 were Tot Town Nursery, the post emergency fund for Army visiting nurses, Sand Hill Sunday School, Pediatric Ward at Martin Army Hospital and other post activities.

Brigade Ladies Hold Luncheon, Italian Theme and Setting Used

Red checkerboard tablecloths, candles and the fragrant bouquet of rich sauces and hot bread lent a Continental atmosphere to the 1st Infantry Brigade Luncheon recently hosted by the Ladies of the 58th Infantry.

"L'Italia" was the theme of the luncheon which was held at the Custer Terrace Officers Open Mess dining room, specially decorated for the occasion.

Mrs. Onylene Birdsong welcomed newcomers to the group many of whom are from the 156th Signal Battalion, recently recalled to active duty from Michigan.

Mrs. Vera Simmons of the 10th Artillery won the door prize, a Mantovanni recording of Italian music.

The Ladies dined on a savory cuisine of Veal Parmagian and Spaghetti Bolennaise with Italian style salad and hot garlic bread, topping off the meal with a tasty Italian sherbet.

The accordion of Frank Archemidi provided delightful music during the meal while later, tenor Don Caruso rendered several Italian musical selections. An attraction at the affair was the exhibition of an original oil painting of Mount Vesuvius done by Lt. Col. Charles T. Caprino.

The 58th Infantry Ladies were complimented on the authentic decor for the luncheon, the attractive maintable display, 2 Italian scales with alabaster fruits and the superb main room display, decoration of fruits and flowers, carts drawn by donkies and the wine table and trellis with real grape vines interwoven.

MTU Wives Meet

The regular monthly coffee for the Non-commissioned Officers Wives, Army Marksmanship Training Unit, will be held Thursday, February 8, at 10 a.m., at Crain Hall. The second Thursday in the month has been chosen as the regular meeting date. Hostesses for the February meeting will be Mrs. John Held and Mrs. Clyde Turner.

Buffet Party Held By Career Officers And Their Ladies

Ladies and men of the Third Platoon, career course 1, gathered at Victory Lodge recently for a chicken buffet.

Speaking briefing to the approximately 80 persons after dinner were Capt. John Stewart and Capt. Mark Reese.

The centerpiece on the main table was won by Capt. and Mrs. Francis Lynch.

The couples rounded out the evening by dancing.

WHERE NEEDED

A heartening step in CARE's experience has been the effort of foreign nations, as soon as possible, to help feed their own people. Of 27 countries receiving CARE food aid as 1962 began, 19 pay all or part of the distribution costs under "partnership" contracts. Contributions to CARE's Food Crusade help needy families and groups not covered by such plans.

'Showcase' 62' Is Theme Of Womans Club Lunch

The February luncheon of the Woman's Club will feature Showcase '62, a colorful and exciting program at the Main Officers Club on Wednesday, Febuary 7 at 12:30 p.m.

A "live display" of the activities sponsored by the club will be shown preceding the luncheon. Demonstrations in ceramics, flower arranging, and dance will be among the featured showcases.

Chairman for the luncheon is Mrs. Sears Y. Coker. Ladies of the engineers on post are sposoring this affair. Those working include: Mrs. Willis Corder, chairman, table decorations, with Mesdames Robert Maddux, Alexander Fewsmith, John gray, Luther Oswald, George Hartsell, Charles Davis, and George Bowen.

Making tablecloths and napkins are Mrs. William Wilson, chairman, and Mesdames Albert Conti, Everet Olsen, Charles Dowdey, and William Copeland.

Also helping are Mrs. A. L. Parsons, and Mrs. Edwin T. O'Donnell from the 2nd Division Engineers, Mrs. Robert Clark from The Infantry School's Engineer Committee, and Mrs. R. S. Crandall.

Mrs. Coker cited the participation of wives of the Reserve units, the 414th, 489th, and 391st, who have just recently been called to active duty on the Post.

Responsible for the program is Mrs. G. T. Britton, program chairman, who has arranged for the senior decorator from Rich's in Atlanta to present a program on household arts and decoration.

Decorations are planned and created by Mrs. James H. Phillips. Co-ordination for the entire luncheon is under Mrs. Braxton E. Small, vice president of the Woman's Club.

Members of the Club who wish to attend may make reservations with Mrs. R. L. Phillips, 545-1498, or Mrs. M. H. Patterson, MU 9-5098. Wives who are not members may attend by buying memberships at the Luncheon.

CANTONESE RICE

Cook one cup of rice. The flavor can be improved by using chicken stock instead of water. When ready rice should be fluffy.

In a skillet, pour ¼ cup peanut (or salad) oil. Add slightly beaten egg and cook 2-3 minutes. Break egg into small pieces. Add rice, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ¼ cup chopped chives or tender green onion tops, 1½ teaspoon soy sauce. Blend all together and cook over moderate heat 6-8 minutes.

This may be prepared in advance and reheated.

Tot Town Nursery Special Schedule

The Tot Town Nursery will have special rates for children of 49'er guests. Children will be admitted at the nursery until 9:30 p.m. February 10 and the nursery will stay open until 2:30 a.m. February 11. Reservations are being taken now. Party favors will be furnished children by the Fort Benning Chapter of the DUSA. For information call 545-3004.

Woman's Club Diary

Mrs. S. Y. Coker and the wives of the engineers on post are hard at work on the upcoming Luncheon, scheduled for February 7 at the Main Officers Open Mess.

The theme is SHOWCASE '62 and the club will be a bright and sophisticated showcase for the activities and program. We won't tell you more now, but the colors are stunning, and Agnes Phillips and the decorating committee from the engineers are busy sewing and painting.

The program will feature Mr. Willard Ketchum, who is the senior decorator in Rich's Decorating Studio. Mr. Ketchum has had work appear in both the Ladies Home Journal and American Living magazines.

His talk and demonstration will feature tips for every budget, as well as showing a variety of styles and materials which are available today. If you have a problem in your decorating, he will answer questions from the group.

Be sure to come before 1 p.m. and see the "living showcases" and demonstrations from our own activities which will be shown on the porch. See you next Wednesday? Call Mrs. J. W. Williams, 545-2098, or Mrs. M. H. Patterson MU 9-5098 for reservations before noon Monday.

The Luncheon will mark opening of ticket sales for the Spring trip to Atlanta. Mrs. N. E. Smith has arranged for our club and guests to travel to Rich's on March 20, just in time for the opening of their "Springlandia" which will feature the latest fashions for home and family. As usual, busses will leave at 7 a.m. and return that evening.

Transportation, box-lunches. Tea are included in the nom. in charge. If you are unable to attend the Luncheon, Call Mrs. Smith, 545-2496, for your ticket.

All wives on post are invited to join the Woman's Club members for this gala trip.

The Flower Arranging classes have extended the starting date to February 21, so if you have not already registered, you may call Mrs. G. Harry Huppert, 545-2210 for six weeks of fun. Registration is limited, so please call early to avoid disappointment.

The School of Dance is settling into the new building, next to the Dental Clinic in the Old Hospital Area. Mrs. John Bohne, MU 9-7452, Chairman, will be happy to accept registrations for both children and adult ballet, as well as tap and toe for children.

FLOOR COVERINGS

New floor covering highlight a vinyl pattern which reproduces both the appearance and texture of natural straw matting. An added attraction is its easy maintenance via mopping with soap or detergent suds.

AL DUBOSE TALKS WITH MRS. WILLIAM TODD, JR. (C) And Mrs. Harold Evans Before Medical Wives Luncheon Meeting

Medical Wives

Club Hears Talk About Investment

The Fort Benning Medical Wives Club's monthly luncheon meeting was held recently at the Main Officers' Open Mess Supper Club.

Mrs. George Schonoltz, program chairman, introduced Al DuBode of a local brokerage who spoke on stocks and bonds, particularly "How to Invest and Why."

Guests introduced by the president, Mrs. George Skipworth, were Mrs. John H. Church and Mrs. Bruce Threatte of Columbus, guests of Mrs. James Brummette, and Mrs. Clayton Bramble of Cambridge, Md., mother of Mrs. George A. Lentz, Jr.

Newcomers welcomed were Mrs. Richard Lansing, who was a December bride, and Mesdames Harold Evans, Romus Thomas, Richard Bernstine, Lee Miller and Joha Farrell.

Table decorations were in keeping with the speakers' subject, with yards of ticker tape and "money growing on trees."

Hostesses for the affair were Mesdames William McMongale, chairman, Frederick Krauskopf co-chairman, Sayers Boyd, Gerald Kelso, Henry Fuller, Norbert Wegmann and Edwin Adair.

The club is planning a tour of a Columbus furniture company February 8. Members are requested to make reservations as soon as possible with Mrs. Schonholtz.

Lynn Johnson on Etiquette

DEAR JENNI: With the hem line coming up and the neckline plunging down, the latest cocktail dress may simply be a fancy cumberbund. At a recent dinner dance I noticed one of the guests in a dress cut so low I was embarrassed to look at her. Needless to say the men stared too, but not with embarrassment. Please comment on discreet dress.

CAREFUL DRESSER

DEAR C. D.: This "cumberbund-only" will be left to the bikini crowd and I don't think you need to worry about any overly revealing couture trends. It is true the more decollete the dress is, the more formal it is considered. Decollete (pronounced da-lol-ta) is a french word meaning to bare the neck and shoulders, I think it is safe to assume that anything below neck and shoulders should be clothed.

The definition is very simple, for where neck and shoulders stop, chest, back and dress should begin. This kind of decollete would bring Playboy and most of the calendar industry to bankruptcy, and that is precisely the difference.

A gentleman does not want the lady on his arm in the receiving line to dress like Esquire-girl-of-the-month even if she is so endowed. In fact he would be embarrassed, teased, and possibly reprimanded.

Assuming the young lady you saw was not engaged or married she is poorly informed about how to please her escort. She should know that the opposite sex is often more intrigued by the suggested figure than by the overly obvious one. For example a soft full chiffon skirt that clings slightly as opposed to the sprayed-on tightly fitted satin skirt which leaves nothing to the imagination least of all the girdle beneath. I doubt the escort of the girl you saw was proud of the type stare she attracted.

The matron has the same situation with the addition of age which she may not have noticed, and that backless dress that once made the stag-line envy her husband now makes them snicker.

I feel very strongly about commenting on this subject because in this soldiers world the first impression a lady makes is by what she wears and how she wears it.

Speech and manner are second and the all important factor, character, is only third.

Unpleasing appearance and manner can kill a lady's evening as effectively as dousing all the lights. Dress simply and in good taste, reserve the display of physical proficiency for the negligee. If you find you are being stared at, one of three things is responsible for the attention. Either you are behaving badly, are badly dressed, or you are enchanting to be told!

Mrs. Larson New Vice-President

Mrs. James Larson has been named the new second vice-president of the Woman's Club of Fort Benning.

Mrs. Larson will act as liaison between the 2nd Division Wives Club and the Woman's Club as well as being chairman for the Cookbook sales.

Cookbooks will be on sale at the February luncheon.

Not very long ago someone asked me just what Army life was like. I thought a while, and you know, we do have so very much. Let's take stock: what does Army life have?

Some of us have spent our entire lives roving the highway of travel with Uncle Sam directing traffic. At times the highway gets rough and the fog of discontent settles around us, but when we stop for a moment and look back those narrow places seem to have widened with time.

I suppose it takes those rough, foggy, narrow spots in the road for us to appreciate the smooth expressway in sunlight.

Our hours are filled with variety — for truly it is the spice of life. Today we may be cruising on the Ohio Turnpike; tomorrow we may be zooming on the Autobahn in Deutschland. One day we may shiver in the snows of Iceland, and on the next roast in the sands of Hawaii. Some situations find us speaking freely; others find us carrying a dictionary. There are nights when we use a key and push a handle to get in the front door; there are also nights when we turn a round door knob to get in. If you've been in the Army long, you know exactly what I mean. We have so many memories.

There's something this life has taught me—you never lose contact with an acquaintance in the Army. Lines of communication may be cut for a while, but you're bound to run into friends farther down the highway in the tomorrows. What other type of life gives you this?

Yes, the highway of travel comes rough and smooth. There've been blow-outs on its path and even a few wrecks. But this would happen on any highway we chose to travel. The good out shines the bad, won't you agree?

The young people of Fort Benning's Follow-Me-Club are in the process of rewriting their constitution. They've decided that some drastic changes need to be made. There's to be a dinner in the near future... probably to honor the new constitution.

The Minstrel is due back in town. Columbus High School is presenting this annual event right now. The dates are February 1, 2, and 3. It's slated as the best minstrel come back this vicinity has seen in years. The endmen keep the crowd howling continuously and the acts are inticing. Seeing the show would be well worth your efforts.

The 1962 March of Dimes Walkathone is well under way. This provides another point of competition for the schools. Last year Pacelli won, walking farthest on the road to Cusseta. All the schools are already preparing for the worth-while march. A dime equals a step farther down the road. So when you're asked to give, please do so. This is our chance to help where it is desperately needed — your dime may save a life.

Sports are still in the limelight as the courts still echo with the sounds of dribbling basketballs. The records show how each school has faired in this type of competition.

The JADA's are in the process of presenting an Gala All-Girl Floor Show in early March. It's rumored that this will be a show to top all shows ever to be presented at Fort Benning. The acts are extremely varied, providing plenty of entertainment for all the crowd.

Isn't it hard to realize that we've finished a complete semester? There's only one semester left for some of us. Gee, how time flies. The Fort Benning Post Office has carried letters to and from numerous colleges in the past three weeks, as eager Beningites wait on pins and needles. Underclassmen are also counting the months, too; as time passes and we made the grades.

30 Citadel Cadets See Training

Thirty cadets from The Citadel at Charleston, S. C., will arrive at the post today for a first hand look at The Infantry School's Airborne training program.

The cadets are members of The Citadel's Ranger - Airborne Club as well as being distinguished military students.

Their one-day training tour, arranged by Capt. Charles Boice, S-3, Reserve Component Section of The Infantry Center, will begin tomorrow with an orientation.

They then will practice parachute landing falls from a two-foot platform. The cadets also will be familiarized with the swing landing tower and the 34-foot mock tower.

Certificates will be awarded to the cadets after they have taken "buddy seat" rides, simulated parachute jumps from a 250-foot training tower.

The Citadel students are scheduled to tour the post tomorrow afternoon before departing Sunday morning.

In Three Seconds

Female Taped Voice Gets Pilot Reaction

OMAHA, Neb. (AFPS)—The B-58 Hustlers of the Strategic Air Command are slated to get the woman's touch this spring—and it may take some getting used to on the part of Hustler pilots.

Conventional warning lights that alert the pilot to such emergencies as engine fire, hydraulic system failure and landing gear malfunction are to be supplemented in the Air Force's fatest bomber by taped warnings in a woman's voice.

Initial tests of his oral warning known as the Voice Interruption Priority System, or VIPS —were made two years ago at Carswell AFB, Tex. At that time the taped warnings were spoken by a male voice, but SAC later adopted the suggestion of a pilot that a woman's voice, breaking into the supersonic cockpit at 50,000 feet to call attention to trouble, would be even more effective.

The B - 58's conventional warning lights consist of a panel of yellow messages to the right of the dashboard and a red master light in the center. A pilot reacts to them in an average of 12 seconds, whereas flight tests have shown that the average reaction to VIPS is three seconds.

The pilot's reaction in terms of seconds is all imant in the Hustler which can fly more than 1,200 m.p.h. at altitudes of more than 65,000 feet.

Some 20 messages have been taped, spoken with deliberate calmness and clarity and carefully phrased. No two messages begin with the same work.

Typical warnings, as taped by Mrs. Gina Drazin, a secretary of the Northrop Corp. which developed VIPS, are: "Ice forming" — "Engine oil quality low" — "Rod pin out" — "Utility hydaulic pump failed" — "Generator abnormal."

Such messages will be repeated until the pilot corrects the trouble or switches the voice off.

JAN'S 'SOLDIER' PFC Tyler

PFC Tyler, 2nd Avn. Co., Div 'S-O-M'

Florida Native, 26, Is Former Marine

A flight operations specialist at the 2nd Aviation Company has been selected as the 2nd Division's "Soldier - of - the-Month."

Private First Class William G. Tyler, a former Marine, was selected for the monthly honor for his appearance, military knowledge and bearing and job competence.

The 26-year old Coca, Florida, native, entered the U. S. Army May 31, undergoing Basic Combat Training at the 7th Cavalry. He then attended the Fort Rucker, Alabama, Aircraft Mechanic school, graduating second in his class of 75.

Prior to entering the U. S. Army, Tyler spent a three-year sea-going tour in the U.S. Marine Corps. After leaving the Marines, he worked in the British West Indies as a security policeman for Pan American Airways.

The young soldier was recommended for the 2nd Aviation "Soldier-of-the-Month" award for his job performance as a flight operations specialist. He subsequently won Division Trains SOM honors and went on to compete at division-level.

Movement to Ala. Post Carried Out Smoothly

FORT McCLELLAN, Ala... Units of the 2nd Infantry Division participating in field training exercises here got work outs immediately on arrival Sunday.

These units with support mission, elements of the division's 2nd Engineer Battalion and the 122nd Signal Battalion, found their work cut out for them as they were faced with building new bridges over rain-swollen creeks and stringing communication lines over mountainous terrain.

Heavy Rains

Recent heavy rains at the northeastern Alabama military reservation contributed more realism to the ten-day field training exercise as roads became impassable during convoy movements and alternate routes had to be chosen.

Division Brigade Headquarters, controllers of the exercise, has kept administrative movement to a minimum to retain interest in the problems at a height of realism.

Some 5,000 troops in 1,000 vehicles made the movement to Fort McClellan Monday without accident.

Last Thursday, personnel of the 2nd Engineer Battalion, who were part of an advance detachment, began construction of a 76-foot span across Cane Creek. The bridge weighed 46,000 pounds.

A McClellan based unit is participating in the exercise, too.

Certain units of the 100th Chemical Group from the U.S. Army Chemical Corps Training Command will provide chemical support, including the laying down of smoke screens.

Decision

The decision to use the Fort McClellan training areas for the exercise came about as a result of the December 15 visit of Brigadier General Royal state for politico-military affairs, James Ruchti, staff member of Armed Forces Office of Information and Education, Department of Defense, and Major Arthur G. Haggis, a member of the Army's office of the chief of information, visited the 2nd Infantry Division Wednesday afternoon to observe Troop Information classes.

The three visited Fort Benning as members of a group headed by Edward L. Katzenbach Jr., the Army's deputy assistant secretary of defense for education and manpower resources.

Their visit is part of a tour of three military installations to obtain information on the orientation and training of Allied officers and on democracy and communism information programs for U. S. officers and enlisted men.

Upon arrival at 2nd Infantry Division Headquarters, the group visited with Colonel Frank A. Osmanski, Division Artillery commander, and then received a briefing on information activites within the division by Major Darwin C. Miller, division information officer.

The classes observed by the three were "U. S. Fighting Man's Code" given by Lieutenant George I. Coulbourne

Soldiers Invade Div Testing Site

75-Man Group Begins Tests Mon., Tests to Continue Until Feb. 10

BY PETER TATISTCHEFF

For many 9th Infantry Soldiers presently undergoing testing for the Expert Infantryman's Badge, the severely-demanding examination is overwhelming . . . for some, a chance to shine . . . but for all, a valuable experience.

Close to perfect weather conditions greeted candidates when they arrived for testing Monday. Prospects are good for an uninterrupted two-week schedule ending February 10.

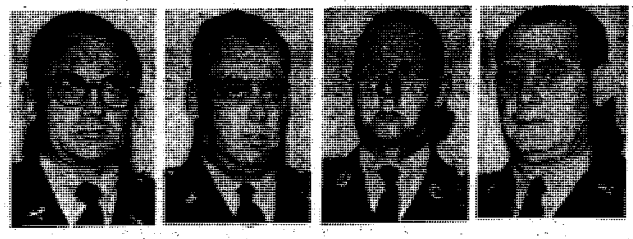
A Group of 75

Arriving at the test site at 7 a.m. Monday, the men, a group of 75 officers, non-commissioned officers and enlisted men, remained for a two-day period, replaced at that time by another group of 75 which was in turn divided up between the area's 13 stations and put to the test.

Realizing they must achieve at least 70 per cent in each of 13 basic Infantry subjects, they know one moment of carelessness will mean re-testing and possible failure.

Division allows each company to submit a maximum of 84 candidates for testing. The 9th's five rifle companies have submitted the maximum. Headquarters Company is sending 10 and Combat Support Company 70.

The 64-man testing committee, drawn from many division units and headed by Major Dudley T. Bunn and Master Sergeant Edwin H. Knueppel, administer the examination with little emphasis on time. Each man is given time to think and act carefully. Though committee-men may not aid or brief candidates, all is done to relax tension, creating an atmosphere of unbiased evaluation.

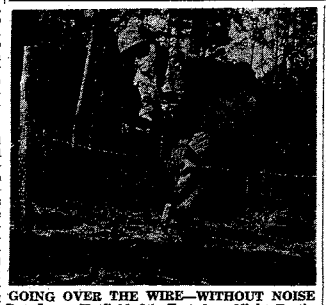


Testing Area

The testing area, maintained by Master Sergeant Knueppel and his staff combines the atmosphere of a classroom with actual field conditions. Sheltered tables for written portions of each test contrast with the gaping wounds of "combat casualties" at the first aid station; blindfolded Soldiers creeping carefully through barbed wire traps at the patrolling station and disguised and painted Infantrymen disappearing into — and reappearing from — the wooded area of the individual cover and camouflage station.

The 9th's candidates were prepared for the division-level tests by extensive training on the part of qualified EIB or Combat Infantryman's Badge-holding officers and NCOs. Directed by Captain William M. Hannen, EIB training project officer, training climaxed with testing on the battle group level designed to duplicate conditions Soldiers would find this week on the division level.

Whatever the results of final tests, the 9th's Infantrymen will have either the coveted badge or something equally as valuable — a guide in what they have yet to master in forthcoming training.



Next to begin EIB training will be the 87th Infantry. Captain Kenneth J. Sweeney, 87th Infantry S-2, has been named EIB training project officer. Training for this battle group will start in March.

RETIRING . . . Recently honored on their retirements were (L-R) Capt. Renwick W. Speer, 2nd Medical Battalion, Master Sergeant Alex Branch, 7th Cavalry, Master Sergeant Charles L. Jones, 23rd Infantry, and Sergeant Lawrence E. Hellings, 15th Artillery, all of whom are retiring after more than 20 years' service. They were congratulated by Major General Charles H. Chase, commanding general, and presented Certificates of Appreciation signed by General G. H. Decker, chief of staff, U.S. Army.

17th Artillery Supports Div Air Observer School

By 87th Inf PIO

Support for the 2nd Infantry Division Air Observer School was provided by the 17th Artillery on January 25. Battery A took its six howitzers to the field and answered calls for fire from 17 "airborne" observers.

The battery was divided into three platoons. Each platoon had a separate fire direction center and was able to operate independently. By organizing in this manner the battery had the capability of firing three different fire missions simultaneously. Each of the observers was able to call for and adjust two fire missions during the half - day training period.

The purpose of the shoot was to give the student air observers training and practice in adjusting Artillery fires.

Battery A is commanded by Capt. Bryan Evans, Jr.

87th Infantry Ammo Distribution Point Now Looks Just Like Home

By 87th Inf PIO

Imagination, ingenuity and scrap materials make up the main ingredients for the new look around the 87th Infantry's area.

The engineer platoon of Headquarters Company has just completed construction of a new ammunition distributing point in the battle group area. Situated just off of Marne Read, the new building takes on the appearance of a small modern home with a car port.

The laying of the foundation and construction of the building was accomplished by the first squad of the platoon under the supervision of Staff Sergeant Joseph Ibach.

BRIGADE DRIVER GETS ARMY COMMENDATION MEDAL
Brig. Gen. Reynolds, Right, Presents Award to Sp4 Seyko

Sp4 R. Seyko, DBC Driver, Given ACM

Specialist Four Raymond J. Seyko, driver and radio operator for the 2nd Division's Deputy Brigade commander, has received the Army Commendation Medal.

The native of Turtle Creek, Pennsylvania, joined division's Headquarters and Headquarters Company April 14, 1960. He entered the Army October 7, 1959 and is scheduled for release tomorow after 28 months' active duty.

For Diligence, Loyalty

In ceremonies held Saturday in the office of the Assistant Division Commander, Specialist Seyko was cited for his diligence, attention to duty, loyalty, enthusiasm, professional knowledge of codes and for proper use of the radio.

Presenting the award was Brigadier General Royal Reynolds Jr., assistant division commander.

The citation, read by Colonel Maurice C. Holden, deputy brigade commander, stated that "during Army Training Tests, Field Training Exercises and Command Post Exercises, Sp4 Seyko's tact, cheerful attitude and willingness to accept additional responsibilities were especially noteworthy.

"He assisted in giving assignments to local key personnel during these special exercises, also delivered important messages, acted as guide and performed multitudinous other liaison duties not normally assigned to personnel of his rank."

Specialist Seyko was the recipient of a letter of commendation from Colonel Ernest C. Dameron, a former 2nd Division deputy brigade commander.

1st Infantry Moves BG Hqs to New Site

By 1st Inf PIO

The 1st Infantry has officially moved its headquarters to a new site on Kelley Hill.

At an official opening ceremony Saturday morning, Major General Charles H. Chase, commanding general of the "Second to None" Division, cut the tape while Colonel Walter B. Todd, "Always First" Infantry commander, looked on.

Following a tour of the new building, General Chase met informally with the principal staff members, company commanders of the 1st Infantry and invited guests in Colonel Todd's office where they were served refreshments. Especially notable at the refreshment table was a cake which had been baked by the mess personnel of Headquarters Company of the 1st and which was decorated by an icing replica of the distinctive insignia of the "Always First" Infantry.

Guests at the ceremony were Brigadier General Royal Reynolds, Jr., assistant division commander, Colonel Maurice C. Holden, deputy Brigade commander, Colonel Robert E. Connor, commanding officer, 87th Infantry, and Colonel John E. Arthur, commander of the 11th Infantry.

M-Sgt. Komisky Reenlists at 11th

In 1943, Master Sergeant Paul Komisky was drafted into the Army. This week, after 19 years' service, the platoon sergeant from Company B, 11th Infantry reenlisted for three more years.

A native of Plymouth, Pa., Sgt. Komisky served with the Rangers during World War II and with the 24th Division in the Korean War. At the conclusion of the conflict in Korea, he joined the 1st Division in Germany.

In 1955, Sgt. Komisky was assigned to Fort Benning where he acted as S-2 and S-3 Sergeant with the Infantry Center Troop Command before coming to the 11th Infantry in September, 1961.

Chaplain Sams Lived in Danger While Serving As Missionary Teacher in Chaotic Palestine

By Richard J. Hossar

Escapes from death or serious injury from Arab and Jewish terrorist groups such as those seen in the movie "Exodus" are strictly old hat to Chaplain (Captain) Horace Sams Jr. of Sand Hill's Chapel Four.

While serving as a missionary teacher in the Palestine Bible Institute during the first phases of the trouble that flared up in the distant land, Chaplain Sams was advised by the American Consulate to evacuate to Cyprus or else endanger the lives of his family.

British Mandate

Palestine at the time was under the British Mandate, granted by the League of Nations. The government was under tremendous pressure from Arab leaders to halt Jewish immigration, while the Jews pressed to lift all restrictions. When the United Nations voted to partition Palestine, and before England gave up the Mandate and withdrew, the three opposing parties fought in a three-cornered warfare.

Neither group gave much consideration to innocent bystanders such as the missionaries. To have bullets firing in and around their Jerusalem home became almost a regular event; small arms fire shattered windows and ricocheted in the chaplain's home and mission headquarters, and church on the Street of Prophets.

Once, while he was walking down the street, a hand grenade was tossed near the chaplain, killing a stranger walking behind. The missionaries were not being discriminated against, but had no protection against the terror groups. On another occasion, while traveling through the ancient city of Hebron with his colleagues they were stopped by Arabs and mistaken for Jews.

The leader of the group made threats as the followers began to gather stones to stone the missionaries. Had it not been for an elder who came along and convinced the young, hot-blooded Arabs that Chaplain Sams and his party were not Jews and meant no harm they could have been seriously injured or even killed.

'Flames of War'

One phenomenal element of the situation was the fact that thousands of Jews and Arabs lived harmoniously together and shared the same water supplies and medical facilities until the flames of war were fanned with emotional frenzy. They could have lived together, but strong terrorists minorities forced them into becoming belligerents against their will and better judgment.

When conditions became too dangerous, the missionaries stayed in Cyprus, hoping things would calm down so they could return to their work. Chaplain Sams lived for five months in Nicosia, Cyprus, until his mission board requested that he return to the United States when it became apparent that it would be a long time before peace would be restored.

The experiences in Palestine were considered "of great value" to Chaplain Sams and gave him an opportunity to study further the Hebrew history, language, and Biblical literature. He was beginning to achieve enough fluency in modern Hebrew to use it in his work when he had to leave the land he thought was to be his home for all his life. He enjoyed his work there immensely but he says he is in less happy with his present task of keeping up the spiritual fire as Battle Group Chaplain of the Second Battle Group, 9th Infantry.

Sergeant Billy G. Fayne, Forward Communications Company, 122nd Signal Battalion, was presented a letter of commendation for being selected as Battalion "Soldier of the Month" for January.

The presentation was made by Lieutenant Colonel Herbert W. Coburn, battalion commander.

Sergeant Fayne serves as a section chief in the radio terminal and carrier section of the company.

Safety Tip

Here's How to Escape If Car Goes Into Water

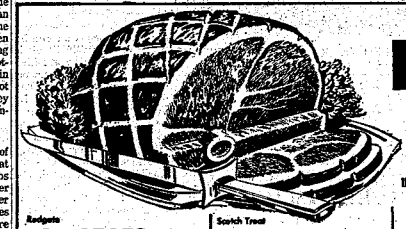
According to the International Association of Fire Chiefs, approximately 400 persons are trapped and drowned every year in automobiles which plunge into water. Many of these fatalities are not due to injuries sustained in the accident, but occur when the occupants panic and attempt to immediately free themselves.

In order to escape from a vehicle after it has plunged into water, the occupants must remain calm and allow the car to fill with water. It would obviously take a very calm and collected person to remain in the car after being immersed in a large body of water. However, these actions are necessary if a safe escape is to be effected.

The Reason

The reason for remaining in your car until it has filled with water is that the pressure inside must equal the pressure outside before the door can be easily opened. If the car lands upright, a pocket of air remains inside, more than enough to last the 10 or 15 minutes it takes the car to fill.

When the water stops rising, the pressure inside is about equal to the outside pressure. The motorist then takes a deep breath, opens the door, pushes out and up to the surface. The air pocket remains after the door is open. The procedure is approximately the same when a car lands on its side or top. The air bubble will rise to the highest point in the car.



If the doors cannot be opened, escape can be made by rolling down the window, or, if the door is too badly damaged to allow the window to roll down, by knocking out the glass and escaping through the opening. However, when escaping through a window the occupants will have to once again contend with the pressure of the water rushing in through the opening.

Lt Col Scott, Maj Busch Take Course

87th COMMANDER'S TROPHY PRESENTED TO COMBAT SUPPORT C-O
Col. Connor, left, With Lt. Collier, 1st Sgt. James A. Scott

Combat Support Company Wins 87th Inf Commander's Trophy

By 87th Inf PIO

At a special formation held recently at the Kelley Hill Gymnasium, 87th Infantry Commander Colonel Robert E. Connor presented the coveted Battle Group Commander's Trophy to Combat Support Company.

Accepting the award was Combat Support's commander, Lieutenant John F. Collier, accompanied by First Sergeant James A. Scott.

The assistant adjutant, Lieutenant James E. Bopp, preceded Colonel Connor and made a few introductory comments outlining the award.

"In January 1961, shortly after the formation of the 87th Infantry as an OVUREP battle group, a program was initiated by which each company would compete for the Commander's Trophy," said Lt. Bopp.

"The areas in which the companies competed included: AWOL's, delinquency reports, accidents, 'Soldier of the Month,' results of squad, platoon and company tests, mess inspections, weapons inspections, maintenance of vehicles, signal equipment and supply records.

"This program began on July 1 and ended on the last day of the year. This will be a yearly award in the 87th and will remain with the winning unit for one year."

After the gleaming three-foot-high trophy had been awarded, Colonel Connor made a few additional remarks, commending all of the companies for their "fine performances." He stated that the competition was as close as it was for the recently completed company ATTs.

At a company formation immediately after the presentation, Lieutenant Collier declared:

"This trophy is visible recognition of something you have all felt for a long time, namely that you are the best soldiers in this battle group.

"Today, Sergeant Scott and I received this beautiful trophy from Colonel Connor. However, we accepted this trophy as the representatives of every single member of the company. Every man here who has performed his daily duty in an honorable manner has contributed to the effort required to win."

The 31-year-old ex-non-commissioned officer entered the U. S. Army September 2, 1948. Prior to joining the 2nd Division in August 1959, he served with the 3rd Gun Battalion, 38th Artillery in Korea.

His awards and decorations include the Good Conduct Medal with Four Loops, Korean Service Medal, United Nations Ribbon and National Defense Service Medal.

Mr. Patt is a member of Moriahy A.M.A. Lodge No. 7, F&A.M. He and his wife Helen and their four children live at 2211 Heart Street, Columbus.

7th Cav's Hardin Gets Silver Bar

By 7th Cavalry PIO

Lieutenant John C. Hardin Jr., a platoon leader in Troop B, 7th Cavalry, was recently promoted to his present rank.

Lieutenant Colonel Harvey Scott, squadron commander, pinned silver bars on Lt. Hardin at an informal ceremony at squadron headquarters. Lt. Hardin will continue his duties as third platoon leader of Troop B.

The lieutenant reported to the squadron upon completion of the Armored Officer's Orientation Course at Fort Knox, Kentucky, and was immediately assigned to Troop B. He assumed the duties of executive officer for a short time, and later returned to command the third platoon.

Reenlistments

Five 7th Cavalry non-commissioned officers recently reenlisted. They are Sergeant First Class Travis Shirley and Sergeant Eugene Etzler, both of Troop C; Master Sergeant William Stanley and Sergeant Joseph May, both of Headquarters Troop, and Sergeant Eugene Sullivan of Troop B.

Four men reenlisted for a total of 24 years in ceremonies held recently by 122nd Signal Battalion Commander Lieutenant Colonel Herbert W. Coburn. Reenlisting for six years were Sergeants Lawrence W. Pilon and Robert Marterella of the Command Operations Company and Specialist Five Joseph L. Jones of Headquarters and Headquarters Company.

Sergeant First Class Louis D. Nava, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 122nd Signal Battalion, also added six more years to the 13 he has served.

Master Sergeant Warren J. Otley, career counselor for the 9th Infantry; and Sergeant Roy C. Teague, reenlistment noncommissioned officer, report this week that four Manchu men have reenlisted to add a total of 12 more years to their already accumulated total of 64 years, seven months of service.

Master Sergeant Edward J. Schoppmeyer, of Company B, led the way by adding another three years to the 18 years that he has already served.

Also of Company B is Staff Sergeant Cleveland Baker, who has reenlisted for three years to add to his 17.

Another member of the Manchu's Company B to add three years to his accumulated service is Staff Sergeant Lydia H. Prevetta who has served for the last 11 years.

The remaining noncommissioned officer who also reenlisted for three years was Sergeant Jodie W. Griffith Jr., who added that total to the 17 years that he has already served.

Specialist Four Martin D. Watts of Headquarters Company, 9th Infantry, last week took the oath of reenlistment to add another six years to the three he has already served.

Specialist Watts is a native of Shreveport, Louisiana, where he attended high school and made his first enlistment. He is presently assigned as a radio operator in the 9th Infantry communication platoon.

Sergeant James E. Hatcher Jr., of the 23rd Infantry's Company A, reenlisted for Hawaii's 25th Infantry Division.

Sand Hill's Art Contest Victors Told

Private Paul Romine, an engineer with Headquarters Company, 23rd Infantry, is the winner of seven prizes for art submitted to Sand Hill's Service Club Two in its recent art contest.

Judges for the contest were Tom Kenney Jr., advertising manager for Wells Dairies, Columbus; Manford D. Metcalf Jr., art instructor at the Columbus School of Art, and Angelo J. Franco, art director for the Ledger-Enquirer newspapers, Columbus.

Seven Prizes

Private Romine won first, second and third prizes for his work in charcoal, first and third place in watercolor, third place in modern art and first place for his pastel work titled "The Window."

Other contest winners were Mrs. June Foster, second place—watercolor; Duncan S. Patton Jr. of Headquarters Company, 2nd Engineers, first prize—modern art, first prize—pencil; Alvin Hawkins, Company A, 23rd Infantry, second place—modern art; Guy Ford, Company C, 23rd Infantry, second place—pencil; Alan Mouser, Company A, 122nd Signal Battalion, third place—pencil, first place—pen and ink; Norman W. Compton, 2rd Field Hospital, first and second prize—oil; William Filose, 59th Armor, third place — oil, and Cameron Bishop, first place—cartoons.

Private Romine, most decorated artist at the Service Club Two contest, is a native of Carroll, Ohio. He enlisted into the Army in July 1961, received his basic training at Fort Knox, Ky., and was assigned to the 23rd Infantry in August.

He attended Carroll High School and plans to pursue an Army career. He states that he has had no formal education in the arts, but paints as a hobby. He has entered art in contests at the Ohio State Fair and the Fairfield Country, Ohio, State Fair. His work is currently on display at Sand Hill's Service Club Two.

Hancock, right, commanding officer of Battery B, 27th Artillery, witness the reenlistment of Specialist Four Frank B. Sewell Jr., first cook with Battery B, 27th Artillery. Specialist Sewell, who reenlisted for three years, was Captain Rothleitner's first customer.

Memorial Goal Seen By Div Assn.

Conflict, the new monument will stand not only as a memorial to thousands of gallant fighting men but also as a testimonial to the dedication and loyalty of 2nd (Indian Head) Division Association members since their organization on the banks of the Rhine in 1919.

When the national association was formed by Major General John A. LeJeune, 2nd Division commanding general, during the Army occupation of Germany in 1919, original members dedicated themselves as a living memorial to those who perished while fighting "under the Star and the Indian Head."

Major General LeJeune's aim in his project was "that the men who had fought so valiantly as a unit should be given an opportunity to remain together as much as possible."

When the division returned to the United States, division members, many discharged or separated throughout the country, remained together as an association, forming local branches of the division association from coast to coast.

Association Branches

Requisite for a branch of the association to be chartered through national headquarters is to have ten paid-up national members on the charter application. There are numerous branches throughout the nation. At Fort Benning, there is a branch of the association including 12 chapters.

Other association branches are located in Philadelphia, Denver, Los Angeles, San Antonio, Washington, D. C., Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Kansas City, Mo., New York City, La Crosse, Wisc., San Francisco, Hartford, Chicago, St. Louis and Cleveland.

Members, former members and friends of the division contributed $125,000 toward the original "Flaming Sword" monument unveiled in 1936. A total of 11,060 persons contributed through the division association toward the expansion project.

Held together by loyalty to their war dead, members publish a monthly newspaper titled "The Indian Head." Each year members travel to one of the large cities in the country for a reunion. Last year's reunion was held in Kansas City. This year, Washington, D. C., will be the site, owing to anticipated July dedication of their monument.

Active duty members of the division association, who establish membership by paying one dollar to their branch, will be given the opportunity to travel to Washington this summer for their annual reunion.

Colonel Gustaw M. Bacharach, division chief of staff, is a member of the association's memorial committee. Lieutenant Colonel Ralph K. Jones, division G-1, is a vice president of the association.

Ex-Div. MP Commander Gets Award in Germany

A former 2nd Division Military Police Detachment Commander has been awarded the Provost Marshal's Silver Medal and Certificate at ceremonies in Munich, Germany.

Captain Gore E. Elzworth, now assistant division provost marshal of the 24th Division's Munich Detachment, was presented the award by Brigadier General Robert G. Fergusson, 24th Division's Commanding General.

Eighth High

Captain Elzworth placed eighth high individual scorer in the Fifth Annual Worldwide Provost Marshal General's Trophy Pistol Team Championship Match with a score of 290 out of a possible 300.

For Captain Elzworth, a holder of the Distinguished Marksman Badge, this was a repeat performance, as he placed in individual firing in 1960, boosting his team to first place that year.

The Provost Marshal General's Trophy Pistol Team Match had its beginning in 1957. This match is an annual affair and is open to military policemen and Military Police units the world over.

FOUND THE LOSS

A woman in Detroit, Mich., had driven a mile when she decided something was wrong with her car. A gas station attendant found the trouble; her radiator had been stolen.

Mrs. Fred Koerber poured coffee at a table centered with an arrangement of white mums and pink glads. Mrs. Francis V. Kowalski won the centerpiece.

The Bayonet Cookbook

Always a good main dish, Beef Stroganoff is the recipe for this week submitted by Mrs. Warren J. Otley, wife of Master Sergeant Otley, 9th Inf.

2 lbs beef shoulder roast
½ cup finely chopped onion
1 clove garlic, finely chopped
¼ cup bacon drippings
1 tsp salt
1 cup commercial sour cream
¼ cup water
1 beef bouillon cube
¼ cup mushroom pieces
1 tsp sherry flavoring
1 tbsp Worcestershire sauce

Cut meat into ½ inch strips. Flour lightly. Fry with onion and garlic in hot bacon drippings until browned. Add salt, water, cube and mushroom pieces. Cover and simmer 1½ hours or until tender. Add sherry flavoring last 60 minutes. Blend in remaining ingredients. Heat slowly till hot. Do not boil.

Says Bronco-Buster

Rodeo Arena Safer Than Cars on Highway

By 11th Infantry PIO

When Private First Class Frank Crimmins joined the Army, he switched from cowboy boots to combat boots and from a pinto horse to an olive drab jeep.

Crimmins is a member of Headquarters Company, 11th Infantry and drives for the S-2 section. But riding in a jeep, he says, is pretty tame compared to some of the beasts he has ridden in civilian life.

Bronc-Buster

The 21-year-old soldier hail from White Earth, North Dakota, and before entering the service was a rodeo bronc-buster and Brahma bull rider. For seven years he competed in rodeos throughout North Dakota, South Dakota and Montana in the summer and worked on his father's ranch in White Earth during the winter months.

"I guess you could say I was born on a horse," says Crimmins. He began practicing riding horses at home and at neighboring ranches when he was 13 years old and at 15 entered a rodeo for the first time.

After riding broncs for about five years in regular competition, he began riding Brahma bulls. Crimmins rode under amateur rules which permitted him to win up to $1,000 in prize money before turning professional.

He comes from a family of rodeo performers. His father was a rodeo rider and last summer his 15-year-old brother began riding Brahma bulls in rodeo competition.

After the service, Crimmins hopes to continue rodeoing and, some day, become a top professional performer. When asked if he didn't think riding wild horses and bulls was a rather dangerous occupation, Crimmins replied, "Most people feel it is dangerous. But probably more cowboys are injured in their cars on the highway than on a horse or bull in a rodeo arena."

23rd's 'R and U' Team Spruces Up BG Area

By 23rd Infantry PIO

For the past couple of weeks the 23rd Infantry Repair and Utilities Shop has been as busy as the proverbial bee. Heavy rains and cold weather took a toll on the 23rd's garrison area and equipment, necessitating both major and minor repairs.

The "R and U boys," under the supervision of Sergeant First Class Raymond Hamner, have tackled most of the critical projects and have "spruced up" the area as much as is possible in mid-winter.

Regrading

The largest job was the regrading of the battle group parking area. Several fully-grown pine trees had to be felled, the stumps dug up, the holes filled and the entire parking area leveled. Also, sand-bag-lined drainage ditches were improved, and guard rails were erected around the parking area's perimeter.

Another important job being fulfilled by R and U is the maintenance of all battle group boilers. The boiler rooms are constantly checked to see that the furnaces are in proper running order and that firemen are obeying fire safety regulations.

A major project has been the performing of exterior and interior improvements on the Headquarters Company mess hall. Several truck loads of rich, black loam have been hauled in and spread. Extensive landscaping, including the planting of grass, will be carried out in the Spring. Also, a ceiling has been installed in the mess hall kitchen and some painting is being done.

Speaking of painting, R and U has recently revarnished the 23rd Infantry totem pole. The unit symbol, located on the battle group lawn, was partially sanded and then revarnished in order to preserve the wood.

Slated for construction upon approval of the proper authorities is a vehicle wash rack in the battle group motor pool. Also, repair work will begin soon on all 23rd Infantry UTA field sites.

23rd Inf Hosts Saudi Arabian Army Officer

By 23rd Inf PIO

The Infantry played host recently to an allied officer from the Middle East. Lieutenant Sohail Abdullah of the 1st Battalion, 11th Regiment, Saudi Arabian Army was taken on a guided tour of the area.

Lt. Abdullah has been attending the Associate Career Course at The Infantry Center for the past six months. He plans to attend the Motor Transport Course soon.

While at the 23rd, Lt. Abdullah was shown the operations of the battle group as well as the personnel, intelligence and logistics offices.

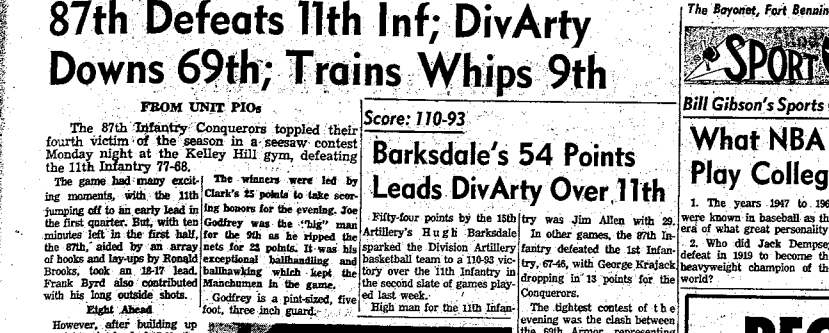
23rd's Hall Gets RA Commission

A 23rd Infantry officer received his Regular Army commission recently.

Lieutenant James Reginald Hall, executive officer of Company A, was sworn in as a Regular Army officer by Colonel Louis A. Kunzig Jr., battle group commander.

Lt. Hall entered the Army in 1957 as an enlisted man, was admitted to Officers' Candidate School in mid-1958 and received his commission in December of that year.

Sgt. Schultz, Div MP Det., Upped to E-7



Sergeant First Class Robert A. Schultz, detachment sergeant of the division's Military Police Detachment, recently was promoted to the military pay grade of E-7.

Sgt. Schultz was presented promotion orders and congratulated by Lieutenant Colonel John W. Thompson, provost marshal, and Captain John F. Riley, detachment commander.

Sgt. Schultz, who completed 20 years' service on January 4, served during World War II with the 1st Cavalry Division, 8th Engineer Squadron in the Pacific Theater. While assigned to the 1st Cavalry, he participated in the Admiralty Islands, Leyte and Luzon campaigns.

He has had 73 months' experience in the positions of first sergeant, operations sergeant and detachment sergeant at battalion, company and detachment levels, the last 14 months being spent in his present job.

"Sgt. Schultz has performed his duties in an outstanding manner while assigned to the detachment," said Captain Riley. "He has constantly originated new processes for improving operational efficiency. He possesses the rare combination of confidence, magnetic personality and military bearing which commands respect, creates a military atmosphere and influences men."

Shaking the 20s Hard, Says New 11th-Inf Sgt.

By 11th Inf PIO

When Sergeant Francis W. Rayburn received orders to the 2nd Infantry Division in late 1961, he was almost certain he would be assigned to the 2nd Battle Group, 23rd Infantry.

Instead, Sergeant Rayburn is now serving as an antitank squad leader with Company E of the 1st Battle Group, 11th Infantry.

But in every instance before in his service career dating back to 1950, he was assigned to a regiment—or battle group bearing a regimental designation — numbered in the 20s.

Ft. Knox

In 1950, Sergeant Rayburn entered the Army with the 26th Armored Infantry Battalion at Fort Knox, Ky. In July of that year he joined the 29th Infantry and served with this regiment in both Okinawa and Korea.

Later in Korea, he was assigned to the 27th Regiment of the 25th Division. Returning to the United States in 1956, he served with the 28th Regiment at Fort Jackson, S. C., until discharged in 1953.

Rejoining the Army in 1956, he came back to the 25th Division and the 27th Regiment, later joining the 21st Regiment of the same division, serving with the two for four years in Hawaii. Active in Boy Scout work there, he served as Scoutmaster of Troop 24.

Award Program Held for 9th Inf Support Co.

At the Annual Qualifications Awards ceremony of Combat Support Company of the 9th Infantry, Captain Franklin M. Nichols, company commander, presented qualification medals to 56 enlisted men.

Receiving these awards were 15 experts, 32 sharpshooters and 13 marksmen who have recently qualified with the M-1 rifle.

Among the Manchu 'dead-eyes' honored was Specialist Five Pabon Henriques, a cook in the support unit, who was also the battle group's high rifle shooter with a 241 score.

87th Defeats 11th Inf; DivArty Downs 69th; Trains Whips 9th

FROM UNIT PIOs

The 87th Infantry Conquerors toppled their fourth victim of the season in a seesaw contest Monday night at the Kelley Hill gym, defeating the 11th Infantry 77-68.

The game had many exciting moments, with the 11th jumping off to an early lead in the first quarter. But, with ten minutes left in the first half, the 87th, aided by an array of hooks and lay-ups by Ronald Brooks, took an 18-17 lead. Frank Byrd also contributed with his long outside shots.

Eight Ahead

However, after building up an eight-point lead of 37-29, the 87th saw their margin dwindle as the 11th, on a long outside shot by Robert Marshall and assisted by James Allen, ended the half leading the contest, 41-40.

The second half saw the lead change many times as the tension again mounted. Larry Shaheen and Warner Johnson helped the cause for the 87th as they took a 59-50 lead on a Brooks-to-Johnson combination in the third quarter.

With seven minutes left, the 11th again bounced back to within a point, 63-62, with sparkling performances by Russell Anderson and Ronald Pinner.

High combo for the 87th was Brooks and Byrd, both dunking in 20 points. Nineteen points were scored by James Allen making him high man for the 11th.

DivArty	95
69th Armor	69

A spirited Division Artillery team Monday night dumped the 69th Armor, the unit representing Separate Battalions, 95-69, in a Harmony Church basketball clash.

Commanding the game after the first few opening minutes, the DivArty quintet nailed down the half with a six-point margin, 42-36.

Consistent high-man Hugh Barksdale hit the nets for 31 for the Cannoneers and Indulis Brickmanis dropped in 20 for the Tankers.

Div Trains	78
9th Inf	51

Led by the high scoring of center Walt Clark, the Division Trains basketball squad moved past the 9th Infantry by a score of 78-51 at Harmony Church field house.

The first seven minutes of the contest was a nip-and-tuck affair which saw the Trains unit in command of a 7-6 score. But from that point on, the winners moved to a commanding 40-27 score at the conclusion of the first half of play.

Clark ripped the cords for 19 points in that 20 minutes of play.

Four Straight

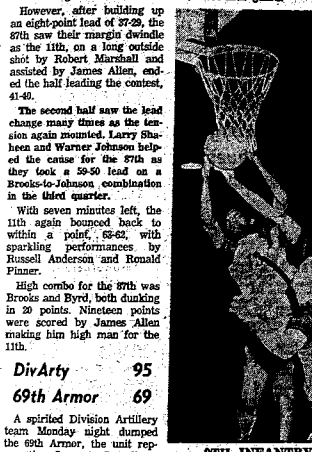
At the start of the second half, the 9th's Joe Godfrey hit on four straight jumpers to close the gap to 40-35. But at that point, the Trains five tightened their defense and had their offense moving at full stride as they scorched the nets for 39 more points while holding the 9th to only 16 for the remainder of the game.

Score: 110-93

Barksdale's 54 Points Leads DivArty Over 11th

Fifty-four points by the 15th Artillery's Hugh Barksdale sparked the Division Artillery basketball team to a 110-93 victory over the 11th Infantry in the second slate of games played last week.

High man for the 11th Infantry was Jim Allen with 29.



In other games, the 87th Infantry defeated the 1st Infantry, 67-46, with George Krajack dropping in 13 points for the Conquerors.

The tightest contest of the evening was the clash between the 69th Armor, representing Separate Battalions, and the 9th Infantry.

Victor of the clash was the Tankers, 68-63. Carrie Fleming paced the Tankers with 16 points, while Ben Nordell led the Manchus with 13 points.

Walter Clark of the 2nd Medical Battalion led the Division Trains quintet to 31-55 over the 23rd Infantry as he potted in 22 points.

High man for the 23rd was Clint Johnson with 15 points.

Rougher Than Football?

Soccer No Game for the Frail, Says 87th Sgt., Ex-Player on Conquerors' Championship Team

By 87th Inf PIO

"How about a game of soccer?"

That's one you don't often hear in division sport circles, although soccer is reputed to be the most popular sport in the world.

Yet there was a time when the 87th Infantry dominated the soccer field, just as it did on the gridiron this past fall.

No one remembers more vividly than Bravo Company's Sergeant Harry C. Stewart.

All-Star Wing

Sergeant Stewart was an all-star wing on the Conqueror "Kickers" when they won both United States Army European championships in 1957 and 1958. The two trophies won by the 87th during its "Gyro-scope" mission in Germany are still on display in the battle group trophy case.

Having a hand (foot might be more accurate) in copping the USAREUR titles was a proud moment for Sergeant Stewart. Nearly as thrilling was the time he had a chance to play on a German team.

To strengthen German-American relations, Sergeant Stewart and his 10 teammates were farmed out by USAREUR officials to as many German teams.

While playing left half and left wing for the Gailback squad, Sergeant Stewart improved both his command of the language and his game and made a number of lasting friendships. Probably none were more lasting than the one he made with a young girl introduced to him by one of the German Nationals he once played against; the girl he later married.

Not For Frail

Most men who are at least vaguely familiar with soccer know it is not a game for the frail. A good soccer player requires the physique of a football tackle, the speed of a basketball guard and the endurance and agility of a hockey player. Above all, explains Sergeant Stewart, he has to develop smooth muscular coordination in his legs and feet.

Soccer embodies, roughly speaking, the rules of the three sports mentioned above, but differs in the stress placed on the use of the feet. For example, "to dribble" in soccer is to move the ball while on the run from foot to foot, or to control it with the same foot, kicking it first with the outside then with the inside portion of the foot. All "passing" and "catching" is done with the feet with the occasional use of the head.

A five-man front line provides the offense while a three-man and a two-man line stay back to cover the goalie on defense.

Is soccer rougher than football?

"Yes," says Sergeant Stewart, "mainly because the soccer player does not wear any padding." During his play on USAREUR's soccer fields, he picked up several scars.

If the call ever went out today for soccer players, the 87th would have a strong contender for its left wing position in Sergeant Stewart.

March of Dimes Bowling Honors Won By Div Men

Two members of the division's 2nd Administration Company, Specialist Five Richard Abraham and Specialist Four Ed Bailey, won second and fourth place spots respectively in the March of Dimes bowling competition concluded Sunday afternoon at the Village Bowl.

Specialist Abraham represented the Village Bowl and Specialist Bailey represented Victory Lanes in the roll-off to determine the March of Dimes Bowling King in the Columbus area.

Specialist Abraham finished behind Jack Kelley, representing All-Star Lanes, who rolled a scratch series of 541, with a handicap of 36 for a total of 577.

Specialist Abraham posted a 509-54—563.

Dewey Wade Bowlarama, finished third with a 14 scratch, 536 handicap while Specialist Bailey ran up a 478-45—523.

Assigned to the Sand Hill Post Office, Specialist Abraham won bowling honors while a member of Southern European Task Force at Vicenza, Italy, and was last year's 2nd Infantry Division bowling champion. He is to defend this title again in March.

Specialist Bailey is assigned to Administration Company's Replacement Section.

1st Inf Pistol, Rifle Teams Selected For Div CG's Marksmanship Matches

By 1st Inf PIO

The "Always First" representatives for the 2nd Infantry Division Commanding General's Marksmanship Matches have been chosen. The representatives were chosen from two categories: "new shooters," firers who have never fired in higher level competition than battle group, and "old shooters," who have fired in division-level or higher team matches.

Competing for berths on the automatic rifle, rifle and pistol teams, men of the 1st Infantry showed great enthusiasm to represent their battle group.

In the "new shooters," .45 caliber pistol, Private Gerald Moore of Company C won the top honors, while Sergeant Stephen Wedding of Company D was runner-up.

From the "Old Shooters" bracket, Specialist Five Jesse Yearta of Combat Support Company and Sergeant Carl Hawks of Company D won first and second places, respectively.

In the rifle matches, first and second places for "old shooters" were won by Specialist Four Herman Wheatley of Company C and Sergeant First Class Herman Couch of Combat Support Company.

High among the "neophyte" shooters were Specialist Five Mike Machalos of Company E and Sergeant First Class John E. Nichols of Company D.

Individual honors in the automatic rifle run-off went to Private First Class Edward Hyche of Company E, and his teammate Specialist Four Bobby McCullars placed second.

In the "new shooter" category, Private First Class Lawrence Wilson of Company E was runner-up.

Echo Company's showing in the individual matches earned it the automatic rifle team trophy.

Phase two of Operation Bullseye is now commencing under the experienced eye of trained marksmen to prepare the "Always First" battle group's shooters for the 2nd Infantry Division matches.

111th Signal to Meet All-Girl Basketball Team This Sunday

By Sfc Bismarck Stith

"They are the best" is a pet phrase sportswriters and fans everywhere use in appraising Hazel Walker's sensational players, who've demonstrated their basketball ability from coast to coast against many of the better mens teams.

They play nothing but men's teams under men's rules and ask no favors at all.

They do indeed have to be the best to win a place on the Arkansas Travelers who meet the 111th Signal Company Sunday here at Briant Wells Field House, at 7 p.m.

Miss Walker, the sole owner of the team, and known as "Miss Basketball"; was selected for the mythical All-American AAU Team for 11 years, a record which has never been topped.

During 14 years in amateur basketball, Hazel played on five National Championship teams and three runner-up teams. She won the National Free Throw title six years and the International title two years. Her record of 49 out of 50 tries from the foul line has never been beaten in National tournament history.

A few years back this All-American performer won a spot with greats of sports world in the American athletes hall of fame — The Helm's Athletic Foundation at Los Angeles.

Miss Walker took her place with such stars as Babe Zaharias, golf's Patty Berg, Marline Bauer Hagge, and many others.

In 1959 Arkansas had its first Hall of Fame and Hazel was selected to this coveted honor as one of its first five, the only female among such greats as Bill Dickey, ex-New York Yankee catcher, and Bill Howell, New York Giant football coach, and three others.

Although they perform night after night and often in doubleheaders, Hazel Walker's talented girls never appear to be exhausted or weary. Every night they stage their dazzling whirlwind show with the same enthusiasm and skill from October through May in different towns each night, for more than 200 games per season.

How do they do it? During the past season they played a total of 220 games and set an amazing record winning 201 and losing 19. This record was accomplished against many of the strongest male teams in the nation.

Miss Walker has the answer and it's one of the reasons for the Travelers tremendous success as the top girls basketball team.

"Condition," says Miss Walker, "The girls are in tip-top condition from the beginning of the season through the end over a six-month period."

Actually the girls are prime athletes who've had many seasons of basketball experience. They've learned the art of pacing themselves, going full steam during a drive and slacking up while executing a particularly intricate pass pattern.

They have also learned the art of relaxing under pressure, a test of true ability. Each girl, in her own right is a top-notch athlete, not only possessed with a knack for basketball but with the ability to excel in other sports.

The team travels in a specially built station wagon and is probably the best dressed team on the road. They stay in the best hotels and motels, eat the best food and literally live and breathe basketball for six-months each year.

Florida Silver Gloves Crowns Brought to Benning By Boxers

The post Boxing Team brought back the Florida Silver Gloves Championship to Fort Benning recently.

They won the Team Championship, the Open Division and runner-up honors in the Novice Division.

In the Open Division, Charles "Tank" Garlington KO'ed James Ellis, Bolling Air Force Base, for the heavyweight crown; Melvin Lonas flattened Robert Sutton, Donaldson Air Force Base, for the light heavyweight title and Douglas Johnson won the featherweight championship on a forfeit.

In the Novice Division, Benning's Leon Clark copped the heavyweight crown, and Amos Crumbley took the light heavyweight championship. Crumbley also was awarded the Most Outstanding Fighter Award in the novice division.

Today's Sportrait

Today's Sportrait spotlights Pvt. Allen W. Everhart, Company B, 1st Battalion, Infantry Center Troop Command, from Thomasville, N. C.

Everhart, a member of the Baltimore Colts, has had a colorful football career.

He picked football as his favorite sport while in High School. He played four years of high school football before entering Applachian State Teacher College. Everhart played a total of 37 games while in college and was named the Most Valuable Player his fourth year.

Everhart had three offers to play professional football before signing as a free agent with the National Football League, Baltimore Colts. Others offers were from the Buffalo Bills, and the Edmonton Eskimos in the Canadian League.

After four weeks with the Colts in spring training, he received a call to go into the Army.

Pvt. Everhart

He took basic training at Fort Jackson. After basic training he was transferred to Benning in time to join the Doughboy team and help his teammates on to a 6-4 record.

Pvt. Everhart plans to see action again this season with the Doughboys. He hopes to be relieved from the services in time to join the Colts for their 1963 spring training.

Everhart is assigned to Infantry Center Special Services, Athletic Department, as publicity clerk.

When asked how he felt about the Army interrupting his professional career, he said, "since military services is every American citizen's obligation, I'm glad it happened before I really got started." He also states he will get experience in the services helpful in his professional career.

HORSE AND CARRIAGE

A horse in Hillerod, Denmark, proved that some of today's cars are second best. The horse sat down on a passing miniature car which had stopped near a farm and then trotted off several minutes later. The driver had to abandon his car.

Better Bowling

Start Slow

Regardless of the number of steps you take, the first should start slow.

The procedure is this: Start with a fairly slow step and accelerate gradually and evenly as you move forward. Keep your eyes glued on the pins or the spot on the alley you want to hit.

Don't run. Be rhythmic and graceful.

End your footwork with a slide, releasing the ball without crossing the foul line.

Bike Championship

Bill Lawler of Fort Sill, Okla., a champion cyclist, averaged 500 miles per week pedaling his racing bike before entering the Army. He is preparing for the 1963 world bike championships to be held in Europe. Asked about the top speed of a pedaler, Lawler said, "The record (on a velodrome track) is 109 m.p.h. To attain such a speed, a cyclist rides a special bicycle with a 240 to 1 gear ratio and follows a racing car.

'Skippy' No Longer Salutes; But Continues 3-Legged Tours

By Sp4 Charles Godward

A globe-trotting 14-year-old fox terrier has traveled the width of the U. S., sailed across the Pacific Ocean to Japan and most recently pulled a tour of duty in Italy during his Army career, and all on three legs.

"Skippy" is owned by Sfc and Mrs. Ralph Stieglitz, now stationed here. His master is serving in the Adjutant General's Section of the Infantry Center.

Mrs. Stieglitz found Skippy lying by the side of the road at Pensacola, Fla., evidently the victim of a hit-and-run driver, and nursed him back to health. Skippy lost his left front leg as a result of this accident in March, 1949.

Soon after his recovery he began his travels, first to California by train, and then to Fort Lawton, in Seattle, when Sgt. Stieglitz was transferred there.

Skippy proved his merit as a watchdog one night to Seattle when Mrs. Stieglitz was suddenly awakened by a wet tongue licking her face and loud barks in her ear. The appartment house where they lived had caught fire, and because of Skippy's warning, Mrs. Stieglitz escaped without injury.

Mrs. Stieglitz, accompanied by Skippy, sailed to Japan in 1952 to join her husband who was then stationed in that country. She went with 15 cans of dog food for the trip, but arrived in Yokohama with 14 left for Skip dined on ship's fare of steak, veal and pork chops.

Four days out of port, Mrs. Stieglitz became ill with the measles. She was worried about Skippy, but the ship's captain housed him in his own cabin, and Skip finished the voyage there and on the ship's bridge.

Ordinarily animals are not allowed in Japanese homes, but while vacationing at a warm springs resort in the mountains, Skippy was allowed to enter, but since he couldn't leave his shoes outside, they wiped off his feet with a damp cloth.

The Stieglitz's children, Phillip, 9, and Linda, 8, were born in Japan. Shortly after Linda's birth they returned to the U.S. where Skippy put in his first tour at Fort Benning.

During his recent "duty" in Italy, Skip had a "Stieglitz Tour" visiting Austria and the Swiss Alps, barking furiously at the pigeons as he traveled down the Grand Canal in Venice in a gondola, and in Munich ate veal cutlet in the famous Rathskiller along with Doberman pinschers, boxers and German shepherds.

After eating like royalty throughout Europe, it was difficult satisfying Skippy with dog food. He is particularly fond of piazza.

When disembarking in New York on his recent return from Europe, he was, "due to his age," the purser said, first off the ship and down the gangplank as the band played "Napoleon's Retreat."

In spite of his age Skippy goes to class with Mrs. Stieglitz at the Adult Education Center in Columbus two evenings a week. Carrying the blanket he dozes on during the session, Skippy walks to the top of the stairs, stops, and looks up as if to say "Well!" so she will carry him down the two flights.

Although no longer able, Skippy, as befitting his military background, used to sit up and salute with his right paw as the colors went past during ceremonies and parades.

Skip seems to thoroughly enjoy military life and his travels and experiences could be the envy of many a less fortunate dog.

Iran Group Visits Post This Week

Major Gen. Ebrahim Zohdi, commanding general of the 6th Infantry Division, IV Corps, Iranian Army, visited facilities of the Infantry School Monday through Wednesday.

Gen. Zobdi was accompanied by Iranian Brig. Gen. Abbas Sadoughi, deputy commanding general of the 9th Division; Brig. Gen. Hossein Afsarinejad, artillery commander, III Corps; Brig. Gen. Hassan Raissian, deputy commander, 2nd Division, and Brig. Gen. Hossein Jahed-Motlaugh, assistant, Military University, Iran.

Their itinery included briefings on the organization and mission of The Infantry School, a rifle company in attack, leader's reaction course, Ground Mobility, Communications and Ranger Departments, preparatory marksmanship training methods and use of training aids, Air Force troop carrier aircraft familiarization, and watching a class in the firing of the 81-mm mortar.

To Pilot School

Sgt. Bobby D. Zimmerman, Battery B 29th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade, will attend Helicopter Pilot School at Fort Rucker. Upon successful completion of the course, he will be commissioned a warrant officer. Several months ago, Sgt. Zimmerman was an outstanding graduate of the Jungle Guerrila Warfare Course in the Panama Canal Zone.

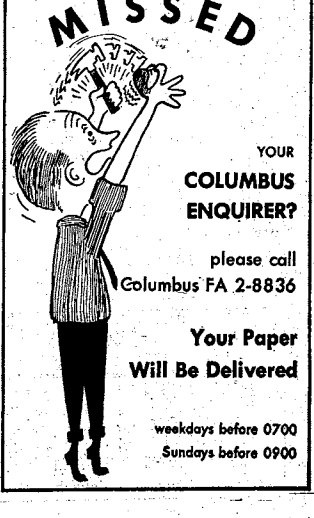
MILK FROM CARE

Babies born in Ecuador have less than a 50-50 chance to live beyond the age of five, with malnutrition a major cause of death. Through CARE's food crusade, powdered milk packages sent by Americans provide a daily cup of milk for 150,000 undernourished school children, mothers and infants.

Simplification Of Accounting Procedures Told

Members of the Armed Forces Management Association were told about the possible future of automatic data processing at Fort Benning at a luncheon meeting recently at the Custer Terrace Branch of the Main Officers' Mess.

Theo E. Posey, chief of the Automatic Data Processing Division, Comptroller's Office, The Infantry Center, said Fort Benning is working out systems that would greatly simplify accounting procedures in supply, finance and personnel.



Posey's remarks were preceded by a short film showing the various uses of electronic computers.

Presiding over the monthly meeting of the association was Ernuel Johnson, vice-president, in the absence of Col. Dale D. Dixon, president.

Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly, deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, was a special guest of the association.

BIG STORY

A man in Thorne, England, was cleared on a charge of failing to report an accident when he explained that the marks on his car were caused by an elephant that attacked it while he was in South Africa.

In Indiana Reserve Unit

Reservists Proud of Their 'Sense of Responsibility'

By Sfc George McBurney

The men of the 223rd Signal Company, an Army Reserve unit from Indiana recently called to active duty at Fort Benning in the Army's buildup program, have a deep sense of responsibility to their country, their commander declared recently.

"Their clear perception of their obligations at a time of danger is the main element in the company's high morale," Capt. John R. Kerr of Brownsburg, the unit commander, said. "Only shirkers would complain unjustly about the call-up."

Capt. Kerr, a graduate of Indiana State Teachers College at Terre Haute, is a former mathematics teacher at the Pike Township elementary school in Marion County.

Second Lt. Richard H. Carl, a platoon leader, agreed. "Many of our men had to make big sacrifices when they came on active duty.

"Some of them quit good paying jobs. Others had to sell their businesses, and a number of them left their families back home in Indiana. But not a man among our own Reservists uttered a word of complaint."

Lt. Carl pointed out that a number of men volunteered to join the 223rd after the unit had been alerted for the call to active duty. Some of the volunteers were former members of the company and wanted to rejoin it.

"Some other men who were without previous military service also wanted to join us. All of those fellows knew their moral obligations to their country," he said.

The volunteers didn't get in, however. After the company was alerted, admittance to the 223rd was closed.

Lt. Carl, 29, a native of Buffalo, N.Y., is a highly versatile officer. Drafted into the Army in 1952 after two years of physical education study at Purdue University, he was sent to Korea where he joined the 45th Infantry Division in combat.

"I was lucky, all right," he said. "An enemy mortar shell landed about three feet in front of me but didn't explode—it was a dud."

The lieutenant, who entered the army as a private, became a corporal in 28 days in Korea. In January, 1954, he was discharged as a sergeant.

A year later he reentered Purdue with the intention of becoming an engineer. In 1959 Carl graduated with a degree in mechanical engineering and the commission of second lieutenant in the Army Reserve.

He is now the officer in charge of repair of the 223rd's photographic, radar, electronic and airplane navigational equipment. "We are the 'catch all' platoon," he said with a grin.

Lt. Carl and his wife, Mary Jo, a graduate of Indiana State Teachers College, plan to stay in the south or move to the west when he ends his tour of Army duty. Mrs. Carl is presently teaching speech and English at Columbus High School.

Several members of the 223rd Signal Company do not plan to return to Indiana when they complete their military service. Some will apply for active Army duty. Others will move on to Florida.

A former news writer and photographer for the Indianapolis News, Lt. Carl, the 223rd's public information officer, explained the unit's mission. "We can operate a signal supply depot for an entire Army area. Although in wartime we would be attached to a signal battalion, we are now a self-sufficient unit which can operate alone for a limited time."

Now well along in its third month of training, the 223rd provides its men with on-the-job training with The Infantry Center Signal Section, instruction in the use of the .50 caliber machine gun, physical training, defense against chemical, biological and nuclear warfare and the reporting of casualties.

Sixteen of its men are attending the Signal Repair School at Fort Gordon, where they are learning the intricacies of Army signal duties.

The 223rd's first sergeant, Joseph L. Thomas of Indianapolis, said the morale of the unit is very good. "It is much better than some people may think. Our men are proud to be with the company. In 1960 we received the rating of superior in performance of duty by the Fifth Army Evaluator. So why shouldn't our men be glad to be with the company?"

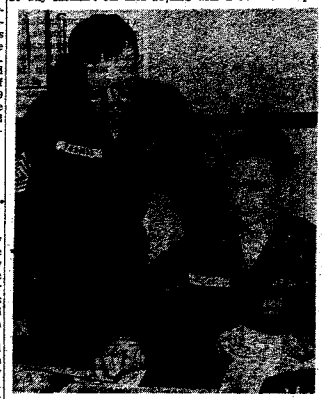
The unit's morning report clerk, SP5 Ronald Rash of Indianapolis, has learned there is a big difference between making the morning reports in the summer camp and at Fort Benning.

"At our summer training at Camp McCoy, Wisc., I made the morning report only once, at the end of our 15-day training period," he said. "But now that we are on active duty, I have to make the report every day. There is no problem, though."

Thanks to the efforts of a few men with a flair for carpentry work, the 223rd has an attractive mess hall where the unit's cooks prepare meals. Before the arrival of the 223rd, the mess hall was in run-down condition from lack of use. It had been used only by the Reserve Officers Training Corps during the summer.

Undaunted, some of the men began the job of renovating it. They found pine wood, cut it and paneled the interior of the building.

Not to be outdone by their husbands, the wives provided the mess hall with table cloths and curtains. Then the men bought decorative colored plants to brighten the atmosphere and make a more homelike appearance.



SpS Oscar Boyd of Pittsboro, a cook, said, "Our mess hall is now cozy, but the best thing about it is the food. The men really go for it."

Boyd and another cook, SP5 Everett L. Alexander, also of Pittsboro, were partners in a photography business in their home town before being called to active duty.

Why are they cooks instead of photographers? "We volunteered for the job," he replied. "A cook's job is the best in the Army. Good cooks are appreciated, too."

Sfc Charles Walker of Indianapolis, also a cook, joined the 223rd in March, 1956—and promptly volunteered as a cook. He is a former cement paving contractor.

Sgt. Arlan L. Hunt of Brownsburg, unit motor sergeant, described the spirit of the company when he said, "We knew when we joined that we might be called to active duty. Now that we have been, we are getting good training and valuable experience. That's why our esprit de corps is high."

Service Club 1 Has Plan To Help March of Dimes

Glenda G. James, club director of Service Club 1, has come up with a plan to support this year's March of Dimes drive at the post.

Miss James designed a replica of the U. S. Each state has a receptable for collecting dimes and dollars throughout the March of Dimes drive.

This box was built in the club by Sfc William H. Grizzard. The top of the box which measures 4' x 4' is a map of the U. S. Each serviceman can select his state or states to make his contribution to the drive.

As the drive gets underway, the progress of each state's contributions will be charted on the March of Dimes graph.

This is one of many projects since Miss James was assigned as club director in June, 1961.

LOTS OF FOOD

During fiscal year 1962, over 43,600 tons of food will reach hungry people in 17 countries as gifts from Americans through CARE's Food Crusade.

Masquers--Unmasked

The Masquers, Fort Benning's Little Theater group, is presently in the process of changing locations from their old home to Buildig 2519, adjacent to the Quartermaster Laundry on Main Post.

The building to serve as the new home of the Masquers, long used for storage purposes, is being reconstructed inside and out to fit the needs of the theater group. It will also be used for all other post activities which can utilize it.

The old building used by the Masquers, in the Old Hospital Area, is being torn down.

Members Welcome

New members are welcome to the Masquers group. Membership is open to all members of the military, their dependents and civilian employees on post. Experience in the theater is not necessary.

Acting, directing, back stage work, make up, and set design are all areas open for interested people.

There will be a general meeting of all those interested at the new building, Wednesday, February 7, at 7:30 p.m. Building 2519 is located just off Indianhead Road, near the Quartermaster Laundry. There will be directional signs to the building.

The Planning Committee is presently planning on a comedy for the next production. This production may be done "in the round" if the enlarged stage is not ready in time.

Infantry Chorus Needs Additional Singers for Goal

The Fort Benning Infantry Chorus, one of the post's oldest musical groups, needs additional singers to bring it up to 40 voices.

The all-male chorus performs for official functions and presentations.

Anyone interested in joining the group is asked to telephone Pvt. Robert Binkley, director, at 545-5641.

Center on Post Provides Realistic Training Aids

By Sfc George McBurney

A young soldier on combat maneuvers on the post not long ago suffered a simulated serious abdominal wound.

As he toppled to the ground and lay inert, "blood" began to spurt from the laceration with each beat of his heart. Death appeared to be only moments away.

Medical aidmen called to the scene quickly placed the "wounded" man on a stretcher and rushed him in an ambulance to the post hospital. On the operating table the victim continued to lose "blood" rapidly.

Seeing the spurting "blood," the doctors realized to save his life they would have to stop the flow and give him a quick transfusion. Hastily setting up the apparatus, they made ready to pump life-saving blood into the "dying" soldier.

By then the victim decided the situation had gone far enough. He jumped up from the operating table and exclaimed, "That's enough. I'm not hurt at all. This blood is only colored liquid and my wound is just part of the training maneuvers."

He unfastened his clothing and removed a war-wound monlage, which resembled perfectly an abdominal wound, that was attached to his body under his fatigues.

From the moulage a tube extended to a liquid-filled rubber bulb he had concealed in his hand. By gently squeezing the bulb at intervals he had made himself "bleed" so realistically that he fooled the medics.

"On your way, soldier, get going," a medic growled.

The moulage, made of tinted rubber, was only one of a kit of 20 provided by the Third Army Training Aids Center to simulate war wounds.

Major Robert H. Schaffer, Training Aids Center officer, said, "The moulages are highly valuable in training Army medics."

"We also have a dyed plastic reproduction of a human torso which contains the major parts of the anatomy from the abdomen to the head," he added. "These segments, all fitted compactly into their proper places, can be removed for study by medical aidmen. The medics get a clear insight of so they may someday be able to save lives."

The Center also provides a doll for training medics in applying bandages, giving medical shots and moving an injured or wounded bed patient.

Personnel of the Center do not conduct the training but give instruction in the use of the materials.

"Our job is to provide the articles and show the training instructors how to use them in their units," Major Schaffer said.

Established in 1951 by the Department of the Army, the Center's mission is to provide quickly upon call training aids to units of the Regular Army, Reserves, National Guard and Reserve Officers Training Corps.

In the intervening years the Center has grown to the status of supplying training aids for all Third Army units in southern Mississippi and Alabama, southwestern Georgia and the northwestern panhandle area of Florida.

"We also provide training aids for Boy Scout and Girl Scout units at Fort Benning," Major Schaffer observed.

The aids, which must be portable, are limited to articles used solely for training requirements. They include, in part, instructional posters which support supply economy, military courtesy and discipline, troop information, safety and recruiting.

Classroom items such as lecterns from which training instructors give their talks and displays, sand tables used as simulated combat areas and portable mock-ups also are provided by the Center.

"The Center has the responsibility of aiding and advising unit commanders and instructors in the selection and use of the training aids," Major Schaffer said.

"We have our work cut out for us, all right," he continued. "We supply 191 units at Fort Benning with just about all kinds of training aids, and 226 off-post units. That's a total of 417 groups we supply."

To obtain the training aids for distribution, the Center often taps its own resources, a model shop in which it makes minor metal and major wooden items with modern machines and tools.

The Center also gets many training aids from the Department of the Army, the Naval Training Device Center at Port Washington, N.Y., such technical services as quartermaster, engineers, medical, ordnance and from other Third Army training centers.

An oddity of the model shop is a mortising machine that cuts square holes in wood with a round revolving drill inside an outer square drill. As the round drill bores into the wood, the square drill neatly cuts the quadrilateral hole.

A visiting colonel from Germany once became so interested in the mortising machine that he operated it an hour before satisfying his curiosity.

The Center also produces many thousands of transparencies each year. Some master transparencies are made in the post photo laboratory, then are reproduced by the Center's ammonia - type processing machine.

Stock items, such as simulated missiles, field telephones and weapons built to scale, miniature forests and radar equipment are made in the Center's model and art shops.

Major Schaffer makes the requisitions and purchases the materials for the Center. If the acquisition is by purchase, it is bought from local off-post concerns. If it is by requisition, it is ordered from the appropriate technical service or from the Naval Training Device Center.

Major Schaffer can approve orders and requisitions for items costing up to $250. Items costing more must be approved by the Third Army.

Many of the Center's training aids are built of wood.

"We have cut our hard wood from trees on the post at times instead of buying it," Major Schaffer said. "In December, 1960, we cut 2,000 board feet of lumber, with the permission of the post engineers, and saved the Government $1,200."

"We buy all our highest quality lumber, however," he added. It costs more than second quality wood but there is no waste in it like knots and checks and it isn't warped.

THREE-TO-ONE SIZE TELEPHONE TRAINING AID Is Shown By Major Shaffer of The Training Aids Center

An unusual feature of the Center is a telephone reel and plug-in connection used for powering hand-operated tools. Attached to one end of the reel, which was scrounged from an obsolete tank turret trainer, the connection can be moved about freely over a wide area in the shop wherever the model makers are working.

"This device eliminates the need of connection sockets in the wall," Major Schaffer pointed out.

Since Major Schaffer arrived at the Center in February, 1958, he has greatly enhanced the safety factor and the ease of working conditions. He had two doors in the model shop enlarged to facilitate the duties of the workmen.

He also installed two other doors on the Center's porch to aid in pick-ups and deliveries.

"In the graphics and devices division we removed half the wooden posts to enable our workmen to move about more freely," he said. "Then we reinforced the remaining wooden beams to increase their safety. And we added more lights so our men can see better."

The over-all efficiency of the Center has improved considerably in recent years. In the annual inspections by the post inspector general, the Center has received four consecutive ratings of "Superior."

The Center's spray paint booth has a six foot wall of cascading water which traps all excess spray paint, lacquer and varnish and contains it in a water trough 18 inches deep, three feet wide and 18 feet long.

A large fan mounted atop the paint booth draws the paint fumes up and out of the booth through a vent in the ceiling. In testing the air in the booth, the medics use an instrument that measures any impurities present.

To be safe for breathing, the air must be 92 per cent pure. The waterfall and the fan insure that it is. The spray painters do not need respirators.

The Center produces colored training charts and posters in its areas of responsibility. After the desired design is adhered to a silk screen, the painter, known in Army parlance as a silk screen operator, draws a paint squeegee over the prepared screen to produce the poster.

The Center can make the posters and designs on masonite, metal, paper, wood or any other flat surface material like cloth or canvas.

This silk screen process is one of the top attractions to the 75 to 100 visitors from Allied nations who visit the Center each year.

"We have a 50-minute briefing period for the visiting officers and non-commissioned officers," Major Schaffer said. "Then we take them on a tour of the Center. All of them are highly interested in what we are doing."

The recently arrived Reserve and National Guard units also have shown great interest in the training aids and are using them to carry out their assigned missions.

Pfc Johnson W. Ku is a draftsman at the Center. He came to the U. S. with his parents in 1950 from Wusih in East China.

A 1956 graduate of the University of Pennsylvnia, a bachelor of architecture degree, he said of his job, "I couldn't ask for a better assignment in the Army than this one."

Other operators of the Center include Richard L. Hale supply division supervisor; Mrs. Archie E. Hatfield, chief clerk; Marvin B. Moore, device division supervisor, and William B. Webb, graphics division supervisor.

PROGRESS . . . Pfc David Kissel (R) is congratulated by Col. Lawrence S. Reynolds, commander of the 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, for completing his first year of college through correspondence studies. Also congratulated was Sfc Julian Jewell, who completed his GED test for high school honors. Col. Reynolds presented seven Driver Badges and four Mechanics Badges also during the recent ceremonies at battle group headquarters. All are members of the 72nd Engineers, assigned to the unit.

Chaplain's Corner

By Chap. (Lt. Col.) Bernard M. Burns

One of the most difficult-to-control members of our body is also one of the smallest. Even the strongest of men have difficulty checking the tongue, that little part capable of imparting joy, consolation and encouragement, when used judiciously; yet instrumental in causing pain, hatred and sadness, when unbridled.

Even as much labor must be expended in controlling a horse unused to the bit, so to gain the mastery over the tongue requires a great deal of effort of the individual as well as the requested help of God.

From the Bible, Epistle of St. James, chapter three, verses two to nine, we have a few points concerning this: "If any man offend not in word, he is a perfect man. He is able also with a bridle to lead about the whole body. Behold how a small fire kindleth a great wood. And the tongue is a fire, a world of iniquity. But the tongue no man can tame, an unquiet evil, full of deadly poison. By it we bless God and the Father; and by it we curse men who are made after the likeness of God."

What prompts the activity of an evil tongue? Perhaps just a mental weakness, often a lack of proper vocabulary, sometimes moral depravity, sometimes the desire to heighten one's standing or enhance one's chances by fabricated comparison. Whatever be the root of the evil, we Americans, who are known for our high sense of fairness and justice, should in each individual case make the necessary effort to bridle our tongues.

A person of character always will guard the tongue. Edmund Burke, the great English statesman, said this of his wife, who was not beautiful but was charming: "It is not the things she does that attract and win so much as the things she refrains from doing."

The rule of never saying anything about anybody, if nothing good can be mentioned in his behalf, will prevent much harm and pay rich dividends with God and man.

Colonel Carran Is Deputy Chaplain At Infantry Center

Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Edward A. Carran has been named as the deputy Infantry Center Chaplain.

He came to the post in June, 1960, from an assignment in Germany. He has served as post Catholic chaplain and as Infantry Center chaplain.

Chaplain Curran received a bachelor of arts degree from Holy Ghost Missionary College in Cornwell Heights, Pa. He entered active service in Cambridge, Mass.

Physical Training Plan Implemented for Pilots

Col. Curtis L. Hankins, commanding officer of Lawson Army Aviation Command, has implemented a vigorous physical training program for all assigned aviators.

The program is designed to insure that each pilot attains and maintains a high standard of physical fitness commensurate with his age.

Army aviators know that any flight which begins as a routine mission may end up as a quest for survival, where physical stamina and endurance are essential.

At the present time, all of the LAAC aviators are preparing for the Physical Combat Proficiency Test. This is a relatively new Army test and replaces the old Physical Training Test.

The test emphasizes agility and endurance by testing such basic combat skills as running, jumping, crawling and throwing. The administration of this test will be followed by a continuing active PT program.

PRACTICE . . . Major Lawrence J. Flannagan, airfield operations officer at Lawson Army Aviation Command, practices for upcoming physical test.

Lt. Moore Teaches Science of Physics

Second Lt. Barry H. Moore, executive officer of Battery A, 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade, is teaching the science of physics at the post facilities of American University. Mathematics and physics were his majors in undergraduate studies at Mercer University at Macon, and in graduate studies at the University of Georgia, Athens.

Ex-Benning General Pays Visit

Major Gen. Stanley R. Larsen, commander of the XXI Army Corps, Indiantown Gap, Pa., visited The Infantry School Monday through Wednesday.

Gen. Larsen, assistant commandant of the school from July, 1957, to August, 1959, became the youngest general in the Army when he was promoted to brigadier general in July, 1956.

His itinerary included visits with Major Gen. Ben Harrell, commandant of The Infantry School, and Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles, Jr., assistant commandant, and briefings on the reorganization of Army divisions and on infantry combat developments.

Gen. Larsen also attended an official dinner in honor of Edward L. Katzenbach, Jr., deputy assistant secretary of defense for manpower and education, Washington, D. C., Tuesday evening.

Col. Miles Attends Electronic Course At Fort Huachuca

A post officer is attending an orientation course on electronic equipment today through Tuesday at Fort Huachuca, Ariz.

Lt. Col. James S. Miles departed the post yesterday for the briefing.

He is chief of the Applied Communications Committee of The Infantry School Communications Department.

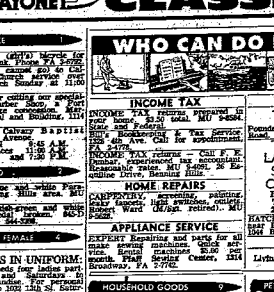
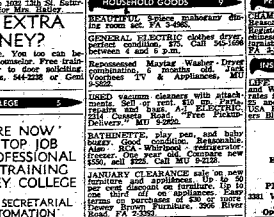
58th Infantry Wins Brigade Firing Events

The 1st Infantry Brigade Rifle, Pistol and Automatic Rifle Matches were recently concluded with the 58th Infantry scoring major victories in all three events. The Infantry Trophy Match was copped by the 10th Artillery.



In the rifle matches, the 58th Infantry scored the top team victory with a 1409-61V. The 10th Artillery tabbed runners-up position with 1366-56V.

High individual scores were made by Sgt. Marvin Warren, Company D, 69th Armor, with a 53-464V in the open class; and Sgt. Jessie Perez, Company A, 58th Infantry, with a 612-35V in the novice.



The Infantry Trophy Match was taken by the 10th Artillery team with a 669. The match consisted of four stages including 600 yards, 500 yards, 300 yards and 200 yards.

The 58th Infantry swept the Automatic Rifle Matches with its team tallying 1461-73V. A score of 1438-53V placed the 29th Infantry second. Members of the winning 58th Infantry were Sp4 James L. Spence and Sp4 Michail Janoczkin.

The Pistol Matches found the 58th Infantry once again in the lead. The 58th's Blue Team scored a 2163-45X for first berth. 2117-37X netted the 29th Infantry the runners-up position.

Sergeant Scores 1,000 For CBR Course Record

For the first time in the seven-year history of The Infantry Center's Chemical, Biological and Radiological School, a soldier has made a perfect score in training tests.

Sgt. Robert J. Baker set the record by getting all of the 1,000 possible points in the school's nine graded exercises conducted by the post Chemical Section. Only 700 points are needed to pass the course.

Baker, a member of Headquarters Company, 2nd Infantry Division, is a squad leader in the security platoon.

The son of Leonard L. Baker of Chadwick, Mo., he entered the Army in March, 1956. Before arriving here in November, 1960, he served four years with the 8th Infantry Division in Germany.

The CBR course consists of 80 hours of instruction and training. The Chemical Section conducts 16 of these courses yearly, five for officers and 11 for non-commissioned officers.

Attending the classes are men from The Infantry Center, 2nd Division, Third Army Reserve units and Fort Rucker.

Attendance is required of company commanders, platoon leaders, platoon sergeants and first sergeants of CBR defense units.

Instructors at the CBR school include 1st Lt. Joseph T. Branan, 1st Lt. Ernest P. Gulledge Jr., Sgt. Arturo Santiago — Hernandez, Sgt. John Garrison and 2nd Lt. Anthony V. Bastiani.

13 Post Officers Get Degrees Via 'Bootstrap'

Thirteen Fort Benning officers received degrees from the University of Omaha, Neb., at the university's midyear commencement last Saturday.

Of these, 10 were awarded degrees in general education. Three received degrees in military science through the College of Applied Arts.

The officers are among 234 Army career personnel who have been attending the university under "Operation Bootstrap."

The Fort Benning officers who received BS degrees in general education are Lt. Cols. Arsene P. Bonifas, Curtis Livingston and Jack Samson; Majors Edward Carroll, Elmer D. Spence and Leo D. Turner; Capts. William C. Glisson, Benjamin F. Harden, Robert T. Hayden and Manfred Kelman.

Those who received BS degrees in military science include Capts. Peter Petersen, Dean. G. Potter and Edward J. Vaughn.

VOL. 20, NO. 22 — FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 9, 1962 — FORT BENNING, GA. — 28 Pages — 5c

On Chattahoochee

New Bridge To Replace Old Pontoon

One of Fort Benning's most historic landmarks, the old pontoon bridge which spans the Chattahoochee River, will be replaced by a new permanent structure.

The pontoon bridge, which connects 82nd Airborne Division Rd. on the Georgia side of the reservation with 101st Airborne Division Rd. on the Alabama side, will be eliminated next year.

Bids by contractors for construction of the new bridge will open February 20. The work will begin in March. Brandon Kneller, resident engineer of the Savannah District, said the construction should be completed in 360 days.

Civil Works Funds

The permanent structure, which will be built with civil works funds, will be erected in connection with the building of the Walter F. George reservoir at Fort Gaines, named for Sen. George of Georgia who died in August, 1957.

When completed, the new bridge will be 702 feet long and will have a 29-foot wide runway. It will contain some 256,000 pounds of reinforcing steel and about 2,000 cubic yards of concrete.

It also will have some half million pounds of structural steel. Designed for pool elevation of 172.8 feet above sea level, it will have an ordinary high water figure of 194 feet. Clearance under the bridge at the high water point will be 57.31 feet.

Further Downstream

The new bridge will be built a half mile downstream from the present pontoon bridge, and will be constructed under the Georgia State Highway specifications for interstate bridges, Kneller said.

When the Chattahoochee River is high and the Walter F. George reservoir, when completed, fills up, the river will be navigable.

The gross length of the bridge will be one and three tenths miles. The road leading to the new bridge will branch off from Dixie Rd. on the Georgia side of the post and from 101st Airborne Division Rd. on the Alabama side.

The pontoon bridge, which is operated by the 586th Engineer Float Bridge Company, was authorized for use at the post in 1942. It will remain in place until the new bridge is completed.

1-Year GED Test Will Be Discontinued

Discontinuance of the one year College GED (General Education) test is practically a certainty and all qualified personnel are urged to take the test, or complete parts of the test or retest if needed and not already completed, post education authorities said.

No date for discontinuance has been set, but the education officer for The Infantry Center Educational Development Section, Leonard S. Ozley, stated it will be in the near future.

Successful passage of the test enables the prospective college enrollee to skip the first year of college. The test is recognized by over 150 colleges and universities throughout the country.

Personnel who have graduated from high school and have not finished a year of college are eligible to take the test. Personnel who completed high school by GED test are eligible providing none of their scores were below 45.

Ozley urged officers, warrant officers, officer candidates and warrant officer applicants who have not completed their two-year Department of the Army evaluation to take the test without delay.

It consists of four parts and covers social studies, literature, mathematics and natural sciences. Each portion of the test takes approximately two hours.

In 57 MOSs

Reserve Component; ROTC Tours Open

Assignments with Reserve and ROTC components within the Third Army Area are open in 57 MOSs, according to a Third Army letter released last month.

The letter lists specific assignments, with grade and MOS, in Alabama, Florida, Mississippi, Georgia, North and South Carolina and Tennessee.

Should a particular assignment be filled at the time of application in one of the 57 MOSs, the application will be retained until a suitable opening occurs, the letter states.

Two specific vacancies are in grade E-8, and numerous listings call for E-4. All grades from E-3 to E-6 are acceptable for the openings indicated, provided individuals fit other requirements for Reserve component and ROTC assignments.

Personnel sections can provide further information for those interested.

MOSs in which applications may be made are: 111, 112, 113, 115, 121, 123, 131, 133, 141, 147, 151, 153, 191, 192, 194, 294, 296, 311, 312, 313, 420, 421, 422, 423, 424, 425, 518, 534, 555, 565, 612, 621, 622, 630, 631, 636, 685, 689, 643, 671, 675, 679, 711, 712, 716, 717, 719, 721, 727, 760, 763, 764, 765, 768, 911, 941 and 951.

Prompt Action By Two Helps Save Baby's Life

Fast action on the part of an officer's wife and a Ranger Department non-commissioned officer have been credited with a major role in saving the life of a 14-month old baby last week.

Timothy W. Allred, son of Sgt. and Mrs. Guy E. Allred, of 3002 Blan St., suddenly stopped breathing as a result of what doctors later described as a form of convulsions at about 6:30 p.m. January 31.

Though Muscogee County Fire Chief L. I. Booth and his rescue squad, as well as city police officers, arrived "in no time at all," according to Sgt. Allread, initial action credited by doctors as being instrumental in saving the baby's life was performed by Mrs. Clifford Browning, wife of a post first lieutenant, and MSgt Julius Glenn of the 44th Ranger Company.

The two performed artificial respiration and mouth-to-mouth ressuitation on the infant before arrival of the rescue squad with its resistator.

On arrival at The Medical Center, the baby had resumed breathing.

Dignitaries Attend 10th OC Award

Mrs. Patterson Presents Award to Lt. John Hayes

A 19-gun salute welcomed Secretary of the Army Elvis J. Stahr, Jr., when he escorted Mrs. Robert P. Patterson to the post for the annual Patterson Award presentation yesterday.

The salute was part of an honor guard ceremony at 10:30 a.m. at Lawson Army Airfield when Secretary Stahr and Mrs. Patterson of New York City, widow of the former secretary of war, arrived.

The award, made at 11 a.m. at The Infantryman Statue on Eubanks Field, recognized 2nd Lt. John H. Hayes of Clarksville, Tenn., and Fort Campbell, as the outstanding Infantry Officer Candidate school graduate of fiscal year 1960-61.

This was the 10th annual award honoring Secretary Patterson who was killed in a plane crash in 1952.

Dignitaries

Among the dignitaries attending the ceremony were Gen. Clark Ruffner, U.S. military representative to the Standing Committee, NATO, and Mrs. Ruffner.

Gen. Ruffner acted as official representative of the Army's chief of staff.

Others were Lt. Gen. T. J. H. Trapnell, commanding general of the Third Army, Fort McPherson; and Lt. Gen. Paul L. Freeman, Jr., deputy commanding general for Reserve Forces, Continental Army Command, Fort Monroe.

Major Gen. G. E. Martin, director of officer assignments, representing the Army deputy chief of staff for personnel, and Major Gen. Charles W. G. Rich, commanding general, 101st Airborne Division and Fort Campbell.

Four students at The Infantry School, Major Gen. James D. Edmundson, Headquarters, Air Force, Washington; Major Gen. Karl Truesdale, Jr., commanding general, 12th Air Force, Waco, Texas; Major Gen. Weston A. Willis, commanding general, 30th Infantry National Guard Division, Raleigh, N. C., and Major Gen. Henry K. Fluck, commanding general, 28th Infantry National Guard Division, Harrisburg, Pa., attended.

Other distinguished guests

were former Assistant Secretary of the Army Peter Finucane and his wife, and Mrs. Robert Jackson, widow of the Supreme Court justice.

Members of Secretary Stahr's staff attending the ceremony included Col. Harry W. O. Kinnard, executive; Lt. Col. John B. Wadsworth, military assistant; Major John R. Davies, aide, Mrs. Irene Getz, coordinator for the Patterson Award, and Mrs. Dorothy Haywood, secretary.

Official Luncheon

There was an official luncheon honoring Mrs. Patterson at 12 noon at the Supper Club of the Main Officers' Open Mess. Major Gen. Ben Harrell, commandant of The Infantry School, was host.

Secretary Stahr addressed members of the school's Infantry officer career classes at 1:15 p.m. in Theater 1. He spoke on "The Army's Role in National Defense."

He and Mrs. Patterson and other members of the official group from Washington departed at 2:30 p.m. from Lawson Field. There were departure honors for Secretary Stahr.

TOP SOLDIER . . Pfc Robert P. Lyons, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, The Student Brigade, was recently selected as the Soldier of the Quarter. Col. Otto R. Koch, Jr., TSE commander, presented Lyons with the Soldier of the Quarter Plaque and an electric razor at the Brigade headquarters.

DA Announces

Extended Overseas Tours To Phase Back to Normal

Army personnel overseas whose duty tours were extended last year for various lengths of time will return to the U. S. sooner than they expected, the Department of the Army has announced.

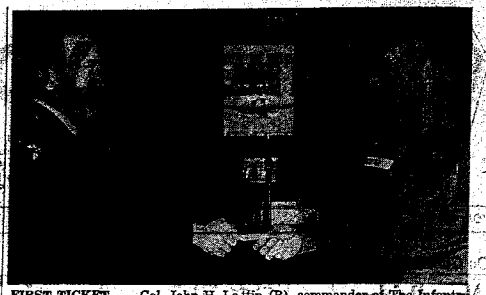
The phased cutbacks in the rotation dates will begin July 1. Personnel whose tours in Europe, Korea and certain other short tour areas will be retarded before their extended dates of return.

The rotation is phased so that by next December overseas tours will be in accordance with the original departure time of personnel affected.

The accelerated rotation will return many troops to stateside duty from one to six months ahead of their previously extended time of departure.

In long tour overseas areas, troops slated to return home in July will be rotated in July. Those who were to return in September and October will be on their way in August, and the November and December shipments wil embark in September.

The January and February, 1963, groups will leave their stations in October, while the March and April groups will depart in November.



By next December, personnel formerly scheduled to return in May and June, 1963, will be on their way home in the month their overseas tours were originally to end.

From Korea, a short tour area, personnel who were to return after being extended until July and the first half of August will leave in July.

For the remainder of August and September, returnees will depart in August, and those for October and the first half of November in September. The departure of troops formerly to return during the last part of November and in December will be moved up to October.

Personnel to come home in January and the first half of February, 1963, will have next November, and those who would not have left Korea until the last of February and in March, 1963, will leave in December, 1962.

In other short tour overseas areas, personnel scheduled to rotate, after being extended, next July and August, September and October, and November and December, will return in July, August and September, respectively.

FIRST TICKET . . . Col. John H. Lattin (R), commander of The Infantry Center Troop Command, buys the first ticket supporting CTC Organization Day festivities slated for February 24 from Capt. The Troop Command is an Infantry Center support organization comprised of administrative, Ordnance, and other support personnel.

Gen. Richardson Visits Benning For Briefings

At Fort Benning for a two-day briefing by The Infantry School's Combat Developments Office this week was Brig. Gen. Walter B. Richardson of the Army's Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for operations.

Gen. Richardson arrived at Lawson Army Airfield last Sunday and began his briefings Monday morning.

He attended an official luncheon at noon Monday.

Before leaving Fort Benning Tuesday, Gen. Richardson visited Major Gen. Ben Harrell, commandant of The Infantry School.

200 Boy Scouts Set For Sunday Services

Approximately 200 post Boy Scouts will attend the 9:30 a.m. worship service Sunday at The Infantry Center Protestant Chapel.

The service will commemorate the 52nd anniversary of the founding of Boy Scouts of America.

Expected to attend, in uniform, are members of six Cub Scout Packs, seven Boy Scout Troops and an Explorer Post.

The Scouts will participate in the processional and recessional.

They will be seated by troops in sections of the chapel reserved for them as guests of honor. Special recognition will be given to the Scouts from the pulpit and in the chapel bulletin.

A message on "What Are You Worth?" will be given by Chaplain (Col.) Silas E. Decker, Infantry Center chaplain.

Scout commissioner on the post is Lt. Col. Neil G. Stewart. He is assisted by volunteers who serve as scoutmasters, den mothers and committee members.

Fort Benning Scouts belong to the Upatoi District of the Georgia - Alabama Council, Boy Scouts of America, with headquarters in Columbus.

Scouting was originated in England in 1908 by Lt. Gen. Sir S. S. Esden-Powell, and has spread throughout the world. Today, more than a million boys in the U. S. participate in the program.

The U. S. National Council, Boy Scouts of America, has its headquarters in New Brunswick, N. J.

Data Processing Theme of AFMA Luncheon Meet

Electronic data processing was the theme of a luncheon meeting of the Armed Forces Management Association recently at the Custer Terrace Branch of the Main Officers' Open Mess.

A film on electronic data processing machines was shown.

Theo Posey spoke on the possible use of such machines in administrative and logistical operations on the post in the future.

Posey is chief of the Automatic Data Processing Division of The Infantry Center Comptroller's Office.

1st Brigade Honors Go To 2 Units

Battery B, 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade, was presented the battalion Honor Battery Streamer for the month of January.

Headquarters Battery was awarded the best mess plaque.

These awards are made monthly as the result of batteries vying for most outstanding unit in all activities including fund drives, soldiers deposits, off-duty education participation and training.

The presentation of the awards was made by 1Sgt Charles C. McLeod, battalion sergeant major, during a recent parade and honors ceremony led by the senior noncommissioned officers.

Accepting the streamer for Battery B was 1Sgt Lorenzo Colon; 1Sgt George Jenkins accepted the best mess plaque for Headquarters Battery.

Target: The World's Youth Explained in New TI Film

A new Troop Information film, "Communist Target-Youth" is available for showing to Fort Benning personnel. The film explains the techniques and methods used by the Communist to gain and wield control over the young people of the world.

Narrator Lt. Gen. Joseph F. Carroll, chief, Defense Intelligence Agency, enlarges upon the Communist strategy in reaching the young people within and outside Communist countries. Gen. Carroll emphasizes that the success or failure of the Communist battle for the hearts and minds of men lies with young Americans and the youth of the free world.

Techniques used to indoctrinate the youth of the U.S.S.R., Red China, and satellite nations in the concept of materialism are described. Communism in action is reviewed in uncommitted countries, in areas of unrest, and in the U.S. Cited are recent events in East Germany, Japan, Latin America; and the rioting against the UnAmerican Activities Committee in San Francisco.

It is shown how young people are influenced by means of direct control, mass emotional appeal, prostitution of education, international masquerade, scoffing at law, order and justice, "legitimate" infiltration, sharp reprisal and suppression of hope.

The film is 16mm in black and white, the running time is 34 minutes. The film may be reserved for major subordinate commands, by calling the troop information officer, USAIC, 545-2791.

SUBJECT: Participation in the Army Savings Program

TO: See Distribution

1. The Army Savings Program (US Savings Bonds and Soldiers Deposits) is recognized as a valuable and essential aid in helping to maintain the economy of the United States. At the same time it encourages the habit of thrift on the part of all Army personnel. In view of the high cost of government, including defense, the important role this program plays in the Nation's economy cannot be overemphasized. Equally important is the economic stability this program provides the individual. Unquestionably, a program that will further both of these objectives deserves the wholehearted support and full-time attention of all commanders.

2. US Army-wide the combined military and civilian participation rate in the Army Savings Program is still below the announced goal of a minimum of 65 percent. Fort Benning's current participation rate is 40.8 percent which is 16.2 percent below the last known Army-wide rate and 14.9 percent below the Third US Army Army-wide rate.

3. Circular 608-3, this headquarters, 1 July 1961, prescribes policy and provides guidance in the conduct of the Army Savings Program at Fort Benning. I desire that you give this worthy program your personal attention.

The Surgeon Says:

Diseases in Pets Endanger Family

By Sayers J. Boyd, Isl. Lt., VC

If you have a pet, or plan to get one soon, this article is especially for you. The major infectious diseases of dogs and cats are listed and described briefly, along with recommendations for their prevention.

All of the diseases are serious —can kill or permanently damage; two of them are dangerous and can infect humans (leptospirosis and rabies).

Distemper

Distemper in dogs is similar in many ways to the common cold in humans. Like colds, the virus of distemper is almost everywhere. Sooner or later, all dogs are exposed.

When their dog is coming down with distemper, pet owners sometimes think that it has "caught cold"; however, animals don't "catch cold" like humans and distemper, unlike colds, is often a killer.

The early signs of distemper are a tired, listless dog with poor appetite and a discharge from the eyes and nose. Even if your dog does not die from distemper, serious after effects, such as a twitch in one or more legs, may destroy its usefulness.

To prevent distemper, the dog must be immunized by vaccination. The temporary vaccinations, effective for ten to fourteen days, should begin during the pups sixth week of growth.

The first permanent vaccination is given between the ninth and twelfth week followed by a second vaccination at four months. This will provide maximum safety to your dog from distemper.

Hepatitis

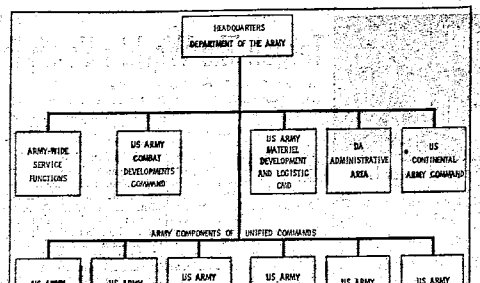
Infectious hepatitis resembles distemper in the early stages but develops much more rapidly and the dog either dies or recovers within about a week.

Vaccination is accomplished by use of a combination vaccine containing both distemper and hepatitis and the same schedule is followed as for distemper.

Leptospirosis

Leptospirosis is a kidney disease that is causing increasing concern in humans and dogs. Rats and dogs are common carriers spreading infection through the urine.

Early signs of leptospirosis are thirst and depression, and diarhea and vomiting with a fowl mouth odor later. Vaccination is suggested at the time of the second permanent distemper vaccination and immunity lasts for six months.



As this disease is a health hazard to the family, as well as the dog, vaccination is advise.

Rabis

Rabies is an incurable disease and as such must be prevented rather than cured. All mammals are believed to be susceptible. Transmission is effected only through the bite wound of an animal in the later stages of rabies.

If the animal was capable of transmiting rabies, it will die of the disease within

Gen., Mrs. Kelly Settle Stalemate By Entering Door

When the Georgia-Alabama Council of the Boy Scouts of America held their annual Appreciation Banquet at the Columbus Municipal Auditorium recently, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. John E. Kelly broke a tie and settled the question of a plaque award — just by walking in the door.

Frank Bonnell of the council was speaking about the attendance contest between Scout districts, with 142 present from the Cherokee District and 142 in attendance from the Upatoi District, when Gen. and Mrs. Kelly entered to make it 144 to 142 in favor of the Upatois.

The attendance Trophy, a bronze statue of a Boy Scout, was awarded to Upatoi District.

Guest speaker at the meeting was Dr. Robert Anderson of Auburn University.

Chaplain's Corner

By Chaplain (Capt.) Ralph C. Kutait

Every man witnesses to that in which he believes. In this case there are no neutrals. You are "pegged" as of a certain faith and you witness either for or against it.

It is sometimes hard for a person to realize this and sometimes harder to understand how he bears this witness. The obvious way to most men is the witness we bear where we speak as convincingly as possible to others about our faith. Yet in reality this is one of the minor ways and in many cases the least effective.

The most effective way is the "image" you present to your fellow man — the image that mirrors your faith. No matter how many pious and learned words you speak they are but a mockery if you do not live the faith you profess.

The ridicule that comes to the major faiths and denominations comes because individuals bear a witness that is contrary to the tenants they hold to be true. Jesus Christ called these people hypocrits.

The world judges our belief by the way we now act. It is obvious when thought over that this witness is individual to individual — race to race — nation to nation.

The love of God when preached is one thing. When put into effect with surliness, hatred, jealousies, lack of time for sympathy, etc., it becomes something else.

The laws, canons, confessions, traditions, and statements of faiths as pertaining to your faith are well and good when written down. But the breaking of these varied rules because of social expediency, lack of faith to carry them out, "what others will say," will make a mockery of, or at the most, a lukewarm witness to the faith you profess.

More than words are needed. Actions here speak louder than words. Rest assured that you are witnessing to your faith every minute of the day and night. Whether the witness is for or against what you profess to believe is up to you. You will bear witness. There are no neutrals.

Communists Are Playing A 'Wordsmanship' Game

Semantics, the science of meaning, is a favorite propaganda weapon of the Communists and one they employ with practiced cunning.

"The Soviets and ourselves give wholly different meanings to the same words: War, peace, democracy and popular will," observed President Kennedy after his Vienna meeting with Premier Khrushchev last June. Now Dr. Stefan T. Possony, director of International Studies at Stanford University's Hoover Institute, has made a study of what he calls Communist "wordsmanship" for the Senate Internal Security subcommittee which elaborates on the President's point.

"The weapon of words," says Dr. Possony, "is more subtle and less immediately destructive than the atomic bomb but, just like the winds and the seas which can hollow out the hardest rock, it has the power of eroding society."

Take, for example, that much-abused word capitalism — in Soviet semantics a system in which property holders make the laws to acquire maximum profits at the expense of the exploited masses. We know the definition is preposterous, and indeed so do the men in the Kremlin, for after more than 40 years the most impressive economic goal they can offer their people is "to reach and overtake the United States."

Another duality in semantics is negotiation. We see it as an exchange of value for value, a willingness to compromise. But to the Soviets, says Dr. Possony, it is "a conflict technique to facilitate conquest on the installment plan."

There are countless other examples. The vigilance based on profound skepticism." For never was it more essential than now that Americans — especially those of us in uniform—be alert to semantic tricks in the utterances of Communist leaders that can be detected for what they are usually are—double-talk." Reserve Engineer Battalion Proud of WW II Record

Unit Has Veteran Corps Of Experienced Leaders

By MSgt Charles A. Quinn

The 489th Engineer Battalion, an Army Reserve organization on active duty at Fort Benning, is the descendant of a long line of combat engineer units.

Commanded by Lt. Col. Frank R. Allen, Jr., former industrial engineer of Pine Bluff, Ark., the battalion's home station, the Army Reserve organization can trace its battle lineage back through the early years of the war in the Pacific where it fought in the western campaigns.

In addition to the battle honors won, the battalion earned the Meritorious Unit streamer for its combat engineer operations in the Ryukus campaign.

Has Veterans

Although 16 years have passed since the Arkansas unit returned from the Pacific, it still has a large cadre of seasoned officers and senior non-commissioned officers who are guiding the outfit into its fourth month of active duty at The Infantry Center.

SMaj. Leland D. Russ of Pine Bluff, flicked the left sleeve of his blouse where a string of service stripes denoted nearly 20 years of military duty.

A supply technician with the Army Reserve in Arkansas, the 489th's top enlisted man said each of the organization's companies was staffed by many veteran Reservist non-coms who were also approaching the two-decade mark in uniform.

Today the organization is deep in a solid program of training dictated by the terse mission outlined in its TO and E: "To increase combat efficiency of corps and Army by means of general engineer operations."

Capt. Guy H. Gwinn's Headquarters Company from Pine Bluff is handling the administrative end of the active duty tour while the battalion's three "line" companies are engaged in a double-pronged training schedule.

Field Training

Company A, from Hot Springs, Ark., Company B from Malvern and Company C from Little Rock had recently finished a tour of field training.

"The field work was in the nature of a tactical exercise," MSgt Bob F. Underwood of Pine Bluff, battalion operations sergeant, said.

Despite heavy rains, he said, the exercise came off without a hitch.

"Since our arrival at The Infantry Center," Capt. Frank D. Neighbors of Little Rock, Arkansas state civil engineer, said, "we've sent a dozen men out for advanced training while as many more are at other posts completing six - month training tours."

The balance of the 489th's men, the operations and training officer said, have built float bridges and timber trestle bridges across post streams and ravines.

Where Infantrymen once had to contend with dozens of smaller road washouts, they now found skillfully constructed log box culverts capable of withstanding the crushing weight of the heaviest tanks.

Families Here

Capt. Jack C. Davis, Little Rock district fire chief now commanding Company C, said 18 of his men had their families with them and that there was a possibility of more wives and children coming to the Columbus area.

"To cope with the many swift changes now occuring," he said of military planning, "it is necessary for all of us to learn to bend with the punches."

Attached to The Infantry Center's 151st Engineer Group, the 489th is comprised of foresters, salesmen, mechanics, contractors, U. S. Post Office Department employees and scores of others.

"You name 'em — we got 'em," was the way MSgt Louis C. Maus of Hot Springs, put it.

Unit operations sergeant, the former employee of a southern telephone company said many of his men had backgrounds directly connected with engineer operations.

"On the other hand," he said, "you may find that our best demolitions man was an accountant back home or that a top bulldozer operator had never driven anything more than the family car before joining the 489th."

Highly Skilled

The battalion's past battle record will reveal that the combat engineer has to be highly skilled in both the engineer and Infantry fields. A platoon may be sent out in front of the Infantry to provide bridging over a key ravine for the attacking Doughboys only to wind up doing the attacking themselves, according to Capt. Neighbors.

For this reason, he said, the battalion's training schedules were more than full. He added that every man in the battalion was fast learning the tricks of modern combat engineering.

The heavy schedules were not so heavy, however, the battalion S-3 said, that the men of the 489th couldn't get home for the holidays.

Schedules were adjusted, he said, to permit one half the battalion to enjoy Christmas at home while the other half spent New Year's with their families and friends.

The 489th was activated at Pine Bluff October 15 and, on October 19, its heavy equipment was rolling through the main gates of The Infantry Center.

Today, as the organization from Arkansas enters its fourth month of active duty, it is ready for any eventuality.

Adopted Korean Orphans Tell Sponsors of Goals

To grow up an honest, fine person is the goal of one of two Korean orphan boys sponsored by the Main Post Sunday School.

The second boy vows to study hard and repay his benefactors someday.

Kim Jung Han is eight years old. He and his mother live at Peace Home in Pusan.

"We lived a very poor life but now our family is comfortable since we came to the home," Kim wrote. "I am attending school and am doing my best in study. I will try to become an honest fine person. Please pray for me always."

Twelve-year-old Daek Nam Jin lives in the Children's Home at Shung Hae.

"Please love me much," is the plea of this boy.

"I will study very hard, in good health, and will repay you for your grace, someday," he wrote. "Now I pray for you who are in a far away place."

The Sunday School adopted Daek in June and Kim in September.

Money for the support of the boys is provided by special offerings at the Sunday School and by the Protestant Chaplains Fund.

Plans are under way to adopt another orphan, perhaps from India.

TWO-FOLD MISSION

The mission of the exchange today is two fold. First, it fulfills the serviceman's need for reasonably-priced goods and services. Secondly, it provides about 80 per cent of the funds that sustain Army and Air Force welfare programs.

To Be Observed March 9

Fort Benning Society Women's News

Annual World Day of Prayer Committees Have Been Named

Plans are under way at Fort Benning for the observance of the World Day of Prayer March 9.

Over-all chairman for the traditional observance is Mrs. Arthur J. Estes.

A worship service has been scheduled at 10 a.m. at The Infantry Center Protestant Chapel.

Participating will be the Women-of-the-Chapels of the Main Post, members of No. 3 and Student Brigade Chapels and the Women's Auxiliary of St. Michael's Episcopal Mission.

Mrs. Estes has appointed Mrs. Robert J. Whitehead to serve as program chairman.

Members of the committee are Mrs. John L. Waldrop of Columbus, Mrs. Dominick J. Orlando, Mrs. Paul T. Ingle and Mrs. William T. Manderson.

Publicity chairman is Mrs. Del L. Briscoe. Serving with her on the committee are Mrs. Edgar W. Duskin, Mrs. Robert H. Hawn and Mrs. Thomas M. Scoville.

The program for the 1962 World Day of Prayer was written by two women of Uraguay, Mrs. Eudoxia Perez de Svetogorski and Miss Violeta Cavallero, both of Montevideo.

Mrs. Svetogorski is the widow of a professor of music. The mother of four children, she is active in the religious life of her community. She has served as president of the Uraguay League of Evangelical Women and has contributed to the development of Prison House in Montevideo.

Miss Cavallero is a deaconess in the Methodist Church, director of religious education for Crandon Institute and is responsible for a weekly Radio Methodist Hour in Montevideo.

The program has been translated from Spanish into many languages and will be used in more than 145 countries.

The observance of the World Day of Prayer dates back to 1827, when a Presbyterian woman sent out an appeal for members of that denomination to observe a national day of prayer.

In the appeal, Mrs. James R. Darwin, president of the Women's Board of Home Missions of the Presbyterian Church, called for "confession of individual and national sins, with offerings that will fitly express the contrition."

Other denominations joined in the movement, observing the national day of prayer and contributing to an offering to aid minority groups in this country.

A day of united prayer for foreign missions was established by two Baptist women in 1890.

Mrs. Helen Barett Montgomery and Mrs. Henry Peabody, returning to the U. S. after a tour of the Orient, inaugurated the custom of an annual gathering of church women to pray for missionary endeavor throughout the world and to raise funds to support special missionary activities.

The two separate national days of prayer for home and foreign missions were combined in 1919 to include mission work all over the world. An interdenominational committee planned and promoted the day of prayer.

Beginning with Canada in 1922, other nations joined the U. S. in observing the day. By 1927, so many countries were participating in the program that it was redesignated "World Day of Prayer."

Each year, the material for the worship service is prepared by women from a different country. Responsibility for securing the program, printing and promotion in the U. S. has been given to the General Department of Church Women of the National Council of Churches.

Woman's Club Diary

There are still a few openings in the Flower Arranging class which begins February 21, and will run for seven weeks. If you are interested, call Mrs. G. Harry Huppert, 545-2216.

Sewing, Tailoring, and Upholstering Classes are being offered by the Woman's Club for members who want to add a fresh look to both their families and their homes this spring. I just spent an afternoon looking at the beautiful materials avilable for home seamstresses, and the colors are breathtaking this year. Mrs. Thomas Scoville, 545-1006, is accepting registrations.

Open House

Open House for the Pre-Kindergarten School will be held Monday, February 26. Parents are invited to visit classes in the morning, or drop by for a chat with the Teaching and Administrative Staff beginning at 7 p.m.

These three - and - four year olds do remarkable work, and if you have children in the school or about to enter, the Open House is designed to give you an opportunity to learn more about this activity of the Woman's Club.

Mr. Jack Murray, principal, will be happy to give you more information on registration, at the school each morning, 545-2217.

Ceramics

Advanced classes for ceramics enthusiasts are offered free at the ceramics workshop each week. Experience teachers offer information on techniques and material which can help you to achieve a professional touch. Mrs. Douglas Syverson, 545-1908 will be glad to give you exact times of the classes.

Atlanta Trip

Don't forget to get your ticket for the Trip to Atlanta when we spend the day at Rich's. The date is March 20, and the trip is open to all wives and civilian personnel on post. Mrs. N. E. Smith, 545-2496, reminds you that the nominal charge includes transportation, lunch, and a special fashion show and tea.

Bowlers

Our Bowling League members did very will in the City-wide tournament last week (in case, like me, you don't read the sports pages) Mrs. Beckman and Mrs. Cutler were our brightest stars.

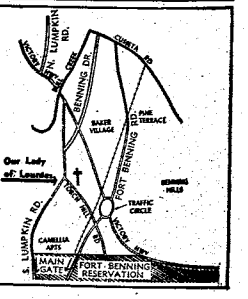
CHAIR REPAIR

When the cane seating of your favorite chair wears out, replace with a piece of plywood cushioned in foam rubber and upholstered in your favorite color.

USE VACUUM



Hair can be dried in 10 minutes with a tank vacuum. To clean the air hose, reverse it for one minute. Then wrap a towel around your head, leaving an end of the towel open so the hose can be put in to blow air through. When hair is partly dry, remove the towel and spot-dry wet areas.

Barbara Hare's Report Card...

A brunette senior at Columbus High School is the subject of today's Report Card. Frances Clark, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Robert E. Clark, steps into our spotlight as the teen subject of our salute.

Frances was born June 12, 1944, in Castine, Maine, and considers this "home". She has two brothers, Bobby, 14; and John who is six.

Prior to coming to Benning last September, Frances has attended high school in Arlington, Va. and Castine, Maine. During her freshman year, she went to Williamsburg Junior High in Arlington. She transferred to Wakefield High which is also in Arlington for her sophomore year.

While at Wakefield, she was a member of the Art Club and Art Honor Society.

Last year Frances was a Junior in Castine High in Maine. She was elected vice president of the Junior Class and was inducted into the National Honor Society. She also enjoyed participating in dramatics and was the Literary Editor of the school's annual, Conquerors.

Frances attends Columbus High School this year and is busy with many of the school's activities.

She is an active member of the National Honor Society and is the chairman of the committee to plan the N.H.S. State Convention which will be held during March in Columbus.

Frances helped to organize the French Club and was elected its president.

At Benning Frances is a member of Junior Army Daughters of America (JADA), and is chairman of the committee to plan the backdrops for the JADA Variety Show. She is a member of the social sorority, Sigma Delta Beta. Frances attends St. Michael's Chapel.

Travels

Traveling has played a very important part in Frances's education. She has lived abroad as well as in America. Frances has resided in France and Japan, and in the states of Maine, Virginia, Maryland, Indiana and Minnesota. While living in France, she traveled a great deal and learned about the people and countries of Europe.

Future Plans

Frances's future plans include a degree in Political Science from the College of William and Mary in Virginia, and then entering the Foreign Service.

In her spare time, she enjoys many hobbies which include sailing, swimming, sewing, art and cooking.

When I asked Frances what her philsophy of life is she said, "to make the most out of life with the capabilities that I have."

Frances's father is Deputy G-3 of The Infantry Center.

Even though Frances Clark is relatively a newcomer to Benning, she has joined many activities and taken an active part in her school and community. Report Card is proud to salute Frances as the teen personality of the week.

Women of Chapels To Hold Meetings On Third Thursday

The Student Brigade Women-of-the-Chapels will meet February 15 at 9:30 a.m. in the Religious Education Center, Building 2606.

The regular meeting date for the organization has been changed from the second Thursday to the third Thursday in the month.

All Protestant women on the post are invited.

Nurse Group Sets Meet On Monday

The Professional Nurses Group of Fort Benning will meet at 1:30 p.m. February 12 in Martin Army Hospital's second floor conference room.

Col. Morris E. Bracket will speak on "Early Detection of Cervical and Breast Cancer."

Dr. Brackett is chief of the hospital's Obstetrics - Gynecology Service.

Professional nurses of the Fort Benning-Columbus - Phenix City area are invited.

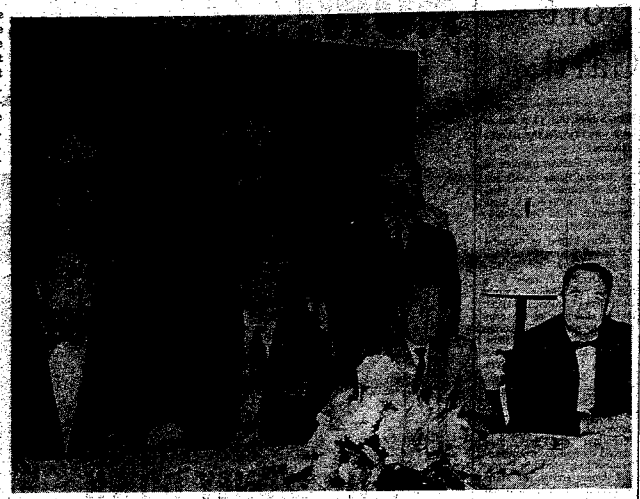
Local West Point Society Holds Election of Officers



Election of officers for the coming year highlighted the annual business meeting of the Fort Benning - Columbus West Point Society held recently at the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Re-elected to fill their offices for another year were Major Gen. (Ret.) Philip E. Gallagher, president, and Col. Bernard G. Teeters, first vice-president.

Newly elected were Col. (Ret.) N. L. Fooks, second vice president; Lt. Col. Steve W. Mulkey, Jr., secretary, and 1st Lt. J. F. Santilli, treasurer.

The board of governors named for the coming year include Major Gen. Ben Harrell, Infantry Center commanding general, honorary president of the society, Gen. Gallagher, Col. (Ret.) T. E. Davis, Col. (Ret.) R. E. Tibbetts, Col. Fooks, Col. (Ret.) C. M. Howard, Col. Teeters, Col. Louis A. Kimzig, Jr., Col. S. Marsh, Jr., Col. Mulkey, Capt. W. H. Wilcox and Lt. Santilli.

After the election, the society heard progress reports on cadets from the local area attending the U. S. Military Academy and discussed plans for the annual Founder's Day Dinner to be held March 16, honoring the academy.

Paraguay GI Visits Post For Briefing

Brig. Gen. Domingo Palau, G-1, Armed Forces of Paraguay, was at Fort Benning for a three-day tour and briefing last week.

Accompanying Gen. Palau were Lt. Col. Carlos Freites-Davalos, commander of the Presidential Escort Battalion, and Major Gerardo Johansen, commander of the 40th Infantry Battalion of Paraguay.

The general and his group were briefed on the history and organization of The Infantry Center and the organization and mission of The Infantry School last Thursday morning.

They also were briefed on the utilization of Fort Benning in the support of training and the Infantry's organization and tactics. They then observed marksmanship preparation training at Bickford Range.

After lunch, the general received briefings in the Editorial and Pictorial Office and at the Airborne-Air Mobility Department of the school. Gen. Palau then observed problems in the leader's reaction course and an Infantry-tank team in attack on Buma Hill.

The Allied group received briefings on the Communications, Ground Mobility and Non-Resident Instruction Departments last Friday morning.

Later the party observed a conditioning activities problem at Blue Field and visited Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles, Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School.

After a luncheon for Gen. Palau hosted by Gen. Surles, the visitors were oriented on Army aircraft and briefed by the Ranger Department.

The party departed Fort Benning Saturday.

Greek Public Relations Officer Visits

Col. George Hatjis, director of the Public Relations Office, Greek Army, was at the post for a three-day tour and briefing.

Monday afternoon at Concord Range, he observed how artillery fire is requested and adjusted. He also visited Lawson Army Aviation Command and The Infantry School's Weapon Pool. The Allied officer then went to Blue Field where he observed a problem in physical conditioning.

Tuesday morning, the colonel was briefed on instruction and training literature and the Officer Candidate School.

After visiting Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School, he was guest of honor at an official luncheon, hosted by Col. R. W. Keyes, deputy assistant commandant.

After the luncheon, the Greek visitor observed a problem in the techniques of rifle fire on Buckner Range, and was briefed on the Range Department's mission.

The colonel was briefed Monday morning on the history and organization of The Infantry Center and Infantry School and on the utilization of Fort Benning in training support. He also was oriented on the Infantry's organization and communication facilities.

Col. Hatjis departed Fort Benning Wednesday. He arrived Sunday at Muscogee County Airport.

TIS Electronics Subcommittee Trains 800 Mechanics Yearly

BY IDA EVANS

No matter how wise the decision of a commander in battle nor how concise his order to a subordinate, both the decision and the order will be only as effective as the means of communication.

"Attack and seize Hill 808" may be just the move to turn the tide of battle and insure victory, but unless the message goes through and is answered clearly, "Wilco out," both leader and follower will have their hands tied.

The Electronics Subcommittee of The Infantry School Communications Department is concerned with positive and instantaneous communications for Infantry and Airborne Infantry by tactical radios.

In 14 Infantry radio maintenance courses, approximately 800 radio mechanics are trained at the school each year.

Conducting the only academic course in the U.S. for Infantry radio mechanics, The Infantry School enrolls a composite class. Students represent Active, Reserve and National Guard units — the "One Army" team. There are also students from seven Allied countries taking the course.

An Infantry School trained radio mechanic knows more than radio repair. He is thoroughly acquainted with the fundamentals of of electricity and radio theory.

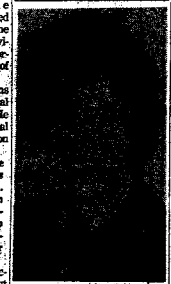
It is only after the student has become adequately grounded in electronics that he enters the practical phase of his training.

Using an individual tool kit and test equipment similar to that found in his unit, the student begins actual "trouble-shooting" radio sets organic to the Infantry battle group.

There are 272 radios authorized in an Infantry battle group. This figure compared with the 14 radios found in the old Infantry regiment, is evidence of the increasing importance of radio as a means of communication.

A student at the school learns to determine faults in tactical radios and repair them. He spends 272 hours in practical application of his knowledge on military radios.

Instructors in the course are all qualified Signal Corps field maintenance repairmen. They are trained to perform all echelons of radio maintenance. Each instructor also has met the stringent requirements for an instructor at The Infantry School.



Senior instructor on the Electronics Subcommittee is MSgt George R. Stoner. Sgt. Stoner has 18 years experience in radio repair.

Another instructor is Sfc Naoma B. Reynolds. He has served 22 years in Infantry and Signal Corps units.

A commissioned officer is assigned to each class as faculty adviser. He is available to assist a student with any problem that would affect his successful completion of the course.

Technical supervision and guidance in the preparation and presentation of the course is provided by three Signal Corps officers.

They are Major William R. Tripp, chairman of the Electronics Subcommittee, Capt. Robert B. Cook, and 2nd Lt. Lawrence R. Woodland.

WAC OF MONTH . . . Pfc Elizabeth A. Tietgens, WAC Company, Infantry Center Troop Command, was selected as Soldier of the Month for January from the command's separate companies. Assigned to the Infantry Center Finance and Accounting Office, she later was runner-up in CTC competition.

Medical Care Instruction Is Scheduled

Officers and selected non-commissioned officers of the post will be instructed in emergency medical care tomorrow and Monday.

A class has been scheduled from 9 to 11 a.m. in Theater 1 both days. Representatives from all units are expected to attend one two-hour session.

The instruction will include the purpose of the Medical Care Program, a discussion of mass casualties, the need for training in "self-aid" and "buddy care."

Principles of emergency medical care will be discussed as applied to mass casualties from conventional or nuclear disaster. Non-technical aspects will be presented.

There also will be a discussion of protection shelters at home and in the field.

The course includes the importance of command decisions during nuclear incidents and the role of the surgeon in assisting a commander to continue his mission during an emergency.

Conducting the course will be a team from the Medical Field Service School, Department of Medicine and Surgery, Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

SHUT IN

Juvenile court hearing in Newcastle-on-Tyne, England, was delayed for 15 minutes, because a policeman accidentally locked himself in a cell with a prisoner.

Special Warfare Orientation Held

Career course officers at The Infantry School received an orientation on unconventional warfare recently.

The orientation was presented by two officers from the Army's Special Warfare School, Fort Bragg.

Members of the staff and faculty of The School, as well as officers of The Infantry Center, were invited to attend.

Ft. McClellan Exercise 'Challenging'--Reynolds

10-Day Maneuver Tests Proficiency Of Task Forces on Unfamiliar Terrain

Nearly 5,000 2nd Division personnel returned Wednesday from a ten-day field training exercise at Fort McClellan, Alabama.

Brigadier General Royal Reynolds, Jr., brigade commander and exercise director, termed the exercise "varied and challenging, all units displaying a high degree of military proficiency in accomplishing tasks. 2nd Division units showed that they can make a long motor movement and successfully execute a variety of tactical exercises over strange terrain."

"Intimate Relationship"

The general pointed out that "one of the outstanding features of the exercise was the development of a close and intimate relationship between the battle groups and the attached direct support units of engineers, artillery, ordnance in a task force."

The exercise tested the proficiency of all participating units in task force maneuvers, command and control of unfamiliar terrain.

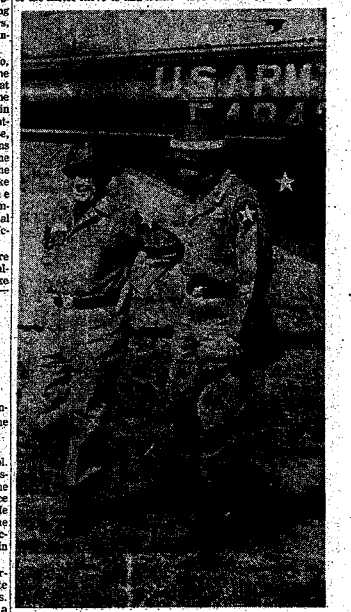
Captain Robert B. Longino, Brigade S-3, explaining the actual problem, stated that "each battle group during the ten-day period participated in the following type activities: attack, river crossing, defense, counter - attack and operations in mountainous country. One of the unusual aspects of the exercise was the use of smoke generators furnished by the 62nd and 69th Chemical Companies of the 218th Chemical Battalion stationed at Fort McClellan."

Atomic burst simulators were also used. Additionally, aerial-delivered tear gas and smoke attacks were used extensively and resupply drops by air were made.

Helicopter - borne patrols during the hours of darkness were carried out in rear areas. Outstanding contributions to the problem were afforded by elements of the 122nd Signal Battalion and Companies A, D and E, of the 2nd Engineer Battalion who concentrated on their support role to the battle groups and effected considerable road improvement.

"Highly Successful"

Summarizing the ten days at McClellan, Colonel Maurice C. Holden, deputy brigade commander, said that from his standpoint "the training was highly successful, the conduct of the motor move to and from Fort McClellan was orderly and without incident. The training was directed toward the small unit commanders who were required to work in unfamiliar terrain with limited reconnaissance and had supporting weapons and units available to them during the problem that were not available before.



"We look forward to returning later this month with the remaining division units that have not participated at this time."

Realism was a prime factor in the problem. In previous division exercises the opposing forces were simulated or represented by small aggressor details. Here, however, two com-

Indian Head Assoc. Chapters Announce Membership Drive

The 12 local chapters of the 2nd (Indian Head) Division Association are currently putting on a drive for new members.

Each chapter, which possesses its own constitution, is attached to a unit of the 2nd Infantry Division.

Chapters

The association chapters within the division include the Tomahawk Chapter, Commandant; Travois Chapter, Division Trains; Always First Chapter, 1st Infantry; Manchu Chapter, 9th Infantry; Wanderers Chapter, 11th Infantry; We Serve Chapter, 23rd Inantry; Conquerors Chapter, 87th Infantry; Red Legs Chapter, Division Artillery; Garry Owen Chapter, 7th Cavalry; Castle Chapter, 2nd Engineer Battalion; Carabao Chapter, 122nd Signal Battalion, and Tankers Chapter, 69th Armor.

Though each chapter is founded with is own constitution, yearly dues for members remain comparatively consistent at $1 or $1.50. Each chapter has a board which includes a president and custodian. Some chapters utilize other officers. There are, in most cases, one or two members of the board from each company or battery-size unit.

Dues, which are the property of the local chapters, are used primarily for the benefit of the individual unit. Money collected from members through the annual dues in many cases goes toward sending representatives from local chapters to the annual reunion of the National 2nd (Indian Head) Division Association.

This summer members will travel to Washington, D. C., scene of the 1962 reunion and the dedication of the newly-expanded "Flaming Sword" 2nd Division monument.

Members also receive copies of the association publication "Indian Head," a monthly magazine which affords them an opportunity to maintain contact with one another throughout the years.

This year will be a time for particular celebration for association members as they see the long-awaited goal of the expanded monument standing as a testimonial to their loyalty and dedicated work.

Many of the 12 local chapters have set a goal of 100 per cent membership in their unit through their current membership drive.

Bloodmobile Here On First '62 Visit

Today is the last day 2nd Infantry Division personnel have an opportunity to make blood donations to the American Red Cross bloodmobile on its initial 1962 visit.

Units scheduled for contributions today include Division Artillery, 11th Infantry, 7th Cavalry, 69th Armor, 122nd Signal Battalion and the 2nd Engineer Battalion.

The bloodmobile, currently on a two-day visit to the division, is located at Service Club Two, Sand Hill.

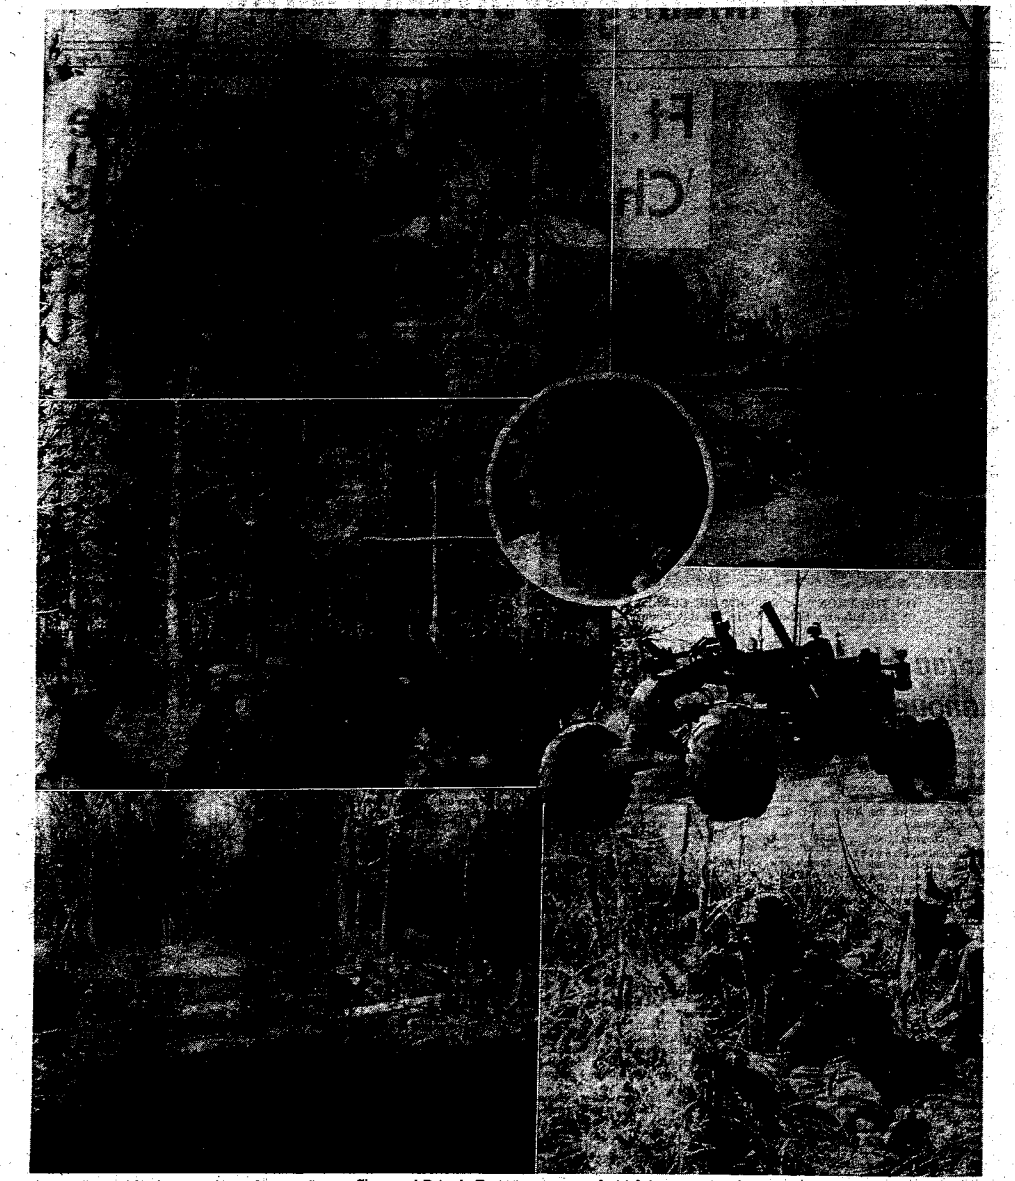
Yesterday, personnel from the 1st, 9th, 23rd, and 87th Infantries, Division Trains and Headquarters and Headquarters Company donated.

New Positions Announced For DBC, 11th Infantry CO

The 2nd Division's 11th Infantry finished this week with a new commanding officer — Colonel Maurice C. Holden, former deputy brigade commander.

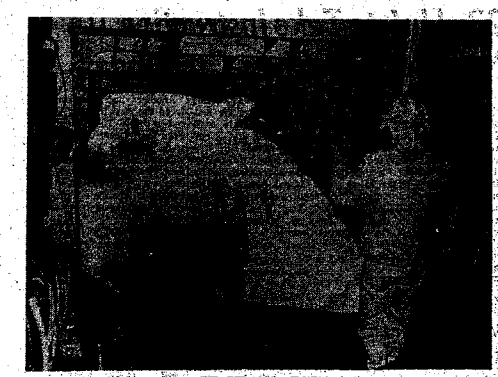
The 11th's former commander, Colonel John E. Arthur, became deputy brigade commander Thursday as the two colonels exchanged assignments.

Col. Holden joined the 2nd Division last fall, coming from an assignment with the Canadian National Defense College.



Col. Arthur assumed command of the 11th Infantry in January 1961. His previous assignment had been with the U. S. Army Command and General Staff college, where he was chief of doctrine.

Virginian



By birth a Virginian, Col. Arthur graduated from Boston University in 1937 with the degree of bachelor of science in business administration. He received his commission in the Army Reserves and began active duty with the Army in April 1942.

Col. Holden, a native of Cherryvale, Kansas, is a graduate of the University of Kansas. He was Regular Army officer on February 1, 1942.

Mud, Rain No Help To Troops

Elements of the 2nd Infantry Division, conducting a ten-day exercise at Fort McClellan, spent the first two days fighting the common enemy of all Soldiers — mud.

Immediately upon arrival, the three battle groups and their supporting units took to the field.

Took Up Positions

Two of the battle groups, the 1st and 23rd Infantries, encamped on Pelham Range. The 87th Infantry took up its position in the Bandholtz training area at Fort McClellan.

Prior to arriving at the installation, certain areas had been designated from which each group would begin its operation. However, rains over the weekend created problems for some of the units.

The heavy downpours turned many areas and main roads on Pelham Range into impassable routes, thus causing some units to relocate. In the Bandholtz area, some difficulty was also experienced but was not as severe.

Although the situation hampered operations, the battle groups maneuvered into position and "phase one" of the exercise continued to move forward.

The first day of the exercise was devoted to positioning various elements of the division. On the next day, still badly hampered by muddy roads and terrain, the 23rd Infantry moved into an attacking position against the 1st Infantry, which had assumed a defensive position.

Against Each Other

The battle groups were pitted against each other to gain tactical maneuver experience on unfamiliar terrain and give supporting units an opportunity to work together in task force organization.

In the Bandholtz area, units of the 87th Infantry were busy advancing on enemy positions in the nearby hills. According to the problem, after the main fighting forces pushed the enemy back, guerilla forces teamed up and cut off their main supply line.

A few hours after the problem began, troops of the 87th, which were held in reserve, were ordered to move up to reestablish the supply channel. Within an hour they had seized two intermediate objectives and by nightfall all six objectives had been over-run.

The battle groups later shifted positions, the 1st Infantry moving into the Bandholtz area. It took up the problems encountered by the 87th Infantry, which moved into the attack position on Pelham Range. The 23rd Infantry assumed the defense position.

CG's Championship Match Scheduled for Feb. 19-21

The 2nd Infantry Division Commanding General's Championship Matches have been scheduled for February 19-21.

Site for the matches are the Post Pistol Range for pistol firing, McAndrews Range for the rifle contest and Easley Range for the automatic rifle competition.

The matches are to be conducted by the 2nd Infantry Division Marksmanship Detachment.

National Rifle Association rules will govern throughout the matches.

All competitors in the matches are eligible for selection and retention as members of the division's rifle, pistol and automatic rifle squad for practice, training and further match participation and are subject to recall as members of the Third United States Army Rifle and Pistol Squad.

Entries in the Commanding General's Championship Matches are limited to 15 individual rifle competitors and ten individual pistol competitors to represent each major command.

One open winner and the first three place winners in each classification of each match will be awarded trophies.

Entries in all individual matches are to be submitted to the Marksmanship Detachment, Building 3222, by roster name and classification. All individual entries must be received not later than Februry 15.

3 Division Units Train With AF 'Globemasters'

Beginning Monday, C-124 "Globemaster" four-engine heavy transports were made available to three 2nd Division units for air movement training.

Five United States Air Force aircraft flew into Lawson Army Air Field Monday afternoon. They were followed by two additional heavy transports late Tuesday.

At Lawson Field

Soldiers of the 11th Infantry, 12th Artillery and Company C, 2nd Engineers traveled to Lawson Field to use the aircraft for their air movement training, including loading, unloading and lashing of equipment and personnel.

Five of the 103,614 - pound aircraft were used by the 11th Infantry for four days as the men learned to load organic equipment of their battle group. They were briefed on the characteristics of the C-124 by Air Force personnel.

The purpose of this training was to train loading teams to become proficient in loading, lashing and off-loading the approximately 30 tons of equipment organic to their battle group.

The "Globemaster" heavy transport is composed of two decks, the main deck for heavy equipment, capable of carrying four H-13 reconnaissance helicopters or three two-and-a-half ton trucks; and an upper deck for personnel and light equipment, capable of carrying 112 airborne troops. The aircraft utilizes a crew of five.

Men of the division's 12th Artillery were given two C-124s to begin work Tuesday in practicing loading and unloading a 32,000 pound "Honest John" rocket launcher and a 16-ton eight inch Howitzer. The practical training, which followed a week of preparatory training with mock-ups of the aircraft, included loading quarter-ton, three-quarter-ton and two-and-a-half-ton trucks. Approximately 150 men from the 12th Artillery participated in the training.

Special emphasis was put on working with the units' heavy equipment.

More than 90 members of Company C, 2nd Engineers accomplished their air movement training Monday and Tuesday, loading such heavy equipment as a 24-ton bulldozer, 12-ton grader and the 10-ton payloader.

Project officers for air movement training were Major Wiley McGarity, 11th Infantry S-3; Lieutenant Kenneth R. Schultz, 12th Artillery assistant S-3 and Lieutenant Joseph R. Coursey, executive officer of Company C, 2nd Engineer Battalion.

Maj. Hearn At Ft Knox

Major William M. Hearn, executive officer, 69th Armor, is attending the Senior Officers' Preventive Maintenance Course at Fort Knox, Ky. The course is of one week duration, and is a comprehensive course covering preventive maintenance procedure and policy.

Three at 9th Infantry Earn ACMs

By 9th Infantry PIO

At the monthly awards ceremonies of the 9th Infantry, three Manchumen were awarded the Army Commendation Medal.

The three men honored were Master Sergeant Boyd E. Shaw, Headquarters Company, Sergeant First Class David L. Clark, Company A, and Sergeant First Class John E. Ross, Headquarters Company.

Leadership

Sergeant Shaw was cited for displaying exceptional leadership qualities which led to the battle group motor pool receiving a superior rating in the last Command Maintenance and Inspector General's Inspections.

Sergeant Shaw has been a member of the 9th Infantry since September of 1955 and is also the recipient of the Bronze Star Medal.

Ex-airborne instructor, Sergeant First Class David L. Clark, was awarded the Army Commendation Medal for performance of meritorious service from June 17, 1959 to October 1, 1961.

As Senior Airborne Instructor, Basic Airborne Training Committee, Airborne-Air Mobility Department, United States Army Infantry School, he distinguished himself by outstanding performance of duty which contributed to the successful accomplishment of the all important mission of the Basic Airborne Training Committee.

Sergeant Clark joined the 9th in October of 1961 and is presently a platoon sergeant in the 9th's Company A.

Third Award

The third member of the Manchu 9th cited was Sergeant John E. Ross for providing radio instruction for personnel undergoing Advanced Individual Training during the period 3, March, 1961 to 25, September, 1961.

Sergeant Ross is married and has two children.

23rd Inf. to Take Instruction Next Week in River Crossing

By 23rd Infantry PIO

Beginning Monday, the 23rd Infantry will receive the first of a two-week phase of river crossing instruction. The battle group will be transported to Victory Pond on the Ft. Benning Reservation, where Lieutenant Richard Trummer of the 2nd Engineer Battalion will brief the men on river crossing procedures.

The first day's instructions will include a demonstration of equipment used for fording narrow bodies of water, including improvised roots for the individual soldier's gear to a 60-foot portable span that is carried by an M-48 tank.

Each company will receive individual instruction in the use of assault boats, first on dry land and then on still water. The training will be culminated by crossing the Chattahoochee River while under "attack" by Aggressors.

A brief check into the 23rd Infantry's past shows the value of knowing how to carry out a river crossing quickly and efficiently.

A dramatic crossing during World War II aided our forces in building up offensive steam following the Battle of the Bulge. The 23rd Infantry, after several offensive moves along the Germans' Siegfried Line near the Schleiden Forest, began its wild race to the Rhine River. On March 23, 1945, the 23rd made its crossing in the vicinity of Niederbreisig, five miles north of the Remagen Bridge. Breaking out toward the east, the 23rd streaked toward the Weser River, capturing thousands of prisoners and reducing many troublesome strongpoints of resistance. The Weser River crossing caught the Germans completely unawares.

Another vital river crossing faced the 23rd Infantry in Korea in 1950. The United Nations forces went on the offensive, and the 23rd Infantry was ordered to cross the Nakong River. Preparations for the crossing were made on September 19, and the crossing began at 3:30 the morning of the 20th.

One battalion edged across the river in assault boats, secured the immediate river bank bridgehead and began advancing northward.

7th Cavalry's M-Sgt. Branch Retires, Is Cited

By 7th Cavalry PIO

Master Sergeant Alex Branch, Troop A, 7th Cavalry, was cited on his recent retirement from the Army and was awarded the Certificate of Achievement by Brigadier General Royal Reynolds Jr., acting as commanding general in a ceremony at Division headquarters.

Sgt. Branch was also awarded the Army Commendation Medal at an informal ceremony held in the office of Lieutenant Colonel Harvey Scott, 7th Cavalry commander.

Sgt. Branch entered the Army in May 1941, at Fort Moultrie, South Carolina, and has served in the Army for more than 20 years. During his 20 years, he saw action in the European theater and Italian and North African campaigns.

Sgt. Branch has won such awards as the Bronze Star, Combat Infantryman's Badge, Certificate of Achievement and the Army Commendation Medal.

Sgt. Branch joined the 7th Cavalry in July 1961 after a tour of duty with the 2nd Battle Group, 4th Infantry in Germany. While serving with the 7th Cavalry, he was assigned to Troop A as a platoon sergeant.

The sergeant is married and has two children.

Avn Wives' Fete Held

The ladies of the 2nd Aviation Company gathered recently in the Normandy Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess for their monthly coffee.

Hostesses were Mrs. Jerry Keebaugh, Mrs. Lee Myers, and Mrs. Richard L'Hommedieu.

Special guests were Mrs. Royal Reynolds Jr. and Mrs. Louis Kunzig who were presented with carnation corsages. Mrs. Ralph H. Hughett was present to choose models for the Officers' Wives Club spring fashion show.

Farewells were said to Mrs. Roush, whose husband will retire from the service in March.

9th's Co. C Ladies Host Coffee

On Tuesday, January 23, the wives of Company D, 9th Infantry, were hostesses for the 9th's monthly coffee at the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Responsible for the original Valentine's Day centerpiece and decorations were Mrs. Sam S. Younger, Mrs. Ernest L. Isbell, Mrs. William J. McCoy, Mrs. William A. Viehman and Mrs. Lindell J. Lovelette.

A discusssion following the coffee was concerned with projects which the group might undertake, and Mrs. Wendell F. Delamare and Mrs. George F. Wallace II were appointed to head committees to study the various suggestions made.

The next coffee for the 9th will be held on February 27.

Blackman Surprise Party Held

Mrs. Edward B. Blackman was the guest of honor at a farewell party and surprise baby shower on January 31.

Hostess for the occasion was Mrs. Ralph H. Hughett, and guests were ladies of the G-3 Section and close friends of Mrs. Blackman.

A large watercolor caricature of Mrs. Blackman leaving Fort Benning on the back of a stork greeted the guests when they arrived.

The table was centered with a small bassinet filled with pink roses and blue delphinium. Surrounding it were miniature infants, biggies, and cribs. Silver candelabra held pink and blue candles.

Mrs. Blackman and her family will make their home in Florida while Lieutenant Colonel Blackman completes a tour of duty in the Far East.

Bridge

Mrs. Neal Jaco was hostess this month for the 1st Infantry ladies' bridge group. Mrs. Kenneth Grade had high score and Mrs. John Rimpdollar was second high. Mrs. Kless Gyzen was low.

11th Infantry Welcomes New S-4, Three New Company Commanders

By 11th Inf PIO

A new S-4 and three new company commanders have been named at the 11th Infantry.

New S-4 is Captain Ross W. Winne Jr. He replaces Major Rutland D. Beard Jr., who has been assigned to division G-3 prior to overseas assignment.

Former X-Os

New company commanders in the 11th, all former executive officers in the same companies, are Lieutenants Frank L. Grubb Jr., Company B; Weldon E. White, Company E, and Thomas G. Boyd, Combat Support Company.

Captain Winne moves up to his post of S-4 from his former job as assistant S-4, which he has held since he arrived at the battle group in January 1961.

Captain Winne entered the Army in August 1955 after receiving his commission earlier that year at the University of Florida. After attending the Infantry Officers' Basic Course and Ranger School in late 1955 and early 1956, Captain Winne was assigned to the 3rd Division at Fort Benning. He served as a rifle platoon leader, antitank platoon leader, company executive officer, football coach and battalion maintenance and motor officer while in the division, leaving in 1958 for Panama and the 20th Infantry.

Jungle Warfare School

While in Panama, he attended Jungle Warfare School and commanded a student company at the Jungle school.

He returned to the United States as a civilian in 1959 and rejoined the Army in October of 1960. He was assigned to the 9th Infantry here prior to coming to the 11th. In March of 1961 he attended Airborne School.

Lieutenant Grubb, who replaces overseas-bound Captain John S. McCord as commander of Company B, entered the service in early 1959 after obtaining his commission at The Citadel.

After attending the Infantry Officers' Leaders Course and Airborne School at Fort Benning, he remained on the post as a platoon leader and executive officer in the 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade.

He joined the 11th Infantry in March of 1961 as Company B executive officer, the position he held until his new assignment.

Lieutenant White replaces Captain Frederick A. Rall as commander of Company E of the 11th. Captain Rall has been named assistant S-3.

Lieutenant White received his commission in the Chemical Corps in 1958 from the University of Arkansas and came on active duty in September of that year.

He attended both the Chemical Officers' Basic Course and Nuclear Weapons Course at Fort McClellan, Ala., and then was an instructor in nuclear weapons effects at the U. S. Army Chemical School at Fort McClellan until January, 1961.

Officers' Course

He came to Fort Benning for a two-year assignment to the Infantry, and attended the Infantry Officers' Orientation Course prior to his assignment to the 11th Infantry.

Lieutenant Boyd replaces Combat Support Company's Commander, Captain John J. Smith, due to go overseas. An Ordnance Corps officer, Lieutenant Boyd was assigned to the 11th Infantry in March of 1961 for his two-year combat arms service.

A Reserve Officers' Training Course graduate of New Mexico State University, Lieutenant Boyd attended the Infantry Officers' Leaders Course at Fort Benning in 1958, then was assigned to Fort Carson, Colorado, as a platoon leader with the 1st Battle Group, 39th Infantry.

In March of 1959 he transferred to the Ordnance Corps and went to Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Md., to attend the Ammunition Supply Officers' Course.

In June, 1959 he returned to Fort Benning as depot officer of the post ammunition storage area. In May of 1960 he assumed command of the 620th Ordnance Company (Ammo) and later that year went to Post Ordnance, U. S. Army Infantry Center, as post ammunition officer, before coming to the 11th Infantry.

Taking over the executive officer vacancies in the three companies of the battle group are Lieutenants Phil C. Anderson in Company B, Rodney A. Pimental in Company E, and Vincent A. Apruzzese in Combat Support Company.

In addition to Captain Ball, First Lieutenant Harold W. Darden Jr. has joined the battle group staff as assistant S-3.

5 Have Been 11th

Five regiments have held the designation "11th Infantry" since 1798. Present battle groups of the 11th Infantry trace their lineage back to May 3, 1861.

Lt. Kelly Adjutant At 69th

By 69th Armor PIO

Lieutenant Joseph D. Kelly recently assumed the duties of adjutant of the 69th Armor.

Lieutenant Kelly was assigned to the 69th Armor in November 1960 following completion of the Armor Officers Orientation Course at Fort Knox, Ky. At that time, Lieutenant Kelly was assigned as executive officer and later company commander of Company B, 69th Armor. Last month, Lieutenant Kelly was assigned to Headquarters Company and further assigned as support platoon leader. Following the reassignment of Captain James L. O'Neil, Lieutenant Kelly was assigned as battalion S-1.

9 Officers Leaving 1st

Nine Captains of the 1st Infantry will depart for various overseas assignments in the near future.

The assignments will result in a number of changes to staff sections and companies within the "Always First" battle group.

Scheduled to depart for the Army Language School, Monterey, Calif., are Captains John F. C. Kenney, adjutant; George M. Tronsrue, assistant S3; George R. Robinson, motor officer; John W. Shannon, S3 air operations; Glenwood E. Jones, Company D commander; Thomas B. Clyburn, Company B commander, and Charles B. Allen, Headquarters Company commander.

Reporting to Fort Bragg, North Carolina, for the Special Warfare Course will be Captain Rocco Negris, commanding officer of Company E.

Captain John D. Rinedollar, Heavy Mortar Platoon commander, will depart the battle group at a later date for assignment overseas.

Operate on Post Prior To Registering Car?

By David M. Winkler

Driving a car is one of among a number of things one does every day that reveals what kind of person he is. A religious leader once said, "Show me yourself behind a steering wheel of an automobile and I'll tell you whether or not you are a Christian." This is one in a series of quizzes designed to test the motorist's general knowledge.

1. The cost per mile of a typical modern highway in open country good for 20 to 30 years is approximately:
   a. $150,000
   b. $225,000
   c. $340,000
   d. $400,000

2. A French artillery officer, Nicholas Joseph Cugnot, built what is generally acknowledged as the first self-propelled road vehicle in:
   a. 1748
   b. 1757
   c. 1769
   d. 1803

3. Before it becomes necessary to register their vehicle, military personnel may operate their privately owned vehicle on post for:
   a. 24 hours
   b. 48 hours
   c. 72 hours
   d. Must be registered before being operated on post.

4. The stopping distance of a vehicle being operated on dry concrete at 60 mph is:
   a. 366 feet
   b. 250 feet
   c. 320 feet
   d. 378 feet

5. If your car suddenly begins to skid on a wet or icy road, you should:
   a. Keep the wheels straight
   b. Throw the car in reverse
   c. Apply the brakes gently
   d. Steer in the same direction that the rear of the car is sliding.

Answers
1. D; 2. C; 3. D; 4. A; 5. D.

17th's Dulaney Attending School

By 17th Arty PIO

Lt. Joseph D. Dulaney, 17th Artillery, is a student again. He is currently attending the USAJC Chemical, Biological and Nuclear School.

Recently assigned as battalion S-2, Lt. Dulaney will be able to use the information derived from this course in the application of his duties. As S-2 he is responsible for the battalion chemical detection, radiological survey and the decontamination teams.

Prior to his assignment as S-2, Lt. Dulaney served as battery assistant executive officer and forward observer.

10-Day Maneuver Tests Proficiency Of Task Forces on Unfamiliar Ground opposed each other in a semi-controlled maneuver which allowed all commanders much greater freedom of movement.

Division Aviation played a major role in the exercise. As Major Albert H. Becker, Brigade aviation commander, stated, "we were able to fly over 60 missions every day during the exercise. Weather forced us to miss only several of our commitments for air support. Division Aviation was for the first time able to demonstrate the type of support that it is capable of giving. To keep the aircraft in the air and demonstrate a sustained capability required a major effort on the part of maintenance personnel under the direction of Captain Daniel R. Stefanowich, direct support platoon commander. We feel this unit successfully met every test."

McClellan Support

Through the efforts of Colonel Lon H. Smith, commanding officer of Fort McClellan, 2nd Division units were given 100 per cent support by the post. Excellent rations were furnished by the Fort McClellan Quartermaster. Mobile post exchange services traveled throughout the maneuver site.

Some personal emergencies did arise while the men were in the field and division chaplains gave "around the clock" assistance. When necessary, additional assistance was given through the combined efforts of Stephen E. Bailey, field director of the Fort McClellan Red Cross and Theodore F. Alvarez, assistant field director from Fort Benning, detailed to the 2nd Division for the full period of the exercise.

Major Joe T. Ely, Brigade signal officer, said "communications personnel in all the units performed under trying conditions, but, because of their efforts, we feel that superior communications were maintained throughout the entire operation. This training has been invaluable to all communications personnel."

The Brigade signal detachment furnished a dramatic example of just how effective communications were during the exercise when Major General Charles H. Chase, division commanding general, visiting the maneuver site, made a call Sunday from his jeep in the field through radio-wire integration facilities to Colonel Gustav M. Bacharach, division chief of staff, at Fort Benning.

17th Qualifies Eight 'Experts'

By 17th Arty PIO

Eight men qualified as field artillery expert gunner when the 17th Artillery administered the Expert Gunner Test. Seventy-four men from the two firing batteries took the test.

The highest score in the battalion was made by Sergeant First Class Taylor Bumper of Battery A when he registered a score of 97.5 per cent. The seven other men to qualify as expert gunner, all of Battery A, were Staff Sergeant Winfred T. Parsell, Sergeant Bert E. Slayden, Corporal Charles L. Jones, Corporal Cornelius Kiel, Corporal Charles W. Smith, Private Joseph P. Schmidt and Private Harry C. Poe.

In addition to those qualifying as Expert Gunner, 25 men qualified as first class gunner and 37 men qualified as second class gunner.

The test is a rigid all-inclusive test in which the candidate is required to perform the various duties of a field artillery gunner. Only the highly-trained cannoneer can qualify as an expert gunner.

Appropriate badges will be awarded to those who qualified.

27th, 69th Exchange Instructors

The 27th Artillery and the 69th Armor have been conducting classes on an exchange basis.

The Armor instructors, Lieutenant William M. Spilken, Lieutenant Frederick T. Mullens and Lieutenant Dan C. McCall, under the direction of Capt. Harold W. Roder, commanding officer, Company C, 69th Armor, instructed classes on the history, equipment and tactics, and the role of the 69th Armor Battalion in Division operations.

The Artillery instructors, Lieutenant Charles W. Seal and Lieutenant Augustus Burgdorf, under the direction of Lieutenant Donald H. Shomake, Battalion S-2, 27th Artillery, presented instruction on Artillery weapons, procedures for fire and methods of requesting fire.

Sgt. C. Jenkins Assigned to 87th S-3 (Operations)

By 87th Inf PIO

Staff Sergeant Charles H. Jenkins has recently been assigned to the 87th Infantry as the new operations sergeant in the S-3 section.

He comes to the 87th after an assignment with the division operations staff. Prior to that he served in the same capacity with the 11th Infantry.

Sergeant Jenkins has been in the 2nd Division since March 1959, but has been around Fort Benning and Columbus for a long time. He was reared in Columbus and is an alumnus of both Columbus High School and Gordon Military College in Barnesville, Ga. His first Army assignment was as an Infantry cadet in 1942. He was commissioned the following year. At present, he holds the rank of major in the Army reserve.

With almost 20 years of service behind him, Sergeant Jenkins is preparing himself for a teaching career after his retirement.

At CBN School

Lieutenant Robert L. Ament, assistant S-2 officer of the 1st Infantry, is presently TDY to Fort McClellan, Ala. There, he is attending a four week course at the Chemical, Biological and Nuclear School.

Historical Room Gets Facelifting at 7th Cav

The 7th Cavalry recently completed redecoration of its Gary Owen Historical Room.

The room, containing numerous items historically - significant to the 7th Cavalry and the United States, was remodeled with a view toward enhancing the display of these items. They include, among others, portraits of the cavalry commanders from General George Armstrong Custer to the last commander under the regimental system.

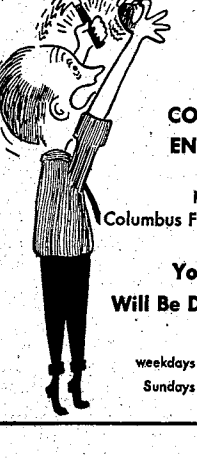
Also found are pictures of the pre - World War War II and the Poncho Villa era, lineage and battle honors of the 7th Cavalry's Fort Benning-based third reconnaissance squadron and historical mementoes of the Indian wars.

These include a saber, typical of the "old" cavalry, an old Sioux battle ax and a Sharp's 45-50 caliber rifle that belonged to a former Troop B commander.

The cavalry's Medal of Honor winners bear prominent positions in the Gary Owen Historical Room. The same is true for pictures depicting the cavalry's role in the Korean Conflict and during the years following it in which the cavalry was a member of the 1st Cavalry, Korea.

There are pictures from World War II days, and the traditional red-and-white guidons used by the 7th Cavalry during the Indian wars.

On the wall to the left of the historical room entrance are portraits of the third reconnaissance squadron's commanders since its reactivation. Also found are trophies, newspaper clippings and maps telling the cavalry "story."



Rifle Team Leader Promoted at 11th

Sergeant Fares Rains, a rifle team leader in Company E, 11th Infantry, was recently promoted to his present rank.

Sergeant Rains, who joined the Army in March of 1959, served in Germany with the 15th Cavalry, 4th Armored Division, before coming to the 11th Infantry in the fall of 1961.

Trains Falls to Conquerors; 1st Pins 9th; Sep Bn Defeats 11th

From Unit PIOs

The 87th Infantry Conquerors made Harmony Church fieldhouse the scene of their sixth conquest of the season Monday night as they defeated Division Trains, 69-51.

The game was evenly fought throughout most of the first half as the lead changed hands several times. A hot scoring pace was set by Trains' Walter Clark who ended the half with 16 points, putting his team in the lead at the midway mark, 29-24.

An inspired 87th team took charge in the third quarter as the halftime Trains' lead dwindled. George Krajack brought the game to a 35-35 tie and put the 87th ahead with three consecutive outsiders. The lead did not change again and the Conquerors' trio of Krajack, Ronand Brooks and Frank Byrd, with strong assistance by Lawery Jordan, combined to post 10 and 20-point leads in the fourth quarter.

High man for Division Trains was Clark with a total of 25 points. The Conquerors' top scorer was Brooks with 16.

1st Inf	51
9th Inf	37

In hoop action Monday evening at Kelley Hill gym, the 1st Infantry pinned the sixth straight loss on the 9th Infantry by a score of 51-37.

Behind a tight defense and a slow deliberate offense, the 1st moved to a slim 12-7 lead at the end of the first ten minutes of play. But with the scoring of Jim Chandler, the 1st pulled away to command a 20-13 lead at the end of the half.

At the offset of the second 20 minutes of play, it looked as if the 9th might be able to get back into the game. Following the lead of Ben Nordell's rebounding and scoring and the sparkling offensive play of Joe Godfrey, who threaded the needle for 12 assists, the Manchumen moved into contention with ten minutes to play trailing by a score of 34-27.

Here the "Always First" unit showed what a winning team is made of as they hit the boards from all angles and coasted to the victory. As the buzzer sounded it was the 1st victory going away.

The winning 1st Infantry squad was led by Jim Chandler's 14 points while Ben Nordell of the 9th took game scoring honors with 18 points.

69th Armor	81
11th Inf	70

69th Armor, representing Separate Battalions, defeated the 11th Infantry, 81-70, Monday night at the Harmony Church fieldhouse.

Behind the sharpshooting of Carrie Fleming, the 69th five jumped out in front early in the game and led 36-31 at the half. The 11th fought back in the second half, but the Armor squad maintained their lead to take home the win.

Fleming led the scoring with 30 points, 14 in the first half and 16 in the second. Ron Pinner paced the 11th Infantry's scoring attack with 21 points.

27th Artillery Winner Of DivArty Rifle Shoot

In a recent Division Artillery rifle competition between all the artillery units of the division, top honors were won by the 27th Artillery.

Coaching by Lieutenant Donald H. Shomaker, guidance by team captain Sergeant First Class Howard E. Todd and a determined attitude by all members resulted in the improvement of firing skill needed to win.

Members of the team are Sergeant First Class Howard E. Todd, Battery B; Specialist Five Louis W. Keeling, Headquarters Battery; Corporal Thomas T. Atkinson, Battery B; Specialist Four George A. Tharrett, Headquarters Battery; Specialist Four Max A. McNeil, Headquarters Battery; and Private First Class Louis W. Rouse, Battery A.

MORALE FACTOR

The exchange is an important morale factor and an important element in the military way of life.

Members of the team are presently practicing for possible participation in further rifle competition with the Division Artillery team.

Second Slate Games

Pinner's Lay-up Gives 11th Win in Last 5 Sec.

A driving lay-up by Ron Pinner in the last five seconds of play gave the 11th Infantry a 67-66 decision over the 1st Infantry in the second slate of games last week.

The tense closing seconds climaxed a contest in which the 1st pulled ahead early in the game. Playing deliberate ball and taking only the sure shots the 1st led by as many as nine points in the first half but the 11th came alive near the end of the period and tied it up at 24 all as 3:20 showed on the clock.

The 11th went ahead to lead 33-30 at the half and continued to hit consistently in the second stanza, building up a nine-point lead.

13 To Go

Then the 1st bounced back to come from behind and take the lead 66-65 with 13 seconds to go.

With five seconds showing, the 11th took the ball out of bounds and Pinner drove in for the winning basket. He was high man with 26 while Jimmy Chandler recorded 16 for the 1st.

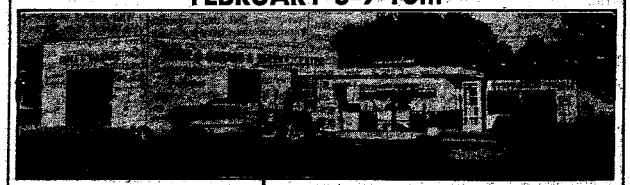
The 87th Infantry moved their record to five wins and one loss in a defeat of the 69th Armor, 70-54.

The Conquerors took an early lead of 12-5 in the first four minutes as George Krajack proved his accuracy on outside shots.

With four minutes remaining in the half, the Tankers took a 24-23 lead only to see the 87th command the game at the half 33-27.

The Conquerors then maintained an eight to 12-point lead during the remainder of the game.

High man for the 87th was Krajack with 23 while Vernon Carter dropped in 15 for the Tankers.



Hubert Barksdale, a consistent pace man of the Division Artillery's squad, led his mates to a 93-77 victory over Division Trains as he poured in 31 points.

Roscoe Lacy and Walter Clark each posted 17 for the Trains quintet.

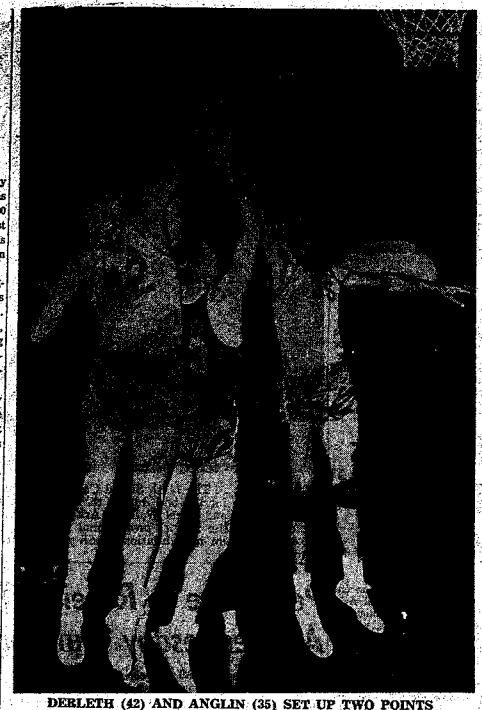
111th Signal Takes 74-72 Loss to Girls

By Sfc Bismarck Sith



The 111th Signal Company and Hazel Walker's Arkansas Travelers thrilled over 3,500 hungry basketball fans last Sunday night at Briant Wills Field House in an exhibition game.

Although the Travelers edged the Signalmen 74-72, it was an exiting show all the way. Hazel Walker's all-girl team, in its 13th year of performing against all men's teams, showed years of experience in handling the ball.

The 111th Signal Company team, consisting of all college players, gave a good account of itself against the nation's top all-girl team.

Frances "Goose" Garroutte, captain, manager, coach and a 11 year veteran, displayed her famous trick shots throughout the contest. She led her team with 51 points, mostly shots from the middle or at the end of the court.

Ronnie Salyer was high scorer for the signalman with 18 points, followed by teammates Bill Mathis with 16 and Jim Westcott with 14 points. Other players contributing points for the post team were Gordon Seay, nine; Bryan Kirby, 6; Walt Bull, 4; and Ken Smith 5. The Signal team is coached by Lt. John M. Wicklliffe.

Trap and Skeet Shooting Club Organized; Competition Starts

The Trap and Skeet Shooting Club has been organized at the post, with competitive shoots each month beginning in February and continuing through August.

First in the series was a trapshoot last Sunday. A skeet shoot follows next Sunday.

Trophies and other awards are presented to the winners in various categories of both trap and skeet.

A shooter classification system is used, which allows beginners an equal opportunity of winning, according to club president, Col. Curtis E. Hankins, commander of Lawson Army Aviation Command.

The club was organized under the direction of Col. Robin G. Montgomery, commander of the Army Marksmanship Training Unit. The club facilities are open for shooting trap and skeet each Sunday at 1 p.m.

Facilities include three skeet fields, a trap field and the only international clay pigeon range in the country. A club house is also available for use of the members. The organization accepts membership applications from military and civilian sportsmen.

Col. Hankins said shooting costs have been reduced to an absolute minimum.

"In addition, we will have qualified shooters on hand each Sunday to assist anyone in learning the fundamentals or in bettering their present shooting skill," the colonel added. "This seems to me like the opportunity of a lifetime for anyone who wants to master shotgun shooting and enjoy a fascinating sport at such reasonable costs."

Club secretary, Major Henry H. Parr, assigned to the Army Marksmanship Training Unit, asks anyone desiring further information to contact him at 54-5-1153, or the club's vice president Major Edwin P. Gebhardt of the 86th Military Police Detachment, at 545-2312.

COMFORT COUNTS

A very important aspect in bowling often overlooked is stance. If your stance doesn't feel right, try extending one foot slightly in front of the body. This may relieve tension.

Keep weight evenly divided on feet. Each champion has his own stance, but imitating may not help you.

The most important thing is to feel comfortable. If your stance makes you feel tense, it cannot be the right one.

WACs to Meet Bragg in Effort To Cop 7th Win

Benning's WAC basketball team will be seeking its seventh victory Saturday, when it meets Fort Bragg at Briant Wells Field House at 2 p.m.

The team's six victories were against Fort McClellan, (35-28); Pensacola, Fla., (50-47); Fort Jackson, (38-27) and (48-25), and the Phenix City Invaderettes, (24-20) and (46-24).

29th Leads Off Cage 2nd Half

By Sfc Bismarck Sith

Five games were played last week in the major unit basketball loop. The 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, champs after the first-half, chalked up two wins to remain undefeated in two starts.

The Two-Niners walked over 58th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, 90-51, and edged The Student Brigade, 57-41 for their victories.

In the game with the 58th Infantry, Henry Derleth led the Two-Niners by dropping in 21 points, followed by teammates Bob Whitehead, with 16; Curtis Gentry, 15; Frank Johnson, 14; and Robert Anglin with 12 points. Freddie Morris had 21 points and Douglas Davis hit the net for 12 points for the losers.

Last Friday night The Student Brigade edged the 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade, 57-46, with Carver Jones high scorer with 20 points for the winners, while Ray Young made 10 points for the Redlegs.

Student Brigade suffered their first setback recently at the hands of the league first half champs, 57-41. At the end of the first half of play the Infantryman led by a score of 32-12, but the Brigadeers struck back in the second half and picked up 12 points before the Two-Niners were able to score. They also came to life in the closing minutes of the game to score 25 points for their second victory. Bob Whitehead and Curtis Gentry led the team in points with 16 each.

After dropping the opening game to the 29th Infantry, 90-51, the 58th Infantry came back and defeated the Infantry Center Troop Command, 57-45. Freddie Morris of the 58th Infantry had 24 points for the individual score. Clyde Grove made 11 points for the losers.

In other games played, the 10th Artillery Redlegs downed Center Troop Command, 73-62, in a close contest. Ray Young, 24 points, and Alvin Flagg, 23 points, were the high scorers for the Artillerymen. Pete Cavanaugh, 19; Wilson, 15; and Marty Leight, 15 points, were top scorers for Center Troop Command.

HUNTING DRAWS TO A CLOSE

Hunting activities have slowed up on post with only rabbit and quail currently in season. Nevertheless, both rabbit and bird hunting continue to be good. February 20 will mark the end of hunting activities on the Alabama portion of the reservation while the rabbit and quail season closes February 25 on the Georgia portion of the post.

FISHING IMPROVES

The recent spring-like weather has awakened the fish from their winter sleep as many fishermen can verify by their catches during the past week. After several days of warm weather last week several nice strings of bass were being taken from Kings Pond on both live and artificial bait.

Many fishermen were having good luck with minnows while several nice bass were taken on the popular rubber worm and in some cases silver spoons and spinner. However by the weekend activity had slowed up at King's Pond and nice catches were being made at Harp's, Schley, and Patterson Ponds.

HUNTING AND FISHING PERMITS

Sportsmen are reminded that in addition to a valid State hunting or fishing license, personnel must possess a Fish and Game Association membership or a daily hunting and fishing permit while bunting or fishing on the reservation. Both Georgia and Alabama hunting and fishing licenses are available at the Fish and Game office, Building 4050, Harmony Church.

Today's Sportrait

Pfc Curtis Gentry, 72nd Engineer Company, 1st Infantry Brigade, from Miami, Ohio, has all the credentials that distinguish a natural athlete.

He started his athletic career in high school by participating in baseball, basketball, and football.

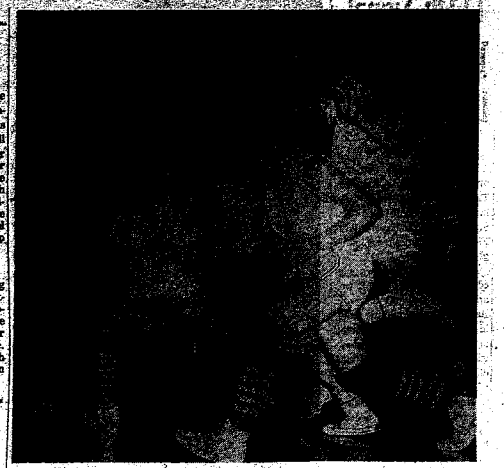
Gentry received an athletic scholarship in football at Miami College in 1955. He also played baseball and basketball while attending college.

He took spring training with the Detroit Tigers in 1960 and was assigned to one of their farm teams in Decatur, Ill., as an outfielder in the Midwest League, but his pro-baseball tour was cut short due to entering the services.



He arrived here in July, 1961, and was assigned to the 72nd Engineer Company. Gentry has been active in sports every since. During baseball season he played first base for the 25th Infantry in the Major Unit Baseball League. He also led his company's touch football team to the post semi-finals, as quarterback, in The Infantry Center company level touch football championship play-off.

Gentry is presently playing with the 29th Infantry basketball team which recently captured the championship for the first-half of play in the Major Unit Basketball League. Gentry currently ranks fourth among the leading scorers in the league.

FAA Groups Tour Post; Are Briefed

Two groups of civilian employees of the Federal Aviation Agency, representing two geographical regions, will arrived here Tuesday and Wednesday for a tour of post facilities.

The Eastern Regional group from New York City arrived at Lawson Field Tuesday evening, while the Central Regional group from Kansas City arrived Wednesday.

Wednesday morning the New York group observed basic Airborne training, and later went to Fryar Field to watch parachute jumps.

That afternoon both groups attended briefings in the organization of The Infantry Center and Infantry School, and observed a weapons problem.

Thursday morning the FAA personnel received a Ranger orientation, saw problems on capabilities and limitations of ground mobility means and the Infantry-tank team in attack.

The groups departed from Lawson Field yesterday.

Men in uniform have consistently rated the exchange as one of the most valued benefits of military service.

Pete Case to Receive Trophy At Wednesday 'Bulldog' Dinner

Pete Case, captain and All-SEC tackle for Georgia in 1961, will be presented the J. B. Whitworth Memorial Trophy in Columbus Wednesday night, February 14, at the annual meeting of the Georgia Bulldog Club of Muscogee County.

The Muscogee County Bulldog Club is donor of this trophy in memory of Georgia's great line coach who died in March, 1960. First winner was Pat Dye, All-American guard in 1959-60, now starring with the Edmonton Eskimos of the Canadian League.

Other guests at the party will be Athletic Director Wallace Butts, head football coach Johnny Griffith and Bulldog Club secretary Dan Magill.

Muscogee County and area athletes at Georgia, in the intercollegiate varsity sports, also will be special guests of honor: football — guards Kenneth Varn and Bobby Allen; golf; Jimmy Blanchard and Al Bell; basketball—Paul Winthrop, Phenix City; track — Frank Bernhard.

The program will start at 7 p.m. at the Black Angus Ranch Restaurant at the Traffic Circle.

Kenneth Henson, president of the club, said "We expect to have the biggest turnout we have ever had at at Bulldog Club meeting to honor Decatur's Pete Case, Georgia's fine captain, and our other guests. Area Bulldog Club members are invited. We especially want alumni now in the military at Fort Benning to join us."

Tickets may be purchased at $3.50 each from attorney Kenneth Henson, Jack King at King's School of Aviation and Bradley Driver at Rankin Realty Co.

At the Movies

ONE, TWO, THREE stars James Cagney, Horst Buchholz and Pamela Tiffin. An American soft drink executive in West Berlin campaigns to sell his product behind the Iron Curtain (now a wall). His scheme blows up in his face when his boss' beautiful daughter becomes involved with a beatnik East Berliner — which all leads to hilarious complications.

SWINGIN' ALONG is a comedy in color starring Tommy Noonan, Pete Marshall and Barbara Eden. The zany antics of a lovable, good natured stumble-bum and a shady character with a get-rich-quick scheme for sure success, lead the partners and their girl friends into dizzy sequences of scrapes, confusion and general pandemonium.

WOMAN HUNT, with Steven Piccaro and Lisa Lu, portrays a desperate business man in pursuit of his missing wife and a "dead man" who wouldn't die. He encounters a series of murders and an alluring oriental woman before learning the startling truth.

SIX BLACK HORSES stars Audie Murphy, Dan Duryea and Joan O'Brien. A roaming cow-poke is forced into a strange partnership with a horse rustler as they accept an offer of $2,000 for aiding a woman determined to have a reunion with her husband.

Chess Tournament Slated At YMCA Next Weekend

A Columbus Open Chess Tournament is scheduled by the Columbus Chess Club for Saturday and Sunday, February 17-18.

Games will start at the Armed Services YMCA, 14 West 11th Street, Saturday morning at 9 a.m. and continue until 11 p.m. Play will resume Sunday afternoon at 1 p.m. and continue until all contests are completed.

In order to be enrolled and scheduled, players who are interested should telephone the tournament chairman, Capt. Myron E. Lyman, FA 4-3562, or call the Armed Services YMCA, FA 3-6421. Registration fee of $1.00 per player may be paid at time of registration on Saturday morning. Contestants are urged to report by 8:45 a.m. in order that playing may start promptly at 9 o'clock.

The tournament will be conducted by Swiss Tournament Rules. A trophy will be awarded to the champion and appropriate awards will be presented to runners-up.

If possible each contestant could bring a small electric clock and his own chess set, though this is not required for entering or participating.

The tournament is being sponsored by the chess club in order to stimulate more interest in chess. The club meets regularly at the Armed Services YMCA on Tuesdays at 7:30 p.m., and invites all who are interested to join and play.

BOOKS in REVIEW

SKYDIVING by Rod Sellick (Prentice Hall, 1961)

Skydiving ranges from a complete, ground training program to a history of the parachute, use and types of various skydiving equipment, instructions on how to parachute, aircraft procedures, jump techniques, positions of the body in freefall, parachute manipulations, landings and collapsing and packing the parachute.

MEN AND WOMEN by Erskine Caldwell, (Little, 1961)

Caldwell's fiction not only shows man's inhumanity to man but the astonishing ability of some men to rise, with great nobility, above their muddy circumstance. In "Horse Thief" the hero will go to jail rather than put the slightest strain on the name of the girl he loves. Candy-Man Beechum, facing the stupid officer, dies with as much flair as he has lived. The order of appearance of the stories selected for this volume is not that of their composition or first publication but loosely follows their subject matter and it moves from youth to old age.

THE WHITE RAJAH by Nicholas Monsarrat. (Sloane, 1961)

When Sir James Morriott died in 1850, he bequeathed to his younger son, Richard, a map-maker's globe and two silver pistols — in other words, the world and weapons to conquer it. Accepting the bequest as rebuff rather than prophecy, Richard Marriott had nonetheless ten years later achieved a certain fame and fortune — though not, perhaps, in ways Sir James would not concored.

Valentine Queen to Be Selected At Tuesday Service Club Dance

Service Club I's program director announces plans for selecting a Valentine Queen at the Valentine Dance to be held at the club Tuesday, February 13, at 8 p.m.

The Valentine Queen drive got under way Wednesday at the Service Club. Contestants have been selected from the WAC Company, Columbus USO Clubs and the Women Armed Services in Columbus.

A photograph of each contestant is displayed in the club with a deposit container attached to each photograph. Pennies deposited will count as votes and will determine the queen during the dance.

Entries are: WAC Company, Elizabeth Glass, Margaret Mitchell, Georgine Ortiz, Pat Mack, Janet Mauldin and Deane Thomas. 9th Street USO Club, Precella Saines and Kitty O'Connor, Women's Armed Services, Shirley Wooten and Minnie Qualls.

Two contestants from the 5th Avenue USO will be named at a later date. The final voting and crowning will take place at the dance.

All proceeds from the contest will go to the March of Dimes drive being conducted at the Service Club.

Korean Officers Briefed During Recent TIS Visit

Brig. Gen. Ujoon Yu, assistant deputy chief of staff for operations, Republic of Korea Army, was at Fort Benning recently for a three-day tour and briefing.

He observed a weapons demonstration at Hook Range, an Infantry-tank team in attack on Buma Hill and was briefed on methods of instruction.

The general arrived at the Muscogee County Airport January 25. He then toured the post and visited the Infantry Museum.

Gen. Yu was briefed the following day on the history and organization of The Infantry Center and The Infantry School, and on the utilization of Fort Benning in training support.

Before an official luncheon he was briefed on the Infantry's organization and tactics. The general then visited the Ground Mobility Department and The Infantry School's assistant commandant, Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles, Jr.

Host for the luncheon was Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly, deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center.

After the luncheon, he was oriented on Army aircraft, methods and progress of instruction and the Officer Candidate School.

Accompanying Gen. Yu were Brig. Gen. Koukseng Lee, dicurity, Intelligence Division, and Brig. Gen. Inchul Kim, director for operations and organization, Operations Division, and Col. Linkul Chang, chief of the War Planning Division, Operations Division, and Col. Namwoo Lee, chief of the Asia Division, Intelligence Division.

Lt. Smith Assigned

Second Lt. Donald H. Smith has been assigned to The Infantry School Communications Department.

He will serve as an instructor on the Message Center Operations Subcommittee of the department's Applied Communications Committee.

Lt. Smith was formerly a member of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade.

Seven Languages Between Them--Not Enough, They Study Russian

Four members of Battery A, 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade, are adding Russian to languages they have already mastered, through The Infantry Center's Educational Development facilities.

The four are Sgt. Arthur E. Powell, Sp4 Raymond N. Pavlicek, Pfc Edward A. Blackowiak and Pfc Lajos Nagy. They are enrolled in the Educational Development Section's 15-week course in the Russian language.

Serious students, three are also engaged in additional correspondence studies.

Sgt. Powell, who recently completed a course in mathematics, already speaks German, Dutch and Flemish; Pfc Blackowiak, currently studying law though correspondence, speaks Polish; Pfc Naby, who, with Blackowiak, recently enrolled in the new American University on post, speaks Hungarian, German and some Russian; and Sp4 Pavlicek speaks Czechoslovakian.

Sunday School Move Reported

The Lutheran Sunday School at Fort Benning, formerly conducted in the Lawson Army Airfield area, has been moved to the Religious Education Center, Buildings, 2619 and 2620.

The Sunday school begins at 11 a.m.

There are approximately 50 children enrolled in the school.

Lutheran worship services begin at 9:30 a.m. at Main Post Chapel 2 at Lawson.

For further information about the Sunday School, telephone Mrs. Jay L. Hatley, 544-2946, or Chaplain (1st Lt.) George Reswik, 545-2093.

MANAGEMENT IMPROVEMENTS . . . The Infantry School and The Infantry Center Safety Office are cited for monetary savings and management improvements during the second quarter of fiscal year 1962. Here Norman Evans, post safety director, receives the safety certificate from Major Gen. Ben Harrell, post commander. Brig. A. D. Surles, Jr., received a plaque on behalf of the School, during the recent ceremonies in Gen. Harrell's office. Monetary savings at The School during the quarter totaled $82,000. Participation in the program by the Safety Office was highest of any post activity. (Sig Lab Photo By Mr. Hardy

During 3-Gun Pistol Matches

Sfc Blankenship's Aggregate Second Highest Ever Recorded

National pistol champion Sfc William Blankenship of the Army's Marksmanship Training Unit showed he is still going to be the man to beat at the National Matches this year by making a clean sweep of the three-gun match fired on the post last Saturday, sponsored by the post Rifle and Pistol Club.

In near perfect shooting weather he fired a total of 2655 out of a possible 2700 points. Only one other shooter in the U. S., Capt. Franklin Green of the USAF Pistol Team, has ever shot 2655 or better besides Blankenship.

Blankenship obtained his totals by dropping only 11 points in the 900-point 22 caliber matches; firing an 885x900 in the Center Fire event, and collecting an outstanding 881x900 with the 45 pistol. The Center Fire matches are shot with pistols of 28 caliber or larger.

While Blankenship was making a runaway of the aggregate events, his teammates from the USAMTU collected first place in every individual match.

One of the most exciting shooting exhibitions of the day was put on by 1st Lt. Cecil Wallace who missed only one point in the three timed fire matches. These events consist of 20 shots with each weapon, fired in five-shot strings with a 20 second time limit. He dropped his point with the 22 and then cleaned the course with the Center Fire and 45 pistols.

THE RESULTS:

Grand Aggregate — Sgt. Blankenship, 2655

.45 Aggregate—Sgt. Blankenship, 881

Center Fire Aggregate — Blankenship, 885

.22 Aggregate — Blankenship, 889

She Picked The Right Place To Assure Triplets' Future

Homes have been found for the new "parishioners" which joined the congregation of St. Michael's Episcopal Mission on the post around Christmas.

Entering the mission one morning, Chaplain (Capt.) E. H. Hawn discovered a puppy under the Christmas tree. A second puppy was found among the figurines of the manger scene. A third puppy and the mother were also found.

The dogs were made comfortable at the chapel while Chaplain Hawn undertook to find homes for them.

The mother dog and two of the puppies were given away.

After a reminder from the chaplain in a recent Sunday service that "the New Year often brings surprises and always brings new responsibilities," a member of the congregation rallied to the cause, giving a home to the last of the puppies.

22 Girl Scouts Are Honored At Post Ceremony

Twenty-two Scouts of Troop 169 were honored last Friday at investing ceremonies for Intermediates at the Capehart Girl Scout Cottage on the post.

Fifteen girls had qualified for Tenderfoot ratings and seven received Brownie wings at the meeting.

Guests at the ceremonies were the mothers of the 30 members of Troop 169, along with special guests, Mesdames Gordon Williams, Edward Daniels, Son Smith and Herman A. Payne.

Leaders of the Girl Scout troop are Mrs. Charles W. Yoder and Mrs. Joseph P. Barrett.

Major Whalen President Of Benning SCUBA Club

The Fort Benning SCUBA Club has elected new officers for the ensuing year.

They are Major Thomas F. Whalen, president; John R. Poag, vice president, and 1st Lt. Robert J. Archibald, Jr., secretary.

Organized three years ago, the SCUBA Club gets its name from the type equipment used in diving, self-controlled underwater breathing apparatus.

Primarily interested in the military aspects of diving, members participate in recreational diving also.

Approximately 60 persons of varying proficiency attend the weekly meetings. Members are taught the fundamentals of diving at Briant Wells Field House swimming pool. Instruction progresses to using SCUBA gear to explore divers' sites in South Georgia and Florida.

Sponsored by The Infantry Center Special Services Section, the club meets Tuesdays from 7 to 9 p.m. at Briant Wells Field House.

U. S. Team Is First In Pistol Competition

The U. S. team, which trains at Fort Benning took first place Silver Medals in the 1961 International Free Pistol Postal Match, with a score of 5,446.

Second place went to Switzerland, with 5,366, and Sweden was third, with 5,348.

Results of the 10-man team, 60 shots per man at 50 meters event were received from the National Rifle Association by Army Lt. Col. Burton G. Boatright, U. S. team captain.

The U. S. team, competing with 13 Allied nations, was composed of Col. Boatright, Army Major Robert E. Dawson, team coach, Robert W. Lowe, civilian official witness, Air Force Capt. Franklin C. Green, Army MSgt. Fred S. Schaser, Sfc Samuel W. Hunter and Sgt. Janusz R. Sicinski.

Marine Corps WO William G. Eubank, Army Sfc William B. Blankenship, Sgt. Lloyd Burchett and Sgt. Richard M. Stineman, Air Force SSgt Robert C. Meagher and Navy Torpedoman Gasper P. DeFino completed the team.

Alternates were Marine Corps Sgt. Larry L. Hausman and Army Sfc William G. Horton.

The team from the U. S. fired for competition, with the scores being forwarded to the NRA in Washington, D. C., for comparison with other NATO countries participating in the match.

Last year Sweden took top honors, followed by the U. S. in second place and Switzerland in third.

ten days. This is the reason for the ten day observation-quarantine period following an animal bite.

Post regulations require that all pets over three months of age be vaccinated against rabies. As this disease is fatal in man, it is necessary to have the pets vaccinated for the protection of the family.

Cat Distemper

Cat distemper can kill up to 90 per cent of those that contract the disease. It is a virus disease of the white blood cells.

A cat in this condition cannot combat infection and may die within 24 to 48 hours. Two vaccinations, one at nine and the second at eleven weeks is an effective way to prevent this disease.

All of the above diseases can be prevented by vaccination. As treatment is expensive and often won't save the life of your pet, one must consider vaccination in the light of "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure".

Fire Prevention Is Endless For TSB Fire Marshall

By Pfc Bruce N. Yuffee

"Fire has no respect for person, time, nor place", says Mr. Samuel C. Jones, a retired master sergeant with over 20 years service, who is Student Brigade fire marshall. It is the responsibility of Mr. Jones to insure that all brigade buildings are in every way safe and protected against fire.

In servicing the more than 1500 structures used by TSB personnel, Mr. Jones must plan the administering of fire protection and prevention for each.

Of the many buildings and land areas, which include barracks, bachelor officer quarters, theaters, mess halls, classrooms, supply warehouses, service clubs, chapels, ordinance and signal maintenance shops, gasoline and vehicle storage areas, and firing ranges, almost 30 per cent are unoccupied; because of this factor, a constant check to maintain safety standards must be made periodically.

In addition, Mr. Jones supervises and participates in the training of unit fire marshalls, and disseminates materials pertinent to fire prevention to those individuals.

A monthly inspection report is submitted to the brigade commander, and deficiencies are corrected. In the case of a fire in the brigade area, a full report is submitted to the commander as to the cause, effect and damage.

On a recent tour of the Harmony Church area, the fire marshal, was startled by a suspicious sound coming from the far end of the building he was inspecting. Investigating to find the cause of the odd sounds, he was relieved to find it was only a family of rabbits that had taken shelter in the unoccupied structure.

Mr. Jones says, "to maintain a safety program within your unit or household, naturally takes a certain amount of time, but if each person would be safety conscious, this time could be cut to a minimum.

"Most fires are the cause of human carelessness rather than of natural derivation. Time cannot be replaced, but neither can a life or the gatherings of a lifetime. No one has the right to put the lives and properties of others in danger.

"Remember, a fire does not confine itself to the one responsible, it can, and does destroy everyone and everything

Post Christian Scientists Asked To Phone Names

Christian Science worship services are being conducted at the Infantry Center Protestant Chapel each Tuesday at 8 p.m., beginning this week this week.

Ralph A. Heisel of Atlanta, Christian Science minister for the Armed Services, will be on the post Tuesday and Wednesday of each week to confer with members of the congregation and conduct the service.

He will maintain office hours at the chapel from 1 to 5 p.m. Tuesdays and from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Wednesdays.

All Christian Science personnel on the post are being requested to telephone Chaplain (Col.) Silas E. Decker, Infantry Center chaplain, 545-7394, giving name, address and telephone number, to provide an up-to-date roster.

BOXCAR PX

During the Korean war, post exchanges were frequently set up in railroad boxcars to supply the troops at the front. One of these boxcars was captured by the enemy. Here's a storekeeper who not only lost his inventory, he lost his store.

Valentine Sweetheart Contest On

A "Valentine Sweetheart Contest" is being conducted at Martin Army Hospital from February 5 to 13.

Each male military patient has been requested to submit a picture of his wife or sweetheart for the competition.

Ambulatory patients turn in pictures at the American Red Cross Recreation Hall. Bed patients deliver entrants to volunteer workers who visit the wards.

The pictures will be judged at a party at 7 p.m. February 13 in the Recreation Hall.

Hostesses for the party will be members of the Future Homemakers Association of Baker High School, Columbus.

Secretary Stahr Praises Army in Informal Words to Senate Group

Secretary of the Army Elvis J. Stahr, Jr., appeared before the Senate Armed Services Committee on 26 January 1962. Preceding his formal statement, Secretary Stahr made the informal remarks which are reproduced below.

Mr. Chairman:

Before beginning my formal statement, I would like to make a few observations. This first year as Secretary of the Army has been fascinating, stimulating, challenging, exciting — and extremely busy — for me and all my associates. We have welcomed this, and I think much progress has been made.

I've had the help of a tremendous team. I wouldn't trade my chief civilian and military advisors for any management group I have seen in the Pentagon or anywhere else, in or out of Government. My philosophy has been to delegate authority commensurate with responsibility — to the full extent I am able within authority granted to me by law and by the Secretary of Defense and at the same time to remain intimately familiar with what's going on, to make the tough decisions, and to retain general policy guidance, through a team approach — outer evidence of which includes meetings three times weekly with my top management group, individual meetings weekly with each top civilian advisor, and "open door" relations with the Chief of Staff and the Vice Chief of Staff, and very

Military Academy Hopefuls Will Undergo Testing Here

Candidates for the U.S. Military Academy will undergo academic, medical and physical aptitude examinations here February 27 to March 3 to determine their qualifications for admission with the class scheduled to enter the Academy in July.

Identical examinations will be held simultaneously at approximately 35 other Army and Air Force installations in the U. S. and overseas.

The local examinations will be conducted by a board of officers, appointed by Major Gen. Ben Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center. President of the board is Col. Lawrence S. Reynolds, commander of the 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry.

Permission to take the examinations is limited to duly nominated candidates, who have been nominated from one of the sources provided by law and to whom letters of nomination have been issued by the Department of the Army, Washington, D. C. It is emphasized that the local examining board does not have authority to issue nominations or to process applications for nomination.

Strength Set By Law

The total authorized strength of the Corps of Cadets and all sources of appointment and admission are specified by law. About 750 new cadets are admitted each year.

The largest quota, representing about 85 per cent of the total, is allotted to the various states and congressional districts, for which the nominations are made by senators and representatives in Congress. Each senatorial seat and each congressional district may be represented at the Military Academy by no more than four cadets at any one time and new cadets may be admitted only as vacancies occur.

Applicants seeking a congressional nomination should apply directly to their senators or representatives. Col. Reynolds advises that this be done a year in advance of the intended date of admission to West Point.

One Class Each Year

Only one class is admitted each year, the date of admission being the first Tuesday in July. Smaller quotas, all of which are competitive, are provided by law for enlisted men of the Army and Air Force (Regular and Reserve components), sons of deceased veterans whose death resulted from war service disabilities during World Wars I or II or between June 27, 1950, and January 31, 1955; for sons of enlisted men or officers who are now, or who were at time of death, members of the Regular Army or the regular components of the Air Force.

NCO Among 50 Picked for Trip

National Guard and Reserve EM To Make Special Trip to Berlin

A National Guard sergeant on active duty at Fort Benning will be one of 50 Reserve component non - commissioned officers to go to Europe to attend an orientation on the mission and readiness of U.S. forces.

First Sgt. Marine F. Damvelt of Kalamazoo, Mich., a member of Company C, 156th Signal Battalion, 1st Infantry Brigade, was selected by a board of five Infantry Center officials appointed by Major Gen. Ben Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center.

According to the Department of the Army, purpose of the field trip is to orient selected Reserve component non-commissioned officers on the readiness of Army forces in Europe and the relationship of the recent callup of Reservists to the political situation there.

Seven of the NCO's participating in the field trip will be selected from the Third Army.

The NCO's are to leave McGuire Air Force Base, N. J., tomorrow. The trip will take approximately two weeks.

Damvelt was selected on the basis of his past record, his appearance before the board and his capability of briefing personnel of his own and other units on the information he gains from the trip.

He is the first sergeant for Company C, a Michigan National Guard unit from Kalamazoo. Company C was combined with three other Guard units from Detroit, Adrian and Monroe to form the 156th Signal Battalion.

The sergeant was graduated from the Western Michigan College of Education, receiving a bachelor of science degree in biology.

Next Weekend

Mid-Winter Pistol Event Is Scheduled

A Mid Winter Roundup Pistol Match has been scheduled by the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club for Saturday and Sunday, February 24-25, club officials announced this week.

More than 100 entrants are expected to go to the firing line, Thomas H. Kirkman, match executive officer, said. They will be competing for individual and team awards with 22 caliber, center fire and 45 caliber weapons. Center fire matches are fired with any pistol of 38 caliber or larger.

The two-day event, which is sanctioned by the National Rifle Association, will be held on the Main Post Pistol Range.

On Saturday, the shooters will fire individual matches with the 22 caliber and center fire weapons, at 8 a.m. and 1 p.m., respectively. The 45 caliber matches will be shot Sunday at 8 a.m. The team matches with each of the three guns will begin at 1 p.m. Sunday.

Entries for participation in the meet must reach the club not later than February 19, Kirkman said. He added that post entries will not be accepted.

Other officials for the match are Henry Barbian, chief range officer, Sfc John Bragg, statistical officer, and Ben Curtis, official NRA referee.

300

Capehart Units Are Approved

Approval for 300 Capehart family units at Fort Benning has been announced by the District Army Engineer, Savannah.

They are part of 500 units originally requested to replace sub-standard housing.

Plans call for the issuance of bid invitations on or about April 30, 1962, to be opened late in May. The actual contract is tentatively scheduled to be let June 29.

A district engineer spokesman said they expect to have the units ready for occupancy by November, 1963.

Of the 300 units, 160 will be for officers and 140 for noncommissioned officers.

Design contract for the units has been awarded to the Atlanta firm of Wise, Simpson, Aiken and Associates.

MTU Pistol Team to Defend Texas Title Held Since '59

A formidable group of pistol shooters, representing the Army, will participate in the Texas Mid-Winter Pistol Championships at San Antonio, tomorrow and Sunday.

All are assigned to the Army Marksmanship Training Unit and represent the best in Army handgun marksmen.

This will be the first big match for the shooters as they make preparations for defense of the team titles won at the National Pistol Matches at Camp Perry, Ohio, last year.

In the Texas Mid-Winter the Army is the defending Grand Aggregate Team Champion, an event it has monopolized since 1959. Last year the soldiers won the Center Fire Team Championship for the consecutive year, the 22 Caliber Team event, first place, Master class with the Center Fire and 45 caliber weapons and second place in the Master Class in the Grand Aggregate.

Leading the strong Army contingent this year will Sfc. William Blankenship, current national pistol champion, and Sfc Sam Hunter, the U. S. International Slow Fire champion.

Also on the squad are the two men who fired with Blankenship and Hunter when they won the National Trophy Pistol Team match at Camp Perry in 1961. They are Sfc Robert L. Jones and MSgt James Kurtz.

In this first big meet in which the Army shooters will participate this year the USAMTU is also entering 24 other pistol shooters, all of whom have proven themselves expert pistol shooters.

The meet will be a three-gun affair with individual and team matches.

The men will fire 22 caliber, Center Fire and 45 caliber events. Center fire matches are shot with pistol of 38 cal-nearly that with all top officers of the General Staff.

Sec. Stahr

It has been a year of substantial progress for your Army. It has not been simple, easy, or always pleasant. Problems have been countless. But aside from the more tangible measurements of strength and readiness which will be highlighted in our formal presentations, I can testify from daily personal observation, contact and knowledge that the U. S. Army has been undergoing a psychological transformation —unconsciously, in the main an uplift in attitudes— bolstered by the growing realization that its contribution and potential for the national security are understood by the Commander-in-Chief, the Congress and increasingly by the country, even though recognizing that the Army cannot, and probably should not, have everything its own way.

By more than any other thing about the Army, I have been impressed with the deep dedication, the utterly sincere desire to give the utmost in them, of the Army staff here, from the Chief on down, and of the commanders, staff officers and soldiers throughout this man's Army worldwide. I have visited most, though not quite all, of our major commands, and a sizable number of subsidiary units and installations, and I can tell this Committee that the Army personnel worldwide are absolutely committed people. I include not only our officers and men, but also the wives and the civilian employees. Our Army today is composed of some of the finest citizens of this Nation in loyalty, devotion, and ability — and they are far more imaginative, forward looking and knowledgeable than anyone who is not in intimate touch with them is likely to realize. Their attitude toward hard work is not so much one of willingness as eagerness. To work with the U.S. Army is an inspiring experience.

The staff didn't suggest I say any of these things—they didn't even know that I was going to say these things. I just think it's a good idea once in a while to give credit where credit is due.

My final prefatory word is that the Army, wherever you find it — and today you find it in every part of the globe — is not working its heart out merely for the benefit of the Army, but for the good of the country. The contest between freedom and communism is the fundamental concern of all of us and transcends any personal or parochial approach.

An illustration — and I could give many more — of the Army's objective approach is the currently active Reorganization matter. This is an example of the Army's capacity for self-criticism, constructive thinking, and forward looking. I have seen many others these past twelve months. The Army as I have observed it is keenly and fully aware of the total threat to the security of our country. It is likewise alive to the many ways, in addition to preparing for actual combat, in which it can swing tremendous weight in the continuing cold war. It is constantly evolving better ways to use all its great potential to the fullest and for the minimum cost.

Mr. Chairman, all the Army asks is to be given a job to do — no matter how tough — and a reasonable amount of resources and authority to do it — and that job will be done!

Testing

Navy, Marine Corps or Coast Guard, and for honor graduates of military or naval schools.

Although the standards for admission are necessarily high, any healthy, intelligent young American graduating from high school with good grades should be able to pass the required tests; according to officials.

The examinations consist of the college board tests to determine scholastic aptitude; a series of physical aptitude examinations to measure coordination and development, and a thorough medical examination.

Credits May Suffice

College credits are sufficient in some cases to exempt candidates from certain portions of the academic examination, but all candidates must take the scholastic aptitude, physical aptitude and medical examinations.

All young men interested in a military career with preparation at West Point are urged to write to The Adjutant General, Washington 25, D. C., or to the Admissions Division, U. S. Military Academy, West Point, N. Y., for a copy of the West Point catalogue.

Army Secretary's Address

Equal Strength Needed To Assure Peace--Stahr

Stressing the Infantry's role in providing for the free world's security, Secretary of the Army Elvis J. Stahr, Jr., spoke before a joint session of The Infantry School's career officer classes last Thursday at Fort Benning.

Secretary Stahr addressed the students while at the post for the 10th annual Robert P. Patterson Award presentation to 2nd Lt. John H. Hayes, a member of the 101st Airborne Division at Fort Campbell.

Mrs. Patterson made the presentation to the 23-year-old lieutenant, named outstanding Infantry Officer Candidate School graduate of fiscal year 1960-1961.

Addressing the career classes in the Main Post Theater after the award ceremonies, Secretary Stahr said the U.S. is engaged in a war to forestall war.

He described the recent call-up of the National Guard and Army Reserve forces as a mobilization for peace.

"History has shown that we are not a warlike nation, and the present buildup of our Armed Forces is not a contradiction of that, rather it is an awareness of the growing threat to peace," the speaker added.

"We must work with all our ability to find a solution to world peace," he said, "but at the same time we must maintain our defenses at full strength so when our diplomats sit down at the conference table our strength will be equal to those who would subject the world to tyranny."

Stahr, a former student and instructor at The Infantry School, was positive in saying that regardless of the destructive power of present weapons the Infantry will remain the ultimate weapon.

He stated that throughout history many devices have proven their value in wars.

From the time of Genghis Khan, when the mobility provided by the horse was invaluable, to World War II and the airplane, man has shown his ingenuity, but wars are won on the ground and the Infantry remains our greatest ground weapon, the secretary asserted.

He described three basic Infantry capabilities that are most important as far as U. S. national planners are concerned. They are the ability to fight anywhere on earth in any type of terrain or climate, the unique ability to complement other branches, and the potential as an anti-guerilla force.

Stressing this last capability, he said, "Today's weapons with their tremendous destructive power should characterize the present type of war, but they are only doing so indirectly by forcing us to see irregular warfare (guerrilla)."

He added that ultimate freedom might depend on this type of warfare.

Earlier the two National Guard divisions and Army Reserve units called to active duty in the recent buildup received his praise when he stated they had given an inestimable boost in mobilization for peace.

He likened the present U.S position in the world scene as that of the number one nation in the defense of world peace.

He said, "We are watched by both the free world and the countries behind the Iron Curtain."

"Although we hope to deter war, we intend to be able to fight any type of war at any time and the willingness to fight must be backed by being able to fight conventional or nuclear wars," he said.

Secretary Stahr concluded his talk by telling the officers, "We have a big, tough task ahead of us, but nowhere are the tasks so demanding than in over-all excellence in the military. It is up to you, and I am completely confident that you of the Infantry will meet this challenge."

Recent OC Grad Gets Rare Honor

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—Two Army enlisted men have been selected to attend the Argentine National Military Academy at Buenos Aires. Both West Point candidates, they are the first U.S. representatives to attend a Latin American military academy.

Selected for the Argentine school were Sfc Robert J. Olson, a cadet candidate at the U.S. Military Academy Preparatory School, Fort Belvoir, Va., and Spc Oren Swain Jr., a clerk at the Army Command Management School, also at Fort Belvoir.

Only one other Army enlisted man has ever been selected to attend a foreign military academy. He is Pfc. Eckwood H. Solomon, Jr., now a second classman in the Philippine Military Academy.

Sgt. Olson will be preparing for his second commission in the Army. He is a graduate of the Officers Candidate School here, but reverted to enlisted status to compete for a West Point appointment.

NG, Reserve Units End Annual Testing

National Guard and Reserve units of the 428 Medical Battalion completed the advanced unit phase of training and were administered the Army Training Test last week. The battalion commander, Lt. Col. Raymond J. Caldbeck, expressed satisfaction in the overall scores. No unit rated less than "Excellent", it was reported.

The National Guard units recalled to active duty last year include the 216 Medical Company (Clearing) from Lake Village, Ark., commanded by Lt. Col. Allen G. Talbot; the 128 Medical Company (Ambulance) of Fairhope, Ala., and the 129 Medical Company (Clearing) of Mobile, Ala. The 128th is commanded by Capt. Edward and the 129th by Major Frederick De Vane.

Army Training Tests serve as a yardstick for commanders to determine the ability of units to perform their assigned mission. Units loading against time must be able to move into a remote area and defend it against simulated aggressors while becoming operational. Chemical attacks against assembly areas add realism to the test.

Provost Marshal General Makes Post Staff Visit

The Army's provost marshal general, Major Gen. Ralph J. Butchers, arrived here Wednesday for a staff visit.

His itinerary for the morning included a call on Major Gen. Ben Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center, and later a briefing on the organization and mission of The Infantry School and the utilization of Fort Benning in support of training.

After a visit with The Infantry Center provost marshal, Lt. Col. James E. Farmer, at his office, Gen. Butchers and Col. Farmer went to the Black Angus Restaurant, where the general addressed a meeting of the Valley Peace Officers' Association.

Col. Farmer is president of the organization and Edward S. Moncrief, chief of the Columbus Police Department, is vice president.

Wednesday afternoon, Gen. Butchers observed the combat readiness test of the 105th Military Police Company, a National Guard unit from Utica, N.Y.

Accompanying the general were Capt. LeRoy H. Fargason of the Third Army, Fort McPherson.

They departed from Lawson Field yesterday.

What Is a Newspaper?

One Year's Newsprint: To the Sun and Return

(Fourth of an AFPS Series)

More than 900 billion pages rolled off the presses of U.S. daily newspapers in 1960 —two and one-half billion each day.

The newsprint consumed in this massive outflow, some 6,860,000 tons, represents a continuous ribbon of paper 15 inches wide and close to 195 million miles long — more than enough to reach the sun and return, or, to keep things down to earth, enough to gird our planet at the equator over 7,800 times.

It would take an Armed Forces jet plane, traveling at the speed of sound, 30 years to cover the distance.

It wasn't the jet, however, but 150,000 of its earthbound cousins—railroad freight cars —which hauled about four million tons of the newsprint used last year to newspaper plants all over the country. A string of freight cars which would occupy a stretch of track from New York City to Omaha, Neb., not counting locomotives. The remainder of the newsprint was shipped by water or truck.

Aside from newsprint, newspapers buy a lot of things each year to bring the news to their readers. Such as about 265 million pounds of ink — black and color — not to mention photographic and office supplies and millions of dollars worth of electricity to run the presses and light the plants.

More than 100 different skills and talents are required to get the newspaper to its readers — machinists, reporters, printers, clerks, secretaries, salesmen, operators, photographers, perforators, editors, business managers— just to name a few.

Newspapers are a major part of the American economy.

The Surgeon Says:

Household Items Are Often Killers

By Major A. A. Turek, ANC

Common household chemicals can cause poisoning among young children because adults do not always show proper precautions for their safety.

Children between the ages of one and five are most prone to poisoning accidents, according to statistics.

These chemicals have a purpose — to clean, heat, kill rats, or decorate, but if they should be accidently eaten or misused, they become a killer because of a toxin they produce in the body.

This toxin is more deadly than that generated by germs causing diseases such as tuberculosis or typhoid fever. These chemicals which are ready made and often highly virulent are "test tube twins", put together by modern industry and used in millions of households for everyday tasks.

Easily Obtained

It is no longer necessary to go to the drug store for poisonous killing agents. Arsenic rat poison, carbon tetrachloride, kerosene, hair lotions or sprays, bleaches, paints and other agents may be purchased at any supermarket.

Together with food in the shopping basket, it is hard to distinguish at a glance which is edible and which is not, especially for a young child. Brought into the home with edible items, the child's immature judgment will associate them with food, something tasty, unless be is instructed otherwise.

For every hundred fatal cases of poisoning recorded annually, one can confidently assert that there are thousands of non-fatal, but often crippling cases.

Regardless of the exact number of cases of poisoning, they are so frequent that each of us probably has personal knowledge of one or more cases where a child accidently ingested a poisonous substance. Thus, poisoning now looms as a major public health problem.

Moreover, at the rate new chemical compounds are being invented, an even greater threat to health from poisoning is likely to occur in the future.

You can use the following measures to protect your child and your family against poisoning:

Storage:

Keep all poisonous agents out of the reach of children. Place them in a special closet and lock them.

Store drugs and chemicals out of sight and out of reach.

Doors should be fastened so a toddler can't open them. Lock all dangerous substances.

Do not store food and household poisons in the same space. Keep food away from poisons.

Label and Containers:

Do not store poisonous or inflammable substances in food or beverage containers such as coke bottles, milk bottles, bowls, cups, etc.

If possible use the original container. It is usually well labeled, and in case of accident, may identify the toxic agent and sometimes list a simple antidote. If containers must be changed, be sure the new one is not a familiar food container. It should be carefully labeled, giving all important information about the contents.

Read all labels and carefully follow "caution" statements. Even if a chemical substance is not labeled "Poison", incorrect use may be dangerous.

If you find anything unlabeled and unknown, get rid of it.

Caution:

Do not allow food or food utensils to become contaminated when using insect sprays, aerosol mists, rat poisons, weed killers, or cleaning agents.

Do not eat or serve foods which smell or look abnormal and remember that they may poison domestic animals.

Use cleaning fluids with adequate ventilation only, and avoid breathing vapors.

Protect skin and eyes when using insect poisons, weed killers, solvents, and cleaning agents. Be sure to wash thoroughly after use, and remove contaminated clothing.

Warn small children not to eat or drink drugs, chemicals, plants, or berries they find, without first bringing them to you for your inspection. Insist on this!

Act Promptly:

If your child eats or drinks any unfamiliar chemical or drug, call the hospital Emergency Room immediately even if you are not sure the material is poisonous. Don't wait for symptoms to develop.

Whole Nation Benefits From Skills of Military

What does the mythical Man on the Street answer if he's asked what role the services play in the national life? Why, he'll say, they keep America free. They're our defense against the Communist threat. Best fighting men in the world.

A tip of our hat to him for that, but a recent item in the scientific news points up the fact that today members of the Armed Forces are contributing to developments in the nation's laboratories that presage changes in the lives of all Americans. We're thinking of Air Force Capt. Richard C. Wingerson who has proposed the use of a revolutionary magnetic "bottle" with a "corkscrew" field to contain certain thermonuclear reactions.

Perhaps this sounds too abstruse for the layman to understand, but what is significant about it is that David J. Rose, professor of nuclear engineering at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, thinks that the captain may have solved a problem that has baffled scientists for 10 years. They have sought some way of harnessing the vast energy released in thermonuclear reactions that occur between nuclei of certain hydrogen atoms at very high temperatures. If they succeeded in their research, the world would have a virtually unlimited source of power. Now an Air Force officer may have given them the key.

That Capt. Wingerson and others like him in all branches of the service are dedicating their brains and skills to breakthroughs in non-military science might come as a surprise to many Americans. Yet it shouldn't. The captain represents the newest of the Armed Forces, but looking back we see that the military has contributed to many of the great achievements of the modern age.

And there were others, many others, just as there are many gifted and brilliant people in the service today whose talents may enrich the lives of all Americans. They are the nation's defenders, yes — and more. (AFPS)

Chaplain's Corner

The Concept Of Personal Worth

By Chaplain (Capt.) Hubert Garrell

There is an inevitable necessity encountered many times as we journey through life. Each of us has stopped for a moment at some point in his daily living and re-evaluated his personal worth.

The concept of human value must be understood in three areas: a person's ideas concerning his value to himself, the value existing between himself and his fellowmen, and his worth embodied in his relationship to God.

The value that a man places upon himself is directly related to the manner in which he will respond to those about him and this attitude can distort his understanding of his relationship to God.

Human worth is not confined to any particular race or creed. The Communists insist that man is essentially an economic being and that his ultimate worth is his productivity to the state.

In America we feel that man is much more than this —he is a responsible citizen and he stands in equal relationship to any other.

Our constitution states that all men are created equal. In reality, all men are not equal. Each man has his own interests, abilities, intelect, and feelings. The "equal" in the constitution means that each man has an equal share in the establishment of laws and the general functioning of his government.

But what determines the value of a human being in the absolute sense of the word? This determination lies in the fact that God has endowed man with a soul. Man to a great extent is responsible for the preservation of his soul.

In the gospel of Luke, chapter 12, verses 16-21, Christ tells of a man who was corrupted by human weakness and accumulated a vast degree of material wealth. But of what consequence was this achievement when his soul was required of him? Material wealth offers man no protection against the uncertainties of life and is certainly no guarantee of the continuance of life.

It is only when a man's soul is in the proper relationship to God that he attains his ultimate worth. Christ came in fulfillment of man's need for salvation of his soul. In a materialistic-conscious nation like ours we must not overlook our eternal welfare.

What are you worth?

Permanent Grade Promotion Quota Largest in Years

Washington (AFPS) — The largest quota for permanent enlisted grade appointments to be released since the Army reinstituted its permanent promotion system in 1958 has been allocated for the January 1 through June 30, 1962 period.

Included in the quota are the first authorizations for permanent E-9 grades. The first group of temporary E-8s will attain the minimum requirement of three years in temporary grade during the fourth quarter (April - May - June) of FY 1962.

36th Infantry Historical Data Being Collected

A search for published material on the history of the 36th Infantry is being conducted by the 2nd Armored Rifle Battalion.

Anyone in this area having information regarding the 36th is urged to contact the unit.

The request came from SMaj Cecil Hegg, Headquarters, 2nd Armored Rifle Battalion, 36th Infantry, 3rd Armored Division (Spearhead), APO 39, New York, N.Y.

At present the only material the battalion has is in the Army Lineage Book, Volume II, Infantry 1953.

A Special Report on Special Warfare Activities

Political and cold war developments, taken in conjunction with the military power which the Sino-Soviet bloc has in existence, add new considerations as we shape our military strategy and design forces to support it. To counter Soviet aspirations for world domination, we have adopted what we call a "forward strategy," on which we place heavy reliance for containing all forms of aggression.

Our forward strategy involves the positioning of combat-ready land, sea and air units overseas, prepared to deal quickly and effectively with an enemy action. The major portion of these forces are Army units. The soldier — with the airman and sailor — is a visible and living symbol of our readiness to contribute to the common defense — a symbol that both allied peoples and potential aggressors can plainly see — a visible and effective deterent against limited aggression and an indispensable element in meeting it if it should occur.

To execute this forward strategy requires that our military posture have four indispensable elements.

The first requirement is for a balanced offensive-defensive combination to deter or respond to thermonuclear attack on this Nation. This must be composed of secure strategic nuclear strike forces, supported by the active and passive defense necessary to ensure national survival.

The second — and equally vital requirement — is for balanced, land, sea and air forces, which can oppose and ultimately defeat enemy aggression in either limited or general war.

The third general requirement is for strategic air lift and sea lift to project and sustain our military strength abroad.

Finally, the fourth element is well-deserved emphasis — is an improved capability to combat subversion and guerrilla warfare which constantly threaten the stability of small nations throughout the world.

These elements and strategy give us what we believe is the military power for fighting across the entire spectrum of warfare. They give us the capability to deal with military problems wherever they may occur. Also, they are geared to the recognition of the continuing nature of the threat facing us.

Secretary Designates Special Assistant

Secretary of the Army Elvis J. Stahr Jr. announced January 24 the designation of 43-year-old Brig. Gen. William B. Rosson to fill the newly created post of Special Assistant to the Chief of Staff for Special Warfare.

In this assignment, Gen. Rosson will assist the Chief of Staff in shaping Army policies and directing Army efforts world-wide in the field of special warfare. He will focus his attention principally upon the Army's anti-guerilla and counterinsurgency activities.

U. S. Special Warfare Historical Highlights

Guerilla warfare has been employed many ways throughout the ages. The U. S. has employed guerrilla type warfare since the birth of the Nation when during the American Revolution in 1779, Lt. Col. Francis Marion of the Continental Army, formed a guerrilla band to help fight the British in the South where he disrupted British Communications, wore down the strength of the British forces, and prevented effective organization of the Tories.

During the Civil War, Col. John S. Mosby built up an irregular body of Confederate troops, who attacked Union Troops and their outposts suddenly and then quickly dispersed when pursued.

The First Special Service Force, organized in June 1942, was especially trained in demolition, skiing, climbing, parachuting and hand-to-hand combat. They participated in raids and guerilla warfare in the Mediterranean in 1943, and at the Anzio beachhead and invasion of southern France in 1944.

During the Korean War, units of South Korean civilians, corposed of government officials, teachers and former Japanese Army officers and operating under the general direction of the Eighth Army and later the Far East Command, operated from the offshore islands in the Yellow Sea behind enemy lines for the purpose of reconnaissance and raiding.

Top Ranger Honors Go to Lt. Sewall

1st Lt. John O. B. Sewall recently graduated from The Infantry School's Ranger Course Class 5-62, 44th Ranger Company, 4th Student Battalion, The Student Brigade, with top honors.

During the graduation exercises, held at Theater 11 in Harmony Church, Lt. Sewall was presented with his Ranger Tab and certificate by Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly, deputy post commander. Gen. Kelly, guest speaker for the graduation exercises, was introduced to the class by Col. Bernard G. Teeters, director of the Ranger Department.

PRESIDENT ON SPECIAL WARFARE

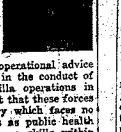
"We need a greater ability to deal with guerrilla forces, insurrection and subversion. . . . We must be ready now to deal with any size of force, including small externally supported bands of men; and we must help train local forces to be equally effective."

1961 Message to Congress
Defense Budget

"I am directing the Secretary of Defense to expand rapidly and substantially the orientation of existing forces for the conduct of non-nuclear war, paramilitary operations and unconventional wars. . . .

"In addition, our special forces and unconventional warfare units will be increased and reoriented. Throughout the services new emphasis must be placed on the special skills and languages which are required to work with local populations in all the social, economic, psychological, governmental and other efforts that are short of open conflict but necessary to counter communist-sponsored guerrillas or insurgents."

Special Message to Congress
May 26, 1961



ARMY'S CHIEF OF STAFF SAYS

"The Army is rapidly expanding its capability to support civil assistance and paramilitary operations in critical areas of the world where Communist-inspired subversion, insurgency, or guerrilla warfare exists or may develop. Our objective in using military assistance to cope with such Communist aggression is to optimize the capability of indigenous military forces to insure internal security and promote political stability."

General George M. Decker
Chief of Staff, U. S. Army
Before Senate Armed Services
Committee, January 1962

GENERAL HAMLETT STATES

"The Army's approach to paramilitary operations is to defeat communist-inspired insurgency in each threatened country before the United States is faced with a fait accompli and is forced to take more drastic action. . . . The Army technique for defeating this threat is to provide Paramilitary Support Forces to give field training and guidance to the military forces of free nations faced with actual or potential problems of communist-inspired insurgency. These U. S. Paramilitary Support Forces are also capable of providing operational advice or of participating, if required, with our allies in the conduct of counterinsurgency operations to include guerrilla operations in denied areas. But of equal significance is the fact that these forces can assist in establishing stability in a country which faces no can assist in establishing stability in a country which faces no severe insurgency threat. Through such efforts as public health assistance and technical construction advice from skills within those forces, the economic health of the country can be assisted.

"It is envisioned that the highly motivated, specially trained teams from U. S. Paramilitary Support Forces will be employed in direct, working contact with national military contingents to further the effectiveness of the indigenous military or paramilitary forces as the guarantor of internal security. . . ."

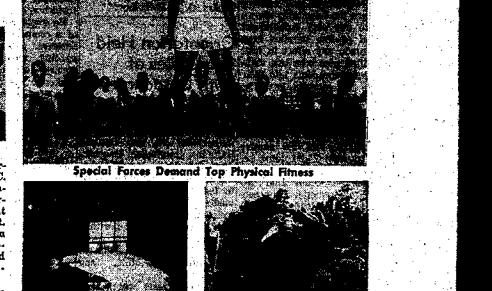
Special Warfare Center

Gen. Yarborough

Focal point for the development of special warfare doctrine, tactics, techniques and organization, and for the training of special warfare personnel, is the U. S. Army Special Warfare Center at Ft. Bragg, N. C.

The Center traces its beginnings to the Psychological Warfare Division, created in 1950 at the Army General School at Ft. Riley, Kan., and transferred in 1952 to Ft. Bragg as the Psychological Warfare Center, renamed in 1956 as the U. S. Army Special Warfare Center.

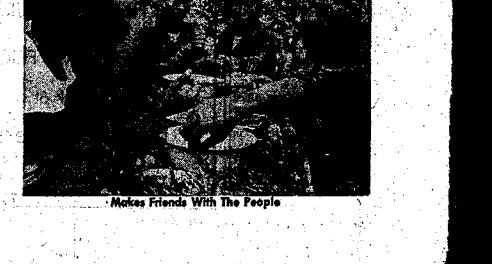


The Center's responsibility today embraces the full range of psychological operations, unconventional warfare and counter-insurgency activities.

Major components of the Center are the U. S. Army Special Warfare School and a variety of field training units. Brig. Gen. William P. Yarborough directs all the Center's activities as commanding general and commandant of the school.

The School currently conducts three resident courses; Psychological Warfare, Unconventional Warfare and Counterinsurgency. Each course lasts six weeks and is offered several times a year. Students include officers of the U. S. Armed Forces and from Allied countries throughout the world.

The School's Combat Development Department establishes objectives, develops and tests new concepts and determines qualitative requirements for new materiel in the fields of psychological operations and unconventional warfare.



Field units at the Center include two Special Forces Groups and two Psychological Warfare Battalions (Broadcasting and Leaflet). Also at the Center are three Psychological Warfare Companies called to active duty from the Reserves.

'Chapeau For Madame' MOOM Luncheon Motif

"A Chapeau for Madame" was the theme of the luncheon held by the ladies of The Infantry School's Weapons Department last Friday at the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Hostesses for the occasion were the ladies of the Mortar Committee, under the direction of Mrs. J. A. O'Connell.

The table centerpieces consisted of hats, with matching accessories. They were surrounded by miniature valentine trees, hearts, cupids and lacy valentines. A hat bar was also trimmed in the valentine motif.

Mrs. Van Winkle of a local department store presented the program and was assisted by Miss Pat Sheehan.

Models were Mesdames T. B. Ross, Jr., O. E. Bolhofner, E. H. Hale, Jr., C. K. Hausaio, and W. H. O'Connor.

Mrs. R. B. Marlin introduced the guests of honor, Mrs. R. W. Keyes and Mrs. S. W. Koster.

Other guests were Mrs. H. Adams and Mrs. L. Johnson.

A door prize was presented to Mrs. O. E. Bolhofner.

jenni johnson on Etiquette

DEAR JENNI: While overseas in a country where he could speak very little of the native language, my husband was welcomed in the homes of native servicemen. He wrote so enthusiastically of them that I was very happy when I found I could join him.

Now we are back here and made a point of looking up the Allied officers of that country to return the hospitality shown us. We are very embarassed to find so few families here have made any effort to take the Allied men who are without their dependents into their homes to entertain casually. Isn't it a breach of etiquette not to welcome these lonely Allied officers.

HOSPITALITY MINDED

DEAR H. M.: To answer your question I did some research and I am very happy to report I could find NO breach of etiquette. Your concern is that friends of yours have not made an effort to meet or entertain an Allied student.

I'm sure there are many many who haven't and never will; but of the thousands at Benning and in Columbus, do you know how many have made friends with the Allied personnel? It's one of those situations which when put in the negative sounds neglectful indeed, but when stated positively indicates ample hospitality has been extended.

How many U.S. men are assigned here as compared to Allied personnel, it is approximately 20,000 to 800. You could interview dozens of men on the street before, by the law of averages, you'd find one that was a regular host to an Allied serviceman and this would not mean no one was interested in them.

Capt. Baumann of the Allied Liaison Section outlined their program to me. This sponsor program for Allied students and their families if they have any here, considers every kind of assistance they might need.

This program is being carried out. Of course Allied Liaison Section would welcome more volunteer sponsors and I suggest you contact them in Building 35. Tell your friends to inquire also. I sincerely hope your question and my answer will help to increase still further the hospitality you have in mind.

Orientation Held For Ladies of 20th Detachment

A coffee was given recently for the ladies of the Infantry Officers Orientation Course 10, Detachment 20, 2nd Student Battalion, the Student Brigade.

Lt. Col. Vern Joseph, commander of the battalion, spoke to the group, explaining their husbands' course of study and welcoming them to Fort Benning. Also addressing the thirty nine ladies present were Capt. Mitchell C. Johnson, Capt. Robert R. Mills, and Mrs. Mills.

Honored guests were Mrs. Richard W. Keyes, Mrs. Otto R. Koch, Jr., Mrs. Arthur J. Estes, and Mrs. Mitchell C. Johnson.

Attack Committee Ladies At Coffee

Mrs. Walter Short was the hostess for February Attack Committee, Command and Staff Department ladies coffee.

Plans were made for the coming Command and Staff Department luncheon which the Attack ladies will hostess March 8. The event will feature a fashion show with styles from a Columbus Shop.

Mrs. Ralph White welcomed Mrs. Edward Vaughn into the group.

The first coffee of the year was held on January 4 at the home of Mrs. Whitt.

'Showcase '62'

Exhibits, Decorator Draw 200 to Luncheon

More than 200 members and guests attended a luncheon staged last Wednesday by the Woman's Club of Fort Benning at the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Theme of the luncheon was "Showcase '62" and featured demonstrations of various activities available to club members.

Booths were on the East Porch, displaying flower arranging, ceramics, sewing, dancing and prekindergarten.

Tables were laid in the main ballroom, with varicolored covers repeating the scheme of wire and cut-out mobiles suspended from the rafters.

Centerpieces were fashioned of tempera-painted sweetgum balls attached to white enameled manzanita bows. English ivy twined the branches which were nestled into Spanish moss.

Speaker

Guest speaker at the luncheon was Willard Ketchum, senior decorator for an Atlanta department store.

Using as his theme, "The Approach to Decorating," Ketchum said a decorator studies the personality of both the room and the customer before selecting colors, materials, furnishings or accessories.

He explained the personality of a room is revealed in such features as arches, window spacing, molding, number of square feet of floor space, broken areas and exposure.

He studies the personality of the client to determine whether she is calm and serene or excitable.

"I wouldn't put a high-strung woman in a red room," she said, "or she would soon need a psychiatrist more than a decorator."

A decorator must know what period furniture the client prefers. Then, if the husband prefers another period, he must blend the two.

Ketchum discussed the choice of colors to achieve certain effects.

A question and answer period followed the speech.

Honor Guests

Honor guests included Mrs. Ben Harrell, honorary president of the Woman's Club; Mrs. A. D. Surles Jr., Mrs. Royal Reynolds, honorary president, and officers and board members of the Division Officers Wives Club.

Presiding was Mrs. Cyril D. Sterner, president of the club.

Mrs. G. T. Britton was in charge of the program. Hostesses were the engineer ladies, with Mrs. Sears Y. Coker as chairman.

Mrs. James H. Phillips planned the decorations, while Mrs. Willis Corder served as chairman for table appointments.

Heading a committee for activities exhibits was Mrs. Braxton E. Small.

DECORATING APPROACH . . . Post Panhellenic Set Meeting Today

The Anzio Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess was the scene of the January 23 meeting of Panhellenic at Fort Benning. Hostesses for the coffee were Mrs. Jack Woodall and Mrs. Cedric Blackwell.

A demonstration and discussion on hair styling was presented by Mrs. Bernard Brouillette, manager of a local beauty salon.

The next meeting will be on February 16, and the hostesses will be Mrs. Alan A. Nauman and Mrs. Harold R. Hoefer-kamp. All members of National Panhellenic Sororitities are invited to attend.

Post Distaff Doings

By Marianne Kelly

The regular monthly business meeting of the NCO Wives of Fort Benning took place at the clubhouse February 7.

Bingo was enjoyed by everyone after the meeting, especially by Nita Valent, who really hit the jackpot! Congratulations, Nita, we are all happy for you.

A card party will be held at the clubhouse next Wednesday, at 1 p.m. Come on out and have some fun, the ironing will keep (it keeps very well in the refrigerator, and husbands always get a kick out of the old joke of having starched shirts for supper!)

The girls in charge of refreshments have really outdone each other lately. All those delicacies alone are worth a trip to building 1127. The hostesses February 7, Norma Maus and Nancy McLeod, surprised us with some truly beautiful and most delectable cakes. There went one week's dieting again!

Valentines and special memories fill this week as chocolates are given to that special girl.

Atmosphere was tingling with high tension as time was called, revealing that the junior-senior team had won the game of charades by a mere fraction of a minute. This game was played by the members of the Sigma Delta Beta Sorority at Sara Walker's home on February 9. About twenty girls and their invited guests fully enjoyed the evening drinking cokes and having fun.

On Sunday night Dave Ingle's home will be the site for the Follow-Me-Club dinner. After dinner, served at seven, Col. Ingle will be presented as speaker for the occasion. The following week Chaplain Desse will speak to the club. All these activities promise to offer great benefits to interested teenagers. Why don't you give it a try?

Hunt Club

The Hunt Club provided stylish publicity for the 49er Party by presenting a parade through the avenues of Benning. This event, sporting several of our Benningites, helped to transfix our world into the days of the gold rush. I feel sure many a story was told about the time when the Army was still mounted and riding fine horses — yes, sir, just like those.

Resolved: Our government should adopt a program of Federal Aid to Education, was the question debated by Baker's team at Emory on February 9. The members affirmative: Herb Roberts and Robert Machette, negative: Dave Roberts and John Wells.

Columbus High speech students can surely appreciate the hours of work which went into the debate, since they debated the same proposition for more than six weeks.

Walkathon

Congratulations are in order for every teenager who participated in any way, from any school, in the 1962 March of Dimes Walkathon. The teenagers of this area collected $11,090 for an honorable cause — dimes to help. Columbus High won this miniature march by walking 27 miles.

Students of Pacelli marched in second covering 33 miles. It matters not whether your school won or lost; it's the total of dimes to help a new total of people that counts.

Relay Record

The Lion four man mile relay team broke a record of 2 minutes and 40 seconds, set by Southwest of Atlanta, by 4 tenths of a second. Baker's record was recorded at a meet in Montgomery. Congratulations fellows!

Each of the local high schools have held talent shows in the past month. It's really surprising how much Benningites can offer in this field. We have every act from comedy to tragedy.

Pajama Game

Mr. Grant and his cast from Baker will present the musical "Pajama Game" in the near future. This presents us with another evening of amusement watching some of our friends become different characters under the spotlights.

Seniors are now beginning to realize just how close graduation is — only three and a half months. This anticipation was spurred on by the ordering of announcements. Eyes are starry as we walk forward toward one of the milestones in our lives.

Baker Who's Who

Several of our Benningites have been honored by being elected to Baker's Who's Who. We're quite proud of them. Here're some: Melba Brown, court of beauty, best all around, and most popular, Heidi Cannon, court of beauty, cutest and most courteous, Colby Moiser, most popular, friendliest, and most handsome, Janell Moore, most improved, and court of beauty, Beverly Chapman, friendliest and court of beauty, Anne Thomas, best school spirit, and court of beauty, Sherry Miller, most talented, Mike Ledbetter, best dancer, David Roberts, most intellectual, Frankie Holbrook, best dressed and most handsome, Mike Clark, wittest, Sherry Allen, court of beauty, Frances Wright, court of beauty, Ann Pait, court of beauty, Eddie Bowen, most improved, Micki Sweet, most athletic and she also has won the Betty Crocker award, Martha Coulter, most intellectual, Richie Moore, best dancer, Carlton Harmen, hardest worker, Edgar Cook, most sincere, Elaine Rathet, Miss Citizen, most likely to succeed, and hardest worker.

Most handsome boys are Don Valeska, Larry Googe, Dave Ingle, Chuch Howard, and Cecil Patterson.

The closing basketball season finds Columbus on top — winning the regional crown, with Baker trailing close behind. The final event will be the last Baker-Columbus game. Tonight's game will be tough for both teams — traditional rivals on the court. Good luck to all, may the best team win!

Christmas Seal TB $ Totaled

Military personnel here have donated $2,184.37 in response to the 1961 TB Association Christmas Seal Campaign letters.

Those who have not sent in their contributions will receive "reminders" from the post campaign committee, headed by Mrs. A. D. Surles, Jr., wife of Brig. Gen. Surles, assistant commandant of The Infantry School.

Among volunteers assisting Mrs. Surles in processing replies to Christmas Seal letters is Sp5 Clarence W. Kehoe, Jr.

Kehoe is the son of the national director of the Christmas Seal Division of the National TB Association.

Young Kehoe said he learned from his father the importance of education regarding tuberculosis, the need for expanded medical research for more effective drugs and the necessity for proper care and rehabilitation for TB patients.

These services are all financed by the sale of Christmas Seals, he added.

Mrs. Surles reports that $692.94 was collected from 383 coin canisters placed throughout the post during the campaign. This amount, added to the donations sent in by mail, brings Fort Benning's contribution to $2,777.31.

According to Claude N. Kent of Columbus, Christmas Seal campaign chairman for the Columbus Area TB Association, $17,409.46 has been received in the drive. To reach the 1961 goal of $20,000, an additional $2,590.54 is needed, he said.

Reminder letters are being sent out by campaign officials to citizens throughout Muscogee, Harris and Chattahoochee Counties.

Allied Students Speak at P-TA

Three Allied students at The Infantry School addressed the Fort Benning P-TA Tuesday evening at Faith School auditorium.

They were Lt. Col. Chiung-Fu Li of Taipei, Taiwan, Major Autustin Toro of Santiago, Chile, and 1st Lt. Ian John Gollings of Tasmania, Australia.

The speakers discussed education in their native countries.

Col. Sears Y. Coker, president of the P-TA, introduced them and presided at the meeting. He conducted a question and answer period.

Officers Christian Union Sets Weekend Sessions

A conference of the Officers' Christian Union will be held here tomorrow and Sunday.

The first session will begin at 2 p.m. tomorrow at the Religious Education Center, Building 2605, and continue until 9:30 p.m.

The program includes an address at 2 p.m. by Dr. Robert Smith of St. Paul, Minn.; Bible study at 3 p.m., led by Cleo W. Buxton of East Lansing, Mich., and a covered dish supper at 7 p.m. Dr. Smith will speak again at 8 p.m.

There will be a fellowship hour after the meeting.

On Sunday, Dr. Smith will preach at the 11 a.m. service at The Infantry Center Protestant Chapel. He will speak at 2 p.m. at Building 2605.

Buxton will speak at 6 p.m. at Kelley Hill Chapel.

Dr. Smith is a professor of philosophy at Bethel College in St. Paul. He was graduated from the Pittsburgh-Xenia Theological Seminary. Dr. Smith was awarded a doctor of theology degree at Southern Baptist Theological Seminary at Louisville, Ky.

He is an honorary member of the American Officers' Christian Union. Buxton is general secretary of the organization.

Invited to attend the conference are officers from military installations throughout Florida, Alabama and Georgia.

For further information about the conference, telephone Capt. G. T. Sherren, 545-1993 or MU 9-6397.

CG's Matches Begin Next Week

Second Infantry Division marksmen will begin firing the Commanding General's Matches Tuesday at three range sites.

The competition, held yearly to determine the Second 'o Noine's best in marksmanship, will be held at the Post Pistol Range for pistol firing, McAndrews Range for the rifle contest and Easley Range for the automatic rifle matches.

Practice

The ranges will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday for those desiring to practice on them.

Conducting the matches will be the 2nd Infantry Division Marksmanship Detachment and National Rifle Association rules will prevail throughout the two-day affair.

All competitors in the match, es are eligible for selection and for retention as members of the division's rifle, pistol and automatic rifle squad for practice and further match participation and are subject to recall as members of the Third United States Army Rifle and Pistol Squad.

Upon completion of the matches, division-level teams will be formed, by selection of the best-qualified marksmen to represent the Indianhead Division in the Third U. S. Army Matches April 10 - 17, the All Army Matches June 6 - 16, and the National Matches July 28 to August 29.

Entries in the Commanding General's Championship Matches are limited to 15 individual rifle competitors and ten individual pistol competitors to represent each major command.

Teams

One captain, one non-firing coach, six firing members and two alternates will compose a rifle team; while a pistol team is composed of one captain, one non-firing coach, four firing members and two alternates.

Automatic rifle teams are to be made up of two firing members.

Fifty percent of the firing members of teams will be individuals who have not participated in a division-level or higher team match.

One open winner and the first three place winners in each classification of each match will be awarded trophies.

Engineer Battalion Shows New Bridge to Commanders

Major General Charles H. Chase, 2nd Division commanding general, recently observed training of members of the 2nd Engineer Battalion's bridge platoon on its newly - acquired Armored Vehicle Launched Bridge.

Lieutenant Richard O. Trummer, commanding officer of the bridge platoon, was in charge of the instruction. Sergeants Russell L. Grice and David L. Price maneuvered the 15-ton, 63-foot aluminum alloy bridge.

Launching

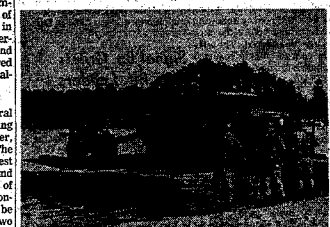
During the training, General Chase observed the launching of the bridge by the launcher, a modified M48A2 tank. The AVLB which is the heaviest piece of equipment in the 2nd Division, has the capability of supporting all organic division-al vehicles. The bridge can be launched in approximately two minutes under enemy fire to expedite the advance of attacking armored elements.

The 2nd Engineers are equipped and trained with three launchers and six AVLBridges. These items have provided a significant new capability to the engineers in their mission of expediting the advance of the division.

Also observing the training were Colonel Stanley L. Hardaway, deputy artillery commander, Lieutenant Colonel James C. Larson, division G-4; Lieutenant Colonel C. G. Collins, Jr., commanding officer, 13th Transportation Battalion; Lieutenant Colonel Harvey Scott, commanding officer, 3rd Reconnaissance Squadron, 7th Cavalry, and Lieutenant Colonel James T. Kolb, commanding officer of the 69th Armor.

Bloodmobile New Record Set by 2nd

Men of the 2nd Division have set a new record in blood donations to the American Red Cross bloodmobile.



In its first 1962 visit to the 2nd Division, the Red Cross bloodmobile received 771 pints from division men. The previous record for one visit was made last year at this time when donations reached 702 pints.

The Red Cross personnel set a goal of 500 pints per visit. The bloodmobile made a two-day visit to the division this week, staying at Sand Hill's Service Club Two.

Eleven major division units participated in the first 1962 blood drive.

EXPERIENCED MAN WITH HIS MACHINE
Specialist Five Nolen and His Road Grader

Road Grader Operator's Diligent Work Didn't Go Unnoticed at McClellan Exercise

By Peter Tutischeff

Many hours of hard work put in by some diligent Soldiers go unnoticed when a division conducts a long field exercise.

This is particularly true if the men concerned maintain a constant excellence in the quality of their work.

Grader Operator

Specialist Five Robert E. Nolen, a road grader operator with Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 2nd Engineer Battalion is such a man.

Extraordinary conditions calling for dedicated service spotlighted this man during recent field exercises at Fort McClellan.

Specialist Nolen's mission at Fort McClellan was to leave the base in the same condition and, whenever possible, in better condition than it was before division men arrived for training.

Equipped with his 12-ton road grader, Hq-121 — his companion since joining the engineers in August 1960 — Specialist Nolen set about building and repairing roads at Fort McClellan just as he had been maintaining roads at Fort Benning.

Prior to joining the Army in December 1959, Nolen had been a heavy equipment operator, using bulldozers and road graders on highway construction with a construction firm in Ashland, Tennessee.

For him, his Army experience is an extension of the work he had been doing in his home state of Tennessee.

As if that were not enough experience, Nolen attended the Tractor - Scraper School at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., for eight weeks to familiarize him with the Army's heavy engineer equipment.

A Familiar Sight

For Soldiers training in maneuver problems at Fort McClellan, Specialist Nolen and his road grader became a familiar sight, moving back and forth, leveling, settling and maintaining roadways to be used in tactical problems.

When the engineers arrived at the Alabama base, they went immediately to the work of supporting the division with road maintenance, patching up in what turned out to be a round-the-clock job.

Regardless of where the work was — behind "enemy" lines, in the midst of a tactical problem or in the wake of a simulated attack — the "neutral" maintenance men moved freely and constantly in an attempt to leave McClellan in the best possible condition.

Building an air strip behind what was set up as Brigade Headquarters or spending 20 hours preparing an approach to a bridge, Nolen's efforts and the efforts of his fellow grader operators could not help but be noticed.

Rising at the break of dawn, maintenance work continued until it was impossible to see anymore. Frequently, Nolen received assignments which brought him into the thick of

Trains Units 'Well-Exercised' at Fort McClellan

By Division Trains PIO

Elements of the 2nd Infantry Division Brigade Trains were "well exercised" during the realistic training just completed at Fort McClellan, Alabama.

The 2nd Infantry Brigade Trains, consisting of 484 officers and men was made up from the 2nd Infantry Division Trains Headquarters, 702nd Ordnance Battalion, 2nd Medical Battalion, 13th Transportation Battalion's Company A, 2nd Quartermaster Company and the 2nd Engineer Battalion.

During the conduct of the 10-day exercise, the 702nd Ordnance Battalion, charged with the tremendous task of keeping the almost 1,000 vehicles running, performed 59 deadline repair jobs.

'Casualties'

The 2nd Medical Battalion Detachment processed 117 actual patients and 243 simulated "casualties." A remarkable note is the extremely low sick call rate during the entire period and the fact that all patients were evacuated back to Fort Benning.

The 2nd Quartermaster Company detachment was responsible for keeping over 5,000 officers and men on the move with full stomachs. Informal surveys made throughout the exercise disclosed that one factor in the high morale was the excellence in quality and quantity of the rations issued through the 2nd Quartermaster Company.

In addition to the Class I issue, to keep the almost 1,000 vehicles, hundreds of stoves (both heating and cooking type) operating, the Class III section was constantly "on the go," issuing 101,295 gallons of gasoline 23,658 gallons of diesel oil.

One other function of the Quartermaster that is generally not exercised in peacetime is the Graves Registration section. Built into the tactical problems was a simulated mass casualty evacuation of one infantry company, half of whom were tagged as dead and the other half as wounded. The Quartermaster Company detachment processed some 107 simulated "Killed in Action" Soldiers. Fortunately, these "bodies" were brought back to the line by some method the Quartermaster will not disclose and were then reprocessed back to the front lines as replacements.

The Quartermaster detachment also assisted the Chaplains in making the phrase "Cleanliness is next to Godliness" a reality by giving 10,079 showers at the two shower points established.

Company A, 13th Transportation Battalion not only was responsible for getting everyone back from (and to) Fort McClellan, but was constantly moving troops in support of the tactical problems. Every third day they moved two battle groups from one training area to another in preparation for the next tactical phase.

The 2nd Engineer Battalion detachment not only had their companies attached to the battle groups for their tactical support, but had the additional responsibilities of keeping the mud-soaked roads clear for wheeled traffic. This was a mountainous task in itself. Another task of the engineers was the establishing and operating of three separate ordelators. (Don't look this up in your dictionary; it stands for Engineer Development Laboratory). This is where they developed the complete water purification unit mounted on a truck.

All in all, the entire period was a good vehicle for exercising the support mission of Trains units.

Many 'Side Events' Added Color To Exercise at Fort McClellan

By 23rd Infantry PIO

The 23rd Infantry returned last week from Fort McClellan, Ala., with a wealth of training information as well as experiences not exactly planned by the field problem staff.

The "We Servers" traveled to Fort McClellan in convoy, as did the other units that participated in the 10-day exercise. They went on the defensive and offensive, protected ridge lines, choked through tear gas attacks, "commented" on the frequent "break camp" orders and, in general, achieved the objectives they were supposed to.

Side Events

However, numerous side events that occurred during the maneuver added color, humor and insight to the exercise. For instance, on the trip to McClellan a lead jeep accidentally made an incorrect turn at an intersection. It proceeded several miles down the wrong road with the convoy following merrily behind before the mistake was discovered. The officer in charge quickly reported his plight via radio but had insult added to embarrassment when an unknown "Ha!" came crackling back on his radio receiver.

Early in the field problem a company commander and his first sergeant were apprehended by the Aggressors, taken to the prisoner of war area and "interrogated" by "enemy" intelligence officers. The POWs received some good natured ribbing at the expense of their misfortune.

Major General Charles H. Chase, 2nd Division commander, and Brigadier General Royal Reynolds Jr., brigade commander and exercise director, visited the 23rd and observed it in action. Gen. Reynolds remained for dinner, and he commented that the Headquarters Company mess ranked among the best served in the Division during the exercise.

One of the worst kept secrets of the entire maneuver was that Fort McClellan is where the WACs undergo training. This bit of news inspired many fantastic and desperate schemes among the men of the 23rd that went to no avail.

However, when the 23rd attacked Brooks Mountain, it was discovered that the WAC billets were only 2,000 meters away, and it must be reported that many cases of eye strain resulted as the infantrymen scrambled up the mountain slope. Even more fortunate than the riflemen were members of the field transportation maintenance crew. These lads set up shop near the WACs' gas chamber.

Comforts

Comforts of barracks life were not entirely denied the 23rd Infantry while in the field. The men were allowed to visit a shower point, where they could splash contentedly and wash away the grime of battle. Also, their area was visited regularly by a P.X. truck, which was quickly cleaned out of soda pop, crackers and other goodies.

Weather during the field problem was unexpectedly warm and dry for the first eight days. However, rain and cold set in for the last couple of days to chill the G.I.s in the early hours.

The 23rd Infantry returned to Sand Hill by convoy. Most officers and men agreed that the Fort McClellan exercise had been the most useful and best coordinated field problem in which they had participated, since the 2nd Division began combat training last September.

McClellan 'Great Success,' Says 1st Infantry Commander

By 1st Inf PIO

A loud roar went up from the 1st Infantry convoy as it rolled into Kelley Hill last Wednesday. Members of the "Always First" had something to cheer about as they completed a ten-day field training exercise at Ft. McClellan, Alabama.

Colonel Walter B. Todd, battle group commander, termed the exercise a great success. "Units of the 1st Infantry," Colonel Todd remarked, "moved into and occupied terrain that was completely unfamiliar to them."

Coordination

An outstanding feature of the exercise was the close coordination and team work displayed by the direct support of engineer, ordnance and artillery units as a task force.

The exercise geared itself to the small unit commander. They worked and navigated in unfamiliar terrain with supporting elements that were not available in previous exercises.

Arriving at Ft. McClellan on Monday, the "First" men immediately began positioning themselves for an attack from the 23rd Infantry which occurred the following day.

Being matched against the 23rd Infantry gave the men of the battle groups an opportunity to gain tactical maneuver experience in unfamiliar terrain. It also gave the supporting units an opportunity to work with the battle groups in task force organization.

The "Always First" then moved into the phase previously occupied by the men of the 87th Infantry. After advancing into the hills of Alabama and pushing the enemy back, guerrilla forces teamed up and cut off the main supply line of the 1st.

Reserves of the "Always First" were then moved up in an attempt to reestablish the supply line. By nightfall, the supply channel was back in full operation.

Following the exercise, the movement back to Ft. Benning was made without incident. Particularly noteworthy was the fact that all vehicles made it back under their own power. This was attributed to the support given by the attached supporting units.

Artillery Commanders Give Views on Exercise

By Div Arty PIO

The participation of elements of the 2nd Infantry Division Artillery in the recent field exercises at Fort McClellan, Alabama, can be epitomized: the howitzers were silent — the problem demanded it. All that was needed, however, for the howitzers to have delivered effective and continuous fire was for the gun crews to have been handling live rounds as they went about their jobs. Every other phase of training during the exercise was conducted in a manner as though it was being done under combat conditions.

Direct Support

The three participating artillery battalions, 1st Howitzer Battalion, 15th Artillery; 6th Howitzer Battalion, 37th Artillery; and 5th Howitzer Battalion, 38th Artillery, operated in direct support of the 1st, 23d, and 87th Infantry battle groups.

Speaking of the Division Artillery role in the exercise, Captain Robert L. Camp, the Division Artillery Liaison Officer who participated in the exercise, reported, "Operations proceeding well, area is safe and good firing positions are few. Units are getting a work-out in the artillery phase of the exercise."

The exercise was divided into three separate problems. In two of the problems, two battle groups, each with its supporting artillery, faced and fought each other alternately in the offense, one in the defense. In the third problem, a single battle group, again with supporting artillery, conducted an attack in mountainous terrain against one of its companies detached to operate as an aggressor force complete with an artillery forward observer.

The diversity of the situations encountered during the 10-day exercise was credited by ranking officers of the three howitzer battalions as a major contribution to the overall value of the exercise. Lieutenant Colonel Floyd L. Johnson, commanding officer, 6th Howitzer Battalion, 37th Artillery, praised the exercise as a "well-organized combined arms maneuver of great training value." Lieutenant Colonel Donald B. Roof, commanding officer, 1st Howitzer Battalion, 15th Artillery, said the length of the problem afforded "an opportunity for the artillery battalions and the Infantry battle groups to work together as teams. The exercise was particularly beneficial, especially to the battalion commanders, liaison officers and forward observers as they were offered an excellent chance to work for extended periods with the Infantry units.

Lieutenant Colonel John E. Finnegan, commanding officer, 5th Howitzer Battalion, 38th Artillery, said, "The exercise pointed out the necessity of thorough ground reconnaissance." The unfamiliar terrain, he added, "gave realism to the problem."

Officers and non-commissioned officers of all battalions made mention of the lengthy road marches, the mud in the lowlands, the rocks in the highlands and the sudden changes in temperature as all significant to the usefulness of the exercise.

Because aerial observation was utilized extensively by all the units, the troops were made to realize the importance of effective camouflage and concealment. A single violation of these disciplines usually induced the arrival of the artillery controllers with their artillery simulators, which is turn would impel almost immediate by a hasty displacement of the erring unit to another area.

In retrospect, the concensus was that the exercise was an especially worthwhile one. As one Artilleryman put it, most likely expressing the feeling of all his fellows: "I'd like to go back again."

Company A Wins 11th Commander's Trophy

By 11th Inf PIO

The Battle Group Commander's Trophy, awarded to the unit with the highest total score in .30 caliber M-1 rifle and .45 caliber pistol competition, has been won by Company A, 11th Infantry.

The 11th Infantry recently completed its competitive small arms marksmanship program and the top firers will represent the unit in the Commanding General's Rifle, Pistol and Automatic Rifle Championship Matches next week.

First, second and third place awards have been won by individual firers and teams in the M-1 rifle, pistol and .30 caliber automatic rifle competition.

Sergeant First Class Dolph C. Brown, Company A, fired a 241 out of a possible 250 to take first place honors. Sergeant First Class Eugene W. Hoiser, Company C, received the second place award and Sergeant First Class Marcus A. Heyes, Company A, third.

Master Sergeant Paul M. Kominski, Company B, received the first place award in the pistol firing, accumulating a score of 277 out of a possible 300. Specialist Four Robert E. Fenner, Combat Support Company, and Sgt. Otis Stovall, Company B, ran second and third respectively.

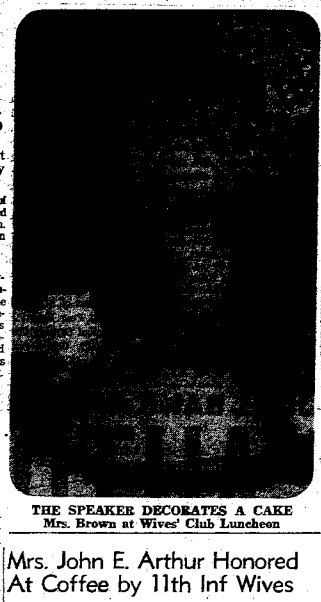
At Supper Club

Mrs. R. L. Brown Speaks to Wives

Mrs. Robert L. Brown was guest speaker at the 2nd Division Officers' Wives Club monthly luncheon Tuesday at the Supper Club.

Mrs. Brown followed a Valentine theme in her demonstration of cake decorating.

Hostesses, identified by lace valentines, were the ladies of Division Headquarters, headed by Mrs. Gustav M. Bacharach. Mrs. Ralph H. Hughett was in charge of decorations.



WELCOMED — Mrs. Kolb

Entwined with Flowers

Hearts entwined with flowers and ivy decorated the luncheon tables. The headtable was centered with an arrangement of pink and red buds around styrofoam hells representing ladies heads with red heart hats. Green ivy was entwined about the grouping.

Place cards at the headtable were held by small ceramic figures holding hearts. The figures were made by Mrs. Hughett, as was a heart-shaped candy dish given as a door prize. The other doorprizes were the cakes decorated by Mrs. Brown and the floral centerpiece.

Special guests were Mrs. William Todd, Mrs. Morris Brackett, Mrs. Stuart Mitchell and Mrs. Mariano Morales. A token of appreciation was presented to Mrs. Morales, who has worked with the Benning Ballet since the formation of the club.

Mrs. J. Kolb Welcomed Into the 69th Armor

Officers' Wives of 69th Armor met recently at the home of Mrs. Harold W. Roeder to welcome Mrs. James T. Kolb, wife of the new 69th Armor commander.

Hostesses for the buffet brunch were Mrs. Roeder and Mrs. James Burns. Coffee was poured by Mrs. Bruce Davis.

Also welcomed was a new arrival to the 69th, Mrs. Ormsbre Shifflett, wife of the assistant battalion maintenance officer.

White, Black, Red

A white cloth on the table was overlaid with a black lace tablecloth. Decorations included a white Grecian urn as a centerpiece filled with red and white roses, carnations and ferns. At the urn's base was a queen of hearts doll in red and white, made by Mrs. Roeder, with a hoop skirt and picture hat.

Also at the urn's base was a red satin ribbon nosegay with a white lace backing. Around the table were red hearts.

Name tags were in the form of black hatchets cutting a beige log. Invitations were black or red bust silhouettes of Washington or Lincoln.

The program for the buffet brunch included a skit take-off on a Women's TV program which welcomed Mrs. Kolb and introduced each of the ladies. Moderator for the program was Mrs. Roeder.

Three hand-made symbols of February holidays, a ground hog; valentine and silhouette bust of Washington and Lincoln, were given as door prizes for members' children.

Mrs. Kolb was presented with a white camellia corsage from the officers' wives of 69th Armor.

Daughter

A daughter was born to Lieutenant and Mrs. Larry W. Crandall on January 16 at Martin Army Hospital. They have named the baby Darolyn Marie.

Ladies Gather At Main Club

The Normandy Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess was the scene of the 2nd Division Headquarters ladies' monthly coffee on January 24.

Hostesses were the wives of the assistant chiefs of staff. Special guests were Mrs. Bilbo Nowell, Mrs. W. T. St. John and Mrs. Robert L. Brown, wives of the headquarter's sergeants major, and Mrs. E. O. Huff, guest of Mrs. Gustav M. Bacharach.

A lovely live miniature evergreen tree decorated with artificial birds and snow formed the centerpiece at the serving table where Mrs. Robert E. McGraw, Mrs. Kenneth Eggleston, Mrs. Charles C. Clark, Mrs. Ishmael Pack and Mrs. Ralph C. Colley poured.

New arrivals were Mrs. John Thompson and Mrs. J. Scallon.

Son

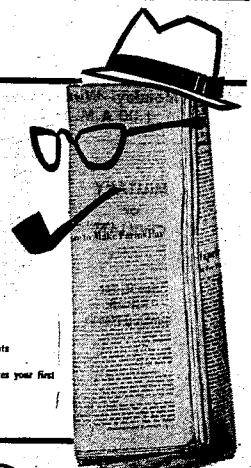
Mrs. John E. Arthur Honored At Coffee by 11th Inf Wives

At their February coffee, the officers' wives of the 11th Infantry bade farewell to Mrs. John E. Arthur, wife of the former battle group commander. Colonel Arthur has left the battle group to assume the post of deputy brigade commander.

Mrs. Arthur was presented with a turquoise marble compote and a corsage.

The Normandy Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess was decorated with hearts and cupids to carry out the Valentine theme of the morning event. Two candelabra flanked the floral arrangement of white gladiolus and chrysanthemums centered with a red cupid. Red hearts with white arrows served as name tags.

Hostesses for the coffee were Mmes. Frederick A. Rall, Ross W. Winne Jr. and Carroll J. Kraus.



Farewells also were said to Mmes. Wiley McGarity, Michael J. Bardis, Worth L. Wardlaw and Lawrence C. Bruscas, whose husbands are leaving on overseas assignments.

The next coffee will be hosted by Mmes. Cecil M. Sanders and James R. Sessions.

2nd Div NCOs Dedicate New Lounge Sat.

By Dir PIO

A large throng of 2nd Infantry Division non-commissioned officers gathered at the Division NCO Club last Saturday to attend the annual elections and watch Major General Charles H. Chase, division commander, cut the ribbon to officially open the lounge, a new facility at the club.

General Chase cut the ribbon after addressing the NCOs at the general membership meeting, which saw Sergeant Major Stephen J. Regan re-elected as president of the Board of Governors for the club.

The new facility is located directly off the main ballroom and is to be used as a lounge for NCOs and their guests. It is tastefully decorated in subdued tones and was completed generally by members of the management staff at the NCO Club.

Accompanying General Chase during the ribbon cutting ceremonies was Master Sergeant Harry A. Rupp, the club secretary; Sergeant Major Robert L. Brown, division sergeant major; Sergeant Regan and Captain Ishmael Pack, aide-de-camp to General Chase.

Trip to McClellan Meant Many 'Firsts'

The 87th's participation in the ten-day Fort McClellan exercise provided many "firsts," according to Colonel Robert E. Connor, battle group commander.

"First, we learned to live continuously and to support ourselves in the field for more than a four-day period," he said. "Furthermore; we had a real chance to get to know all of our attached and support units which comprised our task force.

"Lastly, the field problem provided a real test of our communications under extended field conditions. Of course, one other thing we proved is that we could manage a long and complex motor march."

The 87th Infantry "task force" was made up of about 1,500 men.

Although no one can deny that the individual line company foot Soldier was the "hero" of the exercise, living under combat conditions every minute of every day, the Fort McClellan trip can best be understood from the viewpoint of command and staff functions.

Major Howard Steele, the 87th Infantry S-3 (Operations), said the mission consisted of three tactical problems, each lasting about two days. The first was an attack of a mountain pass with the 87th's Company A acting as the aggressors. The second was an attack across unfordable streams opposed by an aggressor force consisting of members of the 23rd Infantry. The last was a delaying action and defense of a mountain range while being attacked by an enemy force comprised of 1st Infantry troops. All three problems were termed successful and were carried out under realistic conditions he said.

Situations became so real that the S-2 section (intelligence) worked constantly procuring and disseminating information about the activities of the "enemy" forces. This was accomplished by obtaining and processing information filtered down from higher headquarters, planned raids, interrogation of captive prisoners and analyzing leaflet drops.

One of the areas of warfare that was fully exploited was CBR (chemical, biological and radiological). Gas attacks and simulated atomic blasts were in constant play. Fort McClellan, an important CBR training center, had all of the equipment and technology needed to do the job.

Captain Ginger Co. Commander At 9th Infantry

Captain Walter D. Ginger was recently assigned as company commander of the 9th Infantry's Company A.

Captain Ginger has been with the 9th Infantry since January 1960 when he was assigned as the executive officer of the same company. He was then transfered to Company B, 9th Infantry, as commander.

In June, the Captain was reassigned to the battle group's S-3 staff as the liaison officer and public information officer.

Captain Ginger is a native of Louisville, Kentucky. He and his wife and children reside at Fort Benning.

11th, 13th, 69th Team In Combined Training

Elements of the 11th Infantry and the 69th Armor combined this week and last week to provide a taste of realistic training in the employment of combined arms teams. They were joined by Company C of the 13th Transportation Battalion and its armored personnel carriers.

Designed to test the status and combat readiness of such combined teams, the field training included blank and live-fire portions designed to simulate typical combat employment and to provide battle indoctrination.

Range

After two days spent in blank-fire problems using the opposing forces concept, a live-fire problem was conducted on Fournier Range by each infantry platoon-tank platoon team.

Several companies of the 11th along with their armor teammates bivouacked several nights in the field as the same tank-infantry-personnel carrier teams stayed together throughout the exercise.

In the problems, both Infantry and tank platoon leaders were given opportunities to lead combined teams. During all phases, stress was placed on control by squad and platoon leader and on communications.

In addition, Armor personnel were made aware of Infantry capabilities in such things as overcoming obstacles and close-in protection and Infantrymen were taught to appreciate Armor's mobility and fire power.

Motor Sgt. Gets Bar at 2nd QM

The 2nd Quartermaster Company lost a motor sergeant but gained an "Assistant" Motor Officer recently as Roland Durga traded in his Sergeant First Class stripes for the bars and insignia of a warrant officer (W1).

Mr. Durga will remain with the Quartermaster unit until the first part of April, when he will depart for Germany.

He joined the division at Fort Riley, Kansas, in 1955 as the motor sergeant of Tank Company, 35th Infantry Regiment.

Mr. Durga, a veteran of 15 years' service, is married and the father of two.

The commissioning ceremony took place in the office of Lieutenant Colonel James T. Durham, the division quartermaster.

Road Grader Operator's Work Didn't Go Unnoticed at McClellan

"fighting." He became used to working in and around battling forces, rifle-fire and clouds of smoke. To him Brigadier General Royal Reynolds Jr., exercise director, became a familiar sight, as he followed and observed the progress of the maneuvers.

In an Emergency

When the muddy red clay disabled an area containing the division's water and shower points, Nolen and his road grader worked all of one night in the emergency, clearing the ground for men and their vehicles.

Roads and air strips which normally represent routine work — something most Soldiers expect to be there, never wondering how or by whom it was done — got special attention at Fort McClellan where unfamiliar terrain presented special problems and where weather complicated working conditions.

Work by such men as Specialist Nolen did not go unnoticed. Their experience and ability to stick with the job, no matter how difficult, focused attention on their neutralist and most important function.

Despite the adverse circumstances, Specialist Nolen and other maintenance personnel succeeded in leaving the hills of Fort McClellan in better than ever condition. This "job well done" was an incalculable aid in facilitating the work and training of fellow Soldiers involved in the demanding tactical problems recently completed.

69th Armor Sgt. Gives Orders in 6 Tongues

By 69th Armor PIO

You name it and he speaks it — Polish, German, Czech, Russian, Lithuanian, Hungarian.

Company B of the 69th Armor has a "one-man intelligence squad" in Sergeant First Class Henry J. Kuzian. Originally from Poland, he served with the Polish Army when he was 16 years old, but, unfortunately, this doesn't presently count towards his U. S. Army longevity.

On September 22, 1939, before many modern Soldiers were born, Sgt. Kuzian was captured by Russians at Kiev and later released after a short period of internment, finally making his way to the United States in 1950. Evidently unable to resist the promise of such a wealth of experience, his draft board gave him "greetings" in 1951 and, since then, his service has been with armor.

When, as assistant platoon sergeant of Company B's third platoon, Sgt. Kuzian says, "If you don't understand in English, I'll tell it to you in Polish, German, Czech, Russian, Hungarian or Lithuanian," he's not kidding!

Signal Covers New Communication Areas

The 122nd Signal Battalion supported the field training exercise at Fort McClellan with 240 hours of communication and only one hour's break during the entire ten-day period.

Headquarters and Headquarters Company, Command Operations Company and the Forward Communications Company all participated in the exercise. The first platoon from the Command Operations Company established communications for Brigade Headquarters. Trains platoon from the same company provided communications for the trains area elements.

From the Forward Communications Company, the first, second and third combat support platoons provided signal support to the 87th, 23rd and 1st. Headquarters and Headquarters Company furnished a cable team, used in laying long lines, a signal repair team and a motor maintenance team.

Commo

All areas of communications of which the battalion is capable were provided the supported units. These included teletype, AM and FM radio, telephone circuits and ground messenger service.

The problem provided the battalion and the supported units with the opportunity to work areas of communication which hadn't been utilized in previous field duty. Notable in this area was radio-wire integration. Each signal center provided its supported headquarters with the capability and "how to" instruction, where needed, to provide its use.

As a result, more radio-wire integration calls were successfully completed than in all previous field problems. Its effectiveness was clearly demonstrated when Major General Charles H. Chase, division commanding general, using a radio from his jeep, spoke with Colonel Gustav M. Bacharach, division chief of staff, in his quarters at Fort Benning. Other areas in which the battalion achieved successful operations were message center and radio operations.

The first platoon of the Command Operations Company provided continuous radio operation between Fort McClellan and Fort Benning. In the area of message center operations, more messages were delivered with a shorter handling time than in any previous problem.

An "extra" provided by the battalion was the use of a radio, which, when linked with amateur radio operators in the Fort Benning area, enabled the men to call home and speak with their families directly from the field.

The combat support platoons of the Forward Communications Company were tested as to their ability to move from one area to another and the time in which all communications could be operational in the new area. The support platoons moved three times during the problem, two of which were night moves, and all communications were working within 40 minutes after arriving in the new area.

DivArty Shades 1st, 72-65, In Kelley Hill Hoop Contest

FROM UNIT PIOs

A fired up 1st Infantry basketball squad made a bold but vain effort in the second stanza of a clash with Division Artillery Monday night only to come out on the losing end, 72-65.

The DivArty quintet, paced by Don Yoder and Hubert Barksdale, maintained a ten-point-plus lead during the first half.

87th Inf	76
9th Inf	41

Paced by the rebounding and floor play of George Krajack, the 87th Infantry Conquerors swarmed over the 9th Infantry Manchus by a score of 76-41 in the feature attraction of a twin bill at Harmony Church fieldhouse Monday evening.

The contest started as a tight affair with George Krajack of the 87th and Joe Godfrey of the 9th exchanging baskets. At the end of the first ten minutes of play the Conquerors were on the top side of a 17-12 score. From this point the men from Kelley Hill started to move as the Manchu defense faltered.

As the teams left the floor for the half time intermission the 87th Infantry quintet was holding a slim nine point lead at 34-25.

The second half saw the Conquerors start moving with a torrid pace as they upped their lead to 15 points after only three minutes of play in the third stanza.

The 9th Infantry fought gamely to cut that margin in half with 14 minutes remaining on the clock. From here it was the winners all the way as they had their offense hitting on all cylinders and their defense tightening to hold the Sand Hill Manchus to only nine points for the remainder of the contest as they racked up another 36 points.

Although outclassed the 9th Infantry squad played a heartening game before going down to their eighth loss of the season.

Scoring honors for the evening went to Krajack of the 87th with 16 points whose teammate Lawsery Jordan tossed in 15 points. The 9th Infantrymen were led once again by the scoring 15 points, and exceptional floor play, seven assists, of five-foot, three - inch Joe Godfrey.

For the victors it was their eighth win against only one loss which was suffered at the hands of the league leading Division Artillery squad.

11th Inf	99
23rd Inf	59

Dominating the backboards and hitting consistently from the floor, the 11th Infantry rolled over the 23rd Infantry, 99-59, Monday night.

At the start of the contest, neither team could build a substantial lead; but with 15 minutes left to play in the first half, the 11th broke away.

Behind the sharpshooting of Bob Marshall, who hit for 21 points in the first half, the 11th built up a 22-point lead at the midway point, 54-32.

In the second half the reserves went into the game for the winners as they continued to increase their lead to 32 points at the final sound of the buzzer.

Garland Patrick pushed through 14 markers and pulled down a number of rebounds in the second half and Marshall scored 13 more to bring his total to 34 points, highest in the game. High man for the 23rd squad was Clint Johnson with 22 points.

Pistol, Rifle Duels Held By 27th Arty

In a recent battery - level competition held by the 27th Artillery, Battery B won the rifle team trophy and Headquarters and Headquarters Battery won the pistol trophy.

Members of the Battery B team were Sergeant First Class Howard E. Todd, team captain, Corporal Thomas T. Adkinson, Private First Class Gerald E. Erickson, Private John T. Wilson and Private Jess A. Cole Jr.

Members of the Headquarters and Headquarters Battery pistol team were Lieutenant Colonel James D. Clark, battalion commander and team captain, Captain Roy L. Sherard, Lieutenant Harry B. Byars Jr., Specialist Four Joseph W. Keating Jr., and Private John D. Patterson.

69th, Trns, 87th, Arty Post Wins

The 69th Armor, Division Trains, 87th Infantry and Division Artillery were the winners in the second slate of games played last week in the 2nd Infantry Division Basketball Tournament.

The tankers of the 69th Armor, the team representing Separate Battalions this year, defeated the 1st Infantry, 76-61.

Kenneth Dean led the Tankers to its win with 26 points while Robert Dickenson had 15 for the 1st Infantry.

Division Trains clipped the 11th Infantry, 76-67, as Lewis Eason paced the winners with 29 markers. Robert Marshal tossed in 18 for the 11th Infantry team.

Conquerors of the 87th Infantry trounced the 23rd Infantry quintet, 90-43. George Krajack dumped in 20 for the winners and Clint Johnson tallied 16 for the 23rd's team.

The 9th Infantry suffered a defeat of 106-46 at the hands of the Division Artillery five.

Judo Club Hosts Invitational Tournament This Weekend

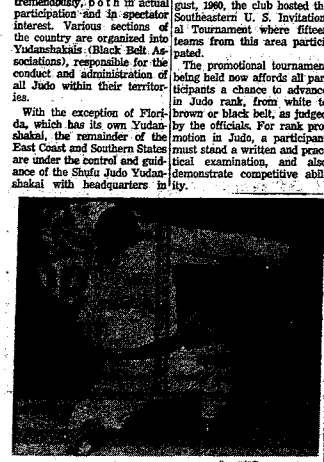
BY Sfc Bismarck Stith

A Fort Benning Judo Promotional Invitational Tournament will be held at Briant Wells Field House tomorrow and Sunday.

Kenzo Uyene, president; James Takemora, secretary-treasurer, and M. Y. Fukuda, 4th Degree Black Belt holder, will be the honorary hosts and will conduct a clinic and demonstration on techniques of Judo.

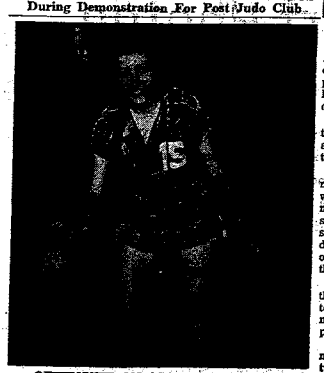
Judo has been popular in the U.S. since the close of the 1932 Olympics, progressing rather slowly however, until 1945.

In the past seventeen years its popularity has increased tremendously, both in actual participation and in spectator interest. Various sections of the country are organized into Yudanshakais (Black Belt Associations), responsible for the conduct and administration of all Judo within their territories.



With the exception of Florida, which has its own Yudanshakai, the remainder of the East Coast and Southern States are under the control and guidance of the Shufu Judo Yudanshakai with headquarters in Washington, D.C. The Army, Navy and Marine Corps all have teams.

The Fort Benning Judo Club was organized in 1958 and chartered under The SHUFV Judo Yudanshakai. Since then club membership has expanded to its present thirty-five.



In 1959 the Fort Benning Team traveled to Birmingham and competed in the Southeastern States Championships, winning the championship, with one of its members, Marcel Carles, taking the overall individual championship.

The team has participated in tournaments at New Orleans, Atlanta, Birmingham, Tampa, Savannah, Tuscaloosa and Camp LeJeune, N. C. In August, 1960, the club hosted the Southeastern U. S. Invitational Tournament where fifteen teams from this area participated.

The promotional tournament being held now affords all participants a chance to advance in Judo rank, from white to brown or black belt, as judged by the officials. For rank promotion in Judo, a participant must stand a written and practical examination, and also demonstrate competitive ability.

RUSS POND

Russ Pond has been stocked with another 1200 hatchery grown rainbow trout this past week. The pond was closed to all fishing the day prior to stocking and will remain closed for several days so the newly planted fish can become adjusted to the new waters. It is reported the pond will be open Saturday for children fishing only, with Sunday the opening day for adults. Although the trout arrived here in good condition from the South Carolina hatchery, there have been some trout dying since stocking. This is probably due to water temperature being slightly warmer than optimum water temperature.

FISHING HOT SPOT

Harps Pond was the fishing hot spot on post this past weekend. Although the catches were not fast and furious, those anglers that did connect brought in some lunkers. Several bass were weighed in at 3-½ — 6-¾, and 8 pounds. The big ones have been going for the artificial bait, with spoons and spinners apparently making some of the big catches. Fishing was generally slow at Kings Pond and other favorite fishing spots. Several reports indicate some nice catches were being made on the Upatoi Creek during the past week, with bream and catfish topping the list.

NAME CHANGED

The recently approved constitution of the former Fish and Game Maintenance Association has designated the organization as the FISH AND GAME ASSOCIATION. This was merely a change in name only as the Association's purpose and functions remain the same.

WACs Mark Eight Win Over Bragg--42 to 30

Over 500 cheering basketball fans were on hand last Saturday afternoon to witness the post Wac Basketball Team tally its eighth season victory over Fort Bragg, 42-30.

The Benning team took control at the sound of the buzzer and was never in trouble throughout the game.

In the first quarter the Benning Wacs picked up 11 points with Aylce Sims hitting the net for nine of them. They slowed down the pace in the second quarter and played a defensive game allowing Bragg only eight points. At the end of the first half, Benning led 18-12.

Sims added 14 more points in the second half to bring her total to 23, high for the winners, while Diane Poland dropped 12 in for the losers.

The Benning team will journey to Fort McClellan for a two game return contest this Saturday and Sunday. The two teams split in their last two game series with Benning winning the first game 35-28, and McClellan winning the final game 37-32.

29th Infantry Is Second In Basketball Second Half

By Sfc Bismarck Stith

The fastbreaking 428th Medical Battalion team pulled away in the final 14 seconds to down the 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade team 70-69 early this week in the second half of major unit basketball play. Both teams entered the game with three-win no-loss records, and battled through four torrid periods at Briant Wells Field House.

This was the Two-Niners first setback in league play since the same team handed them their lone defeat 67-3 in the first-half.

At the end of the first quarter the Infantrymen led by seven points, 21-14, with Bob Whitehead scoring 12 of the points for the victors while Freddie Morris topped the losers with 27.

In action last night the 428th Infantry won its seventh game without a defeat. They defeated The Medical Brigade by the score of 71-66. In the nightcap, the 29th Infantry beat the 58th Infantry 78-68.

The 428th Medics posted win number five Monday afternoon by whipping the 156th Signal, 90-69. The fast moving Medics kept the Signalmen in check throughout the game. At halftime they led 44-29, with Gary Hess hitting the net for 18 points.

The Medics picked up 50 more points in the second half to remain the only undefeated team in the league. Hess was high scorer for the winner with 27 points while Hughes had 36 for the Signalmen.

After dropping a close contest to the Medics Saturday night by one point, 70-69, the Two-Niners struck back Monday and handed the 10th Artillery Redlegs their third setback, 83-59. Anglin scored 18 points and Alvin Flagg led the Redlegs with 18 points.

In Tuesday night's action the first place Medics extended their wins to six in a row by defeating 156th Signal Battalion, 92-56. Hugh Royer of the Medics was high scorer with 18 while Charlie Bull hit the net for 23 points for the Signalmen.

In the second game Tuesday night the 10th Artillery Redlegs handed Center Troop Command their fifth setback, 77-71. Redleg's Ray Young led his team with 29 points while Willie Lee chalked up 20 for the losers.

Standings as of Feb. 15:

In the second half the Medics came back strong, their defense was too much for the Infantrymen. The Medics' combination of Gary Hess, Harold Deane and Hugh Royer put them in a ten point lead at one time in the third quarter.

The 428th stayed in front until the last three minutes of play. Two-Niner's Robert Anglin kept his team alive until the closing seconds when Medic's Gary Hess hit the net with the score 69-68 in favor of the Infantrymen and 45 seconds to play.

With eight seconds to go Frank Johnson of the Two-Niners was fouled and tension brought fans to their feet only to see Johnson miss the free throw which would have tied the game, so the Medics came out victorious, still undefeated in four starts.

Hugh Royer, 19 points, Gary Hess, 18, and Harold Deane with 17 paced the Medics for high scores while Bob Whitehead dropped in 28 buckets for the losers.

Other Games

In other games the Medics crushed the 58th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, 100-64, Infantry Center Troop Command, 93-67, and the 10th Artillery, 78-53. Medic's Hugh Royer paced the scoring attack in the CTC game with 19 points and scored 22 against the 58th Infantry. His teammate, Gary Hess, was high against the Artillerymen with 28.

The Student Brigade picked up three victories when they edge the 58th Infantry, 53-52, Center Troop Command, 64-33, and walloped the 156th Signal Battalion, 77-33. Carvey Jones was high scorer against CTC with 21, and hit 24 over the Signalmen, Tayler led against the 58th Infantry with 15 points.

The 10th Artillery "Redlegs" downed the 156th Signal, 74-52. Ray Young's 27 points and teammate Alvin Flagg's 20 points led the winners while Ronnie Sayler was high for the losers with 15. The Redlegs also topped the 58th Infantry, 75-52, with Ray Young leading the scoring attack with 23 points for the victors while Freddie Morris topped the losers with 27.

Quote Of The Week

When asked about the next major league .400 hitter, Hall of Famer Roger Hornsby said, "I don't see how any baseball player is going to hit .400 in this baseball age. Mickey Mantle, Willie Mays and Hank Aaron are potential .400 hitters but they're swinging for the fences most of the time. It isn't hard to figure why, is it?"

Most Courageous

Jack Twyman of the Cincinnati Royals and Maurice Stokes, a Cincinnati teammate who suffered a brain injury that left him completely paralyzed, were named co-winners of the 1961 Most Courageous Athlete award by sportswriters. Twyman was cited for devotion and for courage in handling Maurice's welfare.

THOMAS HALE

Pfc Thomas H. Hale, Headquarters Company, 1st Infantry Brigade, from Arcadia, Ind., recently received a one year football scholarship from the University of Alabama.

Hale was offered this scholarship for his outstanding performance as a tackle with the Fort Benning Doughboys Football Team during the 1961 season. He also played end with the Doughboys on the 1960 squad.

At Jackson High School he ran track and played football. In track he ran the high hurdles and threw the shot-put. He averaged 41 feet with the shot-put. After participating in both sports for four years, he selected football as his favorite sport.

During his four years in high school, he played in a total of 39 complete football games, missing only one. In his senior year his squad selected him as Most Valuable Player.

He entered the Army in February, 1960, and took his basic training at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo. At the completion of basic training he went to Fort Gordon's Signal School for eight weeks of advance training before being assigned to his present organization's, Signal Section as a switchboard operator.

Hale stands 6' 1" and weighs 220 pounds; he expects to be released from the Service in April, 1962, and head for the University of Alabama's spring training.

FOUL IS FOUL

If you foul often or even occasionally, the trouble may be in where you stand. Generally, you should use the following measurements:

1. For a three-step approach, stand about 10 feet from the foul line.

2. For a four-step approach, stand about 12 feet back.

3. For a five-step approach, step back about 13 or 14 feet.

There is no need to suffer the embarrassment of a foul; so, eliminate it from your game before you do anything else.

Dykes Heads Clinic

Jimmy Dykes, veteran major league player, coach and manager for the past 45 years, headed the six-man faculty at the USAFE Baseball Training School. Conducted last week at Garmish, Germany, the annual clinic attracted approximately 175 baseball managers and officials.

Lifeguard and Water Safety Registration Closes Today

The Special Services Section of The Infantry Center has begun the 1962 lifeguard and water safety instructor training program.

Purpose of the program is to serve in various capacities in the efficient and safe operation of outdoor swimming pools at the post.

It is open to all military personnel and their dependents if training space allows, if not training will be limited to personnel from the major units, the Ranger Department and the Main Officers' Open Mess, in that order.

Requirements for the program are passage of a preliminary water test and clearance from the major unit to which the individual is attached.

The test requires diving from the side of a pool and swimming 50 yards continuously using any type stroke or combination of strokes.

In addition, the water safety aspirant must swim 25 yards each style, using the side, back and crawl strokes, and surface dive to a depth of six feet.

During the course, trainees will be required to pass other tests including diving from the side of a pool and swimming 440 yards continuously, surface dive to a minimum depth of six feet and swim two body lengths underwater, tread water and float motionless for one minute.

Seven rescue problems involving various styles of take offs, approaches, breaks and carries also must be performed, in addition to the passage of written tests and practical problems of teaching.

Individuals, who successfully complete the program, will be placed on special duty to the Special Services Section.

All training will be at Brian Wells indoor pool, and preliminary testing, conducted all weeks, will continue through today.

According to officials, this initial test takes 30 minutes, and all applicants can take the test from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Lifeguard training and qualification classes will begin February 19 and continue through March 9. Each class runs for approximately three weeks.

Water safety instructors' training classes will run from March 12 to 16 and March 19 to 23.

Persons successfully completing the courses will receive American Red Cross certificates.

Mile Run Record

New Zealander Peter Snell set a new world record in the mile run when he was clocked at 3.54.4 seconds. Snell broke Australian Herb Elliot's mark by a tenth of a second.

Soldier of Month

Selected for outstanding knowledge of military affairs, current events and performance on his job, Sp4 James H. Hamilton has been named Soldier of the Month at the 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade. Hamilton is assigned to the Radar Section of Headquarters Battery.

At the Movies

LOVER COME BACK stars Rock Hudson, Doris Day and Tony Randall. Rock appears as an advertising mastermind whose outstanding gifts as a lady-killer are renowned over all the happy hunting grounds of Manhattan. The tempting bait placed in his fast-paced stride is the captivating Doris Day.

ONE-EYED-JACKS is a Western in color staring Marlon Brando, Karl Malden and Pina Pellicer. A determined outlaw vengefully hunts down his former partner who betrayed him to the Mexican police and discovers that the man has since become a righteous sheriff. Amid smoldering passions and explosive hatred, the two men meet and the feud of bad blood comes to a boiling climax.

KONGA co-stars Margo Johns and Michael Gough. A Botany professor whose life contains a series of evil secrets tampers with nature's laws to change a monkey into a death-dealing gorilla bigger than human eyes have ever seen.

X-15 stars David McLean, Charles Bronson and Mary Tyler Moore. To travel 4,000 miles an hour at an altitude of 100 miles is the goal of three determined test pilots assigned to the X-15 research project. The challenge becomes a vital part of their living as they risk their lives in an attempt to blaze a trail in space.

HERE'S A RECORD

A bell captain at one of Bermuda's major hotels recently received a gold watch for this service record: in 50 years with the hotel, he had never missed a day of work because of illness, and not one day in the entire period had been late for work. And he's still on the job today at the age of 71.

GOOD-BYE DOCTOR ROCH by Andre Soubiran. (Doubleday, 1961)

This is the situation confronting Dr. George Roch, new medical director of Melun Psychiatric Hospital. Released only a few years before from the infamous Dachau concentration camp, Dr. Roch is horrified to find conditions at Melun little better than those he remembers in his nightmares.

THE AMIABLE MEDDLERS by Josephine Lawrence. (Harcourt, 1961)

Miss Belle Bruell and her sister, Miss Zinnia, don't take to meddling but in their capacity as dressmakers they can't help knowing how beset with problems a good many of their clients are.

GIFT OF TIME by Phyllis Young. (Putnam, 1961)

That summer morning the postman brought Karen Whitney three letters: one was about a new job for her husband; one was from her doctor; and one was from the man she had not seen for twenty years. The ten days that followed those three letters altered Karen's present, and future.

NEW PICTURE COOK BOOK by Betty Crocker. (McGraw, 1961)

Here is a cook book that is charming, practical and fun to use. It is a complete cooking guide that includes the tried-and-true and the new-as-to-morrow, the simple and the sophisticated, foreign inspired foods and old-fashion American dishes.

STAY YOUNG & VITAL by Robert Cummings. Prentice Hall, 1961)

As one of the nation's busiest entertainers, Bob's thorough knowledge of nutrition, inspired by his father, a physician who helped pioneer the field, enables him to meet the demands of his rigorous work schedules. He uses his formula for good health, believes in it, and is living proof that it's right. At fifty, he has no illnesses, no glasses, no trace of baldness and no 'battle of the bulge'.

USO RETIREMENT . . . William J. Gable (L), former director of the 9th St. USO in Columbus, is presented a plaque on his retirement by Major Paul Beckman (R), post Special Services officer. The plaque was "in appreciation of . . . service to the military at Fort Benning." Looking on (C) is Roy Giglio, USO operating committee chairman. (Photo by John Moody)

AT PATTERSON AWARD . . . Mrs. Robert P. Patterson is escorted from ceremonies at the Infantryman Statue last week after she presented the 10th annual Patterson Award in memory of her husband, the former secretary of war who was killed in a plane crash in 1952. The award honors the outstanding Infantry Officer Candidate School graduate of the fiscal year. Shown are (L to R) Major Gen. Ben Harrell, post commander, Mrs. Patterson, and Secretary of the Army Elvis J. Stahr, Jr. (Sig Lab Photo by Sgt. Betty Farmer)

Pvt Cox Named Honor Graduate At Airborne Class Graduation

Last week marked another milestone in Fort Benning's history as the first class of paratroopers was graduated since the Airborne-Air Mobility Department of The Infantry School took over the training this winter of all Airborne troops.

Among the proud and well-disciplined graduates were 314 enlisted men, including five from the Marine Corps, one from the Air Force and 42 Army officers.

The graduates, all volunteers for the jump school, had just completed a rugged course of four weeks training for officers and noncommissioned officers and three weeks for other men.

Each was awarded silver paratrooper badges.

Honor graduate of the course was Pvt. James R. Cox.

A graduate of Miami Jackson Senior High School, he entered the Army August 15. After completing basic training at Fort Jackson, he was assigned to Fort Benning January 12.

At the Airborne graduation ceremony, Cox was presented a certificate signed by Col. Michael Paulick, director of the Airborne-Air Mobility Department.

The certificate said in part, "Your initiative, military bearing, superior physical condition and willingness to accept constructive criticism and instruction reflect great credit upon yourself and the Army."

Cox said, "This certificate is the greatest honor I have ever received."

In their first week of training, the graduates were taught fundamentals of parachuting and jumping from a plane and landing safely. In their second week, they learned to control their parachutes during descent from 250-foot towers.

After mastering the basic jump techniques and meeting the physical training requirements, the neophytes progressed to the testing week of the course.

In the final week, they had to make five qualifying jumps which became progressively more difficult. The first two were individual "tapouts." The last three were mass exits.

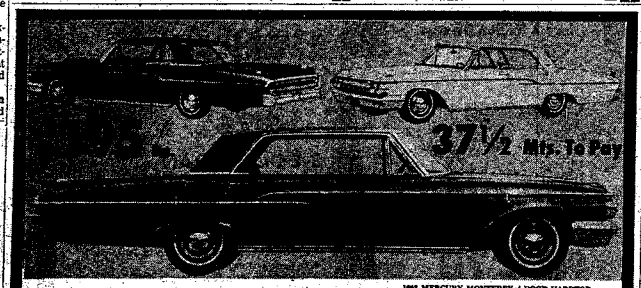
On their last jumps the students carried equipment, weighting about 100 pounds, they normally would use in combat. All the jumps were from a height of 1,250 feet.

Before Fort Benning assumed the training of all paratroopers, Airborne volunteers had been sent directly from basic training companies to Airborne units.

Norwegian Defense Minister Visits

The Norwegian minister of defense, Dr. Gunbend Harlem, will arrive here Monday to confer with officials from both The Infantry Center and The School.

Dr. Harlem will tour the post as well as receive briefings on the organization and mission of the Infantry School. He will also be oriented on the history and organization of The Infantry Center.



Honor ceremonies for the distinguished Norwegian visitor will be given at Chapel Field Tuesday. They will include a 19-gun salute.

"SOMETHING OLD. . ."

The Queensborough, England, council voted recently to buy the ceremonial mace bearer a new tricorn hat. The old one — bought in 1860 — was getting a little shabby.

Know Anything About This, uh, Knife?

A mysterious knife, apparently from the Far East and estimated to be not less than 150 years, probably holds some tales as fascinating as those of Marco Polo if its owner could trace its history.

Not a friendly looking thing, the knife is nearly 25 inches long when open. The handle is covered with bone and ivory, with Oriental figures engraved on it and on the blade.

Sfc Carl F. Stevens was serving with the 41st Armored Infantry Regiment of the 2nd Armored Division in April, 1945, when he took the unusual knife from a captured German soldier.

The enemy soldier offered little resistance when captured in the 41st's drive towards Puffendorf, Germany, near the close of World War II.

Since that time, Stevens has spoken to many people in Germany, the Orient and in the U.S., but has been unable to discover the exact origin of the knife.

Japanese authorities agree it was handmade somewhere in the Far East, probably in Tibet or Mongolia.

For his service in Europe during World War II and the Korean conflict, Stevens received the Bronze Star Medal, two Purple Hearts and the Combat Infantryman Badge.

The sergeant is a motor pool inspector for The Infantry Center Inspector General Section.

He soon will be transferred to Fort Sill, Okla., where he will be with the Ordnance Section.

After retiring in April, 1963, Stevens and his wife, Jean, and their three children will return to Killeen, Texas, where the sergeant will become a state game warden.

Anyone interested or who has information concerning the knife's origin may telephone him at 545-3961, 3967 or 5018.

Training Aids Center Earns 1G 'Superior'

The Third Army Training Aids Center here is believed to have set a record for efficiency recently by receiving its fifth consecutive inspection rating of "superior" from the post inspector general.

Since early 1956 the Center has maintained an unbroken record of earning the highest rating the Inspector General Section awards in annual inspections.

Established in 1951 by the Department of the Army, the Center provides upon call training aids to the Regular Army, Reserves, National Guard and Reserve Officers Training Corps.

Major Robert H. Schaffer, Training Aids Center officer, has the distinction of having his unit receive the rating of superior each year in annual inspections since his arrival at the Center in February, 1958.

The Inspector General Section of The Infantry Center does not recall any other Main Post unit that has maintained a record of five consecutive annual ratings of superior.

Talk About Israel By Rabbi Goodman

Rabbi Alfred Goodman of Temple Israel, Columbus, spoke February 6 at the Post Jewish Center, Building 1071.

The address was at 8 p.m., following a meeting of the Jewish sisterhood at 7:30 p.m.

Rabbi Goodman discussed a recent tour to Israel, and illustrated the talk with slides.

Airborne Association Charter Awarded Here, Election Is Set

A chapter of the Airborne Association, the Army's professional military organization of Airborne, has been activated at Fort Benning.

The activation of the local chapter was effected in a ceremony on the post when Brig. Gen. William S. McArthur, first vice president of the national association, presented the charter to Major Gen. Charles H. Chase, commanding general of the 2nd Infantry Division.

Gen. McArthur is assistant commander of the 108th Infantry Division, a Reserve unit.

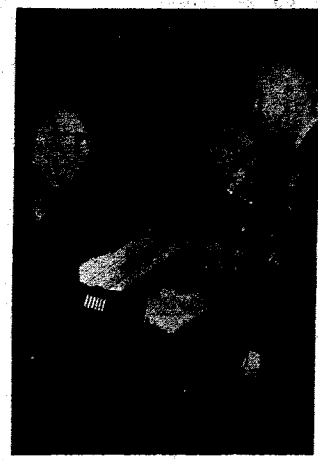
Gen. Chase then presented the charter jointly to Major William T. Manderson, S-4 of The Infantry School's Airborne-Air Mobility Department, and MSgt. Mike a Hostinsky, sergeant major of the 4th Battalion, Student Brigade.

Plans to form the Fort Benning chapter were begun by the Airborne-Air Mobility Department about a year ago.

Signed Petition

Last October the department sent a petition signed by 10 officers and enlisted men to the association headquarters at Fort Bragg, requesting approval of the local chapter.

On November 15 the association approved the constitution and by-laws and a month later Major Gen. Ben Harrell, commandant of The Infantry School, also approved them. Shortly afterward, Gen. Mad-thew B. Ridgeway, national president of the association and former Army Chief of staff, signed the charter.



Since 1954

The Airborne Association was organized in 1954, after years of planning, by combat veterans of five U. S. Airborne divisions.

It is the only organization of its kind dedicated exclusively to the interests of Airborne personnel and Airborne in national defense.

Active membership in the association is limited to qualified parachutists who are serving with or who have served with any Airborne unit of the Armed Forces, and to combat gliderists in World War II.

In March, the post chapter of the association, which has some 75 members, will elect its officers and permanent board of governors.

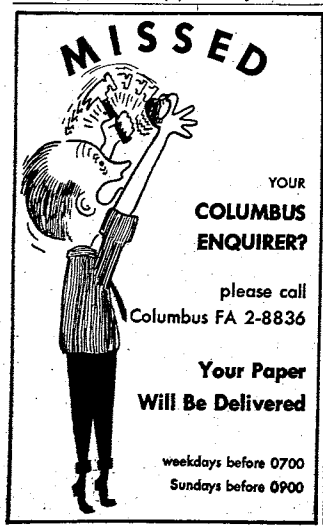
Tatistcheff To Direct 2 For Masquers

Private First Class Peter Tatistcheff, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 2nd Division, has been named director of the forthcoming Fort Benning Masquers' spring theater production.

Last appearing in the lead role of the play "Tea and Sympathy" produced by the Masquers last fall, Tatistcheff will direct two short plays — "The Browning Version" by Terrence Rattigan and "The Bald Soprano" by Eugene Ionesco.

Open tryouts for the two plays will be held at 7:30 p.m. on February 26, March 1 and 2 in the new Masquers Playhouse, Building 2519 on Main Post.

Production dates for the spring productions are scheduled for April 14, 20 and 21.



"The Browning Version", a prize-winning English drama will be followed on the same program by "The Bald Soprano," which has been described as an "Anti-play" and a satire on English life and manners.

LIFE'S BANG

A man in Norfolk, England, has solved the problem of poor television reception. When his set goes haywire, he rushes outside, bangs the lamp post with a crowbar and reception is restored.

HOME, SWEET HOME

Following up a hot tip, Huntington Park, Calif., police found two thriving marijuana plants. They were found in a planter box in front of the state parole office, where narcotics offenders report regularly.

New Air Defense Target 'Towbee' Tests Successful

REDSTONE ARENAL, ALA. (AFPS) — Towbee, a new target concept for air defense missile firing tests, has been successfully demonstrated by the Army.

The Towbee target consists of a cylinder, seven feet long and approximately one foot in diameter, made of inexpensive composition material and fitted with fins. It is towed behind a standard Army target missile.

The missile, a Ryan Aeronautical Co. Firebee, picked the target from the ground and towed it at a maximum speed of 400 knots at altitudes up to 30,000 feet.

Combat Soldier Gets Improved Protective Vest

Greater protection for the combat soldier is being built into an improved armored vest being developed by the Army Quartermaster Corps.

Made of titanium plates and ballistic resistance nylon, it is known as the composite armor vest and covers the soldier's entire upper torso. The overlapping metal plates are stapled to the nylon material to form a flexible armor.

The Army said the composite model will give more protection than the standard M-1952 A model which saved many lives in Korea.

A six-ply collar of ballistic resistance material gives protection to the wearer's neck and a newly designed pivoting soldier greater freedom of arm movement than is possible with current models.

Also under consideration is the use of larger titanium plates for body areas having slight movements with smaller plates providing flexible action in body areas that move more. Thicker plates will be applied to vital areas.

Shooters From Benning Win Top Honors in Texas Meet

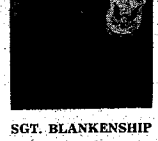
By SSgt Lee LaCombe

Handgunners from the Army Marksmanship Training Unit, making their first venture off the post this year, returned successfully this week from San Antonio, Tex., where they captured all of the team and the top two individual trophies in the Texas Mid-Winter Pistol Championships.

Sfc William Blankenship and Sfc Sam Hunter, current national and U.S. international pistol champions, respectively, rolled up the first two spots in the grand aggregate.

Army Blue swept three of the four team events and Army Grey grabbed the fourth. Included in the win was the grand aggregate team championship held by the Army marksmen since 1959.

The race for individual honors was a red hot battle with only a short spread of two points separating the top three men. Blankenship nipped his competitors with 2637 out of a possible 2700 points. Hunter was a point back and Capt. Franklin Green of USAF held the show slot with 2635.



The Army Grey squad won the .22 caliber pistol team title while Army Blue took the Center Fire and 45 caliber matches in addition to the grand aggregate.

Sgt. Blankenship also won the Center Fire Slow Fire match with 194 out of a possible 200 and the Center Fire aggregate with 387x900.

SSgt James H. McNally of AMTU collected the 22 caliber Timed Fire Match with 200 out of a possible 200 with 15x. The x-ring is a smaller circle within the bulls-eye used to break ties.

Norway Defense Minister Visits

A 19-gun salute on Chapel Field was fired at 8:05 a.m. Tuesday in honor of Dr. Gudmund Harlem, minister of defense of Norway, who arrived on the post Monday.

He was met upon arrival at Lawson Army Airfield by Major Gen. Ben Harrell, commandant of The Infantry School.

Accompanying the minister of defense are Arvid Norman Barstad, a member of the ministry; Col. Ole Otto Paus, chief of the Logistics Division, Norwegian Defense Staff, and Rear Adm. J. W. Cooper, chief of the U. S. Military Assistance Advisory Group, Norway.

After the honors ceremony Tuesday, Dr. Harlem visited Gen. Harrell.

Plans for the visitor included a briefing on the history and organization of The Infantry Center and the organization and mission of The Infantry School.

He observed the method of utilizing the reservation in support of the training program.

During a visit to the school's Airborne-Air Mobility Department, Dr. Harlem observed basic Airborne instruction and toured training facilities at Eubanks Field.

He also saw a demonstration of Ranger training at Victory Pond.

An official luncheon was held for the visitors Monday in the Main Officers' Open Mess. Gen. Harrell was host.

Dr. Harlem departed the post Tuesday from Lawson Field. Departure honors were rendered on the field.

'Crisis Continues', Reservists Still Needed, States President

At his press conference last week, President Kennedy stated that there can be no positive schedule set now for release of Reservists called to active duty in answer to world tension.

In part, the president said: "The crisis continues. . . and the need for Reservists continues until there is an easing of the crisis or until we have been able to replace them with other men.

"As you know, we are building two new permanent divisions which will be ready in August. . . and September. . . . and, of course, that will then present us with an entirely different situation in regard to their need," he continued.

"But until we have an easing of the crisis in Berlin or these two new divisions, the need for the Reservists, of course, will continue," the president concluded.

One Extra Day OK'd This Year To File Returns

NEW YORK (AFPS) — An extra day has been granted to taxpayers filing their federal income tax returns.

Since the usual date for filing, April 15, falls on a Sunday this year, the Internal Revenue Service put the deadline ahead one day. Returns must be postmarked by midnight April 16.

'American Way of Life' Themes Bring $50, Medals to Two Here

A George Washington Honor Medal and $50 have been won by two post personnel for writing a theme on the "American Way of Life" in the 1961 Freedom Foundation's Letter Awards Program contest.

They are 2nd-Lt. George W. Ashworth, Headquarters Battery, 15th Artillery, 1st Howitzer Battalion, 2nd Infantry Division, and Sgt. Bernard Jaffe, Headquarters Company, 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade.

The contest is held each year and the themes, all written by servicemen on active duty, must be between 100 and 500 words in length.

A total of $9,000 in prize money is awarded, with one of $1,000, one of $500, 50 of $100, 50 of $50 and George Washington Honor Medals, going to the writers.

Major John J. Plosay, Jr., who, at the time he wrote his theme, was S-3 for the 1st Infantry Brigade, won a George Washington Medal. Plosay is now attending the Municipal University of Omaha under the Army's educational program.

Gen. Trapnell Says U. S. Forces 'Best', Most Combat Ready of Any Peacetime Era

The U. S. today faces problems of the utmost seriousness, Lt. Gen. T. J. H. Trapnell, commanding general of the Third Army, said at a recent meeting of the Military Order of the World Wars at the Main Officers' Open Mess.

As guest speaker before the 125 members and guests at the ladies night banquet, Gen. Trapnell added, "These problems, which challenge our national will and purpose, are comparable to any of those of the nation's historic periods.

"But we face them in a position of great strength. It is important that we place them in their proper perspective and not allow frustration and discouragement to undermine our faith and convictions."

Gen. Trapnell said, "Our trust and confidence in our country has given us our national purpose. This purpose, along with our natural resources, has produced in less than 200 years a shining example of what free men can do."

He added that for the past decade Army leaders have stressed the country's need of forces capable of reacting to any type of enemy pressure against ourselves or our free allies.

Gen. Trapnell pointed out that one of the nation's greatest assets is the Armed Forces, the Army's 16 combat divisions, the increasingly strong

Chilean Army Academy Students And Professors Arrive at Post

Three professors and 17 students of the Chile Army War Academy will arrive at the Muscogee County Airport in Columbus, Sunday for a four-day tour of the post.

The group, headed by Col. Juan Forch Petit, is scheduled to land at the airport at 1:50 p.m.

The next day, the Allied visitors will be officialy welcomed by Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles, Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School.

The rest of the morning will be devoted to briefings on the history and organization of The Infantry center, the organization and mission of The Infantry School, utilization of the Fort Benning reservation in support of training, methods of instruction, Infantry organization and tactics, and on the Airborne Air Mobility Department.

At noon the Chilean officers will attend an official luncheon, hosted by Col. Richard W. Keyes, deputy assistant commandant of The Infantry School.

In the afternoon, they will receive briefings on the Department of Non-Resident Instruction and the Editorial and Pictorial Office's role in the provision of training literature.

In addition they will observe a problem on the communications systems of the Infantry battle group, and the Ground Mobility Department's classroom instruction.

That night, the group will be the guests at a dinner given by

Florida Flag Sent to Unit By Governor

The 138th Transportation Company, a National Guard unit training is the proud possessor of the Florida state flag.

The white, red and yellow flag was presented to the company recently by the office of Gov. Farris Bryant of Florida in recognition of the 138th's meritorious record in training since its call to active duty in the Army's buildup program in October.

Accompanying the flag was a letter from Gov. Bryant to Capt. Henry E. McDonald, commander of the 138th.

The letter said in part, "Let me take this means of expressing to you and your men the best wishes of all of Florida. We appreciate the great effort the 138th has made and your excellent training reports indicate that the company is carrying out its duties in a manner that makes us all proud of you.

"I am sending you under separate cover our state flag. I would consider it an honor to our state if you would display this flag in an appropriate place in your headquarters."

Ground Mobility Department NCOs, M-113 Have Space Shot Support Role at Canaveral

BY IDA C. EVANS

Among the many craft standing by to retrieve the Project Mercury space capsule is an Infantry vehicle from Fort Benning.

Neither a ship cruising in the far Atlantic nor a helicopter hovering over choppy waves, the vehicle has an equally vital and dramatic role to play in the launching of a man into orbit.

Its job is to move into the pad at Cape Canaveral in case of a faulty launching, pick up the passenger in his capsule and quickly remove him to safety. Or, if the missile misfires and catapults the astronaut into the ocean, the versatile vehicle will plunge into the water to make the rescue.

In charge of the recovery craft at Cape Canaveral is Sfc Tillman Chastain, a member of The Infantry School's Ground Mobility Department.

The vehicle is an M-113 personnel carrier, adapted to a new role of working in intense heat.

Completely insulated and equipped with a blade on front to push the capsule and a crane on top to lift it, the carrier stands by during launchings, 1,000 feet from the pad. It is constantly in touch with proceedings, using special communications equipment.

SIX OF EIGHT 'MERCURY' SUPPORTERS, WITH TIS M-113 — (L to R) MSgts Edwards, Taylor, Means, Reid, Sfc Mobley, Sfc Amodeo

Sgt. Chastain is one of eight men from the Ground Mobility Department who have served on a rotating basis at the Cape since February 15, 1961.

MSgt Terrell A. Means flew from Benning to Patrick Air Force Base, Fla., with an M-113 personnel carrier a year ago.

The assignment of a sergeant and vehicle to Canaveral was the result of a request from the Third Army that this post transfer or lend an M-113 personnel carrier, they have the space project.

Assigned to the Cape for one or more 30-day tours since The Infantry School entered Project Mercury, post participants include Sgt. Means, Sgt. Chastain, MSgt Ray Taylor, Sfc Neal R. Gentry, Sfc Paul J. Mobley, Sfc Anthony J. Amodeo, MSgt Asa H. Reid and MSgt Mark E. Edwards.

Their daily reports sound routine, but they cover some exciting moments for the entire nation.

One entry, for instance, reads, "November 29 —Reported to Cape at 0400 hours. Loaded up with pad safety crew, and stood by for Enos shot at 1007 hours. After shot, returned to motor pool, gassed up vehicle, and pulled after operation maintenance service. Had rest of day off."

A chimpanzee had been shot into space and successfully recovered. Thousands of words had been written and spoken about the event. The report of the sergeant was perhaps the briefest on record.

Another report reads, "Arrived at Pad 5 at 2400 hours 4 May 61 and remained with the vehicle until all was completed on Project Mercury which was at 1100 hours 5 May 61 and the carrier was returned to Pad 5. During all training, tests, dry runs and man shot all proper maintenance was performed and vehicle performed as expected."

A man had been shot into space and successfully returned, but to these well disciplined, highly trained recovery experts, the job was routine.

During either of the shots, a faulty launching or a fire at the site would have brought the M-113 into the picture to recover the passenger and capsule.

Sgt. Geistry said the hardest part was the waiting before the first manned shot.

"In our carrier were the designer of the capsule, the astronaut's personal physician, the pad safety officer, two firemen and myself," he said. "While we waited, we heard everything that was said. The doctor talked to the astronaut. We stayed right there on the pad until the recovery was completed."

For the Enos shot, the carrier moved into position 1,000 yards from the launching site, closer than anyone had been before.

Sgt. Means briefed Lyndon B. Johnson on the role of the carrier in Project Mercury when the vice president visited Cape Canaveral.

The land and water capsule recovery vehicle at Cape Canaveral is one of the Army's new personnel carriers. It is capable of transporting a combat-ready Infantry squad on land or in water.

To prepare the all aluminum M-113 for its capsule recovery role, it was sand blasted and covered with a heat resistant paint. Fiberglas insulation was installed around the fuel tank and connections.

With the addition of a radio and intercom system, a crane on top and a blade attached to the front, the converted carrier was ready to play a new role.

The adapted vehicle is "ideally suited for the support of Project Mercury," according to officials at Cape Canaveral.

The initial plan was for The Infantry School to lend the vehicle to Patrick AFB for six months, and to send a noncommissioned officer from the Ground Mobility Department with it.

The project has continued and the vehicle has been transfered from the Department of the Army to the Air Force. Eventually, the recovery vehicle will be manned entirely by Cape Canaveral personnel trained by the Ground Mobility Department NCO's.

airlift, the progress in the Army's modernization and its missile capability.

"Most of us have the tendency of thinking of our Armed Forces in terms of supersonic aircraft and guided missiles with megaton warheads," he said. "But these weapons are not the Armed Forces. They are only the tools of power.

"Man himself, trained in the skill application of these tools to the task of national defense, provides the heart, the mind and the soul of our Armed Forces."

The Third Army commander said, "Our soldiers have not only been trained to a fine edge in technical skills, but also have been endowed with a sense of purpose."

"I believe that our Armed Forces today are the best and most ready for combat that this country has ever had in peacetime," he added.

Gen. Trapnell concluded, "As you look ahead to days and years to be lived, to decisions to be made, remember that as long as patriotism, integrity and devotion to duty are recognized as essential to a free America, her Armed Forces will merit your faith and confidence."

Among those at the banquet were Lt. Gen. (Ret.) Reuben Jenkins; Major Gen. (Ret.) Philip E. Gallagher; Major Gen. Charles H. Chase, commanding general of the 2nd Infantry Division; Brig. Gen. Royal Reynolds Jr., assistant 2nd Division commander; Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly, deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, and Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School.

Chileans

Major Augustin Toro, an Allied student from Chile attending The Infantry School.

Following a Ranger Department briefing Tuesday morning, the Chilean Army representatives will receive a briefing on the planning of instruction and the utilization of training aids.

After this the ininerary calls for a visit to the 1st Infantry Brigade, where they will witness a scout dog demonstration and see several of the Infantry's modern weapons.

An official reception, with Gen. Syries serving as host, is scheduled for Tuesday night. The reception will begin at 6:30 p.m. and will be held in the main ballroom of the Main Officers' Open Mess.

The group will depart from the Muscogee County Airport Wednesday.

PERSONNEL OF 489TH WORK AT NIGHT In River Crossing Operation During The ATT

As Engineers Tested

ATTs Give Benning Permanent Benefits

After a rugged ten week program of intensified combat training, the 391st Engineer Battalion (Combat), 489th Engineer Battalion (Combat), 114th Engineer Company (Panel Bridge) and the 186th Engineer Company (light Equipment) successfully completed their Army Training Tests this month.

The tested units are assigned to the 151st Engineer Group (Combat), commanded by Col. S. Y. Coker.

Scenario

The scenario of the test depicted an aggressor force launching an attack on the southeastern portion of the U.S. through the Gulf of Mexico.

Friendly forces were fighting a delaying action at the beginning of the test and were making a stand in Alabama long the general line Hurtsboro, Marvyn, Opelika and Lafayette. The 151st Engineer Group was attached to the 3rd Engineer Brigade, attached to I Corps, Third Army.

Mission of the 151st Group was to provide engineer area support within the I Corps area.

The test started with issue of an operations order to the tested units directing that they move to pre-designated areas and render support as outlined in the order.

Aggressor Action

During the test, the units were subjected to aggressor air and land attacks, which included a simulated nuclear attack on Columbus.

Engineer support included road construction and maintenance, operation of a gravel pit, construction of a panel bridge, an air landing facility, truck-and tank decoys, a timber trestle bridge, natural timber box culverts and an Infantry footbridge.

As the test progressed, the friendly forces were driven back and the 151st was required to prepare plans for reorganization as Infantry to defend along the Chattahoochee River.

Post Improved

In addition to providing excellent training and an evaluation of the units ability to perform their respective missions, Fort Benning also benefited from the tests: a pioneer type air landing facility was constructed near Liberty Road south of Arkman Range, for much-needed air access to that section of the reservation, a road was constructed providing a more direct access from Goodhope Cemetery to Arkman Range and another road was extended considerably in an effort to provide a more direct access from the Lawson Field Area to Sunshine Road.

Personnel support to conduct the Army Training Test required a control headquarters, headed by Lt. Col. Albert E. Pokorny, plus a staff of two officers and nine enlisted men. In addition to the control headquarters 13 officers and 10 noncommissioned officers were assigned from other units within the 151st, to the units being tested to evaluate all phases of their operations.

Training Areas and Ranges Renamed After Army Heroes

Three Army heroes of bygone eras have been posthumously honored when training areas of The Infantry School's Ranger Department were named for them in honor of their heroism.

Two of the areas were redesignated to commemorate former 2nd Infantry Division soldiers who died in combat.

Ranger Bivouac Area has been renamed Mastin Field in honor of the late Pfc Robert L. Mastin, formerly of the 1st Ranger Company (Airborne), 2nd Division.

Mastin was awarded posthumously the Distinguished Service Cross for extraordinary heroism in action against the enemy near Kunmel-gol, Korea, May 17 and 18, 1951.

Ranger Training Field 2 has been designated Hall Field in commemoration of the late Cpl. Glenn M. Hall, 1st Ranger Company. Hall also was awarded posthumously the Distinguished Service Cross for heroic action near Chipyong-ni, Korea, February 15, 1951.

Ranger Training Field 1 has been named Morgan Field to commemorate the fame of Col. Daniel Morgan, commander of Morgan's Riflemen in the Revolutionary War.

In addition, seven training ranges have been renamed.

They include the Recoiless Rifle Range 1, changed to O'Brien Range, Grenade Range 2 to Frey Range, Nightfire Range 13 to Hitchcock Range, Rocket Launcher Range 1 to Edwards Range, O-1 Range to Strickler Range, O-3 Range to Weigel Range, Range 12 to Wallace Range and Squad Attack Range 2 to Wilson Range.

What Is a Newspaper?

U. S. Living Standard Is Basic to Advertising

(Fifth of an AFPS Series)

Advertising in newspapers is news. It is information about merchandise, services or ideas and inventions of people who pay to have such news published and disseminated. What would happen if there was no advertising? How would our economy be affected? Here is how the White Plains, N. Y., Reporter Dispatch envisions it:

"The last advertisement was printed yesterday. You have cut it out and put it away to show your grandchildren. With it, a way of living as you knew it, has passed forever.

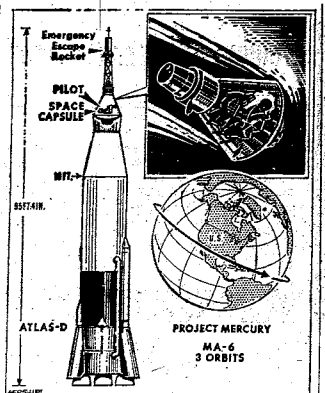
"Tonight you will want to see a movie. You pull up to one — saw it last week. At another — but no, you don't like so-and-so's acting. Let's go home. It's too much gas and time to waste on a show. Next month half the theaters will close. Poor attendance.

"Tomorrow you will want some groceries. You will go to the nearest grocery store and buy some rib roast, perhaps, and lima beans. You won't hear until tomorrow night at the bridge table that the store just next door was having a 'special' on rib roast and lima beans. Pretty soon your husband will wonder why the food bills are so high. The last advertisement was printed yesterday.

"Old car's wearing out. Can't afford a new one. . . Chevies and Fords are both $3,500. . .demand's fallen off . . .they've had to up prices to meet plant expenses. Most of the others have closed down. . .don't know how the government will feed all the new unemployed.



"Fellow in Milwaukee is inventing color television to sell for $50. No one will hear of it. You will never see it. What is color television anyway? The last advertisement was printed yesterday.

"Advertising has brought us many things. Finer cars, better homes, silly fads and wonderful inventions that have made life easier — and longer. Advertising is no unmixed blessing. But it has helped give America a standard of living unmatched in any other place and time. That standard of living should persist as long as people have wants to fill and money to spend and eyes to read with.

"It will persist only so long as the presses keep rolling."

PERFORMANCE AWARDS . . . Mrs. Winifred H. Mrs. Brown also received a letter of appreciation for a proposed office improvement suggestion. (Sig Lab Photo by Sgt. Betty Farmer)

Red Cross: It Reflects Service for 81 Years

The Red Cross is the concern of all Americans, but it is of a very special concern to one group — the men and women of the Armed Forces. Why is this so? It's because the largest single job of the Red Cross is helping to maintain the morale of servicemen and their families, at home and overseas.

This should be uppermost in our minds when we are asked in March to contribute to the American National Red Cross campaign for funds. Each year Red Cross assistance to service people and veterans accounts for about 35 per cent of its budget and 55 per cent of the time of its staff workers and volunteers. In giving generously to this organization, now 81 years old, we are simply insuring our own welfare in time to come.

For the statistics are stunningly impressive. In the year that ended last June 30 Red Cross services each month to military families and veterans averaged 120,000; to servicemen at stations and hospitals, 77,000, to veterans in Veterans Administration claims offices, 15,000. During the year, volunteer workers gave 4,625,000 hours at stations. A total of 932,000 welfare messages were sent.

The Surgeon Says:

Outpatient Medical Care

By Col. William A. Todd Jr.

The major problem of Martin Army Hospital is providing clinic (outpatient) care for the large population served. The key to a satisfactory solution is the appointment system. Most medical clinics and physicians in civilian life use such a system. Appointments allow an orderly flow of patients into the clinics.

This gives more time to our limited number of physicians to examine and treat each patient. Delays are inevitable but our goal is to reduce delays to the minimum.

Some patients can be examined, diagnosed and treated in a relatively short time. Other require considerable time, and in some cases referral for laboratory tests; X-rays, etc. The time required for each case cannot be determined in advance, thus strict adherence to a time schedule based on appointments, is not possible.

Appointments give the best possible method of scheduling, with reduction in waiting time.

It should be obvious that no orderly system of clinic care is possible when many individuals appear without appointment. True emergencies arise which do not allow for planning or appointments, but these are relatively few.

We cannot expect patients to have the judgement of a physician in determining if the condition warrants emergency treatment. However, a telephone call to one of the clinic doctors or the professional officer of the day after hours, would help in determining an emergency.

While every consideration is given to the convenience of the patient, it is not always possible, with the volume seen, to make appointments as soon as, or at the time desired.

Demands for specific treatment such as, "I want Johnny to have penicillin for his cold," cannot be accepted by the physician. The physician alone is responsible for decision as to the treatment best suited for Johnny's condition.

If a condition becomes worse or there is not satisfactory response to treatment, the physician should be notified. Occasionally several modes of treatment are required before successful results are obtained.

A factor which adds much to the volume of patients and delays is failure to administer home treatment for minor conditions which rarely in civilian life come to the attention of a physician unless complications occur.

Minor cuts, scratches, bruises, etc., can adequately be treated at home by first aid measures. Common colds, headaches, constipation (if not accompanied by abdominal pain), diarrhea of short duration and numerous other conditions are readily treated at home by bedrest, diet, increased fluids, enemas, mild laxatives or other measures.

Temperatures can be reduced in infants by lukewarm sponge baths, increased fluid intake, small doses of aspirin, etc. In the event common treatment measures do not produce results, medical assistance should be sought.

By the action indicated above, much can be done to alleviate crowded conditions and reduce waiting time.

This will assist those who have more significant illnesses to obtain expeditious and more thorough examination and treatment.

It is the desire of the staff of Martin Army Hospital to provide the best care for military personnel and dependents. To accomplish this, patients' understanding will be most helpful.

We desire to render care of the highest standard, in a rapid, courteous and understanding manner. Proper use of the appointment system will do much to provide the best medical care. In turn, your understanding, self-help where possible, and cooperation will be appreciated.

Chaplain's Corner

'Freedom From Fear'

By Chaplain (Capt.) William W. Rivers

Does this slogan strike a responsive note for you? Not too many years ago it was quite familiar to most of us.

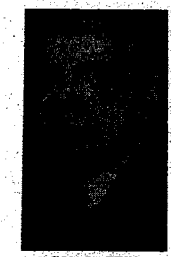
There is a machine known as the polygraph, more commonly called the lie detector. It was invented in 1931 and to date, in tens of thousands of cases, it has a record of error of less than one per cent.

The key to the operation of this machine is that it measures emotions. The emotion most often recorded is fear.

This is not surprising to most of us. Fear nags at most of us. It is something we live with and a part of our daily existence.

The five most common fears are: failure, accident and disease, loss of material possessions, displeasure of the group, and lastly, the unknown. These fears may be hidden; sometimes we may lie about them, but they often show up in one form or another.

Unfortunately, there is no quick and easy cure for fear. It is something which we must try to overcome through tonics and capsules.



The religious person deals with his fears by admitting their existence but refusing to live by them. He knows that, under God, every problem has a solution.

The religious person can continue on in his established pattern or course in spite of his fears. He knows that some fears are useful and makes them an asset in his daily life. The religious person knows that to walk with God brings victory over any and every form of fear.

A better understanding of one's religion and consequently a closer relationship with God can bring home to any person the fact that many of his fears are foolish and useless.

A parade, a carnival and a steak supper are just part of the festivities scheduled tomorrow for the celebration of the fourth anniversary of the Infantry Center Troop Command.

The day's events will begin with a parade at 9 a.m. on Sidwell Field, continuing in the afternoon with a carnival on the parade field behind the Third Cuartel and ending that evening with steak suppers held by the individual companies in the command.

The carnival will offer games and prizes for members of the command and their families. In addition, there will be military and athletic competitions.

Redesignated In 1958

The anniversary notes the establishment of The Infantry Center Troop Command February, 1958.

The commanding general of The Infantry Center, Major Gen. Ben Harell, sent a letter of congratulations to Col. John H. Lattin, commander of the Troop Command, on the service rendered by the unit. (See letter below).

In February, 1949, the original unit was established. At that time it was called the Army Area Service Unit Provisional Group. Eight years later the designation was changed to Special Troops Command, receiving its present name the following year.

The command is comprised of three battalions, the 69th Transportation, 7th Ordnance and the 1st Battalions.

In addition, there are Headquarters Company, the WAC, Military Police and the 105th Military Police Companies which are not attached to a battalion.

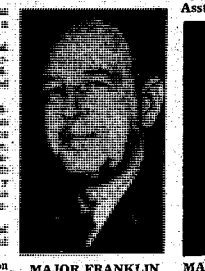
Five Reserve and National Guard units, called in during the recent buildup of military strength, are attached to the command.

These are the 105th Military Police Company from Utica, N. Y., 131st Ordnance Company from Anniston, Ala., 322nd Ordnance Company from Dover, N. J., 505th Transportation Company from Cocoa, Fla., and the 674th Transportation Company from Orlando, Fla.

The missions and duties of the battalions are many and varied.

The 39th Transportation Battalion's mission is the support of The Infantry Center Reserve Officers' Training Corps Summer Camp, Reserve components and the Ranger Department instruction at The Infantry School.

Transportation companies in the 39th Battalion include the 138th, 505th, 515th, 666th and 674th. The battalion commander is Major Francis L. Franklin.



The mission of the 7th Ordnance Battalion is supplying command, administrative and operational supervision for the attached ordnance, maintenance and supply units.

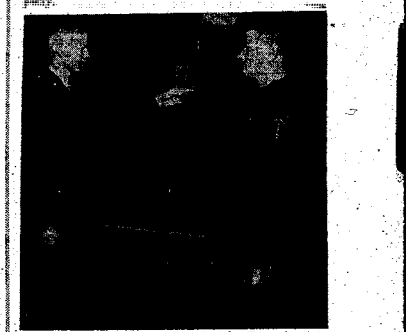
SUBJECT: Unit Day, 24 February 1962



TO: Commanding Officer, United States Army Infantry Center Troop Command, Fort Benning, Georgia

1. On the occasion of the United States Army Infantry Center Troop Command Unit Day, I wish to extend heartiest congratulations from the personnel of the Infantry Center.

2. The varied and complex missions assigned to your command in support of the United States Army Infantry Center and the United States Army Infantry School have been accomplished with efficiency and dispatch. The fine spirit of cooperation, esprit de corps and ability displayed by members of United States Army Infantry Center Troop Command are commendable and reflect leadership and training.

3. I am confident that any missions assigned in the future will be accomplished with the same marked success which has characterized past performance.

Student Brigade Fashion Show Parades Latest Spring Models

Student officers' ladies of Infantry Officer Career Course, Class 2, 2nd Student Battalion, The Student Brigade, sponsored a "Harbingers of Spring" fashion show recently in the Main Officers Open Mess.

Guest of honor for the afternoon was Mrs. A. D. Surles. She was greeted by the program director and hostess, Mrs. Francis C. Taylor. The hostess presented Mrs. Surles with a floral bouquet.

Also seated at the table with Mrs. Surles were: Mrs. Wade Herring, Mrs. Charles F. Austin, Mrs. Ralph Hughett, Mrs. Frank Roberts, Mrs. Lee Revell, and the program fashion commentator, Mr. Jack Schiffman of an Atlanta apparel shop.

After a luncheon consisting of stuffed tomatoes, turkey salad, spiced peaches, crab apples, apricots, assorted vegetables, two finger sandwiches, coffee and cherry tarts, the ladies were presented with a summer parade of fashions.

The models, Mesdames Neece V. Davis, John F. Sloan, Stanley Skaife, Mercer H. Patterson, Joe Neely, Weldon F. Honeycutt, John White, Pete J. Dareos, Robert B. Vail, and Taylor, displayed four ensembles each, with the exception of Mrs. Taylor, who modeled two light weight suits.

The program began with the newest trend in bathing suits. Mrs. Sloan modeled a gold "Coquille" swimsuit, and Mrs. Patterson modeled a black and white "Carnation Print".

As the program continued into sports-wear that will be seen this summer, Mrs. Skaife modeled a two piece number consisting of a multi-colored top and a pair of yellow "Hipster" slacks.

From sportswear, through summer dresses, to the evening formals, receiving the most interest from the gathering was a white faille formal satin rose trimmed evening gown modeled by Mrs. Honeycutt.

MSgt Frank Hardin of the Post Chaplain's Section provided dinner music and background music for the fashion show.

Decorations for the affair were designed and prepared by Mrs. Edward Trobaugh, chairman, Mrs. Vail, Mrs. Everett Yon, Mrs. James Witek, and Mrs. Gary Williams.

Communications Department's Luncheon Held

The Ladies of the Communications Department held their February luncheon in the Main Officers Open Mess and hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. Sidney Wolfeld and Mrs. James Ruhlin.

Theme of the luncheon was "Summer in Maine" and the decorations included fish nets, sea shells, miniature ships, and figurine sea captains.

Following the luncheon, each lady was given the necessary materials to make a beach hat. At the conclusion of a contest prizes were awarded to Mrs. Walter Watkins for the most original and to Mrs. Eugene Skaggs for the prettiest.

Post Pre-Kindergarten School Readies for Annual Open House

Each weekday 150 youngsters aged 3-5 alight from carpools at the post Pre-Kindergarten School to begin a morning filled with activity.

The school, under the sponsorship of the Woman's Club, operates on a schedule like that of the post schools, with classes from 9 until 11:30 a.m. Monday through Friday. The children are divided according to age, averaging about 15 students per teacher.

Mrs. Jack Muray is principal and Mrs. Alexander Page is assistant principal. In addition to the regular teaching staff, who are wives of post personnel, the staff includes a registered nurse who checks children for readmittance after illnesses, and a music teacher twice weekly.

A typical morning includes supervised play, records, stories, a project, such as coloring, pasting, cutting, and refreshments. The children play indoors as well as in the well-equipped play area outdoors.

Friday morning is movie day, and films on health, safety, and manners are shown as well as cartoons.

More than a "play school", the pre-kindergarten program is designed to promote good social habits, health consciousness, courtesy, and attentiveness. The school has a reputation for excellence, and inquiries come from Germany and France, as well as the U.S.

Open House, an annual affair at the school, when parents are encouraged to visit, is scheduled for Monday, February 26. Observation of the students at work is emphasized in the morning, from 9-11:30 a.m. Members of the staff and the board will be present beginning at 7 p.m. to discuss the program and children's progress with interested parents. The public is invited to both events.

The school is located in Building 1162, and further information is available by calling Mrs. Murray, 545-2217.

Local Young Ladies Honored At Y.M.C.A. Washington Tea

Young ladies of Fort Benning, Columbus, and Phenix City will be honored guests at a George and Martha Washington Tea to be held at Armed Services YMCA Sunday afternoon from 4 to 6 p.m. Members of the GSO Advisory Board will be hostesses.

George A. and Elynor J. Johnson, violinist and pianist, will be presented in an afternoon musicale. The minuet will be performed in colonial costume by Sp4 John Bowen and Miss Shirley Wooten assisted by pupils of Mrs. Rossie Gilmore who is doing the choreography for the dance program.

Refreshments will be served during the afternoon and evening. During the Fellowship Hour beginning at 5:30 p.m., servicemen will be invited to attend and meet the young ladies.

Mrs. Richard M. Hollinger is general chairman for the tea. Committee chairmen are: Mrs. B. Ed Johnson, decorations; Mrs. Norvin E. Smith, Jr., entertainment; Mrs. Martin H. Steffen, publicity; Miss Avis Gordon, refreshments; and Mrs. Andrew J. Baldwin, invitations.

The GSO Advisory Board sponsors two of these affairs each year, in February and in October, for the purpose of acquainting young ladies with the volunteer services of junior hostesses in the Armed Services YMCA program of activities, and with the Girls Service Organization, the "Y's" official junior hostess group.

Commandant Is Honored at TSB Reception

Major Gen. Ben Harrell, Infantry School commandant, and Mrs. Harrell, were honored recently at a reception sponsored by Infantry Officer Orientation Course Class 9, 2nd Student Battalion, The Student Brigade, at the Main Officers Open Mess.

Gen. and Mrs. Harrell, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. A. D. Surles, Jr., Col. and Mrs. Otto R. Koch, Jr., and 1st Lt. William F. Baynes, IOOC 9 student company commander, received the guests as they were announced by Gen. Harrell's aide-de-camp, Capt. Howard G. Crowel.

During the evening the guests heard a song by a choral group comprised of six student officers' wives, Mesdames James A. Ellis, Robert R. Goeglins, Donald N. La Pointe, Robert F. Towns, Donald W. Spang, and David H. Kelsey. Lyrics for the song, as sung to the tune of "Mister and Mississippi," were composed by Mrs. Goeglins.

Cadre Coffee Held

Hostessing the 2nd Student Battalion, Student Brigade, cadre coffee was Mrs. Robert R. Mills. This function was held February 7 at the home of Mrs. Vern L. Joseph, wife of Lt. Col. Vern Joseph, commander of the battalion. After refreshments were served, the ladies held a short business meeting.

Woman's Club Diary

The Great Books Program which is sponsored by the Woman's Club, is beginning a new series and all interested persons are invited to call Mrs. A. E. Seifert, 545-2307, for the times of meetings. If you are interested in stimulating conversation and a chance to share ideas with other people, why not join this informal group?

There are morning groups for wives, as well as an evening session if you prefer to take hubby along. Bachelors are also invited to the evening sessions, which meet in the homes of the participants. (And remember, this is NOT for Ph. D.'s—they don't need it.) But if you'd like to sharpen your wits a bit, call Mrs. Seifert.

SP4 STEPHEN FOOTE, 2ND DIVISION
Makes Purchase at Store From Mrs. Jan James

STORE IS POPULAR WITH POST WIVES
Mrs. M. Crabtree Assists Mrs. D. C. Graney

Countless thousands of military personnel and their dependents have crossed the threshold of Fort Benning's Book Store since it opened its doors some 42 years ago.

The store is an authorized institution designed to provide merchandise and services at reasonable prices that are not easily available at other military or civilian sources.

The name "Book Store" may be considered by many a misnomer, for books are only one of the thousands of items offered for sale at this well established and patronized institution.

School supplies are the staple items offered for sale, fulfilling the needs of students attending The Infantry School. In addition, the Book Store carries in stock a large selection of Infantry School publications.

These publications, a listing of which is available in a catalog, are available for purchase by military personnel the world over at nominal cost. The selection includes Infantry School reference material and technical problems ranging from the old triangular concept to the latest ROAD doctrine.

Trophies for any event in any size and quantity are available in any price range. Engraving is done in the Store on an almost while-you-wait basis.

One item that has been going like "hot cakes" is the framed color print of "I Am The Infantry," according to Major Jessie A. Holchkiss, book department officer. She says, "Other Infantry installations are ordering it by mail in gross lots. I believe every dayroom at Fort Carson has at least one framed print on display."

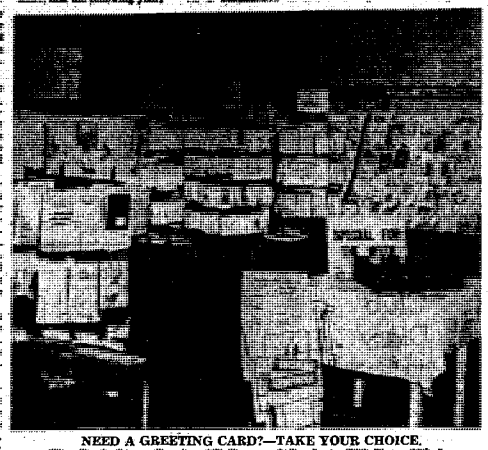
One section of the store that gets a big play is the record shop. Whatever your aesthetic tastes may be, you name it, they have it or will get it for you.

Not exactly by chance on management's part, the album fan perusing titles might just see one of the 15 or 20 Hi-Fi and Stereo record players displayed for the convenience of the customer at attractive prices. If it's a tape recorder he wants, he'll find it among the record players.

Amos T. Kemp, store manager, says, "Perhaps our best customers are the Allied student officers. They are not only consistent customers while they are here but order after they return to their home lands."

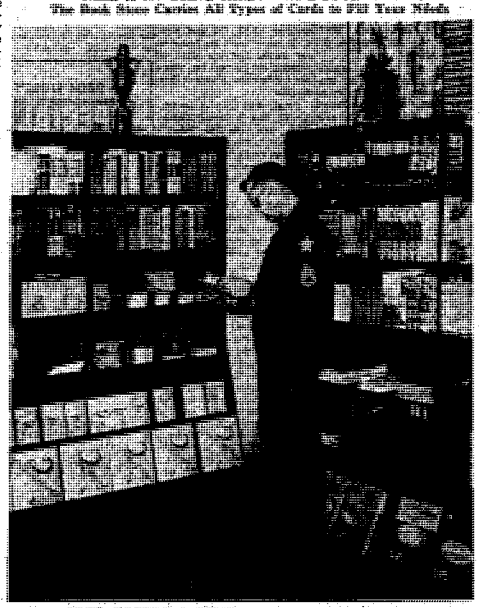
Four plaques, each depicting a season of the year, have a particular appeal to these officers. Kemp stated that one complete set doesn't suffice for most of these students. They often buy three and four sets to take home with them, and orders have come from as far away as Burma.

The Book Store opened for business in 1920 as a result of many requests made by students of The School. Officers, working on their own time at night at the Post Library, needed a handy place to buy pencils, pens, notebooks, and other school supplies.



The library was located in a delapidated barrack - type building located on what is now Stilwell Field. A cubby-hole was provided, and the Book Store was in business. Sales homed to the extent that larger space was needed, and new quarters were established on the second floor of The Infantry School Headquarters.

In 1948 construction began on the present home of the store, and the following year, amidst great fanfare, the doors were opened to serve the needs of customers from many lands.



The Book Store, under the supervision of the Editorial and Pictorial Office, issued an invitation many months ago to the various Departments of the Infantry School to display their wares so that customers might learn more about the School.

As a continuation of this policy, the store will sponsor an art show the week of March 5 displaying creations of professional and amateur artists assigned to FPO. Quite a large collection will be available for the showing.

The Book Store, following good merchandising practices, has a saying "If you don't see it; if we don't have it, we'll try to order it for you." Have you tried that?

NEW COLONEL . . . Colonel Ralph H. Haghett, division G-3 since February 3, 1960, was promoted last Friday to his present rank in a ceremony at the office of Maj. Gen. Charles H. Chase, commanding general.

'Rock of the Marne' Comes Home to 2nd

The "Rock of the Marne" came home Saturday, returning to the division with which it fought during World War II and Korea.

In ceremonies held at Kelley Hill's Essebagger Field, the 2nd Division's 1st Battle Group, 11th Infantry was redesignated as the 1st Battle Group, 38th Infantry.

Colonel Maurice C. Holden, 11th commander, received the colors of the historical 38th Infantry from Major General Charles H. Chase, 2nd Division commanding general.

'With Regret...'

Before the change of colors ceremony, General Chase said, "It is certainly with regret that we lose the numerical designation of the 11th Infantry. But if we must lose the 11th we are fortunate in having the numerical designation of the 38th.

"The 11th Infantry has had a glorious record since the days of the War Between the States ... and, similarly, the 38th has had a glorious record in World War I, World War II and Korea.

"The important thing is that we are able to keep all the individuals of this unit and all our people will stay in our division.

"I challenge all of you of the 11th, soon to be the 38th, to carry on as magnificently in the new regiment as in the old, thus adding new glory to the 2nd Infantry Division."

During the ceremony, battle group Sergeant Major Edward W. Minnick was reenlisted by Col. Holden: Sergeant Minnick

Div Plays CPX 'Golf' This Week

Elements of 2nd Division units returned Wednesday to garrison following a three-day division command post exercise — CPX "GOLF" — conducted entirely on the Fort Benning reservation.

With exercise play beginning 1:30 p.m. Monday, Lieutenant Colonel John B. Wine, assistant chief of staff, G-2, was responsible for establishing a control group for planning, conduct and critique of the exercise.

Brigade Tactical

This marked the first time since the division's Intensified Combat Training Program that a command post exercise has not been planned, conducted and critiqued by brigade headquarters. For the first time, brigade headquarters played a tactical role along with other division units.

Objectives remained the same as they had been for past exercises of this size to establish and operate division communications nets at normal distances and to mini-

9th Infantry to Display Power Today, Sat. at Mammoth Show

By 9th Infantry PIO

Second Division personnel will have a chance to see exactly what a combat-ready Infantry battle group, with part of its supporting elements, looks like.

The occasion is a mammoth display of power by the 9th Infantry today and tomorrow at Wetherby Field.

This will mark the first time that an Infantry battle group will have been used in full force for demonstration and display purposes.

Guests

Special guests for the two-day affair will include Major General Charles H. Chase, 2nd Division commanding general, Brigadier General Royal Reynolds Jr., assistant division commander, and members of the General Staff. Also invited are all of the division's battle group and support unit commanders.

The activities will begin with Captain Allan J. Francisco, assistant operations officer and narrator for the display, describing the table of organization and equipment and strength of an Infantry battle group. After this, the two portable stands which have been set up, will move selected guests through the many displays.

Participating in the massive extravaganza will be more than 1,300 officers and enlisted men, 160 vehicles and many weapons to include mortars, recoilless rifles, tanks, artillery pieces and numerous other Infantry weapons.

There will also be a field aid station set up with medical personnel treating simulated battle casualties along with numerous staff section tentage with men at work. One of the attractions will also be a field mess staffed by members of the 9th's Company A.

The objective of this demonstration is to assist the supporting units or the division in a more thorough understanding of the strength, organization, weapons, equipment and the capabilities of an Infantry battle group.

Colonel Clifford P. Hannum, commanding officer of the 9th Infantry, is in charge of the demonstration.

There will be four showings of the demonstration with the first being at 3 p.m. this afternoon. The second, third and fourth will be held tomorrow morning at 8 a.m., 9:30 a.m. and 11 a.m. respectively.

Parking facilities will be available at Wetherby Field.

Lt Col C G Collins Gives Bn Colors To Lt Col Hibbard

At a change of command ceremony held Saturday at Knight Field by the 13th Transportation Battalion, Lieutenant Colonel C. G. Collins, Jr., departing battalion commander, presented the battalion colors to Lieutenant Colonel Walter Hibbard, Jr.

Present for the ceremony were Major General Charles H. Chase, division commanding general, and Brigadier General Royal Reynolds, Jr., assistant division commander.

A 2nd Division Certificate of Achievement was presented to Col. Collins by General Chase.

Col. Collins departs the battalion for the Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense, Internal Security Agency, Washington D.C. He has served with the division's 13th Transportation Battalion since March 6, 1961.

Col. Hibbard, the new battalion commander, was commissioned in 1942. He saw action in World War II and the Korean War and holds the Bronze Star Medal with two oak leaf clusters, and the Combat Infantryman's Badge, second award.

Col. Hibbard served as an instructor at the Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, from June 1958 to June 1961.

He then attended the Armed Forces Staff College, Norfolk, Va. Prior to his assignment with the 13th Transportation Battalion, he attended the Senior Officers' Preventive Maintenance Course at Fort Knox, Ky.

Era Passes at 37th Arty's Battery A--Self-Propelled Guns Replace Towed Type

The 37th Artillery's Battery A has fired its last honoring salute.

Battery A, noted for its esprit and precision-timing, has been called on many times in the past to fire salutes. Many hours of preparation were necessary before a salute could be fired. The howitzers were first meticulously cleaned, polished and painted. Then came the dress rehearsal to check the timing and, finally, the salute itself.

However, Battery A has experienced the passing of an era. No longer will it fire salutes.

Self-Propelled

Captain Charles E. Avery Jr. battery commander, informed his men that Battery A had received six self-propelled howitzers to take the place of the towed howitzers which traditionally fired salutes.

The 37th Artillery, explained Lieutenant Colonel Floyd L. Johnson, battalion commander, is one of two self-propelled howitzer battalions in Division Artillery. However, to date no self-propelled weapons had been made available. Thus the towed howitzers were used.

The new howitzers will make Battery A more mobile and, thereby, better able to carry out its mission of close, effective fire support to the ground - gaining arm, said Capt. Avery. These tracked howitzers can go up steep grades, over vertical obstacles and cross trenches that would be impossible for a towed howitzer.

They also afford protection against artillery and small arms fire and against the heat and blast affects of nuclear weapons.

In addition, these armored giants mount a .50-caliber machinegun along with their 105 millimeter howitzer and will be much more secure from ambush attack for an artillery unit is most vulnerable when it is moving.

As an integral part of the 6th Howitzer Battalion of the 37th Artillery, Battery A claims a colorful history. It participated with distinction in the invasion of Europe, landing on Omaha Beach June 8, 1944. It spent 316 days in active combat before leaving Europe on July 13, 1945.

It landed at Pusan on August 4, 1950, and fired its first round in the Korean Conflict on August 18, 1950, in the vicinity of Taegu. Its battle-known battles in which the 37th played a distinguished role included Heartbreak Ridge, Old Baldy, T-Bone Hill and Pork Chop Hill.

Club Four Tells Plans For Today

By 87th Inf PIO

Contrary to rumor, Service Club Four on Kelley Hill is not considering changing its name to Twist Lounge Four although they are planning a "swing" George Washington's Birthday dance tonight.

Chuck Berry and his musical perpetrators will offer such numbers as the "Cherry Tree Twist" and "Rock Across the Delaware." Advanced information reveals that the dance will be attended by hostesses from the ranks of the YMCA and USO clubs plus others from various local institutions of higher learning.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Shanks, who has accepted full responsibility, says that the dance will begin at 8 p.m. Ties, either accompanied by civil or military attire, will be the uniform of the day.

A myriad of social events worthy of notice are coming up next month. A variety show, directly "imported" from the Main Post, will perform at Kelley Hill on March 3 and the Atlanta USO club is planning a big dance here on March 22.

Life Saver

Since the beginning of the civilian Red Cross blood program in 1948, an average of one person from every four families has donated blood for civilian and defense use.

UPPED . . . Lt. Col. Frank J. Spettel, Jr., was promoted to his present rank Monday. The new Colonel is brigade executive officer.

Sp5 Garrett SOM at 1st

Specialist Five Harmon C. Garrett has been selected as the "Soldier-of-the-Month" of the 1st Infantry.

Garrett is the message center chief of the "Always First" battle group.

After attending Memphis State College in Memphis, Tenn., Specialist Garrett entered the Army in November of 1955 and completed basic training at Fort Chaffee, Ark.

Upon returning from overseas duty at Bordeaux, France, in October of 1958, Garrett was assigned to the XII U. S. Army Corps Headquarters at Atlanta, Ga. Prior to his assignment to the 1st Infantry he attended the Teletype Operators School and the NCO Academy at Fort Gordon, Ga.

The native of Tennessee plans to make the Army his career.

Maj McDade Joins Staff At G-1 Sec.

Major Robert A. McDade, former aide-de-camp to the commander in chief, Headquarters, U. S. Army Europe, has joined the 2nd Infantry Division as assistant G-1.

A native of New York City, Major McDade graduated from the DeWitt Clinton High School in New York and is a 1949 graduate of the University of Texas in Austin, Texas.

OCS Graduate

He entered active duty with the U. S. Army in 1942, graduating from Fort Benning's Officer Candidate School following 90 days of training in 1943.

Following his graduation from OCS, Major McDade joined the 167th Infantry Regiment in the South Pacific where he remained during World War II.

After serving in the South Pacific, Major McDade returned to the United States to attend college. He holds a bachelor of arts and master of arts degrees in public administration.

In 1950 he re-entered the Army, joining Company I of the 2nd Division's 9th Infantry Regiment in Korea.

After duty with the 9th Infantry Division at Fort Dix, N. J., from 1951 to 1955, he spent one year in Viet Nam.

His tour in the Far East was followed by two years with the G1 section at Headquarters, Fort U. S. Army at Governor's Island, N. Y.

The major's last assignment before joining the 2nd Division was with Headquarters, U. S. Army Europe which he joined in 1959.

Major McDade's decorations include the Silver Star, first oak leaf cluster; Bronze Star and Purple Heart, second oak leaf cluster.

Lt. Ham to 69th

Lieutenant William Ham has been assigned to the 69th Armor's Company D as a platoon leader.

Lt. Ham, a business major at Auburn University, is married and the father of a five-and-a-half-month-old daughter.

1st Infantry Parade Cites Award Winners

By 1st Inf PIO

A parade by the men of the 1st Infantry was held recently at Essebagger Field in honor of various members and companies for their winning results in various competition.

The commander of troops was Colonel Walter B. Todd, battle group commander. Among the colonel's guests was Brigadier General Royal Reynolds Jr., assistant division commander.

First receiving awards were the companies and individuals who placed first in the competitive Marksmanship Matches. The individual high scorers receiving awards were: M-1 rifle; Specialist Five Mike Macaloe of Company E and Specialist Four Herman Wheatley of Company C; .45 caliber pistol, Specialist Five Jesse Yearta of Combat Support Company and Private First Class Gerald Moore, Company C; and automatic rifle, Private First Class Edward Hyche of Company E and Private First Class Clarence Fewell of Company C.

Winners of the team matches were Combat Support Company with the M-1 rifle and .45 caliber pistol and Company E with the automatic rifle.

Receiving the award for the Christmas Holiday Sports Festival for their winning team was Combat Support Company. Accepting the award for Combat Support Company's winning effort in basketball, volleyball, horseshoes and softball was Sergeant Angel Ortiz.

Company E was selected as the most outstanding company for its performance in the Annual General Inspection which took place the latter part of January. Accepting the award was the company commander, Captain Rocco Negris.

87th Gets New S-1, Assistant

By 87th Inf PIO

The S-1 (personnel) staff section of the 87th Infantry was assigned a new adjutant and assistant adjutant recently.

The new S-1 is Captain Edwin M. May Jr., who is succeeding Major Donald L. Crandall, now en route to an overseas assignment.

Lieutenant Floyd W. Blunk succeeds Lieutenant James E. Bopp as the assistant adjutant. Lieutenant Bopp will be the assistant S-3 (Air).

Captain May was formerly the assistant S-3 before moving to battle group headquarters. His service record dates back to 1952, when he was awarded his OCS commission at this post. A former paratrooper, he completed a 36 month tour of duty in Japan and was subsequently the aide-de-camp to the deputy commanding general at Fort Benning in 1958-59.

Formerly from Augusta, Georgia, Captain May now lives in Columbus with his wife and five children. He is a graduate of the University of Georgia. Captain May was also recently selected to attend the regular Command and General Staff College this year.

87th Sets EIB Area

By 87th Inf PIO

Work on the Expert Infantryman's Badge instructional area at the 87th Infantry has been progressing smoothly under the supervision of Platoon Sergeant Ronald L. Green of Combat Support Company.

Responsibility for preparing the area and coordinating instruction on EIB subjects has been given to Sergeant Green.

A GIFT TO THE KELLEY HILL CHAPEL . . . Mrs. Louis A. Kunzig, Jr., left, president of the Division Officers' Wives Club, presents 36 place settings of china and stainless steelware to Chaplain (Capt.) F. E. Deese. The gift, the result of a special club project, is to be used at Kelley Hill's Chapel One by men of the Kelley Hill area. Witnessing the presentation are, from left, Col. M. C. Holden, Col. W. B. Todd, Mrs. R. Reynolds, Jr., honorary club president, Col. R. E. Connor, Mrs. C. M. Sanders, project chairman, and Chaplain (Lt. Col.) James H. Fiser.

QM Wives Host Trains

A patriotic theme was used by the ladies of the 2nd Quartermaster Company at the monthly Division Trains coffee held last Friday.

A red, white and blue centerpiece was flanked by red tapers in white candelabra at the home of Mrs. Frederick V. Harris, wife of the Trains Commander.

Mrs. Harris conducted a business meeting after the social hour. Plans were discussed for the May luncheon of the 2nd Division Officers' Wives Club. The group will be in charge of decorations, menu and program. Committee chairmen were appointed by Mrs. Harris.

New members were introduced and a farewell was said to Mrs. James Durham, whose husband, Lieutenant Colonel Durham, is leaving the 2nd Quartermaster Company.

The ladies of Trains Headquarters will be hostesses at the March coffee, which will be held at the Country Club.

Dinner-Dance

More than 50 couples attended a dinner-dance at the Sand Hill Non-Commissioned Officers' Open Mess recently.

This was the third dinner-dance of the season for the Ladies of the Big Indianhead, given for members and their guests.

Mrs. Thomas Hovatter was in charge of the affair assisted by Mrs. Wayne Clift.

M. Holdens Introduced

Officers and ladies of the 38th Infantry were formally introduced to Colonel and Mrs. Maurice C. Holden at a reception held recently in the Corregidor Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Col. Holden is the new battle group commander, succeeding Colonel John E. Arthur, who has become division deputy brigade commander.

Receiving Line

The guests were announced by Lieutenant Michael D. Johnson, assistant adjutant, and also received by Lieutenant Colonel Cecil Sanders, deputy battle group commander, Mrs. Sanders, Lieutenant Colonel James R. Sessions, executive officer, and Mrs. Sessions.

Brigadier General and Mrs. Royal Reynolds, Jr., were special guests at the evening event, which also was attended by officers of battle group direct support units and their ladies.

The refreshment table was decorated with an arrangement of yellow and lavender mums and two candelabra holding yellow tapers.

Mrs. Murdock, Mrs. Albanese Host 2nd Engineer Ladies

A lemon chiffon layer cake surrounded by red cupids and red candles formed the centerpiece at the 2nd Engineer ladies' monthly coffee held recently at the home of Mrs. Bob Murdock.

Assisting Mrs. Murdock as hostess was Mrs. Charles C. Albanese. Mrs. James Dale, new president of the group, poured.

At a business meeting following the coffee hour, Mrs. Edwin O'Donnell discussed the decorations to be used for the 2nd Division Officers' Wives Club March fashion show. Co-hostesses for this event will be the ladies of the 122nd Signal Battalion.

Mrs. Murdock suggested that the group send all their old magazines to anyone overseas. It was agreed that each person would send his own.

Thank you notes from Mrs. Charles E. Frankenberger and Mrs. Kenneth Halleran were read by Mrs. Albanese.

Hostesses for the next coffee will be Mrs. Cary Simmons and Mrs. Henry McFarland.

The Bayonet Cookbook

An unusual recipe, Vinegar Pie, is submitted this week by Mrs. Basil L. Plumley, wife of First Sergeant Plumley, Company C, 23rd Infantry.

The Plumleys, with daughter Debra, aged 10, live at 846A Arrowhead Rd. Mrs. Plumley enjoys music, skating and dancing.

Vinegar Pie

1 cup sugar
1 tbsp. cornstarch
2 egg yolks
1 cup cold water
2 tbsp. butter
1 tbsp. vinegar
1 tsp. lemon extract

Mix egg yolks, butter, sugar and cornstarch. Add remaining ingredients and boil until thick. Pour in a baked crust. Cover with meringue and brown.

Ladies of the Big Indianhead Meet for a Regular Luncheon

The regular monthly luncheon of the Ladies of the Big Indianhead was held recently in the Non-Commissioned Officers' Open Mess.

Mrs. Calvin L. Bailey was welcomed as a new member to the group. It was announced that due to a holiday the regular business meeting will be held March 1.

Mrs. Wayne Clift, hospitality chairman, used a valentine motif in decorating the tables.

Co-hostesses were Mrs. James Speer, Mrs. William C. McKinney, Mrs. Thomas Hovatter and Mrs. Eddie Daniels.

Dessert-Bridge

Mrs. Frederick F. Woerner, Jr. and Mrs. Michael J. Lally were hostesses recently at a dessert – bridge for the ladies of the 23rd Infantry at Mrs. Woerner's home.

First place honors went to Mrs. Woerner, second to Mrs. Del L. Briscoe and Mrs. John D. Crowley was low.

Safety Quiz

How Close May You Follow Fire Apparatus?

This short traffic quiz was prepared by the 2nd Division Provost Marshal's Office in an attempt to better acquaint you with the safe and legal methods of operating a motor vehicle. All information taken from Fort Benning Pamphlet 385-3, Vehicle Registration and Traffic Regulations.

True or False

1. Vehicles will not follow within 300 feet of any fire apparatus responding to a fire alarm.

2. You may park within the block where fire apparatus is stopped in answer to an alarm providing you do not obstruct them in any way.

3. Vehicles will not cross any fire hose without the consent of a fire department official.

4. No person will throw or deposit upon any roadway material (e.g., glass, nails, tacks, wires, cans, bottles) which may cause injury to a person, animal, or vehicle using the roadway. A person who drops destructive or injurious material on any roadway or permits it to be dropped or thrown will remove the material immediately or cause it to be removed.

5. Persons removing a wrecked or damaged vehicle from a roadway will be responsible for the removal of any glass or other injurious material which has dropped from it.

Answers

1. False. A vehicle will not follow within 500 feet of fire apparatus responding to a fire alarm, (sec 18-e)

2. False. Vehicles will not park within the block where fire apparatus is stopped in answer to an alarm. (sec 18-e)

3. True. (sec 18-e)

4. True. (sec 18-g)

5. True. (sec 18-h)

POLISHED SOLDIER, POLISHED SHOES
Sgt. Kinzer, 23rd, Adds Brush, 'Elbow Grease'

Ft. Myer's Honor Guard Goal of 23rd Inf NCO

By 23rd Infantry PIO

The 23rd Infantry loses one of its more outstanding young non-commissioned officers this month with the departure of Sergeant Joseph W. Kinzer, to the 3rd Infantry at Fort Myer, Va., following his reenlistment.

Sgt. Kinzer, rifle squad leader in Combat Support Company, amassed an impressive record with the 23rd since joining the unit in early 1960.

He was named Battle Group "Soldier-of-the-Month" on three occasions and earned division-level SOM honors once. Sgt. Kinzer also has served as a member of the 23rd's Color Guard.

At Fort Myer, the 22-year old Westminster, Md., native plans to apply for the post's famed Honor Guard, which has appeared at many important functions in and around Washington, D. C. Perhaps the Honor Guard's most widely-known duty is the 24-hour guard it stands around the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington National Cemetery.

Sgt. Kinzer entered the U.S. Army in 1959, serving for 19 months in Germany before joining the 23rd Infantry.

Radio 'Goofs' Mostly Technical, Says 11th Man, Ex-Announcer

By 38th Inf PIO

The soft music stopped playing. The director seated in the radio control room quickly brought his arm down and pointed to the announcer out in the studio. The announcer seated at the mike took his cue and carefully read his lines. "This is WMMH in Marshall, North Carolina, 1460 on your radiator."

This "blooper" actually went over the air when Private First Class Jerry Plemmons was broadcasting for radio station WMMH in Marshall, N. C. Plemmons now is company clerk at Company B, 38th Infantry.

Various so-called "bloopers" occur while broadcasting, according to Plemmons, but luckily, most are of a technical nature and not picked up by the listening audience.

DJ to PD

A veteran of five years of radio broadcasting, Plemmons worked his way up from a disc jockey to program director of WMMH, the position he held when he took a leave of absence to enter the Army. The graduate of the Tennessee School of Broadcasting in Nashville has broadcast various types of radio programs including interviews, newscasts and play-by-play accounts of football games.

As program director of WMMH, Plemmons received numerous letters of commendation from the Army for his support to the local recruiting effort.

Since he's been in the Army himself, he has been brushing up on the electronic end of radio broadcasting. Plemmons prefers actual broadcasting to administrative radio work and hopes to work for a larger station when he leaves the service.

Memo to all wives with husbands stationed in Europe

How KLM can help you join your husband in Europe

Here are several ways KLM makes it possible for you to fly over and join your husband in Europe.

Pay only one tenth of fare now. Sons and daughters from 12 to 25 may fly family plan. Children under 12 pay half-price. Infants under 2 pay only 10 per cent. DC-8 Royal Jets and low-fare DC-7Cs.

1. KLM's Pay Later Plan. You pay only one tenth of your fare before you fly, the remainder over 24 months. Example: A down payment of $33.00 will take you from Columbus to Frankfurt (DC-7C Economy Fare). KLM's interest rate is one of the lowest—4¾ per cent discounted per annum.

2. Choice of planes. On KLM, you can fly to Europe on low-fare DC-7Cs. Or you can choose KLM's Royal 8 Jets that get you to Europe in only 8 hours.

3. Traveling with children. No problem on KLM. Friendly cabin crews help you take care of your children, prepare food, supply special cribs for babies.

What it costs

Here is a breakdown of a typical KLM fare to Europe, based on a one-way economy class flight on a DC-7C from Columbus to Frankfurt:

Adult's fare	$333.30
(Son(s) or Daughter(s) 12 to 25 Years*	233.30
Child under 12	166.65
Infant under 2	26.60

*Valid until March 31.

17 Lts. End AO Training At 2nd Avn

Seventeen 2nd Division lieutenants have been designated aerial observers after attending the Aerial Observer School conducted by the 2nd Aviation Company.

The AO course was presented by aviation's direct support platoon under the supervision of Captain Daniel R. Stefanowich, platoon leader. The school consists of two phases — ground school and in-flight school.

Each battle group and field artillery battalion is authorized two AOs. The participants of the AO program must meet certain physical standards and successfully complete a 35-hour ground school prior to being placed on flight status to begin in-flight schooling.

The 24-hour in-flight school consists of reconnaissance (eight hours), observation and survey (12 hours) and conduct of fire (four hours).

Those receiving the AO designation are:

Lieutenants G. W. Ashworth, Charles E. Bennet, Billy J. Cone, Lawrence J. Drinkard, John J. Funk, Peter T. Geoca, John T. Gill, William E. Godbold;

Robert C. Herr, Edwin S. Orr, Ralph E. Price, G. F. Reading Jr., Charles W. Seal, Stephen R. Wax and Lloyd D. Werner.

McClellan

Battalion, a combat support flight section of 2nd Aviation Company and a security team from the 2nd Military Intelligence Detachment.

Brigade headquarters and Trains elements will be supported by similar forces, including elements of the 2nd Division's 2nd Administration Company, 13th Transportation Battalion, 2nd Quartermaster Company and the 2nd Medical Battalion.

Men and equipment will move to Fort McClellan Tuesday by motor convoy from Fort Benning. Upon arrival, the elements will separate into two task forces. From that moment on the units will behave in a tactical manner.

Though most of the exercise will be noo-live fire, without ammunition, each of the two task forces will participate in two separate two-day blank-firing problems prepared by Brigade Headquarters.

Division men will not have access to facilities at Fort McClellan, and except for contact through special Mobile Post Exchange units, where Soldiers will purchase such items as cigarettes, all men will exist tactically in the field.

Realistic support, supply, evacuation, prisoner-of-war and administrative play will be the keynote of this McClellan exercise. It will encompass the most extensive and challenging training encountered by men of the 9th and 38th Infantries and supporting elements in the division's current combat training program.

'Ky. Colonel' Now Serving At 27th Arty

Master Sergeant Howard C. Wedekemper, Operations Sergeant, 1st Howitzer Battalion, 27th Artillery, is the second Kentucky Colonel discovered serving at Fort Benning.

38th Inf. Born in 1917; In France 1 Year Later

The modern history of the 38th Infantry Regiment dates back to 1917, when it was constituted, activated and assigned to the 3rd Infantry Division.

Scarcely a year after its activation, the unit landed in France and, on May 31, went into defensive positions at Chateau-Thierry on the Marne River.

On July 15, the German fifth grand offensive began and three divisions were thrown into the 3rd Division zone, the majority into the 38th Infantry lines.

'Like a Rock'

The young unit is said to have "stood like a rock," repulsing the continuous German attacks. It later went on the offensive and secured a bridgehead across the Marne River.

For its actions, the regiment was awarded the French Croix de Guerre.

It later served in the Saint-Mihiel salient, and, in October, 1918, attacked in the Meuse - Argonne areas and breached the Hindenburg Line before the armistice ended the war.

The 38th Infantry Regiment returned to the U. S. after eight months of occupation duty. In 1922, it was divided into battalions — the first going to Fort Logan, Colo., then to Fort Sill, Okla., and the second and third moving to Fort Douglas, Utah.

The "Rock of the Marne" regiment was assigned to the 2nd Infantry Division in 1939, and took part in the Indianhead Division's landing on Omaha beach under enemy fire on D-Day plus one.

During World War II, the regiment participated in five campaigns as part of the 2nd Division and distinguished itself for action in Brest. All units received distinguished unit citations.

At the end of World War II, the 38th was in Pilsen, Czechoslovakia.

In July of 1949 the 38th returned to this country and Camp Swift, Texas. But five years later, still a part of the 2nd Division, the 38th docked at Pusan, Korea.

Naktong

It took initial positions along the Naktong River Line, pushed northward in the September 1950 United Nations offensive and withdrew with the rest of the Eighth Army with the intervention of the Chinese Communists.

The regiment distinguished itself in May 1951, defending the Soyang River area against enemy hordes. Meeting continual action in the summer offensive of 1951 and in the fall and winter of 1951 the regiment pushed back the Communist assaults on Old Baldy and Pork Chop Hill.

In 1953 the regiment was placed into defensive positions at "The Hook" in the Samichon Valley area and on the 2nd Division defensive line west of Kumwha, entrenched there as fighting ended.

The regiment returned to the U. S. with the 2nd Division in 1954 and moved to Alaska with the Indianhead unit two years later.

Since control of the unit passed to the Department of the Army in 1957, the colors of the 38th Infantry Regiment were cased until reactivation Saturday.

38th

left Sunday for Fort Carson, Colorado, to take the 11th Infantry's colors to the 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) being activated there.

Serving as Commander of Troops at the ceremony was Colonel John E. Arthur, 2nd Division deputy brigade commander, and, until recently, 11th commander.

The 38th Infantry Regiment received its famed "Rock of the Marne" nickname for its thwart of German attacks in the summer of 1918 at Chateau-Thierry on the west side of the Marne River.

Uniform of the Day

On August 15, 1885, the Army cap was replaced by a black felt hat with black feather ornament. It came with three feathers for field grade officers, two for company grade officers, and one for enlisted men.

Sergeant Wedekemper has been assigned to the 27th Artillery for six months and participated in the rigorous training program, recently completed, to achieve combat readiness. A native of Louisville, Kentucky, Sergeant Wedekemper received this unique honor for serving as the enlisted advisor for the state's 100th Infantry Division (USAR) and as the military coordinator for the state's Civil Defense alerts during the period June 1956 to June 1960. The appointment to "Kentucky Colonel" is in recognition of his definite civic contributions to the Commonwealth of Kentucky."

Saturday A Busy Day For S-Maj.

By 38th Inf PIO

Last weekend was a busy one for Sergeant Major Edward W. Minnick.

Saturday morning, the sergeant major saw his unit, the 1st Battle Group, 11th Infantry, redesignated as the 1st Battle Group, 38th Infantry, at a change of colors ceremony and miniature review at Essebagger Field.

The ceremony redesignated the 11th as a unit of the 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) at Fort Carson, Colo., and activated the 38th Infantry as a 2nd Infantry Division battle group. And, during the ceremony, Sgt. Minnick was sworn in for a three-year reenlistment by Colonel Maurice C. Holden, battle group commander.

Sunday, the sergeant major was on his way to Fort Carson to personally deliver the 11th Infantry's colors and battle streamers to the "new" 11th Infantry unit.

CITED . . . Capt. Robert B. Longino, Brigade S-3, recently was awarded the Army Commendation Medal in ceremonies at the office of Brigadier General Royal Reynolds Jr., assistant division commander.

mize processing and transmission time of messages, to provide all staffs practice in preparation of estimates and orders.

Realistic tactical situations provided by the exercise control group caused actions and reactions on the part of the division and subordinate unit staffs.

The 2nd Engineer Battalion furnished each battle group with an officer to act as direct support company commander.

All division radio nets and very high frequency systems were employed during CPX "GOLF."

27th Artillery Bn. Assigned New XO

Major Robert G. Menefee has been assigned as executive officer of the 27th Artillery.

He succeeds Major James R. Jess who has been assigned as assistant division G-3. Major Menefee's prior assignment was as the assistant S-3 of Division Artillery.

Asst. Div. Avn Officer Retiring After 20 Years

Major John W. Roush, 2nd Division's assistant division aviation commander, retires Wednesday from active duty after more than 20 years' service.

The major, whose first tour of active duty began in October 1940, joined the 2nd Division in March 1960. His assignment prior to joining the "Indianhead" division was as Army advisor to the 2nd Eskimo Scout Battalion, Alaska National Guard, Bethel, Alaska.

Americal Div

During World War II Major Roush served with the only division which did not hold a numerical designation — the Americal Division — in the South Pacific. With this division he fought in the campaigns of Bougainville and the Philippines.

Major Roush received his commission after attending Fort Benning's Officer Candidate School in 1943.

In 1946 he became an instructor at the Armed Forces Physical Training School, Fort Lee, Virginia. In 1949, following his assignment with the Physical Training School, Major Roush attended Flight School, San Marcos, Texas, and Fort Sill, Oklahoma.

He became a rated Army Aviator in September 1949, at which time he joined the headquarters aviation section of the 2nd Infantry Division at Fort Lewis, Washington. He went to Korea with the 2nd in 1950.

Following tours in Okido, Japan, and Wurzburg, Germany, he attended the Advanced Officers' Course at Fort Benning's Infantry School. He later joined the Airborne Air Mobility Department of the U. S. Army Infantry School.

In March 1958 he was assigned to the Lawson Army Air, Command, leaving that assignment in February 1959 to go to Alaska.

Major Roush, who was promoted to his present rank in October 1958, joined the 2nd Division's 2nd Aviation Company in March 1960.

Divarty, Trains, 87th Winners Monday Night

Division Artillery blended a powerful offense with some deadly shooting to down the 38th Infantry Monday night, 100-72, in division basketball play.

The winners made 18 out of 22 attempts from the free-throw line.

The 38th jumped out in front to take a five point lead in the first three minutes of play. But with five minutes gone and the 38th out in front 11 to 10, Hugh Barksdale hit with a jump shot and a successful free throw to put DivArty out in front.

From that point on, the Cannoneers were never seriously threatened.

Leading 47 - 36 at halftime, DivArty continued to hit consistently from the floor and foul line. With Melvin Turner setting the pace, the Cannoneers steadily increased its lead to a commanding 28 points at the final buzzer. Turner scored 15 points in the second half.

Barksdale and Don Yoder hit 20 points each for DivArty while Jim Allen scored 23 for the 38th Infantry for high scoring honors.

Div Trains	64
23rd Inf	43

A fast-moving offensive and deadly net accuracy enabled Division Trains to win over the 23rd Infantry Monday night at Harmony Church fieldhouse, 64-43.

Although Division Trains dominated play from the start, the game was scrapped out in free-wheeling style by both teams. However, Trains slowly but steadily pulled away from the 23rd and at the half led by a score of 36-17.

Control of the backboards plus scoring strikes from the outside gave Trains the edge, offensively and defensively. On the other hand, the 23rd team had trouble in ball passing.

Pointwise, Walter Clark paced Trains with 13 points. He was followed by Belgian Carrington with 10 tallies. Norwell Lee and Roscoe Lacy scored nine points each.

The outstanding scorer for the 23rd Infantry was Clint Johnson, who put in his usual 20-points plus. He was credited this game with 25, more than half the total points scored by the "We Serve" team.

Robert Steed was second high with eight points.

87th Inf	74
1st Inf	57

A fast breaking 87th Infantry team posted its tenth victory of the season Monday night by defeating the 1st Infantry, 74-57.

In action at the Kelley Hill gymnasium, the 87th Infantry played a controlled game off the backboards.

High scorer of the evening was the 1st Infantry's Jimmy Chandler with 22 points. George Krajack and Lavery Jordan dumped in 16 points each for the Conquerors.

9th Infantry's Godfrey Is a David Among Division Basketball Goliaths

By J. J. Shields

A David among the present day basketball Goliaths is the 9th Infantry Manchu's five foot, three-inch speedster guard, Joe Godfrey.

"Big Joe," as his Manchu teammates call him, first learned of the "peach basket" game as a boy of eight years of age when his father, Joseph Sr., erected a hoop in their back yard to keep Joey off the busy Jersey City, New Jersey, streets.

Since then Godfrey has shown that the little man still has a spot in the game dominated by the giants of today.

Godfrey is a graduate of Dickenson High School in Jersey City where as a freshman he hit at a 23.0 point per game clip for the squad. He then moved to the J.V. and the varsity five where, as a senior, he led his Dickenson mates to the Jersey City title and a 20-5 record with his 21.6 point average. For his hard work, he was rewarded with a berth on the Jersey City All-Scholastic squad.

Godfrey's biggest night in the scoring column was against the Holy Family Academy in 1958 when he ripped the nets for 42 points.

After graduation, Godfrey played for the Sperry's Industries entry in the Lake Success, Long Island, industrial loop. Here he led the Sperry hoopsters to a 26-2 season's log and the league championship. Godfrey hit at a 26 clip per game.

At the start of the present 2nd Division hoop season, Godfrey was used sparingly for the first three or four games, but since has come into his own.

In the Manchu's last five contests, he has tossed in 63 points to bring his season average to 12.7 points per game. His big night in the league scoring was against the Division Trains unit when he scorched the nets for 23 points.

MANCHU'S 'GIANT' Joe Godfrey

Showing off his talents as an all-around ball player, Godfrey also has an eight assists per contest average to go with numerous steals and beautiful ball handling for a 9th Infantry squad which has yet to taste the sweetness of victory.

A very cool-headed 21-year-old, Godfrey has nothing but praise for his fellow Manchu teammates and the 9th's player coach, Ben Nordell.

Godfrey is presently a member of the 9th Infantry's Combat Support Company.

87th Wins 85-84

DivArty Suffers First Defeat of Hoop Season

By 87th Inf PIO

The 87th Infantry Conquerors and the Division Artillery Cannoneers locked horns last week in a basketball game that had everything.

Playing to a capacity crowd at the Harmony Church Field House, it would be difficult to describe the thrills, chills and excitement the game offered. In a word the 87th won, 85-84.

This deadlocks the league standings with both teams sporting a record of 9-1, the single loss having been at the hands of Div Arty in an earlier game by the slim margin of two points. With only four games remaining for each team, the chances are that a playoff will decide it.

The first quarter was like a nightmare for the 87th hopefuls. With Don Yoder, Willie Readus and Herbert Barksdale of Div Arty hitting jump shots with machine like accuracy, they quickly zoomed to a 25-11 lead.

The second quarter went much the same. Although Yoder could not be stopped, the 87th began to control the boards with Warner Johnson and Melvin Bankhead, it still looked pretty hopeless as the halftime score stood at 49-36.

Comfortably ahead by 10 points throughout most of the third quarter, the 87th began to chip away at the Div Arty lead with Frank Byrd pouring in points. With the tide of battle changing, spectators alternated between cheering and deathly silence.

Another late starter, Ronald Brooks, brought the 87th within one point and Lavery Jordan hit to put the 87th ahead for the first time, 67-66.

Personal fouls began to hurt Div Arty as one by one the starters were forced to leave the game. In the closing minutes, Jordan and Krajack connected 9 out of 10 foul shots. As the final seconds ticked off, the 87th, tried to "freeze" the ball to protect a five-point lead but some brilliant defensive play by Div Arty's Barksdale closed the gap again. Finally, Krajack put the game "on ice" hitting on two free throws with enough pressure on him to cook a 25 pound roast.

Div Arty's Yoder was high man with 21 points.

Now Izvestia Says Baseball Was Not American Created

According to Russia's official government newspaper Izvestia the game of "Beizbol" (baseball) is not an American created game, but had its origin in Russia. In an Associated Press article, Izvestia was quoted as relating to the Russian people that "a capacity crowd of 300,000 often jam Yankee Stadium (the stadium's seating capacity is 67,000) to watch the game of beizbol. The AP said the article hinted that the game was stolen from the Russians. Izvestia said, baseball is similar to the old Soviet game of Lapta played by "our grandfathers and great grandfathers."

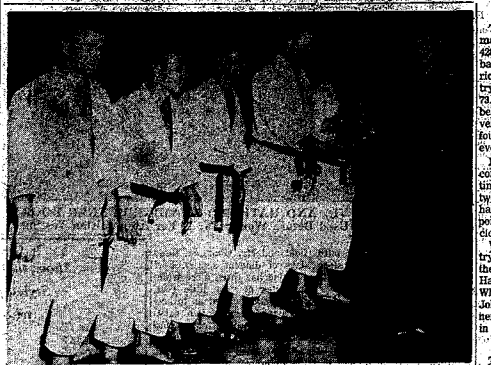
3 Individual Judo Honors Fall to Post

Team Competition 2nd Place Trophy Also Is Benning's

By Sfc Bismarck Stith



The post Judo Club took three individual trophies and the runner-up team trophy in the Fort Benning Promotional Judo Tournament held at Briant Wells Field House last weekend.

Rickey Schmidt was awarded the Outstanding Junior KYU Trophy. Walter Pearson the Men's Outstanding Trophy and Carman Hensley copped the Female Outstanding Trophy.

In the team competition Benning's club defeated Tuscaloosa, Ala., 40-0 points, winning four out of five with one draw. George Harington won over Ken Kellum; Warren Fukushima over William Daniels; M. G. Stafford over John Johns; and Marcel Carles over Dan Stewart. Thomas Nakamura and Bob Mathis fought to a draw. The Paris Island Marines team topped the YMCA Augusta, team by 40 points.

In the semi-finals Benning's team downed Mobile, Ala., by 40 points to meet the Marines in the finals in which the leathernecks stopped four Benning opponents. Benning's lone victory in the finals was won in eight seconds of the fight by M. G. Stafford, president of the post club, when he dumped Don Friedenberg, black belt holder and team captain of the Marines.

The post club compiled seven wins, one draw and four losses in the team tournament competition.

OUTDOOR OUTLOOK

By Pfc Don Girton

HUNTING OUT

Another Benning hunting season draws to a close with sunset on this Sunday, marking the close of the Georgia quail and rabbit seasons on post. All hunting on the Alabama portion of the post closed earlier in the week, Tuesday.

Hunting during the closing weeks was generaly slow in comparison with the many many hunters finding good gunning during mid-season. Only the more enthusiastic hunters took to the woods during the closing days as many sportsmen have exchanged the gun for the rod and reel.

GEORGIA TURKEY SEASON CHANGED

The spring turkey gobbler season will open March 26 and continue through April 14. This change applies to the Georgia portion of the reservation only and was made so the post season would correspond to the spring season in adjoining Chattahoochee and Muscogee counties. The opening date for the Alabama portion of the post is March 20 and continues through April 15. The season is for gobblers only and the bag limit for the season is one gobbler.

FISHING GOOD AT HARPS POND

The past weekend found Benning anglers at all open ponds. Trout fishermen lined the banks at Russ Pond but it was only the early comers who got their limit of six. The choosy trout were taking a variety of bait which included horse meat, hamburger, lunch meat, whole kernel corn, not to mention the usual baits such as worms and a variety of insects.

The corn seemed to be one of the popular and most successful baits. A few born fide anglers who used artificial lures were snagging some with spoons and spinners. Harps Pond continued to be the center of attraction on post. Those who connected at Harps, usually came out with catches that would look good hanging on the den wall.

WACs to Meet Keesler WAFs This Weekend

Benning's WAC basketball team will meet the WAFs from Keesler Air Force Base, Mississippi, this weekend in a two game series.

Both games will be played at Briant Wells Field House, with the first getting under way Saturday at 7 p.m., and game number two Sunday at 2 p.m.

After dropping two games to Fort McClellan cagerettes last weekend, head coach Aylee Sims said Benning will be seeking this weekend to add two wins to their present seven victories.

Two make-up games in the major unit basketball league are also scheduled for the weekend at Briant Wells Field House. On Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock Student Brigade will meet the 428th Medics and on Sunday night, action will be between the 156th Signal Battalion and Student Brigade. All these Special Services activities are free and the public is invited.

Quote Of the Week

Answering critics of the fiberglass pole, John Uelses of MCS Quantico, Va., who scaled this crossbar at a record-setting 15' ¾", said, "I can't see where there could be any problem. The definition of a pole vault says to get over a height with a pole. It doesn't say what kind of pole . . . To me pole vaulting means a trick or top of the pole. The cross bar merely measures how high you can do the trick.

Top Place Teams Fight; 29th Sets Back Medics

By Sfc Bismarck Stith

The two top teams in the major unit basketball league, 428th Medics and 29th Infantry, battled for four exciting periods recently with the Infantrymen topping the Medics 81-73. These two rival teams, the best in the league, seek revenge each time they meet. In four league games, they are even with two victories each.

It was close throughout the contest. Two-Niners led at halftime by one point 36-35. The two teams played the second half with not more than two points separating them until the closing minutes of the game.

With 2:43 to play, the Infantrymen began to click, hitting the net for an 8 point lead. Hank Derleth's 19 points, Bob Whitehead's 18, and Frank Johnson's 17, paced the winners while Gary Hess dropped in 29 points for the losers.

The Redlegs of the 10th Artillery downed Student Brigade 69-64, in a hard fought game.

Bob Kinard's cagers led at halftime by a score 28-22. At that time Carvey Jones, of the Brigade had 9 points to his credit while Redlegs' Ray Young contributed 14 for his squad.

In second half action, both teams stayed close in the scoring department. With 2:33 left to play, The Student Brigade led 53-51; but the Artillerymen struck back with Jewell Perry, Charles Lumpkins, and Roy Young hitting the hoop to lead their team to a 69-64 victory. Ray Young hit the net for 28 points to pace the Redlegs while George Taylor and Don Dashell both added 15 points each for TSB.

In Monday night action, 156th Signal Battalion edged Center Troop Command 74-63, at halftime the Signalmen led 39-35. Jim Westcott paced the winners with 21 points while Clyde Groves was high for the losers with 20 points.

In the second game 29th Infantry whipped Student Brigade 67-42 to remain tied with the Medics for first place. Curt Gentry dropped in 20 points for the Infantrymen. Carvey Jones led the losers with 17 points.

Three teams saw action Tuesday in Major Unit competition. In the afternoon a make-up game between 29th Infantry and 156th Signal, the Infantrymen gave the Signalmen their seventh setback 72-35. Curtis Genty and Frank Johnson made 15 points each for the Two - Niners and Hughes had 11 for the losers.

In the first of the evening contests, the Redlegs of the 10th Artillery put the 58th Infantry in the losing bracket with a 62-55 defeat. Alvin Flagg tossed in 22 points for the Redlegs while Freddie Morris headed his team with 25.

In the second game the Medics white washed Center Troop Command by a score of 88-49. Harlod Deane led the Medics as high scorer with 28 points while Clyde Groves paced the losers with 16.

Memory Turns Up Bunkers Worth $75,000

The keen memory of a post sergeant recently saved the Government and the taxpayers at least $75,000.

A few weeks ago the 2nd Division Artillery decided it needed some new observation posts for forward observer training of junior grade Indianhead officers.

The posts would have to provide adequate protection for the officers since artillery shells would land and explode only 300 feet from them.

The dugouts would need concrete roofs three and a half feet thick, steel doors and narrow viewing apertures.

A search of the Range Control Section records and all available maps of Fort Benning showed no record of observation posts that met the requirements.

Major George C. Walsh, Infantry Center range control officer, realized current economy measures precluded the building of new observation posts.

He began to think that Indianhead forward artillery observers would have to take their close-in training at some other post. Just as he was about to give up on the problem, Sfc Robert H. Hatfield of the Range Control Safety Branch, went to Major Walsh's aid.

Back in 1941, before the U.S. entered World War II, Hatfield was a sergeant in an artillery unit here. He recalled that 21 years previously his old unit had conducted artillery firing for a classified ammunition fragmentation test supervised by the War Department.

Hatfield and Sfc Harry E. High, also of the Range Control, began exploring the forward slopes of the range sites along Jamestown Rd.

On the second day of their search Hatfield and High found the exact type of dugout needed. The long-abandoned bunker was in the forward slope of a ridge in front of Bramn Range. The bunker, some 80 feet long, was well preserved and had a concrete roof that exceeded the safety requirements.

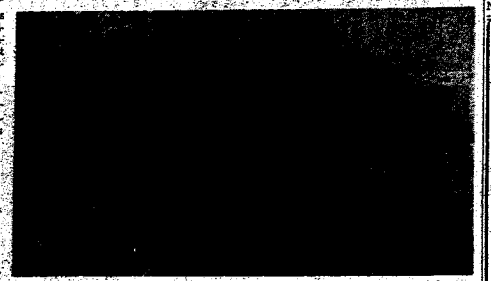
The view from the dugout was partially blocked by some trees that had grown up since the observation post was built. The trees will be cut down.

Hatfield and High continued their search. On the third day they found another bunker, similar to the first, between Galloway and Coolidge Ranges.

Since artillery impact tests usually require three-point triangulation for accurate plotting, Major Walsh asked the Range Maintenance Section to look for a third bunker.

No sooner said than done.

Walter S. Ginn, construction supervisor in the section, soon reported a third dugout on the forward slope of Green Hill, south of 5th Division Road.



First Lt. Mann G. Davis, range control operations officer, said, "This bunker is somewhat the worse for wear but possibly can be restored."

Major Walsh estimated that it would cost the Government back some $75,000 to build three new bunkers.

He added, "Thanks to the good memories of Sfc. Hatfield and Mr. Ginn and three days of diligent search, Fort Benning has three more training sites at very little cost.

"I'm still puzzled as to how the bunkers came into existence. There is no record of them ever being built."

Any former Army men in the Columbus area who have knowledge or photographs of the bunkers of pre-World War II days are asked to contact Major Walsh at 545-7633 or 545-2233.

MAH Valentine Sweetheart Is Sharon Harris

Mrs. John Wilbur Harris, wife of Sp4 Harris of Rising Star and May, Texas, has been named "Valentine Sweetheart" at Martin Army Hospital.

Mrs. Harris, the former Sharon Howard of May, was selected for the honor in a contest among the hospital wards. Each patient was asked to submit a picture of his wife or sweetheart. Entries were judged at a party in the American Red Cross Recreation Hall.

Mrs. Harris was presented a box of Valentine candy.

Sp4 Harris met his wife when they attended May High School. They have been married almost two years.

A supply clerk assigned to the 806th Engineer Battalion, 151st Engineer Group, Sp4 Harris came to Fort Benning in August, 1960.

He and Mrs. Harris live at 309-C Baker Village, Columbus.

NG EM Re-Ups Under New Reg Allowing Choice

Pfc Jesse V. Taylor, 111th Signal Company, 1st Infantry Brigade, is the first National Guardsman on active duty to reenlist under the Army's new Recap program at this post. Pfc Taylor, who will attend Aviation School, Fort Rucker, Ala., was administered the oath of enlistment by Capt. Bryan J. Perry Jr., commanding officer, 111th Signal Company.

A recent Department of the Army message has changed the past Army policy of permitting active National Guardsmen to enlist only for their own vacancy. Now National Guard and Reserve members can choose from the same enlistment options open to all active duty personnel.

HORNBLOWER

San Bernardino, Calif., police investigated a citizen's complaint of early-morning horn blowing to discover a raccoon standing on the front seat of a car leaning on the horn.

To Start in April 'Yard of the Month' Program Announced

With the coming of spring and the shrub planting season, The Infantry Center will begin a "Yard of the Month" beautification program.

Beginning the second Monday in April all family quarters areas on the post will be inspected monthly. The most attractive and well maintained yards will be selected as yard of the month.

Each quarters area will have a winner. The six areas are Main Post Officer's and Non - commissioned Officer's Quarters, Officer's and Non-commissioned Officer's Capehart Housing, Custer Terrace and Upatoi Terrace.

In addition to the "Yard of the Month" competition in each area, there will be a Fort Benning "Yard of the Month" contest among area winners.

Each area winner will receive a picture of his yard and a letter of appreciation signed by Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly, The Infantry Center deputy commanding general.

The post winner for each month also will receive a plaque to be displayed in his front yard. This award will rotate monthly.

Each month an initial yard inspection will be conducted by The Infantry Center Engineer Section and the three most attractive yards in each area will be selected.

An awards committee, composed of representatives of the G-4 Section, Headquarters commandant and the G-2 Section, then will determine the six winners.

Announcements of the selections will be made in The Infantry Center Daily Bulletin and The Bayonet on the Friday following the final inspection.

A limited amount of tools may be drawn from the Quartermaster Section. The Engineer Section will furnish, upon request, technical advice concerning erosion, fertilizing, planting and pruning.

In addition, the Engineer Section will assist with supplies and equipment within fund limitations.

New College; High School Classes Open

The spring quarter classes for high school and college group study began Wednesday at Fort Benning, and enrollment by most post units showed a general increase, particularly among the Reserve and National Guard units.

Most of the courses are selected to prepare individuals for the General Education Developments (GED) tests, and to meet requirements for qualification for GED retests.

Two courses are acceptable substitutes for college attended classes required by the two-year Department of the Army evaluation.

The courses, American Government I and Russian I, are accepted for credit by most colleges.

Registration will continue to be accepted until the start of the second night of classes, next Monday. All interested personnel may contact the Army Education Center in Building 2512.

On-duty courses are taught Tuesday and Thursday afternoons and include high school English and general mathematics.

Off-duty courses are taught Monday and Wednesday nights, and include high school courses in English, general mathematics, beginning algebra, general science and electronics.

The two college courses require a high school diploma for enrollment or its equivalent and are taught the same nights.

Books in Review

THE AGE OF REASON BEGINS by Ariel Durant. (Simon, 1961)

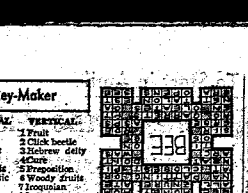
Since the great debate between religion and science is the main current in the stream of modern thought, it will be recorded in these pages more frankly than may seem wise to men of the world. These have long since concluded that religious beliefs fill too vital a function in sustaining individual morality and morale, and social order and control, to justify their disturbance by public discussion.

THE DEVIL CAME ON SUNDAY by Oswald Wynd. (Doubleday, 1961)

A novel of extraordinary power and tension, in which the problem and tactics of modern business are transfered to a well-worn company in a remote village in Scotland. The readers walks the streets of Kilrudderie and feels the town tremble with the return of Elsie and Jock, and the impact of their reunion.

THIS IS ALASKA by Harry Kursh. (Prentice Hall, 1961)

Here is the most thorough and complete book ever published on the new State of Alaska, America's last frontier. It begins by dispelling the myth about Alaska' geography, climate and population, shows why it is not the isolated, deep - freeze state that some people believe. Conversely, it is perhaps the most comfortable "last frontier" in American history.



COMMUNIST REVOLUTIONARY WARFARE by George Tanham. (Praeger, 1961)

It is now an article of Party doctrine, enunciated by Premier Khrushchev that "wars of national liberation" should receive the support of Communists everywhere. Relying heavily on guerilla tactics, "revolutionary wars" — which have erupted in underdeveloped countries from Indo-China to Cuba — cannot be countered effectively by the methods of conventional mechanized combat.

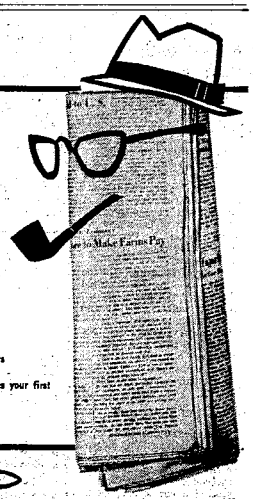
Annual BSA Banquet Set For Tuesday

Safety and Army Rangers will share the spotlight with the 52nd anniversary of the Boy Scouts of America when Fort Benning's Cub Scout Pack 127 holds its annual Blue and Gold Banquet February 27 at 6:30 p.m.

The banquet is held each year to celebrate the beginning of Scouting. Families of the Cub Scouts are invited to attend.

Many of the awards earned during the year are presented at this time.



Speaking at the banquet, to be held in Building 396, will be Col. Bernard G. Teeters, director of The Infantry School's Ranger Department, and Sgt. Joe White, Georgia Highway Patrol director of safety education for 29 counties, including the post area.

Col. Teeters will speak on some of the Ranger activities and show a film on Rangers training. Sgt. White will speak on safety and its importance.

Lt. Col. Robert F. Galer, Infantry Center's inspector general, is the committee chairman for Pack 127. Sfc Coleman McQuagge, assigned to Martin Army Hospital, is the cubmaster.

Army Area Service Club Seminar Begins Sunday

Fort Benning will host a Service Club seminar next Sunday through Tuesday for all professional Service Club personnel in the Third Army area.

The seminar will serve as a guide for other seminars at later dates in other sections of the Third Army Special Services program, Lt. Col. Leey Ford Jr., Third Army Special Services officer, said.

Miss Pat Abernethy, chief of the Service Club Section, Department of the Army, will be a featured speaker at the seminar.

In addition to Col. Ford and Miss Abernethy, M. E. Chapman, chief of the Personnel Management Division, Third Army, and Leon Goldberg, area United Service Organization director, Atlanta, will address the group.

The seminar will begin Sunday afternoon, when the conferees register for the workshop committees on which they will serve during the meeting.

The committees will deal with various facets of Service Club operation and programming.

On the seminar's opening night, the conferees will work on the carnival to be presented at Service Club 3 as the principal programming feature.

On February 28 and 27 there will be regular sessions and speeches at Service Club 1 and a tour of Service Clubs 2 and 4. Speakers will be Mrs. Hazel Lewis, chief of the Army Command Management Division, G-1 Section; Raymond Cox, Central Post Fund accountant, and Sfc. Clay Lacy, information supervisor of the 2nd Infantry Division.

James H. Weaver is in charge of the music.

Miss Caroline H. Reid, post Service Club director, is chairman for the seminar. Miss Glenda G. James, director of Service Club 1, is co-chairman and chairman of committees.

Miss Madeline J. Parks and Miss Mary E. Shanks are co-chairmen of the service club tours, hospitality and reception.

Sp4 Starts Riding Club

SP4 Lawrence A. Moriarity, a records clerk in he 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade Personnel Section, has organized a junior Horsemanship club in Russell County, Ala.

The club is composed of youths 8 through 19 who have an interest in riding and general horsemanship.

Moriarity has proven himself an outstanding horseman by winning over 100 awards and ribbons. A native of Syracuse, N. Y., he owned and operated a riding academy there and participated in numerous horse shows.

He attended the Western New York District Light Horse Training School for Leaders at Avon, N. Y., while a civilian.

When asked if he had ever been thrown from a horse; he reported, "There ain't never a horse that can't be rode and never a man that can't be throwed."

Pfc Monroe SOM For 58th Infantry

Pfc Henry Monroe, Company C, 1st ARB, 58th Infantry, was recently selected as the 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, Soldier of the Month for February. Pfc Monroe is a clerk typist attached to the battalion S-3 Section. He has been with the 58th Infantry since June of 1961.

Boat Show Planned For Next Week In City Auditorium

The City of Columbus is planning a Boat Show to welcome the coming of this year's boating season. The show, to be held at the Municipal Auditorium March 2-4, will feature new developments in boating. Seven Columbus area Marine dealers will be on hand to demonstrate the boats and motors. A 25-cents admission will be charged.

MULE TO 'COPTER

During World War II, exchange supplies were frequently transported to the front on pack mules in mountain areas and on flatboats in the tropics. Today, in some remote locations, supplies are flown in by helicopter or airdropped.

Signal Unit Rates High Among NG Units Tested

Men of the 111th Signal Company, a National Guard unit from Greenville, S. C., called to active duty in October, are holding their heads high these days.

The 111th's pride in its performance of training duties stems from the Army Training Test given to all units on active duty to determine their combat readiness, the company was rated "excellent."

Commanded by Capt. Bryan J. Perry, Jr., the company was tested on its ability to operate technically with its signal equipment and to sustain itself during field operations.

In the tests for maintenance and operation of signal equipment, switchboard operation, supply issue and record keeping, setting up field accouterments, photography, film laboratory work and the distribution of training films, the 111th was rated top quality.

The 111th is one of only three signal companies that can be divided into cells or groups to accomplish its mission.

Attached to a division, corps, theater of operations or communications zone as needed, the 111th's mission is to install, operate and maintain military communications, to provide pictorial services, electronic countermeasures, signal intelligence and supply, and to maintain signal corps equipment.

The 111th was first organized before World War II as a unit of the 30th Infantry Division, South Carolina National Guard. In September, 1940, it was called to active duty for a year. But with the outbreak of the war, it remained in an active duty status.

After the war, the unit was reorganized as the 51st Infantry Division Signal Company in August, 1947. Less than two years later it merged with the 678th Anti - Aircraft Artillery Battalion and assumed its present designation as the 111th Signal Company.

Capt. Perry said of his company, "We of the 111th are proud of our unit and I am proud of my men. They are all fine soldiers."

Youngsters Set Sunday Chapel Visit

Approximately 100 children from the first grade classes of the Main Post Protestant Sunday School will attend the 9:30 a.m. service Suunday at The Infantry Center Chapel.

The pupils, teachers and superintendents of the First Grade Department will occupy reserved seats in the chapel.

This is part of the training program of the Sunday School, which includes lessons in public worship, Bible study and character building.

Other departments of the Sunday School will attend worship services on a continuing basis, according to Chaplain (Col.) Silas E. Decker, Infantry Center chaplain.

Emergency Areas in U. S. Rely on the Army for Aid

"The Army has treated us wonderfully" was an expression voiced by many victims of Hurricane Carla's fury. What brought about this praise is an operation that is conducted by the Continental Army Command know militarily as "Tempest Rapid."

When a "Tempest Rapid" message is received by the Continental Army Command, headquartered at Fort Monroe, Virginia, a state of emergency exists somewhere within the U.S. It may mean a forest fire in our Pacific Northwest, a child lost in the swamps of Georgia, or a fire rapidly destroying a small New England community.

The Red Cross, Civil Defense, state and local authorities may appeal to an Army commander for aid when a civil disaster strikes. Aid rendered varies in scope from massive relief operations such as were carried out during Hurricane Carla to assistance in searching for persons lost in isolated areas.

The "Tempest Rapid" missions are extra - curricular activities for CONARC. Requests are made directly to the commander in whose Army area the emergency occurs and he has the authority to act. While services of troops are provided on a gratis basis, the Army under certain conditions is reimbursed for equipment and supplies.

Many of the disasters that occurred during 1961 made headlines throughout our country and the Army was there to help. Many were noted in local papers only but again the Army came to the aid of the community.

The Sixth Army, located at the Presidio of San Francisco, committed men and fire fighting equipment to fight forest fires that destroyed over 5,000 acres of national forests and many homes in Arizona, California and Washington.

In San Antonio, Texas, the home of the Fourth Army, a Disaster Control Coordination Center immediately swung into action when Hurricane Carla swept through the state. Men and supplies AT ONCE was the order of the day.

Some 1,250 active Army soldiers and more than 2,000 Army National Guardsmen were on duty at the peak of relief operations. In addition to the men from scores of military installations participating in the mammoth mercy mission, a formidable list of supplies — ranging from 10,000 mattresses to snake-bite kits — were furnished.

Soldiers played a major role in evacuating thousands acted as guards to protect property and prevent looting, served on traffic control teams, rescued marooned persons, operated generators and helped clear silted areas.

A small city in New England was ravaged by fire in June. During a three-day period, 700 soldiers from Fort Devens, Massachusets, assisted by eleven Department of the Army civilians and thirty-three Air Force personnel helped fight the fire that destroyed two industrial plants and six dwellings in Ayer, Massachusetts.

When snow strikes a large metropolitan area such as New York, a city can virtually be choked to death. Traffic carrying food, fuel and clothing can neither enter nor leave the city. A massive blizzard, accompanied by zero temperatures, dumped 17 inches of snow on New York.

New York National Guardsmen turned out to help clear the city. Eighteen wreckers — 10-ton vehicles — were manned and dispatched to the city to clear the streets of abandoned cars and trucks. Working through the night with local officials, the mammoth task of getting traffic moving was accomplished.

The image of the American soldier as a fighting man is stamped with coin - like clarity in the minds of our people. However, there is another side to that familiar coin — the real, true mission of the American soldier is to preserve the lives of his people and their fundamental values, institutions and culture. What better way can he fulfill his mission than to stand ready to give comfort and aid when disaster strikes.

It is a safe bet that not a week went by during the past year that the Continental Army Command was not called on, somewhere across the nation, for help and the command was ready when the words "Tempest Rapid" were received.

'Executive Privilege' Used By President in Hearings

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Mr. Willis D. Lawrence, assistant director for policy and procedure in the Defense Department's Security Review Section, are shown just before Mr. McNamara invoked the President's doctrine of Executive Privilege before a Special Preparedness Subcommittee of the Committee on Armed Services.

Secretary McNamara, after being sworn in, read the letter which invoked the Executive Privilege. He had previously declined to permit Mr. Lawrence to testify before the commitee, stating that he considered it a violation of the principle of good management to permit subordinates to be blamed for carrying out policies established by their superiors.

At a press conference on February 5, Mr. McNamara told newsmen "we have cooperated in every possible way (with the committee) and I propose to continue to do so.

"But I do not believe it is appropriate to place on these 14 individuals (in the Security Review office) the responsibility which is properly mine.

"These men have operated according to my policy and instructions and, therefore, it is I not they who should be queried on any specific charge and who should be charged with any errors."

The secretary said he believed this was a fundamental principle of good management.

"For 20 years I have been responsible for managing large organizations, public and private. I have never been able to develop the unity of purpose which is necessary to accomplish its objectives unless I assumed the responsibility that was properly mine."

"...I expect and demand loyalty from those working for me. I can neither expect it nor will I receive it unless I extend loyalty to them."

In his letter invoking the Executive Privilege President Kennedy also made note of re-

Jumper's Life Saved; Fellow Student Cited

The courage and alertness of a young private last week was credited with saving the life of a fellow-student paratrooper.

At Fryar Field February 21, the men of a paratrooper class were making qualifying jumps with the Basic Training Committee, Airborne-Air Mobility Department of The Infantry School.

After jumping from an aircraft, one of the students, Pvt. Lenwood A. Bratten, saw that the parachute of another jumper, Pvt. Andrew B. Bray, had not opened properly.

Disregarding his own safety, Bratten seized Bray's parachute canopy as it was about to pass him and held it until both had floated safely to the ground under Bratten's parachute.

As the two men descended, Sfc Robert J. Benoit, an instructor in the Airborne-Air Mobility Department, shouted instructions through a loudspeaker to Bratten during the descent.

Bratten is a member of the 42nd Company, 4th Battalion, Student Brigade. Bray is a member of Headquarters Company, Airborne, 4th Battalion. Benoit is with the 41st Company, 4th Battalion.

For his quick thinking and saving of a fellow - paratrooper's life, Bratten was awarded a citation signed by Secretary of the Army Elvis J. Stahr, Jr., and Major Gen. Ben Harrell, commandant of The Infantry School, and the Army Commendation Medal.

Benoit was presented a letter of commendation by Col. Michael Paulick, director of the Airborne - Air Mobility Department, for instructing Bratten to enable him and Bray to reach the ground without serious injury or death.

The medal and citation were presented to Bratten last Friday by Col. Paulick at the graduation ceremony of 479 paratroopers.

Among the graduates were nine Air Force officers, 77 Army officers, one Marine Corps enlisted man and 392 Army enlisted men.

Honor graduate of the class was Spt Teddy F. Lamb, a member of the 42nd Com-

Release Dates Set For Some Army Officers

Washington (AFPS)—Army Reserve officers, serving in an obligated status for two or more years, whose tours were extended for an additional year during the buildup, will be released from active duty by the end of June 1962.

Not affected are officers who were serving six month tours of active duty for training and were extended for one year following the completion of their six months. These officers will be required to complete 18 months of active duty.

Release schedules announced recently are:

Those whose release dates, prior to extension, were from October 1961 to January 1962 will be released in April 1962.

Officers originally scheduled for release in February, March, April and May of 1962 will go out in May.

Tours with an original termination date of June 1962 will end on schedule.

Post Artists to Display Works At TIS Book Store Next Week

Art creations of some 40 pieces, ranging in value of from five to five hundred dollars, go on display Monday morning at The Infantry School's Book Store. The show is open to the public at no charge.

Artists displaying their creations are soldiers and civilian employees of The School's Editorial and Pictorial Office. On display will be oils, water colors, charcoal sketches, ink drawings, caseins, and collages.

Quite a few of those who will exhibit their works have either had one-man showings or have displayed their works at prominent art shows. Three of these are James A. Longshore, Pfc Domenick J. Gulla, and Pvt. John Pindyck Miller.

Longshore, assistant supervisor of EPO's Graphics Branch, is a graduate of Auburn University and has had several one-man showings throughout the Georgia-Alabama area. One of his water colors won the first place ribbon at the Fort Benning Women's Club exhibit in 1957. His principal mediums are oils and water colors.

Longshore says, "Perhaps my best known work of art is a cover design for the book "War Was The Place," published by the Chattahoochee Valley Historical Society."

Pfc Gulla earned a degree in Applied Arts and Sciences at the New York City Community College and has displayed many of his works at prominent art exhibits in the New York area. Prior to his entry on active Army duty, he worked in commercial advertising in New York City. His mediums include pastels, inks, water color, and casein. He plans to display two or three of his works.

Pvt. Miller is a graduate of Middlebury (Vt.) College with a B.A. in Liberal Arts, and furthered his studies at Brooklyn Museum School of Art and at the Silvermine Guild School of Art in New Canaan, Conn. His mediums are mainly oil and collage.

An art index will be furnished interested visitors giving the picture number, name of artist, title, medium, and price if for sale.

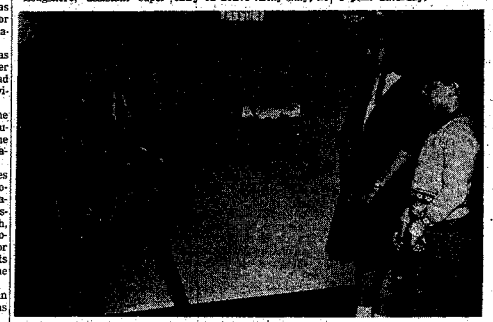
The exhibit will be open for inspection from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, and from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday.

Through April 5

Joint Drive Underway at Benning Now

The 1962 Federal Services Joint Crusade and the National Health Agencies Fund Drive began last Friday at Fort Benning.

Signaling the beginning was a "kickoff" meeting held for all project officers in Theater 1.



The opening address was made by post project officer Major Edward L. Whitehead chief of the Billeting Division, The Infantry Center.

Agencies included under the Joint Crusade are CARE, Crusade for Freedom and the American - Korean Foundation.

The National Health Agencies are the American Cancer Society, Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation, National Association for Mental Health, National Multiple Sclerosis Society, National Society for Crippled Children and Adults and National Society for the Prevention of Blindness.

No definite goal other than 100 per cent participation has been set.

The campaign will continue through April 5.

sponsibility when he said:

"... I do not intend to permit subordinate officials of our career services to bear the brunt of Congressional inquiry into policies which are the responsibilities of their superiors."

However, the subcommittee decided by unanimous vote that this did not constitute a claim or invocation of the doctrine of Executive Privilege and that the secretary's grounds were insufficient to prohibit the requested reply from Mr. Lawrence. As a result of this decision, the president invoked Executive Privilege.

In his ruling upholding invocation of the Executive Privilege, Committee Chairman John Stennis (D.-Miss.) traced the use of the privilege from the time of George Washington to the present.

He said "... this series of decisions and rulings over a 170-year period have been bottomed largely on this premise, that to make the disclosures under the circumstances would be against the public interest."

Among the presidents who have used Executive Privilege, he said, were Washington, Jefferson, Tyler, Polk, Madison, Cleveland, Theodore Roosevelt, Coolidge, Hoover, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Truman and Eisenhower.

Sen. Stennis cited court cases that had upheld a president's use of the Executive Privilege. "All of them say that it is a discretionary matter, in effect that the judgment of the executive on that matter is conclusive. I have not found any final decision by a legislative body that ruled to the contrary."

Sen. Stennis in his ruling said that "in face of the plea, I am convinced firmly that the executive plea applies when interposed, that it is valid now, and the chair sustains the plea."

President's Letter

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Following is President Kennedy's letter invoking the doctrine of Executive Privilege. It was read to the Special Preparedness Subcommittee of the Committee on Armed Forces by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara:

Dear Mr. Secretary:

"You have brought to my attention the fact that the Senate Special Preparedness Investigating Subcommittee intends to ask witnesses from your Department to give testimony identifying the names of individuals who made or recommended changes in specific speeches.

"As you know, it has been and will be the consistent policy of this Administration to cooperate fully with the Committees of the Congress with respect to the furnishing of information. In accordance with this policy, you have made available to the Subcommittee 1500 speeches with marginal notes, hundreds of other documents, and the names of the 34 individual speech reviewers, 11 of whom are military officers. You have also made available the fullest possible background information about each of these men, whose record of service and devotion to country is unquestioned in every case, and you have permitted the Committee's staff to interview all witnesses requested and to conduct such interviews outside the presence of any Departmental representative. Finally, you have identified the Departmental source of each suggested change and offered to furnish in writing an explanation of each such change and the policy or guideline under which it was made.

"Your statement that these changes are your responsibility, that they were made under your policies and guidelines and those of this Administration, and that you would be willing to explain them in detail is both fitting and accurate, and offers to the Subcommittee all the information properly needed for the purposes of its current inquiry. It is equally clear that it would not be possible for you to maintain an orderly Department and receive the candid advice and loyal respect of your subordinates if they, instead of you and your senior associates, are to be individually answerable to the Congress, as well as to you, for their internal acts and advice.

"For these reasons, and in accordance with the precedents on separation of powers established by my predecessors from the first to the last, I have concluded it would be contrary to the public interest to make available any information which would enable the Subcommittee to identify and hold accountable any individual with respect to any particular speech that he has reviewed. I, therefore, direct you and all personnel under the jurisdiction of your Department not to give any testimony or produce any documents which would disclose such information, and I am issuing parallel instructions to the Secretary of State.

"The principle which is at stake here cannot be automatically applied to every request for information. Each case must be judged on its own merits. But I do not intend to permit subordinate officials of our career services to bear the brunt of Congressional inquiry into policies which are the responsibilities of their superiors.

Sincerely yours,
John Kennedy."

pany, Sinkiang Brigade.

In congratulating the graduates, Col. Paulick said, "The achievement you began some weeks ago was not child's play. Regardless of your age or rank or the uniform you wear, you are good men. We are all proud of you for having joined the Airborne.

"We have had an Army for 200 years and Airborne troops for only 20 years. But the Airborne has won a place of honor for valor on the battlefields of Italy, France, Germany, Corregidor and Korea. Your wings mark you as qualified paratroopers, a special kind of soldiers."

Dental Personnel Mark Anniversary Tomorrow

Tomorrow marks the 21st anniversary of the establishment of the Army Dental Corps, of which the 50 dentists at Fort Benning are a part. Of these dentists, 45 are connected with The Infantry Center Dental Section, one with the 216th Medical Clearing Company, an Arkansas National Guard unit on active duty, and one with the 3rd Field Hospital.

In addition, there are three dentists with the 2nd Infantry Division, two with Martin Army Hospital, and four interns undergoing a one year internship.

Four dental clinics are in operation and a fifth one is expected to be ready by the first of May.

The new clinic is to be located at Kelley Hill according to dental surgeon, Col. Stuart M. Mitchell, head of The Infantry Center Dental Section, and will be one of the most modern and fully equipped of any of the Army dental clinics.

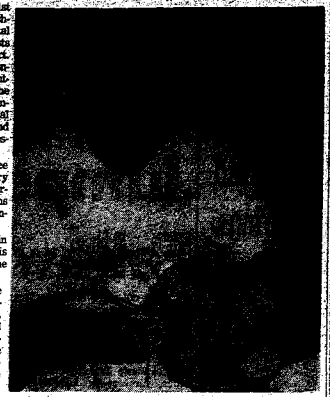
There is also a dental laboratory on post where most of the crowns and dentures are made. This is under the supervision of Major Virgil Woods.

In charge of the clinic at Dispensary A is Lt. Col. Hosea F. Sawyer. The Sand Hill clinic is headed by Lt. Col. Robert M. Ziehm and the Harmony Church clinic is under the supervision of Lt. Col. Gordon L. Sanger.

The clinic at the old hospital area, A-14, is headed by Col. Edward G. Austin. The deputy dental surgeon is Lt. Col. Thomas K. Goodman.

In addition to these, there are 49 enlisted men, 25 civilians and eight Wac's, who are employed as administrative personnel, laboratory technicians, dental assistants and X-ray technicians.

The four interns undergo what is called a rotating internship. During the year they intern, the young dentists spend three months in each of the major fields of dentistry, prosthetics, oral surgery, crown and bridge, and oral diagnosis.



One of the interns is an Air Force officer. Col. Mitchell states that this is not unusual, because until recently the Army trained all the Air Force dentists.

The history of Army dentistry begins earlier than 51 years ago. In the 1950's Dr. Edward Maynard, who is considered to be the father of the Army Dental Corps, first conceived the idea.

His idea eventually became a reality, when Congress passed the Otey Bill in 1901. This bill authorized one dentist for every 1,000 men in the Army, which at that time was 30. However, it was not until March 3, 1911, that the bill was made a law.

By World War I the corps had grown to 600 and during World War II there were over 15,000 dentists in the Army.

Today there are approximately 16,000.

Army Develops Method Which Measures Rain

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — A group of Army scientists have developed a new electronic device that counts and measures raindrops automatically.

The device was developed to meet the technical requirements of the U. S. Army Signal Corps.

It measures raindrops in 13 sizes, ranging from drops less than one-hundredth of an inch wide to those more than an eighth of an inch in diameter. It can count as many as 10,000 drops a minute of each size.

Designed to be placed outdoors, in a drizzle or a downpour, the raindrop sizer and counter device collects information on all the raindrops that fall through an area about one - and - one - quarter inches square.

Returns From Ariz.

Lt. Col. Charles J. Benge returned to the post last Friday from Phoenix, Ariz., where he observed a field demonstration of electronic equipment.

Col. Benge is deputy director of The Infantry School Communications Department.

Project Mercury's Day: Astronaut Orbits Earth

Years of intense and dedicated work by the scientists of Project Mercury have repaid them with victory. Years of tireless training by Mercury astronauts have made their common dream a magnificent reality. An American, Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr., has orbited the earth, following his pioneering colleagues, Cdr. Alan B. Shepard Jr. and Capt. Virgil I. Grissom, into the pages of our history.

A triumph—doubly so because it came after repeated frustrations in days when many of us felt sick at heart as delay after delay was announced. And how did John Glenn feel? Perhaps we'll never really know the effects on him of the long, agonizing vigil. One medical authority put it this way: "Like any good soldier, Glenn would never admit that it affected him."

Some people fretted that the ordeal of 10 postponements must inevitably affect the in-flight performance of even a man of this Marine's caliber. But Col. Glenn, combat veteran of two wars, was a lot cooler than they. "I can't get particularly shook up about a couple of days' delay," he said. "I learned early in the flight-test business that you have to control your emotions—you don't let these things throw you or affect your ability to perform the mission."

Most of us in our time probably will see conquests of space that will make the achievements of John Glenn and his fellows seem primitive. But no such forward strides can never diminish the luster of their deeds. They have given a new glory, a new splendor to the illustrious history of America's Armed Forces.

The 4 hours and 56 minutes of Col. Glenn's thrice-orbital flight marked a milestone in Project Mercury's years of effort. Now the curtain will go up on new space projects. Nobody—scientists or astronauts—will relax. But everyone in the nation can take time out to cheer Col. Glenn and the thousands of people whose work and brains made his flight a spectacular success. In our hearts we all rode with him in Friendship 7. (AFPS)

'Your Life-Tomorrow'

"Wherewithal shall a young man cleanse his way? By taking heed thereto according to thy word. Thy word have I hid in mine heart, that I might not sin against thee." (Psalm 118:9 and 11 verses.)

These words were spoken by David, who as a young man found that his faith in God gave him the ability to reign over Israel for forty years, and at his death could still profess his faith in God.

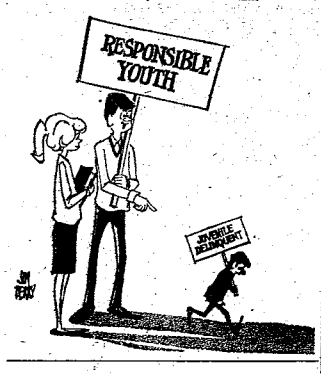
It is not how we start the race that counts, but how we finish. You may start slow, but to win you will have to do some fast running and fighting. The same with life. We start out as a helpless child, crawling and then walking.

Then before too long, we are faced with the reality of life and its challenges and responsibilities. Will you accept them or will you waste your life trying to neglect them?

When you grow into full manhood, you can look back with remorse, or with great satisfaction, depending on how you live your life.

David Starr Jordan said; "Your first duty in life is toward your after-self. So live that the man you ought to be may, in his time, be possible, be actual.

"Far away in the years he is waiting his turn. His body, his brain, his soul are in your boyish hands. He cannot help himself, what will you leave for him? Will it be a brain unspoiled by lust or dissipation; a mind trained to think and act; a nervous system true as a dial in its response to the truth about you? Will you, boy, let him come as a man among men in his time? Or will you throw away his inheritance before he has the chance to touch it?



"Will you turn over to him a brain distorted, a mind diseased, a will untrained to action, a spinal cord grown through with the devil grass, wild oats? Will you let him come and take your place, gaining through your experiences, happy in your friendship, hallowed through your joys, building on them his own?

"Or will you fling it all away, decreeing, wanton-like, that the man he might have been shall never be? This is your problem in life — the problem which is vastly more to you than any or all others. How will you meet it, as a man or as a fool?

"It comes before you today and every day, and the hour of your choice is the crisis in our destiny."

If Christ is the center of our lives, "The circumference will take care of itself."

"We Certainly Overshadow Him!"

The Surgeon Says:

You Can Beat Polio

We never fail to delay. For years we have sought a preventive polio vaccine and backed up our demands with countless contributions to the March of Dimes.

Now we have the vaccine. When it was still in limited supply, the demand continued loud and clear, but now when there is ample quantity, the demand has dwindled almost to a whisper.

Now is the time to seriously evaluate the polio vaccination status of the whole family, and if found lacking, take the necessary steps to begin or complete the vaccination series. It is never too early to begin — but it can be too late!

Surveys indicate that many adults as well as school children still lack the required number of immunizations necessary to insure maximum protection. Many have not even received their first immunization! Since 1955 it has been proven over and over again that this vaccination program protects against the crippling effects of paralytic poliomyelitis. This disease cripples, condemns adults and children to iron lungs—and kills! There is no cure for polio — but it can be prevented!

Parents, for the sake of your loved ones and for your own sake, take sixty seconds out of your daily routine and get your polio shots. This sixty seconds can save your life and it is certainly a cheap price to pay for insurance against poliomyelitis. Remember, polio does not respect age!

Polio is still with us. Unfortunately, some will die while others will be crippled for life. The sad part of it is that the majority are children. It is even sadder because paralysis of children can in many cases be blamed on the parent's lack of foresight. Why do you parents allow this tragedy to happen when it only takes several minutes out of anyone's life to get the completed polio vaccination series?

Generally speaking, the incidence of this disease is low among military personnel and their dependents, but is still considered to be of sufficient military importance to warrant the cost of an expensive immunization program available to all the Armed Forces normally provided medical care.

The social - economic problems created by paralytic poliomyelitis in wives and children of members of the Armed Forces often results

Editorially

In Cadence

Cadence, according to Webster's New Collegiate Dictionary, means "Rhythmical flow of language. . .the measure or beat of any rhythmical motion . . . a concluding strain."

It will be the purpose of this column each week to keep in step with the rhythmical motion of the Army, and especially this post. We will try to single out the individual personalities or facets which comprise the whole operation of this reservation, which deserve editorial recognition.

We also will, on occasion, draw attention to the individual parts of this military complex which are in need of a little "oil" in order to run better, save money or time, or make for a better post.

To begin with a couple of examples: some soldiers who have earned a pat on the back are the military police assigned to school crossing and traffic duty on the post. Particular mention to Sfc (E-7) Joseph Martin and Sp4 Frederick Jones. We see the same faces early in the morning, and late in the afternoon or early evenings, and they are always ready with a smile and greeting — even in the rain. The very least they deserve from all is complete cooperation.

And, after having our attention called to the problem of food waste, we overheard this in a main post mess hall the other day: "If you eat all that, you'll weigh 300 pounds in no time at all." The answer: "I don't eat much, I just take a lot."

That soldier had taken a lot allright. He threw away more than the others at the table had eaten, and they all ate pretty well.

From what some Allied servicemen have remarked, and particularly from quotations credited to refugees from less fortunate countries, it seems that too many of us take our good fortune for granted, and feel that we can waste food or supplies just because we are Americans.

Food service personnel say just what they have said for years: "Take all you want, but EAT ALL YOU TAKE."—Sp5 Larry Benedict.

What Is a Newspaper?

The People's Freedom Depends on The Press

(Last of an AFPS Series)

Freedom of the press is a Constitutional guarantee. Our Founding Fathers believed in the worth of an individual and the right of that individual to know what was going on.

(Newspapers in Communist countries exist only to parrot the party line.)

The freedom of the press which we enjoy is a necessity to our economic and political freedom. Neither can exist without the other. Our democracy, as our forefathers saw it, is founded on liberty for all.

(Newspapers in Communist countries exist only to parrot the party line.)

History tells us, however, that no nation, no people, can afford to take freedom for granted. Wherever that has happened, the result has led to bondage. Someone has traced the pattern of human history in 10 steps:

1. From bondage to spiritual faith. 2. From spiritual faith to courage. 3. From courage to freedom. 4. From freedom to some measure of physical abundance. 5. From abundance to selfishness. 6. From selfishness to complacency. 7. From complacency to apathy. 8. From apathy to fear. 9. From fear to dependency. 10. From dependency back to bondage.

(Newspapers in Communist countries exist only to parrot the party line.)

Ours is the first form of modern government which has as one of its basic beliefs the right of an individual to be fully informed.

Whose freedom is this freedom of the press? The people' — It is every man's to have — and no man's to give away. A free citizen in a free society, however, has obligations. James S. Pope, managing editor of the Louisville, Ky., Courier - Journal spells out what one of these obligations is.

"The primary obligation of a citizen in a free society is to help keep it free. And since this simply cannot be done out of ignorance, his first duty is to be informed—to understand clearly not only his nation's institutions, which are inherited, but also what arises out of them; the critical day-to-day processes in all his governments, local, state and federal.

None of the Old Ivy Covered Buildings at TIS

For Most of The School's 355,000 Students

For most graduates of institutions of higher learning, mention of their alma mater brings back memories of ivy covered buildings, dignified and graying professors, and the annual (and most years more than one) dun for money from the Alumni Association.

This is not so for most graduates of The Infantry School, for approximately 98 per cent of the 355,000-man Infantry School student body of 1961 never even saw their alma mater.

For those students their own dens, living rooms, and perhaps the dining room table were as near to their school as they ever got. If there was any ivy, it was probably the poison variety in the back yard. As for hallowed halls of learning, their youngsters turned them into boisterous playgrounds and battle fields.

As nonresidents, 340,000 of the students attended US AIS through its Department of Nonresident Instruction, a military - style correspondence school. In DNRI, the Instructional Materials Preparation Committee (IMPC), headed by Major Buenaventura Esteves, creates the image of The Infantry School for its far-flung nonresident student body.

The instructional material includes correspondence courses, instructor narratives, subject schedules, student handouts, and training aids. The material is used by ROTC units, National Guard, State Officer Candidate Schools, Army Reserve Schools, and students enrolled in the Army Extension Courses program.

See related story on opening of new briefing room at DNRI on Page 9. Room was designed and built by department personnel without outside help.

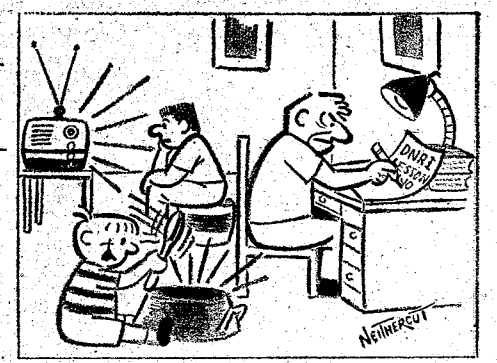
The IMP Committee is composed of military publications officers, civilian education specialist writers, and typists and administrators. Elwin Bodey, administrative assistant, and MSgt and Philip E. Cruse, chief clerk, are the IMP Committee coordinators of the administrative cycles through which committee material flows.

The writers revise, rewrite, and convert USAIS resident instruction into texts and manuscripts which serve the nonresident students as teacher, blackboard, and even classmates. The material is a do-it-yourself classroom in an envelope.

During 1961, the IMP Committee produced the Infantry Orientation Course designed for junior officers. The nine subcourses in this new series will help qualify second lieutenants for promotion.

Another new extension course, the Enlisted Career Development Course for NCOs, is planned for release later this year. This course will reflect the current reorganization of the Army division (ROAD) and is designed to increase the professional knowledge of career noncommissioned officers.

In creating the image of The Infantry School in the minds of the nonresident students, the IMP Committee tries to specialize in only a few subjects. It is continually concerned with myriad Infantry matters including tactics, weapons, equipment, vehicles, and personnel — in fact, every major subject taught in resident instruction at USAIS.



The doctrine, tactics, and techniques developed by the resident departments pertaining to all these subjects are thus presented to Infantry students around the world.

The writing problems of IMP Committee authors range from describing on paper the sound of the detonation of high explosives and the texture of camouflage materials, to teaching night patroling and simulating combat conditions for the student in his easy chair.

In solving such problems, two IMP Committee writers — Robert T. Wright and John L. Hofues—even went so far as to develop an indoor live-firing Trainfire range for use in campus armories to give high school and college ROTC cadets realistic training in the principles of Trainfire.

Wherever he may be — in his den, living room, or dining room — the student, through such agencies as the IMP Committee of DNRI, acting in concert with the resident departments of USAIS is assured of being kept professionally qualified and up-to-date on the latest doctrine and techniques of the most important fighting element — the ground combat soldier.

There may be no ivy covered buildings, hallowed halls of learning, and no duns from the Alumni Association, but there will be moments of nostalgia when thoughts of Fort Benning and The Infantry School enter the mind of the former student or graduate.

Gen. Surles' Infantry School Report

Don't Just Use Club Facilities; Join -- YAC Asks

The Youth Activities Club is attempting to increase its membership to include as many as possible of the post's school age children.

The majority of these children already participate in one or more of the YAC activities, according to officials. But a recent survey showed that of the children currently enrolled in Scouting and other activities in season, namely, basketball, bowling, fencing, Junior National Rifle Association and swimming, less than 43 per cent of the participants are bona fide members, they added.

Considering the many benefits the children derive from the YAC program, annual membership dues for each child are considered extremely liberal, the officials said.

The 'Roaring Twenties' Brigade Lunch Theme

"The Roaring Twenties" was the motif for the 1st Infantry Brigade ladies' Luncheon held recently at Custer Terrace Officers' Club.

Deep shades of green and yellow table cloths, hurricane lamps, morning glories, and 1920 era touring cars added an aura of grandeur to the festivities.

A miniature "moonshine" still, complete from the traditional copper boiler with brick furnace to the cooper worm (tubing) filtering through a barrel of cool water and condensing into liquid, added still more glamor and realism to the scenario.

The floor show was entitled "The Roaring Twenties With Pinky And The Girls." Popular tunes of the 1920's were sung and danced in the customary flapper attire and Charleston—Black Bottom manner. Mesdames Lucas, Knight, Olszewski, McKelar and Davis, all 10th Artillery ladies, performed in the traditional style of the '20's.

Mrs. William H. Birdsong Jr., introduced, as a special guest, Mrs. John E. Kelly. Mrs. Kelly was presented a beautiful floral corsage.

Others at the head table were Mrs. Lawrence S. Reynolds, Mrs. Charles T. Caprino, Mrs. Paul C. Emley, Mrs. Wallis E. McClain and Mrs. Fred N. Scott. Place settings for the head table were small antique cars with name tags attached.

The entire program for the affair was planned by the ladies of the 10th Artillery.

Latest Fashions Spark Infantry Board Luncheon

The ladies of the Infantry Board met for their monthly luncheon in the dining room of the Martinique Motel recently.

Members and the guests enjoyed a showing of new spring and summer fashions which were modeled during the luncheon.

Farewells were said to Mrs. Leonard R. Daems and Mrs. James R. Bukoski. Mrs. William Summers had as her guest for the occasion Mrs. Robin Montgomery. Mrs. Walter Todd was the guest of Mrs. John Swearingen.

Hostesses for the luncheon were Mrs. John C. Cougill, Mrs. David Price, Mrs. Norman Stephens, Mrs. Marshall Mott, Mrs. Earl Roberts and Mrs. Thomas Whalen.

Jan Rose's Woman's Club Diary

We are proud to announce that our own Agnes Phillips has written an original musical revue to be presented at the April Luncheon of the Woman's Club.

The title of this witty, fast-moving show is "La Caompagnie", and Phylis Tritsch is director and Rachael Lancaster musical supervisor.

Prepare now to attend for a clever, amusing look at yourself, from moving day to coffee breaks.

Talent is needed, and auditions for the show will be held at the Masquers Playhouse, Building 2519, (behind the Quartermaster Laundry) on Monday at 1 p.m. Mrs. Lancaster, MU 9-1532, is accepting names of interested singers, dancers, and actresses wishing to try out.

Now that the Thrift Shop has just undergone our IG inspection, we are all sparkling and organized, with lots of new merchandise coming in all the time.

There are especially good buys in baby and juvenile furniture now, and a number of items in the appliance division. Drop in any Tuesday or Thursday for a look around.

The School of Dance, now located in its newly-painted and redecorated home, Building 1908, will have a coffee and open house for the parents on March 6 at 10 a.m. at the Dance Building. Mrs. John Bohen, MU 9-7452, is accepting registrations from children aged three and up for classes in ballet, tap, and toe.

Toastmistress Koerber 'Speaker of the Evening'

Mrs. Fred Koerber was voted "Speaker of the Evening" and presented a silver cup at the regular meeting of the Fort Benning - Columbus Toastmistress Club last week at the Brownie Hut on the post.

Final plans for a speech contest to be held at the next meeting March 5 were discussed. The following will participate in the contest: Mrs. Richard E. Evers, Miss Avis Gordee, Mrs. John Passarella and Mrs. Royce Hunt.

Following the grammarian's report by Mrs. John Milton, table topics were conducted by Miss Marian Holland. The theme used for table topics was an art show at Greenwich Village. Miss Holland asked several members to interpret and express opinions about several paintings by well-known artists. The pictures used were made available by the post Book Store.

Speakers on the program for the evening were Mrs. Koerber, Mrs. Milton and Mrs. Frank Spettel.

Guests attending were Mrs. William A. Beach and Mrs. Jerry Scalia.

LAAC Ladies Hold Business, Coffee Meeting

Ladies of Headquarters, Lawson Army Aviation Command, met recently for their monthly coffee in the Normandy Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess, with Vallie Campbell and Rose Rose as hostesses.

Mrs. Curtis E. Hankins announced that a recent cake sale conducted by the group was a success. The special project for which the funds were raised has not been announced.

In other business, Ingrid Borsnan was elected to the board of the Headquarters group.

Future coffees will be held on the second Wednesday of each month, rather than the third, it was announced, and hostesses for the next meeting will be LaVerne Munson and Judy Wood.

Goodbyes were said to the Mesdames Mary Melton, Shirley Ingram, Betty Trammell, LaVerne Wood, Rudy Woodruff and Georgia McReynolds.

DI Ladies Meet At Mrs. Carter's

The Ladies of the Director of Instruction's office met at the home of Mrs. James T. Carter, on Tuesday, February 13, for coffee and punch.

The table was decorated in a St. Valentine's Day theme. A large, heart-shaped box of candy, trimmed with white lace was centered on the table. Smaller red valentines served as a colorful border around the table.

Mrs. John M. King poured the coffee and Mrs. Alvin Ornstein served the punch. A ginger-ale jello loaf made by cohostess, Mrs. William F. Freeman, was also served.

Mrs. Cornelius W. Coghill was welcomed into the group and goodbye was said to Mrs. George D. Moore. Mrs. Moore was presented with a silver tray as a farewell gift. Mrs. Mack McGahee was a guest for the occasion.

Student Officers' Wives Meet for First Coffee

Lt. Col. Vern L. Joseph, commander of the 2nd Student Battalion, Lt. Col. Arthur Estes, the Student Brigade chaplain, Capt. Wade Herring, commander of Detachment 2, and Mrs. Herring recently addressed the wives of students attending the Officers Associate Infantry Officers Career Course, Number 3, 2nd Student Battalion, The Student Brigade, at their first coffee.

The ladies were welcomed to Benning and pamphlets were distributed explaining the post's facilities.

Mrs. A. D. Surles, Jr., Mrs. Richard W. Keyes and Mrs. Arthur Estes were introduced as special guests.

Cadre hostesses were Mrs. Vern L. Joseph, Mrs. Arthur Wourms, Mrs. Wade Herring and Mrs. Richard Lewis.

A centerpiece of pink snapdragons and roses decorated the refreshment table. Coffee, tea and chocolate cupcakes were served.

Thirty two ladies attended the affair.

Announce Nominations For Woman's Club Slate

Mrs. John E. Kelly, chairman of the Nominating Committee for the Woman's Club of Fort Benning, has announced the following nominations for the 1962-63 Club year. The elections will take place on April 4 at the bi-monthly luncheon of the club.

DOD Forms New Saigon Headquarters

Washington (AFPS) — A new U. S. Military Assistance Command, Vietnam, has been established by the Department of Defense.

It will be headed by Gen. Paul D. Harkins, deputy commander, U. S. Army, Pacific. His new headquarters will be in Saigon.

The new command's job will be to support, train and provide transportation for combat purposes.

In announcing establishment of the new command, the Defense Department said:

"The new command will enable the United States to carry out more effectively the expanded assistance and support requested by the Government of the Republic of Vietnam to help that country preserve its freedom and independence against Communist aggression."

Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps personnel will be involved in the new operation. Even now, the spokesman said, we are assisting the Vietnamese in coastal patrols.

The new command will include the existing U. S. Military Assistance Advisory Group, Vietnam. A MAAG, by its nature, is used to train troops of an allied country.

CISM CHIEF . . . Col. Robin G. Montgomery, commander of the Army Marksmanship Training Unit, has been appointed chief of delegation for the U.S. at the international rifle and pistol championships to be held at Buenos Aires, Argentina, August 29 through September 8 this year, by the Department of the Army. The matches are sponsored by the Conseil Internationale du Sports Militaire, and draw entries from the European continent as well as the Americas. This is the third year that Col. Montgomery has been honored with the mission.

Profile of a Man Doing a Man's Job

MSgt William E. Krilling, a member of the Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit's International Rifle Team, is from Buffalo Lake, Minn. He entered the Army in December, 1946. Since that time he has served tours of duty in the Artic, the Eniwetok A-Bomb test sites and Germany.

During the Korean War he was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross, Bronze Star, Purple Heart and The Combat Infantry Badge.

Sgt. Krilling became interested in shooting through hunting and took up competitive shooting in 1952. He is a holder of the Distinguished Marksmanship Badge (Rifle) and has competed at Camp Perry, Ohio, in the National Matches for four years.

Krilling states that competitive marksmanship has taught him a lot about self discipline and strongly recommends shooting as a way to build confidence in yourself and others as a fighting unit.

Approximately 30,000 educators from all parts of the nation attended this annual meeting of the association.

The program included outstanding speakers in their field and discussion groups.

For NGs, Reservists

Pamphlet Will Explain Release

An information pamphlet pertaining to the release of Army Reserve and National Guard units now on active duty is being prepared by the Office of the Chief of Information, Washington.

A question and answer format will used, covering plans, policies and procedures for release from active duty of units and individuals, as well as future reserve status and obligations.

Questions being considered for use in the pamphlet include: What will determine the order in which units are released? How far in advance will "units be notified of their release dates? I came on active duty with my Reserve unit, but am now serving with another unit. Will I be released when my Reserve unit is released?

Some others under consideration are: Will all releases be by unit, or will some men be released ahead of their units? Upon release from active duty, will I be entitled to a travel allowance for my dependents and transportation of my household goods? What happens if I am hospitalized on the day my unit is released?

Four questions have been submitted for consideration from the 156th Signal Battalion, stationed here at Benning. They concern expirations of term of service which have already expired, unemployment benefits, and filler personnel who are held beyond the extension period imposed on Regular Army and draftee personnel.

No definite publication date for the pamphlet has been announced.

9th Inf Displays Infantry Power

Portable Stands Carry Guests On Tour of Equipment Displays

In a massive display of the Free World's power for peace, the 2nd Division's 9th Infantry presented a mammoth demonstration of a combat-ready Infantry battle group at Wetherby Field last Friday and Saturday.

This display marked the first time that an Infantry battle group of the 2nd Division has been used in full force for demonstration and display purposes. Colonel Clifford P. Hannum commands the "Manchu" unit.

Guests

Special guests for the affair included Major General Charles H. Chase, commanding general, Brigadier General Royal Reynolds Jr., assistant division commander, and members of the General Staff.

The activities started with the playing of the National Anthem by the 2nd Division Band, followed by recognition of guests. A brief introduction to the display was given by Captain Alan J. Francisco, assistant operations officer and display narrator.

At the conclusion of the introduction, the guests mounted two special portable stands erected by the 9th's engineer platoon to move the visitors through the numerous displays.

First unit to be viewed by the many spectators was the battle group headquarters. Each member of the staff was named and a description of his assigned duties was given.

Next in line was Headquarters Company with Captain John C. Trickey, company commander and headquarters commandant. Headquarters Company has the mission of maintaining a state of operational readiness.

Next unit in line was Combat Support Company, commanded by Captain Franklin M. Nichols. The mission of this unit is to provide ground radar surveillance, reconnaissance, assault weapons and heavy mor-

Division Artillery 'Infantrymen' Cop Major Prize in CG's Matches

Firers from Division Artillery, proving their proficiency with Infantryman's weapons, brought home the bacon last week as DivArty won the Major Command Overall Championship trophy in the Commanding General's Matches.

The trophy was awarded to DivArty for accruing the most points overall in rifle and pistol competition.

Accepting the trophy from Major General Charles H. Chase, division commanding general, was Colonel Frank A. Osmanski, DivArty commander.

Pistol

The 9th Infantry won the Commanding General's Championship Team Match for rifle and automatic rifle firing, while a DivArty pistol team took the top honor in pistol competition.

Members of the Manchu pistol team were Lieutenant Ivan Flowers, Sergeant First Class Albert W. Chapman, Sergeants Konrad P. Masaros, Kurt R. Farnham, Carlos McLaughlin

2nd Div Added to STRAC Forces

The 2nd Infantry Division is one of five divisions added to the Strategic Army Corps (STRAC), according to an announcement from U.S. Continental Army Command Headquarters.

In beefing up STRAC from its previous strength of three divisions, a new corps headquarters was created to exercise tactical control over some of the additional STRAC units.

Gen. Powell

General Herbert B. Powell, USCONARC commander, is charged with training and maintaining the operational readiness of the enlarged STRAC, in addition to his other Continental Army responsibilities.

Being added to the Strategic Army Corps are the 2nd Infantry Division and two other Regular Army Divisions — the 1st Infantry and the 2nd Armored — and two active National Guard divisions, the 49th Armored and 32nd Infantry.

The 49th, 32nd, 4th and 2nd Armored will make up the newly-activated III U. S. Army Corps (STRAC), with headquarters at Fort Hood, Texas. A commander for the new corps has not yet been named.

The 2nd and the 1st Infantry divisions will join the 82nd and the 101st Airborne divisions to comprise the XVIII Airborne Corps (STRAC), commanded by Lieutenant General Hamilton H. Howze.

Flexibility

The two - corps Strategic Army force will permit the Army greater flexibility in dealing with multiple situations in widely-separated areas, the CONARC announcement said. In addition, it continued, this organization provides for two mobile, hard-hitting corps, one essentially airborne and the other stronger in armor.

This marks the first time in history that Army National Guard and Reserve units have been assigned to a Strategic striking force in peacetime, the announcement said.

Sgt. Nelson, 23rd, Repeats As Div 'SOM'

February's Choice Also July 'SOM'

By 23rd Infantry PIO

A 23rd Infantry non-commissioned officer has won the 2nd Division "Soldier-of-the-Month" award for the second time in six months.

Sergeant Wilmer D. Nelson of Company C received word of his victory on Tuesday. Earlier this month he had won the 23rd Infantry SOM contest — for the third time. His first Division SOM honor was awarded in July 1961.

Eight Years

The 25-year-old soldier has been in the Army for the past eight years and with the 2nd Division since May 1960.

A native of Tallassee, Alabama, Sgt. Nelson has seen service in Korea, Hawaii and with the 11th Airborne Division in Germany prior to his arrival at Fort Benning. He is married and resides with his wife in Columbus.

Command Shift Over At QM Co.

Two lieutenant colonels and a major are involved in a change of command at the division's 2nd Quartermaster Company.

With the departure of Lieutenant Colonel James T. Durham, division quartermaster since September 1960, the "Indianhead" division will receive Lieutenant Colonel John V. Stoecker, currently assigned in the Far East.

Until the arrival of Col. Stoecker, Major Harold K. Sharp, formerly 2nd Quartermaster Company executive officer, will fill the position of Division Quartermaster.

Col. Durham has been reassigned to the Far East. He was Division Trains Commander June to September 1960. Col. Stoecker is scheduled to arrive early next month.

2 BGs, Supporting Units Training at Ft McClellan

Two 2nd Division Infantry battle groups and supporting units left Fort Benning this week for seven days of hard training at Fort McClellan, Alabama.

On this, the second maneuver held at the Alabama post by "Indianhead" division units, tactics and subsistance in the field were scheduled to be the key training items.

With the 9th

The division's 9th Infantry, lead by Colonel Clifford P. Hannum, the unit which just recently finished an extensive Expert Infantryman's Badge training program, was accompanied to the post by its supporting units — including the 17th Artillery, Company B of the 2nd Engineer Battalion and support sections of the 702nd Ordnance Battalion, 122nd Signal Battalion, 2nd Aviation Company and 2nd Military Intelligence Detachment.

The newly - designated 1st Battle Group, 38th Infantry, commanded by Colonel Maurice C. Holden, was accompanied by its artillery support—the 37th Artillery and support sections from engineers, ordnance, aviation, signal and military intelligence units.

In every case, maneuvers at Fort McClellan this week utilize only men and equipment of the 2nd Division, as units of the division work toward smooth and tactical functioning with their Infantry division Table of Organization and Equipment.

The maneuvers at Fort McClellan are being conducted and controlled by Brigade Headquarters, under the command of Brigadier General Royal Reynolds, Jr.

Upon arrival at Fort McClellan Tuesday, the units separat-

Lt Col Samson At Division's G-3 Section

Lieutenant Colonel Jack Samson, a former tactics instructor at the Command and Staff Department of the U.S. Army Infantry School at Fort Benning, this week joined the 2nd Division's G-3 section.

Colonel Samson, who taught at The Infantry School June, 1955 to July 1961, recently returned to Fort Benning after receiving a bachelor of general education degree at the University of Omaha, in Omaha, Nebraska.

The First Years

He first joined the Army in 1937, prior to finishing his high school education. His first tour took him to Corregidor, Philippine Islands, with the coast artillery.

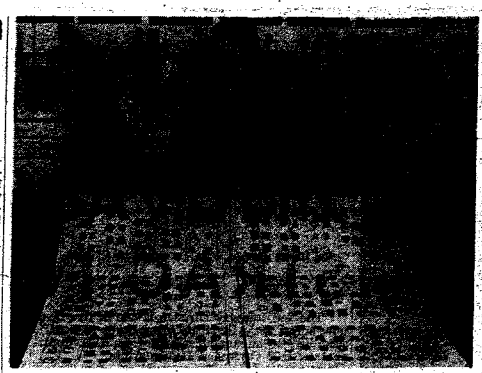
In 1938 he left the Army to finish high school, at Klamath Falls, Oregon. He was inducted into the National Guard in 1940, again with the coast artillery.

In 1942 he attended Officer Candidate School at Fort Benning, receiving his commission in September 1942.

During World War II, Colonel Samson fought with the 10th Mountain Division in northern Italy, participating in the campaigns of the North Apennines and Po Valley.

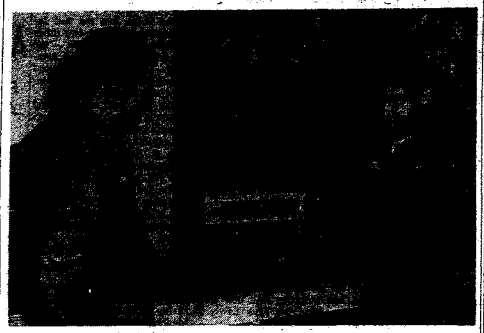
He left the Army again in 1946, attending Southern Oregon College for two years. He then joined a lumber corporation as an accountant.

Recalled in 1950



Colonel Samson was recalled into the Army in 1950, traveling to Japan and later to Korea where he joined the 9th Infantry Regiment of the 2nd Infantry Division.

In April 1952 he traveled to Fort Riley, Kansas, where he became executive officer, then commanding officer of the 2nd Battalion, 87th Infantry Regiment. After attending the advanced Officer's course at Fort Benning's Army Infantry School, he returned to Ft. Riley as executive officer in the 16th Infantry Division's G-3 section.



He served at Fifth U.S. Army Headquarters 1950 - 1955 when he left to attend Command and General Staff College. In 1956, he journeyed to Paris, France, for duty with the Office of the Assistant Chiefs of Staff, J-6.

He remained in Paris three years, returning to Fort Benning once again to The Infantry School.

Colonel Samson, an avid golfer, is married and lives with his wife at 406 First Division Rd., Fort Benning.

New Curator Feels 'At Home' in Museum

A man with a special interest in military history and a hobby to go with it has been chosen curator of the 2nd Infantry Division Museum.

Master Sergeant Harold H. Cochran, of Headquarters Battery, 27th Artillery, has taken over museum duties. His interest in military history is coupled with a hobby — collecting distinctive military insignia, crests and related relics of military significance.

Crest Collection

Sergeant Cochran has been collecting crests for 22 years and has amassed an impressive array of 400. His rare Army mementoes include the original painting of the 8th Coast Artillery coat of arms and a letter from the Chief of Quartermaster authorizing the unit's formation.

His collection also includes the crest of the 182nd Infantry of the Massachusetts National Guard, dating back to 1632.

Three famous names from American history have an unusual relevance to Sergeant Cochran's collection. The new curator possesses crests from Battery D, 5th Artillery, at one time commanded by Alexander Hamilton, and the 176th Infantry, originated in 1652 as a state militia unit and commanded by both George Washington and Patrick Henry.

As curator of the 2nd Division Museum Sergeant Cochran will preside over the division's extensive collection and plans to improve the historical displays and relics now available to members of the division.

17th Artillery NCO Graduates From Academy

By 17th Arty PIO

Recently returned from Fort Jackson, S. C. is Sergeant Sylvester C. Jenkins, 17th Artillery, where he graduated from the Non-Commissioned Officers Academy.

Sergeant Jenkins finished 14th out of 128 who were enrolled in the course. Included in the six-week course of instruction were such subjects as combat tactics, map reading and principles of unit leadership.

The 24-year old Sergeant Jenkins is an artillery gunner in Battery A, 17th Artillery.

Mortar Sqd Ldr Sgt A E Walker 38th S-O-M

By 38th Inf PIO

Sergeant Aubrey E. Walker, a mortar squad leader in the 38th Infantry's Combat Support Company, has been named battle group "Soldier-of-the-Month" for February.

Sgt. Walker, who was 2nd Division "Soldier - of - the-Month" last February, entered the Army in 1953. He took basic training and went to radio code school at Fort Jackson, S. C., before coming to Fort Benning and the 30th Infantry early in 1954.

Later that year Sgt. Walker went to Japan and served with the 1st Cavalry Division until 1956 when he returned to Fort Benning.

He was a member of the 7th Battalion of the 3rd Division and later joined the 10th Division here when it was reorganized into the 2nd Division. After duty with the division military police, he traveled to Alaska, serving as a member of the Ranger Platoon, 1st Battle Group, 9th Infantry.

In April of 1960, Sgt. Walker was again back at Fort Benning with the 2nd Division and the 9th Infantry. In March of 1961 he moved to Kelley Hill as a member of the 11th, now 38th Infantry.

Sgt. Walker attended the 1st Cavalry Division NCO School while in Japan and the Yukon Command NCO Academy while in Alaska.

Lt. Greene Back From Schooling

By 7th Cavalry PIO

Lieutenant John Greene, a member of the 7th Cavalry, recently returned from the aerial observer school conducted by the 2nd Aviation Company.

The school consisted of two phases; ground school and flight school. He has completed the course and has returned to his job as liaison officer.

Lt. Greene was formerly a member of Troop A, where he served as a platoon leader. He has been with the squadron for six months.

WEST POINT OFFICERS' MESS — 19TH CENTURY VERSION

By 23rd Infantry PIO

Graduates of the United States Military Academy assigned to the 23rd Infantry have access to a most interesting publication — a late-19th century photograph album about West Point.

The book is entitled "Views of the U.S.M.A. West Point," and includes the group portraits of the classes of '89, '90, '91 and '92. These pictures alone would make for worthwhile browsing. The young Soldiers are grouped together in a most informal way with some either reclining on or sitting in the laps of comrades, holding hands or striking a Napoleonic pose with a hand thrust into the blouse. Another incongruous aspect of these ancient infantrymen is their extremely youthful appearance.

Cadre

A more dignified, traditional picture shows 19 solemn-faced cadet officers, who formed the student cadre at that time.

Of special interest to the really "old time soldiers" are the photos of cadets in the skirmish line, the horse-mounted light artillery battery and the cavalry drill in line. On the other hand, recent West Point graduates can study pictures entitled "Parade," "Marching to Dinner," and "Barracks Area," finding scenes typical of their not-too-long-departed college days.

There could be no confusing of the West Point faculty during the 1890s with that of 1962. The officer-teachers of that distant period, some 20 strong, are dressed in uniforms immediately identified with Civil War days. All wear the small-billed forage cap, and only one fails to sport a bushy mustache beneath his nose.

To one familiar with the area in which The Point is located, this book offers quite a study in contrasts with what was then and what is now. Such scenes as the view of buildings below Trophy Point, Plains, Professor's Row, Fort Putnam, and Flirtation Walk should compare favorably with their present-day appearances.

The photograph book, now showing the ravages of time, was presented to the 23rd Infantry three years ago by the sister of a former 23rd Infantryofficer. According to a letter placed in the 23rd's historical files, the book was donated by the sister of Colonel Charles B. Hagadorn.

Included in the book is a crumbling, yellowed clipping from the Galveston, Texas Daily News dated Thursday, August 6, 1914, which features a lengthy story about an exhibition staged there by the 2nd Infantry Division. At that time the Indianhead Division was stationed in Texas. Photographs relating to the story reveal then — Major Hagadorn, who managed the exhibition, and Major General J. Franklin Bell, then-commander of the 2nd Division.

Both the West Point photograph book and the newspaper clipping are kept in the 23rd Infantry Trophy Room and can be seen during regular duty hours.

1st Greets New XO

Lieutenant Colonel Ted E. Gordinier recently assumed the duties of executive officer of the 1st Infantry. He succeeds Lieutenant Colonel Charles F. Austin, who is now serving as deputy commander of the "Always First!".

A 1943 graduate of Officers' Candidate School, Fort Benning, he was assigned to the Infantry Training Center, Camp Wolters, Texas. In 1944, Colonel Gordinier joined the 42nd "Rainbow" Infantry Division and served with the division as weapons platoon leader and company commander in the European Theater of Combat. Upon inactivation of the 42nd Infantry Division in June 1945, he was assigned to the Vienna Area Command in Austria, where he remained until July 1947, when he returned to the United States and reverted to reserve status.

A native of Cumberland, Iowa, Colonel Gordinier attended the University of Iowa at Iowa City and graduated with a bachelor of arts degree in 1949. While attending the University of Vermont for post graduate work in 1950, he received orders for active duty and subsequently served with Headquarters United States Corps, Far East Command in Korea.

Colonel Gordinier has received the Silver Star, Bronze Star with two Oak Leaf Clusters, Expert Infantryman's Badge and the Koreao Presidential Citation.

He attended the Advanced Infantry Course at Fort Benning in 1955 and the Command and General Staff College and the Nuclear Weapons Employment Officers' Course at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas in 1958.

Prior to his assignment to the 1st Infantry, he was an Infantry advisor with the Joint United States Military Advisory Group, Thailand. As a field advisor to the 1st Royal Thai Infantry Division, Colonel Gordinier was in direct contact with the Thai troops.

Colonel and Mrs. Gordinier reside at 221 Austin Loop, Fort Benning, Georgia.

Battle Tactics Displayed For 1st by Its Company A

By 1st Inf PIO

A demonstration by Company A of the 1st Infantry has given the men of the "Always First" a new and varied outlook on the tactics of battle.

The scene was an area north of Cusseta. This area was developed by the United States Army Infantry School for training of officer candidates and career course officers.

The problem, under the direction of Captain William R. Colvin, Company A commander, demonstrated an attack of a fortified position including the use of the flame thrower, bangalore torpedoes, satchel charges and smoke grenades. During the hour-long attack by a platoon upon a single bunker a simulated casualty was evacuated by emergency helicopter.

The demonstration was termed successful by members of the battle group. The importance of team work and coordination within a platoon was the main point brought out to the audience.

87th Men Take Time to Study

By 87th Infantry PIO

Men of the 87th Infantry's Company B are finding time to take advantage of the Army's educational opportunities.

Since coming to full strength a year ago, Company B has seen nearly half its enlisted men involved in some form of self - education and improvement.

The largest number — 25 privates — have successfully completed high school equivalent tests offered by the United States Armed Forces Institute. Nearly that many more are studying on their own or have enrolled in correspondence courses. Five are enrolled at the American University, now in its first quarter at Fort Benning.

Lt. Schor Joins 1st Inf. Hq. Co.

By 1st Inf PIO

Succeeding Lieutenant William Hazen as executive officer of Headquarters Company, 1st Infantry is Lieutenant Stephen H. Schor. Lt. Hazen has received orders to report to Special Forces, Ft. Bragg, where he will await further orders to Okinawa.

A native of New York City, Lieutenant Schor received his commission through ROTC in June of 1959 after receiving his bachelor of arts degree in psychology from Ohio State university.

At the 82nd Airborne Division, Ft. Bragg, Lieutenant Schor attended Airborne School with the 503rd Infantry. Upon completion, he served with the 503rd as platoon leader.

After completion of Jungle Warfare, Ranger, and Jump Master Schools, Lieutenant Schor received a brief assignment with the 11th Infantry as platoon leader, prior to reporting to Company C of the "Always First".

9th Inf Unit Beautifies Area

By 9th Infantry PIO

"Conservation of Used Materials" is the theme of Combat Support Company of the 9th Infantry as the Manchu support unit is presently undergoing a project to beautify their company area.

The material used for this project is expended 105 millimeter ammunition containers which were acquired from the Post Salvage Yard. They are being welded into sections which are to be made into railings that will eventually surround all of the barracks in the company area.

The project is under the supervision of Sergeant Lesco G. Loper, first sergeant of Combat Support Company.

At the present there have been approximately 400 containers, of three to four feet in length, used.

Few Men Have Been Able to Flee 1st's Escape and Evasion Course

By 1st Inf PIO

To instill in the Soldier self-reliance and confidence in his ability to survive, escape and evade while behind enemy lines or living through a period of hardship while a prisoner of war is the 1st Infantry's aim in its purposes for the Escape and Evasion Training Course.

A course laid out by the S-3 section and run by each individual company as they participate will see every man of the battle group receive this valuable training. The course covers terrain from the hilly and rough to the level and swampy and is a little over 5,000 meters in length.

Realism

Realism is constantly emphasized by the use of vigorous and well-planned aggressor actions, both in their patrolling and search activities as well as handling of prisoners. The "Recon" platoon of Combat Support Company and the 26th Scout Dog Platoon, with six scout dogs, provide the aggressor harassment. The assault weapons platoon furnishes the guards for the stockade.

The stockade, which was built by the battle group engineer platoon, consists of a barbed wire fence that is surrounded by concertina wire and constantly patrolled by guards. Very few escapes have been made from this well-built structure. After an individual is taken as a prisoner of war he is constantly under enemy pressure and harassment.

The S-2 section has set up a two-room tent where the interrogation of the prisoners is carried on. The prisoner is brought into the tent, here he is faced with blinding lights and an unknown interrogator. He is asked questions and is told statements in an effort to break his resistance. In this phase of the problem the Soldier is familiarized with the leadership and organization required within prisoner of war camps and to resist enemy indoctrination and exploitation.

As the main concept of this training is the act of evasion, the Soldier receives instruction in this phase prior to running the night course.

Every effort is made to conduct training that will cover all or at least most of the incidents that may arise for the Soldier that is behind enemy lines and eluding capture or who is a prisoner of war in planning and executing escape.

Chileans On Tour, Visit Units

Some 20 faculty members and students of the Chile Army War College visited two Second Division units while on tour of the Fort Benning Reservation.

The two division units who presented the visitors with demonstrations were the 23rd Infantry and the 2nd Aviation Company.

Upon their arrival at 23rd Infantry Headquarters, the visitors were greeted by Colonel Louis A. Kunzig, Jr., 23rd Infantry commander. They were then briefed by Captain Frederick F. Woerner, Jr., Company D commander, on the subject of an Infantry tank team problem. Capt. Woerner conducted the briefing in Spanish.

They later visited the vicinity of Krzyzowski Range to witness an armored Infantry team in the attack. The demonstration was conducted by officers and men of the 23rd Infantry.

The second unit visited by the Chile representatives was the division's 2nd Aviation Company. Escorted to Fort Benning's Corcord OP, they were briefed by Captain Everett T. Hamilton, aerial surveillance platoon commander, on the systems and capabilities of the Army's SD-1 Drone. The briefing was followed by a Drone demonstration.

HONOR GRAD . . . PFC Joe C. Celec, 2nd Transportation Detachment, recently graduated first from the 13-week aircraft powertrain repair course at the U. S. Army Transportation School, Fort Eustis, Virginia.

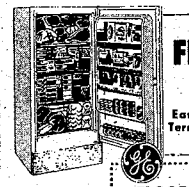
38th's Co. A Earns Commander's Trophy

The 38th Infantry's Company A was presented the Battle Group Commander's Trophy by Colonel Maurice C. Holden in an awards ceremony last week.

The trophy is awarded to the unit with the highest combined score in battle group marksmanship competition.

CG's Matches

Top individual firers and teams in the battle group marksmanship competition and the Commanding General's Matches were also recognized at the awards program.



The battle group rifle team received a trophy for finishing second in competition with units from the entire division and placing all six members on the division team. Lieutenant Roderick C. Martin, team captain, presented the team's trophy to Colonel Holden.

The pistol team was cited for placing fourth in the Commanding General's Matches and placing three of the four team members on the division team.

Eleven men from the 38th received trophies for placing first, second and third in various events in the Commanding General's Matches.

tar support for the battle group.

A rifle company, Company A, commanded by Captain Walter D. Ginger, was next on display. It showed a company headquarters, three rifle platoons and a weapons platoon.

Support Units

Along the edges of Wetherby Field were the support units of the combat - ready Infantry battle group. Shown were artillery ,armor, engineer, signal, aviation, medical, ordnance, quartermaster and transportation displays.

While aircraft of the 2nd Aviation Company flew overhead, Captain Francisco gave his closing statement to the assemblage:

"Today, you have seen one portion of an Infantry display. It is a key element in the national security of the United States which can be transported rapidly to any portion of the world and fight when it gets there. It is capable of fighting war. It is truly a measured response to any aggressor. You have seen the world's finest equipment and the world's finest fighting Soldier — the American Infantryman."

Participating in the massive display were some 1,300 officers and enlisted men, 160 vehicles and numerous weapons.

The object of this demonstration was to furnish the supporting units of the division a more thorough understanding of the strength, organization, weapons, equipment and capabilities of an Infantry battle group.

McClellan

ed into two task forces, becoming immediately operational. During the exercises, units are pitted against one another, alternating as "friendly" or "aggressor" forces. Each participate in both roles.

2 Blank Fire

With the exception of two separate two-day blank - firing problems, most of the exercises at McClellan were to be non-live-fire problems.

Realism with supply, evacuation, prisoner - of - war, and administrative play is the highlight of this maneuver.

With this second McClellan exercise completed early next week, every division unit will have gained the valuable experience of working under highly tactical situations and in unfamiliar terrain.

Nelson

winning the Division "Soldier-of-the-Month" title, Sgt. Nelson will receive a $50 savings bond from the 23rd Infantry's "We Serve" chapter of the Division Association, a three-day pass and a letter of commendation from the battle group commander, Colonel Louis A. Kunzig Jr.

The 2nd Division "Soldier-of-the - Month" Selection Board was comprised of senior noncommissioned officers representing all major units of the 2nd Division Infantry. Principal factors considered by the board in selecting the top Infantry soldier for February were knowledge of the job, general military knowledge and appearance.

Navigation Principles Taught at AO School

By W. B. Willard

Of the many schools on military topics to be found on Main Post, one that may be unfamiliar to most people is the Aerial Observer's School.

Currently in progress at Lawson Field, the course is designed primarily for mortar and artillery forward observers. Attending this class from the 23rd Infantry are Lieutenants Billy J. Cone and Lawrence W. Drinkard of Combat Support Company.

In the classroom phase the student is introduced to a variety of subjects, including map reading, aerial photography, calling and adjusting artillery and mortar fire, principles of air observation, radio-telephone procedure, and the planning and execution of an actual flight.

The flying phase emphasizes practical work in adjusting mortar and artillery fire and flying observation - reconnaissance missions, both in daylight hours and at night.

The one-and-a-half week long course is sponsored by the 2nd Aviation Company and includes intensive classroom work as well as 22 hours of actual flying time. Essentially, the student learns the basic principles of navigation as applied to the adjusting of artillery and mortar fire by air-to-ground radiotelephone. The student also learns how to land his airplane in case of an emergency.

After completing the Quartermaster Officers' Orientation Course at Fort Lee, Virginia, in 1960, Lt. Malo attended the Airborne School at Fort Benning and then returned to Fort Lee to complete the Parachute Rigger. School.

Lt. Malo joined the 11th Infantry Officers' Orientation Course at the U. S. Army Infantry Center, Fort Benning, where he served as student company commander.

Streamers

In the war of 1812, the 1st Infantry added six campaign streamers to its organizational standard and participated in the battle of New Orleans under the command of General Andrew Jackson. Many Indian campaigns followed, including the Black Hawk War of 1832 and the Seminole War of 1837. These wars and the many battles that were won earned the 1st the title "Guardian of the Frontier." (Not to be confused with the present motto, "Always First.")

Well-Rounded 9th Inf. Sergeant Is Avid Wrestler, Judo-Exponent

By 9th Infantry PIO

A veteran of 15 years' active duty, a merchant seaman at 13, professional wrestler at 21 and judo expert at 23 are a few of the high lights in the well-rounded life of Sergeant Henry C. Goodman of Company C, 9th Infantry.

At the age of 13, Sergeant Goodman's life-long ambition was to sail the high seas. However, he was not to realize this dream for two more years. The Merchant Marines felt that 13 was too young to leave home.

Orient

At 15, Sergeant Goodman made his first trip to the Orient, where he stayed for six years working from one ship to another.

At the age of 21, while in Japan, Sergeant Goodman decided that he would like to learn judo. He then entered a Japanese training school, where he received his white belt. This is the first step in the ladder of degrees in judo.

"IBU," as the sergeant is known in the wrestling circles, started his professional wrestling career in 1942, a career which lasted until his reserve unit in the U. S. Marines was activated in May of 1945 for action in the Pacific Theater.

During this action Sergeant Goodman served with the 5th Amphibious Force in the Marshall Islands and other sectors of the Pacific.

Sergeant Goodman was released from the Marines on November 22, 1946, only to enlist in the Navy four days later. He served in the Navy until 1950. During this tour of duty, Sergeant Goodman continued his career in judo by attending Kieyo University in Tokyo, Japan, on off-duty hours. He acquired his first degree in the "black belt."

After his discharge from the Navy in January of 1950, the sergeant entered the Army and was assigned to Fort Knox, Kentucky, for Basic Training. Upon completion of BCT, he was sent to Fort Bragg, North Carolina, for Airborne training.

In 1952, Sergeant Goodman earned his second degree in the "black belt" in a match against Johnny Keomoko, brother of the well - known wrestler, Duke Keomoko.

Korea

At the outbreak of the Korean Conflict, Sergeant Goodman was assigned to the 187th Regimental Combat Team, 82nd Airborne Division. Sergeant Goodman then served with the Airborne until 1960, when he was transferred to the 9th Infantry.

While on leave from the 9th Infantry in 1961, the Manchu sergeant made appearances in the Chicago Arena against Prince Emiel Bydo, in the Milwaukee Arena against Haystack Calhoen and in Yankee Stadium.

The surprising thing about Sergeant Goodman is that he is only five-feet three-inches tall. But in that small frame is a bruising 210 pounds.

Cavalry Sends 8 to Little Creek

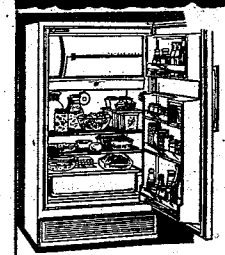
By 7th Cavalry PIO

Five enlisted men and three officers have recently departed from the 7th Cavalry for the amphibious training conducted at Little Creek, Virginia.

The men from Troop A are Lieutenant James B. Maharrey and Sergeant Robert Pate; from Troop B Lieutenant Karl Sydor, Staff Sergeant Henry Baxter, and Sergeant Gerald Russel; from Troop C Lieutenant Jack Thomas, Sergeant First Class Rodolfo Rios, and Sergeant Hammond D. Watkins.

The amphibious training will last for two weeks, and at that time the men will return to assume their normal duties. The training consists of many phases of amphibious operations.

Four Upped at Cav



The 7th Cavalry recently promoted four men to the rank of staff sergeant.

They are Staff Sergeants Carlos Garcia and Charles Ritter, Troop A; William Parkin and L. J. Barksdale, Troop C.

17th Arty Is Cited For Tests

In ceremonies held at Theater Six, Colonel Frank A. Osmanski, 2nd Division Artillery commander, presented a trophy to the 17th Artillery for attaining the highest score on the battalion army training test.

The battalion distinguished itself and earned the honor when it obtained the highest test score of any battalion in the Division Artillery. In less than 14 weeks the 17th Artillery, commanded by Lieutenant Colonel Francis P. Sheridan, progressed from an understrength training unit to a highly-effective combat unit as indicated by the test score.

The success of the battalion, according to Captain Marion R. Carigan, who supervises battalion operations, can be attributed to outstanding individual efforts and the close teamwork of the various sections.

At the same ceremony the 17th Artillery received the Division Artillery championship basketball trophy. Most of the boopsters who made up the 17th Artillery's basketball team are now a part of the Division Artillery team.

Capt. Hansmann, Sgt. Bailey Join G-4

An officer and a non-commissioned officer from 2nd Division subordinate units have reported for duty with the office of the Assistant Chief of Staff, G-4.

Captain Leonard J. Hansmann, formerly of Headquarters Battery, 15th Artillery, has become the report of survey officer with duty with G-4. Also assigned to the G-4 section is Sergeant First Class Thomas D. Bailey, former chief supply NCO with the 23rd Infantry's S-4 section.

Joined in 1943

Capt. Hansmann originally joined the U. S. Army in May 1943, serving with the 280th Field Artillery Battalion in Northern Germany during World War II. He re-entered the Army in 1950 to attend Officer Candidate School, receiving his commission at Fort Riley, Kansas, in March 1951.

He attended the basic artillery officers' course at Fort Sill, Okla., and in 1959, returned to Fort Sill for the advanced artillery officers' course.

He has served in Korea with the 24th Infantry Division, at Fort Lewis, Washington, with the 720th Field Artillery Battalion and the 2nd Infantry Division, from 1954 to 1956 when it went to Fairbanks, Alaska, under operation "Gyroscope."

He remained in Alaska during 1957-1959 as Post Supply Officer with Headquarters of the Yukon command.

He joined the 2nd Division's 15th Artillery in September 1961.

New G-4 Sergeant

Sergeant Bailey, the G-4 section's new operations sergeant entered the Army in 1948 at Fort Ord, California. His first assignment following basic training was at Fort Lee, Va., as a Quartermaster Research and Development test observer. This assignment took him to Panama in 1950.

Sergeant Bailey has served with quartermaster depots in Korea and Japan during 1951-54. Following overseas duty he served with the 30th Tank Battalion at Fort Knox, Ky., and the 3rd Division's 2nd Reconnaissance Squadron, 7th Cavalry when it went to Germany under operation "Gyroscope."

Sergeant Bailey joined the 2nd Division's 23rd Infantry in 1960. He was promoted to the rank of Sergeant First Class (E-7) in June 1961.

Sgt. Campbell, 38th Veteran 'Re-Ups' for Six

By 11th Inf PIO

A 38th Infantry sergeant, veteran of both World War II and the Korean Conflict, recently reenlisted for six more years in the Army.

He is Sergeant Carl W. Campbell, a weapons squad leader with Company B of the 38th.

Stateside and Overseas

Sergeant Campbell entered the service in 1940 with the 10th Regiment of the 5th Division, staying with the division through its "state-side" and overseas training and the invasion of the European mainland in 1944. After fighting at Metz and Bastogne and eventually ending up in Czechoslovakia, he returned to the states and was discharged in July 1945.

When the Korean Conflict broke out, Sergeant Campbell reenlisted and served with the 32nd Regiment of the 7th Division during late 1951 and 1952. Since then he has been stationed at the Aberdeen Proving Grounds in Maryland, Redstone Arsenal in Alabama, Fort Carson, Colorado, Germany, again Korea, and at Fort Benning.

He joined the 11th Infantry on December 4.

Lightning Kills 600, Injures 1,500 Causes $100 Million in Damages

By David M. Winkler

All of us have experienced rain storms where great bolts of lightning lit up the sky as it streaked across. Many of us are fascinated by an electrical storm, others a little frightened by it. We all know it is caused by electric energy and is a great source of power. But, how many of us really know what lightning is, how it is made up and what it can do?

For example, did you know that in the U. S. alone it annually kills some 600 persons, injures about 1,500 others and causes more than $100 million property damage?

Series

Although appearing to be singular, the lightning stroke is usually a series of discharges, one following the other like bullets. The average lightning bolt is composed of 20 such separate discharges, all delivered at the target in a fraction of a second. Traveling at incredible speed, the bolts intensely heat and fire the air. The flash of light called lightning is actually the path of burning air through which the lightning bolt has passed. Due to its tremendous heat as it passes through the atmosphere it ionizes and explodes air molecules with the accompanying clap that we know as thunder.

Although a great deal is known about lightning today, little was known about it before 1752. In that year Benjamin Franklin stood in a thunder-storm and flew a kite with a metal door key attached to the string. The key became charged and produced a static spark, and lightning was identified as electricity. Franklin developed lightning rods and installations were made in Philadelphia, thus making them the first electrical appliance ever developed. For the next 170 years little improvement was made in this field due to the lack of adequate scientific apparatus.

Lightning strikes have a time duration of around 100 to 200 microseconds (a microsecond is a millionth of a second), and until fairly recently there was no apparatus capable of measuring lightning's properties. Not until the 1920s were there any real gains made in lightning research. In this year highly scientific instruments and high - speed cameras brought out facts and accurate statistics.

Lightning is a gigantic electric spark. It is the surge of electrical charges rushing to meet their opposites. This interchange may be from cloud to cloud or from cloud to earth. When air condenses to raindrops, water turns to ice crystals inside violent air currents, and there is a resulting separation of electrical charges. Usually, negative charges accumulate in the lower part of the cloud, while positive charges build up in the earth and in the upper part of the cloud. When the attraction between these opposite charges becomes strong enough they leap across the gap of nonconducting air between and lightning results.

Lightning contains hundreds of thousands of volts but as you may know volts alone do not determine power. At Sing Sing Prison, only 2,400 volts are used in the death chamber, and this is more than enough to be lethal. What makes the difference? Amperage. In the case of lightning, there is a huge buildup of positive charges, from a large area of land. There is equally huge accumulation of negative charges, from a big cloud mass. Amperage is tremendous — from 1,000 to 340,000 amperes. Compare this amperage and voltage with the 120 volts and less than one ampere required to light a 100-watt bulb.

Dimensions

Lightning has obviously never been measured to exactness, but its approximate dimensions are known. The core of pure electrical energy in an average bolt is about ½ inch to ¾ inch thick. It is surrounded by a 4-inch thick channel of terrifically - heated air. The length of the stroke may be from 2,000 to 15,000 feet or more, with an average stroke about 4,000 feet. All lightning strokes are actually multiple. There may be up to 40 strokes in quick succession, spaced up to half a second apart.

You can't move away from lightning, at least within the limits of the United States. All states have electrical storms, some more often, some more severe than others. The average number for any given area is about 40 storms yearly. There are from 40 to 80 lightning strikes per year within this country. Generally, a tall object is more likely to be hit than a low one. The Empire State Building, world's tallest, has been hit as often as 48 times in a year. On one occasion five immense lightning bolts struck the Washington Monument in Washington, D. C.

Isolation is another factor. A home in the country, because it may be quite exposed, is more likely to be hit than a house closely surrounded by taller structures because of a "cone of protection" offered by the higher object in the area. This cone theory holds that an object will shield an area within a radius of one to two times the height of the object. However, lightning has been known to dip down between higher structures, leaving its damaging effects on some smaller building. Even the Empire State Building has been struck down along the side.

Lightning has struck fear in men since time began. While lightning is now understood to a great degree, there is still no known method for preventing it. However, we've learned how to protect our homes, families and possessions from it.

PFC Harrison 'S-O-M' at 17th

By 17th Arty PIO

Private First Class Howard M. Harrison of Battery B was selected as 17th Artillery's "Battalion Soldier - of - the-Month." The selection was made by a board composed of he three battery first sergeants and the battalion sergeant major.

Private First Class Harrison was one of three finalists who appeared before the board. His selection was based on his knowledge of current events, knowledge of general military subjects, knowledge of his job and outstanding military bearing.

The Basic Combat Training program which Private First Class Harrison completed in July was administered by the 2nd Engineer Battalion. He is now an artillery machanic in his unit.

Div. Hq. Gathers At Dinner-Dance

Amid a decor of hearts and flowers, 2nd Division Headquarters personnel enjoyed a gala formal dinner-dance recently at the Custer Terrace Officers' Club.

The dinner-dance was sponsored by the G-3 staff section.

Heading the list of those attending were Major General Charles H. Chase, the division commanding general; Brigadier General and Mrs. Royal Reynolds Jr.; Colonel Gustav M. Bacharach and Mrs. Bacharach. Other guests included members of general and special staff sections.

Activities included the introduction of newly arrived personnel, good-byes to those departing for new assignments, a welcome to newlyweds and presenting of silver baby cups to parents of new-born babies.

Entertainment included a balloon dance, a balancing tennis ball dance and a local version of the TV game, "Password."

Prizes of red heart - covered dishes were given to Mrs. Reynolds, who, with Colonel John Arthur, won the tennis ball dance, to Mrs. Stephen Carrig, who won the balloon dance with her husband, and to Mesdames Gustav Bacharach and John Arthur, who participated in the Password game with Colonel Robert Connor and Colonel John Arthur.

NCO Wives' Ward Party Held at MAH

A ward party sponsored by the Ladies of the Big Indianhead was held on Valentine's Day for patients at Martin Army Hospital.

The party was under the supervision of the American Red Cross.

During the course of the afternoon, bingo was played and gifts were distributed to the following winners: Sergeant First Class Elmer Schilling, Sergeant Richard L. Bowman, Specialist Five Francisco E. Sanchez, Specialist Four Robert H. Bruehl, Specialist Four Harry Green and Private First Class Edward L. Davis.

Following bingo, punch and cake were served to the patients. The cakes were made by members of the club.

Assisting Mrs. Lawrence W. Smith, chairman of the Hospital Welfare Committee, were Mrs. Joseph F. Browning, Mrs. Kenneth Hangartner and Mrs. Kenneth O'Connor.

Kilgariff Adieu Held by Artillery

Officers and ladies of the 15th Artillery attended a farewell party Friday evening in honor of Captain Andrew J. Kilgariff, who is retiring this month.

The party was held at the Lawson Field Officers' Club.

38th Inf Ladies Meet For Coffee

Mrs. Maurice C. Holden, wife of the new commander of the 38th Infantry, was guest of honor at a coffee given by Mmes. Cecil M. Sanders and James R. Sessions for the battle group officers' wives.

The event was held at the quarters of Lieutenant Colonel and Mrs. Sanders, 100 Eames Avenue.

After being welcomed by the ladies, Mrs. Holden gave a short talk.

She was presented with a corsage of pink and rose camelias, which were also featured in the decorations. The flowers were floating in white ceramic bowls, surrounded by matching ceramic doves and flanked by pink tapers. The entire arrangement rested on a mirror in the center of the refreshment table at which Mrs. Dudley T. Bunn poured.

Also welcomed were Mrs. Edward F. Carroll, Mrs. William W. Bresback, Mrs. Philip G. Strange and Mrs. Daryl F. Brost.

The wives decided to organize a bridge and canasta group, which will meet after the monthly coffees. Mrs. Frederick A. Rall took charge of the project and will be assisted by Mrs. Weldon E. White.

'9th' Ladies Set a Party March 10th

While the officers of the 9th Infantry were preparing for their trip to Fort McClellan, their wives were hard at work planning a battle group party which is now definitely scheduled for March 10, at the U.S. Army Infantry Center Recreation Area.

Mrs. George E. Armstrong held a coffee recently at her home at which time plans for the party were made and committee chairmen were appointed. The wealth of ideas brought forth at this meeting built hopes that the evening would be long remembered for its gaiety. Officially dubbed a "Hobo Party", all attending should be dressed in appropriate "hobo" costume.

The committee chairmen are Mrs. Allen J. Francisco, reservations and food; Mrs. Grady F. Webster, arrangements; Mrs. Walter D. Ginger and Mrs. Herman L. Goldman, decorations; Mrs. Shane N. Soldato and Mrs. Frank G. Whiteley, entertainment; Mrs. Sam S. Younger, Jr., music; Mrs. Grady F. Webster and Mrs. Frank G. Whiteley, publicity.

122nd Signal Battalion Wives Meet for Coffee in Normandy

The Normandy Lounge at the Main Officers' Open Mess was the scene recently of the 122nd Signal Battalion Ladies' monthly coffee.

Mrs. Francis V. Kowalski and Mrs. Emmett Johnson were hostesses.

Red carnations and white mums and glads were arranged on the serving table where Mrs. Joseph T. Ely poured.

Mrs. Herbert Coburn won the flowers later in a drawing for the doorprize.

New officers were appointed after a social hour. They included Mrs. Fred Koerber, president; Mrs. Charles Burns, secretary; Mrs. Charles Nietman, treasurer; Mrs. Louis Berra, publicity; Mrs. Charles Lowther, Thrift Shop, and Mrs. Theodore Whipple, program chairman.

Goodbyes were said to Mrs. Emmett Johnson.

23rd Inf Ladies Meet at Library

The ladies of the 23rd Infantry gathered at Sand Hill's Library Two recently for their monthly coffee.

Hostesses were the wives of Company A and B. Mrs. Israel Nezvesky and Mrs. Manfred Kelman poured.

"Our Heritage" was the theme carried out in the decorations. A grouping of silhouettes of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln flanked by miniature U. S. flags formed the centerpiece on a red cloth.

All the ladies present brought recipes to contribute to the 23rd Infantry cookbook. The ladies of the two other battle groups, one in Alaska and one in Texas, will be contacted to participate in making the cookbook complete.

Later, the wives of company commanders and staff heads planned to meet at the home of Mrs. Richard A. Perkins to file and organize the recipes received.

It was announced that Mrs. Louis A. Kunzig Jr., will represent the 23rd Infantry in the March fashion show of the 2nd Division Officers' Wives Club.

Attending their first coffee were Mrs. Manfred Kelman, Mrs. Benjamin F. Hodges Jr., Mrs. Henry B. Gillespie Jr. and Mrs. Gerald E. Griggs.

Farewells were said to Mrs. Maurice V. VanMeter, Mrs. Frederick F. Woerner Jr., Mrs. John D. Crowley and Mrs. Alan H. Wilde.

The next coffee will be held at the Austin Loop home of Mrs. John V. Swango on Tuesday, March 20, at 10 a.m.

Bridge

This Got Out of Hand

BY JENNI JOHNSON

Ladies of the 87th Infantry gathered for an afternoon of bridge at the home of Mrs. James Gritz and the somewhat unusual hand below was dealt and played.

The evaluator of the hand is Mrs. Jessie Chikalla who found her love for bridge at Ft. Benning in 1955. Since then she has become a national master with over 50 master points and has her teaching certificate. She taught bridge at Ft. Campbell and in Germany. Ft. Benning is fortunate to have her back once more to compete in our bridge tournaments.

The contract is for 5 hearts, vulnerable, and goes down two. What is wrong? Look at the unusual distribution and the bidding.

The bidding is a bit unusual too, and obviously got out of hand. South has a 4,4,4,1 distribution worth 20 points or more. It would be normal for south to open with 1 spade. In this case however, it is sound strategy to open with a minor suit to afford partner to respond at the level of one since she probably hasn't a good hand. North responds 1 heart.

Shows Points

Now south bids 2 diamonds reversing the bidding showing at least 15 points. North repeats hearts, 2 hearts signing off and showing no support for either clubs or diamonds. Now South bids 2 spades telling partner the 4,4,4,1 distribution and emphasizing the desire to reach a game. North knows South's hand must be 19 points or more and she has 7 support points.

In response to south's 2 spades she can bid 3 spades giving south the opportunity to bid no trump. South bids 3 no-trump now with partner's support in spades. The bidding went wrong when south jumped to 3 spades over north's 2 hearts, and of course north's hand is not strong enough to permit her to bid hearts three times especially when south bids spades for which north has some support. The correct contract then is 3 no-trump by south.

The opening lead by west should be the 3 of spades, or the top of nothing, to try to set something up defensively since she can't afford to unblock her hand.

South needs to locate the ace of hearts. The proper finesse sets up the 9th trick in hearts. If there is an even number of cards out in a suit they will normally split unevenly or 4-2. The card she is looking for is usually with the greater number. South leads the 6 of hearts at her first opportunity, west plays low, she plays dummy's jack and east goes up with the ace. The hearts set up and she has a spade entry to the board to run them. The spade support meant a lot, a rubber to be exact.

High for the bridge party went to Mrs. Richard Sharp and second high to Mrs. James Gritz.

13th Transportation's Trucks Perform Many Tasks

By 13th Trans PIO

"Crank 'em up, roll 'em out!" No, you're not listening to the TV program "Rawhide," but this is what one would hear if standing in the motor pool of Company A, 13th Transportation Battalion.

This company has the mission of providing transportation for the tactical and logistical movement of personnel and cargo of the 2nd Infantry Division. Since May 1961, Company A vehicles have traveled 375,067 accident-free miles, and have accrued in 1961 over a half-million miles.

Trip Ticket?

The time was 2400 hours. The phone started ringing; it was Company A's mess sergeant asking for his trip ticket so that he could load his vehicles for movement out. While the division slept, Company A was preparing itself for a long strenuous day.

Its mission today was to support the division in a field training exercise. At 2:45 a.m., the company had become a beehive of activity. Men were dressing, eating breakfast, securing their weapons from supply and moving their baggage to the motor pool under the leadership of platoon leaders. At 4 a.m., the drivers began lining up their vehicles, forming the convoys. Then each driver proceeded to perform the first echelon maintenance on his vehicle. At 4:30 a.m., the convoys started moving out of the motor pool in platoon formation with the first and fourth platoons going to Kelley Hill to support the 87th Infantry. Fifteen minutes later, one squad of the third platoon, with the additional support from the 668th Truck Company left the motor pool to rendezvous with the 23rd Infantry. The last of Company A's trucks were used to support Division Trains.

Company A in its endeavor to support the three battle groups used 77 two-and-a-half ton trucks, 60 one-and-a-half ton trailers, five one-quarter ton trucks with trailers, and one wrecker.

The next morning, Company A discovered that several of its vehicles were "bogged down" in the mud. This gave the majority of the men the opportunity to use the training they had previously received in classes on vehicle recovery. But after a bull-dozer got stuck in the mud while attempting to rescue a truck from the same peril it was decided that Company A would move to higher ground.

Company A moved the battle groups three times during the field problem. Trucks were also dispatched during the maneuver to carry rations, transport troops to the shower points and move casualties from simulated nuclear attack areas. Whenever there was any free time in the company bivouac area "motor stables" were organized and first and second echelon maintenance performed. After the field problem was terminated, and many of the units were relaxing, Company A still was faced with the task of returning the elements of the "Second to None" back to Fort Benning.

This mission was completed on schedule and the last vehicles arrived at Fort Benning at 5:22 p.m. Lieutenant Colonel Clarence Collins, the then commander, greeted the men upon their return to the 13th Transportation motor pool. Then, once again, the hoods of the trucks went up and the drivers started performing after-operation maintenance to ready the trucks for "Whenever Needed."

New S-1 Welcomed At 38th

By 38th Inf PIO

Major Edward F. Carroll has assumed the duties of S-1 at the 1st Battle Group, 38th Infantry, succeeding Major Walter P. Blanton who has left the battle group prior to overseas assignment.

Major Carroll has come to the 38th Infantry after attending the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, and, more recently, the University of Omaha in Nebraska.

Enlisted Man

A veteran of both World War II and the Korean conflict, Major Carroll entered the Army in November of 1942 as an enlisted man and received a battlefield commission in March of 1945 while serving with the 103rd Infantry Division in Europe.

He participated in the Rhineland, Central Europe and Ardennes campaigns.

From 1945 to early 1948, Major Carroll held a number of quartermaster assignments in Europe before returning to the States. He then became a recruiting officer in New York, staying there until 1950 when he joined the 5th Cavalry Regiment in Korea.

During the Korean conflict he served in six campaigns and held positions of platoon leader, assistant S-3 and company commander with the regiment.

In February of 1952 he returned to the United States to attend the Field Officers Refresher Course at Fort Benning, then became an advisor to New York National Guard units until 1955. He then served as division recruiting officer and chief of military personnel procurement with the 25th Division in Hawaii.

In May of 1959 he went to the 1st Training Regiment at Fort Dix, New Jersey, holding positions as battalion executive officer and commanding officer before attending the Command and General Staff College.

The new 38th S-1 has been awarded the Silver Star, Bronze Star with four Oak Leaf Clusters, Purple Heart with two Oak Leaf Clusters and the Combat Infantryman's Badge with Star among other decorations.

Arms Room Gets A Face-Lifting At 38th's Co. B

By 38th Inf PIO

Company B of the 38th Infantry has given its arms room a face-lifting and the result has been more efficient storage, easier access and more security for weapons.

The "new" arms room was opened officially by the commanding officer of the battle group.

Wall racks have been installed to store the company's weapons, including pistols, 3.5 inch rocket launchers, 30-caliber machine guns, automatic rifles and M-1 rifles. By replacing the floor racks previously used with wall racks, the usable floor space of the arms room was doubled.

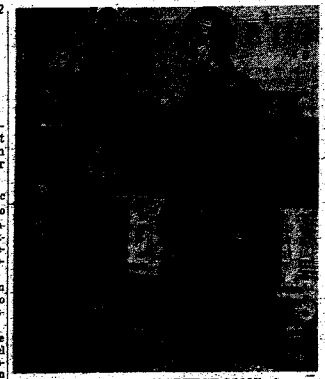
Early Out Spoiled By Phone Bugaboo

BY 23RD INFANTRY PIO

Had the Army been searching for Fort Benning's "Most Happy Fella" one day last week, it could have chosen Specialist Four Gerald Swinton of the 23rd Infantry and come close to hitting their mark. . . for a while, that is.

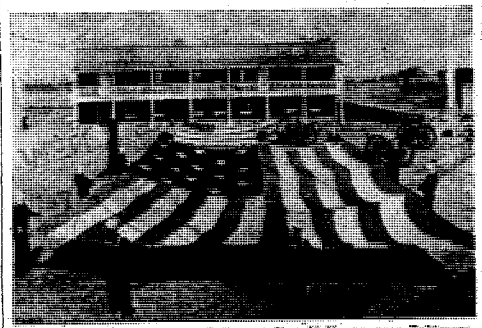


While on a command post exercise in the field with members of the 23rd's intelligence and training sections, Swinton received a telephone call from garrison saying he was to begin immediately his "processing out" of the Army. A draftsman at the Fischer Body Plant in Detroit prior to his induction two years ago, Swinton began anticipating getting back to his old job again two weeks earlier than he had planned.

Now, Swinton's estimated time of separation was some four weeks away, and this unexpected early release was indeed pleasant music to his ears. It sounded good to several other 23rd soldiers who also were slated for release about the same time as Swinton, for they figured they would be getting a similar notice.

Swinton began near-frantic preparations to get back to garrison, over to the personnel section and to other checkout points one must visit before final "processing out" procedures can begin.

Then, the axe fell. Swinton received another phone call to forget the whole thing. A mistake, they said.



Seems that a poor telephone connection between personnel section and Headquarters Company orderly room resulted in the name Winston being misinterpreted as Swinton.

HISTORIC OLD GLORY . . . Sailors at Fort McHenry, near Baltimore, hold a copy of the flag's original battle flag which, during the War of 1812, inspired Francis Scott Key to write the "Star Spangled Banner." The 42x30 foot flag dwarfs the regular garrison flag in the background. Weighing 30 pounds, it cannot be flown in winds stronger than 30 mph for fear it would tear itself to pieces or snap its fastenings. The banner is raised only on special occasions.

Silver Bars to 3 At 17th Artillery

Three first lieutenants at 17th Artillery were promoted to their present rank recently.

They are Lieutenants David C. Smith, Lloyd D. Werner and Joseph D. Dulaney.

The three officers entered active duty in August 1960, attending the Field Artillery Officer Orientation Course at Fort Sill.

Maj. Armstrong At U. of Omaha

Major George E. Armstrong, 9th Infantry executive officer, left recently for six - months' temporary duty at the University of Omaha.

He will undergo studies towards his bachelor of science degree as part of the Army's "Operation Bootstrap," a program which sends qualified officers to college while on active duty.

Major Armstrong has served as 9th executive officer since his arrival at the battle group in January 1961.

Meuse-Argonne

The 11th Infantry's designation of November 5 as organization day dates back to World War I when the regiment on November 5, 1918 — in the second phase of the Meuse-Argonne offensive — forced a crossing of the Meuse River near Dun under intensive artillery and machinegun fire, gaining a bridgehead on the other side and starting the Germans into retreat.

87th 'Man' No Dummy At Dressing Properly

By 87th Inf PIO

The best-equipped and most correctly-dressed soldier in the division doesn't have a service number. Yet this ideal Soldier pulls strenuous duty — a 24-hour vigil in the supply room of Company B, 87th Infantry.

His job: to dramatize the cost of the individual soldier's TA-21 (field) equipment.

No Hardship

Actually, his round-the-clock duty is no hardship for him. He is a mannequin, the idea of Sergeant First Class William L. Miller, Bravo supply sergeant.

The idea was born soon after Sergeant Miller's first display, bearing equipment and price tags, suffered an apathetic "Gosh," "The men would come right past the board and ask how much a sleeping bag cost," he said.

When someone suggested he needed a display like one in a department store, it took just one phone call to secure the mannequin.

This "perfect" soldier sports a complete uniform from OG's (woolens) and field pants to his belt and pack with all of his combat equipment intact, including a sleeping bag properly rolled on his back. His rubber boots, like the rest of his equipment, are clean and serviceable and correctly assembled.

Total cost of his gear is close to $125. Around him are other items of equipment totaling another $25.

Sergeant Miller's life - like display is intended to do more than call attention to itself. Above it is a sign that reads, "In combat these items are priceless."

Trains Hands DivArty 2nd Loss

FROM UNIT PIOs

Division Trains handed a favored Division Artillery basketball team their second defeat of the season Monday night by a score of 93-70.

Sparking the Trains team to victory was Belvain Carrington who dumped in 29 points and Walter Clark who poured in 23. Hubert Barksdale, a traditional DivArty high scorer, posted 26 during the evening.

Another fine performance for Trains was turned in by player-coach Roscoe Lacy who scooped up most of the rebounds, both offensively and defensively.

Leaving the court with a half time score of 48-24, Trains came back to maintain a 30-point lead until the closing minutes of the contest.

The sharpshooting of Carrington was too much for DivArty and an attempt to doubleman him failed.

A counterattack by Clark, with fast maneuvering and accurate jump shots took the spotlight momentarily from Carrington causing the DivArty defense quite a problem.

During the closing minutes of the game DivArty showed signs of rallying only to be stopped by Trains defensive tactics.

1st Inf	78
38th Inf	74

In hardwood action Monday evening at Kelley Hill gym the 1st Infantry pinned an overtime loss on the 38th Infantry by a score of 78-74.

Playing a slow deliberate offense, the 1st moved to a 25-12 lead with less than eight minutes of play left in the first half. At the close of the half the "Always First" were in command with the score at 38-30.

With less than two minutes of play ticked off the clock in the second half an inspired 38th had closed the gap to five points and with seven minutes to play the score was tied at 57 all. The 38th Infantry held a 69-67 lead with only four seconds of regulation play left and Harry Fitzpatrick was fouled on a shot attempt. Fitzpatrick stepped to the line and dumped both shots and score ended in a tie at 69-69.

In the five minutes of overtime the First Infantry, behind the ball handling of Jim Chandler and Bethel Edwards, pulled a 77-72 lead with a minute to play. As the final seconds went by the "Always First" squad put a "freeze" on the ball and led 78-74 at the final buzzer.

Higher scorer of the evening was the 38th Infantry's Robert Marshall with 27 points. Robert Dickerson dumped in 25 points for the winners.

87th Inf	81
69th Armor	55

The 87th Infantry Conquerors gained undisputed possession of first place in the division basketball tournament last Monday night at the Briant Wells Field House.

Sweeping past 69th Armor, 81-55, the big break for the 87th occurred in the second game as DivArty was upset by Div Trains.

Coming with only six players, Separate Battalions looked as though they were going to give 87th some trouble, playing a deliberate brand of ball.

Lawery Jordan stole most of the thunder from that point on. Playing only three quarters of the game he scored 22 points making him the 87th's second leading scorer. Foul shooting hurt the 69th, hitting only 10 out of 22. Kenneth Dean was high for the 69th with 16 points.

23rd Inf	57
9th Inf	54

The 23rd Infantry dealt another loss to the 9th Infantry Manchus Monday night, 57-54.

Robert Steed paced the 23rd's quintet as he dropped points.

High man for the 9th Infantry squad was Orlando Covington with 17 points.

Tall 87th Stops 38th Men, 67-52

The 87th Infantry, sporting a big height advantage, defeated a much improved 38th Infantry team last Friday night at Kelley Hill, boosting their season's record to 11-1.

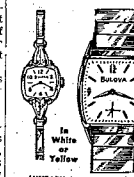
Although the final score was 67-52 the game was by no means a rout. The entire game was marked by very rough play and erratic shooting.

Frank Byrd opened the scoring and for a change the 87th got off to a quick 11-2 lead. Good hustling by Ronald Pinner kept the 38th within a reasonable 10 point deficit throughout most of the first half. Whenever they threatened to close the gap, the 87th's George Krajack and Lowery Jordan maintained the lead. Pinner's 12 points was high as the half ended 34-25.

The 38th threatened again the second half with Robert Marshall doing most of the damage, but Jordan, playing his best game of the season was too much for the 38th to handle.

Jordan and Pinner shared scoring honors with 22 points and Krajack hit 18.

In other games played last week, Division Trains defeated the 9th Infantry, 55-50.



Ben Nordell led the Manchus with 18 points while Walter Clark paced Trains with 16 markers.

The 1st Infantry downed the 23rd Infantry, 85-56, as Robert Dickerson scored 23 points for the Always First team. Linzy Clark posted 20 for the 23rd Infantry.

Division Artillery downed the 69th Armor, the team representing Separate Battalions, by a score of 92-68. Robert Tabor took scoring honors for DivArty with 23 points while Indultis Brickmanis posted 18 for the tankers.

B Co. Wins Conquerors' Tournament

By 87th Inf PIO

Bravo Company of the 87th Infantry handily defeated all challengers in the recently conducted company level basketball tournament.

The Conquerors of B Company, paced by Ron Brooks, Joe Shaheen, Jerry Handy, Warner Johnson, Don Roberts, Issiac Scott, Eazel Lawrence, Clyde Mounger, Joe Meszaros and Terry Turner relied heavily on the fast break and accurate shooting to rack up their high scores.

Indicative of the exceptional talent displayed by the team, four of the five starters are members of the battle group team. Under the coaching of Ron Brooks, the big boys from Bravo finished with a 6-0 record.

Echo company finished a close second with a 5-1 record under coach Lieutenant George Krajack.

Unit Bowling Now Going on at Trains

Company - level bowling competition is now underway in Division Trains units.

First standings list the 2nd Administration Company in the top spot with an 8-4 record, followed by the 13th Transportation Battalion, 2nd Aviation Company, and the 702nd Ordnance Battalion with a 7-5 each. The 2nd Medical Battalion has a 4-8 record while the 2nd Quartermaster Company posts a 3-9.

The six top bowlers will represent Trains in the Division's major command tournament.

Trains is now conducting practice sessions for indoor volleyball. Players selected to represent Trains in the Major Command Indoor Volleyball Tournament are Ira Myers, Seymour Jones, Arcadio Colazzo, Paul Vincent, Donald Ganon, Rudolf Thomas, Arlen Suddaby, Eugene Byer, Stephen Solomon, William Scruggs and Lou Proiago.

Irishman Is 9th's Top Pistol Firer

Specialist Four Michael Davidson, a native of Ireland and a cook with Combat Support Company of the 9th Infantry was top firer when the battle group recently completed qualification firing with the .45 caliber pistol.

Davidson fired 371 out of a possible 400.

PLAYER-COACH
George Krajack

87th Infantry Coach-Player Jack Krajack Averaging 17 Points Every Basketball Game

By EUGENE BREESKIN

Names make news and no one has been in the news more than the 87th Infantry's player - coach Lieutenant George A. Krajack.

Currently assigned to Company E as a platoon leader, Lieutenant Krajack is both the brains and the backbone of the Conqueror basketball team which has piled up eleven out of twelve victories in the 2nd Division tournament.

Latest statistics show that he is averaging a healthy 17 points a game but speaking as the coach, he attributes the success of the team to a well rounded team effort. "Any member is capable of a 20 point night," he noted. "Since everyone is a potential threat, no single member of the team can be bottled up."

Lieutenant Krajack has had a long and successful basketball career which antedates his service record. At McKeesport High School, in his homestate of Pennsylvania, he had his first taste of success as the school won the state championship in 1955.

After a year at Shattuck Military Preparatory School, he got his first big break. A friend landed a coaching job at Clemson College in South Carolina and soon after Lieutenant Krajack proved himself by captaining the freshman team to a 14-3 season.

For the next three years, Krajack started for the Clemson five for 96 consecutive games, leading the team in almost every department; scoring, rebounding, assists and shooting percentage from both the floor and the foul line.

He graduated in 1960 and was drafted by the professional New York Knickerbockers but wound up trying out with the Detroit Pistons. He toured with the Pistons in a pre-season exhibition tour against the Cincinnati Royals and the "Big O" — Oscar Robertson, whom Krajack remembers as the greatest player he has ever had the misfortune to play against.

He was one of the last men to be cut from the squad.

Last year Krajack decided to make one more try at pro ball and tried out for the Pittsburgh Rens in the American Basketball League but his military obligation intervened.

Tennessee Sharpshooter Paces 23rd

By 23rd Infantry PIO

One of the most outstanding hardwood players on the 23rd Infantry's basketball team this season is Private First Class Clint Johnson, a solidly built six foot, four inch sharpshooter from Company A.

Johnson has paced his teammates throughout most of the season, averaging more than 20 points in many of the contests. Deadly in close and accurate from the sidelines, Johnson has also proved his worth in the rebound department. His command of the backboard has helped in not only fattening his scoring average but also in giving other members of the team a chance for a shot.

The 20-year old netman has been playing basketball since his junior high school days in Lexington, Tennessee. While on the Montgomery High School team there his school won the 1959 state basketball championship and then whipped a Mississippi high school team for additional honors. Johnson also played on his high school football team.

Johnson entered the Army in May 1961. This past season was his first taste of Army basketball.

428th Medics Take Second Half Title By Upsetting Favored 29th Infantry

The 428th Medics over powered the 29th Infantry Wednesday night 97-72. The victory gave the Medics the second half championship in league play. The victors seemed to be able to score at will throughout the contest.

The combination of Gary Hess, Harold Deane, and Hugh Royer just couldn't be stopped. Deane led the squad with 21 points but was closely followed by Gary Hess with 20 and Hugh Royer with 19. Bob Whitehead led the Infantry with 28 points.

After the two-niners copped the first half of Major Unit Basketball Play, the second place 428th Medics, came back strong in the second half. The Medics split their two game series with the Infantrymen to end the second half of play in a deadlock with both teams finishing with a 11-1 record.

Both team's lone defeat came from each other. With the 29th and the Medics tied for first place in the second half, a three game play-off will determine the 1962 USAIC Major Unit Basketball Champions.

In Friday night's action Signal's Keon Hughs, 25 points, Jim Westcott's 16 and Ronnie Salyer's 14 points helped the 156th Signal to nip the 58th Infantry 62-56.

At halftime the Signalmen were leading by a score of 31-24. Both teams hit the hoop for 18 points in the third quarter. The Infantry picked up 24 more points in the final period to fall 2 points short of victory.

Freddie Morris tossed in 27 for the Infantrymen while his teammate Pointer had 19.

In the second contest of the evening, the league leading Medics rolled over the 10th Artillery Redlegs 93-73. Gary Hess's and Hugh Royer's 21 points each led the Medics as high scorers.

Both teams went scoreless in second quarter, but the Medics bounced back in the third quarter with 50 points while the Artillery dropped in 31. Roy Young paced his team in scoring with 23 points and teammate Alvin Flagg had 20.

WAC Team From Post Drop WAFs at Keesler

Season wins eight and nine team will meet the Fort Jackson cagerettes this weekend in a two game series for their final season competition before the Third Army Basketball Tournament, to be held here March 19-24.

Weekend action is scheduled for Saturday at 7 p.m., and Sunday at 10 a.m. Both games are scheduled for Briant Wells Field House.

were posted by Benning's WAC basketball team last weekend as they set the WAF team from Keesler Air Force Base back twice by scores of 29-23 and 40-37.

In Saturday night's action the teams were deadlocked at half time, 16-16. In the third quarter Benning's cagerettes doubled their opponents four points. In the last quarter they picked up five more points to the WAF's three for a final score of 29-23.

Ruth Breining led the Benning squad in scoring with 11 points.

Erline Surles accounted for 22 of the WAC points in Sunday's competition as the team scored their second victory, 40-37.

At half time, Benning led 27-18, and stayed in control throughout the game.

Alyce Sims also picked up 12 points for the winners.

Today's Sportrait

Dick Shull, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, plays guard for the league leading 29th Infantry basketball team. The shortest man on the team, Shul stands only five-eight.

Against the Medics recently, he controlled the ball throughout most of the first half, grabbing poorly aimed passes and wild rebounds, and taking the ball away from bigger opponents.

The 21 year old Shull is a product of Coal Creek Central High School in Wingate, Indiana. He made All-County in three major sports — basketball, baseball, and track — setting a school record of 0:52 seconds in running the quarter mile, and established the school's all-time scoring record of 1,317 points in basketball.

DICK SHULL

Shull, who last year played second base for the 29th Infantry, threw two no-hitters during his senior year in high school. He was scouted by the Chicago White Sox and Kansas City Athletics while playing baseball for Lafayette, Indiana, and the Crawfordsville, Indiana, Merchants.

"I got a homer, double, and single the first time they scouted me", Shull explained "but I moved up too fast to another league and wasn't ready when they came around again. I was too young and inexperienced."

With the experience gained playing with the 29th Infantry, Shull feels he is ready to play professional baseball.

Murry in Gloves

Elbert Murry, the light welterweight leather swinger who outfought last year's National AAU Champion Johnny Howard, has a chance to become the second man in history to cop the Tacoma, Portland, and Seattle Golden Gloves' triple crown. Murry still has the Seattle bout to face. The first person to pocket the triple crown was fellow Fort Lewis soldier George Wright. Wright is currently sporting an unblemished pro slate.

Benning Boxers In Tournament

Three men from Fort Benning were selected and are participating in the Mid-Western Armed Forces Boxing Tournament at Fort Meyer, Virginia. The tournament, which started February 28 and ends tomorrow, is held to determine the men who will represent the Army at the Inter-service Tournament later in the year.

The men are Pfc Charles D. Allen, E Company, 29ist Infantry Brigade, Pfc Leon lark, Battery B, 2nd Howitzer Battalion, and SSgt. James E. Scates, 41st Company, Student Battalion.

OUTDOOR OUTLOOK

By Sp4 Don Girton

As the hunting season gracefully bowed out this past week, the fishing season came in with a loud splash. Although heavy rains have caused many streams to flood their banks and stain and muddy some post ponds, bass fishing on post is probably at its peak.

During the past week Harps Pond produced some fine catches, not just in number but in size. A days catch of six bass by one group totaled 26 pounds. The best catch weighed in at the Fish and Game office tipped the scales at 8¼ pounds with some reporting catches of 9 pounders. Most catches seem to be in either the two pound class or the five plus class.

The majority of Harps bass have been taken on large minnows. Apparently catches have not been confined to any particular part of the pond, although angler's report most fish are being taken in two and three feet of water.

This 60 acre pond is located about four miles south of Buma Hill in the impact area. Generally considered to be a pond with only a few large bass, it seems to be producing some of the posts finests early fishing. The pond quickly becomes muddy after moderate rains due to extensive training conducted on its upper watershed.

Normally it is expected this would create conditions unfavorable for bass but obviously it has not had any significant effect since many find fishing good even when water is heavily stained. Ironically the pond is not intensively managed like other post ponds.

Due to its location, it is generally accessible on holidays and weekends which may account in part for good fishing. The water flow through the pond is too large to make fertilization effective. Evidently the stained water controls growth of water plants and water is relatively fertile.

Although activity at other post ponds has not been as spectacular as Harps Pond, Kings and Clear Creek Ponds have been scenes of considerable activity. Bass fishing at Kings Pond has been generally slow, however a few catches of two and three pound bass have been taken with minnows and black eels. It seems to be a bit early for the surface type artificial bait as few insects are out over the water. It was reported that a 6 pound bass was taken at Clear Creek Pond on a black eel.

CREEL LIMIT CHANGES

The creel limit for bream at Kings Pond has been increased to a daily limit of 25. The special daily limit for bass at Kings Pond remains at 5. Biologists indicated the bass-bream ratio is becoming unbalanced by an over population of bream and the increased limit is one method being used to try and restore proper balance to the pond.

1962 USAIC Company Volleyball Tournament Set for Kelly Hill

The Athletic Department of Special Services announces that the 1962 Company Level Volleyball Tournament will be conducted March 12-16. All games will be played at the Kelly Hill Gymnasium. The winning team will represent Fort Benning in the Third Army Volleyball Tournament, 2-5 April, at Fort McClellan.

The championship will be determined by a double elimination tournament. Team squads will be limited to eight uniformed players and one manager.

Major units may enter the following number of teams, The Student Brigade, USAIS and Infantry Board (3 Teams); 1st Infantry Brigade (4 Teams); The Infantry Center Troop Command (3 Teams); 151st Engineer Group (3 Teams); Lawson Army Aviation Command (1 Team); 428th Medical Battalion and Martin Army Hospital (1 team); and 2nd Infantry Division (18 Teams).

Competition will be governed by the 1962 Official Volleyball Association. A scratch meeting will be held at 2 P.M. March 7, 1962, at the USAIC Athletic Department, Building 933, Briant Wells Field House. A representative from each major unit entering the tournament must be present for this meeting.

in the loss of trained military personnel.

Military personnel and dependents susceptible to the greatest risk are those living in family groups in which there are young children, those living in areas where hygiene and sanitation are substandard, and those who may be so unlucky to be exposed to a community outbreak.

Just four shots are needed for full protection. Military dependents, if you haven't had the first one, get it today at the Dependent's Immunization Clinic (Old Hospital, Building 396). Hours of operation are 0800-1100, 1300-1600 hours daily, Monday through Friday. Military personnel should report to their servicing dispensary.

The first shot takes effect within the first ten days. Normally, the second shot should be given not less than four weeks after the first, and the third shot not less than seven months after the second. A booster shot is given one year after the third shot.

It is further recommended that a yearly booster shot be given after the basic series have been completed. Take advantage of this program without delay before the polio season begins in the warmer weather.

How do you and your loved ones stand? Check your individual shot record and be sure. Everyone owes it to his family, to his children and to himself to receive this immunity.

Act now! Remember the following points when you are evaluating your family vaccination program!

THAT polio hits men and women harder than it hits children. YOUR neighbor's Salk shots do not protect you. YOUR child's Salk shots do not protect you. POLIO shots are almost painless. SALK shots are safe. ONE shot is better than one! TWO shots are better than one! THREE shots will give you basic protection from paralytic polio. FOUR shots give you maximum protection.

FOLLOW THROUGH

The follow through is the same as anything else in bowling: a simple movement which should come naturally.

After you have released your ball, simply keep your arm moving to the conclusion of its upward sweep. Don't stop it the instant you let the ball go. If you do, it will cause a jerky delivery which is likely to hook the ball right off the lane.

Most important, don't worry about the follow through.

Single Sites Per Unit

Gravesites Now Limited At Arlington Cemetery

WASHINGTON (AFPS)— Officials of Arlington National Cemetery here will now assign a single gravesite for the burial of a military decedent and his eligible dependents.

Approval of the new policy was announced by the Department of Defense. Officials believe the action will prolong the active life of the famous cemetery for an estimated five years.

Reason for the new policy, the Defense Department said, was because of the increase since WWII in the number of persons legally eligible for burial in national cemeteries.

After completion of studies, the Army believes the way to prolong the life of the cemetery is to modify administrative measures. The single gravesite was the answer.

Existing regulations have permitted the assignment of two gravesites for the burial of a service member, his spouse and his other eligible dependents.

During recent years, in certain parts of Arlington Cemetery, only single gravesites have been available per family unit. There has been no opposition in principle, it was explained, to the use of a single gravesite for a family unit —an accepted practice in many private cemeteries in crowded metropolitan areas.

As the need arises, the army expects to apply the single-gravesite policy to other national cemeteries on an individual basis.

The rate of burial in Arlington has steadily increased and expansion possibilities are limited to the addition of South Post, Ft. Myer.

The Army estimates existing regulations permitting two gravesites per military decedent would have used all plots up by 1968. But with the one gravesite policy it is estimated the available land will last until 1972.

In addition, application of the one gravesite policy to the South Post area will extend the life of the cemetery until 1989.

Arlington was established in 1864 on land that had been a part of the estate of General and Mrs. Robert E. Lee.

In the past 97 years more than 110,000 burials have been made in the developed areas of Arlington. Less than one-fourth of the original land remains to be developed as the need for grave space arises.

U. S. and Foreign Mission Work Is Done Through World Day of Prayer Activities

The World Day of Prayer worship service at the post, to be conducted at 10 a.m. March 9 in The Infantry Center Protestant Chapel, will also be observed at 12 noon in the Martin Army Hospital Chapel.

The service is sponsored by the Women-of-the-Chapels of the Main Post, No. 3 and Student Brigade Chapels and the Women's Auxiliary of St. Michael's Episcopal Mission. Theme of the program will be "For God So Loved the World."

Mrs. Arthur J. Estes will preside at the 10 a.m. service.

Participating will be six leaders, including Mrs. John L. Waldrop, Mrs. Hubert Garrell, Mrs. Dominick Orlando, Mrs. William Ray, Mrs. Frank E. Deese and Mrs. Alan B. Wilde.

Representing three "Voices from the Congregation" will be Mrs. F. L. Franklin, Mrs. Ben Collins and Mrs. John H. Ramsburg.

Mrs. John Rogers will sing a solo, accompanied by Mrs. G. T. Britton.

Ushers wearing costumes of various nations will be Mrs. W. R. Nettles, Mrs. James A. Raupach, Mrs. Clarence E. Wolffinger and Mrs. Joel W. Breeding.

Participating in the program at Martin Hospital will be Mrs. Thomas Goodman, Mrs. Mitchel Johnson, Mrs. George W. Roshee, Mrs. William W. Rivers, Mrs. Clifford Purvis and Mrs. Robert J. Whitehead.

Mrs. Whitehead is over-all program chairman for the World Day of Prayer.

The annual prayer service, to be observed this year in 145 countries, includes an offering for home and foreign missions.

Gifts from all over the world go into a fund administered by the National Council of Churches in New York City.

The fund provides support for mission colleges, training for rural ministers, literature in many languages and hospitality for students from abroad enrolled in U. S. colleges.

In Alaska, the fund provides counseling to U. S. service families and support for a chaplaincy service in government hospitals, as well as aid for needy Alaskans.

A Committee on Friendly Relations Among Foreign Students uses World Day of Prayer funds in its work with approximately 40,000 students who enter the U. S. from abroad each year to attend American colleges.

The committee arranges for the students to share home, family and community life while they are in this country.

Another phase of the committee's work is providing summer and vacation hospitality for the foreign students and helping them find work.

Twelve Christian colleges are supported by the fund. The schools are in Korea, Africa, Hong Kong, Japan, Pakistan and Taiwan.

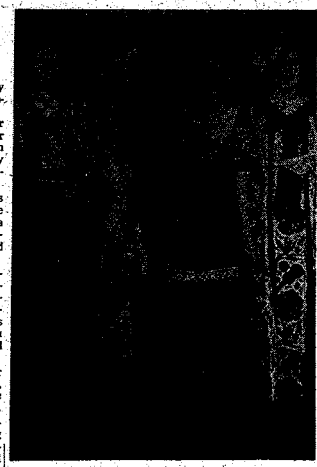
A Committee on Christian Literature for Women and Children provides books and magazines for Asian, African and Latin - American countries. The literature covers family life, the Christian home, child care, food, sanitation, health and Bible study.

Work among migrant laborers in the U. S. is supported by the World Day of Prayer offering.

The ministry to migrant workers includes day care centers for children whose parents work in fields, vocational and homemaking schools for teenagers, classes in responsible citizenship, recreational and religious facilities.

Administrators of the fund are working toward constructive legislation to provide more essential services and justice for migratory workers in the United States.

In-service training and continuing education for pastors of rural churches in the nation is another phase of the home mission projects supported by the World Day of Prayer.



The fund helps to recruit, train and supervise staff and volunteer workers to conduct the varied activities of the program in the U. S. and Puerto Rico.

Some of the services for needy communities are training conferences for lay leaders, church vacation schools and rehabilitation.

The offering, except for costs of administration, is divided between foreign and home missions.

NEW RECORD . . . 1st Lt. Robert B. Trew, Army Marksmanship Training Unit, set a new national record in the National Indoor Smallbore Rifle Championship held recently at Washington, Pa. He broke the old record of 796 out of 800 possible points by a single point. AMTU shooters Capt. Daniel Puckel, Capt. Tommy G. Pool, 2nd Lt. Lonas Wigger and Lt. Trew teamed up to capture the aggregate total with a 1584x1600 score.

UNIT'S TRAINING PLANS ARE STUDIED BY (L TO R) Lt. Swift, Capt. Beaver and 1st Sgt. Strawbridge in CO's Office

In Army Training Test

Florida Reserve Unit Is Rated Superior; Earns a 98.6 Score

By Sfc George McBurney

The 67th Transportation Company, a Florida Reserve unit from Orlando, has won highest honors in the Army Training Test conducted here last month.

To add to the laurels the unit has earned in the past four months, the company scored 98.6 out of a possible 100 points for first place among recently called up Reserve units which have taken the test at the post.

The 674th's proficiency was judged superior in its simulated hauling by rail 96 tons of ordnance supplies, its use of Infantry tactics and camouflage in perimeter defense and its nighttime displacement in unit vehicles from administrative to tactical areas.

The company also had to defend itself against aggressor forces and provides its own security while maintaining its transportation duties.

Here Since October

The unit, which came to Fort Benning in October, is conducting its training mission with The Infantry Center Troop Command in supporting the transportation system of The Infantry Center. It also supports some 2nd Infantry Division units.

Commanded by Capt. Newton J. Beaver, Jr., the 674th's morale is high.

"Our men have made an extra effort to make the company a top quality unit," he said. "The morale, which is as high as we can make it, has steadily improved since we came here."

"Our officers and non-commissioned officers are efficient and eager to learn," he added. "The men under them respond to their training very well. We could not have made our high rating in the Army Training Test without the fine cooperation of all our men."

First Lt. James C. Swift, a platoon leader, said, "The call-up to active duty was a surprise to us at first. But now that we are here and have a job to do, we are doing it."

First Sgt. J. H. Strawbridge also commended the unit.

"We have a good company," he said. "Our superior rating in the Army Training Test proves it."

18 Year Veteran

Strawbridge, a Regular Army sergeant with 18 years of service, was assigned to the 674th after his return to the U. S. from Germany.

One of the 674th's young officers is so highly pleased with the call to active duty that he plans to make a career of the Army.

First Lt. Frank A. Hathaway said, "What do I think of the call-up? It's the best thing that ever happened to me. I'm going to stay in the service."

The company's mess steward, Sfc Robert D. Parker, added, "I've seen this unit come a long way just in the past 60 days. And as it has progressed, its morale and efficiency have improved until we now compare with the best."

Parker, who has been a mess steward for more than 12 of his 16 years of Army service, is proud of the 674th's mess hall.

Through the efforts of a few men with a flair for carpentry work, the unit has an attractive mess hall where the cooks prepare appetizing meals he said.

Six Day Job

The men completely renovated the building in six days. With a quantity of pine wood, which is plentiful in Georgia, and several cans of paint, they paneled and painted the interior. Then somebody lightly applied the flame of a blowtorch over the paneling to bring out the knots and grain.

The addition of potted plants and curtains provided by the unit fund added to the mess hall's homelike appearance.

The 674th was a highly diversified group of men before the call-up but now it is one of the top transportation units in the Third Army area.

"Our men have come from all walks of life," Capt. Beaver said. "They have been given some pretty rugged training but they put out the necessary effort and are a fine group of soldiers."

Sgt. Sherman R. Newcomb, a 1961 graduate of Tennessee Tech of Cooksville with a bachelor of science degree in mathematics, was an industrial engineer before the call-up.

He said, "We were all more than ready to take Army training. And we are glad to be doing our part to help strengthen and improve the Army."

SFC KING (L), AND CAPT. SITES Check Details Before Briefing Room Opening

DNRI Briefing Room Built, Designed by Officer, NCO

Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School, cut a ribbon in recent ceremonies officially opening a new briefing room at the School's Department of Non-Resident Instruction.

Designed by Capt. Claude W. Sites, operations officer, the room and its facilities were built by Sfc Loshel R. King.

A large rear view projection screen at the front of the room was constructed to adapt a slide at the flip of a switch.

The screen is made of plexiglass which can be flooded from within by means of two neon tubes concealed in the frame.

Information or symbols can be written on the plexiglass with grease pencil before or during the showing of a slide. When the neon light is permitted to flow into the plexiglass, the markings become flourescent.

The modern projection screen makes possible a graphic presentation of the activities of the department. Both projector and the neon lights are operated by switches at the speaker's podium, a drop-leaf stand attached to the wall.

A display rack on one wall is built with separate shelves to hold instructional material of each of five non-resident programs prepared and administered by the department.

They are Army extension courses, Reserve Officer Training Corps, National Guard, Army Reserve and staff training programs.

In a large frame on the rear wall is a poster used in support of the ROTC program. The poster will be changed approximately four times a year.

Flanking the poster are lighted shadow boxes showing military history transparencies, part of the instructional program of college level ROTC units.

More than 50 slides were prepared to illustrate departmental briefings. The art work on the 35-mm slides was prepared by WAC Pfc Myrtle D. Crowe, an illustrator in the Editorial and Pictorial Office of The Infantry School.

The department makes maximum use of slides in presenting its activities to visitors because many who attend the briefings do not understand English.

High ranking officers from Allied nations often visit the Department of Non-Resident Instruction. The slides provide a pictorial translation of the mission and function of the department.

Many Allied visitors are briefed in their own language, according to Col. Harry G. Huppert, Jr., department director.

Spanish speaking visitors are briefed by Major Buenaventura Esteves of Aguadilla, Puerto Rico, chairman of the Instructional Materials Preparation Committee.

Major Chesley O. Nunley, chairman of the Reserve Components Committee, briefs visitors from Japan.

German briefings are given by 1st Lt. Ralph G. Egenmaier, an editor-writer on the Instruction Materials Preparation Committee.

In China, Chile, Australia

Three Allied Officers Speak on Education

Elementary education in the Republic of China, Chile and Australia was the topic of discussion at a meeting of the Fort Benning Parent Teacher Association recently at Faith School.

Speaking to approximately 300 members and guests of the P-TA were Lt. Col. Chiung-Fu Li of Taipei, Taiwan, Major Agustin Toro of Santiago, Chile, and 1st Lt. Ian Gollings, of Hobart, Tasmania, Australia, Allied students at The Infantry School.

Col. Li said there is not much difference between the organization of the school systems of Taiwan and the U. S.

Education is compulsory, the parents being notified in writing, when the child reached six years of age, to send him to a designated school in their community. There is no tuition, and text books are free, but the parents must buy or make a required uniform for the child.

Every school child in Taiwan must take a turn at staying after school to serve on a clean-up detail, he continued.

A competitive examination is given after completion of elementary school. The examination not only rates the pupils but the schools also. Public opinion grades the school on a basis of the number of its graduates who pass the competitive examination, Col. Li said.

Major Toro said that education is the best heritage we can give our children.

On duty as a battalion commander after the disastrous earthquakes in Chile two years ago, one of the major's first concerns in rehabilitating the stricken area was schools for the children.

He borrowed tents from an American field hospital and set up schools.

In Chile, every child studies at least two foreign languages and learns to speak them, he said.

Ian Gollings described the educational system of Australia.

At the age of 11 or 12, he said, a pupil takes a state controlled examination to determine the course of his further education.

Those making the highest grade go on to High School, the middle group will study vocational subjects, while those who fail will take the examination over after a year of further study, he explained.

"Teaching is a sought-after profession in Australia," Lt. Gollings said. The standards are high and the teachers are well paid, he added.

Col. Sears Y. Coker, P-TA president, presided at the meeting.

Mrs. Ward Retires After 18 Years At The Post Exchange

Mrs. Johnnie C. Ward retired this month after working for more than eighteen years for the Post Exchange. At a retirement ceremony held in her honor, she was presented a watch and a toaster by the Exchange Employes.

Mrs. Ward was also presented a Certificate of Appreciation by Major John G. Setaro, Fort Benning Exchange Officer.

B'Nai Brith Girls Post Service Set

Eighteen members of B'Nai Brith Girls of Columbus will conduct a service at 8 p.m. this evening at the Jewish Center, Building 1071. The program will include traditional Hebrew songs.

Say Mom! Dad! Your Children Lost Clothing?

Parents of children attending school on the post may find some long lost — or recently lost — items of clothing waiting for them at post schools or the School Bus Transportation Section of the post Motor Pool, Building 1696.

Articles of clothing left on buses and left at the schools have accumulated to a serious degree, school officials say, and they add that some of the coats, sweaters, etc., are practically new in appearance.

Recently, apparel left on buses has been displayed on the same bus the following day on racks, but in spite of this, large quantities of clothing have found their way into Building 1696.

Parents are requested by the school authorities to make checks to determine if items are missing, and then check the appropriate school and the Motor Pool to see if they are being held as lost articles.

HONOR UNIT . . . Major Gen. Walter B. Yeager, (L), deputy commanding general, Third Army, and Brig. Gen. Joseph N. Langan, commander of the 31st Infantry Division, (National Guard), cut a cake in the mess hall of the 129th Medical Company in honor of the unit being awarded the Third Army National Guard Unit Training Trophy for its superior training record in 1960-61. The 129th is a Mobile, Ala., unit.

Two Vietnamese Officers To Speak at JC's Dinner

Two Allied officers at The Infantry School will be honor guests at a dinner meeting of the Columbus Junior Chamber of Commerce at 6:30 p.m. March 8 at the Ralston Hotel.

They are Major Thien Tran Cuu and 1st Lt. Thang Tran Huu of the Vietnamese Army. They are attending an associate career course at The School.

Major Thien will give an illustrated address on Viet Nam. There will be a question and answer period.

The major is 33 years old and has been in his country's Army 11 years. He has five sons and two daughters.

He has served four years with the Vietnamese National Guard. Other assignments he has held include district commander, director of a re-education center, chief of a civilian district, chief of a province and chief of staff of the Presidential Guard.

Lt. Thaing is the father of two sons. He is 28 years old and has eight years of military service.

Assignments Lt. Thang has held include ROTC instructor, interpreter, and aide-de-camp to the chief of the Vietnamese Joint General Staff. He has served also in the G-3 Office of the Joint General Staff and with the UN Forces.

Major Thien and Lt. Thang speak three languages, English, French and Vietnamese.

Post Officers Join in Local Legal Panel

Two post officers appeared in a panel discussion before the Columbus Younger Lawyers Section of the Georgia Bar Association recently at the Goo Goo Restaurant.

The panel discussion was on "Aspects of Courts Martial Trial Procedures."

Participating were 1st Lt. George S. Lyons, chief of military justice, and 1st Lt. Hugh Peterson, Jr., chief of military affairs and claims, both of The Infantry Center Staff Judge Advocate Section, and William B. Hardegree and Lee R. Grogan, both of Columbus.

Hardegree, a former member of the Staff Judge Advocate Section, is secretary of the Younger Lawyers Section.

Grogan was formerly a law specialist with the Navy.

The discussions covered summaries of pretrial, trial and appellate procedure in military courts martial; functions and duties of trial and defense court, and a brief summary of offenses peculiar to the military.

The Columbus Younger Lawyers Section was organized recently to foster continuing legal education for young lawyers.

The junior officers of the Staff Judge Advocate Section are honorary members.

Army Wants Guard Dogs Immediately

An urgent requirement for 560 German Shepherd dogs for duty at Army and Air Force defense sites was stressed by the Army last week.

The Army Quartermaster Corps, which buys German Shepherds for both Army and Air Force use, said the Shepherds are urgently needed to meet curent military commitments.

An additional 1,700 German Shepherds, needed during the next ten months to fill estimated military requirements, will boost planned procurement of these animals to approximately 2,260 during 1962.

Persons interested in selling qualified animals are urged to contact the Army Animal Procurement Office, P. O. Box 52, Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Texas.

High standards are set for military guard dogs. The Army and Air Force have a continuing need for those meeting the following specifications: pure-bred German Shepherd; one to three years of age at time of examination; minimum height at shoulder, 23 inches; minimum weight, 60 pounds; any color.

Dogs of either sex are acceptable, but females must be accompanied by a veterinarian's certificate indicating a complete spaying operation has been performed at least 90 days prior to acceptance.

Registration is not essential, but animals accepted must be pure-bred, physically and mentally sound, and must have such typical German Shepherd characteristics as alertness, aggressiveness and vigor.

Col. Nett to Speak At Sertoma Lunch

Lt. Col. Robert B. Nett, chairman of the Platoon Tactics Committee of the Ranger Department, will address a luncheon meeting of the Columbus Sertoma Club at 12:20 p.m. March 7.

The meeting will be held at the Columbus Country Club.

Nett, who won the Medal of Honor for his heroic actions during World War II, will speak to the civic organization on the Army Rangers.

AWARDS . . . Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles, Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School, (L), presents Incentive Awards to (L to R) 1st Sgt. Charlie E. Puckett, 4th Student Battalion, MSgt John Bayer, B Company, ISB, and Sfc Trillis Murrell, TSB Message Center Chief. Capt. Nathan C. Vail, 2nd Student Battalion, also received an Incentive Award. The awards were in recognition of suggestions submitted by the four men.

Record Revision

Operation 'Taper' Date is Set

"Operation Taper," the Army plan for equipment record revision, will be conducted here during the week of April 23.

Attending the classes will be personnel from Third Army posts except Fort Rucker and Fort Campbell. Personnel from these two stations will be trained separately by the Army Maintenance Board, starting April 1 and May 1, respectively.

By July 1 Operation Taper will be in full implementation at all Third Army intallations. Men trained as instructors at the schools will return to their home stations to instruct other personnel.

The Third Army has a total quota of 42 instructor spaces, of which Fort Benning has a tentative number of six.

In addition to the training, a program of instructions, lesson manuscripts and plans and training aids examples will be provided to facilitate the training programs. The packages will be issued on the basis of one per battalion or separate company.

'Human Brain' Computer Undertakes Job To Aid Infantry School in Its Mission

Automation, the technique of making a system or process automatic by controlled operation of an apparatus by electronic devices, has begun a titanic job on the post.

The Univac 120 "human brain" computer system, recently installed in the Data Processing Office of The Infantry School, is playing a major part in enabling the school to accomplish its mission.

The DPO, established as a new major activity January 3 by The Infantry School, maintains student academic records and statistical data for resident and non-resident programs. The office also does considerable examination and statistical anaylsis.

Other Mission

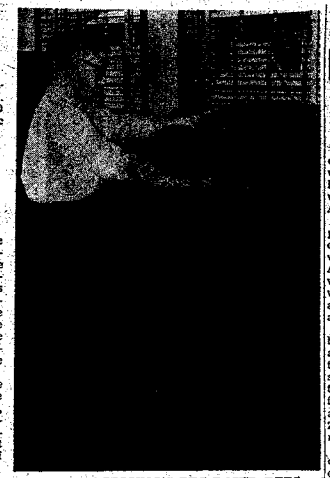
A secondary mission of the office is to provide a central data processing facility to support The Infantry School in other operational areas that are suitable for machine application.

Major Charles E. Welch, chief of DPO, said, "In addition to the benefits that are derived from the automatic production of an apparatus by electronic devices, we are able to conduct scientific analysis of lessons and student examinations that were not feasible without automation equipment.

"The work load costs and the accuracy of the results of our work would not justify manual production," he added. "But with our data processing equipment that adds, subtracts, multiplies, divides and compares figures at electronic speed, we can in a few minutes complete a job that would take many expert clerks an entire day to do.

"We plan to add many more applications to those we now process," Major Welch said.

60,000 Affected



"With the Univac 120 system we are currently scoring, processing and updating academic records, preparing reports, certificates and transcripts and examination analysis for some 15,000 resident students and 45,000 non-resident students annually," he continued.

"The machines and our DPO personnel are doing a terrific job," the major stated.

Though the electronic speed tabulator prints as many as 9,000 figures a minute and does the work a staff of office workers would need eight hours to do, it has not caused any loss of employment.

"While some 24 employee spaces were eliminated by automation, the losses were quickly compensated by reemployment in other sections on the post or in DPO operating the new machines," he said. "And we must realize that much of the work we are now doing in the fastest possible time would be impossible without automation."

Other key personnel in the newly established DPO include 1st Lt. Robert G. Flowers Jr., administrative and control officer; MSgt Adrian W. Monohan, system analyst, and MSgt Charles H. Richards, chief clerk.

Army Orders Now Copter Built for Test

WASHINGTON (AFPS) —Orders for test models of a lightweight, single-rotor, four-place helicopter have been placed with three companies by the Army.

Twelve aircraft companies participated in a recent design competition and three designs were adjudged as meeting the Army's rigid specifications which called for a helicopter which is to be reliable, readily air transportable, inexpensive and easy to maintain.

The aircraft will be powered by a 250 hp. gas turbine engine and have a flight endurance of three hours. Designed for a speed of 110 knots, the new rotary - wing aircraft will be faster than the L-19 fixed-wing airplane and the H-13 and H-23 helicopters which it is to replace in the Army's air fleet.

These three current aircraft carry out the Army's missions of visual observation, target acquisition, reconnaissance and command control.

Single Award Not Enough For One Day

Awards don't come one at a time to The Infantry School's Editorial and Pictorial Office, according to Lt. Col. Harold K. Slater, EPO's executive officer. "For once, they came two at a time," he said.

The two awards, one the Management Improvement Semiannual Award, the other the Army Suggestion Program Semiannual Award, were recently presented to Col. J. C. Cornet, chief of EPO, by Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles, assistant commandant of The School.

This is the first time The School has made these awards, and the period covered was from July 1 through December 31, 1961.

The Army Suggestion Program Award was made in recognition of EPO's outstanding participation in the Department of Army's Suggestion Program.

STATIC STATISTIC

The percentage of family spending going for housing has not changed much in 10 years. It averaged about 27 per cent of all family spending in 1960 —only one per cent higher than in 1950, U. S. Commerce Department figures show.

Masquers-Unmasked

The board of the "Little Theater" has recently approved two one act plays for presentation in early April under the title, "An Evening Off-Broadway".

The curtain raiser will be a prize winning play by Terrance Rattigan titled "The Browning Version". The second half of the evening will be devoted to a farce by Eugene Ionesco, called, "The Bald Soprano". Both plays will be done arena style, with the audience seated on three sides.

Pfc Peter Tatischeff, from the 2nd Division, has been named director for both plays.

For interested persons there are job openings from make-up to props and acting along with set design. Back stage workers are also needed.

HAPPY IN ARMY ROLE

The late Jeff Chandler once said that if he had been given the chance he'd have continued his career in the Army after World War II instead of pursuing an acting career. In his final picture, Warner Bros. "Merril's Marauder", Chandler got to lead the life he loved. He portrayed Gen. Merrill, leader of a famed band of guerrilla fighters in Burma.

BOOKS in REVIEW

COIN COLLECTING by Burton Hobson. (Sterling, 1961)

The question that coin dealers are most often asked is, 'How do I start collecting coins?' This book is the answer to that question. Its purpose is to acquaint you with the many aspects of this fascinating and rewarding hobby and to get you started on a collection of your own.

I REMEMBER! I REMEMBER! by Sean O'Faolain. (Curtis, 1961)

The stories in this collection dwell upon the theme of memory, a sense of twilight and autumn, the comic and the poignant, and the incapacity of people to love and communicate with each other. The book is alive with the power of Sean O'Faolain's evocation of time and mood and place.

A GRAVE UNDERTAKING by Lionel White. (Dutton, 1961)

Take criminal plotting at its best, add an undertaker without customers, a corpse without a name, a reporter without a story, a bank robber looking for a tunnel, a pretty girl looking for her father and you get the kind of colorful action and amazingly authentic atmosphere for which Lionel White is famous.

SECRET SERVICE CHIEF by U. E. Baughman. (Harper, 1961)

The Chief of the Secret Service tells his own story: his protection of three Presidents — Truman, Eisenhower, Kennedy; how the Secret Service operates; counterfeiters, conmen and how they're caught. A fascinating, behind-the - scenes report full of incident, anecdote and little - known facts.

AMERICANS ABROAD by Robert Temple. (Sterling, 1961)

Here is a guidebook to living, working, studying and traveling abroad unlike any you've ever seen. In it, you'll find out more about cultural conversion than currency conversion, more on how to adapt to a foreign way of living than how to have an expensive guide show you an endless number of churches.

HERE'S THE TRUTH ABOUT "THE MARK." Because "THE MARK" deals with themes that are, to say the least, touchy, we were a little reluctant to discuss it frankly. We were more than hesitant to tell the story in our advertisements for fear of being accused of "sensationalism." And so we thought in vague general terms about the picture and its high quality. We want to be truthful and fair to this uncommon film. The words are blunt and dramatic. And they're words you don't have to be a psychiatrist to understand.

Post Pre-Kindergarten Open House Successful

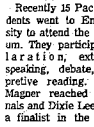
Two hundred parents and friends attended the Open House of the Pre - Kindergarten School Monday.

In the morning, mothers had an opportunity to watch the children at work in the classrooms, and again in the evening, parents were encouraged to discuss the program of the school with the teachers and Board members.

Displays of the work done by the 150 three-and-four year olds were set up in the classrooms, and the schedule of activities and work sessions were outlined for the visitors.

Mrs. Jack Murray, principal, and Mrs. Alexander Page, assistant principal, were on hand to guide the parents through the buildings, which are furnished with junior-sized facilities for the young students.

Greeting parents in the evening were Mrs. Cyril D. Sterner, president of the Woman's Club, which sponsors the school, and Mrs. John E. Kelly, chairman of the pre-kindergarten board.



Parents interested in enrolling children in the School are urged to call Mrs. Murray, 545-2217.

Italian Luncheon Held by G-4-Tech Service Ladies

The Roman Room in the Villa Nova Restaurant was the setting for the Italian luncheon held February 20 for the G-4 Tech Service ladies.

New members, Mrs. E. C. Hiatt, Jr., and Mrs. W. L. Canaday, and guests Mrs. William J. Higgins, Jr., and Mrs. R. D. Freeman were welcomed.

Plans for a dinner to be held in March for the G-4-Tech Services officers and their ladies was announced by Mrs. W. A. Todd Jr.

Hostesses for the luncheon were the G-4 ladies, headed by Mrs. D. D. Dixon.

Coffee and dessert were served in the lounge where the ladies could view the television coverage of the historical landing of the astronaut, Lt. Col. John Glenn.

SPRING ACTION

Customs officials in London recently arrested a 58-year-old woman who tried to smuggle 455 wristwatches into the country by stuffing them into her corset.

Recently 15 Pacelli High students went to Emory University to attend the Barkley Forum. They participated in declaration, extemporaneous speaking, debate, and interpretive reading. Mary Mike Magner reached the semi-finals and Dixie Lee Watson was a finalist in the competition.

Other Pacellians were Ted Cleary, Greg Jones, Johnny Meeks, and Liz Reynolds.

Shakespearean Actors of the Catholic University in Washington D. C. presented two plays at the Royal Theater this week. Midsummer's Night Dream was presented on Tuesday followed by Richard III on Wednesday. Pacelli High sponsored the Players Inc. for the third consecutive year.

A gala Mardi Gras Ball is planned March 6. This year's Staid Staff is organizing the 2nd annual ball. Each class is electing its own king and queen. The class having the largest percentage of its members present will have its regal couple reign over the ball. Individual class spirit should make this night a success.

Fort Benning Pacellians are pioneering a Catholic Youth Organization for all catholic youths living on post. Further information wil be in the church bulletin.

Screams of triumph and groans of disappointment rang in the Municipal Auditorium last weekend. Although Jordan placed second and Columbus third, no local high school captured the AAA-1 region crown. Next year things will be different but until then gymnasiums will be quiet.

Bright prospects are being spotted for 1962's football season. Spring training is well underway in all the high schools. Speculation on the outcome of next year's season has already begun.

Several Benningites have been recognized for their climb into the heavens. We're mighty proud of them. A most outstanding award of scholarship was presented to David Roberts.

He not only won the STAR award for Baker, but also, the STAR award for Muscogee County. The STAR program means the Student Teacher Achievement Recognition Program. We're highly honored to have David in our ranks.

The Columbus High School Chapter of the National Honor Society inducted two more Benningites into its club. One being from each class—senior, Kay Jones and a junior, Rodald Alverex. These additions add even more to Benning's representation in the cycle of leadership, service, character, and scholarship.

Parties have been frequent recently as Spring draws near. The Roaring Lions twisted through a Sock Hop on February 24. Understand that things slowed down to a purr later in the evening.

The Columbus High School Debate Club recessed from all propositions on the same night leaving their points of clash in the background.

Brotherhood Week was observed at several of the schools by presenting Dr. Jan Stuart, a very dynamic and inspirational speaker. "Our American Heritage" was the theme of his speech. He tantalized every member in his audience.

Here is a man that truly fights for the teenager. So often people make teenagers a different race because of a rotten one per cent or 2 per cent. Dr. Stuart says that he doesn't see how we have faired so well because so much trash is thrown towards us from the direction of our elders. He admires us for resisting most of the filth.

Post Collectors Tell Interesting Stories of Coins

BY BILL GARDNER

The pursuit of the almighty dollar, or perhaps even the half cent, is the hobby of at least 25 post coin collectors.

These men are among 74 military and civilians who belong to the Muscogee Coin Club.

Second Lt. Jay P. Reakirt, motor officer for the 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, has searched for American coins ranging in value from a half cent to a dollar since the age of seven.

"It all began when an uncle of mine brought me a Whitman folder for pennies," the lieutenant said.

A Whitman folder is a coin holder with slots arranged in chronological sequence for a particular type coin, such as the Lincoln head penny.

Lt. Reakirt filled this folder and many more over the years. Now he has an almost complete collection of American fractional coins, which he keeps in specially built containers at a local bank.

"A fractional coin is a type, that when minted had a value of a dollar or less," he said. "Included among these are the half cent, several varieties of pennies, including the large cent, two and three-cent pieces, the nickel, half dime and dime, the 20-cent piece, quarter, half dollar and dollar."

Most Specialize

"Most people have to specialize in a type series of some sort," he continued, "because with over five million collectors in this country alone the demand for coins has become higher."

"This has led to a more expensive price and a reduced availability," he stated.

"Don't misunderstand me," he hastened to add. "Coin collecting is not a rich man's hobby, and this is attested to by the large number of people who are collectors."

Lt. Reakirt said that within the membership of the club there are some excellent type collections.

"One of these is an outstanding gold piece collection, owned by a local Columbus businessman," the officer added.

According to Reakirt, who, in connection with his hobby has done quite a bit of research, gold coins were first produced in this country in 1795 and continued until 1834. At this time the government stopped producing them. However, in 1849 it began again and continued until the U.S. went on the gold standard in 1936.

An interesting sidelight for post collectors especially the Ranger Department which conducts mountain training there, is the fact that Dahlonega had one of three mints devoted exclusively to the production of gold coins.

In addition, there were four mints that produced silver and copper, as well as gold coins, and each coin made in these mints will bear the respective mint identification.

Mint Marks

The mint marks are O for New Orleans, D for Denver and S for San Francisco. Coins made in the Philadelphia mint have no mint marks.

Mint marks are important aspects of a coin, and a penny made in Denver is not considered a 1937 penny, but a 1937D.

"The history of minting in this country is a study in itself," the lieutenant remarked.

"The first coin produced was a half-cent piece minted in August, 1793," he explained. "From this time until 1816, many different types were produced because they changed designs almost every year."

"In 1837 radical changes occured in the mints," Reakirt said. "Mass mintage and standardization of patterns began. Unwieldy coins such as the large cent were discontinued, as were the non-functional pieces, such as the half cent."

"Foreign monies, which had been considered legal tender since the Colonial Period, and money which had been made by the various states and local banks were called in by the Federal Government," he continued.

"Since then there have been changes in patterns, and even discontinuance, but they haven't occured quite as frequently," the collector asserted.

Crown Size Collection

Another interesting type collection is owned by Col. J. G. Cornett, chief of the Editorial and Pictorial Office, The Infantry School, who just recently joined the local club.

Col. Cornett's specialty is crown-size coins. Examples of these are the American silver dollar, the English crown and the Danish krone.

The history of these coins go back hundreds of years. Nobody seems to know just how far, and include almost every country in the world, some of which are no longer political entities.

"My first interest in coin collecting was a boyhood phase that soon passed," he said. "And it was not until after World War II, while stationed in Europe that my interest became rekindled."

Since then Col. Cornett has gathered an impressive set of crown-size coins from Europe, the Far East and South America, among other places.

Col. Cornett and Lt. Reakirt agree that traveling from place to place is helpful in connection with numismatics, but is not essential.

"In a specialty such as mine, where the coins are made and distributed over a wide global area, it is extremely helpful if you can visit all of these countries," Cornett said.

"However, this is impossible even for an Army man," he continued, "and as a result, I do my trading, like many other collectors, by mail."

Trade By Mail

Lt. Reakirt said there is extensive coin dealing through the mails, both with coin dealers and individual collectors.

"There seems to be a great deal of mutual trust between collectors," he said.

Some coins bring fantastic prices and are normally beyond the reach of the average collector. However, most of these are restricted to early years.

For example, the 1794 silver dollar is worth from $12,000 to $14,000.

The 1913 Liberty head nickel was made on an unauthorized basis and only five were minted. The last one sold recently for $50,000.

The officers pointed out that the best way to start in this hobby is collecting money that is presently in circulation and affiliating with a local organization. The Columbus group is the Muscogee Coin Club and meets the first Thursday of every month at 8 p.m. in the Chamber of Commerce Building.

Lt. Reakirt, secretary-treasurer of the club, invites all interested personnel to attend a meeting.

Infantry Brigade Reenlistment Plaque

Col. Lawrence S. Reynolds, 29th Infantry commander, recently received, on behalf of the 29th Infantry, the 1st Infantry Brigade Quarterly Reenlistment Plaque from Col. William H. Birdsong, commander of the 1st Infantry Brigade. The Award was made at the brigade headquarters.

ARMY SAFETY PAYS

The Army has earned the National Safety Council's highest award, the Award of Honor, 15 times in the last 17 years to become the only federal agency with 50,000 employees or more to have won the award a second time.
