The technical positions are aircraft electrical systems repairer, artillery repairer, engineer equipment operator and small arms repairer.

To qualify as an aircraft electrical systems repairer at $2.19 per hour, an applicant must have had four years of progressive experience which may include apprenticeship in the installation, construction, repair and (or) overhaul of electrical controls, and electrical instruments.

The total experience must include or be supplemented by one year in constructing, repairing and (or) overhauling wiring, connections, electrical instruments and electrical accessories on aircraft.

Applicants for artillery repairer, which pays $2.34 per hour, must have a total of three years experience, including 18 months of general and 18 months of specialized experience.

Classified as general experience is work as a machinist, maintenance mechanic or millwright engaged in the manufacture, repair, overhaul or maintenance of production machinery or other heavy equipment.

Specialized experience includes maintenance, repair and overhaul of artillery and must include the use of hand and machine tools.

Small arms repairer applicants should have 18 months over-all experience, including one year in mechanical trades, work as a machinist, instructor in the use and care of small arms or experience in assembling or disassembling precision instruments or mechanisms.

The remaining six months should include specialized experience in overhaul, repair and assembly, manufacturing assembly or process inspection of assembly of a variety of small arms, including the use of hand and machine tools.

The position pays $1.78 per hour.

The job of engineer equipment operator at $1.78 per hour requires one year of experience in the operation of 1½ to 2½-ton motor trucks, including making minor repairs and adjustments to the vehicles.

In addition, applicants should have six months experience in the operation of special spraying equipment associated with the exterminating business, and selection, mixing and application of insecticides and rodenticides. Applicants should be able to apply trade knowledge effectively in controling household insects and rodents.

Applicants for reporting stenographer will be required to take a written general clerical test and verbatim dictation at the rate of 120 words per minute. No experience is required.

For further information contact the Board of Civil Service Examiners, Civilian Personnel Section, Building 1620, on the post.

11 Nurses Aides Capped In Hospital Ceremonies

Eleven volunteer Nurse's Aides were capped in recent ceremonies in the American Red Cross Recreation Hall at Martin Army Hospital.

Mrs. Ben Harrell, wife of Major Gen. Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center, pinned the aides with the emblem of their chosen service.

Col. William A. Todd, Jr., hospital commander, made the welcoming address. The aides were capped by Lt. Col. Helen Palmer, chief of the hospital Nursing Service.

Certificates were presented by J. W. Gregory, chairman of the Muscogee County Chapter, American Red Cross.

Col. Todd told the aides, "You represent the things the hospital cannot possibly supply for the patient."

"Being sick is a complicated thing. There was a time when a patient was in familiar surroundings, attended by the family physician," he continued.

"Today, we are in a stage of specialization," Col. Todd said. "The touch of the family doctor is lost, yet the patient still must be considered as a whole. This requires team work. Your efforts on the wards contribute materially to the well-being and progress of the patient."

Receiving caps in the ceremony were Mrs. C. W. Clapsaddle, Mrs. Norbert J. Gannon, Mrs. Lee W. Harp, Mrs. John L. Harris, Mrs. Roy Hollar, Mrs. Venston K. Kirkley, Mrs. William A. Lowe, Mrs. James R. Warren, Mrs. Martin Wech, Mrs. Gordon Williams and Mrs. Robert Williams.

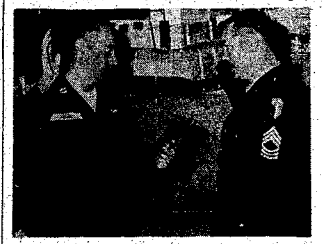
The 1st Infantry Brigade Sports a New Library



Sporting the latest in modern furnishings, the 1st Infantry Brigade Library, which was officially opened in November, 1961, is now in full swing.

Under 'Librarians' Sgt. James C. Williams and Sp4 Richard D. Rice, the library can now boast of some of the finer comforts found in only the best libraries. Over 5,000 books weigh down its shelves, while the new language courses on record, along with accompanying textbooks, lend to the learning of any of 15 languages.

Collier's and Britannica's encyclopedia (latest editions) along with numerous other reference books place this library high on the lists of students. For those with time to spare and an active sense of humor, there is a complete section devoted to cartoon novels featuring such well-known cartoonists as Al Capp, tainer of "Li'l Abner."

There is a variety of 36 magazines available from which to choose. Among these are sports, art, photography, farming, car and hot rod, as well as informative magazines. Heading the list of newspapers is the Alaska Times and at the bottom is the Florida News with all the states in between appropriately represented.

Like Music? Every Thursday night from 7:30 to 9:00 is Record Night at the library. There is a 250-record album collection with just about any type of music classical, semi classical, folk, western, popular, jazz, and rock and roll.

OVER 20 . . . MSgt Patrick Samples, who has been awarded an Army Commendation Medal for service as a mess stewart in the Far East during which time he operated a mess selected as Best Mess for 20 consecutive months, reenlists for three more years toward his goal of 30 years. He already has served more than 20 years. Sgt. Samples is now assigned as mess stewart at the Lawson Army Aviation Command's transient mess.

Grooms First In Smallbore Rifle Matches

Sp4 Clyde E. Grooms, Headquarters Company, 1st Infantry Brigade, took first place honors in the recent 1962 Indoor individual Infantry Center Smallbore Winter Gallery Matches.

Grooms scored 372 out of a possible 400 points.

He won over Sp4 Doyce M. Woods, Company C, 46th Engineer Battalion, who also scored 372 points.

Third place winner was 2nd Lt. Joseph D. Huddleston, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 58th Infantry, who tallied 370 points.

Each individual contestant fired 40 shots for record.

In team competition the 151st Engineer Group topped the 1st Infantry Brigade by scoring 2,129 out of a maximum of 2,400 points to the Brigade's 2,123.

The Center Troop Command's 2,085 points were good for third place.

Teams from the Student Brigade and Lawson Army Aviation Command also competed.

The firing course included shooting with the .22 caliber rifle in the prone, sitting, kneeling and standing positions on the Marksmanship Training Unit Smallbore Range.

The matches were conducted to promote training interest, raise proficiency standards, improve firing techniques for major unit rifle teams during the winter season and to provide shoulder - to - shoulder competition in preparation for The Infantry Center championships.

Philippine Officer To Speak at Local Lions Club Dinner

An Allied officer at The Infantry School addressed the Columbus Lions Club Tuesday at the Ralston Hotel.

The speaker was Major Patrocinio T. Dacanay of Manila, Philippine Islands.

The major has 17 years of service. He has held assignments in the security and investigation fields.

Institute to Be Dedicated

An Army institute of Dental Research, the first of its kind in the Armed Services, will be formally dedicated at Walter Reed Army Medical Center, Washington, on March 2.

The new Institute will be located in the Walter Reed Army Institute of Research and will come under the jurisdiction of the Army Surgeon General. The Institute will be part of the Army Medical Research and Development Command.

The founding of the Institute will coincide with the 51st anniversary of organization of the Army Dental Corps. Principal speaker at the dedication ceremonies will be Lt. Gen. Arthur G. Trudeau, the Army's Chief of Research and Development.

"This institute will enable us to meet the increasing need for more extensive research in the field of dentistry," according to Major Gen. Joseph L. Bernier, chief of the Army Dental Corps.

"Its main objective is to continue to find means of reducing the incidence of oral disease, with emphasis on prevention, and to devise simplified techniques which will permit rapid and effective dental treatment, including injuries to the jaw."

Future plans relating to the new Institute include the establishment of five subordinate research activities in presently existing military facilities. These activities are now scheduled to be located at Walter Reed Army Medical Center, Fort Sam Houston, Texas; Fort Louis and at Alameda, California.

MAKE PRESENTATION . . . Representatives of Benning's Girl Scouts present a 1962 calendar to The Infantry Center deputy commanding general, Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly. 3,000 Expected at Gowdy Field

Brownies, Girl Scouts Set Mass Rededication Sunday

Approximately 3,000 Brownie, Intermediate and Senior Girl Scouts will attend a Concharty Council rededication ceremony at 4 p.m. Sunday on Gowdy Field.

The program is part of a week-long celebration of the Golden Anniversary of the Girl Scout movement.

Scouts and their parents attending the ceremony are requested to enter the post at Oupost 1 on Benning Road. Markers will be placed at intersections, directing guests to Gowdy Field.

Guest speaker for the rededication ceremony will be Miss Katherine Park of Atlanta, past director of National Girl Scout Camp Juliette Lowe.

She will speak on "Three Words to Bind Us."

Color Guard

A color guard will be formed by Scouts who have been selected to attend the 1962 Girl Scout Round-up in Button Bay, Vt., July 18 to 30.

They were Jo Ann Acton, daughter of MSgt and Mrs. Joel R. Acton; Cathy Fitch, daughter of WO and Mrs. Ralph M. Fitch; LaJuan Lawrence, daughter of MSgt (Ret.) and Mrs. Lester Lawrence, and Gail Brophy, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. William S. Brophy.

Ushers at the ceremony will be members of Senior Girl Scout Troops 57 of Fort Benning and 58 of Columbus.

Mrs. Charles Skipworth, president of Concharty Council, will make the welcome address and recognize honored guests.

The guests will include past presidents and board members of the council, officials of cities in the 12 counties which comprise the council, general officers of the post and representatives of civic clubs in the area.

Pageant and Music

A pageant, "The Golden Promise," will be presented.

Music for the ceremony will Report on 'Operation Look See II'

Post NCO Is Confident After Visit to Germany

The high degree of combat readiness of U.S. forces in Europe greatly impressed a post sergeant who was one of 50 Reserve component non-commissioned officers who went to Europe on "Operation Look See II."

First Sgt. Marine F. Damvelt, a member of Company C, 156th Signal Battalion, a Michigan National Guard unit on active duty, said, "The situation along the East German frontier is tense, but the capabilities of the Seventh Army are such that I feel confident about our ability to meet any emergency."

Operation Look See II was the second in a series of missions designed to orient National Guardsmen and Reservists on the mission and readiness of U.S. forces in Europe.

The hand-picked group on the six-day field training tour talked with top Army generals and West German officials, toured the wall dividing East and West Berlin, and flew along the East German border area.

They were met at Frankfurt's Rhein Main Air Force Base by Gen. Bruce C. Clarke, commander-in-chief of U. S. Army Europe, the originator of Operation Look See.

After being guests at a breakfast hosted by West German officials, the men divided into two groups of 25 each and visited Berlin where they watched the inspections at the only East Berlin crossing point open to U.S. military forces.

They also visited the Garden of Remembrance, a Russian war memorial in East Berlin, walked along the concrete wall that divides the city and visited the French and British sectors.

"The difference between the two parts of the divided city are tremendous," said Damvelt. "Everything is much better in the free parts of Berlin and this includes clothing, construction and consumer goods in general."

Elaborating on the East Berlin construction, he likened them to "poor masons" and said, "The wall, and from what I could see, most of the buildings in the Communist sector appeared likely to fall down at any moment."

One of the highlights of the trip, according to Damvelt, was the visit to the 14th Armored Cavalry Regiment, which guards the frontier at Fulda Gap.

The sergeant stated that he was quite impressed with the efficiency and skill of the regiment.

"The passage through this gap," he related, "has many

Army Offers

Some 60 Mo. O'Seas Tours

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—Voluntary extensions of overseas tours to a maximum of 60 months are available to Army personnel now serving overseas.

Authority for this extension was contained in a recent DA message, No. 590811, backing up a previous message, No. 588150, which in January offered any individual, then overseas, the opportunity to voluntarily serve more than the normal 48 months limit.

Many of these people were already on 54 month tours, having extended to 48 months prior to the Berlin buildup. Involuntary extensions added another six months to their tours.

The involuntary extensions were either reduced or wiped out when orders went out recently for the phase back of such extensions.

To avoid confusion over rotation dates, the Army then directed that all involuntarily extended personnel be consulted personally to establish their new dates of return to the U. S. At that time, the order was given allowing voluntary extensions in excess of 48 months.

Those wishing to take advantage of the maximum 60 month tour must take up their option no later than December 31, 1962. Extensions will be given in multiples of six months and in no case shall tours exceed 60 months.

Future extensions will be limited to six months increments, with tours not to exceed 48 months. Requests for extensions normally must be made not less than eight months prior to previously established rotation dates. This limitation does not apply to those rotatees whose adjusted dates fall in July, August or September of this year.

Post P-TA's 2,641 Membership Makes It Largest in Georgia

The post P-TA, with an enrollment of 2,641 parents and teachers, is the largest in Georgia. The parents represent a school enrollment of 3,100 military dependents.

Twenty of 93 classrooms of the Post Children's Schools have a record of 100 per cent parent membership. Many other classrooms are nearing the 100 per cent mark.

"This year's enrollment in P-TA, unprecedented in the history of the post, represents the activity of a large number of people," according to Col. Sears Y. Coker, P-TA president.

"Principal among these are Capt. Abraham F. Muscari, chairman of the Membership Committee, and Mrs. J. H. Murray, Jr., and her well organized Room Mothers Committee," he added.

Special Projects

He cited some of the special projects the members have engaged in, specifically a bicycle safety drive in the schools.

The campaign included films on safety, lectures by military policemen and distributing simplified bicycle rules. Each bicycle owner was given a questionnaire to be completed by the child and checked and signed by a parent.

Parents have conducted a P-TA magazine subscription drive and established a P-TA reference library.

Benning schools are equipped with the latest machines to supplement the curriculum, Col. Coker said.

A caliphone with earphones is used in language and music instruction. Tape recorders, record players, TV sets, projectors and a controlled reader, a machine to increase reading speed, are used extensively in the schools.

An audiometer is used to test hearing and an ortho-rater to test vision, Col. Coker said.

P-TA Officers

Officers of the post P-TA include Col. Coker, president; Lt. Col. Thomas M. Sterling, first vice president, and Sgt. Major Norman Nekkelsen, second vice president.

Mrs. J. W. Williams, secretary; Mrs. Joseph Hall, assistant secretary; Sfc Lester H. Commander, treasurer, and Sfc William N. Hill, assistant treasurer.

Mrs. Hazel J. Scudder is superintendent of schools.

Col. Lincoln Is Guest Speaker At USMA Founder's Day Dinner

Col. George A. Lincoln, professor and head of the Department of Social Sciences at the U. S. Military Academy, West Point, will be the featured speaker at the March 16 USMA Founder's Day Dinner to be held in the Main Officers' Open Mess.

The annual event is a tradition with graduates of the academy, and will begin at 7 p.m.

In charge of reservations is Capt. James H. Bremer of The Infantry School's Special Subjects Department. He may be reached at 545-4793.

YAC DONATION . . . Major Gen. Ben Harrell (R), post commander, presents a check for $52.43 to Col. Samuel W. First Formed

The first Girl Scout Troop in the U. S. was formed in Savannah, Ga., March 12, 1912. Miss Juliette Lowe organized the troop with 12 girls.

The movement has spread throughout the nation and now numbers 2,646,000 Girl Scouts and 773,000 adult members.

The Fort Benning Girl Scout Neighborhood has 430 Girl Scouts and 65 adults.

There are 24 troops which meet in huts on the Main Post, and in the Custer Terrace, Capehart, Harmony Church and Baker Village areas.

The Fort Benning Neighborhood, one of many in the Columbus Council, is sponsored by the Youth Activities Club on the post, with the support of the 1st Infantry Brigade. Major John Hare is Girl Scout coordinator.

Honorary chairman of the Fort Benning Girl Scouts is Mrs. Ben Harrell, wife of Major Gen. Harrell, post commanding general.

Among those who have served as honorary chairmen in the past are Mesdames Omar Bradley, Willis Matthew, Hobart Gay, Marcus Bell, George Patton, Leven Allen.

Former Fort Benning troop leaders participated in the organization of the first American "TOPS" (Troops on Foreign Soil) in Germany and Japan.

Girl Scouts at Fort Benning collect clothing for needy children, pack and ship the articles.

They have raised funds for the March of Dimes by selling soft drink bottles and collecting donations.

All troops on the post have planted bulbs this year to form a "Blossom Trail" in honor of the 50th anniversary. The bulbs were planted around Scout huts, at the Pet Cemetery and the Country Club.

Confident

times in history been one of the major routes by which people coming out of the East invade the West."

When asked about what would happen if anybody decided to launch an invasion through the gap, Damvelt smiled and said. "After visiting with the 14th I feel that they could handle the situation."

Everything the men learned on the trip had to be digested on the spot so they would be able to brief the personnel of the Army National Guard and Reserve units that were called to active duty under the buildup.

Damvelt said, "Every Guardsman and Reservist should feel like they are an integral part of our combat readiness."

"Maybe none of them will ever get to Europe, or be called upon to fight the enemy, but our country was able, by calling them to active duty, to release the Regular Army personnel who were needed to build our forces in Europe from stateside duty without endangering the safety of our country."

Damvelt does not know when he will begin his briefing of the Reserve components here at Fort Benning, but he said he is ready and that this trip provided him with the information to make each man feel he is an important member of the One Army team.

Throw Away The Coal Bucket! We Are Modernizing

The old coal burning cooking ranges, used in company mess halls at Fort Benning for the past generation, will be abandoned in the march of progress.

Replacing them will be new gas stoves that will burn propane liquid petroleum fuel. The changeover is the result of the increasing difficulty in obtaining replacement parts for coalburners. Because of the steadily declining demand, many needed parts are no longer stocked by dealers.

Some 50 mess halls, most of them in the Sand Hill area, will receive the new stoves. Their installation is expected to provide considerable savings in maintenance and will result in smoke less cooking heat.

No date as yet has been set for opening the bidding by contractors for the conversion. When the changeover begins, it is expected to be completed within three to four months.

'Voting Information' Pamhplet Published for Military by DOD

Washington (AFPS) — Military personnel stationed throughout the world are being informed about elections and voting qualifications and procedures in their home states through a pamphlet and calendar type chart published by the Department of Defense, Directorate for Armed Forces Information and Education.

Titled "Voting Information" and published every two years with interim supplements, the pamphlet and chart contain a rundown of current election dates and offices to be filled, as well as a digest in laymen's language of the absentee regulations of each state. The information is strictly nonpartisan and does not include names of candidates.

Both the pamphlet and chart are widely used not only by the military services, including the Coast Guard, but by also the Merchant Marine and executive agencies of the Federal government having a considerable number of employees overseas.

The Defense Department has more personnel who are obliged to be away from home at election time than any other federal agency. For this reason, when Congress passed "The Federal Voting Assistance Act of 1955," the Defense Department was designated to coordinate the program aimed at helping service members, civilian employees overseas and certain other persons exercise their voting franchise by absentee process.

Assistant Secretary of Defense for Manpower Carlisle P. Runge is coordinator of the program.

Voting laws vary widely among states and the act focuses attention on problems of members of the Armed Forces Merchant Marine, religious groups and welfare agencies assisting military services, civilian federal employees serving overseas and their dependents.

As a way of streamlining procedures for absentee but otherwise qualified voters, the of a Federal Post Card Application Form. Every state has altered its laws in some way to provide for acceptance of the post card from members of the Armed Forces.

Many states also include other specified groups or have such legislation under consideration.

Guerrilla Warfare

March 'Army' Issue Covers 'Hot' Subject

The hottest subject in military and political circles in the past year has been guerrilla warfare. Army Magazine has given widespread coverage to the subject in many past issues.

Each issue just published — the editors have a series of articles which point up the current big push in guerrilla warfare.

Lloyd Norman, Military Analyst for Newsweek, in collaboration with the editor of Army, leads off with an article that explores the president's position on special forces to meet fare and examines the Army's steps — past and present—to provide the required special forces.

In "Guerrilla Warfare— As The High Command See's It," the editors of Army synopsize the views of the president's principal advisors on this vital subject.

Gen. George H. Decker, Army chief of staff, summarizes the problem, "The capability to conduct guerrilla and counterfully is essential to our National security, for this form of conflict seems more likely today than either nuclear or large-scale conventional warfare."

To provide impetus to its Special Warfare program, the Army has called on two young and vigorous generals. At 43, Brig. Gen. William B. Rosson, the youngest Army general on duty, has been selected to head the new office of Special Warfare in the Pentagon. Commandant of the Army's Special Warfare School at Fort Bragg, is Brig. Gen. William P. Yarborough, a 1936 West Point graduate. Brief personality sketches of these two are found in the March issue.

Pertinent protions of Nikita Khrushchev's speech on January 6, 1961, in which he justifies communist support of "Wars of National Liberation," is another must for the readers of Army. President Kennedy has urged every general officer to read this enlightening speech on communist doctrine.

"Whether it has been standing vigil in the bleak hills of the North West Frontier of India, or helping the Greek army rout out communist gangs in Thessally, I have had plenty of time and opportunity to reflect on the techniques of Brig. R. C. H. Miers, British Army. As one well versed in guerrilla warfare, Brig. Miers tells how to organize a guerrilla force — how to defeat a guerrilla force.

As a final bonus to readers, Riley Sunderland, a consultant on guerrilla warfare to a large research agency, reviews four recent publications on guerrilla warfare. Sunderland, who helped write the official World War II History of the China-Burma-India Theater, explains an opinion that jungle warfare is not guerrilla warfare.

In Cadence

It has been refreshing and gratifying to note that Reserve and National Guard units recalled to active duty last fall and stationed here have been rated excellent or superior by the Inspector General's Section.

The units are good ones — they are well trained, hard working, and adapt to active duty with a sense of responsibility. They take their obligations seriously, even though there is no shooting war, and this is the type of response which helps prevent a shooting war.

All this points up a change in recent years. Many can remember the time when there was a definite dividing line in many minds between Regular Army and Reserve or NG personnel — with both criticizing the other. Today we can see these units being accepted as equals, as true members of the One Army complex, and we find them accepting an equal place among Regular units at The Infantry Center.

Army Training Test results are good, too, for these units. The latest report to reach us is that the 156th Signal Battalion (Michigan National Guard) received an excellent rating. The battalion is commanded by Major Fred N. Scott.

It's Red Cross Campaign Time

The American National Red Cross is conducting its annual campaign for funds this month. Our Nation's largest voluntary organization, the ARC has 3,600 chapters and is affiliated with 86 other Red Cross Societies around the world.

This organization's services to servicemen and women and their families, and its training programs in first aid, water safety, nursing and youth training deserve the support of all of us.

President Kennedy, as honorary chairman of the organization, recently said in part: "I urge your full personal support of and cooperation with this campaign in order to assure the capacity of our Red Cross to meet its reponsibilities to the American people.

"A strong Red Cross is vital to our Nation in these critical times. Employees of the Federal Government and members of the military establishment are urged to continue their fine support of the Red Cross so that it can serve today and be prepared for tomorrow."

The Surgeon Says:

Check Your Polio Shot Record Now!

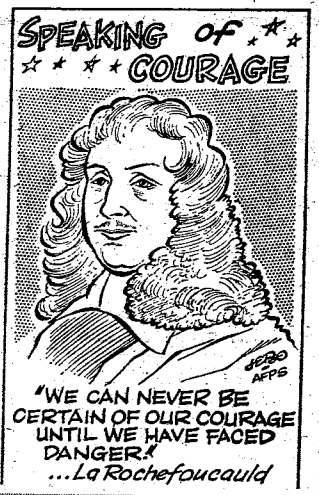
By Capt. Leonard F Greenberg, MC

Information recently received from the U.S. Public Health Service indicates that more than a third of the civilian population under sixty years of age have not received even one shot of polio vaccine. Those not immunized run a special risk should there be an unswing in the polio cycle this year.

In the one to five year old group (where most polio has occurred in recent years) about thirteen percent never received immunizations, and fifty-eight percent still have less than the optimum of four immunizations.

Among youngsters from five to fourteen years (the best immunized group), seven percent remain unprotected; forty percent have received less than four shots.

Among the fifteen to twenty year olds, sixteen percent have received no shots; fifty-six percent have gotten less than four.



And in the young adults (the group most likely to suffer), the full quota of shots had been given to only twenty-eight percent of those between twenty and thirty years, and to twenty-four percent of those between thirty and forty years.

Check your family's immunization records today. If the basic series of four immunizations have not been completed, or if you have not come to the Dependent's Immunization Clinic, Building 236, Old Hospital Headquarters immediately. (Hours of operation: 8-11 a.m.; 1-4 p. m. Monday through Friday.)

Military personnel should report to their servicing dispensary.

In order that all school children will have an opportunity to receive their polio immunizations, the Immunization Clinic will remain open Saturday, March 24 from 8 to 11 a.m.

A parent must accompany all children reporting for immunization, with the current immunization record.

Chaplain's Corner

A Prayer in Commemoration Of 1962 World Day of Prayer

BY CHAPLAIN (COL.) SILAS E. DECKER

Almighty and Eternal God, our Father, in whose providence nations continue and in whose care Thy children daily trust; we bless Thee for all Thy goodness toward us and all men everywhere.

We thank Thee for the blessings and responsibilities from both our heavenly and earthly citizenship. Bless our Country with a citizenry who will obey Thy will and who under your guiding hand will hasten into being Thy Kingdom upon earth.

We pray for the coming of peace within and among all nations, when all men will serve Thee and one another from a motive of unselfishness which only can hasten the advent of social justice at home and among all peoples everywhere.

We pray for men and women in our armed services who daily take their stand upon the ramparts of this troubled world, ready to strengthen the desires of people for freedom and personal dignity.

Where we have sinned, forgive us; when we are weak, strengthen us and should we fear, make us heroic to do Thy sacred will.

We offer this our prayer in the Holy Name of Him who has loved us with an everlasting love. — AMEN.

Editorial

Col. Glenn's Reception Recalls a Hero of 1927

For older people it was spring of 1927 all over again. The crowds were huge and wildly enthusiastic. In Washington the procession was triumphal; in New York the ticker tape showered down in torrents on Broadway. America was taking a hero to her heart.

Now at last a younger generation, fired by the achievement of Astronaut John Glenn, can understand the fierce mood of adulation that swept the nation 35 years ago when Charles A. Lindbergh—"Lucicy Lindy," "The Lone Eagle"—came home after his historic New York-to-Paris flight in The Spirit of St. Louis.

For Lindbergh represented all that was best in the American character. This tall, lanky, open-faced man of 25 seemed a modern Viking. Adventurous, modest, dedicated to the life of a pilot, he was a living refutation of the charge that America in the mid-twenties was a nation grown fat and materialistic. His solo flight fired the national imagination. Twenty-six years after the event he was to tell the full story of it — and tell it magnificently—in his extraordinary book, The Spirit of St. Louis.

Who could have foreseen that, only 35 years after the frail little silver monoplane came down out of the night sky over Paris after a 3,600-mile flight in 33½ hours, another American would orbit the earth in less than 90 minutes? Yet it is the irresistible continuity of man's forward push into the universe — from the Wrights to Lindbergh to Glenn. "Knowledge begets knowledge," the astronaut told the joint meeting of Congress that honored him. In 1927 it was the Lone Eagle who carried the torch; today it is the hero of Friendship 7.

And tomorrow? We know it will be Americans of their daring and fortitude, men whose names, like those of Lindbergh and Glenn, will be imperishable in our history. (AFPS)

The Judge Says . . .

BY 1ST LT. BERNARD E. BURK

Paragraph 9, AR 600 - 10, states in part that, "The Department of the Army does not condone an attitude of irresponsibility or evasiveness by its personnel toward their private indebtedness or financial obligations. Members of the Army are expected to discharge their private indebtedness and financial obligations in an honorable manner. The Department of the Army is without legal authority to require a member to pay a private debt. . .

Army commanders will give careful consideration to the public relations aspect involved in private indebtedness and financial obligations, as well as to indoctrinating members of their commands in the individual's responsibility with respect to private obligations."

As you may well discern, although military personnel are lawfully entitled to take advantage of the federal bankruptcy laws which can result in discharge of some debts and obligations, it can be a costly and degrading proceeding, and it is not recommended.

An adjudication or finding by the court that you have declared yourself bankrupt is a stain on the good reputation of the responsible soldier. It impairs his credit standing if not destroying it entirely. Bankruptcy is no substitute for sound and sensible management.

In order to avoid a complete or straight bankruptcy, the Wager-Earners Plan, which is one section of the Federal Bankruptcy Act, may be used.

To be eligible for this plan, the debtor must show that his principal income is devised from wages, salary or commissions.

In essence, the Wage-Earner Plan allows the debtor to pay off all his debts by inducing the creditors to reduce the monthly payments that were originally agreed upon; and extending the payments over a longer period of time.

The plan is not binding upon creditors until confirmed. Confirmation requires the written acceptance of the plan by a majority in number and amount of all unsecured creditors (that is, creditors to whom the debtor has not pledged either real or personal property as security) who are affected by the plan and whose claims have been proved and allowed.

Confirmation also requires the acceptance of each secured creditor dealt with by the plan. It should be noted that a plan must include unsecured creditors while the inclusion of each secured creditor is optional.

In practice, therefore, the

Woman's Club Diary

Plans are underway for the Spring Trip to Atlanta, which is open to all women on post. Membership in the Woman's Club is NOT required to join us for this day of shopping. Call Mrs. N. E. Smith, 545-2496, for your ticket now, as the deadline for reservations is March 15.

The day includes transportation, boxed luncheon, and a fashion show and tea, plus lots of time to look and shop. The new Spring fashions and decor will open that week, featuring "Springiandia".

Cookbooks from the Woman's Club are now on sale at a jewelry store and restaurant in Columbus, as well as the Main Club and the Book Store on post. The number of copies left are limited, so get yours now before they are sold out. There are some wonderful recipes included, and I find new and easier ways of doing things in my copy each week.

You won't want to miss the April Luncheon, which is scheduled for April 4 at the Supper Club. A gala musical revue, "La Compagnie" will be the program. Written, produced, directed, and starring members of the club, it promises to be funny, witty, and very real to all wives.

If you are not already a member of the club and want to attend, call Mrs. Walters, 545-4607. Ladies of the 1st Infantry Brigade will sponsor this luncheon. Mrs. Wallace McClain is chairman.

Post NCO Wives are announcing that the Ceramics Club is again in operation on a regular schedule - hours as follows: Tuesday, 9 a.m. to noon; Thursday, noon to 3 p.m.; and Friday, 7 to 10 p.m. For further information you may call Martha Kaney at 544-2140.

We are still looking for bridge players, girls! If you are interested come and join our group at Crain Hall every Tuesday, starting at 9 a.m. Do not be afraid that you don't know enough about the game, none of us are real experts.

Say, why don't all of you come out to the clubhouse on Wednesdays? We have something entertaining going on every week. There are always delicious refreshments, games, prizes and last but not least, good company.

We will have a showing of hats at Crain Hall March 14, and hope to welcome every member and lots and lots of newcomers at that event.

Woman's Club List of Events

Duplicate Bridge: Each Monday, 12:45, Main Officers Club Mrs. Paul Serff, MU 9-6087, chairman.

Ceramics: Building 1061. Open 9-12, 1-4, 7-10 Mondays through Thursdays. Open 9-12, 1-4 Friday and Saturday. Classes begin periodically. Mrs. Douglas Syverson, 545-1908.

Choral Group: if you have a yen to sing, call Mrs. Wallace Lancaster 545-4397.

Bowling: League now forming. First meeting September 7, 8 p.m. Call Mrs. Stephen Carrig, 545-3098.

School of Music: Piano lessons for beginners and experienced students. Mrs. Paul Ingle 545-4598.

School of Dance: Group and private lessons in tape, toe, ballet. Children aged three and up. Call Mrs. John Bohen, 545-3318.

Pre-Kindergarten School: A pre-school for three and four year olds. Building 1125-1183, Mrs. Jack Murray, 545-2217.

Thrift Shop: Open each Tuesday and Thursday 10 a.m. 'til 2 p.m. Building 1304. Mrs. Sterner, 545-3338.

Correction

The list of Woman's Club of Fort Benning nominations for offices for 1962-'63 as printed in the Bayonet last week was in error. Nominations for recording secretary should have listed Mrs. Ephriam Goss and Mrs. John Jeter; and these nominated for custodian were Mrs. John Burtne and Mrs. Edwin O'Donnell. The Bayonet regrets the error in reporting the names of those nominated.

Spice CABINET

NO TURNING . . . To keep raw potatoes from turning brown, place them in cold water for a short time.

Protestant Group To Meet March 15

The Student Brigade Women- of - the - Chapels will meet at 9:30 a.m. March 15 at the Religious Education Center, Building 2606. The program will be on The Lord's Prayer. All Protestant women of the post are invited.

Report Card...

The chief ambition of the subject of today's Report Card is to be an Army Officer. Walter Todd, son of Col. and Mrs. Walter Todd, is the personality of our salute.

He is a senior at Columbus High School. He has a sister, Tilda who also attends Columbus High where she is a member of the Sophonobre Class.

Walter is from South Carolina. He was born on November 29, 1943, in Laurens, which he calls "home".

Having attended Columbus High School for the past four years, Walter has achieved an outstanding scholastic record. This year he is one of the Senior Attractives and will appear in the Columbus High School annual, The Cohisean in a special section.

Walter received this honor when he was voted as one of the ten most handsome boys in the Class of "62".

After taking ROTC for three years, Walter was awarded the rank of lieutenant. He enjoys ROTC and feels this program will help him with his future plans.

Walter has been a member of the CHS Track team for two years and is looking forward to this season. During his freshman year, he joined the Junior Classical League which improved his understanding of Latin.

This year Walter's schedule includes Trig, Advanced Algebra, ROTC, Physics, Government and English. His favorite subject is history. He also has enjoyed all of his political science courses.

Walter likes to travel. He has lived in Japan and Turkey and in the states of South Carolina, Pennsylvania, Kansas, Washington and Georgia.

Included in Walter's future plans is a college degree upon graduation from high school. He has an appointment to the U. S. Military Academy and plans to make the Army his career.

When I asked Walter his opinion of Army life he said, "I like Army life and the experience of traveling and meeting new people . . . For this reason, I chose the Army as a career for myself."

During the four years that he has lived at Benning, Walter has attended Sunday School and the Main Post Protestant Chapel. He is a member of Follow-Me-Club, the Teenage Protestant Fellowship Club and has served as its president. He is an usher on the Follow-Me-Club Usher Team which serves the Main Post Protestant Chapel.

In his spare time, he enjoys drawing and playing the guitar.

The Todds reside at 105 Rainbow Avenue. Col. Todd is Battle Group Commander of the Second Battle Group, 1st Infantry, 2nd Division.

The record that Walter Todd has made for himself distinguishes him as an excellent example of a Benningite who participates in many activities, both in Columbus and at Fort Benning. Report Card is proud to salute Walter as the outstanding teen personality of the week!

World Day of Prayer Services Will Be Announced by Chimes

The chimes of The Infantry Center Protestant Chapel will sound a call to prayer this morning.

In recognition of the World Day of Prayer, there will be two 15-minutes carillon concerts at the chapel.

The first chime interlude of music on prayer is scheduled to begin at 9:45 a.m. to precede a World Day of Prayer service at 10 a.m. at the chapel.

The second 15-minute concert will begin at 11:45 a.m., announcing a 12 noon World Day of Prayer service at Martin Army Hospital Chapel.

Expected to attend the services" are approximately 200 members of the Women-of-the-Chapels of the Main Post, No. 3 and Student Brigade Chapels and the Women's Auxiliary of St. Michael's Episcopal Mission.

The service at the hospital will be attended by ambulatory patients, members of the hospital staff and civilian employees. The service will be broadcast by closed circuit Radio Station WMAH to pillow speakers provided for bed patients.

The program for both services will be on "For God so Loved the World."

Written by two women from Uruguay, the program is being presented today in 145 countries as women all over the world unite in prayer for home and foreign missions.

Chairman of arrangements for World Day of Prayer observice on the post is Mrs. Arthur J. Estes.

At the console for the carillon concerts will be MSgt Frank G. Hardin.

Satisfy Man in The Mirror Management Group Is Told

The person you have to satisfy is the one you see in your mirror, 55 members of the Armed Forces Management Association were told at a luncheon meeting last week at the Custer Terrace Branch of the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Lt. Col. Charles F. Austin, who addressed the association on "That Unforgiving Minute," a deputy commander of the 2nd Battle Group, 1st Infantry 2nd Infantry Division.

"Every waking moment is spent in trying to satisfy one of many roles we play in life," Col. Austin said.

These roles may include that of father, son, husband, nephew, child of God, Army officer and even pet owner, he continued.

The colonel advised the group to check up on their progress in each role.

"Do not set up unattainable goals for yourself," he said.

On the other hand, he cautioned that people are prone to underestimate their own progress in attaining goals.

"We remember our failures longer than our successes," Col. Austin said.

"The person you have to satisfy is the one you see in the mirror — not the boss—if you want to maintain mental health," he concluded.

Col. Austin entered the Army as a private in 1942. He was commissioned a second lieutenant in 1943 upon graduation from the Finance Department Officer Candidate School. He transferred to the Infantry in 1950.

Col. Austin was graduated from the University of Maryland in College Park with a bachelor of science in military science. In 1955, he received a master's degree in business administratiron at Harvard Graduate School at Cambridge, Mass.

He is the author of numerous Articles on leadership and management.

Hand-Held Radar Developed For Targets a Mile Away

A miniature combat radar, a ten pound unit that is held like a submachine gun and can spot moving targets more than a mile away, has been developed by the Army.

The experimental hand-held flashlight radar, designed at the Army Signal Research and Development Laboratory, Fort Monmouth, New Jersey, produces an audible signal when an object passes through its invisible beam. It ignores stationary terrain, and picks out only moving objects.

A tank, a jeep or soldiers moving toward the radar are clearly detected, and each gives a characteric sound. An experienced operator can spot a tank by its two-pitched radar sound, caused by the separate motions of the vehicle body and its turning tracks. The radar signal from a jeep or truck is a single whine which varies with speed. Soldiers walking create another distinctive sound caused by leg and body motion.

Such movements can be detected even through fog, darkness, and light foliage.

The new radar is aimed like a flashlight. It can search for targets at ranges over a mile and a quarter. When the operator hears a target, he can read its range directly on a dial.

The first experimental model of the radar is a box about the size of a portable typewriter fitted with a pistol grip t aim the search beam. Controls are in easy reach on the back surface.

The operator monitors the sounds and, if necessary, he can attach an auxiliary unit to the set for a visual display. This gives more detailed information on the distance and character of a suspect target.

MAN—The Ultimate Weapon

'Infantry' Contributors Have Common Interests

A list of contributors to Infantry Magazine reads like a passenger list on a globe-circling liner.

Among authors recently published in the magazine, official organ of The Infantry School, are officers from Australia, West Germany and Brazil and a sergeant from Holland.

These writers subscribe to the magazine, which has a 10,000 circulation, but only one of them has ever visited Fort Benning. The Australian officer spent two weeks observing training facilities on the post.

Even among U. S. contributors to the magazine, there is a great variety of interests. They include Infantry, artillery, signal, armor and commissioned officers. Some of the authors f articles in members of the Medical Service Corps. Some are civilians. One is a civilian minister.

The magazine has been called "The Voice of the Infantry." It might well be called "The voice of the people who are interested in the success of MAN — The Ultimate Weapon."

The Infantry Magazine is also known as "The Professional Journal For Infantrymen."

Up to Date

This title has been earned by the magazine's devotion to informing its readers on the latest developments in organization, weapons, equipment, tactics and techniques.

Since the magazine recently started publishing information on ROAD (Reorganization Objective Army Division) each issue has been a complete sellout.

Infantry is not the only name the magazine has used in its 40-year history, according to Col. J. G. Cornett, chief of The Infantry School's Editorial and Pictorial Office.

Name Changed

The magazine was begun by then Lt. Col. George C. Marshall in 1922 and was called "Mailing List."

In the early 1940's, the title was changed to "Infantry School Quarterly." In 1957, the name was shortened to "Infantry."

Another change came in 1958 when the magazine appeared in a new format, discarding the pocket edition size for its present full magazine form.

By 1969, The Infantry Magazine was issued bimonthly rather than quarterly.

The larger magazine has made it possible to include new features.

The Infantry Magazine provides a forum for controversial issues. Historical and thought provoking articles are included in its wide range of reading material for Infantrymen.

The magazine is published by the Editorial and Pictorial Office. A non-appropriated fund activity, the office must contract on a competitive basis to use commercial printers.

Editor of the magazine is Lt. Col. J. S. Douglas. With the help of eight people, he has the responsibility of all phases of the publication. This includes editing manuscripts, clearing them, finding or preparing art work and keeping tab on the highly mobile subscribers who change militiary addresses at the rate of 2,500 per issue.

Col. Douglas' staff includes 1st Lt. Leon P. Alexander, assistant editor; Capt. Roger M. Deming, production chief; Mrs. Esther L. Jones, secretary, and Mrs. Martha L. Biskup, business manager.

Assisting Mrs. Biskup are Sp4 Edward J. France, Pfc William Champion, and Pvt. Lawrence M. Bold.

An illustrator from the Special Editing Section of the Editorial and Pictorial Office helps prepare the layout for the magazine. He is Sp4 Yoshiaki Murano.

Murano has completed three years of study toward a degree in commercial art at the University of California at Los Angeles.

"I sometimes get in to far over my head with demands for art work," Murano said. "Then I send out an SOS for help."

Two men who rally to the call for help are Sp4 Clifford R. Hatcher and Pfc Ted Wolfovich assigned to the Visual Aids Section of the Editorial and Pictorial Office.

IBM Records

Records for the magazine are kept by IBM machine. Sp France wires the panels for the machine and operates it.

"The worst thing we face in handling circulation," he said, "is that many people fail to give us a change of address until two or three months have passed. They eventually get their magazines, but naturally they are late."

Contributors or subscribers are requested to address all correspondence to The Infantry Magazine, Editorial and Pictorial Office, U. S. Army Infantry School, Fort Benning, Ga.

NEW AWARD . . . Sgt. Lou V. Hines, Combat Support Company, 1st Battle Group 22nd Infantry, Fort Lewis Wash., is the first recipient of a one year subscription to Infantry Magazine. The award is for being honor graduate of The Infantry School's Davy Crockett course. Major James A. Williams of the Weapons Department of The School made the presentation.

300 May Attend

Girl Scout Anniversary Chapel Services Slated

Approximately 300 members of 24 Brownie, Intermediate and Senior Girl Scout troops at the post will commemorate the 50th anniversary of the Girl Scouts of America March 11.

About 250 girls will attend the 9:30 a.m. service at The Infantry Center Protestant Chapel. They will be in uniform and will occupy reserved seats.

The choir for the service will be composed of Girl Scouts. They will sing "God Our Loving Father," a Finnish folk song.

Directing the choir will be Miss Norma Dowling, a teacher in the post Children's School System.

Fifty Catholic Girl Scouts will attend the 9 a.m. Mass at the Main Post Catholic Chapel. They will occupy reserved seats and receive Holy Communion.

There will be a Communion breakfast for the Catholic Girl Scouts and leaders at the Main Officers' Open Mess following the Mass.

Attending the services will be members of Brownie Troops 4, 12, 22, 23, 47, 63, 76, 78, 85, 92, 116, 151, 192 and 217.

Intermediate Girl Scout Troops 23, 95, 138, 161, 126, 163, 169 and 193, and Senior Girl Scout Troops 57 and 73.

French Attache At Post

Brig. Gen. Philippe Gouraud, French military attache to Washington, D. C., arrived at the post Wednesday for a two-day visit.

Yesterday morning he visited Major Gen. Ben Harrell, commandant of The Infantry School, and Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles, Jr., assistant commandant.

Gen. Gouraud then was briefed by the Airborne-Air Mobility Department and the Combat Developments Office. He also observed a problem in record and trainfire marksmanship training.

After an official luncheon, the Allied officer was briefed on the history and organization of The Infantry Center and the organization and mission of The Infantry School. His schedule also included a briefing on the utilization of the post in training support.

Gen. Gouraud is slated to depart Fort Benning this morning.

Air Defense CG Departs Today After Briefings

Lt. Gen. Robert J. Wood, commanding general of the Army Air Defense Command, arrived at Lawson Army Airfield yesterday for an overnight stay.

With Gen. Wood on the flight from Ent Air Force Base, Colorado Springs, Colo., is his aide, Major James G. Campbell.

Gen. Wood toured the post and received briefings on the history and organization of The Infantry Center and the organization and mission of The Infantry School.

The three-star general will depart Fort Benning today from Lawson Field. His next step will be Turner Air Force Base.

NG MP Unit Earns Rating Of Excellent

The 105th Military Police Company, a New York National Guard unit from Utica, has received the rating of "Excellent" in its recently completed Army Training Test.

The test, given to all units on active duty, is the Army's means of determining combat readiness.

The 105th is considered combat ready and has undertaken a new mission. The mission is to support the provost marshal activities on the post.

As part of its test, the company was required to fight off an aggressor attack, quell a riot, conduct a raid, organize and execute the capture of aggressor partisans, secure vital information and maintain traffic and town patrol over a wide area.

The 105th was commended as obviously enthusiastic and exerting sincere desire to accomplish its test by Lt. Col. James E. Farmer, provost marshal of The Infantry Center.

One platoon of the 105th has been assigned to support the 2nd Infantry Division in its maneuvers on post and moves to other Army installations. The other platoons will support military police operations on the Main Post.

During the Army Training Test, the company was visited by Major Gen. Ralph Butchers, Army provost marshal general, and Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly, deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center.

Before being called to active duty last fall in the Army's build-up program, the 105th was a company of the 102nd Military Police Battalion, New York National Guard, of Utica.

The 105th is commanded by 1st Lt. Edward D. Lockwood, a Regular Army officer.

Final Ft. McClellan Training Ends

2 Battle Groups, 2 Artillery Battalions Return Home in Mud-Caked Vehicles

Two 2nd Division battle groups, two artillery battalions and supporting units traveled back to Fort Benning Monday following a seven-day training exercise at Fort McClellan, Alabama.

Men of the 9th and 38th Infantries returned by motor convoy through freezing wind and occasional snow flurries with seven days of hard field training under their belts.

"Good Training"

The mud-caked vehicles and equipment were testimony to weather conditions which contributed to what Brigadier General Royal Reynolds Jr., assistant division commander, described as "good training for the men."

These were the same polished and shining vehicles and equipment that left Fort Benning February 27th for the Alabama post.

The men who left Fort Benning with the 9th and 38th Infantries included Soldiers of the 17th and 27th Artillery Battalions, elements of the 2nd Engineer Battalion, 702nd Ordnance Battalion, 122nd Signal Battalion, 2nd Aviation Company and the 2nd Military Intelligence Detachment.

Moving out early on the 27th in an 800-vehicle motor movement, the trip to McClellan, over three different routes, lasted seven hours, with the last units arriving just before dark. The troops traveling over various routes ate packed lunches and made rest stops every two hours.

The two battle groups, Brigade Trains, special units and the Brigade Headquarters involved in the maneuver problem arrived last Tuesday. It was the second such exercise at Fort McClellan for the division this year.

In the First Exercise

Participating in the earlier exercise were 1st, 23rd and 87th Infantries with three artilley battalions and their supporting elements.

An hour before daylight last Wednesday, the men of the division rolled out of their sleeping bags and started working toward the noon deadline set for phase one of the maneuver.

Shortly after the operation began, General Reynolds was standing in mud beside the first main obstacle — Cane Creek. Not far off his jeep was also in the mud, sunk down to its axles. He was there to observe preparations for a water crossing of the 38th Infantry, commanded by Colonel Maurice C. Holden.

The 38th had assumed the attack position and its first objective was to take control of a hill on the opposite side of Cane Creek. The 9th Infantry, under the command of Colonel Clifford P. Hannum, was in defense of that objective.

Handicapped by limited road systems, the 38th was forced to make the water crossing on a large front within observation of the defending task force. To obscure their operations, the 38th called on the 100th Chemical Group's smoke generator company, the 218th, to lay down heavy smoke screens.

General Reynolds said the use of smoke screens gave the battle group the opportunity to operate with smoke, and at the same time allowed chemical personnel the opportunity to operate with the division.

Asked if the rain and mud were giving the division much difficulty, the general replied that it was giving the men good training under very realistic conditions. He said the mud did not present an insurmountable problem and gave the men additional training in operation under such conditions.

At the creek with General Reynolds to observe the crossing was Colonel John A. Arthur, deputy brigade commander. The exercise, said Col. Arthur, "was a magnificent ex-

Intelligence Corps Chief Visits 2nd Div Wednesday

Here for a brief visit with the 2nd Infantry Division Wednesday was Major General Garrison B. Coverdale, chief, Intelligence Corps and commanding general, U. S. Army Intelligence Center, located at Fort Holabird, Maryland.

Greeted at 9:15 a.m. at division headquarters by an honor ceremony made up of Soldiers of the division's 1st Infantry and 2nd Engineer Battalion, General Coverdale accepted a 13-gun salute fired by men of the 15th Artillery's Battery B.

In CG's Office

Following the ceremony, the visitor attended a briefing held by Brigadier General Royal Reynolds Jr., assistant division commander, in the office of the commanding general.

Attending the briefing were Major Sidney Roche, assistant division G-2, and Captain Richard E. Evers, 2nd Military Intelligence Detachment commander. Captain Evers, who also acted as escort officer, later in the morning conducted a briefing in his office at the 2nd Military Intelligence Detachment. The M I briefing followed a visit to the office of the assistant chief of staff, G-2, where General Coverdale was briefed by Major Roche.

General Coverdale arrived at Fort Benning Tuesday. His visit included briefings on intelligence instruction at the U.S. Army Infantry School. He is scheduled to depart Fort Benning today.

87th Infantrymen Begin Testing for EIB Monday

BY 87TH INF PIO

The 87th Infantryman will have a chance to prove himself in the near future as competition for the Expert Infantryman's Badge is about ready to start.

Battle group pre-testing for EIB will begin Monday under the supervision of the project officer, Captain Kenneth J. Sweeney. Those men who successfully pass the battle group test will be recommended to the division test team as candidates to be tested March 19-29.

Test Site

The construction of the battle group test site, located near Essebagger Field, was recently completed by members of Combat Support Company under the surveillance of Sergeant First Class Ronald L. Green, the non-commissioned officer in charge of the project.

All members of the 87th Infantry will be eligible to compete for the coveted blue badge with the exception of the medical and engineering platoons. Every man must have a character rating of "excellent" and must be qualified sharpshooter with his primary individual weapon.

To qualify for EIB, candidates must first pass a physical fitness test that includes a 12-mile road march which must be completed in three hours or less.

The EIB test consists of approximately fourteen stations, each of which must be successfully completed with a minimum of 70 out of 100 points. To thoroughly test each soldier, the subject areas include: military courtesy, first aid, mines, patrolling, map reading, military intelligence, adjustment of fire techniques, communications, grenades, chemical, biological and nuclear warfare and, finally, proficiency tests on individual weapons.

The overall objective of the Expert Infantryman's Badge test, as described by the Department of the Army, is to "provide tangible recognition for the attainment of a high degree of professional skill, proficiency and excellence as an infantryman."

2nd Aviation Company's Planes Log 400 Hours During Exercise

BY 2ND AVIATION CO. PIO

Under the concept of modern warfare, instantaneous reinforcements and versatile means of mobilization are considered essential.

During the exercise last week at Fort McClellan, Ala., the 2nd Infantry Division was assisted in its mission by air support from the 2nd Aviation Company.

400 Hours

Under the supervision of Captain Daniel R. Stefanowich, direct support platoon leader, the aviation element flew approximately 400 hours of support missions during the one-week exercise. Captain Thomas L. Williamson assisted Captain Stefanowich as operations officer during the problem.

The aviation support element consisted of 22 aircraft, 23 pilots and 66 ground crew members. During the exercise, various missions were flown under marginal weather and lighting conditions.

Actual tactical medical evacuations were flown by helicopters. The first, flown by Capt. Stefanowich, was evacuated within 12 minutes after receiving word of the emergency. The other, flown by Lieutenants Robert Messer and Frank Otte, was evacuated in 16 minutes.

A WAC was evacuated from Fort McClellan to Maxwell Air Force Base by an L-20 during instrument weather conditions. The pilots were Captain David L. Starkey and Lieutenant Frank Harris.

Major Arlen R. Suddaby, company commander, said that he was "extremely impressed" by the company's performance during the exercise.

The air photographic capabilities of the company were enhanced by the support of the 122nd Signal Battalion's Photographic section and the 2nd Military Intelligence section. With this support it was possible to take aerial photos, having them interpreted and developed within two hours after receiving requests.

TIMBER! ENGINEER AT WORK
Mills, With Motor-Driven Chain Saw

Much to Be Done Before Bridge Begun

"Take a picture of that man . . . without him, none of this would be possible."

The scene: the bank of the rain-swollen Cane Creek, in the Pelham Range area of Fort McClellan. The voice: that of Brigadier General Loyal Reynolds Jr., Brigade commander and director of this second Fort McClellan exercise.

These words, casually spoken to a Bayonet photographer on the scene, marked "prologue" to the story of Private First Class Dennis L. Mills, Company C, 2nd Engineer Battalion.

Mills was operating a motor-driven chain saw, slicing through thick logs. His unit was engaged in putting a vehicular bridge across Cane Creek. Before the bridge could go in, however, the approaches had to be readied. It was to this end that Mills, and other members of his squad, were laboring.

Under ideal conditions, such a bridge is usually erected in an hour. This time, due to the muddy approaches, it took the engineers almost 16 full hours of work to get across.

This bridge, like all the projects of the engineer platoons, was built tactically, under simulated combat conditions, thus making it even harder for the completion of the structure.

Mills, the central figure of this story, joined the Army in May 1961 and took Basic Engineer Training with Company A, 2nd Engineer Battalion. In August, he was transferred to his present unit, Company D.

A 19 - year - old native of Waynesboro, Penna., Mills gained much experience with the chain saw during high school, working summers for an uncle who owned a sawmill near his hometown.

New 38th Commo Officer Gets 'Initiation' at McClellan

By 38th Inf PIO

The new communications officer of the 38th Infantry, Lieutenant Rodney A. Pimental, got a quick "baptism of fire" in his new job last week.

Lt. Pimental found out the afternoon of February 23 that he would replace Captain Glenn H. Wilson as communications officer and commo platoon leader for the battle group. Capt. Wilson has received overseas orders and will leave the 38th shortly.

To McClellan

After only a day and a half of work in his new post, Lt. Pimental left with the rest of the battle group for the Fort McClellan field training exercise and with Capt. Wilson's help took over the job of providing radio and wire communication for the 38th Infantry Task Force in the field.

Each time the task force command post moved, the 38th's commo platoon would install 30-odd telephones in the CP area plus provide lights for a number of tents used in the problem's operations.

Lt. Pimental and crew also laid from 10 to 20 miles of wire to line companies and supporting units, monitored a number of administrative and tactical radio nets, and saw to it that all radios in the battle group were functioning properly, making any possible repairs necessary.

The commo platoon also took care of message center and teletype operations during the McClellan exercise.

Lt. Pimental, former weapons platoon leader and executive officer in Company E of the 38th, entered the Army in February of 1958 and took basic and advanced individual training at Fort Dix, New Jersey. After spending several months there as an acting sergeant in a training company, he entered Officers' Candidate School at Fort Benning.

After graduation in April of 1959, he went to Basic Airborne School here and then joined the 3rd Training Regiment at Fort Jackson, South Carolina. At Fort Jackson he served as a company officer, automatic weapons committee chief and company commander, spending two months at Ranger School in July and August of 1960.

He was awarded the Army Commendation Medal for his work as company commander and committee chief while at Fort Jackson.

He joined the 38th Infantry in January of 1961.

Engineers' Erdlator Quenched Many Thirsts During Exercise at McClellan

One item any military unit needs at all times — perhaps even more so than a good food supply — is water.

Experts figure that in the field, an average of three gallons of water per day per man is used.

This would mean that during this second Fort McClellan exercise, with just over 3,700 participating, a total of 11,100 gallons of water per day was needed.

This vast amount of water was provided by men of the 2nd Engineer Battalion and two erdlators, water purification units. These units, capable of producing up to 1,500 gallons of fresh, pure water per hour, go to the field whenever needed.

Self-Sufficient

Completely self - sufficient, a water point may be set up and operating within two-and-a-half hours after arriving at a suitable site. The purification unit is electrically driven, and is mounted in a van on a two-and-a-half ton truck. The three huge water storage tanks are easily set up by the two men operating each water point. Power for the water purification and pumping is supplied by a gasoline-powered generator, mounted in a trailer attached to the van. A water point may be set up 225 feet from water, or even further with booster pumps.

With the two men to operate one of these water purification stations, and the chemicals needed for the purification, a water point is self-sufficient for as much as 30 days, needing only fuel for the generator motor.

38th Ups WO Drabek

By 38th Inf PIO

Warrant Officer (W-2) Joe C. Drabek, 38th Infantry, was recently promoted to his present grade in the office of Colonel Maurice C. Holden, battle group commander.

A 17-year veteran, Mr. Drabek is the 38th Infantry's battle group maintenance officer, and has spent the majority of his service time in Army ordnance.

Enlisting in the Army in 1945, he served in Germany with the 559th Ordnance Company from 1946 to 1950 before being assigned to Fort Bliss, Texas, with the 49th Ordnance Company.

After a tour of duty in Japan at the Fuchu Ordnance Depot, Mr. Drabek returned to Germany in 1955 to serve with 5th Corps Headquarters until 1959 when he was assigned to Fort Benning.

Receiving his promotion to Warrant Officer (W-1) in 1960, he served as maintenance officer with the 13th Transportation Battalion before joining the 38th Infantry in January 1961.

perience" for the men because of the unfamiliar terrain.

He said that at Fort Benning the men knew what obstacles to expect during their training. This, he said, is not necessarily true at McClellan.

Artillery, Air Strikes

While the engineers laid down a road approach to the creek, the 9th Infantry used artillery and air strikes against the 38th and dropped harassing propaganda leaflets.

A platoon-size guerrilla force was lifted via helicopter into the 38th's rear area. Their objective: to attack supply points and supporting elements.

Once the approach was laid, engineers threw a 38-foot dry span bridge across the water to bring up supplies. The 60-ton bridge was sufficient to accommodate almost all the vehicles carried to McClellan.

The defending forces withdrew following an attack by the 38th on their first objective. This ended the first day of battle.

Throughout the next day, troops of the 38th moved steadily forward to their final objective. During this attack they were hit by a simulated nuclear blast set off by defending forces. The blast wiped out an Infantry company, forcing the 38th to call for a replacement from the rear area. With the addition of replacements, the 9th was driven from their entrenched positions, ending phase one of the exercise.

Following phase one of the McClellan exercise, battle groups and their supporting units conducted foot and motor marches to exchange training areas. The 9th later went into the attack and the 38th defended in phase two of the problem.

After phase two, which was a repeat performance of phase one with different units attacking and defending, the exercises ended Monday. All that remained for the men was the trip back and cleaning up, a process which lasted throughout this week at their garrison areas on Sand Hill and Kelley Hill.

Chant-Less 1st Inf. Sponsoring Contest

By 1st Infantry PIO

"Hut, two, three, four" is the count of the drill master.

As a means to ease the monotony of long marches and to contribute to the espirit of an entire force, military units have long employed unique marching chants which deal with the traditions of the unit and which, in time, become a part of the same unit traditions. One of the most famous marching chants is the "Duckworth Chant" which is based around the "One, two, three four" count. Since the chant is strong rhythmic and almost tuneless, it provides the marching step of the unit without requiring great skill on the part of the marchers.

At the present time the 2nd Battle Group, 1st Infantry does not have a suitable marching chant and has established a contest to discover the most suitable marching chant for the unit.

Each company of the battle group expects to sponsor a chant and a unit drill platoon will perform a series of close order drill movements while marching to the rhythm of its own chant on March 31.

The writer, or writers, of the winning chant will be awarded an appropriate trophy.

After the selection of the chant all units will use the "Always First Chant" in all foot movements and physical training formations.

McGill Sees Troop Info. Class Here

Ralph E. McGill, a member of the Secretary of Defense's Committee for Non-Military Instruction, got a first-hand look at a 2nd Division Troop Information Class last week.

Escorted by Major Darwin C. Miller, division information officer, Mr. McGill, with Major General Charles H. Chase, commanding general, sat in on an 87th Infantry class at Theater Nine. He was officially welcomed by Colonel Robert E. Connor, 87th commander.

McGill, publisher and former Pulitzer Prize - winning editor of The Atlanta Constitution, came to the 2nd Division on a field visit as a member of the Secretary of Defense's Committee for Non-Military Instruction.

The class, held last Friday, was taught by Lieutenant Floyd W. Blunk, 87th assistant adjutant. His subject was "Insurance."

First Army

The first American national army did not come into being until 1775 when the 13 English colonies in North America banded together to throw off British rule.

Van Meter New 87th S-4

By 87th Inf PIO

Captain Maurice R. Van Meter has recently been assigned to the 87th Infantry as the new S-4 (supply) officer.

His previous assignment was within the division as the S-2 (intelligence) with the 23rd Infantry.

Defeats Trains to End Season With 13-1 Record

BY 87TH INF PIO

The 87th Infantry put an end to the division basketball tournament last week at Kelley Hill by defeating Division Trains, 75-44.

By winning the final regularly scheduled game, the Conquerors ended the season with a 13-1 record and thus avoided a playoff with the runner-up team, Division Artillery.

It was hard to believe that the Trains team was the one that, defeated the highly-rated DivArty team only a few days before.

From the outset, Trains play was tense and shaky. Taking full advantage, the 87th attack, spearheaded by George Krajack and Ronald Brooks gained a 20-10 lead at the end of the first quarter and built it up to a commanding 35-17 score at the half.

Trains regained some of their confidence in the second half and came through with some fine offensive play by Walter Clark and Belvain Carrington, but their fast break brand of ball just couldn't get started due to deadly shooting accuracy displayed by the Conquerors.

Also contributing to the team effort was some fierce rebounding by Warner Johnson and the usual sharpshooting of Frank Byrd.

The pressure didn't let up although the second team, made up of Ronald Guy, Joseph Shaheen, Jerry Handy, John Niel and Gary Robinson, played most of the final quarter.

Toward the final buzzer, the crowd became restless sensing the inevitable outcome of the game.

Trains' Clark was high man scorewise with 19 points.

Krajack and Brooks both finished with 18.

Co. D, Hq. Co. Will Represent 23rd

Company D and Headquarters Company will represent the 23rd Infantry in the post-wide volleyball competition.

Play has been underway in the battle group since the middle of February to determine which two company teams would attend the five-day post finals.

Company D and Headquarters were to have played earlier this week to determine the battle group winner and first runner-up.

First and second place winners in the post competition are to represent Fort Benning in later Third Army competition.

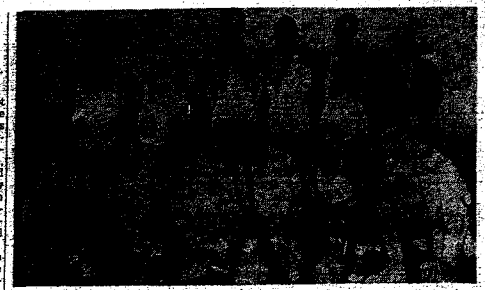
Signal Forward Joined 69th's Team When Signal Lost Sep. Bn. Bid

SIX-FOOT FORWARD
Paul Booterbaugh

One of the more outstanding cage players of the 122nd Signal Battalion was Paul L. Booterbaugh, six foot forward from Company B.

Booterbaugh was a major factor in the battalion's season record in the Separate Battalion basketball competition, ringing in an average of 14 points in many of the contests.



When the battalion lost out in the playoffs, he was asked to join forces with the 69th Armor in their bid for the division championship. He demonstrated the same fine playing ability for the 69th Armor that he had displayed for the signal battalion.

Booterbaugh's basketball playing dates back to his high school days at Mount Vernon High School, Alexandria, Va. where he lettered for four consecutive years.

His sports activities are not limited to just basketball. He lists baseball and softball as his other favorites. While serving with the 54th Signal Support Company in Seoul, Korea, Booterbaugh held down second base in competition that saw his team wind up the season as runner-up for the championship. He showed the same ability on the battalion's softball team of last year.

It is only natural that with his interests in sports that one of his additional duties is athletic and recreation non-commissioned officer for his company.

When he isn't participating in a sports' program, Booterbaugh serves as a section chief in the telephone section of the fifth platoon.

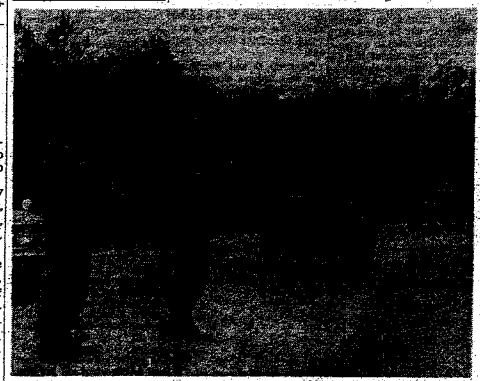
Company E Presented 9th Inf CO's Trophy



By 9th Infantry PIO

At a special awards ceremony of the 9th Infantry, Colonel Clifford P. Hannum, battle group commanding officer, presented the Battle Group Commander's Trophy to the 9th's Company E.

The award was accepted by Captain Frank G. Whitely, Echo company commander, and First Sergeant J. C. Coody.

This award is based on the best overall scores in mess, maintenance, safety, soldier of the month, reenlistment, annual general inspection, command maintenance inspection, education and morale indicators.

This is a roving trophy which is kept in the possession of the winning company for a six month period.

Parman Cited At C-S Office

In the office of the 2nd Division Chief of Staff recently, Specialist Four Larry L. Parman was presented with a certificate of achievement for "outstanding service" to the United States Army.

Specialist Parman, former clerk typist for the office of the assistant chief of staff, G-3, who later stepped into a similar position in the office of the chief of staff, was with the division's Headquarters and Headquarters Company, beginning April 1960.

The citation presented to Specialist Parman praised his "exceptional administrative ability, sincere devotion to duty and the capacity for accomplishing any task with minimum instruction and supervision."

He was also singled out for his "dependability, diligence and ability to assume responsibility greater than what is normally expected of personnel of his military grade and experience."

Air Forces

In June 1941 the War Department established the Army Air Forces to train and administer air units in the United States.

By 7th Cavalry PIO

Lieutenant Leonard E. Sperry, commander of the 7th Cavalry's Troop A, has recently received orders assigning him to Fort Bragg, North Carolina and from there to the Far East.

He has served as Troop A commander since his return from the Armor Officers' Advanced Course at Fort Knox, Kentucky. He has been with the squadron for the past two years.

During Lt. Sperry's tour with the 7th Cavalry he served as executive officer of Troop C and later was assigned to the S-3 Section as liaison officer. During his stay in S-3, he assumed the job as S-3 Air. Prior to coming to the squadron he served in Korea as a tank company commander with the 40th Armor Battalion. The lieutenant has been in the Army for 14 years. He entered the Army as a recruit and worked up to the rank of Master Sergeant. He later went to Officers' Candidate School and gained his commission as a second lieutenant.

Lieutenant Jackie L. Welch, the executive officer, assumed command of Troop A from Lt. Sperry. Lt. Welch has been with the squadron for two years. During this time he has served as executive officer of Troop C and commander of Troop B. Lt. Welch also commanded Troop A for a short time prior to Lt. Sperry's return from school at Fort Knox.

Lt. Welch joined the squadron after attending the Armor Officers' Orientation Course at Fort Knox, Kentucky. Lt Welch is married and has one child.

Basketball All-Stars Selected As Third Army Tourney Nears

By Sfc Bismarck Stith

The Infantry Center Special Services Athletic Department recently released the names of the players on the All-Star Team to represent Fort Benning in the Third Army Basketball Tournament at Briant Wells Field House, March 19 to 24.

Players were selected by Athletic Department officials from outstanding records and statistics kept on each player during the major unit basketball competition recently completed.

The All-Star cagers will be under the guidance of Bob Kinard. This will be his third year as head coach in the Third Army Championship playoffs for the post squad. He will be seeking his first championship. Kinard holds the Third Army Runner-up trophy for 1961.

The All-Star Team is made up with such players as Gary Hess, Harold Deane, William "High" Royer and Jim Moreau from the 428th Medical Battalion; Bob Whitehead, Curtis Gentry, Hank Derleth of the 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade; Ronnie Slayer and Jim Westcott from 11th Signal Company representing the 156th Signal Battalion squad; Freddie Morris, 58th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade; Carvey Jones, Student Brigade and George Krayjack, 2nd Infantry Division.

Hess

Gary F. Hess, from Pittsburgh, Pa., started his basketball career at Munhall High School in Pittsburgh. He is a graduate from Wesleyan College, West Va., where he majored in Social Studies in April 1961. Hess took spring training with the Boston Red Sox farm club. He also played baseball with Winston Salem in the Carolina Class B League, and played two years with the Boston Red Sox in a minor league.

Deane

Harold A. Deane, from Roanoke, Va., attended Virginia State College, Petersburg, Va., played varsity basketball and ran track for four years. Deane received a playing contract from the Detroit Pistons and the New York Tapers when called in the Army. He was commissioned in ROTC in 1961.

Royer

William H. Royer, from Columbus, a 1958 graduate of the University of Georgia, played varsity basketball there for three years (1954-57). Royer also is a golf pro. He won the 1958 Georgia State Amateur, Southern Amateur, the 1959 Lake Charles Open as a pro. Royer finished sixth in the Texas Open in 1959. At present he is a golf pro at Ida Cason Calloway Gardens.

Moreau

James M. Moreau, from Opelousos, La., played 1 year of varsity basketball at Louisiana Southwestern University.

Gentry

Curtis Gentry, from Miami, Ohio, received an athletic scholarship in football at Miami College in 1955. Gentry also played college basketball and took spring training with the Detroit Tigers farm team in Decatur, Ill., in 1960.

Krajack

George Krajack, from McKeesport, Pa., first big break in basketball came when he landed a coaching job at Clemson College, S.C. for three years Krajack started for Clemson Cagers in 96 consecutive games, leading the team in almost every department.

He graduated in 1960 and was drafted by the professional New York Knickerbockers but wound up frying out with the Detroit Pistons. He toured with the Pistons in a pre-season exhibition tour against the Cincinnati Royals before entering the service.

Derleth

Henry Derleth, from Beaver Dam, Wisconsin, is a four-year letterman in high school, in basketball, football and track.

He attended the University of Wisconsin and played football for four years. In his last year in college he co-captained his team and played end. Derleth also played end for the 1961 Benning Doughboys squad.

Whitehead

Bob Whitehead, from Lombard, Ill., played his college basketball and baseball at Wheaton College, Ill.

He scored over 1300 points during his four years at college. Whitehead was Little All-American his last three years in college. In 1957 he played with Wheaton College in the National Small College Basketball Tournament which won the championship.

Westcott

Jim Westcott, from Atlanta, played basketball for four years while attending Drake University, Des Moines, Iowa.

Slayer

Ronnie Slayer, a native of Greenville, N. C., starred in basketball at Furman University for four years.

Morris

Freddie Morris Jr., from Dallas, Texas, played his basketball while attending Texas College, in Tyler, Texas.

Quote Of The Week

Joe DiMaggio, former N. Y. Yankee swatter, in commenting on the home-run binge of 1961, said: "Before his four-bagger excitement is abated, you will see somebody better Roger Maris' record of 61 homers, and the major league total of 2,730 walloped into the record book in 1961 knocked silly . . . Batting averages are being sacrificed in the interest of increased home-run production."

Michie Stadium May Not Be Ready

Paul Dietzel, Army's newly acquired grid mentor, will lead his chargers against Syracuse University in New York City's Polo Grounds instead of the previously announced site, West Point's Minchie Stadium. The switch was made, according to Army officials, since there is some doubt that the face-lifting of Michie will be completed by September 29.

Faith School's Faculty Edges Student All-Stars

By Sfc Bismarck Stith

The faculty of Faith School edged the Girls and Boys All-Star teams in two thrilling morning basketball contests recently at Briant Wells Field House.

In the first game between the women teachers and the Faith's girls, All-Stars. The teachers edged students 23-19.

In the first quarter both teams were even with 8 points each. Henni Ann Taylor was high for the teachers with six while Janet Davis had four for the students.

At halftime the teachers led 12-10. They picked up 11 more points in the second half to take the win 23-19.

Gayle Baker's 9 points was high for the teachers at the end of the game. Henni Ann Taylor's 8 points, Elizbith Merris's 4, and Margot Arwood's 2 points rounded out the scoring for the teachers. Paula Williams hit the hoops for 9 points to take scoring honors for the girl all-stars. Teammates Rocie Gordy's 6 points and Janet Davis's 4 points accounted for the girls 19 points.

In the men and boys game, the men over powered the boys 29-22. Wayne Box led the scoring department for the men with 12 points. Lyle Schmidt helped the winners with 10 points along with Warren Mason's 8 to clinch the victory.

Sidney Roche led the boys team with 6 points. Ken Emerson's 4 points, Jeff Smith's 4 points, Jill Fitzmose's and Richard Rasperian's 3 points each added to the All-Stars total.

Students at Faith School were on hand to cheer their favorite teams on to victory.

Shotgunners Win Match

The Army Marksmenship Training Unit shotgun team participating in the Royal Palms Open Skeet Shoot did an excellent job of outshooting the Navy, other Army Units and civilians in gaining seven first place honors out of a possible eleven in the tournament at West Palm Beach, Florida.

Major Henry Parr won the Any Gauge, in a shoot-of held under lights after seven men tied for first place with scores of 100X100, by compiling 50 straight birds in the shoot-off. 1st Lt. James Clark took the first place of the Class AA Any Gauge match with 100X100, with Sfc Kenneth Gilbert runner-up in the Any Gauge Class A with a 99X100 and Major Robert Gaches shooting a 98X-100 to take the first place honor in the Class C division.

Sfc Gilbert clamped the 20 Gauge Class A with a 99X100 and MSgt Henry Shaw won the 410 Gauge Class AA with a score of 96X100.

ARMY DRAWS PA. GYMNASTS

Four Pennsylvanians are members of the Army gymnastics team. They are Bob Balderson of Glenside, Mike Gray of Abbington, Joe Lengyel of McKeesport and Ralph Mitchell of Shippensburg.

Karate Is Demonstrated; Explained by Sfc Sauer

Splintering a thick board with a bare fist in a single blow or having the power to snuff out a man's life with a short bare handed punch may seem incredible but is a simple trick for the Karate expert.

Since his first experience with Karate while stationed at Fort Campbell, Kentucky, Sfc Melvin L. Sauer, an instructor at the Basic Airborne Committee, Airborne Air Mobility Department, has become a participant in the art and a holder of the Fourth Degree Black Belt.

His initial experience was observing two men attempting, without much success, to break a thick board with their hands. About this time a third man came on the scene. He told the two who had the board to hold it for him. Then with one blow of his fist he splintered that board to pieces.

Approaching the man, Sauer learned that he was his platoon sergeant, SSgt Harry Slomanski, who holds the Second Degree Red Belt.

First 'Belt'

One year later, Sfc Sauer competed before the commissioner of the Karate Federation Belt. Since then Sauer has progressed to his present degree under the personal supervision of the commissioner.

Sfc Sauer has presented at least 100 demonstrations of Karate. Recently, he and his protege, Sgt Earl A. Radabaugh, presented a demonstration for the members of their company, 41st Company, 4th Student Battalion, The Student Brigade, at the Brigade Gymnasium.

Development

During an interview, Sfc Sauer provided the history and the reasons for its development in early China.

"The word Karate is derived from two Japanese words which mean 'open sky' or 'empty hand'. Its history begins roughly 2600 years ago when Chinese Buddhist Monks built a special temple of worship. This temple was a sacred place in which no weapons were allowed," he said.

"Without the protection against violence, which was very commonplace in this barbaric age, these Monks began to study the human anatomy, respiration system and general weaknesses of the body. Through these studies a system of defense against violence developed which slowly became a way of life, based on the principal of a clean body, through physical health and the maintenance of a clean mind.

"Seventeen hundred years later," Sauer continued, "This ancient art progressed to a high peak and migrated to Japan, where it developed into its present state of perfection."

The art of Karate operates under a "Belt System." There is a range of belts which may be obtained through competition. When a beginner obtains permission to be trained in the art, he is given a White Belt. If, through progress, he seems worthy, he is awarded a Blue Belt, or "qui". Succeeding degrees may be earned; Green Belt, Brown Belt, and Black Belt.

Nine 'Black' Degrees

When an individual reaches the degree of Black Belt, it is possible to progress up nine degrees. When the ninth degree is reached, only three degrees remain, Red and White Belt and Second and First Degree Red Belt. The only time it is possible to obtain any of the top three belts, is on the death of one of the holders.

Many people are under the impression that Karate is simply a technique for building callouses on the hands and beating them into something that resembles a hammer. This is not the case. To explain this, Sgt. Sauer gave instances of Japanese surgeons who are accomplished in the art of Karate, but who maintain a delicate touch with their fingers.

Better Bowling

ADJUST POSITION

There will be many more spares with resulting better scores on your tally sheet if you remember and consistently practice one simple rule:

Change your starting position, but don't change anything else.

When your first ball leaves you with a single pin, a group of pins or split, adjust your starting position to the right or left on the approach so your ball will have maximum working room.

If the seven pin remains, for example, stand far to the right. The opposite will be true for the 10 pin.

Don't change the type of ball, nor the speed, nor the amount of hook. Make the ball behave by changing your position on the approach.

Pair Score 1288 For Second Place In Bowling League

A 1288 series was posted by keglers SSgt Alvin T. DeMedicis and Sp4 George O. Dyer last Sunday to take second place in the doubles event in the Columbus City Bowling Association tournament.

Both are members of the Liaison Section, Headquarters Battery, 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade.

First place went to a father-son team, Emmett and Bob Jones, who totaled 1348.

Memo to all wives with husbands stationed in Europe

How KLM can help you join your husband in Europe

Here are several ways KLM makes it possible for you to fly over and join your husband in Europe.

Pay only one tenth of fare now. Sons and daughters from 12 to 25 may fly family plan. Children under 12 pay half-price. Infants under 2 pay only 10 per cent. DC-8 Royal Jets and low-fare DC-7Cs.

1. KLM's Pay Later Plan. You pay only one tenth of your fare before you fly, the remainder over 24 months. Example: A down payment of $33.00 will take you from Columbus to Frankfurt (DC-7C Economy Fare). KLM's interest rate is one of the lowest—4¾ per cent discounted per annum.

2. Choice of planes. On KLM, you can fly to Europe on low-fare DC-7Cs. Or you can choose KLM's Royal 8 Jets that get you to Europe in only 8 hours.

3. Traveling with children. No problem on KLM. Friendly cabin crews help you take care of your children, prepare food, supply special cribs for babies.

What it costs

Here is a breakdown of a typical KLM fare to Europe, based on a one-way economy class flight on a DC-7C from Columbus to Frankfurt:

Adult's fare	$333.30
(Son(s) or Daughter(s) 12 to 25 Years*	233.30
Child under 12	166.65
Infant under 2	26.60

*Valid until March 31.

HAND OF DEATH is a melodrama featuring John Agar and Paula Raymond. A dedicated scientist accidentally comes upon a deadly gas that turns him into an industructible weapon of death. The efforts of the police to capture him and the accidental deaths he causes, add up to chilling suspense.

SWEET BIRD OF YOUTH stars Paul Newman, Geraldine Page, and Shirley Knight. In this absorbing drama an ambitious young man striving for Hollywood recognition and a movit actress older than he flee the reality of her recent Hollywood failure and create a turmoil when they return to visit his home town.

WORLD IN MY POCKET is a suspense drama and stars Rod Steiger and Nadja Tiller. The plan was to rob a supposedly impregnable armored truck carrying a million dollar payroll. The cunning criminal who thought he had a foolproof plan to carry out this robbery soon learned he was up against great odds.

HITLER features Richard Basehart, Cordula Trantow and Maria Emo. The private life and loves of Adolph Hitler are portrayed for the first time against the background of Nazi intrigue and treachery. From his early days as a rabble rouser to his death in Berlin, the story moves swiftly through a kaleidoscope of events that catapulted the Third Reich to a position of world power and final destruction under a crushing Allied assault.

Masquers--Unmasked

By 1st Lt. Frank D. Vaughn

The Masquers have devoted three evenings this past week to readings for their April production, "An Evening Off Broadway". Sp4 Peter Tatischeff, director, has announced the following cast:

For "The Browning Version" by Ternace Rattigan, scheduled as the curtain-raiser, Mr. Crocker-Harris will be played by Major Don Shuffestall, Mrs. Crocker - Haris by Helen Vogel, Mr. Gilbert will be Pfc Doug Moir, Mrs. Gilbert, Carolyn Hess, Frank Hunger, John Rasmussen, Taplow by Guy Bongiovonni, and Dr. Frobisher by Wm. Carr.

In the Eugene Ionesco farce, "The Bald Soprano", the casting is as follows: Mr. Martin, Sp4 John Olbreys, Mrs. Martin, Maureen Bloemsma, Mr. Smith, Sp4 Vince DeDario, Mrs. Smith, Jeanne Douglas, and Mary, Karen Ottley.

Rehearsals for both plays are underway at the Playhouse, Building 2519. In addition, a one-act play by Noel Coward, titled "Ways and Means" will be cast on Monday evening, March 12, at 7:30 p.m. at Service Club 1. This play will be under the direction of Phyllis Tritsch, and will be performed for the 2nd Division Officers Wives Club on Tuesday afternoon, April 10, and at Service Club 1 on Wednesday evening, April 11. As is the case in all tryouts scheduled by The Masquers, everyone is welcome.

With such an ambitious program currently underway, there are jobs galore for all Benningites interested in theater. Set design and construction, costumes, and make-up are but a few of the jobs still open. Join the Masquers!

Hobby Corner

The First Mint Had a Difficult Go All Around

(Lt. Reakirt leads off with a sketch of the first minting of coins in the U.S., to launch a new Bayonet feature, Hobby Corner. Articles on other hobbies are solicited, and will appear here as received. This article is the first of a series on coin collecting by Lt. Reakirt - Editor).

By 2nd Lt. Jay P. Reakirt

The beginning of our coinage is like the beginning of our country — stormy, uncertain, and full of ridicule — and naturally the most interesting period of its operation.

After several setbacks the Philadelphia mint was put into operation by the act of April 2, 1792, with David Rittenhouse, a famous philosopher and scientist, as its first director.

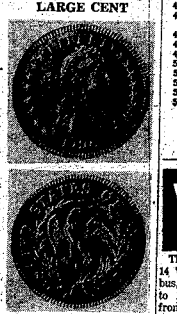
The first coin struck at the then partially built mint was the half dimes in October, 1792. It is interesting to note that George Washington supplied his personal plate to allow this coinage as he did with the Cent and Half cent the following year. Generally speaking only patterns were struck this year and none of the coins ever reached circulation.

In April, 1793, the first American coins were struck for circulation. These were the cent and the half cent. 1794 brought the half dime, half dollar and the dollar, with the dime and quarter starting in 1796.

The early years at the mint were far from prosperous and under constant ridicule from members of Congress and the press.

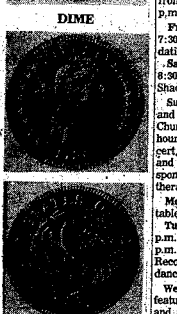
Many people felt our currency should be minted at one of the existing private or state mints. Naturally when this idea, after considerable debate over six years, was defeated, Congress left no stone unturned to harass the newly formed, understaffed, underfinanced, and horribly red - taped mint.

To give a few examples: a day's pay was $1.25, barely a living wage even in those days.



To top all this off was the almost unbearable ridicule from Congress and newspapers about the coins themselves. The designs were attacked as being wild, primitive, crude, and anti American, hardly the viewpoint now taken by collectors of those magic coins which breathed the growth of a new struggling nation.

The final blow which nearly finished the mint was the fact that no provision was made to dispense the coins after minting. Consequently all circulation was center around Philadelphia alone.



It wasn't until many years later that these and many other problems were overcome, allowing the mint to get on its feet after going through two disbandment attempts, sickness, and a wipeout fire. The early years are certainly the most interesting and amazing time in our mint and well worth a detailed exploration by all collectors.

30th Division '62 Reunion Set for July

The 30th Infantry Division (Old Hickory) Association will hold its 16th annual reunion at the Granada Hotel, San Antonio, Texas, July 10-12, 1962, according to Pete Upton, president of the association.

The Division, named in honor of President Andrew Jackson, was activated in September, 1917, at Camp Sevier, South Carolina, and was composed of National Guard units from North and South Carolina and Tennessee. The Division served overseas in World War I, distinguished itself in the Battle of LaSelle, at St. Mihiel and in the Meuse-Argonne.

Composed of National Guardsmen from North and South Carolina, Tennessee and Georgia, the division was inducted into federal service on September 16, 1940 at Fort Jackson, South Carolina, and later trained at Camp Blanding, Florida, and Camp Atterbury, Indiana.

After receiving replacements from nearly every state in the Union, it departed for overseas in February, 1944, and landed in France on June 10, 1944.

The Division fought in Normandy, North France, Rhineland, Ardennes and Central Europe, collecting over 20,000 Purple Hearts in 222 days of combat. It was known as the "Work-horse of the Western Front."

The Division was rated the Number 1 Infantry Division in the European Theater during World War II by 35 military historians.

Additional information on the 16th annual reunion may be obtained by writing to Pete Upton, 5435 31st Street, Lubbock, Texas.

It's a Small World, for Members of Overseas Girl Scout Troops

A group of American tourists, precariously perched on camels, stopped in amazement in the middle of a Saudi Arabian desert. "It can't be," they told each other. They stared in disbelief at a troop of green-clad American Girl Scouts roasting chunks of lamb over a trench camp fire.

The troop which so surprised the tourists is one of 1,427 representing a total of 31,045 girl and adult members of Girl Scout Troops on Foreign Soil, known as TOFS. The girls are daughters of American military civilian personnel living in 49 foreign countries. Girl Scouting literally follows these girls around the world.

The first reports from overseas troops were submitted in 1927 by three lone troops in Mexico, China and Syria. A rapid expansion of TOFS occurred in 1962 as a result of the Armed Forces' permitting dependents to go overseas. The Army, Navy and Air Force support TOFS in many ways — through military welfare funds which supply budget for staff salaries, travel, training supplies and a camping program for children of military personnel.

Troops on foreign soil adhere to the same promise — "to do my duty to God and my country" — and carry on the same scouting program as their sister Scouts in the U. S. Their leaders must, of course, adapt their activities to local climate, available materials and different social conditions.

Living in another country may limit the program in some ways, but it also enriches it through contacts with other peoples, cultures and languages. For instance, after the picnic that the tourists witnessed, the girls studied desert tracking with a bearded, turbaned member of anir's bodyguard, and took a sail in a Saudi Arabian coastal dhow.

The American troops frequently share camping experiences and other programs with native Girl Guide or Scout troops. In addition, TOFS members attend international gatherings in other countries.

In these and other contacts with the native population, the TOFS girls act as unofficial ambassadors of good-will, and develop a first-hand understanding of the importance of

The fact that the basic program is the same as that carried on in the U.S. helps the girls to adjust to life in an unfamiliar country and to readjust to life at home upon their return.

Ten professional staff members supervise the TOFS North Atlantic area, which includes France, Germany, Great Britain, Greece, Iceland, Italy, Libya, Morocco, Spain and Turkey.

Three staff members are responsible for the Far East TOFS, including Scouts in Japan, Korea, Ryukyu Islands and Taiwan. TOFS in the other 35 countries are served entirely by volunteer leaders and troop committees with the help of a field department staff member at Girl Scout national headquarters.

Orientation for new TOFS staff now includes a briefing in Washington, D. C. by the Department of State and by the U. S. Information Agency.

Like Girl Scouts in the U.S. TOFS engage in service projects. Troops in Aruba in the Netherlands Antilles report that they have been making toys for patients in a children's hospital. In Taiwan a troop adopted a leper family and brought them fruit, toys and clothing for Chinese New Year. In Germany, a Guide troop and a TOFS troop share a project of service to refugee children.

On March 12, the far-flung Troops on Foreign Soil will join nearly 3½ million members of Girl Scouts of the U.S.A. in celebrating the golden anniversary of the organization's founding by Juliette Low in 1912.

McGill Attends School Briefing

Ralph McGill publisher of The Atlanta Constitution, visited Fort Benning recently.

Before an official luncheon, he visited Major Gen. Ben Harrell, commandant of The Infantry School, and recieved a briefing on the school's organization and activities and on the Infantry Human Research Unit.

McGill went to the 2nd Infantry Division before departing from Lawson Airfield.

SELECTED . . . Capt. Joseph S. Wood, Jr., commander of the 72nd Engineer Company, 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, was recently named to attend the Missouri School of Mines to work toward a Masters degree in Civil Engineering. His unit was named "Model Company" at the post last November by the deputy post commander, Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly, and has been nominated for the Itschner Award, given annually to the outstanding Engineer company in the Army.

Post Chapels Announce Special Lenten Services

Lenten services and Masses have been scheduled at the post for Lutheran, Episcopal and Catholic congregations.

Lutheran Lenten services will be conducted each Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the Main Post Chapel 2, Building 2091.

At St. Michael's Episcopal Mission Ash Wednesday was observed with the Imposition of Ashes and Holy Communion.

A Lenten Holy Communion will be celebrated at the mission at 7 a.m. each Wednesday throughout the 40 days of Lent. There will be an Ember Day Holy Communion at 12 noon March 14.

At the Main Post Catholic Chapel, Lenten Masses will be celebrated daily throughout Lent at 6:45 a.m., and 12 noon.

There will be a Novena, sermon and benediction each Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. The Stations of the Cross will be said each Friday at 7:30 p.m.

At the 1st Infantry Brigade Chapel, Catholic Masses will be conducted at 11:45 a.m. daily except Wednesdays.

Mass with a sermon will be held at 8 p.m. each Wednesday at Sand Hill Chapel 3.

The Stations of the Cross will be given at 7:30 p.m. each Tuesday at the Kelley Hill Chapel.

There will be a sermon, the Stations of the Cross and a rosary at 7:30 p.m. each Wednesday during Lent at Harmony Church Chapel 5.

Each of the chapels will maintain regularly scheduled Sunday services throughout Lent.

FIRE SALE

The Exchange Service in Japan had to apologize for a delay in filling orders for a Japanese musical cigarette lighter that plays: "I Don't Want To Set the World on Fire." Reason for the delay? The factory burned down.

Intelligence Center CG Briefed Here

Major Gen. Garrison B. Coverdale, commanding general of the Army Intelligence Center at Fort Holabird, Md., arrived at Fort Benning Tuesday for a three-day tour.

He visited the Columbus Field Office of the 111th Intelligence Corps Detachment.

Wednesday Gen. Coverdale was briefed by the G-2 Section of The Infantry Center and on methods used at the post for intelligence instruction.

He visited Major Gen. Ben Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center, and Major Gen. Charles H. Chase, commanding general of the 2nd Division.

The 2nd Military Intelligence Detachment in the 2nd Division also was visited.

Thursday Gen. Coverdale was oriented on the reorganization and mission of The Infantry School and its instructional facilities.

He then observed a problem in the techniques of rifle fire at Buckner Range.

The two-star general was scheduled to complete his briefings with visits to the Ranger Department and Officer Candidate School.

Gen. Coverdale is slated to depart the post today.

Judge

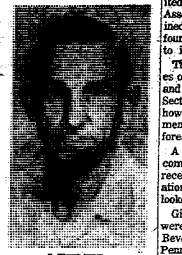
secured creditor who rejects the plan is simply omitted from consideration. Since the court has the power to enjoin any other legal proceedings against the debtor pending completion of the plan, the secured creditor can realize on his security only through a reclamation proceeding in the bankruptcy court.

However, the debts of secured creditors who have not accepted the plan are not provided for under the plan, and are not discharged up on completion of the plan.

An additional provision in the plan allows a discharge of debts if after three years the debtor has failed to complete payments but such failure must be due to circumstances for which he could not justly be held accountable.

Under certain conditions such as fraud, non - confirmation of the plan, failure to pay fees, or failure to make payments under the plan, the proceedings may be dismissed and an adjudication in bankruptcy entered.

Although the law provides means by which a debtor may discharge some of his obligations, the old saying of "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure" should be heeded.



The soldier well knows the amount of his next month's pay check, and, in fact, he can predict the amount of each pay check throughout his military career. Therefore, barring unforeseen events such as death in the family or reduction in grade, the soldier should well know what he can and cannot afford to buy.

The Civilians You Work With

SAVAGE

LEHNER

Audrey A. Savage is a clerk typist with the Student Officer Pay Branch, Personnel, The Student Brigade. In her job she performs the duties of maintaining student and cadre officers pay records.

Mrs. Savage is a recent addition to the personnel section as well as the Civil Service. Although new with the Civil Service she plans to remain with it in the future.

She is a native of Rome, Georgia, and now makes her home in Smiths, Alabama, with her husband, James, and three children, Barry, Ricky and Kathy.

Collis D. Lehner is presently working at the post's Army Field Printing Plant as the printing and reproduction foreman.

Mr. Lehner has worked at the printing plant for 34 years, the last seven of those as a civilian with the civil Service. A retired master sergeant, he worked as the offset press foreman until starting in his present position in September of 1961.

Part of Mr. Lehner's work includes reviewing all printing requests for reproduction and checking to see if they are authorized. Determining the methods of their reproduction is also a part of his work.

Coming 'Infantry' Issue Puts Spotlight on Tropics

The March-April issue of the Infantry Magazine, published by The Infantry School, will stress tropic operations when it appears next Monday.

Among the articles will be "Jungle Training," "Jungle Attack," "Jungle Ambush," "Combating Fear of the Jungle," "The Tropics," "Effects of the Tropics on Military Operations," "Fungii and the Like, Sanitation and Hygiene Peculiar to the Tropics" and "Jungle Extracts."

The first article in a two-part series on "Small Arms of the World" informs the reader on what weapons other countries have and how to load and fire them. The author is J. E. Smith of Vienna, Va.

Two features on communications cover the operator's care and cleaning of Infantry radios and a discussion of a new family of radios soon to be available to Infantrymen.

Fort Benning is the subject of an article, which points out that the post is or should be accepted as the spiritual center of the Infantry.

Defensive doctrine ROAD (Reorganization Objective Army Division) is discussed in "ROAD Battalion in the Defense."

Other articles cover problems in demolitions, radiation, geography and mathematics.

Editor of the publication is Lt. Col. James S. Douglas.

Copies of or subscription to the magazine may be obtained at The Infantry School's Book Department or by writing to The Infantry Magazine, Editorial and Pictorial Office, The Infantry School.

Jordan Officers Are Briefed On Post Activities

Fort Benning was visited March 4-7 by three officers from the Jordan Arab Army.

They were Lt. Col. Fandi Yousef Omeish of the 4th (King Hussein) Brigade; Major Talab Fahid Shammari, commander of the 1st Armored Regiment, and Capt. Badri Baha Eddin, commander of the Engineer Squadron.

They were briefed on The Infantry Center and The Infantry School. They also learned how Fort Benning is utilized in training support.

The officers saw hand-to-hand combat, marksmanship and leadership training. They also visited departments of The Infantry School.

FISHY STORY

London, England, restaurant specializing in fish dishes operated. It's name: "The Contented Sole."

Members of Girl Scout Troop 95 and their leaders visited the post Fish and Game Association where they examined skins of poisonous snakes found in the area and learned to identify them.

They discussed various phases of the conservation program and then toured the Forestry Section where they were shown how various weather instruments were used to determine forest fire danger.

A climb up the fire lookout completed the tour as the girls received instructions on operation of the fire finder in the lookout.

Girls participating in the tour were Linda Page, Jane Daniels, Beverly Harrison, Janet Davis, Penny Roberts, Susan Gingrich, Susan Young, Sue Estes and Jan Sterner.

Scout leaders who accompanied the Girl Scouts were Mrs. Robert Gingrich and Mrs. Edward Daniels.

Next Week Is Big One For AMTU

Next week is going to be a busy one for shooters at the Army Marksmanship Training Unit.

The Pistol Division, under command of Lt. Col. William S. Brophy, moves into Tampa, Fla., to compete in the annual Championships. They will be at the North Tampa Police Pistol Range site from Monday through Saturday.

The Smallbore Rifle group, which fires in the Sawgrass Matches at Miami Springs, Fla., this weekend, will then move to Winterhaven, Fla., to conduct instructor - courses. Next weekend they will fire in the Silver Dollar matches at Winterhaven.

Three of the unit's shotgun experts will also be in Tampa next Wednesday to compete in a trap-shoot event.

New Pizza Concession Opens Here

A new Post Exchange concession provides pizza in four sizes right out of the oven at Building 1214, will deliver them warm for a reasonable fee, or even bake them in a truck in outlying troop areas.

Eight trucks support the new concessings, two of them radio dispatched. A "Hogie" sandwich, salad, and fountain drinks round out the services offered by the concession.

Hours of operation will be from 11 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. Mondays through Friday, and from 4:30 to 10:30 p.m. Saturdays, Sundays and holidays.

Orders may be picked up at the building, or will be delivered on call by phoning 545-5305 or 545-4626. Pizza pies are available in four sizes—8, 10, 12 and 15 inches in diameter.

Gen. Reynolds Assigned to TIS As Gen. Surles Gets Italy Post

MOOM Hit By $200,000 Fire

A fire of undetermined origin raced through the Main Officers Open Mess early yesterday causing an estimated $200,000 damage.

Twelve transit officers sleeping on the upper floor of the building were able to flee before the flames reached them. Gilbert Ward, post fire chief, was overcome by smoke and taken to Martin Army Hospital for emergency treatment. He was released at 9 a.m. Thursday.

The blaze destroyed part of the main dining room and heavily damaged the cafeteria and kitchen. It is believed to have started shortly after 5 a.m. in the kitchen near a gas stove.

George Shipp, supervisor of the night janitors, discovered the fire when he walked into the cafeteria to investigate a popping sound in the area of the steam tables.

While Shipp called the post fire department, various members of the mess staff, a visiting Defense Department official and a military policeman aroused the sleeping residents.

Credited with saving the sleeping tenants from possible tragedy were Defense Department official James W. Jacobson—himself a transit resident at the mess hall—and Sgt. Myron M. Matteson of the 105th Military Police Company.

Firemen arrived on the scene at 5:15 a.m. and had the blaze under control by 7:45 a.m. Investigators Thursday sifted through the rubble in an attempt to determine the exact cause of the fire.

Smoke and water caused slight damage to the upper floor of the club. A clean-up squad set to work on the club's floor which was under an inch of water.

The recently added supper club and ballroom were reported undamaged by the fire. Dining facilities will be moved to the supper club temporarily.

GEN. SURLES

Brig. Gen. Royal Reynolds, Jr., assistant commander of the 2nd Infantry Division, has been named assistant commandant of The Infantry School, effective in April, Secretary of the Army Elvis J. Stahr Jr. has announced.

Gen. Reynolds will succeed Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles Jr. who has been reassigned to the U. S. Army Element of Allied Forces, Southern Europe, Naples, Italy, effective next month.

Brig. Gen. Charles Billingslea, chief of staff, Eighth Army, U. S. Army Pacific, will become assistant commander of the 2nd Division in June.

Born in San Francisco, Gen. Reynolds was graduated from the U. S. Military Academy in 1933 and was commissioned a second lieutenant. From the time of his commission until 1937 Gen. Reynolds served at Fort Sill and Fort Washington, Md.

Attends TIS

Gen. Reynolds attended The Infantry School, taking the Regular Officers Course and Advanced Communications from 1937 to 1939.

In 1939 he was assigned to Fort McKinley, Philippine Islands, and served as regimental communications officer and headquarters company commander with the 57th Infantry (Philippine Scouts).

At the outbreak of World War II he was commanding the 1st Battalion, Philippine Scouts, and fought against the Japanese at Bataan.

When Bataan fell, the then Major Reynolds evaded the Japanese in the Luzon Mountains. He joined the U. S. forces in February, 1945, when the Luzon landing was made at Zambales.

He returned to the U. S. in 1954 and was promoted to lieutenant colonel, assigned to the U. S. Military Academy as a tactical officer.

Assigned to DA

Following graduation from the Command and General Staff College in 1947, he was assigned to G2, Department of the Army. In 1949 he graduated from the Armed Forces Staff College and was reassigned to his Department of the Army post.

From 1951 to 1952 Gen. Reynolds was chief of staff, 7th Infantry Division, in Korea. Also during the Korean fighting he served as regimental commander of the 17th Infantry Regiment in the 7th Infantry Division.

Gen. Reynolds was graduat-

Stop Accidental Poisonings; Use This Check List

In observation of "National Poison Prevention Week," March 18-24, post officials have offered the following rules to help reduce the number of accidental poisonings:

Store household preparations in high cabinets or locked cupboards out of the reach of children. Lock all medicine in cabinets.

Always return products to a safe storage place after use.

Discard unused medicine and left-over household products by flushing them down the bathroom drain. Do not throw them in the trash can.

Read and heed labels. Use only according to directions.

Do not take nor give medicine in the dark. Read the label before each dose is given.

Never tell a child that medicine is "candy."

Founder's Day Dinner

Tonight's USMA Speaker Has Illustrious Background

Col. George A. Lincoln of Harbor Beach, Mich., professor of social sciences at the U.S. Military Academy since 1947 and head of that department since 1954, will be principal speaker for the annual West Point Founders' Day dinner tonight at the post.

The event, which will honor the 160th anniversary of the Military Academy, is scheduled for 7 p.m. in the Salerno Mess.

Col. Lincoln was graduated from the academy in 1929 with a commission in the Corps of Engineers and a bachelor of science. At the time of his appointment as a cadet to West Point, he was a student at the University of Wichita, Kan.

While at the academy, he was selected for a Rhodes Scholarship from New York. From 1929 until 1932, he attended Oxford University, England, from which he holds the degrees of bachelor and master of arts.

His early military service included various assignments with the Army Corps of Engineers. At the time of Pearl Harbor, then Capt. Lincoln was executive officer of a

Chief of Danish Army Here For Three-Day Visit

Lt. Gen. Valdemar Jacobsen, chief of the Royal Danish Army, arrived here yesterday for a three-day visit.

He was welcomed to the post with honors ceremonies on Chapel Field at 4:15 p.m.

Today, Gen. Jacobsen is scheduled to be briefed on the history of The Infantry Center and the organization and mission of The Infantry School.

He also will be familiarized with the utilization of the Fort Benning reservation in training support.

Gen. Jacobsen is slated to depart the post tomorrow from Lawson Army Airfield.

Secretary of Defense Supports President Kennedy's Test Plan

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara has strongly supported President Kennedy's decision to renew atmospheric nuclear testing in late April unless the Soviet Union agrees to a treaty banning such tests.

"The United States," Mr. McNamara said, "cannot allow its nuclear strength, relative to the Soviet nuclear strength, to decline and so run the risk that the free world will be replaced by a world of coercion."

Taken as a whole, the Secretary said, the recent series of Soviet tests showed an "extensive weapons development effort." If we maintained our self-imposed moratorium on atmospheric testing, our nuclear strategic advantages would soon diminish in relation to Soviet capabilities.

Mr. McNamara emphasized that the planned atmospheric test program "will result in but a small fraction of radioactive contribution to the world environment as compared to the recently completed Soviet test series."

On the basis of technical developments in nuclear weaponry, Secretary McNamara said, "the United States, under the present conditions, had no alternative but to proceed with an atmospheric test program."

The President also received the support of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, whose Chairman, Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, said the decision had been studied "thoroughly and carefully" from the military standpoint.

"Accordingly," he stated, "the Joint Chiefs of Staff strongly endorse the President's decision to resume testing, and he has our complete and wholehearted support."

ed from Fort Benning's Airborne School following his return from Korea.

After graduating from the National War College in 1954 he was assigned to the Office of the Assistant Chief of Staff, Intelligence (OACSI), Department of the Army, where he was executive officer.

It was in March, 1957, that Gen. Reynolds gained his present rank. Upon his promotion he was assigned as Director of Plans, Programs and Security, OACSI.

He took the post of deputy chief of the Military Assistance Advisory Group in Spain in 1958 where he served until coming to his present post with the 2nd Division in August, 1961.

Included among Gen. Reynolds' decorations are the Silver Star, Legion of Merit, Bronze Star with one Oak Leaf Cluster, Combat Infantryman's Badge with Second Award and the Parachutists' Badge.

He served in various staff positions in the European Theater during 1942 and 1943. In 1943, he returned to the U. S. for duty with the Operations Division of the War Department General Staff, where he remained until 1947. He served as chief of the Strategy Section, deputy chief of the group, and as group chief with rank of brigadier general, (the youngest general officer on the wartime War Department General Staff).

His staff group in the Operations Division was charged with advising Gen. George C. Marshall on plans and policies. In this position he was the War Department member of the Joint Staff Planners and Combined Staff Planners advising the Joint Chiefs of Staff and Combined Chiefs of Staff. As a staff officer of Gen. Marshall he attended the international wartime conferences.

He continued in charge of plans and policy when Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower became the Army's chief of staff.

Gave Up Rank

In 1947, Brig. Gen. Lincoln gave up his rank as general to accept permanent appointment as colonel and professor of social sciences at the Military Academy.

Since that time, Col. Lincoln has served in an advisory capacity for Departments of the Army and Defense on a number of occasions. During 1948 and 1949, he was special assistant to the secretary of the Army, and from 1951 to 1952 he held a similar position with the secretary of defense. He was a member of the U.S. delegation to the Rome and Lisbon Conferences of NATO, and has served on other projects of national and international importance.

Col. Lincoln holds the Distinguished Service Medal, Legion of Merit with Oak Leaf Cluster, and the Commander of the British Empire award.

He has participated in many educational conferences and has lectured frequently at civilian educational institutions as well as at service schools.

He is the author of "International Realities," 1948; (with associates) of "Economics of National Security," 1954; (with a collaborator) of "International Politics," 1954; "The Dynamics of International Politics" (in collaboration), 1962, and co-author of "Background for Our War," 1942, as well as many articles for educational magazines.

National Poison Prevention Week

Post Joins Campaign to Drop Rate of Accidental Poisonings

Post officials have joined in a nation-wide effort to decrease the number of accidental poisonings which occur in the nation each year.

With accidental poisonings a major problem, President John F. Kennedy has proclaimed the week beginning March 18 as "National Poison Prevention Week."

Lt. Gen. T. J. H. Trapnell, Third Army commander, has noted that 382 accidental poisonings of children occured in the Third Army area in 1961 with one of the cases resulting in death. The number represents an average of 2.2 poisonings each day.

Thus far in 1962 some 109 accidental poisonings have been reported in the Third Army area.

"This represents a careless and needless exposure of children to potential killers," Gen. Trapnell stated in a recent letter to Major Gen. Ben Harrell, commander of The Infantry Center. The letter called for Gen. Harrell's support in combating the problem.

Col. William A. Todd, post surgeon, noted that, since January 10, some 80 children were treated for accidental poisonings at Martin Army Hospital. The age range of those treated was from 10 months to 5 years.

Dangerous Substances

Included in the list of poisonous substances swallowed by children are bleach, lighter fluid, lye, insect poisons, furniture polish, kerosene, aspirin and other drugs.

Post officials have already begun their campaign to prevent accidental poisonings.

Posters will be placed in each dispensary on the post, cautioning parents to store and handle medications with care.

A new label has been devised for all prescriptions filled at post pharmacies. In red block letters across the top of the label is printed, "Keep Out of Reach of Children."

The label will be used on all prescriptions, regardless of content, for many seemingly harmless products can be dangerous when swallowed.

In addition to the posters and warning labels, leaflets on poison prevention will be attached to the post Daily Bulletin during the week.

Continuing Project

Poison prevention education is a continuing project on post, according to officials. Films on the subject are shown at intervals. Martin Army Hospital doctors write articles for the "Surgeon's Column" in "The Bayonet."

Each case of accidental poisoning nf a child is followed up by a visit to the home by one of the Army health nurses. Parents are reminded that each home contains poisonous material that can cause sudden or protracted death of a child.

Accidental poisoning can be caused not only by swallowing, but by inhaling or absorbing some agents through the skin, officials pointed out. Sprays of any kind and all insecticides should be kept away from children.

Cases of accidental poisoning have resulted from an adult mistaking the identity of a product. Carpenter oil has been mistaken for castor oil, boric acid for water and salt for sugar, reports reveal.

Recently in the Las Cruces-White Sands area, Compean's gift for sketching likenesses of suspected lawbreakers, based on oral descriptions, has been instrumental in their apprehension. The similarity of his composites to the wanted persons was described as "uncanny."

Compean, in addition to this service, has also painted several portraits in oils on commission.

19 Foreign Officers Here To Tour School Facilities

Nineteen members of the senior foreign officers intelligence course at Fort Holabird, Md., arrived at the post yesterday for a two-day visit to observe the modern Infantry in action.

They were met by Allied officers attending The Infantry School and escorted to dinner at the post's Supper Club.

This morning Col. Richard W. Keyes, deputy assistant commandant of The Infantry School, will officially welcome the men to the post at Eubanks Field.

The Holabird group then will be briefed on the history and organization of The Infantry Center and the organization and mission of The Infantry School. They also will be familiarized with the utilization of the post in training support.

Guests At Luncheon

At noon, they will be guests at an official luncheon in the Main Officers' Open Mess.

This afternoon the students will observe the Rangers in action and airborne training. A briefing on Army aviation also is planned.

They will see a weapons demonstration at Hook Range and an Infantry-tank team in attack on Buma Hill.

The field grade officers began the two-month intelligence course January 22. The course ends March 30.

List Students

Students and their countries are: Japan, Col. Shinichi Kokaka, Signal Corps; and the Republic of China, Co. Chien-Ching Hsu and Col. Chi-Cheng Yu, Infantry.

Republic of Korea, Lt. Col. Taek Koo Song, Major Sang Ho Kong, Major Tae Soung Lee and Major Jei Bok Hwang, Infantry.

Republic of the Philippines, Col. Delfin E. Argao, Cavalry; and the Republic of Viet Nam, Lt. Col. Nguyen huu-Hanh and Major Le Van Nhieu, Infantry.

'Chute! Just Can't Keep This Family Down at All

A young Army private, who is following the careers of his late father and seven brothers as paratroopers, recently became the ninth man in his family to receive the silver badge of the Airborne.

Pvt. William T. Terrett, Jr., was one of 472 Airborne students who were graduated March 9 after completing the three and four-week jump courses.

Terrett is the son of Marine Corps TSgt William T. Terrett, who was killed in action in Germany in World War II.

Sgt. Terrett's eight sons entered the service. With the memory of their father's wartime service in mind, they became paratroopers. All but William Jr., are in the Marine Corps.

A graduate of Gardena (California) High School, Pvt. Terrett entered the Army in June, 1961, at Fort Ord. In February he was assigned here for Airborne training.

Having completed his jump school training and received his silver badge and certificate of graduation, he was assigned to the 101st Airborne Division at Fort Campbell, for regular Airborne duty.

Among the graduates were 402 Army enlisted men and 41 officers, 11 Air Force officers and one enlisted man, 12 Marine Corps enlisted men and two Navy officers.

Included in the group were two second lieutenants from Nationalist China and a first lieutenant from Norway. All the graduates received badges and certificates.

Honor graduate of the class was Sgt. Edward A. Roberts of New York City, a member of the 1st Reconnaissance Battalion, 1st Marine Division, Camp Pendleton, California.

In Cadence

Their Aim Is Superior

It's getting to be quite a habit with the men of the 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade. Just give them a worthwhile cause and they respond to the hilt.

The battalion, commanded by Lt. Col. Willis E. McClain, had already reached 100 per cent participation in the annual National Health Agency and Joint Federal Services Campaign by March 5. We haven't heard of any other units hitting the goal that early.

But it started in 1960 when the unit led in the Army Emergency Relief and Community Activities Association drives, and continued through last year, when they were the first battalion or larger size unit to reach the CAA "Fair Share" quota. In 1961 the 10th Artillery also led the 1st Brigade in the Savings Bond drive with 83.1 per cent participation, which set a brigade record.

And, Within The 10th Artillery

Battery B had chalked up 450 days of vehicle operation without an accident at the end of February. A very good record.

This is the 16th month since their last minor accident in December, 1960.

Motor sergeant during this period has been Sfc William McLaughlin. Motor officers have been 2nd Lt. Robert Soderstrom and 2nd Lt. Elton Taylor, with Lt. Taylor taking over the job last November.

The battery has permanent possession of the battalion's Best Motors Plaque for 1960-61. Monthly awards are made, with the battery winning it the most months in a year taking permanent possession.

Retirement Pay Tops $1,500,000,000

Military retirement pay this year is expected to reach $1.59 billion. That's a whopping figure, but predictions are that the total will climb to over $2 billion in the next ten years. There are now some 388,000 persons on the retired lists, and this number will sharply increase, by over 15,500 whose retirements were delayed by the crisis in Berlin and elsewhere, within the next few months.

Defense Secretary McNamara has told congress to expect at least 1,000,000 Americans on retired rolls by 1979.

Chaplain's Corner

'Let Your Light Shine--That Others May See,' Jesus of Nazareth

By Chaplain (Col.) Silas E. Decker, post chaplain

The Master had something to say about people who have "eyes and see not, ears and hear not." So many of us go through life not seeing what we see and not hearing what we hear. We are too busy looking at things near at hand and do not look about us or above us.

In the middle of the 19th Century a scientist first discovered helium in the sun. Now we obtain helium, in considerable quantities, from natural gas. That scientist saw what he saw and from his experience our country has derived great benefits.

Dr. Einstein advanced the theory that matter is energy and gave us the formula that energy equals mass, times the speed of light squared. From his observation and conviction we now have the great force of atomic energy, the basic energy of the universe. He saw what he saw, understood and appreciated.

It is also true in the realm of the spirit, for great powers are waiting to be tapped if men and women in communion with God, will try sincerely to see what they see, that others may see also.

The moon is remembered in verse and song for its romantic influences, however it has a spiritual lesson for our benefit. Its brilliance and charm on a clear star-lit night is due to the reflection of the light and power belonging to our sun.

If you and I will reflect, in like manner, the spiritual light and power belonging to God then "others will see".

Resumption of Testing Is a Grim Necessity

When President Kennedy on March 2 told the nation and the world of his decision to resume nuclear testing in the atmosphere next month unless agreement can be reached with the Soviet Union, he spoke with a gravity befitting such an announcement. It was a wrenchingly hard decision to make; few Presidents in our history have faced a heavier responsibility.

One fact is glaringly plain, however. It was stated by the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, when he said: "In the light of our studies of the recent series of Soviet nuclear atmospheric tests, the President, in the interest of our national security and the security of our free world partners, has made the only decision that could be made."

Consistent with its policies in the past, the United States has not, with the President's announcement, slammed the door shut on an agreement with the Soviet Union that would make our open-air tests in April unnecessary. At the upcoming Geneva disarmament conference we will make specific proposals to avert renewal of the nuclear armaments race. One provision will be for control and a mutual moratorium. But such a test ban must be anchored in a genuine Soviet desire to work for disarmament.

We would be failing our allies and putting our own nation in terrible, even fatal jeopardy to adopt any other course than that which the President has reluctantly chosen.

The Judge Says . . .

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is Part I of an article, "Mismanagement — Prime cause of Personal Money Problems," reproduced from the November, 1960 "Army Personnel Letter.")

Many people, both in and out of service, have difficulty managing their personal financial affairs. Experts estimate that about one fourth of this group are in financial trouble because of misadventure, with the difficulties of the remainder being due to faulty management practices.

Injudicious use of credit, sometimes coupled with sheer financial irresponsibility, is causing some military personnel to resort to voluntary bankruptcy proceedings. When this occurs, merchants who, in good faith, have extended credit without security suffer severe financial losses.

While resort to voluntary bankruptcy wipes the financial slate clean (eliminating marketable assets as well as liabilities) for the individual, it also records officially the fact that the bankrupt has at one time found himself completely incapable of dealing with his personal financial affairs. The long-term implications of such a record are obvious and are not changed by separation or retirement from active service.

E. L. Covey, chief of bankruptcy for the U.S. Courts, has stated that in 1960 some 89 per cent of all bankruptcies filed in the courts were those of individuals, rather than businesses. And while individuals are generally reluctant to file voluntary bankruptcy, this reluctance on the part of a soldier may evaporate when he sees other soldiers filing bankruptcy without any immediate adverse consequences.

Under these circumstances it may not take too many letters from impatient creditors to his commanding officer to send the soldier running to a civilian attorney with a list of creditors in hand.

The following "Solvency Code," if carefully followed, will greatly reduce the possibility of military or civilian personnel falling into an uncontrollable financial state:

CURB impulse buying.

SHOP around for the best buy before making a necessary purchase.

READ and understand installment contracts before signing.

KEEP a financial cushion to take care of emergencies.

REMEMBER, you can jump into debt but you have to crawl out.

The Surgeon Says:

Early Diagnosis May Cure Cancer

By Capt. Leonard F. Greenberg, MC

Do you know cancer's seven danger signals? By being aware of them, you may save your life.

Today cancer is the second leading cause of death in the U.S. Only deaths from heart and circulatory diseases outnumber deaths from cancer. Of every six deaths from all causes in the U. S., one is caused by cancer.

In 1900, 41,000 people in the U. S. died from cancer; in 1960 this figure reached 285,000. This is related in part to the increase in population above the age of 45 — the age when cancer death rises sharply. Lung cancer, which was rare in 1900, has shown the most notable increase.

Due to improved diagnostic techniques and treatment, many people are alive today who otherwise might have died from cancer. Each year, 85,000 people are cured of cancer, and early detection can increase this number.

The seven danger signals of cancer are:

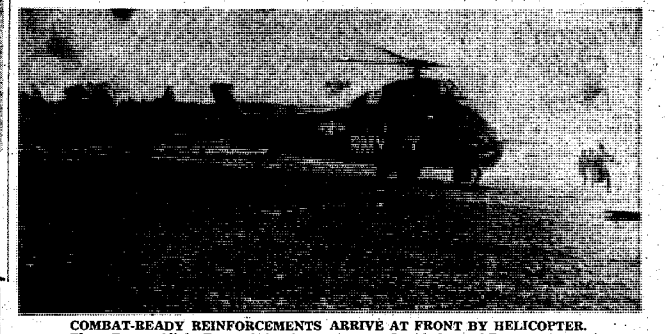
1. Unusual bleeding or discharge.
2. A lump or thickening in the breast or elsewhere.
3. A sore that does not heal.
4. Change in bowel or bladder habits.
5. Hoarseness or cough.
6. Indigestion or difficulty in swallowing.
7. Change in a wart or mole.

If your "signal" lasts more than two weeks, go to your doctor to learn if it means cancer. Many people wait for a long period of time before consulting a physician after getting one of these "signals." Remember that delay can be dangerous; the best chance for cure is early detection.

Not all growths are cancerous. Many are benign, that is, they do not threaten your life. But only a doctor can tell whether it is cancer or not. Also, cancer can occur without any symptoms, therefore, periodic checkups are important.

Cancer is a bad disease, but it is not contagious. You do not have to be afraid of contracting cancer if you have been in contact with a patient having the disease.

Also, it is not hereditary, but there may be a tendency for cancer to occur in certain families.



It affects all ages — children as well as adults. However, by far the greatest number of cases occur in adults over the age of 40. Cancer of the reproductive organs and breast account for almost one-half of all cancer in women.

A cancer detection clinic is held at Martin Army Hospital for all dependent females. This includes a physical examination, a cancer smear, and certain X-rays. It also teaches the female how she can be alerted to signs and symptoms of cancer.

Unless one of the seven danger signals presents itself, this examination does not have to be done oftener than once a year.

Big Boom at Buma Hill

Practice Makes Infantry-Tank Team Demonstration Spectacular

We never had a student or guest go to sleep or even doze during our demonstration entitled "The Infantry-Tank Team in the Attack". This boast is often made by members of the Command and Staff Department.

The "show" is a 50-minute action-packed thriller the likes of which you've never seen before. Everything is timed to the split second. If an aggressor drops dead at one point in the demonstration, the watcher may rest assured that this "enemy" has dropped dead at this particular second many times before in practice.

During the calendar year 1961, over 10,000 visitors and resident students witnessed this live-fire demonstration. It is expected this number will be equaled, or exceeded, during the present calendar year. Many distinguished visitors from Allied lands have observed this problem. A complete listing of the dignitaries would read like a military "Who's Who."

There is one comment all visitors have in common. They marvel at the overall perfection of the demonstration and ask, "How do you obtain such realism and perfect timing?" The answer is plain and simple — "Much hard work."

Coordination for the demonstration begins weeks in advance. Capt. Robert L. Skiles, principal instructor assigned to the Company Tactics Committee, briefs the control officers, troop support officers, and enlisted assistants. Coordination is made for use of terrain and distribution of ammunition.

Arrangements are firmed for required support of combat equipment, special equipment, and troop units. Many tasks are delegated to the senior enlisted assistant, MSgt William H. Simpson, supported by M-Sgt Raymon Smith, Sfc's Bernard J. Cavanaugh, Ralph E. Clawson, Oliver B. Hayes, and Sgts. Thomas P. Kohn and John B. Robbins.

Two days prior to the scheduled demonstration, 28 officers and more than 250 enlisted men with combat equipment assemble at the site. Here, Capt. Skiles conducts a safety briefing. All officers and enlisted men participating in the demonstration are required to be fully aware of the safety measure to be employed in the conduct of the show.

From this point on, this is what the demonstrators hear over the PA system:

"Dry run that part again!"

"Okay, let's check the timing."

"Aggressor, you are supposed to be shot — you are dying — not just sun bathing!"

"Move that concentration right 50 meters!"

"Get that tank fire down!"

"Slow down the helicopters about 10 seconds!"

"Now you're shaping up, but let's do it again!"

Finally the big day. Alone, Capt. Skiles steps forward. A hush settles over the bleachers and the narration begins. Out comes the magic word - "company" - and immediately a medium tank platoon places saturation fire on an objective for 15 seconds.

In rapid succession a small infantry-tank team demonstrates six of the techniques employed in a series of short skits emphasizing the close coordination required to insure smooth functioning.

A quick move to a forward bleacher location positions the observers and students in the vicinity of the front lines where Capt. Skiles presents the general and special situation. Supporting fires from artillery, mortars, 106mm recoilless rifles, machineguns, and a tank platoon devastate the objective area and adjacent enemy positions.

A dismounted rifle platoon moves forward rapidly under cover of the supporting fires to a position from which to assault the objective. The supporting fires are shifted as tanks mesh into gear and charge forward to join the Infantry in the assault on the objective.

Off to the flank, a flame-throwing tank creates a fiery inferno that eliminates stubborn enemy resistance in a concrete pillbox. The objective is secured.

Infantry reinforcements are transported quickly from a rear reserve position to the forward battlefield by helicopters. Armored personnel carriers are brought into play to mount the reinforcing platoon for a continuation of the attack.

During the course of the demonstration, observers witnessed the tremendous firepower, shock action, and battlefield mobility available to the modern day "Queen of Battle."

There has been no need to nudge your neighbor awake as the "Big Boom at Burma Hill" takes place. There is never a dull nor soundless moment during this split-second action-packed thriller.

Medical Wives Hold Style Show

The March luncheon meeting of the Fort Benning Medical Wives Club, held at the Martinique Restaurant in Columbus, was highlighted by a style show with models from a local school of charm. The fashions ran the gamut from casual to after-five dresses.

At the head table were Mrs. William A. Todd Jr., honorary president of the club; Mrs. George B. Skipworth, president; Mrs. Morris E. Brackett, honorary vice president; Mrs. Benjamin W. Kilpatrick, vice president; Mrs. John L. Hassig, acting chairman of the hostess Committee in the absence of Mrs. Thomas Laughlin, Jr.; and Mrs. Frank E. Blakely, assistant chairman.

Sixty-four members were present, with six guests being introduced by the club's president.

Newcomers welcomed were Mrs. Robert Hummel, Martin Army Hospital, and Mrs. Bob Pitts, 428th Medical Battalion.

Members are already planning their own fashions in costumes and hats for the next meeting on April 13 at the Custer Terrace Club.

Distaff Doings

By Marianne Kelly

The NCO Wives Club of Fort Benning would like to extend an invitation to all wives of non-commissioned officers to attend our annual membership tea. The tea is to be held at the clubhouse on Wednesday, March 28, from 1 to 3:30 p.m.

The clubhouse is located in the old hospital area, Building 1127.

We hope to welcome many girls that day and acquaint them with our activities and introduce them to all the members. Please mark the date on your calendar and plan now to come out and visit us. We will be most happy to have you.

A regular business meeting was held Wednesday, March 7, in the clubhouse. Bingo and refreshments were enjoyed after all the business was taken care of.

There will be a night meeting Thursday, March 22, At 8 p.m. A guest speaker is scheduled to inform us on proper investments, stocks and bonds.

Our bridge schedule has been altered somewhat. Since most of the girls have to drive a long way to Crain Hall to enjoy a couple hours of bridge, we decided to play every other Tuesday from 10-12 a.m., break for lunch and start again from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m.

We hope that more girls will be able to fit a bridge session into their schedule that way. Come on out to Crain Hall and join us. Our next games will be on Tuesday, March 27.

With the closing of the fourth six week school term come report cards and budding spring. Not only is spring evident in the landscape, but also — as every teenager can tell you — it's in the air. Classes are getting longer, weekends are getting shorter, and our books are remaining closed longer.

Smiling faces penetrated Ward B8 at Martin Army Hospital on March 11 as fourteen Junior Army Daughters of America spread some cheer. The cart bearing homemade cookies and tasty punch proved to be an excellent ice breaker.

The room echoed with the calls of BINGO as illness and problems were forgotten for a while. The names behind the smiles were Sandy Bagley, Jean Dixon, Patti Duke, Sandy Duke, Kathy Ewart, Vivian Johnson, Kay Jones, Mary Beth Joseph, Mary Mike Magner, Liz Reynolds, Mike Sterner, Tilda Todd, Sara Walters, Louise Williams, and Lea Wolfeld.

The moonlite night of March 9 found a caravan of honking cars and screaming girls. Perhaps you heard the noise and wondered just what was happening. Well, Sigma Delta Beta was inducting again. The spring rushees include Kathy Ewart, Johnnie Hare, Martha Harris, Liz Reynolds, Teri Satero, Leigh Vassar, and Cethy Whitt. For these girls the next few weeks will be filled with excitement and from the weeks will stem flowering tales to be told to future generations.

Freshmen, sophmores, and juniors got their first taste of gruelling exams March 11. They took the National Merit Scholarship Test and the National Educational Development Test. Weren't they good tests of all you didn't know? Just wait 'til College Boards — right, seniors?

We again have the honor of saluting a Benningite standing in our ranks. Yes, David Roberts, we're proud and honored to recognize you. He is the 1962 Third District West STAR student. Our sincerest congratulations, David. We are well aware of the fact that it didn't happen over night. Forbenteta is hoping that when the time comes that we can salute you with a new title, the highest a Georgia STAR student can reach.

The following tidbits have accumulated recently. Pajama Game is scheduled at Baker with several Benningites appearing. Now taking place in Atlanta, the Youth Assembly comes to our attention. What our representatives accomplish there will tell the adults exactly how we feel on certain pressing issues.

The Follow-Me-Club has had several interesting and inspiring speakers in the past month. night at the Religious Education Center in the Adult Building from seven until eight. The officers are: president, Tilda Todd; vice president, Sandy Duke; Secretary, Georgeanne Dillon; Treasurer, Earle Wilder; and refreshment chairman, Nancy Williams. The club is open to membership, everyone's welcome.

Quarterly Party Fetes 10th Artillery Couples

Officers and ladies of the 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade recently held their quarterly battalion party in the Main Officers Open Mess Main Ballroom. The formal affair served as a welcome to new members and a farewell to departing members. Newly-weds and new parents were also honbred.

Miniature cannons were presented to Capt. Venvert W. Martin, 1st Lt. Billy C. Moody and 1st Lt. Gerald W. Carino, all of who mwill depart soon. Capt. Thomas D. Fleisch, now Schol, also received a cannon.

Newly - weds receiving wedding trays were 1st Lt. and Mrs. Billy C. Moody, 2nd Lt. and Mrs. Francis J. Kern, Jr. and 2nd Lt. and Mrs. Robert C. Soderstrom.

Baby cups were presented to 1st Lt. and Mrs. Carlton W. Redfern and baby, Mark; 1st Lt. and Mrs. Helmut A. G. Roeder and baby, Larissa; 1st Lt. and Mrs. Frank D. Vaughn and baby, Marion; and 2nd Lt. and Mrs. Wendell O Hopson and baby, Michael.

Special guests were Col. William H. Birdsong, Jr., 1st Infantry Brigade commander, and Lt. Col. Raymond H. Cutler of the Command and Staff Department, The Infantry School. Their wives were also present.

Lt. Col. and Mrs. Wallis E. McClain were host and hostess. The dinner was centered around a prime rib of beef. Dancing was to the music of Joe DeMarco and his band.

St. Patrick's Theme Used at Monthly Coffee

A St. Patrick's Day theme was carried out at the monthly coffee of the ladies of the Weapons Department, the Infantry School, held last Friday in the Coregidor Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Hostesses for the coffee were the ladies of the department headquarters.

The coffee table looked very Irish with a harp covered centerpiece with "Kelly Green" rosettes and ivy flanked by the traditional St. Patrick's Day hats. Shamrock trees were placed around the room on smaller tables.

Mrs. Raymond B. Marlin welcomed Capt. Madeline Barbour and Mrs. Charles E. Nix as new members of the department.

Communications Display Featured at Book Store

A display of the old versus the new in Army radios, telephones, switchboards, and other communication equipment—including the latest lightweight radio weighing less than one pound with a range of 500 to 1600 meters—went on display at the Infantry School's Book Store last Monday and will continue through Saturday, March 24.

An interesting aspect of the display from the visitor's standpoint is a demonstration presented each day through the noon hour on a radio-teletypewriter. The onlooker can watch as the complicated but compact machine chatters out its information.

The display, sponsored by the Communications Department, is open at no charge to members of the military, their dependents, and civilians of the Columbus - Phenix City area, according to Col. Hubert E. Strange, department director.

25 Allies In Holiday Observance

Approximately 35 Allied officers at The Infantry School were granted a holiday last week to observe the Moslem Holy Day of Ramadan.

Students participating in the observance represent Turkey, Indonesia, Saudi Arabia and Iran.

A prayer service was conducted in the dayroom in Building 2762 B.

Schedule of activities for the day included a dinner for all Moslem students at Okinawa Mess.

Conducting the prayer service was Major Vecoi Muftuoglu of Turkey. He led the prayers in his native language.

First Lt. Abdulrhman Saleh Sogair of Saudi Arabia, addressed the worshippers in English.

Plans Started For National Library Week

National Library Week will be observed on the post during the week of April 8 to 14.

"Read and Watch Your World Grow" is the slogan for this year's observance, Carl Ficker, Special Services chief librarian, said.

Commenting on National Library Week, Ficker stated, "The moment you reach out and grasp a book, you have begun a better life."

The first meeting of the Fort Benning, Columbus and Phenix City Library Committee was held March 6 at the Main Post Service Club. The group made plans to publicize National Library Week.

Committee members include Major Paul Beckman, Infantry Center Special Services officer, chairman; John R. Bannister of Bradley Memorial Library, Columbus; Miss Cornelia Lowe, representing Columbus schools; Mrs. Matilda Martin of Columbus College; Mrs. Frances Hall, Phenix City librarian; Miss Mae Craighead of Columbus, and Mrs. Evelyn Southwood of Memphis, representing Fort Benning schools.

Also officers and civilians of military organizations were present.

Commander Of AMVETS Here Today

The national commander of the American Veterans of World War II and Korea (AMVETS), Edwin P. Fifielski of Chicago, two officials of the Georgia AMVETS and their wives will tour the post during a visit to Columbus today.

The group is scheduled to attend a briefing on the history and organization of The Infantry Center and Infantry School, visit the Infantry Museum and see a demonstration by the school's Ranger Department.

Members of the party, in addition to Fifielski, include the Georgia state AMVET commander, Ensley Burdine, and C. B. Ryan, national AMVET service officer for Georgia, both of Atlanta.

Columbus officials include Dennis W. Hanlon, Third District commander, Charles M. Gravu, founder of the local AMVET post, and their wives, and John E. Brown, commander of Post No. 9.

Fifielski arrived in Columbus yesterday afternoon aboard the AMVETS' survival caravan, a trailer featuring a display of a typical family fallout shelter.

In addition to visiting on post, the group will meet with the mayor of Columbus, Steve Knight and confer with local Civil Defense officials.

Fifielski, a lawyer and banker, assumed the office of national commander in October.

During World War II, he served in the Army, seeing combat duty with the 107th Cavalry and 106th Infantry Division.

SELECTED . . . Post Exchange employee Doris P. Schirmacher, section head in the main store, has been named Employee of the Month for February. Mrs. Schirmacher has been with the exchange for nine years. Major John G. Setaro, exchange officer, presented her with a $10 gift certificate.

New Food Service Head Is Named

Capt. Mary T. Lowery has been named chief of Martin Army Hospital's Food Service Division.

She succeeds Lt. Col. Evelyn G. Summers who is scheduled to depart the post March 24 for Fort Dix, N. J., to become chief of the Food Service Division of Walson Army Hospital.

Capt. Lowery was formerly chief of the Production Service, Food Service Division at Martin Hospital.

Col. R. H. Hughett Commands 87th

Succeeds Col. Robert E. Connor, Under Orders to I Corps, Korea

By 87th Inf PIO

Colonel Ralph H. Hughett was officially named the 87th Infantry's new battle group commander at a change-of-command ceremony and battle group review held last Wednesday.

Colonel Hughett succeeds Colonel Robert E. Connor, who has been commander of the 87th Infantry since December of 1960, and has recently received orders which will reassign him to I Corps Headquarters in Korea.

From G-3

Colonel Hughett, to whom the battle group colors and crests were presented by Colonel Connor, comes to the 87th from an assignment as the division's Assistant chief of staff, G-3.

Two short addresses, one of regret by Colonel Connor and one of anticipation by Colonel Hughett, highlighted the colorful ceremony, which was held at Essebagger Field. The long list of honored guests included Division Commanding General Major General Charles H. Chase, in addition to most of the division staff officers and their wives.

Commanding the troops as they passed in review was the battle group deputy commanding officer Lieutenant Colonel Raymond J. Rush Jr. The color guard was led by Sergeant Major Harry B. Hopkins. Lieutenant James E. Bopp acted as the narrator for the event. Also adding their color to the occasion was the 2nd Infantry Division band.

Brig. Gen. Reynolds Leaving 2nd Division

Brig. Gen. Charles Billingslea To Assume ADC Duties in June

Brigadier General Royal Reynolds, Jr., assistant commander of the 2nd Infantry Division since August 1961, next month leaves this command to become assistant commandant of the U.S. Army Infantry School, at Fort Benning.

Gen. Reynolds will be succeeded by Brigadier General Charles Billingslea, Eighth U. S. Army chief of staff, who is scheduled to join the 2nd Division in June.

Since his arrival and assignment as the "Indianhead" division's assistant commander, General Reynolds has helped guide the division from a training unit into a full - strength combat-ready force and, finally, into its present status as part of the nation's formidable Strategic Army Corps.

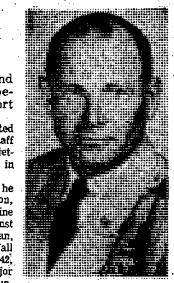
To Succeed Gen. Surles

In taking over the post of assistant commandant of The Infantry School, he will succeed Brigadier General A. D. Surles, Jr., who has been reassigned to the U.S. Army Element of Allied Forces, Southern Europe, located in Naples, Italy.

August 8 of last year to succeed Brigadier General Charles H. White, then commanding general of the 2nd Division. General Reynolds commanded until the arrival of Major General Charles H. Chase on August 14. Becoming Assistant Division Commander upon General Chase's arrival, General Reynolds headed the 2nd Division's Brigade forces.

In preparing men of the 2nd Division for assuming their role as part of the nation's STRAC forces, General Reynolds planned and controlled command post exercises "Alpha," "Bravo," "Charlie," "Delta," "Echo" and "Foxtrot." These exercises were designed to increase efficiency in message processing and transmission, also providing all staffs practice in preparation of estimates and orders.

At Ft. McClellan



Most recently, General Reynolds directed two extensive maneuvers at Fort McClellan, Alabama. Participating in these maneuvers were all five 2nd Division Infantry battle groups and supporting elements comprised of artillery, signal, aviation, engineers; ordnance and military intelligence units. As director, he planned, controlled and observed all operations carried out recently at the Alabama post.

General Reynolds is a 1933 graduate of the United States Military Academy at West Point. He was born in San Francisco, California.

He attended the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, in 1947. In 1949 he graduated from the Armed Forces Staff College. In 1954, he completed the National War College in Washington, D. C.

During World War II, he commanded the 1st Battalion, 57th Infantry (Philippine Scouts) and fought against the Japanese at Bataan Philippine Islands. At the fall of Bataan in April 1942, General Reynolds, then Major Reynolds, went into the moun-

Lt. Col. Jack Samson Named Division G-3

Lieutenant Colonel Jack Samson, who recently joined the 2nd Division's G-3 section, has been named assistant chief of staff, G-3.

He succeeds Colonel Ralph H. Hughett, who is now commanding the division's 87th Infantry.

The new division G-3 head is a former tactics instructor at the Command and Staff Department of the U. S. Army Infantry School. He taught at the Infantry School June 1959 to July 1961.

Prior to arriving at the 2nd Division's G-3 section, Colonel Samson received a bachelor of general education degree at the University of Omaha, in Nebraska.

He received his commission in 1942 following attendance at the Officer Candidate School at Fort Benning.

Colonel Samson's previous assignments with the U. S. Army include executive officer and later commanding officer of the 87th Infantry Regiment in 1952 at Fort Riley, Kansas; executive officer in the 10th Infantry Division's G-3 section and member of the Office of the Assistant Chiefs of Staff, J-3, in Paris, France from 1956 to 1959.

He attended the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, in 1955-1956.

During World War II, Colonel Samson fought with the 10th Mountain Division in northern Italy, participating in the campaigns of the North Apennines and Po Valley.

Colonel Samson is married and lives with his wife at 406 First Division Rd., Fort Benning.

CPX 'Hotel' to Be Played By Division Next Week

For the eighth time since last fall, units of the 2nd Division will send representatives to the field for the conduct of a command post exercise.

Dubbed CPX "HOTEL," the exercise is scheduled to begin Monday. Participating will be representatives of the following sections and units: general and special staff sections of 2nd Division Headquarters; Brigade; Headquarters, Division Artillery; Headquarters Detachment and a Division Logistical Control Center from 2nd Division Trains; 122nd Signal Battalion; all five Infantry battle groups; 7th Cavalry; 69th Armor and the 2nd Engineer Battalion.

Ends Wednesday

Exercise players are scheduled to return from this latest CPX Wednesday, following a critique held at the division command post for general and special staff sections and participating unit commanders.

Lieutenant Colonel John B. Wine, assistant chief of staff, G-2, is responsible for establishing a control group for the planning, conduct and critique of the exercise. The CPX is to be conducted completely on the Fort Benning reservation.

Training objectives for "Hotel" include practice in establishing and operating division communications at normal distances and providing staffs with practice in the preparation of estimates and orders.

Another specific objective is to provide the coordination necessary for an attack of a river line.

The last similar exercise was CPX "GOLF," held February 19-21.

W. O. Blumm Takes Helm Of 2nd Division's Band

Warrant Officer (W-1) Darrel Gene Blumm, a recent graduate of the Naval School of Music (Army Element), Washington, D. C., is the 2nd Infantry Division's new bandmaster.

Mr. Blumm succeeds Chief Warrant Officer Mariano Morales, who has retired after 30 years' duty with the U. S. Army.

Joined in 1955

The new 27-year-old division bandmaster joined the Army in June, 1955. He is a native of Scribner, Nebraska, where he graduated from high school in 1951. He is the recipient of a bachelor of music education degree from Wayne State Teachers' College, Wayne, Neb.

Mr. Blumm, who plays, among other instruments, the saxophone, oboe, tuba, french horn and clarinet, had band training at Fort Chaffee, Arkansas, and Fort Knox, Kentucky prior to his departure in October, 1955 for Germany.

USO Girls To 'Invade' Kelley Hill

By 87th Inf PIO

The Atlanta USO Club, consisting almost entirely of girls, will land smack in the middle of Kelley Hill this Sunday.

The girls, who number about 30, are bringing with them their own variety show, and will be in the Kelley Hill vicinity for most of the day. Starting with coffee call at 10 a.m. the girls also plan to attend the various religious services. Next they will adorn the local mess halls for lunch and finally will present their variety show at Service Club Four at 1:30 p.m., complete with two bands, dancing, comedy skits and chorus lines.

The gay, vivacious group from Atlanta is also scheduled to perform at Service Club Three at Harmony Church on Saturday night. Transportation will originate from Service Club Four at 7:30 p.m. for those who need it.

NEW 9TH X-O
Lt. Col. Halpin

New Lt. Col. On Job As 9th Inf XO

By 9th Infantry PIO

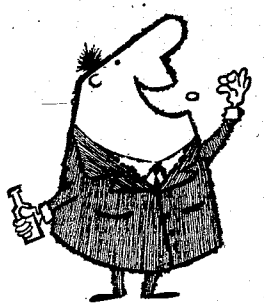
Lieutenant Colonel James M. Halpin, who was promoted to his present rank February 28 in the office of Colonel Robert E. Conner, then commander of the 87th Infantry, recently assumed the duties of executive officer of the "Keep up the Fire" 9th Infantry.

Colonel Halpin served as S-4 (supply) officer) with the 87th Infantry prior to his assignment with the 9th Infantry.

A veteran of more than 17 years of active duty, Colonel Halpin entered the Army in 1940 as an enlisted man. He was commissioned three years later while serving in the European theater during World War II. The new Manchu officer has also served during the Korean Conflict and the Lebanon action.

Colonel Halpin has received the Bronze Star with one oak leaf cluster, Army Commendation Medal, Combat Infantryman's Badge with one star and the Master Parachutist's Badge.

The colonel and his family reside at Fort Benning's Custer Terrace.



Lt. Corea Upped

First Lieutenant Vernon A. Corea, communications officer of the 69th Armor, was promoted to his present rank recently in the office of Lieutenant Colonel James T. Kolb, 69th Armor Commanding Officer.

Engineers Choose Co. A For Award Competition

Company A of the 2nd Engineers has a chance to be the Best Engineer Company in the world this year.

Lieutenant Colonel Edwin T. O'Donnell, commanding officer of the 2nd Engineer Battalion, announced last week that Company A of the 2nd Engineers has been nominated for the 1961 Ilschner Award. Company A has been an organic line company of the 2nd Engineer Battalion since it was activated and has been assigned for the past three years to Fort Benning.

Named in honor of retired Lieutenant General E. C. Ilschner, former Chief of Engineers and past president of the Society of American Military Engineers, the award is made to the Best Engineer Company of the year throughout the world.

Company A, commanded by Captain Lieto P. Di Pietro, was chosen on it numerical scores and a command evaluation of its annual operations and activities.

The award was created last year to promote leadership of junior officers and esprit de corps among active Army units.

Final selection will be made this spring.

87th 1st Sgt To MAAG Job in Iran

By 87th Inf PIO

First Sergeant Leslie E. Duke of Company E, 87th Infantry will depart Fort Benning this week for a MAAG (Military Advisor Assistance Group) assignment in Iran.

Sergeant Duke entered the service in June of 1942 and took his training at Camp Wheeler, Georgia. He saw extensive combat with the 88th Infantry during World War II in Italy. Among his decorations and awards he holds the Bronze Star Medal, the Combat Infantryman's Badge, Master Parachutist's Badge, Glider Badge and the Croix de Guerre.

Sergeant Duke is an "old soldier" in the 2nd Division, having served with the 23rd, 11th and 87th Infantries. His company was activated on December 5, 1960, the same day that he was assigned for duty with the unit. From one wooded desk and a bunch of raw recruits, he saw the men turn from civilian to Soldier as the company went through individual, squad, platoon, company, battle group and division training.

He has seen the unit assignment change from an Overseas Unit Replacement unit to a part of the strong fighting STRAC force.

R. Hartford, Once SOM, Leaves Div.

By 23rd Inf PIO

A former 2nd Division "Soldier-of-the-Month" leaves the 23rd Infantry at the end of the month for duty in Okinawa.

Corporal Roy L. Hartford of Combat Support Company has been assigned to the company radar section since the unit was converted from training to a combat-ready status. He won the Division "Soldier-of-the-Month" contest last August.

Korean Vet

Corporal Hartford entered the Army in 1949 and a year later was in Korea. During his 11 months in Korea, Corporal Hartford won the Bronze Star, the Combat Infantryman's Badge, the Korean Service Ribbon with four campaign stars, the Distinguished Unit Citation with cluster and other awards.

He worked up to the rank of sergeant first class before leaving the service to return to civilian life.

Fifteen months ago Corporal Hartford returned to the Army and was assigned to the 23rd Infantry.

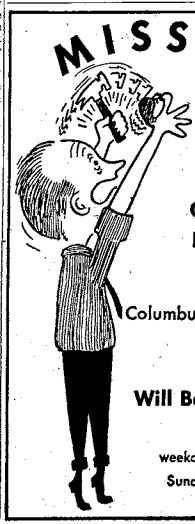
SFC Glover, 2nd Med Bn, Is Promoted



By 2nd Med Bn PIO

Platoon Sergeant Franklin Glover, Company A (Ambulance), 2nd Medical Battalion, was promoted to his present rank in a ceremony held in the battalion headquarters Monday.

Sergeant Glover entered the Armed Forces in 1941, serving in the Navy before transferring to the Marines in 1942. In July, 1945, he was discharged from the Marines and, after a break in service, enlisted in the Army.

From 1948 to 1953, he served in the European Theater. Upon return to the United States he was assigned to the 37th Infantry Division at Camp Polk, Louisiana, as a platoon sergeant with an ambulance company.

In 1954, the 37th Infantry Division was redesignated the 10th Infantry Division and moved to Fort Riley, Kansas. Sergeant Glover stayed with the unit and sailed with the 10th for a three year "Gyro-scope" tour in Germany in late 1955. He came to Fort Benning with the 10th and has been stationed here since. He has compiled a total of almost nine years service with the same unit, although the unit designation has changed on many occasions.

7th Cav Learns to Escape, Evade

By 7th Cavalry PIO

The 7th Cavalry has recently completed a field training exercise in escape and evasion. The course was run by one troop every two days.

The course began with ten-man patrols being dropped off in "enemy" territory. They were then to try to penetrate aggressor positions. The patrols were then responsible for making contact and rejoining their parent organization.

The problem ran from 12:30 p.m. to 6 a.m., for one half of the troop, then the remainder of the troop ran the course the following 24 hours, starting at 12:30. Prior to each group of patrols running the problem, they were given a class on Escape and Evasion and an orientation on the exercise.

Six Miles

The course was six miles in length through dense woods and swamps, and navigation was performed by compass and map. A mock prisoner of war camp was established in the vicinity of Ninninger Range. This added more realism to the problem, and it was from this compound that the troops were to try and escape.

The aggressors consisted of members of the squadron under the command of Lieutenant John Greene, the liaison officer of the squadron. The aggressors were assisted by the 26th Scout Dog Platoon. These dogs are trained to follow the scent of man, but they do not attack or make noise.

The compound was under control of the aggressors who commanded the surrounding area. The interrogation was conducted by the S-2 Section. The prisoners captured were brought to the compound and were made to stand at attention for many hours or sit on their knees for hours. Many were put in caskets set up in the compound and sweat boxes, then the men were interrogated by Captain Arthur A. Tritsch, the S-2 or his assistants, Lieutenant Vincent V. Elequin, First Sergeant Gordon Sale or Sergeant First Class Jerry Daniel. The men were then allowed to try and escape if they had not done so already.

The class objectives were met on every occasion with the individuals becoming familiar in the techniques of escape and evasion.

Spring is Here! At Fashion Lunch

The coming of Spring was in evidence at this month's 2nd Division Officers' Wives Club Luncheon, held Tuesday at the Supper Club.

The ladies of the 122nd Signal Battalion and the Second Engineer Battalion combined to act as hostesses and decorate the club for the fashion show program.

Chairmen

Chairmen for the luncheon were Mrs. Herbert Coburn and Mrs. Edwin T. O'Donnell. Mrs. Joseph T. Ely was in charge of decorations.

Carrying out the fashion show theme, each table had a wire dressmaker's form as a centerpiece, with Spring accessories and flowers enhancing it. On the head table, door prizes of Spring hats and jewelry formed the decorations.

Special guests for the luncheon were: Mrs. John Kelly, wife of Brigadier General John Kelly, deputy post commander, Mrs. Hazel Scudder, superintendent of schools at Fort Benning, Mrs. Mildred Erdman, Red Cross field director at Martin Army Hospital, Miss Mary Howell, Red Cross recreational director at Martin Army Hospital, Mrs. Ann Roberts, who trained the fashion models of the show and Mrs. Russell of Southern Casuals from Columbus, sponsors of the fashion show.

Organ music for the fashion show was provided. The models, each showing two complete outfits were:

Mrs. Royal Reynolds Jr., Division headquarters; Mrs. William Cosgrove, Division Headquarters, (Adjutant General's Office); Mrs. James Monroe, 1st Infantry; Mrs. Holland Owen, 9th Infantry; Mrs. Harold Darden, 38th Infantry; Mrs. Louis A. Kunzig Jr., 23rd Infantry; Mrs. George Krajack, 87th Infantry; Mrs. Charles Busch, 7th Cavalry; Mrs. Michael Cornwell, Division Artillery; Mrs. Philip Lee, Division Trains; Mrs. Allan Hammerbeck, 2nd Aviation Company; Mrs. Arthur Rappaport, 2nd Engineer Battalion; Mrs. Bruce Davis, 69th Armor and Mrs. Frank E. 38th Infantry Wives Meet in Normandy Rm.

The 38th Infantry officers' wives met recently in the Normandy Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess for their monthly coffee.

A St. Patrick's Day theme was carried out in the decorations. Two split-leaf philandendra in silver and gold pots tied with green ribbons graced the table. The ladies wore shamrock nametags.

Hostesses

Hostesses for the morning event were Mmes. Henry Fuller Jr., William T. Wade and Jack E. Kilgore. Special guests were Mrs. Claude O. England of Tifton, Ga., mother of Mrs. James R. Sessions; Mrs. Kenneth Crawford of Carlisle Barracks, Pa., houseguest of Mrs. Cecil M. Sanders.

The wives decided to hold a cake sale. Mrs. Richard D. Freeman Sr. was named project chairman. Committee members include Mmes. Frank Deese, William R. French and Donald B. Abel Jr.

Mrs. Harold W. Darden Jr. is the battle group's new social secretary. Helping her will be Mmes. Abel, Howard J. Nolan and Weldon E. White.

Mrs. Maurice C. Holden announced that the 38th ladies will display the activities of the dancing school at the May luncheon of the 2nd Division Officers' Wives Club. Mrs. Kilgore is in charge of arranging a still life, which will also feature the work of Mmes. Frederick A. Rall and Rodney A. Pimental.

Two Former Missionaries Speak to Protestant Women

The Protestant Women of Chapel Three on Sand Hill held their monthly meeting last Wednesday morning in the chapel.

Speakers for the meeting were special representatives of Wycliff Bible Translators, Inc. Mr. and Mrs. Danny O'Brien of Marietta, Georgia.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien have been missionaries in Mexico for the past ten years. Mrs. O'Brien was dressed in an authentic Mexican costume, and she and her husband presented a program consisting of a dialogue in a Mexican dialect and a film of life in a southern Mexican village.

Special guests for the morning were Mrs. Ira J. Williamson, mother of Mrs. Johnie J. Wright; Mrs. James R. Ahll and Mrs. Milo P. Johnson.

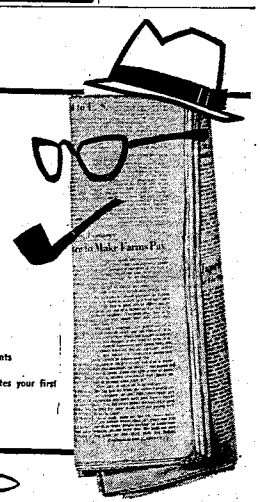
For Indianhead Ladies Oriental 'Bazaar'

Japanese lanterns, lacquerware, Donburi bowls and Daikoku Sama (Good Luck) dolls transformed the Sand Hill Non-Commissioned Officers' Club into an Oriental bazaar last Thursday.

The occasion was the regular monthly luncheon of the Ladies of the Big Indianhead.

Consomme and Sukiyaki

After the ladies had eaten Japanese consomme and sukiyaki to the tinkle of samisens, they were given a short course in Japanese customs by Mrs. LeRoy Vollmer.



Mrs. Vollmer, a native of Kyoto, Japan, dressed in a ceremonial New Year kimono, displayed and explained the inner and outer garments of a man, a woman and a child of her country.

New members for March were Mrs. Maurice Felton, Mrs. Charles McCoy and Mrs. Carl Matthews.

Three XOs Become COs At Div's 1st Infantry

By 1st Inf PIO

Three new company commanders have been named at the 1st Infantry.

The new company commanders, all former executive officers in the battle group, are Lieutenants Stephen H. Schor, Headquarters Company, Charles E. Miller, Company D and Jesse K. Fulfer, Company B.

Lieutenant Schor, who succeeds overseas-bound Captain Charles B. Allen, is a native of New York City and received his commission at Ohio State University in June of 1959.

Lieutenant Miller succeeds Captain Glenwood E. Jones as commander of Company D. Captain Jones has departed for the Army Language School, Monterey, California.

After serving with the 9th Infantry, here at Fort Benning, Lieutenant Miller came to the 1st Infantry as executive officer of Company D.

Lieutenant Fulfer replaces Company B's commander, Captain Thomas B. Clyburn, who is due to go overseas.

Lieutenant Fulfer received his commission from West Texas State College in May of 1958. He has served with the 42nd Infantry at Fort Carson, Colorado, and the 23rd Infantry at Fort Benning.

He came to the 1st Infantry as the executive officer of Company C in June of 1961 prior to assuming command of Company B.

Filling the executive officer vacancies in the three companies of the battle group are Lieutenant Douglas C. Morrow in Company C, David E. Popham in Company D and Ralph B. Dunn, Jr. in Headquarters Company.

23rd Experiences 'Enemy' POW Techniques

By 23rd Infantry PIO

A prison compound hastily constructed of concertina wire . . . a group of American Soldiers milling around inside . . . tough-looking guards in strange uniforms keeping watch for possible breakouts.

A scene from World War II or Korea? No, it was just part of the escape and evasion training this week.

Purpose of the course was to familiarize battle group personnel in techniques of survival and evasion, planning and executing escapes from the enemy and to motivate them mentally to resist enemy interrogation. In order to make the training as realistic as possible a "prison compound" was built and a detachment of "aggressors" was formed to guard and harass the "prisoners."

'Badgering'

Such harassment included constant "badgering" over a public address system by a gravel-voiced Aggressor, pleas to come over to the enemy by a "turncoat American" and a gruelling personal interview by a group of aggressor guards. Prisoners were subjected to being roughed up, stuffed into barrels and having ice water poured on them. However, terror tactics did not dampen the 23rd's troop spirit, for when the turncoat soldier began telling the advantages of changing sides he was plummeled by pine cones and sticks, forcing him to retreat from the edge of the compound.

Escape and evasion instruction was stretched over a four-day period and into four phases. The first phase stressed such topics as leadership and organization of prisoner of war camps, escape from hasty as well as permanent compounds and actions after escape. Phase two emphasized interrogation techniques, the Code of Conduct, Geneva Convention and the rules of land warfare.

Phase three taught the will to survive and demonstrated survival techniques. Phase four involved the escape and evasion field problem where personnel put to practical use the knowledge they had gathered from the first three phases.

First Sgt. Spent Half Of Career in Germany

By 38th Infantry PIO

Want to know something about Germany?

Just ask the first sergeant of the 38th Infantry's Company D.

First Sergeant Pedro Delgado, a 17-year veteran, has spent more than half of his Army career in Germany since entering the Army's ranks in 1945.

Sgt. Delgado, who recently reenlisted for another four years, first served in Germany with the 1st Medical Detachment, 169Tth Engineer Combat Battalion from 1946 until 1950. After a year's tour of duty with the 4th Infantry Division at Fort Benning, he returned to Germany for another two years until his assignment in 1953 to the 45th Infantry Division, Korea.

At the conclusion of the Korean Conflict, he served with the 37th Infantry Division at Fort Polk, La., and Fort Riley, Kansas. And, once again, he found himself on his way to Germany.

Sgt. Delgado returned to Fort Benning in 1957 and was assigned to the 11th Infantry and 87th Infantry before rejoining the 11th — the 38th's predecessor — in January 1961 as Company D first sergeant.

The Bronze Star, Combat Infantryman's Badge, Korean Service Medal and Good Conduct Medal (Fourth Award) are among his decorations.

Major Ison To Study At Ft Bragg

By 7th Cavalry PIO

Major Vernon H. Ison, the S-3 of the 7th Cavalry, has recently departed for Fort Bragg, North Carolina, where he will attend the two-week Special Warfare Staff Officers' Course. Upon the major's return, he will resume his duties as S-3.

Major Ison has a long and impressive military record. He served in World War II with the 24th Marines of the 4th Marine Division and participated in the assault of the Marshall Islands, Saipan, Tinian and Iwo Jima. After serving with the US Marines for seven years he joined the Army.

During the Korean War the Major served with the 24th Reconnaissance Company of the 24th Infantry Division and fought in many decisive battles. At the completion of the Korean War he was assigned to the 3rd Armored Division, Fort Knox, Kentucky and from there went to Germany as a troop commander in the 6th Cavalry Regiment. After serving in Germany, the major returned and was assigned to the National Guard Advisory Group in Tennessee and from that station he was sent to join the 7th Cavalry in September 1958.

During the major's stay in the 7th Cavalry, the squadron has been reorganized three times. He states that the most difficult reorganization came in the Fall of 1959 when the squadron reorganized in preparation for training and testing of the Aerial Reconnaissance Troop at Fort Stewart, Georgia in the Winter of 1959-1960.

87th Infantry Honors Basketball Champs

By 87th Inf PIO

Steaks, trophies and speeches were in order recently as the 87th Infantry celebrated the division basketball championship in grand style.

This banquet - supper was and started off the after-dinner something of a repeat performance for Conqueror athletes having indulged in a similar football victory celebration not too long ago. As before, Battle Group Commander Colonel Robert E. Connor did the honors, receiving the division trophy, presenting individual trophies, receiving an autographed ball from the team team, Lieutenant Krajack contended that he did not believe that the MVP award was a fair measure of the team's common effort.

DIV'S MOST VALUABLE PLAYER
87th's George Krajack

The dinner also marked the final appearance of Colonel Connor at such an occasion, whose tremendous support of athletic activities has contributed so much to the unit's domination of the past year's sports program.

Not entirely forgetting the future, the 87th laid some plans for the busy spring sports schedule, which will see competition on all levels in volleyball, bowling, swimming, tennis and softball.

C-S Continues To Lead 1st's Bowling League

By 1st Infantry PIO

In last week's competition of the "Always First" Bowling League of the 1st Infantry, Headquarters Company moved from third to second place in the standings. Combat Support still holds the lead, but by only two games.

The individual winners for March 8, were Cofety Swartz, Headquarters Company, three game series with a total of 576 pins; Paul A. Bridgewater, Company D, high single game with handicap of 222; and Russell Lee, Company C, high single games from scratch, 193.

With each member of the League trying to improve his average, the top six "pin busters" from the "Always First" are:

Bowler	Team	Average
Anthony Vanchieri	Co. C	182
Marion W. Adcock	C-S Co.	181
Russell Lee	Co. C	180
Robert J. Beliunich	Co. E	178
Frederick J. Rodewald	Co. A	157
Rafael Chaver	Hq. Co.	156

1st's C-S Co. Off to Early Volleyball Lead

By 1st Infantry PIO

Combat Support Company of the 1st Infantry has jumped off to an early lead in the "Always First" Volleyball League. Having a record of five wins and one loss, they now have top position and a good chance to cop the trophy.

With eight games left to play, Company C holds second place with three wins and one loss and Headquarters Company holds third place with a three win and two loss record.

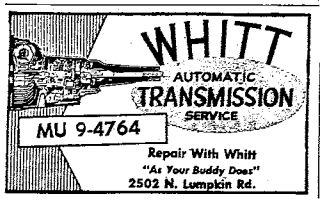
The team representing the battle group in the 2nd Division volleyball tournament will be composed of members chosen from the company teams.

Conquerors End Company Roll-off

By 87th Inf PIO

The 87th Infantry company bowling roll-off was completed last week.

Held at Main Post, a total of nine games were rolled by each entry. Scores were used to establish a battle group team to represent the 87th in the division matches next month, and secondly individual company teams and averages were determined.



The regular company level bowling tournament is scheduled to begin this week. Expected to last about 16 weeks, the league will bowl Wednesday nights at the Main Post Bowling Center.

Echo Company firmly established itself as the toughest team sweeping through the roll-off without a loss. However, Robert Sparks had the high game with 234 and Ronald McDonald took high series with 622.

Top averages were Burl Withers, 181, Raymond Cline, 77, Glenn McCammon, 174 and Leonard Shoemaker, 173.

Manchu Pitcher Once Signed By Chicago Cubs

With spring in the air and the cry of "play ball" not too far away, members of the Manchu 9th Infantry prepare to dust of their old baseball gloves and ready themselves for the forthcoming diamond season.

To one particular member of the 9th Infantry the national pastime has been a livelihood.

After being selected to the National Inter-Collegiate Athletic Association All-American "nine" in his senior year of college, southpaw pitcher, McVea Griffin signed with the National League Chicago Cubs.

Griffin first started playing ball in his home town of Baton Rouge, Louisiana.

After high school, "Grif" went to Southern University in Louisiana.

While playing varsity ball for four years, Griffin was named to the All-Conference squad each year besides being named to the NIAA All-American team.

After signing with the Cubs, Griffin was assigned to the Morristown Club in the Appalachian League in Morristown, Tennessee. Here he compiled a 10-4 record with a 3.63 earned run average.

Leading Lady Golfers Will Hold Clinic

Post lady golfers will get a chance to watch two top flight professionals March 27 when Patty Berg and Carol Mann conduct a golf clinic at the post Country Club.

The 45-minute clinic will begin at 1 p.m. The ladies then will play a nine-hole exhibition match against two of the post's top women golfers.

Scheduled to compete in the match are Mrs. Leslie E. Wood, club champion, and Mrs. Martin S. Carter, club champion in 1958 and 1959, both of Columbus.

Before the clinic, the Ladies Golf Committee of Fort Benning will hold a luncheon for Miss Berg and Miss Mann in the ballroom of the Country Club.

Miss Berg competed for five years in the amateur ranks before turning pro in 1940. Since then she has become the all-time leading money winner among women.

Her list of wins in competition is impressive and includes 82 first places since 1935. In addition, she is a three-time winner of the Associated Press Woman Athlete of the Year Award and of the Vare Trophy.

She is considered by some to be the dean of women's golf and is the head of the golf staff of a sporting concern.

Miss Mann is a relative newcomer to the tournament trail. The tall blonde is entering her second year of professional golf.

Before leaving the amateur ranks, she won the Women's Western Junior Amateur and was a medalist in the Trans-Mississippi.

Admission to the clinic is free. The public is invited.

Sunday

Head Coach At Auburn Will Speak

Auburn University's head basketball coach, Joel Eaves, will be the guest speaker at a banquet welcoming the contestants in the Third Army Basketball tournament Sunday at 7 p.m. in Salerno Mess.

Eaves, who guided his team to third place in the Southeastern Conference and finished with an over-all won-loss record of 18 and six this season, coached service basketball at Fort Sill during World War II.

The 10 men's and six women's teams from the Third Army area are expected to arrive on post tomorrow and begin preparations for the double elimination tournament which starts Monday at 10 a.m. in Briant Wells Field House.

March 26-29

Softball Officials Clinic Set

The Special Services Section will conduct a softball officials' clinic March 26 to 29 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Briant Wells Field House.

Purpose of the clinic is to train selected personnel from post units in the rules and principles of softball officiating, enabling them to conduct their own clinics in the units and officiate in company level competition this season.

The clinic is not restricted to personnel assigned from units. It is open to all military personnel.

The first day will be devoted to explaining the game and its rules. Remainder of the course will be devoted to practical work.

A test will be given on the last day.

MP Association Stages International Golf Event

The Military Police Association International Golf event is now under way on post.

Deadline for the tournament is set for April 6, when all official score cards must be turned in to the post Military Police Corps.

Masters Golf Tournament defending champion Gary Palmer will pit his first round score against any score turned in by players in the charity handicap.

The Callaway System of figuring handicaps, which is a deduction of the worst holes as compared to the score, will be in effect in the men's division. Ladies entering the tournament may either use their own handicap with an additional seven strokes or else conform to the Callaway System.

Any round played on a U.S. Golf Association recognized golf course by a participant in the tournament may be turned in as their official round. The 18 holes may be played at any time prior to April 6.

Tickets and score cards can be purchased at any time from the post tournament co-ordinator, 2nd Lt. John M. Turner, Jr. He may be contacted by calling 545-2512.

Additional places and individuals who will be selling the tickets will be announced at a later date.

Seventy five per cent of each dollar collected by the Military Police will go to worthwhile charities in the local area.

Third Army Basketball Tourney Starts Monday

WINNER'S TROPHY . . . Sgt R. C. Redish, team captain, presents The Infantry Center Troop Command's 1961-62 basketball trophy to 1st Lt. Robert J. Archibald, Jr. for display in the day room show case. The trophy was won by Headquarters Company, CTC.

Sixteen teams, ten men and six women teams, will be vieing for top honors at Briant Wells Field House as the Third Army Basketball Tournament gets underway Monday at 10 a.m.

The tournament will be a double elimination and has a five day schedule, running from Monday through Friday of next week.

A welcoming banquet will be held Sunday at 7 p.m. at the Salerno Mess for all participants and invited guests.

The following installations have entered men and women teams: Fort Benning, Fort Bragg, Fort Gordon, Fort Jackson, Fort McClellan and Fort McPherson. Posts entering men teams only are: Fort Stewart, Fort Rucker, Fort Campbell and Redstone Arsenal.

Tournament staff and committees are: Major Paul L. Beckman, chief of the tournament; 1st Lt. Alvin S. Aucoin, deputy chief of the tournament committee; MSgt William K. Edens, Sfc Billy L. Ross and Sfc Lawrence G. Jones, have been appointed to the tournament committee.

Staff personnel are: 2nd Lt. Jack W. Ferguson, project officer, Sfc Bismarck Stith and Pfc Alen W. Everhart, publicity; Sfc John J. Malick, field house supervisor; and Miss Beryl Torgerson, banquet and entertainment.

Timekeepers and scorers will be Bernard McElhinney, Pfc Donald Brenner, Pfc Ray Gonzales and Pfc Donald Cooksey.

Tournament game officials will be appointed by Third Army Headquarters.

Post WACs Represented In Basketball Tournament

Fort Benning WAC's basketball team, that finished the season with one of the best won and lost records in post history, will enter the Third Army Basketball Tournament March 19.

Competing against the girls, who have won 12 games and lost seven, will be teams from Fort Jackson, Fort Gordon, Fort McPherson, Fort McClellan, and Fort Bragg.

Of the other Third Army area teams represented, only one, Fort McClellan, holds a winning margin over the local girls. In three contests McClellan WACs have won two.

Fort Gordon and Fort McPherson were not scheduled by the local team this season.

The double elimination tournament, which runs through March 24, also will feature the best in male basketball from Third Army posts.

Games will be played in Briant Wells Field House. Admission is free. The public is invited.

The Fort Benning team is comprised of nine girls from the WAC Company and one from the Army Medical Corps.

Representing the medical specialists is Capt. Eunice R. Dobbs.

The WAC's are 1st Lt. Alyce M. Sims, Spt's Earlene Surles, Patricia E. Livingston, and Mary J. Wilk.

Pfc's Myrtle D. Crowe, Louisa Davis, Sandra Stewart, and Barbara Pentz, and Pvt Saralyn Davies.

Poor Timing

You would be surprised to learn the number of bowlers who drop their ball on the approach behind the foul line. Yet, many of them would say they do no such thing.

Dropping the ball most often stems from either one or two factors: 1—Poorly fitted ball. 2—Incorrect timing.

Incorrect timing means, generally that the upper half of the body is ready to deliver the ball before the lower half. This is usually caused by forcing the ball into the backswing at too fast a pace.

Many persons force a ball in an effort to obtain greater speed, believing that great speed is the answer for high scores.

If you are a victim of incorrect timing for these reasons, try slowing down and becoming more natural.

Col. Townsend Briefs Men On Sports Program

Briefings on the Army sports program were recently given to Fort Benning personnel by Lt. Col. E. C. Townsend, chief of the Sports Branch, Adjutant General's Office, Department of the Army.

Col. Townsend, former Special Services officer at The Infantry Center, emphasized the Army's responsibility in supporting intra-service sports competitions and U. S. efforts in international sports, such as the Olympic and Pan American games.

Accompanying him was Maj. Joseph H. Schneider, sports officer for Third Army, Fort McPherson.

Searle Coaches At Army Post

When Ted Searle climbed into a football suit during his fresh year at Oregon State, he won wide acclaim for his kicking powers with an unshod foot. During vocational during the '56 and '57 campaigns, he wore spikes and became the mainstay blocking back of Oregon's famed "lightweight" team that won the Pacific Coast Conference crowns and a member of the '56 Rose Bowl team. Now he is assistant mentor of the Fort Campbell, Ky. eleven.

OUTDOOR OUTLOOK

By Pfc Don Girton

Spring Turkey Season

Post turkey hunters will be tuning their turkey calls this week for the opening of the spring turkey season in the Alabama area on March 20 and continuing through April 15. The spring gobbler season opens March 26 on the Georgia portion of the reservation with April 14 the closing date.

In past years the spring gobbler season was open only on the Fort Benning Reservation, however, this year the season is open in Stewart, Marion, Chattahoochee, and Muscogee counties. If fair weather continues, veteran turkey hunters are expecting toms to begin gobbling about the middle of the month.

The experienced turkey hunter is in the woods before dawn, having picked a spot and observed the turkey's habits long before the season opened; he is ready to call the turkeys to him with a favorite caller as they leave the roost at the crack of dawn.

An experienced caller can bring turkeys in from up to a mile away. As the turkey nears, the hunter must be extremely careful with his call, so as not to make an incorrect note or make a tell-tale move, for if he does, the keen turkey will be long gone and an hour or more effort all in vain.

Weems Pond Floods

Last Sundays torrential rains caused flooding of Weems Pond for a short time Sunday afternoon and several inches of water was spilling over Jamestown Road. There was no damage to the pond, however, when water returned to its normal level Monday it was unusually muddy.

Additional Ponds to Be Fertilized

The Wildlife Coordinator reports three additional ponds will be fertilized regularly this year. Patterson, Kirks, and Stephens ponds will be fertilized this month with special fish pond mixture. This will bring the number of post ponds being fertilized to six. Kings, Headleys and Johnsons ponds are currently being fertilized.

Patterson and Stephens are both 6 acre ponds that have been stocked with bass and bream. Kirks Pond which is located on Wildcat road is a 3 acre pond which has been stocked with bream.

New Licenses

The Fish and Game Association reports the new Georgia Hunting and Fishing licenses will not be available until the first of April. Current Georgia licenses are valid until March 31. Likewise, the Fish and Game Association memberships are valid until the end of the month and new memberships will be available at the same time as the new state licenses.

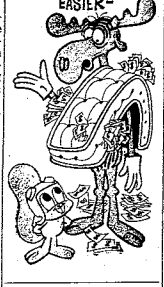
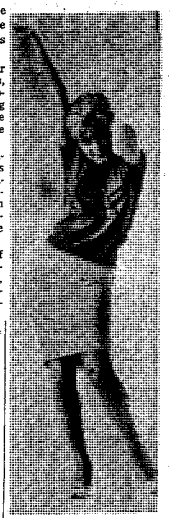
Movie's 'Twist Queen' to Visit MAH



Although a stay in the hospital can hardly be termed enjoyable, Martin Army Hospital will be brightened considerably Sunday when Miss June Wilkinson, "twist queen" of the film "Twist All Night" makes a personal visit.

The blonde actress will tour MAH, visiting with patients, beginning at 3:30 p.m. Her appearance in the Fort Benning area is in conjunction with the opening of her movie at the Rialto Theater in Columbus.

A former member of a European ballet company, Miss Wilkinson will arrive in Columbus Saturday night, being escorted through the downtown section to the Martinique Motor Court. She will depart the area Monday afternoon.



Included in her schedule of local activities will be television interviews, luncheons, twist demonstrations and a personal appearance at the Georgia Theater.

The Civilians You Work With

MARTHA W. MOORE has been a civil service employee since 1942 with all of her employment in Fort Benning offices.

Mrs. Moore is currently working in the Personnel Unit, Office Services Branch, Administrative and Management Division of the Post Engineer Section.

In her work as personnel clerk Mrs. Moore acts as liason between shop personnel, the Finance and Accounting Office and the Civilian Personnel Office.

She began her civil service career on October 14, 1942, with a position at Martin Army Hospital. Mrs. Moore later worked in ordinance before moving on to the engineers.

JOHN DAVID DAVIS, currently working in his 22nd year civil service, is administrative assistant to the post engineer. His duties call for him to coordinate with budgeting, personnel and supply offices.

During World War II, Mr. Davis served with the Army Air Corps. During his one and one-half years of active duty he was involved in aviation cadet training. He was discharged from the military in 1946.

A native of Columbus, Mr. Davis attended public schools here. He also completed courses at North Georgia College in Dahlonega.

All of Mr. Davis' years under civil service have been spent working here. One of his main jobs was cost accounting supervisor. He is treasurer of the post Civilian Employee Credit Union.

Lutherans Asked To Call Chaplain

Lutheran personnel at the post are requested to telephone Chaplain (1st Lt.) George Reswik at 545-5643 or 545-2093, giving name, organization and telephone number.

This information is needed to prepare an up-to-date roster of Lutheran personnel on the post, the chaplain said.

Reservist Takes Schooling Honors

Spt Ivan R. Mixon, recently recalled to active duty with the 414th Transportation Company at Fort Benning, was outstanding academic graduate from the Single Engine Airplane Repair Course at Fort Eustis, Va. He received a Letter of Commendation for his effort.

Gen. MacArthur Named For 5th Thayer Award

West Point, N. Y. (AFPS)—The fifth annual Sylvanus Thayer Award for outstanding public service will be presented here May 12 to General of the Army Douglas MacArthur.

The award, named for "the father of the Military Academy," is presented annually by West Point's Association of Graduates to a distinguished citizen whose accomplishments exemplify dedication to the ideals expressed in the motto of the Academy: Duty, Honor, Country.

The association's president, Lt. Gen. Leslie R. Groves (ret.), in announcing the 1962 award, noted that "Gen. MacArthur's dedicated service to this country requires no elaboration. That he personifies the ideals symbolized by the Thayer Award is patently self-evident."

Gen. MacArthur will be honored by a brigade review conducted by the Corps of Cadets when he receives the award. Previous recipients have been former President Eisenhower, former U. S. Representative to the United Nations Henry Cabot Lodge, the late John Foster Dulles and the late Dr. Ernest O. Lawrence, famed nuclear physicist.

Sylvanus Thayer, graduating with West Point's class of 1808, became the Academy's fifth superintendent nine years later, holding the post for 16 years. In that time he instituted the principles of academic and military training that are still in effect to this day.

F-100F Flights Set For 17 From TIS

Seventeen members of The Infantry School's Airborne-Air Mobility Department will leave today for a three-day visit to England Air Force Base, La.

The group, headed by Col. Michael Paulick, director of the department, and Lt. Col. O. G. Garrett, chairman of the Basic Airborne Committee, will witness an Air Force firepower demonstration.

In addition, selected members of the group will take F-100F familiarization flights.

They are scheduled to return Sunday.

Post Personnel, Dependents Lend Talents to Ballet Guild Production

READY FOR COMING BALLET

The talents of Fort Benning personnel and dependents are helping make possible the 5th annual spring performance of the Ballet Guild of Columbus to be held March 23 at 7:30 p.m. at Jordan High School Auditorium.

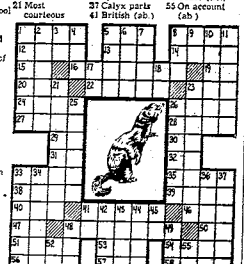
Dancing in the production will be Becky Bruce, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Joseph F. Bruce, and Vicki Morales, daughter of CWO (Ret.) and Mrs. Mariano Morales of Columbus.

Miss Morales will be featured in "Swan Queen Variation" by Tchaikovsky while Miss Bruce will appear in "The Ballet Master" with music by Johann Strauss.

An unusual feature of the production will be scenery for "The Ballet Master" being painted by Mrs. Nancy King, wife of Major Raymond W. King. The scenery is inspired by the 1880 Degas painting, "The Ballet Class." Music for the dance is arranged by George Johnson of the Columbus Symphony Orchestra.

Major King is in charge of props for the production.

Mrs. Bruce is secretary of the Columbus Ballet Guild while Mrs. Morales is treasurer and publicity chairman.



Tickets for the production are being distributed through Columbus and Fort Benning schools.

Singing in Army Led to TV Career

Poncie Ponce, who plays the jazz-talking cab driver in the Hawaiian Eye TV show, decided to become an entertainer while serving with the Army in Germany. Poncie became so popular with his fellow soldiers that he started entertaining in Munich night clubs. Thus bitten by the bug, nothing could stop him.

SQUADRON FLIGHT

The Army's first cross-country squadron flight, November 19, 1915, with six machines, began at Fort Sill, Okla. The final destination was Fort Sam Houston, Tex. a distance of 439 miles.

Coin Collectors-Collect the Best

By 2nd Lt. Jay P. Realkirt

Almost all coin collectors start as I did by filling a Whitman folder from circulation. But there comes a time when a few remaining spaces simply can't be filled from circulation and must be purchased.

Many people will go to a local dealer and try to purchase the cheapest coins of the missing dates desiring quantity rather than quality.

This is probably the biggest mistake a collector can make. First of all a cheaper grade of coin will not increase nearly as well as the better grades. Secondly many people, after completing a collection, start improving the overall condition. Naturally if you have purchased poor coins at first they too will have to be replaced and so your expense is much greater than if you purchased good quality to start with.

The most common starter collection is the Lincoln penny set most of which are in circulation. However the early years must be purchased and some can be quite expensive.

Let us examine prices of this set as the rule applies to all collections. The primary key dates are the 1914-d, 1909-s-VDB, and the 1931-s. The '14-d in uncirculated condition is generally too expensive unless you are building all uncirculated, but in Extra Fine (EF), still a handsome coin, the price has dropped more than $200.

The price does not drop nearly as sharply in the lesser grades and therefore the condition for the money is EF.

This coin in this condition is very handsome and should you ever wish to sell you will always find a buyer and be able to get your money back. In the lesser grades this is not so.

The 09-s-VDB is different since the lesser grades are expensive to start with and the uncirculated (Unc) is only double the price of good (G), certainly not a desirable grade.

Therefore the best buy for the money is Unc. The 1931-s is the same way and since it is still not excessively expensive should be purchased in only Unc.

A word about Unc and About Unc (AU). The difference in condition is very slight, however the difference in cost is great. A quick check in the Red Book will show that about all of the early dates in Unc are three to five times as expensive as EF with the majority of that drop from Unc to AU.

Always buy the best you can afford and use your Red Book as a guide so that you will not overpay. Your best Bet is quality not quantity.

Pilots Get Weather Refresher Training

Annual weather refresher training will be conducted this month for all Army aviators and ground duty personnel assigned at Fort Benning.

Classes were held in Building 2805 from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. yesterday, and are scheduled again March 22 for Lawson Army Aviation Command personnel and are set today for Infantry Center and Infantry School personnel.

On March 24 a make-up class will be held for all personnel unable to attend the earlier classes.

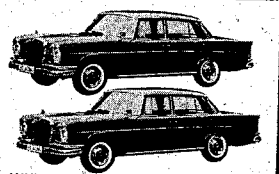
Purpose of the course, which will be conducted by Capt. Michael A. Titre, commander of Detachment 10, 16th Weather Squadron, U. S. Air Force, and weather officer for Lawson Field, is to provide weather refresher training for Army aviators, control tower and ground control approach operators, and air traffic controllers.

In addition, it provides training for certain aviation personnel in making limited weather observations and enhances the conduct of aviation operations and the flying safety program, according to officials.

The course will include instruction in icing, thunderstorms, frontal systems, fog, cloud formation, air masses, winds aloft reports, teletype reports, weather planning and weather requirements, and procedures for completing aircraft clearance forms for flights conducted under visual and instrument flight rules.

Capt. Titre stated he plans to stress cloud formations and teletype reports.

This training is conducted yearly in connection with the annual renewal of aviation personnel's instrument cards.



There are approximately 182 aviators assigned to Lawson Command, 65 to the 2nd Infantry Divison and 136 to The Infantry Center and School.

Major Chriss Subcommittee Chief

Major James V. Chriss has been named chief of the Radio Wire Subcommittee, Applied Communications Department at The Infantry School.

He succeeds Major Sidney S. Wolfeld, who has been made department research coordinator. Major Chriss was formerly department operations officer.

The new operations officer is Capt. Walter L. Watkins, formerly a member of the Applied Communications Committee.

WHICH ONE HAS "EINSPRITZER"?
Both are identical in their elegance. On top, the Mercedes-Benz 220S with dual carburetors. Below, her spirited sister—the 220SE. The E means Einspritzmotor (fuel injection engine, for even greater power).
We invite you to visit us for the illuminating experience of a trial drive in a Mercedes-Benz. Look at several models. Prices range from $3,800 to $14,600.
And if you are planning a trip to Europe, we can arrange for the model of your choice to be waiting for you—at the lowest possible European retail prices. When you return, we service your Mercedes-Benz and assume full responsibility for its Warranty.

Benning Jewish Personnel to Observe Purim

Jewish personnel at Fort Benning will celebrate Purim next Tuesday.

There will be a joint meeting with the congregation of Shearith Israel in Columbus at 7 p.m. Monday evening at Shearith Israel Synagogue, 2550 Wynnton Rd.

The service will feature the reading of the "Megillah," the Book of Esther.

There will be a children's Purim party March 25 at the Jewish Center, Building 1071. The party will be sponsored by the Jewish Sisterhood of Fort Benning. Adults are invited.

Purium commemorates an episode in the history of the Jewish people when a great tragedy was averted.

OFF AND RUNNING . . . Are Lawson Army Aviation Command officers during their annual Physical Combat Proficiency Test held recently at Watson Field. The first group of LAAC officers all passed the new test. Leading the field with 475 points out of a possible 500 was Capt. Billy Miller, 202nd Transportation Company (Far R).

EPO Visual Aids Section Moves Location

The Visual Aids Section of The Infantry School Editorial and Pictorial Office has moved to a new location.

Formerly in the 1800 block, the section is occupying buildings in the 2000 block in the Lawson Army Aviation Command area.

Visual Aids headquarters was moved first and was open for business Monday in Building 2035.

Other activities of the section completed the move this week.

There will be no change in telephone numbers for the section.

This Weekend

Atlanta USO Plans Four Shows Here

An Atlanta USO Talent Show with junior hostesses will give four performances at the post tomorrow and Sunday.

Scheduled are two shows tomorrow at 3:30 p.m. at Service Club 1 on the Main Post and at 8 p.m. in Service Club 3 at Harmony Church.

Sunday the troup will perform at 1:30 p.m. in Service Club 4, Building 9010, and at 3 p.m. at Martin Army Hospital.

That day there will be a coffee for the group at Service Club 4 at 10 a.m. They will attend chapel services and eat lunch in the Kelley Hill area mess halls.

Featured in the show will be a comedy routine, "Sadie Hawkins Day Wedding." There will be dancing by Carol Porter and songs by Bonnie Mitchell and Sandy Ellenburg.

Music for the show will be furnished by "The Barons," a combo.

This is a return engagement for the USO group. They gave a series of performances on the post in November.

Miss Caroline H. Reid of Atlanta, Service Club director, is in charge of arrangements for the shows and the USO group.

For Weather or Air Raid

Dependent Children Disaster Plan Set Up

Disaster plans have been formulated for the protection of dependent children at the post in case of severe weather or air raid.

The plans include three types of weather warning and three related plans for the care of children, depending upon the severity of the situation.

"Blue Warning" indicates a severe storm with the possibility of tornadoes. Preparation will be made to initiate one of the weather disaster plans if the condition should become more severe.

"Blue Warning" is issued by telephone but both "Green Alert" and "Black Alert" will be sounded on post sirens.

The signal for "Green Alert" is two steady two-minute blasts, interrupted by one minute of silence. It signifies severe weather within one and one-half to six hours.

Plan A will go into effect if there is as much as two hours to complete it.

Children who normally walk to school and who live in permanent buildings will be told to go home. Children who are transported to school and who live in permanent buildings will be taken to their homes. Children who live in temporary structures will be moved to the basement of Patch School.

If the "Green Alert" allows less than two but at least one hour, Plan B will be used.

Patch School students will move to the school basement; Edward A. White and Hospital Area students will walk to the Old Hospital Headquarters, Building 396, and Faith, Loyd and Wilbur students will be transported to the basement of the Third Cuartel.

"Black Alert," a steady three-minute blast, indicates severe weather in less than 1½ hours and sets Plan C into action.

Students will go to school basements, where available, or to classrooms. Edward A. White and Old Hospital Area students will go to Building 396.

If a "Green Alert" is in effect at 7 a.m. on a school day, schools will be suspended.

Air raid warning "Yellow Alert," a steady five-minute blast, indicates probable attack by hostile aircraft.

If there is as much as two hours warning, Plan I, the same as "Green Alert" Plan A will be used. If there is less than two hours warning, Plan II, the same as "Green Alert" Plan B will go into effect.

"Red Alert," a fluctuating three-minute sounding of the sirens, warns of an imminent attack by hostile aircraft. Plan III will go into operation.

Students will go to basements, if available, or classrooms and lie face down on the floor with eyes covered.

If an order to evacuate the post should be received while students are under control of the schools, both children and teachers will be evacuated.

Disaster plans have been coordinated with the provost marshal and the motor pool to insure adequate control and transportation.

The school nurse, supplemented if necessary by Martin Army Hospital, will render emergency medical care in case of injuries.

Parents are advised to stay home during either a weather or air raid alert. They should not attempt to drive to school nor telephone the school.

MODEST PROPOSAL

A high wind tore the roof off a Sunderland, England, home just as a young fellow proposed to his girl. "I accepted," the girl told rescuers later.

Sorry Rover, Humans Only!

FORT BENNING, GEORGIA, HOME OF U. S. ARMY INFANTRY CENTER

VOL. 20, NO. 28 FRIDAY, MARCH 23, 1962 FORT BENNING, GA. 32 Pages — 5c

SPANNING 50 YEARS AT USMA . . . Oldest and youngest graduates of the U.S. Military Academy present at the annual West Point Founder's Day Dinner last Friday are Brig. Gen. (Ret.) James B. Crawford of Auburn, Ala., Class of 1911, and 2nd Lt. Louis C. Berra, Class of 1961.

Competition Starts Tuesday

Post Rifle, Pistol Events Draw 300

Some 300 rifle and pistol marksmen of The Infantry Center will assemble Monday at 8:45 a.m. to hear Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly, USAIC deputy commander, launch TIC's annual championship matches.

A 15-minute concert will be given by TIC Band. With the arrival of Gen. Kelly the band will play appropriate honors and the National Anthem. Lt. Col. Burton C. Boatright, rifle and pistol match director, will introduce Gen. Kelly.

Practice firing will take up the remainder of the day. Competition will begin on Tuesday with the automatic rifle matches. Service rifle and pistol matches will be held Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. The program will be capped Friday at 1:30 p.m. with the awards ceremony.

New Pistol Events

Pistol competitors will find five new events listed. Appearing in post-level competition for the first time will be the .22 caliber pistol.

Scheduled for the week are 11 pistol events, 8 rifle and 4 automatic rifle matches.

Awards will go to the first five places winners in each match. New shooter names to rifle and pistol competition. Inter-service rifle awards will go to the first three places winners among the two-man team entries.

This is the first major shoot in the annual cycle of Army marksmanship matches. Friends of participants and interested persons have been cordially invited to attend.

1961 Champions

Last year's individual pistol champion, Sgt. Robert E. Wilford will be firing with The Third Army Marksmanship Unit. Wilford's aggregate score of 839-19X went into The Infantry Center's record books as a 1961 match mark.

MSgt Jesse E. McCaskill, last year's individual rifle champion, will also be firing with the Third Army Marksmanship Unit. He took top honors last year with an aggregate score of 620-42V.

The units included in this year's competition are: The Infantry Center Troop Command, The 1st Infantry Brigade, Lawson Army Aviation Command, 151st Engineer Group, 428th Medical Battalion and Martin Army Hospital.

March 31

Vice Chief of Staff Retires

WASHINGTON (ANS) — A distinguished military career spanning four decades will come to an end March 31 when Army Vice Chief of Staff Gen. Clyde D. Eddleman will retire.

Gen. Eddleman, 60, has served as vice chief since November, 1960.

The announcement of his successor is expected to be made shortly.

During World War II, the Texas-born Infantryman served as the G-3 of Gen. Walton Krueger's Sixth Army. He was responsible for the planning and coordination of all twelve of that Army's major Pacific campaigns as well as the occupation of Japan.

During the Korean War, he served as chief of plans, deputy G-3, and as the G-3 of the Department of the Army. In this capacity, he also helped develop plans chiefs of staff policy on Korean armistice

Details of Tank Design Contest Include Some 'Think' Questions

What should be the features and characteristics of the future Army main battle tank?

Lt. Gen. Arthur G. Trudeau, the Army's chief of Research and Development, is convinced that "the modern Army demands a new and revolutionary change in tank development philosophy," and the Army is cooperating with the U. S. Armor Association in conducting a Tank Design Contest which offers four prizes totaling $1,000.

In a letter to Lt. Gen. T. J. H. Trapnell, Third Army commander, Gen. Trudeau urged that the contest be brought to the attention of "all the members of your command, for I feel that we stand to gain great benefits from the ideas submitted from a great variety of sources."

Brochures on the contest are being given Army-wide distribution and entry blanks will also appear in Armor Magazine, Army, and other publications, Gen. Trudeau said. The brochure contains an entry blank and lists the rules and objectives of the contest.

First prize will be $500 in U. S. Savings Bonds, second prize will be $300 in Savings Bonds, third $200 in bonds, and fourth $100 in bonds. In addition, each of the top 10 contestants will receive an appropriate certificate and a two-year honorary membership in the U. S. Armor Association.

Winners will be announced in the November-December issue of Armor Magazine and awards will be presented December 12.

The objective of the contest is stated as follows:

"We believe that the role of the main battle tank will continue for the foreseeable future. We are also convinced that you have new and worthwhile ideas as to how this role can best be fulfilled. Consequently, the purpose of this contest is to develop ideas for a combat vehicle, or component thereof, which will substantially increase the shock effect of Armor in operations over all types of terrain.

"While its configuration and the time at which it might be issued to troops are not overriding factors, you should attempt to aim your effort at a successor for today's tank."

The brochure includes a number of "think" questions, including:

What should the main battle tank look like? What should it be able to do? How heavy should it be? Should it be air-transportable? How big a crew? What weapons should it mount? Should it be able to fly? How much armor? Where? What type of engine? Transmission? Tracks?

Why must we have a track with a life of only 2,000 miles tied to a 50-ton body? How long are we going to wish we were in the Navy every time we see a ditch full of water in front of an Army tank?

Details of the contest can be obtained by writing the U. S. Armor Association, 1757 K Street, N. W. Washington, D. C.

DOD Plans New Film on Reds

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — A film tentatively entitled "The Road to the Wall," is to be produced for use in the troop information program of the military establishment.

The new film, a 45-minute documentary, will be an historical treatment of communism from its beginning to the building of the Berlin Wall, a Defense Department announcement said.

The producer of the film will be Robert Saudek, whose "Omnibus" series received a total of 72 awards.

The script writer will be Don Mankiewicz, well known novelist and writer for screen and television.

"The Road to the Wall" is a part of the Defense Department's long range program for production of material designed to strengthen the serviceman's faith in his American heritage and to keep him aware of the dangers of communism.

Over 11,000 Due This Summer

Preparations for Training Reserve Components Begin

An "army" of more than 11,000 troops of National Guard and Army Reserve units and ROTC students will invade Fort Benning at various intervals this summer for their annual summer training beginning early in June and ending in September.

Scheduled to arrive in the huge influx are men from such units as garrison, artillery, hospital, transportation, quartermaster, aviation, engineer, ordnance, military police, an Army band and a postal unit.

Among the trainees will be 6,575 Army Reserve personnel from the IV Army Corps of Birmingham, and the XII Corps of Atlanta, 2,000 from USAR Infantry schools of the Second, Third, Fourth and Fifth Army areas and 1,546 cadets of the ROTC.

In addition some 800 men of the Command and General Staff College, who will receive two weeks of classroom instruction formerly given at Fort Jackson, and 298 National Guardsmen will train here.

From 30 to 50 National Guard multiple drill units are conducting week-end training on post Saturdays and Sundays from March 18 through May 27.

These units are training in small arms, tank and artillery firing in preparation for their annual qualification firing.

One-day orientation tours for advanced ROTC cadets from the Third Army area will be conducted this spring, normally on Fridays, Capt. Charles J. Bolce, S-3 of the Reserve Component Section, The Infantry Center, said.

At a USAR pre-camp conference recently, Major Gen. Ben Harrell, commander of The Infantry Center, greeted some 125 Reserve officers and non-commissioned officers.

One of the visitors at the conference was Major Gen. Leon L. Mathews, commander of the 87th Maneuver Area Command, Birmingham.

Visitors at the conference were oriented on the summer USAR training program by Major Joseph Hall, assistant chief of the Reserve Component Section.

Col. Elazar Of Israel Visits Post

Col. David Elazar, chief of armor in the Israel Defense Forces, arrived at Fort Benning Wednesday evening for a three-day tour of the post.

Accompanying him are Col. Yehuda Prihar, Israeli military attache to Washington, D. C., and Lt. Col. Arnihay Tsur, assistant attache.

They are being briefed on the history and organization of The Infantry Center and the organization and mission of The Infantry School. They also are being familiarized with the utilization of the post in training support.

The Allied officers arrived at the post after visiting Fort Knox. They are slated to depart tomorrow.

UPPED . . . Lt. Col. Betty T. McCormack, WAC advisor in The Infantry Center's G-1 Section, received her silver leaves in recent promotion ceremonies conducted by Col. William J. Higgins, post G-1. Also present was Col. McCormack's husband, Major Wilbur McCormack, Infantry Center assistant inspector general.

To Civilians

Craft Shop Facilities Extended

Facilities of the post Crafts Shops have been made available to civilian employees on the post by Major Gen. Ben Harrell, post commander.

The civilians will be issued prenumbered Special Services crafts identification cards. Included will be Civil Service, graded, ungraded, nonappropriated fund and Post Exchange employees.

All those interested are invited to visit the facilities for briefings and orientations prior to actualy starting projects.

The main Craft Shop is located under the south wing of Doughboy Stadium, Building 394, and is open from 6 to 10 p.m. Monday through Friday, and from 1 to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. Phone number of the main shop is 545-1743.

American University Classes

Spring term classes at The American University facilities on post will begin March 26, and registration, which began last Monday, will continue until opening day.

Classes will meet on Monday and Wednesday or Tuesday and Thursday depending upon subjects selected by the student.

Military personnel and their dependents with a high school diploma or who have passed the high school GED test are eligible to attend.

Fees are $15 per semester hour or $45 for three semester hour courses. Persons eligible for tuition assistance may apply to have half of this amount paid by the Government. Gen. Eddleman left the Pentagon in 1954 to take command of the 4th Infantry Division in Germany. A year later he relinquished this post to become commandant of the Army War College at Carlisle Barracks, Pa.

His stay at the college was brief, for the Army's new chief of staff, Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, summoned him back to Washington to become deputy chief of staff for Military Operations.

In the summer of 1958, Gen. Eddleman went to Germany to command the Seventh Army. After nine months of distinguished service in this assignment, he was elevated to the post of commander - in - chief, U. S. Army, Europe, April 1, 1959. He remained as CINCUSAREUR until he was named vice chief of staff.

A 1924 graduate of the U.S. Military Academy, Gen. Eddleman has been awarded the Distinguished Service Medal, Silver Star, Legion of Merit, Bronze Star Medal, and the Distinguished Service Star of the Republic of the Philippines.

He has not announced his future plans, but expects to make his home in the Washington area.

In Cadence

Imagine yourself as the chairman of the powerful Central Committee of the Communist Party in Russia. If you were to sit down and review the world situation, here are a few of the problems which might face you:

1. You are feuding with Red China over how to deal with the Western allies. The Chinese have allied themselves with upstart Albania and in doing so have established a foothold in Europe for the first time since the Mongol invasions centuries ago.

2. You are suffering the harassment of negative world opinion as a result of the outrage of the wall in East Berlin.

3. You have incurred the suspicion of the world by testing nuclear weapons again.

4. Western Europe continues her dramatic recovery with the formation of the Common Market which will stimulate trade throughout all the free world.

5. Fidel Castro, your puppet, has been placed in an economic vacuum by the Organization of American States.

6. On the homefront your plan for the development of the vast virgin regions of eastern Russia has failed miserably over the past year and production has fallen off considerably.

7. You are waging a political battle at home over the de-Stalinization campaign and you have not been able to dispose effectively of the last remnants of the late dictator's following.

8. In Africa you can't seem to make any headway.

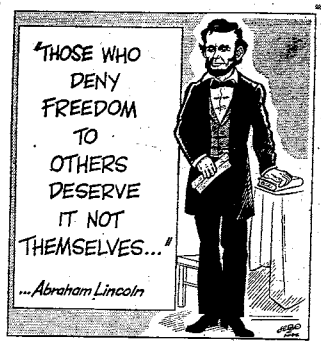
9. Your actions during the last year have aroused free people everywhere and you now face a determined America propelled by vigorous leadership.

It is well, whenever we become discouraged over the directions in which events seem to be leading, to stop and look at the other side of the coin. The above list is only a partial one, and a strong, well-informed public can add to it considerably. — 2nd LT. FRANK JOHNSON.

'Ambassador' Serves Self Too

When an outstanding example of human kindness, compassion and sense of the responsibility of foreign duty pops into our field of living, it often causes a pause and period of inner reflection.

There is a lot of talk about a soldier being an "ambassador" of American goodwill and love of peace and freedom, and probably every soldier realizes that this is true — we are "ambassadors" and reflect our nation. The problem comes with trying to live up to our ideals and beliefs.



But did anyone ever see a really kind and thoughtful individual who was not happy? We think seldom. The inner feeling in knowing that what we are doing is right should produce a lot of self-satisfaction, and that means a happy person.

This is what we as individuals stand to gain. The total good accomplished toward others is incalculable.

Examples of good "ambassadors" certainly don't have to be Army chaplains, but Lt. Col. Roy D. Hidy, 1st Infantry Brigade chaplain, happens to be such a one.

After almost constant service beginning during World War II, in Europe, Japan, Korea and numerous Pacific islands, during which he displayed a deep interest in people, their customs, beliefs, hopes and needs for understanding, he has amassed tokens of appreciation and momemtos sufficient to make any dull day seem bright on reflection.

Aside from his duties and obligations to the Army itself, he has found the real meaning of being an American "ambassador" when serving overseas. Very few would disagree, but as Col. Hidy says, "It is easier to float downstream with the current than to fight ones' way upstream." — SP5 LARRY BENEDICT.

Chaplain's Corner

'Fear Not'

By Chaplain (Capt.) Carl E. L. Lucky, Jr.

People of the major religious faiths in America are in a period of preparation for the approaching holy days. Jews are preparing for the Passover, and Christians are preparing for Holy Week and Easter.

Because of the drama of these holy days, people both inside and outside of the religious traditions are confronted with questions concerning faith in God.

"Did God miraculously lead the Israelites out of bondage in Egypt?" "Did Jesus die on a cross at the hands of sinful men and rise from the dead, thus earning for all men the forgiveness of sins and everlasting life?" "Does any of this have relevance for us in the technically dominated, annihilation-threatened twentieth century?"

On all sides, and in every quarter there are many questions and much doubt.

However, the New Testament teaches that the evidence of unbelief is n doubt, but fear. The question so often asked is not "Why do you doubt?", but rather "Why are ye so fearful?" The real evidence of our lack of faith is out great fear and anxiety. There is fear of the bill collector, fear of the boss, fear of not being accepted, fear of failure, fear of life in the future, fear of death.

Religious faith is not offered as a set of neat answers to some academic quiz game, nor is it primarily a set of rules to keep us moral after school. God invites us, by faith in Him, to fear not, for in Him we need have no fear.

God told Abraham, "Fear not, Abraham, I am thy shield and thy exceeding great reward." To Isaiah He said, "Fear thou not, for I am with thee, be not dismayed for I am thy God."

The Psalmist confesses, "I will fear no evil, for thou art with me." The Christmas angel announced, "Fear not, for I bring you good tidings of a great joy." And Jesus said, "Fear not, little flock, for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom."

Today, God invites you to have faith in Him. He invites you to examine what He has done and still does for people who put their trust in Him. The record indicates that He is trust-worthy.

A new buoyancy and zest for living awaits you. Renewed strength and great courage is offered to you. In your daily living, in big things and little things, believe God. Trust Him when, in Isaiah, He says to you "For I the Lord thy God will hold thy right hand, saying unto thee, 'Fear not; I will help thee'."

The Surgeon Says:

Pharmacy Service At Martin Hospital

By Lt. Col. John L. Hassig, MSC

Most of us who have spent time at Fort Benning have visited Martin Army Hospital and received medical care for ourselves or our dependents.

Probably every member of our families at one time or another has depended on the skill and knowledge of a medical officer in times of illness. The doctor we visit at Martin hospital is one member of the medical team. His partner and teammate is the pharmacist whose service and knowledge play an important role in the treatment of patients.

At Martin Army Hospital, the pharmacy, located on the first floor adjacent to the Central Appointment Desk waiting room, is under the supervision of Lt. Col. John L. Hassig, MSC. He is assisted by Sfc William J. Moore, the noncommissioned officer in charge, Pfc James J. McVerry and Pvt John S. Peavy, all of whom are registered pharmacists and graduates of recognized colleges of pharmacy.

Pfc Jack C. Middleton, Pfc Gerald E. Persinger and Pvt Michael J. Paulina serve as pharmacy assistants and perform many duties not seen by the visiting patient. The very important task of compounding various drug preparations is performed by Sfc James W. Merciers, a technician with 20 years experience, who single-handedly manages and operates the Pharmaceutical Laboratory in Building 396, in the Old Hospital area.

From 750 to 1,000 prescriptions are filled daily at the pharmacy, a staggering figure by any standard. In 1960, 261,849 prescriptions were filled and in 1961 about 300,000.

Hours of operation for the pharmacy are from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday and 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday. The windows are open even through the noon lunch hour. After normal duty hours, emergency medications are dispensed at the Emergency Room.

Prescriptions written by licensed civilian physicians or dentists for personnel eligible for military care are honored only under the following conditions:

1. When the physician or dentist is practicing in the Columbus-Phenix City area.
2. When the physician or dentist has a signature card on file in the Martin Army Hospital Pharmacy, and:
3. When the pharmacy

When an individual with a definite financial problem is identified, the unit commander or the legal assistance officer may help by:

Assisting the serviceman and his wife to set up a balance sheet showing income and obligations in a graphic manner.

Seeking ways to reduce fixed obligations (possibilities: turn back to the vendor boats, motors, TV's, etc., if the creditor will accept them); reducing costs by having a soldier living off post sign up for a fuel equalizer plan so that he may pay for his fuel bill over a period of 12 months instad of during the winter months alone; selling the second car; or, if eligible, moving the family into on-post housing to reduce costs.

Suggesting that the soldier secure loans from his or his wife's family, loans on his life insurance, loans from banks where his credit is established, or from credit unions, but never from a "loan shark," because of very high interest rates and dangerous default provisions in most small loan agreements.

Suggesting that the soldier contact all of his creditors telling them of his situation and asking if they will accept reduced payments until paid in full, but avoid using the services of "debt jumpers" because of the high fees charged.

In extreme cases, advising the soldier and his wife to avoid filing voluntary bankruptcy. In this case, the legal assistance office may refer the service member to a member of the local bar for the purpose of filing a "Federal Wage Earners' Plan" under the provisions of Chapter 13 of Title 11 U. S. Code.

This plan, if approved by the court, may result in each unsecured creditor being paid off in full by a trustee of the Federal Courts over a period of up to three years from funds paid monthly by the soldier to the trustee.

The advantages of using the Federal Wage Earners' Plan over voluntary bankruptcy proceedings may be summarized as follows:

Reduces costs to individuals. Typical costs under the wage earners' plan are $30 for filing fees, and $150 average attorney's fees, for a total of $180. In regular bankruptcy, the filing fee is $50 and attorney's fees will average $250, making an average total cost of $300. Additionally, successful completion of a wage earners' plan may save assets that would otherwise be sacrificed in bankruptcy.

'Mile High' Job is Done Each Month

An old saying has it that once printer's ink gets in the blood nothing will satisfy one save some occupation connected with the printing profession.

The 42 enlisted and 53 civilian workers at the Army Field Printing Plant are well placed if printer's ink is a desired commodity, for it is here that approximately 25 million production units — a production unit being an 8 x 10½ - inch page printed on one side — are printed each month, according to the chief of The Infantry School's Editorial and Pictorial Office, Col. J. G. Cornett.

To those who are accustomed to dealing in the billions, these 25 million pieces of paper may not be too impressive. For those of us who deal most of the time in the few bucks category, let's look at the figure from a lesser point of view.

If all these millions of pieces of paper were stacked one on top of the other (and didn't fall over) the stack would reach a mile high — lacking 30 feet. If they were laid end to end (and didn't blow away) the column of papers would reach from Fort Benning to Seattle, Washington. "That mind you," states AFPP's head, Lt. Col. C. W. Welch, "is just a single month's output. Think of it in terms of a year's output."

A visit to the AFPP would reveal to the uninitiated several unusual occupations. For example, workers in the drafting room produce drawings in camera-ready condition. Here nothing short of perfection is acceptable, according to supervisor Sfc Elliot Brown and his three enlisted co-workers.

Another unusual occupation is that of cameraman where, according to one of the photographers, Sp5 Walter Harris, the camera is so large that he walks inside the bellows to snap a picture.

Still yet another intricate and exacting job is the transference of the negative to pre-sensitized aluminum that ultimately goes to the giant off-set presses. To assist with this preparation are Sgt. Richard B. Saito and Sp5 Harry K. Kitahara.

The pressmen fit the aluminum sheet to the press rollers, add the desired color of ink or inks to hoppers, punch the starter button, and the giant press growls into motion. Thousands of pages are printed in a flash of motion almost too fast for the eye to follow.

After the printed pages are collated, stapled or stitched, punched, and delivery has been made of the finished product, one would think that it was time for a breather. "Not so," says MSgt James R. Alexander, operations sergeant. "There is no let up for this crew, for there is always another. Infantry School publication, overlay, schedule, etc., in the mill which must be produced to meet ever growing demands."

With printer's ink in their blood, Army and civilian technicians combine their talents in a major support role of The Infantry School.

Distaff Doings

By Marianne Kelly

On Wednesday, March 14, the members of the NCO Wives Club of Fort Benning got together for a luncheon at Crain Hall. Thanks to the special efforts of the hostesses, Peaches Di Lorenzo, and Maureen Krilling, the affair turned out to be a most enjoyable one!

The table was gaily decorated in a traditional St. Patrick's Day motif; green, green everywhere, from the shamrock name tags to the centerpiece of flowers and candles.

The lovely arrangements of green asters was won by lucky Bertha Blois (she wouldn't listen to the pleas that those flowers belong in the Kelly household!).

The highlight of the afternoon was a showing of gorgeous hats from Kirven's, modeled by members of the club. The beautiful creations were enthusiastically applauded, and some fast reshuffling of budgets took place immediatoly. One fortunate lady, Grace Fussell, was winner of the doorprize, a hat of her choice.

Let's have more doings like that, girls!

A new member, Marie Fowler, was introduced, also two guests, Rosa Ortiz and Joan Roux. Hope to see you often!

Don't forget to tell all your friends and neighbors about our big membership tea on Wednesday, March 28, in the clubhouse (building 1127) from 1 to 2:30 p.m. Many of the members are hard at work to make this membership drive a huge success. Don't miss it!

March DUSA Luncheon Has St. Patrick Motif

A St. Patrick's Day theme was used in the table decorations for the March luncheon of the Daughters of the U. S. Army at the post.

Mrs. H. E. Strange and Mrs. Frederick Harris were hostesses for the affair held in the Normandy Room of the Main Officers' Mess.

Mrs. Harry Hiestand, DUSA president, gave a short resume of the 49er Party. The members approved a motion to supply funds for building a library with workroom attached for the Wilbur School.

Guests, who were thanked for their efforts in behalf of the 49er Party, were Col. George Hudson, Lt. Edward Armstrong, Lt. Richard Cox, Mrs. Ralph Haskett, Mrs. Stanley Skaife, Mrs. Stanley Calvert and Mrs. Richard T. Taylor.

Mrs. William F. Smith and Mrs. William A. Bloemsma were introduced as new members.

Woman's Club Diary

Now is the time to make your reservation for the Spring Luncheon which will be held at the Main Club on Wednesday, April 4. A social hour at 12:30, and luncheon at 1 p.m. will be followed by a sparkling program entitled "La Compagnie", an original musical revue written by Agnes Phillips and starring members of the club.

Mrs. Cecil Sanders, 545-2235, is reservation chairman.

If you are not already a member of the club, Mrs. Warren Walters, 545-4607, is membership chairman.

Important on the agenda as well as the program is the election of the officers who will lead the activities of your Woman's Club next year. So be there and cast your ballot.

Mrs. Dale Dixon, welfare chairman, announces that applications for the annual scholarships given by the Woman's Club are now available. All seniors who are dependents of Benning personnel are eligible to apply. Applications are in the principals' offices at each high school.

The recepients of these awards will be introduced at the May Champagne Brunch.

There are still a few openings in the Pre-Kindergarten School. If you have a three or four year old who is ready for some social etiquete, group activity, and "basic training" in health and group skills, call Mrs. Murray, 545-2217.

School meets each morning from 9 until 11:30, and car pools are arranged for your convenience.

If you haven't stopped at the Thrift Shop recently, remember the hours are from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. each Tuesday and Thursday.

Party Bridge meets each Friday at the Woman's Club building. For an informal afternoon of bridge with "non-pro's", join this friendly group. Mrs. Dale Sweetwood, MU 9-3293, is chairman.

Career Class II Student's Wives Meet For Coffee

Wives of students attending The Infantry School's career class 11, Detachment 24, 2nd Battalion, The Student Brigade, held a coffee recently in the detachment's lounge.

Mrs. Vern Joseph, wife of Lt. Col. Joseph, commander of the 2nd Battalion, spoke to the group.

Cadre hostesses were Mrs. Gail V. Staskey and Mrs. Carl E. Kasemeier.

Mrs. Ben Harrell, Mrs. Richard W. Keyes and Mrs. Otto R. Koch Jr., were special guests.

An arrangement of camellias and ivy brightened the refreshment table.

Twenty - five ladies were present.

March 23, 1962

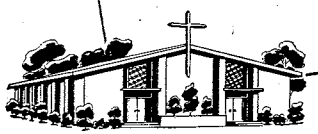
Dear Friends:

Here is an opportunity for you to get the whole story and make up your own mind about your Catholic friends and their belief.

Be fair to yourself and your fellow man . . . would you pass judgment or comment on a book you haven't read or a picture you haven't seen? Well, this is no different, and we might say, of much greater importance.

Starting next Monday, March 26, and through Friday, March 30, there will he a series of five (5) informal talks on the most frequent misunderstandings about Catholics and their beliefs. Questions will be invited after each talk.

Why is it sinful for Catholics to miss church on Sunday? Why do your Catholic friends confess to a Priest? Why honor Mary? These and other questions will be the subject matter during the sessions.



There is no charge, no obligations, no collections and no registering of names. This is no scheme to convert you, only to help acquaint you with your Catholic friends, whose religious actions may sometimes be a puzzle to you.

Looking forward to seeing you on at least one of the five evenings, and very hopeful that you'll bring a friend along, we remain,

Sincerely yours,

CPX 'Hotel' Ends For Unit, Section Representatives

Approximately 335 messages were delivered and processed during command post exercise "Hotel," beginning last Monday noon and lasting through Wednesday morning.

Dampened by severe rain and winds Tuesday night, players and controllers participating in the 2nd Infantry Division's eighth CPX since last fall rolled back to their garrison areas Wednesday after having had extensive training in operating division communications and preparing estimates and orders during simulated battle conditions.

Directed by G-2

Coordinated and directed by the 2nd Division's Assistant Chief of Staff, G-2, Lieutenant Colonel John B. Wine, CPX "Hotel" included for the first time in such division exercises a specific objective of providing coordination necessary for an attack of a river line.

Representatives of the following sections and units participated in the exercise: 2nd Division Headquarters; Brigade; Headquarters, Division Artillery; Headquarters Detachment and a Division Logistical Control Center from 2nd Division Trains; 122nd Signal Battalion; all five infantry battle groups; 7th Cavalry; 69th Armor and the 2nd Engineer Battalion.

According to the special situation met by division officers and men active in CPX "Hotel," the 2nd Division together with the 25th and 72nd Infantry Divisions and the 2nd Armored Division made up the I U. S. Corps. As of the first day of the problem, the three Infantry divisions were in defensive positions along the west bank of the Chattahoochee River.

Preparing defensive positions along the east bank of the Chattahoochee River were the aggressor forces with numerous attacking units and heavy armor support.

Mainly Administrative

In this exercise, which was designed to be mainly administrative, with only representatives of sections and units actually participating, special emphasis was put on communications, messages and order processing.

During the course of CPX "Hotel," approximately 335 messages were delivered and received. Messages ranged from the first challenge and password "Blue-Goose" delivered by Lt. Col. Wine, exercise director, to the Division G-2 section, to the final "Strong aggressor counter-attack — tanks and infantry," delivered 9:30 a.m. Wednesday from all battle groups to the 2nd Division G-3 section.

At 4:15 a.m. Tuesday the S-2 section of the 1st Infantry delivered the following message to the division's G-2 section: "Unarmed male civilian attempting to swim across Chattahoochee River to Columbus. Documents on his person indicate he is native of Phenix City. Claims he wanted to get his girl friend and bring her to Phenix City. Request instructions."

The S-2 section of the 38th Infantry delivered the following

Col. S. L. Harding New DivArty CO

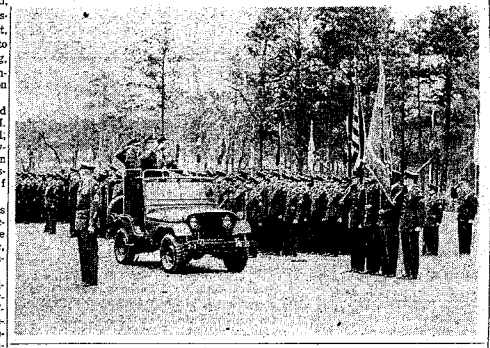
The 2nd Infantry Division Artillery honored its departing and new commanders Saturday with a review at Knight Field.

Colonel Frank A. Osmanski, who departed Monday for assignment in the Far East, turned the colors over to Colonel Stanley L. Harding, who again becomes the commanding officer of Division Artillery.

Distinguished guests included Major General Charles H. Chase, commanding general, Brigadier General Royal Reynolds Jr., assistant division commander, and Colonel Gustav M. Bacharach, chief of staff.

Col. Osmanski had served as DivArty commander since October 17, coming here from the U. S. Army in the Pacific, stationed at Fort Shafter, Hawaii.

Col. Harding, who joined Division Artillery July 11 following a four-year tour in the Office of the Secretary of Defense, has served consecutively since that date as commanding officer and executive officer.



'Gratified'

Col. Osmanski, at the change-of-command ceremony, told the assembled officers and men he was "extremely gratified" to have served as their commander.

Col. Harding, in accepting the colors, said he was speaking for the command in expressing to Col. Osmanski sincere thanks for his "splendid service" with Division Artillery.

Lieutenant Colonel Floyd L. Johnson, 37th Artillery commander, served as commander of troops. Col. Johnson will succeed Col. Harding as DivArty executive officer. A member of Division Artillery since July 1960, he previously commanded the 37th Artillery.

Review Today Honors 11 Div Retirees

Eleven 2nd Division officers and men are scheduled to retire from active duty at a miniature review set for 4 p.m. today on the division parade field.

Retiring with the rank of major are Captain Stanley M. Pharr of the 2nd Engineer Battalion, and Captain Joseph D. Smith Jr., of Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment, 2nd Division Trains. Both officers list 20 years' service with the U. S. Army.

Also retiring are Captain John C. Trickey, 8th Infantry; Captain Charles F. Mills, 17th Artillery; Chief Warrant Officer Robert C. Huddleston, 12th Artillery and Chief Warrant Officer Chester F. Kopicki, 702nd Ordnance Battalion.

With 20 and Over

Capt. Trickey, Capt. Mills and Mr. Huddleston complete 20 years' service. Mr. Kopicki lists 26 years service.

Enlisted men to be honored in today's review are Master Sergeant John F. Mensing, Hq. and Hq. Battery, Division Artillery, with 20 years; Sergeant First Class Alex Dowdy, 38th Infantry, with 20 years; Sergeant First Class Everett Sherif, 27th Artillery, with 20 years; Sergeant First Class Harlan M. Temple, 15th Artillery, with 20 years and Sergeant James H. Jones, 23rd Infantry, with 20 years of service.

Commander of Troops for this occasion will be Colonel Louis A. Kunzig Jr., commanding officer of the 23rd Infantry. Troops will represent all units of the 2nd Infantry Division.

Guests are invited to attend the miniature review ceremony, to be held on the 2nd Division parade field. Spectators must be seated by 3:45 p.m.

message to the division's G-2 section at 5:15 a.m. Tuesday: "Unarmed male civilian apprehended while operating clandestine radio from his home in Phenix City. One cipher code was confiscated. Prisoner will not talk. Request instructions."

The S-2 section of the 9th Infantry also delivered a message to the division's G-2 section Tuesday concerning a clandestine radio: "Unarmed male civilian apprehended while operating clandestine radio from Sunderian Church. Interrogation reveals prisoner is aggressor agent whose mission is to coordinate activities of guerilla forces in area. Prisoner would not furnish further information. Request instructions."

Air-Dropped Agent

Another message sent concerned an aggressor rendezvous: "Aggressor agent, air-dropped, was captured near WRBL-TV Tower. Preliminary interrogation indicates he was to contact a guerilla leader approximately 300 meters north of tower and direct him to cargo which contains arms, ammunition and explosives. Cargo has not been located."

Other messages delivered during CPX "Hotel" concerned such things as aggressor helicopter landings, reports of minefield construction, tank traffic, movement reports of supply convoys and troop units, and action reports such as that delivered by the S-3 section of 12th Artillery to Division Artillery S-2: "Wrecker cable broke. Nuclear round dropped. Damage unknown."

Following a critique held at the division command post Wednesday for general and special staff sections and participating unit commanders, where the officers and men discussed the success of training in CPX "Hotel," players and controllers returned to their garrison areas at Sand Hill and Kelley Hill.

The entire exercise was conducted on the Fort Benning reservation.

CHAPLAIN'S ASSISTANT GETS RIFLE AWARD
Sp4 Gibbs Receives Award from Col. Holden

Chaplain's Assistant Directs Fire, Choir

By 38th Inf PIO

Chaplain Assistant Four Lester B. Gibbs, chaplain's assistant in the 38th Infantry, is as much at home directing fire at targets on a rifle range as he is directing a choir.

Specialist Gibbs has received a trophy from Colonel Maurice C. Holden, battle group commander, for finishing first in a rifle match during the Commanding General's Matches, and is now firing with the 2nd Division rifle team in preparation for the Third Army match.

Forming Choir

In addition to his regular administrative duties as a chaplain's assistant, directing the choir at religious services at the Kelley Hill Chapel, and firing with the division rifle team, Gibbs is now forming a 36-man choir within the battle group.

He is also going to organize a five-piece instrumental combo to accompany the group which will perform for the men of the unit as well as other units at Fort Benning.

The group will perform for units of the 2nd Division, organizations on post including officers and non-commissioned officers clubs, and various schools within the U.S. Army Infantry School.

The choir will also give performances for civilian organizations.

Since entering the Army, Gibbs has directed choirs at Fort Dix, New Jersey, Taegu, Korea and Fort Benning.

While stationed in the 2nd Division, he has directed the division choir, unit choirs in the 9th, 23rd and 38th Infantries. Gibbs also plays the piano, organ and clarinet.

Four EM Return From Schooling

Four enlisted members of the 1st Infantry graduated from the United States Army Infantry Center's Chemical-Biological-Radiological School recently.

Returning to their units were First Sergeant Calvin C. Willis, Company E, Sergeant James H. Smith, Company B, Sergeant Robert L. Parker, Company D and Private First Class Harold Marselais, Company C.

10 From 7th Cav At Little Creek For Training

By 7th Cavalry PIO

Seven enlisted men and three officers have recently departed from the 7th Cavalry for the Amphibious Reconnaissance School Course conducted at Little Creek, Virginia.

The men from Troop A are Lieutenant Thomas J. Mahon; Sergeant First Class Richard L. Massey and Staff Sergeant Charles M Ritter; from Troop B, Lieutenant Joseph E. Herzog, Staff Sergeant Luther James and Sergeant Lowe.' Pressell; from Troop C, Lieutenant John W. Ames, Sergeant Robert E. Johnson and Sergeant Thomas S. Turner; from Headquarters, Sergeant First Class Jerry L. Daniel.

The amphibious training will last for two weeks. The men will return to assume their normal duties. The training consists of many phases of amphibious operations.

Staff Sergeant Flavel H. Warr has also departed for Little Creek, Virginia, but he will attend an Embarkation Course which lasts for three weeks. The sergeant is a member of Troop A.

Lt D Harris CO At 38th's Co. D

By 38th Inf PIO

Lieutenant Douglas R. Harris has been named commander of Company D of the 38th Infantry.

Lt. Harris succeeds Captain Jerry T. Morgan, who has left the battle group prior to movement to a new assignment in the Far East. He is the seventh new company commander in the 38th appointed since the first of 1962. Five former company commanders received overseas orders, one was assigned to battle group headquarters and another to division.

Lt. Harris, Company D executive officer since March of 1961, received his commission in 1958 from Wake Forest University in Winston - Salem, North Carolina and came on active duty in January of 1959.

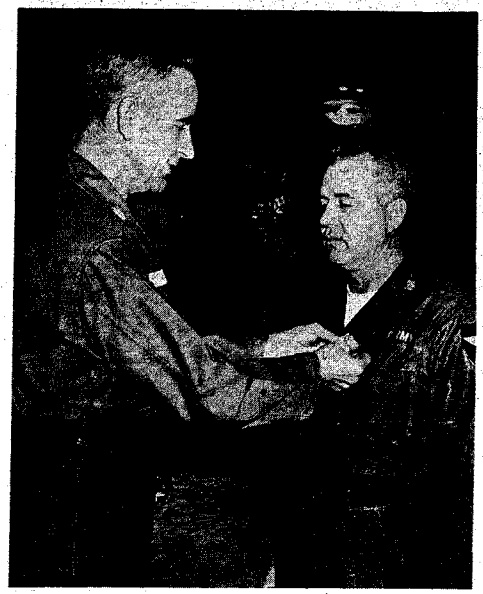
1st Infantry Men Use Helicopters To Track Harassing 'Guerillas'

BY 1ST INFANTRY PIO

The 1st Infantry has recently completed field training in the techniques of an airmobile raid. To conclude the training was the running of a problem using the H-34 and H-19 helicopters.

Aggressors had been positioned at a high hill near Mc Kenna Air Strip along Hourglass Road. They were dressed as a guerilla force that was working behind enemy lines. Many wore civilian clothes and were carrying their ammunition and supplies dangling from their shoulders.



The problem, run by a company at a time, portrayed a battlefield situation in which the enemy had been overrunning the friendly lines and causing disruption of supply and ammunition lines.

The mission of the unit was to engage the "enemy" and destroy or capture them and secure the hill they used for headquarters.

Loading at a rear assembly area, the company came in at treetop level to make their surprise airmobile raid on the enemy. Landing at positions previously selected by the company commander, the troops embarked from the helicopters at the "double time" and took up their assigned positions. By using the blocking position and attack method, a situation where two platoons prevent enemy escape while one platoon attacks the suspended enemy position, they defeated the guerilla band.

Even after the hill had been taken and the enemy captured, the work of the Soldier was not done. He had to reorganize and prepare for a possible counter-attack by the aggressor. He had to set-up his communication with headquarters and within the company. He started the questioning of the prisoners and arranged for their evacuation to the rear compounds.

By keeping the problem realistic, the Soldier could see the many uses of the helicopter.

38th Lt. Well-Traveled After One Year of Duty

By 38th Infantry PIO

In slightly more than year of active Army duty, the 38th Infantry's Lieutenant Thomas L. Leatherwood Jr. has traveled from military posts in Georgia to Illinois to the Panama Canal Zone to Illinois and back to Georgia again.

In the meantime, he has attended five different schools.

Lt. Leatherwood, a platoon leader in the 38th's Company E, entered the service October 13, 1960, after graduating earlier that year from Sam Houston (Texas) State College with a Regular Army commisssion.

After attending his basic branch school, the Provost Marshal General's School at Fort Gordon, Ga., for eight weeks, he was assigned to the 66th Military Police Co., Fort Sheridan, Ill., as a platoon leader.

He left Fort Sheridan for the Panama Canal and the three - week Jungle Warfare School later that year. After returning to Fort Sheridan, Lt. Leatherwood was sent to Fort Benning in May 1961, to serve a two-year Infantry tour.

He spent the next five months attending the Infantry Officer Orientation Course, Ranger School and Airborne School, in succession, before joining the 11th Infantry, recently redesignated the 38th Infantry.

But his "school days" aren't over, if Lt. Leatherwood gets his way.

He wants to go to the Pathfinder, cold weather and demolitions schools.

REPORTER AND PRIZE-WINNING PAPER
Sp4 Maxwell Courson, 23rd Infantry

23rd Mimeo Newspaper Ranks 4th in Third Army

By 23rd Infantry PIO

According to information received this week at 2nd Division PIO, the 23rd Infantry battle group newspaper, The Totem Pole, has been awarded fourth place in the Third Army Area for mimeographed, small unit publications.

A relative newcomer to the journalistic scene, The Totem Pole was first published on February 10, 1961, when the 23rd Infantry was a basic and advanced individual training unit. Its first editor was Lieutenant (now Captain) Douglas Haldane, and Pvt. James Brown was its reporter and makeup man.

Every Two Weeks

Since that first issue the eight-page paper has been published every two weeks. The Totem Pole takes its name from the unit symbol, a totem pole of an eagle and a bear. The eagle symbolizes the United States, and the bear symbolizes Russia. The totem pole commemorates the purchase of Alaska by the United States from Russia.

Placed on the pole between the eagle and bear is a plate which symbolizes the feast held by the two countries to celebrate the occasion.

The Totem Pole emphasizes news events within the battle group, and reporters from each of the seven companies contribute bi-weekly columns. Other principal news sources are battle group and division daily bulletins, the Army News Service and the Armed Forces Press Service.

The present Totem Pole staff consists of Lieutenant David K. Williams, editor, and Specialist Four Maxwell T. Courson, reporter and makeup.

Recon. Plt. Leaders Here from Ft. Knox

By 7th Cavalry PIO

Three lieutenants have recently arrived at the 7th Cavalry from the Armor Officers' Basic Course at Fort Knox, Ky.

The lieutenants, acting as reconnaissance platoon leaders, are Lieutenant James B. Mahary, Troop A; Lieutenant Clarence E. Conkin, Troop B; Lieutenant Anthony C. Potenza, Troop C.

The Recon. Platoon

In leading reconnaissance platoons, they will be in charge of what is known as the smallest combined arms team in the United States Army.

The reconnaissance platoon is made up of scouts, tanks, Infantry and Artillery.

The individuals in the separate teams are thoroughly cross-trained in the duties of each member within the team to insure continuous and successful operation. Complete knowledge of vehicular maintenance is also a must for all personnel, as their primary mission requires rapid displacements over variable terrain.

38th Troops Get Rude Awakening To Tactics They Could Expect

By 38th Inf PIO

The scene was a bleak, windswept hill in the heart of the Aggressor nation.

Atop this knob, barbed wire and concertina wire enclosed a drab canvas tent. At the corners of the wire-enclosed rectangle stood wooden towers—with machineguns mounted and Aggressor soldiers at the ready.

Pits, Stocks

Also inside the wire enclosure were pits and stocks — and an entire company of American prisoners-of-war.

This formed the background for the act—an act in harassment, temptation and indoctrination.

It was realistic but yet unreal. It was the scene of the 38th Infantry's stockade area at its escape and evasion course.

It was set not in the Aggressor homeland but at a Fort Benning training area. The soldiers who "fought" under the circled triangle banner of Aggressor were of no foreign men — but merely from the battle group's Combat Support Company.

But the entire setting and the actions that took place were intended to do one thing — to give the 38th Infantry Soldier somewhat of an idea what he would face in a prisoner of war camp if he should ever find himself there sometime in the future.

Inside the compound the bemedaled, beret-wearing, sword-bearing camp commandant was speaking to his "students," the prisoners.

"For the last 20 hours we have had classes on communism, socialism and how they can be of benefit to you..."

The speech went on and on. Some eyes strayed from the instructor. "YOU'D BETTER PAY ATTENTION," he raged.

"I want you to listen. I want you to listen."

The offender was dragged from the group to a pit—made to lie on his back and watch a log covered with protruding spikes settle over him in his muddy hole.

Another prisoner, with dogs nipping at his heels, was made to crawl to another pit and could scarcely bend his body into the small hole in the ground that formed his cell.

Another was placed in stocks, his head held firm by parallel logs at the top and bottom of his neck.

'On Your Feet'

The commandant was disturbed at his class. "On your feet! Now move, move, move, move, move, move. Quickly, quickly, quickly, quickly, quickly, quickly!" he screamed in his thickly-accented voice as Aggressor guards ran the prisoners from one side of the compound to another, with rifle shots and snarling dogs keeping any from moving too slowly.

Then more lecturing, more running, more prisoners in pits and stocks until the commandant finished his spiel. And with a flourish of drums, he dramatically made his exit.

With this backdrop, a calmer situation took place. Lieutenant Tom McCaig, Combat Support officer in charge of the "E and E" course, informed the class that all that had taken place merely served as a teaching point — that no training in escape and evasion and the Code of Conduct could ever exactly equal what the men might face should they ever become POWs.

He then explained to them a situation for the night's problem — a problem in infiltration by evasion through Combat Support's "Aggressor" troops back to friendly lines by stealthy movement over a rough four-mile course.

They would have to evade foot patrols and scout dogs and work their way through an enemy combat outpost line and main line of resistance to link up with friendly forces. And they'd have to stay within the limits of the problem area and be careful of creeks and gullies.

Most, however, would make it without capture, but for most it would take until daylight.

Things were administrative now and the troops could sit back and listen to their instructor with a little more ease. But as they filed out of the "compound" on their way to chow prior to running the evasion course, the still-bedecked Aggressor commandant (Lt. Thomas G. Boyd, Combat Support company commander) pointed to the pits and scout dogs and gave some of the men a hardly subtle warning — "You'd better not get caught tonight."

Parking Problem Lessened

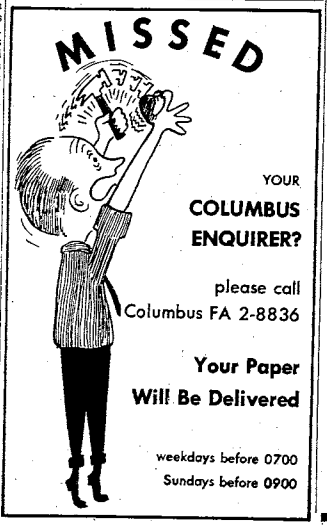
By 9th Infantry PIO

To alleviate the parking problem in the 9th Infantry area is the reason behind a complete reorganization of complete reorganization of the circled triangle banner of Aggressor.

The plan calls for the building of five new parking lots which will be for the use of authorized personnel in this unit.

The personnel authorized to park within these lots will be issued stickers similar to those used for post tags. These stickers will have the 9th Infantry crest on them and will be placed on the rear bumper of each authorized vehicle.

Those not holding this 9th Infantry sticker will park in the common parking lots adjacent to the 9th Infantry area.



This parking problem was brought about by the large number of vehicles owned by men of the unit.

38th's Engineer Plt Tackles Biggest Job: Helping Artillerymen Move 'Underground'

By 38th Inf PIO

When Division Artillery moved into the field for a problem in preparation of fortified positions, the 38th Infantry's engineer platoon accompanied the 27th Artillery.

The next three days of work with the artillerymen resulted in the biggest project in which his platoon ever took part, according to the 38th's Lieutenant John C. Terebessy.

Advice, Tools

Supplying advice and tools, the engineers helped all three of the artillery battalion's batteries move "underground."

Battery A's six 105 millimeter howitzers, for example, were placed in a 34-foot diameter circle dug four feet into the ground. Dirt from the diggings was used for an outside parapet and logs were placed against the walls of the hole and attached together with wire — revetting the sides of the excavations to help protect against cave-ins.

Each howitzer position also had a machinegun emplacement and two rifleman's foxholes to the side and connected to the main pit. To the rear of the positions were built eight foot cubic pits for ammunition and 12 by 8 by 8 foot pits for personnel. Both these pits at each site were covered on all sides and above by logs.

And a ramp was built to allow the guns to be towed into place.

The 155 milimeter howitzers took an even greater space out of the ground and an extra pit each to the side — so projectiles and charges could be kept apart.

Battery B ran into muddy ground in its positions, however, and needed 12-by-14 foot log bases to set its seven-ton guns on.

Besides having all the guns dug in, the 27th Artillery with the engineer platoon's help dug in with revetments each battery command post, fire direction center and communication section plus signal vehicles, three-quarter ton trucks and some other vehicles, the battalion aid station and S-2 and S-3 sections.

Mess tents were placed underground and partially revetted.

Trees to the front of the gun tubes were cleared to provide the howitzers fields of fire.

And in addition to this, machinegun and rifle positions ringed the entire battalion site —and the ground from which all the trees were taken had to be camouflaged so that stumps wouldn't show on aerial photographs. An estimated 4,000-6,000 logs were used in the 27th's positions, some for "corduroying" of soft roads in the area to allow heavy vehicles to pass.

And the situation was tactical all the time.

The engineer help came largely in two forms — advice and equipment. Engineer data and measurements and instructions to the artillerymen on use of the tools the 38th personnel brought along formed part of the task.

The other part was actual use of pole trailers for hauling of logs, four electric chain saws for cutting down trees and a scoop loader to dig out some of the emplacements.

Each of Lt. Terebessy's three squads worked with an artillery battery. When the engineer troops weren't handing out advice or working with their large equipment, they pitched in with ax, pick or hand saw to help complete the mammoth project.

Lt. T. Lange Asst. S-4 At 38th Inf.

By 38th Inf PIO

Lieutenant Thomas Lange has been assigned as assistant S-4 of the 1st Battle Group, 38th Infantry.

Lt. Lange, former executive officer and weapons platoon leader in Company C of the 38th, also has been appointed as battle group Chemical-Biological - Radiological officer.

Lt. Lange received his commission in 1958 upon graduation from Ripon College in Wisconsin, where he was a member of Phi Beta Kappa in his senior year.

He entered the Army in January of 1959 and attended the Infantry Officers' Orientation Course at Fort Benning before assignment to the 14th Infantry. In November of 1959 he was assigned to CBR school here as an instructor, remaining there until his assignment to the 38th Infantry in early 1961.

Captain John F. Collier, company commander of Combat Support Company, 87th Infantry, received his bars last week from Colonel Ralph H. Hughett, newly-appointed battle group commander.

Capt. Collier, since joining Combat Support Company, has served as platoon leader, executive officer, and mortar platoon commander before assuming command in December of last year. His company was recently awarded the prized Battle Group Commander's Trophy for last year.

An ROTC graduate from Bowdoin College in Maine, Captain Collier has a bachelor of arts degree in sociology with a minor in drama. Commissioned in June 1957, he was awarded both a parachutist's badge and the ranger tab in 1958.

Born in Danvars, Mass., Captain Collier is both an expert swimmer and diver, having won a number of events in past division competition.

Sgt. Ruth Picked SOM at 1st Inf.

The 1st Infantry has announced the selection of "Soldier-of-the-Month" for March.

Chosen on the basis of military bearing, knowledge of military subjects, and current events was Sergeant Jimmie L. Ruth.

A member of Combat Support Company, Sgt. Ruth is a veteran of over three years' service with the "Second to None" Division.

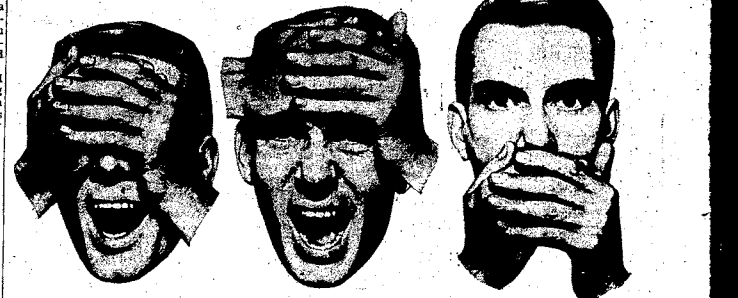
This is the second award for Sgt. Ruth, having won the competition in September of 1961.

Graduation Ceremonies Held at Signal

Graduation ceremonies were held recently for ten men attending the 2nd Infantry Division Projectionist School operated by the 122nd Signal Battalion.

The class studied and became familiar with the 35-millimeter, 16-millimeter, master viewgraph and the lantern slide projector. Following instruction on each projector, a practical exercise was held to insure understanding of all elements of operation.

In addition to the instruction on the operation of projectors, the class was shown the operation of the Division Film Exchange and the procedure for requisitioning films.



Men receiving projectionists' licenses today are: Sergeant Willie C. Forrest, 87th Infantry; Sergeant Charles E. Bennett, 87th Infantry; Corporal Roger W. Shanklin, 87th Infantry; Specialist Four J. M. Hinton, 87th Infantry; Specialist Four Kenneth R. Allen, 87th Infantry; Specialist Four Riley Morton, 2nd Aviation Company; Specialist Four Jackie W. Wilson, 2nd Aviation Company; Private First Class R. A. Thompson, 87th Infantry; and Private Bobby D. Doggens, 2nd Aviation Company.

Specialist Five Class Charles E. Crays, Headquarters and Headquarters Company was instructor for the course.

SMaj. Owens Takes 3 More At 17th Artillery

By 17th Arty PIO

The number one NCO in the 17th Artillery has taken the oath of reenlistment for an additional three years.

Sergeant Major Edward A. Owens, before assuming his duties as battalion sergeant major, served as first sergeant of the 17th's Battery A.

Sgt. Owens' Army career began in July 1943. Since then, he has served in Infantry and Artillery units and has seen action in World War II.

Acting as a platoon sergeant in the 29th Division's 116th Infantry, Sgt. Owens was in the first wave of the Omaha Invasion at Normandy on D Day. During this invasion he was wounded and received the Purple Heart. He also received a Bronze Star for valorous action in the same invasion.

Later, in action at Brest, France, he was again wounded and received a cluster to the Purple Heart.

Sergeant Owens and his wife Janice live at 25 Artillery Dr., Columbus.

87th Engineers Build Field Fortifications

By Eugene Breeskin

On the training schedule it read "field fortifications," but on hill number 638 it spelled "nothing but work" last week for the engineers of the 87th Infantry.

The situation called for the 87th to hold a defensive position at all costs. Normally, this requires direct support from Division Artillery. In this exercise, however, the 87th had the responsibility of scooping out huge holes in the earth that the big artillery guns need for their support in addition to clearing their fields of fire for maximum visibility.

Scooploader

The first job is the work of Specialist Five Gary Hiem, who operates the scooploader, and the latter job involves the use of power tools which get their "juice" from a mobile electrical unit maintained by Private First Class Leonard Shoemaker.

A complex of fortifications have already been completed, each unit about 100 yards apart overlooking about a ten-mile front. Each fortification, called a parapet, is 25 feet in diameter and is about three feet deep. Each is a complete unit with an ammunition pit on the left, a personnel pit on the right, machine gun nests flanking each side and a profusion of camouflage and supports. Sitting impressively in the center of each parapet is a 155 millimeter howitzer, which fires a 95-pound projectile for a range of about 12 miles.

The overall purpose of the exercise is to build up speed and precision in the building of these miniature fortresses. However, only one round from each gun will be used to test each position.

The actual construction of the parapets will culminate in a highly-competitive contest being held this week which will select the best battery position and the best individual emplacement.

The responsibility for the work the 87th engineers fell under the supervision of Sergeant Edward Wilson.

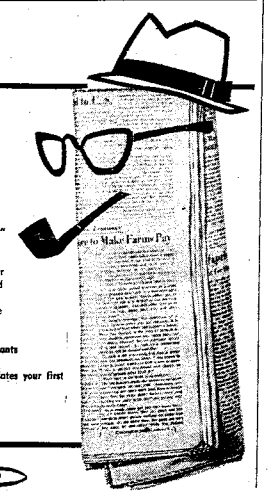
1stSgt. Santiago Reenlists at 1st For Four Years

By 1st Infantry PIO

First Sergeant Lorenzo Santiago, a veteran of 16 years of Army service, has reenlisted four additional years. He has chosen to fill his own vacancy as first sergeant of Company B, 2nd Battle Group, 1st Infantry.

Sergeant Santiago entered the service in 1945 at Comerio, Puerto Rico, and has since served with the 65th Infantry, 112th Infantry, 60th Infantry and the 29th Infantry.

A veteran of both World War II and the Korean Conflict, he has received many decorations during his tours of duty. In World War II, he participated in the fighting to free Europe and received the World War II Victory Medal, Combat Infantryman's Badge and the American Campaign Medal.

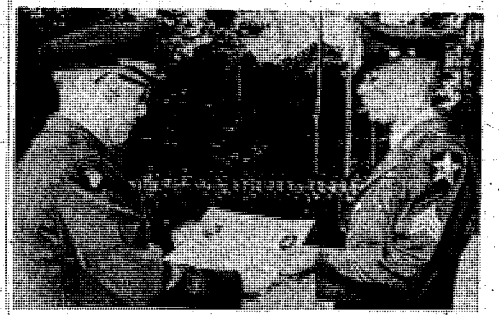


He is also the recipient of the Army of Occupation Medal, National Defense Service Medal, United Nations Service Medal, Korean Service Medal, with three Bronze Stars and the Good Conduct Medal, with two Loops.

Sergeant Santiago joined the 1st Infantry on 29 May, 1961, from his assignment as first sergeant of Company D, 29th Infantry.

SH Best Mess To 69th's Co. B

Company B 69th Armor was selected as the Best Mess in Sand Hill for the month of February. Company B Mess Steward Staff Sergeant Wayne M. Ensign, won the Best Mess Award four times last year. In December 1961, he was presented the Best Mess in Sand Hill award for the year 1961.



Major General Charles H. Chase, commanding general, presented the award Saturday, March 17, in a ceremony held at Company B mess hall. Sgt. Wayne M. Ensign accepted the award for Company B.

Cav Ladies 'In Green' For Coffee

St. Patrick's Day set the theme for the monthly squadron coffee of the ladies of the 7th Cavalry.

Mrs. George A. Griffin Jr. decorated her home on Lumpkin Road for the occasion. Co-hostess was Mrs. Vincent V. Elequin.

A bright green cloth covered the festive table. The centerpiece was a large oblong piece of styrofoam, dyed green, surmounted by a miniature red wheelbarrow, overflowing with green shamrocks. White candles flanked the centerpiece and large serving trays of Irish bread completed the mood.

Mrs. Robert Tarpenny, wife of Captain Tarpenny, Reserve advisor to the Army sub-sector in Columbus was the honored guest. Mrs. Tarpenny poured.

The business of the morning was the re-assignment of chairmen within the group, due to the coming departure of many members of the 7th Cavalry. Mrs. Jackie J. Welch turned over her job as welcome hostess to Mrs. Anthony J. Alfano. Mrs. John W. Ames took over as roster chairman from Mrs. Larry A. Wheeler. Mrs. George Haas Jr. will be in charge of sending flowers to hospitalized members of the squadron.

Farewells were said to Mrs. Thomas J. Plott and Mrs. Leonard E. Sperry.

Mrs. Todd Gives Help In a Pinch

On the morning of the fire that badly damaged the Main Officers' Open Mess, the ladies of the 1st Infantry were to have had their monthly coffee at the Club.

Mrs. Walter B. Todd, wife of Colonel Todd, the battle group commander, offered the use of her home. The hostesses, Mrs. Robert Kendrick, Mrs. Kless Gyzen, and Mrs. Guy Lovelace, called the ladies explaining the change in plans.

With Fresh Flowers

Mrs. James Monroe poured at a table centered with an arrangement of fresh yellow mums, daffodils, and lavender irises.

A welcome was extended to Mrs. L. V. Kennedy, who recently joined her husband, a member of the S-2 section, 1st Infantry.

It was announced that Lieutenant and Mrs. Clay Mobley recently became the parents of a baby boy.

The next coffee, to be held April 19th, will also be at Mrs. Todd's home.

Cav Rides to Kings Pond to Dine

The lodge at Kings Pond recreation area was the setting for the 7th Cavalry Squadroo's recent party.

Informal attire and a blazing log fire set the mood for the dinner party hosted by Captain Stauffer P. Malcom and Headquarters Troop.

Two new lieutenants were welcomed into the squadron by Lieutenant Colonel Harvey Scott, squadron commander. They were Lieutenants Clarence E. Conkin Jr. and James B. Maharrey.

Colonel Scott presented traditional 7th Cavalry farewell plaques to departing members of the squadron. Captain and Mrs. Charles P. Frinks, and Captain and Mrs. Thomas J. Plott depart for other assignments in the near future. Three lieutenants returning to civilian life also received plaques. They were: Lieutenants and Mesdames Monte V. Davis, Jackie L. Welch, and Larry A. Wheeler.

Signal Has Big Night At MOOM

The Anzio Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess was the setting for a party given recently by the officers and ladies of the 122nd Signal Battalion.

Activities included a social hour, dinner and dancing.

Following the dinner, Lieutenant Colonel Herbert W. Coburn, battalion commander, presented silver trays to newly-married officers in the battalion. Those receiving trays were: Lieutenant and Mrs. Louis C. Berra, Lieutenant and Mrs. John Snyder and Lieutenant and Mrs. Robert Eveluth.

Officers departing the battalion were also recognized and given cigarette lighters. Officers departing are: Major Joe T. Ely, Lieutenants Raoul H. Piche, John B. Hagan, Edward Colace, William Partridge, Francis V. Kowalski, Frank C. Farela, William Mooney and Emmett Johnson.

Incidental Intelligence

Farewells

Major and Mrs. Charles H. Bolen Jr. of the 23rd Infantry were hosts at a farewell party at their home on Arrowhea Road. Captain and Mrs. John D. Crowley were the honored guests.

Guest

Captain and Mrs. Arthur A. Tritsch, 7th Cavalry, recently entertained Mr. James C. Parker of Ridgewood, New Jersey and New York City as their house guest. Mr. Parker was en route to Miami, Florida.

9th Infantry 'Hobo Party' Called 'One of the Best'

Voted "best dressed hobo-ess and hobo" at the 9th Infantry's recent "Hobo Party," were Mrs. Clifford P. Hannum and Captain Charles R. Latta —each received a prize of one can of sardines.

Ladies of the 9th Infantry planned and presented the "long to be remembered" evening at the U. S. Army Infantry Center Recreation Center.

In "Hannum's Hovel"

The decorations committee, headed by Mrs. Walter D. Ginger, set the scene as "Hannum's Hovel," using signs, tattered clothing, empty cans, candles and cobwebs, but the greatest degree of atmosphere was generated by members of the 9th and their guests.

Covering the table of the pot luck supper was a "cloth" of brown wrapping paper. Place mats of scalloped newspaper were used individually. Mrs. Allan J. Francisco was chairman of the food commitee. Overall chairman for organizing the party was Mrs. George E. Armstrong. Mrs. Grady F. Webster headed the arrangements committee.

Following supper Colonel Clifford P. Hannum, battle group commander, welcomed the 9th's guests. They were Lieutenant Colonel and Mrs. Francis P. Sheridan and Mrs. Joseph A. Sheridan, Captain and Mrs. Charles F. Mills, Lieutenant Elmo A. Richardson and Mr. John Robinson. Baby cups were presented to Captain and Mrs. Robert K. Gunn, Lieutenant William A. Viehman III and Lieutenant and Mrs. William J. McCoy.

Starting off with a roar, the evening's entertainment—"The Ninth's Naughty Notions" —was emceed by Mrs. Robert K. Gunn. Co-chairmen for entertainment were Mrs. Frank G. Whiteley and Mrs. Shane N. Soldato. Entertainment ranged from a chorus line to a beauty contest, Mrs. Hannum and Capt. Latta winning prizes for "best dressed hobo-ess and hobo."

Secrecy surrounded every detail of the party until the night of the event which was said to have been "one of the best parties ever given by the 9th."

Sunday School Uses The Modern Approach

The Beginner Department at the Sand Hill Sunday School is utilizing what it calls a "modern approach" to religious education.

Under the supervision of Mrs. Bruce Davis, superintendent, the four and five-year old children who make up the department are separated by age at different "teaching tables."

Activity Centers

There are nine activity centers in the department where teaching is done, relating to the Bible story that is being studied.

There are three art centers for creative art, where children, in the nature area study shells, birds' nests, plants, seeds; learn how to utilize modeling clay, easels, chalkboards, and, in the "housekeeping areas," become acquainted with kitchen sinks, cabinets, dolls of different nationalities.

The child is taught the use of the Bible and is introduced to literature geared to his age group in the book center. Here, he first learns the importance of the church offering, and is impressed with the value of cooperating and sharing.

He builds houses representative of the houses in other lands, as in Palestine, and, with block figures, learns how a community needs different people in different professions to help it thrive.

The child learns much from the music in the Beginner Departments, says Mrs. B. B. Littlejohn, the Sunday School's director of religious education. Songs are taught, records are played and the child is encouraged to participate in the use of rhythm instruments.

"Simple songs that tell the love of Jesus for boys and girls have tremendous meaning," says Mrs. Littlejohn.

Emphasis is often placed on audio-visual aids, such as film strips that relate to the Bible's teachings. A file of teaching pictures is also on hand for the teachers.

Additional information may be obtained from Mrs. Littlejohn at 544-7306.

Mmes. Laakso, Lenzi Host 69th Armor in Anzio Room

The officers' wives of 69th Armor held their monthly coffee for March in the Anzio Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Mrs. Charles Laakso and Mrs. Charles Lenzi were hostesses for the occasion.

Three wives of newly arrived lieutenants were welcomed into the battalion. They are Mrs. Joseph Hamby, Mrs. John Ham, and Mrs. Marvin Self.

Mrs. James Kolb, wife of Lieutenant Colonel Kolb, battalion commander, poured at a table embellished with a centerpiece of multi-colored spring flowers.

38th's New Bridge Group Meets, Fills 3 Tables in Club

The newly formed bridge group of the 38th Infantry officers' wives met in the Normandy Room of the Main Officers' Club after the battle group's March luncheon.

Table 1 consisted of Mmes. Michael Bardis, W. Darden Jr., Donald B. Read and Carroll J. Kraus.

Playing at table two were Mmes. Maurice C. Holden, Ross W. Winne Jr., Vincent A. Apruzzese and Tom H. McCaig.

The third table was composed of Mmes. Richard D. Freman Sr., Howard J. Nolan, Rodney A. Pimental and James S. Fisher.

Trains Company Level Softball Tourney Set

The Trains Company Level Softball Tournament will be held from March 26 through August 17 this year.

It will be a double round robin tournament with the best win-loss record determining the winner.

Teams from the 2nd Administration Company, 702nd Ordnance Battalion, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 2nd Medical Battalion, 2nd Quartermaster Company, 13th Transportation Battalion and the 2nd Aviation Company are to participate in the tournament.

In the event of a tie for first, second or third place, a playoff of one game will be played immediately following the regular league schedule.

23rd Inf Slips Past Manchus In Tight Game

By J. J. Shields

In hardwood action recently at Kelley Hill gym, the 23rd Infantry slipped by a hard fighting 9th Infantry five by a score of 47-45.

The contest started with the 9th scoring fast to move to an 8-4 lead with only five minutes gone oo the clock.

From here the Manchu squad steadily increased their lead until they held a seven point bulge at the halftime intermission. With the teams leaving the court, it was the 9th on the topside of a 26-15 score.

The second half started with the Manchumen slowing down the pace with a smooth deliberate offense. Leading the way was forward Orlando Covington with his board control and timely scoring.

At this point, the 23rd cagers started to move and with only 5:25 remaining on the clock bedlam broke loose as the 23rd squad knotted the count at 39-39.

The lead changed hands four times before Clinton Johnson, of the 23rd, dropped in the deciding bucket with 30 seconds left to play.

The victors were led by Johnston's 19 points, high for the game, while the 9th's top man was Covington with 10 points.

1st's Combat Support Co. Expands Bowling League

By 1st Infantry PIO

Combat Support Company, 1st Infantry, has expanded their lead in the "Always First" Bowling League to four games.

In the competition at the Sand Hill Bowling Alley last week, Combat Support Company defeated Delta Company three games while dropping one. Headquarters Company and Battle Group Officers each won one game to leave them in second and third place respectively.

The individual winners of the week were Howard T. Storm, Company B, who led the three game competitors with a 645 total; George Pickett, Company C, bowled the high game with handicap with a total of 223 pins and Anthony Vanchieri, also of Company C, had a total of 235 pins to take the honors of high game scratch.

Volleyball Now In Full Swing At 1st Infantry

The 1st Infantry volleyball tournament is under full swing at Kelley Hill.

Seven teams, one from each company, are utilizing all their free time to come up with the winning team. The champions will be the team with the most wins of the possible 18. In the event of a tie for first place a playoff consisting of one game will be played to determine the team standings.

The battle group athletic and recreation board will pick the best players from all teams to play on the team representing the 1st Infantry in the 2nd Division Volleyball Tournament.

Army International Sport Program Outlined at Post

The Army's responsibility and program for supporting interservice sports competitions and the U. S. efforts in international sports were emphasized in a briefing given Fort Benning officials recently.

Lt. Col. E. C. Townsend, chief of the Sports Branch, Adjutant General's Office, said the importance of international sports competition and the Army's role in support of it cannot be overemphasized.

Tracing the development of championship Army teams from the company level competitions all the way through national championships and finally to international championships, he emphasized the need for adequate post athletic programs. Col. Townsend added the third Army area has been a consistent leader in supplying men for these competitions.

Ways in which personnel are eventually selected for international competition include submission of applications by individual athletes, recommendation by a national sports governing body, such as the Amateur Athletic Union, or recommendation by the coaches of athletes who handled them before entrance into the Army.

In addition, personnel may make international teams by coming up through the intramural program and being selected by their posts to attend one of the Army training camps.

The training camps are an integral part of the Army sports program, Col. Townsend said. Camps are located throughout the country and selected athletes are assigned to them for temporary duty.

Col. Townsend pointed out, that in addition to the Pan American and Olympic Games which occur every four years, the Army supplies competitors to other international meets.

These include the International Shooting Matches which take place at Fort Benning, the International Sports Parachuting Competition, the Modern Winter Biathlon and the Modern Pentathlon.

In addition, there is the Counsell International Sports Militaire (CISM) which is open only to military personnel of member nations. There are 30 nations from Europe, South America and Africa which compete in this event each year.

Competition in CISM includes 15 events, 12 of which the United States participates. Among these are the military and aeronautical pentathlons, combat swimming, military skiing and shooting.

Results of the Army sports program may be seen by looking at the records of the 1959 Pan American games and the 1960 Olympics, Col. Townsend stated.

In the 1959 event the Armed Forces supplied 70 of the 387 contestants from this country and of these 39 came from the Army.

In the 1960 event 60 of the 319 members came from the Armed Forces, with the Army supplying 32 of these.

Accompanying him was Major Joseph H. Schneider, sports officer for the Third Army, Fort McPherson.

Crown Hawks As Doughboy Champions

The Hawks walked away with the YAC championship in the Doughboy League Basketball Tournament played last Saturday.

The runner-up was the Green Shamrocks who battled the winners right down to the wire. The final score was 23 to 14.

Eight teams competed in the tournament.

Members of the championship team are Kenneth Valentine, David Reid, Thomas O'Donnell, Mike Roche, Tom Jones, David Sudderth, Bob Nettles, George Johnson and Oliver Garner.

Their coach is Pfc Peter Davis, Company D, infantry Center Troop Command.

The league is sponsored by the Youth Activities Club.

DON BRAGG

Don Bragg, former Fort Dix, N. J., pole vaulter and Olympic star, has given up in his attempt to land a pro football berth with the Dallas Texans. Bragg is suffering from a ruptured ear drum and the medicos went thumbs down on his playing.

Quote Of The Week

Cleveland Manager Jimmy Dykes recently hit the nail on the head when he commented on the physical fitness of the younger generation by saying, "The boy of today has to drive down to the drug store to pick up his vitamins."

SET TO BEAT CHAMP . . . Major Gen. Ben Harrell (R), commanding General of The Infantry Center, purchases the first International Golf Day ticket from Lt. Col. James E. Farmer, provost marshal. Participants in the golf day will attempt to beat the score made by Gary Player in the 1961 Masters Open Tournament. The matches, to begin April 6, may be played on any course. The winning scorers will receive cigarette lighters. Sponsored by the Military Police Association, 75 per cent of the proceeds will go to charity with the remainder to the association.

ARMY COACH

Jim (Ace) Adams of Army has been appointed to coach the North squad in the 21st annual North-South lacrosse game at Rutgers.

Briant Wells Field House Is Scene of Competition

The Third Army Basketball Tournament opened Monday with Fort McPherson and Fort Jackson playing the first game.

In Wednesday night action Fort Benning put its tournament record at two wins, one loss, by defeating Fort Jackson, 74 to 69. The game was close all the way with Benning pulling through in the final minutes.

Earlier in the day Fort Benning suffered defeat at the hands of Fort McClellan by a score of 79 to 63.

Fort Gordon set the highest one-team scoring mark of the tournament when they defeated Fort Campbell, 123 to 78, Wednesday.

In WAC basketball, The Fort Benning girls downed Fort McPherson, 48 to 34.

Wednesday's results left Fort Stewart, Fort McClellan, Fort Gordon and Fort Benning to battle for the championship.

All games in the double elimination tournament are being played in Briant Wells Field House.

Last Sunday night in Salerno Mess, a banquet was held for the contestants and tournament officials.

Principal speaker was Joel Eaves, head basketball coach at Auburn University.

Eaves, a former service coach, discussed the types of defenses used in present day basketball, the Southeastern Conference in general and the University of Kentucky in particular, and the current National Collegiate Athletic Association tournament.

Other guests included Lt. Col. Lexy Ford, Jr., Third Army Special Services officer from Fort McPherson and Col. John H. Lattin, commander of the Infantry Center Troop Command.

Tossing up the first ball to start the tournament play was Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly, deputy assistant commandant of USAIC.

Monday night's action saw host Fort Benning down the quintet from Fort Rucker, 97 to 55.

Leading the scoring parade was Rucker's Jimmy E. Chambers with 20 points. He was closely followed by Robert J. Whitehead, Benning's leading scorer who put 18 points through the hoop.

Two other players from Benning hit in the double figures. They were Gary F. Hess and George A. Krajack, with 16 points each.

Other action late Monday afternoon saw the WAC's from Fort Gordon taking the girls from Benning 35 to 28. High scorer for Gordon was Janice Lee Burnette, Benning's top point maker was Alyce M. Sims.

Another encounter in the women's division saw the girls from Fort McClellan defeat Fort Jackson, 55 to 19.

The surprise of the tournament occurred Monday afternoon, when last year's champion, Fort Gordon, was defeated by the men from Fort McClellan, 84 to 61.

The highest point total in Monday's action came in the first game when Fort Jackson blasted the team from Fort McPherson, 111 to 59.

The high scoring quintet from Fort Jackson easily defeated Redstone Arsenal Tuesday 96 to 54 in the second day of play in the tourney.

Earlier in the day Fort Jackson went down in defeat at the hands of Fort Campbell 93 to 87 in a thriller that saw Campbell with only a one point lead at half-time.

Redstone Arsenal by virtue of losing to Fort Jackson became the third team in the men's division to be eliminated. The other two are Fort Rucker, who lost their second game to Fort Gordon, 72 to 63, and Fort McPherson, who lost earlier Tuesday to Redstone 77 to 62.

Tuesday's action in the women's division saw Fort McClellan gain its second win by downing the WACs from Fort McPherson 49 to 32.

The girls from Fort Gordon thumped Fort Bragg 27 to 12, inflicting the first loss on the WACs from the Carolina post.

This was the second win for Fort Gordon's WACs who were paced by the 23 point output of Janice Lee Burnette.

Wednesday's games in the men's division saw Fort Stewart go against Fort Campbell and Fort McClellan against Fort Benning.

REPORT TURKEYS

Turkey hunters are again asked to report all turkeys taken on the reservation during the spring gobbler season to the Fish and Game Association in order that a consolidated report can be sent to state agencies. Turkeys can be reported by bringing them directly to the Fish and Game office at Bldg. 4050, Harmony Church or by calling 545-6082. Hunters are asked to give live weights if possible when reporting. Scales will be available at the Fish and Game office for checking weights.

HARPS YIELDS LUNKER

Clear and sunny weather brought the fishermen out in full force this past weekend but seemingly ideal conditions were not to the liking of the fish, for activities were generally slow with only few anglers netting the bigs ones of past weeks. One proud fisherman, Sgt. T. L. Massey, Company G, ISB landed a 9 pound largemouth at Harps Pond early Sunday. Most other catches yielded small bass.

DON'T FENCE ME IN!

Two deer wandered in an open gate at the sewage treatment plant on Jamestown Road and then couldn't find their way out. Plant personnel found the two deer jumping against the fence and were able to herd them back out the open gate. Apparently the deer were feeding on the new grass at the plant grounds.

AVERTTS POND RENOVATION STUDIED

A survey is underway to determine the most desirable method of repairing the dam at Averttts Pond. Earlier in the spring the dam became undermined and water level dropped over ten feet. Recent rains have filled the pond to near its normal level but there is evidence that the dam continues to leak. Engineers are currently studying the problem and it is expected that the pond will have to be drained and the undermined portion of the dam repaired.

Army's Atom Power Plant In Operation

An Army Nuclear Power Plant at Fort Greely, Alaska, went critical (sustained a controlled chain reaction)on Tuesday, March 13.

It is the third such Army plant to be put into operation.

The Army Corps of Engineers District Engineer at Anchorage, Alaska, said the medium sized nuclear power generating plant, designated the SM-1A, the first in the 49th state, achieved its initial self-contained reaction at 5:38 a.m. (EST) March 13.

The plant's capacity is 4,000 kilowatts of power — 2,000 for heating base installations and 2,000 for generating electricity. The output will be sufficient for the needs of a town of about 2,000 population.

Following the initial period of testing, the plant will be studied closely in the development of further peaceful uses of the atom at remote installations.

Army Engineers are operating nuclear power plants at Fort Belvoir, Virginia, and at Camp Century (Greenland), on the Arctic Ice Cap, 800 miles from the North Pole. Fort Greely is in Alaska's sub-arctic area.

At TIC Chapel

Two Soloists Will Be Featured In Sunday's Secular Concert

Two soloists will be featured in a secular concert at 7:30 p.m. Sunday at The Infantry Center Chapel.

They are Miss Jo Ann Crowder, soprano, of Columbus, and Mrs. Rachel Lancaster, mezzo-soprano, of Yutan, Neb.

Miss Crowder will sing selections from the operas "La Forza del Destino," by Verdi, and "La Boheme" by Puccini.

She will sing "Little Polly Flinders," by J. Michael Diack.

Mrs. Lancaster will sing numbers from "The Consul," by Menotti, and selections from Mussorgsky's "The Nursery" cycle. Her program also includes "The House that Jack Built," by Sidney Homer, "To a Young Gentleman," by Carpenter, and "Songs of a Wayfarer," by Mahler.

Miss Crowder attended Georgia State College for Women at Milledgeville. She is soloist for the Rose Hill Methodist Church in Columbus.

She was soprano soloist in Fort Benning's 1961 presentation of Handel's "The Messiah," and has appeared before various civic clubs in the community.

Mrs. Lancaster attended Doane College at Crete, Neb., the University of Nebraska School of Music at Lincoln, and Northwestern University at Evanston, Ill.

A soloist in The Infantry Center Chapel choir, Mrs. Lancaster was contralto soloist for the 1960 and 1961 presentations of "The Messiah."

In 1958 and 1959, Mrs. Lancaster directed the Choral Group of the Woman's Club of Fort Benning.

Mrs. Lancaster is the wife of Lt. Col. Wallace L. Lancaster, who is stationed in Germany. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Loeffler of Yuutan.

A VIEW FROM THE BRIDGE is set in the Red Hook district of Brooklyn. Raf Vallone is starred as a longshoreman tormented by an over-powering jealousy when his wife's (Maureen Stapleton) beautiful young niece (Carol Lawrence) falls in love with an illegal Italian immigrant. Based on the play by Arthur Miller.

Masquers--Unmasked

By Mrs. Phyllis Tritsch

When, at The Masquers next production, you sit in the new Playhouse and feel the thrill of anticipation as the house-lights dim, and the stage lights come up, stop and think for a moment of the work, dreams, and hopes that have made it all possible.

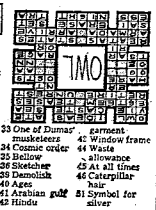
Putting on a play, even in the most ideal situation, has a little agony tied up with it. But when money, time, people, and materials, are all in short supply, it becomes a herculean task.

There are late evening hours of learning lines after daily jobs are done. There are nights, after nights, of rehearsals, with a hard taskmaster who wants artistic perfection that so often seems beyond you!

There are the thousand and one jobs of building, lighting, and painting to be done. There are mundane chores such as cleaning the building, scrubbing floors and winnows, even sewing curtains.

There are stimulating and exciting jobs, too. A backdrop must be painted, a poster designed, a stage set imagined and brought into being. Make-up for each actor must be visualized and created. Such simple things as a book, a cup, a scarf—anything used on stage becomes some persons' job to collect, catalogue, and keep in order.

And it goes on and on! A faulty furnace won't heat, and nights when the Georgia temperature falls to freezing, dedicated actors, bundled to the ears in sweaters, keep on working. Fire Marshals inspect, and we learn how many things cannot be done at all. And still the job goes on!



Some 35 dedicated people are working now to bring living, exciting theater to Fort Benning.

Why do they do it? You be the judge! Don't miss the delightful "Evening Off-Broadway" currently in rehearsal by The Masquers. The dates to mark down are Saturday, April 14, and Friday and Saturday, April 20 and 21st. See "The Masquers" production of two stimulating one-act plays!

SOON TO APPEAR on post is the Purdue Variety Band's "Wide World Revue." The band, made up of members of the Purdue University main band, will play background music for the revue which has performed at U. S. military installations in seven countries. Included in the revue are dance routines, comedy sketches and vocalists. Members of the cast are all Purdue students, male and female. March 31 is the date of the post performance at Theater 1. Admission is 25 cents for the 7:30 p.m. curtain.

Crain Hall Has Johnny Long Tonite

Crain Hall NCO Club will feature the Johnny Long Orchestra and floor show this evening at 8 p.m. for members and their bonafide guests.

This famous recording star whose record, "In a Shanty In Old Shanty Town" remains as the largest selling dance band recording in the history of recorded music, has retained the title of top maestro for two decades.

The Johnny Long Orchestra, featuring Daisy Bernier, vocalist and dancer, has played to capacity crowds recently at such famous dance band locations as the Blue Room of New Orleans' Roosevelt Hotel, the Statler-Hilton in Dallas, and the Cavalier in Virginia Beach.

Shep Fields to Play

Shep Fields and his Rippling Rhythm Orchestra will play for a dance on Monday, March 26, at the Old Post Gym from 8 until 11:30 p.m.

The Special Services presentation will feature free refreshments with hostesses present. The public has been invited. Admission will be 50 cents for men with ladies admitted free.

$7,875 in Bonds Backs Uncle Sam --And Sgt. Gunter

After reenlisting February 27, Sfc Leo D. Gunter, 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, invested $750 of his reenlistment bonus into Savings Bonds. Sfc Gunter, a veteran of 15 years, first started purchasing savings bonds in 1954 while stationed at Fort Jackson. Since then, he has brought 115 $25 bonds.

Gunter explains that bonds have become a saving hobby with his family. His wife and two children, Monta Anne and Joe Dale, take an active part in the family savings program.

Dr. Henry Tells Post P-TA Of America's School Needs

The nation's schools need better and higher paid teachers, Dr. Waights G. Henry, Jr., president of LaGrange College, told members of the post Parent-Teachers Association last week at the Faith School.

Dr. Henry, a Sunday columnist for The Columbus Ledger - Enquirer, emphasized that teachers should be well grounded in liberal arts subjects to provide a good education for the country's students.

"Improved curricula, particularly in mathematics, science and languages, will aid in raising the nation's educational standards to a higher level, he added.

"These are the values to be sought in our democratic education," Dr. Henry said. "It is in our schools that our young people learn team spirit, cooperation and leadership."

"All our military battles are won on the campuses of our schools," he added. "As Lord Nelson said, 'the Battle of Waterloo was won on the playing field of Eton,' so are our battles won in our schools."

"But to win our battles we must yoke religion to education," he said. "A tramp will steal a ride on the railroad, but educate him without moral principles and he will steal the railroad."

In Colonial America, education was a family matter and parents either taught their children or hired tutors, the speaker stated. In New England the Little Red Schoolhouse developed no issue except slavery, which was more bitterly contested than free education and public responsibility for education, Dr. Henry pointed out.

Eventually laws were passed requiring schools but the schools were large nurseries, he said. In the 1700's parochial schools were established and in the South private schools were developed, he told the P-TA members.

"We must educate our people for citizenship," he said. "A nation that doesn't cherish its heritage may lose it. Nations and civilizations have disintegrated because of their lack of education."

Dr. Henry added that while the schools train men to orbit through space, they must also teach us the sciences and philosophy.

"We must never forget that we are the children of God, and that a free expression of religion and of the mind is the kind of education we must maintain," he added.

Officers Elected

In its election of officers the association members unanimously elected all nominees.

Chosen to hold office for a year beginning in June are Col. Edward M. Foxworth, Infantry Center quartermaster, president; Lt. Col. Walter Hibbard Jr., 2nd Infantry Division, first vice president; Sgt. Major Norman B. Mekkelsen, 29th Infantry, second vice president; Mrs. Frank J. Spettel, third vice president.

Mrs. Ishmael Pack, secretary; Mrs. Jean P. Doerr, assistant secretary, and Sfc Willard N. Hill, 2nd Division, treasurer.

The post Girl Scouts observed the 50th anniversary of their organization as a chorus of 52 members sang several songs.

LIGHT FANTASTIC

A Houston, Tex., man asked an accident investigator to help him find his wrecked car. He said he thought the accident happened on the freeway. They found the car crashed at the end of the Houston International airport. "Traffic was awfully light," said the man.

Antique Weapons Display

Antique weapon buffs have the opportunity of looking over a collection of some 60 rifles, pistols and Gatling guns during a two week display at The Infantry School's Book Store beginning Monday and ending Saturday, 7 April.

The manufacture date on some of the weapons goes back to early in the eighteenth century.

The weapons are the prized possessions of two post officers, Lt. Col. William S. Brophy of the Marksmanship Training Unit, and Capt. Donald C. Bowman, Airborne Air-Mobility Department.

The two collectors have spent years in acquiring the weapons and have spent countless dollars in purchasing and reconditioning them.

The display is open at no charge to members of the military, their dependents, and civilians of the Columbus-Phenix City area.

ARC Volunteer Hospital Classes Registration Set

Registration for the American Red Cross Volunteer classes at the post is scheduled for March 20 and April 5 in the Red Cross recreation hall at Martin Army Hospital.

The hours for the first day are 10 to 11:30 a.m. and 1 to 2:30 p.m. the second day.

Nursery care will be provided by the Daughters of the U. S. Army Tot Town Nursery for children of mothers attending classes or working at the hospital.

The Civilians You Work With

THELMA C. MCNABB is a cold-type composing machine operator in the Army Field Printing Plant and, in May, will have worked at her present job for three years.

Mrs. McNabb's work calls for her to operate a machine much like a typewriter. Instead of a printed page, the machine produces a coded tape which is run through a type-setting machine to produce the type for publications.

Mrs. McNabb has worked under civil service for nearly 11 years. Her past jobs have been with The Infantry School Brigade and the Department of Non - Resident Instruction.

A native of Richland, Ga., Mrs. McNabb lives there with her husband, Ralph, and their son, Ralph Lawrence.

JAMES F. MARTIN has worked under civil service for more than 35 years, the past 11 years as shop superintendent of post ordnance's Wheeled Vehicle Maintenance Department.

In his job Mr. Martin supervises repair of all tactical wheeled vehicles on post. His department also lends support to ordnance companies.

Mr. Martin took his present job in 1946. Prior to that he worked with the National Forest Service, Department of Agriculture, building bridges, houses, roads and telephone lines.

During the period of the Civilian Conservation Corps, Mr. Martin was superintendent in charge of projects at Bankhead National Forest in Alabama.

MARTIN

As a member of the Army from 1943 to 1946, Mr. Martin served in ordnance and engineer companies.

Mr. Martin lives with his wife in Columbus. The couple has a son, John, of Miami, Fla.

Savannah Engineer Is Named

Col. Jack R. Harris will become District Engineer for the Savannah District of the Army Corps of Engineers this summer, the Department of the Army announced Monday.

He will succeed Lt. Col. Arthur T. Strickland, who has been acting District Engineer since the retirement of Col. W. A. Stevens in February. Col. Stevens had been District Engineer since summer of 1959.

Col. Harris, a 45-year-old native of Knoxville, Tenn., is now serving in Korea as Logistic Service Officer in the Office of the Assistant Chief of Staff, United Nations Command, U. S. Forces.

Col. Strickland is expected to continue as acting District Engineer until Col. Harris arrives for his assignment in the Savannah District.

As District Engineer, Col. Harris will be chief administrator of Civil Works projects in the watershed tributary to the Atlantic Ocean between Port Royal Sound, S.C. and Fernandina, Fla. Military construction and real estate activities of the District extend over Georgia, North Carolina and South Carolina.

RENAULT Dauphine

Fully Equipped With: Heater, Defroster, Electric Wipers and Washer, Oil Filter.

How many other 4-Door cars can you think of that sell for that? Lots of important improvements on the '62 Renault, too. The new transmission, for instance. We've synchronized low gear, which means you can shift down without stopping, slide through traffic on the run. Improved piston design means the engine now runs even quieter. (Did you know every Dauphine engine is tested before it leaves the factory?) You'll find some things about the Renault unchanged: The famous gas economy of up to 40 mpg. The 12-month or 12,000 mile warranty. And the un-imitatable Dauphine style, which makes some people ask for a repeat when you tell them how little it costs. We repeat, as little as $1395.

Although the majority of U. S. coinage has been minted at Philadelphia, the various branch mints have provided this country with excellent coinage dispersion. At the same time they have provided collectors with many interesting and intriguing varieties.

Extensive standardization and expansion took place in the mint in 1837 because quantity and circulation of all coins prior to this date was extremely poor. Once the problem of mass production was solved, dispersing coins to all corners of the country was paramount.

During this era our country's transportation system was quite slow. A shipment from Philadelphia to Georgia was difficult if not prohibitive. Consequently, a branch mint was authorized in New Orleans. The decision was made because New Orleans was a large city, a good transportation point and able to supply half the nation with coins.

Southern Mints

New Orleans coinage started in 1838 with the dime and a few trial half dollars. Other denominations followed in 1839 and 1840 which continued until the mint closed in 1909.

With the finding of gold in North Carolina and Georgia, two branch mints were opened for the minting of gold only. They were in Charlotte, N. C., and Dehlonega, Ga. The rapid exhaustion of the gold vein is reflected in the lifespan of the two mints: 1838-61.

With the rapid westward movement and the growth of California came the opening of the San Francisco mint in 1854. Silver, gold and copper were minted there until 1955. Since this mint wasn't enough, the last and only remaining branch mint was founded in Denver.

All branch mints mark their coins with the first letter of their city for easy identification. All dies are made at Philadelphia and the mint marks added only after their arrival at the branch mint.

Of San Francisco

The branch mints were an integral part of our nation's growth, vital for getting coins into the hands of the people and standardizing our coinage. Each mint has its own detailed story which is a must for all true collectors.

Barbara Hare's Report Card...

Today, the district STAR (Student Teacher Achievement Recognition) student steps into the spotlight. David Roberts, the son of 1st Sgt. and Mrs. James Roberts, has achieved many honors not only for himself, but also for Baker High School and his fellow Benningites.

After winning the Baker High School STAR award, David entered the competition for Muscogee County STAR student and won. Now, as one of the eleven district winners in Georgia, he is looking forward to participating in the state STAR student program. Report Card is proud to salute David Roberts as the subject of this weeks portrait.

David has attended Baker for the past three years. Before transferring to Baker, David attended Radford High School in Honolulu, Hawaii.

During his junior year, David joined many clubs and became a very active member of many organizations. He has been a member of the Junior Civitans for the past two years. He is currently vice president of his Ji-Y.

In addition to being a member of the National Honor Society, David is now serving as vice president of the Baker High School Quill and Scroll, the club for outstanding journalists.

This year he is active in the Baker ROTC. David is an officer in the battle group and holds the rank of second lieutenant and public information officer. In performing his PIO job, David writes the ROTC column for the Lions Roar, Baker's paper, and is the ROTC editor of the Baker annual, The Arrowhead. He also enjoys being a member of the Rifle Team.

In fact, David wil be shooting in the Southeastern Invitational Match in Tampa, Florida during the latter part of April. Recently he was elected by the class of '62 as the "Most Intellectual Boy" in the Senior Class and will appear in the feature section of The Arrowhead.

David is also a past president of the Photography Club. Last month he debated on the Baker Debate Team at the University of Georgia and at Emory.

David's schedule this year includes Advanced Algebra and Trigonometry, Calculus, Physics, English and Government.

When I asked David how he felt on receiving the STAR award, he said, "I was glad to receive the award because it brought honor to all the teachers I have had, to Baker High School and my family."

Report Card is proud to salute David Roberts and we sincerely hope that David wins the Georgia State STAR Student Award and brings this honor "home" for himself, his family and for Baker High School.

'Freedom and You' Film Ordered by DOD for TI

Washington (AFPS) — A contract has been signed with Warners Brothers Pictures for the production of a motion picture for use in the troop information program of the military services.

The picture, tentatively titled "Freedom and You," will graphically depict the contrast between the concept of American freedom and life under Communist domination.

It will be produced under the personal supervision of Jack L. Warner, president of Warner Bros., and a retired colonel in the Air Force Reserve.

The producer will be William L. Hendricks, a lieutenant colonel in the Marine Corps Reserve, who recently wrote and produced the Marine Corps documentary, "A Force in Readiness."

Cost of the production is estimated at $200,000. The writer is Vincent Fotre.

"Freedom and You," a part of the Department of Defense's long range program for production of materials designed to strengthen the serviceman's faith in his American heritage and aquaint him with the dangers of communism, is scheduled for early filming at Warner Bros. studios in Hollywood.

Krouskop Named Soldier of Month

Sp4 Charles E. Krouskop, Company A, 1st Battalion, was recently honored as The Infantry Center Troop Command's Soldier of the month. Krouskop was given a wrist watch, letter from the commanding officer, and a plaque with the individual's name engraved on it.

Col. John H. Lattin, commanding officer of The Infantry Center Troop Command, presented Krouskop the awards.

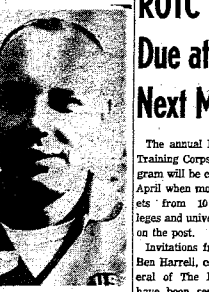
ROTC Cadets Due at Post Next Month

The annual Reserve Officers Training Corps orientation program will be conducted here in April when more than 550 cadets from 10 southern colleges and universities converge on the post.

Invitations from Major Gen. Ben Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center, have been sent to the presidents of the colleges and cadets to take part in one of three scheduled tours.

The first group of 193 cadets, slated for April 5-7, will come from Georgia State College, Atlanta; Tuskegee Institute; Stetson University, De Land, Fla., and Jacksonville (Ala.) State College.



Approximately 195 cadets in the second group will arrive from Auburn University; Florida State University, Tallahassee, and the University of Miami. This group will be at the post April 12 to 14.

From April 26 to 28, the third group of 168 cadets from Florida A & M, Tallahassee, and Florida Southern College, Lakeland, and Mercer University, Macon, will be briefed on the Infantry.

Their itinerary includes an orientation visit to the 1st Infantry Brigade, a briefing on Army aviation and orientations on Airborne training and Infantry-tank teams in attack.

The visits will be conducted by The Infantry Center's Reserve Components Section.

1ST OF 52 . . . Pfc Edwin L. Rothfuss, 128th Medical Company, 428th Medical Battalion, was number one graduate in a class of 52 at the post Chemical, Biological, Radiological School earlier this month. He was called to active duty last fall during the buildup of active forces. Pfc Rothfuss worked as a park ranger at Everglades National Park in Florida before coming on active duty.

Venezuelan Army Officers Finish U. S. Tour Here

Col. Eloy Penaloza Clavijo of the Venezuelan Army arrived at Fort Benning last Sunday for a two-day visit. He is chief of the 4th Section in the Army General Staff.

With Co. Penaloza was Lt. Col. Jose Sebastian Arellano, chief of communications at Venezuela's Army Headquarters, and Lt. Col. Juan Antonio Lossada, chief of ordnance on the Army General Staff.

During their visit, the Allied officers saw first hand the role of the U. S. Infantryman in modern warfare.

The visitors departed Wednesday morning. They came to Fort Benning from Fort Sill on the last leg of a tour of U. S. military installations.

Kiwanians Hear Retired General

Maj. Gen. (Ret.) Philip Edward Gallagher of Columbus was guest speaker at Tuesday's meeting of the Columbus Kiwanis Club. His topic was "West Point — General Lee's and Jackson's Alma Mater."

regularly stocks the item prescribed.

The above policy is simply to insure safety in the filling of prescriptions and guard against possible forgeries for dangerous drugs. If you have a prescription that cannot be honored for one or more of the reasons given above, you can be seen by one of the staff medical officers, either by appointment or as an emergency.

We regret that we are unable to honor requests for refills, but with the already overburdening workload, this would be virtually impossible at the present time.

Pharmacists are in great demand in the service. There are not enough pharmacists registered each year who enter the service to replace those who have retired or who leave the service for other reasons. This of course increases the workload of the remaining military pharmacists.

We are proud of our pharmacy at Martin Army Hospital and your pharmacist is proud to be a member of a profession which is dedicated to serving the health needs of the personnel at Fort Benning and the surrounding area.

HERE'S THE STORY:

Traffic Circle Men's Store To Close

Stephen Bland, who has operated two men's clothing stores in Columbus since 1957, has announced that he will close out one location and consolidate his retail operation into one downtown store.

Bland is vacating his store in the Traffic Circle Shopping Center, an outlet he has operated since 1955. When the storeopened, it operated under the firm name of Bland-Williamson.

In 1957, when Bland purchased the stock of Watson-Wade Men's store on 12th Street, he changed the name of stores to Stephen Bland Stores for Men.

The owner announced that employees Henry Watson, Roy Andrews and Ed Schwan, along with Bland, will move to the downtown location at 22 12th Street.

VOL. 20, NO. 29 | FRIDAY, MARCH 30, 1962 | FORT BENNING, GA. | 48 Pages, 5c

U. S. Troops Will Receive New Training

Counterinsurgency Needs Are Shown

All soldiers stationed in the U. S. will receive information and instruction on counterinsurgency, according to results of a conference on the subject held at Continental Army Command Headquarters, Fort Monroe, Va., recently.

Attending the two-day session from Fort Benning were Col. John M. King, director of instruction, The Infantry School, Lt. Col. Houck Spencer, post G-3 and Lt. Col. Jack Samson, 2nd Infantry Division G-3.

They met with a group whose major purpose was to support on an immediate basis the expanding Army requirements in the counterinsurgency field.

Counterinsurgency includes all military, political, economic, psychological and sociological activities directed toward preventing and supressing resistance groups. Actions of these resistance groups may conceivably range from subversive political activity to violent actions by large guerrilla elements.

Gen. Herbert B. Powell, CONARC commander, stated it is mandatory that all Army personnel be thoroughly familiar with counterinsurgency.

Gen. Powell told the conferees that "the bearing of arms and our combat role in overt conflict is clear, the role and importance of the Army at the lower portion of the spectrum — to prevent or stop 'wars of liberation' — less clear.

"Our contribution requires each officer to project his thinking and our efforts into areas generally classified as non - military. Considerable room for Army participation

'WILLIE'

Sketch in Museum Honors War 'Hero'

By Pvt. Jim Grohl

A new portrait hangs today in The Infantry Museum.

The subject's chest isn't decked with ribbons nor is his uniform neatly pressed. He is in dire need of a shave and his tired eyes are sunken into his head. His name is Willie. He's a friend of Bill Mauldin.

The younger men in today's Army, the ones who have been in for a few short months or even as long as several years, may not know Willie. But he was one of the best friends a soldier could have during World War II.

Bill Mauldin, the creator of this cartoon character, himself served in the European Theater. Now an editorial cartoonist for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Mauldin recently made a special sketch of Willie for The Infantry Museum.

"I thought it was fitting for one of Mauldin's characters to hang in the museum," says Sfc David Chase, museum curator. "A national news magazine did a cover-story on him not long ago and that's when I got the idea of requesting an original sketch for the museum."

On March 23 the sketch arrived. It is eight by ten inches in size, done in black and red crayon.

Panel to Study Pay in Service

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The nation's lawmakers, convening for the second session of the 87th Congress in January 1963, could possibly have a comprehensive legislative package on military pay ready for consideration.

The Defense Department has outlined the organization of what is called a "Defense Study on Military Compensation" and named the high-ranking officials who will tackle the problem.

Assistant Secretary of Defense for Manpower Carlisle P. Runge was named to head the study.

Among the specific items Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara directed Mr. Runge to do was "complete the study and submit legislative proposals for consideration by the President's Panel on Federal Salary Systems before November 1, 1962."

The scope of the study, as previously announced, provides that the group will study the entire spectrum of military pay, allowances, benefits (including retirement), and all other facets of the military pay system.

Mr. William Gorham, for-

The Defense Department has also asked a raise in quarters allowance, and approval for a new housing plan. For details, see story on Page 10.

Rifle and Pistol Results to Appear In April 6 Issue

As the Bayonet goes to press, the Infantry Center Rifle and Pistol Matches are still in progress. Final bulletins on the first individual events are just starting to come out. Confirmed results of the first matches appear inside this issue, but complete results of individual matches, and all team match results will appear next week. (Ed.)

Reviews Set In Honor Of Gen. Surles

Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles, Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School, will depart the post Wednesday for Naples, Italy, where he has been assigned to the Army Element of Allied Forces, Southern Europe.

He will be succeeded by Brig. Gen. Royal Reynolds Jr., assistant commander of the 2nd Infantry Division.

Gen. Surles will be honored with a review on Chapel Field at 4:45 p.m. Tuesday.

There will be an official reception in his honor at the Supper Club following the ceremony. Approximately 500 guests are expected to attend.

The Student Brigade will stage a review for Gen. Surles at 10 a.m. tomorrow at Stilwell Field.

Gen. Surles came to the post in August, 1960, from Hawaii where he served as deputy commander and chief of staff of U. S. Army Hawaii and the 25th Infantry Division.

He served as deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center until June, 1961, when he became assistant commandant.

Do Those Khakis Fit?

There is more talk around the post about diets.

Maybe it is because all military personnel at the post will hang up the Army Greens and don khakis next Monday.

Summer uniform requirements have been fully covered in a circular given distribution to all units this week.

The most significant change in the new regulation is the deletion of the khaki shorts and knee length socks, which are now optional, and which will not be issued or required in mandatory formations.

merly of the Rand Corp., will serve as director of the study, while Army Col. Leo E. Benade has been named staff director.

Specifically, Secretary McNamara has directed Mr. Runge to:

Identify and evaluate the several benefits available to military personnel which supplement actual pay and allowances, and consider the feasibility or desirability of retaining them in their present form or translating them into the basic pay structure.

Study the question of financing certain of the benefits through individual contributions or through a combination of individual and government contributions with the possibility of providing some benefits on an optional basis.

Consider the relationship between total compensation received by members of the uniformed services, that received by other employees of the Federal Government, and that received by employees of private industry.

Devise and evaluate, as a collateral problem, techniques which might be used in determining future pay adjustments.

Report progress to the secretary of defense and periodically to the President's Panel on Federal Salary Systems maintaining liaison with other Government agencies whose personnel are covered by the Career Compensation Act.

Complete the study and submit legislative proposals for consideration by the President's Panel on Federal Salary Systems before November 1, 1962.

Because of the broad scope and importance of the study, an Advisory Council to the Defense Study of Military Compensation has been appointed.

The council is composed of senior staff members of the Bureau of the Budget, Civil Service Commission, Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Comptroller), and four senior officers of the military services.

Sketch

Willie had a buddy named Joe. The pair popped up in the European Theater in 1943, filled with humor and pathos, and became two of the most familiar faces in the war.

Mauldin entered the Army in 1940, worked as a truck driver and as part-time cartoonist with the 45th Infantry Division's newspaper. In 1943 he was transferred to the Mediterranean edition of "Stars and Stripes," the overseas service newspaper.

Still in his early 20's, Mauldin participated in campaigns in Sicily, Italy, France and Germany, winning the Purple Heart and the Legion of Merit.

Mauldin's fame spread. He was forced to improvise materials at times and it has been said that, in Italy, Mauldin used the backs of Mussolini portraits for his morale-lifting cartoons.

His cartoons depicted the "dog face" of the war. One cartoon shows Willie standing in front of a field medic's table. The medic offers Willie a Purple Heart.

Willie's reply: "Just gimme a cupla aspirins. I already got a Purple Heart."

And so it went until 1945 when Mauldin, Willie and Joe were separated from the Army.

Mauldin returned to the U.S. a celebrity. He had won the 1944 Pulitzer Prize for cartooning. He was 23-years-old.

Though Willie and Joe seldom step onto his drawing board, Mauldin is still cartooning. He received the Pulitzer Prize a second time in 1958 with a satirical comment on the plight of Boris Pasternak.

Willie and Joe, the two bedraggled foot soldiers who took pin-up places beside Betty Grable and Doris Day, live on in the memory of those who served during the war.

In the words of Sgt. Chase, "It seems only fitting that they should have a place in The Infantry Museum."

Training

and increasing emphasis exists. It is to dispel the shadows in this area of counterinsurgency that this program is being launched here today."

Major Gen. Louis W. Truman, CONARC's operations, plans and training chief, said "Our actions must be very far-reaching — every individual in the regular Army, the Reserves, the ROTC and the cadets at West Point must be indoctrinated or trained in counter-insurgency just as soon as physically possible.

Annual Joint Fund Drive Lags Behind 1961 as Deadline Near

April 6 marks the end of the 1962 Federal Services Joint Crusade and the National Health Agencies (NHA) Fund Drive at the post, and according to Major Edward L. Whitehead, chief of The Infantry Center's Billeting Division, the post is behind its 1961 goal.

At this time last year 5,614 sealed envelopes had been collected for the NHA drive. So far in 1962 only 4,482 envelopes have been collected. Comparable figures for the Joint Crusade show 5,223 in 1961 and 4,132 in 1962.

Officials said the only sections showing 100 per cent participation in The Infantry Center are the Provost Marshal and the Inspector General sections. In The Infantry School the only one is the Combat Developments Section.

This fund raising campaign is the only drive the various charitable agencies under the NHA and the Joint Crusade make during the year.

NHA Agencies include CARE, which sends food and tools to the needy abroad, broadcasts the Western world's message to the people behind the Iron Curtain, and the American-Korean Foundation, which provides food and shelter, medical care, and vocational training to the people of Korea.

The six agencies in the NHA utilize individual contributions to help pay for research, education and community services in many crippling diseases.

These are the American Cancer Society, Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation, National Association for mental Health, National Multiple Sclerosis Society, National Society for Crippled Children and Adults and National Society for the Prevention of Blindness.

According to Major Whitehead, there is one keyman for every 25 people on the post.

Distinguished Visitors At Fort Benning

The following is a list of visitors who are presently visiting Fort Benning.

Brig. Gen. Edward G. Rowny, assistant division commander, 82nd Airborne.

Gen. James F. Collins, commanding general, U. S. Army Pacific.

Gen. Omar Porciuncula, inspector general of the Army, Uruguay.

Brig. Gen. Burnelli, U. S. Marine Corps, is scheduled to arrive at Fort Benning next week.

A list of visitors, present or expected, will be published each week by The Bayonet.

Gen. Hamlett Named Vice Chief of Staff

Washington (AFPS) — Lt. Gen. Barksdale Hamlett has been named successor to retiring Gen. Clyde D. Eddleman as Army vice chief of staff and has been nominated for four-star rank, according to a White House announcement.

Currently Deputy chief of staff for military operations, Department of the Army, Gen. Hamlet is a 1930 graduate of the U. S. Military Academy and a former artillery officer.

During WWII he served in the artillery in the European Theater and was 24th Division artillery commander in Korea during 1951-52.

Returning from the Far East in 1952, Gen. Hamlett served in Washington until 1956, when he was assigned as commanding general, VII Corps Artillery in Germany.

He then became commanding general of the 10th Infantry Division and from June 1957 until December 1959 was U. S. commander, Berlin.

In Cadence

Of Duty, Sacrifice, Freedom

Two stories appearing in newspapers on the same day move us to contemplate the nature of the times and the demands being made on Americans.

One report told of the disappearance of an airplane in the Pacific Ocean. It was carrying American soldiers to Viet Nam.

The other story chronicled the woes of a Reserve unit called to active service during the Berlin crisis. They said their callup was a waste of money since they were doing nothing but sitting around.

We are told our troops in Southeast Asia do not use their weapons unless they have to, yet Americans are dying in that far-off land, casualties of the battle to preserve the freedom and independence of several small countries. The soldiers missing over the Pacific are just as surely casualties of the same fight. The loss of these men is a grim reminder of the extremity of sacrifice Americans are being called upon to make in these times.

The reservists are being forced to make another kind of sacrifice. They have been called away from their businesses, homes and careers, and they complain that they see no reason for it. Well, there is a reason. They were called to duty at a time when a show of strength was urgently needed, if we were to preserve our position in Berlin. That show of strength is no less necessary now. The reservists say that since finishing training, they are doing nothing but painting and beautifying their post, raking leaves and doing KP. It is to be hoped that they can continue to do this — that it will not become necessary for them to make the more severe sacrifice their comrades have made in Southeast Asia. Their very presence under arms at this time makes that possibility more remote.

The government has promised to release as many as possible of those called up, as soon as possible. We must assume that it will. Until then, while we can sympathize with the distress of those ordered to arms, it must be counted as part of the cost of maintaining our freedom.

In that connection, it is interesting to note another story in the same edition. It tells of the willingness of astronaut Donald K. Slayton, suffering a heart ailment, to give his life, if necessary, in the drive to conquer space for America. (Reprinted with permission of The Columbus Enquirer.)

Don't Wait 'Til the Last Minute!

The Surgeon Says:

New Treatment For Snake Bites Is Announced

By Capt. L. F. Greenberg, MC

The Surgeon General's Office has recently changed its recommendations for the treatment of snake bite. These recommendations are presented below. All persons should become familiar with them in case a snake bite should occur.

Poisonous snake bites must be given immediate care. The bitten person should not be allowed to walk or run; he should be kept as quiet as possible. If possible, kill and keep the snake so it can be identified and the proper antivenom serum given.

Make the casualty as comfortable as possible (preferable in a sitting position) and immediately immobilize the bitten limb in a position below the level of the heart.

Improvise a tourniquet from a necktie, handkerchief or strip of cloth and place it between the bite and the heart, about 2 to 4 inches above the bite. Tighten the tourniquet enough to stop the flow of blood in the superficial blood vessels (you will notice that the veins stand out prominently under the skin) but not tight enough to stop the pulse.

If swelling occurs, release the tourniquet and reapply it further up the arm or leg ahead of the swelling.

Since medical aid is urgent in all cases of poisonous snake bites, send someone to summon assistance. If a litter or vehicle is available, the casualty should be transported to the nearest medical treatment facility at once.

Some types of snake poison affect the breathing mechanism of the body. Observe the casualty closely for signs of difficult breathing. Should the casualty stop breathing, initiate artificial respiration immediately.

The Judge Says . . .

By Capt. R. S. Poydasheff

"When you think of installment buying, think of the possibility of repossession." This is a thought each of us should keep in mind when we are urged to buy on the installment plan.

Repossession is a plain, hard, economic calamity. It means that when you are unable to keep up installment payments, the seller of the car, the TV set, the household furniture can take back his product and keep your money. In most states he may also get a deficiency judgment against you for the difference between your payments plus what money he has received when he resold the repossessed item and the total contract price.

Experienced, fast - talking salesmen have put a lot of time and thought into their sales talk. The cash prices for items are often considerably less then the listed retail prices.

The installment price is often the listed retail price plus interest or carrying charges. Naturally, the salesmen skillfully flatter their product, emphasize the low price and urge you to buy NOW — "the deal can't wait."

But you as the prospective buyer ought to remember that installment buying of consumers goods should be used only as a last resort and then only for an item of absolute necessity.

People who obligate most or all of their future earnings to making installment payments leave no room to meet financial emergencies that can and often do arise in the future.

A sound rule to bear in mind, is, if you can't pay CASH for the product, you can't afford it. By waiting until you have accumulated the cash to buy, you probably will have found a better bargain, at less cost, and most important you won't run the risk of losing what you buy through repossession by the seller.

In purchasing large items do not overlook the fact that many businesses operating in this area will, if you have good credit rating, allow 30, 60, and in some cases 90 days for cash payment and do not add interest or carrying charges.

If you have a question or a problem regarding installment buying or are in doubt about your obligations under a proposed installment plan agreement, you should consult your legal assistance officer.

'Solid Citizen' Title Fits Today's Serviceman

More than two decades after the beginning of the greatest war Americans ever fought, members of the Armed Forces can appraise themselves and take pride in the changes that 21 years have wrought in the military.

Is this to say that the serviceman of the years before the war was inferior to today's breed? No — but different he certainly was. And as he changed so did the public conception of him alter, until now he is regarded as a valued member of the community.

For in prewar years the U. S. military tended to isolate itself and be self-sustaining. Most service families lived on post. Their friends and acquaintances were service people like themselves. They looked to one another for social contacts; theirs was a tight little world which the public at large only dimly comprehended.

As for the unmarried men, the average civilian thought them a rough and lusty sort given to pay day drinking, gambling and brawling. "Single men in barracks don't grow into plaster saints," Rudyard Kipling once wrote, and that about summed up the prevailing view of the peacetime regular. He was a rough diamond, a loveable lout who seldom associated with "nice" people.

Today's serviceman has little in common with this image, and for that reason the public esteem for members of the Armed Forces is at an alltime high. The military takes an active role in community affairs. Men and women in uniform get a warm welcome at civic events. The money they spend is an important factor in the local economy. It has been estimated that the military dollar turns over five times in a community before it winds up in an account or goes elsewhere.

Dear Sir,

My name is Arthur Farrant. I am 10 years old. I have been saving hat badges and shoulder flashes from the different Army, Navy and Air Force units from other countries as a hobby and wondered if any of your men could send me any stares they may have. I haven't very many USA badges yet so would be very grateful if you could help me.

April 1 Marks 55th Anniversary Of U.S. Army's Infantry School

Determination Byword In Its Early Days Here

BY PVT. JIM GROHL

A "peacetime Valley Forge" destined to "have the most beautiful buildings of any post in the country."

This is how Fort Benning and The Infantry School were described during their trying first days. This is what their first leaders hoped for it to become.

On April 1, TIS celebrates its 55th anniversary, with Fort Benning in its 43rd year as its home, capital city of the "Queen of Battles."

Early days at Fort Benning's school, then called The Infantry School of Arms, were sometimes miserable. There were days when the rain beat unmercifully on make-shift quarters, turning roads and paths into sticky seas of red, Georgia mud.

But the days could also be beautiful . . . days when Benning's original personnel would picnic along the mossy banks of the Upatoi Creek or pass by clumps of pink and white dogwood, wild honeysuckle and violets on their way to field maneuvers.

Difficult periods were not uncommon in the first days of The Infantry School. At one time it was doubtful that this Georgia region would ever be the school's permanent home. But the difficulties were overcome and The Infantry School has become famous around the world.

The concept of a school specializing in Infantry instruction originated with Major Gen. Edmund P. Gaines. The year was 1826. The Infantry School of Practice was opened at Jefferson Barracks, Mo., but its life-span was a short two years.

School of Musketry Set in California

The direct predecessor of TIS, the School of Musketry, was not opened until April 1, 1907. This came about when Major Gen. Arthur MacArthur, firmly convinced that commanders should be trained for leadership by specific, organized and uniform methods, lent his support to the school concept.

Moved to Fort Sill, Okla., in 1912, the school was renamed The Infantry School of Arms. Auxiliary schools were created late in World War I at Camp Perry, Ohio, and Camp Hancock, Ga.

The horrors of world conflict taught bitter lessons to American troops, causing military leaders to become aware of specialized training needs. Gen. John J. Pershing, commander of U. S. forces during the war, urged the Department of the Army to establish a training center for the exclusive instruction of Infantrymen.

It was shortly thereafter that Col. Harry Eames, commandant of the Fort Sill school, and Major John Paul Jones, his construction quartermaster, set to work to ready a site near Columbus for the Infantry School of Arms. The site was three miles east of the city on the Macon Road.

Major Jones was ordered to have facilities available for troops who would "probably" arrive on or about October 1, 1918. Major Jones had arrived on September 23. He had seven days during which to perform a near miracle.

The citizens of Columbus who, since early 1917, had worked diligently to locate a military installation in the area, gave all-out support to the project. One local newspaper gave valuable publicity to Major Jones' appeal for men and materials. Citizens were urged to cooperate with military and government officials to the highest degree.

The entire city, organized through the Chamber of Commerce and other civic organizations, lent support. Laborers were rounded up. Lumber and mill orders from civilian sources were set aside by businessmen so that orders from the camp had priority.

Seven-Day Miracle Is Accomplished

After seven days the construction supervisor informed the War Department the cantonment was ready for troops. During this time roads had been built, electric lights installed and water nearly completed.

Col. Eames, first commandant of the school, welcomed the first troops on October 6, 1918. All from Fort Sill, the group included two officers, a medical officer and 503 enlisted men. Thus, the first permanent party of The Infantry School was nine times less in number than the civilian employees working here today.

The Infantry School of Arms Band played patriotic music on December 11, 1918, as Miss Anna Caroline Benning raised the flag above the installation. The elderly lady was the granddaughter of Gen. Henry Lewis Benning, former Columbus attorney and associate Justice of the Georgia Supreme Court, who had distinguished himself on Civil War battlefields.

The first class, all West Point graduates, arrived on December 2, 1918, and was described in a Columbus Ledger story as being "A fine body of men . . . certain to make a good showing at the opening of the big school here."

The Ledger continued, "Residents in and near the section selected for the rifle shoots have been notified to clear the way by Wednesday morning."

The school was underway.

December was a wet month. Rain came in torrents. The deep drainage ditches overflowed forming huge puddles about the Camp. When passing through a water-covered area the troopers had to remember where the ditches, sometimes as deep as six feet, were located lest they unwittingly step into one and find themselves treading water.

Personnel Didn't Lack Ingenuity

This was a distant dream. For early students and instructors, living quarters presented a major problem.

There was no snow for the Infantry School of Arms' first Christmas but there was more rain. Nevertheless, spirits were high and the cantonment's nearly 2,000 troops were feted to a large dinner, followed by a dance.

It was during this festive season that Major Jones, in announcing construction was to resume, stated, "Fort Benning will have the most beautiful buildings of any post in the entire country."

Married officers were quartered in "Squaw Camp," a tent village for which the quartermaster provided wooden frames and floors. The more energetic officers boarded up the tent tops and laid tar paper roofs. The wind, cold and dampness were constant companions of the camp's residents.

Asked how she liked Benning, the wife of Gen. Lloyd R. Fredendall replied, "Like it? I helped build it!" In effect, she had.

One of the ingenious methods Mrs. Fredendall used to beautify her tent-home was to spread layer upon layer of newspapers on the plank floor. Over these were tacked pieces of discarded tar paper. The tar paper was then painted, shellacked and waxed. Over this gleaming foundation Mrs. Fredendall spread her oriental rugs.

Mrs. Fredendall was but one of the many who used every possible means to maintain good living standards and high spirits at the home of the Infantry.

The Infantry School took its present location following a decision by Col. Eames to find area for an "A" range with firing points from 100 to 1,000 yards. The necessitated a flat stretch of land containing "about 10 square miles." The property of Arthur Bussey was recommended. This sprawling plantation offered perfect terrain for The Infantry School of Arms. The gay summer parties thrown by the Bussy family were soon to give way to the progressive march of the school.

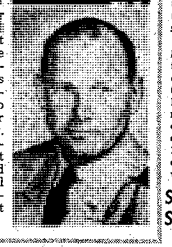
An order from the U. S. Military Affairs Committee to the Secretary of War spelled heartbreak for those military and civilian leaders who had toiled to make Benning a reality. The order called for construction of the camp to stop on January 7, 1919. According to the orders, Benning was to be "salvaged and abandoned."

Semantic Play Saves Benning

Reluctant to give up his project, Major Jones consulted a dictionary and interpreted the word "salvage" to mean "save." Following this definition, he set forth to "save" the school site by painting the buildings as protection against the winter weather.

Although the school was not functioning officially, the first class was graduated on February 22, 1919.

Shortly after the graduation a statement of the school's program was written by Major J. M. Moore. It read in part:



"At the School of Arms the student officer or noncom-

Infantry Board Ladies Create Spring Bonnets

A spring-like setting coupled with spring bonnets worn by the guests ushered old man winter out and welcomed spring onto the scene at the Infantry Board ladies luncheon held recently at the Supper Club.

The individual luncheon tables were overlaid with green cloths and centered with clever arrangements of dogwood. Blossoming sprigs of dogwood complete with life-like birds on their limbs added to the spring atmosphere of the luncheon room.

Heading the guest list and welcomed by Mrs. William Summers were Mrs. R. A. Gunton, mother-in-law of Mrs. Gordon Gunton, Mrs. Anna Jarvi, mother of Mrs. Arthur House, and Mrs. M. E. Hale, mother of Mrs. George Johnson.

Hostesses Mesdames William Summers, Robert C. Williams, John McLaren, Gordon Gunton and Arthur House, surprised the ladies with their planned program. Concealed inside of the base of each dogwood centerpiece were the makings for a spring bonnet.

Guests at each table made up their own creations which were later modeled by Mrs. John C. Cougill, Mrs. Earl D. Roberts, Mrs. Monroe D. King, Mrs. Gilbert Procter, Jr., Mrs. George M. Johnson and Mrs. D. D. Gosney.

The end result of the hat making talents of the ladies proved that this time "too many fingers in the pot made for some mighty pretty spring bonnets." The hats were judged by the ladies with top honors for the prettiest creation going to Mesdames John C. Swearingen, John Tominac, Gordon Gunton and D. D. Gosney. Mrs. Gosney received the prize of a shampoo and hair set, compliments of a Columbus beauty salon.

'Flare of Spring' Show Held By LAAC Ladies

A flare of spring came to the Supper Club Annex of the Main Officers' Open Mess earlier this month as the ladies of the Lawson Army Aviation Command presented a luncheon fashion show.

The show was sponsored by a Columbus store, with Mrs. Lee Revell as commentator and make-up consultant.

The theme, "This Gentle Spring," was carried throughout the annex, using shades of pink and lavender flowers. The tables were laden with flowers, trailing ivy and hand-made miniature bats.

Special guests, Mesdames Ben Harrell, A. D. Surles Jr., John E. Kelly, Royal Reynolds, Jr., Cyril D. Sterner and Albert Becker, were presented white corsages.

The president of the ladies group, Mrs. Charles A. Klopp, welcomed as new members Mesdames Martin P. Merz, Evart E. Robeson, William A. Bloomsma, Donald E. Masters, Theodore J. Dayharsh, Jr., Robert R. Wall and Mrs. Raymond A. Woodruff.

Ladies of Lawson said farewells to Mrs. Richard B. Schaefer, Mrs. Garmon O. Aure, Mrs. William D. Melton and Mrs. Willis L. Canaday.

Beginner's Bridge Group is Formed By LAAC Ladies

Ladies of Headquarters, Lawson Army Aviation Command, met in the Normandy Room of the Main Officer's Open Mess recently. Social activities were conducted through the efforts of Mrs. Woods and Mrs. Munson, hostesses for the occasion.

A beginner's bridge group was organized to begin next Monday and meet every Monday thereafter. Interested personnel may contact Mrs. Britton at 545-7215.

Mrs. Brosnan and Mrs. Brown will be hostesses for the April meeting.

Ladies See New Styles At Meeting

Officers' ladies of the Airborne and Ranger Departments of The Infantry School, sponsored a spring fashion show recently, at the Custer Terrace officers club.

Guests of honor, Mrs. Ben Harrell, Mrs. A. D. Surles, Mrs. John Kelley, and Mrs. John Ramsburg, were introduced to the ladies in attendance by Mrs. Michael Paulick. Mrs. Paulick also introduced Mrs. Mary Charles Gunn, the fashion commentator.

Mrs. Gunn, a well known social personality in this area, brought her staff from one of the local department stores to assist in the production.

After a luncheon consisting of a chicken almond roll with rice, a fruit salad mould, and sherbert ice cream for desert, the ladies were presented with the spring parade of fashions.

In addition to the models brought by Mrs. Gunn, were models from the Combat Conditioning Committee of the Ranger Department. Mesdames John Foss, Larry Ivers, Cedric Blackwell, Jack Woodall and Stan Calvert. Each of the models displayed a variety of ensembles. Included in the show were child models, Kim and Reta Meads and Mike Blackwell.

A comedy skit prepared and developed by Mrs. Bernard G. Teeters, highlighted the afternoon's fashion program, featuring "Maternity Hats".

Seated at the head table with the guests of honor were Mrs. M. Paulick, Mrs. B. G. Teeters, Mrs. L. Williams, Mrs. J. Meads and Mrs. A. B. Moore.

Decorations for the ladies' afternoon gathering were designed and prepared by the decoration chairman, Mrs. Cedric Blackwell.

You may make reservations before noon Monday for the Spring Luncheon and election which will be held at the Main Club next Wednesday.

Ladies of the 1st Infantry Brigade are sponsoring this event, which includes an original musical satire on the program, titled "La Compagnie", and the election of officers for the coming year.

Reservations may be made by calling Mrs. N. E. Smith, 545-2496, or Mrs. M. H. Patterson, MU 9-5098.

The Annual Art Show sponsored by the Woman's Club is scheduled for Sunday, April 29, at the Country Club. If you are interested in entering your ceramics, art, or flower arrangements, contact Mrs. Braxton E. Small, 545-2900.

Party Bridge meets at the Woman's Club Building each Friday afternoon. Mrs. Dale Sweetwood, MU 9-3293, is chairman.

Spring Cotton Foshions Seen By DNRI Ladies

Ladies of The Infantry School's Department of Non-Resident Instruction recently gathered at the Martinique Restaurant for their monthly get-together and luncheon.

Highlight of the social function was a fashion show presenting the latest creations in spring cottons.

Hostesses for the event were Mrs. Morency R. Dame and Mrs. Charles A. Kilbourne.

Pork Chop Pocket

When planning stuffed pork chops, purchase rib chops of least one inch thick. Cut the pocket into the rib side of each chop. If the chop has two rib bones, cut between them. Chops cut from this side hold stuffing better.

Be careful not to cut all the way through to the fat edge.

PREVENT CURDLING

When using sour cream as an ingredient, add it very slowly to other ingredients. This procedure will prevent the mixture from curdling.

Forbenteta

Donna Davis And Kay Jones

Nine weeks remain, and seniors have mixed emotions. The time we've waited and worked for is just around the corner. Soon it will emerge before us as we go sailing by, dressed in cap and gown with diploma in hand. Time won't wait for us to catch our breath.

Inspection time is here (in more than one way). But I'm referring to the schools' ROTC Departments. . . Each high school's department stood federal inspection on March 23. Several awards were presented to outstanding officers and men. Each company passed in impressive review lead by the school band. Many Benningite faces appeared in the ranks as the command of "forward march" boomed across the parade field.

All eyes are strained toward Baker as the final week of practice for the musical presentation "Pajama Game" begins. A number of Benningites have spent hours working on its success. From all I've heard your headaches won't be in vain.

The closing of the Winter Quarter brought many familiar personalities home. Space doesn't permit a welcome to each one, but we were really glad to see ya'll. All of us are looking forward to the close of the next quarter so that we may soak up the sun discussing the past year.

Junior Army Daughters of America are having their annual luncheon honoring the mothers on the first Saturday in April. The program will feature a spring fashion show. Models will come from the club members. Everyone always looks forward to this mother-daughter Luncheon.

Sports seasons are changing, leaving Columbus High School top in State AAA Basketball and challenging each to do his best in track. Exactly what does this mean? Well, Benningites appear again and we're hoping to refocus the spotlight toward some, or all if possible, Benningites. We again must start from the bottom and work up, or maybe we start from the top and work down.

Seven of our girls bask themselves again. Of course they now have an added honor — they're full-fledged sisters in Sigma Delta Beta. All the girls in the sorority are already getting excited about their trip to Panama City in April. Sounds like fun!

Beginning at 6:30 tonight the Columbus High School Chapter is holding the National Honor Society State Convention. It's playing host to approximately 250 members.

Here's a thought to keep in mind for the next nine weeks—as the going gets rough.

Since life is brief, we need to make it bright,
Then keep the old king's motto well in sight,
And let its meaning permeate each day,
Whatever comes, "This too shall pass away".

Flower Arranging Expert To Make Tour of Orient

Mrs. Carl Frisby of Auburn, Ala., and Columbus, a member of the Woman's Club of Fort Benning, will leave Columbus April 3 for a tour of the Orient.

She will be guest of friends in Japan. She is one of few foreigners invited to exhibit flower arranging in the Osaka International Trade Fair in April.

Mrs. Frisby has given nearly 500 lectures and exhibits in Ikebana and is one of the nation's outstanding lecturers on Japanese flower arranging.

She was featured in one of the programs scheduled by the Garden Club of Alabama during the fifth annual garden school at Auburn University recently. Her demonstrated lecture, entitled "Springtime in Hakone," was on Japanese flower arrangements.

During her tour, Mrs. Frisby plans to attend the Ikebana International Exhibit in Tokyo. She also plans to attend the wedding of Miss Mariko Toyoda at Okuma Hall in Tokyo.

MRS. FRISBY

The ceremonies will be performed in Buddhist, Shinto and the Christian faith.

Her study tour will also include visits to Hong Kong, Taipei, Taiwan, Bongkok, Thailand, and Honolulu.

Mrs. Frisby is the wife of Lt. Col. (Ret.) Carl Frisby.

Mr. Kennedy Comments On Reserves

WASHINGTON—When questioned at a recent news conference on last year's call-up of Reservists, President John F. Kennedy made the following comments:

"I understand the feeling of any reservists, particularly those who may have fulfilled their duty and then are called back. They see others going along in normal life, and therefore they feel, 'How long are we going to be kept?'

"We have stated that we are, as you kow, building two new divisions which will replace these reservists, and which will come into effect — I think the dates are August and September.

"On the question of releasing the reservists, we will release them at the first possible date consistent with our national security. They were called up because of the crisis in Berlin, and because of the threats in Southeast Asia. I do not think that anyone can possibly read the papers and come to the conclusion that these threats do not continue. There is no evidence that we are going to quickly reach a settlement in either one of these areas.

"The reservists are doing a very important job, in my judgment, and the fact that they were called up and the fact that they responded has strengthened the foreign policy of the United States measurably since last July and August.

"Now, secondly, there is always an inequity in life. Some men are killed in a war and some men are wounded, and some men never leave the country, and some men are stationed in the Antarctic and some are stationed in San Francisco. It is very hard in military or personal life to assure complete equality. Life is unfair.

"But I do hope . . . that these people recognize they are fulfilling a valuable function, and that they will feel, however humdrum it is, and how much their life is disturbed, that they contributed importantly to the security of their families and their country and at a significant time."

Defense Department Proposes Raise in Allowance

RECORD-SETTING AVIATORS . . . In the cockpit of a Caribou, the Army's new twin-engined transport aircraft, are CWO's James R. Woods, (L) and Harry M. Fletcher, members of the 1st Aviation Company, Lawson Army Aviation Command. The pilots recently individually passed the 6,000 mark in logging flying hours, the only two known Army aviators on the post with such a record.

WASHINGTON (AFPS)— Increased quarters allowances for all but a very few lower grade enlisted men, and a new military family housing construction plan have been recommended to Congress by the Department of Defense.

The increases, if approved, will range from 8 to 66 per cent with an overall average increase of 18½ per cent. The largest increases would be to E-8s and E-9s.

Military family housing construction included in the proposed legislation calls for 70,000 housing units to be built over a five year period at a cost of approximately $1.2 billion. The first year, FY 1963, calls for 15,000 units, 12,000 of which will be earmarked for enlisted personnel.

Financing of the housing construction would be accomplished by using the allowances forfeited by those persons occupying government quarters. This money, Secretary of Defense McNamara said, would be placed in a revolving Military Housing Fund to pay for the construction.

The proposed allowances for each grade are based on current housing costs paid by civilians with comparable income.

Increases proposed are largely those recommended by the Advisory Panel on Military Family Housing Policies and Practices which was appointed last October by Secretary McNamara.

Secretary McNamara, in explaining the need for a revision of quarters allowances and the construction of family housing, pointed out that in 1954 only 37 per cent of the military were married while in 1961 this figure reached 52 per cent. He said that the average number of dependents during that same period increased from .8 dependents to 1.5 dependents per military member.

When asked what chances the proposed legislation had of being approved by Congress, Mr. McNamara said, "I'm optimistic." He said the changes if passed by Congress would become effective in January 1963.

Defense also said that regardless of military housing construction program there will always be personnel for whom government housing is not available, such as those stationed in large metropolitan areas. As of June 30 last year, 61 per cent of those married members eligible for government quarters in the U. S. were living off post on local economies.

This Shooting Match Loser Really Wins

Is the winning of a trophy the only reason that members of the Army Marksmanship Training Unit compete in a match?

"Definitely not," says Col. Robin G. Montgomery, commanding officer of the unit. "Nor is it one of the main reasons. Match competition provides us with our best opportunity to field-test weapons, ammunition and ideas developed by our shooters to improve marksmanship, within the Army."

To demonstrate this fact the rifle division of the unit competes annually with the Air Force rifle squad in a match here.

Is there an award involved? Yes, but it goes to the loser of the match rather than the winner.

Brainchild of Col. Montgomery, the "Carrot" trophy is given to the team with the lowest score in the training match. Since its inauguration in 1960 the men in blue have managed to successfully defend and garner the trophy each year.

Last week they regained possession of it for the third consecutive time when the USAF was defeated by MTU by a score of 1483 to 1462. The match is a team event with each team composed of six firing members going over the national match course once.

The course is a 50-shot affair. Ten rounds are fired from the standing position in 10 minutes from the 200 yard line, 20 rounds are fired in the prone from standing at 300 yards with a 47 second time limit, 10 rounds at the same distance in kneeling or sitting from standing with the same time limit and 20 shots at 600 yards with one minute allowed per round.

"Competition with the Air Force team improves our shooting as well as theirs," Col. Montgomery declared. "To get good scores you must have top - flight competition. This is always true of the matches in which we participate. They are carefully selected to provide our shooters with the best competition available. Match competition also provides our shooters with a vehicle to exchange information with others."

2 Top NCOs At 38th Inf To Far East

By 38th Inf PIO

Two of the 38th Infantry's top-ranking non-commissioned officers have received orders to the Far East and will leave the battle group soon.

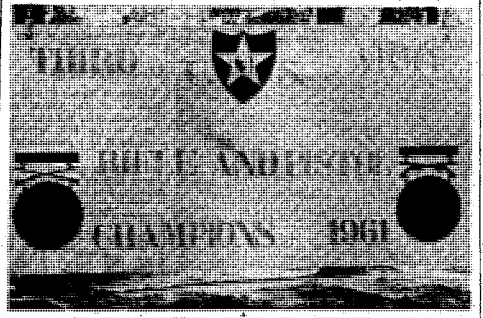
They are Sergeant Major Edward W. Minnick and Company A First Sergeant Thomas J. Tobin.

WW II, Korea

Sergeant Minnick, who joined the battle group in early 1961, is a veteran of both World War II and Korea and served with the Ranger Department of The Infantry School before coming to the 38th Infantry.

A 1942 Officers' Candidate School graduate, he served as a platoon leader and company commander in the 145th Infantry throughout the Solomons campaign in World War II.

After leaving the service in 1945, he enlisted in early 1949 and in July of 1950 moved to Korea with the 5th Cavalry Regiment of the 1st Cavalry Division. For his Korean service he was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross.



He also has been awarded the Silver Star, Bronze Star with Oak Leaf Cluster, Army Commendation Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster and Purple Heart with two clusters.

Sergeant Tobin, who served in three Korean campaigns with the 187th Airborne Regimental Combat Team and the 180th Infantry Regiment, since then has served a three-year tour in Germany in addition to

Div Marksmen Preparing To Defend TUSA Crown

By Div PIO

The 2nd Infantry Division Marksmanship Detachment is preparing to defend its title in the Third United States Army Rifle and Pistol Matches, April 10-21.

The division's marksmen are the current Third Army Champions, topping the field in last year's matches.

This year, nine teams, three pistol, three rifle and three automatic rifle, are training for the 1962 matches to be held at Fort Benning. Training began March 5, and at present there are 53 men in training for the matches.

16 Teams

Sixteen teams, representing almost all the installations in the Third Army area, will be on hand for the matches, considered the top marksmanship contest of the year in this area.

The teams participating in the Third Army matches from the 2nd Division will include: rifle section—Lieutenant Ivan W. Flowers Jr., Sergeant First Class Joseph A. Parciasepe, Master Sergeant William J. Adams, Sergeant First Class John Berry Jr., Sergeant First Class Doiph C. Brown, Sergeant First Class Albert W. Chapman, Sergeant First Class Marcus A. Townes and Staff Sergeant Charles W. Bootle.

Safety Tip

A lifetime can be spent crossing the street.

Entire Div. to Participate In Big, Six-Day Exercise

The entire 2nd Infantry Division of Fort Benning will travel to Fort Stewart, Georgia, for Exercise Seneca Spear, a Continental Army Command-directed maneuver, from April 11 to April 18.

Major General Charles H. Chase, the commanding general of the "Indianhead" Division, has been named exercise director for the continuous six-day tactical exercise held at Fort Stewart.

Some elements of the approximately 10,000 man division will travel to the exercise area by air, utilizing airplanes of the Military Air Transport Service and facilities of Hunter Air Force Base.

Convoy

The remaining elements of the 2nd Division will travel by motor convoy to Fort Stewart. Most elements will go to the maneuver site on April 10 and 11, and will return to Fort Benning at the completion of the exercise on April 18 and 19.

During Seneca Spear, members of the division, reinforced by other selected units from throughout the Third Army area, will operate in defensive, offensive and major river crossing operations. The prob-

Review Thurs. Honors ADC

Prigadier General Royal Reynolds Jr., assistant division commander, was honored at a Miniature Review at 4 p.m. yesterday on division headquarters parade field.

Gen. Reynolds is departing the 2nd Division to become assistant commandant of The Infantry School, succeeding Brigadier General A. D. Surles Jr., reassigned to the U. S. Army Element of Allied Forces, Southern Europe, in Naples, Italy.

Gen. Reynolds, assistant division commander since August, will be "succeeded by Brigadier General Charles Billingslea, present Eighth U. S. Army chief of staff. Gen. Billingslea is scheduled to join the 2nd Division in June.

Maj. Davis Picked Aide-de-Camp To Army's Vice Chief of Staff

Major Aubrey A. Davis, 2nd Infantry Division's assistant G-4 since January 1961, left the division this week for Washington, D.C., where he becomes aide-de-camp to the Army's Vice Chief of Staff, Lt. Gen. Barksdale Hamlett, former deputy chief of staff for military operations, Department of Army.

Major Davis, who in 1956 was aide-de-camp to General Hamlett while he commanded the 10th Infantry Division and in 1957, when he was named U. S. Commander of Berlin, will also carry the title of Assistant Executive Officer to the Vice Chief of Staff.

Joined in 1943

Born in Wiggins, Mississippi, March 31, 1925, Major Davis graduated from Wiggins High School in 1943, joining the U.S. Army that same year.

Following training at Camp Shelby, Mississippi, he was sent to Europe to join the 4th Infantry Division. During World War II, the major participated in three campaigns in the European theater of operations.

Following World War II he was discharged, remained out of the service for three months and returned in November 1948, receiving a Reserve commission February 22, 1949.

Major Davis served in Korea for 16 months, beginning in 1950. In 1952 he returned to the United States to become accountable property officer at the Memphis General Depot, in Memphis, Tennessee.

In 1955 he joined the 10th Infantry Division at Fort Riley, Kansas. He joined the 10th as Division Chemical officer. That same year he travelled with that division to Germany.

Former Aide

He became Aide-de-Camp to General Hamlett in 1956 when the general commanded the 10th Infantry Division. When General Hamlett was named U.S. Commander of Berlin, Major Davis stayed on as his aide.

In May 1958 he rejoined the 10th Infantry Division, returned to the United States to Fort Benning. When the 10th Division was redesignated the 2nd Infantry Division Major Davis was serving as the division chemical officer.

He became assistant G-4 for the 2nd Division in January 1961. He was promoted to the rank of major in June 1961.

Major Davis is married and has two children. He will be joined in Washington by his family following the end of the present school year.

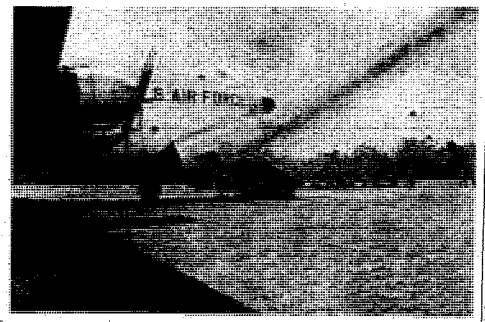
1st Trains With 'Globemasters'

By 1st Infantry PIO

1st Infantry personnel are training this week with the C-124 "Globemaster" transport.

Six United States Air Force "Globemasters" are based at Lawson Army Air Field for the use of the 2nd Infantry Division units.

Soldiers of the 1st Infantry were briefed by the Air Force personnel on the characteristics of the 193,614-pound aircraft.



Mock-Ups

A week of prior training with mock-ups of the aircraft gave the men the necessary training for fast and efficient work with the aircraft. Proficiency in loading, lashing and off-loading of equipment was emphasized to the utmost.

The four-engine heavy transport has a main deck and an upper deck. The main deck is for heavy equipment, such as the H-13 helicopters and two-and-a-half ton trucks. The upper deck is for light equipment and personnel and may be used for carrying airborne units.

Training was conducted as teams. The troops were organized into loading teams and practiced to become proficient in loading, lashing and unloading of the equipment organic to their battle group.

The S-3 (training) section, headed by Major John W. McKelvey, was controller of the training.

Squalling Tax Deductions Arrive For Two 23rd Infantry Non-Coms

By 23rd Infantry PIO

Some 19 pounds of tax deductions arrived this month for two NCOs in the 23rd Infantry's Delta Company.

Sergeant First Class Raymond Massey's wife gave birth on March 9 to a 10-pound four ounce, 22 inch-long girl. It's suspected that Miss Catherine May Massey may have set a battle group record, weightwise.

A week later, the wife of Sergeant Bobby R. Oakes presented him with a bouncing baby girl. No lightweight herself, Miss Elizabeth Michelle weighed in at nine pounds, three-quarters of an ounce.

Personnel at Delta just hope neither of the new fathers strains his back while walking his squalling daughter during the wee hours of the morning.

Lt. Self at 69th

Lieutenant Marvin B. Self, a graduate of The Citadel in Charleston, S.C., has been assigned to the 69th Armor's Company B as a platoon leader.

Lt. Self is a graduate of the Armor Officers' Orientation Course at Fort Knox, Kentucky.

Maj. Rose Leading 37th Arty

A change of command ceremony at the 6th Howitzer Battalion, 37th Artillery took place this week in the battalion area.

The members of the 37th Artillery stood at attention as Lieutenant Colonel Floyd L. Johnson, the former battalion commander and the new Division Artillery executive officer, turned the 6th Howitzer Battalion over to Major Peter Rose.

A farewell party for Lt. Col. Johnson and his wife was given the following evening at the Main Officer's Open Mess by the officers of the battalion.

Major Rose has been with the 37th Artillery since October 9 and has served as battalion S-3 and executive officer.

He came to the division from Saint Augustine, Florida, and an assignment there as National Guard advisor.

Don't Bring Your Gun To Bunny Hunt

If you are fleet of foot and want to win a prize for your speediness, you will be interested in the "Rabbit Catch" that Service Club Two is planning to sponsor on Easter Sunday, April 22.

A flock of gaily - colored Peter Cottontails will be set loose in Pendleton Park near the Club. Bunnies will be released from 1 p.m. to ten p.m., and anyone bringing one back to the club will receive a free prize.

To avoid confusing the regular Sand Hill - type rabbits with the Service Club rabbits, the latter will have large "Catch Me!" signs around their necks.

There's just one rule: no guns or dogs allowed.

Capt Thomas Assigned S-4 At 9th Inf.

By 9th Infantry PIO

Captain Henry R. Thomas Jr. has been assigned the new S-4 (supply) officer for the 9th Infantry.

He succeeds Major Wendell F. Delamare who is now the S-3 (operations) officer.

Captain Thomas moves to his new post from his former job as assistant S-4, which he had held since he arrived at the 9th Infantry in August of last year.

Captain Thomas entered the Army in March of 1955 after receiving his commission earlier that year from Lincoln University in Jefferson City, Missouri, where he had also received his bachelor of science degree.

After attending the Engineer School at Fort Belvoir, Virginia, in late 1955, Captain Thomas was assigned as the executive officer of Combat Support Company of the 15th Infantry 3rd Infantry Division in Germany.

After completing his tour of duty overseas, Captain Thomas returned to Fort Benning where he attended the Advanced Infantry Officers' Career Course.

Captain Thomas is the recipient of the Expert Infantryman's Badge and the basic Parachutist's Badge.

A very avid sports enthusiast, the Manchu officer was named to the Little All-American football squad in 1954 as a defensive end. Captain Thomas was also a member of Fort Belvoir's eleven and was named to the Division and All-European Command All Star teams in 1957 and 1958 at tackle.

A native of Dallas, Texas, Captain Thomas and his wife, Kathryn, reside in Fort Benning's Custer Terrace.

Rifle Platoon Leaders Put 'On Their Own' in Training

Rifle platoon leaders of the 38th Infantry were "on their own" last week as they combined a road march, map-reading, patrolling, guerrilla warfare, security and small-river crossing techniques during a 34-hour block of training.

And this week, rifle company commanders took their units to the field for similar day-and-a half exercises involving a minimum of control and supervision from battle group headquarters.

By Foot

In the platoon exercises, platoon leaders initially were given early morning missions by the 38th Infantry S-3 section—to move by foot to a designated point some 10 miles from the Kelley Hill area where they would find a note in a can giving them further instructions on how to reach another point and air-dropped C-rations for the evening meal.

After these two points were found, the platoon leader was on his own in training his men — receiving a telephone call during the middle of the night as to when and where transportation back to Kelley Hill could be found at the end of the exercise.

The platoons worked with only sketch maps of the area they were in and meals consisted of C-rations. Water purification tablets were handed out.

This week rifle companies were on similar training missions — but the company mess was brought along.

After a road march to the training area, the company commander periodically would give orders to his platoons, keeping alert for another "Aggressor" company of the 38th, concurrently training in patrolling and out to harass the independent company.

Sky-Diving Tanker Taught Art to His Girl

Private First Class Stephen T. Shopmaker is the only tanker who is seen packing a parachute in the evenings. The 69th Armor does not have flying tanks, but Shopmaker is a member of Fort Benning Sports Parachute Club.

A native of Miami, Florida, Shopmaker has been sky diving since October of 1960. He is a former member of the University of Florida sky diving club. Shopmaker has made a total of 34 jumps with only one slight incident, when he was dragged for 150 feet and broke one rib.

Delay Times

The jumps are made from a maximum altitude of 7,000 feet and a minimum of 2,200 feet. Different delay times are used at these altitudes along with several positions. The delay time at 7,000 feet is 30 seconds and 12 seconds for 2,200 feet. The diver has two parachutes, a main chute and reserve. The chute is controlled with a missing panel.

Shopmaker taught his girl friend the art of sky diving and they both entered the Southern Florida Parachute Club Open Invitational. Shopmaker placed third in Class A competition and his girl friend won a trophy and finished second.

Shopmaker is a member of the scout platoon and has been in the 69th Armor since August 14.

New Jobs Are in Store For 7th Cav Lieutenants

Several personnel changes among 7th Cavalry officers have been announced.

Lieutenant Raiford F. Mullins has assumed command of Troop C from Captain Charles P. Frinks. Captain Frinks will be departing for Fort Bragg, North Carolina, shortly.

Lt. Mullins has been with the squadron since November 1961. During his tour with the squadron, he served as liaison officer and attended the Chemical - Biological - Radiological School at Fort McClellan, Alabama. Lt. Mullins served in Korea before taking a break in service. On reentering the service, he was assigned to the 7th Cavalry.

Lieutenant Jack E. Thomas was reassigned to Troop A as platoon leader after serving as platoon leader in Troop C. Since his tour with the Cavalry, he participated in many field problems and attended several Army schools, including the Amphibious Reconnaissance School at Little Creek, Virginia. He has been with the squadron since June 1961, when he arrived from Fort Knox, Kentucky, where he attended the Armor Officers Orientation Course.

Lieutenant John E. Greene was reassigned to Troop B as platoon leader after serving as liaison officer of the squadron.

During Lt. Greene's tour with the squadron, he served in Troop A as platoon leader and worked in the S-3 office prior to his new assignment.

Lt. Greene has been with the squadron for seven months after attending the Armor Officer's Orientation Course at Fort Knox, Kentucky.

Lt. Yongue at 69th

Lieutenant Charles N. Yongue is now serving as a platoon leader at Company D, 69th Armor.

Lt. Yongue, a pre-med student at his Alma Mater, The Citadel, is single. He is a graduate of Fort Knox, Kentucky's Armor Officers' Orientation Course.

Three Depart 1st Infantry

BY 1st Infantry PIO

The 1st Infantry bade farewell recently to an officer and two enlisted men.

Lieutenant Bobby Wilkins, communications platoon leader, left for Fort Rucker, Alabama.

Sergeant Armando Ramos departed for the Far East. Sergeant Ramos, also from the communications platoon, was the radio chief in Headquarters Company.

Leaving from the personnel section of the 1st Infantry was Specialist Five James C. Burt. Specialist Burt reported to the 38th Artillery Friday.

Cav's Lt. Brown Promoted at CPX

First Lieutenant Frank O. Brown, support platoon leader of the 7th Cavalry, was recently promoted to his present rank in an informal ceremony held in the field during CPX "Hotel." Lieutenant Colonal Harvey Scott, squadron commander, presented Lt. Brown his new silver bars in the presence of the squadron staff.

Traffic Quiz

Hit and Take Your Time Reporting That Accident?

This traffic quiz was prepared by the 2nd Division Provost Marshall's office in an attempt to better acquaint the public with the safe and legal methods of operating a motor vehicle. All information is taken from Fort Benning Pamphlet 385-3, Vehicle Registration and Traffic Regulations.

True of False

1. The operator or owner of a vehicle involved in an accident will stop immediately, as close to the scene as possible without obstructing traffic. He will:

a. Render or secure such first aid as is necessary.

b. Report the accident to the Military Police giving his or her name, rank, service number, organization and location of accident. In the case of civilian personnel, the above will apply with the exception that section of employment and address will be given instead of rank, organization and service number.

c. Remain at the scene until released by the Military Police.

2. The driver and-or owner of any vehicle involved in an accident is only required to give his name, address and vehicle license number to the driver of the other vehicle.

3. The driver of any vehicle which has collided with an unattended vehicle should take down the license number of the other vehicle and contact the owner at his earliest convenience.

4. The driver of any vehicle which has collided with an unattended vehicle is not required to notify the Military Police unless the damage exceeds $100.

Answers:

1. True. (sec 20-a)

2. False; the driver or owner of any vehicle involved in an accident will give his name, address and vehicle license number, and exhibit his operator's license upon request to any person injured, to any occupant of the vehicle collided with, or to any injured person. (sec 20-b)

3 and 4. False; the driver of a vehicle which has collided with an unattended vehicle will stop immediately and leave, in a conspicuous place in or on the other vehicle, a written note containing his name, address and a statement of the circumstances, and will report the accident to the Military Police as soon as possible. (sec 20-c)

Captain Sanderlin, prior to assuming his new command, served as battalion adjutant.

23rd's Gaylord, BG Hqs. Clerk, To Attend OCS

By 23rd Infantry PIO

A clerk in the 23rd Infantry's battle group headquarters has been accepted for Officers' Candidate School.

Specialist Four Gaylord R. Thomas Jr. will be a member of the class that convenes April 9. The Fort Pierce, Florida, native applied for OCS in February 1961 while undergoing Basic Combat Training with the 17th Artillery at Fort Benning.

Specialist Thomas first entered the Army in 1954 and spent a majority of his enlistment with the 912th Army Security Agency Battalion in Germany. He left the Army in 1957 and reentered again in December 1960. After completing basic training, Thomas took Advanced Individual Training with the 23rd Infantry's Bravo Company. Following a brief assignment with the 12th Transportation Battalion he was again assigned to the 23rd Infantry as a clerk at battle group headquarters.

Specialist Thomas is looking forward to attending OCS and to a career in the military. He hopes to work in Army Security again after he completes the six-month Officers' Candidate School.

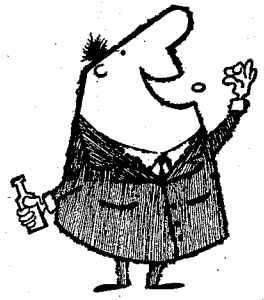
A married man, Specialist Thomas and his wife presently reside in Columbus.

1st NCO Attends Intelligence School

By 1st Infantry PIO

Staff Sergeant Charles F. Perry, Headquarters Company, 1st Infantry, has returned for duty with the battle group's S-2 Section.

Sergeant Perry attended a ten-week course presented by the United States Army Intelligence School at Fort Holabird, Maryland.



The course is designed to give excellent coverage of all aspects of intelligence. Included in the course of instruction were such subjects as photo interpretation, order of battle and map reading.

Two 2nd Div. Thespians Handle Key Jobs In Masquers' 'An Evening Off-Broadway'

Two 2nd Division men assigned to Headquarters and Headquarters Company are lending their talents to preserving legitimate theater at Fort Benning.

Working with the forthcoming Fort Benning Masquers productions, "An Evening Off-Broadway," are Specialist Four Peter A. Tatistcheff and Private First Class Richard Labriola.

Choreographer

PFC Labriola, a newcomer to both Headquarters and Headquarters company and the Masquers, is a native of Hartford, Connecticut. Assigned as a Catholic Chaplain's assistant with the division, his talent for choreography will be seen in a scene of Eugene Ionesco's "The Bald Soprano," one of the two short plays to be given April 14, 20 and 21 by the Masquers.

While at high school, Pfc Labriola was a member of a Junior Entertainment Guild, choreographing ten musical reviews. Having had four years of modern jazz training, he has also danced in high school productions of the Rodgers and Hammerstein musical comedies "Carousel" and "Oklahoma." He began dancing at the age of 15.

Specialist Tatistcheff, director of "The Bald Soprano" and "Terence Rattigan's "The Browning Version," the second play on the Masquers "An Evening Off-Broadway" program, is also writing original incidental music for "The Bald Soprano."

Tatistcheff who has "never attempted anything like this before," states that "what I am doing is music only in the sense that it is sound produced on a piano, employing conventional rhythmical patterns. It will be there only to decorate the play and give it more comic weirdness."

Tatistcheff has been connected with the Fort Benning Masquers since their Fall production of the drama "Tea and Sympathy." He is also treasurer for the group.

The two plays that make up the Masquers' "An Evening Off-Broadway" are currently in rehearsal in Building 2519 on Main Post. Starring in "The Browning Version" are Major Don Shuffstall of the U. S. Army Infantry School, Mrs. Helen Vogel, a resident of Columbus, Georgia, with extensive theater experience, and John Rasmussen, whose experience includes work with the famous Pasadena Playhouse.

Starring in "The Bald Soprano" are Mrs. Jean Douglas, a long-time member of the Masquers, and Maureen Bloemsma, wife of Lieutenant William Bloemsma, 70th Aviation Operations Detachment, both of whom were active in theater work at Fort Knox, Kentucky, prior to their recent arrival at Fort Benning. Also playing a key role in this play is Karen Ottley, daughter of Master Sergeant Warren J. Ottley, of the 2nd Division's 2nd Administration Company.

SFC C. Lacy, Info. Office, Leaving Div.

Sergeant First Class Clay Lacy, information supervisor with the division information office, has been reassigned to Korea.

Sgt. Lacy, 32, served almost two years with the division information office after previously serving with the 9th Infantry. He came to Fort Benning in June 1958 with the 10th Infantry Division, a month before its redesignation to the 2nd Infantry Division.

'Show Business'

While here, the Massachusetts native has been active during off-duty hours in numerous "show business" pursuits in both military and civilian circles.

He was honor graduate in January 1961 of his class at the Army Information School, Fort Slocum, New York.

Locally, Sgt. Lacy co-authored, co-produced and narrated the Historical Society of Columbus' 1961 production of "The Gallant City" at the Municipal Auditorium. He is directing and will narrate the 1962 version of the same production on April 19, 20, 21 at the auditorium.

In the colorful guise of "Co-Co the Clown," the versatile NCO has entertained at numerous private parties, unit Christmas parties, theaters and civic club meetings.

Sgt. Lacy has narrated the 2nd Division's Organization Day for three years, was narrator at last year's Searchlight Tattoo and Massing of the Colors during Armed Forces Week at the Municipal Auditorium. He has narrated "I Am the Infantry" for three years.

His work with the Columbus Little Theater includes roles in four productions and as director of CLT's "The Tender Trap." He also directed "All My Sons" for the Fort Benning Masquers and appeared in the Masquers' "Bell, Book and Candle."

His numerous other credits include guest speaker appearances before local civic clubs and Columbus College audiences, theatrical work with Service Club Two and appearances as master of ceremonies at variety shows and special events.

PFC Giltner 9th Inf's 'SOM'

By 9th Infantry PIO

Private First Class Ronald A. Giltner has been selected as the 9th Infantry's "Soldier-of-the-Month."

Giltner is a squad leader in the 9th's Combat Support Company, commanded by Captain Franklin M. Nichols, where he has served since June of 1961.

The Manchu soldier is a native of Kirksville, Missouri. He entered the Army in March of 1961 and was assigned to Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri.

'Fittest'

On the eve of the departure for the Normandy beachhead in 1944, the 11th Infantry Regiment was inspected by Generals Dwight Eisenhower and George Patton, General Patton remarking, "This is the fittest, roughest, readiest outfit that I have ever inspected."

Infantry History

Throughout our history, the Infantry Soldier has become the symbol of our military strength. But he is more than just a symbol — he is the living extension of the will of the people to preserve the American way of life.

3 NCOs Leave 1st For Korea

By 1st Infantry PIO

The 1st Infantry lost three of its top noncommissioned officers Wednesday.

Departing Kelley Hill for reassignment to Korea were First Sergeant Alex Sikora, Company A, Master Sergeant Rafael Chevez and Master Sergeant James E. McClure of Headquarters Company.

Sergeant Sikora was the First Sergeant of Company A since his arrival to Fort Benning's 1st Infantry from the 38th Infantry in June 1961. Sergeant Chevez also came to the 1st Infantry in June 1961, and was motor sergeant for the battle group.

Sergeant McClure was with the 9th Infantry prior to assignment to the 1st Infantry and served as the 1st's communications platoon sergeant.

9th Infantry Rates High In Annual IG Inspection

By 9th Infantry PIO

The 9th Infantry recently completed it's Annual Inspector General's Inspection, with six of the seven companies in the battle group receiving a superior rating.

Of those rated superior, Company A, commanded by Captain Walter O. D. Ginger, was the highest in the battle group.

Says Colonel Clifford P. Hannum, 9th Infantry commanding officer, "I wish to commend Captain Walter D. Ginger and First Sergeant Aikcus Stokes and all the men and officers of Company A for this splendid example of what can be accomplished provided the will to excel is present."

In gaining the highest rating in the battle group, Company A received 15 superior and six excellent markings in the 21 phases of the inspection.

The 9th Infantry was also commended by Major General Charles H. Chase, 2nd Infantry Division commanding general, for it's overall showing.

Sgt. Davis Gets 87th SOM Nod

By 87th Inf PIO

Sergeant Robert Davis Jr., was selected recently as the 87th Infantry's March "Soldier-of-the-Month."

A squad leader with Combat Support Company's mortar section, Sergeant Davis won a three-day pass, a $10 check and a special citation from departing Battle Group Commander, Colonel Robert E. Connor. This was Combat Support's fifth SOM in the past seven months.

Sergeant Davis, who is a qualified parachutist having completed the airborne course with the 101st at Fort Campbell, can be called something of a nomad. His permanent home is New York City, his parents live in Albany, Georgia, he completed high school in Tampa, Florida, and is presently living with his wife Geraldine in Columbus.

Lt. R. M. Wolfe At 23rd's Co. E

Lieutenant Robert M. Wolfe has been assigned to the 23rd Infantry's Company E as a platoon leader.

Lt. Wolfe is a graduate of Ridder College in Connecticut with a bachelor's degree in business administration. He received his commission through the National Guard Officers' Candidate program.

Sgt. Leaves 69th, Joins Div. G-3

By 69th Armor PIO

Sergeant First Class Frank L. Culver, formerly of the 69th Armor, has been reassigned to the 2nd Infantry Division G-3 (Operations and Training) section.

Sergeant Culver was assigned to the tank battalion's S-3 section, where he was primarily utilized as schools non-commissioned officer.

'Suicidal' Drivers Must Be Confined?

By Chaplain (Major) Clement P. J. Krug
Assistant Division Chaplain

It seems that certain people by the way they drive are always ready for suicide.

Because of human compassion, we lock up individuals who attempt suicide. We consider them insane. We lock them up to protect them from themselves and from hurting or killing others.

Whenever an individual is caught driving as if he were insane he should be confined and released only when he has received medical treatment-spiritual or psychiatric.

Accident Statistics

In the past fifty years, traffic accidents caused more deaths, physical and mental disabilities and human suffering than any of our most dreaded diseases. More than one million people were needlessly slaughtered! Each year we cut down more than 4,500 children under 14-years of age. Each year we kill more than 10,000 pedestrians. And yet, the public is not aroused. These shameful facts are ignored or even condoned as part of the necessary price of progress!

Many times we have heard the question, "How can I apply my religion to everyday life?" "The Golden Rule," basic to all religions, is a desperate "must" for those who drive automobiles if some of the needless slaughter on our highways is to be stopped. Let your religion show while driving.

The appalling sinful statistics are just so many words, until a loved one or close friend is involved. In the sight of God every human life is sacred. Every victim of a traffic fatality is precious not only to some human family, but also to God.

In the words of a great modern spiritual leader:

"It is necessary to instill in all drivers a sense of their grave duty to respect the lives of others. A salutary fear of immediate and adequate repressive measures doubtless contributes toward this end. But the police alone cannot prevent perils created by drivers who are not masters over themselves because they are carried away by a passion for speed, or intoxication."

Capt. S. Pharr, 2nd Engr. Bn., Retires Mar. 31

Capt. Stanley Pharr, currently serving with the 2nd Engineers, will retire March 31 after more than 20 years of Army service.

Capt. Pharr, motor officer, joined the service in 1940. Born in New Site, Mississippi, his overseas assignments have taken him to both Europe and the Far East.

Capt. Pharr joined the 2nd Engineer Battalion in June 1960 and has served as S-4 and motor officer.

After his retirement, Capt. Pharr will work in Memphis, Tennessee, as a Quartermaster leather and textile inspector.

Promoted to their present rank were Sergeants Melvin E. Lonas and Andrew J. Tarrey, Troop A, Peter Bartos, Troop B, and Charles E. Wright, Headquarters and Headquarters Troop; Specialists Five William E. Smith, Troop B, James D. Lee, Phillip I. Slipher, and George E. McKinney, Troop C.

The eight men were promoted to their present rank in ceremonies held in each troop by the respective troop commanders.

New Jobs Told For 2 Officers At 87th Infantry

By 87th Inf PIO

Two officers have recently received orders to new assignments within the 1st Battle Group, 87th Infantry.

The new officers will be utilized to fill vacancies created by the departure of officers who have received overseas assignments.

Lieutenant Cory G. Jackson, who was commissioned in 1960 from the University of Alabama ROTC program, where he received a bachelor of arts degree in sociology, will be assigned to Company D as a platoon leader.

Lieutenant Jackson, who is originally from Birmingham, Ala., is an avid outdoorsman whose interests also include tennis.

Another Alabaman man, Lieutenant Charles W. Hawkins will also be a platoon leader assigned to Company E. An ROTC graduate, he has a bachelor of science degree from Jacksonville State College in Alabama. A long-term resident of Fort Payne, Ala., Lieutenant Hawkins' interest in sports includes amateur basketball, football and baseball.

lem is tailored to also allow maximum use of mechanized task forces and extensive use of guerrilla type operations.

To support the division with armored personnel carriers and tanks to be used in the mechanized task forces, a large rail convoy will transport some of this heavy equipment from Fort Benning to the south Georgia military reservation at Fort Stewart, about 240 miles from Fort Benning.

The Continental Army Command exercise will provide simulated nuclear, chemical, psychological warfare and army aviation use to bring maximum realism into the actual play of the problem. There will also be live fire of artillery weapons during the exercise.

This exercise will be the first large-scale maneuver for the 2nd Division in which the entire division is utilized on unfamiliar terrain.

Fort Stewart, home of the U. S. Army Armor and Artillery Firing Center, is located near Savannah, about 20 miles inland from the Georgia coast.

He has been awarded the Combat Infantryman's Badge and Army Commendation Medal and wears both the Parachutist's and Glider Badges.

'Big Brother' Is Really Watching Him

Private First Class Peter G. West of the 2nd Engineer Battalion's Company B is one of the few men in the Army who has a "big brother" close at hand.

For all the 18-year old combat construction specialist has to do is yell, and, chances are, his 19-year old brother, Specialist Four Michael S. West will hear him a few blocks away in the 9th Infantry.

Peter enlisted nine months ago, following his elder brother, who joined the Army's ranks in October 1959. Michael is an acting squad leader in the 9th's Company A.

Many off - duty hours are spent together, says Peter, and this affords a chance to "swap notes" on goings-on back home in Chambersburg, Pennsylvania.

But they'll get a first-hand look as the "old home town" later this month — they're taking leaves together.

The "big brother" part, however, really isn't exactly true, Peter is quick to point out.

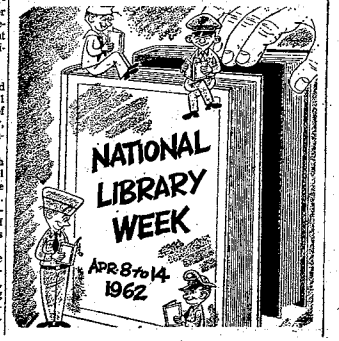
"You see," he says, "I'm a half-inch taller than he is."

Assistant G-2 Is Promoted While on TDY

Lieutenant Colonel Sidney J. Roche, 2nd Division assistant G-2, was promoted to his present rank March 21 while on temporary duty attending the Special Forces School at Fort Bragg, North Carolina.

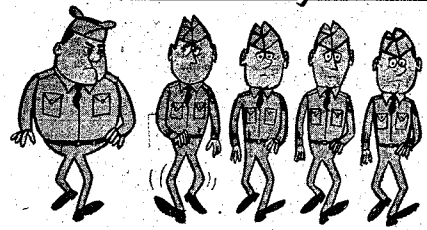
Lt. Col. Roche, who is currently working with Maneuver Headquarters for Exercise Seneca Spear, has been assistant G-2 for the 2nd Infantry Division since October 1961.

Florida Native



The Florida native joined the 2nd Division in July 1961 when he held the position of Division Reenlistment Officer, assigned to the 2nd Administration Company.

Leaving the division March 18 for the Special Forces School at Fort Bragg, he attended the course which began on the 12th. Nine days later he was promoted to his present rank of lieutenant colonel. The class ended on Mar. 22.



Lt. Col. Roche is executive officer at Maneuver Headquarters of Exercise Seneca Spear, an exercise involving training for the entire 2nd Infantry Division at Fort Stewart, Georgia, in April.

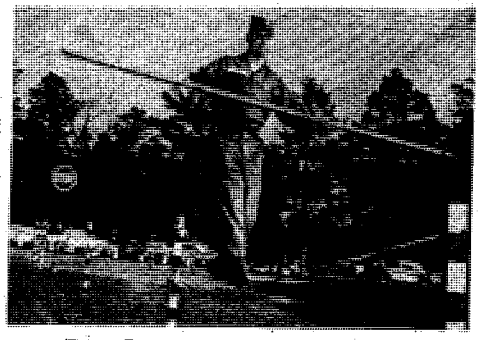
Ex-Trapeze Artist Now Practices On Rail Fence at 23rd Infantry

BY JACK SURRENCY

As children how many of us, sitting under the Big Top, had visions of flying through the air like the graceful trapeze artists? At that exciting moment, thrilled with the antics of the clowns and the courage of the lion tamer, our only thought was to run away and join the circus.

Private First Class Charles Johnson of Headquarters Company, 23rd Infantry, probably entertained such thoughts once, but he didn't have to run away to become a member of The Greatest Show on Earth. Instead, he went to college and for two years as an active member of a real circus, the Florida State University Flying Circus.

BA Major



A business administration major, Johnson's circus activities centered around "The Flying High Team," an aerial act. Johnson's primary job was working on the still traps, a single bar hanging about 20 feet above the ground. Here, he and his female partner performed breath-taking feats of timing and balance. He also became proficient in tightrope walking.

Versatility is a necessity for members of the FSU Flying Circus, and Johnson proved his worth on the ground as well as in the air. While earth - bound he exverted as a clown, complete with makeup and baggy clothes.

To qualify for participation in the Circus the FSU students must maintain a high academic record as well as skill and daring. The Flying Circus performs throughout the southeastern United States each year, and the hectic pace plus long hours of practice make for irratic study periods. But, according to Johnson, the rewards are worth it. Members of the Flying Circus have been featured on the Dave Garroway "Today" show, and Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer Studios were impressed enough with the group to film one of their performances and use it as a featured short subject. Also, many football half-time shows have been graced by the Flying High Circus performers.

A regular three-ring circus, the FSU outfit limits its action to only one ring when it goes on the road. Such a show was featured last summer at nearby Ida Cason Gardens, where members of the Circus performed daily.

Although Charles Johnson may not plan to pursue the circus as a career, he still has some sawdust in his veins. He has been seen balancing on the new rail fence in front of the 23rd Infantry personnel section where he works, and he has been heard to say he would like to try walking the wire that stretches across Upatoi creek where the engineers practice bridge construction.

PFC McKnight Of 9th Infantry To Attend OCS

By 9th Infantry PIO

Private First Class Matt D McKnight III, of Company B, 9th Infantry, was notified recently by his Company Commander, Captain Charles R. Latta, of his acceptance to the Officer Candidate School at Fort Benning.

A native of Rockwood, Tennessee, McKnight entered the Army in December of 1960 and has been a member of the "Keep Up The Fire" 9th Infantry since October of last year.

69th Inspectors Pick Best Tank

The best track - vehicle for the month of January was selected recently by a 69th Armor Battalion Inspection Team.

The winning tank was in the 1st Platoon, Company B and was led by Staff Sergeant Stanley E. Elliott.

Other members of the crew are Specialist Four Herman E. Hill (Gunner), Private First Class Edward Nichols (Driver), Private First Class Jose Carnejo Jr. (Loader)

The inspection team covered all points normally covered in a command maintenance inspection. The tank-of-the-month received no deficiencies on the inspection.

4 Upped to Sgt. At 23rd Infantry

Four 23rd Infantry men recently donned sergeants' chevrons following their promotions.

Promoted were Sergeants John McMurdy, Company A, John Stokes and James Hutchinson, Company B, and Herbert Armell, Company C.

3 Officers Depart 23rd This Week

By 23rd Inf PIO

Three officers are departing the 23rd Infantry, two for assignments overseas.

Captain John Crowley is on temporary duty for four weeks at Fort Bragg, North Carolina, attending a military assistance training advisory course. Upon completion of this course he will be assigned to the Far East.

Captain Allen Wilde has been assigned to Martin Army Hospital, and has been replaced by Captain Harvey S. Frey.

Captain Frederick Woerner Jr. is at Fort Bragg, North Carolina, for a six week training course in counter-guerrilla operations and tactics. On completion of the course, Captain Woerner will be assigned to the Far East.

7 From 1st Inf. To Little Creek

By 1st Inf PIO

Seven enlisted men have recently departed the 1st Infantry for the embarkation course conducted at United States Naval Amphibious School, Little Creek, Virginia.

The men from the battle group are Master Sergeants John W. Day, Combat Support Company; Warren C. Griffin, Company C, and George R. Shelton, Company E; Platoon Sergeant Paul D. Walker, Company D; Sergeants First Class Vencen Ackerson, Company B, and Karl A. Neudorff, Headquarters Company, and Staff Sergeant George J. Ochoa, of Company A.

The embarkation course lasts four weeks. After completion of the training the men will return to their company and assume their normal duties.

38th Hosts 2 Liberians

By 38th Inf PIO

The secretary to the chief of staff and an assistant adjutant general in the Liberian Department of Defense last week visited the 38th Infantry to observe personnel and administrative work at battle group headquarters.

Captain Roosevelt M. Major and Lieutenant Alfred B. Flomo of the Liberian Army, who recently finished a week's stay at the Adjutant Generals Officers Orientation Course at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana, initially were briefed by Chief Warrant Officer (W-3) Richard D. Freeman, 38th Infantry personnel officer.

After observing work in the personnel and records section, the officers moved to the battle group's S-1 section to observe administrative practices and procedures.

This was followed by a visit to Company A's orderly room.

The two officers, who arrived in the United States this month to attend the Fort Benjamin Harrison school, were to return home last Saturday.

17th Artillery Fortifies Entire Battalion Area

By 17th Arty PIO

Some soldiers with shovels and others with saws proved their versatility as the 17th Artillery "dug-in" and fortified the entire battalion area for training purposes.

In the short period of three days the battalion was changed from a vulnerable in-the-open unit to one which would provide protection from all but a direct hit.

Although well fortified, the positions did not hamper the fire capabilities of the unit. This was proved on the final day of training when both batteries fired timely and accurate fire on simulated enemy targets.

The battalion position was judged in competition with other artillery battalions of the 2nd Infantry Division.

The 17th Artillery's Battery B was judged as having the best fortified machinegun position by a team from Division Artillery headquarters.

27th Teaching 38th Inf Men

By the 27th Artillery PIO

This week the 27th Artillery is presenting classes to officers and selected noncommissioned officers from it's direct supported unit, the 38th Infantry, on training in the conduct of observed artillery fire.

Instruction will be based on observed fire procedures, preparatory operations and location of targets, initial fire requests, the forward observer adjustment of fire procedures, and the conduct of area and precision fire missions.

The artillery instructors are Lieutenant Augustus Burgdorf, battalion liason officer, and Lieutenant Charles Seal, Lieutenant Lee Steeley, Lieutenant George Reading, Lieutenant Richmond Brown and Lieutenant Ollie Askew, battalion forward observers.

3 EM Promoted At 1st Infantry

Three enlisted men assigned to Company E, 1st Infantry, recently were promoted to the temporary grade of specialist four.

The newly - promoted men are Specialist Four Roger A. Heinen, Specialist Four William D. Jones and Specialist Four Famious Stephenson. The three men are assigned as team leaders.

Here's Advice on What to Do If Lightning Strikes

The forecast read: ". . late afternoon thunderstorms."

To a man safe at home, such a warning might be accepted with a shrug of the shoulders. But, to the Soldier faced with an afternoon exercise in the woods of Fort Benning, the word "thundershowers" could have special meaning. Add the fact that lightning often strikes taller objects to the fact that Fort Benning's spacious acres of woodlands contain copious quantities of pines with well-grounded tap roots. . .and the "special meaning" is underscored.

A 2nd Infantry Division Circular, Number 335-7, spells out the ever-present dangers of lightning, that unpredictable phenomenon of the southern weather patterns.

Tips

The circular enumerates safety precautions that will apply to personnel, both in military duties or off-duty pursuits, and spells out tips to use during thunderstorms. These are as follows:

Avoid flat open fields or bare hilltops during a thunderstorm. If unavoidably caught in such a situation, lie flat upon the ground, thus reducing the "target height" and chances of being hit.

Avoid single, isolated trees or poles in large open spaces, or, if in the woods, avoid the highest trees.

Avoid large masses of isolated metal in open fields, such as a mounted gun, field piece, vehicle, wire, etc. (Exception: persons inside closed vehicles with steel tops have usually escaped injury when such vehicles were struck by lightning, due to the shielding effect of the steel body.)

If in a group unavoidably caught in a flat, open space or bare hill top, do not huddle together, but scatter to reduce the attraction of a mass of bodies and reduce the odds of being hurt or killed if a bolt of lightning strikes.

Buildings will afford some protection, particularly if grounded or if outer wall and roof surfaces are wet. Personnel in buildings should avoid standing under high chimneys near outer wall or water pipes, wiring, etc.

Communication systems should be grounded properly and, unless tactical situation prohibits, lead - in wires to switchboards and telephones should be disconnected.

Conversations over telephones should be held to a minimum during severe electrical disturbances.

Personnel in the field should refrain from lying beneath vehicles. Due to the insulating effect of vehicle tires, the bodies of such men become the path of electrical charge from truck to ground.

Positive Action

Other points of the circular reaffirm the positive action utilized in previous lightning tragedies. These consisted of immediate first aid and artificial respiration being applied to all victims of lightning. The circular notes that many victims may be temporarily stunned and paralyzed so that "prompt artificial respiration and treatment for shock may restore their breathing and thus save their lives."

Although lightning can be capricious, the Soldier who knows its general tendencies and the tips of safety contained in the division circular will be prepared for the many thunderstorms that erupt in the Fort Benning area.

1st's Chant Winner Told Tomorrow

By 1st Infantry PIO

The lack of a marching chant for the 1st Infantry has been the cause of many hours of work.

Military units have long employed marching chants which deal with the traditions of the unit to ease the monotony of long marches and for use in Platoon drill. At the present time, the 2nd Battle Group, 1st Infantry, does not have a suitable chant and has established a contest to discover the most suitable marching chant for the unit.

The final selection of the chant will be tomorrow at UTA-1, which is directly across from the new battle group headquarters. Bleachers will be provided for guests and families of the unit's members.

Each company of the battle group will sponsor a chant and a unit drill platoon will perform a series of close order drill movements while marching to the rhythm of its own chant.

The writer, or writers, of the winning chant will be awarded a United States Savings Bond and the sponsoring company will receive a trophy for the day room.

NEW ADJUTANT . . . Captain Grady F. Webster and Sergeant Major James Runyon discuss a matter in Capt. Webster's new office—that of adjutant at the 9th Infantry.

87th's Lt. Perry To Sp'l Forces

By 87th Inf PIO

Lieutenant Louis E. Perry Jr., will soon depart the 87th Infantry to rejoin Special Forces.

Currently assigned to Company E as a platoon leader, Lieutenant Perry will leave for Fort Bragg, N.C., early next month to attend the Psychological Warfare School.

Having been a member of Special Forces from 1957 to 1960, Lieutenant Perry already has the necessary airborne training behind him. From Fort Bragg he will depart for Okinawa to do most of his training in such areas as demolitions, weapons, language, guerrilla tactics, skiing, mountain climbing and advanced first aid.

A resident of Corpus Christi, Texas, his outside interests include judo and skin diving.

Mrs. Patton Instrumental in Library's Beginning

Men of the 2nd Division who like to read good books should appreciate the facilities of Library Two at Sand Hill, for library service was not always available for the men stationed here in bygone days.

A few months before the United States entered World War II, the only library at Sand Hill was located on the second floor of Service Club Two. The first librarian reported for duty March 1, 1941. She had no books to lend nor furniture, but she did have an allotment of $10,000 which had to be obligated by the end of the fiscal year.

SAND HILL LIBARY NOW OFFERS MORE THAN BOOKS
Today's Conveniences, Quiet Setting Not True in Days Gone By

Spent

The $10,000 allotment for the purchase of books was spent, with considerable help from the Columbus Public Library, in the use of "look lists." The books were processed as soon as they arrived from the publishers.

A little later, as the summer heat came on and the cacophony from the merger of the juke box, radio and classical records room below rose to the reading rooms, it became apparent that the location of the library would never be conducive to quiet reading. Something had to be done.

LIBRARIAN
Miss Jo Zinceau

In the early days of the war the 2nd Armored Division was stationed at Sand Hill with Lieutenant General George S. Patton in command. Mrs. Patton, the general's wife, was a frequent visitor at the Service Club and the library. A charming and gracious lady who was the author of several novels, she took an interest in the library and donated copies of her books.

Largely through Mrs. Patton's efforts, a new library building was erected across the street from the Service Club. So, plans were made, necessary arrangements were carried out and the new library started. Before long, it was ready for use.

The move to the new location was begun in August 1942. A detail lugged the thousands of volumes across the road to the new building. By the end of the day, a semblance of order had taken place and the following day the library opened for business.

Peaceful

The pine woods extended up to and around three sides of the building. It was a quiet, peaceful spot until the bulldozers were brought in to make a place for the swimming pool. For a time they were strongly resented as they churned and plowed up the ground and knocked over scores of trees to excavate the area where the new pool is now located.

On November 10, 1956, troops in the Sand Hill area had 13,000 volumes, including fiction, non-fiction and reference material, at their disposal when the new combined library opened at 4th Street and Scott Avenue.

Converted from Service Club Five, this air-conditioned library opened its doors with several firsts in library facilities, namely a special music room and television room. In addition, the library contains a reference room, main reading room, offices, work areas and storage areas. The 2nd Infantry Division Museum is also located in a wing of the building.

Since November 1956, Branch Two has been in its present location, offering pleasant, comfortable rooms with inviting easy chairs; the latest issues of magazines and newspapers; fiction, non - fiction books; a reference collection of books and periodicals; United States Armed Forces Institute books; sterophonic music and non - musical recordings and language records, and television.

In the statistical field, the library has a total of 13,053 clothbound volumes. These volumes are arranged under the Dewey Decimal System with an alphabetical card catalog to assist patrons in locating books. The library subscribes to 65 magazines and five newspapers and puts a musical library of 260 musical and 59 non - musical recordings at its patrons' disposal.

Miss Jo Zinceau serves Branch Two as librarian. She is assisted by Sergeant First Class Thomas A. Hartline and Specialist Four Willie Lewis.

Officer Changes Told at 38th Infantry

By 38th Inf PIO

The 38th Infantry has gained two new officers while three more have received new assignments and departed the battle group.

New communications officer of the 38th is Captain James R. Hoover. He succeeds Capt. Glenn H. Wilson, who has been assigned to the Far East. Lieutenant Rodney A. Pimental, communications officer in Capt. Wilson's absence, will continue as battle group "commo" platoon leader.

Lt. Karl J. Syder is the new reconnaissance platoon leader in Combat Support Company, succeeding Lt. Richard H. Maglin, who has been assigned to the 7th Cavalry.

Also gone from the 38th is Lt. John C. Terebessy, engineer platoon leader and Headquarters Company executive officer, assigned to the 2nd Engineer Battalion.

Capt. Hoover, new "commo" officer, has spent 12 years in the military service, the majority in the Army Reserve and National Guard. He received his commission from Suwanee Military Academy in Tennessee and served two years on active duty with the 3rd Division in Korea in 1953 and 1954.

He served in the Reserve in Kentucky for the last eight years before returning to active duty with the 38th.

The former "commo" officer, Capt. Wilson, is an Officers' Candidate School graduate and received the Army Commendation Medal for his work as tactical officer with an OCS company of the 5th Student Battalion at Fort Benning before coming to the battle group.

Lt. Syder, new "recon" platoon leader, received his commission in 1959 from Norwich University and spent a year in graduate school at the University of Vermont before coming on active duty in March of 1961.

After attending the Armor Officers' Orientation Course at Fort Knox, Kentucky, he joined the 7th Cavalry here as a "recon" platoon leader.

The former platoon leader, Lt. Maglin, is a U. S. Infantry Academy graduate and has attended the Armor Officers' Orientation Course in addition to Airborne and Ranger schools.

Former engineer platoon leader, Lt. Terebessy, entered the Army in November of 1960 after receiving his commission from College of the City of New York. He came to the 38th after attending the Engineer Officer's Orientation Course at Fort Belvoir, Virginia.

Another assignment change in Combat Support Company finds Lt. James F. Fisher, as assault weapons platoon leader, in a position formerly held by Lt. Vincent A. Apruzzese, battle group S-2.

16-Yr. Vet Takes Four At Signal

Master Sergeant John L. Hicks, 122nd Signal Battalion, with 16 years' behind him, re-enlisted for an additional four years in ceremonies held recently by Battalion Commander, Lieutenant Colonel Herbert W. Coburn.

Sergeant Hicks is assigned to Headquarters Company and serves as operations sergeant in the S-2 section of the battalion.

Prior to his reporting into the Battalion in June 1960, Sergeant Hicks was assigned to Post Engineers as section chief of the Roads and Grounds Section. Besides his tour of duty on Main Post, Sergeant Hicks has served with the 16th Constabulary Squadron in Berlin, Germany as a squad leader. During this tour of duty, Sergeant Hicks participated in the "Berlin Airlift." Other assignments include the 502d Engineer Company, Ludwigsburg, Germany, 8th Infantry Division, Fort Carson, Colo., and the 501st Medical Battalion, Camp Breckenridge, Ky.

He is also the recipient of several awards and decorations. Among these are the Purple Heart, Silver Star Medal, Bronze Star Medal, Commendation Ribbon and the Combat Infantryman's Badge.

Sergeant Hicks is married and resides with his wife, Marion, and two children at 118 Brostrom St., Fort Benning.

Air Force Men Guests of 1st During Training

By 1st Infantry PIO

Headquarters Company, 1st Infantry, was host to members of the United States Air Force this week.

With the arrival of the C-124 "Globemaster" four - engine heavy transports at Lawson Army Air Field, the crew members had to be billeted.

Headquarters Company took on the task of providing housing for the 28 personnel.

Under the directions of Lieutenant Stephen H. Schor, company commander, and Master Sergeant John E. Meeker, first sergeant of Headquarters Company, a large platoon bay was prepared. Individual bunks, with desks and dividers, were provided for each crew member. Writing tables and stationery was also provided for the airmen.

A folder, containing PX hours, theater hours, bus schedules and items of interest on Fort Benning, was presented to each member.

The 1st Infantry is training with the "Globemasters" to become proficient in loading, lashing and off-loading the equipment of the battle group.

CIVIL WAR FIRST

The American Civil War was the first war in which railroads were extensively used for the rapid movement of military supplies and of large bodies of troops from one theater of operations to another.

Better to Be Thrown From a Crashing Car?

By David M. Winkler

Driving a car is one among a number of things one does every day that reveals what kind of person he is. A religious leader once said, "Show me yourself behind a steering wheel of an automobile and I'll tell you whether or not you are a Christian." This is one in a series of quizzes designed to test the motorist's general knowledge.

Which is Correct?

1. Contrary to the notion that it may often be preferable to be thrown from a crashing car, statistics indicate that the chance of death is how many times greater if the victim is catapulted out than if he stays aboard?
   a. Two times greater.
   b. Five times greater.
   c. Eight times greater.

   a. 25 feet.
   b. 30 feet.
   c. 38 feet.
   d. 43 feet.
3. In 1895 an act called the "Red Flag" law put a speed limit of four miles-per-hour in open country and two miles-per-hour within city limits on road vehicles in the country of:
   a. England.
   b. United States.
   c. Canada.
   d. France.
4. Motor vehicles operating on post having four or more wheels must be equipped with two headlights, each throwing a beam 200 feet and correctly focused and a red stop light actuated by a foot brake, which may be incorporated as a part of the taillight and visible to the rear for a distance of:
   a. 300 feet.
   b. 350 feet.
   c. 450 feet.
   d. 500 feet.
5. 1,350,000 persons are injured each year in automobile accidents. Of this number, which is increasing every year, what percent were injured as a result of collision with another motor vehicle?
   a. 9 percent.
   b. 15 percent.
   c. 65 percent.
   d. 52 percent.
6. Passing on the right of any vehicle is prohibited except when the vehicle overtaken is:
   a. Making, or is about to make, a left turn.
   b. Moving slower than the normal flow of traffic.
   c. On a road of four lanes or more.
   d. A and C only.

87th Inf. Sgt. Makes Top Ten At NCO Acad.

By 87th Inf PIO

Sergeant Lon W. Skolek, a squad leader with Company D, 1st Battle Group, 87th Infantry was a recent "top ten" graduate at the 3rd U. S. Army Noncommissioned Officer Academy, Fort Jackson, South Carolina.

Upon graduation he was awarded the Third U. S. Army NCO Certificate of Achievement. The citation, in part, read; "Sergeant Skolek's exemplary performance, coupled with a great deal of initiative, resourcefulness, professional knowledge and leadership entitled him to be the recipient of this award."

87th's Thornton Cited for Firing

Sergeant First Class William Thornton of Combat Support Company, 87th Infantry, scored 97 out of a possible 100 points recently to win the division 200 yard offhand (standing unsupported) rifle match at McAndrew Range.

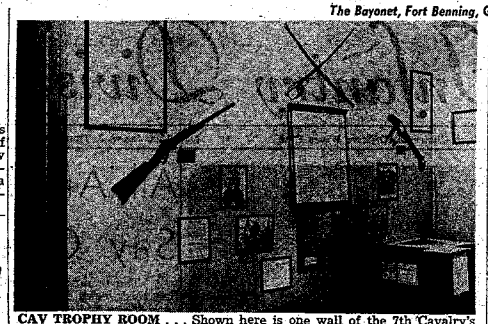
In the "old shooters" march fired by those who have had experience in rifle competition, Sergeant Thornton took second place in the same event with a score of 187 out of 200. His match aggregate score was 475 against a possible 500 points.

Sergeant Thornton served as a member of the post team, at Fort Devon, Mass., in 1960. The team competed in regional matches and climaxed their record with a performance at the All-Army matches at Camp Perry.

Sergeant Thornton won the Commanders Competition Badge at First Army matches in 1961. He is presently assigned as a firing section sergeant in the mortar platoon of Combat Support Company.

Lt. Boyd Leading 1st's Company E

Lieutenant Thomas Boyd has assumed the duties of company commander of the 1st Infantry's Company E. He succeeds Captain Rocco Negris, who has been assigned to the Far East.



Lieutenant Boyd graduated from the United States Military Academy at West Point, New York, in 1959. He has attended the Airborne School and the Ranger School and is a recipient of the Expert Infantryman's Badge.

A native of Washington, Georgia, Lieutenant Boyd served as executive officer of Company E before assuming the new duties.

Lieutenant and Mrs. Boyd reside at 810 Terry Drive, Fort Benning.

27th's Lt. Askew Ends CBR School

Lieutenant Ollie F. Askew, 27th Artillery, recently graduated from the Chemical, Biological, and Radiological Officers Course Number 6 at Fort McClellan, Alabama. This four week intensified training is designed for the company grade officer to familiarize him in the techniques that possibly would be employed in such warfare. Lieutenant Askew has now assumed the duties of the Battalion Chemical, Biological, and Radiological Officer.

NCO With 19 Years Became Expert on Korea

BY 38TH INF PIO

Not only has Master Sergeant Ernest P. Rogers been awarded the Silver Star and the Bronze Star for valor, but he has received an Oak Leaf Cluster for both medals.

Rogers is platoon sergeant of the assault weapons platoon, Combat Support Company, 38th Infantry.

1941 Enlistee

The 19-year veteran enlisted in the Army in 1941 and saw action from D-Day to the end of World War II with the 8th Infantry Division as a platoon sergeant.

He fought on Omaha Beach during the Normandy invasion in France, in the Battle of the Bulge in Belgium and the Rhineland and was awarded the Silver Star and the Bronze Star with Oak Leaf Cluster.

At the conclusion of World War II, Rogers took part in the occupation of Korea. When the fighting began there in 1950, he was active in intelligence work with the 7th Cavalry because of his familiarity with the country.

For his actions while leading a successful night combat intelligence patrol, Rogers was awarded the Oak Leaf Custer to the Silver Star.

Because of recurring difficulties from a wound suffered during World War II, he was evacuated to Japan early in the Korean Conflict and was reassigned to Korea after the fighting ended in 1953.

Rogers was an instructor at the Fort Knox, Kentucky, Non-Commissioned Officers' Academy before joining the newly-designated 38th Infantry in May of 1961. At the time, this unit was the 11th Infantry.

17th Arty Trains In Direct Fire

A live fire exercise climaxed a week of direct fire training for the cannoneers of the 17th Artillery.

Prior to the actual firing the cannoneers were trained in the individual duties, methods of aiming, and how to lead a moving target.

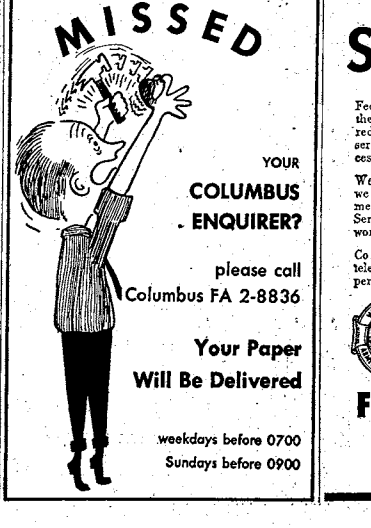
The training, according to Captain Lonnie V. Wharton, assistant S-3 of the battalion, is extremely important since the employment of the howitzer in its direct fire role is the primary anti-tank defense of the firing battery.

Sgt. Cyril Gray 38th Inf. SOM

By 38th Inf PIO

The 38th Infantry's "Soldier-of-the-Month" for March has truly been "Airborne" during most of his eight years in the Army.

Sergeant Cyril M. Gray Jr. entered the Army in 1954 and his first tour of duty was with the 82nd Airborne Division at Fort Bragg, North Carolina.



He next went to the 187th Airborne Regimental Combat Team at Fort Campbell, Kentucky, serving with this unit until April of 1959 when he joined the 1st Ranger Company at Eglin Air Force Base where he operated the reptile farm.

After this assignment and another with the 82nd Infantry in Iceland, he again was back in the Airborne in April of 1960, with the 101st Airborne Division at Fort Campbell.

In June of that year he moved to the 2nd Armored Rifle Battalion at Fort Knox, Kentucky, and in May of 1961 joined the 38th Infantry.

Sgt. Gray is an infantry squad fire leader presently in Combat Support Company and was chosen as "Soldier-of-the-Month" by a battle group board on the basis of knowledge of military subjects and duties, evenness and on appearance and bearing.

He has attended basic Airborne school and Air Transportability and Aerial Delivery Schools at Fort Campbell and wears the Expert Infantryman's Badge.

Lt. Col. and Mrs. J. T. Kolb at Officers' Club

Armor Officers, Ladies Meet At MOOM to Say Farewells

The Officers and ladies of the 69th Armor attended a monthly party Saturday night at the Main Officers' Open Mess and the supper club.

One of the purposes of the party was to bid farewell to several departing Officers. Among those departing are Captain Charles Laakso who has been reassigned to the 2id Infantry Division G-4 Section, Lieutenants Walter Crowley, William Lindahl, William Spilker, John McCrary, and Judson Douglas all of whom are being released from active duty.

Also departing is Lieutenant Charles Young who will soon depart for Fort Rucker, Ala., to attend the fixed wing aviation course.

For The Same Price?

In June, 1956, Mrs. Howard Hohl, wife of the then general manager of Bermuda's Castle Harbour Hotel, scored a hole-in-one on the hotel course's third hole. One year later, to the very day, her husband duplicated his wife's shot with an ace on the same hole.

Easter Season in 87th Hughett Home Reflects

A gay profusion of easter rabbits, fuzzy chickens and miniature daffodils greeted the ladies of the 87th Infantry at their monthly coffee, held at the home of Mrs. Ralph H. Hughett, wife of Colonel Hughett, newly assigned commanding officer of the 87th.

The ladies helped themselves to tea and coffee from a large silver service flanked by varicolored candles in silver candelabra. The centerpiece consisted of two tall black rabbits with an easter basket perched atop their ears, in which were colored easter eggs and miniature daffodils.

Scattered around the festive table were china rabbits of assorted sizes and colors. A living room decorated with bouquets of daffodils and a tree with pink dogwood blossoms carried the spring theme throughout the house.

Mrs. Hughett conducted the business meeting that followed the coffee hour. Various new projects were discussed. One plan introduced, and immediately put into effect, is that of making all wives of departing officers "alumnae members" of the 87th Infantry so as to keep in contact with them. Mrs. Douglas Syverson was made the first alumna member.

Due to the approaching departure of many officers, reassignment of chairmen was in order. The following appointments were made: Mrs. Thomas Glushien, publicity chairman; Mrs. Raymond Rush, reservations chairman; Mrs. George Krajack, hospitality chairman.

Cookbook The Bayonet

A suggestion for a good Lenten main dish is Crabmeat Casserole, submited to the Bayonet Cookbook by Mrs. Eubert W. Linthicum, wife of Master Sergeant Lithicum, 2nd Medical Battalion.

With children Susan, 7 and Steven, 10, the family resides at 117 Brostrom Street.

Mrs. Linthicum is vice president of the Ladies of the Big Indianhead and also takes special interest in bowling and bridge.

CRAMEAT CASSEROLE

one-third cup butter
one-third cup flower
one and one-third cups milk
1 six-and-a-half ounce can crabmeat
2 cups chopped celery
¼ cup chopped almonds
2 hard cooked eggs, sliced
1 cup mixed peppers, chopped
1 pimento, chopped
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup buttered bread crumbs

Melt butter in pan; blend in flour. Add milk and cook and stir until smooth and thickened. Add crabmeat, celery, almonds, eggs, green pepper, pimento and salt. Top with buttered crumbs. Bake at 350 degrees F. about 45 minutes until browned. Makes four servings.

23rd's Distaff Group Meets, Plans Cookbook

The distaff members of the 23rd Infantry held their monthly coffee at the home of Mrs. John W. Swango, wife of Lt. Col. Swango.

All the ladies of Company C acted as co-hostesses. They were: Mrs. Christopher B. Hendricks, Mrs. Michael J. Lally Jr., Mrs. Benjamin F. Hodges Jr., Mrs. Jackie D. Fannon and Mrs. Robert C. Harllee.

Mrs. Louis A. Kunzig Jr., wife of Colonel Kunzig, battle group commander, read letters from the commanding officers' wives of the 1st Battle Group of the 3rd Infantry in Alaska, and the 3rd Battle group, 20rd Infantry (Reserve) in Texas. The group in Alaska sent recipes to help build the file of the proposed 23rd Infantry cookbook. The unit in Texas promised recipes later. The cookbook will be designed and printed by the ladies of the 2nd Battle Group, 23rd Infantry here at Fort Benning. Mrs. Joel W. Breeding has volunteered to do the illustrations.

Softball Begins At Div. Trains

By Trains PIO

An enthusiastic crowd of softball fans Monday night gathered at the athletic field near Division Headquarters to witness the opening session of the Division Trains tourney.

Lieutenant Colonel Frederick V. Harris, Trains commander, was on hand to throw out the game ball starting the 42-game double round-robin tournament. Athletic and recreation officers from all the Trains units were also on hand to see the opener.

Admin Wins

The contest of the evening was between the 2nd Administration Company and the 13th Transportation Battalion. Admin took the tilt 6 to 5.

Pitcher Manuel Zepeda guided the victors as he posted 10 strike-outs, two errors and two walks.

Losing pitcher was Kenneth Webb, who walked eight, tallied four errors and struck out six.

Big stick of Admin was John Nester, who had four hits with three runs batted in, and John Mancuso of the 13th stole the thunder for his team on his long hits of the evening — driving a triple, scoring one and a double, scoring two.

Officials for the evening were Sergeant First Class Robert Kouth and Specialist Four Donald Gagnon of the 702nd Ordnance Battalion.

23rd Drops Kelley Hill 'Marnemen'

By 23rd Infantry PIO

The 23rd Infantry defeated the 38th Infantry in volleyball last week at the Kelley Hill Gymnasium. The "We Servers" took both victories in overtime play.

The first game was a nip and tuck affair with the final score being 14-12 in favor of the 23rd. The 38th rallied in the second match and won it, 15-11.

However, the 23rd bounced back for an 11-8 triumph in the final round.

9th Preparing For Division Bowling Tourney

By J. J. Shields

Preparations are presently underway in the 9th Infantry for the forthcoming battle group company level bowling tournament.

Tentative plans call for the keglers to start rolling next Monday and continue for five days with all companies rolling a three game series each night.

At the end of the tournament, the company with the highest total pin score will be declared the battle group champion. The six highest pinmen in total pin scores will represent the Manchu's in the division bowling tournament.

The 9th is also conducting a volleyball tournament with the winning company representing the battle group in the division tourney.

Tankers Intend to Keep Division Volleyball Crown

By 69th Armor PIO

The 69th Armor Tankers are back in the volleyball business. The division outdoor champions for the last two years are confident of another victory this year. Their confidence is built around a highly talented and well tutored eight-man squad. The line up for the defending division volleyball champs includes:

Master Sergeant Donald R. "Stash" Foster, Platoon Sergeant, 2nd. Platoon, Company D with 15 years of service. Outstanding set man and back court player, he says, "I'll show these young bucks a trick or two."

Private First Class Luis "Too Little to Spike" Sanchez, Security Section, Company D. Participating in volleyball for the second time and returnee from the last outdoor division championship team, the number one set man who says "anything you can hit inside the court I can return with a Spanish accent."

Private First Class James "Recoil" Warren, tank driver, 1st Platoon, Company D. Outstanding spiker, launches the ball like the blast of a 90MM with a recoil to prove it. PFC Warren says "watch my smoke because you'll never see the ball."

Lieutenant Charles "Giraffe" Yongue, 2nd Platoon Leader, Company D. Spike man, six foot-five, says, "I see you now, wait until I jump and let you have it."

Lieutenant Erwin "Ernie" Turner, Commanding Officer, Company D returning from two previous division volleyball championships. Big "T" says "count your men, I can't find anyone to hit with the ball."

Sergeant First Class Alton "Shotgun" Lee, Headquarters Supply, returnee from two previous division championships. The Big Gun for the team, "you have nothing to fear but death and me."

Specialist Five Carrie "Ever-ready" Fleming, Company A, all around player. "It is my desire to permit each opponent to check the flavor of the ball." Two previous division championship teams.

Private Vernon "Tree Trunk" Carter, Company A set man for the big guns. "I'll return any ball that you can put over the net."

Holding true to the characteristics of armor, the Tanker netmen intend to use mobility, firepower and a lot of shock action. If you need more proof, come see the Tankers in action.

87th Infantry's Ronald Guy Is All 'Business' on the Playing Field

By 87th Inf PIO

During the past year, many men within the division who have in some way participated in the sports program remember the 87th Infantry's "iron man", Specialist Four Ronald Guy.

A big, easy-going Soldier, who stands six foot one and weighs in the neighborhood of 215 pounds, Guy is all business on the playing field, regardless of whether he is swinging a bat, throwing a block, battling for a rebound or spiking a volleyball.

"All Around"

Going back a year, about the time when the 87th started putting together its impressive record, Guy's all around play deserves a closer look.

On the softball team, which looms as the next major division tournament, Specialist Guy played catcher and batted fourth in the cleanup position. Outdoor volleyball saw him right up at the net slamming the team into second place. Next he played guard for the championship football team, doing the bulk of the defensive work.

Making the transition from football to basketball is usually thought to be something of a sports oddity, but Guy played in every game as the reserve center. Completing the cycle is the present-day indoor volleyball tournament in which the 87th is captained by Guy.

When Specialist Guy isn't gathering points for the Conquerors, he is usually down at the motor pool working as a track vehicle mechanic. The 24-year-old Soldier is originally from Providence, R. I., but presently lives off post with his wife Louise, his most vehement supporter.

Company E Moves Up In 1st's Bowling League

By 1st Inf PIO

The "Always First" bowling league of the 1st Infantry hit the alleys at Sand Hill Bowling Alley last week and the once-fifth place Company E moved up the ladder to third place.

Combat Support and Headquarters Companies remained in first and second place, respectively. Company E defeated Company A for four games as Company B dropped four games to Company D.

The individual winners of the week were James H. Warner, Company D, who bowled a three-game total of 601, Kless Gyzen, Battle Group Officers, lead the competitors in high single game scratch with 199 and Charles L. Roberts, Combat Support Company, had a high single game with handicap of 216.

Benning Is Runner-Up

Ft McClellan Takes All At 3rd Army Tournament

Fort McClellan captured both the men's and women's division championships in the Third Army Basketball Tournament held here last week.

The men's team gained the first place trophy with an easy win over Benning, 90 to 74.

The final result of the game was evident in the first half, much as 19 points. The half ended with the victors ahead, 47 to 02.

When the buzzer sounded the beginning of the final period, Benning played as if it meant business, cutting the lead to as little as eight points.

Benning couldn't keep it up, however, and the team from the Alabama post, consistently hot during the whole tournament, poured it on winding up with a winning 16-point margin.

High scorer was once again McClellan's Carl A. Short, dropping in 33 points.

Also scoring in the double figures for the winners were Charles Cook III, with 17, and Richard H. McClelland the team's playmaker, with 14.

Earlier in the day the WAC's from McClellan smashed the girls from Fort Gordon, 44 to 20, to another easy game for the victors.

The high scoring of Josephine M. Sobeleski with 20 points, and Marie E. Dertow with 16, was too much for a game Gordon team.

Even though losing, Janice Lee Burnett again proved she was one of the finest players in the tournament, scoring 19 points for the Gordon team.

Both teams went through the double elimination tournament without suffering a defeat, winding up with four straight victories.

Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly, deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, presented trophies and gifts to the winning and runner-up teams.

In addition to the championship team trophies, each individual of the winning teams was presented transistor radios.

In the runner-up bracket, the girls from Gordon received hair dryers and the Benning men were given portable ice chests.

Other teams in the five-day tourney, which were eliminated earlier, included Fort Bragg, Fort Jackson, Fort Rucker, Fort McPherson, Fort Campbell, Fort Stewart, Fort Gordon, and Redstone Arsenal.

Doughboy League Stages Thrilling All Star Game

Faith School was the scene of one of the most exciting Doughboy League games of the season.

The teams, composed of the three players from each team of the two leagues, continued the old rivalry between the Main Post and Custer Terrace.

The game started slowly with Custer Terrace leading in the close of the half by a 14-12 count. Dennis Dodd of Custer Terrace led the scoring in the half with six points, while Donald Palmer, his teamate, followed close behind with four points. Main Post's Thomas O'Donnell also was among the leaders with four points.

The second half opened with much heavier scoring by Main Post. David Reid and Mark Kleber of Main Post scored eight and six points respectively while Custer Terrace managed to slip only one point through the net.

Custer Terrace began to show first half poise by sharping up their defense and working the ball for better shots.

As the game entered the final minutes, Custer Terrace closing in on the Main Post's lead. With one minute left to play, Main Post was fighting to keep a three point lead. A jump shot by Donald Palmer put Custer Terrace within one point of taking the lead. With only 20 seconds left in the game, Custer Terrace's Teddy Belch scored to salvage the 31-30 victory.

Main Post's David Reid took top scoring honors with 11 points while Custer Terrace's Dennis Dodd and Donald Palmer were close behind with 10 points apiece.

The players received certificates from YAC stating their selection to the All-Star team.

Bowling Awards Presented to 1st Brigade Bowlers

The second annual 1st Infantry Brigade Officers Bowling League Awards were made recently at a party in the Lawson Field Officers Club. The Brigadeers of Brigade Headquarters were winners. The Red Legs of the 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, took the runnerup position.

Col. William H. Birdsong, Jr., 1st Infantry Brigade Commander, was special guest and made presentation of the awards of individual and team trophies to the first and second place teams. Maj. James W. Cannon, 10th Artillery Executive Officer, was also a guest.

Other trophy awards made by Col. Birdsong were:

HIGH AVERAGE: Capt. Allen L. Junko, Capt. John Y. Lamp, CWO Ramie J. Lewis.

PEAK TURKEY ACTIVITY NEARS

The opening of the turkey season on the Alabama portion of the reservation last week found hunting activity slow as few toms were gobbling. To date there have been no turkeys reported to the Fish and Game office.

Last spring 19 gobblers were taken on post, the majority reported during the later half of the season. Monday marked the opening of the spring gobbler season in Georgia and most hunters are expecting hunting conditions to be much better than last year if fair weather continues. Veteran hunters report peak turkey activity and best hunting should begin about the first week in April.

HILL'S POND TO BE REBUILT

Hill's pond, located near the intersection of Steam Mill and Massey Roads will be rehuilt and stocked this year. This 3 acre pond has been closed for over a year due to a break in the dam. It is reported that the pond will he cleaned, banks deepened and the dam repaired early this spring.

After the pond is filled, fishery biologists will be consulted to determine suitable species of fish for stocking.

Since Hill's pond has a small watershed or low run-off, it is very likely the pond will he fertilized which not only helps control aquatic weeds

AVERRT'S POND WORK UNDERWAY

Renovation of Averetts pond is currently underway. Engineers have begun draining the pond so the undermined portion of the dam can be repaired. Early in the spring the dam developed a severe leak and water level dropped over ten feet.

Spring rains have temporarily refilled the pond but the dam continues to leak. The situation is being remedied by replacing the damaged overflow pipe. After completion of the repair work the pond will be refilled and studies made to determine type of restocking program most suitable.

MORE BASS FROM HARP'S POND

The catch of the week was made by Capt. Henry E. West, Detachment 2, 2nd Student Battalion, who landed two trophy bass at Harps pond last Saturday. The bigger bass weighed in at 7 pounds 9 ounces while the other tipped the scales at 6 pounds 5 ounces. Both bass were taken on large shiners and reportedly gave quite a tussle for even West's fishing partner, Capt. Frank E. Yon, Detachment 2, 2nd Student Battalion, was kept busy handling the boat, anchors, and net.

Quote Of The Week

When the immortal Babe Ruth was swatting the apple for the Yankees, he once bet a teammate that he would get a hit every time he went to bat during the game. After getting four straight hits, Ruth stepped up to the plate for his fifth appearance and after belting one over the wall, he turned around and yelled, "I told you so", then proceeded to trot around the bases.

Benning Bowling Tourney Slated At Post Alleys

A roll-off will be conducted at the Main Post Bowling Alley, from 12 noon to 5 p.m. April 2-7. A six-man team and a four-woman team will be selected from this tournament to represent Fort Benning in the Third Army bowling tournament to be held at Fort Rucker, April 22-26. All participants must be present at the Main Post Bowling Alley at 9 a.m. April 2 for a scratch meeting.

April Visit Is Scheduled By AMF Pro Bowlers

The Main Post Bowling Alley will be the scene of a two day demonstration in the art of bowling April 11-12. Sponsored by the American Machine and Foundry (AMF) Pinspotters Inc., the course will include instructions and demonstrations geared for the development of better bowling in the beginning phases.

The professional bowlers on hand to give instruction will be Joe Brown and Jan McNeill. Both bowlers are noted as outstanding performers in professional circles.

Joe Brown is currently maintaining a 205 league average that he has held for the last five years.

Jan McNeill latest claim is having been chosen to the Dallas All-Star Team in 1960. Jan is known for her strong team play by maintaining a 180 average in three leagues, including the Dallas Traveling League.

Golf Tournament At Country Club

A 36-hole open golf tournament will be conducted March 31-April 1 at the Fort Benning Country Club. Purpose of the tournament is to select a team to represent The Post in the 4th Annual Tri-State Invitational Golf Tournament to be conducted at Parris Island on April 18, 19, and 20.

Army-Air Force Dual Seen At Inter-Service Matches

TAMPA, Fla. — If the results of the Mid-Winter Pistol championships, which ended here recently, are any indication the Inter-Service Pistol Championships next week at Lackland Air Force Base, Tex. loom as a battle between the Army and the Air Force.

In four team events at the Mid-Winter the two services split evenly. The Army captured the .45 caliber event and the Hard Ball Match after the junior service had wrapped up the .22 caliber and Center Fire matches.

Sfc William Blankenship, current national pistol champion assigned to the Army Marksmanship Training Unit, came from behind to win his third straight individual Mid Winter title. He fired a three-gun aggregate of 2643 to outdistance his nearest rival, William Mellon, USAF, who had 2635.

Third place went to John Lingle, Third Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit, who also won the .45 caliber aggregate with 876x900. The Center Fire and combined .22 caliber-Center Fire crowns went to Blankenship who had scores of 882 and 1769 respectively.

Sp4 William Armstrong, Fourth Army AMU, completed the Army domination of the individual aggregates by taking the .22 caliber with 887. He won the award by having 43 shots within the x-ring, a smaller circle within the bullseye used to break ties. Blankenship had the same point total but only 40 within the tie-breaking circle.

There were 510 entries in the individual matches.

All of the team matches were close with a pair of them being decided by as little as one point or x-ring shots.

There were 78 entries in the three regular matches.

USAF, led by Capt. Thomas D. Smith, who earlier in the month won the Dixie championship at Jacksonville, took the .22 caliber match with 1169 — four points higher than second place Army Gray.

They kept the pressure on the Army by eking out a one-point victory in the Center Fire with 1156 points to Army Red team's 1155.

But Army Blue, paced by Blankenship, grabbed the .45 caliber match with 1156, a five-point margin over runner-up Army Red quartet.

The Hard Ball match was a tight one with 66 four-man crews entered. Both Army Blue and Fourth Army Caissons posted aggregate scores of 1142x1200. But the local soldiers had 39 in the x-ring and Fourth Army had only 37.

Firing members of the winning Army .45 caliber team were Blankenship, Sgt. Fred Thomson, MSgt George Snavely and Sfc Sam Hunter.

Snavely and Hunter were also on the winning Hard Ball squad. Firing with them were Sfc Arthur Ogden and Capt. Clyde Metts.

With Captain Smith on the USAF team were Capt. Franklin Green, Bill Mellon and E. L. Teague.

The Inter-Service Championships are slated to be fired Monday through Friday.

COLOR VISION

Severe color blindness is no longer a bar to peacetime military duty, under relaxation of Army Regulation 40-501, rejecting persons unable to distinguish bright red from bright green. Severely color blind service personnel will be assigned only to military occupational specialties not requiring acute color vision, such as clerk typist, teletype operator or medical record clerk. About one per cent of the men tested for military duty reveal severe color blindness.

Special Cancer Program Will Be Conducted Here

An intensive program of cancer education is under way at the post.

Special emphasis on the disease is part of a nation-wide observance of 1962 as "Cancer Progress Year," sponsored by the board of directors of the American Cancer Society.

Civilian employees on the post have received literature on the early detection and cure of cancer.

For both civilian and military personnel, a two-week series of programs on cancer will be presented at Theater 1.

On April 2 and 5 from 1 to 5 p.m., the programs will include films and will be open to women only. Doctors from Martin Army Hospital will answer questions.

The second week in April, the programs will be open to both men and women. The schedule will be announced later.

Civilian personnel will be permitted to see the films with no charge to annual leave.

During 1962, the American Cancer Society and the National Cancer Institute will report to the public on where science stands in cancer research.

Cancer Progress Year also will be devoted to improved care of cancer patients, they added.

The first nation-wide cancer education program was launched 25 years ago by the American Cancer Society.

An intensified effort will be made to persuade the public to act for its own protection against cancer by recognizing warning symptoms and getting medical attention in time, officials said.

AR Match Record Shattered

A two-man automatic rifle team from the 1st Brigade, 29th Infantry shattered a record Tuesday while sweeping all four scheduled matches in the first day of The 1962 Infantry Center Rifle and Pistol championship matches.

Sp4 Robert L. Extine and Pfc Edwin J. Lemerich worked together to take the first three automatic rifle matches. The men teamed to fire 596 out of possible 600 points at 500 yards to win the first match; 593 out of possible 600 at 400 yards to win the second match and 558 out of 600 possible at 300 yards to sweep the third match.

The fourth match, an aggregate of the three previous scores, saw Extine and Lemerich winning with a 1587 out of a possible 1800 points, bettering the old record 60 points.

Second place in the aggregate was taken by the 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, with a score of 1422 out of 1800. The 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, captured third place with a score of 1335 out of 1800 possible.

Extine and Lemerich will represent the 29th Infantry in the Third Army Competition scheduled to begin here April 10.

The matches opened Monday when 300 rifle and pistol marksmen and their guests attended formal ceremonies. Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly, deputy commanding general of TIC, delivered the opening address.

"The biggest dividend which the Army marksmanship program pays is the constant advancement of shooting skills at unit levels," Gen. Kelly said.

He added that the knowledge gained by competitors at all levels of competition, from company to the Inter-service International-type matches now held annually, assists materially in program advancement.

"The Army should be best in the field of marksmanship and we want to be best," he said, "so that the confidence of America in its Army can be maintained."

Best wishes for good shooting by The Infantry Center's major command teams were offered by Gen. Kelly, who then accepted the invitation of Lt. Col. Burton C. Boatright of Barstow, Calif., match director, to fire the traditional "first shot" of the annual competition.

Assisted by Sfc Golden R. Smith of Richwood, W. Va., Gen. Kelly took position on the International Rapid Fire Pistol Range and proceeded to deliver five shots on the targets of what is considered the world's most difficult pistol competition course.

All five shots were fired in some eight seconds and landed in the "kill-zone" of each of the silhouette targets.

According to Col. Boatright the matches will include competition with the automatic rifle, the service rifle, the service rifle and the .22 caliber pistol over the four-day session.

The Civilians You Work With

PATRICIA E. GINEX, supervisor of Efficiency Reports Section, Officers' Records, began her work here shortly after her husband, 1st Lt. Thomas D. Ginex, was transfered to the 2nd Infantry Division.

Previously with the Army Chemical Center at Edgewood, Md., Mrs. Ginex has been working in her present job for slightly more than two years.

In her work, Mrs. Ginex initiates and processes efficiency reports for all officers on post except those in the 2nd Division. The reports are then forwarded to Department of the Army.

Originally from Tampa, Fla., the couple now lives in Columbus.

CAROL ALLEN, a recent addition to the post's Civil Service employee roles, works as clerk stenographer in Supply Control and Storage.

She has held this position since October, 1961. Her work includes typing and shorthand.

Miss Allen began her civil service career in July, 1961, with a position in the administrative office of the Ordnance Section.

A native of Columbus, Miss Allen was graduated from Jordan Vocational High School. She is a member of the Columbus Business and Professional Women's Club.

Airborne Sons Following Example Set By Fathers

Second generation paratroopers are becoming commonplace at the Airborne-Air Mobility Department as The Infantry School continues to turn out combat ready parachutists in increasing numbers.

Among the 402 graduates of the recent class were the sons of three former combat paratroopers of World War II, one of whom is still in the Army.

Pvt. Larry H. Buffaloboy, a Sioux Indian, son of SSgt Thebert Buffaloboy, who served with the 82nd Airborne Division in World War II in Europe and in Korea, was one of the graduates.

The elder Buffaloboy retired from the service in 1956.

Pvt. Paul L. Sawyer, Jr., son of MSgt Paul Sawyer, formerly of the 82nd Division, also received his silver badge and certificate of graduation.

Another paratrooper who is modeling his career after his father's is Pvt. Robert E. Arcenaux, Jr., a member of the graduating class.

He is the son of MSgt Arcenaux of the 101st Airborne Division which distinguished itself in Normandy and in Bastogne in World War II. Now retired from the service, the father lives in Beaumont.

Pvt. Arcenaux will be assigned to Fort Bragg.

Honor graduate of the group was Pvt. Paul R. Bilodeau, 82nd Company, 4th Battalion, Student Brigade.

The graduating class included 391 Army enlisted men and six officers, two Air Force officers, one Marine Corps officer and one enlisted man, and a second lieutenant from Nationalist China. All received silver badges and certificates.

RONALD ZINN

Ronald Zinn, a West Point cadet, broke the American indoor record for the one-mile walk in the Garden with a time of 6.12.2. The old standard, set by Henry Laskau 12 years ago, was 6.19.2.

Key Protestant Church Figure Visiting on Post

Rev. Dr. Robert Plumb of New York City, executive secretary of the Armed Forces Division, National Council of Protestant Episcopal Churches, U. S. A., visits the post today.

He is accompanied by Mrs. Plumb. Dr. Plumb has been invited to attend an Infantry Officer Candidate School graduation at 11 a.m. at The Infantryman Statue.

During the afternoon, Dr. Plumb will visit St. Michael's Episcopal Mission and then will tour the post.

There will be a dinner in honor of Dr. and Mrs. Plumb at 6:30 p.m. at The Supper Club. Attending will be members of the Vestry of St. Michael's and their wives.

At 8 p.m. there will be a reception at St. Michael's Lounge in honor of the visitors. Members of the congregation and their friends are invited.

Gun Club Sponsors Matches

The regular monthly pistol tournament sponsored by the Rifle and Pistol Club of Fort Benning will be held on April 7 and 8.

All competitors must be individual members of the National Rifle Association, a citizen of the U. S. and 16 years of age or older, according to Thomas Kirkman, executive officer of the match.

Individual and Team Matches fired will be with .22 Caliber, Center Fire, and .45 Caliber pistols. There will also be an Individual Aggregate match. All team events will be fired over the 30 shot National Match Course.

Teams will consist of four firing members, representing a club affiliated with the NRA, a law enforcement agency, regular service unit or a Reserve Unit.

University's Dean's List Includes Four From Post

Three officers and one enlisted man of the post have completed one course each with the grade of "A," for excellent academic work, at the Columbus Center of the University of Georgia's 1962 winter quarter.

The dean's list included Major Raymond L. Major, Headquarters Company, 1st Infantry Brigade; Capt. Robert E. Pavey, operations officer of the Airborne-Air Mobility Department, The Infantry School; 1st Lt. William J. Trunkes and Sp4 Larry Beckwith of the 2nd Medical Battalion, 2nd Infantry Division.

Fort Benning personnel who completed two courses with a "B plus" average which put them in the upper five per cent of their classes included Lt. Col. Lester E. Barlow and Lt. Col. John F. Mulhern, both of the Defense Committee, Command and Staff Department, The Infantry School, and Lt. Col. John W. McClain, commander of the 5th Battalion, Student Brigade.

Major John J. Tominac, Army Infantry Board; Capt. Alvin Ornstein, Instructor Training Section, The Infantry School; 1st Lt. Art Work by Two Saves $25,000 Yearly

By Sfc Bismarck Stith

Sp5 Henry "Hank" Williams, Company B, 1st Battalion, Infantry Center Troop Command, with over 19 years of services, plays an important role in the post Special Services sports and entertainment programs with his technical skill in designing, silk screen work, show card, poster and sign painting.

Williams has 24 years experience in the art field. He started studies in art at Summer High School at St. Louis, Mo., and continued at Lincoln University, Jefferson City, under guidance and instruction of Raymond Parks, known the world over as one of the top ten designers and artists.

After entering the services he kept busy in his art career and the latest advancements in art. While on a tour of duty in Yokohama, Japan, he attended Yomite Art Institute for a year and a half.

He reported to Fort Benning in January, 1955, and was assigned duty with the Special Services Art and Sign Shop. Since, Williams has trained five sign painters and art assistants with four taking advantage of his training and going into the art field in civilian life.

Pfc Peter Barbieri, also of Company B, William's assistant for the past three years, has recently been released from active duty. He will attend Boston School of Art for the next two years.

His last outstanding job here was the publicity on signs and poster on the 1962 'deer Party held in February at the Main Officers Open Mess. Williams and Barbieri painted over 250 signs for this affair.

Williams said that since he has been assigned to Special Services he and his assistants have put out over one and a half million signs and posters for sports activities, service clubs, theaters, clubs, recreation areas and other activities pertaining to Special Services facilities, which have saved the government over $25,000 each year over commercial costs for art work.

NCO REVIEW . . . SMaj Frank Plass (L), commander of troops during the Infantry Center Troop Command NCO Review last Saturday, troops the line with Col. John Lattin (C), CTC commander, and Lt. Col. Glen A. Soderstrom, reviewing officer. The review was held at Stilwell Field.

RECEIVING AWARDS . . . from the Muscogee-Chattahoochee Chapter of the 1962 March of Dimes recently were these members of The Infantry Center Special Services Section. Pictured (L to R) are Glenda G. James, Service Club 1; Beryl Torgenson, program director; 1st Lt. Alvin S. Aucoin, athletic officer; MSgt William K. Edens, athletic NCO and James R. Haymond, Sr., manager of Fort Benning's Bowling Center. The group received Certificates of Appreciation for volunteer service during the March of Dimes Drive.

FIRST PRIZE WINNER . . . This display of ceramics made by Mrs. Juanita White took first prize in the Fort Benning Trailer Court Ceramics Show held recently at the court. Second place honors went to Mrs. Hilga Leonard while Mrs. Janice Marrison placed third. Honorable mention was given displays of Mrs. Nona Fischer, Mrs. Martha Russell and Mrs. Edith Casgrove. Refreshments were served at the show which was sponsored by the Trailer Court Council. Some 25 entries were among those judged.

In World War II

Seabees, 20 Years Old, Did 'Impossible' Jobs

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—The Japanese major had been captured on the shattered island of Iwo after hiding in a cave for weeks. Emerging, blinking in the sunlight, he looked across the scene of some of the most savage fighting of the Pacific War.

"Impossible," he said.

The Navy's CBs—short for construction battalions — are 20 years old this month. In that time they have received hundreds of tributes to their skill and toughness, but they especially prize the remark of the Japanese prisoner. He couldn't believe his eyes, seeing the job they had done in rebuilding the smashed-up island.

Seabee exploits in operating a bulldozer with one hand and a rifle with the other are legendary, as is their record of surmounting adverse conditions of climate and terrain to get the job done.

They built a 3,500-foot airstrip on one densely jungled island in less than 13 days—and apologized for not being quicker about it. They had been hampered by 16 inches of rain.

It took them all of 17 days to construct a camp for 6,000 men, complete with housing units, mess halls, roads and utilities. In nine months on Tinian they laid six million square yards of asphalt, enough to pave a road from Milwaukee to Chicago and back again. In that same period they moved 12 million cubic yards of coral, enough for three Hoover Dams.

Today these "Can Do" huskies are still operating from the Pacific to the frozen Antarctic. Building missile tracking stations on the islands of WWII memory is an important job, and in addition Seabee units are erecting housing units in half a dozen areas that include Okinawa, Guam, Puerto Rico, Greenland and Africa.

LAAC Crew Evacuates A Post Soldier

An emergency medical evacuation by air from Lawson Army Airfield to Atlanta Municipal Airport was recently performed under night instrument conditions by the crew of an AC-1 Caribou from the 1st Aviation Company.

Capt. Wayne E. Coulter, Capt. Paul M. McHenry and Sp5 Henry W. King were the flight crew of the Caribou that carried Cpl. Cleveland Smith, who had been injured in an artillery accident on post, to specialized medical aid in Atlanta.

The crew was notified of the flight after duty hours and within 75 minutes the Caribou was airborne for the 35 minute flight through rain showers to Atlanta.

The Caribou, the Army's newest and largest STOL (Short Take-Off and Landing) transport, is particularly suited for this type of mission. When fully equipped for mass medical evacuations, the versatile Caribou can accomodate 14 litter patients plus 12 seats for walking-wounded patients or medical attendants.

For Girl Scouts

B. Ed Johnson Leads $150,000 Campaign

B. Ed Johnson has been appointed general chairman of the $150,000 Camp Development Campaign for Concharty Council of Girl Scouts, it was announced recently by Mrs. Charles Skipworth, council president.

The campaign will be conducted during the next two months by volunteers soliciting the participation of businesses and individuals of Columbus and vicinity. Clearance for the campaign has been granted by the board of United Givers.

"With Mr. Johnson as our chairman, we are fortunate to have a man who has demonstrated his dedication to the better interests of our community and who will devote the time and energy necessary to bring our campaign to a successful conclusion," Mrs. Skipworth said.

Funds raised in the campaign will be used for buildings, tent floors and general development on the permanent camp sites owned by the Girl Scouts.

"I am happy to accept the appointment to this important job," said Johnson, "because I believe that everyone interested in the future of our community and our youth will support this campaign."

A campaign headquarters has been established at 3-13th Street in downtown Columbus.

Powerful 'Laser' Light Discovered

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — A beam of light so powerful it will widen only two feet in a mile and with a peak power of three million watts has been developed by Army scientists at Fort Monmouth, N. J.

By way of explanation, the Army points out that ordinary light or radar with the best possible focusing will disperse at least 100 yards in a mile.

The newly developed powerful beam of light has only the width of a pencil and holds "tremendous potential" in the fields of communications, range finding, space vehicle guidance and special purpose illumination.

It is called LASER, or Light Amplification by Stimulated Emmission of Radiation.

Although the LASER is not new in itself, this new 3-mega-watt development is said to be 300 times as powerful as others in general laboratory use.

Light from ordinary sources, such as the sun or an incandescent bulb, is "incoherent," with its light waves radiating in an unpredictable pattern.

LASER light is "coherent" and ordered, with one precise wavelength and one ultra-pure color.

The Army said the secret of the buildup of tremendous power is that a rotating mirrow limits the pulse peak power to less than one-millionth of a second.

Accidental Poisoning Affects 37

Last month there were 37 cases of accidental poisoning at this post alone.

Nine of these had to be admitted to Martin Army Hospital, and the other 28 were treated and released.

"Parents are cautioned to keep medicines and poisonous substances behind lock and key," said Capt Leonard F. Greenberg, chief of the post surgeon's Preventive Medicine Division.

Despite repeated public appeals to clearly mark dangerous household compounds and keep all dangerous substances out of the reach of children, these poisonings continue, officials say.

A breakdown of last month's cases shows 13 resulting from cleaning products, 12 due to overdose of aspirin, 10 attributed to other medicinal items and two caused by insect and rodent poison.

"We should all keep this danger in mind constantly," said Norman Evans, post safety director, who added that the responsibility does not end with Those who have children. Couples who may be visited by children must recognize the possibility of accidents also, he said.

Safety oficials warn that dangerous items not properly marked are responsible for poisoning among adults as well as children.

Eskimo Students In OCS Class

Three eskimos from a National Guard Scout Battalion of the Alaskan Command are presently attending Officer Candidate School, 51st Company, 5th Battalion, The Student Brigade.

The three natives of Alaska are members of the 1st Scout Battalion, 297th Infantry, Alaskan National Guard. When asked their reason for attending Officer Candidate School, Oscar Murry of Elim, Alaska, said, "There is a definite shortage of well trained junior officers in my National Guard component."

Eugene Monroe of Noatak, and Othaniel Ocmituck of Point Hope, both agreed that in addition to fulfilling the officer shortage of their unit, they could improve themselves by attending Officer Candidate School.

SUGAR SWEET

Diamonds may be a girl's best friend, but someone forgot to tell a 12-year-old gelding. The horse reached for some sugar offered by a 21-year-old New York dancer and bit a $400 pearl and diamond pin from her dress and swallowed it.

Profile of a Man Doing a Man's Job

Twenty-six-year-old Sgt. Bertram A. Gordy closed his sales office last October and returned to the Army with other members of his reserve unit.

After processing, he and six other enlisted men became known as the 891st Medical Detachment of the 428th Medical Battalion. Although his Army training, like that of the others in the unit, included medical technician training at Fort Sam Houston, Sgt. Gordy had never served in a field dispensary unit.

Starting from scratch, he requisitioned and processed equipment necessary and in the recent Army Training Test the unit's overall numerical score totaled a near "superior" grade. Two phases of their testing were considered "outstanding performances."

The unit cares for the health records of nearly 6,000 men each month, including members of the 28th Infantry, 10th Artillery Battalion, The School Brigade and The Infantry Board.

In addition to performing minor surgery, giving immunizations and supervising heat therapy, Sgt. Gordy also supervises the filling of close to 2,000 prescriptions each month.

Sgt. Gordy is a graduate of Auburn University and was employed by the Atlanta Division of Phillips Petroleum Company as City Sales and Company Representative prior to his recall to the military.

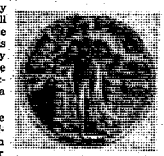
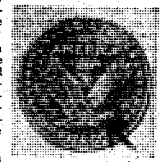
'Type' Collecting Is Popular Among Coin Enthusiasts

Type collecting is the most popular collecting area today and a fine way to build a handsome display of our nations' coinage.

With the prices of so many coins going out of reach of all but the wealthy many people turn to type collecting. This is the collecting of one of every type of coin the U. S. made so that no matter what collection you may see you have a like coin.



In a type collection there are two areas, general and specific. A general type collection covers a coin of each major variety such as one liberty standing quarter with no regard for differences within the set.



The specific type set is much more extensive requiring one of every variety so you would have two liberty standing quarters, type 1 and type 2. Naturally the specific type collection is not only much more extensive but also much more expensive.

In either case this collection must be all in the same condition, preferably uncirculated. But on this point everyone knows his own pocket book. But do collect the best you can afford.

In every set there are the expensive and the non expensive coins. The type collector will generally seek out the less expensive and in this manner build at a reasonable cost.

After collecting all the types that your dealer can supply you with it is necessary to expand your searching areas. Your dealer can give you current auction information and the numerous coin newspapers and magazines can aid in your search.

CLT Show Features Benningite

"Goldilocks," Columbus Little Theater's coming production, will feature Mrs. Barbara Downes, wife of 1st Lt. Michael Downes, in the role of "Maggie."

The Jean and Walter Kerr musical is a spoof on the early days of filmdom. Music is by Leroy Anderson with lyrics by Joan Ford and the Kerrs. The show will run at Wynnton Auditorium April 4, 5, and 6.

Mrs. Downes will be making her first appearance with the local theater group. She has studied at Peabody Conservatory and the University of Georgia and has been featured in numerous college and little theater productions.

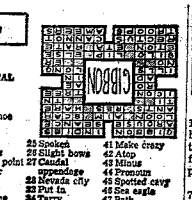
Lt. Downes, legal officer, Infantry Center Troop Command, acts as stage manager for the production.

Tickets will be on sale at the box office as well as Humes Music Store, Baker Music Shop and booths set up at Cross Country Shopping Center, Traffic Circle Center and 12th and Broadway.

Curtain time will be 8:30 p.m.

BETTER DEAD?

A Pittsburgh woman ran up to a congressman who had just given a speech and said, "Why, congressman, your speech was superfluous; just superfluous."



"Why, thank you," he replied, "I'm thinking of having it published posthumously."

"Oh, wonderful," she said, "the sooner the better."

Masquers- -Unmasked

By Mrs. Phyllis Tritsch

Visualize, if you will, a play with competant actors performing an excellent script, but without benefit of lights, scenery, suitable costumes, stage props or any of the other effects so necessary to create credability. If you can picture this, then you know the importance of the man we call the "Technical Director".

This is the man whose behind-the-scenes genius translates ideas to reality. This is the man who knows how to create sunlight or darkness, a somber mood or a gay one. This is the man who gives substance to a play. At The Masquers we call him John Olbrys, and bless the day he wandered into the group!

A little more than a year ago, Spd John Olbrys, an operations specialist in the 1st Infantry Brigade, joined The Masquers in the hopes of acting. John has been bitten by the acting bug back at Ambridge High School near Pittsburgh.

His not inconsiderable talent as an actor was seen in his portrayal of the younger son in last year's production of "Dear Charles," and later in his hilarious performance of the stuffy lawyer in "The Girls in 509".

Soon John discovered The Masquers often desperate need for good technical men. His curiosity was aroused, and in his usual thorough manner, he began to read everything available on lighting, set building, and all the other technical aspects of theater.

From this casual interest, he became one of the finest technical men The Masquers has ever had!

Not long ago the Columbus Little Theater "borrowed" John to do the difficult lighting for their production of "Glass Menagerie," and a masterful job he did! But primarily, John's heart is with The Masquers. Who can forget John's magnificient lights and sets created for "Tea and Sympathy"?

John will be separated from the service in May, to return to civilian life, and his job with an air line. He will be sorely missed! But as his last effort for The Masquers, he has donned two hats. He is both producing the current production, "An Evening Off Broadway", and acting in a most difficult role in the second of the two plays, Ionesco's "The Bald Soprano".

"An Evening Off Broadway" will be seen at The Masquers Playhouse, Building 2519, on April 14, 20, and 21. Don't miss it!

BOOKS in REVIEW

I WANT TO QUIT WINNERS by Harold S. Smith, Sr., (Prentice, 1961)

One of the most credible true stories ever written. . .a tale about a man who parlayed a penny-ante bingo parlor into the world's largest gambling casino. . .a man who is target for fights, lawsuits, con games and conniving females. . . whose life is a high-tension wire of thrills, treats, and turning of fortunes. "It is more than an autobiography, it is an amazing account of a gigantic business, a fabulous operation in hard cash and human emotions".

A MAN IN A MIRROR by Richard Llewellyn. (Doubleday 1961)

This is a novel of Africa today, and of the dilemma of her young people raised partly in the primitive tribal ways, partly in European-operated schools, in adapting themselves to twentieth-century living while remaining true to their heritage.

Ranger Class Honor Graduates Are Lt. Jolley and Sgt. Romero

Second Lt. Bobby L. Jolley and Sgt. Allen M. Romero have been named honor graduates among officers and enlisted students of the Ranger Department's sixth training class in fiscal year 1962.

Jolley and Romero were among the 78 graduates, most of whom were second lieutenants, who completed the grueling eight-week course conducted at Benning, Dahlonega, and the Florida Ranger Camp near the Okefenokee Swamp.

The 25-year old Army career-bound Lt. Joley has an outstanding military background. A graduate of Carlsbad (N. M.) High School, he entered the Army in August, 1956, at Fort Chaffee, Ark.

After serving with the 82nd and 101st Airborne Divisions as a paratrooper, he was assigned to the 7th Infantry Division in Korea in July, 1960. For having the best rifle squad in the division, Jolley, then a squad leader, was awarded the Army Commendation Medal.

At Officer Candidate School here last December, he was named a distinguished graduate for being third among the top ten students who completed the course. His next assignment will be with the Army Training Center at Fort Ord, Calif.

The 20-year old Sgt. Romero, who was promoted to his present grade when he was named honor graduate, entered the Army in July, 1960. At the graduation ceremony he was given a letter signed by Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School. The letter said: "From January 18 to March 22 you distinguished yourself in competiton with you classmates.

"During the training you demonstrated leadership of the highest order. The training was realistic, rough and to a degree hazardous, with a minimum of academic and weapons instruction.'

"Your outstanding performance indicates you applied sound command and leadership principles and tactical knowledge in resolving the many problems you encountered."

In addition to being named honor graduate, Romero was given a year's subscription to the Infantry Magazine.

HONOR GRADUATE . . . 2nd Lt. Michael A. Boyd (R) graduated from the Infantry Officer Orientation Course recently with an overall average of 94.4 per cent. Col. Ralmond B. Marlin, director of The Infantry School's Weapons Department and guest speaker, presents Lt. Boyd with his certificate. The lieutenant was a member of Class 10.

OCS Class Makes High Test Score

Officer Candidates of 50th Company, 5th Battalion, The Student Brigade, demonstrated a high degree of physical fitness recently by obtaining a company average of 406 points in the Physical Combat Proficiency Test administered by The Infantry School's Ranger Department.

Fiftieth Company's average, a full 106 points above the Ranger Department's standard of 300 points, indicates the type of physical conditioning a future officer of the Army must undergo before he is commissioned a second lieutenant.

Col. Daems Assigned To Missile Job

Lt. Col. Leonard R. Daems, a member of the Infantry Board, has been assigned to a missile project office in the Army Ordnance Missile Command at Redstone Arsenal.

Col. Daems will join four other officers representing the Army Artillery Board and the Air Defense Board in coordinating developer - user activities on more than eight Army missile systems.

The five officers will furnish current user guidance on testing, maintenance, operating procedures and training as related to the missile systems of their assignments.

The Continental Army Command project officers will bring a closer working agreement between the user and technicians to insure that missile systems can be handled and fired by soldiers in the field, according to officials.

The CONARC liaison office, which previously coordinated user interest in all missile systems under the management of the Army Ordnance Missile Command, will continue liaison for the remaining active systems.

Capt. Percival Assumes Command Of Artillery Unit

Capt. Jack H. Percival has assumed command of Battery B, 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery. He has succeeded Capt. William P. McGrath, who is now assigned to the battalion S-3 Section. Capt. Percival was formerly the battalion motor officer.

New motor officer of the 10th Artillery is Capt. Benjamin C. Wilson, recently assigned here from Fort Stewart. . .

Local Aviation Association Group Hears Talk by Col. Schulz of DA

Army aviation today is in a state of flux, the deputy director of Army aviation, Washington, told a dinner meeting of the post Chapter of the Army Aviation Association this month.

Col. Robert H. Schulz told his audience of the inventory of aircraft presently on hand, what craft the Army feels is tactics and training of personnel.

Using slides and movies, the colonel spoke in detail on the numbers of the various types of aircraft in operation today and what changes are needed to effectively carry out the mission of Army aviation.

He mentioned a tactical course that involved low level flying which obscured observation but took advantage of concealment, making damage from ground fire less likely.

Commenting on the role of Army aviation, he said, "We can 'blame' the artillery in part for our position today. Although there was a period when aircraft was not utilized to the greatest extent possible, the past two to three years has seen a renewal of emphasis by the artillery branch for more use of Army aircraft for observation."

"In addition, helicopters can be armed with machine guns and rocket launchers to give added fire support to front line troops," he asserted.

In stressing the aviation concept, he explained the establishment of a separate aviation branch equal to the Infantry and artillery would solve many problems, but that on the other hand it would create others.

He said, "The mission of Army aviation is to support commanders on the ground. If the job has to be done, then do it. Don't worry about whether your particular training has stressed the need of the moment."

Emphasizing the need for ground duty for aviators on flight status said, "When you get away from ground duty, you lose sight of the support mission."

As to aircraft, he called for an increase in number, simplification of maintenance, greater mobility and adaptation to division level support.

Citing some advances in this direction, he said, "Right now 75 per cent of Army aviation is assigned to division level and below. All craft will burn jet fuel and two out of three will have the same motor."

"Aviation thinking must change and keep up to date," Col. Schulz added.

He said the Army must consider "not the cost of aircraft, personnel training and maintenance separately, but the cost of the system."

He also pointed out that Army aviation is updating its design to include twin engine replacements for all aircraft as well as a lift, range and speed increase for the Caribou.

In the utility craft he urged an increase in lift potential employing a "hot" cycle engine.

Col. Shculz advocated that: "Personnel increases should be urged by commanders in the field and recruited by them.

"Funds should be expended in terms of a total program, not piecemeal.

"Adaptation to the reorganization of the Army should be in harmony with the One Army concept.

"Equipment problems and limitations must be solved by tactics.

Col. Schulz was introduced by Col. Curtis L. Hankins, commander of Lawson Army Aviation Command.

Accompanying Col. Schulz on his visit to the post was Lt. Col. Lyle H. Wright of the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Military Operations, Washington.

RE-UP PLAQUE . . . Lt. Col. Charles T. Caprino (R), commander of the 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade, presents the unit's reenlistment plaque to 1st Lt. John J. Allen, commander of Headquarters Company. The company earned the monthly award in February with a 27.8 per cent effort to lead the seven units of the battalion.

Being Good For Something

A familiar type of good person is one who is good for nothing. He is not a degenerate, devoid of moral and spiritual ideals. To the contrary, he subscribes to the highest principles of thought and conduct. His difficulty is that he seldom, if ever translates these principles into constructive action.

He believes in goodness, but lets the matter rest there, failing to practice what he believes.

A young man who had taken the last vacant seat on a bus watched a feeble old lady as she stood in the aisle, struggling while she wrestled with several large bundles in her arms.

As he watched her he said to himself, "That poor old lady can't stand on her feet much longer. Somebody ought to offer her his seat." When he no longer could endure the sight of her, he closed his eyes.

Ideals never put to work are worthless. Beliefs never reflected in human action are good for nothing. As the Bible puts it, "Faith without works is dead."

Moral and spiritual convictions gain meaning and value only when embodied in concrete causes. Jesus emphasized not merely belief but also action.

"Why call ye me Lord, Lord, and do not the things I say?" "This do, and ye shall live." It is not enough just to be good; one's goodness must add up to constructive living.

The strength of our society depends upon people who, believing a decent world is possible, have enough moral courage to counteract evil. The forces of evil which threaten to destroy our civilization daily challenge our belief in integrity, justice, brotherhood, and even our faith in God.

We cannot win in the struggle of right over wrong, decency over immorality, and God over atheism merely by priding ourselves in our beliefs.

When the Constitution was framed by the founding fathers of our country, some said that it would be a failure; they thought that the ideals it embraced were impractical for the average person. The Constitution endured, however, because enough persons had the strength to make it work. The same strength of character is needed now to achieve the kind of decent world we want.

Post Officer Speaks at Luncheon Of Law Enforcement Association

To millions of Americans, the police officer is the symbol of the government, 30 members of the Chattahoochee Valley Law Enforcement Association were told at a luncheon March 21 at the Black Angus Restaurant in Columbus.

Addressing the peace officers was Capt. Robert S. Poydasheff, executive officer of The Infantry Center. Staff Judge Advocate Section.

"In a very real sense, the policeman is the 'Law' to many people," Capt. Poydasheff said. "He is the manifestation of our common determination to preserve order and protect ourselves from others who would invade our rights."

"Respect for the peace officer and the law he represents is probably the best insurance that can be had against the breakdown of law and order," he continued.

"True community respect is built up through favorable contact and a good performance record, by observing the fundamental rules that require respect for all individuals regardless of who they are, by dealing with people with fairness, impartiality, honesty, courtesy and firmness," he affirmed.

"When strict observance of the constitutional rights of the individual is insisted upon by the men in command of police forces," he said, "that attitude will penetrate all the way down to the man walking the beat."

TV Bomb Expert Learned It Here

Ray Danton takes practical experience into his role of FBI bomb expert in the TV special "FBI Code 98." Danton says he taught a class in land mines and booby traps while in the Army here at Fort Benning.

Airborne Cadre Is Briefed on AF

Fifteen instructors from The Infantry School's Airborne Department attended "Operation Stand in the Door" at England Air Force Base, La., recently.

The Group, led by Col. Mike Paulick, director of the Airborne Department, was shown the other side of the coin in the activity planned by Major Gen. Karl Truesdell, Jr., Twelfth Air Force commander.

Many Twelfth Air Force personnel have gone through the Airborne course recently. The activity was planned to aquaint Army Airborne instructors with Air Force operations.

The Airborne instructors received instruction in low altitude bombing systems, laydown, retarded delivery, dive bombing, strafing and rocket-two-seat F-100F.

The demonstrations were climaxed with a briefing by Gen. Truesdell.

"This has ben a rewarding experience," commented Col. Paulick. "We fortunate few from the Airborne Department of The Infantry School have immeasurably increased our knowledge of the capability of tactical fighters and are more aware of their contribution to the air-ground team."

Attending the session were Lt. Col. O. G. Garrett, Capt. E. W. Nidiver, Capt. C. F. Herron, 1st Lt. R. S. Wilhelm, 2nd Lt. C. H. Fry, 1st Lt. J. M. Lowe, MSgt E. A. Minton, Sgt. C. E. Thomas, MSgt M. O. Webb, MSgt E. A. Proffitt, Sfc J. E. Luse, Sfc C. C. Alligood, SSgt H. C. Snell and Sgt. C. W. Bryan.

MATS Gives Jet Medical Service Now

MCGUIRE AFB, N. J. — (AFPS) — After a nine-hour flight from Germany, the big Boeing C-135 jet put down here with a passenger list of litter and ambulatory patients to mark the beginning of Military Air Transport Service (MATS) jet ambulance operations.

Before inauguration of the jet service, patients in Germany went by train from Frankfurt to the port of Bremerhaven where they boarded a hospital ship for a 10-to-12 day trip to New York. Some were also carried on MATS C-118s that made three trans-Atlantic flights weekly.

The new jet service will be of considerable value to patients because of the reduced flight time, lower vibration and less noise, officials said. It also reduces the need for carrying extensive medical equipment.

The jet flights will continue on a twice-weekly schedule. The 600-m.p.h. C-135 in time of war could carry as many as 44 litter and 54 ambulatory patients.

MATS ambulance flights serve members of the military and government employees and their dependents; also certain patients sponsored by the State Department. One of the latter, a Moroccan infant accompanied by its parents, was among the patients on the flight that opened the new service.

Four Seniors To Get $300 Scholarships

Mrs. Dale D. Dixon, welfare chairman of the Woman's Club of Fort Benning, has announced Scholarship Awards of $300 each to be given to four outstanding seniors of the high school graduating classes of 1962 in the Fort Benning-Columbus-Phenix City area, who are dependents of military personnel on active duty on May 31.

Selection will be made on the basis of scholastic ratings and citizenship.

The purpose of the award is to further the education of students who will register and attend an institution beyond high school level.

These monetary awards will be forwarded directly to the school selected at the time of the student's matriculation.

If the winner of the award is unable to attend the 1962 fall session, the selection board, after consideration of the circumstances, will determine whether the grant will be extended or awarded to an alternate student.

All students who are eligible for and interested in these awards may obtain application forms from their principal's office. Applications must be returned to that office by April 18.

A Feature From The Infantry Museum

Accuracy of First Mortars Was A 'By Guess and By Gosh' Matter

By Sfc Dave Chase

The Arabians are credited with the first use of cannons for military purposes recorded in the Western world.

Since the ancient cannon can be counted upon as the grandancestor of all cannons to include mortars, we can certainly say that the modern Infantry mortar is a specialized form of artillery.

Strangely enough, with the exception of certain modernistic innovations, the modern muzzle - fed mortar hasn't changed a great deal since the first military cannon was invented. The later was, in all probability, nothing more than a crude mortar.

Historians describe the Arabian weapon as a "deep wooden bowl holding powder, the cannon ball didn't enter the barrel at all but was balanced on the muzzle and popped off by the explosion".

A later improved type was known as a "pot de fer," which consisted of an "iron bottle" into the neck of which was thrust an arrow, also of iron. The bottle was filled with powder and ignited with a red hot wire through a touch hole at the rear of the "bottle". These earliest efforts were so uncertain and the developments so crude that there was little to fear for a long time from their use in battle.

Fired Stone Ball

When larger, stronger and more effective cannons were finally developed, the need for suitable ammunition became a problem. These early guns were known as bombards and fired a stone ball. Ballistics and the principles thereof were unknown to ancient cannoneers and ordnance makers.

The first cannons were funnel shaped with the smaller part of the bore at the breech end. It was more advantageous to use a smaller ball since it could be rolled further down the throat of the cannon. As one can imagine, matters involving range and accuracy were in the realm of "by guess and by gosh" and if an effective hit was scored, it was by pure luck.

Bound With Wire

Frequently, the cannoneers were equally apprehensive since the ancient guns, being over-charged from time to time, would blow up. To prevent such calamities, the barrels of the guns were often bound with hoops of iron for reinforcement, since the stone ammunition would shatter occasionally when fired. The balls also were bound with iron bands.

Amusing as these early cannons may seem to us today, their first use in combat was quite as historically significant as the first dropping of the atom bomb in 1945.

One of the more curious mortar types was used by the Dutch in the early part of the 17th Century. This was a "double-fired" type using fused ammunition. The hollow iron ball would be filled with powder and a fuse inserted. The ball would then be placed in the mortar over the powder charge.

The gunner then lit the fuze of the cannon ball with one hand and with the other, put the match to the touch holes.

The hazards involved in this procedure can be readily imagined. Sometimes the propelling charge fired but the fuse did not, and the ball had no effect on the target. Or, the fused ball might be lit and the propellant fail to ignite, in which case the gunner was in trouble since he had a live sputtering fused bomb in the gun but no charge to send it out.

Later, it was discovered that the flash from the propelling charge would ignite the fuse and 'double-firing' wasn't necessary. Unfortunately, this often resulted in the fuse being ignited too close to the bursting charge and the projectile would detonate in front of the mortar.

One of the early and more effective mortar types was called a "coehorn." The barrel was twice as long as the bore diameter. It was a direct ancestor of the howitzer.

The ancient mortars, like those of modern times, were high angle fire weapons. Due to inaccuracy they were not too effective, but by Civil War times 13 inch bore mortars could throw an explosive iron ball two and a half miles with considerable effect.

Two Categories

In recent times, mortars had fallen into two general categories: heavy artillery for seacoast defense and small Infantry mortars. With the exception of the 12 inch mortar, no "artillery" type mortars were actually in use by 1940.

During the 1920's, a 75-mm mortar was used but mainly on an experimental basis. It appears to have been discarded as impractical for field employment by the time World War II broke out.

The standard mortars in use by the Infantry in 1941 were the 60-mm which had been fathered by the Stokes or "trench" mortar of WW I days, the 81-mm mortar for longer range effect and the rifled 4.2 inch mortar. All three types are muzzle loading.

The 4.2, which has recently reverted back to artillery, is rifled and has a range of 4,000 yards.

The little 60-mm is no longer a member of the family of Infantry weapons, but in its day it was effective as a casualty producing weapon. Like its bigger 81-mm brother, it was a smooth bore tube with a fixed firing pin at the breech end.

The projectile was propelled by a 12-gauge shotgun shell fixed in its base, which was fired when the round was dropped from the muzzle and the cartridge struck the firing pin. By adding powder increments to the guiding fins of the mortar round, the range could be increased in accordance with a firing table which helped the crew to more accurately direct the fire.

The Infantry Museum has all three of the mortar types on display. These were donated to the museum by The Infantry Center Ordnance Section and add significantly to the history of the Infantry display which is open to the public as well as to all military persons.

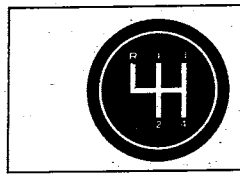
the '62 VOLVO 544 Sport

The Very Best In Quality, Endurance and Beauty

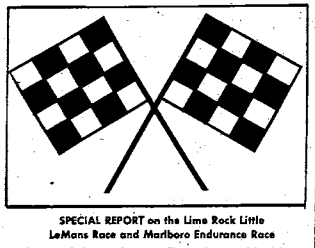
The VOLVO is built for reasonable and maximum performance and safety. It uses proven engineering that cannot remain hidden in the fancy trappings of more expensive cars. Its 15" wheels, which give good road grip and high ground clearance. It is versatile in unexpected city traffic and is easy to park in restricted spaces. The turning circle is only 32 ft. 2". Women drivers particularly appreciate the fact that it is easy to control, that it is comfortable and safe, and that it has a distinctive interior which is easy to keep clean and tidy.

The engine has the following main data:



Bore ..... 3.313"
Stroke ..... 3.15"
Compression ratio 8.5:1
Output: 90 h.p. at 5,000 r.p.m. Torque: 105 lb. ft. at 3,500 r.p.m.
Two SU 1¾" horizontal carburetors.

We defy any other car in this price range to compare basic engine data with the VOLVO.



The interior fittings of the Volvo 544 are designed to give the greatest possible comfort and are made with great care. The individual front seats have specially designed backrests, giving even and comfortable support for the whole back. The backrests are concave and hold the body firm laterally during hard driving. Thanks to their correct shape, the seats are also very comfortable for long-distance driving. The seats are adjustable and the backrest inclination can be varied. The upholstery is of tasteful hard-wearing leatherette material.

The VOLVO 544 is cosy and warm in very cold weather. The effective heating system is thermostatically controlled for maintaining an even inside temperature. A powerful two-speed fan circulates heated fresh air throughout the whole car.

The tastefully shaped and well-planned instrument panel fulfils high demands as regards safety. The instruments are easy to read and are grouped in front of the driver. They include speedometer with mileometer and trip meter, fuel and temperature gauges, warning lamps for charging, oil pressure, full headlights and directional signals. The instrument lighting is adjustable. The top side of the instrument panel is padded and covered with anti-reflecting material. The underside is gently rounded and completely smooth. There are no controls or other hard objects that could cause injuries. The steering wheel is of safety type and placed at a suitable angle for exact and safe steering.

TheVOLVO 544 is supplied with a four-speed transmission. This is controlled by means of a floor-mounted gear lever having positive gear positions. Synchronization is very effective and quick-operating and 1st speed is also synchronized. The reduction ratios are chosen so that they cover the whole speed range.This means safe overtaking. This transmission compares with 4 speed boxes in sports cars costing up to and over $5,000.

SPECIAL REPORT on the Lime Rock Little LeMans Race and Marlboro Endurance Race

In the Little Lemans Race . . . Three wins out of five. 1st place for the Fabulous VOLVO. Average speed over 71 Miles Per Hour for 8 consecutive hours covering over 450 miles. Volvo placed 1st and 2nd in Marlboro, Maryland. These are just two of the many competitions wins the VOLVO has racked up.

A Personal Message From T. J. RAY:

I personally invite you to come down and drive this truly different car. I have driven sports cars that sell for over $5,000 and I truly believe none have shown me more in performance than this car. And remember this is the only car on the market that combines family compact, economy (up to 30 MPG), room and beauty with a robust, rough, tough sports car.

TIS Marks 55th Year On April 1

missioned officer masters in turn those weapons which a soldier himself carries on foot. He learns each weapon in two ways: first, how it is put together, cared for and fired; second, when and how it is most effectively used in the progress and crises of battle.

"The weapons a soldier carries in battle are the rifle, and bayonet, the pistol, the hand grenade, the rifle grenade, the trench mortar, the automatic rifle, the machine gun and the one-pounder cannon.

"He must also know how to protect himself against gas, how to dig himself in most securely, and how to keep in contact with his supporting artillery behind and his cooperating Infantry on either flank by means of hastily laid telephone and buzzer lines. All these things The School teaches."

Final orders for the organization of The School at Benning were issued on September 25, 1919. The principle mission was declared thusly: "To develop and standardize the instruction and training of officers in the technique and tactics" of the Infantry.

The courses in the training schedule included Musketry, and Tactics: Machine-Gunnery; Weapons and Physical Training; Marksmanship; and Engineering and General Subjects. The curriculum was distinctly broader in scope than that of The School's predecessors.

The School has grown to gigantic proportions. And during parallel to its physical growth has been that of its mission.

Today the mission is to prepare Infantry officers and selected enlisted men for duties in peace and war with emphasis on the art of command and leadership. The school also "initiates, develops and evaluates Infantry, Airborne and Ranger doctrine, organization, tactics, techniques and material requirements relating to the employment of Infantry units and combined arms."

Concepts Change, TIS Progresses

Major changes, revolutionary changes have naturally come in weapons and fields of instruction. The concept of ground warfare is an ever progressing thing.

However, there is always the Infantry. There are always the men who stand ready around the world to defend the principles of the nation they call great. Their change is only physical.

TIS today is a far cry from 1907's School of Musketry and Fort Benning's Infantry School of Arms of 1918. But the spirit remains, the spirit of the most effective fighting unit in the world . . . the U. S. Infantryman.

"Where brave men fight . . . and die for freedom, you will find me. I am the bulwark of our Nation's Defense. I am always ready . . . now, and forever. I am the Infantry — Queen of Battle! FOLLOW ME!"—(Taken from "I Am the Infantry")

This Week In History

MARCH 30, 1867 — The United States purchased Alaska from Russia. The Army was sent to establish military occupation, which lasted until June 1877.

MARCH 30, 1942 — MacArthur was designated as Allied supreme commander, Southwest Pacific Area; Adm. Chester Nimitz was designated as the commander-in-chief, Pacific Ocean Areas.

MARCH 31, 1933 — The Civilian Conservation Corps was established. It was placed under Army control April 10.

APRIL 1, 1945 — Tenth Army forces landed on Okinawa. The First and Ninth Armies effected a junction near Lippstadt, encircling the Ruhr area.

All Ages Entered In 'Talentscope' At Columbus High

Talentscope, a valley-wide amateur talent show, will be presented at Columbus High auditorium at 8:15 p.m. tonight.

The show is being sponsored by the local chapter of American Women in Radio and Television.

Some 200 applications were received from non-professionals all over the area. Ages range from 6 to 60.

Tickets are on sale at Baker Music Store downtown and in the Cross Country Plaza, and will be on sale at the door this evening.

Col. Huppert Tells TV Audience About DNRI Instruction

The director of the Department of Non-Resident Instruction at The Infantry School, Col. G. H. Huppert, was a guest last Saturday on the television program, "Report from Fort Benning."

The program is produced by The Infantry Center Information Section and broadcast each Saturday at 12:45 p.m. over WRBL-TV, Channel 3.

Col. Huppert discussed the educational opportunities available through The Infantry School's non-resident program.

MSgt Smitherman

Credits Wife In $20,000 Savings Plan

A sergeant who retired last Saturday at the post took home with him a "nest egg" of more than $20,000 he had saved in the past 16 years.

MSgt John S. Smitherman, son of Vashta Smitherman of Randolph, Ala., who has over 20 years of military service, laid away some $18,000 in soldiers' deposits since 1946 when he began his savings program.

To this sum the Army added enough interest to raise the total to $20,700.

A combat veteran of World War II, Smitherman served with the 4th Infantry Division in France, Belgium, Luxemburg and Germany. For nearly two years before his retirement, he was administrative non-commissioned officer of the Adjutant General Section, Infantry Center.

He was formerly assigned to the Personnal Action Section of Headquarters, U. S. Army, Japan.

"I have no plans for getting a job right now," he said. "But I will scrounge for one later after the home I am having built in Randolph is completed."

Asked how he saved his money, he said, "My wife, Elizabeth, and I don't drink or smoke and don't waste money buying what we don't need."

He added, "My wife is the frugal member of our family and is due most of the credit for our savings."

Smitherman was awarded a certificate of Achievement signed by Secretary of the Army Elvis J. Stahr, Jr., and Major Gen. Ben Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center, and the Army Commendation Medal with first Oak Leaf Cluster.

Changing Vietnam Pattern Seen Following Meetings in Pacific

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara recently ended his fourth trip to Hawaii for discussions on the situation in South Vietnam.

At the Hawaii meeting were Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; Adm. Harry D. Felt, commander in chief Pacific, and his component commanders; Gen. George Decker, Army chief of staff; Frederick E. Nolting, Ambassador to South Vietnam, and Gen. Paul D. Harkins, commander, U.S. Military Assistance Command, Saigon.

Before boarding his plane for the return to the U. S. Mr. McNamara gave this report:

"My discussions today with Adm. Felt, Gen. Harkins and Ambassador Nolting on the situation in South Vietnam have been the most encouraging we have had so far.

"I am pleased to learn that the Armed Forces of Vietnam are taking the offensive throughout the country, carrying the war to the Viet Cong, inflicting higher casualty rates and capturing Viet Cong weapons and supplies in greater numbers.

"The impact of increased American training aid and logistical support to the Vietnamese forces is now beginning to be felt and will be more so in the months ahead.

"This is true not only of ground operations but in the improved capabilities of the Republic of Vietnam Air Force to perform close support and interdiction missions.

"We must not of course expect miracles overnight — a war of this kind takes time. However, there is every sign that the government and people of South Vietnam have the will to win and the capacity, with our support, to win."

At a Pentagon briefing a spokesman said it is evident U. S. training of Vietnamese is beginning to pay off.

Intelligence is much better, and the communications systems are improving all the time.

There are a greater number of Viet Cong "defectors" today than there have been in the past.

He said there seems to be a changing pattern as more villages become fortified. He also noted that more villages are in the safety zone.

At present there is extended patrolling on the Loatian border by the Vietnamese and also along the seacoast. Interception at sea is carried on by a "junk" versus "junk" method.

He said the U. S. is making every effort to get supplies and equipment to the Vietnamese. Whatever they need is being supplied.

The thinking here is that by June 30 there will be added areas cleared and not reinfiltrated as has been the case in the past.

Gen. Reynolds Honored With 11-Gun Salute

An 11-gun salute on Chapel Field at 11 a.m. Wednesday welcomed Brig. Gen. Royal Reynolds, Jr., to The Infantry School as assistant commandant.

Formerly deputy commanding general of the 2nd Infantry Division, Gen. Reynolds succeeds Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles, Jr., who departed the post Wednesday for an assignment with the U. S. Army Element of Allied Forces, Southern Europe, Naples, Italy.

Participating in the honors for Gen. Reynolds was an honor guard formed by Company C, 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry.

The salute was fired by a gun detail from Battery A, 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 19th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade.

Music for the parade was furnished by The Infantry Center Band.

A 1933 graduate of the U.S. Military Academy, Gen. Reynolds served later as a tactical officer at the school.

He is a graduate of three Infantry School courses, including the regular officers, advanced communications and Airborne courses.

Gen. Reynolds received his star in March, 1957. He has served with the 2nd Division since August, 1961.

Among his decorations are the Silver Star, Legion of Merit, Bronze Star Medal with one Oak Leaf Cluster, Combat Infantryman's Badge with Second Award and Parachutist Badge.

Lt. Meyer Honor Graduate

Gen. Rowny Is OC Speaker; Salute $s Aid Chapel Fund

Officer candidate graduates last Friday found reason to alter the tradition of giving a dollar to the first enlisted man who saluted them and instead made a chapel fund several hundred dollars richer by their donations.

The salute money, in addition to the funds remaining in the student council treasury, added approximately $500 to the contributions to build a Chapel of All Faiths at Milledgeville State Hospital.

Honor graduate of The Infantry School's Officer Candidate Class 2 was 2nd Lt. Richard A. Meyer.

Meyer was presented an Association of the U. S. Army plaque, which goes to the top graduate of each class.

Speaker for the graduation was Brig. Gen. Edward L. Rowny, assistant commander of the 82nd Airborne Division at Fort Bragg.

The one-star general said The Infantry School's "Follow Me" motto is a most difficult one to follow.

"Put another way the 'Follow Me' motto means the example and you must start right out setting the example with your appearance and manners," he added.

He also told the graduates a leader must have self-confidence or else his men wouldn't follow him, and by virtue of completing the 23-week course they should already have a measure of self-confidence instilled in them.

The key to success and happiness is knowledge of one's job and doing that job well, Gen. Rowny said.

Although the job may be difficult, he continued, "You and I are fortunate in having chosen this career. There is nothing I would rather do than be an Army officer."

Introducing Gen. Rowny was Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles, Jr., then assistant commandant of The Infantry School, who departed the post Wednesday.

Commenting that this would be the last graduating class he would stand before, Gen. Surles said, "I place great faith in

Faith School Civics Students 'Live' Under Realistic Program

BY IDA C. EVANS

Two eighth grade civics classes at Faith School were recently given an opportunity to "live" under three types of "government."

During a three-week experiment, the students experienced demonstration of authoritative, self-directed and democratic approaches to government.

No advance warning was given to the students.

Following carefully laid plans, the classes were conducted as nearly as possible in exactly the same manner.

For a week, strict regimentation was the order of the day. Classes were required to march into and out of the classrooms. Lengthy assignments had to be memorized. Students stood to recite with no questions permitted. All instruction was by formal lecture.

In strong contrast to the week of authoritarian government, during the second week of the experiment, the teachers provided no direction for the students. Materials were made available and the teachers showed enough interest in the class to ask, "What are we going to do today?" Any activity that took place during the week was self-directed.

The third week of the experiment the teachers used an approximately 100 per cent democratic approach to classroom teaching.

According to Dr. Joseph T. Conforti, director of instruction for the post children's schools, customary teaching methods involve an 8-10-10 combination of democratic, authoritarian and self-directed techniques.

After the three weeks were over, Dr. Conforti explained the experiment to the students.

He asked them to rate their teachers during the three phases.

Results were approximately the same in each section. During the first week, the teachers were considered cruel, bad, awful, dull, cold, hard and unpleasant but fast and strong.

Under self-direction, students found the teacher slow, dull, weak, soft and nice with a great difference of opinion as to such traits as good-bad and pleasant-unpleasant.

The democratic period brought teacher ratings that were high in all the desirable traits.

Students were asked to fill out a questionaire designed to teach them to evaluate their personal reactions to the three governmental situations.

The majority of the students found they reacted best to the democratic phase.

In describing their feelings during the authoritative period, they used the words tense, rebellious, depressed, worried.

The self-directed period was described as five days of boredom and unhappiness.

Students reported anger toward the teachers during the authoritarian period, alternating with concern. Many of them felt sure there was definitely something wrong to cause such a change in a teacher.

Indifference followed anger and concern during the self directed period, while relief greeted the democratic period.

Students felt they learned nothing the first week, little the second and a great deal during the last week.

Shortly before the experiment, the students had written an essay on democracy in English class. After the experiment, they wrote "What Democracy Means to Me" in civics class. A comparison of the papers revealed the students had found more meaning by relating the subject to their own personal lives, Dr. Conforti said.

"Purpose of the experiment," he stated, "has been to give pupils actual experience in various forms of government rather than a textbook approach, alone."

Civics teachers cooperating in the experiment were Wayne H. Box and Ivan H. Barnhard.

FAREWELL HONORS . . . A farewell review for Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles, Jr. (L), assistant commandant of The Infantry School, was held Tuesday afternoon at Chapel Field. Saluting with Gen. Surles is Major Gen. Ben Harrell, post commander and commandant of The School. Gen. Surles departed Wednesday for his new assignment with the Army Element, Allied Forces Southern Europe, at Naples, Italy.

Pistol Matches At Post Club Start Tomorrow

Nearly 100 pistol competitors are expected to compete in the regular monthly pistol match sponsored by the post Rifle and Pistol Club this weekend.

The two-day event, which opens at 8 a.m. tomorrow, will feature individual and team matches with the caliber .22 and .45 handguns. The individual firing will be tomorow and the team on Sunday.

Greatest number of entrants are expected to come from teams which have arrived on the post to compete in the Third Army Rifle and Pistol Championships which are due to start next Tuesday.

The two-day match put on by the local club will be the final opportunity for the participants to practice in a competitive event.

Cancer Program Continues For Post Personnel

Cancer films will be shown at Theater 1 April 10 and 12 from 1 to 3 p.m. The programs will be open to civilian and military men and women.

This is a continuation of a two - week educational program under way at the theater, including films and a question and answer period conducted by doctors from Martin Army Hospital.

In Cadence

As reported in last week's Bayonet, training for all Army personnel will be conducted in the counter-insurgency field. This is an area receiving more emphasis all the time, and is recognized as critical to the safeguarding of the Free World's position and future wellbeing.

A list of terms coming into more widespread use in the Army has been prepared, and is published in this issue of the Bayonet. Such terms as insurgency, counterguerrilla operations, cold war, special warfare and unconventional warfare are explained.

Never has the Army been so progressive and up-to-date as it is now. Never has the top U. S. leadership been so vitally aware of the dangers in the present period of "war in a very real sense," as President Kennedy referred to it.

This time is a time for action, if America ever saw one. We have played the waiting game before, only to have to start late and catch up with a shooting war which may have been avoidable if earlier action had been taken. If another shooting war develops, it will not be because America sat by the wayside and invited it.

It is our duty to understand the demands made upon us by the Communist's declared goal of world conquest, and to use the tools of understanding and action being made available to us individually and collectively.

We have been forced to develop special warfare and counter-insurgency methods, now let us all understand their need and their mechanics.—SP5 LARRY BENEDICT

The Judge Says . . .

Co-Signing Notes for Friends

What are the factors which one should consider before going on a note for a friend or relative? And, what difference does it make if one is being paid to guarantee the payment of another's debt to a creditor?

Legally speaking, one may subject himself to liability by signing a note in at least two ways. First, he may become a guarantor of the maker. As a guarantor of the maker, he vouches for the maker's financial soundness and, in effect, says to the holder of the note "if you cannot get the money from the principal debtor, I shall pay the balance owing on the note."

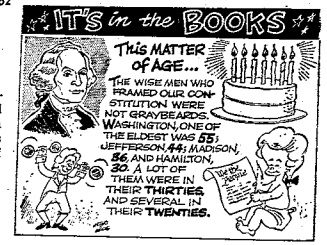
It is then incumbent upon the creditor to exhaust all of his legal remedies against the principal debtor, including suit for non-payment, levy and execution on the principal debtor's property and a return of such levy and execution showing that the debtor has no property which will answer for the debt.

Only after all the legal remedies against the debtor have been used can the creditor look to the guarantor for payment. This type arrangement generally requires also some consideration in money or property running to the guarantor in exchange for his acceptance of the obligation to answer for the debtor's obligation and must be in writing.

A friend or relative may, however, wish to aid one who is seeking to borrow money as an accommodation to that person. In such a situation, the individual may become a surety and represent to the holder of the note that the note will be paid.



In substance, he is saying that he will pay the creditor whether or not the debtor is willing or able to pay the obligation. The creditor, therefore, may look to the surety for payment when the note or a payment is due, even before he makes a demand on the principal debtor.

While this may rarely be the case, it does indicate the risk of being primarily liable on the note as a surety. The agreement to become a surety for the borrower does not require any consideration and may be a binding oral agreement.

One very important consideration which a person who is willing to stand as surety or guarantor on a note is that if the principal debtor goes into bankruptcy and properly lists the obligation, he may be discharged from the obligation.

Significantly, however, the discharge in bankruptcy does not discharge a surety or guarantor from the debt and he may be called upon to answer for the default of the principal debtor. His only recourse then would be to share in the bankrupt's estate with all other creditors.

To Read Is to Know: Libraries Are Tools

"Read and Watch Your World Grow" — that's this year's motto for National Library Week which we observe April 8-14. Across the country the spotlight will be thrown on the vital role of the library in educating, informing and enriching Americans of all ages. It isn't an occasion for urging people to read books one week in the year; rather, it calls attention to the fact that libraries are much more than mere repositories of learning and that all of us would be poorer without them.

In the Armed Forces, of course, the spotlight will be global, for never in their respective histories have the services put more emphasis on the value of education than they do today. Libraries at military installations large and small are stocked with books, technical manuals, magazines and recordings for language teaching.

These are tools—the instruments of learning by which we can advance our careers, military or civilian, and broaden our understanding of the world we live in and the political, economic and social forces which galvanize it. This understanding makes all the difference between the man who acts with a purpose and makes decisions based on reason, and the man who fumbles out of confused ignorance and panics at a critical moment.

Such understanding isn't to be acquired from non-fiction works alone. For example, Arthur Koestler's powerful novel, "Darkness at Noon," is unique for the insight it gives us into the Communist mentality, just as Boris Pasternak's Doctor Zhivago provides a sweeping panorama of the Russian revolution. We may read these and other novels for their dramatic values, but we leave them with a better appreciation of modern history.

So our library card is a key — to knowledge, to books that stimulate the imagination, to magazines that keep us abreast of great events. "Books are not men and yet they are alive," said Stephen Vincent Benet.

The Surgeon Says:

So You Want To Get Married

By Lt. Col. Frederick W. Hindley, MSC

Many single men in the Army are suddenly discovering that Cupid has shot them with an arrow.

There are constant plans and details to be accomplished in preparing to get ready to establish a home.

One of the small items frequently neglected or forgotten until the last moment is the blood test required for marriage. The procedure itself is quite simple and does not take much time but all too frequently the single couple and particularly the military groom suddenly finds that he is in need of a blood test before he can apply for his license.

He then encounters many frustrations, administrative stumbling blocks to his final goal. The simple steps for any man anticipating marriage should begin approximately two to four weeks prior to the date of the marriage. He should visit the Dispensary serving his unit and obtain a request for the blood test.

This he takes to the laboratory at Martin Army Hospital and a sample of blood will be taken. In approximately two days he may pick up the report of the test with a certificate indicating that the test has been reported to the physician.

The laboratory is equipped with certificates for all 50 states requiring blood tests, so no case will it be necessary to go to a private physician or laboratory to have this test performed.

It should be remembered that unless a prospective bride is a military dependent she is not entitled to this service.

Chaplain's Corner

Good Leadership

By Chaplain (Capt.) Robert C. Young

There is always room at the top of the ladder — build a better mousetrap and the world will beat a path to your door! These common expressions are significant.

In a vastly complex age the need for good leadership is acute. Civilian industry spends millions searching for and trying to develop men capable of leading vast industrial complexes. Essentially this means leading other men.

The military is jealously eager to discover and retain leaders. Today's private may be tomorrow's first sergeant, company commander or even division commander. Discovery of the potential leader is only the beginning. Years of training and experience enable leaders to make the best decision in unfavorable circumstances.

If you have your sights set high it will profit you to review some of the characteristics of a good leader. A certain man I know can serve as an example.

He thoroughly understands his job. Many a man wants to lead but is too impatient to learn. This individual was nearly 30 years old before anyone recognized him as a leader. In those formative years he was quietly building character and knowledge.

This noteworthy person is intensely interested in everyone with whom he comes in contact. He is concerned with children, with those beneath him as well as those above him.

I cannot imagine him saying he has no interest in what a man does with his off-duty time, for he realizes every act affects the whole of our lives.

This leader does not care about his own comfort. It would be impossible to impose on him because whatever you asked, he would do willingly and count it a privilege. Selfishness has no place in his life.

This friend of mine has a tremendous ability to inspire those around him. He does not command in the usual sense of the word, he makes others want to follow his desires.

He delegates authority. Often, assigning a job, he stands by and sees it messed up, rather than interfere. Though he could do the task better himself, he is more interested in developing people than having letter perfect results.

Finally, he is a man of conviction. If he believes he is right, there is no compromise. He never does anything for the sole purpose of pleasing superiors, yet he is not insubordinate. He is able to put the "boss" desires ahead of his own.

Many do not like this man, some despise him. However he makes a firm impression on everyone he meets. This man is my model. I am sure if you do not know him you at least know of him — Jesus Christ. The greatest of the world's leaders, he has influenced more people than any other man in history. If you do not know him, make his acquaintance, for without him, you may become a leader but you will never be a good leader.

DA Shortens Vietnam Tour

Department of the Army has decreased the length of the Vietnam duty tour for all personnel.

Personnel with dependents in Vietnam will serve in that area for 24 months. The tour was previously 30 months long.

All other personnel in Saigon will serve for 15 months. Those serving outside Saigon will remain for 12 months. This tour was previously 18 months in duration.

The change is now in effect for Army personnel serving in Vietnam who are enroute there.

1ST INFANTRY BRIGADE'S SHARPSHOOTERS
Bring Home Trophies to Their Commander, Col. William H. Birdsong

1st Brigade Smashes 11 Records In USAIC Rifle, Pistol Shoot

Marksmen of the 1st Infantry Brigade blasted through The Infantry Center 1962 Rifle and Pistol matches last week to take all but two of 23 awards presented.

Out of the 21 winning scores posted during the week-long competition, 11 were totals which smashed all existing records for Fort Benning's annual post level competition.

The first measure firing the automatic rifle matches saw the twoman team of Sp4 Robert L. Extine and Pfc Edwin J. Lemerich, Company A, 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, literally "clean the course". Between them they accounted for all four match trophies, won the 1962 automatic rifle team crown and set two new records to boot.

Shooting against competition from other units of the command, the two "Barons" lifted the mark for the 500 yard tilt from 460-18V to 506-18V. They then went on to take the Mid-Range and 300-yard matches with scores of 523-32V and 558-35V respectively. Their shooting rolled up a championship aggregate of 1584-103V, a full 60 points over the old record.

Andujar Excells

Infantry Brigade rifleman SSgt Hector A. Andujar dominated the competition on McAndrew Range by winning half of the individual events listed for the week.

He took the first matches, 20 shots "offhand" at 200 yards, with a perfect 100 with 4V's, a new record.

In the 200-yard rapid fire match he fired a second perfect 100 with eight of his shots landing in the "V" ring.

The 300 - yard rapid fire match saw an engineer - rifleman break The Infantry Brigade's reservation of fire places.

Sgt. Bobby Hogue of the 151st Engineer Group, posted a score of 99-04V to lift the trophy out of the hands of the brigade's Sgt. Keith L. Barnes who fired a 98-04V.

Second Lt. Joe Huddleston gave the brigade its next win when he bested the efforts of some 75 riflemen and stiff winds to stop his drive for the 600-yard slow fire trophy. He put all 20 shots into the "black" while nine were centered in the "V" ring.

Sgt. Barnes then stepped into the winner's circle by shotting a National Match Course score of 247-21V, a scorching seven points over the old mark set in 1960.

Match aggregate totals revealed a 637-50V for the five matches by Sgt. Andujar whose score was six points over the former mark.

21 Over Record

MSgt Hollis Noland then brought his team over the National Match Course to mark up another Infantry Brigade record of 1439-39V, good for the team crown and betterment of the old post record by 21 points.

Highlight of the annual competition came when Sgt. Noland coached his Infantry Trophy team over the "combat-type" course of fire to finish with a score of 1101, a tally far above that usually expected by the average post level teams.

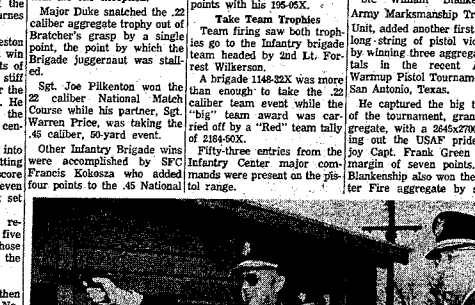
Pistol competition saw the same steam roller attack by The Infantry Brigade's handgunner.

Here again a clean sweep was prevented by a single competitor, Major Durward A. Duke of the Department of Non - Resident Instruction.

Sgt. James Bratcher accounted for four match trophies including the 1962 individual championship, while his team mates divided up the balance with the one exception.

Major Duke snatched the .22 caliber aggregate trophy out of Bratcher's grasp by a single point, the point by which the Brigade juggernaut was stalled.

Sgt. Joe Pilkenton won the .22 caliber National Match Course while his partner, Sgt. Warren Price, was taking the .45 caliber, 50-yard event.



Other Infantry Brigade wins were accomplished by SFC Francis Kokosza who added four points to the .45 National Match Course record by shooting a 294-07X. Meanwhile, Sp4 John P. Malone won the .45 caliber rapid fire match and raised the match mark by two points with his 195-05X.

Take Team Trophies

Team firing saw both trophies go to the Infantry brigade team headed by 2nd Lt. Forrest Wilkerson.

A brigade 1148-22X was more than enough to take the .22 caliber team event while the "big" team award was carried off by a "Red" team tally of 2164-60X.

Fifty-three entries from the Infantry Center major commands were present on the pistol range.

AND THEY ALL HIT HOME . . . Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly, deputy post commander, demonstrated his pistol proficiency when he kicked off the 1962 USAIC and Pistol Matches by firing the first shots. Gen. Kelly fired five shots in eight seconds, with all shots striking the target's kill zone. Observing Gen. Kelly's accuracy is Lt. Col. Burton C. Boatright (R), match director.

Record-Setters May Represent TIC In 3rd Army Shoot

The 1st Infantry Brigade's trophy-winning "Gold" rifle team which shattered the Fort Benning match record for the Infantry Trophy team course in post-level competition last week may be lifted "as is" to represent The Infantry Center in 1962 Third Army competition.

According to Sfc Golden R. Smith, NCOIC, Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Team, the Infantry Brigade squad may well be kept intact to carry the post's colors in the army-area level Infantry Trophy Competition slated at this post toward the close of the Third Army competition April 10 to 21.

"Of course," he said, changes may be necessary in the squad due to any number of reasons but increase of scoring potential can scarcely be considered. . .not when the team produces scores such as the 1101 it fired last week!"

The holder of the Distinguished Marksman's Badge went on to say that that score was worthy of note even at national-level competition.

"The Third Army record is only 908," he said, "And, in All-Army competition in 1961, only one team succeeded in bettering it — the Europe squad which hit 1136."

Headed by veteran rifleman MSgt Hollis W. "Pappy" Noland, the championship Infantry Trophy team includes SSgt Robert L. Vassar, Sgts. Keith G. Barnes, Ansel Kelly, Richard B. Goodman and Marvin E. Warren, and Sp4's Alfred E. Harris and Dewey A. Hart.

Combat Shooting

The Infantry Trophy Team Match is a combat-type event in which a squad of six riflemen under competent coaching, attempts to distribute some 347 rounds over eight silhouette by firing from ranges of 600, 500, 300 and 200 yards. Bonus points are given if individual targets are hit a given number of times at each range.

It is the only match of its kind on the usual rifle match program and is fast becoming popular among riflemen at all levels of competition.

"Whether The Infantry Brigade squad remains the same as listed last week," said Sgt. Smith, "or whether we find it necessary to do some switching, we intend to win that trophy and keep it at The Infantry Center where it belongs."

Another Victory Claimed By MTU's Blankenship

Sfc William Blankenship, Army Marksmanship Training Unit, added another first to his long string of pistol victories by winning three aggregate totals in the recent Alamo Warmup Pistol Tournament at San Antonio, Texas.

He captured the big turkey of the tournament, grand aggregate, with a 2645x2700 nosing out the USAF pride and joy Capt. Frank Green by a margin of seven points. Sgt. Blankenship also won the Center Fire aggregate by shooting a 884x900, and the .22 caliber aggregate, 890x900.

In the team events the MTU shooters had little trouble in taking all first place honors. The USA Blue took the grand aggregate team total with a 3496x3600; the Center Fire match, 1164x1200, and the .45 cal. match, 1156x1200. The .22 cal match was won by the USA Grey, 1178x1200, with the USA Red Team capping the .45 cal. hard ball, 1148x1200.

Firing members of the Blue Team were: Sgt. Floyd Thomson, MSgt George Snavely, Sp4 Hershel Anderson and Sgt. Blankenship. The Grey Team was composed of Sgt. Janusz Sleziski, Sfc. Samuel Hunter, Sfc Arthur Ogden and Sfc Henry Weinbrecht, with Sfc William Horton, Sp5 Anderson, Sfc. Ogden, and SMaj Huelet (Joe) Benner making up the Red Team.

The MTU shooters dominated the individual matches with Sfc Nelson Lincoln taking the .22 cal rapid fire, 200x200 and Sgt. Blankenship winning the .22 cal slow fire, 195x200. In the Center Fire event Sfc Horton took the timed fire, 200x200 and Capt. Cecil Wallis won the rapid fire, 199x200.

The .45 cal portion of the tournament saw Sgt. Floyd Thomson cap the slow fire, 194x200; Capt. Clyde Metts win the National Match Couse, 295x300, and S Maj. Benner conquer the rapid fire event, 199x200.

The Alamo Warmup preceded the big Inter-Service Pistol Tournament from April 2 through today.

NCO's

Distaff Doings

BY MARIANNE KELLY

The NCO wives of Fort Benning gathered at a traditional annual membership tea in their clubhouse Wednesday, March 28.

It took much planning and more hard work to make this event such a memorable and successful one, and the committee in charge of this affair certainly earned a medal for doing a wonderful job! Let's give these girls, Doty Rentrop, Ruth Martin and Florence Yoder (not to forget their helpers) a big hand for all the polishing and decorating.

Gay and colorful sprigs of artificial flowers and the beautifully set table helped create a festive mood.

Honored guests were four most charming ladies, Mrs. Ben Harrell, Mrs. Cyril D. Sterner, president of the Officers' Wives Club, Mrs. Walter D. Hutchko and Mrs. Eubert W. Lintnicum Jr., president and vice president, respectively, of the 2nd Infantry Division, NCO Wives Club. The guests were presented with corsages of white carnations.

The guests of honor joined our own president, Mrs. Raymond R. Faust, and other officers of the club, the Mesdames Tomito and D. Fortez, Robert Lamb, Herbert J. Klein, Glenn M. Jarvis and Henry Speech in the receiving line.

Mrs. Harrell and Mrs. Sterner poured tea for the club members and their guests, assisted by Mrs. Faust, Mrs. Jarvis, Mrs. Blois, Mrs. Edwards and Mrs. Hutchko.

The tea table was covered with a white lace tablecloth and decorated with a centerpiece of white mums and pink gladioli, flanked by silver candelabra.

Six new members were welcomed to the club that day. They are: Melba Johnson, Aileen Jaap, Maria Janeba, Janice Shearer, Sharon Welsh and Norma Every.

Other guests present were Cora Carrish, Bea Funk, Charlotte Tolbert, Margaret Luttrell, Edan Motz, Theresa Picciano, Florence Cressell, Anne Nowell and Charlotte Thompson. We hope to see all these ladies often and as regular members of our club.

A drawing for door prizes took place after refreshments had been enjoyed. The winners were Aileen Jaap, new member, and Lola Sellers.

Members of the ceramic group displayed some of their work, and we found many of the pieces truly artistic, warranting the admiration of everyone present.

This membership tea will be long remembered as an outstanding event of the 1962 social season.

52nd OC Company Ladies Meet At Custer Terrace for Luncheon

Officer candidates' ladies of 52nd OC Company, 5th Battalion, Student Brigade, held their monthly luncheon recently at the Custer Terrace Branch of the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Theme of the event was "Crazy Hats." Prizes were awarded to the ladies with the most creative stylings.

Of the many entries in the contest, Mrs. Lois Anderson's creations was selected as the "Most Fashionable;" Mrs. Kathy Bennett's, the "Most Original;" Mrs. Karley Jo Moody's, the "Most Colorful," and Mrs. Sandy Clark's, the "Most Humorous."

Guests of honor were Mrs. Otto R. Koch Jr., Mrs. John W. McClain and Mrs. William Mck. Hadley.

In addition to the "Crazy Hats" contest, Mrs. Antonio Mani spoke on "Drawing and Painting." The ladies also were shown the latest in summer wear for the "Smart Set."

DNRI Monthly Coffee Held

The monthly coffee of the ladies of the Department of Nonresident Instruction was held recently at the home of Mrs. Daniel Schreiber with Mrs. David Ward as co-hostess.

The coffee table's centerpiece was a large spray of white dogwood. Other floral arrangements were placed around the living room.

Mrs. Charles C. Harris was the guest of Peggie Harris.

Fashion Show, Infantry Chorus Spark Luncheon

Spring fashions and yellow and pink spring flowers added a regal touch to the main dining room of the Custer Terrace Branch of the Main Officers' Open Mess recently, as the ladies of the 1st Infantry Brigade met for their March luncheon.

Other decorations were bright green and yellow candles set in candelabra. The "first robin of spring" was depicted in a large mural completed by 1st Brigade's Harry Gladstone. The painting was framed on a beige backdrop of the club stage.

Entertainment for the luncheon was provided by the new Fort Benning Infantry Chorus. The group sang "Song of the Jolly Roger," "Benny Havens, Oh," "Winter Song" and "Aura Lee."

Reorganized in January, the chorus recently performed for the West Point alumni banquet held on the post. Chorus director is Bob Binkley.

CO-EQUAL PARTNERS

In 1947, when the Air Force was established as a separate service, the secretaries of the Army and Air Force agreed that they would jointly govern a world-wide Exchange Service, as co-equal partners.

Mrs. Cyril Sterner, president of the Woman's Club of Fort Benning, was introduced as special guest. Mrs. Sterner expressed her sincere appreciation to all Brigade ladies who participated in the operation of the Thrift Shop.

Seated at the head table, in addition to Mrs. Sterner, were Mesdames William H. Birdsong Jr., Lawrence S. Reynolds, Paul C. Emley, Charles T. Caprino, Willis E. McClain and Harvey R. Barker.

Barbara Hare's Report Card...

Today, our spotlight centers on seven girls who recently have become members of the Sigma Delta Beta sorority. After "Rush" on March 8, the girls went through the initiation period for two weeks. The new members will be inducted on April 7 into a wonderful sisterhood in which they will be proud.

First, Liz Reynolds steps into the spotlight. Liz, the daughter of Col. and Mrs. L. S. Reynolds, is a senior at Pacelli High School. Liz moved to Benning last August from Falls Church, Virginia. She hopes to attend college in Virginia and major in French. Her ambition is to join the Peace Corps.

She is a member of JADA and is a writer on her school's newspaper, The Pacellian. In February, she participated in the declimation contest at Emory University in Atlanta. She plays forward on the basketball team. Liz was born on August 5, 1944.

Another new member is Kathy Ewart, the daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. J. A. Ewart. Kathy is a sophomore at Columbus High School. She has lived at Benning for three years and has enjoyed many activities.

Kathy is a member of the Spanish Club, secretary treasury of the Library Club, and president of her Sunday School class. She sings in the choir at the Protestant Chapel and attends the Follow-Me-Club. For hobbies, Kathy claims shooting and photography.

Martha Harris was born on November 18, 1946, at Fort Benning. She came to Benning from Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. This Columbus High School sophomore is the daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. F. V. Harris. Among her activities are the Pep Club, JADA and Follow-Me-Club. Martha's hobby is riding. In fact, she has played basketball with YAC this year and her team won second place.

Next Terri Setaro steps into the spotlight. She came to Benning last June from Fort Bragg. Terri is the daughter of Major and Mrs. J. G. Setaro. She is a sophomore at Columbus High School, where she is a member of the Future Teachers of America and the Pep Club.

Terri has made the honor role several times. She was born in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, on September 16, 1946. Terri's hobby is playing the accordion. She is a member of JADA and YAC.

Johnnie Louise Hare is another new member. She is the daughter of Major and Mrs. John F. Hare. Johnnie was born on June 16, 1947, in Florence, South Carolina, and calls this "home". She attended Faith School last year and graduated in the top ten.

Johnnie is now a freshman at Columbus High School. She has one hobby - tennis. On April 7, Johnnie is going to model in the JADA fashion show for the Mother-Daughter-Luncheon.

The vice president of Pacelli High School's freshman class is our next subject. Leigh Vassar, daughter of Major and Mrs. E. F. Vasser, was born in Plaisburg, New York, on June 1, 1947. She is a member of the Pep Club, JADA, and the basketball team. Leigh enjoys all sports.

A freshman at Baker High School is the last new member of our salute. She is the daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Ralph L. Whitt. Kathy's birthday is September 30, 1947. She came to Benning in June, 1960, from Heidelburg, Germany. She is a member of the French Club and JADA.

Report Card is proud to salute the seven new Sigma Delta Sorority members. We also wish the girls and the entire sorority much luck for the future.

Mystery Often Behind Those Coin Rarities

By 2nd Lt. Jay P. Reakirt

In each and every set there are those key coins which are rare and expensive, some being nearly unattainable.

Each of these rarist of coins has a magical story answering the age old question, "Why?" Here are the highlights of a few of these great silver rarities.

The most publicized and expensive is the 1804 dollar. Some seven originals, struck at the mint in 1804, and seven restiks, struck at the mint about 1837, are known to exist.

There are several theories about the existence of this coin and no real conclusive proof. Mint records show 19,570 were minted. However, most collectors accept the theory that all were melted down before issue, commensurate with discontinuance of the dollar in 1804. The seven known pieces are considered exceptions.

Some believe all were struck around 1837 since the edges are not similar to dollars struck from 1791 to 1803. They resemble those struck from 1836 to 1839.

A third popular thought is that the 19,570 coins reported were of the dies dated 1803 which had not worn out and were used during 1804, a common practice during the early years of mints.

All of these theories are worthy of consideration. However, since no proof exists, this coin's background may remain a mystery.

Probably the greatest date rarity is the 1827 quarter, seven of which are known. Ten were accountable in 1827 but time has lost three.

The 1794 dollar receives little publicity but is definitely among the rarities. Its current price of $12,000 attests to this.

DOLLAR

With only about 30 known to exist, the coin is in great demand. Struck in Philadelphia by hand, it was the first of the great rarities.

Choir Concert Sunday

A concert of sacred music by Franz Schubert will be presented Sunday at 5 p.m. by the Chancel Choir of the First Presbyterian church.

The major work on the program will be Schubert's "Mass in G", one of the best known and most melodious of the masses. Other choral works will be Schubert's "The Lord is My Shepherd" and "Great is Jehovah".

The 40-voice choir is under the direction of Elizabeth Jenkins, and J. William Tarnblyn, professor of music at Auburn University, will be guest organist.

Soloists are: Barbara Downes, Araminta Shackelford, Phoebe Binkley, William J. King, Robert Binkley, and Garnett Shackelford. The public is invited to attend.

Veterans: File Records

ATLANTA — Every veteran should assemble and retain in a safe place well-known to his family a complete record of both his personal and military affairs, Georgia Veterans Service Director Pete Wheeler said last week.

Such a file should include such information as marriage certificates, birth or adoption certificates, divorce decrees, social security number, veteran's claims (or C) number, etc., in addition to discharge certificates and other military records.

Though a veteran might personally know such information himself, it quite often is not readily obtainable by the family in case of his death or if he becomes incompetent, Wheeler said.

And since much of this information is necessary to establish a claim for either the veteran himself, his widow, orphan, or other dependents, it is essential that it be available.

Veterans desiring to prepare such a file may receive advice or assistance at their nearest office of the Georgia Department of Veterans Service which is located in the Martin Building.

187 Here Today

Annual Tour By ROTC At Post Starts

The annual Reserve Officers Training Corps orientation program will begin here today when 187 cadets from four southern colleges and universities converge on the post for briefings on Infantry tactics.

The group will be the first of more than 550 cadets to take part in scheduled orientation tours. They will come from Georgia State College in Atlanta, Tuskegee (Ala.) Institute, Stson University in De Land, Fla., and Jacksonville (Ala.) State College.

Most of the cadets are college sophomores and juniors. Their tour is designed to orient them with life in the Army.

Their itineary includes a visit to the 1st Infantry Brigade where they will tour company-sized units, a briefing on Army aircraft at Fryar Field, an hour-long orientation on engineer tactics, and Infantry-tank teams in attack.

Accompanying the cadets will be 2nd Lts. Dennis P. McBride, project officer, William R. Copeland, scheduling officer, and Capt. Charles J. Boice, plans and operations officer, all of The Infantry Center Reserve Component Section.

The students are scheduled to leave the post tomorrow.

MP CO . . . 1st Lt. William J. Brett has assumed command of The Infantry Center Military Police Company. He was previously assigned as administrative officer of the Provost Marshals Office, and, in 1958, PMO assistant operations officer. He also served recently with the 2nd Infantry Division. Lt. Brett is a graduate of Seton Hall University, is married, and has two children.

Peach Growers Tour the Post

One hundred members of the Georgia Peach Growers Association visited the post Wednesday afternoon.

They arrived at the post after a luncheon at the Columbus Country Club.

The peach growers saw a demonstration by the 29th Infantry Scout Dog Platoon.

Later they toured the Main Post Weapons Pool, where they saw many of the Infantry's modern weapons, and for a look at Army history they visited The Infantry Museum.

National Library Week Will Be Observed on Post

Modern School Library Neither Dull Nor Dreary

A glance into the library at Faith School is enough to shatter any preconceived ideas that a library is merely a dull and dreary repository of tedious reference books.

True, there are shelves of books, for it is indeed a library. But there is much more.

Posters on the walls proclaim National Library Week to be observed April 8 to 14. There is a globe surrounded by dolls dressed in costumes of many nations. Special displays of books tempt the young reader on every hand.

At one table, two students watch intently as the librarian pours a bright orange powder into an artificial volcano. Ignited, the chemical gives a realistic eruption, complete with volcanic ash. Any reference on volcanos read after that demonstration will take on animation no author could put into words.

Another student is preoccupied with bits of pottery from the Smithsonian Institute. He had rushed into the library and asked for information on "Digging, you know, archeology?"

Miss Mae Craighead is head librarian for Fort Benning Children's Schools. Her library assistants at Faith School are the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grade pupils who have shown a definite interest in library science.

Each of 29 classes at Faith School spends one period a week in the library. The fifth and sixth graders schedule library by English classes. In each class, there are two library assistants.

When a class enters the library, there is no hesitation, no waiting for suggestions or instructions. The assistants move into position, to check books in or out. The other students go immediately to the material they need, checking references, selecting books or examining displays.

Some of the children at School refer to the library as the "Museum," because of the number and variety of collections they find there.

Snake specimens, ant farms, butterflies, Indian relics, a Smithsonian sea shell collection, tropical fish and even a preserved tapeworm are just a few of the "museum" type resources of the modern library.

Each of the five elementary schools at Fort Benning has a library. The schools and librarians are Loyd School, Miss Jean Adcock; Wilbur School, Mrs. Evelyn Southwood; Patch and Edward A. White Schools, Mrs. Margaret Pemberton; and Faith School, Miss Craighead, head librarian.

The five libraries circulate more than 1,900 books per week. There are 10,582 books catalogued and shelved at the libraries.

In addition to a set of encyclopedias in each classroom from grades four through eight, there are 10 sets in the libraries.

Other resources of the libraries include movie projectors, record players, TV sets, tape recorders, slide projectors, maps and globes and subscriptions to 40 different magazines.

The librarians select and process new books. They make displays, keep picture files, repair damaged books, inspire good reading habits and teach the students how to use a library.

First and second grade pupils in the schools go to the library for a story hour once each week.

From grades three through eight, the students learn how to use an index, a table of contents, the Readers Guide, encyclopedia, dictionary and a library card catalogue.

One of the most valuable assets of the libraries is the atmosphere created by the librarians and reflected in the pupils. At Faith School and the other four dependent schools, the library is a happy place to read, work and learn.

Much Available in Post Libraries

"Read and Watch Your World Grow," is the slogan for National Library Week which will be observed in post libraries as well as throughout the U. S. April 8 through 14.

Many items other than books are available to post personnel and their dependents in Benning's six Special Services sponsored libraries.

Newspapers from many states are available as are the major periodicals. As a service to personnel interested in higher education for themselves or dependents, the libraries stock catalogues from leading colleges.

Music has entered the library and all on post are equipped with stereo phonographs and hundreds of classical records. Special evenings are reserved for music appreciation.

For the more ambitious there are foreign language records with manuals covering European and Asiatic languages. These educational articles can be checked out or heard in the libraries.

As an added service for patients in Martin Army Hospital, librarians see to it that books and magazines are brought to patients' beds.

Carl Ficker, chief librarian, states that in the average month library goers use 93,000 to 100,000 of the library's items. Non-fiction, information on foreign countries and history are most called for.

"The movies, TV and radio have not crowded out the love for knowledge by students or children. Our reference service and circulation librarians are often unable to cope with demand," Ficker commented.

'Seneca Spear' Begins Thursday

Tankers Leave For Stewart

By 69th Armor PIO

The six companies of the 69th Armor departed this week for Fort Stewart to prepare for the forthcoming Exercise Seneca Spear.

Members of Company A and Company B left Monday morning and were followed by the departure yesterday of Company C, Company D and Headquarters Company.

Receive Tanks

The tank battalion moved to the south Georgia military reservation early in order to receive tanks prior to the beginning of the exercise.

No strangers to Fort Stewart, the tankers have undergone numerous firing exercises previously at the post, located near the Georgia coast. Fort Stewart is the home of the U. S. Army Armor and Artillery Firing Center.

Seneca Spear, say 69th officers, will give the tankers an opportunity to prove the ver-

QUARTERMASTER
Lt. Col. Stoecker

Lt. Col. Stoecker Joins Div as QM

BY 2ND QUARTERMASTER PIO

Lieutenant Colonel John V. Stoecker has assumed duties as division quartermaster. He succeeds Lieutenant Colonel James T. Durham.

Until joining the division, Col. Stoecker most recently served as deputy J-4 (logistics), Military Assistance Advisory Group, Viet Nam, where he was assigned for 17 months.

Col. Stoecker graduated in 1940 from Washington University, St. Louis, Mo., and entered the Army in February 1941.

Commissioned

A member of Class Two of the Quartermaster Officers' Candidate School, he was commissioned in January 1942. During World War II, he served with the G-3 section of IX Corps, with the G-4 sections of both the III and IV Corps, as the executive officer of the 49th Quartermaster Truck Battalion in Europe.

Following World War II, Col. Stoecker served successively in Guam, with G-3, Eighth Army and with G-3, Japan Logistical Command. He returned from this overseas assignment to three years' duty with the Reserve Officers' Training Corps Department of the University of Houston (Texas).

In 1955, Col. Stoecker was assigned to the Quartermaster Division, Headquarters, United States Army Europe. Returning from his assignment in 1957, he served in the Plans Office, Office of the Quartermaster General, until 1960. As additional duty, he acted as the quartermaster of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's Central Army Group.

Col. Stoecker attended the Command and General Staff College in 1943, the Quarter-

Fort Stewart Exercise to Introduce Div Men to New Terrain, Many 'Firsts'

By Div PIO

Some 65 officers and men of the 2nd Infantry Division left Fort Benning yesterday, to set up a Maneuver Headquarters at Camp Oliver on the Fort Stewart reservation.

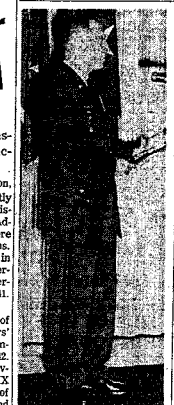
These were the men of Seneca Spear Maneuver Headquarters, the organization responsible for the planning and coordination of Exercise Seneca Spear.

Originally assigned to the First Army, Exercise Seneca Spear was later reassigned by U.S. Continental Army Command to the Third Army, which in turn assigned it to the 2nd Infantry Division.

Many "firsts" are involved in this exercise. This is the first full division - sized exercise since the division became a member of STRAC. This is the first division-sized exercise conducted on unfamiliar terrain, off the Fort Benning Reservation. For the first time, the 2nd Infantry Division is using the Military Air Transport system to move men and equipment for a maneuver, in conjunction with the rail movement of heavy equipment and the road movement of other vehicles and personnel. All of these things have been coordinated and planned by Seneca Spear Maneuver Headquarters.

Maneuver Staff

Major General Charles H. Chase, 2nd Division commander, is the exercise director, and in charge of the overall maneuver. Deputy director is Colonel Maurice C. Holden. Other officers assigned to the maneuver headquarters include Major Daniel L. French, director of administrative services; Lieutenant Colonel Charles F. Austin, director of logistics; Lieutenant Colonel Sidney J. Roche, executive officer; Major Dudley T. Bunn, operations chief and Major Charles F. Nietman, signal officer.



Beginning Tuesday, the main body of the 2nd Infantry Division will begin movement to Fort Stewart, Georgia, for Exercise Seneca Spear, a six-day, two sided, division level continuous tactical exercise. This will climax over a month of intensified planning and preparation.

Conducted entirely on the Fort Stewart Reservation, the exercise will be conducted under simulated combat conditions, using the "opposing forces concept." both forces will adhere to U. S. doctrine and tactics, although for each force an assumed enemy will be the Aggressor Nation.

Opposing Forces

The two forces are designated the Blue Force and Yellow Force. The Yellow Force, composed of the 2nd Infantry Division Brigade Task Force, will oppose the Blue Force, 2nd Infantry Division minus. The capabilities of the division have Marines' Brig. Gen. Brunelli Honored Mon. at Ceremony

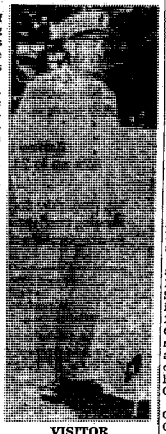
By Div PIO

The commanding general of the Landing Forces Training Unit, Atlantic Amphibious Training Command, visited the 2nd Infantry Division this week.

Brigadier General Austin R. Brunelli, United States Marine Corps, was welcomed to the division with an honors ceremony at division headquarters parade field Monday morning.

Following a conference with Major General Charles H. Chase, division commanding general, and lunch at the Supper Club, General Brunelli addressed unit commanders and staff representatives attending the Landing Force Training Unit class.



Class

The class is being conducted in the division by the Landing Force Training Unit's mobile training team of Little Creek, Virginia.

An informal reception was held for General Brunelli at the Supper Club late Monday afternoon.

A 1931 graduate of the United States Naval Academy, General Brunelli became an expert on amphibious operations par-

'Always Be Proud of Assignment,' Says Departing ADC at Ceremony

BY DIV PIO

A farewell honor ceremony was held March 29 at division headquarters parade field, honoring Brigadier General Royal Reynolds Jr. prior to his departure for his new assignment.

Bright sunlight sparkled on the brass of the 2nd Division band instruments, and a soft breeze ruffled the colors assembled for the miniature review, as the departing assistant division commander and Major General Charles H. Chase, 2nd Division commanding general, trooped the line.

Regret

In brief remarks during the honors ceremony, General Chase emphasized his regret at losing General Reynolds, stating: "You have performed magnificent duty here."

General Reynolds, speaking to the assembled commanders and audience, said in part: "I will always be proud of my assignment. . . I have been fortunate in my assignment here."

General Reynolds left the division April 1 for his new assignment as assistant commandant, United States Army Infantry School, Fort Benning.

He will be succeeded as assistant division commander by Brigadier General Charles Billingslea, currently serving as Eighth U. S. Army chief of staff. General Billingslea is scheduled to join the 2nd Division in June.

2ND DIVISION'S DISPLAY AT INFANTRY MUSEUM, MAIN POST

2nd Division Historical Display Dedicated at Infantry Museum

A 2nd Infantry Division display depicting various activities of the division throughout its history was dedicated last Wednesday at the Infantry Museum at Fort Benning.

Present for the dedication ceremony were Major General Charles H. Chase, division commanding general, and Brigadier General John E. Kelly, deputy commanding general of the U. S. Army Infantry Center.

Projecting Pictures

The display includes a large sand-blasted plate glass window on which are projected pictures showing the division in 1918, in 1944, in 1950 and as it is today. A projector within the display provides a continuous show of 48 different slides. The projector is activated by a switch operated by the viewer.

Submitted following a request by letter from Brigadier former Assistant Commandant of the U. S Army Infantry School, the 2nd Division display will be joined in the Infantry Museum by displays of all other active Army divisions.

Project officer for this display was Lieutenant Colonel John B. Wine, division Assistant Chief of Staff, G-2. Management operator for the project was Lieutenant David J. Jones of the 2nd Military Intelligence Detachment.

Carpentry and general construction of the division display were accomplished by Specialist Five John F. Marshall of the 9th Infantry's Headquarters and Headquarters Company.

Funds for construction of the display were contributed by the 2nd Division Officers' Wives Club, the Ladies of the Big Indianhead and the Second (Indian Head) Division Association.

The present display incorporates the ideas of all division units. Suggestions were submitted to Col. Wine from all division units. From these suggestions was built a 12-by-eight-by-five-foot Philippine mahagony display unit. In the center hangs a large mosaic tile division crest showing the traditional division Indianhead. The crest, made by Lt. Col. Wine, has a multi-colored mosaic front with a glossy finish. Surrounding the crest is a white bull-nose tile border.

On one side of the crest is the rear-view projection screen, capable of providing a continuous 48-slide show. On the opposite side of the crest is a twelve-inch deep showcase type window with one plate glass shelf. Displayed as a backdrop to this window are all the 2nd Division battle streamers, shown against black velvet.

The glass shelf is there to display current decorations. At this time, two trophies are shown — first place in the Third U. S. Army Rifle Matches and first place in the Third U. S. Army—Pistol Matches.

On display below the shelf are Belgian and French fourragares and a Republic of Korean Presidential Unit Citation streamer awarded to the division following the Korean Conflict.

The slides shown by the display take in all division elements. It is planned that these pictures will be varied from time to time to show the change and progress of the 2nd Infantry Division.

Six 1st Officers At Little Creek

Six officers of the 1st Infantry have reported for temporary duty at Little Creek, Virginia. They are attending the Basic Officers' Embarkation course.

Attending the four-week course are Lieutenants Murray Schooner, battle group S-4, Joe A. Garner, of Company A and Hugh B. Sproul, Company B.

Also attending the course are Lieutenants David E. Popham, Company D, John L. Hitti, Combat Support Company and Ralph B. Dunn of Headquarters Company.

CG to Address 1st Tomorrow

By 1st Infantry PIO

Major General Charles H. Chase, commanding general, will speak to the 1st Infantry tomorrow.

The battle group will be massed at UTA 1, directly across from the new battle group headquarters building for General Chase's visit at 9 a.m.

The Chant Contest, which was postponed last Saturday because of the heavy rainfall, will also be held tomorrow morning. The contest is to select a chant for the battle group from the entries of the companies.

The contest and the presentation of the awards will be held after General Chase has completed his visit.

Seneca Spear 'Heroes' May Earn Distinguished and Silver Spears

Outstanding 2nd Division men participating in Exercise Seneca Spear will be eligible for awards for their acts of "heroism," "gallantry," "meritorious achievement" or "injuries" sustained at the hands of the aggressors.

The decorations will include the Distinguished Spear, Silver Spear, Bronze Spear and Purple Spear.

Purpose

The purpose of the awards program, according to a Seneca Spear Maneuver Headquarters directive, "is to provide tangible evidence of recognition for exceptional service or achievement and to provide realistic training in the administrative procedures required to support a combat awards program."

Recommendations for the awards will be the "responsibility of any individual having personal knowledge of an act, achievement or service warranting a recommendation for consideration to submit such recommendation immediately."

Exercise decorations — except for the Distinguished Spear — will be presented by the individual authorizing the award. The exercise director will present the Distinguished Spear.

According to the directive, the Silver Spear may be awarded by the commanding general or the chief of staff and the commander of Division Brigade.

The Bronze Spear and the Purple Spear may be awarded by commanders of battle groups, Division Artillery, Division Trains or separate battalions.

To qualify for the Distinguished Spear, the Exercise Seneca Spear-participant "shall have distinguished himself by extraordinary heroism in connection with military operations against the aggressor enemy. The act or acts of heroism must have been so notable and so extraordinary as to set the individual apart from his comrades."

The Silver Spear will be awarded "to any person who, while serving in any capacity with any unit participating in Exercise Seneca Spear, shall have distinguished himself by gallantry not warranting the award of the Distinguished Spear. The required gallantry, while of a lesser degree than that required for the award of the Distinguished Spear, must nevertheless have been performed with marked distinction."

The Bronze Spear applicant "shall have distinguished himself by heroic or meritorious achievements or serve in connection with military operations against an aggressor enemy."

Purple Spear

The Purple Spear will be awarded to "any member ... and to any civilian of the United States serving with or observing activities ... who is injured either in action against an aggressor enemy or as a direct result of an act of such enemy."

The Outstanding Unit Spear Citation will be awarded to an organization when the "heroism displayed or meritorious service performed is a result of group effort." Authority to make such an award will be reserved by the exercise director who may, "upon competent recommendation," bestow such awards on participating units.

Do Not Address Mail to Stewart

Division men expecting to get mail at Fort Stewart should heed this warning: do not have mail addressed to you at Fort Stewart.

Personal mail and official communications will be delivered to the Division Rear from Fort Benning daily. From the Division Rear, mail and official communications will be distributed to the BLUE and YELLOW forces and Maneuver Headquarters. Likewise, personal mail and official documents will be picked up from Division Rear and delivered to Fort Benning daily.

Under no circumstances, say division officials, have mail addressed to Fort Stewart.

Awards or decorations made by the exercise director will be announced on Seneca Spear Maneuver Headquarters orders.

Other awards of decorations made pursuant to delegated authority will be announced on Special Maneuver. Orders of the headquarters of the individual authorized to make the award. Certificates announcing awards of decorations for "meritorious achievement" and "meritorious service" will include only the places and inclusive dates of such achievements of service.

AT SENECA SPEAR HEADQUARTERS . . . Major Daniel L. French, right, director of administrative services for the exercise, and Lieutenant Robert E. Austin, chief of the visitors bureau, prepare for the move to Fort Stewart, where the six-day exercise will take place.

Mossburg New Commo Officer At 1st Infantry

Lieutenant James E. Mossburg has recently been assigned to Headquarters Company, 1st Infantry, as the new communications officer.

His previous assignment was with Company B, 1st Infantry, where he served as a platoon leader, after joining the battle group in June 1961.

Lieutenant Mossburg entered the service in July 1958, as an enlisted man. He worked in the aircraft maintenance field and entered the Infantry Officers' Candidate School, Fort Benning, in 1960, and was commissioned in December of that year.

Lieutenant Mossburg has received the Good Conduct Medal and the Parachutist's Badge prior to joining the 1st Infantry.

been augmented by certain other units attached to it for the duration of the exercise.

The Brigade Task Force will be composed of Brigade Headquarters, the 38 Infantry, minus Company A, and other supporting units, including Fort Stewart's 123rd Tank Battalion. Division minus will be made up of the remaining division units.

The exercise will provide for defensive, offensive, and major river crossing operations for each force, with sufficient terrain to permit extensive movement of mechanized task forces. Both will be subjected to guerrilla - type operations from specialized troops under the direction of Maneuver Headquarters. The employment of nuclear, chemical, psychological warfare, and Army Aviation will be integrated as extensively as possible.

Logistical support will be actual, to the greatest possible extent. Artillery live - fire will be conducted during a portion of the exercise.

Morale Builders

Division activities during the exercise will be complete, including Palm Sunday religious services in the field, postal service, and some Post Exchange facilities.

Esprit of the troops will be enhanced by the award of decorations for acts of "heroism," "gallantry," "meritorious achievement" or "injuries" sustained at the hands of the "enemy."

The decorations will include the Distinguished Spear, Silver Spear, Bronze Spear and Purple Spear.

Casting Underway

'Courtroom Drama' To Be 87th TI Class

Casting was begun this week at the 87th Infantry to find parts for about 20 enlisted men who will stage a most special courts martial at the end of the month.

The case, which involves a charge of larceny, will be used to illustrate a class in military justice and will demonstrate the multi-faceted subject of the due process of law.

'Drama'

The courthouse "drama" was prepared by the special subjects department of the U.S. Army Infantry School and uses a 40-page scrIpt which calls for 12 officer parts and a smaller number of enlisted mao parts which include the principle members of both the prosecution and defense.

Without giving away the final outcome of the fictitious case against Private Lennie O. Bark, who is accused of stealing a camera from a Sergeant Tom Lenz, the court martial places the burden of proof upon the prosecution, who, together with the testimony of Chief Warrant Officer Kiery Holmes of the Criminal Investigation Detachment, must convince the panel of officers that Private Bark is guilty beyond a shadow of a doubt.

The project will be supervised by Lieutenant Floyd W. Blunk, who said he feels that the vast amount of preparation and rehearsal will result in an interesting and informative troop information hour.

8 Awarded ACMs in Div

Three 2nd Division officers and four non-commissioned officers have been awarded the Army Commendation Medal "for meritorious service" by direction of the Secretary of the Army. In addition, a First Oak Leaf Cluster to the Army Commendation Medal was awarded to a 702nd Ordnance Battalion warrant officer.

Those cited included Captain Stanley M. Pharr, 2nd Engineer Battalion; Lieutenant Romie W. Mills Jr., 2nd Administration Company; Chief Warrant Officer Robert C. Huddleston, 12th Artillery; Master Sergeant Alexander W. Madar, 87th Infantry; Sergeant First Class Charles Darnell Jr., 23rd Infantry; Sergeant First Class Harlan M. Temple, 15th Artillery, and Sergeant James H. Jones, 23rd Infantry.

Chief Warrant Officer Chester F. Kopicki, 702nd Ordnance Battalion, received the Army Commendation Medal (First Oak Leaf Cluster) for "meritorious service."

The new "SOM" was born in Copperspur, Colorado. He is 24 years old and calls Kremmling, Colorado, his home town.

Having finished the ninth grade in Kremmling High School, Sergeant Baker joined the Army in 1956 and since then has completed his high school education through the Army's General Educational Development Program. He is now completing his first year of college through the same program.

After completing basic training at Fort Carson, Colorado, Sgt. Baker went to Germany under "Operation Gyroscope," with the 8th Infantry Division.

He came to Fort Benning in October 1960 to the 23rd Infantry, where he served as a platoon sergeant in a basic training program.

While Sgt. Baker was with the 23rd Infantry, he, on numerous occasions, was awarded the 23rd Infantry's "Soldier-of-the Month."

He was selected March "Soldier-of-the-Month" by a selection board comprised of senior non - commissioned officers representing all major units of the 2nd Infantry Division.

Characteristics judged by the board include knowledge of the job, general military knowledge and appearance.

His wife and two children, presently residing in Arlington, Va., plan to join him at Fort Benning at the end of the school year in June.

The new quartermaster said that he feels that serving with one of the most decorated quartermaster units in the Army is "certainly an honor" and promises to "maintain the high degree of proficiency for which our unit is known and respected, and to support to the maximum the units of the division in any type of operation and under any circumstances."

Red Cross Rep. At Maneuver Hq.

A representative of the American Red Cross will be available to 2nd Division men during Exercise Seneca Spear at Fort Stewart.

The Red Cross representative will be located at Maneuver Headquarters.

However, dependents in need of assistance should contact the Red Cross representative at Fort Benning, who, in turn, will make liaison with the representative at Fort Stewart. Under no conditions should dependents be encouraged to contact the Fort Stewart representative.

Club Election Set For April Lunch

The Second Division Officers' Wives Club will announce the slate of officers for the coming year at this month's luncheon, to be held on April 10 in the Main Ballroom of the Main Officers' Open Mess.

The nominating commitee, headed by Mrs. Walter Todd, has met and chosen the new slate. The ladies will be introduced at the April luncheon, and votes will be cast at the May luncheon.

Mrs. Charles Austin, club second vice - president, announced that membership in the club is "always open to all officers wives in the Division. If you are not yet a member you may join through your unit representative, or at the luncheon. Membership fee is $1.00. For those wives whose husbands joined the division on or after January 1, the membership fee is 50 cents. In order to vote, you must be a member."

The program for the April luncheon is a one-act play titled "Ways and Means" written by Noel Coward, and presented by The Masquers, Fort Benning's Little Theater group.

Incidental Intelligence

Bridge, Canasta

The Ladies of the 9th Infantry gathered for bridge and canasta recently in the Normandy Lounge. Mrs. Herman L. Goldman was hostess for the evening. Winners for the evening were Mrs. Nell Spettel, a guest, and Mrs. Grady F. Webster.

Buffet Supper

Colonel and Mrs. Louis A. Kunzig Jr. entertained recently with a buffet supper. Guests for the evening were Captain and Mrs. Harold P. Austin, Captain and Mrs. Isaac W. Sanders, Lieutenant and Mrs. David K. Williams, Lieutenant and Mrs. James R. Hall, Lieutenant and Mrs. Joel W. Breeding, and Lieutenant Lawrence M. Malone.

37th Arty Ladies Host At Terrace

The distaff members of Division Artillery held their monthly luncheon at the Custer Terrace Officers Club last Tuesday.

The ladies of the 37th Artillery acted as hostesses for the occasion. Mrs. Lloyd Johnson was overall chairman, assisted by Mrs. Joseph Mordente, and Mrs. James Compton. Other hostesses were: Mrs. Donald Tucker, Mrs. Wade Whitley, Mrs. Henry Parker, Mrs. James Eagle, Mrs. George Callahan and Mrs. Theodore Landkammer.

Ceramic Door Prize

The first door prize was a ceramic piece made and donated by Mrs. Kenneth Biddle. The floral centerpiece of yellow mums and gladiolia was the second door prize.

The luncheon tables were decorated with branches of flowering wisteria, dogwood, apple blossoms, spiria, and japonica.

Two new arrivals to Headquarters, Division Artillery, were greeted by the group. They are Mrs. Robert Parr and Mrs. Edward Hay.

Farewells were said to Mrs. Wade Whitley, Mrs. Donald Shomake and Mrs. Charles Mills.

The two honored guests at the luncheon were the wives of former Division Artillery commanding officers. They were Mrs. Clarence Clapsaddle and Mrs. Frank Osmanski.

Musical Fish

It is true that a fish can be taught to play a musical instrument. Arnold K. Bass of Baltimore, Md., learned to play the tuba in six months.

WIVES CLUB PRESIDENTS MEET . . . Meeting at the recent dedication of the 2nd Division Infantry Museum Display are Mrs. Walter D. Hutchko, left, president of the Ladies of the Big Indianhead, the division Non-commission Officers' Wives Club, and Mrs. Louis A. Kunzig, Jr., president of the 2nd Division Officers' Wives Club. Both clubs donated funds toward building the division's display at the Infantry Museum.

Newcomers Welcome!

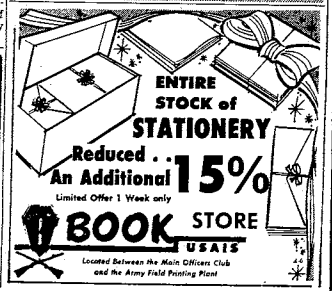
The Ladies of the Big Indianhead will hold their monthly luncheon April 12th at 1 p.m. at the Sand Hill Non-Commissioned Officers' Open Mess.

Members have extended a welcome to all newcomers. Reservations may be made before 9 a.m. April 11 by calling Mrs. Wayne Cliff at FA 4-3819 or Mrs. Howard Flora at MU 9-5015.

G-1 Ladies Host

The wives of Headquarters, Second Division, held a coffee in the Normandy room of the Main Officers' Open Mess on Wednesday.

The ladies of the G-1 section acted as hostesses. The serving table was centered with a large antique brass and crystal candelabra, on a marble base, with pink candles and a nosegay of pink roses enhancing it.



Farewells were said to Mrs. Phil Harris, Mrs. Gregg De Wolfe and Mrs. Herman Park.

Among the many new arrivals to be greeted were: Mrs. Milton Rothleitner, and Mrs. James O'Neill, whose husbands recently joined the G-1 section; Mrs. Rutland Beard, Mrs. Charles Laakso and Mrs. Charles Johnson, whose husbands are newcomers to the G-4 Section; Mrs. Dudley Pittman, wife of Lt. Col. Pittman 2d Medical Bn Cmdr; Mrs. Albert Becker, wife of Major Becker, of Division Aviation, and Mrs. George Nelson, whose husband is the recently appointed Division Postal Officer.

Alpha Guns Quit Silence

By 17th Arty PIO

The guns of Alpha Battery roared again as the 17th Artillery sounded salutes for the 2nd Infantry Division in two ceremonies.

The first of the salutes was in a farewell ceremony to Brigadier General Royal Reynolds, Jr. The second was a welcome for Brigadier General Austin H. Brunelli. Both were eleven-gun salutes.

The salute requires rapid loading and precision timing. The guns are fired at two-second intervals.

Alpha Battery is commanded by Captain Bryan Evans.

A Farewell Said To Mrs. Hallowell

Mrs. Norman Hallowell was bade farewell at the last weekly card party held at the home of Mrs. Oral J. Annis for the Ladies of the Big Indianhead.

Members presented Mrs. Hallowell with a gift of jewelry.

Mrs. Hallowell and children will reside in Green Cove Springs, Florida, while Master Sergeant Hallowell is in Korea.

Finance Facilities To Be at Stewart

The Division Finance Office wil be closed during the Seneca Spear exercise period.

However, division finance operations at Fort Stewart will be capable of processing normal financial needs.

Protestant Women of SH Chapel 3 Hold Panel, Discuss Christian Role

The Protestant Women of Sand Hill Chapel Three met recently for their monthly coffee.

The program consisted of a panel discussion on the topic, "What is the Christian Role in our World Today?" Panelists were Chaplain Robert C. Harllee, the 23rd Infantry Chaplain, who acted as moderator, Colonel (retired) Gynther Storaasli, Chaplain Hubert Garrell, Mrs. John L. Waldrop, director of Christian Education at Fort Benning.

After the panel discussion, the members planted shrubbery and flowers which they had donated. Refreshments were served outdoors by the two hostesses for the morning, Mrs. Bob E. Murdock, and Mrs. Edward Sexton.

Guests were Mrs. Clyde K. Cleveland, Mrs. James I. Williamson, mother of Mrs. Jonnie Wright and Mrs. R. J. Allison, mother of Chaplain Bob E. Murdock.

The next meeting of the group will be held on Wednesday April 25 at Chapel Three at 0930 hours. The program will consist of the election of officers for the coming six month period.

A free nursery is available at the Sand Hill Sunday School nursery for these occasions.

The Bayonet Cookbook

Potatoes Bretonne, a French recipe, is submitted this week by Mrs. Oral J. Annis, wife of Master Sergeant Annis of the 1st Infantry.

The Annis household includes two Dachshunds, living at 814-H Arrowhead Road. Mrs. Annis participates in golfing, bowling and bridge.

POTATOES BRETONNE

Finely chopped onion, mushrooms and celery to make one cup.
3 tablespoons butter or oil
3 tablespoons cider vinegar
4 cups sliced boiled potatoes

Saute onion mixture lightly, add vinegar and bring to a boil. Add the cold potatoes, season with salt and pepper. Mix well and simmer until heated through.

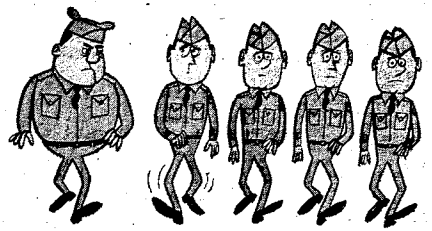
Liberians End 9th Visit

Two Liberian Army Officers recently completed a two-week visit to the 9th Infantry. The Clifford C. Reeves and James C. Richards.

The officers were initially briefed by Lieutenant Ned G. Patrick, assistant adjutant of the 9th Infantry. Upon completion of their briefing, the two officers were taken on a tour of the 9th Infantry area and were later able to observe and take part in some of the 9th's field training.

The two officers, who arrived in the United States in January, have also attended the Orientation Course at Fort Benning's Main Post.



Commo Officer Leaving 7th Cav

BY 7th Cavalry PIO

Lieutenant Monte V. Davis, the communications officer of the 7th Cavalry, will be leaving the squadron this month.

Lt. Davis arrived at the 7th Cavalry in April 1960 after attending the Armor Officers' Orientation Course at Fort Knox, Kentucky. Upon his arrival in the squadron, Lt. Davis was assigned as a platoon leader in Troop A. In July 1960, he went to Fort Knox, Kentucky, where he attended the Armor Communications Course until Oct. 1960. On his return to the squadron, he was assigned as the squadron communications officer.

Lt. Davis will return to civilian life, where he will work in agriculture. He graduated from Auburn University in June 1959.

Bravo Co. Wins Manchu Bouts

BY J. J. SHIELDS

Before a roaring crowd of more than 500 fans, the 9th Infantry recently completed the finals of the Manchu Company-Level Boxing Tournament at Kelley Hill gym.

With a six bout card and a company level champion to be crowned before the end of the evening, the assemblage roared its approval as the bell was sounded for the start of the evening's events.

First in the squared circle were the lightweights, with Amador Navarro of Headquarters Company and Willie Ruff of Delta Company, exchanging blows in a tight decision in favor of Ruff.

The next bout pitted Carl Wheatley of Echo Company against a hard hitting southpaw, Benny Ray of Combat Support Company, with Wheatley the winner on points.

The third bout saw welterweights John B. Scott of Bravo Company and John Vona of Delta Company slug it out for 1:10 of the first round with Scott the winner by a KO.

The fourth bout on the card saw middleweight Bennie Stith of Echo Company floor Leroy Davis of Delta Company at 1:40 of the second round for the KO victory.

Although game and hard hitting til the end, Jay Arms of Bravo Company dropped a decision to Ray Roberts of Delta Company in a lightweight contest.

The heavyweight clash of the evening saw Warren Foglesong of Bravo Company batter Matt Smith of Alpha. Although hampered by an ankle injury incurred while playing for the Manchu basketball five, Foglesong showed his steady, tremendous power by taking Smith by a decision.

At the conclusion of the evening's entertainment, Colonel Clifford P. Hannum, 9th Infantry commanding officer, presented awards to the winning individuals and the team champions, Bravo Company.

Myers Leads Medical Bn To Blast Hqs Co, 13-0

BY TRAINS PIO

Bravo Company of the 2nd Medical Battalion breezed by Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 13-0, through the pitching of Frank Myers.

To the surprise of some spectators, Myers walked the first two Headquarters batters, but later settled down to show why he is noted as a master of control.

It didn't take long for Myers to pitch himself past an almost dent in his record of 35 wins and two losses.

Batting in the first-place slot for the "pill-rollers" was Richard Rice, who sent a line drive down the third base line. He was followed by Ed Capeless who got his first hit of four-for-four times at bat for the evening.

James Dalton singled to first, loading the bases and bringing up Myers who doubled home Rice and Capeless.

James Hayes slammed two more for the medics while Seymour James, Terrence Kenney and Fidel Acevedo each got two hits for the evening.

Pinch-hitter Sam McManus came through with a double in the fifth.

Losing pitcher for the Headquarters team was Tommy L. Thompson.

Umpires for the match were Donald Gagnon and Bob Beechette of the 702nd Ordnance Battalion.

5 NCOs Get ACMs

By 23rd Inf. PIO

At an awards ceremony held Friday by Company E of the 23rd Infantry, five division non-commissioned-officers were presented Good Conduct Medals.

Honored in the ceremony were Master Sergeant Frank Rodriguez, Sergeant First Class William Bibbee, Sergeant Frederick J. Hanley, Sergeant Robert K. Keairoes and Sergeant Joseph Davis.

Master Sergeant Rodriguez, who has been with the 23rd Infantry for over three years, received the Good Conduct Medal Clasp, Sixth Award.

For Sergeant First Class Bibbee, this was the first award. He has been with the 23rd for over three years. Also getting the first award of the Good Conduct Medal were Sergeants Davis and Hanley.

Sergeant Keairnes received the third award of the Good Conduct medal. He is Company E's first cook.

The five men were cited for "exemplary behavior, efficiency and fidelity" from March 1959 to March 1962.

2nd Admin Wins Trains' Co.-Level Bowling Again

By Lou Prolago

Bowlers from the 2nd Administration Company, boasting a 31-9 record, have taken the title as Division Trains Company-Level Bowling Champions of 1962, a repeat performance of last year.

Admin, which maintained the tournament lead for ten weeks, clinched the title in taking four matches from the 2nd Quartermaster Company.

Members of the Admin keggler squad were Richard Abraham, Cecil Huff, Tom Ramsey, Jacob Gurczak, John Mirenzi and Thomas Garefino.

Second place team slot went to 2nd Aviation Company. Third place was copped by 13th Transportation Battalion, followed by 2nd Medical Battalion, 2nd Quartermaster Company and 702nd Ordnance Battalion keglers.

Topping the league in high average was Richard Abraham with 178. Second high average was Cecil Huff with 175 while Harry Begiau of 2nd Aviation Company had 174. Fourth place was Tom Ramsey, hitting 172. Tied at fifth place was Dan Stefanowich of 2nd Aviation Company and Jim Watts of Quartermaster Company, both averaging 171. These top six bowlers will represent Trains in the division play-offs.

Thomas Ramsey captured first place honors at individual high game with 224 followed by taking the first place slot at high series of three games with an amazing 622.

Lt Wheeler, Cav, Leaving Unit

By 7th Cavalry PIO

Lieutenant Larry A. Wheeler, executive officer of Troop C, 7th Cavalry, will be leaving the squadron this month.

Lt. Wheeler arrived at the 7th Cavalry in March 1960 after attending the Armor Officers' Orientation Course at Fort Knox, Kentucky. Lt. Wheeler was assigned as a platoon leader in Troop A and remained in that job until February 1961, when he was placed on temporary duty as the officer-in-charge of the Division Rifle Team.

As OIC, he led the team to the Third Army championship. During Lt. Wheeler's tour with the Division Rifle Team, he spent six weeks with the Third Army Team where he fired high man.

In September 1961, Lt. Wheeler was again back with the squadron and was assigned as executive officer of Troop C, where he remained until the present time.

Lt. Wheeler's future plans are to accept a position in Iowa as a hand instructor in the public schools. He is married and he and his wife reside on the post.

Fort Benning to Host Bowling Demonstration

Fort Benning will be the host for a two day demonstration in the art of bowling, to be held at the Main Post Bowling Alley, April 11-12, beginning at 1 p.m. daily.

Two qualified instructors from the American Machine & Foundry (AMF) Pinspotters Inc., will conduct the course of instructions and demonstrations in the art of bowling. The course of instruction will be directed to the development of male and female bowlers with emphasis on the beginners phase rather than the advanced stage.

Joe Brown, from Jersey City, N. J., a member of the Bowling Promotion Staff of AMF, has been one of the East Coast's leading competitive bowlers over the past five years.

Currently a member of the L & R Heat Treating Team in the high-scoring Bergen County League, he competes under the same banner in the Metropolitan Major League.

In 1953 he claimed the Eastern States Championship in Peterson, New Jersey, with a 226 average for five games, and in 1958 he won the Landgraf Classic in New York City with a four-game series of 911.

He is a former title-holder of both the Penn Classic in Pennsylvania and the Mid-City Tournament held each year in New York City.

He was New Jersey State Titleholder for two years — in 1951 and 1953. Over the past five years he has maintained a league average of 205.

In addition to his exhibition work for AMF, Joe has appeared on AMF produced bowling films. He was a member of "The American League of Bowling," "Bowling Time," the 26-week television series.

Employing a five-step delivery, he bowls a semi-roller ball with a sharpbreaking hook. Joe boasts a high league 1951.

A flame - haired, blue - eyed Miss from Dallas, Jan McNeil of the AMF Staff of Champions has been scoring the lanes and amassing titles to her name in tough Texas competitions.

In six years of bowling, Jan has taken such championships as the Tex-O Falls Invitational Singles and the Dallas City Doubles. In 1960 she was a member of the Dallas All-Star Team.

After attending the University of Arkansas she began taking titles in her home city of Ft. Smith, Arkansas. In 1953 she was City Singles Champ, in 1954 the City All Events winner and the following year, repeated her feat as top Singles player.

A strong team player, Jan keeps her average over 180 in three leagues, including the Dallas Traveling League.

Her travels are not limited to league competition, however, because she is an extremely popular member of the AMF Staff and is in great demand as an instructor around the country.

Her good coordination and timing, coupled with a graceful delivery, make Jan a highly promising bowler with strong prospects of winning national titles in the future.

Jan delivers a hook ball, using a four-step delivery in her approach.

Both instructors will be on hand to demonstrate their skills. This demonstration is open to all military personnel, dependents and guests.

Exhibition Held By Pro Golfers

Patty Berg, and Carol Mann, her partner on the exhibition circuit, were guests of the post ladies at a luncheon held in the Country Club Ballroom recently. They were introduced to the gathering by golf chairman Betty Dellinger and entertained the group with brief stories of their experiences on the professional tour.

Patty declared that golf is a great game for everyone but a particularly good sport for women. "Women are so often only spectators," she said, "but golf is one of the greatest participating sports and its appeal gets bigger every day."

She emphasized that golf provides opportunities for building good health as well as making good friends and is one of the few sports that can be played all during a person's life. "I can't think of a bad thing about golf", she remarked, "unless it's a hook or a shank. . .golf is the greatest sport in the world."

Present also at the luncheon and golf events were many members of the ladies golf group of the Columbus Country Club.

Following the luncheon, Patty and Carol held a clinic, showing how good golf shots should be made and why most golfers don't make them. They demonstrated the correct use of the irons and the woods as well as the fundamentals of proper grip, stance and pivot.

Patty, all time money winner for women, showed how she gained the honor over the years by driving the ball almost out of sight. Carol, in her second year on the professional tour, alternated with Patty in showing the proper use of the clubs and also conducted a question and answer period clinic.

Playing a nine-hole exhibition match on the Pine Side course of the club, Patty and Carol had current club champion Sequel Wood and Marge Carger for their partners. Patty played the round in one under women's par and Carol, finding tree trouble on No. 2, was two over for nine holes.

The gallery following the match enjoyed Patty's constructive comments on how to play each of her shots with special emphasis on the chipping and putting. Carol took time to show how to make sand shots correctly.

New York Teams Now In Spring Training Here

Six of the teams in the post's Major Unit Baseball League have scheduled exhibition games with two New York Mets' farm teams undergoing spring training in Columbus.

The post teams slated to see action against the two Class D teams are the 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery; 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry, 1st Infantry Brigade; 151st Engineer Group; 156th Signal Battalion, The Student Brigade, and the 428th Medical Battalion.

The two teams from the Mets' organization are Quincy, Ill., of the Midwest League, and Auburn, N. Y., of the New York-Penn League.

The first game is between Auburn and the 2nd Howitzer Battalion on April 11.

Following this on April 12 will be the Quincy team pitted against the 29th Infantry.

Both games will begin at 7 p.m. and will be played at Gowdy Field.

On April 14 at 1:30 p.m., Auburn will play the 151st Engineers at the post field. At the same hour on April 14, Quincy will meet the 156th Signal in Golden Park, Columbus.

The final games will pit The Student Brigade against Auburn at Golden Park on April 21 and Quincy against the 428th Medical Battalion at Gowdy Field, April 22. Both games will begin at 1:30 p.m.

Admission is free and the public has been invited to attend.

Better Bowling

COMFORT IS THE KEY . . . Since bowling is an active sport, clothing — shirt, trousers, underwear — should be loose and comfortable.

For example, although bowling centers rent shoes, your feet deserve personal ones that give good support, yet are flexible. It would follow that it is better to own your own.

Most important, wear a shirt that is made for plenty of arm motion. A bowling shirt is loose fitting, comfortable, but the pleated back won't restrict you.

To bowl your best, you must be comfortable.

Here Is the Meaning of Those 'Cold War' Terms

Discoveries in nuclear science have brought about a new kind of warfare that could lead to mass destruction.

But nuclear science is also responsible for a less technical type of warfare. . . a warfare calling for less scientists.

This warfare pits man against man in active and passive resistance to the other's ideology, both attempting to avoid the use of nuclear weapons.

Any sort of small, isolated fights may possibly develop. And the political picture must be clear to military planners.

To assist in understanding the Army's reference to special situations and commitments, the following list of terms and their definitions has been compiled by the Department of the Army.

Each soldier is expected to be familiar with the terms, DA has pointed out, and more complete information on all aspects of each term will be made available to all units.

COLD WAR — The use of political, economic, technological, sociological and military measures, short of overt armed conflict involving regular military forces, to achieve national objectives.

WARS OF SUBVERSION OR COVERT AGGRESSION — Terms used to define the Communist-inspired actions designed to subvert free governments through development of indigenous resistance movements, including the eventual organization of guerrilla forces, and the support of these movements from external sources. The aggression is characterized by a rising scale of violence passing from persuasion to coercion, reprisals, terrorism, and guerrilla warfare aimed at gaining control of a country.

WARS OF LIBERATION—A communist propaganda term used to dignify their efforts toward covert aggression.

SPECIAL WARFARE — This includes the interrelated fields of guerrilla warfare, evasion and escape, and resistance. Such operations are conducted in enemy-held or controlled territory and are planned and executed to take advantage of or stimulate resistance movements or insurgency against hostile governments or forces. In peacetime, the U. S. conducts training to develop its capability for such wartime operations.

RESISTANCE MOVEMENT —An organized effort by some portion of the civil population of a country to resist the legally established government or occupying power. Initially such resistance may consist of subversive political activities, and the other actions, designed to agitate and propagandize the populace to distrust and lose confidence in the legally established government or occupying power. If not suppressed, such resistance can result in insurgency by irregular forces.

INSURGENCY — A condition of subversive political activity, civil rebellion, revolt, or insurrection against a duly constituted government or occupying power wherein irregular forces are formed and engage in actions, which may include guerrilla warfare, designed to weaken and overthrow that government or occupying power.

GUERRILLA WARFARE — The conduct of combat operations in enemy or enemy-held territory on a military or paramilitary basis by units organized from predominantly indigenous personnel. The aim is to weaken the established government of the target country by reducing the combat effectiveness of the military forces, the economic means and the over-all morale and will to resist.

IRREGULAR FORCES —Broadly speaking, all types of insurgents to include partisans, subversionists, terrorists, revolutionaries and guerrillas.

PARAMILITARY FORCES —Those existing alongside the armed forces and professedly nonmilitary, but formed on an underlying military pattern as a potential auxiliary or diversionary military organization.

EVASION AND ESCAPE — Those operations whereby friendly military personnel and other selected individuals are enabled to emerge from enemy-held or unfriendly areas to areas under friendly control.

COUNTERINSURGENCY — All military, political, economic, psychological and sociological activities directed toward preventing and suppressing resistance groups whose actions range in degree of violence and scope from subversive political activity to violent actions by large guerrilla elements to overthrow a duly established government. The basic military problem is to maintain or restore internal security so that other elements of the counterinsurgency program can operate. Comprehensive national counterinsurgency plans are required to integrate and coordinate the use of all military and nonmilitary means, including available outside assistance to suppress and eliminate all forms of insurgency.

COUNTERGUERRILLA OPERATIONS — Those active and passive measures taken by the armed forces and nonmilitary agencies of an established government and its allies against guerrilla forces.

ARMY COUNTERINSURGENCY FORCES — These comprise special forces, civil affairs, psychological warfare, engineer, medical, light aviation, signal and other elements as required. They are capable of operating in disturbed areas, if invited by a host government, to provide training and operational advice and assistance to indigenous military forces engaged in maintaining or restoring internal security.

SPECIAL FORCES GROUPS —Specially trained and organized to train and assist indigenous leaders and forces in military measures, tactics and techniques required to prevent or eliminate hostile resistance and guerrilla groups. Other Army elements extend and complement the activities of special forces groups. Assistance and training provided to indigenous forces may include operational advice. The wartime mission of special forces groups is to organize, supply, train and direct predominantly indigenous forces in the conduct of guerrilla warfare in enemy-held or controlled territory to support the over-all military effort.

CIVIC ACTION — Any action performed by military forces of a country, utilizing military manpower and skills, in cooperation with civil agencies, authorities or groups, that is designed to improve the economic or social betterment of that country. Civic action programs can enhance the stature of indigenous military forces and improve their relationship with the population. Thus, such programs can be a major contributing factor to the elimination of insurgency.

PSYCHOLOGICAL WARFARE — Includes those activities and operations planned and conducted to influence the opinions, emotions, attitudes and behavior of the enemy, the indigenous population and neutral or friendly foreign groups in such a way as to support the accomplishment of national aims and objectives.

PCS Personnel Are Reminded Of Khaki Dates

Though post personnel are now wearing khaki uniforms, there remain some commands which will not make the changeover until a later date.

At Fort Dix, N. J., the changeover will be made May 7. Commands in Germany and France make the changeover June 4.

Personnel reporting to Fort Dix for overseas shipment are advised to arrive at Fort Dix with appropriate uniforms in their possession. Those without the necessary uniforms will be compelled to purchase items.

'SNACKETT' OPENED . . . Col. William Birdsong, 1st Infantry Brigade commander, cuts the ribbon officially opening the new snack bar at the 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry area. Despite heavy rain, the ceremony was well attended, including Lt. Col. Charles T. Caprino (Behind Col. Birdsong) and all commanders of 58th units. Free coffee and donuts were served the first day. Hours of operation will be from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m., seven days a week. Sp4 Vester E. Houseman of Headquarters Company suggested the winning name for the new facility: "The Tank Trail Snackett." He was awarded a $10 prize. The branch exchange is located adjacent to the S-3 parking lot.

TO REDUCE POISONINGS, members of Troop 37, Boy Scouts of America, volunteered their services during National Poison Prevention Week. The scouts distributed leaflets and collected poisonous items of which householders wished to dispose. Collecting articles from Mrs. John J. Joseph are (L to R) Mike Zerzan, son of Major and Mrs. Charles J. Zerzan, and Chip Williams, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. John W. Williams.

Fund Drive Goal Met By College

The $300,000 fund drive goal of Gordon Military College for construction of an auditorium-gymnasium has been reached, drive officials announced recently.

Pledges from Gordon alumni in Columbus and throughout the U. S. and foreign countries made the drive successful, officials said.

President C. T. Harris stated that a contract has been signed for the architect-engineer to proceed with final plans. Construction of the building on the Barnesville, Ga., campus will begin in May.

The Columbus Alumni Association of the college will meet at 7:30 p.m., April 27, at the Ralston Hotel. President Harris and other officials will display plans and specifications and a model of the prospective building. Models of other buildings completed in recent years will also be exhibited.

Alumni in the area who are not on the group's present mailing list have been urged to contact Lt. Col. and Mrs. John W. Williams, 545-2098, or C. M. Cowart, Jr., MU 9-8052, for reservations for the April 27 dinner-meeting.

In charge of arrangements for the meeting are Lt. Col. and Mrs. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Howard, Clarence M. Crews, J. S. Cauthen, 1st Lt. and Mr. John P. Eddy, C. M. Cowart, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Dickie Butler.

Know Your Senior NCOs

MSgt Acie Fields, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, is personnel management supervisor in the Military Personnel Branch, The Student Brigade, The Infantry School.

He serves as chief clerk of the Student Officers Branch Personnel, TSB, with the responsibility of handling administrative matters relative to students, and cadre officers pay and records.

As chief clerk, Sgt. Fields must have a complete knowledge of pay procedures. He also instructs student officers in procedures to follow when making a permanent change of station.

Sgt. Fields entered the Army in February, 1943. After receiving advanced training in Scotland he was transferred to the 585 Heavy Truck Unit, Third Army, England. He was with the truck unit through fighting in France and Germany. At the conclusion of World War II he returned to the U.S. for separation.

Fields

Sgt. Fields soon reenlisted for assignment in Germany and was stationed at Rhein Main Air Force Base, Frankfurt. Following his overseas tour he spent four years at Aberdeen Proving Grounds. He was once again assigned to Frankfurt, this time with the 709 Military Police Battalion.

Returning to the U.S., Sgt. Fields served one and one-half years at Fort Sheridan before being transferred to Fort Benning in 1957.

Among Sgt. Fields' decorations is the Good Conduct medal with fine pins.

Malatesta SOM Again at 69th

Specialist Five Alexander Malatesta is the 69th Armor's "Soldier-of-the-Month" for the third time in the past 13 months.

Specialist Malatesta, an assistant tank commander in Company C, is a native of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

Emergency Orders Now Given Early

WASHINGTON — Advance Emergency Orders to Active Duty have been issued by Department of the Army to thousands of Ready Reservists assigned as mobilization designees.

Through issuing these advance orders, DA hopes to insure rapid mobilization of key reservists, eliminating delays encountered in initial issuance of the orders.

An assigned unit and duty station are specified in the advanced orders. They indicate a reporting date not later than 30 days from the effective date of the ordrs.

Mobilization designees will proceed to their pre-assigned stations when announcement of mobilization is made. The announcements could come from the Secretary of The Army through newspapers, radio and television.

A laminated ID-type card is included in each set of Advance Emergency Orders. The card repeats identifying data and instructions contained in the orders.

Confirming orders authorizing reimbursement for travel and movement of dependents and household goods are planned for future issue.

Last fall's experience in partial mobilization of Ready Reservists showed the need for adjustments and changes in mobilization procedures.

Accreditation

Status Extension Granted To Martin Army Hospital

Martin Army Hospital has been approved as an accredited hospital for the next three years.

Approval was issued by the Board of Commissioners of the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals.

The commission is comprised of representatives of the American College of Surgeons, American Medical Association and American Hospital Association.

Martin Hospital was surveyed March 19 and 20 by Dr. Carl M. Dumbauld, field representative of the commission.

In a letter from Dr. Kenneth B. Babcock, director of the commission, the hospital was commended for maintaining standards deserving accreditation and for its efforts to improve the quality of patient care."

At the Movies

THE MAN WHO SHOT LIBERTY VALANCE stars James Stewart, John Wayne, Vera Miles, Lee Marvin, Edmond O'Brien, Andy Devine and Ken Murray. Determined to bring law, order and statehood to a western territory, a peace-loving, courageous lawyer is forced to resort to violence when he is prodded beyond endurance by a vicious hired killer.

13 WEST STREET is a suspense drama with Alan Ladd and Rod Steiger. A mild-mannered scientist is the victim of a vicious, unprovoked attack by a teenage gang. Action by the police department to apprehend the gang is too slow to suit him; he takes matters into his own hands in pursuit of the gang.

THE HUSTLER, staring Paul Newman, has been nominated for nine Academy Awards. The film climaxes Academy Award Week at the Rialto Theatre, Columbus. It will run on Friday and Saturday.

PAUL NEWMAN

Purdue Review Here Makes It Three in a Row

Forty-nine men and women from Purdue University at Lafayette, Ind., featured dance routines, comedy sketches and vocalists, when they came here last Saturday.

The show, "Wide World Revue," presented by the university and The Infantry Center's Special Services Section, was held in Theater 1.

The group had just returned from a tour of military posts in Europe, which they make annually. This was the third time they appeared at Fort Benning in the past three years.

See "An Evening Off Broadway" at the Playhouse, building 2519, on April 14, 20, and 21. Tickets will be available at the door.

Masquers--Unmasked

By Mrs. Phyllis Tritsch

In just one week The Masquers will present Eugene Ionesco's "The Bald Soprano" in a double bill with Terrence Rattigan's "The Browning Version."

"The Browning Version" is a moving drama, written in conventional form, with stark, well-drawn characters. On the other hand, "The Bald Soprano" is one of the most experimental and provocative modern plays ever written.

Written originally in French and directed as a wild spoof of the English, "The Bald Soprano" has been playing to audiences in England and America for the past five years.

Ionesco called this work an "anti-play". With it he attempted to destroy all remnants of law and order in writing for the theater. By discarding plot, logic, situation, and character development, he has created a play that is to drama what Picasso is to art.

As directed in this production by Peter Tatistcheff, "The Bald Soprano" is as enchanting as its title, fitting easily into what is known in the 20th Century as "The Theater of the Absurd".

The stage set utilizes four platforms, four plain chairs, a ramp, and a stepladder. One added note of originality in this Masquers' production is the addition of music composed by Tatistcheff for the last scene. As he states, "I think it's music, but I doubt many other people will. It is cacophony for a hilarious play."

Characters in the comedy are played by Jean Douglas, Maureen Bloemsma, Vince DeDario, and John Olbrys, with Karen Ottley featured in the role of "Mary".

The author's objective as interpreted by the director, is to confuse, bewilder, amuse and shock the audience into believing it is seeing a play, when in fact it is not!

Armed Forces Institute Starts 21st Year

By Cpl. Barry J. Forlune

The month of April marks the 20th anniversary of the U. S. Armed Forces Institute, better known to service personnel as USAFI.

The Education Center here hasn't entertained any special plans for the forthcoming event, but there will be much ado at USAFI Madison, (Wisconsin) the founding USAFI, where delegates from education centers throughout the Armed Services will gather for a conference.

Since its beginning in early World War II — just 17 days after Pearl Harbor, on December 24, 1941—USAFI has opened its doors to millions of young Americans in the Armed Services.

It was called the Army Institute then, and in April 1942, it was formally opened at its present headquarters in Madison. Its facilities were made available to the Navy in September, 1942, and in February of the following year, it was re-named the U. S. Armed Forces Institute.

Today, USAFI offers, directly, over 200 courses in elementary, high school, college, and vocational - technical subjects. In addition, more than 6,000 correspondence courses are available through USAFI from the extension programs of 44 leading colleges and universities throughout the U.S. — all of this for the initial enrollment fee of $5 and the stipulation that students may continue to take courses free of charge as long as they complete them satisfactorily.

Important Dates In USAFI's History

December 24, 1941	—	Official proclamation of the Army Institute
April 2, 1942	—	Official opening of the Army Institute
June 4, 1942	—	First course completion
October 1942	—	First catalog published
December 8, 1942	—	First branch established in Hawaii
		U.S. Naval enlisted personnel (USMC and USCG) authorized to enroll
February 2, 1943	—	Army Institute renamed the United States Armed Forces Institute
July 6, 1943	—	Officers authorized to enroll
July 1, 1946	—	USAFI became a permanent activity
January 10, 1950	—	Directorship of USAFI civilianized
June 1954	—	USAFI's 2,000,000th enrollment
September 1961	—	USAFI's 5,000,000th enrollment

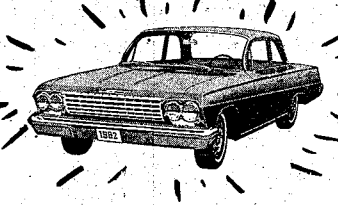
FACT FOUR: Horsepower Comparison

	Horse-Power	Weight Per H.P.
Rambler Classic	127	23.67
Tempest	110	23.45
Chevy II	90	28.56
Fairlane	101	29.00
Comet	85	29.40



Rambler gives far better power to weight ratios resulting in overall better performance in passing and hill climbing — no second gear shifting on hills — which gives better gas mileage with less weight to pull.

FACT FIVE: RAMBLER GIVES
you far more dollar value than any other automobile. Be fair to yourself, before you buy any 1962 model car, come see how much more Rambler offers for less money.

Capt. Culp and Sgt. Clark Earn Airborne Honor Graduate Status

Capt. Charles B. Culp and Sgt. Billy E. Clark have been named honor graduates in the Airborne - Air Mobility Department's 25th training class in Fiscal year 1962.

Culp and Clark were among the 480 Infantry School graduates, who completed the Airborne training that earned them the silver badges of paratroopers.

The graduating class included 416 Army enlisted students and 35 officers, two Air Force enlisted men and six officers, 15 Marine Corps enlisted men and four officers and two Allied student officers.

Among the graduates was Col. Bernard G. Teeters, director of The Infantry School Ranger Department.

Also receiving silver graduation badges were the sons of two paratroopers who fought in World War II.

They were Sp4 Richard H. Smith, stepson of Granville W. Cooper, a former combat paratrooper with the 11th Airborne Division and Pvt. Robert J. Pitzen, son of Leonard Pitzen, formerly with 101st Airborne Division.

AFMA Members Get Report On Infantry Human Research

Infantry human research was the topic of a program presented to 85 members of the post Chapter of the Armed Forces Management Association last week.

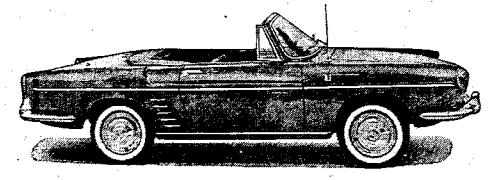
Speaking at a luncheon meeting of the Main Officers' Open Mess were Lt. Col. Lyman H. Clark, military chief, and Dr. Carl J. Lange, director of research of the Infantry Human Research Unit on the post.

Col. Clark said the unit was organized in 1953 and is part of HUMRRO (Human Resources Research Office) of George Washington University in Washington, D.C.

HUMRRO, he said, is under contract with the government to conduct psychological research to improve training.

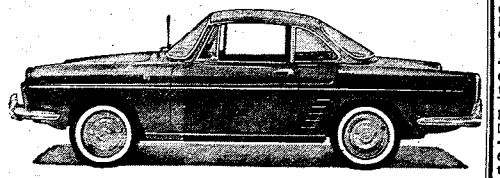
The Infantry unit has explored and made recommendations in such fields as rifle marksmanship, operating under conditions of limited visibility and the training of junior officers.

The unit offers a technical advisory service to officials of said.



Dr. Lange explained the process of improving training through research.

"Basically," he said, "there are two steps involved. Identify the objectives of the training and develop improved training methods."



At Fort Benning, Dr. Lange said, the Human Research Unit is primarily concerned with "man-dominant training problems as squad-type activities involving small unit leadership and team training.

Busy Year at The Poles

Voting Officers Named

This year will be a big one at the nation's voting poles. Nominating primaries are slated in two states this month — Illinois and New Jersey — and in 18 states next month. By next November 7, 68 Senators, 435 Representatives and 35 governors will have been elected.

All units of The Infantry Center have appointed voting officers, and their names are listed here as a service to post personnel.

Military personnel are strongly encouraged to cast their votes, by commanders at all levels. Full information as to eligibility, dates of primaries and absentee voting is available through the unit voting officers.

Listed by major unit, these officers are:

Travel Is Theme For 'Y' Dances

April Travel will be the musical theme for Saturday night dances at Armed Services YMCA during this month.

Local travel agencies are providing gay posters, girls will wear typical costumes, and Hod Williams is making special arrangements of typical music for The Five Shadows Orchestra. Each Saturday will feature a different country and area.

At the "April in Portugal" dance tomorrow night, the "Lady in Red" will dance "La Cumparsita" while "Perfidia" finds "Jealousy" "In a Little Spanish Town." A professional dance team will perform the tango.

Pan-American Day, April 14 will take the dancers on a Caribbean cruise to the melodies of "Poisiana" and "Tico Tico". When the guests find themselves "South of the Border," they will learn the "Mexican Hat Dance" and what "Happened in Old Monterey." Soldiers and girls will perform the Mexican hat dance.

"April in Paris" dance on Easter-Eve, April 21, will introduce servicemen to "Mam'selle" who will sing "L'Amour, Toujours" at "Midnight in Paris," while all guests as the "Poor People of Paris," join in singing "I Love Paris," and find "C'est Ci Bon." A Montmarte ballet will be featured at intermission.

It will be "April in Italy" on April 28 when the dancers will be entertained with everything from "Intermezzo" to "The Peanut Vendor" while "Mona Lisa" and "Angela Mia" dance the "Bambalina," toll the "Bells of St. Mary's," and tell "The Story of Sorrento." Accordian soloists will entertain during intermission. Concluding the month of musical travel the dance will conclude with everyone singing "That's Amore."

The Girls Service Organization will provide dancing partners, and all servicemen are cordially invited. Dancing begins at 8:30 p.m.

OC Leaves Deep Water For Land Tactics Study

After a stint with the Navy and plenty of underwater work, Allen G. Mooo has turned to the study of land warfare as a student in Officer Candidate School.

This prospective officer's background can be traced from Texarkana, Ark., his birthplace, to work with police authorities including the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Upon his discharge from the Navy in September, 1956, Moon took a position as manager of a diving and salvage company in Vancouver, British Columbia.

His duties were many and varied, occasionally being called upon by the Vancouver City Police Department to recover submerged stolen jewelry, weapons and even automobiles.

Moon was responsible for organizing Air - Sea Rescue Squads of the Vancouver Police Department and of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

An experienced SCUBA (self - contained underwater breathing apparatus) diver, Moon is a qualified instructor in the usage and capabilities of this rapid - growing professional and past-time pursuit.

A member of the 5th Student Battalion, The Student Brigade, Moon makes his home in Vancouver with his wife, Betty, and daughter, Debra.

Amphibious CG Visits

Marine Corps Brig. Gen. Austin R. Brunelli, commanding general of the Landing Forces Training Unit, Atlantic Amphibious Training Command, arrived at Fort Benning Monday for a one-day visit.

The Amphibious Training Command is in Little Creek, Ark.

After honors ceremonies Monday morning, Gen. Brunelli visited Major Gen. Charles H. Chase, commanding general of the 2nd Infantry Division.

In the afternoon, he addressed and observed 2nd Division Landing Forces Training Unit class. He then was briefed on the history and organization of The Infantry Center and the organization and mission of The Infantry School.

He also was briefed on the utilization of the post in training support and on the Ranger Department.

Children's School Officials Attend Florida Meeting

Two post children's school officials will attend the annual Southeastern Regional Elementary Principals' Conference which started yesterday in Orlando, Fla. The meeting ends tomorrow.

They are Mrs. Mary Sherrick, principal of Patch School, and Mrs. Mildred Carter, assistant principal of Faith School.

Theme for the conference will be "Better Principals for Our Schools."

CAPT. LEVINE CONGRATULATED By Brig. Gen. Hallett D. Edson

Levine Top Graduate

Capt. Edwin R. Levine was recently graduated with honors from the Associated Infantry Officer Career Course, Class Two, 2nd Student Battalion, The Student Brigade.

Capt. Levine completed the career course with an overall average of 95.1 per cent. He was congratulated and presented with his graduation certificate by the guest speaker, Brig. Gen. Hallett D. Edson, assistant commander of the 101st Airborne Division.

Gen. Edson spoke to the class on the importance of ambition. "A turtle can't move unless he sticks his neck out," the speaker stated. He urged the officers not to hold back constructive criticism from future commanders.

"Know and understand and concern yourself with the safety and well-being of your subordinates. Maintain a mutual respect for all those with whom you come in contact. As you will judge, so will you be judged," Gen. Edson concluded.

DAFFY DIXIE-ISMS

James Hickey Gets L-E Business Manager Post

James E. Hickey, Jr. has been elevated to the position of business manager of The Ledger - Enquirer newspapers, it was announced Saturday by M. B. Ashworth, publisher.

Hickey joined the Ledger-Enquirer Co. in November, 1956, and has been advertising director for the newspapers since July, 1960.

It was also announced that three new directors have been added to the board of the R. W. Page Corp. and its subsidiary companies, including The Ledger - Enquirer Co. They were elected at the Dec. 16 annual meeting of the Board of Directors.

They are Mrs. Peggy Ashworth Hickey of Columbus, Henry B. Sayler of St. Petersburg, Fla., and Mrs. Elizabeth Hogan Page of Bradenton, Fla.

Other members of the board of directors are Ashworth, Mrs. A. H. Chapman Sr., and Mrs. M. R. Ashworth, all of Columbus; Alvah H. Chapman Jr. of Miami Fla., W. E. Page of Bradenton, Fla., and R. Edwin Page of Atlanta.

Hickey has been associated with every department of The Ledger - Enquirer newspapers and has been a reporter on both The Ledger and The Enquirer news staffs. During a training period, he also has worked in the circulation department, the press room, personnel and advertising departments and for 13 months was manager of The Bayonet, which is published by The Ledger-Enquirer Co. for Fort Benning.

A native of Atlanta, he attended the University of Georgia and served five years in the U.S. Naval Reserve. Since moving to Columbus, he has been active in civic affairs, having served as president of the Junior Achievement of Columbus Inc., and on the boards of the Columbus Symphony Guild, the Georgia - Alabama Boy Scouts, the Muscogee Mental Health Association, the Salvation Army Advisory board, and the sports committee of the Chamber of Commerce. He has also been active in the Junior Chamber of Commerce, and served for three years as church school superintendent at Trinity Episcopal Church. Recently, he was elected to the board of directors of Columbus Rotary Club.

Profile of a Man Doing a Man's Job

Sp5 Herschel L. Anderson of the Army Marksmanship Training Unit set a pair of records in the .22 caliber matches of the Interservice Pistol championships which opened Monday at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas.

Anderson cranked out a blazing 300-300 in the National Match Course with 16 shots in the x-ring, the smaller circle within the bulls-eye used to break ties. This bettered the old mark of 299-19 established by GM-1 Stanford H. Hulstrom, U. S. Coast Guard.

Anderson went on to win the .22 caliber aggregate with a match record-setting total of 892x50 out of a possible 900.

Post Children Will Vie For Horse Show Honors

Several children of post personnel will compete for prizes tomorrow when the Quota Club of Columbus presents its horse show in the Municipal Auditorium.

The children, all members of the Fort Benning Hunt Club, will compete against riders from many parts of the central and southern U. S. in the program beginning at 2 p.m. and the one at 7:30 p.m.

In the afternoon performance of the Open Working Hunter Under Saddle Division, Sandra Leonard, Nancy Guernsey, Susan Holbrook, David Kennedy and Donna Davis will compete.

Mounts must be shown at a walk, trot, canter and gallop, and must be able to back up easily and stand quietly while rider dismounts and mounts.

Other afternoon competition will see Wayne Robinson and John Woods in the Pleasure Pony event. Mounts must be 14.2 hands tall and under and the riders must be age 12 and under.

Donna Davis also will compete in the Equitation Over Jumps event. This event is restricted to riders over the age of 18. Mounts must make four jumps of not over three feet in height.

That night Nancy Guernsey, Susan Holbrook and Sandra Leonard will participate in the Equitation event restricted to children between the ages of 12 and 17.

In addition, five of the post youngsters will participate in the Western Pleasure Horses event. They are Jimmy and Johnny Woods, Roberta Leonard, Michael Craddick and Wayne Robinson.

In this event the mounts will be judged on performance, conformation and appointment. Connie Jo Pavey will enter her Palomino pony in the Palomino event that night. Judging in this event will be based on color, conformation and performance, with the latter counting 50 per cent.

Prizes in the afternoon events will be limited to trophies for first place finishers and ribbons for the second through fifth places.

In the Palomino and Western Pleasure Horses events first place prize will be $35.

There are 22 events, five in the afternoon and 17 in the evening.

Death Claims Gen. Eddy; Services Held

Lt. Gen. (Ret.) Manton Sprague Eddy, 69, was to be buried with full military honors today at 3 p.m. in Arlington National Cemetery, Washington, D. C.

One of the nation's top military leaders in World War II and former commander of U. S. Army, Europe, Gen. Eddy died Tuesday in Martin Army Hospital, here. He was being treated for a heart ailment.

Local services were held yesterday at the First Presbyterian Church in Columbus. The body was then sent to Washington for interment.

Gen. Eddy entered MAH on March 29 for medical observation of a heart ailment. On April 7 he suffered a heart attack. He succumbed at 11 p.m., Tuesday.

The well-known commander retired from the Army in 1953 after 36 years service. For several years following his retirement, Gen. Eddy had been active in the business and civic life of Columbus.

As a young captain in France during World War I, Gen. Eddy commanded a ma-

AN ADDITION TO NATION'S ARSENAL?
Sfc Carl Pierce Test-Fires New Automatic Gun

U. S. Tests Swiss Automatic Gun Here; Would Replace .50 Caliber Machine Gun

Post officials recently saw a demonstration of a Swiss-made 20-mm automatic gun being considered by the U. S. Government as a replacement for the .50-caliber machine gun.

The demonstration was sponsored jointly by The Infantry Board, the Infantry School's Weapons Department, and the manufacturers of the gun, the Hispano Suiza Corp.

If selected the weapon will be installed on the new T-114 tracked command and reconnaissance vehicle. It is also being considered for installation on the M-113 armored personnel carriers.

Over 4,000 of the guns have already been produced. Two Allied countries, Germany and France, adopted them recently.

Built for efficiency, the gun is easily dismantled and its light weight simplifies ease of handling and installation.

It can be fed by stick or drum magazine or by belt, and change from one to the other is done rapidly.

According to authorities, this eliminates the use of mixed ammunition belts which have been found to be undesirable under combat conditions.

During the demonstration, various types of 22-mm ammunition were used, including an armor piercing shell with a double incendiary effect and a high explosive shell with self-destroying fuse.

The double incendiary charge can pierce over 2.5 inches of armor at a distance of about 650 feet. When it hits the armor it penetrates and explodes, penetrating still further and exploding a second time.

The versatility of the 20-mm was shown when an anti-tank grenade was fired from it. The grenade can pierce approximately 14 inches of armor plating.

A variety of tests were conducted to show the accuracy and penetrating power of the weapon, the armor piercing effect both on direct hits and low angles of impact, and its safe-

3rd Army Matches Begin With 650 Seeking Titles

Over 650 marksmen have converged on Fort Benning to compete in 46 individual and team events slated in Third Army's annual rifle and pistol competition which began Tuesday.

According to Lt. Col. Burton C. Boatright, match director, the arriving rifle and pistol marksmen hold potential of smashing every record in Third Army books.

Indications are that all commands, especially the two Airborne divisions, the 82nd from Fort Bragg, and the 101st from Fort Campbell, are loaded for the proverbial "bear."

TIC Team Proves

Against these powerful teams The Infantry Center is throwing a squad of shooters which has just finished smashing more than 50 percent of all post records.

MSgt Hollis M. Noland, TIC Rifle Team coach, said, "We're going into competition with a rifle squad which has proved it can produce national level scores."

The veteran rifleman, coach of the 1st Infantry Brigade's trophy-winning team in the 1962 Infantry Center matches, said his shooters were not worried over reports that Campbell and Bragg are gunning for TIC's scalp in the matches.

"My Brigade team fired a 1,101 in the post-level Infantry Trophy tilt, a score which would have been good for a trophy in national competition as late as 1958," Sgt. Noland said.

He added that particular team, augmented by crack riflemen from TIC's major commands, was capable of smashing the Third Army mark of 908 by better than 100 points.

MSgt Walter Schneider will coach post bandgunners in the Third Army tilts.

Potential "Terrific"

Potential in this year's squad is terrific, Sgt. Schneider said. He also noted that a large number of men, both rifle and pistol shooters, are new to post

Col. Lewis Is Named Center G-2

Lt. Col. Hollis C. Lewis has been named G-2 of The Infantry Center. He succeeds Lt. Col. Edward B. Craney who has retired from the Army.

Before assuming his present duties, Col. Lewis served 13 months as senior adviser for the 1st Infantry Division with the Hue Detachment of the Military Assistance Advisory Group in Vietnam.

A 1938 graduate of the University of Connecticut, Lewis entered the Army shortly after being commissioned through the university's Reserve Officers Training Corps.

During World War II, he served in the European Theater with the 87th Division from

In August

Reservists To Get Out

Barring any "serious deterioration" in the world situation, the 19 Reserve and National Guard units now on post will return to civilian life in August.

The announcement, long awaited by the 135,000 men summoned to duty in the Berlin crisis last fall, was made Wednesday by President John F. Kennedy.

The President set no specific day when he made the announcement at a news conference. But Army spokesmen said the mustering out will begin during the first 10 days of August and be completed by the end of that month.

It is anticipated that complete information will be available on April 30.

President's Speech

Following is a partial text of the President's announcement:

"If there is no serious deterioration in the international situation between now and August, we shall be able in that month to release all those Army National and Reservists who were called to active duty involuntarily.

"After that release, our combat readiness force will be increased over what it was a year ago. Just as an example, the number of our combat readiness divisions in active service after the release will be 16 divisions as against 11 a year ago.

"The release is not the result of a major change in the international situation, but the result of our successful build-up of permanent instead of emergency strength.

Remain Available

"The units we release will remain available in a high state of readiness if a new crisis should arise requiring their further service....."

All Army National Guard and Reserve units and individuals called to active duty pursuant to the joint resolution of Aug. 1, 1961 — Public Law 87-117, and Executive Order No. 10957 of Aug. 5, 1961 — will be released as soon as possible after Aug. 1.

Officials report that all units will be released prior to midnight, Aug. 31.

The exact dates for an orderly movement and release of specific units and individuals are contingent, upon transportation and processing requirements, the details of which are now under preparation.

An estimated 4,000 Reservists and National Guardsmen are now on active duty on post.

Post Pistol Shooters Win Frosting on Texas Cake

By SSgt Lee LaCombe

As predicted, the Interservice Pistol Championships at Lackland AFB, Tex., last week turned into a dog-eat-dog battle between the Army and the Air Force, with the Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard getting experience.

As at the National Mid-Winter Championships a few weeks before, the members of the Marksmanship Training Unit dominated the individual events, winning three of the four individual aggregate titles, three team crowns and the majority of the fired matches.

Sfc William Blankenship successfully defended his individual title, firing a new match record of 2656 out of 2700 points to easily outdistance his perennial rival, Capt. Franklin Green, USAF, by seven points.

Sp5 Hershel Anderson, MTU, who earlier set a national .22 caliber pistol record over the National Match Course with a 300x300 with 16 x-ring (inner circle) shots, was third.

Army Has "Depth"

The Army proved to have more depth than the other services as they consistently had the bulk of the top ten positions in each match.

The first two events — .22 Caliber and Center Fire — were taken by Army's "Red" team with scores of 1175x1200 and 1169x1200 respectively.

But the Air Force pounded out a tremendous four - man effort of 1170x1200 to easily win the .45 Caliber event. Their point spread was enough to capture the aggregate team trophy.

The aristocrat of the team match — the Service Pistol—and Army-area competition this year.

Queried as to possible smashing of Third Army's already towering match records, the Fort Benning coach said, "We're out to win and any records fired will be just that much more credit to the Army's system of marksmanship training."

Sgt. James L. Bratcher, handgunner who sparked his 1st Infantry Brigade team to the Commanding General's Trophy, won the TTC individual pistol championship in post level competition. He will act as anchor man for the TTC's handgun team in the Third Army shoot.

S-Sgt Hector A. Andujar, winner of TTC's highest rifle marksmanship award, will be one of the determining factors in TTC's outcome in the Third Army matches. He is a member of the 1st Infantry Brigade team that swept all major rifle competition at post level.

The other commands participating are Fort Gordon, Fort Jackson, Fort McClellan, Redstone Arsenal, Fort Rucker, Fort Stewart, and National Guard and Reserve teams.

Details of the matches, scheduled to conclude April 21, will be carried in future editions of The Bayonet.

Pistol Shoot

was a red-hot battle between Army's "Red" team and the Marines.

Both quartets fired scores of 1139x1200 two points higher than the current record for this match at Camp Perry, Ohio. Army won the match, having three more shots in the bullseye's smaller circle. The Army "Blue" team grabbed third place with 1137.

Blankenship Wins Again

Blankenship also won the center fire aggregate with 886x900. Anderson captured the .22 caliber aggregate with 892-900 and Sgt. Januscz Sicinski, MTU, won the service pistol individual crown with 294x300.

Only major award to escape the Army marksmen was the .45 caliber aggregate taken by Capt. Green.

Firing members of Army's "Red" team were SMaj. Huelet Benner, Sfc William Horton, MSgt Fred Schaser, Sgt. Sicinski and MSgt Nelson Lincoln. Team coach was MSgt Arthur Purser.

New Gun

ty.

An additional factor adding to the efficiency of the gun is an iron driving band which reduces barrel wear. Wear is further reduced by plating the barrel with hard chromium.

Tests have shown the barrel to have an average lifetime of over 15,000 rounds under severe firing conditions.

Technical data on the gun show it can fire 1,000 rounds per minute, and has a length of approximately 101 inches and a weight of slightly over 125 pounds.

New G-2

October, 1944, to June, 1945. The 87th campaigned in France, Belgium, Germany, and participated in the "Battle of the Bulge."

During the Korean conflict, from September, 1950, to November, 1951, Col. Lewis was battalion executive officer for the S-2 Section in the 7th Infantry Regiment, 3rd Division. From December, 1951, to November, 1953, he served in G-3 at Fifth Army Headquarters.

His decorations include the Bronze Star Medal with three Oak Leaf Clusters, Army Commendation Medal with two clusters, Purple Heart with one cluster and Combat Infantryman Badge with Star.

From December, 1953, to March, 1956, he served as the senior S-2 school officer in the Seine Area Command in Paris, France. He was commander of the 3rd Battalion, 2nd Training Regiment at Fort Dix, N. J., the following two years.

Before going to Viet Nam, he served as post commander at Fort Hancock, N. J.

Service schools he has attended include the officer advanced course at Fort Benning's Infantry School in 1944, Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., in 1946, and personnel managements for executives course at Fort Monmouth, N.J., in 1959.

chine gun company and later a battalion.

As a major general in World War II, he led the 9th Infantry Division in Tunisia and Sicily during 1943 and in the Normandy invasion.

In August, 1944, he took command of the XII Corps for the break-out of Gen. George S. Patton Jr.'s Third Army.

Among Gen. Eddy's many decorations are the Distinguished Service Cross, Distinguished Service Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster and the Silver Star.

He is survived by his wife, a daughter, Mrs. John Hassell, and a grandson, Christopher.

"OUTSTANDING DRIVER of the Month" in the 428th Medical Battalion is Sp4 Jose E. Lepn-Reyes, 3rd Field Hospital. Judging was based on vehicle maintenance, driver ability and military knowledge. The outstanding driver entered the Army in 1960 in Puerto Rico.

At Martin Army Hospital Monday

Medical Specialist Corps Anniversary To Be Observed by Nine Local Members

Nine members of the Army Medical Specialist Corps will commemorate the 15th anniversary of the corps at a coffee at Martin Army Hospital Monday.

The coffee is scheduled from 2 to 4 p.m. in the second floor conference room. Members of the hospital staff are invited.

Entertaining are Major Ruth Bradley, chief of physical therapy, and Major Ruth Lawson and Capt. Eunice Dobbs, physical therapists.

Capt. Mary P. Lowery, 1st Lts. Norma Bodie and Joan Bajorinas, dieticians, and 1st Lts. Phillis F. Mann, Barbara C. Jones and Robert A. Hunmei, occupational therapists.

The all-officer Army Medical Specialist Corps became a part of the regular Army in 1947. Dieticians, however, have served with the Army since the Spanish-American War and physical and occupational therapists since World War I.

Qualified as dieticians, physical therapists or occupational therapists, members of the corps work with military personnel and dependents in Army hospitals throughout the world.

Dieticians in Army hospitals direct the preparation and service of food for patients and hospital personel. They plan modified diets to meet the individual needs of patients as prescribed by the doctor. They instruct patients in the principles of diet and nutrition.

Physical therapists in Army hospitals provide treatment as prescribed by the doctor, including heat, light, cold, electricity and exercise. They help a patient attain the maximum restoration of a lost or impaired function.

Occupational therapists provide treatment for physically disabled and the medically and mentally ill. Their tools are creative educational and recreational activities. Among the skills they utilize in their work are painting, ceramics, woodwork and printing.

The corps has more than 400 officers on duty in Army hospialts throughout the world. Forty-one of these are serving in hospitals in the Third Army area.

Most of the members of the corps have been trained by or under the auspices of the Army. The corps provides various educational and specialized training programs open to college graduates.

Permanent EM Grades to Ease

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Promotion to permanent enlisted grades will be determined mainly by time in temporary grade according to a revised enlisted appointment program effective July 1.

The revised program is designed to give more recognition to the career soldier and will increase the number of permanent appointments while improving other features of the current system.

Time in grade requirements for permanent E-9 and E-8 appointments are 24 months in temporary grade; for E-7 and E-6, 18 months temporary; for E-5 and E-4, 12 months. Permanent E-3 and E-2 grades will be concurrent with appointment.

One Grade Maximum

Under the new system, the maximum difference between a soldier's permanent and temporary grades will be one grade.

Regular Army soldiers who, as of July 1, have a permanent grade which is one or more grades below that they are currently serving in, will either have this grade made permanent, if otherwise eligible, or be appointed to a permanent grade immediately below their current temporary grade.

Those individuals who are subsequently appointed to a higher temporary grade will automatically be appointed to the permanent grade immediately below their new one, unless that grade has previously been made permanent.

Permanent appointments insure individuals in pay grades above E-4 against certain administrative reductions without referral to a board of officers.

Provisions Waived

Time in grade provisions for permanent appointments will be waived for enlisted personnel called to active duty as AUS or reserve officers and warrant officers so that their current enlisted grade will be made permanent before leaving enlisted status.

This assures that, in the case of termination of their active commission or warrant service, they will not suffer loss of enlisted grade, as is possible now. Instead, they will revert to the last enlisted grade held.

Implementing details of the program will be released through channels in the near future.

Post Aviator Gets Senior Pilot Rating

Capt. John F. Grace has been awarded the star-topped wings of Senior Army Aviator. He is assigned to the 1st Aviation Company, Lawson Army Aviation Command.

To be eligible for senior wings, an Army aviator must have been a military aviator for seven years, at least four of which have been in the Army, have 1,500 flying hours, and hold an instrument certificate.

Capt. Grace has been rated as an Army aviator since January, 1955, has logged over 2000 flying hours in Army airplanes and helicopters, and is a qualified instrument pilot.

Assigned to the 521st Engineer Aviation Company upon his graduation from flight training, Capt. Grace flew "Beavers," "Otters" and helicopters for 2½ years, supporting Corps of Engineer surveying projects from the frozen wastes of Alaska to the desert areas of Southern California.

Following a three-year tour in Europe, Capt. Grace was assigned as maintenance officer for the 1st Aviation Company, and has checked-out in the AC-1 "Caribou," the Army's new twin-engine STOL (Short Take-off and Landing) transport aircraft.

Carelessness Prime Cause Of Accidents

By Lt. Col. Harry W. McCurdy, MC

A reminder about the dangers of foreign bodies in the windpipe or gullet is worthwhile occasionally — particularly on a post where there are so many children.

Such accidents are always very serious, and often end tragically unless promptly attended. Approximately 90 per cent of these patients are under 14 years of age.

While many factors may be responsible for getting a foreign body stuck in the wrong place, unquestionably the most important one is CARELESSNESS. Dr. Jackson, of Philadelphia, who has had more experience with this problem than anyone else, has grouped the variety of forms of carlessness in this manner.

Carlessness in the preparation of food. This is obvious when bits of bone are served in soup, gravy, dressing, and the like. When the butcher shatters a piece of bone with a cleaver, instead of using a saw, he sets the stage, and when the cook fails to recognize this danger, both have been careless.

Other such possibilities are egg shells, cherry seeds, prune seeds, peach stones, particles of glass, and fragments of china.

When eating fish, expect to find small bones, even when the fish presumably has been deboned. This is such a strong probability, that we recommend that children do not eat fish at all.

Carlessness in eating and drinking. Eating greedily and rapidly increases the number of such accidents. One simply swallows the foreign body before he has had time to detect it in his mouth. Younger children, coming in from vigorous play, have to be calmed down before eating, and made to take their time.

Carlessness in putting inedible things into the mouth. The mouth is not a safe holder for tacks, pins, bobby pins, marbles, and a host of other foreign objects. If you can't eat it, don't put it into your mouth!

Carlessness in parents in observing their children. It is natural for infants to put things into their mouths. Some children are more prone to do it than others. This is one of the natural ways of finding out about objects. Teething infants will bite on anything. The parent within reach of a child is guilty of real neglect.

This is surely a situation where conscientious prevention and constant observation are the best treatment.

Many, many toys for children are very dangerous because of the loose pieces in them — plastic rattles with pebbles in them, bean shooters, etc. In addition, many toys are so poorly made that pieces can easily be broken off and put into the mouth. This point has to be evaluated by parents — not the child.

Playing while having anything in the mouth is to be forbidden. A child may be pushed or struck on the back by a playmate unexpectedly with dreadful results. Children should be taught from infancy not to put anything that they cannot eat into the mouth and parents should set a good example.

Peanuts are extremely dangerous. No child under the age of 10 should be given these things willfully and in homes where there are little children they should not be brought into the house.

A final comment on what you should do once the foreign body has been stuck into the throat: Do not try to dig it out with the finger, nor to "force" it down by eating bread. Bring the patient to the hospital.

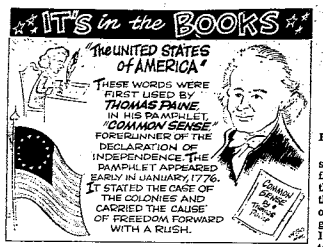
Chaplain's Corner

'The Impossible'

By Chaplain (Col.) Silas Decker The Post Chaplain

During World War II an Army service organization had the following motto, "The Difficult We Do Now, The Impossible Will Take A Little Time." The U. S. Army is constantly using new methods, new ideas in research and development, in its attempt to accomplish the impossible.

Lt. Col. John Glenn deserves the praise and esteem of every citizen of our country. However, we should appreciate other men of history who also accomplished the impossible.



One of the first great Scientists was the Greek Archimedes. He first advanced the idea that heavy materials could easily be lifted by using pulleys and levers. The Greeks thought it was impossible. He persuaded King Hiero to let him demonstrate. The people of Syracuse watched in amazement while he lifted several ships into the air like toys.

Copernicus, the Polish astronomer of the 16th Century, opposed accepted theories by insisting the earth was round and it revolved about the sun. His countrymen called him, "the fool Copernicus." Today his theory is an accepted fact.

Isaac Newton, the great mathematician, advanced his theory that heavenly bodies move according to the law of gravity. His fellow scientists declared Newton would not have 20 followers during his life time.

Space here does not permit a listing of all who did the impossible. A few more should be included briefly: Antoine Laurent Lavoisier for his table of chemical elements, Louis Pasteur for the use of immunizations in prevention of disease and Charles Proteus Steinmetz for his idea in use of electrical power.

As we approach Holy Week it is appropriate to be reminded that Jesus of Nazareth changed the course of history for all time and eternity.

The Talks at Geneva Show U. S. Sincerity

There could — to the world's eyes — be no stronger proof of the U. S. determination to pursue the great goal of peace than the continued presence of Secretary of State Rusk at the Geneva disarmament conference. The obstinacy of his Soviet counterpart in dragging the 17 nation talks to a virtual deadlock is not surprising to western observers. What distresses the free world is that the intransigence that has so long marked the Soviet position at Geneva in the past now brings closer the time when we must resume our own nuclear testing in the atmosphere.

Mr. Gromyko charges that these scheduled U. S. tests in the Pacific would be "aggression." This, on the face of it, would be laughable if there were any humorous aspects of nuclear testing. With the test ban talks paralyzed by the Soviet insistence that "any sort of international inspection is out of the question," there is reason to believe that Russia is preparing gullible world opinion for more testing of her own.

No — if testing is aggression the Soviets are the aggressors for breaking the moratorium last autumn with their series of giant nuclear blasts. We don't intend to be caught again with such a breach of faith. In Mr. Rusk's words, "We will not again make our security subject to such an unenforceable and uncontrolled moratorium."

The U. S. tests in April will not automatically break off the Geneva talks unless the Russian delegation stages a walkout, for the western powers are determined to sit at the conference table until the prospects of reaching an agreement are absolutely hopeless. They are bleak enough now, but the testing ban and the broader subject of general disarmament are issues of such life-and-death import that we will not be deterred from attempts to call a final halt to the arms race.

The Judge Says . . .

Part I — The Risk of 'Time' Purchases

By Capt. Robt. S. Poydasheff

American economy works successfully because of the fact that when we buy something we do not have to have the exact price of the item in our pocket. Thus, if I have a good credit rating the business I am dealing in may trust me to pay in a month or two. Or, if I want to have actual cash for the immediate payment, I may be able to go to a bank and get a loan. Or the business may make a conditional sale of the article I am buying.

This means that the business actualy loans me the money with which to pay them; the business not only sells me the merchandise, but they also act as a "bank" in making me a loan. This last situation is often called buying "on time" or "on the installment plan."

All of us at some time will buy something on "time." This is usually sensible and right. A young married couple needs to buy things for the baby; another person needs a car to get from his home to his job; and there are numerous other valid reason for buying on "time" when we do not actually have the purchase price in cash in our pocket.

The basic risk is in the total price of the item. This will include all interest extra charges, and fees, plus of course a repayment of the entire amount of money actually loaned. Now, the reason that I get a loan or buy on "time" is usually that I do not have the cash at the present time. Well, I don't have the money now, what leads me to believe that I will have it when the time comes to pay off the loan?

Many persons buying on "time" never bother to ask themselves this very important question of where the money will come from. They are the ones who most likely will get into trouble with their creditors and (if they are in the Army) with the Army.

Let us examine some of the specific risks of buying on

Liberty and Communism

The Nature of Liberty

(First of an AFPS Series)

We live today in a divided world. Two great competing political and social systems—democracy and communism — confront each other. The ideas or concepts that support democracy are diametrically opposite to the ideas upon which Soviet communism is founded. At the same time, the governments and other institutions that defend and preserve democracy are the exact opposite of the organs of a Communist regime.

But the ideas of each system appeared first in point of time. The institutions and power machinery came later; they followed the ideas.

Throughout the history of civilization, men have had different ideas of liberty. Plato and Aristotle associated liberty with justice or giving every man his due. The Epicureans thought of liberty as complete freedom to pursue pleasure and to avoid pain.

The Stoics, and later St. Thomas Aquinas and John Locke, held that all men possess natural rights which derive from Natural Law. The exercise of these rights constitutes liberty. The Russian thinker, Tolstoi, compared the "liberty" of some men with the freedom of the ox, "loving its own yoke."

The great German philosopher, Immanuel Kant, held that liberty is connected with moral law. Human freedom involves the necessity of doing one's duty as dictated by the moral conscience. To do freely what one ought to do is the true expression of human dignity.

In modern times, liberty is regarded as the freedom of the individual to think his own thoughts and to speak and act as he thinks proper, subject only to the restrictions necessary to preserve the liberty of other individuals and the good of society.

The desire for liberty in the Western World has been so prevelent that political philosophers in the seventeenth century made liberty the basis of their explanation for the origin of government.

Thomas Hobbs, John Locke, and later Rousseau theorized that men first lived in a state of nature in which all men possessed complete liberty. Then strong men began to oppress the weak, and the situation became intolerable.

Thereupon, according to Locke, men entered into a contract, setting up a government to which they gave the right of judging disputes and the duty of protecting their natural liberties. The U. S. Constitution can be considered a historical example of such a contract.

Liberty has been dear to men for differing reasons. Acts of government that men readily accept in one society will be resented in another. Yet it is a safe generalization that men everywhere desire to be free to do those things and think those thoughts which they believe are necessary to a meaningful life.

Easter Rites Guest To Be Bishop Loutitt

The Right Rev. Henry I. Louttit, D. D., of Winter Park, Fla., bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of South Florida, will be guest speaker at the post's Protestant Union Easter Sunrise Service Sunday, April 22.

Scheduled to begin at 6:30 a.m., the service will be held at Doughboy Stadium. In case of rain, it will be held in Theater 1.

Bishop Louttit is chairman of the General Commission on Chaplains and Armed Forces Personnel.

From 1941 to 1945, he served as a chaplain in the Army.

The bishop was born in 1903 in Buffalo, N. Y. He received his education at the University of Buffalo, Hobart College at Geneva, N.Y., Virginia Theological Seminary at Lynchburg, and the University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn.

Ordained in 1929, Bishop Louttit has served in Florida at All Saints Church in Tarpon Springs, Trinity Church in Miami, Holy Cross Church in Sanford and Holy Trinity Church in West Palm Beach.

He was suffragan bishop of the Diocese of South Florida from 1945 to 1948, and bishop coadjutor from 1948 to 1951, when he was named bishop.

Bishop and Mrs. Louttit, the former Amy Moss Cleckler, have two sons, Henry Irving, Jr., and James William.

Passover Services Set Here

Post Jewish personnel will observe the Passover season with special services from April 18 to 26 on the post and in Columbus and Atlanta.

The schedule for the Fort Benning - Columbus area includes services April 18 at Leyte Mess, Building 2752, at 6:30 p.m., followed by a community Passover Seder at 7 p.m.

On April 19 there will be a service at 9 a.m. at the Jewish Center, Building 1071.

There will be services at The Center April 20 at 9 a.m. and at 8 p.m.

Post personnel will worship with the congregation of Shearith Israel Synagogue in Columbus at 8 a.m. April 25 and 26.

Personnel interested in observing the Passover in Atlanta may contact Chaplain (1st Lt.) Naftali Friedman at the Jewish Center.

Home hospitality for military personnel has been planned in Columbus and Atlanta.

Passover plans for post personnel are sponsored by the National Jewish Welfare Board Armed Services Committees of New York City, Columbus and Atlanta, the "Serve-A" Committee of Baltimore, The Infantry Center and the post Jewish Chaplain's Fund.

Easter Sunrise Service Choir Needs Singers

More voices are needed for the Easter Sunrise Service choir, Mrs. David Buckner, director, has announced.

Participating in rehearsals for the 6:30 a.m. general Protestant service to be conducted at Doughboy Stadium April 22 are members of three chapel choirs on the post: representatives of The Infantryman's Chorus, and members of the choir of Trinity Episcopal Church in Columbus.

Mrs. Buckner invites singers to participate in the Easter music whether they belong to a choir or not.

Lutheran Teen League Started For Dependents

A Lutheran Teen League for military dependents between the ages of 12 and 15 has been organized at the post.

The league will meet twice a month at Main Post Chapel 2, the time to be announced later.

Sponsors of the group are Capt. and Mrs. Emery Brua and Pvt. Paul Pasternak.

The league is planning an Easter Egg Hunt for the Lutheran Sunday School.

Members will meet at 1 p.m. at the home of Capt. and Mrs. Brua, 833-A Terry Drive, to dye the eggs.

The hunt will be conducted on Palm Sunday, April 15, at Building 2619.

Further information about the league, may be obtained by telephoning Chaplain (1st Lt.) George Resnick at 545-5043.

SIX FAMILIES — JUST COUNT THEM . . . Though it is doubtful these six families could gather at one of their homes, they were able to do so recently at the Parish Buffet and Social which brought together 800 people. Pictured here are the families of (L to R) Col. and Mrs. John M. King, Sgt. and Mrs. Edward Cleary, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Norman Shapira, Lt. Col. and Mrs. John B. Finnegan, Major and Mrs. Charles J. Zerzan and Lt. Col. and Mrs. Robert H. Quinn. The event, held at the Old Gym on Ingersoll St., was under the direction of Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Bernard M. Burns and Chaplain (Capt.) James J. Kennedy. Catholic Church members from Main Post and the 2nd Infantry Division attended the event.

Woman's Club Officers Elected; Mrs. Strange Heads New Slate

Mrs. Hubert Strange was elected president of the Woman's Club of Fort Benning at a luncheon meeting last week at the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Other officers on the new slate include Mrs. Richard Keyes, first vice president; Mrs. Daniel French, second vice president; Mrs. Michael Paulick, third vice president; Mrs. Edwin O'Donnell, custodian; Mrs. John Jeter, recording secretary; Mrs. Wallis McClain, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Roy Sullivan, treasurer; Mrs. James Donaghey, assistant treasurer, and Mrs. Samuel Koster, parliamentarian.

Installed in May

The new officers will be installed in May and serve until May, 1963.

Seated at the head table with the 1961-1962 club president, Mrs. Cyril D. Sterner, were Mrs. Bea Harrell, honorary president of the Woman's Club; Mrs. John E. Kelly, pre-kindergarten chairman; Mrs. Steve Knight, wife of Mayor Knight of Columbus; Mrs. Walter Hutchko, president of the Ladies of the Big Indianhead; Mrs. Raymond Faust, president of the NCO Wives Club; Mrs. Walter Thwaite of The Columbus Ledger-Enquirer Newspapers, and elected officers of the club.

Luncheon was served in the main ballroom.

Springtime Theme

The theme of decorations and table appointments was "Springtime." A fountain with floating water lilies provided a garden setting against a backdrop of dogwood branches.

Centerpieces were of chrysanthemums, gladioli, irises and stock in shades of yellow, lavendar and white.

New Plans Would Realign Eight National Guard, Reserve Units

The Army has announced plans for the realignment of eight National Guard and Reserve Divisions creating eight separate brigades and a number of non-divisional units from the divisions.

The plan is designed to improve the overall strength of the reserve components by increasing the strength, amount of equipment and mobilization readiness of high priority units which would be needed early in any call to active duty.

All eight are Infantry divisions, four each from the Guard and Reserve.

The eight separate brigades, will be organized under ROAD, the new organizational concept which allows a brigade to be tailored in numbers and types of battalions to fit the geographical area in which it would be deployed and the mission to which assigned. The new brigades would initially have six to eight assigned battalions.

National Guard Divisions affected are the 35th of Kansas and Missouri; the 34th of Nebraska and Iowa; the 43rd of Connecticut, Rhode Island and Vermont, and the 51st of Florida and South Carolina.

Army Reserve Divisions to be realigned are the 79th of Pennsylvania, Maryland and Delaware; the 94th of Massachusetts; the 96th of Arizona, Idaho, Montana, Utah, Washington and Nevada, and the 103rd of Iowa, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

The plans are subject to completion of Congressional hearings.

JUNK HEAP

A Middlesborough, England, man was fined because of the condition of his car. Its body was held together with plastic tape, it had faulty brakes, poor steering, damaged lights and reflectors, broken running boards, pock-marked muffler, broken windshield wipers, no turn signals and, worst of all, dirty license plates.

OFFICIAL NOTICE

Four members of a California county sheriff's reserve, a voluntary law enforcement unit, quit because the sheriff would not let them wear uniforms while they distributed campaign literature for his opponent in next June's elections.

'Second' Digs in at Fort Stewart

6-Day FTX Underway In Southern Ga.

FORT STEWART, Ga. — Officers and men of the 2nd Infantry Division this week "jumped off" into the actual play of Exercise Seneca Spear, a six-day continuous division-sized field exercise.

Staged at Fort Stewart, Georgia, some 240 miles from the Fort Benning reservation, Exercise Seneca Spear marks the first full-scale test of the Division since donning the elite Strategic Army Corps designation.

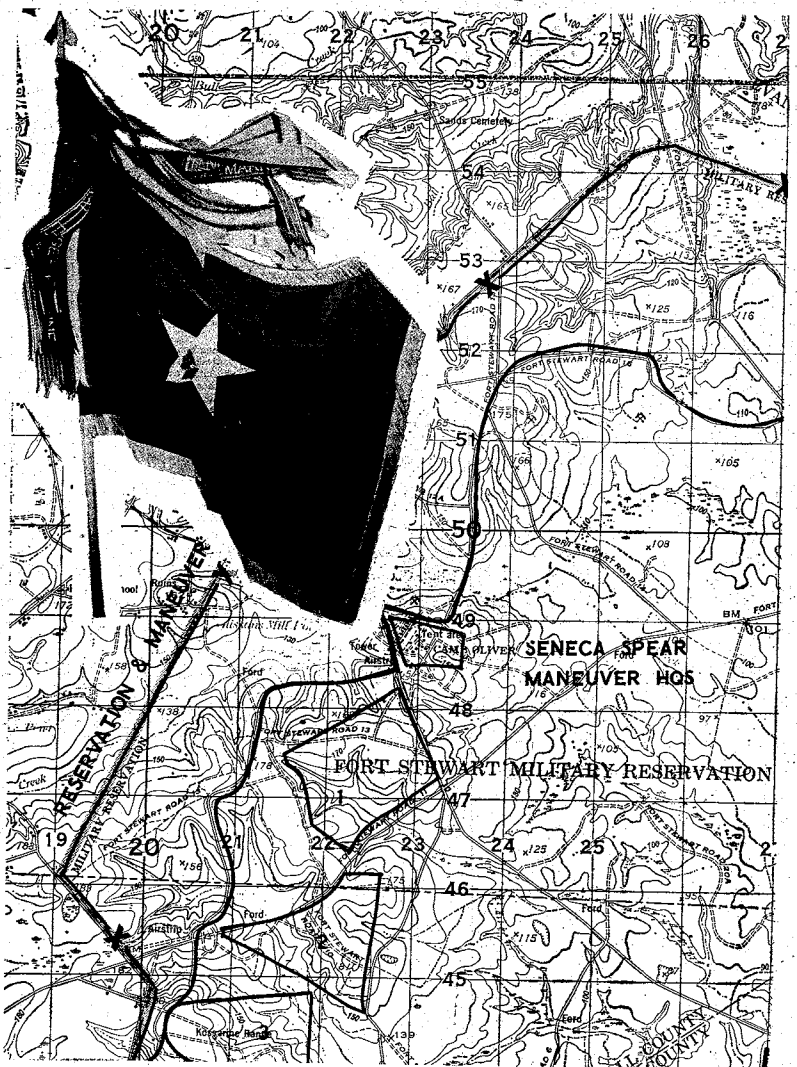
For most division units, the move to the south Georgia post, situated some 20 miles inland from the coast, was accomplished over three principal routes: Alpha, Bravo and Charlie. For others, namely Brigade Headquarters and the 38th Infantry (minus Company A) the mode of transportation was via Military Air Transport Service planes.

Rendezvous

Once there, the "Yellow" force, composed of Brigade and 38th elements, and supporting elements from Fort Stewart, rendezvoused in a tactical assembly area on Fort Stewart's east side. The "Blue" force, comprised of the remaining division units, was to assemble on the opposite, or western, side of the reservation.

With play scheduled to get underway yesterday, the exercise ends Tuesday, with most division units returning to Fort Benning the following day.

In addition to being the division's first full-scale test as a STRAC unit, Seneca Spear will also see the division utilizing, once again, the "opposing forces" concept.



Maneuver Headquarters is to choose exercise controllers, issuing necessary orders and directives to both the "Yellow" and the "Blue" forces.

Seneca Spear also will see division men experiencing their first major river crossing exercise, utilizing the serpentine Canoochee River, which virtualy bisects the reservation, home of the U. S. Army Armor and Artillery Firing Center.

"Guerrilla-type" operations will prevail during the exercise, directed against both forces.

In addition to the practical value of offensive - defensive training, Exercise Seneca Spear, like the Fort McClellan exercises, will enable division

Division G-1 Section Handles All Matters of Personnel Management

In matters of finance, morale, education, postal and religious services, personnel management affairs of primary importance to every individual in the 2nd Division, the division G-1 section and its many subordinate sections handle most of the work.

The Assistant Chief of Staff, G-1, backed up by his staff of officers, non-commissioned officers and enlisted men, acts as the commanding general's principal coordinating staff assistant in personnel affairs.

For the Division

For the 2nd Division, Lieutenant Colonel Ralph K. Jones is the commanding general's staff assistant on matters which pertain to the thousands of individuals directly utilized by the command.

Working under Lt. Col. Jones in the key enlisted position is Sergeant Major Billie Nowell, enlisted advisor to the G-1, most importantly in questions of morale and welfare.

Through this office in coordination with S-1 sections in units subordinate to or attached to the division pass matters in five general categories: maintenance of unit strength, personnel management, morale, maintenance of discipline and headquarters management. Above and beyond these general categories lie many miscellaneous details such as safety programs, dependent schools, etc.

Working in the G-1 section are Major Leo R. Lewis, assistant G-1 and executive officer dealing primarily with plans and services; Major Robert A. McDade, scheduled to assume Major Lewis' duties upon his impending departure; Captain James L. O'Neill, assistant G-1 with duties having to do with military personnel actions such as officer assignments; Staff Sergeant Henry A. Kyle, safety non-commissioned officer; Private First Class Stanley Lasinski, typist; and Private Raymond E. Baxter, ethnic assignments clerk.

Specific responsibility in the G-1 section are the Office of the Adjutant General, headed by Lieutenant Colonel Jack E. Crampton. The Chaplain's Section, headed by Chaplain (Lieutenant Colonel) James F. Powers; Veterans Section, headed by Captain Richard E. Hubbard; Finance section, headed by Captain Donald R. Hudson; Personal Services Officer, headed by Lieutenant Colonel John W. Thompson, Headquarters Commandant, headed by Major Jerome J. Hammer.

Two Lieutenants Depart 7th Cavalry

The 7th Cavalry recently lost two officers to two of the division's battle groups.

Lieutenant Joseph C. Gross was assigned to the 4th Battalion, 9th Infantry, and Lt. Karl J. Roche was assigned to the 1st Battalion, 7th Infantry.

Lt. Gross and Lt. Roche were assigned to the 7th Cavalry after attending the Junior Officers' Orientation Course at Fort Knox, Kentucky. Earlier, they both were "Cherry Cavers" when they were assigned as platoon leaders. Lt. Gross is Troop A and Lt. Roche is Troop E.

In maintaining unit strengths throughout the division, the G-1 section maintains current and future loss estimates. Personnel records and reports showing the status of personnel matters in the command as a whole are kept up to date, to include strength reports, morning reports, injury reports and levies for other units.

It makes personnel requisitions, individual replacements and determines requirements, supervising requisitioning procedures. The section also recommends allocations, establishes policies and procedures for processing, and makes plans for movement.

Generally, this staff section exercises coordinating staff supervision of all management matters, including personnel procedures, affecting personnel of the 2nd Division as individuals.

To insure that the objectives of the division are carried out, the section handles all classifications and assignments, recommending policies and supervising the execution of programs concerning such things as decorations and awards, promotions, pay, transfers and reassignments, as well as demotions and separations.

Welfare of the command is of primary importance to this office, which recommends policies and supervises the execution of programs governing health and hygiene, working hours, leaves and passes and religious participation.

> This is the first in a proposed series of articles spotlighting 2nd Division General and Special Staff Sections. These articles are designed to better acquaint the Soldier with the function and duties of the many sections of 2nd Division Headquarters.

Closely aligned with welfare of the 2nd Division is the category entitled "Morale." First on the list is postal service. This office is responsible for mail services functioning within the 2nd Division, whether the units be in garrison or in the field on maneuvers.

It also makes sure that the division finance officer are available to all who are authorized to use them, also insuring that pay records are kept current and correct.

Various Religious Services

Also considered part of the category "morale" are the various religious services offered to personnel of the division. The office of the Assistant Chief of Staff, G-2, assists staff chaplains to insure that all facilities required for the discharge of their tasks are available, permitting them to conduct worship services in garrison and in the field.

Special services, including recreation and entertainment are coordinated through the same office. Closely aligned to this are exchange service matters over which the G-1 section exercises coordinating staff responsibility. They also coordinate the furnishing of information, counsel and advice on personal affairs and assist in connection with applications for benefits, payments and services administered by Federal agencies.

Should division personnel need help through the Army Emergency Relief, the Army Relief Society or the Red Cross, this too is coordinated through the G-1 section.

Legal services, advice and assistance are made available to personnel of the division through their coordination.

The Assistant Chief of Staff, G-1, recommends policies and prepares plans for decorations and awards, making sure that effective instruction in procedures is executed by all units in conformance with division guidance.

He exercises coordinating staff responsibility for matters of discipline, law and order, collects information, data and statistics concerning discipline, conducting analyses of these statistics in order to recommend policy.

He also controls headquarters organization and administration without encroaching on the prerogative of other staff officers to insure that headquarters operations are performed with optimum efficiency; coordinates and supervises the movement and internal organization of the headquarters, recommending manpower economies, especially of bulk allotment personnel.

Allocates Shelter

When the headquarters moves into the field, the G-1 allocates shelter in the headquarters area, in coordination with the operations officer for area organization and with the logistics officer for the provision of shelter also recommending the location of the rear echelon of the headquarters.

Lastly there are various miscellaneous responsibilities of the Assistant Chief of Staff, G-1, which include preparing personnel estimates of battle situations, participating in operational planning including the provision of personnel requirements and preparing the personnel plan and the personnel portion of orders.

He also exercises coordinating staff supervision of activities involving education of military personnel, safety management, dependent schools and other administrative matters not assigned to other coordinating staff sections.

men to acclimate their tactical know-how to a totally different type of terrain.

Final Elements

The final elements from Fort Benning arrived at Stewart Wednesday evening. These were preceded by the Monday arrival of the 2nd Quartermaster Company, 7th Cavalry and elements of the 2nd Engineer Battalion.

The 122nd Signal Battalion made the trip to Fort Stewart, situated some 43 miles southwest of Savannah, Tuesday.

The 69th Armor tankers moved out the previous week, and prepared to receive the armored hardware they'll need to "fight" the exercise. The 69th will remain at Stewart for additional firing qualification.

Serving as exercise director is Major General Charles H. Chase, 2nd Division commanding general. Colonel Maurice C. Holden is deputy director.

Other officers assigned to Maneuver Headquarters include Major Dudley T. Bunn, operations chief, and Major Charles F. Nietman, signal officer.

Maj. Repsher On Job As Commandant

Major Jerome J. Repsher has joined the 2nd Division as headquarters commandant, succeeding Captain Farris D. Alexander.

Major Repsher, a native of Rochester, New York, comes to Fort Benning from a year's tour of duty as supply and procurement officer Headquarters, U. S. Military Assistance Advisory Group, Cambodia.

In Cambodia, Major Repsher served Major General Charles H. Chase, present 2nd Division commanding general.

Enlisted

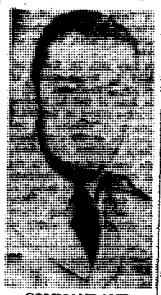
A veteran of more than 19 years' army service, Major Repsher enlisted in the Army in November 1942 and served his first six-and-a-half years as an enlisted man.

He entered Officers' Candidate School at Fort Riley, Kansas, in late 1948, graduating six months later as a second lieutenant in the Infantry.

Then - Lieutenant Repsher's succeeding assignments saw him serving at Okinawa with the 29th Infantry and in Korea, where he fought with the 24th Division's 35th Infantry Regiment.

In 1951, he began a two-year tour of duty as an induction officer in Pennsylvania, later serving, in 1953-56, as a company commander and battalion staff officer with the 4th Division in Germany.

Returning to the United States, Major Repsher commanded a U. S. Army Reserve Center in Atlantic City, New Jersey, until moving to his Cambodia assignment in January 1961.



In addition to OCS, Major Repsher attended the Senior Non - Commissioned Officers Academy in 1946, Basic Infantry Officers' Course in 1949, Basic Parachutist's and Jump Master's School, June 1952, Associate Infantry Officers' Advanced Course, 1956, and the Sanz School of Language, Washington, D.C., and the Military Assistance Institute, Arlington, Virginia, in 1960.

U of Maryland

Major Repsher received a bachelor of science degree in military studies at the University of Maryland in June 1959.

His decorations include the Silver Star, Bronze Star with Oak Leaf Cluster and "V" Device, Purple Heart, Combat Infantryman's Badge, Parachutist's Badge, European Theater of Operations Medal with three campaign stars, Korean Service Medal with two campaign stars and the Presidential Unit Citation.

38th Cites Companies At Awards Ceremonies

COMMANDANT
Major Repsher

By 38th Inf PIO

Five plaques and trophies were presented at awards ceremonies last Saturday at the 38th Infantry.

Headquarters Company was presented the traveling plaque for the company with the lowest AWOL rate in the battle group for February. Company A, whose mess was voted best on Kelley Hill for February, was presented the traveling battle group plaque in recognition as having that month's best mess.

Companies that win each of the plaques the most months will retire the awards at the end of the year.

Sergeant Cyril M. Gray Jr. of Combat Support Company, soon to leave the battle group for an assignment with Special Forces, was awarded a plaque recognizing him as 38th Infantry "Soldier-of-the-Month" for March. Combat Support Company also was awarded a trophy in recognition of its winning the company volleyball league.

Company C received the fifth award, a trophy for winning the company basketball league.

The presentations were made at individual company formations by Lieutenant Colonel Cecil M. Sanders, deputy battle group commander.

1st Infantry Lieutenants Win BG Chant Contest

By 1st Infantry PIO

Company E is the proud possessor of a world globe awarded to them as the winners of the Chant Contest held recently by the 1st Infantry.

Each company of the battle group sponsored a chant. Their chant was presented by a drill platoon which performed close order drill movements to the rhythm of the chant.

A five man selection board selected the chant of Company E as the winner after a short deliberation. Their choice was based on many factors. The content of the chant had to refer to the history of the battle group in peacetime and in war.

The selection board was also looking for a strongly rhythmic chant, one that would contribute to the esprit of the entire battle group.

The co-authors of the new battle group chant are Lieutenants Alan F. Kilburn and Wilfred J. D. Foster. Both officers are platoon leaders of E Company.

Colonel Walter B. Todd, battle group commander, presented the world globe to staff Sergeant Quintus Harris, leader of the company drill unit. Colonel Todd also presented a savings bond to the two co-authors.

In his brief remarks to the massed battle group, Colonel Todd encouraged the entire battle group to use the chant in all marching and physical training formations.

7 EM Complete Four-Week Course

Seven enlisted men of the 1st Infantry have completed the four-week embarkation course conducted at the United States Naval Amphibious School, Little Creek, Virginia.

Returning to their units this week to assume their normal duties were Master Sergeants John W. Day, Combat Support Company; Warren C. Griffin, Company C; George R. Shelton, Company E and Platoon Sergeant Paul D. Walker of Company D.

Also completing the course were Sergeants First Class Vercen Ackerson, Company B and Karl A. Neudorff, Headquarters Company; and Staff Sergeant George J. Ochoa of Company A.

At April Lunch

Nominees Named For Club Posts

The gala April luncheon of the Second Division Officer's Wives' Club was held Tuesday in the ballroom of the Main Officers' Open Mess.

The Easter Season was the theme chosen by the ladies of the First Infantry, who were the hostesses for the afternoon. The overall chairman was Mrs. Charles Austin, wife of Lieutenant Colonel Austin, deputy commander of the First Infantry.

Easter Fantasy-Land

Mrs. Robert Kendrick headed the decorating committee, who transformed the ballroom into an Easter Fantasy-land. Each table bore a centerpiece of gold branches, hung with vari-colored eggs. The elaborately decorated eggs were adorned with a variety of materials, including lace, pearls, sequins, and net.

On the head table were wicker baskets, filled with bright spring flowers. Place cards, and hostess name tags further carried out the Easter theme with miniature three-dimensional hats. The focal point of the decorating theme was a large gold tree hung with elaborately decorated eggs, on which bright lights played all during luncheon.

The afternoon's special guests were the ten ladies nominated for offices for the coming year. They were: Mrs. James T. Kolb, and Mrs. Edwin T. O'Donnell, nominees for the office of President; Mrs. Harold W. Roeder and Mrs. Bryan Evans Jr., nominees for first vice president; Mrs. Robert C. Kendrick, and Mrs. Charles M. Johnson, nominees for second vice president; Mrs. Kenneth D. Grade, and Mrs. Clyde K. Cleveland, nominees for Secretary; and Mrs. Harry T. Hammon, and Mrs. Joe J. Breedlove, nominees for Treasurer.

The door prize committee, headed by Mrs. Ted Gordinier, gave four door prizes. The first three prizes were the wicker baskets from the head table. The fourth door prize was a pair of ceramic theater masks to be used as wall plaques.

After luncheon, Mrs. Louis A. Kunzig Jr. presided over the business meeting, during which time the ten nominees for offices were presented to the membership. Voting will take place at the May luncheon.

The meeting was then turned over to Mrs. Ralph H. Hughett, first vice president and program chairman, who introduced the afternoon's entertainment. "The Masquers", Fort Benning's Little Theater group, presented a one act comedy by Noel Coward, titled, "Ways and Means". Directed by Phyllis Tritsch, the play featured Margo Carter as Stella Cartwright, and James Grohl as Toby Cartwright, with Pauline McMonagle as Nanny, Maureen Bloemsma as Olive, and Vince De Dario as Stevens. Technical aspects of the play were handled by John Olbrys.

Cake Sale Set at 38th

Plans were made for a cake sale as the officers' wives of the 38th Infantry met recently for their monthly coffee.

Mrs. Richard D. Freeman Sr., project chairman, announced that the sale is scheduled for Saturday, May 5, and that the baked goods will be sold in the mess halls.

Mrs. Maurice C. Holden hosted the coffee. The table was decorated with a silver bowl filled with colored Easter eggs and flanked by two candelabra holding pink, green and white candles.

Mrs. Thomas G. Boyd was named the battle group's hospitality chairman. She will be assisted by Mrs. Frederick A. Rall.

Mrs. Ross W. Winne Jr. has been named treasurer, and Mrs. Dudley T. Bunn is in charge of reservations for the 2nd Division officers wives club luncheons.

The ladies welcomed Mrs. James R. Hoover and bid farewell to Mrs. Donald M. Fann.

Mrs. Otto Koch has been invited to discuss protocol at the next coffee, which will be hosted by Mmes. Donald B. Read, William W. Dresback and Joe C. Drabek.

Easter Egg Hunt!

The Ladies of the Big Indianhead will hold an Easter Egg Hunt for the members' children age 1 through 12 at the Sand Hill Non-Commissioned Officers Open Mess, April 21 at 3 p.m.

Incidental Intelligence

Captain and Mrs. Frederick A. Rall recently entertained Lieutenant and Mrs. Rodney A. Pimental with a farewell dinner party. Other guests included Lieutenant and Mrs. Weldon E. White.

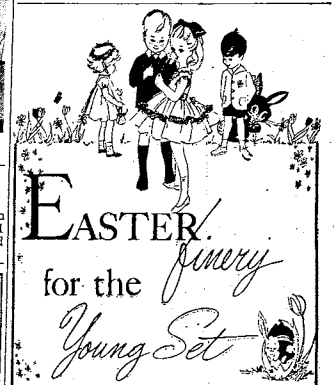
Lt. Pimental has received flight school orders and is leaving soon for Texas.

The table was centered with a silver bowl filled with large white daisies.

Mrs. Pimental also was honored at an informal luncheon by Mrs. Carroll J. Kraus.

69th Armor Distaff Group Meets in Normandy Room

The distaff side of the 69th Armor held their April coffee in the Normandy room of the Main Officers Open Mess last Wednesday morning.

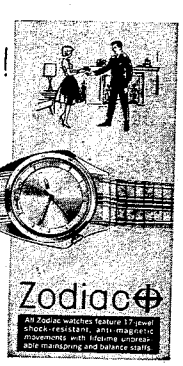


Mrs. Stephen Kovacs, wife of Captain Kovacs, Company B commander, Mrs. Fred Mullens, wife of Lieutenant Mullens, Company C platoon leader, and Mrs. Gerald Ristau, wife of Lieutenant Ristau, battalion Chaplain, were hostesses.

Mrs. James T. Kolb, wife of Lieutenant Colonel Kolb, 69th Armor commanding officer, poured.

The decorating theme was "April Showers" with name tags in the form of yellow raindrops. The centerpiece consisted of oriental umbrellas in aqua and pink, filled with pink, yellow and white handmade flowers.

The morning's guests were Mrs. Hazel Mullens, from Tampa, Florida, mother of Lieutenant Fred Mullens, and Major Anna A. Turek, Senior Health Nurse at Fort Benning.



The program for the morning was given by Major Turek, who spoke briefly on proper eating habits, and then talked on care of the victim in the event of insect and snake bites.

Engineer's Company B Practice Assault River Crossings Here

By 2nd Engineer PIO

Last month the members of Company B, 2nd Engineer Battalion, were extremely elated at their status. This was the day of return from Fort McClellan, Ala. Many expected a short rest after the vigorous and successful field problem at Fort McClellan, however, this was not the case. No sooner were trucks, tools and gear secured, when another training "first" commenced. Assault river crossings.

The first week of training was spent on Victory Pond. The ensuing two weeks were spent on the much more difficult Chattahoochee River. Here, on several occasions, troops, tanks, and armored personnel carriers of the 7th Cavalry crossed under simulated combat conditions, thus crowning their assigned mission as a success.

Once again, last week the men of Company B, 2nd Engineer Battalion, undertook another new experience. The mission of constructing a floating bridge across the Upatoi Creek was assigned.

The water gap measured 142 feet with only 110 feet of bridge available. This necessitated constructing the bridge with two light tactical rafts to include the building of 32 feet of earth approach.

Protestants Net $366 For Overseas Needy

A total of $366.46 was collected recently at Protestant Chapels located in the 2nd Division garrison area as an offering for the "1962 One Great Hour of Sharing," a world-wide program of assistance to the needy throughout the overseas world.

More than $15 million is being asked this year by churches in the United States for this assistance program.

Record-Breaking

The greater part of this record-breaking program is being achieved through the "1962 One Great Hour of Sharing" program.

This is the 14th annual observance of "One Great Hour of Sharing," the major effort of the United Appeal for overseas relief, rehabilitation and reconstruction through which funds for their ministries to those in distress are raised by major Protestant and Eastern Orthodox denominations and communions.

The division's contribution and contributions made by tens of millions of Americans in "One Great Hour of Sharing" and related appeals will provide food, clothing, medicines and shelter to victims of floods, famine, hurricanes and other natural disasters; help rehabilitate and resettle refugees; assist hospitals and orphanages; furnish self-help and vocational training and make possible agricultural and community development projects that will help break patterns of poverty.

Also supported by funds raised in "One Great Hour of Sharing" are educational projects such as assistance to schools, student exchange programs and the training of young persons, both here and abroad, for service and leadership in their homelands.

Intra-BG Pinochle Tile Underway at 8th Inf

By 28th Inf PIO

"Fifty-three ... sixty ... sixty-five ... pass."

These were some of the prominent sounds in the 28th Infantry this week as the intra-battle group pinochle tournament got under way.

Some six teams are battling for the honor of being named the battle group champion after winning similar honors as top company teams.

The teams of two men each are squaring off in four-handed, doubled-deck play, the popular form of pinochle played in the Army, an offshoot of the centuries-old, single-deck game.

Playing with 80 cards of ten through ace, players make bids determined on melds — certain arrangements of cards with point values — and on strengths determined through high cards and strong trump suits.

For instance a team may have 35 points in meld and figure it can take 25 of the 50 points in tricks in each hand — therefore, allowing a bid of at least 60. If they do not make their bid, however, they lose their meld and the amount of points they bid.

Participating teams include: Albert F. Carraway and Aubrey E. Walker, Combat Support Company; William D. Lochow and Stanley E. Miller, Headquarters Company; James N. Dinsmore and Donald M. Ziolkowski, Company A; Newell R. Owens and Russel E. Stripling, Company C; Harvey T. Yoder and Wallace J. Winfrey, Company D, and Edward T. Anderson and Cecil L. Haney of Company E.

Conquerors Preparing For Division Softball

By 87th Inf PIO

The key word to describe the formation of the 87th Infantry softball team this year is "enthusiasm."

Accustomed to the sweet taste of victory, every effort will be made to avoid a repeat of last season's apathetic showing which produced only two wins.

From his new office at the revamped battle group headquarters building, manger Burl Withers, the man on the hot seat, made the following preseason remark. "With five of six men returning from last year's team coupled with a new coaching staff and some promising new talent, the team should be pretty strong."

Although none of the positions are settled, returning ballplayers include Ronald Guy, Billy Stoops, Joseph Shaheen, pitchers Leonard Goodwin and manager Withers. The coaching staff is composed of Lieutenant Joseph C. Gross III and First Sergeant Carl D. Smith, both with some professional experience.

One solid week of practice is on the schedule for those interested, to begin immediately after Seneca Spear. Now only a few points behind Div-Arty in competition for the Commanding General's Sports Trophy; the Conquerors' nine have their work cut out. The 14 game season will start the first week in May.

Two 1st Teams Take Victories In Unit Softball

By 1st Infantry PIO

Softball competition has taken the highlights of the sports program at the 1st Infantry. In the games played last week Company C and Company B came out the victors.

Company B downed the hard fighting team of Company E by a score of 6 to 5. Company C won two games in the action. They defeated Company D by a score of 7 to 3 and then trounced Combat Support Company by eight points in a 13 to 5 game.

The battle group competition will be idle while the troops are at Fort Stewart but will commence again on April 21.

Co. B Leads 'Marnemen's' Softball Loop

By 38th Inf PIO

Company B notched two victories last week in as many games to take the lead as the 38th Infantry softball tournament began.

The "Bravo" nine edged Company E 8 to 5 and Company D 7 to 3.

Company C beat neighboring Company D 8-0 in one of two shutouts; in the other "Echo" Company dropped Headquarters Company 10-0.

Company A softballers have yet to meet opposition; the company left Fort Benning during the middle of last week as part of the advance party to Fort Stewart and Exercise Seneca Spear.

The "Alpha" team is on top in the 38th Infantry volleyball schedule which is due to end shortly after the battle group's return from Fort Stewart. Companies D and E have perfect records, as well as Company A, but have played fewer games.

Delta Company Takes Manchu Team Bowling

By J. J. Shields

With Delta Company taking team honors and John Zimmerman of Bravo Company sweeping all individual titles, the 9th Infantry's 1962 Bowling Tournament drew to a close recently at the Sand Hill Bowling Lanes.

Leading through both rounds of the 10-game tournament, the Delta Company keglers of Gale Price, 162.5, John O'Malley, 155.8, and Paul Ivey, 147.5, collected a total of 4615 total pins to take team honors.

Delta is not a stranger to the Manchu championship circle. They are also the company - level champions of basketball and volleyball, besides representing the 9th in the Main Post Holiday basketball and volleyball tourneys.

High average, high game and leader in total pins for individual honors was John Zimmerman. Not only did he have high single game, 210, but he also had the only other 200 or better games, 205 and 204. His average of 18.15 and total pins, 1815, round out the Manchu pinmen's honors.

John Rsess, Headquarters Company, Bob Given, Company C, Shane Soldato, Company C and Gale Price, Company D along with John Zimmerman round out the Manchu squad that will represent the 9th Infantry in the division bowling tournament.

C-S Co. Leads Conquerors' Bowling League

By 87th Inf PIO

Combat Support Company, powered by the 195 average bowling of James A. Scott, has taken a commanding lead in the 87th Infantry bowling league.

Echo Company is in second place behind the solid bowling of Paul Suding. An independent team made up of members of the commo platoon of Headquarters Company is in third place.

Gordon Captures 3rd Army Volleyball Tournament

Sparked by David E. Holland, the 42nd Civil Affairs Company from Fort Gordon are the new champions of the Company Level Third Army volleyball tournament.

Thursday afternoon April 5, they defeated the 41st Company (Airborne) from Benning in two straight matches, 18-16, and 15-12.

In capturing the crown, the team from Fort Gordon broke a Benning monopoly in this competition. Over the past four years teams from The Infantry Center have won the championship.

Fort Benning made a great team effort in the two matches, but the services of Holland and his spiking was too much for the Doughboys to cope with.

During tournament play, the 42nd won a total of eight matches and lost two. They defeated Fort Benning twice, Fort Jackson, and Fort Stewart. The two losses came in their matches with Jackson and Stewart.

Immediately after the end of the double elimination tourney, the team members of both the winning and runner-up squads were presented individual awards, wrist watches, by Col. Edwin M. Cahill, deputy post commander.

In addition, a large team trophy was also awarded to the two finalists. Both the individual awards and the team trophies were provided by the Special Services section of Headquarters, Third Army.

Prior to their departure for homestations, team members, their coaches, and tournament officers were treated to a steak dinner given by the host installation, Fort McClellan.

GEORGE IZO

George Izo, ex-Notre Dame Pigskin flinger and field general for the Washington Redskins, is training under the Army's six-month program at Fort Leonard Wood. While playing three years with Notre Dame varsity grid teams, Izo teamed with such standouts as halfback Paul Hornung and end Monte Stickles.

Redlegs Undefeated This Spring

In pre - season exhibition games, the Redlegs of the 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade have gone undefeated. They have faced teams from the 29th Infantry, 15tst Engineer Group, 156th Signal Company, and The Infantry Center Troop Command.

The 10th Artillery team is coached by 2nd Lt. Charles Waters, Battery B, 29th Artillery. Working with Lt. Waters is Sgt. Thomas Smith of Battery C. Both men feel that their team is capable of emerging as post champions.

On Sunday, April 15, at 1:30 p.m. on Gowdy Field, the Redlegs will have their first chance to prove their baseball proficiency. Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell, post commander, is expected to officially open the season by throwing out the first ball.

Fort Benning Golfers In Tri-State Tourney

By Sfc Bismarck Stith

The Marine Corps will host the 9th Annual Tri-State (South Carolina, North Carolina and Georgia) Invitational Golf Tournament to be held at Parris Island on April 18, 19 and 20.

Tournament play will be a five-man team event consisting of 54 hole medal play. Entrants are limited to two teams per command.

Representing Fort Benning in the tournament will be Paul T. Clifford, Garmon O. Aure, Reihard D. Reish, Dean G. Potter, Robert J. Forster, William K. Edens, Howard F. Holbrook, Paul L. Wolfe, Allen P. Mauldin, Maurice D. Carral, William H. Royer and William C. Arnold.

Eighteen holes per day commencing at 9 a.m. will be played on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. A Seniors Division, individual medal play, made up of golfers 45 years of age and older will also be held. Seniors may participate in either the team event or the senior event but not both.

Trophies will be awarded on the following basis; winning and runner-up teams; individual members of winning and runner-up teams; senior division winner and runner - up team; individual low and second low medalist; winner, special putting and special driving contest.

By Sfc Bismarck Stith

The season's opener in the Major Unit Baseball League is scheduled for Sunday, April 15, at 1:30 p.m. on Gowdy Field.

Slated to meet in the first contest of the 1962 baseball circuit is 29th Infantry and 10th Artillery.

The league will be comprised of teams from The Student Brigade; The Infantry Center Troop Command; 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery; 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry; 156th Signal Battalion, 1st Infantry Brigade; 428th Medical Battalion; and 151st Engineer Group.

The defending champion is The Student Brigade. They were also the 1961 Third Army runner-up in the tournament held at Fort Bragg last season. The Artillerymen from the 10th Artillery were major unit runner-ups.

Highlighting many of the rosters this year will be numerous players who are connected with some of the top minor league baseball teams.

Pre-season practice sessions have been going full-scale, according to the coaches, and with favorable results.

Charles R. Waters II, pilot of the 10th Artillery nine, has coached this team to four exhibition wins in four starts. He is very pleased with the performance of the players up to date.

Dave Lynn, catcher for Student Brigade last season, will head the 29th Infantry squad this season. Bob Kinard, last year's coach of the Infantry Center, will be in charge of The Student Brigade. James Hill will handle the 151st Engineer Group; while Carl Flynn will manage the new reserve and national guard squad from the 156th Signal Battalion. Robert Lebish will coach the 428th Medical Battalion. George Dorr will pilot the Center Troop Command team.

Other action for the week will see 156th Signal Battalion vs. 428th Medical Battalion on Tuesday night; Wednesday, 151st Engineer Group vs. 10th Artillery, and 29th Infantry will go against The Student Brigade on Thursday night.

The Major Unit Baseball League will continue weekly action until August 4th when the playoffs will be conducted to determine the 1962 USAIC baseball champions. A post team will be selected from the Major Unit league to represent Fort Benning in the Third Army Baseball Tournament.

Third Army competition will be held at Redstone Arsenal, August 27-31. The Fort Campbell Screaming Eagles are the defending champions.

BOWLING TEAM TO REPRESENT POST
(L to R) Miles, Niemiec, Hershman, Naher, Hetz, Norris, Allen

Seven Bowlers Chosen For Army Match

The Infantry Center Bowling Tournament ended recently after a week of bowling. Forty-eight bowlers entered the tournament trying for a spot on the team to represent Fort Benning in the Third Army Tournament to be held April 22 through 26, at Fort Rucker.

A total of 24 games were played and the six high scores were selected to represent the post in the play-offs. The six top scores included Lt. Col. James Miles, (4761); Sgt. Albert S. Niemiec, (4554); MSgt. Warren C. Hershman, (4552); Sgt. John H. Norris, (4527); Sp4 Kelcy R. Allen, (4500); and Sp4 Ronald C. Hitz, (4494). Capt. Leo G. Naber was selected as the alternate with 4484 points.

Pentathlon Team Hosts Spring Meet

FORT SAM HOUSTON (AFPS) — The only military athletic team to officially represent the U. S. in world competition — the U. S. Modern Pentathlon team — will compete in the international Pentathlon Meet to be held here May 5-6.

Thirty military athletes from Brazil, Australia, Mexico, Uruguay and the U. S. will match skills in such sports as cross-country horseback riding, running, pistol shooting, swimming, and epee fencing.

An intensified training program is being carried out in preparation for the meet. In addition to the regular training, the candidates will have swimming and running, six days a week.

Selection of the four-man squad which will represent the U.S. will be determined by intra-team competition during April.

LEW JENKINS

Lew Jenkins, former world lightweight boxing champion during the 1940's, now an Army master sergeant stationed with the 28th Infantry in Germany, retires after 20 years service this month.

MORE PICNIC AREAS

Extensive pond improvement work is currently underway and several post ponds have been recently completd.

The picnic area at Upper Kings Pond has been enlarged and access to the pond improved. This two-acre pond is located on Pine Tree Road and was opened for fishing less than a year ago after extensive renovation.

Last fall the pond was used for an experimental weed control demonstration which proved highly successful in reducing the thick growth of aquatic weeds. The pond is ideal for bank fishing and reports indicate some nice catches of bream being taken from the pond.

SNELLING'S POND IMPROVED

Repair and clearing of the dam at Snelling's Pond has recently been completed and this popular pond now lends itself to bank fishing. The pond banks were formerly grown-up in dense underbrush which made bank fishing virtually impossible.

The current clearing and repair has resulted in considerable area adaptable to bank fishing. Snelling's Pond is a popular bass pond and is located on Rinehart Road in Area K.

RUSS POND STOCKED

During the later part of March, Russ Pond was stocked with 340 rainhow trout fingerlings and 900 brook trout fingerlings, and during the past week 2,000 channel catfisb fingerlings were released in the pond. The fish will be fed a special fish food which will speed their growth. The pond is currently closed to all fishing and is scheduled to reopen sometime this fall.

HUNTING FINALE NEARS

With only a few days remaining in the spring gobbler season only six hunters have reported bagging turkeys on post this season. Each of the six gobblers were taken in a different area on post and all weighed in between 19 and 22 pounds.

When the spring turkey season bows out April 14 in the Georgia area and April 15 in the Alabama area, it will mark the end of all hunting until dove season early this fall.

POST PONDS TO BE SURVEYED

Personnel of the U.S. Fisb and Wildlife Service are expected to visit post during the coming week to make a detailed survey of post ponds.

Robert T. Webb, fishery biologist will analyze individual ponds and make recommendations concerning stocking, fertilization, weed control and other fish management activities.

Patriot's Day Celebration Urged By AL

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—The American Legion has begun a program to bring a relatively unknown holiday, Patriot's Day, into prominence as a symbol of national unity and devotion to the cause of freedom.

April 19 is observed as Patriot's Day only in Maine and Maine and Massachusetts. It commemorates Paul Revere's famed ride across the New England countryside, and is the anniversary of the Revolutionary battles of Lexington and Concord.

Plans for the program, named "Bells Across the Nation," call for the ringing of church and school bells, carillons and chimes in communities throughout the nation for a period of four minutes on April 19.

Charles L. Bacon, the Legion's national commander, described the program as "simple of execution, but deeply significant as an indication of the unity of the American people in their resolve to halt the spread of imperialistic communism."

Adm. Arleigh A. Burke, retired chief of naval operations, has accepted the chairmanship of the national Bells Across the National Committee.

Other prominent Americans serving on the committee include former Presidents Dwight D. Eisenhower and Herbert Hoover; Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara; Senator Margaret Chase Smith of Maine; and Francis Cardinal Spellman, Archbishop of New York.

ROTC Cadets Arrive Here To Tour Post

The annual Reserve Officers Training Corps orientation program at Fort Benning continues this week as cadets from three southern universities converge on the post today.

The group will include 113 men from Auburn University, 45 from Florida State University and 39 from the University of Miami.

Designed to orient the cadets with Army life, their tour will include a visit to the 1st Infantry Brigade where they will see a static display of Army weapons and equipment.

Additional plans for the cadets, most of whom are sophomores and juniors, tentatively call for them to tour the brigade's company-sized units, to lunch in a brigade mess hall and to be briefed on Army aircraft and engineer activities.

The group is the second of some 550 cadets to participate in scheduled orientation tours at Fort Benning.

The third and final group will include 168 cadets from Florida A & M, Florida Southern College and Mercer University.

They will be at Fort Benning from April 26 through 28.

The tours are conducted by the U. S. Army Infantry Center Reserve Components Section.

Army Draft Quota Is Cut

Department of Defense has called for Selective Service to provide 6,000 men during April for assignment to the Army. This is the same number called during March.

Calls during March and April are considerably lower than those in previous months.

In September, 1961, the draft call was 25,000; in October, 20,000; November, 20,000; December, 16,000; January, 15,000, and February, 6,000.

Larger draft calls last fall were necessary in order to bring the Army to the strength objective established for the Berlin build-up.

As a result of these higher draft calls and other personnel action, this strength objective including provisions for manning the two new Army divisions has now been reached.

Other gains are obtained from enlistments, reenlistments and officer appointment programs.

Since the start of the build-up, more than a 20 per cent improvement in enlistments has been noted. Of the total gains of personnel during the build-up exclusive of Reserve recalls, approximately half have been from inductions.

The April call, in accordance with established policies, has been computed by the Army to cover losses, thereby maintaining the approved strength.

Profile of A Man Doing A Man's Job

Sfc George B Ricketts has recently returned from studies at the Artillery and Missile School, Fort Sill, where he graduated from a course in field artillery radar operation with honors.

In a letter, Col. James P. Smith of the school informed Sgt. Ricketts he had ranked number two in a class of 32 students with an average grade of 95 per cent. He was considered an honor graduate.

Since entering the Army in 1953 at Fort Jackson, S. C., Sgt. Ricketts has often distinguished himself in training and in actual performance of duties. He was outstanding in Fire Direction Control Training, NCO Academy training and at Airborne School, Fort Bragg, N. C., where he remained as an instructor.

Now serving with Headquarters Battery, 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade, Sgt. Ricketts' first radar duties were performed in Germany in 1957. At that time he was platoon sergeant of Battery A, 1st Observation Battalion, 26th Artillery.

Prior to coming to Fort Benning one year ago, Sgt. Ricketts served as chief of radar, 3rd Artillery, 2nd Armored Division at Fort Hood, Texas.

Sgt. Ricketts was recently qualified to receive proficiency pay as the result of his knowledge and understanding of his job.

Korea Returnee Now Instructor

First Lt. Charles C. Howard has been assigned to The Infantry School as an instructor in the Ground Mobility Department.

He arrived here from Korea where he was a member of the 1st Cavalry Division.

Lieutenant Howard entered the Army as an enlisted man in November, 1950, after his graduation from South High School, Salt Lake City. In 1959 at Officer Candidate School, Fort Benning, he received his commission.

LAAC Air Crews Go to Florida For AF Water Survival Course

Twenty members of the 1st Aviation Company, Lawson Army Aviation Command, left last Saturday for a three-day trip to Florida waters, where they studied water survival techniques.

The group, pilots and crew chiefs of the AC-1 Caribou aircraft, took a water survival course at the 8th Air Force Survival School, MacDill Air Force Base.

The course consisted of two days of instructions.

The first day, Sunday, was spent in classrooms, where students saw equipment demonstrations, such as the proper usage of the Mae West life jackets and the one-man and 20-man life rafts.

They learned techniques on the conservation of supplies, reducing the dangers of water and sun exposure and how to gather rainwater.

On Monday they went out into Tampa Bay. Here they had on-the-job training in the handling of life rafts and in the prevention of sunburn.

The Air Force gives this course to the Strategic Air Command bomber wings.

BY KAY JONES

The first of Fort Benning's Cadet Parades is scheduled April 27. Smiling Benningites will greet Georgia Military Academy cadets. This is a true sign that summer is near.

"Pajama Game" was really a musical hit. The musical was highly enjoyed by all. We're mighty proud of our Benningites who participated. You did yourselves proud.

Fourteen Junior Army Daughters were the topic of discussion in their flashy spring frocks. The fashions ranged from the season's newest in dazzling swim suits — they're really striking — to the breeziest of dresses with fascinating colors.

I took my eyes off the models for only a second and I wish you could have seen the faces of both mothers and daughters. What a nice way to present a luncheon. Our memories still hold the images of these vivid clothes.

The sports world flashes news of track and baseball. Baker is surely collecting the laurels thus far. They have set and broken their own records. Congratulations, boys.

The baseball season also looks promising. Who'll get the lucky flip?

The tennis and golf teams seem to appear around our school along about now, bringing more variety.

Aren't we blessed that time glides swiftly away? Just think, less than seven weeks in this school year. Perhaps this fact is most appreciated by the seniors who seem to be throwing most of the parties.

The spring formals, Junior, Senior and Graduation dances are only around the corner too. Plans, plans and more fun.

The post sorority is in the process of planning its annual Panama City trip. It's scheduled for the weekend of April 27. The trip promises to be exciting.

Sigma Delta Beta is working on a project that will send baskets to needy families on Easter Sunday. They mix fun with service. . . . very commendable. Don't you agree?

After checking the stores, I have found that the sale of bermudas has soared in the past week. Swim suits are also on the display racks.

I suppose we must accept the fact that summer is near. John K. Bangs has the right idea:

To take things as they be,
That's my philosophy.
No use to bellar, mope or cuss,
If things was changed they might be wuss.
I never seen a night
So dark there wasn't light
Somewheres about if I look care.
To strike a match and find out where.

This Week In History

APRIL 14, 1865 — President Lincoln was shot. He died the next day.

APRIL 14, 1945 — The Fifth Army in Italy opened its final offensive.

APRIL 15, 1861 — Lincoln called for 75,000 militia for three months service to suppress the rebellion.

APRIL 16, 1947 — The Women's Medical Specialist Corps was established.

APRIL 17, 1961 — Virginia seceded, Arkansas followed on May 6, North Carolina on May 20, and Tennessee on June 8.

APRIL 18, 1906 — San Francisco was hit by an earthquake and fire. The Army assumed control, established order and organized relief.

APRIL 18, 1942 — 16 planes from the carrier Hornet, led by Lt. Col. James H. Doolittle, bombed Tokyo.

APRIL 19, 1775 — The battles of Lexington and Concord took place. These were the opening shots of the American Revolution.

TIS Book Store Branch 1 Is Now 'More Accessible'

The Infantry School Book Store Branch 1 has been moved to Building 2757.

Formerly in the basement of Building 2753, the store opened for business last Friday at the new location near the parking lot by The Infantryman Statue.

The store was moved to make it more accessible to students.

Branch 1 has student supplies and is open from 4 to 8 p.m.

The store will be opened at special hours upon the request of commanding officers.

Branch 1 is managed by Roosevelt Tolbert of Columbus.

Masquers--Unmasked

By Mrs. Phyllis Trilsch

Six weeks of intensive work come to a climax Saturday night, when The Masquers present "An Evening Off Broadway" at The Playhouse.

"An Evening Off Broadway" also marks the seventh consecutive year of The Masquers existence at Fort Benning. They have run the gamut in plays, ranging from the stark drama of "All My Sons", to the drawingroom comedy of "Dear Charles" and the suspense of "Ten Little Indians". This current production combines drama and comedy, with an evening of two one act plays.

The curtain raiser is "The Browning Version", a taut, well-written drama by the master English playwright, Terrance Rattigan, famous for such plays as "Separate Tables" and "The Winslow Boy".

Here, within the confines of a one act play, the closing hours of a school teacher's career are movingly portrayed. The failure of his marriage, his lack of success in his chosen career, and the apparent futility of his life, come vividly alive through the eyes of a young student.

Don Sbuffstall is featured as Andrew Crocker-Harris, with Helen Vogel as his wife, Millie. Young Guy Bongiovanni plays John Taplow, the student. Other parts are played by Dwight Carr, John Rasmussen, Doug Moir, and Carolyn Hess.

The second half of the evening is devoted to the hilarious lonesco farce of normal English life. "The Bald Soprano" pops up in a wild sort of way, the lack of real communication between people, and the farcical nature of middle class life.

With its suggestive set, unbelievable costumes, and strange music, it provides a not-to-be-missed theater experience.

Both plays have been directed by Peter Tatistcheff and can be seen at the Masquers' Playhouse, Building 2519, tomorrow and Friday and Saturday, April 20 and 21. Tickets are 90 cents, available from cast members, or at the door. Curtain time is 8:30.

THE TROUBLE WITH WOMEN IS MEN by Dorothy Roe. (Prentice, 1961)

When Adam lost his rib he gained a mate, but it has been a bone of contention ever since. The battle of the sexes rages on, but despite the verbal attacks of H. L. Mencken, Lee Mortimer, Dr. Joseph Peck and Phillip, Wylie — to name a few — the truth is, that women are here to stay! Here, in a razor sharp but gentle-turned rebuttal, Dorothy Roe, veteran reporter and renowned authority on the activity of American women, reveals some penetrating and provocative facts about women in society and in the home . . . in the professions, and in political and diplomatic worlds.

Maj. Walters Succeeds Col. Himic

Major Frederick Walters, Jr. recently succeeded Lt. Col. Steve P. Himic as deputy commander of the 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry.

Major Walters assumed his new position when Lt. Col. Himic was summoned to the Pentagon to conduct a study of guerrilla warfare.

Major Walters was assigned to the 29th and to Fort Benning in February, 1961, after an assignment at the Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth.

His campaigns include Sicily, Rome-Arno, Naples-Foggia, Ardennes, and Holland. A turning point in his career came in 1944 when, after the Holland Campaign, he was commissioned in France for meritorious services under combat conditions.

A family man and sportsman, Major Walters enjoys boating and water skiing.

Post Musicians to Appear With Columbus Orchestra

Five post musicians will appear with the Columbus Symphony Orchestra at 3:30 p.m. Sunday at Jordan High School Auditorium.

They are violinists, Miss Marge Rachal, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Daniel W. Rachel; Stephen T. Reynolds, son of Sfc and Mrs. N. B. Reynolds; and Mrs. John C. Owen.

Sp5 Paul D. Hoelzley will play the tuba and Pfc John Owen, the trumpet.

Guest artist for the concert will be Nadia Koutzen, concert violinist.

Miss Koutzen will play the "Bruch Concerto in G Minor" and Beethoven's "Romance in F. Major."

The daughter of the composer Boris Koutzen, Miss Koutzen made her professional debut at the age of nine when she appeared with Eugene Ormandy and the Philadelphia Orchestra.

Numbers the orchestra will play include "Overture to La Scala Di Seta" by Rossini, "The Holberg Suite" by Greig, and "Les Preludes" by Liszt.

There will be no admission charge. A free nursery for small children will be staffed by Junior Red Cross girls.

The concert will be directed by Robert M. Barr, director of the Jordan High School Band.

The program is sponsored by the Columbus Symphony Guild.

Veterans Fact Sheet Available

The 1962 edition of Veterans Administration Fact Sheet IS-1, "Federal Benefits for Veterans and Dependents" is now available.

This booklet lists all major benefits available to veterans, explains eligibility requirements for veterans or their dependents and describes the nature of benefits and where application should be made.

Single copies of the fact sheet may be purchased from the Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C., for 20 cents.

Davy Crockett Class 5

29 in Graduating Class Attain Highest Average

The 29 graduates of Davy Crockett Class 5 received diplomas last week and were congratulated for attaining the highest numerical average of any class.

The chief of the Mortar Committee, Weapons Department, The Infantry School, which conducts the course, Lt. Col. Joseph A. O'Connell, personally congratulated the group of enlisted men.

The Davy Crockett course is designed to train personnel in the employment of the low yield nuclear weapons system.

Each graduate will return to his command and instruct the soldiers in his charge on the usage of the weapon.

Honor graduate of the course was Sgt. Robert F. Sandt, a member of Combat Support Company, 1st Battle Group, 87th Infantry, 2nd Infantry Division.

For being the top man, Sandt received, in addition to his diploma, a year's subscription to The Infantry Magazine.

This bi-monthly magazine, published by the Editorial and Pictorial Office of The Infantry School, prints articles on the latest developments in organization, weapons, equipment, tactics and techniques.

It has been called "The Professional Journal for Infantrymen."

Started in 1922 by then Lt. Col. George C. Marshall, the magazine has grown steadily and now has a circulation of over 10,000.

"time." Whether you are borrowing from a bank or loan company to pay a third party, or are borrowing directly from the dealer selling you something, you will pay interest. Interest is a sort of "rent" for the money or credit that you are using. But who decides how much interest you will pay? The seller does. Most states, however, impose limits to protect the buyer.

So you think you have your interest rate all set out in your contract? You think you're paying five per cent and that's all? Don't be a patsy so easily — five per cent of, and over what period or term. Interest is usually reckoned by multiplying the stated percentage times all the money that is owing at any given time.

But that's not always so. And the percentage given is usually annual, for one year. But that's not always so.

A soldier once borrowed money to be paid back over a year. When told that the interest was two and one-half per cent he thought this was pretty good, because he had heard other people talk of paying six and eight per cent. Sometime later, when the payments began to "hurt" he found that he was paying two and one-half per cent per month, rather than per year. The yearly percentage was nearly 30 per cent.

Another soldier who knew enough to get an annual interest rate bought a car "on time" with an interest rate of six per cent per year. He did not realize until later that the six per cent was based on the entire amount of the loan, rather than the amount he still owed.

The total amount of the "loan" was about $1,000 — six per cent of this is: $60, or five dollars said every month there was a balance outstanding. He was "paying off" the total amount at the rate of $50.00 per month for 20 months. So in the last month he owed only $50.00 plus the monthly five dollars interest. But now wait a minute: $5.00 is 10 per cent of $50.00 — per month — but this is an annual rate of 120 per cent — what happened to that nice low figure of six per cent that was written down on the contract? The last payment was paid at an interest rate that was more than the amount of money it was based on.

Lt. Craig Assigned As TIS Instructor

First Lt. Jack A. Craig Jr. has been assigned to the Ground Mobility Department of The Infantry School.

In his new duties he will be an instructor on the Mechanical Training Committee.

A 1953 graduate of Lawrenceville High School, he entered the Army in March, 1955, as an enlisted man. On Dec. 19, 1958, he was commissioned at the Fort Benning Officer Candidate School.

Before assuming his present duties, Lt. Craig was assigned to the 7th Infantry Division in Korea.

GOT A LIGHT? . . . ROTC Cadet Sgt. John E. Brooks (L), a sophomore from Jacksonville (Alabama) State College, is briefed on a searchlight used for battlefield illumination. Giving the orientation is Pvt. Leonard W. Sunderman, an assistant instructor in the 1st Infantry Brigade. Brookes was one of nearly 200 ROTC cadets who visited the post last week for a briefing on Infantry weapons and equipment. (Sig Lab Photo by Pfc Simmons)

Honor Battery For March Named

Batery B, 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade, has been named Honor Battery for the month of March. The unit is commanded by Capt. Jack H. Percival.

Lt. Col. Wallis E. McClain, 10th Artillery commander, presented the battery with a streamer at an awards ceremony and parade last Saturday morning.

RELIGION . . . IMPORTANT PART OF THE AMERICAN WAY
No Matter Where He Goes, The American Fighting Man May Attend Services of His Choice

First JCOC Since 1960 Set in May

The might of the combat-ready U.S. Infantryman will be shown to some 175 top leaders of the nation here May 8-10 for the Army phase of Joint Civilian Orientation Conference 32.

Sponsored by the Defense Department, the conference is designed to show selected businessmen, professional, cultural, military and governmental representatives the capabilities and limitations of the U.S. Army today.

It also will emphasize the training and importance of the individual soldier, the ultimate weapon.

The conferences, which include visits to Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps installations, are usually held twice a year but were omitted in 1961. The last one was in October, 1960.

Students Coming

Among those attending the conference in May will be about 75 JCOC principals and approximately 100 civilians invited by the six Army areas in the U.S. and Continental Army Command Headquarters.

In addition, there will be more than 650 students and faculty members from service schools throughout the country attending the three-day briefing.

Conferees will see the modern Infantryman on the job. They will see a rifle company in defense, tough Rangers in action, the various weapons used by the Infantry, a special warfare presentation and a firepower and airmobile assault.

The dignitaries also will see

Highway To Close For JCOC

State Highway 103 (Buena Vista Road) which runs through the reservation will be closed to traffic during certain hours May 4 to 9, Infantry Center officials have announced.

On May 4 the road will be closed from 9 a.m. to noon and from 3 to 6:30 p.m.; May 5 from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 6:30 p.m.; May 6 from 1 to 6:30 p.m.; May 7 and 8 from 1 to 6:30 p.m. and from 8 until 10 p.m., and May 9 from 1 to 6:30 p.m.

The closure is necessary due to demonstrations which will be conducted in connection with the Joint Civilian Orientation Conference.

In Third Army Rifle, Pistol Matches

Marksmen Score New Records

Shooters from throughout the Third Army area disregarded weather conditions and set new records on post rifle and pistol ranges this week as the annual Army area matches found over 650 competing.

Last week a smallbore rifleman from Fort Campbell, Sfc Butler H. Pratt Jr., won the International free rifle event at 50 meters to take the first trophy of the 1962 competition, on April 11. He posted a 503 out of a possible 600 points over the 60-shot course to defeat over 15 crack entries.

In the second of that day's two events, Pfc Rexford V. Baker of Fort Bragg shot a winning 268 out of 300 points to account for the international free pistol event.

Troublesome Winds

Despite stiff winds which hampered the 19 entries, Baker's score over the 50-meter, 30-shot course set a new record as it blacked out the 267 mark established in 1960.

Last Friday the International free rifle 300-meter championship fell to Benning's Sgt. William Carrion. He posted a score of 514 out of a possible 600 points. The Third Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit shooter had previously taken the runner-up award in the 50-meter free rifle competition.

Also on Friday, the International rapid fire pistol crown was won by Sfc Thom-

'He Is Risen,' An Easter Message

"He is Risen." This thrilling phrase proclaims a great and glorious fact, the Resurrection of Jesus Christ. It tells of the triumph of faith over fear, of love over hate, and life over death.

This Easter we tell again the story of the Resurrection. We worship a merciful God and sing joyous hymns of praise and triumph. We are lifted up above the things of flesh and earth, and our minds are filled with peace and joy. Evil, failure, suffering, even death itself cannot dishearten us who walk with Christ as He leaves the open tomb eternally victorious.

As the first Easter message brought a word of hope to the saddened hearts of the Disciples, so, today, we also rejoice. We know that as the forces of evil move against the good, threatening total destruction of the most precious possessions of man, we have the satisfying assurance that God cares and shares in all the experiences of life.

With this firm assurance I join you in the hosannas and alleluias commemorating the triumph of the Risen Christ.

Records

as E. Schumann, 2nd Infantry Division. Competing against 20 of the Third Army's top pistol marksmen, Schumann fired a 288 out of a possible 300 score for the trophy.

Third Army pistol records fell last Monday despite near freezing temperatures and chill winds which hampered firing throughout the day.

Competition with the .22 caliber pistol involving over 300 entries saw Sfc John H. Fingle, 82nd Airborne Division, Fort Bragg, tie the 300-18X record for the Camp Perry Short Course to take the first trophy of the hand gun matches.

The second .22 caliber event saw the mark for the slow fire match at 50 yards bettered by two points by 101st Airborne Division shooter Sfc Barry Slack. He posted a blazing 194-06X.

In this match both the second and third place shooters, Sgt. Fingle and Pfc Jesse Battle of the 82nd, eclipsed the old record of 192-06X.

Headquarters XVIII Airborne Corps teammates watched their Pfc Baker shoot a 200-15X to win the .22 caliber timed-fire match to push the record up another "X".

The Infantry Center's Sgt. Jacob Scott then broke the record for the .22 caliber rapid-fire match by eight tie-breaking X's with a 200-14X.

Thriller of the day on the pistol range was the narrowly averted upset in the .22 caliber National Match Course when the 101st's Sfc Robert L. Jerry and 1st Lt. Edward E. Hill of the Tennessee National Guard both totaled 293-06X. Jerry's higher score in the rapid-fire stage of the three-stage match gave him the first place trophy, as that phase is the tie-breaker.

Rifle Matches

On the rifle range Monday, a series of four service rifle matches were fired.

At 200 yards, slow fire, standing, Sfc Patrick J. Vigoletti of the 82nd Division was winner with 98 out of 100, with 3 V's.

Third Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit's Sfc Max Herrera won the 200 yard rapid fire two-stage match with a "clean" 100 and 11 V's.

Fort Jackson then stepped up and took the 200 yard rapid fire match with Sgt. John P. Kingeter's 199-05V.

Third Army AMU's Sgt. William Carrion fired a first place 99-12V score at 600 yards to win the long range slow fire event.

Nearly 400 riflemen were firing Monday when winds gusted to 20 mph and the temperature dropped to 34 degrees in the morning.

SFC BUTLER PRATT of the Fort Campbell Rifle Team won the 50-meter International free rifle championship despite adverse weather conditions. He fired 503 out of a possible 600 points in the three-position course.

NEW RECORD in the 50-meter International free pistol competition was set by Pfc Rexford B. Baker, a member of the Fort Bragg team. Baker fired a 268 out of a possible 300 to better the old record by one point in the Third Army Rifle and Pistol Matches.

Army Presented New Rifle Trophy

A 16-inch bronze statuette has been presented to the Army by the Association of the United States Army to stimulate rifle shooting. The trophy depicts an infantryman in action and is a perpetual award to be presented to the highest scoring competitor in the National Trophy Individual Rifle Match at Camp Perry, Ohio.

'62 Joint $$ Drive 'Success'

Over 20,000 post personnel participated in the 1962 Federal Services Joint Crusade and National Health Agencies Fund Drive, according to figures released by The Infantry Center's Funds Division.

This represents an increase over 1961 of slightly more than 1,000 people for the National Health Agencies Drive and more than 2,000 for the Joint Crusade.

The project officer for the drive, Major Robert L. Whitehead, chief of The Infantry Center Billeting Division, stated the drive was a success and every keyman and individual who worked for or contributed to the drive is responsible.

The total amount of money collected will not be known for another two or three months, since the envelopes containing the donations were sent to the agencies' headquarters for tabulation.

3,000 Expected at Post Easter Sunrise Service

Approximately 3,000 military and civilian personnel at Fort Benning are expected to gather at Doughboy Stadium before dawn Sunday for the post's traditional Easter Sunrise Service scheduled to begin at 6:30 a.m.

In case of rain, the service will be held in Theater 1.

Guest speaker will be the Rt. Rev. Henry L. Louttit, D.D., of Winter Park, Fla., bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of South Florida.

He will be introduced by Chaplain (Col.) Silas E. Deckard, Infantry Center chaplain.

The Infantry Center Band will play a concert of Easter hymns before the service. Directing will be WO Marvin E. Keefer.

Church call will be sounded by three trumpeters, Sfc Arthur R. Kollmer, Sgt. Richard Delk and Spc4 Robert J. Hammond.

Easter music will be provided by a combined choir of 50 voices, directed by Mrs. David Buckner.

Members of the chorus represent the choirs of The Infantry Center, St. Michael's Mission, 1st Infantry Brigade; Student Brigade, Lawson Field and Harmony Church 1 Chapels, Trinity Episcopal Church in Columbus, and the Infantryman's Chorus.

They will sing two anthems from Handel's "The Messiah," "Hallelujah Chorus" and "Worthy is the Lamb." Organist for the service is Mrs. Robert Whitehead.

Chaplains participating in the service include Chaplain (Lt. Col.) James H. Fisher, 2nd Infantry Division chaplain, who will give the invocation; Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Roy D. Hidy, responsive reading; Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Arthur J. Estes, scripture reading; Chaplain (Capt.) Mitchell C. Johnson, pastoral prayer; Chaplain (Capt.) Clark S. Whistler, offertory prayer, and Chaplain (Capt.) Robert Salemme, benediction.

Crossbearers will be Don Stebbins, son of MSgt and Mrs. Lewis Stebbins.

Flagbearers will be Steve McClain, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. John W. McClain, and Charles Robertson III, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Charles Robertson, Jr.

Col. Braxton E. Small, chief usher, will be assisted by Col. Milton E. Schneider, Lt. Cols. Robertson, John H. Ramsburg, Cecil M. Sanders, Louis A. Williams, Paul T. Ingle, Victor K. Harwood, R. H. Wisor and James A. Sudderth.

Major Alexander C. Page, Capts. Ralph R. Drake, Sanders D. Middleton, Jr., Wilbur M. Greene, Eugene A. Shea, Robert B. Turnbull and Truman A. Todd, 1st Lts. James F. Youree and John T. Isaacs, Carlyle Park, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Herman C. Park, and George Britton, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. G. T. Britton.

Others assisting with the plans and operation of the service include engineers, medics, musicians, printers, electricians and military police.

The Infantry Center engineers are building the platform at Doughboy Stadium. Men from The Infantry Center Troop Command are devoting three days to preparing the stadium for the service.

The transportation Section will supply transportation to and from the service for troops in units without vehicles.

There will be an ambulance at the stadium in case of an emergency.

The Infantry School Sound Section will install a public address system. Telephone and broadcast circuits will be installed by The Infantry Center Signal Section.

Posters and bulletins for the service were printed by the Army Field Printing Plant.

The Easter offering will be given to "Operation Centurian," a fund sponsored by the Protestant Men of the Pentagon to support theological students at Tokyo Union Theological Seminary in Japan.

After the service, the Main Officers Open Mess and Cafeteria 16-will be open for breakfast.

Project officer for the Sunrise Service is Chaplain Estes.

USO Plans Easter Activities

An "Easter parade of fun" will be held at the 9th Street USO club Saturday night.

There will be a dance from 8 to 11 p.m. On Easter Sunday, following all church services, there will be a coffee and donut hour.

At 4 pm., there will be an Easter egg hunt. The finder of the "golden egg" wins a phone call home. Refreshments will be served at 5:30 p.m. by the Holy Family Missionary Society.

At 6:30 p.m., there is an Easter Bonnet contest. The creations designed by the men will be modeled by the junior hostesses. There will be prizes for the various hats.

From 7:30 to 9:30 p.m., there will be a dance. A cordial invitation is extended to all servicemen, women and military dependents.

Citadel Association Will Meet Monday

The Fort Benning Citadel Association will meet at 7 p.m. Monday at the Main Officers' Open Mess.

There will be a social hour followed by a business meeting. Wives of members are invited.

For further information telephone Capt. Robert S. Poydasheff, 545-4611.

Law: Key to America's Greatness

If anyone thinks the United States is the greatest country in the world because it is the richest and most productive country, he is wrong.

Any school youngster should know that ours is the greatest country in the world because its people enjoy the greatest measure of freedom ever known to mankind.

And we are free precisely because we are governed by laws rather than by men.

Ours is the greatest country in the world because it has been guided by the convictions that individual rights and human personality are the things of paramount importance.

We Americans have privileges that no dictator can turn on and off at his whim. By our Constitution, Bill of Rights and statutes we may work where we choose, worship as we wish, vote in secret for those we hire to govern for us, and have a fair trial if accused of a crime. We are protected from all domestic injustices by laws administered in impartial courts.

We should ponder these things today because the results of rule by men are sickeningly apparent in many lands over the globe, where people may be treated as beasts or shot at the whim of men, where their lives are ruthlessly regimented, and where they have not the slightest voice in their own government.

Let us take occasion to re-examine those familiar words "individual liberty under law."

Let us give thought to the tremendous blessings that flow to us because we live by the "rule of law".

Let us know, for sure, what it means to live by a system where the freedom and dignity of the individual citizen are assured.

Then, having resurrected our gratitude for living under such a system, let us vow to cherish and respect this system. Let us vow to support those who bear the responsibility for enforcing the laws.

Today our nation faces grave dangers: In such a time we must be all the more determined to stand by and defend our great system of law and government. It is a time when we are especially called upon to reaffirm our faith in our way of life and our responsibilities as citizens.

Finally, if our vision is great enough, we will see that what the rule of law has done for our country it can, and must, some day do for all mankind.

—1ST LT. HUGH PETERSON, JR.

The Surgeon Says:

By Lt. Col. Frederick W. Hindley, MSC

The history of sanitation and bathing facilities is not new. It has been found by archaeologists in sifting through ruins that some 4000 years ago there were systems for bathing and cleansing the body.

In many cases the idea of keeping clean was different from ours; namely, cleanliness being next to Godliness because of religious beliefs and practice, so people kept clean to be prepared in the eyes of the Gods and not for hygenic reasons. This cleansing was emphasized among the Egyptians and Romans.

Coming to the present day with all of our facilities for keeping clean, one thing cannot be overemphasized, that is frequent washing of the hands.

Reflect for a few minutes on the number of times your hands touch your face, your hair, and your mouth. This absent - minded procedure may cause transmission of some infections, particularly staphylococcus infections or little pimples on the face, and in many cases throat infections.

Now science has not determined exactly how many bacteria are required to produce an infection in a specific area, but it is known that the hands carry many bacteria and they may be a source of infections.

In the summer months when various infections are rampant, it is highly advisable for all of us to wash our hands in soap and lukewarm water many times a day.

Water that is too hot will remove the protective oils in the skin, and the use of stiff brushes is not recommended because of abrasions that may leave the hands more susceptible to infection than if a brush had not been used.

Liberty and Communism

(Second of an AFPS Series)

The men who founded our Republic assumed that liberty was a natural right of the people, and one of the basic purposes of government was to ensure and preserve this right. However, governments have many functions other than defining and protecting the rights of citizens.

The varied purposes of government in a modern democracy are well explained in the Preamble of the Constitution of the United States, adopted in 1789, which reads:

We the People of the United States, in Order to form a more perfect Union, establish Justice, ensure domestic Tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general Welfare, and secure the Blessings of Liberty to ourselves and our Posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America.

The clauses of the Constitution, following the Preamble, give the Federal Government power to carry on these functions of government as well as power to tax citizens for these purposes. Many of these powers, particularly the powers relating to the promotion of the general welfare, permit restrictions upon the liberty of individual citizens.

A consideration of these powers brings us to the distinction to be made between liberty and individualism. Liberty lays emphasis on the freedom of the individual, including freedom of religion, of speech, of the press and of individual action.

Individualism is the doctrine of practice based on the assumption that the individual, and not society, is the paramount end of control. In ethics this doctrine holds that all values, rights, and duties originate in the interest of serving the individual rather than in serving society as a whole.

Intelligent men and women always seek for guides to distinguish between what, on the one hand, is "good" or beneficial for each and all, and what on the other hand, is 'bad' in the sense of being hurtful to both the individual and the community. The problem of ultimate values cannot be sidestepped in any honest attempt to assess political and social ideas.

This study is a comparison of the ideas that underlie the two important systems — democracy and communism. Each system requires careful definition. In general, democracy is based on liberty or freedom of religious belief, of conscience, of speech and of individual action, except under such restraints as are necessary to preserve the rights of others or the good of the entire community.

The political system normally operates as, and is also frequently called, representative constitutional government, and usually provides for a large measure of free economic enterprise.

The opposing system — communism — today means

The Meaning of Easter

By Chaplain (Col.) Silas E. Decker
The Post Chaplain

The Resurrection of Jesus Christ was not a dogma by the church. Instead the Resurrection was a fact before the church was born on Pentecost. The Resurrection brought the church into existence. Without that miraculous event the church would not have been and Jesus of Nazareth would have been remembered only as a prophet.

The Resurrection supports christianity like a mighty pillar that supports a bridge. Remove the pillar and the bridge trembles. Had the Resurrection not been a fact christianity would not have been born. Jesus would have been remembered as a prophet highly skilled with powers only above those of preacher, teacher, and healer.

Resurrection of Jesus of Nazareth proved and confirmed his claim as Son of Man and Son of God. The apostles went everywhere preaching his bodily Resurrection and the power of the Resurrection given to all who will believe and accept him as their Risen Lord.

On Easter Day at Fort Benning we should attend chapel somewhere. Protestant worship and catholic mass will be held in 20 chapels or buildings serving as chapels. In Doughboy Stadium a protestant sunrise service will be held at 0630 hours. You are invited, bring some one to church on Easter.

The Judge Says . . .

Part II — The Risk of 'Time' Purchases

By Capt. A. S. Poydasheff

It's always possible to juggle figures around, but there are no better jugglers than some appliance and automobile dealers, when it comes to finance charges. A finance charge is to pay for making the transaction, for making the money or credit available so we can buy from them. But we are already paying interest for the money loaned. So really here are two different charges for the same thing — despite all the fancy words the salesman may give. This is how the dealers get around the legal restriction on how much interest they can charge.

The finance charge can enable them to charge hidden interest rate of an extra 10 to 20 percent, to be added on the interest rate shown on the contract. As a matter of fact the law leaves the dealer free to make just about any finance charge he wants, so there is no limit to the amount of "padding" that can be done.

Are you ready for the penalties of default? Do you know what they are? Maybe you have suffered by the action of an acceleration clause. All the condition sale "time" contracts state that if a buyer misses a payment by even a day or so the entire contract is in default, at this point the acceleration clause steps in: having missed a payment, you now owe not only the one payment but the entire amount plus all interest and all finance charges.

Some people when faced with this situation try to take the merchandise back. But the dealer doesn't have to repossess it if he doesn't want to.

Now why all the fuss about these things we've been discussing? Well, simply because these dangers are ones that many, many of you have suffered and suffered needlessly. Sometimes one "deal" entered into carelessly can start a man's credit going downhill, causing him permanent harm in Army and in the Civilian community.

How to avoid these problems? Here are some suggestions:

Buy only what you really need. Don't fall for the old gag, of "Buy now, pay later" — when "later" comes there may be more important needs for your money.

If you can't stay away from stores and dealers, then at least cultivate sale resistance.

Remember that if somebody tries too hard to sell you a set of books of furniture, then there probably is a tremendous hidden profit or interest rate which is unprofitable for you. If you are on the receiving end of a "big - pressure" sales pitch, tell the dealer you will wait until tomorrow. If it really is a good deal for you he'll stop his high pressure "pitch." Anyway, think it over.

Read the Contract. Figure out the interest and finance charges from all angles.

Deal only with businesses that have a good reputation in the community.

Try to save now for what you might want to buy next year.

Organization Day Set For 428th

STRAC AWARDS . . . Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly (L), deputy post commander, presents superior STRAC streamers to Capt. (Then 1st Lt.) Kilpatrick (C) and Capt. Barber, company commanders of the 50th and 690th Medical Companies respectively. (Photos by Pfc Bayenberian)

Medics Plan Activities To Include the Family

The 428th Medical Battalion will celebrate it's Organization Day next Monday. The Infantry School recreation area is reserved for the occasion, and outdoor activities are scheduled to begin after an early lunch.

Units of the battalion will vie for trophies in competitive sports which include volleyball, tug-of-war, horse shoe pitching, and track and field events.

There will also be games and contests designed to attract the younger generation. These include a cracker eating contest and a twist session for the five through seven-year-olds. For those up to 10, there will be a 50 yard dash contest and broad jump.

Children up to 12 will be divided into two groups, those five through seven and those eight through twelve, for an egg and spoon race. A softball throwing contest is scheduled for school aged boys.

A band is expected to be on hand for a concert and evening dancing.

BATTALION HISTORY DATES TO WWII

The battalion history goes back to World War II, when the 428th Medical Battalion was activated. After organization at Camp Atterbury, Indiana, the battalion was sent to the European Theatre. There it was awarded streamers in five campaigns.

It was inactivated following the termination of the war only to be reactivated in the later part of 1958. At that time, it was transported to Fort Benning to replace the 54th Medical Group.

With the expansion program of last year, three National Guard units, the 128th Medical Company, the 129th Medical Company, and the 216th Medical Company were recalled to active duty and attached to the battalion. Two reserve units, the 891st Medical Detachment and the 389th Medical Detachment, were also recalled to active duty.

The activation of these groups brings the battalion's strength to nine units.

BATTALION MISSION

The battalion, headed by Lt. Col. Raymond J. Caldbeck, commander, and Major E. V. Bunger, executive officer, is an administrative headquarters having the responsibility of providing command control, planning and logistic services for attached units.

Since the unit is a STRAC organization, emphasis is placed on training. The units are engaged one week out of four in field training.

In attempting to explain the difficulties of their mission, Capt. Charles G. Braden, operations officer says, "To be able to move, set up, and become operational requires intensive training and planning. To be capable of performing this mission in and around the clock operation is a task of gigantic proportions".

The medical battalion has the mission of supporting The Infantry Center and Infantry Schools. Wherever there are troops assembled for training, there will be a 428th ambulance.

Over the past year, records show that 8000 vehicles, involving over 20,000 medical technicians, have gone on support missions to every type of Army activity. They have served Ranger classes from Dahlonega, Georgia, to Eglin Air Force Base, Florida, with duty varying from operating an aid station on a firing range to standing by for a paratroop jump by the 82nd Airborne Division.

LONG TRAINING HOURS

The service rendered by the 428th, whether performing duty at Martin Army Hospital or operating an emergency treatment center such as Dispensary B, requires long hours of training. The medical battalion may have as many as a hundred men performing proficiency training at Martin Army Hospital.

In order to perform their mission additional training is necessary. Men have been trained at Fort Sam Houston and other Medical schools during the past year to work as laboratory and X-ray technicians as CBR monitoring teams and as civil defense squads.

BATTALION HONORS

Four battalion STRAC units were awarded superior ratings during the Army Training Tests. Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment, 428th Medical Battalion, the 3rd Field Hospital, 50th Medical Company, and the 690th Medical Company were the units named for the honor.

Results of battalion monthly and quarterly inspections were used as a basis in naming the 3rd Field Hospital as the "Outstanding Unit of The Year" for 1961.

The battalion's educational level ranks high among units on post. Near forty soldiers received high school accreditation certificates during the year.

The 428th places importance on safe driving. Results were shown by awarding over sixty drivers safe driving certificates.

Easter Motif Used At Luncheon For Ladies of DNRI

Ladies of the Department of Non-Resident Instruction, The Infantry School, held their monthly luncheon in the Anzio Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess on April 12.

Hostesses were Mrs. Chesley Nunley and Mrs. Buenaventura Esteves.

The table was centered with white gladioli and mums, with an Easter theme represented by tulled baskets with eggs and bunnies interspersed on a long, green cover.

In keeping with the Easter season, a hat display was a highlight of the event.

Mrs. Charles Harris, mother-in-law of Mrs. Pegge Harris, was a guest.

Original Fashions Vie For Prizes at Luncheon

At last Friday's luncheon meeting of the Fort Benning Medical Wives Club, held at the Custer Terrace Branch of the Main Officers' Open Mess, the members paraded in their own creations, complete costumes and cheapeaux.

Of the 16 entrants for costumes, first prize was awarded to Mrs. James Kendricks and second prize to Mrs. B. W. Kilpatrick. Prizes for the original hats were awarded to Mrs. Edwin Busch, prettiest original; Mrs. Brenton Penwarden Jr., prettiest, and Mrs. Michael Pavlo Jr., most original.

Judges were Mesdames William A. Todd Jr., George Skipworth Sr., James Brummette, H. A. Guernsey and Stanley Harding.

The hostesses, all interns' wives, included Mesdames Clyde O'Neill, James Hendricks, Donald Browning, Paul Cornell, Paul Edmonds, Curtis Bourgeois Jr., Laurence Logan, James Granger, John Aeling, Charles Harris, Brenton Penwarden Jr., William Harada, Merlin Lugo - Faria and George Wright.

Decorating the tables were balloons showing painted faces under the latest hat styles, and miniature dressmaker forms draped with chiffons and flowers.

A short business session was held after luncheon and it was recommended and voted that $20 be donated to the Pediatrics Service of Martin Army Hospital for much needed zori's, games and puzzles for the young patients.

Slate of Officers

Mrs. George Skipworth, president of the club, presented the following slate of officers for 1962-63 to be voted on and installed at the May 11 meeting: for president, Mrs. Louis Guernsey and Mrs. George Schonholtz; vice president, Mrs. James Blunk and Mrs. Edward Young; secretary, Mrs. Gerald Kelso and Mrs. Romus Thomas; treasurer, Mrs. Robert Foy Jr. and Mrs. Fergus Monahan.

Newcomers welcomed were Mesdames Robert Griffon, James Fisher, Robert Lovegrove, William Moore, William Dwyer and George Shore.

Aloha was said to Mrs. Edward Kwedar, whose husband has received orders for Tripler General Army Hospital, Hawaii.

Guests of Mrs. James Blunk were Mrs. Silas E. Decker and Mrs. Decker's mother, Mrs. Magda States from Reno, Nevada. Other guests were Mrs. H. A. Guernsey, Mrs. Clayton Bramble and Major Shirley Timewell, ANC.

Hostesses for the meeting on May 11 will be the wives of the Obstetrics - Gynecology Service.

Distinguished Visitors At Fort Benning

Francis T. Plimpton, deputy U. S. representative to the United Nations, spoke to members of The Infantry School's officer career classes Tuesday.

His address concerned military aspects of the U.N.'s operation for world peace.

The diplomat departed Wednesday following a tour of the post.

Major Gen. Henry F. McMillan, commanding general of the National Guard 51st Infantry Division, was principal speaker at the graduation of Officer Candidate Class Two on Tuesday. He departed the post Tuesday afternoon.

Three officers of the Jordan Arab Army toured the post early this week to see the latest in training equipment and facilities for the Infantryman.

The group included Col. Hasib Saleem Abu Hamdan, director of works, Jordan Army Headquarters; Lt. Col. Damman Deeb Ayyoub, commandant of the Jordan Army Signal School, and Major Salem Odeh Najadat, commander of the 1st Infantry Brigade, Jordan Army.

British Army Major G. S. Harris, an exchange instructor with the Army Corps of Engineers at Fort Belvoir, visited on post Monday and Tuesday. He was briefed on The Infantry Center and on the utilization of the post in training support.

Two representatives of the Under Secretary of the Army, Alfred B. Fitt, deputy for manpower, and Lt. Col. William Van Dyke Ochs, chief of the Reserve Forces Division, were guests here Tuesday and Wednesday.

Way Paved for Quarters Raise; End of 'Class Q" for Most NCOs

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — A House Armed Services Sub-Committee has cleared legislation for a quarters allowance hike for military personnel and sent it to the full Armed Services Committee.

The bill carried with it several important amendments —all favorable to the serviceman.

Headed by Representative L. Mendel Rivers (D-S.C.), the sub-committee voted to make the proposed legislation effective October 1, instead of January 1, as originally recommended.

The sub - commitee also gave E-4s with less than four years' service a break by writing in $81.30 instead of the proposed $60.00. The present rate for an E-4 with one dependent is $77.10.

Before becoming law the bill must pass the full House Armed Services Committee, the House floor and the Senate. It would then go to the president for signature.

As now written the legislation would end the well-known "Class Q" allotment system for NCOs. This means E-4s with more than four years service and other NCOs would not draw a separate Class Q check and would revert to the traditional system of housing allowances.

The money would be paid directly to the man instead of going to an allotment system. It would also put him on a new type quarters rate table — with or without dependents.

E-1s, E-2s, E-3s and E-4s with less than four years' service will still be regulated by the allotment system program.

3 Civilians Receive Safe-Driving Pins

Three civilian employees of the post received pins recently for driving for two years without accidents.

C. J. Hammond, chief of The Infantry Center Supply and Cold Storage Section, presented the pins to Millard Edge, Freddie Hourel and William Talbot.

1ST SGT PLAUCHE CAREFULLY EYES Unusual 49-Page Long Morning Report

First Sgt. Stafford W. Plauche, Headquarters Company, Infantry Center Troop Command, reenlisted this month for three more years. He already has more than 19 years service.

Entering the Army in July, 1942, at Plaucheville, Louisiana, he was sent to Camp Carson, Colorado for basic training.

During World War II, Plauche served as a squad and section leader, anti-tank section, and as platoon sergeant of anti-tank, mule-packed light artillery and Infantry platoons.

Appointed first sergeant in October, 1945, he served successively with two Infantry companies, a medical company, military police company and a quartermaster company, and as a provost sergeant and provost marshal investigator. He has pulled tours since WWII in Korea, Germany, Japan, Iceland, Fort Riley, Camp Carson, Fort Lucas, Michigan and here at Benning.

Sgt. Plauche has served as first sergeant of Headquarters Company since July, 1957.

Among his decorations and awards are the Combat Infantryman's Badge, Bronze Star Medal and Good Conduct Medal with five Clasps.

Lt. K. C. Hughes Is Orientation Honor Graduate

2nd Lt. Keith C. Hughes graduated from the Infantry Officer Orientation Course, Class 11, 2nd Student Battalion, The Student Brigade, recently with top honors. Lt. Hughes completed the orientation course with an overall average of 96.0 out of a possible 100 per cent.

The Pomona College graduate was congratulated and presented his graduation certificate by the guest speaker, Col. J. G. Cornett, chief, Editorial and Pictorial Office, The Infantry School.

Also in attendence of the exercise was Brig. Gen. Royal Reynolds, Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School.

A WELL-EARNED HOLIDAY . . . Private Robert J. Deubel, a chaplain's assistant with Headquarters Detachment, Division Trains, carries flowers bound for his chapel and the coming weekend religious services. Like Private Deubel, men of the 2nd Infantry Division arrived at their Sand Hill and Kelley Hill quarters earlier this week proud of their individual and unit achievements during Exercise SENECA SPEAR held at Fort Stewart, Georgia. Remembering the torrential downpour that greeted them at the start of maneuvers on the south Georgia military reservation; the guerrilla bands that harassed them day and night; the attacks, night movements and the ever-present marshy terrain, the men anticipate a well-earned weekend of rest. With Saturday, Sunday and Monday declared holidays, vehicles and equipment all accounted for and cleaned, and religious services being held at Sand Hill and Kelley Hill chapels today, tomorrow and Sunday, there will be a short breather for everyone before the new challenges of more extensive training are undertaken. (Photo by Crays)

Crossings Mark End of Exercise

The Blue force secured its final objective shortly before noon Tuesday, bringing to an end the 2nd Infantry Division's first major maneuver since assuming Strategic Army Corps status.

This final thrust, preceded by a pre-dawn crossing of the Canoochee River, capped the week-long play in Exercise Seneca Spear at Fort Stewart, Georgia.

To the 2nd Division foot soldier, participation in Exercise Seneca Spear amounted to endless hours of night movements, attacking, counter-attacking and contention with lands and trouble-bent guerrillas.

It all began, for most of the Blue and Yellow force members, with their arrival at the south Georgia post on April 11. No sooner had positions been occupied in their respective assembly areas when they received their operations orders.

With the 7th Cavalry screening to the front, contact was established and Blue forces were ordered to occupy defensive positions and defend while the Yellow forces were to press the attack.

The Yellow force, commanded by Colonel Louis A. Kunzig Jr., frequently encountered 7th Cavalry patrols at the outset, forcing the cavalrymen back across the river. While the Yellow forces prepared to make their crossing, extensive patrolling action prevailed during most of the day and into the night. Then, early Saturday, in the wake of a nuclear blast, Yellow forces effected river crossings at two points; two companies moving by foot, two others by helicopter.

But once inside Blue lines, the Yellow forces received word that all bridges had been blown on the Savannah River and that its hypothetical parent unit — the 86th Infantry Division was in no position to help. Meanwhile, the Blue force was ordered by its next higher headquarters — the theoretical I Corps—to counterattack and hurl the Yellow forces back.

Under cover of a nuclear blast, the Blue forces backed the Yellow forces to the Canoochee River. But, after moving across the river, the Yellow forces detected a weak spot in the Blue force left flank. Utilizing "Task Force Hall," spearheaded by Fort Stewart's 3rd Medium Tank Battalion, 122nd Armor, the Yellow forces broke through, allowing the division to put into actual practice a counter-attack plan.

The problem's final hours saw the Blue forces crossing the river at two points, firing a nuclear burst on the Yellow command post.

Using helicopters, assault boats and foot bridges, the Blues moved across. The Yellow forces retaliated by firing three nuclear blasts — at each river crossing and at a road junction. However, the Blue forces bypassed the crossroads and seized the objective.

Before the problem actually began, the stage was being set to add as much realism and practical experience to Exercise Seneca Spear as was tactically possible.

The guerrilla play, prevalent throughout the exercise, was under the supervision of a Special Forces team of two officers and nine enlisted men from Fort Bragg, N. C. Three days prior to the maneuver, the team taught harassing tactics to 150 guerrillas, composed, primarily, of men from the 28th Infantry's Company A and a platoon from the 23rd Infantry.

Setting up a guerrilla base camp, approximately 10 teams of 12 guerrillas each were placed in the Blue forces area, while approximately 40 guerrillas were unleashed to make life miserable for the Yellow forces.

The guerrillas' operations were basically successful: the Blue forces made only six captures (three of these involved the same guerrilla taken on different occasions). The Yellow forces failed to make a capture.

A patrol from the 1st Infantry, however, came close to scoring a knockout punch to guerrilla operations. Stumbling across the guerrillas' base camp, they confiscated sleeping bags, radios and weapons as the guerrillas fled. But they left a carton of C-rations — on which the guerrillas found a note "Furnished by the 1st Infantry."

Exercise Seneca Spear did not prevent division men from attending Palm Sunday services in the field. Many personnel took advantage of an administrative intermission to attend services in the field.

Major General Charles H. Chase, commanding general, served as exercise director and commander of the Blue forces. In his absence, the Blue forces were commanded by Colonel Gustav M. Bacharach, division chief of staff.

Colonel Maurice C. Holden, 38th Infantry Commander, was deputy exercise director. Col. Louis A. Kunzig, 22rd Infantry commander, served as deputy brigade commander.

ATTENDING BRIEFING BY MAJ. GEN. CHASE . . . Visitors at Exercise Seneca Spear included Lt. Gen. T. J. H. Trapnell, (R.) Third U.S. Army commander and Lt. Gen. Hamilton H. Howze, commander of the XVIIIth Airborne Corps, (L.) shown being briefed by Maj. Gen. Chase at Camp Oliver on the last day of the exercise.

NJ Co. Supports Div With Trucks At Fort Stewart

Among supporting units participating in Exercise Seneca Spear was the 253rd Transportation Company (Light Truck), a National Guard unit from Orange, New Jersey.

The company was ordered to active duty October 1, and was selected from the units at Fort Campbell, Ky., to participate in the exercise with the 2nd Division.

The 253rd Transportation Company left Fort Campbell on April 8 by motor convoy, arriving at Fort Benning a day later. This unit was attached to the division's 13th Transportation Battalion and, on April 11, continued by motor convoy to Fort Stewart, transporting division troops.

The unit expects to return to Fort Campbell on April 20.

Your Pass, Colonel?

A battle group commander's attempt under the guise of a one-dollar bill to enter the DTOC (Division Tactical Operations Center) area during Exercise Seneca Spear was thwarted by an alert Military Policeman.

Perpetrator of the ruse was Colonel Clifford P. Hannum, commander of the 9th Infantry, who inserted the bill in a specially - designed pass that fitted over identification cards with a portion cut out to show the face of the bearer.

When confronted by Private First Class George Powell of the division's MP detachment, Col. Hannum was heard to say, "what do you mean? It's an official pass."

"Yes sir," replied PFC Powell, "but you're not George Washington."

'CRASH VICTIM' POINTS WAY OF RETURN Lt. Kappenman (R) With Capt. Richard Colvin, Flight Surgeon

Pilot's 6-Hr. Ordeal Merits Spear Award

A young 2nd Division pilot has been awarded the "Distinguished Spear" for his 20-mile infiltration into "enemy" territory after the theoretical crash of his plane.

Lieutenant Eugene F. Kappenman, commander of the 2nd Transportation Detachment, attached to the 2nd Aviation Company, "crashed" in enemy "Yellow" forces territory during Exercise Seneca Spear at Fort Stewart, Georgia.

(Lt. Kappenman, actually, was left by helicopter on short-notice instructions to infiltrate and return to friendly lines.)

In The Marsh

After two hours of wandering in marshes "up to my knees," Lt. Kappenman told a reporter, "I was beginning to think I'd never get out."

Soon, however, he ventured upon a highway running through the reservation and was given a ride.

"After riding about five minutes," said the lieutenant, "I suddenly realized we were driving right through enemy territory. There were tanks and trucks everywhere. But I just sat up straight and they never bothered to stop us or question me.

"But, I thought we were goners!"

A short time later, Lt. Kappenman elected to try walking again to reach friendly hands. But passing motorists were too kind.

After two more lifts and nerve-taxing treks along enemy-lined roads he reached "home" and related his six-hour "ordeal" to awaiting friends.

As for wild animals and reptiles, Lt. Kappenman said the only non-human he encountered was a frog, "who almost scared me to death when he leaped into my path."

Lt. Kappenman's "Distinguished Spear" award cites him for "untiring devotion to duty and disregard of risk of capture after being forced down in Aggressor enemy territory while piloting an Army aircraft.

"Lt. Kappenman was able to infiltrate through enemy front lines and rejoin his own forces and at the same time gain invaluable information."

MRS. ARTHUR A. TRITSCH, Publicity Chairman, Officers Wives Club ☆ ☆ ☆ MRS. JAMES J. TIGHE, Publicity Chairman, Ladies of the Big Indianhead

For Secretary and Treasurer

Meet Your Candidates

Mrs. Kenneth D. Grade, who hails from Rutherford, New Jersey, is a candidate for the office of Secretary of the Division Officers' Wives' Club.

Mary has had no previous experience as a club officer, but comes well - equipped to hold this position, since she worked as a secretary for two years before her marriage.

Her husband is currently assigned as executive officer of Combat Support Company, 1st Infantry. The Grades have one child, a son, Kenneth junior, who is six months old.

Mary's hobby, aside from the care of home and child, is bowling.

Maureen Cleveland, wife of Lieutenant Clyde K. Cleveland, currently assigned with the 23rd Infantry, is the second candidate for the office of Secretary.

The Clevelands have two sons, David, six, and Dan, three. They call Gettysburg, Pennsylvania home.

Previously, while in Montana, Maureen held a position on the executive board of a Young Mother's Club.

Mrs. Cleveland's hobbies include bowling, reading, and listening to her record collection.

For Treasurer

Mrs. Manfred Kelman, known as Rhea to her friends, is a nominee for the position of treasurer.

(Mrs. Manfred Kelman replaces Mrs. Joe J. Breedlove as a candidate for the office of Treasurer.)

The Kelmans have two daughters, Linda, aged eleven, and Jean, aged six.

Rhea's previous club experience was as President of the Protestant Women's group at their duty station in Munich, Germany, before coming to Fort Benning.

Mrs. Kelman has been active in Girl Scouting since her arrival at Fort Benning. She also names golf and sewing as favorite hobbies.

Also for Treasurer

Mrs. Esther L. Hannon, wife of Major Harry T. Hannon, executive officer of the 38th Armor, is a candidate for the office of Treasurer.

Mrs. Hannon, known to her friends as "Molly," has never held an office in a club before, but her business experience, and schooling suit her admirably to such a position. The many jobs she has held include secretarial positions with an architect, and the headmaster of a boys' school, as well as civil service positions. Recently she took an evening course in accounting at Cameron College in Lawton, Oklahoma.

The Hannons have no children, but this has not kept Molly from being Troop Organizer for five Brownie troops in the Custer Terrace area. In addition, Mrs. Hannon's hobbies include golf, bowling, and woodworking.

Three Host Aviation At Coffee

The ladies of the Second Aviation Company held their monthly coffee for April in the Normandy room of the Main Officers Open Mess.

Mesdames William Priest, Neil Johnson and Allan Hammerbeck were the hostesses. They asked Mrs. Rex Miller to pour at a table laid with a white cloth, centered with an arrangement of artificial pink flowers in a white vase. The centerpiece was won by Mrs. Frank Hammaker, a guest.

Farewells were said to two ladies whose husbands are departing for overseas assignments. They were Mrs. Miller, wife of Lieutenant Rex Miller, and Mrs. Stefanowich, wife of Captain Dan Stefanowich.

One new arrival was welcomed by the group. She is Mrs. Royce Smithson. Three guests were greeted; Mrs. Dourphous Hall, wife of Sergeant Hall, Mrs. Frank Hammaker, and Mrs. Reynold Blackwell.

A short business meeting was conducted by the group president, Mrs. James Grimes. Afterwards, an unusual program in the form of a unique fashion show followed. Mrs. James Grimes acted as commentator, and used as her model Mrs. Dave Starkey. Mrs. Starkey modeled two dresses, one black and one beige, with emphasis placed on different accessories to vary the uses and appearances of the dresses.

Mrs. Alberti Hosts Transportation Bn For April Coffee

The Ladies of the 13th Transportation Battalion held their monthly coffee recently in the home of Mrs. Donald W. Alberti.

Assisting Mrs. Alberti were Mrs. Thaddeus F. Blackstock, Mrs. Clifford L. Kindel and Mrs. Wilfred J. Losee.

Mrs. James A. Fuller was introduced to the group as a newcomer.

Mrs. Walter Hibbard Jr. presided at a short business meeting. Mrs. Hibbard announced that the Ladies were to meet next for an Open House.

23rd Holds Roundup Party

A Task Force 23's Roundup Party was held April 6 at the Infantry Center Recreation Camp on 2nd Armored Division Road.

It was attended by the officers and ladies of the 23rd Infantry, all dressed in western garb.

Music was furnished by a western band, The Country Gentlemen, and a square dance caller helped liven the evening's dancing. The menu featured barbecued chicken and ribs.

Several presentations were made that evening. Colonel Louis A. Kunzig Jr., commander of the 23rd Infantry, gave baby cups to Lieutenant and Mrs. Jackie Fannon and Lieutenant and Mrs. Milo Johnson. Lighters were presented to Lieutenant Colonel and Mrs. John Swango, Lieutenant and Mrs. James Hall and Lieutenant and Mrs. James Askine who are departing.

Guests attending the party were Major and Mrs. Hathaway who were with Col. and Mrs. Swango, and Mrs. Chapman, mother of Mrs. Richard Perkins.

13th Ladies Meet At An Open House

Mrs. Walter Hibbard was hostess to the ladies of the 13th Transportation Battalion recently at an open house held in her home.

Bridge and other games were the feature of the evening.

Mrs. Hibbard was assisted by Mrs. Jack J. Lynn and Mrs. Philip L. Lee. Special guests at the affair were Mrs. F. V. Harris and Mrs. Woodrow Myers.

Welcomed to the group was Mrs. James A. Fuller, a recent newcomer to the battalion. A farewell was said to Mrs. Thaddeus F. Blackstock, Jr.

Cav Ladies Set Coffee

The Anzio Room of the main Officers Open Mess was the setting for the 7th Cavalry Ladies' monthly coffee.

Mrs. Venon H. Ison, assisted by Mrs. Frank O. Brown Jr. were the hostesses.

Mrs. Harvey Scott, wife of Lieutenant Colonel Scott, 7th Cavalry commanding officer, poured, at a table centered with an easter basket, flanked by two stuffed easter rabbits.

There were sixteen ladies present to welcome Mrs. Richard R. Maglin, whose husband, Captain Maglin has recently been assigned as S - 3 Air, and Mrs. Anthony C. Potenza, wife of Lieutenant Potenza, Platoon leader, troop C.

Farewells were said to Mrs. Larry A. Wheeler, and Mrs. Joseph C. Gross III.

Mrs. Scott conducted a business meeting, at which plans for a squadron party in May were discussed.

Div Trains Hq Meets, Dines

A pot-luck supper was featured recently for the ladies of Division Trains Headquarters.

Mrs. F. V. Harris, wife of the Division Trains Commander, held the event in her home.

Special guests at the affair were the wives of Division Trains unit commanders.

They include Mrs. Walter Hibbard, Mrs. Woodrow Myers, Mrs. Dudley Pittman, Mrs. Charles O. Goodwin, Mrs. William C. Dunlap, Mrs. Darrel Blum and Mrs. Walter Smith.

Pot-Luck Supper Featured for 12

The ladies of the 2nd Medical Battalion held a pot-luck supper recently in the home of Mrs. Dudley Pittman.

In attendance at the evening affair were 12 ladies. Two new members were introduced to the group. They are Mrs. Robert J. Griffon and Mrs. E. K. Dwyer.

Trains Coffee Set April 27

The Ladies of the 13th Transportation Battalion will act as hostesses at the monthly coffee for the Division Trains wives. The event will be held April 27 at the Fort Benning Country Club at 10 a.m.

Following the coffee, Mrs. F. V. Harris will conduct a short business meeting.

HEADQUARTERS 2D INFANTRY DIVISION
OFFICE OF THE COMMANDING GENERAL
FORT BENNING, GEORGIA

TO THE OFFICERS AND MEN OF THE 2D INFANTRY DIVISION

This is a season of great religious significance. For Christians it is the season of Easter, and for Jewish personnel it is the season of Passover.

I extend my personal greetings and urge each of you, in your faith, to pause and reflect on the true meaning of such times as Good Friday, Easter, and Passover.

We live in a world of clashing ideologies. We must be convinced that our faith in a great benevolent God is the way of life and to that end we should rededicate ourselves. Only thereby can we remain true to our heritage and perpetuate those ideals from which our nation draws its strength.

U. S. Air Force Weather Task Force Reports Conditions From Exercise Hq

By Div PIO

One important phase of Exercise Seneca Spear was completely uncontrolled.

That phase was the weather. Although the weather can't be controlled, it can be studied, and forecast. This was the job of the Weather Task Force, an element of the 16th Weather Squadron, Air Weather Service, United States Air Force.

Commander of the Weather Task Force is Major James E. Hoskins, Staff Weather Officer for the Third United States Army. Based at maneuver headquarters, Major Hoskins directed a seven man force, two forecasters and three observers stationed with the Blue Forces, and two forecasters stationed at Hunter Air Force Base, Georgia.

Weather Forecasts

From the reports of these teams, Major Hoskins released two 24-hour general forecasts, four 12-hour aviation forecasts and four winds-aloft (for chemical warfare purposes) forecasts daily. In addition, any severe weather forecasts were issued as needed.

Major Hoskins and his weather team are involved in almost every field exercise held in the Third Army area, whether strictly Army or combined Army-Air Force maneuvers.

Advance Preparations

Before a maneuver gets underway, the Weather Task Force sets up a long range forecast of general weather conditions, as well as compiling such data as sunrise, sunset, expected temperature ranges, expected precipitation, surface winds and flying conditions.

The Weather Task Force was assembled from the 16th Weather Squadron, commanded by Lieutenant Colonel Lewis L. Howes. The 16th's Air Weather Service provides weather support to all USCONARC commands. The Weather Task Force was assembled for specific weather support to Exercise Seneca Spear.

The Weather Task Force has four purposes; to provide actual weather support for Seneca Spear, to test Army weather support concepts, to train weather personnel under field conditions, and to test the adequacy of Army tactical communications in disseminating weather data.

AIRBORNE HISTORY

The first Airborne divisions, the 82nd and 101st, were organized August 15, 1942. By the end of World War II the Army had five such divisions overseas, one of them in the Asiatic-Pacific Theater and the other four in the Mediterranean-European Theater.

Weekend Services

Religious services scheduled this weekend at chapels on Sand Hill and Kelley Hill are as follows:

Today—Kelley Hill Chapel, confessions, 2:30 p.m. - 3 p.m.; Solemn Liturgy and Communion, 3:30 p.m.; Sand Hill Chapel Three, Good Friday Devotions, 3 p.m., confessions to follow devotions.

Saturday — Kelley Hill Chapel, confessions, 6:30 p.m.-7 p.m., Easter Vigil and Mass, 7:30 p.m.; Sand Hill Chapel Three, confessions, 7:30 p.m. - 9 p.m.

Easter Sunday — regularly scheduled services in all Chapels.

Jewish personnel will observe Passover until sundown tonight and on Wednesday and Thursday.

HOW NOW, CHOW TRUCK? . . . It looks like late chow this time for the 1st Infantry. This truck came out loser in a battle with the fickle, marshy terrain of Fort Stewart. (Photo by Stuit)

3 Guerrillas in a Pickle, Almost Devulge a Secret

. . . Then there was the story told at Seneca Spear about the three guerrillas . . .

Colonel Maurice C. Holden, deputy exercise director, was traveling down a Fort Stewart road when he suddenly heard a shrill whistle. Ordering his driver to halt, Col. Holden waited until the road was free of any passers-by, then he investigated.

Out of the Woods

Out of the woods came three apparent guerrillas, unkempt, unshaven and generally unaware of their whereabouts.

They related that they had been sent on a mission to blow up a bridge—in a simulated fashion. Mission accomplished, they attempted to return to their lines, but their leader, a sergeant, suddenly developed a lapse of memory as to where they might be.

So, they wandered around for some 24 hours, until encountering Col. Holden's party.

The colonel, anxious to accommodate the trio, offered them a ride back to their area. While stopping enroute at the 9th Infantry area, guerrilla-hungry Manchurians begged to take them in—as prisoners. But Col. Holden intervened. Offering them the services of his driver to return to their guerrilla camp, they accepted. But, later, down the road, a following helicopter aroused their suspicion.

"They're trying to track us back to our camp," said a guerrilla.

"Let's get out of here," said another.

Leaping from the Jeep, the trio of guerrillas disappeared into the woods.

Lt. DeWolfe Gets ACM

Lieutenant Gregory W. DeWolfe, former assistant information officer of the 2nd Infantry Division, has been awarded the Army Commendation Medal.

Lt. DeWolfe was cited for the period of December 1, 1960 to April 9, 1962.

His citation, in part, reads: "Throughout the cited period, Lt. DeWolfe's conscientiousness and effectiveness was apparent in the outstanding record attained in completing all assigned and additional tasks.

"He displayed vigor and initiative when faced with any mission and the results of his efforts and dilligence were truly commendable.

Lt. DeWolfe, who recently was separated from active duty, has been succeeded in his assignment by Lieutenant Frank N. Kaney, formerly of the 2nd Quartermaster Company.

He Called Himself 'Quick Slasher,' Leary Soldier Spots Hired Assassin

BY DON BAIRD

He identified himself only as "Quick Slasher." He was fire marshal, he said, of the little south Georgia town of Midway and had come to the Fort Stewart reservation in search of arsonists who had been setting fire to churches in his community.

The young Blue forces soldier seemed leary of the story this stranger was telling. But, he figured he'd better have this guy "Quick Slasher" checked out.

Some time later, after being carried through channels, the alleged fire marshal of Midway was facing an interrogator at Division Tactical Operations Center.

Not Cooperative

"Quick Slasher," an interviewer soon found out, was not going to be too cooperative. Almost violent, the stranger emphatically insisted that he was just a fire marshal in search of arsonists. But, during the endless period of interrogation, "Quick Slasher" nonchalantly took a dangerous-looking knife from his pocket and with it began cleaning his fingernails.

Persistent questioning soon caused "Quick Slasher" to break down and tell the true story:

He was a hired assassin, hired by a man he knew only as "Drop." Although he did not know the name of his "client," he could describe him and would do so for the interrogator.

With this thread of evidence, and the description, intelligence began piecing together a fair picture-puzzle of the ring-leader named "Drop" who was plotting harm to key Blue forces personnel. A more significant clue came a few hours later—a clue that all but fitted the picture completely together.

He was tall and blond and listed his profession as "correspondent" of a small weekly newspaper. "Charles Maynard" was his name, and he had drifted into the Blue forces camp to secure news stories for his paper.

But his story seemed flimsy. And "Charles Maynard"—like "Quick Slasher" —soon wound up in front of an interrogator.

Like the "fire marshal" before him, the "correspondent" insisted his innocence. But he soon broke. And the last clue fell into place.

"Charles Maynard" had a real mission of espionage. The description of his boss—known to him only as "Clement Falls" — exactly fitted the description of "Drop" that "Quick Slasher" had related. This must be the same person, surmised intelligence officers.

It was.

And the end result was the cracking of an underground ring that, allowed to run rampant, could have dealt irreparable damage to the Blue forces.

This story was one of several planned by 2nd Division Military Intelligence and executed at Seneca Spear by Fort Stewart's 108th Signal Battalion, a reserve unit recently called to active duty.

The 108th provided the necessary number of "espionage agents," "assassins," "saboteurs," "line-crossers" and "refugees" in their "covert network" to give Seneca Spear's Blue and Yellow forces realistic training in how to deal with the underground.

27 Agents

The network's 27 agents, all posing as members of a front organization called the George Washington Patriotic Society, all had assumed names, assumed occupations, fabricated stories and specified undercover missions to perform. According to the plan, they were to resist, but, as interrogation grew more intense, to offer vague clues that the interviewers could piece together.

The sum-total of the clues in their stories were to coincide and eventually reveal the "ring leader," whose "real" name was "Daniel River." Also to be revealed were his three immediate assistants—one of whom was "Clement Falls."

Other "characters" of the 108th included an insurance agent, a chemistry teacher, an ex-jockey and several farmers. They were under the supervision of Warrant Officer George Herzog of the 108th.

The "dramatic" mission they performed, said Mr. Herzog, was not only an interesting assignment, but it taught a valuable lesson in security in "a most unique way."

The 108th is composed of the 377th Signal Company, 497th Signal Relay Company and the 828th Signal Relay Company. Until their call to active duty, the units were based at Springfield, Ohio, New York, N. Y., and St. Paul, Minn., respectively.

Lt Col Austin, To Far East

Lieutenant Colonel Charles F. Austin, deputy commander of the 2nd Battle Group, 1st Infantry, has been reassigned to the Far East.

He has received his orders to join the United States Advisory Group, Korea, the latter part of this month.

Colonel Austin entered the Army as a private in 1942. He was commissioned a second lieutenant in 1943 upon graduation from the Finance Department Officers' Candidate School. He transferred to the Infantry in 1960.

He has served with the 1st Infantry since June 1961, and the previous five months as executive officer of the division's 1st Battle Group, 11th Infantry, recently redesignated as the 38th Infantry.

The native of Palmer, Kansas, was a faculty member of the United States Army Management School, Fort Belvoir, Virginia, from 1955 to 1958. He is the author of numerous articles on leadership and management.

Reporter Led to Guerrilla Hideout; Gets Story Deep in 'Enemy' Lines

BY GORDON ALDERMAN

"You're the first people to see this camp, and after you leave we'll have to move." These were the words of an unkempt, bewhiskered guerrilla leader, deep inside "enemy" lines during Exercise Seneca Spear. Through mud and dust that caked his uniform, I could make out his rank, staff sergeant, and his name, Waugh.

"Like the men he commanded, Staff Sergeant Lester Waugh looked mean and efficient enough to take care of any situation, and probably had during the course of this exercise.

I had picked up one of Sergeant Waugh's men at maneuver headquarters, and had gotten him to lead me to the base camp to interview and photograph this squad. Located within pistol shot of several major units, these ten men had done much to lower the morale of the Blue forces, "destroying" tents, vehicles and men. So far, they hadn't been found.

Editor's Note: A few days before Exercise Seneca Spear began, nearly a hundred men, drawn from the 28th and 23rd Infantries, arrived at maneuver headquarters. At Camp Oliver, the men received brief instruction from a Special Forces team on the various facets of guerrilla warfare. In addition, the men were given specific instructions as to their duties: "knocking over" tents, vehicles and men. They were to demoralize the troops of both sides, as well as test the functions of guerrilla tactics. On the opening day of play, these teams were dropped off in the woods, and left on their own. Hunted constantly by patrols, these bands of guerrillas were continuously on the move. This is the story of one of these bands.

'I'll Jump'

On our way out to the guerrilla camp, my guide, Specialist Four Jimmy Bradley, had instructed me on how we would get off the road. "Slow down when I tell you to, and I'll jump out and go see if it's all clear. You go on up the road a few miles, then turn around and come back. Don't look for me, I'll find you."

As we neared the drop-off point, the concentration of Blue forces became stronger. All of us, the guide, the photographer and myself were wearing the white markings of neutrals, and so were not bothered. Still, we couldn't stop and take off into the woods with a patrol watching. Neutral or not, they might still follow us.

After rounding a curve, Bradley said "slow down here." As I turned to answer him, all I saw was a dirty green flash speeding into the woods. "Don't forget the band!" I called. Up to now, this guerrilla had enjoyed immunity from capture, but once he left the vehicle he was on his own again. Without even slowing down, he snatched his cap from his head and stripped the white tape from it. Now, he was vulnerable to capture at any time.

Just in Time

No sooner had he gotten into the edge of a thicket than a Blue forces truck rumbled by us, headed for the rear area. The driver looked at us inquiringly, but didn't slow down.

On the return trip I slowed down as I reached the drop-off point, but no sign of my guide. Suddenly I heard a sharp hiss, "Here." Bradley stepped from the brush and motioned me to park on the opposite side of the road.

Being marked as a neutral, our vehicle wouldn't be bothered by the Blue forces, who would probably think we were umpires, checking on a position off the road.

Once out of the vehicle, I was caught up in the spirit of the guerrillas, instinctively ducking down when I heard a patrol drive by on the road.

In the Woods

Once into the woods, we walked for miles . . . at least, it seemed like miles, although it really couldn't have been more than a few hundred yards. Twice my guide stopped and whistled softly. The second time he signalled, he got an answer. We changed direction slightly, and after a few more yards, we came upon a small clearing by a large oak tree.

This was "base camp," rendezvous for this group of guerrillas. As I entered the clearing, I saw one man cleaning his weapon, and three or four other men lounging around a small, smokeless fire. On closer examination, I spotted another man, asleep in his sleeping bag, under camouflage. I learned later he had been on an all-night patrol, returning only at dawn.

A few of the band were out on a scouting mission, but that still left one man missing. He was on guard, behind us. We may have been neutrals, but these men took no chances.

How's Trieks?

I spoke to Sergeant Waugh, the leader of this group, about the living conditions out in the field. Both he and his men agreed that it was rather uncomfortable, but they liked it.

"So far we've been lucky" Sergeant Waugh said. "We've only missed one hot meal." "Hot meals" consisted of C Rations, warmed in their own cans, he explained, plus anything else they might garner as they patrolled. The band was equipped with snake-bite kits and snake venom, and could take care of all but the most serious of injuries themselves. If a man should become seriously ill, or in need of some type of medical attention, he could be turned over to the nearest major unit immediately.

Even though the rules of this maneuver stated that the band bringing in such a man for emergency purposes would be allowed to leave such an area, the guerrillas planned on sending no more than two men into the camp with the injured man. Again, the guerrillas would take no chances.

On their own since Seneca Spear began, these men had done a great amount of "damage" by this mid-point of the exercise. They had knocked out tanks, armored personnel carriers, troop carriers and trucks, plus tents and men. They had walked boldly into the division's rear area, knocking out several tents, as well as the headquarters area of the 7th Cavalry. Patrols had been combing the woods for them ever since the play began, but so far, no one but us had come close to their camp. I hoped I hadn't caused them too much trouble, barging in like this.

"No," said Sergeant Waugh, "we were thinking about moving anyway. Too many patrols are getting too close. Besides, Division Main is moving tonight, and we're going to try and pick off some big fish."

I didn't know how they knew of such a move, and I didn't ask. Already, this particular group had captured one field-grade officer. Tonight, they were going back for more.

Before I left the camp, Sergeant Waugh asked me, "Do you know which way the road is?" I confessed that I had no idea. "Good" said the sergeant, "take'm out the same way."

As I left this camp, deep in the swampy woods of Fort Stewart's northern sector, I wondered if the band could make good their threat to "land a big one" tonight. Nearing the road, we heard a patrol driving by. I didn't have time to drop all the way to the ground, I could only kneel and hope they didn't spot me. Not twenty yards away, a vehicle with two men of the Blue force rolled along the road. The man riding in the passenger's seat looked straight at me . . . and didn't say a word. Apparently, my own fatigues blended well enough with the surrounding foliage, and I was invisible to the patrol.

As soon as the traffic left the road, the photographer and I started across, headed for our vehicle. I turned to say goodbye to our guide . . . and saw only dense underbrush.

Driving back to maneuver headquarters, I wondered if the intensified patrols would pay off, or if the guerrilla band would make a slip tonight in their "fishing" trip. If either thing occurred, it would be the end of the battle for these ten men . . . they would be taken in as prisoners, and would be brought into maneuver headquarters, get a chance to sleep in a bed, eat hot, real food, take a shower and shave . . . in general, they would have it easy. But, they wouldn't be free, able to move and harass the Blue forces, able to disrupt communication, knock out vehicles and personnel.

I hope they made it.

CLEAN-UP TIME . . . A guerrilla cleans his weapon in preparation for a sortie against the "enemy." Living on his own, in the swamps, during most of Exercise Seneca Spear, this man didn't have the time or opportunity to clean up himself, but always took the time to keep his rifle in tip-top shape.

Artillerymen Surprised By 29th Team In Opener

ROCKWELL (L) TAGGED OUT AT FIRST BASE Turner, Artilleryman Pitcher, Moves in To Cover The Play

The Major Unit Baseball season opened Sunday at Fort Benning with over 700 fans on hand to see the 29th Infantry nine trip the 10th Artillery Redlegs, 6-1, at Gowdy Field.

Col. William J. Higgins Jr., Infantry Center G-1, tossed out the first ball to officially open the 1962 season.

The Infantry Center Band and color guards from Battery A, 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, 1st Infantry Brigade, also participated in the opening.

The Redlegs scored their lone tally in the second inning when catcher, J. B. Larrimore, blasted a solo home run over the left field fence.

The Infantrymen took advantage of five bases on balls and an error in the fourth frame to send three runs across. They struck back in the fifth and scored three more runs on three hits to account for six runs and the victory.

Douglas Turner, 10th Artillery righthander, was tagged with the loss. Although Turner did not give up a hit during his three and one half inning on the mound, he gave up seven bases on balls which accounted for three runs.

Southpaw Joe Winchester relieved Turner and went the route. He was tagged for six hits and three runs.

Roy Bowers went all the way for the Two-Niners, giving up eight hits and one run to post his first victory of the season. The Infantrymen scattered six hits, five singles and a double.

Dave Lynn's one-run double in the seventh paced the Two-Niners at the plate. Larrimore's solo home run in the second and a single in the third topped the Artillerymen in the hitting department. Larry Covey also had two singles for the Redlegs.

In the second game of Major Unit league action, 428th Medics edged 156th Signalmen 13-10, Tuesday night at Gowdy Field.

The Medics scored seven runs on seven hits in the third inning when Bob Demas, Charles Story and Gray Hess all led off with singles. Edgar Brown and Ed Stansbury followed by rapping out doubles. Hess came up for the second time in the inning and poked a double into deep left field.

John Orsini, Medics' righthander, held the Signalmen to one hit until the last half of the seventh. On two errors and a base on balls along with three hits 156th Signalmen managed to get back in the ball game with four runs. Charles Smith, righthander and Joseph O'Malley, southpaw, both of the Medics helped Orsini to post his first victory.

Gary Hess paced the Medics at the plate with two doubles and two singles. Joe Dennis' triple and single led the losers. Lonnie Harrell also contributed a triple for the Signalmen. Starting pitcher Don Rumvill suffered the defeat.

CC to Hold Spring Golf Tournament

The Fort Benning Country Club will hold its Spring Golf Tournament April 23 to May 20, and all members wishing to play must submit their entries by April 22.

The meet will be conducted by match play. There will be one match a week. Flights will be composed of 16 persons the first week and grade down to eight, four and two the following weeks.

Flight determinations will be based on the players' posted handicap, or if no handicap has been posted, an 18-hole qualifying round must be played.

The lowest score of the posted handicap or qualifying round will determine the flight placement.

Qualifying rounds must be completed before April 22 and players must register with the Pro Shop before starting.

The low medalist in the round and winners of all flight levels in the tournament will receive awards.

After the meet there will be a party and an awards ceremony. The date will be announced later.

Quote Of The Week

After the smoke cleared from the first meeting of the N.Y. Mets and the Yankees and the Mets emerged on the long end of the score, manager Casey Stengel was asked how it felt to defeat his old club, in fine Stengelese, he said as he rubbed his stomach, "I'm just as contented as if I had eaten a full course meal."

Major League Teams Hard Hit By Uncle Sam

NEW YORK (AFPS) — About 22 major league players who ordinarily would be working out at baseball's spring training camps have set aside their flannel uniforms for the call of Uncle Sam.

Hardest hit major league teams are the Baltimore Orioles, Cleveland Indians, New York Yankees and Los Angeles Angels. These four clubs have contributed all but one of the 11 American Leaguers now serving with the Armed Forces.

Six National League clubs are also minus 11 players with the Chicago Cubs and Philadelphia Phillies feeling it most.

The Orioles will start the season without the services of pitcher Steve Barber, their top winner last year; regular shortstop Ron Hansen and reserve outfielder Barry Shetrone.

The Indians also are hurt in the pitching department with starters Jim Grant and Wynn Hawkins unavailable along with promising outfielder Walt Bond.

The New York Yankees suffered a serious setback when shortstop Tony Kubek was called to active duty.

The Angels will have to begin without outfielder George Thomas, pitcher Ron Moeller and infielder Gene Leek. The Kansas City A's, only other AL club to be hit, are minus infielder Deron Johnson.

In the NL, the Cubs have lost catcher Dick Bertell and reserve outfielder Jim McAnany.

The Phillies will have to start without shortstop Rueben Amaro and reserve catcher Jim Coker.

The San Francisco Giants have the top number in service among NL clubs — catcher John Orsino and pitchers Roger Sinner and Verle Tiefenthaler.

John Papa Plays Army Baseball

Onetime Baltimore Oriole pitcher John Papa now throws 'em at Fort Dix.

Papa signed with the "Birds" in 1958 for a reported $60,000. He sadly laments that the first batter he faced in major league competition was slugger Ted Kluzewski. Big Ted sent Papa's first pitch over the fence.

States Papa, "What a way to start a major league career!"

Hunt Club Members Place in Horse Show

Two of the younger members of the Fort Benning Hunt Club brought back ribbons from the recent horse show sponsored by the Quota Club of Columbus.

Donna Davis, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Chester H. Davis, finished fourth in the park type pleasure horses event. Davis is on the Medical Committee of The Infantry School's Special Subjects Department.

Susan Holbrook, daughter of Major and Mrs. Robert V. Holbrook, finished fifth in the equitation event. Her father is the chief of the Methods Improvement Office at Martin Army Hospital.

The two girls were among 11 children of post personnel who competed in the event.

A horse entered in the park type pleasure event can be any gaited horse suitable for outside riding. In this type event, the judgment is primarily of the horse although the rider must be capable of handling the animal.

In the equitation event the rider is judged. In Susan's case she had to be judged on the way she sits the horse and her handling and control.

One of the ways in which the girls learn to handle horses is through the Hunt Club. All of the children who entered the event are members of the club, which is the largest of its type on any Army post.

In addition to competing in horse shows in the surrounding area, club members also stage their own event. This year's show is scheduled for May, the specific date is as yet undecided.

The club has a variety of planned programs for members which include hunt breakfasts, moonlight rides, shows and overnight trips.

The greatest emphasis is placed on activities for youngsters. A system of awards has been established designed to encourage their knowledge of horsemanship and horsemastership.

At the present, there are over 65 members in the club and 40 horses. Most of the animals are privately owned. However, 15 are owned by the club and are available for renting or use in classes.

All military personnel, civilian employees, their wives and families are eligible for membership.

Instructors are available to teach beginners, or advanced equitation and jumping. A riding ring, equipped with floodlights, and a jump ring are available and there are over 50 miles of bridle paths on the post.

The club also owns bridles, English and Western saddles, as well as harnesses and wagons. All are available for rental.

YAC Schedule Of Events

Larrimore Gets Seasons First for Only Tally

Lewis Team Fields Eight Pro Players

Baseball coach Glenn Daniel of Fort Lewis has the manpower to field a team composed of major leaguers with the exception of a pitcher. They are: first base, R. C. Stevens, Pittsburgh Pirates; second, Ray Webster, Boston Red Sox; third, Gene Leek, L.A. Angels; shortstop, Tony Kubek, N. Y. Yankees; left - field, Deron Johnson, Kansas City Athletics; right-field, James McAnany, Chicago Cubs; centerfield, George Thomas, L.A. Angels; and catcher, Bob Taylor, Milwaukee Braves.

REPEAT HISTORY

Three months ago, a New York man fell into the Jamaica Bay and was fished out by two concessionaries of a nearby park in Brooklyn. Recently the same man fell in again and the two concessionaries duplicated their rescue.

FIRST HOMER OF THE SEASON J. B. Larrimore (R) Trots Across Home Plate

Paul Dietzel Favors Army Bowl Games

WEST POINT, N. Y. (AFPS) — Paul Dietzel, Army's new head football coach, says he has no objections to West Point participating in post-season contests—"under certain conditions."

The young coach said, "First of all, Army people have to want the game. Our team would have to be an outstanding one —one that would give a good account of itself. And the players themselves would have to be given the right to vote 'yes' or 'no.'

"I'd never take a team to a bowl that wasn't solidly in favor of going there," the new coach said.

During a lull in a spring practice session, Dietzel said, "Someone asked me how many movies I had seen of Army games and how much I had briefed myself on LSU (Louisiana State U.) before I went there."

He indicated his answer by making a zero with his fingers.

"I've told these boys I don't care what they've done in the past," he said. "I want to know nothing about them. I'm not going to be swayed by reports, records or movies."

WARM WARNING

A Bloomfield, N. J., woman drove her foreign - made car into a service station and asked for a tankful of gas. The attendant forgot that it was a foreign car and put 13 cents worth of gasoline into the radiator before he realized his mistake. "Don't worry," he assured her, "nothing will happen — the worst thing that could happen is that it could blow up." She laughed and drove off. Three blocks later the car blew up.

POST HUNTERS BAG ELEVEN TURKEYS

Post hunters reported bagging eleven gobblers during the recent spring turkey season on post. The total take for the season was slightly below the past several years which have averaged about 18 toms for the spring gobbler season. This was the first year there was a spring turkey season in the counties adjoining the reservation.

In previous years special authorization was obtained from the State Fish and Game Commission for a spring turkey season on post. This year the season on post was shortened by a week to coincide with the season off post.

POST FISHING SLOW

Heavy spring rains continued to keep most post ponds and streams muddy during the past week and fishing success was down from that of previous weeks. Harps, Weems and Pattersons Ponds were unusually muddy following midweek rains. In spite of slow activity, several good catches were made over the week-end. Sfc (ret) Henry Enfinger of Columbus netted a 4 pound bass from Weems Pond Sunday afternoon.

Prior to the recent cool weather bream were quite active at Kings Pond and nice catches were reported being taken on surface flies during the early evening hours.

NEED A FISHING BOAT?

The Fish and Game Association reports they have nine wooden and plywood boats for which bids are being received. All the boats are in need of repair, however fishermen who are handy with tools will find that very little work will get them a handy and economical fishing scow.

The boats are available for inspection at the Fish and Game office, Harmony Church. Bids should be submitted prior to noon April 24.

BOATS FOR ALL POST PONDS

The Custodian of the Fish and Game Association reports car top carriers have recently been purchased so members can rent boats and transport them to any of the 23 post ponds or streams. The boats and carriers are available at the Fish and Game Office for the convenience of the members who desire to boat fish on the more remote post ponds and streams.

Previously boats were available on only ten post ponds and could be rented by picking up a boat key at the Fish and Game Office.

Lt. Brauer Wins State Shootoff

The Georgia State Trap singles and doubles championships went to a young second lieutenant assigned to the Army's Marksmanship Training Unit here this past weekend.

2nd Lt. William A. Brauer won the doubles event on Friday in a shootoff after tying with a teammate Pfc Charles Fisher with 99x100 in the regular event. Lt Brauer came back Saturday to capture the singles with a 196x200 effort.

In addition he won the class A in the 100 target, 16 yards class championship Friday with 98x100.

Pvt Fisher became the state's handicap titlist when he took that event Sunday with a 93x100 from 21 yards. The open winner was Major Robert A. Gaches.

Fisher completed the Army's sweep of the three days of firing at Albany when he placed first in the high overall with 372x400. Runnerup slot went to Lt. Brauer who posted a 370x-400 effort.

Pvt. Hugh Brown was open champion in the state doubles matches with 91x100; SMaj. Harold Grewe was second in the state single with 195x200 to complete the Army sweep.

The four-day shoot, which ended Sunday, was conducted in high winds during the entire tournament.

WAC ATHELETE

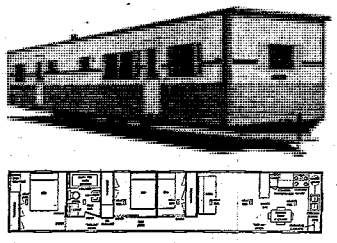
Joanne Fenninger, a WAC stationed at Fort Dix, is, according to the post newspaper, a professional water skier, nationally-ranked archer, gymnast, and member of the Dix sport parachute club.

Damaging Loft . . . Some bowling — new ones, especially — have a tendency to hold onto the ball too long, releasing it so that it arcs upward and then comes down with a heavy thud. This is called a loft ball and should be avoided.

First of all, when you loft your ball, you loose control over it completely. It is also a good sign that something is wrong with your style.

Then, too, it is damaging to the lanes. Lanes are usually very carefully leveled and smoothed so that you can get the most out of your own particular style.

A loft ball mars or dents the wood. Even though this mar may be slight, it could still throw a ball off a fraction of an inch. A fraction of an inch at mar point could mean two or three inches at pin-contact point.



WILLARD ROWE

Willard Rowe fought his way to the Golden Gloves open division lightweight crown at Shawano, Wisc., before entering the Army at Fort Carson.

With 27 wins under his belt, Rowe relates that his father, Riley Rowe, was considered a potential contender for the light-middleweight title after he banged his way to win the Kentucky Golden Gloves light middle crown in the late 1930s.

AT THE Movies

THE CHILDREN'S HOUR stars Audrey Hepburn, Shirley MacLaine, and James Garner. It is the tale of a child who maliciously tells a story about her two school teachers. The lie has disastrous effects on the two women and others who are too willing to accept the accusations.

COME SEPTEMBER is a comedy starring Rock Hudson and Gina Lollobrigida. Rocking from Portofino on the Italian Riviera all the way to Rome, this is the hilarious yarn of an American millionaire who brings a sultry and beautiful Italian girlfriend to his luxurious villa only to find that the rendezvous haven had been turned into a hotel by his enterprising Major Domo.

HORRORS OF THE BLACK MUSEUM is a mature drama that casts Michael Gough and June Cunningham in the starring roles. An internationally famous crime reporter commits a series of fiendish murders in order to create material for his writing. Scotland Yard is baffled as the crime journalist's stories arrive at conclusions missed by the "Yard".

Masquers--Unmasked

By Mrs. Phyllis Tritsch

An enthusiastic and delighted audience greeted The Masquer's "Evening Off Broadway" last Saturday night.

The first offering, Rattigan's "The Browning Version," was an impressive one-act play, done in arena style, with the audience seated on three sides. The actors, instead of being out of sight, sat in semi-darkness on the stage, making entrances down the steps, and into the circle of light that was the Victorian drawing room of the play.

This unique idea added immeasurably to a beautiful play, done in the seldom-seen arena style.

Major Don Shufstall, in the leading role of Andrew Crocker-Harris, turned in a beautifully moving performance that will go down proudly in Masquer's history. Especially commendable too was young Guy Bongiovanni in the role of the student, Taplow.

The Ionesco farce, ridiculously titled "The Bald Soprano", constituted the second half of the "Evening Off Broadway". This zaney comedy of English life and English drama must be seen to be believed!

The setting consisted merely of platforms, four straight chairs, and a ramp.

Never to be forgotten by the entranced audience was Karen Otley's portrayal of Mary. She is delightful to look at, and just to hear her passionate recital of a poem about fire is worth the price of admission!

The highlight of the play was undoubtedly Vince DeDario, who, as Mr. Martin, utilized make-up, voice, and perfect timing to master a difficult role, and leave the audience in helpless laughter.

The remainder of the cast, Jeanne Douglas; John Olbreys, Maureen Bloemsma, and Peter Tatitscheff all showed remarkable flair for comedy, and a real talent for an unusual bit of theater.

Both plays were ably directed by Peter Tatischeff, who displayed an understanding of the Rattigan drama, and a unique appreciation of the Ionesco experiment.

The Masquers "Evening Off Broadway" is truly worth your time. Don't miss the last two performances, Friday and Saturday, April 20 and 21 at the Playhouse, Building 2519, at 8:30 p.m. Tickets are 90 cents available at the door. This is a theater experience you will remember and talk about for a long time to come!

Plans Underway for 'Law Day' Observances Locally on May 1

While Communist governments celebrate "May Day" on May 1 with displays of their military might, citizens of the U. S. will observe "Law Day."

By presidential proclamation, the day has been set aside for recognition of the laws of the land and the freedom of the individual under these laws.

Theme for the observance this year is "Law . . . Wellspring of Liberty."

Members of The Infantry Center's Staff Judge Advocate Section are currently formulating plans for local observance of the day.

Aside from the activities on post, members of the section will join with Columbus officials in observance of the event.

Col. V. Homer Drissel, staff judge advocate, will be a guest on "Report From Fort Benning," the post's television show to be aired April 28 at 12:45 p.m. over Channel 4. The significance of Law Day and the SJA section's part in nation's law structure will be discussed on the show.

Law Day displays are planned to be erected in strategic spots on post. Personnel attending troop information hours will be told of the day's significance.

Faith School students will hear 1st Lt. Hugh Peterson Jr., discuss the nation's legal system in a special assembly.

Members of the Columbus Lawyer's Club will follow the Law Day theme at a banquet on May 1. Personnel from the SJA section will attend the banquet and bear guest speaker Edwin Bryson, Esq., general counsel and professor of law at Duke University.

In a letter directed to all personnel of the Third Army, Lt. Gen. T. J. H. Trapnell, Third Army commander, stated:

"Ultimately . . . the majesty and justice of the law prevail only when men and women in all walks of life are free—and willing—to recognize and obey the law. Military and civilian personnel of the Armed Forces have a particular concern for our legal institutions. Our personal integrity and faithful discharge of responsibility can help to foster a national standard of citizenship compatible with the highest traditions of our heritage.

"I urge that all personnel consider anew their individual obligations as citizens, to insure the practice of a code of personal conduct in keeping with the rule of government by law. By setting a proper example, we can demonstrate to all the world that we are proud and deserving of the liberty conceived by our forefathers."

'April in Paris' Dance at YMCA Tomorrow Night

It's an "April in Paris" Dance at Armed Services YMCA tomorrow night. A floor show by Ballet Guild of Columbus will welcome the men of 2nd Infantry Division back from exercise seneca spear.

With choreography by Frances Berry and Rossi Gilmore, "Le Cafe Montmarte", the climax of the Guild's recent dance concert, will be presented as a complete floor show.

The social hall at Armed Services YMCA is being transformed into a Paris sidewalk cafe setting for the dance and the floor show.

The Five Shadows, a local orchestra, will furnish music for dancing. Members of the Girls Service Organization and their guests will be official junior hostesses for the evening.

Dancing will begin at 8:30 p.m. All military personnel are cordially invited.

Special Services Administrative Officer Is Named

Second Lt. Fred J. Murphy has been assigned as administrative officer of The Infantry Center Special Services Section.

A 1956 graduate of Fulton High School in Atlanta, he was graduated in 1961 from Georgia Tech with a bachelor of science degree in industrial management.

A former college football player, he played with the professional Minnesota Vikings and the Cleveland Browns as offensive end.

Upon graduation from Georgia Tech, he was commissioned through the university's Reserve Officers Training Corps. Before assuming his present duties, he was a member of The Student Brigade.

Three members of the 806th Engineer Battalion have been named to serve on the Enlisted Men's Council of Service Club 3 at Harmony Church.

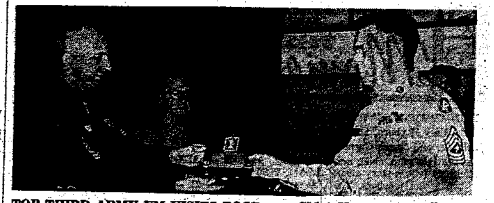
They are Spc Randall Wong, Headquarters Company, president; Sgt. William Sperries, Company D, vice president, and Pvt. Norman Smith, Company A, secretary.

The newly elected officers will direct the council in assisting the club director, Miss Rita I. Coll, in providing recreation and entertainment programs for enlisted personnel in the Harmony Church area.

Lt. L. P. Landers Named Engineer S-2 Officer

Lieutenant Lee P. Landers has assumed the duties of intelligence officer of the 2nd Engineer Battalion succeeding Captain Jacob Brodzinsky who has departed for the Pentagon, Washington, D.C., for temporary duty and further reassignment.

Lt. Landers graduated from Missouri School of Mines where he received a bachelor of science degree in mechanical engineering. He received his commission through the Reserve Officers Training Corps.



A native of St. Louis, Missouri, Lt. Landers served as assistant S-3 (operations) before assuming new duties.

58th Infantry In April Named 'Best Company'

Company B of the 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry was chosen as the Best Company of the Month last week. Lt. Col. Charles T. Caprino, 58th Infantry commander, presented the award to Capt. Richard B. Schaffer, Company B commander.

Company B was selected on the basis of superior ratings in The Infantry School committments, best administration, maintainance program, and highest on the command maintainance inspection.

Also considered in the judging was beautification of the company area, unit moral and esprit de corps.

TOP THIRD ARMY EM VISITS POST . . . SMaj Howard L. Bell (R), Third Army sergeant major, receives a plaque adorned with crests of 1st Infantry Brigade units during a recent visit to major units at the post. The plaque is presented by SMaj Othon O. Valent as post SMaj W. A. Callahan looks on, and was provided by NCOs of the brigade. SMaj Bell toured the brigade area and saw a demonstration by the Honor Guard Drill Team from Company C, 1st Battalion Group, 29th Infantry.

First 'Yard of Month' Contest Winners Named

The results of the first Fort Benning Yard of the Month Contest ended in a tie between neighbors in the enlisted Capehart Housing area.

Winners are Sfc and Mrs. Thomas P. McGilloway and MSgt and Mrs. William E. Krilling.

McGilloway a member of Company B, 1st Battalion, Infantry Center Troop Command, resides at Apt. E, 134 Baker Street. Krilling, an international rifle shooter with the Army Advanced Marksmanship Unit, lives next door in Apt. F.

Initiated this month, an inspection will be conducted each month from now on. Inspections are conducted the first part of every month under the direction of the Post Engineer.

The purpose of the contest is to encourage people residing in family housing areas to maintain their yards in as high a state of attractiveness as possible.

Each winner will receive a plaque for displaying in the yard, a picture of his yard and a letter of appreciation signed by the deputy commanding general.

In addition five other yards will be designated as area yards of the month.

Area winners were the Catholic Chaplain's quarters at 210 Sigerfoos in the Main Post Officer's Quarters, the residence of 1st Lt. and Mrs. Richard J. Klim at 829-B Terry Dr. Upatoi Terrace, the residence of Capt. and Mrs. Leroy N. Suddath at 310-A Merrill Lane in Custer Terrace, and the residence of Major and Mrs. Richard A. Hipsler at 216-A Arrowhead Drive in Officer's Capehart.

Enlisted area winners included, in addition to the winners, the residence of 1st Sgt. and Mrs. Willie W. Rogers at 303 Vogel in the Main Post Enlisted Quarters.

If needed, the Post Engineer will give, upon request, technical advice concerning erosion control, fertilizing, planting and pruning, and will assist with supplies and equipment within fund limitations.

'Resurrection' Address Set For Protestant Women

Fort Benning's Protestant Women-of-the-Chapels will hear an address on "The Resurrection" at 9:30 a.m. next Wednesday at the Religious Education Center, Building 2605.

The speaker will be Dr. Leslie S. Williams, city missionary of the Columbus Baptist Association.

ON THE SCENE

San Diego, Calif., fire captain and his crew approached a home while distributing fire safety pamphlets, when one ran a woman on her way to report a fire. The fire was extinguished in a clothes closet, the mess cleaned up and a pamphlet left for her to read.

Magazine Features Benning

The April issue of the Army Digest features Fort Benning and The Infantry Center. It contains articles by Maj. Gen. Ben Harrell post commandant, and Brig. Gen. A. D. Surles Jr., former assistant commandant.

Gen. Harrell's article, entitled "This Is The Infantry" explains the role of the Infantryman in the present day Army. The commandant points out that the Infantryman has vanquished enemy infantry, armor and cavalry.

Gen. Surles' article explains the role of The Infantry School. He outlines the history and training behind the school.

"They Fire For Effect", an article by SSgt Lee LaComb, Marksmanship Training Unit, outlines the methods used by the Army's top shooters.

The Army Digest is distributed to all units on the post.

TIC Personnel Can Lounge in Florida Sun

Infantry Center personnel desiring a little Florida sun for themselves and dependents may submit applications for a stay at TIC's Rest Camp, Destin, Fla.

Booking periods have been established for May 30 through September 12, during which guests will be limited to a five-day stay.

The initial date of acceptance of applications will be announced in the Daily Bulletin. This date will be 30 days prior to the booking month. Only applications for the announced booking month will be accepted.

Cabins at the camp are available at $5 per night as a family rate. A family is defined as the head of the household and bona fide dependents.

Rental fees must be paid no later than seven days prior to effective date of the reservation. A fee of $1 per night will be made for each guest of a family. Payments are made at the Special Services Office, Building 394.

Applications will be submitted using form FB (SS) FL 17 (Application for Reservations at Destin Rest Camp). These forms are available at the Special Services Office and at all Service Clubs.

The first booking month of the summer season has been established as follows:

May 30 - June 4; June 4 - June 9; June 9 - June 14; June 14 - June 19; June 19 - June 24; June 24 - June 29.

May 31 - June 5; June 5 - June 10; June 10 - June 15; June 15 - June 20; June 20 - June 25; June 25 - June 30.

Final date of submission of applications for the above period is 5 p.m., May 10.

Priority for reservations will be given to applicants who have never visited the camp. Other priorities will be based on the length of time since the applicant last visited the camp.

Reservations are determined by a drawing of applications of like priority for the desired period. Persons selected will be notified immediately.

Should the reservations not be accepted, the vacancies will be filled from a waiting list. Individuals may resubmit applications for later booking months if their initial applications are not accepted.

PROUD? . . . Pvt. Richard B. Bowie (R) should be. He is a great - great - great nephew of Jim Bowie, co-commander of American forces at The Alamo in the Mexican War, and he is a recent Airborne graduate at The Infantry School. Pinning on his Parachutist Badge is Lt. Gen. Bruce K. Holloway, deputy commander-in-chief of the U.S. STRIKE Command, Mac Dill Air Force Base, Florida.

TIC Credit Union Sets Audit

All members of The Infantry Center Federal Credit Union are being contacted as part of an annual audit, to verify records.

John M. Miller, chairman of the Supervisory Committee, asks all those who have not received letters of verification to call or write him so that the survey may be complete.

Miller's address and phone number are: 475 McCartha Drive, Columbus; phone MU 7-0803.

The credit union membership is open to all civilian employees at the post.

CWO Master Army Aviator

CWO James R. Woods, 1st Aviation Company, Lawson Army Aviation Command, has been awarded the wreath and star-topped wings of a master Army aviator.

To be eligible for master wings, an Army aviator must have been a military aviator for 15 years, have a minimum of 2,000 flying hours, be qualified to fly both airplanes and helicopters, and hold a Special Instrument Card.

Woods was originally rated as a liaison pilot in April, 1947, and has logged over 6,000 hours in 15 types of Army aircraft. He checked-out in helicopters in June, 1949, and received his original Instrument card in March, 1952.

From 1953 to 1956, Woods was assigned to the 937th Engineer Aviation Company, flying airplanes and helicopters from the jungles of Central America to the mountains of South America in support of Corps of Engineer surveying projects.

Since arriving at Fort Benning, Woods has been assigned to the 1st Aviation Company, 151st Engineer Group, 19th Helicopter Company, and recently reassigned to the 1st Aviation Company upon completion of a check-out in the AO-1 Caribou, the Army's new twin-engine transport aircraft.

Woods currently is on special duty as chief of Lawson's Flight Standardization Division.

USO Committee Addressed by G-1

Col. William J. Higgins, Jr., G-1 of The Infantry Center, addressed the USO Committee of Columbus last week at the USO Club at 100 9th St.

He spoke on "The USO and What it Means to Fort Benning."

complete governmental ownership and management of all means of production and distribution of economic goods. It also includes the control of all political and social life by what the Communists call the dictatorship of the proletariat. Communism is thus a form of totalitarianism and authoritarianism.

Texas A&M Annual Event

Former students of the A&M College of Texas who live in the Columbus — Fort Benning area will gather at the post Country Club at 7 p.m., Saturday, April 21. They will attend the fifty-ninth anniversary muster of Texas A&M men.

The Columbus — Fort Benning muster will be one of more than 500 similar ceremonies held all over the world where Texas A&M College former students pay homage to their fellow classmates who have passed on, and humble tribute to the Texans who gave the freedom of the state at the Battle of San Jacinto near Houston some 126 years ago.

Major Lester R. Dillon, chairman of the muster, urges all A&M men to attend the April 21 muster program.

Reservation may be made by telephoning the muster chairman at 545-4197.

WHAT'D YOU SAY SARGE? . . . Sfc George Williams practices a free fall in preparation for the post Sport Parachute Club's Spring Meet tomorrow and Sunday at Fryar Field. Fort Rucker jumpers will also take part in the sky-diving and acrobatic meet beginning at noon tomorrow and continuing until 5 p.m. Sunday. The public is invited. Motorists may reach Fryar Field by taking the pontoon bridge from Lawson Field and turning left at the first road on the Alabama side of the river. Those traveling from Alabama points should take the road to the pontoon bridge, but turn right just before reaching the river. Club members will also put on demonstrations here and at four other nearby points during Armed Forces Week, May 14 to 20.

Allied Attaches To Visit Post

Thirty-two military attaches and five assistant attaches from 37 Allied Countries will arrive here Tuesday at 4 p.m. for a tour of the post and its facilities.

Honors ceremonies for the senior attache, Brigadier Thomas C. Campbell of New Zealand, will be conducted at Lawson Army Airfield upon their arrival.

At 7 p.m. the group will be guests at an official reception in the Supper Club Annex of the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Wednesday morning they will receive an orientation at Eubanks Field by The Infantry School's Airborne-Air Mobility Department.

Later the attaches will be briefed on the history and organization of The Infantry Center and Infantry School.

The morning activities will end with a demonstration by The School's Ranger Department.

After lunch at the Custer Terrace Branch of the Main Officers' Open Mess, the military men will receive a briefing on and tour the Officer Candidate School.

They then will witness the firepower of the Infantry at a weapons demonstration on Hook Range.

The day's tour will end at Buma Hill, where they will observe a demonstration of an Infantry-tank team in attack.

The Allied officials will be guests at a dinner in the Custer Terrace Officers' Mess at 6:45 p.m.

The attaches are scheduled to leave the post at 6 a.m. next Thursday.

Nation Wide Tour

The visit is part of the group's nation-wide tour of various Army posts. After leaving Fort Benning, they are scheduled to tour The Quartermaster Training Command at Fort Lee.

Before arriving here they will visit The Military Academy at West Point, the Army Ordnance Tank Automotive Command at Detroit the Army Armor Center at Fort Knox, the Army Transportation Terminal Command, Gulf, at New Orleans, and the Army Aviation Center at Fort Rucker.

Final Group Of ROTC Cadets Here

The third and final group of southern college and university Reserve Officer Training Corps cadets to participate in the annual ROTC orientation program here arrived at the post yesterday.

Among the students are 70 men from Florida A & M, Tallahassee; 30 from Florida Southern College in Lakeland, and 28 from Mercer University in Macon.

From the Georgia Military Academy in College Park, 110 cadets will join the other military students on their orientation tour today.

Designed to brief the cadets on Army life, their itinerary includes a visit to the 1st Infantry Brigade area for a static display of Army weapons and equipment.

The men receive briefings on such weapons as the 4.2-inch mortar, 105-mm howitzer, M-41 tank with mounted 50 caliber machine gun, ground mounted detector - receiver which collects weather data, the Honest John rocket and SS-10 antitank guided missile.

This afternoon they will fire artillery weapons on the Concord Observation Post Range.

The ROTC students also will witness a trainfire demonstration at Roosevelt Range by the Weapons Department's Small Arms Committee of The Infantry School.

The orientation program will end today, but cadets who wish to see a demonstration of jump-training at Eubanks Field by the Airborne-Air Mobility Department may remain on the post through tomorrow morning.

Academic Building Low Bids

Another step has been taken toward construction of a multi-million dollar academic building for The Infantry School.

The Jordan Construction Co. has been announced as apparent low bidder on the major portion of the construction.

The Columbus firm turned in a bill of $6,580,100. The next lowest bid, $6,618,000, was submitted by Electronic and Missile Facilities, Inc., of Valley Stream, L. I., N. Y.

No contracts have been awarded as yet for work on the defense project, one of the largest of its type ever authorized by Congress.

The structure is scheduled to go up on Sightseeing Field on Main Post.

Bids also were received on three other contracts involved in the academic building.

Deep South Construction Co., Montgomery, Ala., was apparent low bidder for earth work, storm drainage, grassing, water lines, sanitary sewers and steam distribution systems.

JCOC Demonstrations To Show Modern Army

An informative line-up of demonstrations await the participants in the Army phase of the Joint Civilian Orientation Conference (JCOC) scheduled here May 8 to 10.

The purpose of the Department of Defense sponsored conference is to show selected business, cultural, professional, military and governmental leaders the capabilities and limitations of today's Army.

Each of the demonstrations staged by various departments in The Infantry School are designed to show this through visual depiction of the firepower and fighting strength of the Army in its various and diverse roles.

The program will open at 8:50 p.m. Tuesday (May 8) when the Command and Staff Department stages a demonstration of a reinforced rifle company in defense.

During this program all weapons utilized in support of a forward rifle company in defense will be fired. Included among these are the M-1 rifle, 81-mm mortar, 90 mm guns, the Honest John rocket and twin 40 mm guns.

A company of men will stage an attack on an objective. Firepower will be deployed in one sector and as the attack progresses there will be a gradual increase of fire.

The attack will culminate in the delivery of the final protective fire. This particular moment has often been called "The Mad Minute". Here everything is fired at one time and with full tracer ammunition, enabling the spectators to follow the projectiles throughout their trajectory.

LAW DAY, 1962

May 1, 1962, is the fifth annual observance of Law Day, USA. It is a day on which all people are urged publicly to demonstrate their appreciation of the rule of law as the guardian of individual liberties. Individual responsibilities include observing laws, supporting those who bear the responsibility for enforcing laws, and instilling respect for the law in young Americans by example. By such a demonstration we are signifying our recognition that ours is a nation governed by the rule of the law rather than the rule of men. We therefore reaffirm our heritage and continue to safeguard those priceless rights granted to us by the Constitution and Bill of Rights.

Our Law Day observance challenges the world to stand fast and protect the rights of men and nations.

May 5 Schedule

On Wednesday (May 9) at 8:15 a.m., the Ranger Department will put on their demonstration at Victory Pond, which includes, among other things, a live reptile demonstration.

The purpose of the reptile demonstrations is to show some of the hazards Rangers face during their nine weeks of training.

Other aspects of the training which will be shown include different mountain climbing techniques, rope drops, suspension traverses, confidence techniques and hand to hand combat.

At 9:55 a.m. representatives of the Weapons Department will discuss the capabilities of all the Infantry's weapons.

After each discussion, the weapon concerned will be fired. And then in a grand finale all of the weapons, from the rifle to the Davy Crockett, will be fired at one time.

That afternoon at 2:05 p.m. at Victory Pond, members of the 5th Special Forces Group (Airborne), 1st Special Forces, Fort Bragg ,will put on a demonstration of special warfare techniques.

A brief summary of the history and organization of special forces will be given, in addition to the necessity of using these type forces in cold war and counter insurgency operations.

Certain methods of special forces operations will be demonstrated. Among these will be methods of infiltration, ambushes and psychological warfare.

At 3:40 the Command and Staff Department, in conjunction with The Air Force again takes over with a firepower and airmobile assault demonstration.

The first phase of this demonstration will be devoted to artillery firepower.

During the second phase a ROAD division, which includes Infantry, Armor, Airborne and Mechanized components, will conduct an airmobile assault. The Air Force will support the assault with jet fighters, and Army aviation will back it up with armed and transport helicopters.

The Next Day

On Thursday at 8:10 a.m. the Airborne Air Mobility Department, will begin a series of demonstrations that will last throughout the morning.

First on the list is the Airborne orientation demonstration at Eubanks Field.

In this part a summation of the accomplishments of Airborne groups during combat will be presented, in addition to a brief resume of its history.

There will also be demonstrations of the various types of training all Airborne students have to go through. Included among these is the proper execution of the nine jump commands, control of parachute during descent and the way in which to make contact with the ground.

Members of the department will also jump from the 34 and 250 foot jump towers.

At 9:30 the program moves to Fryar Field where a joint Army aviation and pathfinder demonstration will take place. Personnel from Lawson Army Aviation Command will assist the Airborne Department in this program.

This will include parachute jumps from various Army aircraft and the utilization of aerial delivery techniques. All Army aircraft, including the AC-1 Caribou, will be demonstrated during this presentation.

At 10:10 members of the Fort Benning Sky Diving Club will stage a show.

After this, the last demonstration, a joint Airborne troop carrier problem, conducted jointly by the Airborne Department and the Air Force, will be staged.

The role of the two components in preparing for joint Airborne operations will be explained by their respective representatives.

It will be climaxed by an assault mission in which heavy equipment, including vehicles and guns, supplies and over 200 men will be dropped from airplanes.

The men in this drop will be supplied by the 101st Airborne Division from Fort Campbell.

At 11:10 the commandant of The Infantry School, Major Gen. Ben Harrell, will deliver an address officially closing JCOC 32.

ARTIST'S CONCEPTION OF FUTURE INFANTRY SCHOOL ACADEMIC BUILDING

Low Bids

The bid was $481,154.

T. D. McClure Co., Atlanta, Ga., submitted an apparent low bid of $154,484 on a contract calling for an electrical distribution system, transformer stations, and street lighting.

An apparent low bid of $303,603 was submitted by J. Young Construction Co., Beaufort, S. C., for all paving.

A total of 36 bids on the four contracts were opened in Savannah by Lt. Col. Arthur T. Strickland, acting Savannah District engineer.

The new academic building will contain classrooms, communications laboratories, various shops, an auditorium and offices for more than 1,000 command, staff, instructional and administrative personnel.

Construction is expected to require two years.

The new facility will replace a number of widely dispersed and outmoded buildings that have turned out thousands of trained Infantrymen for the Army.

Consolidation of TIS's activities is designed to increase the effectiveness of instructions and reduce costs.

Sound systems, television equipment for two origination studies, a television distribution system, air-conditioning and special lighting for the auditorium and classrooms will be incorporated in the construction.

A center section of the structure will be six stories tall, providing the various offices needed. Large two-story wings containing classrooms will connect with the taller section on either side. The building will contain a total of 515,000 square feet.

Signal Battalion Marks Birthday With Celebration

March 17 marked the fourth anniversary of the 156th Signal Battalion. Because two companies of that Battalion were taking part in intensified signal training on that date, the celebration was officially held on Monday April 23.

To honor the event, the men of that unit were served birthday cake.

Law Day, U.S.A.

A central theme of our nation's history has been the struggle for justice under law and the preservation of the dignity and liberty of the individual.

The struggle has gone on through wars and economic, social and technological changes which have vastly altered the outward aspects of our world.

All who comprehend the meaning of today's events in the world realize that we are facing now the greatest challenge of all to the concept of individual dignity and freedom under law which means so much to our country and to men everywhere.

Law Day U.S.A. is an effort on the part of the legal profession, with the full cooperation of many leading organizations of laymen, to bring to present day Americans a deeper awareness of the nature of this challenge — to enable them to understand more fully the values of our system of liberty under law in contrast to the denial of human dignity and rights in large areas of the world.

Among other things we seek to instill, in young Americans particularly, a sense of history — an appreciation of the early struggles to build our communities, the men who led them, the sacrifices made to preserve freedom, the part these played in our national history.

It is a sense of history which best teaches the worth of our system and the dangers of surrendering liberty; it is this sense of history which exposes what the communists really seek, and illumines the contrast between their system, which sacrifices human dignity and rights to the state, and ours which makes the state the servant, not the master, of human beings.

Our law has many roots in history. It stems from the great English Common Law. It was nourished by the blood and ideals of the Patriots of our Revolution. It blossomed in our great Constitution, with its magnificent guarantees and checks and balances.

On Law Day we reaffirm our respect for our Law and its orderly process. At the same time we should be aware of our place in a great stream of history and show to the world our determination to carry it on. — 1ST. LT. HUGH PETERSON, JR.

Chaplain's Corner

'Sunday Religian'

By Chaplain (1st Lt)
Michael M. De Santis

"The fool has said in his heart, "There is no God." So the Psalmist stated it three thousand years ago.

Many of us are proud that we are not foolish concerning the existence of God. We are certain that "God is in His heaven and all is right with the world."

We proudly belong to a God-fearing people, and we can show how our founding fathers were men who were very conscious of God. Religion enjoys a very high esteem in modern American life.

Going to church on Sunday is the "Thing to do". Belonging to some church is almost a requirement for respectability in our society.

But are we truly religious people? What is religion? Perhaps we can have a clearer notion of what religion is if we can see what it is not.

Religion is not something we wear on Sunday morning as we wear our Sunday clothes. Religion is not looking pious, or reciting set prayers. Religion is not even being well - informed on religious subjects.

Religion is really a matter of justice, a matter of doing one's duty to God, of giving God what is owed to Him, of keeping ourselves in a proper relationship with God.

Religion is a good habit which helps to keep us in our proper position before God.

We can see, then, that when we let religion take its proper place in our lives that it will lend color and tone to every aspect of living. By giving to God what is His due we will give all men what is due to them.

Religion then will enter every phase of life: marriage, and family, business and pleasure. Religion then will not be a posture assumed just on one day a week, but rather a matter of deep conviction, and a principle of action.

"COME ON IN, THE WATER'S FINE."

Better Red Than Dead? Many Reds Don't Agree

Rather be "Red than dead?"

It seems quite probable that anyone reared in the American way would eventually end up dead under Red rulers. They wouldn't tolerate Communist tactics after living in a free society.

How would an American react if he should be forced to live in a place not of his own choosing, doing work for which he was not suited?

Undoubtedly he would revolt. He would organize as many of his fellow forced workers as possible and stage some sort of formal protest. It may take the form of a peaceful sit-down strike. It may be something more violent.

Seeing the workers' discontent, the dictator would be forced to make a change. The dictator would transfer the dissenters to another type of employment. Or would he?

Back in 1928, one of the world's most feared dictators, Josef Stalin, ruthlessley forced Russian peasants onto collective farms.

This was done for two reasons. The first was to increase farm production. The second was to force the peasants to lose their individuality.

The peasants reacted in a typically American manner. They wanted to feel freedom and freedom was not in the air of the collective farms.

They resisted.....violently. Nearly one-half of the livestock was destroyed in protest. A "scorched earth" policy was adopted under which many valuable crops were wiped out.

The peasants believed that, through these actions, they would be freed of their bondage. Certainly they would not be permitted to starve.

Stalin proved their anticipated end a miscalculation. During this period, nearly five million died of starvation.

Better Red than dead?

Is there a choice for Americans? —

Liberty and Communism

The Individual and the State

Most doctrines of individualism admit that some compulsion by the state is necessary in order to preserve the rights of one individual against trespass by more aggressive individuals. The state is thus the protector of the individual. But, by means of the same power with which the state shields the individual, it may also oppress him.

By definition, the state is a large group of people, occupying definite territory, organized under a government, and possessing sovereignty and independence. Government is the organ of the state for social control. Sovereignty is the power of the state to enforce its will within the borders of the state. The will of the state is expressed in law.

All of these definitions indicate that the power of the state is vast. Nevertheless, in a modern democracy the government is bound by constitutional or fundamental law ratified by the people or their popularly elected representatives. Ordinary laws or statutes are enacted by legislatures chosen by the people. It is the people who in the final analysis control the reins of government.

The U. S. Constitution contains a Bill of Rights guaranteeing the rights of individuals. All of these safeguards are in the interest of the individual. Nevertheless, there is wide divergence of opinion as to the extent that government, within its constitutional limitations, should curtail the liberties of individuals in the interest of all the people or society as a whole.

Where is the dividing line between the liberty of the citizen and the supreme authority of the state? This conflict is one of the oldest problems of mankind. It appears again and again throughout the history of civilization, from the Greek city-

The Judge Says . . .

Always Read the Contract!

Often this office is faced with a problem which begins with an account of a transaction by the complainant, "some time ago I bought a car. . .". Not all of the fact situations with this prefix end the same, but usually the car was bought on a time payment plan with title in the car reserved in the seller under the terms of a conditional sales contract until the entire balance is paid.

PRACTICALLY all conditional sales contracts contain identical or similar provisions for title retention by the seller (or the assignee of the contract; usually a finance company), right of seller to declare the entire amount payable in event of any one default in payments by buyer, and right to retake the automobile and sell at private or public sale in the event the car is repossessed and the entire amount is not paid.

In the state of Georgia the vendor may repossess without legal process, i.e., notice and a judicial sale, if the contract so provides — practically all conditional sales contracts so provide.

IF THE buyer defaults in payments, the owner of contract who retains title in the vehicle for security purposes may retake the vehicle and sell it according to the terms of the contract to the highest bidder. After deducting finance and insurance rebates, along with the amount received at the resale, from the purchase price he may then assess a deficiency against the original buyer.

Such a deficiency is collectable, and in the event of an action on the contract by the seller or assignee of the seller, such amount may be reduced to a judgment.

IN ORDER to obviate becoming involved in a deficiency assessment always seek experienced legal consultation when you first "smell a rat", whether it is apparent at the time of purchase, at the time of assignment by the dealer to the finance company, or at the time you supposedly are in default under the contract.

One of the most common partial defenses to a deficiency is attacking the validity or legality of the resale by the repossessor. The seller, at the resale, is burdened by law with obtaining the highest possible price for the vehicle in order to mitigate or reduce any deficiency.

He is not expected to obtain the "retail market value" but is expected to obtain the "fair market value." If price obtained is so low as to be unjust, the buyer is entitled to have the actual value offset against the deficiency.

FINALLY, read the contract! Question the seller as to any provision about which you are in doubt or if there is an oral agreement different from that as appears in writing, then get the deviation from the original contract in writing.

Always demand a copy of the original contract you sign and never sign a contract in blank. The law presumes a man reads and knows that which he signs; therefore, always be sure the provisions, especially pertaining to financial terms, are completely filled in before you sign and request a copy.

In 1960 National Election

Almost Half Were Too Busy, Too Lazy, Too Unconcerned

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Under the Constitution, American citizens are granted privileges which are put to full advantage by some, neglected by others, occasionally abused by a few. The greatest, most meaningful of these privileges is the secret ballot, the safeguard of our way of life. Elections will be held across the country this year for many important national, state and local offices, as well as on countless civil issues. Military personnel, regardless of their station and distance from their home precinct, are eligible to cast votes through absentee balloting. Elections have been won and lost in the counting of these absentee ballots. They are important to the individual and to the nation. The following is a message written by Pfc Ernest N. Vanover of the 184th Army Security Agency Company that won the Valley Forge Patriots Award in 1960. In the message, Pfc Vanover indicates his realization of the significance of his single ballot. We should all speak so nobly.)

"From our small Army post in Germany there is a long and a short way to meet the enemy. The shortest way is by tank. It takes only 15 minutes for a tank to travel from here to the border of Communist-controlled East Germany — or to come here from the border.

"The long way is through the mail, across 4,000 miles to the United States, by absentee ballot. Everyone I know here who is eligible will be voting in November. Our position has helped to strip us of the American's infamous complacence. But we have also learned that a country can have other enemies than armies and tanks. Coming here from the states, the recruit expects somehow to find a completely different land. It isn't. The farms remind him of those at home. The cities have been reconstructed in an American image. We used to say, "It can't happen here!" about our country. But this place reminds us of America and it did happen here! First the Nazis and now the Communist threat. No, we don't have to be convinced of the privilege of voting! But do our countrymen, beyond the illusory buffer of the Atlantic, share our feelings — our sense of urgency?

"We wonder when we read that almost half the eligible voters were too busy, too lazy, too unconcerned to go to the polls in the last national election. Or again when we see a magazine article on the American's moral perplexity with his "burden of freedom." It wasn't too long ago that the Germans were saying the same thing. Who needed to be free when he could have Hitler? A recent parallel is Russian composer Dmitri Shostakovich sneering at the "orgy of individualism" in the West. Americans who encourage similar sentiments do indeed have freedom. The men who wrote the Constitution knew it. They conceived that we would be "at liberty" to believe, to speak, to publish and finally to vote. They didn't fight for the cause of apathy.

"Then what is this "burden of freedom?" It is only the burden to be a productive human being with the inevitable result that such a person will serve his country.

"We, as soldiers are only the nation's physical strength. The heart and head to direct us must come from home. The enemy knows it and over there, across the border, they're waiting for us to stop acting and thinking freely. But if that happened, our own tanks and guns would be useless, because no Army could save us from ourselves.

"That's why I'll vote in November. It may not make much difference to (the candidates) but it will make a difference to me. In the ritual of voting I will affirm my faith in an institution which I am willing to fight for and thankful to live under."

46 Per Cent of Old Records Fall During '62 Third Army Matches

Sixteen of 32 pistol records were broken during the 1962 Third Army Rifle and Pistol Championships held here April 10-21.

Lt. Col. Burton C. Boatright, match director, said more Third Army commands fired this year than in any other year, breaking 46 per cent of all existing records.

He said 600 shooters registered for the 1859 matches, 684 in 1960, and 723 last year against the 1962 mark of 759.

In individual matches 14 of 19 records fell. Pfc Rexford V. Baker of Headquarters, XVIII Corps, Fort Bragg, accounted for five of the smashes.

Timed-Fire Match

The National Guardsman from Auburn, Mass., set records in the .22 caliber timed-fire match with a 200-15x out of a possible 200-20x, exceeding the old record by one "X."

Baker went on to shoot a 298-16X out of 300-30X in the center fire combination slow-timed and rapid fire match, bettering the old score by three "X's."

In the center fire times-fire match, he blasted a 200-12X score out of 200-20X, going over the old record of 199-10X.

Over the center fire National Match course, Baker blistered his targets for a 296-13X out of 300-30X, smashing the old record of 291-11X.

His final record came in the center fire aggregate match where he accumulated an 876-36X out of 900-90X, bettering the old record by 14 points, 36 "X's."

82nd Scores

Sfc John Lingle, from the 82nd Airborne Division, accumulated a record 2510-120X in the individual grand aggregate match to better his own record of 1598-86X set in the 1960 Third Army competition.

He also set records in the .22 caliber aggregate match with an 888-45X score, exceeding the old record of 882-34X and in the .45 caliber National Match course with a 294-14X, adding three points and four X's" to that record.

In team firing the 82nd Airborne Division and the 101st Airborne Division broke records in the three team matches.

The 82nds Blue Team, led by record-breaker Lingle, fired a 116-53X over the .22 caliber National Match course to smash the old standing record of 1151-36X.

The "Screaming Eagles" Black Team, anchored by Sfc Harold Wilson, blasted out a 1147-44X. The old record was 1134-26X.

Othe record breakers were Sfc Barry W. Slack of the 101st in the .22 caliber slow fire with a 194-06X, bettering the old record of 190-06X; Sgt. Jacob Scott of The Infantry Center, who fired a 200-14X in the .22 caliber rapid fire course event to add eight "X's" to the record, and Sfc Harold R. Wilson of the 101st, who shot a 298-15X score in the Camp Perry short course to go over the old record by one point and one "X."

Capt. Paul R. Bloxom of the 2nd Infantry Division fired a 190-04X over the .45 caliber slow fire course to beat the old record of 189-06X.

MSgt Dave R. Bullington and Sgt. Howard W. Gulliksen of the 101st set records in the .45 caliber timed fire match and the .45 caliber rapid fire match, respectively. Bullington fired 199-11X to add two "X's" to the record and Gulliksen added one point to the rapid fire match record.

The Infantry Center's Infantry Trophy Rifle Team smashed the Third Army record for the Infantry Trophy rifle course to win the coveted award for the third successive year.

The eight-man team, under guidance of MSgt Hollis Nolan, 1st Infantry Brigade, posted 1,068 points over the combat-type course to raise the Third Army record by 160 points.

The 82nd Airborne teams posted 963 and 888, respectively, in an attempt to continue domination of Third Army's 1962 Rifle and Pistol Championships but were stopped by the "Doughboy" team.

The 82nd started off the championships by literally "cleaning up" automatic rifle firing, winning both individual crowns in rifle and pistol competition, two rifle team events and one pistol team match.

In addition to Lingle clinching the 1962 individual pistol championship, Sfc Arial Gapol of the 82nd annexed the big rifle crown with a record-breaking 883-79V, and the 82nd's Rifle Team "X" walked off with the Third Army Commanding General's Rifle Team Trophy when it produced a winning total of 1437-80V.

82nd Upset

A second major upset of 82nd plans to sweep the matches occured when Fort Bragg's post team slid into the winner's circle in the Third Army Commander's pistol team event.

The win was snatched from the grasp of the 82nd Blue Team by the Fort Bragg team, whose 1103-17X was surpassed by the 1113-30X of the Fort Bragg club.

The paratroopers' Blue Team also saw the center fire team championship go to the 101st for a winning 1147-44X by their Black Team, and bad to settle for .22 caliber team honors in the way of team wins.

Sgt. Lingle won four first places, five seconds and two thirds out of 15 individual events entered to win the 1962 crown.

Runner-up Sfc Barry Slack was the only other competitor out of over 300 to break the 2,600 level.

The 101st marksman added up a grand total of 2599-100X to also surpass the old match mark but fell a single point short of equaling Lingle's effort.

Slack took in one first-place, three seconds and two third-place awards on the way to runner-up position.

Third place in the grand aggregate of pistol competition was filed by Baker. The young Reservist pressured the veteran Lingle-Slack combination throughout the week, shooting a total of 2,599-97X.

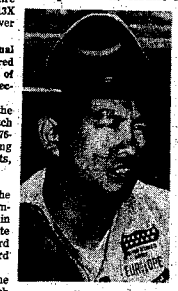
A record-smashing 883-79V grand aggregate score by Gapol exceeded the old Third Army mark by one point and the score of runner-up Sgt John P. Kingete of Fort Jackson, by six points. Second Lt. Ivan W. Flowers, 2nd Infantry Division, won third rifle aggregate award with 875-62V.

"In 1959 our Third Army shooters were able to break but 27 per cent of existing match records due to adverse weather conditions," Col. Boatright said, "but average conditions the past two seasons have been 42 and 43 per cent, respectively, of all marks which fell, while this year 46 per cent of winning scores will go into Third Army marksmanship annals."

Make Debut

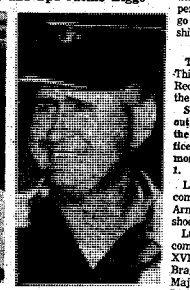
Two commands making their Third Army match debut were Redstone Arsenal, Ala., and the Mississippi National Guard.

Still another mark pointed out by the match director was the presence of 13 general officers at colorful closing ceremonies April 21 at Theater No. 1.



Lt. Gen. T. J. H. Trapnell, commanding general of Third Army, addressed guests and shooters and presented awards.

Lt. Gen. Hamilton H. Howze, commanding general of the XVIII Airborne Corps and Fort Bragg, attended along with Major Gen. Charles W. G. Rich, commanding general of the 101st and Fort Campbell; Major Gen. Charles H. Chase, commanding general of the 2nd Infantry Division; Major Gen. Ethan A. Chapman, commanding general of the XII Army Reserve Corps, Atlanta; Major Gen. Theodore J. Conway, commanding general of the 82nd, and Major Gen. Ben Harrell, commanding general of The Infantry Center and commandant of The Infantry School.



Brig. Gen. C. E. Johnson, director of Foreign Intelligence Offices, Department of the Army; Brig. Gen. Richard J. Meyer, commanding general of the Army Signal Corps Training Center, Fort Gordon, Ga.; Brig. Gen. Edward F. Penaat, commanding general, Provost Marshal Center, Fort Gordon; Brig. Gen. Warren R. Williams, Jr., commandant of the Army Aviation School, Fort Rucker, Ala.; Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly, deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, and Brig. Gen. Royal Reynolds, Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School.

Ladies of Orientation Course Officers Briefed

Student officer's wives of Infantry Officer Orientation Course class 13, 2nd Student Battalion, The Student Brigade, were introduced to the post's social side recently with a welcoming tea.

Included in the itinerary for the women was a short bus tour of the more prominent areas of the post. The tour was conducted by 1st Lt. David H. Harris, Detachment 22 commander.

Guests of honor at the morning gathering were Mrs. Richard W. Keyes, Mrs. Otto R. Koch, Mrs. Lowell W. Hesser and Mrs. John H. Ramsburg. Lt. Col. Vern L. Joseph, 2nd Student Battalion commander, welcomed the 29 women in attendance with a short speech. Welcoming notes were also extended by Mrs. Joseph, Mrs. Arthur J. Estes and Lt. Harris.

Refreshments were served the student officer's wives around a floral piece garnished with yellow chrysanthemums and daffodils.

At its conclusion, the ladies were given a brief summary of the type of training their husbands would receive during the orientation course. The ladies were made aware of the essential roll an Army wife plays in the successful completion of any task their husbands may be assigned.

Jan Rose's Woman's Club Diary

If you haven't already done so, pick up the phone and call the Supper Club for reservations for May 3. That is the night the cast of "La Compagnie", the original musical satire presented by the club at the April Luncheon, will do a repeat performance. If you attended the luncheon, you will want to bring your husband along and let him enjoy the plight of we poor wives. If you missed the performance then, don't miss it this time. It is clever, quick, and the bit of the program year. There is no cover charge, so call the Supper Club now for reservations.

A pre-registration for the Fall 1962 term of the Pre-Kindergarten School will be held on May 9 at the school, Building 1182. If you have a child who will be three by September 15, you are encouraged to enroll him now and avoid disappointment. Mrs. Jack Murray, principal, will be happy to discuss the program of the school with you, or you may visit this fine nursery school any morning from 9-11 a.m. Call 545-2217 for further information.

The May Champagne Brunch and Installation of the new 1962-63 board will be held on Wednesday, May 16, at the Country Club. Plan now to attend this gala event. (Have you ever had champagne before lunch before?)

Don't forget the Art Show this Sunday, April 29, at the Country Club from 2-5 p.m. The public is invited.

Variety-Minstrel Show Is Tonight

"Ship Wrecked Showboat", a variety and minstrel show sponsored by the Muscogee Chapter of the American Business Women's Association, will be presented at the Columbus High School Auditorium tonight at 8 o'clock.

Proceeds go to a scholarship fund. Prices are adults, $1 — students, 50 cents.

May Opens 1962 Army Bond Drive

Fort Benning personnel will be asked to "Underwrite Your Country's Might" by purchasing or subscribing to U. S. Savings Bonds during May.

A "kick-off" meeting at Theater 1 at 9 a.m. next Wednesday will initiate the 1962 Army Savings Bond Drive.

Principal speaker at the meeting will be Col. Milton G. Schneider, adjutant general of The Infantry Center.

Attending the meeting will be bond drive officials, field chairmen and canvassers from major units and staff sections.

A person-to-person canvass of military and civilian employees will be conducted on the post from May 1 to 31.

The canvass has been planned to support "The Freedom Bond Drive" announced by the Treasury Department for 1962.

Post officials hope to enroll employees in the payroll savings plan for purchasing bonds and to encourage those already enrolled to increase their bond allotments.

Officers and civilians assigned to academic departments of The Infantry School or special or staff sections of The Infantry Center will be canvassed on the job.

Officers assigned to duty with troops and all enlisted personnel will be canvassed by their units.

Units reaching a high percentage of participation in the drive will be eligible for awards including the Secretary of the Army's U. S. Savings Bond citation; U. S. Treasury Minute Man Awards; Third Army special citations; Bond citations.

The Treasury Department will award Minute Man flags to installations that meet certain participation requirements in the drive.

Lt. Col. Howard F. Mumford, assistant adjutant general of The Infantry Center will serve as general canvass chairman for the post drive. Assistant general canvass chairman will be 1st Lt. Richard D. Taylor, chief of Personal Affairs, Adjutant General Section.

Frank Spear, supervisor of Special Projects, Civilian Personnel Section, will be assistant general chairman for civilian employees.

Profile of A Man Doing A Man's Job

MSgt (E-8) Edward Cockburn has more than proven that he was worthy of his promotion from private to master sergeant. It was not a usual promotion. He made it in two years, ten months.

Though the promotion came during the Korean War, Sgt. Cockburn worked hard for it and has been working just as hard ever since.

Today Sgt. Cockburn is senior instructor in The Infantry School's Ranger Department and non-commissioned officer in charge of the Combat Conditioning Committee.

Though he has his share of paper work to turn out, Sgt. Cockburn spends hours in the field with Ranger trainees. He instructs the trainees in hand-to-hand combat, physical training, patrolling, demolitions and the confidence course.

Described by his superiors as an "outstanding" trooper, Sgt. Cockburn is just that in an Army film entitled "Ranger."

In this film he plays a principal role, depicting the different phases of Ranger training from the start to the finish of the nine-week course. The film is shown all Ranger trainees, was once aired over television on the Army's "The Big Picture," and is available to civilian groups.

Sgt. Cockburn also serves as narrator in the demonstration, "Rangers in Action," which is put on for dignitaries visiting on post.

Speaking of the Ranger program, the Cleveland, Tenn., native says, "It's the best training a small unit leader can get....there's no doubt about it. When they leave us the students are far ahead of their contemporaries.

"I wish I had had Ranger training before Korea. There's just no substitute for it."

Distinguished Visitors At Fort Benning

Lt. Col. J. F. Temple-Bird, a member of the Defense Research Staff, Great Britain, arrived at the post Wednesday for briefings on post and Infantry School activities and recent developments. He is scheduled to depart today.

Seven Austrian Army officers also arrived o nWednesday, for a three-day visit. They are Lt. Col. Herbert Mueller-Eiblein, inspector of engineers; Lt. Col. Rudolf Seyrl, commander of Infantry Battalion 21; Lt. Col. Karl Schulmeister, commander of Artillery Battalion 1.

Lt. Col. Anton Preissler, commander of the Army Signal Battalion; Lt. Col. Johann Grabner, commander of Signal Battalion 1; Major Friederick Offenhuber, commander of an Army engineer battalion, and Major Helmuth Demel, commandant of the Tank Battalion School Battalion. The Austrians are observing demonstrations and being briefed on Infantry School subjects, and will next visit Fort Jackson.

Nine Allied officers from the Guatemalan Army received a firsthand view of training here last week.

Headed by Col. Solomon Villegas Rodas, a brigade commander, the group departed the post last Saturday.

HONOR GRADUATE . . . Officer Candidate James R. Dickensheet, (L) is presented the Erickson Award for being named honor graduate of the National Guard and Army Reserve officer candidate class 1. The Erickson Award is named for Major Gen. Edgar C. Erickson, former chief of the National Guard Bureau, Washington, D.C. Presenting the award is Major Gen. Henry F. McMillan, commander of the 51st Infantry Division, National Guard, Jacksonville, Fla.

Top Honors Won By Field Hospital

The Third Field Hospital took the unit trophy in Organization Day competition at the 428th Medical Battalion recently.

To break a tie between The Third Field Hospital and the 129th Medical Company, a tug of war contest was held. The Field unit managed to win the event which have them top honors of the day.

The events were staged before a crowd of over a thousand military and their dependents.

Gen. Kelly Speaks To Management Association Group

Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly, deputy commanding general of The Infantry Center, was the guest speaker at a luncheon meeting of the Fort Benning Chapter of the Armed Forces Management Association Wednesday.

He spoke on "Management Viewpoints" at the meeting in the Custer Terrace Branch of the Main Officers' Open Mess.

The Surgeon Says:

Eye Protection Prevents Injuries

By Capt. Leonard F. Greenberg, MC

The ability to use one's vision effectively and with safety depends, to a very large extent, on a person's visual capacity and on the lighting in his environment.

Visual efficiency can be increased by periodic vision-screening to evaluate visual skills, and referral of those with defective vision for professional corrective care.

Other steps to be taken in improving visual efficiency are the determination of job-vision requirements, proper job placement, and the correction of environmental deficiencies.

The prevention of eye injury is much more profitable than its treatment by any known medical or surgical means. What would be an insignificant injury elsewhere in the body may immediately, or after a series of developments, result in the total loss of vision in one or both eyes.

Wherever and whenever an operation or activity is classified as eye hazardous, protective eye glasses should be used.

Mechanics with their hammers and chisels, operators of power tools of all descriptions, and even some office employees whose work brings them into hazardous areas should be protected against flying particles by safety glasses.

A program is presently being conducted by the Preventive Medicine Division, Martin Army Hospital, on eye protection. The program entails screening of all personnel on post, both military and civilian, who work in eye hazardous areas.

A survey has been conducted on post of all jobs, and a standard assigned to each job. A man who works, for example, as an inspector which requires close inspection needs greater visual ability than a laborer.

When an employee does not meet the visual standard necessary for the performance of his duty, he is referred for professional eye examination. Safety glasses, whether plain or prescription, are then given to the employee free of charge. After all personnel have been examined initially, they will be re-examined every two years.

In order to obtain utmost protection, the glasses must be worn during the entire working day. Danger exists to the individual by being present in an area in which hazardous work is being done, even if he is not the one doing it. "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

EYE PROTECTION is the key word in the post's latest safety project. Being fitted for case-hardened glasses is William H. Kent, a civilian auto mechanic. He is one of 20 civilian employees recently provided with safety glasses which will shatter but not break when hit. Sfc Robert B. Hodges, non-commissioned officer in charge of Martin Army Hospital's Eye Clinic, adjusts the special glasses.

SCORING HIGH in CBR classes were (L to R) SSgt. John Kinsky, 50th Medical Company, and Sp4 Kenneth O. New, 216th Medical Company, both of the 428th Medical Battalion. Both men finished second in their classes. Sgt. Kinsky is a senior aidman and Sp4 New is a medical technician.

Barbara Hare's Report Card...

Excitement is in the air Many Benning seniors have been accepted at colleges located throughout the United States. In the fall of '62, they will enter the Freshman classes of the colleges of their choices.

Many of the seniors have chosen colleges and universities in the southern part of our country. Wallis McClain, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. W. E. McClain, will attend Vanderbilt University which is located in Nashville, Tennessee.

Kay Jones, Gerri Paulick, and Marsha Nattage plan to enter Auburn University in Alabama. Kay's parents are Major and Mrs. D. F. Jones. Gerri is the daughter of Col. and Mrs. M. Paulick, and Marsha is the daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. P. E. Nottage.

Also claiming Alabama schools are Don Rachel, Bonnie Male, Ted Cleary and Tomps Gray. Don, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. D. W. Rachel will attend Marion Military Institute. Sacred Heart is Bonnie's choice. She is the daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. C. E. Male. Tomps Gray, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. C. Gray, will enroll in the University of Alabama. Spring Hill College will claim Ted Cleary, son of Sfc and Mrs. J. Cleary.

Another southern state will be considered "home" for three Benningites next year. Barbara Hare, Paul Clifford, and Walter Todd have been accepted at the University of South Carolina in Columbia. Walter is the son of Col. and Mrs. W. B. Todd, and Paul is the son of Col. and Mrs. P. T. Clifford. Barbara's parents are Major and Mrs. J. F. Hare.

Colleges located in Texas are the choices of several seniors. Joe Ely, son of Major and Mrs. K. T. Ely, will attend Texas A&M. Texas Christian is Karen Lincoln's choice. Karen's parents are Sfc and Mrs. N. H. Lincoln. Donna Davis has been accepted at Incarnate Ward in San Antonio. Donna is the daughter of Lt. and Mrs. C. H. Davis. Galle McClain, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. J. W. McClain, is going to North Texas State University.

Chris Youngs, Mary Mike Magner, Mike Taylor and Mike Busch are going south. Mike, the son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. N. E. Taylor, is going to the University of Mississippi. Chris, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. E. R. Youngs, and Mike, son of Major and Mrs. C. A. Busch, plan to enroll in the University of Florida. Mary Mike is going to attend Barry College in Miami. Her parents are Major and Mrs. G. J. Magner.

Roger Wein, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. J. C. Wein, has been accepted at Belmont-Abbey in North Carolina. Tommy Monahan's choice is the University of Maryland. Tommy's parents are Major and Mrs. F. T. Monahan.

Paula Heidt, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. P. W. Heidt, has been accepted at Marion College of Virginia. William and Mary Junior College is Dallas Patterson's choice. He is the son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. D. M. Patterson. Patrick Jones, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. R. K. Jones has chosen the University of Illinois. John Cougill and Ted Franklin are going to the University of Oregon. Ted is the son of Major and Mrs. F. L. Franklin, and John is the son of Col. and Mrs. J. C. Cougill.

Three Benningites are going north for their first year of college. Herb Roberts is going to Cornell University. He is the son of M-Sgt and Mrs. H. J. Roberts. George Birton will attend Middlebury College in Vermont. His parents are Lt. Col. and Mrs. G. T. Britton. Bluefield Junior College is Carry Bagley's choice. Carry's parents are Lt. Col. and Mrs. J. Bagley.

Georgia colleges will enroll many Benningites. David Roberts and Steve Huppert have been accepted at the University of Georgia. David is the son of 1-Sgt. and Mrs. J. Roberts and Steve's parents are Col. and Mrs. G. H. Huppert.

Bill McMonkele will attend North Georgia College. He is the son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. W. D. McMonkele. Jean McLendon and Beverly Chapman are enrolled in St. Francis School of Nursing. Jean is the daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. G. P. McLendon, and Beverly's parents are WO and Mrs. R. H. Chapman. Wayne Mergler, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. V. T. Mergler has chosen Columbus College.

Sgt. Hardin Will Be Featured In TIC Chapel Concert Sunday

There will be a concert of organ music at 7:30 p.m. Sunday at the Infantry Center Protestant Chapel.

Appearing in the concert will be MSgt Frank G. Hardin. His program wil include numbers from Guion, Bach, Bohm, James Weldon Johnson, Green, Tozelli, Hall Johnson, Munro, Kreisler, Tosti and Dvorak.

He will play his own arrangements of "Battle Hymn of the Republic" and "Joshua Fit the Battle of Jericho."

Familiar spirituals he will play include "Swing Low Sweet Chariot," "Deep River," "No Hiding Place Down Here," "My Lord, What a Morning" and "Everytime I Feel the Spirit."

Sgt. Hardin will play "Prayer" by Guion, "Wachet Auf" (Sleepers Awake) by Bach, "Still Wie Die Nacht" (Calm is the Night) by Bohm and "Thema Aus Dem Langsamen" (Going Home) from Dvorak's "New World Symphony."

Also on the program will be "Lift Every Voice and Sing" by James Weldon Johnson, "Sing Me to Sleep" by Green, "Serenade" by Toselli, "Great Getting Up Morning" by Hall Johnson, "My Lovely Celia" by Munro, "Caprice Viennois" by Kreisler and "Goodbye" by Tosti.

The organ Sgt. Hardin will use or the concert was made to order for him. A console electric organ, it is equipped with a special stereophonic tone cabinet and solo bass.

The public is invited to the program.

Sgt. Hardin began his musical career at the age of five in Atlanta, where he was considered a piano prodigy.

His musical education was obtained at Wilson Lamb Studio in Orange, N. J., and Juilliard School of Music in New York City.

Hardin has appeared in concert and on radio throughout the U. S. and overseas.

While stationed in Germany with the Seventh Army, the sergeant had his own radio program on Armed Forces Network. He played at the Refugee Center at Grunewald and appeared frequently under the auspices of the Seventh Army Symphony Orchestra in Stuttgart. He was awarded an Army Commendaton Medal for this service.

Sgt. Hardin was wounded in action in the Pacific Theater during World War II and spent two years in a wheel chair. He also saw action during the Korean conflict.

The concert will be presented under the direction of Mrs. Harold W. Roeder.

SGT. HARDIN

TOP SOLDIER . . . Sp4 Ronald G. Hanks, was recently named as the 58th Infantry Soldier of the Month. Hanks was chosen on the basis of his superior military appearence and knowledge. He is company clerk of Company A, 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry 1st Infantry Brigade. Sp4 Hanks will receive a year subscription to Infantry Magazine.

'MANHATTAN DISTRICT'

The large-scale release of energy by the fission of atomic nuclei — perhaps the most portentous of all humanity's inventions — was first accomplished by the immense organization set up during World War II by the Corps of Army Engineers. It was code-named "Manhattan District."

Amphib Training Starts May 14 on Virginia Coast

87th Inf. Task Force First of Five To Undergo 2-Week Training Period

The Army's newly-designated STRAC 2nd Infantry Division will receive its initial introduction to amphibious operations with the start May 14 of two-week training periods at Little Creek, Virginia.

The amphibious training will be conducted in five increments—with each battle group serving as the nucleus of a task force.

Travel to the Naval Amphibious Base at Little Creek, near Norfolk, Va., will be via motor convoy. The three-day trip will include overnight stops enroute at Fort Gordon, Georgia, and Fort Bragg, North Carolina.

The first battle group to begin training will be the 87th Infantry on May 14. The 87th will be followed on May 28 by the 1st Infantry, with the 23rd Infantry, the 9th Infantry and the 38th Infantry beginning training on June 11, June 25 and July 9, respectively.

Attached to each of the battle groups will be armor, signal, engineer, artillery and aviation support. Headquarters, Division Trains will establish a Division Coordination Detachment for liaison purposes between the Army and the Navy.

Beginning with a three-day basic amphibious course, the training will encompass techniques of embarkation over nets with full combat equipment, debarkation from transports, debarkation at beach, penetration and assault of an enemy-held beach, troop life aboard ship, ship-to-shore movement, and communications.

Training also will be given in Naval gunfire and close air support.

Paralleling this instruction will be training in amphibious planning operations for staff officer personnel.

The two-week training will be culminated by an exercise in which each task force will "hit the beach" in an amphibious assault operation.

At the termination of the training, each battle group will move to nearby Fort Story, Va., vicinity for an administrative bivouac for the weekend before beginning the return trip Monday morning.

The return trip likewise, will include stops at Fort Bragg and Fort Gordon during the three days of travel.

Initial planning for the amphibious training program began this week.

A landing force training unit, composed of Army, Navy and Marine officers, began conducting planning conferences Tuesday with members of the five battle group task forces, principally the 87th Infantry, commanded by Colonel Ralph H. Hughett, and the 1st Infantry, commanded by Colonel Walter B. Todd — the initial units slated for training. Subsequent planning conferences will be held for members of the 23rd Infantry, commanded by Colonel Louis A. Kunzig, the 9th Infantry, commanded by Colonel Clifford P. Hannum, and the 38th Infantry, commanded by Colonel Maurice C. Holden.

The Naval training unit is commanded by Commodore Nelson P. Watkins, commander of Squadron Two, U. S. Atlantic Fleet.

Div Retirees Honored With Min. Review

Sixteen retiring members of the 2nd Infantry Division were honored with a miniature review Wednesday afternoon at division headquarters parade field.

The review, beginning at four o'clock, was observed by representatives of division units and relatives and friends of the retirees.

Representative units of the entire division, with the exception of the 2nd Medium Tank Battalion, 69th Armor, and 3rd Reconnaissance Squadron, 7th Cavalry, participated in the review.

Still Firing

These two units are still undergoing tank firing exercises at Fort Stewart, Georgia, and will not return to Fort Benning till later in the month.

Those retiring included: Major Edward C. Miller, Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment, Division Trains, retiring in the grade of Lieutenant Colonel after more than 20 years service; Captain Henry F. McLaughlin, 1st Howitzer Battalion, 15th Artillery, retiring after more than 20 years service; and Chief Warrant Officer John Lemchak, 702nd Ordnance Battalion, retiring after more than 20 years service.

Senior Non-Coms

Two sergeants major headed the list of retiring enlisted men, including: Sergeant Major Edward W. Fraley, 1st Howitzer Battalion, 15th Artillery, retiring after more than 20 years service; Sergeant Major Archie E. Hatfield, 2nd Battle Group, 1st Infantry, retiring after more than 21 years service; Master Sergeant Billy D. Epps, 3rd Reconnaissance Squadron, 7th Cavalry, retiring with more than 21 years service; Master Sergeant Wiley S. Vinson, 1st Rocket Howitzer Battalion, 12th Artillery, retiring with more than 20 years service; and Platoon Sergeant Theodore D. England, 1st Battle Group, 87th Infantry, retiring with more than 20 years service.

Other retirees included: Staff Sergeant Clarence A. Holton, 1st Howitzer Battalion, 27th Artillery, retiring in the grade of major after more than 20 years service; Sergeant Oliver F. Hamilton, 13th Transportation Battalion, retiring after more

G-5 Section Makes Use Of Reserves

Augmenting the 2nd Infantry Division's staff sections during Exercise Seneca Spear was a G-5 section (Civil Affairs), composed of reservists called to active duty last October at Fort Gordon, Georgia.

Heading the section was Major Martin R. Haskell, a college professor who taught courses in criminology, sociology and juvenile delinquency at City College of New York, New York City.

Section Mission

Major Haskell, whose assignment at Fort Gordon is chief of the legal team of the 302nd Civil Affairs Group, explained that the mission of his section during Exercise Seneca Spear was to represent the division's commanding general in dealing with the civilian population in occupied territory.

He is a veteran of almost nine years active Army service.

Major Haskell's staff was composed of a platoon of the 414th Civil Affairs Company led by Captain Robert A. Larrabee, a veteran of four-and-a-half years' service during World War II. Prior to being called to active duty last year, Capt. Larrabee was the assistant personnel officer of the Canadalgua Veterans Administration Hospital, Canandalgua, N. Y.

Serving as administrative officer was Lieutenant Thomas E. Van Derhoof, a teacher of history and economics at Utica, N. Y.

Enlisted men of the G-5 section included Staff Sergeant Robert J. Moore, a former Utica insurance adjuster; Specialist Five Gergor J. Wilkinson, a Utica civil engineer; Specialist Four Robert L. Pasinella, a plainclothesman of Troy, N. Y., police department, and Private Benjamin F. McLin, a shipping clerk of Mobile, Alabama.

BRIDGING THE SWAMPS . . . One of the most ambitious tasks faced by engineers at Fort Stewart was bridging the vast swamplands. Constructing a panel bridge across a water obstacle here are men of the 114th Engineer Co., a recently-activated National Guard unit from Washington, D. C.

Non-Infantry Types Get A 'Combat' Experience

By 38th Inf PIO

When the hard-pressed Yellow forces needed some men to guard an exposed flank during one of their engagements with the numerically stronger Blue forces during Exercise Spear, a number of 38th Infantry headquarters personnel got their first tastes of maneuver-type combat.

When the afternoon call came out to beef up the flank, in a few minutes' time some three two-and-a-half-ton trucks were loaded with administrative personnel-turned-Infantrymen to support the Yellow forces' cause.

Included in the group were a number of clerks from the personnel section, members of the medical platoon and supply and maintenance platoon, truck drivers and even cooks. was set into a defensive position, some guarding a key bridge, and later were moved into another defensive position.

The threat to the 38th's flank eased later in the evening and finally the headquarters personnel were brought back to their original posts. But for them it amounted to enlivened memories of "combat" in Exercise Seneca Spear.

9th Inf Ups 13 To Specialist 4

Thirteen enlisted men assigned to Combat Support Company, 9th Infantry, have been promoted to the temporary grade of specialist four.

The newly promoted men are Jerry A. Amands, George F. Bailey, Stephen M. Bazur Jr., Douglas Johnson Jr., Larry G. Johnson, Douglas A. Klein, Wilson L. McCullum, Larry H. Millard, Leonard T. Reed, Joseph M. Roberts, James W. Roberts, Edward N. Sandell and J. T. Smith.

Quiet, Stillness Prevail Before River Crossing

By George Hord

It was quiet as the sun poked over the horizon and felt its way into the mist and smoke surrounding the North bridge site of the Canoochee River.

And there was little going on.

At Bridge Site

On our drive out to the bridge site that morning, we saw a smoke generator machine in operation and a few men at outposts with eyes trained toward the river. There was also the scent of tear gas in the air.

An umpire team, composed of personnel of the 82nd Airborne Division, had a small fire going at the bridge site trying to combat the early morning river chill. They, too, had little to report.

We crossed the bridge only to observe more quiet and stillness. It appeared that Exercise Seneca Spear had ended and the 2nd Infantry Division had returned to Fort Benning

But this was not so.

No sooner had we crossed the bridge when the "war" resumed.

A company of the 23rd Infantry emerged from the woods and boarded assault boats piloted by men of the 2nd Engineer Battalion.

As they started across, a Blue force tank opened up with machine gun and cannon, providing protective cover for the Infantrymen's maneuver across the river.

Overhead helicopters carried Blue force personnel and jeeps with mounted 106 recoilless rifles to an area in Yellow territory secured the night before.

Met By Fire

The Blue assault was met by tank-Infantry fire from the Yellow forces and Seneca Spear moved into its final six hours of exercise play.

Dump trucks loaded with foot bridge equipment moved into the area and the engineer platoon of the 23rd Infantry's Headquarters Company began their job of spanning the Canoochee River.

In another area at the site, the Division's 2nd Engineer Battalion began moving up huge pneumatic pontoons to build a raft, later to be used in floating heavy equipment across the river.

And at still another location, a National Guard unit, the 114th Engineer Company from Washington, D. C., began construction of a panel bridge.

The men and equipment of the Blue forces began crossing the Canoochee River.

Later in the day the site was visited by Lieutenant General T. J. H. Trapnell, Third United State Army commander, and his party along with Major General Charles H. Chase, exercise director and 2nd Infantry Division commanding general and Deputy Exercise Director, Colonel Maurice C. Holden.

A briefing was held by Lieutenant Colonel Edwin T. O'Donnell, commanding officer of the 2nd Engineer Battalion, and Captain Arthur S. Welch, commander of the 114th Engineer Company.

Lt. D. R. Turner Assumes Duties As 7th Cav S-1

By 7th Cavalry PIO

Lieutenant Donald R. Turner, the former executive officer of Troop B, 7th Cavalry, was recently assigned as the assistant S-1 of the squadron.

Lt. Turner will assume many of the S-1 duties since Capt. Johns, the S-1, is on temporary duty at Shaw Air Force Base.

Lt. Turner has been with "Garry Owen" since May 1960 when he was assigned to the 7th Cavalry after attending the Armor Officers' Basic Course at Fort Knox, Kentucky. During Lt. Turner's tour with the Cavalry he was assigned as a platoon leader in Troop A, as liaison officer of the squadron and executive officer of Troop B.

The lieutenant is married and has one child. He and his wife reside on the post.

At Seneca Spear

1st Inf. Gains 'Wealth of Training Tactics'

By 1st Infantry PIO

The 1st Infantry returned last week from Fort Stewart, Georgia, with a wealth of training tactics under its belt.

The "Always First" unit traveled by motor convoy to Fort Stewart for Exercise Seneca Spear, the division-size exercise.

'Realistic'

The realistic training saw the men of the 1st Infantry choke through the numerous gas attacks as they went on the defense and offense, protected the banks of the Canoochee River, "broke camp" many times and made a river crossing during the mass advance of the division units the last day of the exercise.

The direct support units of engineer, ordnance, artillery and signal completed the large task force unit.

Tanks of the 69th Armor were also attached to the battle group. As in actual combat the tanks and Infantry moved forward to engage and destroy the enemy.

Handicapped by the limited road systems, the 1st Infantry men were forced many times to maneuver the mud and swamps on foot.

Being matched against elements of the 38th Infantry and Brigade Headquarters the men of the battle group experienced many situations on the unfamiliar terrain. A Special Forces team from Fort Bragg, North Carolina, set up guerrilla operations to harass the troops.

A 1st Infantry patrol advanced deep into the enemy lines and found the guerrilla headquarters. Taken by surprise the guerrillas fled the camp. The patrol confiscated radios, sleeping bags and weapons. But they left a carton of C-rations with a note—"furnished by the 1st Infantry."

The exercise did not lack all the comforts of barracks life. The men were allowed to visit the shower point, a Post Exchange truck visited the troops as the tactical situation allowed and an administrative intermission was called for Palm Sunday services.

The services were attended by both Blue force and Yellow force personnel, bringing the two forces together for the only time during the exercise.

The 1st Infantry returned to Kelley Hill by convoy.

9th Officer Returning to Sp'l Forces

By 9th Infantry PIO

Lieutenant Roland Greenwood will depart the 9th Infantry to rejoin Special Forces at Fort Bragg, N. C.

Presently assigned to the 9th's Headquarters Company as the executive officer, Lieutenant Greenwood will depart for Fort Bragg, early next week.

The 30-year-old Manchu officer entered the Army in August of 1951 and was then assigned to Fort Knox, Ky., for basic Infantry training. Upon completion of "basic," Lieutenant Greenwood was assigned to the 10th and later the 77th Special Forces Units.

Upon release from the army in early 1954, he entered the U. S. Navy, where he served for two years and reenlisted in the Army soon after discharge. After completing "basic" once more, Lieutenant Greenwood was again assigned to the 7th Special Forces. After completing another two-year tour with that unit, Lieutenant (then Sergeant First Class) Greenwood entered the Infantry Officers' Candidate School here at Fort Benning.

After graduating, he was assigned to the 9th Infantry's Company C as a platoon leader.

The lieutenant lists judo as his favorite sport. He and his family reside at Fort Benning's Custer Terrace.

Nurses on Duty With Mobile Unit

"Oh, nurse."

That wasn't an unfamiliar call on Exercise Seneca Spear.

There were four nurses in the field with the 2nd Division, serving with the 916th Surgical Hospital (Mobile Army), a reserve unit from Little Rock, Arkansas.

The unit was called up last October and has been training at Fort Jackson, South Carolina.

Hospital's Mission

The mission of the hospital, according to Lieutenant Colonel Nicholas W. Riegler Jr., is "to take care of non-transportable medical and surgical patients and to prepare them for evacuation."

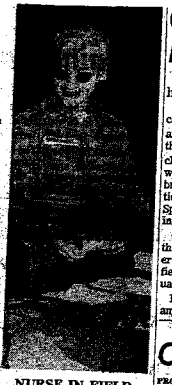
At Fort Jackson the hospital unit has been training in its mission and supporting that post's hospital, Col. Riegler said.

Although the 916th is set up to do major surgery in the field, the first few days of Exercise Seneca Spear saw only about 10 patients with non-serious ailments report for treatment. These were mostly sprained wrists and lacerations, Col. Riegler said.

Col. Riegler organized the reserve hospital unit and has commanded it since its inception in 1954. In civilian life the commander is a general practitioner in Little Rock. During the Korean War, he served with the 1st Cavalry Division.

Served With 2nd

Another member of the unit served with the "Indianhead" division during the Korean Conflict. He is Sergeant First Class Bill Maddox, whose civilian occupation is a Civil Service personnel classifier.



SFC Maddox's duty in Korea was with the 38th Infantry, first in the infantry and then in the medical company. During this period, he was awarded the Silver Star.

The personnel complement of the 916th supporting the division on Exercise Seneca Spear consisted of four doctors, the nurses, three Medical Service Corps officers, one warrant officer and 70 enlisted men.

They staffed an operating room, an X-ray room, the laboratory facilities, the 60-bed hospital, and the unit's troop support facilities.

Col. Riegler said that since a surgical hospital is such a highly specialized unit it is necessary for personnel to be cross-trained in tasks other than their specialty. Hence, lab technicians are called upon to be truck drivers and to pitch tents.

Another tie-in to the 2nd Infantry Division is that Captain Paul Osborne, prior to his assignment as the maintenance officer in the division's G-4 (Supply and Logistics) section, served as unit advisor to the 916th Surgical Hospital in Little Rock.

Div Surgeon Keeps Vigil From Above

Traveling in a "flying hospital" proved to be a unique experience for the division's flight surgeon.

While the majority of the division troops moved via motor convoy along the 240-mile route to Fort Stewart, Captain Richard S. Colvin maintained a nearby vigil in an H-34 helicopter.

His job: to be close at hand to lend medical assistance should an accident occur.

2nd Aviation Company L-19 aircraft constantly scoured the highways from aloft, with instructions to summon Captain Colvin's "flying hospital" should medical attention seem necessary.

The "flying hospital," said Captain Colvin, contained four litters and adequate medical supplies to offer immediate medical aid. The "choppers" would be prepared, he pointed out, to expedite an accident victim to the nearest medical facility.

Fortunately, however, Captain Colvin's services were never required.

The convoys completed the arduous trek to the south Georgia military reservation without incident.

Chaplain's Section Sees Less Problems in Field

Does a soldier leave his personal problems at home when he goes to the field?

"This is a moot point," according to Chaplain (Lieutenant Colonel) James H. Fiser, the Seneca Spear Maneuver chaplain. "However, there were fewer personal problems brought to the Chaplain's section during Exercise Seneca Spear than in a typical period in garrison."

Chaplain Fiser further stated that, "There seems to be fewer personal problems in all field problems or combat situations."

In addition to taking care of any moral or morale problems, Chaplain Fiser and the rest of the Chaplain's section were concerned with "playing the problem." In coordinating all of the chaplains' activities, Chaplain Fiser assigned all of his chaplains to the opposing "Blue" and "Yellow" forces. Each chaplain was responsible for a defined area, while Chaplain Fiser made daily visitations to each force.

Palm Sunday services were held for all of the troops in the field at 8 a.m. - 11 a.m. on April 15.

EIB Results Told by CO

A total of 125 members of the 87th Infantry recently received their awards for successful completion of the Expert Infantryman's Badge test.

Battle Group Commander Colonel Ralph H. Hughett presented the coveted awards in a battle group formation at the Conqueror's parade field. Accepting the badges were the company commanders who in turn presented the awards to members of their commands.

Combat Support Company, with 22, was the highest in the battle group.

Those who distinguished themselves by passing the test on the first try were Lts. Jesse Dumas, Robert Lowry, Bobbie Chavis, Arthur Ullman, Leroy Jones, Sergeant Lon Skolek, Specialist Arnulfo Arcos, and Privates First Class William Fitzpatrick and John Flannigan.

23rd Infantry Bivouacs At Sand Hill (Cemetery)

By 23rd Infantry PIO

Some of the spice of war games is the occurrence of coincidental happenings, and while the 23rd Infantry was participating in Exercise Seneca Spear last week at Fort Stewart, Georgia, it had the opportunity to experience this.

After completing the 11-hour convoy trek across the state, the Headquarters Company and Command Post section found themselves encamped — of all places — around Sand Hill, Sand Hill Cemetery, that is.

Final Resting Place

The burial plot is the final resting place of members of the once-active Mount Pleasant Methodist Church. However, in 1941 when the Army purchased the land now known as Fort Stewart, the church and its cemetery were located smack inside the new military reservation. As a result the church building was torn down, and the Army took over the maintenance of the cemetery.

Sand Hill Cemetery is just that. It's located atop a slight rise of yellow sand surrounded by flats of black earth and swamps. The graveyard contains fewer than a hundred tombstones and is flanked on three sides by giant, moss-covered oaks.

And it was here that the 23rd's Command Post remained for the field problem. Lieutenant Colonel John V. Swango, battle group executive officer, was in command of the 23rd while the battle group commander, Colonel Louis A. Kunzig, Jr., served as commander of the Yellow forces.

Sgt. L. Loper Leaving 9th For Korea

By 9th Infantry PIO

The 9th Infantry this week bids farewell to one of its top non-commissioned officers, First Sergeant Lesco G. Loper of Combat Support Company. He leaves for duty in Korea.

A combat veteran of World War II and Korea, Sergeant Loper has been assigned to the Manchu unit since November of 1960. His first enlistment was in August of 1942 and by December of that same year Sergeant Loper was in Alaska to launch his military career.

Served with 103rd

During the period 1944 and 1945, Sergeant Loper was assigned to the 103rd Infantry Division in the European Theater. He was wounded in the Rhineland Campaign, and received the Purple Heart and the Combat Infantryman's Badge.

After the Rhineland, Sergeant Loper worked mostly in the Army's reenlistment programs and was presented several awards for high reenlistment ratings.

With the eruption of the Korean Conflict, Sergeant Loper found himself making his first combat jump as a member of the 187th Airborne Regimental Combat Team.

He was wounded in the Battle of Inchon and received his second Purple Heart and the second award of the Combat Infantryman's Badge.

Upon returning to the States, Sergeant Loper was assigned to his home town, Laurel, Miss., as a recruiting sergeant.

Sergeant Loper, his wife Catherine, and their three children reside at Fort Benning.

The four-week course consisted of classes on the nomenclature of the weapon, firing tables, ammunition and tactical deployment.

The Davy Crockett, a battalion or battle group nuclear weapons system, is one of the Army's new Infantry support weapons. It is either ground or vehicular mounted.

Capt. R. H. Morton Named CO of 9th's Company D

Captain Richard H. Morton has been assigned company commander of the 9th Infantry's Company D.

The Manchu officer replaces Captain Sam S. Younger Jr., who has since taken command of Headquarters Company.

The 26-year-old officer is a 1957 graduate of U. S. Military Academy at West Point, and entered the Army on active duty that same year.

Captain Morton's first assignment was that of aide to the Commanding General of the Joint U. S. Military Commission in Brazil. During his 19 months there, the Captain also served with the 1st Brazilian Airborne Division in the capacity of Liaison Officer. He took part in Banyon Tree II, a Brazilian maneuver held in Canada in March of 1960. He received the Brazilian Parachutist Wings while attached to this unit.

Before leaving Brazil, Captain Morton was honored by the 1st Airborne Division (Brazilian) when he was awarded the "Medalla de Pacificador" for distinguished service with that unit.

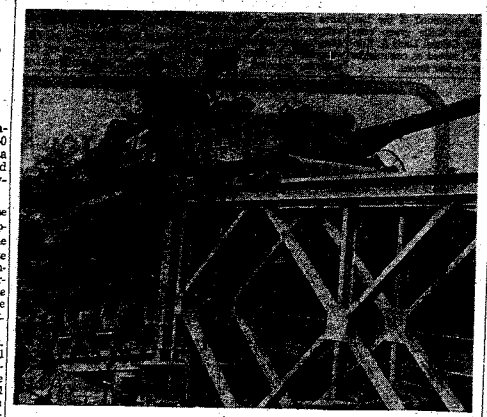
Pilots Log 964 Hours During Seneca Spear



Forty-eight pilots of the 2nd Aviation Company flew a record-breaking 964 hours and 50 minutes during the recent six-day Exercise Seneca Spear at Fort Stewart, Ga. The company operated during the entire exercise with a 98 per cent flying availability of the aircraft available.

The company was divided into a Blue force and a Yellow force to support the opposing elements. The Blue force aviation detachment was headed by Capt. B. F. Harden, with Capt. E. N. Kelley assisting as operations officer. Major A. R. Sudaby, company commander, acted as division aviation officer. The Yellow aviation detachment was under the supervision of Capt. D. Medica, with Capt. R. M. Smithson as operations officer.

Evacuations

Four actual medical evacuations were flown from the maneuver area to the field hospital. By the utilization of the quick medical evacuation capability of the helicopter, the evacuees were able to receive medical treatment within minutes after the accidents occurred. Various administrative type medical evacuations were flown from Ft. Stewart to Ft. Benning.

The drone section, under Lt. Bruce Stover, flew four aerial photography missions. The radar-controlled drone has the capability of obtaining aerial photos behind the battle area without exposing a pilot or expensive aircraft to enemy fire. With the support of the photo section, aerial photos can be taken, developed, and interpreted within two hours.

Officers 'Killed,' 1st Sgt. Commands Despite Injury

By 1st Infantry PIO

Doing the work of five officers of a company is quite a task in itself. But doing it with one leg in splints was the feat of First Sergeant Calvin C. Willis, Company E, 1st Infantry.

In the clashes of the Blue and Yellow forces at Exercise Seneca Spear the action was heated and fast. The controllers, officers and NCOs of the 82nd Airborne Division declared many men of the fighting units "injured" or "killed in action."

During one of these encounters a simulated 106 millimeter recoilless rifle backblast "killed" the company commander and executive officer of Company E. Sergeant Willis then took command of the company and organized his men to repel the Yellow forces. The Yellow forces hit the company line of resistance continually. A machine gun had pinned Sgt. Willis behind a jeep and disabled one of his legs. The sergeant then put splints on his own leg and refused to be evacuated.

Sgt. Willis commanded the company as they fought back the enemy and held their ground. With his mind set on the enemy and his company's actions, Sgt. Willis made his rounds of the forward lines. As the steady pressure of the situation rose he soon forgot his injury.

After the hectic battle was over the officers were returned to the unit as replacements. By this time the company had dug deep into the enemy lines.

Insurgency

Insurgency is a condition of subversive political activity, civil rebellion, revolt or insurrection against a duly constituted government or occupying power wherein irregular forces are formed and engage in actions, which may include guerrilla warfare, that are designed to weaken and overthrow that government or occupying power.

Variety Keynotes 'Spear' Mission

By 38th Inf PIO

"Variety" was the by-word of the 38th Infantry's part in Exercise Seneca Spear.

In the battle group's tactical maneuvering as part of the Yellow forces, such things as Infantry-tank team assaults, helicopter-borne landings, river crossings and securement of bridgeheads all played a part.

And one element of the battle group, Company A, was attached to Seneca Spear Headquarters early in the problem and acted as guerrillas.

Flown to Hunter

All of the other elements of the battle group were flown to Hunter Air Force Base and then drove to the maneuver area where they became part of the "86th Infantry Division Brigade" and took the new name of "176th Infantry."

For the majority of the problem, most of Company B of the "176th" was attached to the Yellow forces' armor heavy task force. Thus Companies C, D and E were the three rifle companies over which Lieutenant Colonel Cecil M. Sanders, deputy battle group commander and acting commander for the exercise, had the most tactical control.

In the early phases, these companies moved from initial assembly areas into the attack against elements of the Blue forces. Company D made a simulated river crossing and secured a bridge-head across the Canoochee River and linked up with Company C of the "176th" which later was flown across the river by helicopter.

Company E troops then were lifted by helicopter to an advance position far forward in enemy territory, surprising the enemy and furthering the penetration.

On the last day of the exercise, Task Force "Sessions," headed by battle group executive officer Lieutenant Colonel James R. Sessions, formed one part of a two-pronged attack on the Blue forces' rear area as the overpowering numbers of the Blue army pushed the Yellow forces back.

Company C of the "176th" was the major Infantry unit involved in this tank-Infantry assault which disrupted enemy lines of supply and communication and penetrated deep within the Blue forces area. Company D of the 123rd Armor ("11th Armor" in problem) port. The unit is from Fort Stewart.

The attack also disrupted a number of Blue army personnel at a shower point and they went scurrying to cover in the Fort Stewart woods minus clothing when the attack hit.

Evident Willingness

Morale and willingness to do the job was evident throughout the problem. In one instance a platoon of Company D needed to cross a bridge to continue movement to the front but an umpire informed the platoon sergeant, Sergeant First Class Charles A. Root, the bridge was destroyed.

But the non-commissioned officer was not to be stopped. With a "Follow Me" flourish, he started across the stream with his rifle above his head. The umpire stopped him.

"Sergeant," he said, "if you want to cross this stream so badly you can have the bridge," and allowed the NCO to walk his men across the structure.

The attached 69th Chemical Company of Fort McClellan showed ingenuity in one of the missions it had to perform. After flying two tear gas sorties over enemy lines, the chemical supply temporarily ran out. But the company arranged to have the plane's spray tanks filled with water.

The Blue army troops below masked at the site of the spray plane overhead and their advance was delayed. Then shortly after, more chemicals were obtained and the next spray flight consisted of the real thing again.

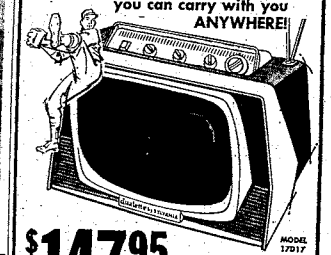
Braved Chilly Waters

In another instance, a half squad-sized group of officers and men of Company B braved the chilly waters of the Canoochee to patrol enemy territory on the other side. But they were captured by the Blue forces before completing their mission.

In turn approximately 75 prisoners were captured by the battle group during the problem including some eight vehicles and two alleged "civilians."

A further indication of the variety of accomplished tasks in the problem was the helicopter-lifting of Company C and E 106 millimeter recoilless rifles and command vehicles to an area vulnerable to enemy armor attack.

Combat Support and Headquarters Companies also had plenty of work involved in the problem. Combat Support's reconnaissance platoon and assault weapons platoon both were up at the front consistently and the heavy mortar platoon provided continuous support.



And Headquarters elements supplied continuous communications, medical, administrative and engineer support and moved the command post-trains area some four times.

MRS. ARTHUR A. TRITSCH, Publicity Chairman, Officers Wives Club ☆ ☆ ☆ MRS. JAMES J. TIGHE, Publicity Chairman, Ladies of the Big Indianhead

1st, 2nd Vice President
Meet Your Candidates

Four ladies have been nominated for the two vice presidential positions of the 2nd Division Officers' Wives Club.

Nominated for first vice president are Mrs. Harold W. Roeder and Mrs. Bryan Evans, Jr., while Mmes. Robert C. Kendrick and Charles M. Johnson are nominated for the office of second vice president.

Current Secretary

Mrs. Roeder, the current secretary of the wives club, also has held several other positions in women's clubs. At the Fulda, Germany, Women's Club, she served as president and vice-president and chaired the program and ways and means committees. She was also ways and means chairman at the Baumholder, Germany, Women's Club.

Jamie's husband, Capt. Roeder, commands C Company of the 69th Armor. His previous station was Ft. Knox, Ky.

Professionally, Mrs. Roeder is a concert soloist in piano and voice. For her work in Germany, going on concert tours and working in German-American activities, she was cited under President Eisenhower's People to People program and was also named U.S. Lady in the October issue of U.S. Lady magazine.

Currently Mrs. Roeder is working with the music circles of both the Ft. Benning and 2nd Division wives clubs, managing the Ft. Benning concert series and teaching piano.

She attended Baldwin Wallace Conservatory in Cleveland and Ohio State University in Columbus, Ohio. The Roeders have no children.

Also Experienced

Barbara Evans is also experienced in women's club work. She served as president of the 63rd Artillery Officers' Wives Club in Newbritton, Conn., and of Tau Omicron Phi, a service sorority, in Washington, D.C.

Mrs. Evans was secretary of the officers' wives club at Buffalo, N.Y., where Capt. Evans was stationed before coming here. He is assigned to Battery A, 17th Artillery.

The Evanses have a son, Bryan III, aged 6, and a daughter, Stuart Lee, aged 14 months.

Mrs. Evans enjoys sewing, cooking and swimming and is active in the Daughters of the U.S. Army.

She attended Edgewood Park Junior College in Briarcliff, N.Y., and George Washington University in Washington, D.C.

For Second

Betty Kendrick is being kept busy by her three children, Sue Ellen, aged 12; Jan, aged 10, and Bobby, aged 5. Major Kendrick, whose previous assignment was in Korea, is serving as S-4 of the 1st Infantry.

Mrs. Kendrick was vice president of the woman's club in Bamberg, Germany and held several committee chairmanships in various Army post women's clubs.

She attended the University of Georgia and lists duplicate bridge and reading as her hobbies.

Mrs. Johnson, the other candidate for second vice president, is a graduate of the University of Cincinnati and a laboratory technician by profession.

Although Sally, as her friends call her, has no previous experience in women's club offices, she has other qualifications, such has having been very active in church work and serving as secretary of her college sorority. She also worked for the Army as a typist.

Mrs. Johnson enjoys knitting, gardening and sewing when she isn't busy taking care of her sons, Daniel, aged 12, and Timothy, aged 10.

Major Johnson is serving as Assistant G-4 at division headquarters. The Johnsons came here from San Francisco, where he was assigned to the ordnance district.

7th Cavalry Wives at Hospital For Ward Party and Coffee

During this past week the ladies of the 7th Cavalry have made two separate trips to Martin Army Hospital.

On Tuesday Mrs. George A. Griffin Jr., and Mrs. Raiford F. Mullins accompanied by a Red Cross worker, gave a ward party. Patients played an Easter dart game, and later competed for prizes in a hat-making contest. Homemade cookies baked by 7th Cavalry ladies, Mrs. Anthony Alfano, Mrs. John W. Ames, and Mrs. Raiford Mullins, were the refreshments.

On Friday morning ladies of the 7th Cavalry made a second trip to Martin Army Hospital, this time to act as hostesses for the Second Division Club — sponsored coffee hour. Mrs. Charles A. Busch, Mrs. Walter D. Hall, and Mrs. George A. Griffin Jr. acted as hostesses.

Mrs. Griffin is over-all chairman for hospital activities for the 7th Cavalry.

Monthly Coffee Held at 9th Inf

The ladies of the 9th Infantry held their monthly coffee Tuesday in the Normandy Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess.

This month the wives of Headquarters Company were sponsors for the event. They included Mrs. Sam S. Young, Mrs. Roland Greenwood, Mrs. Ernest L. Isbell and Mrs. Herman Goldman.

The ladies were reminded of the Bake Sale, given Monday by the non-commissioned officers' wives and officers' wives of the battle group.

Mrs. Clifford P. Hannum, wife of Colonel Hannum, battle group commander, said that profits from the sale would be used for welfare projects within the battle group.

Three convenient locations will be used for the sale of cookies and cakes — the Main Post Exchange, Sand Hill Branch 17 and the Custer Terrace Post Exchange. The sale will begin at 10 a.m.

Recent births in the 9th were announced. They were: a son to Captain and Mrs. Charles R. Latta and a son to Lieutenant and Mrs. John D. Robinson.

One new member of the group attended her first coffee. She was Mrs. Ned G. Patrick, recently married to Lieutenant Patrick.

Four Div Ladies' Groups Get Together at Coffees

The wives of the officers of the G-4 section, Headquarters Second Division, held a coffee recently at the home of Mrs. James C. Larson.

Yellow carnation corsages were given to the guests of honor, who included three new arrivals: Mrs. Charles M. Johnson, Mrs. Leonard J. Hansmann, and Mrs. Charles L. Laakso.

Also presented with a corsage was Mrs. Aubrey C. Davis, who is soon to depart.

122nd Signal

The regularly scheduled monthly coffee of the 122nd Signal Battalion was held at the home of Mrs. Charles Lowther, with Mrs. Walter Tyo acting as co-hostess.

Mrs. John Petorock, wife of Major Petorock, poured. The centerpiece of pink and white snapdragons and mums served also as a door prize, which was won by Mrs. Martin Tinker.

DivArty

Twelve ladies of Headquarters, Division Artillery, met last week for their monthly coffee.

The coffee was held at the home of Mrs. Thomas Valenteen, wife of Captain Valenteen, Division Artillery S-4. Mrs. Robert Marble was cohostess.

Mrs. Floyd Johnson, wife of Lieutenant Colonel Johnson, the newly assigned executive officer, was asked to pour. Other newcomers to the group are Mrs. Paul S. Bloxom, Jr., and Mrs. James M. McCool.

27th Artillery

In place of the usual monthly coffee, the ladies of the 27th Artillery were entertained at an informal brunch last week.

Twelve ladies travelled to Waverly Hall, to the home of Mrs. Charles B. Harper for the social occasion.

The brunch table was covered with a white linen cut-work cloth, centered with an old fashioned soup tureen filled with spring flowers.

Mrs. James D. Clark, wife of Colonel Clark, 27th Artillery commander, presided at a Bridge

Mrs. Jesse Madden was the hostess for the ladies' bridge group of the 1st Infantry recently at her home on Lowe St., Columbus. High honors for the evening went to Mrs. Charles Allen and Mrs. Tom Jaco. Mrs. Kenneth Grade was low.

Candidates Entertained

Mrs. Gustav Bacharach and Mrs. Louis A. Kunzig Jr. entertained at a tea recently at Mrs. Bacharach's home, in honor of the candidates for office in the Second Division Officers' Wives' Club.

Members of the board were present to meet the ten nominees.

The tea table was set with an ecru lace cloth, centered with an arrangement of yellow spring flowers, accented with purple iris. Silver candelabra with pale green candles flanked the centerpiece.

Mrs. Royal Reynolds, and Mrs. Ralph Hughett poured tea.

Mrs. Charles Austin and Mrs. Frank Osmanski took turns serving punch from a silver bowl.

Ordnance Coffee Held at Chandlers

The 702nd Ordnance Battalion held their monthly coffee recently in the home of Mrs. E. M. Chandler.

Mrs. M. M. Graham was the co-hostess.

Newcomers to the group include Mrs. Frank Miller and Mrs. Larry Foore. Farewells were said to Mrs. C. L. Moorer and Mrs. James Mosier.

Incidental Intelligence

Return Home

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Chapman, parents of Mrs. Richard A. Perkins, have returned to their home in Hillsboro, Oregon, after spending the Easter holidays with Lieutenant Colonel and Mrs. Richard A. Perkins and children.

Bridge

The ladies of the G-3 Section, 2nd Division, held a bridge get-together last Saturday evening at the home of Mrs. Jack Samson. Mrs. James R. Jess won high for the evening.

Trees to MAH

At the suggestion of Mrs. Robert Kenrick, the ladies of the 1st Infantry presented the Easter egg trees that decorated the recent 2nd Division Wives' Club luncheon to Martin Army Hospital. They were delivered to the patients by Mrs. Walter Todd, Mrs. Ted Gerdonier, and Mrs. Charles Austin.

Mrs. Todd Hosts 1st

Mrs. Walter B. Todd was the hostess of this month's coffee for the ladies of the 1st Infantry recently at her home on Rainbow Ave.

The serving table was centered with a spring arrangement of lavender flowers. Mrs. Luther Kennedy poured the coffee.

A welcome was extended to Mrs. Lowell Ballard, wife of Captain Ballard, the new commander of Company A.

The ladies bade farewell to Mrs. Kless Gyzen, Mrs. Preston Johnson and Mrs. Joseph Parsons, who will be leaving soon with their husbands for new assignments.

It was announced that the May coffee will be held at the home of Mrs. Charles Austin on May 24th.

MAH Coffee Held By 'Indianheads'

Last Friday the monthly coffee for patients and staff at the Martin Army Hospital was hosted by the Ladies of the Big Indianhead.

Assisting Mrs. Lawrence W. Smith, hospital program chairman, was Mrs. Bilbo Nowell, Mrs. Pelham Breaud and Mrs. Thomas McElveen.

M. I. Detachment Shows Capacity With 5 Branches at Seneca Spear

BY DONALD J. LOPATA

Contrary to popular belief, the Military Intelligence Detachment is not completely concerned with spooks, spies and counter-espionage.

In Exercise Seneca Spear, the M.I. Det. had a chance to show off all five of their branches in the detection of enemy displacements, the movement of troops and equipment and in the safeguarding of the security of the division. This was accomplished through the use of photographs, interrogation of prisoners, knowledge of enemy displacement counter - espionage measures and the unifying and the administration of the functions of the M.I. Detachment.

Basic Branches

Of the five basic branches of an M.I. Det., photo-interpretation, order of battle, security, interrogation of prisoners-of-war and headquarters, the section that is probably most associated with the functions of this unit is the security or counter-intelligence section.

"The mission of the security section is to advise the G-2 on the manner to counter enemy intelligence efforts in aggressor line-crossings and sabotage any information that can be of use to the enemy," said Captain Vernon R. Justice, chief of the security section.

Capt. Justice further stated that, "Our efforts are greatly coordinated with Civil Affairs Branch and the I.P.W. branch of the M. I. Detachment."

In Exercise Seneca Spear, "All branches played an equally important role and were coordinated with each other, the G-2 and the commanding officer of each respective Blue and Yellow force, according to Lieutenant David J. Jones, Military Intelligence officer of the M. I. Detachment.

The photo-interpretation section's mission in the exercise was to interpret all photographs taken by the 2nd Infantry Division's 2nd Aviation Company.

This interpretation consisted of analyzing terrain, enemy movements, equipment and the displacement of enemy positions.

So developed are the methods used in photo-interpretation that, though these photographs are taken thousands of feet in the air, through the analyzation of shadows, angles, sizes and colors, the caliber of artillery pieces, size of trucks, speed of movement of convoys and the size of tanks, can be discovered.

The job of supporting the various sections of the M.I. Det. in administration, supplies, and coordination, fell to the Headquarters section, led by Captain Richard E. Evers.

'Off Year' Elections Important, Too; House Seats Are All 'Up for Grabs'

Servicemen can exercise one of their most important duties this year as all 50 states elect new U. S. Representatives.

A qualified voter need not let his Army duty tour interfere with his voting. Absentee ballots may be obtained whereby the serviceman can cast his vote while thousands of miles from his home precinct.

Most states will name at least one senator and about half will select new governors this year.

Election schedules are shown below. Details on voting rules may be obtained from "Voting Information," Department of the Army Pamphlet 21-50, or local voting officers.

DivArty Leads Trophy Race

Division Artillery presently controls a 29-point lead over the 87th Infantry in the race for the Commanding General's Sports Trophy.

This is how the contest stands through the just concluded major command volleyball tournament conducted by the 2nd Infantry Division's Special Service Office.

DivArty has a total of 270 points while the 87th Infantry, present holder of the trophy, possesses 250. Close behind the Conquerors is Separate Battalions with 245.

Other standings are:

1st Infantry, 200; Division Trains, 195; 23rd Infantry, 140; 38th Infantry, 125; and 9th Infantry, 100.

Points in the contest are awarded for winning, placing and participation.

In the Christmas Holiday Sports Program, each unit was awarded 20 points for participation. Also each major unit received 25 points for conducting a company level basketball contest.

However in the major command basketball tournament, each unit received five points per game won in addition to 25 points for participating and points for final standings.

In division basketball the Conquerors picked up 65 points for 13 wins and 50 points for finishing first plus 25 participating points while DivArty received 60 for 12 wins and 30 for seecond place in addition to their participating points.

The next event was company level volley ball where 25 points for participation were awarded.

But it was in division volleyball that DivArty took its overall point lead.

Including participating points, DivArty received 30 each for six wins and placing second behind Separate Battalions for a combined total of 85 as the 87th Infantry totaled 40.

Division Bowling Tourney Underway at Post Alleys

Division Trains, with a team total of 2703, took the lead in the 2nd Infantry Division Bowling Championship Tuesday afternoon.

Following Trains was Separate Battalions with 2568 and the 87th Infantry with 2512.

The last round of the eight-team championship is to be rolled this afternoon at the Main Post Bowling Alleys, site of the previous contests.

The tournament is a nine game scratch roll-off, with the highest total pinfall determining the winner.

Each team has bowled a total of three games on each scheduled bowling date, with the five highest scores out of each six man team counting for the total pinfall.

The tournament is being conducted by the division's Special Service Office.

Other team totals in Tuesday's play were: Division Artillery, 2564; 38th Infantry, 2484; 1st Infantry, 2467; 9th Infantry, 2425; and 23rd Infantry, 2123.

Manchus Pondering 'Smoker'

By 9th Infantry PIO

Due to the tremendous response given the recent 9th Infantry Battle Group Boxing Tournament, tentative plans are underway for the construction of an out-door boxing ring in the Manchu area.

If approved, the plans call for the construction of the ring and the resumption of company level boxing teams. These teams would compete against each other in a regularly scheduled monthly Manchu Smoker.

This is one of the many plans for athletic activities for the men of the 9th Infantry for the forthcoming summer months.

Week's Play Sees Medics Unbeaten

Orsini Fans 17; Sets Post Mark

By Sfc Bismarck Stith

The 428th Medics remain undefeated in three starts in the Major Unit Baseball League.

John Orsini led the Medics to their third victory over Center Troop Command 4-2, by giving up seven hits and striking out 17, the season highest.

The Medics jumped off to a one-run lead in the first inning off a two hit attack by Charles Story and Gary Hess, both hits were singles.

CTC struck back in the third inning with two hits for two runs to go ahead 2-1. Marty Leight, CTC southpaw held the Medics in check until the seventh inning, striking out ten batters.

The Medics took advantage of CTC's bad breaks in the seventh, scoring three runs to clinch the game and the victory 4-2. Maurice Weatherton was hit by a pitch; Gary Hess rapped his third hit, a double into deep left field scoring Weatherton; Ed Stansbury got on on an error committed by the shortstop, and Hess scored on the same play. Rex Turner smacked a line drive up the middle for the third run.

Gary Hess paced the Medics with two singles and a double. Jim Bryson's double was the big blow for CTC. John Orsini was credited with the win, his second, while Marty Leight suffered the loss.

The 29th Infantry won their second victory of the young season recently by defeating the 156th Signalmen 5-4.

A shakey start by Signalman Don Sherman enabled the Infantrymen to grab a quick 3 run lead in the first inning. Singles by Albert Rockwell, Curt Gentry, Dave Lynn and Fred Martin accounted for the first inning lead.

Sherman settled down after the first inning, allowing two hits, two walks, and striking out 14.

He was replaced by Dick Stusex in tenth inning with the score knotted at 4-4. Stusex, bothered by wildness, gave up a base on balls and a wild pitch, which proved to be costly. His wildness permitted the Two Niners to score the winning run.

The Infantrymen's Roy Bower was credited with the victory while Stusex was charged with the loss. Bower also entered the contest in the 10th inning, replacing right-hander James Battle.

The Center Troop Command nine handed 156th Signal Battalion their third straight setback, 7-5.

CTC took control of the contest in eighth when they blasted the Signalmen for our hits and four runs. Right-hander Bob Olczak, paced the winners at bat with two singles, he also was credited with the victory. Richard Stvick suffered his second defeat. Mike Stokes led the Signalmen at the plate with one triple and two doubles.

STARS . . .

The 428th Medics, picked up one run in the eighth and two in the ninth to trip 151st Engineers, 7-5, in recent Major Unit action. James Williams defected the win, while William Monk, absorbed the defeat.

The Medics blasted Monk for 10 hits and the Engineers picked up seven safeties.

Gary Hess paced the Medics attack with two singles and a double, Hurbert Gossett led his team mates with two singles and a double.

Championship Tennis Set For Fort Benning Courts

Championship tennis is moving into its own at Fort Benning and the late for the coming season should excite the imagination of any sports fan.

Tournaments to be played at the post this season include the Third Army competition, the Army Trials and the National Interservice Matches, in addition to a number of local meets.

The first meet of the season is the Main Officers' Open Mess spring tournament May 5 to 13.

Categories Listed

Play will be in men's and women's open singles, class A singles, men's senior singles and doubles, open doubles and mixed doubles.

Many of the winners from last year's action will be back to defend their titles. Among them are the men's singles winner, 1st Lt. Arthur Foust and his partner in the doubles championship, Capt. Paul Young.

Foust is a member of Headquarters Company, 2nd Engineer Batalion, 2nd Infantry Division. Young is a pathologist at Martin Army Hospital.

Senior singles champion, Major Gilbert Procter Jr., analysis and review officer with The Infantry Board, will return.

Major Proctor's tennis partner in last year's senior doubles championship, Lt. Col. Robert F. Gasler, inspector general of The Infantry Center, also will be back to defend his title.

The spring tournament is open to all members of the club. Entries must be submitted by May 4.

Select Teams

June 6 to 10 will see play to select the Fort Benning champions, who will represent the post in the third Army matches.

All interested personnel are urged to submit their applications well in advance.

July 2 to 5 the Third Army matches will be played at the local courts. Fort Benning walked off with the trophy last year.

Foust won the singles championship and teamed with Young to cop the doubles to lead the post team.

Less than a week later, July 10, trials will begin to select an All-Army team. Personnel selected will spend 32 days days training at the post under the tutorship of a tennis professional.

They will represent the Army in the big meet of the year, the National Interservice Championship to be held at Fort Benning August 15 to 17.

'Best in Country'

According to post tennis pro, Victor Ponce, this tournament will feature the best players in the country. It should provide fans with an opportunity to watch many nationally ranked stars in action, he added.

Last year in the Interservice matches, Foust continued his winning ways and finished as runner-up.

Competition at the post will end with the Fall Tennis Tournament October 9 to 14.

All the matches will be played on the Main Officers Open Mess courts.

Admission will be free. The public is invited.

Fort Benning Places Third At Tourney

Officers and enlisted men from approximately 20 Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine installations participated in the Tri - State Invitational Golf Tournament held recently at Paris Island South Carolina.

Maj. Gen. Thomas G. Ennis, commanding general, Parris Island Marine Recruit Depot, congratulated and presented the Jacksonville Naval Air Station team with the tournament's championship trophy. The Naval team compiled a total of 940 strokes for the 54 hole contest.

The team representing Parris Island captured second place honors by one stroke, obtaining an average of 946.

Fort Benning's representatives to the all service tournament produced a total average of 947, claiming third place honors for the post. Representing Fort Benning at the invitational were Sp4 Al Mauldin, who turned in the top score for the team with a 233 stroke total; Capt. Richard Reich, 236; Pfc William Royer, 237; SSgt Paul Wolfe, 239; MSgt William Edens, 242; Pfc William Arnold, 247; Major Jack Aure, 257; Pfc Maurice Caroll, 257; 2nd Lt. William Foster, 267, and Capt. Dean Potter, with an average of 270.

CONCENTRATE ON GAME . . . If you want to play good golf, forget business, family, home and all other obligations when you step up to the first tee.

Golf is a hard taskmaster in that it requires a one track mind. It's a game of personal control — you vs. all the correct golf fundamentals to be learned—and it leaves no room for mental diversion by other things.

Concentrate, therefore, on the golf basics. Once you have mastered these, a relaxed attitude and deep enjoyment of the game follow. Remember, you create most of golf's hazards.

OUTDOOR OUTLOOK

By Sp4 Dan Girton

Habitat Improvement Completed

The Wildlife Management Section reports the small game habitat improvement program that has been underway in northern Area K for the past three months has been completed. This intensive game management program is designed to improve quail, turkey and deer populations through creation of favorable food and habitat conditions.

Over 60 miles of fifty yard wide stripes have been recut through scrub oak areas while the vast open areas have been broken by numerous disked strips. Disking is one method game managers use to encourage an abundance of natural game food producing plants. In many of these strips natural food has been supplemented by planting game food plants such as lespedezas and partridge peas.

Use Caution with Snakes

Numerous snakes have been reported at several post ponds. Anglers and picnickers are urged to be on the alert for snakes expecially in brushy areas around ponds and streams. Military Police Range Guards and Wildlife Aides have undertaken an intensive snake eradication program at Kings and other post ponds. Although many water snakes have been taken, there is no evidence that snakes are more abundant than previous years.

Fishermen Puzzled

The past weekend seemed to be perfect for fishing but even veteran anglers were puzzled with poor results. This general trend seems to hold true not only for post fishing but for the entire southeast as many Georgia and Tennessee Valley lakes report only scattered and dingy catches at a time when late spring fishing activity is usually at its peak. Many waters are high and muddy with water temperature still a bit too cold.

pitchers for 10 hits and a 15-3 victory, their first of the season.

Both teams rallied for three runs in the first inning. Joe Winchester, Redleg's southpaw, held the Brigade hitless and scoreless after the second frame. Robert Steward's double and J. B. Lerrimore's, single accounted for the two runs in the second inning. Percy Shaw's two-run homer in the third added two more runs and in the fifth the Redlegs rapped out four hits for seven runs to clinch their first season victory.

Joe Winchester hurled a five-hitter for the win. Keith Blair, starter for Student Brigade, was charged with the setback. E. Stewart relieved Blair in the second and L. Oates came to Stewart's rescue in the fifth, but was unable to hold down the Redlegs.

William Ray, Redleg's third baseman, paced the winners at the plate with three singles for five trips.

Reid Armstrong two singles and Bill Silva, Jim Padgett and Jessie Joyce contributed a single each to account for the Brigade's five hits.

Judo Meet Scheduled At Field House

By Sfc Bismarck Stith

A Fort Benning Judo Meet will be held at Briant Wells Field House Monday evening, April 30 at 7 p.m.

Marcel Carles, 3rd Degree Black, from Columbus, will bring his Judo team to the post to handle the Judo promotion meet.

This promotion meet will afford all participants to advance in Judo rank, from white to brown to black belt, as judged by the officials. For rank promotion in Judo, a participant must stand a written and practical examination, also showing a degree of competition ability in techniques and fundamentals of Judo.

Fort Benning's club will have 35 boys ages ranging from 7-14 years old seeking a promotion in Judo rank.

Due to recent overseas levies the membership to the post club has been reduced to one-half of it's original members. Membership is open to all persons interested, with no instructional fees attached.

Judo instruction classes are held each Tuesday and Thursday, from 7 to 10 p.m. and 2 to 4 p.m. on Saturday, at Briant Wells Field House.

The Benning's Judo Club is chartered with Kodokan School of Japan, Judo Black Belt Federation of America, AAU and the Capital Black Belt Association. For further information concerning the club membership, please contact Major M. G. Stafford, 544-3559.

Quote Of The Week

Ex-sailor Yogi Berra, now starting his 17th season as a N. Y. Yankee player, compared the Yankees' pitching today to the 1940s by saying, "The pitching we had back in the 1940s was the best Yankee pitching I ever saw. Vic Raschi, Allie Reynolds, Eddie Lopat, Joe Page — and about that time Whitey Ford was coming along. We'd win 2 to 1, 1 to 0, 3 to 2. We had nothing like the homerun power we've got today. Our pitching right now is pretty good — better than last year. In two years it'll be just great with all that young stuff we've got around."

Kulikowski Wins Senior Golf Title Over Clifford

MSgt Mike Kulikowski won the senior division of the ninth annual Tri-State Military Golf Tournament at Fort Jackson recently. Kulikowski won his title by defeating Col. Paul T. Clifford in a two hole sudden death play off. Both men toured the regulation tournament course with 240 totals.

Kulikowski took the championship on the 56th hole by dropping a five foot putt for a par five. Both men bogeyed the 55th with fives.

50th Medics Nip 128th in Opening Softball Meet

Major E. V. Bunger threw out the opening ball in the first clash of the 428th Medical Battalion Softball Season.

The 50th Medics came from behind in a fifth inning rally to squeeze out the 128th Ambulance Jockeys on s 16 - 15 count. A former National Guard unit, the 128th with Sp4 G. E. Calvert on the mound took a comfortable 15-2 lead in the fourth inning when seven men were walked and six runs were scored.

The 50th was able to add seven more markers in the next inning. Pvt. C. R. Halburg came in for the 128th Medics but the damage had been done. The 128th failed to tally in the sixth and the 50th forged ahead on Pfc Richard N. Pierce's single with two on.

Post Officers See 'Copter Performing

A Sikorsky HSS-2 helicopter went through its paces high above the post's Gordon field before the eyes of interested Infantry Center and Infantry School personnel during a demonstration of its maneuverability recently.

Later most of these same people moved through the craft studying its communication and navigational equipment. Each man carried a list of questions he was expected to comment on after the demonstration.

This list included such questions as, "Envisioned missions for Army aircraft equipped with this type electronic equipment?", and "Is there a requirement for this type equipment in Army aircraft in the ROAD division to enhance the capability for conducting air mobile operations under all conditions of weather and visibility?"

The HSS-2's tour was arranged by the Office, Chief of Research and Development, Department of the Army, for viewing by personnel who could evaluate the craft and its possible applications to Army needs.

The comments will be used as the basis for The Infantry School's reply to Continental Army Command Headquarters. This will give them information regarding possible procurment of the same or similar items for installation in Army aircraft.

The HSS-2 holds the world's speed record for helicopters, 210.6 mph, a record it recently took from the Russians.

It has a normal cruise speed of 125 knots and an approximate weight of 19,000 pounds. It can fly approximatly five hours with 700 gallons of fuel.

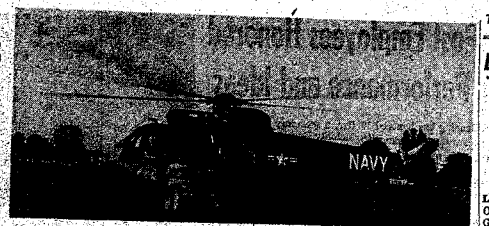
Equipped with automatic stabilization equipment, the HSS-2 has the capability for hands-off flight in all four axes. It will stay in the position as when the pilot releases the controls.

It is equipped with a navigation system that provides pictorial presentation using the dopler radar. Thus it requires no ground based electronic systems for operations.

The installed weight of this equipment is only 192 pounds, and a lighter version is available.

A total of 31 people can be seated in the craft. This includes a pilot and copilot, a crew chief and 28 troops.

It has two gas turbines that provide a lightweight source of power.



The manufacturers say that it is at home in any type of terrain, equally so in land or water, snow or sand.

Two of these helicopters have already been procured by the Army for the Executive Flight Detachment, Fort Belvoir, Va.

They will be used to support operational flight requirements for the Executive Branch of the government.

The first appearance of tanks in combat occurred in the Battle of the Somme on September 15, 1916.

AIRCRAFT COMPANY ENGINEERS PREPARE TO DEPART After Demonstrating The Craft For Post Officers' Evaluation

For Each Cadet

Evaluation To Highlight ROTC Camp

The most important part of the Reserve Officer Training Corps encampment here this summer will be the evaluation of the individual cadet, Major Charles C. Bourquardez, Headquarters, Third Army, told staff section officers at an ROTC pre-camp conference last week.

Major Bourquardez, chief of the Third Army ROTC Branch of the Reserve Components Section, said that after the cadets complete ROTC training, most of them will join the Army Reserve.

"Many ROTC graduates, however, will join the Regular Army, particularly those who are the most highly evaluated," he said.

Cadre for the cadets will consist of 107 officers and 150 enlisted men from ROTC colleges and universities in the Third Army area.

The 1,536 ROTC cadets will arrive at Fort Benning June 23 to begin the six-week training which ends August 3. Opening day exercises are tentatively scheduled for 11 a.m. June 25 on French Field.

The ROTC activities for July 4 will include an athletic program of softball games and swimming and track meets.

July 11 to 12 will be visitors' day. Representatives of the ROTC schools, friends and relatives of the cadets will observe training methods, a demonstration by the Infantry School's Ranger Department and a display of Infantry weapons.

The visitors also will witness the firing of weapons by personnel of the school's Weapons Department at Hook Range.

Early in July a cadre of 100 officers and enlisted men from Third Army ROTC schools will conduct trainfire exercises. There will be a 23-hour course of record firing of the M-1 and the M-14 rifles.

COMMUNIST PROMISES

That the most sacred promises mean next to nothing to the communist official mind is shown in these statements by Lenin: "Promises are like pie crust, made to be broken," and "It would be mad and criminal to tie one's hands by entering into an agreement of any permanance with anybody."

AG's Personnel Specialist Training Course Continues

With the graduation of 38 students in a personnel records course April 20, the Adjutant General Section's personnel specialists courses here has trained 100 persons this year and 53 since the program began in July.

Classes this year in morning reports, daily personnel reports, and personnel compensation (military pay) are similar to those offered at various times last year, but are on a permanent basis with a schedule for the entire year. A course in personnel records is added to last year's curriculum.

There is a shortage of personnel specialists at Fort Benning and the Adjutant General School at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., cannot provide enough graduates to fill existing vacancies.

This program outlined by The Infantry Center's adjutant general, Col. Milton G. Schneider, is designed to help ease the shortage.

Courses are designed primarily to train personnel clerks. However, personnel supervisors and sergeants, as well as personnel officers who have not completed the courses or the equivalent at Army service schools since January, 1959, also may attend.

The schedule for the classes is as follow:

Classes in personal records will meet 8 a.m. to 12 noon Mondays through Fridays for three weeks, beginning July 9 and October 8. Each class has a capacity of 64 students. The course will comprise 80 hours of instruction.

Morning report classes will meet 1 to 5 p.m. Mondays through Fridays for one week, beginning May 7, August 6 and November 5. Each class has a capacity of 40 students and includes 20 hours of instruction.

Personnel compensation, military pay, classes will meet 8 a.m. to 12 noon each weekday for three weeks, beginning June 4, September 10 and November 26. Each class includes 60 hours of instruction.

Military personnel who complete all three courses, or 140 credit hours, are qualified to become personnel specialists with a Military Occupational Specialty (MOS) number of 716.

Military personnel who wish to attend should contact their commanding officer or personnel office. Civilian personnel should see their supervisor.

If accepted, students will continue to work in their duty section, but will attend classes half the day. In many cases courses will supplement on-the-job training.

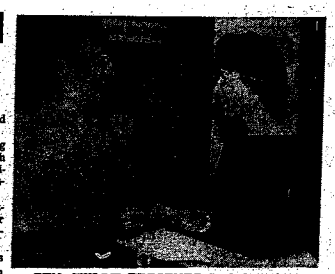
10 Post Employees Honored For Performance and Ideas

Fort Benning has honored 10 employees with outstanding job ratings, cash awards for sustained superior performance and letters of appreciation and monetary compensation for job improvement suggestions.

The awards were presented by Brig. Gen. Royal Reynolds, Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School, and Brig. Gen. John E. Kelly, deputy post commander.

In The Infantry School, outstanding job ratings and cash awards for sustained superior performances were presented to Miss Beverly G. Goins, assistant property officer in the Operations Office, who received $150, and Miss Margery Zeitler, a secretary in the Ground Mobility Department, $100.



An outstanding job rating was presented to Mrs. Edith C. Murray, a publications editor in the Department of Non-Resident Instruction.

Gen. Reynolds presented letters of appreciation to four employees for job improvement suggestions.

They are Mrs. Ruby Spires and David H. Freeman, both of whom work at the Army Field Printing Plant; Miss Elaine S. Cheatham, a member of the Department of Non-Resident Instruction Data Processing Office, and 1st Lt. Foy E. Privette, Jr., from the Communications Department.

Mrs. Barbara C. Thomas was awarded $15 for a traffic improvement suggestion. She is a filing clerk at the Department of Non-Resident Instruction.

The Infantry Center awards, presented by Gen. Kelly, went to Mrs. Ruth E. Mills, a clerk-stenographer in the G-3 Office, and Mrs. Margaret L. Langford, chief of the Editing Branch, Administrative and Service Division of the Adjutant General Section. They received outstanding job ratings and $100 each for sustained superior performance.

GEN. KELLY PRESENTS RATING, $100 To Mrs. Langford for Superior Performance

Airborne Graduates 225 Men

The U. S. paratrooper force was strengthened last Friday when 225 students graduated from The Infantry School's basic Airborne course here.

Honor graduate was Pvt. Thomas J. Lannaghan, Jr. He was presented a citation by Col. Michael Paulick, director of The Infantry School's Airborne-Air Mobility Department.

Also included in the class were two Marine Corps officers, two Air Force officers and one enlisted man, 25 Army officers and 194 Army enlisted men.

One of the graduates is the son of a former paratrooper. He is Pvt. William Gates, Jr. His father served with 101st Airborne Division during World War II.

Another member of the group is the son of a former distinguished serviceman. He is Pvt. Joseph C. Gillete, son of the late Vice Adm. John H. Gillette.

130 Lyman Ward Cadets Expected Here Next Week

Approximately 130 cadets from the Lyman Ward Military Academy, Camp Hill Ala., will visit the post May 3 to 5.

Accompanying the students will be Brig. Gen. (Ret.) T. L. Futch, commandant, and Col. (Ret.) K. L. Johnson, assistant commandant of the academy.

The cadets' tour will include a number of The Infantry School's problems conducted for resident classes. They also will fire for record with the M-1 rifle on Easley Range.

Post Pools to Open May 4

By Sfc Bismarck Stith

The Infantry Center Special Services Athletic Department announces that Benning's outdoor swimming polls will open Friday, May 4.

Special Services operated swimming polls are open to all active duty and retired military personnel, their dependents and bona fide guests. Children under five years of age will be admitted only to wading pools, and must be accompanied by an adult.

Children between the ages of five and nine, inclusive, may utilize the pools only when accompanied by an adult who will remain with children at all times.

Russ swimming pool is located at Building 310 on 1st Division Road. Because of its location, dependents are encouraged to use Russ pool to distribute patronage evenly.

Hours of operation for Russ, Sand Hill, and Harmony Church Pools will be 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Carey pool will open at 8 a.m. and close at 9 p.m. daily.

Carey Pool is located at the intersection of Sightseeing Road and 1st Brigade Road. Sand Hill pool is located on Fourth Street, between Scott and Barry Avenues, behind Special Services Library Branch 2.

Harmony Church Pool is located at Building 4493 next to the Harmony Church Field House.

Qualified lifeguards will be on duty at all times when the pools are in use. Safety in swimming is primarily the responsibility of the individual and, secondly, the responsibility of the pool supervisor or lifeguard.

In order to assist the individual and the supervisor or lifeguard in maximum safety measures, the "Buddy System" will be used at all swimming pools at Fort Benning, Athletic Department officials said.

The "Buddy System" consists of paiving bathers before entering the water. "Buddies" may enter the water together or one may remain on the shore, but they must maintain a constant watch on each other. When one "Buddy" is using the diving board, the partner will always be on shore.

A "Buddy's" primary responsibility is to notify the lifeguard in the event his partner is in danger, they added.

Pool supervisors are as follows: Sgt. James Anthony, Carey; Sp5 DuWayne Elliott, Harmony Church; Sp4 Charles Walls, Sand Hill; Sgt. Ray Olinger, Russ; and Pfc. Ray Gonzalez, Briant Wells.

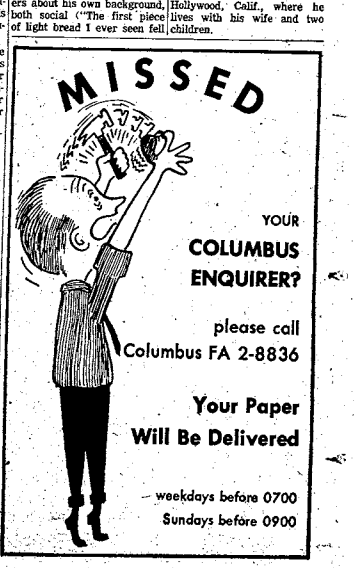
DAVE GARDNER

Next Tuesday

Dave Gardner to Appear At Columbus Auditorium

Dave Gardner, newest of the "angry young humorist" school of nightclub entertainers, will be at the Columbus Municipal Auditorium on Tuesday, May 1, for a two-hour show beginning at 8 p.m.

Gardner's satirical - social commentary has skyrocketed the Tennessee-born comedian to the top of the nightclub and TV circuit, and has given him two record hits in "Rejoice Dear Hearts" and "Kick Thy Own Self."



His way - down - south - on - the - farm accent has brought him comparison with Will Rogers, but his peculiar brand of humor is all Gardner.

And in spite of his disclaimers about his own background, both social ("The first piece of light bread I ever seen fell offen the back of a CCC truck,") and literary ("I ain't gointer let none of them smart-aleck intellectuals mess up my speech"), Gardner is an extremely literate person.

He has a special appeal to a generation which has taken to a kind of humorously cynical nihilism — one which applauds when Gardner takes out after politicians ("How is it a man can spend a hundred thousand dollars to git a little odd job pays twenty-two thousand, five hundred?")

The clergy are also among his favorite topics. ("People tell me I could earn a million dollars as a preacher, but beloved, what would a preacher spend it on?")

Home to Gardner is now Hollywood, Calif., where he lives with his wife and two children.

CIVIL DEFENSE IN THE SOVIET UNION by Leon Goure', (Univ, 1962)

"Despite Soviet secrecy, it is evident that for the past 10 years the Soviet Union has been engaged in a serious, energetic, and expanding civil defense program that has made a major contribution to its over-all strength.

EMERGENT AMERICANS by Harold R. Isaacs. (Day, 1961)

Operation Crossroads Africa, is a project which in recent years has sent more than 500 American students to Africa to love and work beside Africans in summer work camps. This undertaking is international communication, privately conceived and privately operated, has generated wider and wider discussion every year, and was one of the forerunners of the Peace Corps idea.

KIRKLAND REVELS by Victoria Holt. (Doubleday, 1962)

Kirkland Revels was what they called the magnificent manor house on the Yorkshire moors which was the ancestral home of the Rockwell family. Built from the stones of a ruined twelfth century monastery, it was steeped in history and legend-and mystery. At one time, it had been a house of merriment-in sharp contrast to the somber, reverent Kirkland Abbey.

Lt. Hughes Orientation Top Student

Second Lt. Keith C. Hughes was top student of officer orientation class 11, which was graduated recently at The Infantry School.

Lt. Hughes completed the course with an over-all average of 96.0 per cent.

The Pomona College graduate was presented his graduation certificate by the guest speaker, Col. J. G. Cornett, chief of the Editorial and Pictorial Office of The School.

At the exercise was Brig. Gen. Royal Reynolds, Jr., assistant commandant of The Infantry School who presented each graduating Allied officer the school's "Follow Me" pin.

Col. Cornett spoke to the class on the importance of good leadership and its rewards, and order there was chaos, he added.

By Ambassador Timberlake

MOWW Told of a Congo Need For more and Better Officers

A major need in the Congo is more and better trained Army officers to control the nation's military forces, Clare H. Timberlake, first ambassador to the Congo, told members of the Columbus Chapter, Military Order of World Wars April 19 at the Main Officers' Open Mess.

After the Congolese won their independence from Belgium in 1960, they demanded the ouster of Belgium officers and non-commissioned officers who had controlled the Congo Army, Timberlake said. When the officers were removed, the Army was provided with Congolese officers, he explained.

With the departure of the Belgians, the central government recruited Congolese "officers" of low quality. The result was that instead of law and order there was chaos, he added.

Timberlake, a member of the State Department for 30 years, and now adviser to the commander of Air University, Maxwell Air Force Base, Montgomery, asserted that the Congolese are not anti-Belgian but resented their loss of military leadership when the Belgians departed.

The Congo has sent several delegations to Brussels to urge Belgians who had been in the Congo to return to help restore order, Timberlake pointed out.

A vital need of the Congo, which is nearly 80 times the size of Belgium, is for French-speaking technicians, he said. Technicians are needed to help develop the nation's economy, which is based on agriculture and mining, the former ambassador told the group.

Palm oil and rubber from the Congo's tropical forests, copper from the Katanga mines and industrial diamonds from Kasai need technical development for increased exploitation, he stated.

Another need of the Congo, which has a population of nearly 14 million people and the highest literacy rate in Central Africa, is a more decentralized government, Timberlake said.

"The Congolese are not adequately trained to maintain a central government, which is too highly complicated for the people to administer," he added.

"This country, the richest in Central Africa and which has a modern transportation system, still has a long way to go before it can solve all of its many problems," Timberlake said. "Leopoldville has a fine airport, with a runway 2,000 feet longer than any commercial airport runway in the U. S.

With more counsel and technical aid to develop its resources, the Congo will be able to make real progress, he added.

Louis Kunze, commander of the Military Order of World Wars, presided over the meeting. Col. (Ret.) Sidney Sogard was program chairman.

PAY FOR MEDALS

At times in the past, extra pay has been given to recipients of decorations for valor. However, this is no longer generally true. Medal of Honor holders who reach age 65 may have their names placed on the Medal of Honor Roll which carries a life-time pension of $10 per month.

THE SOVIET SOLDIER

Leaves and passes are rarely given to a Russian soldier during his two or three years of service. His free time is spent in army clubs, theaters, political lectures and libraries, supervised by the unit or installation political officer. The soldier's day is usually 14 to 16 hours long, six days per week.

VERSATILE . . . 2nd Lt. Richard L. de Neufville, who took both Airborne and Ranger training before being assigned to the 151st Engineer Group, returned Monday from Fort Belvoir, Va., where he was a distinguished graduate of the Special Demolitions Course at the Engineer School. The assistant S-3 of the 151st scored 94 out of a possible 100 per cent. Lt. de Neufville is a graduate of Massachusetts Institute of Technology where he received both a bachelor and master of science degree in civil engineering. He lacks one year in obtaining his doctoral degree.

Ability to Speak Lost, Regained, Civilian Employee Writes Cancer First Aid Booklet

Nearly everyone likes to talk, but to one civilian employee at the post talking is one of the greatest joys in life.

"When I learned that I had cancer of the larynx and would lose my vocal chords through an operation, it was a stunning blow," Albert H. Moegelen said.

"I had never known anyone who had his larynx removed, so of course, I had never heard a 'laryngectomee" talk," he continued. "I thought that this would be the end of my useful life. I was sure that I would not be able to make a living for my wife and myself.

"Just when my wife, sister and brothers had succeeded in convincing me that life was worth living if only for their sakes, my doctor sent a laryngectomee to visit me," Moegelen related.

"I listened as the man without vocal cords talked to me. Suddenly life began to look better. My spirits soared. I knew that if this man could talk, so could I," he affirmed.

After this operation in August, 1959, Moegelen began to inquire about speech schools.

"But I didn't wait to find a school. I began to try to talk. I was so successful that I decided to return to my old job at Fort Benning," he said.

A steam plant operator with The Infantry Center Engineers, he operates the heating system at Martin Army Hospital. He has worked on the post since June, 1941, except for a four-year period from 1946 to 1950 when he worked in Atlanta.

Returning to work, Moegelen found his supervisors and fellow workers ready to help and encourage him in every way. "Without their kindness and understanding, I could not have made it alone," he said.

Learning to speak again was not the only problem Moegelen faced as a laryngectomee.

For one thing, he no longer breathes through his nose or mouth, but through an opening just at the base of his neck.

The neck opening must not become obstructed by clothing nor by the angle at which the head is held. Furthermore, water must not be splashed into the opening.

This made taking a bath a new and risky experience.

Turning on the lawn sprinkler was no longer a casual procedure but something to be handled with caution.

Being caught in the rain could be another hazard.

Moegelen collected all the information he could about laryngectomees and their problems. He found that some unfortunately never learn to speak again.

He learned that a laryngectomee cannot speak when in pain or if he becomes excited. He finds it difficult to speak while eating, a few minutes after eating and while lying down.

As Moegelen learned more of the new life he and 70,000 other laryngectomees in America are living, he became deeply concerned about what might happen to one of them in an emergency.

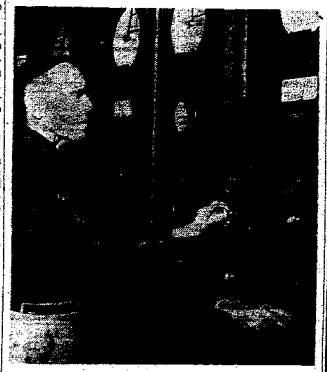
A man might lose his electronic device, become too upset to talk, or lose consciousness and be entirely at the mercy of strangers. In such a case, regular first aid procedures not only would not help but would be fatal to a laryngectomee.

Before his operation, Moegelen had taught first aid. With this knowledge and his first hand experience as a laryngectomee, he prepared a booklet, "First Aid for the Laryngectomee."

His first admonition is 'check the neck" before administering first aid. "If there is an artificial neck opening on an unconscious or injured person, use techniques that can save his life — not end it," he said.

The first aid booklet explains the method of clearing an obstruction of the opening, how to prevent the patient's head from rolling and blocking the opening, and how to administer artificial respiration. There is an urgent warning not to splash water on the patient. Whatever the nature of the emergency, a doctor should be called.

Since Moegelen's operation, he has learned that there are 38 laryngectomees in the Columbus area. Three, including Moegelen, work on the post. Others are retired civilians and military personnel.



"One is a lady," Moegelen said, "just learning to talk." She is one of approximately 5,000 new laryngectomees in the nation in the past 12 months.

Whenever Moegelen learns of a patient who is to have the larynx removed, he wants to go what a laryngectomee did for him before his operation.

With the permission of the doctor, he visits the patient and talks to him. That talk answers many of the distressing questions and quiets many of the fears of the individual about to undergo surgery, he said.

"I talk to him," Moegelen said, "and then as time goes by, I listen to him as he finds his new voice."

Moegelen adds his own warning to the well publicized "Seven Danger Signals of Cancer." It is: "See your doctor about any unusual feeling — my warning was a sticking sensation in my throat."

RED TACTICS

Basically there appears to be four levels of involvement by Communist Forces in military operations: (1) direct involvement (Hungarian Revolt); (2) proxy war (Korea); (3) support of local, indigenous Communist guerrilla - type activity in non-Communist countries (Vietnam); (4) "sabre - rattling" or military intimidation (Berlin threats).

SP5 Walker Sends Gift to President

Sp5 Namon N. L. Walker of Headquarters Battery, and Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery, recently mailed a gift to the top man in his chain of command.

President John F. Kennedy was the recipient of the gift, a bronze letter opener made in the form of a swagger stick.

Sp5 Walker began working on the gift in 1959 while stationed in Korea. The stick is made of bronze and copper tubing while the concealed letter opener is cut from a carbine bayonet.

The stick was inscribed "Presented to President John F. Kennedy by Namon N. L. Walker, 1962."

Sp5 Walker was thanked for "the kind thought" in a letter from Evelyn Lincoln, the President's personal secretary.

The letter continued: "The President sends you his cordial good wishes for a successful tour of duty."

The teenager is head coach of the Youth Activities Club basketball team. He received his trophy at an honors banquet.

Provisional Company Will Support ROTC

A provisional service company under the direction of the Reserve Components Section of the Infantry Center has been organized to provide administrative and operational support for the 1962 ROTC Summer Camp.

Consisting of personnel already assigned to the post, the new company will support primarily the 1,536 members of ROTC units who will receive six weeks of training June 25-August 3.

Also supported in part by the service company will be 397 National Guardsmen, 6,499 Army Reservists, 1,857 men from Army Reserve schools and 722 personnel of the Command and General Staff College.

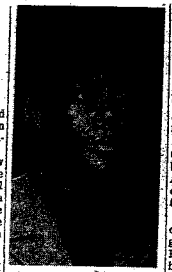
Scheduled to arrive in the influx are personnel from garrison, artillery, hospital, transportation, quartermaster, aviation, engineer, ordnance and military police units and an Army band and a postal company.

Of the more than 11,000 new arrivals who will train here this summer, the majority will come from Third Army area units. The Army Reserve school members will arrive from the Second, Third, Fourth and Fifth Army areas.

National Guard multiple drill units are currently conducting week-end training on the post; in small arms, and tank and artillery firing in preparation for their annual qualification firing.

One-day orientation tours for advanced ROTC cadets from colleges and universities in the Third Army areas are being conducted on Fridays, Capt. Charles J. Boice, S-3 of the Reserve Component Section, said.

AID TO REFUGEES . . . Accepting a $488 check to be used to assist refugees overseas is Chaplain (Col.) Silas E. Decker (L), The Infantry Center chaplain. The donation represents Protestant chapel offerings from a recent Sunday. The funds were collected in "The One Great Hour of Sharing," sponsored by the Church World Service of New York City. Presenting the check is Chaplain (Capt.) Robert H. Hawn, custodian of TIC's Protestant Chaplain's Fund.



LAAC Unit Training Intensified

Activity is humming these days in Lawson Army Aviation Command's Hanger 2459 where the 414th Transportation Company (Direct Support, Aircraft Maintenance) is hard at work on a program of Operational Readiness Training.

Members of the company, a Reserve unit from Greenville, S.C., assigned to LAAC, are busy at their assigned Army jobs and also are helping out in other jobs where help is needed to make the company unit.

Among those at work at the hangar is Spc Robert S. Channell. Channell is a filler called to active duty from the Third Army area to bring the unit up to strength.

Before his recall to active duty, Channell was employed by an airline in Atlanta. He was a refueling agent.

NO ACCIDENTS . . . Benjamin Gordon, a civilian employee, estimates he has driven 200,000 accident-free miles in his 17-year employment on post. He was recently presented a safe-driving award by Col. Horace F. McFeely, The Infantry Center transportation officer. The award was a three-year pin, representing the time Gordon has been enrolled in the National Safety Council's Safe Driver Program. Some 40 other drivers received three, two and one-year awards.

Sailor Graduates at Top Of Basic Airborne Class

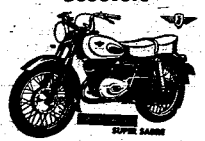
A sailor was top man among 24 students graduating from The Infantry School's Basic airborne course at Fort Benning last Friday.

EM1 (Engineman First Class) Roy M. Grey, a member of Seal Team 1, Naval Amphibious Base, Calif., walked away with top honors in the class.

For his achievement, he received a citation and was congratulated by Col. Michael Paulick, director of TIS's Airborne - Air Mobility Department.

The class roster also included nine other Navy enlisted men, one Marine Corps officer, one Air Force officer, 29 Army officers and 193 Army enlisted men.

In the class were two sons of former paratroopers, or as members of the airborne call them, "second generation paratroopers," and the nephew of Lt. Gen. T. J. H. Trapnell, Third Army commanding general. He is Pvt. Franklin Trapnell.



One of the second generation troopers is Pvt. Milton Strickland, the son of Col. and Mrs. James Strickland, Sandia Base, N. Mex.

The other son of a former paratrooper is Pvt. Angus King, whose father, A. W. King, served with the 17th and 101st Airborne Divisions during World War II.

For Special Order Items Contact SOS

By MSgt Clark Blackburn

Catalog mail order firms have grown to such a point that they do an astronomical business in the millions of dollars. The Infantry School, not to be outdone, has its own mail order business but not quite on the same grandiose scale.

Stockholders of the large firms are not concerned about loss of business to this 42-year-old establishment.

Countless members of the military, their dependents, and their Allied counterparts who have attended The School have taken advantage of the Special Order Section of the Book Store in order to purchase military items of merchandise not normally stocked.

Of particular interest to Infantrymen are books available for order that deal with military subjects. According to Major Jessie Hotchkiss, Book Department officer, the military books fall into five categories. They are books on contemporary military reading, on the communist enemy, the art of war and military science, foreign affairs, and military history and biography.

Personalized desk nameplates are items of special interest to members of the military and the Special Order Section has three models available for order.

One model is of ebony finish with name engraved on chromed heavy-gauge metal plate. The insignia background is of branch color and is protected from dust by clear pastic. This model has a grooved top which holds a swagger stick or pen and pencils.

Another model is a luxurious mahogany-finish that is the same as the first model but doesn't have the groove. The third model is in mahogany-finish with name and title engraved on the chromed metal plate.

Required as part of the uniform is the individual name tag that is available on special order, according to Mrs. Anne DePriest, chief of the section. The tags have a black background with a thin white border. Lettering is in white.

Another item attractive to members of the military are rings. The Book store has an exclusive selection of smartly styled 10-karat gold rings created by master craftsmen. Special request features are also available, including smooth - or facet-cut stones, gold-encrusted rifles, Airborne wings, etc.

The Infantry School's Book Store, with it Special Order Section, is no rival of the large mail order concerns, but does perform a much needed and appreciated service for members of the military, their dependents, and their Allied counterparts.

ON CONVICTION

An irritable man is like a hedgehog rolled up the wrong way, tormenting himself with his own prickles. — Hood states to the U.S. Republic.

Liberty

In some areas of modern life, the boundary line is easily defined. Free speech permits a person to freely express his opinion about anyone or anything. But this freedom cannot be permitted to extend to the utterance of malicious and false statements that seriously injure innocent persons. To safeguard the rights of all citizens, American as well as British law has for centuries provided a remedy and damages for injured citizens in the courts by means of libel suits.

Again, in the U. S. and Great Britain, censorship of newspapers is strictly avoided. But in time of war, when the publication of news regarding the movement of troops would aid the enemy, a mild form of censorship has been adopted in both countries, and it has been completely abandoned at the end of the war.

In 1919 the Supreme Court, in the Schenck case, upheld the conviction of a person who had attempted, by speeches and pamphlets, to obstruct the recruitment of men for the Armed Forces of the U. S. during the First World War.

The unanimous opinion of the Court, read by Justice Holmes, an outstanding defender of free speech, employed a new yardstick for measuring the limitations on this freedom. In each case, the test must be "whether the words used are used in such circumstances and are of such a nature as to create a clear and present danger."

This was the origin of the wellknown "clear and present danger" doctrine that has been generally followed by the Supreme Court.

This series is taken from Ideas in Conflict, Liberty and Communism (DOD Pam 5-11), (DA Pam 355-133) published by the Directorate for Armed Forces Information and Education, Department of Defense.

PONDER THIS

Thomas Paine once said, "These are the times that try men's souls. The summer soldier and the sunshine patriot will, in this crisis (Revolutionary War), shrink from the service of his country; but he that stands it now, deserves the love and thanks of man and woman. Tyranny, like hell, is not easily conquered."

Course in Home Nursing Will Begin On Monday

Home nursing will be taught on post beginning April 30, with afternoon and evening classes to be conducted at the office of the American Red Cross field director.

The course will consist of seven, two-hour periods, the hours to be announced later. Instruction will be given in small groups with as many classes as necessary to meet the demand for the course.

Applicants should be mature adults.

Instruction will include what to do when illness occurs, how to recognize symptoms and report them to the doctor, care of the patient, administration of medication and simple tretments, control of communicable disease, and community health service aids.

Civil defense measures, shelters radiation and fall-out problems will be presented.

Students will be shown how to make care of the patient simpler for a housewife. Adaptation of the regular family diet to the needs of the patient will be discussed.

Instructors for the course will be Mrs. John Terrill and Mrs. John D. Callahan.

For information about the classes telephone MU 9-5944.

JCOC FIRE-POWER SHOW
Will Demonstrate Army Might

Post Ready For JCOC Exhibitions

Troop and fire-power support for the demonstrations in the Army phase of the Joint Civilian Orientation Conference (JCOC) will come from various units here.

Purpose of the Department of Defense-sponsored conference is to show selected business cultural, professional, military and government leaders the capabilities and limitations of today's Army.

The 1st Infantry Brigade will supply over 1,000 men, in addition to many different types of Army weapons.

Unique Unit

The majority of the men and equipment will come from the 2nd Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery the most unique artillery unit its size in the Army.

The battalion maintains a gigantic arsenal for its Infantry School support mission and is capable of delivering more fire-power than a division artillery unit.

Other units of the 1st Infantry Brigade participating will be the 1st Battle Group, 29th Infantry and the 1st Armored Rifle Battalion, 58th Infantry.

National Guard units demonstrating their capabilities for the conferees will be the 111th Signal Company and the 156th Signal Battalion.

The 156th is composed of four companies from the Michigan cities of Adrian, Kalamazoo, Monroe and Detroit. The 111th is from Greenville, S. C.

Air Support

Fixed and rotary wing aircraft support will be supplied by Lawson Army Aviation Command. LAAC will also provide aircraft maintenance support needed for the demonstrations.

Units within LAAC participating include the 1st Aviation Company; Headquarters Company, 3rd Transportation Battalion; 31st Transportation Company; 70th Aviation Operation Detachment; 202nd Transportation Company; 202nd Transportation Detachment; 414th Transportation Company, an Army Reserve unit from Greenville, S. C., and Headquarters and Headquarters Company, Lawson Aviation Command.

Over 700 members of the Strategic Army Corps' 2nd Infantry Division will offer a variety of support during the demonstrations.

One of the high points of JCOC will be a demonstration of a reinforced rifle company in defense, during which all weapons utilized in support of a forward rifle company will be fired.

Conferees will see Rangers in action, displaying mountain climbing techniques, rope drops and a live reptile demonstration.

Special Forces

Members of the 5th Special Forces Group, 1st Special Forces, Fort Bragg, will perform special warfare techniques.

Airborne training will be explained by members of the Airborne Air Mobility Department.

Conferees will also witness a massive Airborne assault, utilizing troops of the 101st Airborne Division from Fort Campbell.

MASSIVE AIRBORNE DROP
Will Be Staged for JCOC Conferees

NG, Reservists Depart Aug. 1-9

The 19 National Guard and Army Reserve units that have been training at Fort Benning since being called to active duty last October will leave the post for their home stations August 1 to 9.

First to depart will be the 322nd Ordnance Company, a Reserve unit from Dover, N.J., and the 105th National Guard Military Police Company of Utica, N. Y., which will begin their return trip Aug. 1.

On August 5 the 128th Medical Company of Fairhope, Ala., 156th Signal Battalion of Detroit, 114th Engineer Company, Washington, D. C., and the 111th Signal Company, Greenville, S.C., all National Guard units, leave.

Reserves Depart

The same day three Reserve units will depart. They include the 891st Medical Detachment of Atlanta, 489th Engineer Battalion of Little Rock and Pine Bluff, Ark., and the 389th Medical Detachment of Cleveland Heights, Ohio.

The 129th and the 216th Medical Companies from Springhill, Ala., and Lake Village, Ark., respectively, will depart August 7.

Also leaving on the same date are the 186th Engineer Company of Brewton, Ala., and Company C, Signal Battalion of Festus, Mo. All are National Guard units.

The 391st Engineer Battalion, a Reserve unit from Greenville,

CG, Mayor Cite Armed Forces Week

A proclamation and a message from the mayor of Columbus and the post commanding general have been issued, requesting residents of the area to participate in the observance of Armed Forces Week, May 13-19.

Armed Forces Day, May 19, will culminate a week of special events in celebration of Armed Forces Week, an annual tribute to the servicemen and women of the nation.

Proclamation Text

In his proclamation, Mayor J. Steve Knight said; "Whereas, Armed Forces Week is being observed throughout this nation as a national event; and

"Whereas, the City of Columbus is uniquely situated

CONARC Chief To Open JCOC

Conferees in the Army phase of the Joint Civilian Orientation Conference will be greeted at an official banquet Wednesday by Gen. Herbert B. Powell, commanding general of the Continental Army Command.

Gen. Powell will be principal speaker at the banquet to be held in the Supper Club Annex of the Main Officers Open Mess.

Among those who will bear Gen. Powell's address are Sherwood H. Egbert, president of the Studebaker Corporation, South Bend, Ind.; Robert C. Bassett, vice president of the Joseph Schlitz Brewing Company, Milwaukee, and Leonard Von Bibra Sutton, Chief Justice of the Colorado Supreme Court.

Other guests of the Defense Department include such top business and professional leaders as Richard T. Albers, vice president of the B&C Auto Electric Company, Anchorage, Alaska; Horner Gray Bartee, vice president and general manager of the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company, New Orleans.

Albert W. Bayer, vice president, Hughes Tool Company, Culver City, Calif.; George Boman, general manager, Clark County Wholesale Mercantile, Las Vegas; Benjamin Franklin Clark, medical doctor from St. Johnsbury, Vt.; Edward S. Gillespie, vice president, Public Relations, Supreme Life In-

Stahr Resigns Post as Head Of U. S. Army

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Secretary of the Army Elvis J. Stahr, Jr., will resign his post June 30 to take the presidency of Indiana University.

He will take charge of Indiana University the day following his resignation.

The university trustee's unanimous choice of Mr. Stahr for the job had been held up since last Friday to give him time to confer with President Kennedy on his leaving the cabinet.

Mr. Stahr is a native of Kentucky and served in 1954-56 as provost and law dean at the University of Kentucky, of which he was a 1935 graduate, majoring in English literature.

He was president of West

AF Week

adjacent to the most outstanding military installation in these United States; and

"Whereas, we, the people of Columbus, should take time from our daily tasks to reflect upon the status of our Armed Forces and realize the protection afforded us through their efforts;

"Now, therefore, I, J. Steve Knight, Mayor of the City of Columbus, Georgia, do hereby proclaim the week of May 12, 1962, as 'Armed Forces Week.'"

Major Gen. Ben Harrell's message, addressed to all post personnel, reads, "Saturday, the 19th of May, has been set aside by Presidential Proclamation to increase public understanding of the role of the Armed Forces as a defensive shield in partnership with our allies of the Free World.

"It is a day on which the citizens of our great nation are given an opportunity to see for themselves that 'Power for Peace' is not an idle slogan, but a tangible evidence that our men and women in uniform, backed up by a modern arsenal of weapons, ships and planes, will ever be alert to the need for the preservation of our freedoms.

"Power for Peace stems from the dedicated efforts of the entire American people, whose understanding and support contribute so immeasurably to the strength of our defense. Armed Forces Day 1962 provides us an appropriate occasion to show the American people that their confidence in the men and women of the Armed Forces is truly deserved.

"In order to further their understanding and support, we at Fort Benning are displaying our military skills and equipment for the citizens of our neighboring communities. I urge all members of this command to participate in this joint observance with our civilian neighbors, and I call upon you to join me in rededicating our efforts to merit the profound trust which the American citizen has bestowed upon us."

Reservists

is scheduled to depart the same day.

The last groups to leave the post include the 131st Ordnance from Oxford, Ala., and the 138th Transportation of Cocoa, Fla., National Guard companies, and the 223rd Signal Company of Indianapolis, 414th and the 674th Transportation Companies of Greenville, and Orlando, Fla., respectively, Reserve units. They will leave August 9.

In the initial release announcement, President John F. Kennedy stated, "The release is not the result of a major change in the international situation, but the result of our successful build-up of permanent instead of emergency strength.

"The units we release will remain available in a high state of readiness if a new crisis should arise requiring their further service . . ."

All the units will be given technical and administrative inspections to prepare their personnel for discharge and release of the units from active duty. Members of the units also will be processed for pay and allowances before their departures.

Youth Fitness Week Has Meaning for Us

Does National Youth Fitness Week, which is observed May 6-12, have an application to people in the Armed Forces? Most assuredly. Servicemen can support its purpose of stressing the importance of physical, mental, moral and spiritual health in young Americans by serving as an example.

Pessimists for years have been lamenting what they see as a deterioration in the health and character of young Americans. They cite statistics on teen-age delinquency and Selective Service rejects to paint an alarming picture of youth in serious trouble. Well, it doesn't pay to take a pooh-pooh attitude to some of the facts they present, reflecting as they do grave social problems that resist easy solutions. But is the picture as dark as some well-meaning observers would have us believe?

For example, a new study prepared by the Army Surgeon General's Office reveals that 68 per cent of young Americans with a military obligation have qualified for service in recent years. And, says this report, "Previously published studies that dealt exclusively with the result of the examinations of draftees have been grossly and quite misleadingly . . . misinterpreted."

We in the service have only to look around us to know that by and large American youth —especially in uniform — isn't going to the dogs. Young men return to civilian life after military duty in better physical and mental shape than when they came in.

Career people who are parents have a special responsibility in the matter of youth fitness. The kind of counsel and guidance they give in this matter cannot really be duplicated by church or school. The home influence is unique.

For today's youth is tomorrow's citizen. In President Kennedy's words, "The strength of our democracy is no greater than the collective well-being of our people."

Liberty and Communism

(Fourth of an AFPS Series)

Civil Rights and Subversives

One of the outstanding differences between Communist regimes and democratic governments is their attitude toward the problem of liberty and authority. In democracies the problem is approached with the intention of finding a reasonable compromise between complete individual liberty and the claims of society or the general welfare.

Under communism the problem is simply brushed aside. For example, the Soviet Constitution includes a detailed Bill of Rights which is not respected in practice. The liberty of citizens is not honored. All persons must be subordinated to the Communist Revolution, under the sole guidance of the dictatorship of the Communist Party.

Communist Party members are pledged to a world conspiracy to destroy constitutional government in all countries, the result of which would be the destruction of the civil liberties of all citizens. In a government dedicated to liberty compelled to allow such unrestrained freedom as to permit its own destruction by violence? The only reasonable answer is: No.

This problem was presented in an appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court by eleven leaders of the American Communist Party who had been convicted of conspiring to teach and advocate" the overthrow of the U. S. Government by violence.

Chief Justice Vinson, speaking also for Justices Reed, Burton, and Minton, pointed out that a constitutional government has the right to protect itself against attempts to overthrow it by violence.

In upholding acts of Congress to safe-guard the government as justified limitations of freedom of speech, he added, "Obviously the words (clear and present danger) cannot mean that before the government may act, it must wait until the putsch (revolt) is about to be executed, the plans have been laid and the signal is awaited.

"If the Government is aware that a group aiming at its overthrow is attempt-

The Judge Says . . .

This is the first article of a two-part series.

Indebtedness is a major concern of this command. Grave hardships, embarassments and terminated Army careers have resulted from improperly used credit. Upon close scrutiny, it has been found that many of the ramifications of improperly used credit have been caused by the wife, who insists upon a standard of living above the means of her soldier husband.

She often makes purchases on credit, which are not, debts of the husband. At some later date, the husband is notified of the debt and a demand is made upon him by the seller to pay it. Through his own ignorance, he agrees to pay or is advised to pay, and thereafter makes some payments which upset his budget to such a degree that he cannot adequately take care of current bills which accumulate into delinquent accounts. This article will attempt to answer the question: "When is a husband liable for the debts created by a wife?"

In theory, the husband is liable for the debts of his wife only when she is his agent. The law of agency is much too complex to be covered in detail in this short article, but in simplified types (1) EXPRESSED AGENCY, (2) IMPLIED AGENCY AND (3) AGENCY IMPOSED BY A LAW OR STATUTE. The relation of principal and agent arises whenever one person authorizes another to act for him, or subsequently approves the acts of another in his behalf. The creation of the agency relationship generally arises from the consent of the parties.

An EXPRESSLY CREATED AGENCY — case may be a product of the oral or written contract of the parties. An IMPLIED AGENCY — Case 2 is also an actual agency; it is a fact which is to be proved from deductions and inferences and from other facts and circumstances. For example, an agency may be implied from prior habits or from a course of dealings of a similar nature between the parties especially where the agent has repeatedly been permitted to perform similar acts in the past; but when the agency is implied, the agency must be determined from all the facts and circumstances.

The question in the abovementioned agencies, i.e., ex-

Chaplain's Corner

A Good Conscience

By Chaplain (Capt.) Frank E. Deese

How often have you heard someone say, "I follow my conscience and as long as I do that, everything will be alright."? Let us examine this statement and see if it is as true as it looks on the surface.

Webster defines conscience as: "A knowledge or feeling of right and wrong, with a compulsion to do right."

This then involves the use of reason in making moral decisions. As the eye must distinguish between light and darkness, so the conscience must distinguish between good and evil.

But conscience itself may lie asleep or half asleep. It may be like a clock which in one man strikes clearly and loudly; in another the hand points silently to the figure on the dial, but does not strike. The conscience is bound to have a guide on which to base judgement and that guide is found in the Commandment of God.

Conscience is not a divine interpreter; the judgement and understanding enlightened by God, determines right and wrong, conscience approves and urges to duty. The basis of an awakened, enlightened conscience is the Law of God.

Thus, if you labor only to satisfy your conscience, it will become far more exacting than you know. True peace is not found there, but in a right relation to God.

The Psalmist once said, "Then I shall not be ashamed when I have respect unto all thy Commandments". The spirit of God is uniform in his work. He can make the conscience as tender as the eye, which is so easily offended by a tiny mote.

Paul had a very tender conscience for he wrote once, "Herein do I exercise myself to have always a conscience void of offense toward God and toward man".

Follow your conscience — yes, when it is awakened, enlightened and directed by the spirit of God.

The Surgeon Says:

Uniting Science And Patient Care

By Lt. Col. Thomas Laughlin, Jr., MSC

The doctor's little black bag — the traditional symbol of American medicine — follows a different path today than it did 50 years ago. Then it made most of its trips between the doctor's office and the patient's home; today it travels most frequently between the office and the hospital.

The little black bags' altered path illustrates the changing patterns of medical practice — the trend toward centralizing medical care in the hospital.

With the shift from the home to the hospital a new ingredient has been added to patient care — the highly technical methods resulting from the scientific revolution of the 20th century.

Certainly science and technology play a large role in today's hospital, with its cobalt bombs, X-ray machines, electrocardiographs and antibiotics, but they are useless without the doctors, nurses, technicians and other human beings.

The combination of science and individual patient care is the theme of National Hospital Week, May 6-12. This observance, originally celebrated as National Hospital Day, has been marked annually since 1953. Sponsored by the American Hospital Association, it is held each year during the week of Florence Nightingale's birthday (May 12).

The contents of the doctor's little black bag have changed only slightly in the last 50 years, but the changes again illustrate the trend toward the hospital. Added to the bag are some new drugs — particularly antibiotics and stimulants for starting stopped hearts. Subtracted are the equipment and instruments the doctor used at the patient's home for surgery, obstetrics and emergency treatment of injuries.

Nowadays, the doctor admits surgical and obstetrical patients to the hospital and meets the injured patient at the hospital's emergency room.

The hospital has indeed become the community's center for health care. In the past 50 years, it has added laboratories, diagnostic X-ray machines, cobalt units, pharmacies, and a host of other facilities necessary for the patient's recovery.

Scientific progress during the last century has produced unparalleled medical care, but this scientific treatment has not — and cannot — replace the very necessary personal attention and care of human beings.
