The fort joins Ft. Carson, Colo., Fort Benning and Ft. Ord, Calif., as a test site for the new programs designed to increase efficiency and improve the attractiveness of Army life.

Lt. Gen. John J. Tolson, XVIII Airborne Corps commanding general, said the post has been allocated $3 million to develop and participate in the programs.

"We will place emphasis on a few projects which will keep the soldier with his unit so that he will gain maximum benefit from unit training and which will eliminate some of the menial details which are most distasteful to him," said the general.

These projects will be applied post-wide to benefit the greatest possible number of men in all units. Some of the proposed projects will result in hiring additional civilian labor.

As additional money becomes available, efforts will be concentrated on improving the living conditions of the soldier in the barracks to give him greater comfort and more privacy, commented the general.

mainder of the bunker line.

He was wounded a second time by shrapnel when he destroyed a bunker, but he continued the attack until the friendly forces had routed the enemy.

He personally is credited with eliminating several key positions and inspiring the assault that regained control of Hill 352.

The citation reads in part, "His extraordinary heroism at the risk of his own life, above and beyond the call of duty, was in keeping with the highest standards of the military service and reflects great credit on him, the Americal Division and the U. S. Army."

McCleery also has received the Silver Star, Bronze Star and Army Commendation Medals. He currently resides at Fort Benning with his wife Lena and their seven children.

Processing

tag section.

Another innovation that the processing center offers the incoming soldier is the major unit representative.

When a man completes his in-processing at the center, he talks with the representative of his new unit. The representative tells the man where to report and arranges transportation.

Once the interview is complete, the man heads to his unit, via transportation furnished either by the processing center or his new unit. The man returns to the center two duty days later for some final processing. It is hoped this return visit soon be he eliminated.

The processing center is handling about 60 men each day, but can handle many more, Wiest said.

And it's certain that the treatment surprises each man and gets his assignment at Fort Benning off on the right foot.

Explosive situation

Ammo checker, Sp4 Karlyc Riles, 608th Ord. Co., 31st Engr. Gp. supervises the loading of munitions by members of the Infantry School Motor Committee. Careful surveillance is needed to regulate the handling, storage and issuance of munitions and the return of spent casings. In January 566 tons of munitions were issued to Fort Benning units.

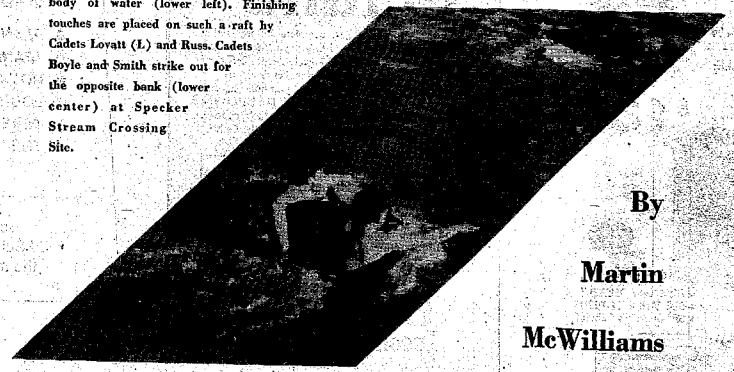
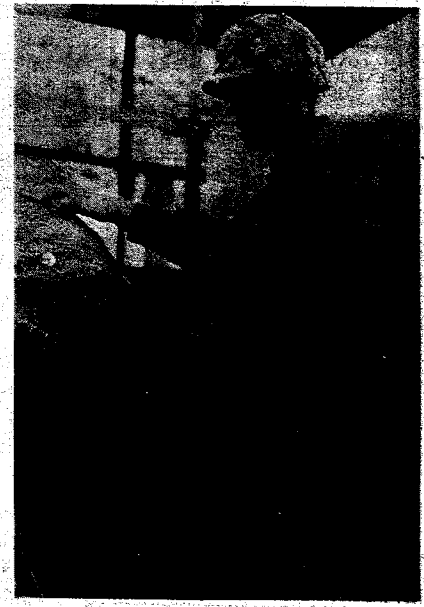
Wofford collegians take Infantry training 'holiday'





Despite the chill of a cold day, Cadet Suddarth (L) and NCOC Williams Sadler make their way back across a pontoon bridge (above) to the near bank following a successful stream crossing. Cadet Suddarth balances a section of log on his knees (below) as he prepares to pass it to the teammate in foreground. Attempt failed when the log slipped into the pool of water below.

By Martin McWilliams

Five youthful researchers on a working holiday were extended the hospitality of the Infantry School during January, in a different sort of student exchange program.

Wofford College, of Spartanburg, S.C., gives its students a four-week post Christmas break each year, during which they are expected to produce a personal research project.

Merle Russ, Brian Lovatt, Mark Smith, Franklin Sudderth and Charlie Boyle, who are all Reserve Officer Training Course cadets and who range in age from 18 to 21, became interested in leadership problems as topics for their projects. Through their Department of Military Science, the cadets contacted the Leadership Department of the Infantry School, and were invited to Fort Benning.

The cadets spent an active, often tiring week engaging in 'hands-on' leadership training, participating in instruction presented to Infantry School students, in addition to receiving briefings and partcipating in leadership seminars.

What if supply sergeants wrote fairy tales?

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following story is a reprint of an article printed in an Air Force newspaper in Pleiku, the Republic of Vietnam.)

Once upon a time, there lived a female whose nomenclature was Hood, Red Riding, Little. She was a girl, little, happy. Her duty uniform was as follows: (1) dress, red, cotton, shade 76, 1 each; (2) cape, red, w-hood, 1 each. Her MOS was Food handler.

The msg read as follows:

FM: Granny

TO: Hood

This is to advise hospital report should read: Confined to qtrs as of 1000, 15 August 69. Went on sick call, confined for indefinite period. However, feeling somewhat better. Love, relative type, mother grand, your.

Hood sent the following reply: Ref your msg. Basic communications complied with. ETA your station approx. 1600 hrs, local this date. Please bake cookies, ginger type, w-nuts, w-oicing.

Hood then signed out in the orderly room and departed homebound handcarrying the following items:

(b) Sandwich, salami, w-pickle and onion, w-o mustard and mayo.

While enroute to destination, pers concerned came to forest, thick, primeval. Suddenly out of the thicket, briar, emerged Wolf, bad, big, brown, 1 each who said, "Halt, who goes there and what are your last four?"

Hood answered, "4032, Hood, Red Riding, Little; I am on a mission looking for the qtrs of my mother, grand."

"It is just down the road, troop, turn left at Bldg. 2355," instructed the wolf.

"How do you have access to that info?" replied Hood.

"I am cleared for it, and have a need to know," says Wolf who then catches a bus to Granny's.

Upon arrival, Wolf, bad, big swallows Granny in one (1) gulp. Wolf, bad, big then polices the area, including butt cans, and jumps into the rack (initial issue type) and pulls on Granny's 146-92s.

Hood enters.

"Hello, mother, grand."

"The fool, stupid, little does not know that it is really me, the Wolf, bad, big," chuckles the Wolf.

"What big eyes, ears, nose and throat you have," exclaims Hood, Red Riding, Little.

"All the better to maintain maximum efficiency at minimum cost with Zero Defects," replies the Wolf.

Then . . . enter the Chopper, wood type, handsome, 1 each, and kills the Wolf with one blow, performs necessary surgical procedures to remove mother, grand, from stomach of Wolf, bad, big, reflecting credit upon nimself, the Woodchopper's Association, and the entire Fairy Tale racket.

With allowances for quarters and rations, they all live happily ever after.

Negative as to Wolf.

Libraries' Books

The following list of new books have been added to the collection of the Sayers Memorial (Main Post) Library.

James Anderson "The Assassin," a condemned man is offered a reprieve from the gallows if he will assassinate the president of a neighboring country. To insure his compliance, he is provided with a deadly drug which takes four months to operate.

Faith Baldwin, "Any Village." Dr. Blue Arrington and his first practice in the village of Little Oxford where they become involved in the lives of their patients and in the problems of alcoholism, drugs, abortion, and the generation gap.

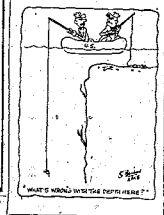
Nicholas Monsarrat, "Tribbles, Troubles." The madcap story of an all-girl air force, the Royal Air Force and the Luftwaffe, which culminates in the trial of strength that determined the outcome of World War II and the Battle of Britain.

Ward Just, "Military Men." An analysis of the American military, particularly the Army, and of the nature of the "career officer, whether PFC or Four Star General," by a first rate reporter.



Richard Lockridge, "Preach No More." Somewhere in the financially successful organization built by evangelist Jonathan Peratis there is a murderer and it is up to Lt. Nathan Chase of the New York City Police Department to find him.

Richard O'Connor, "Century Throne." The story of the royal couple imposed upon the Mexican people and buried into a revolution they could not understand.

Douglas Freeman, "Greatest Enemy." Hitler's Terrapin was the last ship to obey him until Commander Dalziel arrived.

Stephen Sedgeg, "Clare Boothe Luce." A definitive biography of one of America's most famous and controversial women: Clare Boothe Luce, author, playright, actress congresswoman, ambassador and friend of almost everyone worth knowing.

Peter Townsend, "Duel of Eagles." The story of two major air forces, the Royal Air Force and the Luftwaffe, which culminates in the trial of strength that determined the outcome of World War II and the Battle of Britain.

Synopsis

CATCH-22 (Rated R).

Based on Joseph Heller's enormously popular novel of World War II, "Catch-22," is the tale of a small group of flyers on a tight little island community in the Mediterranean.

The year is 1944. The theme is timeless. There are the winners, the losers, the opportunists, the survivors. Separately and together they are nervous, frightened, often profane and sometimes pathetic.

Almost all are a little crazy. And some are just very young. It is a mixture of administrative mayhem on the grand scale. And private perversity.

There are those who say so far and no further. The ones who mindlessly toe the line, others who step over it. The precious few who try to scuff it out.

"Catch 22" is as modern as a moonshot. And as old as anarchy.

TOGETHERNESS (Rated GP)

Nina is also from a Communist country and doesn't believe in Capitalism or Americans. Nina becomes involved with a fantastic Prince named Solomon Justiani (Peter Lawford).

THE BABY MAKER (Rated R).

With the money, Barbara is able to help her mother and grandmother.

Her hippy boy friend, Scott Glenn, can't stand the fact that Groom is supporting Barbara and himself. Barbara decides to move in with the couple, and the wife becomes so concerned about the child, she sometimes forgets that she's not the mother.

FLAP (Rated GP).

The story of the legal — but sardonically hilarious — efforts of a band of Indians to prove that Red is Redoubtable.

Anthony Quinn stars as a tough, hard-drinking Indian who laments the social and economic neglect of his people. His solution is to hijack a railroad train, claim Phoenix for his tribe and precipitate the Last Great Indian Uprising.

Ballot request needs to have party choice

Each year some members of the Armed Forces lose their right to vote in primary elections because they do not indicate a political party preference on their Federal Post Card Application for Absentee Ballot.

According to Department of Defense voting assistance officials, state voting officials must know the absentee voter's party preference before the proper ballot can be mailed.

In filling out absentee ballot applications for primaries, servicemen should remember to indicate their political party preference in Block 2. In almost every case, omission of this information prevents the serviceman from receiving an absentee ballot for a primary election.

Too fast or too slow can cause same results

When a motor vehicle accident is reported, many people naturally think high speed was involved.

"Speed is generally accepted as a major highway killer," said James E. Blount, chief of Fort Benning Accident Prevention. "There are many reasons why motorists are found to be driving too fast for conditions, and in violation of the posted speed laws," he said.

"One of the reasons is, of course, alcoholic beverage consumption. Another is a desire to reach a destination sooner, still another is enjoyment of riding in a fast moving vehicle," he commented.

"There is perhaps still another reason which bears discussion, that is to be able to pass the slow moving motorist.

"Slow moving motorists may not be involved in many accidents, but all too often they cause other drivers to become involved," Blount stated.

"Many drivers become disgusted after being forced to follow an extremely slow moving driver for long periods, and take a chance by attempting to pass at high rates of speed.

"All too often an attempt to pass is made in an area where ordinarily the passing driver would not attempt to pass. Many times the result is an accident," he said.

"Frequently a driver who has been forced to follow a slow moving vehicle for some time finally has an opportunity to pass. He does so at a higher than normal rate of speed. Then he continues his fast driving because he is either attempting to make up time lost by following the slow driver, or because he is emotionally upset with the chain of events, and takes his frustrations out by increasing his speed. The result many times is a tragic mishap," Blount explained.

"Maximum speed limits and minimum speeds are often posted and if observed, they do an effective job. Nevertheless, there is no substitute for common sense driving. A driver who is operating 10 to 20 miles slower than other traffic, may well be a greater hazard than the driver who is exceeding the speed limit by the same amount.

"Many of our Fort Benning motorists, both civilian and military, men as well as women are guilty of driving too slowly in some areas. This is especially true in the operation of privately owned vehicles," he added.

"A bit of extra attention to maintaining speed, an a desire to be more considerate for your fellow driver on the street or highway may well help prevent many serious automobile accidents in the future."

Track Vehicle Course graduates 55 students

Th distinguished honor graduate was Sp4 Edward P. Cravens Jr., Enid, Okla. The distinguished academic graduate was Sp4 Michael W. Bush, Pleasureville, Ky. The one honor graduate was Sp4 Dennis L. McShane, Pratt, Kan.

The seven-week mechanic's course provides personnel with a working knowledge to perform organizational maintenance and recovery of tracked vehicles.

Included in the course of instruction are engine principles, valve adjustments, cooling and lubricating systems, carburation and fuel injection.

While the students are attending the course here at Fort Benning they are assigned to the 15th Co., 1st Bn., TSB.

All three of the top graduates are National Guardsmen and they will report to their hometown unit's for assignment.

Gen. Talbott interview on WDAK

The Fort Benning commanding general, Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott will be featured on the WDAK (540mc) News Program "Pinpoint" this Sunday.

Gen. Talbott will be interviewed by WDAK news Director J. Edward Wilson about the Modern Volunteer Army (VOLAR) Project. "Pinpoint" runs from 12:05 p.m. to 12:30 p.m.

Dependents can obtain health benefits list

DENVER — CHAMPUS officials are reminding military dependents that they are entitled to receive a copy of DA Pamphlet 350-505, "Uniformed Services Health Benefits Program," when they are issued a new Uniformed Services Identification and Privilege Card, DD Form 1173, at an Army installation.

Under the provision of Army Regulation 606-5 issuing authorities are to furnish a copy of the pamphlet to dependents who are eligible for medical care at government expense when the identification card is prepared.

The pamphlet explains entitlements to medical care of both civilian facilities under the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed (CHAMPUS) and in uniformed services facilities.

Filing revisions may help soldiers

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Improved filing procedures may help servicemen when they complete their 1970 income tax forms.

Revisions include printing instructions separately, using the back of Form 1040 for tax computations, and printing some of the schedules back-to-back.

A new low-income allowance will save many people from paying income tax and reduce the tax for others. The allowance is computed in the optional tax tables.

The Tax Reform Act of 1969 will also provide these changes:

— All personal exemptions are increased from $600 to $625 for 1970.

— The optional tax tables have been extended to $10,000, eliminating the need for percentage tax computations by many who do not itemize their deductions.

— The tax surcharge was reduced to 5 per cent for the first half of 1970 and eliminated for the last half, reduced the surcharge rate for 1970 to 2.5 per cent.

— Also, returns are not required from single persons with income less than $1,700, nor generally are they required from married persons filing jointly with income less than $2,300. The figures are increased by $600 if the individual or his spouse is 65 or older, and by an additional $600 if both are 65 or older.

Local Internal Revenue Service offices will compute tax returns if the adjusted gross income is $20,000 or less, and consists only of wages or salaries and tips, dividends, interest, pensions and annuities, and the standard deduction is used.

Hurricanes hold lead into season's 2nd half

Youth Activities basketball in the PeeWee League opened the second half of play with the League leading Hurricanes defeating the Roadrunners by a 30-23 game score.

The Hurricanes and Roadrunners were deadlocked at 14-14 when halftime rolled around. However the final outcome and the second half belonged to the Hurricanes as they hit for 16 points while the Runners were hitting for nine points.

Hurricane Tim Booth took runnerup game scoring honors with eight points and his teammates, David Driskill, Junior Lee and Bill Jackson, netted five points each. The winners' total also included two points each by Hurricanes Dennis Yancy, Jeffrey Dean and John Brown and a free throw by Keith Book.

Roadrunner Bob Heaukulani took game scoring honors with 18 points and his teammates added the final five points with Mike Hallinan scoring three points and Ken Robinson netting two points.

Defensively the Roadrunners' Jim Pawlik played an excellent game and the Hurricanes' Allen Moring, Jay Wright, William Lowry and Billy Edwards grabbed several rebounds and made key steals to help their team to victory.

In the week's second game the Miniguns dropped the Raiders by a 23-12 count as Gilbert Jenkins hit for 18 points and game scoring honors. Minigunner Dave Coggins swished four points and Steve Timm and William Finch hit two points each for their team.

Raider Everett Garrett zeroed in for eight points for runnerup game scoring honors and Thomas Jones and Charles Jones hit for two points each.

The defensive play of Raider Donald Miller helped keep his team within striking distance and the defensive ability of Tommy Durham aided the Miniguners throughout the game.

In the week's closest contest the Hornets came from behind to score a 33-30 win over the Globetrotters. At halftime the Trotters held a 16-13 lead on the scoring ability of Cal Griffin and David Ehrhart, who finished the game with 12 and 10 points respectively. At the end of the game the scorebook also showed Trotter Dewey Caulder zipping in seven points and Chris Fountain hitting a free throw.

Hornet Gus Schneider tallied 13 points and took game scoring honors, followed by eight points from Jim Dorchak and six points hit by John Dorchak. The winners were also helped by the scoring ability of Kevin Grice who netted four points and Jeff Atkinson who had two points. Defensively, Hornet Mike Glazier played an outstanding game.

By Bob Wise

The Cougars (Co. C, 1st Bn., 58th Inf., 197th Inf. Bde.) wound up the Fort Benning Company-level Basketball Tournament, Feb. 25, with the USAIC trophy for first place and a 77-74 win over Co. C, 43rd Engr. Bn.

Not even a 35-point performance by Thurman Ford and a third-quarter rally could deny the Cougars the championship.

The Cougars jumped out to a 26-16 first-quarter lead. Dave Westerfield stole the ball three times and turned each into a layup in the final two minutes of the first quarter. At the half, the 58th was leading by 14 points.

The 43rd Engr. Bn. team started a crushing drive in the third quarter. With 44 seconds left in the quarter the Engineers had closed the scoring gap to two points. At the end of the third quarter, the Cougars were leading 67-53.

A layup by Cougar Will Brockington three seconds into the final quarter gave the 58th a six-point lead. The Engineers matched points for the next six minutes gradually closing the margin back to three.

The Engineers scored three more times in the final 25 seconds, but were overcome on the scoreboard by three points, 77-74, and had to settle for the runner-up spot.

Ford's 35 points were the highest scored in the championship game. Steve Dostal, also of the 43rd Engineers, was second-highest with 20 points.

Will Brockington was high man for the Cougars with 19 points. He was followed by Slim Ingram with 17. John Black and Spencer Williams finished with 12 points each.

On the previous night, the Engineers made their way into the finale with the Cougars by defeating the Bearcubs (Co. A, 197th Spt. Bn.), 105-92. The Bearcubs were the champions of the 197th Inf. Bde., but had to settle for the second runner-up spot in the post play-off. The Bearcubs had also been crowned 197th Inf. Bde. football champions and, again, took the second runner-up spot in the post play-off of that sport.

Numerous ball-handling errors and an ice-cold shooting percentage kept the Bearcubs out of the race for the finals. At the half, the Engineers had obtained a 53-39 advantage.

The Bearcubs mounted several drives in the final two quarters, but could never come any closer than eleven points. Midway through the third quarter, the Bearcubs were down 22 points.

Sam Bolding of the Bearcubs was the game's high scorer with 29 points. Four other Bearcubs finished in double figures. Don Campbell had 16 points. Kelley Boyum had 12. Ken Mahoney and Al Ward finished with 11 points each.

Four players on the Engineering team scored above 20 points. Terry Smith had 26, Glen Dowdell had 25, Thurman Ford finished with 23, and Steve Dostal ended up with 22 points.

Two exciting games also preceded the final two games and the Cougars sent the 43rd Engr. Bn team into the loser's bracket, 84-69. The Bearcubs kept their title hopes alive the same night, coming from behind to slip past 81st Company, The School Brigade (TSB), 65-62.

The Georgia Game and Fish Commission has announced the spring season for turkey gobblers. The season for Chattahoochee County which includes the Fort Benning reservation will be from March 27 through April 24. Chattahoochee was one of only 29 counties in Georgia considered to have a turkey population large enough to warrant an open season this year.

The spring season for gobblers on the Alabama portion of the reservation will run from March 20 to April 26.

The turkey population on post and throughout all of Alabama and Georgia has been very poor for the last five years. Prior to that time many signs of turkey could be seen on just a short hike through the woods. Now the sighting of a turkey track is a rarity.

The turkeys became hard to find on the reservation about the same year that the 1st Cavalry tests were being conducted here, and a lot of people thought that the numerous helicopters had chased them off the reservation. Since then shortages in the population have been reported throughout this section of the country. Each year since 1965 it has been questionable whether or not Georgia and Alabama will hold open seasons.

The season limit is one gobbler per hunter. This applies to the entire reservation. A hunter cannot take one bird from the Alabama side and one bird from the Georgia side. All kills will immediately be tagged with a state turkey stamp, and if they were bagged on post they must be reported to the post Fish and Wildlife Unit at building 5843, Harmony Church.

The reports of turkey kills during the open season has a lot to do with the state and post plans for future seasons. The Fish and Wildlife people don't depend entirely on these results for their decision, but with the population in most areas being so marginal the kill during the coming season could be the deciding factor in the decision next year.

The turkey season will wind up the hunting for the 1970-1971 season. The quail, rabbit and squirrel seasons ended last Saturday. Roy Johnson, chief of the post Fish and Wildlife Unit, would like quail hunters to call him and give him a report on the number of quail killed on the reservation. Reports can be phoned to him at 545-6120.

Hunting and Fishing Licenses

The 1970-1971 hunting and fishing licenses expire March 28. Their cost in Georgia may increase next season. The Georgia House of Representatives has passed a bill to this effect. If the Senate approves it without change the hunting license will go from $3.25 to $4.25 and fishing licenses from $2.25 to $3.25.

The bill would also require purchase of a $2 stamp for mountain trout and $3.25 for a big game stamp for deer, bear and turkey. A regular license would be required with the big game or mountain trout stamp.

According to Joe Tanner, director of the Georgia Game and Fish Commission the additional funds obtained from these increases will be used to establish a salt water patrol squad for coastal areas, construction of a new trout hatchery in North Georgia and development of seven new game management areas throughout the state.

Post team readies for Army tournament

The Fort Benning basketball team has two exhibition games scheduled with the Fort McClellan, Ala. team at Briant Wells Field House this weekend.

The first game will be played Saturday evening at 7 p.m. The second will start Sunday, at 1 p.m.

Both games are part of the Benning team's preparation for the Third Army Basketball Championships which are to be played here Mar. 15 through 20.

According to Bob Greene, coach of the doughboy team, the starting positions for the Fort Benning team are now pretty firm. His forwards are Edward Havens, Don Seales and Ingram Addison. The guards are Michael Beckelhimer, Donald Townsend, James Rix and John Black. At center he has Charley Brown and George Robinson. In addition Greene, who has had quite a bit of Army basketball experience, can fit in as either a guard or a forward.

As final preparation for the Army championships the team will play in the Bibb City Invitational tournament in Columbus next week.

Pro golfer to conduct clinic here

Golf professional Howard Holbrook and assistant professional Bill Dudley will conduct a golf clinic for women at the Fort Benning Country Club March 2, 4, 5, 9 and 11.

The clinic, designed for beginners, will feature two lessions with woods, two with irons and a session on chipping, pitching, sand shots and putting.

Golf clubs, balls and other necessary equipment will be furnished by the professionals.

For additional information telephone 545-4120 or drop by the counter at the Country Club Pro Shop.

DISCUSS TEST MODEL M-16
MSgt. Donald Baker (R) Of Weapons Dept.; Lt. Col. Dale Red, Project Officer; SSgt. Shelva Smith, Marksmanship Ordnance Section

The veteran is the battle-tested M 16 Rifle. The "check-up" includes a five-phase accuracy evaluation test at the Marksmanship Training Unit under the supervision of project officer, Lt. Col. Dale S. Red.

The rifle is not being tested to disclaim or place doubt on any of its battle-won successes but to complete a two-fold Army project. The first purpose of this project is to study how the rifle can have increased potential to engage combat type targets up to 300 meters while the second mission is to disclose what can be done to make the M-16 more compatible with present marksmanship training programs.

A rapid-fire weapon, the M-16 was adapted as the Army's standard rifle replacing the M-14 in 1967. It has won many an Infantryman's acclaim due to its high velocity, hitting power and rapid fire for area coverage. In the jungles of Vietnam, the range was not essential and the rifles seldom engaged targets in the range of 300 meters or greater.

In conducting the tests, the Marksmanship Training Unit is making an extensive examination of four factors which determine the success of the M-16 in the Marksmanship Training Program. They are looking into the ammunition used in the weapon, the individual weapon itself, the training program as presently outlined and the individual soldier.

Accuracy tests on the weapon are being performed by the Marksmanship Training Unit with close coordination of the Weapons Department of the Infantry Center, the U.S. Army Infantry Board, Project Manager of the M-16 at Weapons Command and with the Small Arms Systems Agency at Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md. Action is also closely coordinated with Colt Small Arms Company, the manufacturer of the weapon.

Gebhart academic graduate

Sgt. Maj. George H. Hamill, command sergeant major, 2nd Stu. Bn., TSB, spoke to the graduating class.

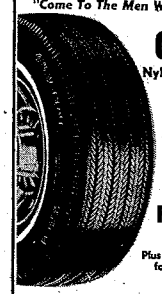
Gebhart has been assigned to the 197th Infantry Brigade.

Post Office to cut forwarding time



The Postal Service plans to adopt a suggestion from major mailers to shorten the forwarding time for mail from two years to one and provide carriers with more time to devote to their regular route deliveries.

The plan will reduce daily time-consuming duties of letter carriers who must now "mark-up" mail for forwarding to persons long-gone from their routes to other addresses.

The one-year forwarding period will allow a reasonable opportunity for those who have moved to notify all of their regular correspondents of their new addresses, postal officials explained.

The proposed rules also shorten the period for which mail may be retained at the post office by addressee's request from 60 to 30 days to free needed space that may hamper daily operations.

Both actions are expected to increase efficiency by reducing the elaborate filing procedures required for forwarding.

Helps you to protect monthly pay

Check wallet, then you might want to get checks

By Leg Hauser

It's the end of the month and a pay day. You've just gotten back to the bay from a much deserved night on the town and you are happy to find that you have most of your paycheck left. You tell yourself you'll have to put the rest of your money in the bank soon.

But for now, it's late and you're tired. So you just throw your pants and billfold on the floor beside your bunk. The next morning you will find that you have been robbed. Robbed of almost a whole month's pay.

This story is repeated far too many times on an Army post. In the last two months alone, Fort Benning has experienced more than 300 such incidents involving $50 or less. A spokesman for the Provost Marshall's Office says that 90 per cent of such crimes on post are preventable.

Then why do they happen? There are undoubtably many factors involved in crimes of this sort. But perhaps the one largest contributing factor is the practice of many soldiers of keeping large sums of money in their wallet.

Let's review this story again. But this time we'll follow a soldier who was just a little bit smarter.

Everything happened just the same, only in this case what was stolen was not a handful of crisp 10 and 20 dollar bills, but rather, a bookful of personalized checks; checks which require detailed identification to cash, checks which will prove to be next to worthless to the would-be thief.

Our smart soldier will be a lot less worried when he discovers the robbery on Saturday morning. He will simply notify his local bank that the checks have been stolen. This alerts the bank officials so they can set aside his account for special surveillance and keep from honoring a forged check. In most cases this in turn relieves the individual of any responsibility.

A spokesman for a local bank points out that this procedure can be applied only to personalized checking accounts. Blank checks can not be monitored in the same way. He explained that all the signatures on personalized checks are automatically compared with the account's signature card. If there is any discrepency between the check signature and that on the card, the check will not be honored by the bank.

In addition to the obvious advantages of a personal checking account — safety and convenience — cancelled checks also are recognized as a bona fide legal receipt of payment.

Also, under Army Regulation 37104-2 the Army makes provisions for the individual to have his paycheck sent directly to a specified bank account rather than receive his check on payday and have to deposit it personally.

Under the Benning Plan of the volunteer army (VOLAR) check cashing on post has been made easier by requiring a minimum amount of information. VOLAR is also responsible for giving the soldier a half day off for pay day activities.

All of these programs combined leave no excuse for a soldier to carry large sums of money on his person and risk being the victim of a robbery.

Meets general

James B. Williams (R), president of the First National Bank and Trust Company of Augusta, Ga., and 3rd Army civilian aide from Georgia to the secretary of the Army is greeted by Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, Fort Benning commander, when 3rd Army civilian aides held a conference at the post. While at Fort Benning, the aides were briefed on the Modern Volunteer Army program and other Army matters.

British jumpers

If these two British soldiers, Sgt. John McCormick (L) and Sgt. Doug Chivers, look a little more relaxed than their fellow trainees in 43rd Co., 4th Stn. Bn. (Abn.), TSB, it's because they have many jumps behind them. McCormick, a veteran of 14 years, is a member of Guards (Indep. Para Co.), while Sgt. Chivers has served nine years and is a member of 3rd Para Battalion. After their graduation from Airborne, both men will go through the Ranger and Pathfinder courses.

Thanks officer for helpfulness

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following story is a revision of an article printed in the "Good News" column of the Feb. 24 Columbus Ledger. It is a first person account by an unidentified person of an accident in which a Fort Benning officer showed his concern for a fellow human being.)

"On Feb. 9 my two small daughters and myself were involved in an accident with the other driver at fault and leaving the scene without stopping.

"A 1st Lt. John J. Grindville from the Ranger Department at Fort Benning followed him and got his license number and gave it to the police. Mrs. Dean Williams left her car, came over and tended to my children to make sure they weren't injured. She comforted them and stopped their crying.

"Another gentleman, Mr. Pike, had witnessed the accident and came over and talked to the police.

"Through the actions of the lieutenant, the driver was located by the police a short time after the accident.

"To each of these people I want to say thank you from the bottom of my heart and God bless you.

"It's good news to know there are some people who care enough to become involved and to help when and where they are needed."

Small businessmen, salesmen have tax similarities

Income tax and you

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the sixth in a series on ways you can save on your Federal income tax returns this year. The articles are written by Henry Block, president of H and R Block, Inc., America's largest tax service.)

Many small businessmen, salesmen and other taxpayers are tossing away a portion of their yearly income because they are unaware of the tax laws regarding special deductions available to them.

An outside salesman (who does the bulk of his selling away from his employer's principal place of business) is allowed to take his travel, entertainment and sales expenses as an adjustment to gross income. After subtracting his adjustments and arriving at adjusted gross income, he has the option of deducting his personal itemized deductions on Schedule A or electing any of the standard deductions available to him.

The self-employed person is in a similar position because he (small businessman, doctor, lawyer, etc.) also deducts the costs of earning his living on schedule C before arriving at adjusted gross income.

OFFICE IN YOUR HOME

If you maintain an office in your home (for example, a doctor's office or salesman's office, when his employer does not provide him with office space) you may be able to deduct that portion of your home expenses attributable to your office space. If you own your home, you should keep records, of your expenses for utilities, insurance, interest and real estate taxes and deduct that proportionate share which goes for your office. For example, if your office occupies 400 square feet out of a total of 1,600 square feet, you can deduct one-fourth of these expenses. Remember that taxes and interest are also deductible as itemized deductions and cannot be taken twice. If you rent your home, you apply the same fraction to your monthly rental payments.

TRAVEL EXPENSES

Many people who travel on their jobs have few out-of-pocket expenses, being reimbursed for transportation, meals, lodging, entertainment, etc., by their employers. However, any traveling expenses for which they are not reimbursed can be claimed as an income tax deduction providing such expenses are ordinary and necessary to their business. In any case, careful records of such travel expenses must be maintained in order to establish their validity in the face of an inquiry by the Internal Revenue Service.

BUSINESS DRIVING

If you rent a car for business use, the business portion of your car rental expenses are deductible. If you use your own car, certain ground rules also must be followed. You must allocate the amount of miles driven on business and separate the business miles from those which represent personal use of your automobile. The best way of doing this is by keeping a diary and recording your mileage before and after a business trip. By doing this you can determine the actual percentage of your business miles. This percentage should be applied against all of your automobiles expenses to determine the amount of the allowable business deduction.

Some allowable auto expenses are gas, oil, insurance, licenses, repairs, tires, batteries, garage rent, washing, finance charges, etc. In addition you are allowed to deduct depreciation.

When you purchase an asset which will last you more than one year, you are not allowed to deduct the entire cost of that asset in the first year, as this would not accurately reflect the use that you are getting out of it in future years. Therefore, any time that you purchase a business asset with a useful life of more than one year, you must depreciate it (spread your deductions out over the estimated life of the asset).

For example, John Smith purchases a car which he will use in his business. He estimates that he will use it for three years and that at the end of the three year period it will have a value of $800. He paid $2,900 for the car, leaving an amount of $2,100 to be deducted over the three-year period in the form of depreciation. Following the "straight-line" method of depreciation (one of several available methods) the annual deduction for depreciation would be $70.

Many people have neither the ambition nor the energy to save all of the receipts for gas, oil and other expenses pertaining to their car. For them there is some hope. The government allows an optional method of deducting mileage — 12 cents per mile for the first 15,000 miles and 9 cents per mile thereafter. If you use this method, you are not allowed any deductions for depreciation, repairs, etc. — the 12 cents per mile covers all of the expenses. Regardless of which method you use you are allowed to deduct your fees for parking and tolls.

If the optional method is used (12 cents per mile, etc.) the taxpayer can deduct the full amount of interest and the full amount of local sales or use tax on his car.

MIXING BUSINESS WITH PLEASURE

Many people who travel on business a great deal have found that they can combine their vacation with a business trip and realize fairly substantial tax savings. If the primary purpose of a trip is business, then all of your transportation expenses would be deductible and it is only necessary to subtract those expenses of a purely personal nature.

Suppose Charley flies from New York to Los Angeles on a business trip. He spends four days completing his business transactions and then spends an additional four days exploring the wonders of Disneyland before returning to New York. Since the primary purpose of the trip was business, Charley can deduct all of his ex-

Receives gift

Brig. Gen. R. J. Richards Jr., assistant comptroller of the Army for Finance and Comptroller Information Systems, receives a bayonet letter opener from Col. Robert W. Seaman, Fort Benning comptroller, during a recent visit on post. Gen. Richards, who also is commanding general of the U.S. Army Finance and Comptroller Information Systems Command, Washington, visited Fort Benning to discuss Army plans for a Joint Uniform Military Pay Systems (JUMPS-Army), a plan to pay soldiers twice a month.

Income tax and you

penses going to and from California, and his meals and lodging for the time he actually spent on business. The only portion of the trip that would not be deductible would be his meals and lodging while at Disneyland.

An exception to the above rule is found in the case of foreign travel. If your business-vacation takes you to a foreign country, a different rule applies, and if you spend less than 25 per cent of your total time on business, all of the expenses must be allocated between business and personal. In other words, if you go to Paris for 10 days and spend only two days on business, then you can deduct 20 per cent of your air fare and other expenses. Of course any business entertaining or other sales expenses can still be deducted so long as a justifiable business purpose is shown.

Junior soldiers to get counselled twice a year

Have you ever thought: "I wonder what the old man thinks of me and my work? Am I really doing what I am supposed to be doing? Why doesn't he ever say I am doing a good job or a bad job?"

In the past, about the only way you could find out these things was at the time an efficiency report was rendered for pro pay or for promotion. In most cases, this was a little late for you to do anything about correcting any deficiencies you had — but times are changing.

With the publication of Change 1, USAIC Cir 611-64, it is now a requirement, if you are in grade E6 and below, that you must be counselled at least once each six months and at the time an efficiency report is rendered.

At that time, you get to sit down with your supervisor and he tells you what he thinks of your performance and attitude. This is also an excellent time to clear up any misunderstandings which you and he may have as to policies and procedures.

This is another Modern Volunteer Army program designed to improve the workiog conditions and life style of you and the soldier.

Danials academic graduate

Sgt. W. A. Danials, Henrietta, Texas, was honored as the distinguished honor graduate and the academic graduate of the Noncommissioned Officer Candidate Class 501-71 (11B) in ceremonies Feb. 25 at Marshall Auditorium, Infantry Hall.

Sgt. David M. McClain, North Augusta, S.C., was the leadership graduate.

Sgt. Maj. Richard L. Childres, chief instructor, Brigade and Battalion Operations Department, USAIS, was the guest speaker at the graduation.

For his achievement Danials received a letter of commendation from Brig. Gen. John T. Carley, assistant commandant of the Infantry School, an engraved "Follow Me" plaque, an engraved "Follow Me" statuette, an an engraved Association of the United States Army plaque.

Danials and McClain were two of 184 new NCOC's graduating from the 84th Co., 8th Stu. Bn., TSB.

Danials will stay on with the 84th Co. as tactical NCO and McClain will report to the 4th Stu. Bn., TSB, for Airborne training.

Board employe promoted

Charles H. Costigan, civilian employe of the U.S. Army Infantry Board was promoted to the grade of GS13 in a ceremony held Feb. 19 in the office of Col. Charles B. Thomas, president of the Board.

Costigan also received a letter of commendation for his performance as equipment specialist in the Operations Division and as chief, Operations Division, from June 1969 to November 1970.

Costigan first came to he Infantry Board in 1961 as a lieutenant colonel Army. He served as chief of the Operations Division until his retirement from the Army in 1965. As a civilian capacity he was appointed chief of Operations in February 1969 after serving as an equipment specialist of the Division for a period of three years.

Samuelson honored graduate

2nd Lt. Charles W. Samuelson, Washington, D. C., was honored as the distinguished graduate and the leadership graduate of Infantry Officer Candidate School Class 7-71 in ceremonies Feb. 26 at Marshall Auditorium, Infantry Hall. 2nd Lt. Stephen F. Fulghum Jr., Tampa, Fla. was the academic graduate.

Brig. Gen. Federick C. Krause, assistant division commander, 1st Armored Division, Ft. Hood, Tex., was the guest speaker.

Samuelson and Fulghum each received a letter of commendation from Brig. Gen. John T. Carley, assistant commandant of the Infantry School, an engraved "Follow Me" plaque, an engraved "Follow Me" statuette and an engraved Association of the United States Army plaque.

Samuelson received his commission in the Infantry and Fulghum received his commission in the Corps of Engineers. They were two of the 103 graduates of the 52nd Co., 8th Stu. Bn., TSB.

55 scouts visit Leadership

A group of 55 boy scouts from Boy Scout Troop 27, Rome, Ga., and Troop 178 from Signal Mountain, Tenn., visited the Leadership Department, Feb. 27.

The boys spent two hours being briefed and observing and participating in varied activities of the Conditioning, Combatives and Drill Committee of the department.

The boys observed and participated in dismounted drill, saw a hand-to-hand and bayonet demonstration, were briefed and shown a demonstration of the obstacle course. They concluded their stay with the committee by being briefed and actually participating in physical training.

Some dependents now may eat in post mess halls

By Mike Keller

Fort Benning mess halls, long the exclusive eating domain of men in uniform, now may be dishing out portions to certain civilians as well.

As a result of a new Army-wide policy announced recently, major unit commanders can authorize dependents, relatives and guests of military personnel to dine more often in mess facilities.

This extension of mess privileges is another step in the Modern Volunteer Army (VOLAR) project to make Army life more attractive to soldiers and their families.

The new policy is designed to provide low-ranking servicemen who cannot afford to take their families "out to eat" on a regular basis with a place whose prices will fit their budget.

"Dependents and guests will have to pay only 80 cents per person for the dinner meal while supper will cost them 55 cents each," CW2 Robert L. Warren, post food adviser, said. "Even our 'short-order' course would cost them considerably more than this on the outside."

Although the new dining rules take effect immediately, dependents may not be able to just "drop-in" at mess halls at their leisure. Local commanders are empowered to decide how often and under what circumstances meals may be sold to civilians. According to the message from the Department of the Army on this subject, the new policy must "be accomplished within available space, personnel and facility resources."

"A mess hall is not a restaurant," Warren explained. "Mess personnel must know in advance how much food to order for each meal. If everyone in some outfit decided out of the clear blue sky to bring their family and friends to chow one afternoon, we might have some difficulties."

However, Warren did not anticipate any problems such as overcrowding or food shortage "as long as mess stewards know in advance how many people are coming on a particular

Engineers clear bridge of flood-carried debris

After an all-night effort March 3 by a company of engineers to clear debris from the Santa Fe Road Bridge over Upatoi Creek on the reservation, traffic was permitted to cross the structure the afternoon of the next day.

The bridge had been closed because the Upatoi's rising waters — caused by last week's rains — brought logs and debris which endangered the structure. The resulting pile-up forced the closing of the bridge for 24 hours.

Several of the troops from Co. D, 43rd Engr. Bn., 93ist Engr. Gp., worked directly under the bridge, walking on the bed of floating debris and fastening chains around the larger logs in order to have them hoisted from the water.

1st Lt. Thomas A. Gilbride, leader of the company's second platoon, said that most of the debris was small and mixed with ice. Some logs pulled from the mass of debris were 45 to 50 feet in length and 24 to 36 inches in diameter.

Capt. Charles W. Jones, Co. D's commander, said that the second platoon used a crane and a tactical wrecker with a hydraulic boom to School individualizes instruction in center

An Individualized Learning Center opened its doors March 1 at the Infantry School, beginning what is—for the school—a new learning concept.

Col. Byron Greene, Director of Instruction, said the concept has been a topic of discussion at Fort Benning for several years, but a lack of funds prevented conversion of the idea into physical reality.

Implementation was made possible through the Modern Volunteer Army concept when funds totalling $30,000 were made available for the establishment and evaluation of the center.

Located in Classroom 52 of Infantry Hall, the Learning Center is open to all interested personnel. The regular hours of operation are from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 8 a.m. to noon on Saturday. It will also be open at other hours by appointment.

The concept under which the center operates is, as its name implies, one in which a student is on a one-to-one basis with the instructor.

The instructor, however, is not a person, but rather is a "carrel." A carrel is an individual student learning booth, equipped with headphones, casette tape player automatically syn-

Benning first with regulation on environmental quality control

Fort Benning has scored what is believed to be another Army "first" by publishing a regulation dealing with the problems of environmental quality control on a military installation.

No regulation of this type, which prescribes standards for sanitation and assigns responsibilities for avoiding pollution in the environmental area of air, water and solid waste as well as noise, has been announced by any other Army installation.

The directive (USAIC Reg. 11-21, dated Feb. 16) resulted from a briefing received by Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander on pollution at Fort Benning. Written by the Preventive Medicine Section of the Medical Department Activities, it has received the blessings of all staff agencies on items and requirements relating to their areas.

Primary responsibility for environmental control is placed on the unit commanders by the new regulation, while the directorates of Facilities Engineering, Industrial Operations and Medical Activities are charged with providing technical and consultant assistance.

The environmental quality control regulation gives unit commanders the responsibility for:

— Proper utilization of sanitary landfills.

— Proper disposal of used oil and other non-biodegradable liquids.

— Proper vehicle maintenance.

— Prevention of waste disposal in the storm drainage system.

— Police and maintenance of unit operations areas.

— Prevention of unauthorized burning.

A Preventative Medicine spokesman said unit commanders should periodically stress improving of environmental quality and that education is the key to the prevention of pollution.

ADM. MOORER

Adm. Moorer to give talk tonight

Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, will arrive at Fort Benning this morning for a one-day visit.

Adm. Moorer will address Infantry Officers Advanced Course students at 10:10 a.m. in Marshall Auditorium in Infantry Hall and will be the speaker at tonight's West Point Military Academy Society Founder's Day Dinner at the Main Officers Open Mess.

Graduates and former cadets of the Military Academy and graduates of the Naval Academy and Air Force Academy are invited to attend the dinner, scheduled to start at 6:30 p.m.

Eligible individuals who have not received invitations to the dinner are asked to contact the director of plans and training by telephoning 545-3102.

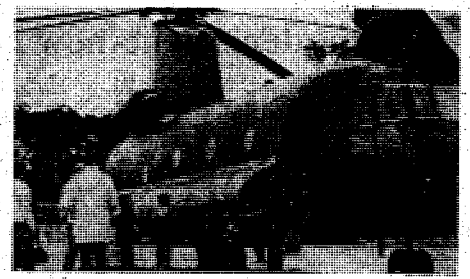
YMCA fathers, sons visit Infantry Center

A group of fathers and sons of the YMCA Indian Guides in Atlanta visited the Center at Fort Benning last weekend.

The YMCA Indian Guides is a father and son program sponsored by the Young Men's Christian Association. The 205 persons in the group were welcomed March 6 by Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander, in Marshall Auditorium, Infantry Hall.

The group saw the film, "Spirit of Fort Benning," and a presentation of "I Am The Infantry."



After lunch in the 2nd Student Battalion Officers Field Ration Mess, the fathers and sons attended a number of displays which included an aircraft static display at Lawson Army Airfield, a display and ride on tracked vehicles, a tour of the Infantry Museum, wheeled vehicle rides, and buddy seat rides on the airborne jump tower at Eubanks Field.

After the evening meal the fathers and sons checked into Building 75 where they spent the night. The evening hours were free for recreational activitities.

Sunday morning, after breakfast and a field religious service at Watson Field, the group observed a Ranger skills demonstration at Watson Field.

At French Field Sunday morning, a scout dog demonstration and a skydiving demonstraton was presented for the group.

The group departed Sunday afternoon after lunch.

Dingwall academic graduate

Sgt. David W. Dingwall, Austin, Tex., was honored as the distinguished, academic, and leadership graduate of the Noncommissioned Officer Candidate School, Class 501-71 in ceremonies March 3 in Marshall Auditorium, Infantry Hall. Sgt. Maj. Bernard C. Benson of the Operations and Logistics Department was the guest speaker at the graduation.

For his achievement Dingwall received a letter of commendation from Brig. Gen. John T. Carley, assistant commandant of the Infantry School, an engraved "Follow Me" plaque, an engraved "Follow Me" statuette, and an engraved Association of the United States Army plaque.

Dingwall was one of 148 new NCOs graduating from the 81st Co., 8th Stu. Bn., TSB. Dingwall will report to the 4th Stu. Bn. for Airborne training.

SINGLE QUAD HI-RISER MANIFOLDS
In the process of producing power in varying degrees, an engine is much like a big air pump. It pulls air in through the carburetor, combines it with the fuel in the cylinders and then disposes of it through the exhaust. Any way you can improve the flow of this air will ultimately improve the performance and efficiency of the engine. The purpose of performance intake manifolds it to improve the flow of fuel vapors from the carburetion system to the cylinder. New and revised manifold designs constantly strive to improve volumetric efficiency. With unbonded gasoline a reality and compression ratios going back to where they were in the mid-50's, new and improved manifolds may be the source of major advances in horsepower.

For his achievement Morstadt received a letter of commendation from Brig. Gen. John T. Carley, assistant commandant of the Infantry School, an engraved "Follow Me" plaque, an engraved "Follow Me" statuette, and an engraved Association of the United States Army plaque.

Morstadt and McCall were two of 171 new NCOs graduating from the 80th Co., 8th Stu. Bn., TSB. Morstadt will report to the 5th Infantry Division at Ft. Carson, Colo. and McCall will stay with the 80th Co. as a tactical NCO.

Guest house is filled to capacity.

No vacancy.

Such a sign could be appropriately erected at Fort Benning's new off-post guest house facility in the Camelia Motel complex, as rooming space in the Volunteer Army (VOLAR) housing project has been completely filled each day since its opening last month.

Because of the waiting list at the guest house, expected "customers" should be informed prior to arrival by their sponsors that occupancy is limited to 30 days.

The guest house, which primarily serves incoming and departing military families, consists of 52 units leased for post use until June 30. Visting relatives of servicemen stationed here and invited guests have second and third priority respectively.

Byline Bayonet

(Byline Bayonet welcomes questions of general interest about Fort Benning and the Army. Within space limitations, all reasonable questions will be answered. Questions of a purely military nature which obviously could be answered more properly by commander or supervisors within the chain of command will not be accepted. Questions must be signed with current unit of assignment indicated. Send questions to The Bayonet, Room 602, Infantry Hall.)

Q — What are my chances of becoming a sky marshal, how many are there, and how long will the program last?

A — Your chances are extremely good, if you meet the requirements. As of Feb. 9, 1971, the Bureau of Customs had accepted 1,100 applicants and has received 3,000 applications. Their quota of 2,100 marshals is expected to be filled by mid-April, based on the quality of applications received.

The Bureau of Customs plans to continue the sky marshal program for an indefinite period. In addition, they feel that normal attrition will be high during the first year of the program. As a result, they seek applications from personnel leaving service to fill the vacancies created by this attrition. Applicants should be aware of a possible delay in employment even though accepted.

Q — I understand that free shuttle-bus service between Fort Benning and the Muscogee County Airport was to have been initiated as a part of VOLAR. I also understand that Fort Benning authorities, up at the top, rejected the idea due to the influence of civilian taxi and bus companies. What is the story?

A — VOLAR did consider a free bus service between the Muscogee County Airport and Fort Benning, but shelved the plan when considering all pros and cons. The principal reason for not providing the service was no civilian influence, but a consideration by Fort Benning that to do so would be direct competition with licensed carriers. The free bus service that is available to soldiers from Fort Benning to Columbus, as part of VOLAR, is not direct competition since it is handled through contract with Howard Bus Line. The VOLAR reception center recently set up at the airport has as a part of its mission directions to arrange for civilian taxi transportation to post for as many incoming soldiers as will normally fit into one automobile. Therefore, the soldiers can share the expense instead of spending a full fare and the taxi service will not realize an extreme loss of business. The soldier traveling to Fort Benning on orders is paid for his travel expenses including taxi fare.

The judge says

Keep track of your check book

USAIC LEGAL ASSISTANCE OFFICE — Look over your monthly bank statements. It is "negligence" not to compare the checks and examine the signatures and amounts. If you fail to detect errors in your statement and do not report them to the bank, you will be the loser.

Take Atlas Company, a small business. Its office had one busy "Girl Friday." She checked invoices, made out checks and ran the office. She was a quick witted young lady and she found out how to forge invoices and make payments which she diverted to herself. Unsuspecting, the bank honored the checks, and Atlas didn't detect the thefts.

In fact Atlas finally found the forgeries ten months after its Girl Friday had taken $20,000. She went to jail, broke. Atlas had to take the loss itself. The judge held that the bank was not liable because if Atlas had not been negligent it would have discovered the first forgeries and reported them to the bank. This would have led to the discovery of the forger and prevented the loss.

When you open an account the bank has a duty to pay on your authorized signature only, and to check irregular endorsements with due care. The bank is liable for losses if it ought to have discovered a forgery, but didn't.

The bank may be liable to you if it mistakenly fails to honor a good check, believing your account overdrawn. In one case a bank erroneously stamped a check "overdrawn." The merchant who accepted the check had its customer, the depositor, arrested. When it turned out that the depositor had not overdrawn his account, the court held the bank liable for all damages (wrongful arrest, embarrassment, etc.).

The bank also is liable if it fails to honor a proper "stop payment" order.

The bank depositor gives the order orally. Later, a "stop order" must be in writing and signed by the depositor. The bank also has to have a reasonable opportunity to act on it.

There is a time limit within which to make claims against a bank for negligence. A customer must discover and report any defects in his checks within a reasonable time or chance losing his cause of action. Otherwise, he cannot claim that the bank had failed through negligence to discover the forgery or other irregularity.

Inquiries concerning this topic or related legal matters may be directed to your Legal Assistance Office.

Toward a volunteer force

Considerable thought is being given to once again returning the nation's military structure to volunteer force, something we had between the two World Wars, and also at earlier times in our history.

However, there is one major difference between the volunteer of yesteryear and the volunteer of tomorrow, particularly in the enlisted ranks. In an age of ever-increasing industrial sophistication and technology, it will require a different caliber of man to fulfill the nation's minimum defense commitments.

Time was when many a judge, faced with sentencing a misdemeaning juvenile, pronounced his judgment: "Six months in the county home of correction or enlist in the military." More often than not, the judgment was wise; the enlistment made a man out of the boy.

No longer; such an errant youngster probably wouldn't be acceptable and more—and rightfully so, for the demands of the volunteer force of the future will require educated, dedicated, motivated and level-headed men — not misguided youths who have not yet found themselves.

Reducing the draft call to zero and establishing a proper and adequate volunteer force will not come cheaply. To attract the right kind of man will require competitive pay, better living and working conditions, improved retirement programs and other fringe benefits. Steps are being taken even now to achieve those requirements.

But one thing should be made certain at the onset: A volunteer force will only be a hard-core, bare minimum — lean, trim and honed to razor-ready sharpness. In the event of a great national emergency, manpower needs would still again have to be met by traditional methods.

Volunteers are not the complete answer in time of critical national need. Nor are the secondary lines of defense, the National Guard and Ready Reserve. When the chips are really down, all able-bodied citizens may and will be called upon to serve, which, of course, is their obligation—nay, their duty, right and privilege, as it is for citizens of any nation to serve the society in which they live. (AFPS Editorial)

What others say

Army, Plato have same question

We started to write one of those heavy, complicated editorials this week about leadership. Armed with a quote from Gen. Omar Bradley and the field manual definition of leadership, we started to write.

After about four paragraphs, all the words proved was that there are a lot of questions about leadership. How do you spot it? Can it be taught? How can leadership be improved?

Heck, these are the kinds of questions Plato tried to answer a long time ago.

Although we haven't any better answers than Plato, the search for leadership seems just as important now as then. As Charles De Gaulle once said, "Men can no more get along without direction than they can without eating, drinking or sleeping."

Undisciplined mobs can burn buildings and slaughter innocents; but no one has ever reported a mob building a bridge or running a mess hall.

Think of the number of leadership positions in the Army and the difficulty of finding top-notch men to fill them. Increasing the necessity of this prodigious task is the pressure of a future Army in which less manpower will have to do more work.

A two-pronged approach is being used to find these leaders: Training the present NCOs and officers in modern leadership techniques and selecting the type of people they allow to fill and stay in leadership positions.

Because both decisions have been part of other changes that have come recently, few people realize the boldness and the risk in these decisions.

Or consider the Army's difficult decision to rid its ranks of non-productive personnel by ousting the enlisted soldier who does not go steadily up in rank.

It is no small matter to tell an NCO who wants to go 30 that he can't. Consider the difference in retirement pay. An E5 with over 20 goes out with only about $226 a month. But if he could stay and make one stripe in 10 years, he would probably leave with at least $390, not counting pay raises.

The problems come in a situation where a man is a good soldier in a field where there just haven't been enough promotions to let him move up. Although these cases will be considered by a review board, the risk of losing this man had to be taken.

Faced with a force shrinkage, the Army saw that it had to send somebody home or fold up its enlisted promotion system for a while. Strength in upper grades is pushing the grade ceiling. Unless it can move senior men out, the Army can't move younger men up.

MEDAL PRESENTATION
Mrs. Boles Receives Husband's Medals From Col. Hatcher

Ceremony honors platoon sergeant

The Bronze Star Medal and the Purple Heart were awarded posthumously to Platoon Sgt. Robert M. Boles in ceremonies held in the office of Col. Robert P. Hatcher, assistant post commander.

The actions for which Sgt. Boles was cited occurred in the Republic of Vietnam from Dec. 2, 1969, to Sept. 8, 1970.

The Purple Heart was awarded to Sgt. Boles for wounds he received in military operations in Vietnam which resulted in his death.

Prior to his death, Sgt. Boles had been awarded the Air Medal, Army Commendation Medal, Good Conduct Medal with Two Bronze loops, National Defense Service Medal, Vietnam Service Medal, Vietnam Campaign Medal, Combat Infantryman Badge, and Expert Badge with rifle and automatic rifle bars.

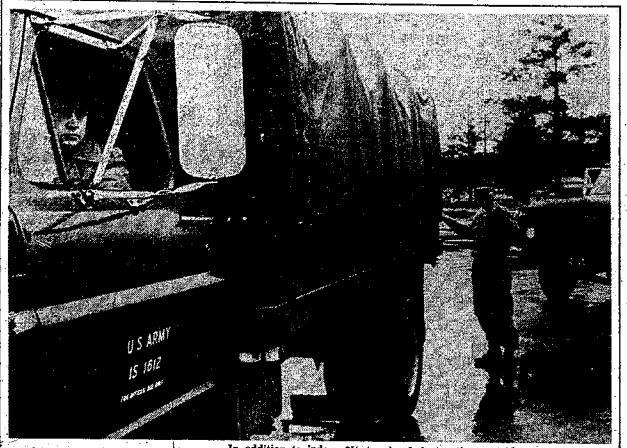
197th Bde. to hold 'organization day' activities today



The 197th Infantry Brigade is celebrating its ninth anniversary today with a full day of activities.

The day's events begin with a brigade pass in review on Munson Heliport on Kelly Hill. After the pass in review the "organization day" picnic gets underway at the brigade picnic grounds, Ivy and 1st Division roads. Free food and beer will be provided all day long.

Sports, track and field events will be featured with prizes for all winners. Some of the activities include a 1st Sgt.-SGM sack race, a boxing championship, volley ball, tug-of-war competition, pole vaulting, hammer throw, shot put and javelin throw.

Static displays will be set up and rides will be available for the kids. Sky diving, hand-to-hand fighting, and scout dog demonstrations are also on the agenda.

Backing up

In addition to indoor 2½ ton truck instruction, outside driving exercises are a vital component of the Driver Training Program as conducted by the 67th Maint. Bn., 931st Engr. Gp. In this parallel parking exercise, ground guide SSgt. Everett Branson, Co. C, 56th S&S Bn. of the 931st, directs student driver, PFC Wayne Milner, 84th Co., 8th Stu. Bn., TSB. The program normally instructs about 25 men a week.

'Adventure Training' new VOLAR concept

The Infantry School's Ranger Department now is training soldiers from the 197th Infantry Brigade in such Ranger skills as rappelling and orienteering as part of a new VOLAR concept called "Adventure Training."

The 1st Bn., 29th Inf., commanded by Lt.Col. Henry Doctor, is the unit currently taking advantage of the new training.

The training is aimed at contributing to the job satisfaction aspect of the VOLAR program, Doctor explained.

"This is the beginning in a series of training to get the man back to MOS-related activities which are also satisfying," said Doctor. "The training is subdivided into training directly related to specific MOSs, and Adventure Training, which is training designed to be especially challenging and interesting to soldiers," he added.

Col. John Geraci, director of the Ranger Department, and Lt. Col. James Anderson, chairman of the Ranger Patrolling Committee, collaborated with Doctor in developing the new type of training.

Doctor said the Rangers are the ideal organization to provide the specialized training because they have the "good organization and expertise necessary to maintain interests."

Specialists four Jonnie Farrior and Dale Sluder, both of the 1st Bn.'s Co. C, agree that the training is interesting. The two soldiers, who had just completed the 4,700 meter orienteering course when interviewed, said the course was "a lot of fun."

"It was a rough course, but I enjoyed it, except for the swamp," commented Sluder. Farrior concurred, saying that it was the "mud that makes it fun."

Co., C, along with Co. D, spent a full day with the Rangers on Feb. 25 and learned orienteering and rappelling techniques. The day was ended with a free-fall demonstration by Lt. Col. James Anderson and Maj. Powell Johnson of the Ranger Department.

Will this sort of day-long activity be repeated?

"Yes, at least as long as I am here," said Doctor.

Infantry Museum drive to start 2nd phase

Beginning Monday and running through March 31, the $100,000 Infantry Museum campaign at Fort Benning will enter its second phase—a general appeal directed at more than 20,000 soldiers and civilian employes who have not been approached individually.

Col. Robert P. Hatcher Jr., campaign chairman said those individuals will include all lieutenants; warrant officers W1 and W2; non-commissioned officers below the grade of E-7; and civilian employes below the grade of GS-9.

At present, Hatcher said, pledges are averaging more than $41, and the fund drive total stands at $35,000. Last of the pledge cards—those for about 1,100 captains who attend the Infantry School's six Infantry Officer Advance Course classes—are being distributed this week, he said.

"The second phase of the campaign will be important in that it will extend the campaign to all members of the Fort Benning community," Hatcher explained. "We hope that contributions during those two weeks will be significant," he added.

During the general appeal solicitation, showings of a 12 - minute sound slide on the museum project will be made at various locations on Main Post and at Kelly Hill, Sand Hill and Harmony Church. In addition, literature on the museum will be distributed within sections and commands to individuals not included in the pledge card solicitation.

"In many cases," Hatcher said, "individuals will have to take the initiative to contribute. There will, of course, be collection officers at each major headquarters. But their job will be simply to accept money and give information," he said, adding that no suggested levels of giving have been established for the general appeal.

Financial arrangements for general appeal donations will be the same as those for peer-solicited gifts. Contributions may be in the form of cash, check or pledge, with the latter including use of BankAmericard or Master Charge credit cards.

Fort Benning names new firefighting chief

Henry M. Montgomery of Bay Springs, Miss., a veteran of 28 years firefighting, has been named Fort Benning's fire chief.

Montgomery comes to Fort Benning from Warner Robbins Air Force Base, Ga., where he served as fire chief for approximately two years. During his firefighting career, Montgomery has served with fire departments at Brookley Air Force Base, Tinker Air Force Base, and Eglin Air Force Base. During this time he has held positions from trainee to assist chief and chief. He is a veteran of World War II having served in the European Theater of Operations.

He is a graduate of Antioch High School in Louin, Miss., and holds a degree in business administration from Chillicothe (Mo.) Business College.

Chief Montgomery and his wife, Mary, make their home at Fort Benning.

Infantry Hall Shows Display

An exhibition, featuring various activities of the U. S. Army Materiel Command in Washington, D. C., presently is on display in the lobby of Infantry Hall.

The display includes "talking films" and models highlighting such Materiel Command fields as project managers, production and procurement, supply and maintenance and sub command locations.

The items will be shown through March 19. The public may view them weekdays from 8 to 5 p.m.

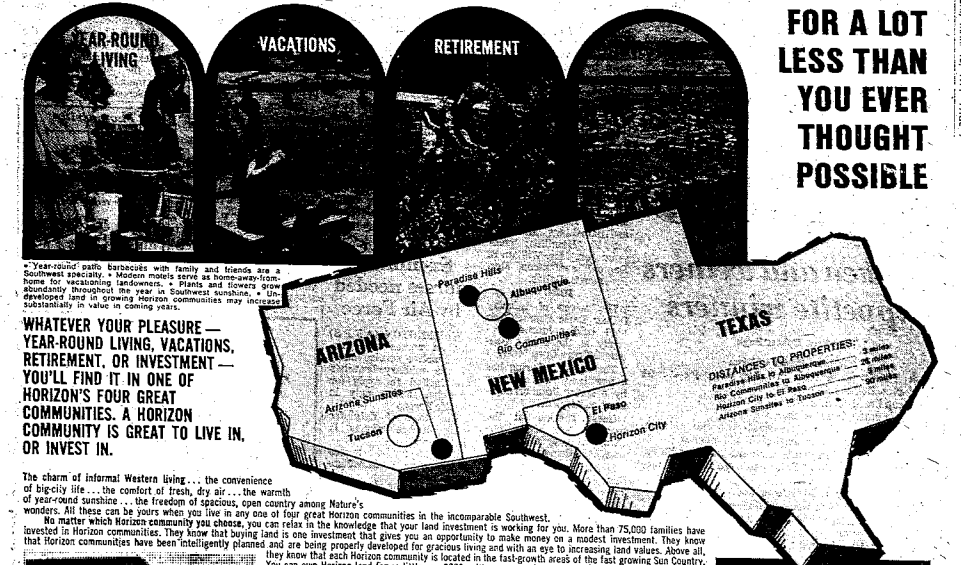
Poison Prevention Week declared

Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander, has signed a proclamation declaring the week of March 15 through 21 as Poison Prevention Week at Fort Benning in conjunction with the national observance.

With Gen. Talbott at the time of the signing was Col. H. Haskell Ziperman, commander of Fort Benning's Medical Department Activities (MEDDAC) and Martin Army Hospital (MAH).

The signing of the proclamation kicked off a special campaign at Fort Benning designed to increase the awareness of military personnel and their dependents to the dangers of accidental poisoning.

Col. Ziperman pointed out that approximately 500 children die every year in the United States as a result of accidental poisoning. As many as two million cases have been reported in one year.



In 1970 about 11 cases of accidental poisoning were treated every month at Martin Army Hospital, Col. Ziperman said.

Gen. Talbott urged both sponsors and dependents, to "take steps to continue in improving the safety of children from drugs, household chemicals and poisonous plants, all of which are potential killers.

"It is my hope that the precautions you take will reduce the needless sickness and deaths which otherwise would occur among our children," the general said.

THERE'S A BIG PLACE IN THE SOUTHWEST SUN FOR YOU

FOR A LOT LESS THAN YOU EVER THOUGHT POSSIBLE

• Year-round patio barbecues with family and friends are a Southwest specialty. • Modern motels serve as home-away-from-home for vacationing landowners. • Plants and flowers grow abundantly throughout the year in Southwest sunshine. • Undeveloped land in growing Horizon communities may increase substantially in value in coming years.

WHATEVER YOUR PLEASURE — YEAR-ROUND LIVING, VACATIONS, RETIREMENT, OR INVESTMENT — YOU'LL FIND IT IN ONE OF HORIZON'S FOUR GREAT COMMUNITIES. A HORIZON COMMUNITY IS GREAT TO LIVE IN, OR INVEST IN.

The charm of informal Western living... the convenience of big-city life... the comfort of fresh, dry air... the warmth of year-round sunshine... the freedom of spacious, open country among Nature's wonders. All these can be yours when you live in any one of four great Horizon communities in the incomparable Southwest.

No matter which Horizon community you choose, you can relax in the knowledge that your land investment is working for you. More than 75,000 families have invested in Horizon communities. They know that buying land is one investment that gives you an opportunity to make money on a modest investment. They know that Horizon communities have been intelligently planned and are being properly developed for gracious living and with an eye to increasing land values. Above all, they know that each Horizon community is located in the fast-growth areas of the fast growing Sun Country. You can own Horizon land for as little as $800, with payment plans to fit almost any budget.

Horizon-built Vivat homes, starting at $13,950, offer comfort, variety, many extras, with 12 floor plans and 36 exteriors to choose from.

In the Southwest, the accent is on the good life. Patio and pool parties, backyard barbecues, golfing, swimming, fishing, hunting, boating, gardening. All of these are a natural part of the lifestyle enjoyed by people from all walks of life. Perhaps nowhere else in the United States is the accent on the good life so predominant. Here, the patio is not just a part-time addition to the house, open for just a few months, then closed for the rest of the year. It's an extension of your home, open year-round for fun and relaxation. No winter indoor bottlenecks or forced sit-ins because of bad weather. In Horizon communities, we've planned for plenty of elbowroom for everybody.

There's a home for everybody in Horizon communities. Horizon's planned community concept offers varied residential housing for all tastes, budgets, and family sizes. Whether you are retired or are raising a family, you'll find a Horizon home just made for you. Horizon offers single-family residences, spacious mobile homes, patio homes, and rental apartments. You can own a Horizon single-family home or patio home for as little as $13,950 and a mobile home for $8,190.* You'll find luxury for less money in Horizon's quality-built, exclusively designed homes.

Community recreation goes with every Horizon community. When you invest in Horizon land, you're getting a lot more than the lot you purchased. Every Horizon community has a distinctive golf course and other recreational facilities. Every Horizon community has hundreds of residents who are helping to make these facilities grow, who are ready to welcome newcomers. Every Horizon community has an active building and development program. Every Horizon community is planned for great living and better investment.

You can make money in land. Whether you plan to move to the Southwest or prefer to stay where you are, you owe it to yourself and your family to get Horizon's free new book, MAKE MONEY IN LAND. It's just off the press and will be selling for 95 cents at bookstands. It will show you how to invest in land, what kind of land to invest in, why the Southwest may be an investor's dream come true for you. This free book will make you smarter and could make you richer. Find out why more than 75,000 people decided to put a little land in their investment portfolio. Write or phone for your free book today.

Golf is an all-season sport in all Horizon communities.

Fun under the sun year-round makes the Southwest a paradise for children and adults.

IOAC

The ladies and guests of IOAC 1-71 took a step into the fashion world as the Supper Club was transformed into the "House of Design" for the guest luncheon, March 4.

Mrs. Orwin C. Talbott, and Mrs. John T. Carley were among the honored guests at the luncheon. Other guests included Mrs. Kendrick B. Barlow, Mrs. William L. Humphrey, Mrs. Lawrence L. Mowery, Mrs. Jere O. Whittington, Mrs. Frank L. Garrison, Mrs. Edwin J. Rowan, Mrs. Donald A. Kelsey, Mrs. Daniel B. Harvey, Mrs. Gordon E. Marlow, Mrs. Charlie Williams, Mrs. David R. Brown, Mrs. Joe T. West and Mrs. William M. Miller.

Miniature sewing machines, tape measures, scissors, and other sewing items were used to decorate the table, which was accented by deep green cloths. As an added attraction, each lady received an individual package of hand sewing needles, a magni threader, and hand-made sewing kits for the purse which also helped to adorn the table. Honored guests found their luncheon seats by novel pincushion nametags.

For the program, a version of Carol Burnett's washerwoman was portrayed by Mrs. Lewis L. Nibert, as "Mrs. Glo L. Coat," — whose daydreaming brought to life models from a local department store. The models wore clothing which morning hours to the end took them from early of the day, which had been sewn by the ladies themselves. "Mrs. Glo L. Coat" learned much about fashions under the able narration of Mrs. Vernon L. Stevenson.

Mrs. Jerry R. Walters, ladies social chairman, presided over the afternoon's festivities. In charge of the program was Mrs. Norman Spaulding, decorations, Mrs. Miles E. Perry; invitations and name tags, Mrs. Robert E. Hamilton; guest programs, Mrs. William B. Damon; and menu, Mrs. Freeman B. Dallas.

IOBC

The wives of Infantry Officer Basic Course Class 13-71 held a luncheon recently at the Fort Benning Officers Open Mess.

The theme, "Spring has a new face," was accented by a spring floral arrangement centerpiece.

Guest speaker at the luncheon was Merle Norman who gave a make-up and facial demonstration.

Special guests at the affair were Mrs. Orwin C. Talbott, Mrs. John T. Carley, Mrs. Kendrick B. Barlow, Mrs. John L. Jones, and Mrs. William D. Jordan.

Cadre hostess was Mrs. Bruce B. Bettis. Student wife hostesses were Mrs. Fredrich L. Finch, Mrs. Russell M. Shirk, Mrs. William J. Greenhalgh, Mrs. Roland R. Bonewitz, Mrs. Gerald J. Vetter, and Mrs. Thomas W. Weiss.

TSB

"March comes in like a lion and goes out like a lamb," was the theme of the March 3 luncheon of the ladies of TSB.

Decorations for the affair followed the theme with a miniature lion and a lamb resting under a tree surrounded by flowers as the centerpiece on the beadtable. Side tables held standing letters forming the word March, with a lion and a lamb serving as bookends.

Following the luncheon, Frank Schnell, a noted archaeologist and anthropologist and Addi George, a Yuchi Indian, presented an informative program on American Indian culture and tradition.

Honored guest for the luncheon was Mrs. Kendrick B. Barlow Jr., wife of the deputy assistant commandant of the Infantry School.

Chicken and weiners appetite winners

By Mrs. Robert Bugh

Evelyn's Italian Chicken

Soak one-2 pound fryer in salted water for at least 20 minutes. Roll in mixture of:

½ cup bread crumbs
½ cup grated Romano cheese

Place pieces on baking sheet with skin side up. Place in 300 degree oven and bake for 75 minutes.

Remove from oven and sprinkle moderately with paprika and ½ cup water. Return to oven for 15 minutes or until bubbly.

New Flip To Sauerkraut and Weiners
By Mrs. Kenneth Simpson

One 1 lb. package frankfurters, sliced
2 Tablsp. butter
1 large-onion, chopped
¾ cup chopped celery
16 oz. can drained sauerkraut
1 bay leaf
¾ cup chopped celery
¾ teas. pepper
¼ teas. thyme
1 beef bouillion cube dissolved in 1 cup boiling water.

Melt butter in large skillet, cook onions and celery until tender; stir in sauerkraut, bay leaf, pepper and thyme and cook 2 minutes. Add bouillon, cover and simmer about 15 minutes. Add frankfurters and cook 10 minutes longer. Serves 3 to 4.

Filled Sugar Cookies
By Mrs. Charles Brown

2 cups all purpose flour
1 tsp. cream of tartar
1 tsp. baking soda
½ tsp. salt
¾ cup granulated sugar
½ cup salad oil
2 eggs
1 tsp. vanilla
1 Tblsp. granulated sugar (for top)
¼ tsp. cinnamon

Mix salad oil and ¾ cup of sugar in large bowl, break eggs in small bowl, add vanilla and beat well. Add to large bowl and stir well.

In medium bowl, mix flour, cream of tartar, soda, salt and cinnamon. Gradually add this mixture to large bowl, mixing well. Chill bowl of dough for several hours.

Roll ½ dough at a time on floured board, cut round circles with cutter; place 2 inches apart on greased sheets. In center of each circle place a small teaspoon of preserves, such as strawberry, cherry, peach or pineapple. Also mincemeat or cooked raisins (thickened with a little corn starch and sugar) are delicious.

Bake at 375 degrees for 10-12 minutes or until done. Cookies rolled at about ⅛ inch thickness will yield 2-2½ dozen. This dough can be chilled and sliced as refrigerator cookies. These are delicious when frosted.

Student awards offered to eligible dependents

This year there will be 6 awards of $300 each and they will be available only to dependents of members of the Fort Benning Officers Wives Club.

To be eligible, you must be a dependent of an active member of the OWC, and a senior in the Columbus-Phenix City area.

Forms for prospective applicants are available at the offices of Principals and Guidance Counselors in this general area.

Students must mail completed forms, a transcript of all high school grades beginning with freshman year through the first semester of the senior year, and the results of S.A.T. or A.C.T. tests to OWC Scholarship Chairman, Mrs. Jack Conn, 403 Baltzell, Fort Benning, Ga., 31905. The deadline for submitting applications is April 15.

For more information, you may call Mrs. Conn, 545-3546.

Literacy workshop to train English teachers

Mrs. Robert Holmes, Columbus, Ga., will conduct a workshop in Literacy Missions at the Religious Education Center, Bldg. 2605, March 15-18.

The workshop trains interested persons to teach English to illiterates and non-English speaking people.

Basically, Mrs. Holmes will use the methods developed by the Congregational Missionery, Dr. Frank Laubach, in his worldwide fight of illiteracy. The emphasis at Fort Benning will be teaching English as a second language.

The workshop will be in progress Monday through Thursday from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. with an hour for lunch. The lunch hour will be flexible to accommodate mothers with children who go or return from school near the noon hour. Each person who stays through the noon hour should bring a sack lunch for herself and her children in the nursery which will be upstairs in Bldg. 2605. The public is invited to attend. For additional information call 545-4334 or 545-7413.

Mrs. Holmes began teaching English to Spanish-speaking persons four years ago in Columbus and Fort Benning and enlarged the scope of her work after taking special training from Mildred Blankenship, assistant secretary in the Department of Christian Social Ministries, Home Mission Board, Southern Baptist Convention, in a workshop at Fort Benning. She has taught classes for non-English speaking persons at the Religious Education Center for the past year. In 1970 she attended Southern Seminary at Louisville, Kentucky and completed the course for certification in teaching the training classes for this work.

She was born and educated in Boston, Mass. and is the wife of Col. (ret.) Robert Holmes of Columbus.

Fashion was the key word at the luncheon sponsored by the ladies of 3rd Plt. of the 72nd Co., 2nd Stu. Bn. — Men's fashion that is.

The luncheon was held Feb. 25 at the Supper Club with the theme of "It's a Man's World." In keeping with the theme a men's fashion show was conducted by Ken Krumpler, manager of a local men's clothing store.

FASHIONABLE FELLOWS
Frank Malloy (L), Greg Johnson (C), and John Ledford model men's fashions for ladies luncheon

Krumpler emphasized the importance of sportswear in a man's wardrobe. He stated that with leisure time becoming abundant, men (and women) have more time to become active in sports, therefore, needing appropriate sportswear.

The show was of particular interest to the women because they often buy clothes for their husbands and strive to assist their husbands in purchasing fashionable clothes.

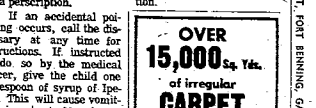
The ladies involved in the planning and arrangements were Mrs. Michael A. Lowrie, chairman, Mrs. James A. Morehouse, Decorations chairman, Mrs. Douglas H. Necessary, Program chairman, Mrs. Michael A. Mitchell, Food and Wine chairman, and Mrs. Charles H. McClay, Invitation and Name Tag chairman.

Motorists can get fuel sheet



A customer information sheet on fuel recommendations for various automobiles is available at all Fort Benning Exchange service stations, Gilbert O'Brien, exchange general manager, has announced.

Many automobiles can run on unleaded gasoline and thus help in the nation's fight for cleaner air, O'Brien notes.

Unleaded gasoline has been available in post service stations since Nov. 8. Prices are slightly above prices on regular grade, leaded gasoline.

College loans

Since the beginning of the College Housing program in 1950, the U.S. government has provided more than 3,000 direct loans to schools, totalling $3.7 billion.

5 steps can counter poisoning

(EDITOR'S NOTE March 15 - 21 is Poison Prevention Week at Fort Benning. We thought this article taken from the Ft. Sheridan, Ill., The Tower would be pertinent.)

Of the 52,000 cases of poisoning per year in the United States about 500 children under the age of five die. The most common causes of poisoning are aspirin, soaps, detergents and cleansers.

These five steps should be followed to counter poisoning in children:

1. Keep hazardous materials and medicines out of the reach of children. Dispose of medications by turning them in to the dispensary pharmacy or by washing down the toilet. Do not dispose of medicines by discarding with trash where children may find them.

2. Keep a one ounce bottle of syrup of Ipecac in a safe place in the home. This item may be obtained at the dispensary pharmacy during duty hours without a perscription.

3. If an accidental poisoning occurs, call the dispensary at any time for instructions. If instructed to do so by the medical officer, give the child one tablespoon of syrup of Ipecac. This will cause vomiting in about 20 minutes thereby saving time and maybe saving life.

4. Do not give syrup of Ipecac unless instructed to do so by the medical officer as vomiting should not be induced in certain poisonings.

5. Bring the child to the nearest medical facility e.g., dispensary, hospital emergency room, or local civilian physician immediately, for further evaluation.

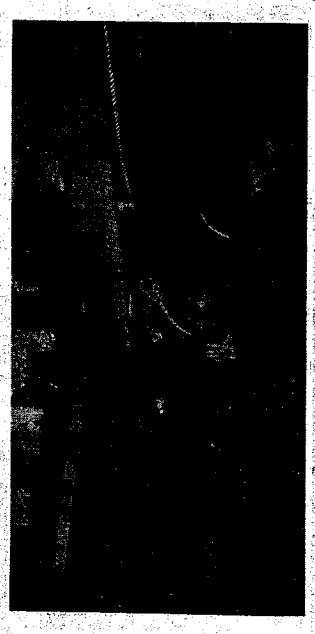
Bridge over troubled waters spared

Engineers win night-long battle with flood, icy weather



When the debris carried downstream by the icy flood waters of Upatoi Creek seriously threatened the bridge on Sante Fe Road, the soldiers of Co. D, 43rd Engr. Bn., 93ist Engr. Bde., worked through a freezing night and most of the following day to successfully save the structure.

The greatest problem was created by the continuous build-up of debris which pitted the determined engineers against time as well as the elements. The power of men and machines steadily gained on the log jam, and by 3:30 p.m., March 4, the massive pileup was cleared and the bridge reopened to traffic.

Great logs interlaced with tangled branches and other debris piled against the bridge threatening to wash it out. Cranes and other heavy equipment (above left) were used to hoist the heavy logs clear of the mass while PFC Roy Donaldson and PFC William Downs (lower right) and several other soldiers, secured with life lines, braved their way onto the floating debris to untangle the branches and attach cables. Floodlights, operated by Sgt. Danny San Nicolas (lower left), illuminated the bridge operations throughout the night.

HAPPY REUNION

Thuan (L) And Krilling After The Former's Graduation From OCS

MTU instructor has unusual reunion

By Les Hanser

Many reunions occur at Fort Benning among soldiers. But perhaps, one of the most unusual happened last summer to MSgt. William Krilling, training instructor with the United States Army Marksmanship Training Unit at Fort Benning.

Krilling, who served with Advisory Team 74 at the Quang Trung Training Center in the Republic of Vietnam in 1968, met his former interpreter, Lam Phat Thuan, at a main post bank.

Krilling's reunion with Thuan came as quite a surprise.

"Even though we corresponded after I left Vietnam, I didn't have the slightest idea that he was coming to Fort Benning," Krilling said. "He told me that he had been advised by the American instructors at Quang Trung and his ARVN Battalion commander to apply for the OCS (Officer Candidate School) program. I wasn't surprised to find that he was in OCS since I'd always thought that he was a very intelligent young man."

Krilling was able to see Thuan a number of times while he was in the OCS program. Krilling claimed that the hardest part of the OCS program for Thuan was not the disciplined life of a candidate or the language barrier, but rather becoming adjusted to the cold weather of the United States.

"I remember one weekend when he flew to New York City to get his first glimpse of snow. He got as far as Maryland and decided to come back to Georgia because it was too cold."

There were some parts of the OCS program which were frustrating to Thuan, Krilling said. For example, a number of the weapons Thuan received training on in OCS he had already used extensively in Vietnam.

"He thought it was strange to be a student in basic marksmanship with the M-16 rifle when he had been an instructor of this course in Vietnam."

In spite of the problems he experienced, Thuan was quite impressed with the OCS program and the Infantry School, Krilling said. "He told me that he hopes to return here some day for the Allied Officers Advanced Course."

Thuan graduated as the distinguished Vietnamese graduate from the Infantry Officer Candidate Class 2-71 on Jan. 15. Shortly thereafter, he returned to the Republic of Vietnam.

Orientation on USMAPS to be held

An orientation on the United States Military Academy Preparatory School (USMAPS) will be conducted 4:15 p.m. Thursday in Infantry Hall's Marshall Auditorium.

Persons qualified to attend USMAPS under provisions of AR 351-12 are urged to attend the briefing, said Capt. William J. Ervin, project officer.

The briefing will cover all phases of life at USMAPS (which is located at Ft. Belvoir, Va.) and at West Point.

Area scouts to hold Skill-O-Rama

A Scout-Skill-O-Rama will be held from 1 p.m. to 7 p.m. March 27 at the Columbus Municipal Auditorium.

The event is described as an opportunity for Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts and Explorers of the Chattahoochee Council to demonstrate and display varied subjects and activities to the public. This year special emphasis will be on the conservation of man and his natural resources.

Admission tickets to the event are being sold by participating scouts in the Chattahoochee area and also will be available at the door.

The Scout-Skill-O-Rama will feature exhibits prepared by Cub Scouts, an exhibit prepared by the Georgia Game and Fish Commission, and authentic Indian dances that will be presented by the scouts.

A Pine Wood Derby also is scheduled in which Cub Scouts will compete for prizes in speed and design.

In addition to camping and cooking, the Explorers will cover sports such as fishing, boating, skin diving, archery and pre-vocational subjects such as business, public speaking, journalism, auto mechanics and aviation.

Soldiers, COs to discuss problems

The Modern Volunteer Army program currently under way at Fort Benning has spawned another attempt to improve communications between soldiers and the members of their chains of command.

In a directive published recently commanders are asked to "initiate small discussion groups, preferably at company level and below . . ."

Purpose of these discussion groups, the directive says, is "to increase the soldiers' sense of belonging and open channels of communication"among soldiers and junior leaders."

A wide range of subjects are mentioned as possible topics for the discussion groups. Included are unit activities, objectives, VOLAR and "any other items which would enlighten the soldiers and give him the opportunity to contribute to the unit's activities."

The VOLAR progam at Fort Benning has initiated these other actions aimed at improving soldier leader communications:

—The open-door policy practiced by commanders has been reemphasized.

— Two captains have been assigned to the Post Inspector General's office to investigate problems and complaints. The two, who have been labeled post "ombudsmen" spend much of their time "rapping" with soldiers.

—A new policy has been instituted that requires commanders to provide soldiers with answers to their personnel questions within 24 hours. Interim replies are to be given when research delays the final answer.

—Soldiers councils have been established down to battalion level. Appointed soldier representatives meet frequently to discuss problems. At post level the minutes of the meetings go directly to the chief of staff.

K. C. Olson named top graduate

Sgt. Kenneth C. Olson of Beloit, Wis., was named honor graduate of Mine and Tunnel Dog Handler Class 2-71.

Col. John L. Osteen, director of Company Operations at the Infantry School, presented a dog handler statuette to Olson.

The classes are designed to instruct students in methods of handling specially trained dogs whose mission is to detect land mines and tunnels in order to prevent danger to Infantry Operations in Vietnam.

CHANGES

- Unit commanders are being encouraged initiate small discussion groups in another attempt to improve soldier-leader communications on post.
- An individual learning center has been installed in an Infantry School classroom. The center uses tapes and slides to help a student proceed through certain instruction at his own pace.
- Bus trips are available each weekend to Atlanta. The bus departs Fort Benning Saturday morning and returns Sunday afternoon.

PROPOSALS

- Free transportation to Panama City, Fla., and Callaway Gardens has been proposed for the Easter Weekend holidays.

Local library to be Federal depository

U. S. Congressman Jack Brinkley has announced that the Columbus College library may become a depository for a large number of U. S. Government publications, according to a college spokesman.

In recent discussions with college President Thomas Y. Whitley, Brinkley said that the government documents would be made available by the college to the public as well as to the students. Two depositories are authorized for each congressional district. The library at Georgia Southwestern College, Americus, is the only depository now operating in Brinkley's district.

In order to qualify as a depository, a library must contain at least 10,000 volumes other than government publications. It must also have the facilities to provide adequate custody and service for depository materials.

Depository libraries are not required to receive all government publications made available. Librarians may select only those publications best suited to the needs of their clients. A library selecting all publications would receive about 12,000 documents a year, plus 7,000 to 10,000 prints of bills and resolutions, requiring about 100 linear feet of shelf space.

President Whitley said that the college's Simon Schwob Memorial Library is too crowded to be used as a depository for all publications offered. Selected publications from the United States Government have been added in the past. However, plans are being prepared for a new $2 to $3 million facility that would accommodate a much larger increment of governmental publications.

Columbus Concert

Critics have called her "brilliant." The New York times says, "Her tones gleam like polished glass . . . sprightly strength, striking rhythmic command give us grand moments." And she was selected to appear in concert by the Board of Judges of the 26th International Leventritt Competition for pianists.

These are a few of the tributes paid to Ursula Oppens, a Leventritt soloist, who will play Rachmaninoff's "Second Piano Concerto" with the Columbus Symphony on Tuesday (March 16). The concert will be held in the Fine Arts Hall at Columbus College beginning at 8:30 p.m.

Harry Kruger, conductor of the Columbus Symphony, will lead the Orchestra in Beethoven's "Seventh Symphony" a favorite composition of the local audiences. The "Dance Rhythms" by Georgia's own Wallingford Riegger will also be performed. "The crisp tones and American sound of Riegger's rhythms will contrast with the brilliance of Beethoven and the romanticism of Rachmaninoff," explains Kruger.

Tickets for the concert may be obtained by writing, Tickets, P. O. Box 5311, Columbus, Ga., or by phoning 323-5059 and using bank credit cards. The box office at 1100 3rd Ave. will be open today through Tuesday from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. The box office at the Fine Arts Hall, the night of the concert, will open at 7:30 p.m.

Following the concert Miss Oppens and members of the orchestra will be honored guests at a reception in the Fine Arts Hall. It is being given by the Columbus Music Teachers Association and the Orpheus Club. The audience is invited to attend.

Parachute Club

The Sport Parachute Club on post is sponsoring a new program for those who enjoy parachuting, but prefer the use of a static line to the free fall technique.

Now, all military qualified parachutists who belong to the Airborne Association and who are eligible to join the Sport Parachute Club can perform "Sport Static Line Jumps" under the auspices of the club.

For more information call Capt. Harris at 545-4941 or "drop" by Bldg. 1203.

Going to Atlanta?

Under VOLAR the soldiers and soldierettes on post now have free bus service to Atlanta on weekends, which is really great. But, what do you do once you get to Atlanta?

Maybe the Atlanta USO can help you. The bus takes you directly to the USO where you can acquire information on reduced rates for some of the finest hotels and motels, plus receive free or discount tickets to legitimate theater productions, sports events and similar activities.

Also available are passes or military rates for 'Six Flags Over Georgia," Atlanta's amusement park; Stone Mountain Park and the Cyclorama.

The USO is centrally located so it's ideal for "getting around."

B-S-T

The musical group "Blond, Sweat and Tears" is coming to Columbus for a one night engagement on March 20. The nine great musicians will perform at the Municipal Auditorium beginning at 8 p.m.

Tickets run from $3 to $6 and can be purchased at the auditorium box office or at Sears in Columbus Square.

Train with rubber tires

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — For Sale — One 560-foot long overland train with 56 rubber tires. Bids accepted by the Department of Defense.

You won't find that ad in your local newspaper, but DoD is trying to get rid of the train, all 300-tons of it.

It was first offered for sale in 1969, but the winning bidder bowed out before taking delivery.

This time around the Defense Department has sweetened the deal by adding a bonus—a giant grab bag of spare parts, including 6,000 bearing, gaskets, shims, washers, hooks, air bags and batteries.

Well-heeled military men interested in bidding on the train—perhaps for use as a second car—should keep in mind the bid that originally won: $103,030.30.

War College sets mail course deadline

WASHINGTON (ANF)— The deadline for the non-resident course of the U.S. Army War College has been set.

Applications from eligible officers in the grade of lieutenant colonel and above are due May 1 at Department of the Army for enrollment in the correspondence course.

As many as 100 active Army and 100 Reserve component officers will be chosen for the two-year program, which begins in July.

Included in the curriculum are two resident periods of two weeks each at Carlisle Barracks, Pa. They normally occur at mid-point in the course and just prior to graduation.

Those successfully completing the correspondence course will be programmed for assignments on the same basis as other senior service school alumni.

For additional information on eligibility requirements and application procedures, consult AR 351-11.

Benning to 'zero in' on safety

"Zero in on Federal Safety," President Richard Nixon's program to reduce work hazards and dangers in Federal agencies and to reduce the number of on-the-job injuries among Federal employes is being implemented here.

In his proclamation, the President said, "Department or agency heads play a major role in the elimination of accidents. If a department or agency has an effective program in this area, it should be continued; if it does not have an adequate program, one should be developed; if the program needs the necessary resources to make it effective, resources should be provided.

"Everyone in a department or agency should know that a Safety program is effective only to the degree that it is supported and participated in by employes."

The two year program is aimed at all agencies and departments of the Federal government.

Synopsis

THE ARISTOCATS (Rated G). Wealthy Parisian Adelaide Bonfamille, a pedigreed actress, informs her lawyer that her money will be inherited by her cats.

Butler Edgar, next in line, decides to dispose of the felines: the Duchess (Eva Gabor) and her children: dignified Marie, pianist Berlioz and artist Toulouse, who aspires to be a tough alley cat. Edgar has a run-in with two hayseed hounds, Napoleon and Lafayette. Thomas O'Malley (Phil Harris) a roving alley cat, aids the Dutchess and her brood.

THE STERILE CUCKOO (Rated GP). Lisa Minonelli plays a kooky girl named "Pookie" Adams, who is highly spirited, yet lonely.

On the bus, on her way to college, she meets a shy young boy (Wendell Burton). Their friendship blossoms into first love, and "Pookie" launches a campaign of seduction that is carried out with the finesse of a general on the battlefield.

Finally, Burton's ardor starts to cool . . he has dimly seen what she is doing to him . . and he rebels.

R.P.M. (Rated R). Anthony Quinn, middle-aged sociology professor at Hudson University, takes over as acting college president after the activitists have occupied the administration building and forced the Chancellor to resign. In come the fuzz and violence follows as the whole student body, including Quinn's mistress, (Ann-Margret) battle the police.

THE PRIVATE LIFE OF SHERLOCK HOLMES (Rated GP). When Gabrielle Valladon (Genevieve Page) is left at their door, nearly drowned and searching for her husband Sherlock Holmes (Robert Stephens) and Dr. Watson (Colin Blakely) decide to look into the case.

Holmes is warned by his brother Mycroft (Christopher Lee) not to get involved. Clues take the three to Inverness, Scotland, where a submarine proves to be at the bottom of the intrigue.

"The Private Life of Sherlock Holmes" is anything but elementary.

TRUE GRIT (Rated G). The strangest trio ever to track a killer. A fearless, one - eyed U. S. Marshal named "Rooster Cogburn" (John Wayne), who never knew a dry day in his life . . a Texas Ranger (Glen Campbell), thirsty for bounty money . . and a girl, still wet behind the ears (Kim Darby), who didn't dare what they were . . as long as they had "True Grit."

11 receive awards at TSB

Eleven civilian employes assigned to The School Brigade (TSB) were presented incentive awards during a ceremony March 3 in Wigle Hall.

Col. Kendrick B. Barlow Jr., deputy assistant commandant of the Infantry School, presented the awards.

Puzzle Answer

Libraries' Books

"Remote Control," Harry Carmichael: A British mystery with an ingenious plot that leads to a thrilling conclusion with the delightful detection along the way.

"In Council Rooms Apart," John Crain: An intrigue of dramatic answer to the question: Why were the executed Lords, Queens Mary and Elizabeth, never attacked during World War II?

"Throne of Saturn," Allen Drury: A powerful novel about America's space program and its first mission to Mars. The characters include politicians, scientists and astronauts for whom the mission is a mean life or death.

"Crisis," David E. Fisher: A young college profes or reconstructs the fact that he is slowly going mad, but he is powerless to do anything about it.

"Merry Month of May," James Jones: The political, sexual and revolutionary adventures of a group of American expatriates in Paris form the framework for Jones' novel of the French student revolution of 1968.

"Underground Man," Ross Macdonald: Lew Archer uncovers past murders and extortion while investigating a recent murder in Santa Teresa, Southern California.

"Strong at America," Charles A. Reich: A very good analysis of the youth culture that is turning the country around.

"Everybody Knows and Nobody Cares," Myron Sutton: Takes a fresh, free look at America now. When Jones tosses a tear gas canister, and makes a direct hit on the campus cop police, he takes off on the lam. After his many adventures he stumbles onto a little coherence and returns home to Molly and his kids.

"Sons and Daughters of Mom," Philip Wylie: The author dissects today's youth and attacks such subjects as education, the sexual revolution, the American economy, hair, racial discrimination, hippie land, American legislators, colunists, etc.

USO offers discounts in Atlanta

H.Q., 3rd ARMY, Fort McPherson, Ga. — Are you planning a weekend in Atlanta, Georgia, soon—or would you like to if you felt you could afford it? Maybe you can.

The Atlanta United Services Organization (USO) offers many money- and time-saving opportunities for military personnel and their families living at some of the city's finest hotels and motels, and free or discount tickets to legitimate theater productions, sports events, boat shows and similar activities.

Also available through the USO are passes or military rates for such major Atlanta area attractions as "Six Flags Over Georgia," a 276-acre "fun" park designed to provide rides, exhibits and general entertainment for the whole family; Stone Mountain Park, a 563-acre sightseers paradise developed around the largest outcropping of exposed granite in the world, and the Cyclorama, a separately - housed three - dimensional painting—the largest of its kind in existence—depicting the Battle of Atlanta.

The USO headquarters and club is located at 151 Spring Street N.W. (southeast corner of Spring and Williams streets) in Atlanta. It is two blocks from the Trailways Bus Station, one block from the Greyhound Bus Terminal, and only three short blocks from the main shopping and theater district on famous Peachtree Street.

In addition to the "money-savers" offered by the USO, it also provides information on where to go and what to do in Atlanta, to include churches and recreational and cultural activities. And for those rest periods in between sight-seeing trips, the club offers reading rooms, a writing area, television and games—everything from pool to cards.

All this and free coffee and do-nuts too, every evening, Tuesday through Saturday, and on Sunday beginning at 11 a.m.

Vets on G.I. Bill reaches monthly high

The number of high school dropouts and other "educationally disadvantaged" veterans in school under the G.I. Bill climbed to an all-time monthly high of 30,524 in January, the Veterans Administration reported.

The previous high was 29,008 in November 1970.

Most of this group were in training below the college level. Others were taking refresher or deficiency courses at the undergraduate level.

One special benefit for eligible veterans who have not completed high school is to attend elementary or high school half-time or more without having this benefit's use charged against future G.I. Bill educational benefits.

VA pays veterans with no dependents $175 monthly (more if there are dependents) for going to school full - time, $128 for three-quarter time and $81 for half - time. If they attend such schools during the evening, veteran-students are limited to the half-time rate.

Another special benefit for veterans and servicemen beyond high school is tutorial assistance to prevent them from failing in subjects essential to their educational program.

Under this program, VA will pay up to $50 monthly in tutoring fees for a maximum of nine months.

Veterans and servicemen are eligible for educational benefits if they have more than 180 days of military service, any part of it after Jan. 31, 1955, or if discharged for a service-connected disability, regardless of length of service.

VA urged veterans interested in going to school—especially dropouts—to get information at any VA office, or from local service organization representatives.

ROD AND GUN CLUB

By Bill Kloeb

The rainy weather with high water in the streams is still giving the crappie a hard time in their efforts to get on beds. But fishermen took advantage of weather a little better than we have become used to last weekend to fish the ponds located close to the main road networks. Mud on the secondary roads just about precluded any travel except by four-wheeled vehicles.

King's Pond had a lot of traffic and all of the leading entries in the Rod and Gun Club Fishing Derby came from there.

The best catfish registered was a small two-pound specimen turned in by SFC (ret.) Robert Almenares, 5813 Luna Drive. SFC Ronny McDaniel, 3rd Ranger Co. leads the bream contest with a 13-ounce entry caught using pink worms, and 1st Sgt. Henry Ferris, 71st Co., TSB registered the only fish that seems to have any chance of holding up for the rest of the month. His bass weighed in at 8-pounds, 7-ounces. He was using a thin fin lure.

Fishing At Twilight Pond

Boats may now be used on Twilight pond between noon and sundown. Boats may be powered by an electric motor.

The daily creel limit for the pond is 10 catfish and five bass. Bass must be at least 10 inches long. There is no limit on the number of blue gill.

No live bait may be used in the pond and fishing is only permitted during daylight hours.

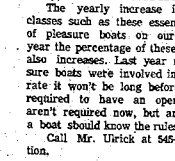
Register Before Fishing

Don't forget that fishermen are required to register at the Rod and Gun Club, Provost Marshal's Office or Range Control Office before fishing. The only ponds or places on the reservation exempt from registration are King's, Russ, Weems, Clear Creek, Hedley, Kirk, Twilight and Russ Pool. Clearance is not required to fish in Upatoi Creek from Old Cusseta Road to the Chattahoochee River or the Chattahooche shore line, but if you plan to use dirt roads registering may be a good idea.

Rod and Gun Club Plans

The Rod and Gun Club Board of Governors are planning two events for members and non-members. The first is a Ham Shoot which will be held on April 3. This event is being held at the club grounds in conjunction with the sale of the 1971-1972 hunting and fishing licenses and Rod and Gun Club memberships which will go on sale at the club at the end of this month. The Ham Shoot is not a skill event. Anyone big enough to hold and aim a shotgun can win.

The second event is a free barbecue at the club grounds. This event will be free and open only to club members. It will be held May 2. There will be more information later about both events, but hold both days open for a fine family outing.



Boating Safety

The Muscogee Power Squadron is conducting free boating safety classes each Wednesday evening. Classes are held in the Naval Reserve Training Center from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m.

These classes are applicable to anyone who operates a boat powered by a motor. They cover basic pilot knowledge, Coast Guard Safety regulations, operations safety, rules of the road and river navigation.

The yearly increase in boating accidents make classes such as these essential. Each year the number of pleasure boats on our waters increases and each year the percentage of these boats involved in accidents, also increases. Last year more than 5,000 small pleasure boats were involved in reportable accidents. At this rate it won't be long before each boat operator will be required to have an operator's license. The licenses aren't required now, but anyone who is going to operate a boat should know the rules of operation.

197th honors B-ball victors with banquet

On the run

Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, Fort Benning commander (L), accepting his 208-mile Run For Your Life award from Brig. Gen. John T. Carley, assistant commandant of the Infantry School, in a surprise ceremony earlier this month.

By Bob Wise

The 197th Inf. Bde. honored its basketball teams recently with a "Champ's Nite" banquet. Individual trophies were presented to the members of the brigade team which won the USAIC brigade-level championship.

Trophies were presented also to the members of the Co. C, 1st Bn., 58th Inf. team, the post company-level champions. Members of the Co. A, 197th Support Bn. team received their trophies for winning the brigade championship.

The players were introduced by Major Donald A. Tapscott, coach of the brigade-level team and the trophies were given out by Col. Willard Latham, 197th commander.

Col. Latham praised the athletes for their efforts and gave special thanks to the support given the teams. He summed up his feelings by quoting what he had heard a spectator say following one of the games: "When you play the 197th, you're not only playing the team, but you're playing the whole gymnasium."

The trophy presentation was followed by the showing of a half-hour film on the National Basketball Association's 1970 season.

The banquet was held in the mess hall of HHC, 197th Inf. Bde.

13 ball teams to compete in 3rd Army tourney here

By Bill Kloeb

This weekend teams from 13 posts within the 3rd U. S. Army area will begin arriving at Fort Benning to compete in the 3rd Army Basketball Championships to be held at Briant Wells Field House Mar. 15-19.

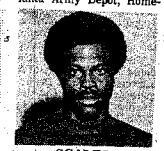
Teams will compete for championships in two divisions. The A division will consist of teams representing posts having a military population of 10,000 or more, the B division, is of posts having a population of 10,000 or less.

Teams from Fort Benning, Fort Bragg, Fort Campbell, Fort Jackson, Fort Rucker, and Fort Gordon will play in the A division. Fort McPherson, Fort McClellan, Fort Stewart, Redstone Arsenal, Atlanta Army Depot, Homestead AFB, and Hunter Army Air Field teams will play in the B division.

The championships will be determined by round robin type tournaments. Each team will play all other teams in its division. The first game for the Benning men will be against Fort Gordon at 7 p.m. Monday.

Last year the Fort Campbell team was the A division championship and Hunter Army Air Field was the B division champion.

This year the Benning men plan to make a better showing. Bob Greene, coach of the team has had the team together for about a month. In addition to the usual practice the team has played in several exhibition games with Fort Rucker and Fort McClellan. They managed to win most of these games and this week have been playing in the Bibb City Invitational Tournament in Columbus as final preparation for the Army Championship.



The team does not have a great deal of height by present day basketball standards, but will rely on speed and play-making to offset this deficiency. Greene is confident that the play making ability of his team will produce a good showing.

The guards are Michael Beckelhimer, Donald Townsend, James Rix and John Black. George Robinson is the center. In addition Greene, who has had quite a bit of Army basketball experience, can fit in as either a guard or a forward.

New bowling league formed in 197th Bde.

The 1st Battalion (Mech) 58th Infantry (The Patriots), 197th Infantry Brigade, recently established a "Patriot" bowling league comprised of teams selected from the companies within the battalion.

Competition was keen as the soldiers vied for the honor of representing their company on the bowling team. The first round of competition commenced Feb. 22, with the Alphagators (representing Co. A) emerging as the evening's victor.

The bowling league will continue throughout the year, on each Monday night. With the interest generated, it is expected that the league will expand to include more soldiers and possibly wives.

Youth Activities Basketball Program

Youth Activities Basketball started the last half of the Season, Feb. 22, with all teams gaining the valuable experience needed to promise an exciting finish. As of Feb. 24, the closest League race is the Biddy League with Team 1 taking the number one spot with a League leading 5-2 record. Close behind are teams 2 and 4 with respectable 4-3 records.

Team 6 has pushed their perfect record to 6-0, keeping their top position in the Pee Wee League. Team 5, with a record of 4-2 has a firm but vulnerable grip on second place. Teams 3 and 4 are following close with evenly matched 3-3 records.

The Doughboys are still led by Team 5, who has kept their untarnished record to 4-0. Team 2 is fighting to keep the second spot with a 3-2 record. Team 3 also have their eyes on that spot with a 3-3 standing, only ½ game behind.

Determined Team 4, has kept their pole position since the beginning of the season in the Pony League competition. Team 2 has emerged to take second place with a 3-3 record. Narrowing the gap on the number two spot is Team 1 with a 2-4 record.

In the Jr. Miss League competition, team 1 is running away with a lead of 5-0 record. Their closest competition is Team 2 with a 2-2 record holding down second place.

As of March 8, there are 5,365 active participants in the Run For Your Life program. Of these, 36 have completed 500 miles, 79 have completed 400 miles, 129 have completed 300 miles, 322 have completed 200 miles, 511 have completed 100 miles, and 1,360 have surpassed 50 miles of running.

Post soccer team boasts 15-1 record in 1st season

A recent entry in the military sports field has been the newly-formed Fort Benning soccer team which has been racking up some impressive victories over other area soccer teams.

Only last Saturday on Stillwell Field, the Benning players scored a painless 8-6 win over the Ft. Rucker, Ala., soccer team.

With a nucleus of Allied students in training here at Fort Benning, the team has already met opponents 16 times, meeting defeat only once. Only the soccer team from the Georgia Institute of Technology defeated the Benning players in their first contest.

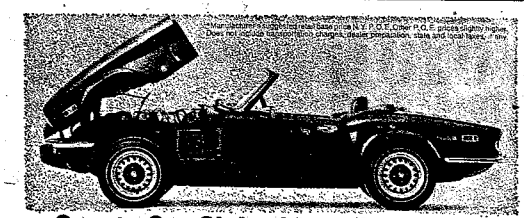
Willy Huygens, of Belgium, a student in Infantry Officer Advanced Class (IOAC) 1-71 is the coach of the Benning team. He has been instrumental in building one of the strongest soccer teams in the southeastern United States.

Charles D. Lane, of the U. S., in the same course with Huygens, aids in securing engagements with other soccer teams. Lane hails from England, but is now a naturalized U. S. citizen.

In recalling Saturday's game with Ft. Rucker, Huygens said his team easily scored seven points by the end of the first half, allowing Rucker only one point.

Confident of a sure win, Huygens said he replaced his first team players with his second stringers at the beginning of the second half. However, Rucker's rapid scoring of four points within fifteen minutes convinced Huygens that he had made a mistake in replacing his entire squad.

After sending back in some of his top players, Huygens realized only one more point, yet Rucker's possible assent to victory was stopped. Reflecting over the entire game, Huygens said the Benning team was "too strong for them."



Playing along with Huygens in Saturday's game were these Allied personnel: Muonghane Boualay, Laos; Jeremy Oliver, United Kingdom; Nunbhakdi Sorason, Thailand, and Ki Hyon Park, Korea. Also participating were the following U. S. military personnel: Rolf Kreutscher, Cabral Luis, Bud Harvey, Graham Hughes, Jose Leon and Dan Ziehm.

Graham Hughes, a U. S. soldier from the United Kingdom, was high scorer for the Benning team, kicking four goals. Sorason was second with three goals. Leon, who was born in Ecuador, was third for the Benning players with one point.

Neither language nor nationalistic barriers hinder the successes of the Fort Benning team. Truly an allied effort, the Fort Benning soccer team continues to look for willing opponents.

Sports Car Club of America drivers call it a champion.
(Typical American understatement.)
In the SCCA National Championships last year, the Mark III Spitfire took first, second and third in its class.
But we didn't rest on our laurels. We radically reworked the 1970 champion to make it work even better for 1971. On our new Mark IV, we strengthened the engine bearings, designed a new close ratio all-synchro gearbox and modified the suspension for improved balance and road holding.
And while we were doing things for the inside, Ferrari body designer Michelotti did a lot for the outside.
As far as we can tell, the car is now to use an American term—'A-OK' by anybody's standards. You try it at your Triumph dealer. The new improved champion for $2,649*.

When competition ended Monday night, top-seeded Fort Benning had smashed West Point and Tom's Food upset fourth-seeded Chaver's Garage highlighting the opening night of the 28th annual Bibb Invitational basketball tournament at Comer Auditorium.

The Doughboys combined a stingy defense and an excellent show of team work in recording their 100-76 victory over West Point. Tom's revealed a highly potent scoring attack to edge Chaver's, 92-88, while Langdale, in the other game, had a strong second-half spree to pull away from Meadows Motors and get a 119-89 win.

Fort Benning had little trouble in advancing to the semifinals of the tourney as West Point trailed the entire contest. But the Doughboys never really ran away with the game until the final minutes.

John Black paced Fort Benning's attack with 20 points while Don Townsend and Charlie Brown added 18 and 17 respectively. George Robinson was the other Doughboy in double figures with 14 points.

Although Langdale led the entire second contest, the first half turned out to be a bitter struggle for both teams, Langdale never led by more than five points until right at the intermission buzzer when a basket made the score 51-45.

However, Butch Tillman, and Dewey Williams combined for 14 straight points in the opening minutes of the second half before Manchester could come up with a basket. Langdale outscored Manchester, 20-6, during the first minutes of the second stanza.

Jimmy Jones led Langdale with 22 points while Williams and Tillman added 14 apiece. Morris Clark had 16 points to pace Meadows Motors while Larry Woodruff, Julian Saville and Charles Moody each added 14.

The final contest of the evening, however, was the highlight of the opening round.

Tom's, recognized as a contender for the trophy although unseeded, had to withstand a superb Chaver's second-half offense to record its win.

The local team, paced by former Alabama great Mike Nordholz and Larry Barnett, held as much as a 14-point lead over their opponents.

Nordholz paced the Tom's scoring attack with 34 points while Barnett added 18 and Hubert Barksdale tallied 12.

Barracudas place in Florida meet

By Bill Kloeb

Last weekend the Fort Benning Barracuda swim team placed fifth in a field of 18 teams participating in the Pensacola Aquatic Club Invitational Swim Meet at Pensacola, Fla.

The meet, sanctioned by the Southeastern Association Of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States attracted teams from George, Alabama and Florida.

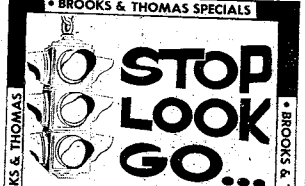
The Barracuda Senior Relay Team placed first in the 200 yard free relay and took place in the 200 yard medley relay. Mike Wheaton, John Nixon, Robert Kenyon and Chuck Ganter were team members.

In other senior team competition, the 13-14 age group relay team of David Van Der Like, Tim Coakley, Randy Messer and Jackie Kenyon placed third in the 200 yard medley race.

Chuck Ganter, one of the team swimming coaches turned in the best individual efforts with first place finishes and the 200 yard individual relay events.

In other individual events Robert Kenyon placed third in the 100 yard butterfly stroke and freestyle and 200-yard individual relay events for his age group.

John Misiak, swimming in the 11-12 age group for boys was first in the 50 yard free style, second in the 50 yard backstroke and placed third in the 50 yard butterfly stroke and 200 yard individual medley events.



In the individual events for girls 13 to 14 years old, Marilyo Misiak had third place finishes in the 100 yard backstroke and freestyle events; Roxane Robinson was third in the 200 yard individual relay event, and had fifth place finishes in the 100 yard backstroke and freestyle events; and Carney Hanson placed fifth in the 100 yard butterfly event.

Kathy Hanson, swimming in the 15 to 17 year-old girls events, captured a fourth place in the backstroke and a sixth place in the 100 yard breast stroke event.

Trophy winners

The 44th Co. basketball team staved off a last minute attack by the 81st Co. to capture The School Brigade Basketball Championship by a score of 55-54.

The 44th Co., which is composed of individuals assigned to various units within the 4th Stu. Bn. (Airborne), closed out its season with a record of 16 and 1.

The championship game was a see-saw affair from the outset, with the point difference seldom exceeding three points. The teams traded baskets during the last minute, with the 44th Co. pulling ahead 55-54 with one second left on the clock. 81st Co. gave their championship hopes collapse as an 81st shot from half-court bounced off the rim as the final buzzer sounded.

The carrels, of which there are 29, are so designed that a student can progress through a lesson at his own pace. If he finds that he needs to review some material that was shown earlier in the lesson, he can reverse the slide projector to a desired point.

If a student wishes to see any television program which is in the Infantry School catalog, the center has machines which can play the TV video tape so that the student may view it in one of the six carrels equipped with a television monitor. These monitors are also capable of receiving programs via closed-circuit from the main television studio.

The four types of programs currently available under the concept are programmed instruction, review and summary classes; decision-making problems; and commercially developed programs which include such subjects as effective listening, memory and vocabulary courses.

The Learning Center also includes a group study area, designed for simultaneous use by up to 15 students. This area could be used when more than one student wishes to view any particular program.

Evaluation of the center will last until June 30. This trial period will determine the best methods of instruction to be used with this new concept so that it will be of the most benefit to the Infantry School students.

Col. Greene said that the Learning Center is not designed to replace any instruction at the Infantry School. Rather, its purpose is to supplement and reinforce what the student has learned during regular periods of instruction.

"We either pulled the logs out of the river or attempted to dislodge them from their jam," explained PFC Roy Donaldson, a Co. D. soldier who worked for two hours under the bridge.

Other troops wearing waist-high rubber boots waded into the cold water to free the shore of collecting branches and rubble.

Work continued well into the next day.

Meanwhile, members of the 586th Engr. Co. (Float Bridge) occupied Bradley Landing to prevent floating material from striking the Eddy Bridge over the Chattahoochee River near Lawson Airfield.

Soldiers have fun in Florida sun

By Barry Tolene

Spc Callie D. Tucker, Co. D, 1st Bn. (Mech.) 58th Inf., 197th Inf. Bde., was a happy soldier recently as he stepped on board a military transport at Lawson Airfield. For Tucker was one of 19 soldiers from Fort Benning chosen to go to Miami, on Operation Florida Sunshine.

Operation Florida Sunshine is a program to provide a five-day vacation for Vietnam Purple Heart recipients. Hotel accommodations and all meals are furnished.

To be eligible to participate in Operation Florida Sunshine a soldier needed to be a wounded Vietnam veteran such as Tucker, who was awarded two Purple Hearts while in Vietnam serving with the Americal Division in I Corp.

Part of the Operation Florida Sunshine itinerary scheduled for the soldiers was a night at the dog races at the Biscayne Kennel Club, a visit with the mayor of Miami, Mayor Jay Derman, who presented each soldier with a key to the city; an afternoon meal and entertainment at the Hialeah Industrial Lions Club; and an afternoon at the horse races.

Young star

Despite a role in the movie, "The Trip," Katherine Walsh appears to have very few miles on her. She's so young she probably wouldn't understand if some old sarge or salt asked her if she wanted to "cut a rug." From the look in her eyes it appears she would recognize the intent if not the parlance.

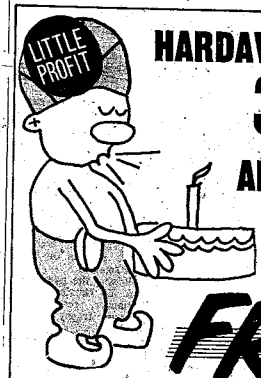
day."

Warren said that the major unit commanders are responsible for seeing that proper arrangements are made. Fort Benning soldiers will be notified by their respective commands as to their individual unit's policy on this matter.



Commanders may implement the "dine - in" by sponsoring special meals for dependents and guests, special foods on national holidays, once-a-month Sunday dinners, family-type evening meals or by allowing single personnel to have guests for occasional meals.

In the past, Army dependents and guests were "invited" to troop mess facilities only on holidays such as Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Special tax considerations for real estate sales

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the seventh in a series on ways you can save on your Federal income tax returns this year. The articles are written by Henry Block, president of H and R Block, Inc., America's largest tax service.)

The average American sells his own home, business building, or other real estate only once or twice in his lifetime, so he naturally may be unaware of the potential pitfalls he faces in paying Federal income taxes on his profits from these sales.

Actually the sale and exchange of real estate is one of the few ways in which a taxpayer can earn the most money and have the least tax to pay. In a real estate sale, he can possibly convert ordinary income which can be taxed as high as 70 per cent, into long-term capital gains which are never taxed at more than 29 per cent and possibly lower.

When you sell or exchange your personal residence at a profit there is now a possibility that you may postpone paying tax on the gain and maybe never have to pay tax at all. If you sell your old residence and buy a new residence within 12 months or have one built within 18 months of the sale of the old residence and the new residence costs as much or more than the adjusted sale price of the old one, none of the gain on the sale of the old residence is taxable to you presently. Instead the gain on the sale of the old residence reduces the cost of your new residence.

Ultimately, if you sell your new residence without reinvesting in another within the prescribed period of time you will then recognize the profit on the sale of your old residence. For example, suppose that last year you sold your home at a profit of $6,000 and this year brought another home for $26,000 which is more than you got for the old home. You would not have to pay any taxes for 1970 on the $6,000 gain. This profit is subtracted from what you paid for the new home, giving it a cost basis for tax purposes of $20,000.....

Should you later sell the new home for $27,000 and not replace it with another home of equal or more value within the required time, you would have to pay taxes on the $7,000 gain — the difference between the $20,000 tax basis and the sale price of $27,000. However, you can continue to postpone the taxes so long as you buy a home which is worth at least as much as you sold the former home for, and the new home is purchased within the proper period.

SPECIAL BENEFITS TO THOSE OVER 65

There is a possibility that you might never have to pay taxes on your gains from the sale of your residence. A retired taxpayer 65 or over does not have to pay any taxes on any profit he makes from the sale of his personal residence for a price of $20,000 or less. In order to qualify for this provision he must have lived in the home at least five of the eight years prior to the sale.

Income tax and you

Any profit he may realize on the sale of his home for more than $20,000 is not entirely taxable; that portion of the profit which is in the same ratio as $20,000 is to the total sales price may be excluded. For example, a 65-year-old man sells his $24,000 home for $30,000 — a gain of $6,000. To determine his taxable gain, the actual gain of $6,000 is multiplied by the fraction $20,000-$30,000, giving an exclusion of $4,000, leaving $2,000 taxable gain.

Since this is a long term gain (property held over 6 months) only 50 per cent (or $1,000) is actually taxable.

RETIREMENT INCOME CREDIT IMPORTANT

Another very significant and often overlooked tax benefit for senior citizens is the retirement income credit. Since Social Security retirement benefits are not taxable, many people are in the position where the first dollars of their retirement benefits are received tax-free.

There still exists a substantial number of people who receive minimal or no Social Security benefits at all. The purpose of the retirement income credit is to help those in the latter category by giving them a credit against tax for the first dollars of their retirement income, thereby putting them in the same tax position as if they too were receiving tax-free income from Social Security:

To be eligible for retirement income credit, you must at some time in your life have earned at least $600 for ten years. If you are a widow or widower you may inherit the eligibility of your deceased spouse.

Also you must have retirement income. For those people 65 or over, retirement income is gross rents from property, and taxable interest, dividends, pensions and annuities. If you are under 65, retirement income is pensions or annuities from a public retirement system, e.g., state employee, former members of the armed forces, etc.

The basic retirement income credit is 15 per cent of $1,524 or $228.60. However, there are certain limitations placed on the amount of credit to which you are entitled.

Bureau prohibits 'pirates'

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Importing "pirated" copies of copyrighted books into the United States is not allowed, according to the Bureau of Customs.

Books bearing false notice of copyright also are prohibited from being brought into the country, the Bureau said.

Generally, the books are unauthorized, photo-offset copies of American "best-sellers" and expensive textbooks, produced and sold in the Far East for a fraction of their cost in the United States.

Certain provisions of the copyright law can prohibit or limit the kind or quantity of books that may be brought into the United States.

The Bureau of Customs must examine all books being imported to determine if any copyright restrictions or prohibitions apply. The fact that all books, except certain sales catalogs, are allowed in duty-free does not bear on the enforcement of copyright provisions, officials said.

Basically, the "manufacturing clause" of the copyright law requires that books be manufactured in the United States as a condition of copyright. When a book by an American has been so manufactured and copyrighted, the importation of foreign manufactured reprints is not allowed.

USAFI revises college course

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — A revised college course covering the history of modern East Asia is being offered by the United States Armed Forces Institute.

The course, titled History of Modern East Asia, focuses on China, Japan and Korea.

USAFI officials said it is designed to provide a basic understanding of East Asian geography and climate, political, social, economic, religious and cultural history, with emphasis on the period from 1800.

CC to offer political class

The course, which will be in conjunction with the school's regular spring quarter classes, will be held Thursdays from 6:15 to 8:25 p.m. The total cost of the two-quarter hour seminar — Political Science 491 — is $36.

Better than marching

818th Bn. inactivated in Sand Hill ceremony

The 818th Engineer Battalion is no longer a part of Fort Benning. The unit was inactivated Monday afternoon in ceremonies in the Sand Hill area.

While at Fort Benning the unit's authorized strength was 713 officers and men. A reduction in strength of the unit has been accomplished gradually since January with most of the personnel being transferred to other units within the 931st Engineer Group. The small contingent that remained was incorporated into other units within the 931st Engineer Group.

The battalion was activated here in February 1968 to provide engineer support of Infantry Center and Infantry School activities.

The 818th, whose motto was "Any Mission Any Time," was first activated in Savannah, Ga., in March, 1942. During World War II it participated in the Normandy, Northern France, Central Europe, Rhineland and Ardennes-Alsace Campaigns.

The battalion, which was commanded by Lt. Col. Garrett Sidler, received recognition from the civic communities on several occasions especially for its recovery operation at Gulfport, Miss., in 1969 when the area was struck by Hurricane Camille.

The battalion constructed a single-span bridge across Standing Boy Creek in 1970 when the old bridge collapsed and isolated several residences.

When the battalion was activated at Fort Benning, one of its first responsibilities was to make improvements at

President honors Martin Army employe

A Fort Benning civilian has received special Presidential recognition for his efforts in the government's Cost Reduction and Management improvement Program.

Clarence Poole, who works at Martin Army Hospital, was one of 10 nominees from the Department of the Army to be thus recognized for cost reduction achievements in a competition sponsored by the Bureau of the Budget.

For his achievement, Poole was presented a Management Improvement Certificate yesterday by Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander, on behalf of the President. He also received a supplemental award of $1,850 from the Department of Defense.

In 1970 Poole, a 20-year veteran of civilian service at Fort Benning, was named 3rd Army Ecoomy Champion for which he was presnted an outstanding and superior performance rating.

Poole, administrative assistant to MAH's chief of professional services, previously had been awarded $1,500 under this post's incentive awards program in 1968 for a suggestion he made which sped the release of physically disqualified enlisted personnel.

That suggestion—to eliminate the review of many cases by the Physical Evaluation Board—has made possible the expiditious release of more than 1,900 soldiers annually Army-wide and has made available 23,000 hospital days at Army hospitals. This results in a realized savings at DA level of more than $1 million yearly.

Medlock named top civilian

Fort Benning's top managerial civilian post has been filled with the naming of Arthur E. Medlock as chief of civilian personnel.

Medlock, 49, will be responsible for overseeing the activities of approximately 6,000 post civilians. He previously was chief of the post management-employe relations branch, a position he held since October 1957.

Medlock succeeds T. A. Barefoot, who retired recently after 30 years of government service.

Medlock began his climb up the Civil Service ladder here as a clerk typist in March 1946. During his career he also has worked in the fields of re-

A radio program produced by the Information Office at Fort Benning recently was named first place winner in the Department of Defense Thomas Jefferson Awards Contest for 1970.

The program, "A Salute to the American Veteran," was eligible for the contest since it won first place in the first annual Keith L. Ware Annual Awards for excellence in newspapers, magazines, radio and television.

1st Lt. James P. Hickey Jr., who produced the program for the Information office, will go to Washington, D.C., in May to receive the Jefferson Award. He will spend a week with the Armed Forces Radio and Television Service in Washington in a professional internship.

The Thomas Jefferson awards are sponsored by Time Magazine. Statuettes of Thomas Jefferson will be presented to the winning activities and to the individual who contributed the most toward each winning entry.

The 20-minute award-winning program paid tribute to the American veteran from World War I, through the conflict in the Republic of Vietnam. It was aired over WRBL Radio in Columbus on Nov. 11 and was entered in the U.S. Continental Army Command (CONARC) competition. It was judged best over all other entries from CONARC and was thus eligible for the Ware competition.

At the time the program was produced, the radio-television section of the Fort Benning Information Office consisted of Hickey, Sp4 Paul Hoffman and Sp4 Joe Stanosch. Stanosch, who narrated the program, has since left the Army and is now a sportscaster at KXLY-TV in Spokane, Wash.

Says chairman of Joint Chiefs of Staff

'Critical attacks on military must end'

By Mike Keller

If America wants to achieve a "zero draft," indiscriminate attacks on the military must be stopped, Adm. Thomas H. Moorer said here last Friday.

Addressing approximately 160 persons at the U. S. Military Academy Founders Day Dinner, Adm. Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said "we simply cannot expect to reach an all-volunteer objective — quantitatively or qualitatively — unless the public puts its full support behind it. The high caliber people we need in the services are not going to be motivated to join an organization they can't be proud of — one that is constantly criticized and demeaned."

The admiral stated that the anti-military climate he says developed in this country in the last two years has been due, in part, to dissatisfaction with the "long and frustrating war" in Southeast Asia.

But "this attitude has been abetted by some in our society who seek to discredit the military at every turn and continuously attack our civilian and military leaders no matter how important or insignificant the issue."

Adm. Moorer, who is the nation's highest ranking military man, took issue with opponents of U. S. policy in the Republic of Vietnam. Despite the progress of Vietnamization, he said, "critics have so attacked the credibility of the policy that any success has been obscured or ignored."

"We have already withdrawn over 2,000 servicemen from Vietnam and are continuing our cut down in order to reduce troop level there to 284,000

Incentive awards given for cost-cutting ideas

In ceremonies held here March 2, Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, Fort Benning commander, presented awards to personnel for their suggestions adopted under the incentive awards program.

Four employes of the Medium Truck Sub-pool, Mr. Joseph L. Gary, Lawrence Fleming, Henry A. Sanderson and Harvie Smith, were presented a special award of $100 each for an act performed Aug. 24 during an emergency in the motor pool. A trailer hit the gas pumps at the refueling point, causing the pipe to break, and the gasoline ignited shortly thereafter.

With disregard for their own safety the men extinguished the fire as it blazed just above a 2,800-gallon fuel tank. It was estimated that their actions saved the government nearly $20,000 in vehicles and buildings.

Other awards presented were as follows:

Sp4 Marvin J. Page, Finance and Accounting Div., was presented an award of $805 for suggesting armed guards be stationed inside finance buildings on post.

Mr. Milton F. Gallops, Directorate of Facilities Engineering, was presented an award of $675 for an adopted suggestion proposing an electronic lock be installed on the Stockade door.

Jack S. Lindsey, Services Division, DIO, was awarded $595 for an adopted suggestion proposing changes in bakery production methods.

Capt. Dennis G. Porche, Directorate of Personnel and Community Activities, was presented an award of $595 for an adopted suggestion proposing that several maps be deleted or consolidated.

Mrs. Virginia R. Hoffman, Martin Army Hospital (MAH), was presented an award of $350 for an adopted suggestion proposing changes in patient listing procedures.

Maj. Charles F. Hatfield, Avn. Cmd., was presented an award of $275 for an adopted suggestion proposing use of salvage materials to manufacture sock-type wind indicators at various installations on post.

Huel L. Crockett, Directorate of Facilities Engineering, was presented an award of $210 for an adopted suggestion proposing the use of the uniform system of filing, accounting and construction specifications.

Mrs. Thelma A. Evans, The School Brigade, was presented an award of $200 for an adopted suggestion proposing to stop issuing certain field gear to IOAC students.

Mrs. Rosalie S. Jones, MAH, was presented an award of $200 for an adopted suggestion proposing annual renewal of prescriptions in support of family planning service.

Mrs. Sarah B. Henderson, Transportation Division, DIO, was awarded $185 for an adopted suggestion proposing cancellation of unit personnel status reports in each unit of subordinate motor pools.

Henry B. Gentry, Civilian Personnel Division, was awarded $130 for an adopted suggestion proposing a system of multiple copy reproduction for job descriptions.

Sp6 Arthur R. Watts, MAH, was awarded $125 for an adopted suggestion proposing the making of extensions for X-ray machines at Martin Army Hospital.

Otis E. Ammons, Maintenance Division, was awarded $105 for an adopted suggestion proposing rebuilding of defective speakers in public address systems rather than replacement.

Disabled vets can get special insurance policy

ATLANTA — Veterans disabled while in service may be eligible for special non-participating National Service Life Insurance.

Georgia Veterans Service Director Pete Wheeler said that Veterans who were separated from the service on or after April 25, 1951, with a service-connected disability may apply for the special insurance.

He added, "The veteran must be in good health except for his service-connected disability, and application must be made within one year from the date of notice which the veteran received granting him a service-connection for any disability."

If a veteran is shown to have been mentally incompetent during any part of the one-year period, application may be filed within one year after a guardian is appointed or the mental disorder is removed, whichever is the earlier date.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

by Bill King

Add a bit o' Irish to a meatloaf or casserole this week—arrange three slices of green pepper rings to form a shamrock on top before baking.

Cast iron skillets need thorough drying after each use. If you have a pilot light, set the skillet over it for a while before storing.

One day when you're making a gravy or sauce to which you usually add mushrooms, try substituting some sliced ripe olives. You'll get a similar, yet different, effect.

A pinch of fennel gives an unusual flavor to cooked fruits. The idea is not so strange when you consider that sugared fennel seeds were often used as a confectionery in past centuries.

In Ireland, people who are frequent dinner guests but who never bring even a tiny gift are said to have arrived "with one hand hanging as long as the other".

S.S.T. HEADERS for VOLKSWAGENS

The entire line of S.S.T. extractor exhausts in scientifically designed, and dyno tested, to provide the discriminating Volkswagen owner with the best performing system available anywhere. Coated with Spereх VHT Flameproof paint to give your header system a finish that will last long after all the others have burned off. Our deep concern for environmental pollution problems, such as noise emission, had our researchers working many hours to develop a system to combat this serious situation, and now we are pleased to announce that our Volkswagen S.S.T. headers have a noise emission control system that reduces sound level without any decrease in performance. This noise control system has allowed our extractor to meet California Vehicle Code Section 27151 as stated in a letter signed by Warren M. Heath, Commander Engineering Section of the California Highway Patrol.

Byline Bayonet

(Byline Bayonet welcomes questions of general interest about Fort Benning and the Army. Within space limitations, all reasonable questions will be answered. Questions of a purely military nature which obviously could be answered more properly by commander or supervisors within the chain of command will not be accepted. Questions must be signed with current unit of assigument indicated. Send questions to The Bayonet, Room 602, Infantry Hall.)

Q—A recent message from the Department of the Army (050015z) encourages post newspapers to run a regular "letters-to-the-editor" column, similar to those appearing in civilian publications. Does The Bayonet have any plans on this?

A—Yes, The Bayonet occasionally will run letters which we feel merit publication and are of interest to everyone on post. The column that you are reading right now also serves as a forum for our readers'viewpoints. Byline Bayonet is geared primarily to the question-answer format, however, it can be used for plaudits and personal comments also.

Q—I am an E-5 and I have noticed that the Army has a career program in each branch for officers; why is there no career program for NCOs?

A—It seems that someone else has noticed this besides you. A new program of career development for NCOs is expected to get underway during the last quarter of FY 71. The program will be called the NCO Education System (NCOES). It will begin at seven basic level courses at three CONARC schools the courses cover MOS training in radio and radio teletype operator at Ft. Gordon, Ga.; armor reconnaissance and armor crewman at Ft. Knox, Ky.; combat engineer, water supply specialist, and engineer equipment repair at Ft. Belvoir, Va. Eventually, about 89 courses are planned for the NCOES program.

Q — How long will a veteran who was retired Nov. 1, 1970, for total disability be covered by his Servicemen' Group Life Insurance?

A — Coverage under SGLI will continue while he is totally disabled, but not beyond one year. Within the year, he may convert his SGLI (maximum $15,000) to an individual policy at standard rates with any company participating in the SGLI program. Also, within a year of notice of his service-connected disability, he can apply for a $10,000 low cost RH policy from VA.

Q — With all the efforts made by the military safety department to have seat belts worn in privately owned vehicles, why have seat belts not been installed in military vehicles such as the quarter-ton truck? This is what most of the Infantrymen ride in while in CONUS and in Vietnam.

A — Tests and studies show that seat belts in most military vehicles would not be a feasible idea because of the materials from which the tops of most military vehicles are made. Canvas offers very little protection to anyone belted inside of a quarter ton when it's lying upside down.

The judge says

Can a dead man be found guilty?

USAIC LEGAL ASSISTANCE OFFICE — Besides possible death, injury, jail, or loss of a driver's license, the drunk driver faces many other consequences.

Take Ron Rummy, a successful business man, for instance: After a business meeting and after too many drinks, Ron died when his car crashed into the center road divider. Right afterwards, another motorist was badly hurt when he crashed into Ron's wrecked car.

Ron's widow Molly, inherited Ron's problems: The motorist sued Ron's estate and collected a big judgment, and Ron's life insurance company would not pay Molly on his policies.

Why? The life policy said that the company would pay no claim if Ron was killed "while committing a felony." Molly had to sue.

What was the problem? In driving while drunk Ron had injured another person. Had he lived the court would have tried and found him guilty of a felony. But the court ruled that since Ron died before the other driver came along, he could not have committed a felony since a dead man cannot be found guilty of anything.

Hence, Molly got the insurance money.

Another company's policy said that it shall "not be liable for any loss to which a contributing cause was the insured's commission of a felony."

A head-on crash killed an intoxicated insured driver while he drove on the wrong side of the road. The crash killed the other driver also.

The court ruled the company didn't have to pay on the policy since the insured was the "contributing cause" to the commission of a fenonly. There need not be a showing that the insured was in fact guilty of a felony, only that he contributed to its commission.

Other policies may stop payment if a "violation of law" caused the death.

Another policy said it would pay for any "accidental injury." But what is accidental? The insured's drinking had caused his stomach disorder. He choked to death while eating something to calm his stomach. Was the death accidental, that is, unforseeable and not voluntary? Yes, said a court, and the insurance company had to pay. Had the insured suffered this way before, and could have expected the choking, the death would not have been an accident.

Taking a good thing for granted

We are taught that we should never take good things for granted. There is an important exception — U. S. Savings Bonds.

Millions of Americans everywhere already take Bonds for granted. They receive them regularly through Payroll Savings and Bond-A-Month Plans. The Bonds are purchased automatically. The money isn't missed — it is amassed. And the growing family nest egg of Savings Bonds is there when needed most — for unexpected emergencies and for the "good expenses". — new home, education, weddins, vacations, retirement.

Unlike other ways of making money "grow," you count on the guaranteed interest U. S. Savings Bonds pay — now 5½ per cent when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months. You can't get back less than the purchase price. You also count on the "indestructibility" of Savings Bonds. The Treasury replaces lost, stolen, mutilated or destroyed Bonds — free of charge — to the owner.

Thousands of Americans have already experienced that extra service of "a friend in need." Although they may have lost other valuable possessions in floods, fires, hurricanes and like disasters, their Savings Bonds always have been restored. (AFPS)

General praises role of Reserves

Gen. W. C. Westmoreland, Army chief of staff, recently discussed the increasing importance of the National Guard and Army Reserve forces. In his address to a meeting of the Association of the Adjutant General's Corps, Gen. Westmoreland said:

"Our Reserve Components — the National Guard and the Reserve — have never been more important in the total scheme of national defense.

"The strength of the Army is a function of the combined capabilities of both Active and Reserve Components — our One Army concept. With the Active Army continuing to decrease in size, the importance of the Reserve Components obviously increases. Thus, National Guard and Reserve preparedness is a foremost concern as we plan for the most advantageous mix of forces — both Active and Reserve — to support our national strategy.

"To meet readiness objectives, our Reserve Components must have first-class materiel, facilities and training programs. We are actively pursuing these goals. Equipment issued in fiscal year 1970 was twice the amount issued in fiscal year 1969 . . . and this fiscal year the amount will again be doubled.

"Modernization is a concurrent objective. For example, some 286,000 M-16 rifles are being transferred during this fiscal year . . . almost one-half of the Reserve Components', authorized allowance. In the case of Army aviation, inventories will be more than doubled in the next three years . . . and modern assets will increase from under one per cent to over 70 per cent of authorized allowances.

"But, modern equipment is not enough. Facilities — the armories and Reserve centers so important to the training mission — must also be upgraded. We are currently proceeding under a 10-year construction plan totalling $627 million.

"In the area of training, emphasis is being placed on programs to increase Active Army support and assistance . . . as well as to increase combined Active-Reserve Component training wherever possible.

"Guardsmen and Reservists are also making a major, but not widely known, contribution to our country through community support and domestic action projects. Let me cite just a few examples. An engineer unit has built playgrounds on an Indian reservation in California. In the city of Ponce, Puerto Rico, a National Guard Surgical Hospital, using supplies furnished by the city government, maintains a field facility to provide medical services to the disadvantaged. And in Utah, the National Guard sponsors a highly successful "Bantam Basketball Program' involving over 2,300 boys, 11 ot 13 years of age, throughout the state.

"Such programs pay rich dividends. All contribute in developing trust and mutual respect so necessary between the American people and their Armed Forces.

"As we look to the future, our challenges are great, but the One Army is more than equal to the tasks that face all of us. This country can as always depend on its Army — Active, National Guard and Army Reserve." (AFPS)

197th celebrates 9th birthday with review, picnic

By Bob Wise

The 197th Inf. Bde. celebrated its ninth birthday last Friday with a review of the troops and an Organization Day Picnic.

Brig. Gen. John T. Carley, assistant commandant of the Infantry School, was guest speaker at the formal review held in the morning at Munson Heliport. Brig. Gen. Carley began by praising the brigade for its support to the Infantry School, saying, "In the past five years you have assisted in the training of over 50,000 officer candidates, officers and thousands of NCO's."

Other special guests at the ceremony included Col. Jacob L. Riley (U.S.A. ret.). Col. Riley commanded the 197th Bde. in 1965 and 1966. The ceremony concluded with passes-in review of the entire brigade. The rest of the day, following the passes-in-review, was spent at the brigade picnic grounds as the soldiers of the Army's largest brigade attended the Organization Day party. The brigade, one of the seven units in the U. S. Army in which a man can enlist under the new Modern Volunteer Army plan, held an eventful picnic that the soldiers will long remember.

Around noon things really began to liven up. Some 6,000 men and dependents of the 197th began arriving at the picnic grounds. Static displays were viewed all day and 15 food and drink points were set up throughout the area.

The partiers consumed 6,500 hamburgers, 600 hotdogs and 3,000 servings of chicken, along with 2,200 pounds of potatoes. Fifty kegs of beer were drunk at the rate of 20 kegs per hour and 3,500 cans of soft drinks were emptied.

Complementing the activities was a rock group who performed the entire day with the help of three go-go girls. The children were entertained by rides, games, free balloons and candy.

Special demonstrations included a scout dog exhibition, a boxing match, sky-diving spectacular and a hand-to-hand fighting demonstration.

The 1st Bn. (Mech), 58th Inf. ("Patriots") walked off with the Olympic Champions Trophy for being the overall winner, placing first in the 100-yard and 220-yard dashes; and winning the one-and two-mile races. The Patriots also placed first in the tug-of-war.

The 5th Bn., 31st Inf., placed second, winning the high jump, the 400-yard dash, one-mile relay and the 3.7 mile relay.

Volleyball competition between all battalions began near noon and lasted about three hours. It was finally won by the 5th Bn., 31st Inf.

The 4th Bn., 69th Armor took high honors in the shot put and log throw. The discus event was won by the 197th Spt. Bn. The 880-yard run was won by the 1st Bn., while the 2nd Bn., 10th Arty. won the broad jump.

Prizes presented to individuals during the day included a Honda, a color T.V. set, a tape recorder, two portable radios and two cameras.

Post slates Festival Days exhibits

By Tony Jones

Columbus Festival Days are scheduled for March 26 through April 4 in Columbus, Ga., and Fort Benning will participate in the activites.

The Infantry Chorus and the 283rd Band will perform at the opening ceremony at 6:30 p.m. March 26 in the 700 block of Broadway in the historic district of downtown Columbus.

The following day, the Airborne Department will set up a junior jump tower on the field behind Municipal Auditorium in support of the Scout Skill-O-Rama. The tower will be in operation from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. March 27.

At 7:30 the same day, the 283rd Army Band will perform during the tour of St. Elmo, one of the oldest homes in Columbus. St. Elmo, the home of Dr. and Mrs. Phillip Schley, is located at 2808 18th Ave.

March 29, an Airborne 5,000 demonstration will be held at Eubanks Field at Fort Benning from 1 p.m. to 2:15 p.m. The condensed version of Airborne training will conclude with a free-fall skydiving demonstration from about 8,000 feet.

Two scout dog demonstrations are scheduled for March 30 in the 1200 block of Broadway in downtown Columbus. They will be held at 3:30 p.m. and 6 p.m.

The Infantry Chorus will perform March 31 in the Fine Arts Hall at Columbus College. The concert will begin at 7:30 p.m.

On April 3 two scout dog demonstrations are slated at the Columbus Square parking lot at 10:30 a.m. and 3 p.m.

Also on that day, the Infantry Chorus will appear at 7:30 p.m., again at the Fine Arts Hall at Columbus College. The 283rd Band will perform at 3:30 p.m. on that day in the mall at Columbus Square.

The Infantry Museum at Fort Benning will be open to visitors from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. March 30 through April 2 during Columbus Festival Days. It will also be open April 3-4 from 12:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. It will be closed March 29.

In addition, there will be varied military displays at various locations in Columbus Square.

Ceremony inaugrates new learning center

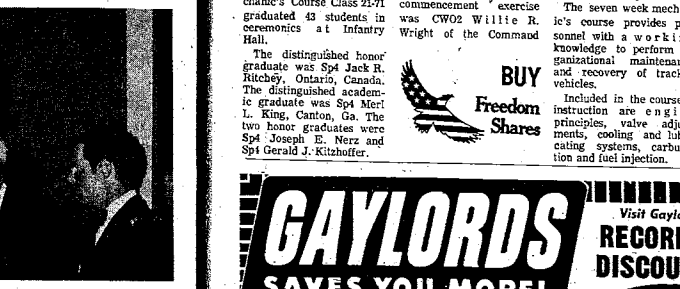
Gen. Talbott toured the center, located in classroom 52 of Infantry Hall, with Brig. Gen. John T. Carley, assistant commandant of the Infantry School; Richard Kneisel, education advisor to the Infantry School; and Al Ramsey, chief of the 3rd Army Training Aids Center.



The tour of the center was conducted by Col. Byron Greene, Director of Instruction at the Infantry School, and Capt. Terence Kennedy, officer-in-charge of the Learning Center.

The Learning Center consists of 29 carrels, each of which is an individual student learning booth, equipped with a casette tape player automatically synchronized with a 35mm slide projector, and in some cases, with a television monitor.

The Learning Center was made possible through the Modern Volunteer Army Concept when funds totalling $36,000 were made available for the establishment and evaluation of the center.

The evaluation will last until June 30. This trial period will determine the best methods of instruction to be used with this new concept so it will be most beneficial to the Infantry School students.

Most of the programs that are available in the Learning Center have been developed especially for use by students in the Infantry Officer Basic Course and Advanced Course. However, some are designed for general audiences—eventually, if the concept proves valid, material for other courses of instruction will be added.

For all ages

Brig. Gen. (ret.) James Crawford, (C) and 2nd Lt. Louis V. Hutchison, (R), converse with Adm. Thomas Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, at the U.S. Military Academy Founders Day Dinner held recently in the Main Post Officers Club. Gen. Crawford and Hutchison were the oldest and youngest Academy graduates at the event. Adm. Moorer, a 1933 graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy, was guest speaker at the dinner. The Founders Day affair is an annual reunion of Point alumni in the Fort Benning-Columbus-Phenix City area.

MPs help Columbus man

Fort Benning Military policemen recently helped out one of their civilian counterparts who lost his house and possessions in a fire.

Columbus police detective Joe Stubbs, who is married and has four children, was the victim of a fire about the middle of February which destroyed his house.

Military policemen at Fort Benning donated $136.50 to help Stubbs recover from the loss.

At a luncheon at the Black Angus in Columbus March 10 the money was presented to Stubbs by Col. Eugene J. Murdock, provost marshall, on behalf of the three military police companies at Fort Benning.

Officers for command jobs needed

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Challenging command and staff assignments are available throughout the world through the Military Assistance Officer Program.

The Army special career program for politico-military operations now has more than 300 members but needs more.

Officers in the program serve throughout the world, in major headquarters in the U.S. and in an exchange role with the Department of State.

Gift to 'Outstanding Soldiers'

13 take Atlanta holiday

By Wendell Cochran

"We got the best the house had to offer."

Sound like one big wig telling another about his vacation? Would you believe Sp4 Frank Selinsky's description of a weekend in Atlanta—courtesy of the U. S. Army.

Selinsky and 12 other Fort Benning soldiers spent Saturday and Sunday in Atlanta after they were selected as the outstanding soldiers on post last month.

Their reward was the trip to Atlanta. The Modern Volunteer Army sponsored program paid for transportation, the hotel bill, Saturday dinner and Sunday breakfast. Each soldier was also given $25 expense money.

"It was one of the best deals I have ever gotten out of the Army," Selinsky commented.

He said some of the group went to some of the city's nightclubs, while others visited family and friends in the city.

A group of 15 soldiers will be selected each month to participate in the program. Information about qualifying is available in each unit on post.

The trip to Atlanta is arranged by post Special Services personnel. Roger L. Miller, recreation director, accompanied the first group of soldiers to the state capital.

The Track Vehicle Mechanic's Course Class 21-71 graduated 43 students in ceremonies at Infantry Hall.

The distinguished honor graduate was Sp4 Jack R. Ritchey, Ontario, Canada. The distinguished academic graduate was Sp4 Merl L. King, Canton, Ga. The two honor graduates were Sp4 Joseph E. Nerz and Sp4 Gerald J. Kitzhoffer.

The guest speaker at the commencement exercise was CWO2 Willie R. Wright of the Command Maintenance Department.

The seven week mechanic's course provides personnel with a working knowledge to perform organizational maintenance and recovery of tracked vehicles.

Included in the course of instruction are engine principles, valve adjustments, cooling and lubricating systems, carburation and fuel injection.

While the students are attending the course here at Fort Benning they are assigned to the 15th Co., 1st Bn., TSB.

All four of the top graduates are National Guardsmen and will report to their hometown units.

Listening eyes, Irish eyes highlight wives' meetings

MEDDAC Wives

Listening Eyes School of Columbus was discussed at the March 12 luncheon of the Medical Department Activity Officers Wives Club.

Mrs. Billy D. Burk, program chairman, introduced Rev. Ray White who spoke to the group on the school, which is a private, non-profit training center, structured to teach the child with impaired hearing to communicate in a hearing world.

The school was organized in September 1968, by a group of parents having deaf children. Guidance from Auburn University Speech and Hearing Department has been invaluable. Individual therapy for infants and structured classrooms, from infancy through the first grade, are provided. A teacher and two students from the school demonstrated their skills in speech reading, auditory training and vocabulary concept development to the group.

A pink color scheme was used for the luncheon and reminded the ladies that spring was just around the corner. Tables were decorated with centerpieces of pink dogwoods.

Mrs. William C. Strong was chairman for the luncheon assisted by Mrs. John S. Clarke, co-chairman, and Mrs. Murray S. Abrams, Mrs. David Edwards, Mrs. Leo J. Flynn Jr., Mrs. Eric Larsen, Mrs. Arthur M. Marinari and Mrs. Randolph P. O'Connor, Jr.

Mrs. Martin F. Anderson, club president, welcomed and introduced the new arrivals including Mrs. Paul D. Anderson, Mrs. Jeffrey Carmel, Mrs. Gerald Casper, Mrs. Nathan Greece, Mrs. John Holmes, Mrs. Paul Kirkman, Mrs. Luis Oliver, Mrs. Gerard Osthelmer, Mrs. John Perchalski and Mrs. Lloyd Tressler.

Farewell was said to Mrs. Steven Saramanidis who also served as secretary for the club.

Mrs. Justin S. Zack had as her guest, her mother, Mrs. Max Zukowski.

Officer Candidate Wives

The 53rd Officer Candidate Wives Club held their third coffee, March 1 in the company dayroom.

The theme of the coffee was Patrick's Day. Mrs. Donald E. Bliss, wife of Lt. Col. Bliss, battalion commander, and Mrs. John Moscrip Jr., wife of Maj. Moscrip, executive officer, showed slides of officer candidate parties and discussed protocol.

Mrs. Brian Barnett, chairman, talked to the wives about the upcoming 12th week party.

Honor guests were Mrs. Bliss and Mrs. Moscrip.

197th Inf. Bde.

Shamrocks and leprechauns greeted the ladies of the 2nd Bn., 10th Arty., 197th Inf. Bde. March 9 in the Normandy Room of the Main Officers Club.

The hostesses for the 7:30 p.m. coffee were Mrs. James Whatley, Mrs. Joe Farmer, and Mrs. James Kalis. Their St. Patrick's Day theme was carried out in decorations as well as refreshments.

Mrs. Richard McKee and Mrs. Hollis Messer were welcomed by Mrs. John Krisko as the special guests of the evening. Mrs. Krisko also welcomed Mrs. Gary McLeod, Mrs. John McNeill and Mrs. Richard Gray. Farewell was said to Mrs. Geoffrey McMahon, whose husband is leaving Fort Benning at the end of the month. She was presented a silver ver charm representing her stay with the ladies of the 2nd Bn., 10th Arty.

A brief business meeting was conducted by Mrs. James Wurman, including a calendar look at functions on the agenda for the remainder of March and the first week of April.

At the conclusion of the coffee, Mrs. Wurman announced that the hostesses for the April coffee were Mrs. Ronald Pruitt and Mrs. William Borland.

Airborne, 197th wives attend March coffees

Airborne Wives

The officers' wives of the Airborne Department met for their monthly coffee March 10 at the home of Mrs. William J. Higgins III, on Stewart Avenue, Fort Benning, Ga. Mrs. Edward M. Chamberlain III, co-hostess, welcomed the ladies. Mrs. Robert H. Anspaugh served coffee as the ladies enjoyed delicious coffee cakes and fruit salad.

Mrs. Anspaugh, wife of the deputy director, opened the business meeting by welcoming Mrs. David G. Jesmer as guest to the meeting. Everyone was reminded of the upcoming OWC trip to Atlanta March 23. It was decided that the monthly meeting would be changed to the second Thursday of each month.

A cocktail party was announced for the officers and wives of the Airborne Department on March 26 at the Supper Club.

Farewell was said to Mrs. Lee D. Ellis Jr., who was given a beautiful silver warming dish in appreciation for her services.

For next month's meeting the ladies will attend the OWC Coffeehouse on April 14.

Hq, 197th Inf. Bde.

A green lepreehaun centerpiece added an Irish touch to the March coffee meeting of the ladies of Hq, 197th Inf. Bde., held in the home of Mrs. Edward Howard. Mrs. George Guill was co-hostess.

Following refreshments, Mrs. Lee Smith announced a Fashion Show at the April 21 luncheon, sponsored by the ladies of Support Bn.

Newcomers welcomed into the group were: Mrs. William Davis, Mrs. Erick Ortega, Mrs. Allen Hicketts, and Mrs. William Moody.

Farewell was said to Mrs. Stephen Sharpe.

POW wives eligible for educational benefits

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Among the 580,000 women eligible for educational benefits or home loans from the Veterans Administration are 1,000 wives of servicemen missing or captured in Southeast Asia.

A law signed by President Nixon made wives of servicemen listed for more than 90 days as missing in action, captured or "forcibly detained or interred in the line of duty by a foreign government of power" eligible for the benefits.

The largest female group eligible for VA programs is the 180,000 veterans of World War II and Korea. Their unused expired loan benefits were restored by law last October.

Another 160,000 women now in the service, or who served after Jan. 31, 1955, qualify under the current GI Bill for monthly checks for educational purposes and for the home loan program.

Family to be subject for religious seminar

Family Enrichment Week will be held at the Religious Education Center, Bldg. 2605 from 7:15 p.m. - 9 p.m. Sunday through Thursday.

This seminar will provide an opportunity for family problems and relationships to be discussed in the framework of the Christian faith. Is your family really together? Is the husband - wife relationship what it used to be and should be? How well do you communicate with your children? Have you found the key to happiness? What does the "Sermon on the Mount" have to say to you as an individual and to family relationships? Is your family maturing in relationships? Would you like to share in discussing some of these matters with others under the guidance of a Christian leader? Then come each evening and share in Family Enrichment Week.

The public is invited. A Free nursery for small children will be provided at the Religious Education Center.

The discussion leaders will be Chaplain (Maj.) Edwin J. Rowan, Chaplain (Maj.) Francis R. Caulder, Chaplain (Maj.) Chester R. Steffey, and Chaplain (Capt.) Harry W. Timm. The following schedule will be observed:

7:15 - 8 p.m. First Session; Group I—Study of Sermon of the Mount—Chaplain Rowan; Group II—Family Life Conference—Chaplains Caulder and Timm.

8-8:15 p.m. Coffee and fellowship.

8:15-9 p.m. Second Session; Group I—Family Life Conference—Chaplains Caulder and Timm; Group II—Study of Sermon on the Mount—Chaplain Steffey.

All Waiting Wives in the area are urged to come to this first meeting and have a voice in planning future programs. Further information about the group may be obtained by calling Army Community Services at 545-1633 or 545-1233.

ACS to re-establish post waiting wives club

Army Community Services is again sponsoring a Waiting Wives group here. The group is open to all wives residing in the Fort Benning-Columbus area whose husbands are serving overseas.

The newly re-organized group will hold its first meeting Tuesday in the Chapel Annex behind Main Post Protestant Chapel at 10 a.m. Mrs. Robert Hale is the chairman for the group. Plans will be made at the initial meeting as to what kind of meetings to hold in the future and what kind of activities will be planned.

Health agencies to make appeal soon

The Fort Benning campaign for the National Health Agencies and the International Service Agencies will begin March 29.

Col. Robert P. Hatcher, assistant post commander, held a briefing this week with campaign project officers. The drive will end May 7.

Eleven voluntary associations are combined under the National Health Agencies in their drive for funds to support research, education and community service to patients. These humanitarian activities depend entirely on contributions in their fight to provide better health for everyone throughout the United States.

Last year in Georgia alone these organizations treated and provided service to more than 300,000 patients suffering from heart disease, cerebral palsy, cancer, arthritis, multiple sclerosis, blindness and other crippling diseases.

The International Service Agencies consist of the American-Korean Foundation, CARE, Project HOPE and Planned Parenthood-World Population.

"The goal of these agencies is to assure better health for everyone . . . our goal at Fort Benning is a generous gift from everyone," said James F. Schoonover, post project officer.

During the campaign all personnel will be given distinctive envelopes which will be used for all donations. Individuals may contribute to specific organizations in each agency or he may make an unrestricted donation for distribution by the agency concerned.

Personal checks should be made out to the International Service Agencies, National Health Agencies, or to the specific organization desired.

Electricity may help bones heal

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — A Navy-sponsored study has provided the first documented evidence that electricity helps bone fractures heal faster.

In experiments at the University of Pennsylvania Medical School, fractured leg bones of animals subjected to electrical charges healed solidly in 18 days. Fractures treated without electricity require a much longer healing period, researchers said.

While it had been known for some time that electrical charges play a role in bone growth and healing, earlier investigations were inconclusive because of problems in delivering a constant current to the fracture.

The University of Pennsylvania researchers solved the problem by developing a "power pack" composed of a battery, transistorized circuit, and positive and negative electrodes.

When implanted beneath the skin, with the negative electrode secured directly across the fracture and the positive electrode nearby, the "power pack" delivers 100th of an ampere.

Work will continue with a variety of laboratory animals and variations in the placement of the electrodes, researchers said. Future experiments could include human patients suffering from fractured bones that have failed to join during a normal healing process.

Navy surgeons hope that the research will lead to procedures that may drastically reduce the time spent in hospitals while broken bones are mending.

The research is being conducted in conjunction with the Philadelphia Naval Hospital under a contract with the Office of Naval Research, with funds from the Navy's Bureau of Medicine and Surgery.

Deepest canyon

The deepest gorge in the world is Hells Canyon of the Snake River on the Oregon, Idaho border. It is 7,900 feet from rim to water.

No age immune from accidental choking

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — No age group is immune from accidentally choking to death according to the Red Cross in its latest safety message.

Last year, 1,300 persons in the U. S. died from ingesting or inhaling food or foreign objects that clogged their breathing passages. Half of the deaths occurred among children under five, and a third were persons over 45.

With young children, the Red Cross says, the danger from choking stems from their tendency to put practically everything into their mouths and their inability to properly chew food. And too, children tend to swallow automatically, rather than spit out a dangerous object.

To prevent choking among children, the Red Cross advises: Keep small objects — coins, safety pins, toys—out of reach. Buy only sturdy toys with no detachable small parts. Teach older children not to give a baby objects he can put in his mouth.

Among adults, one of the most prevalent causes of choking accidents is careless or lazy chewing habits, especially among people who wear dentures. Also persons tend to lose sensitivity in the mouth as they grow older, and bones are sometimes swallowed while eating foods such as fish and fowl.

If the person is breathing adequately, despite choking and coughing, it is best not to interfere with his efforts or to strike him on the back.

If efforts at expulsion stop and the victim is unable to breathe, he should be placed on his side (a child should be inverted on the rescuer's forearm with the head down), and firm blows should be delivered over the spine between the shoulder blades.

Mouth-to-mouth artificial respiration should be initiated promptly in an attempt to make air bypass the obstruction in sufficient amounts to sustain life. An attempt, at this stage, should be made to dislodge the foreign body with the fingers.

A physician should be consulted immediately, whether or not the ingested object is dislodged.

CHAMPUS provides orthodontic savings

DENVER — Substantial savings to CHAMPUS beneficiaries are the result of the interpretation of billings for orthodontic care.

Officials of the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services will now consider billings made on a quarterly basis for orthodontic care under the program for the handicapped as having been incurred during the month the bill was submitted, even though the services billed for may have been provided during each of the months comprising the quarter in question.

Under the CHAMPUS program for the handicapped, available only to the authorized dependents of active duty personnel, the sponsor has a fixed cost-sharing obligation based on his pay grade.

For example, the cost-sharing obligation for an E-6 is $30 a month. If the orthodontist's monthly charge was $35, the serviceman would pay $30 and the government would pay $5.

Under the new ruling, if the billing is made on a quarterly basis, the charge would be $105. The serviceman's cost would remain at $30, with CHAMPUS paying $75.

Aultman's parents are both employed at Fort Benning. His father is a bus driver in the service division of the U. S. Army Infantry Center. His mother is an editing clerk in the the Army Maintenance Management System section of the office of the Director of Industrial Operations.

Plan ahead

In the year 1999, New Year's Day will be on a Friday.

New tires need proper breaking in WASHINGTON (AFPS)—The proper breaking in of a new automobile tire is as important to a driver as the proper breaking in of a baseball glove is to a player.

Just as all athletes must give care and attention to their equipment, so must the automobile owner, says the Tire Industry Safety Council.

The council urges automobile owners to remember that the complex elements contained in tires need time to become adjusted to themselves, to the car, and to the other tires on the vehicle.

The council says that this is true of replacement tires as well as spare tires which have been in the trunk of the car for a period of time and tires on new automobiles.

Drivers breaking in tires should limit their speed to not more than 60 mph for the first 50 miles, the council advises.

Headstones provided

ATLANTA — Headstones or gravemarkers are available to the next-of-kin of deceased veterans without charge through the Department of the Army, said Georgia Veterans Service Director Pete Wheeler.

He said, "Any veteran of wartime or peacetime service is eligible provided that his last period of active service (other than for training) terminated honorably." Wheeler added that reservists who die while in the performance of active duty for training also are eligible.

"When a member of the Armed Forces dies while on active duty and circumstances prevent the recovery of his remains or be is buried at sea," Wheeler said, "his next-of-kin may apply for a memorial marker which may be erected in a private cemetery or in a memorial section of a national cemetery."

Persons desiring more information or assistance in filing applications for gravemarkers, headstones or memorial markers should contact any office of the Georgia Department of Veterans Service.

Speech

by this May," he said.

This would cut U. S. strength in Vietnam to almost half the size of two years ago.

"We now are on a course leading toward our disengagement," Adm. Moorer said. "I do not want to underestimate the problems ahead, but the critics should not overlook the progress of the past."

The admiral praised the efficiency with which the South Vietnamese are taking over the combat role in the conflict. "The ability of the South Vietnamese to conduct operations without U. S. ground force participation indicates the confidence and professional competence that have been developed within their military forces," he said, adding that "the Cambodia operation of last spring was instrumental in molding this confidence."

Adm. Moorer lauded President Nixon's "very courageous" decision to enter Cambodia, commenting that "the operation succeeded in accomplishing what it was designed to do — to disrupt the enemy sanctuaries, to capture or destroy his supplies and to deny him a supply route by sea.

"Denying the enemy these advantages has brought about a great reduction in American casualties and a decrease in hostile activity in Vietnam," he continued. "We have been able to withdraw American troops as planned and have bought time for the South Vietnamese to strengthen themselves."

On the South Vietnamese move in Laos, Moorer said, "we did not expect this could be an easy operation by any stretch of the imagination. The supply routes which constitute the Ho Chi Minh Trail are now critical for the enemy and he has chosen to fight for them, as we expected he would. There is hard fighting ahead, and we should expect some reversals as well as gains." But, he maintained, "the objectives are being achieved."

Adm. Moorer also backed the use of air power in Laos and Cambodia. "If we do not exploit our technological advantage in the air," he said, "we will surely delay the development of South Vietnamese defenses and extend the time required to achieve Vietnamization."

The admiral strongly reiterated U. S. determination to support our Vietnamese allies. "The United States has a commitment in Vietnam," he declared, "and we are not going to unilaterally withdraw from that area, turn the country over to the other side and impair American credibility all over the world."

In another point, Adm. Moorer warned that America's lead over the Soviet Union in certain areas of the arms race has become "tenuous." "The balance definitely has shifted in favor of the Soviet Union," he stated. "The comfortable lead we enjoyed five or six years ago has all but vanished, and within the next five or six years we could find ourselves in a position of overall strategic inferiority."

Adm. Moorer pointed out that since 1965 the Soviets have increased their ICBM force more than six times and now have more operational ICBM launchers than does this country. And in the production of SLBM launchers — similar to our Polaris submarines — the Soviets are expected to overtake us by 1974, he stated.

Despite this, the services are going to have to learn to live with a thinner defense income, Adm. Moorer stated. "Defense outlays for Fiscal Year (FY) 1972 represent only 6.8 per cent of the gross national product — the lowest since 1951 — and 32.1 per cent of the total Federal budget — the lowest since 1950," he said.

This will mean, he explained, "we will have fewer Army divisions, fewer carriers and commissioned ships in the fleet and fewer Air Force tactical squadrons than we had in FY 1964. With these reduced force levels we in the military must place even greater emphasis on quality, readiness and mobility than we have in the past."

Victory Pond Ranger demonstration area. Other accomplishments include enlargement of the Ranger memorial drop zone, clearing of a wildlife reserve, and providing support to the Engineer Committee during river crossing demonstrations at Bradley Landing.

In past years, the 818th had supervisory and maintenance control over operations at the post's sewage treatment and water treatment plants. These duties already have been turned over to the 43rd Engineering Battalion.

Sidler has been reassigned as executive officer of the 931st Engineer Group. The former executive officer of the 818th, Maj. Jimmy Powers, has been reassigned as operations and training officer with the 931st.

Sidler said that when he heard that hte 818th would be inactivated it upset him "because so many had worked so hard to achieve a high level of capability and readiness."

The 818th's colors will be maintained by the Department of Military History in New Cumberland Gap, Pa.

Soldiers in Nam can delay filing of tax form

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Military men and women in the Vietnam combat zone do not have to file a Federal income tax form until 180 days after they leave the war zone. They also are exempt from paying any interest on taxes due until the extension period is ended.

Other members of the armed forces serving overseas have until June 15 to file a Federal income tax return, but must pay any taxes due on or before April 15 to avoid interest charges.

Combat zones are designated by Presidential Executive Order. To date, the Republic of Vietnam is the only one listed as a combat zone. However, certain servicemen serving outside the area and supporting Vietnamese military operations under conditions which qualify them for hostile-fire pay may be granted the same tax benefits as those in Vietnam.

Service personnel injured in a combat zone and hospitalized outside the United States do not have to file a return until 180 days after hospitalization ends, or until their assignment in Vietnam ends, whichever is later.

When a Vietnam-returnee files a return, he should include the inclusive dates of war zone service and the date the tax return is due as a result of the 180-day extension. The same provision applies for those eligible for the hospital extension.

Students keep clean in Tracked Vehicle Course

By Tony Jones

Grimy hands and bruised knuckles are the usual trademark of a mechanic.

But student mechanics at Fort Benning do not exhibit these characteristics since their main concern is with learning principles and how to apply them.

One of three such courses operated by the U. S. Army in the United States, the Tracked Vehicle Mechanic Course at the U. S. Army Infantry School at Fort Benning takes young soldiers and in seven weeks and two days teaches them how to perform the duties of an organizational mechanic.

Using training aids that graphically depict such things as carburation, electricity and hydraulics, the students also gain an insight into basic engine principles of both gasoline and diesel power plants.

"Most students in the course have completed another seven-week course, the Wheel Vehicle Mechanic Course, or have received extensive on-the-job training as an organizational mechanic in a field unit," said CWO4 Adolph Mazeika, assistant chairman of the technical training committee of the Command Maintenance Department.

He said that the course at Fort Benning, along with similar courses at the U. S. Army Field Artillery School at Fort Sill, Okla., and the U. S. Army Armor School at Fort Knox, Ky., turn out about 6,600 tracked vehicle mechanics per year.

Mazeika said that the course, operated by the Command Maintenance Department, teaches future mechanics such academic subjects as maintenance management, engine and electrical subjects, troubleshooting, powertrains, hull and suspension systems, scheduled preventive maintenance services, hydraulic systems, and vehicle operations.

The students work on such Army vehicles as the armored personnel carrier, the self-propelled howitzer, the main battle tank, the armored reconnaissance airborne assault vehicle and two types of recovery vehicles, which are used to recover damaged or mired tracked vehicles.

Working on engines that range in size from the 283 cubic-inch Chevrolet engine that one would find in commercial one-half to three-quarter ton trucks, to the 1,790 cubic inch diesel engine used in the main battle tank, the students learn skills that, in civilian life, earn up to $6.50 per hour.

The student mechanics receives skilled instruction from military and civilian mechanics with many years of experience.

Distributed throughout three committees — the technical training committee, the maintenance supervision committee and the inspection and recovery committee — these instructors bring to their jobs knowledge which will enable the student mechanics to successfully operate as an organizational mechanic.

Not only does the Army expect the graduates of this course to perform duties as an organizational mechanic, but it also expects them to use the knowledge they gain in the course to instruct other young soldiers in their unit so that they, too, will be able to assist in the immense job of keeping the Army's tracked vehicles ready to roll at a moment's notice.

'Patriots' pick honor company

Co. C, 1st Bn. (Mech.), 58th Inf. ("Patriots"), 197th Inf. Bde. received the first "Patriot" Honor Company award at a recent battalion formation. Lt. Col. Stephen R. Pawlik, battalion commander, made the presentation to Capt. Robert Brown, company commander.

Each month, the "Patriots" chose an honor company based on each company's performance during the month. Unannounced inspections are made by members of the battalion staff using a 1,000-point check-list. Points are won or lost on such items as AWOL's, soldier of the month, driver of the month, reenlistments, roadside spotchecks, clerical efficiency, and troop and individual performance ratings.

For being the first to win the new award, Co. C received an Honor Company Plaque and a distinctive gold streamer for its guidon. For distinguishing themselves, the unit's soldiers received three days off.

For junior officers

DA eliminates automatic retention

A frequent complaint heard from junior officers is that there is no selective retention of junior officers.

Retention for the company grade officer interested in a career often appears to be almost automatic. To implement the concept of a quality volunteer Army, the Department of the Army has made recent changes to eliminate such automatic retention.

Now officers who have completed their two years of obligated service and who apply for a voluntary indefinite extension will serve a seven-month competitive voluntary indefinite period.

At the conclusion of this period, the officers' records will be evaluated and compared with those of his peers. Only the most qualified officers will be selected to be retained after their voluntary indefinite extension obligation of one year.

These qualified officers will be selected to fill vacancies in the fiscal year retention objective established for their career branch. Officers not selected for retention will be notified in writing by their career branch four months prior to the completion of their one year voluntary indefinite extension obligation.

After that year, they will be released from active duty.

Aviators will be notified during the 22nd month after completion of initial flight training. Officers obligation will be notified of selection or non-selection at the time of their application for indefinite status.

Officers who desire voluntary indefinite extension will compete for career with an initial four year status during their entire first 31 months active commissioned federal service This change applies to all officers entering active duty during FY '71 and to those who have not signed a voluntary indefinite agreement prior to Feb. 1, 1971.

Any questions on this change should be directed to your unit personnel officers.

Silver Star given to warrant officer

The Silver Star was awarded to CW2 Gregory S. Bowers of the 197th Avn. Co., Avn. Cmd., in a recent ceremony here.

Bowers was cited for actions, Feb. 14, 1970, while serving with the 11th Gen. Sup. Avn. Co., 11th Avn. Gp. 1st Cav. Div. (Airmobile) in the Republic of Vietnam.

On a reconnaisance mission Bowers' aircraft was hit by enemy fire, spun out of control and crashed. The pilot of the helicopter was pinned beneath the burning wreckage.

Bowers with the aid of another man was attempting to rescue the pilot when the craft suddenly exploded, wounding the warrant officer. Despite his injuries and the dangers of the flaming wreck, Bowers did not leave until he had freed the pilot and pulled him to safety.

The ceremony also was attended by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bowers of Kennesawa, Ga., parents of the warrant officer; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bowers Jr., of Acworth, Ga., his brother and sister-in-law; Steve, John and Grange Bowers, brothers; and Maj. John C. Stillman, 197th commander.

4 honored for putting out gasoline fire

Four civilians were each presented $100 and an Army Commendation Certificate recently for their efforts to put out a gasoline fire last summer in the Medium Truck Sub-Pool.

The action taken by Henry A. Sanderson, Lawrence Fleming, Joseph L. Gary and Harvey Smith, who work at the sub-pool, was estimated to have saved the government $20,000 in vehicles and buildings.

At ease

Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander, speaks to Cub Scout Kenneth Kepple, 8, son of SFC and Mrs. James Kepple, after receiving a ticket from him to the Scout-Skill-O-Rama, to be held from 1 to 7 p.m. March 27 at the Columbus Municipal Auditorium. Craft exhibits of Georgia and Alabama scouts will be featured. Tickets are being sold by participating scouts in the Chattahoochee area and also will be available at the door. The charge is for anyone over 8 years of age. Children under 8 will be admitted free as will registered scouts and unit leaders in uniform. Gen. Talbot, an eagle scout, is vice president of the Chattahoochee Council of the Boy Scouts of America.

POR Board not just another processing delay

By M. L. Wild

The Primary Overseas Replacement (POR) Board at Fort Benning was established for the benefit of personnel processing for overseas replacement, though at times it may seem as though it is just another delay before you can begin your leave.

Processing at the POR Board will give you guidance in overseas movement and insure that all of your records—personnel, finance and health—are accurate and up to date.

The POR Board goes over your DA Form 201 File and insures that all your training and weapons qualifications are accurate and that information on your emergency data card is complete and correct.

Finance is important to everyone, and the POR Board plays a major role in insuring that your pay has been correct in the past and will continue to be so in the future.

Your health records also are closely screened to insure that your physical is current. Think what might happen if you went overseas without the necessary immunizations?

The POR BOARD does one more important thing aside from checking your records. It will give you guidance and specific information in your movement overseas. It will advise you in the areas of passport requirements, transportation, shipment of household goods and dependent travel.

The POR Board was established to make your movement overseas as smooth as possible and it can solve some problems before they get started.

Officers' council conducts meet

A briefing on the Benning House program by Capt. James D. Adelman, the program's clinical director, highlighted a recent meeting of the Fort Benning Company Grade Officers' Council.

In identifying efforts of the program in helping alcoholics and drug abusers, Adelman pointed out that 168 alcoholics and more than 300 drug abusers had availed themselves of treatment.

Pointing out that the program is enjoying full command support, Adelman further noted that as a result of VOLAR, the Benning House staff will be increased from four to 17, with a parallel expansion of facilities.

Adelman said small unit leaders were crucial to the program's success.

Benning House personnel hope to eventually establish bi-weekly liaison visits to every company commander at Fort Benning, Adelman commented. He said that once commanders are educated in the causes, manifestations and treatment of alcoholism and drug abuse, they can help the individual through counselling and referral.

In other council business it was noted that Fort Benning will receive a shipment of 22 school buses as a result of recommendations made by the council.

It was mentioned that the Bachelor Officers' Quarters billeting office intends to subscribe to cable television, when available, for all BOQ lounges. Also noted was the posting of an extra military policeman at the intersection of Custer and Santa Fe Roads from 4:15 to 5:30 p.m.

Awards given to 6 civilians

Col. H. Haskell Zierman, Martin Army Hospital commander, presented incentive awards to six civilians March 10.

Mrs. Ora L. Coe of the Department of Clinics, Levy H. Cook of the Department of Medicine, and Mrs. Alice F. Williamson and Mrs. Marjorie S. Rigdon of Personnel were presented outstanding awards and quality step increases.

Mrs. Faye H. Hinson of Food Service and Mrs. Linda F. Whatley of Physical Examination were awarded sustained superior performance awards of $150.

Any day but Monday, social security advises

"Don't call the social security office on Monday." This rather odd bit of advice was given by Robert E. O'Neal, district manager of the Columbus office.

"Dont get us wrong", he hastened to explain, "it isn't that you're not welcome it's just that Monday is our busiest day. We've found through the years that folks do more social security business on Monday than on any other day of the week. As a result the telephone lines are jammed with calls."

O'Neal went on to say many would be applicants get a busy signal when they dial. Persistant callers frequently find when the line is clear that the interviewers are tied up with in-office visitors.

To unscramble the Monday bottleneck of blocked lines O'Neal proposes a simple solution—"Hold off until Tuesday, or call Wednesday, Thursday or Friday.

"In other words phone any day but Monday."

For open lines and speedy service make it a rule to call social security on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday or Friday from 8:45 a.m. to 5 p.m. Dial 324-5188 but—barring emergency—NEVER ON MONDAY.

CO. D BEGINS CHATTAHOOCHEE TRIP

Cruising down the Chattahoochee

91st Engrs. off on river trip

By Bob Wise

Anyone for a 200-mile float trip down the Chattahoochee River? Or how about five days of engineer reconnaissance training? Well, grab a fishing pole and a life jacket and head out with Co. D, 91st Engr. Bn., 197th Inf. Bde., for an exciting adventure.

Attached to the 197th Support Bn., 29 members of Co. D, 91st Engrs., left Monday morning for a full week of "adventure training." A new Modern Volunteer Army concept, "adventure training" is intended to provide both an education and a good time for the troops.

Under the supervision of their company commander Capt. William G. Holt, two lieutenants and 26 enlisted men shoved off from Bradley Landing in four light tactical raft pontons (which resemble 18-foot fishing boats) with plans to make the Florida Gulf Coast sometime this afternoon.

The volunteers for the week of "adventure training" were given a proper farewell as Holt's wife, Donna, christened the first boat, VOLAR 1, with a bottle of beer. 197th Inf. Bde. Commander Col. Willard Latham and Lt. Col. Church M. Matthews Jr., 197th Spt. Bn. commander, also were present for the send-off.

It was Holt's idea to take the trip. His engineers plan to paddle and float an average of 35 miles a day stopping overnight at various state park camping grounds. The Monday night stop was at a camp ground on Lake Eufaula.

It was believed to be the first time a company of Fort Benning soldiers has ever undertaken a journey of this type.

Holt said they would call in their progress every afternoon from one of four major points. The first three checkpoints would be the three locks through which they would pass. The fourth and last checkpoint would be at the mouth of the Apalachicola River on the Gulf of Mexico, their planned destination.

Barring unusually bad weather or high water, the men of the 91st Engrs. should stay right on schedule. They plan to return late this afternoon by bus.

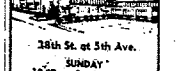
About 30 soldiers from HHC, 197th. Bde., planned to take a similar trip today. The HHC soldiers will float to Lake Seminole, Fla., or about one half the distance travelled by the 91st Engrs.

Army can take action

The Department of the Army does not condone an attitude of irresponsibility or evasiveness by its personnel toward their just, private indebtedness or financial obligations. A member of the Armed Forces is expected to meet his obligations in a proper and timely manner.

Complaints of civil indebtedness or financial obligations are received at installation level and are forwarded through proper channels to the immediate commanding officer of such member for action.

Commanding officers will not tolerate actions of irresponsibility, cross carelessness, neglect, dishonesty or evasiveness in the private indebtedness and financial obligations of their personnel.



If, after consideration of all factors, a commanding officer believes that a member of his command has dishonorably failed to pay his just debts, disciplinary action may be initiated under Articles 15, 133 and 134 of the Universal Code of Military Justice (UCMJ). Even if disciplinary action is not taken, letters of indebtedness may be taken into consideration in assessing the character of the individual in relation to various favorable personnel actions.

Letters of indebtedness also may be harmful to an individual's conduct rating. This can prevent an individual from being awarded the Good Conduct Medal. Since many potential employers are veterans, failure to earn evidence of good conduct may limit employment opportunities.

Finally, your eligibility for an honorable discharge certificate can be threatened by letters of indebtedness. Although a general discharge is given under honorable conditions, your possession of the second best could embarrass you among your family and friends, most of whom know the difference.

Keep your personal financial affairs in order and protect your reputation as a good soldier.

1st Div. Society to hear Black

The Fort Benning Chapter of the Society of the 1st Division will meet tonight from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. at the Gold Bar Club.

Charles Black, military writer for the Columbus Ledger - Enquirer newspaper, will be guest speaker.

Maj. Howard S. Stanfield, secretary of the Fort Benning Chapter, said all members of the 1st Division are invited to attend. However, membership in the society is not required for attendance. Anyone here who is on orders to the 1st Division, which is at Ft. Riley, Kan., also is invited, he said.

Black is a noted writer and lecturer with a broad military background. He has covered the Vietnam war for the Columbus newspapers and, most recently, toured the Mideast. Tonight, he will be giving his impressions of the Middle east situation and how it relates to Russian strategy.

'Review' tells Soviet thinking

FORT LEAVENWORTH, Kan. — The Soviet military mind, disarmament and international recruiting are featured in the March issue of the "Military Review," the Army's monthly professional journal.

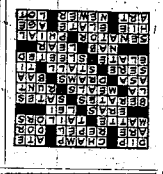
Dr. Alfred L. Monks writes of the "Evolution of Soviet Military Thinking" in one of three front cover articles. Monks is an assistant professor of political science at the University of Wyoming in Laramie.

Monks discusses military thought since the death of Joseph Stalin in 1953 in terms of Soviet foreign policy and defense. He pays special attention to Khrushchev's strategic missile forces and peculiar theories on the nature of future wars.

A second front cover article is George D. Damien's seeming paradox, "Arming Through Disarmament." Damien, a native of Bulgaria, is a consultant and lecturer of New York City. He has lectured on the philosophy of conflict at various universities and serves as consultant to the Foreign Policy Research Institute at the University of Pennsylvania.

Damien addresses the question of whether the USSR is interested in arms control and why. He dismisses as absurd the idea of "total disarmament," and he analyzes the Soviet strategy of "arming by disarming."

The final front cover feature is "Comparative Recruiting Systems" by Professor Albert A. Blum. Blum is with the School of Labor and Industrial Relations at Michigan State University.



The professor examines the recruiting systems of Canada, France, the United Kingdom, West Germany, Australia and the USSR regarding universal conscription, selective service and all-volunteer forces.

Six other original articles appear this month. One of these—"Mental Health in Commerce"—was written by a student at the college, Lt. Col. Robert L. Pettera, Medical Corps, U.S. Army. Another was written by a faculty member at the CGSC, Maj. Harold G. Summers Jr., U.S. Army. He wrote an essay on "Power: The Crucible of Conflict in the Sino-Soviet Dispute."

Other articles appearing include "Where Does Killing End and Murder Begin in War?," Col. Robert B. Rigg, U.S. Army, retired; "Spain and NATO," Eugene Hinterhoff; "Israel's Quest for Military Self-Sufficiency," Martin J. Miller Jr., and "The Logic Tree," Robert C. Deasy.

Dixie Jubilee

It's synonymous to turkey at Thanksgiving, or watching the movie "Scrooge" each year during the Christmas Holidays, and to colored eggs for Easter. It's Dixie Jubilee time in Columbus, Ga.

For the twelfth year the Sertoma Club is "bringing back those wonderful days and the great tunes of the yesteryears that everyone loves." From its unprecedented stirring opening tonight to the roaring, rousing grand finale on Sunday, the jubilee will prove itself again.

The 1971 version is a minstrel and vaudeville show featuring song and dance reminiscent of vaudeville and the good ole time minstrel shows.

Ninety performers have practiced some 2,000 hours during rehearsals to bring you this artful and elegant reconstruction of the old days. Included in the cast are six traditional endmen who claim, "We've spent a year borrowing, swiping and making up new jokes."

The illustrious Jubilee Chorus will again be featured to rouse your memories and set your heart and feet pounding with renditions of old favorites such as "Bill Bailey," "Swannee River," "Harvest Moon," "Goodbye, My Lady Love" and many more.

The singers, dancers and various acts provide two full hours (each day) of great entertainment.

Performances are tonight and tomorrow night at 8 p.m. and Sunday at 2:30 p.m. in the Three Arts Theatre.

Columbus Festival Days

AND, ten more days of fun. Beginning March 26, Fort Benning and Columbus will be going "all out" for your entertainment and enjoyment.

During the ten day happening there will be a Spring Pilgrimage tour of homes in the Historic District, museum of arts and crafts, fire demonstration by Columbus Fire Department, airborne and scout dog demonstrations, operas, art shows, fishing rodeos, concert by the Infantry Chorus, chipping contest, square dancing, fashion show, Braves baseball, plus sundry other fun-filled activities for the entire family.

Approximately 20 clubs and organizations will sell, display and demonstrate their products and services along the median of Broadway downtown.

The OWC will be distributing free Dogwood and Pine trees on April 2 and 3.

"Festival Days" in Columbus is a grand opportunity for residents and guests to get acquainted with what's happening in Columbus and Fort Benning.

College Art Show

Columbus College is holding its first annual faculty art show in the lobby of Fine Arts Hall on campus. The work will be on display until April 2.

The event is the college's way of giving the public a chance to meet members of the college's art faculty. The merits of the staff are really outstanding and some eye-catching and beautiful work is on display. If you're near the campus be sure to stop and linger in the Fine Arts Hall awhile.

38 Alabama students take a look into future

Fort Benning's Infantry School played host last week to 38 members of the University of Alabama Reserve Officer Training Course (ROTC) Ranger Company.

The two-day orientation tour gave the cadets an inside look at the life of a second lieutenant.

While at Fort Benning the cadets lived in the transient officer quarters at Henry Hall and ate in the officer field ration mess. These are the same facilities which the cadets would have used had they been lieutenants attending the Infantry Officer Basic Course.

Highlights of the visit included rappelling training provided by the Ranger Department, Airborne training at Eubanks Field, and a demonstration of scout dog techniques. The group also toured post facilities, including the Officers Club.

Director appointed for 'Revengers' film

NEW YORK — Daniel Mann has been signed to direct "The Revengers," which Martin Rackin Productions will co-produce with Productions Enriques, S. A. of Mexico for Cinema Center Films.

Mann, noted Broadway and motion picture director, most recently completed direction of "Willard," a Bing Crosby Productions feature, starring Ernest Borgnine, scheduled for June release. Previously, he directed "A Dream of Kings," which starred Anthony Quinn and the late Inger Stevens.

Among Mann's outstanding motion picture credits, after a distinguished career on Broadway, are the film versions of "Come Back, Little Sheba," for which Shirley Booth was awarded an Oscar, and Anna Magnani's Oscar-winning performance in "The Rose Tattoo," both vehicles directed by Mann on Broadway: "I'll Cry Tomorrow," "Teahouse of the August Moon," "The Last Angry Man," and "Butterfield 8," which starred Elizabeth Taylor in an Academy Award-winning role.

"The Revengers," an action-adventure western drama written by Wendell Mayes from an original story by Steven Carabatsos, is the first Martin Rackin Productions feature in a multiple-picture agreement with Cinema Center Films. Production is scheduled to begin in April on locations in Mexico.

Synopsis

BATTLE OF BRITAIN (Rated G). This multi-million-dollar film revives heroic epic of the Misadventures' finest hour.

It's the story of the first and last complete war in the air which lasted over a period of 16 weeks during the summer of 1940, after the British defeat in Dunkirk.

It was one of the most decisive aerial combats ever fought and certainly one of the most crucial battles in history.

MACHINE GUN McCAIN (Rated GP). After serving hard of his life sentence for armed robbery, Machine Gun McCain (John Cassavetes) is pardoned through the resources of the Western Coast gangchief, Charlie Adamo (Peter Falk).

In return for his release McCain, along with his son and Adamo's men, is to carry out a $2 million theft at the Nevada Naval Installation.

GIRLY (Rated R). This horror-drama is the story of a very interesting family who live in "The Big Old House."

The bizarre family is given to peculiar and dangerous games, yet they are loving, charming, beautiful and deadly as "new friend" (Michael Bryant) soon discovers.

Girly (Vanessa Howard) is chillingly seductive; Mommy is an elegant matriarch like no other and Sonny (Howard Trevor) is the strangely bulimic male.

JOE (Rated R). Is perhaps the first motion picture to deal with the lifestyle of contemporary middle America.

The film tells the often touching, frequently amusing story of two widely contrasting figures, Joe Curran (Peter Boyle), homeowner, laborer, and World War II veteran who earns $160 a week and Bill Compton (Dennis Patrick) a $65,000 a year advertising executive.

Despite their contrasting degrees of sophistication, they are drawn together by a common violent and often envy of youth. When Bill's daughter, Melissa (Susan Sarandon), becomes enmeshed in an East Village environment of drugs, Bill and Joe lash back with a misdirected vengeance that is a timely and stunning commentary on the consequences of radical violence in America.

Parents Please Note: While JOE has received an "R" (Restricted) rating from the Motion Picture Code and Rating Authority, it is a thematured movie and very frank movie. Parents' Urged, Sex and Violence in a big city. Parents are especially reminded that this movie may not be acceptable entertainment for their children.

NCOC 502 recognizes 2 students

Sgt. Fredrick E. Ganaway, Decatur, Ill., was named distinguished graduate and academic graduate of the Noncommissioned Officer Candidate Course Class 502-71 (11B) which graduated March 9 in Marshall Auditorium, Infantry Hall.

Sgt. Michael A. Dougherty, Sulphur, La., was the leadership graduate, and MSgt. Jeffie V. Green, Airborne Department, was the guest speaker at the graduation.

For their achievements Ganaway and Dougherty each received a letter of commendation from Brig. Gen. John T. Carley, assistant commandant of the Infantry School, an engraved "Follow Me" plaque, an engraved "Follow Me" statuette, and an engraved Association of the United States Army plaque.

Ganaway and Dougherty were two of 162 new NCOs graduating from the 70th Co., 8th Stu. Bn., TSB. Both the honor graduates will stay with the 70th Co. as tactical NCOs.

Parachute club elects officers

Fort Benning Sport Parachute Club elected new officers at a General Membership meeting held recently. Serving new six-month terms are Maj. Kenneth R. Johnston, president; SFC Richard E. Gibbs, vice-president; and Lt. Col. James L. Anderson; Capt. Lee C. Dunlap, Capt. Charles E. Whittle, Capt. Robert B. Harris Jr., SSgt. David E. Millhorn as the Board of Governors.

The Parachute Club officers and members are presently renovating the facilities and revising their training program. All military personnel interested in sport parachuting (either free fall or "sport static line" technique) are invited to join the club. For further information call 545-4947 or stop by Bldg. 1203.

Engineers start radio training

An intensive program for the training of radio-telephone operators began this week in the 331st Engineer Group with the establishment of a radio net in the group communications sections.

The operation will serve the dual purpose of providing instruction for communications personnel and coordinating a communications network in case of an emergency.

The need for the training exercise became apparent during the recent work done by group engineers to save the Santa Fe Road Bridge from the swollen Upatoi Creek. Group communications officer, Capt. Buford K. Prater Jr. said, "Good communications were maintained during the operation but it could have been better from a professional viewpoint."

Prater also said that many of the soldiers working in the various communications units have had no formal training in the finer points of military communications and that specialized training is necessary.

The radio net also will be used as the primary information outlet for future emergencies and it will be used on a day to day basis to increase the proficiency of the various communications units in the Engineer Group.

The operation will be in constant use from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday with someone constantly on call after hours and on weekends.

'Rozell Show' to highlight Benning youth

Several Fort Benning military personnel, including Brig. Gen. John T. Carley, assistant commandant of the Infantry School, will be featured on the "Rozell Show" March 23 on WRBL-TV 3.

The entire week of March 21 through March 27 is dedicated by Rozell to young people. The week, called "Speak Up for Young Americans" is an annual feature on the morning program. Rozell says the purpose of the program is to "spotlight the many fine accomplishments and attitudes of the majority of young people and to bring them to the attention of the people at large."

The program on March 23 will be devoted entirely to Fort Benning and to the military community. The "Rozell Show" can be seen from 8 to 9 a.m. on WRBL-TV 3.

Digest talks turkey about income tax

CAMERON STATION, Va. — Death and taxes are always with us but because you plan on living it up a while longer, Army Digest talks turkey about taxes in the April issue.

"Tax Tips for Servicemen" highlights some of the important provisions of the new tax law, tells you about some items that are deductible and some that are no-no's. With about 1 month to go until tax filing deadline, you can bone up on the official tax word by reading the Army's official magazine.

"Suicide Squad Spells Survival" is an on-the-spot adventure story developed around Apollo 14. Bet you didn't realize that two Army medical technicians have important if unseen standby roles — just in case disaster strikes the monster rocket. Their life's a gamble at blastoff time.

If sports are your bag read "Sports for All," an across-the-board look at the Army's worldwide athletic activities. Judging from past performances, at least 20 per cent of the 1972 U.S. Olympic team will be members of the Armed Forces and they will win about 21 per cent of the American Olympic medals.

Also — big and in focus — are intramural sports, events usually starting at company level that attract some 650,000 Army participants annually. Don't miss this fast-paced account of the Army's commitment to sports.

Then read about a "game" played without rule books and played for keeps. It's the night ambush, — and "Darkness is Deadly" pulls no punches in telling what it's like to dodge death in a tag match with the enemy in Vietnam.

A companion piece is "Call in the Gunships."

By Bill Kloeb

There were a lot of fishermen out last weekend and they caught a lot of fish. Despite the rain fishing was good for just about every type fish found in the Georgia waters. The big ones seemed to be in hiding though so the Rod and Gun Fishing Derby leaders didn't change at all.

SFC Robert Almenares, 5813 Luna Drive, still leads the catfish contest with his two-pound catch from Kings Pond; SFC Ronny McDaniel, 3rd Ranger Company, has the largest bream, and the largest bass registered so far this month belongs to 1st Sgt. Henry Ferris, 71st Co., TSB. The bass caught by Ferris weighed in at 8 pounds, 7 ounces and could hold up as the winner for the rest of the month, but the bream registered by McDaniel was less than a pound.

Fishing Bait

Col. (ret.) Reuben Kyle, known in these parts as the dean of turkey hunters, dropped by the Information Office last week. As usual turkey were his number one subject but he did leave his favorite recipe for fish bait. He starts with two cups of flour, adds a half cup of water, two teaspoons of sugar, four teaspoons of vanilla flavoring and three teaspoons of maple syrup. He mixes this well and places in refrigerator for three days. After three days he takes it out and rolls the mixture into small balls to fit a hook. According to the colonel, it's good for catfish, bass or bream. It sounds like a sure winner. If the fish don't bite on it you can always give it to the kids and tell them it's candy.

There have been several questions about seining for minnows on the reservation. It's illegal to sein in any of the post ponds but seining for minnows in streams is permitted. The regulation states that when seining, care must be taken to return edible fish to the stream. Some fishermen may like to try this but it could use up a lot of fishing time and not produce any minnows either. A much surer way is to buy them at the Rod and Gun Club.

Bass Club Fishing Rodeo

The Georgia-Alabama Bass Club is sponsoring a Bass Fishing Rodeo to be held during the Columbus Festival Days celebration March 26 through April 3.

The club is offering more than $2,000 in merchandise prizes to lucky contestants. The grand prize is a fishing boat with motor and trailer valued at $850. Other prizes include depth finders, bat motors, ice chests, rods and reels and other fishing tackel.

Headquarters for the tournament will be at the Lake Oliver Municipal Marina. Entry fee is $5 and rules and entry blanks may be obtained at the Columbus Chamber of Commerce, sporting goods stores, bait and tackle shops and the Post Rod and Gun Club.

Beware of Snakes

The weather has been deceptive this spring. With all the bad weather caused by rain the fact that we have had quite a few warm days has passed unnoticed by most people but blooming flowers and new leaves on trees can only confirm the fact that the snakes in the area have also noticed the warming trend. It's not too early for some of them to come from underground to test the weather.

These first warm sunny days they like to get out and soak up the available warmth. Favorite spots are on large boulders and stumps out of the wind.

There are four types and 20 different species of poisonous snakes in our area. Some, like the coral snake, are rarely seen but others are numerous and reported almost every day.

The rattler and the cottonmouth or moccasin are the most common. The moccasin restricts its activities to the swampy areas found near ponds or along the edges of streams but the rattler can be found in almost any area on the reservation.

Snakes are really not dangerous unless molested. They don't want any part of man any more than he wants anything to do with them. They will try to get away if they have a chance but if they feel that they have been cornered they curl up to defend themselves.

The odds are more than a million to one that you will not be bitten by a poisonous snake and you can increase these odds by a lot by taking a few precautions:

Wear boots while in the field and watch where you step. The feet and legs are the most likely places for a snake to strike. Watch where you place your hands. If you can't see what you are touching — you might be touching a snake. If you just observe these simple rules you will probably have no trouble with snakes.

3rd Army cagers to play new handball game

By Bill Kloeb

Team handball, a game new to Fort Benning, will be played here for the first time when 12 teams represeoting posts throughout the 3rd Army Area play in a one-day tournament on Doughboy Field beginning at 10 a.m. tomorrow.

Two handball leagues will be formed from the basketball teams playing in the 3rd Army Basketball championships which are scheduled to end tonight. Teams from Ft. Rucker, Ft. Jackson, Ft. Campbell, Ft. Bragg, Ft. Gordon and Fort Benning will form one league. Ft. McClellan, Ft. McPherson, Redstone Arsenal, Hunter Army Air Field, Homestead Air Force Base and Ft. Stewart teams will make up the second league.

Team handball originated in Europe at the turn of the century. International rules were adopted for the game in 1924 and since then it has gained popularity throughout the world. In 1936 it was accepted as a sport to be played during the team competition of the Olympic games. This year and next the game will receive emphasis in the Army Sports Program to develop players for a team to represent the United States during the 1972 Olympic games.

To accomplish this objective the game will be played intramurally at all Army posts during the spring of this year. This summer post teams will compete in sectional competition and Army championships will be played during the fall of the year.

DEFENSE PLAYERS SCRAMBLE FOR POSSESSION OF HANDBALL

Members of the post Special Services Sports Section conducted a clinic for game officials here last month. In April a major unit league will be formed on post. This league will conduct play until September when a team will be selected to represent Fort Benning in the 3rd Army championships which are scheduled for October.

The game may be played indoors or outdoors. The playing area measures approximately 100 feet in length and 50 feet in width. Goals similar to hockey goals are located at each end of the field.

The objective of the game is to maneuver an inflated leather ball approximately five inches in diameter into the goal being defended by the opposing team. The ball may be moved by throwing, hitting, kicking, butting or passing it from one player to another. One point is scored each time a team penetrates the goal of the opposing team.

A playing team consists of seven players: One goal tender, three offensive and three defensive players. Other players may be substituted throughout the course of the game but the number of players representing one team may never be more than seven.

The time limit of games may be varied but generally consists of two halves of approximately 20 minutes duration. A rest period is scheduled between each half.

Play is started by the referee who throws the ball onto the playing field between the players of the opposing teams who are lined up opposite one another at the center of the field. The play of the game is similar to basketball. Tall players have an advantage but this can be offset by shorter players with speed and agility.

The tempo of the game is similar to ice hockey. There are few interruptions or penalties.

The number of players make it difficult to follow the play of the ball until the spectator becomes used to the speed of play.

But after a while the techniques of defensive players and maneuvers of offensive players can be appreciated and movement of the ball anticipated. At this time the spectator can settle down to enjoy one of the fastest team games played on foot.

W. L. Shirk honored graduate

Capt. William L. Shirk was the distinguished graduate of Infantry Officer Basic Course Class 13-71 which graduated in ceremonies March 9 at Marshall Auditorium, Infantry Hall.

Col. Jere O. Whittington, chief of the staff group, Brigade and Battalion Operations Department, delivered the commencement address to the 175 graduates.

The nine-week IOBC program is designed to provide branch training for officers of the Active Army, National Guard and the Army Reserve. The students were taught the duties and responsibilities of company grade officers. Included in the course of instruction were small arms, mortar, company and platoon operations.

Takes Mid-Winter Pistol title

USAMTU's Clark leads 242 national shooters

SFC Hezekiah Clark of the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit led his pistol division to a clean sweep of the National Mid-Winter Pistol Championships at Tampa, Fla., topping a field of 242 of the nation's best military, civilian and police marksmen.

In winning the grand aggregate and mid-winter championship Sunday, Clark captured two of three sub aggregates, the center fire and .45 caliber matches while his team mate, MSgt. Robert Whitacre won the .22 caliber.

Clark's grand total score was a resounding 2655-139, just two points below the record score for the Mid-Winter tourney and nine points ahead of his closest competitor, WO Francis Higginson of the Quantico Marines.

The USAMTU master shooters withstood repeated challenges from strong Marine Corps competitors to take seven of eight major aggregate championship matches. Additionally, the Fort Benning based unit's personnel won a total of 16 first place awards, 13 second place awards, and 11 third places during the firing of 28 individual matches.

SSgt. Barbara Hile of the USAMTU captured her third consecutive mid-winter title in the womens division when she fired 2490.

In the International matches fired March 11 and 12, the USAMTU divided the four match series equally with the Quantico Marine shooters but lost out in the grand aggregate when Gunnery Sgt. Jimmie Dorsey sneaked by Clark in a decision maker score in the rapid fire event.

Of the four international sub aggregates, Clark won the center fire with a 592 while stable mate SFC James McNally won the free pistol match with a 545. The other two matches were won by Marines firers when Lt. Col. William McMilland and Dorsey won the Rapid Fire and Standard Pistol matches with a 587 and 583.

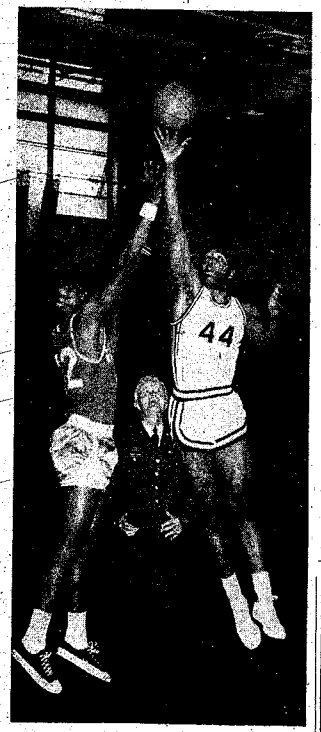
Team matches in the International events were won handily by the Army firers when the U. S. Army "Gray" team fielded by the USAMTU compiled an aggregate of 9089 to beat their nearest competition by 71 points. The team included stand-out pistol shooters Whiacre, SFC James McNally, SSgt. Jimmy McCauley and SSgt. John Smith.

U. S. Army Marksmanship Training members also conducted a marksmanship clinic during the tournament which was open to match competitors and the general public.

National competitive team matches were fired Monday. These matches on the final day of the tournament included four matches with a grand aggregate champion. Last year the U. S. Marine teams won two of the sub aggregates and the grand aggregate with a 3476-129.

With prizes galore

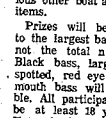
Bass Rodeo to open in Columbus



A bonanza of prizes awaits lucky bass fishermen in the upcoming Columbus Festival Days Bass Rodeo.

The rodeo is being sponsored by the Georgia-Alabama Bass Club in conjunction with Columbus Festival Days thru the Chamber of Commerce. It will be held April 3 at Lake Oliver with headquarters at the Municipal Marina.

First prize will be a boat, motor, and trailer. Other prizes include trolling motors, electronic depth finder, deluxe Charbroilers, coolers, and various other boat and fishing items.



Prizes will be awarded to the largest bass caught, not the total number. Black bass, large mouth, spotted, red eye or small mouth bass will be eligible. All participants must be at least 18 years old. Entry fee is $5 per person.

Complete rules and entry forms are available at your favorite fishing supplies dealer, marine dealer, Fort Benning Rod and Gun Club or at the Chamber of Commerce.

They're off

Charles Fletcher, post sergeant major, steps back and watches as Dave Kyle (44), Ft. Campbell, and Bob Bishop, Ft. Jackson go up for the tipoff to start the first game of the 3rd Army Basketball Tournament being held here this week. Campbell won the game, 88 to 75. The final game of the tournament will be played between Fort Benning and Ft. Bragg at Briant Wells Field House this evening at 8:30.....

'Doughboys' knocked out of Bibb Tourney finals

Langdale, spurred on by a brilliant performance from 5-foot-7 Dewey Williams, shocked defending champion and top-seeded Fort Benning, 107-103, at Comer Auditorium Wednesday night and forged into the semifinals of the 28th annual Bibb Invitational Basketball tournament.

Langdale finished third in the competition, behind champion Bibb Manufacturing Company and Tom's Food. The tournament ended Saturday night.

Williams came off the bench to score 23 points, rebounded against much taller opposition and befuddled the Doughboys with his ball handling and defensive play.

Sharpshooting Jimmy Jones was high scorer for Langdale with 30 points, bagging 17 of them in a pressure - packed second half. Hugh Corless, former LaGrange College standout, tossed in 29 points for the victors, while Billy Tinker also was in double figures with 13.

Don Scales scored 28 points for Fort Benning, while Don Townsend, Mike Beckethimer and John Black, contributed 17 each and Charlie Brown bucketed 14.

Fort Benning scored the first eight points of the game but Langdale battled back to knot the score, 44-44, at halftime. Surprising Langdale was out front virtually all the second half and at one time boasted a 12-point advantage.

Putting up net

MSgt. Michael D. Fox, Capt. Robert L. Parker, and SFC Robert F. Davis (L-R), HHC, 331st Engr. Gp., are not wasting any time in preparing for the volleyball season. Vigorous inter-group competition is expected and the headquarters company team is making early preparations for practice...

ROTC rifle match to be held at Parks

The annual Herb Atkins Memorial Trophy Junior ROTC Rifle Match will be held tomorrow at Parks International Smallbore Range.

Junior ROTC rifle terms from Robert E. Lee Institute, Thomaston, Ga.; Central High School, of Macon, Ga.; Enterprise High School, Enterprise, Ala.; and Baker, Carver, Columbus, Hardaway, Jordan, Kendrick and Spencer high schools from Columbus will participate in the tournament.

The match, named in honor of the memory of the late CWO Herbert R. Atkins, assistant director of instruction for Muscogee County Schools, will feature four-man teams firing one-quarter of the international match course.

Robert E. Lee Institute won the trophy last year. The Baker High School team was second.

Mrs. Mary Atkins, Atkins' widow, will present the trophy to the winning team at the conclusion of the matches.

Hq. Cmd. officers, where were you?

Where were you, officers of Headquarters Command? That is, last Saturday at 1 p.m. at Sand Hill's Kimbro Field House. The WACs were there eager to rout you from the court in the basketball contest you had agreed to play.

But you never showed up. Perhaps your absence was intended as an act of charity. Maybe you hesitated to inflict a devestating defeat on a group of helpless, dainty ladies—not realizing that the modern fem has evolved beyond such soft sports as hopscotch, jacks and badminton. After all, if East Germany's Margarita Gummel could heave a shot put 64 feet in the 1969 Olympics, a few U.S. Army gals certainly could net B-balls at closer range.

No, the WACs harbor a darker suspicion. They feel that their competitors Of the Superior Sex, sutici-pating a dreadful drubbing, copped out to avoid the embarrassing licking.

But the WACs hospitably will give the errant officers a chance to regain your fallen honor. To arrange a rematch, kindly call Capt. Susan Snyder at 545-5551. If you dare, of course.

Benning lobbers down Peay Univ.

The Fort Benning Officer's Open Mess tennis team defeated the Austin Peay State University (Clarksville, Tenn.) varsity team Sunday morning, 7-2.

Under cloudy skys, Austin Peay freshman Erasmo Sanhuez defeated Mike Dahm in the number one singles match 8-10, 7-5, 6-2. The only other Austin Peay win came in the number three doubles match as Don Cooper and David Scanlan defeated Adrian Bambini and Doug Pryor 6-4 and 6-3 respectively. The Fort Benning team won the remaining matches.

Lenny Scheuebmann defeated Bob Hausman, 6-3, 6-1. Larry Newton defeated Don Cooper 6-2, 6-4. Parky Byrd defeated David Scanlon 6-0, 6-0. In the first two doubles matches, Newton-Scheuebmann defeated Sanhuez-Hausman 3-6, 6-0, 6-2; and Byrd-John Vatral defeated Bower-Marrero 7-5, 6-4.

The Austin Peay team is presently on a tour through the deep south gaining match experience for their initial entry into Ohio Valley Conference competition in late March. Scheduled matches have included Mississippi State and the University of Alabama, with a return to Alabama on Monday and a stop at Vanderbilt University planned before the team returns home. Jack Justice former Fort Benning and 3rd Army tennis standout, is serving as tennis coach while enrolled at Austin Peay.

'Patriots' hold own Olympic day

By James Gallagher

The flame of the Olympic Torch was missing, but the familiar "flame" from Lt. Col. Stephen R. Pawlik's cigar was present to kick off the "Olympic Day" of 1st Bn. (Mech.), 58th Inf., (Patriots) 197th Inf. Bde.

The race between SSgt. Sonny Cook (the winner), Pawlik (2nd place) and CSM James Gallagher (3rd) heralded the start of a new athletic program conceived by Pawlik, commander of the 58th Inf. The purpose of the program is to stimulate and increase interest in physical proficiency and to encourage esprit and competitiveness among the soldiers and units of the battalion.

Each athletic event is one in which all soldiers can compete and demonstrate their individual prowess. The companies schedule the events and conduct elimination trials one afternoon each week.

The company winners then compete on a Battalion "Olympic Day" during the last week of the month.

After each event, the first, second and third place winners mount a tri-level stand for cheers, congratulations and awards of three, two and one-day passes respectively.

Winners in the February competition were: 100-yard dash, Sgt. William Johnston, Co. A, 9.8 seconds; one-mile run, Sgt. Dale Aberle, HHC, 4 minutes, 35 seconds; situps, Spc Robert Harris, Co. C, 99 situps; pushups, Sgt. Stuart Smith, Co. A, 64 pushups; softball throw, Sgt. Gary Roberts, HHC, 330 feet; football throw, Sgt. Maurice Wallace, Co. C, 178 feet.

Info chief visits post

Maj. Gen. Winant Sidle, the Army's chief of information, visited Fort Benning for two days this week.

The general addressed classes of the Infantry Officers Advanced Course and received briefings on enlightened leadership classes and the activities of the Infantry Center and School. He also visited the post Information Office, Infantry Magazine and Fort Benning's new Learning Center.

Prior to becoming chief of information in October 1969, Gen. Sidle commanded the I Field Force Vietnam, Artillery in the Republic of Vietnam from March to September 1969.

Gen. Sidle is a graduate of the Advanced Artillery Officers Course, the Command and General Staff College and the Army War College. He holds a masters degree in journalism from the University of Wisconsin.

New top civilian

Arthur E. Medlock (L) accepts congratulations from Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, Fort Benning commander, after Medlock was informed of his appointment as the post's new chief of civilian personnel.

177 Ranger graduates hear Gen. Ralph Haines

Gen. Ralph E. Haines Jr., commanding general U.S. Continental Army Command, spoke to the 177 Ranger graduates.

The distinguished graduate in the class was 2nd Lt. John V. Cogbill III of Linthicum Heights, Md. He received the Darby Award, which is a plaque presented to the distinguished graduate in honor of Gen. William O. Darby.

Six graduates of the rigorous eight-week course were recognized as honor graduates.

Late lawmakers to be honored

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird has approved a recommendation to name two nuclear powered attack submarines for the late Representative L. Mendel Rivers and the late Senator Richard B. Russell.

The keel laying for the L. Mendel Rivers is tentatively set for June, and the keel for the Richard B. Russell will be laid in October, Navy officials said.

Servicemen, veterans have many 'fringe benefits

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the eighth article in a series on ways you can save on your Federal income tax this year. The articles are written by Henry Block, president of H. and R. Block, Inc., America's largest tax service.)

In April 1965 Vietnam and adjacent waters were declared a "combat zone" for income tax purposes. This provides that any enlisted member of the Armed forces on active duty in Vietnam may have his pay excluded from Federal income taxes. Commissioned officers may exclude up to $500 per month.

The exemption applies for each month, or part of a month, in which the serviceman was in the combat zone, and one day's service is enough to qualify him for the entire month. This includes hospital time as a result of wounds, disease or injury incurred within the combat zone.

In general, servicemen pay taxes on income they receive from their active duty pay; any lump sum payments when discharged or released to inactive duty, or as members of the armed forces academies, ROTC, or reserve units. They also owe Federal taxes on special pay for extra hazardous duty outside a combat zone, military retirement pay and all other miscellaneous sources of income.

FRINGE BENEFITS

The fact that all items listed above are taxable to the member of the armed forces can be offset, to a great extent, by the fringe benefits available to present and past military personnel.

Subsistence allowances and the value of lodging provided members of the armed forces, as well as those in the Coast Guard and Geodetic Survey and the Public Health Service, are tax exempt. A commissioned officer does not have to include in his taxable income any temporary lodging allowance he gets in addition to his basic quarters and subsistence allowances while he is awaiting assignment outside the continental United States.

Mileage and per diem allowances for official travel can be excluded from a serviceman's taxable income if they do not exceed the actual costs. Mess bills afloat are no longer deductible by naval officers if the ship is their permanent duty station. However, if they are assigned to temporary duty on a ship away from their home port, then mess bills could be deductible.

A serviceman can deduct his costs of insignia, cap devices, chin straps, and similar items for his uniform. However, he cannot deduct the costs of any regulation uniforms he buys if these are available to him as a government issue.

Normally military personnel cannot deduct the costs of their uniform proper since they are adaptable to general use. An exception would be the cost and maintaining of fatigue uniforms by servicemen on active duty where local military regulations forbid their off-duty wear. If the uniform purchase is deductible, then the cost of cleaning and maintaining it is also deductible.

Reservists who buy their own uniforms and are not repaid for them are allowed to deduct this cost, as well as the cost of laundry or cleaning of these uniforms. The travel expenses of a reservist to and from duty can be divided if he is not reimbursed for them.

DEDUCTIONS OF VETERANS

Veterans have other special tax benefits. Pensions or similar payments received for personal injury or sickness resulting from active duty in the armed forces of any country are not taxable.

A disabled veteran can elect to have his disability payments figured on his length of service rather than the percentage of his disability. If he does this, his disability pay will not be taxable to the extent that it does not exceed the amount he would get under the percentage of disability method.

Any excess may qualify as "sick pay" and could be excluded until the veteran reaches normal retirement age. At such time as the normal retirement age is reached those amounts which were previously excluded as sick pay would be taxed in the same manner as an ordinary retirement pension.

Dividends from government service contracts, National Service Life Insurance, converted War Risk Insurance, as well as state veteran's bonuses and tuition and subsistence allowances under the G.I. Bill and tax-free pensions to veterans.

FARMER'S HAVE MANY FORMS

For most Americans, the 15th of April is the deadline for filing income tax returns and making payments to Uncle Sam.

However, the farmer's tax deadline can be March 1, or April 15, depending on whether or not he filed a declaration of estimated tax by Jan. 15 or, if he operates his farm on a fiscal year instead of a calendar year, it could be the 15th of some other month.

The farmer's taxpaying task is fairly complicated since he must always complete more forms than the average taxpayer. When a farmer should pay his Federal income taxes and how he should fill out the several required forms, as well as all deductions to which he is entitled, are covered in an excellent booklet entitled "Farmer's Tax Guide" published by the Internal Revenue Service.

A LOOK AT MISTAKES

Since the above publications are readily available to most farmers, let's concentrate here on some of the mistakes farmers frequently make in preparing their Federal returns.

In addition to the regular Form 1040, a farmer must file Schedule F, titled "Schedule of Farm Income and Expenses." On this three-page form a farmer can claim deductions which run the gamut from advertising expense to water rents.

We often find that farmers tend to list personal and household expenses as a farm business deduction. This, of course, is not permitted by tax law. Nor can a farmer deduct the value of his own labor as an operating expense.

Many farm returns will show the full cost of machinery deducted in the year of purchase. This also is not allowed. The cost of farm machinery and similar property with a useful life of more than one year must be depreciated or spread out over the useful life of the property.

Sergeant awarded 2 medals

The Bronze Star Medal and Good Conduct Medal were awarded posthumously to SFC Jaime Restrepo in a recent ceremony here.

Col. Robert P. Hatcher Jr., assistant post commander, made the presentation to Mrs. Jaime Restrepo, the sergeant's widow.

SFC Restrepo died in action, Nov. 4, 1970, in the Republic of Vietnam.

Accepted for inclusion accompanying the Bronze Star Medal, SFC Restrepo distinguished himself by outstanding meritorious service in connection with ground operations against a hostile force in Vietnam from September 1970 to November 1970.

Prior to his death, SFC Restrepo had received the National Defense Service Medal, Vietnam Service Medal, Vietnam Campaign Medal, Aircraft Crewman Badge and the Expert Rifleman Marksman Rifle and Rifle Bars.

Beep! Beep! Its Ralph

Beep! Beep! Vrrr-r-oooo-o-o-m! Scree-e-e-e-eech! (Cloud of dust). The familiar sight and sound is that of the famous cartoon character, the Road Runner, the world's fastest creature.

Now there are two Road Runners.

Warner Brothers, Inc., through its agent Licensing Corporation of America, has granted the Atlanta Braves exclusive rights to nickname speedy young outfield Ralph Garr as the Road Runner II.

Garr, who has led leagues for the three consecutive seasons in stolen bases, will be the only athletes allowed to use the copyrighted nickname.

In signing the agreement, LCA chairman Jay Emment said, "Our contract with the Braves makes Ralph the first licensed nicknamee to our knowledge anywhere in the world."

In addition to leading the league in stolen bases, Garr also set a modern-day International League batting record last season with his .386 average for the year.

Bonus buddies

No, it is not a boxing match — just a joint celebration as Sgt. Robert W. Zimmerman (L) and Sgt. Daniel J. McManus mark their reenlistments by feeding cake to each other. Zimmerman, formerly of Co. C, 1st Bn., 58th Inf., re-upped for the 58th's Co. B, the unit in which his buddy, McManus, is assigned. Both soldiers added six more years on their Army career and both received a reenlistment bonus of $6,300. McManus is Co. B's armorer and Zimmerman works at the ammunition dump on Sand Hill.

Soldiers now may wear 'clean' fatigues off-post

The new policy is a test of a Modern Volunteer Army idea. Unless continued until a later date, the uniform experiment will end June 30.

The change permits soldiers to wear their work uniforms—including fatigues, whites, flight uniforms and field uniforms — off-post under these conditions:

—The uniform must be clean and presentable.

—Soldiers must be going to and from duty.

—Work uniforms may only be worn within a 35-mile radius of Fort Benning.

—Work uniforms are not to be worn in places of public entertainment such as theaters, lounges, bars, dining rooms and restaurants.

According to the circular authorizing the test, "The intent of this authority is to allow soldiers to conduct personal business and convenience shopping between their off-post resi-

Chapter wants to remain largest

AUSA begins memebrship campaign

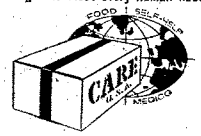
By Tony Jones

In a drive to retain the honor of being the largest chapter in the world-wide organization of the Association of the United States Army (AUSA), the local chapter of AUSA has started its annual membership drive.

The drive, which is being coordinated at Fort Benning by Lt. Col. John A. Seddon of the Nonresident Instruction - ROTC Affairs Department, will continue through May 31.

At the national AUSA meeting in October, the Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning AUSA chapter was recognized as the largest and best chapter. Membership has slipped by almost 2,000 since that time.

AUSA is the professional organization for the soldier and for civilians dedicated to the idea that a strong, modern, mobile Army is vitally essential to our national defense, Seddon explained in announcing the military portion of the drive at Fort Benning.



Seddon added that anyone interested in the Army and national security is eligible to join the organization. General membership dues are $7.50 for one year.

Seddon said that major units at Fort Benning will have AUSA membership drive representatives at each level at Fort Benning, which will extend to the company level.

The drive at Fort Benning will be divided into four phases: Preparation, orientation, execution, collection and

A gift to meet every human need

National Health Agencies to start fund drive Monday

By Jim Hickey

Monday marks the kickoff of the Fort Benning campaign for the National Health Agencies and International Service Agencies. The appeal for contributions to the agencies will continue through May 7.

At a campaign briefing for unit drive captains last week, Col. Robert P. Hatcher, assistant post commander and chairman of the campaign, said that no specific monetary goal is being set for Fort Benning in this drive. "The only goal," said Col. Hatcher, "is 100 per cent participation. We only ask that there be generous participation."

Drive captains have been selected for all the major commands and staff activities on post. These captains will select "keymen" to help them solicit contributions.

The National Health Agencies consist of eleven voluntary associations and in Georgia include the Georgia Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults, the Georgia Society for the Prevention of Blindness, and the American Cancer Society, Georgia Division.

The organizations associated with the National Health Agencies last year treated and provided service to more than 300,000 Georgia patients who suffered cerebral palsy, cancer, arthritis and other crippling diseases

ACS seeking 40 volunteers for Welcome Center

Duties of the volunteers would be to "provide information, welcome services, relocation assistance, orientations, household items and 24-hour emergency services to new arrivals."

2nd Lt. Elaine Roux of the ACS office said military personnel would be used for the night and weekend shifts while the volunteers would be on duty during normal duty hours only.

'There's no future in drugs,' comments former user

FT. LEWIS, Wash. (ANF) — John H. looked relaxed.

In fact, it was probably the first time he'd been able to relax since he joined the Army nearly a year ago.

Today, John H. is happy. He's happy because he's helping others . . . and himself . . . as a drug counselor at Ft. Lewis newly-opened Drug Information and Counseling Center.

The story of how John H. found himself at the Center is a long one — and it's a story that needs to be told. Because, as he says, it just might change another drug user's trip — from a bad scene to a good one.

You see, John H. is an ex-drug user.

If he'd had the help he is now giving to young soldiers with drug problems, he might not have spent four months of his military life AWOL and might not now be facing court-martial proceedings.

John was raised in a middle-class family in Los Angeles. At the age of 13, he was smoking marijuana. In a few years he had tried everything from "shooting the hard stuff" to LSD.

Then at 17 and faced with confinement at the California Youth Authority, he chose what he thought was the easy way out — military service.

He turned out to be wrong . . . at least to a point.

Discovering that going Army wasn't "a trip," John H. "turned on" more and more, finally going AWOL.

Last month he gave himself up, because, he said, "I don't like running."

Then he heard about the drug center and how he might help other drug users while helping himself.

"I came down here to see if it was on the level . . . you know, to see if it was crawling with CID (Criminal Investigation Department) or what," John H. said.

"But I found it's all right," he said. "And even the officers who visit us seem to be changing some of their views of drug users . . . they're pretty fair-minded now."

What about the drug center atmosphere? "At first the users had problems with uniforms, identifying the center with the Army," said John. "But now it's a relaxed, casual place with everyone — including officers — wearing civilian clothes and on a first-name basis."

Currently, 14 counselors — many of them former users — answer the drug-help phone line at the Center. They deal with 20 to 30 men daily who want some form of drug counseling. They are giving serious counseling to 20 more.

As one man at the Center put it, "Our job isn't to turn users in or to treat them . . . all we do is talk to them and tell them how to get help."

And what about John H.?

"I like helping other people and myself . . . it makes my life worthwhile," he said.

What about the future of drugs for John H.?

"I've got hard veins . . . I'm only 18 . . . and I've had hepatitis," he explained. "Drugs? There's no future in them . . . no future."

Infantry School gets new British liaison

He is Col. Richard W. Dawnay, O.B.E. Col. Dawnay received his formal military education at Sandhurst, the Royal Military Academy, and also attended the Staff College at Camberly.

As a liaison officer Col. Dawnay feels he can learn from as well as contribute to the U. S. Army. This involves observing the operations of the Infantry Center. In addition, he will advise the different committees in the Infantry School.

Among his other duties is coordinating the activities of visiting British dignitaries. He is also responsible for British personnel attending the Infantry School as well as exchange officers here and at Ft. Bragg, N. C. Before coming to the United States he commanded 2nd Bn., The Parachute Regiment. From August 1968 until his present assignment he served in Hong Kong, Anguila, and in Belfast, Northern Ireland. Col. Dawnay also has served three tours in the Near East and one in Korea.

Sun's wind

A "solar wind" of hydrogen steadily blows through space toward the earth and other planets. The wind that reaches the earth's atmosphere today left the sun about ten days ago, National Geographic says.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

by Bill King

Next time you make shrimp cocktail, simmer the whole unpeeled shrimp in beer instead of water for a delicious new flavor.

No matter what mother says, don't use baking soda to keep peas or beans green while cooking, or you'll destroy too many vitamins. Instead, just raise the pot lid slightly during cooking.

For a tender-easier-to-roll pie crust, put the piecrust dough into a large, floured plastic bag before rolling.

After the potatoes are baked, grasp with a potholder, cut a big "X" and squeeze. This is the time to add cream and chives, paprika or other seasonings.

In some parts of India, basil is still used in funeral ceremonies because it is thought to ensure the soul's way to heaven.

Byline Bayonet

Byline Bayonet welcomes questions of general interest about Fort Benning and the Army. Within space limitations, all reasonable questions will be answered. Questions of a purely military nature which obviously could be answered more properly by commanders or supervisors within the chain of command will not be accepted. Questions must be signed with current unit of assignment indicated. Send questions to The Bayonet, Room 602, Infantry Hall.)

Q—I am assigned to Fort Benning and was also here when they closed the Basic Training Center. I would like to be a drill sergeant in a basic training or advanced infantry training unit. Will the cutback in these areas lessen my chances of getting my choice?

A—No. DA is enhancing incentives for drill sergeants to attract more volunteers. As of December the Army was short 1,893 drill sergeants or about 28 per cent of total authorization. The shortage has forced a greater workload on those currently performing this important duty. Your chances are excellent if you qualify.

Also for your information, drill sergeants are eligible for a number of special benefits. Some of these are extra uniforms and free laundry for fatigues) proficiency pay of $50 per month; advancement up to grade E5 without regard to Department of the Army promotion quotas upon graduation from the Drill Sergeant course; and assignment stability for a 24 month period (recently lengthened from 18 months per DA Message 192143z Jan. 71.)

With these benefits and other possible improvements which are under consideration, the drill sergeant program is getting better all the time. Soldiers in grades E4 through E7 are encouraged to apply for this duty. Consult AR 614-200 for additional information.

Q—The Army takes so much out of my pay check for allotments, Bonds, etc., that I hardly have anything left. I would like to stop some of these collections. Am I required to have Military Life Insurance for the entire time that I am on active duty.

A—You are not required to have military life insurance at any time while your are on active duty. However, if you stopped it you would join the 35,000 Army personnel who are missing out on a tremendous offer. These are the people who have elected not to be insured under the Servicemen's Group Life Insurance (SGLI) program.

Under SGLI, members of the armed forces receive $15,000 term life insurance for a minimal $3 payroll deduction per month;. $10,000 worth for $2 monthly; or $5,000 coverage for $1 per month. This group policy is completely free of military hazard restrictions, and can be converted to permanent insurance upon return to civilian life without a physical examination.

You can see, then, that though a soldier may have his or her reasons for electing otherwise, it would be to his advantage to be covered by this life insurance bargain. For more information see AR 608-2.

The judge says

The 5th Amendment has its limits

USAIC LEGAL ASSISTANCE OFFICE—Driving his car Bill Bourbon suddenly turned left and forced a motorcycle with two riders to swerve to avoid hitting him. The motorcycle hit a pole and hurt both riders. Bill looked back, stopped a moment, and then drove off. He did not tell anyone who he was or offer to help.

Another motorist, seeing the incident took down and reported Bill's license number. The jury convicted Bill of felony hit-and-run.

In court Bill defended himself by saying that had he stopped and identified himself, he would have incriminated himself. Since under the Fifth Amendment of the Constitution he did not have to incriminate himself, he claimed he did not have to obey the law.

The court ruled against Bill: The district attorney could prosecute, and the jury could convict him. The hit-and-run laws demand certain things: To stop, to identify, and to give aid.

True, under the Constitution you cannot be forced to incriminate yourself or to help build a case against yourself.

But the legal duty to stop, identify yourself and render aid is to protect life and property. The district attorney cannot use the information thus gained to convict you, but he may use other witnesses, the victim, or detectives to prove his case against you.

In some states a driver who the police suspect is under the influence of alcohol must take a blood, breath, or urine test, or lose his driver's license for six months. Again this is not self-incrimination the courts have held since the driver by asking for a license consents by implication to submit to these tests in return for the privilege of driving.

Other things used for identification are also legal such as fingerprints, handwriting samples, standing in a line-up, wearing certain clothing, walking before the jury, or speaking certain words.

The accused may have his lawyer present to protect his rights at all stages of the proceedings —when the police ask him questions, or put him in a line-up, and during all court hearings.

Inquiries concerning this topic or related legal matters may be directed to your Legal Assistance Office.

*RELATIVE TO THE TREATMENT OF PRISONERS OF WAR

(To which the DRV acceded in 1957)

	ARTICLE	REQUIREMENT	DRV PERFORMANCE
DEMOCRATIC REPUBLIC OF NORTH VIETNAM (DRV)	13	PWs must be humanely treated, protected; reprisals against PWs prohibited.	Paraded in streets, forced to make statements; some torture.
	21	PWs not to be held in "close confinement."	Many PWs held in solitary confinement for years.
	23	Mark PW camps so as visible from air, give information on camp locations.	No markings on camps; locations concealed.
	26	Provide sufficient food, prevent loss of weight, take account of normal diet.	Released PWs state that standard fare consists of pumpkin soup, rice, bread, pig fat. All PWs underweight and suffering from malnutrition.
	30	Adequate medical care.	Much evidence of inadequate medical care (photos, released PWs) prisoners dying in camps.
	34	Regular religious services.	Only evidence in films of some Christmas services.
	70	Write to family within one week of capture.	Some have not written for five years.
	71	Minimum of 2 letters and 4 cards a month.	Average of 2-3 letters per year (none at all for some).
	72	Free receipt of parcels.	DRV states that PWs can receive a package every other month. Evidence indicates delivery is irregular; parcels sent to "dead" not returned.
	109	Immediate repatriation of seriously sick and wounded. Release of PWs long held in captivity.	No regular release of sick and wounded or long held PWs; state of health or duration of imprisonment has not appeared to be a determining factor in those releases which have taken place.
	120	Advise of deaths in captivity, full official information on circumstances, cause, burial, grave identification.	Rare assertion of death through unofficial and irregular channels, no details.
	122	Advise promptly names of all PWs held.	Never released official or complete list.
	126	Neutral inspection of all camps, interview of PWs without witnesses.	No inspection; propaganda interviews only.

* Released by U. S. Ambassador Bruce at December 1, 1970, press conference in Paris.

THIS WEEK IS THE NATIONAL WEEK OF CONCERN FOR PRISONERS OF WAR MISSING IN ACTION. PRESIDENT NIXON IN HIS STATE OF THE WORLD MESSAGE GIVEN LAST MONTH NOTED THAT "SOME 1,600 AMERICANS, INCLUDING PILOTS AND SOLDIERS AND SOME 40 CIVILIANS, ARE MISSING OR HELD IN NORTH VIETNAM, SOUTH VIETNAM, LAOS AND CAMBODIA." THE ABOVE TABULATION YIELDS INFORMATION AS TO HOW THESE PRISONERS — SOME OF WHOM HAVE SPENT SIX YEARS AS POWS — HAVE BEEN TREATED BY THE NORTH VIETNAMESE.

609th Trans. receives highest rating for I.G.

The only unit at Fort Benning to receive a superior rating (the highest rating given) during the recent Inspector General's inspection was the 609th Transportation Company of the Aviation Command.

For their achievement they recently received a certificate of recognition from Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander. The award was made to the unit's commander, Maj. Donal Mathena.

The 609th is responsible for providing direct support maintenance on Army aircraft, aircraft armament and avionics equipment and performing re-support of non-divisional aviation units. This encompasses some 74 aircraft, both rotary and fixed wing, assigned to the Infantry Center and Lawson Airfield.

The annual Inspector General inspection includes a close inspection of every phase of a units operation and equipment. This includes each individual's equipment and clothing along with inspection of troop quarters.

"Our superior rating was accomplished through the effort and work of every man in the unit," said Mathena. "Their work was truly outstanding and is highly representative of the spirit encouraged by the volunteer Army concept."

Army hasn't ended PFC's scouting days

By Frank Cover

"Once scouting gets into your blood it stays there for life," so says PFC Lonnie D. Penney, HHC, 93ist Engr. Gp.

Penney, an Eagle Scout himself, works as a special assistant to Col. Robert J. Standley, group commander, on a Boy Scout Programming Committee for the Fort Benning District.

Penney's involvement with the committee includes the planning of the up-coming spring campo-ree during monthly seminars with scout masters in the district.

In addition to all this, Penney keeps busy as an assistant scout master with Troop 237 on post. He attends two scout meetings a week and goes to the field with the scouts twice a month.

His primary duties with the troop include teaching them first aid and instructing them on camping techniques.

Penney said that his Army training has helped him to become a more effective scout leader, especially with respect to the first aid training he received during basic.

Penney just finished scouting's adult leader training and has been recommended for advanced leader training, better known among scouts as "Wood Badge."

Payday can be a time of sorrow, too

Payday is only a few days away and Fort Benning soldiers will collect more than 15 million in monthly paychecks. But many soldiers will unwillingly part with some of their pay shortly after they receive it — they will be robbed.

Since the beginning of the year, more than 300 paid for this security lesson with $50 or less. To some this may be a cheap price for a lesson well learned. But when a soldier makes as little as $137 a month, any loss of money, no matter how small, is serious. It could mean that weekend trip to Panama City or the birthday present for the girl back home.

But these plans can remain intact if you guard your money with the care it deserves. Such care as a checking account at one of the local banks and refraining from carrying large sums of money.

Checking accounts have a large advantage over traveler's checks and money orders in that they are far more convenient. Also, by having your checkbook you have access to your entire account rather than just the limited amount of a money order or traveler's check.

Personalized checks, usually require detailed identification to cash thus, proving worthless to a would-be thief. Even if one of your stolen checks is cashed by a local merchant, the bank will not honor your check and you will not be held responsible, if you had immediately notified the bank after the checks were stolen.

In addition to the obvious advantages of a personalized checking account (safety and convenience) cancelled checks are also a recognized legal receipt of payment.

Under AR-37104-2 the Army makes provisions for the individual to have his paycheck sent directly to a specified bank account. This relieves him of the bother of personally depositing the check every payday.

Com-Elec scores at NCO Academy

The Communications-Electronics Department seldom misses when one of their men is sent to the 3rd Army Non-commissioned Officer Academy at Ft. McClellan, Ala. Usually they come back at the top of their class.

Of the last six men that have been sent from the department, five have come back as top graduates of the Acadmey and the most recent graduate —SSgt. Claude L. Barnes —just missed the top spot by one-tenth of a point. He was second in a class of 77.

Barnes, an instructor in radio-telephone procedures, finished with an overall avrage of 94.5 per cent, while the honor graduate had a 94.6. Although Barnes was not first in his class, his average was higher than four of his fellow instructors from the Communications-Electronics Department who were honor graduates in the past.

Barnes currently is enrolled in the Senior NCO Career Development Course by correspondence from the Infantry School. Barnes partially attributed his success at the NCO Academy to his already completed correspondence work.

The academic achievement of the Communications-Electronics Department was recognized by Brig. Gen. John T. Carley, Infantry School assistant commandant, in a letter of commendation to Col. Robert D. Sweeney, department director.

The NCO Academy is a six week, Infantry oriented course, stressing leadership, physical ability and academics. The training is designed to prepare the students for a variety of garrison type duties as well as combat situations. During the course students assume the various leadership positions of the student company.

West Point accepts post youth

The son of a senior Fort Benning officer has received an appointment to the U. S. Military Academy at West Point.

Steven G. Guthrie, 17, the son of Col. and Mrs. William R. Guthrie, was notified of his selection in a telegram from U. S. Representative James A. Haley of Florida. The Columbus Baker High School senior will be a member of the class of 1975.

Col. Guthrie, director of the Infantry School's Nonresident Instruction Department, is a 1945 graduate of the Academy. The colonel also is secretary-treasurer of the Fort Benning - Columbus - Phenix City chapter of the Association of the U. S. Army.

Young Guthrie, an Eagle scout, serves in leadership positions in a number of school and local activities. He is president of Explorer Post 127, president of the Baker Debate Team and Baker chapter of the National Forensic League, vice president of Beta Kappa Hi-Y, historian of the Baker English Club and treasurer of the Fort Benning Youth Activity Council.

He also is a member of the Exchange Club, Fort Benning Church Youth Group, Georgia Speech Association and Demolay.

CHANGES

- Fort Benning regulations have been temporarily amended to allow soldiers to wear work uniforms in certain off-post situations. "Clean and presentable" work uniforms—including fatigues, whites, flight uniforms and field uniforms—are covered by the change.
- The 197th Infantry Brigade — as a unit covered by the unit-of-choice enlistment option—is being advertised by the United States Army Recruiting Command in area newspapers.

PROPOSALS

- The Army Community Service is establishing a new Welcome Center in Building 83, next door to the Personnel Processing Center.

In bridge contest

Design worth money

ARMY MATERIEL COMMAND, Washington, D.C. — Would you like to earn up to $5,000 for designing a bridge?

That amount is being offered as first prize in a bridge design contest, sponsored by the Society of American Military Engineers (SAME) at the request of the Army Materiel Command (AMC) through its Mobility Equipment Research and Development Center, Ft. Belvoir, Va.

The contest is for Fixed and Floating Bridge concepts for the 1980s, with prizes of $5,000 for first, $2,000 for second and $1,000 for third prize in each category. In addition, $14,000 is available for other prizes.

Individuals, partnerships or corporate entities, professional societies or institutions whose home or home office is located in the United States, or U. S. citizens residing overseas—except employes of the R and D Center and individuals associated with the management of these design contests — are eligible to enter.

A brochure containing full information concerning the contests may be obtained for $2 (for brochure and entry fee) by writing to Bridge Design Contests, The Society of American Military Engineers, 800 17th St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006.

Entries must be postmarked not later than June 15.

Safety director accepts post in Labor Dept.

James E. Blount, Fort Benning's safety director, has resigned to accept a position with the Department of Labor.

Blount, safety director here since August 1967, leaves today. His new duties will be as chief of the Safety and Occupation Health Office, Jacksonville Area, Department of Labor.

A native of Walter Valley, Miss., Blount has been safety director in Tokyo, Japan; Ft. Devens, Mass.; Munich, Germany, and Okinawa. He served in the Army during World War II and has degrees in business administration, safety engineering and traffic safety engineering.

To The Infantry Museum

Give Generously....

You've probably never been asked so honestly to give money for anything. Think what the heritage of the Infantry means to you, we've said. Then please give generously.

A lot of people have. By cash, pledge or credit card, they've said they believe in the Infantry Museum.

If you haven't given, now is your chance to show that same concern. Our request is the same—please give generously.

Our offer is the same. Do it by cash, BankAmericard, Master Charge, or using the Museum Association's own billing system.

Make your response the same as that of hundreds of other Fort Benning soldiers and employes. Give at your major unit headquarters, or Room 111 Infantry Hall, or at the Infantry Museum. Or mail your donation to: The Infantry Museum Association, P.O. Box 2506, Columbus, Ga. 31902

Germany, cold weather set atmosphere for dinners

197th — German Style

The officers, their wives and distinguished guests of the 197th Inf. Bde. enjoyed Deutsches Volksfest at the Fort Benning Main Officers Open Mess recently. The German style party was sponsored by the 1st Bn. (Mech.), 58th Inf. ("Patriots").

As the couples arrived, they were ushered into an atmosphere that typified old Germnay. German street scenes complete with a Metzgererei, a Gasthaus, a Malerei, and an artist drawing caricatures, were featured. Other Germanic curiosities such as a castle entrance, street lamps, picket fences, and a market square clock also dotted the party area. The spirit of old Deutchland was enhanced by the authentic German dress worn by many officers and their ladies.

The evening began with the customary happy hour and proceeded to a buffet dinner complete with Brockwurst, Sauerkraut and Rippchen, Wienerschnitzel and German chocolate cake.

Entertainment was provided by the Infantry Chorus and an accordian player. A wandering minstrel roamed the area playing German songs for individual enjoyment.

Following dinner, Col. Willard Latham, brigade commander, made a short speech and introduced his distinguished guests: Mr. F. F. Koughran; Lt. Col. and Mrs. Paul Schultz (Schultz is the German liaison officer to USAIS); and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cooke.

Lt. Col. Stephen R. Pawlik, the "Patriot" commander, and Maj. Thomas H. Griffin officially welcomed everyone and introduced the after-dinner entertainment which included a German-style sing-along and a tug-of-war contest in which both officers and ladies participated.

The frivolity increased as the champion beer drinkers from the respective units competed for the honor of being the beer drinking champion of the brigade.

After the beer drinking contest and a polka lesson, the mood switched as the band took over and played selections ranging from Polkas and Waltzes to modern Hard Rock. For a change of pace from the tempos of the band, there was an authentic beer garden complete with slides of old Germany and a quiet music room in which German songs were played.

Polar Bear Plight

The penetrating cold of a recent Sunday afternoon kept the Polar Bears huddled 'round a roaring fire in the USAIC Recreation Center.

The occasion was a pot-luck celebration of Lt. Col. Gene H. Luthultz' one year anniversary as battalion commander of the 5th Bn., 31st Inf.

Although many outdoor activities had been scheduled, the only Bears seen outside the lodge were those cooking hamburgers and hot dogs.

Col. Luthultz was presented a citation from the Polar Bear officers in appreciation of his leadership during the past year. The commander also received a huge cake iced in white with infantry blue trim. A ceramic Polar Bear holding a lighted infantry blue candle stood in the center of the cake.

The colonel welcomed everyone and introduced the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. Edward Harrington, parents of 2nd Lt. Dan Harrington; Karen Burrows, 2nd Lt. Joseph Lahnstein's finance; Mrs. Mary Dunn, Capt. Norman Hansen's grandmother; Mrs. Walter Macki, Mrs. Hansen's mother; and Miss Jan Karjala, Mrs. Hansen's sister.

New Polar Bears welcomed were: Capt. and Mrs. Michael Denney, Capt. and Mrs. John Throckmorton, Capt. Paul Tasker, and 2nd Lt. John Barker. Former Polar Bears, Capt. and Mrs. Lacy Tyler, were warmly welcomed back into the fair.

Farewell was bid to 1st Lt. Thomas Peterson, who is returning to civilian life.

"Lucky four-leaf coffee"

The ladies of the 5th Bn., 31st., 197th Inf. Bde. were entertained with a "Lucky four-leaf Coffee" March 10. The pre-St. Patrick's Day celebration, which included all types of Irish delights, from Leprechaun lime punch to "Patty Pigs," was given by Mrs. Richard Murphy and Mrs. Jerry Collins.

The ladies were entertained with a demonstration of "easy to do" flower arrangements by Gloria Cummings, owner of a local floral shop. In addition to her arrangements based on Easter and Spring, she showed the group how to make attractive and palatable centerpieces from fresh fruits and vegetables.

Special guests at the shamrock-abundant coffee were Mrs. Willard Latham, wife of the brigade commander for the 197th Inf. Bde., and Mrs. Charles Yarbrough, whose husband is the Bravo Task Force commander of the Brigade.

In addition, Mrs. John Throckmorton and Mrs. William Benline were welcomed to the group by Mrs. Oliver Dillon, wife of the battalion executive officer. Farewell was extended to Mrs. Bernard Muller-Thym who was presented with an engraved silver tray as a remembrance of her stay with the 5th Bn., 31st Inf.

During the business meeting, the different volunteer organizations on post were named for the benefit of both the new and the old members. Upcoming events were also discussed which included Organization Day, the Brigade luncheon, the next coffee, and the Spring Formal, which the 5th Bn, 31st Inf. will be sponsoring. The ladies were asked to donate materials, suggestions, and hours to work on the formal.

"Patriots"

The ladies of the 1st Bn. (Mech), 58th Inf., held their monthly "Patriots" social in the the home of Mrs. Thomas H. Griffin, 102 C Running Ave., recently.

Refreshments of hot pizza and tacos, snack dips, cookies and coffee were served as the wives viewed a cake decorating demonstration by Mrs. Griffin.

Wives re-group

Eighteen ladies met Tuesday at the Main Post Chapel Annex to organize a Waiting Wives group.

The next meeting will be a "Kick-Off Koffee" at 9:30 a.m. April 6 at the Top Five NCO Club.

Mrs. Robert Hale is chairman of the Waiting Wives.

For information call Army Community Service, 545-1633 or 545-1233.

Aging to be subject for college course

A special course in adult development and aging is being offered at Columbus College for community leaders and practitioners in the field of aging.

Beginning Tuesday and lasting until April 15, this study is sponsored jointly by the Senior Citizens Service of Muscogee County, the Third District Nurses Association, and Columbus College.

The three-week course will meet on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. in Room 201 of the Howard Building and will focus on the problems, characteristics, and needs of older persons, the aging process itself, and the role of community agencies for the elderly.

Instruction in the sociology, psychology, physiology, and economics of aging as well as in community services for the aging will be provided by college professors Don Newroth, Dave Centa, Dr. George Stanton, Dr. Sam McCord, and Dr. J. Fred Burgess.

This series of lectures and films was developed as a part of the program of the Georgia Community Continuing Education Service of the University of Georgia.

The basic reference book used for the course will be "Foundations of Practical Gerontology"; copies will be furnished free while the supply lasts. There is no registration fee for the course. Additional details are available from the Office of Continuing Education at the college; 561-5134

A-TRACK-TIVE DRIVER
Mrs. Daniel C. Gascoyne Receives Encouragement While Driving An APC During The "Patriot" Wives Tour Day

Named to 'Personalities of South'

Music professor cited for achievements

Dr. Katherine Hines Mahan, associate professor of music at Columbus College has been named to the 1971 edition of "Personalities of the South."

Spotlighted in recognition of her "past achievements, outstanding ability, and service to community and state," Dr. Mahan receives a plaque and certificate with her honor. The Columbus College library will receive a copy of the book when it is published in the fall.

Nominated by her alma mater, Oklahoma Baptist University, from which she was graduated magna cum laude in 1950, Dr. Mahan was its first female graduate with a degree in choral direction.

She taught voice for four years at Southwestern Baptist College in Bolivar, Miss., after graduation and received her Master of Music degree from George Peabody College in Nashville in 1956.

She also holds a specialist degree in educational psychology from Auburn University and a Ph.D. in music history with a minor in psychology from Florida State University.

A member of American Pen Women, the Music Educators National Conference, the American Association of University Professors, and the National Association of Teachers of Singing, Dr. Mahan also serves on many local committees and clubs.

She is current vice-president of the Orpheus Club of Columbus, the past special events chairman for the American Cancer Society here, co-chairman of the music committee at First Baptist Church, and a member of the house committee of the Springer Opera House and of the publicity committee for the Columbus Symphony.

Dr. Mahan and her husband, Dr. Joseph B. Mahan, curator of the Columbus Museum of Arts and Crafts, work with the Allied Officers' Training Division at Fort Benning to introduce foreign officers to community social life.

She was instrumental in developing a course in the American History of comedy and a seminar in jazz at Columbus College.

Her book, "Showboats to Soft Shoes," is a study of social development in Columbus during its first century. Other publications include journal articles and musical compositions.

"A History of Public Schools in Muscogee County," co-authored with the late W. C. Woodall, is being readied for publication.

Selected as one of the 1970 Career Women of the Year by the Business and Professional Women's Association, Dr. Mahan is known for talks and papers ranging from humorous to academic studies on human development. She serves frequently as a judge and musical consultant, and as a source of historic information in the Columbus area.

Battalion tour given to 58th Inf. wives

How many wives know exactly what their husband's job entails?

The wives of the 1st Bn. (Mech), 58th Inf. found out during a recent tour of the battalion area.

The tour began with a briefing by Lt. Col. Stephen R. Pawlik, battalion commander, on battalion history, daily routine and mission of the unit, and the meaning the VOLAR program and how it affects the individual soldiers.

Following the briefing the wives visited two recreation clubs, "The Joint Possession" and the "Underground", where they were given the opportunity to use some of the recreational equipment.

The next stop was the headquarters orderly room and then to Company "B" mess hall for refreshments.

The ladies then visited the motor pool where 176 vehicles were on display. Capt. Paul E. Wible, motor pool officer, gave a short description of the tracks and trucks and welcomed the wives to ride in and drive the trucks.

After receiving instructions, the wives "womanned" the trucks and, with the guidance from the track commanders, proceeded along the marked safety lanes.

The ladies proved to be skillful drivers, with no "close calls" and a perfect driving record.

POW co-chairman seeking help, not sympathy

MRS. BEN PURCELL

Mrs. Ben Purcell, Fort Benning's Military Wife of the Year and co-chairman of the Columbus "Prisoner of War Committee" was the guest speaker at the March 19 luncheon of the Fort Benning Ranger Officers Wives Club, held at the Officers Club.

In her talk, Mrs. Purcell, whose husband's helicopter was downed over North Vietnam Feb. 8, 1968, spoke of the cruelty resulting from the North Vietnamese' failure to comply with the parts of the Geneva Convention relating to prisoners of war. She cited specifically their failure to list all prisoners of war, to allow inspection of prisoner of war camps by an impartial international organization, to allow prisoners of war to communicate with their families, and to repatriate those prisoners of war who are seriously ill or wounded.

Mrs. Purcell emphasized that she was seeking help, not sympathy. She asked for people to write letters to Hanoi expressing concern for the prisoners of war. She also brought along copies of a petition for the ladies present to sign. This petition represents part of the first nation-wide protest to Hanoi. Plans are to obtain one million signatures by April 20.

Mrs. Nicholas Garbarino closed the program by leading the group in the American Legion Prayer for Prisoners of War.

Shamrocks and leprechaun hats decorated the Corregidor Room for the luncheon planned by Mrs. Michael Gorecki, Mrs. Richard Horne, and Mrs. John Walsh.

Mrs. Kenneth Johnston, hospitality chairman, greeted the guests, Mrs. James Thompson and Mrs. William Trotter, and welcomed the following new members to the group: Mrs. Autrail Cobd, Mrs. Ronald Marks, Mrs. Frederico Rodriquez, Mrs. Earl Steck, and Mrs. James Warren.

Newly elected officers for the group are Mrs. Benjamin Lane, president, Mrs. Robert Jones, 1st vice-president, Mrs. Donald Madison, 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Kenneth Johnston, 3rd vice-president, Mrs. Gregory Wheeler, secretary, and Mrs. Robert Mayor, treasurer.

Engineers plan dinner

A Hail and Farewell dinner will be held for officers of the 931st Engr. Gp. at 4 p.m. tonight in the Engineer Lodge.

A cook out dinner is planned with steaks to order, baked beans, tossed salad, potato salad and rolls.

Goodbyes will be said to Lt. Col. and Mrs. Carl O. Johnson; Capt. and Mrs. Jon Van Oosten; 1st Lt. and Mrs. Anthony J. Giannini and 2nd Lt. Robert L. Hartley.

Lt. Col. and Mrs. Garrett V. Sidler; Capt. and Mrs. Dois D. Webb; 1st Lt. and Mrs. Clifford D. Graham and CW 2 and Mrs. Jose A. Castellano will be welcomed into the group.

Frigate Coins still available

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Commemorative coins struck from old solid copper spikes of the frigate Constellation are still available for public sale.

Funds derived from the sale will be used to complete restoration of the historic ship at its permanent berth in Baltimore.

Restoration of the frigate began in 1959.

The coins serve as lifetime passes to visit the frigate free of charge.

Anyone wishing to obtain a Constellation Commemorative Coin should send $2 to CONSTELLATION, Baltimore, Md., 21202.

reporting. Seddon stressed that final collections and applications must be mailed by May 31, the final day of the drive, to be included in the final AUSA drive totals in Washington, D.C.

Col. William R. Guthrie, secretary-treasurer of the chapter, said that AUSA members receive many benefits, one of which is a subscription to Army Magazine, which is recognized as one of the world's leading military publications and explores in depth vital issues concerning national defense and keeps AUSA members informed of AUSA activities.

Col. Guthrie also praised member benefits of low premium life and hospitalization insurance plans.

He added that AUSA has supported many military benefits through the years. Among these have been continuing increases in military pay, improved medical and dental care, adequate housing and facilities, and programs to improve and expand post exchanges, commissaries, and other benfits for active duty and retired personnel.

Recently on the national level, AUSA has led the fight against a move which would require military personnel to pay income tax on money received for travel, Col. Guthrie said. It also has sponsored an active campaign in support of the Reserve Officer Training Corps in view of its vital importance to our national defense.

AUSA prepares and distributes position papers on issues important to the Army and Army personnel. These papers with subjects ranging from selective service to recommendations of the Blue Ribbon Defense panel go to members of Congress and influential individuals and groups around the country, stated Col. Guthrie.

include the American-Korean Foundation, the Planned Parenthood World Population, CARE and Project HOPE.

A unique feature of the annual health appeal is the encouragement given to Federal contributors to apportion their donations among the agencies in which they are personally most interested.

Contributions that are not designated to individual agencies are divided among the locally participating voluntary organizations in the same ratio as designated contributions.

Research takes the form of award to support scientific investigation aimed at developing new knowledge about specific health problems. With such knowledge, there can be progress toward the cure or alleviation of the disease.

Col. Hatcher cautioned the drive captains about Department of Defense regulations which prohibit coercion or pressure of any kind in the solicitation of contributions. The campaign must be strictly voluntary," he said.

Previously, soldiers were not permitted to wear work uniforms into public places off-post.

Want to fly for free? Call Lawson Airfield

By Bill Kloeb

The regulation that requires Army aviators to fly four hours each month to maintain pilot proficiency creates a fast convenient and free mode of travel for military personnel assigned to Fort Benning.

Maj. Myrtis Roach Jr., commanding officer of the Flight Platoon, 9318t Engr. Gp., said there are more than 400 Army pilots assigned to Fort Benning. A large percentage of these are in positions that do not involve flying.....

These pilots are the ones who must put in the four hours of flying time each month. In most instances they fly the time without any operational mission. They can go anywhere within a 100 mile radius of the post without obtaining any special clearance.

Soldiers who want to take advantage of this transportation should telephone the Lawson Airfield Operations Office 545-2857.

The Flight Platoon is the unit which maintains the aircraft used in proficiency flights. Until now all rotary wing pilots used the Huey aircraft for proficiency flights but recently the flight platoon received two light observation aircraft and is in the process of obtaining 18 more for these flights.

The new model 60H Helicopters have many advantages over the larger Huey aircraft. They seat three passengers besides the pilot, fly longer without refueling or maintenance and are more economical to operate.

The 60H is considered the Caddillac of observation aircraft in Vietnam where it has assumed most of the reconnaissance and observation missions of air-cavalry units. It is capable of more than three hours of flying without refueling, has a maximum speed of 120 knots and an operational speed of 80 knots.

For armament it mounts a mini-gun which can fire more than 8,000 rounds of .30 caliber ammunition a minute. The aircraft is also used for artillery fire direction and as a flying command post.

Roach said the pilots who will be flying these aircraft to maintain flight proficiency rather would in most cases have a definite mission when they fly.

DA says no tour change

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Many inquiries have been received by the Department of the Army as to whether the Army plans to increase the length of oversea tours in view of recent Air Force action in this area.

At this time the Army plans no involuntary extension of oversea tours other than those provided by present regulations. However, personnel are encouraged to extend their oversea tours voluntarily as provided in AR 614-30.

Ranger graduation gets an ocean-spray accent

A bit of salt was added to the graduation of Ranger class 8-71.

Adm. R. G. Anderson, a naval staff officer currently stationed in Washington, D.C., pinned the Ranger tab on his son, 2nd Lt. Philip R. Anderson.

Some 106 other officers and soldiers received Ranger tabs in the ceremony. Honored were distinguished graduates Capt. Peter J. Daley and SSgt. Roy W. Johnson. Their tabs were pinned on by Col. Lamar Welch, director of the Airborne Department, who was guest speaker at the ceremony.

The graduation was climaxed with a free-fall parachute jump by Lt. Col. James Anderson, chairman of the Ranger patrolling committee, and Maj. Kenneth Johnston, also of the patrolling committee. The two jumpers made a stand-up landing in front of the reviewing stand and immediately presented Adm. Anderson with a mop which they had carried with them during their descent.

Not all the new Rangers were members of the U.S. Army. Four Marines and two Navy officers were among the graduates. Some 12 officers of the Laotian Army also graduated.

School offering scholarship

A limited number of scholarships for sons of Army officers is being offered for the year 1971-72 by Valley Forge Military Academy and Junior College in Wayne, Pa.

These scholarships will defray about one-third of the annual cost of $3,300.

Applicants will be considered for grades 7 through 11 and for the freshman class in the junior college. The applicant must be in excellent physical condition, of good moral character, in the upper two-fifths of his class, and able to pass the academy's regular entrance tests in scholastic and reading ability.

Further information may be obtained by writing the Dean of Admissions, Valley Forge Military Academy, Wayne, Pa.

It pays to look into sunglasses

THE FACTS: One sunny day a Defense Department employe took to his safety officer a pair of sunglasses he had obtained in a package of hair cream. The employe complained that he suffered headaches after each wearing of the glasses. The safety officer turned the glasses over to an optometrist, who noted: Frames highly flammable, lens distortion in the extreme.

THE POINT: A sure way to impair vision, perhaps permanently, is to equip yourself with a pair of inferior-grade sunglasses.

Quality improvement goal of new class

Course to instruct ROTC teachers

By Wendell Cochran

The Infantry School is trying to improve the quality of Infantry officers being sent to Reserve Officer Training Course duty at colleges around the country.

Ten officers — five presently assigned to ROTC duty — are attending a two-week, two-day course for future ROTC instructors currently being run by the School.

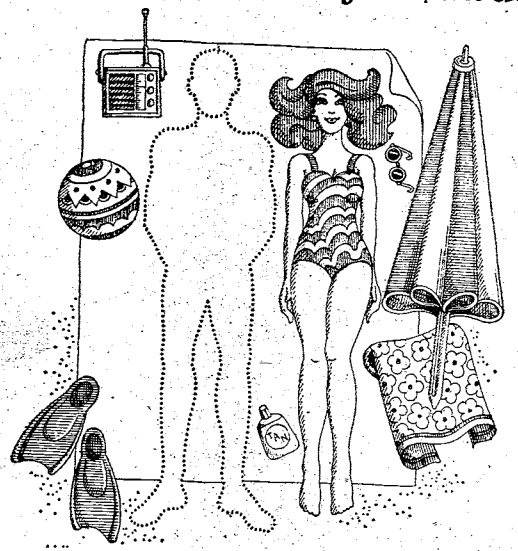
The class, called ROTC Infantry Instructors Course, has two goals, according to the Director of Instruction's (DI) office which designed the course.

"The first is to enable the newly assigned college ROTC instructor to successfully recruit cadets for ROTC and to influence senior cadets to select the Infantry Branch for commissioning," the DI's office said.

This is part of the current Infantry School drive to increase the number of ROTC cadets volunteering for infantry commission.

The courses' second goal is "to enable the ROTC instructor to go to the college confident that he excels in the teaching knowledges and skills required of a college instructor."

Students in the course — most of them recent graduates of the Infantry Officers Advanced Course — are given extensive training in instructor methods.



"The student is also made aware of the current college environment and is coached in his relationship with civilian professors so that he will feel at ease in his professional and social relationships with them. He also is made aware of the particular requirements he will face as an ROTC instructor, including his administrative duties, his supply activities and his counseling functions."

Students attending the first ROTC-IIC course and their ROTC stations include Capt. Robert J. Busch, Washington and Lee University; Capt. David C. Cejka, McNeese State College; Capt. Joseph E. Flesch, Washington University; Capt. Joseph Hollis, Wake Forest University; Capt. Gene Rafanelli, Campbell College.

Five officers assigned to the Infantry School also are attending the course. They are Capt. J. F. Dowling, Capt. Thomas D. Fitzgerald Jr., Capt. Edward A. Havens, Capt. David R. Holdsworth, Capt. Ronald D. Pease.

The ROTC Infantry Instructors Course is being tested under approval of the Continental Army Command. Results of the initial course will be used to determine continuation of the class.

When an emergency occurs, ACS is there to help

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first article in a three-part series describing the services of the Army Community Service at Fort Benning. This week's article tells of the emergency services provided by the organization.)

By Les Houser

Some people may consider the phrase "the Army takes care of its own" as trite. But for the thousands of Army families who have been helped by the Army Community Service (ACS), it is as real as the helping hand of a close friend.

ACS began its role at Fort Benning more than five years ago with a variety of services answering the many needs of the soldier and his family. The bulk of ACS volunteers are Army wives who understand the unique problems of the Army family.

A number of ACS services involve emergency situations. In most instances when such emergencies occur, friends or relatives come to the aid of the family. But when close friends have not yet been established by a newly arrived family on post or relatives cannot be immediately notified, volunteers of the Emergency Services Committee of ACS step in to give assistance on a "wife to wife" basis to the stricken family.

In the case of death or a missing in action report of a military sponsor, Emergency Services volunteers quickly follow up the notification team to aid the stricken family until friends or relatives arrive. Their assistance may amount to no more than picking up the children from school or preparing a meal for the family — but such assistance in a time of grief proves to be invaluable to the family.

Emergency Services volunteers often rely on their own experience as a housewife to temporarily run the household of an Army family when the mother is suddenly hospitalized and the father is out of town. Under similar circumstances, volunteers provide transportation to Martin Army Hospital when sudden illness strikes the family and the father cannot be reached. They also provide emergency medicine pickup when no other transportation is available.

2 Benning captains join unique AUSA group

Two captains received certificates of commendation recently for purchasing lifetime memberships in the local chapter of the Association of the United States Army (AUSA).

Joe J. Flowers Jr., chapter president, presented the certificates to Capt. Floyd L. Likens and Capt. William F. Blankenship at the monthly meeting of the board of directors of the Columbus — Phenix City — Fort Benning Chaper of the AUSA. The meeting was held at the Fourth National Bank in Columbus.

Likens is company commander of Co. B, Hqs. Cmd., and Blankenship is company commander of Co. B, 1st Bn., 29th Inf. 197th Inf. Bde.

The two men joined an elite group of 230 Life Members, worldwide, out of a total membership of about 94,000. Other Life Members include former President Harry S Truman, Lt. Gen. John Oakes, Maj. Gen. William J. Sutton and CSM Laurence E. Kennedy.

Plans were revealed at the meeting for the chapter's 1971 membership drive, which started March 15. The drive is attempting to secure additional memberships for the local chapter and renew old memberships which have expired, "in order to "maintain a vigorous, viable, representative AUSA chapter," said Col. William R. Guthrie, secretary-treasurer of the chapter.

AUSA first vice - president, Col. (ret.) Jake L. Riley Jr., has been appointed chairman of the civilian drive in Columbus and Phenix City. He will work with the Civilian Personnel Division here to obtain a volunteer civilian representative to head the Fort Benning civilian drive. . .

Lt. Col. John A. Seddon of the Nonresident Instruction ROTC Affairs Department has been appointed coordinator of the military drive at Fort Benning.

U.S. agency seeks men for course

WASHINGTON (AFPS) —Applications are being accepted by the U.S. Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs for positions of special agent, the Justice Department has announced.

Selectees will participate in a formal 10-week course at the National Training Institute in Washington D.C. Instruction will cover self-defense, use of firearms, narcotic and drug abuse laws, court procedures, investigative techniques, criminology, drug and narcotic identification.

Lowest positions, the announcement said, begin at GS-7—$10,727 yearly, including overtime. Qualification requirements include established eligibility on a Federal Entrance Examination plus one year of graduate study or one year of experience. Some positions start at a GS-9 level for qualified applicants, the announcement added.

Other requirements are: Applicants must be male, possess American citizenship, have a valid driver's license, be able to undergo a background investigation, and pass a rigid physical examination.

Rapid promotional opportunities exist, officials said, to Grades GS-11 and GS-12, dependent upon satisfactory job performance and a minimum of one year of experience in a lower grade.

Men interested in such Federal law enforcement officer positions should contact the nearest Regional Office of the U.S. Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs or write to the Bureau's Readquarters, Washington, D.C. 20537.

Danish general visiting

Maj. Gen. Aage D. Danhuus, commanding general, Jutland Division, Royal Danish Army, arrives at Fort Benning today for an orientation tour of the post and Infantry School activities.

In addition to receiving briefings on the Infantry Center and Infantry School, Gen. Danhuus will tour the Little White House at Warm Springs, Ga., visit Callaway Gardens at Pine Mountain, Ga., go shopping in Columbus and visit the Infantry Museum and Bradley Memorial Museum.

An honors ceremony will be held at 8:30 a.m. Monday for Gen. Danhuus.

Accompanying him on the tour will be Col. Jorgen Andreassen, chief of staff, Western Land Command, Royal Danish Army, and Maj. Bendt Berthelsen, Army Staff, Royal Danish Army.

Ft. Knox CG Visits Benning

Maj. Gen. William Desobry, commanding general of Ft. Knox, Ky., and commander of the U.S. Army Armor School, is visiting Fort Benning this week.

Gen. Desobry will receive a series of briefings today on Infantry Center and Infantry School activities and will tour the new Learning Center in Infantry Hall.

An official luncheon for Gen. Desobry will be held today at the Main Officers Open Mess.

He will depart Fort Benning Sunday.

Big outlay made for vet education

The Veterans Administration has revealed that the American people have invested an estimated $21.7 billion to educate 12.4 million veterans under three major G.I. Bills during the past 26 years.

The agency noted that at current G.I. Bill training allowances, it spends about $6,300 during the 36 months required for a veteran to earn his college degree.

Armed with this degree, a veteran can then expect to earn about $213,000 more in his lifetime than he could if he were only a high school graduate, according to the Bureau of the Census.

The Bureau of Internal Revenue estimates it will collect roughly $40,000 in taxes on the extra income.

Thus, the Federal government stands to get back more than six times its original investment of $6,300.

Last year, participation in all of VA's educational programs peaked at 1,025,000 in November — a 31 per cent increase over the 783,000 trainees on the rolls in November 1969.

Veterans and servicemen become eligible for educational benefits after serving more than 180 days of active duty, any part of it after Jan. 31, 1955, or if discharged for a service-connected disability after any length of service.

Extra pay comes sooner for drill sgts.

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Another incentive has been added to the list of attractions to the job of drill sergeant—this one worth $300.

Beginning July 1, the proficiency pay of $50 per month, which until now has been received by drill sergeants only after serving in that job for six months, will start as soon as an individual has successfully completed the six-week drill sergeant course.

The new bonus comes on top of several other incentives:

—Stabilized two-year assignment for Vietnam veterans.

—Highly favorable promotion rate—for example, 15 of the 22 drill sergeants considered by the most recent Department of the Army E7 board got their stripes; of 41 on local E6 recommended lists as of Dec. 30, 1970, 19 were promoted in February.

—Extra uniforms and free laundry for fatigues.

Soldiers in grades E4 through E7 should consult AR 614-200 for additional information.

Army to get 17,000 draftees

WASHINGTON (ANF) — The Army will receive all 17,000 of the inductees the Department of Defense has requested from the Selective Service System for April.

The same number of draft calls also were made in January, February, and March.

All military to take new training

DOD sets race-relations program

WASHINGTON (ANF) — The Department of Defense has established a new education program in race relations for all members of the armed forces.

The program will have approximately 1,400 trained full-time instructors conducting race relations courses throughout the armed forces within a year. All military personnel will be required to undergo at least six hours of instruction every year.

IMPROVED READINESS

The primary purpose of the program is to achieve a more harmonious relationship among all military personnel so that organizational efficiency and combat readiness will not be impaired by racial unrest, tension or conflict.

A Defense Race Relations Education Board has been formed to prescribe policy guidance for the program.

A Defense Race Relations Institute will begin to operate in the near future. The Institute will train armed forces personnel as instructors in race relations, develop doctrine and curricula for the education program, conduct research, perform an evaluation of the program's effectiveness, and disseminate educational guidelines and materials for use throughout the armed forces.

Army Col. Edward F. Kitse has been appointed director of the Institute. The Detroit, Mich., native has a doctorate in social welfare from the University of Chicago.

TO TEACH TEACHERS

Staffed by about 44 officers, enlisted and civilian personnel, the Institute will have the capacity for training 100 race relations instructors per class.

The course of instruction will last about six weeks, with classes beginning every three weeks. Instruction will range from minority history and sociology to teaching skills.

ALL VOLUNTEERS

Students attending the Institute will be volunteers from all services selected to be trained as instructors on the basis of their backgrounds in teaching and group communications skills.

The Race Relations Education Program is expected to have an impact not only on the armed forces but also on the country as a whole. It is anticipated that results of the program will be felt in communities where armed forces are located and that there will be a carry-over into the rest of the country as servicemen return to civilian life.

VOLAR skit presented for IOAC wives lunch

"A Little Light on VOLAR" was presented by the "VOLAR Repertory Company" in their first and last performance yesterday at the Fort Benning Supper Club. The program was presented at the March luncheon given by the wives of students in Infantry Officer Advanced Class No. 2-71.

Director of the skit on the modern volunteer Army was Mrs. Grady Smith. The performers were ladies of the 4th Plt.

The Club was decorated in keeping with the theme. Some 110 ladies attended.

Guest of honor was Mrs. Frank Garrison, wife of Col. Garrison, commander USB. Student wife hostesses were ladies of the 4th Plt. including Mrs. Burwin P. Reed, chairman; Mrs. David W. Rector, decorations chairman; Mrs. Joseph G. Terry, program chairman; Mrs. James N. Vawter, food and wine chairman; Mrs. Robert T. Sweeney, invitations and Mrs. Paul E. Smith, name tags.

At presentation

Dena K. Jones holds the medals of her brother, Sp4 James L. Jones, in a recent posthumous awards ceremony here. Sp4 Jones was killed in action July 9, 1970, in the Republic of Vietnam. Standing behind the young lady are Mr. and Mrs. Lynn L. Jones, the specialist's parents, and Joseph M. Jones, his brother.

How to Check automobile hoses

WASHINGTON (AFPS) —When's the last time you personally inspected the hoses in your automobile?

If you are like most car owners, you usually leave that job up to the service station attendent, who, more often than not, does not know how to make an adequate check.

The Rubber Manufacturers Association (RMA) recommends two procedures for inspecting all types of hoses used on your car—a visual inspection and a manual inspection.

The RMA says evidence of any of the following cannot be corrected by tightening the clamp.

—Any hose with cracks, cuts, or tears where the fabric is exposed.

—Any house which has any bump, bulge, knot, or blister.

—Any hose which is kinked or collapsed.

During manual inspection, the RMA recommends hose replacement if these conditions exist:

—Any hose that leaks

—Localized areas of softness, stickiness, hardness or brittleness.

—Movement of the hose in relation to the fitting, clamp or coupling with application of gentle forces (pull, side to side, or rotational).

—Lack of sufficient slack to permit maximum relative movement of the two hose terminals.

'Up or Out' Program has some exceptions

WASHINGTON (ANF) — If you're due to be separated from the Army under the new Qualitative Management Program, you can now request that an exception be made in your case.

The Qualitative Management Program terminates the careers of enlisted personnel considered nonprogressive or nonproductive.

Now, if you feel you have a good reason, either you or your commander can request an exception to policy.

Between three and nine months before you're scheduled to leave the Army, make out a request similar to a request for waiver of basic qualifications for reenlistment and submit it, together with your commander's recommendations, through command channels to the U. S. Army Enlistment Eligibility Activity, 9700 Page Blvd., St. Louis, Mo. 63132.

It takes 11 weeks to train a man to become a non-commissioned officer in the Infantry School's non-commissioned officer candidate program. And during those 11 weeks, which often seem 12 because of late-night training and tough problems, the 42 men of a typical NCOC platoon are supervised constantly by a tactical NCO.

His hours are often longer than those of the privates he supervises — and well they should, for his goal is to turn out a capable infantry squad leader.

"Our primary missions are guidance, counseling and correction," explains SSgt. Pete W. Myers, a "tac" from the 83rd Co. 8th Stu. Bn., TSB. "All our efforts are directed toward producing highly trained and motivated NCOs."

Personal counseling of individual candidates accounts for a large portion of the "tac's" time. Leadership positions within the company are rotated every two and a half days and all platoon fire team and squad leaders, as well as platoon sergeant and company first sergeant, are given extensive critiques on their performance by the "tac."

Notations are made informally during the course of training, and the "tac" prepares an evaluation of each individual's performance. Special counseling is given to any candidate who earns an unsatisfactory rating on a particular leadership trait or who fails to obtain a passing score of 70 per cent on any examination.

Along with counseling of an official nature, "tacs" take an active interest in the personal problems of their men. "Since we have about 40 or 45 men in our platoons, the counseling job itself is almost a full time operation," Meyer added.

The typical day for an NCOC "tac" begins at about 5:30 a.m. and can end late in the evening if the "tac" is assigned to monitor a required evening study hall. During the daytime at least one "tac" accompanies the company to the site of the field training to observe and to coordinate instruction with the committee from the Infantry School.

Particularly important are the "tac's" first days with his platoon. He conducts an initial interview with each member in order to acquaint himself with the individual and to outline the program in detail. It is at this point that the "tac" initiates a personnel record, a "miniature 201 file" on each man to which is added pertinent information on academics and leadership performance throughout the course.

Personal information is kept in this file also to provide ready information on each candidate's background.

Finally, "tacs" often make recommendations to boards which evaluate performance of candidates during the sixth week of training. These recommendations are influential in the board's decisions to recycle or to dismiss candidates.

Some of the burden of a "tac's" job is relieved by on-the-job "junior tacs" who are recent graduates of the course. They often counsel fire team leaders and generally assist the primary "tac" in supervising the platoon.

These assistants, assigned for short periods, gain valuable experience in the administration of a platoon and get some feeling for what it is like to be a tactical NCO.

What's that?

26 non-credit courses to begin

Twenty-six non-credit, continuing education courses will be offered at Columbus College beginning March 29. Most classes run for eight weeks, and registration fees range from $6 to $40.

Generally, the classes meet at 7:30 p.m. for two hours once or twice a week. Instructors are either members of the college faculty or experts in their field from the community-at-large. Registration may be made by mail or in person at the college's business office.

Four courses are being offered for the first time this quarter. Technical Analysis of Securities, given on Tuesday evenings for eight weeks, is an advanced class in investments for those who have more than a casual knowledge of investment.

The other courses, given on Wednesday evenings, include Problems of Mental Retardation, Feminique, and Charisma. The latter two are for women who are interested in becoming more charming and feminine. The course on retardation is an introduction to the nature and types of mental retardation.

Further details are available by phone from the Office of Continuing Education at the college, 561-5134.

Scheduled classes are:

Mondays — Antiquing and Minor Furniture Repair, Decoupage — Beginning, Modern Jazz Dance, and Psychology of Human Relations.

Tuesdays — Technical Analysis of Securities, Beginning Folk Guitar — Section 1 and 2, Basic English, and Shorthand Refresher and Speedbuilding.

Wednesdays — Problems of Mental Retardation, Feminique, and Charisma.

Thursdays — Intermediate Guitar, Advanced Guitar, upholstering and Chair Caning, Interior Decoration, and Conversational German.

Mondays and Wednesdays — Typewriting for Personal Use, Real Estate Salesmen's Class April 19, Red Cross Water Safety Instructor's Course March 22, Red Cross Water Safety Instructor's Course April 26, Office Accounting, and Reading Acceleration.

Tuesdays and Thursdays — Drawing and Painting, Slimnastics, Scuba Diving — Beginning, an Anatomy, Physiology and Medical Terminology.

Saturdays — Art for Children (grades 3 - 7) meets 10 a.m. to noon.

IOBC 14 honors Froemel

Col. John E. Tyler, director of Operations and Logistics, delivered the commencement address to the 141 graduates.

Froemel is a graduate of DePaul University, Chicago with a master of arts degree in psychology. He received his commission in military intelligence.

The nine week IOBC program is designed to provide branch training to officers of the Active Army, National Guard, and the Army Reserve. The students were taught the duties and responsibilities of company grade officers. Included in the course of instruction were small arms, mortar, company and platoon operations.

Wait a minute before going off into dark

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — According to the British Association of Optical Practitioners, your vision will improve 20,000 to 30,000 times if you wait a few minutes before driving off into the dark.

The Association claims it takes about 15 minutes for a driver's eyes to become completely accustomed to the dark—but few motorists wait even 15 seconds. They come out of a lighted building, jump into a car and drive off — partially blind.

If radio works in combat, thank instruction here

By Tony Jones

A fighting unit in Vietnam is pinned down and receiving heavy enemy fire. The company commander gets on the field radio and calls a nearby artillery unit and requests fire-support. The artillery unit lays down a curtain of fire around the beleaguered unit and many lives are saved.

As usual, the field radio worked. If it had not worked, the result would have been disastrous.

Someone had to ensure that the field radio would work when needed. Who is he?

He is the field radio mechanic and there is a good chance that he learned his trade at Fort Benning in the nine-week field radio mechanic course offered here.

"The purpose of the course," said Col. Robert D. Sweeney, director of the Communication-Electronics Department, "is to provide soldiers with the working knowledge to install, operate and perform organizational maintenance on communications and electronic equipment."

This covers radio equipment, security communications equipment, wire communications and teletype equipment. The graduates of the course receive a professional military occupational specialty (MOS) designation.

"The course is divided into two phases," said MSgt. Anthony Collachio, the chief instructor in the electronics committee.

"The first four weeks is devoted to basic principles of electricity and electronics, while the rest of the course concentrates on practical application," he added.

"The trend is toward more practical application," Collachio said, "since this allows a smaller student - instructor ratio — a ratio of 8 to 1 as contrasted with perhaps 100 to 1 as found in conference-type instruction."

Most classes, of which there are about 16 a year, average around 100 students.

Students are selected for the course on the basis of aptitude tests given them when they enter the Army. They must have a high aptitude for electronics before they are selected to attend the course.

"Not only are classes large," Collachio said, "but the educational and experience levels of the students are quite varied." He added that some students in the course have completed eight years of formal education while some have degrees in law, electrical engineering and other fields.

"It was feared that this variance in the students' education and experience might present a problem," Collachio said, "in that some students with prior training or experience might be bored during the classes on fundamental aspects of the course."

Collachio said that an accelerated program was developed to avoid this problem.

"Tests are administered to all students when they arrive at Fort Benning for the course," he said. "If their test results indicate a sufficiently high level of theory proficiency they are allowed to bypass the first two or four weeks of the course."

On the other hand, some students encounter problems with the course material.

To overcome this problem, "each student is assigned a faculty advisor," said CW2 Thirston Phillips, chairman of the fundamentals subcommittee.

"If the student has difficulty with the material," he added, "he is encouraged to present it to his advisor, who will attempt to help the student. If it is an academic problem, the adviser may provide the student with a programmed text of instruction that will help him over the rough spot."

In an effort to maintain a high degree of quality in the course, "efforts are continually made to upgrade the instructional material," said Lt. Col. John M. Kalina, chief of the electronics committee.

"The course is presently being upgraded in two areas — Computer assisted instruction and integration of 90 hours on solid state (transistor) theory," Kalina said.

"Also, we have just completed a 15-credit-hour elective course in electronics for use by students in the Infantry Officer Basic Course," he added.

Even the classrooms used in the course are tailored. They contain specially designed work benches with built-in power facilities that are needed for the high-voltage equipment used in the course.

After graduation from the field radio mechanic course, about 25 per cent of the graduates are assigned to further training in communications equipment at either Ft. Sill, Okla., or Ft. Gordon, Ga. The other graduates are assigned to field units to begin their work as field radio mechanics.

'Star Spangled Banner' still under fire

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Ladies and gentlemen, our National Anthem (is under bombardment).

George London, artistic director of the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, points to the anthem's drinking song heritage and says "it's impossible to sing if you're sober."

Not so, says Sen. Charles Mathias of Maryland, the state where "The Star Spangled Banner" was written. He calls it "an epic of the courage of our ancestors during troubled times."

Others have been similarly in disagreement over the song's history and lyrical toughness.

Francis Scott Key set his immortal words to a popular English song usually called "To Anacreon in Heaven." The sheet music of one early version titles it "The Anacreontic Song as sung at the Crow and Anchor Tavern in the Strand."

Enrico Caruso had trouble with the words. The great tenor relied on his own phonetic version of the anthem. It started:

"O seiken in see hai dhi dons er'i lait/Huat so praudli ui heild at dhi tuail-laits last glimmin . . ."

Scholars quickly explain, however, that such drinking songs were not confined to rowdy bar rooms.

Voices and glasses often were lifted at upper class affairs, where "people gathered for intellectual pursuits, maybe a light collation, and some drinking," one historian said.

"To Anacreon in Heaven" is credited to one John Stafford Smith. Some musicologists argue that the tune is of Irish origin and was brought to the United States by an Irish regiment in the British Army.

Though written in 1814, "The Star Spangled Banner" was not made the official National Anthem until 1931. Its major rival was "America" ("My Country 'Tis of Thee") written in 1831 by the Rev. Charles Francis Smith to the tune of the British anthem, "God Save the Queen."

New processed food reduces rations' weight

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — A new type of processed food, designed to drastically reduce the weight and space of military rations, is being purchased on a test basis by the Defense Personnel Support Center.

Called "compressed foods," the new subsistence items are first cooked, then dehydrated by air or freeze-drying, and finally pressed hydraulically under pressures ranging from 1,000 to 3,000 pounds per square inch. This compression reduces the volume by as much as 15 to one. The foods are easily reconstituted with boiling, or even cold water.

A disc of compressed cherries about 3½ inches in diameter and ¾ inch thick is enough to make a full-sized cherry pie. A container of compressed green beans the size of two packs of chewing gum reconstitutes into a half plate of the vegetable.

DPSC is procuring four compressed food items under production test contracts: Cherries, peas, onions and green beans. Future plans include production test purchasing such items as compressed pork link sausage, corn, diced beef and blueberries.

6 terminals raise checks of passengers

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Military Airlift Command has increased its anti-hijacking measures at six passenger terminals in the United States.

New procedures include spot searches of outbound passenger flights, both military and charter, officials said.

All passengers and their hand-carried baggage are searched on selected flights by passenger service personnel and security police.

Passengers who refuse to submit to spot checks are denied boarding until authorized by the terminal traffic officer in conjunction with security police.

Synopsis

HELL'S ANGELS '69 (Rated GP). Two thrill-seeking brothers plan one of the wildest robberies ever conceived.

Jeremy Slate and Tom Stern, play their deadly game by infiltrating the ranks of the Hell's Angels, with the ultimate purpose of using them for a cover in the holdup of Ceasars Palace in Las Vegas.

RIO LOBO (Rated G). John Wayne is cleaning up "Rio Lobo" so you can bring the whole family.

In a role uniquely tailored to his talents, Wayne plays the part of a tough, brawling ex-Civil War officer who frees a Texas town of carpetbaggers and settles an old score with a wartime informer.

The film includes an explosive train robbery, nerve-shattering gun fights and a few fist fights for good measure.

JOHN AND MARY (Rated R). This is a contemporary love story that starts with sex and ends with love. Yet, it is also as complex and contemporary as next season's fashions.

"John and Mary" features a discerning portrayal of many of today's young singles, and the intricate mating rituals they observe while simultaneously searching for and evading communication and commitment.

They meet and fall in love . . . without knowing each other's names. "They" are Mia Farrow and Dustin Hoffman.

START THE REVOLUTION WITHOUT ME (Rated GP). Two of the screen's great new funnymen, Gene Wilder and Donald Sutherland, form hilarious comedy teams in this rollicking farce about the French revolution.

The actors portray a set of mismatched twins who were mixed up at birth by the same presiding doctor. Their accidental but simultaneous presence at the Court of Louis XVI, years later, causes such confusion in mistaken identities that the Revolution of 1789 is nearly averted.

FOOLS (Rated GP). Touched with romantic magic and two remarkable and affecting performances, "Fools" tells of a tragic modern romance between two unlikely people.

The lovers, Jason Robards and Katharine Ross, develop genuine fondness for each other while constantly having difficulties with everyone they come across, the FBI and a trio of turned-on hippies.

Polka Dots to perform

As part of Columbus Festival Days scheduled in Columbus beginning today and ending April 4, the Polka Dots of Fort Benning will entertain from 7 to 10 p.m. at St. Elmo today.

A singing group of 15 ladies, the Polka Dots have appeared on the Ted Mack Original Amateur Hour and have performed with the Art Linkletter Military Variety Show which was presented at Fort Benning in 1969.

In their performance at St. Elmo, which is the home of Dr. and Mrs. Phillip Schley at 2802 18th Ave., the Polka Dots will be wearing costumes which are based on an ante bellum theme.

The Polka Dots perform two or three times monthly in the local area and have been performing as a group for about four years.

Festival Days

How well do you know Columbus? If you are like a good majority of the people, you know only a few of the attractions in and surrounding the Columbus Fort Benning area.

For those of you who would like to see and learn more about Columbus and its historic background, Festival Days is your perfect chance.

Beginning today and ending April 7 dozens of organizations will open their doors to the public for the purpose of visits and tours. Everything from the Spring Pilgrimage Tour of Homes and Walking Tour to a Children's Art Exhibit will be featured.

Square dancing, fashion shows, concerts, bazaars, scout dog and airborne demonstrations, fishing rodeo, and operas are all included in this fantastic package of events.

Eufaula Pilgrimage

An Old South welcome awaits you during the fifth annual Eufaula Pilgrimage and the Antique Show and Sale Thursday through Sunday, April 1-4.

During the Pilgrimage, the Bluff City's thousands of azaleas and dogwood trees will be at their peak. Fish also will be jumping in linker-filled Lake Eufaula. Gorgeous gardens and miles of green, plush parkways and tree-lined streets are today part of the heritage that is old Eufaula's. This is the setting for many of the impressive mansions that were built by the old river town's wealthy planters.

Hostesses and Southern belles in hoop skirts will welcome you and conduct tours through some 13 famed Heritage Homes.

The addition of the late Gov. Chauncey Sparks home and the Kolb-Wilson, Woodlane, are among the new attractions being planned for the 1971 Pilgrimage. There also will be a candlelight tour and the chance to visit historic Westville and the Bedingfield Inn in nearby Lumpkin.

Famed Shorter Mansion, Heritage Association Headquarters, has been renovated and is a magnificent showplace. The most recent restoration project, the Sheppard Cottage, near the bluff, is a charming link with Eufaula's earliest white settlement, Irwinton.

The candlelight tour offers a glimpse into the South's romantic past. On Thursday and Saturday nights, the Candlelight tour will include Shorter Mansion, Calton-Hurlbert Home, Thornton-Comer-Rudderman, First Presbyterian Church, and Cross Creek Estate Gardens. Hours for the Candlelight Tours are 7-9 p.m.

Day tours time set as follows:

9 a.m. -1 p.m. Bray-Barron Home, Drewery-Mitchell - Mourer Home, Thornton - Comer - Rudderman, and Dean Hall.

1-5 p.m. Kendall Manor, Simpson - Thomas Home, Cato House, Carlton-Hurlbert Home, and Highland View.

9 a.m. - 5 p.m. Shorter Mansion, Sparks-Flewellen, Sunny View Farms, and Kolb-Wilson.

Information and ticket sales for the Pilgrimage will be set up in the Carnegie Library located on North Eufaula Avenue, across from St. James Episcopal Church.

The Sparks-Flewellen Home, opened this year for the first time was built in 1857 by G. W. Whipple. This house was lived in by the late Gov. Sparks and is presently the residence of his sister, Mrs. Louise S. Flewellen.

The Kolb-Wilson home, Woodlane, is a classic example of Greek Revival raised cottage style of architecture. It was built in 1862.

A visit to Lumpkin is a must for students for pre-1850 Southern history. Bedingfield Inn, built by Dr. Bryan Bedingfield, was constructed about 1836. It is being furnished throughout as it would have been for the use of a prosperious family and as an Inn for Westville. Visitors to Westville will be able to see the arts of the early craftsmen, such as candlemaking, weaving and forging iron into horseshoes and other tools of the early 1850's.

Be sure to take advantage of this opportunity to attend both the Eufaula Pilgrimage and Westville for a delightful step into the past.

Skydiving Demonstration

The Sport Parachute Club on post is featuring a skydiving demonstration Sunday, at 2:10 p.m. on York Field in front of Infantry Hall.

The public is invited to come and watch as the club's demonstation team performs various maneuvers while in free-fall and then floats to the ground (under a parachute of course).

Military chess tourney slated

WASHINGTON (ANF) — If you're a chess buff, it's not too early to start getting in shape for the 12th annual Armed Forces Chess Championship Tournament, which will be held Sept. 17 - 24.

A six-man team will represent the Army in competition against a team from the Air Force and one from the Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard. Each player will compete with every other player on the other two teams.

The team with the highest score will take the Thomas Emery Trophy, now held jointly by the Army and Air Force.

The tournament will be held in the American Legion's Hall of Flags in Washington, D.C.

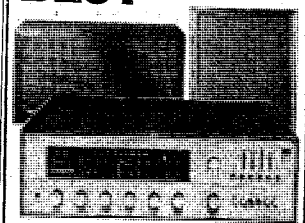
Anyone on active duty with the Army is eligible to try for the Army team. Finalists will be selected on the basis of U.S. Chess Federation (USCF) ratings, major command or area tournaments and other records indicating player capabilities.

Unrated players desiring USCF ratings should apply directly to the USCF, 479 Broadway, Newburgh, N.Y. 12550.

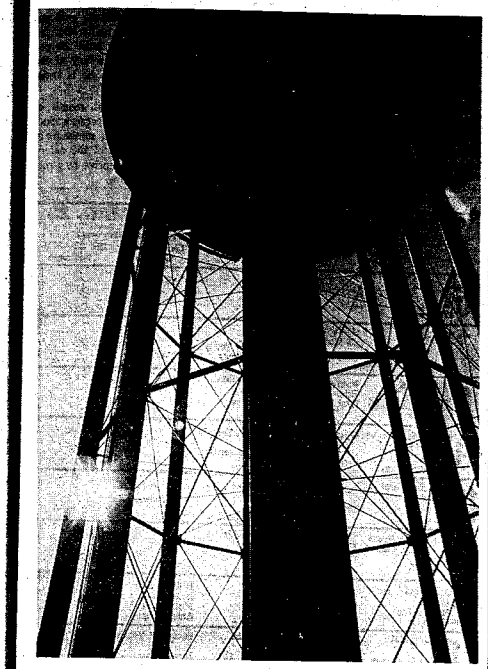
Each finalist will receive $20 per diem from the American Chess Foundation (ACF) to cover expenses for each of the nine days in Washington.

The ACF sponsors the program with the approval of the secretary of defense and the cooperation of the American Legion, USO, USCF and the recreation authorities of the Department of Defense and the services.

More information on the tournament is available from Army recreation offices, USO facilities, USCF regional vice-presidents and Office of the Adjutant General, Room 01A-226 Forrestal Building, Washington, D.C. 20314, Attention Miss Pat Abernethy.



Good looker



Some people look good no matter what they wear. Alena Johnston donned this stunning number while portraying a show girl in the movie, "Funny Girl," which featured Broadway in the twenties. Old veterans may question the authenticity of the circa 1920 costume, but no one can dispute that it is the real Alena in there.

Bottom up

Frank Webb

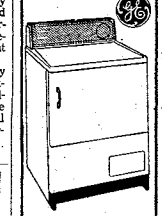
Can you identify this imposing, spider-like Fort Benning structure at first glance? If not, don't let it dampen your spirits. It's one of the post's 10 water towers — photographed from the bottom up. Approximately 160 ft. high, this particular tank contains about 1 million gallons of water.

Army insurance policy good deal for soldiers

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Almost 35,000 Army personnel are missing out on a tremendous offer.

They are the 23,000 who elected not to be insured under the Servicemen's Group Life Insurance (SGLI) program and some 12,000 who opted for less than the maximum coverage.

Under SGLI, members of the armed forces receive $15,000 term life insurance for a $3 payroll deduction per month; $10,000 worth for $2 monthly; or $5,000 coverage for $1 per month.



This group policy is completely free of military hazard restrictions and can be converted to permanent insurance upon return to civilian life without a physical examination.

Though a soldier may have his reasons for electing otherwise, it's generally to his advantage to be covered for the full amount, as these are bargain rates.

8,300 veterans train as policemen, firemen

The Veterans Administration reports 8,300 veterans were taking policemen and firemen on-the-job training under the G.I. Bill in January — a 51 per cent increase over the 5,500 in training a year earlier.

This year's trainees include 6,200 veterans pursuing careers as policemen, and 2,100 as firemen.

VA noted California's 1,540 led the nation in number of trainees, with 1,167 policemen and 373 firemen. New York was second, with 1,345 veterans, 897 preparing for policemen and 448 for firemen careers.

Other areas with sizeable numbers of on-the-job trainees include: District of Columbia, 671, including 645 taking policemen and 26 firemen training; Connecticut, 534, with 326 policemen and 208 firemen trainees; Ohio 532 trainees — 346 for careers as policemen, and 186 as firemen; and Pennsylvania, 497 trainees, including 419 policemen and 78 firemen.

VA explained that before a veteran can participate in policemen-firemen on-the-job training, the courses — which last from six months to two years — must first be approved by the approving agency of th state.

During the trainee's learning period, VA supplements earnings he receives from his police or fire department, and requires that at the start, be be paid at least 50 per cent of the salary of the job for which he is training.

By his last month of training, the veteran must be drawing a minimum of 85 per cent of the salary he would receive as a regular employe.

Late passage of the bill raising the cost of hunting and fishing licenses has put the Georgia Game and Fish Commission in a bind. Some 1.5 million licenses have to be printed, and a good percentage of these are going to be in demand by April 1 when the 1971-1972 licenses are required. Right now it looks as though there are going to be some long lines of fishermen trying to get licenses before the deadline. The Rod and Gun Club headquarters will get the word out as soon as possible after the licenses are put on sale.

The new fishing license will cost $3.25 and the hunting license $4.25. This year, trout fishermen and turkey, bear and deer hunters will have to pay extra to enjoy the sport. Trout fishermen will need a separate stamp which will cost $2.25 and the big game hunters also will have to come up with an additional $3.25.

Trout and Big Game Stampes

The trout and big game stamps cannot be purchased unless the sportsman has a 1971-1972 fishing license, and a regular hunting license must be purchased before a big game stamp may be bought.

The trout stamp will be required at any time an angler is fishing any stream designated as trout water. Anglers fishing in reservoirs where there are trout will not be allowed to keep trout unless they possess a trout stamp.

The regular open season begins April 1. Management streams open the first weekend in May. The schedules for fishing in management streams will not be available until the later part of April.

Turkey hunters will be the first to use the big game stamp. The spring turkey season is scheduled to open in Chattahoochee County April 27. Opening dates for the spring season in other counties were listed in the March edition of the Georgia Game and Fish Magazine. Lists of opening dates may also be obtained at any store selling hunting licenses, Muscogee County will not have a spring open season.

The big game license purchased for the spring turkey season will also be valid for the deer and bear seasons next fall. The same license will be valid for he gun and archery season. Hunters are still required to tag all deer harvested in the state. The deer tag will he fastened to the big game license.

Old and Young Exempt

Georgia residents under 16 or over 65 will not be required to have either a hunting, fishing, trout or big game license. Residents over 65 must have an honorary license which will be issued free by application to the Georgia Game and Fish Commission at Atlanta.

Landowners and their immediate families are not required to hold a license of any kind when hunting or fishing on their property, but all others hunting or fishing on private property must comply with all the regulations in effect for state or federal land.

Non-Resident Licenses

Non-resident fees for hunting and fishing were also increased. The regular non-resident license will cost $15.25 for a 10-day period or $25.25 for a season permit. The non-resident trout or big game license will cost $10.25 each. The cost for the two sports increased quite a hit for out of state sportsmen, but is still a bargain when you consider the sport available and the big fees for out of state privileges charged by some of the western states.

Game and Fish Magazine

This year all the licenses except the big game license will have a subscription form for the Georgia Game and Fish Magazine attached. It was added to make it easier for sportsmen to subscribe to the magazine and inform more sportsmen that such a publication is available. The magazine is the official publication of the Georgia Game and Fish Commission. It features articles concerning projects, accomplishments and positions of the commission on laws affecting hunting, fishing and conservation. It carries up-to-date information on opening seasons and hunting and fishing conditions at state and federal facilities.

At the cost of $1 per year or $2.50 for a three-year subscription, the publication is a must for all Georgia sportsmen.

Hurricanes win PeeWee league title

By A. J. Book

The Hurricanes made it nine straight victories as they won their last two games, and with those two wins they also clinched the Youth Activities PeeWee league basketball championship.

Tim Booth swished 19 points to lead the Hurricanes to a 31-28 win over the Globetrotters while Trotter Cal Griffin hit 17 points for runnerup game scoring honors.

The Hurricane scoring also included 6 points by Junior Lee, 4 points by Keith Book and 2 points by David Driskill. For the Globetrotters, Dewey Caulder netted 4 points, Jeffrey Cody hit 3 points and David Ehrhart scored 2 points.

Hornet Jim Dorchak scored 15 points as his team defeated the Minigun 41-13. The Hornet scorebook also showed Gus Schneider zipping in 10 points for runnerup game scoring honors. John Dorchak tallied 8 points and Jeff Atkinson and Mike Glazier hit 4 points each for the well rounded Hornet scoring game.

Gilbert Jenkins swished 7 points to lead the Minigun scorers and Gunner Charles Casias put 3 points on the board. David Coggins hit 2 points and Steve Timm sank a free throw to complete their team's scoring.

Runner Bob Heaukulani banged in 21 points as the Roadrunners dropped the Raiders 45-8. Mike Hallinan and Matt McTiernan netted 6 points each to tie for runnerup game scoring honors.

The Roadruiners scoring also included 3 points each by Steve Darboune and Thomas Mitchell and 2 points each by David Doty, Kevin Hallinan and Brian Wright.

Raider Charles Jones hit 4 points to lead his team's scoring while David Couch swished 3 points and Everett Garrett dropped in a free throw each.

Hurricane David Driskill popped in 8 points in leading his team to a 28-8 win over the Raiders as the Raiders and Hurricanes played 2 games in one week to help complete league play by March 26.

Runnerup game scoring honors went to Hurricane Dennis Yancy who netted 5 points while Tim Booth scored 4 points and John Brown hit for 3 points. The Hurricane scoring also included 2 points each by Junior Lee, William Lowry, Jeffrey Dean and Joe Crowder.

Raider Thomas Jones led his team's scorers with 4 points and Charles Jones and David Couch hit for 2 points each.

Capt. Margaret Murdock hangs up guns; dons aprons

Capt. Margaret Murdock, world champion rifle shooter, is hanging up her rifle to don her apron and perform housewife duties.

She is leaving the Army and the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit (USAMTU) at Fort Benning to join her Marine chief warrant officer husband at Parris Island, South Carolina.

A blithe-spirit of a girl, Capt. Murdock entered the national limelight of the sports world in 1966 when she captured the world championship title for women's standard rifle three position event at the World Games in Weisbaden, Germany. Her petite size was deceiving to all but her competitors who saw the results of her steady nerve and clear eye. As an instructor and shooter with (USAMTU) she proved herself to be the most accurate lady international rifle shooter in the world.

Not only has Margaret Murdock been women's champion but she has placed high in matches where she competed with men. In 1970, she won a berth on the "men's team" in world championship competition. She was second in the five-man team competition qualification firing and the first and only woman to ever qualify for the team. The top score was a 3,419 and Margaret fired a 3,397.

Firing against great odds as she was the only woman to compete in the free rifle standing matches from more than 15 nations, she defeated the best men shooters in the world to win the coveted gold medal. She proved to the doubters that a lady is fully capable of firing in the same competition with the more stalwart men.

From Topeka, Kansas, Margaret started shooting when she was 11 years of age. She competed in the Capital City Rifle and Pistol Club junior division until she entered Kansas State University at Manhattan, Kansas.

While at KSU, her talent for shooting was recognized by the University Rifle Coach and this won for her the distinction of being the first girl to fire on the university's varsity rifle team.

During her college years, she was selected by the National Rifle Association to the All-American Rifle Team in 1963 and again in 1964. During 1965, she won the Women's National Gallery Rifle Championship. She graduated from KSU in January 1965 with a bachelor of science degree in Chemistry and a latent ability in marksmanship.

Entering the Army immediately following graduation, she was commissioned and completed basic officers training at Fort McClellan, Ala. She was assigned to the USAMTU in June 1965.

Firing in her initial Army "try-out" at the head of the National Rifle matches, Camp Perry, Ohio, in 1965, Capt. Murdock won the coveted Navy Cup with 100-5x. It was the first time the cup had been won by a woman in its 61 year history. A new Champion was established in the shooting world and she was on her way to the top of the marksmanship ladder.

She continued her winning ways there by capturing the Women's Service Rifle championship and the Women's Small bore Position championship. At the same time, she led the U. S. team to victory in the Randle Trophy International match with an outstanding 400-30x.

Capt. Murdock had unbroken domination of the Women's division of the national matches at Camp Perry by winning the Women's Smallbore matches five years running, 1965 through 1969. In addition to her other string of victories, she won the Women's Service Rifle matches in 1965 and 1968.

But it was in 1966 when Margaret made the shooting world sit up and take notice. She won the Interservice 300 Metre Free Rifle matches and was selected to participate in the world championships at Weisbaden, Germany. There she brushed all competition aside and the wisp-of-a-woman held the shooting world spell bound as she proceeded to win the Ladies Standard Rifle World Championship in the 50 meter 3-position event. In team championship, she was the only woman to ever be a member of the men's team which won the 300 Meter Free Rifle Team championship. She was also on the 50 meter 3-position men's team which won first place. Both of these team championships established new world records.

Then as a member of the Women's English Prone team, she helped win a second place in that event with her steady, unerring marksmanship.

In the try-out matches preceding the 1967 Pan American Games at Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada, Capt. Murdock set a brisk shooting pace and earned herself a firing berth on the United States Shooting team. Even though there were no woman's shooting events in the Games, she competed on a par with the men to make the team.

Margaret brought further fame and prestige to the nation, the U. S. Army and herself by being the only woman to win the 50 Meter Open 3-Position match and a gold medal in the Pan American Games. She was the first woman to win a gold medal in rifle competition in the Pan American Matches. She was also a firing member of the U. S. team that set a world record in the team match.

Her records include all the national women's 300 meter and all the womens' 50 meter international records.

In 1970, her final year of competition and service in the U. S. Army, Capt. Murdock became the National Women's Gallery Champion, the Interservice 300 Meter Champion again, and at the 40th World Championships at Phoenix, Ariz., she won the Women's Standard Rifle matches and the 300 meter Individual Open Standing matches. She beat all comers in the latter event.

Capt. Murdock has never been defeated in the Women's World Smallbore Matches. She is a three time winner of the U. S. Open Championships and has been awarded the International Distinguished Badge. These are the highest shooting awards presented by the United States.

Margaret Murdock takes to marksmanship supremacy naturally as her father, Robert D. Thompson of Topeka, Kansas, is a former Kansas State Rifle Champion. He was instrumental in getting her started in competitive shooting and supplied her with good equipment. Along the road to success, additional aid came from college coaches and Marksmanship Training Unit shooters.

A great void in rifle competition is created by her leaving. Her smile, competitive spirit and winning ways on the rifle ranges will be sadly missed. At the same time, she leaves a challenge to other shooters to strive to surpass the records she has established.

Upon her separation from the Army, Capt. Murdock was honored in a special awards ceremony where she was decorated with the Army Commendation Medal. The citation accompanying the award commended her for her great contributions to the shooting world. Her dedication to the rifle shooting sport enabled her to compete with — and beat — the best International Rifle Shooters the nations of the world have fielded against the United States.

Civilians, too, log jogs in Run for Your Life

Soldiers are not the only people you see running around Fort Benning. Civilians and dependents are actively taking part in the Run For your Life Program. 250 of these people are jogging around the 14 different running areas on the post. The program, now in its second year, is attracting more participants as the weather becomes fair.

"Running in the morning gives me more pep and energy for the things I have to do during the day," said Mrs. Charles V. Yarbrough just after she finished her three miles for the day. One of Mrs. Yarbrough's daily running mates is Mrs. Richard W. McKee, the first woman to be awarded a 400 mile patch. These are only two of an informal group of officer's wives that do their running in the French Field area.

"Run For Your Life has been so successful" said 2nd Lt. Joseph Bryan, the program's coordinator, "that it is presently at CONARC awaiting implementation."

Bryan pointed out some ideas that are misunderstood about the program. The rules state that no more than three miles a day can be logged towards a patch. Another misconception is that only the prescribed running areas may be used for credit. Any measured distance on or off-post may be used.

Run For Your Life is strictly on an honor basis. Participants keep their own score and turn them in when they complete the distance for a patch.

Many people do not realize that they could be receiving credit. These are students who run as a part of an organized sport. This running may be counted as long as it is over a measured distance and logged on a score sheet.

"Running is something I just enjoy doing," said Charles Bernatovitz, "if I don't run everyday I don't feel good." Bernatovitz and Max L. Waldrop Jr. are dependents who attend Columbus High School and were recently awarded their 500 mile patches.

Bernatovitz, aged 18, and Waldrop 17, are members of their high school track team and do their running at the school track. Running between 50 and 75 miles a week, the boys are only allowed to count three miles a day in Run For Your Life.

The program is open to anyone who wants to run. All you have to do to enter, is send in an official entry form, found at various places on post, and keep a score sheet.

Baker winner at match

Baker High's rifle team won the Herb Atkins Memorial Trophy match fired at Fort Benning Saturday by a 24-point margin over Robert E. Lee Institute of Thomaston.

All four members of the Baker team finished in the top ten and won individual awards.

Baker's winning score was 1030x1200 while Lee, which has long dominated rifle shooting in the area among the high schools, posted a score of 106. Central High of Macon was third with 993 followed by Hardaway with 956.

Campbell, McClellan win 3rd Army tourney

By Bill Kloeb

Teams from Ft. Campbell, Ky. and Ft. McClellan, Ala., won the championship trophies for the 3rd U.S. Army Basketball Championships held here last week.

The Campbell team won the "A" Division championship while teams from McClelland easily won championships in the "B" Division and Women's Division.

The Ft. Bragg, N.C. team was runnerup in the "A" Division and teams from Ft. McPherson, Ga. took 2nd place in the "B" Division and Women's tournaments.

The McClellan "B" team had an easy time of the tournament. They won handily over teams from Ft. McPherson, Hunter Army Airfield, Ala., Redstone Arsenal, Ala., Atlanta Army Depot, Homestead Air Force Base, Fla. and Ft. Stewart, Ga. to finish with a record of six wins and no defeats.

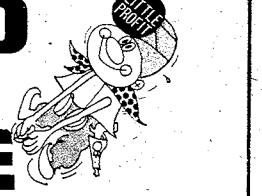
Competition for 2nd place in the "B" division was closer. Ft. McPherson and Hunter were tied with four wins and two losses at the finish of scheduled games. McPherson edged by Hunter 99 to 96 in a game that required one overtime period.

Final standings in the "B" Division were: McClellan won 6, lost 0; McPherson won 5, lost 2; Hunter won 4, lost 3; Redstone won 2, lost 3; Homestead won 2, lost 3; Atlanta Depot won 1, lost 5 and Ft. Stewart won 1, lost 5.

The Ft. Campbell victory in the "A" Division was a closer contest. Ft. Campbell and Ft. Gordon came into the final game with identical records of 3 wins and 1 loss. Fort Campbell came out on top in a game that saw the lead change numerous times, and until the last minutes looked as though overtime play would be required to decide the winner.

The loss by Gordon threw them into a tie with Ft. Bragg who won the playoff game and 2nd place in a close game that ended with the score Bragg, 98-Gordon, 89.

Final standings in the "A" Division were: Fort Campbell won 4, lost 1; Ft. Bragg won 4, lost 2; Ft. Gordon won 3, lost 3; Ft. Benning won 2, lost 3; Ft. Rucker won 2, lost 3 and Ft. Jackson won 1, lost 4.



The women's team from Ft. McClellan easily defeated teams from Ft. Benning, Ft. Gordon, Ft. Rucker and Ft. McPherson to finish the tournament without a defeat. The 2nd team from Ft. McPherson finished the tournament with 3 wins and 1 loss.

Final standings in the women's tournament were: Ft. McClellan won 4, lost 0; Ft. McPherson won 3, lost 1; Ft. Gordon won 2 lost 2; Ft. Rucker won 2, lost 2 and Ft. Benning won 0, lost 4.

David Lundstrom, Ft. Campbell was selected outstanding player in the "A" Division; Johnie Moore, Ft. McClellan received the honor in the "B" Division and Pat Van Dyke, Ft. McClellan was selected as the outstanding woman player.

Oldtimers find Academy changing

By Mike Keller

The year James B. Crawford graduated from the U.S. Military Academy, William Howard Taft occupied the White House, the airplane was a new [illegible] and Oklahoma was [illegible].

BOOM!

olina bicycle shop owners and Camp Benning was seven years from its founding.

When Louis V. Hutchison Jr. completed his four years at the Academy the United States had [illegible] governed by 10 more presidents, man had been to the moon and back and Fort Benning was a sprawling, 192,000 square acre "home" for the Army's infantry training.

Though these men belong to different eras, they are united by a common bond — the Military Academy. Recently they met at the West Point Society Founders Day dinner here. Brig. Gen. (ret.) Crawford and 2nd Lt. Hutchison were the oldest and youngest graduates in attendance. Gen. Crawford is a product of the class of 1911; Hutchison graduated last year.

In the almost 60 years separating their attendance, even a tradition-steeped institution as West Point is certain to undergo some changes and modernization.

Letting his memories go back a half-century Gen. Crawford compared the Academy of his cadet days to the school he saw during his last visit in 1966. "I was most impressed with the way the place has been built up," he said.

When asked to name the biggest difference between West Point "now and then," another Academy old timer—Maj. Gen. Philip E. Gallagher—a 1918 graduate and former commandant of cadets—quickly injected his own view: "Long hair," he exclaimed. "Just look at some of these younger grads."

Some say that today's young cadet fares far better at the hands of upperclassmen than did those in the "old days." Gen. Crawford refused to speculate about today's treatment, but recalled his own "frosh" experiences:

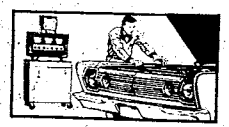
"I was one of the only incoming cadets from New York City," he related with a chuckle, "and, boy, did I get a hard time. They made me sing such numbers as "Give My Regards to Broadway.'"

But the general had no complaints about the so-called "hazing." "It never did me any harm," he maintained, "and, besides, there was no use grousing about it."

Despite all of the liberalization, however, there are parts of the Point's makeup that few alumni would want to alter: The school's high standards and proud heritage.

CHAMPUS considers pay claims

Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services (CHAMPUS) officials are reminding assistant surgeons, anesthesiologists and ancillary medical personnel such as private duty nurses, podiatrists and psychologists that they can participate in CHAMPUS and submit claims for payment of the government's share of medical expenses directly to CHAMPUS fiscal agents.



In order to process payments directly through CHAMPUS the patient or sponsor should complete the first 13 items of DA Form 1863-2, Service and-or Supplies Provided by Civilian Sources (Except Hospitals), and give it to the provider of care along with his share of the expenses.

The provider of care then completes items 14-20 of the claim form and forwards it to the CHAMPUS fiscal agent for the state in which the care was provided. The address of the fiscal agent can be found in the back of the CHAMPUS booklet, A GUIDE—For Physicians Providing Care Under The CHAMPUS. Copies of this booklet may be obtained from the Executive Director, OCHAMPUS (Navy), Denver, Colorado 80240.

Married couples can help each other at tax time

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the ninth article in a series on ways you can save on your income tax returns this year. The articles are written by Henry Block, president of H and R Block, Inc., America's largest tax service).

When both husband and wife have separate incomes, it is often necessary to figure their tax returns separately and jointly, and then choose the method which enables them to pay the least tax.

A husband and wife filing separate returns must each claim the same type of deductions, despite the fact that this limitation may require one partner to pay more taxes than the other. If the husband claims itemized deductions, so must the wife. The same applies to the standard deduction. Therefore, it would be better for both to select the type or method of deductions which results in the least tax for each.

In most instances and especially when the combined earnings are in higher income brackets, couples will find they owe less Federal tax by filing jointly.

SEPARATE RETURN SOMETIMES BEST

There are some instances when filing separate returns will bring tax benefits. In past years, if both husband and wife had capital losses, they could each deduct up to $1,000 on separate returns; on a joint return the total capital loss deduction was only $1,000. Therefore, by filing separately, their combined capital loss deduction was an additional $1,000.

The Revenue Act of 1969 changed this so that the maximum capital loss deduction on a separate return is $500. So beginning with the tax year 1970 married couples who had been filing separately because there was a greater capital loss deduction might find it more advantageous to file jointly.

MEDICAL BENEFITS POSSIBLE

Another tax saving which can result from a couple filing separately involves the medical expenses common to even the healthiest of families. Before claiming such expenses each taxpayer is required to exclude 1 per cent of his adjusted gross income for drug and medicine costs and 3 per cent of his adjusted gross income for medical expenses (doctors, hospitals, etc.) If both the husband and the wife have heavy medical expenses, it could reduce their overall tax payments if they file separate returns.

An example will illustrate. The husband's income is $5,000, and the wife's income is $3,000. If they file a joint return on their total income of $8,000, they could not count the first $320 (4 per cent for drugs and 3 per cent for medical expenses (times $8,000) as a deduction for medical expenses.

However, if they file separately, the husband must exclude $200 (4 per cent of $5000) and the wife must exclude (4 per cent of $3,000). If the husband's drugs and doctor bills amount to $300, he could claim a medical deduction of $100 by filing a separate return, since his exclusions amounted to $200. Should they file a joint return, they could not deduct anything since the medical expense of $300 would be less than the $320 in exclusions which joint filing would require.

CHOOSE THE BEST METHOD

The above example does not mean to imply that couples who have separate incomes are usually better off filing separate returns.

Income tax and you

In the vast majority of cases they are far better off to file jointly, but the above is one example of a case where separate filing could be more beneficial. If you have any doubts at all, it is always advisable to figure your taxes utilizing both methods, and then choose the one which requires the least amount of taxes.

DEDUCTIONS FOR RELATIVES

Most couples know they have a $625 exemption for each of their children they are supporting, but we find frequently that taxpayers are providing more than half of the support for mothers, fathers and other relatives as dependents.

In order to claim someone as a dependent on your tax return there are certain tests which must be met. The person, other than a child, stepchild or foster child who is under 19 or is a full time student, cannot have more than $625 in gross taxable income. Remember, Social Security benefits are not taxable income so they are not considered when you are trying to determine whether you have compiled with the gross income test.

You must have contributed more than one-half of the total cost of support of the person being claimed as a dependent. There is one exception to this rule: If you, along with several other persons, contribute over 50 per cent of an individual's support and each of you contributes at least 10 per cent of the total cost of support, you would be able to file a multiple support agreement and one of you could claim the dependent. This is done frequently in cases where children all contribute to the support of an aged parent and take turns in claiming the dependency exemption.

Your dependent must be a relative or must have been a member of your household for the entire year. (Employees don't count, so you can't claim your maid.)

Your dependent must be a United States citizen or a resident of the United States, Canada, Mexico, Panama or the Canal Zone. Your dependent cannot file a joint return with anyone else.

Field Radio Class honors 2 students at graduation

Sp4 George W. Clendening III was the distinguished honor graduate and Sp4 Donald Schobert was the distinguished academic graduate for Field Radio Mechanic Course Class 501-71, which graduated March 9 in ceremonies at Infantry Hall.

Certificates of completion were presented to 87 students.

Lt. Col. John R. Walker Jr., deputy director of the Operations and Logistics Department, was the guest speaker at the graduation.

The nine week course is designed to provide students with a working knowledge of organizational maintenance for radios and other electrical equipment. These radio repairmen are trained to determine the damage to field equipment and make the necessary repairs.

While the students were attending the course here at Fort Benning they were assigned to the 16th Co., 1st Bn., TSB.

Jamboree scout gets group's top honor

Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander, recently gave scouting's highest award to a scout who will attend the World Scout Jamboree in Tokyo, Japan, this summer. The youth, Jim Morris, was made an Eagle Scout during a Court of Honor held March 10 for Troop 39, the Fort Benning District.

Morris, who is the son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. James M. Morris Jr., was chosen last fall by the scout masters of 14 troops in the area to attend the jamboree.

Col. Morris, formerly of the Brigade and Battalion Operations Department, has been reassigned to Vietnam and plans to meet his son in Tokyo while on a rest and recreation leave.

"Only one out of every 100 Boy Scouts obtain the Eagle Scout rank," Gen. Talbott noted at the ceremony. Gen. Talbott, himself an Eagle Scout, has contributed to the scouting community and is currently the vice president of the Chattahoochee Council and is a representative of the National Council of Boy Scouts of America.

Morris, 16, is an honor student at Columbus High School. He is an active member in the school ROTC drill team, and was on the Junior Olympic Swim Team. He has been working toward the goal of Eagle Scout for three years.

Letters laud training

School turns 64

The Infantry School celebrated its 64th anniversary yesterday. Congratulations came to Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, school commandant, from around the Continental Army Command school system. Some excerpts from those letters are printed below.

Maj. Gen. Richard T. Cassidy, commandant of the Army Air Defense School at Ft. Bliss, Tex., said: —

"The leadership evidenced by your graduates under the most difficult battlefield conditions is a tribute to the Infantry School's faculty and staff. In the war in Southeast Asia, as in past wars involving American troops, men trained at the Infantry School have continued to fulfill the demanding mission of the 'Queen of Battle.' "

Col. Fredric C. Bott, acting commandant of the Quartermaster School at Ft. Lee, Va., wrote, "The high caliber of instruction afforded by your school has made it a valuable member of the Army school system."

"The U. S. Army Infantry School has established an outstanding record and has earned the respect and admiration of all services." Maj. Gen. R. Wetherill, commandant of the Field Artillery School at Ft. Sill, Okla., said. "The contribution your institution has made has been a major factor in making the United States Army a most effective fighting force. The professional performance of your graduates is a tribute to the instruction you provide."

Sign of spring

The various church denominations on post are observing Holy Week with a number of services (opposite story) and Easter Sunday surely will be marked with new spring finery by the paraders on New York's Fifth Avenue. While we in the military don't have any official observances of this season's religious holidays, we do note the arrival of spring with a change in uniform. Spt Rita Mattix (R) in winter greens gets an advanced look at what PFC Daisy Jackson will look like in the WAC's summer uniform as they remind all soldiers at Fort Benning that Monday is the day for the uniform changeover.

Post chapels schedule Holy Week observances

An Easter Sunrise Service at Doughboy Stadium will climax Holy Week activities at Fort Benning. The week, the Christian observance of the Passion of Christ, begins this Sunday, Palm Sunday.

The 3rd Army staff chaplain, Col. James A. Skelton, will be guest speaker at the Sunrise Service, slated for 6:30 a.m. April 11 at the stadium. In case of inclement weather, the combined Catholic-Protestant service will be moved to Marshall Auditorium in Infantry Hall.

Mass will be celebrated Monday through Wednesday of Holy Week in the Main Post Catholic Chapel at noon and at 5:15 p.m. A Communal Penance Service will be conducted Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. On Holy Thursday at 7:30 p.m. Mass, followed by public adoration of the Blessed Sacrament until midnight, will be held. On Good Friday at 1 p.m., the Liturgy of the Passion and Death of Our Lord will be observed. Stations of the Cross will be at 7:30 p.m. Mass of the Easter Vigil begins at 7:30 p.m. on Holy Saturday. Confessions will be heard before each service and throughout the week during duty hours.

Additional Catholic services will be observed throughout the post. At Sightseeing Road Chapel, Mass will be celebrated at 6:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday. At noon on Good Friday, a Liturgical Service will be held. Mass will be celebrated at 6 p.m. on Holy Saturday and at 10 a.m. on Easter Sunday.

Easter Sunday Mass will be celebrated at 9 a.m. in the Airborne Chapel and at 11 a.m. in Marshall Auditorium.

At the Martin Army Hospital Chapel, Mass will be celebrated Mon-

DA approves construction of partitions

Two major actions of the Modern Volunteer Army program received approval earlier this week.

The Department of the Army has approved money for construction and installation of proposed barracks partitions.

A contract also was signed that provides free quarters cleaning to permanent party personnel leaving post, effective yesterday.

The contract was negotiated between the Army and a local civilian firm.

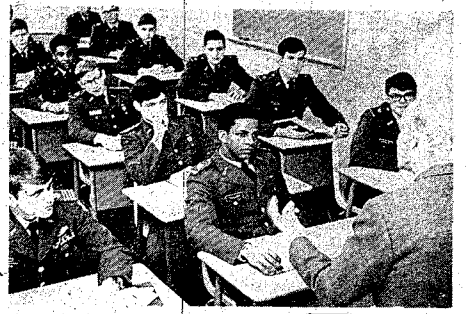
MIA-POW consultant to visit Fort Benning

By Tony Jones

Mrs. Iris R. Powers, a consultant who is acting as liaison between the U. S. Army and the next of kin of Army men missing or captured in Southeast Asia, will visit Fort Benning Wednesday and Thursday.

Mrs. Powers recently was appointed as a special consultant by Secretary of the Army Stanley Resor. Her first task is to visit each major Army headquarters and each of the more than 700 next-of-kin of Army MIA-POWs.

One of Mrs. Powers' two sons, Army Warrant Officer Lowell S. Powers, has been missing since April 1968. Powers, while flying a CH-47 helicopter extracting South Vietnamese troops during his second tour in Vietnam, crashed. He became one of the 444 Army men listed by the North Vietnamese communists as missing or as being a prisoner of war in Southeast Asia.



None of the 444 men are in North Vietnam, according to the North Vietnamese communists. Only 59 of the 444 are known prisoners of war. Mrs. Powers said of her missing son, "I don't know whether he is alive or dead."

There is a difference in the conditions of the MIA-POWs in the north and the south and Mrs. Powers said that she is going to see that the public is made aware of it.

"There's not enough publicity about conditions in the south, and there's a vast difference between the Army prisoner and those being held by Ha-

Future leaders

An American literature class is conducted at the U.S. Military Academy Preparatory School, Ft. Belvoir, Va. Members of all armed services under 21 years of age are eligible to apply to the prep school, which eventually leads most of them to an education at the U.S. Military Academy and a career as a Regular Army officer. The prep school places primary emphasis on academics. Students attend two English and two mathematics classes each day.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

by Bill King

For maximum flavor, saute vegetables in butter or margarine before adding to your favorite soup or stew.

Dutch colonists in New Amsterdam used to sweeten their coffee with honey, and spice it up with cardamon.

Use a pastry blender to make an easy, quick, neat job of chopping hardcooked eggs, whether for sauce, salad or sandwiches.

Frosted cakes and cupcakes may be quickly frozen unwrapped. As soon as the frosting is hard, wrap the cake or cupcakes separately and return to freezer.

Clam broth, whether fresh or bottled, makes a delicious soup or beverage. Try sprinkling it with celery salt and adding tomato juice, iced or hot according to your mood.

New cafeteria to be constructed

Plans have been announced for the construction of a new $800,000 cafeteria and central kitchen in the vicinity of the main commissary at Fort Benning.

The 15,000 square-foot building, which will have a seating capacity of 300 persons, is expected to be completed by October 1972.

A Post Exchange spokesman said that site approval from 3rd Army and the Department of the Army would clear the way for actual construction on the new facility in October of this year.

Upon completion of the new cafeteria and central kitchen, where food is prepared for distribution to cafeteria branches on post, the present facility will be closed, the PX spokesman said. However, the PX offices will continue to occupy a portion of the present cafeteria building until the new service center complex near Martin Army Hospital is completed. Then the PX offices will be moved to the present PX building in Custer Terrace.

The present outmoded cafeteria building will be razed in the future, a spokesman said.

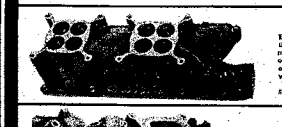
FOR INSTANT HORSEPOWER INCREASE, BOLT ON. . .

SHELBY HI-RISER INTAKE MANIFOLDS



All Shelby intake Manifolds are designed by Ford performance experts having years of world-wide racing experience. Each Shelby Manifold has been refined by flow-bench testing and proven on Autosport Products' Dynos. Many have dominated the winner's circle at international races in the U. S. and abroad. Used in conjunction with Ford or Holley carburetors, these manifolds will deliver a healthy performance boost for any Ford engine. We give our recommendations on application and mating carburetor for each manifold. Follow our guide and you'll be more than satisfied with their performance.

SINGLE 4-BARREL INTAKE MANIFOLD, 221-302 cid ENGINES

Great combination for street and strip. The intake manifold that kicked off the hi-riser scene. Balanced runners to each intake port send the rises under the carb are designed to evenly distribute the fuel/air mix to all cylinders. Keeps mixture at proper velocity to assure uniform distribution to each cylinder at all rpms. Mount a 600 cfm Holley carb to produce 23-26 additional horsepower on 221-302 cid engines. It's easy, bolt-on horsepower. Just add a carb and heat.

#9009, for 221-260-289-302 cid Fords, Mfg. List $100.00 — Your Cost $75.00

DUAL 4-BARREL INTAKE MANIFOLD, 221-302 cid ENGINES

Engineered for Trans-Am, killer strip jobs. This type manifold was used in 1967 Mustangs that captured the Trans-Am Championship. Combines with racing cam and headers for maximum output. Two Holley 600 cfm carbs atop this hi-rise Shelby manifold will boost power output on 221-302 cid engines by 45-55 bhp, depending on cam used. Progressive Linkage and fuel bog will make installation a breeze. They'll hear you coming and see you briefly when you open this one up.

#9025, for 221-260-289,302 cid Fords, Mfg. List $125.00 — Your Cost $93.60

SINGLE 4-BARREL MANIFOLD FOR 351-CLEVELAND ENGINE

Great for street, strip and track. This is the monster manifold for the monster motor. A large runner, large-port manifold that provides passages big enough to mate with the fantastic ports on the 351-Cleveland. For street and strip work, use the 780 cfm or 850 cfm Holley carb. This "Boss 351" is the way to go.

#9249, for 351-C, Standard carb on 2V heads, Mfg. List $130.00 — Your Cost $97.50
#9250, for 351-C, Standard carb on 4V heads, Mfg. List $130.00 — Your Cost $97.50

SINGLE 4-BARREL MANIFOLD FOR 351-WINDSOR ENGINE

Production Shelby GT-350 manifold gets it on. This "Challenger 351" manifold was used on the Shelby GT-350 with fantastic results. Its single-quad, hi-rise design features computer-designed tapered runners for proper gas velocity and uniform distribution. Our dyno tests indicate best all-around performance on a 351-Windsor with a 600 or 650 cfm Holley. For racing, the 850 cfm (R4781) is recommended. Manifold has rear crossover boss to eliminate the usual problems of poor idling and lean cylinders common with many de-unsigned high-performance manifolds.

SINGLE 4-BARREL MANIFOLD FOR 352-428 ENGINES

Special Cobra Jet Power for the big-block Fords. Designed especially for the 428 Cobra Jet engine, this single-quad manifold is also ideal for all 352-427 engines. Ports have been enlarged to match the big Cobra Jet heads. Wider flanges assure solid gasket seal. Works well with 780 or 850 cfm Holley carbs on street-tuned engines.

#9406, for 352-390-427-428 old Fords with standard carb, Mfg. List $175.00 — Your Cost $132.00

SINGLE 4-BARREL MANIFOLD FOR 429-460 ENGINES

Thundering power for the Super Cobra Jet. This great manifold for the 429 block unleashes gobs of power. Carefully designed to deliver power over the full rpm range, through competition with the large ports on these engines. Stock engines thrive on this manifold mounting a 780 cfm Holley.

#9505, for 429-460 with standard carb, Mfg. List $150.00 — Your Cost $112.50

Byline Bayonet

(Byline Bayonet welcomes questions of general interest about Fort Benning and the Army. Within space limitations, all reasonable questions will be answered. Questions of a purely military nature which obviously could be answered more properly by commanders or supervisors within the chain of command will not be accepted. Questions must be signed with current unit of assignment indicated. Send questions to The Bayonet, Room 602, Infantry Hall.)

Byline Bayonet has received a lengthy question in response to a previous answer on why soldiers were not elected to the soldiers' Council (Bayonet, Feb. 5, 1971). Not satisfied with the previous answer, the questioner again asks: "Now that VOLAR has been extended, how about holding elections the next time for the seats on the Soldiers' Council?" The question stated that by having an election campaign, more soldiers would get to know the eventual winner. We queried the Director of Personnel and Community Activities. The answer is:

The matter of selection of members of the Soldiers' Council was carefully considered and the decision was made to select rather than elect members. The rationale for this decision was furnished previously and remains valid.

Members of the Soldiers' Council, their units and telephone numbers are listed below. Any suggestions or recommendations on matters within the purview of the Soldiers' Council may be given to any member of the Council.

MEMBERS: Sp4 Patrick McGliney, president (197th Inf. Bde.), 545-6408; Sp4 John Blair, vice president (546th Med. Co.), 545-2303; Sp4 Raymond C. Vanwinkle (Hq. Q-Why are ill soldiers required to get dispensary approval before they are allowed to miss work, while officers, senior NCOs and civilian employes merely have to "call in sick." Under present circumstances a serviceman can feel seriously ill but will not be granted "quarters" or "bed rest" without permission from a doctor. Are any changes in this policy being envisioned as a result of VOLAR?

A-Said Col. H. H. Ziperman, commander of Martin Army Hospital: "To be eligible for 'quarters' or hospitalization all military personnel—soldiers and officers—must receive a certificate from a physician. However, should a unit or duty section wish to give a man feeling bad the day off, this is entirely a matter between that individual and his supervisor."

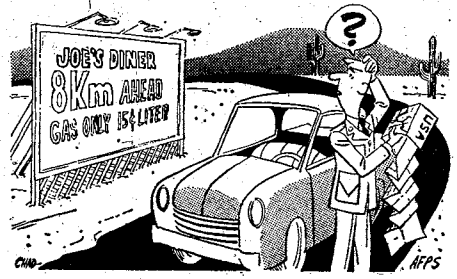
Before signing, check car contract

USAIC LEGAL ASSISTANCE OFFICE — One of the first acquisitions a young serviceman desires to acquire upon arriving at his first PCS or upon returning from Vietnam is an automobile. Most often the decision is made to purchase a used car rather than a new one. Like most military installations, Fort Benning is surrounded by numerous car lots offering every conceivable make and model of automobile and a corresponding number of commercial deals.

The first step, of course, in buying a car is locating the one you want. After locating this car, there are a number of preliminary steps to purchase that must be undertaken with extreme care.

First of all, a seller may ask a buyer to place a deposit to secure the automobile until a final decision as to purchase is made. Under this type of arrangement, the seller takes the auto off the market to insure sale to the buyer at a later time in return for a sum of money to be credited against the purchase price at the time of the sale. If, however, the buyer should not carry out the transaction, the seller often retains the deposit as liquidated damages for the time the car is off the commercial market.



It is important for a buyer to know that a deposit might be forfeited if the sale is not consummated. Be exceedingly careful about placing a deposit on a car unless you are sure that you will be able to purchase the car or that it is specifically stated in writing that the deposit will be returned.

This brings us to the sale itself, which is generally manifested in the sales contract. This contract will set forth all the terms and conditions which the buyer and seller must comply with. The contract will set forth such terms as down payment, purchase price, number of payments, time of payments, place of payments, total finance charge, and rate of interest. In addition, there are always a number of printed covenants which provide for insurance, penalties in case of nonpayment of a given installment and grounds for repossession of the automobile.

The buyer must read these printed covenants over carefully or he may find himself in the situation where his automobile is repossessed for merely being several days late on a payment. Furthermore, all warranties in regard to the car must be specifically spelled out in the contract. Representations, explanations and promises made orally before the contract is signed usually mean nothing and cannot be enforced unless included in the written agreement.

The serviceman should before he signs anything: Obtain a completed copy of the agreement, read the agreement, and understand the agreement.

There is no deal so fantastic that it can not wait until you have your contract examined by the Legal Assistance Office. If the seller won't give you a copy of the prepared statement so that you may have it examined by a legal assistance officer, then do not sign under any condition. If a seller pressures you to sign an agreement you do not completely understand, there is a strong possibility that there is something in the agreement that the seller does not want you to understand.

Down the highway to kilometers

"The United States, the only industrial nation in the world to hold out against the metric system of measurement, began an intensive study during 1970 to assess the present and future impact of switching to metric. Adopting the new system would effect every consumer and businessman in the country according to Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans."

—Recent news item, Washington Evening Star

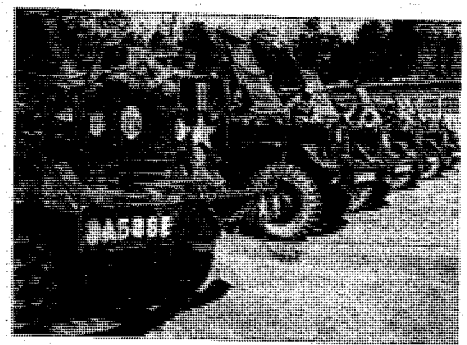
The coming changeover to the international metric system, now viewed by many authorities as inevitable, will undoubtedly be one of the most time-consuming, expensive tasks ever undertaken by the American people. Apparently, it is no longer a question of whether we will convert or not, but rather a question of when.

And, when it does occur, it won't be easy.

Automobile odometers and speedometers will have to be changed (no real problem, for most Detroit manufacturers already equip metric measuring devices on export models of their cars); quarts and pecks and gallons and bushels will give way to liters, and ounces and pounds, and tons will henceforth be known as grams and kilograms; mileposts at intersections will have to be changed, as will speed warning signs; and billboards that advertise "Joe's Diner — 5 miles" will soon have to tout his hamburgers as being 8 kilometers away...

Traditionalists will, understandably, resist the change. Such resistance, for the most part, is really impracticable; we are the last great nation on earth to hold out for inches, feet, rods and miles, along with vast hordes of other archaic measurements. Even the English, who devised our system, realized its shortcomings and have abandoned it. Just last year, they finally adopted the metric system. However, we've had at least a partial system to count our money, ever since Dutch settlers first introduced the "thaler" — i.e., dollar — into New Amsterdam.

Assuredly, the time is coming when the yard — originally the distance of the king's outstretched arm — will be accorded the same amount of historical curiosity as the barleycorn, six of which, when laid end-to-end, once constituted the standard measurement for an inch.



Most American military personnel who have been stationed overseas already have been exposed to the metric system, and readily adapted to thinking and measuring metrically while there. Many Vietnam veterans, for instance, on return to the United States, still find themselves thinking in terms of "klicks" (kilometers).

Every day, military aviators and navigators convert statute and nautical miles to kilometers easily, using a point on their flight computers placed there for just such a purpose; physicians administer immunizations and pharmacists dispense medicines by the cubic centimeter or the gram; people on diets carefully count their caloric intake without considering much what a calorie really is: the amount of heat required to raise one cubic centimeter of water one degree in Centigrade temperature.

Accordingly, no one is more suited nor better equipped to lead the way to the adoption of the metric system than our nation's Armed Forces. It is going to require an effort of Herculean proportions. We're ready whenever you are, America (AFPS EDITORIAL).

586th plt. supports Bragg unit

By Frank Cover

How about 22 days of fun in the sun at Ft. Bragg, N.C.? We don't know about the fun, but weather permitting there is going to be plenty of sun in store for the 5th Platoon of the 586th Engr. Co. (FB), 931st Engr. G.

The platoon, consisting of one officer and 43 soldiers, left Fort Benning in a 23 truck convoy Monday. Their mission is to provide an M4T6 floating bridge and technical support to various Airborne engineer units at Ft. Bragg. Plans call for the construction of a floating bridge in a lake. The bridge will use nine floats and stretch some 141 feet.

The 5th Platoon leader, 1st Lt. Joe H. Miller, in explaining why his platoon was chosen for this mission said, "I feel my platoon had maintained the best state of readiness and as a result could be deployed the fastest."

Even so, preparations for the 800 mile trip to Ft. Bragg were underway for more than a month under the watchful eye of Plt. Sgt. John J. Somonski.

Virtually every piece of equipment from floats to locking pins had been checked and double checked and the trucks had been gone over from top to bottom to avoid any mechanical breakdowns. Convoy practice also was held to reacquaint the drivers with proper driving techniques.

The Airborne engineers at Ft. Bragg plan to build the bridge and tear it down twice a day.

The platoon will be living in the field at Ft. Bragg and is slated to return home on or about April 19.

School members take day-off to mark anniversary

By Wendell Cochran

Infantry School students, staff and faculty are getting a much-deserved rest today. The occasion? Yesterday the school was 64 years old. School officials decided to observe Infantry School Organization Day on Friday to provide the staff and students with a long weekend.

But it was 64 years ago yesterday, April 1, 1907, that the School of Musketry—forerunner of the USAIS— was founded at the Presidio of Monterey in California.

The next 11 years was a period of uncertainty in school history. For three years during the Vera Cruz expedition the school was closed. Finally, on Sept. 18, 1918, the school was officially established at Fort Benning, and it has been busy turning out "the world's finest combat leaders" ever since.

Each of the School's 64 years have been busy. Three times the Infantry School has mobilized quickly in time of war, producing the high quality combat leaders the Army has needed in crisis situations.

The past year has been no exception. While the school population has decreased as the need for junior leaders declined, emphasis at the school remained on "teaching better, faster, more."

With the Vietnam War slowing down, the Infantry School has increasingly turned its attention to the development of new classes and new techniques of teaching.

During the School's 64th year, these were among the most notable achievements:

—The Infantry School last summer pioneered race relations instruction. As the first Continental Army Command (CONARC) school to institute this instruction, the Infantry School was chosen to assist all CONARC schools in starting race relations classes. Other leadership instruction was expanded. Classes were added in drug abuse and prevention of AWOL's. All these classes help to teach young leaders to deal with contemporary problems.

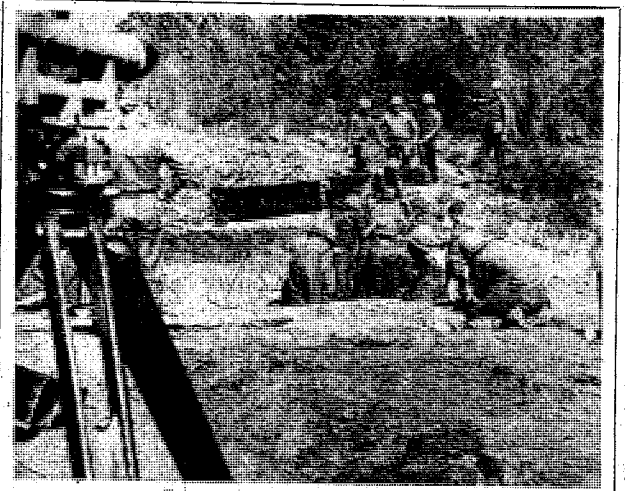
—Two of the school's major courses—the Infantry Officers Basic Course and the Infantry Officers Candidate course—underwent major studies. The Infantry School has run two classes of IOBC students under the new program of instruction and is awaiting approval of higher headquarters to implement the class on a permanent basis. Implementation of the new OCS, called Branch Immaterial Officer Candidate Course, is in a pending status.

—A clean-up drive last fall again demonstrated the Infantry School's concern with contemporary issues. Spearheaded by Brig Gen. John T. Carley, assistant School commandant, the drive was an all-out effort to preserve the post's ecology. Early this year the Brigade and Battalion Operations Department instituted the first class in ecology to be devised by a Continental Army Command school.

—The Infantry School also has been busy during the past year trying to recruit more graduates of Reserve Officers Training Corps to volunteer for Infantry commissions. Cadets are being shown that Infantry offers more than combat leadership.

Tour group to visit Benning

The annual Red Carpet Tour of Georgia will visit Columbus and Fort Benning April 7 and 8.



The tour is sponsored by the Industrial Development Council of the Georgia Chamber of Commerce. It is a one-week tour of Georgia by 40 to 45 top officers of U. S. corporations and business concerns. Each visitor is escorted by a Georgia businessman during the tour.

The group will arrive by jet at Lawson Army Airfield at Fort Benning Wednesday morning, where they will be welcomed by Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander. The group will observe an Airborne 5000 Demonstration and Rangers In Action demonstration.

On Thursday the group will visit Columbus College.

Dirty work

Engineers from Co. B, 43rd Engr. Bn. (Const.) 931st Engr. Gp., prepare a timber trestle bridge site near the Headley Pond area. While on a recent tactical field training exercise, engineer troops repaired the road system on this portion of the reservation. Various work activities included road grading, culvert placement, side ditch maintenance, bridge construction and fill work.

New philosophy on Army training

Individualism called key to School education plan

The Modern Volunteer Army program currently underway on post has brought about many changes in life style and the day-to-day routine of the soldier.

But more important changes may be coming, as a new Infantry School philosophy on Army training policies is implemented.

The School's philosophy is outlined in the Education and Training Addendum to the Benning Plan." This educational effort must be directed toward providing congruence of the individuals goals with those of the Army."

Individualism is the keynote of the new thinking. "Basic to the training and education concept is a requirement to move more fully and directly toward the individualization and self-pacing of instruction," Richard S. Kneisel, School education advisor, said.

Kneisel also pointed out the need for Army training programs to try to produce a man with a wider range of experiences.

"There is a requirement, in considering the training and education of the soldier, to address all aspects of his life so that in fact the training and educational activities treat 'the whole man,'" Kneisel said. "This means programs must be developed not only to make him technically proficient but make him a better person in a sense of communicating with his fellow man and satisfying his inner desires."

As Kneisel, special assistant for education to the commandant and the assistant commandant, sets it, "Traditional types of classrooms, procedures, instruction, methods of evaluation and general configuration of facilities and equipment will require drastic change."

Many Infantry School practices and policies were already in line with this philosophy. Among these are the increased use of programmed instruction, computer-assisted instruction and educational television.

Elective and selective progams have been developed to allow students to choose some of their own education. Classes, such as race relations, drug abuse and AWOL prevention, have been developed to address contemporary problems.

The Modern Volunteer Army program itself has seen several programs devised that fit well into the new training concepts.

Among these:

—Enlightened Leadership Course that tells leaders to be concerned with the needs of their men.

—The individual learning center that allows students to study certain subjects at their own pace.

—The five-day work week that gives students time to develop interests other than military skills development.

There are also plans for the Infantry School to assist other VOLAR test posts — Forts Ord, Calif., and Carson, Colo. — with development of training programs that meet the new USAIS philosophy.

VOLAR puts cola in mess halls

As another Modern Volunteer Army program, carbonated drinks will become available to most Fort Benning soldiers eating at post mess halls at the noon meal beginning Monday.

The beverages, including a cola, root beer and lemon-lime drink will be free through dispensers in each mess hall. Complete installation of dispensing machines should be made by April 12.

The amount of milk available in each mess hall will be reduced as the carbonated beverages are integrated into the meal.

Voice of VOLAR

CHANGES

- Training in the 197th Infantry Brigade has taken on more challenge as "adventure training" is introduced. Small unit leaders are given responsibility for this training, which is also MOS-related.
- Carbonated beverages will soon be available through dispensers in mess halls.
- Improvements continue to be made in the post shuttle bus service. Stops on Main Post are served every 15 minutes.

PROPOSALS

- Renovation of a building for use as a soldiers night club is continuing.

Nations swap signals to help traffic flow

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — America's stop sign is migrating to Europe.

And European newcomers — picture traffic signs — soon will find homes along some American roadways.

The swap in traffic signals derives from years of talks between 134 United Nations members. They are trying to work out a universal set of sigos that will detour the language gap, signs that will make pictures and symbols do the job of words.

Within the year the big red octagonal sign with "STOP" emblazoned in white across it will begin sprouting at countless overseas crossroads. Twenty-five European countries tentatively have agreed to start using the American stop sign.

American drivers will start seeing the picture traffic signs in public-owned lands run by the Forest Service, National Park Service, Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Land Management, and the Fish and Wildlife Service.

International road signs will be diamond-shaped to warn drivers of some danger ahead. A black silhouette identifies the danger. An arrow bent right for a sharp right turn, a locomotive for a railroad crossing, two walking children for a school crossing, a skidding car for slippery pavement.

Drawings on round signs warn of something against the law: A bent arrow with slashing red line canceling it indicates a turn is unlawful, a motorcycle outline means riding one on that road is not permissible, a red circle with a white horizontal bar across it says "Do Not Enter."

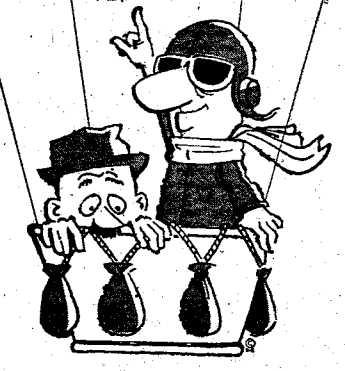
524th Pers, moves offices to Bldg. 75

The 524th Pers. Serv. Co., 931st Engr. Gp., is now occupying new offices in Bldg. 75, sections B and C.

The company, which provides personnel support to the 931st Engr. Gp., Headquarters Command and the 197th Aviation Company, completed the moving process March 26.

Capt. Robert M. Koger, company commander, said the new quarters are superior to the WW II barracks previously occupied.



The company's administrative offices and mess facilities are on the first floor, personnel service offices are located on the second floor and troop billets are on the third floor.

Supervising the move was Koger's last official duty. Capt. Willie E. Vasser Jr. took command of the company Monday. Koger will be leaving the Army to return to civilian life.

Infantry Museum, hail and farewell mark socials

29th Inf.

Doug Allinger, representative of the Infantry Museum Fund Raising Committee, was the guest speaker at the March 11 coffee of the ladies of the 1st Bn., 29th Inf., held at the home of Mrs. William McHenry.

Welcomed into the group by Mrs. Henry Doctor, wife of the battalion commander, were Mrs. Stephen Sharp, Mrs. Leslie Bowman, Mrs. Patrick Dunphey and Mrs. James Burkhalter.

Following the reading of the minutes, Mrs. Doctor thanked all the people who helped in making the February Brigade Luncheon a success.

It was announced that 197th will soon be sponsoring a "clothes locker" specializing in infant to teenage clothing. Anyone having clothing to donate should contact Mrs. Richard W. McKee or Mrs. Charles V. Yarbrough.

The next OWC function will have the theme "Coffee House." Reservations must be in by noon April 12. The coffee will be April 14 at 10 a.m.

The starting of a flower committee was discussed. Ladies working on the committee are in charge of buying and delivering a small gift to members of the group who are sick or have new babies. Volunteers for March were Mrs. Burkhalter and Mrs. Sharp. For April, they are Mrs. Jerome Wicker and Mrs. Harold Hunter. A $3 limit was set for the gifts.

Leadership Department

Victory Lodge provided the setting for the March 26 Hail and Farewell party for approximately 140 officers and ladies of the Leadership Department.

Following an hour of cocktails and buffet snacks, Col. William B. Steele, director of the Leadership Department, welcomed newcomers, Capt. and Mrs. Victor J. Russell.

Lt. Col. Robert I. Farris, chairman of the Management Committee, welcomed Maj. and Mrs. Robert B. Thomas, Capt. and Mrs. Cecil A. P. Thomas, Capt. and Mrs. Donald R. Franklin, 1st Lt. and Mrs. Oscar Patterson and 1st Lt. Henry O. Counts.

Col. Farris said farewell to Capt. and Mrs. John W. Jackson Jr., and presented a baby cup to Capt. and Mrs. John H. Meola for the birth of their baby girl on March 15.

Following the Hails and Farewells, entertainment, consisting of a comedy skit take off of the "Laugh In" and "Hee Haw" television shows, was provided by members of the Administration and Operation Divisions.

Highlighting the entertainment was a "belly dance" to the music of "Bridge Over the River Kwai," performed by three officers of the Department.

Army wife of year bids for another title

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Army Wife of the Year, Mrs. Billie Reeves Willett, will compete against wives from the other services for the title of Military Wife of the Year.

Mrs. Willett, of Fulton, Mo., is the wife of CWO Paul E. Willett, who is stationed at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo.

Naming of the finalists ends a year-long search from among 1,400,000 wives at bases of all the services for military wives who have contributed the most to their military and civilian communities.

Following the selection of the Military Wife of the Year, on May 18 in Washington, D.C., the winner will tour a number of U.S. cities and military bases and attend the annual convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Willett attended Kansas University and has just completed a children's book, the royalties from which she has donated to the Save the Children program.

She has spent 28 years in Girl Scout work and was chairman of 6,000 volunteers for the 1970 summer program of First Step. She is the sponsor of three American-Indian children, taught English at Tohoka University in Sendai, Japan, as a People-to-People volunteer and is a member of the National Association of Recreational Therapists and the National Wildlife Society.

Mrs. Willett is currently president of the Officers Wives' Club at Ft. Leonard Wood.

Judging the contest for Army Wife of the Year were Mrs. Stanley R. Resor, wife of the secretary of the Army; Mrs. Thaddeus R. Beal, wife of the under secretary of the Army; Mrs. W. C. Westmoreland, wife of the Army chief of staff; Mrs. Bruce Palmer Jr., wife of the Army vice chief of staff; and Mrs. Silas L. Copeland, wife of the sergeant major of the Army. Coordinator was Mrs. Winant Sidle, wife of the Army chief of information.

French offered as free course

A two-month class in spoken French will begin April 13 at the Fort Benning Education Center.

Classes will be held on Tuesdays and Thursday from 7 to 9 p.m. The free course runs through June 17 and is open to dependents if the sponsor is enrolled.

To enroll or for further information call 545-7250 or come to Room 300B, Bldg. 35 between 1 and 4:30 p.m.

SPRING FESTIVAL
Shireen (L) and Kamran Kadivar In Front Of Table With Seven Festival Foods

Iranian festival celebrates spring

By Frank Webb

Noruz Jamschidi, an Iranian festival of spring, was celebrated March 21 with a dinner at the home of Lt. Col. Hooshang Kadivar (MC), chief of Thoracic Surgery at Martin Army Hospital and a former citizen of Iran.

The dinner was attended by Persians from Fort Benning and nearby universities. Several American families from post also attended.

A non-religious celebration, Noruz Jamschidi honors the new year that comes with the first day of sprng.

Planning actually begins 15 days before the first day of spring, called the First Pavardin. At this time preparations are made for the celebration. Grains of wheat, lentil and barley are germinated in water, houses are cleaned and rugs and linen are washed.

The family also purchases new clothes, some for each member of the family. If a family is too poor to afford this luxury, then only the children receive new clothes.

On Chaharshambeh Sorori, the Wednesday before the start of spring, three heaps of shrubbery are set afire, and each member of the family takes his turn jumping over the fires, chanting words of good omen — "My pallor to you, your ruddiness to me."

At the celebration of the Noruz Jamschidi a menu is prepared consisting of seven foods that begin with the letter "S" in Persian. These include Sonbul, hyacinth; Sabzeh, green vegetables; Sumanoo, a wheat pudding; Surkeh, vinegar; Sub, apples Sumak, smoked fish; and Senjed, Bohemian olives.

The celebration continues for 13 days, and on the last day everyone leaves his home to send a day in the country.

Folk dancers, acrobats and clowns entertain, and the shoots of wheat and barley are thrown out into running water to represent the throwing away of all misfortune and bad luck associated with the number 13.

But the celebration also is a time for meditation and reflection, perhaps best represented in these words from the Rubiyat of Omar Kahyyam—

"Now the New Year, receiving old desires,
Th thoughtful soul to solitude retires."

Danish Army general ends Benning tour

The commanding general of the Jutland Division of the Royal Danish Army departed Fort Benning Wednesday after a five-day visit and orientation tour.

Maj. Gen. Aage D. Danhuus was accompanied by Col. Jorgen Andreassen, chief of staff, Western Land Command, Royal Danish Army; and Maj. Bendt Berthelsen, army staff, head of section, Royal Danish Army.

2 commands to merge into new 5th U.S. Army

FT. SAM HOUSTON, Tex. (ANF) — The 4th and 5th U. S. Armies are now being merged into what will become the new 5th U. S. Army by July 1971.

Headquarters for the 5th Army, now located at Ft. Sheridan, Ill., will be moved to Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., where it will be consolidated with the 4th Army headquarters.

The new 5th Army will be responsible for Army activities in 14 states: Arkansas, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Texas and Wisconsin.

Social harks back to ice cream days

What could be a nicer tradition than a big Sunday get-together over dinner with friends after church, especially when the dinner is a feast with more than 100 friends attending?

This was the case of a Protestant church social held March 14 in the Harmony Church area. Co-sponsoring of the affair was shared by Co. C, 1st Bn. (Mech.), 56th Inf. ("Patriots"), and the 4th Bn., 69th Arm.

Originally planned as an outdoor picnic affair, the social was moved indoors, buffet-style, due to threatening weather. However, this did not affect spirits or appetites. Immediately after church, the parishioners started filling the hall were delicious smells and tempting sights hit their senses.

The battalion wives prepared a feast of crispy chicken, ham, roast beef, baked beans, deviled eggs, salads of many varieties, hot rolls, cookies and pie. The authentic church-social touch was the home-made ice cream still in the bucket.

The Co. C, 1st Bn. (Mech.), 56th Inf. mess hall supplied the coffee and juice as well as the dining condiments. The dining hall and much of the preparation manpower was provided by the 4th Bn., 69th Arm.

After a prayer of thanks and invocation by Chaplain (Capt.) Floyd Lacey, Protestant chaplain for Harmony church Chapel, guests were invited to "dig-in." Conversation flowed freely and the social was in full swing.

Colors to tell cargo capacity

FT. BELVOIR, Va. (AFPS) — Helicopter cargo slings — color-coded to indicate the safe load they can carry — are being developed here by the Army Combat Developments Command.

The colored slings, with a capacity of 60,000 pounds, are expected to replace the present 15,000 pound load slings "in the 1970-1980 timeframe," officials said.

ACS orients help toward unique problems in Army

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second article in a three-part series describing the services of the Army Community Service at Fort Benning. This week's article tells of the help ACS can provide for everyday problems.)

By Les Hauser

Any problem that arises for the Army family is unique in that it is surrounded by circumstances only found in the military. It may be the same problem hundreds of families face each day in civilian life. But for the Army family, only Army personnel can fully understand their situations.

The Army Community Service (ACS) at Fort Benning understands this and provides social services specifically oriented towards the soldier and his family and military life.

Perhaps one of the most frequent problems a soldier and his family experience is financial, especially for lower ranking soldiers. The Army Emergency Relief (AER) can provide temporary assistance through interest free loans and grants.

But to truly solve the problem, the family may need to reorganize their budget. If this is the case, ACS provides a debt counseling program which is designed to aid military families in liquidating excessive debts and regain financial stability.

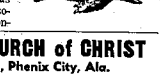
With the help of trained counselors, a family can be put on the road to financial recovery by planning a sound budget taking into consideration the individual family's income and expenses. In many cases ACS has been instrumental in making agreements with creditors on a reduced payment plan, thus relieving the family of an undue hardship.

ACS recently has added a budget management program which is directed not at families with severe financial problems, but toward military families who wish to avoid such situations and by learning how to handle their finances wisely. Financial counseling is available on both an individual and classroom basis for those who desire this service.

ACS realizes that not all family problems revolve around finances. ACS has a full staff of people qualified to handle other areas of social work. Trained social work volunteers conduct preliminary interviews with persons seeking assistance. They then forward them to selected ACS staff members for further counseling and assistance.

Staff members do conduct limited counseling on marriage and family problems, referring those requiring comprehensive consultation to the Mental Hygiene Service of Martin Army Hospital.

Perhaps one problem that almost every Army family experiences at one time or another is the absence of the father from the family scene. Young boys in the family seem to suffer most from the lack of an adult male influence. To try and fill this gap, ACS has begun what is known as the "Big Brother" program. Under Big Brothers, active duty and retired military personnel are introduced to "little brothers" between the ages of 6 through 14. Through their relationship, the little brother is provided the much needed male companionship he is missing.



ACS also provides a handicapped children's recreation program. Volunteers of the Handicapped Children's committee provide a weekly schedule of activities for the handicapped children of active duty and retired military personnel.

Handicapped Children Inspect Helicopter At Lawson Airfield

Once a month a birthday party is held for all the handicapped children who had birthdays that month. In addition, a number of field trips are taken during the summer to enable the children to view some of the local points of interest. Also during the summer, ACS conducts a two week camp where the children can participate in sports such as swimming and bowling and are taught a variety of crafts.

These varied social services are all provided by ACS with the assistance of military dependent volunteers, another example of Army personnel extending a helping hand to the soldier and his family.

New air mobility division to be formed

A new Army test division will conduct the first major experiment with new materiel, tactics, techniques and doctrine involving Army air mobility since the 11th Air Assault Division was tested in 1963 and 1964 at Fort Benning.

The test division, the 1st Cavalry Division TRICAP, will be formed in mid-1971 at Ft. Hood, Tex., using assets of the 1st Armored Division, according to a recent announcement by Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor.

The new TRICAP (for Triple Capability - Armor-Airmobile Infantry-Air Cavalry) Division will be an experimental and test division. It will consist of an armored brigade, an airmobile Infantry brigade, an air cavalry combat brigade and necessary combat support and combat service support units.

The division will test combined armor, airmobile and air cavalry organizations, develop concepts and tactics for employment of these units, and use materiel currently being field tested.

This will be done under the management of the director of Project MASSTER (Mobile Army Sensor Systems Test, Evaluation and Review), a special project begun in October 1969 to test doctrine, concepts and materiel that might be used on future battlefields.

The 11th Air Assault Division was activated at Fort Benning in 1963 to develop and test airmobile concepts for the U.S. Army.

In 1965, the 11th Air Assault Division and the 2nd Infantry Division were merged to form the 1st Cavalry Division (Airmobile). The unit was then deployed to South Vietnam under the leadership of Maj. Gen. Harry W. O. Kinnard.

Transport agencies to merge

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Army and the Navy are drawing a plan to consolidate the Military Sealift Command and the Military Traffic Management and Terminal Service into a single jointly-staffed agency under the Army.

The new agency, which has not yet been named, will report to the Secretary of Defense through the Secretary of the Army. Except for intra-theater land transportation in overseas areas, it will be the single manager for Defense surface transportation.

The Navy will continue to be responsible for operating and maintaining government-owned ships and some chartered vessels, and will continue to operate ships not engaged in transportation, such as oceanography ships.

Can't take military out of retired brigadier general

ALPINE, Tex. — The general's strategy toward his second career is being carried out at Sul Ross State University.

He is U.S. Army Brig. Gen. (ret.) Robert M. Williams, a graduate student in the university's Range Animal Science Division.

Gen. Williams, who was commander of the 197th Infantry Brigade from July 1963 to May 1964 and chief of staff at Fort Benning from June 1964 to January 1966, retired in August 1969 after a 31-year military career and enrolled in Sul Ross that September.

"I wanted to live somewhere in the West . . . and wanted to get into the ranching business. I wanted to be outdoors," he said.

Before his retirement, the 54-year-old Greenville, Tex., native and his wife visited Alpine and "liked it. The climate is wonderful." Later, he became interested in Sul Ross' Range Animal Science program through a SRSU catalogue he found while stationed in Mexico City Mexico, in 1967-69. He was Defense and Army Attache at the American Embassy.

"I wanted to learn something about this ranching business," he said. His interest is cattle production.

"Really I think that Range Animal Science is one of the most interesting things that I have ever done in my life . . . Animal production is the thing that interests me more than anything else."

Returning to civilian life after three decades in the military service is "such a drastic change in your mode of living and in your associates," he said. However, "I maintain an active interest in the military."

"A retired officer is still in the military service. That's something some people don't understand. He is still under the same rules and regulations required of men still in active service."

Military service can be a character-building experience, he said.

"Two years in the military service," he explained, "will do more for the development of a young man than anything I've ever seen. After two years the young man or woman will have built up the assurance to better cope with life." Of those serving in the armed forces, 95 per cent, he said, come out "better than when they went in."

However, not all share his viewpoint, he admitted. Anti-military attitudes and demonstrations indicate this.

"Those people who are burning Reserve Officers Training Corps (ROTC) buildings and (those) casting aspersions on men in the program . . . I cannot understand that. ROTC was held in such high esteem."

"Military service is for the defense of our country," Gen. Williams said. And until recently, there has "never been a suspicion of it in our history. It's a bunch of baloney."

Accordingly, he said, "I don't have any use for draft dodgers. I don't make any bones about that."

Gen. Williams was commissioned a second lieutenant in 1938 through the Army ROTC program at Texas A and M University. Aside from state-side duty, he served in Europe during World War II, and since, in Paraguay, Spain, Korea, Mexico and the Canal Zone.

New SS law won't hurt VA pensions

Recently-enacted legislation increasing Social Security benefits will have no affect on most recipients of VA pension or Dependency Indemnity Compensation this year.

Georgia Veterans Service Director Pete Wheeler said, "There will be no reduction or discontinuance of the VA benefits during 1971 for those who were receiving VA pensions or parents drawing Dependency Indemnity Compensation on the date the law was signed." The law which increased Social Security benefits by 10 per cent was signed by the President March 17 and is retroactive to Jan. 1.

"With respect to those claims filed on or after March 18," said Wheeler, "the monthly rate of pension or DIC shall be determined by the total amount of countable income from the date of entitlement to the end of the calendar year.

Former teacher finds MAH job more challenging

By Les Hauser

What can the Women's Army Corps (WAC) offer a former Arkansas school teacher? A challenging career as a radioisotope technician, says SSgt. Joe Flynt of Fort Benning's Martin Army Hospital (MAH).

Sgt. Flynt spent a year as a high school teacher before deciding a career in X-ray technology so in 1955 she attended the University of Arkansas' School of X-ray Technology.

SSGT. JOE FLYNT OPERATES A SCANNER WHICH MONITORS THE FLOW OF RADIOISOTOPES IN THE HUMAN BODY — Ken Frater

Upon graduation Sgt. Flynt applied her new knowledge to a job in an Arkansas hospital. Then in 1960 she entered the Women's Army Corps as an X-ray technician.

Seeking a bigger challenge in her work, Sgt. Flynt expanded her medical career in 1963 by attending the Navy's interservice Radioisotope School at Balboa Hospital in San Diego. Here she gained the training to qualify her for her present position as chief radioisotope technician at MAH. This is the only such position in the 3rd Army area held by WAC.

Sgt. Flynt explained that even though the Army does not have an MOS (military occupation specialty) of radioisotope technician, it needs people qualified to operate radioisotope equipment.

Fort Benning began its role in nuclear medicine in 1963 with the opening of the radioisotope section at MAH, believed to be the first of its kind in the 3rd Army area.

Sgt. Flynt, who came to Fort Benning in 1967 after a tour in Alaska, pointed out that Fort Benning has the capabilities to both diagnose and treat patients with radioisotopes.

For diagnostic purposes, radioisotopes can be used to measure blood flow and volume, digestion, metabolism, and other important body functions. In treatment or therapy, radioisotopes in specific doses can be used to either destroy diseased tissue or suppress the overactivity of certain glands such as the thyroid. The effect of such treatment is similar to that of X-ray therapy. However, Sgt. Flynt emphasized that radioisotopes can be used in a much more selective manner than X-rays.

Sgt. Flynt, a 10-year veteran of Army medicine, advocates her profession: "Most people are not aware of the many benefits of such a career. I feel it is a very challenging field and quite interesting work. You are constantly required to overcome problems with your patient by adapting your equipment to varying situations."

Radioisotope technicians are as widely sought in civilian life as in the military, Sgt. Flynt said.

Sgt. Flynt is an example of how the Army can help a person further his or her career. From Arkansas school teacher to radioisotope technician. The Army was there to give the needed training and provide a satisfying career.

Review tells of prison escape, Bay of Pigs

FT. LEAVENWORTH, Kan. — The Bay of Pigs fiasco, Army professionalism and a Civil War prison escape are among the variety of topics covered in the April Military Review, the Army's monthly professional journal.

Col. Joseph Muckerman II USA, looks at the 1961 Bay of Pigs invasion attempt in light of his search for a continuing strategy in the war against Communist-backed insurgencies. The colonel believes that the idea of using indigenous forces to liberate the victims of insurgencies has merit.

His article, "The Bay of Pigs Revisited," explains what he considers to be the advantages of this idea and what went wrong in the past. Col. Muckerman, formerly with the Department of Strategy at the U.S. Army War College, is now the Los Angeles air defense commander at Ft. MacArthur, Calif.

"Army Professionalism for the Future" is Lt. Col. Roy Flint's discussion of the challenges facing Army professionals today and in the future. He advocates, among other things, patience with change. The colonel is now working on his doctorate in military history at Duke University.

A. Porter S. Sweet has written a detailed narrative of Union prisoners' attempts to escape from Libby Prison in Richmond, Va., in 1864. "From Libby to Liberty" traces the persistent escape efforts of a group of men lead by Col. Thomas Rose of the 77th Pennsylvania Volunteers.

For more than four months Rose spent every waking minute either planning or laboring to escape. The final big break resulted in 109 prisoners escaping, 59 of whom reached Union lines.

These three are among the nine original articles appearing in this issue. The others are "The JCS Challenge," Capt. Robert S. Bullagh Jr., USA; "Israel Beyond Cease-Fire," Wing Comdr. Maharaj Chopra, Indian Air Force, retired; "Indicators of Trouble," Lt. Col. William Haas, USA; and "West Germany — Our Capable European Ally," Howard Neuberg; "Post 'Think Tanks,'" Col. Irvin Kent, USA; and "China's Military Strength," Gerald Ellis.

CC sets open house for high schoolers

Military dependents who are undecided about what college to attend can have a close look at Columbus College this weekend.

The college's annual Campus Day will be held Sunday from 2 until 5 p.m. on the north Columbus campus. This is an open house held especially for high school students and their parents. The classroom and laboratories will be open, and the college faculty will be present to explain academic programs offered and to demonstrate equipment and apparatus. Static displays also will be featured.

Visitors should come first to Davidson Student Center where Student Government Association representatives will form groups for the campus tour. The complete tour will take about 45 minutes.

An added attraction on campus this Sunday at 3 p.m. will be a free concert by the College Chamber Orchestra directed by Andrew Galos in Fine Arts Hall. One of the selections chosen by Dr. Galos is George Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue."

The quickest route to the college is via the Lindsey Creek Bypass. Take the Manchester Expressway exit, Number 5.

Death payment depends on how SS is received

One social security benefit not always understood, according to Robert E. O'Neal, manager of the Columbus Social Security Office, is the lump-sum death payment.

"Even though a person now draws social security," O'Neal stated, "it does not necessarily mean that a payment is due at the time of death. Rather, it depends on how a person is eligible to receive social security. The lump-sum death payment is paid only at the death of an insured worker. It is not paid at the death of a dependent of an insured worker unless that dependent is also insured."

Under current law, a lump-sum payment is due the widow or widower of an insured person if the deceased and survivor were living together at the time of death. If there is no eligible spouse, the payment may be made to any person who paid the funeral expenses upon filing an application.

The lump-sum death payment can be paid directly to the funeral home if the person responsible for the funeral bill directs the Social Security Administration to do so by filing an application.

The death benefit will total at least three times the amount of the deceased insured person's monthly benefit but not more than $255.

Explanation

'Dolly' coming to post as 3rd Army Soldiers Show

On Wednesday, September 9, 1970, at 4:30 p.m., Eliza Doolittle stepped aside and watched that meddling widow, Dolly Gallegher Levi, pass her by. "Hello Dolly," made its claim as the longest-running musical in Broadway show history. At that hour, the musical hit completed its 2,719 performance at the St. James Theater in New York City. That put it one up on "My Fair Lady" which ran on Broadway from March 16, 1956 to September 1962.

"Dolly" opened in New York on January 16, 1964 and has since risen past scores of shows on the list of long-running hits. No one could have foreseen then that it would provide long-term employment for seven Broadway Dollys, starting with Carol Channing, who played the role for 853 performances in New York and then went on the road and ran her total up to 1,222. The following is the performance record, in order of appearance, of the seven stars who have played "Holly Dolly." on Broadway:

Carol Channing, 853, January 16, 1964 - August 7, 1965; Ginger Rogers, 644, August 9, 1965 - February 25, 1967; Martha Raye, 114, February 27, 1967 - June 10, 1967; Betty Grable, 185, June 12, 1967 - November 11, 1967; Pearl Bailey, 716, November 13, 1967 - December 20, 1969; Phyllis Diller, 94, December 26, 1969 - March 25, 1970; and Ethel Merman was the last Dolly.

Other stars of Dolly were Mary Martin who took the International Company to the Far East and London; Dorothy Lamour, a popular Las Vegas Dolly, and Eve Arden who starred in a National Company.

Now a new "Dolly" is about to take the tuneful role to Yonkers, Sp4 Helen Brown. Helen will head the cast of this turn-of-the-century musical for the 3rd Army Soldier Show production which is scheduled to be shown at Fort Benning April 9, 10 and 11 at 7:30 p.m. in Marshall Auditorium, Infantry Hall.

Helen's debut with the 3rd Army Soldier Show was in "Gettin' It Together." Her next performance in "Out-A-Sight" was a huge success. While in school, she played Begeato in "A Rasin' In The Sun."

Helen's home station is Ft. McPherson, Ga.

Featured in the cast along with Helen are PFC John Clark, Ft. Rucker, Ala., as Horace Vandergelder; PFC Van Dunson, Ft. McPherson, Ga., as Cornelius Hackle, PFC Ted Stephenson, Ft. Rucker, Ala., as Barnaby Tucker; PFC Denise Rodriques, Ft. McClellan, Ala., as Irene Molloy; Sp4 Linda Paden, Ft. Rucker, Ala., as Minnie Faye; PFC Vallorie Litton, Ft. McClellan, Ala., as Ermengrade; PFC Mark Bucchare, Ft. Gordon, Ga., as Ambrose Kemper; Sp4 James Wilkes, Ft. Stewart, Ga., as Rudolph; and Sp4 Ellen Walker, Ft. Rucker, Ala., as Ernestina.

The idea for "Dolly" was David Merrick's. He had produced Thornton Wilder's "The Matchmaker" on Broadway in 1955 and decided then to follow it with a song and dance treatment. The book is by Michael Stewart and the music and lyrics by Jerry Herman. The show was known as "Call On Dolly" and "Dolly: A Damned Exasperating Woman" before it got its salutation, comma and exclamation point.

THE STORY

Mrs. Dolly Levi, well-known and effusive young widow who has become a matchmaker, has taken on the assignment of finding a match for Horace Vandergelder, a successful hay-and-feed merchant in Yonkers.

Vandergelder hopes to marry Irene Molloy who owns a millinery shop in Manhattan. This he announces to Cornelius Hackle and Barnaby Tucker, the two timid and cowed clerks in his store.

Though Dolly had introduced Vandergelder to Irene, she decides she wants him as a husband. So when he announces he is going to New York to propose to Irene, Dolly has to figure out a way to thwart this.

Dolly manuevers the situation to her advantage, but only after a raucous set of misadventures.

OWC offers 3 classes

Sewing

The Officers' Wives Club (OWC) is sponsoring a new series of sewing classes for Spring that will begin Tuesday at the OWC lounge. Courses to be taught will include beginners basic for those who have never sewn before and will be geared to the fundamentals of sewing.

Regular basic is designed for those who sew and would like to learn the latest techniques, such as applying a lapped zipper and putting in set-in sleeves.

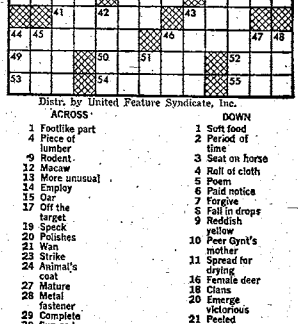
A basic knit and a fitting course is also being offered.

The classes meet from 9 to 11 a.m. every Tuesday for 6 weeks and cost $12. Anyone interested please report to the OWC lounge April 6 at 9 a.m. For further information call Mrs. Larry Wood at 561-3516 or Mrs. Robert Ward at 689-8723.

Guitar

A class in Group Guitar is being offered to members or dependents of members of OWC beginning in early April.

Classes are available for beginning or advanced students, and will be taught in the OWC Lounge (Bldg. 1221). For more information, and for registration call Mrs. Charles Orr, 545-4500.



Yoga

The OWC announces a new series of Yoga classes beginning April 7 at the OWC lounge. Classes will be from 11 to 11:45 a.m. and will last 6 weeks. The cost is $16.

These Yoga classes feature an Americanized version of the Hatha Yoga of India which is a combination of stretching and toning the muscles and deep breathing to help you feel and look better. Some of the many benefits of Yoga are helping you to slim down, redistribute weight and improve your skin.

Because it is not strenuous, all ages enjoy and pratice Yoga. For further information contact Mrs. Larry Wood at 561-3516.

Synopsis

ZEPPELIN (Rated G). The time — 1915. Opposing armies are locked in the futile struggle and carnage of the battle of the Somme.

A new menace looms high: the Zeppelin, an airship exploited by the German High Command as the ultimate weapon of offense.

Young Scottish Lieutenant Michael York is smuggled across the Channel to Friedrichshafen, site of the Zeppelin works. York "the perfect spy," finds the war a personal agony as he will be fighting cousins, uncles and friends from his German parentage.

Yorks' mission is to secure detailed plans of the airship to enable England to develop a counter-weapon in its last hope for survival.

In a climactic ending Elke Sommer and York struggle to get the Zeppelin aloft, amid the final pyrotechnics of the daring mission.

GOODBYE GEMINI (Rated R). Enter the weird, terrifying world of the Gemini twins.

Inseperable since birth, the twins, Judy Geeson and Martin Potter, become involved in a series of outlandish escapes ending in murder when they make a trip to London.

In London the twins meet a "swinging group" and a member of Parliament who discover it is both dangerous and fatal to try to separate the twins.

THE PROFESSIONALS (Rated GP). Burt Lancaster, Lee Marvin, Robert Ryan and Woody Strode, four "professionals," are hired to rescue Claudia Cardinale, the kidnap victim, from a Mexican bandit.

Using dynamite and surprise, they accomplish the rescue and head back for Texas. Jack Palance, the bandit, gives chase and it is discovered that Cardinale had joined him of her own accord.

Man, animal bond shown in 'Grizzlies' adventure

Apparently there are few film projects that the Walt Disney nature photographers cannot tackle. And proof of this fact is the motion picture adventure, "King of the Grizzlies." This dramatic story of one of the most feared and dangerous creatures that man has ever faced so closely with a camera was shot in the Canadian Rockies, against some of the most spectacular and breathtaking terrain in the world which the big bear inhabits.

"King of the Grizzlies" is the story of an Indian who sees represented in the bear Wahb, all the power and wonder of nature. Forced to hunt down the animal who has been raiding the cattle of his rancher employer, the boy, Moki, is given an assignment that he feels he cannot, in right conscience, fulfill, for there has developed a strong spiritual bond between the two. How this touching drama is resolved makes for some exciting and colorful film footage.

THE AUTHOR

Ernest Thompson Seton, the author of "The Biography of a Grizzly," on which the picture is based, was raised in the backwoods of Canada from the age of six. He lived closely with his animal subjects and in his early twenties became the government naturalist of the province of Manitoba. This enabled him to enlarge his field into the area of art and biology and he completed two volumes on animals and birds during the appointment.

In New York he launched himself professionally as an artist and was commissioned by the "Century Dictionary" to do 1,000 drawings of animals and birds.

Seaton, a prolific artist and writer, illustrated animal and bird stories and books for children and adults. In later life he turned out one book a year by writing intensively for one month.

At the time of his death in 1946 at the age of 86, he had written over 30 volumes. Among his most popular works are: "Lives of the Hunted," "Wild Animals I Have Known" and "Lives of Game Animals."

THE STAR

Playing Indian roles, like the part of Moki in "King of the Grizzlies" comes naturally for John Yesno, who is an Ojibway Indian from the Fort Hope reserve in Northern Ontario. He went to Indian residential schools in the province and studied engineering at Waterloo College. While working as an engineer in Toronto during the day he attended drama school at night.

After seeing white actors playing Indians on television he decided to approach the Canadian Broadcasting Company casting office and try his luck at getting one of those Indian roles. It paid off and soon he was before the cameras in the premiere episode, "The Last Man in the World," of the popular "Wojeck" series, for which he won the highly coveted CBC Wilderness Award for best actor.

Though "King of the Grizzlies" is his first motion picture, John has since appeared in numerous TV series and in stage productions in Toronto, Stratford and on the road. He is the host of a weekly radio program on the CBC called "Indian Magazine," which voices the opinions of the many factions among Canada's Indians. And he is an exponent of Indian dances, especially the Kowa Hoop Dance for which he won a championship.

About his last name, it's for real. It all came about when his great grandfather, an Indian chief, while dealing with Canadian agents would say "yes" to part of a treaty and "no" to the rest. They dubbed him "Yes-No."

"King of the Grizzlies" will be shown tomorrow night at Main Post Theater No. 1, and Tuesday at Theater No. 3.

VA sets standards for mobile home loans

The Veterans Administration has announced standards for its mobile home program which guarantees up to 30 per cent of loans — up to a maximum of $10,000 for mobile homes, or up to $17,500 if the loan is also for a fully developed lot.

The mobile home program was established by PL 91-506 and VA has prescribed regulations to govern such items as mobile home sites, construction standards and written manufacturer's warranties.

There are also qualifications for mobile home park locations, basically the same as those for an average subdivision on which single family homes are built. They must have the same facilities, such as proper geographical locations, water, sewage and electricity.

The new law empowers VA Administrator Donald E. Johnson to set interest rates at levels to insure adequate capital for mobile home loans made by lending institutions. He set the interest rate at 10.75 per cent. The interest rate for money used to purchase a lot and to make improvements was set at 7 per cent.

The VA also explained that mobile homes purchased under its program must be at least 40 feet long and 10 feet wide with a minimum of 400 square feet.

Applicants should obtain their certificates of eligibility from the nearest VA regional office, find a mobile home they like and which meets VA standards, settle details for rental or purchase of a mobile home lot, and then apply to a lender for a loan.

ROD AND GUN CLUB Notes

By Bill Kloeb

The Rod and Gun Club Ham Shoot will open at the club grounds at 10 a.m. tomorrow morning. Shooting will continue until 4 p.m.

Ten- to 12-pound hams will be given as prizes.

A ham shoot requires more luck than skill. Anyone who can hold and point a shotgun can win. Come on out and try your luck or give the youngster a thrill. Let him shoot for you.

The Rod and Gun Club is located on First Division Road approximately one quarter mile south of the junction of First Division Road and Highway 27. The Post Shuttle Bus will take you right to the door of the club.

Licenses and Permits

Hunting and Fishing licenses, Rod and Gun Club memberships and Post hunting and fishing permits are now available at Rod and Gun Club headquarters.

Hunting licenses cost $4.25, fishing licenses $3.25 or a combination hunting-fishing license may be purchased for $5.25.

Big game stamps may be purchased by individuals having a hunting license and individuals hold a fishing license may purchase a trout stamp. The big game stamp is sold for $3.25 and the trout stamp cost $2.25.

Persons desiring an annual permit to hunt and fish on the post must pay an administrative charge of fifty cents. A state hunting or fishing license must be purchased before an individual is eligible for a post permit.

The Rod and Gun Club membership fee is $5. Membership entitles the member to use the skeet ranges, archery ranges, snack bar, boat rentals and the right to purchase bait and other items at the club sales outlet.

Skeet Range Lights

Night shooting at the club skeet range is nearing reality. Contracts have been approved and the contractor is ready to start work. The lights should be operating in a few short weeks. Next week we will have the information on hour and times the range will be open at night. Of course any times announced initially will be on a trial basis. The final decision on opening time will depend on the amount of time the membership use the facilities.

Rod and Gun Club Plans

Plans to provide an all weather smallbore range for use by the Junior National Rifle Association chapter on post are progressing on schedule. The range will be located on the club grounds behind the club house. If you want more information on this call 545-6028.

Plans for the club picnic are now in full swing. A bass boat, the grand prize has been purchased and will be on display at various public places on the post until May 2 when it will become the property of some lucky Rod and Gun Club member. This is a real bass rig and would cost a fisherman right in the neighborhood of $3,000. About $500 in other prizes will be given away at the picnic. The club board of governors is also planning a lot of entertainment for the day. Be sure to hold May 2 open for a fun afternoon at the club.

Monthly Fishing Contest

All of the leaders in the Rod and Gun Club monthly fishing contest have come from King's Pond. 1st Sgt. Henry A. Ferris, TSB, registered the largest bass. It weighed 8-pounds, 7-ounces. The largest bream belongs to SSgt. C. D. Baxley, 3rd Ranger Company. His catch weighed 1-pound, 14 ounces. SSgt. (ret.) P. Mobley, 4247 Old Cusseta Road leads the catfish contest with an 8-pound, 12-ounce catch.

Now is the time to get in an entry for the May contest. Each month the Rod and Gun Club gives prizes for the largest bream, bass and catfish caught at ponds on the reservation. The rules of the contest are simple. You must be a member of the Rod and Gun Club, register at the club headquarters before going fishing and register your catch at the headquarters.

Team handball begins at Benning

By Bill Kloeb

More than 200 spectators gathered in Briant Wells Field House Saturday morning to watch this country's two top handball specialists explain and demonstrate how the game should be played.

Most of the spectators were players on the basketball teams competing in the 3rd Army Basketball Championships held here last week.

The two handball specialists conducting the clinic were Dr. Peter Buehning, president of the U.S. Olympic Handball Federation, and Dennis Burkholtz, captain of the U.S. National Handball Team.

The basketball players had known the clinic and demonstration were part of the activities scheduled during the week of the basketball championships and had heard quite a few opinions and descriptions of the sport from so called "experts," but they had never seen the game played.

When Buehning explained in his opening remarks that team handball is played with an inflated leather ball five inches in diameter on an indoor or outdoor court approximately the size of a basketball court, the interest of the crowd was mild. When he claimed the game is faster and more competitive than basketball the spectator attitude was clearly one of "show me."

A 15 minute movie of a game played between Sweden and Bulgaria during the 1968 Olympics with a running commentary supplied by Burkholtz kindled a little interest but no real enthusiasm.

When Buehning and Burkholtz began explaining and demonstrating various offensive moves and defensive blocks with the aid of spectator - demonstrators, the basketball players began to see that handball is a game very similar to basketball in some respects but allows the players much more freedom in offensive and defensive movements.

After a short scrimmage to demonstrate the tempo of the game and emphasize major rules the basketball players interest had increased to the point that they were looking forward to playing in the single elimination handball tournaments scheduled for this afternoon.

The initial games of the afternoon tournament were interrupted repeatedly when it became apparent to Buehning that there was a common misunderstanding by the players. But the players learned by watching and doing, and before the afternoon was over Buehning was well satisfied that he and Burkholtz had made quite a few extremely competent and enthusiastic converts to the game of handball.

Players from Fort Jackson and Fort McClellan figured they had been more successful in mastering the game. The Fort Jackson team came out as victors of one tournament and the McClellan team was winner of the other.

League play to decide 3rd Army sport champs

Headquarters 3rd U.S. Army has announced that the 1971 baseball, basketball and handball team champions in the 3rd Army area will be determined by league play.

The Army league has been divided into an Eastern and Western division. During league play each team will play all other teams in the division four times. Two games will be home games and two games will be played away from home.

Upon completion of division play the two high ranking teams in each division will play in a double elimination series to determine the 3rd Army champion.

Softball play will run from June until August with the elimination tournament played at Fort Jackson, S.C. Aug. 18 through 20. League handball play will be scheduled beginning in August and terminate in October. The Army playoffs will be held Oct. 15 through 17 at Fort Benning. The basketball league will start in October and finish during March of next year, dates and place of the playoffs have not been announced.

Previously 3rd Army champions in these sports were determined by having each team play all other teams one time. After this play the team winning the most games was declared the champion.

The new system will provide a much more valid method for determining champions.

Next year the Army plans to add football to the list of sport championships determined by home and away league play.

197th's 'finest soldier-athlete' departs for scholarship

By Bob Wise

In April of 1969 Maurice Travers entered into a two-year hitch with the U. S. Army. He was discharged Feb. 19, 1971.

In this respect, his story is no different from that of millions of other young men. But before Sp5 Travers was tossed back into civilian life he attained stature as one of the finest soldier-athletes ever to bat a softball, dribble a basketball or catch a football at Fort Benning.

Following basic training, "Trav," as his buddies called him, became a mail clerk at the Army Training Center (ATC). Just before ATC was inactivated last spring, his basketball team, with Trav's help, won the Fort Benning brigade-level championship.

He transferred to the 197th Inf. Bde. and signed into Co. A, 197th Support Bn. where he assumed his duties in AG publications. Almost immediately he tried out for a position on the 197th's brigade-level softball team, landing the catchers spot. For the next three months, the modest, fleet-footed Travers gained a great amount of respect from both his company co-workers and teammates for his performance in both fields.

After a series of exciting play-off games at the end of the season, the 197th took second to The Candidate Brigade, (TCB), but the season was not over for Trav. Picked as a Fort Benning All Star, the Baltimore, Md. native took his .340 batting average to the 3rd Army Tournament at Ft. Rucker, Ala. Fort Benning took the tournament crown with little hassle, and Travers, batting .364 in the tournament, was placed on the 3rd Army All-Star Team.

Football season was less than two months away and Trav's company (Co. A, 197th Support Bn.) was working up the team that would win the 197th championship. Co. A became known as the Bearcubs. The Bearcubs stayed undefeated through the Brigade gridiron play-off until the final two games.

The Bearcubs lost the next to the last game in a sudden-death overtime, but came back the following day to clinch the championship. The team had many outstanding players, but there was one man who always seemed to come through when he was most needed. With the help of crucial blocking from his teammates, Trav broke loose twice to run nearly the length of the field for the two game-winning touchdowns.

Trav was soon chosen to play on Fort Benning's All-Star Football Team, where he again proved himself an outstanding athlete.

Basketball season began the last of November and once again Trav would prove that he was as good as anybody and better than most. Playing guard on the 197th's brigade-level basketball team, Trav was usually the man causing the steal, the turnover, or making the assist.

His defensive efforts helped the brigade team capture the Fort Benning championship. He did not take as many shots as did some of his teammates. He was too busy helping to make the play or hawk the ball away from the opponent.

With brigade-level basketball underway, the individual companies began mustering their forces for fierce company-level competition. Again, the Bearcubs put together a team that would win the brigade championship.

Although the Bearcubs were fast and able to handle the ball effectively, they were lacking in height — a commodity possessed by most of the other company teams.

At guard, and sometimes center, was Maurice Travers, standing 5-feet, 10-inches and weighing 164 pounds. But overcoming insurmountable odds had long been the trademark of both Trav and the Bearcubs. Diminuitive by comparison, he usually outjumped the man six inches taller. He was due to be discharged in March. To him, a good education and a college degree were now his most important objectives.

The only apparent way for him to get through college would have to be on an athletic scholarship. His credentials were more than adequate.

At Southern High School, Baltimore, Trav's athletic abilities surfaced. He was a standout in basketball, baseball and football. During his junior year, he was a Maryland All-State selection in both baseball and basketball and was known for his speed of 9.6 seconds in the 100-yard dash.

He could not play baseball in his senior year because it was necessary for Trav to work afternoons and nights to help support his mother, four brothers and a sister.

Less than two years after graduation, Trav received his notice from Uncle Sam. He had to give up a good job with a Baltimore printing firm for basic training at Ft. Bragg, N. C.

As the end of his tour neared, the athletic department at Tulsa University in Oklahoma, learned of young Travers and of his abilities. After expressing his desire to play for Tulsa University, he was placed in a near-by junior college for the spring semester to prepare him for the rigorous academic demands he would face at Tulsa.

Although he would have to start classes a month after the semester began, Trav was convinced he could do it and be attending Tulsa University by next fall. Everyone who knew him felt the same way. His friends knew him as a smart, quick-minded person with more desire than the Baltimore Colts and an attitude that could never accept defeat.

So, Maurice Travers was sent into civilian life armed only with his attitude, desire and ability. Before he left Fort Benning, he was given a red carpet farewell. A private ceremony was held in the office of Col. Willard Latham, commander of the 197th Inf. Bde. During the ceremony Trav was presented two basketball trophies and hailed by the colonel as a "superb athlete" who could "engage in whatever happened to be coming down the pike . . . one of the finest examples of the soldier-athlete we have ever had in the brigade."

Trav had to miss the final week of basketball because of his journey to the Midwest. Before the final brigade-level game, the 197th accepted the trophy for finishing the hardcourt season as post champions. Trav was not present, but he was singled out as "one of Fort Benning's finest athletes" by the post's director of sports.

A number of people have high hopes for Trav. With his attitude and willingness he cannot fail. He has already proven himself at Fort Benning. His desire will keep him progressing. His hunger for education will keep him achieving his goals.

Article on Inf. mag. to appear in Digest

An article on Fort Benning's "Infantry" magazine appears in the April 1971 issue of "Army Digest."

Written by Sp4 Les Hauser of the Information Office, the article explains how the magazine "has served as the pulse of the Infantryman since 1922."

The article also describes some of the changes the magazine has undergone in its 50 years of publication.

2 golfers hit hole-in-one

Two Fort Benning golfers had that thrill of a lifetime last week when they recorded holes in one at the Country Club Golf Course.

Mrs. Paul Mitchell used a five wood to put her first shot into the hole on the 107-yard par-3 of the Pine Side last Tuesday.

She was playing with Mrs. Art DeLuca and Mrs. John Magner.

Bill Peterson made the second ace of the week on Thursday. His ace came on the seventh hole of the Pine Side. He was playing with Col. Malcom Baer and Col. (ret.) Robert Fowler.

More for museum

M. W. Arline, president of the Infantry Center Federal Credit Union, presents a check to Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander, for the Infantry Museum drive. The goal of the Fort Benning campaign is to collect $100,000 toward construction of the new museum to be built near Infantry Hall.

Fort Benning 'home' since 1919

1st Bn., 29th Inf., marks 70 years

By Bob Wise

Fort Benning's original "demonstration troops" celebrated their 70th birthday last Friday with a full day of activities.

The 1st Bn., 29th Inf., moved to Fort Benning in 1919, the same year the Infantry School was founded, and remained for 24 years until World War II. The unit did not return to Fort Benning until 1954.

The day's activities began with a review of the troops and awards ceremony, in which the 197th Infantry Brigade Commander, Col. Willard Latham, presented 30 awards to soldiers in the 1st Bn., 29th Inf.

The remainder of the day was spent at the battalion organization day picnic. It began at the brigade picnic grounds, but cold, wet weather forced the men and dependents into the Kelley Hill Field House for the rest of the activities.

Although the men and their families were still able to enjoy the broiled steaks and barbecued chicken, most of the athletic events has to be cancelled because of the weather.

The battalion volleyball tournament was held, however, to determine the battalion's representative to the brigade tournament. Co. B was given the first place trophy after the single-elimination tournament.

Although the 29th Inf. was organized in 1901 units with the same designation fought in the War of 1812 and the Civil War. The Department of Defense, however, does not permit the regiment to take official credit for the deeds of the old 29th regiments.

A year after its organization, the 29th was sent to the Philippine Islands and remained until 1904. The regiment returned to the U.S. for garrison duty until 1914 when it was ordered to the Canal Zone.

In 1919 the unit arrived at Fort Benning to support Infantry School training until the outbreak of World War II. During World War II, the 29th served in England, France and Belgium.

In the Korean Conflict the 1st Bn. was attached to the 24th and 25th Inf. Div., serving in Okinawa until returning to Fort Benning in 1954. In 1962 the 29th Inf. became part of the 197th Inf. Bde.

The 1st Bn., 29th Inf., presently commanded by Lt. Col. Henry Doctor Jr., not only provides field support for the Infantry School, but the Fort Benning Honor Guard (Co. C) battalion. The 51st Infantry Platoon (Scout Dog) is also attached to the battalion.

NASA tests may yield secrets of chromosomes to researchers

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Human chromosomes may soon yield more of their secrets to medical researchers with the aid of a space-age computerized process developed at NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory, Pasadena, Calif.

The same computer that enhances photographs radioed back from the Moon and Mars has been successfully applied to analyzing pictures of human chromosomes.

A JPL scientific team has devised a system which can analyze a picture of the chromosomes in a human blood cell in three minutes — about one-tenth of the time required to do the same job manually.

Chromosomes are the tiny bodies that contain the basic patterns for life, genes. Seen through a microscope, they appear to resemble a tangle of short spaghetti strands, or stubby worms.

Each chromosome contains strings of DNA molecules, believed to be the reproductive basis of all living organisms. DNA — deoxyribonucleic acid — holds the key to the genetic code of life of Earth, biologists and biochemists now generally believe.

The JPL system was explained this way:

By closed circuit television, an operator watched as the automated microscope searches a slide prepared from a blood sample. The technician stops the scanning when a cell with a suitable group of chromosomes is found.

Automatically the system then sharpens the focus and enlarges the image 2,500 times. A special data camera takes the picture and transfers it into a computer.

Still operating automatically, the computer isolates, measures and rotates each chromosome image until it is erect.

Each chromosome — 46 in the case of a normal human cell — is numbered and classified according to size and shape...

The resulting digital picture inside the computer is transferred to a special photographic printer which produces a picture on paper.

The computerized TV slide search, as the JPL researchers call it, promises not only to be faster, but to be considerably less tiring for the laboratory technician making the analysis.

Akron cadets visit Benning, see training

A group of 30 cadets from the University of Akron, Akron, Ohio, visited the Leadership Department March 23 and 24.

Maj. Edward Joseph briefed the cadets on the purpose and conduct of the Leaders' Reaction Course and then conducted a tour of the facilities, where the cadets observed: NCOC 7 negotiating the course. Also the cadets saw a nine-man demonstration team headed by 2nd Lt. Timothy R. Love from the Combatives Subcommittee, Conditioning, Combatives and Drill Committee, Leadership Department, give a combatives demonstration.

Rangers making trek across N.M. desert sands

A new type of training is being conducted in the desert sands of New Mexico and Texas by a group of 25 Fort Benning Rangers. The group is making a 50-mile trek across the desert after the Rangers were parachute-dropped into New Mexico.

The group was flown from here to Ft. Bliss, Tex., Monday to prepare for the venture.

"The desert is our enemy in this operation," said Lt. Col. James P. Anderson, leader of the group of Rangers actually conducting the problem as well as the main problems they will face in the desert. A temperature varying over 50 degrees is expected.

"Desert training was first thought about when an air plane was hijacked and landed in the desert." Anderson said. The purpose of the 50-mile desert venture is to decide if the Ranger School will add instruction of this type. A class will conduct a similar operation on an experimental basis in the near future.

"If the considerations for the desert training are so different from the regular training," commented Anderson, "a desert training phase will be added to the Ranger course."

The Rangers have consulted British and French liasion officers about the hazards of desert operations plus an Air Force weather specialist, the Marine Corps and the Army Medical Corps. Since the weather conditions will be different than here in Georgia extra equipment such as sand goggles, sun glasses and a health pack were brought along.

After completing the 50 mile mission, the Rangers will spend one day relaxing in Texas before returning to Fort Benning.

OERs provide basis for personnel actions

With movement toward the Modern Volunteer Army, the Officer Efficiency Report (OER) will play an increasingly important role in evaluation and subsequent retention of the best qualified officers.

When considered with the officer's overall record, the OER provides a sound basis for competitive personnel actions relative to schooling, assignments and promotions.

OERs cover every period of service in an active duty status except when the rated period is less than 60 days for company grade officers and less than 90 days for field grade officers.

All officers below the rank of lieutenant general are rated in accordance with the same regulations on DA Form 67-6. It is essential to the officer's career that his rating be submitted to the Department of the Army within the required 90 days.

In addition to the OER, and of particular interest to the junior officer, is the Academic Report submitted upon completion of the Officer Basic Course. A recent change by DA incorporates this report into the officer's record and is utilized when he is considered for promotion to first lieutenant.

Each officer is rated by his immediate supervisor, who is obligated to become fully informed on the officer's performance. The OER also is acted upon by an indorser and a reviewer at progressively higher levels in the officer's chain of command.

Reports that contain ratings at the lower extremes of the scale or that reflect on the character of the rated officer must be forwarded to the officer for his comment. He must acknowledge receipt and may inclose a statement which is based on fact and does not reflect upon the character or motives of the rater when he feels the rating is incorrect.

This does not constitute a formal appeal. A formal appeal or reclama may be submitted but must provide substantial eveidence and documentation in support of the officer's belief.

The present system of officer efficiency rating reflects an attempt to overcome major deficiencies in both format and procedure which lessened effectiveness of the system in the past. The present DA Form 67-6 uses, for example, more objective numerical ratings and offers the rater the opportunity to compare the rated officer with his peers.

For the officer efficiency rating system to be effective, it is essential that each officer take the interest in rating his subordinates that he would take if he were rating himself.

Wilson honored graduate

2nd Lt. Randolph E. Wilson was the distinguished graduate of Infantry Officer Basic Course (IOBC) Class 15-71, which graduated in ceremonies March 29 in Marshall Auditorium, Infantry Hall.

Brig. Gen. Lawrence H. Caruthers, assistant commandant of the Army's Field Artillery School, Ft. Sill, Okla., delivered the commencement address to the 130 graduates.

Wilson is a graduate of the University of Texas at Austin with a bachelor of science degree in geology. He received his commission in the Infantry.

The nine weeks IOBC program is designed to provide branch training for officers of the Active Army, National Guard and the Army Reserve. The students were taught the duties and responsibilities of company grade officers. Included in the course of instruction were small arms, mortar, company and platoon operations.

Only 24 of the top racing drivers in the world are eligible to compete in all International Grand Prix.
More than half of them are British.

For the British, cars are a very no-nonsense, unfrilly business. In a car, they regard beauty as a function of how beautifully it functions; and nothing reflects this more than the classically British TR-6.

It is English to the core. In fact, it's just about all core—a big, beautifully engineered 6-cylinder motor, powering a sturdy transmission that slides solidly from one gear into another.
A heavy-duty independent suspension that can take anything that any road can dish out.
All tightly put together in a body with rugged, clean lines and topped off with a couple of comfortable reclining seats to sit in it with.

The classically British TR-6, is an utterly straightforward, square-jawed kind of car.
The kind they don't make anymore, anywhere but England.

New rules for investors under tax reform bill

Income tax and you

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the 10th and last in a series of articles on ways you can save on your income tax returns this year. The articles are written by Henry Block, president of H and R. Block, Inc., America's largest tax service.)

One of the most popular indoor sports for many Americans, either on a regular or on an occasional basis, is trading on the stock market. The Revenue Act of 1969 has brought about significant changes in the rules of this popular pastime—so it is necessry to examine the most important of these changes.

The basic concept regarding the taxability of profits realized from trading on th stock market is a simple one. If you buy stock at one price and sell it at another, the different is your profit or loss. You pay taxes on the profit and, subject to certain limitations, you may deduct the loss. The amount of taxable profit depends on how long you held the stock. If you owned it for six months or less, the gain or loss is considered short-term and the entire gain is taxable as if it were ordinary income, the same as wages, interest, etc.

If you held the stock for more than six months, the profit is considered to be long-term and you are only required to pay tax on 50 per cent of the gain. If your losses exceeded your gains you were allowed to deduct up to $1,000 per year against ordinary income and then carry over any remaining losses to following years.

The new law has changed the rules with regard to the deductibility of capital losses. Beginning with 1970, losses are allowed only to the extent of gains plus the smallest of the following: (1) Taxable Income for the year, (2) $1,000, or (3) the sum of the excess of net short-term capital loss over neat long-term capital gain, and one-half of the excess of the net long-term capital loss over net short-term capital gain.

Although these rules sound rather complex, several examples should indicate how they will work in practice. Mr. Smith, a single taxpayer with a salary of $10,000, sustained a $1,500 long-term loss in the stock market. Under the Tax Reform Act, Mr. Smith is allowed to deduct one-half ($750) of his long-term loss from ordinary income. Under prior law he could have deducted $1,000 and carried over the remaining $500 to the next year.

In another example, the same taxpayer sustained long-term gains of $300, long-term losses of $500, short-term gains of $800 and short-term losses of $1,500. His deductible loss would be computed as follows: Net short-term loss ($700) less net long-term gain (0) is $700. Net long-term loss ($200) less net short-term gain ($0) is $200, but this figure must be reduced by one-half so the resulting $100 is added to the $700 giving a deductible loss of $800. Under the old law you were allowed to deduct the entire excess of long-term loss over short-term gain so the deductible amount would have been $900.

Separate Returns

In past years, if both husband and wife had their own capital losses, it might have been to their advantage to file separate returns so that each one of them could take advantage of the $1,000 capital loss deduction. The Revenue Act of 1969 changed this and now the maximum capital loss deduction on separate returns is $500.

New Carryover Rule

The basic rule regarding loss carryovers has not been changed by the 1969 Act, i.e., the excess of net long-term capital loss over net short-term capital gain may be carried forward. But, the manner of determining net short-term capital gain for carryover purposes has been changed. Essentially, the change directs inclusion of the nondeductible 50 per cent of the individual's long-term capital loss in his short-term capital gain thereby reducing the net long-term capital loss which can be carried forward. The new law on carryovers only applies to losses sustained after Dec. 31, 1969. If you have an existing carryover loss from a prior year's tax return you are still, under transitional rules, allowed to deduct the entire $1,000 of your long-term loss or to apply the loss against any gains you may have.

Alternative Tax

In the past references have been made to a so-called "capital gains tax." This term is somewhat of a misnomer since capital gains, if short - term are taxed as ordinary income and if long-term 50 per cent of the gain is taxed as ordinary income. The confusion results from the fact that there has been an alternative tax which provided that the maximum tax which could be imposed on a long-term gain was 25 per cent of the gain. Since normally only 50 per cent of a long-term gain is taxed, the alternative tax was not employed unless the taxpayer was paying taxes in a bracket of 50 per cent or more.

Under the 1969 Tax Reform Act long-term gains are now eligible for income averaging, so it was the feeling of Congress that there was no need to further extend the alternative computation of tax for capital gains. Therefore, the alternative tax is being phased out completely. This is being accomplished by raising the rate to 29½ per cent for 1970 and 32½ per cent for 1971. After 1971, there will be no more alternative tax, since the next step would be 35 per cent and inasmuch as 70 per cent is the maximum tax rate in any case there would be no advantage to a 35 per cent alternative tax when half of the gain is taxable at the 70 per cent rate.

On consolation for the smaller investor is the fact that the 25 per cent maximum tax has not completely disappeared. It will still apply to aggregate long-term gains which do not exceed $50,000 ($25,000 in the case of married persons filing separate returns).

Lump-Sum Distributions From Employe's Plans

In the past the taxable portion of a lump-sum distribution of a qualified pension or profit-sharing plan was eligible for long-term capital gains treatment if the distribution was made within one year of the employe's separation from service. The Tax Reform Act of 1969 has changed this so that only the difference between the taxable portion of the distribution and the employer's contributions is given capital gains treatment, the balance being taxed as ordinary income.

Disposal Branch to hold auction of 215 items

On April 14, the Property Disposal Branch will conduct a local spot bid sale of 215 line items. Some items are scrap and some used.

The property may be inspected from Wednesday, April 7, until the day of the sale, Monday through Friday, from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Items on sale include four commercial sedans, one ½ ton truck, one ¾-ton trailer, household and office furniture and appliances, desk lights, typewriters, medical equipment, automotive equipment, and electronic components.

Bidders must be present to buy the items on the day of the sale. Items bought must be paid fer and removed not later than April 21. No bid deposit is required.

Registration for bidding will begin at 8 a.m. the day of the sale at Building No. 467. The sale will begin at 9 a.m. No mailed-in, hand carried, telegraphic or telephonic bids will be accepted.

A complete list of the property to be offered and the Terms of Sale are available at the property location, Building No. 467, Mitchell Avenue and 10th Division Road.

Dependents can get educational assistance

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Educational assistance loans are now available to eligible dependent children of active-duty Army personnel for post-high school education or training during the coming school year.

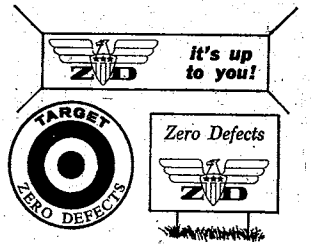
The program began this year for the second semester of school year 1970-71 and will be continued at least through school year 1971-72.

The loans are available under the Federally Insured Student Loan Program (FISLP).

Deadline for application for the loans is May 31 for those attending the next school year. Loan applications will be accepted throughout the 1971-72 school year, but processing time is about 60 days.

Dependent students desiring loans should write to The Adjutant General, Attention: AGMG, Department of the Army, Washington, D.C. 20314, for necessary forms and instructions.

Eligibility is limited to dependent students who either were graduated from high school during the summer of 1970 or will be graduated subsequently. Sponsors must have been on active duty in the Army on Nov. 30 of the Students' senior year of high school.



Applicants must be enrolled in or accepted for enrollment in an eligible school. More than 6,000 colleges and vocational schools in the United States and some foreign colleges are eligible institutions.

The amount of the loan per academic year will not exceed the education costs, as computed by the university or school concerned, with the minimum being $250 and the maximum $1,500.

Student loans under the FISLP are interest-free while the borrower's adjusted family income is less than $15,000. However, seven per cent simple interest is charged annually during the repayment period following school.

If the borrower's adjusted family income is $15,000 or more, interest is also charged while in school.

The repayment period is five to 10 years, beginning one year after the borrower ceases to be at least a one-half time student.

doi," she said.

The average Army MIA-POW is young, enlisted, single and a high school graduate. This profile is different from that of the older, better-educated, married officer—mostly pilots —seen on propaganda film released by Hanoi, Mrs. Powers said.

The small bamboo cages that confine Americans in concealed jungle sites in South Vietnam, such as escaped prisoner Maj. James Rowe has described, are unlike the prison camps in the north.

The constant danger of injury or death from allied firepower and combat operations is never discussed by reporters covering POW stories.

The prison food that an undernourished, malaria-infested captor provides his captives is unimaginable.

The personal indignities described by American returnees show a total disregard for the Geneva Convention relative to treatment of prisoners of war.

"The public was amazed when I told them we had prisoners in the south," Mrs. Power said.

Until last year she had waited in silence for news of the son. When she was invited to meet with President Richard Nixon and 25 other families of prisoners of missing men, she discovered that most of the publicity efforts concerned those held captive in North Vietnam and were not spreading the word of the Army MIA-POW.

She joined the National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia, the organization that has aroused public interest in the overall problem, and made a simple, direct plea: "Please. Don't let these men be forgotten."

Mrs. Powers noted that only one letter has been received from an American prisoner held in South Vietnam, compared to the 4,156 released by North Vietnam.

"We have got to inform Americans about this and get them to do something about it," she said. "We're on the humanitarian end of it, not the political."

Mrs. Powers has actively supported the league efforts to mobilize public opinion, but she has concentrated on the Army MIA-POW situation.

Mrs. Powers' husband, James Powers is deceased. Her other son, Terry A. Powers, has a Ph.D. in Latin American Economics and is at the University of Texas.

A worldwide campaign for a new Transportation Corps museum at Ft. Eustis, Va., has been launched.

The worldwide canvassing is directed toward active duty and retired Transportation Corps officers and non-commissioned officers; regular Army, National Guard and Reserve units; and the transportation industry nationwide.

All persons who donate will automatically become members of the museum's foundation. Also, the names of those who donate $100 or more will be engraved on a permanent plaque to be put in the new museum building.

The Transportation Corps Museum Foundation, a non-profit, tax-exempt organization, was incorporated for the purpose of constructing a new Transportation Museum building. It is composed entirely of non-salaried volunteers.

When construction of the building is completed, it will be turned over to the Army.

Father's death in Vietnam needn't end aid to handicapped children

DENVER — A helicopter crashes and the father of a mentally retarded child is killed in action in Vietnam. Compounding the family's difficulties at this tragic time is the sudden loss of eligibility of the CHAMPUS Program for the Handicapped, which had been covering much of the high cost of special schooling for the child.

Recent changes in the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services (CHAMPUS), however, are providing families in this situation with some relief.

In the past, since the law governing CHAMPUS makes the Program for the Handicapped available only to dependents of personnel on active duty, numerous cases had been reported where upon the death of their sponsor children with moderate or severe mental retardation or with serious physical handicaps had unexpectedly lost benefits critical to their welfare.

Now, although the law has not been changed and such families still lose their eligibility for the Program for the Handicapped, CHAMPUS Basic Program combined with administrative efforts aimed specifically at these families are providing help.

Since January the CHAMPUS office in Denver has been receiving casualty reports from all the uniformed services and screening them to determine if any dependents of the casualties are currently enrolled in the Program for the Handicapped.

When cases are discovered, CHAMPUS officials analyze them to determine what coverage can be provided under the Basic Program. This review is identical to the attention given also to cases when sponsors retire from active duty.

In many cases much of the medical care including the services of physical therapists, speech therapists, psychologists and other ancillary personnel, is authorized under the Basic Program. In addition, educational benefits, including the services of remedial reading teachers, may also be authorized.

Once the available benefits have been determined, a letter is dispatched to the family informing them that they are no longer eligible for the Program for the Handicapped but also describing what coverage is available under the Basic Program.

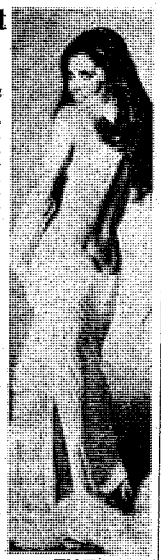
In addition to this effort, OCHAMPUS passes the information on the case to the Veterans Administration in Washington. Through the War Orphans Act, the War Widows Act and other special VA benefits available to handicapped individuals the VA can pick up some of the benefits formerly provided by the CHAMPUS Program for the Handicapped.

In the two months that these procedures have been in effect almost a dozen cases have been turned up. In certain instances the cases involved benefits that were covered only by the Program for the Handicapped, such as orthodontic treatment for servere malocclusion or the purchase of equipment like a hearing aid. More often than not, however, the handicapping condition required treatment that was payable under a program other than the Program for the Handicapped. For these families the blow of what was still an intense tragedy was somewhat lessened.

New ruling eases CHAMPUS care

DENVER — Authorized dependents of active duty personnel are now authorized simultaneous benefits under both the Basic Program (outpatient-inpatient) and the Program for the Handicapped according to a recent Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services (CHAMPUS) ruling.

Under the new ruling the dependent of an active duty member may be receiving authorized health care and services in an institution or facility under the Basic Program with transportation costs to and from that facility payable under the Program for the Handicapped. The sponsor or beneficiary would still be responsible for this statutory share of the costs.



Thus, if a mentally retarded and emotionally disturbed child were receiving institutional care in a special school which qualified as a psychiatric treatment facility, some distance from his home, CHAMPUS could pay for the care under the Basic Program, if it were more advantageous, financially, to the service member, and then pay for the transportation costs to the school, together with therapeutic visits during the usual Easter and Christmas holidays under the Program for the Handicapped.

In another situation, the purchase of equipment such as a wheel chair could be an authorized benefit under the Program for the Handicapped while the Basic CHAMPUS Program could be absorbing other hospitalization costs.

CHAMPUS officials explain that the only prerequisites are that the medical condition for which treatment was being provided qualified under both programs and there is no duplication of benefits.

Less farmers

The United States farm population is declining, but enrollment at agricultural colleges continues to climb. Four out of five students now come from cities, not farms, to study rural sociology, environmental toxicology, and other subjects to fit them for jobs in the growing farm machinery and chemical industries, National Geographic says.

WOW!

Edy Williams may be very "in" someplaces but there's more of Edy out than in right here. Hopefully she'll stay out of the draft and avoid a cold shoulder.

ENGINEERS INSTALL PERMANENT PARTITIONS

New fitness test

A new physical fitness test developed here at the Infantry School now is being administered at Fort Benning and may soon replace the Physical Combat Proficiency Test (PCPT) in use Army-wide.

The Army Physical Fitness Evaluation (APFE) already is being given to Infantry School students. Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, School commandant, also has approved the APFE for the testing of School faculty and staff beginning this month.

Under VOLAR all major units on Post have the choice of using the APFE, the PCPT or any other fitness test their commander chooses for the testing of their personnel through June.

The APFE currently is being edited for submission to the Department of the Army for approval and Army-wide implementation. It would be administered semi-annually to all male personnel from the time of entering active duty until termination of service. The APFE, which was developed by the Leadership Department's Combatives and Drill Committees consists of a battery of seven sub-tests, each tailored to a particular category of job assignments. Most Fort Benning personnel will take the staff-faculty-student sub-test, designed for personnel who spend much of their time

The Preventive Medicine Division of the Medical Department Activity at Fort Benning is seeking qualified or interested officers and enlisted men to work in the field of ecology on post.

Persons who feel they are qualified or have an interest in such a position are asked to telephone the Preventive Medicine Division, 545-3518.

Pace quickens on partition installation

By Wendell Cochran

Soldiers of the 43rd Engineer Battalion are working at a furious pace to install partitions in post barracks. Some 400 men of the engineer battalion are now occupied with this Modern Volunteer Army project. Two shifts are being used to speed completion.

The goal is to have all men currently living in barracks living in partitioned barracks.

Construction began last Friday on the first set of buildings. Soldiers in some units of the 197th Infantry Brigade, The School Brigade and the 931st Engineer Group are getting the first partitions.

About four days are required to complete each building, depending on the size of the building. Construction is scheduled to begin today or Monday on these buildings: 9006, Medical Activities; 2032, 2034, TSB; 5065, 4653, 197th; 4617, 4603, 4704, 4623, 931st.

When construction is completed, some 3,000 rooms housing some 6,000 men will have been built, according to present plans.

Some 4,000 men will be living in permanently partitioned rooms. Another 2,000 will be living in barracks partitioned with temporary, GSA materials.

Approximately 1,200 men already are living in rooms built of the GSA materials. Some 20 men already had the permanent rooms, constructed as a test of the VOLAR project.

Only permanent-type partitions are being installed at present by the 43rd Engineers, but other GSA partitions will be installed as materials arrive.

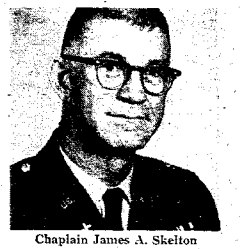
The partitions now being constructed are wooden-framed, gypsum boards that go from floor to ceiling.

The rooms will be painted an ivory color on a Troop Self-Help basis, with the 43rd Engineer Battalion supplying materials.

Branch PX to hold re-opening with prizes for 1st day patrons

A branch of the main post exchange will hold a "grand re-opening" today at 3 p.m.

Prizes—including an electric razor, a camera and two pairs of civilian shoes — will be awarded to lucky first day patrons.



The exchange, located on Wold Avenue next to Theater No. 2, has been undergoing renovation since last January.

The shop was not completely inoperative during the three months of repair, however. A special trailer and "stock room on wheels" was set up adjacent to the exchange to sell basic items provided by the store.

"It is more of a modern facility now, better as far as customer convenience and service is concerned," E. J. Hegner, retail operations manager, said of the exchange's "new look."

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

by Bill King

Blend honey with a little peanut butter to taste. Thin with wine or other liquid and create a delicious glaze for a baked ham.

Because of their hurried exodus from Egypt, ancient Jews had no time to allow their bread to rise. To this day unleavened bread or matoh is eaten at Passover in remembrance.

Fill a peach half, fresh or canned, with orange sherbet and top with a spoonful of orange liqueur for a glamorous and easy dessert.

Using a funnel, fill blown-out eggshells with melted sweet chocolate and let harden in a cool place (but not the refrigerator). When cool, break off the shells and decorate the eggs with names in icing.

Even the best cook sometimes forgets about the roast or overcooks a vegetable. A simple wind-up timer is one of the wisest kitchen investments you can make.

If time is running out and you have guests coming, treat them to a delicious dinner at

82nd to mark Normandy invasion

The World War II veterans of the 82nd Airborne Division are staging a national commemoration, June 4, 5 and 6 in Orange, Mass., of the 27th anniversary of the invasion of Normandy which occuded June 6, 1944.

Special guest of honor for the three-day commemoration will be Madame Alexandre Renaud, wife of the wartime mayor of the town of Sainte-Mere-Eglise, which was the first town liberated in Europe during the Normandy Invasion. Madame Renaud, along with her late husband, and all the people of their village actively assisted the Americans in routing the enemy from their town.

Some 250 Airborne veterans and their wives from all parts of the United States are expected to attend the three-day ceremonies and the Airborne Veterans of World War II have invited all persons who participated in the 1944 invasion of Europe to join them in this commemoration.

The theme of the commemoration ceremonies is that of the "Civilian-Soldier." Most of the men who fought and died during World War II were civilians first and soldiers when their country needed them to protect its freedom.

The three-day commemoration ceremonies will include banquets, parades, sky-diving and a country-style barbeque. Persons wishing to participate in this observation are urged to contact 82nd Abn. Div., 505-C-47 Club, 4818 Riverdale Rd., College Park, Ga. 30337.

Q — I found out from AG that only enlisted members of the Armed Forces can get permissive reassignment. Why can't officers get the same thing, after all they have problems, too?

A — You are exactly right and something has been done about this problem. A DA message 0918092 Feb. 71 states that officers and warrant officers are now eligible for permissive reassignment at no expense t the government. Formerly authorized only for enlisted members, such reassignments must involve pressing personal problems which fall short of meeting the criteria for compassionate reassignment. You might want to check the message for further details.

Q—Why don't main post facilities, such as service clubs and libraries, open before noon on weekends and remain open later in the evenings (perhaps until 11 p.m.) throughout the week. This would give Fort Benning personnel a greater opportunity to enjoy these activities.

A-Said the post Special Services Officer, "It is a simple matter of economics. At our present level of funding our employes cannot exceed a 40-hour work week and a maximum of eight hour day. If these facilities stayed open longer, we would have to pay our personnel overtime. And, right now, we don't have the money to do this."

Q-From what I have seen of the Army's race relations program, the entire effort seems to be toward the black soldier and his needs. What about other minority groups within the confines of the military? All I see are stories and articles on black history, black culture, black soldiers, etc. What about the Mexican-American serviceman? What is being done for him?

A-The basic reason for aiming the race relations program primarily toward the black soldier is that the black soldier forms the largest minority in the Armed Forces. If his problems can be solved, then other solutions will soon follow. However, the Army and the Department of Defense have not forgotten the Mexican-American. In fact, Frank W. Render II, deputy assistant secretary of defense for equal opportunity, had this to say:

"The Mexican-American serviceman is serving not just his community, but his country. Therefore, the various elements and mechanisms of the society which can function to better serve him are obligated to do so. The military departments are inaugurating and expanding existing programs to see to it that all personnel, specifically including Mexican-Americans, are afforded an opportunity to leave the service with more potential and preparation than that with which they entered."

The judge says

Landlord's responsibilities cited

USAIC LEGAL ASSISTANCE OFFICE — No landlord has a duty to redecorate a tenant's apartment just for beauty's sake. But he must do so if the tenant's health and safety are at stake, or risk paying for any harm that results if he does not.

Take Tom Tenant's family: The paint and plaster of their apartment were peeling from the walls and ceiling. Lead poisoning in paint flakes harmed Tom's children. Tom told his landlord about it, but he did nothing. Tom then hired a plasterer and bought some paint and did the job himself. He deducted his costs from his rent and sued his landlord for his own labor.

In court he won. The landlord had notice of the health hazards and had wrongfully failed to do the needed work. The tenant could recover money for his labor. No tenant need wait for a landlord to act when irreparable harm come to him or his family.

Some state laws allow the tenant to do repair work where the premises are unfit after giving the landlord reasonable notice. He can spend up to one month's rent this way and deduct it from the rent due. However, the landlord and tenant may agree to other, terms and in his lease the tenant may have waived his right to the protections of the law.

Courts review such waivers of rights carefully and may refuse to enforce them if they do not meet certain standards.

New hazards have imposed new duties on landlords. In one case, robberies and muggings had plagued tenants in a housing complex, especially in entryways. They complained of these robberies to the landlord.

When one tenant was robbed and beaten, she sued her landlord. The court ruled that the landlord had to pay damages for his negligence in not having the place better lighted and offering security in the areas under his control — walkways, halls, and lobbies.

Landlords of large complexes that take on some responsibilities of a city must also accept other responsibilities. For example, the company that provides the water, utility, and sewage services must be aware of the problems of pollution and other hazards in its activities. Failure to act as a reasonable utility company would impose liability for resulting injuries to a tenant's health and safety.

Further questions concerning this topic or other legal matters should be referred to your lawyer or USAIC Legal Assistance Officer.

Everyone is talking about pay hikes

When grandad was mustering out of the Army after "The War To End All Wars," he was told that jobs would be tough to get and that there was security in the service. Nobody dared use his E-3 pay grade as an incentive to reenlist. The recruiters stressed travel and excitement. The first big pay raise he saw (if he stayed in) didn't happen until 1922 when E-3s began taking home $42 a month. That probably made his son laugh in the retelling.

Then, when dad was leaving the service in 1945 after his WWII duty, the recruiters still weren't doing much crowing about the E-3 pay grade of $66 monthly. They pushed early retirement and a pension of half pay for 20 years service and two-thirds pay for 30 years duty. But dad had a family and he couldn't wait until master sergeant to feed and house them adequately.....

After Korea, recruits were leaving the service in embarrassing numbers. Still, there were many who might have chosen a military career if they could have supported a family in their lower pay grade. By the time 1970 arrived the E-3 was making $180 per month, but when weighed against the American economy it wasn't much better than dad's or granddad's financial problems. However, this history of lower grade pay neglect may end.

New concepts in defense have prompted the President to consider a volunteer force. He passed on his thoughts to Defense Secretary Melvin Laird, who said:

"The most important step to be taken is to provide the funding which the President has requested for the purpose of making military service more attractive and rewarding. Roughly, $1 billion would be used to increase the pay of military personnel, including a 50 per cent increase in basic pay at the entry level.

"The military services are in a poor competitive position compared to civilian professions and occupations which are open to young men entering the job market."

There certainly will be some opposition. However, Assistant Secretary of Defense Roger T. Kelley has stated, ". . . there is nothing inherently indecent about this kind of special incentive nor is there any reason to believe that . . . (it) . . . will have the effect of causing poor men to fight wars. It is purely and simply a legitimate financial incentive device to draw people into what has become and is today an unpopular . . . activity. . . ."

Further, Kelley recently told a news conference that pay increases recommended to the Congress by the Defense Department should be enacted whether they have the effect of producing a volunteer force or not.

His proposal is to provide substantial increases in basic pay rates for first-term members, effective May 1. Under that proposal the E-3 pay jumps from $160.90 per month to $244.20. All four lower pay grades would receive a substantial increase.

When Kelley spoke of first termers he also included officers in the grades O-1, and O-2, who would receive pay increases of 10 and 9 per cent, respectively, under the proposal.

Other pay incentives proposed are increased quarters allowances for enlisted members, E-1 to E-4, ranging up to $45 a month and a new concept of enlistment bonuses aimed primarily at those in combat arms.

Many new changes in military life are happening right now and it is comforting to know that someone upstairs is aware of what many civilians seem to have forgotten. As Kelley says, "Military people are people . . ." (AFPS Editorial)

IOAC 7-71 graduates 206 officers

Capt. Douglas J. Richardson Jr. was the distinguished graduate and Marshall award winner of Infantry Officer Advanced Course (IOAC) Class 7-71 which graduated 206 men in ceremonies March 23 at Marshall Auditorium, Infantry Hall.

Guest speaker at the graduation was Maj. Gen. William S. Coleman, commanding general, U. S. Army Training Center, Infantry, Fort Jackson, S. C.

For his achievement Richardson received a letter of commendation signed by Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, commandant of the Infantry School, and a "Five-Star Doughboy Statuette."

The distinguished allied graduate was Maj. Rudolf L. Binder from Switzerland. Binder received a letter of commendation signed by the commandant which will be forwarded to his nation's military attache in Washington, D. C., for inclusion in his official records.

The class was assigned to the 72nd Co., 4th Bn., 58th Bn., TSB.

Certain groups get exchange privileges

WASHINGTON (ANF) — The Department of Defense has authorized the extension of post exchange and commissary privileges to certain veterans, husbands and National Guardsmen.

Honorably discharged veterans with a 100 per cent service-connected disability and their dependents now qualify for all exchange and commissary privileges, except for purchase of uniform articles.

Upon the death of the veteran, his widow retains commissary rights and, along with her dependents, retains post exchange privileges. When the widow remarries she and her dependents lose all commissary and post exchange privileges.

Husbands of active or retired female members of the service are now entitled to unlimited exchange and commissary agent privileges, except for uniform articles.

During domestic emergency duty, members of the National Guard are now entitled to patronize exchange outlets.

AMERICAN GOODWILL AMBASSADOR
HOPE Brings Treatment And Teaching To People In Need

Fund Drive anticipates increased contributions

As Fort Benning rounds out its second week in the International Service and National Health Agencies Fund Drive, campaign chairman, James Schoonover, says contributions to this point are relatively light. But, said Schoonover, "We expect the turn-in to pick up after Easter."

Contributions received through the fund drive will benefit eleven voluntary associations forming the National Health Agencies, and organizations comprising the International Service Agencies. Those agencies include the American-Korean Foundation, the Planned Parenthood World Population, CARE, and Project HOPE.

To millions in Asia, Africa and Latin America, HOPE's work has carried with it the message that disease can be cured; that medical knowledge can prevent sickness and death; that Americans have compassion and want to help.

Health is basic to people in any society, if they are to provide for themselves, much less contribute to their society, or plan for the future.

The Project's best known symbol is the white hospital ship S.S. HOPE. Since 1960 this floating medical center has brought its cargo of teaching and treatment help to people on four continents. But just as importantly, land-based programs continue in countries the ship visits, strengthening the ship's medical impact, as long as they can contribute to what is needed. And now HOPE is at home too, helping Mexican - Americans and Navajo Indians overcome their own health problems.

HOPE doesn't seek only to treat the sick or itself solve all the tremendous health problems—it couldn't. And the effects would be temporary. But HOPE does help provide the tools which make lasting solutions possible — knowledge and training.

When invited to a country HOPE works with local medical and govern-ment authorities. HOPE's teaching and treatment efforts are tailored to have maximum impact through the development of a comprehensive health - education program. Emphasis on specific areas, such as dentistry, public health, population planning, etc., are determined by the desires and needs of the host nation.

The HOPE's teaching staff works with ... demonstrates ... passes on knowledge to local physicians, surgeons, dentists, health officers, sanitation officials, nurses, technologists, midwives—all members of the host country's medical community. And the treatment and other services involved have benefited more than three million.

Those trained return to their own-communities and institutions. They begin to use HOPE's knowledge—solving their own health problems, teaching ... treating ... helping others ... more and more benefit.

Through helping people the world over HOPE has developed a valuable fund of working knowledge — methods of effective medical self - help assistance, adaptable to specific needs and conditions, that others could follow.

America is already benefiting from this experience. HOPE has begun programs in the Mexican - American community of Larado, Texas, and on the Navajo reservation at Ganado, Arizona. Others are planned. Their success will demonstrate new systems of health-care delivery.

Passover observance begins today

By Jeff Steinberg

Passover, the greatest days and most ancient of all the Jewish festivals will be celebrated by Jews all over the world beginning at sundown today.

It is observed for seven days by Reform Jews, and for eight days by Conservative and Orthodox Jews, according to Chaplain (Capt.) Lawrence J. Goldmark, Jewish Chaplain at Fort Benning.

Post Passover services will be held at the Fort Benning Jewish Center, Building 2622, on the following days: April 10 at 9:30 a.m.; April 11 at 9:30 a.m.; April 16 at 9:30 a.m. and 8 p.m.; and April 17 at 9:30 a.m. For further information call the Jewish Center at 545-7815.

For more than two thousand years Passover (Pesach) has been considered by Jews everyhwere to be the great holiday, the festival of redemption. It is also the Jewish holiday which is richest in symbolism. No other holiday in the Jewish calendar abounds in so many ancient and meaningful ritualistic objects, foods, and ceremonies, all of which are intimately bound up with the nomadic origins of the Jewish people and their later development as a people who, very early in human history, transformed the ancient nature festival into holidays with deep moral and religious significance.

Passover was originally a spring festival at the dawn of history when Jews were still nomadic shepherds in the wilderness. As time went by, however, it became an historic and national holiday, commemorating the deliverance of the Jewish people from their bondage in Egypt. For Jews today it mirrors a hope for freedom and equality for all mankind.

Jews everywhere celebrated Passover with a ceremonial meal called the "Seder" (which means "Order of Service") which takes place in most homes and in some synagogues. During the Seder the story of the Exodus is recited, songs and ceremonial prayers are performed, and the symbolic foods of Passover are eaten. The most important Passover food is "Matzot," unleavened bread, called by Jews the "bread of Affliction". It is unleavened as a reminder of the haste with which the Jewish people fled from Egypt (there was no time to allow the bread to rise). Its thinness, too, is a reminder of the meagerness of the fare of the dispossessed the poor, and the outcasts of society.

During the ceremony Jews also eat "bitter herbs," which recall the bitterness of the years of oppression under Pharaoh. A sprig of parsley on the table is a survival of the prehistoric days when Passover was a festival of spring. A roasted shankbone serves as an emblem of the paschal lamb, and the "charoset," a mixture of apples, nuts, raisins, cinnamon and wine is a symbol of the mortar from which the Israelites made bricks for the Egyptian Pharaohs during their slavery.

Each person present must drink four cups of wine; the wine is intended to recall the four divine promises of redemption made by God to the children of Israel, and to remind Jews that, despite the bitterness of exile, there is sweetness in the word of God and His teachings.

The Passover Seder ceremony follows a special Hebrew prayerbook, the "Haggadah," which retells the story of the Exodus in prayer, song and parable. Many of the beautifully illuminated Haggadahs in use today by modern Jews date back to the Middle Ages.

The ceremony is one which strongly emphasizes the participation of young children in Jewish ceremonial and communal life, for it is the youngest child who asks the Four Questions, the answers to which explain the difference between Passover night and all other nights and the meaning of this holiday for the Jewish people.

The Seder has survived in the Jewish home through every exigency of history. It was practiced in secret by the Marranos of Spain during the Inquisition, despite the dangerousness of this observance, and it persists down to the present as an emblem and promise of freedom.

New post tours start for ROTC

By Wendell Cochran

More than 100 Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) cadets from the 3rd Army area will visit Fort Benning next week. The tour is part of a continuing Infantry-ROTC recruiting program being conducted by the Infantry School.

But this tour—sponsored in part by the Modern Volunteer Army program now under way on post—is different in many respects from the typical ROTC cadet tour.

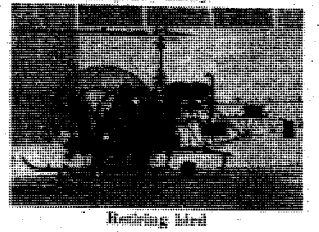
First, instead of the cadets' being moved as a group from place to place, for this tour the group is being divided into three and four-man teams, each with a escort officer.

This approach makes the visit into some 25 separate tours—each with its own itinerary. The students are being grouped with cadets from their school.

Also, instead of the cadets participating in training they may receive after being commissioned as Infantry lieutenants, cadets on this tour will observe some training and visit Infantry lieutenants in various positions around post.

The tour is scheduled to last from Thursday afternoon until Saturday afternoon. The cadets will be billeted on post.

Escort officers for the tour are captains and majors selected from Infantry Officer Advanced Course students. When possible, cadets will be matched with escort officers who are ROTC graduates from the same school.



VOLAR offers more weekend buses

The VOLAR program of free, off-post weekend bus transportation for military personnel will be expanded April 17 to include Callaway Gardens and Panama City.

Reservations must be made with the Recreation Branch by calling 545-7414-5641 each Wednesday before departure. Charter buses will depart from the parking lot of the National Bank of Fort Benning.

Buses will depart Fort Benning on Saturdays for Panama City at 8 a.m., Atlanta at 9 a.m., Callaway Gardens at 10 a.m., and again for Callaway Gardens at 11 a.m. on Sundays.

Pick-up time for buses returning to Fort Benning on Sundays from Panama City will be 2 p.m., Atlanta at 3 p.m., Callaway Gardens at 5 p.m., and also from Callaway Gardens at 5 p.m. on Saturdays.

Fort Benning presented an observation helicopter, OH-13E, to the Aviation Museum at Ft. Rucker, Ala., last Wednesday. The aircraft, built in 1953 by Bell Helicopters of Ft. Worth, Tex., was the oldest helicopter at Fort Benning. Maj. Myrils Roach Jr., commander of the 931st Engineer Aviation Platoon, said, "with 7,000 hours it is probably one of the first OH-13's ever built." At Fort Benning the helicopter was used for proficiency flying and ground duty. The OH-13 was originally designed for fire support and reconnaissance by fire missions, said Roach. It has been replaced in the Army by the LOH 06-A, one of which served as an escort helicopter for the trip to Ft. Rucker. The aircraft's final flight was piloted by CW2 Daniel A. Wolverton, an instructor pilot with the 931st.

Touching up

A portion of Building 83 is being renovated for use as a Welcome Center to be run by the Army Community Services. The welcome center is a Modern Volunteer Army action. Persons wishing to volunteer for duty in the center should call 545-1633 or 545-1233.

Benning foxhole painter ends career

By Mark Larsen

Forty years of painting "everything from flagpoles to foxholes" at Fort Benning recently came to an end for Odis J. Webster.

At his retirement ceremony April 2, the former foreman of the Signs and Painting Unit of the Utilities Engineering Department recalled painting a foxhole at one time to provide better contrast for a photograph of the soldier in the foxhole.

Webster reminisced at the ceremony about the many changes at Fort Benning since 1931, when roads were not paved, deliveries were made in a horse-drawn buckboard, and signs were of wood.

"We have run out of colors to represent the various facilities on color-coded signs," the Madison County, Ala., native said.

The color-coded signs, Webster explained, are a Modern Volunteer Army project to assist post commuters in locating facilities on post.

Citing the use of technological improvements, Webster said that the frequency of maintenance of signs has been reduced. "Some signs now last up to five years," Webster said.

Recognizing Webster's contributions to Fort Benning, Lt. Col. Charles R. Orr, deputy director of the Utilities Engineering Department, said that "the appearance of buildings and signs at Fort Benning has greatly improved owing to Webster's energy and efforts."

Webster leaves Fort Benning with "mixed emotions and sad feelings about leaving so many friends." Nevertheless, he is "proud of his contributions" and has "enjoyed working" with each of the 23 commands here.

Webster and his wife, Goldie, will continue to live in Columbus.

Texas A&M alumni to meet

Former students of Texas A and M University who are in this area will muster April 21 to mark the passing of comrades and honor Texans who won independence at San Jacinto.

Starting at 7 p.m., the meeting will be held in the Fort Benning Main Officers Club.

The Aggie muster began in 1903 when a 300-member corps of cadets at that time paid homage to the Texans who fought for independence in 1836. Musters have been held since, wherever A and M alumni and former students find themselves on that day. More than 500 musters will be held around the world this year.

For information and reservations, call Col. Woodrow, H. Myers, muster chairman, at 545-1166 or 545-2307.

Swimming instructors are sought

"The American Red Cross is seeking qualified swimming instructors to teach military personnel and dependents swimming classes this summer.

A Water Safety Instructors Course will be offered for a period from April 19 through May 7 at the Briant Wells Pool. Classes will be conducted from 8 to 10 a.m., five days a week.

Military personnel or dependents who are 18 years of age and hold a current Senior Life Saving Certificate, or former water safety instructors whose appointments have lapsed through inactivity are eligible.

Those interested should contact the Field Director's Office, American Red Cross, or phone 545-2122, 2123, or 2124.

New glue bows in stamp books

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — A humidity resistant adhesive for postage stamp books that eliminates the separator tissues is being tested, the U.S. Postal Service said.

The gum on the stamps has a dull finish, instead of the conventional gloss.

The books contain 32 six-cent stamps and eight one-cent stamps, and sell for $2. A message inviting comments from users appears on the inside of the front cover.

Five service wives vie for Military Wife of the Year

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Five outstanding wives will represent the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard and Air Force in competition for the title of Military Wife of the Year, May 10 in Washington, D. C.

The naming of the finalists who have contributed the most to their military and civilian communities ends a year long search from among 1,400,000 wives at service bases throughout the world. Each service conducted its own competition. The decision as to who will be the Military Wife of the Year will be made by a panel of American women under the auspices of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

The Army Wife of the Year is Mrs. Billie Reeves Willett, wife of CWO Paul Emerson Willett, currently stationed at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo. She attended Kansas University and has just completed a childrens book, the royalties from which have been donated to the Save The Children program. Mrs. Willett has spent 26 years in Girl Scout work and was chairman of 6,000 volunteers for the 1970 summer program of First Step. She is the sponsor of three American-Indian children, taught English at Tohoka University in Sendai, Japan as a People-to-People volunteer and is a member of the National Association of Recreational Therapists and the National Wildlife Society. She is currently president of the Officers Wives Club at Fort Leonard Wood.

Representing the Navy, Mrs. Jeanette Squires is the wife of Personnelman First Class, James W. Squires, Lowry AFB, Colo. She has worked in the Red Cross and the Navy Relief Society and ran a cleanup campaign in Lansing, Mich., that was the most successful community action program ever experienced in that city. Her volunteer work on behalf of the hospital ship S.S. Hope prompted Congressman Charles E. Chamberlain to introduce House Joint Resolution 1346 authorizing recognition of her efforts in spreading America's goodwill.

Barbara G. Sullivan is the Marine Corps selection. With her husband, Lt. Col. Thomas Lloyd Sullivan, she lives at Camp Pendleton, Calif. A graduate of the College of Notre Dame and Towson State Teachers College in Maryland, Mrs. Sullivan is the mother of five youngsters. Following a teaching career she became interested in volunteer work in Scouts, Day Care nursery center and religious education programs. She founded a program known as CCD (Confraternity of Christian Doctrine) in communities near Camp Pendleton where classes are taught in the home by volunteers. Mayor Joseph Alioto of San Francisco was one of her many sponsors in the competition.

The Coast Guard Wife of the Year is Mrs. Hilde Selin, wife of Capt. Carl W. Selin stationed at the Coast Guard Academy in Groton, Conn. Mrs. Selin comes from Chicago, Illinois and was a music major at Northwestern University. While stationed in Finland, Mrs. Selin sang and organized folk singing societies for American and Finish music and has reversed the process in this country, teaching Finnish folk music to American groups. She has worked with hospitalized patients and on-the-air television as a music therapist as well as giving numerous volunteer concerts in the military and civilian communities.

The Air Force wife is Madeline Berkenpas, whose husband Col. Nephi Berkenpas, is assigned to McClelland AFB, Calif. Mrs. Berkenpas is a graduate of the University of Arizona. She is the mother of three children. One of them, Richard, suffers from muscular dystrophy although he is a successful sophomore at American River College. Mrs. Berkenpas has for many years been active as a member of the Board of Directors of the Muscular Dystrophy Association. Her interest in young people surfaced in her work as president of the Sacramento "Youth Life Line" — a hotline telephone service for young people with troubles to talk over. Out of the "Youth Life Line" she helped to form the Sacramento Drug Information Exchange, where she now serves as membership and public relations chairman. She is District Chairman of the Status of Women Committee of the California Federation of Womens Clubs, and serves in the Sacramento Symphony League. Mrs. Berkenpas was the 1969 Air Force finalist in the Military Wife of the Year competition.

Following the selection of the Military Wife of the Year on May 16, when Art Linkletter, entertainment personalities and the top leaders — both military and civilian — of the Department of Defense will take part, the winner will tour U. S. cities and military bases. She will attend the annual convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs in Pittsburgh, Pa., June 6 through 10.

Gold Star dinner planned

The Chattahoochee Valley Chapter of Gold Star Wives will hold their monthly dinner meeting at the Heritage House on 4th Avenue in Columbus April 14, at 7 p.m.

This will be the last meeting prior to the region convention which will be held in Albany, Ga., over the weekend of April 16, and all members are urged to attend. Chapter president, Mrs. Gerard M. Wynn, reminds her officers and committee chairman that she will need reports from their respective committees in order to compile the chapter report for turn-in at the region and at the National Convention which will be held in San Diego, Calif., during the month of July.

All windows of military servicemen who died while in service to this country are invited to participate in the activities of Gold Star Wives. Further information may be obtained by calling Mrs. Wynn at 687-4358.

Romanesque theme prevails at Patriot 'Ides of March' party

By Bob Wheatley

The officers and wives of the 1st Bn. (Mech), 58th Inf., "Patriots" celebrated an "Ides of March" party recently at Kiogs Pond Lodge.

Roman columns were decked with hanging grapes and lanterns as the lodge took on a Romanesque appearance. The banquet area consisted of low tables with cushions for seats. Gracing the tables were numerous candles, wine goblets, Roman urns, and large trays of fresh fruit. The surrounding area added a touch to the affair as portraits of Roman senators and gladiators looked down on all the events, and a Roman statue guarded the door.

The "Patriot" officers and wives were dressed in Roman splendor as soldiers, statesmen, and Patrician ladies. While soft music filled the room, the guests feasted upon such delicacies as venison and fried chicken.

The guests of honor were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Morasz. Mr. Morast is President of Trust Company of Columbus.

At the conclusion of the introductions, the evening's entertainment began.

Midnight classes held for first time at CC

Students at Columbus College are "burning the midnight oil" for late-hour study.

Two classes, in music appreciation and political science, meet from midnight to 2 a.m. this quarter.

This is the first time that an institution in the University System of Georgia has offered, and held, classes late at night.

"On the basis of the demonstration of interest on the part of the students for this pilot project, we will continue the scheduling of these classes," Dr. John E. Anderson, dean of the college, has announced.

Dr. John H. Anderson, division head of fine arts who teaches the music appreciation class of 13 people, said of his students, "They seem to be interested in this class. It started off better than most of them do."

Dr. Anderson enjoys his late-night class because he says there are no outside noises and he can continue the class without interruption.

Although he plays music during the course, Dr. Anderson says that no one has fallen asleep. "They all seem wide awake, ready to do some work," he maintains.

The other midnight instructor, Monroe Smith, assistant professor of political science, encountered the same enthusiasm and determination in his class.

"I am very pleased with the students," he said. "I anticipate no problem at all. The students who are there come after work, or they work all day and come at this time."

Mr. Smith cooducts this class with a regular lecture followed by a group discussion. Since the class first begin on March 23, it has more than doubled in size. There are 11 students enrolled for the class.

Two students joined his class when a scheduled English class failed to meet at midnight because not enough students registered for it.

Vivian Hill, a senior who is enrolled as a full-time student at the college even though she also works full-time, takes one course during her lunch hour and two at night. "That midnight class fits in just fine for me," she says.

Parker honored graduate

2nd Lt. John G. Parker, Durham, N. C., was honored as the distinguished graduate and the academic graduate of the Infantry Officer Candidate School Class 10-71 in ceremonies April 1 at Marshall Auditorium, Infantry Hall. The leadership graduate was 2nd Lt. Robert C. Morgan, Fullerton, Calif.

Col. Richard S. Fye, chief of the Combat Support Group, Brigade and Battalion Operations Department, was the guest speaker to the 73 graduates.

Parker received a letter of commendation signed by Brig. Gen. John T. Carley, assistant commandant of the Infantry School, an engraved "Follow Me" plaque, an engraved "Follow Me" statuette and an engraved Association of the United States Army (AUSA) plaque.

Parker and Morgan accepted their commissions in the Infantry.

Arrival of spring recognized during post socials

Academic Staff

The Tea Room of Kirven's Department Store was the scene recently for a luncheon and a spring fashion show held by the Academic Staff Wives of the Infantry School.

A roast beef buffet was served after a social hour. Hostesses for the event were Mrs. John E. Tyler, the ladies of Operations and Logistics Dept., Mrs. Richard B. Stoltz and the ladies of the Office of the Staff Surgeon.

Mrs. Mary Charles Gunn, fashion coordinator for the store, presented the fashion show.

Mrs. John T. Carley, wife of the assistant commandant, USAIS, gave a short talk and welcomed the honored guest, Mrs. Orwin C. Talbott, wife of the commanding general.

Guests included Mrs. David Ward, Mrs. William Cargo, Mrs. James McClain, Mrs. Jerry Craft, Mrs. Ray Clark and Mrs. Richard Wysong.

Mrs. Kendrick B. Barlow Jr., wife of the deputy assistant commandant, was welcomed as a new member. Other new members included Mrs. Gammon Nesbitt, Mrs. Joseph S. Robinson, Mrs. Robert M. Wyer, Mrs. Charles B. Utermahleu, Mrs. Thomas S. Mayes.

Mrs. Don Hampton, Mrs. Ronald L. Coleman, Mrs. Dale Lloyd, Mrs. Ernest T. Hirata, Mrs. Robert Bossell, Mrs. Michael Barnett, and Mrs. Fred Guntsek.

Farewell was said to Mrs. Robert I. Snider.

NRI-ROTC

Non-resident Instruction-ROTC Affairs Department officers and senior civilians and their wives celebrated the arrival of spring March 27 with an informal "Hail and Farewell" at Victory Lodge. Volleyball, frisbee, darts, and conversation sharpened appetites for a buffet supper followed by dancing.

Colonel William R. Guthrie, department director, welcomed Capt. and Mrs. Philip Richey, Capt. Jon B. Nolan, and Capt. and Mrs. George R. Cox. Farewells were said to 2nd Lt. and Mrs. Paul Sultz and 2nd Lt. and Mrs. Kenneth Bray. Sultz and Bray will depart Fort Benning in May to attend the U.S. Army Jungle Warfare Training School in Panama and assignment in Vietnam.

Special department guests for the evening were Lt. Col. and Mrs. Richard Dawnay. Col. Dawnay is the new British liaison officer to the U.S. Army Infantry Center.

Patriots

The wives of the 1st Bn. (Mech.), 58th Inf. "Patriots" recently enjoyed a morning tea in the battalion conference room.

Originally an NCO wives affair, the tea was expanded to include the wives of all the soldiers in the battalion. The expansion was in keeping with the battalion commaoder, Lt. Col. Stephen R. Pawlik's new program of "Individual Awareness" within the battalion "family."

Each month, the "Patriot" wives will socialize over coffee and buns, and discuss any upcoming social events, problems, or just plain "girl-talk."

Mrs. James Gallagher, wife of the Bn. CSM, was hostess to the 20 wives attending the March tea.

Civil Service may grant cost of living increase

The U.S. Civil Service Commission has determined that since the Consumer Price Index of 119.2 for January 1971 exceeds the adjusted index of 115.7 for May 1970 by at least 3 per cent, the new CPI is sufficient to set in motion the sequence which could lead to a cost of living increase for civil service annuitants.

If the CPI remains at 119.2 or higher for the months of February and March 1971, annuities will be increased by at least 4 per cent beginning June 1. If the increase occurs it will be reflected in the July 1 checks of annuitants whose annuity commencing date is on or before June 1, 1971.

The exact amount of annuity increase will be based on the highest percentage increase over the base month (May 1970—115.7) reached during a consecutive three-month period plus 1 per cent authorized by law in October, 1969.

Under a circular of the Office of Management and Budget issued last year, 1967 was declared the standard reference base period for general-purpose index numbers prepared by Federal agencies. Under this new base period the CPI reached 119.2 in January 1971. Conversion of the old base month to the new 1967 base resulted in an index of 115.7 for May 1970.

There is a sub-test for Basic, AIT and CST trainees, known as the Basic Tests, and a sub-test for combat units. An indoor test has been designed for inclement weather situations.

There are special tests for Ranger and Airborne qualification, the latter unchanged from the old Airborne test. Finally, there will be a sub-test for personnel over 40 who wish to take, although they are not required to.

Continental Army Command already has approved the Basic Test and the inclement weather test for use at all Army Training Centers in the near future.

The scoring tables used for the tests were developed by feeding the results of field and confirmation testing by more than 15,000 soldiers into a computer.

The tables are adjusted by age group within each sub-test. Previously the test had been aimed at personnel in the 26 - 30 age group. Now, with the age group adjustment on the scoring tables, the younger soldiers will have to do a little better to achieve the same score as an older man.

For example, personnel in the 17-25 age group taking the staff-faculty sub-test have to run the mile in 8:20 or less to even pass, and in 6:02 to earn 100 points. Personnel in the 36-39 age group, taking the same test, have 8:44 in which to run the mile, and will earn 100 points with a 6:20 effort.

The man in the 17-24 age group taking the staff-faculty test, who ran the mile in 6:02 and wishes to gain a maximum score on the rest of the test, must complete 80 rungs on the horizonal ladder, do 51 push-ups in one minute and 48 sit-ups in one minute, and complete the run-doge-and jump in 20.5 seconds.

Polar Bear group takes diver course in Florida

As part of the "adventure training" concept of the Modern Volunteer Army, 29 soldiers from the 197th Infantry Brigade took the plunge into some Naval training.

The group, all from the Army's largest battalion, the 5th Bn., 31st Inf. (Polar Bears), participated in a four-day course at the Underwater Swimmers School at the U. S. Naval Base in Key West, Fla.

The course hardly qualified them as expert underwater swimmers, however. The actual course is four weeks long and requires extensive knowledge and conditioning in order to be a good diver.

The men were not allowed to wear air tanks until the final day. Even then, the 84 pounds of equipment was worn in a swimming pool, not in the ocean.

The course also included classes on environmental hazards, an introduction to physics and classes on tides and currents.

Prerequisites for the course were top physical conditioning and a good swimming background. According to the instructors at the Key West Naval Base, at least half of the group of Polar Bears showed great potential for becoming expert divers.

Future plans for the 31st Inf. include sending a platoon through Airborne training and Ranger Training; a company through Cold Weather School at Ft. Richardson, Alaska; through Desert School at White Sands, N. M.; through Jungle Warfare School in Panama; mountain climbing at Dahlonega, Ga., and hiking up the Appalachian Trail.

War College students study School training

Three students from the U.S. Army War College at Carlisle Barracks, Carlisle, Pa., recently conducted a study in the aspects of military leadership at Fort Benning's Infantry School.

The students, Lt. Col.'s Joe Kaster, Ted Kanamine and Iules Fulwyler, conducted group studies of Infantry Officer Advance Course, Infantry Officer Basic Course, Officer Candidate School and Non-commissioned Officer Candidate students.

The study, which is in conjunction with similar studies at 12 other Army installations around the country, is designed to determine the leadership requirements of the Modern Volunteer Army (MVA) during the 1970's.

Through questionaires and personal interviews, the War College students are able to document the existing role of leadership in the Army and identify possible areas of improvement under the MVA.

When the studies are completed, the results will be compiled and analyzed at the War College. The projected findings will be used by the Department of the Army in selecting areas of improvement under MVA.

Bonds may be stolen or burned but they're 'indestructable'

We are warned not to fold, spindle or mutilate those computer-punched cards that we handle almost everyday. There's one kind of card, however, that is "indestructible" — thanks to the Bureau of the Public Debt of the Department of the Treasury.

It is the U. S. Savings Bond, which can rise "as the phoenix, from the ashes" — probably in even better shape than the fabled bird. Although the original punched card (or early paper Bonds) may have disappared forever, the Bond owner continues to earn interest. His replacement Bonds will carry the same issue dates as the originals.

The reference to ashes isn't far-fetched. Thousands of Americans have lost their possessions "in fires, with little chance of recovery, except for the Savings Bonds they owned.

The incidents range from the case of a naval officer whose ship was gutted at Pearl Harbor, to another person whose Bonds were badly burned atop a dresser, when perfume nearby ignited.

Bonds also have been burned by accidental spills of various acids and of alkalis such as caustic soda. They have been lost in floods, hurricanes and tornadoes.

During times of widespread disaster, the Treasury hastens the replacement of lost Bonds and waives the short holding period for redemption of new Bonds.

In another bizarre mishap, several Bonds became coated with pitch-black ink. The ink completely covered the printing, but the punch holes remained, permitting immediate identification of the Bonds and their rapid replacement.

Children were the culprits — or innovators — in the mutilation of Bonds. When white paper or color books apparently were unavailable, some fledgling artists applied their crayons and creativity to a few handy Savings Bonds. Treasury representatives didn't accept the new designs, but they did exchange them for new Bonds.

Owners also can recover their savings in stolen Bonds — unlike most other forms of security — without charge. The thieves have to contend with the Secret Service.

Behind the Savings Bonds reputation for "indestructibility" is the staff of the Bureau of the Public Debt in Chicago and Parkersburg, W. Va. Staff members, while accepting credit for handling Bond claims efficiently and courteously, point out that many supposedly lost Bonds turn up within two months of their reported absence. They suggest thoroughly checking the area where the Bonds were kept, before making a claim.

One man's missing Bonds later were found in a block of ice in the family freezer. How they became "frozen assets" remains a mystery.

The Public Debt people recommend keeping Bonds in a secure place, such as a safe deposit box. In another location, maintain a list of the Bonds, including serial number, denomination, and dates issued.

To make a claim, write The Department of the Treasury, Bureau of the Public Debt, Division of Loans and Currency Branch, 536 S. Clark St., Chicago, Ill. 60605. Be sure to provide as much information as possible about the lost, stolen, damaged or destroyed Bonds.

Fire sweeps Baker High auditorium

Fire destroyed part of the Baker High School auditorium in Columbus last Wednesday.

Six patrolmen from the 988th Military Police Co., 93istEngineer Group, Sgt. Paul Newton, Sp4 Robert A. Harvey, Sp4 Larry B. Clopton, Sp4 Carl L. Fuller, Sp4 Ronald D. White and PFC George W. Daniels directed traffic on Victory Drive and monitored the loading of military buses for the evacuation of the 400 student dependents.

The Fort Benning Fire Department dispatched one fire engine to the Headquarters Station downtown and one to Columbus Station 7. Both engines were placed in a standby status.

An exhibit demonstrating the construction of a soapbox racer won a blue ribbon for Cub Scout Pack 27, sponsored by the 67th Maint. Bn., 93ist Engr. Gp., at the recent Scout Skill-O-Rama held in Columbus.

The exhibit also garnered three other awards for the pack. Cub Chuck Hatfield's pine wood derby racer was awarded the grand prize as the best looking racer in the entire Chattahoochee Council as well as another trophy for being the best looking in the pack.

Cub Scout Sidler, also of Pack 27, took second place honors in the Fort Benning District for his race car.

Hospitality House welcomes newcomers

ACS takes perplexities out of Fort Benning move

(EDTOR'S NOTE: This is the final article in a three-part series describing the services of the Army Community Service. This week's article deals with the administrative services of ACS.)

By Les Hauser

Perhaps the least recognized and yet most essential service provided by Army Community Service volunteers is in the form of administrative assistance. A force of 20 ACS volunteers work a minimum of one morning or afternoon per week to accomplish the vast amount of secretarial duties found in the ACS operation.

They may type correspondence, address envelopes, answer telephones or man the reception desk. But regardless of their job, their reliable service adds immeasurably to the ability of ACS to reach all Army families with their services.

ACS reception desk volunteers often find themselves welcoming new families on post. They recognize the inevitable quandary that an Army family goes through the first few days of a new assignment. So, to make the transition to Fort Benning a little more organized, ACS provides an information packet which is distributed to all newly arrived families on post.

The packet answers many questions and provides an outline of Fort Benning facilities and services and also general information on the Columbus-Phenix City area.

In conjunction with ACS's welcome services, the Hospitality House, another ACS service, provides temporary loan of household items to Army families awaiting the arrival of their own personal possessions. Prior to the establishment of such a service, Army families were forced to duplicate such household items as dishes, linens, cooking utensils, etc., while waiting for their own to arrive.

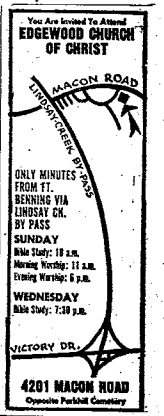
Now under the Hospitality House service they can borrow these items and avoid the unnecessary expense of purchasing a duplicate set. In addition to the loan closet, the Hospitality House cottage provides a resting place for travel weary families at the end of their journey. There are refreshments, information packets and a copy of the daily newspaper to provide help in finding adequate off-post housing.

A large part of the effectiveness of ACS depends on the publicity it is given and the number of soldiers and their families who are aware of its services. To accomplish this goal ACS has a public relations committee which is responsible for bringing the word of the many ACS services to the Army family.

Committee volunteers compile and distribute more than 800 copies of their monthly ACS newsletter to post families. The newsletter includes schedules of ACS activities and other information of general interest to Fort Benning families.

In addition to the newsletter, committee volunteers prepare items of information which are published in the Fort Benning Daily Bulletin, Family Quarters Bulletin and The Bayonet. A number of volunteers also visit different post wives' groups and give orientations in ACS services and the ACS volunteer program.

Emergency, social and administrative services are all areas in which ACS lends a helping hand. Maj. Donald Myles, ACS officer at Fort Benning, feels the composite services of ACS help to provide a community spirit among Army families.



"The personalized attention provided by the world-wide network of ACS center, reflects the Army's interest in improving and strengthening the quality of life among Army families."

In this respect, the goal of the Modern Volunteer Army is not new. ACS has been striving for years to remove the irritants of Army life and establish meaningful service programs to serve the Army family.

'Dial Dope' added to post drug program

The Dial Drug program which began here approximately seven months ago has generated so much response and queries about drugs that the Post Provost Marshall's office has announced a new service similar to Dial Drug called Dial Dope (545-3675).

Since inception, Dial Drug has received more than 40,000 calls with callers receiving tape recorded messages outlining the characteristics and effects of different drugs and the dangers of experimenting with these drugs. A different message is heard every day covering a different drug.

The Dial Dope program will be basically the same service offered under Dial Drug and possibly will include statements from former drug users describing their own experiences with drugs.

Each message will be concluded with the phone number of the Provost Marshal's Drug Abuse Team, 545-2866. If any additional information is desired about drugs or if an individual wishes to receive help with a drug problem he calls their number.

Handicapped employe honored by government

WASHINGTON (ANF) — A civilian electronics engineer employed by the U.S. Army has been named the outstanding handicapped federal employe of the year.

Miss Alice Chancellor, who works at the Army Electronic Proving Ground at Ft. Huachuca, Ariz., was selected as the Army's handicapped employe of the year, then won the federal title in competition against the top employes of nine other government services.

As a result of a childhood accident, Miss Chancellor contracted a blood infection which later caused blindness in one eye, stiffness in many of her joints and amputation of both legs.

In spite of these handicaps, Miss Chancellor graduated with a bachelor of science degree from the University of Arizona. She drives herself to and from work daily in a specially-equipped car, keeps house and maintains a garden which she tends in a wheelchair she's modified for that purpose.

Briefed on sniper

Former School official briefed on Inf. Agency

Lt. Gen. John Norton, commanding general, Combat Developments Command, Ft. Belvoir, Va., and former assistant commandant of the Infantry School, visited Fort Benning last week for a series of briefings and presentations by the School and the Infantry Agency.

An official dinner at the Supper Club on April 1 ended the general's business on post.

Gen. Norton was the School's assistant commandant from May 1963 to February 1965, when he was assigned to the Republic of Vietnam.

Others in the visiting party were Brig. Gen. David S. Henderson, commanding general, Combat Developments Command Institute of Hand Combat; Brig. Gen. Albert G. Hume, commanding general, Combat Developments Command Combat Arms Group; Brig. Gen. E. F. Gudgel, commanding general, Combat Support Group, Combat Developments Command; and Col. H. C. Holt, comptroller, Combat Developments Command, and retary wing (helicopters) aircraft.

The Infantry Agency at Fort Benning is one of four Combat Developments Agencies of the Combat Arms Group at Ft. Leavenworth, Kans., a subordinate command of the Combat Developments Command.

The Agency prepares and reviews, studies, plans, and programs; establishes materiel developmental objectives and requirements; monitors research and developmental programs and actions related to the timely completion and availability of results to Infantry units; and prepares Infantry doctrinal field manuals and tables of organization and equipment for infantry (to include airborne, mechanized, light and airmobile) units from squad to brigade level.

Federal employes get change in 'open season'

The 10-year-old policy of the U. S. Civil Service Commission to hold a health benefits "open season" at least once every 3 years is about to be changed to an open season once each year. The change in policy follows a recently completed 6-month study of alternatives to the current policy.

In announcing the change Chairman Robert E. Hampton of the Civil Service Commission said he believes that the new policy will "be more responsive to our employes' wishes yet preserve the financial integrity of the health benefits program, which can be seriously impaired if there is nothing to restrict employes from upgrading their health insurance whenever they can anticipate medical expenses."

Under current regulations, Federal employes have had an opportunity to enroll in the Federal Employes Health Benefits program or to change their enrollments at least once every 3 years. Annuitants were generally given the same opportunity to change their enrollments. Since the last opportunity, referred to as an "open season," was provided in November 1969, the next, under current regulations, must be offered no later than November 1972.

Under the new regulation, which first must be republished in the Federal Register as proposed rule making, an "open season" will be held Nov. 15-30 1971, and Nov. 15-30 of each year thereafter.

The most important advantage seen under the new system is that it permits more frequent adjustment of plans or options because of premiums and benefit changes in the 40 plans that participate in the program. Other dissatisfactions with the present system that were voted in the Commission's study would be substantially lessened by the certainty that adjustment would be possible within 1 year.

For example, an employe who loses outside health insurance coverage when his (or her) spouse's private employment terminates will be able to enroll in the Federal program within a maximum of 1 year's time.

Also, employes or annuitants who move into a geographic area served by a group-practice or individual-practice plan for which they were not previously eligible will not have to wait as long as 3 years to take advantage of their newly acquired eligibility. Similarly, an employe who joins a union that sponsors a plan will be able to enroll in that plan within a maximum time of 1 year.

Year in review

Lt. Col. I. Nezvesky, of the 3rd Bde., 82nd Abn. Div., at Ft. Bragg, N.C., looks through "Vietnam II," the yearbook of the 3rd Bde.'s combat operations in the Republic of Vietnam. The yearbook is 143 pages long, hard-covered and illustrated with both art and photographs. Copies of the yearbook may be obtained by sending $1.25 to Yearbook, HHC, 3rd Bde., 82nd Abn. Div., Ft. Bragg, N.C. 28307. The proceeds for the sale of the yearbook will go to the 82nd's Historical Society.

Liberian secretary visits post

The Liberian Secretary for National Defense, Allen H. Williams, arrives at Fort Benning today for a two-day visit.

During his stay, Williams will be briefed on the activities of the Infantry Center and Infantry School, and tour the post as well as the Infantry Museum and the Bradley Museum in Columbus. A conference with Liberian officer students is also scheduled.

An official reception and dinner will take place tonight in the Corregidor Room of the Officer's Open Mess.

The secretary's party will include Lt. Col. Stephen J. Koffa and Capt. James L. Pearson, Williams' aide-de-camp.

Col. Lester E. Barlow will serve as the Department of the Army tour director.

Columbus College has enrolled 3,239 studeuts for the spring quarter, Registrar Mary L. Livengood has announced. This is a 64 per cent increase in last spring's registration of 1,972 students and an absolute increase of some 1,267 students. It is also the largest percentage increase in enrollment ever recorded on a comparative, year-to-year quarter basis.

Class for aliens offered by ACS

The Army Community Services will sponsor a Citizenship class beginning April 17. Classes will be held each Saturday for six weeks in Infantry Hall, Bldg. 4, east wing classroom No. 51 from 9 a.m. until noon. Graduation for the class is scheduled for May 22.

The course is free and open to all interestet military personnel and dependents. It is designed to prepare aliens for the citizenship test.

Libraries' Books

Mother Nature is delar her usual wonders in the beauty of spring. What are you doing? You may garden or a few ideas and suggestions from your Special Services Libraries to support your "Spring Cleaning" efforts. The following items books are available at the Sayers Memorial Library.

"Audels Home Modernizing and Repair Guide." A do-it-yourself guide to interior painting, papering, floor covering, valances and curtains, lanuschade and plumbing, glazing, concrete work, outside painting, and dampness protection.

"Annuals for Every Garden." D. H. Jenkins: A selection of annuals, where to plant them and how to care for them.

"Gardening in the Shade." R. H. Morse: A guide to indoor plants that will thrive with little or no light and, outdoor plants that will know in all degrees of shade.

"The Lawn Book." R. W. Schery: An authoritative guide on every aspect of caring for a lawn in any climate. Descriptions of major lawn grasses and their cultural requirements, selection of seeds according to budget; preparing the seedbed, special care watering and fertilizing, mowing and mowers, controlling weeds and pests, overseeding and treating lawn diseases, plus valuable hints on seasonal and regional requirements.

"Plant Pruning in Pictures." M. Free: Principles and procedures of pruning; annual and perennial flowers, fruits, and herbs; evergreen and deciduous trees and shrubs and vines Master; special problems, such an failure to bloom or bear and to cure insect and disease.

"Remodeling Rooms." Richard Day: Basic how-to information and creative interior decoration.

The above books are also available at the Special Services Libraries for your reading selection.

"Great Is Thy Love." Taylor Caldwell: The author of "Dynasty of Death" has written a powerful story of love and hate and faith and God that makes the reader feel as if he is living each of the characters.

"Big Business." Robertson Davies: This is a fascinating portrait of a man who has a sinister influence on the people around him, told by an expert craftsman with an eye of criticism; full of wit and vision.

"The Americans." David Scott: Absorbing historical novel — by the famous TV personality — in which Barry Goldwater, Spiro Agnew, Raquel Welch, Orson Welles, Ralph Nader, and Jane Fonda appear.

"Dealing." Michael Douglas: A humorous, suspenseful story about a young student who wears his hair short but digs rock and grass. A fresh and authentic picture of the drug scene.

"Mulberry Square." Dorothy Eden: Sarah Lane's humiliating search for romance amid fashionable Edwardian high society is the focus of this last drama.

"I've Got To Talk to Somebody, God." Marilyn Holmes: A heartfelt collection of informal prayers — really conversations with God, designed to put joy in the housewife's daily routine.

"The Making of a Surgeon." William A. Nolen: Filled with anecdotes, funny and tragic events and the life-or-death drama of a great hospital.

"Of a Fire on the Moon." Norman Mailer: A horrifying, funny, moving book about the Apollo 11 Moon Shot, the psychology of the astronauts, the technology, the philosophical meaning of the voyage and the author's own hang-ups.

"Dreams and Your Magic Mirror." Elsie Sencbrist: Graphic demonstrations of how dreams hold valuable insights into business, personal and social problems. If you recognize them, they can be keys to growth and success.

Plainsboat built for Harris film

MADRID: A replica of the Lewis and Clark plainsboat, a unique vehicle drawn by mules and a sail, is being constructed for "Man in the Wilderness," the Warner Bros. motion picture starring Richard Harris and John Huston.

"Man in the Wilderness," a Sanford Howard-Limbridge Production, is being directed by Richard Sarafian in color in Spain.

Synopsis

HOW TO FRAME A FIGG (Rated G). It's the biggest, funniest frame of all time . . . if you miss this caper, it's a crime.

The formula is simple, take a shnook named Hollis Figg (Don Knotts) and blame all the city corruption on him.

Rich old Parker Fennelly, who rides in an ambulance and falls asleep constantly, controls the town of Dalton. Mayor Edward Andrews and his commissioners, tax accountant Joe Flynn, Dr. Pitt Herbett, Police Chief Robert Lieb and Fire Chief Bill Zuckert, are in on the graft and use honest Knotts as a fall guy.

Hollis is selected to operate a computor at city hall and thinks he has been promoted. A couple of days later he is confused when the computor shows it cost the taxpayers $750,000 to build a road that actually cost $500,000.

How Hollis gets the assistance of a garbage truck driver friend to dig up the exonerating evidence — brings the comedy to an hilarious conclusion.

THE DESERTER (Rated GP). They followed him into hell just for the chance to kill him.

The year is 1886 and the Southwestern border between the United States and Mexico has erupted again into a series of bloody raids by marauding Apaches. A detachment of troopers led by Captain Caleb Carter (Bekim Fehmiu), come upon a tiny mission settlement only to discover to their horror that every living being has been slaughtered, including Carter's wife.

It is the dawn of a long and revengeful period for the embittered Carter. Accusing his superior officer Maj. Wade Brown (Richard Crenna), of inept leadership, Carter blindly shoots Brown, then rides out of the fort. . . . an outlaw.

Two years later, Gen. Miles (John Huston), offers Carter a Presidential pardon if he will offer his services and lead an expedition against the powerful Apache army led by Chief Mangus Durango. Carter accepts the terms and rides at the head of the troopers into the Apache stronghold.

On the corpse-ridden desert, Carter and Chief Durango fight a battle to the death!

ACT OF THE HEART (Rated GP). Life is pretest, is love, is rebellion, is the "Act of the Heart."

Genevieve Bujold stars as the girl who lives to love, whose total commitment to life would lead her to the ultimate act. Donald Sutherland is the man she loves. A man who has vowed never to love a woman as much as he loves God.

For both of them it was a time of change, of discovery, of joy. But what happens when their love goes too far? Her innocence, his vows, neither could stand before the urgency of their desire.

In the beginning there was love, but in the end the true "Act of the Heart."

DETECTIVE BELLI (Rated R). Playing the deadly game of extortion can be fatal.

Detective Belli (Franco Nero) uses his law enforcest position for extortion purposes and becomes entangled in a bizarre murder, eventually having to put his own life "on the line." Detective Belli provides a classic and contemporary study of a law enforcer gone wrong.

Monday

Theater No. 1 —x-THE DESERTER (GP) 6:15, 8:30 p.m. Starring: Bekim Fehmiu, Richard Crenna.

Theater No. 2 — HELL'S BELLES (GP) 6:30, 8:30 p.m. Starring: Jason Robards, Katharine Ross.

THE BEGUILED (Rated R). Clint Eastwood portrays a seriously wounded Union soldier in the Civil War South, who is sheltered in a girl's seminary run by Geraldine Page, her slave Mae Mercer, and her assistant, Elizabeth Hartman.

Eastwood hobbles around on homemade crutches and finds his life in greater jeopardy than before. Martha's initial instinct is to put the blue flag on the front gate as a signal to passing Southern conscriptors that a Yankee prisoner has been captured.

The others convince her to nurse the wounded Eastwood back to health before turning him in. Eastwood suddenly realizes that his benefactress is not to be trusted.

Thousands missing out on bargain

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Thousands of servicemen are missing out on a bargain insurance policy — the Servicemen's Group Life Insurance (SGLI).

Under SGLI, members of the armed forces receive $15,000 term life insurance for $3 each month, $10,000 for $2 or $5,000 for $1.

The group policy is entirely free of military hazard restrictions and may be converted to permanent insurance without a physical examination when a servicemen returns to civilian life.

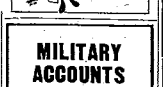
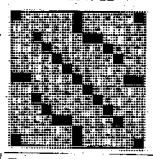
Health officials meet in Denver

DENVER—Health care administrators from 17 states plus representatives from the Blue Cross Association and the Mutual of Omaha recently met in Denver to discuss the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services (CHAMPUS) in the third and last of a series of seminars for CHAMPUS Fiscal Administrators in Fiscal Year 1971.



The series of seminars provided representatives from the 46 CHAMPUS contractors with the opportunity to meet with each other and the CHAMPUS staff in program information and problem solving work shops designed to facilitate payment for health care delivered to CHAMPUS beneficiaries in the United States, Canada, Mexico and Puerto Rico. One of the primary objectives was to impart to the administrators the concept of concerned care while dealing with beneficiaries of the CHAMPUS.

The CHAMPUS is a Denver-based, comprehensive hospital and medical health benefits program for dependents of active duty uniformed service personnel, retired members, their dependents and the dependents of deceased active duty and retired personnel.



The program, which encompasses more than six million beneficiaries, and which expended some $275 million in the past year, is administered by the Executive Director, Office for the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the (OCHAMPUS), by director Uniformed Services of Congress.

The fiscal administrators and hospital contractors serve as contracting agents for OCHAMPUS, evaluating and paying claims submitted by beneficiaries, civilian physicians, hospitals and other sources of health care for CHAMPUS.

Representatives attending the third seminar came from Washington, Alaska, Hawaii, Montana, North Dakota, Maryland, Massachusetts, West Virginia, Wyoming, Utah, Arkansas, South Dakota, California, Iowa, Delaware, Idaho, Connecticut, Colorado, the Blue Cross Association, Chicago, Ill. and Mutual of Omaha Insurance Company, Omaha, Neb.

Karen Black to co-star in 'Portnoy's Complaint'

HOLLYWOOD — Karen Black, Academy Award nominee for her performance in "Five Easy Pieces," has been signed by Ernest Lehman for the role of The Monkey in "Portnoy's Complaint." It was announced by John Calley, executive vice president in charge of production for Warner Bros.

Lehman, writer-producer-director of "Portnoy's Complaint," recent announced the signing of Richard Benjamin to play the role of the sex-driven Alexander Portnoy, the character created by Philip Roth in his controversial, best-selling novel.

Miss Black followed her highly praised "Five Easy Pieces" performance with roles in "Drive He Says," directed by Jack Nicholson, and currently "Scrapping Bottom," co-starring with George Segal. The Monkey in "Portnoy's Complaint," is described as a highly erotic and highly exotic fashion model.

Of the casting of Miss Black, Lehman says, "I think she's The Monkey personified, and you can read that any way you want, provided it's a nice reading."

The film, a Cheanault Production, will start filming in Rome in June, Lehman said.

Knox on the wall

Easter at Callaway

The traditional Sunrise Service marks the beginning of Easter Sunday activities at Callway Gardens, followed by a special organ concert and an annual Easter Egg Hunt.

The Sunrise Service will be held Sunday at 6:45 a.m. on the lawn of the Garden's clubhouse. The program will be "The Easter Message in Song" presented by the Missionary Orientation Choir. The choir is part of the group staying in the Callaway cottages for a 14 week period. There is no charge to enter the Gardens for the services.

Mrs. Alvin Davis will present the organ concert from 3-5 p.m. at the Ida Cason Callaway Memorial Chapel. Special Easter music will be played on the Moller Organ.

Children in three age groups can join the hunt of 17,500 Easter eggs hidden in the Robin Lake Beach area. The hunt begins at 3:30 p.m. The age groups are 4 and under; 5 to 8 years, and 9 to 12 years. Prizes will be awarded to the child who finds the most eggs in each group. The youngster finding the prize egg will also receive a prize.

The public is cordially invited to attend these activities.

Post Egg Hunt

The Sand Hill NCO Club is sponsoring an Easter Egg Hunt, for the children. Two prizes will be given per group to the children finding the specially marked eggs.

The egg hunt begins at noon and the children can eat all the eggs they find. That's the Sand Hill NCO Club, Sunday.

Sensational South Carolina

Do you know what historic event occurred in South Carolina 110 years ago on April 12, 1861?

The first shot of the Civil War was fired in Charleston Harbor. Fort Sumter was occupied by Union troops who refused to vacate the fort. After negotiatins failed, Confederate batteries in the Harbor bombarded Fort Sumter and America's greatest moment of conflict, the War Between the States, began.

On the fort, located on a tiny man-made island in Charleston's beautiful harbor, there is an excellent museum and tours are conducted by historians with the National Park Service.

The boat which carries you to Fort Sumter is a comfortable, canvas-covered 65 foot sightseeing yacht. It was especially built for the tours and is safe and fully equipped with every modern convenience.

Why not make a trip to Charleston and visit historic Fort Sumter, and take a complete harbor tour, including Forts Johnson and Moultrie; Cooper River Bridge (one of the tallest bridges in the world); Castle Pinckney, and Charleston's famous battery?

Charleston is located on the beautiful beaches of South Carolina and the smooth white sand, washed by the waves of the Atlantic would provide an ideal vacation spot. It's restful, invigorating and breathtaking. Hundreds of secluded islands, coves and inlets grace the entire coastline of the state.

Folly Beach, Sullivans Island the Isle of Palms are situated near Charleston providing more solitude and quiet for the easy going vacationers.

Located approximately 350 miles from Columbus, Charleston would be within easy driving distance for even a weekend vacation.

Believe me, it's worth the trip.

"Hello, Dolly!"

If you are not planning to leave the Columbus area or the post for the weekend then be sure to see "Hello Dolly," the 3rd Army soldiers show.

"Dolly" performances are tonight, tomorrow and Sunday at 7:30 p.m. in Marshall Auditorium, Infantry Hall.

Tickets are free to both military and civilian but must be picked up at either the Special Service Office in Bldg. 394 or at the Fort Benning Playhouse, Bldg. 1237. Reservations cannot be made by telephone.

HAPPY EASTER

ROTC divisions view new Infantry items

MSgt. Alvin V. Grimes and SFC Clarence J. LaRue of the AMC Infantry Research and Development Office recently visited the seven high school ROTC divisions in Columbus, the University of Auburn and the University of Florida to display and explain some of the new equipment developed by the U.S. Army Materiel Command for use by the Infantry soldier.

The sergeants showed several pieces of equipment and clothing ranging from a new and improved light-weight entrenching tool to the larger, 30-round M-16 rifle magazine. All of the equipment shown was modified and improved to make the Infantryman's load as light and convenient as possible.

The majority of the ideas for new and improved equipment comes directly from the soldiers who have fought in Vietnam and know exactly what they would like to see changed, improved or completely done away with.

Finding out just what these soldiers think is Grimes' job. He personally interviews hundreds of returnees from all over the world to get their ideas, which he passes on to the Research and Development laboratories, where the actual work is done.

Grimes feels gaining first-hand knowledge of the soldier's reaction to the equipment he uses is the only way the Army can determine what to develop and issue the soldier in the field.

Your ideas are requested on how to improve equipment or perhaps you have a new piece of equipment in mind that you believe would come in handy.

To make an appointment or get further information, call or visit the Infantry Research and Development Liaison Office, 545-2052 - 7017, Building 76.

The office opens daily Monday through Friday at 7:30 a.m. for personal or group displays and interviews. You also can request a display of equipment for your unit area.

Fabric Shop's hours noted

A large variety of bolt fabric in assorted fabrics and colors has been received at the Post Exchange Fabric and Kiddie Shop.

SPRINTs intercept antiballistic missile

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Two Army SPRINT missiles, launched less than a second apart and both controlled by a single radar, have successfully intercepted a target high over the Pacific Ocean.

The launches, part of continuing SAFEGUARD Antiballistic Missile System tests, marked the first time that two SPRINTs have been launched in a single test.

The test followed by a few months a successful test of the systems's ability to launch and guide two Army SPARTAN missiles. The SPARTAN, which has a range of several hundred miles, intercepts targets in space while the shorter-range SPRINT intercepts within the atmosphere.

Both SPRINT missiles intercepted an intercontinental ballistic missile nose cone which had been launched from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif., 4,200 miles away from Meck Island in the Pacific where the SPRINTs were launched and where the radar is located.

Both interceptor missiles passed close enough to their target to have destroyed it if armed with operational nuclear warheads. Neither the SPRINT missile nor the target nose cone carried explosives.

Crossing the mark

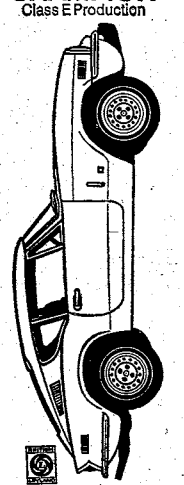
Women golfers plan tournament

The Fort Benning Country Club Ladies Golf Group has set April 12 through 23 as the dates for their annual spring handicap tournament.

Winners will be decided by match play. Full handicaps will be used to determine the results of each 18-hole match.



Players will be assigned to flights of eight contestants each.

The first round of the tournament must be played April 12, 13 or 14. The second round must be played April 15, 16 or 17 and the final round on April 20, 21, or 22. Playoff of flight winners will be held on April 23.

Prizes will be awarded to the winners, runners up and coosolation winners of each flight at an awards party scheduled in the country club at 2 p.m. April 27.

Entry fee is $4. All entries must be made at the club pro shop prior to April 10.

USAMTU shooters win new tournament honors

The U.S. Army "Blue" team won both team events in the first day of the International Invitational Pistol Tournament at Fort Benning, March 25, and seized a National title from the U. S. Navy by setting a new record in center fire competition.

Fielded by the U.S Army Marksmanship Training Unit (USAMTU), the Army "Blue" set their new record with an explosive 2,358, bettering the previous Navy record by three.

Firing a closely grouped range of scores, the "Blue" team high individual was 593 with the low of 586 on the four-man squad.

Members of the team include SFC Hezekiah Clark, SFC Bonnie Harmon, SSgt. John Smith and Sgt. Jimmy McCauley.

The other team match fired during the first day of the two-day tournament was the Free Pistol which the Army "Blue" team won with 2,152. A 3rd Army Marksmanship Unit team was in runner-up place with 2,800.

Of the four individual matches fired in the tournament, Smith outdistanced a field of 17-master handgunners by 75 points to win the two-day tournament with a total of 2,299. He fired a winning score in the rapid fire matches with his 594 and then placed second in the standared pistol and center fire pistol, to sweep the tourney. His 584 tied the national record for rapid fire.

MSgt. Robert Whitacre won the Standard Pistol with 577 while SFC Harland Rennolds of the 3rd Army Marksmanship Unit captured the free pistol with 550. Clark, the top winner on the tournament trail this year, won center fire with 593.

In the final day of the Dixie Pistol matches at Jacksonville, Fla., March 21, the U.S. Army shooters swept the field clean to take every match and the 3-Gun Grand Aggregate from a mixed field of civilian, reserve and service competitors. The Army "Blue" team won the team championship and Grand Aggregate going away with a grand finale of 3,490-174.

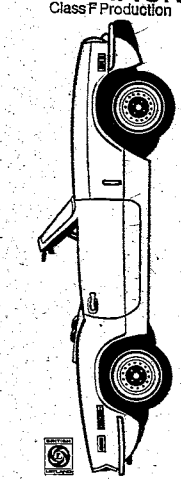
Capturing two of the three-gun sub-aggregates, the Army "Blue" team lost to the 3rd Army MTU team in the .45 caliber aggregate for their only loss of the day. They won the .22 caliber and center fire series. No civilian or reserve teams made a close challenge to the Army in their grab.



The "Blue" team added further laurels when they were declared the Florida Circuit Aggregate winners. This championship was determined by scores fired at the Palmetto Spring and Midwinter meets in addition to the Dixie Classic. They accumulated a score of 10,439-441 in the three tournaments.

In earlier individual 3-gun matches at Jacksonville, Beugatter edged Clark to win the tourney championship with a Grand Aggregate of 2631-117.

By Bill Kloeb

The local spring turkey season is having a hard time getting started. After more than a week of legal hunting only one turkey kill has been reported to the Post Fish and Wildlife Unit. Lt. Col. Charles Orr of the Directorate of Facilities Engineering was the successful hunter reporting the bird.

Until last weekend the weather was against the hunters. Good turkey hunting in the spring depends a lot on the gobbler's instincts to mate. In the fall of the year the tom lives alone or with several other males. It takes the warm sunny spring weather to bring out his mating instincts. Of course, when he's looking for females he has to move around quite a bit and make his presence known by his calls to the females.

During the first week of this season the weather didn't do much to put the toms in a mating mood, but with the warmer weather hunters should be hearing the toms gobbling in hopes of calling up females. When the toms are gobbling they are very susceptible to the turkey calls of hunters. This weekend should find a few more hunters able to bag their turkey for the spring season.

Stolen Boats

Boat losses have hit the Rod and Gun club pocketbook again. Two more club owned boats have been stolen from their moorings at Weems Pond. Each of these boats cost the club $96. Until now the losses have been covered by insurance, but when the latest thefts were reported the insurance company decided they had a losing proposition and canceled the insurance. Any future losses will have to come from club funds.

The boats have been located on ponds all over the reservation for the convenience of the membership. It's impossible for the military police, game wardens or Rod and Gun officials to maintain adequate surveillance over all of the ponds, but if each member will make an effort to keep a watch over the boats the losses can be kept to a minimum. If the boats continue to disappear it will be necessary to take them off the ponds. In that event all the members will be losers. Anyone wanting to rent a boat will have to haul it from the club grounds to a pond then haul it back after they finish fishing.

Hunting And Fishing Licenses

The lines of hunters and fishermen waiting to buy licenses at the Rod and Gun Club have just about melted away. Anyone who hasn't already purchased the 1971-1972 licenses can get them now without waiting.

Sportsmen can get all the licenses and permits necessary to hunt and fish on the post. Last week there was an error in the column on the price of a combination hunting-fishing license. The cost is $7.25 for the combination license. A separate fishing license is $3.25 and the hunting license $4.25.

Rod and Gun Fishing Contest

All of the winners of the March fishing contest took their prizes from King's Pond. We think this was not because King's had the only good fishing. It was practically impossible to get to the other ponds because of the muddy roads.

Sergeant First Class Willie Miles TSB, won the catfish contest with a 10-pounder he hooked on the last day of the month. The other catches were made early in the month. First Sergeant Henry A. Ferris, TSB, won the bass contest with an 8-pound, 7-ounce catch and the 1-pound, 1-ounce brim caught by SSgt C. D. Baxley, 3rd Ranger Company won the brim contest.

Each winner received a $15 order for purchase of equipment at the Rod and Gun Club sales counter.

So far there have ben no entries for the April contest, but we should see some big ones registered before the month is over. The bass are leaving the deep water and can be found feeding in the shallows during the early morning and evening hours. Both the bass and the brim should be on beds before the month is over and this should make for some of the best fishing of the year.

Ham Shoot

The ham shoot held last Saturday at the Rod and Gun Club was a big success. Fort Benning sportsmen took more than 1,000 pounds of ham from the commissary mobile freezer parked at the club skeet ranges. The club handed out 178 hams to winners. The club congratulates the winners and thanks all the other sportsmen who participated.

Motorsport club prepares Rally Day plans

The Northwest Florida Motorsports Club has announced plans to participate in Rallye Day USA—1971, a nationwide celebration which continues a popular six-year tradition.

The Northwest Florida Motorsports Club will be one of approximately 250 member clubs of Ford Motorsports Association which will participate in this program, in which 20,000 cars are expected to be entered. Road rallyes will take place during April in cities throughout the country.

The primary objective of each of these events will be to raise funds for a charity on civic project. The Northwest Florida Motorsports Club has elected to donate all of their proceeds to the National League of Families of American Prisoners of War-Missing in Action in Southeast Asia.

Thomas H. Riley Jr., president of the Northwest Florida Motorsports Club, said the Club is planning to host "Playground Motorsports Festival," an entire weekend of activities to be held April 17 and 18. A road rallye will be held Saturday afternoon, April 17, followed by a buffet dinner and a social hour at the Eglin Air Force Base Officers' Beach Club.

An Autocross is planned for Sunday, April 18, on the runway complex of Eglin Auxiliary Field No. 4. Riley said that the Autocross should be extremely enjoyable to both participants and spectators, as the runway complex is ideally suited for this type of event.

Fort Benning personnel who are sports car enthusiasts have been invited to participate in the Rallye.

Announcements of the "Playground Motorsports Festival" are being distributed to automobile clubs over the five southeastern states of Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana and Mississippi. Riley said that support has already been pledged from the Greater New Orleans Sports Car Council and the Motorsports Clubs of Mobile. The program is open to the public and anyone interested in rallying and/or autocrossing may enter. Advance registration will be required.

Enthusiasts interested in participating in the "Playground Motorsports Festival" may obtain an information brochure and registration forms by writing Northwest Florida Motorsports Club, 624 Lang Road, Fort Walton Beach, Fla., 32548, or by calling 242-9655 or 242-4695.

Ford Motorsports Association will present special awards to the clubs having the most successful Rallye Day events. In addition, Ford Motorsports Association will make trophies available for presentation to the first and second drivers and navigators in the rallye.

Consumers provided with more protection

Now consumers, including service members, have four more areas of protection.

The Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System has approved four new amendments to its Truth in Lending law.

The new amendments will provide that:

—Stores and creditors give customers with active accounts 15 days notice of any change in the terms of their open-end credit account, except that no notice be given if the minimum payment or finance charges are reduced.

—In the credit sales of vacant lots the seller may substitute the words "property you are purchasing" for "your home" in the notice given to the customer which permits him to rescind his purchase within three days.

—Farmers may obtain funds, goods, or services in agricultural credit transactions prior to the expiration of the three-day period in which they may cancel the transaction, but this amendment does not take away from the farmers their right to cancel within the allowed period.

—Sellers must abide by special advertising requirements in sales involving FHA Section 235 homes.

Volleyball tournament scheduled

The 1971 United States Army Infantry Center Company Level Volleyball Tournament will be held at the Harmony Church Field House April 19-23.

The 197th Infantry Brigade, The School Brigade and the 93ist Engineer Group will each enter two teams. The Center Aviation Command, Medical Department Activity and Headquarters Command will enter one team each.

The company level championship team will be determined by double elimination play.

During the tournament a team of all-stars will be selected to represent the post in the 3rd Army Championships at Fort McClellan May 10-15.

Benning marksmen to shoot in skeet, trap tourney

The U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit (USAMTU) will field two teams, one each for both Skeet and Trap, in the International Skeet and Trap Tournaments to be held at Fort Benning April 1 through 4 and 8 through 11.

In the initial tournament, International Skeet shooters will vie for honors as they compete in the three-day 300 bird meet. Approximately 25 competitors from all the services are expected to enter the tournament and try their skill with the elusive birds. Lt. Col. Pat O'Malley of the U.S. Air Force, a leading competitor in skeet shooting, has indicated his intentions of participating in the matches.

Leading competitor in the Skeet Department from the USAMTU will be Capt. Kenneth Gilbert, Chief of the Shotgun Division, MTU. Gilbert was a member of the U.S. Skeet team last year at the 40th World Championships in Phoenix, Arizona.

Other outstanding shooters include Don Sanderlin, a member of the Canadian International team, who is coming from Edmonton, Alberta.

The Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club will sponsor the NRA approved tournaments which will include both individual and team events.

The USAMTU, called the "Home of Shooting Champions," will conduct a five-day rifle and pistol clinic and training session for personnel of the 4th Army area at Fort Riley commencing April 13.

Open to the public, the five day affair is expected to be attended by handgun and rifle enthusiasts in the Mid-Kansas and surrounding areas. Local police, Reserve groups, civilian and service groups interested in developing and improving marksmanship techniques in either weapon speciality are invited to attend the handgun and shoulder fired sessions.

Sponsored by the Fort Riley Marksmanship Training Unit, the training sessions will be held at the Camp Forsythe pistol and rifle ranges. Simultaneous clinics for service rifle and pistol will be held during the first four days while the fifth day will be devoted to instruction in international pistol techniques and fundamentals. Each day's activities will be terminated with panel discussions along with question and answer periods.

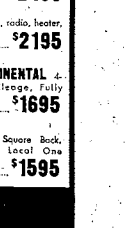
The rifle and pistol marksmanship teams from the Georgia-based unit will be briefing on the basic rudiments of championship shooting to include mental discipline, fundamentals of trigger control, proper positioning and body stance, breath control, sight alignment and the arc of movement. During the sessions, demonstrations on proper body positioning, sighting techniques and trigger squeeze will be given the visiting sportsmen. In addition, a 3-hour course in marksmanship technique plus extensive firing with on-the-line coaching of individuals will be given.

The five-day training session will afford local law enforcement officers, reserve groups and civilians to benefit from the experiences and training which the Army Marksmanship Unit has found beneficial in winning championship matches.

Orienteers open course tomorrow near Kelly Hill

The Kelly Hill Orienteering Course will be open tomorrow. Pack a picnic lunch and bring the entire family out for an afternoon of fun and exercise.

The 1971 Fort Benning Orienteering Championships will be held in the near future. Start exercising your orienteering skills for this event, by coming to Saturday's event just off First Division Road at the exit to the 197th Infantry Brigade.



The orienteering day begins at noon. For further information, call Capt. Larry Walker at 545-6021.

Pet Talk

'Rover' needs nutritional foods, too

BY CAPT. LESLIE PERRY
Veterinarian

Commercial rations are for the most part entirely adequate as the basic diet for any dog. Many dogs, however, do not develop to their full potential because of improper care, improper feeding or over supplementation.

Table scraps, liver, milk, fat, cottage cheese, cooked vegetables (yellow or green) mashed, meat and breads can all be added to a commercial ration. It is important that these "added goodies" not exceed 20 per cent of the total diet. The addition of vitamins, minerals and fatty acids to the diet should only be done after careful consideration as to whether or not a specific need for them exists.

Some general guidelines for various ages of dogs are as follows:

NURSING PUPPIES:

Normally puppies will be weaned by their mother at 4 to 6 weeks of age. It is advisable, therefore, to begin supplementing the puppies diet by 3 weeks of age and get them accustomed to other foods.

Commercial puppy chow, baby cereals, strained liver, and other baby foods, egg yolks (Cooked preferrably) and cottage cheese can all be used quite satisfactorily.

ORPHAN PUPPIES:

An adquate milk substitute can be used. If the commercial diet is not available, a mixture of ½ cup evaporated milk, ½ cup water and ½ teaspoonful corn syrup will suffice.

Puppies may be fed every three hours. Unless there is a great deal of whining and crying, night feedings are not necessary. At about 3 weeks of age, the same procedure as used for normal nursing puppies can be followed to start them on a more solid diet.

GROWING PUPPIES:

Recently weaned puppies should be fed four or five times daily. They should be fed three times daily from 3 to 6 months of age; twice a day is sufficient from 6 to 12 months of age.

After one year of age, one feeding a day is usually all that is required. It is advisable when feeding growing puppies to allow them 20 to 30 minutes to eat. The food should then be removed.

ADULT DOGS:

Most adult dogs are fed one meal a day. Some owners prefer to feed divided ration. One-half in the morning and one-half in the evening. Supplementation with snacks, tidbits and table scraps should not be overdone. If weight begins to increase, cut down on the amount of food.

You should consult a veterinarian concerning specific nutritional requirements of your dog, rather than indiscriminately start adding vitamins, minerals and other substances to the diet.

Each animal is different and special attention should be given the pregnant dog, the sick dog, the old dog and the growing dog. Ask your veterinarian: He is there to help.

Bataan 'death march' doctor retires after 33 years in Army

FT. MYER, Va. — Col. Walter A. Kostecki, the last doctor in uniform who made the "death march" off Bataan in the early days of World War II, recently retired from the Army after more than 33 years of service.

Kostecki, a former Fort Benning officer, was director of the Andrew Rader U.S. Army Clinic at Ft. Myer when he retired.

The colonel was among 35,000 American and Filipino troops who endured the infamous "death march" on Bataan. He is among the significantly smaller number who survived it.

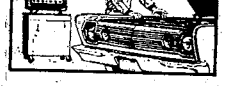
At three prison camps, first in the Philippines, and then in Japan, Kostecki received some of the worst treatment ever perpetrated against prisoners of war.

Although he too was in horrible condition, Kostecki ministered medical attention to other POW's and saved the lives of many including a future Army chief of staff, General Harold K. Johnson.

Kostecki was 20 miles from "Ground Zero" (the location of the explosion) when the first atomic bomb obliterated the city of Hiroshima. Liberation came shortly after and he was returned to the United States and reunited with his wife, the former Mary Louise Sullivan, after a five year separation.

"I had been reported as killed in action in April, 1942 but my wife still held hope for my return," Kostecki said.

"While I was recovering in a hospital at Ft. Devens, Mass., I decided that I wanted to make the Army my career. I had seen the American soldier under the most intense stress imaginable and I was convinced that he was the most noble human being alive. I wanted to be associated with him for as long as I could."



Since the war Kostecki has been assigned to a number of Army hospitals including those at Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., and Fort Benning. He came to Washington in 1969.

Artist donates painting

WEST POINT, N. Y. (ANF)—Noted artist and naturalist Ray Harm has presented his latest painting, "The American Eagle," to the U.S. Military Academy.

"This American Eagle was painted as a gift for West Point, whose Long Grey Line of young men has always been unswervingly dedicated to Duty, Honor, Country," Harm said.

He painted the American bald eagle to emphasize that it is among several species in danger of extinction.

Five thousand color lithographs of the painting will be reproduced, then the painting plates will be destroyed.

One thousand of the 24-inch by 32-inch prints will be signed by Harm and will have a distinctive West Point designation. They will be available only to military personnel, cadets and their families and civilian personnel closely associated with the Academy.

Proceeds from the sale of the 1,000 "West Point Edition" prints will be donated to the Academy to further fine arts activities.

Prints are available at $60 each from American Eagle, c-o Department of English, U.S. Military Academy, West Point, N.Y. 10996.

In the past, every collector print by Harm has rapidly gained in value.

Stabilized tours reality for many

At last stabilized tours in CONUS will be a reality for many officers. A recent change by the Department of the Army has established 12 months as the minimum tour length for company grade commanders.

The only exception to this minimum will be in the case of promotion of an incumbent commander or if a commander is relieved for cause.

This change becomes effective immediately except in the case of officers currently on orders with departure dates prior to Aug. 1. These officers will continue on permanent change of station as programmed.

Clearance for officers selected for company level command positions will be coordinated between CONUS commanders, through their installation assignment officers and the respective OPD Career Branch.

Close coordination between major commands and the Center Assignment Officer will be necessary in assigning officers to command positions.

Dart kayoes sharks with electric punch

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — An electric dart that can instantly knock out a large shark has successfully passed preliminary Navy tests.

The dart consists of a casing containing a battery and electronic circuitry, and a blade about four inches long which is insulated except for the sharpened tip. The blade, which is actually an electrode, is designed to stay imbedded in the flesh of the shark.

Penetration of the dart into any fleshy part of a shark sends an electric current through the shark.

Depending upon the size and species of shark, the electric shock either instantly kills it or paralyzes it for several minutes.

In preliminary tests, the dart immobilized a 12-foot, 450-pound tiger shark.

and sometimes has resulted in additional hazards to the user.

A "power head or "bang stick," for example, must be driven directly against the brain area to be effective. The noise made by this explosive device can attract other sharks, and the concussion can be harmful to the user. The dart is not only quiet but produces no blood, another shark attracter.

The dart is considered particularly useful to the Navy since several could be included in the survival kit of an inflatable life raft used by naval aviators downed at sea. The man in the life raft can use the device without exposing himself directly to the shark or attracting other sharks.

The anti-shark device is a spinoff from long-range basic research on shark behavior conducted by the Office of Naval Research for the past ten years.

14,000 to be trained at ROTC camps

WASHINGTON (ANF) — More than 14,000 college men will receive six weeks of intensive leadership instruction at five Army ROTC camps this summer.

About 11,000 of this total are juniors and seniors in the advanced course of the ROTC program; the other 3,000 will attend the basic camp.

Though the theme of the advanced camps will again be "Preparation for Leadership," some changes in training will be made. More leadership opportunities in tactical instruction will be added.

Where resources and facilities permit, recondo and air mobility training will be conducted at the advanced camps.

The 3,000 basic camp students will train at Ft. Knox, Ky., and will get about 20 hours of additional instruction in operations and tactics; less time will be spent on marksmanship training.

Some 3,600 cadets are expected to attend the 1st Army Advanced Camp at Indiantown Gap Military Reservation, Pa.

Third Army will train 2,000 cadets at Ft. Bragg, N.C. Some 2,200 from ROTC units in the 3th and 5th Army areas will train at Ft. Riley, Kan.

Sixth Army cadets — 1,600 in all — will train at Ft. Lewis, Wash.

Some vet Widows can get additional benefit

ATLANTA—Some widows now receiving certain VA monetary benefits may be eligible for some additional financial assistance according to Georgia Veterans Service Director Pete Wheeler.

He said, "Some widows who are entitled to receive VA pension, death compensation or dependency indemnity compensation may be eligible for an additional allowance of $55.

"This is over and above her VA pension," said Wheeler, "providing that she is a patient in a nursing home is helpless or blind, or is so nearly helpless or blind as to require the regular aid and attendance of another person."

Wheeler added that evidence to support such claim should be in the form of a statement from the nursing home, verifying why the subject widow is a patient and residing at that nursing home. Supporting evidence also may be a doctor's statement which gives details of the widow's physical or mental condition, and verifies that aid and attendance is needed to assist her in her daily living environment.

"Any supporting evidence," said Wheeler, "should be submitted on letterhead stationery."

Persons wanting more information or assistance in filing such a claim should contact the nearest Georgia Department of Veterans Service Office.

Post gets EM-officer 'rock' club

A playboy-type club has opened at Fort Benning.

No, Hugh Heffner's bunnies and philosophy have not invaded the area. But a club aimed at young men of all ranks has been opened by the Modern Volunteer Army program.

Located in Building 2296 in the Lawson Field area, the club is open every night. Bands perform Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays, says SFC Orvil Caldwell, club manager.

The club opened only last weekend, and Edwards said there were good crowds.

Hours of operation for the club are 5 p.m. to midnight Monday through Thursday; 5 p.m. to 2 a.m. Friday; noon to 2 a.m. Saturday and 9 a.m. to midnight Sundays.

Country and Western bands will perform each Friday night, Edwards said. Saturday night will be designated "Soul Night" and rock bands will perform Sundays.

The club features a bar with all types of beverages available. There is also a kitchen that prepares short order meals, Edwards said.

The manager reported that the majority of patrons on the first weekend were soldiers and not officers, although the club is open to all ranks.

Earlier an officer's club annex featuring rock bands was opened under the MVA program.

The club is being operated as an annex of the Non-commissioned Officers Open Mess.

Liaison cites position of Army POWs, MIAs

By Les Hauser

"Did you know that none of the 513 Army personnel listed as missing in action (MIA) or prisoners of war (POW) in Southeast Asia, are in North Vietnam, according to the North Vietnamese government?"

This is the question posed to the local media by Mrs. Iris Powers, consultant for the United States Army to the next of kin of Army members missing and captured in Southeast Asia, at a recent news conference held during her visit to Fort Benning.

Mrs. Powers currently conducting a nation-wide tour of Army headquarters on behalf of Gen. William Westmoreland, the Army Chief of Staff, to publicize the unique position of Army POWs and MIAs and also confer with local officials on next of kind programs.

In her position as liaison between the Army and the next of kin of POWs and MIAs, Mrs. Powers expressed a deep concern over the lack of knowledge by both media and Army families in reference to conditions endured by Army POWs and MIAs in South Vietnam as opposed to the North.

"There's not enough publicity about conditions in the south and there's a vast difference between the Army prisoner and those being held by Hanoi," said Mrs. Powers.

She explained that the prisoners held in the south must not only en-

Recent MOH recipient comes here

A recent Medal of Honor recipient has arrived for duty at Fort Benning. He is Capt. Robert L. Howard, a 31-year-old native of Opelika, Ala.

Howard is receiving orientation in the Airborne Department to which he has been assigned. After orientation he will assume duties as an airborne instructor.

Howard received the Medal of Honor for his action in an engagement on Dec. 31, 1968, in Vietnam while he was serving as a platoon sergeant of a platoon which returned to the scene of a previous engagement to rescue some men who were missing in action.

The platoon engaged a force of approximately 500 North Vietnamese soldiers for about six hours. Eleven men of the original 32 in the platoon survived the action. They were finally extracted by helicopter from the area just as "we had run out of things to fight with" Howard said.

Howard was credited with saving his platoon leader's life and for his leadership in insuring the safe withdrawal of the other survivors of the platoon.

President Nixon presented the Medal of Honor to Howard in ceremonies at the White House March 2. Six other servicemen also received the nation's highest military award at the ceremony, including PSgt. Finnis D.

OCS Hall gets 17 new members

The honor roll of the Infantry Officer Candidate School Hall of Fame was increased by the names of 17 officers, inducted in ceremonies yesterday at Wigle Hall.

Presiding at the ceremonies and presenting the certificates of induction was Col. Frank L. Garrison, commanding officer of The School Brigade.

Six colonels witnessed their induction and received their certificates in person. These were colonels Julius Becton, of the 2nd Arm. Div., Ft. Hood, Tex.; Cornelius Breen, (ret.); Egbert Clark, of the 6th Stu. Bn., Ft. Rucker, Ala.; Delmar Pugh, of Hgs., U.S. Army Material Command; Homer

VOLAR soldiers have come a long way since January

Army Infantry leaders are not born. They're made—largely by coupling lots of individual effort with expert instruction and supervision. The Army's major site for training Infantry leaders is at Fort Benning, Ga., home of the U.S. Army Infantry Center and School.

Fort Benning is also a test site for the first phase of Project VOLAR — Volunteer Army — a large-scale experiment launched last January here (also at Fts. Carson, Ord and Bragg) and aimed at determining the effectiveness of certain resource expenditures in the effort to attain a zero draft by July 1, 1973, a goal set by President Richard Nixon.

Since VOLAR began, changes have occurred here in both the life-styles of soldiers and the emphasis on leadership instruction.

Soldiers enrolled in the Infantry School as well as men assigned to Fort Benning's 197th Infantry Brigade now have more time to train harder, more time to sleep longer, and more time to play and relax.

In this environment, they train better. As a result, they stand to become better soldiers and leaders — the type who will be victorious on the battlefield, the acid test for success of any army.

Irritants which detract from the attractiveness of an Army career—restrictions on personal freedom especially—have been and continue to be removed. Reveille is no more. Civilians now do KP chores. Off-duty travel restrictions are gone. Soldiers spend more time off duty, largely because a five-day work week is now the norm.

Living accommodations are to be modernized and individualized.

Fort Benning has leased 52 units at the Camelia Apartments complex adjacent to the post to house Army families just assigned to the post but not yet situated in permanent housing.

More modern than World War II-vintage buildings, the apartments give a soldier and his family a nicer temporary place to live and allow him to start his new assignment and to get his children into school.

An important change has occurred in leadership instruction. Classes entitled "Enlightened Leadership" are being conducted for all of the post's permanent-party officers and enlisted personnel and all Infantry School students.

The spirit behind enlightened Army leadership can be described as "Soldier, you've changed. We're changing." Accordingly, the thrust of the instruction deals with contemporary problems that Army leaders face today at all levels due to changes in society at large and in the Army.

"A sharper focus and emphasis are being placed on the individual," said Col. William Steel, chairman of the Infantry School's Leadership Department.

Enlightened leadership is being carried from the classroom to the field. Added time is devoted to "hands-on" training, whereby soldiers spend more time actually sharpening skills in smaller groups and under closer supervision.

The 197th Inf. Bde. not only supports the Infantry School but also trains for an assigned combat mission. It has to be combat ready. The coupling of VOLAR actions with enlightened leadership techniques has improved brigade morale and discipline.

"The individual soldier is no longer at the low end of the priority list," said Col. Willard Latham 197th commanding officer.

VOLAR is young. During its first phase wide latitude has been given post commanders to produce results. Certain changes are likely to follow based on the "fly-before-you-buy" kind of groundwork being laid now. And surely other changes will be made during the second phase of VOLAR when the project will be expanded to 15 posts. (ANF)

New JAG, AG named

WASHINGTON (ANF) — The President has named a new judge advocate general and a new adjutant general for the U. S. Army.

Brig. Gen. George S. Prugh Jr. will replace Maj. Gen. Kenneth J. Hodson, who is completing a four-year tour as judge advocate general. Gen. Prugh has been nominated for promotion to the rank of major general.

Maj. Gen. Verne L. Bowers has been appointed to succeed Maj. Gen. Kenneth G. Wickham, who is retiring, as the adjutant general.

Brig. Gen. Harold E. Parker, who has been nominated for promotion to the rank of major general, has been named to replace Maj. Gen. Lawrence J. Fuller.

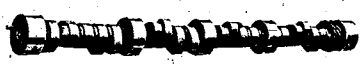
FOOD FOR THOUGHT

by Bill King

To make delicate chocolate shavings to go atop a mousse, cake or pudding, just use your vegetable peeler.

If you use dried herbs when flouring poultry or roasts, try powdering them in a blender before adding to the flour. Distributes the flavor more evenly.



Dieters in the family will enjoy this salad dressing: crumble bleu cheese into a few tablespoons of buttermilk and pour over crisp greens.

"Eggs Goldenrod" is a classic way to use those leftover hardcooked Easter eggs. Add chopped whites and mushrooms to a hot seasoned white sauce, pour over toast and garnish with sieved yolks. A dash of paprika is pretty.

SHELBY CAMSHAFT KIT

If you own a Ford product, or a Ford-engined anything, no other company can offer you the performance available from each Shelby Camshaft manufactured by Autosport Products. The reason is simple. We are one cam manufacturer, that doesn't dilute ability and talent over different makes of engines. We specialize in Ford engines and the result is the best, the most powerful selection available for each and every Ford engine.

352-428 cid ENGINES

STREET/STRIP HYDRAULIC CAM KIT
A hot dual-purpose cam for the big breathers. Uncorks the power potential from the big-block Fords. This cam breathes easily, to mate it with a Shelby single-4V manifold. Pulls heavy cars well even with some torque loss below 3000 rpm. The slightly lumpy idle warns your competition you're ready. Use only with 4-speed or reworked automatic. Special valve springs available.
Mfg. List Your Cost
#6406-Cam & Lifters; 352-390-427-428 cid ('63 and later engines only) $134.00 $101.00

RACING SOLID LIFTER CAM KIT
A real power cam. Great for racing, radical street machines. Fantastic power can be had from this cam that powered winners at Texas Mans. Peak power hits at 6800 rpm; don't expect much below 3000 rpm. Use Competition Spring Kit to allow revs above power peak. Only 4-speed or beefed Hydro will take power from this brute. We also recommend reworked heads with big valves and 12:1 compression, Shelby 4V manifold with 1150 cfm Holley, equal-length headers, and Shelby-Mallory Distributor. Special valve springs available.
Mfg. List YOUR COST
#6411-Cam & Lifters; 352-390-427-428 cid ('63 and later engines only) $124.00 $93.00

STREET HYDRAULIC CAM KIT
Strong power cam for street, boat use. Fantastic bottom end torque gets you started fast without bogging; strong mid-range and top end keep you out front. Hydraulic lifters won't drive you bananas with noise. Excellent for stock and slightly modified engines. Gives a very big difference in power for a very small investment. Special valve springs available.

#6426-Cam & Lifters; 352-390-427-428 cid ('63 and late engines only) $113.00 $85.00

Mickey Thompson
INDY PROFILE TIRES

4-Ply Nylon, Tubeless - 8½ & 10½" Tread Widths
Mickey Thompson tires are the wide, low-profile street tires on the market today, designed by Mickey Thompson who originated and built the first "fat" street tire. M/T tires are approved by the Department of Transportation and have wrap-around tread for cornering control. This wrap-around tread design gives greater traction, coupling more horsepower to the ground. Choose from the Indy Profile or Challenger Sticky, all M/T tires feature heavy-duty sides which insure extra strength for control and durability, offering the ultimate in tire appearance, width, strength and safety construction.

(Byline Bayonet welcomes questions of general interest about Fort Benning and the Army. Within space limitations, all reasonable questions will be answered. Questions of a purely military nature which obviously could be answered more properly by commanders or supervisors within the chain of command will not be accepted. Questions must be signed with current unit of assignment indicated. Send questions to The Bayonet, Room 602, Infantry Hall.)

Q—I have read the articles in Army Times on the centralization of promotion to grades E6 and E7. None of them seem to mention eligibility or the authority directives now in distribution, if there are any, so that a soldier can read for details. Can you tell me what I need to read?

A—Policy on eligibility has not changed. Time in grade plus the soldier's individual qualifications determine his eligibility for promotion. The only change is that review of these qualifications will be done in Washington instead of at unit level.

We believe the references you need are: (A) DA Message 2822282 May 70, subject, Centralization System for Promotion to E7, and (B) DA Circular 624-96, dated 16 November 70.

By reference A centralization at DA of promotion to grade E7 was announced and implementing instructions were established. Reference B is the recommended list for promotion to grade E7 resulting from the deliberations of the selection board convened in accordance with Ref. A. However, please do not confuse this board with boards that may be established in the future. To date there are no current provisions existing for the submission of documents for promotion consideration on E6 personnel other than as an exception to policy, to correct a prior error or injustice, or upon specific request of DA.

The promotion packets requested in accordance with Ref. A were utilized by the selection board which convened in compliance with that message, and that message alone.

These packets are on file at DA; however, no attempt is made to maintain them in current condition. Therefore, documents should NOT be forwarded for inclusion therein. Upon announcement of a new zone of consideration for promotion, revised promotion packets will be requested by 3rd Army Headquarters. As of this date a new zone of consideration has not been established.

The judge says

A good thing could start a new trial

USAIC LEGAL ASSISTANCE OFFICE — Badly injured in a crash at an intersection, Louis sued the Ace Trucking Company. At the trial both sides had questions as to who had the right of way.

After a long jury trial, Louis was made happy by a $50,000 judgment. A few weeks later, his lawyer telephoned and told him that the judge had just thrown out the $50,000 judgment as excessive. The trial judge wanted Louis to agree to a reduced judgment of $25,000 even though the jury had awarded him $50,000.

In all jury cases the judge is a "thirteenth juror." He can grant a new trial if he thinks the evidence did not support the verdict. Of course, Louis' lawyer could oppose the new trial and argue that the verdict should stand. The trial judge may, however, consider the case further, even if the jury is through.

The judge may determine if there is an irregularity in he proceedings, misconduct by the jury such as a determination by lot or out of prejudice or sympathy. He may check some error in law or act on some new evidence not discovered earlier.

The judge may likewise grant a new trial where he thinks the damages awarded were inadequate. He must tell why he is granting the new trial. A court of appeal may review his decision and stop the new trial if the judge's reasons are in error.

In a criminal case the trial court also can grant a new trial. The jury may have received inadmissable evidence, such as going out to the scene of the crime without authorization. It is wrong for the jury to play detective. Its visit to the scene must be under court control and a part of the regular proceedings. A verdict arrived at by lot or chance, or an error in law at the trial, or a verdict contrary to the evidence may be other reasons for granting a new trial.

In a civil case, either side may ask for a new trial. The plaintiff, say, for an inadequate verdict or the defense for an excessive verdict.

In a criminal case the law limits the district attorney's right to ask for a verdict favorable to the accused. The defendant once put in jeopardy by the first trial need not face another trial except in unusual circumstances.

Further questions concerning this topic or other legal matters should be referred to your lawyer or USAIC Legal Assistance Officer.

Q — Where do I send my change of address to make sure that I receive my VA pension check?

A — Send your change of address to the VA regional office which has custody of your records, as well as to the Post Office.

Q — I am a disabled veteran receiving additional compensation for my 17-year-old son who recently enlisted in the Navy. Must I report his enlistment to the VA, and will VA stop the additional compensation because of his enlistement?

A — The answer to both questions is "no." The additional compensation will continue until your son reaches 18, regardless of his military service.

When you vote, think of her

Ever hear of Elizabeth Cady Stanton? Few people have, but a century ago the lady was making great strides as a dedicated champion of women's rights.

Born on November 12, 1815, at Johnstown, N.Y., Elizabeth met with anti-girl difficulties almost from the start. It took a special dispensation to get her admitted to the then all-male Johnstown Academy; she excelled there in Greek, Latin and mathematical studies. Upon graduation, she was confronted with the fact that no college granting higher degrees was open to women. After her graduation from still another academy in 1832, she studied law under her father, but could not gain admittance to the bar because of her sex.

In later years, she joined forces with several other advocates of women's suffrage, notably Lucretia Mott and Susan B. Anthony. The result of their efforts, spanning more than half a century, is now history.

Unfortunately, Elizabeth Cady Stanton did not live to see her ideals become reality. She died in 1902, and the 19th Amendment to the Constitution, granting women the right to vote, was not ratified until 1920.

All American women — especially those who wear the uniforms of the United States Armed Forces — who cast votes in this year's elections do so because of the relentless work of Elizabeth Cady Stanton, a champion of women's rights whose name, regretfully, disappeared as a household word years ago. Pollution is an individual problem

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is a guest editorial by SFC B. D. Harmon of the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit on how each individual can help in the fight against water and air pollution.)

As the world population continues to increase, so do the present day problems — demand for consumer goods increase, taxes become higher, city streets and highways become even more congested, longer waiting lines everywhere, more physical and psychological frustrations and discontentment because Mother Earth has reached a saturation point of pollution and of people who don't care one way or another.

Let us remember basically we are the product of what we eat, drink, breath and think. Mankind's well being and longevity also depend directly upon the balance of nature. The factors of national balance, in brief, are the unpolluted soil, creeks, rivers, oceans, the trees and forests, all the animals and creatures that dig, crawl, climb, run, hop, jump, fly, and swim. The natural resources are fading away swiftly because of ignorance, greed and pollution-in-general.

The cry has gone out to the federal and state government to do something but the governmental actions take time, and even then can't accomplish this monumental task without help. Why wait until the situation is beyond repair. Let us do something now. How can you help? YOU, the individual, your wife, and children, can actively help in your own neighborhood, your own home, in the yard, on the road and in the fields.

Make known your views on needless destruction of our natural resources, speak out on water and air pollution to the right people: Local politicians, senators, school officials, health departments, forestry service, etc. Write letters and do vote.

If you must use a pesticide, try to use one that won't remain in the soil for long periods of time. Remember every insect has a natural enemy, like the lady bug, golden lace wing, praying mantis, lizards, birds,

Refrain from throwing trash, garbage, oil, etc., into a creek or river or any other place where it may pollute the water. Report any violations to the authorities.

Try to eliminate needless outside burning when possible.

Encourage birds into your yard with food and water. Sparrow, starling and jays all eat insects and the jays are responsible for the mighty oaks we have.

Enhance your yard with trees, shrubs and flowers. This prevents soil erosion, beautifies your home and property value increases.

Educate yourself and children on a proper ecological balance of nature and the benefits from a clean wholesome atmosphere and environment.

Let us remember the major source of our world's problems stems from too many people. We must face the hard, cold facts of reality as to the cause and effects of overpopulation.

Let us take a closer look at the food we eat for actual nutritional value. Check the vitamin and mineral content. Watch out for artificial food additives that are detrimental to health.

Let us not wait for "Let George do it." It may never get done if you don't do it. Be active, do something yourself. Remember one piece of discarded paper multiplied 200 million times (US population) is a lot of paper. How many mosquitoes can one purple martin eat in one day? (More than 1,000.) How many flowers and fruit trees can one little bee pollinate. Remember how a foul odor or smoke from a paper mill, or burning garbage can hang over a neighborhood? It isn't a pleasant experience.

Your help is needed to make your neighborhood a cleaner, fresher and more beautiful place to live for ourselves in the present day and in the future for our children.

IT CAN BE ACCOMPLISHED IF EVERYONE CONTRIBUTES A LITTLE TIME AND EFFORT. BE A CONCERNED CITIZEN.

Metcalf receive top honors of 37 graduates in Track Vehicle Class 24

Sp4 Stephan W. Metcalf, Martinsville, Ind. was the distinguished honor graduate of the Track Vehicle Mechanic Course Class 24-71, which graduated in ceremonies March 31 at Infantry Hall. Sp4 James W. Wamhoff, St. Louis, Mo., was the academic graduate.

Guest speaker at the commencement exercise was MSgt. Fletcher A. McIntyre, of the Command Maintenance Department. He delivered his speech to the 37 graduating students.

While the students are attending the course here, they are assigned to the 15th Co., 1st Bn., TSB.

Metcalf is in the National Guard and Wamhoff is in the Reserves and both men will report to their hometown units for assignment.

Rangers slate yearly 'open house'

By Martin McWilliams

Sky diving, orienteering, rappelling, junior jump tower, a mock raid, small arms displays. . .it's all part of an "open house" to be held by Fort Benning's Rangers at Union Control in Quitman County, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., April 17.

The open house will be held principally for residents of Randolph, Quitman and Stewart Counties, but everyone is invited.

The Ranger Department of the Infantry School borrows woodland in these counties to conduct training exercises.

"Each year we hold an open house to familiarize the residents of these counties with the training which is being conducted in their vicinity," said Capt. Robert Pfrimmer, administrative officer of the Patrolling Committee. "We demonstrate the weapons, skills and techniques which we teach in our training areas here. We feel that people want to understand the nature of the activities which they catch glimpses of from time to time."

A second, very important, aim of the open house is safety.

"We want to orient the young people of the counties in the safe handling of any ordinance or equipment which may be lost during our training in these areas," said Pfrimmer.

In order to emphasize this point, presentations will be made on safe handling of equipment used in the counties. Also, the office of the Staff Surgeon of the Infantry School will provide an extra medical vehicle, from which first aid presentations will be made.

Activities at the open house will be many and varied, covering the whole range of Ranger skills and techniques.

Static displays will include a collection of foreign and U. S. small arms, a full set of Ranger team equipment, vehicles including armored personnel carriers, and several models of helicopters.

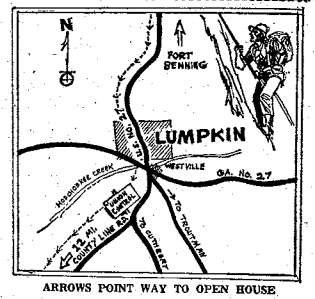
A junior jump tower, similar to the 34-foot towers used in Airborne training at Fort Benning, will be in operation for the youngsters. A jeep will be giving rides, and a display of Army radios will be set up for visitors to operate. A rappelling ramp also will be in operation.

A film on the international military sport of orienteering will be shown, and instruction and equipment will be available for those who wish to attack a short orienteering course which will be laid out nearby.

A mock raid on a waystation will be staged three times during the day. An Army truck will provide transportation to the area where the raid will take place.

A tour of Union Control will be given, and sack races and other competitions will be conducted.

Finally there will be a display of sky-diving by members of the Fort Benning Parachute Club.



In order that no one misses an event which they especially want to see, a public address system will announce special events in advance.

Light refreshments will be on sale to raise money for the Boy Scout troop sponsored by the Cusseta, Ga., post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. It is recommended that families coming out to Union Control before lunch bring a picnic lunch with them, and perhaps even some supper.

Parking will be available close to the activities.

A lot of activities? Yes, and lots of fun for the whole family. Everyone in Randolph, Quitman and Stewart Counties, Eufaula, Columbus, Fort Benning, and anyone else who can come is encouraged to make a day of it at the Ranger Open House.

For further information call 545-6211-6944.

177th Aviation Co. redesignated

The 177th Aviation Co. of the U. S. Army Infantry Center Aviation Command was inactivated and reorganized as the 205th Aviation Co. in a ceremony at 3 p.m. Thursday, at Lawson Army Airfield.

A color guard from the 205th Aviation Co., which has been serving in Vietnam will participate in the ceremony.

The inactivation and reorganization of the units will not bring about a decrease or increase in troop strength at Fort Benning. It merely means the adoption of the colors and designation of a unit that has served in Vietnam.

The 205th Aviation Co. was originally organized as the 2949th Quartermaster Truck Co. on Sept. 23, 1942. The unit was activated on Nov. 1, 1942, and distinguished itself in action during World War II in such places as Normandy and Northern France.

The company was inactivated Oct. 17, 1945, and redesignated on Aug. 1, 1946, as the 2049th Transportation Corp Truck Co. On Nov. 1, 1966, the unit was activated and redesignated as the 205th Aviation Co. at Fort Sill, Okla.

After extensive training in maintenance and operation of the Ch-47 Chinook helicopters, the unit was deployed to Vietnam, with the primary mission of general support in the III Corp Tactical Zone, which includes the area around Saigon.

Civilian AUSA drive begins

Arthur E. Medlock (Ret), the top post civilian personnel officer, kicks-off the AUSA membership drive among Department of the Army Civilians working at Fort Benning by accepting a new membership from Mrs. Mary Gissendanner, an intern in the civilian personnel career program, and a renewal membership from Mr. Woodrow Jones, civilian personnel staffing specialist. Department of the Army Civilians are welcomed into AUSA by the local chapter according to Lt. Col. John A. Seddon, membership drive chairman at Fort Benning. Seddon states that AUSA supports career programs for civilian employees and advocates improved career incentives. Membership blanks are available from AUSA representatives in each section or at room 502, Infantry Hall (telephone 545-4792).

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — What does the average new enlistee mean to an Army dental officer?

Well, in terms of treatment, he means three missing teeth, seven cavities, and about six hours and a half hours of dentistry.

36 educators to attend Infantry School forum

During the Infantry School's quarterly Civilian Educators' Conference next week 36 prominent Southeastern educators will be guests of the School.

Attending the conference will be college deans, school board directors, and other prominent educators.

"This is one of the largest and most distinguished groups we've ever had for the conference," said Col. Byron D. Greene, the School's Director of Instruction, which sponsors the quarterly event.

"The purpose of the conference," continued Col. Greene, "is to foster an exchange of new ideas and developments in education between civilian and Army educators. There is much we can learn from them, and we hope that they can pick up some new ideas that are being tried out here at the Infantry School."

The idea of the conferences developed when, after a visit to the Infantry School in 1969, Army Chief of Staff Gen. William Westmoreland encouraged such conferences to "broaden the base of understanding" between civilians and the military.

The conference will open April 19 with a welcome to the conferees by Brig. Gen. John T. Carley. Gen. Carley will be speaking for Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, commandant of the Infantry School, who is on leave.

After introductory briefing and demonstrations designed to familiarize the educators with Fort Benning and the Infantry School, the conferees will begin a series of visits and briefings designed to introduce them to innovations in education currently being pursued in the Infantry School. The new Individualized Learning Center, computer assisted instruction, and "contemporary problems in leader ship instruction" will be some of the subjects of these visits.

The visits will be interspersed with discussion sessions among the educators and members of the staff and faculty of the School. The conference will be wrapped up with a final discussion session from 11 to 12 a.m. on April 20.

105 reservists view Infantry way of life

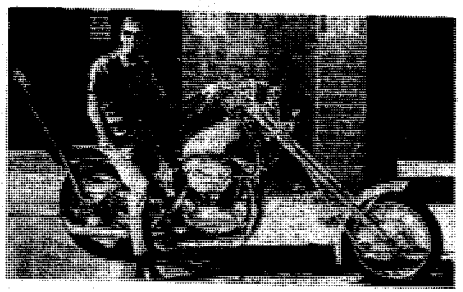
By Wendell Cochran

Some 105 Reserve Officer Training Cadets from around 3rd Army are getting a chance to see how Infantry lieutenants live and work this week.

The cadets, including a group from the University of Puerto Rico, arrived yesterday. Today they will be briefed on some of the Infantry School's newest teaching techniques.

This afternoon the cadets — who have been divided into 28 groups of three and four — will visit Infantry lieutenants around post. The lieutenants who will host the cadets have positions ranging from Infantry platoon leader in the 197th Infantry Brigade to staff member of Infantry Magazine.

The tour, sponsored in part by the Modern Volunteer Army program, is part of the Infantry School's attempt to recruit 1st appointment to the U. HOTC cadets to Volunteer S. Military Academy for Infantry commissions.



Tomorrow the cadets will view the Airborne 5,000 and "Rangers in Action" demonstration before departing.

Last night the cadets were guests at an official dinner in the Fort Benning Officers Open Mess.

Post youth wins merit scholarship

Robert V. Walsh, a senior at Baker High School in Columbus, has been named the winner of an honorary Merit Scholarship.

Walsh, the son of Sgt. and Mrs. Robert V. Walsh of 123 Englander St., Fort Benning, declined the scholarship after receiving appointment to the U. S. Military Academy.

If you're not listening, there's a course to help

A course in effective listening — a key to understanding and a way to becoming a more professional manager now is being offered to all interested personnel at the Infantry school's Individual Learning Center in Classroom 52, Infantry Hall.

The course lasts approximately 10 hours and can be completed at the student's pace.

It consists of six listening tapes in which there are a pretest, a post-test, and four tapes dealing with listening problems. A workbook is also provided to reinforce learning.

The effective listening course was developed from a period of instruction presented by the Communicative Arts Subcommittee, Management Committee, Leadership Department. Its objective is to increase listening proficiency.

By use of the pretest and post-test the student can see just how much he has improved his listening skills.

The course is concerned with four aspects of effective listening: Overcoming distracting noises, detecting central ideas, maintaining emotional control and evaluating the message.

Upon completing the course the student should be more adept at getting more meaning from more messages.

Sister receives authority to give Holy Communion

HQ., 3rd ARMY, Ft. McPherson, Ga. — Sister Joan Kist, moderator of the 3rd U. S. Army Military Council of Catholic Women (MCCW), is the first woman in the U. S. Army and one of the first women in the United States to be given permission to distribute Holy Communion.

Bishop Joseph A. Durick, chaplain delegate of the Military Ordinariate and Bishop of Nashville, Tenn., Diocese, has granted the special privilege to Sister Kist through special permission from the Holy See.

The permission was presented personally to the Catholic sister of the Order of the Sisters of the Blessed Trinity by Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Michael A. Rusnock, 3rd Army deputy chaplain, during the quarterly meeting of the MCCW. After receiving this permission, Sister Kist distributed Holy Communion to conferees, meeting in the Officers' Club at Ft. McPherson. A temporary altar was set up in the Officers' Club for the celebration of the Mass.

The overall permission for selected laymen to distribute the Holy Communion was granted by Pope Paul, because of a recognized shortage of priests and their need for assistance with their priestly duties. In administering the privilege to Sister Kist, Chaplain Rusnock explained that this permission was a matter of discipline and not of doctrine.

Members of the MCCW were also called upon by Chaplain Rusnock to read the Holy Scripture. Those reading were Mrs. Eleanor Sovia of Ft. Rucker, Ala.; Mrs. Margaret Stogner of Ft. Bragg, N. C., president of the MCCW; and Mrs. Theresa Hall of Fort Benning.

A quintet from the Ft. McPherson Ladies of the Catholic Chapel led the singing of hymns. Participating in the quintet were Mrs. Alice Valdez, guitarist, Mrs. Cynthia Evans, Mrs. Maria Digby, Mrs. Beth Hawry, and Mrs. Gail Swift.

Representatives from Catholic women's groups at Forts Benning, Bragg, Gordon, McClellan, Rucker, McPherson, Atlanta Army Depot and Warner Robins Air Force Base attended the conference.

Sister Kist, a native of Brooklyn, N. Y., marked her 23rd anniversary in the Catholic Order of the Sisters of the Blessed Trinity during the meeting. She was working in a North Alabama mission, when she was released by the diocese to serve the director of religious education for the post Catholic chapels at Fort Benning, Ga.

Secretaries honored from April 18 to 24

The secretarial profession and the secretaries in the local community will be honored April 18 through 24 during National Secretary Week. The Port City Chapter of the National Secretaries Association (International) will sponsor numerous activities to focus attention on the secretaries.

A Future Secretaries Association breakfast will be held on Secretaries Day, April 21 and a banquet will be held Tuesday night during which the selection of the Secretary of the Year will be made.

Commenting on the plans for the annual observance, Mrs. Loretta Boner, chairman of secretaries week activities for the Port City Chapter, said "during Secretaries Week, we hope to focus attention on the vital role the secretary plays in business, industry, education, government and the professions. The involvement of all secretaries in this observance reemphasizes the importance of continued loyalty of secretaries to their employer and responsibility to their profession."

A typical secretary at Fort Benning is Mrs. Dorothy G. Streetman, who is better known as "Dottie" in the Supply Division of the Directorate of Industrial Operations where she works for the division chief, Lt. Col. Charles W. Rock.

The Atlanta, Ga., native is the wife of Charles W. Streetman, a sales engineer for P and W Electric Supply Co. in Columbus.

A veteran of 27 years as a civil service secretary, Mrs. Streetman has served as a secretary to 14 officers during her career.

She said that even though her duties are varied and complex, she enjoys her work as a secretary and hopes to continue in her career for many more years.

Dependent Children Get Tank Rides During 'Wives Day'.

Tank, APC rides, games featured for 197th special 'Wives Day'

A special "Wives Day" picnic and party was held April 7 by the 4th Bn., 69th Armor, 197th Inf. Bd. — special, because it was probably the last "Wives Day" event to be sponsored by the present 4th Bn., 69th Armor. The battalion is slated for inactivation in the near future.

A cold, cloudy morning forced a last minute change in location and the battalion motor pool was selected as an alternate site. By 11 a.m., though, it was a perfect day for the out-door activities sponsored by Co. A of the Armor Battalion and some 75 wives participated in the various scheduled events.

The day's activities commenced with a short briefing by the battalion commander, Lt. Col. Hollis D. Messer. The talk welcomed the wives and was designed to provide them with an update on the pending inactivation of the 4th Bn., 69th Armor. Messer reassured the wives that most personnel would remain at Fort Benning as members of two large tank companies.

Following the briefing, Messer opened the day's activities. Featured were tank and APC rides, and an equipment display including an M60A1 tank, an M551 Sheridan, four-point-two-inch Mortar track, an M113A1 Personnel Carrier and an Armored Vehicle-Launched Bridge. (AVLB).

Games such as Husband-Wife "pilot" races, spoon and beer contests and mixed Volleyball games filled the rest of the afternoon.

Special guests included Col. Willard D. Latham, 197th Inf. Bde. commander, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Richard W. McKee, and the Brigade CSM, Frank G. Plass.

CC schedules seminar for women

A special six-week seminar for business and career women begins at Columbus College on Thursday (April 22.)

Sponsored jointly by the Chattahoochee Valley Business and Professional Women's Club and the college, the course will meet Thursdays from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. in Room 109 of the Howard Building.

The course will be climaxed by a fashion show by Kurven's and a buffet dinner in the Davidson Student Center on May 27. Certificates will be awarded at this time.

Seminar instructors include Doug Pritchett, head of Pritchett Advertising, Inc.; Dr. John E. Anderson, dean at Columbus College; Dr. Joseph Olmstead, senior scientist in the Human Resources Research Office at Fort Benning; and Dr. J. Fred Burgess, director of the Continuing Edunaton Program at the college.

Mrs. Juanita Passarella of Southern Bell Telephone and Mrs. Ann Roberts, local fashion coordinator and modeling instructor, will present short talks on proper telephone techniques and proper dress at the office.

The question and answer session will be led by Franklyn Lambert, city manager; Bob Lee of Tom's Foods Ltd., Eben Reid of the Fourth National Bank, and Ellis Swint of Southern Foods.

Cost of the six sessions is $12.75. Further information can be obtained by calling 561-3134, ext. 206.

Teachers evaluate readers

The first of education's "three R's" was the subject of a conference attended by a group of Fort Benning elementary school teachers recently.

At the meeting, which was held at the Callaway Gardens Holiday Inn, the instructors evaluated current reading materials provided by the Scott, Foresman Company, a textbook firm, and discussed new methods of teaching reading. Approximately 60 persons from Third Congressional District schools were present at the event.

Representing Fort Benning were Mrs. Arthur R. Wichmann and Mrs. Frederic M. Seig of Dexter School, and Miss Ann Spencer and Mrs. William A. Scott of Wilson School.

Mrs. Floyd C. O'Hern and Mrs. Johnny L. Haynes of Loyd School, and Miss Jennie Northcutt and Mrs. Phillip G. Latimer of McBride School.

Miss Ann Lucas and Miss Barbara Shevlin of Wilbur School, and Mrs. Jack G. Williams and Miss Colleen O'Brian of Edward White School.

Miss Jan Bennett, reading specialist at Patch School; and Mrs. Evelyn Southwood, post instructional supervisor.

Post wife feels 'open mind' essential to Army life

By Les Hauser

The life of a soldier has never been known for its stability. It fluctuates with the ever changing world political scene. The soldier and his family must be prepared to literally embark to the ends of the earth on short notice. His wife must be ready for the harsh reality of an unanxious year of waiting back home.

What would draw a family into such a demanding and uncertain career? In the case of SSgt. and Mrs. Kenneth Simpson it was "a chance to meet different people and move around." Mrs. Simpson, who is better known to her Fort Benning friends as Joe, was engaged to [illegible] band. "You have a chance as an Army family to go places and do things that you wouldn't ordinarily do on the same salary in civilian life."

Joe, who was a nominee for this year's title of Fort Benning's Military Wife of the Year, is no newcomer to Army life. Her husband, Ken, who is presently assigned as an instructor with the Command Maintenance Department of the Infantry School, began his Army career in 1960. The Simpsons tried civilian life in 1962. But Joe confided, "we just didn't like it. Besides, we felt my husband would have a lot better chance to increase his education in the Army." So in 1965 the Simpsons returned to military life.

Since their reentry into the military life style, the Simpsons have enjoyed a three year period of stabilized duty here at Fort Benning, from 1968 to the present time. Joe admits that the Benning tour was a little hard to believe. "We moved so many times in the first three years that we were back in the Army, that it really seemed funny to stay in the same place for so long." The Simpsons are veterans of four stateside moves, an accompanied tour in France and a tour in Vietnam.

Being part of a Volar (volunteer Army) experimental post has brought about a number of happy changes for Joe and her family in the last few months. Probably the most welcome to Joe is the elimination of Saturday work for her husband. "It's really nice to be able to sleep in on Saturday mornings and not have to send Ken off to work. Free weekends may not be much of a selling point for those coming in the Army, but for those of us who are already in, it's great. We now have the whole weekend to enjoy as a family." The Simpsons have a 5 year old son, Michael, who was born in France.

Sleeping late on Saturday morning is not the only Volar benefit Joe has noticed. She also singled out the reduction in the waiting period when visiting a clinic at Martin Army Hospital (MAH) as another significant improvement brought about by Volar and the MAH "We Care" program. She feels that the improved medical services of Army hospitals, especially the increased courtesy, will make a big difference to a lot of soldiers and their families.

Overall, Joe feels the Volar program at Fort Benning is definitely going in the right direction. "Its helping quite a bit by taking away many of the minor frustrations of Army life for both the soldier and his family."

But Joe realizes that such things as Saturdays off and improved medical service are not everything when it comes to upgrading the Army. "Pay raises will make a big difference, especially to the lower ranking soldiers," Joe said. "Our biggest period of adjustment was back in the early 60's after my husband first came in the Army and we had to get by on $240 per month."

After 8 years as an Army wife, Joe has developed a very philosophical approach to the inevitable frustrations of Army life. "The most important quality is a sense of humor. You can't get up tight about things. If you have to laugh or cry, you might as well laugh."

To maintain this kind of "open mind" Joe feels an Army wife must stay busy. "The most unhappy people I've come across in the Army are the ones who never step out of their front door."

Joe definitely practices what she preaches. She spends the majority of her time working with Army Community Service (ACS) on post. For the last two years she has served as ACS publicity chairman and is presently acting as adviser.

In her off hours, which are few, she serves as superintendent of both a Sunday school and Bible school class, a member of the Chapel Choir and the Protestant Women of the Chapel, a volunteer for the American Red Cross and President of the Non-commissioned Officers (NCO) Wives club.

Even though her schedule resembles that of a high powered executive, it is her way to becoming involved in the Army community. It is this type of exuberance which has endeared her to so many Fort Benning residents.

Unfortunately, Fort Benning is destined to lose Joe. Her husband is returning to Vietnem for his second tour. And she will reside with her son Michael in New Mexico. During this time she plans to return to college.

Regardless of what she does or where she goes, Joe will be a dedicated Army wife and happy of it.

Old toys needed

It's not too early to help plan a merry Christmas for needy families.

The Army Community Service and Provost Marshal Division need donations of used or unwanted toys for their "Operation Toy Shop."

All toys donated will be repaired by stockade prisoners and contributed to worthy military families in the Fort Benning, Columbus, Phenix City areas through the 1971 Fort Benning Christmas Aid Program for Military Families.

Through your toy donations needy children and their families can enjoy a Happy Christmas holiday.

Bring all toys to the front or back gates of the Post Stockade. For pickup of toys call 545-1957 or 545-7566.

Prekindergarten pre-registration

The Prekindergarten School of Fort Benning will hold pre-registration for next fall April 27 and 28 from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. Children with 1967 and 1968 birthdates will be accepted. Tuition fees will be $25 per month for one child and $45 per month for two children from the same family. Registration will take place at the school, Bldg. 322. For information phone 545-7497.

Track Vehicle Class 25 graduates 50 mechanics

Sp4 James E. Glau, Turin, Iowa, was the distinguished honor graduate of the Track Vehicle Mechanics Course Class 25-71 which graduated April 8 in ceremonies at Infantry Hall. The distinguished academic graduate was Sp4 David A. Boyer, Memphis, Mo.

CWO David T. Garnett of the Command Maintenance Department, USAIS, delivered the commencement address to the 50 graduates.

The seven-week mechanics course provides personnel with a working knowledge to perform organizational maintenance and recovery of tracked vehicles.

Included in the course of instruction are engine principles, valve adjustments, cooling and lubricating systems, carburation and fuel injection.

While the students are attending the course here at Fort Benning they are assigned to the 15th Co., 1st Bn., TSB.

Employes recognized

An awards ceremony was held April 9 at Martin Army Hospital. Col. Cesar A. Lopez, acting commander made the presentations.

Nestor A. Grafals, Food Service Division, received an Outstanding Performance Award with Sustained Superior Performance of $200.

Mrs. Virginia R. Hoffman, Registrar Division, received $70 for a suggestion award and Mrs. LaDena J. Rich, Management Services Division, was awarded $45 for a suggestion. Sp6 Arizo Geiger, Department of Surgery, received $35 for a suggestion and Mrs. Doris Powell, Headquarters, was presented $30.

56th supporters assist Rangers class

Student Rangers are "humping" the mountains near Dahlonega, Ga., with a little help from their friends of Co. C, 56th S and S Bn., 93ist Engr. Gp.

The Ranger students are undergoing a three-week phase of mountain field exercises with transportation aid of the Fort Benning unit.

In addition to transportation, the company is providing logistical aid including limited mess support and other kinds of backing involving the use of two-and-one-half ton trucks.

A volunteer platoon of Co. C, comprising 46 enlisted men and one officer, will spend the entire three weeks at the Mountain Ranger Camp during the student Ranger's cycle.

During that period, the transportation aces will be required to spend several nights in the field during mid-cycle training problems, topped by a six-day stint in the rugged mountain area during the final problem of the course.

The volunteer platoon of Co. C completed a six-hour drive to the training camp April 4 with 28 two-and-one-half ton trucks, a wrecker and two jeeps, and will return April 22.

The company made the trip to the mountain camp with the Ranger class as passengers in the two-and-one-half ton trucks.

Training days begin before the sun rises and end at dusk as the Ranger students take full advantage of each day.

DA announces new steps in race relations

More efforts made to end housing discrimination

Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor has announced several new world-wide steps in the area of race relations and equal opportunity and summarized those already underway. These include initiatives in off-post housing and changes in procedures involved in the administration of Article 15, Uniform Code of Military Justice.

Increased emphasis is being placed on eradicating the serious problem of discrimination in off-post housing which continues to plague the minority group soldier and his family in the United States and abroad. To accomplish this most important task, the following improvements have been made in the Army housing referral system:

All Army members, whether overseas or in the United States will be required to process through a housing referral office prior to entering into a rental or lease agreement.

Housing referral offices worldwide will require agents and owners to sign unqualified assurances that they will rent or lease their facilities without regard to race. The basic policy is that a facility, in the United States and abroad should be open to all soldiers or it should be open to none.

Commanders worldwide are authorized to place "off-limits" to military personnel any rental facility whose owner or agent is found to be discriminating against military personnel and fails or refuses to comply with a request to end the discriminatory practice. Such "off-limits" orders will remain in effect for a period of at least six months and until adequate assurance of change in policy is given.

The internal operation and staffing of all Army housing referral offices will be re-examined to assure the most effective implementation of the Army's nondiscriminatory policies. Special attention is being given by Headquarters, United States Army, Europe, to insure that the housing referral offices in West Germany are manned by highly motivated officer and non commissioned officers who will be responsible for assisting all personnel in obtaining reasonable and discrimination free off-post rentals.

An especially sensitive issue as been the rising number of complaints of racial discrimination in the area of military justice, more especially non-judicial punishment. On Feb. 26 of this year a major change in the administration of military justice was announced to Army commands worldwide. Under new Army policies all Army members receiving nonjudicial punishment under Article 15 of the Uniform Code of Military Justice will be entitled to consult with counsel prior to the imposition of punishment. Specifically, the changes to Army regulation 27-10 require that:

Members facing nonjudicial punishment will be informed of their right to consult with a judge advocate, the location of a judge advocate who may be consulted, and afforded a reasonable time for consultation.

Punishment will be imposed in the presence of accused.

Commanders will be required to post results of nonjudicial punishment conspicuously on unit bulletin boards.

A Department of Army action plan for military equal opportunity will be prepared which will cover comprehensively all Army activities bearing on race relations. It will set forth the goals of the Department of the Army in this area on a short-range and a long-range basis. This parallels a previously established action plan for Department of the Army civilian personnel.

It is now a Department of the Army policy that all enlisted promotion boards have minority group representation.

The Army has taken necessary steps to improve the training of all its personnel to help them better understand the racial sensitivities of both majority and minority groups. A four hour course of instruction in race relations is now being presented to all officers, warrant officers and noncommissioned officers attending junior leaders courses and to all trainees in Basic Combat Training. A similar course of instruction will be presented to students at the United States Army Command and General Staff College effective with the current class. As a part of the command's effort to eliminate racial discord, all noncommissioned officers academies in United States Army, Europe, now have race relations training programs.

Maximum use is being made of race relations seminars and councils to improve communications between personnel of different races, ages and grades.

The Army has instituted special recruiting for minority group officers. Enrollment of black cadets in the plebe class at the United States Military Academy has increased significantly over the past two years. There are now at West Point 87 black cadets, and 75 of these have enrolled within the last two years. New ROTC units at two black schools are being established bringing the total number to 16. A number of senior ROTC scholarships have been set aside for students graduating from high schools with junior ROTC in disadvantaged areas.

While, still maintaining high professional police standards, the Army now has completed a special project which was designed to increase the Negro population in the Military Police Corps. As a result of this project, which commenced in October 1969, 12.5 per cent of all personnel now in the military police enlisted career fields are Negro. Special efforts will also be made to assure that members of minority groups are assured entry into the high skill Military Occupational Specialty categories.

The Army's goal is to assure all soldiers a fair opportunity to serve their country with honor and dignity.

Voice of VOLAR

CHANGES

- Construction on barracks partitions is preceding well. Some TSB and 197th Infantry Brigade soldiers should be living in finished rooms.
- Gen. Talbott, in a letter to officers and noncommissioned officers, has reaffirmed that the VOLAR program will not be used as an excuse for lowered discipline.

New tax procedure made for dislocation allowance

WASHINGTON (ANF) — New instructions concerning the tax procedure for soldiers who receive a dislocation allowance payment have been issued by the Department of the Army.

Effective immediately, payments for dislocation allowance no longer will be subject to tax withholding nor will such payments be reported on Internal Revenue Service Forms W-2 (Wage and Tax Statement).

Nevertheless, soldiers should note that the news is not quite as good as it sounds because service members who are paid a dislocation allowance will be required to report dislocation allowance payments as income on their tax returns.

However, some expenses associated with dislocation and moving expenses are tax deductible; therefore, soldiers who receive a dislocation payment should check with their unit tax officer or legal office for further assistance in filing their returns.

"Hi! I'm Ret. Colonel Bob Huffaker. Let me show you how to start planning your retirement now."

"I live and work in one of the greatest new communities on Florida's Gold Coast, General Development's Port Malabar.

Since I'm going to be in the area, I'd like to tell you that one of the wisest decisions I've ever made was settling in Port Malabar. Tech. Sgt. Art Lanum made the same decision and his family is just as happy as mine."

If you're looking for a fresh start after the service, Port Malabar is for you. The community where over 4400 people have found a great new life.

Located in one of Florida's fastest growing areas, Brevard County, Port Malabar is only 4 miles south of Melbourne, 19 miles south of Patrick Air Force Base, 32 miles south of Cape Kennedy, and 60 miles from the exciting new Disney World slated to open late 1971.

Here's a prime location in the heart of Indian River Country with tremendous community facilities—country club with pool, 18-hole championship golf course and fine dining room. Plus yacht club, houses of worship and shopping center. Medical and BX facilities are at Patrick Air Force Base for qualified personnel and their families.

Colonel Bob Huffaker is aware of the retirement needs of all military personnel, be they E-5 or General officer. So get all the answers to your retirement questions from Colonel Bob Huffaker. And see an exciting color film on Florida living.

Walker, of Project MASSTER, Ft. Hood; and John Walsh, of Headquarters U.S. Army Materiel Command.

Not able to attend the ceremonies were Brig. Gen. Arthur Hurrow (ret.), and colonels Rex Blewett, James Carroll, Glenn Clinebell (ret.), Christian Dubia, William Jones, Hubert Nolde, James Senechal, Harvey Sweeney, Marvin Worley, and Calvin Wilson.

Induction ceremonies included the reading of the certificate of induction of each honoree, after which the portrait of the individual which will hang in the hall was unveiled.

After the induction ceremonies, Col. Garrison led the officers and their guests on a tour of Wigle Hall.

The Hall of Fame was instituted as a tribute to former officer candidates who distinguish themselves during their military career, or in later civilian life.

To become a member of the hall, a man must be an OCS graduate who has either received the Medal of Honor, achieved the rank of colonel, attained a prominant national or state public office or be recommended by the commandant of the Infantry School.

McCleery Co. B, Hq. Cmd.

The veteran of four tours in the Republic of Vietnam graduated from high school in Opelika, Ala., in 1956 and entered the Army that year in Montgomery, Ala. After basic training at Ft. Jackson, S.C., he attended Signal School at Ft. Gordon, Ga. After duty at Ft. Hood, Tex., and Ft. Bragg, N.C., Howard served from 1960 to 1962 as a parachute rigger at Evereux Faviville Air Force Base in France.

After serving three years with the 101st Airborne Division at Ft. Campbell, Ky., Howard began his first tour in Vietnam in 1965 with the 101st Airborne and later with the 5th Special Forces Group (Airborne). In subsequent tours in Vietham he served with the 6th Special Forces Group (Airborne), again with the 5th Special Forces Group (Airborne) and with the 3rd Special Forces Group (Airborne). He received a direct commission on Dec. 5, 1969, from sergeant first class to first lieutenant.

In addition to having graduated from the Noncommissioned Officer's Academy, Howard is a qualified Pathfinder and jumpmaster and wears the master Parachutist Badge and Combat Infantryman Badge.

dure the miseries and indignities of POW confinement, but also the dangers of war, especially the constant threat of allied firepower and combat opera-

Mrs. Powers knows the personal anguish of being the next of kin of an MIA or POW. Her son, CWO Lowell Powers, has been missing since April of 1969 when the helicopter he was piloting crashed while extracting South Vietnamese troops from a battle area in South Vietnam.

While at Fort Benning, Mrs. Powers met with members of the Personnel Actions branch to review what is being done to assist POW and MIA dependents in the local area. She feels the Army will have to concentrate on the "little things" when helping these families. She mentioned such things as housing, compassionate moves, scholarships and increased personal services as areas in which POW and MIA dependents desire assistance most.

Also during her tour at Fort Benning, Mrs. Powers met with Mrs. Benjamin Purcell, a POW wife and co-chairman of the Columbus, Ga., chapter of the Citizens Assistance program for POWs and MIAs.

After concluding her nation-wide tour Mrs. Powers plans to personally visit more than 700 primary and secondary POW and MIA next of kin throughout the country.

Infantry Board honors 6

Five civilians and one officer of the U.S. Army Infantry Board were presented awards in a ceremony held April 9 in the Board's conference room.

C. O. Shanahan received a $200 cash award for an adopted suggestion that the U.S. Army Material Command developers furnish a statement of the ensure requirement and description of the intended use of an item when requesting that the U.S. Army Test and Evaluation Command conduct tests of the item.

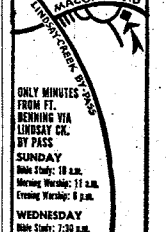
Capt. Harold G. Crowe received a cash award of $130 for his proposal that all feasible portions of the multicopy draft report of tests submitted to the U.S. Army Infantry Board Council be produced by the MT-ST operator rather than reproduction.

Bob F. Spitzmiller was officially commended for sustained superior performance of duties from September 1969 to November 1970 as equipment specialist (general), Test Division of the Infantry Board.

Sidney J. Martin was presented the Department of the Army Certificate of Service Award in recognition of ten years of Federal Service.

Louis A. Fritscher, a small arms repairman and James A. Sudderth, an equipment specialist, received awards for outstanding performance of duties.

'Servile' friend



A spaniel generally is thought of as a small or medium-sized short-legged dog, having long wavy hair, fury legs and tail and large drooping ears. The word also can refer to a cringing, servile person — one, as Walt Whitman put it, "that is well trained to carry and fetch."

Students tour Fort Benning

Forty students from Harris County High School visited Fort Benning Wednesday.

The group from Hamilton, Ga., toured the post, observed a scout dog demonstration and visited the Infantry Museum.

325 children died from poisoning in '70

More than one-eighth of all Americans who died last year by swallowing poison — 325 out of 2,500 — were small children too young to read labels and of an age when they put anything into their mouths, the American Red Cross has reported.

The Red Cross has these suggestions to help parents protect their children.

1. Keep household products and medicines out of reach of children, preferably in a locked closet or out of sight.

2. Keep household products in the original containers, never in cups or soft drink bottles.

3. Store medicines separately from food and beverage items.

4. Avoid taking medicine in the presence of children — they tend to imitate adults.

5. Do not refere to medicine as "candy."

6. Always turn on a light before removing a medicine bottle from a shelf. Read the label before taking it or giving it to another member of the family.

Clean out the medicine cabinet periodically. Get rid of old medicines by flushing them down the drain. Rinse the container in water and then discard. Date all drugs when they are purchased and weed out leftovers regularly, especially prescription drugs.

8. Do not serve or eat foods that smell or look abnormal.

9. Warn small children never to eat plants or berries they find.

10. After using insect poisons, weed killers, solvents, or cleaning agents, close the container and place it out of a child's reach even though it may be used several times during the same day.

ROTC students see life at Fort Benning

Reserve Officer Training Corps cadets from four universities toured the Infantry Center at Fort Benning last week.

A total of 212 cadets attended the tour, which included visits to Command Maintenance Department, the 197th Inf. Bde. and Airborne facilities as well as bus tours of the post.

Airborne, Scout Dog and Armor demonstrations were shown these students who will soon choose their branch of service upon completion of their college training.

The visitors also saw the commercial facilities available at Fort Benning, including the Post Exchange and Book Store operations.

Colleges included in the tour were the University of Wyoming, Pennsylvania Military College, California Military Academy and Florence State University (Alabama).

VA notes deadlines for various benefits

ATLANTA — Georgia Veterans Service Director Pete Wheeler is reminding the more than 2,000 Georgia veterans returning home each month that there are certain deadlines which must be met in order for them to qualify for various benefits from the VA.

"First of all," said Wheeler, "Federal law requires a veteran to advise the Selective Service of his address within ten days of his discharge. This notification may be in person or by mail.

"Federal regulations also give veterans certain re-employment rights," Wheeler said, "but he must apply within 90 days of the date of his discharge if he is interested in returning to his former place of employment."

Wheeler said that veterans should be particularly aware of deadlines pertaining to various insurance plans. For example, a veteran has 120 days from the date of his discharge in which to convert his Servicemen's Group Life Insurance policy to a private plan without having to stand an examination. A totally-disabled veteran has one year in which to convert his insurance.

There are deadlines on other benefits such as dental care and education under the G.I. Bill. Until recently there were deadlines on securing G.I. home loans but these expiration dates were abolished by law enacted by the 91st Congress.

Wheeler says that veterans should find out about their many benefits by visiting any office of the Georgia Department of Veterans Service.

Libraries' books

By Micki Krolicki

The Columbus Museum of Arts and Crafts, Inc., is presenting what I would consider a cultural "must see" exhibition. It's the Leonardo da Vinci exhibition which began April 7 and will be shown through April 29.

Since 1951, International Business Machines Corp.'s traveling exhibition of models built according to Leonardo's scientific and technical drawings have been shown in museums, colleges, universities and other institutions throughout the country. Now, the traveling display is in Columbus.

"The exhibitions are intended as a spur to creative activity and curiosity — the quality that leads man to ask questions about the physical world around him, to dream dreams for its progress, and then to search for the answers that will turn the dreams into reality," explains IBM.

Leonardo da Vinci investigated virtually every field of science and recorded his observations and reactions in thousands of sketches and notes. They contained practical solutions to specific problems of his day, plus envisioned such future possibilities as flying machines, automobiles and automation. No field of endeavor was too insignificant to excite his interest, none so large as to smother his enthusiasm.

Guides are on hand Tuesday through Friday. To arrange a tour call 327-2338. The museum is located at 1251 Wynnton Road.

Planetarium

Until last week I didn't realize that there was a planetarium within a 300 mile radius, then suddenly there it stood. The W. A. Gayle Space Transit Planetarium, 1010 Forest Ave., in Montgomery, Ala. Since I didn't have time to stop for the program, I grabbed a couple of pamphlets and here's what I found out:

Scheduled to run until May 23 is a program called "Giants of Astronomy." When we speak on astromony the names of some great men come to mind. Without men such as Copernicus, Galileo and Sir Isaac Newton, astronomy could not have advanced to where it is today. But our modern age also has produced its great astronomers, who are now paving the way for future study and trips into the realms of space. And 'Giants' reveals some of their recent findings.

Clark to co-star

Hollywood: Susan Clark has been signed by producer Harry Keller to co-star with James Garner, Lou Gossett and Brenda Sykes in "Skin Game," a Cherokee production for Warner Bros.

Miss Clark most recently starred with Burt Lancaster in the soon-to-be-released "Valdez is Coming" which was filmed in Spain.

Plumb loco

HOLLYWOOD: Warner Bros.' historic locomotive Number 4, used in dozens of films at the Burbank lot since it arrived in 1940, goes back into action on the James Garner starrer, "Skin Game," a Cherokee production for Warners. Before the 41,000 pound antique could get up a head of steam, her 85-year-old plumbing had to be replaced by Warner's head plumber, Louis Rentz. She'll travel about 90 feet in the film.

Race Relations at Ft. Benning

Lt. Col. Peter J. Foss, Fort Benning information officer, and Sp4 Mike Pearson of the Race Relations Coordinating group discuss the information section's program on race relations.

Bruce Pritchitt and Coretta Youman look at one of the displays featured during Negro History Week at the Edward A. White School on post. The purpose of Negro History Week, which was held in February, was to show the contributions Negroes have made to American life.

Lt. Col. Gene H. Lutkehe, commanding officer of the 5th Bn., 31st Inf., 197th Inf. Bde., asks a timely question during a discussion on race relations. At such meetings, black and white soldiers speak freely on their complaints and ideas regarding race relations.

Maj. Tyrone Fletcher, deputy chairman of the Leadership Committee of the Leadership Department, conducts an Enlightened Leadership Class, which is designed to sensitize those in command positions to the racial problem as it exists at Fort Benning. This instruction is given to all officers and noncommissioned officers on post.

A program initiated by Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott soon after he assumed post command in September 1969 has made Fort Benning a recognized example of what can be accomplished in the field of better relations and understanding among the races.

The accomplishments have not come overnight. Rather, they have leapfrogged from an extensive study of racial tensions to a point where Fort Benning is one step closer to the still far-reaching goal of a tension and incident-free environment.

The race relations study ordered by Gen. Talbott more than a year ago has resulted in several positive and productive actions being taken.

First, a Race Relations Coordinating Group (RRCG) was formed with its membership being drawn from both the black and white, officer and elisted ranks. An equal opportunity officer—a retired, white lieutenant colonel—heads the five-man group, which is charged with identifying potential areas of racial tensions and recommending necessary actions to lessen or eliminate these tensions.

Second, post-wide seminars on race relations were arranged, bringing together for the first time black and white soldiers to openly discuss race relations, their complaints, and their ideas for solutions to existing problems and grievances.

Third, the seminars, coordinated by the RRCG, have been extended to battalion level, with at least 36 being held each month on post.

Fourth, a course now being taught by the Leadership Department of the Infantry School is designed to make the leader aware of the attitudes of today's black soldier. This four-hour block of instruction is given to all officers and noncommissioned officer students in the Infantry School. It includes discussions of indicators or race problems and how a leader can recognize and solve these problems. Black heritage also is reviewed and filmed situations with possible racial overtones are shown.

The course also gives the soldier a sounding board for a free exchange of ideas that have helped open a positive avenue of communication between blacks and whites.

Fifth, a special one-day "enlightened leadership course," taught as a part of the pilot program for the Modern Volunteer Army plan, dwells on race relations instruction, attitudes of today's youth and problems relating to drug abuse.

Sixth, the RRCG is working closely with organizations in Columbus to foster better relations between the military and civilian communities, and to increase the number of summer jobs for underprivileged citizens of the area.

And seventh, the Information Section of the Infantry Center has prepared a number of fact sheets on housing discrimination, community activities and other areas of both military and civilian community interest for the soldier. It also has published historical articles on the black soldier in The Bayonet.

Gen. Talbott and those around him realize that the job is not completed—that additional steps are necessary if the scope of the program is to continue to reach all the way from the office of the commanding general to the dayroom of the smallest unit on post.

The program is bringing about decided changes in racial attitudes and prejudices on post. Along with these changes will come racial understanding and harmony—Fort Benning's ultimate goal in human relations.

Synopsis

CHISUM (Rated G). — John Wayne, the screen's most durable superstar and Academy Award Winner for Best Actor, burns up for west in a gut-busting western drama loaded with gunfire, stampedes, high-test banditry and the excitement of historical reality.

Wayne portrays an explosive character named John Simpson Chisum, known as the King of the Pecos.

Forrest Tucker plays Lawrence Murphy, a man who seeks to dictate the law and attempts to do Wayne out of his hard won cattle empire by gross trickery and deceit.

Besides the title character, the picture deals with other legendary westerners such as Billy the Kid, the delinquent outlaw and Sheriff Pat Garrett.

A NEW LEAF (Rated G). — Meet Henry and Henrietta — the love couple of the seventies, and the laugh riot of the year, in this wild spoof on love, money, marriage, sex and loneliness.

"A New Leaf" focuses on a confirmed bachelor, played by Walter Matthau, with a zest for luxuries. He squanders his personal fortune and then signs a note to borrow money from his cagey uncle while he looks for a rich wife.

Matthau finds one in the form of a dowdy botanist, portrayed by Miss May, and plans to do her in after he marries her.

But first he has to straighten out her loose household and financial affairs and take care of her crooked lawyer. By the time he performs these things he is resigned to his loving wife.

3 IN THE CELLAR (Rated R). — Guess what Wes Stern has going for him in this satirical comedy.

A student at Southwestern University, Wes Stern loses his poetry scholarship, because a computer announces he has no poetic talent.

His revenge evolves into a plan to seduce the college president's wife, mistress, and daughter.

Larry Hagman is creatively excellent as the prexy, when he's not plotting his own U. S. Senatorial campaign.

Joan Collins is attractive and deft as his astrology-mad wife, and Nira Barab couldn't be better as the rebellious daughter.

Marlowe twins to perform for 3 Arts League end of season show

The Three Arts League will conclude their current season April 19th with a concert by the duo-piano team of identical twins, Jeffry and Ronald Marlowe. They will perform at 8:30 p.m. at the Three Arts Theatre, 1029 Talbotton Road, in Columbus.

The twins are no newcomers to the concert stage, having begun their career at the age of 11 on the Milton Berle Show. This was followed by more TV appearances as guests of Arthur Godfrey, Garry Moore, Steve Allen, and the Tonight Show, among others. They have performed with the Philadelphia Symphony and toured for the National Music League.

The first half of their program will be devoted to classical music from Bach, Saint-Saens, and Grieg. Following intermission Jamacian folk music and a tribute to Burt Bacarach will be played.

Army offers 2 ways for college education

WASHINGTON (ANF) — If you're an enlisted man or woman you may be eligible for two Army education programs which authorize fulltime collegiate study while on active duty.

Army Civil Schooling Program (AR 350-200):

— Is open to enlisted members with a GT score of 120 or better who are high school graduates and who will have completed at least one year of service by the start of training.

— Provides up to two years full-time college study with the Army paying tuition costs and related fees. Participants also draw service pay and allowances.

— Offers specialized courses of instruction vital to the Army, but not offered by the Army school system. Enlisted participants generally earn associate degrees.

— Obligates the individual to two years of service for each year of schooling, or fraction thereof, but not less than three years.

Degree Completion Program (AR 621-5):

— Is open to enlisted men and women with 1 to 15 years service who can complete requirements for a baccalaureate or advanced degree within one calendar year.

— Authorizes selected individuals a permanent change of station to attend college while receiving full pay and allowances. Participants in this program must pay their own schooling costs; however, they generally qualify for GI Bill assistance.

— Obligates the individual to two years of service from completion of degree requirements.

Contact your unit personnel officer or local education advisor for further information about these programs.

ROD AND GUN CLUB

By Bill Kloeb

Plans for the Rod and Gun Club Family Day, May 2 are shaping up and its going to be a day that grown ups and kids will remember the rest of the summer.

Of course the big event of the day will be the drawing for the 17' bass boat and trailer. This Bass Master rig has everything. Its powered by a 50 horsepower Johnson motor to get to where the fish are in record time and sports an electric motor for close maneuvering and trolling in the fishing area. That's not all. There are winch controlled anchors to keep the boat over the hot spots, a temperature gauge, depth finder and all kinds of other goodies fishermen always want but can seldom afford.

Beer soft drinks and food will be free. In addition there will be sky diving exhibitions, static displays and demonstrations to keep old and young occupied and amused while they wait to see if they are going to win the boat or some of the $400 in fishing equipment to be given away during the course of the day.

It's going to be a big day for everyone. Remember its Sunday, May 2. Don't miss it. Get your membership now.

Rangers On Television

Members of the Infantry School Ranger Department will be on television tomorrow afternoon to show some poisonous and non-poisonous snakes found in this area. They will explain the identifying characteristics of each species and tell what to do in the event a person is bitten. The program is Ridley Bells' Sportsmans Lodge and its aired at 6 p.m. on WRBL-TV 3.

A week from tomorrow Lt. Col. Charles Rock, president of the board of governors of the Rod and Gun Club will be on the same program. He and Bell will discuss activities planned for the Rod and Gun Club Family Day, May 2 and other events the club will sponsor for the membership during the coming summer season.

Litterbugs

It's a monotnous topic but it's a problem that's always with us. Last fall the Infantry School had all the post ponds and recreation areas completely policed, but, there have been some thoughtless people making use of the facilities and leaving their trash for someone else to clean up. No one likes to clean up the mess left by another person but it looks like that is what is required if we intend to enjoy our outdoors without trash piles all over the place. It sure would help a lot if some of the thoughtful people would start making on-the-spot corrections. If litterbugs are reprimanded they may hesitate to throw their litter around the next time they are out. Let's not let these areas get into such poor shape that a major clean-up campaign is necessary again.

April Fishing Derby

The fine weather last weekend brought out a lot of fishermen who caught a lot of fish. But, those registered for the Rod and Gun Club monthly fishing contest will have a hard time holding up for the month. With the fishing conditions that have been predicted for the rest of April, these entries are bound to be topped.

SSgt. George F. Conner, Med. Co., MAH, registered the largest bass Sunday. It weighed four-pounds, five-ounces. He was using a live minnow and fishing at Kings Pond.

MSgt. (ret) L. S. Dill, 3054 Hendrix St. took an eight-pound, ten-ounce catfish from Weems Pond to lead the catfishermen, and MSgt. John Shelton (ret) 431 Victory Dr. caught a nine-ounce bream at Harps Pond to lead the bream contest. He was using meal worms.

Now is the time to fish the post ponds. The white bass run in the river has just about finished, and the crappie are all about to come off their beds. The bream and bass are beginning to get on the beds in the river and they are also bedding in the ponds, and it's a lot easier to find a good bed in a pond than in the river. Much more convenient too.

Cougars net 197th volleyball title

By Bob Wise

The Cougars of Co. C, 1st Bn. (Mech.), 58th Inf. "Patriots" are the new 197th Inf Bde. volleyball champions.

After playing down to the wire in a thrilling, week-long, double-elimination tournament, the Cougars defeated HHC, 5th Bn., 31st Inf., Friday at Kelley Hill Field House. Both the champion and runner-up will represent the 197th in the USAIC Tournament, which begins Monday at the Harmony Church Field House.

The Cougars remained undefeated through the entire Brigade Tournament.

The victory marked the second time in as many days that a team from the 1st Bn., 58th Inf., had won a sports championship. HHC, 1st Bn., 58th Inf. won the Brigade Bowling Tournament the preceeding day.

The Cougars earned the volleyball trophy after defeats of the 4th Bn., 69th Armor team, a forfeit from the 1st Bn., 29th Inf. team and an earlier defeat of the 5th Bn., 31st Inf.

The 5th Bn., 31st Inf. reached the finals after defeating the Bearcubs of Co. A, 197th Support Bn. in the first round, the 2nd Bn., 10th Arty. team in the second round, before falling to the Cougars in the third and fourth rounds.

The Bearcubs stayed alive after their first-round defeat, taking victories over Co. B, 1st Bn., 29th Inf. and C Btry., 2nd Bn., 10th Arty. The Bearcubs finished third, however, after they were overcome by HHC, 5th Bn., 31st Inf.

Headhunters win 197th's 3-day bowling tourney

The Headquarters Company Headhunters of the 1st Bn. (Mech), 58th Inf. ("Patriots") became the champions of the second 197th Inf. Bde. Bowling Tournament, April 8.

The Headhunters finished with the highest points of any of the 20 company teams vying for the title. The tournament was played over a three-day period. Three games were bowled each day.

Placing second in the tournament was HHC, 5th Bn., 31st Inf. HHC's Ray Burton was presented the trophy for having the highest game.

Clifford Childs of the 72nd Engr. Co. was honored for having the high series as he led his team to the third place spot.

Co. A, 197th Support Bn. placed fourth and HHS Btry., 2nd Bn., 10th Arty. finished fifth.

Richard Bauer accepted the trophy for his team's winning first place. Other members on the Headhunters squad were Otto Jones Jr., team captain, Leroy Brandt, Dale Aberle and Thomas Mundell.

Post marksmen dominate trap, skeet tournament

Capt. Kenneth Gilbert of the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit (USAMTU) allowed only seven birds to go free and won the Fort Benning International Skeet match, April 4, with a 293 of 300.

Competing in a line of 19 mixed service and civilian shooters, Gilbert fired a 96 the first day of the three day tourney which was good enough for only third place. Taking the high honors from the line for the first day firing was Phil Provence of Columbus, Ga., with 97 birds while Chuck Mayhew, Mesquite, Tex., who also knocked 97 birds from the sky, earned second place.

Gilbert came on strong the second day and took first place with an impressive 99 clay pigeons which placed him in strong contention for the championship and tied with Provence in first place for an aggregate of 195.

Both Gilbert and Provence had to take a back seat in the marksmanship on the final day when Sp4 Jay Gerlich of the Army Marksmanship Unit got the range and shot a perfect 100 to give other competitors little room for top place. Gilbert managed a 98 for second and Provence was two birds down for third. This gave Gilbert his tournament championship total of 293 to Provence's 291 for runner-up honors. In third place and firing a continuous steady pace each of the three days was Anthony Rosetti of Biloxi, Miss., who compiled a total of 289 birds.

In the two-man team, Gilbert and Capt. James Whitaker combined for a winning score of 384 of 400 to narrowly nose out the civilian team of Mayhew and Rosetti by two pigeons.

Mrs. Evelyn Volkringer of Pompono Beach, Florida took the honors for the ladies division when she fired a 213 while George Liebkeman of Cleves, Ohio captured the civilian class with 263 birds.

Winner of the military class which excluded shooters from the Marksmanship Unit went to 1st Lt. Richard Walton, 25th Company, The School Brigade, who fired a 275.

The USAMTU Trap shooters dominated the action and took both the individual and team honors during the Fort Benning Open Trap tourney completed April 11 on the Benning shotgun range.

Competing against a mixed field of the nations best 40 civilian and service trap artists, Sp4 Kenneth Blasi of USAMTU, won top honors but had to go two extra rounds before he could cinch the Championship of the 300 bird tournament.

At the close of the 3-day tournament scheduled shooting, Blasi and Sp4 Daniel McKenzie, a companion shooter from the USAMTU, were tied at 288 each. This situation was not changed at the end of an extra play-off round of 25 birds when each competitor scored 24 clay pigeons.

The following round was the decision maker when Blasi blasted a perfect 25 birds from the skies as they catapulted from the bunkers while McKenzie could muster only 24 for the runner-up spot. Third place honors went to Sp4 Donald Haldeman also of the USAMTU who fired a close 287.

In the civilian division, Elgin T. Gates of Needles, California, outshot his competitors and won first place with 286. Gates, fresh from victories in the Arizona single and doubles trap championship, lead the entire field most of the first day and was only headed by McKenzie with one bird in the final round. One of the nations leading Trap shooters, Gates was the high civilian in the 40th World Championships at Phoenix, Arizona last year and was only beat out by five birds in the final selection of the Olympic Team which was all Army.

In runner-up position was E. L. Arch of Wenatchee, Wash., with 267 while Vernon Blasi of Wichita, Kan. and father of Ken Blasi, hit 260 for third place honors.

Military class honors went to Capt. Robb Daniels of Bell Flower, Cal. with 256 while runner-up spot was claimed by 1st Lt. Duane Bigler of Philadelphia, with 246 total.

Team honors were captured by a team fielded from the USAMTU who put together a winning combination of 750 out of a possible 800. Team members included McKenzie, Haldeman, Sgt. Harry Skalsky and Sgt. James Columbo.

Post Pony Club rates young riders

The Benning Pony Club, a member group of The United States Pony Clubs, recently conducted "C" and "D" Ratings at Fort Benning which tested the young rider's ability in various aspects of horsemanship.

The Pony Club offers four different rating levels from "A" through "D" with "A" being the most difficult. Different parts of the tests included an inspection of riders and horses, written and oral examinations, a dressage test, stadium jumping and for the "C" rating, a two mile cross country course with 20 fixed obstacles.

The results of the ratings were announced last week by the District Commissioner, Capt. Bertrand A. Page II, and rating certificates were presented in a ceremony at the Hunt Club April 2 by Page and Mrs. John T. Carley, wife of Brig. Gen. Carley, assistant commandant, USAIS.

Selective Service sets doctor draft figures

WASHINGTON (ANF) — The Selective Serive System will draft 1,531 doctors of medicine, 77 doctors of osteopathy and 536 doctors of dental surgery and dental medicine from July through January 1972.

Of that number, the Army will be assigned 786 medical doctors, 41 osteopaths and 440 dentists.

They will serve on active duty for two years.

During the past 10 years it has been necessary to draft physicians each year except for 1970. However, dentists have been drafted only in 1961, 1962 and 1966.

The number of physicians and dentists required results from a decrease in the number of participants in procurement programs.

Ft. Benning to be site for rifle championships

By Bill Kloeb

Fort Benning has been selected as the site for the 3rd Army Rifle and Pistol Championships to be held Sunday through Saturday.

Approximately 230 rifle and 170 pistol shooters representing Active Army posts, and National Guard and Reserve units will compete on McAndrews Rifle and McPhillips Pistol ranges to determine individual and team champions.

There will be "open" shooter and "novice" shooter categories in both the rifle and pistol competitions. An open shooter is one who has previously competed in a championship of this type. A novice shooter is one who is competing for the first time.

Fort Benning will enter three open shooters and three new novice shooters.

The composition of the number one teams to represent the most will not be determined until this weekend but based on past performances SFC John Hackler and SSgt. Garland Lee are likely choices for the first team in the old and 170 pistol shooters pistol championship firing while Capt. Joseph Carobalth and Sp5 Jack Mays should be on the new shooter team. Sgt. Wilber Lewis already has been selected to coach the teams.

SFC Robert Little will be the coach of the rifle teams. Right now it appears that SFC Donald Tabor, SSgt. Jadie Price and SSgt. Freddie Hamilton will be on his old shooters team and Lts. Chester Freeman, Robert Beard and Oscar Williams will make the new shooter team.

Fort Benning shooters have been training for the events for several months and Lt. Col. Joseph Watson, officer in charge of the shooters believes they have a good chance to win individual and team championships in both rifle and pistol events.

Drafting job more creative now

Soldier's idea helps brighten his battalion

By Bob Wheatley

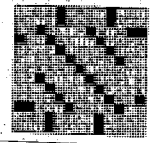
There is a new look in the daily life of the 1st Bn. (Mech.), 58th Inf. ("Patriots"), 197th Inf. Bde. An added bit of color and artistic endeavors are brightening up the battalion area.

This is because of additions in the battalion drafting section, initiated by Lt. Col. Stephen R. Pawlik, battalion commander. Under the guidance of Battalion CSM James J. Gallagher, an old office has been turned into a drafting and art room, filled with most of the essential equipment for necessary as well as creative work.

Sp4 William W. Lemmer, artist; PFC Edward E. Gallant, draftsman; and Sp4 Fred A. Shuttleworth, sign painter, are the three talented soldiers who run the office.

Lemmer was a biochemistry major at Valparaiso, Ind., but has decided to pursue a bachelor of fine arts degree in art. Shuttleworth was an art major at Montgomery Community College, Md., and plans to continue his art education after the Army. Gallant studied Industrial Arts at Adams State College, Colo., and Chaminade College, Hawaii. He plans to be a teacher.

"This office was realized through the efforts of Col. Pawlik and Sgt. Maj. Gallagher," says Gallant, who used the Army's "Open Door" policy. "I explained to Col. Pawlick that while I enjoyed my job as a truck (APC) driver, I felt that some of my potential was being wasted. After much discussion, he and CSM Gallagher decided to expand the old drafting job, adding an artist and sign painter. After that, it was just a matter of fitting the right man to the right job. Now I enjoy both jobs."



The routine business of making charts, signs, maps and diagrams is handled neatly and accurately. But the added color and design help make the charts interesting and eye-appealing.

The second part of the job requires the creative and imaginative touch of the men. Original party decorations in the form of props, painting and sketches, have added a warm, realistic touch to such festivities as a Rowman-style banquet or a German Folk Fest.

Another enjoyable part of the artist's job is to design and draw cartoons to liven up otherwise dull bulletin announcements of future events. And of course, their office is decorated with products of their wit and talent.

All this adds up to a brighter battalion and three satisfied soldiers.

BENEFITS FROM YOUR STATE & BONUSES

In June 1967 the State of Louisiana enacted a law to pay a bonus to citizens of the state who performed active duty in the Vietnam combat area. However, payment of this bonus is not authorized until the end of the Vietnam conflict.

Residents of Louisiana may obtain further information by writing to: Department of Veterans Affairs, Vietnam Bonus Division, 4th Floor, Old State Capitol, Baton Rouge, La. 70801.

While the State of Idaho has not passed a bonus act, it has constructed and opened the Idaho Veterans Home in Boise which guarantees disabled veterans a place to live in comfort and dignity.

Veterans also are entitled to perference for land opened for settlement and cultivation under the Carey Act. They may have their discharge papers recorded free and be furnished with copies needed for official purposes. If disabled, a veteran may receive preference in employment by public agencies and receive assistance in determining his eligibility for benefits from the Service offices of the Veterans Affairs Commission.

The commission publishes a monthly bulletin which covers benefits, both state and Federal.

Members of the Armed Forces on active duty and veterans who were residents of the State of California before entering the service may claim an exemption of $1,000 when paying state income tax.

There are other tax exemptions which cover veterans, such as a $1,000 property tax exemption, and a $5,000 property tax exemption for a disabled veteran.

The Department of Veterans Affairs makes low interest loans to qualified veterans for the purchase of a home or a farm.

You need a DD Form 1580 to fly standby

WASHINGTON (ANF) — PFC John Smith arrives at the airport and walks to an airline ticket counter.

"I would like a standby seat at half price for the next plane going to New York, please," says Smith to the ticket agent.

"May I have a copy of your DD Form 1580" the agent asks the privote.

Smith makes a bewildered face and replies, "I don't have one; what's more, I don't even know what a DD whatever-you-call-it form is"

"Well, I'm sorry," the agent responds, "But you'll have to pay a full fare like everyone else."

If you don't want to get caught like Smith, you need a DD Form 1580, which is an authorization for commercial air travel, for each carrier you intend to use at reduced fare military travel rates.

Mr. and Mrs. Car Buyer
Everywhere
U. S. A.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Car Buyer:

Have you been thinking of buying a better car this year? Are you as confused as we are about some of the ads, claims, offers, deals, and etc. being thrown at you these days? If you are, then please read on—we think you'll like what's here.

We here at Jno. A. Pope Motor Company realize that for most folks, the purchase of a new or later model car is a big decision, one that requires a lot of time and thought. We realize that with todays cost of living, everyone must make every dollar count on every purchase. That's why we say—look around, compare cars and prices—then COME IN, LET'S TALK IT OVER. No high pressure here, just look around and then we'll talk.

Jno. A. Pope Motor Company is happy to be able to offer you a most complete selection of new cars that runs the spectrum—economy cars like the thrifty little import from Japan-Subaru Star—the sporty Import Car of the Year—Capri—and-Comet's back this year! Next comes the family sized intermediates—Mercury Montego and up one more notch is the old reliable-Mercury Monterey, the oldest name plate in the entire industry. Now we really shine as one step up the ladder and we're at the magnificent new addition to the Mercury line, the Mercury Marquis and Marquis Brougham—both truly luxury cars at a price you can afford. The final step is up to our Lincoln Continental and Continental Mark III, absolutely the finest of their breed.

Now about used cars. We feel that the used car buyer is entitled to just as much car for the dollar as we can possibly give him. Therefore we try very hard to first select only those cars that are in top shape—then re-condition these selected to their peak, both in looks and performance before we offer them for sale. We offer a 1 year factory backed warranty with these selected cars that is unique in the industry.

Again we say—look around—shop and compare—then come by Jno. A. Pope Motor Co., 13th Street and 3rd Ave., Columbus—we'll be happy to show you our complete selection of cars—take you on a tour of our most modern service facilities—and then if you're in the market for a better car, we'll sit down and TALK IT OVER. We think you'll be glad you did—we know we will.

AUSA

By Stan Hefner

The Association of the United States Army (AUSA) — dedicated to the premise that a strong, modern, mobile Army is vitally essential to our national deefnse. Spring Membership Drive.

The chapter's spring membership drive presently is getting underway at Fort Benning and in the Columbus-Phenix City area.

Membership of the local chapter has slipped by some 2,000 since it was recognized as the world's largest and host chapter at the national AUSA convention last October.

The drive at Fort Benning is being coordinated by Lt. Col. John A. Seddon. Membership drive representatives are being appointed in units down through company level. These representatives will provide information material and membership blanks to persons interested in joining the organization.

Efforts to gain civilian members from the Columbus and Phenix City communities are being coordinated by the chapter's 1st vice president, Col. Jacob L. Rifley Jr., USA ret. His plans call for a one day "blitz" to begin with a kick-off breakfast on the morning of April 27 when some 50 persons from local business firms will devote the entire day to the recruiting effort.

Of particular interest is the drive to obtain members from the Department of the Army civilians who are employed at Fort Benning and whose interests are concerned with the goals of the AUSA. Currently only 200 of the approximately 7,000 DA civilians are members.

All members of the chapter are asked to help in the membership drive by every member getting a member. Your personal interest and support can help the chapter retain its top ranking.

The chapter commends the National Bank of Fort Benning for its support of AUSA as evidenced by their sign on the Lindsey Creek By-Pass supporting the membership drive.

Spot radio and TV announcements and news stories in the local papers will continue to highlight the AUSA. persons desiring information about membership may call the chapter office at 545-4782.

LIFE MEMBERS HONORED

Certificates of Commendation were presented to the chapter's most recent life members, Capt. Floyd L. Likens Jr. and Capt. William F. Blakenship, at the March meeting of the chapter's board of directors. In making the presentations, President Joe J. Flowers Jr. commended the two for their support of the Army and the Association.

Other business at the meeting included discussion of the membership drive, revision of the chapter's by-laws to increase the board of directors from 32 to 40 members and the chapter's financial report. Col. William R. Guthrie, chapter secretary-treasurer, gave a short presentation about ROTC as it is today and as it relates the community after discussion of chapter business was ended.

The meeting was held at the meeting room of the Fourth National Bank in Columbus.

RED CARPET TOUR

Approximately 85 businessmen touring the state of Georgia with the Red Carpet Tour officers of the local chapter of AUSA on their stop-over at Fort Benning April 7.

Members of the tour, which is sponsored annually by the Georgia Chamber of Commerce, saw the Airborne 5000 Demonstration at Eubanks Field before flying by helicopter to Victory Pond for a demonstration by the Ranger Department. Chapter officers traveled with the tour and were hosts at a free bar at Victory Pond.

ELECTION MEETING

Plans are now being made for the chapter's annual election meeting, to be held at the Fort Benning Officer's Club on June 14.

Further plans for the meeting will be announced at a later date.

MARCH AWARDS

Soldier of the Month plaques for March were awarded to Pvt. Timothy McCoy of the 931st Engineer Group; Sp4 Michael J. Keller, Headquarters Command; Sp4 William C. Scurry Jr., 197th Infantry Brigade.

AUSA plaques went to William C. Morstadt, distinguished graduate of NCOC class 2-71, David W. Dingfelder, distinguished graduate at NCOC class 1-71, and Ronald D. Carroll, distinguished graduate of NCOC class 3-71.

Gen. Talbott urges more suggestions

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is a letter by Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander, to all Fort Benning personnel on the Army Suggestion Program.)

1. Since the beginning of this fiscal year, many significant actions have taken place at Fort Benning, i.e., major reorganizations deactivation of troop elements major subsequent realignment of missions, and the introduction of the VOLAR concept and testing. The success we have enjoyed thus far may be attributed to the high degree of professionalism that exists among our personnel.

2. Concurrently, actions to improve Government operations to conserve tax dollars are being achieved by individuals Army wide. Fort Benning's suggestion champion was identified and recognized as Mr. Clarence M. Poole, Martin Army Hospital, who earned an award of $3,350, the highest single award paid for one idea at this installation. During the past nine months, 369 adopted suggestions generated tax dollar savings of $870,398 and earned cash awards to individuals totaling $21,440. It should be noted that a minimum award of $25 is paid for any suggestion which generates an annual savings of $250.

3. Many constructive ideas remain unrecorded thus unrewarded among our personnel. It is for this reason that I am asking you to support our 4th Quarter special effort to achieve maximum submission of constructive ideas to the Army Suggestion Program. Our objective and slogan is:

THE BEST-ONE FROM EVERY-ONE IN SEVENTY-ONE

Residents clean up Custer Terrace

"The area has been an eyesore for too long," said Lt. Col. William B. Phillips, post police and beautification director.

The area — he was referring to a tree-lined, leaf and trash laden section of real estate adjacent to the senior NCO quarters of Custer Terrace—was the scene of a massive cleanup campaign April 16 and 17.

Phillips, the prime mover of the neighborhood cleanup campaign, was impressed with the spirit and willingness of the occupants, of Custer Terrace and their efforts to improve the area.

"I've got blisters on both of my hands, but it was worth it, the area looks so much better," was the comment of Mrs. Carol Vines, one of the many participants in the clean-up. "It was just great, everyone helped, including the wives and children," said Mrs. Vines.

One of the main problems was the unavailability of dump trucks to remove the leaves and trash. But now that they are available the neighborhood clean-up project will include all housing areas on the post, Phillips said.

Children's swing-sets, picnic tables and barbecue pits will dot the cleared area of Custer Terrace. The occupants themselves will do the work with assistance of the post engineers.

Persons desiring trash assistance are requested to call Phillips or Sgt. Cornelius Shepherd at 545-2260 or 4292-3055.

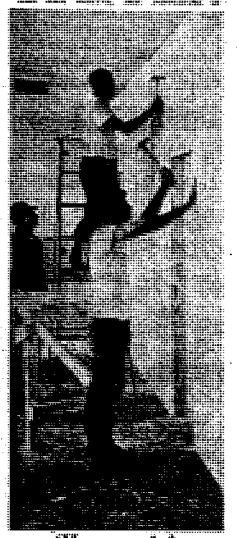
Area beautification

Senior NCOs and dependents living in the Custer Terrace housing got a head start on "Earth Week," which began Sunday, by staging a massive trash and leaf cleanup in the area adjacent to their quarters (above) last Friday and Saturday. Below, Custer Terrace children lend their efforts to cleaning up their environment.

For World Jamboree

2 scouts closer to Japan

The Airborne Association has moved two Boy Scouts almost 500 miles closer to Tokyo, Japan.



Tokyo is the site of this summer's Boy Scout World Jamboree. The Fort Benning District of the Boy Scouts picked two Eagle Scouts, Ralph Fitch [illegible], to represent the district at the Jamboree. Faced with the task of raising funds needed to send the scouts, Col. Foy Rice, chairman of the World Jamboree Fund, had the idea of asking people to donate "miles" toward the completion of the trip.

"Our campaign has been quite successful," says Col. Rice. "Enough so that the 500 miles donated by the Airborne Association brings the scouts almost to within swimming distance of the coast of Japan. Close is not all the way, though," continues Col. Rice. "We still need one last good push."

The Fort Benning Chapter of the Airborne Association made the contribution in a ceremony in the office of Col. Rice, who accepted the contribution in the name of the fund.

Presenting the check were Lt. Col. James Anderson, chairman of the Patrolling Committee of the Ranger Department and president of the Fort Benning Chapter of the Airborne Association, and MSgt. John Quirk, also of the Patrolling Committee, who is chapter secretary.

For further information on how to add a few miles to the fund, call the Scout Center at 545-1881.

"Hammer-in"

Soldiers of the 43rd Engineer Battalion put the finishing touches on permanent partitions that were placed in a barracks on post. A major goal of Benning's Project VOLAR is to have all men living in barracks, living in partitioned barracks.

Ex-USAEUR head briefed on 197th option

Gen. (ret.) Bruce C. Clarke, former commanding general of the U.S. Army Europe, visited Fort Benning Wednesday and Thursday to receive a briefing from the 197th Infantry Brigade on "Unit Choice of Recruiting."

Gen. Clarke is now a consultant for the Army on Unit of Choice Recruiting and special assistant for the Modern Volunteer Army program.

The 197th Inf. Bde. at Fort Benning is one of several Army units selected for the unit of choice enlistment program. Under the program a person may select a specific unit with which he wishes to serve. After basic and advanced training, he will serve a major portion of his Army tour with that unit before or after a short overseas tour.

Gen. Clark, a native of Adams, N. Y., enlisted in the Army in April 1918, and was discharged later that year. He enlisted in the National Guard of New York in January 1920, and was appointed to the U. S. Military Academy.

He was assigned as commander of the U. S. Continental Army Command (CONARC) in August 1958.

Eufaula 'Moorer Days' will honor Joint Chiefs of Staff chairman

Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, will be honored during Moorer Days in his hometown of Eufaula, Ala., today and tomorrow.

Four units from Fort Benning will participate in the activities. The Infantry Center Band will perform during a parade to be held in downtown Eufaula at 10:30 a.m. tomorrow and again the same day at Moorer Middle School, which will be dedicated in honor of Adm. Moorer at 3 p.m.

The Color Guard and Marching Unit of the 197th Infantry Battalion will march in the parade Saturday morning.

The Scout Dog demonstration unit from Fort Benning will perform at 12:30 p.m. tomorrow.

23 make 197th Inf. Bde. their 'unit of choice'

By Bob Wise

The 197th Infantry Brigade's recruiting efforts have gathered a full head of steam during the past few months. As of the first week of April, 23 young men within a 125-mile radius of Fort Benning have the guarantee of serving at least six months with the 197th.

The 197th is one of seven major Army units in the Continental United States selected to test the new recruiting program. The success of the "unit of choice" recruiting option will provide a portion of the yardstick the Army will use in measuring the feasibility of a zero draft.

During February and March the Army's largest brigade conducted 16 equipment displays and 27 high school presentations. These activities netted 873 referrals, from which 31 enlistments occurred, 23 of whom chose the 197th.

"Accurate evaluation of the program is difficult at this early date," said Maj. Caryl G. Marsh, brigade quality control officer. "However, initial statistics probably do not reflect the entire benefits derived from the program. It is reasonable to expect some high school seniors to enlist under a 120-day delay.

"There also exists the probability that many high school seniors will wait until late summer or early fall to enlist," continued the major.

Marsh went on to say that "a second aspect of the program difficult to evaluate is that of public image. The brigade has received a very warm reception from an estimated 80,000 persons who reviewed the recruiting events."

Although the brigade is focusing its efforts within a 125-mile radius, it is not restricted to this Area of Operations. The brigade AO is divided into five battalion AOs — three working with the Atlanta Recruiting Main Station (RMS) and two working with the Montgomery RMS.

The brigade recruiting teams were hand-picked from a group of men who "depict my idea of the 'soldier image' — both in attitude and appearance. Our recruiters are soldiers who are completely sold on the Army as a rewarding career and sold on the 197th Bde. as the finest unit in the Army. They have the ability to sell themselves to their prospects. They are representing the Army in a superb manner and have been very well received by the civilian community. They are doing a tremendous job," praised Marsh.

Under the new program, an individual can enlist for the 197th Inf. Bde. He receives his basic and advanced training at a U.S. Army Training Center and upon graduation from his training, he is assigned to the brigade for a minimum of six months.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT
by Bill King

For an extra special cocktail dip, mix a cup of sour cream with a tablespoon of bourbon, a half teaspoon of lemon juice and a few good dashes of chopped dill and garlic salt.

If you favor dishes calling for boned chicken breasts, don't forget to simmer the meaty bones and freeze the stock for later use.

Pound cake got its name because years ago it was made with a pound of eggs, a pound of flour and a pound of butter.

Poached eggs will stay firmer if you add a spoonful of lemon juice to the cooking water.

If taxes have left you feeling pretty poor, try this marinade for inexpensive beef cuts: simmer a sliced, unpeeled orange and lemon with some minced garlic in a half cup of oil until fruit is soft. Add salt and pepper and marinate meat for several hours in the warm mixture.

Your property may be sold for rent

USAIC LEGAL ASSISTANCE OFFICE — So your rent was due yesterday and you don't have the money. What happens if your landlord will not wait until you can get the cash?

If a house or an apartment is being leased under a written lease agreement, the terms of the contract will determine the rights and liabilities of the tenant. But what happens if the period stipulated in the lease has ended and the tenant is holding over, or the more typical situation where the tenant rents by the month under oral agreement and the monthly rent is overdue?

There are two things that landlords may do. He may have the tenant evicted, and he may seize the tenant's property and have it sold in order to collect the rent.

The dispossessory warrant is used by the landlord to remove the tenant and his property from the premises. First, the landlord signs an affidavit before the judge of the superior court or any justice of the peace that the tenant has refused or omitted to deliver possession upon demand. The judge or the justice of the peace then issues a summons to be served upon the tenant.

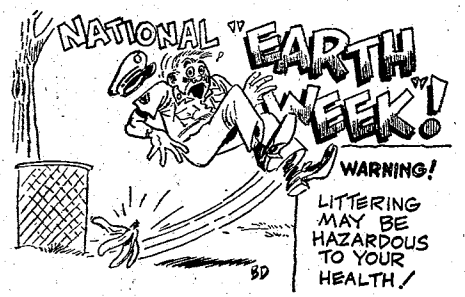
The summons requires the tenant to appear in court on a specific date not less than five nor more than 20 days from the date of service. The tenant may enter a written or oral answer to the landlord's affidavit, setting forth any defense or counterclaim he may have. If the tenant does not answer, the court issues the dispossessory warrant. If the tenant answers, a trial date is set and the tenant is allowed to remain in possession of the premises pending the final outcome of the litigaton. However, if the trial cannot be completed within one month of the date of the original affidavit, the tenant must pay into the court all rent allegedly owned prior to the entry of final judgment, unless he can show the court a receipt for payment to the landlord.

If the teamnt fails to make any rental payment as it becomes due, the dispossessory warrant is issued immediately and the tenant is evicted. Payments made by the tenant into the court are then paid to the landlord, except that the court retains in a fund any amoiint to which the tenant has made a claim in the proceedings.

If, after the trial, the court enters a judgment against the tenant, the judgment is for all rent due plus any other claim relating to the dispute. If judgment is for the tenant, he is entitled to remain in possession of the premises and to recover from the landlord all damages which he can show were caused by the landlord's misconduct and were reasonably foreseeable.

If the tenant appeals a judgment against himself, he may remain in possession of the premises during the pendency of the appeal so long as he pays into the court all rent which becomes due after the entry of the judgment. Again, if the tenant fails to make any rental payment as it becomes due, the dispossessory warrant is issued immediately and the tenant in evicted.

The final and perhaps most important provision concerning dispossessory warrants is that, in any action for nonpayment of rent, the tenant is permitted to offer to the landlord, within seven days of the service of the summons upon him, payment of all rent allegedly owed plus the cost of the dispossessory warrant if it has been issued. The offer is then a complete defense to the action, except that the landlord is required to accept such an offer from the same tenant only once in any 12-month period.



The distress warrant is used by the landlord to seize the debtor's property as security for payment of the rent. Again, the landlord must file an affidavit stating that a debt is owed

If the tennant fails to may levy on any property belonging to the tenant, whether the property is on the premisies or elsewere. The officer then advertises and sells the property.

Any amount received from the sale over and above the amount of the rent is to be refunded to the tenant. The practice in the Columbus area is that the property so levied is to be advertised for 10 days and then sold. Therefore, the teannt has ten days in which he may be able to get back his property.

The tenant may file a counter-affidavit and deny that the landlord's allegations are true, this must be done within the ten day period. Further, if the property has been taken into the possession of the officer, the tenant must post bond equal to double the value of the property while the case is pending; however, if the officer regains possesion of the propety, the tenant need not post bond.

For further information pertaining to dispossessory warrants and distress warrants, contact your Legal Assistance Officer.

Looking behind all that smoke

In 1613 John Rolfe sent the first shipment of Virginia tobacco from Jamestown to England. From that time to the present, growing tobacco and manufacturing its products has been one of the leading industries of the New World.

(Emphysema — A disease which causes the lungs to become greatly enlarged. A high percentage of those who get emphysema are heavy smokers.)

But long before Europeans learned of tobacco, its use in America was common. Columbus reported of Indians of the Caribbean drawing smoke through a Y-shaped pipe called a tabaca.

(Chronic bronchitis — An inflammation of the lining of the bronchial tubes. When the bronchi are inflamed and infected, the air flow to and from the lungs becomes labored and a heavy mucus or phlem is coughed up.)

At first the tobacco of the West Indies and the Orinoco Valley of South America were the only type known in Europe. It is believed that Rolfe started the highly profitable tobacco trade to the colonies by planting South America tobacco seeds in the rich Virginia soil.

(There were about 65,000 new lung cancer patients in 1969, while about 59,000 Americans died of lung cancer during the same period.)

Despite the popularity of the leaf, tobacco production only requires a relatively small number of acres to meet the demand for domestic use. About one and a half million acres are planted in tobacco, as compared to abut 50 million acres in wheat and 100 million in corn. Tobacco is normally grown on soil where grain crops will not flourish.

(Lung cancer is the leading cause of cancer death among men.)

Chemical products from tobacco are numerous. Some of them, such as nicotine sulfate, are extremely important in controlling insect pests. Nicotine is used in sheepdip. Nicotine tartrate is used in medicine as a drug which counteracts the effect of tetanus and strychnine poisoning. Vegetable oils and perfumes also have been made from tobacco. (AFPS)

Byline Bayonet welcomes questions of general interest about Fort Benning and the Army. Within space limitations, all reasonable questions will be answered. Questions of a purely military nature which obviously could be answered more properly by commanders or supervisors within the chain of command will not be accepted. Questions must be signed with current unit of assignment indicated. Send questions to The Bayonet, Room 602, Infantry Hall.)

Q — Why can't people take cokes into the main auditorium of the Post Theatre No. 1, as can be done in civilian theaters and other Post Theaters?

A — According to the Fort Benning Theatre Officer there are many obvious reasons, the main ones being inconvenience to other patrons while a person is attempting to find a seat. Also spilling of coke on the seats and the floor, thus causing an unsanitary condition, and the possibility of dumping a coke into someones lap are two other reasons.

Q — Is it necessary to have the mice clean Theatre No. 1?

A — No monthly inspections are made by rodent control teams from the Post Engineers who put out traps and poison in an effort to eliminate the mice problem. This is a problem that arises in any area where food and drinks are served and occasionally spilled on the floor.

Q—What is the current Army policy on the release of "obligated volunteer" (OBV) officers?

A—We think DA message ADCSPER-PSandT 061824Z, Mar 71, subject: Early release of OBV Officers, is the reference you need. In addition to this you might want to check out USAIC Circular No. 635-2 which further explains and clarifies those areas most questioned in the DA message.

The circular has this to say: "The early release dates established are mandatory. No exceptions will be made except those specifically provided for in the referenced message. The 90-day hardship extension provided for in paragraph 5b(4), AR 135-215 is suspended while reference a. remains in effect. Hardship extensions other than provided in paragraph 4, reference a. must be forwarded to Headquarters Department of the Army for approval. Only extreme cases of hardship will be considered. Hardship extensions approved by commanders prior to 26 February 1971 will be honored. Paragraph 2B, reference a. is not intended to preclude further applications for volunteer indefinite, two year extensions, or extension for promotion to captain. Officers desiring such extensions should apply in accordance with applicable regulations based on new release date.

"Officers who entered active duty as first lieutenant and who are promoted to captain at 12 months service are not required to sign extension agreements as a precondition for promotion to captain. These officers therefore will be subject to the early release dates specified."

The termination date of the 60 day release is not known at this time; however, current plans anticipate its continuation through Fiscal Year 1972.

Departing liaison

Maj. N. Mahn Tien of the Army of the Republic of Vietnam, who has represented his country at the Infantry School for the past 16 months, accepts a certificate of recognition during a farewell office call with Brig. Gen. John T. Carley, assistant commandant of the School. Tien will now return to a duty assignment in his own country.

Agencies drive lags behind last year

"With about ten per cent post participation, the drive is lagging a little behind last year's campaign." That's the evaluation of James Schoonover, post project officer for International Service and National Health Agencies Fund Drive at Fort Benning.

The campaign is now at the end of its fourth week. The fund drive, which began at Fort Benning March 29, supports eleven voluntary associations forming the National Health Agencies and the organizations comprising the International Service Agencies.

Those agencies include the American-Korean Foundation, the Planned Parenthood World Population, CARE, and Project HOPE.

The agencies conducting the campaign promote better health for all through programs of medical research, education and community services. For the continuation and expansion of these programs both nationally and locally, support of the non-profit, public service National Health Agencies is essential.

The agencies conduct professional education programs that inform doctors, nurses and other health professionals about the latest advances and help them improve their skills.

At the same time the general public is alerted on how to recognize disease symptoms promptly, is encouraged to have regular check-ups and is cautioned against unwarranted fears.

Service activities aid the afflicted, their families and individual communities. Particular interests include the detection of health problems, support for clinics, counseling and rehabilitation.

Functional word class available

A vocabulary course designed to give a student a good knowledge of functional words is now available to all interested persons in the Infantry School's Individual Learning Center located in Room 52, Infantry Hall.

The course, developed by the Communicative Arts Subcommittee, Management Committee, Leadership Department, is taught by both audio tapes and 35mm slides.

It is designed to bring the student up-to-date professional help in the improvement of his reading, writing and speaking skills.

The course is designed to give the student a clearer understanding of what he reads, more color and precisenss in writing and speaking, and more confidence in speaking.

The words included in the course are common words, but ones that are frequently difficult to master.

Explorer scouting now has coeds

Scouting has now gone co-educational. Explorer scouting, that is.

The national office of the Boy Scouts of America has approved the policy of allowing young ladies to enjoy all the rights of Explorer posts and to hold office.

Col. (ret.) Dale Liggett, Fort Benning District Scout Executive, said the policy was adopted because "young women are interested in some of the experiences and activities performed by explorer posts."

Explorer posts, he added, are of two main types, general interest and specialized interest.

Young men and women who qualify as Explorers must be at least 14 years of age and in the ninth grade or higher or 15 years of age regardless of grade.

Membership may continue by annual reregistration through the 17th year regardless of grade or as long as the Explorer continues as a full-time student in high school.

A special interest Explorer post is just what the name implies. The post may have an interest in medicine, automatic data processing, radio, sailing, aviation, television, law enforcement or some other special interest.

Meetings are planned so that the young Explorers may gain first-hand experience and knowledge of their particular special interest.

A general-interest Explorer post, in contrast to a special-interest post, has a broad and varied program frequently oriented to the outdoors.

The theme of the Explorer program is action-oriented programs which are designed to serve as a transition period for young adults.

Young persons who desire to see if they qualify for the Explorer program may telephone the Scout Service Center at 545-1881.

VOLAR benefits all grades, project official tells jr. officers

VOLAR has something to offer every grade and is improving the quality of Army life in general, Lt. Col. Aldric M. Hayes, Project VOLAR's deputy chief, stressed at a recent meeting of the Fort Benning Company Grade Officers Council.

Fielding questions from council members, Hayes said that most soldiers agree that VOLAR actions are good but that the most important factor for retaining men in the Army is pay.

The continuation of VOLAR actions is not contingent upon an immediate rise in reenlistment rates, he commented. Rather each action will continue or be discontinued on its own merits.

Hayes said that present indications are that the VOLAR test at Fort Benning will continue into fiscal year 1973.

The colonel noted that ice cream and milk machines are being installed in mess halls under the VOLAR program and that hamburgers have proven to be the most popular item in the short order service offered at mess facilities.

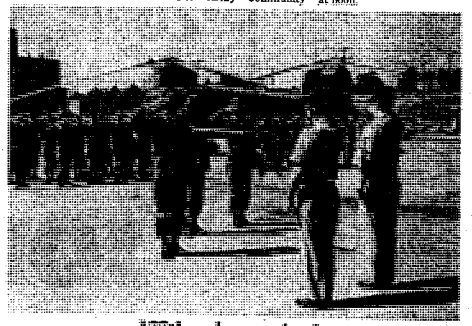
Increased emphasis is being placed on the importance of each individual accepting his responsibility to raise the standards in the Army in the Modern Volunteer Army plan, Hayes said.

In their business meeting the council members noted that the Officers Open Mess has hired a Negro beautician who specializes in beauty treatments for blacks.

Also discussed was the hiring of four new supervisors by the Grounds Unit on post and unit pricing at the commissary.

Retirees to be briefed on benefits as civilians

Retired military personnel in the Fort Benning area will receive a briefing on changes in their rights, benefits and privileges at an open house slated for next Friday.



The open house will begin at 9 a.m. in Marshall Auditorium in Infantry Hall with a welcome by Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander.

Also to be included in the morning's program are a briefing on the retirement services program, a briefing on the Modern Volunteer Army and a briefing on the planned Community Center.

The Army Community Services organization will explain their program at the meeting. The retirees also will receive information on military and civilian medical care, a briefing on post exchange facilities and services and information on veterans benefits under the Veteran's Administration.

After the briefings the retirees and their wives will move to classrooms for seminars on membership and operation of the officer and NCO open masses.

177th colors retired

Members of the 177th Aviation Company, including Maj. Peter R. Coggins (left foreground), company commander, salute as the standard bearer slowly rolls the colors of the 177th up for the last time. The ceremony, held April 15, marked the deactivation of the 177th Avn. Co. and the activation of the 265th Avn. Co. (Geronimos) in its place. Lt. Col. Robert A. Duvall (R), Aviation Command executive officer, presided at the ceremony. The 177th was cited for its work in support and rescue missions as well as several 10,000 and 20,000-hour safety records.

Get glimpse of summer

Wyo. cadets visit School

The Infantry School was host April 8-10 to 28 Reserve Officer Training Course cadets from the University of Wyoming.

The orientation visit was of particular interest to many of the cadets, who plan to return to Fort Benning this summer to take part in infantry training programs now available to ROTC cadets.

The Wyoming ROTC detachment hopes to send at least eight cadets to the Ranger course this summer. Under a new program, ROTC cadets may enroll as Ranger students, and earn the tab if they complete the course. Those completing at least five weeks of the nine-week course will be excused from attendance at the usual ROTC summer camp.

Another 18 cadets hope to attend th Airborne Basic Course here. The three-week course, leading to silver parchutists's wings, is open to cadets who are willing to pay for their own transportation and meals while at Fort Benning.

The cadets viewed a hand-to-hand combat demonstration, toured the Infantry Museum, attended a demonstration of military scout dog capabilities, and saw a static aircraft display.

Highlight of the visit was a tour of the Airborne training area, which featured descents from a specially-rigged 250-foot training tower and jumps from the 34-foot "mock tower" used in Airborne training.

197th NCO crosses TSB hold on honors

A 197th Infantry Brigade noncommissioned officer has become the second soldier outside The School Brigade to earn top honors in the Instructor Training Course (ITC) of the Infantry School.

SSgt. Willie C. Ingram, Co. B, 1st Bn., 29th Inf., was named one of two honor graduates at the course's April 12 graduation ceremonies.

Normally, there is only one honor graduate of the ITC. But Ingram apparently tied in total points with SFC Jeffel Stephens Jr. of the Ranger Department and had to share the honor.

The ITC students are judged on their test scores as well as their over-all capabilities of performing as an instructor. The course, built around practical application, deals with personal and material presentations and how to conduct lectures and conferences.

Ingram, 34, a native of Philadelphia, Pa., who gave a 50-minute Preparation for Overseas (POR) class on Vietnam for his final examination, was the Fort Bragg, N.C., and 3rd Army welterweight boxing champion from 1957-58. He was the U.S. Army, Pacific (USARPAC) light heavy weight champion from 1963-64.

Ingram turned coach Europe (USAREUR team to championships three years in a row.

A veteran of 15 years of Army service, Ingram has spent 19 months in Vietnam and was assigned to the 1st Bde., 8th Inf. Div., Germany, before coming to the 197th Inf. Bde. in August, 1969.

Ingram is NCOIC and instructor in ROR training in the 29th Inf.

'Army' features Benning article

Fort Benning's efforts in the test of Modern Volunteer Army concept are featured in the April issue of "Army" magazine, the publication of the Association of the United States Army.

The issue also contains an article describing the "We Care" program at Martin Army Hospital, one of the important MVA innovations on post.

Both articles were written by the magazine's editor-in-chief, L. James Binder, who visited Fort Benning in February.

Bedside commissioning

In a special swearing-in ceremony, at the Martin Army Hospital Intensive Care Unit, John A. Trefry Jr., 50th Co., 5th Stu. Bn., TSB Brigade, received his commission in the United States Army Reserve. Lt. Col. John A. Trefry, USAF (ret.), Lt. Trefry's father, administered the oath to his son, who was hospitalized after a timber fell on him while he was erecting a monument to his graduating class, 10-71, in the 5th Stu. Bn. area the day prior to graduation. Lt. Trefry will be assigned to TSB for duty as a tactical officer upon his recovery.

Local man awarded Bronze Star

The Bronze Star Medal and the Purple Heart were awarded posthumously to SFC John W. Herring in recent ceremonies here. He was the husband of Mrs. Lillye R. Herring of Columbus, Ga.

The decorations were presented to Mrs. Herring by Col. Malcolm Baer, post adjutant general. Also present a the ceremony were Mrs. Herring's parents, Sgt (ret.) and Mrs. Cecil Hawkins; Mrs. Herring's sister, Mrs. Johnny Byrd and Mrs. Byrd's son, Johnny W. Byrd, all of Columbus.

SFC Herring was mortally wounded in November 1970 while serving as light weapons infantry advisor, Mobile Advisory Team IV-5, Ham Long District, Kien Hoa Privince, Republic of Vietnam.

Prior to his death, SFC Herring had been awarded the Army Commendation Medal; Good Conduct Medal with four bronze loops; Army Occupation Medal, Germany; National Defense Service Medal with First Oak Leaf Cluster; Korean Service Medal; Vietnam Service Medal; United Nations Service Medal; Vietnam Campaign Medal and the Combat Infantryman Badge.

SFC Herring was born in Lowell County, Fla. near Sanford in 1933.

197th gets new CO

Lt. Col. Willard D. Conklin became acting commander of the 197th Support Battalion during change of command ceremonies April 14, at Presidential Field in Kelly Hill.

Outgoing Battalion commander Lt. Col. Church M. Matthews Jr. has joined the principal staff of the 197th Infantry Brigade.

Conklin is not a newcomer to the 197th Inf. Bde. Prior to taking command, he was training officer and, at one time, acting commander of the 4th Bn., 69th Arm. He has been in the brigade since September of 1969 and was promoted to lieutenant colonel March 12.

OB-GYN shows patients 'We Care'

By Les Hauser

"You're going to have a baby." There's probably not a diagnosis in the medical world which has more of an impact on a woman. Although this finding is brought down daily at the OB-GYN (Obstetrics and Gynecology) clinic at Fort Benning's Martin Army Hospital (MAH), assistant clinic chief, Maj. Edward Sabol Jr. confides, "We never really know whether we are presenting good news or bad news to a patient."

Even though the clinic personnel can not change the course of nature, they can and are making a number of changes in the clinic facilities. Dr. Sabol explained, "these changes are part of our goal of upgrading patient services under the new 'We Care' program and Fort Benning's Volar (Volunteer Army effort."

Perhaps the most apparent change in the clinic is the addition of partitions which help to "improve the traffic flow of patients and make the overall operation more compact," said Dr. Sabol. This is essential in view of the 1000 plus patients that the OB-GYN clinic handles per week, making it the largest specialty clinic at Fort Benning.

Dr. Sabol pointed out that the partitions now separate the waiting area for added privacy. While in the redecorated waiting room the patients may watch a casset television program on obstetrics and gynecology. Dr. Sabol believes that these programs answer many questions which a woman has. "Of course, we encourage patients to ask questions during an examination too. We are sincerely interested in their problems and would like to help them."

In addition to the remodeling of the clinic, OB-GYN has expanded its appointment desk. It now has a rotary telephone appointment desk, similar to the central appointment desk of MAH. Now OB-GYN patients have the benefit of three appointment lines by calling the first of the three line series: 544-1096, 1097 and 1098.

Dr. Sabol explained that under the old appointment system "patients would arrive at say 1 in the afternoon and wait until they could be seen by a doctor. Now, everyone comes during a specific time block which consequently does not overload the doctors or the waiting area and is also a lot less frustrating to the patient."

"We have it so programmed that a patient can come in, see the doctor and make a return appointment in seven minutes. We are trying to keep this time to a minimum."

Dr. Sabol does, however, conceded that there are some problems with the new system. "The most prevalent problem is the failure of a patient to keep an appointment or cancel out if unable to come. This ultimately causes an unnecessary wait for the other patients."

He also feels that a certain amount of understanding is necessary on the part of the patient. "We want people to understand that we have many emergencies involving childbirth, as many as four per day. Even though we have doctors to replace those called away, we need the cooperation and understanding of our patients during such situations.

"Many patients fail to realize that in a similar situation in civilian life, once their doctor was called out on an emergency, they would have to reschedule their appointment for another day. Whereas, at OB-GYN such emergencies only result in a minor delay." As part of the policy under the MAH "We Care" program, clinic personnel explain delays to patients and keep them informed of any anticipated wait.

Dr. Sabol feels that many women fail to realize that when they visit the clinic they will be examined by specialists in the field concerning their problem. This is unlike most civilian family doctors who are general practitioners.

"Unfortunately," said Dr. Sabol, "many dependents feel that Army doctors are not quite the same as civilian doctors, when in reality Army doctors are simply civilian trained doctors fulfilling their military obligations." Yet this apparent fact did not stop a woman from recently visiting the OB-GYN and asking to see a "real" doctor rather than an Army doctor.

In spite of these misconceptions Dr. Sabol feels that medical care in the Army is better than in civilian life even though some Army hospitals lack the social aspects of medical treatment. And the improvements of the OB-GYN clinic stand as an example that the "We Care" program of MAH is more than just a catchy phrase.

Post PWOC to hold annual fellowship day

On April 28 the Fort Benning Protestant Women of the Chapels will hold their annual Spring Fellowship Day retreat at the USAIC Recreation Area. The day will begin with a coffee hour at 9:30 a.m. and will end at 2:15 p.m. All women of the Fort Benning community are cordially invited to attend.

The speaker for this year's retreat will be Chaplain Richard Nybro who has chosen "The Art of Christian Relationships" as his topic. Chaplain Nybro will discuss "building relationships through communication" and "getting personal — risking, trusting, listening, sharing."

Affiliated with the American Lutheran Church and a graduate of the American Institute of Family Relations in Los Angeles, Chaplain Nybro is assigned to the Fort Benning Mental Hygiene Clinic and the Benning House.

It is requested that everyone bring a sack lunch. Drinks and dessert will be provided at the recreation area. Free nursery care (except for the cost of the food) will be provided at Tot Town. For further information call 545-7413 or 545-4334.

7 Gold Star Wives attend annual region conference

Seven local Gold Star Wives attended the annual Southeast Region Conference for Gold Star Wives of America, Inc., at the Marine Corps Supply Center, Albany, Ga. recently.

They were: Mrs. Lloyd A. Payne, Southeast region president; Mrs. Gerard M. Wynn, Chattahoochee Valley Chapter president; Mrs. Robert L. Curry, Columbus Chapter president; Mrs. Jack W. Sanford, national parliamentarian and region secretary; Mrs. James R. Tremayne, national board member; Mrs. E. Paul Rush, region historian; and Mrs. William F. Medley, a member of the Columbus chapter.

The two day conference included business meetings; a tour of the Marine Corps Supply Center; a visit to a mock VN village; banquet, memorial service and installation of new Southeast region officers.

Guest speaker at the banquet was Maj. Gen. Ormond D. Simpson, commander of the Supply Center, who spoke on the need for support by the American public of our Vietnam fighting men who are serving our country and deserving of our admiration and appreciation. He also urged rememberance and assistance to families of POWs and MIAs.

Other distinguished banquet guests were Mrs. Simpson; Capt. Dean Webster, USN, wing commander, Reconnaissance Wing 1, US Albany Naval Air Station and Mrs. Webster; and Maj. Robert McCartney, USAF, a representative of the Air Force SAC unit based at the Naval Air Station, and Mrs. McCartney.

Entertainment was provided by Mrs. Ed Parker of Perry, Ga., known professionally as Mrs. Janice Lollis, who played the piano while she sang her own compositions "One Day at a Time" and "Turn Back to God."

IOAC student bests events of new AFPE

The 500 point mark in the Army Physical Fitness Evaluation (APFE) has been achieved for the first time by an IOAC officer student.

The APFE has been administered to IOAC classes since Feb. 15 as their official physical fitness test and this is the first instance that a maximum score has been achieved.

Capt. Clifford D. Baker, IOAC 5-71, reached this pinnacle during the APFE administered April 1.

Spring formal, Rankin House tour highlight socials

Spring Formal

"April Showers" was the theme for Company Operations Department's Spring formal held in the Main Officers Open Mess recently. Col. and Mrs. John L. Osteen Jr. hosted the annual event for the second year in a row.

Col. Herbert L. Frandsen, secretary of USAAIS and his wife were honored guests for the affair which was planned and executed under the guidance of Maj. Ralph G. Egenmaier, chairman, Land Navigation Committee, and his deputy chairman, Maj. John Byrnside.

Col. and Mrs. Osteen, Col. and Mrs. Frandsen, and Lt. Col. Donald F. Hanson, deputy director, and his wife greeted the officers, wives and guests in the receiving line to begin the evening. The cocktail hour, immediately following, provided an opportunity for everyone to become acquainted or reacquainted with fellow Department members.

After a dinner, held in the Fountain Room, Col. Osteen addressed the members and commented on past events and future plans of the department. The presentation of baby cups to new parents in the department followed. At the close of the dinner hour, the officers, wives, and guests were entertained by Buddy Nash and his partner in song, Miss Sandy Dimond.

After the entertainment everyone adjourned to the ballroom for an evening of music and dancing with the "Blue Notes."

The main ballroom, decorated by the officers and wives of the Land Navigation Committee, took on the appearance of a garden spring. A white lattice gazebo covered with white flowers and greenery formed the center of the garden with dogwood trees and azalea plants surrounding the rest of the club.

Brightly colored umbrellas hung from the ceiling and flowers potted in watering cans added to the theme of "Spring Showers."

197th Inf. Bde.

The ladies of Hq, 197th Inf. Bdg. attended a coffee April 14, at the home of Mrs. Robert Thomas, 615 Perkins Street, Fort Benning Ga.

"April Showers" was the theme and small umbrellas made up the name tags. A colorful arrangement of pink azaleas was used for the centerpiece.

Rankin House Coffee

Following refreshments, Mrs. Lee Smith conducted the business meeting and announced an upcoming coffee and Heritage Tour June 16, sponsored by the ladies of 69th Armor. Mrs. Smith also reminded the ladies to bring, children's clothes for the ACS locker.

The historic Rankin House was the setting of the 2nd Bn., 10th Arty. ladies coffee, April 13, at 7:30 p.m.

The bostesses, Mrs. Ronald Pruitt and Mrs. William Borland wore long flowing gowns which created the final touch to an evening spent in the glamour of the old South. Each guest received pamphlets, describing the house, a "must see" while living in Georgia.

Mrs. Borland conducted a tour of the rooms, each housing precious antiques. Many antiques are originals to the Rankin House.

Following the tour, Mrs. John Krisko greeted the special guests of the evening. Mrs. Church Mathews Jr. and Mrs. Henry Doctor Jr.

Refreshments were served in the dining room, beneath a shimmering chandalier. A basket of pink tulips with matching pink candles centered the table laden with fruit punch, cherry tarts and other snacks.

A business meeting, conducted by Mrs. James Wurman, included a summary of coming evens and and activities.

Old toys needed

It's not too early to help plan a merry Christmas for needy families.

The Army Community Service and Provost Marshal Division need donations of used or unwanted toys for their "Operation Toy Shop."

All toys donated will be repaired by stockade prisoners and contributed to worthy military families in the Fort Benning, Columbus, Phenix City areas through the 1971 Fort Benning Christmas Aid Program for Military Families.

Through your toy donations needy children and their families can enjoy a Happy Christmas holiday.

Bring all toys to the front or back gates of the Post Stockade. For pickup of toys call 545-1967 or 545-7566.

3 OWC classes slated for April

The Officers' Wives' Club (OWC) is offering three classes on slim 'n trim, adult oil painting and children's art beginning in April.

The last slim 'n trim class for the season will begin April 26. With summer just around the corner, don't miss this chance to be in just the right shape for the newest fashions. The cost for this class is $7 for 7 weeks. The morning group will meet on Monday and Friday from 9 to 10 a.m. and the evening classes will be held on Monday and Wednesday from 7 to 8 p.m.

All classes will be conducted in the school of dance building. For registration and more information call Mrs. Richard Stamm at 544-1326.

Two new adult oil painting classes are also being offered beginning April 26 and April 28. Both classes will meet in the OWC lounge from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. The cost of this course is $16 for 6 weeks.

A 6-week children's art class will be conducted in the OWC lounge at a cost of $12. Classes for kindergarten through 2nd grade will begin April 27; grades three through five will begin April 28. All classes will meet from 4:15 to 5:15 p.m. Junior and senior classes will be made available if there is a sufficient demand.

For information concerning any of the art classes, please contact Mrs. Martin Glaser at 689-3530.

ACS seeking 40 volunteers

Army Community Service needs 40 volunteers to help staff a Welcome Center being established as part of the Modern Volunteer Army program. Duties of the volunteers would be to provide information, welcome services, relocation assistance, orientations, household items and emergency services to new arrivals.

The Welcome Center is being established in Bldg. 83, next door to the Personnel Processing Center.

Persons wishing to volunteer for the new Welcome Center can contact Capt. Michael B. McBride at 545-1633 or 545-1223.

Symphony members entertain OWC

Approximately 180 members of the Fort Benning Officers Wives Club met for their annual election coffee April 14 at the Supper Club.

Highlighting the morning was a musical program presented by three members of the Columbus Symphony Orchestra. Harry Kruger, conductor, gave a brief history of the Columbus Symphony and a schedule of this year's performances. Kruger then introduced Dr. Andrew Galos, director of music at Columbus College and Rexford Whiddon, a concert violinist, also of Columbus College. Galos played musical selections dedicated to "love and springtime" by several composers.

In keeping with the "Coffee House" theme, several colorful posters adorned the walls, and a large screen behind the piano was covered with the letters l-o-v-e. Nametags were multicolored cups and saucers.

Large spheres, cubes, and cylinders of calico patchwork hung from the ceiling in clusters. Buffet tables scattered about the room were covered with multi colored cloths and large paper flowers on the skirts.

Small round tables flanking the stage area were covered with brightly colored cloths and strewn with large paper and cloth daisies. Most of the ladies were seated on the carpet in front of the stage.

Four varieties of coffee, including Cafe Brulot, Hot Mocha Java, Caffe' Cappuccino, and Rio Mocha were served with assorted pastries.

Costumes of floppy brimmed hats, sandals, vests, bell bottom jeans, tie dyed shirts, gypsy skirts, and peasant dresses contributed to the "coffee house" atmosphere.

Following the program; new officers were elected.

The new OWC Executive Board is as follows; President, Mrs. Richard Stoltz; 1st vice president, Mrs. Russell Miller; 2nd vice president, Mrs. John Jones; 3rd vice president, Mrs. James Cochran; recording secretary, Mrs. Jack Cummings; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Albert Malone.

Treasurer, Mrs. Stephen Pawlik; assistant treasurer, Mrs. Richard Runke; and Custodian, Mrs. Leon Livingston.

The president will now appoint chairmen of the standing committees. Inauguration of the new board will take place at a complimentary Sherry Hour for members on May 12 at the Poolside Patio of the Main Officers Club.

Co-Hostesses for the Coffee were the Infantry Board Wives under Mrs. Thomas and the Ranger Department Wives under Mrs. John Geraci and Mrs. Benjamin Lane.

Vocational director slated to visit post

Reverend John P. Donahue, CSP, national director of Project Vocation, will visit Fort Benning tomorrow through Wednesday in order to provide vocational guidance for the Catholic men on post.

Project Vocation was established three years ago by the Catholic bishops and superiors of religious orders in the U.S. to do everything possible to foster vocations to the diocesan and religious priesthood among Catholic men in the military service.

Tomorrow Father Donahue will speak at the 5:30 p. m. Mass at Kelley Hill Chapel and at 7 p. m. in the Main Post Catholic Chapel. He will also speak at the 8 a.m., noon, and 5 p.m. masses on Sunday in the Main Post Catholic Chapel; at 9 a.m. in the Airborne Chapel and at 10 a.m. in the Sightseeing Road Chapel.

Wednesday will be devoted to the men of the 197th Inf. Bde. at Kelley Hill.

Father Donahue will be available for vocational counseling in the Main Post Catholic Chapel on Sunday afternoon from 4 to 5 p.m. and in the evening at 7 p.m. On Monday he will be at the Sightseeing Road Chapel from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and in the evening at 6:30 p.m.

Individuals may schedule other times for vocational guidance by calling the Main Post Catholic Chapel at 545-7031 or 545-3461.

Father Donahue is a former Army officer who fought through World War II with the 3d Arm. Div. He was wounded three times and was physically discharged from the service when he lost an eye at the fighting at the Remagen bridgehead in Germany.

Family plan evaluation

Fort Benning's Army Health Nurse Activities is attempting to determine the need for an expanded Family Planning Program at this post.

To determine this need, a questionnaire will be distributed to a representative sample of families on the post, soliciting their opinions as to the need for birth control education.

All comments are welcomed and should be directed to the Army Health Obstetrics-Gynecology Service of Martin Army Hospital. This clinic provides most presently available birth control devices.

Physicians and nurses in the clinic can answer all questions which might arise and will fit devices and provide information in regard to dosage of contraceptive medications.

Presently, women may obtain guidance from the Nurse Activities, 545-4019.

Benning dancers to perform with Atlanta Ballet

Benning dancers will perform with members of Atlanta Ballet Company at the Springer Opera House, 103-10th St., April 23 and 24 at 8:30 p.m. and April 24 and 25 at 2:30 p.m.

Tickets are available at the Springer Box Office from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. For reservations call 327-3688. Admission for the performances is $2.50 for adults and $1.25 for students and enlisted personnel.

Terrell Paulk, director of the Springer Ballet Theatre announced that Anne Burton, principal dancer with the Atlanta Ballet will be guest artist of the Springer Ballet Theatre and will dance with the Atlanta dancers in the ballet "On Wings of Youth". Miss Burton, has danced on numerous occasions in Columbus and danced at Fort Benning, as guest artist of Le Petit Ballet in "The Nutcracker" several years ago.

Miss Burton began her studies with the Atlanta School of Ballet and while in her early teens, she danced leading roles with the Jacob's Pillow Dance Camp in Massachusetts and with the Atlanta Civic Ballet. She received one of the original Ford Foundation Scholarships to study with the School of American Ballet in New York. Invited into the New York City Ballet, she performed one and a half years with that company; touring the United States, parts of Europe and the Soviet Union.

A graduate of the University of Utah, She danced with William Christensen's Utah Civic Ballet (now Ballet West). Her roles included that of the Swan Queen in "Swan Lake", Juliet in "Romeo and Juliet" and the title role in "Coppelia." As principal dancer with the Atlanta Ballet she had danced the role as Aurora in "Sleeping Beauty." Miss Burton first danced with Paulk with the Atlanta Civic Ballet before they left for further study.

Paulk, instructor for the Officers Wives Club School of Dance, studied ballet at the Atlanta School of Ballet. He has danced with the Atlanta Civic Ballet, from there he studied ballet at the Washington School of Ballet with Oleg Tupin, Igor Schwezoff, Antol Vilzak, Eduard Caton and Mary Day. He danced "The Unicorne" in the National Cathedral, and other principal roles he danced in Washington were in "The Nutcracker", Le Fille Mal Garde", "Chinese Nightingale" and "Rayzonda". He danced in Washington and Baltimore in "Ballet School" with the Bolsoi Ballet of Moscow; with The National Ballet of Canada; and with the Igor Youskevitch Ballet Romantique of New York. He has danced with The Atlanta Ballet as a principal dancer since his return to the South, and has electrified Atlanta audiences in the role of "Bluebird" in "Sleeping Beauty".

"Les Quartres Saisons" will be presented by the Springer Ballet Theatre. Sonja Manzi, instructor of the Officers Wives Club School of Dance, and assistant director of the Springer Ballet Theatre is wife of Maj. Ralph Manzi. Mrs. Manzi is a vital contributor to the field of the Arts, not only the dance, but in the field of music. She plays the organ for the Sand Hill Chapel No. 5. Mrs. Manzi studied dancing at the National Theater, Mannheim, Germany where she signed her first contract at 16 and two years later, a contract as soloist. She studied voice at the Conservatory of Mannheim and her first singing role was in the "Bartered Bride."

Miss Carol Storm has recently joined the Springer group. She formerly danced with the San Francisco Ballet. Mrs. Sara White, another talent from Benning, formerly danced with the Atlanta Ballet. Miss Sandra Ortiz, daughter of SSgt. and Mrs. Cigifredo Ortiz, recently was named second runner-up in the Miss Junior Achievement Pagent in Columbus.

Miss Ortiz began her serious studies of ballet with the OWC School of Dance and performed with Le Petit Ballet of Fort Benning before it joined forces with the SBT.

Mesdames Vicky Andrews, Maritza Silva-Torres, Zayra Anzalotta, Ami Manzi, Shirley Redmond and Beth Taylor fathers are currently stationed at Fort Benning. Many other members of the SBT are daughters of retired military.

The Officers Wives Club is proud of their achievement of bringing ballet of the highest calibre to Fort Benning and Columbus, because it is through their vision, guidance, "Know How" and hard work that the Springer Ballet Theatre came into being. Mrs. S. R. Pawlik, wife of Lt. Col. S. R. Pawlik, served on the OWC Board of Directors during the development of Le Petit Ballet.

Career didn't end when TV specialist entered Army

By Frank Webb

When Sp4 Bill V. D'Elia came into the Army more than a year ago, he was afraid he would not be used in the profession he was trained in: Television production.

But since he left basic training in 1970, he has been assigned to USAIS-TV at Fort Benning's Infantry School as a television production specialist and cameraman. USAIS-TV broadcasts and videotapes classes, lectures and demonstrations for closed-circuit rebroadcast in classrooms at Infantry Hall.

Bill, a Radio and Television graduate of Ithaca College, Ithaca, N.Y., feared that while he was in the Army he might fall behind others in the field in terms of experience and practice. But he didn't fall behind because his professionalism was quickly recognized by the Army.

A native of Maspeth, N.Y., D'Elia says that the stint in the Army has helped him. "I was afraid when I got drafted that I was going to lose the two years of experience that others who graduated with me were getting. That," he said, "would have put me at a disadvantage professionally when I got out." But the Army used his professional ability to both its and D'Elia's advantage.

It was to D'Elia's advantage not only because he got more experience, but also because he was able to write and produce, with the assistance of several others on the USAIS-TV staff, an experimental videotape based on his impressions of a record album by Frank Sinatra, "Watertown." The men put their spare time and their own money into making this television production.

Although he began as a cameraman in the TV Division, he soon had an opportunity to begin doing his specialty, script writing. The Department of the Army sent USAIS-TV a requirement for two training videotapes and the section needed a writer for the task.

CONSULTING SHOOTING SCRIPT
D'Elia (R) With Crew Chief Sp5 Ron Bartlett

Capt. James N. Freeman, TV Division chief, asked D'Elia if he would like to write the scripts. He could not require D'Elia to do it but Bill, whom Freeman described as having "a tremendous attitude," needed little prodding.

He took the assignment eagerly and finished both scripts "Fundamentals of Rifle Marskmanship" and "Raid Patrol; Actions at the Objection," within two months. After a review by several School representatives the script was approved. Taping then began, this time with D'Elia serving as cameraman and general technician.

"That's what I love about writing at this level of production," he said. "I like to develop a story where I can see the characters I created coming to life. It's the greatest thrill in the world to see the ideas you wrote all the way through production."

He likes the type of work he is doing so well, in fact, that he plans to work at a similar type of job when he gets out of the Army. "I've produced shows before," he says, "but writing and producing your own material like this is a much better level for me to be in on."

He says he is happy to be working in the TV section. Part of the reason for this is the understanding of his Division chief, Capt. Freeman.

"Both he and Maj. Russell, the former chief," D'Elia comments, "recognized us in the section as artists and as humans. They consult us as professionals and realize we're artists, and they respect that."

His efforts have reaped many benefits both for him and for the Army. His writing of the two scripts for DA, for instance, was estimated by Freeman to have saved the government about $5,000 per script, the difference between a civilian contractor and D'Elias pay.

"While he was working on the scripts," Freeman said, "he was working mostly at nights on his own time."

"When it got to where he needed more time," he continued, "we switched him off his camera assignments so he could write full-time."

Another script D'Elia wrote in his spare time is being considered for production on Rod Serling's "Night Gallery" science fiction TV series.

He says that he is not the only man on the production staff benefiting from the Army. "Every guy on the current production crew," he claims, "has something going for him. They let us go "Watertown" on our spare time, and it was a great morale booster."

D'Elia is scheduled to leave the Army late this year, but when he does, he will have gained a lot from his experience with the Army's USAIS-TV.

Track Vehicle Course graduates 45 mechanics

Sp4 John L. Lynch, Baldwin, Md., was the distinguished honor graduate of the Track Vehicle Mechanics Course Class 25-71, which graduated in ceremonies April 15 at Infantry Hall. The distinguished academic graduate was Sp4 James A. Debruycker, Lawrence, Mass.

Maj. Robert L. Webster, Command Maintenance Department, delivered the commencement address to the 45 graduates.

While the students are attending the course, they are assigned to the 15th Co., 1st Bn., TSB. Both Lynch and Debruycker are in the National Guard and will report to their hometown units for assignment.

The seven-week mechanics course provides personnel with a working knowledge to perform organizational maintenance and recovery of tracked vehicles.

Included in the course of instruction are engine principles, valve adjustments, cooling and lubricating systems, carburation and fuel injection.

Obedience class is scheduled

The main post service club on Sightseeing Road will sponsor a five-week "Canine Basic Obedience Course" beginning May 1 at 10 a.m.

The first class will be for owners only.

The free course will consist of five, two-hour sessions each Saturday.

Additional information on the course and registration is available at the service club between 1 and 8 p.m.

Engineers reassemble castle at new location

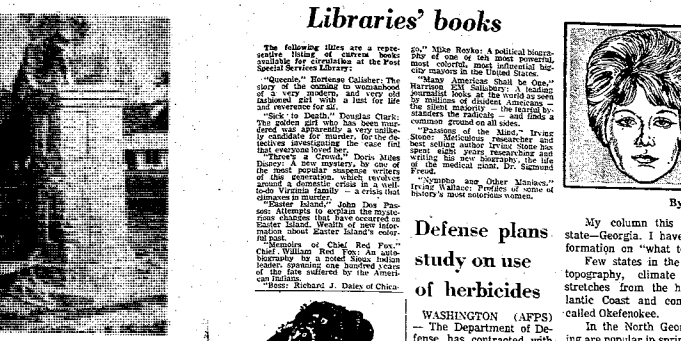
By John Box

The engineer castle symbolizes the construction abilities of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, and the engineers are rightly proud of their many construction achievements.

No exception is the work by Co. D, 43rd Engr. Bn., 93st Engr., Gp., in constructing an engineer castle to designate the location of the 586th Engr. Co. (FB). The reason for pride in this case stems from the almost comical sequence of events that finally brought the brick castle to its present location.

It all began back at the now inactivated 818th Engr. Bn. A brick castle weighing several tons was located near Scott Avenue, in front of that battalion's HQ. It was decided that the castle should be moved to the 586th Co. when an engineer company with a mascot is formed in the battalion, and such a plan was made.

Engineers from Co. D, 43rd Engr. Bn. were summoned to move the castle. A huge crane was called out to lift the structure onto a truck but, alas, it was too heavy and the grappling rings snapped off. Jackhammers then were used to break up the concrete foundation so that a sling could be inserted to lift the castle. That technique worked just fine . . . for the bottom half of the castle. The top half fell into a million pieces with only part of one tower remaining intact. The engineers picked up the larger pieces and off they went to the 586th to rebuild.



By this time it seemed they didn't have to worry since nothing was going to turn out all right . . . and half they were. Unlike the engineering company, the 586th Co. was formed in the infantry unit without an M16.

The officer in charge, 1st Lt. Thomas A. Gilbride of Co. D said, "By this time we didn't know whether to laugh or cry but we were more determined than ever to get the project completed."

Finally the castle was placed in its new location at the corner of Old Cusseta Road and Custer Road and all the pieces were cemented back together. But one of the soldiers working on the castle was heard to have said if he never saw this particular castle again it would be too soon.

Charcoal broiled

Spt Robert Ray, Hqs. Co., 3rd Bde., 1st Arm. Div., Ft. Hood, Tex., enjoys a charcoal broiled hamburger while training in the field. Hamburgers, an American favorite, have been added to the field menu of the 3rd Bde. In an effort to please the soldiers, Optional short-order meals for lunch were added to the Army-wide menu in January.

Infantry Board tests nylon-webbing sling

By John Malpass

In September 1968 the U.S. Army Infantry Board conducted a product improvement test of a new, nylon-webbing sling proposed as a substitute for the cotton sling currently being used on the M16A1 rifle. The Infantry Board found the sling reliable, durable, and a suitable replacement for the cotton sling.

Since then three more product improvement tests have been conducted; the last one was completed April 6. The purpose of the last product improvement test was to determine if the proposed sling could be used to carry the M16A1 rifle and the M79 grenade launcher. The new sling presented a unique design in that the keeper and hook assembly found on the standard sling were not used. Instead, the nylon sling had two cadmium-plated slides for adjustment.

The general concept of the test was that of having the test soldiers use the test slings in various tactical and non-tactical situations. The weapons used in this test were the M16A1 rifle, M79 grenade launcher, and the M203 grenade launcher attached to the M16A1. The test slings were subjected to a relative noise test, a 15-kilometer cross-country march, a parachute jump, dismounted drill, and a field firing accuracy exercise.

In each exercise the performance of the test sling was compared to that of the standard cotton-webbing sling, the M1.

The Infantry Board found the cordura nylon sling to be superior to the standard sling in carrying exercises such as cross-country marches and drill. Additionally the sling was found to be much quieter than the standard sling. By reducing the number of manufactured parts, the cost of the sling was reduced to half that of the standard sling. The test soldiers favored the nylon sling 3 to 1.

A modification of the ends of the sling was proposed.

Techniques of management taught to officer classes here

The Management Committee of the Leadership Department has developed a new program of instruction designed to provide the Infantry Officer Advanced Course student with a working knowledge of the management process and a general knowledge of the tools and techniques of management.

The course includes 22 hours of classroom instruction on general management techniques and 20 hours on the tools of the manager, to include managerial communications, automatic data processing, operations research-systems analysis, and financial management.

For the majority of the instruction, the class is broken down into six or seven man discussion groups to allow greater student participation and involvement.

Extensive use is made of video tape to present cases and situations as background for student discussion of various management techniques.

The new program of instruction recently was presented to Infantry Officer Advanced Course 4-71.

More than 66 per cent of the students in the class indicated that they had learned more about management than they had expected to learn in the new course.

Branch PX reopens; offers wider selection

After more than two months work, a remodeled branch PX opened April 9 near Theater No. 2. A greater selection of merchandise now is available because of increased space.

Some of the merchandise now available is a larger selection of radios, phonographs and other electric appliances and a wider selection of foodstuff. Also available are model kits and freezer chests.

Many officials of the Fort Benning Exchange System were present for the opening: G. J. O'Brien, general manager of the Fort Benning Exchange, C. S. Ciampaglia, assistant general manager, Edwin J. Hegner, retail operations manager; James E. Henderson, assistant retail operations manager, and Joseph H. Bode, manager of the remodeled PX Branch 1104.

Sp4 Terry R. Bush who is an MP in the Provost Marshall's Administration Section cut the tape to officially reopen the branch PX.

Board member tops in course

SSgt. Ronald R. Baker of the U.S. Army Infantry Board recently completed a course in Prescribe Load List at Fort Benning as not only the number one student of the course but also the second best student ever to take this course.

The three-week course is designed to instruct the students in the handling of records pertaining to parts on hand in the motor pool.

Baker, who works in the motor pool, Logistics Division of the Infantry Board, received a letter commending his performance in the course from the president of the Infantry Board, Col. Charles B. Thomas, Jr., Sp4 David Scofield and PFC Felix J. Nuzzo.

USS Billfish becomes 91st nuclear sub

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The USS Billfish (SN-767) became the Navy's 91st nuclear powered submarine on the active duty roster when she was placed in commission at ceremonies at the U.SM Naval Submarine Base New London, Groton, Conn.

Billfish was the 37th nuclear powered submarine to be delivered to the Navy by General Dynamic's Electric Boat Division of Groton. Taking the helm of the nuclear powered fast attack submarine was Commander Richard M. Hughes, a Quaker City, Ohio, native. He now commands the crew of 12 officers and 95 enlisted men.

Named after the fish having a beak shaped jaw, Billfish is the second submarine to bear the name. The first Billfish received seven battle stars for eight war patrols in World War II.

Billfish brings the total of nuclear powered fast attack submarines to 50. The remaining 41 nuclear powered submarines are of the Fleet-Ballistic Missile type.

Atlantans review tractors

Three Army 10-ton tractors with lowboy trailers from Co. A, 43rd Engr. Bn. (Const), 93ist Engr. Gp., were on public display recently in Atlanta.

Co. A's equipment platoon sent six men and the tractor-trailers to the capital city earlier this month to demonstrate the Army's massive transportation capabilities. The 10-ton tractor-trailers are capable of hauling armored tanks or heavy construction equipment too massive and too slow for normal roadways.

The equipment was offered for public inspection in Atlanta parking lots, and the tractor-trailer operators remained on hand all day to answer questions.

Participating in the event were drivers and assistant drivers Sp5 Dennis H. Brown, Sp5 Edward W. Cooper, Sp5 Jasper Sykes Jr., Sp4 David Scofield and PFC Felix J. Nuzzo.

My column this week is dedicated to a "peachy" state—Georgia. I have received various requests for information on "what to do in Georgia" so here goes.

Few states in the nation can offer such a variety of topography, climate and natural beauty. Georgia stretches from the hazy blue Appalachians to the Atlantic Coast and contains an expansive swamp land called Okefenokee.

In the North Georgia mountains, hiking and camping are popular in spring, summer and fall.

More than 400,000 acres of large recreational lakes, 40,000 smaller lakes and ponds and 17 large rivers run almost 3,000 miles through Georgia. Georgia state parks, 21 wildlife refuges and six natural historic areas grace the entire state.

Golf reigns as king at the famed Masters Tournament in Augusta and at the Atlanta Classic. More than 80 golf courses are open to tourists.

Atlanta, Georgia's capital city, is the home of big league baseball, basketball, football and soccer. The big city also offers visitors and residents Six Flags Over Georgia, Underground Atlanta, The Atlanta Memorial Arts Center, the Peachtree Center, the Cyclorama and scores of theaters.

The mountain region has cool, clear streams where trout hold forth an array of waterfalls from the Toccoa Falls to the Amicalola Falls.

Georgia's coastline stretches more than 100 miles and holds the renowned "Golden Isles." Palm speckled St. Simons, Jekyll and Sea Islands are brushed with Gulf Stream breezes which entice vacationers year round.

Dahlonega has a museum commemorating the gold rush days of the North Georgia town. The mountain community was the site of the first gold rush in American History.

Hamilton on the Square (see below) is an entire town restored in the 19th Century vintage.

Madison, Washington, Newnan, West Point, LaGrange, Milledgeville and Athens are noted for their high concentrations of ante bellum mansions.

Racing enthusiasts gather annually at Hampton and Augusta for NASCAR Auto Races. Callaway Gardens at Pine Mountain annually sponsors the Master Water Ski Tournament, where aquatic sports experts from throughout the world compete for the coveted Masters Trophy.

Georgia's scenery is beauty par excellence and fun anytime—all the time.

Hamilton on the Square

Hamilton on the Square is celebrating its second anniversary tomorrow and Sunday, and the celebration will be highlighted by a special Auto Show.

Also, a square dance will be held from 6 to whenever tomorrow night.

This year the square is better than ever. The Scarlet Palace has 43 new-old films. The Art Gallery is under the new management and the Penny Arcade and New Antique shops and the Mad Money Mart are open and swinging for your enjoyment.

Come on up to the square for some real old fashioned fun this weekend.

29 supervisors complete administration training

Col. Robert P. Hatcher, assistant post commander, presented completion certificates to 29 graduates of the Basic Supervisor's Course here.

The course covers a series of pertinent subjects needed by supervisors in administering the human and material resources within their jurisdiction.

Those graduating were Lulu Draper, Mamie P. Gunnels, Sybil B. Culpepper, Thelma R. Dunkin, Genevieve Evans, Sybil Bailey, Molline Murphy, William K. Mooney, Edgar S. Burroughs Jr., Charles R. Pruett, Floyd S. Morrison, Joe P. Johnson, George H. Hagburg, Lewis E. Warner, Henry T. Simmons, Jessie E. Walker, Thomas L. Cook, Thomas S. McCullough, Alford M. Harden, Aleck Sikora, Fred E. Defense plans study on use of herbicides

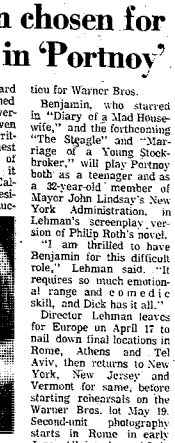
WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Department of Defense has contracted with the National Academy of Sciences to plan a comprehensive study on the ecological and physiological effects of the use of herbicides.

Special emphasis will be placed on the defoliation program conducted in the Republic of Vietnam, a Defense announcement said.

South Vietnamese scientists will be invited to participate in the study, which will be headed by Dr. Anton Lang of Michigan State University.

The study will involve on-site visits and surveys of areas, including Vietnam, and will include:



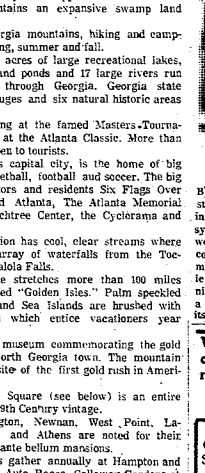
Medical evaluation along with any changes in the incidence of disease and animal reproduction.

— Effects of defoliation on soils and waterheads, animal and bird populations, and fishing and agriculture industries.

— The effects of crop destruction operations in Vietnam on the local population and ecology.

Benjamin chosen for lead role in 'Portnoy'

HOLLYWOOD: Richard Benjamin has been signed for the highly controversial role of the sex-driven Alexander Portnoy in writer-prodncer-director Ernest Lehman's film version of "Portnoy's Complaint" it is announced by John Calley, executive vice president in charge of production for Warner Bros.

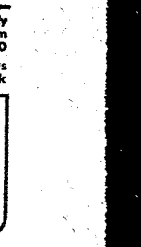


Streisand

Barbra Streisand is starred with George Segal in "The Owl and the Pussycat," playing a zany, would-be actress who becomes involved with a timid intellectual. The movie will be shown tomorrow night as the late show at a local theater and begin its regular run April 30.

Benjamin, who starred in "Diary of a Mad Housewife," and the forthcoming "The Steagle" and "Marriage of a Young Stockbroker," will play Portnoy both as a teenager and as a 26-year-old member of Mayor John Lindsay's New York Administration, in Lehman's screenplay version of Philip Roth's novel.

"I am thrilled to have Benjamin for this difficult role," Lehman said. "It requires so much emotional range and comedic skill, and Dick has it all."



Director Lehman leaves for Europe on April 17 to nail down final locations in Rome, Athens and Tel Aviv, then returns to New York, New Jersey and Vermont for same, before starting rehearsals on the Warner Bros. lot May 19. Second-unit photography starts in Rome in early June. All interiors of Lehman's Chenault Product on film will be shot at Warner's Burbank lot.

Synopsis

THE COCKEYED COWBOYS OF CALICO COUNTY (Rated G) It's high jinks in the old west.

This is a hilarious western farce of a six-foot-seven, 265 pound blacksmith in early western community who fears the ridicule of the townspeople when his mail-order bride does not arrive on schedule, and the fanciful, imaginative lengths to which his friends go to prevent him from being hurt.

The final cloud of dust reveals that Calico has retained its only blacksmith and lost the only unmarried woman within a radius of 200 miles

RAID ON ROMMEL (Rated GP). Libya in 1943 is controlled by Rommel's Panzer division, with the fate of the Mediterranean area in the balance. British Captain Foster (Richard Burton), poses as a corporal to infiltrate a German P.O.W. convoy.

Foster's mission is to blow up the gun emplacements at Tobruk. A strafing plane enables Foster to take over the convoy.

Commando Sgt. MacKenzie (John Colicos), teaches the men strategy. The group stops at a refueling base, where General Rommel (Wolfgang Preiss), shows up to investigate.

Burton blows up the storage tanks and leads the raid on the harbor guns, armed with a flamethrower. British ships pick up the survivors, while the wounded Foster and Major Tarkington await the threatening muzzels of German rifles as they lie helpless in the aftermath.

ROSEMARY'S BABY (Rated R). Pray! Pray for Rosemary's baby.

A suspense thriller based, on the best selling novel, is a tale of cumulative horror tinged with the supernatural. It's an eerie and unusual story that will keep you on "pins and needles." "Pray For Rosemary's Baby."

WATERLOO (Rated G). All France is electrified by news that Napoleon (Rod Steiger), has escaped from exile on Elba. He is marching on Paris where King Louis XVIII (Orson Welles), is conferring with his military advisors on how best to meet the emergency.

Napoleon desires only peace but his enemies — Russia, England, Austria and Prussia — are determined to oust him once and for all and the armies gather.

Napoleon faces Wellington (Christopher Plummer) at Waterloo, in a battle that changed the face of the world. Napoleon, within an inch of a victory that would have made him master of Europe once again, is defeated. He is a broken man, his dream shattered and all hope gone. He surrenders and goes into exile to St. Helena.

Army glasses to be more stylish, safer

WASHINGTON (ANF) — About one-third of all soldiers in civilian clothes can now be spotted because of the standard Army-gray plastic frames of their glasses. Soon this method of recognizing the off-duty soldier will be gone — and the soldier will be safer as well as more stylish.

In Janliary the Army will begin issuing glasses sporting a modern, heavy black plastic frame, according to the Army Surgeon General's Office. A recent Army-wide survey showed that about 68 per cent of all enlisted men would prefer the black frame.

The Army, which now issues protective lenses only to those who need them because of work hazards, by January will begin issuing impact-resistant lenses to everyone, regardless of their military occupation.

Although heat-tempered glass is the only type of impact-resistant lens the Army now issues, in fiscal year 1972 about 15 per cent of the spectacles produced will have plastic lenses. By 1976 the Army plans to issue plastic lenses for all new Army glasses.

Audrey will always be noted 'My Fair Lady'

Only the radiant talent of Audrey Hepburn could take Eliza Doolittle from the gutter to gentility as she does in Warner Bros.' "My Fair Lady." Audrey thereby became THE "My Fair Lady" for all time.

The slender, internationally-acclaimed beauty was the overwhelming choice from the beginning for the role of the little flower seller who is tutored into the ranks of the gentry in the Academy Awards-winning motion picture which is now being given an encore presentation opening tonight at a local theatre.

The patrician Professor Higgins who fashions this miracle is played, of course, by the patrician Rex Harrison, who won an Oscar for his portrayal of the testy phonetics expert in the Alan Jay Lerner-Frederick Loewe musical, one of eight garnered by the film.

Of her demanding role, Audrey has said, "it was the most difficult characterization I've ever undertaken. In some ways, Eliza is the first real character I've attempted on the screen. In other roles there has almost always been at least a little bit of me. In this one, there's none."

As it turned out, the priceless look, inimitable glow and magnificent talents of Audrey Hepburn made her the perfect Eliza Doolittle, as the film itself became a perfect vehicle for her.

Audrey's life and career are themselves as charismatic as anything she has played on the screen. Brussels-born to an Anglo-Irish business man and a Dutch baroness, Audrey was at boarding school in England when World War II broke out. Her mother took her back to Holland where they lived through the German occupation. She went to school under a Dutch name, attended ballet classes in Arnhem and gave underground concerts in secret to raise funds for the Dutch resistance movement.

After the war, Audrey returned to England to study ballet and appear in revues and films in small parts. It was not until French novelist Colette saw her during a Monte Carlo location and recommended her to New York stage producer Gilbert Miller for "Gigi" that Audrey got her chance.

Since then, her motion picture career has been a series of triumphs. But none have exceeded, or likely will exceed, her exquisite performance as the greatest "My Fair Lady" of all time.

3 medals awarded soldier posthumously

A Bronze Star Medal, an Army Commendation Medal, and the Good Conduct Medal were awarded posthumously to Sgt. Paul W. Burnett in recent ceremonies here. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie W. Burnett of Jennings, Fla. His decorations were presented to Mr. and Mrs. Burnett. Sgt. Burnett's aunt, also was present.

Col. Robert P. Hatcher, assistant post commander, presented the awards.

Sgt. Burnett was wounded Dec. 3, 1970, in the Long Binh area of the Republic of Vietnam while operating as a field radio mechanic. He died of his wound in Saigon on Dec. 15, 1970.

Prior to his death, Sgt. Burnett had been awarded the National Defense Service Medal, Vietnam Service Medal, Vietnam Campaign Medal, Expert Badge with automatic rifle bar, and the Sharpshooter Badge with rifle bar.

The citation which accompanied the Bronze Star Medal read, in part, that "Sgt. Burnett distinguished himself by outstanding meritorious service in connection with ground operations against a hostile force in the Republic of Vietnam during the period May 1970 to December 1970.

"Through his untiring efforts and professional ability, he consistently obtained outstanding results. He was quick to grasp the implications of new problems with which he was faced as a result of the ever changing situations inherent in a counterinsurgency operation and to find ways and means to solve these problems.

"The energetic application of his extensive knowledge has materially contributed to the efforts of the United States mission to the Republic of Vietnam to assist that country in ridding itself of the communist threat to its freedom. His initiative, zeal, sound judgment and devotion to duty have been in the highest tradition of the United States Army and reflect great credit on himself, his unit and the military service."

ROD AND GUN CLUB

By Bill Kloeb

The Rod and Gun Club Board of Governors has come up with a solid plan for activities at the club family day May 2.

They have tried to come up with a plan which will provide something of interest for all sportsmen.

For starters there will be free food, soft drinks and beer. This should interest all members, but, as an added attraction, there is the Bassmaster fishing rig with all the accessories that run the value of the complete rig to near the $3,000 price range. Those who miss out on that will have an opportunity to win an electric boat with motor, a fish finder or fishing rods, reels, lures and all kinds of other sports equipment.

There also will be displays, demonstrations, sky divers and free pony rides for the kids.

Every member including dependent members have a chance to win. If you have a membership card with a number on it, that number will be in the hopper, but you must be present to win.

April Fishing Derby

There was only one change in the leaders of the Rod and Gun Club April Fishing Derby. SSgt. Jimmie R. Ford, Co. C., Headquarters Command, took a bass that weighed an even 7 pounds. He was using a black plastic worm at Patterson Pond.

MSgt. (ret.) L. S. Dill, 3064 Hendrix St., is still leading the catfish contest with the 8 pound, 10 ounce catch he made at Weems Pond last week, and the 9 ounce bream MSgt. (ret.) John Shelton, 431 Victoria Dr., held up as the leader in the bream contest.

The bream and bass are on the spawning beds in most of the post ponds, and all you have to do is find one of these beds and you are in for a real day of fishing.

This is the time of the year for the plastic worm. They are good all year long but during the spring they never seem to fail. A bass will explode into motion after a worm dragged slowly over a spawning area. They have two reasons now. Something to eat and to keep intruders off the beds.

When the bream are on the beds they'll hit just about anything that is dropping down from the top of the water, but you have to make sure you are fishing right over a bed. If you are, there is going to be plenty of action, but if you are a few feet off the bed you may fish all day without a single strike. Some fishermen have a lot of luck finding beds by trial and error but veteran fishermen depend on their sense of smell. If you do locate one of the beds mark it by triangulation so you can come back to the same spot. Return the next day or a few days later and the fish will probably be in the same place.

Disposal of Easter Pets

Parents who gave youngsters baby chicks and rabbits for Easter are probably having second thoughts by now. The novelty has worn off for the kids, and the parents are tired of caring for a pet that doesn't respond at all to attention and loving care.

We called the Animal Shelter to inquire as to how these pets can be disposed of in a humane manner. They believe — and I agree — that the animals shouldn't have been given as pets in the first place, but if you do have them it is suggested you find someone who raises chickens and rabbits and make them a gift. You can run an add in the free column in the local newspaper to find a new owner. If that doesn't work, as a last recourse the Shelter will take them off your hands. The Shelter number is 687-3647.

No Turkeys Again

The turkey season has come and gone, and if anything, it was more disappointing than the previous seasons. Two hunters reported taking turkeys. They are Lt. Col. Charles Orr, deputy director of Facilities Engineering and Col. (ret.) Reuben Kyle, 3969 Steam Mill Road. Both took the birds in the Lumpkin Trail Area. In taking a turkey this year Orr put himself in some select company. Col. Kyle is the dean of turkey hunters in the area.

If anyone was going to get a bird during the spring season the odds had to be with him. There were quite a few veteran hunters who spent a lot of time trying but came up with nothing for their efforts. The last few spring turkey seasons have just been a time when nothing happens. If something isn't done about the turkey population we may as well stop having open seasons.

197th soldiers to drive safety slalom

197th Infantry Brigade soldiers and their ladies have the opportunity to test their driving skills when the Brigade May Day Slalom commences at Munson Heliport at Kelley Hill.

The May 1 event is sponsored by the CHAVAGA region of the Sports Car Club of America (SCCA), and endorsed by the Post Safety Office. It will get underway at 1 p.m.

Known as an "autocross," the competition is designed to promote safety in highway driving, said 1st Lt. William A. Davis, brigade special services officer. "An autocross is a slalom in which the contestants are not required to stop or reverse, although a motionless finish may be used, and where the course does cross itself. The prime emphasis in an autocross is on safety. It is run against a time clock — one car on the course at a time. It is clean, safe competition and it's exciting," explained Davis.

There will be 10 classes of cars and a ladies class in two separate categories. All personnel in the 197th Inf. Bde., including their wives and girl friends, are eligible to enter and drive any type of car in one category. There will be a $3 entry fee. Trophies will be presented to all first through third-place winners in each class depending on the number of entries in the class, plus a trophy for the fastest time of the day. Every entry will receive a dash plaque.

CHAVAGA region SCCA members will make up the second category. Their trophies and entry fees will be handled on a different basis.

Safety belts will be required for all entries and safety helmets will be furnished. Activities will get underway at 10 a.m. with contestant registration and a safety inspection. The inspection will be on all physical aspects of the car.

A driver's meeting will be held at noon in which the contest rules and sequence of running will be discussed. Minor details, such as handling, tire pressure, results of mishandling an automobile and speeding and a review of the course, will also be discussed.

Golfers pay tribute to Ike with fund drive

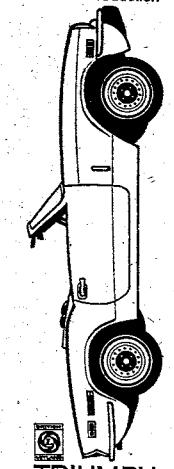
The U. S. Golf Association and the U. S. Professional Golfers Association are sponsoring a fund drive to finance the operations of two institutions whose endeavors were dear to the heart of the late President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Proceeds from the endeavor known as "Golf's Tribute to Ike" will be used to improve and enlarge the facilities and operations of the Eisenhower College in Seneca Falls, N. Y., and the Eisenhower Medical Center, Palm Center, Calif.

The late president, affectionately known to the world as "Ike," left many enduring gifts to his fellow-man, in many fields, including golf. His residence in the Little White House at Augusta, Ga., and his personal interest in the Masters Tournament played there each year has made the tournament the most prestigious event in golf.

A natural sense of gratitude has impelled the two golf associations who represent all of the golfers of this country to join in executing a plan to honor his memory.

Individuals who contribute $10 or more will receive a color portrait of the late president and a plastic golf bag tag with a drawing of Ike the golfer.



A golf tournament will be held May 20 at the Fort Benning Country Club to observe the event. All Fort Benning and retired personnel having a "Tribute To Ike" golf bag tag will be eligible to enter. There will be prizes for male and female golfers. Military personnel may be excused from duty to play. Supervisors are encouraged to grant leave to civilian personnel for participation.

Donations to the fund drive will be accepted at the Country Club Pro Shop and the pro shop at the Sand Hill Golf Course.

6 major units to field teams in softball league

By Bob Wise

The United States Army Infantry Center Fast-Pitch Softball League opens May 3 with six teams from major units competing for the post championship. The league is scheduled to wind up play Aug. 4.

League games will be played each Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at 6:30 and 8 p.m. at Gowdy Field on Main Post or Essebagger Field on Kelley Hill.

The league will consist of round robin play with the season divided into two halves. The winner of each half will be determined on the basis of total games won and lost. In the case of a tie in either half, a single-elimination game will be played to determine a winner.

The winner of each half will play a best two-out-of-three-game series for the league championship. If the same team is the winner of both halves, the team will be declared league champion and the second place team will be determined on the basis of the highest total games won in both halves.

The six teams in the league will be the 197th Infantry Brigade, Headquarters Command, The School Brigade, the 921st Engineer Group, the USAIC Aviation Command, and Medical Department Activities.

A post-level team composed of outstanding players from the brigade teams will be formed to compete in the 3rd Army Softball League from June 4 to Aug. 20. League games will be scheduled on a home-and-away basis and played on weekends.

Pistol shooters clinic

Sp4 Barbara Bennett of the Ft. Bragg, N.C., Marksmanship Training Unit is shown some of the fine points of rifle marksmanship by SFC Tolani Teleso, shooter-coach of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit at Fort Benning, during the 3rd Army clinic held here April 13-15. Approximately 100 rifle and pistol shooters participated in the clinic which represented five of the Army posts throughout the area.

As of April 19, there are 6,703 active participants in the Run For Your Life program. Of these, 62 have completed 300 miles, 52 have completed 200 miles, 123 have completed 100 miles, 216 have completed 50 miles, and 1,422 have surpassed 25 miles of running.

Chief of staff wins skeet championship

Col. Jim Kiersey, chief of staff, Infantry Center, won the championship of the Fort Benning Invitational Skeet match held on the Benning Shotgun Range Saturday when he blasted 46 birds of a possible 50 as they hurdled from the houses.

Competing in a field of 19 shooters from Ft. Rucker, Ala., and Fort Benning, Kiersey began slow and fired a low 21 in the first round but came back strong and knocked a perfect 25 from the high and low houses for his total of 46 birds. Runner-up was Capt. G. R. Bogner, of Ft. Dix, N. J., a student at the Infantry School, who shattered 46 birds also only to loose to Kiersey in a sudden death shoot off for the decision.

Dividing the shooters into four classes, A, B, C, and D, according to their shooting averages, four winners were made possible. In the Class B division, Lt. Col. Bobby Vinson of the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit fired a 44 to take the honors while Col. Harry Harper of Ft. Rucker won Class C with 35 birds. Each of the B and C class divisions were tied at the close of the official shoot and had to be shot off for a decision giving the runner-up spots to Maj. Willis Powell of the Marksmanship Unit, Class B and Sgt. Maj. Billy J. Woodward coping the honors in Class C.

In the team competition between the two military posts, Fort Benning's team fired a 209 of a possible 250 to win over the Ft. Rucker team which had a 199. The Fort Benning team included Brig. Gen. John T. Carley, assistant commandant, Infantry School, Col. Kiersey, Col. Jere Whittington, Lt. Col. Vinson and Maj. Powell. The Ft. Rucker team included Maj. Gen. Allen Burdett, commanding general, Ft. Rucker; Col. Robert Bailey, Col. Harper, Col. William Campbell and Maj. David Forte.

Shooter commended for N.Y. instruction

SFC Aubrey Smith of the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit was the recipient this week of a letter of appreciation from Stephen Ayers, president of Interstate Pistol Association, New York, for the pistol clinics and shooting instruction which he gave in several New York communities during the month of March.

Smith, a shooter-coach with the pistol division of the USAMTU, presented films, slides and demonstrations to nearly 500 interested handgunners and gave them some of the finer points of successful marksmanship.

A marksmanship team from the Army's Marksmanship Training Unit, commanded by Col. Robert M. Piper, is almost continually on the road serving interested shooters through the clinics of Marksmanship Promotion Program.

Presently a team is conducting a clinic at Ft. Riley, Kan., for the 4th and 5th Army areas in which more than 350 military gun enthusiasts along with their civilian counterparts are witnessing what is termed "easy lessons to successful Marksmanship."

Gilbert wins tournament

By Bill Kloeb

Capt. Kenneth Gilbert, U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit, broke 293 "birds" out of a possible 300 to win the open championship in the National Rifle Association approved trap and skeet tournaments held here recently.

Gilbert, a member of the United States Skeet Team which fired in the 40th World Championships at Phoenix, Ariz. last year, was two points better than Phillip Provence of Columbus, Ga., who finished second, and four points better than third place finisher, Tony Rosetti of Biloxi, Miss.

Provence and Rosetti were assigned to the Marksmanship unit during their tours of military service.

The civilian category shoot was won by George Luedkeman of Ohio with a score of 275 out of a possible 300.

Mrs. Pete Volkringer of Florida broke 210 "birds" to lead the women's competition.

197th to start softball play

Individual companies in the 197th Infantry Brigade begin inter-battalion slow-pitch softball action the first week of May. All battalion champions should be determined by July 31.

A week-long double elimination tournament will begin Aug. 2 to decide the brigade's company-level champion for 1971.

Jacksonville, Florida

The Youth Activities softball season will open at Green Field this evening at 5:30 p.m.

The opening game will be played by the Astros and Athletics of the Doughboy league.

There will be five leagues in the program this year. One league is made up of five girls teams. The other four leagues are made up of boys of varying ages. The Pony league for boys 14 to 15 years old has four teams. Seven teams will play in the Doughboy league made up of boys from 13 to 14 years old. The PeeWee league for boys 10 to 11 and the Biddy league for boys 8 to 9 will each have eight teams.

Games will be played on Green Field, Faith Field and Norton Court on Main Post and Twin Fields in Custer Terrace.

Additional information may be obtained from Mr. Wilie Dunham, Youth Activities athletic director (545-3603).

Adult Drivers Education Classes

There will be an Adult Drivers Education Class, beginning May 3. Registration fees will be $42 and a learner's permit is required. Additional information can be obtained by calling C. M. Wilson, 561-1430.

Leather Craft Classes

A class on Leather Craft will be given April 28 at 6:30 p.m. in Bldg. 1306, for all adult leaders in the Cub Scout, Boy Scouts and Girl Scout programs. For more information, please call 545-1881.

WSI Course at Youth Activities

Registrations are being accepted through April 30 for a three week course in water safety instruction beginning May 3 from 6 to 8 p.m. To qualify for this course the applicant must be 17 years of age and possess a senior lifesaving certificate, which must be presented at time of registration.

Post man tops Tenn. rifle meet

SSgt. Harvey Skinner of the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit here overcame a slow start April 4 in the Early Bird High Power Rifle Tournament at Oak Ridge, Tenn., then fired a 198-7 to win the 300 yard rapid fire match and go on to win the Grand Aggregate and tournament championship.

Competing with a field of 50 mixed civilian, reserve and service High Power Rifle marksmen, Skinner managed to take only the one first place in the four-match National Match Course. He placed third in the 200 yards slow fire and second in the 600 yard slow fire but failed to place in the top three positions in the 200 yard rapid fire event. The tournament also featured team competition.

Taking advantage of the ideal weather conditions and through perseverance, Skinner prevailed and came through with the Grand Aggregate score of 779-22 which meant he dropped only 21 in the possible 800 aggregate four-match course. His nearest rival and in runner-up position was SSgt. Terry W. Daugherty of 3rd Army MTU, who was 13 points back. MSgt. James L. McQuien of the USAMTU earned the third place honors with a 764-20 score.

The National Match Course which includes matches of 200 yards slow fire standing, 200 yards rapid fire sitting, 300 yards rapid fire prone and 600 yards slow fire prone, hits the perfect form, steady nerve and trigger finger and clear eye of the competitor and is truly the tournament of skill.

In the four-man team matches, fired over the same National Match Course, a team from the USAMTU won first place with a 1919-49 combination over ten teams entered in the matches. Four of the teams were comprised of civilian shooters while two were from the Tennessee National Guard and one from the Quantico Marines Station. The USAMTU team coached by MSgt. Roy Combs, included SFC Richard Rebidue, Skinner, SFC William Lee and McQuien.

197th men of chapel set one-day retreat

The 197th Infantry Brigade Men of the Chapel will sponsor a one-day Retreat, featuring Paul Anderson, "the world's strongest man," and the Tuskegee Institute Choir, on Wednesday.

Theme of the interdenominational day-long program will be "Practical Religion in Everyday Life," or "How to be a Christian Without Being a Fanatic."

The brigade retreat is "designed as an opportunity for insight, spiritual growth, personal soul-searching and the application of Godly principles in relevant living," said Chaplain (Maj.) David W. Hoh, 197th Inf. Bde. chaplain.

"We also hope that the program will open up religious curiosity and give soldiers an opportunity to discuss perplexing questions and come up with answers that could better their own lives. The retreat will be conducted in a relaxed almosphere and the day will follow a very easy-going pace," continued Chaplain Hoh.

Transportation will be provided for troops assigned to Harmony Church units.

The program will begin and end at the Kelley Hill Field House. Paul Anderson's talk and demonstration will commence at 8 a.m. Anderson, who frequently speaks at Billy Graham crusades, will show his record-breaking strength by lifting off the ground eight to 10 heavyweight men on a table. Anderson, founder and director of the Paul Anderson Youth Home, Vidalia, Ga., holds the world record for weightlifting — 6,270 pounds. The old record had been 4,235 pounds.

After Anderson's demonstration, soldiers will register and break down into four discussion groups. Each of the four groups will have four 45-minute meetings throughout the day. A film, "The Late, Great God of the Cocktail Hour," will be shown in one of each group's sessions. Outside speakers will talk at each session.

The group discussions will be followed by an hour concert of the Tuskegee Institute Choir, 3 p.m. at the brigade field house.

The retreat will close at 3:45 with a benediction.

11th Abn. Div. plans reunion

Plans are being made for a possible reunion of the 11th Airborne Division which was inactivated June 30, 1958.

Persons interested in such a reunion are asked to write Capt. (ret.) Richard L. Hoyt at P.O. Box 373, Johnson, Ark. 72741.

The 11th Abn. Div. was activated Feb. 25, 1943, at Camp Mackall, N.C., and participated in combat actions in the Pacific during World War II. Under Maj. Gen. Joseph M. Swing, who led the division from its activation until long after V-J Day, the 11th Airborne put in more than 200 days of rugged combat in the Philippines and participated in two full-scale parachute assaults.

Mud doesn't prevent cadet from picking Infantry

"They are just wasting their time. I made up my mind when I was seven . . . I want to go where the action is."

Army Col. (ret.) James W. Edwards recalls these remarks made by his son, West Point Military Academy Cadet Captain James B. Edwards, while members of his class were on an orientation visit to Ft. Sill, Okla., an Artillery post, last summer. The class of 1971 previously had visited Fort Benning, "Home of the Infantry."

Cadet Edwards, 21, is "going Infantry," and has made this known in dramatic fashion recently when the cadets made their formal choice of branches of service.

The cadets gave him an ovation when he said:

"When the Air Force can't support us because the officers' clubs are open; when the Navy has given up the ship because it was, uh, . . . absolutely necessary; when the Field Artillery can't fire because it's hand-to-hand down the line; when the Armor has stuck its shillelaghs in the dirt; when the air-conditioning breaks down in the Signal Corps, and the A.D.A. (Air Defense Artillery) has its buttons jammed; and the Engineers are building sewers; when conflict becomes combat and the fight is nose-to-nose and toe-to-toe; when it boils down to one poor soldier in the mud with a rifle and bayonet, then, by God, I propose to be with him in THE INFANTRY, sir."

Edwards was one of 240 cadets of the 732-member class to select Infantry during the branch drawing.

He has been on the dean's list at the Academy for four years and is president of the debating team.

An "Army brat" who was born at Ft. Lewis, Wash., Edwards attended Texas A and M for one year before entering the Military Academy. Upon graduation in June he will be assigned to Fort Benning for the Infantry Officers Basic Course and Ranger and Airborne training.

Edwards by choosing Infantry, is following in the footsteps of his father, who retired after more than 35 years as an Infantryman. The elder Edwards now is employed in the city tax attorney's office in San Antonio, Tex.

Col. Edwards' Army career spanned two wars. He served as a battalion commander during the Philippine campaign in World War II, and in Korea he commanded the 2nd Bn., 23rd Inf., during the famed battle at Chip Yong Ni.

Fort Benning is no stranger to Col. Edwards. He attended National Guard and Reserve Officers Basic Courses here in 1939 and was attending a Battalion Commanders Course when World War II started.

Membership men

Sgt. Maj. George Jenkins (R) discusses the benefits of AUSA membership with SFC Henry D. Woodard as the spring membership drive of the Association of the United States Army gets underway at Fort Benning. Both are in the Infantry School Secretary's Office. Jenkins is one of the membership representatives appointed in units down through company level at Fort Benning to help recruit new members. Col. William R. Guthrie, secretary-treasurer of the Columbus-Phenix City-Ft. Benning Chapter, has stated that the chapter's membership has slipped by approximately 2,000 since it was voted the worlds largest and best chapter at the AUSA national meeting held in October. He also stated that anyone interested in the Army and National security is eligible to join the organization. The military drive will be paralleled by a similar drive to recruit civilian members in Columbus and Phenix City. Persons desiring more information about AUSA many call the chapter office at Fort Benning, 545-4792.

3rd Army area ROTC cadets briefed on officer basic course

One hundred reserve officer training cadets from the 3rd Army area got a glimpse into the life of Infantry lieutenants when they visited post last week.

The cadets arrived April 15 and were guests at an official dinner that night.

Last Friday they were briefed on educational innovations being tested by the Infantry School. They also were given a briefing on proposed changes in the Infantry Officer Basic Course.

The high point of the visit was when the cadets met with Infantry lieutenants in various positions around post.

Lt. Col. James E. Dunley, chairman of the ROTC committee of the Infantry School's Nonresident Instruction ROTC Affairs Department, said the cadets he talked with "all seemed to be favorably impressed."

He said they "particularly liked the opportunity to visit with the lieutenants."

The visit was sponsored by the Infantry School as part of a continuing effort to interest ROTC cadets in choosing Infantry as their basic branch. The Modern Volunteer Army experiemental program also was a sponsor of the tour.

This visit is being evaluated, on the basis of cadet comments and other observations, to see if other such tours should be held.

Field Radio Course 10 graduates

Sp4 William J. McIlvain III, Ardsley-on-Hudson, N. C., was the distinguished honor graduate of the Field Radio Mechanic Course Class 10-71, which graduated April 14 at Infantry Hall. Sp4 Allen E. Hobson, Ratland, Vt. was the distinguished academic graduate.

Col. Lewis O. Boettcher, Chief, Office of Data Systems, USAIS, delivered the commencement address to the 84 graduates.

While the students are attending the course here at Fort Benning they are assigned to the 16th Co., 1st Bn., TSB.

The nine-week course is designed to provide students with a working knowledge of organizational maintenance for radios and other electrical equipment. These radio repairmen are trained to determine the damage to field equipment and make the necessary repairs.

Certificates given at MAH

Service pins and certificates recognizing a total of 240 years service were presented April 15 at Martin Army Hospital. The employes were honored in a ceremony presided over by Col. (R) Haskell Zierman, MAH commander.

Receiving ten year pins were Mamie D. Luke, Beatrice C. Perry and Elnora G. Hollowell of Food Service; Helen S. Herwitz, Social Work Service; Robert L. Oliver, Department of Clines; Floyd C. Raven, Nursing Service; James D. Swiger, Supply and Service; Carolyn W. Thomas and Roscoe D. Thomas, Department of Surgery; and Betty G. Carden, Radiology Service.

Receiving 20 year pins were Buena F. Bradley and Stanford T. Cash of Nursing Service; Winifred A. Bivins and Howard G. Roney of Supply and Service; Edith T. Byrd, Department of Surgery; Peggy W. Upchurch, Registrar Division; and Marjorie S. Rigdon, Personnel Divi-

California leads states in quakes

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—California, with 130, led the nation in the number of earthquakes last year, the National Earthquake Information Center reported. Alaska was second with 68.

Unlike the Feb. 9 earthquake this year in southern California which resulted in the deaths of 64 people, no fatalities were caused by the earthquakes felt in California in 1970. Nor did any fatalities result from any of the 238 earthquakes felt last year in the United States.

Of the earthquakes reported in the United States last year, Montana was third with 19, of which 11 were in the Flathead Lake region, a continuation of a series of earthquakes which began in April 1969. In 1959, there were 28 fatalities in Montana from the Hebgen Lake earthquake.

Tied for fourth in the number of reported earthquakes in 1970 were Washington and Nevada with four each. Colorado and New Mexico were next with three each and seven states reported only one. These were North Carolina, West Virginia, Tennessee, Arkansas, Arizona, Utah and Oregon. Many smaller tremors, probably of volcanic origin, also occurred in Hawaii.

The NEIC explained that the states listed were those where the earthquakes originated, although they may have felt also in other states.

Many nationalities

A recent census shows that 26,580 citizens of 34 nations live in the tiny, tax-free principality of Andorra, located high in the Pyrennes between France and Spain.

VOLAR to continue after July 1

By Wendell Cochran

Now it is official. The Modern Volunteer Army program will be continued at Fort Benning after July 1, the end of the current test period.

Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander, in a letter last week said, "Although the final evaluation of the fiscal year 1971 test has not been completed, it is quite clear that most of the actions implemented are producing fine results. Therefore it is my inteniton during fiscal year 1972 to continue and expand successful and useful VOLAR activities."

The general said that, although final appropriations have not been authorized by Congress, it appears that the MVA program will continue substantially the same as it has operated during the test period.

More than 140 actions have been implemented under the Benning Plan for movement toward a Modern Volunteer Army. While some of this may be rescinded or changed after the evaluation, many of the most important will be retained.

Those include:

—Elimination of KP for soldiers. Fort Benning was the first post to go completely to civilian KPs when this was achieved Jan. 3.

—Reduction of details for soldiers. Civilian hire has again reduced the number of details, such as grass-cutting and road police that must be performed outside a soldier's company area.

—Barracks partitions. There are plans to expand this program and replace some temporary partitions with permanent partitions.

Some of the non-cost items that have been instituted at Fort Benning already have been instituted Army-wide. These include the policy allowing beer in the barracks, eliminaton of pass restrictions and alterations in sign-out, sign-in policies.

Request forms to offer 3 options on pay method

Military personnel at Fort Benning soon will be completing a form indicating whether they wish to receive their pay monthly or bi-monthly and by cash or check.

The forms are scheduled to be completed during the first two weeks of May.

The forms will allow individuals to choose among three options as to when they wish to be paid and also selection of one of two payment methods.

The three options are (1) payment at the end of the month, as is now the custom, (2) payment on the 15th of any amount up to one-half of his monthly pay with the remainder being paid at the end of the month, (3) selection of the accrual option, which makes it possible for the individual to leave a designated amount of his monthly pay "on the books" to be drawn at some later date as the individual may desire.

The two payment methods listed on the form are cash or check. In addition, the individual, if he chooses the bi-monthly option, may receive one payment by cash and the other by check, or he may elect to receive both bi-monthly payments by cash, or by check.

The new forms are part of the conversion of the Army pay system to Exercise tests 34th on medical emergencies

By Frank Webb

Army medical teams from the 34th Medical Battalion moved into the field at Fort Benning during the week of April 12-16 for a special training exercise to test their readiness to handle emergencies that might arise.

During the exercise, a simulated explosion gave the unit a thorough test in the handling of a large number of "victims" suffering varying degrees of injuries.

In the daytime the medics worked in their sections and at night returned to the tents of the 2nd Evacuation Field Hospital and its dispensaries located at the intersection of Moye Road and Buena Vista Road.

After the first report of the simulated explosion the hospital began taking in the first of 135 "casualties" with "injuries" ranging from burns to open fractures.

A real incident would require precise coodination, and the training exercise was designed to ensure this precision. With exact timing, the initial team, the 546th Clearing Company, supervised by 1st Lt. Bruce G. Furbish, company commander, moved into the area.

"Victims" were given new "disaster tags" receiving their first field use here. At the same time, other members of the 546th were busy evaluating and decontaminating all sources of radio-activity such as clothing and equipment.

Simultaneously, others from the company began sorting and treating "patients" according to type of injury.

The "litter patients" were played by volunteers from among the members of the 609th Ambulance Company and Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment of the battalion. Sorted into categories of injury seriousness, the most badly wounded were then evacuated immediately by helicopters of the 197th Aviation Company to the 2nd Evacuation Field Hospital, located

Law Day '71's theme advocates showing discontent reasonably

By Tony Jones

Discontent may be expressed in many ways. One legitimate way happens to be the theme of Law Day 1971, which will be observed nationwide tomorrow.

The theme, "Channel Change Through Law and Reason," coincides with what one lawyer in the Judge Advocate General's (JAG) office at Fort Benning describes as his feeling of what Law Day strives to accomplish.

Law Day "makes people aware of available means of expressing their

Presents statuette

Brig. Gen. John T. Carley, assistant commandant of the Infantry School, presents a replica of the Infantryman's Statue to Allen H. Williams, secretary for national defense of Liberia, during an official reception and dinner held recently. Williams visited Fort Benning for orientations and briefings on activities of the Infantry Center and Infantry School.

Pamphlet guides COs on discharge policy

A guide to assist comanders at Fort Benning who are responsible for detecting and recommending discharge of soldiers from the service under administrative regulations has been issued by the U.S. Army Infantry Center.

The pamphlet (no. 635-206) is titled "Course of Instruction for Administrative Boards."

Primarily for the use of company grade commanders, the pamphlet was designed in an effort to reduce the administrative workload of individual commanders and to promote uniformity.

Additionally, the pamphlet provides a ready reference for procedures and functions of Officer Candidate School Examining Boards, an Classification and Reduction Boards.

The 58-page booklet's discussion of regulations provide a comprehensive outline of the responsibilities of the officer initiating administrative board actions.

7th Bn. gets new CO

Lt. Col. Jules C. Trepagnier Jr. has been named the new commanding officer of the 7th Stu. Bn., TSB. Maj. Donald R. Kelsey, former commander of the battalion, has been assigned to the Infantry Board.

The change-over ceremonies took place at Wigle Hall in the 5th Stu. Bn., area April 16.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

by Bill King

A quick dessert the children will love: prepare a package of chocolate pudding and stir in a half teaspoon of bitters and some midget marshmallows.

If a recipe promises that it "serves four", remember that means four servings and not necessarily four persons. Try to figure out whether seconds will be in demand.

Even though your meat thermometer says that roast spring lamb isn't done until it reaches 180 degrees, try serving it at 165. You'll get a juicier, tastier roast.

Like spinach, swiss chard should be cooked in just the amount of water that clings to it after washing.

The phrase "above the salt" is still used to designate a person of distinction. In centuries past, the salt dishes were placed midway on the banquet table with the favored diners "above" and the lesser guests "below."

You and your family are always favored diners when you visit

Byline Bayonet

(Byline Bayonet welcomes questions of general interest about Fort Benning and the Army. Within space limitations, all reasonable questions will be answered. Questions of a purely military nature which obviously could be answered more properly by commanders or supervisors within the chain of command will not be accepted. Questions must be signed with current unit of assignment indicated. Send questions to The Bayonet, Room 602, Infantry Hall, or telephone 545-2791.)

Q — I am a first lieutenant on active duty and I understand that the promotion policies concerning promotion to captain are being changed drastically, can you furnish me with any information on this?

A — Time in grade for promotion to captain will gradually be increased beginning July 1. For example, first lieutenants with a date of rank between 1-15 July 1970 will be eligible for promotion to captain July 1. Time in grade for promotion to captain will increase to 30 months for first lieutenants with a date of rank of Jan. 1, 1972 or later. Continuation of the present one year time in grade policy past July 1 would have produced captains in excess of the Army's needs.

Q — Yesterday I was stopped by the military police for failure to have proper post tags displayed on my car. Recently I have noticed many vehicles in the same predicament. What is the present policy concerning registration of your vehicle at Fort Benning?

A — All personnel assigned or attached to Fort Benning are required to register their privately owned vehicles with the Provost Marshal's Office within three working days after their arrival on post. In order to register vehicle you must show proof of the following:

Valid drivers license, proof of ownership (or a notorized letter from the owner authorizing you to drive the vehicle), and a valid state inspection sticker from any state authorized by the Federal government. In addition, you must execute a certificate to the effect that you have minimum insurance in the amount of 10-20-5.

The post tags must be displayed on the front and rear bumpers on the driver's side.

Q — There are two widely separate dates stamped or typed on the face of my Savings Bonds. How can I determine when they started to earn interest?

A — U. S. Savings Bonds earn interest from their "issue date," which is the first day of the month in which they are purchased. Below the issue date is a space for the issuing agent's dating stamp — which shows the actual date the Bond is issued. This latter date has no effect on interest accruals or the waiting period for redemption. Thus, if you bought a Savings Bond on Jan. 29, 1971, it would bear the issue date of January 1971, while the agent's dating stamp would read Jan. 29, 1971. Your interest would accrue from Jan. 1 and, if necessary, the Bond could be redeemed as early as March 1, 1971.

The judge says

Before you buy, stop and think

USAIC LEGAL ASSISTANCE OFFICE — How often have you heard the old saying, "You never get something for nothing?" Unfortunately, many people forget this warning when they go shopping. Everything has its price. Stereo sets, automobiles and encyclopedias are no exception. Yet, ever day someone in the Fort Benning area buys something from a high-pressure salesman for an exhorbitant price. How can you prevent yourself from being taken? You must know your legal rights and use plain common sense.

Let's take an example. Does your house need aluminum siding put on it? Perhaps a friend knows a company that will install the siding for next to nothing if you allow them to use your house as a demonstrator. You just sign three copies of the "contract." In an unfortunate number of cases, what has been signed is a contract, a promissory note, and a mortgage on the house. Of course, no customers ever show up to look at your house.

It's also easy to get soaked on such purchases as television sets. You walk downtown and the Low-Life Appliance Store has a stereo-television system for only $600, with easy credit terms. You go in and sign on the dotted line. Later, you become uneasy at the size of your monthly payments. When you compute the total amount of money you are paying, you are shocked to discover that it is $1,800 — three times the amount of the cash price. The interest charged is 20 per cent. You have been caught by the cash-time price differential.

Encyclopedia salesmen are notorious for the traps they lay for the unsuspecting. They are especially prevalent around Army bases because there is a plentiful supply of their favorite victims: The young and naive. After a 45-minute talkathon only the very experienced can resist the temptation to bind themselves to a long term contract which calls for much more money than they can afford to pay.

What can you do to protect yourself? First, before you buy, stop and think. Once the madness of the moment passes, many people can see through the more obvious frauds. Read a contract carefully before you sign it. After you have read it, if you still don't understand it, consult an attorney. If the salesman screams about how he can't wait, just consider: Would a reputable businessman be that anxious to close a sale?

Also, know your legal rights. The recently passed Truth in Lending Act requires that a person buying on credit receive certain information. Generally, the lender must tell the borrower the amount of the finance charge, the number, amount, and due dates of payments, the method used in computing late payment charges and a description of the type of security interest to be held by the lender.

If a mortgage is given on a home, Federal law may give the borrower a grace period of three business days in which to cancel the loan. So if you have been swindled, and a mortgage on your home is involved, the Truth in Lending Act may give you three days to come to your senses. The Truth in Lending Act does not outlaw excessive finance charges. But it does insure that the buyer has the opportunity to see exactly what he is paying for.

Your best protection is caution. Don't get trapped in the first place. Shop around until you get credit terms that are understandable and reasonable. If you have any doubts about a contract, consult your Legal Assistance Office.

President proclaims Loyalty Day

In this time, as throughtout our history, the American nation rests fully and finally upon the loyalty of the American people.

Every day Americans around the globe bear witness to their national allegiance. In doing so, some bear final witness by giving up their lives for the life of this Nation. Not all are called to that extremity. But all are called to that degree of devotion. For that reason it is fitting that we set aside one day in the year when every citizen may pause to reflect on his own debt to the devotion to other Americans, and to bear witness in every appropriate way to his own loyalty.

To that end the Congress by a joint resolution on July 18, 1958, has designated May 1 of each year as Loyalty Day and requested the President to issue a proclamation inviting the people of the United States to observe such a day with appropriate ceremonies.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, RICHARD NIXON, President of the United States of America, do call upon the people of the United States, and upon all patriotic, civic and educational organizations, to observe Saturday, May 1, 1971 as Loyalty Day, with appropriate ceremonies in which all of us may join in a reaffirmation of our loyalty to the United States of America.

I also call upon appropriate officials of the Government to display the flag of the United States on all Government Buildings on that day as a manifestation of our loyalty to the Nation which that flag symbolizes.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this 16th day of March, in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred seventy-one and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred ninty-fifth.

(Signed)
Richard Nixon

SECOND ANNUAL COLUMBUS SQUARE crafts show MAY 1st and 2nd

THE BAYONET Inside Front

197th Inf. Bde. schedules Latin America fiesta

Oyen amigos. The 197th Infantry Brigade will sponsor a Latin American program at the Kelley Hill Service Club May 7.

A fiesta will be held from 1 to 5 p.m., showing cultural and educational displays and Mexican entertainment, including a mariachi band and flamenco dancer.

Guest speaker Phillip V. Sanchez, assistant director of operations for the Office of Equal Opportunity in Washington, D. C., will speak on the "The Contemporary Scene for Latin Minority Groups."

Free food will be catered by two downtown Mexican restaurants, and travel movies and unit displays will be featured at the festivities.

The Latin American Program is part of a major effort by the 197th to show members the cultures and achievements of American racial and ethnic minorities.

The 197th's effort also includes race seminars, use of an Army-wide information program on race relations, and a series of ethnic studies programs.

Part of the study program includes a series of ethnic group days such as this one. The first program was held in September 1970 with Afro-American Day at the 197th.

A blase father and his somewhat more astonished son share the top of an Armored Personnel Carrier with a .50 caliber machine gun and a trooper from the 1st Bn., 58th Inf. Rides on the APC were part of the activities at the Ranger Department's recent "open house" held at Union Control, Ga. The event showed about 2,000 residents of Stewart and Quitman counties the activities that the Rangers conduct in their vicinity. The department borrows woodland in these counties to conduct training exercises.

Infantry Hall to gain 211 new parking spaces

By Wendell Cochran

Asphaltic concrete, soil-cement base. Those are words that may mean a lot to a highway engineer, but they don't have much relevance to the average soldier.

Unless that soldier is looking for a parking space next to Infantry Hall. For him they mean a new 211-space parking lot, being constructed as part of the Modern Volunteer Army program.

The new lot is being built on the east side of Infantry Hall. Construction was scheduled to begin yesterday. Plans call for completion of the project within 45 days, or about June 15.

Post engineer crews have already taken the sod from the construction site and replanted it in various locations around post.

The local construction firm of Brady Williamson submitted the lower of two bids received for the project. Contract price was set at approximately $23,000.

Part of the recent parking crisis around the headquarters building was created by a Modern Volunteer Army program that permitted Infantry Officer Basic Course students to drive to classes instead of march.

It is hoped the new parking lot will help alleviate the crowded parking lot conditions.

Dental Unit sponsors Ga. dentists meeting

The U.S. Army Dental Unit at Fort Benning sponsored the annual Joint Dental Meeting of the Western District Dental Society of Georgia, which was held here yesterday.

More than 80 civilian denists serving Muscogee and surrounding counties were invited to attend the yearly affair. In addition, dental surgeons and their dental officers of nearby 3rd Army posts were encouraged to join in on the day's festivities.

During the afternoon the group participated in skeet trap shooting at the Fort Benning Rod and Gun Club; golfing at Fort Benning's Pineside Course; and dental discussion sessions at the Main Officers' Club and the Country Club.

Table displays on dentistry were exhibited in the ballroom of the Main Officer's Club last night.

During the dinner meeting at the club, golf, skeet and table clinic trophies were awarded. Climaxing the day's meeting was a speech by Dr. Parker E. Mahan, Emory University School of Dentistry, Atlanta, on "myofascial pain."

Drive to promote Bond purchases

By Charles McEwen

During May, the 1971 Person-to-Person Savings Bond Canvass will be conducted at Fort Benning by all major units and staff sections of the U.S. Army Infantry Center.

The purpose of the canvass is two-fold:

—To acquaint new arrivals with the investment advantages offered by U.S. Savings Bonds and to encourage the purchase of Series E Bonds through the payroll savings plan.

—To educate all presently assigned personnel who are not currently participating in the savings program and to promote the purchase of Series E Bonds through payroll savings.

Lt. Col. Robert E. Van Der Like, Finance and Accounting officer, is the chairman of the canvass. USAIC commanders and activity chiefs or their designated representatives have been appointed as field chairmen for the canvass.

In addition, commanders of five supported units have been invited to join the campaign.

Under plans for the canvass, one canvasser will be appointed for each 25 individuals in the unit or activity.

The canvassers are responsible for conducting personal interviews with all assigned individuals. Those not participating in the payroll savings plan will be encouraged to initiate an allotment or payroll deduction for the purchase of Series E. Bonds. Participants will be encouraged to increase the amount they are investing each pay period.

Law Day talks planned by 30 local students

A Law Day USA program will be presented to all pupils in grades four through eight of the Fort Benning Children's Schools by 30 eight-grade pupils from the Don C. Faith School May 3.

The 30 students were selected from among all eighth grade students at the Faith School after the students prepared speeches on the theme of Law Day 1971: Channel Change Through Law and Reason.

The 30 students, in teams of five, will speak at Wilson School, Edward White School, Wilbur School, Loyd School, McBride School and Dexter School.

GONNA GO FISHING
'It Takes Me To My Favorite Places'

Cycle takes fisherman to 'best places'

A fishing bike is not an amphibious vehicle, but the motorcycle of Sgt. Dennie L. Day, 609th Trans. Co., Avn. Cmd., takes him "anywhere along the Chattahoochee."

Day says that "since the majority of fish on the Chattahoochee are caught close to shore, boats offer little advantage." He installed a tackle box, a makeshift creel and two holders for fishing rods on his bike in order to reach his favorite, otherwise inaccessible, fishing spots.

The fishiog bike, says Day, attracts considerable attention in downtown Columbus. To satisfy the curiosity of passers-by he has painted "Gonna Go Fishing" on the rod holders.

Danish businessmen take Close look at Ft. Benning

Seven Danish businessmen sponsored by the Columbus Rotary Club got a close look at Fort Benning this week.

The Danes were on base as part of a project called "Group Study Exchange," which is an educational activity of the Rotary Foundation of Rotary International.

The group consisted of seven well-established businessmen from southern Denmark who have been traveling extensively throughout the Southeastern U.S. as part of this program. The visitors were Erling Nielsen, a sales manager for a large furniture factory; Ernst Elze, an electrical engineer; Nis Bgen, a municipal development officer; Frede Klausen, a teacher; Knud Pedersen, a banker; Erik Bang, an agriculturist; and Frithjof Nielsen, a textile distributor.

The guests, escorted by Columbus Rotarians Rudy Boyd and Ed Schwan, were taken on a tour of the Infantry Museum.

Wives talk of parties, picnics at April coffees

1st Bn., 29th Inf.

The USAIC Recreation Lodge was the setting for the 1st Bn., 29th Inf., April Hail and Farewell Party for officers and their wives. The party was an informal "pot luck" dinner, sponsored by the battalion staff.

Lt. Col. Henry Doctor Jr., battalion commander, introduced 1st Lt. and Mrs. Walter W. Minor, newly-assigned to Co. A. Doctor also presented departing gifts to 1st Lt. and Mrs. William Gay and 1st Lt. and Mrs. James Knight.

5th Bn., 31st Inf.

The ladies of the 5th Bn., 31st Inf., 197th Inf. Bde., met on April 14 for their monthly coffee. The hostesses were Mrs. Oliver Dillon and Mrs. Charles Duke.

As the women arrived, they were greeted by preparations for the battalion spring formal. Work was done on the party decorations throughout the evening.

However, the ladies stopped long enough to hear a very informative talk on the Army Community Service (ACS) given by 1st Lt. Elaine Roux, coordinator of volunteer activity and Mrs. Nancy Hanson, the volunteer supervisor. The functions of the many committees of ACS were explained. The need for volunteer workers was stressed.

The ladies made a monetary donation to the food locker committee of ACS from their club treasury.

A special guest at the coffee was Mrs. Kenneth Emmerson, wife of the command sergeant major of the battalion.

The wife of brigade chaplain and acting battalion chaplain, Mrs. David W. Hoh, was welcomed into the group. Mrs. Glen Pendergrass was bid farewell by the ladies of the 5th Bn., 31st Inf.

Weapons Department

"Party News" was the theme of Mrs. John Taber, home economist, who was guest speaker for the ladies of the Weapons Department. Mrs. Taber is a graduate of Auburn University and is employed with the Columbus Gas Light Company.

The 40 members met on April 21 at the Ramada Inn in Phenix City. Hostesses were the Mortar Committee ladies, with Mrs. Fox McCarty, chairman.

Mrs. Jack L. Conn, wife of Col. Conn, department director, conducted a business meeting.

Newcomers welcomed to the department were Mrs. James W. Reoues, Mrs. Thomas M. Frasier, Mrs. Robert B. Manchester, Mrs. Maurice E. McCraw, Mrs. Joe G. Blankenship, Mrs. George B. Sears, Mrs. Robert J. Evans, and Mrs. Jerry W. Bradley.

Farewells were said to Mrs. Robert W. Faulkender, Mrs. Albert K. Taylor and Mrs. Curtis E. Douglas.

Guest of Mrs. William T. Vossler was Mrs. Douglas Martz.

After the brunch, everyone was invited to sample the delicious party foods prepared and decorated by Mrs. Taber.

At election coffee

The Officer Wives Club's annual election coffee was held April 14 at the Supper Club of the Main Officers Club with three members of the Columbus Symphony providing entertainment and a brief lecture on the symphony. Present were (L-R) Dr. Andrew Galos; Rexford Whiddon; Harry Kruger, conductor; Mrs. Evan Parker, program chairman for the annual meeting, and Mrs. Raymond Gunderson, outgoing president.

1st Bn., 58th Inf.

The April "Soldiers' Wives Coffee" of the 1st Bn. (Mech.), 58th Inf "Patriots" was held recently in the battalion area.

The social occasion, which includes the wives of soldiers of all grades within the battalion, started in a lively competitive spirit when the wives took a poll to see which company was best represented. This set the mood for jokes, stories and small talk, all in a relaxed informal atmosphere. Some ideas for future meetings, including a picnic lunch with the husbands, were proposed. Brightly-colored, casual summer clothes were the dress of the day.

A delicious and appreciated treat of donuts, brownies and cookies were donated by the 197th Infantry Brigade Pastry School. Coffee, tea and fruit drinks were provided.

Command Maintenance

The officers and wives of the Command Maintenance Department enjoyed two social gatherings last week. On April 21 the ladies treated the men to a covered dish luncheon at the home of Mrs. Leonard R. Daems, 404 1st Division Road.

The buffet table was beautifully decorated with a marvelous array of food including such tasty items as barbecue sandwiches, potato salad, cole slaw, baked beans, deviled eggs and relishes.

The officers enjoyed their unusual lunch hour so much, they agreed unanimously that the luncheon should be made a weekly event.

On April 24 the supper club of the Main Officers Open Mess was the scene of a gala dinner dance. After the cocktail hour and dinner, Col. Leonard R. Daems, department director, addressed the group. Welcomes were extended to four new members of the department including Capt. and Mrs. Mitchell H. Willis, Capt. and Mrs. Arthur V. Grant, 1st Lt. and Mrs. Walter R. Howard and CW2 and Mrs. Michael H. Dilbeck.

Farewells were bid to Capt. and Mrs. David P. Kennedy, Capt. Robert R. Angeli, Capt. and Mrs. James H. Pitts, C.W.2 and Mrs. David T. Garnett and CW4 and Mrs. Adolph F. Mazeika. Mazeika is retiring after 34 years of service.

After the presentation of gifts to those leaving the department, everyone adjourned to the dance floor to enjoy an evening of music by the "Blue Notes."

SPRING FASHIONS
Presented At IOAC Luncheon

Luncheon heralds new season

The wives of the 2nd platoon of the Infantry Officer Advanced Course (IOAC) Class 5-71 held a luncheon at the Supper Club, Fort Benning Officers Open Mess, on April 20.

The social chairman for the event was Mrs. William R. Moat and the theme was Spring and Summer. The theme was accented by tables arranged in a large, open square. Each side of the square was decorated in the colors of either the month of April, May, July, or August.

Handmade flowers and mushrooms in the brillant colors of Spring and Summer were featured. A colorful wheelbarrow filled with flowers was centered on the floor in the middle of the square. The decorations chairman for the affair was Mrs. Michael T. Hershey.

A fashion show was presented by a local dress shop. Models were furnished by the ladies of the 2nd platoon. They were Mrs. William F. Hawkins Jr., Mrs. Allen E. Heiner, Mrs. Osvaldo A. Izquierdo, Mrs. Pierce T. Graney Jr., and Mrs. William F. Garrison.

Special guests were Mrs. Charles Pemberton and Mrs. Otis Holmes.

Taller men

The average American soldier in World War II was ¾ths of an inch taller than his World War I counterpart.

OWC offers classes in adult oil painting

Two new adult oil painting classes are being offered by the Officers' Wives Club (OWC) beginning Monday and Wednesday. Both classes will meet in the OWC lounge from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. The cost of this course is $16 for six weeks.

A six-week children's art class will be conducted in the OWC lounge at a cost of $12. Classes for kindergarten through 2nd grade will begin Tuesday; grades three through five will begin Wednesday. All classes will meet from 4:15 to 5:15 p.m. Junior and senior classes will be made available if there is a sufficient demand.

For information concerning any of the art classes, please contact Mrs. Martin Glaser at 689-3580.

Sweets entice Rangers

Ranger students at the Harmony Church area "fell in" April 13 to buy home baked cake, cookies and brownies from the women of the Ranger Officers Wives Club.

The fact that the Ranger students were on their way to the mess hall seemed to matter little as the men heaped paper plates high with sweets. One man balanced six pieces of chocolate cake through the line and another was seen with at least three dozen chocolate oatmeal chip cookies.

The bake sale was organized by Mrs. Richard Meadows. Profits will be used to support the activities of the club.

2 leave Inf. Board

Mrs. Ann Hill and Mrs. Viola Worozbyt of the Infantry Board received a warm bon voyage during a reception held in their honor in the Board Conference Room April 16.

Mrs. Hill, who served 2½ years with the Test Division, will now work in the Office of the Secretary of General Staff.

After nearly ten years with the Board, Mrs. Worozbyt, Field equipment Test Branch, was reassigned to MAR, Professional Services, Department of Psychiatry and Neurology at the Benning House.

During the reception, they were awarded the Infantry Board's Certificate of Achievement.

51st Co. dance marks completion of 12th week

Calling attention to the 30th year of OCS, the 51st Co., 5th Stu. Bn., TSB, celebrated completion of its 12th week of training with a party April 24 at the Officers' Club.

"OCS—Our 30th Year" was the theme for the party at which student council president, Candidate Roger Jones and Mrs. Jones, were host and hostess.

Honored guests of the evening were Lt. Col. Donlad E. Bliss, battalion commander, and Mrs. Bliss and Capt. Frank R. Vavrek, company commander, and Mrs. Vavrek.

Decorations included displays of photographs and slides of the company's training to date, an exhibit of art work done by talented candidates and wives, and a collection of pictures and clippings illustrating the "old program" of Officer Candidate School.

Entertainment was provided throughout the evening by candidates and wives. Dance music was by the Metal Circus.

The organizational chairman for the party was Candidate John Hannah.

"THAT MAY BE, JONES, BUT THAT DOESN'T MAKE ME A PROS-APHY!"

DON'T FORGET MOTHER'S DAY ON MAY 9th

Cosmetic experts to be at PX Beauty Jamboree

The Main Post Exchange will present a Gala Beauty Jamboree May 4 through 8 at the cosmetic counter during regular operating hours.

Coordinating the festivities at the post are Chris Ciampaglia, assistant general manager, Ed Hregner, retail operations manager and Charles Guy, store manager. Mr. O'Brien feels this will provide service wives with the opportunity to acquaint themselves with the newest trends in beauty fashions from professionally trained Make-Up-Artists.

Each person attending the Beauty Jamboree will receive a complimentary make-up and beauty analysis. A personal make-up chart will be given each beauty buff recommending the proper shades of make-up to use for achieving the natural look.

An added PLUS is a $5 Beauty Bonus and an exercise kit with a minimum $5 purchase. (As a special treat, colorful balloons will be given to the children at the Exchange).

Make-up-artist Nell Bate, a former hair stylist, will be coming in from Atlanta for this presentation. Make-up-artist Virginia Laester is flying in on special assignment from Cherry Point, N. C. Make-up-artist Jean Paradiso, who has just been promoted to supervisor of the Southeast United States, will also be present. Fort Benning has a new resident make-up-artist. Nina Ingram will make the Jamboree her first visit to the post.

Those Hollywood-trained make-up-artists will be conducting demonstrations throughout the day for the convenience of Exchange shoppers.

Tears may come

Soldiers from the 608th Ord. Co., 931st Engr. Gp., enter a tear agent chamber for protective mask training. The soldiers enter the chamber wearing the masks, making sure they fit correctly and function properly. Then comes the moment of truth when the masks are removed to prove their effectiveness. With the masks removed the soldiers are asked to state their name, rank and serial number. By the time they come crashing out the back door the know why they should wear the protective masks. Other units taking part in the exercise were 533rd Trans. Co., 598th Lt. Maint. and HHD, 67th Maint. Bn.

18 engineers take part in Destin 'R&R' jaunt

Some 18 men of the 931st Engineer Group spent four days in the surf and sun at the Destin Recreation Area, Destin, Fla., last weekend as guests of Fort Benning's Special Services.

The engineers departed April 22 and returned April 25. The Destin trip was the first of its kind offered this year to the engineer group, although Special Services plans to continue the activity on a regular basis all summer.

The brief "R and R's" are scheduled to be rotated among the major units here. The 931st will be sending it's members to Destin once a month under the current program.

The 931st project officer Capt. Robert L. Parker, says Fort Benning units will select the men who will visit the Gulf shore resort area.

Billeting is provided free of charge to the men and seperate rations allocations are available to help defray the costs of meals.

The Destin Recreation Area boasts good beaches, rental motor boats, fishing boats and cabins.

Parker said some of the 931st subordinate units decide which men will make the trip according to the conduct and merits of individual soldiers. This, he says, improves morale.

"If it's run right by the cadre it's a good way for the troops to go and cool it for a few days," he added, "I wouldn't mind going myself if my wife would let me," he smiled.

General is briefed by Board

Maj. Gen. Frank M. Izenour, commanding general of the U.S Army Test and Evaluation Command, parent headquarters of the Infantry Board at Fort Benning, was briefed on the Board's activities during a two-day visit last week.

The Infantry Board is one of 15 military installations under the Command that test and evaluate weapons, vehicles and other equipment designed for use by the Army.

Gen. Izenour is no stranger to Fort Benning as he served as director, Command and Staff Department (Tactics Department); the Infantry School from 1957-1959, and deputy, assistant commandant and Director of Instruction, the Infantry School from 1959-1960. This was the seventh trip he has made to Fort Benning since taking over command of TECOM.

At legal assistance

How 7 people help 8,000 monthly

By Tony Jones

Building 2610 at Fort Benning is the scene of a great deal of activity — all of it is legal, though. For this building contains the legal assistance section of the Staff Judge Advocate's Office here.

Capt. Stephen Lenske, who is in charge of the section, said the workload averages around 8,000 cases a month.

Comprised of three commissioned lawyers, three enlisted clerks, and a civilian secretary, the legal assistance section assists military personnel and their dependents with advice and counseling on personal legal problems of a civil nature.

They provide help with such matters as wills, powers of attorney, bills of sale, tax returns, complaints and releases.

When a problem arises that is beyond the scope of the legal assistance officer's authority, he may refer the person to a civilian counsel or to a cooperating bar organization.

Established in 1943 under the joint sponsorship of the American Bar Association and the War Department, the Army legal assistance program has as its purpose providing prompt assistance in resolving personal legal difficulties of military personnel and their dependents.

At the heart of the legal assistance program of the Army is the concept of "preventive law," a program aimed at preventing a legal problem from developing by increasing the awareness of military personnel to the information they may obtain from the legal assistance section that will help them from becoming enbrolled in a legal problem.

The legal assistance program accomplishes these ends by informing new arrivals of the services available to them from the legal assistance section.

Additionally, other steps are taken by the legal assistance officer as part of the military and civilian community relations programs to further inhance the success of the preventive law concept.

But, all of the services of the legal assistance program of the Army go for naught if the individual soldier is not aware of where he can obtain information concerning his legal problems or questions.

If one has a question and he thinks the legal assistance program might be of help but is not sure, a telephone call to the legal assistance officer at 545-1311 will help that person determine immediately what course he should take.

AUSA official briefed on School

Brig. Gen. Robert F. Cocklin, U.S. Army Reserve officer who serves as public affairs director for the Association of the U.S. Army (AUSA), visited Fort Benning Monday and Tuesday.

Gen. Cocklin, of Washington, D.C., addressed the Columbus Kiwanis Club at a luncheon meeting at the Ralston Hotel Tuesday. He was introduced by Brig. Gen. John T. Carley, assistant commandant of the Infantry School.

During his visit Gen. Cocklin received briefings on activities of the Infantry Center and Infantry School and discussed "Leadership in the 70s" with Col. William Steele, director of the Leadership Department of the Infantry School, and Chaplain (Col.) Albert Ledeboer, post chaplain.

Also he met with Col. Edwin Kennedy, chief of the Modern Army Control Group, for a discussion of the Modern Volunteer Army program at Fort Benning.

Tuesday morning Gen. Cocklin attended a breakfast at the Ralston Hotel. The breakfast was the "kick off" for the Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning chapter's civilian membership drive.

Also Tuesday he met with AUSA members and interviewed soldiers in The School Brigade regarding their reactions to the Modern Volunteer Army program. He visited the new learning center designed to allow students to receive instruction at their pace, to reinforce classroom instruction, or permit study of other subjects.

Before his departure Gen. Cocklin toured the 551st Engineer Group and the 197th Infantry Brigade for a first-hand look at partitions being installed to give soldiers more privacy in the barracks.

AUSA

By Stan Hefner

The Association of the United States Army (AUSA) — dedicated to the premise that a strong, modern, mobile Army is vitally essential to our national defense. Spring Membership Drive.

AUSA'S PURPOSES

—To consolidate the efforts of all who support the United States Army as an indepensible instrument of national security.

—To contribute its full resources to advancing the security of the United States.

—To inform the American people of the fundamental facts and factors pertaining to national defense.

—To foster public understanding and support of the entire Army—Army National Guard, Army Reserve, active Army and Department of Army Civilians.

—To promote greater recognition of the military profession and to advance the well being and opportunities of those who pursue a military career.

FORT BENNING FEATURED IN ARMY MAGAZINE

The April Edition of the AUSA's monthly magazine, Army, features several articles about Fort Benning and activities at the Infantry Center.

The articles, "The Now Is Very In at Fort Benning" and "Fort Bennig's Martin Army Hospital: Where the Patient Comes First" describes VOLAR at Fort Benning, and the "We Care" program at Martin Army Hospital.

L. James Binder, the magazine's editor, gathered information for the articles on a recent visit to Fort Benning.

MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

Brig. Gen. Robert F. Cocklin, USAR, National AUSA Director of Public Affairs, was guest speaker at the one-day "blitz" membership drive kick-off breakfast held April 27 at the Ralston Hotel in Columbus.

Gen. Cocklin, speaking to the approximately 60 businessmen participating in the drive, stated that at no time in history had the work of the AUSA been so important. "With the efforts to divert funds in Congress to other projects, we are among the few fighting to keep the Army and the country strong," he stated.

Results of the "blitz" headed by Col. Jacob L. Riley, USA ret., are not in at the time of this printing.

Other efforts in the drive are being directed at the active military and DA civilians working at Fort Benning, Lt. Col. John Seddon, coordinator of the drive at Benning, says information material and membership blanks have been distributed to representatives down through company level. Representatives from the 197th Infantry Brigade and the 93ist Engineer Group are to be congratulated for the fine job they have done in the initial stages of the drive.

DA CIVILIAN MEMBERS

Of particular interest is the effort to obtain members from the approximately 7,000 DA civilians employed at Fort Benning and retired military living in the whose interests parallel those of the AUSA. It should be noted that the Association has continuously supported improved career and incentive programs for DA civilians. It also has pushed for improved retired activities programs and a program to insure proper use of the talents of retiring military personnel in second career employment. AUSA also supports expansion of national and post cemeteries, retirement pay credit for enlisted men for inactive reserve duty prior to June 1, 1958 and maintenance of adequate PX and commissary facilities.

Persons desiring more information about membership in AUSA may call the chapter office at 545-4792.

ROTC RIFLE AND DRILL MEET

The fourth annual Junior Division ROTC Rifle Team-Drill Team competition sponsored by the local chapter, AUSA, will be held at Fort Benning May 6-8.

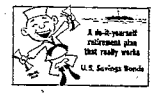
Approximately 700 cadets composing 60 rifle and drill teams are expected to participate according to Maj. (ret.) William G. Newbold, chairman of the chapter's ROTC Committee.

The meet will be climaxed by an awards ceremony held in conjunction with a chapter meeting and drill exhibition by the winning teams at 4:30 p.m. May 8. All chapter members are urged to attend.

Ranger sets record for academic points

A new record-holder for academic points scored in the Ranger Course was recognized during Ranger graduation ceremonies April 22.

Earning 1,005 points during his Ranger training was Capt. Dale Lamke. The record breaking point total earned Lamke the title of distinguished officer honor graduate of Ranger Class 10-71.



Lamke's record applies to a new system of grading which became effective with Class 4-71. Under the new system, bonus points may be earned through good spot reports submitted on a student by a Ranger advisor, enabling outstanding students to garner more than the theoretically possible 1,000.

Lamke, a graduate of IOAC-6 earlier this year, has served two tours in Vietnam and will now attend the University of Nebraska.

Recognized as distinguished honor ealisted graduate was PFC Thomas L. Motter. Motter, an Airborne qualified combat medic, garnered 862 points to gain the honor.

A total of 147 new Rangers, including four allied officers received their tabs during the graduation ceremony.

In order to earn their tabs, the rangers completed a demanding 9 - week course which includes patrolling, mountaineering and water borne combat techniques taught at sites in Georgia and Florida.

Exercise

some three miles from the blast site at Eelbeck Landing Strip.

Less urgent simulated casualties were evacuated by the 609th Ambulance Company as the 546th began the second phase of its operation — applying first aid, taking X-rays and probing and closing simple wounds.

Meanwhile, the field hospital was taking on the appearance of a camp under siege with orderlies scurrying about while MEDEVAC choppers ferried in victims from the blast site.

In all the bustle, nonetheless, a strict order was being followed — incoming "patients" received an immediate rinsing with a heavy jet of water supplied by a water tank truck.

A quick change of clothes followed the shower, given to reduce the possibility of contamination, and "patients" with minor injuries were put to work assisting the overloaded medics.

Once showered and decontaminated, the patients were then channeled to the receiving and evacuation station, the "focal point of the hospital," said Sgt. Maj. Henry M. Church. This station registered and determined whether a patient should be further evacuated.

The 2nd Evacuation Hospital, a complete hospital with everything from a pharmacy and labs to wards, operating rooms and dental stations, seemed like an awesome machine. Patients waiting for operations were "prepared for surgery" while X-rays were readied in 15 second.

Once in the operating room the patient found himself under the skilled care of Sp5 Paul L. Gensamer, an Operating Room technician. One simulated operation he performed was an experimental palarotomy, an incision and examination of the abdominal wall in cases of severe stomach injuries to determine whether further surgery was necessay.

Post-operative care began after surgery, and Sp6 Robert E. Steves had his section ready. Post-operative patients were closely watched, and if they failed to begin to recover with 72 hours, Steves ensured that patients were evacuated to more sophisticated facilities in the rear.

Personnel, however, were not the only ones being tested in the exercise, for large-scale emergency procedures require good, efficient equipment also. A new oxygen mask, for instance, was being tested during the exercise, and Sgt. Lamont H. White used it to give oxygen to a "heart attack patient."

SFC Jack F. Black Hospital Food Services, was ready to prepare special diets for patients requiring such additional care. Part of the diet included a short order menu and soft drinks. The Modern Volunteer Army program, it seems, goes equally well in the field.

Though the exercise was conducted without the full complement of equipment, due to the location of the 34th Bn.'s emergency equipment in Europe the battalion was able to perform with a local training setup.

the Joint Uniform Military Pay System (JUMPS).

The earliest date that individuals will see the effects of JUMPS on their pay will be in the middle of September.

There will be a meeting of first sergeants on May 3 at which time the proper completion of the forms will be explained to them. They, in turn, will then receive the forms which they will distribute in their units for proper completion by individuals.

Law Day

discontent," 27-year-old Capt. Bruce Shreves said in a recent interview.

The Chicago native has been asigned to the military justice division of the JAG office here since January 1970.

Law Day was first established by Presidential proclamation in 1958. It is now observed nationwide annually on the first of May by a joint resolution of Congress and proclamation of the President of the United States.

The purposes of Law Day, according to its sponsor, the American Bar Association, are to advance equality and justice under law, to encourage citizen support of law observance and law enforcement to foster respect for law and understanding of its essential place in American life.

Shreves, who received his direct commission in December 1969, said that "people are realizing that they can express their frustration through legal channels to effect desired changes."

Shreves opted for a career in law after receiving a B.A. degree in history in 1965 from Holy Cross College in Worcester, Mass. because "it provides an opportunity to be involved in the political process in a meaningful way."

He received his juris doctor degree in 1969 from Georgetown Law School in Washington, D.C., which he attended at night while working in the criminal division of the Justice Department. While working there, he served as editor of the U. S. Attorney's Bulletin, a magazine sent to U.S. attorneys which reviews recent court cases and decisions.

While in Washington, Shreves met and married the former Jacqueline Farnsworth, who was working in the balance of trades section of the Department of Commerce. She is a 1967 graduate of Barat College in Lake Forest, Ill.

After completing his Army duty, Shreves hopes to return to Sioux Falls and pursue a career in trial law. He is receiving a lot of experience in that in his assignment at Fort Benning. "I enjoy my work here because it offers a lot of trial experience."

The reason for all the trial experience, Shreves added, is because of the existence here of a special processing detachment, which is responsible for handling cases in about three or four states.

BENEFITS FROM YOUR STATE & BONUSES

Although the State of North Carolina has not passed a bonus, it has an extensive program of benefits for veterans and members of the Armed Forces.

The most extensive program is that of scholarships for the children of disabled or deceased veterans. For the children of a vetcran parent killed in war-time service or as the result of a service-connected condition, scholarships are given which provide free tuition in public and community colleges, as well as a boarding allowance and exemption from certain fees and charges.

Similar programs are available to other classes of veterans.

Preference in state government employment is given to war veterans and their widows, and discharges may be recorded free of charge. Certified copies of discharges may be obtained. There are tax relief provisions in the North Carolina laws.

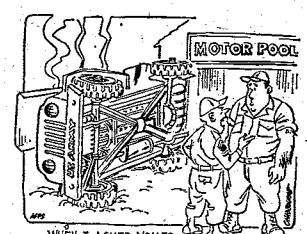
Further information may be obtained from:

Department of Veterans Affairs, PO Drawer 26206, Raleigh, N. C. 27611.

Texas has a bargain rate on higher education if you are a member of the Armed Forces stationed there. You can attend a state university or college and pay only resident tuition fees for yourself, your wife, and children.

For veterans, discharge papers may be recorded free of charge at your county office, and for veterans as well as members of the Armed Forces who are residents of Texas, copies of public records necessary to prove or establish a claim will be furnished free of charge.

The Texas Veterans' Land Program gives residents of the Lone Star State an opportunity to buy a piece of the land. A good-sized piece, in fact, since the land selected by a veteran must contain at least fifteen acres. The Veterans Land Board sells land to veterans under 40-year contract, and when the contract is paid in full, the deed is given to the buyer.



There are many other benefits for those who serve. For further information, contact: Veterans Affairs Commission of Texas, Drawer II, Capitol Station, Austin, Tex. 78711.

School children to apply preventive dental paste

It is time again for the pupils of the Fort Benning Post Elementary Schools to "do their thing" in the way of self dental help. This will be accomplished by the individual student at his classroom desk. The program will begin Tuesday in the Edward A. White Elementary School.

Personnel from the U.S. Army Dental Unit of Fort Benning will visit each classroom to supervise the self-application brushing. They also will demonstrate the proper methods of home dental care, using a disclosing tablet (food dye) in conjunction with the brushing. This red coloring agent reveals the areas of the detrimental dental plaque on the tooth surfaces that must be removed each day if dental decay and gum ills are to be prevented.

Each child will have at his desk the special preventive dentistry paste, a toothbrush, a cup of water for mouth and brush rinsing, an empty cup for waste water, pape towels and a tube of regular fluoride toothpaste for home use.

The self-application every six months with this special fluoride preventive dentistry paste will greatly reduce the rate of dental ills. The dental health programs at school also serve as reminders for the parents to exert a more conscientious effort in behalf of their own daily dental health care as well as that of their children.

The degree of protection is the greatest for the very young and lessens with increase of age — the amount of protection begins to taper off around the age of 25. Therefore, reduction of dental cavities is proportional to an individuals age with the young people receiving the maximum amount of protection. Benefits of self-applying this special fluoride paste have proven to be the same as benefits previously received by the child during the 30-40 minute individual clinical treatment. An entire classroom of 25-40 students now receive these benefits in the period of time formerly required for only one treatment.

It will be duplicating treatment time without gaining any further benefits if your child has a cleaning appointment after receiving this self-application. Therefore, those children attending on-post schools and receiving the self-application treatment should not call for a cleaning appointment. Students attending off-post schools should periodically call the dental clinic for a prophylaxis and carries preventive treatment.

A small percentage of the students, usually those in the upper grades, are found to have an accumulation of calculus (tartar) or excessive stains on their teeth. Parents of these students will be called by the Preventive Dentistry Clinic individually to arrange for clinical appointment for the removal of the calculus stains and also a preventive fluoride treatment.

Each participating student must present the teacher with a signed consent slip to receive the self-application treatment. Approximately 3,700 students are anticipated to take advantage of this program. More than 7,600 Fort Benning soldiers under 25 years of age have recently self-applied this special anticaries paste on a semi-annual basis.)

Funds for the dental training aids and dental education materials are provided entirely by the Community Activities Association fund.

Materials and supplies for the school self-application program are provided jointly by the Community Activities Association and the USA Dental Unit of Fort Benning. The School Dental Health Program is under the direction of Lt. Col. Silas M. Crase, U.S. Army, Dental Unit, and coordinated with Dr. Joseph T. Conforti, superintendent of Fort Benning Post Elementary Schools.

College announces class on Spanish-American life

A special Spanish-American studies program has been approved at Columbus College and applications are now being accepted.

Philip Battle, professor of Spanish at the college, will conduct the six-weeks course in the Spanish language and Spanish-American culture which begins July 19. Enrollment will be limited to 20 students.

The first two weeks will consist of an intensive session of conversational practice at the college.

Traveling as a group, the class will then fly to Bogota, Colombia, where studies will continue on the campus of La Universidad de los Andes.

While in Bogata, the students will live with Colombian families. The Fulbright Commission of Colombia is arranging lodging as a courtesy to Columbus College.

The cost of the entire six-week program, including tuition, round trip transportation from Columbus, room, and board, is under $500.

Inquiries should be directed to Mr. Battle at the college, 561-5134.

Social security for the young, too

Robert E. O'Neal, district manager of the Columbus Social Security Office, points out that many people have the idea that social security is for old persons. Often the impression is given that all young workers are paying the social security tax for the primary benefit of elderly beneficiaries.

While one purpose of the program is to pay retirement benefits, other types of protection is also provided.

O'Neal says a young worker should not overlook the financial protection he is providing for himself and his family when the tax is deducted from his pay check. Disability or death might strike a worker at any age. Such a catastrophe is no respector of age.

Supposing a young worker with a family should become severly disabled or should die. Obviously, income for the family is lost.

Most young workers have many obligations and cannot afford a full range of financial protection actually needed. Thus, social security often represents the greatest protection a young family has.

Social security will not provide all that is needed, but it will provide a strong financial foundation on which other investments might be added. O'Neal emphasizes the primary objective of the program is to partially replace lost income due to old-age, disability, or death of the breadwinner."

53rd candidates become seniors

The men of 53rd Co., 5th Stu. Bn., TSB, Class 18-71, became senior officer candidates April 16 in ceremonies on York Field next to Infantry Hall.

Senior status is the end result of 18 hard weeks of basic and intermediate phases of the Officer Candidate program.

Senior candidates are given by first and second phase candidates all the respect and courtesy of a commissioned officer. The senior phase is the final phase in the program in which the candidates will be commissioned.

Benning brothers only agree on college choice

DAHLONEGA, Ga. — On the surface one would think the Santaliz brothers, three young men from Fort Benning who are enrolled at North Gergia College, have a lot in common.

Ralph and Raul Santaliz, fraternal twins, and younger brother Robert all look alike — dark hair, eyes and complexion. They attend the same school, and all three lean towards careers in physical education.

But there the likeness ends.

It's a rare occasion when the trio gets together in person at North Georgia and apparently an even rarer occasion when the three get together at all — physically or philosophically.

"We don't hardly agree on anything," says Ralph, the elder Santaliz, "and we're different in our personality and thinking."

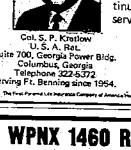
Ralph is talkative, Raul is less so, and Robert, at 19 the youngest Santaliz, hardly stays in one place long enough to talk.

The three also differ in their likes and dislikes. Ralph enjoys baseball, football is Raul's favorite, and Robert lifts weights. The Santaliz's hold conflicting views on politics, food and women as well.

How, then did the three all decide to come to North Georgia?

"Our folks are in the military," says Raul, "and they knew that North Georgia was a good school. They wanted us to go, we did and we like it."

The Santaliz's are the sons of SFC and Mrs. Rafael Santaliz of Fort Benning. Sgt. Santaliz has been in the U. S. Army for 22 years.



Like their father, Ralph and Raul had planned on military careers, but their enthusiasm in sports has resulted in minor injuries which will limit their military service.

Restore America's Honor and Victory

A Petition to President Nixon

We, the undersigned, plead with you, the Commander-in-Chief, to right the injustice done to Lt. William L. Calley.

We believe Lt. Calley's conviction undermines our total war effort and destroys the morale of our servicemen.

Remove this stain from the uniform of all Americans, past, present, and future. We want victory. End the no-win policy and bring the POW's home first.

A look at Infantry OCS

RANGER WEEK: Chattam County becomes the home of officer candidates during their 17th week of training when they are the "guests" of the Ranger Department on a five-day field training exercise. These two candidates check over their gear prior to moving out on a tactics problem.

RIFLE QUALIFICATION: During the seventh week of Officer Candidate School, candidates have to qualify with the M16 rifle at Simpson Range. In order to qualify, a candidate must hit a minimum of 30 targets out of a possible 84. Rifle marksmanship is taught by the Small Arms Committee of the Infantry School.

DRILL AND CEREMONIES: One of the first requirements of OCS is to learn how to march properly. During the first eight weeks of training candidates spend many hours on the parade field with the Infantry School Drill and Ceremonies Committee at Stewart Field.

ARMOR AND COMBINED OPERATIONS: After candidates have mastered company and platoon tactics, they become familiar with mechanized Infantry problems. During this phase of training, candidates learn how to employ both armor and mechanized Infantry in the combined operations role.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The men shown in these photos were members of Officer Candidate Class 7-71 (52nd Co., 5th Stu. Bn., TSB). Rogers was a member of this company which has graduated after these pictures were taken.)

Passing by

Members of Fort Benning's honor guard pass the crowd in front of the reviewing stand during a parade in Eufaula, Ala., April 24 for Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, chairman of the Joints Chiefs of Staff. The honor guard is provided by Co. C, 1st Bn., 29th Inf., 197th Inf. Bde. Also participating in "Tom Moorer Days" at Eufaula from Fort Benning was a color guard, the 293rd Band and the Scout Dog Platoon.

Alabamians get chance to enlist, see equipment

Residents of Alexander City, Ala., were surprised recently to find their shopping center occupied by an equipment display of the 197th Infantry Brigade. It might have unnerved some of the local citizenry to stare down the gun-missile tube of one of the 4th Bn., 69th Arm.'s Sheridans, but the display was enthusiastically received.

As one of seven CONUS units available under the new "unit of choice" recruiting option, the 197th has been conducting these displays in conjunction with local recruiters. Alexander City falls within the area of operation of the 4th Bn., 69th Arm. designated Task Force TANK. TF TANK, led by Capt. Thomas M. Petty, opened shop April 22 for a three day recruiting drive.

The heavy ordinance is effective in drawing the crowds. Included in the Alexander City display was a TOW missile launcher from the 1st Bn., 29th Inf., an Armored Personnel Carrier from the 1st Bn., 58th Inf. (Mech), a 105mm Howitzer from the 2nd Bn., 10th Arty., and a M551 Sheridan from the 4th Bn., 69th Armor.

Once the curious were attracted, the Task Force TANK personnel went to work. Prospective enlistees were counseled and urged to fill-out referral forms which are given to the local recruiter.

Results of the Alexander City trip were particularly rewarding. Petty said, "this trip has been the most successful recruiting mission the 197th has conducted to date." A total of 117 referrals resulted, including 11 potential WACs.

Education avenues offered drop-outs

WASHINGTON (AFPS) There are many ways that servicemen and veterans — particularly high school "dropouts" — can continue their education, according to the Veterans Administration.

One, the Predischarge Education Program, help servicemen on active military duty earn high school diplomas or prepare for higher education or vocational training.

Another program provides tutorial assistance above the high school level for servicemen and veterans who study under the GI Bill.

The VA pays servicemen in PREP up to $175 each month for the regular costs of tuition, fees, books and supplies.

Servicemen receive a lump sum payment when enrolled in remedical, refresher, deficiency makeup or other courses required for educational programs above high school level.

To be eligible for PREP, servicemen must have at least 181 consecutive days of active duty. The schooling is not chargeable against GI Bill time earned during active service.

Interested servicemen should contact their base education offices for details, VA officials said.

Under the tutorial program, VA will pay up to $59 monthly in tutoring fees for a maximum of nine months to prevent eligible servicemen and veterans from failing in a subject essential in courses of study. Tutorial costs are not chargeable to a veteran's educational eligibility, the VA said.

Applications for tutorial assistance are available at base education offices.

Re-up bonus of $10,000

Sp5 Mark Randolph Anderson (C), recently reenlisted for six years in the U.S. Army and received a variable reenlistment bonus of $10,000. Anderson received the reenlistment oath from Col. John E. Tyler (R), director of Operations and Logistics. Anderson's wife Marsie also attended the ceremony. Anderson, 22, is assigned as a sound maintenance technician with the Sound Branch at the Infantry School. Prior to entering the Army, he was employed as a fabrication clerk with the Armstrong Cork Company in Macon, Ga.

A scout in the Fort Benning District received the highest rank a scout can receive in a ceremony April 12 in the Infantry Center Chapel Annex.

John T. McCafferty, son of CWO and Mrs. John T. McCafferty, received his distinctive Eagle neckerchief, symbolic of the promotion to Eagle Scout, from Lt. Col. (ret.) Lemuel Thomas, scoutmaster. McCafferty was promoted by Col. Robert J. Standley, vice chairman for camping of the Fort Benning District. Col. Standley is the commanding officer of the 931st Engineer Group.

Lt. Col. (ret.) Dale Liggett, Fort Benning District Scout Executive, presented Walter Newcombe, son of Maj. and Mrs. Nelson O. Newcombe, with his 37th Merit Badge and Silver Palm to his Eagle rank. Liggett also presented Dennis Hudson, son of Sgt. Maj. and Mrs. William Hudson with his Silver Palm.

Liggett also presented Star rank to Mike Freeman, son of Capt. and Mrs. James Freeman; Richard McElrath, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. William T. McElrath; Chip Conner, son of Capt. and Mrs. Wiley Conner; and Gerhard Ratcliff, son of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Ratcliff.

Second Class awards were presented by Thomas to Joe Driskill, son of Maj. and Mrs. Joe Driskill; Ricky Smith, son of Maj. and Mrs. Horace Smith; Ricky Fellows, son of Capt. and Mrs. Harry Fellows; Tim Harvey, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Charles Harvey; and Tim Bridges, son of Capt. and Mrs. Tim Bridges.

Maj. Nelson Newcombe, assistant scoutmaster, presented Merit Badges to Jeff Newcombe, his son; Mike Freeman; Buddy Baldwin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hunter Baldwin; Chris Hall, son of CWO and Mrs. Terry Hall; Richard McElrath; Gerhard Ratcliff, Jude Grambihler, son of Capt. and Mrs. Ken Grambihler; Charles Caskey, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Caskey; and Dennis Hudson.

Thomas announced the selection of Tim Bridges as Outstanding Scout for February and Joe Driskill as Outstanding Scout for March.

Tom Frazier, son of Capt. and Mrs. Tom Frazier, was invested as a Tenderfoot Scout at the ceremony and received the troop neckerchief.

Alec Guinness As Charles I (C) In 'Cromwell'

Former crook, now king in 'Cromwell' picture

Alec Guinness has played just about everything from crook to colonel. Now, as a king, Charles I of England, in the Irving Allen production, "Cromwell," the Columbia picture in Panavision and Technicolor also starring Richard Harris now showing at a Columbus theater, Guinness brings to the screen a characterization reportedly as memorable as anything he ever did before in such films as "The Lavender Hill Mob," which won him an Academy nomination, and "The Bridge on the River Kwai," which won him the Academy Award as best actor of the year.

Charles I, believer in the divine right of kings, was simultaneously foolish and wise, weak and strong, and always unable to understand the temper of his turbulent times. His historic 17th Century confrontation with Oliver Cromwell led to civil war in England, and lost Charles both his throne and his head.

In school and afterwards when he studied drama, Guinness was told he would never make an actor. But he did, ultimately, wind up on the London stage, an animal actor in John Gielgud's "Noah".

Guinness continued with Gielgud's repertory company, appearing in "Romeo and Juliet," "The Sea Gull," and other plays before forming the Old Vic Company headed by Laurence Olivier. He later rejoined Gielgud for a season which included leading roles in "Richard III," "School for Scandal," "Three Sisters," and "The Merchant of Venice" and then returned to the Old Vic for a modern dress performance of "Hamlet."

In 1941, Guinness commanded a British Navy escort vessel on convoy duty in the Atlantic and, upon his discharge from the Navy, made his screen debut in "Great Expectations." The following year he portrayed Fagin in the film "Oliver Twist."

"Kind Hearts and Coronets," produced in 1948, made Guinness world famous, launching him in a series of brilliant comedies that included "The Lavender Hill Mob," "The Man In The White Suit," "The Captain's Paradise," "The Lady Killers" and "The Horse's Mouth." Other of his films are "The Bridge on the River Kwai," "Lawrence of Arabia," "Doctor Zhivago" and "The Comedians."

608th Ord. guard cited for halting theft

Sp4 Alberto Travieso, 608th Ord. Co., 67th Maint. Bn., 931st Engr. Gp. recently was cited for halting a theft while walking guard duty in the unit's supply depot area.

Travieso was awarded a letter of commendation from Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander. Endorsements came from Col. Robert J. Standley, commander of the 931st Engr. G. P., and Lt. Col. Ellis O. Atkinson Jr., commander of the 67th Maint. Bn.

Travieso, who recently was promoted to his present rank, is a relative newcomer to the United states. He is a Cuban refugee who came to this country at age 11 with a group of Catholic nuns and priests who fled the island. He left his family behind in Cuba and was not to see them again for five years.

Alberto's father arranged for his son to flee Cuba to prevent the youth from being sent to Russia to study communism as was then happening to many of his classmates, the soldier said.

For the next three years Alberto lived in a Catholic convent in Atlanta, Ga., and the nuns taught him to read and speak English. He was then placed in a foster home. Finally, when he was 16, his parents and two brothers were able to get out of Cuba and the family moved to the Bronx in New York.

"My father insists that I stay in the Army. We owe a lot to American and I must serve proudly," he declared. Travieso also said that his family has a proud military history in Cuba and that he hopes to live up to the expectations of his father.

To earn some extra money to aid his family Travieso teaches Karate at the YMCA in Columbus during his off-duty hours. He holds a First Degree Black Belt and invites any who may be interested to sign up for classes.

CC to hold workshop for paramedical people

A special workshop for paramedical personnel will be held at Columbus College in Davidson Center, tomorrow from 9 a.m. to 3:15 p.m.

Open to specialists in physicians' and dentists' offices, hospitals, nursing homes and other medically related occupations, the session is sponsored jointly by the Muscogee County Medical Assistants Association and Columbus College.

The workshop will cover problems in drug addiction, medicare, and communications. A movie, "A Movable Scene," also will be shown.

William P. Crowell, assistant professor of speech at the college, will speak on effective communications, and Mrs. Louise Ward, professional relations representative of the Prudential Insurance Company, will discuss medicare.

The legal and criminal aspects of the drug problem will be covered by John Vasquez and Scott Kennedy, members of the narcotics squad of the Columbus Police Department.

Members of the Muscogee County Medical Assistants Association will pay a $5 fee, while non-members will be charged $7.50. The cost of lunch and refreshments are included in the fee.

Further information may be obtained from Mrs. Doris Parham, program coordinator at the college.

Australian general visits post

Maj. Gen. Mervyn F. Brogan, commanding general, Eastern Command, Australian Army, visited Fort Benning for four days last week.

While here Gen. Brogan received several briefings on the various activities of the Infantry Center and Infantry School.

He also viewed demonstrations of Airborne, Ranger and weapons training, and was guest at an official dinner and an official luncheon.

The general was accompanied by Brig. H. G. Bates, military attache at the Australian Embassy in Washington.

'Infantry' describes Mideast weaponry

"Small Arms in the Middle East," a definitive article on the weapons used by the Israelis and Egyptians, will be featured in the May-June issue of Infantry Magazine, which will be on the newsstands next week.

The import of Jac Weller's article centers on deriving a familiarity with weapons found in the Middle East, especially the UZI submachine gun.

The next issue of Infantry Magazine, published bimonthly at the U.S. Army Infantry School at Fort Benning, will also feature the following articles:

"The Walls of Jericho or Cordon and Search" by Charles Black, who likens our current cordon and search techniques with those employed by Joshua when he took the city of Jericho.

"Ranger," by Capt. Ronald L. Paramore, in which the author covers the Ranger Course, its tactical problems, the effects of the course upon the individual, and the final result.

"City Fighting: Old Doctrine, New Techniques" by Capt. Grady A. Smith, which is based upon experiences in the Dominican Republic and the Battle of Hue in 1968. The author covers some new techniques to cope with snipers and entrenched enemy troops in built-up areas.

"The Air Cavalry Troop: Will It Be Effective?" by Capt. David W. Owen, an article in which the author attempts to dispell many of the misconceptions about what an air cavalry troop can and cannot do. He covers its basic mission and the best ways it can be accomplished.

"S.L.A. Marshall Speaks out . . ." is an interview with Brig. Gen. S. L. A. Marshall in which the noted author and military historian discusses the Modern Volunteer Army training levels of 7th Army troops, and the current situation in the Middle East.

Combat Articles include: "The Destruction of a Battalion" by Col. David C. Hackworth, "Key to Success" by Capt. Bennet S. Jones, and "The Aggressive Professional Versus the Passive Non-Professional" by Capt. Joseph A. DeBlaquiere.

Local college students perform melodrama, 'Felons' Daughter'

The Spring Quarter offering of Columbus College's Theatre will be "Lily, the Felon's Daughter," to be presented tonight through Monday at 8 p.m. with a special additional 3 p.m. matinee tomorrow.

The play will be presented in the Experimental Theatre of the Fine Arts Hall and the audience will surround the actors on three sides. This is the first play to be performed in the experimental facility, which affords an intimacy with the actors that cannot be achieved in the larger theatre.

"Lily, the Felon's Daughter" is an old fashioned melodrama of the Gay Nineties and contains all of the necessary ingredients for an evening of laughs, from villainous villains to love sick heroines, with fops, suffragettes and doting parents in between.

Along with the tongue-in-cheek delivery of the dialogue, the College Thespians will perform a few Nineties' song and dance numbers with such titles as "Daddy Wouldn't Buy Me A Bow Wow" and "For Sale — A Baby."

Can Lily, and her true love, Compton, escape the evil clutches of the vile Craven Sinclair and find happiness? Booing and hissing of the villain is encouraged, but ladies and gentlemen are discouraged from throwing peanuts into the acting area.

Of course, the show is rated "G" so bring the kiddies. Columbus College students will be admitted free with I.D., other students, military personnel and children will be charged $1. General admission is $2 for adults.

Call 563-3801 for information and ticket reservations.

Civic groups can request post speakers

A number of qualified personnel at Fort Benning will be available during Armed Forces Week to speak to civic clubs and other interested organizations in this area.

The speakers are prepared to talk on a number of widely varied subjects in conjunction with the theme for Armed Forces Day (May 15), which is "Forces For Freedom."

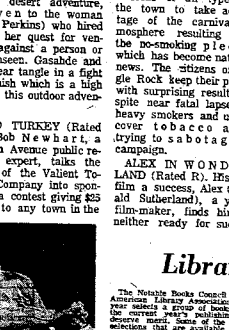
Persons desiring more information about the availability of speakers from Fort Benning should write the Information Officer, The Infantry Center, Fort Benning, Ga. 31905, or telephone 545-4782.

'Commanders Call' tells of Ft. Benning programs

Articles dealing with Fort Benning's participation in three programs aimed at improving conditions in the Army are contained in the latest "Commanders Call" for the fourth quarter of fiscal year 1971.

The Modern Volunteer Army concept, better race relations and means of combating alcoholism are the three articles in the publication, which is designed to support the Army's command information program.

One article describes how the Modern Volunteer Army concept is being handled at Fort Benning, one of the three Army posts selected as pilot projects in the program.



The well planned and successful race relations program at Fort Benning is used as a model to demonstrate how programs can be tailored to meet local needs.

Benning House, a program at Fort Benning to assist alcoholics in overcoming their addiction and adjusting to life without alcohol, is the subject of another article.

Brazil's output

Until about 1900 Brazil produced and exported 99 per cent of the world's supply of rubber.

Synopsis

United States whose entire citizenry will give up smoking for 30 days.

The Rev. Dick Van Dyke, an ambitious minister, energizes the town of Eagle Rock into taking up the challenge. Pippa Scott, the reverend's brow-beaten wife, gladly gives up smoking when she discovers that more frequent marital sex is a good substitute.

Kooks of all types hit the town to take advantage of the carnival atmosphere resulting from the no-smoking pledge, which has become national news. The citizens of Eagle Rock keep their pledge while surprising results despite a few fatal lapses by heavy smokers and undercover tobacco agents trying to sabotage the campaign.

ALEX IN WONDERLAND (Rated R). His first film a success, Alex (Donald Sutherland), a young film-maker, finds himself neither ready for success nor able to cope with it and he retreats into a world of fantasy. On the one hand, he would like to be Fellini. On the other, he would like to treat subjects which fairly reverberate with contemporary tension: Air pollution, the Vietnam War, the black power struggle.

Alex is a man tempted on several levels to be what he is not and tempted, too, to be angry at what he is (which may not may not be what it was when he got up this morning). Alex in his search discovers make-believe isn't fiction, after all; it's the world about him.

TELL THEM WILLIE BOY IS HERE (Rated GP). Willie Boy (Robert Blake), a Paiute Indian, returns to California in 1909 to claim his bride Lola Bonifacce (Katherine Ross). During a midnight clandestine meeting Willie and Lola are surprised by her father, Old Mike. In the excitement Old Mike is fatally shot.

THE SHOOTING (Rated G). This suspense-filled Western drama in the "High Noon" tradition stars Jack Nicholson, Millie Perkins, Warren Oates and Will Hutchins. Nicholson plays Billy Spear, a cold gunslinger, the most violent, cruel, merciless hired gun in the West. Spear's every move is fraught with menance to Coley (Will Hutchins) and Gashade (Warren Oates), his companions in this relentless desert adventure, and even to the woman (Millie Perkins) who hired him in her quest for vengance against a person or sons unseen. Gasahde and Spear tangle in a fight to a finish which is a high spot of this outdoor adventure.

COLD TURKEY (Rated GP). Bob Newhart, a Madison Avenue public relations expert, talks the owner of the Valient Tobacco Company into sponsoring a contest giving $25 million to any town in the Award winner

George C. Scott (R) as Gen. Patton recreates the controversial slapping incident in the movie biography of the World War II general. "Patton," which won seven Academy Awards (including best picture, actor and director), now is playing at a downtown theater.

Libraries' books

The Notable Books Council of the American Library Association each year selects a group of books from the current year's publishing as deserve mention. Some of the recent selections that are available at the Main Post and branch libraries are: "I Know Why the Caged Bird Sings," Maya Angelou: The horrific and painful life of Marguerite, a strong and sensitive young woman who examines and overcomes. It tells of the sensitively and gracefully portrays and pays tribute to the courage, dignity and endurance of the small rural Southern black community in which she spent most of her early years in the 1930's.

"Crime in America," Ramsey Clark: Discusses the crime problems, diagnoses the roots of antisocial behavior in American society, and proposes the specific measures and the will we must take if we are to control the causes of crime. American style.

"Rediscover," James Dickey: The poet's first novel is a classic of Southern humorousness who take a hunting trip down the Coosa River in Georgia. The escapades of the other three makes an adventure story of the first magnitude.

"An Unfinished Woman—A Memoir," Lillian Hellman: A candid self-history of the gifted American playwright engaged in the controversial theater since 1934, who charges herself with wasted time. There is a special quality in this warm memoir of her famous contemporaries and in the honest evaluation of her own mistakes.

"Darwin, the Beagle," Alan Moorehead: Charles Darwin's adventures when in 1831 at the age of 22, he went as a surveying voyage around the world on H.M.S. Beagle as ship's naturalist. The five year voyage was the beginning of a whole new conception of the origin and evolution of the various species of life on earth.
