Answers to the most frequently asked questions about DRUG ABUSE

What are the long-term physical effects of extended marijuana use?

These are not precisely known. Extensive scientific research is underway to answer this most important question.

Do heavy users suffer physical withdrawal symptoms like the narcotic addict?

No. Sudden withdrawal may provoke restlessness and anxiety in a few persons who daily smoke large amounts of hashish, but true withdrawal symptoms as seen in the herion addict do not develop.

What kinds of emotional problems can the marijuana user have?

Anxiety reactions and panic states have been noted. Accidents have occurred due to impaired judgment and time-space distortions. The user, especially if he is inexperienced, may become excessively suspicious of people and take action that leads to injury. A toxic psychosis consisting of mental confusion, loss of contact with reality, and memory disturbances has been recorded.

The effects of prolonged use are not scientifically known. In those countries where cannabis use has been traditional, excessive amounts are claimed to induce loss of motivation, apathy, memory difficulties and loss of mental acuity. Reports of psychotic breakdowns from the extended use of marijuana are frequently found in the medical literature of the Near and Middle East, but these require further scientific investigation.

Does the heavy use of marijuana affect the personality development of the young person?

It can. By making marijuana a career, the young person avoids normal life stresses and the problems that are an intrinsic part of growing up. He therefore misses the opportunity to mature to his full physical and mental potential. In addition, the developing personality is known to be susceptible to the effects of all mind-altering substances.

'Rock's Support' holds anniversary celebration

The "Rock's Support" celebrated its 54th birthday June 18 with a pass in review and battalion picnic.

The 2nd Battalion, 10th Artillery, 197 Infantry Brigade, known as the Army's largest TO and E Artillery battalion, was organized June 1, 1917, at Ft. Douglas, Utah, from elements of the 6th Horse-drawn Field Artillery. The battalion became part of the 3rd Division in November of that year. Since then, it has been redesignated several times, and in September 1962, it took its present designation in the 197th Inf. Bde. as the 2nd Bn. (Composite), 10th Arty.

Since its activation the 10th Artillery served in World Wars I and II and the Korean War. The battalion received its name, the "Rock's Support," for action in WWI when it fought with the 3rd Infantry Division (Rock of the Marne) in the second Battle of the Marne in France.

Lt. Col. James W. Wurman, battalion commander spoke at the review which was followed by a picnic featuring food, free beer and soft drinks, and track and field events. HHS Btry. and A Btry., tied for the over-all championship in the day's events.

Winning the three-point-seven-mile relay race was HHS Btry. D Btry. won the volleyball competition and A Btry. won the tug of-war competition. The howitzer competition was won by C Btry.

Sp4 Elmore Thrash, HHS, won the 100-yard dash. The 400-yard dash was won by Sp4 Isaac Wheeler, also of HHS Btry. Sgt. Alvin Green, A Btry., won the one-mile run and 2nd Lt. Patrick Kelley, also of A Btry., won the two-mile run. The A Btry. team won the one-mile relay.

Winning the Commander's Pentathalon was SSgt. Eddie Groom, 183rd Chem. Plt. Groom also won the father and son three-legged race with the help of his son, Peter.

Infantry Magazine clarifies MVA test

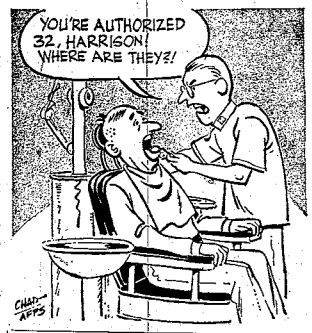
In a "Blueprint for Tomorrow," Infantry Magazine's July-August issue clarifies the Modern Volunteer Army experiment.

The magazine is available at most Fort Benning Post Exchanges.

The feature article, "Blueprint for Tomorrow," in which Lt. Wendell R. Cochran covers the goals, the reaction, and the distorted public image of the Modern Volunteer Army experiment, describes the actions implemented and some of the results.

Othe features include:

"AWOL," by Capt. Fenley D. Stanford Jr., who discusses the causes and effects of a soldier's going AWOL, pointing out some of the signs which indicate that a man is about to go AWOL and some of the measures commanders can take to reduce the incidence of AWOL in their units.



"Montagnards Become Rangers," in which Maj. Thomas M. Johnson traces the turbulent history of the Civilian Irregular Defense Group (CIDG) from its inception in 1961 as a Special Forces-advised counter-guerrilla organization to Jan. 4, when the last CIDG unit became a Ranger unit of the South Vietnamese Army. The issue also carries all the regular Infantry features —Infantry News, Commandant's Notes, Forum, Enlisted Career Notes, Combat Notes, and Infantry Wife, all in this issue of Infantry, "the professional magazine for Infantrymen."

Reservists are eligible for special VA benefits

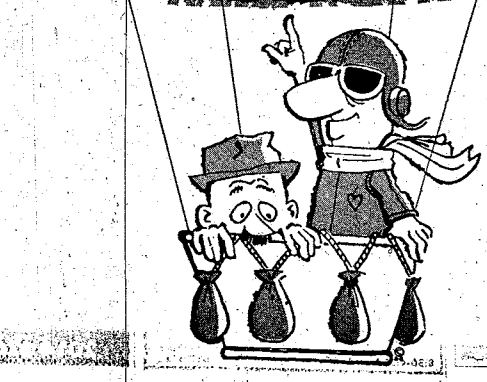
ATLANTA — Georgia Veterans Service Director Pete Wheeler reminds National Guardsmen and Armed Forces Reservists who undergo active duty training, usually during the summer months, that they are eligible for certain VA benefits in the event they are disabled by injury or disease during their period of training.

One important benefit is compensation from the VA for injuries sustained during training or while traveling to and from the training location. "No minimum time of service is required in order to receive compensation for disabilities resulting from injuries," says Wheeler, "but to receive compensation for disabilities incurred by diseases, guardsmen must have been on active duty for a period exceeding 30 days." Wheeler added that to receive any of these benefits, a guardsman must file a claim with the Veterans Administration establishing a service-connection for the disability.

Other benfits provided guardsmen and reservists include guarantees against loss of their jobs, accrued vacation time and certain other employment rights. Employers are required to permit the reservists to fulfill their training obligations. To be entitled to employment benefit protection, however, the reservists must report back to their jobs on the first scheduled working day following completion of their training.

Information on benefits available at VA offices

A wealth of information on veterans benefits under the G.I. Bill is available at any Veterans Administration office or veterans' service organization.



Pamphlets cover benefits and opportunities for Vietnam Era veterans; medical, dental and hospital benefits; education assistance for sons and daughters of veterans; group life insurance conversion plans; details about disability compensation and pension payments; information on the American flag for burial or memorial purposes; facts on the purchase of mobile homes; and guaranteed loans, as well as many other subjects.

While most returning servicemen and veterans receive these pamphlets, frequently they fail to take the time to read them and they become lost or discarded. New copies are available by writing the local VA office.

Offices of the VA are listed in the white pages of telephone directories.

Training Media Branch affects Infantry worldwide

By Rick Knepper

"We're the fountainhead of Infantry School communications worldwide" stated Maj. Raymond J. Villalobos, chief of the Training Media Branch at Fort Benning. The Training Media Branch is part of the Training Division of the Office of Doctrine, Development, Literature and Plans (ODDLP) of the Infantry School.

Unit training officers, Infantry School instructors and Infantry soldiers rely upon the material prepared by the Infantry School and printed in Field Manuals (FMs), Technical Manuals (TMs), Training Circulars (TCs), and other study aids. Although thousands of Infantrymen depend upon this training media, "very few of them are aware of our job and the detailed preparation that goes into the media before our office okays it for Army-wide distribution," Maj. Villalobos said.

The Training Media Branch has four primary missions. "All four missions must complement each other," said Maj. Villalobos, "to facilitate uniformity of instruction throughout the Infantry."

Final supervision and preparation of some 200 applicatory - type Department of the Army publications is one of the missions. Applicatory-type literature is based on established methods. Maj. Villalobos refers to this type of literature as "how to do it material."

A second mission of the branch is the production of training films and review of the U. S. Army Infantry School's portion of the Department of the Army Motion Picture-Television Production Program (DAMP-TPP).

Developing MOS Evaluation Test Plans, reference lists used as study aids, and test questions for even Infantry MOS is a third mission.

A fourth missin is coordinating the production of all Educational Television (ETV) tapes which support Basic Combat Training and Infantry Advanced Individual Training (AIT) conducted throughout the Continental United States Army Training Centers (CONUS USATC).

Maj. Villalobos emphasized that the training media produced the USAIS effects the Infantry missin throughout the world, including the Army Reserve and National Guard.

"Changes to field manuals and other training aids are often received from soldiers stationed worldwide," Maj. Villalobos explained. "And the Training Media Branch monitors this communication and applies it to the four primary missions."

The walls of the Training Media Branch office are covered with flowcharts and diagrams describing the complex route that training media must go through before it is released and put to use.

The process of producing training literature publications at the Infantry School begins with the preparation of the Infantry School portion of the CONARC Army-wide two -year training literature program. All departments responsible for publications submit to the Training Media Branch a list of publications which they intend to revise or change in the next two-year period. The list also includes new publications. The two-year program is consolidated by the Training Media Branch and submitted to CONARC for review. CONARC consolidates programs for all Army service schools and submits to the Assistant Chief of Staff for Force; Development Department of the Army for approval.

Maj. Villalobos divides his staff into three editorial teams and a film liaison section. Each editorial team consists of one writing editor and one editorial clerk. The Film Liaison Section consists of Capt. Marshall Rackley, the USAIS film liaison officer, and Mrs. John Welch, the film coordinator. The complexity of the Training Media Branch job is taxing but Maj. Villalobos maintains a professional business type atmosphere in his office.

Richard Ulrich, a Civil Service writing editor, has the duty of reviewing and revising the literature prepared on Infantry AIT standards. He served two tours as an instructor at the Infantry School and feels he has a wide background for the job. "I've taught many of the things I'm now writing about," he said.

Ulrich feels an elimination of the verbosity in military writing to "reduce to the essentials" would improve the value of Army manuals.

Writing editor William Land, who supervises Infantry Unit Training Literature, shares Ulrich's views. "We should eliminate 1930 Army language," he said, "We're attempting to change the language to be palatable to the men." An example he gave was the preparation of ROTC manuals in textbook form.

The editor handling the ROTC literature is Edward Sullivan. He expressed his concept of the Training Media Branch goals noting that "The School should always be thinking Infantry branch. This means Army-wide not only for today but for tomorrow. The better we are with our communication to the Infantry the better the Infantry can be."

Preparation of material at the Training Media Branch is not limited to written material. A great deal of time and money is spent in the preparation and production of training films and ETV tapes. At present USAIS is responsible for the production of 146 ETV tapes.

Some of the training films now in production as a result of the efforts of the raining Media Branch are: "Fundamentals of Rifle Marksmanship," "Ambush," "Raid Patrol," "Close Air and Artillery Support," and "The Combined Arms Team in Night Defense." Estimated value of the current inventory of Army-wide Infantry motion pictures is $3.7 million.

Worldwide contact between the Infantry School and the Infantryman was stressed by Maj. Villalobos and his staff. Performance oriented material designed to aid the Infantry in accomplishing its mission is the end product of the Training Media Branch," Maj. Villalobos added.

Other personnel in the Training Media Branch are editorial clerks: Mrs. Mike Jones, Mrs. Joseph Scarpaci and Mrs. Reed Lawton.

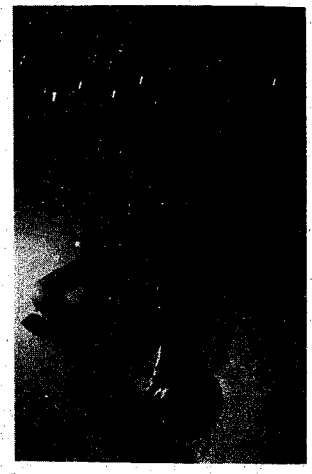
Leaders' Reaction Course teaches individual thinking

By MARTIN McWILLIAMS



If many obstacles are presented to the individual infantryman as he goes about his duties, then each of those obstacles is magnified many times for the leader who must see that the obstacle is surmounted by five or 40 or 100 men.

The Infantry School at Fort Benning, Ga., is in the business of training Infantry leaders, and for them the Leadership Department of the school has developed an obstacle course which is more than a series of obstacles. It is a series of realistically simulated small-unit tactical situations, requiring leadership under pressure, quick thinking and quick decisions. Required training for Infantry Officer Basic, Officer Candidate and Noncommissioned Officer Candidate Course students, it is a thinking man's obstacle course; it is called the Leaders' Reaction Course (LRC).

This highly sophisticated type of obstacle course was pioneered by the pre-World War II German Army, borrowed by the British Air Force, and brought to this country by the U. S. Air Force. The Infantry School modified the Air Force concept to fit the requirements of Infantry training and established the LRC at Fort Benning in 1954.

Teams of five students attempt each obstacle, working together, with one man acting as leader. The team leader must plan and direct the execution of the task in the face of a 15 minute time limit and the vocal harassment of an "audience" team. Group leadership rotates, so that each member will lead the group in an attempt on a different obstacle.

The course is designed to allow the student to practice leadership techniques which he has been taught, and to identify weaknesses and strengths in himself and in his fellow team members. Of salient importance is the immediate critique of each leader's effort by an observer-rater. This officer draws the connection for the student between his performance on the course and leadership situations which he may encounter later, and counsels the student on how he may improve his techniques.

Fort Benning's summer employes earn, learn and serve

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article on summer employment at Fort Benning was written by Charles Sabens and Deborah Dudley, both summer employes assigned jobs in the Infantry Center Information Office. Charles is a graduate of Auburn University and will enter premed School at the University of Alabama this fall. Deborah will be a senior at Jordan High School in September.)

Approximately 500 youths are getting a chance to do their thing at Fort Benning this summer, and their thing is WORKING.

Summer positions at Fort Benning are being filled through three separate programs — the Summer Employment Examination Program (SEEP), the Summer Aides Program (SA) and the Neighborhood Youth Corps (NYC).

One hundred college students and high school graduates have been hired through SEEP administered by the U. S. Civil Service Commission. It is designed to provide students with funds to continue their education.

The Summer Aides program, employing about 200 students, covers temporary trainee positions which require no specific knowledge or skill. Individuals are selected for this program through the Civilian Personnel Division from referrals made by the Georgia State Employment Service.

The largest single employer of youths on post is the Neighborhood Youth Corps. Sponsored locally by the Lower Chattahoochee Community Action Agency, NYC has employed 126 high school students in various public and nonprofit agencies at Benning. Tentative plans, according to Fred Holloman of the Civilian Employment Office, indicate that approximately 225 will be employed under the program by June 28.

NYC is a youth work-training program established by the Economic Opportunity Act and administered by the U. S. Department of Labor. Its function is to help youth "earn, learn and serve."

Participants in NYC include young men and women of low-income families between the ages of 16 and 21. Enrollees are either currently attending school or will return to school this fall.

Several of the high school students employed at Fort Benning this summer under NYC were interviewed on the job last week.

Ricky Branscomb, a junior at Spencer High School, is working in the bindery section at the Army Field Printing Plant. He is a son of Mrs. Earlene Branscomb of 2738 Holiday Park. His duties include operating the plant's duplicating machine and stapling copies into booklets.

Branscomb has been working for the past three summers but this is the first year he has participated in the Neighborhood Youth Corps at Fort Benning. According to Branscomb, he "wanted a place to work" and is happy working in the printing plant.

Also employed at the Army Field Printing Plant is Margie Lee Brown, a daughter of Mrs. Marjorie McSwain of 448 Broadway in Columbus.

A student at Baker, Margie is working in a secretarial position sorting out work jackets and lining up tickets in the printing office.

She finds the experience valuable since she plans to attend business school and later work as a secretary. Margie commented that "if students have a chance, they should participate in the program."

Branscomb and Brown are two of six NYC employes at the Army Field Printing Plant.

"It is beneficial to have a job experience," according to Jasper Lawrence, a student at Spencer, employed in the Supply and Storage Department at Fort Benning. Lawrence is a son of Mrs. Fern Lawrence of 3103 11th Ave. in Columbus.

Lawrence is responsible for issuing supplies for use in dependent quarters on post. While working through NYC, he is acquiring on-the-job training in the warehouse business.

Another NYC participant is Gwendolyn Jones, a daughter of Mrs. Mildred Jones of 2917 Ninth St. Her first year with NYC, Gwendolyn is employed in the Central Files Office at Martin Army Hospital.

Included among her duties are filing, typing, answering the telephone, assembling the hospital's "We Care" folders and other secretarial work. Gwendolyn is currently a senior at Carver High School and plans later to become a secretary. She enjoys her work and is happy just to be doing something during the summer. About the program, Gwendolyn says it is "nice to help people and it keeps kids in school."

Sheila Hodges, also a Carver senior, is employed in the laboratory at the hospital, where she spins down blood samples and measures clotting times. Later she expects to work in the hospital's blood bank.

Sheila is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Hodges of 2938 E. Seventh St. and is participating in her third summer with NYC. Her plans for the future include training as a medical technologist.

According to Sheila, NYC is "a very good program and provides a good opportunity to work toward occupational goals."

Pamela Hayes, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter T. Hayes of 405-C Wilson Apts., is employed in the Recreation Department of Special Services.

Pamela's duties include typing, filing, stamping records and other clerical work.

About the program, Pamela said NYC is an "educational program that keeps her busy during the summer." A sophomore at Jordan High, her plans include possible training as a secretary after graduation.

NYC "teaches kids to carry out things they like to do" according to Michaie Reece, a son of Mrs. Mabel Reece of 212-G Peabody Apts.

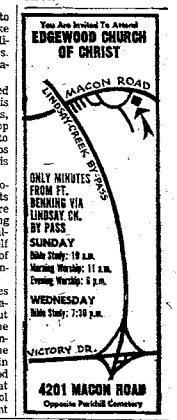
Reece is also employed in Special Services. His job includes cutting grass, working at the Craft Shop and carrying supplies to the different service clubs at Fort Benning. Reece is a junior at Jordan.

Supervisors in the program commend that students employed under NYC are quick to learn and willing to work. Participants realize a chance to gain self respect and a feeling of belonging, both fundamental for good citizenship.

NYC not only supplies Fort Benning with valuable summer employes, but it permits students in the valley area to obtain gainful employment during the months they are not in school. The Neighborhood Youth Corps is aimed at keeping youths in school and providing important work experience by helping them earn, learn and serve.

MESSAGE OF THANKS

Upon the completion of the initial test phase of the VOLAR experiment, I would like to express my gratitude to all of you, both military and civilian, who worked so diligently to make the test a success. The combined efforts of all the members of the Fort Benning community have provided the basis for important and lasting improvements at Fort Benning and in the Army. Your active participation in the program has clearly demonstrated your desire to do something useful for Fort Benning, for the Army and for your country. Your contributions to the VOLAR experiment have been both an inspiration and a source of pride to me and I am particularly appreciative of the efforts of so many of our people to give our soldiers better support and better services and with a smile.



As we enter the second phase of the experiment on 1 July, I ask each of you to continue giving this vital and exciting project your full and unqualified support. I assure you that Project VOLAR will continue to receive my most dedicated efforts. Again, my sincere appreciation for your invaluable assistance.

Presented MSM

Col. Clifford H. Ford, center, deputy director, Directorate of Plans and Training, U.S. Army Infantry Center, is congratulated by Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander, after he was presented the Meritorious Service Medal at a ceremony here recently. Mrs. Ford looks on. Col. Ford, who is now on assignment to the Republic of Vietnam, was cited for initiating numerous management improvements in the area of plans, operations and training "which exhibited a degree of professionalism far beyond the scope of his normal responsibilities and which were of far reaching significance to present and future U.S. Army Infantry Center capabilities."

Inf. Board tests hand grenade

The "Bang! I Got You" method of casualty identification during field exercises and training maneuvers has long been a point of contention between friendly forces, agressor and control personnel who were charged with casualty assessment.

The need for a safe yet realistic field training hand grenade, which could provide a means of evaluating the effectiveness of hand grenades used during field exercises, has resulted in the testing of the German training hand grenade for field exercises and maneuvers at the U.S. Army Infantry Board here.

Testing of the field maneuver training grenade, under tactical conditions, to determine its suitability for use as a training item by the Army, is scheduled to begin this month at the Infantry Board.

The German training hand grenade for field exercises and maneuvers is designed to simulate use and exposure to grenades during maneuvers. It was not designed to replace the practice grenade now in use to teach trainees handling and throwing of live grenades. The test item ejects white talcum powder over an area of several meters, simulating a bursting radius and marking casualties. The test grenade provides a positive means of identification of participants of a field exercise that would become casualties as a result of hand grenades.

The configuration and size of the field exercise grenade is similar to standard fragmentation grenades now in use. It weighs approximately .59 of a pound and is 5⅛ inches long and is 2⅜ inches in diameter. It has a 3 to 5 second delayed fuse and it emits sound and flash effects for training purposes.

The hand grenade simulator has, in previous tests, proven to be completely safe for use in the immediate vicinity of troops according to Maj. Donald Kelsey, test officer for the project.

The present field exercise training grenade has undergone modifications by the manufacturer and the current check test will determine if these modifications are effective.

During testing of the grenade a series of six individual subtests will be conducted. Durability, portability, functional reliability and safety tests will be conducted on the field training grenade by test soldiers.

Special management class for supervisors graduates

Twenty-nine students graduated June 24 from a special management course for supervisors. The course was sponsored by the Directorate of Personnel and Community Activities.

The course, held approximately once every three months, is designed to sharpen management skills through a series of lectures on various subjects. Included in the discussions were ideas such as communications, recognition of employes and equal opportunity.

The participants were welcomed to the course by Co. J. W. Haley, Director of Personnel and Community activities.

Graduates of the class, which began June 14, included:

Alfred L. Allen, labor-management relations supervisor, Civilian Personnel Division; Capt. Bridget K. Carpenter, head nurse, Ward B-7, Martin Army Hospital (MAH); James B. Carter, assistant manager Rod and Gun Club; SFC Clifford C. Cook, NCO in charge, Coronary Care Unit, MAH; Ronald D. Daniel, computer specialist intern, Management Information Systems Office (MISO).

Capt. Lawrence J. Deane, emergency room nurse, MAH; Homer S. Gallops, carpenter foreman, Directorate of Facilities Engineering (DFAE); Jimmie L. Gregory, labor lead foreman, Headquarters Command, civilian labor pool; Peggy W. Hawkins, personnel staffing specialist, Civilian Personnel Division; Harry D. Holmes, accountant intern, Finance and Accounting Division.

Andy L. Johnson Jr., pest controller, DFAE; Betty P. Kelly, program analyst, Comptroller Office; Gloria C. Kelsey, educational services assistant trainee, Educational Development Section; Clifford D. Linder, property book officer, Family Housing; Kathleen H. McVay, administrative assistant, Chaplain Division.

John Mathews, supervisor, Computer Section, Central Ration Distribution Unit; Louton D. Murray, supervisory operating accountant, NAF Central Service Office; Mary Helen O'Conner, assistant travel clerk, Transportation Division; SFC Jack R. Pines, assistant custodian, NCO Club; Nelson V. Raines, computer specialist, Office of Data Systems, USAIS.

Ruth H. Shuff, computer programmer, Office of Data Systems, USAIS; Priscilla J. Smith, personnel management specialist, Civilian Personnel Division; Jack R. Vernon, career intern, Civilian Personnel Division; Kelton Webb Jr., supervsor, Land Management Branch, DFAE; Geraldine T. white, clerk supervisor, Services Division, Directorate of Industrial Operations; Ronald G. White, grounds maintenance lead foreman, Land Management Branch, DFAE.

Henselman top M-16 qualifier

Cadet Miles L. Henselman of Oregon State University outshot 224 fellow students to become high qualifier with the M-16 rifle in the ROTC Ranger Cup.

Henselman scored 75 out of a possible 80 on the range. All of the Ranger students in the special class qualified with the M-16.

The ROTC Ranger Camp is being conducted this summer for the first time. Students who complete six weeks will receive summer camp credit. Those who successfully finish the course receive the Ranger tab.

The addition of weapons training — an integral part of the regular ROTC camp — is one of the few modifications to the Ranger course being taken by the cadets.

Auburn opens 53rd play season

"Plaza Suite," by Neil Simon, will open Auburn University's 53rd play season July 6-10 at the Little Theater on South College Street.

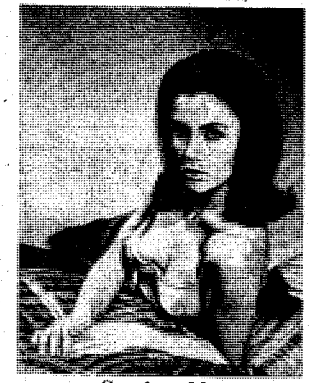
Curtain time is 8 p.m. and all tickets must be reserved.

Directed by Dr. A. Cleveland Harrison, the production is a series of one-acts, all of which take place in a suite of rooms on the seventh floor of New York's famous Plaza Hotel.

The Broadway comedy is one of the most popular in recent years being produced in community, summer and university theaters across the nation.

"Visitor from Mamaroneck", the first play, features a middle-aged couple about to celebrate their 24th wedding anniversary. The couple are played by Carol May of Notasulga and John Elliott of Anchorage, Alas. Lana Million of Birmingham, Steve Hilton of Morgan and Nick English of Palm Bay, Fla., are also in the cast.

"Visitor from Hollywood" centers around the reunion of a home-town boy who made it big in Hollywood and his old high school girl friend. Jef Farr of Auburn and Bonnie McWhinnie of Montgomery play the couple.



The last play, "Visitor from Forest Hills", depicts the valiant effort of a mother and father to coax their daughter out of the bathroom to get married. Lyn Babb of Montgomery and Wayne Moore of Leeds play the mother and father, with Sharon Stevenson of Abilene, Tex., and Nick English as the bride and groom.

Production design for "Plaza Suite" is by R. C. Torri, with lighting design by Terry Cobb.

Reservations may be obtained in the University Theater Box Office, Music Building Annex basement. General admission tickets are $2. Phone reservations may be made by calling 826-4154 during box office hours: 1-5 p.m. daily and Saturday, 9-1 a.m.

Along lines of 'Superstar'

Church offers workshop

A summer workshop in drama is being offered at St. Paul United Methodist Church, 2101 Wildwood Ave., in Columbus.

The non-denominational workshop, oriented toward junior high through early college students, takes its cue from the current off-Broadway hit, "Jesus Christ, Super-Star."

Workshop director Jim Rierson explains that the group will work with modern original plays, both secular and religious. Examples are "The Mask," a religious play about the false faces people hide behind in their daily life, and "The Undertaking," a secular drama about two gravediggers who like to discuss philosophy while they work.

Rierson, recently named as minister of Christian education at St. Paul's, states that his goal is to stimulate the church through modern drama in relating to what he calls "the modern world."

"With the success of such works as 'Jesus Christ, Superstar,'" says Rierson, "it has become obvious that a trend toward taking 'religion as art' is taking place outside the church."

"So the object of this workshop," he continues, "is to start the same trend within the church."

The type of play Rierson has chosen for the workshop he refers to as "good drama," his term for the play that puts man in a modern setting having modern problems. This he separates from the simple 'religious drama," which he characterizes as being often "disenchanting."

The workshop is divided into three month-long sessions, the first already underway and due to end July 2. The next session begins July 5 and lasts through July 31, and the final sessions begin Aug. 9 and ends Sept. 4.

Cost for each of the courses is $25, and Rierson says that those beginning the course after the starting date may extend through part of the next session to complete the course.

Rierson states that the program will teach all aspects of theater, including stagecraft, acting, makeup, stage design and others. The highlight of the program comes with the staging of the plays in areas throughout Columbus.

Rierson will be assisted by Chris Abbattisti, a drama student at Columbus College. Both have had extensive experience in theater.

For applications or further information call Rierson at 327-7419 or Abbattisti at 561-3880.

NASA lab plays part in movie

Credit NASA's Limar Receiving Lab with a major assist in the filming of Robert Wise's Universal production, "The Andromeda Strain," which starts today at a Columbus theater.

The key set of the science-thriller in Technicolor and Panavision, based on Michael Crichton's phenomenal best-seller and starring Arthur Hill, David Wayne, James Olson and Kate Reid, exhibits anti-contamination facilities similar to those in use at the Lab.

More than $300,000 was expanded in creating on studio sound stages a five-level underground laboratory duplicating many scientific devices employed in processing astronauts returning from the moon.

Blueprints for the modernistic set were drawn by Boris Leven, an Academy Award winner for his contributions to Wise's earlier production of "West Side Story."

Steppenwolf in concert

Steppenwolf will appear in concert at Macon Coliseum July 9. The rock group will perform some of their greatest hits; "Born to Wild," "Magic Carpet Ride," "Sookie Sookie," "Rock Me," and "Monster." They will also do numbers from their newest album "Steppenwolf Gold." Tickets are $3.50, $4.50 and $5.50. The doors open at 7:30 p.m. and the show starts at 8:30 p.m.

Clothing issue deficiencies still present problems

Recent reports indicate that enlisted personnel are continuing to arrive at new duty stations and-or CONUS POE's for movement overseas without authorized allowances on hand. Deficiencies are attributed to the failure of losing organizations to complete the issue of authorized allowances prior to departure of the individual or failure of the individual to have all items, issued earlier, in his possession at all times.

Army Regulations 700-84 and 612-2 assess pecuniary liability to those individuals who possess unserviceable items or who cannot produce items issued earlier. Commanders, more especially unit commanders, are responsible for action as prescribed in these regulations, in order to preciencies occurred as a result of command failure.

In order to reemphasize the importance of individuals having the prescribed authorized clothing items in their possession, the following policies will be strictly adhered to. Losing organizations at Fort Benning will conduct a clothing showdown inspection prior to departure of the individual for a permanent change of station. Command action includes orientation and individual handouts, advice that all items are to accompany the individual and not shipped as hold baggage or non-accompanied baggage, preparation of documents to permit completion of allowances, advice on individual liability and guidance on safeguarding the clothing record while in the possession of the individual during transfer.

Personnel arriving at personnel centers for overseats processing for geographical areas other than Vietnam will have their complete authorized clothing allowance in their possession. Those deploying to RVN will have in heir possession when reporting to the port of embarkation those items reflected in table D-1, AR 700-84, columns 3 and 4, plus the field jacket. Items reflected in column 2, table D-1 will be shipped or carried by the individual to home of record, place of residence or be placed in nontemporary storage at government expense.

Synopsis

THE PRIEST'S WIFE (Rated GP) — In Padua, Italy, when beautiful Valeria Billi (Sophia Loren) finds out that the man she has loved for four years is married, she becomes depressed and attempts suicide. On impulse she dials "The Helping Hand" and the soothing voice on the other end of the phone, who turns out to be Marcello Mastroianni, tries to prevent the tragedy.

On her insistence he tells her he is a professor and single but omits the fact that he is a priest. Finally they meet. She is again disappointed and hurt but is still hopeful. After all the Church is liberalizing. They fall in love. At first he submits and finds himself torn between his love for Valeria and his love for the Church. The choice is difficult but he has made it.

PROMISE AT DAWN (Rated GP) — Romain Gary's memoir to his devoted, indomitable mother.

Bunny hug

Petite Bunny Mayo, born in Vietnam, but now a resident of Washington, D.C., aspires to be a model and hopes to eventually open her own agency. If you need a pen pal, write Bunny at Suite 502, 1025 Connecticut Ave., Washington D.C. 20036.

THE ANDERSON TAPES (Rated GP) — is a prize-winning suspense story about a million dollar robbery of a luxury apartment house on New York's Upper East Side. Sean Connery masterminds the heist; the ubiquitous Dyan Cannon portrays his mistress. Broadway actor Christopher Walken, making his jovie debut, plays an alarm system specialist. The film was directed by Sidney Lumet and will grip you with all the runaway excitement that hugged the world of crime.

The story centers around the love that is shared between a mother (Melina Mercouri), a small-time Leningrad actress of the silent screen and her only son Romain, portrayed by Assaf Dayan. She emigrates with him to France, the land of her dreams, where she hopes her son will someday do great things. Taking on many different jobs she puts Romain through school and he last sees his mother when he bids her good-by before leaving for the French Air Force.

Number of U.S. veterans hits 28.2 million mark

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The number of American veterans has hit a high of 28.2 million, the Veterans Administration announced.

The VA said the number of living veterans is likely to continue to increase in the foreseeable future since the military discharge rate has been running over 80,000 a month and older veterans have been dying at a rate of about 25,000 a month.

Of the nation's 28.2 million veterans, some 25.1 million served during a wartime period and an additional 3.1 million served after the Korean Conflict and before the Vietnam era — Feb. 1, 1955 to Aug. 4, 1964 inclusive.

Most of the million veterans now in training under the post-Korean G. I. Bill served during the Vietnam era (after Aug. 4, 1964) and this group also makes up the large bulk of those now applying for G. I. loans.

In contrast, these young Vietnam era veterans compose only 15 per cent of the patients in VA hospitals, and about 10 per cent of those on the disability compensation rolls.

Veterans who served after Jan. 31, 1955, are eligible for all VA benefits. While time has run out for World War II and Korean conflict veterans for G.I. Bill education benefits, unused portions of home loan guaranty benefits have been restored.

Veterans interested in VA benefits information should contact their local VA office or veterans organization service officer.

'Mod Shop' opening planned

Grand opening for the post's "Mod Shop," featuring the latest in mod clothing and styles for men and women, is slated for noon on July 14.

Opening day will feature music by "The Rellections."

The "Mod Shop" — Fort Benning's newest — is located in building 1827 on Marchant Street near Ingersoll Street.

Operating hours will be 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays; 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Tuesdays, Thursdays and paydays, and 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Sundays.

Fog cutter investigated

USACDC, FT. BELVOIR, Va.—A means for clearing supercooled fog from an area one kilometer long and 100 meters wide is being looked at by the Army's Combat Developments Command (CDC) headquarters at Ft. Belvoir, Va.

The system CDC envisions for Army airfields located above 40 degrees north latitude, would dispense propane into the atmosphere as an aerosol.

Supercooled fog is composed of droplets of water suspended in air at 32 degrees or below which can be triggered and released by the propane spray.

The tank, valves and nozzles for the propane dispenser would be truck-mounted but CDC's requirements-writers also recommend it be manportable.

Assignment officer says

Putting the right man in the right job is the mission of Maj. Robert L. Hayes II, assignment officer for the U.S. Army Infantry Center. (USAIC).

"The primary thing I try to do in this job is to take the monthly input of officers in the Infantry Center and place them where they will be most productive to both themselves and the Infantry Center," Hayes explained.

An average of 70 officers per month pass through the major's office for assignment interviews. "The interview is a necessary step in gaining information on a man's experience and service level."

"If the man needs instructor time I try to place him in an instructor position," Hayes added. "If he needs command time I try to place him in a command position."

Close attention to an officer's service record, formally known as Department of the Army Form 66, is beneficial in deciding what position an officer should have. By reviewing the record the man gets an opportunity to experience duty which will help him progress in his career.

In order to stay abreast of job openings in the Infantry Center, Hayes reviews the monthly strength reports which are submitted by the center. The strength report contains information on unit losses and openings which could be filled by incoming officers.

Hayes, a 1969 graduate of the Infantry Officer Advance Course (IOAC), moved to his present assignment on June 10. The major has served two tours of duty in Vietnam, the most recent being with the 24th Corps Headquarters as an assistant secretary to the General Staff in 1969-70. Since then, Hayes has been working with the Tactics Committee in the Brigade and Battalion Operations Department (BBODD) at the Infantry School.

THE FORUM

By JOHN DAVIS

More Beer Than Champagne

Long the game of the affluent, golf has been dominated of late by a 31 year old Mexican-American who is as different from the usual golf playing country club set as beer is to champagne. Little Lee Trevino, a high school dropout and the son of a poor West Texas farmer became golf's new hero June 21 when he bested blond haired, blue eyed and college grad Jack Nicklaus to capture the U. S. Open title. It was the second open title in four years for Trevino, and the $30,000 first prize money moved him into first place in earnings, among the touring pros. One of the more colorful players to ever join the tour the ex-marine learned the game as a youngster while caddying in his hometown of El Paso, Texas . . . After nine years, the nomadic coach's All America game appears to have found a home in Lubbock, Texas. Promoters liked the 43,000 who turned out in the summer night's heat and extended the contract for two more years. Prior to moving to Texas the game was played in Buffalo and Atlanta and was almost cancelled due to lack of fan interest.

Adios Padres?

A couple of weeks ago after he had lost a tough one run decision Philadelphia Phillie hurler Rick Wise remarked in disgust that the only way a Phillie pitcher could be a winner was to pitch a shutout and hit a home run. Well, last week taking his words to heed Wise not only hurled a shutout but a no hitter as well. Then to ensure his win, he hit not one but two round trippers in pacing the last place, anemic hitting Phils to a 4-0 victory over Cincinnatti . . . And speaking of Philadelphia it must have been especially sweet to Montreal manager Gene Mauch when his Expos, only in their third year of competition, moved into fifth place in the National League East, dropping the Phillies into the cellar. Mauch as you may remember was piloting Philadelphia in 1964 when the Phillies blew an eight game lead with only 10 games to go and lost the National league flat to St. Louis on the last day of the season. The fans never forgave the able Mauch and he left the city of brotherly love with no love lost for the Philadelphia patrons.

When San Diego lost its NBA Rockets to Houston last week it could well be a preview of things to come. Unless attendance picks up the Southern California city just might be bidding adios to its baseball Padres as well. Toronto, Buffalo and Dallas-Ft. Worth are among the cities showing interest in the San Diego franchise . . . And Houston bounceball lovers are ecstatic over the return of Elvin Hayes. The Big E, mainstay of the Rockets, played his college ball at the University of Houston and led the Cougars to the runnersup spot in the 1968 NCAA tourney.

Dallas is rapidly becoming the poorhouse of the NFL. All pro flanker Lance Alworth recently joined teammate Craig Morton in filing for bankruptcy. Both Alworth, who was acquired from San Diego in May, and Morton, who quarterbacked the Cowboys to the Super Bowl last campaign, list ill-fated business ventures as the reason for their financial woes.

Encouraging Words

While overall attendance is up in the National league Atlanta is 100,000 behind last years gate. By contrast the New York Mets have already surpassed the one million mark and the All Star break is still two weeks away . . . Kansas City's Cookie Rojas, one of the leading hitters in the American loop all year, will be conspicuously absent from the playing field on All Star day. A write in campaign to get the Royals talented second sacker in the American League lineup hasn't met with much success . . . This is from John Carmichael. The Sports editor of the Chicago Daily News: Just prior to the kickoff the football coach was in the dressing room with his hapless team. The club was not only winless but hasn't scored a single point in the nine game season. Although his team was a heavy underdog and would no doubt lose its final game with ease the coach felt compelled to deliver the traditional pre-game pep talk. After glancing around the room at the sad faces and realizing the futility of the situation the coach decided to offer the following words of encouragement. "Okay, if we receive, just try as hard as you can to recover the fumble, and if we should kick do what you can to block the try for the extra point."

First-half champions in brigade fast-pitch softball

First-half play in the USAIC Brigade Fast-pitch Softball League came to a close last week with The School Brigade capturing the first-half championship. TSB posted a first-half record of 28-2, losing one game to the second-place 197th Infantry Brigade and the other to the third-place team the 931st Engineers. TSB scored 152 runs while holding their opponents to 35 runs. The Champions are: front row (L-R) Louis Santos, Pete Gunn, Ben Cooper, Jim Dougherty, Brent Minster and Glen Marshall, back row (L-R) Gene Wilson (coach), Rich Cerio, John Daly, Nick Kranz, Dave Klevan, Tom Klein and Pat Chambless.

All-Army Rifle, Pistol Championship complete

The crowning of new marksmanship champions made history June 26 at Fort Benning with the firing of the final shot in the 1971 All-Army Rifle and Pistol Championship Matches.

More than 400 aspiring shooters, the cream of the Army's marksmen to include Reserves and National Guard, swapped shots to determine the champions crown in both rifle and pistol competition, during the week of June 20 through 26.

The inescapable finish was almost written with the firing of the first shot in both the shoulder fired and handgun weapons as SFC Hezekiah Clark and MSgt. James L. McQuien dominated their respective categories. Both champions are from the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit. Clark broke three records on his way to the championship in the pistol competition while McQuien broke his own record established in 1968 when he returned to the throne of the All-Army Rifle marksman.

Of the 43 matches fired during the championships, this years shooters exceeded the 1970 Champions scores in 25 events. While performing that exemplary effort, they also established seven new records. Of those seven, Hezekiah Clark of the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit, the newly crowned All-Army Pistol Champion, walked away with three when he set new heights in center fire pistol slow fire competition, 45 caliber pistol rapid fire and the center fire pistol aggregate.

Other new champions establishing all-Army records were: SSgt. Elmer Myers of Third Army who fired a record in 45 caliber service pistol, SSgt. John Smith in the 45 caliber pistol championship, the U.S. Army Europe Rifle Team, which achieved new heights in long range rifle competition and MSgt. James L. McQuien who broke his own grand aggregate record in All-Army rifle competition.

With the 43 new champions named during the week-long competition, seven of them were double champions, while two men were multiple champions.

The two multiple champions were quite naturally Clark who won six events and his runner-up.

197th takes USAIC handball title, dumps 931st

The 197th Infantry Brigade team handball squad met their USAIC first-place counterparts, the 931st Engineer Group, Monday evening on Essebagger Field. In the most important contest of the season for both clubs the Infantrymen hustled to a 13-8 decision to win the first USAIC team handball title.

The quickness of the 197th placed the brigade in a 5-2 first-half lead. Ron Coleman scored two goals just before the close of the first stanza propelling the "Roadrunners" into their three-point half-time margin.

Forced to play "catch-up," the Engineers were pressured into continual turnovers. As a result 197th court players Allen Rowland, William Wolford and George White reeled off three straight goals to send the brigade into a commanding 8-2 advantage.

The Engineers fought to within four points, 10-6, on two scores by Earl Daniel and one by Jonny Garcia. A penalty shot by 197th court player George White gave the brigade a five-point margin, 11-6. The brigade added two more scores on spectacular shots by Alphonso McCallum and White while the Engineers could score but one on Walter Robertson's hard-thrown shot into the 197th net.

White scored four goals in the blockbusting contest and Coleman whipped home three to lead the 197th scoring. Earl Daniel garnered three scores to lead the Engineer scoring.

931st player-coach Dan Stallings pulled out all the stops in the championship contest but to no avail as the 197th team coached by "Wild Bill" Davis overwhelmed the Engineers.

197th CHAVAGA, independents match auto skills

B-STOCK WINNER IN SECOND 197TH AUTOCROSS
George Utter gets the flag as he crosses the finish line

197th Infantry Brigade personnel, CHAVAGA Region members of the Sports Car Club of America (SCCA) and independent drivers matched their driving skills against a two-and-a-half minute time course on Munson Heliport at Kelley Hill June 19 in the second 197th Autocross Slalom.

Scores of spectators watched as 54 entrants pitted their wits and automotive skills against the time track. At the end of the day's competition Maj. Richard P. Runke, deputy staff judge advocate for USAIC, had won individual honors for "best time of day." Runke tooled through the slalom in his Lotus 7 Mark IV with a winning time of two minutes, 11.577 seconds and set a Munson course record in the process. He also took first place in the Am-Modified division. Runke had previously won 'best time of day" in the first 197th slalom.

Designed to promote safety in highway driving the autocross was sponsored by the CHAVAGA Region of the SCCA. It is run against a time clock with one car in the course at a time.

The event included 10 automotive classes that were bunched into two separate categories; one for 197th Inf. Bde. personnel the other for CHAVAGA Region members and independent drivers.

Winners in the 197th Inf. Bde. category, their classifications and cars were: D-Stock Ron Hanson, Triumph TR 6, Btry. C, 2nd Bn., 10th Arty.; A-Stock, David M. Ridenour, Corvette, HHC, 1st Bn., 29th Inf.; B-Modified, David A. Leamy, Volkswagon, HHC, 197th Inf. Bde.; A-Sedan, Lee Marino, Pontiac, Co. A, 1st Bn., 29th Inf.; E-Stock, Vick Morton, Datsun 1600, Co. A (Spt.), 197th Inf. Bde.; B-Stock, John Kocher, Trumph Spitfire, HHS Btry., 2nd Bn., 10th Arty.; and C-stock John Schnarr, Porsche, Co. C, 1st Bn., 29th Inf.

The 197th ladies division was won by Marilyn Addonizio. Ron Hanson had the best time of day for 197th drivers with a run of two minutes and 31.754 seconds.

The first place winners, their classes and cars in the CHAVAGA and independent category were: A-Stock, Maj. S. D. Storey, Datsun 2000; B-Stock George Utter, Austin-Healey Sprite; C-Stock, Jack Barton, Datsun 2000; D-Stock, Larry Collings, Triumph TR 6; E-Stock, Carrol Howard, Fiat 850 Spider; A Sedan, Mike Shepard, Volkswagon Sedan; A-Modified, Maj. Richard P. Runke, Lotus 7 Mark IV; and D-Modified, Gregg Siegart, Full-Race Austin-Healey Sprite.

In the ladies division Jake Collings took first place honors. Marilyn Addonizio won the most improved time of day trophy. A "slow-poke" trophy went to Doris Roe for having the slowest of the best times.

The Benning Pony Club placed second at the 16th annual Southern Regional Rally which was held at Tuscaloosa, Alabama, on June 24-27.

Over the past several years the Benning Pony Club has been an active member of the United States Pony Club. Organized in 1953 and patterned after the British Pony Club, the US Pony Club's purpose is to encourage sound riding practices among the young. Though most of the mounts are larger than pony size by U. S. standards the British commonly refer to any horse belonging to a child as a pony; hence the name "Pony Club."

At the regional rally the various clubs were represented by a team made up of four riders and one stable manager. Benning's team members this year were Terry Lahnstein (team captain), Robin Galer, Sidney Boettcher, Laurie Pennisi and Monique Schoonover. They were required to compete against the other teams in dressage, cross country, stadium jumping and all teams were graded on the results of a written examination and stable management. Capt. Bert Page, the Pony Club District Commissioner, accompanied the team to the Rally as a team advisor.

ROD AND GUN CLUB Notes

BY BILL KLOEB

The word "ecology" has a lot of meaning. It encompasses our environment, where we live, what we wear and eat and even the air we breath. Water and air pollution, individual and group litter and depletion of natural resources are some of the undesirable things that have a bad effect on the way we live and the way our children and subsequent generations will have to live if something is not done now to correct or eliminate the bad practices that are making this world a worse place to live.

With such a vast problem it's no wonder the average person becomes confused when he begins to think about solutions and what part he can play in the overall problem.

A lot of suggestions have been made by various individuals and groups and there are long lists of things an individual should or shouldn't do to help out in the battle against the bad by products of an expanding population. If every individual would follow these suggestions it would certainly help.

It's a good and commendable thing to not add to the litter, water pollution, air pollution and to write our elected officials concerning situations that must be remedied by our governments. This is good but its not good enough. The country needs not only to temporarily halt the constant deterioriation but to find ways to make the corrections permanent and to actually improve the situation.

Take Postive Action

Instead of just taking our own empty drink cans, bottles and other rubbish to a trash can we can collect up the debris scattered hy less thoughtful people and dispose of that too. One individual can clear up the litter of a dozen or more people. That will help a lot but it doesn't go far enough. All that litter was at one time a part of our natural resources in the form of some ore or vegetation before it was processed into the containers or other items we find so necessary today. What happens to it after it goes into the trash can? Some of it is burned — more air pollution. Some of it is covered over in sanitary fills — using good real estate for a non-productive purpose.

The fact is that most of the trash we throw away can be processed and used again. Manufacturers are now advertising that a good percentage of the raw materials they use in the manufacture of their product have been salvaged and have not caused a large drain on our natural resources. They call the process recycling. Salvage companies will pay good money for properly segregated trash. It's a big business.

It's taken a long time but that brings us to a local effort to salvage trash that would otherwise be completely lost to our economy.

A group of ecology minded individuals called "CURE" (Congress of United Residents for Ecology) will sponsor an "Ecology Day" at Fort Benning on July 7.

"CURE" participants will collect paper products, cans, bottles, old batteries, brass, steel, iron and other waste material that can be recycled.

All they ask is that residents on post have trash segregated into three piles or containers (metal, glass and paper products) and located in a convenient place for pick up. Lets get with this one. If we can't help lets not hinder. If you want to help call 545-1144.

June Fishing Derby

SSgt. Jimmy R. Ford, Headquarters Command leads the catfish contest with a 10-pound, 1-ounce specimen he took from Victory Pond. he used liver for bait. Ford's wife, Gisela, leads the bream fishermen with a 1-pound, 7-ounce catch from Patterson Pond.

SFC Elbert Aaronwood, 360 McCartha Drive took the largest bass registered this month from Averett Pond. His 8-pound, 4-ounce prize went for a black plastic worm.

Rod and Gun Club Election

Ballots listing the names of individuals nominated by major units for positions on the club board of governors have been distributed. These should be available in all unit orderly rooms. They may also be obtained at the Rod and Gun Club. You don't have to vote for the nominees. You can write in your choice but vote one way or the other. Ballots must be returned to the club headquarters by July 10. Bring them out or send them through message center.

Third Army slates dependent handball meet

The Third U. S. Army has announced their first dependent youth Team Handball Championship Tournament to be conducted Aug. 16-20.

Any active Army dependent male youth, ages 13-17 years as of July 1, will be eligible to participate in the installation Tournament. For competitive purposes entries will be divided into two groups, ages 13-14 and 15-17. One team from each group will be selected to represent this installation in the Third U. S. Army level championship.

Registrations were being accepted at Youth Activities Athletic Office, Building 1054 and the Youth Activities Gym, Building 1055, between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. daily. Instructional training was scheduled to begin at the gym on June 28.

The game of team handball is played between two teams, each with 7 players; one goalie, 3 offensive and 3 defensive players (plus substitutes). Many of the familiar skills of soccer, basketball, and speedball are included in the game. The game is also filled with movements, courage and strength, combined with running, jumping and throwing. The rules are simple easy to learn and team play is not complicated. All youth participating in the tournament will compete in the President's Physical Fitness Test which is incooperated in the program to promote team handball within the Continental United States, Alaska and Hawaii.

The sport is readily adapted to all phases of physical education, recreation and athletics and provide a pool of youth teams for the 1976 Olympic Games. The International Olympic Committee has incluced team handball in the program of the 1972 Olympic Gaues to be held in Munich, Germany. Indi-Bldg. 1054.

viduals are urged to register now and learn to play this exciting amateur sport. Appropriate individual and team awards will be presented.

Other information and details regarding the conduct of the program may be answered by contacting the athletic director at Youth Activities 545-3803.

The explosive U. S. Army Infantry Board softball team won its 8th straight game June 25th, crushing the 609th Transportation Company 14-3.

The win gave the Boarders sole possession of first place in the Aviation Command Slowpitch League.

Trailing early in the game 3-0, the Boarders rallied in the third inning for 8 runs behind the hitting of Glenn Davis and Joe Balich. Tight defensive play led by shortstop Harold Lanier, held the 609th to three runs, allowing only four hits after the first inning.

The Boarders are averaging 10 runs per-game and are holding their opponents to an average of 3 runs.

Team coach, Paul (Chi Chi) Rodriquez, says that this year's Board team is

Rolf defeats Mauldin, takes handicap tourney

Ray Rolf defeated Allen Mauldin, Sunday, to become the 1971 Handicap Golf Champion of the Fort Benning Country Club.

Rolf qualified for the finals by winning the second flight of the tournament then defeating fourth flight winner Robert Snyder.

Mauldin was the first flight winner. He defeated fifth flight winner Gerald Knapp and Howard Mahler, winner of the third flight to earn his place in the final match.

Kent Imal was the runner up in the first flight, William Jones in the second, Richard Nelson the third, Roy Whitley the fourth and Herbert Erb the fifth.

Blair Ford won the first flight consolation flight, Jack Johnson won the second flight, Dave Benkosky the third, Ray Wagner the fourth and Garry Thornley the fifth.

Awards will be presented at an informal social in the ball room of the Country Club at 5 p.m. July 4. All participants in the tournament are invited to attend.

The 931st Engr. Gp. Team Handball squad trounced The School Brigade, 9-4, June 23 at Weatherby Field.

931st jumped to an early lead against TSB, racking up twice as many goals in the first half as their opponents to lead at the halfway point 4-2.

931st went on to add five more tallies in the last stanza to put the game out of TSB's reach.

Leading the hard-pressed scoring drive for the Engineers was lanky Walter Pirkle who sailed three goals into TSB's net to get the 931st scoring honors. Following in close suit was Walter "Shotgun" Robertson and Earl Daniels with two tallies apiece. Rounding out the Engineer scoring barrage were the additional points tossed by Johnny Garcia and Ralph Okimoto.

Defensively, goalie Paul Scott delivered his usual sparkling performance at the 931st net, blocking 14 scoring attempts by TSB.

Fort Benning Judo Club has 3-state tourney

Under the leadership of the Fort Benning Judo Club, teams from Alabama, Georgia and Florida will meet in a Judo Tournament to be held at the Briant Wells Field House, Saturday, July 10.

Scheduled to get under way at 11 a.m. the AAU sponsored event will find eleven teams, including the Fort Benning Judo Club, vying for titles in the four-hour meet. Among those invited to participate in the tournament are the Black Belt Association of Atlanta, judo teams from Florida State and Auburn universities and the Ft. Rucker Judo Club.

Fort Benning crowns orienteering champions

More than 100 men, women and children armed with compasses and various forms of bug repellants toured the woods and hills surrounding Victory Pond, Harmony Church Area during the first Fort Benning Orienteering Championships held here Saturday, June 26.

Families enjoyed picnics as more venturesome members tramped through the surrounding area, competing for one of the trophies offered to the first and second place winners in five categories of orienteers.

Men over 30 years of age were competing for the seniors trophies. There was a competition for women over 18 and two classes for the junior competitors, a wayfarers class for children from 15 to 18 and two classes for the junior competitors, a wayfarers class for children from 15 to 18 and a novice class for those 14 years old and under. Experienced orienteers had been assigned to an open class. These open entries were competing for trophies and one of the 25 positions on the Fort Benning Orienteering Team and a chance to compete in higher level competition this summer.

Lt. Col. James L. Anderson and his family just about turned the event into a family affair. Anderson won first place in the senior event. His daughter Judy won the event for women and the family made a clean sweep of the novice competition. Son Chris was first in the novice class and daughter Terry placed second in the event.

Maj. Troy T. Shirley, United States Marine Corps, placed second in the senior event. Faith Pfrimmer was second in the women's competition and Bruce Boetcher won the wayfarer event with Frank Finnan placing second.

CCDC men visit Fort Dix

Three members of the Conditioning, Combatives and Drill Committee of the Leadership Dept., USAIS, conducted a liason visit to Fort Dix, N.J. June 17-19.

The purpose of the visit was to observe the implementation of the Basic Physical Fitness Test (BPFT) of the recently developed Army Physical Fitness Evaluation (APFE), and Drill and ceremonies Instruction.

The BPFT, one of seven APFE sub tests, was designed especially to evaluate the physical fitness of trainees and was implemented with all cycles beginning May 3.

471 trainees were observed taking the test and all results were favorable in that the testing personnel had no problems administering the test, no injuries were recorded, and the company averaged paralleled those of the old PCPT.

Wheelchair VA Grant Outlined

ATLANTA, Ga. — A certain group of disabled veterans of wartime or peacetime military service may be entitled under certain conditions to receive a grant from the Veterans Administration for the purchase of a so-called "wheelchair" home that is specifically adapted to their particular needs.

Georgia Veterans Service Director Pete Wheeler said, "In order for a veteran to qualify for this benefit, he must be entitled to compensation for permanent and total disability as a result of a service-connected disability incurred during wartime or peacetime service after April 20, 1898."

Wheeler described the qualifying disabilities as follows: (1) The loss or loss of use of both lower extremities, such as to preclude locomotion without the aid of braces, crutches, canes or a wheelchair; or (2) Disability which includes blindness in both eyes, having only light perception, plus loss or loss of use of one lower extremity. (3) The loss or loss of use of one leg with residuals of organic disease or injury which preclude locomotion without a wheelchair.

VOL. 29, NO. 43 FRIDAY, JULY 9, 1971 32 PAGES — 10c

Rain douses fireworks but 4th carnival goes on

Fort Benning's annual Independence Day Carnival was a big success despite drenching rains that cancelled the evening fireworks display.

James F. Schoonover, Community Activities Association director, said the fireworks display will not be rescheduled.

The slated contests and drawings, though, went on as scheduled, and winners are listed below.

In the Battle of the Bands, winners were (in order) the Swinging Kings, Metal Circus and Bitter Daze.

LaBrenda Wilson took first place in the Talent Contest, Little Markus and the Remarkables won second place.

New holder of the Beauty Queen title at Fort Benning is Linda S. Chevalier, and runner-up is Debra Renate Parr.

In the drawing, the winner of the new sports car is Jimmy F. Klepac, a civilian employe with Purchasing and Contracting.

Winner of the sedan was Kenneth Hubbard, an officer candidate from the 5th Stu. Bn., TSB.

Gayle Henderson of Transportation Motor Pool won the motor cycle; Carolyn D. Adams of DAC-NRI and Lester F. Odum of Co. C, 1st Bn. 29th Inf., won the two TV sets.

The tape player went to John C. Duffy Jr. of Co. C, 5th Bn., 31st Inf., and winners of the cassette players were John Smith, 4th Stu. Bn., NCOC, (first name not given) Hunter, 8th Stu. Bn., TSB, Jose A. Zelazquez, 1st Bn., 58th Inf., and Ernest Alquist, 1st Bn. 29th Inf.

Two golf sets were given, one each to Walter P. White, Platoon Tactics Committee, and Larry Beccue, Co. B, 1st Bn., 58th Inf., car tape players were given to MSgt. (first name not given) O'Neal of DFAE, Roger C. Ross, Leadership Department, and Penny Ferrin and Thomas C. Boling of Company Operations.

Portable radios went to four persons: Lt. Col. Carlos Del Rio, Army Dental Unit, Charles E. Harris of Martin Army Hospital, Capt. A. M. Bliss, 72nd Co., TSB, and Joel W. Humphrey, 1st Bn., 58th Inf.

Watches were won by Frank L. Ball, Hq. Co., USAIB, E. Barker, Army Clothing Sales, Frederick Manigault and Winoma Hamilton. No address was given for the last two winners.

Honored for Tet actions

'68 MoH awardee assigned here

A 1968 Medal of Honor recipient recently has been assigned to Fort Benning to attend the Infantry Officer Basic Course.

2nd Lt. Joe R. Hooper received the Medal of Honor as a result of his valorous actions during the 1968 Tet Offensive in the Republic of Vietnam.

On Feb. 21, 1968, Hooper, then a sergeant, was serving as squad leader with Co. D, 2nd Bn. (Abn.), 501st Inf., 101st Abn. Div., near Hue, when his unit came under heavy fire from across a river. He rallied his men and charged across the river, overrunning several bunkers on the opposite shore.

Although seriously wounded during the action, Hooper refused medical aid and returned to pull back wounded men under fire. He then singlehandedly attacked and destroyed three enemy bunkers. Leading his men against enemy-occupied houses, he was wounded again by grenade fragments.

As his squad reached the final line of enemy resistance, it encountered four enemy bunkers. Gathering several hand grenades, he raced down the line tossing grenades into each bunker as he passed.

With these destroyed, he turned on the last remaining bunkers and destroyed one with an incendiary grenade and neutralized the other two with rifle fire. He then ran across an open field under fire to rescue a wounded man. Returning the soldier to safety, he neutralized the final pocket of resistance with rifle fire.

Hooper would not accept medical treatment until his men had been reorganized and refused to be evacuated until the following morning when this was accomplished.

Hooper, received his commission on his second tour of duty in the Republic of Vietnam in 1970-71 while again serving with the 101st.

On Feb. 14, 1971, as a result of his valorous actions and outstanding leadership during enemy resistance, Hooper was recommended for a battlefield commission.

OCS grad new Army secretary

Robert F. Froehlke, a graduate of the Infantry School's Infantry Officer Candidate School (OCS) and a member of the OCS Hall of Fame, has been confirmed by the United States Senate to be secretary of the army.

Elevation to high government office was the basis of Froehlke's nomination to the Hall of Fame. Other accomplishments which qualify an OCS graduate for nomination are winning the Medal of Honor, elevation to high state office, achievement of the rank of colonel while on active duty and recommendation of the commandant of the Infantry School.

Froehlke was nominated to the Hall of Fame after

3 post soldiers die over holiday

The Fourth of July holiday weekend accident toll marred Fort Benning's commemoration of the holiday this year as three soldiers were killed and six others injured.

One soldier died Saturday while swimming in the Chattahoochee River near the post's boat landing.

A head-on collision in Meriwether County Sunday claimed the lives of two other Fort Benning soldiers and critically injured a third. Five other passengers in the two vehicles also were admitted to the hospital.

It had been two Independence Day holiday periods since Fort Benning had a traffic fatality.

ROTC Rangers begin mountain phase

By Wendell Cochran

One hundred and ninety-eight tired, but spirited, ROTC Ranger students moved into the rugged Blue Ridge Mountains of northern Georgia this week to begin the second phase of their training.

The cadets finished their Benning phase last Saturday with a rigorous overnight attack and infiltration problem.

They received high marks for their performance throughout the Benning phase. Lt. Col. Karl V. Hurdle, chairman of the Benning Ranger Committee, said the cadets, while lacking in some basic military skills because of inexperience, nevertheless performed better than the average Ranger class.

"They did a very fine job," he said. "They remained well-motivated and ready to go."

Emphasis during the Benning phase of the nine-week Ranger course is placed on physical conditioning and basic patrolling skills.

In the mountain phase, taught at the Mountain Ranger Camp near Dahlonega, Ga., students will conduct extended patrols in a conventional environment and be taught basic mountaineering skills.

Climax to the Ranger course, one of the most strenous Army courses of instruction, is the Florida phase, given

'Infantry Magazine' issues book on 'Distant Challenge' in Vietnam

A new book, "A Distant Challenge: The U.S. Infantryman in Vietnam, 1967-70," now is being distributed by Fort Benning's "Infantry Magazine."

The first copy of the book was presented to Maj. Gen. Orwin Talbott, post commander. The presentation was made by Lt. Col. Edward Bradford, "Infantry" editor. Attending the presentation were Col. Herb Frandsen, USAIS secretary, and Lt. Col. Robert Orkand, former "Infantry" editor.

The book, a successor to the previously published "Infantry in Vietnam," is the result of information compiled and edited during the past year from a collection of detailed personal accounts of combat action. The 400-page, hard-cover volume describes a changing war — a war that waned from the fierce fighting of the 1968 Tet offensive and its aftermath to the present pacification and advisory effort.

The book gives a real-life picture of combat in Vietnam from the viewpoint of those who have fought there. The heroism, mistakes and professionalism of the Infantry soldier in Vietnam are depicted on every battlefront and in every campaign, as men of all ranks and all units voluntarily tell their story.

Fully illustrated with maps and pictures, the book includes a detailed glossary and summary of unit histories.

"A Distant Challenge" is also a professional soldier's book. Through combat examples, it illustrates the shortcomings and advantages of various tactics, air support, artillery and airmobile operations. The book brings the reader up to date on the Infantry's progress and the enemy's changing tactics, and presents an accurate historical account of the Vietnam conflict that would be a worthwhile addition to any military library.

Printed by Birmingham Publishing Company, "A Distant Challenge" is available at all military bookstores or by writing to Infantry Magazine, P. O. Box 2005, Fort Benning, Ga., 31905.

Sp4 Takahashi appointed to prep school

Sp4 Bradley R. Takahashi of HHC, 1st Bn. (Mech.), 58th Inf. "Patriotroits," received an appointment to the U.S. Military Academy Prep School in a recent ceremony. Presenting the appointment was Capt. Harold A. Chadwick, HHC commander.

The prep school, located at Fort Belvoir, Va., consists of a 10-month course after which the candidate is considered for a West Point appointment. The program includes academic classes and a full program of civic and athletic activities. Classes are limited to 20 students.

Reward offered for info on greens vandal

The Fort Benning Officers' Open Mess (FBOOM) will pay $1,000 reward to any person providing information leading directly to the arrest and conviction of the individual or individuals who vandalized the FBOOM golf course by driving a car on tees and greens on the night of July 6-7.

Individuals in possession of such information should contact the Provost Marshal by telephoning 545-5222.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT
by
Bill King

A good time to get out last winter's fondue pot. Use it to keep barbecue sauce hot for pouring over ribs or hamburgers at a patio dinner.

The Japanese often make the simplest dish look like a work of art. Cold seafood, for example, may be served within a whole, cross-cut slice of seeded watermelon, garnished with watercress and accompanied by bowls of various sauces.

On a hot summer night, combine beverage and dessert in iced Irish coffee: middle a jigger of Irish whiskey with some sugar in a tall glass, add ice and fill with hot strong coffee. Top with whipped cream.

Refrigerate any leftover egg whites or yolks in small jars. Add a stick-on label with the number of whites or yolks and the date to save a lot of guessing later.

Veteran stage and screen actor Barnard Hughes has a collection of "lucky pretzels" to commemorate his many Broadway appearances. It's a family tradition started in 1959 when his little boy, having a nickel to spend, bought a pretzel from a street vendor to bring to his father as a gift for an opening night.

You'll start a new family tradition, too, the first time you dine at KING'S PIZZA ON CALL. We know you'll enjoy our fine food and pleasant service and keep coming back for more.

Byline Bayonet

(Byline Bayonet welcomes questions of general interest about Fort Benning and the Army. Within space limitations all reasonable questions will be answered. Questions of a purely military nature which obviously could be answered more properly by commanders or supervisors within the chain of command will not be accepted. All questions must be signed with current unit of assignment indicated. Send questions to the Bayonet, ATTN: SFC Bob Edwards, Room 602, Infantry Hall or telephone 545-4792.

Q — What are the chances that a draftee will be assigned to Vietnam as compared to a similar period in 1968?

A — A draftee's chances of going to Vietnam cannot be accurately assessed because of the many variables involved. However the number of draftees in Vietnam, expressed as a percentage of the total number of draftees in the Army, is approximately as follows for the dates indicated:

Mar. 31, 1968, 25 per cent; Mar. 31, 1969, 31 per cent; Mar. 31, 1970, 30 per cent and Mar. 31, 1971, 23 per cent.

Q — When does coverage begin for members who are enrolled in the Servicemens Group Life Insurance (SGLI) program?

A — They are automatically insured from the first day of active duty.

Q — How long does SGLI coverage last?

A — Throughout their entire active duty period and for a 120 days following discharge or seperation.

Q — Do I have to apply for SGLI coverage?

A — No. It is automatically in force in the amount of $15,000. You may select $10,000 or $5,000 coverage. To reduce your coverage you would have to apply through your personnel officer.

Q — Who handles the SGLI program?

A — The SGLI program is underwritten by commercial life insurance companies and administered by the Office of Servicemen's Group Life Insurance (OSGLI), 212 Washington Street, Newark, New Jersey, 07102.

Q — Since the coverage will be automatic will there be any forms for me to fill out and also can I select my own beneficiary?

A — Yes, you will be given the opportunity to list your beneficiary (person or legal entity) or beneficiaries who would receive the proceeds from your policy and also indicate the method of settlement. The policy's proceeds will be paid either (1) in a lump sum of $15,000 ($10,000 or $5,000) or (2) over a 36-month period in equal monthly installments.

Q—What kind of insurance is SGLI?

A—It is group life insurance whose provisions apply equally to all who participate, with the same monthly premiums for all personnel entitled to basic coverage. It is term insurance with no cash surrender value. It is covered by a single master policy but each participant receives a certificate to show he is a participating member.

The judge says

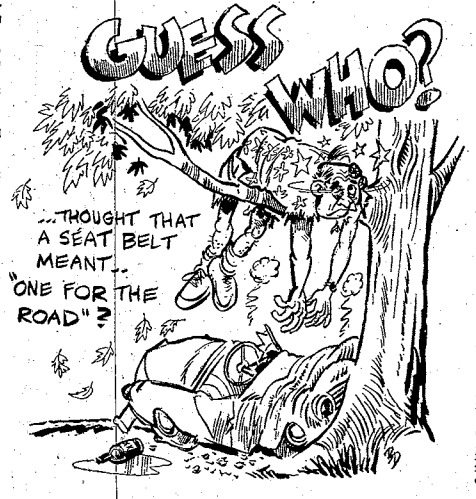
Georgia law gives buyer protection

USAIC LEGAL ASSISTANCE OFFICE — You have returned home to find your wife has just signed a contract to buy a $500 set of encyclopedias from a door-to-door salesman. What can you do? Don't panic — the law may be on your side. You as a Georgia resident may be protected by "The Retail Installment and Home Solicitation Act," enacted in 1967 by the Georgia legislature.

This article is primarily concerned with your rights when you contract to purchase from a salesman at your home. You as a purchaser have the right to cancel this contract if the following conditions are satisfied: you MUST be sold the item (1) at your home (2) by the seller or his representative (3) on an installment contract (4) signed at the time of solicitation. All of the above conditions must be met for you to benefit from the act. However most contracts with door-to-door salesmen are likely to satisfy these requirements.

Notice of Cancellation

To take advantage of your right to cancel you must act quickly. The statute requires you to send notice of your cancellation to the seller at his place of business by certified mail, return receipt requested, postmarked no later than midnight on the day following execution of your contract. This notice of cancellation doesn't have to be in any particular form, as long as it indicates your intention not to be bound by the home solicitation sale.



Penalty

Though you've acted quickly enough to cancel the contract, the seller has the right to charge you liquidated damages, $25 or 5 per cent of the gross sales price, whichever is less, is the amount you owe the seller for his efforts and inconvenience. After all you did agree to pay the full amount so the penalty is in effect a compromise. Since you may have acted hastily in accepting the "sales pitch," you are allowed to cancel the contract by midnight of the next day. The liquidated damages up to $25 reward the seller for his work.

Within 10 days after cancellation the seller must refund to the buyer all deposits including any down payment. If you receive the merchandise sold you must return that merchandise unused in the same condition as received. If you don't return the merchandise the seller can pick it up at the place sold within a reasonable time after notice of cancellation; and the seller can receive from you $5 or the actual cost of picking up the merchandise whichever is less. This is the extent of yours and the sellers obligations.

The Georgia law properly balances your rights and those of the seller. You may have hastily accepted a "sales pitch," yet you may cancel the contract by midnight of the next day. On the other hand you did enter into a binding contract; therefore the seller is allowed to collect up to $25 in liquidated damages.

If there are any questions, please contact your Legal Assistance Officer 545-1311-5441.

Q — My service medical report stated that I have a hernia that I received while in the service. Is it too late to file for a disability pension from the VA?

A — No. There is no time limit for filing a claim for disease or injury a veteran feels was suffered while in military service.

Q — I receive VA compensation for a service-connected disability. Am I also eligible for medication from the VA?

A — Yes, a veteran is eligible for medication from the Veterans Administration if it is required for a service-connected disability.

Military image is an amalgamation

By Rich May

The Army image is an amalgamation of what the Army is and what people think it is. When what exists and what people think exists coincide, the image is true.

An image can be favorable or unfavorable — whether it's true or not. A poor image basically is unfavorable. It is a result of faults in ourselves and faulty thinking about us.

The Army admittedly has a poor image among certain groups in America. We can improve the Army image in two ways: change people's thinking about the Army and change the Army itself.

The Army is changing. The move to the Modern Volunteer Army is beginning to gain momentum. Irritants are being uncovered and eliminated within the limitations of time and money — limitations that are very real. Everything cannot be done right this minute. Money is not available in limitless quantities and, even if it were, change would take time.

Buildings cannot rise automatically from the earth. Soldiers will not be millionaires as of noon today. Today we begin building for tomorrow so that tomorrow will be different from today: That's the meaning of change.

This is not an apology or an excuse to be lackadaisical. We are working to improve the Army — to everyone's benefit — and we have to be patient without being lethargic.

If the Army improves, its image should improve. Of course, there will always be those who will see only what they want to see. They are blind and, perhaps, beyond reach. The majority of Americans, however, are blessed with a critical, but honest eye. They see what the Army is today, and they will see what the Army will become tomorrow.

This is not hope. This is belief in the ability of the Army to regenerate itself and the ability of the American people to recognize and appreciate this regeneration. The Army is changing. Can its image be far behind?

DRAGON to be tested

Spt Paul G. Rouleau of the Support Weapons Test Branch, U. S. Army Infantry Board, prepares to fire the new antitank weapon, the DRAGON, from an armored personnel carrier. The man-portable DRAGON is a light weapon, weighing 30.6 pounds, yet is powerful enough to destroy enemy armored vehicles and other battlefield targets. The weapon will undergo expanded tests at Fort Benning later this year.

Awards presented posthumously

A Bronze Star Medal with first Oak Leaf Cluster, Purple Heart and the Good Conduct Medal were awarded posthumously to Sgt. James A. Michael in a ceremony here recently.

Present at the awards presentation were Sgt. Michael's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Michael of Albany, Ga., and his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Coyle of Gainesville, Ga. The award was presented by Col. Malcolm Baer, Adjutant General, USAIC.

Other survivors include his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Lynch of Gainesville.

Sgt. Michael was killed on Feb. 13 while on active duty in Vietnam.

Before his death, Sgt. Michael had been awarded the National Defense Service Medal' Vietnam Service Medal, Vietnam Campaign Medal, Combat Infantry Badge, Parachutist Badge, Expert Badge with automatic rifle bar and the Marksman Badge with machine gun bar.

The citation in part stated that "Sgt. Michael distinguished himself by outstanding meritorious service in connection with ground operations against a hostile force in the Republic of Vietnam.

"His initiative, zeal, sound judgment and devotion to duty have been in the highest tradition of the United States Army and reflect great credit on himself, his unit and the military service."

Post summer jobs aid students' plans for fall

By Charles Sabers

Eighty-nine of the 100 openings available for college students and high school graduates under the Summer Employment Examination Program (SEEP) have been filled, according to the Civilian Personnel Office at Fort Benning.

The students, employed in grades GS-1 and GS-4, are working in offices, laboratories, research sites and related environments. The positions include clerical, typing stenographic, office assistant, office machine operator and other office duties as an aid or assistant.

Applicants for the program had to be at least 18 years of age at the time of appointment or a high school graduate at least 16 years old. Selection of participants in the program is based on performance on the Civil Service Examination or, for college students, on grade point average.

The majority of the applicants are students who seek finances to further their education.

On the job interviews of some of the students participating in the program were obtained during the past week.

Roger Montgomery is "learning a lot about wildlife and conservation" working as a clerk-typist in the Fish and Wildlife Department at Fort Benning.

Montgomery, a son of Lt. Col. (ret.) Raymond J. Montgomery of 5352 Gettysburg Way in Columbus, helps out wherever he is needed. Among his tasks are planting millet for the coming duck season, spreading fertilizer and clearing weeds along the banks of the ponds at Benning.

A sophomore at the University of Georgia Montgomery is majoring in journalism. This is his second summer working for the wildlife department.

Norman Hammonds, an accounting major at Howard University in Washington, is working in his third summer as a Fort Benning employe.

The college senior, working to defray his expenses at school, is an excellent worker according to his supervisor, Lt. Col. (ret.) Edgar S. Burroughs, of the Range Control Division.

Hammonds works in administration and data processing for the Range Control office. He is a son of Mr. Arthur Hammonds of 109 17th Ave. in Phenix City.

"Working should improve my typing and my bank account," says Judith A. Seaman, an Auburn junior majoring in math.

Judith is employed in the Family Housing Office where she answers the telephone and types orders concerning quarters assignments on post. After being employed at the post exchange last summer, she enjoys the "regular hours" of her current job.

Judith is a daughter of Col. and Mrs. Robert D. Seaman of 200 Baltzell Ave. at Fort Benning.

Mary E. (Betty) Wilkins, a daughter of Mrs. Mildred Wilkins of 3304 Task Drive, Columbus, is employed in the Personnel Control Facility of Headquarters Command.

Betty will be a junior majoring in physical education at Columbus College, but for the summer works in the records sections where she files personnel data.

Winston A. Andrews, a Columbus College graduate in chemistry, is working at Fort Benning to help finance his medical school education. Andrews works in Finance and Accounting where he develops payrolls and keeps W-2 forms up to date in regard to health benefit deductions and union dues.

Field named after 'Patriots' for civic action

By Bob Wheatley

A recent civic action activity harvested another honor for the 1st Bn. (Mech.), 58th Inf. "Patriots." A new softball field in Lafayette, Ala., bears the "Patriot" name.

It began when Lafayette Police Chief James Bozeman, Jr. called on the "Patriots" to help reconstruct a grammar-school softball field. Bozeman first met the "Patriots" when they marched through Lafayette on a 760 mile recruiting trip in May.

1st Lt. Ronald S. Campbell was chosen to coordinate the operation which, included 10 men from the 58th, and engineers from the 72nd Engineer Co. Using heavy equipment, the engineers completed a drainage ditch and graded the field. The "Patriots" reconstructed the whole field to a regulation size.

Backstops and fences were replaced, the infield was raked and conditioned, and baselines and pads were put into place. The job was completed in two days, one hour before a scheduled girls softball game was played on the field.

In appreciation for a thorough and speedy "job well done" on the field, the city of Lafayette renamed it, "Patriot" Field. An invitation has also been extended to the "Patriots" to enter a team in the Lafayette 1st Annual Invitational Softball Tournament.

Army Reservists, National Guardsmen slated for IOAC

Approximately 300 Army Reserve and National Guard Officers from almost every state in the nation will arrive at Fort Benning this weekend to attend the Infantry Officer Advanced Course.

Members of the 2073 USAR School are part of the 12,000 troops of the 99th U.S. Army Reserve Command. Col. Vincent A. Geiger, commandant of the school, charged the faculty and staff to produce "competent and knowledgeable Infantry Officers needed to lead in today's Army."

The school, in its 15th year at Fort Benning, is staffed by educators from leading colleges and universities. It is the largest Reserve school in the nation.

Approximately 70 members of the school arrived at Fort Benning this week as an advance party to prepare for the main group.

Controllers 'police' the air from Lawson towers

By Glen D. Nix

"Then there was the time when we had to clear all runways for an emergency landing by a lady contestant in a cross country air race," reminisced air traffic controller Sp4 Donald L. Blackstone.

What 23 Lawson Army Airfield control tower operators consider routine work might be described as fascinating by the unfamiliar observer. SSgt. William S. Weeden summed up tower operation stating, "The job can be most boring one minute and most hectic the next." But with the average 10,000 flight operations handled monthly by Lawson tower, one might question the boring aspect.

Tower operation at Lawson consists of three positions operated by controllers on eight-hour shifts. A local controller maintains contact with all aircraft in the area, clears aircraft to takeoff or land and issues sequences of landings. The flight data position copies all flight plans, relays departure and arrival times, and coordinates with base operations and the Federal Aviation Administration. The third position, ground controller, issues taxi instructions and controls the movement of all airfield vehicles on ramps and taxiways.

In addition to handling routine operations, the controllers have the ordeal of assisting pilots in emergency situations and initiating precautionary procedures.

When a pilot declares an emergency the controller first orders radio silence to other aircraft in the area. Next, the tower puts through an alert via the "crash phone" to the alert crews MEDEVAC; crash fire crews; ground controlled approach (G C A) radar, which tracks the aircraft in case of a crash or emergency landing short of the airfield; and Detachment 10, 16th Weather Squadron, where a detailed report is made of current weather conditions. In the event of an aircraft accident, the weather for that time must be known to determine if it was a contributing factor.

To become an air traffic controller, a man must attend a 22-week course at Ft. Rucker, Ala. The course has previously been under Air Force supervision at Keesler AFB, Miss.

SFC Robert N. Patterson, Lawson tower chief, explained a few of the major local requirements with which the controllers must be familiar:

Each controller must know and be able to diagram from memory all federal airways within an approximate 100 mile radius of Lawson Army Airfield. He also is required to know the location and exact heights above ground and mean sea level of all obstructions, such as radio towers, in the area. In addition to this, each man must be familiar with Federal Aviation Regulations governing ATC procedures.

"Regulations governing ATC procedures are constantly changing as a result of increased volume of air traffic itself," said Patterson. "I think the controller's greatest challenge is keeping abreast of and properly applying these changing techniques."

With responsibility for aircraft safety during takeoff and landing, the air traffic controller must be and is precise in every phase of his work. "A man must be interested in his work to survive in ATC," Patterson concluded. "A controller who doesn't have this interest can usually be detected within his first two weeks in the tower."

Bikinis, boating, brunches highlight ladies' activities

Edited by Mrs. Carol May

With the 4th of July and its celebrations behind us, we can finally get down to the real business of summer and do some serious relaxing. Judging by the following articles, it sounds like you've done just that. But don't forget to share your activities with the rest of us, by way of this column, and give us some ideas for fun.

Speaking of ideas, we haven't heard yours for the name of our column. The prize for the winner is a "Queen of Battle" cookbook. Put your suggestion in the Bayonet news boxes located in the commissaries.

NCO WIVES

Would you like to learn how to play golf? That's the feature attraction this month for the wives of the Non-Commissioned Officers' Wives' Club. Beginning Tuesday, July 6, and continuing for four weeks, lessons will be conducted at the Sand Hill Golf Club. After completing the course, the ladies will compete in a tournament. For further information contact Mrs. Henry Guilbeault at 689-2991 or Mrs. David Aldridge, program chairman, at 689-5663.

931ST ENGINEER GROUP WIVES

Sukiyaki was recently found to be easier to prepare than to pronounce. An unusual luncheon was served to Mrs. Robert Standley, wife of the commanding officer, and the ladies of the 931st Engineer Group by Mrs. Philip Cox. Born in Gumm-Ken, Japan, Mrs. Cox was raised in a strict and traditional family. She has been in the United States for 14 years and learned the art of Japanese cooking here. When questioned on this unusual circumstance, Mrs. Cox explained she was the youngest in her family and babied more than her two older sisters so she did not learn to cook at home. A friend taught her Japanese cooking while Maj. Cox was on an overseas tour.

The sukiyaki was prepared so that all could see and learn this easy way to a delicious meal. Assisting in the preparation were Mrs. Robert Benning, Mrs. Gerald Kennedy, Mrs. Jacob Baergen and Mrs. Robert Parker. After the on-the-spot preparation we were all invited to sample the results. No better testimonial to its excellence could be found than to say everyone came back for seconds. It's a wonderful way to have an interesting and easy luncheon or dinner party. Here is Mrs. Cox's recipe for you to try.

- 2 lbs. beef (sirloin or rib) slivered or sliced
- bacon thin
- 2 Tofu (soy bean curd) cut up in small pieces
- 2 bunches green onion cut in 2" length
- 1 cup fresh or canned musbrooms
- 1 can (8 four-fifths oz.) shirataki (yam noodle)
- 1 can (10 ½ oz.) bamboo shoots sliced
- 2 cups soup stock (chicken stock or dashinomoto. Boil 1 bag with 2 cups water for stock)
- 1 cup sukiyaki sauce
- 3 tbsp sugar
- 3 tbsp white wine

Heat beef suet until sizzling hot in electric skillet at 350 degrees. Add half of all vegetables and shirataki. Brown them (about 5 minutes), and add tofu and green onions last, as they require very little cooking. Add 1 cup soup stock and place half the meat on top of the vegetables. Then add ½ cup sukiyaki sauce, 3 tbsp sugar and, 3 tbsp white wine. Cook about 10 minutes, turning gently. When ready, place on individual Lunsford Jr. were welcomed to the committee and Mrs. Paul J. Goldman, whose husband will soon be leaving for Command and General Staff School, was presented with a farewell medallion. The coveted "Red Boot" was awarded to Maj. Richard D. Belisto.

IOAC CLASS 4-71

The ladies of class 4-71, dressed in muu-muus and leis, enjoyed a Hawaiian Buffet Brunch at 10:30 a.m., at the Supper Club on June 23. Fish nets and bright flowers decorated the walls. On the stage was a little grass hut with palm trees and torch lights. Hawaiian music played softly in the background. Hostesses for the affair were members of the staff.

Since it was the last function, Mrs. Joe West, social chairman, and Mrs. Carter Brooks presented "diplomas" to all the ladies for helping their husbands through class 4-71. Each staff member was recognized for her work with a "certificate of appreciation." Mrs. West was presented a silver chafing dish from all the ladies as a "thank you" for the fine work done in their behalf. The door prize was won by Mrs. Larry Lattimer.

A Summer Casual for the officers and ladies of the IOAC 5-71, is planned for July 16, at Victory Lodge, beginning at 7:30 p.m. There will be a live band, The Rams, and a buffet of good things to eat — all for only $2 per person. Reservations and money must be turned in today to Capt. Michael Lopriore.

"Swimwear Then and Now" was the main theme as the ladies of IOAC 5-71 enjoyed their June luncheon at a Phenix City restaurant. The ladies of the 4th Platoon, headed by Mrs. Donald Bennett, were hostesses. Mrs. Alois Weiler was overall coordinator. Old-fashioned swimwear, including styles from the 1880's through the 1930's, was provided by a swimwear manufacturer. Modern styles in swim and sportswear were furnished by a Columbus department store. Models for the fashion show included Mrs. Thomas Shoupe, Mrs. Benny Wedding, Mrs. Ronnie Reese, Mrs. Mark Thompson, Mrs. Jack Pryor and Mrs. Michael Shue.

A large beach umbrella and assorted sun-and-fun paraphernalia set the stage at one end of the meeting room. The wall behind the head table was decorated with fish nets and small seascape decorations. Tissue flowers shaped into sailboats highlighted the tables. The doorprizes, many of them handmade by the hostesses, carried out the nautical theme.

The parade of beach attire began with the antique styles. The earliest bathing suits were intended for bathing or wading at the beach rather than active swimming. The emphasis was on modesty. Styles included long pantaloons with overskirts. Models for the 1890's became more daring as the skirt was eliminated and often a matching cap was added. Ten years later the skirt was back, but this time it was removable. The pantaloons and skirt were both shorter. The style was daring to the extent that the knees actually showed — but were covered by long black stockings. Freedom of movement came in the 1920's when bathing suits really became swim suits. Knit was introduced and most suits were of the two-piece variety with a tunic over short pants. The 1930's saw the one-piece knit suit or tank suit introduced and ushered in the modern era of swimwear. Examples of the beachwear of today find the one-piece suit making a strong comeback after several years of bikini domination. One-piecers with cut-outs, figure-flattering style details and interesting trim, and two piece suits with a one-piece look are the latest creations. Bikinis are still popular with fun details and the "wet look" adding interest. There is even a one-piece suit with cut-out sides and a halter neck to give the impression of a bikini.

The ladies of the IOAC, Class 8-71 were entertained with a combination brunch and fashion show at the Main Officers' Open Mess Supper Club, June 22. The hostesses for the function were the ladies of the 2nd Platoon.

Fantasy flowers, fashion dolls, and a centerpiece of fresh summer flowers set the mood for the parade of transitional fashions. The show was narrated by Mrs. Virginia Goodsell, who carried the ladies from summer through winter in beautiful, versatile clothes so necessary for the well-dressed woman. The attractive and talented models were Mrs. Charles Dowling, Mrs. Timothy Evans, Mrs. William O'Neil, Mrs. Henry Hammond, Mrs. David Hale and Mrs. Ernest Daniels.

Special guests were Mrs. Jules C. Trepagnier and Mrs. Robert B. Carmichael. The lucky ladies receiving door prizes were Mrs. Hale, Mrs. William Sprague, Mrs. Nathan Jones, and Mrs. William Bohringer.

Dependents keep busy this summer through YAC

Thousands of dependent children are keeping busy this summer by taking advantage of the recreational facilities available at the Fort Benning Youth Activities Center (YAC).

Designed to develop responsible citizenship and individual self-fulfillment in the youth of Fort Benning, combined programs are offered to every youth from 6 to 19 years old.

For the swimming advocate YAC has programs for the beginner all the way up to the Barracuda Swim Team which represents Fort Benning in year-round swim meets including the highly competitive dual meets.

The baseball program which is available from April through July, has everything from T-ball, which teaches the fundamentals of the game to 6 and 7 year olds, to Pee Wee, Biddy, Pony and Doughboy Leagues which are set up on an age and competitive basis.

A girls softball league is also available for girls 9 years old from May to June.

For the indoor enthusiast everything from Judo to classical ballet is offered at the YAC.

In addition to the great variety of athletic programs the center also sponsors and manages the Boy Scout Camp "Pine Knot" and the "Hideaway". Girl Scout Camp, providing a complete scouting program for girls and boys alike at Fort Benning.

For those youths who prefer less athletic sports, activities such as bridge, ping pong, nature study and sewing, to name a few, are also provided.

The YAC also sponsors field trips and outings to such places as Six Flags Over Georgia, Stone Mountain and the Little Grand Canyon.

The YAC has something to offer to every youngster and it's all free to Army dependent youths.

New food processing method

A new food procesing method for certain food items has been developed by the U.S. Army Natick Laboratories, Natick, Mass. The new method produces "compressed foods" that are first cooked, then dehydrated by air or freeze-drying and hydraulicly compressed under pressure ranging from 1,000 to 3,000 pounds per square inch. Through the compression process, food volume can be reduced by as much as 15 to 1 ratio. Impressive yield ratios have been determined for some compressed food items. Compressed food items currently under production test contracts include cherries, peas, onions and green beans. (ANF)

Wives of POWs eligible to get one GI home loan

Legislation enacted in the last week of 1970 makes it possible for wives of certain active duty servicemen to obtain GI home loans.

Georgia Veterans Service Director Pete Wheeler said, "Public Law 91-584 re-defines the term 'veteran' for GI loan purposes. Under this new law, the term 'veteran' now includes the wife of any member of the Armed Forces of the United States serving on active duty who was officially listed for more than 90 days as either 'missing-in-action' or 'captured in line of duty by a hostile force,' or 'forcibly detained or interned in line of duty by a foreign government or power.'"

Wheeler said that loan eligibility to the wife is "limited to one loan, and entitlement automatically terminates if not used when official notice is received indicating that her husband is no longer classified in one of the aforementioned categories."

The law provides that any entitlement used by the wife will not reduce the GI loan entitlement due the veteran. "This means," said Wheeler, "that a wife might use her entitlement to purchase a GI home while her husband is in a 'missing-in-action' or 'prisoner of war' status. Then when the veteran is released he can also use his entitlement at a later date."

Vets can get loans on policy

ATLANTA — Veterans finding themselves in need of additional funds can use their GI Life Insurance policies for loans.

"A veteran may borrow up to 94 per cent of the value of his GI insurance policy," said Georgia Veterans Service Director Pete Wheeler, "and while borrowing on the insurance does reduce the overall protection due the policy holder, the policy itself will remain in force.

"Veterans should be aware of the fact that protection ceases once a policy is surrendered for cash, and it can neither be reinstated nor reinstated."

MAC officials tell of rules for space available

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Military personnel on leave who want to travel space available on MAC aircraft should be aware of the "rules" to avoid frustrations that often accompany this type of travel, Military Airlift Command officials report.

Similarly, personnel who work in military air terminals should keep abreast of current directives regulating space available movement.

First of all, active duty military personnel, when in an ordinary, or reenlistment leave status, and certain other personnel, may travel space available but must be actually on leave not only to perform the travel, but to request the travel.

When applying for space, the individual's name is placed on a list along with the names of others awaiting travel to the same destination. The policy is first in, first out. However, applicants are placed on the list according to their category. An active duty member — and his dependents too, if they accompany him on leave, and retired personnel and their dependents — are in Category 3. This means he moves before Category 3 personnel who signed up after him, but not before all Category 1 and 2 on the list have moved.

A person's status determines his category. For example, Category 1 is composed of emergency travel in connection with serious illness or impending death of the immediate family of military dependents and certain civilian employes while stationed overseas.

Category 2 is made up mostly of student dependents who are authorized one round-trip per school year to visit DOD US citizen-military parents assigned overseas, which normally creates peak loads at the beginning and ending of school vacation times. This category also includes close blood or affinitive relatives of a military member moving PCS who reside in his household and are dependent upon him.

DOUBLE CHECK

Every Tuesday and Friday at air terminals, the traveler is required to check in at the space available counter and make known that he is still awaiting a flight. This must be done between 7 a.m. and 5 p.m. on those days. Failure to do so will result in removal from the list, or dropping to the bottom when reapplying.

The purpose of the revalidation procedure is to maintain an accurate register to assist the passenger who is ready to go. By maintaining an accurate register of the travel-ready passengers awaiting transportation, each traveler can determine his true standing and possibility of movement.

When it is determined that seats will not be used by space required (paying) passengers on scheduled passenger missions or other scheduled or non-scheduled missions, these seats will be offered and filled by space available passengers who are available. Passengers will be offered seating based on their standing on the register. Thus, if six seats become available to a destination, then the first six passengers on the register who are available for movement would be offered the seats.

NO-SHOW

Because of no-show passengers, last minute duty walk-ins, cargo inission requirements, etc., seat availability is not known in many cases until immediately prior to flight departure. Thus, passengers making themselves available for movement on the maximum number of scheduled flights (passenger or cargo) have the greatest opportunity for movement.

Any space available traveler who refuses a passenger flight to the destination for which he is registered will be removed from the list, except when he's offered travel on a cargo mission. Because passenger comfort facilities are limited on this type aircraft, accepting space is voluntary, and no one is removed from the list for refusing movement.

Additionally, individuals on leave must remember they are responsible for meeting all the requirements for entry into the countries they intend to visit. This includes getting the required immunizations, passports, visas, etc.

One other little known fact is that travelers may register for up to five different destinations at the same time. It permits a degree of flexibility in making one's way to the desired final destination, and is of particular value to the individual whose travel plans do not restrict him to a specific place or country.

Medicare payments misunderstood

There is a great deal of misunderstanding about nursing home payments under Medicare, Robert E. O'Neal, District Manager of the Columbus Social Security Office, reports.

Only limited coverage for full-time skilled nursing care and other health services provided in the nursing home can be paid for under Medicare. Many people believe that the law pays up to a hundred days of nursing home services under any circumstances. This is not true.

Congress said that only a certain kind of nursing home care would be paid for under Medicare. This is the type in which the patient's condition, upon release from a hospital, requires him to be in a institution for the primary purpose of receiving skilled nursing services on a continuing basis.

A nursing home that qualifies to give this service is called an "extended care facility." Services in such a facility are really an extension of a kind of service he was receiving in the hospital for his injury or illness.

Some patients who apply for care at skilled nursing homes after hospitalization may find that Medicare will not pay for their care because it is not of a high and skilled level. O'Neal says it is important that folks covered by Medicare and their families understand how this part of the law works and invites questions by telephone to his staff. Telephone 324-5461.

ARE ALL DRUGS HARMFUL?

Every drug is harmful when taken in excess. Some drugs also can be harmful if taken in dangerous combinations or by hypersensitive people in minute or ordinary amounts.

The fact that certain drugs can produce enormously beneficial results has produced the false notion that pills will solve all problems. Society must develop a new respect for all drugs. Drugs that affect the mind can have subtle or obvious side effects. These can be immediate or may become evident only after long continuous use.

A shoe-in

Two new shoe styles are being tested by trainees at the Women's Army Corps Center at Ft. McClellan, Ala. The one-inch heel, buckle vamp shoe, (L) and the three-eyelet tie, stacked cuban heel style are being tested in comparison to the standard oxford style worn by Wacs, Wafs, Waves and Women Marines. The Army test for fit, comfort and suitability will last for six weeks. (U.S. Army Photos by Leon Reeves)

Reservists pass 1st year under Group Life plan

Nearly one million reservists, National Guardsmen and ROTC cadets had Servicemen's Group Life Insurance (SGLI) protection on June 25, the first anniversary of their coverage under the program.

The Veterans Administration also reported that payments to beneficiaries of members of these groups who died during the first year total more than $1 million.

Administrator of Veterans Affairs Donald E. Johnson noted SGLI was extended by law last year to insure members of the groups while in training, or traveling to and from training sites. The same law increased individual coverage of servicemen from $10,000 to $15,000.

"This is the first time in the history of Government life insurance that they have been included under the same plan as regular members of the Armed Forces," Johnson pointed out.

VA supervises SGLI, established in September 1965 to meet the insurance needs of military personnel. It is administered by about 600 private insurance companies.

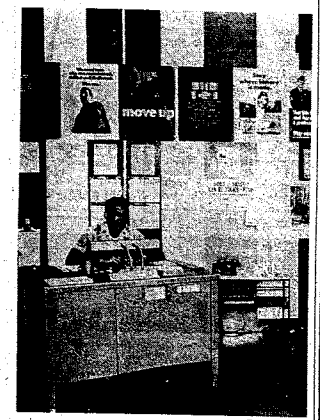
Sergeant awarded medals posthumously

A Bronze Star Medal with first Oak Leaf Cluster for heroism and the Purple Heart were awarded posthumously to MSgt. Jackie W. Barnwell in recent ceremonies here.

Present to accept the award was Mrs. Jackie W. Barnwell of Clayton, Ala.; MSgt. Barnwell's children, Jackie and Carol Ann, and his mother and father-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George O. Cooper, also of Clayton, Ala.



Col. Malcom Baer, Adjutant General, made the presentation.

Before his death, MSgt. Barnwell had been awarded the Bronze Star Medal for heroism, Army Commendation Medal, Good Conduct Medal with four Bronze Loops, National Defense Service Medal with first Oak Leaf Cluster, Korean Service Medal, Vietnam Service Medal, United Nations Service Medal, Vietnam Campaign Medal, Sharpshooter Badge with automatic rifle bar, Master Explosive Ordnance Disposal Badge, Explosive Ordnance Disposal Supervisor Badge and the Explosive Ordnance Disposal Specialist Badge.

The citation noted that Sgt. Barnell "distinguished himself by exceptionally valorous actions on Feb. 19, 1971 while serving as detachment supervisor with the 59th Ordnance Detachment at Quang Tri Army Base, Vietnam.

"MSgt. Barnwell, demonstrating complete disregard for his own personal safety, entered an ammunition supply point to disarm satchel charges left by the enemy. After successfully disarming several, another foreign charge was found wedged between pallets of 175MM high explosive projectiles.

"Sgt. Barnell worked in a prone position so not to endanger the men operating in the immediate area. The device detonated and took his life. His body absorbed most of the blast and saved the lives of many men by preventing the destruction of untold millions of dollars worth of combat essential munitions. Master Sergeant Barnwell's bravery was truly in keeping with the highest traditions of the military service and reflect great credit upon himself, his unit and the United States Army."

Booklet describes drugs

WASHINGTON (ANF) — First aid procedures for the care of persons who may be suffering from drug abuse or overdose are now available in a new pamphlet being distributed by the American Red Cross.

The 14-page booklet describes drugs and their effects, accepted medical uses, problems of overdose and abuse, the symptoms they create and the first aid care that should be given to anyone who has misused them or taken an overdose.

The pamphlets are available from your local Red Cross Chapter for the cost price of five cents a copy.

Many ADT officers locate civilian-related post jobs

BY RICK KNEPPER

Opportunity knocks but once — or so the saying goes. At any rate this is the thought of many Active Duty, for Training (ADT) officers seeking temporary jobs to wind up their 90-day tour of duty. Seeking temporary jobs is often easier than finding them in the Army these days, however.

"I was more fortunate than some" commented 2nd Lt. Stephen Best.

"All I had to do was show my bachelor of science in Zoology credentials to Roy Johnston who is chief of the Fish and Wildlife Department at Fort Benning and I had a job."

Best is one of the hundreds of ADT officers at Fort Benning who is rounding out his 90 days of active duty by temporarily working full time in one of the many departments, units or offices located on post.

"Actually, I was given my choice of what I wanted to do," continued Best. "So, I chose to spend as much time as possible working with the fish and pond management crew since this is the most interesting to me."

2nd Lt. Nick Bennett, an ADT officer currently completing his 90-day tour at Fort Benning requested on his ADT questionnaire to work in the Youth Activities Office. The ADT questionnaire is sent to all ADT officers shortly before graduation from Infantry Officer Basic Course (IOBC) requesting information on the individual's college degree, special skills and career plans. It also provides the officer an opportunity to request a job assignment. Based as near as possible on the information provided by the questionnaire the ADT officers are assigned temporary jobs.

"Just the idea of working with kids appealed to me" stated Bennett. "I did, however, specifically ask for work with the Boy Scouts since I have been active in Scouting all my life and have thought seriously about a career in professional Scouting.

"Most of my time is spent as a coordinating officer," continued Bennett. "I sign kids up in troops, transport them to activities, help get campgrounds in order and do whatever is needed of me around the coordinator's office."

A lawyer and member of the California Bar, 1st Lt. Roy D. King received the temporary assignment of virtually all ADT officer lawyers.

"We're more or less legal advisors in the legal section of the Headquarters and Headquarters Command," King said. "Some of us are prosecutors and others are defense officers. A great deal of our time is spent in making reports of survey, preparing and defending absent without leave (AWOL) cases and doing Article 32 work which is determining whether or not a court-martial should be initiated for certain cases."

King, who was a civilian attorney before coming on active duty for training, feels "the best thing about this job is the down to earth practice and experience with military law." King noted it is valuable training for officers who will soon return to practicing civilian law. "It appears that future military cases will involve civilian lawyers," King said.

Due to the large number of ADT officers presently assigned to Fort Benning it is not always possible to assign them to jobs directly related to their background or career plans.

2nd Lt. Craig Jepson is one ADT officer who did not get the job he asked for.

"I wanted to work for the Fish and Wildlife Department since I have a related degree in agriculture," But the department couldn't take on any more people and I was assigned instead to a mechanized infantry unit."

Jepson's assignment is not one of daily routine by any means. He has been a forward observer for mortar firepower demonstrations, worked as an aggressor enemy and spent time assisting active duty officers in their daily jobs. "It isn't what I asked for," Jepson said, "but it really isn't all that bad a job."

The man behind ADT officer assignments is Capt. Ted J. Stocks III. Stocks is the officer in charge of the Temporary Assignment Control Center (TACC) at Fort Benning.

"ADT officers are free to find their own jobs," Stocks said. "If they can bring proof to me that they have been accepted in a certain office or department I am more than happy to do the paper work on them.

"I do the best I can to assign jobs based upon the information supplied by the men on their ADT questionnaires," he continued. "This should include their academic background, special skills and career plans. However, there are so many ADT officers on post that it is impossible to give all the men their choices."

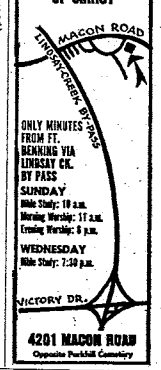
Navy satellites to help Army fix land positions

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Special new radio receivers will enable Army surveyors to tie together locations that are oceans apart with a great degree of accuracy.

Used in conjunction with the group of satellites of the Navy Navigation Satellite System, the new receivers can obtain the position information by collecting data broadcast from these satellites that continually orbit the earth.



The surveyor receivers are easily portable and have antennas weighing less than 5 pounds. They will provide land survey parties with measurements accurate to within 5 pounds. They will provide land survey parties with measurements accurate to within a few yards, and their accuracy is unaffected by weather, time of day or geographical position.

The survey receivers pinpoint position and elevation.

The Army will first utilize the satellite navigation receivers for land surveying purposes.

Potential nonmilitary applications of the system include geographical prospecting in remote regions of the world, cartography, where mapmakers will be able to produce more accurate world-referenced maps than previously and precise site locations for radio and radar beacons.

Too much sunshine could result in a little skin cancer, doctor says

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — "I enjoy a sunny day as much as anyone else, but I worry that some people might enjoy the sun too much to be careful," said Dr. Peter N. Horvath, Chairman of the American Cancer Society, District of Columbia Division's Skin Cancer Site Committee.

"Being careful," he explained, "means taking precautions against the most common form of cancer — skin cancer. Overexposure to the sun can lead to skin cancer. If you turn that thought around, you realize that by protecting yourself from too much sun, you can prevent most skin cancer."

Approximately 115,000 Americans will develop skin cancer this year, according to the doctor. Deaths run to about 5,000 a year, he said.

Dr. Horvath explained that people with fair complexions and the elderly are highly susceptible to skin cancer. Those whose occupations keep them under the sun must exercise extra care, he said.

Skin cancer is both largely preventable and highly curable. The American Cancer Society estimates that about 95 per cent of skin cancer cases could be cured if people heeded early warning signals and reported promptly to a physician. Any sore that does not heal; any change in the size or color of a mole or wart should be brought to a physician's attention.

Sun hats, long sleeves — gloves, if need be — and beach umbrellas can be weapons in the fight to prevent skin cancer. Lotions or ointments are helpful.

Bond benefits

You can earn 5½ per cent interest on every U. S. Savings Bond you buy. Just hold your Bonds to maturity of 5 years, 10 months. Your older Series E and H Bonds benefit from the improved rate, too.

"When it comes to the 20th Century fondness for suntanning, I can only think of the daogers. The chances of skin cancer development increase. And, in terms of esthetics, the sun can cause the skin to age ungracefully," the doctor said.

Big Brother program gives boys guidance

One of the saddest chapters in a young man's life is to face the challenges of tomorrow without the invaluable guidance and companionship of a father.

The Army Community Service Center (ACS) activity at Fort Benning is doing something about the situation through the Big Brother program. This program is designed to provide adult male companionship for boys whose fathers are absent from home because they are divorced, deceased or on overseas assignments.

The guidelines of the program are relatively simple. To become a Big Brother you must be on active duty or a retired male member of any branch of the Armed Forces, with the final decision on participation of the applicant resting with the ACS social work officer.

Little Brothers can be any dependent son of an active duty, retired or deceased military member between the ages of 6 and 14. The only requirement is that the sponsor is not living at home during the boy's participation. This would include boys whose fathers are deceased or separated from their wives because of divorce or overseas assignments.

The ACS Big Brother program furthers sincere and close friendships. Both Big and Little Brothers should have sufficient free time to avoid conflict with work or school schedules and family responsibilities.

Anyone interested in participating as either a Little Brother or Big Brother is invited to telephone 545-1233 or 545-1633 for more information.

Individual actions can make ETS smoother process

EAGER TO ETS
(L-R) PFC Bob Haffor, Brooks, Miller, Durham hand ETS paperwork to Sp4 Tim Newman

By Richard Speers

Whether you are a two-year draftee or a 30-year career soldier there is one area of the military establishment which will eventually play an important part in your life—the Estimated Time of Separation (ETS) section of the 524th Pers. Svc. Co., 931st Engr. Gp.

The official title of this part of the administrative branch is the Personnel Records Division, ETS section. It is located in Room 220, Bldg. 75C, just across from Theater No. 2 on main post.

According to the personnel experts at the 524th, the key to a smooth separation from the service depends upon the actions of the individuals involved.

Said Sgt. Jimmy Brooks, NCOIC of the section, "We have instituted a new set of procedures designed to make it easier for the individual to complete his processing, but the person involved needs to do his part too."

The first, and most important step, in obtaining a smooth separation is the ETS physical. As Sp4 Dave Miller explains, "You are eligible to take your physical 180 days before your separation date and it must be completed before your last 45 days in the Army."

"It is to one's advantage to get the physical as soon as possible because there are numerous cases where sections of the examination have to be repeated and you can be extended if the work is not completed," added Sp5 Chas Durham, special processing clerk.

The second step in making a smooth separation is following the directions on the "Separation Processing" disposition form which the departing individual should receive from his 1st Sgt., 30 to 60 days prior to departure.

This form has directions on the first sheet and a timetable for the individual to follow on the second.

If a person follows the instructions and arrives at each station listed in the timetable promptly, he will have a minimum of delay in clearing post.

For those wanting to acquire an early release to return to school, questions should be directed to Sp4 Kenneth Nicely. He will be glad to help, and adds that "it is much easier for the person to check on a question with me before submitting the paperwork, than to send an application in only to have it returned for errors which could have been avoided."

Car owners get fire reminder

The National Safety Council reminds everyone that a fully charged fire extinguisher should be carried in their car at all times.

The best type for this purpose is the stored pressure dry chemical type. It can be used on any kind of fire and does not create toxic gases as do vaporizing liquid types. It should have at least 2½ pounds capacity.

Army urges OCS applications from members of minority groups

WASHINGTON (ANF) — In an effort to increase the number of officers from minority groups, the Army is encouraging qualified minority members to apply for Officer Candidate School (OCS).

Competition for OCS is keen and final selection is on a best-qualified basis.

Prerequisites include a high school diploma or equivalent, a GT score of 110 or better, a minimum of 115 on the Officer Candidate Test (OCT) and a composite OCT-Officer Qualification Inventory score of 200 or more.

Candidates must also be physically qualified and of high moral character. They cannot be more than 32½ years old at time of enrollment in OCS.

Those interested in applying for OCS should refer to AR 351-5 and contact their unit commanders for further details.

New policy given on military dogs

WASHINGTON (ANF) — The first group of about 30 canine veterans of Southeast Asia duty has returned to the United States as result of a change in Department of Defense policy.

Many of the dogs were trained at Fort Benning by the Infantry School's military dog committe.

Their return was made possible by diminishing U. S. involvement in the Southeast Asia conflict and by effective control of a tropical anemia - like disease which previously prevented their reassignment in this country.

Military working dogs of all services which are no longer needed in Vietnam normally will be reassigned to fill requirements elsewhere within the Pacific theater. The remainder will return to the U. S for crosstraining or retraining and redistribution.

Provisions will be made for transfer to other government or law enforcement agencies should numbers returned exceed military requirements. There are no plan to return military dogs to the civilian community.

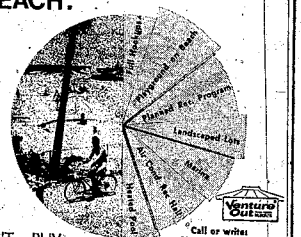
Dogs have served effectively in Southeast Asia since 1965. There are currently about 3,500 working dogs worldwide and about 1,400 in Vietnam. All those scheduled for return at this time are Army scout and tracker dogs.

To assure that they will present no health hazard to other animals or people, the dogs are quarantined for two weeks prior to shipment to receive prophylactic antibiotic treatment.

Ohio native distinguished NCOC grad

Sgt. Melvin W. Tingley, Montpelier, Ohio, was the distinguished graduate of Noncommissioned Officer Candidate Course (NCOC) Class 506-71 which graduated in ceremonies June 22 at Marshall Auditorium, Infantry Hall.

The leadership graduate was Sgt. John P. Grennan, Scandia, Kan., and the academic graduate was Sgt. Raymond Weber, Little Rick, Ark.



CSM 4th Stu. Bn., TSB, delivered the commencement address to the 168 new NOC's.

For their achievement each of the top three graduates received a letter of commendation signed by Brig. Gen. John T. Carley, assistant commandant of the Infantry School, an engraved "Follow Me" plaque, an engraved "Follow Me" statue, and an engraved Association of the United States Army (AUSA) plaque.

It's sometimes a problem to prove date of birth

"Most people know when they were born, but proving it sometimes presents a problem," Robert E. O'Neal, manager of the Columbus Social Security Office, said. "For those nearing retirement age, now is the time to get records that will prove when they were born."

O'Neal pointed out that many people who are near retirement age become almost desperate to get any or all records showing how old they are or when they were born. Much time, effort and money can be spent trying to secure records in this manner, and the records secured may not be sufficient or needed. If there is no birth certificate on record, O'Neal suggests calling the Social Security Office to find out what records will be needed to prove one's age. "We can tell each person exactly what is needed and how to get it with the least effort and expense," he added.

Many people have asked when they should start getting their records together. "The best time," according to O'Neal, "is six months to one year before retirement age. By having your age already proven, you can be assured of recieving your first check or your Medicare card on time."

Anyone needing more information about how and when to prove their age, should telephone the Social Security Office at 324-5461.

Planet rises in southeast

Mars to make close approach

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Mars and earth will pass near each other in their orbits this summer, the closest the two planets have been since 1924, according to Maj. Stanley W. Powers, director of the Air Force Academy Planetarium.

"Close" is relative in terms applied to outer space, since the two planets will be 34.9 million miles apart. But the maximum distance between the two bodies is 63 million miles.

Even though either extreme of distance is too great for most Earth-bound travelers to comprehend, it will allow scientists and amateur astronomers an opportunity for a more detailed look at Mars.

Presently Mars rises in the southeast about four hours after sunset and is well up in the southern sky by early morning. As the weeks pass the planet rises earlier and by Aug. 10 it will be almost 10 times brighter than it was at the first of June.

Mars takes 22 months to move through an elongated orbit aroound the sun which sometimes brings it closer to the sun than at other times. The Earth, the third planet from the sun, moves in a nearly circular orbit in a year. Although the two planets are in opposite parts of their orbits most of the time, the Earth catches and passes the slower moving Mars about every two years.

If Mars, the fourth planet from the sun is closest to the sun when Earth passes it, then the distance between the two planets is closer than 35 million miles. The last close pass occurred in 1956 when the distance between the bodies was slightly more than 35 million miles.

"Mars will be a prominent orange star in the heavens during the summer and autumn months," said Powers. During this time Mars will be in the constellation of Capricorn

"A telescope is required to observe Mars as anything more than a bright star but during the period of close approach a modest telescope will reveal a small orange disk.

Book chronicles WWI

World War I was a turning point in military history. It was the first war in which aviation played a role and it radically altered both the means by which warfare was conducted and aviation itself. A new book, "Illustrated History Of World War I In The Air" by Col. Stanley Ulanoff (Arco, July 23), chronicles this momentous period, its men and machines, in concise, vivid text and over ninety illustrations in color and black-and-white.

Aviation had just completed its first decade when the war broke out in 1914. When hostilities commenced, aeroplanes were crude contraptions indeed—very little different from the historic Wright flyer of 1903. But war is a catalyst to technological development and by the Armistice in 1918, aviation had made enormous strides. Streamlined planes, capable of speeds up to 120 miles per hour, armed with machine guns synchronized to fire between propeller blades had come into being. And pilots from both sides, who had entered the war in unarmed reconnaissance planes and waved to each other as they passed in the air, had learned the meaning of words like "dogfight," "ace" and "casualty."

But if aviation technology had progressed, camera technology had not developed to the point where lenses or shutters were fast enough to capture action shots. Few, if any, photographs of World War I aerial combat exist today, if they ever existed at all. However, a number of artists, many of whom participated in the war, caught the drama of aviation warfare on canvas. Stanley Ulanoff has used the pictures of these artists to full advantage in telling the story of the "knights of the air" and their flying machines.

From Eddie Rickenbacker to the Red Baron, from the Sopwith Camel to the Fokker, from the first air-to-air missile to the first airborne torpedo—here, illustrated, is the history of World War I in the air.

Libraries' books

The following is a representative listing of books on ecology for circulation at the Special Services' Main Post Library:

"Downstream," John Bardach: The book traces the development of a river from its origin and describes its journey to the sea. It evaluates man's influence on the river environment.

"Harvest of the Sea," John Bardach: Discusses the present state of oceangraphy. Gives an account of ancient and modern methods of harvesting the seas as well as future possibilities of aquaculture. Covers legal and political questions as well as the danger of ecological imbalance.

"The Pursuit of Wilderness," Paul Brooks: A leading conservationist describes six recent and continuing battles in defense of the American earth together with examples of wildlife destruction and protection in other parts of the world.

"The Politics of Pollution," J. Clarence Davis: A fact filled account of what has already been done where we stand presently and what is needed for the future concerning pollution.

"The Population Bomb," Paul Ehrlich: Dr. Ehrlich, an ecologist, examines a variety of population problems and the committant problems of feeding an ever rising population.

"Chemical and Biological Warfare," Seymour Herish: After discussing the history of chemical and biological warfare and the formation of American policy the author describes the chemical and biological agents and their devastating aspects.

"Biological Time Bomb," Gordon R. Taylor: Each section begins with an account of current research in a particular area of biology, continues with an imaginary extrapollution of this research into the present and future ecological aspects of metropolitan areas. The thesis is that they are going to look better in the future because we will be disciplined to improve the environment out of necessity.

A dangerous game

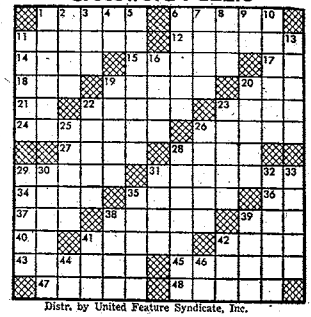
Steve McQueen challenges the power and speed of the world's most dangerous sport in "LeMans" starting a week from today at a downtown theater. The movie was filmed on location at the famed French race with the participation of 45 of the world's top drivers and more than $1,000,000 worth of racing equipment. International beauty Elga Anderson provides "Le Mans" with a feminine foil for McQueen.

Picture contest under way

A photography contest for active duty personnel is now underway at Fort Benning.

Entries will be accepted at the Arts and Crafts Center, Bldg. 2763, Main Post and Bldg. 9949, Kelly Hill Craft Shop, through Aug. 25. Entry forms and instruction sheets are available at these centers.

The competition is being held in order to present an opportunity to photography enthusiasts to participate in competition within the photographic field and to receive appropriate recognition for their work.



Entries will be classified into three basic groups: monochrone prints, color prints and transparencies. Each group will be further subdivided according to subjects that include portraits, still life, military life and scenic.

For the first place winner in each category there will be $20 and $15 award and for the second and third place finishers thre will be $20 and $15 prizes respectively.

FOREST SOIL

Synopsis

THE LAST VALLEY (Rated GP) — The year is 1641, the senseless Thirty Years War has left much of Europe devastated. But one village remains untouched, in a valley hidden by towering mountains and securely snowed-in in winter. This is the village that Omar Sharif, a man of peace fleeing the ravages of war, stumbles upon. A mercenary captain (Michael Caine) and his men also find their way there, and only Sharif's quick thinking keeps the village from being sacked. Some of the captain's men rebel and leave the village to recruit more men. The village after all is touched by the horrors of war.

PIGEONS (Rated R) — Jonathon (Jordon Christopher), twenty four, has had an assortment of meaningless and temporary jobs since receiving his B. A. three years ago. He is now a taxi driver in New York City. Jonathon is a nonconformist and seems to find reason for argument with everyone he comes in contact with. He strikes up a relationship with Jennifer (Jill O'Hara) who had just moved into his building. Jonathon does not want to get intimately involved with anyone and so instead of allowing his love with Jennifer to grow he becomes more out of touch with her. He finally loses touch with every one around him and, alone, carries on his fight against society.

THE FIRST TIME (Rated GP) — The story is about a trio of teenage boys undergoing that awkward and painful interlude between bicycles and girls wherein certain biological processes often called the "facts of life" occupy most of their thoughts. Suffice is to say that the story goes on to relate in a hilarious fashion a youthful experience a lot of men will recall as their own.

VON RICHTHOFEN AND BROWN (Rated GP) — Baron von Richthofen (John Phillip Law), crack air ace and leader of "Richthofen's Flying Circus," has been credited with downing eighty Allied planes with red Albatross triplane, in the skies of France. At the British air base, the officers there are disturbed by the arrival of a young pilot who displays arrogance and cockiness of a different type. He is Roy Brown (Don Stroud). The Red Baron of Germany and the Black Sheep of the R.A.F. engage in a wild dogfight over France's battlefields in 1918. One came for a gentlemen's duel, the other to kill.

THE WIZARD OF OZ (Rated G) — Judy Garland, Ray Bolger, Bert Lahr and Jack Haley appear in their memorable performances as "Dorothy", the "Scarecrow," the "Cowardly Lion" and the "Tin Man." The famous story of little Dorothy, the farm girl who is blown away by a cyclone and finds fantastic adventure in the land of Oz, remains intact in the screen version produced by Mervyn LeRoy and directed by E. Y. Harburg and Harold Arlen. "The Wizard Of Oz" is truly a musical classic for all ages to enjoy.

THE BALLAD OF CABLE HOGUE (Rated R) — In the early 1900s, grizzled prospector Cable Hogue, (Jason Robards) is forced into the desert to die by two ruthless partners. Accidently discovering a water hole, he promotes this into a way station for the stage line; and begins to prosper. An itinerant minister, Joshua (David Warner) helps him, although his main interest is "saving" women whom he helps to fall from grace. Cable becomes attached to the town tart Hildy (Stella Stevens), who regards Cable highly since he treats her like a lady. Cable's ex-partners show up well-heeled. He tricks them into returning for his savings and forces a showdown.

Highway travel

A brightly colored triangle mounted on the back of a vehicle identifies it as a slow-moving vehicle — one traveling 25 miles an hour or slower on the highways. It is 14 inches high and has a fluorescent orange center and reflective red border.

Knowing what it means could save your life. (AFPS)

'Klute' still showing

Jane Fonda and Donald Sutherland star in the Warner Bros. production of "Klute" which is still showing through tomorrow at a downtown theater, Sutherland, star of "MASH", and "Kelly's Heroes" plays a kick private detective hired to trace down a missing man. The trail leads to a part-time high-life prostitute, Jane Fonda, who Sutherland befriends. The end is violent.

Men's fashions to be featured

Men's clothing, looked upon with a sort of "Do your own thing" attitude, will be featured in what should prove to be a colorful and lively fashion show at the Main Post Service Club on Sightseeing Road.

Slated for July 11 at 3 p.m., "Fashion Freedom" for the young man of today will find Fort Benning soldiers modeling the latest in unique and exotic creations.

Models for the show will be Robert F. Alexander, Joel F. Nitz and George H. "Pat" Caldwell of Co. D Headquarters Command; Ronald Reed of 13th Co. TSB; and Cornell Hubert, a student at Xavier University.

Stamp collectors may get unusual postmarks

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Philatelists may have covers postmarked at two United States bases in the Antarctic and aboard three U. S. Coast Guard icebreakers working with the U. S. Navy in support of the National Science Foundation during this year's Operation DEEP FREEZE.

Collectors are limited to one cover per person from McMurdo Station and the Amundsen-Scott South Pole Station, plus one cover from each of three icebreakers.

Philatelic mail to be postmarked in Antarctica must reach the Navy's collecting point at Davisville, Rhode Island, not later than Sept. 1, in order to be processed by the DEEP FREEZE "wintering-over" crew.

Covers to be cancelled in the Antarctic must have either United States postage at the letter rate or an International Reply Coupon enclosed to defray postage on covers going to foreign lands. Covers should be mailed to:

DEEP FREEZE Philatelic Mail, U. S. Naval Construction Battalion Center, Davisville, Rhode Island 02854.

Owing to limited air transportation to and from Antarctica, philatelic covers to be cancelled at the two American bases are shipped as surface cargo. They are then delivered from McMurdo Station to the designated stations by ski-equipped LC-130 Hercules aircraft of Antarctic Development Squadron Six.

During the six-month long dark antarctic winter the covers are stamped with the official Operation DEEP FREEZE cachet and the postage is cancelled by the station's postmark.

Collectors must indicate where they desire their covers to be cancelled by printing the station's name in the lower left corner of the address side of the cover.

Philatelists are cautioned that only one cachet may appear on the address side of any philatelic cover—others will be obliterated.

Collectors can expect to receive their philatelic mail between April and June of 1972.

Covers postmarked aboard DEEP FREEZE ships will be returned to collectors during the operating season (October 1971 through February 1972) as expeditiously as the operations schedule and any developing postal backlog will permit.

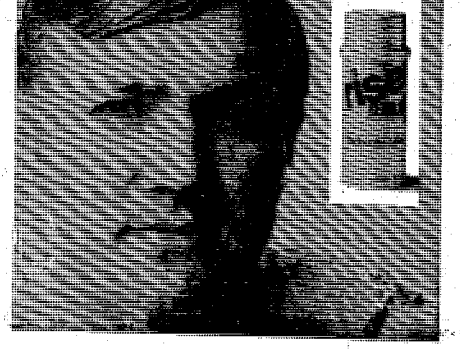
'To prove the wetness of Rise, this man shaved without using any water.

And he actually got a smooth, clean shave.

The reason he got such a clean shave is the moisture in Rise®



A lather needs moisture, needs wetness, so your beard won't dry out beneath it.

And you can't buy a lather that's wetter than Rise.

Slowly it seeps moisture into your beard and holds it there for as long as it takes you to shave.

The point we're trying to prove is this:

If our man can get a smooth, clean shave using Rise with no water, imagine what you can do using Rise with water.

Big Red One

Donna A. Heaston receives a $2,000 Big Red One Scholarship from Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, Fort Benning commander. Donna is the daughter of Plt. Sgt. Donald L. Heaston who was killed in action with the 1st Infantry Division Aug. 22, 1966. She is the second member of the family to receive the award. Her brother Daryl received a scholarship two years ago.

Local college nurses receive commissions

Columbus College nursing students are taking advantage of a new ruling of the Department of the Army.

The ruling, which became effective July 1, allows all registered nurses to apply for appointment as commissioned officers in the Army Nurse Corps.

Registered nurses who are graduates of associate degree programs, such as Columbus College's, and hospital diploma programs will receive commissions as second lieutenants, and those holding baccalaureate degrees will be commissioned as first lieutenants.

Students Kathlee Shaver, Edward B. Plemons, Jimmy Tinker, Danny Milam, Francis Holton, W. David Hardy, and Isaac Reynolds Jr., are all affected by this ruling.

Miss Shaver, a specialist fifth class medic in the Women's Army Corps, has been in the service for 19 months.

She said she joined the Army to get an education. "They offer all kinds of correspondence courses, and most army bases are near educational facilities."

"If you in some way show that you are interested in education, the Army will meet you half way in order to get it," she said.

Although she will not be affected by the new ruling while in school, Miss Shaver will qualify for a commission as a second lieutenant in the Army Nurse Corp.

A former graduate of the Columbus College nursing program, Jack Thmmason, who now works at Martin Army Hospital at Fort Benning with Miss Shaver, convinced her that she should enroll at the college while stationed here.

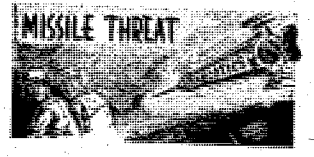
Holton, who has not fulfilled his military obligation, received the news enthusiastically. "I think it's great myself," he said. "If you have to go in, I'd like to go in as an officer."

A private first class in the 2527th U.S. Army Hospital Ready Reserve Unit here, Milam has decided to get his degree in Columbus College and then go on active duty as a second lieutenant.

"I think that it's good of the Army to recognize civilian training. I've always liked the study of medicine," he said. "At one time I was interested in becoming a doctor, but now I think I'd just be interested in being a registered nurse."

Quartermaster rates raised

The Quartermaster Laundry Service has raised its rate for monthly payroll deductions to $6.20. The new rate went into effect July 1. For those patrons not using the laundry facilities for a complete month, there is a cash bundle plan available for $2 for 26 pieces, payable in advance.



Benning snakes are no child's play

By James McNair

Most kids who come across a snake — except for the very curious — will normally put great distance between themselves and the slinky reptile.

Nevertheless, parents should warn their children not to play with snakes they find. While not all snakes are poisonous, children cannot be expected to distinguish one from another.

Parents also are urged to instruct their offspring not to play in nor explore dense undergrowth along the intermittent streams sometimes found on the borders of family housing units at Fort Benning. During the summer, snakes will be searching for food in these areas and may often stray into the subdivisions.

Radio class graduates 77 students

The field Radio Mechanic Course Class 13-71 graduated 77 students June 28 in ceremonies at Infantry Hall.

The guest speaker was Lt. Col. Donald J. Shannon, deputy director, Management and Budget Division.

The distinguished honor graduate was PFC Franz M. Laska of Othello, Wash. SP4 David A. Kortbein of Marinette, Wis., was designated as the academic honor graduate, earning an average score of 98 per cent.

The course is nine weeks and provides the student with the knowledge required to perform organizational maintenance on tactical radio and selected electronics equipment.

The first four weeks cover basic electron theory consisting of the laws and principles governing voltage, "current, resistance and electron flow.

Have horse, will travel, says Alaskan soldier

FT. WAINWRIGHT, Alaska (ANF) — Many people consider driving the ALCAN Highway by automobile an adventuresome way of returning to the smaller states from Alaska.

There is a more adventurous way to leave the "Last Frontier," however, and Spc John McGuire of Ft. Wainwright, Alaska, plans to take it. He's leaving on horseback.

McGuire has decided that it would be a once-in-a-lifetime experience to ride on horseback from Fairbanks, Alaska, to his home in Lovington, Ill. He says the long journey will begin when he is discharged from the Army in early July, with him and his horse, Scampers TNT, setting out for Illinois via Texas.

He estimates that the 6,000-mile journey will take six or seven months. He plans to spend part of the next spring in Texas, then move to Illinois.

The route will probably parallel major highway systems so he will be able to buy feed for his horse and not be completely isolated from the rest of the world.

Carrying at least 40 pounds of concentrated feed for his horse, McGuire says he will not be carrying much food for himself. He adds, "I'll probably have to live off rabbits and other small game as much as possible."

The only real problem McGuire anticipates is that of his horse's partiality to Alaskan water. He observes, "Horses are very particular to the type of water they drink. Up here most of the water is clean, spring water, but you know what the water is like down there. It may take him a while to get used to it."

As for isolation and loneliness the specialist says, "I don't feel that I will be lonely because there will be plenty of settlements along the way, and the excitement of the trip will make up for any hardship or expense."

THE FORUM THE FORUM

By John Davis

When Henry Louis Aaron of the Mobile, Alabama Aarons was born, it wasn't very fashionable to be black.

He lived in an all black neighborhood, attended an all black school, and even began his professional career with an all black team. As an 18 year old fresh out of high school, he signed with the Indianapolis Clowns — baseball's answer to the Harlem Globetrotters — and his forte became knocking the ball out of the park using an unorthodox crosshanded swing.

In case you've been away for the past 20 years, Aaron is still hitting the ball over the fence but he no longer bats crosshanded or plays for the Clowns. In fact, the man Sandy Koufax so appropriately dubbed "Bad Henry," has collected 615 round trippers in his 17 year Milwaukee-Atlanta Braves career and is within 99 homers of the immortal Babe Ruth's long standing career total.

Aaron played only briefly with the Clowns but it was long enough to catch the eye of big league scouts. The Braves saw Aaron first and after inking his name to a pact, hurriedly sent their future superstar to their Jacksonville, Florida farm club.

Up until that time it had been an all black world for the young man from Alabama, but now he was to become the black to play in the deep south's all white South Atlantic League. A true baseball fan will disregard color in favor of talent, regardless of his personal beliefs, and Aaron had plenty of talent and made the transition with ease.

Aaron was summoned by the parent club in 1954 and has been there ever since. The Braves shifted Aaron to the outfield from his familiar second base spot and his historic career was launched...

Although Aaron has the best shot at the Babe's mark, he only rates second among active players in homerun output.

San Francisco's Willie Mays, another Alabama native, has 632 lifetime home runs but at age 40 is rapidly running out of gas. The Giant center fielder has at best a slim chance of passing Ruth.

Three years younger at 37, Aaron still possesses the lightning quick wrists and razor sharp reflexes that have been his trademark throughout his career. He also has the very distinct advantage of Atlanta Stadium — the playpen that has been called the "launching pad" by National League sluggers.

Baseballs seem to take off when hit in Atlanta Stadium, and many hurlers are voicing protests over the short fences and "cheap homers" that Atlanta Stadium affords the hitters. Undoubtedly, this has to be a big advantage for Aaron in his race to overtake Ruth.

Mays on the other hand has had the misfortune of calling home two of the worst hitters parks in the history of the game.

The venerable Mays broke in with the Giants in 1951 when they were still in New York. He patrolled centerfield in the old Polo Grounds where the fences were so far from home plate that the ort fielders needed binoculars to see the hitters. When the Giants moved west and set up housekeeping in Candlestick Park, the fences were shorter but the tormenting winds that continually blow off the bay towards home plate serve as constant harassment to long ball hitters...

Jimmy The Greek, the famous Las Vegas oddsmaker, lists Aaron as even money to topple Ruth's mark. If the Brave slugger doesn't collect home run number 715, you can rest assured that the mark will stand for a long time to come. Just as pro basketball coaches have discovered that they can't win championships without a big man regardless of how flashy their guards may be, baseball managers are realizing the same thing about sluggers.

The trend is now towards speed and quickness instead of raw power and you can look for it to continue.

ROD AND GUN CLUB Notes

By Bill Kloeb

The seminar by the Bass Anglers Sportsman Society (BASS) originally scheduled for Monday, June 28 has been rescheduled to 7:30 p.m., July 15 at the Columbus Municipal Auditorium.

The seminar is in three parts. One part will be on the objectives of BASS in making improvements in anti-pollution and the conservation of our aquatic resources.

Another will be a series of three color movies. An underwater film, "Still Waters" gives a fish eye view of fishing. It shows bass striking at lures, feeding and what takes place during the spawning season. "The Gifts" is a revealing report on water pollution. It depicts the reasons for the growing concern of fishermen and the entire country over the water pollution problem. The third film has several exicting action scenes of bass fishing.

The third part of the seminar will feature "how to" talks by nationally known professional bass fishermen. The talks will include techniques used to locate bass, use of depth finders, correct bass tackle and successful tactics used by fishermen whose success is judged by their fish catches.

Tickets are $2 with proceeds going to support the BASS national campaign against pollution. Youngsters under 12 will be admitted free.

Fishing Derby Winners

The family of SSgt. Jimmie R. Ford, Headquarters Command did quite well in the Rod and Gun Club June Fishing Derby. Ford won the catfish contest and his wife, Gisela, was first in the bream competition. Ford took his 10-pound 1-ounce catfish from Victory Pond. He was using liver for bait. Gisela used a swamp wiggler to take her prize winning 1-pound, 7-ounce brim from Patterson Pond.

SFC (ret) Elbert Arronwood, 360 McCartha Drive, Columbus won the bass contest with an 8-pound, 4-ounce beauty he caught at Averett Pond. Arronwood was using one of the popular plastic worms.

The three winners will each receive $15 in merchandise from the Rod and Gun Club Sales counter.

The Rod and Gun Club holds a Fishing Derby every month. Fishermen catching the largest bass, bream and catfish from one of the post ponds each receive a merchandise prize. Rules of the contest are simple. All contestants must be members of the post Rod and Gun Club. They must indicate their intent to enter the contest by registering at the Rod and Gun Club office prior to going fishing. They must take the fish from one of the ponds on the reservation and bring the catch back to the club for an official weight determination. Military active duty and retired personnel, post civil service workers and their dependents are eligible to join the Rod and Gun Club. Membership fee for the sponsor is $5. A $1 fee is charged for dependents more than 16 years of age. Children under 16 are not required to have membership or state hunting or fishing licences.

The club is located on First Division Road about one-quarter mile south of Highway 27. Members are able to buy bait and hunting and fishing supplies at the club sales counter. They may use the club bar and grill, skeet, trap and archery facilities located on the club grounds.

Other conveniences offered to members are boat and motor rentals and the sale of state hunting and fishing licences and post hunting and fishing permits.

All personnel hunting or fishing on the reservation are required to have a state license and a post permit.

Anyone having any questions or desiring additional information about the Rod and Gun Club can call Tom McCollough, club custodian at 545-8028 or 545-6226.

U.S. rifle, pistol teams leave Fort Benning for Switzerland

U. S. rifle and pistol teams representing the cream of the nations best military marksmen left this Infantry post July 4 for Switzerland where they will participate in the 13th Annual Counsel International du Sports Militaire (CISM).

Described as the Military Shooting Olympics, the CISM matches which are recognized throughout the world as one of the most dynamic and effective sports organizations in existence will officially open July 5 at Thun, Switzerland.

Within the country military marksmen have been training strenuously and participating in competitive matches since early Spring in qualifying for the prestigious matches. Then in May the Interservice Championship Matches at Fort Benning made the final selections with the naming of the victors. Each of the five man pistol and rifle teams were named from the results of these matches.

Grabbing a lions share of the team places the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit captured three spots on each team while the U. S. Marines won a single berth on both teams. The Navy and Air Force had to settle for a total of two men, the Air Force selectee on the pistol team and the Navy man on the rifle team. Members of the pistol team making the trip are: Marine warrant officer Francis Higginson, Air Force MSgt. Don Rupp and Army SFCs Hezekiah Clark, Bennie Harmon and Harland Reynolds.

The rifle team members are: Marine warrant officer David Boyd and Navy Lieutenant Webster Wright along with Army Captains Clifford Davis, Lanny Bassham and Gregory Dalton.

In addition the Army named the coaches for each team and an Armorer-Coach. They are MSgt. Laurence K. Mosely, NCOIC of the Pistol Division of the Army Marksmanship Training Unit who will lead the Pistol team. Mosely, a veteran handgun competitor and holder of the Distinguished Pistol Badge and the International Distinguished Badge was the Pistol Champion of the first CISM events which was held in Athens, Greece in 1957. During the 1957 matches Mosely won three first place events and paced the U. S. team to a third place showing. He was also a member of the fifth U. S. CISM Team which won the team championships at Rio de Janeiro, Brazil in 1960.

TSB downs Engineers in 2 defensive struggles

The 931st Engineer Group fast pitch softball team dropped a twin-bill with The School Brigade (TSB) June 30 at Gowdy Field. The Engineers lost both stanzas of the titantic defensive struggle by the identical score of 2-1, the second setback coming in an extra inning.

Pitching for both teams was excellent, but in the second game of the night 931st hurler Art Mascarinas suffered his first setback of the year.

Sonny DeLaPaz, Engineer shortstop, supplied all of the scoring for his team as he slammed two home runs, one in each of the games to claim hitting honors for the night.

In the second contest of the double - header, DeLaPaz homered in the first inning to give the Engineers a lead that they held until the last inning when a combination of two errors and a wild pitch enabled TSB to even the score at 1-1.

The 931st failed to score in their half of the first extra inning and TSB took advantage of the situation to end the game when, with a man on third and two outs, pitcher Mascarinas bobbled a ball hit to him allowing the winning run to score.

The first game ended under similar circumstances—a mental error by DeLaPaz allowed TSB to load the bases with two out in the last inning before pitcher "Joltin'" John Jarvis issued a walk to Pete Gunn which forced the winning run to score.

The game was scoreless until the fourth inning when DeLaPaz blasted the first pitch to him far over the center field fence giving the Engineers a 1-0 lead.

Jarvis seemed to be in control of the contest until the last inning when TSB scored two runs on two hits, two very costly errors and the game-ending walk.

The sweep of the double-header dropped 931st into fourth place and enabled TSB to retain their position as leaders in the post league.

Army runners take AAU

WASHINGTON (ANF)— Three Army distance runners put together strong performances to take the team championship in the National AAU Marathon at Eugene, Ore.

Sp5 Russ Pate, Ft. Ord., Calif., paced the soldiers in the grueling 26-mile, 385-yard event with a time of 2 hours, 27 minutes and 5 seconds, good for 13th place in the field of 103.

Second Lt. Ron Sayers of Ft. Bragg, N. C., was 19th in 2:29:17 and Second Lt. Tom Ratliffe, Ft. Sill, Okla., finished 20th in 2:30:09 to complete the winning team.

The individual title in the marathon was won by former Army standout Ken Moore, now running for the Oregon Track Club, in 2:16:48.

Ship averages

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — When the Navy last tallied the number of ships it had — 694 — it also averaged their ages. The result: 15.8 years is the average age for the 357 ships in the Atlantic and 337 in the Pacific.

Hq. Cmd. drops 2 softball games to 197th

The 197th Infantry Brigade fast-pitch softball team swept two games from Headquarters Command (Hq. Cmd.) 8-1 and 6-3, June 30. The battling brigade met little resistance in the first game of the double-header as they powered their way to an easy 8-1 verdict.

It was a different setting in the second game of the twin bill, however, as the hustling brigade rallied to overcome a one-run deficit in order to gain the victory.

197th hurler "Lefty" Furnish was credited with the 197th wins; Hq. Cmd. pitchers Robert "Pappy" Willis and Moses Cobb absorbed the defeats.

The Infantrymen turned in their first triple play of the season in the first inning of the nightcap. With two men on base and no one out, Hq. Cmd. second baseman Ray Thompson stepped into the batter's box. The second sacker stroked a shallow pop fly into center-field. 197th centerfielder Leonard Gibson raced in toward the infield and caught the ball, then quickly fired the ball to third baseman Tom Sumner. Sumner stepped on the third base bag doubling John Pope off the hot corner and quickly hurled the ball to second sacker Larry Ardito. Ardito stepped on second base, doubled John Hartsook off the second base bag completing the triple killing.

The "Big Red Bullet," scurried to a 2-0 lead in the top of the sixth inning, but fell one run behind in the bottom of the fourth frame.

The 197th tied the game in the top of the fifth stanza and took the lead again in the top of the seventh inning. "Lefty" Furnish scored the go-ahead run for the 197th as Gerald Freyberger delivered his second clutch hit of the contest. An error by the Hq. Cmd. first baseman propelled two additional 197th runs across home plate and allowed the brigade to coast home with the victory.

The Infantrymen opened the second half of the USAIC softball season June 29 with two one-run victories, 7-6 and 4-3, against an improved Aviation Command (Avn. Cmd.) softball team.

The second game of the twi-nighter was decided in the top of the sixth inning. 197th shortstop Jesus Encinas singled. The base hit allowed Ardito to cross home plate with the winning tally.

The first game of the twin bill ended in the bottom of the 10th inning. 197th right-fielder James Rix scored the winning run on Tom Sumner's grounder to the Avn. Cmd. shortstop.

"Lefty" Furnish picked up both victories for the 197th. In two nights, Furnish pitched a total of 24 innings and won four games. The hard-throwing left-hander was also effective as a hitter. He collected five hits in eight times at bat for a .621 average in the four game series and also delivered four RBI's.

Stan Musial accepts old-timers invitation

Stan "the Man" Musial, who played 22 seasons for the St. Louis Cardinals, has accepted an invitation to play in the Old-Timers Game on Saturday, August 14, at Atlanta Stadium. Musial and former Braves' players Tommy Holmes, Taylor Phillips and Bob Uecker were the acceptances announced today by the Braves and the Braves "400" Boosters Club, co-sponsors of the annual Old-Timers affair.

Musial was one of baseball's all-time super-stars, posting a .331 batting average for his career with the Cards. He won the National League batting title seven times with three of them coming in a row (1950-52). He was named Most Valuable Player in the league three times in 1943, 1946 and 1948. He played in a record 24 All-Star Games for the National League and was selected to the Major League All-Star Team 12 seasons. He was named Player of the Decade by Sporting News in 1956. Another tribute to his great hitting ability is the fact that he hit over .300 for 17 of his 22 seasons, and his fielding skill is evidenced by his having led all National League outfielders in fielding percentage three times.

While Musial will be heading up the Card offense in the Old-Timers Game, the Braves old-timers will be led by one of the great Braves hitters of all time, Holmes.

Holmes played nine seasons for the Braves and was named Most Valuable Player in the National League in 1945. He established a modern-day league record in 1945 when he hit safely in 37 consecutive games — finishing the year with a .352 average.

Phillips, who pitched for the 1957 World Champion Braves, has become a regular in the lineup for Old-Timers Games. His big league career ran from 1956 through 1963, playing for the Braves, Cubs, Phillies and White Sox.

Uecker has become prominent throughout the country as a comedian on the "Johnny Carson Show" and on other national TV shows.

RUN FOR YOUR LIFE

Bowling Results

In a whirlwind finish, the Headhunters of HHC, 1st Bn. (Mech.), 58th Inf. "Patriots" captured the League trophy by one-half game. After a four month competition running from March to June, the winning team was decided in the last game.

On April 26, the Headhunters and Co. C Champs tied a game, creating a half-game in the standings. It was this half-a-game which proved to be the deciding margin of victory and: sewed off the challenging Bulldogs of Co. B.

The winning team members were: Lt. Col. Stephen R. Pawlik, Major Paul Gross, 1st Lt. Barry K. Perlene, SSgt. Rick Bauer, Sgt. Dale Aberle, Sgt. LeRoy Brandt and Sp4 Noel Frakes.

The high series went to Sp4 Noel Frakes with a 598. The high game went to Sgt. LeRoy Brandt with a 245.

Engineers, Hq. Cmd. divide doubleheader

The 931st Engineer Group fast-pitch softball team struck back in the second game of a doubleheader June 29 at Essenbagger Field to gain a hard-earned split of the twin bill with Headquarters Command (Hq. Cmd.). After dropping the opener 8-5 on a hotly contested call by the first base umpire the Engineers rallied to win the nightcap 4-3.

"Rarin'" Rick Monell added the victory to his string of wins, while John Jarvis, ace of the 931st pitching staff, absorbed the loss.

Hq. Cmd. tallied first in the second game as they combined two singles, a walk and a passed ball to produce their only runs of the game as "Rarin'" Rick blanked the opponents for the rest of the contest.

931st sluggers rallied to tie the game in the second inning as they used smashing base hits by Dave "Wicked" Wilson, Rick Schell, and Sonny DeLaPaz and a walk to Dominic Mercurio to score three runs.

The Engineer's game-winning run scored with two out in the fifth inning as Schell doubled and was brought home on DeLaPaz' game-winning hit, a booming double to center field.

In the first contest the 931st sluggers scored five runs in one inning but it was not enough as Hq. Cmd. came up with a run in the bottom of the last inning to squeeze out a victory, 6-5.

Two runs in the first and second innings and a single counter in the fourth enabled Hq. Cmd. to build up a five run lead but it was short lived as the Engineers tied the game in the sixth.

Miss July

Marianna Chamberlain, Dahlonega, Ga. is our honey blonde safety queen for July. She urges you to continue your safe practices throughout the summer. Don't get hurt during the "Dangerous 100 Days from now through the Labor Day weekend.

In the swim of things this summer? ARC says don't do too much too soon

WASHINGTON (ANF)— As temperatures rise and Americans begin flocking to beaches, pools and waterways to cool off and enjoy the water, the American Red Cross cautions swimmers that almost 50 per cent of early-summer drownings are caused by overexertion—trying to do too much too soon after a winter of inactivity.

So take it easy the first few times out, suggests the Red Cross. Don't court disaster by overtaxing yourself before you have become conditioned to vigorous exercise in the water. Many of last year's drownings occurred in the early weeks of the season.

Swimming by yourself is another dangerous practice. Never swim alone, advises the Red Cross. Swim in supervised areas and even then with a companion who has the capability to assist if necessary.

Cramps are another swimming peril. Cramping in the fingers, toes, arms or legs is often caused by fatigue and overexertion. Such cramps are of little danger to the swimmer unless they cause him to panic.

Relief is gained by stretching the muscles. Sometimes this can be done simply by changing the swimming stroke and relaxing. If this doesn't work, try rubbing or kneading the cramping muscles, advises the Red Cross.

In any swimming emergency, don't panic. Think calmly of the best corrective action and conserve your strength and energy.

Most Red Cross chapters throughout the country conduct some kind of swimming instruction for persons who cannot swim or are novices. By learning to swim proficiently, says the Red Cross, you'll get much more fun out of the water and lessen your chances of becoming a water fatality.

A few more hints for swimmers recommended by the Red Cross are:

—Don't substitute floating devices for swimming ability.

—Don't dive into unknown water or shallow breaking waves.

—Maintain close supervision of children at all times.

—Don't swim close to piers, pilings, diving boards and platforms.

—Know how to administer artificial respiration and learn simple and safe rescue techniques.

—Don't attempt to see how far you can swim under water.

586th supports Girl Scout camp

The 586th Engr. Co. (FB), 983st Engr. Gp., recently completed two weeks of support for the Fort Benning Girl Scouts at Camp Hideaway on Marna Road.

The engineers supplied water and ice to the young campers every day during the two-week period. In addition, the engineers cleared trees and cut grass at the camp.

The support platoon also erected sanitation facilities at the camp and raised a flag pole in the main camp area. Sgt. Fizer Harlston, Sp5 Luis Furtado and Sp4 Prentiss Grizzard of the 586th constructed a safety fence around the pole.

Throughout the camp the engineers were responsible for maintaining the camp's sanitary and safety features.

According to Mrs. Doris Bates, camp director, some 80 girls stayed at the camp site the first week and 65 scouts visited the second week.

Camp Hideaway became the temporary home of girls seven to 17 years old in the classifications of Brownie, Fly-up, Junior, Cadette and Senior.

Tornado power

The power of tornadoes is awesome. One storm picked up an 83-ton railroad car with 117 passengers and carried it 60 feet through the air before dropping it in a ditch.

Vets overseas should check on limits to rights

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Veterans planning to travel overseas this summer are faced with certain limitations on their rights and benefits.

The Veterans Administration said that only veterans with service-connected disabilities are eligible for hospitalization and related assistance. And those under medication are reminded to take enough with them to last throughout their overseas tours.

If ill, all an eligible veteran needs to do overseas, is apply to an American embassy or consul and arrangements will be made for hospitalization. In an emergency, a veteran is eligible for VA-paid hospitalization and medicine if he notifies the embassy or consular office within 15 days after hospitalization, assuming he has a rated service-connected disability.

Retired servicemen are eligible for medical benefits from military hospitals and clinics.

In addition, there are no loan guarantee benefits available overseas for veterans, except in Puerto Rico, and veterans receiving compensation or pension checks should, if at all possible, keep stateside mailing addresses.

Veterans are permitted to attend foreign schools, if otherwise eligible, if the institutions are VA approved, and the courses lead to degrees.

Reservists can deduct bills

The cost of cleaning and maintaining National Guard and Reserve uniforms can be deducted from federal income tax returns when deductions are itemized, according to the Internal Revenue Service.

Records should be kept to substantiate the deductions.

ROTC Rangers

at the Florida Ranger Camp at Eglin AFB, Fla. The students conduct extended counterguerrilla operations in a jungle-type environment. Here, all their skills and stamina are taxed to the maximum, and those that complete it are Rangers in the fullest sense of the word.

The ROTC cadets are taking Ranger training in lieu of their regular summer camp. They were selected from more than 1,200 volunteers.

Those who complete more than six weeks of the course will be given credit for summer camp. Successful completion of the course will give the cadets the right to wear the yellow and black tab of the U.S. Army Ranger.

Froehlke

having been appointed assistant secretary of defense for administration in January, 1970. He was inducted on June 2, 1970, in ceremonies at Fort Benning presided over by Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, Fort Benning commander.

A native of Neenah, Wis., Froehlke graduated from OCS in 1943. He served with Infantry units in Europe until his discharge as a captain in 1946.

Froehlke is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin Law School. He had practiced law, taught on the law faculty of the University of Wisconsin and worked as a business executive prior to being named assistant secretary of defense.

Army tries to heat up cold injuries

U.S. ARMY COMBAT DEVELOPMENTS COMMAND, Ft. Belvoir, Va. — A midsummer reminder that not all soldiers serve in steamy jungles is the proposed Army requirement for the development of a Cold Injury Rewarming and Treatment System.

As stated by the Army's Combat Developments Command (CDC) at Ft. Blevoir, Va., the idea is to get a hospital-type "whirlpool" warming bath as near the frost-injured soldier as his battalion Aid Station. This will get rewarming and massage of frozen extremities started as soon as possible to prevent more serious injury and infection.

The rewarming system desired by CDC should be capable of circulating water in a tank at a steady 104-Degrees F, yet the empty tank, heater and all devices should not weigh more than 10 pounds, with most of it going into a three cubic foot suitcase.

Based on a CDC-directed study, "Medical Operations in Northern Areas," the requirement notes that water warms human flesh four times as fast as air. In addition, this highly mobile system will contain a surgical detergent to minimize infection and speed recovery.

According to CDC cold weather experts, it will also have its own pressure temperature controls, "Fair-safe" and alarm systems.

Short basic training cycle test looks good so far

FORT JACKSON, S. C. (ANF) — A test to cut basic combat training (BCT) from eight weeks to six by making more efficient use of training time has been successfully completed at Ft. Jackson, S. C.

The test's accelerated training will be carried on into advanced individual training (AIT) and combat support training (CST) where the soldiers are expected to be trained in two military occupational specialties (MOS) in the amount of time normally taken to strain them in one.

The test AIT will be extended to 10 weeks, for a total of 16 weeks of training, the time normally required for a trainee to complete BCT and AIT to receive one MOS.

Although the accelerated basic training cycle's duration was cut by more than 15 per cent, the curriculum was not altered.

The accelerated program was introduced to make more efficient use of training time, providing challenging intellectual and physical conditioning and develop a broader knowledge of Army skills.

Victory burger

Victory is a big juicy hamburger to Bobby Jenik, a member of the Youth Activities' Doughboy Team No. 2, after the team won the Doughboy Little League Championship. Bobby was one of many little leaguers present at a picnic and awards party held after the game at Fort Benning's Trap and Skeet Range.

Reports to 'Nam in August

Gen. Carley reassigned

Brig. Gen. John T. Carley, 30th assistant commandant of the Infantry School, has been reassigned to a position in the Republic of Vietnam. He will assume his new duties early in August.

Gen. Carley, has been nominated for promotion to major general, will become operations officer (J3) Military Assistance Command-Vietnam.

The general's reassignment comes after he served more than a year as the assistant commandant. Prior to that he was director of instruction in the school.

During his tour of duty, Gen. Carley was responsible for implementing sweeping changes in the Infantry School's curriculum. Many of these revisions were aimed at including topics of current interest in the School's courses.

Last year the Infantry School pioneered race relations instruction for the entire Army school system. Since then, the School has added classes in drug abuse, AWOL prevention and improved management.

Currently, under Gen. Carley's direction, the School is implementing the Benning Plan for a Modern Volunteer Army. The Leadership Department has developed a class entitled "Leadership for Professionals" as part of the MVA project.

This class, being given to all officers and noncommissioned officers at Fort Benning, reemphasizes leadership techniques and principles.

Throughout this stay, Gen. Carley has placed top priority on developing small unit leaders who are qualified professionally to be successful leaders.

The Vietnam tour will be Gen. Carley's second. Previously, he was a brigade commander in the 1st Infantry Division.

Gen. Carley is a native of Richton, Miss. He graduated from the United States Military Academy in 1945. He is also a graduate of the Command and General Staff College and the Army War College.

VOLAR ideas change Mountain Ranger Camp

By WENDELL COCHRAN

DAHLONEGA, Ga. — The Blue Ridge Mountains that surround this north Georgia town change slowly. It has taken millions of years for nature to wear down their peaks and round out their ridges.

But life in the Mountain Ranger Camp, 10 miles from here, is being transformed more quickly, thanks to

Westmoreland to see training at Ranger Camp

DAHLONEGA, Ga. — Gen. William C. Westmoreland, Army chief of staff, will visit the Mountain Ranger Camp here today.

He will observe Reserve Officer Training Corps cadets in Ranger training.

"Due to the camp's unique mission, the five day-work week is not feasible at the Mountain Ranger Camp," Gabel said.

The camp's mission is nearly round-the-clock training in patrolling and mountaineering when the Ranger students are in cycle. All this takes place in the Chattahoochee National Forest, which abounds in beautiful scenery, steep cliffs and high-banked ridges.

The Mountain Ranger Camp is nearly a separate entity although it is part of the Infantry School. It has its own post exchange, commissary, fire department, post engineer section, motor pool and water treatment facilities.

Gabel said the camp's soldiers have adopted a "wait and see attitude" before deciding about VOLAR, because they know Fort Benning soldiers have

Ecology effort

Spl Dave E. Carson (L) of the Preventive Medicine Unit and Spt John Brunson at the Army Community Services scheon of Admin. Co., 197th Inf. Bde., put collected bottles into a trash can near Cusseta Road as post soldiers and scouts participated in the July 7 "Ecology Day" program at Fort Benning. The event was sponsored by the Department of Facilities Engineering and the Congress of Unified Residents for Ecology.

the Modern Volunteer Army program.

"We've implemented almost every item in the Benning Plan," said Maj. Michael A. Gabel, the camp's executive officer. However, the camp's remoteness from Fort Benning and its requiremnts have made implementation of some of the major items difficult, the major said.

For example, the camp still does not have civilian KPs or barracks partitions. And the five-day week is but a dream during the 250 days a year the camp is training Ranger students.

Plan makes speedy shipment for the 'birds'

By Cathy Wright

FORT BENNING, Ga. — Customers at the Fort Benning Transportation Office are still getting speedy attention to the shipment of their personal property under the "Early Bird" program.

Wentworth Bethea, chief of the household goods section said "We promise completion of the whole counseling process within an hour, barring highly unusual problems, if the customer arrives at the Transportation Office by 8:15 a.m."

The Early Bird program was instituted in order to clear up congestion in personal property counseling, a process which previously could take up to several hours. The congestion was often particularly difficult for the Infantry School graduate who may have only a few hours for out-processing — generally on the day before he needs to have his property packed. Some imaginative planning on the part of the household goods section to alleviate this problem resulted in the Early Bird program.

All employes in the household goods section receive training in personal property counseling, regardless of their regular job assignment so that there are enough trained employes to staff the Early Bird program.

The results are beneficial, not only

Raises $256,000 for Infantryman memorial

Columbus drive at halfway mark for museum project

At the halfway mark in its $500,000 Columbus-Phenix City fund drive, the Infantry Museum Association is preparing to extend its campaign nationwide.

Under the direction of former governor Winthrop Rockefeller of Arkansas and J. W. Woodruff Jr. of Columbus, national campaign co-charimen, the campaign goal is to raise $6 million nationally to construct and equip a National Infantry Museum at Fort Benning. The museum will serve as a memorial to the individual American Infantryman and preserve the history of the Infantry.

Since March 1 $256,000 has been raised in the Columbus area drive. The Columbus-Phenix City campaign is being directed by John A. Boland Jr., president of Swift Textiles Inc. and a combat infantry officer in North Africa and Europe during World War II.

"The intial $256,000 reflects a few large corporation pledges," according to Boland. "We are now starting to approach smaller businesses and prominent individuals in Columbus and Phenix City, and it is with their response that the success of the campaign rests."

A precedent for local support of the fund drive is the Fort Benning phase held last January through April, during which soldiers and civilian employes donated $80,040 to the campaign.

The participation of Woodruff and Boland is indicative of the support the Infantry Museum project is receiving from local community leaders. Of the 46 members of the museum's board of trustees, 20 are from Columbus. Charles S. Daley — a company commander during World War II and now president of the Fourth National Bank of Columbus — is state campaign chairman for Georgia. His immediate plans call for a summer campaign in Atlanta.

"Our goal in Atlanta will be $750,000," Daley says. "That's an ambitious goal, but also a realistic one. It is based on the fact that we know we will have to show strong support in Georgia if the campaign is to succeed nationally."

On the nationwide level, two drives already are underway, and others will be initiated by next fall.

The new museum will be 10 times as large as the present one. In addition to having a library and auditorium, it will house 12 separate exhibit areas in 71,300 square feet of display space. It also will include extensive artifact repair and restoration areas and display preparation areas, for which about $2 million has been earmarked. The museum will be located adjacent to Infantry Hall, the home of the U. S. Army Infantry School, on seven acres donated by the Army. Once built, it will be staffed and maintained by the Army.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT
by Bill King

Choose the coconut that has an uncracked shell and solid, dry eyes. If you shake it and hear sloshing, that means it has a good amount of liquid too.

For a special patio dinner, buy some red clay flower pots to line with foil and fill with hot rolls, celery or carrot sticks, or cocktail dip. Add a few pots of flowers or plants for a pretty touch.

Fill each canned peach half with a marshmallow, and top with some peach syrup and chopped salted almonds. Broil until marshmallow browns, and serve as dessert or as a garnish with broiled chicken.

Before charcoaling a steak, cut off the extra fat and rub it on the warm grill to keep the meat from sticking.

Not even Shakespeare was perfect. The Bard had his Falstaff drinking Madeira wine long before the island of Madeira was discovered.

Prized car keys

Officer Candidate Kenneth Hubbard, 51st Co., 5th Stu. Bn., TSB, receives the keys to a 1971 Datson from Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander. Hubbard won the automobile at the recent Youth Activity Council (YAC) Fourth of July Carnival at which various prizes were awarded to 27 Fort Benning soldiers and civilian employes. The carnival netted more than $30,000 for the Community Activities Association, the majority of the funds going to support the YAC activities on post.

Retirees hear VOLAR coordinator

The Columbus - Phenix City-Fort Benning Chapter of the Retired Offices Association held the second of a series of meetings Monday to revitalize the chapter.

Col. Edward Kennedy, coordinator for the Fort Benning VOLAR Program, was the guest speaker. He presented a briefing on the objectives and accomplishments of the post program.

During the business meeting that followed, Lt. Co., (ret.) Woodrow Laws and Col. (ret.) Ned Mabry were appointed to the nominating committee of the chapter.

The Retired Officers Association is a national organization with regional and local chapters located throughout the country and overseas. Retired commissioned and warrant officers from all the uniformed services are eligible for membership.

The local chapter will provide retired officers the opportunity to participate in a forum for the dicussion of matters of local and national importance affecting military retirees, to maintain contact with the military and to promote legislation in the best interest to retirees and the nation.

The next meeting will be held in the ballroom of the Fort Benning Country Club on Aug. 9. A social hour will begin at 7:30 p.m. followed by a business meeting at 8 p.m. The primary item for the agenda of the business meeting will be the nomination of officers to guide the activities of the chapter.

All retired commissioned and warrant officers, members and non-members are invited to attend the next meeting. Additional information concerning the chapter may be obtained from Lt. Col. (ret.) Norman Williamson by telephoning 545-2554 or 689-1616.

Col. Root takes over doctrine development

Col. Walter H. Root Jr. recently assumed command of the Office of Doctrine Development, Literature and Plans, (ODDLP) for the Infantry School.

Col. Root took over as head of ODDLP from Col. G. W. Baukninght. His department is responsible for the development of doctrine in the Infantry School.

Col. Root graduated from the Military Academy in 1945. He has attended the Infantry Officer Basic and Advanced courses and the Army War College. This is the colonel's second tour on the Infantry School faculty from 1954 to 1957 he served on the Weapons Committee.

He recently returned from Vietnam, where he was a brigade commander, and he served for the last six months with the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff, Personnel and Administration.

Among Col. Root's awards are the Legion of Merit, First Oak Leaf Cluster; Bronze Star with First Oak Leaf Cluster; the Air Medal, seven awards; Meritorious Service Medal; Joint Services Commendation Medal; and the Commendation Medal with First Oak Leaf Cluster.

New Zealanders visit School

Maj. Gen. Richard J. H. Webb, chief of the General Staff of the New Zealand Army, visited Fort Benning July 9-10. Accompanying Gen. Webb were Mrs. Webb and Brigadier A. H. Sutton, military attache to the New Zealand Embassy in Washington, D. C.

The tour included briefings by the Infantry School concerning the Infantry Officer Basic Course and by The School Brigade.

Radio class graduates

Sp4 David W. Stewart, Natchitoches, La., was the distinguished graduate and Sp4 Donald K. Schwemle, Forestburg, S.D., was the academic graduate of the Field Radio Mechanic Course Class 14-71 which graduated in ceremonies July 9 at Infantry Hall.

Lt. Col. Colan Britt, deputy director, Department of Nonresident Instruction, USAIS, delivered the commencement address to the 69 graduates.

The nine-week course is designed to provide students with a working knowledge of organizational maintenance for radios and other electrical equipment. These radio repairmen are trained to determine the damage to field equipment and make the necessary repairs.

Byline Bayonet

(Byline Bayonet welcomes questions of general interest about Fort Benning and the Army. Within space limitations all reasonable questions will be answered. Questions of a purely military nature which obviously could be answered more properly by commanders or supervisors within the chain of command will not be accepted. All questions must be signed with current unit of assignment indicated. Send questions to the Bayonet, ATTN: SFC Bob Edwards, Room 602, Infantry Hall or telephone 545-4792.)

Since many questions have been received relative to individual participation in the United States Savings Bonds Program this week's column will attempt to answer the more pertinent questions. Series E Bonds purchased on or after June 1, 1970, when held to maturity will receive an extra ½ per cent, payable at maturity, raising the yield to 5½ per cent from date of issue to date of maturity. Series H Bond purchased on or after June 1, 1970, will yield approximately 5.12 per cent for the first 5 years and 6 per cent for the remaining 5 years to maturity, providing an over-all yield of 5½ per cent from date of issue to date of maturity.

Q — What Savings Bonds are affected by the new rate?

A — All Series E and H Savings Bonds — new issues and outstanding issues.

Q — How is interest paid on these bonds?....

A — Series E Bonds are accrual-type securities, sold at 75 per cent of face value. Interest is paid by gradual increase in redemption value. E Bonds now mature in 5 years, 10 months; older E Bonds had various original maturity lengths ranging from 7 to 10 years. Series H Bonds are current-income securities, sold at par (face) value. Interest is paid by semi-annual checks issued by the treasury. H Bonds mature in 10 years.

Q — What is the new higher interest rate?

A— Series E Bonds now on sale return 5½ per cent interest, compounded semi-annually, when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months. They earn 4.01 per cent the first year; thereafter interest increases on a graduated scale; at maturity, they receive a ½ per cent bonus, raising the yield to 5½ per cent from issue date to maturity.

Series H Bonds now on sale also return 5½ per cent when held to maturity of 10 years. They earn 4.49 per cent the first year, 5.30 per cent for the next four years, and 6.00 per cent during the second 5 years; raising the rate to an average of 5½ per cent for the 10 year period.

The judge says

Be careful with power of attorney

USAIC LEGAL ASSISTANCE OFFICE — Members of the service frequently have need to execute a power of attorney because their duties prevent them from fully managing their own affairs. Yet few people realize the potential danger lurking in an improperly drawn power of attorney. One should be aware of the problems that may arise if the instrumeot is improperly drawn.

A power of attorney is a written instrument by which one person (the principal), authorizes and empowers another (the agent) to act for him. It is customarily used by an individual who is unable to be present at a particular time when important matters affecting his interest must be transacted.

The scope of a power of attorney may be as broad or as narrow as its maker wishes. A general power of attorney authorizes the agent to perform each and every act which the principal might perform himself. It constitutes, in effect, the complete power of its maker's signature — his credit, in the full sense of the word. A special power of attorney, on the other hand specifically limits the authority of the agent. It may limit his authority to perform a single specific act, or may be so broad as to cover nearly everything included in a general power of attorney. In either event, such power should never be granted unless there is absolute trust and confidence in the person to whom it is granted.

Powers of attorney are useful in a variety of situations. As a general rule, they may be drawn up whenever a truly urgent business matter must be acted upon in a person's name and he cannot be present to act for himself. Typical examples may include the sale of a home or an automobile.

As a power of attorney enables an agent to act on behalf of his principal and to bind him to the same extent as though the principal had performed the act himself, it should be given for a limited time only. The duration of the power should be specifically stated in the document. Otherwise the power remains in effect indefinitely and the only certain termination occurs upon the death of either the principal or the agent. Revocation of a power of attorney by the principal is possible, but dangerous and uncertain. While, as between agent and principal, such a revocation takes effect upon communication of it to the agent, third persons are not bound in most instances until they, too have, received actual notice of the revocation.

If a given item of business is too important to await your delayed physical presence, it is important enough for you to select the best method of authorizing another to act in your place. Before acting, consult you private attorney or your local Legal Assistance Officer.

Military needs self-confidence

By James Gregory

(Editur's note: The Bayonet welcomes letters to the editor. Send letters to the Bayonet, Room 602, Infantry Hall. Include your name and unit address.)

America, Americans and especially the American Armed Forces are all suffering from a lack of self-confidence. The well publicized credibility gap compounded by Vietnam, body counts, search and destroy missions, My Lai, the selling of the Pentagon, the military-industrial complex, service club scandals, the reported spiraling hard drug usage by GIs and the faulty decision making process have eroded that self-confidence that Americans and soldiers have always expected from themselves.

The military community needs to reaffirm its belief in itself. The positive aspects of the military's affect on the world community need emphasis. Amid diplomatic failures dating back to the Kennedy administration the Armed Forces has continued to protect the national interest around the world while fighting a bogged down land war in Southeast Asia hampered by politics and politicians who must accept the ultimate responsibility. But the experiences gained there bring jealous thoughts to combat commanders in Communist countries. With some embarrassing exceptions, the Vietnam defoliation policy for example, the military has long endorsed environmental projects.

The Defense Department has continued to offer training programs to struggling nations. Soldiers from around the world come to see the United States' military machine in action and training. The economy generated by the Armed Forces cannot be underrated. The military dollar has stabilized many communities across the nation and may have saved some embryonic nations in a world full of enemies.

The military's current painful reassessment of itself is a sign of better days to come. The Navy, with Adm. Zumwalt leading the way, has eliminated some of the old irritants that seamen found so abrasive. The Navy has contemporized the acceptable hair styles and given the lower ranking officers and men the responsibility they deserve and want.

The Army has responded with the milder Modern Volunteer Army concept. VOLAR (for Volunteer Army) is the catchword at the Army posts where the experimental project is under way to reach the zero-draft goal voiced by President Nixon.

The Army has followed the Navy's lead with the relaxing of hair length and styles but not standards. Although the Army change has not been as bold it has amended the regulations twice in a very short time after many years of resistance.

Things are being done now in the military that were unheard of even at the start of the Vietnam conflict. The Vietnam situation may be the reason for some of the changes so evident in the Armed Forces today. The Vietnam encounter amplifies many of the problems facing the nation today.

The commanders are trying to eliminate the gap between the soldier and his civilian contemporary. That gap is responsible in part for a lot of the anti-establishment talk. The soldier has to relate to his surroundings and the civilian community has to take pride in the soldier and the service he is giving it.

The Armed Forces still has a lot going for it and the nation. Conditions are changing and improvement is the mood of the uniformed services today. With the increased professionalism generated by VOLAR and things like Adm. Zumwalt's 'Z-Grams' the military establishment will have the confidence in itself to continue its service.

Four men split July 4 'jackpot'

Four men of the 931st Engineer Group split a $100 "Jackpot" for operating the best game booth at the recent Fourth-of-July Carnival.

SSgt. John C. Smith, Pvt. Mike Gillian, Sgt. George Agerton, and SSgt. James Delaughter, Co. C, 56th S and S Ban., operated the booth which took in the most money on the midway. Their efforts grossed more than $249, a new record for the event, and as a result of their hard work the men were presented with the $100 by 931st commander Col. Robert J. Standley.

The 931st constructed all of the booths used in the carnival. Some 40 stands were prefabricated by men of the 43rd Engr. Bn., and the 586th Engr. Co. (FB) under the direction of 2nd Lt. Frank G. Cover, HHC, 43rd Engr. Bn.

According to Cover: "The men who built and operated the booths should be commended for their efforts. Despite adverse weather conditions we remained on schedule throughout the assembly, operation and disassembly of the booths."

He added that special recognition should be given to SP4 Larry Wickham and Pvt. Clyde Querry, Co. A, 43rd Engr. Bn., and Sp5 Larry Burgin and Pvt. larry Heath, Co. B, 43rd Engr. Bn., who volunteered to work an extra seven hours on their own time Saturday night to help complete the project.

By carefully dismantling the booths, the men saved over 90 per cent of the components and they can be used again for next year's event, saving a considerable amount of money.

Columbus leaders attend Benning racial seminar

2 soldiers get up-graded VRB

Sgt. John W. Sawsville (L), and SSgt. Leonard F. Fletcher (R) wasted no time in taking advantage of the newly up-graded Variable Reenlistment Bonus (VRB) for the combat arms. Under the new policy, which went into effect July 1, the VRB for soldiers with the PMOS of 11B, 11C, 11D, 11E, 11F, 11H, 13A, 13B, and 13E, has been increased from 2 to 4. On July 2, Sgt. Sawsville re-uped for six years, receiving the maximum $10,000 bonus while SSgt. Fletcher's four year reenlistment earned him $8,000. Sawsville is assigned to the 1st Ranger Co., while Fletcher is a member of the 3rd Ranger Co., both of The Student Battalion.

In a seminar held to improve relationships between soldiers and the Columbus community, three prominent civic and business leaders were the guests July 7 of the 931st Engineer Group Race Relations Council.

The guests were two members of the Columbus Chamber of Commerce, Roy Browning, Director of the Board of Trustees of the First National Bank of Columbus, and Ned B. Mabry, Director of Public Affairs for the Chamber; and Dr. Robert L. Wright Jr., Metro Council Representative of District Two.

The two-hour meeting between the soldiers and the civic leaders was the initial step of proposed regularly scheduled sessions in which the soldiers hope to unify the relationship between the civilian and military communities.

It is hoped the seminars will open meaningful channels for the soldiers to communicate with local civic leaders, and that many of the problems facing the Fort Benning soldiers may be solved through discussion with the city's more prominent citizens.

Mr. Browning said he believed the meetings are the first of their sort in the Columbus-Fort Benning community.

The three participated in discussions of discriminatory business practices and complaints of discourteous and partial treatment by some local civilian organizations. They described to the soldiers the channels through which improvements in the community can be made, and vowed to use their influence in the community to help alleviate problems.

In the area of discriminatory business practices, Mr. Browning explained that the Better Business Bureau, as one of its many functions, operates to insure equal treatment to all customers and that violations can result in fines or even loss of a business license. He added that a representative of the bureau will be asked to attend the next meeting.

Dr. Wright stated his office, as well as the entire Metro Council, is open to servicemen at any time, and vowed that he would do everything in his capacity to assure equal treatment for all soldiers.

All three civilians expressed concern for the soldiers' problems and desire to continue the meetings with the Race Relations Council.

The council was formed by representatives of every subordinate unit of the engineer group.

From CDC's Creative Thinking Program

IOAC grad gets $100 for recommendation

Capt. Dennis D. Collins, a graduate of Infantry Officers Advance Course 2-71, was presented a Certificate of Achievement, a $100 honorarium, and a statuette of Rodins' "The Thinker" for his contribution to the U.S. Army Combat Developments Command's Creative Thinking Award Program.

The award was presented to Collins by Lt. Gen. John M. Wright, Jr., Comptroller of the Army, during class graduation ceremonies at Fort Benning.

The continuing Creative Thinking Award Program, established by CDC, Ft. Belvoir, Va., to encourage meaningful contributions to combat developments efforts from Army officer-students in advanced courses at branch and service schools, is one of CDC's primary sources of new ideas. The idea itself, does not have to be new: new uses for old ideas is what the CDC Creative Thinking Program is often all about.

Collins' recommendation was that three supplementary tables of organization and equipment (STOE) be drafted for all units of each active duty armor, Infantry, or mechanized Infantry division or separate brigade in CONUS. These STOE's would be designed to meet operational requirements in arctic, desert, and tropical geoclimatic environments.

Implementation of the suggestion by Collins will give the using units the capability of rapid and accurate modification of TOE's to facilitate combat in any of the world's geographic and climatic environments. The STOE will also facilitate the planning and prepositioning of logistical stocks for contingency missions, as well as limit the deployment of unnecessary equipment and of the resultant misutilization of transportation assets.

The CDC Creative Thinking Award Program at Fort Benning is administered by the Command's Infantry Agency.

Alert guards sound fire alarm, contain afternoon dayroom blaze

Guards preparing to go on duty alertly sounded fire alarms shortly after 1 p.m. July 9, and kept a blaze in the dayroom from spreading to other buildings at the 586th Engr. Co., 931st Engr. Gp.

The guards were able to contain the blaze with hand-held fire extinguishers and a garden hose until fire fighters from Harmony Church Stations One and Five arrived.

The five fighters doused the flames and kept the fire from spreading to nearby structures but not before the dayroom had been gutted leaving three pool tables destroyed.

Under the direction of Fire Chief Henry Montgomery, the firemen answered the call within ten minutes and had the blaze under control in another ten minutes.

Fire inspectors said the blaze began in the reading room but the cause had not yet been determined.

Black history classes offered at USAFI

The United States Armed Forces Institute (USAFI) has announced that two black history courses have been added to their curriculum. Enrollments are now being accepted for both courses.

The History of the American Negro (A 462) is designed to closely parallel Afro-American courses most commonly offered in civilian colleges and universities. The course will trace the development of the American Negro from African backgrounds through the 20th Century civil rights movement. Course work will include such topics as slavery and the slave trade, Reconstruction, and the Negro in the North and South.

A high school diploma or its equivalent is required for enrollment. The class will be offered on both an independent study and on a classroom basis.

The Negro in American History (A 210) is a high school-level course which will examine the role of American Negroes with particular emphasis on the development of public policy pertaining to black Americans. It is recommended that prospective students have at least an 8th-grade reading level.

The enrollment fee is $10 for each course. For further information consult an education advisor or call 545-4111.

Days to notify

Veterans Administration remainder: A veteran has 10 days after discharge to notify any local Selective Service Board of his address, and 30 days to register if he did not do so before entering military service. He has 90 days to apply to his former employer, if he wants his old job back.

First edition

Lt. Col. Edward Bradford (R), editor of Infantry Magazine, presents the first copy of "A Distant Challenge: The U.S. Infantryman in Vietnam 1967-1970" to Maj. Gen. Orwin Talbott, post commander. The book, compiled from a collection of personal accounts of combat, reveals the successes and mistakes of three years of military action in Vietnam.

Officer Council talks on post traffic safety

Traffic safety on Fort Benning was the main topic at a recent meeting of the Company Grade Officer Council.

Some of the improvements which will be made due to the recommendations of the council is a change in the traffic flow at the intersection of Sante Fe and First Division Roads. The stop sign presently in place on Sante Fe Road will be replaced by a yield sign on a trial basis.

Also the Provost Marshals Office currently is conducting a survey to determine ways of improving traffic control devices to increase visibility and enhance safety.

In other business the council discussed a proposed change in reenlistment movies and appointed a committee to study the requirements for an increased education program for commanders on drug abuse information.

Handicaps don't slow down 2 active MAH employees

Walking the corridors of Martin Army Hospital, you may see two girls winding their way through the patients to their respective jobs. They have overcome handicaps that in many cases would defeat a person's will to live, much less become productively employed. Yet these girls are active members of a busy hospital staff.

Mrs. Jill Brooker, 25, a clerk-typist in Orthopedics and Sheryl Feltman, 23, a lab technician in the Pathology lab, have been confined to wheelchairs since suffering from a virus that paralyzed them from the waist down.

Mrs. Brooker and Miss Feltman have known each other for quite a while. They were roommates at Warm Springs Hospital in the spring of 1968 where they were transferred for rehabilitation. Miss Feltman who was there first said that she felt that she already knew Mrs. Brooker since they had the same doctors and Mrs. Brooker's name had been mentioned quite a few times in her presence.

When Mrs. Brooker came to the hospital, Sheryl was fortunate enough to have Jill assigned to the same room. From there on, they built a lasting friendship.

The girls exercise regularly, about fifteen minutes of walking with braces per day. They had to arrange for separate exercise times since they love to compete with each other, and that leads to a lot of laughing instead of working.

The self-confidence that Jill and Sheryl have is inspiring. Both girls drive to work in their own cars, especially set up for them with hand controls. Sheryl drives from Columbus where she lives with her father, a retired master sergeant, and Jill drives from outside of Phenix City, where she lives with her husband.

Housework, which is dreary enough for most women, is an easy chore for these girls. They can do all the work except the heavy part which is done with the help of others. Sheryl has a maid come in once a week. Jill has her husband Harry to help her, who by the way, she met when he visited Martin Army Hospital as a returning Vietnam veteran.

The ability to hold down a full time job surprises neither of them. As Jill said, "I never even thought that I wouldn't have a job when I recovered." Jill had worked at MAH for two years when she became ill, so they put her on a leave of absence while she was gone.

And Sheryl, who is very independent indeed, said she couldn't wait until she was able to work again. Her job at the Medical Center in Columbus, where she had just finished her lab training, was terminated when she became ill, but the position was held open for her. She didn't join the staff of MAH until five weeks ago.

WOMEN'S NEWS

Veterans' rights limited during overseas travel

Veterans planning to travel overseas this summer are warned of certain limitations in their rights and benifits.

The Veterans Administration said that only veterans with service-connected disabilities are eligible for hospitalization and related assistance. And all are warned if under medication to take enough with them to last throughout their overseas tours.

If eligible, all a veteran needs to do overseas, if ill, is to apply to an American embassy or consul and arrangements will be made for hospitalization. In an emergency, a veteran is eligible for VA-paid hospitalization and medicine if he notifies the embassy or consular office within 15 days after hospitalization, assuming he has a rated service-connected disability.

Retired servicemen are eligible for medical benefits from military hospitals and clinics, VA said.

In addition, VA pointed out that there are no loan gurantee benefits available overseas for veterans, except in Puerto Rico, and that veterans receiving compensation or pension checks should, if at all possible, keep stateside mailing addresses.

Veterans are permitted to attend foreign schools if otherwise eligible, if the institutions are VA approved, and the course lead to degrees.

Today's girl wants the fresh look

In Grandma's day, the no make-up look gave even beloved Granny a washed-out appearance. Twenty years later "Loud Mouth Reds" were all the rage. The 60's too, left its mark with sequined eyes, the patterned cheek, and body paints.

Today's gal, though, strives for the look of the seventies . . . make-up that offers the look she wants for herself . . . a fresh look that feels like no make-up at all, yet hides those little nasties without heaviness.

HINTS FOR TODAY'S LOOK

A clean glowing complexion is a most . . . easily yours with this quick beauty routine.

(1) Generously apply cleansing cream to remove stale make-up and every-day grime.

(2) Add a tingly skin freshner to soothe minor skin irritations and remove last remains of cleanser and soil.

(3) Follow with a moisture cream so great for thirsty skin.

To help create the face that goes with fashion, we suggest these basic steps. Start with a liquid (especially good for dry to normal skin types), tinted foundation make-up to cover with a flattering veil of color. Add finishing face powder (the super light and sheery kind) to hold in and set your foundation.

The eyes certainly have it when you use brush-on brow and pastel or frosted eye shadow . . . so much a part of the "now" eyes accent. The use of roll-on mascara with its convenient spiral wand will release the exact amount of mascara required to do away with sticky lashes.

Blusher makes for a beautiful finish. It spices your make-up, ties it all together and brings your complexion alive.

Veteran's daughter is given scholarship

Alice Margaret Ryan has been presented a 1st Infantry Division Scholarship by Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander.

The scholarship awards are given to children of deceased veterans of the 1st Division who were killed while on active duty. The awards are for amounts of up to $2,000.

Alice, 8, was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Bernard S. Ryan, who helped her accept the award.

SSgt. Ryan was killed in Vietnam on Feb. 2, 1968, while serving with the 1st Division.

'War orphans' entitled to educational benefits

ATLANTA — With high school graduation time approaching, Georgia Veterans Service Director Pete Wheeler is reminding those graduates who are classified as "war orphans" to make application for educational benefits to which they are entitled. Wheeler says that some graduates could miss out on some generous GI bill benefits because they don't know the eligibility requirements.

"Some children feel that they do not qualify as 'war orphans' because they have one parent still living," says Wheeler, "when actually there are several circumstances under which a child may be so classified. These include: (1) a child of a veteran who has a total and permanent service-connected disability; (2) a child of a veteran who died of a service - connected disability; or (3) a child of a veteran who died of any cause while rated permanently and totally service-connected disabled.

"In addition to these cases," says Wheeler, "children of servicemen listed for more than 90 days as 'missing-in-action' or as 'prisoners of war' are now eligible for the same educational benefits."

Many young people may be hesitant about applying because they have married and no longer consider themselves as "children."

Stereo-equipped tank sure beats walking, says sgt.

By Frank Webb

If you heard about a young soldier who installed an eight-track stereo system in his tank while he was in Vietnam, would you believe the same soldier could maneuver the tank like a race driver and score high on tank proficiency courses?

Well, meet Sgt. Alan W. Benway, a talkative, free-wheeling tank commander whose skill as a tanker is attested by both is first sergeant and his company commander.

With facts and figures skillfully mixed with old war stories, Benway explains that his M48 A3 tank develops more than four-times the power of any dragster, and its engine alone weighs twice as much as the heaviest American car on the road.

Fuel-injected and turbo-charged, this nearly 50-ton behemoth holds a fascination for Benway, a self-declared "nut for intricate mechanical devices.

"It beats walking," he assures you. "Seriously, the tank is fun to shoot and drive, and it's a lot of fun if you like the type of life that includes camping."

Benway claims he had a very luxurious tank in Vietnam, one that included a stereo tape deck connected to four speakers for "wall-to-wall sound," in the tank.

The tank, however, hit a mine that shook the tape player off its perch and dashed it to pieces on the floor. When that happened, Benway was able to display his characteristic good humor and swept it together for a "trade-in" several weeks later.

He spent a full tour in Vietnam as a tanker, and then on his return to the states spent a year-and-a-half as company clerk at Co. C, 4th Bn., 69th Armr., 197th Inf. Bde. His first sergeant, Kent G. Vickers, praised him, claiming, "Al is one of the most competent clerks I've ever had."

Vickers elaborated. "When he came into the company, he had no clerical experience, but I looked at his personnel records and saw that he had a clerical score of about 145 out of 155 and a General Test score, the Army's equivalent of IQ, of over 130."

"Naturally," the sergeant commented, "I asked him if he wanted to be my company clerk, and he's worked here since then."

A gun enthusiast, Benway says that before he came into the Army he always liked to target shoot, but the price of ammunition proved too much. "But," he adds, "when I came into the Army, the problem was eliminated for me."

He has proven his skill with weapons often, most recently at a tank proficiency course at Camp Shelby, Miss.

Working with the National Guard unit stationed there, Co. C tankers ran a course of roughly three miles of terrain, shooting targets for accuracy. The course demands that the entire crew work closely as a coordinated team. Though Benway had not been in a tank for some time, his crew was among the top three in the course.

So it was not unusual when the young sergeant recently decided to reenlist in, the Army. Why? He gave several reasons, including the present lack of jobs on the "outside." For signing up for six more years he will receive a Variable Reenlistment Bonus (VRB) of $8,000.

Though the bonus would have been less before July 1, the VRB factor for combat arms is now three, meaning his basic bonus of $2,000 is multiplied by three and added to the standard bonus of $2,000.

In addition, he receives a "dream" assignment to Schofield Barracks in Hawaii and he will take along his wife Suzy.

Though he faces six more years as a tanker, Benway claims to be looking forward to it. In fact, he hopes to take a course in electronics while he is stationed in Hawaii, then possibly he will "slide into" electronics in the Army after he has served his six years.

1,708 Viet vets hired during June

Veterans Administration hospitals reported that 1,708 Vietnam era veterans were hired for a variety of jobs during the first three weeks of June.

Administrator of Veterans Affairs Donald E. Johnson also disclosed that VA employed a record 1,100 veterans during May under the Veterans Readjustment Appointments authority (VRA). This was a hike of 823 over the April figures, he explained.

Established in April 1970 by Executive Order, VRA permits Federal agencies to offer preference to Vietnam era veterans in Civil Service grades one through five where no competitive examinations are required. Veterans hired under the program have no more than 14 years of schooling, and must agree to one-the-job-training, classroom training, or both, for a period of not less than one year. VA has hired 2,330 veterans under the VRA program.

VA employs more than 6,400, Vietnam veterans in all categories, Johnson pointed out. Most of the new employes work in VA hospitals.

The VA administrator advises those interested in VA employment to contact the personnel office at any VA installation, or any U. S. Civil Service Commission office.

Chief nurse

Lt. Col. Sally M. Stallard has been named chief nurse at Martin Army Hospital to replace Col. Anne Rose who retired recently. Coming to Fort Benning from Kimbrough Army Hospital, Fort George Meade, Md., Col. Stallard has a bachelor of science in nursing from the University of Nebraska and a master degree in hospital administration from Baylor University. She also has attended the Army Nurse Corps Career Course.

Lt. Gen. John M. Wright (R), comptroller of the Army, is greeted by daughter-in-law Mrs. Richard Wright and grandson, Gen. Wright and his wife (second from left) were met at Columbus Airport by Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott (L) July 7 for a two-day tour of the Infantry Center and Fort Benning.

ROTC students praise Ranger camp training

By Wendell Cochran

DAHLONEGA, Ga. — "It's rough but it's good."

That is the general impression some 195 ROTC Ranger students have gotten from their Ranger instruction at Fort Benning and the Mountain Ranger Camp near here.

"It's very challenging, but very rewarding at the same time," said Frank Walkowski, an ROTC cadet at Washington State University.

The cadets are taking Ranger training in lieu of their regular summer camp. Those that complete the nine-week course successfully will be awarded a Ranger tab.

The challenge of attempting the Army's most strenuous course intrigued many of the students to the point they volunteered. "I'd heard that the Ranger training is some of the finest in the Army — both physically and mentally — and I just wanted to try it," Kent Carter, a South Dakota State University cadet, said.

Many of the students praised the quality of instruction given in the Ranger course.

"The instructors are the finest I've seen anywhere," was the impression of Dennis Wilkinson of Northwestern State University.

Skip Bona, a cadet at Virginia Military Institute, summed it up: "The training here, although it is longer, is much, much better than I would have received at the regular summer camp."

From the mountains, the students move into the course's third phase, conducted at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla.

There they will receive extensive technique training and conduct extended patrols in a counterguerrilla environment.

The Florida phase is mentally and physically the most demanding of the Ranger course. It is climaxed with an 11-day continuous operation.

Graduation for the ROTC Rangers is scheduled for Aug. 12.

Pennsylvanian top graduate of track class

Sp4 Alex S. Molinski, Johnstown, Pa., was the distinguished honor graduate of the Track Vehicle Mechanic Course Class 35-71, 15th Co., 1st Bn., TSB, which graduated in ceremonies July 8 at Infantry Hall.

Lt. Col. Robert L. Skiles, Command Maintenance Department delivered the commencement address to the 37 graduates.

The seven-week mechanics course provides personnel with a working knowledge to perform organizational maintenance and recovery of tracked vehicles.

Included among the course of instruction are engine principles, valve adjustments, cooling and lubricating systems, carburetion and fuel injection.

Molinski is in the National Guard and he will report to his hometown unit for assignment.

Agency record

The Veterans Administration — the Government's largest independent agency — employs 222 architects and engineers in its medical facilities construction program. This is more than any other Federal agency.

49 graduate from 197th Inf. NCO School as program ends in Harmony ceremony

The 197th Infantry Brigade NCO School was officially closed July 9. In the last graduation exercise, 49 soldiers participated.

Located in the Harmony Church area, the NCO School was designed to prepare 197th NCOs in the grade of sergeant, E-5 (or acting), to be leaders and supervisors in garrison-type situations.

Two acting sergeants were chosen for their outstanding performance during the three week course as part of the final graduation program. Sp4 Elmore C. Thrash Jr., Hq. and Hq. Service Btry., 2nd Bn., 10th Arty., was presented an award for outstanding leadership. Sp4 Bung J. Cornish, Co. E, 5th Bn., 31st Inf., received an award for academic excellence.

Present at the graduation was Col. Willard Latham, 197th Inf. Bde. commander. Col. Latham explained why the students were chosen to attend the school in a portion of his address: "It was felt that you would qualify to move into a position of higher authority."

The brigade commander touched on a wide variety of topics. In reference to the VOLAR concept, Col. Latham told the graduates that part of their future mission would be "to create a climate that will encourage Americans—young Americans—to enter the Army." The brigade commander ended his address on a congratulatory note as he congratulated the students on a "job well done."

Since its opening May 17 the school has graduated 119 soldiers.

The school was closed because enough soldiers now have been trained to take the vacated leadership positions left by higher NCOs within the brigade due to overseas levies.

Farinelli honored graduate

Capt. Anthony J. Farinelli, Leominster, Mass., was the distinguished graduate of the Infantry Officer Advanced Course, (IOAC) Class 2-71 which graduated in ceremonies July 9 at Marshall Auditorium, Infantry Hall.

Lt. Gen. John M. Wright Jr., comptroller of the Army, Washington, D.C., delivered the commencement address to the 206 graduates.

For his achievement Farinelli received a letter of commendation signed by Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, commandant, United States Army Infantry School, and a "Five-Star Doughboy" statuette.

The distinguished allied graduate was Capt. Yilma Ghizaw from Ethiopia. Ghizaw received a letter of commendation signed by the commandant which will be forwarded to his nation's military attache in Washington, D.C., for inclusion in his official records.

Voice of VOLAR

— The Modern Army Control Group is compiling its final report on the initial six-month VOLAR test period. This report will evaluate every action taken as part of the Modern Volunteer Army and will make recommendations on items to be altered, continued or deleted from the Benning Plan.

— Free bus service between Fort Benning and Columbus to area recreation sites will be continued into the new fiscal year.

Loan violations

The Veterans Administration may suspend from participation in its loan program those who take unfair advantage of veteran borrowers or decline to sell a new home to, or make a loan to, a creditworthy, eligible veteran because of his race, creed, color or national origin.

4 crewchiefs keep aircraft repaired

Webster defines "professionalism" as professional quality, status, etc." A certain foursome of crewchiefs at Lawson Army Airfield defines the same word as "what it takes to be crewchief."

Sp5 Jon W. Alakamovitch Sp5 Alfred R. Dillow, Sp5 Jose M. Gonzales, and Sp4 Alan G. Hackl are all crewchiefs for the 609th Transportation Company, and they all have seven things in common—the seven U-6A "Beaver" fixed-wing aircraft. With the responsibility of keeping all seven of these 14 to 16 year old airplanes in operation, these men must continuously perform maintenance on the aircraft, which involves everything from daily servicing to repairing carburators.

To enter the aviation mechanics school at Ft. Rucker, Ala., the prospective crewchief must pass a series of aptitude tests for that school. The test is programmed to pass only those with a basic knowledge of engines and mechanics prior to the start of the course.

After completing the course, the student receives three months of on the job training before being qualified as a crewchief.

Three of the four "Beaver" crewchiefs—Dillow, Gonzales and Hackl—have served over two years and have since reenlisted.

Hackl, who was offered $7,200 per hour to perform his services at a private civilian airport, elected to reenlist with a $7,280 bonus and become a career soldier. In explaining his decision, Hackl pointed out that job security was probably the most appealing factor in his decision to make the Army his career.

From another point of view, Dillow described his Army experience as valuable training and future reference in the event he should decide to leave the Army.

Camp to train adult leaders for Boy Scouts

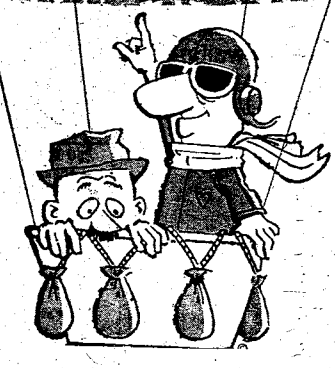
The Boy Scouts of America are seeking military volunteers to become Boy Scout leaders. The Fort Benning Boy Scout District Leadership Training Committee is holding a weekend outdoor training camp to qualify adults as leaders at Camp Hideaway, Fort Benning, beginning with registration on July 30 at 3 p.m. through the afternoon of Aug. 1.

The course is designed to train active duty servicemen as district and troop leaders, and offers advanced training to those who are already qualified.

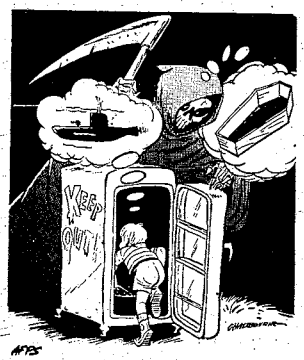
The session will cost $4 per adult. Personal camping and sleeping gear must be individually furnished, but tent and patrol equipment will be supplied.

For further information call the Chattahoochee Boy Scout Council at 327-2634.

Search rewarding for Army, ex-soldier



It was nearly two years ago when Sp4 Leslie Syring, 81st Co., 8th Stu. Bn., TSB, dropped a piece of paper into his company's suggestion box. He left the Army in February 1970 but the piece of paper was still in circulation, all the while being evaluated and re-evaluated by various command and staff sections.



Syring, located at his home in Melvindale, Mich., was surprised to find he was to receive a $25 cash award and a letter of appreciation from Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, commandant, United States Army Infantry School, for the suggestion which was adopted for use at the United States Army Infantry Center. Syring suggested that disposal plastic liners be used in garbage cans in mess halls. The change was intended to eliminate the task of cleaning garbage cans, as well as to improve mess hall sanitation.

The recipient of the award was pleased to find out that he could receive the cash, even though he left the Army before it was adopted.

Picnic cooler contents can be tragic at times

A National Bureau of Standards' investigation has uncovered 16 cases of accidental deaths by entrapment of children in portable picnic coolers.

Picnic coolers present a problem because they are designed to be relatively airtight and have good insulation characteristics so that they might hold food and drink at low temperatures. These same characteristics may mean death for an entrapped child, however, because once locked in, his air supply is cut off and his cries for help are muffled: He can do little but wait for death.

The danger of entrapment is heightened significantly if picnic coolers have latches that lock automatically. The majority of the 16 cases studied by the bureau included picnic coolers that had self-locking lids. The reports made available to the bureau indicated that children ranging in age from 1½ to 6 years old had died in picnic coolers. One of the coolers with dimensions as small as 10 inches wide and 20 inches long by 12 inches deep (about 1.5 cubic feet) was involved in a death.

These relatively simple precautions can be taken by picnic coolers owners to eliminate the potential hazard of existing coolers, particularly with the self-locking types:

—Lids or tops of picnic coolers, after each use, could be removed by pulling the hinge pins or unscrewing the hinges.

—If the latch is screwed on, it could also be removed.

Summer workers learn new skills on Benning jobs

By Charles Sabens

217 summer aides are employed at Fort Benning in temporary trainee positions involving work of a routine nature that require no special skill or knowledge.

To be eligible for employment in the Summer Aides Program, applicants must have reached their 16th birthday but not their 22nd prior to appointment. Selections for appointment are made by the Civilian Personnel Office from referrals made by the Georgia State Employment Service.

Most of the positions involve laboring, janitorial or trades and crafts helper-type duties.

Appointees must meet Civil Service Commission developed criteria, establishing need for financial assistance to be applied by the State Employment Service.

Interviews of several summer aides were obtained as they performed their duties at Fort Benning last week.

Linda Byrd, a junior at Georgia Southern College, is "learning things never experienced before." Majoring in the business aspect of home economics, Linda "wanted work this summer."

Linda is a typist and relief key punch operator and especially enjoys her contact with the Army, a new experience for many summer employes on post.

Linda is a daughter of Mrs. Anne H. Byrd of 3111 Hopper Ave., Columbus, employed at the Department of Range Divisions.

Ei Douglas Albritton, a son of SpS Ei D. Albritton of 4652 Old Cusseta Rd., enjoys the "good atmosphere" and the "great people to work with" in the Chaplain Division at Fort Benning.

Albritton, a participant in last year's Columbus Youth Opportunity Program, works in an all-around job that ranges from trimming hedges and policing the area to helping around the office.

The Carver High graduate plans to attend Kentucky State College this fall majoring in music.

Gerald L. Clark, a Carve junior, is employed at the Marksmanship Training Unit at Benning.

Clark, a son of Mrs. Ethel Clark of 106 Mays St., Columbus likes to "work to stay busy." At the Training Unit, Clark is employed keeping the grounds in order, cutting grass, and trimming hedge.

Clark hopes his work and good record this summer will result in good references for future employment. Clark plans later to be become a truck driver or mechanic.

It is "nice that Fort Benning shows such an interest in youth," says Jeanette D. Harris, a senior at Carver.

Jeanette works in the Audio Visual Section answering the telephone and helping book, inspect, and receive film. She also is learning how to operate a projector and repair video tapes.

JEANETTE HARRIS INSPECTS AUDIO-VISUAL SECTION FILM

Jeanette, the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. J. C. Harris of 910 Hardegree Drive, Columbus, plans to attend Fort Valley State College, majoring in biology.

Savoie Denise Benton, working in the Main Post Library, distributes papers and magazines, alphabetizes and salvages books and keeps the card catalogs up to date.

Denis, a senior at Carver, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Benton of 973 Lawyers Lane, Columbus.

"It's great to give high school and college students something to do," says Jean Cannon, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Johnny B. Cannon, 1331 26th Street, Columbus.

Jean, working in the Finance and Accounting Division, types pay and allotment vouchers for troops departing the Army. She is a sophomore at Morris Brown College in Atlanta, majoring in accounting.

Across Fort Benning, local students, like those above, are earning a place, for themselves in the work-a-day world. Employment, even for the brief summer period, is a learning experience and many summer aides are meeting the test. In September they depart — a little richer, wiser, and more fulfilled.

Summer safety suggestions

Tots' toes usual mower victims

WASHINGTON (AFPS) —No computer statistics are available to list the number of mower accidents that occur per annum, but it goes without saying that folks DO get hurt doing yard work. The following information, if used, can help to prevent such occurrences:

—Inspect the area to be mowed before beginning. Clear the grass of stones, wire, glass and other debris which may become missile hazards.

—Keep all small children, pets and YOUR feet and hands clear of mower moving parts when starting.

—Wear shoes of some sort, preferebly safety shoes. NEVER operate a power mower when barefooted.

—Keep in step with the mower. If you lag or let it pull you, you won't have full control over the machine.

—Always be sure of your footing on inclines. The steeper the slope the more care is required, especially if the grass is damp. Don't pull a mower towards you down an incline: Mow ACROSS the slope.

—Excessive cutting speed of the mower blade is dangerous—don't overspeed the engine by tampering with the governor.

—Never permit small children to operate a power mower. They may be smart enough but lack the physical strength necessary to handle the machine.

—Learn to disengage the clutch or stop the motor quickly in an emergency. Always secure the motor when leaving the mower.

—When grass is wet or it's raining, do not use an electric power mower. Also, make sure an electric mower has its frame grounded through the cord.

—Disconnect the spark plug wire on the mower whenever working on it or unclogging the blades.

—Don't refuel a mower when the engine is hot. Also allow the mower to cool before storing it and insure that it is stored in a well-ventilated area.

These guidelines will insure you two things: A nicer looking lawn, and the right number of fingers and toes. Give 'em a thought.

Springer Theatre does 'Pacific'

The Springer Theatre Company will present a summer-time holiday musical — "South Pacific" — through Aug. 1. "South Pacific" is one of Richard Rodgers—Oscar Hammerstein second best-loved shows, with an array of glorious songs like "Younger Than Springtime," "Some Enchanted Evening," and "Bali Ha'i." If you have enjoyed the fun of "South Pacific" in a film, just wait until you hear the Springer Seabee's belting out "There is Nothing Like a Dame" and the Springer Nurses' Corps singing their musical resolution "I'm Gonna Wash That Man Right Out Of My Hair."

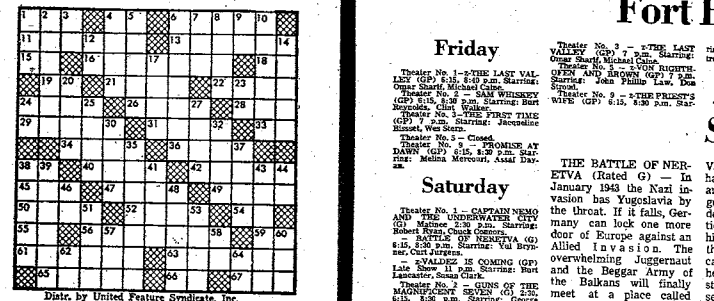
Even though "South Pacific" is a holiday extra, the Springer season members will have first choice of tickets. The box office is open to the general public. Advance reservations can be made by phone. Tickets are $4 for the Tuesday through Thursday shows and for the Sunday matinee. Friday and Saturday the tickets are $5. The show times are 8:30 p.m. Tuesday through Saturdays and family matinees at 2:30 p.m. on Sunday. For ticket information and reservations please phone 327-3688. Enlisted men that wear their uniforms can show their military I.D. in person will be admitted at half-price.

The Springer's own Joan Stumhofer will be coming home to perform "South Pacific's" "Honey-Bun" nurse, Nellie Forbush. Joan performed with the Springer two seasons ago as Elsa in "The Sound of Music" and as our free-swinging "Mame" in "Mame." Presently Joan is studying under a full scholarship with the renowned Herbert Berghof in New York City.

A graduate of the Boston Conservatory of Music, she has appeared with the Showboat Theatre, Greensboro, North Carolina; Weston Playhouse, Weston, Vermont; and the Rochester Music Theatre, Rochester, New Hampshire, Soon to be seen on national television commercials, Joan was featured recently in the showcase production of "Love Suicide at Schofield Barracks" at the Playwright's Foundation in New York.

As Emile De Becque, the Springer boards get the towering talent of 6'5" Sam Timberlake. Originally from Decatur, Alabama, Sam is now a member of the music faculty at Auburn University. This "war eagle" startled the music world by winning the National Metropolitan Opera auditions, hands down, in New York this past Spring.

A graduate of Washington University, St. Louis, Mo., and Auburn University, Sam has made guest appearances with the St. Louis Symphony, Winnipeg Symphony, Bach Society of St. Louis and the Belleville Symphony (Ill.); and on June 2, he performed a program of "Opera Favorites" with the Atlanta Symphony.



During the Winter of 1972, Timberlake will be on tour as a featured soloist with Columbia Artists. Next May, Timberlake will be coming back to Columbus as guest soloist with the Columbus Symphony Orchestra.

Doing his own thing

Steve McQueen, who does most of his own racing in "Le Mans," now playing at a downtown Columbus theater, last year placed second in the grueling Sebring 12-hour endurenee race, but flunked his driving test when he enlisted in the Marines. McQueen drives a special factory Gulf Porsche 917 at speeds up to 200 miles per hour in the film. In 1939, the year he was born, the Le Mans race was won by two drivers in a Bentley at an average speed of 75.8 mph, a snail crawl compared to today's speeds.

New book tells of weapons

When Germany invaded the Soviet Union in 1941, the Soviet Army had been in existence just over 20 years. And though the Russians overwhelmingly outnumbered German forces, at the beginning of the war the Soviet Army was inefficiently organized and very poorly equipped. But within two short years the Russians were able to produce, and produce in quantity, weapons of a standard equal, and in some cases superior, to those of her allies and Germany. These were the weapons with which she eventually fought her way to Berlin.

A new book, "Russian Infantry Weapons of World War II" by A. J. Barker and John Walter traces the development of Soviet arms from 1939 to 1945 and fully illustrates and describes each weapon used during the period. Many of the over fifty photographs used were especially commissioned for this book.

Russian arms development was the result of careful planning. A clear appreciation of the kind of arms needed, and a monumental production effort. The immense scale of the battles on the Eastern front demanded a constant supply of equipment to the army in the field. The extreme range of temperatures and conditions under which battles were fought equired simple, easily operated weapons. And the great quantity in which weapons were needed meant simple production methods. Russian weaponry met all these needs extraordinarily well and made an important contribution to winning the war.

Synopsis

THE BATTLE OF NERETVA (Rated G) — In January 1943 the Nazi invasion has Yugoslavia by the throat. If it falls, Germany can look one more door of Europe against an Allied Invasion. The overwhelming Juggernaut and the Beggar Army of the Balkans will finally meet at a place called Neretva. The Yugoslavian Partisans must face the Germans, the Italians and the Yugoslavian Royalists who fight alongside the Germans.

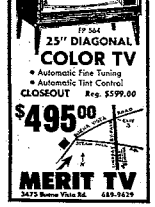
The film is an epic chronicle of raw courage and stubborn savagery. Yul Brynner plays the demolitions expert, whose job it is to destroy a vital bridge. Orson Welles portrays the Royalist Leader, Hardy Kruger, Franco Nero, Sylva Koscina, and Curt Jurgens all have important supporting roles.

VALDEZ IS COMING (Rated GP) — Middle-aged town constable "Bob" Valdez (Burt Lancaster), comes upon a group of men trying to flush a black man, Rincon, believed to have killed a trader, James C. Erin. Leader of the group is Frank Tanner, determined to stop gossip that he killed Erin to get his wife, Gay (Susan Clark). Believing Valdez has tricked him, Rincon shoots at the constable, who kills him in self-defense. Tanner then admits his mistake: Rincon is the wrong man.

Conscience-stricken, Valdez attempts to collect $200.00 from the townspeople for the Apache woman left pregnant by Rincon. Valdez asks Tanner for half the amount but his answer is only a taunting gunspray. The second Valdez asks, Tanner has him tied to a cross and sends him bobbling away. For these indignities and because he feels obligated to help the woman, Valdez straps on his gunbelt and sends Tanner a message "Valdez is Coming."

SUNFLOWER (Rated G) — After the war, Sophia Loren goes through a long period of mourning for her husband Marcello Mastroianni, lost at the Russian front. She recalls their meeting and marriage as war marred their happiness.

To avoid the Army, he fakes insanity and is sent to a hospital. Discovered, Marcello is sent to fight in the USSR. Sophia contacts an army buddy of Marcello who saw him collapsing on the frozen Russian plains. After a long search, Sophia shows her husband's picture to some peasants who direct her to the home of Ludmila Savelyeva. Both women are distressed and upon seeing Marcello again, Sophia leaves him with his new wife and daughter. Marcello wants to run off with Sophia, but she's remarried and the cries of her baby (Carlo Ponti, Jr.) point up the fact that both now have different lives.



THE SECRET OF DORIAN GRAY (Rated R) — Dorian Gray (Helmut Berger), a strikingly handsome and well built young man, visits his friend Basil (Richard Todd) in London. Basil is a painter and Dorian agrees to pose for him. Henry Wotton (Herbet Lom), views the painting and observes to Dorian how strange it is that the portrait would retain the youth and vitality while he, Dorian, would wither with age. Dorian vows he would give his soul to reverse the position.

After years of countless affairs and depraved deeds, Dorian comes upon his once beautiful portrait. The man in the portrait is now old and ugly and every sin Dorian had ever committed has been visually transformed onto the canvas. He kills Basil in anger and finally kills himself. Upon his death, the portrait is immediately transformed into its original beauty.

DOCTOR'S WIVES (Rated R) — Based on a novel by Frank G. Slaughter, this film is built around the lives, both personal and professional, of five physicians running a plush clinic in suburban America, and their spouses, all ten of whom are more or less friends.

The story reveals the private lives and unashedly amoral attitudes of the supposedly respectful physicians and their mates. The wives are played by Dyan Cannon Rachel Roberts, Janice Rule, Marian McCargo and Cara Williams. The doctors are ably played by Richard Crenna, Gene Hackman, Carroll O'Connor, George Gaynes and John Colicos.

'Good Time-Summer Time'

The Third United States Army Soldier Show "Good Time-Summer Time" is a touring entertainment unit sponsored by Headquarters 3rd United States Army. Show personnel are recruited from throughout the 3rd United States Army area and are selected as a result of their talent and dedication. The show unit is completely self-contained requiring only a performance site. Admission to performances is free of charge and auditions for future shows are held following every performance....

"Good Time-Summer Time" will be at Kelly Hill Service club July 23 at 7:30 p.m. and at Marshall Auditorium July 24-25 at 7:30 p.m.

Control steps listed for environmental pollution

There are immediate steps you and your family can take to help control environmental pollution. We suggest some positive things you can do:

— Remain calm since cool heads working for solutions are more effective in solving problems than hot heads spreading hearsay.

— Be willing:

to pay for adequate sewage treatment.

to wait a reasonable time for industry to implement air, water and noise pollution controls.

to work — what's worth having is worth working for. Support efforts to improve sewage efficiency and capacity.

CONSERVE WATER: A family of four consumes an average of 200 gallons of water a day, without the consumption of industry.

— Running dishwashers and clothes washers only when necessary and only at full capacity.

— Keep at a minimum the operation of the garbage disposal.

— Water the lawn only in the morning or in the evening when it is not immediately lost through evaporation.

WATER POLLUTION: Use limited or no-phosphate detergents in your washing machine. Measure your detergent according to the manufacturer's label instructions. With many cities enforcing phosphate percentages in detergents, check that your detergent conforms to local ordinances on phosphorus content. Many ordinances require that detergents contain no more than 8.7 per cent phosphorus by weight.

A few corrective steps to take:

— Maintain refuse cans in good condition with tight fitting lids.

— Take a litter walk — picking up candy wrappers, etc., as you go along.

— Equip your car or truck with a litter bag and use it.

— Leave picnic grounds and campsites better than you found them.

— Bring your own trash bags just in case the campsite containers are full or none provided. Bring trash home if necessary.

— Never use highways or open areas for disposal of washing machines, furniture and large items. This is becoming common practice, creating eyesores in our finest recreational areas.

AIR POLLUTION: Walk or bicycle instead of driving whenever possible. It's good for the body as well as the environment.

— When you take your car, take a friend. Car pools, public transportation and more efficient management of short trips out of the house cut down on the number of cars in the streets.

— Investigate anti-pollution devices on new car purchases.

— Don't burn leaves. Use them for compost. Start a compost pile for disposal of grass cuttings and vegetable wastes. If you must burn trash, use only a properly designed incinerator.

NOISE POLLUTION: Noise is being labeled as the "new pollutant" by many authorities including the concerned medical profession. Doctors are beginning to label noise in the home, factory and outdoors as a major influence increasing tension and related diseases.

— Turn down the volume on your entertainment appliances.

— Noise-test appliances, toys, before you buy.

Patriots enjoy dining-in

The officers wives of the 1st Bn. (Mech.), 58th Inf. "Patriots" enjoyed a pot-luck dinner in the home of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Stephen R. Pawlik.

While their husbands were attending the 197th Infantry Bde. Dining-In, the wives decided to have their own version of "dining-in."

To add to the flavor of the affair, each wife brought a covered dish of her choosing without knowing what the other ladies were bringing. Women's intuition came through again as a delicious and balanced meal was enjoyed. Everything from salad to a cheese cake was served.

Ranger Camp

some of the things they still have not received.

However, the Mountain Ranger Camp also has initiated at least two policies that are not part of the Benning Plan.

One is the camp's policy of assigning a married sponsor to assist each married arrival at the camp. The sponsors assist in finding housing and getting the arrival settled.

The other policy is yet untried, but has camp officials enthusiastic. It is a monthly meeting of all soldiers, master sergeant and below, to discuss re-enlistment.

Gabel said it is in keeping with the new Army policy of making everyone a recruiter."

Most of the camp's 200 permanent party personnel are noncommissioned officers, Gabel said. He said they appear to be supporting MVA. "I think the NCOs are backing us up. They are all for logical changes."

And while things may not be moving as fast here as at Fort Benning, it appears that logical changes are being made at the Mountain Ranger Camp.

Early birds

for the hurried customer, but for the transportation employe as well.

"The employe gains a better understanding of the total personal property operation. He is better able to do his job and will refer fewer problems up the line for solving. He is also in a better positin to be promoted when vacancies occur," Wentworth explained.

A customer who wishes to participate in the Early Bird program must arrive at the Transportation Office by 8:15 to fill out preliminary forms, which usually takes about 10 minutes. Those who arrive between 7 and 8:15 a.m. may obtain the necessary forms and instructions at the receptionist's desk immediately inside the front door.

Beginning at 8:15, the cross-trained personnel leave their regular jobs to be available for immediate counseling. It is not unusual for a single counselor to handle six to eight customers during the hour alloted for the program.

The Early Bird program offers a number of advantages to the customer who is in the process of chasging stations. "He doesn't have to wait long," said Wentworth. "The counseling process doesn't disrupt his day, and he can get a jump on things when all he can usually do in most offices is just wait and accomplish nothing."

During the two years that the program has been in operation, those using the program have often found that their application can be completely processed and the service order distributed before the end of the day.

Older vets can obtain more loans

ATLANTA — Persons who used their GI loans to purchase homes before May 7, 1968, may be eligible for additional home loan benefits from the Veterans Administration, according to Georgia Veterans Service Director Pete Wheeler.

He said, "Many veterans of World War II and the Korean War, including both active duty personnel and retirees who are eligible, have accrued substantial amounts in unused home loan benefits. These are veterans who obtained loans during the years when loan guaranty was considerably lower than it is at the present time."

The current VA loan guaranty maximum is $12,500 or 50 per cent of the amount of the loan, whichever is less. This maximum has been in effect since May 7, 1968.

When the VA began the home loan program after World War II, the guaranty maximum was $4,000, or 50 per cent of the loan amount. This maximum was increased to 60 per cent or $7,500 in September 1951 and remained in effect until the current $12,500 figure was set in 1968.

Veterans interested in knowing just what entitlement they may be eligible for should contact any office of the Georgia Department of Veterans Service.

Army to guide COs on MOS changes

WASHINGTON (ANF) — The Army has revised its policies governing reclassification of enlisted military occupational specialties (MOS), effective July 1.

The new procedures are aimed at reducing career management field (CMF) and MOS imbalances Army-wide.

Under the plan, authority for reclassification of E6s and below involving a change of CMF will be established at major command level.

Authority for reclassification of E6s and below within CMFs but outside the career progression pattern outlined in DA Circular 611-7 will be established at division and installation level. Authority for reclassification within the pattern remains unchanged.

All reclassifications effecting grades E7, E8 and E9 will be controlled by the Office of Personnel Operations and restricting Army will furnish guidance on CMF and MOS levels to major commanders, who will add any appropriate guidance and pass the information to the next subordinate commander.

Reclassifications will thus be tailored to the units as the guidance passes down the chain of command.

For example, if DA identifies a CMF or MOS movement out of the occupation and restricting movement into it.

However, a major commander may determine that his command is short in this particular area. He may then restrict movement from this CMF or MOS within his command — but he can't reclassify personnel into a field that has been identified by DA as being overstrength.

Similarly, he may not reclassify personnel out of Army-wide shortage areas.

16 run 80-mile relay to Daytona

Sixteen men of the 2nd Battalion, 10th Artillery, 197th Infantry Brigade, ran an 80-mile relay race July 3 from Jacksonville, Fla., to the Daytona International Speedway to participate in the "Firecracker 400."

The last leg of the 11-hour, 45-minute run was made by 10th Artillery Commander Lt. Col. James W. Wurman.

On the morning of July 4, Wurman and his 15 runners entered the speedway in time to deliver a proclamation to the visiting Medal of Honor awardees from Jacksonville Mayor Hans Tanzler.

The proclamation greeted and saluted the Medal of Honor visiting the famous speedway. Accepting the proclamation on behalf of the recipients was Bill France, owner of the speedway and president of the National Association of Stock Car Racing.

About an hour before the race began, one of the 10th Artillery's 105mm Howitzers volleyed a blank round every five minutes signaling the count-down to the race. Also before the race, the 51st Inf. Plt. Scout Dogs performed in the infield of the speedway.

Equipment of the 197th Inf. Bde. was displayed at the speedway throughout the day of the race. When night fell, the brigade provided a color guard at a banquet honoring the Medal of Honor winners. Banquet guests included Louisiana Congressman F. Edward Hebert, Chairman of the House Armed Services Committee. Principal speaker at the banquet was Col. Frank Borman, senior vice-president of Eastern Airlines and former astronaut.

There were a total of 44 brigade soldiers present at Daytona for the affair including support personnel.

Other military units involved included the WAC Army Band from Ft. McClellan, Ala., and the Orlando Naval Training Center Band.

197th company ball rolls into July

Company level softball in the 197th Infantry Brigade rolled on through the month of June and into July.

The 72nd Engr. Co. "A-team" was the leader in the 197th Spt. Bn., league. Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment followed in the runner-up slot. Co. H, 69th Armor, held a hold on third place and Co. G, 69th Armor, was lodged in the cellar.

The 5th Bn., 31st Inf., was holding a series playoffs between the two best company teams, Headquarters and Headquarters Company (HHC), and Co. E.

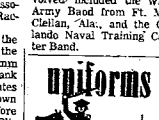
Companies A, D, and HHC, 197th Inf. Bde. had light action. Co. A played Co. D once. Co. D called off the game after four innings, however, as Co. A had a 20 point lead.

HHC, 1st Bn., 58th Inf., was in the first place position in that battalion. The league leaders defeated Co. A, 17-4, shellacked Co. B, 18-0 and walloped Co. C, 27-2. In battalion doubleheader action, Co. B. defeated Co. C, 9-8 and 9-1. Other softball play saw Co. B, defeat Co. A, 10-4.

The 2nd Bn., 10th Arty., neared completion of their softball season. Btry. C, former battalion league leader, was knocked into next-to-last place. The battery had compiled a 2-3 record. The soldiers of Headquarters and Headquarters Service Btry. (HHS), maintained a hold on the cellar slot with a 1-5 record. Btry. A and B were tied for third place with 3-3 slates. A tight race developed between the officers of HHS. Btry. D and the 183rd Chemical Platoon. The 183rd and Btry. D were locked in a first place tie with 4-2 charts. The officers held the second place position with a 4-3 slate.

More stations, recruiters is FY 72 plan

WASHINGTON (ANF) — The Army plans to increase significantly the recruiting strength of the U. S. Army Recruiting Command (USAREC).



During fiscal year 1972 the USAREC personnel strength will be increased by 3,000 and 500 new recruiting stations will be added.

It is estimated that the increased recruiting strength will yield approximately 9,000 additional enlistments in fiscal year 1972 and 32,000 in fiscal year 1973.

Rifle, pistol shooters make clean sweep of CISM

U. S. Rifle and Pistol shooters, led by the superb shooting of Army SFC Bonnie Harmon, Capt. Lanny Bassham, Capt. Gregory Dalton, SFC Hezekiah Clark and Marine Warrant Officer Francis Higginson made a clean sweep of the shooting competition in the 13th Annual Conseil International du Sport Militaire (CISM) matches at Thun, Switzerland, July 5-11.

Vanguard of the U. S. attack was the record-breaking shooting of Harmon who established a new CISM Military Rapid Fire pistol record when he posted a 294, three points over the old record. Hezekiah Clark, who tied Vaino Markkanen of Finland with 269, lost the runner-up spot in a shoot-off and settled for third place.

The other pistol championship feel to the handgun expertise of Franeis Higginson. He captured the Center Fire Pistol event with 585, one point ahead of Clark, who was the only man to place in both pistol events.

In rifle competition, Capt. Lanny Bassham swept the board in the International Shooting Union (ISU) Army Rifle Match with his winning 564 while Navy Lieutenant Webster Wright took runner-up honors with 558.

U. S. shooters forged into the champions circle again when Capt. Gregory Dalton captured the 300 Meter Military Rapid Fire match with 270. Wright was in runner-up spot again with Bassham placing third with 265.

In the team matches, the U. S. shooters were unbeatable. They took both the pistol and rifle competition in stride.

The pistol team of Clark, Harmon, Higginson, Army SFC Harland Reynolds and Air Force M-Sgt. Donald Rupp, sailed through their 14 opposing teams without a serious problem and took the championship.

Webster Wright and Marine Warrant Officer David Boyd, breezed through [illegible] rifle team, composed of Army Captains Lanny Bassham and Gregory Dalton [illegible] with Navy Lieutenant Webste rrolled over their competition to win the Army Rifle championship with 2228 and the Military Rapid Fire with 1052.

The Army shooters are all from the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit.

Overall scoring showed the United States shooters winning the aggregate and Championship trophy with an impressive score of 6759. Finaldn was in second place with 6641 while Switzerland placed third with 6568.

This makes the fourth year in a row for the U.S. shooters to win the CISM Shooting Championship Trophy and if won next year, the trophy will be retired and the U. S. will retain permanent possession.

3 Army capts. selected for Pentathlon

FT. SAM HOUSTON, Tex. (ANF) — Three Army captains have been selected as members of the 1971 Conseil International du Sport Militaire (CISM) Modern Pentathlon Team.

Representing the United States in the World Championship of CISM in Thu, Switzerland, July 5-12, will be Captains Chuck Richards, Scott Taylor and Bill Matheson, Air Force Capt. Loren Drum is the fourth team member.

One of the most difficult and diverse events in the Olympic program, the Modern Penthathlon consists of five events usually contested over a five-day period.

In the most dangerous event, the competitor must ride a horse he has never ridden before over a 1,000 meter course with an assortment of jumps and obstacles. The other events include fencing, shooting, swimming and the 4,000 meter cross-country run over varied terrain.

The events are up-dated versions of the actions a courier would supposedly have performed in carrying a message across a battlefield in the days of Napoleon.

CISM was started by Americans shortly after World War II to provide military sports competition for Allied troops serving with the Army of Occupation in Europe.

CH-47 flight features re-up

During a recent CH-47, "Chinook" mission from Lawson Army Airfield, one of the crewchiefs, Sp4 Hubert Kaylor, received an $8,900 reenlistment bonus.

A two-year veteran, Kaylor, of the 205th Aviation Company, was sworn into his six-year reenlistment by commanding officer Maj. George E. Twiggs.

Afterward, Kaylor stated that the unique in-flight ceremony had been suggested by his flight engineer, Sp6 Bert Larsen, also of the 205th.

"I've been reading about all these people reenlisting while underwater and inside tanks and so forth," explained Larsen, "so I thought we should try our own version of an unusual reelistment ceremony."

The Fort Benning pro is first again

Army pistol team leaves Benning for pre-Perry event in So. Bend

The U.S. Army Pistol team will depart Fort Benning July 21 for South Bend, Indiana where they will compete in the three-day pre-Perry matches commencing July 23.

This annual pistol match sponsored by the South Bend Police Department, serves as a training base springboard and opportunity to put the final polish on the handgunners going into the National Matches at Camp Perry, Ohio, August 1. The event will include a 2700 Aggregate three-gun match, a 900 service pistol match and four team matches.

Twenty-one Army pistol marksmen, representing the Army's elite shooters, have been relentlessly working toward perfecting their shooting at the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit, in preparation for the coming matches.

Handgunners entering the matches will be competing with select Army Reserve, Navy, Marine and U.S. Air Force shooters along with the best civilian marksmen in the nation.

SSgt. John Smith and SFC Bonnie D. Harmon, recent standout shooters in national competition, are selected favorites to win the matches. Smith, winner of the last two three-gun matches held at Fort Benning, could possibly hold an edge. Harmon, fresh from his record breaking score in the rapid fire events of the Military Olympics Shooting matches (CISM) at Thun, Switzerland, will be in sharp contention. Both master shooters are from the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit.

TSB downs 197th twice

By Steve Partridge

The School Brigade (TSB) knocked the 197th Infantry Brigade fast-pitch softball team from the ranks of the unbeaten July 7.

TSB, the champions of the first half of the USAIC season, swept a double-header from the 197th, 6-1 and 4-1. The two defeats placed the 197th in the second place slot in the early stages of the second half of the USAIC softball season.

197th hurlers "Nick" Nixon and "Lefty" Furnish absorbed the defeats; TSB pitchers Brent Minster and Nic Kranz were credited with the two victories.

TSB grabbed a 2-0 lead in the top half of the first inning in the nightcap. One 197th error and two sacrifice fly balls to deep rightfield netted TSB the two-run lead.

TSB added another tally in the bottom of the second inning and scored an additional run in the bottom of the fourth stanza.

The 197th mustered a serious threat in the top of the fifth frame. Twice the "Big Red Bullet" loaded the bases but only managed one score — Tom Sumner galloped across home plate as Stacy Rhinhard grounded out to second base.

The first game proved to be exciting for 197th fans until the top of the fifth inning. Until that time, 197th hurler Nixon and TSB pitcher Minster were locked in a 1-1 duel.

Nixon issued the first three TSB batters walks. Two 197th errors, one by Leonard Gibson; the other by Tom Sumner, and a sacrifice fly ball produced two tie-breaking TSB runs. TSB added a three more runs in the inning and gathered another score in the top of the seventh frame as they out-distanced the brigade, 6-1.

139th MPs winning streak to 13 games

The 139th M.P. Co. has extended its lead over the 17-team 93rd Engr. Gp. slow - pitch softball league by boosting its undefeated streak to 13 games.

The military police appear to have the league title sewn up as the softball season nears the end of regular play. Should 139th win, the M.P.'s will represent the engineer group in the Fort Benning slow-pitch tournament.

A heated race for second place has developed, with C Co., 43rd Engr. Bn., holding steadily to the runner-up slot. In close contention are the teams from the 18th Repl. Det., with a record of 11-3; the 386th Lt. Maint. Co., with a 8-3 record; and the 524th Pers. Serv. Co., currently 6-3.

The long-awaited showdown between Co. C., 43rd, and the military police was expected this week, however inclement weather has delayed the battle until next week.

Ponds on the reservation are stocked with bass, shellcracker, bream and catfish. Some fishermen don't think the stocking is complete. There are no crappie to be found in any of the post ponds.

The crappie belongs to the sunfish family. They are similiar to the bream in size and shape but have characteristics which mark them apart from these sunfish cousins. There are two species of crappie. The white crappie which seems to be more abundant in the large lakes of the southeast and the black crappie which seems to prefer the rivers and streams. Both fish are silvery in color but the white crappie has dark vertical bars along its sides while the black crappie has an irregular color pattern of dark blotches and gives an overall impression of a darker color.

The food habits of the two species are the same. They both feed on insects, small crayfish and other marine bugs until they reach about four ounces in weight. After this their diet consists almost entirely of small fish.

Crappie Upset Balance

The small fish diet is one of the primary reasons that the crappie cannot be stocked successfully in smaller ponds. They upset the balance of the fish population.

Ponds stocked with a combination of bream, shellcracker and largemouth bass will remain balanced for a long time because of the breeding and feeding habits of these fish. They occupy the same type of habitat to the advantage of each other. The bream and shellcracker feed primarily on insects, crayfish and other food provided by the water. They reproduce and supply thousands of small fish for the bass to feed on. In a population such as this there is ample supply of food for all to grow and produce a yearly harvestable size crop of fish.

Too Much Competition

When the crappie are added to a small pond they cause too much competition for the available food supply. When they are small they are in competition with the bream and when they grow large they compete with the bass for the small fish produced by the bream. Crappie have a very high reproductive capacity and in most cases they reproduce earlier in the spring than the bass and bream. Immediately after they have spawned there is a tremendous number of small crappie in the pond and they are all competing with the bream for food. As they take a lot of the food needed by the bream the growth and reproduction of the bream are retarded. In addition the young-of-the-year-crappie due to their earlier spawning are too large for the young bass to feed on and as they grow larger begin to compete with the bass for the small fish produced by the bream. Results are that there is just not enough small fish to go around. Under these conditions fishing in the pond becomes progressively worse each year with the fish becoming smaller because of the lack of food. Eventually a pond in this condition must be drained, cleaned and restocked.

Crappie have another habit that is detrimental to the fish in a small pond. They crowd together where they can find a good food supply. In doing this they cause a great amount of competition among themselves for food. As a result their growth is slow and it may take them three to five years to reach a size acceptable to the fisherman.

Don't get the idea that the crappie isn't an important fish in Georgia and Alabama waters. They are a very important game fish in the large lakes rivers and other streams and provide good fishing during times when fishing for bass and bream is not too good.

Crappie could be classified as a seasonal fish. Most of them are caught in the late fall and early spring. During the summer months they inhabit the deep water and are seldom caught by fishermen. In the late fall and early spring they move about more and feed heavily in preparation for the winter and the spring spawning season. It is during these periods that the bream fishing is normally at its lowest ebb and the bass fishing is dropping off from a fall peak.

It would be nice to have crappie in our smaller ponds but the disadvantages far outweigh the advantages and fishermen will be better off if we let them where they are now.

MTU's John Smith wins monthly gun tourney

SSgt. John Smith of the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit slammed the door on his 100 opponents in the Fort Benning Monthly Open Handgun Tournament held at Phillips Range July 10 and 11 and came away the champion and grand aggregate winner. Smith compiled a grand total of 2657-130X in his triumph of the three-gun aggregate.

Smith in his march to victory captured the center fire pistol aggregate with 882-51X and the 45 caliber pistol aggregate with 887-44. He lost the 22 caliber aggregate to SSgt. Merriweather Jones who fired a 893-40X, five over Smith for runner-up.

In the service pistol individual matches fired during the meet, Jones, a companion shooter of Smith's dominated the action to win with 879-57X.

In the team competition, the U. S. Army Marksmanship "Blue" monopolized the action and walked away with all four of the team honors. The team composed of Smith, Jones, SFC John Sicinski and SSgt. John Bourgeous, took the 22 caliber match with 1189-62X, the center fire pistol with 1776-60X and the 45 caliber pistol with 1169-57X.

Then substitution SSgt. Kenneth White for Jones, the "Blue" team again won the team championship of the service pistol competition when they compiled a 1163.

The Army handgunners, in participating in the weekend matches, were preparing for the National Matches at Camp Perry, Ohio, the first of August. There they will compete with other top-seeded national handgunners for the national pistol championship. The present ruling national pistol champion is Marine Warrant Officer Francis Higginson of Quantico, Virginia.

Doughboys play arsenal

The Fort Benning Doughboy softball team will play two games against the Redstone Arsenal team this weekend. The first of the two games will begin at 7 p.m. today the second game will start at 1 p.m. tomorrow. Both games will be played at Gowdy Field, Main Post.

The Doughboys are currently leading the Western Division of the Third Army Softball league with a record of 11 wins against 1 loss.

QUIZ

Now that the 1971 pro football season is almost upon us, let's review last year. Who:

2. is the oldest player in pro football?
3. transferred to the American division, as the result of the realignment of the two leagues?
4. had the season's best won-lost record (excluding playoff games)?
5. had the season's worst won-lost record?
6. was the first draft choice of 1971?

ANSWERS:

1. Tom Dempsey, New Orleans Saints, 63 yards on November 8, 1970.
2. George Blanda, Oakland Raiders, 44 this year.
3. Baltimore Colts, Cleveland Browns, Pittsburgh Steelers.
4. Minnesota Vikings, 12-2.
5. Boston Patriots, 2-12.
6. Jim Plunkett, Stanford, to the Boston Patriots.

2 Army men lead victorious team at CISM

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Two Army men led the U.S. Armed Forces Swimming Team to victory at the 1971 championships of the Conseil International du Sport Militaire (CISM) in Syracuse, Sicily, recently.

The team won top honors in six of the 13 events and established new CISM records in five of the contests.

Sp4 Dennis O'Conner, Ft. Carson, Colo., won four gold medals and one silver medal. A former Colorado State University swimmer, he has been a U.S. National Championship finalist on several occasions.

Other nations participating in the CISM championship were Belgium, France, Germany, Holland, Iran, Italy, Spain, Sweden, and the United Arab Republic.

Army EOD team acts after fatal explosion

FORT McCLELLAN, Ala. — A collision between an explosives truck and a car resulted in fire and explosions in Waco, Ga., recently. Soon thereafter four members of Fort McClellan's explosive ordnance disposal (EOD) team arrived at the scene.

They found a crater in the road about 60 feet in diameter and 20 feet deep, debris scattered everywhere, nearby houses covered with debris and two completely destroyed vehicles. Five people were dead and 33 were injured.

The truck had carried five tons of dynamite, an equal amount of slurry (a liquid explosive) and 6,000 electric blasting caps.

After the area had been roped off, the EOD team first surveyed the total area to locate potential sources of more explosions. They then cleared the nearby railroad tracks so halted trains could pass.

When daylight came the team began inspecting the area, gathering 266 blasting caps that had been scattered in the explosion.

The following day the EOD team made a final inspection of the area before letting bulldozers and the clearing crew into the area.

Fort McClellan's EOD team works principally as a field unit, able to mobilize and move anywhere for an indefinite period of time.

Covering a monthly average of 25 incidents, the EOD unit assists local, state and federal agencies and provides special training programs. (ANF)

Argentine gen. visits Benning

Brig. Gen. Arturo Enrique Barbieri of Argentina visited Fort Benning for an orientation tour July 6-8. He was accompanied by some 42 members of the Argentine Army Superior War College.

The group toured both the Infantry School and the Officer Candidate School. Additionally, they observed Ranger and Airborne training.

Getting ready to make your move? The Army offers some suggestions

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Military Traffic Management and Terminal Service (MT-MTS) offers service personnel moving to new stations several suggestions for the shipment of their belongings.

DOS

— Contact your local transportation officer immediately upon receipt of orders.

— Schedule your move with the transportation officer well in advance of the desired moving date.

— Be present at home during the packing and pickup.

— Be ready to accept your goods at their destination.

— Contact the designated transportation officer immediately upon arrival at your new duty station and give him your telephone number. If you can't be contacted, the goods will be placed in storage-in-transit, which could delay delivery of your possessions as well as increase the cost of the move.

— Set up the delivery date for a normal weekday; however delivery of the goods on a Saturday, Sunday or holiday is acceptable if mutually agreeable to you and the carrier.

— Call the local transportation officer if the packer or mover is not providing quality service.

— Sign the Government Bill of Lading (GBL) even if your goods are received in a damaged condition. This action will not relinquish your right to file a claim for any loss or damage, but damage must be listed on the reverse side of the GBL, DD Form 619 or inventory. DD Form 619 is to be signed only for services actually provided.

— Be sure the carrier furnishes you with legible copies of the inventory, statement of accessorial services (DD Form 619) and the GBL.

— Plan your move during the week (Tuesday to Thursday) and at times other than the 1st, 15th or 30th day of the month. This will help you get better service and a more timely move.

DON'TS

— Don't wait until a few days before your move to apply — plan ahead.

— Don't plan your move just before or after any U. S. holidays.

— Don't allow your property to be placed in storage-in-transit unnecessarily.

— Don't discard any of the documents furnished by the carrier. They are essential to tracing the shipment and filing claims.

— Don't sign blank forms. They could be used to obtain money for services not received.

Using more than 1,600 carriers and 4,000 agents around the world MTMTS arranges the movement of approximately 1.5 million shipments each year.

Following the advice offered by MTMTS will increase the chances your move will be satisfactory.

Dan E. Paff is honor grad of Track 34-71

Sp4 Dan E. Paff, Menomoney Falls, Wis., was the distinguished honor graduate of Track Vehicle Mechanic Course Class 34-71, 15th Co., 1st Bn., TSB, which graduated in ceremonies June 24 at Infantry Hall.

Sgt. Maj. George W. Lloyd Jr., Command Maintenance Department, delivered the commencement address to the 20 graduates.

The seven-week mechanic's course provides personnel with a working knowledge to perform organizational maintenance and recovery of tracked vehicles.

The course of instruction includes engine principles, valve adjustments, cooling and lubricating systems, carburation and fuel injection.

Paff is in the Reserves and will report to his hometown for assignment.

AFI establishes money course

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Armed Forces Institute has issued a new, noncredit course titled Money Management.

Using the text "The Consumer and His Dollars," the course is designed to educate the consumer in planning and controlling his income and in making wise buying decisions.

It is similar to a course in consumer economics at the high school level.

Information about enrolling for the course is available at local education offices.

LOOK FOR THE GOOD LIFE -plus a good investment- LONG BEFORE YOU RETIRE!

Rio Communities, Eden, N.M.

Land near the dynamic growth cities of the Southwest has increased dramatically in price. A good land investment . . . made while you're still young, active and able to work . . . can help assure your future. Look for the good life before you retire!

Sergeant Major Bill Wilson (retired) and his wife are two of the nearly 500 El Paso area golfers who belong to the Horizon City Country Club. The 18-hole championship course is just one of the great bonuses of living and playing at Horizon City's "Best of Everything" community!

When you're ready to retire, choose your home from among Horizon's 183 designs. And you get much more pool and patio time under our sunny skies. Prices start at $13,930.*

FREE: INVESTMENT-RETIREMENT STARTER KIT

SEE COMPLETE DETAILS ON OPPOSITE SIDE

Lots of good living can await you in the sunny Southwest . . . if you make your plans now. It's a beautiful way of life in the clean, clear, crisp dry air that can make your life feel more worthwhile.

There's great hunting, good fishing and sports all-year-around in New Mexico, Texas and Arizona. Residents don't have to drive hundreds of miles to reach it, either.

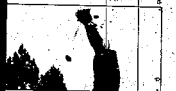
THIS FREE INVESTMENT-RETIREMENT STARTER KIT CAN OPEN THE DOOR TO A SUN-FILLED FUTURE!

Every modern career man and woman needs this FREE INVESTMENT – RETIREMENT STARTER KIT that points the way to a better way of life through land investment in the sun-drenched Southwest.

Popular Library's pocket-size 96-page book, "MAKE MONEY IN LAND" printed especially for Horizon, is yours absolutely free so you can learn how easy it is to make a growing investment while you're still at the peak of your earning power – before you retire. In simple language, this fine book tells you what to look for and what to look at to help assure you of making a wise investment. Over 100,000 mostly middle-income families have already invested in Horizon land and thousands more are joining them monthly.

Horizon Corporation's Paradise Hills of Albuquerque was raw land ten years ago. Today it is an outstanding suburb of over 17,000 population – and growing fast.



The Southwest is a great place to retire, raise kids, or have grandchildren visit. You can own a carefree Horizon Patio Home for as little as $14,950.*

Gardening is a happy hobby with many Horizon development residents. Lt. Col. and Mrs. Harley Stephens raise many varieties of fruit, trees, vegetables, shrubs and flowers at their home in Horizon City, Texas.

Homes in the Southwest like this model at Horizon City, El Paso, Texas, are far more economical to build and maintain than comparable ones in colder climes. Many feature private pools, large patios. Life in the Southwest can be truly good.

Golf is a most everyday event in the mild-winter Southwest. Every Horizon development proudly features a lush, green golf course for members and their guests. You play your cares away!

Gen. Carley leaves post Wednesday

By Wendell Cochran

Brig. Gen. John T. Carley, assistant commandant of the Infantry School, will officially depart Fort Benning next Wednesday en route to a new assignment in the Republic of Vietnam.

An honors ceremony is planned for 4:30 p.m. Wednesday on York Field. Tonight the Infantry School is honoring the general with a farewell dinner.

Gen. Carley, promoted to brigadier general less than one year ago, has been nominated by the President for promotion to major general.

Prior to becoing 30th assistant commandant of the school last June, Gen. Carley, then colonel, was director of instruction.

During his tenure in those two positions, Gen. Carley directed wide-ranging changes in Infantry School courses and in the curriculum. Notably, the School pioneered race relations instruction for the Army, added environmental protection classes and drug abuse classes and updated the programs of instruction for nearly every course given by the School.

Gen. Carley said he is leaving the School post with mixed emotions.

"The last two have been the most rewarding years of my career," he said. "The Infantry School's mission of producing the nation's future combat leaders is one of the most important tasks in the Army."

Gen. Carley is moving to director of operations, Military Assistance Command-Vietnam.

ACS commemorates sixth year of helping post soldiers, families

The Army Community Services at Fort Benning celebrates its sixth anniversary at 2 p.m. today with open house activities at the Infantry Center Welcome Center and in the ACS offices in Building 35.

Over the past six years ACS has provided assistance to the soldier and his family through many social programs.

The ACS has four primary objectives: To provide information, assistance and guidance to military personnel and dependents; to help commanders and staff officers solve problems; to provide welcome services, information and orientation to newly arrived personnel; and to increase the career satisfaction of servicemen.

The Army Emergency Relief (AER) function of ACS provides emergency financial help to military members, active or retired, and their dependents. Assistance is given for such reasons as failure to receive pay, emer-

'Heads' rap on drugs in special TV program

By JIM HICKEY

I am a 24 year old soldier. . . and the other day I was given the opportunity to preview a unique new film on an old subject. . . . drugs. When I was told about the film, I ho-hummed and mentally prepared myself for what I must have seen a dozen times before, another lecture. I was dead wrong.

The 30-minute film, which will be aired on WRBL-TV (Ch.3) Tuesday, at 10:30 p.m. concentrated on some "heads" rapping on how heroin, smack, speed, bennies turn them on. . . and how they turn them off. You judge which outweighs the other.

Prepare yourself for some pretty ugly stuff. The film is graphically as well as factually startling. The producers use interesting photographic effects to drive the point home. I was particularly struck by the scene

It is time to speak up for the soldiers.

For the past several years we have made them the scapegoats for our misfortunes. Yet, to continue to seek exculpation by loading the blame on the military is not only unjust, it risks harm to our security; so we had better take a lesson from the experience of France — something we lamentably failed to do when we committed our forces to Indochina.

In the bitter aftermath of the second world war the French Army and Air Force were given a dreary series of dirty and foredoomed assignments to sustain the remnants of colonial power, first in Syria, then Indochina, then Morocco, and finally Algeria. For almost a decade and a half, graduates of St. Cyr fought under the most frustrating conditions, taking frightful casualties, yet losing each conflict not from failure of valor on the battlefield but from a decay of political will in Paris, a decision by the politicians — reflecting public weariness — that the game was no longer worth the candle.

Pernicious Erosion

By 1958 these agonizing experiences in far-off lands had loosed poisons throughout the whole military establishment. France had done what no modern democratic state should ever do: by pushing its armed forces into conflicts only fragilely supported on the home front, it had detached them from the national life of their country. For, as the politicians abandoned first one war and then another, the military suffered a pernicious erosion of their traditional role as the respected protectors of "la patrie". Thus, inevitably they developed a festering resentment of the politicians who bartered away the gains hard won by their blood and toil until the imminent abandonment of Algeria might have triggered a revolution had it not been

POR Board splits into 2 teams

The Adjutant General Processing Overseas Replacement Board has been relocated and divided into two processing teams. The POR Board section located in Bldg. 83, Section B, Room 226 (2nd floor), processes permanent party personnel leaving Fort Benning for an overseas assignment.

The second team, located in Bldg. 2747 (Door 5), Student Processing Station, processes student personnel only. For further information, telephone the POR Board at 545-7113.

89th ends ordnance tests at Redstone

By Keith Harmon

The entire 89th Ord. Det. (EOD), 93ist Engr. Gp., hns returned from an 18-day training and testing period at Redstone Arsenal, Ala.

The 89th went through an annual Operational Readiness Test, which is a revised version of the former Army Training Test.

The Explosive Ordnance Demolition squad was examined July 6, 7 and 8 to evaluate the unit's performance under conditions similar to real situations.

The remainder of the 18-day period was spent in special training conducted by the Unit Training Command (UTC) at Redstone. The 89th received refresher courses in ordnance demolition and special training regarding nuclear devices.

The training and tests conducted by UTC are mandatory for units like the 89th, and must be taken every 15 months. Capt. James C. Ronay, detachment commander, that the EOD units retain a high level of efficiency and competence.

Ronay said he feels the testing has molded his unit into a more tightly-knit organization. "Before the tests we had a lot of new people assigned to us who were very specialized and extremely good in their particular fields, but we have to be able to work as a team."

In evaluating the performance of the unit, Ronay said "They did a very fine job, and I'm pleased. We passed the tests, which is something a lot of units are unable to do. Everybody put in a fine performance."

FOOD FOR THOUGHT
by
Bill King

Brush some bottled browning sauce on meats to be charcoal broiled. It will keep the meat moist inside and add a flavorful crispness to the outside.

An unusually easy iced soup for a summer lunch can be made of chilled tomato juice mixed with half as much orange juice and stirred with a dollop of sour cream.

The flat Mexican cakes known as tortillas become tostados when fried in hot fat and tacos when filled with meat or chicken.

When buying strawberries, look for bright red, plump berries with leaves and stems attached. Very large strawberries are often not as sweet as the smaller ones.

Grace note: the British railroads recently decided to do away with plastic beakers for tea and return to the good old cup and saucer.

31 West Pointers to get company-duty training

Thirty-one cadets from the United States Military Academy at West Point, N. Y., began four-week training assignments here Saturday.

Two separate increments will carry out this training during July and August. The prospective Regular Army officers, members of the class of 1973, will perform the duties of junior officers in Infantry, artillery, armor, engineer, and signal units. The program is designed to provide the cadets with practical experience in platoon and company duties.

The cadets will be assigned to the 197th Infantry Brigade. Upon reaching their assigned units, the cadets will receive briefings customarily given to newly assigned officers. Their duties will be those normally performed by recently arrived second lieutenants.

Byline Bayonet

(Byline Bayonet welcomes questions of general interest about Fort Benning and the Army. Within space limitations all reasonable questions will be answered. Questions of a purely military nature which obviously could be answered more properly by commanders or supervisors within the chain of command will not be accepted. All questions must be signed with current unit of assignment indicated. Send questions to the Bayonet, ATTN: SFC Bob Edwards, Room 602, Infantry Hall or telephone 545-4792.)

Q—Under what conditions can the Army extend a soldier's enlistment involuntarily?

A—A person may be extended involuntarily for many reasons to include: (a) Time lost because of desertion or absence without proper authority. Confinement under sentence, confinement while awaiting trial or other disposition of individual's case. In temperate use of drugs or alcoholic liquor. Disease or injury as a result of individual's own misconduct. (b) When investigation is initiated with view to trial by court-martial or member is awaiting trial or as a result of trial. (c) Enroute to US or to US territory of origin of service until he has arrived at his destination. (d) Under current jurisdictional agreements with friendly governments when the foreign officials decline to grant departure from their jurisdiction and they accept custody of the accused in time to prevent his separation from the service. (e) During declared war the period of service is exteoded for the duration and for six months thereafter, unless sooner terminated by the Secretary of the Army. No enlisted member may be held in service beyond his estimated time of seperation, without his written consent, solely to provide further medical eare or to effect further hospitalization and subsequent separation or retirement for physical disability.

Q—Is there a listing available of ROTC summer camps being conducted this year? If so, where and what are the dates of training?

A—The following post have ROTC summer camp training: First Army, Indiantown Gap Military Reservation, Pa., June 12-August 6; 3rd Army, Ft. Bragg, N.C.; 5th Army, Ft. Riley, Kan., June 5-July 23; 6th Army, Ft. Lewis, Wash., June 11-August 5. In addition to the above named locations, a special ROTC summer camp is being conducted at Ft. Knox, Ky., for the two-year senior ROTC enrollees who have not taken the first two years of ROTC in college. This six-week camp is in lieu of the first two years and in addition to the normal eight-week camp.

Q—What is the policy regarding photography and press coverage of drug addicts being returned to the U.S. from overseas?

A—The drug treatment program is one of amnesty and rehabilitation. It is not punitive. In view of this, the individual's right to privacy makes it appropriate to prohibit photography of an individual without his expressed consent. Prohibition of photographic coverage of debarkation from the flight and subsequent movement to other means of transportation is equally appropriate.

The judge says

Bailee has right to your property

USAIC LEGAL ASSISTANCE OFFICE — If you have left your clothes at the cleaners, parked your car in a commercial parking lot, checked out a book from the library, borrowed your friend's car, or pawned your watch then you have entered into the legal realm of bailments.

A bailment is defined as the delivery of one's personal property to another person for a particular purpose (with a contract, either expressed or implied) so that the particular purpose will be carried out in conformity with the purpose of the trust. If it is your personal property that is entrusted to another, then you have become the bailor. If someone else has intrusted his property with you, then you have become the bailee.

The Georgia law is that in every situation of bailment, the bailee has a right to the possession of the property during the period that he holds the property; and if anyone should violate the bailee's right to possession, he has a right of action. The bailee is required to exercise care and diligence in safe guarding the property during the period of bailment. There are different degrees of care which are required, depending on the nature of the bailment. Further, any situation where a bailment arises may be classified under one of three general classifications, according to the nature of the bailment.

The first classification is termed a "bailment for the bailor's benefit." The distinguishing feature in this case is the absence of any compensation to the bailee. An example of this type of arrangement would be a delivery of some item to an individual's home or property by mistake — such as a delivery of a set of encyclopedias to the wrong person. The bailee, or the recipient in this example, could not simply ignore the delivery. He must exercise some degree of care to the goods even though the degree of care demanded is slight.

This small degree of care has been interpreted to be that the bailee has no right to use the item. It has been described as that degree of care which habitually careless men generally take in their own concerns.

The second classification is termed "bailment for the bailee's benefit." The distinguishing feature of this arrangement is that the bailment is for the benefit of the bailee without compensation to the bailor. It is sometimes termed a gratuitous bailment. An example would be where an individual lends a car to a friend. In this type of bailment, the bailee is held to the exercise of great or extraordinary care or diligence with respect to the goods. This does not mean that the bailee is absolutely responsible as an insurer for loss or injury, but he is responsible for his negligence for failure to exercise the requisite degree of care.

The standard of care required in this classification has been defined as that diligence that a person of more than ordinary prudence would bestow upon his own property.

The final classification is termed a "bailment for the mutual benefit of the bailee and the bailor." The distinguishing feature of this arrangement is that the bailment offers some benefit to both parties. This is the most common form of bailment: Examples of which are leaving one's clothing at the cleaners or leaving one's car with a mechanic.

The degree of care to be exercised by the bailee is that of ordinary care with respect to the goods involved. Ordinary care or diligence is that degree of care which men of ordinary prudence would exercise under the like circumstances.

The distinction made in each classification above is the guide to liability of the bailee in his handling of the bailed goods.

In any problem involving such issues, the Legal Assistance Officer should be consulted.

If you need a reason, here's a few

(Editor's Note: 'If You Need A Reason Here's A Few' appeared as an editorial in the Ft. MacArthur Star and Missile. The author is Sp4 Barbara L. Mitchell of the Post Information Office.)

FT. MACARTHUR — You a WAC? Why join the service when you don't have to? What does the Army have to offer a woman?

These are just a few of the many questions women in the Army are asked everyday by their male counterpart. The frequency of the same questions is monotonous as is the "ah, you got to be kidding me," following a reply to any one of these queries.

Believe it or not, the Army does have a great deal to offer a woman. When a woman states her reason as good training in a particular field, the quick-witted males reply . . . "there's just as good training on the outside." When finances enter into the conversation, the male says, "you can always get a good paying job to hide you along until . . . "Well some women just don't want to hide their time behind a typewriter or with their nose stuffed into a filing cabinet until they are able to afford the privilege of school training in their desired field.

The Army offers a woman the chance to train as air traffic controllers, in data precessing, in the medical field, in photography, in journalism and public affairs, as broadcasters in radio and TV and a myriad of other fields are open to women in the Army.

This alone would seem like reason enough for a woman to enter into the Army. But for those of you who are skeptical of females in the service, here are a few other reasons: The GI Bill for continuing college, a chance to travel past your home-state border, an opportunity to meet people and become involved, a secure future career with the best retirement benefits possible for a career-minded woman, a chance to display a love for the United States, a change of pace, training in leadership ability and other reasons could be aired.

Should we forget the reason which is usually stashed in last place? Some people of America still hold a respect, bonor and feeling of patriotism towards the United States. . . .Yes, even this is a reason why women enter into the Armed Services . . . whether it be Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine or Coast Guard.

It's now our turn to ask the questions. Why do you hate it so? Are you too proud to help defend some of your freedoms? Do you actually gain absolutely nothing from your service time?

How's it feel when the tables are turned?

with the "split screen": On the left side, the hospital orderly was jamming an I.V. needle into the arm of an overdose victim and, on the right side, the junkie was jamming the heroin needle into his protruding vein. Rather ironic.

Contrary to what I thought, there was no lecture, no doomsday experts, no pleading doctors and no unimpressive statistics. The only real experts were the former users in the state hospital, the wretched girl "crashing" in the not so private hospital room, the "heads" in the shooting gallery and the veterans in the streets barely in their puberty.

I'll not snow you, the film may turn you off. But then again it may turn you off drugs. It's called "11:59 — Last Minute to Choose" next Tuesday night, July 27, 10:30 on WRBL TV (Ch. 3).

As a post script, since the film was made two of the people in it are in jail, a couple in the hospital and one is dead.

Army Community Service is staffed by both military and volunteer personnel who are fully qualified to answer questions, prepare cases and refer clients to the ACS sections or other agencies for assistance.

Youth approve slogan of Army's ad campaign

Despite some adverse comments within the Army toward the paid advertising slogan "Today's Army Wants to Join You," it appears to be well-known and accepted by the target audience: Men 17 to 21.

In a survey conducted by Rome Arnold and Co. of Chicago, it was learned that 93 per cent of those surveyed knew of the slogan.

Some 70 per cent said they liked the slogan. Of those men considering entering the Army, some 82 per cent were in favor of the slogan.

The survey was conducted June 11-23.

Those surveyed indicated they think the slogan implies change in the Army and a greater emphasis on the individuals.

Much of the ad campaign was produced by the N.W. Ayer Co. at Fort Benning.

13 'Patriots' split $100,000 for reenlisting

It was a "grand" morning for 13 "Patriots" of the 1st Bn. (Mech.), 58th Inf., when they were reenlisted in a formation ceremony held July 2.

Col. Willard Latham, the 197th Infantry Brigade commander, gave them the reenlistment oath. The 13 men were flanked by an honor guard carrying the guidons of the companies they represented. Also attending the ceremony were primary staff officers, company commanders and senior NCOs.

Including all bonuses, turned in leave and the new Variable Reenlistment Bonus category of four, the 13 men reenlisted for a total of 77 years and $100,000 in bonuses. Nine of the men reenlisted for their present duty assignment.

The reenlistees are: HIC, Sp4 Reinaldo Mason and Sp4 Dwight C. Moss, six years each; Co. A, Sgt. William Atkinson, Sgt. Houston Yarbrough and Sp4 Oscar Worrell, six years each; Co. B. SSgt. William T. Taylor and Sgt. John F. Rally Jr., six years each, and Sgt. George W. Walkup, three years; Co. C, Sp4 Leon Smith, five years, and Sp4 Roy M. Turner, four years; and Co. D, Sp4 Kirby Brown, five years, Sp4 John Fischer, four years, and Sp4 Kenneth Tuenesson, six years.

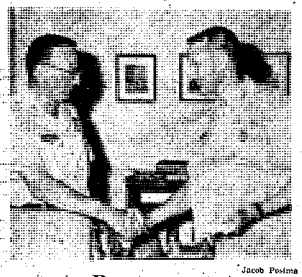
40 poverty-area children see Airborne show

Forty children from lower income families in the Columbus area visited Fort Benning July 19 for an outing that included an airborne show and tank rides.



Olin Faulk, director of Neighborhood Services of the Lower Chattahoochee Community Action Agency and coordinator for the program, said the children were selected from poverty income, non-farm families in three of 13 designated underprivileged neighborhoods in Columbus.

Those participating in Monday's events were from the Pou Street area, the "Open Door" neighborhood and the Warren Williams Home of Columbus. Air-conditioned bus transportation was provided by the City of Columbus.

First stop for the kids was the 1st Bn., 29th Inf., 197th Inf. Bde., for a welcome to the post by Lt. Col. Hollis D. Messer. The children then witnessed an Airborne 5,000 demonstration at Eubanks Field in which airborne troops staged low altitude parachute jumps.

Highlighting their day was a final stop at the 4th Bn. of the 68th Armor for a ride on Army personnel carriers and tanks.

Faulk said Fort Benning's concern for the underprivileged children of Columbus gave the kids the "greatest thrill they ever had." The Neighborhood Services Center is planning a return visit to Benning with more children Aug. 2.

Jacob Postma

Rare event

Maj. John Heckman (R) member of an Army Reserve unit in Bozeman, Mont., is a rare person. He received his Infantry Officers Advanced Course diploma in person — not through the mail. He took the IOAC instruction through the Army Correspondence Course offered by the Infantry School. Most officers doing that are mailed their diplomas. Heckman, a U. S. Forestry Service forester, got his in this ceremony from Col. Herbert Frandsen, Infantry School secretary. The major happened to be on post with a Reserve Unit rifle team when the ceremony was held.

Voice of VOLAR

- The Soldier Reward Program, which sponsored free monthly trips to Atlanta for outstanding soldiers, has been continued. The next trip is planned for July 31 - Aug. 1.
- The Mod Shop, featuring the latest clothing styles, has been opened. It is located beside the Commissary parking lot.

Reserve general sees post

During the course of its training here the 2073 United States Army Reserve School last week welcomed Maj. Gen. J. Milnor Roberts Jr., newly appointed chief of the Army Reserve on the Army Staff; Col. Willie E. Dixon Jr., commander of the 99th United States Army Reserve Command; and his assistant chief of staff, Col. Francis R. Maffei Jr.

Also on hand was Col. Vincent E. Fazio, commanding officer of the United States Army Advisor Group at Oakdale, Pa.

Highlighting their stay was the beginning of the Infantry Officer Advanced Course for more than 200 Army Reserve and National Guard Officers, a program now in its 15th consecutive summer at Fort Benning. The visit to Benning also marked a homecoming for Gen. Roberts and Colonels Dixon and Maffei, all past instructors in the Infantry School.

The 2073 U.S. Army Reserve School, with headquarters in Pittsburgh, Pa., is the largest of its kind in the nation.

WOs now may apply for undergrad program

WASHINGTON (ANF) — The Officer Undergraduate Degree Program has been expanded to include career warrant officers desiring to obtain an associate or baccalaureate degree.

Warrant officers with Regular Army potential and two to seven years of warrant service may apply for up to two years of full-time study at an accredited college or university to obtain a degree.

Warrant officers who are in the Regular Army are already included in the "Bootstrap" program.

Destin Camp still has trailer-pad openings

DESTIN, Fla. — Some Fort Benning personnel, campers particularly, are not taking full advantage of the Army's recreation area here on the beaches of the gulf near the fishing village of Destin, Fla.

Louis Bestland, Destin Camp manager, says the Army recreation area is booming this summer, but the 10 trailer pads and the camping sites are being underused.

Trailer pads with water, electricity and sewage may be rented for $1 a day (15-day limit) while trailer parking and tent sites may be rented for 75 cents daily.

The Army recreation area now has 13 cottages and a three-room trailer with four additional cottages expected to be completed in time for use this summer. Each cabin is completely furnished.

Additionally, a completely furnished air-conditioned dormitory is available for 18 soldiers on a rotating basis, determined by major units and commands at Fort Benning.

The area is located in the heart of Florida's "Miracle Strip" — midway between Panama City and Pensacola. It is primarily for active duty personnel stationed at Fort Benning. Retired personnel, wives whose military sponsors are overseas, and other military connected personnel may use the camp when space permits.

Eligible personnel may reserve Destin facilities by calling the Special Services Division (Recreation), telephone 545-5641, at Fort Benning.

School plans instruction on Army management

Management Practices in Table Organization and Equipment (MAPTOE) a new multi-hour block on instruction will start in about a month, at the Infantry School.

MAPTOE is essentially the use of four basic management tools in the Army. These four fundamentals consist of a task list and work distribution chart, procedure chart, flow process chart, and a layout studies chart.

MAPTOE is designed to even out the work load for a specific operation and eliminate unnecessary repetition by showing a person exactly what steps are to be taken to accomplish his assigned task.

The new course will be implemented into all courses of instruction; Officer Candidate School, Non-Commissioned Officers Course, Infantry Officer Basic Course and Advanced Officers Course. IOBC and NCOC classes will tentatively receive 11 hours of instruction while the AOC will receive 6-9 hours, because they have received some instruction in management techniques previously.

Capt. William R. Larimer of the Infantry School Management Committee is assigned to a special 30-man team traveling to all major Army posts and instructing all men in supervisory positions on the complete 12-hour block on instruction. Results have been favorable from both Forts Bragg and Riley.

Currently the Management Committee is working on a new program of instruction to implement MAPTOE on a post-wide basis.

Col. Rice accepts award for scouting efforts

Col. Foy Rice, USAIC Aviation Command, has been honored for his participation and leadership in the scouting program here on post and in the local vicinity.

Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander, presented Col. Rice with a Boy Scout statuette at a ceremony in the general's office which was attended by the vice chairmen of the Scouting District and representatives of the scouting program.

Col. Rice joined the scouting program in September of 1968 as the scouting activities chairman and in 1970 was made chairman of the Boy Scout District of Fort Benning.

Also

Gen. Talbott was presented an award for his work in the Benning scouting program. The presentation was made by James Hall, field director of the Chattahoochee Valley Boy Scout District, and Dale Liggett, Fort Benning district executive.

Matsuda honored graduate

Sgt. Richard T. Matsuda, Honolulu, Hawaii, was the distinguished and academic graduate of the Noncommissioned Officer Candidate Course Class 8-71 which graduated in ceremonies July 13 at Marshall Auditorium, Infantry Hall. Sgt. Paul E. Yarnell, Newaygo, Mich., was the leadership graduate.

CSM John F. Adams, 197th Sup. Bn., 197th Inf. Bde., delivered the commencement address to the 111 graduates.

For their achievement both Matsuda and Yarnell each received a letter of commendation signed by Brig. Gen. John T. Carley, assistant commandant of the Infantry School., an engraved "Follow Me" plaque, an engraved "Follow Me" statuette and an engraved Association of the United States Army plaque.

Matsuda is being assigned to another post and Yarnell will report to the 4th Stu. Bn., TSB, for Airborne training before he is reassigned to the 8th Bn., TSB, as a tactical NCO.

608th muscles in on munitions job

By John Box

"Sixteen tons and what do you get?" You get the satisfaction of knowing you're supplying that much ammunition daily to the various training units at Fort Benning.

But for the 608th Ord. Co., 67th Maint. Bn., 93ist Engr. Gp., that's only half the job. The unit also receives all incoming munitions, keeps stock records and does some minor renovation work on slightly damaged materials.

Currently the unit is supervising a reserve component visiting the company for training pruposes during their two-week summer camp. The 266th Ordnance Company (Ammo) from Aguadilla and Yauco, Puerto Rico, under the command of Capt. Fernando Pla, arrive July 10 and is working with the 608th through tomorrow.

Classes were held to keep the reserve soldiers up to date with the intricacies of handling all types of munitions from M18 ammunition to eight-inch shells. They then were sent into the Ammunition Supply Point for on-the-job practical experience.

A high point of their stay was the visits of Maj. Gen. J. Milno Roberts, chief, Army Reserve Washington D. C., and Maj. Gen. Hal D. McCown, deputy commanding general Reserve Forces 3rd U. S. Army. Gen. Roberts arrived July 13 for a one-day inspection four of training being received by the Puerto Rican unit and Gen. McCown arrived July 19 for a one-day look-see of his own. Both generals reported being favorably impressed by the training provoded by the 608th Ord. Co.

The 608th is also part of tte Strategic Army Command or "STRAC" and must be kept at full strength for immediate deployment anywhere in the world.

PWOC aids Korean girl

Kyung Sun Noon, a Korean orphan, is being helped to a better life by a group of Fort Benning Protestant Women of the Chapel.

The ladies of USAIC and Indianhead Road Chapels adopted young Sun Noon as a service project after learning of poverty and homeless children in Korea.

An interesting letter, and photo have been received from the "adopted daughter." She lives at Oh Soon Zul Orphanage, and has just finished kindergarten.

Her greetings, picture and Korean mementoes will be displayed at the USAIC Protestant Women of the Chapel meeting at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday in the Annex behind Main Post Chapel. All interested women are cordially invited to attend. A free nursery is in the same building.

Col. Rice has aloha farewell

The officers and ladies of the USAIC Aviation Command (P) discovered last Friday that the Hawaiian word "a'lo'ha" means goodbye as they said farewell to their commander, Col. Foy Rice.

Colonel Rice has been reassigned to the Army's Combat Development Command at Fort Belvoir, Virginia.

While a live band played polynesian music in the background, the well-wishers enjoyed a smorgasbord featuring authentic Hawaiian foods.

The party was held at the Lawson Field Officers Club near the airfield.

Remember prepublicity guarantees better attendance. You are what makes our column go.

July 26 is the Welcome Coffee, sponsored by the OWC, for all incoming officers' wives. The 10 a.m. coffee will be in the OWC Lounge and signs will lead the way.

Located near the Milk Bar, off Lumpkin Road, the lounge will have reserved parking space for guests.

If you get lost, please stop and ask someone. We don't want to miss meeting you.

Contact, if possible, Mrs. Gordon M. Hunt, 545-7349; Mrs. Powell Johnson, 687-5130; Mrs. James Hoover, 545-2008; or Mrs. Victor Arndt, 687-6311. This will give us an idea of how many guests to expect. Please understand you are welcome without a reservation.

OWC TEENAGE CHARM AND MODELING

OWC will offer a teenage charm and modeling class starting July 20th. Mrs. Frank Roberts will instruct and the cost will be $15. For more information call Mrs. R. C. Miller, 545-4739.

Teen Sewing Course for girls who like to make their own "thing". Beginners and advanced; 6 lessons, 2 hours each on Tuesday and Thursdays, from 10 a.m. to 12 p.m. or 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. beginning Tuesday July 27. Classes are limited to 8. The cost of the instruction will be $16. Classes will be held at 309 Austin Loop, Fort Benning. Call Mrs. Larry S. Mickel at 545-1528 for registration or more information. Classes for August are also available.

Beginner's Bridge class will meet in the OWC Lounge on Tuesday and Friday mornings the first three weeks in August. The cost is $2. To register or for more information, call Mrs. Dan DeVore, 689-1796 or Mrs. R. C. Miller, 545-4739.

MEDDAC

The Officers' Wives' Club of the Medical Department Activity (MEDDAC) of Fort Benning held a coffee at the Supper Club on July 9. The refreshment table was covered with a blue cloth and centered with an arrangement of white and blue flowers. The hostess chairmen were Mrs. George Chapin and Mrs. Alphonse Lask.

Mrs. Cesar Lopez, president of the MEDDAC Wives' Club, introduced the following new members: Mrs. Lyle Bundt; Mrs. Richard Garbarino; Mrs. David Cunningham; Mrs. Marc Lowen; Mrs. Wade Sanders; and Mrs. Stan Pollack. The members attending for the last time were recognized. They were; Mrs. Don Beach; Mrs. Cyrus Beasley; Mrs. Eugene Dragonosky; and Mrs. Mark Michelman.

Mrs. John Moscrip, membership chairman of the Officers' Wives' Club, was a guest at the coffee. She told the group what the OWC would be offering to its members this summer and fall. Mrs. Moscrip mentioned many of the classes that will be available and the OWC — sponsored trips to nearby points of interest.

ARTILLERY COMMITTEE

Nametags in the shape of the state of Kansas set the scene for the Artillery Committee wives' monthly coffee on June 8. The coffee was hosted by Mrs. Aquila Stipe and Mrs. Robert Snyder at Mrs. Stipe's quarters. It seems that most of our departees this month found that they were on their way to Ft. Leavenworth, Kansas.

Goodbyes were said to Mrs. Richard Beltson, Mrs. Jimmy Smith, and Mrs. Christopher Herrick. Maj Beltson and Maj. Smith will make their way to Leavenworth to attend Command and General Staff College. Capt. Herrick is on his way to graduate school at Purdue University in Illinois.

On a happier note, the wives welcomed Mrs. Gerald Johnston and Mrs. Mirt Lunsford to the Artillery Committee.

Special guests for the coffee were Mrs. Edna White, mother of Mrs. Richard Cunningham and Miss Martha Valez, sister of Mrs. Herrick.

"DELICIOUS" was the only word to describe the homemade banana ice cream and cookies served as refreshments by the hostesses.

Iranian wife contrasts homeland with U.S. life

BY CAROLYN INGALLS

"Salom, hale shoma chetoreh" is the way lovely, versatile Diana Hershey might greet you if she were speaking in her native, Iranian tongue.

Diana, wife of Capt. Michael Hershey, IOAC 5-71, came to America when she was 20.

Prior to her arrival in the U.S., Diana was educated in private girls' schools where languages, art and music were emphasized. (Academic subjects were not considered important for girls.) Although she studied English, French, Italian and Persian in school, it was from her father at home, that she learned to speak English.

Diana's family lived in Teheran, the capital city of Iran. She remembers it as beautiful and mountainous and the day-to-day life as much less hurried. Her mother's household duties were mainly supervisory, as the gardner, cook, cleaning woman and houseboy did the work.

Social life for young people centered around community youth centers, which offered sports, dances and various classes.

Dating was done mostly in groups. When asked the inevitable comparison question, Diana admits she likes American men much better. "They are more outgoing and interesting." But she believes the Persian boys' shyness is a result of the limited dating situation.

After her formal schooling was finished, Diana taught herself typing and got a job with the United States Army, G-4 section. It wasn't long after this that Diana's family moved to America. Her father was in the import-export business and the lure of the "American Dream" had captured him. They settled in Monterey, California, because other relatives were there, although the largest part of their family remained in Iran.

Once in California, Diana perfected her English, and then at Monterey College studied art, worked as a secretary and met her husband. She loves her life as an army wife, its travel, and the opportunities for meeting different people and participating in a wide variety of activities.

Diana's mother may have been free of household chores, but she couldn't have divided her energies as widely as her daughter has. Diana knits many of her own clothes, enjoys swimming and tennis (which she plays every day) and is an accomplished artist.

Many of her paintings decorate the walls of her range from still-lifes to portraits. Much of the work was done while her husband, Mike, was in Viet Nam. Diana lived in Texas during this time and one of her paintings hangs in Fort Wolters Army Hospital. Mike is not left behind when it comes to talent. His pottery and graphics compliment Diana's oils and watercolors.

Another art form Diana excels in (and Mike enjoys) is cooking. "It's another way to be creative." Although Diana favors French dishes, using lots of sauces and wines, her cooking has an international flavor and she has shared one of her favorite Persian recipes with us. It's simple, easy, and best of all, tastes delicious.

Loobia Khoreshet

1 lb. fresh green beans
2 lbs. beef (cut in tiny cubes)
2 chopped onions
1 can tomato sauce
dash of tumeric
salt and pepper to taste
Simmer all ingredients in skillet approximately 45 minutes, then serve over steamed rice.

About Women's Liberation, Diana says, "I think it's hogwash." About the new fashions: "I love them. They're very versatile and young-looking. I think a woman should wear what becomes her, that's why the new fashions are so great. You can hide your faults and show off your good points."

About herself: "I'm not a dreamer — I like realism."

—Diana, her husband, and their 11-year-old daughter, Pam, live on Minaco Drive in Columbus.

Women given more fire power

Law-enforcement positions in the Federal government which require the bearing of firearms are no longer restricted to men. Accordingly, examination announcements which have stated that agencies would employ men only based on duties that required the bearing of firearms are amended, so that applications for such positions will be accepted from both men and women in the future.

Women may now apply for the currently open announcements that were formerly restricted to men. These announcements, are AT-1-02, Treasury Enforcement Agent, Atlanta Region, AJ-0-17, Deputy U.S. Marshal, Jackson, Miss., Area, and AG-0-16, Policemen, Columbus and South Georgia Area.

Effective July 17, announcement number 410 for Federal Service Entrance Examination positions will be closed to receipt of applications. A new announcement is planned for October 1971. Further information may be obtained at Room 322, Post Office Building, Columbus.

Cast set for 'Wizard'

A tentative cast has been chosen for the forthcoming Fort Benning Dramatizers production "The Wizard of Oz". Cast members are Bill Della, Scarecrow; E. Linton Gross III, Tin Woodsman; Craig Harbridge, Lion; Pam Williams, Dorothy; Lorrie Jones, Toto; Charles Lucas, The Wizard; Gail Robinson, Sybella; Sue Latham, Branka; Linda Booth, Glinda; Edith Simmons, Bimp; Kevin Murdock, Green Guard. Understudy for the Lion is Jessica Hickey.

There are several small roles still to be cast in the play. Anyone interested in auditioning for the parts, or anyone interested in doing technical work in the production may obtain further information by calling the Fort Benning Playhouse-545-2316 or 545-5057.

Production dates for the show are August 21 and 28. Curtain time is 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. at Main Post Theater. Admission is 50 cents.

Typewriting class slated

A Typewriting I class is being offered through the Army Education Center. Classes will meet on Monday and Wednesday evenings from 6:45 to 9:15 p.m. Aug. 16 through Nov. 3. All military personnel and any adult dependent whose sponsor is enrolled are eligible. Those interested can enroll in Room 330A, Building 35, 6:30 p.m. on Aug. 16. There is no charge, for the class.

LEADERSHIP DEPARTMENT

A welcome luncheon was given by Mrs. William B. Steele, wife of Col. Steel, director of the Leadership Department, USAIS, to honor Mrs. Billy E. Rutherford, wife of Lt. Col. Rutherford, deputy director of the department.

The luncheon was held in Mrs. Steele's home July 2 at 2 p.m. The ladies attending were Mrs. Jim J. Hunt, Mrs. Robert I. Farris, Mrs. Douglas E. Emery, Mrs. Patrick J. Lalley, and Mrs. William E. Smith.

Everyone enjoyed the social hour and delightfully cool salad plate. It is such a pleasure for the ladies of the Leadership Department to say welcome and to wish Mrs. Rutherford a pleasant stay at Fort Benning.

MRS. RUTHERFORD WELCOMED

The ladies of Headquarters, Leadership Department, USAIS, held a "Peachy" coffee on Tuesday, July 13, 7:30 p.m., in the home of Mrs. William E. Smith, 616 Gibson Court. Co-hostess was Mrs. Patrick J. Lalley.

The occasion was to welcome Mrs. Billy E. Rutherford, wife of Lt. Col. Rutherford, deputy director of the Leadership Department.

The theme of "Peaches and Cream" was evident as the hostesses served peach pinwheel butter cake, homemade peach ice cream, coffee and iced tea.

The decorations for the evening coffee were a table centerpiece of fresh peaches in an antique silver compote, lemon yellow candles glowing in silver candleholders, yellow daisy napkins, and peach-shaped nametags.

Eight wives were present to give Mrs. Rutherford a warm and "peachy" welcome

Homemade Peach Ice Cream

2 large cans evaporated milk
3 cups of sugar
6-8 fresh peaches
½ gallon milk

1. Peel the peaches and sprinkle with 1 cup of sugar. Place in blender and puree for 30 seconds.
2. Combine the peach mixture with the other ingredients in a five-quart ice cream freezer.
3. Ice and rock salt and 20-30 minutes of steady cranking should finish the job.

RED CROSS

The Youth class for the American Red Cross summer training program graduated 35 members, ages 15-17. These teens are already working at Martin Army Hospital and annex and the Post Veternarian. Of particular interest to the youths is working with children in the pediatric clinic and ward. The newborn nursery has several volunteers.

An adult training class is scheduled in the fall. For further information, call 545-4807.

ARMY COMMUNITY SERVICE

Any interest you have can be adapted to the Army Community Service (ACS) needs. From personnel work, which entails giving budget advice, to guiding a newcomer to the commissary, the training program gives each volunteer an opportunity to contribute her services.

The next orientation program will be July 27, at the Welcome Center (Bldg. no. 83) at 9 a.m. Volunteers will be given an overall view of what ACS offers and any interested person should call for more information or attend this meeting. Mrs. Charles Merrill is the volunteer supervisor. By giving your talents to serve others, your community benefits.

A "Fling-Ding" on July 28 for Baker Village residents will provide ACS with a new field of work in their OUTREACH program. By moving the entire service to this Columbus housing area for the event, ACS will give first-hand information to Army personnel there.

N.C.O. WIVES CERAMIC NEWS

The Non-Commissioned Officers' Wives' (NCO) Ceramic Shop is open to members of the NCO Wives' Club. An invitation is open to any NCO wife, whose husband is of rank E-4 and above, to become a member of the club and participate in the fun of trying ceramics.

If you already know how to do ceramics, having the convenient ceramic shop to use could be more fun. Should you need a helping hand in learning all about ceramics, there is Mrs. Eugene Daniels, ceramic shop firing chairman who usually fires the greenware and gives a helping hand to new members of the shop.

Located in Bldg. 2422, Lawson Field Wives Clubhouse, the ceramic shop is open Monday and Friday from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m. and from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Tuesday.

The second Monday of each month is Hobby Night at the Ceramic Shop and the shop business meeting is the third Monday of each month.

All NCO Wives' Club members are eligible to join the ceramic shop and dues are $1.50 the first month and $1 per month thereafter.

A covered dish supper is enjoyed by the members and non-members of the shop each few months and lovely pieces of ceramics are on display and games are enjoyed by all.

Not to forget the husbands, they may also attend the covered dish supper and enjoy the games and fun. Sorry, no husbands can enjoy doing ceramics inside the shop, but you may take yours home and do the work. Why not have your wife make you a ceramic ash tray, a horse, a cow, a bunny, or even a set of ash trays?

SERGEANT-MAJORS WIVES

The Sergeant Majors Wives group said farewell to one of their "Waiting Wives" on July 7 at their monthly coffee. Mrs. Thomas Fitzpatrick and her four sons, twins Mike and Donnie, Terry and Gary, are looking ahead to later this month when CSM Fitzpatrick will return after a tour with the 101st Airborne Division in Vietnam. CSM Fitzpatrick has been reassigned to Ft. McClellan, Alabama.

Mrs. John LaVoie expressed the feelings of all the wives when she wished Mrs. Fitzpatrick the very best and presented her with a silver engraved tray.

Serving as hostesses were Mrs. William T. Mixon, Mrs. Warren Paulk, Mrs. Acy Akridge, and Mrs. Hans-Juergen Kuellmer.

Wives of all sergeant majors are welcome to join the group. The next coffee will be held at 9:30 a.m. August 4, at the Top 5 Club.

July 27 — ACS Orientation program
July 28 — ACS "Fling-Ding"
August 4 — Sergeant Majors Wives Coffee

OWC

Mrs. John T. Carley was honored at a farewell luncheon July 16 by the Officers' Wives' Club (OWC) Executive Board. Special guest was Mrs. Orwin C. Talbott.

Garden flowers in varying shades of yellow, red and pink centered round tables covered in yellow cloths. The Normandy Room luncheon began with fresh strawberries floating in champagne punch. Mrs. Richard A. Stoltz, OWC president, supplied the recipe for chicken salad with almonds, grapes and apples in a tomato basket. This was followed by melon balls and fruits with lemon cookies.

Mrs. Carley was presented an enormous brown packing box trailing a scarlet bow. The empty box was a familiar reminder of her impending move and the pleasures of packing. The honoree graciously said, "I've always wanted one." Mrs. Stoltz then turned to Mrs. Carley with the actual gift, a giant volume of "The History of Art." Speaking for all OWC members, Mrs. Stoltz thanked Mrs. Carley for her enthusiastic support of the wives' activities.

197th says farewell to Chaplain Naughton

A fond farewell was said to Chaplain (Capt.) Thomas Naughton, 197th Infantry Brigade Catholic Chaplain. Chaplain Naughton recently received orders for the Republic of Vietnam.

At the social get-together after mass on July 11, Chaplain Naughton said goodbye to his congregation. He spoke of the many happy hours he had spent at the Harmony Church Chapel, and thanked all those who faithfully attended.

In recognition for his many services to the congregation, Chaplain Naughton was made an Honorary "Patriot" by the 1st Bn. (Mech.), 58th Inf.; Capt. William A. MacDonald, commander of Co. B., presented the chaplain with a plaque containing the Infantryman's Prayer as a token of their gratitude for his service to the men.

197th recruiting efforts yield big gains in June

By Bob Wise

Unit-of-choice recruiting for the 197th Infantry Brigade skyrocketed in June. By June 30 the total number of young men who had enlisted in the Army as a result of 197th recruiting efforts soared to 445.

Of these, 242 of the men enlisted with the expressed desire of joining the 197th Inf. Bde. Another 96 of the 445 men chose other units and 105 chose other options (chose not to enlist for armor, artillery or infantry).

Before the enormous June increase, the brigade's unit-of-choice recruiting efforts resulted in only 113 enlistees even though the jump was a result of massive efforts in May.

Instrumental in the increase was the brigade's initiation of the "buddy system." Of the total number of personnel enlisted by the brigade into the Army in June, 85 did so through the "buddy system."

Under the buddy system, a man is sent to his hometown to devote his full-time efforts to talking to friends and relatives about joining the Army. One hometown recruiter in St. Louis, Mo., Sgt. Loveless Jones, Co. C, 5th Bn., 31st Inf., said he ran out of "buddies" in his town.

Jones continued his recruiting efforts, however, and obtained a list of prospects from the recruiting main station and continued to talk to other young men about enlisting into the Army, particularly the 197th Inf. Bde.

On July 15, the unit-of-choice enlistment option was somewhat modified from the one initiated in early 1971. When the old option went into effect an individual could enlist for the 197th Inf. Bde. for a minimum of six months.

Effective until Sept. 30, 1971, a man can enlist with the guarantee of spending 16 months in the brigade after his initial training. The Department of the Army will then study the new option after the first quarter of fiscal year 1971 to see if it should be continued.

After the soldier's 16 month tour of duty with the 197th, he is eligible for a short overseas tour. If assigned to a short tour area, the soldier may return to the brigade for the remainder of his three-year enlistment.

If a new recruit chooses to enter on the delayed entry program he must have an active duty date prior to Sept. 30 to take advantage of this 16-month option. Those who earlier requested the six-month option are now entitled to request and receive the new 16-month tour.

Is this my 'good' side?

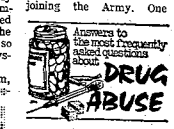
It seems that this Fort Benning tot is more concerned about the antics of our photographer than the direction in which his parents are going.

Army chaplains mark 196 years of service to needs of soldiers

By Chaplain (Capt.) Loren D. Pugh

Is he Chaplain Stainglass of the Beetle Bailey comic strip? Is he the shoulder upon which the Army cries? Or is he a rugged type who can deliver a "chewing-out" or a benediction with equal ease? He is all of these and none of these. He is a United States Army chaplain. Since July 29, 1775, he has worn his cross or tablets from pole to pole and from war to war.

An Army Chaplain is, first and foremost, a clergyman. Most chaplains are graduates of a four year college and a three-year theological seminary. The vast majority have several years pastoral experience before coming on active duty. Many have done post-graduate work or have had specialized training. All chaplains have been ordained by their church and certified to the Army.



At Fort Benning the range of services begins with the obvious. Chaplains conduct hundreds of worship services for thousands of people. They marry many couples, conduct funerals and memorials, and observe the sacraments and rites of the various churches and denominations.

More than that, chaplains go where the people are. From engineer or Infantry battalion in the field to NCO, OCS, Airborne or the Rangers, a chaplain is near. A duty chaplain is on call 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

In an attempt to establish relationships and express genuine concern for young men, Fort Benning chaplains have opened coffee houses at Kelley Hill and main post. Through the coffee house ministry an attempt is made to give young soldiers a place that will provide them with new acquaintances, new friends, new understandings, new ideas, new interests, and thus, a new trust and respect for one another.

Fort Benning chaplains realize that the church of our day must find ways to use all of its programs and activities to meet the needs of the total man. The chaplaincy seeks to be creative in its thinking and innovative in its approach. A chaplain is on the scene at Benning House, ministering in the alcohol and drug abuse program. There are chaplains at Martin Army Hospital ministering in the midst of the pain and grief which accompany illness.

Fort Benning chaplains dedicate themselves to the task of meeting the needs of the Army community and of being faithful to the motto expressed on the Chaplain's seal: "pro deo et patria" — for God and Country.

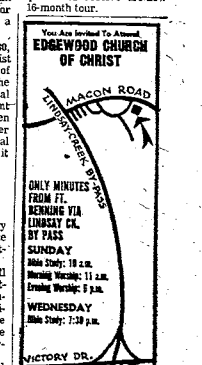
What is Marijuana?

Marijuana is Indian hemp (Cannabis sativa). The parts with the highest tttrah ydrocannabinol (THC) content are the flowering tops of the plant. The leaves have a smaller amount. The stalks and seeds have little or none. THC is believed to be the active ingredient in marijuana. Many other compounds are present in marijuana, but they do not produce the mental effects of the drug.

Car shipment ban ends

WASHINGTON (AFPS) —The Department of Defense has ended the 10-year ban on shipment of foreign-made, privately-owned vehicles to the United States by eligible Defense Department employes.

The action, effective July 1, was taken by DoD's per diem, travel and transportation allowance committee in a move designed to bring military policies in line with those in effect for State Department employes.



Under the new rule, all eligible Defense Department employes will be authorized to ship their vehicles at Government expense without regard to the country in which purchased.

The ban was imposed March 6, 1961, in an effort to stem the gold flow and improve the U.S. balance of payments.

Proposal date

Dwight Eisenhower once had to ask Mamie Doud a month in advance for a date because of her popularity. He proposed to her on Valentine's Day.

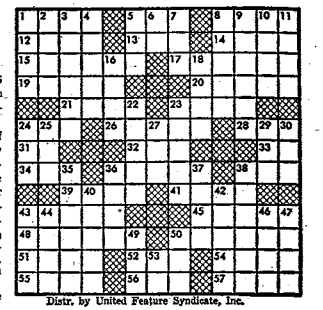
Free city postal service marks 108th anniversary

The U. S. Postal Service on July 1 marked the 108th anniversary of establishment of free city delivery service with a record of more deliveries to more Americans than ever before, Postmaster General Winton M. Blount reported today.

Mr. Blount reported that during the 1971 fiscal year, city delivery services were provided for more than 1,000,000 residential families and 38,800 more businesses.

Today, there are about 134,000 delivery routes — business, residential and mixed business-residential — operating out of 6,269 post offices, serving an estimated total of 82.5 million families and nearly 5 million businesses — an all-time record for city delivery services, he noted.



The 108th anniversary of free city delivery on July 1, coincident with the official start on July 1 of the U.S. Postal Service under its newly-reorganized status — recalled the inauguration of this service on July 1, 1863, under legislation signed March 3, 1863, by President Abraham Lincoln.

A Cleveland Post Office window clerk, Joseph W. Briggs, is credited with conceiving and helping to push through to completion the first city delivery system, and Cleveland was among the first cities receiving the service.

Historical accounts indicate Briggs was inspired to crusade for free city delivery after seeing long lines of women outside the Cleveland Post Office in the early 1850's waiting in the snow to receive mail from husbands away fighting in the Civil War.

During the Civil War period, on November 1, 1864, the Postal Service also instituted the postal money order system, largely to provide Union soldiers with a safe means of sending money home.

Interservice photography contest underway on post

All military personnel currently on active duty for a period of 90 days or more are eligible to participate in the 14th Interservice Photo contest underway at Fort Benning.

Competition will be on installation, Third Army, all-Army and interservice levels. Winners at each level will proceed to the next level of competition.

Monchrome prints, color prints and color transparencies will be accepted in each of eight categories: people, children, animals, action, scenic, military life, still life and experimental.

Every entry must have been completed after Aug. 1, 1969 and submitted by August 25. No official military photographs will be accepted. No contestant may receive more than one prize in any single category.

All entries must conform to rules governing size, identification and moutning as prescribed in the contest directive. Judging will be performed by three or more members of local photo services and the news media.

Certificates and cash awards will be presented to winners at the installation level — $25, $20 and $15 for first, second and third places. Winners in other levels of competition will be announced and appropriate prizes presented. Contest expires December 31.

Application material, questions and entries should be directed to the Arts and Crafts Center, Bldg. 2783 on Main Post or the Kelley Hill Craft Shop, Bldg. 9049. Facilities for developing and processing film, except for color prints, are available to personnel at either craft shop.

Has provisions for monitoring (when used with three-headed machines),as well as provison for mixing microphones and line inputs. Also a headphone jack.
The famous Dolby System of noise reduction, now used for master taping removes up to ninety per cent of the background tape hiss: this permits you to make better quality recordings at 3¾ inches per second than your machine could previously make at 7½ inches per second! Either one of these Advents is a necessity for anyone serious about tape recording!
ADVENT MODEL 101
Offers the same performance as the Model 100, but lacks monitoring and mixing facilities. This is the least expensive way to dramatically improve a recorder's performance!

Synopsis

WHICH WAY TO THE FRONT? (Rated G) — Jerry Lewis portrays a young millionaire who is reflected by the army in World War II and decides to form his own army of misfits to wage war against the Nazis.

Lewis sails off to war on a girl-laden yacht, masquerades as a Nazi general, and attempts to kill Hitler. He is helped by soldiers Jan Murray, John Wood, Steve Franken, Dack Rambo and baseball's Willie Davis. Sidney Miller portrays Hitler.

C.C. AND COMPANY (Rated R) — C.C. Ryder (Joe Namath), a young cyclist, joins a marauding gang of motorcyclists called "The Heads." The leader of the gang Moon (William Smith) and Namath compete in a classic western style motorcycle duel. The high-horsepower showdown takes place at night in the football stadium of The University of Arizona.

Namath portraying a non-conformist motorcycle gypsy, also races against champion cyclist John DeSoto and two dozen of America's top professional motorcyclists while making pretty good time with co-star Ann-Margret, too.

THE MAN WHO HAD POWER OVER WOMEN (Rated R) — Rod Taylor, a top executive with a London talent agency, turns his attention to rock star Clive Francis after a heated argument with his wife Penelope Horner. When Taylor decides to resign he and friend James Booth, an agency writer, get drunk.

Taylor is attracted to Booth's wife (Carol White), and later turns down Horner's attempt at a reconciliation. Before Taylor can tell Booth the truth, the latter is killed in an accident. Taylor leaves for good with White.

THE WITCHMAKER (Rated GP) — Set in a remote Louisiana bayou, chronicles the strange rites of a modern day witches coven with uses human blood for its ceremonies. Embroiled in this-hunt-and chase blood-lust and Thordis Brandt, who are stars Anthony Eisley set out with a team of parapsychology experts to find the source of the mystic and occult activity in the area, and solve the series of mysterious ritual slayings.

WUTHERING HEIGHTS (Rated G) — The new version of Emily Bronte's brooding classic retains all the power and passion of the immortal novel, but the story has a more contemporary look. Heathcliff (Timothy Dalton) and Catherine (Anna-Calder-Marshall) are presented as wild, rebellious youngsters caught in a self-destructive love-hate relationship stronger than life itself. Emily Bronte's defiant young lovers live again in a new and different look at an immortal classic.

Seaworthy boats necessary for safe sailing

One of the most important steps a boater can take to ensure a season of safe boating is to make sure that his boat is seaworthy and properly equipped.

The U. S. Coast Guard Auxiliary Flotilla in your community often conducts free boat examinations all season. If your area does not have such a unit, check with your local Power Squadron, Boat Club, or Safety Officer. It is a rare community which does not have this voluntary courtesy examination.

MOVIE RATINGS FOR PARENTS AND YOUNG PEOPLE

The objective of the ratings is to inform persons about the suitability of movie content for viewing by their children.

Air Force story told

The story of the Air Force, from its inception to the present, when Commander Alfonse Apollo took his first moon walk, is chronicled in a new book, "Pictorial History of the U.S. Air Force" by Dale Dye. Many Over half of the book is devoted to a pictorial section. The informatively captioned photographs show the Air Force at every stage of its development and narrative form relates count of the often colorful men and events.

A play review

Springer's 'South Pacific' is a visual delight

By BILL Spaniel

The Springer Theatre's production of "South Pacific" is a visual delight. From the opening set of a stately plantation terrace with its eyes on the actors, this production is a stunning display of tropical majestic palms and pastel-colored flowers, James Ohmee's design dominates the stage. No need here to strain the imagination to while the actors, singing and dancing occasionally "sit" during the set, they don't do so for long and rest upon.

And it is fortunate that this is so, too. For the eye needs something to rest upon during much of the show. While the theatergoer would rather focus his eyes on the actors, this production is nonetheless a feast for the eyes. It takes us back to the cool greens of the tropical jungle and the hauntingness of the distant island of Bali Ha'i. For instance, Evening," "There is Nothing Like a Dame," "Bali Ha'i" among them).

The play tell the story of two love affairs which overcome prejudice during World War II — a little dated for today, perhaps, but still effective enough the premise of the show.

So here we are with great songs and a strong book and yet the two things we notice most are the gorgeous set and an unbelievable cast of actors. It is not that everyone is nervous on the stage, it is just that most of the cast lacks stage presence. (When Chuck Passanden came out in the

For in "South Pacific" the Springer brings to Columbus one of the richest musicals ever created for the American stage. The score is chock-full of memorable songs by Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II and Josh Logan's direction and standards ("Some Enchanted effect upon the audience. And this is unfortunate, for in "South Pacific" the Springer would have a hit on its hands.

minor role of Commander William Harbison. It was like a breath of fresh air. He seemed like the only one on stage with any confidence about himself.)

A lot of this "awkwardness" has to do with stage movement and business. Way must Joan Stumhofer as Ensign Nellie Forbush and Samuel Timberlake as Emile de Becque make large, sweeping movements about the stage doing just too many things with glasses and a purse during the intimate "Soliloquies"? (Granted, they're not singing to each other but they're not singing apart either.) Why must Phil Courington as Lt. Joseph Cable drop his travel bag upstage center, then move to upstage right to sing "Bali Ha'i," go back to pick up his bag and then move off at upstage left? Just too much moving.

Timberlake has a strong, operatic voice worthy of "Some Enchanted Evening" and "This Nearly was Mine" but we just don't feel that he feels what he's singing about.

Miss Stumhofer shines with the exuberance of Nellie but she can't quite project Nellie's disturbing side. When she rejects Emile because he was once married to a Polynesian, she is not convincing. If she doesn't reach the upper notes of "I'm in Love with a Wonderful Guy," it doesn't matter as we get the complete message from her ear-to-ear grin.

In the supporting cast, Alice Anderson mixes a good Bloody Mary — just the right amount of Tobasco when she forces Cable to make a decision to stick to this Philadelphia upbringing or marry her daughter Liat (Allison Biggers). And, of course, her spirits drug the audience when she renders "Bali Ha'i" (Though the lighting is a great assist).

Probably the best overall characterization is Courington's Cable. He sings well ("Younger than Springtime") and has the audience moved when, because of his background, he must reject Liat in spite of his love for her.

The highlight of the show is the production of "There is Nothing Like a Dame," which features a human "wave." The voices in the male chorus are strong and when the boys are not singing, they do some good comedy bits.

Two scenes later the girls have a chance to match the boys when they help Nellie to "Wash that Man Right out of My Hair," — their brightly colored towels swinging in the air.

Beneficiaries need certificates

DENVER — With a new fiscal year just beginning beneficiaries of the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services (CHAMPUS) must obtain their new annual outpatient deductible certificates before the government can share in the payment for outpatient health care received in the new fiscal year.

Under the CHAMPUS cost-sharing concept, the deductible must be met by the beneficiary each fiscal year (July 1 - June 30) before the government can begin paying its share of the cost for outpatient care.

Under the outpatient portion of CHAMPUS services of physicians and other authorized health care personnel as well as the cost of prescription legend drugs and insulin are covered.

Annual deductible certificates are issued by the various CHAMPUS fiscal agents in each of the states, Washington, D. C., Canada and Mexico, upon receiving itemized bills or receipts for authorized health care and services.

'Funny walk' clue in smuggling attempt

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — U. S. Treasury Special Agents of Customs are narrowing down the possible hiding places smugglers are using in their drug traffic.

Among the recent unusual smuggling attempts that agents have uncovered was the arrest of a smuggler "who walked funny."

A Customs Port Investigator noticed the peculiar gait of a passenger at the Miami, Fla. Air Terminal. A search disclosed 263 grams of marijuana between his legs and 64 grams of cocaine in his shoes.

The metal detector machine used to discover hidden arms at the Los Angeles Airport signaled as a smuggler started through. The beeping sound panicked the smuggler who ran into an airline employe. The clasps on the smuggler's boots alerted the machine and a U. S. marshal on duty at the check-point shouted to the airline employe to "get his boots." No guns were found but the boots did contain a fortune in marijuana and heroin.

Agents in New York seized 558 bottles of phenylbotozone, a pain-killer for horses and other large animals, hidden in a hearse carrying two bodies being returned from Canada.

By John Davis

Famed showman P. T. Barnum was the first notable to elaborate on the subject, saying something about one being born every minute.

The subject, to put it in terms that a gentleman would understand, concerned the naive and gullible. And although the year was 1907, Barnum's rather astute observation of human behavior holds true even today.

For example, consider Monday night in Houston. Hundreds will pay $75 for ringside seats to view an overweight Muhammad Ali, who admittedly is unenthusiastic about the whole thing, battle his ex-sparring partner who at best is hardly a match for even a puffy, unenthusiastic Ali.

Jimmy Ellis, a rangy 28 year old will provide the opposition for the former world champ in the air conditioned comfort of Houston's Astrodome. Ali used to box the Louisville, Kentucky native for practice when he was still known as Cassius Clay.

Those were much happier days for Ali as he intimidated, harrassed and thoroughly defeated any who dared to challenge his heavyweight boxing supremacy. Taunting his opponents with poetic threats outside the ring, the gifted slugger had a way of backing up his words once the fight began.

At 210 pounds the lightning fast champ possessed unbelievable speed and quickness for a man his size. Never before had there been a heavyweight fighter as fast afoot as Ali.

The cocky, arrogant young boxer has never suffered from a lack of self confidence. The man who could "float like a butterfly and sting like a bee" simply had no pugilistic peers as he mowed down all comers in a methodical, almost boring fashion.

Fight fans either loved or despised Ali, and those who despised him would pay the price of admission only in hopes of seeing him brought to his not so humble knees.

Those who loved and admired Ali never doubted that he would win. Similiar to Green Bay Packer and New York Yankees fans of another era, the final margin of their hero's victory was the only uncertainty that his backers harbored.

Ali had defeated 24 opponents in a row before disaster struck in 1967. After refusing induction into the Armed Forces, he was stripped of his title by the World Boxing Association and his fortunes hit rock bottom.

While his case was winding its way through the lengthy courts system, Ali was prohibited from boxing and his license revoked.

Then in 1970 while his case was awaiting review by the U. S. Supreme Court, the dethroned champ was finally able to obtain a permit to box Jerry Quarry in Atlanta.

Ali handled the outclassed Quarry with comparative ease, but in doing so revealed that his long lay-off had badly dulled his boxing skills. His next win also came in Atlanta, this time at the expense of Argentinian Oscar Bonavena. The South America strongman pushed Ali to the hilt however, and provided the somewhat stunned Ali with the biggest challenge of his professional career.

His two victories, as unimpressive they might have been, still earned him a chance to regain his top spot in a March bout with Joe Frazier at Madison Square Garden. In what was at least the 10th contest in the past 300 years to be billed as "The fight of the century," Frazier outpointed the slower, sluggish Ali in a brutal 15 round bout to gain undisputed control of the world's heavyweight crown.

As a matter of fact, that setback is the only reason Ali is even bothering with Ellis Monday night. At 29, Ali desperately wants another shot at Frazier's crown and the only way he can earn the right is to whip Ellis.

Ellis, too, has visions getting a crack at the champ and a victory over Ali would ensure him the opportunity. Although he has been bested only four times in his career, the lanky, fourth ranked contender has a habit of losing the money bouts.

While Ellis may indeed be ready this time, as he has often declared, Ali is having a difficult time getting prepared for the contest. Only a week before show time he was six pounds over his 212 fighting weight. Twelve pounds lighter and three years younger, Ellis hopes to wear down the unenthusized Ali.

And for this the fight buffs are paying $75 for ringside seats. You may rest assured that wherever old P. T. Barnum is today, he is marveling at how little people have changed in 64 years.

TSB, H.Q. Cmd. split fast-pitch doubleheader

THE PITCHER, BRENT MINSTER BUNTS IN FIRST GAME ACTION

The School Brigade (TSB) and Headquarters Command (Hq. Cmd.) split a double header July 12 in USAIC brigade level fast-pitch action. TSB captured the first game 6-0 and H.Q. Cmd. took the second game 3-2. TSB won the first game on the pitching of Brent Minster and the hitting of Tom Klein, Donnie Townsend, and Louis Santos. Four of TSB's six runs came in the third inning of the first game when Kline belted a home run over the right center field fence with two TSB runners on base. Following the home run, Townsend doubled and then scored on a single by Santos. The final two runs came in the fifth inning when Dave Klevan and Townsend each singled and then were knocked in on a Santos double.

Headquarters Command bounced back handing the league leading TSB their first defeat of the second half play and only their third of the season. H.Q. Cmd. scored first in the first inning when Pope singled and then was driven in on a single by Hurtsook. Hurtsook then scored on a single by Willis.

TSB scored in the bottom-half of the first, when Minster doubled and was then driven in on a triple by Pat Chambless. TSB's second score came in the third inning when Chambless scored on a Krantz single. The game remained deadlocked 2-2 until the 11th inning when HQ Command scored on a triple making the final score 3-2.

Col. Jere O. Whittington, chief of the Management and Budget Department of the Infantry School has been appointed president of the Rod and Gun Club. He succeeds Lt. Col. Charles Rock, Supply Division, Directorate of Industrial Operations who put in a lot of long and productive hours for the club during his two year tenure.

The club also has a newly elected board of governors. Members who will make up the board for the coming year and the units they represent are: Maj. Robert H. Kelley Jr. and Capt. Paul A. Jones, 197th Infantry Brigade; Capt. John H. Barr and 1st Sgt. Henry A. Ferris, The School Brigade; Sgt. Maj. Albert M. Kane and Capt. Arthur N. Zieske Headquarters Command; Bill Kloeb, Norman McCullough and Mike Brickner will represent post civilian workers and retired personnel; SFC John Bright, Aviation Command; Maj. Kenneth Kaplan the USAIC Staff; Lt. Col. John A. Smith, Medical Department Activities and 1st Sgt. Grover C. West, Jr., 931st Engineer Group.

Col. Whittington has announced that the first meeting of the new board will be held in the Rod and Gun Club conference room at 9 a.m. on July 29.

King's Pond Crappies

I've had quite a bit of static during the past week about a statement in this column last week. Several fishermen have informed me that I was wrong when I said there are no crappie in the post ponds. They say there are crappie in King's Pond and have offered to take me out to catch some. When fishermen are this sure of themselves they must know what they are talking about.

I rechecked with Roy Johnson, chief of the post fish and wild life unit to make sure I hadn't misunderstood him. He repeated that crappie had never been legally stocked in the post ponds. He is of the opinion that the crappie were introduced at King's by individuals several years ago. According to Roy introduction of new species of fish without approval of the Fish and Game unit is illegal and is a punishable offense. At any rate the crappie are there without permission and the fish and game people would like to get rid of them before they upset the fish population of the pond.

Fishermen who would like to contribute to this elimination should fish along the retaining wall near the overflow at the lower part of the pond. Use tuffies or small shiners and fish at a depth of about twelve feet. If enough fishermen are interested, the Rod and Gun Club could add crappies to the species already included in the monthly fishing derby. A prize could be awarded for the most fish and the heaviest stringer of fish. I'll bring up the subject at the Board of Governors meeting on July 29. Let your represenatives know how you feel about it.

AAU judo results are in

The Fort Benning Judo Club sponsored an AAU Judo Tournament July 10. The meet found competitors from Alabama, Georgia and Florida vying for medals at Briant Wells Field House.

Those participating included judo teams from Eglin Air Force Base, Panama City, Auburn University and Florida State University as well as the Fort Rucker Judo Club, the Atlanta Black Belt School of Judo, and teams from YMCAs of Atlanta, Columbus and Huntsville.

Junior division competition was dominated by Fort Benning's youthful grapplers under the leadership and guidance of Lt. Col. C. T. Keaton. Team members of the Fort Benning Club won first place in 6 of 10 categories, taking a total of 21 and the 30 medals offered.

After weighing in contestants were grouped on an age and weight basis for competition. First place winners included David Doty, William Doty, Deleand Lawhorn, Marion Lawhorn, Earl Richmond and Charles Rogers of Fort Benning; Michael O'Reilly of the Huntsville Judo Club; Billy Fox, Clarence Fox and William Shriver of Ft. Rucker.

Second place silver medal winners included Jeffrey Dean, Leland D. Medina, Nathan D. Medina, Robert Mickle, Eddie Motes and Michael Terry of Fort Benning; Daniel Malady and Dennis Utz of Ft. Rucker; Paul Chrystal of the Atlanta YMCA; and Earnest Green of FSU.

Bronze medal winners included Oliver Carrero, Jesse Chewning, Criss Chrestman, Leonard Crain, Donald Ehresman, Kennah Fairfax and Michael Sutcliff of Fort Benning; Jon Jon Ross of FSU; and Mike Maledy of the Ft. Rucker Judo Club.

In the senior division, brown belt competition saw Steven Stokes of Auburn University taking first with Lt. Col. James Tucker of Fort Benning, second and Edsel W. Poole of FSU, third.

White belt competition was dominated by Florida State with team members taking all three places. Winners from FSU included Terry Shetler, first, Daniel Brough, second and Greg L. Fish, third.

GI Bill aids soldiers still in service

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Many soldiers are eligible to take advantage of GI Bill educational benefits even while they're in the Army.

Among the various Veterans Administration (VA) scholastic benefits available to active-duty service personnel are little-known entitleents which can be extremely helpful to high school "dropouts" and to other individuals desiring to further their educations. One is:

—The Predischarge Education Program (PREP). This program helps active duty members earn high school diplomas or prepare themselves for higher education or vocational training. It pays up to $175 monthly to cover the costs of tuition, fees, textbooks and supplies.

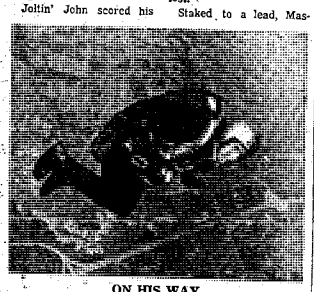
931st Engr. Gp. softballers sweep games, shutout Aviation Command twice, 6-0, 3-0

Flawless pitching by Art Mascarinas and "Joltin" John Jarvis led the 931st Engineer Group fast pitch softball team to a sweep of a double-header over rapidly improving Aviation Command July 13 at Essenbagger Field. In the first contest, Jarvis, spinning a four hitter, shutout Avn. Cmd. 6-0 and in the second game Mascarinas also tossed a shutout, winning 3-0.

Joltin' John scored his 11th win of the season and Mascarinas, a new addition to the Engineer mound staff, scored his first victory as a starter.

The 931st batsmen struck early in the night-cap to establish a 3-0 lead in the first inning. Consecutive singles by Sonny DeLaPaz, Dave "Wicked" Wilson, Dennis Moore and Randy Hiatt accounted for all the scoring in the contest.



Staked to a lead, Mascarinas, fooling almost every batter with his sweeping curve ball, sailed to the victory. He allowed only two hits and no man got as far as second base during the game.

In the first game of the night, the Engineers struck hard in the second inning to establish a lead that they would never relinquish.

The big inning started as "Wicked" Wilson walked. Singles by Dennis Moore and Hiatt and a sacrifice by Jim Proto came before a booming triple to deep center field by winning pitcher Jarvis that run the score to 4-0.

The Engineers added insurance runs in the seventh inning as Hiatt reached first on a walk, sped to third on a passed ball and scored when the catcher unleashed an errant throw to the man covering third. Jarvis was then issued a walk before Dave McHenry slashed a triple that scored "Joltin'" John to increase the margin of victory to 6-0.

The sweep of the series evened the Engineers league mark at 4-4, leaving them tied for third place with Headquarters Command.

Army parachutists dominate jumping

TAHLEQUAH, Okla. (ANF) — Sgt. Clay Schoelpple of the U.S. Army Parachute Team, the Golden Knights, won the United States National Parachuting Championship for the second year in a row at the recently-completed National Parachuting Championships in Tahlequah, Okla.

The 12-man U.S. Army Parachute Team dominated the competition throughout the week-long meet, which tests freefall parachuting skills of accuracy and style.

In the accuracy portion of the contest jumpers attempt to land on four-inch circular disks after jumping from 2,500 feet. The style competition is a race against the clock as jumpers attempt to complete a set series of turns and back-loops while in freefall in the shortest possible time.

Another Golden Knight, Sgt. Stan Hicks, of Salina, N.C., leading the field of 200 skydivers for most of the competition, captured third place.

Army Golden Knight Sgt. Grady Steensaud, using the revolutionary new Paraplane parachute, tied a meet accuracy record with seven out of ten dead center hits. In all, Army jumpers clinched three of the top four places in the accuracy contest.

SFC Don Strickland, a former Golden Knight now stationed in West Germany with 7th Army Parachute Team, took first place in the event. Capt. Chris Needles, commanding officer of the U.S. Army Parachute Team, took third place in accuracy and finished eighth in the overall championship competition. Sgt. Chuck Collingwood finished fourth.

Prepare for international orienteering meet

20 from Benning compete in Army

Twenty soldiers who will represent Fort Benning in the All-Army Orienteering Championships are at Ft. Belvoir, Va. preparing for the event which will be held at that post July 30-31.

Part of the preparation includes informal meets against teams from The Army Special Forces, the U. S. Marines and a team made up of orienteerers from the Canadian Royal Marines.

The all-Army meet will be the second phase of a program to select the best orienteerers in the military services to represent the nation in the Conseil Internationale du Sports Militare (CISM) championships to be held at Oslo, Norway during the last week of August.

The ten Army men who turn in the best scores during the all-Army championships will compete in an Inter-Service meet at Quantico Marine Base, Va. to determine the seven orienteerers who will represent the United States in the CISM Championships where ten nations will be represented in the competition which is also known as the Military Olympic Games. Norway, Belgium, Finland, Denmark, France, Luxemburg, Brazil and Switzerland have announced that they will have teams at the competition.

The 20 orienteerers who represent Fort Benning were selected during the Fort Benning Orienteering Championships held in the Harmony Church area last month. Pvt. Donald Kennedy, Headquarters Command was the winner of this championship and Capt. Rick Fagerstein, Infantry Officer Advanced Course 4-71 took the runner up position. There was a considerable difference between the times posted by Kennedy and Fagerstein and the other 18 orienteerers who make up the Benning team but according to Lt. Col. James Anderson, Patrol Committee of the Ranger Department, team members have improved in the short training period after the Benning championships. He feels that the team has a good chance to provide a successful challenge to the Special Forces and Marine personnel who have dominated previous competitions and place several members on the United States team that will compete in the CISM Championships in Norway.

While the 20 orienteerers who came out on top in the June championships are away competing at all-Army, interservice and international competition, Anderson, who coordinates orienteering activities on the post, is proceeding with plans to enlarge local interest in the sport. Post personnel will have a chance to compete for places on teams which will compete in college sponsored and Canadian competitions later in the fall of this year.

The Explorer Scouts on post have also shown an interest in the sport. Plans are underway to include a program for these young people. Training for the scouts and tryouts to determine orienteerers to represent the post will feature local contests similar to the one held here in June. The first of these meets will be held during the first week in October.

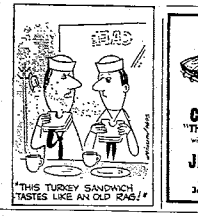
Orienteering has been slow to gain popularity in this country but in the past few years the Army and the Marines have become more and more interested in the sport as an integrated part of land navigation training. This summer a 15-hour block of orienteering instruction is replacing the land navigation training taken by Reserve Officer Training Corps Cadets on Summer Camp at Ft. Riley, Kan. Other camp commanders have been authorized to make the substitution if they desire.

Sp5 signs with Expos as pitcher prospect

FT. HOOD, Tex. (ANF) — A pitcher with Ft. Hood's nondivisional baseball team has signed a bonus contract with the Montreal Expos.

Drafted in the primary phase of baseball's free agent draft, Sp5 Dave Carey will be sent to the Expos' Class A West Palm Beach ball club in the Florida State League if discharged with an early out August 1.

Carey has been the top pitcher in the Ft. Hood-Killeen Baseball League for the past two years and is presently 5-0 with a below-1.00 ERA, averaging almost two strikeouts per inning.



Carey said he should be able to get several starts in West Palm Beach before the season ends, and then he will go into the Florida Instructional League, training ground of future major leaguers.

From the instructional league he plans to travel to Venezuela for winter ball and then back to West Palm Beach for spring training and an opportunity to break into the major leagues.

Before entering the Army Carey pitched in the Basin League, a summer collegiate all-star league, and was voted the league's most valuable pitcher.

Carey's younger brother, Dan, plays for the New York Mets' farm team at Pompano Beach, Fla.

Doughboys shellack Redstone

The Fort Benning Doughboys continued their winning ways in the Western Division of the 3rd Army Softball league by winning two games from the Redstone Arsenal team last weekend. Benning won the Friday game by a score of 5 to 1 then won the Saturday game 9 to 3.

The Doughboys continue to lead the Western Division with a 13 won, 1 lost record. They are one game ahead of the team from Ft. McClellan, Ala. McClellan has a record of 12 wins and 2 losses. Benning meets McClellan in a two game series on the last weekend of this month. This series should just about decide the Western division championship if both teams take wins over opponents this weekend.

The Doughboys will play a team from Ft. Campbell for two games at Gowdy Field this weekend. The first game will be played today at 7 p.m. and the second on Saturday at 1 p.m.

General commends ACS on anniversary

On 25 July 1971, the Army Community Service Program celebrates its sixth year of providing invaluable social welfare and family services to members of Army communities located throughout the world. Although the program is relatively young, it has had major impact on improving Army life for our personnel and their families.

On this anniversary, I wish to congratulate and express my sincere appreciation to the volunteers of our Fort Benning Army Community Service who have given so unselfishly of their time and assisted the assigned military staff in every possible way. During this past year, you have significantly expanded your program and established new services. Some of these, such as the United States Army Infantry Center Welcome Center, have been in connection with our efforts to carry out the objectives of the Modern Volunteer Army Program.

On this sixth anniversary of Army Community Service, I congratulate each of the volunteers and the military staff on a job well done and challenge each individual to do an even better job in the year ahead.

YAC honors 2 teachers for swimming instruction

First Lt. Robert O'Keefe and Mrs. Mary Ann Miller were presented awards by the Fort Benning Youth Activities Council for their services as water safety instructors. The awards were presented by Benjamin Ranieri, director of youth activities, and Willie Dunham, sports and athletics director of YAC, in ceremonies July 19.

Both instructors received a plaque commending them for "services rendered to YAC." O'Keefe and Mrs. Miller taught a three-week water safety instructor course which certified 19 teenagers and servicemen as lifeguards and swimming instructors. Many of these students are teaching in the YAC swimming program, which offers swimming lessons to as many as 180 children a day.

In making the presentation, Ranieri thanked the two instructors for their "tremendous service to the Youth Activities program. Without them our current swimming program would not have been possible."

O'Keefe is assigned to 42nd Co., 4th Stu. Bn., TSB. Mrs. Miller is the wife of Maj. John Miller, chief of services, directorate of industrial operations.

EM force-outs are offered 6-month drop

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Enlisted men who must leave the service under the Qualitive Management Program can now receive up to a six-month early out if they so desire.

EM being released from active duty under the up-or-out policy can request the early separation in spite of any existing service obligation and regardless of the normal length of an overseas tour.

However, personnel granted an early release will not be eligible for transition training, will lose unearned portions of regular and variable reenlistment bonuses and will not be permitted to reenlist at a later date.

Social security card eases job interviews

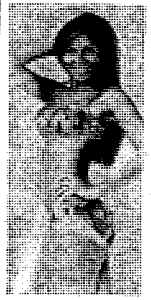
Robert E. O'Neal, manager of the Columbus Social Security office, says each job seeker will be one step ahead if he has a social security card at the time of the job interview.

The employer must have the social security number before he can make a correct report of wages for tax purposes. O'Neal stated further that many employers will not hire a new employe until they show their social security card and still other employers will not release the first pay check until the social security number is on the record. Employers are held responsible for the proper wage reporting for Social Security so they must have the correct social security number.

O'Neal cautioned students that having their social security number available could make the difference in whether the job goes to them or some other person. He also reminded them that as it takes a few days to assign a number, they shouldn't wait until they go job hunting to apply for a card.

Students can apply for their social security number at 301-15th St. in Columbus or telephone 324-5461 to request an application.

D. Palmer IOBC 23's top student



2nd Lt. David G. Palmer, Pittsburgh, Pa., was the distinguished graduate of the Infantry Officer Basic Course (IOBC) Class 23-71 which graduated in ceremonies July 13 at Marshall Auditorium, Infantry Hall.

Col. Robert D. Sweeney, director, Communications and Electronics Department, USAIS, delivered the commencement address to the 186 graduates.

Palmer is a graduate of the University of Pittsburg with a bachelor of science degree in biology. He received his commission in the Infantry.

Included in the course of instruction were small arms, mortar, company and platoon operations.

Soldiers

for Gen. de Gaulle, on his white horse.

Today these pressures are beginning to be felt on the American scene. For ten years we have embroiled our armed forces in the wretched paddies of Indochina. Our valiant airmen have been killed in futile sorties against the north; our Army has lost far more than the normal percentage of its professional officer corps. Yet, though there have been ample courage and devotion, Vietnam is now associated in the public mind not with heroes but heroin. We scorn our soldiers for being careless of civilian lives, overlooking the brutalizing character of colonial wars — while we condemn our Air Force because bombs strike whoever happens to be under them, refusing to recognize that the alternative to sophisticated weapons is more American boys dying in the jungle. Meanwhile we are assaulted by the scribblings of junior Clausewitzes designed to prove that the conflict could have been won long ago if only their patented recipes had been followed.

Fatal Error

No wonder our soldiers are demoralized as we speed our withdrawal from Vietnam. How could they be otherwise, since the fatal error was the choice of mission, not its execution; and what the McNamara documents plainly show is that the military did not push us into Vietnam half so much as the civilian theoreticians with these to prove — doctrines of counter-insurgency and guerrilla tactics all reeking of the lamp!

Thus, we had better stop carping at the soldiers if we are to learn the true lessons of this ghastly experience. We had better be sure that, as a necessary and tolerable element in our society, they are not pushed toward alienation or bitterness. Otherwise, though we are unlikely to repeat the shattering consitutional crisis of France, we may well drive our most gifted and competent officers out of our armed forces — men we shall desperately need when the going again gets rough.

As an urgent first step, let the universities tone down their derision; since, at the end of the day, the real "reason of the intellectuals" may well be judged not to be what Julien Benda had in mind — their abandonment of meditation for activism — but rather their role in undermining society's protective institutions. Part of the blame will no doubt fall on the young faculty cheerleaders who encouraged the campus yahoos to identify all policemen as "pigs," but the most grievous offense will be the academicians' effort to off-load the sins of this melancholy time on the military, who, skilled more with the sword than the pen, cannot adequately defend themselves against eggheaded "franes-tireurs" blowing beanshooters from the sanctuary of their ivory towers.

Horseless farming

Horseless power is greater than ever down on the American farm. There are more than three million trucks today on less than three million farms.

Army Secretary to visit Benning

ROBERT F. FROEHLKE

Secretary of the Army Robert F. Froehlke will arrive at Fort Benning Tuesday for a two-day orientation visit — his first since being named the new secretary of the Army.

A member of the Infantry OCS Hall of Fame, Froehlke was just recently confirmed for the top Army post after nomination by President Richard M. Nixon.

The secretary is scheduled to arrive at Lawson Army Airfield at 9:10 a.m. Tuesday. All post personnel are urged to fly their flags during the secretary's y's visit.

While at Fort Benning, the secretary will observe training at the Leaders Reaction Course, and ROTC Airborne Students training at Eubanks Field. He will attend briefings concerning the Fort Benning VOLAR Program, Race Relations and the Infantry Museum.

He will visit the Benning House, Officer Candidate Hall of Fame at Wigle Hall and the 197th Infantry Brigade at Kelly Hill.

Discussions with company and field grade officers are also on the agenda.

Froehlke is a veteran of World War II where he served in the Infantry in the European theater of operations. He enlisted in June 1943 and received his honorable discharge as a captain in September 1946.

A graduate of the University of Wisconsin Law School, Froehlke was named assistant secretary of defense in January 1969. At the time of his nomination, Froehlke was chairman of the board of Sentry Indemnity Company, president of Sentry Life Insurance Company of New York, executing vice president of Sentry Life Insurance Company of Wisconsin and vice president of all the other companies in the Sentry Insurance group. He was a member of the board of directors of the various companies comprising Sentry Insurance.

He was sworn in as Secretary of the Army on July 1 by Secretary Laird.

Gen. Carley is promoted; departs for MACV Hq.

Maj. Gen. John T. Carley, assistant commandant of the Infantry School, received his second star Wednesday as he officially departed Fort Benning e nroute to a new assignment in the Republic of Vietnam.

An honors ceremony was held Wednesday on York Field, followed by a receptinn at the Fort Benning Main Officers Open Mess.

Gen., Carley, who also received the Legion of Merit, will become director of operations, Military Assistance Command-Vietnam.

Before being named assistant commandant, Gen. Carley served as director of instruction for the Infantry School. He arrived at Fort Benning in September of 1969.

The general also has served at Fort Benning on other occasions. In 1945, he attended the Infantry Officer Basic Course, and was an instructor here with the Staff Department from September 1951, until September, 1952,

Partitions rise as deadline nears for additions

The 43rd Engr. Bn., 93lst Engr. Gp., is installing partitions in enlisted men's barracks at Fort Benning to meet the Aug. 12 deadline.

Extra night crews of carpenters have been added to the project to complete the partitions on time.

The battalion has almost 450 engineers working on the project, which has been the 43rd's major objective for the past few weeks.

The partitions are being constructed to give soldiers more privacy in the barracks by providing semi-private quarters in the place of open bays. The semi-private rooms are being provided under the Modern Volunteer Army (VOLAR) changes at Fort Benning, and the 43rd is handling the construction.

As of last week the partition project was almost 70 per cent complete.

2 post copter crews on hand at Apollo 15 launch

By La Don Bryan

CAPE KENNEDY — When the Apollo 15 astronauts blasted off Monday on a 12-day space flight to the moon and back, two Fort Benning helicopter crews were on hand to add to the safety of their mission.

The two crews, made up of a three-man primary crew and a similar sized backup crew, were in position at a site approximately seven miles away when the Saturn V rocket lifted off from Launch Pad 39-A on its near perfect mission.

The crews included Capt. John D. Siara, aircraft commander, CW2 Alvyn G. Chapman, CW2 Dale L. Dilts and CW2 Alan Miller, all pilots, and Spec Gary V. Werner and Lyan B. Brown, crew chiefs, all of the 197th Aviation Co.

This was the second Apollo mission for Siara, Dilts and Brown. They all participated in the launch of Apollo 14 earlier this year.

The two 197th Avn. crews left Lawson Army Airfield last Saturday aboard a UH-1H for Cape Kennedy following a request from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) for helicopter medical support.

The crews and helicopter were attached to the occupational Health Agency at Cape Kennedy for use in any emergency situation. The six Fort Benning personnel were on call to airlift any of the million spectators or NASA personnel that could not be handled by the 17 ambulances stationed throughout the area.

The helicopter was put into use for several hours until the traffic congestion in the area cleared.

Most of the day Sunday was taken up with the two crews making reconnaissance flights over the launch area familiarizing themselves with the medical facilities available in the military and civilian communities and

Two scout dog handlers re-enlist together

By Bob Wise

Two 197th Infantry Brigade scout dog handlers, together since AIT, re-enlisted together July 8. Sgts. James B. Foster Jr., and Donald M. Ackley each received a $10,000 variable re-enlistment bonuses when they re-enlisted for their present duty assignments in the 51st Infantry Platoon Scout Dogs (IPSD), 1st Bn., 29th Infantry.

Foster and Ackley have been in the 51st IPSD since January after returning on the same day from an 18-month tour of duty with the 46th Scout Dog Company, 25th Infantry Division in Vietnam.

The two men first met at Ft. McClellan, Ala. when they were in the same AIT company. After graduating from AIT in December 1968, Foster and Ackley attended Scout Dog training at Fort Benning until that next April. For the next 18 months they served together in the same company in Vietnam.

Both men were sworn in for six more years of Army service by 1st Bn., 29th Inf. Commander Lt. Col. Robert W. Faulkender.

Ackley said he re-enlisted so that he could buy a new home and enjoy the pay and the benefits the Army has to offer "I really don't have a job waiting for me on the 'outside' and I can get nearly anything I want right here in the Army," said the Flint, Mich., native.

Foster, from North Wilkesboro, N. C., said he re-enlisted for the security and pay the Army now offers and that it would give him a chance to travel a little bit. Both agreed that the recent changes in the Army influenced their decisions the most. They said they would not have considered re-enlisting before "VOLAR."

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

For an outdoor buffet bar, freeze bottles of cocktail mix in tall juice cans half-filled with water. Later, slip ice-coated bottles out, and provide colorful potholder mitts for guests to pour their own drinks.

Teens will enjoy this barbecue idea: on skewers, thread balogna cubes, green tomato pickles and cocktail onions. Brush with barbecue sauce before grilling.

Jambaloya, the delicious Creole dish, got its nome from the French "jamb" for ham and the African "ya" for rice, its two main ingredients. Needless to say, the "a lo" in the middle is French too.

The second wife of Louis XIV rocked the culinary boat by founding a cooking school for women. Until then, men thought of cooking as a strictly masculine art.

Byline Bayonet

(Byline Bayonet welcomes questions of general interest about Fort Benning and the Army. Within space limitations all reasonable questions will be answered. Questions of a purely military nature which obviously could be answered more properly by commanders or supervisors within the chain of command will not be accepted. All questions must be signed with current unit of assignment indicated. Send questions to the Bayonet, ATTN: SFC Bob Edwards, Room 602, Infantry Hall or telephone 545-4792.)

Q — The savings and loan institution which gave me my GI home loan notified me recently that the interest rate on my balance would be raised because of the rising cost of money. Is this legal?

A — No. Veterans Administration (VA) regulations do not permit interest rates to be increased above the contract rate agreed upon at the time the loan was made.

Q — In 1967, while in service, I injured my leg whilt on approved leave, and lost it above the knee. Even though the accident was adjudged in line of duty, I was denied the $2,800 grant toward the cost of a car. Why?

A — The automobile grant is available to veterans of World War II and the Korean Conflict discharged under other than dishonorable conditions, even if the disability is not incurred in performance of duty. For veterans with qualifying disabilities incurred after Jan. 31, 1955, the disability must have resulted directly from performance of active duty, unless application for the grant is filed before release from active duty.

Q — I understand that the VA, among other federal agencies, is giving priority in consideration for jobs to returning Vietnam veterans. Is this true?....

A — Yes. During May, VA hired 1,000 Vietnam era veterans under the Veterans Readjustment Appointment Authority, (VRA). This brought the number to 2,330 of Vietnam era veterans employed by VA under this special program. As of July, 6,400 Vietnam era veterans were on VA rolls, including the 2,330 in the VRA program.

Q — What about my older E and H Bonds? Will they also pay more, or should I cash them in and buy new bonds?

A — Older E and H Bonds also have had their yields improved, so there would be no advantage in redeeming your present holdings to buy new bonds.

Q — Is there any limit on the amount of Savings Bonds one may buy?

A — Yes, the annual limit of Series E Bonds is $5,000, issue price; the yearly limit on Series H Bonds is $5,000, face amount.

Q—Does a man who is killed while in an AWOL-deserter status receive any entitlements or benefits from the Army with respect to burial expenses?

A—An individual in an AWOL-deserter status at time of death is not entitled or eligible for burial benefits. Reference is Title 10, Chapter 76, Section 1481, U.S. Code.

The judge says

Right buy makes good investment

(EDITORS NOTE: This is the first of a series of articles dealing with purchase and sale of a house.)

USAIC LEGAL ASSISTANCE OFFICE The purchase of a house is generally the largest purchase that an average American will make in his lifetime. The purchase of a house is an exciting experience for the new buyer because it often represents the achievement of a lifelong ambition, as well as the reality of dreams. However, it is also a very complex and confusing transaction for the unknowing and unwary individual who is buying his first home. As a result of the shortage of inadequacy of government housing at many posts today, more and more servicemen are buying their own homes. Furthermore, the purchase of a house may also serve as a short term investment if carefully selected.

It shall be our endeavor to bring to the reader's attention some of the more important aspects of such a purchase.

The following are some of the more frequently used terms, and their definitions, which surround a real estate transaction:

Equity — the interest which the owner has in his property.

Deed — A document representing the title or ownership of the property.

Mortgage — an instrument whereby the title to the property is conveyed to the lender to secure the payment of the loan.

Mortgagee — the buyer of the property who gives the mortgage.

Mortgager — the holder of the mortgage to whom the debt is owed.

Title search — the examination by an attorney of the records of the county wherein the property is located to determine if the seller has good legal title to the property and is able to sell on the terms that he has agreed on.

Closing — a meeting of the parties to the transaction, namely, the buyer, seller, and representative of the financing institution, at which time the terms of the sale are agreed upon and the final papers are signed.

When you decide to buy a house, you will want to consider several factors to help you determine whether you should buy a used home or a new one and what price range your budget will be able to afford. These factors include the down payment, monthly mortgage payments, insurance, state and local taxes, assessments, maintenance and repair costs. Bearing these items in mind, you will be better able to arrive at a figure which will not be a burden to you.

Once you have chosen the house you wish to buy and have discussed the terms of sale with the seller, the next stage in the transaction is the preparation of the contract. It is at this stage that you should consult an attorney prior to signing the real estate contract. You want him to examine the contract to be certain that the provisions it contains are in your best interest. The contract will normally state the description of the property, personal property included in the sale and warranty on such property, price of the sale, limitations on title, the nature of title to be conveyed, and miscellaneous provisions, such as risk of loss, closing costs, closing date, and possession date.

Sometime after the contract has been signed the closing will be held. This is the most significant stage in the purchase of your home. Your lawyer should be present at the closing to examine the papers and negotiate any final terms you wish to have included. Depending upon the State the transaction takes place in, you will sign a mortgage, bond, security deed, or deed of trust. If you are "taking over" the payments of the seller, the language will normally state that the buyer takes "subject to and assuming" the debt of the seller. This language renders the buyer personally liable to pay the note. In the event that he defaults in payment and the property is sold pursuant to a foreclosure, he would remain liable for any deficiency if the proceeds of the sale were not sufficient to pay off the note.

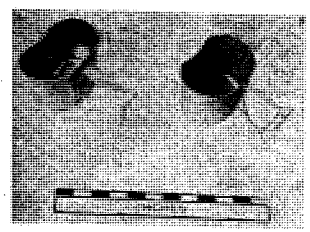
Your home represents a big investment — an investment you will want to protect. If you manage your affairs well, you and your family will be able to enjoy the use of your home through the years and eventually will own it free and clear of debt.

But what of the American dream?

In the early years of this republic, our people had wonderfully high hopes for the new nation. It was to be a model for all mankind, a haven of liberty, reason and justice.

Today we are unrivaled in wealth and power. We have all the outward trappings of success. But what of the dream?

I don't think anyone would deny that we are uneasy in our affluence. The list of anxieties — racial strife, poverty in the midst of plenty, urban decay, crime — goes on and on.



For most of us today, life is comfortable. It is easy to suppose that we are safely insulated from the problems that beset this land. But they are irrevocably the problems of this generation and none of us can escape them. Our present problems affect the quality of life for everyone in this land, the comfortable and the uncomfortable. It won't be a decent life for any of us until it is for all of us.

Back of every great civilization, behind all of the power and wealth is something as powerful as it is substantial: a set of ideas, attitudes and convictions — and the confidence that those ideas and convictions are right. All Americans must establish, within their hearts and minds, a set of convictions and beliefs. These beliefs must advance the dreams of our forefathers — that every human, regardless of race, creed, or color, must be shown the dignity due him as a human, have the opportunity to advance to the limit of his potential, and be free from servitude to any other human being.

These are the ideas that can sustain and strengthen a great civilization. But we must be honest about them. We must live by them. And we must have the stamina to hold to our purpose through times of confusion and controversy. (AFPS Editorial by Col. Joseph G. Hutchison, USAF)

Infantry Board tests canteen cup

A four - month product improvement test of the one quart (experimental) canteen cup conducted by the Field Equipment Test Branch of the U.S. army Infantry Board was recently completed.

The test was designed to determine if the new canteen cup is superior to that of the standard canteen cup currently used by the individual soldier, according to Capt. Harold Crowe, test officer for the project.

Crowe explained that the experimental canteen cup was similar in design to the standard issue canteen cup but it was modified somewhat to overcome the shortcomings of the older canteen cup. "The test cup differs from the standard canteen cup in that it has a modified, two-part handle, no rivets joining the handle to the body of the cup, and the absence of a hemmed (rolled) edge," the captain said.

Crowe stated that the test cup underwent testing by the 197th Infantry Brigade at the Florida and Mountain Ranger Camps. 76 members of TOE rifle platoons carried and used the cup in normal field operations and the test cup was also studied in connection with airborne activities," Crowe said.

"Not only is the cost of production for the new cup less than that of the older model, but the handle is quieter and it allows for a more rigid grip," Crowe added. "The absence of rivets prevents surface contact with food, while the absence of a rolled edge makes the drinking surface cooler."

"Test troops," said Crowe, "overwhelmingly favored the test cup and no deficiencies or shortcomings were noted in the experiemental cup."

The Infantry Board, an infantry material testing activity, tests all weapons, equipment and vehicles designed for use by the infantry.

CSM Plass retires, receives Legion of Merit

The command sergeant major of the largest brigade in the Army ended a long and distinguished career July 29, after 32 years of service to his country. CSM Frank C. Plass of the 197th Infantry Brigade retired and received the Legion of Merit during ceremonies at Presidential Field on Kelley Hill. The ceremony was conducted by the brigade's non commissioned officers.

Attending the NCO Change-of-Command Review and retirement ceremonies were Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander, CSM Frank J. Bennett, of the Continental Army Command, and CSM John F. La Voie, of Fort Benning.

The 197th's new sergeant major is CSM James J. Gallagher Jr., of the 1st Bn., 58th Inf. Gallagher has been in the 197th Inf. Bde. since 1965, except for a year-long tour of duty in Vietnam.

After a pass-in-review of the entire brigade, members of Fort Benning's parachute team landed on Presidential Field and presented Plass with a parachutist's baton bearing an inscription from the Airborne Department to the retiring soldier. The parachutists formed mid-air designs while in free-fall above the reviewing field. The 283rd Army Band also performed.

AER fund raising drive seeks 100% support

A few years ago Simon and Garfunkel wrote a song that contained the words "When you're down and out . . . " To someone who has been there and back, the help he received will never go unappreciated.

The Army has its own helper, Army Emergency Relief (AER). AER's fund raising campaign is currently in progress and will continue until Sept. 10. AER is unlike many other "fund drives" in that its goal is 100 per cent participation rather than a set dollar amount.

The history of AER dates back to 1942 when it was organized to provide financial assistance to members of the Army and their dependents. Since its beginning AER has helped many people through various financial situations with which they were unable to cope and for which no funds were appropriated.

Who may apply for help? All members of the Army, both active and retired and members of their families, AER also assists eligible widows and orphans.

How is AER funded and supported? AER subsists solely from voluntary contributions from members of the Army, and makes no appeal for funds outside the Army.

To the soldier in need, AER is proof that the Army does, "take care of its own."

150 attend opening of post's new Mod Shop

Fort Benning's new Mod Shop is a down-to-earth idea. Soldiers kept asking for up-to-date, well made clothes at prices a draftee can afford, so that's what the Mod Shop is all about.

Approximately 150 people, mostly soldiers and kids, attended the ribbon cutting ceremony on July 14. The ribbon, which consisted of a giant green paisley shirt, was unzipped with the help of an orange polka-dot tie.

The Mod Shop is located in Building 1827, across from the Main Commissary parking lot. Hours of operation are the same as for the main exchange: Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday — 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Tuesday and Thursday — 10 a.m. to 8 p.m.; and Sunday 1 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Presiding over the ceremony were Col. James W. Haley, director of Personnel and Community Activities, Ken Thomas, manager of the Fort Benning Exchange. "The Reflections," a rock band from Columbus, provided the music for opening-day activities.

"This is a unique program with the Exchange system. There hasn't been anything quite like this before," explained Charles P. Guy, manager of the main post exchange. "The idea came through VOLAR from the troops here at Fort Benning and we followed it up."

The shop is set up in day-glo colors with posters, a juke box and racks of the latest clothes. Mirrors and silver wall decorations reflect mannequins dressed in leather vests, hot pants, and wild sports shirts.....

The stock includes a large selection of both men's and women's clothes. Some of the merchandise is supplied through the Exchange system, but the Mod Shop is able to make an independent selection through its own buyers.

"We have buyers who work out of Montgomery, Ala. We get clothes from New York, California, all over," O'Brien said.

Mrs. Dorothy DiLorenzo, manager of the Mod Shop, explained that the men's and women's departments concentrate on youth-oriented, colorful, top name-brand clothes.

The men's department includes bright sports shirts and mod slacks. In addition to dresses and pants suits, the women's section has ladies boots and a small boutique shop for such items as hot pants and knickers.

Presiding over the ceremony were Col. James W. "Strictly the young look," Mrs. DiLorenzo commented.

ROTC Rangers near end of training

By Wendell Cochran

EGLIN AFB, Fla. — Neither rain, nor heat, nor dark of night, nor electrical storms, nor lack of sleep prevents the Ranger student from his appointed rounds.

And the ROTC Rangers now taking the last phase of their training in the desolate pine woods and swamps of this sprawling air base are facing all those obstacles — and more.

The ROTC class is taking Ranger training in lieu of the regular ROTC summer camp.

Some 160 students remain in the class out of the 240 that began the course June 10.

Graduation for those students who successfully complete the course is scheduled for Aug. 12.

Gen. Ralph Haines, commanding general of the Continental Army Command, will be the graduation speaker.

The students are now less than two weeks away from the coveted Ranger tab. But those two weeks are the roughest part of the eight-week course.

Wednesday the students began a 12-day continuous counterguerrilla operation. The operation entails crossing a dense snake and alligator infested swamp and using nearly every technique and skill taught in the course.

The biggest obstacle the students must overcome during this problem is fatigue. Sleep is limited to about two hours a day and only one C-ration meal is provided per day.

Successful completion of the course will give the cadets the right to wear the Ranger tab on their ROTC uniforms.

The students were selected from more than 2,200 volunteers from ROTC units around the nation.

Commander still responsible for quality

Army places option on refresher training

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Gen. W.C. Westmoreland has announced that the Department of the Army (DA) will no longer specify that units train individuals in certain subjects or require that individual training records be kept in units.

However, the chief of staff stated that the commander remains responsible for the state of training of his soldiers in these and other areas.

The new policy applies primarily to the refresher-type subjects in which DA has required units to train individuals on a recurring basis. It does not affect current programs of instruction for basic and advanced individual training, preparation of individuals and units for overseas movement, various courses in service schools, and training of the Army National Guard and Reserves.

In a directive outlining the new policy, Gen. Westmoreland pointed out that although the 14 subject areas required until now are still important, all are not equally important to all units under all circumstances.

"There are many additional subject areas in which soldiers must be trained, some of which are just as important as those currently designated as mandatory," stated the general. "Much depends on the mission of the unit, its location and geographic orientation, the caliber of personnel and their state of training, and many other considerations often recognized and appreciated only by commanders at lower levels."

The new policy will decentralize the management and conduct of training. Gen. Westmoreland explained, "I wish to emphasize a total approach to training which takes into account all of the important activities for which the unit and the individual are responsible. Commanders above the battalion and separate company level should provide training guidance in the form of mission-type instructions rather than by detailed directives."

The message states that it is up to the commander to ensure that his men are given sufficient training. He should do this through observation and the periodic administration of exercises and performance tests, on both unit and individual levels. The general stated, "Mere exposure to a given number of hours of instruction is not an adequate indication of such understanding."

Gen. Westmoreland said that one of the reasons for the change in policy is to "reaffirm our confidence in the dedication, judgment and professionalism of the officers corps."

Weapons qualification, military occupational specialty test scores and the fact that certain portions of the Uniform Code of Military Justice have been explained upon reenlistment must still be entered on DA Forms 20 and 66.

All DA directives inconsistent with the new policy have been suspended and changes to regulations will be accomplished by the DA staff within 90 days.

JAMTO offers full air service for soldiers

WASHINGTON (ANF) — The Joint Airline Military Transportation Office (JAMTO) at your post offers complete airline service to meet the individual needs of all military personnel, their dependents and government-employed civilians — and saves them time and money, too.

Staffed with people from schedule airlines, JAMTO provides complete assistance in scheduling, fares, reservations, tickets, shipping of personal belongings and household goods, and even motel and hotel accommodations and rent-a-car arrangements.

JAMTO assistance is not only for official flights, such as permanent change of station and temporary duty assignments, but is also for any airline transportation need, anywhere in the world, including leaves, vacations and emergencies.

Entitled to reduced rates, military personnel traveling, military standby on a space-available basis pay half-fare, while military reserved fare, made in advance, is approximately two-thirds tourist fare.

Service is 'rent paid for space we occupy' says ex-Army wife

By Carol May
(Femline Writer)

"The more we contribute, the better we will like the community we live in. By participation and service we fit into any community, military or civilian. I believe the service rendered is the rent paid for the space we occupy."

Mrs. Mildred Griffin, author of these words, lives what she says. In twenty years as an Army wife, she has been active in various clubs and projects and was cited for her dedication in a letter of appreciation from Ft. Riley's Maj. Gen. Robert R. Linvill last year. Gen. Linvill said, "Appreciation is expressed to Mrs. Griffin for her outstanding contribution to the Army Community Service program of Ft. Riley, Kan., during the period of December 1969 to January 1971. In her capacity as chairman of the Waiting Wives committee, she expertly organized and carried out a program of services and activities for Waiting Wives throughout the state of Kansas. The efforts of her American Flag project were a significant contribution to patriotism and were even noted in foreign lands. The establishment of a Waiting Wives newsletter service to enable the wives to obtain valuable information concerning special news relative to them."

Mildred was named "Ft. Riley 1970 Military Wife of the Year." This honor was the culmination of years spent in church work, PTA, Red Cross, Boy Scouts and youth activities. "Since I believe the greatest asset we have in the world today is children, a lot of my time will continue to go to things that I believe will help my own three sons, who attend three different schools."

Her work with the PTA this year will include serving as 1st vice-president of the James B. Key Elementary School where she has held office 5 times in the past 10 years; and working as a public relations chairman for the Muscogee County Council of PTAs, which includes 50 groups.

Mildred also holds an honorary life membership in the Georgia PTA.

In addition she plans to devote at least one day a week in a school clinic as a Red Cross volunteer.

Mildred believes that senior NCO wives have a responsibility "to set good examples, and to try to find ways to reach the very young enlisted wives who are not only lonely, uninformed, but in many cases, are also anti-Army. Some of my most treasured friends are very young enlisted wives I met personally during Reforger I and Reforger II" at Ft. Riley.

Ft. Riley NCO wives further honored Mildred upon her husband's retirement with these words that so surely describe her outlook:

"She smiles at everyone she meets—

Hers is such a gracious way!

Her warmth shines through to all she meets

As she goes about from day to day!"

Mrs. Griffin, her husband, CSM (ret.) Carroll J. Griffin and their three sons live at 2125 Fields Ave. in Columbus.

NCO WIVES' CLUB

A number of social events are being planned for the Non-Commissioned Officers' Wives' Club during the next four months.

The upcoming events include a self-defense program for the ladies beginning this month, and, an evening fashion show in September for both the wives and their husbands. October 9 is set aside for a Hawaiian Luau. Members and guests are already planning their Hawaiian attire. A home economist from out of town will highlight the November luncheon with hints on cooking.

A shopping trip to Atlanta is scheduled for December 7. This will include transportation to and from Atlanta, lunch, fashion show and a full day of fun.

This should be a welcome change after the busy activities of the Christmas Bazaar on December 4. These events have hostesses and committees working hard to make each one a success.

NCO ladies may obtain information on any function by contacting Mrs. Henry Guilbeault, club president, at 689-2934; Mrs. John Dyer, 1st vice president; or Mrs. David Aldridge, program chairman at 289-5663.

Information on membership for the wives' club may be obtained by calling Mrs. Wallace Colson, membership chairman, 689-3869, or assistant chairman, Mrs. Robert Bogh, 689-6583.

Special recognition goes out this month to Mrs. Aldridge, program chairman, for a job well done. She has given much of her time to assist in planning these programs. Thanks, Christi!

ARTILLERY COMMITTEE

The Artillery Committee, CSG, BBOD, USAIS, held a half and farewell luncheon July 21 in the Benning Room of the Main Officers' Open Mess.

Capt. and Mrs. James Siket, Capt. Robert Ebert and 1st. Lt. Larry Halstead were welcomed into the committee by Lt. Col. Paul J. Raiig Jr., committee chairman.

The departing officers were presented with a plaque and their wives were given a St. Barbara medallion (Saint Barbara is the patron Saint of the Artillery). Those leaving were Maj. and Mrs. Richard D. Beltson, Maj. Paul J. Goldman, Maj. and Mrs. Jimmy J. Smith, and Capt. and Mrs. Christopher Q. Herrick.

CDCIA

With the cooperation of the weatherman, the officers and ladies of the Infantry Agency enjoyed a luau and pool party July 15 at the Main Officers' Open Mess.

A receiving line was formed by the newcomers and those departing the agency. Welcomed were Col. and Mrs. John L. Daniels; Col. and Mrs. Clarence Jordan; Mrs. Ben S. Malcom; Col. and Mrs. John E. McCleary; Lt. Col. and Mrs. Walter R. Jones; Maj. and Mrs. John S. Gibbs; Maj. and Mrs. Douglas M. Hughes; Maj. and Mrs. Wade H. Whitley II; Capt. and Mrs. Robert A. Hinds; 1st Lt. David T. Johnson and CW4 Paul B. Miller.

Farewell gifts were presented by Col. Robert H. Siegrist to Lt. Col. and Mrs. James M. Hallinan; Maj. and Mrs. Robert W. Demont; Maj. and Mrs. Joe G. Driskill; Maj. and Mrs. Kenneth A. Sinea and 1st Lt. and Mrs. David H. Atchley.

931st ENGINEER GROUP

Preparations for the luau began early in the morning by burying the pig and by evening, the officers and ladies eagerly 931st Group anxiously awaited the fate of their dinner. The succulent pig had been stuffed with hot rocks, wrapped in Ti leaves and foil and covered with burlap before its final burial beneath the sandy soil around Kings Pond.

Col. Robert Standley, CO of 931st Engr. Gp., introduced the guests, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Nelson Conover, chairman of the committee; and Capt. and Mrs. Clarence Howard, CO of 72nd Engr. Co.

Farewells were said to Capt. and Mrs. Jerry Kennedy, Capt. and Mrs. Howard Clark, Lt. and Mrs. Harry Salee, and CWO and Mrs. James Wright.

The group greeted Capt. and Mrs. John Dallen; Capt. and Mrs. Conquest; Lt. and Mrs. Jim Norris and Lt. and Mrs. Bob Sutton.

LEADERSHIP COFFEE

Mrs. Robert E. Bonthius and Mrs. Abraham L. Bain were hostess and cohostess respectively for Leadership Department Wives' coffee.

Mrs. Douglas Emery welcomed Mrs. Charles F. Grandgeorge; Mrs. Richard J. Tardif, Mrs. John O. Turnage; Mrs. Mack Rogers; Mrs. Kenneth L. Burns and Mrs. Martin W. Heinicke. A farewell scroll was presented to Mrs. David Ringrose.

Special guests were Mrs. Billy E. Rutherford, wife of the deputy director of the department, Mrs. Robert Farris, wife of the management committee chairman and Mrs. Betty Jones, secretary for the men of the Leadership Committee.

LEADERSHIP PICNIC

Victory Lodge was the scene for the families of Headquarters Committee, Leadership Department, USAIS', annual picnic July 17. Some 60 people enjoyed a day of fun and relaxation. Coordinator for the event was Sgt. Marion Ralph.

Activities for the picnickers were volley ball for the men, casual conversation for the women and a variety of activities for the youngsters.

197th INF. BDE.

The monthly coffee for the ladies of Hq., 197th Inf. Bde., was held at the home of Mrs. David Hoh. Mrs. Duane Powers was co-hostess.

Mrs. John Krisco conducted the business meeting. The main order of the evening was the August luncheon, which will be sponsored by the ladies of Headquarters group. The theme was announced by Mrs. Caryl Marsh. Mrs. Lee Smith will be program chairman; Mrs. Ronald Formulak, publicity chairman; Mrs. Perry Hope, chairman of decorations and invitations; Mrs. Bernard Muller-Thym, chairman of entertainment; and Mrs. Powers will decide on the menu.

Mrs. Smith welcomed the newcomers: Mrs. Krisco; Mrs. Jerome Zamora; Mrs. James Mosier; Mrs. Jose Gonzales; Mrs. John McNeill; Mrs. Paul Jones; and Mrs. Doug Hardman. Farewells were said to Mrs. Robert Thomas and Mrs. Marsh.

Farewell BBQ

"Reading, Writing and 'Rithmetic" was the theme as the men of the Training Division of Directorate of Plans and Training (DPT) and their ladies gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver M. Smith July 15 for a farewell barbecue.

The barbecue was in honor of Capt. and Mrs. Anton G. Blieberger, who are leaving Fort Benning at the end of July. Capt. Blieberger is going to attend Drake University in Des Moines, Ia., under the Army's Degree Completion Program.

Among those present were Maj. and Mrs. Shelley T. Raines; Capt. and Mrs. Emmitt E. Gibson; Capt. and Mrs. John Wallis and Capt. and Mrs. Daniel Cochran, who have all recently joined the Training Division.

DPT Luncheon

On July 20 the ladies of the Training Division had a buffet luncheon at the Main Officers' Open Mess in the Fountain Room to bid farewell to Mrs. Anton G. Blieberger.

Mrs. Blieberger has participated as a Red Cross volunteer during her stay at Fort Benning and was the former welcoming chairman for the division. Mrs. Blieberger was presented a sterling silver "Follow Me" charm.

THRIFT SHOP

The Thrift Shop is planning a night rummage sale August 4 from 5-9 p.m. This is a new event for the shop.

Any items in good condition are needed and may be consigned before 1 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Only military affiliated consignments will be accepted.

The Thrift Shop is open on Tuesday and Thursday, and on the first Saturday of each month.

All profits from sales go to welfare projects and donations of items are appreciated. The shop is open to the public.

AIRBORNE WIVES

The officers' wives of the Airborne Department, USAIS, met for their monthly coffee July 14 at the home of Mrs. Robert H. Anspaugh on Meadowlark Drive.

A warm welcome was extended to Mrs. Robert B. Tully, wife of the new deputy director, Mrs. Robert L. Howard, Mrs. Michael Strohbusch and Mrs. David Jesmer, a geographical wife.

Prior to the business meeting delicious cookies, cakes, punch and coffee were served.

Most of the business meeting was devoted to discussion of projects for the upcoming Christmas Bazaar. Mrs. Robert B. Tully and Mrs. Jack C. Helms volunteered to work in the Thrift Shop in August.

A fond farewell was said this month to Mrs. Julian Halsema.

TSB

The 50th Co., 5th Stu. Bn., class 18-71, Officer Candidate Wives' Club held a bake sale July 14 in the 50th Co. mess hall. This was the club's first fund-raising project and was very successful. The chairman of the project was Mrs. Robert Kohls, and her committee included Mrs. David Belcher; Mrs. Joseph Carter; Mrs. William Bradley and Mrs. Joseph Dolan.

The wives next fund-raising project will be a "care-package" drive July 29. The chairman of this project will be Mrs. Charles Vaughn. The drive will be held in the 50th Co. barracks where the packages of miscellaneous items will be sold to the candidates during study hall.

OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY, USAIS

The ladies of the Office of the Secretary, USAIS, met for their monthly coffee at the home of Mrs. Edward M. Bradford July 13. The business part of the get-together was conducted by Mrs. Herbert L. Frandsen. High on the agenda was a discussion of ideas for the OWC Christmas bazaar, and work on this project is expected to begin soon.

The Field Grade Officers of the Office of the Secretary were entertained at the home of Maj. and Mrs. Michael A. Tryon with cocktails and dinner July 10. The dinner was served buffet style.

Humorous reminder

At a farewell party at Fort Benning July 16, Mrs. John T. Carley (R) receives a large cardboard box, a familiar reminder of packing chores ahead of her. She was also presented a volume, "The History of Art," at the luncheon given by the Executive Board of the OWC. At left is Mrs. Orwin C. Talbott, wife of Maj. Gen. Talbott, commandant of the Infantry School, and in the center is Mrs. Richard B. Stoltz, president of the OWC. Mrs. Carley is the wife of Brig. Gen. John T. Carley, assistant commandant of the school, who has been assigned to the Republic of Vietnam.

Honorary membership

Mrs. Julia Layton (R), wife of post command sergeant major, was presented an honorary membership to the NCO Wives Club by Mrs. Henry Guilbeault, club president, during a recent luncheon at Crain Hall.

'Patriots' hold clambake

Only the ocean was missing from the clambake given by the officers of the 1st Bn. (Mech.), 58th Inf. "Patriots" July 17. The family affair was held in "Patriot" Park in the battalion area.

On the menu were clams and oysters served raw or baked over an open fire, shrimp steamed in beer, and corn on the cob. To complement the sea food dinner, the wives brought covered dishes. Taped music was also provided to add to the party atmosphere.

After the meal, rounds of volleyball were enjoyed by husbands and wives alike in a mock tournament. A softball game rounded out the evening's entertainment.

Recyclables are wanted

Since Ecology Day, DFAEs Environmental Management Division (EMD) has been receiving calls and visits from housewives who are saving their glass, metal and paper for the recycling operation. If you're segregating and storing recyclables, let EMD know about it. Phone 545-5933 or 545-4292.

Group assists in management

The Armed Forces Management Association (AFMA), organized in 1952, is a national, nonprofit organization designed to improve management throughout the defense complex.

With the appointment of a full time executive director in 1958, AFMA services were expanded to the defense establishment and the membership to provide for improved communication between defense, industry and education.

Its objective is "to make a significant contribution to existing programs of the defense establishment for improving efficiency, effectiveness and economy in the employment of national defense resources."

To facilitate the exchange of management knowledge, the AFMA publishes "Armed Forces Management," an affiliated monthly magazine devoted to all facets of Defense management, and the "Journal," AFMA's technical periodical. The "Defense Manager," a monthly publication, is devoted to digests of new management programs.

Activities include an annual national conference featuring speakers from defense, industry and education and exhibits of new management equipment. National awards are presented at the conference for outstanding accomplishments.

The organization also provides contact with other associations having management improvement interests. In addition, each of the 36 chapters and 34 corporate members hold meetings, seminars, panel discussion, workshops and field trips.

Officers for the Fort Benning Chapter of the AFMA are Col. William Lathrop, president; Ronald Companion, first vice president; Mrs. Marcia Wolfe, second vice president; Paul Watson, treasurer, and Mrs. Thelma Malinski, secretary.

Columbus College listed

Columbus College has been placed on the American Association of University Women's list of qualified institutions, President Thomas Y. Whitley announced July 20.

Interstates Offer Speed, Safety

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Interstate Highway Systems have some compelling advantages—safety and speed—for military families on the move this summer for vacations or assignment moves.

According to Federal figures, the accident-fatality rate on completed portions of the Interstate network is currently 2.8 deaths per 100 million vehicle-miles. Compare that to 6.9 per 100 million vehicle miles on highways that previously carried the traffic flow.

The Interstate system has resulted in average driving time reductions of nearly 30 per cent and more for long hauls over the past decade, according to comparisons made by Rand McNally & Company's annual "Road Atlas of the United States, Canada & Mexico."

In the map (left) the lightface type shows the 1960 driving time between major cities. The boldface type shows the 1971 figure. Actual driving times may vary according to individual driving habits and weather and traffic conditions.

Trooping the line

New Secretary of the Army Robert F. Froehlke reviews members of the 3rd Infantry (The Old Guard), accompanied by Col. M. E. Lee, commander of troops, after the ceremony in which he was sworn into office by Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird.

PX, BX to cut prices; shoppers save plenty

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Price reductions, which will save shoppers nearly $25 million, have been announced by the Army and Air Force Exchange Service (AAFES).

The lower prices will be found starting this month on such items as military uniforms and accessories, photographic equipment and electronic items at AAFES stores worldwide.

The price reductions stem from a continuing AAFES program to streamline the exchange pricing structure and move toward greater pricing uniformity, AAFES officials said. They also said the lower prices reflect a current relaxation in gold flow restrictions.

WASTE NOT!

Or how post sewage gets the treatment

BERRY (L), PFC PAUL CAMERON ADJUST PUMP VALVE

PFC DANIEL RICE TAKES WATER SAMPLE

Of the many problems facing this country today, the environmental crisis is uppermost in the minds of many of us. The attempts by man to deal with his own expanding growth, the disposal of garbage and the treatment of sewage confound the minds of many civic and governmental leaders. But in one aspect, at least, the problem is handled exceedingly well here at Fort Benning by engineers from Co. A, 43rd Engr. Bn., 91st Engr., Gp., at Sewage Treatment Plant No. 1.

There are three sewage treatment plants located on the reservation. However, Plant No. 1, is the only facility operated exclusively by military personnel. The plant is located on Marne Road near the Fort Benning Hunt Club.

From the time the raw sewage enters the plant to the time it is discharged into a nearby creek or used for fertilizer many painstaking steps are involved.

The raw sewage enters the plant at the lift station where it is pumped out of sewer pipes into the grit station. Here gravel and other obstructions are sifted out and hauled away. From the grit station the raw sewage is pumped into a primary settling basin where the solid waste settles to the bottom and is, in effect, separated from the water waste.

At this point two different processes are employed for the treatment of water and solid waste. The solid waste is pumped out of the primary settling basin into one of three huge digesters at the plant.

For the next two or three months the solid waste will remain in the digester where all the organic material decomposes and changes to uncontaminated minerals, ideal for use as fertilizer. Before it can actually be used as fertilizer, however, it must be pumped out of the digester into drying beds to dry under the rays of the sun. The time for the drying process will vary anywhere from two weeks to several months depending on the weather.

Meanwhile, the water waste, is pumped out of the primary settling basin through a trickling filter. (You may have seen these long armed water sprinklers going round and round over a large round pit at many industrial plants working to improve the environment.)

The water from the trickling filter runs down through a six-foot layer of rocks and sand into a secondary settling basin. From the secondary basin the water goes back through the trickling filter for a double cleaning. Then the water is pumped through a chlorine contact chamber and then out into a nearby creek as clean water.

The officer in charge at the plant, 1st Lt. Joe L. Berry says the plant has a goal of achieving 80 per cent pure water before it is pumped into the creek but in actuality the facility does much better than that. "We average between 91 and 94 per cent pure water — believe me that water is clean."

To insure the cleanness of the water pumped into the creek, a lab technician constantly samples the water — thus testing the overall efficiency of the plant operation.

Fertilizer from the drying beds is used extensively at Fort Benning as well as by civilians who come out to the plant to pick up as much as they can carry away. It's all free of charge.

The sewage plant is manned 24 hours a day by the engineers from Co. A. During the day one officer, two NCOs and 10 soldiers work at the plant while two more soldiers work over night.

VA timetable lists separation reminders

The Veterans Administration has prepared a timetable for veterans to follow after their separation from military service.

According to the VA, a veteran has 10 days to notify any local Selective Service Board of his address, and 30 days to register if he did not do so before entering military service.

If a veteran wants his old job back, he has 90 days to apply to his former employer for re-employment.

He has 120 days to convert his Servicemen's Group Life Insurance (SGLI) to an individual policy without examination. If totally disabled at separation, a veteran has up to one year, if his condition does not change, to convert his insurance.

In either case, he must apply for the policy to one of the nearly 600 private companies participating in the SGLI program.

A veteran with a service-connected disability has one year from the date he receives his notice of service-connection to apply to VA for Service-Disabled Veterans' Insurance.

He also has one year to apply for VA dental care, or to request unemployment compensation from his local state employment service.

Veterans have eight years from date of separation to apply for and receive educational assistance benefits, which terminate after that time.

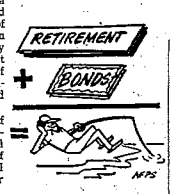
MAH participates in idea exchange

Martin Army Hospital, as a member of the Georgia Hospital Association, is participating in the Tested Idea Exchange (TIE) for Better Patient Care Contest. This contest is co-sponsored by the Georgia Hospital Association and the Blue Cross Plans of Georgia. It could mean that one of Martin Army Hospital's employes might win the grand prize of $500 for an idea on improving patient care and saving money.



Besides the possibility of winning cash awards, everyone who enters will have the satisfaction of knowing that his idea will be published to aid other hospitals.

The full details and entry forms are available at the Management Services Division, Martin Army Hospital, from Lt. Col. John P. Wright.

In announcing the contest it is noted that this statewide contest will help prove to the public that "Your Hospital Cares" and is taking some positive action to help hold the line on rising costs and at the same time is improving patient care.

Any idea or suggestion that has been adopted and tested in actual practice at some time during the past five years ending Dec. 31, 1970 may be submitted.

Along with the $500 grand prize there are four $250 awards, five special awards of $100 each, and ten honorable mention awards of $50 each. The entry deadline for the contest is Sept. 15.

Post Office has suggestions for vacationers

The U. S. Postal Service offered suggestions for postal customers who will be away from home on vacation.

Vacationers are urged not to allow their mail box to become overstuffed in their absence as this might tempt theives to take their mail or enter their homes.

The Postal Service advises customers to have the Post Office hold their mail until they return from vacation.

A friend or neighbor may hold the mail until return.

Engineers aid ecology council in trip down Flint

By John Box

Engineers from the 586th Engr. Co. (FB), 931st Engr. Gp. came to the aid of the Georgia Natural Areas Council July 23 to help with an ecological study of the Flint River at Camp Thunder near Thomaston, Ga.

The Natural Areas Council, which is headquartered in Atlanta, is the ecological agency for the state of Georgia. It is comprised of representatives from the State Planning Board, Game and Fish Dept., State Parks and Soil Conservation Board, the Water Quality and Control Board, college professors and several key members of the Georgia State Legislature.

The Flint River study was under the direction of Dr. Donald Scott, the council chairman. He and the other members of the council are working in conjunction with a local ecology group from Thomaston to determine the feasibility of constructing Spewrell's Bluff Dam on the Flint River.

A scenic rivers report prepared for the council said, "The upper portion of the Flint is undoubtedly the most scenic stream in the Georgia Piedmont and faces imminent destruction by the recently approved Spewrell's Bluff Dam."

The Chamber of Commerce Resources Committee in Thomaston wants to build a series of three dams on the Flint River, the first of which would be the Spewrell Bluff site. They argue that the dams would enhance the area by creating lakes for boating and fishing but that the primary function would be to provide power under the auspices of the Federal Power Commission.

Money has been allotted for land acquisition to build the Spewrell's Bluff Dam but the money can't be spent until an environmental study by the Corps of Engineers is evaluated and approved by the Council on Environmental Quality in Washington, D. C.

The purpose of the trip by the Natural Areas Council was to gain additional insight from biologists and geologists and the other council members to formulate a statement opposing the construction of the dam. Their opinion will be submitted along with the Corps of Engineers report to Washington.

The trip down the Flint River took over five hours with one stop at the Rock House on Tally Mountain midway through the excursion. Rock samples were taken and studies of plant life were made.

The Flint is very shallow in many areas and cannot be navigated by conventional boats. This is where the Engineers from the 586th bridge company came to the rescue. The 15-man rubber assault rafts used by the company are ideally suited to shallow water and the request for help went out from Robert Hanie, executive director of the Georgia Natural Areas Council.

Five Engineers from the support platoon under the command of 1st Lt. Tom Wehrle left early Friday morning for the trip to Thomaston. Plans were coordinated and after a free lunch provided by the council for the engineers it was off to the river.

Initially there was some concern that even the rafts would not be able to make the journey since the small outboard motors were hitting rocks on the river bottom. Wehrle and his platoon sergeant, SSgt. Harry Feick, conferred with the two guides for the trip and it was determined that the current of the river was fast enough to carry the rafts and that oars could be used in the shallows. However, Wehrle ordered his men to attach ropes to the front of the rafts in case the Engineers had to get out into the river and do some pulling.

Five hours later and 12 miles down the river they came to shore completing the trip. Dr. Scott and Mr. Hanie thanked Wehrle and his men for their assistance.

68 graduate from field radio class

The Field Radio Mechanic Course Class 14-71 graduated 68 students July 9 in ceremonies at Infantry Hall.

The guest speaker was Lt. Col. Colon Britt, deputy director, Department of Nonresident Instruction. During his address, Britt emphasized the advantages of participating in the Army Correspondence Course Porgram.

VOLAR to be discussed at conference

VOLAR will be discussed at the upcoming Modern Volunteer Army conference to be held at Ft. McPherson, Georgia, on Aug. 6.

Ten army posts, including Fort Benning, will send two representatives to discuss the VOLAR program and exchange local innovations.

Col. Edwin L. Kennedy, chief of the VOLAR project and Capt. George B. Loveland, deputy chief of the control element of VOLAR, will attend the conference as the official representatives of Fort Benning and will present an evaluation of the VOLAR test here on post.

Gen. Westmoreland announces new policy

Gen. W. C. Westmoreland, Army chief of staff announced a new training policy for the Army July 15.

In a message to commanders, he stated, "We must reaffirm our confidence in the dedication, judgment and professionalism of the officer corps by decentralizing the management and conduct of training. Only by doing so can we enhance the realism and effectiveness of our training to produce the best possible level of mission performance."

The existing policy of specifying certain training subjects as mandatory will be discontinued by the Department of the Army. Unit commanders at battalion level and below will now receive training guidance in the form of mission-type instructions rather than by detailed directives.

Gen. Westmoreland has placed training into three basic categories: mission training, individual training and that training which deals with the soldier's personal knowledge of his rights and responsibilities.

Mission training is that training a unit must conduct to accomplish military tasks it may be assigned. Individual training includes such areas as the soldier's individual job, physical fitness and proficiency with his assigned weapon. The third category, the soldier's personal knowledge of his rights and responsibilities, includes training in the Code of Conduct, the Geneva and Hague Conventions, service benefits, race relations and drug problems.

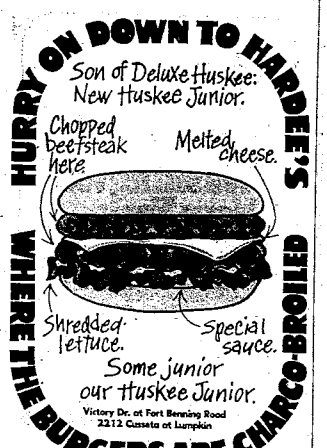
This new training policy does not affect current programs of instruction for basic and advanced individual training, preparation for overseas movement, or service school courses.

Enlisted efficiency report important to EM's career

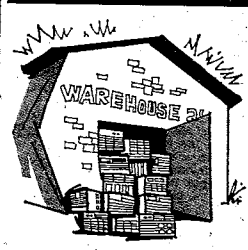
WASHINGTON (ANF) — The enlisted efficiency report (EER) is the prime source of data for selection for promotion, selection for key assignments and the recently introduced Qualitative Management Program.

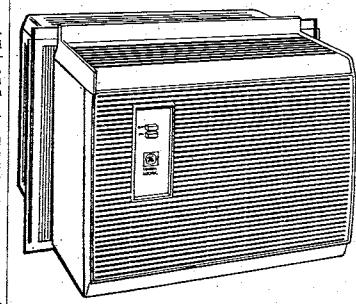
Of importance not only to the personnel management program but also to a soldier's career, at least one EER (DA Form 2166-4) should have been produced for each career enlisted man of pay grade E5 and above credited with three or more years of active Federal service. Since the new reporting system became effective July 1, 1970, several personnel may have more than one EER.

Lack of a current EER could mean the difference in promotion or nonpromotion and retention or release from active duty.

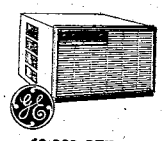


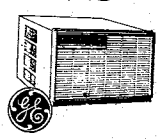
Complete details for submission of EERs may be found in Chapter 8, AR 600-200, as modified by DA Message 081700Dec70.





Photography team visits Leadership





On July 16 the Conditioning, Combatives and Drill Committee of the Leadership Department, USAIS, was visited by a 4 man photography team from the Army Photographic Agency, Special Detachment, CONARC.

The team photographed the new test events of the Basic Physical Fitness Test (Subtest C) of the Army Physical Fitness Evaluation, designed to be administered to trainees in Basic Combat Training and Advanced Individual Training.

The purpose of this visit was to obtain release footage for the Office, Chief of Information.

helicopter pads in the launch site.

There are four hospitals in the immediate area with pads available for a helicopter landing.

The Army personnel were unique in their mission in that the six Fort Benning soldiers were the only Army representatives at the Apollo launch.

The Saturn V rocket basted off from the cape hearing Astronauts Col. David R. Scott, Lt. Col. James B. Irwin and Maj. Alfred M. Worden, all Air Force officers, at 9:34 a.m. NASA officials described the launch as one of the most perfect in the space program.

Despite a technical problem with the main engine indicator light, Scott and Irwin are scheduled to land their lunar landing craft Falcon on the moon today. They plan to bring the craft down at the base of the Apennine Mountains tallest on the moon with peasks rising 15,000 feet high.

Promotion

before entering the Infantry Officer Advanced Course.

In June of 1953, he was named Assistant Director of Instruction and later served as an instructor in the DIs Instructor Training Section. He received his Parachutist Badge here in 1956 and then went on to Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

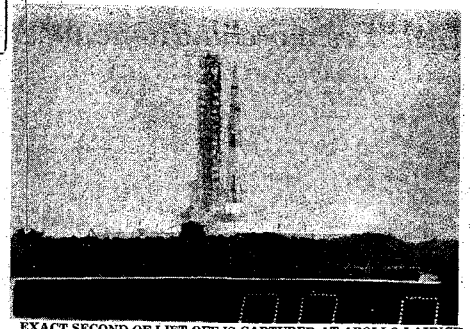
He returned to the Infantry School again in September, 1960, as Director, Weapons Department, and was shortly thereafter reassigned as Director of Instruction. On June 1, 1970, he became Assistant Commandant.

Gen. Carley has held a number of major command and staff assignments. He was Assistant G3, 2nd Infantry Division, Korea, from September, 1950, until September, 1951; Assistant G2, Allied Land Forces, Central Europe, France, from August, 1957, to February, 1960; G2 and then G3, 82nd Airborne Divison, from August, 1960, to September, 1961; Deputy Battle Group Commander, 2-504th Airborne Infantry, September, 1961, to May, 1962; assigned special duty with the HOWZE Board from May to August, 1962; and staff officer with the War Plans Division, Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations, Washington, from July, 1963, until March, 1964.

He has also served as Military Assistant to the Undersecretary of the Army and Military Assistant to the Secretary of the Army from March, 1964, until July, 1966; Chief of Staff, 82nd Airborne Division July, 1966, to August 1967, and Brigade Commander, 2nd Brigade, 82nd Airborne Division, from August, 1967, to June, 1968. He was a Brigade commander, 2nd Brigade, 1st Infantry Division, in Vietnam from August, 1968, to July, 1969.

In addiion to Command and General Staff College, Gen. Carley has attended the Armed Forces Staff College and the U. S. Army War College.

His awards and decorations include the Silver Star, Legion of Merit with two Oak Leaf Clusters, Distinguished Flying Cross with two Oak Leaf Clusters, Bronze Star Medal with one Oak Leaf Cluster, Air Medal with 17 Oak Leaf Clusters, Army Commendation Medal, Combat Infantryman Badge and Senior Parachutist Badge.



The general was born in Hattiesburg, Miss., and attended Marion Military Institute in Marion, Ala., before entering and subsequently graduating from the U. S. Military Academy in 1945.

Gen. Carley and his wife, Laura, have one son, John, 22, and a daughter, Ann, 17.

Partitions

Some delays in the construction were met earlier when materials were slow arriving, however all the materials have been acquired and the carpenter crews are in full swing.

An examination of the 43rd by an inspector general team was scheduled for this month, but was delayed so that the Engineers could devote their full attention to completing the VOLAR project.

Basic data speeds form process

DENVER — Requests for approval of benefits under the CHAMPUS Program for the Handicapped can be processed quickly when applicants provide basic data about the patient and his active duty sponsor plus a physician's statement describing the patient's condition, officials of CHAMPUS — the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services — noted recently.

CHAMPUS officials also noted that if other than public facilities are to be used, there is an additional requirement for a statement from a public official stating that adequate public facilities are not available or adequate to meet the patient's needs.

The Program for the Handicapped provides diagnostic services, rehabilitation and institutional care as well as certain educational benefits for dependents of active duty Personnel who suffer either from a serious physical handicap or moderate or severe mental retardation. Benefits must be approved by the CHAMPUS Office, however, before the government can assist in paying for such care.

Requests for approval of benefits may be made by writing to the Executive Director, OCHAMPUS, Denver, Colorado 80240. Letters must include the sponsor's name, rank or pay grade, service and social security number, branch of service and organization. In addition, the date the sponsor's current term of service ends or his projected date of retirement must be indicated.

The physician's statement must give the diagnosis, history of the patient's disability, present condition, prognosis and recommended plan of management, including estimated costs.

Veterans agency can issue free business licenses

ATLANTA — As of July 1, 1971, the Georgia Department of Veterans Service is the issuing agency for Certificates of Exemption from business license fees to certain disabled veterans. Heretofore this function has been performed by the State Revenue Department. The change was brought about by an act of the regular session of the 1971 Georgia General Assembly.

Georgia Veterans Service Director Pete Wheeler said that eligibility is restricted to "any disabled veteran of the Spanish-American War; World War I; World War II; the Korean War; any veteran of peacetime service in the United States Armed Forces who has a physical disability incurred during his period of service, or any blind person."

Wheeler summarized briefly some of the requirements which must be met in order to secure an exemption of business license fees:

"An applicant must be a resident of Georgia and his income must be such that he is not liable for the payment of state income taxes.

"Any blind person must furnish the issuing authority with satisfactory proof of his blindness.

"A war veteran must furnish satisfactory proof that he has at least a 10 per cent disabling physical handicap.

"A veteran of peacetime service must furnish proof that he has a physical disability to the extent of 25 per cent or more incurred in line of duty.

2 Silver Stars given at monthly awards ceremony

Two Silver Stars topped the list of decorations given at the monthly awards ceremony at Fort Benning at 9 a.m. Tuesday.

May. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander, presented awards to five soldiers at the ceremony held on York Field.

Receiving Silver Stars were Capt. David S. Jones and Capt. Tyrone A. Chamberlain.

Capt. Jones, then with Co. D, 1st Bn., 20th Inf., 23rd Inf. Div., received the Silver Star for heroism in action Oct. 12, 1970 in Quang Ngai Province, Vietnam. As company commander, Jones led his company to relieve friendly units that had taken heavy enemy fire, and he directed the unit during evacuation.

Also receiving the Silver Star was Capt. Chamberlain of Aviation Command for his role in evacuating 29 troops by helicopter while under heavy fire in a mission Oct. 2, 1969 near Moc Hoa, Vietnam.

Chamberlain, an ambulance helicopter pilot assigned to 82nd Med. Det., 45th Med. Co., 68th Med. Cmd., located 29 soldiers who had been isolated from their main force and who were under heavy enemy fire. He then ran three evacuation flights, making several landings to pick up the scattered troops.

The Legion of Merit was presented to Capt. Richard J. Meadows of 72nd Co., 7th Stu. Bn., TSB, for his part in the unsuccessful raid on Son Tay, North Vietnam, Nov. 21, 1970.

Meadows was assistant plans officer of the Army Component, Joint Contingency Task Group, Project "Ivory Coast," the code name for the American bid to free American prisoners of war at a prison camp at Son Tay.

Initially he was responsible for coordinating and supervising and later choosing and training the Army personnel taking part in the ground action.

CW2 Emory S. Lord, presently assigned to the 192th Avn. Co., Avn. Cmd., was presented the Distinguished Flying Cross for his actions during a helicopter gunship assault on an enemy bunker. While taking heavy small arms fire, Lord continued his attack until there was nothing more than "token resistance."

The Soldier's Medal, the highest medal for heroism in a non-combat role, was presented to CW3 William L. Summers, presently assigned to the 205th Avn. C., Van. Cmd. Summers was cited for his actions following the crash of a plane in which he was an occupant. Following the crash the warrant officer, though injured himself, pulled others from the fuel-soaked wreckage. The crash came during an exercise by the then 17th Avn. Co., recently inactivated and redesignated the 205th Avn. Co.

Fort Benning aviators stand by at Apollo launch

The crew of the med-evac helicopter assigned to the launching of the Apollo 15 Moon Shot at Cape Kennedy, Fla., was (L-R) CW2 Dale L. Dilts, CW2 Alvyn G. Chapman, Capt. John D. Siara, Sp 5 Gary V. Werner and Sp 5 Lynn B. Brown. The crewmen, all members of the 197th Aviation Company, Fort Benning, Ga., were required to be on constant alert from the beginning of the final countdown Saturday until the launching Monday morning.

Civilians get Army help

WASHINGTON (ANF) — A program using military helicopters and personnel to respond to civilian medical emergencies in remote areas will continue until an independent evaluation of the program is completed.

Known as Military Assistance to Safety and Traffic (MAST), the program is a cooperative effort of the Departments of Transportation, Defense and Health, Education and Welfare.

Operating within a range of one-hour's flying time from five Army and Air Force bases in the West, military helicopters with medical personnel aboard can reach areas not easily accessible to ground transportation and where civilian medical facilities are not readily available. Victims are taken to the nearest hospitals after receiving on-the-spot emergency treatment.

Ohio State University and the Stanford Research Institute are conducting the independent evaluation of MAST.

MAST is specifically designed to assist in traffic accidents, and the program's two-fold objective in its' demonstration phase is to determine the feasibility of such an effort by the military and to determine how military assistance can complement civilian efforts.

Abn. sergeant gets $10,000 for reenlisting

Sgt. Donald W. Terrell, Grapevine, Tex., ground training committee, Airborne Department, received a $10,000 variable reenlistment bonus for reenlisting for his current duty assignment as an instructor in the Airborne Department.

Swearing in Terrell was Capt. Robert Howard, committee chief, Ground Training Committee.

Nixon urges employers to give vets job priority

WASHINGTON AFPS) — Through his Jobs for Veterans program, President Nixon has initiated a comprehensive campaign to encourage employers to give priority to Vietnam veterans when filling vacancies.

While the campaign will primarily focus on actions in the civilian community, the military focal point will be base Project Transition offices.

The Jobs for Veterans program was launched earlier this year. At that time, Nixon asked management, labor, veterans and private organizations, as well as Federal, state and local governments to join forces in the program.

James F. Oates Jr., has the Federal government and national business in meeting the program's goals.

Information on the programs is available at base Transition offices, local offices of State Employment Service or at field offices of the Veterans Administration.

'Summer of '42' explores story of innocent delights of adolescence

Warner Bros.' "Summer of '42," now playing at a local theater, is an excursion into nostalgia for some and an open door to the innocent delights of a generation ago for others, but for everyone it is a simple human comedy with a timeless feeling. Its story is as true today as it was in '42 and as it will be tomorrow. Only the calendar changes.

The Technicolor film was directed by Robert Mulligan and produced by Richard A. Roth. It is from an original screenplay by Herman Raucher.

"Summer of '42" stars three newcomers to the screen, chosen by Milligan and Roth after exhaustive tests. They are Gary Grimes, Jerry Houser and Oliver Conant. All hover around the age of 15, their ages in the film. The production also stars a blazing beauty named Jennifer O'Neill as the "older woman" of 22 and marks her first dramatic starring role.

The story is one of growing up, of three boys spending the summer with their families on an island off the New England coast, of their adolescent yearnings and fumblings, especially with regards to girls, their adventures, their hesitant forays into the mysteries of oncoming manhood and the one great experience which one has with a lady more mature than he. Mainly, viewed through a few tears, it is excruciatingly funny.

Mulligan has directed such films as "To Kill a Mockingbird," which won three Academy Awards and eight nominations, one of them for his direction.

'Laugh-In' star returns in fall

Larry Hovis, one of the cast members of "Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In" during its first season, has been signed to return for the series' fifth season starting in September.

At the time Hovis' first joined "Laugh-In," he already was a regular (radio operator Carter) on "Hogan's Heroes." Double duty proved too taxing, but now that the other series has ended, Hovis is back.

Synopsis

HORNETS' NEST (Rated GP) — U. S. Army Capt. Turner (Rock Hudson) and a demolition crew parachute behind Nazi lines in Northern Italy to blow up a strategically vital dam. The Germans gun down the Americans as they land and only the wounded Turner escapes alive.

A group of 15 Italian orphans, whose parents have been massacred, take the unconscious Turner to their hideout cave. Their leader Aldo (Mark Colleano) firmly persuades Bianca, a German woman doctor (Sylva-oscina) to treat Turner. Later with the help of the boys Turner sets out to blow up the dam, taking along the doctor as an unwilling hostage and accomplice.

TWO MULES FOR SISTER SARA (Rated GP) — Clint Eastwood portrays Hogan, an itinerant American adventurer who hires on with the forces of Juarez to fight French rule of Mexico. Eastwood is hard hitten, rough-talking and fast-drawing.

Eastwood rescues Sister Sara (Shirley MacLaine) from a group of would-be rapists. MacLaine reveals that she is on a mission to raise money for the Mexican Juaristas who are attempting to overthrow the Maximilian French who hold the country in an iron grip.

UNMAN, WITTERING AND ZIGO (Rated GP) — Replacing a schoomaster who has died suddenly in the middle of a term David Hemmings and wife Carolyn Seymour come to the Chantry School. Hemmings meets with class lower B and later threatens the class with extra work because of their insolence. The class informs him that they killed his predecessor by pushing him off the cliffs near the school. The next day they give him the teacher's bloody wallet as proof.

Hemmings' level-headed wife, Miss Seymour and the headmaster, Douglas Wilmer, will not believe him. At home that night, he finds the dead teacher's missing shoe, also bloody, in his desk. Now convinced that the class did murder their former teacher, he accedes to their demands.

BROTHER JOHN (Rated GP) — What is the true identity of the black man calling himself John Kane, who returns after an absence of seven years to the small Alabama town where he was born in time for the funeral of his sister? Old Dr. Geer, who delivered Poitier thirty-five years earlier, notes that his only appearances were on the deaths of his parents, events he couldn't have known about since the family had no idea of his whereabouts.

Poitier renews friendship with teacher Beverly Todd, who's starved for love. Poitier's passport reveals he has traveled the world over, to places an American couldn't legally enter. He tells Todd that, although he loves her, he has no time left. Geer confronts Poitier with the truth; he's some king of An Angel Of Doom.

GIMME SHELTER (Rated GP) — Filmed by Maysles Brothers, this is a documentary showing the Rolling Stones' free concert at the Altamont Race Track near San Francisco. 300,000 kids turn out for the rockshocker which led to violence and four deaths.

The film offers Mick Jagger and the Rolling Stones and a nightmarish vison.

ROUNDTREE IN ACTION AS SHAFT

'Red Sky' star plans to diversify his life

While he's absolutely certain at this point in his career that acting will be his main calling in life, 19-year-old Richard Thomas expects to function in other fields of communication.

Thomas no sooner completed his starring role in Hal Wallis' production for Universal of "Red Sky At Morning," opening today at a downtown theater, than he returned to Columbia University to continue his undergraduate work toward his bachelor of arts degree.

"I don't know where it's all going to take me," says the teenaged actor, "but if I should ever want to switch to writing, directing or producing, the background is there waiting to be used. It seems that the more knowledge I'm able to store up on just about anything, the easier it is for me to understand exactly what a director expects of me as an actor.

"Reading — particularly getting deep into classical literature — gives me an ease and familiarity with words. While we were on location at Santa Fe, N. M. for 'Red Sky At Morning,' I met Richard Bradford, its author, who lives there. When we talked about his book, he seemed surprised at my comprehension of what he wrote. He seemed flattered, but I must admit my training at school accounted for most of it."

Starring with Thomas in "Red Sky At Morning," which was directed in Technicolor by Richard Goldstone, are Catherine Burns and Desi Arnaz Jr. as the young ones, and Richard Crenna, Claire Bloom, John Colicos, Harry Guardino, Strother Martin and Nehemiah Persoff as the adults. Marguerite Roberts wrote the screenplay and Paul Nathan served as associate producer.

Shirley performs stunt few stars would dare

Few Hollywood stars would undertake a dangerous stunt for a film scene, and few directors would allow it. The consequences if the trick went wrong and the star were injured would be too costly to both. Spunky Shirley MacLaine did just that for her starring role opposite Clint Eastwood in Martin Rackin's Technicolor and Panavision adventure for Universal, "Two Mules For Sister Sara," coming to Theater No. 1 on main post.

On location in Mexico, where the film was shot, director Don Siegel was faced with a problem when the script called for Eastwood to be injured, forcing Shirley to take his place and climb a 50-foot high railroad trestle over a rock-strewn gorge to plant a charge of dynamite.

Siegel needed a close-up shot of Shirley scaling the structure. If this were being filmed in Hollywood, a stunt double would be used and Shirley would appear in a section of the trestle built on a stage for the close-up. Since the scene was filmed on a distant location, there was no other solution than to have the valuable star do the stunt herself. Adding to the difficulty, the star had to make the climb in the voluminous skirt of a nun's habit.

Roundtree a guy who can't say 'No'

"I can't say 'no,'" says Richard Roundtree.

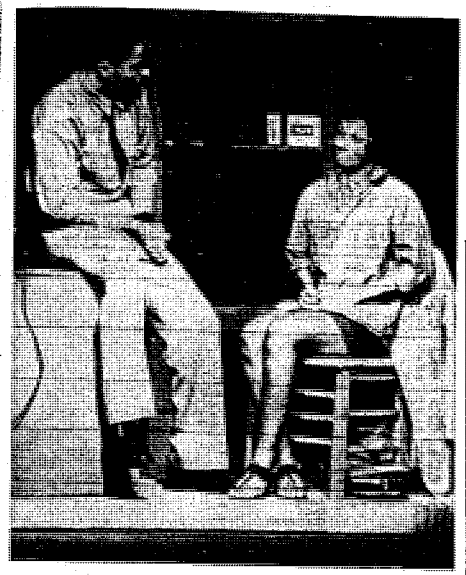
The handsome young black star of "Shaft," was sitting at a table in the Cafe Reggio in Greenwich Village, a location for his film, now playing at a downtown theater.

"Unless I get some character I'll be in a hell of a fix. Don't ask me to do anything, you see, because I'll say 'yes.' Then my image and Shaft's image will go right down the drain."

He was halfway kidding. It was all by way of preface to his answer to the question, "How do you think you personally will be affected by playing the character John Shaft? For instance, on a long term basis? Like Sean Connery's experience with James Bond?"

The analogy is apt, if not accurate. John Shaft is a private detective whom director Gordon Parks describes as "dealing with real things, in real life," as opposed to the enchanted, magic gimmick garden life that James Bond inhabits.

Roundtree continued: "There is one thing Shaft's got that I hope rubs off on me. That is his ability to say 'no.' The man makes a decision, and lives with it right or wrong. I like his cool, too. No, I don't think the man will ever come to bug me the way James Bond came to bug Connery; but, who knows, if I played him long enough he might. Right now, I feel I can't get enough of him. My contract with MGM calls for four films as Shaft, should this first one really take off."



He laughs, and tells of Gordon Parks having to constantly caution him about falling too completely into the character of the private eye, especially his habit of walking across streets in front of oncoming traffic, confident it will stop. "You're gonna get killed that way, baby," Parks told him.

"I almost got killed doing the scene when we filmed it," Roundtree said. "It was at Broadway and 42nd Street, right in the heart of Times-Squareville. I didn't have sense enough to be afraid. I just ploughed across the street, while the cameras positioned on a nearby rooftop filmed me. I guess I thought, since this was a movie and cameras turning I'd be protected. Nothing so gross as instant death. Man, I was pretty scared after that scene was shot, I'll tell you; when I stopped to look at that traffic, to see how fast and hell-bent-for-leather it was really going."

Getting the facts

Sgt. Ray Phillippi (L) of the Leadership Department got a "battlefield promotion" to captain along with a transfer to the Navy on the stage of Columbus' Springer Opera House for the musical "South Pacific." As Capt. Brackett he questions Joan Stumhofer, portraying Nellie Forbush, about a French planter whom he wants to go on a reconnaissance mission. Rogers and Hammerstein's musical about the Navy during World War II continues at the Springer through Sunday. Enlisted personnel are admitted at half price by showing their ID card at the box office. Reservations may be made by telephoning 327-3688.

'Oz' needs tree actors

If you want to be reincarnated as a tree, then you can't afford to miss the chance now to find out what a tree's life is like.

The Fort Benning Dramatizers are making this once in a lifetime offer. There are openings for aspiring actors and actresses to portray trees in the upcoming Dramatizer production of "The Wizard of Oz." The show will be performed the last two Saturdays in August.

For further information, telephone 545-2316 or attend rehearsals weekdays at 7:30 p.m. in the Fort Benning Playhouse, Bldg. 1237.

Rawls to sing tune composed by Oscar man

MGM recording star Lou Rawls has been signed to sing the title song, "Believe In Me" for MGM's Robert Chartoff-Irwin Winkler Production, "Speed Is Of The Essence," starring Michael Sarrazon and Jacqueline Bisset.

Fred Karlin, composer of the music for "Speed Is Of The Essence" won last year's Academy Award for Best Song, "For All We Know," from the motion picture "Lovers and Other Strangers."

Lyrics for the title song, "Believe In Me," were written by Tylwyth Kymry, nominated for an Oscar for "The Baby Maker," from the film of the same title.

Soldiers get drug test overseas

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — All members of the U.S. Armed Forces departing Vietnam are now being tested for heroin addiction according to a Department of Defense announcement.

This new DoD program of identification and treatment will soon be expanded to all overseas areas where members of the military are stationed.

Servicemen with negative results will be returned to the U.S. under normal rotation.

Individuals with positive results will be sent to medical facilities in Vietnam for up to seven days of detoxification and then returned to the States for further treatment or referral to civilian treatment programs.

Individuals due for separation from the service before treatment is completed may voluntarily stay on active duty for 90 days.

Military Review' features article on 'Weapons Systems Acquisition'

FT. LEAVENWORTH, Kan. — Articles by a graduate of the 1970-71 course at the U. S. Army Command and General Staff College, an Argentine journalist and a Canadian expert in international affairs are the front cover features in the August issue of the Military Review, the Army's professional journal.

U. S. Army Maj. James B. Lincoln, a 1970-71 graduate of the CGSC and now attending the Foreign Service Institute in Washington, D. C., writes on "Trends in the Weapons Systems Acquisition Process" in one of the front cover features.

Lincoln describes the impact of complexity and a sharply decreased defense budget and updates developments which have taken place in what he calls "the Packard revolution in the DOD." He concludes that new policies and trends should result in significant improvements but that the challenge will remain for Government and industry to keep up with changing needs.

Enrique Martinez Codo, a journalist of Buenos Aires and editor of an official publication of the Argentine Army's Intelligence Service, is the author of "The Urban Guerrilla."

The article is based on the "Minimanual of the Urban Guerrilla" written by Carlos Marighella, the Brazilian urban guerrilla leader who was killed in a gun battle with Sao Paulo police in November 1969.

Dr. Colin S. Gray, a staff member of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs, writes on "Action and Reaction in the Nuclear Arms Race."

Digests of previously published articles from other magazines are interspersed among the original articles.

The Military Review is published monthly at the U. S. Army Command and General Staff College here in close cooperation with General Staff College.

Fort Benning unit surveys park to build better civilian relations

Engineers of the 43rd Engr. Bn., 93ist Engr. Gp., are currently at work helping in one of the recently instituted community action projects that Fort Benning is operating to help the community while building better relations between the Army and the civilian populace.

The 43rd Engr. soldiers are now surveying the park at the Elizabeth R. Canty Homes, a housing project located near the intersection of Brown Ave. and N. Lumpkin Rd., in preparation for making major improvements at the site.

The survey unit composed of Sp5 Ed Kelly, Sp5. Randy Gaitor, Sp5 Jim Gorman and PFC Tom Simpson is making a topographical survey of the area so that plans can be drawn for the renovation of the park.

At the present time, tentative recommendations for improvements at the park include leveling the area, building a volleyball and paddleball court, filling in a large ravine and developing it into a picnic area and seeding the entire area with grass.

The work is being coordinated through the office of Mr. Brown Nicholson Jr., director of housing in Columbus. In a letter to Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander, Mr. Nicholson stated that the park will serve over 266 families when it is completed.

Assisting in the work at the park will be the 1st Bn., 29th Infantry, also stationed at Fort Benning. These men will seed the area after the engineers finish the major earthmoving at the park.

'Polar Bears' send 3 to 2-week camp

Soldiers of the 5th Battalion, 31st Infantry ("Polar Bears") contributed $250 so that three children of the De Kalb Mental Retardation Center, Atlanta, could attend a two-week summer camp.

June 22 Maj. Donald A. Tapscott, commander of the 5th Bn., 31st Inf., presented the Polar Bears' check to Rev. John R. Haynes, director of the Atlanta Baptist Assembly, a camp located in northern Atlanta.

The camp session, which began Monday had scheduled 40 children from the Mental Retardation Center to attend a session, but the parents of three of the children could not afford the two-week camp.

The Polar Bears then volunteered to help out and voluntary contributions were requested.

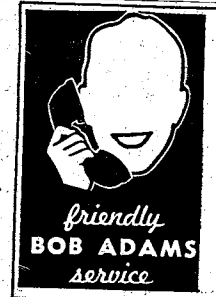
Harmon's score hints of things to come at South Bend match

SFC Bonnie Harmon of the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit gave his opposition a hint of the competition to be expected Aug. 2 in the National Pistol Matches at Camp Perry, Ohio, when he stole the show Sunday and took the grand aggregate championship of the Pre-Perry Matches at South Bend, Ind. July 25. Harmon posted his winning score of 2640-135x, five points over his runner-up SSgt. John Smith a companion shooter of the USAMTU.

Harmon followed up his three-gon aggregate victory with the championship of the 45 Caliber Service Pistol match with an 877-42x to let his competitors know he had not lucked out and was shooting for real. Runner-up honors went to SSgt. John Sleinski, a companion shooter of Harmons.

Harmon, the national center fire champion for 1965 and the 22 caliber champion for 1969, was a member of the 1971 CISM team to Thun, Switzerland, which made a clean sweep of the competition there.

In the initial match of the Pre-Perry tourney, Maj. Kenneth Hall of Las Cruces, N. M., started off strong and captured the 22-caliber event with 891-31x. USAMTU shooters came back determinedly and Harmon took the Center Fire Match with 882-44x while his team mate, SSgt. John Smith captured the 45 Caliber Pistol match with 881-39x. Harmon was just three points back with 878-46x.



The U. S. Army "Blue" team not only won the team grand aggregate and championship but won two of the events in the three-gun matches. The team composed of Harmon, Smith, Sleinski and SSgt. Murtlweather Jones posted a 3528-172x in winning the championship and won the 22-caliber match with 1180-62x and the center fire pistol match with 1178-63x.

A U. S. Army "Gray" team which included SSgt. George Moss, SSgt. Arthur White, SFC Harland Reynolds and SFC Roger Willis won the 45-caliber pistol match with a composite score of 1173-46x. The "Blue" team was in runner-up place with 1170-47x.

In a 45 Caliber Service Pistol team match, the U. S. Army "blue," in second took the honors with 1183-37x to outperform the Western team and the U. S. army "blue," in second and third places.

197th, 931st teams split doubleheader, 5-1, 7-4

By Bob Wise

The 197th Infantry Brigade fast-pitch softball team came alive in the second game of a Fort Benning double-header July 21 to split the evening's laurels with the 931st Engineer Group, 5-1 and 7-4.

Winning the second game at Essenbagger Field for the 197th was stalwart pitcher Lefty Furnish. John Jarvis took the loss for the Engineers.

The Infantry brigade got off to a 1-0 first-inning lead in the second game when Leonard Gibson scored while Gerald Freyberger was stealing second base. Gibson had earlier reached third base on a triple.

The scoreboard collected "goose eggs" until Tom Sumner of the 197th slammed an inside-the-park home run in the fourth inning.

The 931st also scored in the fourth inning when Dave Wilson scored Steve Dostal on a well-hit double.

In the fifth inning, Gibson scored Dave Brown on a sacrifice fly and Sumner scored from third in the sixth inning giving the 197th a three-run cushion.

In the bottom of the sixth inning, the 931st tied the game at four-all when Dennis Moore tripled in Sonny DeLaPaz and Dostal and scored on an error. A double-play ended the inning and the 931st did not score another run.

The Infantry brigade capped the evening's chores with three runs in the seventh inning. Larry Ardito singled in Brown. Gibson then scored while Ardito was stealing second base. Freyberger then doubled in Ardito as the brigade won the game 7-4.

In the first inning of the first game, 197th pitcher Nick Nixon walked the first three batters and was replaced by Jim Rand. With the bases loaded, the umpire allowed Dave McHenry to come home on an illegal pitch. Two more 931st runs followed when Wilson tripled in Rick Schell and DeLaPaz.

The Engineers added a fourth run in the second inning and fifth run in the seventh stanza to win the first game, 5-1. The 197th's only first-game run scored when Joe Kourkoulis doubled in Gibson in the fourth inning. Art Mascarinas took the win for the Engineers.

On July 20 The School Brigade and 197th split a double header.

197th pitcher Lefty Furnish added another win to his record and TSB's Brent Minster took a loss as the 197th won the first game of an Essabagger Field double-header, 6-3.

To prove the wetness of Rise, this man shaved without using any water.

And he actually got a smooth, clean shave.

The reason he got such a clean shave is the moisture in Rise.

A lather needs moisture, needs wetness, so your beard won't dry out beneath it.

And you can't buy a lather that's wetter than Rise.

Slowly it seeps moisture into your beard and holds it there for as long as it takes you to shave.

The point we're trying to prove is this:

If our man can get a smooth, clean shave using Rise with no water, imagine what you can do using Rise with water.

By John Davis

Each time Willie Stargell hits a homerun nowadays, he probably feels a lot like the fellow who watched his mother-in-law drive off a cliff in his new car.

You see, Big Willie can't help but have mixed emotions.

As all smart athletes should do, Pittsburgh's giant-sized left fielder has wisely planned for the future by investing in his own business. Taking a page from Colonel Sanders, Stargell opened a restaurant in the Steel City which specializes in chicken take-out orders. However, the Pirate slugger almost became the victim of his own over zealous advertising campaign...

Undoubtedly underestimating his own ability, "Chicken on the Hill Will" generously offered that anytime he hits a homerun any customer in his place of business when the blow is struck will be treated to a free dinner compliments of Chicken Will himself.

Judging from the results thus far, Stargell might have to declare bunkruptcy before the season ends. All Stargell has done is hit 31 round trippers and collect 89 runs batted in, and that adds up to a lot of free chicken.

But if the big man should hit himself into the poor house, he can rest assured the Pirates will bail him out. The loot his club will receive from the National League playoffs is as good as money in the bank.

Paced by Stargell's big bat, the Bucs are currently sporting an eleven game bulge in the senior circuit's Eastern Division race, leaving Chicago, St. Louis and New York sprawling haplessly in their wake. And while the Pirates refuse to look any further ahead than the division title, the rest of Pittsburgh is optimistically planning for the city's first World Series in over a decade.

You'll have a difficult time convincing Pirate backers that the new Three Rivers Stadium won't be the site of the 1971 World Series. Long one of the better hitting teams in baseball, Pittsburgh can now claim a pitching staff equal in ability to its batsmen — and more and more the Bucs are looking like the team to beat.

The moundsmen are led by Dock Ellis, a temperamental but extremely effective fastballer, and Steve Blass probably the most underrated pitcher in the National League. They are joined in the starting rotation by Bob Moose and Luke Walker — the only southpaw of the group — giving the Pirates four steady starters.

In what was one of their best swaps ever, the Bucs obtained Dave Guisti from St. Louis two years ago and assigned him to the bullpen. When teamed with retread Jim Mudcat Grant, a 36 year old journeyman, the "G Men" form what is perhaps the best relief staff in baseball. Then, for insurance, there's veteran lefty Bob Veale and newcomer Bruce Kison, a youngster recently summoned from the Pirates' Charleston farm team.

Although already knee deep in pitching talent, the Bucs added proven performers Nelson Briles and Bob Johnson to their staffs via off season trades — clearly giving them the most respectable hurlers in the senior circuit.

Actually, a Pirate hurler doesn't have to be very effective to be a winner. His batsmen are scoring runs in excess of eight a contest, and no less than five Bucs are batting over .300.

Besides Stargell there's Manny Sanguillen, Richie Hebner, Dave Cash and old reliable Roberto Clemente — all averaging above the magic .300 mark. Super-Sub Gene Clines has also flirted with being a .300 hitter all season long but simply can't break into the Pirate's rock-solid lineup.

To add icing to the cake, the Pirates also lead the majors in earned runs, homeruns and runs batted in — rather depressing statistics unless you're an avid Pirate Booster.

In another sense though, it seems appropriate that this should be the year of the Pirates. The Bucs affable skipper, Danny Murtaugh, will more than likely call it quits at the end of the year win or lose.

Plagued with a heart ailment in recent years, Murtaugh has hinted that he will have to hang up his spikes come October.

Should Pittsburgh make it to the World Series, it will be Murtaugh's second trip to the top. He was managing the Pirates in 1960 when they upset the New York Yankees in the best of seven series.

Cyclists to compete for Dixie crown Sunday in half-mile, flat-track event

Professional motorcycle racing returns at 2:30 p.m. Sunday to Tri-County Raceway near Phenix City.

Racers from all over the east coast will be competing for points, money and the prestige of the Dixie, half mile championship.

Fort Benning personnel will be provided with bus transportation from the National Bank of Fort Benning parking lot with buses leaving from noon to race time. Special advance tickets are available from the ticket office, Building 394.

With straightaway speeds up to 100 mph and broadsliding 85 mph turns plus frequent spills, flat-track racing is one of the most exciting forms of motorcycle racing ever to be witnessed. A large majority of the circuit racers depend on this type of event for their complete livlihood and many specialize in dirt track events exclusively.

Darrel Dovel an AMA expert, called the Tri-County Raceway the finest and fastest track in the Southeast. Dovel won the last feature race held here and will be on hand to defend the Dixie Championship Trophy that he won last year at Palmetto, Ga.

Track officials say that more than 75 riders already have pre-entered and that a field of at least 100 is expected.

For the first time at the Dixie Championship, a Novice (first year riders) Trophy will be awarded and this alone will guarantee a large field of the unpredictable and often wild new riders.

Boxing matches held Fridays behind 49th

Amateur boxers in the 4th Stn. Bn., TSB, meet each Friday night behind the 49th Company on Beane Street. The men fight three-round matches — winners being decided by the referee and two judges.

Approximately 12 matches are fought beginning at 7:30 p.m. The event is open to the public and free of charge.

Boarders capture title in Avn. Cmd. League

The U. S. Army Infantry Board softball team captured the Aviation Command Slow-pitch League title with a season record of 11-1.

The company-level, seven-team Aviation Command League was dominated by the strong Infantry Board team, which lost only one game.

The Boarders' sole loss came at the hands of an inspired Infantry Agency team in a game which was played after the league title had been decided.

An explosive offense lead by season-long standouts, including outfielders Dennis Bittner, Herbert Reid and Glen Davis, enabled the Boarders to average a total of 10 runs per game.

With a tight infield held together by shortstop Harold Lanier and thirdbaseman Joe Balich, the Boarders allowed an average of only 3 runs per game.

Team coach Paul (Chi Chi) Rodriguez says that this year's team is the best ever fielded by the Infantry Board.

According to USAIC Circular 210-2 dated July 2 the full-time game wardens on post will be augmented by part-time deputy game wardens selected from active duty military personnel. This augmentation is designed to increase the coverage of fish and game law enforcement and environmental protection on the Fort Benning reservation.

Deputy game wardens will enforce regulations on hunting, fishing, boating, swimming, wildlife management and littering on the reservation. They will have federal jurisdiction over all military and civilian personnel. This jurisdiction will be limited to the geographic area of the reservation.

Personnel who are interested in becoming deputy game wardens must make application to the Post Provost Marshal who will determine the qualifications of all applicants. Final selection will be coordinated with the president of the Rod and Gun Club.

Individuals selected will be issued badges and receive instructions from the Provost Marshal Fish and Game Section. Each deputy warden will be expected to spend at least one weekend day per month providing surveillance of an area designated by the Provost Marshal and wear their badges any time they are hunting or fishing and consider themselves "on duty" whenever they are in the field.

Predator Control Program

Each year the Post Fish and Wildlife Unit conducts a predator control program on the reservation. The program is necessary to reduce the population of fox, raccoon, skunk and wildcat. These animals are potential rabies carriers. The reduction in the numbers of these animals reduces the possibility of introducing the desease on the post. It also serves to maintain a proper balance of game animals — birds and predators.

It is important that the chemical and mechanical traps set for this purpose are not molested. It is also important that pet animals do not run loose during the period that the predator control program is being conducted.

Traps have been set in all areas in the reservation and the program will continue through the month of August.

Rod and Gun Fishing Derby

There are only two more days for fishermen to top the leaders in the Rod and Gun Club July Fishing Derby. The bass leader is going to be the hardest to beat. Pete Swiderek, 2514 Cornell Ave., now leads with a 9-pound, 2-ounce lunker he took from Harp's Pond. Young Swiderek hooked into his prize with a black flip-tail plastic worm.

Sp5 Vernon Kornig, 43rd Engineer Battalion, leads the catfish contest with a 6-pound, 5-ounce catch he made using catalpa worms at Twilight Pond.

SFC O. B. Shehane, 3rd Ranger Company, has the largest bream registered so far this month. His 1-pound, 2-ounce entry went for a cricket at King's Pond.

The catfish at Twilight Pond must be hungry these days. There have been reports that they are biting on about anything dropped into the water. Not much activity has been reported from Victory Pond but a few hours spent there today or tomorrow could easily win some catfisherman $15 in merchandise for the largest catfish during July.

If you don't get a chance to get in on the July Derby you might get an early start Sunday on the Club August Derby.

Each month the Rod and Gun Club conducts a fishing derby. Prizes are awarded to the fishermen catching the largest bream, catfish and bass. Sometimes items of fishing or hunting equipment are awarded but usually the prize is $15 worth of merchandise from the sales counter at the club.

The rules of the contest are simple. You must be a member of the Rod and Gun Club to enter the contest. You must register for the contest at the club before you go fishing, catch your fish from one of the post ponds and have the catch verified at the club.

Membership in the Rod and Gun Club is $5. Active duty and retired military personnel, Department of Defense civilians and their dependents are eligible to join. The club is located on First Division Road about one-quarter mile south of Highway 27.

Benning shooters will fire in Pan Am

MIAMI — Twenty-two of the nations best marksmen, 9 of them from Fort Benning, have left Miami for Cali, Colombia, to represent the U.S. in the sixth Pan American Games. The Cali matches begin today.

The U.S. Shooting team, led by Pistol Champions SFC Hershel Anderson and SFC Hezekian Clark of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit, were fitted for their red, white and blue uniforms in a Miami Beach hotel.

Anderson, defending Pan Am Free Pistol Champion and winner of the Interservice Free Pistol Championship and U. S. International Free Pistol competition for five years, was selected to the Pan Am team through his winning of the Free Pistol Championship at the 11th U.S. International Shooting Matches in Phoenix, Arizona in May.

Clark who has been firing a high-scoring pistol in winning ten three-gun tournaments this year, is the All-Army Pistol Champion. He was selected to the team through his Center Fire Competition at Phoenix.

Companion pistol shooters of Anderson and Clark on the team from the Army Marksmanship Unit include MSgt. Robert Whitacre, MSgt Emil Heugatter, SSgt Jimmy McCauley, SFC James McNally and MSgt. Laurence Mosely.

Whitacre, the only man to break the magic 2660 barrier in three-gun competition twice, placed in the center fire competition while Mosely, a veteran pistol competitor and NCOIC of the Marksmanship Unit's pistol division, won his team berth through rapid fire pistol competition at Phoenix.

McCauley and McNally each won their team berths from placing in the Center Fire Pistol competition at the Phoenix matches.

Capts. Lanny Bassham and Clifford Davis, International Rifle shooters from the Marksmanship Unit, fill out the Fort Benning select team. Bassham, a competitor in the 1970 World Shooting Games at Phoenix last year, placed in two events naming him to the Pan Am team when the selections were made at Phoenix in May.

Davis, runner-up in the English Match at Phoenix, will be firing in the Smallbore three-position and English Match at Cali along with Bassham.

Competing against 33 other nations of the Western Hemisphere for the quadrennial games honors, the U.S. team is seeking medals in free pistol, center fire pistol, rapid fire pistol, smallbore three-position and English (prone) matches.

Of the Fort Benning entries, Anderson is the only Pan Am Gold Medalist and returning champion to the 1971 games. Four years ago when the Pan Am Games were held in Winnipeg, Canada, the U.S. Army shooters came away with seven gold medals, one silver, and one bronze. Five of the gold medals were won in team competition. The two individual winners were Anderson in free pistol and Capt. Margaret Thompson Murdock, the gold medalist and Champion in the Smallbore competition. Murdock is the only woman to ever win a gold medal in Pan Am shooting. She is presently married, having departed the Army, and is living with her Marine Warrant Officer husband at Parris Island, South Carolina.

Youth program needs players for football

Football registration for the Officials and Coaches 1971 Youth Activities Football Program will be accepted 8 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday through Friday, July 26 through Aug. 20, at the Youth Activities Athletic Office Bldg. 1054.

Dependent boys who register then will be assigned to a team within the boundaries of designated housing areas. After registration cut-off date, players of all leagues will be assigned to a team without respect to housing areas.

Skeet team leaves post for match

A U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit five-man shotgun team departed Fort Benning yesterday for San Antonio, Texas, where they will compete in the World Championships of the National Skeet Shooting Association. The week-long matches commense July 31.

Sponsored by the Texas International Gun Club of San Antonio, the tournament will feature a series of 550 American-type targets to be followed by 200 international.

The 200 international target competition will serve as a preliminary to final try-outs for the 1972 Olympic team.

Competitors in the American type skeet will shoot 100 targets with each of the 410, 28 and 20 gauge shotgun and 250 targets with the 12 gauge.

Capt. Kenneth Gilbert, officer in charge of the shotgun division, who is averaging 95x100, will be leading the MTU team.

OOOFFF!

Sp4 Douglas "Rocky" D. Henry lifts himself to second place and the title of "Junior Lifter of the Match" at the 10th Annual Korean National Weight-Lifting Championships in the Republic of Korea. "Rocky" lifted a total of 620-pounds in the 132 lbs. The Tacoma, Wash., native is already thinking seriously about the 1972 Olympics in Munich, Germany.

Doughboy series begins tonight

Tonight the Fort Benning Doughboy softball team, current leaders in the Western Division of the 3rd Army Softball League, plays the first of a two-game series against the second-place McClellan team, which carries a record of 13 wins and 3 losses.

Both games will be played at Gowdy Field, main post. The game tonight starts at 7 p.m. The second game will be tomorrow at 1 p.m.

Last weekend the Doughboys split a two-game series with the visiting fort. The game was played at Gowdy Field.

The Benning hitters dropped the first game of that series by a score of 3 to 2, but came back to win the second game, 7-1.

The loss was the second suffered by the Doughboys. They now have a record of 14 wins against two losses in league play.

Soccer club opens season with win

The Fort Benning Soccer Club opened the summer soccer season in the Atlanta Soccer League with a 4-0 victory over the Atlantic Celtics last July 12.

Led by offensive play of Graham Hughes, who scored two goals, the Benning eleven dominated the entire game. Goals also were scored by Victor Gonzalez and Noel Spleen.

Vulin Slaud and Louis Cabrac sparked the defense, which was more than a match for the Celtics offensive moves.

The Benning club, made up of allied students, U.S. officer and enlisted men and civilian government employes, completed the regular season last year with 28 wins and 1 loss. They took first place in the Annual Mobile Invitational Soccer Tournament this May.

Refereeing clinic held for BIOCC

As part of the newly developed Branch Immaterial Officer Candidate Course (BIOCC) program of instruction, the Conditioning, Combatives and Drill Committee conducts an Athletic Sports Refereeing Clinic on Stewart Field for three successive Saturday mornings during the fifth through seventh week of the course.

This program, which is presented to students who volunteer to attend, is designed to equip the future leader with a more complete knowledge of planning and conducting team sports — such as soccer, pushball, and team handball — which may be integrated into a unit physical readiness training program.

AUSA

By Bob Barber

KNOW YOUR OFFICERS

This will be a new addition to the monthly column in order for the general membership to become aquainted with the officers and members of the Board of Directors elected this year.

Col. (ret.) Jacob L. Riley, Jr. was elected president of the local chapter of AUSA at the annual election meeting held June 14.

A native Georgian, Col. Riley received his Bachelor of Arts Degree in 1938 from West Virginia University and attended the College of Law there for one year. In 1961 he received his Master of Arts Degree, International Affairs, from George Washington University.

Col. Riley, former commander of the 197th Infantry Brigade, retired at Fort Benning Nov. 30, 1966 after 27 years of service. He entered the service in July of 1939 and served in the Southwest Pacific during World War II. Other overseas assignments included Vietnam and the Panama Canal Zone. He came to Fort Benning in July of 1964 and served with the brigade and battalion operations department before assuming command of the 197th.

He is presently the chairman of the board of the Gas Light Company, a member of the board of directors of the Columbus Bank and Trust Company and serves on various other corporation boards in the area. Also active in civic affairs in the Columbus community, Col. Riley is a past president of the Better Business Bureau; past director, Columbus Chamber of Commerce; vice chairman, Army YMCA; 1971 United Givers chairman, and Deacon of the First Baptist Church. He has been an active member of AUSA, serving as 1st vice president for the past year.

TAX REGULATIONS ON MILITARY MOVES

AUSA executives have met with the chief council of IRS and the general counsel of the Department of Defense to determine the exact status of the proposed tax regulations that IRS has developed based on their interpretation of the Tax Reform Act of 1969. These proposed regulations do not satisfactorily meet the needs of service personnel. These needs involve: 1) the in-kind reimbursement of moving costs; 2) the provision that moving cost exemptions are not applicable for periods of less than 39 weeks and 3) that moves must be for a distance of more than 50 miles before exemptions may be taken. Proposed legislation to provide the necessary tax relief is being prepared and hopefully will be introduced in the near future. AUSA will support this action.

RELEASE OF CLASSIFIED SECURITY INFORMATION

This was taken from a memorandum issued by the Director of Public affairs, AUSA National in Washington in response to queries about the views of AUSA with respect to the current case of the publication of classified national security information in the public press:

"It is our opinion that this release of classified national security information is not in the public interest. It should be apparent that such acts seriously inhibit our ability to deal in confidence with other nations and give comfort, if not assistance to those who oppose our national aims. And in the case at hand, the publication of such classified material serves no discernible constructive purpose.

". . . . . The concept of freedom of the press which is so consistently and reverently espoused by the media presupposes, in our view, a balancing sense of public responsibility. It is a serious violation of public trust, we believe, for any unauthorized agency, the press included, to undertake arbitrarily the public release of classified national security information. In our system of checks and balances, the investigative power of the legislative branch provides the responsible way to question actions of the executive branch which involve classified material."

HumRRO celebrates 20th year as Army's main research agency

The Human Resources Research Organization (HumRRO) tomorrow will mark it's 20th year of service as the Army's principle training research and development agency.

Originally known as the Human Resources Research Office, the organization was established through an Army contract at George Washington University in 1951. The office was created out of a necessity to develop a broad program of research in human problems of motivation, morale, and leadership.

After 16 years under Army direction, sponsorship was extended to include other departments of the Federal government as well as state and local governments and other organizations that support research in training and education.

On Sept. 1, 1969 HumRRO became a fully independent corporation.

Division Four, one of the seven HumRRO branches, is located at Fort Benning. The unit is currently involved in several programs including Work Units, Marksman, Detect, FORGE, OC Leader and VOLAR.

Div. 4 has assisted USAIS in evulation of rifle marksmanship training through preparation of tests, test analysis and data interpretation in Work Unit MARKSMAN. In addition, the division is continuing its work with laser and subcaliber training devices and moving, aerial and concealed targets.

Work unit Detect deals with the ability of individuals of small Infantry units to detect human targets. Research in this field is vital in decisions of selection, training, tactics and weaponry. Investigation also will lead to better simulation of Infantry ground combat systems through improved target detection data.

Factors in Military Organizational Effectiveness (FORGE) is concerned with the simulation of an Infantry battalion engaged in internal defense operations. FORGE is designed to help improve reaction flexibility and problem solving in changing operational situations.

VOLAR is HumRRO's category for its work on the Modern Volunteer Army concept. Div. 4 has assisted in the VOLAR Project in questionnaire design, literature review and data analysis.

Div. 4 also is involved in the first phases of systems engineering of leadership training for the Infantry Officer Candidate School through its Work Unit OC Leader.

The Combat Arms Tactical Training Program is designed to reduce hazards of learning while commanding troops in airmobile operations through simulation of a command and control helicopter.

Currently in use in the Infantry Officer Advanced Course is material identifying knowledges, skills and thought processes of command and staff officers in combat maneuver battalions. Compilation of the data required interviews of staff officers in more than 80 per cent of all maneuver battalions worldwide.

Included in the research program for FY 72 is a study for the improvement of race relations within Army units and work on perceptual tasks in detecting mines and booby traps.

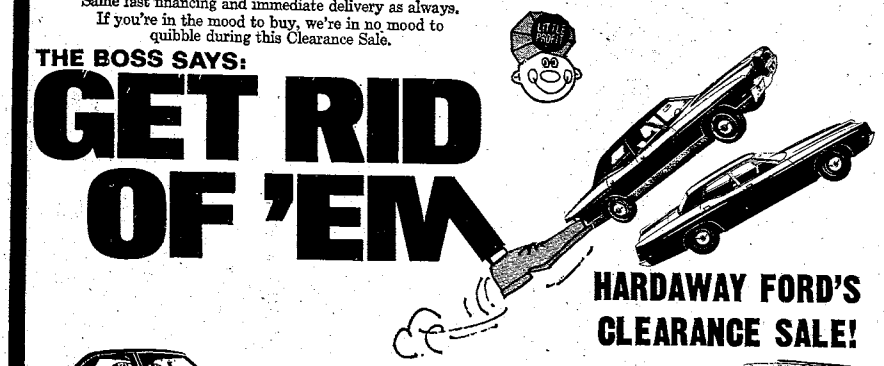
26th Am. adds 11 million voters as Ohio becomes 38th to ratify

Some 11 million young Americans — men and women — became eligible to vote on the last day of June 1971.

On that day, Ohio's Legislature ratified the 26th Amendment to the Constitution, which allows 18-year old citizens to vote, becoming the 38th state to do so and thereby realizing the ratification process.



President Richard Nixon presided over certification ceremonies July 5 at the White House, witnessed by members of the "Young Americans in Concert," a singing group which visited the capital before departing on a European tour.

In a Presidential statement June 30, the Chief Executive said that "young men and women who have participated in the life of our Nation through their work, their studies, and their sacrifices for its defense, are now to be fully included in the electoral process of our country."

President Nixon pointed out that the ratification of the amendment was accomplished in the shortest time of any amendment in American history, a fact, he said, which "affirms our Nation's confidence in its youth and its trust in their responsibility. It also reinforces," the President continued, "our young people's dedication to a system of government whose Constitution permits ordered changes."

Perfect cut

Sgt. Edward Henderson slices a ripe, juicy watermelon at Martin Army Hospital with the help of Max Carden, president of the Crisp County Farm Bureau. The watermelon cutting was held July 13 for the benefit of convalescing patients at Martin Army by Crisp County farmers.

2 soldiers together almost 13 years

Lasting companionships are not necessarily synonymous with career planning for the average soldier considering the constant reassignment procedure.

An exception is the case of SFC Augusta Dawson of Company A, 1-58th Infantry, and his "buddy" SFC Joe Lewis, presently stationed at Ft. Stewart, Ga.

It seems that pure coincidence has usually placed the inseparable pair either in the same unit or in near shouting distances. They have been apart only 60 days of the past 13 years of Army service.

It began on June 19, 1958 in Atlanta, when both enlisted in the Army. They became acquainted while processing at Ft. Jackson, S. C. Their friendship continued while serving in the same companies throughout basic and advanced Infantry training at Fort Benning. This was followed by a two-year tour in Hawaii and subsequent discharge at the Oakland Army Base.

But the story does not end at Oakland. In fact, their friendship and close association really began to firm when Dawson realized that civilian life just wasn't his "thing" and decided to reenlist in the Army. Lewis, completely unaware of Dawson's plans, re-upped two days later.

From this point forward, the two young sergeants couldn't seem to lose one another, always managing to serve in the same unit. In many instances the same platoon.

After a tour of duty in Germany in 1965 both men were sent back to Hawaii exactly one month apart. And of course, they ended up in the same unit.

With the Vietnam buildup in full swing in January 1966, the now close friends traveled to the troubled republic.

Fate continued to play its special adhesive role in their unique association when they were wounded two days apart. This action called for a brief pause in their togetherness scheme, since they were sent to different hospitals stateside for treatment and recovery. A temporary respite in the purest sense, because in August 1967 Dawson ended up in Ft. Wainwright, Alas. Sure enough, Lewis showed up three weeks later.

Like all good things, there must be an end. Final separation came. After completing another tour together in Vietnam the perennial comrades have permanently parted company. But you never can be positive, since Lewis is now only 200 miles away at Ft. Stewart, Ga.

Incidently, the inseparable pair managed to get promoted to their present rank on the same day.

8 servicemen to be honored at retirement

Eight servicemen will be honored in retirement ceremonies to be held on York Field at 9 a.m. today.

Col. Lancelot W. Krueger will receive the Legion of Merit. Lt. Col. James V. Pogue will also be presented the Legion of Merit.

Sgt. Maj. Leonard E. Cruse will receive the Army Commendation Medal with 3rd Oak Leaf Cluster and MSgt. Robert K. Hotchkiss will be presented the Army Commendation Medal with 2nd Oak Leaf Cluster.

The Army Commendation Medal with 1st Oak Leaf Cluster will go to SSgt. William A. Spradlin. SFC James Weatherspoon and SSgt. Vinston L. Ashworth will also receive Army Commendation Medals.

Veterans to question agencies

ATLANTA — Veterans and their dependents in Georgia will have an opportunity to question 36 municipal, state and federal agencies about benefits in one location here Wednesday when the Georgia Department of Veterans Service, together with the Veterans Administration and the National Alliance of Businessmen, holds a one-day, one-stop service and information session in the Atlanta Civic Center Exhibition Hall from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Georgia Veterans Service Director Pete Wheeler, VA Regional Office Director A. W. Tate, and NAB Chairman Jesse Hill announced the program following a meeting with Atlanta Mayor Sam Massell, who signed a proclamation designating Wednesday as "Supermarket of Veterans' Benefits Day" in Atlanta.

In a joint statement Wheeler, State and Hill said, "We believe that there are many thousands of veterans and dependents in Georgia who do not realize that they are eligible for veterans' benefits. In this session we are placing every agency that has any connection with veterans' benefits within easy reach of those eligible veterans and their dependents. This includes dependent parents, wives and children. We will not just answer questions and shuffle people from one agency to another, but will find out what can be done and do it on the spot. We hope to actually file enough claims during the one day of July 28 to equal a new industry coming into the state."

How to plan ahead for what to bring back to States

So you're going overseas. Excited? Well, maybe not, but when your tour is completed over there, chances are you'll be plenty excited about getting on that big jet and heading home.

If you're single, packing for the trip may consist of throwing the threads in a suitcase, putting the uniforms in a duffle bag, and mailing those souvenirs ahead so you won't have to carry them.

For a family, the move back to the States and a new assignment is a lot different. You sort out the things you will need in the new house, those that will go into storage for the "home to call our own" part of your life's plan, and decide what exotic souvenirs you want to display from your overseas stay.

Whatever your packing and shipping problems, one of the many benefits you receive from service in the Armed Forces is the duty free entry of your personal and household effects when you return to the States from an overseas assignment. Even if you mail your effects home ahead of your trip, they will be admitted duty free if you have made the proper arrangements.

You play a very important part in claiming this service benefit.

When you get ready to ship or mail personal or household goods, you must fill out Customs Form 6061 or Department of Defense Form 1252, "Declaration and Entry for Personal and Household Effects." A copy of this form and a copy of your orders must accompany mailed items and be included in any shipment made for you.

Remember now, there is no customs exemption if you are returning to the U. S. on temporary duty, on leave, or for personal reasons before the end of your overseas tour. This holds true whether you are on orders or not.

There are certain categories of articles which may be detained by Customs if you try to bring them home. Included are pet animals, like the monkeys, snakes, birds, and dogs that servicemen seem to collect wherever they go. Other restricted items are fruits, vegetables, plants and plant products, certain items which bear trademarks, and certain types of television sets and microwave ovens. There are items added and removed from this list from time to time. Check with your transportation office for the latest word.

There are other items which cannot be brought into the United States. These include military firearms, narcotics, lottery tickets, obscene materials, wild bird feathers and skins, and items made in Cuba, North Vietnam or North Korea. Such items will be confiscated when found by Customs agents. They cannot be returned to the importer. Again, there are other items on this list. Your transportation office will be able to give you the full listing of prohibited items.

Another benefit you have from serving overseas is being able to mail gifts to your friends back in the United States. Gifts up to the fair retail value of $10 may be sent to friends in the U. S. Under certain circumstances you can send gifts up to $50 in value if they are sent while you are serving on active duty in a combat zone. Get the latest information on this benefit from the combat zone headquarters.

All gifts must be well wrapped and clearly marked on the outside with the words "Gift Enclosed."

When you finally reach the end of the overseas tour, you may even include a foreign-made car as part of your personal effects. But, to get this benefits you must have actually had the automobile in your possession while overseas.

Incomplete claim forms cause delay

DENVER — CHAMPUS officials continue to report that payment of numerous claims for care received under the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services (CHAMPUS) is being delayed because sponsors and beneficiaries are not completing their portion of the claim form properly.

Item 5, Identification Card Data, causes particular difficulty. Sponsors and beneficiaries have been reminded to include the card number and both the effective and expiration dates. They also must be careful, CHAMPUS officials point out, not to confuse the issue date with the effective date. The effective date of a dependent's card is on the reverse side of the card. In the case of retirees the effective date is the date of retirement.

Uniformed services sponsors have also been instructed to keep the ID card for their families current. When care is provided after the expiration date of an outdated card, CHAMPUS fiscal agents reject the claim.

CHAMPUS officials also note that CHAMPUS has no authority to issue ID cards or make eligibility determinations. These functions are a responsibility of each uniformed service and are usually handled through local installations.

U.S. gov't. offers more jobs for vets

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Vietnam-era veterans with no more than 14 years of schooling may now receive special appointments to Federal jobs in grades 1 and 2, the Civil Service Commission has announced.

Previously, the floor for Veterans Readjustment Appointments was grade 3, the level established under labor market conditions then prevailing.

Many Federal agencies, especially those with field installations, have significant numbers of vacancies below the grade 3 level, and it has been their practice to fill grade 3 vacancies by promotion of employees already on the rolls. The new policy will enable them to hire returning veterans to meet their current needs, and subsequently these veterans may compete for promotions.

Under VRA procedures a returning veteran may be hired noncompetitively to work while he receives training, on or off the job. His military service alone is considered qualifying for any job through grade 3.

Connery returns as bond to find Blofeld again seeks his death

James Bond has a gift for survival. No matter how hopeless the situation, how dangerous the enemy, British Agent 007 always manages to extricate himself from disaster. On his part it's a combination of courage, luck and quick thinking. And fortunately for his career, his enemies make too many mistakes.

Take his latest adventures in "Diamonds Are Forever," starring Sean Connery once again as Bond. Just as it seems as if his old nemeisis Blofeld has 007 set up for extermination in the middle of the Nevada desert, Bond pulls one of his fabulous escape capers.

After crashing a tight security testing ground dedicated to the conquest of the world by a criminal conspiracy, Bond breaks out, using a moon machine three-wheeled dune motorcycle.

Shown here in sequence Bond kicks an armed guard off the dune bike, mounts the strange looking vehicle, and roars off to freedom over the roadless desert.

His haste and determination become even more understandable when we realize that he is rushing to a rendezvous with Tiffany Case, a beautiful diamond smuggler, played by lovely Jill St. John. But that's another series of adventures, all dramatized in "Diamonds Are Forever."

Coffee, pool party, picnic keep 197th ladies busy

The summer months have been busy ones for the ladies of the 2nd Bn., 10th Art., 197th Inf. Bde. Early in June, the ladies met in the Corrigedor Room of the Main Officers Club for a coffee. The hostesses were Mrs. James Tindell and Mrs. Alexander Ross. The hostesses, with the help of Miss Pamela Moss, a fashion consultant, gave a presentation of application and types of make-up.

Mrs. Ross demonstrated the various stages of application as Miss Moss explained the purpose of each step. The ladies were invited to examine the various make-up articles and ask any questions they might have in connection with use or purpose of the make-up items.

Refreshments were followed with a business meeting conducted by Mrs. James Wurman. Mrs. John Krisko welcomed Mrs. Henry Wadsworth to the battalion and bid farewell to Mrs. John Roggli, Mrs. Richard Gray and Mrs. James Love. Each were given gifts from the Battalion ladies as a remembrance of their stay in the 2-10th Artillery.

Later in June, a pool party was given by Mrs. James Wurman, Mrs. William Borland Mrs. Patrick Vallely, at the apartment of Mrs. Borland. The party was to honor the expectant mothers in the Battalion.

Corsages of bows and baby delights were worn by the honored mothers-to-be. Games and gifts sprinkled between conversation and refreshments made it an enjoyable evening. Mrs. Bret Abbott departed and Mrs. Jerry Smith was welcomed.

Mid July found the Artillery ladies together once again. The occasion was the monthly coffee, held at the Russ Pond Picnic Area. Mrs. John Hunter and Mrs. Vance Hutchison were the hostesses. Red, white and blue decorations, homemade ice cream and other snacks made the coffee a picnic indeed.

Mrs. James Wurman greeted the guests, Mrs. Willard Latham, Mrs. David Hoh, and Mrs. Stella Ford, mother of Mrs. James Kahs. Mrs. Robert Thomas was welcomed by the battalion ladies, as was Mrs. Louis Rhodes. Goodbyes were said to Mrs. John Krisko, Mrs. William Borland and Mrs. D. I. Smith. Engraved gifts were presented to the departing ladies.

A proud way to save.

This used car is guaranteed 100%.

We won't sell you somebody else's headache.

We won't sell you our headaches, either.

All the cars people trade in on new VWs get our 16-point inspection.

If they pass, we guarantee the free repair or replacement of every major working part* for 30 days or 1000 miles. Whichever comes first. (Sometimes they don't pass. In which case we fix what needs fixing before we guarantee them.)

So if you get a headache, it'll hurt us more than it'll hurt you.

SGT. LUTELLUS JONES (L) GETS CONGRATULATED BY THE NEW SECRETARY OF THE ARMY, ROBERT FROEHLKE (R) DURING THE SECRETARY'S VISIT TO THE 197TH INF. BDE. JONES PERSONALLY ENLISTED 30 MEN SINCE JUNE 1 FROM HIS HOMETOWN.

Secretary of the Army: Soldiers' improvements make management sense

By Don Bryan

Improvements for the individual soldier under the Modern Volunteer Army make good management sense and will remain in the Army even if the service does not achieve its goal of an all-volunteer Army, according to Secretary of the Army Robert F. Froehlke.

Making Fort Benning his first stop on an orientation tour of military installations, Secretary Froehlke said he finds the controversy over the volunteer Army concept "unfortunate" but added that he is excited and enthusiastic over the overall program and its aims.

Noting that good management techniques make good sense, the Secretary added his complete endorsement of a new modern Army and emphasized that the concepts derived from the experimental program will remain with the Army.

Secretary Froehlke arrived at Fort Benning Tuesday. During his tour of the post, he visited the Infantry Officer Candidate School Hall of Fame in which he was just recently installed.

Froehlke is a veteran of World War II where he served in the Infantry in the European Theater. He enlisted in June 1943 and received his honorable discharge as a captain in September 1946.

In addition to briefings on the Modern Volunteer Army program at Fort Benning, Secretary Froehlke also sat in on a race relations class given as part of the Infantry School's resident courses.

Stops elsewhere on post gave the new Secretary a glimpse of Infantry training through visits with the Infantry School and tours of Officer Candidate School and Noncommissioned Officer Candidate School training.

At Kelley Hill, Secretary Froehlke met with mem-

". . . a major step in the right direction."

That's the way Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander, described the Modern Volunteer Army actions taken at Fort Benning since last December.

Writing in the preface to Fort Benning's evaluation of the initial test period, Gen. Talbott said:

"At the end of phase I of the experiment, Modern Volunteer Army Program is still far from reaching the "all volunteer" goal . . . however, we are convinced that the most critical time lies ahead. There is real hope that a truly volunteer situation can perhaps, in fact, be created within the next 18 months."

The general added, "The results of Phase I have convincingly demonstrated the potential of Project VOLAR. This concept has provided itself fully deserving of the imagination, energy and resources necessary to move towards a truly professional volunteer force."

General Talbott said he believes

At 196th anniversary

Army's oldest retired chaplain is honored

An 86 year old Norwegian, affectionately nicknamed by his friends Gynther "By the Grace of God" Storaasli, is probably the oldest living retired Army chaplain according to Chaplain (Col.) Albert F. Ledebuhr, Chief of the Chaplain Division at Fort Benning.

Chaplain (Col. ret.) Storaasli resides at 3948 Mosely Drive in the Benning Hills section of Columbus, with his wife.

According to Chaplain Ledebuhr, it was the intent of the Chaplain's Office to "center our 196th Anniversary around a great man of God in the finest way we can observe this occasion at Fort Benning."

The anniversary celebration was held July 29 at Martin Army's Ward 9. Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Richard Nybro, speaking at the gathering, expressed thanks to God for calling chaplains into the ministry; to the nation for its benevolent support of the chaplaincy; and to Chaplain Storaasli, with love, appreciation and gratitude for what he has done in his long service to God. Finally he gave thanks for Chaplain Storaasli, — his life and his influence which have "added some wonderful chapters" to the history of the Chaplaincy.

Chaplain Storaasli was on active duty from 1918 unti his retirement in 1948 as commandant of the Chaplain School. Among his duty assignments have been Ft. Sam Houston and Ft. Leavenworth, the Philippines, and Ft. Oglethorpe when it was still an active military base. During World War II,

IOAC, grad, Col. Grange, named new Ranger Department director

By Wendell Cochran

A graduate of the Infantry Officer Candidate School and a combat veteran of World War II, Korea and Vietnam has been named new director of the Ranger Department.

Col. David E. Grange Jr. is replacing Col. John Geraci as head of Ranger training. Col. Geraci has moved to a new position in Okinawa.

Col. Grange graduated from OCS in May 1950. He served as a paratrooper in Europe during World War II. He was a platoon leader and company commander in Korea. His last assignment was 3rd Brigade commander, 101st Airborne (Airmobile) Division.

On an earlier tour he had served as a battalion commander in the 101st.

On previous tours at Fort Benning, Col. Grange has been an instructor in the Ranger Department and attended the Infantry Officers Advanced Course. He also is a graduate of the Ranger course and the Airborne course.

Officers council tables 2 problems

The July meeting of the Fort Benning Company Grade Officers' Council tabled two major problem areas: Drug abuse education and the Fort Benning housing siteation, along with other important post functions.

The council heard a report from the committee on drug abuse education which reviewed known programs at Fort Benning. It was decided that most of the council members present felt that they did not have enough specific information on the content and adequacy of this program that it would invite the USAIC surgeon to the next council meeting to answer questions concerning drug abuse education of junior leaders.

Capt. Gilbert E. Hyland, representing the Training Student Brigade told the group that the brigade council is continuing a study of the Fort Benning housing situation and plan to have their report completed by the next USAIC CGOC meeting.

Among the new business discussed were problems that applied to Post Exchange services, commissary functions and VOLAR (Modern Volunteer Army).

During discussion it was noted that the Post Exchange frequently is out of the more popular fishing and hunting equipment items, and the exchange management needed to be advised by knowledgeable local fishing and hunting enthusiasts as to what items are popular in this area. It was learned that this conditon was due to a new supplier initially being unable to fill the large orders being placed by the exchange service, and that it would not be necessary to establish a local advisory board. It was suggested that customers be encouraged to use the customers want slips available at all retail outlets.

The council heard Capt. Charles W. Anderson III, president of the council voice the complaints of several of his constituants concerning commissary stock levels. Specifically citing the absence on many occassions of fast moving items, Anderson spoke of instances when ice cream, chocolate chip cookies, FAB, government issue frozen orange juice and some brands of cigarettes were not to be found on the sheives. In one case, one brand of cigarettes were out of stock for eight days.

It was determined that the periodic "out of stock" conditions of some items in the commissary was primarily due to a shortage of dry and refrigerated back-up storage space.

Fast draw

A computer-controlled drafting machine can draw a tire design in three hours that would normally take 80 hours to draw by hand. This is particularly true of the Milk Bar, where an unanticipated run in any one item can cause depletion of stock.

The meeting was closed after extensive discussion on the proper wearing of civilian attire. Questions arose concerning the wearing of underwear-type shirts, white or colored as an outer garment. The general consensus was that existing regulations quoted were vague, overly generalized, excessively conservative and not in tune with VOLAR. This is being resolved by the revising of post regulations clarifying any restrictions.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

by Bill King

Even more refreshing than a Bloody Mary is a Danish Mary, made with aquavit instead of vodka. Ask your liquor dealer for the "young" kind for the most delicate taste.

For easy picnic cooking and cleanup, heat any canned vegetables or sauces right in the can. Open top first and stand the can "shoulder-height" in a pot of boiling water.

Creme brulee, the English custard with the French name, is said to have been introduced to England in the late 19th century by a Trinity College librarian after his visit to the Republic of Andorra.

Zucchini takes on a zesty flavor when parboiled, then sauteed lightly in seasoned oil with chopped fresh mint leaves.

Byline Bayonet

(Byline Bayonet welcomes questions of general interest about Fort Benning and the Army. Within space limitations all reasonable questions will be answered. Questions of a purely military nature which obviously could be answered more properly by commanders or supervisors within the chain of command will not be accepted. All questions must be signed with current unit of assignment indicated. Send questions to the Bayonet, ATTN: SFC Bob Edwards, Room 602, Infantry Hall or telephone 545-4792.)

Q — What is the current policy governing the use of the Sand Hill Golf Course, to include fees? Also, are there any plans in mind concerning additional holes for the course?

A — All active duty and retired military personnel, reserve components on active duty for training, civilian employes residing on the installation and their dependents over seven years of age are authorized to play on the course upon payment of the prescribed green fees.

1. Dependents between the ages of seven and 18 must be cleared to play by the manager when not accompanied by a parent. In the interest of safety children under seven years of age are not permitted on the course proper or practice areas.

2. Guests of authorized military and civilian personnel when accompanied by the military or civilian sponsor may play on the course upon payment of the prescribed green fees.

3. Active members of golf courses at other military installations in the 3rd Army area may use the facilities here while on leave, TDY status for periods of less than 30 days without payment of green fees.

Green fees Monday thru Friday are $1 for soldiers and dependents; $3 for officers and guests; On Saturdays, Sundays and holidays the fees are $1.50 and $5 respectively. Monthly fees are on a reduced basis.

Under the provisions of AR 415-31 Fort Benning is authorized a maximum of 18 holes of golf. At the present time Fort Benning has 45 holes; 36 at the Officers Open Mess and nine at Special Services, Sand Hill. Although efforts have been made on several occasions in the past to increase the nine hole course to 18 holes, approval from Department of the Army has not been granted.

Q — I understand that the All Army Tennis Tournament will be held in the Washington area. Can you provide details?

A — This is to be an "Interservice Tournament" conduct from 9 through 13 August at the Washington, D. C., International Tournament courts at 16th and Kennedy Streets, N.W. Host is the Military District of Washington (MDW). Participants include: Army, 15 men and four women; Navy 10 men and two women; USMC 10 men and two women; USAF 11 men and two women.

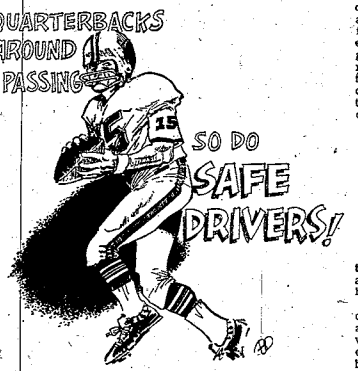
The judge says

Common sense, caution are essential

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second in a series of articles dealing with the purchase and sale of a house.)



USAIC LEGAL ASSISTANCE OFFICE — Buying or selling real estate wisely is not a question of having a detailed knowledge of the law involved, but of having and using liberal amounts of common sense and caution.

The first obstacle is simply arriving at a fair price for what you are buying. This depends upon knowing the quality is usually subject to visual inspection and a few simple tests. For instance, gaps between the sills of doors and the flooring should be a warning signal that a more careful, professional examination should be given to the property. Similarly, if you see any large cracks in the cement of the foundation or a place where the earth comes in contact with wood which is part of the house, you should have a professional check made for termites. In this part of the United States you should have a check for termites made in every piece of property you are thinking of purchasing.

If you are purchasing or investigating an older dwelling, it would be an excellent idea to have a reputable contractor check and see if any significant repairs will be required and what the cost of such repairs will be. If the structure has a basement it would be a good idea to take a look at it during a heavy rainstorm to check for water seepage. This can be a very serious problem, particularly if you plan to do any redecorating or remodeling in the basement.

Perhaps the most devastating defects that are not able to be detected by physical examination of the premises are lack of title and zoning restrictions. The mere fact that a person has possession of a piece of property does not give him the right to convey that property to a buyer. The man must have title to the property before he can (in most cases) convey ownership of the property. If you purchase land from someone whose title is faulty, you may, at a totally unexpected time, be forced to surrender possession of your property. This makes a title search and title insurance imperative.

Zoning restrictions are very important and can ruin carefully thought-out purchase or development plan. These restrictions can prevent commercial development of a piece of land that is otherwise an ideal choice. Even more disturbing is the situation when a man buys land in a previously undeveloped area, builds a beautiful house, and is quite contented; however, subsequent development on the adjacent land is in the form of small commercial establishments and low grade residences. The fair market value of the beautiful house will be drastically affected because of the owner's failure to check the zoning laws.

VETERANS ASK

Q — Can a veteran go to any school, or pursue any educational program he desires?

A — Yes, if the course or program given leads to a recognized educational, vocational, or professional objective, and is approved by the state - approving agency.

Stopping distance is sum of factors

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Brakes that "stop on a dime" are probably on a car that crept up on the coin, according to the statistics of the National Safety Council.

You may think you're ready for a safe summer trip after a tune-up and a brake inspection, but there are several other factors that determine whether you'll be able to stop in time to avoid an accident.

Stopping distance is the sum of reaction and braking distances, and these depend on several variables.

Reaction distance is how far you go while you make a decision and get your foot to the brake. It varies with speed.

Reaction time for most drivers is about three-quarters of a second. In that time a vehicle moving at 20 miles an hour travels 22 feet; at 50 miles an hour it goes 55 feet. At a given speed, the distance is the same regardless of the type of vehicle, condition of roadway or state of weather.

Braking distance is how far you go once the brakes are applied. This varies with speed and type of vehicle, as well as with conditions of road, brakes, etc.

For a passenger car on level, dry pavement, braking distance at 20 miles per hour averages 25 feet, while at 50 miles an hour it is 188 feet. This means that the car's total stopping distance at 20 miles an hour is 47 feet, and at 50, it is 243 feet.

The stopping distances are greater for trucks and vary with their size. At 20 miles per hour, a light two-axle truck needs about 32 feet, while a heavy three-axle truck or combination needs 72 feet. At 50 m.p.h. these distances increase to 280 feet and 375 feet.

The Council reminds everyone that these stopping distances are averages. Precise stopping distances cannot be determined because of such obvious variables as roadway and brake conditions, and less obvious ones, such as the weight and physical strength of the driver in applying pressure to the brake pedal.

More important then the braking distance is perception time. This can be zero, as when a driver is watching the taillights of the car ahead when the brake lights go on. It can be several seconds if the driver is watching something to one side and does not see at once a situation in the roadway which requires him to stop.

"The greatest possible alertness is necessary in today's traffic," says the Council's Traffic Safety Director. Knowing that reaction distance at 30 miles an hour is 33 feet does not mean that that is a safe distance to keep from the car in front.

Don't rely on reaction time to get you out of trouble. You can't see every emergency as soon as it arises. Drive in such a way that you don't need your reaction time and braking distance to avoid an accident. Then, when you do need them, they will still be there.

MAH chief nurse honored at retirement ceremony

COL. ANNE ROSE

Col. Anne Rose, chief, nursing service, Martin Army Hospital, was retired recently in a ceremony conducted by the post commander, Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott.

Col. Rose has lead an army career dating from 1941 when she entered the Army as a nurse. After she completed her nurses training at St. Anthony's Hospital in Pocatello, Idaho.

During WWII, Col. Rose served in the Pacific Theater of Operations being stationed at the 1st Field Hospital in the South Pacific from 1942 to 1943, and then at the 368th Hospital in Guam in 1945.

In 1962, Col. Rose became a chief nurse and was transferred to Martin Army Hospital in that capacity, arriving here in November. While being stationed here, her leadership was directly responsible for the upgradnig of civilian employe positions, the establishment of career patterns for all personnel and the successful implementatinn of a Volunteer Army and "We Care" program in Nursing Service.

During the ceremony here, Col. Rose received the Legion of Merit, a Follow Me plaque, a certificate of appreciation signed by Gen. Westmoreland, and was honored by becoming an honorary Doughboy.

Previously, Col. Rose bad received the Army Commendation Medal with cluster.

After traveling to see her friends across the country, Col. Rose will settle in San Diego, California.

TSB gets re-up award

The School Brigade, USAIS, was honored at a reenlistment incentive award ceremony for its outstanding quarterly reenlistment program.

Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander, presented the Commanding General's Reenlistment Trophy to TSB for their efforts in exceeding the goals.

In addition, certificates of achievement were presented by Gen. Talbott to the 197th Infantry Brigade for their reenlistment rate and to SSgt. Robert J. Powell of TSB for being selected as the most outstanding career counselor for the fiscal year 1971.

197th Infantry Brigade gets new sergeant major

By Steve Partridge

CSM James J. Gallagher Jr., an NCO who had "been practicing the 'VOLAR' concept for 22 years and didn't know it," became the command sergeant major of the Army's largest brigade July 29.

Gallagher replaced Frank C. Plass as the command sergeant major of the 197th Infantry Brigade, one of the units chosen to participate in the Volunteer Army (VOLAR) program, in a ceremony on Presidential Field at Kelley Hill. Plass retired after 32 years of Army service.

A believer in the "thinking soldier," a vital part of the Modern Volunteer Army (MVA) concept, the new 197th command sergeant major thinks that the MVA plan "is good, but that some soldiers take advantage of it."

A man with 22 years of Army experience, Gallagher has seen the Army change with the times since he joined the organization in 1949 due to a personal sense of patriotism.

Asked to compare the Army of "yesterday" with the Army of "today," he replied, "the men of 'yesterday' had much more respect for authority without questioning it and followed the adage our's not to reason why, our's but to do or die.' The soldier of 'today' wants to 'reason why.'

"Today's soldier is as good or better than the soldier of yesterday" when given the proper guidance and reason. He is more inquisitive about the necessity of accomplishing a mission, and if he knows the reason for his mission he does a better job."

Gallagher feels that the inquisitive mind of "today's" soldier "has thrown a challenge at 'today's' NCO." In order to meet the new challenge, the NCO must be "more knowledgeable of unit operations." The new command sergeant major feels that the NCO's are "meeting that challenge."

Gallagher has followed a basic leadership philosophy in his rise to command sergeant major of the 197th Inf. Bde. "I try to train my men to do their job as experts. Once I have confidence in their ability to do their job, I expect them to do it without my looking over their shoulder."

Since his arrival in the Army, Gallagher has served in the infantry, artillery, and operations. He was assigned to the 197th in September, 1965, as sergeant major of the brigade's S-3 section. At that time he found "little esprit or unit spirit within the 197th." Today, Gallagher calls the brigade "a dynamic unit that excels in every facet."

During his tenure in the service, Gallagher served in Korea, Iceland, Germany and Vietnam. While stationed in Germany, in June 1964, he was promoted to the rank of sergeant major.

Gallagher became sergeant major of the 1st Bn., (Mech.) 58th Inf. "Patriots," in June, 1968. In June, 1969, he left for a one year tour of duty in Vietnam where he was assigned to the 4th Bn., 23rd Inf. (Mech.), 25th Division. He returned to Fort Benning after the Vietnam tour, in February 1970 was again assigned as sergeant major of the "Patriots."

Gallagher became acting command sergeant major of the 197th June 21; the title became official July 29.

When selected to his new position, Gallagher was both exuberant and humble. Exuberant, because he would benefit from the leadership qualities of Col. Willard Latham, 197th Inf. Bde. commander, whom Gallagher calls "the field manual description of a commander." Humble, because he had reached one of his service goals, "to be the sergeant major of the best and largest brigade in the Army."

The 197th command sergeant major resides on Fort Benning's main post with his wife, Lorraine, and their three children.

NEIGHBORHOOD SOFTBALL TEAM READY FOR ACTION

29th Inf. soldiers vs. local team in community softball game

By Bob Wise

Soldiers of the 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry played a softball game and basketball game at Columbus' Manly Taylor School, July 29, in conjunction with the battalion's community action program.

Although a rainstorm caused the softball game to be cut short, approximately 300 spectators and guests were given a complete "Army" show as the Infantry Chorus performed and scout dogs demonstrated their abilities.

Instrumental in co-ordinating the event were Sgt. Willie Ingram and SSgt. Richard Hines, both of HHC, 1st Bn., 29th Inf. Ingram and Hines had rounded up the necessary players in the Taylor School neighborhood for the softball game. John Shultz was announcer for the affair. The 283rd Army Band Combo was present, but had to stop playing when the rain began.

After rain abbreviated the softball game, the two teams along with a throng of spectators adjourned to the school's gymnasium for a basketball game.

The Manly Taylor School area was not new to the 1st Bn., 29th Inf. The battalion had devoted much time during June and July to constructing recreational facilities in the area.

The 1st Bn., 29th Inf., team was composed of soldiers from Co. C and the Columbus team was made up of 10-18-year old youngsters from the Taylor School neighborhood.

Before the game began, a refreshment hour was held. A six-foot-long cake was provided. The cake, a model of a new bakery in Columbus, was cut by Lt. Col. Robert W. Faulkender, commander of the 1st Bn., 29th Inf., with the help of a neighborhood youngster.

Columbus Mayor J. R. Allen spoke briefly, praising the Army for its interest in community affairs.

Mayor Allen and 197th Infantry Brigade Commander, Col. Willard Latham, got the softball game underway as each man threw out a "first pitch" to the captains of both softball teams. Mayor Allen threw the ball to the civilian team and Col. Latham threw to the captain of the brigade team.

U. S. officially endorses seating Red China in U.N.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has officially abandoned its long opposition to the seating of communist China in the United Nations. Secretary of State Rogers announced the U. S. will vote in favor of seating Red China at the U. N. General Assembly meeting this fall. Rogers added that the U. S. oppose any move to oust the Chinese Nationalists. Meanwhile Nationalist China has released a statement indicating it accets the new American position.

Taipei issued the statement just after Rogers spoke in Washington. Although it didn't mention directly Rogers announcement, it did call for the rejection of a Coumunist-sponored move to expel Taipei and seat Peking in the U. N. The statement stressed the right for Nationalist China to remain in the world body. Observers believe it's an apparent turnabout intended to leave maximum flexibility for a fight to save Taipei's seat when the General Assembly votes this fall.

Cols. Fraser, Grow accept new positions

By Tom Tegtmeyer

Two Fort Benning units have announced changes in their leadership recently.

Effective July 12, Col. Bruce H. Fraser, chief, Office of Doctrine Development Literature and Plans, assumed the position of commanding officer of Headquarters Command, USAIC. He replaced Col. Robert B. Richmond, who will retire Sept. 1 from his present position as the Post Improvement Program Officer.

Fraser graduated from OCS here in December 1942 and has served in various commands in Italy, Pope, Korea and the U. S.

Also assuming a new command is Col. Robert M. Grow, deputy director of Plans and Training at the Infantry Center.

He will replace Col. Foy Rice as the commander of the Aviation Command, USAIC, Aug. 9.

A West Point graduate, Grow also attended the Command and General Staff College. He has been at Fort Benning since December of 1968 when he was named chief of the Training Division in the Directorate of Plans and Training.

Rice will be going to Ft. Belvoir, Va., to serve in the Combat Development Command.

Army looses award winning photographer

In a simple ceremony held by close friends July 21, the 931st Engineer Group bid farewell to award-winning photographer Sp4 David Okimoto. Okimoto is returning to civilian life after completing 22 months of his two-year military stint with the engineer group. He came here in Sept. 1969 as a photographer after graduating from basic training at Ft. Ord, Calif.

Before entering the Army, Okimoto was an art student at San Francisco State College, and upon graduation he began serving as the college's staff photographer.

It was during the student riots and demonstrations at San Francisco State during 1968 and 1969 that Okimoto's photographic skill came into sharp focus. His film work was seen on many local and network television outlets as he risked personal safety to give his work the integrity he demanded. "If a film or picture doesn't tell the story by itself with no verbal explanation, then the photographer has failed in his effort to convey a message," Okimoto declared.

In one instance, a confrontation between police and students in the college library resulted in a narrow escape from death for Okimoto. He was filming the incident when suddenly there was an exchange of gun fire. A bullet crashed into the side of a building narrowly missing his head. Undaunted, Okimoto moved in closer for some of the best film coverage of the disturbance.

For his dedication and photographic skill, Okimoto was presented with many awards of excellence for outstanding photo journalism.

He won acclaim as a still photographer in 1968 when his exhibits were honored at the Jack London Art Show in San Francisco and the Big Sur Nature Exhibits in Monterey, Calif. As a student he supported himself by producing and photographing color motion pictures, many of which are still being shown in some San Francisco theaters.

Okimoto is returning to his San Francisco home to resume his role as staff photographer and instructor at San Francisco State College. During his tour of duty here, Okimoto served as photographer for the 931st public information office and his pictures were printed with regularity in the post newspaper.

College junior WACs visit post for orientation tour

Looking for a career? College coeds can try one on for size through the WAC College Junior Program.

Approximately 150 college juniors visited Fort Benning July 23 for an orientation tour as part of their introduction to the Woman's Army Corps.

The WAC College Junior Program is designed to attract capable college women to serve in the WAC. Recruiters visit colleges all over the United States to inform coeds of the program. Interested women may then apply for admission to the screening process. An applicant must have above average grades and the physical stamina necessary to complete the training. If she is accepted, she participates in a four-week training program at Ft. McClellen, Ala.

2nd Lt. Marcia Caplan, executive officer of the WAC company hero served as the group's escort officer during the tour, and explained that the McClellen program was essentially a screening process.

"It is a testing ground to put on a little pressure and see how the women stand up. Of about 150 women in the program, we can only select 90 to continue as College Juniors," said Caplan.

The McClellen program is much like basic training. "The college women are expected to maintain the same military discipline as any other WAC. The program is not easy. They have eight hours of class a day, in addition to drill and field trips," explained Caplan. Course work includes such topics as military leadership, personnel counseling, and combat-related courses.

The recent field trip to Fort Benning gave the prospective WAC's a look at regular Army operations including demonstrations of rapelling, and airborne training, highlighted by buddy seat rides for the women.

"This seems to be a popular program for college women who are interested in the Women's Army Corps. They find it challenging and a lot of fun."

If a women is selected for the College Juniors upon completion of the summer training at McClellen, she returns to complete her senior year of undergraduate work. As a college junior, she receives the pay of an E4 throughout her senior year.

Upon graduation, she receives a direct commission as a 2nd Lt. in the WAC, and has a two year obligation.

It is at the beginning of her regular army service that the previous training shows up. "There's a kind of esprit among the CJ's right from the start. During basic, its not uncommon to be told 'let a CJ help you with that,'" Lt. Caplan said.

The women, from all sections of the United States, are scheduled to graduate from the summer program on Aug. 4.

Distinguished Visitor

Commissary theme for luncheon

The ladies of the 3rd Pltn., IOAC, class 6-71 held a luncheon July 22 at the Officers Supper Club. The entertainment was presented by the third platoon players. "Blood, Sweet, and Tears," and C. L. Cannington, chief of Commissary Services.

"The Commissary" was the theme presented throughout the luncheon. Adorning each table were cleverly decorated cans with slogans. The centerpiece for the head table was large robot - type bag boy - made entirely of cans and bottles and boxes. He welcomed guests through a tape recorder hidden in his interior.

Honored guests present were Mrs. Jules C. Trepagnier, Mrs. Robert B. Carmichael and C. L. Cannington.

"Blood, Sweet, and Tears" presented a musical satire of exaggerated situations that occur in the commissary. The cast consisted of Carol Olson, Pam McBride, Barbara Mayo, Kathy Kratzenberg, Carolyn Meyer, Lydia O'Connor, Diane Kiper, Majorie Lechner, Gwen Moran, Jolene Manor and Ruth Neilan.

After the skit, the guest speaker, Cannington, talked to the ladies about the advantages of commissary shopping; the organization that makes it function; and, the new shopping and post exchange system to be built. He ended with a question and answer period.

Along the fem line

By Carol May

(Editor's Note:) — The "Queen of Battle Cookbook" is providing a supplement to enable more Army wives to include their favorite recipes. This OWC culinary classic still has space for your recipes, so please deposit them in the "Along the Fem-Line" boxes in the commissaries or in the OWC suggestion box. Please include your name, address and telephone number, as the cookbook committee may need to contact you. Your recipe may be just the one another wife has been searching for!

NCO NEWS

A group of ladies from the Non-Commissioned Officers' Wives' Club met at Phillips Range on Dixie Road, July 22, for a self-protection course. Before going to the firing range, lessons on safety of handling guns and instructions were given by SSgt. Erbie Spears of the Marksmenship Training Unit and Capt. Paul S. Guthrie Jr. of the Weapons Department. Weapons were supplied by the Provost Marshall's Office but ladies owning their own guns and wishing to learn how to fire them were permitted to do so. Instructors were there to asssist the ladies with the firing of the weapons. Fifteen rounds were fired by each one.

Another course in self-protection and safety will be offered at a later date. Those participating were Mrs. Juan Travina, Mrs. David Aldridge, Mrs. Edward Kilchens, Mrs. Henry Guilbeault, Mrs. Walter Phearson, Mrs. Arthur Gaskins, Mrs. John Little, Mrs. Robert Smith, Mrs. Anthony Fisher, Mrs. Louis Sibert, Mrs. Author Butts, Mrs. John Dyer, Mrs. William Dee, Mrs. Bobby Canady, Mrs. M. H. Woodard, and Mrs. Robert Hale.

Interested members may contact Mrs. David Aldridge, program chairman, at 689-5663, or information may be obtained at the next monthly business meeting to be held at the Top Five Supper Club, August 11 at 1 p.m.

In July, twenty members of the NCO Wives' Club took part in the first of a series of golf lessons offered for the benefit of its members. The instructions are being given at the Sand Hill Golf Course on Tuesday mornings. A tournament will be held at the end of the course.

The ladies will practice all areas of the golfing during their course and should have a working knowledge of how the game is played. Anyone interested in these lessons can obtain further information by contacting any club member.

LEADERSHIP DEPARTMENT

The ladies of CCDC, Leadership department met July 27, in the home of Mrs. Joseph Gryder. Mrs. Billy E. Rutherford, wife of the deputy director of the department, was the honored guest. Mrs. Ruby Smith, mother of Mrs. Edward F. Fiora, wife of the committee chairman, was the special guest.

Mrs. Gryder offered lime cheesecake with a choice of coffee or sherbet-ginger ale parfaits. The August coffee will be at the home of Mrs. Michael A. Ross.

Mrs. Fiora opened the business meeting with discussion of the September 7 luncheon. Plans were finalized for the department's opening event and volunteers accepted for the Thrift Shop and Red Cross Ward Party.

WOMEN'S NEWS

Splashdown!! Only this time it was in reference to pool football featuring the all-stars of Headquarters Committee, Leadership Department, USAIS, at the Holly Hills Clubhouse, July 23, at 8 p.m. Capt. Robin Bartlett was the evening's sponsor.

Sixteen people attended the relaxing evening around the pool for committee's monthly hail and farewell. Guests for the evening were Capt. and Mrs Mack Rogers.

Highlights for the evening were the welcoming of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Billy Rutherford to the committee; farewells to Capt. and Mrs. Guy Marbury and Capt. Robin Bartlett; and a special birthday surprise to Capt. William E. Smith.

OWC ACTIVITIES

The Officers' Wives' Club needs your talent. If you are interested in sharing your special ability with others, please call Mrs. Russell C. Miller, OWC activities chairman, 545-4739.

Beginning Bridge has begun but it's not too late for you to join. Classes are held in the OWC Lounge on Tuesday and Friday mornings, the first 3 weeks in August. The cost is $2. Learn to be a winner. To register or for more information, call Mrs. Dan DeVore, 689-1796, or Mrs. Miller, 545-4739.

197th INF. BDE.

HQ, 197th Inf. Bde. ladies and allied wives got acquainted at a meeting July 19 in the home of Mrs. Lee Smith.

The headquarters ladies completed plans for their August luncheon. The allied wives will be special guests at the luncheon. Colorful dolls, made by the brigade ladies were on display for the benefit of the allied wives.

Special guests were: Mrs. Attareah Malik, Malisya; Mrs. Afef Mamoghli, Tunisia; Mrs. Najet Skik, Tunisia; Mrs. Eugenia Mata, Guatemala; Mrs. Teresita Arce, Argentina; Mrs. Mireya Bush, Nigaragua; Mrs. Teresa Dowling and daughter, Maria Dowling, Chile.

Mrs. Malik, Mrs. Mamoghli, and Mrs Skik modeled dresses of their native costume.

The officers' wives of the 1st Bn. (Mech.), 58th, 197th Inf. Bde., held their monthly coffee on July 20, at the home of Mrs. Ben Taylor. Mrs. Charles Stanfield was the co-hostess for the evening.

Mrs. Stephen Pawlik welcomed two new members into the group, Mrs. Bob Steiner and Mrs. Joe de Blaquiere.

The ladies brought canned and packaged foods to the coffee to be donated to the ACS Food-locker.

After a short business meeting, refreshments were served. The hostesses supplied all of the makings for some super make-it-yourself sundaes and an assortment of baked goods.

TSB

The 50th Co., 5th Stu. Bn., Class 18-71, OCS Wives' Club had a surprise baby shower for the co-chairman, Mrs. James Metzloff, whose baby is due in September. The shower was held at the home of Mrs. John McRoberts on July 22. Cake and punch were served. Mrs. McRoberts read the following poem she wrote especially for Mrs. Metzloff.

CONGRATULATIONS

This is a shower of odds and ends,
Given for you by all your friends,
Diapers of satin used for name tags,
Don't get confused — it's not baby's bag.
We are all here with presents to give,
Games will be played, memories lived.
Remember Fort Benning — your first pregnancy,
Remember the barracks where Jim had to be,
Remember the apartments and all of your friends,
Remember the shower and these odds and ends.

Some of the OCS Wives in the 50th Co. 5th Stu. Bn, Class 18-71, would like to earn money in their spare time by babysitting. For more information please call 689-8698.

The 6th Platoon Wives of the 50th Co., 5th Stu. Bn., Class 18-71, had a baby shower for Mrs. Jack Watts at the home of Mrs. Charles Vaughn. Cake and punch were served and games were played. Mrs. Watts received many lovely gifts for her expected August arrival.

OWC WELCOME COFFEE

Fifty officers' wives, new to Fort Benning, met in the OWC Lounge July 26, for a Kaffee Klatsch with the OWC Executive Board. The guests were enthusiastic about Fort Benning, although many of them have had no previous exposure to an Army post.

Board members were pleased that their efforts of welcoming summer arrivals were so well received, and many questions were asked about OWC activities and facilities available on post to the wives.

This welcoming event was a successful "first" for the 1971-72 OWC officers.

MEDDAC

The August coffee of the Officers' Wives' Club of MEDDAC is scheduled to be held at the Goetchius House in Columbus. The date is August 13, and the time is 10 a.m. Call Mrs. Perry Savage, for reservations before August 9.

What occurred in the Marabar Caves? What happened to Mrs. Moore? These were two of the questions asked by the readers of "A Passage to India" at the July meeting of the MEDDAC Wives' Book Club. This book, by E. M. Forster, was the latest selection of the club which met recently at the home of Mrs. Cesar Lopez, 301 Miller Loop. Mrs. Charles R. Cathy directed the group in a very informal discussion of this book of India and a story taking place there.

The Book Club made three additional selections for the fall meetings. They are: "Future Shock" by Alvin Toffler; "The Winter of Our Discontent" by John Steinbeck; and "All the King's Men" by Robert Penn Warren.

"The Greening of America" by Charles Reich is the book to be discussed at the next meeting to be held Wednesday evening, August 11, at the home of Mrs. David Chaskl, 421-B Craig Court. Buy or borrow the book to read and plan to be there at 7:30.

CALENDAR OF EVENTS

August 11 — MEDDAC Wives' Book Club, 7:30 p.m.

August 11 — Monthly Business Meeting, 1 p.m., Top Five Supper Club. Sandwiches and coffee served as a courtesy. Door Prizes.

Handicapped youths get swim lessons

Monday is the date designated by the Army Community Service (ACS) to launch a series of free swimming classes designed especially for handicapped children. The program will run through Aug. 27 and all handicapped children are welcomed to participate.

The program is divided into three sessions held three times a week, Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 11 a.m. to noon.

Sessions will be held at the Youth Activities Center (YAC) swimming pool. This swimming activity is part of a year-round program available to all handicapped children of Army personnel whether active, retired, divorced or deceased. The minimum age is five years old.

Classes will include formal instructions or just plain informal water frolics.

Water safety is provided by registered life guards who are volunteering their time for the success of this program. In addition, there are many teen-agers who have also volunteered to help in entertaining these youngsters.

For registration and more information call Mrs. Armand De Cesare at 687-5568 or contact Lt. Hamilton at 545-1633 during duty hours.

According to an ACS official, of over 100 handicapped children residing on or off post, only one-third make use of this activity. Eight children have been registered so far.

If you live on post and dad has taken the car to work, there is no problem. Buses are being provided from residences to the swimming pool and back.

Freedoms Foundation deadline set

WASHINGTON (ANF) — "What Is An American?" is the theme for the 1971 Armed Forces Letter Awards competition sponsored by the Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge.

The foundation gives serveral prizes in the competition, the top two being for $1,000 each.

Entries should be sent to Freedoms Foundations, Valley Forge, Pa. 19481, and must arrive before Nov. 1.

Entries can take the form of a letter, essay or poetry, but must not exceed 500 words.

The author's name, rank, social security number, branch of service, complete unit and home address must be included on each entry.

Oh Pooh!

Redecorating the Special Children's Activities Center in Bldg. 1309 was recently undertaken by (from L to R) Mrs. Byron Myers, Mrs. Richard Lawrence, Mrs. David Winterle, and Mrs. Clifford Marr, wives of 3rd platoon, 4-71 IOAC students. The main part of their job was concerned with a Winnie the Pooh mural which now adorns the Center's walls.

CAPE KENNEDY—The roar created by millions of tons of thrust is deafening as the powerful Saturn V rocket leaves the launch pad with its package of three American astronauts. Such was the scene last week as the Apollo 15 crew was launched for its rendezvous with the moon. And there to catch the scene were a reporter and photographer from Fort Benning's Public Information Office. The two were at Cape Kennedy to record Fort Benning's participation in the Apollo launch.

Members of two helicopter crews from the 197th Aviation Company listen as they are briefed on their mission by a member of the Cape's Occupational Health Agency. Following the briefing Capt. John D. Siara, aircraft commander, is silhouetted as he and the two crews fly a reconnaissance of the launch area, shown by the arrow. Then to end a hard day Capt. Siara makes his final notes as he and the crews are placed on standby to fly medical support of the launch.

In, out and re-up

(L-R) Sp4 John R. Jaehne, Mrs. Jaehne are all smiles as Jaehne receives his re-enlistment bonus. Jaehne, 2nd Evac. Hosp., 24th Med. Bn., MEDDAC, completed a tour of service earlier. Upon his release he found that getting a job without a specific skill wasn't very satisfactory. Therefore he re-entered the service with the goal of a good MOS producing school with a future in it. He graduated from the Neuropsychiatric Specialist School which made him eligible for the Variable Re-Enlistment Bonus. It looks like the advance planning paid off.

9th Infantry Div. Octofoil Assn. activated, seeks 'Old Reliables'

In February at Ft. Belvoir, Va., the 9th Infantry Division's Octofoil Association was reactivated. This association would like to establish contact with all former "Old Reliables" who served with, were assigned to, or were attached to the 9th Division from February 1961 through November 1970.

The purpose of the association is to perpetuate the history and accomplishments of the 9th Division and to foster a spirit of comradeship and fraternity among former members of this division.

Local chapters and those individuals interested in forming local chapters of the association are encouraged to contact chapter organization chairman Col. Ray Smith, chief, USA Nuclear Weapons Surety Group at Belvoir.

Current projects planned for the association include a summer publication, a quarterly newsletter, and reunion in the spring of 1972.

For additional information, contact Maj. Tommy B. King at the US Army Engineer Center, Ft. Belvoir or Capt. Jay B. Martin, Ft. Belvoir Information Office, 664-3356-2821, Ft. Belvoir, Va. 22060.

AER, ARS fund drives underway

The 1971 Joint Army Emergency Relief and Army Relief Society Fund Campaign is now underway at Fort Benning and will continue until Sept. 10.

Each year voluntary contributions are sought from all post personnel and their dependents as well as retired servicemen in the Fort Benning area. Civilian employes will not be solicited, but they may contribute if they so desire by sending a check to AER.

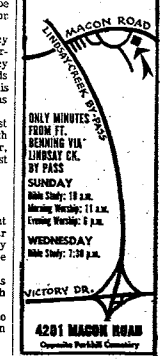
This year AER is striving for $30,000, which will replace the money loaned out through outright grants. Monies distributed to needy personnel by the way of grants cannot be paid back due to death or unseen hardships.

When an emergency such as loss of pay, funeral expenses, emergency travel or medical needs occur and financial aid is needed one may apply as follows:

If you live on post, first discuss the problem with your company commander, and then contact the post AER officer.

If you live in a civilian community, apply through the local Red Cross for AER assistance.

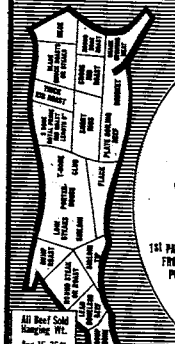
ARS is a program to assist needy widows and orphans of Regular Army personnel. Eligible dependents seeking financial help or scholarships should contact an AER officer or the Red Cross.



The campaign slogan "The Army takes Care of Its Own" will never again be so real as it was to the over 2,000 needy personnel who used AER last year.

Car wash slated

Fort Benning Boy Scout Troop 39 will hold a car wash Saturday and Sunday at the Main Post Service Station.



Approximately 20 Scouts will be on hand to wash cars for $1 per vehicle.

The troop also plans to continue the car wash on Aug. 14 and 15.

Phase I

VOLAR's best achievement at Fort Benning is "creation of a more receptive attitude toward the Army . . ."

But the general cautioned that to discontinue significant projects may "result in a delmination of the receptiveness which has been attained at such effort. Actions requiring funds must be carefully considered in order to identify as accurately as possible those actions which are most productive and those which cannot be supported Army-wide on a continuing basis."

Director

The new Ranger director has also served in Europe, the Pentagon, Ft. Knox and Ft. Bragg.

He is a graduate of the Army War College, the Command and General Staff College and the Russian language course.

Col. Grange is a graduate of the University of Nebraska at Omaha.

Among his awards and decorations are the Silver Star with two Oak Leaf Clusters, the Legion of Merit with one Oak Leaf Cluster, Distinguished Flying Cross, Soldiers Medal, Combat Infantryman's Badge with two stars and the master parachutist badge.

Chaplain

Chaplain Storaasli served as Chief of Chaplains, U. S. Air Force whil eit was part of the Army. He was a missionary to China at one time.

Army retirement did not stop the gentleman from serving God in his own special way. Chaplain Storaasli was executive secretary of the Bureau of the Chaplain Service to Military Personnel. A Lutheran, he later worked in the Evangelical Lutheran Church of Minneapolis as director of chaplain services and recruiter of chaplains for his denomination until about 1961. After settling in the retirement community of Columbus, Chaplain Storaasli has remained active, attending chapel services regularly at Fort Benning and swinging a golf club when the weather permitted.

Word got out a few weeks ago that Chaplain Storaasli was recuperating from an illness at Fort Benning's Martin Army Hospital. As a result he has been flooded with cards and letters from across the country, wherever his work has carried him. Cards keep coming wishing him a speedy recovery from general officers, clergymen, military and church circles. Sylvia, his wife of 37 years, visits him every afternoon. She, is also 86.

Japan, United States sign treaty

WASHINGTON — On June 17, Japan and the United States signed a treaty which calls for the return of the Ryukyu Islands — including Okinawa — to Japanese rule.

The treaty, which must be confirmed by both the U. S. Senate and the Japanese Diet before it will go into effect, will bring to a close more than 25 years of U. S. occupation of the island group. While the World War II peace treaty between the U. S. and Japan signed in 1951 called for the retention of the Daito and Ryukyu Islands by the United States, our government has long been committed to the eventual return of the island group.

United States' policy recognized Japan's residual sovereignty over the islands in 1951.

Outlining the U. S. position on the return of the islands recently, the State Department pointed out that reversion of the area to Japanese rule is essential to keep the good relations we have developed with Japan. Japan, one of our most important Asian allies, has become one of the world's largest economic powers since the end of the war and is now the largest overseas customer for U. S. goods. Japan's government and people are anxious to bring the island group's one million residents into their booming economy.

When the reversion treaty is finally approved, Japan will pay the U. S.

Soldier designs bridge

One soldier of the 43rd Engineering Battalion who adds his own flare for personnel pride to the often times menial task of soldiering is Sp5 Ronald Catoe, designer of the McKenzie bridge and dam. Catoe, 23, is a draftsman with the Engineer Battalion.

He graduated from Clemson College with a degree in civil engineering in May, 1969, and was formerly employed as an engineer with the Army Corps of Engineers in Charleston, S. C.

After receiving a notice for induction Catoe enlisted in Officer Candidate School, but later dropped the course when he was offered a chance to separate from the Army a year earlier.

When the McKenzie bridge was crushed by the swelling waters this year, the Kershaw, S. C., native was tasked with engineering the plans for the restoration work. In two weeks the plans were ready. Catoe had done his job and it was up to the builders from Charlie Company, 43rd Engr. Bn.

Restoring the bridge was particularly difficult, especially for designer Catoe. The flood did not wash away the entire bridge span nor all the dam. About seven years ago a similar mishap destroyed part of the structures and they were restored by a civilian firm who simply replaced the parts that were damaged. The floods this year completed what the floods seven years ago had begun. The remaining portion of the structures were washed away leaving the newer portion intact.

Catoe said he wanted to keep the remaining portions of the bridge and dam (which were only seven years old) intact, and construct new spans. This, he said, would save a great deal of money.

The young engineer related that designing the bridge was his most important accomplishment while in uniform. "It was a big challenge since it's much easier to design a new bridge than it is to add on to an old one," he said, "but I'm glad everything went as smoothly as it did."

The personable draftsman will be leaving the Army in November and returning to his civil engineering job in Charleston with his wife, Cindy, and son, Jeffrey.

Sp4 graduates top in class

Sp4 William A. Davis, Moreland Hills, Ohio, was the honor graduate and Sp4 Richard D. Tolbert, Collinsville, Miss., was the academic graduate of the Field Radio Mechanic Course Class 15-71, 15th Co., 1st Bn., TSB, which graduated in ceremonies July 28 at Infantry Hall.

Lt. Col. Jack L. Casselberry, Director, Communications and Electronics, delivered the commencement address to the 75 graduates.

'Oh Dad, Poor Dad' playing at Auburn Univ.

"Oh Dad, Poor Dad, Mama's Hung You in the Closet and I'm Feelin' So Sad" is playing at the University of Auburn today and tomorrow.

The farce, by Arthur Kopit, will be presented in the University theater on College Street, with curtain time at 8 p.m. Reservations may now be made through the box office in the music annex basement.

The play is an hilarious, surrealistic, ambivalent nightmare, and it is not always easy to maintain the proper balance between its terrifying implications and its excruciating farce. Kopit is "absurd" primarily in the sense that he is shocking, irreverent, daring, unorthodox, and thus fair in his career disinclined to take human existence very seriously.

In the cast are Mary D. Keatley of Auburn as Madame Rosepettel; Henry Cadenhead of Greenville as Jonathan; Ann Ingram of Cullman as Rosalie; Robert S. Bermettler of Auburn as Commodore Roseabove, Mechti Achmetov of Boonton, N. H., as Albert, and Johnny Lovel of Birmingham as the head bellboy.

Other bellboys are Kevin Kilpatrick of Alexandria, Va.; Jef Lanier of Montgomery, Joe Dicks of Huntsville, Steve Hilton of Albany, Ga., and Robin Ranier of Notasulga.

There is no charge for tickets for students with ID cards. Student wives and public school students are $1; general admission is $2. Reservations are necessary for AU performances.

'Wizard' is coming to Benning

"We're off to see the Wizard, the wonderful Wizard of Oz." Dorothy and all her friends are coming to Main Post Theatre No. 1 Aug. 14 and 21 at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. They are also going to Warm Springs Hospital Aug. 20. Since the journey from Oz is long and difficult, they've asked must go. Jeff Grandel to help them get the show ready.

With the first production only a week away, Grandel, like all directors, is convinced the show will never fall in place. Yet, his previous theatre experience is standing him in good stead. His first adventure with stage work came in the third grade when he directed "Cinderella." He was hooked.

From neighborhood puppet shows, to school plays, to college major, Jeff has delved into all aspects of theater work.

Before entering the Army, Jeff was a speech and technical drama major at Central Michigan University. While there, he worked on more than 30 productions. His talents were not long overlooked. As a sophomore, he won the Certificate for Outstanding Achievement in Theatre. The Award for Best Technical Work became his during his junior year. In his senior year, Jeff was presented the F. R. Bush Award for Most Outstanding Contributions to Theatre. During his last two years of school, Jeff was teaching all aspects of technical stagecraft to college classes.

Children's theater has long been one of Jeff's special interests. First and foremost, he just plain likes kids. He also finds they are the most satisfying audience to work for because they are more appreciative and most easily bound up in the performance. If caught young, they will grow up with a taste for the theater—not necessarily as a career, but at least as a good audience.

With this belief, Jeff worked in several productions for children. He portrayed the Tin Woodsman in the "Wizard of Oz", and served as light master for another production of the same show. He also lighted, "The Un-Wicked Witch." For "Hanzel and Gretel," he was stage manager. Later, Jeff designed and constructed scenery for "Rapunzel" and "Ahmal and the Night Visitors." In productions of "Cinderella" and "Enchanted Cat," he was technical director.

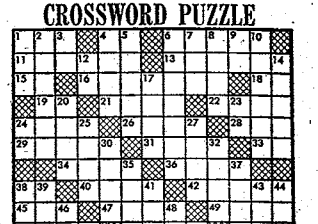
Jeff follows the pattern set for all Benning Dramatizers. During the day, he fulfills his duties as an instructor in Tactical FM Radios in the Infantry School. Evenings and weekends are devoted to the show.

Working at top voice with hands flapping, Jeff is hurrying to get the Wizard ready for 10 a.m. Aug. 14.

Tickets may be obtained at the Playhouse, Bldg. 1237, behind the Infantry Museum, or may be purchased at the door of Theater. No. 1. Admission is 50 cents.

CC film fest

The Columbus College Summer Film Festival sponsored by the March of Dimes will bring ten movie classics to campus this summer.



Open to the public, the films will begin at 8:30 p.m. on Mondays and Wednesdays in the Fine Arts Auditorium on campus. While the voluntary curfew is still in effect, the films will be shown at 8 p.m.

A $1 admission fee will be charged both students and adults. Proceeds go to the March of Dimes' fight against birth defects.

Films included in the selection are: Alfred Hitchcock's "Psycho" with Tony Perkins and Janet Leigh, Aug. 9; "Loves of Isadora" with Vanessa Redgrave, Aug. 11; Tom Courtney in "Otley," Aug. 16; Lon Chaney in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," Aug. 18; "Ship of Fools" starring Lee Marvin and Oscar Werner, Aug. 23.

Auburn concert slated

The Auburn University Department of Music will present its summer chorus in concert Tuesday at 8:15 p.m. in the Auburn United Methodist Church.

The concert will be directed by Dr. Terrance A. Anderson, guest director of choral activities and assistant professor of music.

Two major works will be performed: "Magnificat for Six Voices" by Claudio Monteverdi and "Behold I Build an House" by the American contemporary composer, Lucas Foss.

The Monteverdi composition comprises the closing section of the "Solmne Vespers of 1610." Foss is currently musical director and conductor of the Buffalo Symphony Orchestra.

Organist for these two compositions will be Dr. Wayne Moore, professor of organ, Auburn University.

Other works on the program include an echo song, "Ola o che bon echo", by Orlando de Lasso; a setting of Ave Maria by Giuseppi Verdi; "Five Check Madrigals" by Barsalse Martin; and "Psalm Concertato" for chorus and five instruments written by Daniel Moe, professor of music at the University of Iowa.

Soliists will be Linda Singleton of Auburn; Lynda Tucker of Atlanta, Ga., Orville Gannon of Boaz; Denson Wood of Birmingham and Thomas Holman of Hartford.

Instrumentalists include Joseph Slaughter and Dr. Donald Hartford, trumpets; Stephen Jones and Dudley Singleton, trombones; and Robert Jemina, string bass. All are from Auburn.

Synopsis

MY FAIR LADY (Rated G) — The Alan Jay Lerner-Frederick Loewe Academy Award Winning musical is based on "Pygmalion," G. B. Shaw's famous play about a London slum-dweller who is transformed into a grand and elegant lady.

Rex Harrison and Audrey Hepburn star in the film which tells how a phouetics expert, offended by the speech of a flower girl, undertakes to improve her lot by teaching her to speak her native language correctly.

Not only does he succeed in a miracle of personality-change, but he winds up loving the new woman. Many of the hit songs are still being heard today and probably will be for many years to come.

You will long remember such classic hits as "I've Grown Accustomed To Her Face," "Wonldn't It Be Lovely?" "With A Little Bit Of Luck," "Show Me," "Get Me To The Church On Time," "I Could Have Danced All Night" and "On The Street Where You Live."

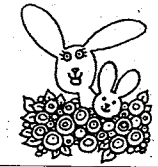
THE RACING SCENE (Rated G) — The Racing Scene," starring James Garner, is an auto-racing documentary that provides 90 minutes of racing action that takes you into the pit, the driver's seat, on to the bazardous tracks at Sebring, Daytona, Limerock, St. Jovite and many more

See the world's famous drivers Mario Andretti, Parnelli Jones, Scooter Patrick, Bob Bondurant including Special Guest Driver Dick Smothers.

WHEN DINOSAURS RULED THE EARTH (Rated G) — Set in prehistoric times and replete with tidal waves, antediluvian reptiles and scantily-clad beauties, Dinosaurs also boasts an element not usually found in films of the science-fiction genre — a sense of fun.

Victoria Vetri, a maiden of the Rock Tribe, a blonde outcast in their black-haired society, is slated to be a religious sacrifice to the Sun god. Victoria escapes and is sheltered by a dinosaur in whose cave she seeks refuge.

Robin Hawdon is the young fisherman of the Sand Tribe who befriends her and with whom she falls in love.



Patrick Allen is the Rock Tribe chief who relentlessly hunts her down, fearful of the wrath of the Sun god if she is not found and sacrificed.

ADIOS SABATA (Rated GP) — The setting of the picture is the dusty Mexican-American border in the final quarter of the 19th Century.

Yul Brynner portrays Sabata, a tight-lipped bounty hunter dressed in black who lets his actions and guns speak more eloquently than his words.

The adventure yarn, laced with humor, revolves around a wagonload of gold dust and two outlaw bands, led by ruthless men, who do their best to get possession of it — robbing, cheating and killing are the least of their crimes.

Forest fires burn more than trees.

Street, drag racing thrills in 'Two-Lane Blacktop'

Packed with all the excitement of automobile drag racing and the clandestine street speed gambling on hopped-up cars by hopped-up men, the Michael S. Laughlin production in Technicolor for Universal, "Two-Lane Blacktop" is showing at a local theater. It stars James Taylor, Warren Oates, Laurie Bird and Dennis Wilson, and three of that foursome make auspicious screen debuts in the vehicle.

While Oates is the only one seen before on film — he's a veteran of more than 20 years of professional acting — Taylor and Wilson are not unknown to the public. A gifted composer and singer, Taylor rose swiftly to superstardom in the folk-rock music field with his record albums, notably "Sweet Baby James" and "Mud Slide Slim and the Blue Horizon." As the Driver of the finely-tunned 55 Chevy — one of the two automobile protagonists of the story — in "Two-Lane Blacktop" he gives a straight dramatic performance without any reliance on music.

Wilson, a dummer, singer and composer for The Beach Boys, and a millionaire at the age of 25, makes an impressive dramatic debut as the Mechanic. Constantly, in the film, he adjusts the motor to keep it purring at its peak of efficiency and maximum speed, and it is he who rolls on the racing slicks, replacing the regular tires whenever a competitor is found. As with the others in the story he is known by no other name than the Mechanic.

Oates is the flashy playboy in a fairly new GTO who makes the sport worthwhile by wagering his car against that of the Driver and the Mechanic in a cross-country race with time out en route for many drag runs and the many street challenges. GTO, as Oates is known in the film, acts as his own mechanic in the thrilling undertaking.

Miss Bird — "the Girl" — joins the Driver and the Mechanic when the latter two stop at a roadside diner for lunch. She becomes part of the action as it develops, riding part of the time also with GTO and finally, when the cars near their destination, she gets up and leaves with a motorcyclist, as simply as she had joined the others in the beginning. A New Yorker, interviewed there originally, the teen-ager was signed in Hollywood by director Monte Hellmen after studying scores of applicants.

Rudolph Wurlitzer (of the musical family) and Will Corry wrote the screenplay of the latter's story. Laughlin, at the age of 32, is one of Hollywood's youngest producers. His most recent release is the critically acclaimed "Dusty and Sweets McGee."

"Two-Lane Blacktop" is rated "R — Restricted. Under 17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian."

Out Of Range

Katie Dooley (Sandy Duncan) is left high and dry awaiting her husband Albert's (Dean Jones) warm greeting as he ducks past her to avoid a watchful neighbor who he suspects is spying on their activities and that of their pet duck who just happens to lay gold eggs, in this scene from Walt Disney Productions' comedy feature "$1,000,000 Duck," starring Jones, Miss Duncan, Joe Flynn, Tony Roberts and James Gregory which begins tonight at a local theater.

Libraries' Books

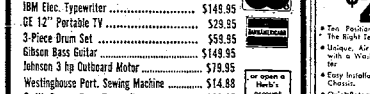
Defense Secretary, Charlie Wilson, once said "What's good for General Motors is good for the country." Special Services Libraries offers a variety of books on American business.

"Automobile Almanac '71," David Ash: This book is a valuable record of the immediate events in the automotive world during 1970. It includes an illustrated car-by-car review of the 1971 makes and models.

"The Nashville Sound," Paul Hemphill: This Nashville Sound is a dazzling, gifted literary portrait of the music that more Americans listen to than any other kind: one that has grown from a piece of regional culture to a major industry, and is in the process of becoming a national phenomenon.

"How You Can Beat Inflation," David L. Markstein: If you pay a grocery bill, live in a home, buy goods or services of any kind, then obviously you feel the need to beat the effects of today's inflation. Here, at long last is the authoritative, completely practical advise you need.

"Consumer Swindlers and how to Avoid Them," John L. Spencer: This book describes the swindlers and their methods and tells how to detect fraudulent operations in the market. It gives instructions about how to avoid the gyp artist, and also how to get the most for one's money when one does buy.



"Franchise Boom," Harry Kursh: How to choose, secure and finance a franchise. A unique three-way personality guide to over 300 franchise companies.

"Questions and Answers on Real Estate," Robert W. Semenow: A one-stop source of information to help you prepare for and pass your real estate license test. Every page is a golden nugget of needed information.

"Your Investments," American Research Council, Inc.: This book contains more than 3,000 investment situations, analyzed by the editors of the American Research Council. This is a standard source book for both the investment advisor and individual investor.

Secretary

bers of the 197th Infantry Brigade and had lunch at a company mess hall.

Secretary Froehlke and his wife also attended a reception and dinner in their honor Wednesday night at the Fort Benning Officers Club.

The Secretary placed special significance on the fact that he made Fort Benning his first stop on his initial tour of military installations since taking over as Secretary of the Army on July 1.

While Secretary Froehlke did not offer any specific plans for Fort Benning's future troop strength, he did emphasize that the post is vital to the nation's security "and in my opinion, it is not going to go down."

Because of Fort Benning's responsibility for training the Army's infantryman, the Secretary noted that the post is placed high in the Army's role.

Twice during an informal news conference Wednesday morning before his departure for Ft. Jackson, S. C., another stop on his tour, Secretary Froehlke placed emphasis on the individual soldier. He stated as his personal objective before ending his tenure as Secretary of the Army, "I hope it can be said that the man wearing the uniform is wearing it more proudly then than he is wearing it now. I think this is terribly important — that we have more pride in the uniform. . . "

Also Secretary Froehlke placed emphasis on the family man in the service. He said he feels that enough emphasis has not been paid in the past to the service families. He noted that he has plans for improving life for the Army's families.

Among these, he noted, is assuring the soldier that he will have what he can call a "home post" that he can return to every few years and remain there for a few years at a time.

The Secretary said that there are some national risks involved in establishing a modern Army with a reduced troop strength. However, he emphasized that it is the job of those persons in management positions to insure that the availability of money is balanced with the risks and that these risks are minimized.

However, he emphasized that he feels it is his duty as Secretary of the Army to point out these risks to the public.

Secretary Froehlke also commented on the present situation surrounding the expiration of the draft laws. He noted that the nation will not feel the effect of the draft law expiration for four to five more months but predicted that the "pinch" will be felt badly at that time. He noted that the Army will not "fall apart" because of the lack of a draft law because the Army will "make do with what the Congress gives us."

However, he said he wished the effects could be felt now instead of later "to light a fire under a few people."

MARS enables overseas soldier to call home

Overseas servicemen can call Columbus free of any charge through the Military Affiliated Radio System (MARS).

Fort Benning, with one of the largest antennas in the 3rd Army area makes approximately 1,000 phone patches from Southeast Asia a month.

Besides the phone patches, the MARS station at Fort Benning handles teletype messages. About 35 messages of this type, with a maximum of 25 words, come from overseas to the area served by the Benning MARS station, and about 40 messages are sent in the other direction.

There are six people who handle the MARS station, working seven days a week, 18 hours a day on week-days, and 12-hour-a-day on weekends.

SFC Clarence B. Kailiaau, NCOIC of the MARS station, said that the personnel at the station worked two six-hour shifts on some days, but that the station's morale was high because the station was a morale factor overseas.

Kailiaau said that there are nine MARS stations on military bases in the 3rd Army area, but that the entire 3rd Army MARS radio network possibly exceeded 500 stations, counting all the civilians hams who belong to the "Net."

The station at Fort Benning has about $200,000 worth of equipment, including the new 3,800 watt antenna (1,900 sending and 1,900 receiving).

Due to all this equipment and power, Benning was able to take part of the load of calls and messages when the earthquake hit the California area this spring and many of the MARS station in that area were knocked out or were in emergency use.

To make a call possible from someone in Vietnam, the call is arranged by one of the stations in Vietnam and is sent directly to Fort Benning, if it is intended for the 3rd Army area, then the call is patched through to the number called, for the price of the call from Fort Benning to that number.

Retired officers schedule meet

The August meeting of the Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning Retired Officers Association will be held in the ballroom of the Fort Benning Country Club Aug. 9.

A social hour will begin at 7:30 p.m. followed by a business meeting at 8.

The primary item on the agenda of the business meeting will be the nomination of officers to guide the activities of the chapter. All retired commissioned and warrant officers, members and non-members are invited to attend.

Additional information concerning the chapter may bt obtained from Lt. Col. (ret.) Norman Williamson by telephoning 545-2554 or 687-1616.

Ft. Benning personnel finish drug abuse class

Daniel L. Bradshaw, of Phenix City, coordinator of drug and alcohol programs at Martin Army Hospital, Fort Benning, and a member of the Columbus, Georgia, Council on Drugs and Alcoholism, and Chaplain (Capt.).

Thomas R. Fraker of Fort Benning completed a two week course of intensive instruction in drug abuse prevention, treatment and rehabilitation at the Drug Abuse Training Center, California State College, Hayward.

The center, funded by the National Institute of Mental Health of the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, offers short-term training in all aspects of the drug abuse problem to selected students from throughout the United States.

Trainees in attendance represented 13 states and included doctors, nurses, educators, students, drug abuse clinic workers, public health and mental health professionals, members of the clergy, law enforcement officers and military personnel.

Through lectures by nationally recognized authorities, the center graduates receive a thorough grounding in the pharmacology of drugs, symptoms of drug abuse, acute and long-term treatment methods, social causes and effects, alternative life-styles, funding and administration of drug programs, preventive education, cross-cultural communication and dynamics of group processes.

They also observe and participate in the day-to-day operation of drug programs at cooperating field agencies in the San Francisco Bay Area.

Attendance at the Drug Abuse Training Center, Hayward, now in its second year, is free to qualified persons interested in or professionally concerned with the nature of drugs and the problems surrounding drug use and abuse in contemporary American society.

By John Davis

When the Red Sox sold Babe Ruth in the 1920's, irate Boston fans threatened to stage another tea party in the Bean City.

A spectator boycott was suggested after the Cincinatti Reds traded ace slugger Frank Robinson to Baltimore following the 1965 campaign.

More recently, Washington baseball watchers have been vehemently protesting a series of swaps that have virtually depleted the Senator's of what little talent they possessed.

Consider the Red Sox-New York Yankee exchange that brought Babe Ruth from Boston to New York and launched him on his immortal career as an outfielder.

Sox' owner Billy Sullivan was in desperate need of cash and the Yanks offered $100,000 for Boston's star hurler. At the time Ruth was one of the premier righthanders in the game. In fact, the portly hurler had just established a record nine shutouts in a single season, an American league mark that still stands today.

Needless to say, Boston fans were irate when Ruth traded in his Sox uniform for the Yankee flannel, but in reality the swap was advantageous to both parties. The cash, quite a sum in those days, bailed the financially plagued Sullivan out of a possible bankruptcy thus saving the Boston franchise. Ruth, of course, became the New York rightfielder and potent bat was instrumental in building a Yankee dyoasty that was to last for many years to come.

Another memorable deal concerned the Baltimore Orioles and Cincinnati Reds. The year was 1965 and the key names in the four player trade were Red Slugger Frank Robinson and Oriole hurler Milt Pappas.

Robinson, who has won the most valuable player award in both the National and American Leagues, feel from the good graces of Cincinnati owner Bill DeWitt, and much to the dismay of disbelieving Red Backers, was placed on the trading block.

Baltimore quickly offered Pappas, a good but hardly great right-handed fastballer, and two lesser players for the Red's slugger. The next year the Orioles captured the World Series crown thanks mainly to Robinson. The O's made a repeat performance in the post season classic in 1969 and 1970, again winning the world title the latter year.

Robinson is still an important fixture in the Baltimore lineup and as a matter of fact was named the most valuable player in this year's all star clash in Detroit. And Pappas? . . . He was traded to Atlanta in 1968 and now pitches for the Chicago Cubs.

The St. Louis Cardinals traded themselves into back-to-back World Series appearances in 1967 and 1968 when they picked up Orlando Cepeda from San Francisco.

Cepeda was obtained in an even exchange for left-handed hurler Ray Sadecki, a swap that raised a lot of eye brows in the city by the bay. Although he had been a twenty game winner once before the tall lefty was bothered by arm trouble and his future was in question; Cepeda on the other hand was a proven big league hitter who was simply tired of riding the Giant bench.

The big boller guy had also voiced disapproval over the San Francisco climate, claiming that the cold, damp weather bothered his ailing knee. At any rate, Cepeda liked St. Louis well enough to lead them to two consecutive National League flags and one world title.

The Cardinals had scored earlier—in 1964 to be exact — when they swapped sore-armed Ernie Broglio for the Cubs fleet-footed Lou Brock. Broglio couldn't cure his arm ailment and subsequently passed from the big league scene. Brock was a mainstay in the 1964, '67 and '68. Red Bird pennant drives and the slender outfielder continues to be a valuable piece of St. Louis porperty.

The Cubs were able to salve their wounds somewhat, however, when they picked up Fergnson Jenkins for a pair ancients Larry Jackson and Bob Buhl in another in the series of Philadelphia Phillie trade boo-boo's.

Thinking they had a chance at the 1966 pennant. The Phillies picked up Jackson and Buhl who were definitely over the hill, to give them two much needed starters. Chicago skipper Leo Durocher immediately recognized that Jenkins was a diamond in the rough and offered the strong-armed Canadian born right bander a starting job.

Jenkins responded by winning 20 games in both the 1967-68 campaigns 21 more in 69 and 22 last summer. Jackson and Buhl, as one might suspect, have long since been put out to pasture.

Post soccer team downs Georgia St.

The Fort Benning Soccer Club won a close game against the Georgia State University club in an Atlanta Soccer League game at Stillwell Field last Sunday.

The Benning team scored two points to the State team's one to win a contest marked by close defensive play by both teams on a rain soaked field.

Graham Hughes, the Benning team playing captain put the home team on the scoreboard for the first score of the game after more than 40 minutes had elapsed in the first half. The second score was also made by the Benning eleven. Jorje Dowling dribbled the ball into the goal from his position at right wing when twenty minutes had gone by in the second half.

Trailing 2 to 0, the Georgia State team pressed their attack and succeeded in scoring for the first and only time late in the game.

The Benning defensive play was led by fullbacks Rolf Kreyscher and Bouthanh Siathone.

The next game scheduled for the Benning squad will be played at 4:30 p.m. this Sunday on Stillwell Field when they meet the Ben Hill team from Atlanta.

2nd Lt. Stephen Best of Fayetteville, N.C. doesn't appear too enthused about his catch at Fort Benning.

Benning in National

The National Rifle and Pistol Championship matches started this week at Camp Perry, Ohio. SFC Bonnie Harmon of the Army Marksmenship Training Unit, champion of the Pre-Perry pistol matches, is on hand to lead his team of superb Army handgunners into competition.

Competing with the marksmanship handgunners in the three-day, 2700 aggregate for the National Pistol Championship, are approximately 600 of the nation's best handgun target shooters. Competiting are civilian, National Guard, Reserve components of each service and representatives of all of the sister services. The shooters are seeking national titles also in sub-aggregates for the 22 Caliber, Center Fire Pistol and 45 Caliber Pistol individual and team competition. Pistol competiton started Sunday with the firing of the 22 caliber slow fire match.

Sponsored by the National Rifle Association, the National Matches features competition in Pistol, Small bore Rifle, Skeet, Clay Pigeon and Service Rifle.

Own something better than a champion.

The Mark III Triumph Spitfire is a three-time Divisional winner and a national SCCA racing champion. It would be hard to ask for anything better.

Except that there is something better: the Mark IV Spitfire. It's everything the Mark III is, plus stronger engine bearings, synchromesh in all four gears, a new improved suspension system and a handsome restyling by Ferran body designer Giovanni Michelotti.

Ask your Triumph dealer to let you test drive a champion Spitfire. He'll give you his best.

ROD AND GUN CLUB Notes

By Bill Kloeb

The newly elected members of the Post Rod and Gun Club Board of Governors held a meeting at the Rod and Gun Club July 29. Col. Jere O. Whittington, president of the board, presided.

The first business was to assign board members to duties on committees covering the various activities of the club. Lt. Col. John A. Smith Jr. MEDDAC, (tel. 544-3413) was appointed chairman of the skeet and trap committee; Norman McCullough, civilian and retired personnel representative (545-2745) is chairman of the finance committee; Maj. Kenneth Kaplan, post staff representative (545-2115) is chief of the facilities committee; Capt. John Barr, TSB (545-4874) heads the entertainment committee; Maj. Robert H. Kelley Jr., 197th Bde, is chairman of the house committee; Capt. Arthur Lieske, Hq. Comd. (545-7757), heads the archery committee; Michael Brickner, Comd. Maint. Dept., is chairman of the hunting committee and 1st Sgt. Henry Ferris, TSB (545-5042), is chairman of the fishing committee.

You might want to save this list. These members represent all members of the Rod and Gun Club. They want the club to be a good one and satisfy the desires of the membership. If you have any complaints or suggestions let one of them know about it. If they don't get any complaints they will assume they are pleasing the membership.

Col. Whittington announced that plans for the National Rifle Association Smallbore range have been completed. Actual construction is scheduled to begin next month. The club is having this range built to provide a range for youths interested in the Junior National Rifle Association program and the use of all meetings of the club.

He also announced that the sales counter has "Ecology Forms." Personnel noticing conditions detrimental to conservation and sanitation can fill out one of these cards. The information will go to the post agency having responsibility for remedial action.

Tom McCullough, club custodian, announced that three of the boats stolen from Averett Pond a couple of months ago were found near the intersection of St. Mary and Moye Roads. The other stolen boats could still be hidden somewhere on the reservation. Observant club members might find them.

Labor Day Fishing Contest

Plans were started for a fishing contest for members. The contest will be held over the Labor Day weekend beginning Sept. 4. Ferris, the fishing committee chairman, has been authorized to spend nearly $500 for prizes to be awarded to winners.

Prizes will be awarded to fishermen registering the largest bass, bream and catfish. Final decisions haven't been made but prizes will actually be given for those who bring in the second, third and fourth fish of these species. A grand prize will also be given away. The club hopes to have enough money to make it a fishing boat with electric motor. The winner of this prize will be determined by a drawing. All members who participated in the fishing contest will be eligible to win.

The Rod and Gun Club is staging this contest to provide the membership with an alternative to fighting the crush of holiday traffic and to cut traffic accidents to a minimum. If you have any ideas you'd like incorporated into the program contact 1st Sgt. Ferris (phone 545-5042).

More information on the contest will appear in this column as plans become firm. Smith and Zieske, club board members will be featured on the Ridley Bell Sportsmans Lodge Show, aired on WRBL-TV at 6 p.m., Saturday, August 28. By that time they should be in a position to explain all the details of the contest.

Skeet and Trap Clinic

The club will hold a clinic for beginner skeet and trap shooters at the club ranges at 1 p.m. Aug. 21. All club members and dependents are invited to attend. The skeet and trap committee would like for all those who plan to attend to phone Smith (544-3993) or Barr (545-3243) before Aug. 18 so they can arrange for the proper number of instructors to be on hand.

Other activities such as turkey shoots, the possibility of a registered skeet shoot, and the program for the annual general membership meeting were discussed during the July meeting. Plans for these affairs are still in the infant stage but information will be published as it develops.

197th softball champ decided today

The 197th Infantry Brigade slow-pitch softball champion and runner-up will be decided today. The two teams will compete in the Fort Benning slow-pitch softball championship tournament scheduled to begin Monday.

Seven teams are competing for the 197th title.

Co. D, 1st Bn., 29th Inf., defeated all of its battalion competition in previous unit softball action and carries the only unbeaten record into brigade tournament play.

Other teams vying for the 197th championship slot are Headquarters, Headquarters Company (HHC), 1st Bn., (Mech.), 58th Inf. "Patriots," 13-1; Co. A (Admin.), 197th Inf. Bde., 7-1; Btry. D, 2nd Bn., 10th Arty., 6-2; HHC, 5th Bn., 31st Inf. 14-2; Co. G, 69th Armor, 197th Support Bn. and Co. D (Maint.), 197th Inf. Bde.

Old-Timers game

The Braves of the past will play the best of the former St. Louis Cards in a three-inning game on the field prior to the Braves'-Astros contest Aug. 14. The Old-Timers game starts at 7 p.m.

Doughboys split two with Ft. McClellan

The Fort Benning Doughboy softball team, current leaders of the Western Division of the 3rd Army Softball League, split a two game series with the second place Ft. McClellan team last weekend.

The Ft. McClellan team won the first game played last Friday at Gowdy Field by the score of 3 to 0. The Doughboys came back on Saturday to even the series with a 3 to 2 win.

Fort Benning now has a record of 15 wins and 3 losses in league play. The McClellan team is one game behind with 14 wins against 4 losses.

This weekend the Doughboys play the Ft. McPherson team in a two-game series at Gowdy Field. The first game will start at 7 p.m. tonight and the second game will be played tomorrow at 1 p.m.

The games with Ft. McPherson are the last league games in the Army league schedule. The first two place teams in the Western Division and the first two in the Eastern Division go to Ft. Jackson, S. C. on Aug. 15 to begin a two losses and out elimination tournament to determine the 3rd Army softball champions. Benning and McClellan will represent the Western Division and at the present time it appears that Ft. Bragg, N. C. and Ft. Jackson will represent the Eastern Division.

Benning marksmen compete in interservice rifle championship

U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit's Service Rifle teams departed Fort Benning last Tuesday for Quantico, Va., where they will compete in the 1971 Interservice Rifle Championships.

This annual event which witnesses competition among the best of the nation's military Service Rifle contenders, will be attended by rifle marksmen from each of the four sister services, the reserve components of each of the National Guard and the Coast Guard. Leading contenders for the championship from the U. S. Army Marksmanship Unit include MSgt. James McQuien and SFC William R. Lee. McQuien is the All-Army Service Rifle Champion, having won the title at Fort Benning in June with a record breaking 1,940 of a possible 2,000 points.

The Marines, as defending Champions, will be having the top-echelon tournament in which the 300 marksmen will commence firing tomorrow.

Initial competition will be for the Navy Match trophy which features slow fire operation at 200 yards, standing. Each of the Coast Guard, Army, Air Force and Marine Corps trophy matches follow with different rates of fire, positions and ranges.

From the aggregate of these five interservice matches, the championship for the Individual Service Rifle crown will be determined. This will be one of the two big championships to be won by individual shooters during the tournament. The other big prize is the Interservice Individual Long Range Championship.

In addition to these two championship crowns, the tournament will feature team matches which culminate with the Interservice Rifle Team Championship in National Match Course firing. This will pit ten man teams firing on the 1,000 yard range.

The Fort Benning marksmen will be departing Quantico on August 13 enroute to Camp Perry, Ohio where they will compete in the National Rifle Matches.

Army, Marines battle for top spot

Post orienteers win championship

The Fort Benning orienteering team won the All-Army Orienteering Championship held at Ft. Belvoir, Va. last week.

Fort Benning also placed three men on the Army team that will compete in the Inter-Service finals next week to determine the composition of the U. S. team to compete in the Pentathlon at the Sports Militaire Championships at Oslo, Norway Aug. 23-28.

Sgt. Dale Aberle, 1st Bn., 58th Inf., made the best time and is the individual champion of the Army. Sgt. Eugene Kraszeski, The Student Brigade placed third in the individual competition and 1st Lt. John Heck, Ranger Department placed [illegible] ninth place finish.

The Inter-Service finals will be held at Quantico Marine Base, Quantico, Va. next week. The championship will be a two service competition, the Army and the Marines.

Previous competitions have been dominated by Marine teams but in the past year the Army has placed added emphasis on the sport and is developing a long range program to train younger people as orienteers. The Ranger Department of the Infantry School is coordinating these activities one of which is an Explorer Scout orienteering program being organized on the post at the present time. Training for the scouts and tryouts to determine orienteers to represent the post in future competition will feature local competitions to perfect techniques of individuals.

Ft. Benning is site for team handball championship

Fort Benning has been selected as the site for the 3rd Army Youth Team Handball Championships.

Approximately 240 players and officials representing 16 teams from 3rd Army Installations, National Guard and Army Reserve units will arrive on post beginning Aug. 14. The tournament games will begin at Doughboy Stadium on Aug. 16.

Turnouts of players to play on the Fort Benning teams has been small. Both teams need additional players. Those interested need not be experienced team handball players. Experience in basketball or volleyball is helpful but not necessary. Tall men have an advantage but a shorter man with speed and agility can also become a good player.

Special Services sport section or phone 545-1516.

Team handball is played with seven players on each team.

Boys from 13 to 17 years of age who are interested should contact Willie Dunham, Youth Activities athletic director at the Youth Activities headquarters or phone 545-3970. Soldiers interested in playing on the post team should contact Billie Dove, at the Post of basketball, volleyball and soccer. The game is played indoors or outdoors on a court approximately the size of a basketball court but the ball used is much smaller. Goals are similar to those used in hockey.

It is a fast game in which the ball may be passed, dribbled or thrown. It has been accepted as an Olympic, sport, one of the few in which individuals or teams from the United States have not excelled.

The Army sports program is emphasizing the sport to provide a trained pool of exceptional players to compete in future Olympic Games.

The youth championships are one part of this emphasis. The other is the competition between teams of military players. The 3rd Army phase of this program begins this month.

Play in this league will start with a game between the Fort Benning Doughboys and a team from Fort Campbell at 7 p.m. Aug. 20, at Doughboy Stadium. 3rd Army champions will be decided in a playoff series between league leaders scheduled to be held here in October.

Army championships for the youth teams will be held at West Point, N. Y. and the championships for the soldier teams will be played at Ft. Belvoir, Va.

Nine teams compete for USAIC softball tournament champ

The 1971 U. S. Army Infantry Center Slow Pitch Company Level Softball Championships will be held Aug. 16-23.

Nine teams will compete in the double elimination tournament. Games will be played on Gowdy Field, main post.

The 197th Infantry Brigade, The Student Brigade and 931st Engineer Group will each field two teams. The Post Medical Department activities and Headquarters Command will each enter one team and the USAIC Aviation Command, Infantry Board, Marksmanship Training Unit and the Combat Development Command Infantry Agency will combine to make up the ninth team of the tournament.

CSM La Voie graduates after 10 years in IOAC

John F. LaVoie received his diploma recently. That wouldn't have been too unusual, but LaVoie is the sergeant major of Fort Benning, and his diploma came after ten years of home study in the Infantry Officers Advanced Course (IOAC).

That may not seem unusual either, unless you consider the fact that, during assignments to Fort Benning's Airborne Department and to the 173rd Airborne Div. in Vietnam the sergeant major achieved ratings of "excellent" in 74 of the 75 subcourses required for graduation from the correspondence course.

Though the course was closed to enlisted men several years ago, the Non Resident Instruction Department of Fort Benning's Infantry School is considering a move to allow CSM's to take the course, based on LaVoie's excellence in the course.

He was a sergeant first class when he began the course in 1961 and was prompted to take it because he thought it would help his job performance. But it also aided him, he claims, to keep an open, active mind.

"As you get older," muses LaVoie, "your mind has a tendency to slow down, but studying for IOAC has kept my mind open."

As if these achievements were not enough, he claims other therapy is gained by studying. "It also helped me enjoy my job and life better," states LaVoie, "because it keeps me thinking."

Noting LaVoie's achievements in the course, Col. William R. Guthrie, Director of Nonresident Instruction, has recommended that all sergeants major be allowed to take the course to "better prepare CSMs for brigade and higher-level staff duty."

Also under study is a recommendation to allow CSMs to study at the command and general staff college level, giving senior NCOs still more expert theoretical knowledge to aid them in their jobs.

Why 10 years to complete the normally 36-week course LaVoie answers, "My problem was that as I would get partway through one course, the department would revise it, and I would re-enroll."

BRIONES PREPARES TO GIVE COMMANDS — Gary Hudson

Philippine West Point cadet commands guns at ceremony

A foreign exchange U.S. Military Academy cadet from the Philippines became the first West Point cadet to give the fire commands for a 13-gun salute at Fort Benning.

Cadet Manuel A. Briones, of Btry. A, 2nd Battalion, 10th Artillery, 197th Inf. Bde., had the honor July 28 to give the commands at the farewell and promotion ceremony of Maj. Gen. John T. Carley, former assistant commandant of the Infantry School. Btry. A is also known as Fort Benning's "Salute Battery."

Briones is in the 197th for four weeks of "Army Orientation Training," along with scores of other West Point cadets.

The 21-year-old cadet from Batuan, Batangas, Philippines, will return to the Philippines following his graduation from West Point in 1973. He will receive a commission as a second lieutenant in the Philippine Army with a basic commitment of eight years of service.

Briones attended the University of the Philippines in Quezon City before coming to West Point in the summer of 1969.

For some drill sergeants

'Smokey the Bear' hats authorized on post

When the 250 Field Radio Mechanic Course Students assigned to the 16th Co., 1st Bn., The School Brigade (TSB), fell in for the morning formation recently, some yawned, wiped their eyes and prepared for a business-as-usual day. But as the company's three drill sergeants; SFC Edward Foster, SSgt. George Hudgins, and Sgt. Patrick Boucher, came out of the building, backs began to straighten, chests began to bulge out and a large lump began to form in the throat of the students. Gone were the regular soft caps the students had become so accustomed to seeing the three sergeants wear. In their place was a sight they had thought they had seen for the last time in basic training, the campaign or "Smokey the Bear" hat.

Although the three had been called drill sergeants before, this was the first time they had been permitted to wear the campaign hat and receive the benefits of the Army Drill Sergeant. All three had had experience in "pushing troops" in Basic or Advanced Individual Training (AIT) companies. The new status resulted mainly from the efforts of Foster, the company senior drill sergeant. Foster suggested, and the Army agreed, that 16th company's mission as an AIT company entitled it to have drill sergeants who could reap the benefits and wear the accoutrements of a drill sergeant. As Hudgins put it "wearing the hat is the greatest benefit, it adds a lot of prestige to the job." One of the students summed it up more vividly when he said, "seeing that hat in the morning makes you wish you had stayed up all night polishing your boots."

'Doodle' pokes fun at Yankees

By Lee M. Hunt and Robert A. Winters

"Yankee Doodle" is one of the oldest and most beloved of American songs. It has been with us so long that it is generally considered to be totally American. However, the version that we sing was written by a British army surgeon, Dr. Richard Schuckburgh, and was designed to poke fun at the untrained American troops during the French and Indian War of 1755.

But the Continental soldiers liked the tune and it soon became popular. It was became sung through the colonies by the time of the Revolutionary War. The first printed notice of it in America was in the New York "Journal" of Oct. 12, 1768.

The tune to "Yankee Doodle" is an old one believed to have originated in southern Europe during the Middle Ages. It was a popular tune sung by the harvestors in Holland in about 1500, and was sung to small children in England during Shakespeare's time.

Incidentally, did you ever wonder at the meaning of the last two lines of the verse?

Yankee Doodle came to town
Upon a Kentish pony,
He stuck a feather in his cap
And called it macaroni.

This verse is from an English version sung by the Cavaliers in the 1600's. The words were made up to poke fun at Oliver Cromwell when he rode down from Canterbury to take charge of the Puritan forces. At the time the word "macaroni" was used to describe the young dandies of London who dressed in odd Italian styles.

MAJ. GEN. ORWIN C. TALBOTT DRIVES THE LAST NAIL IN THE VOLAR PARTITION PROJECT SIGNIFYING COMPLETION OF THE INITIAL PHASE OF THE PROGRAM TO IMPROVE LIVING CONDITIONS. (See related story, page 6)

Report shows

VOLAR improves post's standing with soldiers

Fort Benning soldiers apparently are more satisfied with their post than they were in November, when the Modern Volunteer Army program began.

One survey, conducted as part of the final analysis of the initial six-month Project VOLAR test period, showed that more soldiers think Fort Benning is one of the best posts in the Army than thought so in November.

Col. Edwin L. Kennedy, MVA chief, said, "Overall, the increase in positive attitudes at Fort Benning was highly significant, with significantly larger numbers of enlisted personnel at all levels responding that Fort Benning was one of the best posts, and significantly fewer responsing that it was one of the worst."

"Since comparable changes did not occur at Fort Knox, which served as attitude control post for Fort Benning,

Big Picture, photographers film training

Two film crews arrived at Fort Benning this week to film a variety of scenes.

The recruiting team from Headquarters United States Army Recruiting Command, headed by Maj. Robert Proctor is taking pictures of Airborne and Ranger training in an effort to portray today's soldier in a combat environment. The still photography crew, filming part of the N. W. Ayre and Son, Inc. advertising campaign "The Army Wants to Join You," will travel to a variety of posts while assembling the Army's new combat arms recruiting brochure.

The second film team, from the Big Picture filmed "The Third U. S. Army — The Lucky Third." Director Gil Williams and his five-man crew captured many of Fort Benning's everyday activities on film. VOLAR, Airborne, Ranger, PT, hand to hand combat and OCS were some of the scenes taped for this segment of the School registration set for next week

Registration at Fort Benning dependents' schools is Aug. 19 and 20, and all school children in grades kindergarten through 12 will be registered at that time.

Schools officer, Calvin T. Roush, states that high school students wishing to attend public high school must register with the Dependents School officer even though the student attended school in Muscogee County last year. Registration for these students will be conducted in the art room at Faith School on the registration dates. Those arriving on post after Aug. 20 may register in Bldg. 880A, near Faith School.

Muscogee County schools require high school students to bring an approval slip, available at the time of on-post registration, from the dependents schools officer, a record of promotion or grade placement and their records of immunization.

Students may attend public high schools in Muscogee County without charge if properly registered with the Dependents Schools Office. Detailed information on registration in the Muscogee County public schools will be published in the local newspapers the last week of August.

Transportation will be provided for all high school students and all eligible on-post grade school students. Eligibility requirements for transportation will be provided at registration time.

Kindergarten age children will be accepted on the basis of their age. A child must be five years old on or before Jan. 1 to enter kindergarten or six years old on or before Jan. 1, 1972 to enter the first grade.

Post schools begin their school year Aug. 30, and Muscogee County schools follow on Sept. 7. Dependent schools require birth certificates for children entering either kindergarten or first grade and all on-post students are required to present their shot records.

Information on time and place of registration for on-post students is available on a bulletin published by the dependents schools office and has been sent to all family housing. A schedule has also been published in the Daily Bulletin beginning today.

For further information call 545-7194, 7743, 4418 or 2581.

Sweat, hard work bring ROTC cadets Ranger tabs

By Wendell Cochran

They sweated on long runs, turning Fort Benning's red clay into sticky mud.

They inched and climbed their way across the face of Mt. Ono, and looked 3,000 feet down into the valleys of north Georgia.

They slogged through the coastal swamps of Florida, going on guts and courage, when all other reserves were depleted.

And finally, Thursday, 140 Reserve Officer Training Corps cadets pinned on the yellow and black tab of the U. S. Army Ranger, sure in the knowledge that this coveted honor was well won.

In the words of Col. John P. Geraci, who was Ranger Department director when the course started, "Those who finish are Rangers in every sense of the word."

Gen. Ralph Haines, commanding general of the Continental Army Command, a strong supporter of the experiment to substitute Ranger training for the regular ROTC Summer Camp, was graduation speaker.

The 140 graduates of Ranger class 502 began the difficult course June 10, when their number was 100 more.

For a variety of reasons, the number dwindled, to the 140 who stood on Todd Field.

All those students who completed six weeks of the course were given credit for summer camp. Only those who met the usual rigid qualifications established for a Ranger received the tab.

The Ranger course was modified little for the ROTC cadets, who had been carefully selected from more than 1200 who volunteered for the class.

Most of the modifications involved added training, such as weapons qualifications, that are not normally included in Ranger training, but are part of the regular summer camp program.

In August SOLDIERS

"'I was just carrying out orders' is no defense"

CAMERON STATION, Va. — War is hell, so Sherman said. But the U. S. Army is conducting training that can make the battlefield more humane. The lead feature in August SOLDIERS is all about the renewed emphasis on the rules of land warfare.

"Judgment on the Firing Line" tells the why and how of land warfare classes now being presented to all infantry officer classes at Fort Benning.

What's new in the instruction is increased emphasis on the soldier's responsibility to disobey plainly unlawful orders. "I was just carrying out orders" is no defense.

The GI must determine whether an order is legal; must demand and receive clarification of the order if it is so unclear that he doesn't know whether it's legal and then must refuse to obey if that order is plainly unlawful.

This coverage is SOLDIERS way of putting the Army's official magazine on the firing line where vital issues affecting the Army are concerned.

"Sounding Off Pays Off" talks about the Army Sounding Board. That's the outfit at Fort Benning that collects, studies and acts on soldiers' comments and constructive complaints on everything from the working of field jacket zippers to the operation of the 105mm howitzer.

First building

The White House was the first public building to be erected in Washington; it's cornerstone was laid on Oct. 13, 1792.

600 Air Force cadets take Airborne course

Every summer, about 600 Air Force cadets come to Fort Benning to go through the Airborne course. All of the cadets are given options for summer training, but Airborne is the only option that is offered for each of the three summer training sessions of the USAF Academy.

Summer training is split into three periods; two periods are used for training, and one period is leave time.

Cadet 2nd Class Patrick L. Shepherd, an Army dependent from the Canal Zone, Panama, was taking time from his leave period to finish Airborne training; he had been in the first academy airborne class this summer, but sprained his ankle on his first jump.

Asked why the cadets go Airborne, C2C Shepherd said that his reasons were his Army background, having heard about the Airborne, and wanting to learn how to jump; needing Airborne to go into aerospace rescue, and, he said, he wanted the best training possible against that one chance that he would have to bail out of a plane.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT
by Bill King

For an elegant picnic touch, pack a chilled bottle of wine and a supply of plastic throwaway stemware.

Keep cans of tuna refrigerated so they will already be chilled to toss with the other ingredients for a cool summer salad.

Brick cheese is so named because the curds are ripened in a brick-shaped box covered with real bricks for pressure.

For a quick and tasty topping for ham steak, saute a chopped onion, then add a cup of canned mincemeat and about four tablespoons of lemon juice, and heat through.

Zarzuela, a Spanish fish stew flavored with brandy, literally means "musical comedy" and was named after the performances given at Philip IV's palace, La Zarzuela, where the dish was a favorite.

Byline Bayonet

(Byline Bayonet welcomes questions of general interest about Fort Benning and the Army. Within space limitations all reasonable questions will be answered. Questions of a purely military nature which obviously could be answered more properly by commanders or supervisors within the chain of command will not be accepted. All questions must be signed with current unit of assignment indicated. Send questions to the Bayonet, ATTN: SFC Bob Edwards, Room 602, Infantry Hall or telephone 545-479 .)

Q — Why are all ranks of the military allowed to participate in golf at the Sand Hill Golf Course but at the Country Club Course only certain people are allowed to play. What prequisites are required for one to play the Country Club Course?

A — The Country Club Golf Course is part of the Officer's Club and therefore opened to dues paying members of the Officers Club. Local regulations permit the membership of soldiers, however, this is limited to the first 75 applications due to space limitations both in the parking facility, the club house and the number of the general membership.

Q — When dialing the Post Information operator, (113), why does it take so long to get the operator to answer?

A — Fort Benning has four information positions. Numerous assistance calls are received and the operator must complete assistance on a call prior to picking up another party. On July 31, Fort Benning went to direct dialing AUTOVON operation. This should eliminate many information calls. Direct dial AUTOVON combined with the issuance of the new telephone directory should reduce the quantity of information calls and operator workload. It is recommended that everyone consult the new directory prior to placing calls.

Q — How many soldiers filed for conscientious objector discharges, classification 1-0 (objects to any form of military service in the past three years and how many were granted?

A — The following are calender year figures:

1968, 282 applications processed; 70 approved; 1969-943 applications processed, 194 approved; 1970-1,106 applications processed, 357 approved.

Q—Who is covered by SGLI?

A—SGLI provides insurance protection at basic coverage rates for all members of the Uniformed Services, to include reserve component personnel ordered to active duty for 31 days or more; and for ROTC cadets on field training for more than 31 days. SGLI protection at reservist coverage rates is provided for reserve component personnel for periods of less than 30 days, to include inactive duty training which may be weekday or weekend drills.

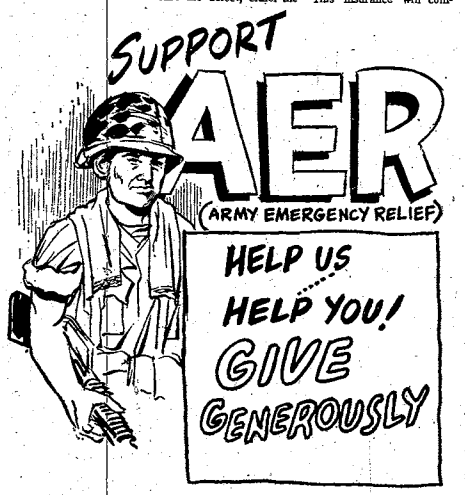
Title insurance, search necessary

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third in a series of articles dealing with the purchase and sale of a house.) LEGAL ASSISTANCE OFFICE.



In the previous article in this series, the problems inherent in defects of title and zoning were presented. In this article, some of the remedies and preventive measures to avoid these problems will be discussed.

Of course the first and most basic protection against a failure of title in some manner is a thorough search of the records by a competent attorney. Normally this search goes back a period of 50 to 60 years but the time will vary from state to state. It is not important for the average buyer to know what constitutes a defect in title, but he should know that a title search will reveal many of these defects before the house is purchased. At that time, the seller is customarily given a certain length of time in which to cure the defect. If the seller cannot cure the defect, either the sale is not consummated or the price is abated.

A second protection against assertions of title superior to the buyer's is the use of title insurance. Title insurance will compensate you if you suffer damages because of a defect in your title. Such a policy is normally issued only after the title insurance company searches the records or is presented with an opinion letter from an attorney it believes competent to search titles, that the title is sound. This insurance will compensate you only monetarily — it cannot prevent you, the buyer, from being evicted from the premises because of title imperfections. In some states, both title search and insurance may be obtained from the same company, which employs a staff of attorney specializing in title search and incidental matters.

Another protection that all buyers should require, is a covenant of general warranty in the deed given by the seller. A deed containing such a covenant is usually referred to as a "warranty deed." The warranties usually included are those of seizing, possession, right to convey, quite enjoyment and freedom from encumbrances. These terms each have specific technical meanings, but in general they prevent the seller from asserting after-acquired title and profiect he buyer with certain limited recourse if his title or possession are disturbed.

Each of the three forms of protection against title difficulties has limitations. A title search is only as good as the records or the person making the search. Title insurance can provide only monetary compensation, which is a poor substitute for loss of a perfect site or the emotional attachment to one's home. Similarly, general warranties in a deed are limited to the cost of the land and do not make provision for such things as attorneys' fees or costs of defeating nuisance claims. Despite these limitations these three devices, if used in combination, provide as much protection as the average homeowner needs.

VOLAR helps junior EM, senior NCO

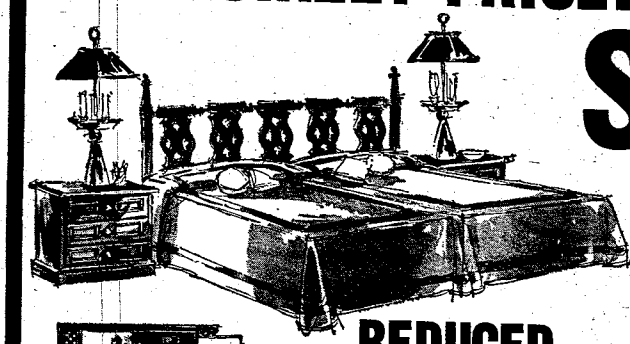
HQs CONARC, Ft. Monroe, Va. — There is little fact to the myth that VOLAR benefits extend only to the lower enlisted ranks. The truth is that VOLAR projects aimed directly at the junior EM also serve the career noncommissioned officers.

The five-day work week alone has helped to ease the long hours demanded of the NCO. Bachelor NCOs as well as junior enlisted men will benefit from a $22.8 million allocation to support a CONARC barracks partitioning program for permanent party personnel at VOLAR posts. This is compared to $2 million for basic trainees' quarters.

By using civilians for such time-consuming jobs as kitchen police, grass cutting, and garbage collecting, enlisted men are able to return to their primary jobs. In this way the senior NCO is being supplied with more manpower to accomplish his unit or section mission. The result: greater opportunities for the NCO to conduct meaningful training.

With recent pay actions in Congress, the Army is seeking to attract and retain quality enlisted men. At the same time commanders are being urged to use the bar to reenlistment to turn away marginal performers. Thus, NCOs can anticipate better motivation and discipline in their units.

Keeping in step with the higher caliure soldier of the Modern Volunteer Army, the Non-Commissioned Officers Education System (NCOES) is providing better training to the NCO. This new program is composed of three levels of instruction: basic, advanced and senior. Courses are geared to develop leadership qualities in the NCO from squad level through top-level staff positions.



Career servicemen with dependents will enjoy many VOLAR changes. Longer operating hours for post exchanges and commissaries, increased medical attention, and improved Army Community Services facilities are tangible benefits. Special services benefits offered at VOLAR posts include playground improvements, new equipment at recreation areas, allocations for various sporting activities and improved arts and crafts programs.

Through these programs and policies VOLAR brings some sound benefits to the careerists, as well as the first termer.

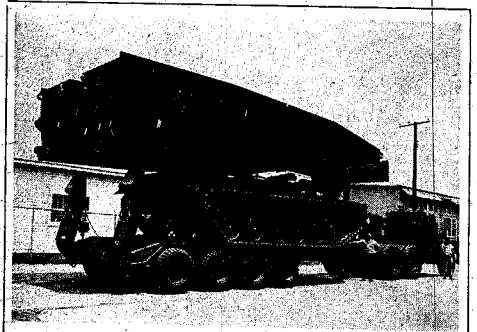
Col. Garrison departs TSB for graduate Studies

Col. Frank L. Garrison, commanding officer of The School Brigade since Oct. 9, 1970, will leave his position Aug. 17 to begin graduate studies at the Fort Benning branch of Georgia State University. He has previously commanded the brigade from November 1969 to March 1970, leaving to take over the newly-formed Candidate Brigade (TCB).

Col. Garrison's current stay at Fort Benning began as chairman of the Platoon Tactics Committee, Company Operations Department. After his return from the Republic of Vietnam, where he served with the 101st Airborne Division.

He attended the Infantry Officers Basic Course in 1951 and completed the Airborne and Jumpmaster Courses in 1953. He has served overseas tours in Japan, Korea, Alaska, and the Republic of Vietnam. Col. Garrison's stateside duties included two tours with the 101st Airborne Division at Ft. Campbell, Ken.



A graduate of Oklahoma State University with a BS degree in Military Science, Col. Garrison served as an exchange student to the Marine Officers Advanced Course from 1957 to 1958. He is a graduate of the Command and General Staff College and the Army War College.

Col. Garrison's awards and decorations include the Silver Star, the Legion of Merit, the Bronze Star, the Army Commendation Medal, and the Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry.

Logistics licked

There aren't many ways to move a tank with a 90-foot bridge perched on top of it, but the Army has that problem licked. Underneath that oversized cargo is a heavy equipment transporter tractor trailer, capable of carrying 52½ tons. The truck is 67 feet long. Enough to slow down the most intrepid motorist.

Soldiers with patient care MOS can be physician warrant officers

By Charles Sabens

The Department of the Army is currently sponsoring a Warrant Officer Physicians' Assistant Program for the Army Medical Department at the Brook Army Medical Center.

Under the program active duty personnel who hold a patient care MOS may be appointed as a warrant officer in the Army Reserve with a subsequent call to duty after successful completion of the Physicians' Assistant Course.

To be eligible a person must have a high school diploma or equivalent; a sound knowledge of spoken and written English; a General Test (GT) Score of at least 110; and a minimum of three years clinical experience in a military environment. In addition individuals must obtain recommendations from their current commanding officer and a military physician, preferably a senior medical officer. The applicant must also pass the physical qualifications for appointment as a warrant officer.

All individuals entering the program below the grade of E-5 will be elevated to that grade while in the program. Appointment on successful completion of the course will be WO1; E-8's and E-9's with two years time in grade may be appointed CW2.

All individuals completing the program and receiving appointments will have a four year active duty obligation.

The goal of the program is to train individuals to provide limited primary medical care under the supervision of a physician. Included in the training will be disease diagnosis and treatment; health conservation through preventive, diagnostic, therapeutic and surgical measures; taking case histories; diagnosis and treatment of dental emergencies; and recognition of foodborne and transmitted disease problems.

The three-phase training program is designed to last 72 weeks. Phase I consists of five weeks of warrant officer orientation and basic science instruction. Phase II consists of 43 weeks of both classroom and clinical methods. The final phase, lasting 24 weeks, consists of application of knowledge obtained in earlier phases in a military hospital.

VOLAR barracks complete before Aug. 12 deadline

Phase 1 of the construction of barracks partitions at Fort Benning was completed this week by the 43rd Engr. Bn., 931st Engr. Gp. This represents the end of the initial phase of the VOLAR program to improve the living conditions for enlisted men by providing semi-private rooms.

A ceremony to celebrate the occasion was held Tuesday with Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander, driving in the final nail to signify the completion of the last barracks.

The ceremony was held at barracks belonging to Co. C, 56th S and S Bn., 931st Engr. Gp. Gen. Talbott was presented a golden nail and hammer with crests of the 43rd Engr. Bn. and 931st Engr. Gp. by Col. Robert J. Standley, group commander, and Lt. Col. Beverly McGruder, commander of the 43rd Engr. Bn.

The engineer rated as the best carpenter in the 43rd Engr. Bn., PFC Jess Hunter, presented Gen. Talbott with the keys to the barracks and Gen. Talbott in turn handed the keys to Capt. Orby Brumfield, commander of Co. C., 56th S and S Bn.

In all, the engineers have completed 73 barracks comprising 306 bays and 2,038 semi-private. Some 450 engineers worked double shifts to rooms.

complete the project by the Aug. 12 deadline.

The work began April 5 but was delayed several times due to lack of supplies. To compensate for this the engineers went to a split shift operation working late into the night.

Voice of VOLAR

- A recent survey shows that VOLAR is working. More soldiers now think that Fort Benning is one of the best posts in the Army.
- One action that helped the post's image, especially among married personnel, was the extension of Commissary hours.

DA develops program to match civilian skills

WASHINGTON (ANF)— The Department of the Army has developed a program to award the greatest possible number of individuals a military occupational specialty (MOS) corresponding to their civilian-acquired skills.

Under the progarm, reception stations will identify through evaluation tests and personal interviews those individuals possessing skills and their degrees of qualification.

The awarding of an MOS based on a civilian-acquired skill depends on the needs of the Army for personnel in the various MOSs, the necessity for maintaining career content in each MOS field and the need for a constant flow of personnel for the combat arms and other critical MOSs.

The Office of Selective Service will request inductees to bring documents, such as diplomas, licenses and trade school certificates, when reporting for induction to assist the Army reception stations identifying individual civilian skills.

Advanced Individual Training unit commanders, as identified in AR 614-200, will award secondary MOSs to all men with civilian-acquired skills who are fully qualified for the award of an MOS if no immediate requirements exist for that MOS.

Country-style, Southern menu served

Grandma would be mighty proud of the Southern country-style lunch cooked by the Fort Benning mess halls on Aug. 11.

The down-home menu included "chitlins," smoked ham, sweet potatoes, black-eyed peas, collard greens, okra and cornbread.

Capt. Dick Nethers, post food advisor, said that the lunch was being served on an experimental basis. If it proves popular with Fort Benning troops, the country meal may become a regular luncheon menu.

Other specialty menus now offered by the mess halls include spaghetti, lasagna, chop suey and sea foods.

Lindsay Creek contract let to Columbus firm

A contract for the 1.5 mile extension of the Lindsay Creek Bypass to Martin Army Hospital has been awarded by the Department of Army, according to an announcement made last week by Third District Rep. Jack Brinkley.

The contract was awarded to Hewitt Contracting Co. of Columbus for $2,614,478. Congress had approved $2.8 million for the construction.

The construction is scheduled to begin within 30 days with completion set for 1973.

YAC means summer fun for youths at Ft. Benning

By Charles Sabens

Whether your interest is archery, stamp collecting, gymnastics, diving, or just having fun, the finest in recreational facilities is available to Army dependent youth at the post Youth Activities (YAC) Center.

Specialized programs, designed to develop responsible citizenship and individual self-fulfillment in Fort Benning's youth, are available to everyone from 6 to 19.

Fencing is always a popular way to let off steam but it demands great balance and poise and certainly cunning. Any local Robin Hood will find the program in archery to be loads of fun as well.

For those dynamic youngsters who want to release their pent-up frustrations, there is always boxing. Controlled and regulated bouts require the utmost in reflex and wit.

If challenge in the arena is not your thing, try a chess board — power and strategy combine to produce a thrilling clash of player ingenuity. Or you might sharpen your cue on any one of the several pool tables at the YAC Center.

Off the playing field, teens and pre-teens can gather for hours of relaxation and entertainment in the YAC Center Teen Club. Soft drinks, hamburgers and french fries—food for the under 20 set — is served by the snackbar. Weekend dances to the latest in music are main attractions at the Teen Club.

During the day the outdoor snackbar serves food and refreshments.

The swimming program always occupies a special spot in any youth's thoughts about summer fun, especially during the hot months of July and August.

YAC offers swimming programs during the morning for Fort Benning children. There is also a special swimming program for exceptional children at the YAC Center taught by qualified personnel.

For the more experienced swimmer, YAC maintains the Youth Activities Barracuda Swim Team which represents Fort Benning in year-round swim meets, including the highly competitive AAU meets.

For the youngster who desires to develop balance and coordination, still rings, horizontal and harallel bars and the balance beam are at his disposal.

Baseball is not to be forgotten and still remains one of the most popular sports at the YAC Center. For the 6 and 7 years-olds, a T-ball program is held each year in June to teach the fundamentals of baseball. For those from 8 to 15, a baseball program extends from April through July. The YAC program is composed of two divisions consisting of the Pee Wee, Biddy, Pony, and Doughboy Leagues. Divisions and leagues are set up on an age and experience basis.

Girls are not to be left out of the baseball program. A girl's softball league is active from May to June for girls from 9 to 15.

An extensive program in the art of Judo is also offered by YAC. Youngsters of all ages may participate in the program.

Youngsters in the program may earn the various degrees of Judo while participating in meets in many parts of the country with the Fort Benning Judo Club.

Classical ballet? Drama? Baton? Even modern Jazz. Whatever your interest, professional instruction is available in the oldest of art forms.

If you are from 10 to 71, you can even try out for the President's Physical Fitness Award. The YAC Center has a program to help youngsters achieve the required level of physical achievement to receive the honor.

In addition to the great variety of athletic programs, the center also sponsors and manages the Boy Scout Camp, "Pine Knot" and the "Rideaway" Girl Scout Camp providing a complete scouting program for girls and boys alike at Benning.

Dominos, checkers, bridge, shuffleboard, ping pong, music, chorus, sun bathing, nature study, sewing, Old Maids. . . and even field trips.

Picnics, cookouts, professional baseball or football — you name it, YAC's got it. And it's all free to Army dependent youth.

Season, student badges sold at several locations

Sam Wellborn, assistant general chairman of the 1971 Southern Open Golf Tournament, announced today that season and student (ticket) sales have begun for the Southern Open to be held at Green Island Country Club Sept. 6-12.

In making this announcement, Wellborn pointed out that all banks and their branches in the Columbus-Phenix City area would serve as outlets for these badges, thus providing some 30 places where a person may purchase same. These badges will also be available in several downtown locations and in Columbus Square.

Wellborn added, "The season badge will sell for $10 which will entitle the holder to watch the entire week of the golf tourney. The student badge will sell for $2 and this badge is for any student, including college, and will also be good for the entire week.

Co. Op. holds 'ship wrecked' party

Col. John L. Osteen Jr., director, Company Operations Department and his wife Pat hosted the department's annual pool party held in the Officers Main Club Aug. 7. "Ship Wrecked," theme for the summertime feast, was organized by Lt. Col. Duane Cameron's Platoon Tactics committee with Capt Kevin Corcoran acting as "chief mate."

The evening began with fresh oysters and cocktails. Osteen was side tracked somewhere along his way to the head table and "volunteered" for a dip in the pool.

After dinner Osteen gave the official welcome to several hundred guest. The committee chairman then presented wedding trays and baby cups to several couples.

Water games, including a diving demonstration by Lt. Col. Donald "Buster Crab" Hanson, and dancing made up the evening's entertainment.

43 children visit Benning

Forty-three children from low income families in the Columbus area visited Fort Benning Aug. 2 for a fun-filled outing that included a firsthand look at Airborne training and a visit to the Infantry Hall Museum.

The children were selected from 7 to 13 designated underprivileged neighborhoods in Columbus. Youth participating in the outing were from the Warran Williams Home and the 4th Ave., 10th Ave. Baker Village, Carver Heights, Mariner Drive and Wynnton Road sections of Columbus.

WOMEN'S NEWS

MCCW anniversary set Aug. 18

preside at the meeting

The Military Council of Catholic Women of the Southeastern Area, U. S. A. (MCCW) will observe its 1st anniversary at a one-day meeting at Ft. McPherson, Ga. Aug. 18.

Sister Joan Kist, council moderator, and other members of the Fort Benning chapel group are making arrangements for the conference which will feature afternoon discussion sessions on such topics as "The Prisoner of War Question," "Needs in Human Development," and "Family Effectiveness in the Community."

Mrs. Margaret Stogner of Ft. Bragg, N. C. president of the council, which will be held in the Ft. McPherson Non-commissioned Officers' Club. Chaplain Lt. Col. Michael A. Rusnock, deputy 3rd Army chaplain who is spiritual director of the group, will celebrate Mass. There will also be an election of officers. Conference activities will begin at 10 a.m. with a get-acquainted coffee and registration.

Representatives from Chapel Groups at Fort Benning, Ft. Bragg, N. C., Ft. Campbell, Ky., Ft. Jackson, S. C., Ft. Gordon, Ga., Ft. McClellan and Ft. Rucker, Ala., Ft. McPherson, and Warner Robins Air Force Base, Ga. are expected to attend.

Temporary homes listed for kin of overseas men

For the serviceman who is going overseas and cannot take his family along there is often the problem of situating his wife and children in a suitable temporary home.

The commanding general of CONARC, Ft. Monroe, Virginia, has published a list of excess housing in Arizona and Kansas.

Available in Arizona at the Yuma Proving Ground are 20 units for officer's family housing. These units were available on July 15.

At the Schilling Manor Sub-Post in Kansas there are 9 units open for the enlisted men's families.

Officers and enlisted men desiring quarters for their families, while they are on an unaccompanied tour overseas should apply for housing upon alert or receipt of orders. It takes approximately 60 to 90 days to confirm a reservation. Quarters can then be occupied within 10 to 15 days.

If information is needed, contact The Family Housing Manager at the Yuma Proving Grounds or Mr. John L. Kindlesparger, Family Housing Manager, Schilling Manor Sub - Post, Salina, Kan. 67401.

Along the fem-line

ALONG THE FEM-LINE
By Carol May

This week "Along the Fem-line" brings an increasing awareness of how busy Fort Benning women are. Activities cover a wide area of service, pleasure and charitable benefits.

To supplement the enthusiasm and effort you have given, more publicity can be secured by your organizations as soon as events occur. Write the news item in advance if plans are fully known. Pre-publicity concerning an upcoming function requires only details and early preparations on your part.

The four copies required are distributed as follows: One to "Femline," and the remaining three to PIO for "The Bayonet", Radio-TV Section, and News Branch respectively. Hopefully, the four copies do not discourage submitting the articles.

Please submit your news articles by noon Wednesday of each week or drop them in my home mailbox at 201-B Madden Avenue. "Fem-Line" will give you all the publicity within our capacity.

OWC TEA

The Officers' Wives' Club of Fort Benning opens the 1971 activities calendar with a tea, Sept. 8, from 1-3 p.m., at the Main Officers' Open Mess.

"Join the Bunch" is the theme for the tea and for the year. No reservations are necessary and all officers' wives are given an opportunity to join the club.

IOAC 5-71
Thanks to Old Man Weather, the "orders" party for the 2nd Pltr., IOAC 5-71, was changed from a Pool Party to a Car Port Party July 30. The home of Capt. and Mrs. William Moat became the scene for celebrating or bemoaning the next assignment.

Tables bent under the weight of hors d'oeuvres prepared by the wives. Good conversation and TV ballgames added up to a pleasant evening.

Did you ever feel when you're standing over a hot stove, with a couple of children clamoring around your legs, and your uncoiffed hair hanging in your eyes, and your husband arriving home from the golf course demanding dinner — that this is really a man's world?

The ladies of IOAC 5-71 proved this at their Aug. 5 luncheon and men's fashion show, "It's A Man's World." Tables were decorated with men's mod accessories and the cans cleverly covered with maps and shellacked for the antique look.

Honored guests were Mrs. Orwin C. Talbott, Mrs. Lawrence L. Mowery, Mrs. Jules Trepagnier, Mrs. James F. Henrichsmeyer, Mrs. Billy Phillips, Mrs. Gordon Marlor, Mrs. Boyd Burkholder, Mrs. David Kummer and Mrs. Carl Piteet, Mrs. Talbott's sister.

Husbands who graciously agreed to model were Capt. William C. Douglas, Capt. Terrance J. Fiest, Capt., Gilbert K. Jenkins, Capt. Anthony A. Moreno, Capt. Michael D. Shue, Capt. James R. Smith, Capt. Billy J. Tucker and Capt. Sewart W. Wallace.

Ellis 1020 bayonetalong the fem-line

The fashions for men are bright as a bird's plumnage. Polyester double-knit slacks with flare bottoms, worn with a 2-inch belt and soft shirts with long, pointed collars and 3-button cuffs are for the casual look. More formally, the suits feature wide lapels, inset belts and are worn with wide-striped shirts and colorful ties. A special attraction was the "his-and-hers" look of beige flares, knit shirts and orange suede belts.

The show was narrated by Doug Pritchett of a Columbus men's store. 545-1900.

OWC SCHOOL OF DANCE

The Fort Benning Officer Wives' Club School of Dance will hold registration for fall classes Aug. 19 and 20 at the OWC School of Dance studio Bldg. 1231, (located behind the Thrift Shop) between the hours of 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

The School of Dance is open to all dependents of active or retired military personnel and offers classes in Pre-Ballet, Ballet, Jazz and Tap.

The school is under the direction of Terrell Paulk and Mrs. Ralph Manzi. Paulk is the director of the Springer Ballet Company of Columbus and is a principal dancer with the Atlanta Ballet. Mrs. Manzi is assistant director of the Springer Ballet Company.

For further information, contact Mrs. E. P. Sydnor, and Capt. Patrick J. Wing.

ODDLP WELCOME TEA

A welcome tea was given in honor of Mrs. Walter Root Jr., wife of the new chief of ODDLP. The tea was given Aug. 4, in the home of Mrs. Graham Avera, co-hosted by Mrs. John Loberg.

A lovely corsage of white carnations was presented to Mrs. Riot from the ladies of ODDLP. Refreshments and decorations were coordinated in red, white and blue.

A business meeting was held to discuss futire meetings. Welcome was extended to Mrs. David Pearson and farewell to Mrs. John McGowan. Mrs. Thomas Hensler volunteered to be the reservations chairman and volunteers for the Thrift Shop signed up for September. The next coffee will be in the home of Mrs. Walter Root Jr.

"STAY AND SEE GEORGIA" EXHIBIT

Representing Fort Benning at the "Stay and See Georgia" exhibit at Lenox Square, July 30-31, were Mrs. Russell C. Miller and Mrs. Jackie B. Cummings. The exhibit placed second in the state contest and showed points of interest in Columbus.

The film made by John Wayne on the proposed Infantry Museum at Fort Benning drew much interest.

CDCIA

"Come and Find Out What Your Husband Really Does" was the theme of the July 21 coffee for the ladies of CDC Infantry Agency. To provide first-hand knowledge, a combined coffee and open house were held at the Agency.

After a social hour, Col. Robert Siegrist, Inf. Ag. commander, welcomed the ladies and gave a brief talk on the mission and organization of the Agency.

Col. John McCleary, studies Division, Col. Ben Malcom, D and O Division, and Col. William Carper, CM Division, also explained the operation and mission of their respective divisions. After this, the ladies were given a guided tour of the agency.

Hostesses for this event were Mrs. Ribert Siegrist, Mrs. William Carper, Mrs. Ben Malcom and Mrs. Joy McDonald.

RANGER OFFICERS' WIVES

The monthly meeting of the Fort Benning Ranger Officers' Wives' Club will be a luncheon Aug. 19 at the Supper Club. The social hour will begin at 11:30 a.m.

The program will be a wig fashion show presented by a local department store. All wives of officers assigned to the Ranger Department are invited to attend. Reservations should be made by Aug. 16 to the respective committee reservations chairmen, who, in turn, should phone group reservations in to Mrs. Russell Andrews, 545-3055, no later than noon, Aug. 17.

MARCEL CARLES COOKING SCHOOL

Do crepes suzetts, canard a l'orange, lobster mousse, tempt your palate? Would you like to learn how to prepare these delicious dishes? If you would, you might be interested in the Marcel Carles gourmet cooking classe.

The classes meet one Tuesday morning a month, at which time Carles directs the members in the preparation of a complete luncheon menu. And then comes the best part — the eating. The fee for 8 lessons is $50. The classes are open to all officers' wives, but membership in the Offices' Wives' Club is not a prerequisite.

Ladies wishing to participate in the cooking classes will have the opportunity to register and pay the fee at a tea being given by Mrs. James G. McConaughy, chairman of the class. The Aug. 31 event will begin at 1 p.m. 306 Cascade Road, Green Island Hills, Columbus, is the place.

For reservations or further information, call Mrs. McConaughy at 323-9467, on or after Aug. 26.

OC WIVES CLUB — CLASS 18-71

The 50th Co., 5th Stu. Bn., Class 18-71 OC Wives Club had a "Bingo Party" Aug. 7 at 7 p.m. in the company mess hall.

The ladies couldn't have had the party at a better yime since the candidates were out on Ranger Week

The wives had a surprise greeting for their husbands Aug. 9 when they returned from Ranger Week. Refreshments were served while the candidates and their wives visited.

College theater presents play

The Columbus College Theater will present the popular play, Under Milkwood: A Play for Voices, by Welsh poet Dylan Thomas in the Fine Arts Auditorium on campus this month.

The play, which lasts approximately an hour and a half, is scheduled for 8 p.m. Aug. 14, 19 and 21.

Directed by Dennis Cisil, assistant professor of drama at the college, Under Milkwood uses the stream of consciousness technique to describe 24 hours in the life of a Welsh fishing village.

Performing the parts of the 73 characters in the play are Tom Cornell, Bill Heard, John Averyt, Tom Dellinger, "J" Golsen, Debbie Trotter, and Liz Jordan.

The multi-media approach to entertainment, using unusual sound effects and slide screen projections, will aid the actors in their "structured happening" presentation.

A $2.00 admission fee will be charged the general public, but Columbus College students will be admitted free of charge. Other students and military personnel must pay $1.00.

Farewell formal

Col. Frank L. Garrison (center) and his wife (R) greet guests at the Farewell Formal held Aug. 7 for Garrison at the Main Officers Club. Garrison will depart The School Brigade (TSB) Aug. 17 to study for his masters degree through the University of Georgia branch here.

Maj. Williams feted at 43rd Engr. social

The 43rd Engr. Bn., 93ist Engr. Gp., bid farewell to Maj. Fred A. Williams, formerly the executive officer of the 43rd, at the monthly meeting of the 43rd's Pioneer Association. Williams, who retired last month after 20 years in the service, was honored guest for the social held July 29 at Engineer Lodge.

Williams has a B.S. degree in Electrical Engineering from Auburn and a M.S. in Industrial Engineering from Purdue University. He plans to live and work in Alexander City, Ala. While serving as executive officer of the 43rd, he played a big role in the successful completion of the VOLAR partitions project here at Fort Benning.

Also honored at the Pioneer Association's meeting were new arrivals to the battalion. These included: Capt. and Mrs. Harold Miller, Capt. and Mrs. David Earl, Capt. and Mrs. Allen Steffink, 1st Lt. and Mrs. John Park, and 1st Lt. Andy Ericson. Departures included: Capt. Otis Williams, 1st Lt. Frank S. Cover, 1st Lt. Ed Sacco, 1st Lt. and Mrs. Tom Giloride, 1st Lt. and Mrs. Mike Brown, and CWO and Mrs. Curtis Minix.

Hurricanes provide own calm in midst of violent storms

North Atlantic averages 6 'big blows' per year

Hurricanes are tropical cyclones in which winds reach speeds of 74 miles per hour or more, and blow in a large spiral around a relative calm center — the eye of the hurricane. Every year, these violent storms bring destruction to coastlines and islands in their erratic path.

In these giant whirlwinds air moves in a large, tightening spiral around a center of extreme low pressure, reaching maximum velocity in a circular band extending outward 20 or 30 miles from the rim of the eye. This circulation is counter-clockwise in the Northern Hemisphere, and clockwise in the Southern Hemisphere.

Near the eye, hurricane winds may gust to more than 200 miles per hour, and the entire storm dominates the ocean surface and lower atmosphere over tens of thousands of square miles.

The hurricanes that strike the eastern United States are born in the tropical and subtropical North Atlantic Ocean, the Caribbean Sea, and the Gulf of Mexico. Most occur in August, September, and October, but the six-month period from June 1 to Nov. 30 is considered the Atlantic hurricane season.

Hurricanes also form along the west coast of Mexico and Central America, but their effects are seldom felt as far north as California. These threaten shipping and aviation, however, and are watched as carefully as their Atlantic cousins.

On average, six Atlantic hurricanes occur per year. However, there are significant deviations from this average. In 1916 and 1950, 11 hurricanes were observed, and no hurricanes were observed in 1907 and 1914.

Since the beginning of this century, the hurricane death toll has declined markedly, as observation, prediction, and preparedness have improved. In the decade 1900 through 1909, more than 8000 people were killed by hurricanes in the United States. Since 1940, hurricanes caused deaths exceeded 500 in only one five-year period — 1955 through 1959.

But the decreasing loss of life is mirrored by the sharply rising property damage during the same period. Adjusting damage totals to the 1957-59 base of the Commerce Department's composite construction cost index, hurricanes caused less than $400 million in damage during the five-year period 1925-29, while deaths exceeded 2000. For the five-year period 1960-64, hurricane damages were nearly $1.2 billion, while the figure for 1965-69 rose to more than $2.4 billion.

The dollar cost can be expected to continue climbing as greater numbers of expensive buildings are constructed in vulnerable coastal areas.

Hurricane winds do much damage, but drowning is the greatest cause of hurricane deaths. As the storm approaches and moves across the coastline, it brings huge waves, raising tides some 15 feet or more above normal. The rise may come rapidly, and produce flash floods in coastal lowlaods, or may come in the form of gigant waves — which are mistakenly called "tidal waves."

Waves and currents erode beaches and barrier islands, undermine waterfront structures, and wash out highway and railroad beds. The torrential rains produce sudden flooding; as the storm moves inland and its winds diminish, floods constitute the hurricane's greatest threat.

During summer and autumn, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's Atlantic Hurricane Warning Service, headquartered at the National Hurricane Center in Miami, and National Weather Service Hurricane Warning Offices at San Jaun, New Orleans, Washington, and Boston, maintain a constant watch for tropical disturbances which could develop into destructive storms. A similar effort, headquartered at National Weather Service Offices in San Francisco and Honolulu, counters the threat of Pacific hurricanes and typhoons.

Weather summaries from the National Meteorological Center in Maryland, cloud photographs from orbiting spacecraft, ship and aircraft reports, measurements from a network of weather stations monitor the disturbance. When it appears that a storm is developing, Air Force or Navy reconnaissance aircraft or one of the aircraft of NOAA's Research Flight Facility is sent to the area to make a thorough investigation. Temperature, pressure, and wind readings are taken, cloud structure is observed, and the extent, movement, and position of the storm are noted.

As the storm approaches the Atlantic mainland, the National Weather Service's radar fence picks up and tracks its movement. This belter is a line of overlapping weather radars from Texas to New England, each station having a range of about 200 miles. Because hurricanes are also creatures of the sea, a watch is kept on tidal heights in the path of the storm.

If the hurricane threatens coastal and inland regions, a hurricane watch is added to the advisory, covering a specified area and duration. A hurricane watch means that hurricane conditions are a real possibility; it does NOT mean they are imminent. When a hurricane watch is issued, everyone in the area covered by the watch should listen for further advisories and be prepared to act quickly if hurricane warnings are issued.

When hurricane conditions are expected within 24 hours, a hurricane warning is added to the advisory. Hurricane warnings identify coastal areas where winds of at least 74 miles per hour are expected to occur. A warning also may describe coastal areas where dangerously high water or exceptionally high waves are forecast, even though winds may be less than hurricane force.

When the hurricane warning is issued, all precautions should be taken immediately. Hurricane warnings are seldom issued more than 24 hours in advance. If the hurricane's path is unusual or erratic, the warnings may be issued only a few hours before the beginning of hurricane conditions.

Enter each hurricane season prepared. Every June through November, recheck your supply of boards, tools, batteries, nonperishable foods, and other equipment you will need when a hurricane strikes your town.

When your area is covered by a hurricane watch, continue normal activities, but stay tuned to radio or television for all National Weather Service advisories. Ignore rumors.

When your area receives a hurricane warning:

— Leave low-lying areas.

— Board up windows or protect them with storm shutters or tape. Secure outdoor objects that might be blown away or uprooted or bring them inside.

— Store drinking water — your town's water supply may be contaminated or damaged by hurricane floods.

— Check your battery-powered equipment. Your radio may be your only link with the world outside the hurricane, and emergency cooking facilities, lights, and flashlights will be essential if utilities are interrupted.

— Hurricanes moving inland can cause severe flooding. Stay away from river banks and streams.

— Tornadoes spawned by hurricanes are among the storms' worst killers. When a hurricane approaches, listen for tornado watches and warnings. A tornado watch means tornadoes are expected to develop. A tornado warning means a tornado has actually been sighted.

Typing class set

The Army Education Center is offering a course in Elementary Typewriting I, beginning Aug. 16.

Pollution, cancer deaths linked by Public Health Service studies

By Mike O'Donnell

Studies by the Public Health Service indicate that there is a direct correlation between air pollution and deaths caused by cancer of the respiratory system and gastrointestinal tract.

These studies also indicate that air pollution can cause intensivication of existing diseases, particularly cardiac and respiratory diseases.

In 1948 in the small industrial town of Donora, Pa., a thermal inversion (a meteorological condition resulting in a large mass of stagnant air) hung over the community for three days.

During this time a zinc reduction plant, a steel mill and other factories continued to operate at full capacity. This resulted in a large accumulation of pollutants over the town.

At the end of the three days 5,910 people (4 per cent of the population) were ill. A similar incident lasting a week in London in 1952 resulted in an increase of 4,000 deaths over the normal weekly rate.

Air pollutants also do considerable damage to plants and animals. The pollutants cause discoloration, stunted growth and death of vegetation.

A national study was conducted in 1968 by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to identify the contribution of various sources of air pollution. The finds were as follows: motor vehicles — 60 per cent, industry — 16 per cent, power plants — 14 per cent, space heating — 6 per cent, and refuse disposal — 4 per cent.

There are two types of air pollution, particles and gases i.e., sulfur oxides, carbon monoxide, hydrocarbons and nitrogen oxides.

The major sources of air pollution are particles from industrial operations and gaseods emissions from motor vehicles.

Present efforts to control air pollution are hampered by a lack of inexpensive technology to remove pollutants from emissions, a lack of means to easily measure air pollutants from emissions, a lack of means to easily measure air pollutants and a lack of effective local enforcement (AFPS) (Reprinted from Lackland AFB, Tex. Tailspinner).

Prior planning needed for reenlistment

WASHINGTON (ANF)— Much advanced planning is required of soldiers who intend to reenlist in the Army, especially when a waiver is needed for some disqualification.

The most common disqualification is age. Unless a waiver has been approved by DA, a soldier may not enter into an enlistment or extension of enlistment which would terminate beyond age 55.

Other disqualifications for which waivers may be granted include lost time, aptitude requirements and overweight.

The guide for the soldier who is considering the Army as a career is AR 601-208, which lists qualifications for reenlistment.

Name two of the most popular group life insurance programs for Armed Forces Officers.
1. SGLI 2.
We'd like to fill you in on the other one.

Chances are you probably have Serviceman's Group Life Insurance; $15,000 coverage for $3 a month, guaranteed by the U.S. Government. You know it's a good beginning for your total insurance program. But do you know about the other low cost group life insurance program for officers?

As a member of the Armed Forces Relief and Benefit Association, you'll receive an additional $20,000 group life insurance coverage plus member benefits. It's a logical step when you're building your insurance program. Take a minute now and see why.

Here are the AFRBA facts.

Low-Cost Life Insurance
As an AFRBA member, you receive $20,000 group life insurance coverage for just $9 a month, $12.50 a month if you're a flying officer. And, annual refunds reduce the cost to members even more.

AFRBA's low cost plus the refunds reduced the annual net cost for each thousand dollars of insurance in 1970 to just $2.95; $5.24 for flying officers. Compare this cost per thousand of group life insurance and you'll find out why AFRBA is one of the largest organizations of its kind in the world. All AFRBA members have the same coverage, regardless of age, rank, length of service or duty station.

Worldwide Coverage
No war restriction once you join.

Emergency Death Benefit
Immediate payment of $2,000 upon notification of death.

Optional Dependents Program
For just $1.50 a month, you can cover all of your eligible family members.

Continuous Record of Refunds
Each year since AFRBA was founded in 1947, active duty members have received a refund. Although they cannot be guaranteed, refunds are determined by the Board of Directors based on the year's operations and the dividends received from the Underwriters.

Educational and Emergency Loans
Members are eligible for low interest (simple 5% interest) loans for educational and emergency purposes.

Retired and Separated Program
AFRBA has a special program for members when they retire or separate after at least one year of active duty membership.

Here's How To Join. If you're a commissioned or warrant officer on active duty, in good health, and not presently receiving hostile fire pay or under orders to a hostile fire area, you're eligible to join now. (After you become a member, your insurance coverage is in effect regardless of where you're stationed or the cause of death.)

There are many associations and organizations which can sell you insurance; but there's only one Armed Forces Relief and Benefit Association. Get all the facts. Just mail this coupon today. No obligation; no salesman will call. You'll soon see why 68,000 Armed Forces officers have chosen AFRBA to round out their insurance and benefit program.

Special Destin summer trips over

The special summer trips to the USAIC Recreation Area at Destin, Fla. will end for men of the 931st Engineer Group Sept. 6.

The summer recreation program, sponsored by Special Services, comes to an end after more than 100 engineers from the 931st visited the recreation site this season.

The 931st sponsored nine excursions to the Florida resort area since the program began for the engineers on April 23. The unit provided buses and drivers.

The recreation site is known for its boating and camping facilities as well as its beach and deep sea fishing.

Sp5 Dan Stallings, athletics and recreation NCO for 931st, said "it's a good opportunity for the units to reward their outstanding men. The only problems we've had with the program were the methods the units were using to select and brief the men. Some of those selected for the trip didn't really know what it was all about because their companies failed to take the time to tell them."

Stallings said that he felt the program was an overall success and a big hit with those selected for the brief vacations. "I'd definitely like to see the program continued," he added. "As a matter of fact I'd like to go myself."

Chainlink fence in a battle zone?

Why would a soldier take rolls of chainlink fence into a battle zone? He might be planning to fence in all the ground he takes from the enemy or, perhaps, raise some animals.

But if it's Capt. Watson G. Caudill, a recent graduate of Armor Officers Advance Course at Ft. Knox, Ky., that fence just might be his lifesaver.

Caudill utilizes the fence as a "standoff," which is a wire barrier to protect a tank by deflecting fin stabilized rounds and causing early detonation. Caudill thought it took too much time to erect the "standoff" so he designed a new method utilizing old air mattresses. The wire is wrapped around deflated air mattresses and hung around the tank in rolls. When the mattresses are inflated, they unroll and set up the wire standoff fence. The method takes only a matter of seconds and the individual soldier is protected because it can be done from inside the tank.

For his creative thinking, Caudill has been given the Combat Developments Command's (CDC) Creative Thinking Award.

John Davis, chief, Public Relations Branch, Public Information Office, Fort Benning, and Miss Debbie Walding, Columbus Chamber of Commerce, look at the second place ribbon won by the Columbus Chamber of Commerce "Stay and See Georgia" exhibit at Lenox Square Shopping Center in Atlanta. Fort Benning was represented by the 197th Scout Dogs and the Infantry Museum.

August 25 is the deadline for submitting local entries in the 14th Interservice Photo Contest currently underway at Fort Benning.

Competition is open to all military personnel who are on active duty for a period of 90 days or more.

Photos must be either monochrome prints, color prints or color transparencies. The eight categories are people, children, animals, action, scenic, military life, still life and experimental.

All entries vie for cash awards, prizes and certificates at installation 3rd Army, All-Army and interservice levels.

Pictures should have been taken since August 1, 1969. No official military photographs will be accepted.

Contest rules and entry forms are available at the Craft Administration Office at either the Main Post Arts and Crafts Center, Bldg. 2783 or the Kelley Hill Craft Shop, Bldg. 9049. Craft personnel will provide assistance in filing application material.

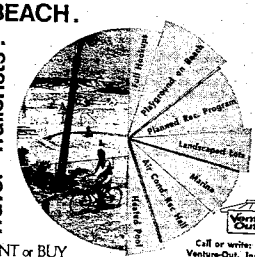
Center lines to be changed

All streets and roads on Fort Benning are scheduled to be painted with yellow lines as lane dividers instead of the usual white lines.

This is being done to conform with the Uniform Traffic Control Devices for Streets and Highways.

The lines have already been painted on South Lumpkin Road, by the State and the lines will be painted on Ft. Benning by the Engineers when the streets come up for normal repainting or resurfacing.

Now, the broken lines and the solid no-passing lines will be the same color.



All roads in the U. S. will have to conform with this style, except expressways, which will retain the usual white lines.

there are definite benefits from the VOLAR actions at Fort Benning," Kennedy added.

This survey, contained in the final report on the initial six-months test, bears out Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott's statement that, "Perhaps the most notable achievement of the VOLAR program has been the creation of a more receptive attitude toward the Army while at the same time making Fort Benning and the Army a substantially better place in which to live and work."

Sp4 Howard Reed, HHD, 67th Maint. Bn., has been named as 931st Gp. "Driver of the Month." Lt. Col. Ellis O. Atkinson Jr., 76th Maint. Bn. commanding officer, presented Reed with a check for $22.50 and a three day pass.

A conference and demonstration on antipersonnel mine, and boobytrap simulators, attended by representatives of industry and the Infantry community, was held August 4 at the US Army Infantry Board's Farnsworth Range.

In addition to the president of the US Army Infantry Board and other interested Infantry Board personnel, the demonstration was attended by liaison officers from Canada and the Marine Corps, representatives of the Infantry School, the Infantry Agency, the US Army Training Device Agency, the US Naval Training Device Agency and Special Devices, Inc. of California.

The 3C116A series, antipersonnel mine and boobytrap simulators were demonstrated. The 3C116A series consists of 18 devices representative of the mines and boobytraps encountered by allied personnel during WWII, the Korean War and the conflict in Vietnam.

The 3C116A simulators are proposed as training devices to aid in the detection, recognition and avoidance of mines and boobytraps.

The 3C118A series simulaters contain a scoring module which emits noise, smoke and a red marking dye. The red marking dye is sprayed on personnel who activate the devices and it simulates the bursting radius of mines and boobytraps.

The Field Equipment Test Branch of the US Army Infantry Board will conduct a Military Potential Test of the 3C116A series antipersonnel mine and bobbytrap simulators beginning later this month.

One out of every 50 cars driven by potential killer

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Statistics from traffic crash reports and arrest records reveal that the drunk driver is one of the worst menaces on the highway, according to the U.S. Department of Transportation.

Results of the compilation reported to Congress were:

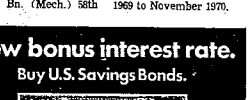
More than one-half of all fatal highway crashes and nearly one-half of all injury crashes involve drivers who have been drinking excessively.

Heavy drinkers, especially alcoholics, constitute the largest part of the drunk driving problem.

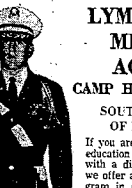
Approximately one driver out of every 50 on the road is drunk — not just "drinking," but actually drunk.

Applying the findings of the study to 56,400 traffic deaths that occurred in 1969, experts estimate that 25,000 Americans, almost half of them totally innocent victimes, died in crashes involving drunk drivers.

Vandal caught, sgt. gets grand



A $1,000 reward has been given to SSgt. Lee R. Siegfried II, of Company D, Headquarters Command, for information which led to the arrest and conviction of a soldier who damaged the Country Club Golf Course with an automobile.



Siegfried received the $1,000 check Tuesday.

The reward was offered last month after several greens at the golf course were damaged by an automobile.

Dramatizers show new dimensions in 'Wizard'

By Edith Simmons

The Witch is dead. The Wicked Witch is dead. How did this happen? Come to Main Post Theatre No. One tomorrow or Aug. 21 to find out. Show times are 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. The "Wizard of Oz," is being produced by the Benning Dramatizers. Tickets may be obtained at the door or by phoning the Entertainment Center at 545-2316.

This venture into children's theatre adds a new dimension to the already varied talents of the Dramatizers. Breaking with the traditional method of presenting the show, they will not be doing it as a musical. Instead, the emphasis is placed on the story and the special effects that create the magic spell so believable to children.

Members of the cast and production crew are military personnel and dependents. Coming from varied backgrounds and experience, each is working hard to perfect his part of the show.

Dorothy, of course, is the main character. The role is played by Pam Williams, a drama major presently at Columbus College. Pam has been with the Dramatizers for a year. She had a female lead in "You Can't Take It With You," and has assisted in various other productions.

Chuck Lucas is the terrible and mighty Wizard. A drama major at East Tennessee State, Chuck has done work in radio-television in addition to his theatrical experience.

Throughout her journey in Oz, Dorothy's friend Toto is at her heels. In real life, Toto is thirteen year old Lorrie Jones. Planning a career in theatre, Lorrie is learning ballet, modern dance, piano, guitar, and organ.

The Scarecrow, Bill D'Elia, was a broadcasting major at Ithaca College. While there, he produced and hosted a weekly children's clubhouse.

Ed Gross clanks around as the Tin Woodsman. From Webster College, Ed has brought a variety of talents to his two years with the Dramatizers.

San Jose State College produced the Cowardly Lion. Craig Harbidge has worked in little threatre productions of most of the major musicals. His aspiration is to be a playwrite.

The most evil of all wicked witches is portrayed by Zennetta Branch. She is an elementary teacher with ten years of training in modern dance, Zennetta has performed in the religious dance, "Rejoice in the Land," for several summers.

Other members of the cast are:

Munchkin-Winkies: Pam Vest, Don Vest, Debbie Cumming and Marsha Pate.

Good Witches: Gail Robinson, Linda Booth

Green Guard: Kevin Murdock

Trees: Bill English, Bob Delaney, Sandy Owens, Kathy Marsh

Mrs. Bimp: Edith Simmons

No play can succeed without the diligent work of the people behind the scenes. The director is Jeff Grandel. As a speech and technical drama major, Jeff has a long history of acting and stage work behind him, but his special interest in in children's theatre. The stage manager is Jessica Hickey who is also the understudy for the Lion.

Jose Garcia is head of the construction crew. Once a carnival clown, Jose plans career in commercial art. Working with him on the sets are Bruce Weiss and the entire cast.

Another important aspect of the production is the costuming. This has been handled by Shirley Jones. Her previous experience was in costuming for school plays for her three daughters. Given free rein in patterns and color schemes, she has contributed to the magic of Oz.

Other technical aspects of the production are being handled by Jim Hickey and Tom Kober in lights and Bill Robinson in sound. Joanne Blanks has collected and made the properties.

Synopsis

MASH (Rated R) — Donald Sutherland, Elliott Gould and Tom Skerritt star in a comedy about skilled and professionally dedicated surgeons who develope a lunatic life-style in order to function and keep their sanity in a mobile army surgical hospital (M.A.S.H.) during the Korean War.

20,000 LEAGUES UNDER THE SEA (Rated G) -- Based on the celebrated novel by Jules Verne, the dramatic sea story tells the tale of Captain Nemo, master of the Nautilus, the first man made submarine operated by atomic power and his evil crew who prowl upon the world's shipping lanes bringing death and destruction to helpless vessels.

RIDER ON THE RAIN (Rated GP) — In a deserted seaside resort in the south of France, a mysterious stranger (Marc Mazza) alights from the Marseilles bus and is observed by Mellie, (Marlene Jobert) a young wife visiting her mother.

The stranger in turn observes Mellie, follows her to her isolated house where she is awaiting her husband's return from abroad that night. With the dark comes the face at the window . . . the attack . . . terror, panic and murder.

It is justified murder, but would a fiercely jealous Italian husband believe it? There is a childhood blighted by the telling of an ugly truth and then another mysterious stranger (Charles Bronson) comes upon the scene.

You will never again see rain on a window pane without recalling the terror of this film.

TAKING OFF (Rated R) — Frantically trying to locate their missing teenage daughter (Linnea Heacock) Buck Henry and wife (Lynn Carlin) join the S.P.F.C. (Society for Parents of Fugitive Children).

Henry and Carlin return home turned-on by marijuana, smoked in an experiment designed to deepen understanding of their runaway child. Indulging in a variation of strip poker and drinking heavily to overcome whatever remnants of inhibition are left, the parents are surprised by their daughter's return.

The generation gap becomes less apparent when Henry and Carlin talk to Linnea and ask her to bring her rock musician boy friend to the house so that they may get to know him.

THE ABOMINABLE DR. PHIBES (Rated GP) — Vincent Price in the title role, perfectly fits the part of a brilliant musician and scientist, who madly embarks on a vendetta to kill all the people whom he blames for his wife's death on an operating table years ago.

With fiendish ingenuity, he devises methods of death, according to a pattern of the ten curses of the Pharoahs; death by boils, bats, frogs, blood, rats, hail, locusts, beasts, firstborn and darkness.

Price gives an excellent performance as the mad genius who must speak through electronic devices. Supporting cast is headed by Joseph Cotten, Terry-Thomas and Hugh Griffith.

There are two sides to Dr. Phibes . . . both of them evil.

DEATH DEFYING LEAP
Evel Knievel Takes To Air As He Attempts Leap Over 19 Cars.

Evel Knievel—last of daredevils

Evel Knievel, America's King of the Stuntmen, who hopes one day to jump the Snake River Canyon astride a jet-propelled motorcycle, is as fascinating a character in real-life as he is a performer. His story, revolving around the highlights of his spectacular career, is depicted in the feature, film, "Evel Knievel," starring George Hamilton as the madcap motorcyclist and Sue Lyon as his wife, Linda.

Opening today at a local theater, "Evel Knievel" was filmed in Metrocolor under the direction of Marvin Chomsky, and includes in its cast Bert Freed, Rod Cameron, Dub Taylor, Ron Masak and Hal Baylor. Joe Solomon served as executive producer and Hamilton as producer of The Fanfare Corporation production.

Hospitals are no strangers to Evel, who has painfully earned his billing. During the course of his career, he has missed 11 major jumps, resulting in serious injuries which required nine open reduction operations and left him with one leg permanently crippled and held together with metal pins.

Evel, who calls life "a bore," continues to flirt with disabling injury and possible death every time he mounts his motorcycle. Overflowing crowds of young and old turn out across the country to watch him perform, making him one of the most popular and best paid athletes in sports history.

Evel started stunting at a modest pace. "I would do wheelies, crash through fire walls, jump a box with 100 rattlesnakes and zip down the last ramp past two mountain lions tied to the end of it." Eventually he began to hurdle autos, which led to his becoming a major attraction who has been booked at the biggest arenas in the country, including the Cow Palace in San Francisco, the Houston Astrodome and Madison Square Garden.

Evel, despite being handicapped by severe injuries, has no intention of slowing down his incredible pace; every new personal record he sets represents yet another record to be broken. For the one-time "bad boy" whose ambition is to jump the Snake River Canyon, the show has a long way to run.

Stubborn ruler

The United Kingdom's headstrong ruler, Henry VIII broke with the Pope when denied the right to divorce the first of his six wives and claimed supreme authority over the Catholic Church in England.

Stunt man 'pushed' out window

Gordon Parks was present in the room when an actor fell out of the 3rd story window of a building at 48th and Broadway during filming of "Shaft," the new film directed by Mr. Parks and now playing at a local theater. Some suspected Parks of having pushed him.

"My hands never touched him, but I pushed him all right," said Parks. "He didn't seem to want to go."

The actor was Tommy Lane, who is also one of the top stunt men in the motion picture industry; the top Black stunt man in the business. He plays a Harlem hood in the film, which is about a Black private eye's enmeshment in an underworld squeeze play. And in the scene in question, he lunges for Shaft, the detective played by newcomer Richard Roundtree, who adroitly steps aside so that Mr. Lane, leaping for him, continues on out the window.

The scene could only be filmed once, as there was only one pane of breakaway sugar glass available for use. Mr. Parks started the scene with Mr. Lane's lunge for Roundtree. "Camera, action," he said. Roundtree stepped aside as instructed. Only Lane didn't budge. Parks cut the take, and another as instructed. Only Lane didn't budge. Parks cut the take, and another was commenced. This time, too, Lane looked as if wild boars couldn't push him out that window when Roundtree stepped aside from it. And then he caught sight of a non-characteristic glare on the face of the usually calm and cool Parks.

"In a sense, he did push me," Lane later said.

The scene was photographed from adjoining rooftops and buildings by three of the company's cameras, one a high speed camera to catch the action in slow motion. One company camera covered it from inside the room. In addition, various TV cameras and newsmen covered it; and the jump was shown that evening on both ABC and CBS television networks as part of their nightly news roundup.

Lane landed in a net whose four ends were attached to spokes opening up from the center of a flat bed truck pulled up alongside the curb just prior to the scene's being filmed. The top of the net measured 20 feet from the pavement. Beneath it empty cartons and old mattresses had been placed to break the fall. The concept of the truck, as described by the film's director, Alex Stevens, eliminated the necessity of disrupting Broadway traffic with the construction of scaffolding to which nets would be attached, a previous method involved in the filming of such a scene.

"I don't sleep the night before a jump like this," said Lane, "or the night afterwards. Worrying over what might happen, then what might have."

Lost in thought

Sp4 Dennis Alloway thinks about another time in another place as he waits for the rain to end. Alloway of Anderson, Calif., is a radiotelephone operator with the 3d Brigade, 1st Cavalry Division (Airmobile). Noted historian is guest speaker

Brig. Gen. (Ret.) S. L. A. Marshall spoke to Infantry Officers Advanced Course classes on the Middle East Aug. 10.

Known as the primary U. S. military historian of the latter part of the twentieth century, Marshall has authored 21 books and many articles on the military and related subjects. He is presently a reporter and columnist for the Detroit News and contributes articles to many other publications in addition to regular speaking engagements around the country.

Among his many books are "The American Heritage History of World War I" and "Pork Chop Hill," a history of the bloodiest single battle of the Korean conflict.

Newlyweds choose OCS together

By Cathy Wright

Their marriage certificate is a standard Department of the Army form, and their home will shortly be running over with gold bars. Officer Candidates Ernest S. Stephenson and Catherine Long Stephenson, married about 6 months, are both in officer training. He is in OCS at Fort Benning and on Aug. 7 she began at Ft. McClellan, Ala.

Both Cass and Steve entered the army after leaving college. Cass, who had been a theater major for a year and a half at the University of Wisconsin at Milwaukee, found the Wacs appealing for a number of reasons. "I saw a chance to shop around for a better school. Also, I felt that to be an actress, I needed to see a lot of people and a lot of the world."

She decided to try to attend Wac Officer Training early in her career. "After about four weeks of basic, I realized that I might qualify for Wac Officer Training. As an officer, I could return to school on the Bootstrap Program, and I could continue with something I had begun to like."

Steve, after leaving the University of Oregon, spent four years in the service as a medic, including one tour with the First Cavalry at Fort Benning. He has now completed 16 weeks of OCS assigned to the 50th Co., 5th Stu. Bn.

He had been considering OCS on and off since his service began. What made him finally decide to attend OCS? "Her," he says, proudly pointing to Cass.

She replied that she had encouraged her husband, but that they decided to enter officer training independently.

Business frat accepts soldier

A soldier from the 931st Engineer Group has been accepted for membership in Sigma Iota Epsilon, the national honorary business fraternity.

Sp4 Deug Blanz, the S-2 clerk at the engineer group headquarters, was invited to join the honorary fraternity while he was studying for a masters degree in business administration at Georgia State University.

The scholarly soldier has been serving as a clerk with the engineer group since completing combat engineer training at Ft. Leonard Wood. He's been continuing his education at Georgia State since arriving at Fort Benning, and plans to return to Westinghouse or acquire a doctorate degree in finance and then teach.

While studying at Georgia State, Blanz has maintained a 4.0 grade point average, qualifying him for the honorary fraternity.

Army tests early out as NG, AR incentive

WASHINGTON (ANF) — During a test program now underway, soldiers enlisting with the National Guard or Army Reserve before separation from the Active Army may receive up to 60 days early release from their expiration term of service (ETS).

During a 12-week period of the experimental program beginning in mid-August, National Guard and Army Reserve career counselors will be stationed at Ft. Knox, Ky., and Ft. Lewis, Wash., where the test will take place.

Active Army career counselors will continue to conduct counseling sessions with soldiers 100 days before their scheduled date of separation. If the soldier decides not to continue service in the Active Army, a reserve component career counselor will arrange a personal interview with him approximately 90 days before his date of separation.

If the interviewed individual indicates interest in a reserve component, the counselor will determine whether a vacancy exists for him in the area in which he will reside upon separation from active service.

If a vacancy exists or is projected within 90 days from the date of normal separation, the individual will be offered a 60-day early release from active duty if he accepts assignment to fill the vacancy with the reserve component.

Separation orders releasing an individual from active duty early under this program will assign him directly to the appropriate reserve component unit.

Income changes

Starting next year, about 655,000 of 2,300,000 pensioners who have been on the rolls during two consecutive years will not have to submit annual income questionnaires to the Veterans Administration. They must continue to report changes in income, however.

By John Davis

(Editor's note: Roger Pavey is filling in this week for the vacationing John Davis.)

It seems as though the daily salary wars have taken precedence over the once uncomplicated sport of pro football.

Cases in point: 69's premier quarterback, the ever colorful Joe Kapp left his warm nest in Minnesota and fled to the cold confines of the Boston Patriots. It seems that old Joe was demanding a multi-year, million dollar contract from the stingy Viking front office. But for an extremely talented number two quarter-back named Gary Cuozzo, Joe might have gottan his precious contract.

The Patriots on the otherhand were in desperate need of a proven helmsman and willingly met Kapp's demands. Boston now had the miracle they sought to hail them out of the cellar, or so they thought. Kapp led them to a dismal 1 and 13 record and when the season ended Boston no longer felt their presence needed.

Boston has since become the New England Patriots and Joe Kapp has once again fled the scene. This time they say it isn't money. One can only speculate that his recent departure is due to the arrival of Heisman Trophy winner Jim Plunkett.

In another development involving the Patriots, Duane Thomas, NFC's Rookie of the Year, refused to report to the Dallas Cowboys training camp. The elusive Thomas was seeking a new $80,000 contract to replace his existing $30,000.

The talented West Texas State running back and number 1 draft choice led the Cowboys to the Super Bowl, thus deserving a substantial raise. But his attitude towards his coach, owner and general manager has been one of utter disrespect towards the sport. He has called coach Tom Landry a "liar" and owner Tex Schramm a "plastic man," seemingly ending his career in Dallas.

The vociferous Thomas was rightfully put on the trading block and immediately grabbed by who else but the Patriots. In return for Thomas and two lesser players the Cowboys received the Pats well traveled number one draft choice and the 1969 AFC Rookie of the Year, running back Carl Garret.

The problem apparently solved, flared up again when Thomas mysteriously skipped out of New Englands training camp and hopped a plane for L.A. According to Thomas he was "asked to leave" by the Patriots after being consulted by their physician. Dallas has since mullified the deal and has secured once again the services of Duane Thomas. For their efforts New England was allowed to keep the two throw-ins.

The Miami Dolphins were also plagued by the money wars. Running backs Larry Csonka and Jim Klick refused to report to training camp even though they were being fined $200 a day. The tandom who make up two-thirds of Miami's backfield and 100 per cent of their rushing yardage felt they deserved upwards of $50,000 a year each.

The two holdouts who negotiating their contract together brought to mind the holdout staged by two members of another sport, Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale. LA's pair of hurlers argued that their careers could be shortened at anytime due to injury as do Klick and Csonka. The Dodgers relented and inked Koufax and Drysdale to a lucrative pact, thus giving credence to the twin holdout theory.

Miami's pair of backs feel an insurance policy is definitely needed in the violent world of pro football. As one can vivily recollect the misfortunes that plague the two brilliant pitchers and forced them into early retirement, one can easily see why Klick and Csonka are wondering about the future.

The deal of the year, however, once again involved the Patriots and their number one draft choice of a year ago, Phil Olsen. Apparently in their haste to sign the former Utah State All-American, New England left out football's biggest headache, the option clause. Subsequently Olsen fled to big brother Merlin and the L.A. Rams and another big bonus.

Olsen, who had received a substantial bonus from the Patriots, hurt his knee in preparation for the 1970 College All-Star game, and never donned a Patriot uniform. New England was pacified by Commissioner Rozelle's ruling that the Rams must forfeit their number one draft choice, thus giving them another opportunity to fall sucker to pro football's never ending game of chance.

Doughboys handball team bombs Rucker

The Fort Benning "Doughboys" team handball squad blitzed an outclassed Ft. Rucker team, 10-3, Friday (Aug. 6), and 20-2, Saturday (Aug. 7), as they opened their quest for the Western Division Championship of the 3rd Army Team Handball League.

A devastating Fort Benning defense and an explosive offense spelled disaster for their season-opening competitors.

The second game of the Ft. Rucker series turned into an early out. Ft. Rucker tallied the first goal of the contest, but Fort Benning court player Steve Justice retaliated with a score for the "Doughboys."

With the score tied, Fort Benning rampaged through their opponents for 16 goals and took a commanding 17-1 advantage.

The "Doughboys" added three additional tallies to round out their 20 point total.

In the season opener for both clubs, Fort Benning braved a wet field and sloshed to a 10-3 victory.

Instrumental in Fort Benning's devastating defense was goalie Paul "The Spider" Scott of the 93ist Engr. Gp.

The leading scorer of the two-game series was Fort Benning court player Walter Robertson, 93ist Engr. Gp., five; Walter Pirkle, 93ist Engr. Gp., five; and player-coach Bill "Wild Bill" Davis, 197th Inf. Bde., four.

197th softball champs

Co. A takes 3rd sports title

Co. A (Admin.), 197th Inf. Bde., Aug. 5, claimed its third brigade athletic title within a sports season's span.

The champions of brigade football and basketball competition defeated "The Horde," (HHC, 1st Bn., 58th Inf.) 2-1 in the final game of brigade slow-pitch softball competition and took the 197th slow-pitch title.

The two teams competed against seven other Fort Benning clubs for the USAIC slow-pitch softball title.

"The Horde," suffered a previous defeat to Co. A in the double-elimination tourney, but fought back against the other tournament teams and reached the finals.

HHC avenged their previous loss and squeaked by Co. A, 4-3 in the first game of the championship series. The winning tally crossed home plate in the top half of the last inning.

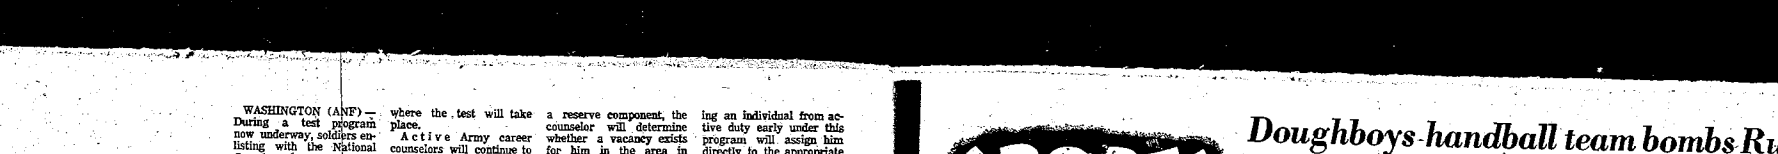
Co. A fought back from a 1-0 deficit in the deciding game and scored a run in the last of the fifth stanza for a 2-1 championship victory.

"The Tankers" (Co. G, 69th Armr.) placed third in the brigade competition followed by Btry. D, 2nd Bn., 10th Arty., and HHC, 5th Bn., 31st Inf.

Co. D, 1st Bn., 29th Inf., finished in the cellar slot.

Four parties from Benning go sea fishing

The "Follow Me" deep sea fishing boat operated out of the Infantry Center Rest Camp at Destin, Fla. took four parties into the gulf waters on fishing trips last week.



Fishing was good with a large variety of fish caught. Lt. Col. (ret.) Richard Sebenoler, 307 Allegeny Drive, had a good catch of mackeral with the largest weighing in at 14-pounds. SFC Bobby Ragsdale, Combat Developments Command and his party caught several bull dolphin and blue tuna. The largest mackeral weighed 11-pounds and the largest tuna tipped the scales at 22-pounds. Sgt. Maj. (ret.) R. L May and his party found a school of dolphin and boated one weighing 3-pounds while Lt. Col. Ottis W. Livingston, 1st Ranger Company, caught several bonita, the largest weighing 10-pounds.

The "Follow Me" is operated by the Fort Benning Special Services Division. It may be chartered by active and retired military personnel. Applications must be made at the Special Services Office (Bldg. 394). The boat may be chartered for various periods of time. The cost is $30 for a half a day from 7 a.m. until 11:30 or from noon until 5 p.m. The boat may be rented from 8 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. for $50 or from 6 a.m. until 5 p.m for $70. The boat will accomodate eight people along with bait, ice and fishing gear which are included with the charter fees.

Sports Car Club of America drivers call it a champion.
(Typical American understatement.)
In the SCCA National Championships last year, the Mark III Spitfire took first, second and third in its class.
Champion indeed! That's what the English would call a bit of all right.
But we didn't rest on our laurels. We redesigned the suspension, improved the engine, improved balance and road holding.
And while we were doing things for the better, we improved the interior.
Inside, Ferrari body designer Michelotti did a lot for the outside.
As far as we can tell, the car is now—to use an American term—"A-OK" by anybody's standards. You try it at your Triumph dealer. The new improved champion for 1971.

All the details haven't been settled for the Labor Day Fishing Derby, but the contest committee has come up with a firm list of prizes. First prize in each category (bass, catfish and bream) will be a $50 bond, second prize a $25 bond, third prize a $15 merchandise order, the fourth prize a $10 merchandise order, fifth prize an $8 merchandise order and a $5 merchandise order for sixth place. Merchandise orders will be honored only at the Rod and Gun Club sales counter. The bonus prize will be a Jon Boat with electric motor and battery. Winner of the bonus prize will be determined by a drawing. The winner must be present on the club grounds at the time of the drawing. The exact time for the drawing will be announced later.

Rod and Gun Fishing July Fishing Derby

The following are winners of merchandise prizes in the Rod and Gun Club July Fishing contest.

Peter Swiderek, 2514 Cornell Ave., won the bass contest. His entry was a 9-pound, 2-ounce largemouth caught at Harps Pond. Swiderek used a black plastic flip-tailed worm.

The largest catfish was registered by Sgt. Vernon Koenig, 43rd Eng. Bn. His 6-pound, 5-ounce entry lived in Twilight Pond until it went for one of the catalpa worms Koenig was offering.

The winner of the bream contest just got in on time. 1st Lt. Joseph Bryan, Leadership Department, caught his 1-pound, 4-ounce winner at Kings Pond on July 31.

The August contest got off to a slow start. Fishermen blamed the rainy weather but SSgt. C. D. Baxley, 3rd Ranger Company got in enough fishing time to take a 1-pound, 4-ounce bream from Kings Pond on Aug. 1 As of Aug. 6 this was the only catch registered at the Rod and Gun Club.

Squirrel Hunting Season

Don't get excited. Squirrel season is not open here yet but hunters who don't mind traveling a bit to enjoy the sport can get in some early hunting in north and middle Georgia.

The early season will open tomorrow and run through Sept. 4 in Harris, Talbot, Monroe, Jones, Baldwin, Hancock, Warren, McDuffie, Columbia counties and all counties in Georgia north of these.

The Game and Fish Commission designated the early season to give small game hunters an opportunity to harvest a surplus of squirrels in these areas before winter weather curtails hunting.

There is an annual surplus of the squirrel population. The surplus is caused by the ability of the squirrel to reproduce and the constant reduction of the area in which they can live.

A pair of squirrels will produce an average of six young each year. Reduction of natural enemies give these young a good chance for survival. If action is not taken this over production will build up the population to the point where a poor year for the growth of food will cause widespread starvation. This situation occurred in northern Georgia in 1969.

By controlled hunting the sportsman is able to harvest the surplus animals and a healthy population is maintained within the habitat capabilities.

The statewide open season begins on October 16 and runs through February 29, 1972. The bag limit for this season will also be 10 animals daily.

Complete Book For Fishermen

A new book for fishermen will delight any man, woman or child interested in the sport.

Entitled "Sport Fishing USA," the book contains 464 pages of copy and pictures. It is easily one of the most authoritative, readable and enduring volumes on all aspects of salt and fresh water fishing ever published.

The book starts with an introduction by Curt Gowdy, nationally known sportscaster, and goes on to offer detailed information concerning fish migration, breeding and feeding habits. It also contains a multitude of useful facts about fishing equipment, fishing techniques and a complete history of angling.

Copies of the book may be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Printing Office, Washington, D. C., 20402. Include a money order or checkfor $10 with your request. The book may also be obtained from the U. S. Government Printing Book Store, Atlanta.

Benning marksman top handgunner of '71 National Pistol Championship

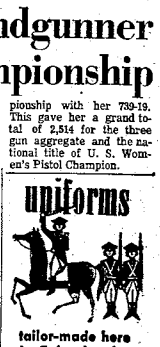
A new king of national pistol competition was crowned last week at Camp Perry, Ohio when SSgt. John Smith of the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit (USAMTU) won the 1971 U.S. National Pistol Championship.

Despite the strong winds blowing from the lakes and across the Ohio pistol ranges, Smith's perseverance enabled him to claim the championship from the grasp of more than 700 of the nation's top handgun competitors.

Going into the third and final day of competition for the national title, Smith, with 1,768, was holding a three-point lead over SSgt. Kenneth Buster, A National Guardsman from Billings, Mo. He continued to increase his lead until he finally held a ten-point spread over his nearest rival at the end of the 45 Caliber Pistol competition of the three gun matches.

Smith fired an 861 in the 45 caliber pistol event Wednesday and compiled the winning total of 2,629 to take the grand aggregate and championship, while Marine Reserve Gyn. Sgt. Jimmy Dorsey, Spokane, Wash. took runner-up honors with 2,619.

Third place overall was claimed by Navy Reserve PO1 Donald Hamilton, Kingston, Mass., with 2,611, while a companion shooter of Smith's from the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit, SFC Harland Rennolds of Columbus, Ga., earned the fourth position with 2,610. Rennolds also won the 45 Caliber Pistol Championship when he posted an 866-36x.



Rennolds continued his good shooting in the final pistol match and captured the 45 Caliber Service Pistol title and championship. He fired a 288-9 to beat out his 700 odd competitors while Buster grabbed the runner-up spot with his fine performance of 285-7. In third place was another USAMTU shooter, SFC John Sicinski with 284-8.

Team results in the Service Pistol division found the U. S. Army Western Division in front with 1,139 while the USAMTU was runner-up with 1,128. Both teams are sponsored by the USAMTU at Fort Benning.

Joining Smith in the championship circle was another Army Champion, SSgt. Barbara Hile of Lapeer, Mich., and the USAMTU Unit. Barbara, who had won each of the two previous days' two gun championship, continued her dominance of the women's competition and took the 45 caliber championship with her 739-19. This gave her a grand total of 2,514 for the three gun aggregate and the national title of U. S. Women's Pistol Champion.

The sport's spotlight is slowly drifting around to the mayhem world of football. With the season almost here, now would be a good time to make plans to go out and support your team.

Doughboy softball team takes west championship

The Fort Benning Doughboy softball team wound up league play in the Western Division of the 3rd Army Softball League with two wins over the Ft. McPherson team at Gowdy Field last weekend.

The Benning team won the Aug. 2 game by a score of 5 to 0 then came back Saturday with another win 20 to 2.

The Doughboys finished first in the Western Division with a record of 17 wins against 3 losses. Ft. McClellan took second place with a record of 16 wins and 4 losses. Benning and McClellan will go to Ft. Jackson for a playoff tournament with Ft. Bragg, and Ft. Jackson the two top teams in the Eastern Divisico.

The playoffs which will determine the 3rd Army Softball Champions will be a double elimination tournament beginning next Wednesday.

Pro golfers seek purse at Southern Invitational

Mason Rudolph, of Le-High Acres, Fla., the winner of the Inaugural Green Island Open golf tournament in 1970, heads a group of 15 touring professionals who have become the first contingent to accept invitations to play in the $100,000 Southern Open invitational to be held at Green Island Country Club in Columbus, September 6-12.

Rudolph, who claimed $12,000 as his winning share of the $60,000 purse at Green Island, was joined on the initial accepted list for the Southern by rookie star Hubert Green of Birmingham (a first-time winner at Houston), Columbus' own Hugh Royer Jr. (the 1970 Western Open King), ex-Georgia Tech football star Bunky Henry, Mac McLendon of Montgomery, and always threatening Bert Yancey of Pompano Beach, Fla., among the better known names on the list.

Also joining the cast for the Southern Open are Ron Cerrudo of Napa, Calif., Bert Greene of Eastman, Ga., Bob Menne of Andover, Mass., San Brion, Pal Beach Gardens, Fla., Dennis Rouse of Miami, Ron Reif of San Diego, Dick Rhyan of Indianapolis, Bob Payne, Mt. Vernon, Ill., and Bob Bourne of Oberlin, Ohio.

Tour rookie Hubert Green brings the top '71 credentials into the Southern. His play-off victory over Don January in the Champions Classic at Houston pricked the ears of the golfing world in mid-May, at the same time filling Green's pockets with $25,000. Just two weeks before the Houston victory, Green had placed second to Frank Beard in the New Orleans Open, missing by a single stroke, but claiming $14,300 of the purse. His initial high finish arrived in February, tying Arnold Palmer and Lee Trevino for the fourth an Open, good for another check for better than $8,000. Still another lofty mark was his third place finish in the $60,000 Tallahassee Open.

Yancey, too, has pocketed considerable prize money thus far in 1971, but has yet to claim a title. He finished second in the Colonial Invitational at Fort Worth, third in the Bob Hope Classic, and tied for fifth in the Byron Nelson invitational.

Other credits claimed by the Southern's initial committed group include the Los Lagartos Open title by Eastman's Bert Greene, a second-place finish for Dick Rhyan in the $70,000 Little Crosby and runner-up honors for Bob Meune in the East Ridge Classic.

The Southern Open, which is co-spousored this year by the Columbus Chamber of Commerce and Southern Airways, Inc., is dedicating all proceeds to chairty, Columbus Mayor J. R. Allen serves as the tourney's General Chairman.

Benning skeet shooters gun past world competitors

Army marksmen from the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit were challenged in both rifle and shotgun supremacy over the weekend in distant ranges from their Fort Benning home.

At San Antonio, Tex., an Army MTU five-man team participated in the three-day National Skeet Shooting Association World Championships and won the first prize trophy and laurels over 726 top national civilian and service competitors in American style skeet.

In the first 100 birds fired Sp5 Jay Gerlich of the USAMTU scored a perfect four rounds of 25 birds for his 100 to lead all contenders. Capt. Kenneth Gilbert, officer in charge of the skeet team, was second with 98.

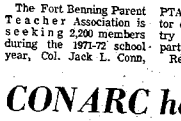
The second day both Gilbert and Gerlich fired with unswerving aim and totaled 100 birds each, to lead the field of bird shooters.

The individual championship was decided Sunday in the firing of the final 50 birds when Gilbert continued his pressure and scored two perfect rounds for 50 while Gerlich dropped three birds. Gilbert gained the championship with 248 Gerlich dropped three birds. Gilbert gained the championship with 248 while Gerlich was runner-up with 247.

In team matches, the Fort Benning based squad grabbed another win when they posted 1224 of a possible 1250 birds to lead all service and civilian teams. Runner-up with 1221 was the U. S. Marine Corps while the U. S. Navy captured the third place with 1218.

In International Skeet competition, the Army Marksmanship Training Unit team won the championship with 970 birds of a possible 1000 after losing the individual crown to Air Force's Jack Johnson of San Antonio. Johnson knocked 197 birds down for the championship. SSgt. Phil Provence of the USAMTU was third with 195.

The international phase of the tournament serves as a preliminary to final try-outs to the 1972 Olympics.



SSgt. Roy Johnson of the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit, took the first place individual honors in the "Off-hand" or standing duel when he won the 200 yard slow fire service rifle match with 197-7X. This was just one X below the all-time record which was established by Marine Warrant Officer R. L. Goller of Quantico, in 1970. Johnson needed all the Xs he could muster as his opponents were close on his heels. Marine Sgt. L. L. Graham of Quantico fired a 197-3 for the runner-up in a decision over Army SFC Charles Davis of the USAMTU who also fired a 197-3.

In the 200 yard and 300 yard rapid fire matches, the U. S. Marine Corps surged ahead and swept both first place events.

In a close scoring duel between the best Army and Marine Corps rifle marksmen at the Tenth Annual Interservice Rifle Championships at Quantico, Va., the Army captured the first round from a strong Marine shooting team but lost two others.

Army was outpointed by one point in both matches.

In the first match, Goller, the Marine Champion, beat out SFC William R. Lee of the USAMTU by one point when he fired a 200-7 and in the second match Marine Gny. Sgt. G. T. Schwartz outperformed Army SFC Don C. Teror by one with his 198-8 in another close decision.

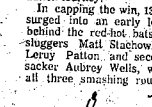
M.P.s, Repl Det. land victories

The two winners of the 93ist Engr. Gp. softball league grabbed early victories Monday in the first round playoffs of the USAIC Company Level Slow-Pitch Tournament.

The 139th M.P. Co., 93ist Engr. Gp., rolled over the Small Arms Committee (SAC) 13-3, and the Engineer group's 18th Repl. Det. squeezed past Tactical Arms Committee (TAC) 5-4 after 11 innings.

The military police outclassed their opponents in the Monday night contest on Main Post Field, and easily coasted to their first victory in the double-elimination tourney.

In capping the win, 139th surged into an early lead behind the red-hot bats of sluggers Matt Stachowicz, Leruy Patton, and second sacker Aubrey Wells, with all three smashing round-trippers.



While allowing only three runs, two of them unearned, the MP squad pounded the SAC pitchers for 13 hits and the three homeruns to put the game out of SAC's reach.

Before entering the post tourney, the MP's boasted a perfect 14-0 record in the 93ist league, which gave them sole possession of the first place slot over runner-up 18th Repl. Det.

In their inaugural tournament contest, 18th Repl. found themselves evenly matched by the TAC team, and had to play air-tight defensive ball before outlasting their opponents in the extra innings. The 5-4 victory at Gowdy Field came in the 11th inning when second baseman Dallas Miller singled to center and scored the winning run on first-sacker John Barber's booming double to left.

Barber's game-winning smash was his second blast of the game, his first coming in the fourth inning as he sailed one over the 250-foot fence in left field. Barber's blast broke a 1-1 tie and put the 18th Repl. squad ahead for the first time in the game.

However, 18th Repl. could not hold off the charging bats of TAC, and by the end of the fourth inning TAC had scooted in front 4-3. In the following inning, the replacement detachment bounced back to tie the score again at 4-4 when Miller scored from second base on a single by Michael Cregler. Both teams played flawless defense and were cold at the plate for the next five innings until 18th Repl. scored the game-breaker in the final stanza.

On the scene

A U.S. Army helicopter, responding to a civilian medical emergency, waits with blades turning as an accident victim is placed on a stretcher. The victim, a 21-year-old coed, stepped into a snow hole at Glacier Basin in the snow capped mountain region of Washington State. Five minutes after the accident was reported, the Army helicopter was on its way. On the scene and during the flight to Everett General Hospital the coed was treated by an Army medic. Army helicopters and personnel of the 3d Armored Cavalry Regiment, Ft. Lewis, Wash., are participating in a program called Military Assistance to Safety and Traffic (MAST), designed to assist in civilian medical emergencies in remote areas. Defense budget funds discussed

WASHINGTON — Funds needed for next fiscal year's national defense budget came under discussion in a Washington meeting between President Nixon and members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. The administration is said to be intent on holding the military costs down.

A White House spokesman declines to comment on a report indicating the Joint Chiefs are asking for about $83 billion for the next fiscal year.

PTA seeking members

The Fort Benning Parent Teacher Association is seeking 2,200 members during the 1971-72 school year, Col. Jack L. Conn, PTA president and director of the US Army Infantry School's Weapons Department, said.

Representatives of the PTA will accept new members and renew memberships at all eight schools prior to and after the opening day of school, according to Col. Conn.

Membership in the association was 1,647 last year, he stated.

"All parents of children entering the schools on the reservation are encouraged to join and support the PTA," remarked Conn.

Lt. Col. Donald L. Vest, also assigned to the Weapons Department, will assume the responsibility of membership chairman.

Program chairmen for the coming year are Col. Jere O. Whittington, director of the Management and Budget Office, USAIS, and SFC Gerald F. Sayas, administrative NCO of the Office of the Comptroller, USAIC.

CONARC has BCT, AIT conference here

Fort Benning was the host to a Continental Army Command (CONARC) conference on Basic Combat Training (BCT) and Infantry Advanced Individual Training (AIT).

Forty-four representatives from the different commands interested in this type of training, including a representative from the Department of the Army, attended the conference August 2-8.

The revised programs presented by the Infantry School were a culmination of systems engineering, a review of mandatory training requirements, recommendations from the field and the experimental Volunteer Army Training Program conducted at Ft. Ord.

The revised programs represented a new approach to Basic Training and Advanced Individual Training for the Infantry soldier and have been designed to be more physically demanding and to better prepare all soldiers to meet world-wide commitments.

In presenting the revised programs, the USAIS presented the basis used in the development of the programs and the rationale for the non-adoption of any major changes proposed.

Conferees proposals for reconsideration of further changes in the revised programs were discussed during the conference.

The United States Army Infantry School will prepare to present the revised and finalized programs to the commanding general, CONARC, this month.

Incentive Awards Ceremony slated today

By Tom Tegtmeyer

Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander, will conduct an Incentive Awards Presentation Ceremony today which will honor 13 individuals who will annually save the army $52,448 in manhours and materials through their adopted suggestions.

At the ceremony, Gen. Talbott will present $3,625 in awards to these individuals for their suggestions.

Mrs. Helen M. Walter, Martin Army Hospital, will receive $765 for her suggestion. Her suggestion alone will save the Army $18,569 annually in manhours and materials.

Mr. William L. Collier, services division, Directorate of Industrial Operations, will receive $605. This suggestion will save the Army $12,041 annually in manhours.

Mr. Raymond L. Gammell, Directorate of Facilities Engineering, will be presented an award of $425. This suggestion nets the Army $7,500 annually in manhours and materials.

Mrs. Linda K. Redmond, Adjutant General Division, Directorate of Personnel and Community Activities, will receive $330. This will save the Army an estimated annual saving of $5,549.

Mr. Charles F. Hancock, maintenance division, Directorate of Industrial Operations, will receive $285.

Mr. Nelson V. Raines of fice of data systems, United States Army Infantry School, will receive an award of $245. This will save $3,845.

Mrs. Joyce D. Sizemore, Martin Army Hospital, will receive $200.

This procedure will save $4,393 annually.

OJT opportunities

A Veterans Administration campaign to provide more on-the-job training opportunities for returning Vietnam Era veterans provides help for employers in setting up training.

3 man team

Three man teams from VA, Dept. of Labor and Office of Education are conducting a wide-ranging counseling program on government benefits for servicemen and women in Vietnam, Japan, Korea, and Europe.

Mrs. Patricia A. McCarrick, services division, Directorate of Industrial Operations, will receive $165. This will save the Army $2,230 annually.

Mr. G. L. Dix, supply division, Directorate of Industrial Operations, will be presented $130.

Mrs. Genevieve P. Evans, finance and accounting division, Office of the Comptroller, will receive $120. This suggestion will save $1,332 annually.

Mrs. Nancy F. Shehane, services division, Directorate of Industrial Operations, will receive $115.

Mrs. Constance R. McDaniel, services division, Directorate of Industrial Operations, will be presented $105.

A little to the right

A U.S. Army Reservist guides the first of five LARCs (Lighter, Amphibious, Resupply, Cargo) vehicles ashore at the new United States Army Reserve (USAR) Amphibious Training Area at Camp Pendleton, Calif. The LARCs negotiated 17 miles of freeway and surface streets before they were launched for their sea trip to Camp Pendleton. The LARCs are presently being used to train several USAR transportation units in San Diego, Calif.

New 'big' Patriot added to battalion

The 1st Bn. (Mech.), 58th Inf. "Patriots" has added a "big" member to the unit. The new addition is a 16-foot illustration of a 'Patriot" soldier, located on the wall of the headquarters section building.

Painted by Sgt. Alfredo A. Marin, the battalion draftsman, it took two-and-a-half days to complete the painting. It has a 12-foot backing that was done in three sections, hinged together and hung on the outside wall.

Before entering the Army, Marin worked for a TV station, WAPA, in his hometown of San Juan, Puerto Rico, where he was involved in scenery design. He also attended the Fine Arts School of the Institute of Culture in San Juan.

Marin's father, Augusto Marin, is a noted artist with works in the New York Modern Art Museum and European galleries.

Upon his return to civilian life, Marin hopes to complete his college degree and enter into commercial art. Eventually, he hopes to devote his full time to being a free lance artist.

Army expands drug test

WASHINGTON (ANF) — The Army is expanding its program to prevent drug abuse among its members by requiring certain Army personnel in the United States to undergo urinalysis tests for drugs.

The Army plans to begin testing those being discharged from the Army, those on orders for overseas and those entering the Army at reception stations.

In Europe and other overseas areas, personnel scheduled to return to the United States and those requesting leave or extension of their foreign tours will be screened beginning Sept. 1. By Nov. 1 it is expected that worldwide spot checks, treatment and rehabilitation of drug abusers in all overseas areas will be underway.

The plan also broadens the scope of the Army's drug abuse prevention efforts by directing attention toward all drugs — amphetamines, barbiturates and opiates — on a world wide bases. This action is part of a comprehensive, phased plan to eliminate the misuse of drugs within the Army.

The primary objective of the Army's new move is to prevent drug abuse among its members by emphasizing the educational program, identifying drug users, detoxifying and counseling users, rehabilitating drug dependent persons and suppressing illicit traffic in drugs through law enforcement.

Testing of Army personnel leaving Vietnam, which began June 19, will be expanded by mid-August to include all personnel departing Vietnam on leave or R R (rest and recuperation). Other personnel in Vietnam will be subject to spot checks.

The screening of personnel in Thailand for drug abuse began on July 23.

Red Cross distributes pamphlet on drug abuse

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — First aid procedures for the care of persons who may be suffering from drug abuse or over dose are now available in a pamphlet being distrubuted by the American Red Cross.

The publication — Drugs and their Abuse — is based on material developed for the American Red Cross by the National Academy of Science-National Research Council.

Drugs covered in the presentation include; Alcohol (alcoholic beverages); depressants (Sedatives-hypnotics); hallucinogens, inhalants, narcotics, stimulants, and tranquilizers. Slang names of some drugs are also given, such as "goofballs," "yellow jackets" and the like.

The 14-page pamphlet describes the effects of the various drugs in these categories, their abuse by some persons, the symptoms they create, and the first aid care that should be given to anyone who has misused them or taken an overdose.

The back cover illustrates the procedure for giving mouth-to-mouth artificial respiration in case the victim stops breathing.

The pamphlets are being shipped to Red Cross chapters throughout the country and will be made available to schools, organizations, industrial groups and interested individuals for the cost price of five cents a copy.

VA, on its loan policy

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Taking unfair advantage of veteran borrowers may be grounds for suspension of privileges to participate in the Veterans Administration (VA) loan program, according to the VA.

VA also noted that declining to sell a new home or make a loan to a credit worthy, eligible veteran because of his race, creed, color or national origin may also jeopardize one's opportunity of participating in the VA loan program.

Civilian vehicles account for 600 mishaps

By Dave McQueen

There are at least 20,000 vehicles moving on post at any one time during duty hours according to SSgt. Simms, traffic engineer.

That is a lot of traffic, and that is less than half of the privately owned vehicles registered on post.

Over 44,500 POV's are registered on post, and there have been almost 600 accidents involving civilian vehicles on post since Jan. 1.

The worst time for accidents is between 4 and 5 p.m., with 87 accidents being reported so far this year. Traffic conditions at this time create traffic jams with an estimated 1,000 vehicles passing through Outpost No. 1.

According to SFC George W. Anderson, NCOIC of Traffic Accident Investigation, "There are just too many cars for the number of roads we have around here."

Some of the problem will be alleviated when the shopping facility is moved to the area near Martin Army Hospital, but he said that much of the weight of traffic would be reduced if people planned ahead.

Anderson said that people should use the traffic patterns instead of getting caught in them.

Traveling a slightly longer distance might save some time, according to the sergeant, by using a less traveled road and avoiding the traffic congestion.

One improvement has been suggested. Constructing some new roads to draw traffic from Outpost No. 1 would help but provisions have not been made along these lines.

Anderson said that courtesy would reduce the number of accidents.

Military attorneys defend clients in civilian courts

By Tom Tegtmeyer

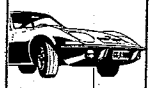
The cost of legal aid has always been high and for those people who couldn't afford it there was no alternative other than to manage without it.

The Department of Defense Pilot Legal Assistance Program was inaugurated Feb. 1. Now military attorneys can go into court for their military clientele. This program grew out of the need for legal assistance for military constituents. As does the local Legal Aid Volunteer Association, the program accepts only those people who have a net monthly income of $200 or less with a $35 a dependent allowance. All E-4 and below in rank qualify for the assistance.

This program is testing the feasibility of expanding traditional legal assistance programs, providing for military personnel and dependents who cannot afford to pay legal fees the legal assistance they need. This will include representation in civil and criminal matters in both trial and appellate courts. Initial reports indicate that the pilot program will he highly successful.

Since January Mrs. Rufe E. McCombs and the Columbus Legal Aid Society have been offering professional help to low income people.

Until last month Mrs. McCombs was the only legal counselor in the office. Assisting her are two law students, a secretary, a typist and a maintenance man.



The Columbus Legal Aid Volunteer Association since then has been instrumental in giving a wider scope to the program. Military attorneys have volunteered their services to the Legal Aid Society and on each Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon, two military attorneys are on hand in the office to render legal advice.

Webfoot waddle is star of Disney's ducky doings

The call went out from Walt Disney studio producer Bill Anderson for "one duck-Pekin type-personality-like people, especially actors-doesn't get his feather ruffled when being chased by a golden retriever-laying eggs with gold yolks helpful, but not essential, for title role in the comedy feature, "$1,000,000 Duck," starring Dean Jones, Sandy Duncan, Joe Flynn and Tony Roberts.

Animal trainer Hank Cowl delivered seven bopefuls birds for the auditions and put them through acting school paces, but only one had that certain chemistry and screen charisma to pass the finals, this was Webfoot Waddle. The second and third place winners, Carlos and Jennifer, got to be stand-ins.

The script called for Webfoot to complicate the plot by laying eggs with yolks of gold. For her to produce the eggs was no problem, but ducks, like geese, have been off the gold standard ever since Aesop's Fables, so the yolks were on the studio.

Once used to the atmosphere of the busy sets, the lights, the action and the camera, Webfoot never ducked any of her assignments and they were plentiful. She had to accidentally gt involved in a laboratory experiment, be chased in, out and around a pool by a ferocious dog, ridden in a bicycle basket by a runaway boy, pursued by treasury men as the subject of a great duck hunt and become the chief exhibit in a government gold violations case.

Webfoot enjoyed the star treatment. She had a pen pad to rest in between scenes, a bosing down after some particularly grueling emoling under the bot lights and some little rewards: her own drinking water pail, lettuce an chicken scratch, plus evenings and weekends free to rest floating around tht Disney studio pond.

In Technicolcr, "$1,000,00 Duck" was directed by Vince McEveety from a script by Roswell Rogers based on an original story by Ted Key. Bnena Vista releases.

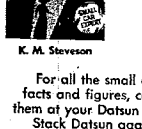
Army battles horse sickness

WASHINGTON (ANF) — A U. S. Army-developed vaccine is being used to counter the deadlly horse sleeping sickness now sweeping Texas and parts of Mexico.

More than 1.3 million doses have already been administered to horses in five southern states and the vaccination campaign is being extended to include six more states. Mexico has also inoculated more than a million horses with the Army vaccine.

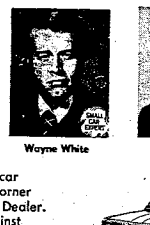
The sleeping sickness, Venezuelan equine encephalomyelitis, is a mosquito-borne disease which kills 50 per cent of the unvaccinated horses it attacks.

The disease is known to have been contracted by 21 humans in the United States in the current epidemic, but has caused no deaths in the U. S.



The vaccine has proved successful in preventing the spread of the sleeping sickness in outbreaks in Columbia, Guatemala and Costa Rica. About two million borses, burros and mules in Central America and Mexico have been vaccinated since 1967.

The Army vaccine has been administered to more than 6,000 persons and has protected 95 per cent of them. Even vaccinated researchers working with virulent strains of the disease have not become infected.



Although the drug is not yet a licensed product, it has been approved for investigational new-drug use.

The vaccine was developed at the U. S. Army Medical Research Institute of Infectious Diseases at Frederick, Md.

These men are wanted for questioning.

EVER HELD TO MAKE SOME ELBOW ROOM

CREDIT

It's The Easy Way For You To Take Advantage Of These Big Savings NOW — Say "Charge It"

Don't worry if you happen to be short of cash ... you can still take advantage of these outstanding savings by using the power of your credit! Come in ... talk it over with us, we can arrange a deferred payment plan with monthly payments and you can be sure to reap the extra low prices during this store-wide sale. Hurry in!

EXCUSE US

Our Floors Will Be Crowded

We had to move all our sale merchandise into the store so we could make room in the warehouse for new shipments that are arriving daily! It may be crowded but excuse us!

Sale Held In Our Store

To put it quite frankly ... we are in a tough spot! We are one of a group of 32 stores that use a centralized warehouse for storage, and although it is adequate to hold all the merchandise for day to day selling, it is just not big enough to hold all the new merchandise that has been arriving daily from purchases made at the recent January Furniture Show. So to make room we slashed the prices on everything we own and brought all of it to our store for quick clearance. You will find all the top brand name furniture for every room in your home ... you'll see all the famous appliances, TV's — both color and black and white, stereos and radios in every size and description — all remarkably reduced to keep the whole town talking for months and months. You want carpeting ... now's your chance to carpet your entire home wall-to-wall! The selections are outstanding and we don't think you have ever seen greater savings, so don't wait ... many of the items may be two or three of a kind and the first that are here will reap the big savings!

Fantastic Buying Opportunity For You!

Stack after stack of Simmons, Southern Cross and Serta Bedding have been moved to our store and priced extra low! Outstanding Bedrooms and Dinettes in original factory cartons have been sent to our store. All are brand new and priced for clearance!

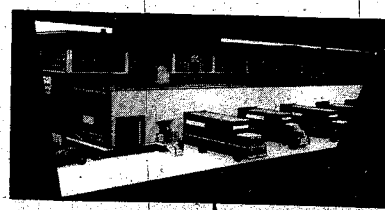
Hundreds of full and part rolls of carpet and room size rugs from the nation's leading mills are greatly reduced for this sale!

Hundreds of quality Desks, Bookcases, Tables, Lamps and Accessories have been reduced for special savings! Don't wait!



See all the top name brand TV's and Appliances side by side and check the savings you'll get when you buy in this sale!

Our floors are just loaded with living room values of every style and description. There has never been a greater selection!

A DIVISION OF AMERICAN NATIONAL STORES

Go Mediterranean In Your Living Room, Family Room Or Den . . . Mix'n Match . . . Create A Suite Of Your Own With These Popular Naugahyde Covered Pieces

The time is gone when you have to sacrifice good taste in furniture design for a piece that is strong and durable. Modern folks like to live with and use their furniture, so they require comfort, durability and a pleasing design. These lovely Mediterranean pieces fit all those qualifications. They are covered in tough, but fashionable Naugahyde, so they'll hold up under the roughest treatment. They're easy to clean, too. All have button-tufted backs and deep cushioning.

Army releases draftees, OBVs early

Robert F. Froehlke, Secretary of the Army has announced that Army of the United States (AUS) personnel whose estimated time of separation (ETS) from the service is between Sept. 1 and Dec. 31, will be separated during the period Sept. 1 through 10.

The Department of the Army message which becomes effective Sept. 1 also provides for 120-day early outs for AUS personnel who are due for release between Jan. 1 and June 30 of 1972. Personnel in this time frame will be released according to the following schedule:

ETS Month	Separation Month
1-31 Jan. 72	Sept. 71
1-29 Feb. 72	Oct. 71
1-31 Mar. 72	Nov. 71
1-30 Apr. 72	Dec. 71
1-31 May 72	Jan. 72
1-30 June 72	Feb. 72

According to Col. Malcom Baker, post adjutant general, a total of 878 personnel at Fort Benning will be affected by the program. There are 482 individuals who will be released during the period Sept. 1 through 10. A total of 396 will receive 120 day early outs during the period September through February 1972.

In another message, Department of the Army announced that all commissioned officers serving on their initial obligated tour of active duty will be released from the service up to four months early.

The announcement rescinds a previously announced two-month early release program.

The new ETS schedule includes: original ETS Oct. 1-30; new release Aug. 1-31; original ETS Nov. 1-30, new release Sept. 1-30; original ETS Dec. 1-31; new release Oct. 1-15; original ETS Jan. 1-Feb. 15, 1972, new release Oct. 16-31; original ETS Feb. 16-Mar. 31, new release Nov. 1-30; original ETS April 1 and after, new release four months early.

Branches not affected by the early release include Chaplain, Judge Advocate General, Medical Corps, Dental Corps, Veterinarian Corps, Medical Service Corps, Army Nurse Corps, Army Medical Service Corps and Womens Army Corps.

The early release program, which may ultimately affect as many as 43,000 troops in the Continental United States was initiated in anticipation of reductions in the strength of the Army. It does not effect the existing 150-day early release program for Vietnam returnees or the 90-day early release program for persounel to return to seasonal work, continue formal education, accept employment in police work or enter the teaching profession but the new program cannot be combined with these programs.

The program does not apply to personnel who intend to reenlist in the Regular Army or any individuals not in the Continental United States. Personnel returning from an overseas assignment prior to Feb. 29, 1972 who have 120 days or less to serve will be separated at the port.

Personnel whose citizenship rights would be adversly affected or personnel under sentence of a dishonorable or bad conduct discharge will not receive early release. Commanders are authorized to retain personnel for whom early release would cause an undue hardship.

According to an Associated Press release: Secretary of the Army Robert F. Froehlke said this is in anticipation of the 50,000-man reduction in the Selective Service bill passed by the House and awaiting Senate action.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird has criticized the bill's provision cutting the average strength over the entire year rather than setting a manpower level to be achieved by the end of the year.

Under the average-strength plan, the longer the Pentagon waits before beginning reductions, the more men will have to be cut. Laird said if the cuts begin in September it will be necessary to eliminate about 62,000 men the rest of the year to reach the 50,000-man average for the entire year.

Brigadier general designee to be assistant commandant of USAIS

Col. (Brig. Gen. designee) Paul F. Gorman has been named to succeed Maj. Gen. John T. Carley as assistant commandant, United States Army Infantry School.

Col. Gorman's most recent assignment was as commander of the 1st Bde., 101st Airborne (Airmobile) Div., in Vietnam. Col. Gorman will arrive at Fort Benning early in September.

Prior to his most recent assignment to Vietnam, Col. Gorman was a member of the United States delegation to the Paris Peace Talks.

A 1950 graduate of the United States Military Academy, the incoming assistant commandant is a veteran of both Korea and Vietnam.

On his first tour in Vietnam, Col. Gorman was commanding officer of the 1st Bn., 28th Inf. 1st Inf. Div.

Col. Gorman is a graduate of the Army War College and the Command and General Staff College.

He also has had several assignments in major staff positions. From July 1967 until September 1968, he was the assistant for counterinsurgency and international security policy, Policy Planning Staff in the office of the Secretary of Defense.

For a safe weekend

Labor Day activities set

By Bill Kloeb

The Infantry Center is planning an interesting three days for personnel who remain on post during the coming three-day Labor Day weekend, Sept. 4, 5, and 6.

Activities and events are being planned to interest all segments of the post population. Athletic tournaments, arts and crafts activities, special entertainment at clubs and a sidewalk sale of post exchange items are some of the things planned in an effort to keep as many people as possible off highways during the last and most dangerous holiday of the summer season.

The Post Special Services Division, whose primary mission is providing interesting activities for the soldier, will sponsor most of the events and activities.

Service Clubs will feature various indoor tournaments, a cookout buffet, an arts and craft show and free films. Prizes will be awarded winners of table tennis, pool, and chess tournaments.

Crafts shops, normally closed on Monday, will be operational for the entire holiday. Prizes will be awarded for the best items constructed during the period.

Bowling alleys will remain open all night Sept. 4 and 5. Monday morning they will open at 9 a.m. and operate until midnight. Tournaments, open to all bowlers will be held during the holiday period. The price of bowling will be reduced and more than $150

See LABOR DAY, Page 18

Reenlistments expected down due to new reg.

Reenlistments at Fort Benning for August and September are expected to be lower than previous months due to a more stringent regulation inacted Aug. 1.

The new regulation requires an MOS pro-pay test within the 12-month period preceeding reenlistment, and states that a prospective reenlistee cannot have more than one court-martial or 30 days AWOL. However, a waiver must be obtained for the court-martial and AWOL time.

To pass the reenlistment qualification test, a prospective reenlistee must have a grade of 70 or higher, with three grades of 90 or higher in the aptitude tests.

VA Prep Programs set for Sept.

Beginning Sept. 1 the Fort Benning education center will offer course enrollment with the Muscogee County School system and Columbus College under the new Veterans Administrations' Prep Program. This program is sponsored by the VA (GI Bill) and pays for courses needed for high school completion for preparation to enter vocational technical schools and college preparatory classes.

This is a broad program which allows military personnel to earn a diploma from a local high school or qualify for college or vocational training which will prepare them for a career with greater responsibilities whether in civilian or military occupations.

A participant in this program can attend classes for up to 36 months if require, without subtracting a single day from the regular GI Bill entitlements.

The classes involve the use of duty time on a full time basis in week terms in the high school program. The college preparatory and remedial (math and English) involves off-duty time. The vocational-technical program can be either on-duty or off-duty.

Application for enrollment is made through the Army education centers. There are education centers at Sand Hill, Harmony Church and on Main Post in Bldg. 35.

The counseling and required forms for VA approval and funding and for command approval to participate should be completed prior to the Aug. 24 for the secondary courses beginning Sept. 1.

The college and vocational-technical processing should be completed prior to Sept. 8 for courses offered by Columbus College.

This VA program is officially titled the Pre-Discharge Education Program (PREP) and is open to all military personnel upon completion of 180 days of active duty and who establish a need for remedial or refresher training.

Completion of high school graduation requirements through the Muscogee County school system, regardless of the serviceman's home of record, requires a minimum of four Carnegie Units under this program.

Two units may be completed in each 8 weeks term. Classes will be held on post in general educational development facilities. Teachers and administrative personnel will be provided by the local school system. The financial costs of the courses, tuition, books and other school costs are paid for by the Veterans Administration in lump sum payment as soon as the VA receives certification from the school that the serviceman has started classes.

Is Uncle Broke?

(AP) — Could it be that Uncle Sam is broke? That was the indication when a Birmingham, Ala. man, Gary Sketon, used his $13.99 income tax refund check to pay a motel bill. The check came back marked insufficient funds. He has re-deposited the government check in a Birmingham bank and he says he's keeping his fingers crossed.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

by Bill King

Any teen will like a hamburger that has been mixed with some ketchup and a spoonful of crumbled canned French fried onions before grilling.

According to a Pennsylvania Dutch legend, shoefly pie, a rich pastry made with brown sugar and molasses, was named because the cook always had to shoe flies away from the ingredients.

Fresh meat prepackaged in transparent wrapping may be refrigerated for two or three days, but if it is to be kept longer, it should be rewrapped loosely.

Instead of serving potatoes tonight, why not try tossing hot noodles with a little butter and crumbled pimento-cheese spread?

Did you know that a medium size raw carrot provides more than one day's requirement of Vitamin A, the vitamin so good for eyes and skin?

We know you recognize the need for good nutrition, and that's why we at KING'S PIZZA ON CALL always use the highest quality ingredients in all our dishes. We hope to serve you soon.

HumRRO president visits Benning unit

Dr. Meredith P. Crawford, president of the Human Resources Research Organization (HumRRO), was at Fort Benning Aug. 12 for a two day visit to the HumRRO Division 4 research unit here.

Dr. Crawford served as professor of psychology and dean of the College of Arts and Sciences at Vanderbilt University from 1945 to 1951 when he assumed the position as director of the then newly created Human Resources Research Office. During World War II, Dr. Crawford headed a laboratory in the U.S. Army Air Force Aviation Psychology Program He received his B.A. from Vanderbilt in 1931 and his M.S. and Ph.D. degrees from Columbia in 1932 and 1935. Dr. Crawford discussed ent of the Distinguished Civilian Service Medal and was on the Board of Directors of the American Psychological Association from 1957 to 1967.

While at Fort Benning, Dr. Crawford will discuss administrative and research matters with Hum RRO Div. 4 and the U.S. Army Infantry Human Research Unit.

HumRRO Div. 4 has played an important role in rifle marksmanship training, selection of leadership tasks for the Infantry Officer Candidate School and internal defeose operations. On the agenda for FY 72 are research projects involving race relations in Army units and identification of essential perceptual tasks in detecting mines and booby traps.

HumRRO marked its 20th anniversary of service to the Army July 30.

Byline Bayonet

(Byline Bayonet welcomes questions of general interest about Fort Benning and the Army. Within space limitations all reasonable questions will be answered. Questions of a purey military nature which obviously could be answered more properly by commanders or supervisors within the chain of command will not be accepted. All questions must be signed with current unit of assignment ndeated. Send questons to the Bayonet, ATTN: SFC Bob Edwads, Room 602, Infantry Hall or telephone 545-4792.)

Q — How are charges determined to be reasonable under CHAMPUS?

A — Claims for payment are submitted to civilian agencies, under contract with the government, which serves as fiscal adminsitrator for CHAMPUS. In determining if a charge is reasonable, the fiscal administrator takes into account the customary charges generally made by the physician or other sources of care and the prevailing rate of others in the community providing similar services. If the care furnished involves unusual circumstances and professional effort this teo is taken into account. Similar procedures are used to determine reasonable charges for services allied to medicine. Hospital charges are judged reasonable when they are the customary public charge of that hospital.

Q — How much of the charge must the CHAMPUS beneficiary pay?

A — Active duty dependents — For inpatient care the beneficiary must pay the first $25 of the hospital charge of $1.75 a day, which ever is greater. The government pays the remainder of the reasonable charge for authorized care. For outpatient care (for example, visits to a doctor's office or clinic) he must pay the first $50 (the deductible) each fiscal year (July 1 through June 30) plus 20 per cent of the charges over the $500 deductible. However a family with two or more eligible beneficiaries receiving care pays a maximum of $1000 each fiscal year, plus 20 per cent of the charges in excess of $1000. The government pays the remainder of the reasonable charges. All other beneficiaries — for inpatient care beneficiaries must pay 25 per cent of the reasonable hospital charges and fees of professional personnel. The government pays the remainder of the reasonable charges for authorized care. For outpatient care beneficiaries must pay the first $500 (the deductible) each fiscal year, plus 25 per cent of the charges over the deductible. However, a family with two or more eligible beneficiaries pays a maximum of $100, plus 25 per cent of the charges in excess of $100. The government pays the remainder of the reasonable charges for authorized care.

The judge says

Unconcerned attitude is a mistake

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last in a series of articles dealing with the purchase and sale of a house.)

USAIC LEGAL ASSISTANCE OFFICE — When residential property is sold, the normal method of financing is for the purchaser to assume the owner's outstanding loan and pay the owner for the fair market value of the property in excess of the loan assumed. All too often the seller of the property departs with never another thought about possible remaining obligations in reference to the house he has just sold. Such an unconcerned attitude may be a mistake.

By having the purchaser assume the outstanding loan, the owner has simply relieved himself of the burden of making the monthly payments but has not relieved himself of the primary legal obligation.

If the purchaser fails to make the monthly payments, the lender will look to the original owner, who remains primarily liable on the mortgage. Then the original owner must make good the payments or the lender will foreclose on the land to satisfy the debt. If the owner retains an interest in the land or the value of the land is not equal to the remaining amount of the mortgage, the original owner may have to use his personal resources to make good the deficiency.

The original owner may be relieved from liability if there is a "novation." This means that in consideration of the new owner's making a contract for the debt with the lender, the lender will consider the mortgage contract with the original owner as having been satisfied. "Novations" of this type are very rare in the financing of homes, and with good reason. If a lender allows a novation, he has reduced by 50 per cent the number of people he can reasonably expect to make every effort to pay.

One instance where the serviceman can limit his liability is to the Veterans Administration on a VA loan. When the serviceman or veteran sells a home that is financed with a VA guaranteed loan he retains a contingent liability to the VA unless he obtains a release of liability from the VA. If the purchaser of the home defaults and the VA has to pay off on the percentage of the mortgage it guaranteed, the veteran who originally procured the loan can expect the VA to seek reimbursement from him if he has not gotten a release of liability. In addition, the veteran will continue to be liable for mortgage insurance payments to the VA until he obtains a release. Contrary to the policy of most lenders and sureties, however, the VA will release a veteran from liability if his loan is current. If the purchaser is obligated by contract to buy the property and assume the veteran's liability, and if the purchaser has a good credit rating. This is a benefit to the veteran that is rare in financial circles because the veteran is released from liability to the government, but the government still remains liable on its guaranty to the lender.

August is month for remembering

By E. H. Buchmann Jr.

August is a good month for remembering. A month for remembering summer days and last year's picnics, butterfly races and little league ball games. But it's also a time for remembering other things; things not quite as pleasant as June moons, but every bit as important. Though the month of May provides us with a whole day for remembering such things (Memorial Day), and although we just celebrated it only three months ago, let's take time now, in August, to do some more remembering.

Memorial Day, as we know, is a time to pay tribute, silent or otherwise, to those Americans that died while serving in the Armed Forces. Some of them died in World War I and World War II; some died in the Korean War and a whole lot of them have died in Vietnam.

But what about those soldiers that didn't die? What about those that didn't die but still gave up so much that they are now confined to wheelchairs or crutches or even beds? I'm talking about the disabled veterans — the often forgotten Americans.

Remembering this past Memorial Day, I recall standing outside the entrance of a local shopping facility. Also standing there was a young boy collecting contributions for the Disabled Veterans Association; collecting those dimes and quarters from passers-by and giving them the familiar red and green plastic poppy in return for their donation.

Standing there for a few minutes I was astonished at the number of people that walked by without giving the boy or the flowers so much as a glance. Those that gave a glance — but not money — usually had an excuse. "My hands are full," was the best (or the worst). I immediately thought of all those disabled veterans, young and old, that would be happy just to have a pair of hands, or even arms, to have filled. Some don't, you know. To say I was disgusted and hurt would be putting it mildly. But so it is, and so they are: forgotten. Once they are out of sight, so often they become out of mind as well.

So returning, as it seems we always must, to the one great book, the Bible, I recall a verse from Hebrews, Chapter 12: "Remember them that are in bonds, as bound with them; and them which suffer adversity, as being yourselves also in the body."

When memories of sailboat rides and water-skiing weekends cross your mind, think also of wheelchairs and hospital beds and the people that fill them. Remember them in August, in September, and always.

(E. H. Buchmann was a specialist five and separated from the army Aug. 5.)

4-STAR VISIT
Gen. Haines (L), CONARC commander, talks with Ranger Committee members

Gen. Haines visits Benning

Gen. Ralph E. Haines Jr., commanding general of the United States Continental Army Command in Ft. Monroe, Va. visited Fort Benning August 11 and 12 for ROTC Ranger graduation and briefings.

After breakfasting at the Marshall House, Gen. Haines began his stay with a visit to Fort Benning Commander, Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott.

Following a briefing on the Modern Volunteer Army Concept, VOLAR, Gen. Haines met with members of the Ranger department for a discussion on the ROTC program of instruction. Gen. Haines is a strong supporter of the experiment to substitute Ranger training for the regular ROTC Summer Camp.

After meeting with selected Ranger students, Gen. Haines was guest speaker at Ranger Class 502 graduation exercises on Todd Field for 140 of the 240 ROTC cadets who began the course June 10.

Cadets completing six weeks of ranger training were credited for summer camp. Only those who met the rigid qualifications to be a ranger were awarded the yellow and black Ranger tab. Participants in the Ranger Course were selected from the more than 1200 that volunteered for the class.

The ranger training program was only slightly modified for the cadets. Changes involved primarily added training, such as weapons qualifications, which are part of the regular Summer Camp Program but not included in Ranger Training.

After lunching in the field with Ranger Class No. 2 at Victory Pond, Gen. Haines returned to Infantry Hall for a briefing on anti-armor activities and a round table discussion with several department directors.

Before his departure from Fort Benning, Gen. Haines visited the Inprocessing and Welcome Center.

'Polar Bears' celebrate 55th birthday with picnic

The 5th Bn., 31st Inf. ("Polar Bears") commemorated their 55th birthday Aug. 12, with a battalion picnic at Kings Pond. Live entertainment, go-go girls and a rock group from Columbus, "The Reflections," highlighted the festive celebration. The picnic was preceded by a pass-in-review and awards ceremony at Presidential Field.

Although the celebration was held on Aug. 12, the official organization day was Aug. 13. The memorable event was remembered by the "Shanghai Bowl" ceremony of toasts. The ceremony, held in recognition of the regiment's past, was performed at battalion headquarters by Maj. Donald A. Tapscot, battalion commander, the principle staff, the sergeant major, and 5th Bn., 31st Inf., company commanders and first sergeants.

During the Shanghai incident, the "Shanghai Bowl," the focal point of the ceremony, was made from 1500 Chinese silver dollars. It was officially presented to the 31st Inf., July 5, 1932, and has since become a 31st Inf. tradition.

The 31st Infantry Regiment was created from components of the 8th, 19th, 15th, and 27th Regiments, Aug. 13, 1916, at Camp McKinley in the Philippine Islands. For the next 42 years, the 31st Inf. was known as the U. S. "Foreign Legion," never serving on American soil until 1958.

The unit was dispatched to Siberia in 1918 to keep the Trans-Siberian Railroad in operation, and, at this juncture of its military history, acquired the nickname "Polar Bears."

The "Polar Bears" returned to the Philippines after World War I and remained there until 1932 at which time they were deployed to Shanghai to protect the lives and property of U. S. citizens during the Shanghai incident. For this action, the 31st Inf. Regt. was decorated with the only campaign medal ever authorized in peacetime, the Yangtze Medal.

The regiment surrendered to the Japanese 14th Army before their near annihilation in the defense of Bataan in 1942, during World War II. Before its capitulation, however, the 31st's regimental colors were destroyed and its memorium, the "Shanghai Bowl," buried.

At the conclusion of World War II, the 31st was reorganized January 19, 1946, at Kyongson Korea, as part of the 7th Inf. Div., and the "Shanghai Bowl" recovered. The 31st remained with the 7th when the division moved to Japan in 1949, then returned to Korea in the 1950 Landing at Inchon as part of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's famous "End Run" Sept. 16, 1950. When the armistice was signed ending the Korean conflict, the 31st Inf. was one of the units chosen to remain in Korea as a peace-keeping force.

Today the "Shanghai Bowl" is with the two battalions of the 31st Inf. still in Korea.

The School Brigade gets new commander

Col. Awbrey G. Norris became the 16th officer to command The School Brigade, (TSB), Tuesday, when he accepted the Brigade's colors from Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, commandant of the Infantry School, at a ceremony held adjacent to brigade headquarters. He replaces Col. Frank L. Garrison who is leaving to begin graduate studies at the Fort Benning branch of Georgia State University.

Col. Norris comes to Fort Benning from Carlisle Barracks, where he recently graduated from the Army War College. He received his bachelor degree from Auburn University in 1950, and holds a master of arts degree in statistics from the University of Alabama, and a master of science degree in communications from Shippensburg State College.

His assignments have included fours with the United Nations Command Military Armistice Support Group in Korea; Headquarters, U. S. Army, Alaska; and, the 25th Inf. Div. in Vietnam where he served as battalion commander of the 2nd. Bn. (Mech), 22nd Inf.

In April 1968, Col. Norris was assigned to Officer Personnel Directorate, Office of Personnel Operations in Washington, D. C. In December 1969, he was appointed chief, Infantry Branch, and later became assistant director of the Directorate.

Col. Norris and his wife, Jo, have two sons, William, 19, and David 17.

COL. NORRIS

5,000th award

The "Run for Your Life" program at Fort Benning reached another milestone last week with the presentation of the 5,000th 50-mile patch. Capt. Franklin Boarman, of IOAC-5, receives the patch from Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander. There are more than 7,500 persons participating in the program.

AUSA picnic scheduled

The Fort Benning Sport Parachute Club, along with Ranger and Scout Dog demonstrations, are the scheduled entertainment for the annual AUSA picnic to be held Oct. 2.

Tickets for the picnic are limited to 2,500 this year, and will be sold on a first-come-first-served basis. Additional information on the sale of tickets will be released when available.

Also scheduled is the annual meeting to be held in Washington, D. C. Oct. 11 through 13.

Chapter participation will include 40 military members of the delegation, and three ROTC cadets will also be going as guests of the chapter. The cadets are from Auburn, Gordon Military College and Tuskegee Institute.

Drug dependent soldiers can rehabilitate in MAH

By H. Parra

A rehabilitation program is being offered here for drug dependent personnel who desire rehabilitation.

This program is available to military personnel who volntarily seek and are genuinely interested in the betterment of their lives.

Permanent party personnel who are drug users and who volunteer for treatment will be admitted to Martin Army Hospital (MAH) if required, then returned to their unit of assignment for rehabilitation. The admission to MAH is part of the detoxification program.

The rehabilitation effort will be basically on a outpatient basis and participants will be required to reside in Benning house, unless medical judgment indicates otherwise. Benning house is located at Gunterman St., Bldg. No. 2212.

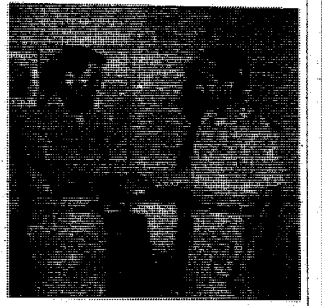
The unit of assignment has the responsibility of providing the individual with an opportunity for rehabilitation. Personnel will receive medical counseling and further treatment as needed.

Addicted personnel will be required to perform normal military duties consistent with their Military Occupational Specialty (MOS) and those limitations imposed by medical authorities.

Participants will be continuously evaluated for up to a period of 60 days in which the individual's retention and or continued rehabilitation will be determined. After this period, or sooner, those requiring extensive treatment or whose likelihood of successful rehabilitation is poor, will be considered for disharge under the provisions of Army Regulation 635-212.

Of utmost importance is the individual's cooperation for the success of the rehabilitation program. In this connection, a drug user who refuses treatment or of his own accord, terminates his involvement in the prescribed treatment prior to determination that he is rehabilitated or who is subsequently found to be using or in possession of drugs, is assumed to have discontinued participation in his own rehabilitation.

Free lunches for some



Fort Benning school children who are unable to pay the full price of school lunches may apply for free or reduced prices under the Dependents School Lunchroom Fund.

Families who think they meet requirements for the program may apply by filling out forms sent home with students at the beginning of the school year. Forms may also be obtained from the principal's office of local school at any time during the school year.

The principal of the school will review the applications and determine eligibility. Any parent who is dissatisfied with the ruling may request an appeal to Calvin T. Roush, schools officer, whose address is Bldg. 88A, Fort Benning.

Eligibility is based on income, number of persons in the family, and any unusual circumstances or hardships which affect the family's ability to pay. All information is confidential, and children using the free or reduced price lunch program will not be identified in any way.

For further information contact local school or the schools officer.

MRS. GARRISON'S FAREWELL LUNCHEON

Mrs. Frank L. Garrison, wife of the commanding officer of The School Brigade, was honored at a farewell luncheon, Aug. 4.

The setting was the Supper Club and the decorations were in pastel colors. Centering the yellow table cloths were lovely bouquets of garden flowers in varying shades of yellow, pink and blue. The same pale shades were used in trellis decorations of flowers and butterflies. The pastel butterfly theme was also carried out in the name tags and place cards.

The luncheon began with a social hour, with delicious chicken-stuffed tomatoes and small sandwiches as the main course, and sherbet and cookies for dessert.

Special guest for the occasion was Mrs. Kendrick B. Barlow Jr., wife of the deputy assistant commandant, USAIS.

Mrs. William A. Walker, wife of the deputy commander, welcomed the honor guest and special guest. She then presented Mrs. Garrison with a pair of sterling silver hurricane lamps with crystal chimneys from the Brigade ladies.

Mrs. Garrison expressed her appreciation for the gift and regrets over leaving. Her sentiments of parting were shared by the ladies of TSB. Mrs. Garrison, with her warm personality and enthusiastic leadership will be missed by all.

ARTILLERY COMMITTEE, BBOD

A coffee for the wives of officers of the Artillery Committee, BBOD, was held Aug. 10, at the home of Mrs. Larry W. Tucker on Sigerfoos Road.

The serving table was decorated with a multi-colored bouquet of zinnias. Strawberry cake, tea cookies, open-faced sandwiches, punch and coffee were refreshments for the affair.

Mrs. Paul J. Raisig Jr., wife of the committee chairman, welcomed the new wives, Mrs. Robert Ebert, Mrs. James Siket and Mrs. Toney Stricklin; and, presented them with chrysanthemum corsages. Guests attending were Mrs. Gregory Mason and Mrs. James Warren.

NCO WIVES

The general membership of the Noncommissioned Officers' Wives' Club is reminded of several important August functions.

One of the most rewarding goodwill services for this month will be held Sunday. This function consists of baking homemade pastries for the patrons of the Main Post Service Club. Those ladies who volunteered to furnish bakery goods are remided to deliver them to the service club not later than 6 p.m. Sunday. Mrs. Willie Strong, chairman, at 544-3353, may be contacted or you may take them to her home at 143 Magrath St. The service personnel who receive these pastries seem to be appreciative and look forward to them each month.

Those members who have a change in address or phone number are reminded to contact the membership chairman, Mrs. Wallace Colson, at 689-3869, or the assistant chairman, Mrs. Robert Bugh, at 689-6583 so that they may receive a corrected monthly club flyer. This information should be in to those ladies prior to the 4th Wednesday of each month.

Make your club breakfast reservation early. This breakfast is a regular monthly function for the membership and their notified house guest or prospective members. This month hostesses are Mrs. Rex Smith, 544-2197, Mrs. Mary Ingram, 544-3235, Mrs. Willy Lee Jones, 544-3606, and Mrs. Issac Brown, 687-1017. The breakfast is Aug.25 and the reservation deadline date is noon, Aug. 20.

• • •

COMMAND MAINTENANCE DEPARTMENT

The Normandy Room of the Officers' Club was the scene of a hail and farewell party held by the officers and wives of the Command Maintenance Department Aug. 6.

Newcomers welcomed by Col. Leonard R. Daems, department director, included Maj. and Mrs. Lawrence B. Moeller, Capt. and Mrs. Ronald J. McNeese, Capt. and Mrs. Clyde R. Herron and CW 4 and Mrs. Charles B. Cain.

Adieus were bid to Maj. and Mrs. Raymond R. Murry, Capt. Mitchell C. Meilstrup, CW3 and Mrs. Julius L. Ledbetter, and CW2 and Mrs. Willie R. Wright.

COMPANY OPERATIONS DEPARTMENT

Col. and Mrs. John L. Osteen Jr. hosted the annual summer function for the Company Operations Department given by the Platoon Tactics Committee Aug. 7. The group enjoyed a pool party which was centered around the theme "Ship-Wreck."

Fresh oysters were served before the roast beef buffet dinner.

First place recognition for the most original costume was given to Capt. and Mrs. Ronald J. Salem of Land Navigation Committee. Overall victory of the water games was won by the Offense Sub-Committee of Platoon Tactics.

Music was provided by the group known as the "Metal Circus."

LEADERSHIP DEPARTMENT

The couples of Headquarters Committee, Leadership Dept., USAIS, gathered at the home of Capt. and Mrs. William E. Smith Aug. 15 for their monthly hail and farewell.

Col. William B. Steele extended best wishes to 1st Lt. Glenn F. Sweeney on his departure from the army and new adventure in his teaching career in Tampa, Fla.

The ladies from Headquarters Committee met at the Fountain Room in the Officers' Club for a farewell luncheon. Mrs. Glenn Sweeney was bade a fond farewell and thanked for her services to the committee.

2 new groups of dependents can see movies

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Two additional groups of dependents are now allowed to attend base theaters according to new Army and Air Force Motion Picture Service regulations.

Dependent youths under 21 who reside in the household of a divorced wife of a military parent may now attend. Though the divorced wife of a military member is not entitled to theater privileges, she may attend as a guest of an authorized patron.

Theater attendance privileges have also been extended to dependents and unremarried widows of 100 per cent disabled veterans.

2nd Bn., 197th hold coffee August 10th

Mrs. George Gubernath and Mrs. Michael Miner entertained the ladies of the 2nd Bn., 10th Arty., 197th Inf. Bde. at a coffee held on Aug. 10 at 7:30 p.m. in the Corregidor Room of the Main Officers' Club.

The buffet table, covered with red cloths, featured a centerpiece of red carnations, white gladioli and chrysanthemums. The hostesses served fresh fruits arranged in a watermelon basket, cookies, chocolate eclairs, finger sandwiches, hot coffee and fruit punch.

In lieu of a formal program, the ladies spent part of the evening becoming better acquainted. Each lady gave the group a short, interesting biography of her partner.

Mrs. James Wurman welcomed Mrs. John Routon and Mrs. Jerry Smith to the coffee, and the ladies bade Mrs. Robert Stockwell, Mrs. Ronald Ratcliff and Mrs. John McNeill farewell. Mrs. Wurman presented the departing ladies with gifts as tokens of their time spent with the battalion.

Mrs. Wurman conducted the business meeting and announced several upcoming activities. Several ladies showed handmade items, and the group discussed the possibility of making similar pieces for the annual Christmas bazaar.

Perfume has its place in world history

The sense of smell is one of the strongest possessed by man. Memories are awakened and senses stimulated by fragrances. You may be remembered as the woman who passes by, leaving a fragrance of fresh spring flowers or Oriental mystery.

The history of perfume is intertwined with the history of the human race. Fragrances have played a significant part in the lives of people as far back as the reign of King Menes, some time between 3500 and 3000 B.C. when the burning of incense and sweet herbs were part of the ritual of religious ceremonies. The prayers of the people rose to heaven "through smoke." In Latin, "through smoke" is "per fumum," the basis of our word perfume. In ancient Egypt, perfumed oils were available to all Egyptians. At one time all citizens were commanded to "perfume themselves at least once a week." One of the most celebrated Egyptians, lavish in her use of perfume, was Cleopatra. Kyphi, the sacred perfume of Egypt, was most popular with the Queen.

In Biblical times, scents played an important role. The Bible gives frequent mention to fragrance. Of the three gifts carried to the infant Jesus, two were fragrance materials — frankincense, and myrrh. Other essential oils mentioned in the Bible include spikenard, cedar and saffron.

During the Golden Age of Greece, the consumption of essential oils probably reached its peak. During this lavish and extravagant period, the people perfumed themselves abundantly with scented oils and powders.

The ancient Romans did not fall short in the use of perfumes. In fact perfume was held in such high regard that an old Roman maxim advises: "Never think of leaving your perfume or wine to your heir. Administer these to yourself and let him have your money."

The Arabs could be called the connecting link between the past and the present of the perfume industry, as they contributed greatly to its development. Avicenna, the Arabian doctor who was also a chemist, first developed the process of extracting oils from flowers by means of distillation, the procedure commonly used today.

In France, perfumes flourished, especially during the reign of Catherine di Medici and later, during the reign of Louis XV.

Perfume reached its peak in Britain during the reigns of Henry VIII and Queen Elizabeth I. In the time of Queen Elizabeth, every great house had what was called a "still room," a laboratory where the ladies could display their skill in mixing scents. The art of creating a delightful fragrance was an accomplishment in which the English ladies of this period took much pride.

As you can see, fragrances have played an important role in the lives of men and women from ancient times to the present. People have anointed themselves and bathed themselves in perfumes for centuries.

DACOWITS members hold semi-annual meeting

WASHINGTON (ANF) — The Defense Advisory Committee on Women in the Services (DACOWITS) has held its semi-annual meeting.

DACOWITS members were briefed at the Pentagon by Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird, other Department of Defense officials and by the directors of the Women's Military Components.

Working sessions were held by subcommittees at which plans were made for future projects to interpret to the public the need for and role of women in the military services and to promote public acceptance of the military services as a career for women.

The committee also submitted recommendations pertaining to women in the services.

Mrs. Richard Nixon received the members of DACOWITS, the ten directors of the Women's Auxiliary Components and the chief recruiting officers for a reception and tea at the White House.

POW-MIA primary meeting set

The POW-MIA Families Committee of Columbus is sponsoring a meeting at the Royal Crown Cola Auditorium Aug. 27 from 7 to 9 p.m., honoring Georgia Prisoner of War and Missing in Action families.

According to Mrs. Ann Purcell and Mrs. Doris Hill, the two Columbus wives of POW-MIA's, there are 67 family members in Georgia who are primary next of kin to servicemen who are prisoners of war or missing in action as a result of the Vietnam conflict. They comprise 44 different families.

Following a reception at the auditorium, Lt. Col. Elliot P. Sydnor, chairman of the Company Tactics Committee of the Operations Department, USAIS, will be speaker for the evening. Tentative plans also include an ex-POW as special guest.

The Friday evening meeting will be followed Saturday by a private gathering of the families.

Fort Benning leading 3rd Army in donations

Over one-half million units of blood have been donated by the U.S. Army for use in Vietnam.

In the July issue of the U.S. Army Medical Department Newsletter, Fort Benning was recognized as leading the 3rd Army in the program for Southeast Asia, which includes principal Army installations throughout the United States.

Fort Benning has donated 2,387 units of blood and of these The School Brigade has donated 2,151.

The battalions of TSB have been very active in supporting the blood drive and according to Capt. Robert Shoreman, project officer for blood donations.

The Officer Candidate and Noncommissioned Officer Classes and the Infantry Officers Basic Courses have also provided momentum to the participation of Fort Benning.

MAH patients receive various free tickets

Entertainment around Columbus is often made available to military patients at MAH through courtesy tickets provided to the hospital by Columbus businessmen.

According to Mrs. Betty Zimmerman, MAH information clerk, "Hospital patients are included in a lot of things around Columbus due to the generosity of various Columbus enterprises."

Tickets were recently provided for a group of patients to attend "South Pacific" and a ballgame at Columbus' Golden Park.

Name two of the most popular group life insurance programs for Armed Forces Officers.

1. SGLI 2. _____

We'd like to fill you in on the other one.

Chances are you probably have Serviceman's Group Life Insurance; $15,000 coverage for $3 a month, guaranteed by the U.S. Government. You know it's a good beginning for your total insurance program. But do you know about the other low cost group life insurance program for officers?

As a member of the Armed Forces Relief and Benefit Association, you'll receive an additional $20,000 group life insurance coverage plus member benefits. It's a logical step when you're building your insurance program. Take a minute now and see why.

Here are the AFRBA facts.

Low-Cost Life Insurance
As an AFRBA member, you receive $20,000 group life insurance coverage for just $9 a month, $12.50 a month if you're a flying officer. And, annual refunds reduce the cost to members even more.

AFRBA's low cost plus the refunds reduced the annual net cost for each thousand dollars of insurance in 1970 to just $2.95; $5.24 for flying officers. Compare this cost per thousand of group life insurance and you'll find out why AFRBA is one of the largest organizations of its kind in the world. All AFRBA members have the same coverage, regardless of age, rank, length of service or duty station.

Worldwide Coverage
No war restriction once you join.

Emergency Death Benefit
Immediate payment of $2,000 upon notification of death.

Optional Dependents Program
For just $1.50 a month, you can cover all of your eligible family members.

Continuous Record of Refunds
Each year since AFRBA was founded in 1947, active duty members have received a refund. Although they cannot be guaranteed, refunds are determined by the Board of Directors based on the year's operations and the dividends received from the Underwriters.

Educational and Emergency Loans
Members are eligible for low interest (simple 5% interest) loans for educational and emergency purposes.

Retired and Separated Program
AFRBA has a special program for members when they retire or separate after at least one year of active duty membership.

Here's How To Join. If you're a commissioned or warrant officer on active duty, in good health, and not presently receiving hostile fire pay or under orders to a hostile fire area, you're eligible to join now. (After you become a member, your insurance coverage is in effect regardless of where you're stationed or the cause of death.)

There are many associations and organizations which can sell you insurance; but there's only one Armed Forces Relief and Benefit Association. Get all the facts. Just mail this coupon today. No obligation; no salesman will call. You'll soon see why 68,000 Armed Forces officers have chosen AFRBA to round out their insurance and benefit program.

Bureau of Customs hiring 2,000 people

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — U.S. Commissioner of Customs Myles J. Ambrose has announced that the Bureau of Customs is hiring nearly 2,000 employees in keeping with President Nixon's announced policy of assigning top priority to the problem of halting drug abuse which he has called "Public Enemy Number One."

Appropriation requests approved by the Congress and signed by President Nixon authorize the U.S. Customs Service to recruit and train inspectors, import specialists, special agents, patrol officers, automated data processing personnel — such as programmers and systems analysts.

The new special agents and patrol officers will enable Customs to expand operations to detect, pursue, and apprehend narcotics smugglers. Inspectional personnel will intensify the examination of baggage and cargo, including containerized cargo. Additional import specialists will intensify the examination of import entry documents and papers relating to imports in order to determine and report violations. The programmers and systems analysts will support Custom's expanding data processing systems.

New personnel will go on the job immediately and receive special training sometime during their first year.

Starting salaries for the various positions range from $5,202 for Customs patrol officers, to $20,815 for systems analysts, depending on qualifications of the applicant. Certain categories, such as inspectors, agents, and patrol officers, will have an opportunity to earn paid overtime.

For dependents

Physical exam schedule established

In coordination with the Assistant Superintendent of Schools in Muscogee County and the Fort Benning Dependent Schools officer, a schedule for school physical examinations has been established for children of military personnel in the Columbus-Phenix City area.

All Head Start, kindergarten and first grade students will receive a complete examination. Physicals for boys are slated for Sept. 18 and for girls on Sept. 25. Girls and boys will follow the same alphabetical and time schedule on the appropriate dates for reporting for physicals. Children with last names beginning with A through G will report at 8 a.m.; H thru N at 9 a.m.; and O thru Z at 10 a.m.

Makeup examinations for Head Start, kindergarten and first grade as well as any students in the second through fourth grades requiring a physical examination and not previously enrolled in a school in the local area will be on Oct. 2 for boys and Oct. 3 for girls. The same alphabetical and time schedule will be observed.

Makeup examinations for Head Start, kindergarten, first thru fourth grades and any fifth and sixth grade student attending school in the local area for the first time will be conducted for both boys and girls on Oct. 16. Boys with last names beginning with A thru K will report at 8 a.m. and L thru Z at 9 a.m.; girls A thru K will report at 10 a.m. and L thru Z at 11 a.m.

Physical examinations for dependent children entering both on and off-post schools will be conducted in the Physical Examination Section, Martin Army Hospital Annex, Bldg. 325. Enter from the front of Bldg. 396.

Examination forms are available at the Annex. Immunizations may be obtained at the time of the physical. The child must bring the proper Immunization Forms (PHS 731.)

STEALING FROM YOURSELF

Ever steal from yourself? Strange as it may seem, certain military personnel and dependents are doing just that.

A recent bulletin sent out by the Army and Air Force Exchange Service states that persons who shoplift in exchange facilities are, in effect, stealing from themselves.

More than $1 million worth of merchandise is stolen annually from world-wide exchange services. This is money that could be used for recreational facilities for you and your family. Exchange profits revert back to you in the form of welfare funds that are used to build and improve your library, your swimming pools, golf courses and the like. Heavy exchange loses mean smaller welfare fund contributions. Shoplifting has a direct effect, too, as it eventually means higher prices to you, the customer.

Shoplifting is a far-reaching malady, spreading throughout the Army and Air Force Exchange Service systems. The Federal Bureau of Investigation reports that shoplifting has risen more than 150 per cent in all retail stores in the past 10 years, making it the second fastest growing crime in the United States.

What ordinarily constitutes a shoplifter's booty is small inexpensive items. Yet the penalty may be considerably higher. Military personnel may receive confinement, reduction in grade, forfeiture of pay and allowances and a bad conduct discharge. Dependents are also subject to prosecution in the civil courts for shoplifting.

Furthermore, suspension or revocation of exchange privileges is authorized against those individuals who abuse them. It must be remembered that the use of the exchange is a privilege, not a matter of right. (AFPS)

Medical laboratory specialists eligible for certification exam

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Medical laboratory specialists in the military career field categories of MOS 92B20, NEC 8412, or AFSC 90430, who have one year of laboratory experience, and a high school diploma or equivalent are eligible for the Nov. 19 certification examinations for Certified Laboratory Assistant CLA(ASCP), offered by the Registry of Medical Technologists of the American Society of Clinical Pathologists. Sept. 1 is the deadline for applying for these examinations.

The national examinations will be given at centers throughout the country. Certification exams are also being offered on Nov. 19 for the civilian categories of Medical Laboratory Technician MLT(ASCP), Medical Technologist, MT(ASCP), and Histologic Technician, HT(ASCP).

Graduates of military medical laboratory training programs totaling at least 12 months are eligible for the Medical Laboratory Technician, MLT(ASCP), examination if they have an associate degree or 60 semester hours of college credit.

$10,000 cash

Sgt. Larry Holloway picks up his $10,000 reenlistment bonus at the Ft. Jackson, S.C., finance office. The Odum, Ga., native was one of the first men in the Army to take advantage of the newly-increased variable reenlistment bonuses for combat military occupational specialties. Although Sergeant Holloway is now a drill sergeant (OOF), he was an infantryman (11B) when he took his reenlistment oath. (U.S. Army Photo by SpS William Wilson).

SEED CLEAR improves air defense

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — North America's air defense is being further "tuned" to the times. SEED CLEAR, an update program managed by the Air Force Systems Command's Electronic Systems Division will improve eight radars in the United States.

Project engineer James E. Ryan, of ESD's Air Weapons Surveillance and Control Systems Program Office says, "Not only will moving target capabilities of the radars be improved but also weather interference will be reduced through this program."

Changes in the radar system known as the AN-FPS-27 are being made by the Westinghouse Aerospace and Electronic Systems Division of Baltimore, Md., under the terms of an $8.4 million contract.

An element of the SAGE defense network, the radar is a high-powered, fixed-station, long-range unit that detects aircraft entering the North American region.

A test conducted for two years using a prototype system demonstrated easier maintenance and faster repairs. These factors, coupled with reduced operational costs, paved the way for making similar changes throughout the entire system.

Army emphasizes Project Transition

WASHINGTON (ANF) — The Army is placing a new emphasis on Project Transition, a program to assist separating service personnel in gaining a productive reentry into civilian life.

Since the program's beginning the Army has given transition training to more than 117,000 soldiers and provided pre-separation vocational guidance services to more than 450,000 servicemen.

The program is open to qualified personnel within six months of completing their service obligations.

Project Transition includes pre-separation counseling, job placement service and training to separating servicemen without a marketable civilian skill or trade. Priority is given to those needing assistance the most.

Transition training includes completion of high school education, correspondence courses, Manpower Development and Training Act courses, vocational training on-the-job training and the Pre-discharge Education Program.

A soldier's participation in the program will depend upon available funds and certain operational requirements.

Priorities used to determine eligibility are:

— Priority I — Disabled personnel.

— Priority II — Personnel unqualified for reenlistment (AR 601-280).

— Priority III — Personnel with a military occupational specialty in infantry, armor, artillery, missiles or combat surveillance.

— Priority IV — Personnel with previous experience and training having a limited application in civilian life.

— Priority V — Personnel already possessing a salable civilian skill or trade.

No limitation of on-duty training time is prescribed for disabled personnel. Soldiers in priorities II and III are authorized up to 240 hours of on-duty transition training.

The Army currently does not permit on-duty training time for those already possessing a marketable civilian skill or trade. No limitation is placed on off-duty training for all priority groups.

Because training provided at installations differs according to the geographical location, programs offered at each participating installation change from month to month.

Webfoot Waddle does 'ducky' job

The call went out from Walt Disney studio producer Bill Anderson for "one duck-Pekin type-personality-like people, especially actors-doesn't get his feather ruffled when being chased by a golden retriever-laying eggs with gold yolks helpful, but not essential, for title role in the comedy feature, "$1,000,000 Duck," starring Dean Jones, Sandy Duncan, Joe Flynn and Tony Roberts.

Animal trainer Hank Cowl delivered seven hopefuls birds for the auditions and put them through acting school paces, but only one had that certain chemistry and screen charisma to pass the finals, this was Webfoot Waddle. The second and third place winners, Carlos and Jennifer, got to be stand-ins.

The script called for Webfoot to cumplicate the plot by laying eggs with yolks of gold. For her to produce the eggs was no problem, but ducks, like geese, have been off the gold standard ever since Aesop's Fables, so the yulks were on the studio.

Once used to the atmosphere of the busy sets, the lights, the action and the camera, Webfoot never ducked any of her assignments, and they were plentiful. She had to accidentally get involved in a laboratory experiment, be chased in, out and around a pool by a ferocious dog, ridden in a bicycle basket by a runaway boy, pursued by treasury men as the subject of a great duck hunt and become the chief exhibit in a government gold violations case.

Webfoot enjoyed the star treatment. She had a pen pad to rest in between scenes, a hosing down after some particularly grueling emoting under the hot lights and some little rewards: her own drinking water pail, lettuce and chicken scratch, plus evenings and weekends free to rest floating around the Disney studio pond.

In Technicolor, "$1,000,000 Duck" was directed by Vince McEveety from a script by Roswell Rogers based on an original story by Ted Key. Buena Vista releases.

Springer plans 'Evening with 1st American'

The colorful heritage and culture of the American Indian will be presented in Columbus Aug. 25, when artists from 19 tribes present their history in a benefit program called "An Evening with the First American."

The show, scheduled for 8 p.m. at the Springer Theater, will include the traditional dances and ceremonies of the various tribes.

Proceeds from the show will go to an Indian Orphanage operated by the Crow Indian Agency in Montana. Tickets are $3.

The Indians are in Columbus as part of a week-long tribute to the first Americans sponsored by WRBL television.

Cosby buys 18-acre estate

SHELBURNE, Mass. (AP) — Comedian Bill Cosby has bought a 15-room home on an 18-acre estate for $65,000.

The home is approximately 20 miles from Amherst where Cosby plans to enter the University of Massachusetts School of Education this fall.

He and his family are expected to move into the home on Bardwell's Ferry Road about Sept. 1. The house was built in 1842.

Cosby, 34, orginally said he planned to give up show business for a teaching career, but later said he will do some television specials.

Libraries' books

"Raise Race Rays Raze," Leroi Jones: A collection of essays since 1965 that show the author's growth and development from a major writer to a mature black leader.

"Young Elizabeth," Allson Plowden: A biography following Queen Elizabeth P through her younger days up to the time of her coronation.

"The Age of Stoning," Dan Potter: The novel's hero is David Farmer and is about sex, the richest man in the U.S., drugs, the war, paranoia, Christ, fascism, assassination, love, the Mafia, the Movement, murder, money, and the Pope.

"C-5A Scandal," Berkeley Rice: The inside story of the C-5A—the world's biggest and most expensive airplane. An appalling account of governmental mismanagement, waste, concealment and repression.

"Five Years to Freedom," Major James N. Rowe: An overwhelming rebuttal to the Vietnam Communist claims of "leniency" and "humanitarianism" toward American POW's by a man who was a Viet Cong prisoner for five years.

"McNamara," Henry L. Trewhitt: Describes Robert McNamara's tenure as Secretary of Defense. Assesses his errors and achievements and their cost to him personally.

The following books are recent arrivals and are available for circulation at the Special Services Main Post Library:

"The Cape," Martin Caidin: A novel of violent action and constant suspense that relates a program to launch an orbiting space platform before the Russians. Disaster, flaming and horrible, explodes in the midst of the Cape.

"Girl on the Volkswagen Floor," William Clark: A reporter's story of his investigation of a young teacher's violent death and of a man claiming ESP as the source of his extraordinary information about the murder.

Ft. Sill soldier finds dinosaur bones

FT. SILL, Ok.a (ANF) — A soldier from Ft. Sill has discovered the fossilized remains of a dinosaur near Geyser Site, Utah, where the Army test-fires the long-range PERSHING missiles.

Spc Gregory W. Ottersbach, St. Louis, Mo., was working as mail clerk for Geyser Site, under operation by Ft. Sill's 2nd Battalion, 44th Artillery.

An amateur archaeologist, Ottersbach spent many off-duty hours hiking through the area, digging for archaeological finds.

Near the missile site, while searching a wash, where running water had worn away several layers of the earth, Ottersbach first found a dinosaur's fossilized gullet bone. On the side of a vertical cliff he spotted the curve of a giant rib bone which measured seven feet in length.

With bones spread out over the wash area, Ottersbach found pieces of the animal's skull that were 1½ inches thick, part of a large finger bone and a remnant of one of the dinosaur's vertebrae.

The specialist asserted, "The bones were good enough to be identified as being 160 million to 180 million years old, when the dinosaur was at its peak on earth."

Synopsis

LOLA (Rated GP) — Susan George, a 16-year-old schoolgirl, and Charles Bronson, a 38-year-old American writer, meet at a party in London; fall in love and are subsequently married.

They move to New York where Susan gets involved in a student riot and it's hubby who ends up in jail rescuing her.

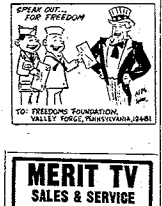
Between her childish demands and the nagging demands of his agent to write, the situation is getting both rugged and ragged. Bronson finds it increasingly difficult to be husband, Mummy, Daddy and teacher plus wage earner. Even their sex life is suffering. It may be love but it's exhausting.

THE PEOPLE NEXT DOOR (Rated R) Eli Wallach and Julie Harris are an average suburban couple living near New York with their children Deborah Winters and Stephan McHattie.

One night Winters is found in a closet suffering from the effects of a bad LSD trip. Thinking McHattie supplied her, Wallach kicks him out.

The next door neighbors discover that their son, Don Scardino, is the pusher and have him arrested. He's released on a technicality and Winters is committed to the violent ward. Harris visits Winters to talk some sense into her and for the first time she responds.

WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH HELEN? (Rated GP) a film with a macabre touch in the tradition of "What Ever Happened to Baby Jane?" and "Hush, Hush, Sweet Charlotte," deals with a past whose shattering experiences turn the present into a nightmare.



Debbie Reynolds and Shelley Winters are cast as the mothers of teen-aged sons who are convicted of murder.

In order to blot out the past, they go to Hollywood where they open a talent academy for children. But the escape doesn't work; the past catches up with them in a grotesque and unexpected way.

All exposed

A STRAW HAT will help prevent sunstroke, but someone should warn Lana Trager that too much exposure below that hat is also dangerous. We don't hear any volunteers, only heavy breathing.

Labor Day

will be awarded to tournament winners.

The Special Services Sports Section will hold a two-day golf tournament at the Sand Hill Golf Course and sponsor an invitational slow-pitch softball tournament to be played all three days of the holiday weekend. Teams need not be in accordance with any military organizational structure. Anyone can enter a team by contacting the Sports Section at 545-1516.

In addition the Special Services Section will operate the field houses, swimming pools, tennis courts, squash courts, handball courts, libraries and theaters on their regular schedule.

The post Noncommissioned Officers Clubs are planning special menus, bands each night and a happy hour that will start at 5 p.m. Monday night and remain in effect until the clubs close.

The Main Officers Open Mess has scheduled special menus, and entertainment at all clubs. A tennis tournament will be held at the club tennis courts and a one-day dogfight golf tournament will be played at the Country Club Golf Course.

The Rod and Gun Club will hold a three-day fishing tournament. Bonds and merchandise orders will be awarded to winners. A 12-foot jon boat complete with electric motor and battery will be given away at the club grounds on Sept. 6. The club has allocated $500 for the prizes to be awarded over the holiday period.

The skeet and trap and archery ranges will also be in operation during the holiday. The skeet operation will conduct clinics and members of the archery group will hold shooting demonstrations and give training to anyone interested.

Scout groups are planning special activities and the Youth Activities has scheduled a "Back to School Dance" for Saturday night.

Additional information concerning these activities may be obtained by telephone from the sponsoring organization.

Re-ups down

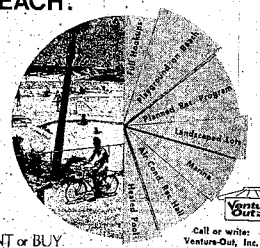
A requirement enacted in February has also stayed in effect. The requirement states that a reenlistee must qualify for promotion to the next higher level — qualify in education, testing and, if necessary, must have his name on the promotion list prior to reenlisting.

Prior to the enactment of the February and August regulations, an MOS pro-pay test was not required, nor was the prospective reenlistee required to meet requirements for promotion. Also, the waivers for the court-martial and AWOL times were handled differently.

According to Sgt. Maj. Frank W. Braxton, the reenlistment qualification test takes a great deal of time, but will be speeded up as the system works itself into a proper pattern. It takes approximately two weeks for the test results, which are processed at Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind., to be returned to Fort Benning.

According to figures supplied by the reenlistment office, 300 men reenlisted in July, while, as of Aug. 16, only 22 men have been able to reenlist under the new qualifications.

Within the next few months, as the new system becomes routine, the reenlistment figures are expected to come back to normal, commented Braxton.



Approximately 25 per cent of all first term enlistees and draftees are reenlisting, stated post reenlistment office. Only 10 per cent are reenlisting for a change of MOS, mostly due to the increased Variable Reenlistment Bonus for the combat arms.

Forty per cent of the reenlistments are for overseas tours, and 50 per cent are for Fort Benning.

Smog investigations go airborne

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — A cooperative smog research program involving space scientists and California air pollution experts will feature a series of airborne investigations over the San Francisco Bay area and the Los Angeles metropolitan area.

Purpose of the flights is to trace the photochemical production of pollutants and their dispersion in the atmosphere. Initial plans call for 12 flights yearly for three years with a Cessna 401 aircraft. It will carry some 500 pounds of research equipment to conduct tests at altitudes up to 17,000 feet over the test areas.

The program is a joint effort of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Ames Research Center, Mountain View, Calif., and the California Statewide Air Pollution Research Center, with headquarters at the University of California at Riverside.

Largest city

Tokyo, the capital of Japan, has the largest population of any city in the world. It was founded in the 12th century as the village of Yedo. The city was renamed in 1968 and became the capital city of Japan.

Compressed gas has potential for disaster

Compressed gases have much the same potential for disaster that explosives do. Their use demands respect for their hazards and strict observance of safe storage and handling procedures.

At Fort Benning, numerous types of compressed gases are in daily use, these gases are used by many organizations and by both members of the military and civilians.

In recent weeks, several accidents involving compressed gas have been recorded at other installations.

Compressed gases, which require special handling are common in our society of today.

Oxygen, as a typical example of a compressed gas, is used for welding purposes in most every motorpool. In its purified forms it is used in the hospital.

Other compressed gases such as propane, acetylene and hydrogen are used in the cutting, welding and treating of metals. Nitrogen is often used to give the comparatively inert atmosphere for a number of special weapons and in certain signal applications.

The list of compressed gases used by the Army is long. It also includes chlorine gas used in water purification equipment.

"In addition to having a long compressed gas list, the uses of the gases is also both long and impressive," said Ralph C. Andrews, Fort Benning's director of safety.

Some compressed gases are capable of freezing the flesh. Some are toxic. Some are highly flammable and explosive.

Cylinders in which compressed gases are transported, stored and used can explode or rupture if they are not properly handled and maintained.

Army Regulation 700-68, covers the safe handling, storing, shipping, use and disposal of compressed gas.

By John Davis

(Editor's note: Roger Pavey is filling in this week for the vacationing John Davis.)

The count was two balls and one strike. The pitcher nervous and fidgety slowly trudged back to the mound for his next delivery. This wasn't an ordinary game, it was a playoff game, one with all the marbles riding on the next pitch. As the ball curved towards the plate the pulse of 65,000 intent baseball fans beat faster and faster. The crowd gasped in disbelief when the tiny sphere soared over the fence 275 feet away.

The pitcher, of course was Brookiyn's Ralph Branca. The place, the Polo Grounds, the batter Bobby Thompson, and the hit was his memorable three run homer.

This game marked the culmination of one of the wildest scrambles in the annals of sport. The Giants moved into Sept. trailing their arch rivals the Dodgers by 13½ games. As the month progressed the Giants won 16 games in a row and caught the Dodgers on the last day of the season.

The commissioner ruled that a one game playoff would be held to determine the National Leagues representive to the World Series. The Dodgers quickly scored three runs and for the first six innings it looked as if the Giants quest for supremacy would be turned back. In the seventh both teams scored a run and the score stood at four to one. After a scoreless eighth the confident Dodgers failed to score in their half of the ninth and the moment of truth was left up to the Giants.

The Giants responded by sandwiching a couple of singles around two outs. As Bobby Thompson strolled to the plate the eyes and heart of a 20-year-old rookie on-deck hitter moved with him. For Thompson's historic clout marked the end of Rookie Willie May's first pennant struggle.

Today, almost 20 years later Willie Mays is the sole survivor of the torrid 1951 struggle. Willie is now caught up in what might turn out to be a recreation of the fight of almost two decades ago.

Although the towns have changed the rivalry still remains. San Francisco and Los Angeles have fought many hard and bitter contests throughout their tenure on the west coast. The Giants, however, seemed to be the team to beat as they spurted ahead in the early goings on spring time baseball. As the summer wore on the winds began to blow harder and the home runs fewer among the hurricane like confines of Candlestick Park.

Both Willie Mays and Willie McCovey faded after a fast start due to a various assortment of injuries and old age. Juan Marichal, reverted back to his temperamental ways after a poor month of July. Umpires seem more strict this year and Gaylord Perry is having a harder time concealing his spitball, thus refecting a 12-12 record. The supposedly "can't miss" rookie phenomes of the spring have long since been returned to the minor leagues, leaving the once unstoppable Giants in first place, with no place to go but down.

The Dodgers on the other hand have worked and scraped from a miserable spring to find themselves only 4½ games behind the Giants. Gone are Newcombe, Snider, Reese, Furillo, Campanella, Hodges, Drysdale and Koufax, but ever present is the Dodger determination to revenge the humiliating defeat of 20 years ago.

The finish of the 1971 pennant race may not be as dramatic as that of '51, but it should cause a stir in the memories of the baseball fan of yesterday.

LA and their new "Mod Squad," Bill Buckner, Willie Crawford, and Bobby Darwin, plus oldsters Willie Davis, and Maury Wills have molded together a solid team which relys on the play of all, not one. Winter trades have also helped bolster the once weak hitting Dodgers, Richie Allen and Duke Sims have powered there way into the hearts of the flag hungary LA fans.

The once great pitching staff decimated by the early retirement and sore arms has shown signs of rising again through the arms of Don Sutton and Bill Singer. Old standby Claude Osteen and newly acquired Hoyt Whilhelm could be the stablizing element the Dodgers need in their climb to the top.

Though a fierce September struggle in the west seems a possibility the Giants must fight off their long time nemisis of choking at the wire. The Dodgers on the other hand have nothing to loose and a great deal of revenge regain.

Golfers flock to Southern Tourney

The field for the $100,000 Southern Open Invitational Golf Tournament at the Green Island Country Club (Sept. 6-12) continues to grow.

Sam M. Willborn III, assistant general chairman for the tourney, announced Aug. 13 that 25 more golfers, including a half dozen from the immediate area, have accepted invitations, bringing to a total of 40 who have committed since Aug. 7.

Top money winners among the list and heading the the contingent of area golfers to join the field, is Bob Murphy of Jacksonville, Fla. The former Gator All-American finished third in the American Classic at Akron this year, four strokes behind winner Jerry Heard. Murphy picked up a check for $10,650 for his Akron efforts, and earlier on the tour claimed $9,579 for a third place finish in the Crosby Open, $7,350 for third in the Champions Classic at Houston and $6,600 in a fourth place tie at the Monsanto Open, among his various contending finishes on the circuit in 1971.

Other area golfers include Doug Sanders, late of Cedartown, Ga., now playing out of Irongate, Jamaica, Gene Ferrell of Columbus, Atlanta's Dewitt Weaver, who took third in the $20,000 Open in February, Albany's Earl Fennell, Howell Fraser of Panama City, and Randy Petri of Huntsville, Ala.

Two more members to accept the Southern's Invitation are Jim Wiechers of Napa, Calif., and Hollywood, Fla.'s Gibby Gilbert. The latter logged fourth place finishes in the Glenn Campbell Open in Los Angeles and Thedoral Open in Miami. Wiechers claims a fifth place finish inthe Bob Hope Desert Classic.

Others among the latest list of 25 to sign in include Lou Graham of Nashville, Tenn., Monty Kaser of Wichita, Kan., Terry Wilcox of Bronxville, N. Y. Richard Crawford, the former NCAA king from Prairie Cree, Ark, Ben Kern of Toronto, Canada, Jim Dent of Washington D. C., Cesar Sanudo of El Cajon, Calif., Lee McDowell of New Smyrna Beach, Fla., Sherman Finger of Evanston Ill., Larry Wood of Boone, N. C., Bob Shaw of Melbourne, Australia, Jim Gilbery of San Diego, Calif., Jim Awtrey of Shawnee, Okla., Larry Ziegler of Terre Du Lac, Mo., Don Rhoaks of Westlake, Calif., and Maumelle Open champion Tom Ulozas of Edison, N.J.

Capt. Gilbert fires onward to championship

Capt. Kenneth Gilbert of the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit jumped into the lead Saturday in the 300 bird International Skeet meet at Camp Perry, Ohio site of the National Pistol and Rifle Championships and then grimly held on to win the Championship Sunday afternoon with his combined score of 285.

Following a dismal third place showing in the initial 100 birds on Friday when he knocked down 95 birds, Gilbert fired a steady pace of 95 on Saturday despite the adverse weather, to take high man for the day and jump into the overall lead with a total of 191 birds to his credit. Second place was claimed by MSgt. Byron Akers of the Army Marksmanship Unit with 188.

Then holding firmly on to his lead and firing steady and consistent scores, Gilbert blasted 94 birds from the skies in the final day of competition on Sunday to win the Championship. High man for the final day of shooting was 1st Lt. Richard Walton of the MTU who knocked down 97 birds.

The 300 birds serve as preliminary tryout for the 1972 Olympics which will be held in Munich, Germaey.

WHAT'S LOSE?

Team Picture Of The 139th M.P. Co., Post Champions

139th M.P. Co. club HHC twice to win slow-pitch championship

The 139th M.P. Co. swept two games from HHC, 158th Inf., last week at Gowdy Field to become the undefeated champions of the USAIC slow-pitch tournament.

The M.P.'s, winners of the 931st Engr. Gp. company-level league, dumped the 197th Inf. Bde. team, 4-3, with an extra-inning homerun Aug. 12, and came back Aug. 13 to humiliate the same team 11-5 for the championship.

The clean sweep of the post tourney gave the M.P.'s perfect record for the season with 19 wins and no losses, with five of those victories coming during the post play-offs.

The M.P.'s first encounter with 158th ended in a standoff after seven innings with the score even at 3-3. However, that tie was quickly shattered in the bottom of the eight inning when center fielder David Bruton smashed the first pitch over the 250-foot fence in right field to give the military police a 4-3 win.

Earlier in the game the M.P.'s were first to get on the scoreboard when they surged ahead, 1-0, on a back-to-back double and triple by Rich Black and right fielder Freddie Broxton before the final out in the fourth inning.

In the top of the fifth the Infantrymen bounced back and collected three runs to grab the lead at 3-1, a lead that was quickly erased when the police went to bat in the same inning. Successive singles by Art McKenzie and Leroy Patton was set up two RBI's for second sacker Kent Rolloff who doubled in both runners to even the score at 3-3.

Both teams remained scoreless for two innings until Bruton's towering homer ended the deadlock in the eighth inning.

In the 158th's final bid to defeat the M.P. company the following night, the 931st Engr. Gp. league winners collected five runs the first inning and four home runs during the game to trounce the 197th league inners, 11-5.

Two of those homeruns came off the bat of Bruton, the powerful center fielder who won the game the night before with his extra-inning roundtripper, giving him three homers in two nights.

The first-inning scoring blitz began for the M.P.'s when McKenzie and Patton walked, shortstop Matt Stackowicz lined a three-bagger for two RBI's, and then scored from third on Bruton's first homer of the game. With the score 4-0, William Russell smashed triple and crossed home plate on Rich Black's subsequent single.

The M.P.'s added two more runs in the second inning on singles by Stackowicz and Rolloff and a double by Burton, which boosted the 139th lead to 7-0.

It wasn't until the fourth inning that the Infantrymen scored on bases-empty homerums by Don Brenner and Raymond Clark, which still left a lopsided score of 7-2. The 158th was held scoreless in the next inning, but in the sixth inning Clark again homered — this time with two men on to lessen the 139th lead to 7-5. That, bowever, was all the 158th team was able to muster in the championship game, and the M.P.'s continued to pound their opponents with two homers in the fifth inning and another in the sixth to ice the victory and win the coveted first place trophy.

Burton sailed his second roundtripper of the night with the bases empty in the fifth, and with Black on first, right fielder Broxton collected two scores with a booming smash over the center field fence in the same stanza. The M.P.'s final talley came in the sixth on another homerun, this time by left fielder Patton.

Earlier in the week the M.P.'s easily disposed of the Small Arms Committee Monday night, 13-3; shut out C Co., Hq's Cmd., 4-0; and trounced A Co., 197th Support Bn., 11-0.

The runner-ups in the 931st Engr. Gp. league, 18th Regl. Det., failed to earn another victory after an opening-game win over the Tactical Arms Committee, 5-4. The 18th Regl. team lost its next two encounters in the tournament, and was eliminated from the double-elimination play-offs.

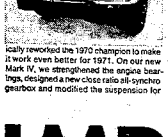
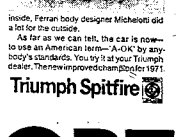
Sports Car Club of America drivers call it a champion.



(Typical American understatement.)



In the SCCA National Championships last year, the Mark III Spitfire took first, second and third in class.

Champion indeed! That's what the English would call a bit of all right.

But we didn't rest on our laurels. We radically reworked the 1970 champion to make it work even better for 1971. On our new Mark IV, we strengthened the engine bearings, designed a new close ratio all-synchro gearbox and modified the suspension for improved balance and road holding.

And while we were doing things for the inside, Ferran body designer Michelotti did a lot for the outside.

As far as we can tell, the car is now to use an American term—"A-OK" by anybody's standards. You try it at your Triumph dealer. The new improved champion for 1971.

The Rod and Gun Club will give out $500 in prizes to fishermen registering the largest catfish, bream or bass during the Labor Day Houiday. A $50 Bond will be given for the largest of each species registered, a $25 Bond for the second largest and merchandise orders for the next four places. There is also a bonus prize — a 12-foot jon boat, electric motor and battery.

The fishing committee has announced the ponds fishermen will have to use during the Labor Day Fishing Derby. Only fish taken from these ponds may be entered in the contest. The list includes just about all of the named ponds on the reservation so fishermen shouldn't be restricted too much in their activities.

Averett, Clear Creek, Harps, Hedleys, Kings, Kings Mill, Kirks, Mobleys, Patterson, Russ Pond and Pool, Schley, Snelling, Stephen, Twilight, Upper Kings, Victory and Weems Ponds are the only ones that may be fished for entries in the fishing derby.

Fishing is Good at Russ Pond Pool

Catfishermen are missing a lot of sport on post according to Roy Johnson, chief of the Fish and Game Unit. He was talking about Russ Pond and Russ Pool. Johnson says both of these places are full of catfish and no one seems to be fishing them.

The only limitations involved in fishing the pond or pool is the number of fish that can be taken on any day. The limit is 10 fish a day.

Russ Pond and Pool are used primarily to stock small fish until they grow large enough to be keepers. Most of the small fish were removed recently and stocked in Twilight Pond. Each time fish are removed, few are missed. Some of these have grown to be large size fish. Several 10 and 12-pounders have been taken from the pond in recent months. Last year the winner of the Derby came from the pond weighing in at more than 16-pounds.

There are three separate bodies of water in the Russ complex located in the draw between Clark Street and Sigerfoos Road on Main Post. The lowest is known as Russ Pool, the one just above it is Russ Pond. A small pond is located above the pool. This small pond is off-limits for fishing. Several years ago it was stocked with about 25 hybrid catfish. These fish were bred from channel and blue catfish at the Alabama State Fish Hatcheries and were placed in the pond as a biological experiment.

The swimming pool at the lower end of the draw was at one time the only pool on post. It was built back in the days when the Quartermaster Corps was still responsible for Army construction. Several years ago the engineers began having trouble with cracks in the cement that allowed silt to wash into the pool. This situation caused the pool to lose popularity and in 1969 the pool was condemned as far as swimming was concerned. In 1970 the pool was drained, the bottom covered with dirt and the Fish and Game Unit began using it to stock small catfish.

A covered patio has been constructed adjacent to the pool and the surrounding area cleared. The whole area makes an ideal picnic place for families or small units. The location alone should make this one of the most popular fishing areas on post.

Trap and Skeet Clinic

Top notch Shotgunners are holding a skeet and trap clinic at the Rod and Gun Club ranges. This is a good opportunity for club members to get free training in an interesting sport. Hunters who plan to do some quail hunting for the first time will find the clinic especially helpful. It could mean the difference between a full or empty game bag at the end of a day's hunting.

Experienced hunters who want to get in some pre-season practice will want to take advantage of the ranges during normal operating hours. There are four skeet rangs and one trap range at the Rod and Gun Grounds. One skeet rang is equipped for night shooting. The ranges are operational from 2 p.m. til 11 p.m. on Wednesday and Thursday, noon til 11 p.m. Saturdays and from 10 a.m. til 6 p.m. on Sunday. Groups may make arrangements to use the ranges at other times by phoning 545-6028.

Army pistol champions head west

Talented U.S. Army handgunners are competing with top-seeded sister service marksmen in annual rivalry for the top gun at the 12th Annual Interservice Pistol Championship at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Tex. this week.

Sponsored each year by the Texas based Air Force Rod and Gun Club, the Army crew of select handgunners going into the fiercely contested and nationally recognized match will be led by the newly crowned National Pistol Champion SSgt. John Smith of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit.

Smith who returned to Fort Benning last week after winning the coveted and prestigious national title at Camp Perry, Ohio, will be aided in his efforts to grab the Army's share of honors by other nationally recognized and talented Army pistol shooters who have recently returned from various national and international meets. Among these are SFC Hershel Anderson, winner of the Free Pistol title in the 11th U.S. Shooting Championships at Phoenix, Ariz. this year and a Silver Medalist in the event at the Pan American Games held at Cali, Colombia.

Other stalwart shooters include MSgt. Emil Heugatter, 1971 National Indoor Pistol Champion; SFC Bonnie Harmon, holder of a new Military Rapid Fire Pistol record and title gained in the CISM matches at Thun, Switzerland in June; SFC Harland Rennolds, winner of the National Trophy Individual matches at Camp Perry, Ohio, (an achievement recognized for its service distinction and national prestige); SFC Hezekiah Clark, the 1971 All-Army Pistol Champion and prolific Three Gun Winner; this year (he has won ten of 12 tournaments he has entered); SFC John Sicinski who won the distinctive Military Police Trophy at Camp Perry for firing the high individual score in the National Trophy Team Match and SSgt. Barbara Hile, the National Women's Pistol Champion.

A 2700 Aggregate Three-Gun match and a 45 Caliber Service Pistol event, the annual meet will be attended by the Marine's outstanding shooters led by Warrant Officer Francis Higginson who won a Gold Medal in the duel competition at the Pan American Games. Air Force Sgt. Edwin Teague of Chandler, Ariz., will be a leading contender also.

Exhibition scheduled with West Germany

A group of West German youths will visit Fort Benning Sunday and Monday to play team handball exhibition games with Fort Benning teenagers.

The youths, all ranging from 13 to 17 years of age are here at the invitation of Gen. William C. Westmoreland, Army Chief of Staff.

The group arrived in the U.S. yesterday for a series of games at 1st and 3rd U. S. Army installations. Prior to arrival at Fort Benning they will play exhibition games at Ft. Meade, Md., and have exhibitions scheduled at Ft. Gordon, Ga., Ft. Jackson, S.C. and Ft. Dix, N.J., subsequent to the Benning visit.

The group will include a liaison representative from the West German Olympic Committee, and representatives from the U.S. Olympic Committee and the U.S. Team Handball Federation.

The purpose of the visit is to promote the Army program for development of Olympic caliber team handball players and team handball interest in the U.S.

Team handball combines elements of volleyball and basketball. The game may be played indoors or outdoors on a playing area approximately 100 feet long and 60 feet wide. Goals are the same as those used in ice hockey. The objective of the game is to maneuver an inflated leather ball five inches in diameter into the goal being defending by the opposing team.

The ball may be moved by throwing, hitting batting, dribbling or passing but can not be kicked. The tempo of the game is fast with few interruptions or penalties.

The game originated in Europe at the turn of the century. International rules were developed in 1924 and since then the sport has gained popularity throughout the world. In 1936 it was accepted as a game to be played during the team competitions of Olympic Games.

This year and next the sport will receive emphasis in the Army Sports Program to develop players for a team to represent the U.S. in the 1972 and subsequent Olympic Games.

Back to school ceremony featured at Golden Park

Aug. 30 will be "Back to School Night" at Golden Park, home of the Columbus Astros baseball team.

Pregame activities beginning at 6:30 p.m. will feature activities at all levels of baseball played in the Columbus area. Little leagues, high school teams and the Columbus College baseball team will be represented. George Therringer, sports commentator from WRBL TV 3, will be master of ceremonies for the events.

Numerous prizes, donated by Columbus merchants will be given to fans holding lucky program numbers.

The pre-game activities will be followed by a league game between the Astros and the Charlotte, S.C. Twins.

Admission tickets will cost $1 for adults. Free admission tickets for children may be obtained from Columbus merchants.

USAMTU handgunners take aim on Grand Trap Championship

A team of U.S. Army Trap shooters from the Army Marksmanship Training Unit opened their bid for the national title of the Grand American Trap Championship at Vandalia, Ohio today against a field of the nation's best clay pigeon artists.

Entering the nine-day meet which is considered the World Series of trap shooting and biggest trap meet of the year, the Fort Benning based Army shooters will be competing against approximately 3,500 mixed civilian and service shotgunners.

The Fort Benning squad led by Sp4 Donald Haldeman who placed second in the National Matches at Camp Perry, Ohio, this year, will include Sp4 Kenneth Blasi, Sgt. Clark Normington, Capt. Kenneth Gilbert and PFC. Joseph Leitinger.

Included in the championship meets will be 1000 birds in American Trap and two events of 100 birds each in International style trap.

U.S. captures 14 medals in assault on Pan Am title

A new Pan American and World record in Center Fire Pistol competition was established by a U. S. pistol team when they fired a composite score of 2353 at Cali, Colombia August 7 of a possible 2400 points.

The team, including U. S. Army SFC Hezekiah Clark, MSgt. Robert Whitacre, and SSgt. Jimmie McCauley of the Army Marksmanship Training Unit and Marine Warrant Officer Francis Higginson, broke the old record by four points which was established by the USSR during the 1962 World Championships in Cairo, Egypt.

The U. S. Center Fire Pistol team won the Pan Am Gold Medal in that event over 34 nations competing while Higginson, the defending Center Fire Champion, successfully defended his title and outperformed his Pan American competitors for the individual Gold Medal while Clark gained the Silver medal.

In the individual shooting, Higginson won the precision event with 298 while MSgt. Robert Whitacre shattered the world record in duel Center Fire competition with an awe inspiring and impressive 299 of a possible 300.

U. S. shooters won a total of nine Gold, four Silver and one Bronze medal in their combined assault of the competitive matches.

Of these 14 medals, four were individual Gold, five team Gold, four individual Silver and the one team Bronze.

In the three-position Smallbore competition, Army Reserve Capt. John Writer won a Gold Medal while Army Maj. Lanes Wigger captured the Silver.

Defending Champion Free Pistol Shooter, SFC Hershel Anderson of the Army Marksmanship Unit was overwhelmed in his bid for a Gold Medal when a Brazilian outscored him by two points setting a new Pan Am record.

Allied officers to be honored at Talladega

TALLADEGA, Ala. — A group of foreign allied military officers attending the U. S. Army Infantry School here will be honored guest of the Speedway at the Classic Talladega '500' NASCAR Grand National Stock Car Race.

It will be the groups first look at American stock car racing, NASCAR style.

Don Naman, general manager at the mammoth 2.66 mile superspeedway said Alabama International Motor Speedway was proud to cooperate with the U. S. Department of State and Defense in the program.

Officials at Alabama International Speedway feel the Talladega "500" will provide the allied officers here an insight to the recreational attitude and sporting activities of the American people. It would also allow them to see a facet of American life that would aid in helping to better relations between our nation and theirs.

The $120,000.00 Talladega "500" is set for 1 p.m. Sunday and 50 of the world's fastest NASCAR Grand National cars will be battling it out for the $19,465.00 first place prize money.

Chaplain Gynther Storaasli dies

Chaplain (Col. Ret.) Gynther Storaasli, a World War II chief of chaplains of the former Army Air Corps, died Friday at Martin Army Hospital.

At 86, he was thought to be the oldest retired chaplain, according to Col. Albert F. Ledebuhr, Fort Benning post chaplain.

Funeral with full military honors was Tuesday at the post Protestant Chapel with burial at Fort Benning Cemetery.

Col. Ledebuhr, a longtime friend of Col. Storaasli Saturday called him "the man who had probably the deepest faith in God and the deepest appreciation of God's love through Jesus Christ I ever met."

Chaplain Storaasli's motto "There is no limit to the good a man can do if he doesn't care who gets the credit" and he gave out the cards by the hundreds to friends and fellow chaplains, the post chaplain recalled.

Col. Storaasli, a native of Minnesota of Norwegian descent, was a Lutheran missionary in China from 1914-1915. He entered the Army in 1918 and when he retired in 1948 was commandant of the Army's Chaplain School, then located in Carlisle, Pa.

He served in the Philippines and Hawaii as well as at bases in the U. S. During World War II, he served a year as Chief of Chaplains of the U. S. Air Corps, then part of the Army.

A baseball player, he pitched for the Pacific Coast League, and until he was 50 was baseball, track and football coach for the units he served as chaplain, Col. Ledebuhr said.

He played golf regularly until he was 83, Col. Ledebuhr added.

Following retirement, Col. Storaasli worked as executive secretary of the Bureau of Service to Military Personnel of the National Lutheran Council, Washington, D. C. Later he was director of chaplain services and recruiter of chaplains for the Evangelical Lutheran Church of Minneapolis. He and Mrs. Storaasli moved to Columbus some 10 years ago.

Col. Storaasli was born May 17, 1885 in Glyndon, Minn., son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Michael Storaasli. Survivors include a son, Dr. John Storaasli of Shaker Heights, Ohio; seven grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

'A Distant Challenge'

Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott (R), post commander, presents a copy of "A Distant Challenge," to Brig. Gen. (Ret.) S.L.A. Marshall during the latter's visit here last week. The book, prepared by Infantry Magazine, was presented to Gen. Marshall at a luncheon at the Fort Benning Officer's Club.

Army reduces number of inoculations for service people, give shots when necessary

WASHINGTON (ANF) — The Army is reducing the number and frequency of immunizations required for service personnel and their families.

Shots will be given only when and where they are necessary, rather than immunizing soldiers at all Army installations for all diseases, according to the Office of the Army Surgeon General.

The new policy results from the use of new and better vaccines.

According to the Army Surgeon General, new Air Force and Navy regulations will follow the same policies contained in the revised Army regulations, which provide that:

Smallpox reimmunization will be conducted once everythree years no matter where a soldier is serving.

Typhoid basic series for the continental United States (CONUS), Alaska, Hawaii and Canada is reduced to a single orienting dose, except for troops on alert and personnel on orders to overseas areas. It was formerly a two-dose series plus reimmunization .The reimmunization interval overseas is unchanged at three years, while CONUS, Alaska, Hawaii and Canada require no reimmunization except for on-alert forces.

Typhus immunizations have been eliminated.

Yellow fever immunization will be required only for travel to or from endemic areas of Central and South America and Africa south of the Sahara.

Cholera immunization, given every six months for those stationed in Southeast Asia, the Middle East and India, is being expanded to include troops and dependents in Korea and Africa. In addition, the former Public Health Service requirement for proof of cholera immunization of travelers returning from cholera-affected areas to the United States is being eliminated.

The regulation governing measles immunization for children traveling overseas is changed from a mandatory to a recommended basis.

Plague immunization, given every six months for troops in Laos, Cambodia and Vietnam, is unchanged.

The change in regulations represents the first major revision in approximately four years, and the Army expects to begin the distribution of its medical guidance in Mid-September.

Cosmic traffic leaves waste in space

WASHINGTON (AFPS) —Space traffic isn't heavy enough for freeways yet, but in the past fiscal year the number of manmade objects in orbit increased almost one-third, according to space analysts at the U.S. Air Force Aerospace Defense Command (ADC) in Colorado Springs, Colo.

This time last year there were 1,949 satellites including payloads, rocket bodies, and items of debris, in orbit. Today, 2,427 of these objects are whirling through space.

The United States and the Soviet Union are the main contributors to space traffic.

According to ADC satellite activity reports, the U.S. and the Soviet Union respectively had 307 and 125 payloads in earth orbit as of June 27, 1971. One year ago the satellite box score showed the U. S. with 295 and the Soviet Union with 77 earth - orbiting payloads.

Twelve of the United States' 307 payloads currently in earth orbit were launched since June 29, 1970. The Soviet Union launched 48 of their 125 earth-orbiting payloads since that date.

The Soviet Union has expanded its Research and Development expenditures in space during the last few years by an average of 10 per cent annually. During the same period U.S. space research expenditures have increased four per cent annually.

The Soviet Union and the U.S. are not the only nations with man-made objects in space. Payloads and other objects in orbit also belong to the United Kingdom, Canada, France, European Scientific Research Organization, Federal Republic of Germany, Australia, Japan, Peoples Republic of China, NATO and Italy. France leads this group with seven payloads and 34 items of debris for a total of 41 objects in earth orbit.

Since the October 4, 1957 launching of the first Soviet Sputnik, 5,308 satellites have been put into orbit. A catalogue of these objects maintained by the joint U.S.-Canadian North American Air Derense Command (NORAD) Space Defense Center shows a decay of 2,881 satellites. The 2,427 satellites currently in orbit, plus 2,881 decayed ones, give a total of 5,308 objects catalogued by the 10-year-old Space Defense Center.

ADC airmen, who operate the Space Defense Center for NORAD inside Cheyenne Mountain near Colorado Springs, process satellite information around-the-clock.

Save the environment, help keep the Army green

FT. LEE, Va. (ANF) — The 1st Army has offered some suggestions to consider in the fight to save the environment, focusing attention on the fact that "ecology begins at home."

Plant a blade of grass. The roots will spread and hold the earth together, preventing soil erosion.

Start a window box, a garden. Plants give off oxygen which the air needs.

Join a car pool. It's economically and ecologically sound. Car fumes make the air unhealthy to breathe and contribute to respiratory diseases.

Better yet, ride a bicycle. It doesn't dirty the air or clog the roadways and it's good for you.

Kick the cigarette habit. It's bad for our air and yours.

Conserve water. Don't run it unnecessarily. When cooking, use vegetable water in making soups and sauces.

Use rain water for your plants. It saves the drinking water for you.

Showers use less water than baths, and they're cleaner.

More suds do not make a cleaner wash. Most detergents are up to 70 per cent phosphate, which promotes the growth of algae in our waters. Algae absorb the oxygen, suffocate fish and eventually kill lakes and streams.

Use the litter bag in your car or boat. Picking up after you costs you money.

Compact your own garbage. Crush milk cartons or fill them. Stack cans inside each other.

Avoid buying foods and household items in plastic containers that cannot be reused. When burned these give off corrosive gases.

Wash and reuse plastic plates and cups for your picnics and barbecues. It's a matter of family economy, and it improves the environment.

The returnable bottle is still the best buy. It's cheaper and the glass can be sterilized and refilled or crushed and reformed.

Share your nonsplintering bones with the neighbor's dog.

Coffee grounds and egg shells are excellent fertilizer in your garden.

Utilize scrap paper. It has two sides, you know.

Reuse gift wrappings, ribbons and cards. It'll save you money and it's more creative.

Buy an artificial Christmas tree. It will become a family fixture, saves our evergreens and won't go up in smoke after the holidays.

Use a metal lunch box. You'll cut down on unnecessary paper and plastic.

In summer, turn off your air conditioning while you are away for the day. It conserves power and saves money on your bills.

In winter turn house heat down at night. It takes power which has a limit — and you'll sleep better.

Choose fresh vegetables over frozen ones. The frozen variety needs multiple wrappings and uses a lot of electrical power in supermarket preservation.

Don't abandon that old car. It will ruin the countryside's beauty. Besides, you can sell it for scrap metal.

Turn throwaways into useful items around your home.

Admission deadline nears for students

The deadline for new students seeking admission to the fall quarter at Columbus College is Friday, Aug. 27.

Any applications received after this date may not be processed in time for enrollment in fall quarter, Alan F. Twichell, director of admissions at the college, said.

New students, transfers, or students who have not recently attended Columbus College must fill out the application form, Twichell said. The students who were enrolled in spring or summer quarter classes and are planning to return this fall do not have to file application, he added.

Orientation for new students will be held Sept. 13, 14 and 15, and for returning students on Sept. 16. Fall Quarter classes will begin Sept. 20.

Before registering, students must also provide the college with scores on the College Entrance Examination Board SAT (Scholastic Aptitude Test), a transcript of high school or previous college records, and completed medical examination form.

Race relations teachers trained for DoD program to ease tension

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Patrick AFB, Fla., is the site for the Defense Race Relations Institute to train servicemen as instructors in race relations.

The first class of about 100 students is expected to begin in October.

The race relations school is part of the Education Program in Race Relations for all members of the armed forces established by Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird.

A Defense announcement said the primary purpose of the education program is to "achieve a more harmonious relationship among all military personnel so that organizational efficiency and combat readiness will not be impaired by racial unrest, tension or conflict."

Individual Learning Center

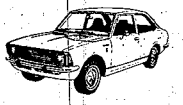
Now programs recently added to the ILC inventory include: Rifle Company in Defensive Operations, Conduct of a Night Attack, Long Range Recon Patrols, History of the 4th Infantry Division (Mech), Logical Thinking, Introduction to World War II and Village Search Techniques.

Reservations for use of the ILC after normal operational hours can be made by calling 545-3480. No reservations are required for the normal operational hours of the ILC. These are:

Monday thru Thursday: 7:30 a.m. — 7:30 p.m.

Fridays: 7:30 a.m. — 5 p.m.

Saturdays: 9 a.m. — 2 p.m.



Recent visitors to the ILC include: The Honorable Robert F. Froehlke, Secretary of the Army, and Lt. Gen. John J. Tolson III, Deputy Commanding general, CONARC.

Oceanic expert says fish should be staple

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Fish should remain a valued staple of the American diet, according to Dr. Robert M. White, Administrator of the Commerce Department's National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA).

Dr. White said it would be "needless and tragic" if incidence of mercury in limited numbers and species caused the nation to avoid all fish. "There is no reason whatever not to eat — and enjoy — fish and shellfish," he said.

Dr. White pledged that NOAA, through its National Marine Fisheries Service, will seek to learn, as quickly and thoroughly as possible, the extent to which mercury or other heavy metals may occur in fish, "and to keep the public informed, not only of those products with high levels but those which fall below the guidelines offered by the Food and Drug Administration."

Since the mercury problem first came to light about a year ago, swordfish is the only species that the FDA felt should be the subject of a warning to the public.

Refs, coaches football clinic starts Sept. 2

The Post Special Services Division will conduct a flag football clinic for coaches and officials at Gowdy Field, Main Post from 1 p.m. until 5 p.m. on Sept. 2 and 3.

Individuals trained at this clinic will perform as coaches and officials during company and brigade level competition on post.

All major units are encouraged to send at least one representative from each company size unit.

Individuals attending the clinic should be dressed in athletic type clothing and gym shoes. The Special Service Sport Section desires the names of these individuals prior to August

Electricity responsible for 1,000 lives

More than 1,000 deaths each year are due to accidental electrocutions in the United States.

During the period from January 1, 1970 through May 20, 29 military personnel have tragically met their death due to carelessness or lack of foresight while working around electrical equipment and wires.

Electrocutions have also occurred from stringing and maintenance of communication cable, faulty electrical wiring, defective electrical equipment, and operation of heavy machinery around high tension cables.

Army scores laser bullseye

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Army scored a bullseye the first time it fired a test round guided to the target by a laser beam.

Launched from a tower on an Army range at Redstone Arsenal, Ala., the round secored a direct hit on a stationary target illuminated by a laser beam. 31.

VOLAR AND DISCIPLINE

'The queston of discipline goes to the very heart of the Modern Volunteer Army test...'

By Wendell Cochran

Has discipline suffered at Fort Benning during the initial six-month test of policies and practices that could lead to a Modern Volunteer Army?

Yes, say some entrenched skeptics among the officers and NCOs who have served at the post throughout the test. But several significant morale indicators say the opposite.

For example:

— Crimes of violence decreased during the test.

— Absent without leave rates continued to decline.

— Article 15 and other forms of nonjudicial punishment were lower than for the same period last year.

— Court martial rates were lower than for the same months last year.

— Congressional inquiries were reduced substantially.

— Inspector General complaints and requests for assistance were increased, demonstrating that many problems are solved on a local level.

The final report on the six-month test period was not able to isolate the specific reason that so many persons hold the opinion that the Modern Volunteer Army programs have eroded discipline.

One explanation is that, "Perhaps some individuals confused the granting of increased privacy, freedom of action and more individualism with a relaxation of disciplinary standards," said Col. Edwin Kennedy, MVA chief.

The colonel said, "There also are strong indications that some of the early publicity attached to the program — publicity that emphasized service attractiveness and largely ignored professionalism — gave some the opinion that discipline was being eroded."

The question of discipline goes to the very heart of the Modern Volunteer Army test.

Gen. William C. Westmoreland, Army chief of staff, said in his announcement of the VOLAR test:

"Nothing is considered sacrosanct except where military order and discipline — the soul of the Army that insures success on the battlefield — are jeopardized. In this we cannot and will not yield. We will continue to hold to the principles that have traditionally guaranteed this nation a loyal Army."

Besides the apparent paradox between the morale indicators that show no harm to discipline and the opinion of some that discipline has been harmed, another interesting point has surfaced in surveys taken on the question of discipline.

Those being disciplined — the lower ranking soldier — believe that discipline standards at Fort Benning have not deteriorated in any degree during the Modern Volunteer Army test.

Col. Kennedy said the effect of the MVA Program on the status of discipline will continue to be of primary interest during the coming year.

Safe postal driver

Herman McNeil of 926 54th St. in Columbus, is presented the Safe Postal Driver of the Month Award for July by Columbus Postmaster W. B. Matthews (L) in ceremonies held at the Fort Benning Post Office. McNeil, one of 13 Benning postal drivers, was selected for the award from the approximately 150 postal vehicle operators in the Columbus and Fort Benning area.

AER reaches 31 per cent of goal

By Roger Pavey

Thus far $10,344 or 31 per cent of the goal of $30,000 has been collected for the Army Emergency Relief (AER) Fund drive currently being conducted at Fort Benning.

The drive began July 22 and will continue through Sept. 10. Some $19,700 more is needed to provide the anticipated AER assistance for 1970.

AER is a non-profit organization designed to provide interest free emergency loans to active duty and retired military personnel and their dependents. AER also provides financial grants which do not have to be repayed in cases of extreme financial hardship.

During the 1970 accounting year the Fort Benning AER provided 2,901 servicement and their dependents with $324,682 in emergency interest free loans. They also made available $21,800 to 241 individuals in the form of financial grants.

AER receives no appropriated funds through the Federal government or Fort Benning. It receives all of its assistance through individual and unit donations of Fort Benning personnel and other interested parties.

All money donated to AER is used specifically for loans or grants. Operating expenditures are paid from interest on AER Reserve.

AER officers are co-located with Army Community Services in Room 260 Bldg. 35.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT
by Bill King

Bread for picnic or lunchbox sandwiches should be lightly spread with butter or margarine to keep the filling from soaking in.

The tenderest omelets are prepared with eggs that have been held an hour or so at room temperature.

It's a good idea to sprinkle the bottom of the roasting pan with some flour before adding the roast or poultry. The flour will absorb the drippings and you'll get better scrapings for gravy.

Don't be too extravagant when trimming a head of lettuce. The darker green outer leaves contain more vitamins and minerals than the crisp inner leaves.

Whether you buy it ready-mode or make your own, borscht is a deliciously appropriate dish for a hot summer night when served iced with sour cream on top.

Here's another suggestion for a hot summer night; play it cool and treat the family to a relaxing and refreshing dinner at KING'S PIZZA ON CALL

CRANE ROLLER-TIP NEEDLE BEARING ALUMINUM ROCKER ARMS

After extensive research and development, Crane Cams, Incorporated, offers the quality engine builder the most advanced design competition rocker arm available. Made from lightweight, extremely rugged aluminum alloy, the Crane roller-tip, needle bearing rocker arms feature an entirely new shape and engineering design. The gold anodized rockers utilize a larger body for increased strength and a wide 3-8-inch roller for greater surface contact. Crane's patented "Inertia-Lock" retaining features combine to form the strongest, lightest rocker arm of its type available to the high-performance industry. Advanced design prevents problems encountered with other type rocker arms, such as dropped roller tips.

Gen. Mildred C. Bailey discusses WACs, VOLAR

(Editor's Note: The following article was first published in Aug. 12 issue of "The Pentagram News.")

By George Post

All of the emphasis on 'zero draft' and an all-volunteer Army sometimes obscures the fact that at least one unit in the Army has never had to rely on the draft to fulfill its need for people: the Women's Army Corps.

On Aug. 1 Brig. Gen. Mildred C. Bailey became the 8th director of the Corps and the 2nd member of the WAC to be raised to the rank of general officer.

On Aug. 9 Gen. Bailey discussed with the Pentagram News some effects the Modern Volunteer Army has had and is expected to have on her Corps.

"We have no separate part of the MVA program," she began, "all that has been done for the male soldier is true for us, including things such as more privacy in the barracks, elimination of KP and fatigue details and all of the other MVA programs."

"Of course we must adapt some of the programs to fit women," she added.

An area of constant controversy in the male Army is hair length. Gen. Bailey explained that the controversy is not as heated in the WACs.

"A woman's hair should not touch her collar when she is in uniform. We ask that hair not be extreme — either too long or too short. A girl can have her hair as long as she wants, aslong as she wears it 'up' when she is in uniform and can still wear her hat."

The WACs are also exploring the possibility of uniform changes. There is a plan for a Training Duty Uniform which will be used for KP, fatigue details and physical exercise.

Gen. Bailey explained that WACs must pull KP wherever they maintain their own mess halls or where they share a consolidated mess.

"Of course we are benefitting in this respect from the move to 'civilianize' certain jobs in order to release the soldier to do the job of soldiering," she said.

Also in the planning stages are a more attractive shoe, a more comfortable jacket for the Class A uniform and changing the skirt to "more of an 'A-line'."

"We never try to keep up with current fashion," she said, "because it just doesn't last."

Asked whether there was a plan to increase the size of WAC in order to solve some of the manpower shortages created by the loss of Selective Service, Gen. Bailey said: "Yes, we have talked about increasing the size of the Corps by as much as 50 per cent.

"Before we can do this, however, we must build classroom space, billeting space and solve other logistical problems. Because of this our size will remain the same for this fiscal year and next."

She said that the actual increase will take place over a number of years.

The plan does not include putting women in non-combat jobs in a combat zone as the Israelis have done in the past.

The general explained that the WACs do not rely on a college Reserve Officer's Training Corps for their young officers.

The WAC does have a College Junior Program which allows girls to take a month-long look at the Army between their junior and senior year in college.

"We don't feel that we need ROTC at this time but we are constantly re-evaluating our position," she said.

Two problems facing the Army at the current time are drug abuse and race relations and the WAC is no exception, although Gen. Bailey said that they are not as evident as in the male Army.

"We are a cross-section of society and we have society's problems. I don't feel that our problems are as great as the male Army's because we are a volunteer organization," she explained.

Gen. Bailey's Army career has spanned 29 years and includes a tour as commanding officer of Headquarters Company, U. S. Army WAC at Ft. Myer. Prior to being named director of the Women's Army Corps she was deputy commanding officer of the WAC Center at Ft. McClellan, Ala.

Handball antics

Two West German and two Fort Benning teenagers make like the three stooges and the Marx brothers during a team handball exhibition game at Briant Wells Field House. The West Germans were members of a handball team playing exhibitions at United States military installations to aid the Army program for promotion of the sport in this country. The German team also played exhibition games at Fort Mead, Md., Fort Gordon, Ga., Fort Jackson, S. C. and Fort Dix, N.J.

Says one ROTC cadet

Airborne--'more demanding than camp'

After we kill that Major first, everybody will die," barked SSgt. Adams of the Airborne Tower Committee. The major is Maj. Clayton A. Pratt, ROTC instructor from the University of Wyoming, who is going through the rigorous Airborne training with three of his ROTC students.

The three University of Wyoming students are part of the new program established to give ROTC cadets the opportunity to become Airborne qualified before they are commissioned as second lieutenants.

Cadet Wayne L. Gras, Micro-Biology major, came to Fort Benning directly from his summer camp training at Ft. Lewis, Wash. Gras commented, "It's about what I expected, its pretty rough, and a lot more demanding than summer camp."

Pratt, a ROTC graduate from Westminster College, conxes his three students along by kiddingly stating, "I ain't even broke sweat yet." On the serious side Pratt believes "This is the best instructon I've ever seen. Excellent individual training, and by far the best confidence builder I've seen in the Army.

Cadet Frank T. Griggs, a business administration major, characterized the mood of many of the ROTC Airborne students by stating, "I feel I have made an accomplishment that not every ROTC student can lay claim to."

Pratt feels that next year there will be a big increase in the number of cadets taking Airborne training. He backs up this belief by quoting another of his ROTC cadets, Jeffery S. Carlton, Distinguished Honor Graduate of ROTC Ranger class 502-71, "Sir, I'll cut off my cast and go to Airborne school if its okay with you?" Carlton broke his foot while going through Ranger training, but hung on to finish the course and receive his Ranger Tab. Airborne training will have to wait until next year for Carlton.

The Airborne course is open to all ROTC students who apply and pass the Airborne physical training test. The cost is approximately $100, but the satisfaction of earning the coveted "jump wings" by Pratt and his three cadets, far out-shadows the cost.

Q — Can a soldier utilize either a Bankamericard or a Master Charge card in the Army and Air Force Exchange system here on post?

A — A spokesman from the A and AF Exchange system stated the following: 1) a soldier can utilize a Bank Americard in the Fort Benning Exchange Service Stations due to the willingness of Standard Oil Company to accept this card as well as their own credit card. Credit cards cannot be utilized in post exchanges, snack bars or other concessions with the exception of the Fort Benning Cox and Kennon Garage, which is under special study at the present time but is authorized to accept the Bank Americard. 2. Post Echanges are specifically restricted from the use of credit cards by the Armed Forces Sub-Committee House of Representatives. Generally on most army and air force bases and posts the only credit card authorized is the one issued by the oil company servicing that respective post or base.

Q — What effect has the suspension of the draft had on the Armys' Training Program thus far?

A — The failure to date to obtain draft legislation has not significantly affected the Army Training base for two principal reasons. First the Army's system for managing the training program has enabled the training base to absorb the decrease in Active Army accessions without any appreciable decrease in the total training load. This was accomplished by using a backload of Army Reserve and National Guard personnel which had developed prior to the "no draft" situation. This backlog is now providing additional imput to the training base. Army enlistments in July 1971 were 19 better than July 1970. This is particularly encouraging and significant with regard to the no draft situation.

The judge says

Communes are illegal in some zones

USAIC LEGAL ASSISTANCE OFFICE. Central City wanted to stop "commune living." It passed an ordinance which prohibited more than four persons, if they were unrelated, from living in the same dwelling in an area zoned for "single family" residences. But if the persons were related or "traditionally" part of a related family, even if more than four, they could live in a family neighborhood.

Some residents of a commune challenged the ordinance. They said that it denied their right to free association, to family privacy and equal protection of the law. The court, however, held that the ordinance was valid.

The court said that traditional family relationships have long recognized values which do not apply to a "voluntary family." It observed that a traditional family has blood and legal ties which are not easily broken. It said that a commune, on the other hand, could be compared to a residence club.

The court noted that the ordinance did not attempt to discriminate against any one group. Race, religion, or political views made no difference. Also, the city had found that communes had a greater impact on noise, traffic, parking and rent structures of an area than traditional family units.

In another case, a seaside town passed an ordinance aimed specifically at hippies who lay or sat in parks or other public property. Some hippies were arrested for violating the ordinance. The court, however, ruled that the ordinance was invalid. The court pointed out that the ordinance was aimed at a group primarily because of its dress.

Laws directed at any one group because of race, color or appearance are suspect. A law that might be otherwise valid denies equal protection of the law if enforced only against a particular individual or group. There must be some valid basis — a legal objective to be accomplished as well as equal enforcement of the law before it can be upheld.

Country club living

This is one of the semi-private rooms being provided under VOLAR. Complete with rugs, desks, desk lamp, chest of drawers and a fan the rooms offer a welcome improvement over the old hay style living conditions of pre-VOLAR years but it is not country club living as suggested by some.

College graduates find jobs scarce

By H. Parra

"While going through college I was an assistant teller, now I have my degree and I am the teller."

This is how a 1971 college graduate described the unemployment situation affecting most of today's graduates. Across the nation the cry for jobs can be heard and a variety of opinions are expressed advising these young men as to what can be done about it.

You may get instructions on how to look for a job in newspapers or even hardcover books. They will tell you about your appearance, how to look and act before a prospective employer or even how to write a resume to a particular company. They advise you to 100 different places and to keep writing in case they don't answer. But the fact is, where are the jobs for today's graduates?

Long past are the days when representatives of large corporations came on campuses, at graduation time, with rolls of money on their hands offering you a job. Now, many graduates are turning to vocational schools as an alternative for securing a job.

In spite of the bleak outlook of the situation, as far as unemployment is concerned, there is something you can do about it. If you have been reading for the past few seconds, perhaps the following will interest you even more.

"The U.S. Army wants to join you."

Under this slogan, one of the largest employers of America is apparently succeeding fairly well in attracting many young men and women with the variety of jobs available to them. They are finding that their efforts are well appreciated and the many technical fields offered in the Army are commensurate with their abilities.

If sense of financial security for you and your loved ones is your primary concern, you'll be interested to know that this is also of utmost concern for the Army.

Perhaps one of the saddest cases of the unemployment situation is that of an aero-space engineer who designed and built a radiation meter device used in today's aero-space research. In an interview with the San Francisco Examiner and Sunday Chronicle said the engineer, "I used to enjoy a well paid job, now, as a result in the cut of aero-space research I have been laid off and I am taking evening on-the-job-training to become a bartender."

Even the mere fact that you own a degree seems to work against you. The employer might tell that you are "too well prepared" for the kind of job he's got to offer and the kind of money he is willing to pay.

In concluding, no one can say with certainty that this situation will improve or will get worse. But at any rate, it is obvious that the chances of your being turned away from joining the Army because you have a degree or because you are "too well prepared" are very remote. You will be matched to a job according to your abilities and the Army is definitely accepting applications now.

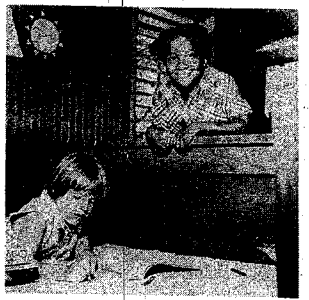
Abn. Dept., post families aid Easter Seal camp

Fort Benning's involvement in the Easter Seal Society's recent six-week camping program for handicapped held at Ft. Yargo State Park became a "family affair" with the Infantry School's Airborne Department and Army families participating.

Capt. Joe Moore, an instructor, and one of his classes personally raised $1,000 to sponsor nine handicapped children from the Columbus area for 12 days of summer fun at Camp Easter Seal. According to a report received from the Georgia Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults, Moore and his men became acquainted with all the children they were sponsoring before the youngsters took off for camp.

David Marlowe, son of Capt. and Mrs. Gerald D. Marlowe, worked as a counselor, sharing seven weeks of his summer from June 15 through July 30 with handicapped children and adults. David, a Hardaway High School student, was one of a 45-member camp staff including four Green Berets attached to the 7th Special Forces Group from the JFK Center for Military Assistance, Ft. Bragg, N. C. Other counselors were high school and college students representing 23 Georgia cities. The Easter Seal campaign program was divided into three 12-day sessions for different age groups, and was directed by Mrs. Gloria McDonald, Georgia Easter Seal Society staff member.



SSG and Mrs. Russell L. Whetstone's daughter, Joanne M. Mills and their son, Mark Mills, attended the 1st session from June 20 to July 1. Among the camp activities were: boating, handcrafts, swimming, Indian Day, fishing; sleeping under the stars, cook-outs, stunt nights, evening parties, and special entertainment groups appearing at camp.

Including the nine youngsters sponsored by Moore and his men, there were 20 campers from the Columbus area who numbered among the 20 handicapped Georgians attending the six-week Easter Seal camping program.

A summer to remember was provided for children as young as six, and for handicapped adults up to age 65.

NCO wives' luncheon

Maj. Gen Orwin C. Talbott, second from right, post commander, was guest speaker at the August luncheon of the Non-commissioned Officers Wives Club. The meeting was held on Aug. 18 at the Traffic Circle Black Angus Restaurant. With Gen. Talbott are (L to R) Mrs. Henry Guilbeault, president of the NCO Wives Club; Mrs. John F. Lavoie, and CSM Lavoie, post sergeant major.

Husbands 'accept' obese wives

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — The "typical" American husband of an overweight woman can probably persuade her to shed some poundage — but he doesn't really want to, according to two University of Michigan researchers.

Although many of the husbands are making their wives miserable over their weight, the men are afraid of the possibility that they would slim down, reported social work researcher Richard Stuart and public health researcher Barbara Davis.

"A few feared that if their wife lost weight, she would be unfaithful," Stuart said. "An extra 100 pounds was used by these men as a modern chastity belt."

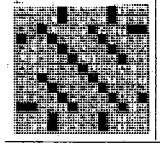
"Some feared that if the marriage," he said, would force a readjustment of sexual patterns in "They had worries about their own inadequacy and justified these on the basis of their wife's unattractiveness."

"In exchange for the wife's eating, the husband would get to drink a lot or watch TV constantly. He was worried that if she stopped eating, he would have to stop what he was doing."

The two researchers studied the cases of 250 women who wanted to lose weight. The results of their work will appear in a book "Behavioral Control of Overeating," to be published next month by Research Press.

Men were more likely to initiate talk about food than their fat wives were, the researchers found. And although the husband criticized overeating, they did not praise restraining.

The researchers had this advice for fat wives:



—Do your grocery shopping strictly from a list to avoid taking advantage, for example, of a three-package for a dollar cookie special.

—Shop after dinner; you buy less when you aren't hungry.

—Quit eating table scraps; put them into a wastebasket at the table.

—Eat slowly; it takes 20 minutes to feel satisfied whether you eat 300 calories or 1,000. Fatties generally are fast eaters.

Ecumenical tea to be held Sunday

An ecumenical tea on a Sunday afternoon, hosted by the Chaplains Division and religion-oriented women's groups, will welcome new teachers to Fort Benning's Dependent School system this weekend.

Post chaplain, Col. Albert F. Ledebuhr, and his wife, Jean, will greet new teachers, "old-timers," parents, Board of Education officials, and PTA leaders this Sunday from 3 until 5 p.m. at the Infantry Center Chapel Annex on Sigerfoos Road, Main Post.

Approximately 200 teachers from the Fort Benning schools have been invited, with an emphasis on those who are new in the community. Protestant Women of the Chapel, the Military Council of Catholic Women, and the Jewish Sisterhood, sponsors, emphasize that the purpose of the tea is to acquaint these newcomers with the warm fellowship of the Chapel "family" here on post.

Fort Benning families send their children, up through 8th grade, to schools on post. These parents are invited to attend and greet th teachers. Many new teachers may not yet be aware of the chapel activities available to them, according to Mrs. Marguerite Waldrop, director of Religious Education. "We hope to acquaint them with the post religious program," she said.

A special invitation is extended to all retired officers' wives in the Columbus-Phenix City area to "Join the Bunch" at the OWC opening tea. Beginning at 1 p.m., Sept. 8, in the Main Officers' Open Mess at Fort Benning, the tea is an opportunity for all interested officers's wives to sign up for activities for the 1971-72 year.

A multitude of classes are offered, including: Allied Liaison, Art, Atlanta Trip, Bowling, Bridge, Ceramics, Candlemaking, Charm, School of Dance, Art of Deco-Purse and Wood Items, Decoupage, Environmental Workshop, and Geographical Wives.

Horseback Riding, Household Handicrafts, International Cooking, Pre-Kindergarten, Party Cooking, Knitting and Crocheting, Macrame', School of Music, Sewing, Self Defense, Slim and Trim, Swimming, Thrift Shop, Tole-Painting, Welfare, Yoga, Teenage Craft Class and Tours.

A minimum deposit of $2 for each class is required in lieu of total payment when signing up. For further information call Mrs. Russell Miller at 545-4739, or come to the opening tea.

The September tea is a free event and no reservations are neeessary. Membership tables will be at both entrances of the Main Club. Individual tables for each activity will enable the members to sign up for classes and also provide more information on the classes.

There is an activity offered for every Army wife. Each retired officer's wife is urged to lend her support and valuable experience to the OWC.

MEDDAC

The members of the MEDDAC Wives' Book Club decided that Charles Reich was perhaps a bit pessimistic in his book "The Greening of America." The club agreed that they were glad this book was selected to read, but felt there were other books that better presented the revolution of the new generation.

The ladies, in their discussion, led by Mrs. Charles R. Gatty, found many contradictions in the book and opinions presented as facts. They noted that the author failed to offer any solutions to the problems he brought out, as is true in most books of his type.

Mrs. David Ohashi was the hostess for the Book Club at her home, 421-B Craig Court, on Aug. 11.

The next selection of the MEDDAC Wives's Book Club is "All the King's Men" by Robert Penn Warren. The discussion group will meet at 7:30 p.m., Sept. 1, at the home of Mrs. Paul Kirkman, 101 Dilbeck Street.

Going to the Goetchius House for their August coffee was a treat for the Officers' Wives' Club of MEDDAC. The coffee was held on the patio of this historic Columbus house on Aug. 13, with the wives of the Veterinary Service serving as hostesses.

Refreshments of coffee, doughnuts, coffee cake and fruit were served from a long table and the members sat at smaller tables arranged around the patio.

There were many new members to be welcomed by the president, Mrs. Cesar Lopez. They were Mrs. James Adelman, Mrs. Larry Ellis, Mrs. Lee Roy Barber, Mrs. Charles Belanger, Mrs. Frederick Birsch, Mrs. John Burns, Mrs. Peter Christenson, Mrs. Randy Cobb, Mrs. Loran Cook, Mrs. Michael Donahue, Mrs. Henry Faris, Mrs. Shelly Friedman, Mrs. Jerry Goddard, Mrs. Gerald Goldberg, Mrs. John Green, Mrs. John Hammett, Mrs. Ronald Hawk, Mrs. Donald Jarnigan, Mrs. Richard Johnson, Mrs. Jeffery Karp, Mrs. George Kerr and Mrs. Brent Koudelka.

Mrs. Benjamin Lechner, Mrs. Robert Lennon, Mrs. Owen Logee, Mrs. Eugene Long, Mrs. Jim McLeod, Mrs. Stan Millman, Mrs. Robert Moseley, Mrs. Greg Myer, Mrs. Donald Myles, Mrs. John O'Brien, Mrs. Michael Perlman, Mrs. Jim Ruggles, Mrs. John Sarbak, Mrs. George Schein, Mrs. Richard Sherman, Mrs. Thomas Smith, Mrs. Sheldon Staller, Mrs. George Trick, Mrs. Ronald Vaughn, Mrs. Rocco Venuto, Mrs. James Volkman, Mrs. John Vecchio and Mrs. John Enbom.

Five members were attending for their last time. They were Mrs. Cyrus Beckey, Mrs. Kai Ip, Mrs. Les Perry, Mrs. John Schecter and Mrs. David Wilson.

The guests were Mrs. George Clark, Miss Nora Clough, Mrs. Stephen Factor, Miss Mary Ann Gazdick, Miss Karen Weiss, Mrs. Ben Weatherington and Mrs. Sylvia Atkins.

Most of the wives and guests toured the Goetchius House before leaving the coffee.

OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY

The officers' wives' of the Office of the Secretary, USAIS, held their monthly coffee on Aug. 17, at the home of Mrs. Herbert L. Frondsen. Sunny yellow accented the dining table which featured different coffee recipes from all over the world. Guests chose their favorite recipe and blended their own coffee, which was accompanied by tasty hor d'oeuvres. Ground work was laid for the group's project for the OWC Christmas Bazaar, and workshops for these projects will begin soon.

NCO Wives' Club

Various groups of ladies get together on a volunteer basis each month to participate in a service to the patients at Martin Army Hospital. This service is referred to as Hospital Coffee Call by the NCO Wives' Club and by patients who receive the the refreshments. A selection of donuts and hot coffee is served each patient after instructions are given the ladies by the nurse on the ward.

The patients appreciate these refreshments, and the cart from which the ladies service is easily recognized. It reads "NCO Wives' Hospital Coffee Call." Donuts and coffee are served to the hospital personnel as well.

We would like to take this opportunity to thank the hospital staff for letting us give our time twice each month for the benefit of the patients.

Hospital coffee chairman is Mrs. Cornell Crews. Volunteering for the month of August were Mrs. Arthur Gaskins, Mrs. Bobby Canady, Mrs. Curtiss Smith, Mrs. John Little, Mrs. William Dee, Mrs. Robert Besch and Mrs. Raymond Robinson.

GOURMET CLASS

A small reminder to the officers' wives interested in the Marcel Carles Cooking School Gourmet Class — you may sign up for the class and pay the $30 fee at a tea being held at 1 p.m., Aug. 31. Mrs. James G. McConoughy will be the hostess at her home, 306 Cascade Road, Green Island Hills. Reservations for the tea may be made by calling Mrs. McConaughy at 323-9467, on or after Aug. 26.

197th INF. BDE.

Warm atmosphere surrounded the ladies of the 197th and the Allied Wives at a luncheon held by the ladies of Headquarters, 197th Inf. Bde., Aug. 18, in the Supper Club. "Look the World Over" was the theme.

Honored guests were Mrs. Orwin C. Talbott and Mrs. Charles Yarbrough, who were introduced by Mrs. Willard Latham. Also, Allied Wives introduced by Mrs. Bernard Muller-Thym were: Mrs. Teresita Arce, Argentina; Mrs. Afef Mamoghli, Tunisia; Mrs. Najet Skik, Tunisia; Mrs. Laurice, Lebanon; Mrs. Attariah Molik, Malaysia; Mrs. Mirey a Bush, Nicaragua; Mrs. Eugenia Mata, Guatemala; Mrs. Paul Schultz, Germany; and Mrs. Teresa Dowling and her daughter, Miss Maria Dowling, from Chile.

Mrs. Malik, Mrs. Skik, Mrs. Mamoghli, and Mrs. Bush modeled their native costumes.

Maria Dowling played the guitra, sang a folk song, and a contemporary song in her native tongue.

Mrs. Bush graciously explained the Indian silk [illegible]

a native dance from Nicaragua, and a native dance was performed by Mrs. Muller-Thym, 197th wife, from Honduras.

Decorations were enhanced by a large white dove of brotherhood. The tables were covered with infantry blue cloths, and multi-colored streamers using the colors of all flags. Dolls, in native dress, representing each country of the Allied Wives were placed in the center of each table encircled by miniature flags.

Flags of each country of the Allied Wives were represented on the head table, a flower arrangement using international colors graced the center of the table. Numerous flags provided a colorful background.

Special tables were set up by the Allied Wives to display artifacts from their countries.

The decorative dolls, made by the ladies, were given as door prizes to terminate a festive afternoon.

The ladies of Headquarters, 197th Inf. Bde. were entertained at a coffee Aug. 11, at the home of Mrs. Willard Latham, wife of the brigade commander. Mrs. James F. Mesite was co-hostess.

Delicious home-baked cookies and finger sandwiches were served with coffee and punch.

Mrs. Krisco conducted the business meeting where final preparations were discussed for the August luncheon. Mrs. Krisco announced that the forthcoming Christmas bazaar will be held Dec. 1, and asked the ladies for suggestions for a project for the bazaar.

Newcomers welcomed into the group were: Mrs. Robert E. Orkard, Mrs. Ronald O. Pruitt, Mrs. Robert T. Ariyoshi, Mrs. John R. Lockard, Mrs. Thomas Plunkett, Mrs. John F. Raffo, Mrs. Arthur Wilkinson, Mrs. Kelly P. Boyum, Mrs. Monte Robertson, Mrs. Allen Terry, Mrs. W. A. Rawbinson, and Mrs. Frederick Bissell.

Farewells were said to Mrs. John Krisco, Mrs. James Mesite, and Mrs. Perry Hope.

LEADERSHIP DEPARTMENT

The ladies of Conditioning, Combatives and Drill Committee of the Leadership Department, USAIS, met at the home of Mrs. Michael A. Ross, Aug. 17, for their monthly coffee.

Refreshments of cookies, pecan pie, Yakimando (beef and vegetable stuffed shells), punch and coffee were served from a white - clothed table centered with a wood and jade tree.

Honored guest was Mrs. Billy E. Rutherford, wife of the deputy director of the department and special guest was Mrs. Ralph Foore, sister-in-law of Mrs. Timothy Love.

Plans were finalized for the department luncheon in September and projects for the OWC Christmas bazaar were started.

The September coffee will be in the home of Mrs. Edward F. Flora Jr.

Ladies of Headquarters Committee, Leadership Department, met at the home of Mrs. Billy E. Rutherford for their montly coffee on Aug. 19.

A lovely floral centerpiece of summer flowers centering the table was surrounded by servings of a yummy strawberry icebox pie.

Mrs. William B. Steele wishes to thank all of the ladies for baking cookies and giving their support to the ward party held at Martin Army Hospital on Aug. 17.

Mrs. Steele volunteered to be the hostess for the September coffee.

CHATTAHOOCHEE VALLEY CHAPTER Gold Star Wives

In July, five members of this chapter attended the National Convention in San Diego, Calif. They were: Mrs. Billy J. Nave, Mrs. Lloyd A. Payne, Mrs. Jack W. Sanford, Mrs. James R. Tremayne, and Mrs. Gerard M. Wynn.

The Columbus delegation extended the invitation to Gold Star Wives of America to hold its 1972 convention in Columbus next summer. Further invitations were extended from Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, Mayor J. R. Allen and the Chamber of Commerce. The convention delegates accepted.

The Chattahoochee Valley Chapter is the largest in the United States but it will take a lot of work to stage a National Convention. They will be calling on every member for work on the convention committee.

AUSA

By Bob Barber

The Association of the United States Army (AUSA) — dedicated to the premise that a strong, modern, mobile Army is vitally essential to our national defense.

KNOW YOUR OFFICERS

Charles S. Daley, elected on the 14th of June as the first vice-president of AUSA, brings with him a history of dedication and service to the community.

Presently the president of the Fourth National Bank of Columbus, Mr. Daley had a distinguished but short career in the Army, serving as a captain with the 82nd Airborne Division in Europe during WWII, and was inducted into the U. S. Army Infantry School Hall of Fame.

C. S. DALEY

After being wounded and discharged in 1944, Mr. Daley returned to banking. He had begun as a bank runner in 1935, completed Rugers University School of Banking in 1954, and was elected president and director of DeKalb National Bank, DeKalb, Ga., in 1957, and is presently the president of the Fourth National Bank of Columbus.

Mr. Daley is the past president of Columbus Kiwanis Club, chairman United Girvers Fund :1969), president United Givers Fund (1970). He is also a member of the board of directors of the Columbus Chamber of Commerce, United Givers and was the 2nd vice-president of the Association of the United States Army for the past year.

Along with membership in various area clubs, and his position as a Trustee of Columbus College, Mr. Daley is a member of the First Presbyterian Church and serves as a ruling elder.

He is married to the former Nettie Ragan of Randolph Count, (Ga.). They have two daughters, Susan Daley Smith and Gayle Sibley Daley.

NEW IMAGE AND DIRECTION FOR AUSA

Recently, the executive vice president of the National Association of the U. S. Army requested comments from this chapter concerning a new direction and a new image of AUSA that had been prepared by national headquarters. Briefly, this new image would concentrate on national issues where it is determined there is reasonable chance of success and drop or reduce the emphasis on those issues that are clearly a waste of time. Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning chapter agreed with the broad outlines of this new direction for AUSA, especially the suggestions that dealt with legislative cooperation at both the chapter and national levels and the idea that national would help the various chapters in organizing their programs more in line with natonal goals and objectives. The local chapter also thought that the idea for all chapters to coordinate all military orientated organizations in their respective areas was noteworthy. The main issue missing from this new direction is an approach to inform the junior officer and NCO on AUSA matters and to gear more AUSA efforts toward the young soldier. Too much of AUSA's present activities and programs go unnoticed and unappreciated by an increasing number of junior officers and enlisted members of the chapters at local levels. It was also felt that the chapter has reached a point where it can and should stress professionalism and discipline (of the modern variety) and show that the Army is becoming more selective — that it wants the best. As a final note the chapter has suggested to National Headquarters that the annual meeting be held at cities other than Washington.

DID YOU KNOW:

AUSA "Supports fully all measures to improve career attractiveness with a goal of reducing our reliance on the draft. Commited to the continuation of viable Selective Service until proven unnecessary."

"Recently the Chief of Staff, United States Army, urged the Chief of the National Guard Bureau and the Chief of the Army Reserve to join with him in urging the membership of each of their organizations to use the Association of the United States Army as the primary, common vehicle for promoting national security." The idea is to promote public responsibility through the influence and contacts of the local company size unit...

Army problems aired by officers

The orders came from Ft. Monroe, Va., "Capt. Oliver M. Rogers, USAIS . . . has been selected by DA to represent CONARC at a meeting with the Chief of Staff on August 26, 1971."

Capt. Rogers, an instructor with the Leadership Committee, Leadership Dept., and five other company grade officers from around the world met with Gen. William C. Westmoreland over lunch.

This meeting was held to give Gen. Westmoreland a frank view of the problems of today's Army leaders. It also provided an indication of the effect of Department of the Army policies on officers of all ranks, and provided the Army Staff an opportunity to inform representative officers of present and future actions.

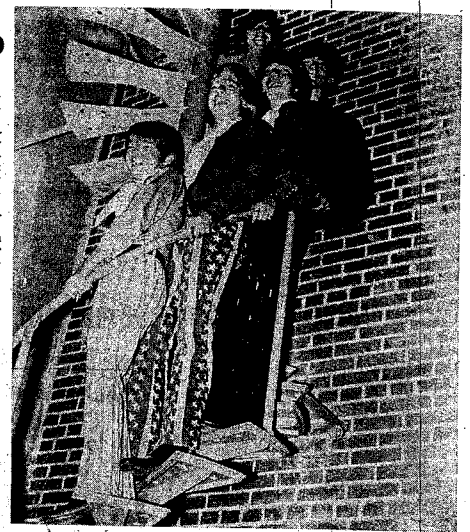
Army aids ecological group

Engineers from the 586th Engr. Co., 931st Engr. Gp. have once again been called upon to assist members of the Georgia Natural Areas Council in navigating the Flint River.

The engineers were first called out July 23 when it was determined that conventional boats could not navigate the shallows on the river. The rubber assault boats used by the float bridge company are ideally suited to this type of water and the request for assistance went out from Robert Hanie, executive director of the council.

The first trip was so successful, according to Hanie, that a more venturesome trip was planned for Aug. 20-21. This trip was extended to a 25-mile excursion with an overnight camp-out at Pasley Shoals near Thomaston, Ga.



The purpose of the expedition was to gain information regarding the ecological beauty of the area. Three dams are threatening the area are rated, by the Councils' "Scenic River Report", as the most beautiful stretch of river in the Georgia Piedmont.

Some 33 persons including eight doctors of geology, biology, botany and archeology went along on this trip. A report of their observations will be forwarded to the Natural Areas Council and then compiled into one massive report to be sent to the Council on Environmental Quality in Washington, D. C.

In taking this action, it is hoped by members of the council that the construction of the dams will be blocked and that an area of rare scenic beauty will be allowed to continue.

It cannot be said that the trip was all work and no play as the returning engineers testified. The first camp-out at Pasley Shoals was made bearable by an endless supply of filet mignon. The evening of the second day at the trip's end was spent at a resort near Thomaston, with swimming in a spring fed pool and buffet supper.

Mini-Bruts

The Mini-Bruts from Panama City along with the Crusade from Panama City and the Black Dogs from Atlanta are currently entertaining at various clubs at Fort Benning. While at Fort Benning they plan to donate a portion of their time to come to Martin Army Hospital and perform for the patients Aug. 29.

Engineer's legal clerk is lawyer

By Keith Harmon

The draft, regardless of how controversial an issue it has become, has benefited the Army by bringing into its ranks a group of educated, mature young men that may not have otherwise served in the Armed Forces. A case in point is Sp4 Dennis Hauser, the legal clerk of the 931st Engineer Group.

Hauser, 26, is as qualified as any legal clerk after receiving some 19 years of formal education. A full-fledged lawyer, Hauser graduated from the University of California, Los Angeles in 1969 and before entering the Army in November of that year he successfully passed the rigid California Bar examination.

The native Californian received a history degree from Loyola University in Los Angeles in 1968 before studying law at U.C.L.A., and prides himself in the fact that he supported himself through college by managing a chain of restaurants specializing in inexpensive hamburgers.

After combat training at Ft. Ord., Calif., the personable lawyer served as company clerk for the 524th Pers. Svc. Co., 931st Engr. Gp. for 14 months. In April of this year he made the move from company clerk to senior legal clerk for the engineer group. That change of jobs, Hauser feels, was a step in the right direction.

"I get to watch attorneys in action now," he said, "and that is good experience for me. Also, we have a tremendous work load in the legal section and I have to discipline myself to do it. That too is good."

Hauser's role within the 931st is sometimes more clerical than anything else, but he becomes a particularly important member of the legal staff during courts martial. He prepares and checks for accuracy the "charge sheets" (forms which list the charges lodged against the accused soldier) so that commanding officers can study each case to decide if a court martial is warranted. During court martial proceedings, he records the testimonies in an abbreviated form and prepares the type written accounts of the entire court proceedings.

Most of the cases he's seen since coming to the legal section are AWOL offenses. Hauser said approximately 80 per cent of the legal actions of his office involve persons absent without authorization, and the next largest group of offenses involve failures to obey orders.

He plans to separate from the Army soon to begin practicing law in Southern California, and as he neared his approaching separation date the California counselor reflected upon his experiences as a junior legal clerk:

"As Army jobs go it's a very busy one, and at times a very discouraging one because you see the same people coming back over and over again. They keep going AWOL time and again. It gets discouraging at times because the purpose of punishment should never be retribution, but instead rehabilitation. Unfortunately, the present system of punishment is doing very little to rehabilitate," the stocky blond commented.

Hauser is confidently optomistic that military justice is as fair and impartial as civilian courts, but he does concede that certain basic differences occur.

"First of all there's no getting around the old bugaboo: Military justice does, to a certain extent, promote discipline. For example, it's hard for me to conceive AWOL as a criminal offense, whereas in civilian life what we would be talking about would be someone simply not showing up for work. That person would probably eventually be fired. However, in the military the same with a criminal offense, and some people may argue that that isn't justice . . ."

In further comparing the civilian and military courts, the legal eagle said that in cases involving more serious crimes the punishments levied by civilian judges are very similar to those given by military courts. He said, for example, that a reduction in pay grade would be equivalent to the fines and imprisonment charged to offenders in civilian courts.

In talking to Hauser one can observe that everything he says is well thought out and sometimes bluntly to the point. He's very deliberate in his speech, a trait that is probably the result of many years of concentrated effort to achieve that famed "court room charm." "Ever since high school I wanted to be a lawyer," he commented, "and I'm glad that I had a good working relationship with my draft board. They extended my induction so that I could graduate and then later pass the bar exam. I can't say I'm grateful for being drafted, but I am grateful for the consideration they gave me."

In spite of his heavy work load, the lawyer manages to find enough spare time to golf about twice a week after work hours and play a game or two of basketball to keep in shape. Those who compete against him say that whatever prowess he lacks as a hoopster he more than mkpes up for on the greens. He scores consistently in the high 70's and low 80's, and insists his golf average has suffered greatly since entering the Army.

Airborne is a family thing

For the 373 members of Airborne Class 4-72 it was an exhilarating fifth and final jump. It meant the end of a tough three weeks and the award of the coveted "jump wings."

There was one member whose sense of completion not only spanned himself, but his entire family.

2nd Lt. Patrick C. Connor is the fourth member of his family to complete Airborne training. He was preceded by his father, Brig. Gen. (ret.) William Connor and two older brothers.

Gen. Conner was present at the Lawson Army Air Field ceremony as a guest of the Jump Committee. He briefly addressed the graduates and awarded his son his jump wings.

In 1951 while on active duty Gen. Connor began his jump training. The Korean conflict intervened and it was not until 1963 that he was able to complete his training.

From 1963 to 1964 he made 15 jumps with the 8th Division. He retired in 1966 and is now residing in Charleston, S.C.

Lt. Connor's two brothers were also jump qualified. William, Jr., and Armor captain, is at Fort Knox, Kentucky, and James W., a Warrant Officer Candidate, lost his life in a helicopter training accident.

Before coming to Fort Benning for jump training 2nd Lt. Connor had been and R. O. T. C. summer camp instructor at Fort Sill, OK.

He will proceed to Fort Bliss, Tex. for the Air Defense Artillery Basic Officer's Course before beginning a tour of duty in Germany.

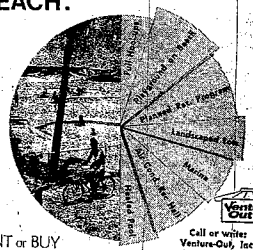
Army information board up

An Army Physical Fitness Evaluation Information Board has been erected by the Conditioning, Combatives, and Drill Committee of the Leadership Department on Watson Field. This display board will contain information pertaining to resident course students and staff and faculty attaining maximum scores of 500 points on the physical fitness test. Other information depicted will include the highest class average for NCOC, OCS, IOBC, and IOAC classes. On July 21, OC 18-71, 50th Company, achieved the highest APFE class average to date with a total cumulative score of 441 points of the Staff and Specialist Physical Fitness Test.

Management group to hold luncheon

The Armed Forces Management Association (AFMA) will hold a buffet luncheon at the Supper Club on Sept. 2 according to its publicity chairman, Col. Malcolm R. Baer.

A social hour beginning at 11:30 a.m. will be followed by lunch at noon. Guest speaker for the regular monthly association meeting will be Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, Fort Benning commander.



The Armed Forces Management Association is a national, non-profit, professional organization dedicated to the improvement of management at all levels in the Defense establishment. Membership is composed of both civilian and military management personnel. The Fort Benning chapter is one of 70 chapters and corporate members nationwide.

Voice of VOLAR

- The effect of the Modern Volunteer Army on diseipline is a paradox. Some officers and noncommissioned officers believe discipline has deteriorated. But several morale indicators show the opposite.
- A nightclub opened for soldiers in grades E1-E4 has proved highly successful. Some 275 soldiers use the facility daily.

Major swears niece, nephew into services

Maj. William S. Spies of the Infantry Agency Combat Developments Command at Fort Bennnng will officiate at ceremonies next month swearing a niece into the Army Nurse Corps and a nephew into the Air Force.

Rosalie M. Ewing, a participant in the Walter Reed Army Institute of Nursing (WRAIN) Program, will be sworn in by her uncle on Sept. 1 in Baltimore, Md. She is one of approximately 170 high school students selected to be a part of the Army nursing program. While participating, she will attend classes at the University of Maryland for two years followed by transfer for two additional years of training and practical work experience at the Nursing Institute.

Upon graduation from the program, she will be commissioned as a second lieutenant and registered nurse in the Army Nurse Corps. While in school she will hold the rank of private first class.

On Sept. 15, Spies will administer the oath of office to Rosalie's older brother, William B. Ewing Jr. He will be commissioned as a second lieutenant in the Air Force after successful completion of the Officer Training Course (OTC) at Lackland Air Force Base in San Antonio, Tex. Ewing is a graduate of George Washington University where he received a bachelor of science degree in mathematics.

Under the Air Force College option program, Ewing and other qualified college graduates are eligible to receive Air Force commissions after completion of OTC. Ewing will be stationed at Mather Air Force Base in Sacramento, Calif. for navigator training.

The brother and sister are two of nine children of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Ewing St. of Easton, Maryland.

ZAP!
Army Green Beret Marks Enemy Target with Laser Target Designator

New laser gun pinpoints enemy positions

The Army is now testing a laser gun which would let a soldier pinpoint enemy targets for airstrikes without giving away his position.

Supporting aircraft would carry air-to-ground missiles that would also be guided by the same laser beam.

Once the special aircraft were overhead, the soldier on the ground would merely aim his laser gun at the enemy target, sending out a narrow beam of invisible light. The plane would launch a missile in the general area of the target. The missile would then lock onto the laser beam and follow it for a direct hit.

The device is the Laser Target Designator and is now being tested by the U.S. Army Combat Developments Command (CDC) in a program called SIAF — Small Independent Action Forces.

The SIAF experiment, being conducted at Ft. Ord, Calif., puts Army Green Beret reconnaissance forces together with Marine and Navy forces in an intensive simulated combat situation where they employ the 26-inch long, box-like device.

Name two of the most popular group life insurance programs for Armed Forces Officers.

1. SGLI 2.

We'd like to fill you in on the other one.

Chances are you probably have Serviceman's Group Life Insurance; $15,000 coverage for $3 a month, guaranteed by the U.S. Government. You know it's a good beginning for your total insurance program. But do you know about the other low cost group life insurance program for officers?

As a member of the Armed Forces Relief and Benefit Association, you'll receive an additional $20,000 group life insurance coverage plus member benefits. It's a logical step when you're building your insurance program. Take a minute now and see why.

Here are the AFRBA facts.

Low-Cost Life Insurance
As an AFRBA member, you receive $20,000 group life insurance coverage for just $9 a month, $12.50 a month if you're a flying officer. And, annual refunds reduce the cost to members even more.

AFRBA's low cost plus the refunds reduced the annual net cost for each thousand dollars of insurance in 1970 to just $2.95; $5.24 for flying officers. Compare this cost per thousand of group life insurance and you'll find out why AFRBA is one of the largest organizations of its kind in the world. All AFRBA members have the same coverage, regardless of age, rank, length of service or duty station.

Worldwide Coverage
No war restriction once you join.

Emergency Death Benefit
Immediate payment of $2,000 upon notification of death.

Optional Dependents Program
For just $1.50 a month, you can cover all of your eligible family members.

Continuous Record of Refunds
Each year since AFRBA was founded in 1947, active duty members have received a refund. Although they cannot be guaranteed, refunds are determined by the Board of Directors based on the year's operations and the dividends received from the Underwriters.

Educational and Emergency Loans
Members are eligible for low interest (simple 5% interest) loans for educational and emergency purposes.

Retired and Separated Program
AFRBA has a special program for members when they retire or separate after at least one year of active duty membership.

Here's How To Join. If you're a commissioned or warrant officer on active duty, in good health, and not presently receiving hostile fire pay or under orders to a hostile fire area, you're eligible to join now. (After you become a member, your insurance coverage is in effect regardless of where you're stationed or the cause of death.)

There are many associations and organizations which can sell you insurance; but there's only one Armed Forces Relief and Benefit Association. Get all the facts. Just mail this coupon today. No obligation; no salesman will call. You'll soon see why 68,000 Armed Forces officers have chosen AFRBA to round out their insurance and benefit program.

Scheduled airlines insist on military uniforms

Why is it that a Service member traveling on a scheduled airline must wear his uniform while on pass or leave?

The Military Traffic Management and Terminal Service (MTMTS) has discussed the question with the air industry, pointing out that it forces the member to carry extra clothing, only in order to take advantage of the reduced fare.

Airline officials further state that identification of military standbys becomes particularly critical at flight departure in view of the limited time available after it has been determined that standby seats are available.

FORT BENNING PLANS LABOR DAY ACTIVITIES

Fort Benning personnel who remain on post over the Labor Day holiday weekend will have plenty of interesting activities to occupy their time. Most recreation facilities on post have made special plans for the holiday which will be observed Sept. 4, 5 and 6.

Activities and events have been planned to capture the interest of all segments of the post population. Athletic tournaments, arts and crafts contests, special entertainment at the various post clubs and even an outdoor sale of Post Exchange merchandise are some of the things planned in an effort to keep as many people as possible off dangerous highways during this last and most dangerous holiday of the summer season.

Softball Tournament.

Special Services will sponsor a slow-pitch softball tournament. Games will be played Sept. 4,5 and 6 at Post Softball Fields #1 and 2 on Ingersol Street. All major units and separate organizations have been invited to enter teams of any grouping. The winning team will be determined by elimination. For additional information call 545-1516.

Bowling

Post Bowling Alleys will remain open all night on Sept. 4 and 5 and until midnight on Sept.6. Tournaments, open to all bowlers will be held throughout the holiday period and more than $150 will be awarded tournament winners. Call 545-7580 for more details.
