600 jobs created

KP ends for soldiers; civilians tackle pots, pans

Soldiers are finding their days a little brighter now that they are no longer assigned kitchen police at Fort Benning under the "Benning Plan" for a Modern Volunteer Army (VOLAR).

Soldier KP has been eliminated entirely from post during the past few weeks and now the people performing the pots-and-pans man's duties and the other chores are wearing civilian clothing.

An end to soldier KP and other details means more jobs on post for civilians. A post spokesman has said that approximately 600 civilian jobs will be created at Fort Benning under the VOLAR experiment.

And, at the same time, about 75 per cent of $5 million approved for the program will flow into the local economy through contract and direct hiring and equipment purchases during the next six months, the spokesman said.

One of the major expenditures under the Modern Volunteer Army program will be $1,076,407 authorized for hiring contractual food service workers.

About 400 persons will be employed

Booth welcomes incoming troops at city airport

By Wendell Cochran

No one in the world is more lost or bewildered than a lost and bewildered soldier on his arrival at a duty station.

Steps are being taken at Fort Benning under the "Benning Plan" for a Modern Volunteer Army to help alleviate this problem; a welcome and information booth has been established at Columbus Metropolitan Airport and others will be installed soon at two local bus stations.

Soldiers are greeted at the booth and told what transportation is available to the post. Reporting information also is provided.

The airport booth is manned daily from 4:30 a.m. to 1:30 a.m. by a noncommissioned officer. Four NCO's share the duty.

Responsibility for operation of the booths has been assigned to the AG Division of the Directorate of Personnel and Community Activities.

The booths were constructed by the post carpentry shop of the Directorate of Facilities Engineering.

First operation of the booth came

Hidden Candidate?

"Ready or not, here I come!" Although it does a look like small NCOC participating in an Army version of hide 'n seek, actually, it's just a helmet liner and poncho protecting a group of M16s at stack arms on a rainy morning. The Weather Bureau seems to think it's going to be clearer but colder this weekend so it might be a good idea to "hide" indoors.

Commanders can make change

Other tests may replace PCPT here

By Mike Keller

Fort Benning commanders will have a greater voice in shaping their unit's training programs as a result of several modifications in mandatory training requirements announced here recently.

These changes — which are designed to give organizations additional time to achieve their training objectives—are another step in efforts to create a five-day working week, envisioned under the Modern Volunteer Army (VOLAR) plan.

Fort Benning is one of three Army posts presently conducting the VOLAR experimental study.

As a result of one of the modifications, major commanders here may replace the now-required physical combat proficiency test (PCPT) with other types of tests they feel will provide a realistic evaluation of their men's fitness.

Possible substitutes for the semi-annual "PT test" are extended road marches, speed marches and combatives or tactical exercises which test the unit's and the individual soldier's physical abilities in a simulated combat situation.

Other changes:

—A commander may authorize combat firing exercises such as close combat or technique of fire courses in the place of annual weapons qualification or familiarization if he believes it adequately prepares and qualifies his personnel in this area.

—Only tables of organization and Complaints get speedy answer

In the past one of the most frequent complaints of the average soldier is that no one hears his questions.

A new directive issued recently by Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott as part of the implementation of the "Benning Plan" should help solve that problem.

The directive states that "commanders and staff officers at all levels, unit to installation, will take necessary action to insure that all personnel inquiries and applications made by individual soldiers are answered within 24 hours."

If the question requires research or an answer from higher headquarters and an answer cannot be obtained within 24 hours, an interim reply must be provided to the soldier under the provisions of the new directive.

Other policies in the new personnel directive include:

— Recommendations for awards of the Meritorious Service Medal and the Legion of Merit may be submitted on any individual regardless of grade, whose outstanding service or achieve-

Voice of VOLAR

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This feature will provide information about recent changes and proposals being made under the "Benning Plan" for a Modern Volunteer Army — VOLAR.)

Changes Made

— Kitchen police has been ended at Fort Benning. Civilians are now doing the side sink and potato-peeling duties.

— A welcome booth to provide information to incoming soldiers is now in operation at Columbus Metropolitan Airport.

— The requirement for sign in and sign out and possession of an Armed Forces Liberty Pass during normal off-duty hours is eliminated.

— The official Benning Plan test period has begun. Fort Benning is one of three posts experimenting with changes that will lead to a Modern Volunteer Army.

— Reveille officially has been eliminated at Fort Benning. Commanders who wish still may have work formations, but all personnel, including officers, are expected to attend.

Proposals

— Other details besides kitchen police will be reduced, perhaps starting later this month, as other civilians are employed for such tasks as post police.

More rejoicing than mourning over buried garbage

By Les Hauser

Few people bother to think of what happens to their garbage once it is taken to the trash can for pickup. Only until a minor crisis in the form of a garbage collection strike occurs do people recognize the importance of proper disposal of what has been called the "price we pay for civilization"—garbage.

Garbage is about as varied as the people who create it. It can be anything from a small tin can to 1000 card board boxes. Mother nature even provides her own garbage in the form of downed trees from storms or unwanted brush.

There are basically three types of garbage disposal: Fire or incinerator (which is the least desirable), sale (for reuse in an altered form) and burial.

The Fort Benning community has what is considered the best method of the three; burial, in operation.

For many years the Department of the Army has prohibited open burning of garbage on military reservations. Because of the size of Fort Benning, space has presented no problem in the sanitary fill projects which have been going on since 1945 on post.

C. F. Schladensky, chief of the Utilities and Pollution Control Division at Fort Benning, estimates that 40,000 cubic yards of uncompacted garbage are buried per month in the post's two sanitary fill projects at Kelly Hill and Lawson Army Airfield (LAAF). This amounts to one-third of the waste handled by a city the size of Columbus.

These wastes come from both post housing and barracks areas. All nonedible garbage also is collected from the post mess halls.

Once collected, the garbage is trucked to the fill sight and dumped into a long trench.

Fort Benning uses what is known as the Parallel Trench Method. Two trenches are dug side by side and the dirt from one treuch is used to fill the other. In this manner it is necessary to handle the dirt only one time.

This type of operation requires only two pieces of equipment, a bulldozer and a crane. Fort Benning presently has seven men assigned to both fill projects.

Schladensky feels that the Fort Benning operation has an edge on those of most municipalities since "a city works for minimum costs while our main goal is maximum effect."

Since Fort Benning's sanitary fill project began, more than 75 acres of post land have been used. "There is even a large parking lot in the main post area which is built on top of an early fill," Schladensky said.

The only restrictions placed on land usage of completed fills is that there never can be permanent structures constructed on the sight. In most cases at Fort Benning, the fill land is used for reforestation purposes.

In the Kelly Hill project the fill is being used to reclaim land which would otherwise remain in a useless state. In these ways the sanitary fill projects have a positive effect on post conservation.

But perhaps the most impressive aspect of the sanitary fill project is safety and sanitation. When the practice of burning of wastes is eliminated —as it has been at Fort Benning — it greatly reduces the danger of forest fires and also the pollution which incinerator fires cause.

In this way Fort Benning is helping to do its share in keeping the environment clean.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

by Bill King

If you still haven't recovered from New Year's, reflect on Thoreau's words: "Water is the best drink for a wise man."

For the flakiest of biscuits, roll dough thin, fold into several layers, and roll gently again before cutting.

When making flambee desserts, be sure to warm the brandy first over a very low flame before igniting and pouring over the dish.

Bread stuffing meant for fish fillets takes on added flavor if you include some lemon juice and grated rind.

French children are often treated to a special Epiphany cake with a tinsel crown on top and a bean and a tiny doll baked inside. He who gets the doll gets to wear the crown, but he who gets the bean has to buy another cake.

(Byline Bayonet welcomes questions of general interest about Fort Benning and the Army. Within space limitations, all reasonable questions will be answered. Questions of a purely military nature which obviously could be answered more properly by commander or supervisors within the chain of command will not be accepted. Questions must be signed with current unit of assignment indicated. Send questions, to The Bayonet, Room 602, Infantry Hall.)

Q — My father was a World War II veteran, and after his death I received $40 per month death pension. I am now a 22-year-old Vietnam veteran enrolled in college under the G.I. Bill. Am I still eligible for the pension benefits in addition to my veteran benefits?

A — Yes, if you have never married, and meet the income limitation of $1,800 maximum, you will be eligible for the $40 pension benefit until you reach age 23. Your G.I. Bill payments, in excess of the amounts expended for training, are considered income.

Q — My father has a service-connected gastritis condition which, for several years, VA rated him at 60 per cent disabled. Since the condition prevents him from being employable, am I eligible for an educational allowance as a child of a disabled veteran?

A — No. The veteran must be rated by the VA as permanently and totally disabled. However, since you indicated that your father may be unemployable, he should submit proof of this fact and request his claim be reopened. If he should be rated 100 per cent disabled based on individual unemployability because of his disability, you might then become eligible.

Q — I am a Vietnam veteran discharged May 2, 1967, attending school under the G.I. Bill. Does this bar me from the home loan benefit?

A — No. The availability of the home loan benefit is not affected by the education benefit in any manner whatsoever.

Q — I am a recently discharged veteran. Is there some type of insurance available to me?

A — If you have a service-connected disability, you may qualify for Service Disabled Veterans Insurance. You must apply within one year of the date of notice that service-connection is granted, but you may apply before requesting or receiving a grant of service-connection. Upon reciept of your application for this insurance, VA will determine if you are eligible.

Also, a veteran may convert his Servicemen's Group Life Insurance to an individual, permanent policy within 120 days after separation from service.

Q — I want to enter college next summer. Should I advise the VA now, or enroll and advise the registrar of my veteran status at that time.

A — You should inform the VA as soon as possible of your plans to enroll.

The judge says

Books may sway court's decision

USAIC LEGAL ASSISTANCE OFFCE — In court you may have heard your lawyer say that such and such a decision—Jones vs. Smith—governed the case at hand. How did he find that "controlling precedent"?

Law school trains your lawyer to use the "case" method to find and analyze legal problems. The law student reads and analyzes thousands of selected cases to find out how to apply the law in particular cases like yours.

The case method allows him to sort out people's predicaments and to see again and again that the outcome of each case rests upon its own set of facts. This is why a lawyer has to study the facts and law in your case to give you an answer. He has to get the particular facts of your case and then find out exactly how the law—as reflected in the cases—applies to them.

When you seek advice, your lawyer begins at once to sort out facts and frame the legal problem. Sometimes he can answer at once; often he has to go to the books and check out your problem.

This process may take only a few minutes. But sometimes it takes hours, or days; and in big cases, sometimes months. Lawyers must also double check on whether some court of appeal has overruled a decision he might be using in your case.

After all this, your lawyer can stand before the court and say "Your Honor, we believe that our case is controlled by the case of Brown vs. Johnson." He then usually outlines the circumstances in the Brown case, and compares them with the facts in your case. If they fit, the judge usually makes a judgment in your favor.

In borderline cases, of course, adversary lawyers, too, may quote from other cases which they feel support their opposing contentions.

Finally, in such cases the judge weighs the contentions of both sides and then "instructs" the jurors what law to apply in the case before them. So far as the jury is concerned, the judge's instructions are the last word. Their job is to measure the evidence given in court against the law that the judge gives them and return a verdict accordingly.

Inquiries concerning this topic or related legal matters may be directed to your Legal Assistance Office.

On closing the Janus temple gates

New Year's Day wasn't always celebrated Jan. 1. In fact, in some parts of the world, it still isn't. In still other locales—the Republic of China, for one—it's celebrated twice: on Jan. 1 of the Gregorian calendar, and then again on the traditional lunar calendar.

Ancient Egyptians began their New Year in June, when the Nile overflowed its banks. In Iran, it begins with the vernal equinox, March 21. Jews start their year with the autumnal equinox, in late September.

It wasn't until the 1500's, after the adoption of the Gregorian calendar, that most nations of Western Civilization began the practice of starting their years on Jan. 1—although it had been done centuries before by the Romans, who honored the god Janus on that day. Even today, the name of the first month of the year is derived from his name.

Janus was the god of beginnings and endings, of doors and archways and gateways, of entrances and exists. His most famous shrine was the Janus Geminus on the north side of the Roman Forum, a simple rectangular bronze structure with double doors at each end through which the Roman legions passed on their way to, or returning from, war. History records that when the Temple of Janus was open, Rome was at war; when it was closed, peace was upon the land.

Janus was two-headed, that is, he could look both backward to the past and forward to the future, a most appropriate symbolism for the beginning of the New Year.

For American servicemen and women entering this New Year 1971, the occasion is most definitely a time for reflection on the past and resolve for the future. Through our daily efforts, perhaps this year we can accomplish the goal of peace toward which our Nation has been striving for many years. Perhaps we can close the gates of Janus' temple forever. Infantry Museum fund raising campaign to begin here

SCALE MODEL OF PROPOSED INFANTRY MUSEUM

The Fort Benning phase of the national campaign to raise $6 million for the construction of a new Infantry Museum here will be held Jan. 18 through March 26. The goal for the 10-week solicitation is $100,000.

NCO's in grades E-7 and above, all warrant officers, and officers captain and above will be solicited by individuals of their own grade. The pattern will be the same for civilian employes of pay grade GS-9 and above. Individuals of all other grades will have an opportunity to give during a general appeal approach.

Contributions for the new museum will be solicited on a one-time-only basis, according to campaign chairman Col. Robert P. Hatcher Jr. Those who contribute during the upcoming campaign will not be approached again for museum donations, the colonel said.

The Fort Benning solicitation is part of a nationwide solicitation which includes corporations, foundations and former citizen-soldiers from every state in the nation.

The new museum will be built at Fort Benning, on a seven-acre site just east of Infantry Hall, home of the Infantry School. It will include 73,000 square feet of display area, and will replace a present temporary facility, the Army Infantry Museum.

Callaway named Army aide

Howard (Bo) Callaway, former U.S representative from Georgia and now president of Callaway Gardens in Pine Mountin, has been appointed a civilian aide for the Army by Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor, 3rd Army at Fort McPherson has announced.

As a civilian aide, Callaway will advise Resor on Georgians' reactions and civilian views on matters relating to Army missions and objectives.

'Their kind of recreation'

Lawson officers' club opens with youth appeal

The Lawson Field branch of the Fort Benning officers club reopened Wednesday night after being closed since early spring.

Reopening of this club branch is being sponsored by Project VOLAR and the "Benning Plan." The Lawson Field club will be primarily for younger officers, who have said they want a club that offers "their kind of recreation."

Main entertainment fare at Lawson Field will be dance bands and rock bands, M. Sgt. Ralph Hilton, manager, said.

The club opens at 5 p.m. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday and at noon Saturdays and Sundays. Closing time is 11 p.m. Wednesday, Thursday and Sunday, midnight Friday and 1 a.m. Saturday.

Happy hour is offered each Wednesday and Friday from 5-7 p.m.

Tonight's entertainment is The Michaels, a local rock band. Saturday the club is closed for a private party scheduled before the reopening decision was made. Sunday night The Metal Circus, another local group, has been booked.

Patrons of the club will have their choice of cocktails, beer or soft drinks. Hot and cold sandwiches also will be available.

Senator praises officers for alcoholism testimony

Two Fort Benning officers have been praised in a letter to Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott for their appearance before the U. S. Senate Special Subcommittee on Alcoholism and Narcotics Dec. 3. The letter was signed by Sen. Harold E. Hughes of Iowa, chairman of the subcommittee.

Capt. James D. Adelman, Clinical Director of the Benning House Program and Col. Robert Lathrop, Fort Benning Staff Judge Advocate, appeared before the committee at the request of the Department of the Army to assist them in an attempt to find a fair and humane solution to the problem of alcoholism and drug abuse in the military.

Fort Benning is one of a handful of military installations with a permanent council on alcoholism and drug abuse which meets regularly with Gen. Talbott. The council is chaired by Col. H. Haskell Ziperman, commanding officer of Martin Army Hospital at Fort Benning.

The Benning House program, which encourages individuals to seek help in resolving alcohol or drug abuse problems, is attempting to establish a physician-patient relationship in which communication between the two is treated confidentially.

Benning teachers testfire weapon

A training program to develop gunners for the Phase Two Tracking Test of the Army Missile Command's Dragon Weapon System was conducted recently by McDonnell Douglas Astronautics Company (MDAC). This was the first time that representatives of the Infantry School have received training on the Dragon weapon.

Three instructors from the School and eight MDAC employes received training during the six day program at the MDAC TI-60 Plant in Titusville and the Cape Kennedy Air Force Station.

The training program included classroom orientation on the weapon system, followed by gunnery training using a special trainer which simulates the actual weapon to develop Dragon gunner skills.

MDAC instructors for the program were Curtis J. Whitman, supervisor of training and field service, and James A. Petty, an instructor in the training department.

General finds real war murky

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AFPS) — Gen. Lewis W. Walt, assistant commandant of the Marine Corps, who recently returned from a visit to the Republic of Vietnam, believes the real war has been clouded by enemy propaganda which made it essentially a psychological type conflict.

He said, "It's a very complicated war and people just don't understand it."

The general noted that at the outset it was guerrilla-type fighting and people did not, and still don't understand that there simply is no front line as in Korea or World War II. The guerrilla in the beginning was the No. 1 enemy—well trained, well equipped and well organized.

Today, however, the guerrilla has been neutralized to the point where his effectiveness now is down to 10 per cent of what it was. "They are very weak," Gen. Walt said.

Although the enemy does have a capability to launch attacks in both the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) and in Laos the South Vietnamese are getting stronger every day.

The Popular Force and Regional Force are doing their job well. The same is true of the Army of the Republic of Vietnam (ARVN). "They (ARVN) have a lot of ability," Gen. Walt said, adding: "The first ARVN division has a lot of spirit, their morale is good, and they are confident they can handle anything."

The Cambodian operation proved very effective and still pays dividends. Explaining, Gen. Walt said the operation has destroyed the enemy's concept of the sanctuary and now they must guard this area for they never known when the ARVN will strike. This, of conse, requires manpower that could be used elsewhere.

The general said he visited both the I Corps area (northern provinces) and IV Corps in the Delta. In the I Corps he talked with everyone he could, military and civilian, and found Vietnamization to be very much in evidence. "I am very optimistic about Vietnamization," Gen. Walt said, "and I found it working much better than a year ago when I was out there."

The general said it took him some time to understand the war and called himself "naive" in the beginning.

For example, he told the story of a visit he made outside DaNang where he talked with the village chiefs and was told there were no VC in the area.

"I felt pretty good about the situation," he related. "Just before leaving, however, a woman tugged at my hip pocket, and slipped me a piece of paper. It said the chief with whom I had just been talking was the No. 1 Viet Cong in the village."

OWC offers classes: homemaking, slimming

The Officers' Wives Club (OWC) is offering a sewing class consisting of lessons in basic sewing, fitting, tailoring and special lessons in how to sew knits. Enhance your wardrobe by learning how to make all the latest fashions. Pant suits, jumpsuits, midis and maxis are yours for the making.

Classes will run for 8 weeks at a cost of $12. An organizational meeting will be held from 9 to 11 a.m. in the OWC lounge on Jan. 15. For further information contact Judi Wood at 561-3516 or Beverly Ward at 689-8723.

New 7-week slim 'n trim classes are now being formed at a cost of $7. Morning classes will be held every Monday and Friday from 9 to 10 a.m. beginning Jan. 15. Evening classes will meet every Monday and Wednesday from 7 to 8 p.m. beginning Jan. 18. Don't miss this opportunity to shed unwanted pounds as well as inches. Modern exercise machines are available.

All classes will be conducted in the school of dance building. For further information call Mrs. Richard Stamm at 544-1325.

Beginner and intermediate bridge classes are being offered starting the first week of February. Both courses will consist of 10 lessons for $10. Classes will be held from 1 to 4 p.m. on Mondays and Thursdays at the country club. For registration and more information please call Mrs. Paul Serff at 689-6987 or Mrs. James Haley at 545-1008.

The Fort Benning Officers' Wives Club invites all officers wives to a wine-tasting party and art show at the Main Officers Club Jan. 13 from 1 to 3 p.m.

The party, at which aldied and MAH wives will be hostesses, will feature a showing of art objects from the native countries of many of the Allied Wives, including much lovely jewelry.

Also on display will be pictures in many different media done by several amateur and professional artists who are also officers wives.

Now that the holidays are over the OWC has many new classes as well as other activities beginning in January, which are available to their members. There will be sign-up tables for these classes and activities at the party.

No reservations are necessary, so come, browse, view our art objects and paintings, enjoy complimentary refreshments, and sign up for your favorite activities.

For further information, call Mrs. George Czetwertynski, 687-2726, or Mrs. Jon C. Shillman, 544-1196.

Nurses to meet

The Inactive Nurse's Club of Fort Benning will meet Jan. 11 at 10 a.m. in the 4th Floor Classroom of Martin Army Hospital.

Dr. Kenneth R. Case, who is assigned to Department of Clinics at Martin Army Hospital, will speak on "Medical Practice Among Vietnamese Civilians."

Service nets Sertoma award for orphanage founder

The new Metropolitan Sertoma Club of Columbus last week awarded its first annual Service to Mankind Award to Mrs. Patrick Tisdale, wife of Lt. Col. Patrick Tisdale, chief of Pediatrics at Martin Army Hospital.

Mrs. Tisdale's highest accomplishment in service concerns the establishment and maintenance of an orphanage for more than 400 South Vietnamese war orphans at An Lac, Viet Nam. The orphanage was founded with the help of Dr. Tom Dooley, famous medical missionary to Southeast Asia.

Lt. Col. and Mrs. Tisdale have since pooled their efforts to operate the An Lac Orphanage, Inc. with Col. Tisdale acting as chairman and Mrs. Tisdale as president. The Tisdales are solely responsible for the orphanage which is known as the "Happy Place" to the Vietnamese children who live there. Mrs. Tisdale stays busy lecturing before various groups in an effort to support the orphanage. Financially, An Lac Orphanage requires $500 per month for a doctor's salary plus a minimum of $5 per child each month for each of the children who reside there.

After serving as personal secretary to Senator Jacob Javits of New York in 1963, Mrs. Tisdale returned to Southeast Asia to spend a number of weeks working with members of Dr. Dooley's medical teams in remote areas of Laos. In 1966 she made another trip to Southeast Asia, this time to South Viet Nam and to the orphanage of An Lac which Dr. Dooley had begun.

On Nov. 6 this year, Mrs. Tisdale received a letter from James Keogh, special assistant to the President. The letter read in part; "President Nixon was pleased to learn of your outstanding work in behalf of Vietnamese orphans, and he wants you to know that he feels your dedication deserves the appreciation of all your fellow citizens." Also enclosed with the letter from Mr. Keogh was a certificate of commendation signed by the President which, according to the letter, "was a token of his respect for your active commitment to the welfare of others."

Ted Land, president of the Metropolitan Sertoma Club of Columbus, said, "Our new Sertoma Club is indeed proud to present this First Annual Service to Mankind Award to Betty Tisdale. Her continued dedication in service to all mankind has earned our very highest respect and admiration." Aside from being the stepmother of five sons, Mrs. Tisdale also has two adopted Vietnamese daughters now living with the Tisdale family at Fort Benning.

Both the Tisdales hold catechisin classes for senior students each Monday night at Our Lady of Lourdes Catholic Church in Columbus. Mrs. Tisdale is also a member and former secretary of the Women's Auxiliary (Sodality) of the Catholic Parish of Fort Benning.

Scouts for World Jamboree chosen

By Martin McWilliams

Two Columbus-area scouts have been selected by the Fort Benning District of the Boy Scouts of America for the honor of representing the district at the Boy Scout World Jamboree in Tokyo, Japan.

The honor, one of the most coveted in scouting, went to Eagle Scout Ralph Fitch, 16, whose father is retired from the Army and living in Columbus, and to Jim Morris, 16, who will soon be promoted to Eagle rank and whose father is stationed at Fort Benning.

The World Jamboree, an annual event, draws thousands of scouts from all nations for an exchange of scouting lore and international good will. The unit which sponsors a delegate to the Jamboree traditionally pays his expenses.

Fitch is a member of Troop 54, which is sponsored by The School Brigade. Scoutmaster John Bauer said Fitch is a graduate of the National Boy Scout Junior Leader Training Course, is junior assistant scoutmaster of his troop, and was named most outstanding junior leader in the nation in 1968.

Fitch holds the rank of Eagle with silver palm, the highest in scouting, and has earned the unusual total of 38 merit badges. He holds the God and Country Award, is chief of the Chattahoochee Council Lodge of the Order of the Arrow and active on the Lodge's Indian dance team.

Morris, of Troop 39, is described by Scoutmaster Jack Cummings as showing "an exceptional leadership ability . . . in home, troop, community and church."

Morris has been a successful recruiter for his troop and serves as troop treasurer, librarian, and chaplain. Morris is active in school, community and church activities.

The scouts were selected for the Jamboree honor by a vote of the 14 scoutmasters in the Fort Benning District. They were selected from the more than 1,250 scouts currently enrolled in the district.

District scouting officials say that almost $3,700 will be needed to make it possible for the two scouts to represent the United States at the Jamboree. The funds are being raised by local scouting organizations in the Columbus community.

Those interested in helping the scouts get to the Jamboree should make checks out to Chattahoochee Council, B.S.A., and mail them to Fort Benning District World Jamboree Fund.

New stamp to honor MacArthur

A 6-cent postage stamp honoring Gen. Douglas MacArthur will be issued with first day ceremonies Jan. 26 in Norfolk, Va., marking Gen. MacArthur's 91st birthday anniversary.

He is buried in Norfolk, and a MacArthur Memorial Foundation has been established there.

The MacArthur stamp is vertical and was printed on the Giori press in red, blue and black. It was designed by Paul Calle, Stamford, Conn.

Collectors desiring first day cancellations may submit orders to the Postmaster, Norfolk, Va., 23501, plainly indicating the full name and address, including ZIP Code, with remittance to cover the cost, which is 6 cents each.

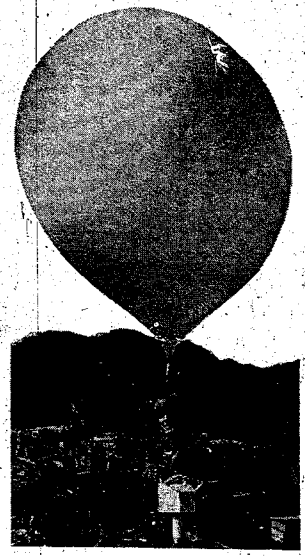
The outside envelope to the postmaster should be endorsed "First Day Covers, 6-cent Gen. MacArthur Postage Stamp."

Orders must be postmarked no later than Jan. 28.

3rd Army wins safety award

The 3rd U. S. Army has won the Department of the Army Award of Honor for Safety, the Army's highest award for effectiveness in preventing accidents for fiscal year 1970.

In a letter to Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, Fort Benning commander, Lt. Gen. A. O. Connor, 3rd Army commander said, "Your demonstrated concern for the welfare of the individual soldier, safeguarding of Army equipment and personal support in preventing accidents by eliminating or controlling accident-producing acts and conditions are greatly appreciated.



"Our fine safety record for Fiscal Year 1970 means that a significant number of lives were saved, injuries prevented or minimized, and property damage avoided."

14,000 get jobs

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Some 14,000 Vietnam-era veterans were appointed to Federal civilian jobs from January through June 1970. The majority were employed through regular Civil Service competitive procedures which provide preference for veterans. However, more than 1,400 were hired under special Vietnam Readjustment Appointments authorized by President Nixon this year.

American Heritage Almanac

Jan. 2 — Dateline 1776 — George Washington raised the flag of the American colonies at Cambridge, Mass. Known as the "Grand Union" flag, it had 13 red and white stripes and the crosses of St. Andrew and St. George on a blue background.

Jan. 5 — Dateline 1777 — Mines were used for the first time in American history when members of Washington's Army floated kegs of powder on the Delaware River to destroy the British fleet.

Jan. 6 — Dateline 1776 — Alexander Hamilton's Provincial Company of Artillery of New York was formed. It is the oldest regular Army unit and is known today as Headquarters and Headquarters Battery, 1st Rocket Howitzer Battalion, 5th Artillery.

Jan. 7 — Dateline 1789 — George Washington was elected the first President of the United States.

Jan. 22 — Dateline 1944 — The U.S. 5th Army made its historic landing on Anzio beach in southern Italy.

Jan. 25 — Dateline 1850 — The St. Lawrence Seaway was opened. The U.S. portion was built by Army engineers.

2 airlines start Viet leave jets

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — At least two airlines have established programs to provide low-cost, round-trip flights for American servicemen in the Republic of Vietnam returning to the United States for two-week leaves under a new Department of Defense liberal-leave policy.

The United Service Organizations (USO) has established one such program with World Airways, Inc., and also utilizes the facilities of a California bank to assist in securing loans for qualified personnel who participate in the program.

Likewise, Pan-American Airways has joined with the United Service Club (a non-profit organization) to provide such flights for Vietnam servicemen.

Both airlines offer the round-trip flights for considerably less than $400, Defense officials noted.

Shocking fact

Traumas are the leading cause of death among Americans between the ages of 1 and 37, and the fourth leading cause at any age. Traumas can be caused by anything that results in a shock to the body.

Enlistments suspended for WO flight training

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Enlistments for the Warrant Officer Flight Training Program have been suspended, because a sufficient number of applicants has been obtained to meet the Army's aviator training requirement for fiscal year 1972.

Individuals who have been enlisted in the 120-Day Delay Entry Program may be offered either another training option or discharge from the Delay Entry Program. Persons who do not desire other training or discharge will be brought onto active duty for aviator training.

Commitments made by recruiters to individuals who are not currently enlisted in the Delay Entry Program will be reviewed on a case-by-case basis at a level not lower than recruiting district headquarters. Enlistments may be authorized only when exceptional circumstances would cause the applicant a hardship.

It is expected that recruiting for this program will resume on or about July 1. However, the annual recruiting objective is expected to be substantially lower than during previous years.

Helicopters to continue aid to 5 U.S. Cities

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Project MAST (Military Assistance to Safety and Traffic) will continue to operate in five cities throughout the United States until March or April.

Project MAST was started in July 1970 to determine the feasibility of a helicopter ambulance rescue service for use in civilian medical emergencies. The program was scheduled to end Dec. 31.

The extension was necessary in order to evaluate the program thoroughly. A final report is scheduled to be made in March or April, at which time a decision will be made as to the future of the military helicopter ambulance service.

Population note

In 1933, Negroes made up one-third of the South's population. Now, they compose about 19 per cent, compared to 11 per cent for the nation as a whole.

Old Bible can prove age for social security

Robert E. O'Neal, local Social Security manager, spells out the basis of an ongoing service at his office.

"We are encouraging folks to bring in evidence of their age well in advance of retirement. We will take the time to sit down with them and personally evaluate the various proofs they have on hand. We want to see old Bibles or family records, insurance policies, military discharges — any documents showing date of birth or age.

"Generally speaking, the older the document the more value it has in establishing a person's date of birth for Social Security benefits."

O'Neal suggests that any person who does not have an original birth certificate or infant baptismal record should take advantage of this free counseling — regardless of age.

He says that as a rule most folks in this area over 50 do not have birth or baptism certificates. O'Neal added that many people in their 40s don't have them either.

"The greatest single bang-up to prompt Social Security payments is proof of age. By having evidence of your age in order while you're still working will help make the transition from pay check to retirement check a smooth and pleasant one," O'Neal concluded.

AF Secretary praises Vietnam Air Force

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AFPS) — Secretary of the Air Force Robert C. Seamans Jr. praised the increased capability and confidence of the Republic of Vietnam Air Force following a three-day tour of its installations — his third visit to the Southeast Asia country.

At Tan Son Nhut AB, the secretary said, "Tremendous progress is being realized since last January. The RVNAF improvement and modernization program is solidly based and ahead of schedule."

While at Soc Trang Airfield in the Mekong Delta, Seamans pointed out, "the growth of the RVNAF is outstanding." He noted the RVN Air Force had doubled its size since 1969 and is scheduled to double again within the next six months.

The secretary attended the formal ceremony marking the turnover of a U.S. Army UH-1 Huey helicopter squadron and base facilities to the RVNAF. The Soc Trang ceremony marked the first time a solely U.S.-occupied base has been turned over to the RVNAF.

"I am absolutely certain we are pursuing the right course," Seamans added, "we are moving ahead jointly and the Soc Trang turnover is a symbol of the progress we are making."

During his visit, Seamans met with Creighton Abrams, commander of the Military Assistance Command Vietnam; Gen. Lucius D. Clay Jr., commander, Air Force; Maj. Gen. Tran Van Minh, commander of the RVNAF; and US. Deputy Ambassador Samuel D. Berger.

While visiting Binh Thuy AB, the key operational center of all operations in Military Region 4, he talked with RVNAF Col. Nguyen Huy Anh, commander of the 4th Air Division.

At Nha Trang AB, the RVNAF training center along the coast of the South China Sea that is the hub of the improvement and modernization program, Seamans noted that more than 20,000 students have already graduated from various training programs. He added that approximately 1,900 are in training now at Nha Trang. Also, some RVNAF airman and pilots are involved in expanded training programs in the United States.

"In a year or so all training will be in Vietnam with Vietnamese instructors," he said.

'Mr. Charlie' tryouts to run 2 more nights

Tryouts for the post Dramatizers' production of "Blues for Mr. Charlie" continue tonight and tomorrow night. The auditions will be held from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. both days at the post playhouse, Bldg. 1237.

Tryouts are open to both civilians and servicemen for this story of racial tension in a small Southern town. The play, written by James Baldwin, will have a four-day run late in February.

"Blues for Mr. Charlie" is the Dramatizers' entry in the annual 3rd Army Tournament of Plays, which is held among major 3rd Army installations. Awards are made not only for best production in the contest but also in several acting and technical categories.

Black vet chooses indebtedness

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — To offer it as a choice would seem ridiculous: Be a black Vietnam veteran, or a black Vietnam veteran $25,000 in debt.

But for Arnett Spady, formerly of Pleiku in the Republic of Vietnam's highlands and now of Richmond, Va., the ridiculous choice led to him being in debt.

Now, at 23, Arnett Spady is president of one of the first black-owned beverage distributing companies in the South. He went into business and now distributes two beers produced by a black-owned brewing company in Reading, Pa.

Money to launch the company came from the Small Business Association. "In some ways I was perhaps given preference by the SBA in applying for a loan," he said, "but in other ways, various people had less confidence in me because I was black, so I guess it balanced out."

Spady served in the Army from July 1967 to July 1969. He was wounded near Pleiku Feb. 19, 1968, and spent four months in the hospital at Yokosuka, Japan.

"I couldn't go back to combat, so they trained me as a dental assistant," he said. "I had extra time, so I enrolled in a study program at the University of Hawaii. That course, plus one on investments, really got me interested in getting out and getting into business."

Before joining the Army, Spady was a student at Shaw University, Raleigh, N.C. He intends to attend Virginia Union University part-time while he runs his company.

President initiates Jobs for Veterans Program

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AFPS) — The nation's energy, enthusiasm and strength will be mobilized into a new program initiated by President Richard Nixon to provide service-men and women returning to civilian life an improved opportunity for employment.

The program is called Jobs for Veterans and seeks to accomplish its goal in two principal ways:

—It will serve as a focal point for existing programs.

—It will stimulate at the local level new action programs designed to help veterans find prompt and meaningful employment.

At White House ceremonies, Nixon appointed James F. Oates Jr. as National Chairman of the Jobs for Veterans Program.

The President said an indication of the priority put on this project is the appointment of Oates, "who will not only work within the Government but will mobilize the entire nation in the private sectors — business, labor unions and other organizations so that the jobs will be available for those men who have served the nation."

An estimated one-third of the young men and women returning from military service to civilian life will go to school; the other two-thirds will be seeking employment.

Nixon expressed his conviction that America owes a debt of gratitude to the young men and women who have served America during this period. "The way we can best pay that debt," he explained, "is to provide them opportunity which I know they will fulfill with high distinction."

President Nixon gave this impression of Oates: "He is a man who brings enormous prestige to the position. He will be able to speak to leaders all over the nation — within government, out of government—with great impact."

Noting that Oates possesses a great deal of enthusiasm, Nixon remarked, "And I think he will be able to communicate that enthusiasm . . ."

On acceptance of the assignment, Oates acknowledged the responsibility and importance of the program. "It is characterized perfectly by the President, and what a heartening and reassuring thing it is for the President personally to confirm endorsement of its importance," he said.

Oates cited several factors which were apparent to him:

—A very great majority 80 per cent—of the returning veterans are skilled by virtue of their military training and experience in various types of vocations and professions . . . these trained men are great assets to the nation . . .

—There are now some 30 government institutions engaged in work every day — every week — in providing opportunities and financial help for educational training, for skilled training, and transition experiences.

—This program of Jobs for Veterans can revivify and stimulate these several government programs to the end that they can be maximized and brought up to their full capacity of serving the returning veteran.

Oates affirmed that his jobs is to "awaken the interest and accept the responsibility of the American people for the solution."

ment merits the particular award.

— The requirement for soldiers in the lower enlisted grades to possess an Armed Forces Liberty Pass during normal off-duty hours when away from the installation is eliminated. Persons who will be absent for extended periods still must have a leave form in their possession.

— Soldiers that are detailed for duty including kitchen police, will not be required to arrive for duty earlier than they are needed.

— Commanders will establish policies and procedures that eliminate the practice of waking soldiers for morning cleanup when they are off-duty.

The same new directive modified an earlier policy that had been instituted under the "Benning Plan."

Previously it had been directed that personnel are not required to sign out or sign in during normal off-duty hours. But personnel going on extended leaves or passes still must follow normal sign-out procedures.

The latest directive amends the sign-out and sign-in policy to read, "Personnel are not required to sign out or in during normal off duty hours. Personnel are required to sign out for absences requiring a morning report entry. In addition, personnel will utilize DA Form 31 (Request and Authority for Leave), and sign out and in from absences which excuse them from their duty of impact on unit readiness."

last weekend in time to assist many soldiers returning to Fort Benning from holiday leave.

Sgt. Robert Weatherly, one of the four assigned to the Welcome Booth, said most returning soldiers are stopped and asked to group for civilian transportation to post.

Persons who are reporting to Fort Benning for the first time are given information on where to report and how to get to Fort Benning. If necessary, they are provided with phone numbers, building numbers and are given a chance to look at a map of the post.

"I think most of the new people who don't know where to go and what to do next seem to appreciate the booth," Weatherly said. "I think we are definitely performing a service."

Weatherly himself arrived at Fort Benning only in early December. "I definitely would have stopped if such a center had been here when I came," he said.

equipment (TOE) units whose members have been issued protective masks will be required to undergo exposure to CS gas.

—The use and maintenance of the Training Attendance Record (FB Form 467) is optional.

—Several training topics, previously "mandatory, now are classified as "special emphasis" subjects, with commanders deciding the level of training in accordance with their TOE mission. These are character guidance, civil affairs, command information, SAEDA, military justice, safeguarding defense information, censorship; drug abuse and first aid and emergency medical treatment.

Other topics falling into this category but still required for permanent overseas replacement (POR) training are Code of Conduct, Geneva Conventions, overseas orientation, training for hostile fire zone and survival escape and evasion.

These modifications aim at giving commanders flexibility in determining their own training program in respect to their particular mission and resources.

by Civilian Personnel for other jobs now handled by soldiers, including maintenance and police of roads and grounds, collection of refuse and garbage and preventive maintenance. Wages and equipment for these employes will amount to approximately $1.4 million.

These jobs — of which about 150 are permanent and the remainder temporary — will be filled through a priority list of applicants maintained by the Department of the Army and Civil Service Commission, and lists of eligibles that is maintained by the Civil Service Commission based upon an applicant passing an examination.

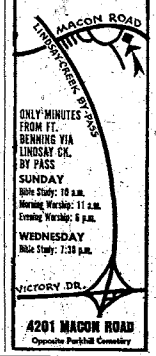
Hiring of civilians to handle chores now assigned to soldiers is only a part of a "Benning Plan" designed to make the Army more attractive as a career.

Other parts of the volunteer Army program approved for immediate action include free quarters cleaning service for departing personnel, extended commissary hours, night-club type facilities for soldiers, improved shuttle bus service, a welcome and central processing center, partitions for barracks and improved lounge areas in dayrooms.

Gen. Talbott thanks COs for holiday safety work

Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, Fort Benning commander, expressed his gratitude Tuesday to unit commanders for their participation in the accident prevention program over the Christmas-New Year's holiday period.

Gen. Talbott thanked commanders at every level for their inspection of automobiles and their talk with soldiers concerning the consumption of alcoholic beverages and their effect on automobile safety.



One Fort Benning soldier was killed and two were injured in traffic accidents over the 17-day period. The fatality occurred in Wisconsin early Jan. 1 when the soldier's car struck a tree. The soldier was killed instantly; his wife remains in critical condition. Seat belts were not used.

Two fatalities occurred during the holiday period of 1969.

"The accident experience this year was an improvement over past periods," said Safety Director James Blount. "The credit is due to all personnel on the highways and their recreational activities. They practiced caution and safely."

"Some of the credit must also go to the Defensive Driving Course," Blount said. He feels that Fort Benning provides better-trained drivers on the road than it did a year ago.

Aliens in Army may become citizens faster

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Many aliens in the Army are not aware of the liberalized naturalization procedures by which they can obtain U. S. citizenship sooner.

Aliens also should be aware that U. S. military service may affect retention of citizenship in their native countries.

Aliens on active duty should be provided this vital information in order to insure that they fully understand their rights. Details about mandatory counseling on the subject are in AR-608-3.

"Then I thought, 'They'd probably like to eat out for a change, too,' so . . ."

Marines still 'neat'; but moustaches Okay

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Marine Corps has decided against changing personal grooming standards from the current "neat and closely trimmed" look.

However, local commanders are not to apply arbitrary or unreasonable interpretations of those standards, including interpretations based on personal feelings.

It explains that long or conspicuous sideburns are prohibited, but that "nonconcentric" moustachs are permitted. Beards are not allowed "because we believe relative uniformity of appearance is paramount."

Current Corps uniform regulations call for hair to be worn neatly and closely trimmed, clipped at the sides and back to present an evenly graduated appearance, and to be no longer than three inches in length on top of the head.

The point paper said the general guidelines, "applied according to the good judgment and common sense of the local commanders," are sufficient to allow acceptable variations in personal grooming while maintaining the high standards of neatness associated with the Marine Corps.

Lee (R) Receives Discharge From Coggins Before Reenlisting

Specialist worth more to Army than to science

Although scientists have estimated that the value of the human body is only about $1, Sp 6 Lornie H. Lee is worth considerably more to the Army—$10,000, to be exact.

Lee, assigned to the 177th Aviation Company, Infantry Center Aviation Command, received this amount in the form of a variable reenlistment bonus (VRB) when he signed up for another 5-year hitch in the Army. A $10,000 bonus is the highest anyone can obtain under the VRB program.

Lee, who has had six years of active military service, has been a flight engineer on a CH-47 Chinook helicopter here since September 1969. When asked his reasons for "staying Army," the specialist replied, "I like my job. I like flying."

Lee added he probably would have re-enlisted even if he wasn't eligible to receive the $10,000 bonus.

The oath of enlistment was administered to Lee by Maj. Peter R. Coggins, commander of the 177th.

Congratulating him on his decision, Coggins said, "When you consider this man's experience and the tremendous expense the Army would incur to train his replacement, the $10,000 represents only a fraction of his worth. It is soldiers of Lee's caliber who will form the core of the modern volunteer Army."

Benefits of 1969 Tax Reform Act Explained

(EDITOR'S NOTE: In response to inquiries made about the effect of the Tax Reform Act of 1969 that were caused by various interpretations of the legislation, The Bayonet publishes the following article.)

Recent issues of service-oriented publications have devoted considerable attention to the adverse impact the Tax Reform Act of 1969 will have on service personnel, particularly with respect to moving expenses. The "slant" of these stories has not been fair to either the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) or the Department of Defense tax authorities. Although the ultimate resolution of the problem created by the 1969 Act remains to be worked out, a temporary solution has been achieved that eliminates any adverse impact upon service personnel for tax years 1970 and 1971.

Prior to the appearance of these articles, informal meetings had been held between DOD representatives and the IRS in which the IRS representatives were sympathetic to the problems that the military services and their individual members faced in attempting to comply with the Tax Reform Act. This act was beneficial to the serviceman in that it added three categories of deductible moving expenses: House-hunting trip expenses; meals and lodging for up to 30 days in the new area; and expenses both of selling a home or terminating a lease at the old residence, and of buying a home or signing a lease at the new residence. The law was disadvantageous, however, in that it:

— Required reporting by finance officers and individual taxpayers of indirect contributions by the government such as shipping costs for household goods and automobile and transportation requests.

— Required that in order to deduct moving expenses, the service member's new place of work must be located at least 50 miles further from the employee's former residence than was his former principal place of work. (The old law contained a 20-mile minimum distance requirement.)

— Retained the 39-week residence requirement at the new location to qualify for the new deductions.

Officials of both agencies agreed that DOD could request from IRS a moratorium on compliance with the law and, at the same time, seek remedial legislation.

On Nov. 30 the Commissioner of Internal Revenue informed the secretary of defense that there would be a moratorium through Dec. 31, 1971 on the withholding and reporting by military finance officers of direct and indirect moving expense reimbursements. For tax years 1970 and 1971, individual servicemen will be required to report reimbursements in cash for moving expenses but may, on the same tax return, deduct moving expenses actually paid.

The IRS intends to publish regulations on this subject during 1971. Details received at Headquarters, Department of Army, will be disseminated to the field at the earliest.

Service testing announced

The Federal government, through the U. S. Civil Service Commission, offers a limited number of summer jobs to college students and some high school students who have skills which can be used in office work, as aids in laboratories, or in the various physical and biological sciences, and in post offices.

Applicants must be citizens of the United States and 16 years of age. High school students who are graduating by June are eligible if they are only 16 years of age.

Those applicants whose applications were received in Washington, D.C., by Dec. 4 will be tested Jan. 9. Those with applications recieved by Jan. 8 will be Feb. 13. Those with applications received by Feb. 3 will be tested March. 13.

Anyone submitting applications postmarked after Feb. 3 will not be accepted.

Further information and applications forms are available at Room 329, Post Office Building, Columbus.

Major's thinking brings award

U.S. ARMY COMBAT DEVELOPMENTS COMMAND, Ft. Belvoir, Va. — Soldiers are creative and the U.S Army Combat Developments Command (CDC) believes that their ideas merit recognition.

Thus Maj. Nicholas Sellers of Fort Benning received the CDC Creative Thinker's Award for his recommendation that the bulky panel marker used for marking friendly positions during air support missons be replaced by a lighter and more compact model.

Sellers, attending the Infantry Officers Advanced Course, recommended to CDC replacement of a cumbersome ground panel marker now presently in use in Vietnam, with a smaller signal panel made of thin plastic.

The present model is 2 feet wide and 6-feet long and cannot be carried in an individual's pocket. The major's idea is to produce a panel only 1-foot-by-4 feet and composed of plastic that can be folded up to handerkerchief size to allow the soldier to even fit it into his compass pouch.

This type panel, Sellers —and CDC—feels would be particularly suitable for units engaged in small reconnaissance patrols or similar independent missions and would avoid the necessity of carrying and using smoke grenades and giving away their position to the enemy before an air strike.

First re-up

Vietnamese increase air war performance

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—More than 70 per cent of all allied air strikes in the Mekong Delta region are now being flown by the Republic of Vietnam Air Force (RVNAF), an increase of 20 per cent in the past year, according to Headquarters, Seventh Air Force.

Air strikes in Military Region 4 also are flown by U.S. Air Force and Royal Australian Air Force jet fighter-bombers.

The majority of the missions in the area are flown by pilots of the RVNAF's 520th Tactical Fighter Sq., Binh Thuy AB, RVN, in A-37 Dragonfly jet attack aircraft.

The 520th TFS "is one of the oldest and most professional fighter units in Vietnam," according to Maj. John A. Glover, a USAF Advisory Team 4 member.

"The squadron is completely self-sufficient. It upgrades its own pilots and does its own instructing and test flying. The pilots are highly motivated, have high morale and are extremely efficient fighting unit, proving it every day against the enemy in the delta and in Cambodia," Glover continued.

More than 60 per cent of the pilots have been flying combat missions in fighter aircraft for seven years or more. The squadron has had only one combat loss since transistioning to the A-37 in May 1969 when it converted to the jet fighter from the A-1 Skyraider.

RVNAF Capt. T.T. Anh, a flight leader with the 520th TFS, pointed out, "Recent Cambodian missions have enabled us to hit more specific targets. We hit the enemy more out in the open."

The average flying time for each pilot includes more than 2,000 hours of combat time. Each has the equivalent of a junior college education, and most speak three languages—French, English and Vietnamese.

"These pilots have been fighting a war and building an Air Force at the same time for many years and they have excelled in both areas, Glover commented.

Service standards may vary, Army directs

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—For the time being, Army post commanders are not to impose Army standards for personal appearance on members of the other services.

The policy was issued by message in the field from Army headquarters because of the wide variance in grooming standards, particularly those relating to hair styles, sideburns and beards.

The message said some commanders were applying Army standards to personnel from the other services, in some cases resulting in their being denied access to certain facilities.

"It is doubtful that any benefit to the Army accrues from denying a member of another Service access to welfare and service facilities when he is acting in accordance with the appearance regulations of his own service," the message said.

"Accordingly," commanders were told, "no attempt will be made, unless an interservice agreement or specific guidance from the Department of Defense to the contrary is received, to regulate an individual's appearance beyond the requirements of his own service."

'Burn' tells of Caribbean slave revolt

"Burn!," a fiery story of a slave revolt on a Caribbean island, starring Marlon Brando, opens today at a downtown theatre. Gillo Pontercoro, who was acclaimed for his "The Battle of Algiers,", directed Burn!"

Also in the cast of "Burn!" are Evaristo Marquez and Renato Salvatori. The picture was produced by Alberto Grimaldi from a story and screenplay by Franco Solinas and Giorgio Arlorio. Music is by Ennio Morricone.

One of America's most distinguished actors of stage and screen, Brando won an Academy Award for "On the Waterfront." In "Burn!," he plays Sir William Walker, a British Agent and adventurer, who is sent to the Island of Queimada in the Caribbean in the early 19th century to break the sugar monopoly. He succeds, by fomenting a revolution of the slaves, but at terrible cost.

What's in name? Ask 'Golliwog'

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Two years ago, Fantasy Records was a tiny West Coast recording firm ending its second decade with a catalogue heavy on jazz. Its headquarters were in a remodeled garage, and its first rock group was a local band called "The Golliwogs."

The Golliwogs had been putting out poor-selling singles for four years when Saul Zaentz, who bought Fantasy in 1967, decided the group's name should be changed.

The young musicians chose "Creedence Clearwater Revival."

Fifteen million records and tapes later, Fantasy moved this fall into "the house that Creedence built" — a fully paid for $1.5 million studio and office building on a three-acre plot in Berkeley.

The firm now has 30 employes, including veteran jazz and rock music critic Ralph Gleason, who holds the title "minister without portfolio" and spends much of his time looking for new talent, and the only complete record company operation on the West Coast

Synopsis

FIVE EASY PIECES (Rated R) — Jack Nicholson is starred in "FIVE EASY PIECES" as an erstwhile child musical prodigy alienated by his comfortable, intellectually sterile environment and seeking escape by working and living as a "hard-hat."

ADAM AT 6 A.M. (Rated GP) — Adam Gaines (Michael Douglas), a young college professor who becomes fed up with the intelligentsia, returns to a small town in Missouri to search for his own truths. Falling in love with an all-American girl (Lee Purcell), he becomes sadly dissillusioned about the simple life.

"PIECES OF DREAMS" (Rated GP) — is the love story of a down-to-earth man of God, Father Gregory Lind (Robert Forster) and an attractive social worker, Pamela Gibson (Lauren Hutton). Controversial questions of today — modern man's relationship to the church and the conflict between priestly vows of celibacy and basic human desire are presented with exciting interest. The story progresses to Father Lind's heartfelt resolution of his problem.

THERE'S A GIRL IN MY SOUP (Rated R) — Peter Sellers plays a TV personality who has a roving eye for the girls. An accidental encounter with Goldie Hawn, who is having some free-love domestic problems with mate Nicky Henson, blossoms into unexpected love and compassion between the unlikely pair. At fadeout Miss Hawn is (probably) going back to Henson because as she says, "He needs me," while Sellers simply has gone straight.

Magazine story tells Of Army's 'Dear Abby'

The 50th anniversary issue of Infantry Magazine — now on the newsstands — features stories about the personal side of career planning, basic training reported by a recruit, a commander's guide on drug abuse, the new Non-commissioned Officers Education System and the story of a new lieutenant signing in at his first troop assignment.

Infantry Magazine is published bi-monthly by the Infantry School at Fort Benning. Its goal is to provide current information of Infantry organization, weapons, equipment, tactics and techniques. And, as witnessed in this issue, it serves as a forum for progressive military thinking through throught-provoking articles.

A story entitled "Dear Infantry Branch" tells some requests received by the Office of Personnel Operations in Washington, D. C.

Examples of correspondence tell the whole story.

On a preference sheet, an officer writes: "I desire deferment until my wife has a baby — She will get pregnant June 70."

Or an officer efficiency report: "(He) has three vices or problems. Fear of his superiors, fear of his subordinates and fear of the enemy."

A thorough discussion of the Army's approach to the increasing number of drug users (or abusers) is presented in "A Commander's Guide on Drug Abuse." Amnesty programs which have been initiated in an effort to rehabilitate users of drugs are described in the article.

The NCO education system — the secret to proficiency pay and promotions — is outlined for all young soldiers in another story. More than 50,000 soldiers in pay grades E3 and E4 are expected to enroll in the program.

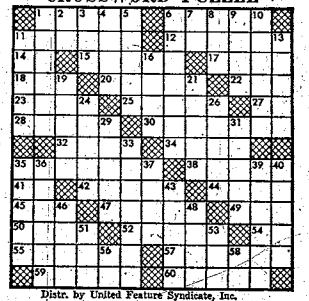
Description of boot camp is offered by a "boot." The story tells of SFC Eugene Tinsley, a drill instructor, through the eight-week "orientation" to military life.

A novice lieutenant tells of the first few days of troop duty. This story is a must for all young officers.

Infantry Magazine is available for 95 cents at the Fort Benning Book Store and its branches, at PX outlets and in the Officer's Open Mess.

Disposal Branch has 197 items up for bid

On Jan. 20 the Property Disposal Branch will conduct a local auction of 197 line items. Some items are scrap and some used.



The property may be inspected from Jan. 13 until the day of the sale, Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Items on sale include forty two 3½ ton stake and platform trucks, two dump trucks, one ½ ton carryall, household and office furniture, typewriters, footlockers and tools.

Bidders must be present to buy the items on the day of the sale. Items bought must be paid for and removed not later than Feb. 4. No bid deposit is required.

Registration for bidding will begin at 8:30 a.m. the day of the sale at Building T-320. The auctioneer's chant will begin promptly at 10 a.m. No mailed-in, hand carried, telegraphic nor telephonic bids will be accepted.

Pentagon people now can meditate on matters

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — A Meditation Room — an area where persons can find guidance and inspiration in the pursuit of their daily endeavors — has been dedicated at the Pentagon.

Several hundred Pentagon employes and dignitaries, including Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird, attended the dedication ceremony in mid-December.

The new facility actually consists of two rooms — one rather dimly lit and intended for those who want to meditate or pray privately, and another, somewhat larger, room, intended for small groups of people.

Miss January

Our Miss Safety for January apparently likes to run barefoot in the park whenever she isn't on duty as a specialist four in The School Brigade Personnel Office. The name of this 21-year-old, 5-foot-3 Texan is Vivi Garcia, who reminds you to be sure that the tires on your car are in good shape for January driving conditions.

Safety office notes fatalities less in '70

During the year just ended, 18 men lost their lives in POV accidents. This compares with 24 who lost their lives in this same type accidentin 1969.

Several of those killed were not at fault, while others, in some cases, were passengers in the vehicle and were not involved in its operation.

Commenting on the lower death rate, Fort Benning Safety Director James E. Blount said, "Naturally we are pleased that we lost fewer lives in 1970 than in any recent year, but we must continue to strive and work for that time when we will lose no lives in needless accidents of this type."

"I commend the Fort Benning driver for his record. I also salute the men at all levels of command who have, through their leadership, influenced others to be safer and defensive drivers," Blount continued.

"As we begin a new year, let us also begin a new effort to continue the downward trend in the loss of life of our people in private motor vehicle accidents," the accident prevention chief said.

"We are anxious to not only reduce the death rate in this area, but to likewise continue to reduce non-fatal injuries as well. This offers a greater challenge each year as more soldiers own more cars and drive them more miles," Blount said.

Soccer as exercise? Little UN says 'Yes!'

By Bill Kloeb

Fort Benning beats Auburn University in football. Impossible you say, but they did. They beat them twice this year, but it wasn't American football; it was European football, or soccer.

The whole thing started when Capt. Willie Huygens of Belgium, a student in an Infantry School Advanced Class felt that he needed more exercise than he was getting during his classes at the school. He figured his national sport, soccer, would fill the gap. He discussed this with Maj. Charles Lane, an American student, and they decided to talk up some interest in the sport.

Within two weeks they had recruited more than 30 other students who were interested in spending time in the evening practicing and playing. The group resembles a small United Nations. In addition to U. S. students, there are students from Canada, Ethiopia, Laos, Republic of Vietnam, Brazil, Venezuela, Italy, Iran and Ireland, plus a sprinkling of small fry dependents who have been made to feel more at home in America because of association with their national sport.

After about a month the group grew to nearly 50, and it was found that it represented a lot of real talent but not quite enough players to organize a local league. They began making inquiries and found that several organizations within weekend travel distance of Fort Benning had soccer teams willing to compete with the Benning group.

Games were scheduled with Auburn University, Georgia Tech, Columbus College and the Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta. So far the Benning team had defeated Auburn twice, by scores of 5 to 2, won two games from Columbus College by scores of 7 to 2 and 9 to 2, lost one game to Georgia Tech by the score of 2 to 1 and defeated the Atlanta Prison 6 to 2. Now they are ready to take on all challengers.

European football has never gained much interest in this country. It's hard to understand why. It combines the speed and action of basketball and rugged play and body contact of American football while incorporating other characteristics of both games.

Soccer is the national sport of most South American, European and near, middle and far eastern countries. In fact it has been organized as an international sport for many years. In most countries, competition begins at town and village level, progressing to state or regional level, then to national competition. National holidays are declared during final competition.

Every four years, international tournaments are held, pitting the finest players of a country against teams of other nations. These teams carry the pride of the nations they represent in the larger countries, spectator crowds of more than 100,000 have witnessed games. The official attendance at the latest international championships held last spring at Mexico City, was more than 10 million people.

The game holds so much fascination, in fact, that when it won the world championship last year, Brazil celebrated for days. Italy, when word reached them that their team had lost the final match, was so wound up for victory celebration the people went ahead and celebrated anyway.

Currently the Fort Benning team is trying to build a bigger team. If you are interested in joining, call Maj. have the stamina to take it), call Maj. Lane or Capt. Huygens at 545-4212.

Six wins to date

197th scores 5th straight victory

By Bob Wise

The 197th Infantry Brigade basketball team scored its fifth straight victory Monday night in downing MEDDAC (Medical Department Activities) 93-60, at the Kelley Hill Field House.

The victory brought the 197th's season to six wins and one loss. MEDDAC dropped to 1-6. The 197th remained in a tie for first place, however, with The School Brigade as the Infantry School team defeated the 931st Engr. Grp., 66-55.

Four 197th cagers finished in double figures with forward John Black taking high scoring honors with 21 points. He was followed by Pete Ogle with 17 points, Jim Darden with 15 points, and Will Brockington with 12 points.

High MEDDAC scorer was center Jim Sheffer with 16 points. Forward Lee Trexler and guard Chris Samel had 11 and ten points, respectively.

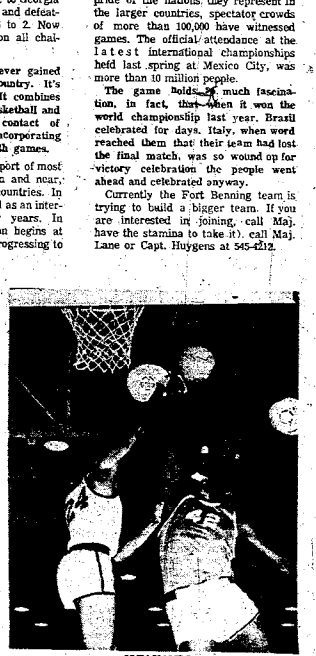
The game got off to a slow start as neither team could bucket points until two-and-a-half minutes into the game when Ogle scored for the 197th.

MEDDAC did not get its first basket until the game was eight minutes old. Sheffer scored at that point, but the 197th already had ten points on the scoreboard.



With nine-and-a-half minutes left in the half, the 197th, leading 14-3, called a time-out to put in its starting team. The 197th reserves, along with guard Don Campbell, had played the first ten-and-a-half minutes of the half.

The 197th continued to widen its lead, and with two minutes left in the half the score was 33-17.

Midway through the second half, 197th starting guard Campbell was ejected from the game.

With 1:50 remaining, the 197th had its biggest margin of the game, 87-57. At the 1:02 mark, Sheffer, the MEDDAC scoring and rebounding leader, fouled out. A minute later the scoreboard told the final outcome, 93-60.

By MIKE KELLER

Like the mood of Mudville when mighty Casey whiffed in the clutch, there was little joy on the benches of Alabama and Oklahoma when the final gun sounded in the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl last week.

Both teams had just struggled through 60 gruelling minutes of tense, see-saw battle. But neither brought home a fresh victory to cheer, as the game ended in a 24-24 deadlock.

Perhaps a sun-dappled optimist could rationalize away the disappointing outcome by pointing out that neither school left the field tainted by defeat. But such a fellow should not permit his cheerful observations to be overheard by the players. Because tie games are as welcome in football circles as fire ants at a Girl Scout picnic.

Bear Bryant was unhappy with the result—and he had reason to be. An attempted 34-yard field goal with five seconds left — the winning margin had it been good — was deflected by a Sooner linesman. More than the boot went awry, however, as Bear also lost the opportunity to nail down his 200th coaching triumph.

But the loudest wails of outrage came from Oklahoma coach Chuck Fairbanks. Fairbanks was lucky to get away with the dead heat, but he struck a noble pose anyway. Games never should end in a tie, he said sternly. They should be played until there is a winner.

Most fans would add a hearty "Amen." For although sports events are not exempt from that old merchant's warning—"caveat emptor"—the paying customer at least deserves what he puts hard coin on the line to find out: Which of the two competitors is superior. A tie leaves this in limbo, unless one uses statistical criteria other than the points on the scoreboard to render a judgment.

Hence, for both players and fans, a tie is exasperation personified. As one frustrated football coach put it: "A tie is like kissing your sister." No better definition has been found.

I do not mean to berate the allowance of ties in all cases. In some contests, they fit in well. In hockey, for instance, where teams give up goals with the stinginess of Scrooge, ties are frequent. And in chess, the draw is an established part of the SOP.

Not so in football. In this sport, a tie, at best, is a nuisance. Case in point: the "Dream Game of the Century" in 1967, Notre Dame versus Michigan State. Both teams undefeated, clawing for the national championship and — due to sheer happenstance—meeting during the regular season.

But like Cinderella's coach, this contest turned into a pigskin pumpkin. The two collosi fought inconclusively to a 10-10 stalemate, making nationwide audiences feel they had just been sold the hole in the doughnut.

The game need not have ended this way had Irish coach Ara Parseghian tried to win it in the game's waning moments. Rather than gambling by putting the ball in the air, Ara, who would have been showered with orchids had he produced a victory, chose to eat up the clock on the ground and settle for the tie. It was like attending a fabulous banquet with thousands of delectable delights — and, turning one's back on the scrumptious feast and satisfying the appetite by snatching and eating flies.

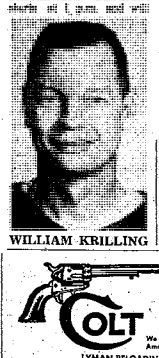
In the amateur realm, a tie can be dismissed as a mere annoyance. However, in the professional side of the sport this is a more serious matter, although, in all fairness, most of the blame must rest on the method the NFL uses to compute division championships.

Winners are those teams having the highest won-lost percentage. Ties are excluded from the figuring, regardless how many a club has. Theoretically, a team with a season's total of 1-0-13 (1.000) would beat out another that finished 13-1 (.929).

What to do about the tie? Replace it, I say. Either by sudden death (more popular with the fans than with the players since the side that gets the ball first has a distinct advantage) or—even better—by the "penetration rule," by which both teams get an opportunity to advance the ball from the 50-yard line and, over a series of plays, the one who moves it further wins the game.

USAMTU to give smallbore clinic

A three-member International Rifle Team from the Marksmanship Training Unit will present a clinic on International Smallbore Rifle in Atlanta for the benefit of interested students and faculty at Georgia Institute of Technology and Georgia State University on Jan. 7 and 8. It was announced by Col. Robert M. Piper, commander of the Marksmanship Training Unit, (USAMTU).



The team, consisting of Capt. Gregory Dalton, MSgt. William E. Krilling and Sp4 William H. Lange, are from the International Rifle Section of USAMTU. Dalton and Krilling will be instructing and leading the discussion while Lange will be demonstrating competitive positions.

These marksmanship instructors, some of the world's outstanding shooters, will be instructing on International rifle techniques and procedures which have been found by the training unit to get good results and high scores in years of national and international competition.

Sgt. Krilling has been participating in competitive meets for 18 years and is considered one of the best smallbore competitors. He has won five National meets and was the first man in history to fire a perfect 3200 score in 1964. Krilling is a veteran of Vietnam and Korea War and holds the Distinguished Service Cross, Bronze Star and Purple Heart.

Capt. Dalton, a graduate of the Citadel at Charleston, South Carolina, has been an instructor with the International Rifle Section since June 1969.

Specialist Lange has been involved in competitive shooting for two years and has been with the Marksmanship Unit since February.

WILLIAM KRILLING

Each will participate in discussions and demonstrations to cover the many aspects of international shooting used. This four hour class will be repeated at 6 p.m. The Naval ROTC unit at the University will be sponsoring the clinic.

On Jan. 8, the team will move to the Georgia State University campus where they will present three one-hour classes beginning at 8 p.m. Faculty and students alike will participate in the International Rifle Marksmanship Clinic which will be sponsored by the University's Army ROTC Unit.

Fishing has been expectedly slow because of hunting, football and other recreation during this time of year, but there are still a few dedicated anglers who manage to find some time for the sport. The winner of the bass contest of the Rod and Gun Fishing Derby for December is one of those people. SFC Robert Horne (ret.), 1100 Celia Drive came up with a 6-pound 12-ounce lunker he took from Harps pond early in the month to win the bass contest.

A lot of people say fishing is luck. I haven't believed this completely because a fisherman has to fish where there are fish before he has a chance to catch anything at all.

We all know there are fish, and big ones in all of the ponds on the reservation. Every month large catfish and bass are recorded in the fishing derby. Most of the time the names change from month to month, but you can always depend on seeing the name of Sgt. Horne in contention sometime during the month.

I recall that in the early months of the year he won the bream contest with an entry from Patterson Pond, and in October he won the catfish with an almost unbelievable monster of 18-pounds 4-ounces from Victory Pond. Apparently he doesn't just favor one pond in his efforts. He's registered fish from just about every one of the more popular ponds on the reservation.

Following this man's record you just have to come to the conclusion that there is more skill than luck in the sport. Horne is just too consistent. He has to know some things the rest of us haven't learned. Fishermen are known for their ability to keep trade secrets, but Horne may be an exception. We might be able to talk him into giving a clinic of some kind to let some of us in on a few of the methods he uses. If anyone is interested, Lt. Col. Rock, president of the Rod and Gun Club, will try to talk Horne into it. From what I hear, He could use the clinic too.

OTHER WINNERS

Other winners in the December Fishing Derby were Capt. Will F. Arnow, 27th Co., TSB with a catfish weighing 14-pounds 4-ounces. He took this lunker from Russ Pond. This was quite a surprise too because Russ Pond is used primarily as a place to keep fingerling fish until they grow large enough to be moved into other ponds on the reservation.

Roy Johnson, chief of the post Fish and Game Unit says that each time the pond is drained to remove the fingerlings to a new location, a certain number are not caught. These fish grow especially fast because of the large amounts of feed the game unit puts in the pond for the fingerlings. Another thing is that when Russ Pond is drained none of the larger fish are removed. Over a period of years the pond bas become quite populated with larger fish as well as the fingerlings.

Fishermen who only have a small amount of time for the sport might want to take advantage of this. Russ Pond is the most convenient on the post as far as location is concerned. Those using the pond must remember that unlike other ponds on the reservation Russ bas a limit on the number of catfish that can be taken. Most of the signs announcing this have been defaced or removed but the limit is eight per day.

Another thing to remember is that the small pond located just above Russ Pond is off limits for fishing. This small pond contains about 20 large catfish each weighing more than 15 pounds. They are hybrids especially bred for research purposes. The taking of any of these fish could cause a lot of this research time to be lost.

HUNTING CONTEST

With time running out the old entries in the Rod and Gun Club Hunting contest seem to be holding up pretty well. SSgt. Lemuel Boozer, HHC, TSB, still has the heaviest deer entered. His buck weighed 159½ pounds. There have been several other entries mighty close, but Boozer seems to have a spell on those Rod and Gun scales.

J. B. Simmon has the deer with the largest rack. His trophy buck had 10 points. With the season over in Georgia and only a few more days to go in the Alabama season, this entry appears to have a good chance to hold up in the contest.

The only entry now on the books that looks real shaky is the 133-pound buck Hazelton Cegar has registered in the junior contest. A good day by a junior over this weekend could put him in the driver's seat.

Company basketball swings back

By Bob Wise

Company-level basketball in the 197th Inf. Bde. is back in full swing after the holiday season, but many pre-Christmas games went unreported.

Three big games were played in the 1st Bn., 58th Inf., before the holiday started. The strength of Co. C's bench carried it to an exciting 88-79 victory over HHC. All HHC starters finished in double figures as Larry Stokes led the HHC scoring. Co. C was led by Allen Jones and Cal Williford.

In the second game, Co. B, led by John Black and Will Brockington, trounced Co. A, 116-68. HHC bounced back from their earlier loss to defeat Co. B, 91-32.

After three games in the 5th Bn., 31st Inf., HHC was on top of the heap beating Co. D, 51-40, and Co. C, 86-69. In other 5th Bn., 31st Inf. action, Co. E convinced Co. A, 61-42.

The 2nd Bn., 10th Arty. squeezed in four games during the week before holiday leaves began, as the soldiers of HHS squeaked past Btry. C, 43-40, in one game. But Btry. C came back to beat Btry. A, 57-24 and the combined team of Btrys. D and E, and the 183rd Chem. Plt. (DE183) downed Btry. B, 48-37. In the fourth game of the week, the officers of HHS came from behind to slip past the DE 183 combination, 36-34.

In the 197th Support Bn., Co. A remained undefeated after four games. In roundball action Dec. 15, the combined teams of HHC, 197th Inf. Bde. and the 72nd Engr. Co., downed Co. D, 54-41 and Co. A beat Co. D, 91st Engr., 64-41.

Two days later, Co. D knocked off Co. D, 91st Engr., 46-35, and Co. A eased past the HHC-72nd combination, 62-42. In that game Co. A took a 38-16 half-time lead, allowing only one HHC-72nd field goal in the second quarter. Four starters combined for 48 of Co. A's points.

On Jan. 5, Co. A, led by Ken Mahoney, downed Co. D, 54-40. The same day, LeRoy Jackson and Henry Bordeaux of the HHC-72nd team combined their efforts for a 44-point performance and a 72-30 win over Co. D, 91st Engr.

Legal aid pilot program to start in 11 states

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — A pilot program to provide free legal assistance to military people who cannot afford it will begin about Feb. 1 in 11 states.

The areas selected for each of the services and the Coast Guard are:

Army — Kansas (Forts Leavenworth and Riley) and New Jersey (Forts Dix and Monmouth)

Navy — California, Florida and Hawaii.

Air Force — Alaska and Illinois.

Marine Corps — North Carolina.

Coast Guard — New York, Virginia, and Massachusetts.

The pilot program will test the feasibility of expanding the legal assistance program on a permanent basis for military members and their dependents who cannot pay civilian lawyers' fees without substantial hardship to themselves or their families.

Military lawyers, under the supervision of staff judge advocates of the selected commands, will be authorized to provide the expanded legal services, which may include minor criminal and some civil matters, in civil courts.

Results of the test program will be evaluated by the Department of Defense in April and May 1972.

Woman shooter fires new record

Maj. Sallie Carroll of the United States Army Marksmanship Training Unit has set a new women's International Standard Pistol record by firing a 570x600 at the recently concluded Fort Benning monthly open pistol tournament and international match.

Other standouts during the three days of competition included MSgt. Emil Heugatter who swept the Free Pistol event with a 553 and the 45 cal. NRA Aggregate with a 894-41X. The International Center Fire match was won by SFC Harland Rennolds of 3rd Army AMU while SFC Hezekiah Clark was victorious in the Standard Pistol match with a 579X600.

The NRA 22 cal. Aggregate was won by SFC Samuel Hunter with an 894-42X. Then the old master himself, retired Sgt. Maj. Bill Blankenship, won the Rapid Fire match with a 587, and the NRA Center Fire Aggregate with an 886-53X.

The Grand Aggregate was also won by Mr. Blankenship with a 2649-142X followed closely by second and third place finishers SSgt. John Smith 2643-126X and MSgt. Heugatter 2641-121X.

College offers sales course

Columbus College will offer a special five week course for real estate salesmen to prepare them for the Georgia Real Estate Salesman Examination scheduled Feb. 22 in Atlanta, said Dr. J. F. Burgess, continuing education director at the college.

The class will meet on campus from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Mondays and Wednesdays beginning Jan. 18. Professor John Bohannon of the Division of Business Economics will instruct. Registration is open, and the cost including text is $47.50. The class will be limited to 30 students.

Pakistan mercy mission ends

WASHINGTON (ANF)—U. S. Army helicopter crewmen have flown their final mercy missions in East Pakistan and have returned to their home base at Ft. Bragg, N. C.

By Dec. 15, the 80-man task force had flown nearly 1,250 helicopter sorties, air-lifting more than a million pounds of relief supplies during 25 days of operations.

Withdrawal of the relief task force was made possible by the re-establishment of surface transportation and times of communication by the Pakistani government and volunteer organizations.

With surface transportation assured, the flow of food, clothing and medicines to the disaster area can continue without the aid of the U. S. task force.

Schools set rifle matches

The Reserve Officers Training Corps (ROTC) of the Muscogee County School District will hold the Tam-Co smallbore outdoor rifle match at Parks International Rifle Range Jan. 16.

Rifle teams from Hillsborough, Chamberlain and Plant High Schools of Tampa, Fla., and Baker, Carver, Columbus, Hardaway, Jordan, Kendrick, and Spencer High Schools of Columbus, Ga., will enter teams in the event.

A team trophy, known as the Tam-Co Cup will be awarded to the winning team. This is a rotating trophy to be held by the champion team through the course of the shooting year and relinquished to the winner of the event next year. Team trophies will also be awarded to the teams having the second and third high aggregates. Miniature Tam-Co Cups will be awarded to individuals with the ten high individual scores.

This will be the ninth annual firing of the Tam-Co Cup Matches. Plant High School won the first event in 1963 and won again in 1964. Baker High School came out number one in 1965 and Hillsborough High School in 1966.

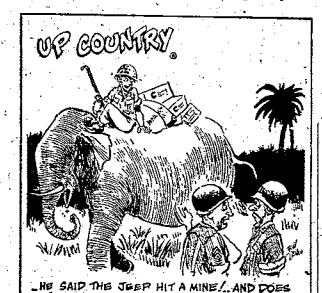
Short orders now in order any time



You will now be able to buy breakfast at any hour of the day seven days a week at Fort Benning.

Breakfast, other short orders and "essential" retail items such as tobacco supplies, shaving gear and film, are among the services available at the Lawson Field Snack Bar 24 hours a day.

Formerly open from 7 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., the snack bar will now be open for the convenience of personnel arriving on post late at night and those who work during hours when snack bars are normally closed. The change is the result of a suggestion made through the Volunteer Army (VOLAR) Program.

You'll need your ID card to purchase retail items if you aren't in uniform.

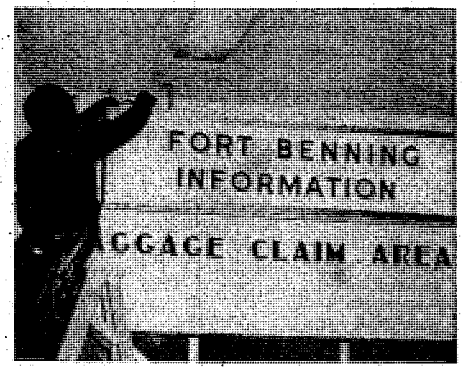
Students make school topic of research studies

By Martin McWilliams

The Infantry School will make its facilities available next week to a group of college students writing research papers on leadership topics.

The five students are pursuing courses of study ranging from pre-dentistry to philosophy at Wofford College, located in Spartanburg, S. C.

Wofford gives its students a two - week post-Christmas break each year during which the students are expected to produce a personal research project.



Merle Russ, Brian Lovatt, Mark Smith, Franklin Sudderth and Charlie Boyle, who are all Reserve Officer Training Course cadets and who range in age from 18 to 21, became interested in leadership as a research topic. Through their Department of Military Science the students contacted the Infantry School and made arrangements for the visit.

Subjects for the research papers were suggested by the Infantry School's Leadership Department. The papers, to be done in the form of military staff studies, will cover such areas of study as "the effect of physiological stress on the leader and the decision-making process," and "the optimum relationship between the unit leader and his police or animal (scout dog) handlers."

The students will spend a week at Fort Benning conducting the actual research for their papers. As guests of the Infantry School, they will be issued field gear and will participate in leadership training activities being taught to officer candidates and other students at the School. Participation will include a class in leadership aspects of race relations, mechanized and stream-crossing operations, the leadership reaction course and Airborne and Ranger training.

Physical participation in leadership training situations will be supplemented by classroom discussions and briefings provided by School departments.

The students will return to their homes Jan. 17 to write their papers. Through the project they will earn credits toward degrees at Wofford College.

Getting ready

Last adjustments are made on a sign over the front entrance before work at the Columbus Metropolitan Airport. The booth is staffed by four noncommissioned officers who provide information on transportation in post, and answer questions incoming soldiers may have about the Columbus-Fort Benning area.

POW wives to get new benefits

President Richard Nixon has signed into law new education benefits for wives and children of prisoners of war and for servicemen who have served 181 days of active duty rather than two years as was previously required.

The new benefits became effective Dec. 24, according to Donald E. Johnson, administrator of veterans affairs.

The reduction in the active duty requirement to 181 days also applies to the eligibility of servicemen for G. I. loan guarantee benefits, Johnson said. This broadened eligibility makes it possible for men and women to use their G.I. Bill benefits sooner while still in military service, Johnson explained.

Under the new law, the wives and children of those members of the Armed Forces on active duty who have been listed for more than 90 days as missing in action, captured, "or forcibly detained or interned in the line of duty by a foreign government or power," are eligible for educational benefits.

For apprenticeship and on-the-job-training courses under the G.I. Bill, servicemen are required to take 120 hours of training per month to receive full training allowance and a lesser number of hours result in a proportionate reduction in the allowance.

Full-time training, Johnson explained, contemplates a work week of at least 30 hours unless collective bargaining has established a lesser standard for a work week.

Director up for brigadier

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Col. Jeanne M. Holm, director of Women in the Air Force (WAF), and astronaut Col. James A. McDivitt have been selected for brigadier general rank.

Col. Holm will be the third woman to hold one-star rank, the Army having led the way in mid-1970 with stars for its WAC director, and chief of the Army nurse corps.

Visitors board finds academy still meets highest traditions

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AFPS) — President Richard Nixon has received the May 1970 Report of the Board of Visitors to the United States Military Academy.

The board, which met at West Point, N.Y., from April 30 to May 2, 1970, is required by law to meet annually to inquire into the state of morale and discipline, the curriculum, instruction, physical equipment, fiscal affairs, academic methods and other matters relating to the academy which the board decides to consider and report to the President.

The board consists of six Presidential appointees, three Vice Presidential appointees, four appointed by the speaker of the house and a member designated by the chairman of the armed services committee from each congressional body. Maj. Gen. Leif J. Sverdrup, USAR (Ret.) served as board chairman.

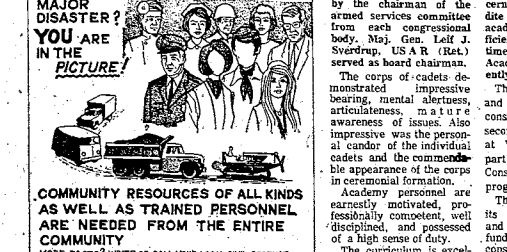
The corps of cadets demonstrated impressive bearing, mental alertness, articulateness, mature awareness of issues. Also impressive was the personal candor of the individual cadets and the commendable appearance of the corps in ceremonial formation.

Academy personnel are earnestly motivated, professionally competent, well disciplined, and possessed of a high sense of duty.

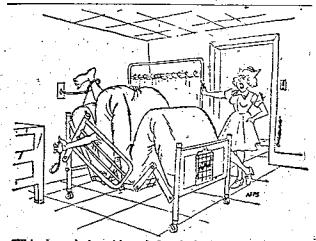
The curriculum is excellent and is subjected to continuing critical review by the Academic Board.

Maj. Gen. William A. Knowlton, superintendent of the academy for a brief period, has a sound grasp of the varied responsibilities of his command.

The board's recommendations included:



That all agencies concerned support and expedite the processing of the academy's request for deficiency funds to assure timely completion of the Academic Building presently under construction.



That congress authorize and appropriate funds for construction of effective secondary sewage facilities at West Point, currently part of the FY '71 Military Construction Authorization program.

That defense include in its construction program and the Congress approve funding of the remaining construction projects in the approved Academy Expansion Program to maintain the construction effort and assure that the required facilities will be completed in time to support effectively the increasing strength of the corps of cadets.

That the Army budget continue to provide for increasing operational and maintenance costs, as well as the manpower requirements of the academy, consistent with the programmed development of new facilities.

That Army and the superintendent continue to implement the recommendations of the Facility Review Board, particularly as they apply to maintaining the present high quality of the instructional staff and to increasing the size of the tenure component of the faculty.

Former Benning Unit inactivated in Vietnam

NHA TRANG, VIETNAM — On Dec. 14 the 281st Assault Helicopter Company, 10th Avn. Bn., 17th Combat Avn. Gp., was inactivated. After serving for 4½ years in the Republic of Vietnam, it is now saying goodby to the people and lands of this country.

Activated on Oct. 7, 1965, at Fort Benning, the 281st arrived at Nha Trang in June 1966. After quickly setting up shop, the "Intruders" commenced its role of an assault helicopter company, in primary support of the 5th Special Forces Group (Airborne) and general support of the II Military Region.

The 281st has compiled quite a list of units supported during its history but the names that appeared most frequently were those of 5th Special Forces, MACV Recondo School, MACV Sector Teams and the White Horse ROK Infantry Division.

The most notable was the 5th Special Forces B-52 (Project Delta). This mission called for the 281st to go from northern I Corps to southern III Corps in an attempt to discover and halt enemy activity. However, in January 1970, the bulk of the 281st mission were allocated to provide general support for II Corps from Phan Thiet to Dak Seang. No portion of II Corps was exempted from the work of the "Intruders."

Whether on a single ship re-supply of a ROK unit on the coast or on a large scale air mobile operation in Cambodia, the 281st has been praised for the accomplishment of the mission under some very difficult situations.

Soldiers take freezing Acid Test

FT. GREELY, Alaska (ANF) — Soldiers and airmen from the United States and Canada battled temperatures that plunged to minus 50 degrees during a cold-weather test of men and machines held near here in December.

The below-zero temperatures along with subarctic winds produced a wind chill temperature of minus 95 degrees for the 4,700 soldiers and airmen who took part in Acid Test III, the first major joint winter exercise to be held in Alaska in two years.

The purpose of Acid Test III was to train both American and Canadian forces for tactical deployment in cold-weather operations. It also tested man's ability to function under adverse weather conditions along with his equipment.

Highlights of the six-day exercise included air drops of soldiers and supplies, air reconnaissance, tactical air strikes and airmobile lifts of fighting forces by helicopter. Airborne troops from the 172nd Infantry Brigade, Ft. Richardson, Alaska, played the part of aggressor forces. They were opposed by elements of the 171st Infantry Brigade, Ft. Wainwright, Alaska, and by the Canadian Mobile Command. Other participating units included the Alaskan Air Command, the U. S. Strike Command, the Military Airlift Command and Air National Guard units from Illinois, Nebraska and Texas.

Pre-retirement session to be held at theater

A pre-retirement orientation for military personnel will be held at 9 a.m. Wednesday at the main post theater.

Servicemen with more than 18 years of active federal service and their wives are invited to attend. Anyone who already has been to one of these sessions, however, will not likely benefit by coming again.

The purpose of this program is to provide information on retirement rights and benefits and how to prepare for retirement and a second career. Representatives from the civilian personnel, the Georgia State Employment Service, Social Security, the Veterans' Administration, post educational development section and the Small Business Administration will assist the retired activities section in presenting the program.

At the completion of the formal program, counselors will be available to answer questions.

Many to get half-day off on payday

A new Fort Benning policy and reiteration of an old one should make it easier for you to handle your personal affairs.

The new policy will give many persons a half-day off on payday or on a day immediately following payday. Issued as a directive under the "Benning Plan" for a Modern Volunteer Army, (VOLAR) this policy takes effect immediately.

Commanders will have control over this practice, according to the directive. Their decisions on implementing the policy will be based on the number of personnel required to perform the unit's mission.

The policy that has been reiterated under the "Benning Plan" is the practice of having offices that perform personnel services open during lunch periods.

Many sections, including finance, transportation, legal assistance and family housing, were following this practice before the VOLAR project.

One section that added lunch period services is the Identification Card section. 1st. Lt. Dennis W. Levinge, officer in charge, said the policy is working well.

"We are busy all the time during lunch," he said. "There is always someone coming in, so we have a fairly constant flow."

Both practices are aimed at fulfilling the VOLAR goal of reducing service irritants and making the Army more responsive to the needs of the individual soldier.

It's all over

PFC Lorenzo Hunt of Hq. & Hq. Btry., 2nd Bn., 10th Arty., 197th Inf. Bde., finishes the last few dishes of the last military KP in his unit. Civilians have taken over the sink detail and other details in the mess halls under the Benning Plan for a Modern Volunteer Army.

THE BAYONET

VOL. 29, NO. 18 FRIDAY, JAN. 15, 1971 36 PAGES — 10c

But hold the 'O'

"One hamburger all the way"—that's the short order of the day at unit mess halls on post. Under the Modern Volunteer Army project, soldiers can make dining meals such as was being done above at the Headquarters Command mess one day this week.

Shuttle bus service doubles; new route added

Steps are being taken to make it easier for soldiers to get around the Fort Benning complex.

Under the "Benning Plan" for a Modern Volunteer Army (Project VOLAR), post shuttle bus service has been nearly doubled.

One new route has been added in the Sand Hill area where some units of the 921st Engineer Group had not been receiving shuttle bus service previously.

Shuttle bus service offers several advantages—not only to the soldier who has no automobile, but also to those who have their private "wheels."

The service is free and it is convenient. A bus passes each of the 66 stops on post at least once every half hour. And the stops are within two blocks of every troop area on post.

"We try to go right to the soldier," Maj. Norbert Otto, chief of the Transport Branch, said.

The shuttle bus service also makes it possible for soldiers to avoid many of the traffic and parking problems found on post.

Infantry Museum campaign to begin here Monday

The Fort Benning phase of the $6 million Infantry Museum Development Program, scheduled to begin Monday and run through March 26, will feature several changes designed to make giving more convenient for individual donors.

Innovations which Fort Benning officials hope will make the $100,000 campaign a success include peer solicitation, donations by pledge, and credit card giving, said Col. Robert P. Hatcher Jr., campaign chairman.

"We expect this campaign to be a lot more personal than past fund drives have been," Hatcher said. "Officers, soldiers and civilians in the senior grades will be contacted personally by a peer—someone of their own grade."

"Senior soldiers will include non-commissioned officers of grade E-7 and above; all warrant officers; and officers of grade captain and above. Civilian employes of pay grade GS9 and above also will be solicited personally," Col. Hatcher said. "Soldiers, officers, and civilians of other grades will be approached through a general appeal campaign" he said.

"We want to make giving as convenient as possible," the colonel said. "This will be a one-time-only solicitation, and I would like to see us exceed what I think is a very reasonable goal."

To that end, pledge cards will be used to enable donors to divide their gifts into periodic contributions for which they will be billed. Similarly, holders of Master Charge or BankAmericard will be able to divide their pledges into contributions which will be reflected on their monthly credit card bill.

The Fort Benning campaign is the first in a nationwide series of campaigns and will be followed by similar campaigns on other Army posts and in major cities throughout the country.

The new museum will be built at Fort Benning on a seven-acre site adjacent to Infantry Hall. The Army will staff and maintain the 161,000-square-foot structure.

National co-chairman for the campaign are J. W. Woodruff Jr., a Columbus business and civic leader, and former Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller of Arkansas. Honorary co-chairman for the project are Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Henry Cabot Lodge.

Sec. Resor visits post; awards medal

Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor is visiting Fort Benning and will speak today at 10:30 a.m. at the graduation of Officer Candidate Class 3-71, of which his son, Charles P., is member.

Resor arrived here yesterday. While on post he will be briefed on the Modern Volunteer Army program and will view several demonstrations. An official dinner was held in his honor last night.

At an official luncheon held yesterday at the Main Officer's Open Mess, Resor presented the Outstanding Civilian Service Medal to Dean Emeritus J. Alton Hosch, civilian aide for Georgia from 1962 to 1970 and former dean of the University of Georgia School of Law.

Resor has served as Secretary of the Army for 5½ years.

Pacific military forces, bases slated for reduction

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—The Department of Defense has released a series of actions taken by the U. S. Government in the Pacific to reduce the number of U. S. bases and realign military forces.

The actions, which officials said will "improve efficiency and save money," primarily affect bases and personnel in Japan, Okinawa and the Republic of Korea.

Changes scheduled for units in Japan include:

U. S. Army

The U. S. Army's 249th General Hospital at North Camp Drake will be closed and placed in a standby status at the end of March, 1971.

U. S. Navy

Yokosuka - Yokohama: Commander Seventh Fleet, his flagship, and most of the logistical activities of Submarine Flotilla Seven, will move to the Naval Operating Base, Sasebo, Japan.

Remaining in the Yokosuka-Yokohama area will be a substantially smaller headquarters for Commander, Naval Forces Japan, a small Naval Support facility and Communications Support Group, and a substantially reduced Military Sealift Command (Far East).

The United States will retain port and administrative facilities, but will release to the government of Japan most other facilities in Yokosuka — notably the Ship Repair Facility — while retaining Dry Dock No. 8. The Naval Communications Station, Japan, and Naval Shore Electronics Engineering Activity, Japan will remain at Yokosuka, but will be reduced.

Also to be reduced or disestablished are several tenant commands at Fleet Activities, Yokosuka: The Public Works Center, Naval Supply Depot, and the U. S. Naval Hospital and Dental Facilities.

Sasebo Complex: The Navy expects the scope of fleet activity at Sasebo, on Japan's southernmost island of Kyushu, to increase and believes the increased support required can be provided by some expansion of existing facilities.

Atsugi Naval Air Station: The Naval Air Station complex will be reduced and changed to a Naval Air Facility by the end of June. VQ-1 Squadron with 13 aircraft will move to Guam, with the exception of one detachment which will be relocated at a yet-to-be-assigned station. Helicopter Combat Support Squadron 7, and Fleet Tactical Support Squadron 50 will return to the United States.

The Commander, Fleet Air Western Pacific will move to another base in the Western Pacific, while the Fleet Air Western Pacific Repair Activity will remain at Atsugi.

Major changes scheduled for units on Okinawa include:

U. S. Army

Realignment of the Joint Sobe Processing Center will eliminate about 500 U. S. civilian and military positions.

U. S. Navy

U. S. Marine Corps

The Marine Corps plans to reduce its Okinawan work force by about 1,200 and will return about 1,000 acres of leased land in central and northern Okinawa. The reutrn of the land, primarily on the borders of Marine camps or training areas, will not materially affect training or support of Marine forces on Okinawa, officials said.

U. S. Air Force

A major reduction in U. S. Air Force operations will occur at Naha AB, where the 51st Fighter Interceptor Wing and the 374th Tactical Airlift Wing will be inactivated. The Air Force also will phase down operations at Onna Point by June 30. The combined actions at Naha and Onna Point will eliminate about 4,000 military and civilian workers, most of whom will return to the United States.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

by Bill King

If you do much cake baking, save used butter and margarine wrappers in a container in the freezer. They're handy to grease cake tins.

In Belgium, signs for "Moules et Frites" (mussles and fried potato sticks) are as ubiquitous as signs for "Burgers and French Fries" are here.

Cover steamed cauliflower with stewed tomatoes and top with a mixture of breadcrumbs, grated cheese and chopped onion. Bake until browned and bubbly.

Crystallized grapes make a pretty dessert served with cheese and crackers. Brush grapes with egg white, then dip in sugar, and dry on a cake rack.

Next time the family complains about your coffee, tell them that in early American taverns it was the custom to filter coffee through dried fish skins.

Better yet, treat the whole family to a dinner at

Q — I've heard a soldier with a dishonorable discharge can get it changed easily six months after discharge. Is this true?

A — You've heard wrong! The Army Discharge Review Board handles requests for change of all administrative discharges and those directed by a Special Court Martial.

Their records show that during 1968 only 20 of the bad conduct and dishonorable discharges and 38 of the administrative discharges (general and undesirable) reviewed were changed by the secretary of the Army at the Board's recommendation. In 1969 the figures were even lower.

Many are under the impression that the Exemplary Rehabilitation Certificate, which may be requested from the Department of Labor three years following an unfavorable discharge, changes the character of the discharge. This is a false impression. The certificate only indicates that the individual concerned has maintained a good employment record and has incurred no police record during the three-year period following his discharge.

THE ORIGINAL CHARACTER OF THE DISCHARGE REMAINS UNCHANGED!

In addition discharge recharacterizations cannot be purchased and are not automatic; and even congressional interest does not guarantee favorable action on a request for recharacterization.

Q — What privileges does an American serviceman lose who has been dishonorably discharged?

A — The following are benefits for which dishonorably discharged veterans are not eligible:

Benefits administered by Army: Payment for accrued leave; death gratuity (six months pay); transportation of dependents and household goods to home (Except dependents in overseas area may be returned to United States); wearing of military uniform; admission to a soldiers' home; burial in a national cemetery; and an Army discharge review board.

Benefits administered by Veterans Administration: Dependency and indemnity compensation; compensation for service-connected disability or death; pension for non-service connection disability or death; Medal of Honor pension; insurance (Eligibility or ineligibility is determined by agency administering the benefit); vocational rehabilitation; educational assistance (including flight training and apprentice training.); war orphans' educational assistance; home and other loans; medical and dental services; hospitalization and domiciliary care; prosthetic appliances; guide dogs and equipment for blindness; special housing; automobiles; funeral and burial expenses; and burial flag.

Benefits administered by other federal agencies: Preference for farm loans (Department of Agriculture); preference for farm and other rural housing loans (Department of agriculture); civil service preference (Civil Service Commission); Civil Service Retirement Credit (Civil Service Commission); reemployment rights (Department of Labor); job counseling and employment placement (Department of Labor); unemployment compensation for ex-servicemen (Department of Labor); naturalization benefits (Department of Justice Immigration and Naturalization Service); and old age and disability insurance (Social Security Administration).

The judge says

It's tax and tags for auto owners

USAIC LEGAL ASSISTANCE OFFICE—Georgia's new five-year auto license tags are now on sale at the county tag office located in the Muscogee County Courthouse basement.

The new license tags are reflectorized metal with blue letters and numbers on a off-white background. This year the new license plates will cost 50 cents less than last year's tags; however, ad valorem taxes on motor vehicles is still required to be paid by all vehicle owners except non-resident servicemen.

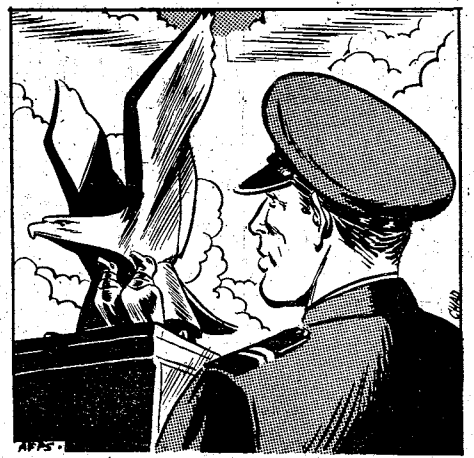
The five-year tags must be renewed annually with the county name decal affixed to the lower front of the plate each year and the annual validating date sticker to be placed in the upper right hand corner of the tag beginning in 1972.

In Georgia, tax day for ad valorem purposes is Jan. 1; all personal property owned on that day by a resident of the state is subject to taxation and the tax must be paid by April 1 or a penalty of 10 per cent can be imposed. The ad valorem tax on vehicles is paid at the same time that tags are purchased.

Servicemen who are not legal residents of Georgia can obtain tags even though they are not subject to the tax. Similarly, a person is exempt from the ad valorem tax on a vehicle that he did not own on Jan. 1 even though the person applying for the tags is a Georgia resident.

If a person, including servicemen, purchases a vehicle that does not have current registration and tags, the purchaser should insure either that the seller is exempt from the ad valorem tax because he is a nonresident servicemen or that the seller pay the tax prior to finalization of the sale. Although the new purchaser is not personally liable for the ad valorem tax, if the seller who is liable cannot be found, the tax will attach to the vehicle itself and the vehicle can be sold to satisfy the tax.

It also should be stressed that only nonresident servicemen are exempt from the ad valorem tax on vehicles in Georgia as of Jan. 1; dependents of servicemen who own vehicles in Georgia on the tax day will have to pay ad valorem tax at the time they obtain tags.



To be exempt from the ad valorem tax in Georgia, nonresident servicemen should have the title to their vehicle either in their name or in the name of himself and his wife. When the serviceman is stationed overseas and the wife remains in Georgia the wife can prove she is the serviceman's lawful dependent or use a power of attorney from her husband to obtain the tags without paying the ad valorem taxes.

Military personnel assigned to Fort Benning who are not legal residents of Georgia may purchase Georgia automobile license tags without payment of ad valorem taxes. The same is true for automobiles owned by servicemen now stationed overseas who are not legal residents of Georgia (Application may be made by someone holding power of attorney from or the authorized dependent of the absent serviceman.).

For those desiring to purchase tags in Muscogee County, the following procedure has been established:

Affidavit forms may be secured from the Legal Assistance Office (Building 2610) or from brigade legal offices. Affidavits for persons holding power of attorney or the authorized dependent or absent serviceman can be secured from the Legal Assistance Office or Room 1 of the Muscogee County Courthouse.

The tax office will accept personal checks drawn on any local bank as well as local charge cards for payment of tag fees.

Honor codes give 'feeling of pride'

Codes of honor are as traditional to military life as arms and discipline; military honor codes date back through history to the time of Sparta and beyond. All are similar, and vary only in wording and degree.

The United States Air Force—albeit the most junior of our military services—has a brief, explicit, all-encompassing Honor Code, to which all cadets attending the Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs, Colo., subscribe: "We will not lie, steal, or cheat, nor tolerate among us anyone who does."

As the cadets themselves have noted: "The code is not based on a series of tricky definitions, but rather on a spirit of mutual respect and trust. There is a feeling of pride which comes from living in an environment based on such principles."

It should not be construed that strict adherence to such a code is easy; it isn't. Loyalty to the code must, by its very application, come before consideration of friendship toward an individual who may stand as a threat to established high standards of integrity. Such dedication requires intense moral courage on the part of cadets who have sworn to abide by the code.

Of course, the U.S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., and the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y., have similar codes of honor. And like all practical honor code, they, too, require a man to put honor above self at all times; therein lies the difference between the word of an honorable man and the shallow outlook of an individual who takes the matter of honor lightly.

Such honor, self-discipline and integrity is the least we can expect of our military and civilian leaders—not only today, but throughout their careers as public servants as well.

Likewise, honor is not just something for the other fellow to live by—we should all strive to make it a vital part of our everyday lives.

Most of all, we must never lose sight of what Honor really is: Honor is a most precious virtue and should not be tampered with; like virginity, once lost it can never be regained. (AFPS Editorial)

Chaplains to conduct ecumenical week here

The Christian chaplains at Fort Benning will conduct a Special Prayer Week for Christian Unity and Understanding from this Sunday until next.

This ecumenical project will be carried out at all worship services conducted by Protestant and Catholic chaplains on both Sundays under the joint sponsorship of the Infantry Center Chaplain, Chaplain (Col.) Albert F. Ledebuhr, and the Deputy Center Chaplain, Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Francis J. Dolan.

Special sermons, prayers and hymns will be offered by the chaplains and their congregations to help bring about better understanding and to foster Christian unity. The members of the Catholic and Protestant Women of the Chapel as well as members of other organizations of the laity of Fort Benning will participate prominently in the Week of Prayer.

Co-project officers for this religious observance are the two chaplains serving the major Catholic and Protestant congregations of the post. Chaplain (Maj.) Charles J. Bindner, Main Post Catholic Chapel, and Chaplain (Capt.) Loren D. Pugh, the Infantry Center Chapel, have arranged special services of prayer and study for the evenings of Monday, Wednesday, and next Friday.

The services to be held these nights at 7:30 p.m. in the Infantry Center Chapel Annex will feature special prayers and hymns for unity as well as the presentation and discussion of selected topics designed to create better information and mutual understanding of each others beliefs and religious practices. After each presentation there will be a question and answer period.

On Monday evening Chaplain Dolan's topic will be "The Liturgy-The Mass-The Catholic Form of Worship." After this Chaplain (Maj.) Chester R. Steffey, of the 197th Infantry Brigade and a Baptist chaplain will speak on the subject, "A Survey of Protestant Theology."

Wednesday evening Chaplain (Capt.) Richard H. Holley, an Episcopalian chaplain, will speak on "The Reformation: A Protestant View." "What Catholics Believe About the Blessed Mother and the Saints" will be presented by Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Louis J. Vande Castle of The Student Brigade and Sightseeing Road Chapel.

The final two topics in this series will be presented next Friday. Chaplain Bindner's topic will be "The Sacraments: A Catholic View." After this Chaplain Pugh will speak on the "Historical Roots of Denominationalism." Chaplain Pugh is a Presbyterian.

Special choral music will be presented each evening by various chapel choirs including the group of teenagers who play guitars and sing at the Folk Mass held every Sunday at 5 p.m. in the Main Post Catholic Chapel.

Gen. Talbott presents check

Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander, has presented a check for $75,000 to representatives of United Givers as the post's contribution to the U.G. Fund raising campaign in Columbus.

Receiving the check in the ceremony in Gen. Talbott's office were Charles E. Daley, U.G. president and president of the 4th National Bank of Columbus, and Jake Riley, U.G. fund campaign chairman and chairman of the board of the Gas-Light Company of Columbus.

Chaplain qualifies as jumpmaster

Pathfinder, 500-miler and now master jumper. The School Brigade's diversely qualified chaplain has added another to his list of achievements.

Chaplain (Capt.) Thomas Fraker, a Protestant chaplain with the 4th Student Battalion, was awarded his master jumper wings recently by his battalion commander, Lt. Col. Raymond McClean. In order to qualify for the award, Chaplain Fraker had to qualify as a jumpmaster, then make at least 65 jumps, 25 of them simulated combat jumps.

Chaplain Fraker says that "about 50" chaplains have qualified for the wings of a master jumper, but no others have carried the Pathfinder badge, an earlier achievement of his. The Airborne chaplain spent a year in Vietnam with the 1st Bn., 505th Inf., 82nd Abn. Div.

A firm believer in physical fitness, Chaplain Fraker can often be seen running with the men assigned to the 4th Bn. He is scheduled to receive his 500-miler award in the Run For Your Life program.

USAMTU to hold seminar for police

The U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit at Fort Benning will conduct a two-day training session and seminar for local law enforcement officers Monday and Tuesday, it was announced by Col. Robert M. Piper, Marksmanship Unit commander.

The two-day affair will be attended by representatives from the Columbus and Phenix City police forces and the Russell and Muscogee County sheriff's departments. The law officers have their own training facilities and instructors but wish to supplement this with the expertise offered by the Marksmanship Unit.

The first day will be devoted to pistol marksmanship techniques and will be held on Phillips Range. MSgt. Laurence K. Mosely of the Pistol Division will conduct the briefings and teach the rudiments of handgun marksmanship. The fundamental of trigger control, sight alignment and the arc of movement will be discussed. Following the action of the range, the days activities will be terminated with a panel discussion.

On the second day, the law officers will be offered some of the finer points in service and shotgun shooting. These specialties will be conducted by Maj. Willis L. Powell and Capt. Kennedy D. Gilbert. Powell will give advanced shooting techniques to include triangulation and position. Gilbert will conduct moving target exercises with shotgun.

The two-day briefing will afford the benefit of superior marksmanship techniques for the local law officers and will build closer community ties.

Exhange moved for remodeling of building

PX 1104, Bldg. 82, next to Theater 2, has moved into temporary facilities in two truck trailers.

The building itself is in the process of being completely remodeled. The temporary PX will be in limited operation for six weeks, during which no civilian clothing will be sold, or magazines and spray paint. All non-necessity items will be discontinued during this time.

The only other limitations on service will be that only a maximum of 15 people will be allowed inside the trailer at one time.

There still will be beverages and some foodstuffs available, and until construction work blocks off the outdoor patio, it will be available for use.

Radio program wins award for Info Office

A Veteran's Day radio program, specially produced by the Information Office at Fort Benning, has been selected as the top radio production in the U.S. Continental Army Command (CONARC) for 1970.

CONARC now has entered "A Salute to the American Veteran" in the Keith L. Ware Competition for Army newspapers and radio-TV programs sponsored by the Department of the Army.

The 20-minute program, prepared by the Information Office's Radio-TV Section, paid tribute to the American veteran from World War I thourgh Vietnam. "A Salute to the American Veteran" was aired over WRBL Radio in Columbus on Nov. 11 and then entered in the CONARC competition. It was judged over all other radio entries from CONARC as the best on the basis of support of Army information objectives, adherence to journalistic standards and use as an instrument of command.

The program was based on a CONARC Veteran's Day speech, the theme of which was: "For those who fight for it, life has a special flavor the protected will never know." The script, combined with music of World War I, World War II and Vietnam, was a tribute to American servicemen and women. The program was narrated by former Army specialist Joe Stanosch, who was then a member of the Radio-TV section.

Surgeon general to visit

Lt. Gen. Hal B. Jennings Jr., surgeon general of the Army, will be at Fort Benning Jan. 21-24 for a tour of the post's medical facilities and to speak at a meeting of the Armed Forces Management Association on Jan. 21.

Gen. Jennings was commanding officer of Martin Army Hospital from 1964 until 1968.

In 1968 he was assigned to the Republic of Vietnam, where he was promoted to brigadier general and served as command surgeon, U.S. Military Assistance Command, and later as surgeon, U.S. Army Vietnam, and commanding general 44th Medical Brigade.

He was sworn in as deputy surgeon general of the Army in July 1969 and was nominated for promotion to lieutenant general and as the next surgeon general of the Army. He assumed his present duties on Oct. 1, 1969.

'Sky queens' to ride the airways as customs marshals

Women's lib strikes again as women take to the air as "sky marshals" both on the ground and in the air, guarding the nation's airways.

Under the new program women as well as men are eligible to apply for positions as Customs Security Officers in the Civil Service "Sky Marshal" program.

If you're interested in flying and you're nearing the end of your military service, you may be eligible for a 90-day early out — if you're interested and can qualify for sky marshal duty.

The Defense Department will cooperate with the Treasury and Transportation Departments in a priority effort to recruit 2,100 Customs Security Officers-sky marshals — according to a message to the Secretaries of the Military Departments and the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff from Assistant Secretary of Defense for Manpower and Reserve Affairs Roger T. Kelley.

Sky Marshals will be responsible to deter smuggling and pilferage and detect and prevent criminal acts both at airports and in flight on U.S. flag commercial aircraft. The marshals will be based at key "gateway" airports, officials noted, and will spend two out of every three months flying.

In his message Mr. Kelley noted that President Nixon has requested that a permanent force of security personnel be recruited and trained with the next six months.

Personnel who are due for separation from active duty in the near future and who are interested in working as sky marshals should request to be administered an appropriate Civil Service examination — either the Federal Service Entrance Examination (FSEE) or Junior Federal Assistant (JFA) examination, depending on education and experience. All military installations have project officers who will assist applicants.

Sky marshals will be hired under the high-priority program as GS-4, GS-5 or GS-7 Customs Security Officers, with annual starting salaries of $5,053, $6,548 and $8,096 respectively. High salary rates will be paid to personnel assigned to the New York city and Newark, N. J. metropolitan areas.

Because of the nature of air security duties, long air flights will provide ample opportunity for paid overtime, spokesmen noted, and accommodations in foreign countries will be paid on an actual expense basis up to $40 per day.

It was noted that the Bureau of Customs will recruit from sources other than the Defense Department as well. Applications will be processed on a first-come, first-serve basis, and applicants can apply whether stationed in the United States or overseas.

General qualifications require that a sky marshal be a U.S. citizen, at least 21 years of age, in excellent physical condition, be able to pass an appropriate Civil Service examination, be able to pass a Bureau of Customs psychological test and oral interview, pass a background investigation, have no serious police record, possess a military record meeting standards for honorable discharge, and successfully complete four weeks of training.

General physical requirements include no history of fainting or epilepsy, eyesight in the range of 20-40 to 20-70 but correctable to 20-20, free from marked deformities, free range of motion in all limbs, no missing fingers or toes, and no varicose veins.

Promotion opportunities for security officers extend to grade GS-9, with further opportunities for supervisory positions and for advancement to special agent or to other Customs technical positions.

Women shooters to tour, lecture on marksmanship

In an effort to promote enthusiasm and interest in marksmanship among the Womens Army Corps within the 3rd Army area, the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit (USAMTU) at Fort Benning is sending a team to nearby Army posts to appear before WACs, it was announced today by Col. Robert M. Piper, commander of USAMTU.

Representing the Marksmanship Unit as members of the team include Maj. Sallie Carroll and SSgt. Barbara J. Hile, both shooter and instructors of the International Pistol Section.

Both women have won national and international honors in marksmanship competition in what is often thought to be a "man's world."

The all-ladies team commenced their tour at Fort Benning where they appeared before members of the local WAC company Jan. 14.

In their promotion program, Maj. Carroll and Sgt. Hile will be giving talks to various WAC companies within Georgia and Alabama. Maj. Carroll and Sgt. Hile will be explaining the pressure of marksmanship shooting and some of the marksmanship advantages plus the thrill of receiving national and international recognition.

The Marksmanship Team will appear before WAC contingents at Fort Rucker, Ala., Jan. 27, Fort McPherson, Georgia on Feb. 2-4 and will then travel to Fort McClellan, Ala., for an engagement Feb. 10 and 11.

At each appearance the team will set up a display of weapons used in their marksmanship accomplishments. In handguns, these will include the .45 pistol, air pistol, .22 standard pistol, free pistol and rapid fire pistol. Rifles on display will include the international standard rifle, free rifle, M-14 and shotguns used in international competition.

In addition to the display the ladies will also show their many national and international medals and trophies won in marksmanship competition. Maj. Carroll established six new national woman's pistol records during the past year, including victories in air pistol, .22 standard pistol and the ladies center fire events at the 10th U.S. International Championships.

As a member of the U.S. International Shooting Team, she represented the U.S. in the 40th World Shooting Championships in Phoenix, Arizona in Oct. 1970 in which she won the first gold medal for the United States in firing a 372 to become the Ladies Air Pistol World Champion.

Sgt. Hile won the Individual Silver Medal in International Center Fire Pistol competition at the Phoenix meet. She was also a member of the U.S. International Shooting Team and as a member of the U.S. Ladies team won Gold, Silver and Bronze medals in three events.

Besides stimulating interest in marksmanship among the fairer sex, the Marksmanship Team hopes to present the opportunities that the marksmanship program offers.

Wives' clubs schedule

January meet, luncheon

The next meeting of the 197th Inf. Bde. Protestant Women of the Chapel (PWOC) will be held 9:30 a.m. Jan. 27 at the Kelley Hill Chapel.

The program will be highlighted by a talk by Mrs. Ruth Holmes of Columbus, Mrs. Holmes will speak on her experiences in teaching English classes to non-readers and non-English-speaking aliens.

Free baby-sitting will be provided at the chapel for the 9:30 a.m. affair, according to Mrs. Brown.

Medical Department Activity Officers' Wives Club will hold their next luncheon Jan. 20 at the Supper Club. Sherry hour begins at noon, followed by lunch.

Honored guest will be Mrs. Hal B. Jennings, wife of Lt. Gen. Jennings, surgeon general, Department of Army.

For reservations, call Mrs. Julian Coggin, telephone 689-5171, before noon, Jan. 15. Cancellations will be taken up until noon, Jan. 18.

Winter brings festivities to wives' clubs activities

Christmas arrived early for the ladies of the 1st Bn. (Mech.), 58th Inf. ("Patriots"). Fancily-wrapped Christmas gifts were exchanged at the Patriot Wives monthly coffee. The coffee was held at the home of Mrs. Martin Leatherman. Cohostess for the festive event was Mrs. David Gillespie.

Farewells were bid to Mrs. Brigham Shuler and Mrs. William Rader. Mrs. Duane Powers, Mrs. Bruce Scott and Mrs. Michael Guthrie were warmly welcomed into the battalion.

"Winter Wonderland" was the theme as the ladies of The School Brigade held their monthly luncheon Jan. 8 in the Supper Club. Hostesses for the event were the ladies of the 4th Stu. Bn. (Airborne).

Decorators for the luncheon followed the winter theme with the centerpiece for the head table consisting of a skating and skiing scene made of marshmallow figures and green sugar trees, while the remaining tables were decorated with snowmen.

Mrs. Frank L. Garrison, wife of the brigade commander introduced the honored guest, Mrs. John T. Catley. The program included a presentation by Lt. Col. Gerald F. Wilson, special assistant to the commanding general, on the Fort Benning plan for the construction of the new Personnel Support Facility.

Posters to urge dental health

Dental Health Week at Fort Benning will be observed in a picturesque fashion this year—at least in the post's seven elementary schools.

Youngsters in grades three through eight will be participating in a poster-making contest and their subject will be Dental Health Week—to be held here Feb. 8-12.

Almost any type of artistic medium from watercolors to pen-and-ink drawings is eligible. All posters, however, must be the work of the individual child.

In addition, entries must not exceed 18 inches by 24 inches in size, not have any attachments such as toothbrushes or cartons and must have the name, grade, room number and school of its creator printed on the back. Brand names, stencils and commercial slogans cannot be used.

Contest deadline is Feb. 1.

Judging will be conducted at several levels. Art teachers and principals will choose the three best posters for each grade at their respective schools. These will be submitted to the post dental section, which will make the final selections.

First and second place winners from each school will be named, as well as a top entry from each grade, postwide. Prizes and ribbons will be awarded to the winners.

The criteria for judging will be originality and applicability to the topic.

New law makes legal overseas costs split

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AFPS) — President Richard Nixon has signed legislation that eases the anxiety which had surrounded military housing and cost of living allowances overseas.

The law amends Title 37, United States Code, and makes legal the existing system which divides overseas cost-of-living allowances into two parts, one for housing and another for other cost of living elements.

The legality of the interpretation of the wording in Title 37, USC, had been questioned by the comptroller general, although the system had been in force for nearly 12 years.

Defense officials point out that enactment of the legislation—now Public Law 91-486 — does not require an increase in appropriations for the Military Departments for the Military Departments in Fiscal Year 1971. It merely validates the present system of computation, since funds are included in the Defense budget for this purpose.

It was determined that the present system, which has been in effect since 1958, was logical and reasonable.

MISS PARKS AT ENTRANCE TO MAIN POST SERVICE CLUB — Miles Lowry

She helps soldies find 'a little bit of home' here

By Les Hauser

Most soldiers would consider two or three years a long tour of duty at an Army post. But Miss Madeline Parks, club director at the Main Post service club, has been serving the Army and Fort Benning since 1949 and is still able to say "I love it."

She began her service career in 1947 with the Red Cross in Okinawa. She came to Fort Benning in 1949 and has since spent her entire tour working with the Fort Benning service club program.

Miss Parks has seen many changes at Fort Benning during the last 21 years. Perhaps the one closest to her heart was the construction of the main post service club in 1964. She took over as club director in 1966.

Miss Parks is a strong supporter of Fort Benning. She feels that Benning facilities are "much ahead" of other Army posts. "We have so much more than 20 years ago. We now have $120,000 worth of furnishings and equipment. When I started out we had only $5,000 to work with."

As a club director, Miss Parks feels that the soldiers at Fort Benning are giving the service clubs adequate support. "If we didn't get their support we couldn't operate. But I don't think the soldiers take full advantage of the facilities. There's a number of soldiers who don't even know we're here and what we have to offer."

The average attendance at the main post service club is about 640 soldiers per day. But Miss Parks points out that "we definitely would like to see more troops at Fort Benning. As far as the comforts concerned, the more the merrier. After working at this kind of a job so long if you're not busy you're lonely."

Are the soldiers of today any different than those of 20 years ago? "Not really," said Miss Parks. "They still come to the service club looking for a little bit of home."

And the main post service club provides more activities than any private home possibly could. It has everything from popular music instruments to a complete record library and listening room. There are also a variety of games to suit everyone's tastes and television and reading rooms for those who prefer just relaxing.

"The soldier of today usually does not want planned activities," said Miss Parks. "He just wants the recreation equipment there so he can do his own thing. We try to have both planned and self-directed activities to suit everyone's mood."

Miss Parks occasionally gets suggestions from soldiers for additional services at the club. The most requested seem to be longer hours of operation and more dances. But according to Miss Parks "We also get many compliments from the soldiers on our facilities."

She often hears from soldier's who have either left Fort Benning or are out of the Army. "I wish I had time to answer all the cards I receive. I would say that 90 per cent of the soldiers I hear from wish they were back at Fort Benning. To me this is quite a compliment for Fort Benning."

Perhaps the crowning touch of Miss Park's 21 year tour at Fort Benning came in 1969 when the main post service club was awarded third place in the Department of the Army's world-wide competition, judging individual service clubs on overall excellence. The contest was held in observance of the 50 year anniversary of the Army Service Club program. The main post club also won second place in 3rd Army competition.

Unfortunately, Fort Benning is not destined to keep Miss Parks. She will soon be leaving to work in the Army's service club program in the Republic of Korea.

Libraries' books

Special Services libraries contain a variety of art books on art appreciation and books for home study. The following list is a sampling of the selected books available for self study in oil painting, drawing, and the use of a variety of synthetic media.

Ernest Fein. "Complete Guide to Oil Painting." A comprehensive text shows how to mix colors and compose a successful picture with brush and knife.

Jose Gutierrez. "Painting with Acrylics." Offers new methods on how to paint with revolutionary new plastic media. Illustrated by leading painters.

Norman Kent. "100 Watercolor Techniques." Contains 100 full color illustrations by 100 artists, each one describing methods, materials, and techniques.

Frederic Taubes. "Oil Painting for the Beginner." The author leads the readers by degrees through the steps necessary in their mastery in representation of such varied types of subject matter as still life, flowers, landscape and portrait.

Henry Pitz. "Ink Drawing Techniques." The book contains nearly 200 illustrations by pen and brush draftsmen. Illustrated by drawings, from the old masters to contemporaries.

Frederic Whitaker. "Guide to Painting Better Pictures." This is a handbook for the advanced amateur or student painter who already has learned basic painting techniques.

Ted Kautzky. "Ways with Watercolor." Shows how washes and strokes are used to direct effectly the important elements of most landscapes, from buildings, to rocks, to trees, to reflections.

Adrian Hill. "Sketching and Painting Out of Doors." The author invites the reader to come out of doors and explore the fun and delight which await pen and brush on every hand and how the pictures are built up.

Adrian Hill. "Sketching and Painting Indoors." A book dedicated to those whose health prevents them from going out of doors for their sketching and painting.

Pierre Seyern. "The Art of Painting, from the Baroque through Impressionism." A biographical anthology with the selection of 17th, 18th and 19th century artists' own writing on painting, their conceptions of art, their opinions of other artists, and their struggles for success.

Edmond J. Fitzgerald. "Charcoal and Oil." This book embarks upon an adventure in line and color. Its intention is to take the student or amateur artist through the enchanting realm of pictorial expression in charcoal and oil.

Major becomes chief of Allied Division

MAJ. J. W. FILION

Maj. Joffre W. Filion recently assumed the position of chief of the Allied Student Training Division (ASTD) after graduating from the Infantry Officer Advanced Course, Class 5-70.

A graduate of Michigan State University, Filion received his Army commission through the Reserve Officer Training Corps. He attended Infantry Officer Basic and Airborne training here at Fort Benning.

Filion said he has found his new job "to be unique in that it is a radical change from the type of job the Infantryman could expect in normal career development."

In defining the mission of ASTD, as he interpret it, Filion said ASTD's "primary job is to insure that allied students receive proper administrative handling in addition to satisfying as many other of their needs as possible while at Fort Benning."

He added that of equal importance is ASTD's secondary mission which is to provide an informational program to the allies, presenting a balanced picture of the political, social and economic aspects of life in the United States.

Filion has had assignments in both Europe and Vietnam. He is a graduate of flight school at Fort Wolters, Tex.

Record numbers visit Infantry Museum in '70

A record 29,285 people visited the U. S. Army Infantry Museum at Fort Benning during 1970, said museum curator John E. Hunter.

That is an increase of 8,673 over the 1969 total and brings attendance during the museum's 10-year existence to 155,218 visitors. Also during 1970, donations to the museum increased 98 per cent, from 862 to 1,484.

Hunter attributed the increases to new signs in Columbus and on Fort Benning which direct visitors to the museum and to interest generated by the campaign to build a new Infantry Museum at Fort Benning.

The present museum, a temporary home for 12,000 artifacts and 200,000 books, documents and photographs, is located three blocks south of Fort Benning's main post theater in Building 1234.

Academy graduates J. C. Powell

Sgt. James C. Powell, Co. B, Headquarters Command, was chosen the runner-up top graduate of his class at the 3rd U.S. Army Noncommissioned Officer Academy in Fort McClellan, Ala.

Powell works in the computer section of Central Ration Distribution. He entered the Army in June 1968 and served with Troop Command and Long Binh, Vietnam, from November 1968 to November 1969.

SSgt. Michael J. Bridges, Co. A, 782nd Maint. Bn., 82nd Abne. Div., Fort Bragg, N.C., was the honor graduate and leadership award winner of the class.

Women Voters seek members

The League of Women Voters is continuing its efforts to organize a chapter in the Metropolitan Columbus area, reports Mrs. Marvin O. Fuller Jr., temporary chairman.

Membership coffees will be held 8 p.m. Jan. 18 and 10 a.m. Jan. 19 in the auditorium of the Gas Light Building on 4th Avenue in Columbus. Board members from around the state will be present to answer questions and assist in the conduct of the meetings. There will also be a display table of voter education materials prepared by the League.

A cordial invitation is extended to Columbus and Fort Benning women to attend either of these coffees. Further information concerning the League may be obtained by calling Mrs. Fuller at 563-2696 after 6:00 P.M.

VA records programs' effectiveness during 1970

The Veterans Administration has taken stock of its operations in 1970, noting gains in many of its programs — including a record 1,025,000 trainees in its various education programs in November.

Donald E. Johnson, administrator of veterans affairs, said that about 971,000 of the trainees participated under the G.I. Bill, a 32 per cent increase over the figure for November 1969.

The remainder trained under the vocational rehabilitation and dependents' educational assistance programs.

Among the 1970 education program highlights, Johnson cited the 30.6 per cent increase in educational payments veterans, servicemen and dependents now receive as a result of PL 91-219. VA paid more than $1.2 billion in educational benefits in 1970 to trainees under the G.I. Bill.

Other developments: The number of vocational rehabilitation trainees rose to 19,000, the highest level since 1956; VA paid veterans to attend elementary school, under the current G.I. Bill for the first time; and the agency inaugurated special education programs for veterans and servicemen such as tutorial assistance and PREP, the Predischarge Education Program for servicemen.

VA also began on-the-job training programs in such areas of public service as nursing assistants and wastewater treatment plant operators.

Similar programs are planned in education, recreation and welfare.

Compensation and Pension

One of the significant developments in VA's compensation and pension program stems from a new concept of Dependency and Indemnity Compensation which became effective in 1970. Compensation is now based solely on the pay grade of the veteran, and 160,000 widows of veterans whose deaths were caused by service-connected disabilities benefitted from the change.

Also, 2.4 million veterans received increases of from eight to 12 per cent in compensation benefits. Another 1.6 million veterans and survivors will receive pension increases averaging between nine and 10 per cent as the result of a bill signed into law Dec. 24.

Loan Program

Some 175,000 veterans bought homes during the year with VA loans. The maximum interest rate on VA loans was lowered to eight per cent on Dec. 2, an action which should place housing within reach of more young veterans returning from Vietnam.

The Veterans' Housing Act of 1970 is expected to have a "significant impact" on the agency's loan operations.

One of the law's provisions revives unused, expired loan guaranty eligibility for nearly 9 million World War II and Korean Conflict veterans. Another eliminates the 0.5 per cent funding fee formerly required on loans to post-Korean conflict veterans.

Another authorizes direct VA loans for certain seriously disabled veterans eligible for grants for specially adapted housing in areas where such loans ordinarily are not made.

A provision which has stirred considerable interest is the law's creation of a loan guaranty and direct loan program for veterans and servicemen interested in buying mobile homes.

Insurance Activities

VA in 1970 administered programs for 5.5 million policyholders with coverage valued at $37.5 billion, while paying out $417.8 million in death claims.

Servicemen's Group Life Insurance (SGLI) insured 3.2 million servicemen on active duty during the year at a combined face value coverage of $48.5 billion. About $135.7 million in death claims was paid out. This insurance is supervised by VA, and administered by nearly 600 private insurance companies.

In 1970, VA paid out $264 million in dividends — the largest regular dividend in history — to veterans of World Wars I and II. Also individual SGLI coverage was increased from $10,000 to $15,000 maximum per member, and SGLI was extended to cover reservists while performing duty. In addition, veterans were saved about $9.6 million annually through reduced premiums on two segments of National Service Life (World War II) type insurance.

"Outreach" Efforts

VA intensified its "outreach" activities in 1970 to inform the nation's veterans and servicemen about VA benefits.

This included spreading "the word" to some 1,017,000 servicemen in Vietnam and at 300 separation points in the U.S.A.

Hospital Patients

The year 1970 saw the number of veterans treated in VA hospitals rise by nearly 19,000 over the 1969 total to more than 798,000. This represents an all-time high in the treatment of patients as the agency continued to improve its medical techniques and facilities.

Veteran Population

While VA went about its operations, the population of the nation's veterans rose during 1970 from 27.3 million to almost 28 million by the end of the year.

Voice of VOLAR

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This feature will provide information about recent changes and proposals being made under the "Benning Plan" for a Modern Volunteer Army—VOLAR.)

CHANGES MADE

- You are no longer required to wear qualification patches on your fatigue uniforms. Required items are the "U.S. Army tape, name tape, unit patch, rank and branch insignia.
- If you are on late-night duty and are granted compensatory time—or are off-duty for some other reason—you will not be wakened for early-morning clean-up.
- Shuttle bus service has been improved, making it easier to get from remote areas to Main Post facilities such as the Post Exchange.
- Commanders now will give soldiers a half-day off on payday or immediately after payday to take care of personal affairs.

PROPOSALS

- Civilians now are being hired to take over garbage pickup duties on post. Target date for complete change to a civilian operation is early next month.
- The Post Exchange will open a Fabric Shop, probably late this month, as a move toward a wider range of services.

Sprint intercepts ICBM target

WASHINGTON (ANF) — An Army sprint missile has been successfully fired from Kwajalein Missile Range in the Pacific and has intercepted an ICBM target nose cone launched from California 4,200 miles away. The firing and intercept, which marked the first time a sprint has been used against an actual target, occurred Dec. 23.

The U.S. Army is responsible for building, testing and firing the sprint in conjunction with the safeguard program.

The Dec. 23 firing was a system test, during which the missile site radar and its associated data processor were used as well as the interceptor missile.

Neither the sprint nor the target nose cone carried explosive warheads. The intercept was verified by range instrumentation which indicated the sprint's second stage passed close enough to the target to have destroyed it with an operational nuclear warhead.

The recent test occurred more than four months after a successful first intercept test by the Spartan missile, Safeguard's other interceptor. Unlike the Spartan, which has a range of several hundred miles to intercepts targets in space, the sprint intercepts the nose cone within the atmosphere.

4 civilians recognized for service to board

Four civilian employes of the United States Army Infantry Board were recognized in a ceremony held Jan. 7 in the office of Col. Charles B. Thomas, president of the board.

Those cited in the ceremony were Mrs. Ruth C. Burroughs, a clerk-stenographer with the Operations Branch; Mrs. Hazel N. Waterhouse, a clerk-stenographer with the Small Arms Test Branch, Clarence Willis Jr., purchasing agent with the Logistics and Test Support Division, and James A. Sudderth, equipment specialist with the Methodology and Instrumentation Branch.

Mrs. Waterhouse received a Letter of Commendation for her outstanding performance of duty with the Small Arms Test Branch from September 1970. She has served with the board for three years.

Willis also received a Letter of Commendation for his service to the board as purchasing agent from October 1969 to October 1970. While in that capacity, he was responsible for seeing that all supply demands and requirements were met. He has been with the board for one year.

Mrs. Burroughs received a Certificate of Service for having completed 20 years of federal service, while Sudderth was cited for 10 years of federal service.

J. D. Brock honored graduate

Sp4 Jeffery D. Brock was named the distinguished honor graduate of the Track Vehicle Mechanic's Course in ceremonies Monday at Marshall Auditorium.

The guest speaker at the commencement exercise was Maj. Robert L. Webster, Command Maintenance Department, USAIS.

The seven-week mechanic's course provides personnel with a working knowledge to perform organizational maintenance and recovery of tracked vehicles.

Included among the course of instruction are engine principles, valve adjustments, cooling and lubricating systems, carburetion and fuel injection.

The 35 graduating students were assigned to the 15th Co. 1st Bn., TSB.

Stimulants' use is curtailed

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—Purchases of amphetamine and other appetite-depressant drugs in the Army Medical Department declined 50 per cent in 1970, according to the Army's Office of the Surgeon General.

Spokesmen reported that Army hospital commanders have tightened restrictions on the dispensing of anorexics (appetite-reducing drugs). Some commanders have prohibited their use altogether, and have allowed only psychiatrists and neurologists to prescribe amphetamines.

AWOL streamers

Eleven companies of the 197th Infantry Brigade were presented "Zero AWOL" streamers at a recent brigade command retreat ceremony. The companies were presented the streamers by the brigade commander, Col. Willard Latham, for not having an AWOL during November. The presentation marked the first time that an entire battalion received the award. All four companies of the 4th Bn., 68th Armor, received the streamer. Other companies not having any AWOLs were HHC, 197th Inf. Bde; HHC and Co. B, 1st Bn., 29th Inf.; Co. D, 5th Bn., 31st Inf.; HHC 1st Bn., 58th Inf.; HHD, 197th Spt. Bn.; and Co. A, 197th Spt. Bn.

Auto Grant may be increased

ATLANTA — A bill now awaiting the President's signature will increase considerably the amount of money allowed a handicapped veteran for the purchase of an automobile.

Pete Wheeler, Georgia veterans service director, said, "The bill raises the Auto Grant from the current $1,800 to $2,800, and while the grant is made only one time for the purchase of a car, the legislation also authorizes the VA to replace and maintain any special adaptive equipment required on the car to make it safely-operative by the handicapped veteran." Wheeler added that this includes repairs, replacement and re-installation of such adaptive equipment on any automobile the veteran might own in the future.

Asked about eligibility requirements, Wheeler said, "Presently, veterans of World War II, the Korean War, or those who served after Jan. 31, 1955, and who suffered the loss of or permanent loss of use of one or both hands or feet, or permanent visual impairment to a prescribed degree as a result of a service-incurred disability, are eligible for the grant.

"The bill now on the President's desk, however, will extend this benefit to any person who is on full-time active duty in the Armed Forces and who is suffering from any of the aforementioned disabilities, providing that the disability stems from service during the prescribed period."

This marks the first time that there has ever been an increase in the automobile allowance. The Auto Grant has been $1,500 since its inception after World War II," said Wheeler, "and at that time probably would have purchased an automobile but as we all know prices have jumped tremendously over the years. I am very pleased that the Congress approved the new legislation."

Now you can schedule household goods visit

The Transportation Office of Fort Benning started off the new year with a new program designed to save the time and improve the service of its customers.

Now a serviceman can make an appointment for any hour or half-hour from 9 to 3 p.m. any workday to see a household goods counselor to handle any business concerning counseling, entitlements and shipping personal property. Just call 545-4822, 1423 or 4615 for an appointment.

This is a test program designed to provide an easy way for the serviceman to get the counseling he needs when he needs it. The advance appointment also allows a serviceman's wife to be present for the meeting at the Transportation Office since prior arrangements can be made for the care of the children.

At first, only 12 customers a day can be handled under the appointment system. It is anticipated that 40 per cent of the Household Goods Section's customers eventually can be handled under the appointment system.

The appointment system allows commanders and section chiefs to schedule their men on a definite basis. There should be no waiting since this is a firm appointment. The only uncertainty is how long the customer's business will take.

The program should be most helpful to the family awaiting orders for a change of station. After a talk with an experienced transportation counselor, a soldier can make some realistic plans for the move.

Servicemen with little time to conduct their business can be assured of quick service within their time limit.

The appointment system does not affect customers who come to the Transportation Office without an appointment, nor does it affect the Household Goods Section's "Early Bird" service.

Under the Early Bird program, any serviceman coming to the Transportation Office before 8:15 a.m. any work day receives service immediately.

Customers without appointments will continue to be handled on a first-come, first-serve basis. This usually involves a 30-45 minute wait.

Many veterans to get increase in pensions

Increased payments averaging between 9 and 10 per cent for approximately 1.6 million veterans and survivors on the Veterans Administration pension rolls are provided in a bill signed into law by the President on Dec. 24.

The bill, VA reported, also raised income limitations that determine if, and how much, VA pensions can be awarded to disabled veterans, and widows and children of deceased veterans.

A VA pension is paid for disabilities and deaths not due to military service.

The new law was designed to avoid a drop in income for those "current law" pensioners whose Social Security increased during 1970 and who would have had veterans pension benefits reduced beginning Jan. 1.

An increase in benefits also was given to parents receiving dependency and indemnity compensation (DIC).

The income limit controlling the receipt of pension was increased by $300 for both "protected" and "current law" pensioners, as well as parents receiving DIC.

Increases of 10 per cent also were authorized for veterans on the current law pension rolls entitled to aid and attendance, as well as for widows receiving death compensation, DIC or current law pension. The housebound rate for veterans entitled under the current pension law also was increased by 10 per cent.

The new law also removes the requirement for persons age 72 or older who have been in receipt of VA benefits for five consecutive years to file annual income questionnaires although they are still required to report changes in income or net worth. This provision applies to income reports to be filed at the end of 1971.

Five additional exclusions from the counting of income for current law pensioners also have been provided. These are:

—Payments from Servicemen's Group Life Insurance;

—Amounts equal to a prepayment on a secured debt on real property, the principal residence of veteran or spouse during the year of death or the year following;

—Amounts in joint bank accounts;

—Payments received by retired employe from a former employer as reimbursement for Social Security supplementary medical premiums;

—Certain payments from the military retired family protection plan.

The exclusion applying to the military retired family protection plan also now applies to DIC parents.

Who will be promoted to E6?

During the month of January, commanders will be promoting those individuals in promotable MOSs who held recommended list status to pay grade E6 as of November 30 and whose qualitative standing (point score) is the same or higher than that required by the Department of the Army.

Due to cut backs in Army strength, the Army-wide system employed by DA in distributing these allocations was contingent upon Army-wide E6 requirements by three digit MOS and point scores of individuals holding recommended list status.

The 621 quotas are prorated against each MOS in which Army-wide requirements exist. In other words, those MOS in which the greatest Army-wide shortages exist will receive proportionately larger shares of the total allocation.

For example, the fair share for MOS 11B is 93. In order to promote the 93 best qualified E5s in this MOS on an Army-wide basis a promotion point cutoff score of 651 was determined from the consolidated reporting formats submitted by commanders. This means that during the month of January all individuals with a point score of 651 or higher who hold recommended list status to grade E6 in MOS 11B as of November and are skill in a promotable status will be promoted to grade E6 regardless of unit of assignment.

Similar procedures were followed for other MOSs with varying cutoff point scores. The fact that no cutoff scores were announced for various MOSs meant that those MOSs were either at strength or over strength for the time frame considered.

CUTOFF SCORE

801 or higher: Promoted regardless of MOS.

Army Guard, Reserve to wear service stripes

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Army national guardsmen and reserve soldiers are now eligible to wear service stripes on their uniforms just like active duty personnel.

Enlisted guardsmen and Army reserve personnel are authorized to wear one service stripe for each three years of satisfactory active duty or active reserve service. A stripe is also authorized for a combination of three years active and reserve service.

These stripes will be of the same design and color as those now worn by active Army personnel.

Army regulations 670-5 and 670-30 have been amended to permit service stripe wear by enlisted personnel of the Army, Army National Guard and Army Reserve who have served honorably in active federal service as commissioned officers, warrant officers, or soldiers in the Army, Navy, Air Force or Marine Corps.

Sp5 Ronald H. Leese and Sp5 Anthony M. Fritchett, Aviation Section mechanics for the 831st Engineer Group, prepare an OH-13S observation helicopter for flight. The helicopter they are working on has flown a total of 7,090 hours and there is a proposal that it be retired to the aviation museum at Fort Rucker, Ala. The section maintains 33 rotary-wing aircraft as it has operational control of all flight observation helicopters assigned to subordinate units of the USAIC Aviation Command.

AF to set up ROTC units

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Air Force will establish AFROTC units at 13 colleges and universities and will upgrade two others to full detachment status, it has been announced.

Air Force officials said the new units are being established "to counteract the possibility of declining officer production due to the disestablishment or scheduled disestablishment of 20 AFROTC units during the last 20 months."

The schools selected for AFROTC upgrading to detachment status are Southern Illinois University, Edwardsville, Ill., and the University of Puerto Rico.

The new units may be in operation by the 1971-72 school year, officials said.

Magazine's 50th anniversary

What's happening? 'Infantry' always tells it likes it is

By Les Hauser

"Hey man, Tell it like it is!" He wants to know "what's happening" without any punches being pulled. He's young, brave, and most of all, curious. He realizes that being well informed could mean the difference between life and death. He's the Army Infantryman.

But who would expect a 50-year-old to "tell it like it is?" That's the idea behind Fort Benning's "Infantry" Magazine, 50 years young this month.

Infantry has served as the pulse of the Infantryman since its inception in 1921, three years after the Infantry School came to Fort Benning. It has evolved from a single pamphlet published in 1921 titled "Tactical Problems" which was distributed to units of the Regular Army, National Guard and Organized Reserve, to a world-wide bimonthly magazine which handles such topics as drug abuse, race relations and battlefield tactics.

Infantry is by no means the typical military publication. It is made up of articles written by Infantrymen for Infantrymen.

Its articles reflect all viewpoints, regardless of an author's status in the military, and often suggest improvements in tactics and doctrine.

"The magazine is our concept and nothing more. Today's commander wants an up-to-date viable product which is worth something and that is what we feel our magazine is," said a member of the Infantry editorial staff.

This progressive forum has been shared by some very notable military figures over the years. Articles have been published by Capt. George E. Wear, Lt. Col. Albert O. Connor, Lt. Col. Bruce Palmer Jr., Maj. James M. Gibson, Maj. John T. Carley and Lt. Col. Sidney B. Berry, all of whom are now general officers.

Infantry's current editor, Lt. Col. Robert Orkand, feels the largest readership of the magazine is what he terms the "post-graduate" Infantryman. "There are many Infantrymen, both officers and NCO's, who have completed their last course at Fort Benning and won't be coming back. A publication such as Infantry helps keep them informed of what's going on at Benning and the Infantry School, as well as the rest of the Army."

But this does not tell the whole story of the magazine. In the 50th anniversary issue, Orkand emphasized the goal of Infantry: "It is our mission to serve as a voice of informed communication among Infantrymen of all ranks."

This is best shown by the past year's circulation of over 100,000 copies during six printings, the magazine's most prosperous year. Infantry has recently published a number of articles by junior NCO's.

The current 50th anniversary issue runs the entire gamut of the Infantry, with the Commandant's Notes written by Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, commandant of the Infantry School, to an article written by a member of a Colorado National Guard Unit, PFC Lawrence Tuite, on basic combat training.

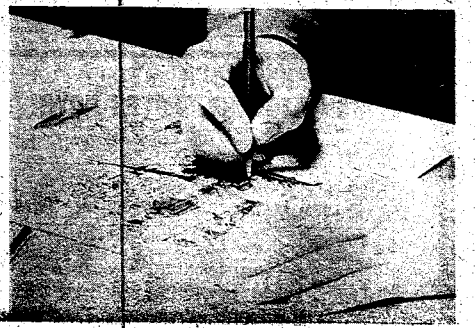
As part of the magazine's "informed communication," Infantry normally breaks a story on changes in Infantry doctrine and practice as much as six months before general release. This has been recently shown in articles on the improved physical proficiency test, instinctive bayonet training and a number of experimental weapons developments.

The magazine's "new" approach to the Infantry is also portrayed in the award-winning art work which adds a dimension to Infantry found in few other magazines. In September of 1970, Infantry was presented the "Creativity 70" award by Art Directions Magazine for the cover of its July-Aug. issue. This is the second time the magazine has won the award.

The majority of the authors who contribute to Infantry are combat experienced, making it as up to date and relevant as possible. "We want to stay abreast of what's happening in both the Army and the Infantry, and we want to pass this information along to the military community," Orkand said.

But in spite of the many changes which have occurred in its 50-year history, it has remained extremely close to its initial goal as outlined in a pamphlet of the 1931 mailing list, "the dissemination of military instruction and the stimulation of thought on military subjects."

Orkand stated that "We'd still like to think that Infantry's articles stimulate discussion and inquiry in dayrooms, classrooms, tactical operations centers and orderly rooms." It is this stimulation and dynamic introspection of the infantryman, which keeps Infantry in the forefront of military publications.



A fiftieth anniversary issue of Fort Benning's Infantry Magazine is placed in a mailing envelope to be sent to one of approximately 18,000 subscribers.

Spc Richard Shermer, editorial assistant mulls over one of the many manuscripts which are submitted to Infantry for publication each month.

Mrs. Brenda Tomlin, assistant Business manager for Infantry Magazine, is framed in the stacks of the current 50th anniversary issue of Infantry. Approximately 18,000 issues are mailed every month from the Fort Benning office.

The talented hands of an illustrator put the finishing touches on an illustration which appeared in a recent issue of the magazine.

'Much Ado About Nothing'

National Shakespeare Co. to perform at Baker High

The National Shakespeare Company is scheduled to perform "Much Ado About Nothing" Jan. 30 at 8 p.m.

The performance is sponsored by the Baker High School English Club and will be presented in the Baker auditorium.

In 1963, the National Shakespeare Company received its non-profit charter from the state of New York. In successive seasons, the company has achieved an enviable position in the theatrical world, not only for "thoroughly professional, handsomely costumed" productions, but also as one of the nation's few self-sustaining non-profit performing arts organizations.

The NSC's only grant to date has been from the National Endowment for its Cubiculo, an experimental arts center in New York City which opened in Dec. 1968. Through the Cubiculo Festival Series, new performance opportunities in dance, film, poetry, drama and mixed media are available to educational institutions, community arts councils and other organizations across the country, giving young artists new performance opportunities as well.

The production will bring to Baker one of Shakespeare's finest comic creations. With the invention of Beatrice and Benedict and Dogberry and Veges, Shakespeare brings together in one play the intellectual wit of drawing room comedy and the slapstick humor of Abbott and Costello. The witty bantering of Benedict and Beatrice in the ageless battle of the sexes is in striking contrast to the ever popular bumbling low comedy of Dogberry and his merry train. Dogberry has taken his place among the immortals of broad comedy, for he is the prototype of the conventional but ever-amusing fumbling stage policeman, a character still in high favor on movie and television screens.

Mario Siletti of The Metropolitan Opera has once again been chosen to stage the production.

Tickets will be available at Baker at $1.50 for students and $2.50 for adults.

Musical '1776' comes to Columbus Thurs.

On Thursday, at 8:30 p.m. the Three Arts League will present its second attraction at the Three Arts Theatre at 1020 Talbotton Rd.

"1776" opened in New York to rave reviews, winning both the N.Y. Drama Critics' Circle Award and the Tony Award for Best Musical. John Kerr of the N.Y. Daily News termed "1776" a magnificently staged and stunningly original musical.

Mail orders for tickets are now being accepted by the Three Arts in Columbus or may be purchased at a special box office opening Jan. 18 in Three Arts headquarters in the Rankin House, 1440 Second Ave. Call 323-5511 for information.

Because of the demand for single tickets for this performance, season ticket holders who cannot use their ticket are asked to notify Three Arts so that their seats may be resold for this event.

Once upon a time, not so long ago, there was a female reporter (WAC) who wrote a column known as The Southern Way.

This column was the WAC's weekly way of informing the public of upcoming events and not-so-far-away places to visit.

Now, in order to inform the public of exciting ways to spend their leisure time, she deemed it necessary to personally try each new tension outlet, if the circumstances permitted.

Therefore, one gray, dismal and sunny Sunday, while participating in a relatively new and breathtaking sport, the Clumsy WAC broke (officially termed "crushed") her ankle and found a way of receiving a free helicopter ride to Martin Army Hospital for an extended stay.

With pins in ankle, and pen in hand, I once again bring you The Southern Way. Thank you for your patience.

Columbus College Faculty Recital

At this writing it appears that many of you are trying to find ways to relax following the hectic, holidays and the fast-paced way of life they bring about.

Columbus College is offering a pleasant diversion, a Faculty Recital, Sunday at 3 p.m. at the Fine Arts Hall.

The recital is a progarm of Chamber music, music played by a small ensemble, under the direction of Mrs. Natalie Kruger.

Included in the program are a sonata with Mrs. Kruger on the flute and Sgt. Robert Everett (stationed at Fort Benning) on the harpsicord, a stringed musical instrument with a keyboard, forerunner of the piano.

Then a small ensemble will perform a serenade by Beethoven followed by a flute and piano duet.

Somewhat unsual is the string base and flute duet called Seven Miscellaneous. Concluding the program is a Flute Choir with a total of 13 flutes.

Mrs. Kruger teaches the flute at Columbus College and is also with the Columbus Symphony Orchestra, which her husband directs. She received her master's degree from New England Conservatory of Music.

The recital is open to the public and everyone is welcome.

Synopsis

THERE WAS A CROOKED MAN (Rated R) — Four-time Academy Award winner Joe Mankiewicz is the producer and the director of "THERE WAS A CROOKED MAN . . .", starring Kirk Douglas, Henry Fonda, Hume Cronyn, Warren Oates, Burgess Meredith, Lee Grant and promising newcomer Michael Blodgett. Douglas plays a convict in an 1880-era territorial prison who tempts Fonda, the prison warden, with a stolen $500,000 for a chance to escape. Two years waiting . . . Two men wanting . . . One man winning add to the excitement a bloody riot, a massive territorial prison escape and you have a compelling Western Drama that ends with an ironic twist.

A MAN CALLED HORSE (Rated GP) — Richard Harris is "A MAN CALLED HORSE," an English Lord who has turned away from the aristocratic society of 1825. He is captured by Sioux Indians while on a hunting trip in the American West, and made a beast of burden, undergoing enormous mental and physical pressures to prove his manhood in their savage culture. The Englishman, late of the Royal Household Guards, wins warrior status, and finally becomes a Chief.

MEDIUM COOL (Rated R) — Is a powerful and impassioned story of a blase TV cameraman, covering the 1968 Democratic National Convention in Chicago. The action is totally relevant, realistic and often shocking in its exposure of the horror and turmoil of contemporary events. Robert Forster, as John the cameraman, gives a gripping performance of a man who approaches and then achieves commitment to his work and self-awareness.

KELLY'S HEROES (Rated GP) — In a wild melee behind German lines in World War II, Kelly (Clint Eastwood) and Gutkowski (Dick Davalos) capture Colonel Emil Dankhopf and bring him to the American area for interrogation. Kelly gets the prisoner drunk and he finds gold bars in the colonel's briefcase. Kelly also learns that the German's have 14,000 more in a small bank within their lines. Big Joe (Telly Savalas), the outfit's sergeant, Crapgame (Don Rickles), a Sgt. Bilko type with an IBM mind for schemes and Oddball (Donald Sutherland), a tank company hippie type, join forces with Kelly and the group attempts to steal the $20 million gold shipment from behind the enemy lines. Never have so few taken so many for so much.

THE CROSS AND THE SWITCHBLADE (Rated GP) — is the true story of David Wilkerson (Pat Boone), a country preacher, who dedicates himself to helping teenagers lost in a savage "gang world" and imprisoned by their drug addictions. Undeterred by his initial failure to penetrate this underworld, his determination is finally rewarded after some shocking-and occasionally humorous-encounters. Today, 28 TEEN CHALLENGE centers are a testimonial to his effectiveness, and the movie tells Reverend Wilkerson's story with convincing honesty. To the teenagers death was the only door to the hell that trapped them until the preacher showed them love.

VA commitments help improve 166 hospitals

The Veterans Administration committed some $72.4 million for modernization and construction at many of its 166 hospitals, Donald E. Johnson declared today in reviewing 1970 accomplishments in the Veterans Administration which he heads.

Johnson said that construction projects also included eight intensive care units with a total of 145 beds for those patients requiring more than normal care. Another project involved the construction of a 24-bed spinal cord injury unit at the VA hospital in Houston.

The VA hospital system is the largest in the nation and had an average daily patient load of 64,000 in 1970. More than 5,000 doctors and 15,000 nurses administer to the needs of veterans and their dependents.

Ring of rocks

The rings of the planet Saturn — which are believed to be made up of countless miniscule moonlets — stretch over a distance of some 59,000 miles, but range in thickness from a few thousand feet to possibly only 10 inches. Astronomers believe the moonlets are ice-coated rocks or cylinders grinding against each other as they wheel around the huge planet's equator.

Record dividends to be paid

The Veterans Administration has announced that a record $275 million in dividends will be paid in 1971 to more than 4.1 million veterans holding World War I and World War II insurance policies.

Donald E. Johnson, administrator of veterans affairs, said the higher dividends are possible because of increased interest earning of the National Service Life Insurance (NSLI) and United States Government Life Insurance (USGLI) trust funds.

He noted that dividends totalling $255 million and averaging about $64 apiece will go to about 4 million veterans with NSLI (World War II) policies.

The 163,400 veterans with USGLI (World War I) policies will receive $20 million in dividends, averaging about $122 apiece. All dividends will be paid in 1971 on the anniversary dates of the policies, Johnson said.

The VA administrator stressed that since payment of dividends will be automatic, veterans need not write to the VA to receive payment. Veterans who have instructed VA to retain their dividends will receive appropriate statements, he advised.

In 1970, more than 4,191,000 veterans with NSLI and USGLI policies received $264 million in dividends. Those with USGLI policies averaged more than $115 apiece, while those with NSLI policies averaged nearly $61.

Johnson explained that the amount of dividend a veteran receives depends on such factors as the plan of insurance, age of the insured, age of the policy and its face value.

Area scouts aid March of Dimes drive

Nine area scouts volunteered to help canvass for the charity last weekend.

Eight of the scouts were from Troop 276, and the ninth plans to join the troop soon. The scouts were volunteers, offering their time after March of Dimes officials contacted their scoutmaster.

Scoutmaster James Dixon, who works in the Command Maintenance Department of the Infantry School, praised the volunteers for their efforts. Working in the Oakland Park area of south Columbus, the scouts collected about $40.

"The scouts will receive certificates of appreciation from the March of Dimes and credit toward a merit badge," said Dixon.

Did the scouts have any trouble?

"Only in one small way," Dixon said. "They kept running into pretty girls who seemed to be getting all the business. Finally they had to hold aa meeting and establish boundaries."

Keep emergency data current

Emergencies hurt in so many ways. One manner in which you can reduce the number of ways is to keep your Record of Emergency Data (DA form 41) up-to-date.

This record shows many pieces of information that will help avoid additional hardship and complications for your loved ones at a time when they are least able to cope with them.

Among the items of information on the emergency data form are the person entitled to notification in case of emergency; qualified relatives to receive death gratuity; the beneficiary for pay and allowances due at time of death; and life insurance companies involved, including the Veterans Administration if you have U.S. Government life insurance.

The Record of Emergency Data contains important information which will have widespread effect on your survivors in the event of death. Keep it current. It will mean a lot to those who mean a lot to you.

For additional information on emergency data and other subjects, ask your personnel officer for copy of "Your Personal Affairs Handbook," DA Pamphlet 608-2. It's chock full of helpful information. (ANF)

Barracudas make winning waves in junior swim world

By Bill Kloeb

When we think of barracudas we think of hungry, vicious fish bent on doing away with any living thing unfortunate enough to trespass into their domain.

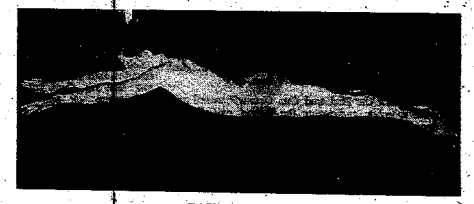
CAPT. PRATT
Gives Sideline Encouragement

The dependents who make up the post swimming club using that name are anything but that, but opponents who have met the Barracudas in swimming competition may feel that the name is appropriate when it comes to taking medals and ribbons during aquatic meets in the southeastern states.

The Barracuda Swim Club, sponsored by the Fort Benning Youth Activities Club, is made up of military dependent boys and girls from ages eight to seventeen.

The group participaths in Amateur Athletic Union aquatic events scheduled throughout the southeastern states. It is divided into age categories for boys and girls to eliminate mismatching and provide an equal opportunity for all competitors. The age groups are 8 and under, 9-10, 11-12, 13-14 and 15-17.

Last year the group entered teams in events staged at, Savannah, Ga., St. Simons, Ga., Montgomery, Ala., Pensacola, Fla., Moultrie, Ga., Gainesville, Fla., and Atlanta, and provided the site for the Georgia AU Junior Olympic Championships during which team members Kathy Huber and Robert Kenyon won honors.



This month the group will enter teams in the Georgia 100 Invitational at Atlanta and the Pensacola Invitational Meet at Scenic Hills, Fla. Meets at other Georgia, Alabama and Florida locations are in the planning stages.

Support for the team comes from parents and military personnel interested in the promotion of swimming among junior athletes. Team composition and coaching personnel change rapidly. Capt. Frank Pratt, a former captain of the United States Military Academy Swim Team, and 1st Lt. Michael E. Gaillard, an outstanding junior AAU swimmer, are the present coaches of the team. Pratt will be transferred from the post next month leaving one important position to be filled.

The "Parents Council" which operates under the guidance of both coaches consists of Lt. Col. James Hunt, president; Mrs. Harry Borden, vice president; Mrs. Robert Kenyon, secretary-treasurer and Mrs. Raymond H. Robinson, director of publicity.

The 24 girls and 14 boys who are members of the club at this time are: Linda, Michele and Paul Borden, Annette Chapmen, Kim Dillon, Carolyn, Jennifer, Kathy, Mary and Scott Hanson, Angel Hunt, Chris and Janet Ioanidis, Jackie and Robert Kenyon, David Kite, Greg and Wayne Kuehn, Cantey and Kathy Livingston.

Also Randy Messer, Teresa Milton, John and Marilyn Misiak, Jean Murray, Jimmy, John and Norma Nixon, Nancy Phillips, Mindy and Roxane Robinson, Cissy and Sam Schneider, Lynn Shaver, Richard Stoltz, Chris Natral, Mike Wheaton, Sharon Wright and Lori Meril.

Co. C claims 1st Bn. B-ball trophy

By Bob Wise

The 1st Bn., 58th Inf. became the first battalion in the 197th Inf. Bde. to determine a champion in company-level basketball.

In a see-saw battle Jan. 6, Co. C stifled a last-minute rally by HHC to take the battalion trophy with an 81-78 win.

The outcome was in doubt until the final few minutes when Mike Peterson, HHC's leading rebounder, fouled out enabling Co. C to control the boards and hold on to its slim lead.

Gary Roberts led HHC scorers with 17 points. Maurice Wallace and Calvin Williford scored 22 and 17 points, respectively, for the victors.

The six battalion champions in the brigade will compete in a double-elimination play-off in February to decide the teams to represent the brigade in the post tournament.

HHC, 1st Bn., 29th Inf., appeared to be leading that battalion with a 6-1 record. Gene Johnson and Bill Ross combined for 34 points leading HHC to a 59-58 victory over Co. B. Only one other game was played last week in the 1st Bn., 29th Inf., as Co. B took a 33-29 decision over the combined teams of Co. C and Co. A.

The 5th Bn., 31st Inf. came closer to deciding a champion as they fitted in six games last week. On top with a 5-0 record was HHC, after it defeated Co. B, Co. A and Co. D. HHC was followed by Co. E with a 1-0 record and Co. D with a 2-2 record.

In the 2nd Bn., 10th Arty., the soldiers of HHS Btry., suffered their first loss at the hands of the combined team of Btrys. D and E and the 182d Chemical Platoon (DEI83). The HHS soldier's record dropped to 4-1 on the DE183 67-35 victory. In other 2nd Bn., 10th Arty. games, A Btry. forfeited to B Btry., the soldiers of HHS beat B Btry., 47-43, and C Btry. squeaked by the officers of HHS Btry., 41-39.

The Bearcubs of Co. A, 197th Support Bn., were leading the three other teams in that battalion after last week's action. The Bearcubs increased their season record to 5-0 by ravaging Co. D, 91st Engineers, 67-29. Also in the Support Bn. playoff, Co. D beat the HHC, 197th Inf. Bde., and 72nd Engr. Co. combination, 45-38.

Rifle, pistol teams picked for Center shooting tourney

Major units have completed battalion level rifle and pistol matches to select teams to compete in the United States Army Infantry Center (USAIC) rifle and pistol matches to be held at Parks International and Phillips Ranges Jan. 27-29 and Feb. 1-5.

The 197th Infantry Brigade, the Student Brigade, 931st Engineer Group, Headquarters Command, Medical Department Activities and USAIC Aviation Command will enter teams in the matches. Each major unit will enter one team for each assigned battalion or composite organizations approximating battalion strength.

Top shooters in the USAIC matches will be selected to compete in The Third U.S. Army matches to be held in April.

Local schools slate rifle matches

The Muscogee County School District Junior ROTC Group will conduct the Army Area Interscholastic Smallbore Rifle Matches on school ranges Jan. 19 through 21.

Teams from Baker, Carver, Columbus, Hardaway, Jordan, Kendrick and Spencer High Schools are eligible to compete.

The Columbus-Phoenix City-Fort Benning Chapter of the Association of the United States Army will present a plaque to the high school firing the highest score and medals to the high firer from each school. The Reserve Officers Association will also present a medal and certificate to the high firer in the school district.

Scored targets from this match will be forwarded to Headquarters 3rd U.S. Army to be judged in competition with other schools and districts in the 3rd Army area.

ROD AND GUN CLUB Notes

By Bill Kloeb

The Rod and Gun Club will present prizes to the winners of the 1970-1971 deer hunting contest at the Rod and Gun Club this evening at 7 p.m. A shotgun will be presented to the hunters taking the largest deer and the deer with the largest rack.

A third shotgun will go to the junior hunter bagging the largest deer and a fourth to one of the hunters who registered a deer of any type during the season. The winner of the fourth gun will be determined by draw on the evening of the presentations. Ridley Bell, station manager of WRBL will make the presentations. Additional prizes will be given to members of the club. Come on out and swap hunting stories with your buddies.

Fishing Derby Leaders

There hasn't been too much activity in the Rod and Gun Fishing Derby, but the fish that have been registered have all been of respectable size. Capt. Frank Shaw, Dental Section leads the catfish contest. His entry came from Kings Pond, weighed 8-pounds, 15-ounces and was caught on a dead shiner.

The largest bass registered so far this month belonged to MSgt. (Ret.) Wallace C. Thornell, 3009 Ormand Drive. His prize came from Kings Pond, weighed 5-pounds, 4-ounces and hit a bomber lure.

Each month the Rod and Gun Club will award prizes to the member registering the largest catfish, bass and bream. This month the prizes are $15 merchandise orders.

Cold Weather Fishing

At this time of the year, many fishermen give up the sport for some more comfortable pastime that will take them from the cold of the outdoors. It's really a shame because the fish don't stop biting during the cold weather. They do become a bit more sluggish and move less when the water temperature gets lower as the winter progresses, but the truth of the matter is that some of the largest strings and largest fish caught in this area have been taken during January and February, the coldest months of the year.

During the cold months, techniques have to be changed a little. Movement of baits and lures must be slowed down to be compatible with the slower movement of the fish.

Different kinds of baits and lures, in keeping with the season of the year should also be considered. A popping bug bouncing along on the surface would be hard to believe if a fish were to see it. In all probability he won't see it because he's moved to one of the deeper holes to enjoy the water that is still relatively warm from the summer months.

During the cold weather months all the fish seek the warmest water they can find. They spend much of their time in deep water, but some find the warm water they are looking for at the points where streams enter the pond or lake. Any movement of the water will have a warming effect so other good spots—not necessarily in the deepest parts—are at the location of underwater springs.

Knowing the topography under the body of water you are fishing is more important during the cold months than it is during the summer. A depth finder is a handy but not necessary aid. If you don't want to spend the money for one of those gadgets, pick one or two ponds to fish and limit your efforts to a small area that you can get to know well. Knowing what goes on at the bottom of a pond will also pay off in your fishing next summer.

Dress Warm

If you decide that you are going to be one of the hardy ones who prefer the outdoors to the armchair and TV set you want to be dressed for the cold blustery weather you'll encounter. This isn't really a big problem these days. The main thing to take into consideration when planning your clothes are that the temperatures in these parts are not really low. The wind and the humidity are the factors that make a body uncomfortable.

Another thing to consider is that the temperature may change 20 to 30 degrees from dawn to midday. The best clothing plan will use the layer system with a close-knit layer to break the wind. Don't forget some kind of headgear that will cover your ears and plan on two pairs of gloves because they will get wet handling wet tackle and fish.

197th captures two more victories

By Bob Wise

The 197th Infantry Brigade basketball team took an 8-1 season record into its final game of the first half of the regular season Wednesday after soundly defeating the Headquarters Command (Hq. Cmd.), Jan. 6, and the center Aviation Command (CAC), Jan. 11.

The 197th was in a first-place tie with The School Brigade (TSB). A play-off game tonight at Briant Wells Field House will decide which team is to be crowned champion of the season's first half.

The second half of the basketball season begins Monday.

Operating on an eight-game winning streak, the 197th is a slight favorite in tonight's cage battle. The 197th has won its last three contests by at least a 33-point margin.

Showing both its offensive and defensive power Jan. 6, the 197th whipped the Hq. Cmd., 110-75, at the Kelley Hill Field House.

The brigade grabbed a quick 6-0 lead and two minutes into the game led, 10-2. The Hq. Cmd. points had come on two free throws. The Hq. Cmd. did not bucket its first field goal until 30 second later.

The 197th caused the outmanned Hq. Cmd. to commit a number of turnovers keeping its scoring to a minimum. The Hq. Cmd. could only manage two field goals during the first nine minutes of the game.

Hq. Cmd. called a time out with about nine minutes left in the first half when guard Ron Brow lost a contact lense on the court. At that point, the 197th was enjoying a 31-16 lead.

At the 6:21 mark, with the score 43-18, the 197th put in its reserves to give the starters a rest. From that point until the end of the half, the determined Hq. Cmd. outscored the 197th, 15-13. At the half, the 197th was leading, 56-33.

The Hq. Cmd. came out in the second half with more control and matched the Infantry Brigade in scoring for the first six minutes of the final 20 minutes. In the following seven minutes, however, the 197th pulled steadily away from Hq. Cmd. to a 90-57 margin, finally winning by 35 points.

197th guard Don Campbell put in perhaps his best performance of the season scoring 23 points and causing nearly a dozen turnovers. Campbell was followed by Slim Ingram in scoring. Ingram finished with 18 points and 10 rebounds.

Will Brockington and Maurice Travers each finished with 11 rebounds and 14 points. John Black led both teams on the backboards with 14 rebounds, but scored only 11 points, which was well below his season average.

The Hq. Cmd. was led by player-coach Frank Martel and center George Robinson, both with 19 points. Robinson led his team in rebounds with 13. His statistics may have been even more impressive had it not been for this fouling out with three-and-a-half minutes left in the game.

Two other Hq. Cmd. players finished in double scoring figures. Lee Turner came in with 12 points, and Ron Brow finished with 10 points.

CAC played the first five minutes of the game at full speed staying within two points of the 197th. For a while it appeared that the 197th had met its match, but a sudden turn of events found the Infantry Brigade on top 15-9 at the 14:45 mark.

At the 7:37 mark, the 197th was enjoying a 12-point lead and continued to stretch out the margin to a 53-27 half-time score.

CAC played a convincing game for the first five minutes of the second half, outscoring the 197th, 17-8, but never managed to come closer than 16 points of the rampant Infantrymen.

The 197th's overwhelming control of the offensive boards gave CAC little chance to continue its comeback.

Unofficially, the 197th out-rebounded CAC, 65-42. Will Brockington of the 197th led all players with 18 rebounds.

Another factor contributing to CAC's losing cause was its committing of 26 turnovers, compared to 19 turnovers committed by the 197th.

Three of CAC's starters fouled out during the final seven-and-a-half minutes of the game, further crushing the hopes of an aviation rally.

The game's high scorer was CAC forward Mike Beckelhimer finishing with 30 points. Only two other CAC scorers ended up in double figures. Orson Thomas and Bill Rhea had 11 points each. Leading CAC rebounder was Charlie Brown with 10 backglass grabs.

Gun Club to present awards

The Fort Berming Rod and Gun Club will present prizes to the winners of the 1970-1971 deer hunting contest at the Rod and Gun Club at 7 p.m. today.

A shotgun will be presented to hunters taking the largest deer and the deer with the largest rack. A third shotgun will go to the junior hunter bagging the largest deer and a fourth to one of the hunters who registered a deer of any type during the season.

The winner of the fourth gun will be determined by draw on the evening of the presentations.

Ridley Bell, station manager of WRBL will make the presentations. Other prizes will be presented for members of the club.

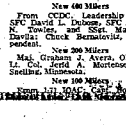
Shapely change

Carol Imhof, a Playboy playmate of the month, likes change—whether it's in what she does, the way she looks or the way she thinks. Brown-haired, brown-eyed Carol was the first runner-up in the 1970 Bunny of the Year contest and is currently a Bunny at the flagship Playboy Club in her hometown, Chicago. When she's not charming members at the hutch, comely Carol works at spare-time modeling, which she eventually would like to turn into a full-time career. (Photo Courtesy Playboy)

Baker sweeps matches in ROTC rifle competition

The Baker High School Junior ROTC Rifle Team compiled a record of six wins and no losses to place first in the second annual Superintendent's Trophy Matches held at school rifle ranges.



Teams from Carver, Columbus, Hardaway, Kendrick, Jordan and Spencer High Schools also competed in the matches.

The Hardaway team placed second with a record of four wins and two losses suffered in competition with Baker and Columbus teams. The Columbus riflemen who finished the scheduled matches in a three-way tie with Jordan, and Spencer won a shoot off to claim third place.

Cadet Capt. Ralph Ghent; the 1970 individual state champion from Hardaway posted an aggregate score of 1564 points to win high individual honors. Ghent's teammate Steve Burts shot a 1544 total to take second place. Two Baker shooters, Bob Aultman and Bob Walsh, finished third and fourth with scores of 1541 and 1540.

Aultman, Walsh, Robert Lyons, William Burts and Ken Holmes make up the Baker team. MSgt. Eddie Sundie, senior military instructor is team coach.

Roller Derby comes to Columbus

That rumbling sound of rolling wheels you hear gathering in the distance is not the 5:09 roaring through town on its way to receivership.

Streamlined, fast-paced and very much solvent, it's the Roller Derby wheeling into the Columbus Municipal Auditorium at 8 p.m. tonight on just one leg of its 180-stop, 30,000-mile national road tour. The Oakland Bay Bombers are slated to face the Midwest Pioneers in a match that is expected to attract a record local turnout. Tickets are on sale at the boxoffice for $3 and $4.

By controlled, private syndication, 120 stations now telecast the skate-sport's video battles on a weekly basis to nearly 30-million viewers. Game attendance has soared during the last decade. A single-game record of 30,000 was set last July 4th at Oakland's Coliseum Stadium. San Francisco Bay Area attendance outstripped baseball, football, basketball and ice hockey during 1970.

Now a feature-length non-fiction movie has been made about the sport and its close identification with the newly discovered "Middle America." Aptly titled "Derby," it follows the efforts of a young tire worker in Dayton, Ohio, named Mike Snell, to get into the banked-track sport.

Filmed in cenima-verite style, "Derby" drew rave reviews at its debut at the San Francisco International Film Festival in October and has been compared with Joe and Midnight Cowboy for stark realism. If only those 30-million T.V. viewers turn out at the local movie house it could still rate as the year's box office smash!

T. V. viewers of Derby's banked-track battles rate Miss Weston as the best-known female athlete in the land today. At 5-feet, 10-inches and a well distributed 150 lbs., it's no wonder the press has dubbed the Bomber distaff captain as the skate-game's "Golden Girl."

As a measure of her performance, Weston has perennially made the All-Star roster since 1956 — an unmatched record. If fan popularity can be judged by volume of mail and gifts, then she is the "odds-on" favorite. Voted "Roller Derby Queen" four times, Weston also rated as the league's Most Valuable Player in 1961 and 1968.

First pilot duties for the Los Angeles beauty came in 1960 when the Chicago Weterners — now Midwest Pioneers. In five seasons with San Francisco Weston's efforts produced three Rookies-of-the-Year and placed five skaters (other than herself) on the All-Star roster.

Weston joined Roller Derby in 1954 out of Mount St. Mary's College in Southern California, where she excelled as an all-round athlete. Her current hobbies include travel (an absolute necessity in the Derby's hectic world), surfing and her pet dog Malia — named after the canoe with which she won Hawaii's 1962 outrigger championship.

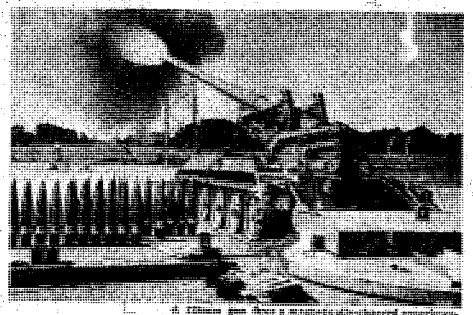
The oxygen extractor is the special concern of CDC's Medical Service Agency at Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., which also is working on the concept of the "non-doctor."

He will be a highly trained technician, perhaps a warrant officer in rank, who will sort, evaluate and treat minor cases thus freeing the physician for the more involved cases. This is similar to the role envisioned for the "associate" doctor in modern medical practice.

Other developments at Medical Service, one of CDC's 17 combat arms or service "skill pools," include a method of producing prescription spectacles in the field from powdered plastic and a process to develop special contact lenses for use in the combat zone.

In addition to work on a field-oriented diagnostic examination and recording system the agency also is refining the concept of the 200-bed Combat Support Hospital to replace the one commonly called MASH - Mobile Army Surgical Hospital.

"Our principal objective," said Col. Robert P. Campbell, medical service agency commander for CDC, and veteran of 29 years of Army service, "is to get the patient and physician together at the proper place and time, with appropriate equipment and drugs, to insure restoration of health."



USMA Prep School accepting applications

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Applications are now being accepted by the U.S. Military Academy Preparatory School (USMAPS) for academic year 1971-72 which begins in August.

USMAPS prepares enlisted candidates for regular Army and enlisted reserve appointments to the United States Military Academy. From last year's class, 196 of 241 enlisted graduates gained admittance to the United States Military Academy. Enrollment for the next school year will be approximately 300.

Soldiers selected for the preparatory school attend in an active duty status. The course lasts approximately 10 months with primary academic emphasis on English and mathematics. Leadership development also is stressed.

Additional information may be obtained by consulting AR 351-12 or by writing the Commandant, USMA Preparatory School, Ft. Belvoir, Va. 22060. Applications should reach USMAPS before June 30.

Rabbits may multiply protein content of Viet cuisine

BEARCAT, Vietnam — Can rabbits be part of the answer to the difficult problem of supplementing the diet of the average Vietnamese villager? If the answer is yes, the residents of Nhon Trach District, 30 miles southeast of Saigon, will be the first to benefit from that knowledge.

The possibility of supplementing the Vietnamese diet of rice with a solid protein food (rabbit in this case) is being examined by the Nhon Trach Senior Advisor and the Civic Actions Team of the 222nd Combat Aviation Battalion (CAB) at Bearcat.

Civic action personnel of the battalion explain that poultry and fish are presently the chief sources of protein in Vietnam. The fish are randomly caught from ponds and waterways; the poultry are domestic and are raised by the residents.

Due to the nature of poultry production, it is usually a costly and inefficient means of food production for the small producer. Such production depends on imported feed grains, fish meal and vitamins—expensive items for the villagers' limited budgets.

Rabbits, introduced to Southeast Asia by the French but not often eaten by native residents, can be fed on excess products of rice production (chaff), grasses, fruits and other such items abundantly found in the natural environment.

How did the idea of experimenting with rabbit production in the Nhon Trach District come about?

"You might say the Vietnamese brought the idea to us," relates 1st Lt. David MacLeod, the civic actions officer for the 222nd CAB.

"A farmer in one of the hamlets near here has a pair of rabbits and three offspring. He asked the district chief and district advisor for help in increasing rabbit production," he added.

The battalion civic actions team then accompanied David Moran, deputy district advisor, to observe the unit and give what assistance they could.

It was after their first visit that they decided to use those rabbits as a pilot project in Vietnamese rabbit production.

Spc4 Joseph Atkins and Kenneth Johnson, who made up the remainder of the civic actions team, explained some of the procedures employed to increase production.

"We're adding protein to their diet and giving them ready access to salt and water," Johnson said.

Also included in the experimentations is the "breeding-in" of a new strain in an attempt to nullify characteristic faults. Atkins and Johnson obtained an additional pair of rabbits from a missionary at Ho Nai Refugee Hospital and added them to the project.

Information on rabbit husbandry, diseases and management has been supplied by a 4-H County Extension Agent in Roseburg, Oregon, near Johnson's hometown of Glide. Veterinary assistance is being supplied by the 4th Veterinary Detachment in Long Binh.

If rabbits can be efficiently and effectively produced, then they must be introduced to the villagers as a beneficial foodstuff. Having the villagers conduct their own experiments is one way of spreading such information.

MacLeod says that whether the project is a success or failure, it typifies the coordination being developed between the Vietnamese and the Americans as they strive to provide a better life for the people of a war-torn country.

MP agency studies use of non-lethal munitions

FT. BELVOIR, Va. (AFPS)—Concern for the public's welfare during civil disturbances is leading the Military Police Agency of the Army's Combat Developments Command (CDC) deep into the study of non-lethal munitions for disturbance control.

This CDC agency at Ft. Gordon, Ga., has established the requirement that these munitions not burst, create fires, cause fragmentation injuries, or harm persons on contact.

Among the items being developed by the unique Army agency are non-toxic agent grenades with rubber cushioned bodies to prevent injury on contact. Also in their experiments are internal-burning munitions which greatly reduce the possibility of setting fires.

In addition, private industry also has presented a few innovations of its own. They include non-lethal munitions such as 12-gauge shotgun shells filled with polyethylene pellets and "bean bags" fired from a 40mm launcher.

There is also a .38 caliber pistol attachment, fired by a blank cartridge and ejecting a rubber ball at a velocity of 235 feet per second. All are designed to stop a person by impact, yet avoid inflicting serious injury.

While many of these suggestions have shortcomings which may hamper future use, both the Army and commercial enterprises continue their efforts to "humanize" the methods to bring civil disorders under control.

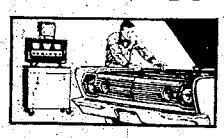
Aviators' status changed



WASHINGTON (ANS) — Army officers currently on flying status with more than 15 years' duty as aviators have been placed in an excused flying status. This procedure is similar to that practiced by the Air Force and the Navy.

Those excused will still be entitled to flight pay without meeting the minimum flying requirement of 80 hours a year. Officers in this category in non-aviation posts will be excused from combat-readiness flying, maintenance of instrument rating and completion of an annual written examination. These officers are only required to maintain Class II physical standards and complete annual flight physicals.

Officers serving in aviation positions are still required to meet the flying minimum specified in AR 95-1.

The action involves about 600 officers, and a substantial savings is expected through the reduction in flying time for flight pay qualification.

Some home employers must report earnings

Any person who pays a worker as much as $50 cash in a calendar quarter for services in a private home must report these earnings and pay the social security taxes, Robert E. O'Neal, social security district manager in Columbus, said.

Many employers, and also employes, do not realize this is a compulsory provision of the law. Many, in error, believe the coverage of work in a private home is voluntary, O'Neal pointed out.

Wages of $50 or more from any one employer during a calendar quarter are covered under social security and the employe receives the same credit on his social security earnings record as a person working in a business establishment. He obtains the same protection for himself and his dependents in case of retirement, death or disability. Therefore, it is important that employers of household workers report the wages paid to their employes.

For full information call 324-5461 or visit the social security office at 301-13th St., Columbus, Ga.

Heartworms can be fatal to dogs

By Capt. John M. Daniel Veterinarian

One of the more common causes of heart failure in dogs is the heartworm, "dirofilaria immitis." In the past, the heartworm was endemic to Atlantic and Gulf coast states. Now it can be found in dogs in practically every locality.

The adult heartworm lives inside the heart chambers causing an obstruction to blood flow and an interference to valvular function. The parasite may grow to a length of 14 inches and from 1 to 300 of these worms may be found within the heart of an infected dog.

The adult worms discharge microfilariae (immature forms of the worm) into the dogs' circulation. These are ingested by blood-sucking mosquitos and it is through the mosquito that the parasite is transmitted to other dogs.

The entire life cycle takes at least 6 to 8 months, including time for mosquito transmission, infection of new dogs, and maturation of the microfilarae into mature heartworms.

Although the dog is the primary host, other animals such as cats, foxes and raccoons may be infested.

Dogs with typical heartworm disease cough, fatigue easily, and appear rough and unthrifty. As a heart becomes progressively overworked, secondary complications such as pneumonia and hepatitis usually develop.

Diagnosis of heartworms is based on clinical symptoms and microscopic examination of a blood sample to detect microfilariae.

Once a diagnosis is established, drugs are available to kill the adult worms. However, the dead worms may act as emboli and obstruct the blood flow to vital tissue such as the lungs.

What can dog owners do to lessen the danger of heartworms? Since the disease is transmitted by mosquitos, the best method of prevention is to avoid exposure to the mosquito vector.

For dogs kept outdoors, screening the pens and kennel area helps to reduce the incidence of severity of infection. Dogs not continually exposed to mosquitos, such as housepets and dogs in screened pens, should be examined for the presence of microfilariae at 1 year of age and every 6 months thereafter.

For dogs continually exposed to the mosquito vector, drugs are available to administer on a daily or monthly basis. These do not kill the adult worms, but rather destroy the microfilariae before they mature to adults and cause heart damage.

The heartworm is prevelant around Fort Benning, like most of Georgia and Alabama. Pet owners should be aware that it exists, and that proper preventive measures will insure a healthier dog.

Chin gets much of the attention in helmet testing

By Bill Johnson

A product improvement test of three different helmet suspension systems presently is being conducted by the Field Equipment Test Branch of the United States Army Infantry Board, it was announced by Col. Charles B. Thomas, president of the board.

Maj. Robert W. Browning, test officer for the project, said the test is designed to determine if the suspension systems are superior to that of the standard helmet currently being used by the foot soldier.

"All three systems are alike in that they each have a chin cup and strap assembly, which is not characteristic of the standard helmet," the major said.

The major explained that both the ground and airborne models of each system are being tested. The difference in the two models is that the chin strap on the ground model snaps onto the chin while the chin strap on the airborne model has no snap and must be pulled over the nose and onto the chin when putting the helmet on.

"The reason for the difference in the two models is quite simple," Browning added. "When one jumps from an airplane, the impact caused by the opening of the chute is very great. If there were a snap on the chin strap of the jumper's helmet, the chances are the sudden jolt would cause the snap to come loose. As a result, the helmet would be detached from the head of the jumper."

Speaking of the three systems, Browning noted that System A is a standard helmet with the addition of the chin cup and strap. The chin strap is adjusted by the Velcro method (an adhesive cloth method), the same method used in the commonly called "Pyle Cap." The chin cup and suspension system cannot be removed from the helmet.

"System B," Browning said, "is characterized by foam rubber pads attached to the inside of the helmet lining, just as in a football helmet. The pads serve the dual purpose of cushions to absorb shock and also as sweat bands."

Browning said that the pads inside the lining may be removed, but that as in System A, the chin strap assembly remains intact.

The third system (System C) is sometimes referred to as the Davis Suspension System. This system, like A and B, uses Velcro to adjust the straps when fitting the helmet to the head.

Unlike the other systems, the entire assembly may be removed from the helmet. This is made possible by the presence of a plastic support piece attached to either side of the inner helmet lining. The straps are attached to the plastic pieces, which may be easily removed from the helmet.

The major noted that support for the project is being supplied by Co. B, 1st Bn., 29th Inf., 197th Inf. Bde. The test NCOs, SFC David Mills and SFC William E. Fridley, both of the Field Equipment Test Branch of the Board, instruct the troops during testing.

"We are primarily concerned, however, with how the individual soldier accepts the new helmets," Browning added. "It is most important to us what the soldier thinks of the equipment he will use. Also, we will be interested in how well the helmets endure the test, or their durability."

The test, which began in early December, is scheduled to be completed in February.

SOLDIER TESTS SYSTEM C SUSPENSION ON TOW ANTITANK WEAPON

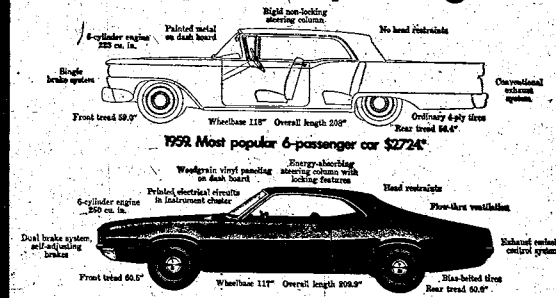
"Since the helmets are designed for use by the Infantry," Browning said, "we are testing them under combat conditions. The troops also wear the helmets while negotiating an obstacle course and firing on the test range."

One of the purposes of the test, Browning said, is to see if the helmets can be fitted easily to the individual soldier. The testers also are determining whether the chin cups and straps will hinder the Infantryman in his activities in the field.

Commuted rations increased

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Commuted rations (comrats) have been raised by 13 cents to $1.52 per day, the highest rate ever.

The increased ration rate, paid to enlisted men permitted to mess separately and to men on leave, also brought about a rise in meal prices in military dining halls.



The previous rate was $1.39. It was $1.32 per day during 1969 and 1968.

The increase in comrats amounts to $3.90 monthly and has been attributed to higher food costs. It was ordered by Deputy Secretary of Defense David Packard.

Medicare to increase insurance premium

The voluntary medical insurance premium older people pay for doctor bill insurance under Medicare will go up by 50 cents per month, beginning next July 1, Health, Education, and Welfare Secretary Elliot L. Richardson, announced. The new premium rate will be $5.60 per month, up from the current $5.30.

The increase, Richardson noted, amounts to only 6 per cent compared to a rate increase of 32 per cent made in 1969 when the premium was raised by $1.30 from $4.00 to $5.30.

The 1969 increase was about double the amount that would have otherwise been required he said because the rate in the previous year had been kept at $4, an amount inadequate to finance the program. It was necessary therefore to in effect make two increases at the same time.

This is the first time since the Medicare program started he said that program costs for the supplementary medical insurance program have been below the estimates.

With the resulting growth in the Trust Fund this year's premium rate safely can be set at a level that allows only 6 cents as a margin for contingencies.

The 50 cent increase is the net result of three items that are estimated to increase costs by 50 cents in fiscal year 1972 and then a reduction of 20 cents primarily because of the reduced margin for contingencies.

The items which make up the 50-cent increase are as follows: 31 cents to cover an estimated increase of 6.7 per cent in the level of physicians' fees recognized by the program in fiscal year 1972; 10 cents to cover an estimated increase of 2 per cent in the use of physicians' services; 9 cents to cover the estimated increase of 15 per cent in cost and utilization of institutional services.

Black beauty seeks name in PS Magazine

FT. KNOX, Ky.—A beautiful, dark-skinned girl is calling to all U.S. soldiers for help: She's asking for a name.

She is the black female who has been appearing (nameless) in the Army's PS magazine for about a year. Now that she has become familiar to the magazine's readers, she is calling: "Baby—I need a name."

The January 1971 issue (Number 218) of PS Magazine carries a picture of her with her plea for help along with a coupon on which the reader can send in his name for her to the magazine's editorial office at Ft. Knox.

The black girl joined blonde Connie Rodd who has appeared in Army maintenance periodicals as long ago as World War II. PS, The Army's Preventive Maintenance Monthly, is edited at Ft. Knox and delivered on pin-point distribution to Army units all over the world. The magazine is distributed also to the Marines, Navy, Air Force, Post Office Department, Reserves and National Guard.

Equal-housing efforts dependent on soldiers

WASHINGTON (ANF) — One of the Army's continuing efforts to insure equal treatment for its members is helping them find off-post housing. Another is assuring that landlords who rent offpost housing on a discriminatory basis are not permitted to rent to military personnel.

The success of the latter effort largely depends upon the individual reporting to the Housing Referral Office at a soldier's new duty station before he enters into a rental or lease agreement.

Reports received at the Department of the Army indicate that many soldiers are not reporting to Housing Referral Offices. This weakens the effectiveness of the Army's equal treatment efforts.

To help make the program more effective, unit personnel officers and issuing agencies should insure that Item 1, Appendix B, AR 310-10 is included in all appropriate orders and that one copy of Appendix B is issued to the individual.

Intelligence units to be relocated

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—The Army's Intelligence School and Combat Developments Command Intelligence Agency will move from Fort Holabird, Md., to Fort Huachuca, Ariz., by the end of 1971.

The moves were originally announced in March when the Army said Fort Holabird was slated to be closed.

The last advanced course for officers at the Fort Holabird school will begin this month, and classes will be phased out beginning in May. Classes now underway at Ft. Holabird will be completed, and no students will be transferred to the new school in Arizona.

Instructors with more than one year remaining on their tours will be reassigned to Ft. Huachuca, officials said.

The Army said it will cost $16.7 million to transfer the two units. However, savings after relocating the units are expected to amount to $3.7 million annually, according to Army officials.

Double re-up worth $20,000

FORT LEWIS, Wash. (AFPS) — The family that reenlists together won't hurt for cash to spend together.

Just ask the Bayers—Peter and Deborah—an Army career couple who are both specialist five air traffic control operators at Gray Army Airfield here.

Recently, Deborah collected a $10,000 variable reenlistment bonus when she re-upped for six years in ceremonies held—naturally—at the air control tower.

That added to the $10,000 husband Peter received for re-enlisting for six years in early 1970.

'Bold Ones' Stars' Careers Could Have Been Different

The country might well have had another famous cleric, ballplayer or business executive, football coach, engineer or scientist and commercial artist if five of the stars of "The Bold Ones" had pursued their early ambitions or chances.

E. G. Marshall, who stars as Dr. David Craig in the new doctors' segments, at one time, early in life, decided to become a minister. But in 1932, in St. Paul, Minn., he was given a chance to sing a song—and play his own accompaniment on the guitar. There went the ministry and his theatrical career was launched.

David Hartman, starring as Dr. Paul Hunter in the segments, might have been one of baseball's bright stars. In 1951, he entered Mt. Hermon preparatory school in Rhode Island and by graduation had earned seven letters in sports. During his senior year he captained the baseball team. It was then he was offered contracts by the Boston Braves and Philadelphia Phillies. Or he might have been a top business executive. In 1957, he was graduated from Duke University with a BA in economics and had offers from 32 U. S. firms.

Burl Ives, starring as Walter Nichols, attorney, in the lawyers' segments, was an all-state football player at Eastern Illinois State Teachers College and had serious ambitions of becoming a football coach. But during the depression, on a vagabond jaunt of two years, he sang on the radio, traveled with a tent show and became lead singer with a touring evangelist. Show business seemed more appealing than sweating out a victory every Saturday.

Joseph Campanella, who stars as Brian Darrell, attorney, in the lawyers' segments, entered New York's Manhattan College at age 16 as an engineering major. He also has a keen aptitude for mathematics, chemistry and physics. But after working on his master's degree in speech and drama at Columbia University, studying acting with Lee Strasberg and Stephen Zacharias, and a stint as a radio sportscaster in Lewistown, Pa., the lure of show business was stronger than building bridges or peering into a microscope.

Sharon Acker, co-starring as Erin Stowe, the wife of a senator in the senator segments, was a commercial artist in her native Toronto, Canada. But it was her boss, who frequently gave her time off to take a role in a play or on TV, who saw one of her performances and told her that she should switch to a show business career.

Hal Holbrook, starring as Senator Hays Stowe; Michael Tolan, starring as his aide in the senator segments; John Saxon, starring as Dr. Ted Stuart in the doctors' episodes, and James Farentino, who stars as Neil Darrell, attorney, all more or less had theatrical ambitions from the start.

Introverts may need more sleep study shows

WASHINGTON (ANF) — People who "just can't get by" with less than eight or more hours sleep each night may take some consolation from a recent study by the Army Medical Research and Development Command. Long sleepers aren't necessarily lazier than short sleepers, according to the study's results, but they do need more dreaming time.

Short-sleepers, the scientists say, are more likely to be active, outgoing, flexible and sociable. Long-sleepers are usually introverted and creative, but less successful at sustained work. The more introverted persons, apparently more conflict-conscious than active ones use the longer dream time to work out "intrapsychic problems."

The study, reported in the January 1971 issue of the "Newsletter of the Army Medical Department," explains that "different kinds of men clearly have different sleep needs . . . knowledge of a few key personality variables may be used eventually to predict the correlation of sleep needs and performance in a given individual."

Prep School seeks help in compilation

WASHINGTON (ANF)— The United States Military Academy Preparatory School is seeking assistance in finding documentation of the school's early years.

Information is desired in the form of memorabilia, reminiscences, copies of newspaper or magazine articles and photographs. The material will be used in compiling a comprehensive history of the school's early existence, including the years leading to its establishment.

The Preparatory School has existed in many forms and locations since World War I. It was transferred to its present location at Fort Belvoir, Va., in July 1957.

Former students and officers having knowledge about the school and its early development are encouraged to contact Lt. Col. W. C. Cousland or Sgt. Maj. D. P. Brosman, USMA Preparatory School, Fort Belvoir, Va. 22060.

Scout leaders to study crafts

Adult leaders of the Boys Scouts of Fort Benning are invited to attend classes on crafts, games and skits from 12:15 to 5 p.m. Jan. 23 at Columbus College main campus. For more information, call 545-1681.

Contested port

Canada's first settlement — Port Royal on Nova Scotia — was founded by French explorers De Monts and Champlain in 1604. The contested outpost was permanently renamed Annapolis Royal following a decisive British victory in 1710.

Earliest skis

Skis, according to one theory about their origin, were created 5,000 to 6,000 years ago in Central Asia as short, wooden, slab-shaped showshoes. Through the centuries, wanderers traveling westward toward Scandanavia changed them into long, thin skis which could slide or skid over the snow.

One of a kind

Sophia Loren won her 1961 Oscar as best actress in an unusual way. It was the first — and so far only — time the Academy of Motion Picutre Arts and Sciences has given the award for a performance in a foreign language film. Miss Loren was given the award for her portrayal of a grieving mother in the Italian-made "Two Women."

Internal timepiece whacky?

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Ever had that feeling that your internal "clock" was out of whack after a long flight over several time zones?

A recent study by the Army Medical Research and Development Command revealed that soldiers' performance and memory suffer for at least three days after their arrival from six time zones away.

In this pilot study soldiers were given a complex math test before and after flights to Thailand and Japan from Washington, D.C. The afterflight tests showed a decrease in accuracy, speed and memory for 72 hours or more.

This study and future ones may have important implications for military people who specialize in processing data and travel across several time zones.

101st Assn. to meet Jan. 26

The Fort Benning Canopy Chapter of the 101st Airborne Division Association will meet at 4:30 p.m. Jan. 26 at the Gold Bar Club in Building 2756.

Lt. Gen. Melvin Zais, director of operations, Office of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, will speak. Gen. Zais, who will be at Fort Benning Jan. 26-27 to address an Infantry Officers Advance Class, commanded the 101st Abn. Div. in the Republic of Vietnam in 1969.

A social hour will follow the meeting. All members of the Canopy Chapter and all former members of the 101st Abn. Div. are invited to attend.

On the ball

The local chapter of the Association of the United States Army will hold a Washington's Birthday Benefit Ball, Feb. 19, at the Fort Benning Officers' Club. Discussing the poster design for the ball are Sp4 Stan Hefner (l), administrative assistant for the AUSA, and Col. William R. Guthrie, who heads the planning committee for the project. The ball will produce funds to be used in the chapter's ROTC scholarship program, Soldier of the Month award program and ROTC rifle and drill competition. Tickets are being sold for $7.50 for E7 and above and for civilians for $5 for E6 and below. Tickets are available through major commands or at the AUSA office, Room 602, Infantry Hall.

5-day work week is 'In'

By Wendell Cochran

Fort Benning officially is moving toward a five-day work week. A directive recently implements this policy under the Modern Volunteer Army. Most Saturday duty requirements were eliminated by the directive.

The directive says, "A five-day work week will be instituted . . . to the extent that operational considerations permit."

It also officially establishes a holiday work schedule on Saturdays and Sundays.

"Subordinate headquarters are expected to use this same schedule whenever feasible," the directive says.

The same directive also says compensatory time should be considered for those whose duties and missions require Saturday duty.

In the Infantry Center many offices had been operating on Saturday with only a duty officer and an enlisted charge of quarters. The switch to no Saturday work posed few problems for these offices.

But implementing the five-day week has been another matter in the Infantry School. In eliminating Saturday classes, the school was told it could not reduce open time. That meant some hours would have to be removed from all Infantry School courses.

Infantry School Secretary Col. Herbert L. Frandsen said, "The school conducted a thorough examination of its courses in order to determine which classes could be eliminated. The examination resulted in great strides towards a five-day academic week."

It is expected that Ranger training always will include weekend classes and that some classes, such as Airborne may have to schedule Saturday classes if weather disrupts week-day training.

All classes—other than Ranger—that begin after Jan. 25 have been changed to eliminate Saturday training, Lt. Col. Louis A. Harris, school operations officer, said.

Courses that started before Jan. 25 are being studied and most of them have been revised to eliminate Saturday classes.

Some nine classes are expected to meet Satur-

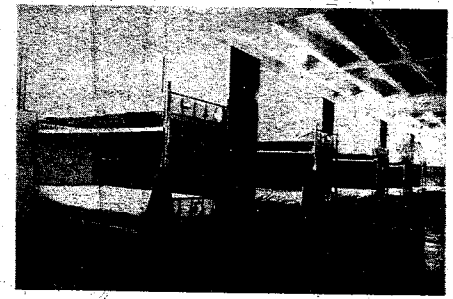
Trouble-shooters hope to solve your complaints

Communications in the Army are considered by many soldiers to be a one-way street.



Not that channels do not exist for bringing problems and complaints to the attention of commanders and others in positions to correct them. They do—within the chain of command.

But to many soldiers, these channels have the overtones of command influence and fear of recrimination if the soldier's actions displease his commanders.

If the soldier decides to elect the route of taking his complaint to the Inspector General's Office, then he must overcome—in many cases—a rank and generation gap.

That isn't the case anymore at Fort Benning. Under the Modern Volunteer Army experiment, (Project Volar) two captains, both with troop-leading experience in Vietnam, have been appointed to serve as the "Ombudsmen

See OMBUDSMEN, Page 10

Now you see it . . .

Look closely as this may be the last time you see a scene like this at Fort Benning. Under the "Benning Plan" for a Modern Volunteer Army, rows of bunks and wall lockers are being replaced by partitioned living areas to give soldiers privacy during off-duty time. Many of the new rooms will be of permanent construction.

Next pay check to account for new pay rates

New pay rates authorized by the Federal Pay Comparability Act of 1970 for government civilian employes and military personnel are being placed into effect, a spokesman in the Fort Benning Finance and Accounting Office has announced.

Increases for military personnel will be included in this month's pay checks, retroactive to Jan. 1. Increases for appropriated fund civilian employes in general service (GS) positions became effective Jan. 10 and will be included in checks to be paid Feb. 4.

Resor lauds Benning's role in VOLAR concept

The Army's experimentation and particularly Fort Benning's role in changing the nation's military to meet new Volunteer Army (VOLAR) concepts were emphasized here last week by Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor.

Speaking to the graduating Officer Candidate School Class 2-71, which included Resor's son, Charles, the Secretary of the Army noted that no Army policy is so sacrosanct that it could not bear constructive reexamination. He emphasized that time, situations and soldiers change and the Army must keep abreast or ahead of them.

These comments came in the final moments of a speech in which Resor recapped present movements in the Army toward a decreased draft call and military manpower.

With the proposed reduction in forces, Resor emphasized that the Army's quality must be made higher and he explained the important role that the new officers must play in bringing an understanding of today's young soldier.

Today's changes in the Army are visible at Fort Benning, Resor said. He gave particular emphasis to the advancements made here in race relations. He noted that a race relations coordinating group has been formed at Fort Benning with a fulltime staff

Clinic to inoculate children against German measles

Once again science—racing against the clock—has given us the chance to control a devastating disease. Now the question is: Will we have the volition to do so?

The disease is called rubella, more commonly referred to as German measles. In childhood, this disease is relatively mild, but if it strikes adult women in the early stages of pregnancy it creates deformity in the infant in a large percentage of the cases. The 1964-65 epidemic is reputed to have caused birth defects in some 20,000 infants.

Fort Benning parents are encouraged to have their children immunized this month, in order to prevent an outbreak of rubella this winter.

Immunizations are available locally at the Immunization Clinic, Bldg. 396, Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday, 8 to 11 a.m. and 1 to 4 p.m.; Saturday, 9 to 12 noon.

Research for a German measles vaccine had begun in the early 1960s in the laboratories of government and industry. Scientists at the Walter Reed Army Research Institute were perhaps the first to isolate a rubella virus strain. By 1965, when President Lyndon Johnson called for a massive national effort to develop a useful vaccine, considerable progress had been made, and a concerted research campaign began. The goal was to be ready for the next major epidemic, which was feared likely in 1970 or 1971.

The vaccine has beat the deadline—but will it be used promptly enough to forestall a recurrence of the 1965 tragedy?

For safety reasons, public health authorities urge that the disease be conquered primarily by immunizing youngsters—from age one to puberty—rather than adult women. Youngsters are the principal carriers of the disease, and there are some 70 million to be vaccinated eventually. Mass use in adult women is not desirable because of the need to avoid giving rubella vaccine to women who are or become pregnant.

The National Communicable Disease Center had been fostering community immunization programs—concentrating heavily in schools—which started this fall. The first such program at Fort Benning took place in January 1970, when all of the five to six-year-old children in the post's schools were vaccinated. Since that time about 5,000 doses of vaccine have been given to children in this area.

So the elements needed to begin the major task of eradication are there. How rapidly this effort can be carried into every community of the nation may well determine whether the next epidemic of German measles ever occurs. The first lap of the race against time is over. But the final lap remains, and it will take the support of parents and other citizens throughout the nation to win the fateful race.

Sp4 Robert D. Bergum was the distinguished honor graduate and Sp4 Matthew Gustantino was the distinguished academic graduate of Field Radio Mechanic Class 6-71, which graduated at Marshall Auditorium. Certificates of completion were presented to 74 students at the commencement exercise.

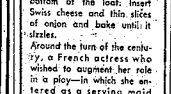
MSgt. Milto R. Jumper, chief instructor, Brigade and Battalion Communications, Communications and Electronics Department, was the guest speaker at the graduation.

The nine-week course is designed to provide students with a working knowledge of organizational maintenance for radios and other electrical equipment. These radio repairmen are trained to determine the damage to field equipment and make the necessary repairs.

While the students are attending the course here at Fort Benning they are assigned to the 16th Co., 1st Bn., TSB.

ACS to hold orientation

An orientation - training session on Army Community Service (ACS) will be held from 9 a.m. until 2:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Corregidor Room of the Fort Benning Officers Club.



Persons interested in learning about the Fort Benning ACS program and becoming members of the ACS volunteer corps are invited to attend the orientation. Those planning to attend are asked to telephone 545-1233-1633.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

by Bill King

When just a spoonful or so of orange or lemon juice is needed in a recipe, pierce the fruit with a skewer and squeeze out the necessary amount.

Herbs, like flowers, have a language of their own. Mint is said to mean virtue, while marjoram indicates shyness.

For extra tender liver, "marinate" it first in the refrigerator for a few hours in cold milk.

Cut French bread into thick slices not quite through to the bottom of the loaf. Insert Swiss cheese and thin slices of onion and bake until it sizzles.

Around the turn of the century, a French actress who wished to augment her role in a play—in which she entered as a serving maid named Suzette—poured flaming brandy over the pancakes she was to carry. So it was that crepes Suzettes were named.

You'll make a grand impression on the family whenever you treat them to dinner at

Byline Bayonet

(Byline Bayonet welcomes questions of general interest about Fort Benning and the Army. Within space limitations, all reasonable questions will be answered. Questions of a purely military nature which obviously could be answered more properly by commander or supervisors within the chain of command will not be accepted. Questions must be signed with current unit of assigment indicated. Send questions, to The Bayonet, Room 602, Infantry Hall.)

Q — I have a 10 per cent rating and am in a VA hospital because of a service-connected disability. Will I receive a permanent increase in my compensation?

A — Only if there is a permanent increase in the degree of your service-connected disability. However, if you are hospitalized more than 21 days, a temporary 100 per cent rating will be assigned for the whole period of your hospitalization.

Q — Is it true that World War II veterans may apply for a GI loan without regard to the length of time they have been out of service?

A — Yes, a recent law restored unused expired loan guaranty entitlement to all veterans who were previously eligible. There is no longer a time limit on applying for a G.I. loan.

Q — My 59-year-old father is a veteran of World War II, and he is receiving a pension because he is unable to work. Can he be treated in a VA hospital even though his condition is not related to his military service?

A — Yes, if a VA examination confirms that he needs hospitalization and a bed is available. Because he receives a pension, it will not be necessary for him to sign a statement of inability to pay.

Q — My husband is in a nursing home. He is a veteran, but his condition is not related to military service. Will VA pay for his nursing home care?

A — VA is permitted to provide nursing home care for a limited time, only for those veterans who have received maximum benefit from VA hospitalization yet still need nursing.

Q — I receive VA compensation for a service-connected disability. Am I also eligible for medication from the VA?

A — Yes, a veteran is eligible for medication from the Veterans Administration if it is required for a service-connected disability.

The judge says

3 days to register newly bought car

Most Americans own private vehicles — automobiles or motorcycles — but few Americans understand the basic laws dealing with title, tag and taxes on their vehicle. This article is mean to outline briefly the laws of Georgia in regards to proof of ownership, proper registration, and payment of ad valorem taxes.

The state of Georgia requires all residents who own vehicles to register the vehicle within three days after purchase and every year thereafter by April 1. Registration must also be accomplished within three days after a person who owns a vehicle becomes a resident of Georgia. Nonresidents, excluding servicemen, who are in Georgia for a period of 30 days must at the end of 30 days register their vehicle and obtain Georgia tags. Servicemen, who are not legal residents of Georgia, are exempt from registration in Georgia so long as their vehicle has valid plates from their home state.

When a vehicle carrying Georgia tags is sold, the seller must transfer the tags to the purchaser. Once the transfer form on the registration certificate is properly completed, the new purchaser must apply for a reregistration of the vehicle through the Tag Office and pay a fee of $1.

Since 1963, almost all vehicles that are registered in the state of Georgia must also be titled in Georgia. When the vehicle is purchased new, the dealer applies for the title in the purchaser's name and the title is forwarded to the financing company if the vehicle is financed, or to the purchaser if the vehicle is paid for in full.

At the time the original purchaser sells the vehicle, the title must be transferred to the new purchaser and if the title is not transferred, the new purchaser has no rights of ownership in the vehicle. Each successive purchaser must obtain a title in his name otherwise he has no title to transfer when he decides to sell or trade-in the vehicle.

If the vehicle is not fully paid for, the parties to the sale should either pay off the amount owed on the vehicle so that the financing company will release their interest and give the title to the seller who can then execute the form on the back of the title, or the parties to the sale should enter into a Transfer of Interest Agreement with the concurrence of the financing company.

It is important that the above procedures be followed because the title from the previous owner is the only acceptable proof of ownership and unless the person has title to the vehicle, the person cannot sell the vehicle. For vehicles with model years prior to 1963, a bill of sale from the previous owner is sufficient to transfer ownership of the vehicle.

Servicemen who are not legal residents of Georgia are not required to obtain a Georgia title if the vehicle is properly titled in his home state.

Sam killed himself before our eyes

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—You remember Sam Jones. A real nice kid with a ready smile and an easy-going coolness. On the flight line he worked hard and off the line he played hard, too. Sam lived life to the fullest . . . right to the end.

The accident citation listed DWI — Driving While Intoxicated — as the causative factor. Sam, the nice kid with the full smile and full of life to live, died after leaving a party only ten minutes from the post.

The DWI rate is increasing. A recent study shows that the most vulnerable person is in the 22-25 age group. He is usually an NCO, E3 or E4. And he is literally killing himself right before our eyes.

Civilian courts are fining DWI's more money. Average fines have risen from $117 to $128 in the last three years. Sam, however, paid the ultimate penalty.

One set of statistics from an Air Force base in the South points out that the nonjudicial punishment meted out by the military is more meaningful to the offender. Additional punishment can't be imposed under Article 15 or court-martial for offenses for which a civilian court has imposed punishment. On the other hand, administrative actions—letters of reprimand, assessments of points leading to restriction of on-base driving privileges, roster action—can be taken.

Many military commanders believe that civilian punishment just isn't enough because it doesn't provide an adequate deterrent.

The military can note that a man is a "high risk" if he has recurring offenses. Take Sgt. Jones. He had two prevous DWI citations. He got off easy with no military action, not even a letter of reprimand. His supervisor knew the problem. So did the company commander. Neither took any steps to help Sam Jones stay alive. Sam was a nice guy. Why pester him over a few small incidents?

Sam's friends knew how Sam drove after a few drinks. They didn't attempt to stop him when he left the party with his girl. One buddy had been with him the last time he was stopped and cited DWI. But the "buddy system" is old fashioned. Like Sam, it died.

By the way, Sam didn't take the last ride alone. He chauffeured his girl friend to her grave aswell.

Lieutenant awarded DSC for heroism in Vietnam

The Distinguished Service Cross, the Army's second highest award for heroism, was presented to 2nd Lt. John R. Rowland, 23, by Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander, for his actions against a hostile force in Vietnam.

Rowland distinguished himself while serving as a platoon leader with Co. D, 2nd Bn., (Airmobile), 5th Cav., 1st Cav. Div. during combat operations in Cambodia June 22, 1970.

Company D was engaged by a large well-concealed enemy force firing small arms, automatic weapons and rocket grenade launchers. Rowland maneuvered among his men to direct suppressive fire and locate them in strategic defensive operations.

When his men ran low in ammunition, Rowland used a bomb crater as a drop zone and directed a helicopter resupply operation.

"Although wounded by enemy fire," the citation said, "the lieutenant, on two separate occasions, charged forward through the fusillade to shield a medic and a wounded soldier with his body. After securing a landing zone, he supervised the helicopter evacuation of his wounded men amid a hail of enemy fire."

Rowland refused medical treatment for his wounds and stayed with his unit through the night to direct the defensive operations.

Rowland, 23, received a direct commission in March, 1970. He is from Charlotte, Mich., and is assigned to the Infantry School. He graduated from IOBC 9-71.

Eagle Scout Ralph Fitch (r), Chosen To Attend World Jamboree, Learns The Art of Using Chopsticks

Scouts need money for Jamboree

By Martin McWilliams

For a dollar, you can move two Boy Scouts almost five miles closer to the World Jamboree.

Eagle Scouts Ralph Fitch and Jim Morris have been selected to attend the Jamboree, which is in Tokyo, Japan this year. They will represent the more than 1300 scouts of the Fort Benning-South Columbus area at the world meeting.

In an effort to send the scouts all that way the Fort Benning District of the Boy Scouts of America is asking folks in the Fort Benning and South Columbus area to donate miles toward completion of the trip.

The scouts have already been started on their way by the Fort Benning NCO Wives Club and an area business establishment.

The N.C.O. Wives' club made the very first effort to help the scouts. They presented a check which will account for the first 475 miles of the trip to Tokyo. That gets the scouts as far as Shreveport, La.

The second stage of the journey was donated by a private business, Columbus Tire Outlet. The 120 miles provided by the company were the first by a civilian firm, and will move the scouts almost as far as Dallas, Texas.

A lot of miles remain.

"We're writing letters," says Col. Foy Rice, chairman of the Boy Scout World Jamboree Fund. "We're asking the 300 or so scouting families in the Fort Benning Area to donate a few miles each. We'll also contact clubs, organizations and businesses."

For further information, call the Scout Center at 545-1881. Checks may be made out to the Fort Benning District World Jamboree Fund and addressed in care of the Fund to the Boy Scout Service Center, Fort Benning, Georgia, 31905.

OCS graduates 6 Vietnamese

Six men from the Army of the Republic of Vietnam recently graduated from the Officer Candidate program here.

The six Vietnamese officers underwent training prior to starting the program here in September of 1970.

After completing their instruction the men will be appointed as sub-lieutenants in the Army of the Republic of Vietnam (ARVN). They will hold this rank for one year before being promoted to the grade of second lieutenant in the ARVN.

Engineers inactivated

818th to end brief career

It's all over for the 818th Engineer Battalion.

A recent Department of the Army announcement included the inactivation of the 818th Engineer Battalion (Combat) on March 15. The 818th Engineer Battalion has been at Fort Benning since its reactivation in February 1968.

The battalion was founded and activated in the winter of 1942 as the 818th Engineer Battalion, Aviation. The unit participated in several World War II campaigns including Normandy, Northern France, Rhineland, Ardennes - Alsace and Central Europe.

Following the war the unit performed stateside duty in the midwest United States as well as Germany. The unit was later inactivated for 12 years before activation at Fort Benning as the 818th Engineer Battalion (Combat).

It was immediately given the task of rehabilitating the Victory Pond Ranger Demonstration Area, enlarging the Ranger Memorial Drop Zone and clearing a new wildlife reserve.

These jobs were begun and completed in spite of low strengths for both officers and enlisted men.

As the number of personnel increased the battalion also supported the Engineer Committee in providing teaching in river crossing techniques (Bradley Landing) and gave crucial on-the-site relief support at Gulfport, Miss. (Hurricane Camille Relief Operation).

Under the leadership of Lt. Col. Garrett V. Sidler the unit has helped the community and the post as well. During the time they were active they supported the Boy Scouts and also rebuilt the Standing Boy Creek bridge when it collapsed recently.

Tactical manuever
Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor (l) is briefed on the company tactics committee by Lt. Col. Elliott F. Sydnor, committee chairman, during his visit this week to Fort Benning.

Voice of VOLAR

EDITOR'S NOTE: This feature will provide information about recent changes and proposals being made under the "Benning Plan" for a Modern ing Volunteer Army—VOLAR.)

CHANGES MADE

- Fort Benning has moved officially toward a five-day work week. Efforts are being made to fully implement this policy.
- Students in the Infantry Officers Basic Course now may drive to classes in Infantry Hall.
- The requirement to wear uniform headgear in your automobile has been eliminated.
- Weekend and holiday duty rosters are to be published at least three days in advance.

PROPOSALS

- A nightclub facility for soldiers through the rank of E4 will be established. Operations should begin around Feb. 1, with full operation slated for April 1.
- Barracks partitions for added individual privacy are coming. Some TSB soldiers as well as some in the 43rd Engineer Battalion and in Headquarters Command already have their partitions.

Commanders get more power

Policy toughened on discrimination

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—Tougher policy is a new Defense directive on equal opportunity gives local commanders more power in dealing with racial discrimination.

Previous policy called for commanders to refer such problems to the Pentagon. "It clearly weakened the authority that the base commanders would otherwise have in dealing with these matters," said Roger T. Kelley, assistant secretary of defense for manpower and reserve affairs, in explaining new provisions of the directive.

The directive was issued after Frank W. Render II, deputy assistant secretary of defense for equal opportunity, had presented the results of his visit to six Army bases in Germany, naval stations in Spain and Italy and Air Force bases in Britain and Germany.

Other parts of the directive order the Military Departments to:

— Consider leadership in operating successful equal opportunity programs when evaluating officers and civilian officials for promotion; and — Impose "effective sanctions" against officials who fail to produce satisfactory results.

Kelley said sanctions could include "removal of the individual from his command post."

In a covering memorandum to the secretary of defense, Render said his report indicated that equal opportunity problems in the military are critical.

"A dramatic turnaround of behavior and attitude in the area of race and human relations is imperative in the military services if we are to maintain effective combat and support-oriented units that are prepared for their primary mission," he said.

2nd. Lt. Resor honored

Sec. Resor was the guest speaker at the graduation and assisted in pinning the gold bars of a second lieutenant on his son.

Lt. Resor received a letter of commendation from Brig. Gen. John T. Carley, assistant commandant of the Infantry School, an engraved "Follow Me" plaque, an engraved "Follow Me" statuette and an engraved Association of the United States Army Plaque.

Lt. Resor accepted his commission in the Infantry. He holds a degree in economics from Yale University. He was one of the graduates of the 51st Co., 5th Stu. Bn., TSB.

Resor will report for Ranger training at Fort Benning by Jan. 30 and is due to report to the 5th Infantry Division, at Ft. Carson, Colo., by April 28.

Union to hold annual meet

The Infantry Center Federal Credit Union will hold its annual meeting at the Royal Crown Auditorium (10th St. and 10th Ave.) at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

The financial status of the union will be discussed and officers for the coming year will be elected.

All members are urged to be present. Door prizes will be awarded and refreshments served.

'Volunteer' gets meanings for wives

Airborne Wives' Coffee

The officers' wives of the Airborne Department met for their monthly coffee Jan. 13 at the home of Mrs. Jack C. Helms. The ladies enjoyed coffee with delicious pastries.

Mrs. Lee D. Ellis Jr., wife of the deputy director, opened the meeting by welcoming Mrs. Jerl E. Freeland as a newcomer to the department. Mrs. David G. Jesmer was a guest at the meeting.

Mrs. William J. Higgins III offered to become Thrift Shop chairman. Mrs. Edward M. Chamberlain III and Mrs. David T. Gibson volunteered to work in the Thrift Shop in February. The treasury report was given by Mrs. Herbert J. Lloyd.

The ladies of the Airborne Department will participate in the coffee call and ward party at Martin Army Hospital two days this month.

Wives who volunteered to donate their services are Mrs. Robert H. Anspaugh, Mrs. Carlson, Mrs. Edward M. Chamberlain III, Mrs. Lee D. Ellis Jr., Mrs. Pete Fitts, Mrs. David T. Gibson, Mrs. William J. Higgins III, Mrs. Harry L. Ikner, Mrs. Herbert J. Lloyd, Mrs. Harold B. Maris, Mrs. Francisco Molina, and Mrs. Bruce J. Wicks.

Hostesses for next month's coffee will be Mrs. Harry L. Ikner and Mrs. Bruce J. Wicks.

Polar Bears Get VOLAR Bare Facts

"Just what is all this about Volunteer Army?" This and many other questions were answered for the officers' wives of the 5th Bn., 31st Inf., by Maj. Caryl Marsh, 197th Brigade VOLAR project officer.

Marsh gave a very informative presentation for the Polar Bear ladies recently, explaining some of the facets of the Benning Plan currently being tested by the 197th Brigade. After the talk, the ladies were given a tour of the headquarters Company barracks to see some of the new model bays under consideration for adoption in the Volunteer Army. Old type bays were also seen and compared with the new ones which offer much more privacy for the soldiers.

Mrs. William Sansone and Mrs. Lawrence Hoggatt, hostesses, provided coffee, punch and delicious pastries at the battalion headquarters' conference room before and after the tour.

The theme was Charlie Brown's Peanuts complete with Snoopy and his doghouse nametags and centerpiece. Prize winners were Mrs. James Wright, Mrs. Gavin Riley and Mrs. Bernard Muller-tyme. Mrs. Wendell Dillon, battalion first lady, introduced newcomers Mrs. William Page, Mrs. Jerry Collins and Mrs. Gavin Carpenter. Also welcomed was Mrs. David Gascoyne of the 1st battalion, 58th Infantry, guest of Mrs. Arthur Pray.

Plans for the upcoming OWC brunch which the brigade is co-sponsoring were discussed, and the ladies were thanked for their outstanding participation in the Christmas tea which they gave for Brigade wives.

Hirsute pursuit object of artillery wives' coffee

Mrs. John Krisko and Mrs. Robert Stockwell were the hostesses for the first coffee of the new year Jan. 12 for the ladies of the 2nd Bn., 10th Aty., 197th Inf. Bde. The coffee was held in the Normandy Room of the Main Officer's Club.

A presentation of wigs, wiglets, hair styles and the newest fashions was given by Miss Peggy Gray and William from a Columbus beauty salon.

William demonstrated and explained the differences in and the proper care for wigs and wiglets. Using several ladies of the battalion, Miss Gray styled each in a wig or wiglet of their choice. Everyone was pleased with the finished look and amazed at the skill and speed with which Miss Ray styled each new wig to her model.

Following the program, Mrs. Krisko introduced the special guests of the evening. They were Mrs. Jack Nixon, Mrs. Lee Smith, Mrs. Robert Thomas, Mrs. Robert Parker, Mrs. D. W. Lusk, and Mrs. Allen Wissinger. Mrs. Geoffrey McMahon and Mrs. Gary Huested, new brides, were welcomed into the battalion by Mrs. Krisko.

Refreshments were served buffet style from a candle-lit table centered with an arrangement of yellow gladiolas, burnt orange and white carnations. Coffee, hot spice tea, ice tea, chicken drummettes, orange mousse and petit fours were offered to all.

Mrs. James Wurman conducted the monthly business meeting and announced that the hostesses for the February coffee were Mrs. John Roggli and Mrs. Gary Abbott.

Dollup cookies sure to please

By Mrs. Charles Fletcher

Note: Mrs. Fletcher, wife of post Sgt. Maj. Charles Fletcher, has served these cookies many times since she moved to Fort Benning and has many requests for the recipe. We are proud to feature it this week in our column.

Dollups

2 cups sugar
1 cup milk
½ stick margerine

Boil above in saucepan to soft ball stage. Remove from heat.

Add:

20 large marshamallows

Stir until dissolved, then add:

2 cups graham cracker crumbs
1 cup coconut
1 cup nuts
1 tsp. vanilla

Drop by teaspoonful on waxed paper immediately, as mixture hardens quickly.

No sour grapes at wives' club art show, wine taster

Approximately 600 officers wives gathered at the Main Officers Club Jan. 13 from 1 to 3 p.m. to view an art show and taste test complimentary wines and cheeses.

All guests were met at the main entrance of the club by hostesses, standing beside large wine casks, distributing literature giving information concerning the buying and serving of wines and cheeses. The hostesses also gave each lady a ballot on which to vote for her favorite paintings.

Entering the main ball room, the day's program was made obvious by a 15-foot bunch of grapes fashioned from a wooden cutout hanging over the fireplace at the far end of the room. Each double doorway to the ballroom was covered with vines and grapes hanging from arbors.

In the center of the ballroom wines and cheeses were being served by hostesses, and three were experts available to answer questions concerning these products. There were smaller tables scattered throughout the Fountain Room offering wines and cheeses. All tables were covered with white cloths and held white candles in silver candelabrum.

177 paintings, done by 31 different artists were on display in the ballroom and fountain room. These paintings were numbered and were voted upon by the guests. Ribbons denoting first, second and third place were presented in three different categories.

The categories and winners were as follows: Oils and Acrylics, 1st. — Mrs. Charles A. Williams, 2nd. —Mrs. Jack L. Casselberry, and 3rd.—Mrs. John T. Carley; Watercolors, 1st. —Mrs. Chester A. Christie, 2nd. — Mrs. Oliver Dillon, and 3rd.—Mrs. Rolf Binder; and Miscellaneous, 1st. —Mrs. Martin Glaser, 2nd. — Mrs. Justin S. Zack, and 3rd. — Mrs. Jack L. Casselberry.

In the Corregidor Room, allied officers wives representing ten different countries displayed various art objects from their countries. A record player was shared by some of the ladies, and music from the various countries added to the atmosphere.

Age-less pig

The giant tortoise has the longest life span of any animal — 180 years — while the pig has one of the shortest — 10 years.

Among items displayed were handmade clothing, tapestries, woven materials, hand-carved wood and etched metals, handpainted jewelry, copper, silver, and other precious metals and stones in various forms, religious objects, and antiques as well as books, records, booklets, and pamphlets.

In the Normandy Room were many classes and activities available for which OWC members could register.

Hostesses for the days activities were the MEDDAC Wives under the direction of Mrs. Haskel Zipperman and Mrs. Patrick Tisdale and the Allied Wives Committee under Mrs. Jon C. Stillman and Mrs. George Czetwertynski.

Mrs. Raymond P. Baird was responsible for the assistant program chairman for the OWC was responsible for overall coordination.

Increased rates for appropriated fund employes in general service positions also will be used to compensate nonappropriated fund civilian employes in Category A. Category A employes are those who have as a major duty the supervision or performance of professional, administrative, fiscal or clerical work, including stenography and typing.

Based on current troop strength, the new pay rates will increase the military payroll at Fort Benning by approximately $2,320,000 annually.

Other figures show that the annual payroll for appropriated fund employes will be increased annually by about $1,173,000, and nonappropriated fund civilians in Category A will make a total of about $55,000 a year more.

The new pay schedule reflects an average increase of 5.9 per cent in basic compensation rates for civilian employes and, based on a 1967 law providing for an automatic equivalent increase, military personnel will receive an increase of 7.9 per cent.

The new act, signed by President Richard Nixon on Jan. 8, also provides for an additional increased schedule to become effective in January 1972 and establishes procedures for annual adjustments thereafter.

of Fort Benning."

Capt. Richard K. Rowe and Capt. Harold J. Bennett have been assigned to the Inspector General's office. Col. Alan McDonald, post IG, said the two will "investigate any infringement of soldier's rights."

He said the positions the two captains are holding "normally are held by field grade officers."

He acknowledged that some senior officers may have difficulty "speaking the same language" of today's young soldier.

The captains, both of whom led platoons in Vietnam, said they hope to be able to "rap with the soldiers, just like friends."

They said they believe their biggest qualification for the job is "our own interest in helping the soldier."

Their office is run completely open-door. "Soldiers can come in any time," Rowe said.

Problems referred to the captains usually fall into two categories: Requests for assistance and complaints.

The assistance requests, such as getting finance problems straightened out, normally can be handled in one telephone call, Bennett said. But complaints on any subject are given a thorough investigation and follow-up report.

Rowe pointed out that soldiers can enlist the aid of his office by a telephone call (545-5494 or 545-5961), but said, "We would much rather see the man in person."

and an 18-man Race Relations Advisory Council.

Fort Benning race relation seminars, which are conducted on a continuing basis and monitored, have provided a model for the entire Army, Resor said. He emphasized that the Infantry School developments in the race relation and leadership instruction soon will be applied throughout the Defense Department.

The secretary of the Army noted that the Army's experiments to make the military more attractive have the full backing of the Army chief of staff, Gen. William C. Westmoreland, and himself.

While noting that the Army is a big institution, Resor pointed out that it is willing and wants to change for the better.

day Jan. 30. Included in these are two ranger classes and five classes that will hold Land Navigation Examination make-ups for students who failed the first test.

School scheduling officer Capt. Donald McCracken pointed out that classes were rearranged with Saturday classes scheduled during week nights.

"Each course has a complete new program of instruction (POI) without Saturday classes," he said.

The school's instructional departments were required to study their existing courses and recommend hours for elimination from POI's.

These recommended changes were reviewed and revised by the Curriculum Division of the Director of Instruction's Office, where the new POI's were developed.

Educators visit School to study its operation

A Muscogee County educator was the guest of the United States Army Infantry School last week as a participant in a civilian educator conference sponsored by the School.

Dr. William H. Shaw, superintendent of education for the Muscogee County School District, joined with 16 other educators as a guest of the school on Jan. 11 and 12.

The conference, one of several held each year by the Infantry School, has a dual purpose: It improves the Army's contact with civilian educators through the Infantry School, one of the Army's major educational institutions. The civilian educators, in turn, gain the opportunity to observe and comment upon educational innovations being tested at the School.

Educators attending the conference were welcomed by Brig. Gen. John Carley, assistant commandant of the Infantry School, and were honored at an official luncheon during the first day of their visit.

The educators received briefings and demonstrations concerning the School's closed-circuit and educational television facilities, computer assisted instruction, race relations instruction, and instructor training procedures, in addition to other areas of interest.

After the demonstrations the educators participated in several discussion sessions with members of the Infantry School staff and faculty.

During the visit the educators were guests of the School. Transportation to Fort Benning was the only expense not borne by the Army.

101st Assn. to meet Tuesday

The Fort Benning Canopy Chapter of the 101st Airborne Division Association will meet at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Gold Bar Club in Building 2746.

Lt. Gen. Melvin Zais, director of operatons, Office of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, will speak. Gen. Zais, who will be at Fort Benning Tuesday and Wednesday to address an Infantry Officers Advance Class, commanded the 101st Abn. Div. in the Republic of Vietnam in 1969.

A social hour will follow the meeting. All members of the Canopy Chapter and all former members of the 101st Abn. Div. are invited to attend.

If the burdening task of preparing income tax forms is getting too much for you as the W-2s, 1040s and itemization of deductions begin to run together, fear not for help is on its way.

A program which has been described as highly successful by the Internal Revenue Service as well as post personnel will be implemented again this year to aid military taxpayers with preparing their 1970 tax returns.

Under the program, "Tax officers" are appointed at the major unit level to handle the simple tax return questions. Each of the tax officers are given a two-day income tax course by the Staff Judge Advocate Section and the Internal Revenue Service.

Before the SJA will handle the more complicated cases, it is necessary that a military taxpayer first go through his unit "tax officer." The tax officer will refer the case to SJA.

Three of the tax classes have been scheduled on post. They will be held on Feb. 2-3, Feb. 4-5 and Feb. 8-9.

The system in past years has enabled SJA to more effectively handle tax return questions and also has decreased the workload by the Columbus Internal Revenue Service Office.

According to a finance spokesman, the W-2 forms will be distributed to military personnel with the January pay check.

In a related matter it was noted that single military taxpayers are not required to make a tax return if his annual income is less than $1,700. Married persons living in the same household and filing jointly must file if their income is $2,300 or more. These totals are increased by $600 if a person is 65 or older. Other married persons generally are required to file if they have income of $600 or more.

For those persons due a refund, they must file an income tax report.

Wives' meetings accent new year

By Mrs. Paul Simmons

The women of the NCO Wives Club met Jan. 13 at the Top Five Club to conduct their first monthly business meeting of 1971.

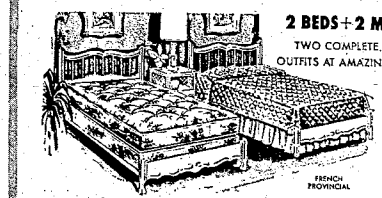
The president, Mrs. Edward Kitchens, called the meeting to order at 1 p.m. by welcoming guests and four new members. Those members and guests attending enjoyed a delightful sandwich and relish plate with chips, coffee and tea.

Plans were made for the rest of the month and February, and committee reports were given by board members and chairmen.

A silver tray was given to Mrs. Ricky Medley who is leaving the club. Door prizes were awarded and the meeting was adjourned. New members and guests are invited to all club meetings.

Later the members of Jan. 20 at 1 p.m. at the Top Five Supper Club.

Special guest for the luncheon was Lt. Col. Hazel Zacher.



Hostesses for the event were Mrs. Henry Meders and Mrs. Frederick Livingston. The menu consisted of veal cutlet, baked potato with sour cream, hot rolls salad, lime sherbet, coffee and tea.

Lt. Col. Zacher, Army Health Nurse, gave a film presentation and commentary on cancer detection.

Door prizes were awarded to three lucky ladies.

The NCO Wives Club holds a luncheon on the third Wednesday of each month. Prospective members are welcomed and urged to make reservations by contacting the president, Mrs. Edward Kitchens, (689-6337).

Horse off feed? He may have colic

Horses are quite prone to gastric (stomach) and intestinal problems. The collective term used for severe pain and discomfort associated with the digestive tract is called "colic."

Colic is a serious problem and can lead to the death of an animal. A horse off feed and in obvious discomfort has symptoms of the ailment. He may roll, kick at his flanks, sit down, pace the paddock, continually get up and down, try to make manure but not succeed, and even collapse in a coma.

Colic may have a variety of causes, over feeding of grain, over feeding of fine leaved rich hays; any change of feed, intestinal parasites, eating sand or foreign substances, and twisted intestines.

If you should observe signs of colic in your horse, stay with him, keep him up and moving. Take his temperature, pulse, and observe the color of his gums. Temperature should not exceed 100 degrees Fahrenheit nor drop below 99 degrees Fahrenheit. Pulse should not exceed 60 beats per minute nor drop below 40. Color should be a nice bright pink.

Any major divergence from these parameters indicates a worsening condition. If the horse is severely affected, or if signs continue to worsen, contact a veterinarian.

Most colic can be prevented by regular worming, good feeding habits, proper diet and close observation of your mount. When it does occur, it needs your utmost attention.

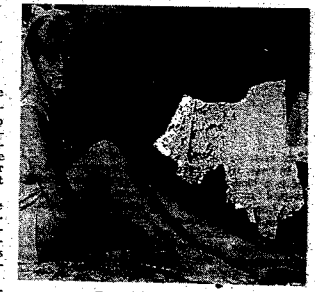
Italian general visits Benning



Gen. Francesco Mereu, chief of staff of the Italian Army, visited Fort Benning Monday and Tuesday.

Gen. Mereu was accompanied by his wife; Lt. Col. Corrado Crucilla, aide-de-camp and interpreter, and Maj. Carlo Javens, aide-de-camp.

While on post he saw demonstrations and received briefings on Fort Benning activities.

Benning House is home

Live-in lifeline gets them back--to life

By Mike Keller

Except for the sign, "Benning House," hanging in front, few persons would be able to distinguish the white World War II barracks from the hundreds like it on post.

Virtually no one would believe that the building houses a hospital. But — in a sense — it does. For its patients, this is not only a place they receive treatment and therapy for their ailment. For three months, it is their home.

During the day, the patients lead normal lives—working at their job, unit or duty section. But in the evening, the men return to the house — to live, sleep — and get help for the illness they all have in common — chronic alcoholism.

The Benning House is Fort Benning's "lifeline" to male military personnel, active or retired, who are having problems resulting from the excessive use of alcohol.

Operated by the post Mental Hygiene Section as part of Fort Benning's alcoholism and drug abuse program, the Benning House approach to alcoholism is believed to be the first of its kind in the Army. If successful, it might serve as a model for the Armed Services.

In terms of treatment the program presently is limited to a "half-way house" complex of three buildings, designed for male alcohol users. However, additional facilities for male drug users and females in both categories are being planned.

A patient undergoes one year of treatment at the Benning House. His first three months is a "live-in" experience during which an individual not only spends evenings at group therapy sessions at the House, but also stays the night there.

Since its opening last April, the Benning House has treated 168 individuals for alcoholic problems, with 41 having participated in the House's resident program.

To date, 12 persons have completed this 90-day "live-in" phase. Few drop the program voluntarily. Many patients, however, are discharged, transferred or retire and move to other localities.

Participation in the program is entirely voluntary—although persons may be referred to the House by their commander, chaplain or family. Individuals entering Benning House must sign an informal contract agreeing to live in the House for 90 days, abide by its rules and take the drug Antabuse daily.

Antabuse is designed to prevent cheating. It is a chemical incentive not to drink, because a person who takes "a little nip" within three days after taking the drug will become sick.

"Antabuse is their 'safety belt,'" Sp5 Daryl Conner, one of the four military members of the Benning House staff, said. "All patients must take it regularly during their 'resident' status."

Benning House patients also are expected to work at their unit, section or — in the case of retirees—at their place of employment during normal duty hours. Those unemployed must spend this time looking for a job.

During the day, the staff provides assistance to military dependents who are having alcohol problems. Persons seeking an appointment or information about Benning House should phone 545-4891.

In addition to Benning House, Fort Benning has a permanent council on alcohol and drug abuse. Made up of the commanders of the post's major units, it is an advisory body to Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander.

The post also is working closely in this area with the city of Columbus which has a similar treatment program. Columbus Mayor J. R. Allen has appointed an advisory council, somewhat like the one on Fort Benning.

"We frequently exchange information and ideas with Columbus authorities," Conner said. "And the development of Benning House will reduce the number of military personnel who must rely on civilian facilities."

The efforts of the Benning House staff have not gone unrecognized. Capt. James D. Adelman, clinical director of the House, and Col. Robert Lathrop, post Staff Judge Advocate, recently appeared before the U. S. Senate Special Subcommittee on Alcoholism and Narcotics at the request of the Department of the Army to explain Fort Benning's program.

In a letter to Gen. Talbott, Sen. Harold Hughes of Iowa, subcommittee chairman, praised the two officers, saying "their excellent testimony is a valuable contribution toward finding a fair and humane solution to the problem of alcoholism in the military."

Benning House residents attend a variety of group therapy sessions five nights a week. One evening married patients participate in therapy with their wives. "We think it is important for couples to make the adjustment together," Conner said. "They give each other mutual support."

Other evenings are spent watching and discussing films on alcoholism, and attending resident therapy sessions, religious programs conducted by a chaplain or meetings with the Fort Benning chapter of Alcoholics Anonymous.

Once a week, a meeting of the Benning House's resident council is held. This body is composed of all resident members of the House. The patients elect a president, make their own rules, issue passes and have the power to discipline habitual rule-breakers.

After completing his first three months in Benning House a patient spends the remaining nine months of the program in a non-resident status. During this period, he continues medication and attendance at regular therapy sessions.

The group therapy programs are conducted primarily by Conner and SFC (ret.) James E. Henry, a full time, non-paid civilian volunteer. Henry, who spent a large part of his 27 years of Army service in the mental health field, is devoted to the program—explaining his willingness to work for free.

Capt. James D. Adelman counsels a member of Benning House

"You can't consider this an 8 to 5 job," said Henry, who was noncommissioned offier in charge (NCOIC) of the Fort Benning Mental Hygiene Clinic before he retired. "People contact you at all times of the day and night. And to be effective you must respond to their needs."

Henry is determined that Benning House not suffer the fate of unsuccessful efforts to assist alcoholics in the past. "A program was good as long as the guy who was pushing it was there," he said. "Once he left, it died, and the people involved in it were the losers."

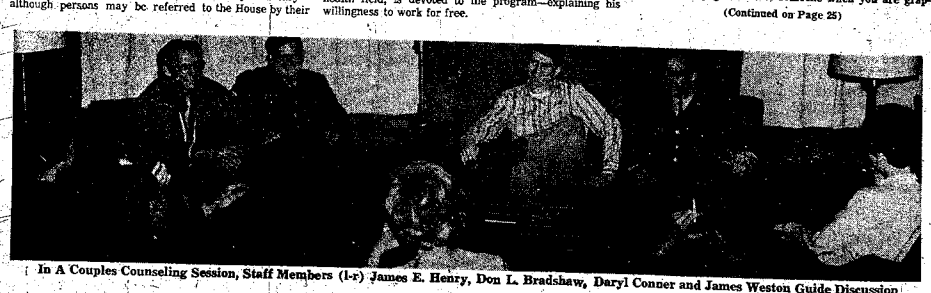
Benning House is the "brainchild" of Maj. A. C. Segal, who used his position as chief of psychiatry and neurology at Martin Army Hospital to initiate "help" program for alcoholics. Segal currently is stationed at Ft. Meade, Md.

Conner and Henry are an effective team in conducting therapy sessions. The two men "balance" one another in style.

"It's a dual generational approach," Henry explained. "With my age and Army background, I have a direct appeal to the patients, most of whom are over 30 years old and include many NCOs—active and retired—and some retired officers. Daryl, on the other hand, being younger, has the most up-to-date education and methods."

Instead of using the Freudian technique of having a subject search his past for reasons that may have contributed to his alcoholism, the Benning House staff only focuses on the immediate present, what is going on in the room at that time.

During a session we try to make them tell us how they feel about drinking at that particular moment," Conner said.



Reactions range from a warm and benevolent attitude to one of hostility, anger, hatred or inferiority. "The key is reaching their emotions rather than their intellect," Conner said. "There are a lot of feelings associated with alcohol abuse, many of which have built up over perhaps 10 or 15 years. We try to get patients to freely express these views to the rest of the group."

Encouraging the residents to talk is not always easy. "It sometimes takes weeks to reach a stage where they are willing to disclose things. And if a 'new face' enters the group, they again will 'tighten up'."

Despite the work of the staff, much of the real treatment is conducted indirectly by the patients themselves, in their day-to-day contact with each other. "They benefit most from the experience of living with each other," Conner said.

You really get close to someone when you are grap-

'Primarily aimed at whites'

'Blues' director strives for reality

"It is going to hurt a lot of people's feelings — it is going to make a lot of people upset — but that's life."

And that's "Blues for Mr. Charlie" as Tolles Brown, the play's director, sees it.

This Dramatizer production (which will be the group's entry in the 3rd Army Tournament of Plays) tells of a racial murder in a small Southern town, of a young black man's return to the place of his childhood and of a white man's feeling of superiority over those off whom he makes his livelihood.

"The incident is based on something true," Mrs. Brown explains. "But the author surmises the ideas that people have in their minds."

Indeed, the play has a strong connection with a factual incident. As its author, James Baldwin, says in the play's introduction: "It is based, very distantly, on the case of

TOTLES BROWN
"It can be realistic, but never like."

Emmett Til — the Negro youth who was murdered in Mississippi in 1955. The murderer in this case was acquitted. After his acquittal, he recounted the facts of the murder — for one cannot refer to this performance as a confession — to William Bradford Huie, who wrote it all down in an article called 'Wolf Whistle'."

But while the story is based on real life, "no matter how hard you try to make a play reality," as Mrs. Brown puts it, "it is still a play. Things must be always altered for a play — it can be realistic, but never life."

The reality in "Blues" comes not from the format in which the story is presented: The play opens with the murder and then through flashbacks it tells how the incident came about.

Rather, it's reality, Mrs. Brown comments, comes through its "treatment of the interaction between blacks and white."

"The play is primarily aimed at whites," says Mrs. Brown. "It says, see what you've done, see what you've caused — it really isn't necessary."

"This is why I want to do the play — to show them (the whites) that it is still happening."

The Baldwin drama, which will be presented Feb. 19, 20, 22, 23, 24 and 25, at the Fort Benning Playhouse, is, in a sense, Mrs. Brown's debut as a director. Although she has directed before (a story-theater for a children's group and "Our Town" as a class project in college) this will be the first public presentation of a play she has supervised.

But as she has participated in more than 30 productions as an actress and technician, she is confident of her directorial abilities.

"I don't find it hard (to direct "Blues") because the play is so realistic. You can almost sit down and envision how these people move and what they think."

"A New Musical From the Colonies"

The Broadway hit musical, "1776," will be coming to Columbus for one night only — Thursday at 8:30 p.m. The performance will be held at the Three Arts Theatre, 1020 Talbotton Road.

"1776" has been drawing packed houses in New York since its opening in 1969, and the end is not yet in sight. The company coming here is the second to be criss-crossing the United States, the first one having begun its travels in San Francisco last April with tremendous success.

Even the English flocked to London performances of this musical telling of the United States' independence from the British. The English critics raved about the play that they kiddingly called "A new musical from the colonies."

Clive Barnes of the N. Y. Times was similarly enraptured with "1776". He wrote, "I recommend it without reservation. It is a musical with style, humanity, wit and passion. . . It might even run until 1976."

The 30 players coming here to re-enact, with songs and dances, the events in Philadelphia nearly 200 years ago are headed by Don Perkins, who is playing John Adams, Paul Tripp as Benjamin Franklin, Patrick Hines as John Dickinson (who fought to keep the Declaration from being declared), Jerry Lanning as Edward Rutledge of South Carolina, and Tom Gorman as Stephen Hopkins of Rhode Island.

The distaff side is represented by Ann Clements and Pat Gorman as the wives of Adams and Thomas Jefferson. It is the fancy of the authors of "1776" that these ladies made a contribution to the writing of the Declaration that history has not recorded. The book was written by Peter Stone and is based on a conception of Sherman Edwards, who, incidentally, wrote the songs.

The box office for the sale of tickets to "1776" is open daily (except Sunday) from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tickets will be sold through the day of performance. The box office is located at the Three Arts Headquarters in the Rankin House, 1440 Second Ave.

There is a great demand for tickets, so hurry and get yours.

MORE MUSIC

The public is invited, no admission charge, to a concert featuring the sounds of the flute, violin, piano and harpsichord Sunday, 7 p.m. Sightseeing Road Chapel is the place.

Participating in the concert will be Spc 4 G. Russell Miller, Maj. Dao Bich Quang and MSgt. Robert J. Everett. Music will include works by Telemann, Bach, Bonizetti, Ibert and Hayden.

Anyone For Gafe?

One of Georgia's and the Souths major art events each year, the Gardens Art Festival Eight, is opening 2 p.m. Sunday and will run through Jan. 30.

The multi-arts event, which has grown in numbers of participants and exhibitions since its origin in the fall of 1963, is sponsored by the Chattahoochee Valley Art Association, Callaway Gardens and nearby LaGrange College.

To make the entire program more appealing and hold interest for both amateur and professional, more firsts are being established. All lectures, demonstrations, workshops and tours are offered free to the public.

This is the first year to offer a Student Art Exhibition aside from the "Big Show"; and, it's also the first year an artist like Ouida Canaday has taken residence for a week of painting workshops. Due to her popularity, her workshops are offered to adults only. Oh! One more first is an Art History on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons.

Highlighting the opening day of the week-long festival will be the Award's Banquet with Albert Christ-Janer, professor of art at the University of Georgia, as guest speaker. His address will be entitled 'What are the New York Museums Doing?"

Each day of the week offers something new and interesting. A complete schedule of the free workshops and other events, may be obtained by contacting Callaway Gardens, Pine Mountain, Georgia 31822.

Synopsis

PATTON (Rated GP). This movie is a "no-holds-barred" portrait of the legendary Gen. George S. Patton Jr., whose battlefield victories in World War II were among the most spectacular in history—and whose flamboyant and rebellious personality, at the same time, earned him disfavor and loss of command.

"Patton" is also the story of two men told in counterpoint, contrasting the erratic and theatrical General Patton with the steady, calm and brilliant professional, General of the Army Omar N. Bradley, who was first subordinate to Patton and later his superior.

THE UNDEFEATED (Rated G). This action-filled drama is set at the bitter end of the War Between the States, when hatreds and rivalries, which did not end simply at Appomatox, drove hordes of vanquished Confederates to join the faltering army of Emperor Maximillian in Mexico.

These men hung in a suspended world; some hoping for a resurgence of Southern forces—others simply searching for a way of life free from the unbearable stigma of defeat.

Battling it out toe to toe and side by side across 2,000 miles of savage wasteland . . . they lived a thundering adventure that rocked two nations.

I LOVE MY . . . WIFE (Rated R). Physician Richard Burrows (Elliott Gould) is a bored and straying husband. His wife, Brenda Voccaro, who has helped put him through medical school, has grown progressively distasteful to him and represents a trap from which he longs to be free.

He finds solace in several random affairs until he becomes smitten and deeply involved with a beautiful television actress (Angel Tompkins). His innate selfishness and irresponsibility come to the fore, however, and he rejects commitment to this new love for a continuing life of impermanent relationships.

The story presents a frank view of some very common problems that beset the institution of marriage.

Time in Alaska has four time zones; Idaho, Utah, Arizona, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Texas, Indiana, Kentucky, Tennessee and Florida have two each and all the other states have one apiece.

That is 'Catch 22'

If you ask to be grounded, you're not crazy any more

"Catch-22" is the tale of a small group of flyers on a tight little island community in the Mediterranean. The year is 1944. The theme is timeless. Catch 22 is now playing at a downtown theater.

There are the winners, the losers, the opportunists, the survivors.

Separately and together they are nervous, frightened, often profane and sometimes pathetic. Almost all are a little crazy. And some are just very young.

One gets blown to pieces. Another cooly flies himself into a mountain. Yet another turns the Mediterranean into a gigantic market place. One is chopped in half by a passing friend. A fifth just disappears. A quiet one turns rapist and murderer, quietly. The Doctor, pronounced officially dead, wanders the base like an accusing zombie. One flyer doggedly paddles his liferaft into the future, a full 16-week trip.

It is a mixture of administrative mayhem on the grand scale. And private perversity.

There are those who say so far and no further. The ones who mindlessly toe the line, others who step over it. The precious few who try to scuff it out.

"Catch-22" is as modern as a moonshot. And as old as anarchy.

The sign outside the World War II Mediterranean Headquarters Building state quite baldly:

201st Bombardment Group (Medium)
The Best Damn Group there is.
(Product of U.S.A.)

It has flown more missions, had more close calls than anyone else.

The pilots have to be crazy to fly more combat missions. And if you are crazy, you must be grounded.

There is only one catch — and that is CATCH-22.

Catch-22 has a cool simplicity. It is rational, precise, absolute.

Anyone who wants to get out of combat is not really crazy. So he cannot be grounded.

In order to be grounded you have to be crazy. And you MUST be crazy to fly. But if a pilot asks to be grounded, it means he is not crazy anymore and has to keep flying.

That is Catch-22.

The screen version of "Catch-22" is the result of a combination of creative talents rarely matched in film history.

A Mike Nichol's Film, "Catch-22" stars Alan Arkin. The motion picture, which is presented by Paramount Pictures Corporation in association with Filmways, Inc., is based on the novel by Joseph Heller.

Joseph Heller's book has been described as "The best American Novel that has come out of World War II . . . the best American Novel that has come out of anywhere in years."

The author himself has been hailed similarly: "If Mr. Heller never writes another line, his reputation is high and secure."

Director Mike Nichols has been characterized as "a deft and imaginative miner of devastating truths. That's what he does for a living . . . he has as many facets as a cut diamond. And all of them glitter."

And of screenwriter Buck Henry it has been said, he "sings impeccable tenor harmony, plays adequate ukelele and blows the best kazoo in Christendom . . . Hollywood's answer to J. D. Salinger.

To compliment this behind-the-cameras line-up is a cast which is a canny mixture of experience and novelty: Alan Arkin, Martin Balsam, Richard Benjamin, Arthur Garfunkel, Jack Gilford, Buck Henry, Bob Newhart, Anthony Perkins, Paula Prentiss, Jon Voight and Orson Welles.

Nichols long has maintained that film-making must be a pleasure. To achieve this and preserve some harmony over six months of tough 12-hour, six day working weeks, he chose his crew as carefully as players.

Production designer Richard Sylbert and editor Sam O'Steen both previously worked with Nichols. Cinematographer David Watkin, his British camera team, and first assistant director Clive Reed also have the highest professional credits.

Henry's script was photographed in Technicolor and Panavision on locations in Guaymas and Sonora, on the Western seaboard of Mexico, and in Rome, Italy. Interiors were filmed at Paramount Studios in Hollywood.

THEY'RE ALL CRAZY
Alan Arkin (r) and Art Garfunkel star in "Catch 22"

Concert slated for Sunday

A concert, featuring the sounds of the flute, violin, piano and harpsichord, will be held at Sightseeing Road Chapel, at 7 p.m., Sunday.

The public is invited: There will be no admission charge.

Participating in the concert, which is sponsored by the post chaplain's section, will be Spc 4 G. Russell Miller, Maj. Dao Bich Quang and MSgt. Robert J. Everett. They will play the flute, violin, and piano and harpsichord respectively.

Music will include works by Telemann, Bach, Donizetti, Ibert and Haydn.

Miller, who is assigned to Company C, Headquarters Command, U. S. Army Infantry Center, holds a degree in music from Princeton University. Diao, a member of the Army of the Republic of Vietnam, presently is attending the Infantry Officers Advanced Course here. Everett, also with Company C, Headquarters Command, is the organist at the Airborne Chapel.

Libraries' books

The following titles are now books received at your Special Services libraries during the month of December:

Harrie, J. J. "Citizen's Sport." Commander Gideon of Scotland Yard has problems at Shalford's important horse race and other race problems. He's almost too busy to realize the problems at home.

Platt, Kin. "Chuka's Revenge." The savage piranha is substituted for the live tropical fish that decorated a starlet's cocktail-designed brown Mex way to murder a girl. Lively and entertaining mystery.

Shelley, Graham. "Suddenly One Night." The frivilous life of a beautiful Mediterranean villiane is the background for a conspiracy of evil.

Serling, Robert J. "Loud As A Whisper." Get Off the Ground." In spite of the curves they threw her, they couldn't keep Miss Devlin from qualifying as the nation's first woman airline pilot. She was good. But then came ill-fated Flight 278, and one thing nobody had counted on.

Sterling, Sally M. "For Dying You Always Have Time." The adventures of a naive schoolteacher from Manhattan as a naive apprentice spy for Israel in the Middle East.

Toland, John. "Rising Sun." Traces the dramatic fortunes of modern Japan from the invasion of Manchuria and China to the atom bomb. Interviews present a primarily Japanese point of view, yet the events speak from themselves.

Wolfe, Tom. "Radical Chic And Mau-Mauing The Flak Catchers." A new book by the inimitable Mr. Wolfe. "Mau-Mauing" deals with confrontation techniques used by minority groups in relations with the bureaucrats of the poverty program.

Blish, James. "Nebula Award Stories Five." The impressive pieces of science fiction by Robert Silverberg, Larry Niven, Theodore Sturgeon and others.

Fairbairn, Ann. "That Man Cartwright." When he tells the truth in his newspaper about a bus accident which killed 14 migrant workers, Cull Cartwright finds himself facing increasing hostility from the Establishment of a small California town.

Fenimore, Beth. "Drop Of A Hat." A kidnaping in which the villains are not too villainous and the bereaved couple, a young man and a girl win freedom.

Fremlin, Celia. "Don't Go To Sleep In The Dark." Stories about women, full of terror and suspense, made all the more terrifying by their commonplace settings.

Gilles, Kenneth. "Murder Pluperfect." Her diary was found and about to be published. Was Sir Charles' great-aunt a murderess? Two detectives, another murder, and past interviews with present to the last page.

Knight, Damon. "Orbit 8." The eighth in a collection of best science fiction stories.

For museum

Col. Jim D. Keirsey (r), Fort Benning chief of staff, presents a check to Col. Robert P. Hatcher, assistant post commander, as his contribution to a campaign to raise funds for construction of a new Infantry Museum building at Fort Benning. Col. Hatcher is chairman of the post's phase of the fund drive. Fort Benning's goal is $100,000 and the overall campaign goal is $6 million. In an open letter to the Fort Benning community Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander, said, "The Infantry Museum has my support and my check. I hope you will join the thousands of Infantrymen in both the civilian and military communities who have committed themselves to this project."

Marksmanship men give seminar to local police

Members of the local area law enforcement agencies braved low temperatures and driving wind Monday and Tuesday to participate in a marksmanship seminar and training session at the Post Skeet Range and Philips Range. The two-day session was conducted by the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit.

Officers from the Muscogee County Sheriff's Department, Phenix City Police Department and Columbus Police Department attended the sessions where they received instructions on pistol, shotgun and rifle marksmanship.

Some of the techniques covered in pistol marksmanship included the fundamentals in sight alignment, trigger control and the arc of movement. The pistol training was conducted by M.Sgt. Laurence K. Mosely. The visiting officers then went on the firing range where they were coached through slow fire, rapid fire and a modified National Rifle Association police course by marksmanship coaches.

On the shotgun range the visiting lawmen were introduced to international skeet and trap and briefed on silhouette shotgun shooting. This phase of the training was conducted by Capt. Kenneth D. Gilbert of the shotgun division.

On Tuesday afternoon the visitors were bused to Maeriens Range where they received an orientation on the Army sniper program and were instructed in position and triangulation shooting techniques. Maj. Willis L. Powell conducted this part of the training session.

Panel discussions were held after each phase of instruction to enable the officers to clarify any questions on the demonstrations and discussion.

The two-day seminar and training session offered the local lawmen opportunities in the developed art of marksmanship while commenting many friendships and closer community ties.

Lady vet goes Army

WASHINGTON (ANF) — The Army has its first lady veterinarian.

Capt. Jean Hooks has been commissioned the first lady veterinarian in the 54-year history of the U. S. Army, Veterinary Corps.

Capt. Hooks, Lawrenceville, Ill., received her doctor of veterinary medicine degree in June 1970 from the University of Illinois, gfaduating with her twin sister, Dr. Jayne Hooks.

After attending officer orientation courses, Capt. Hooks will be assigned to Walter Reed Army Institute of Research, Washington, D. C.

6 helicopters to assist in flood relief

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Six Army helicopters along with crews and maintenance personnel have been sent to Malaysia from the Republic of Vietnam (RVN) to assist with flood relief efforts following a request from the government of Malaysia.

The request came following 100 hours of continuous rain in the Malay peninsula which caused flooding and disaster conditions.

The helicopters and crews are being provided by the 45th Medical Company (Air Ambulance) and the 1st Aviation Brigade, RVN. The UH-1 Huey helicopters were flown from Tan Son Nhut Air Base, RVN, to Malaysia aboard an Air Force C-124 Globemaster.

Resor presents Medal to aide

Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor presented Dean-Emeritus J. Alton Hosch the Outstanding Civilian Service Medal Jan. 14 for his performance as army civilian aide for the State of Georgia from March 1962 to August 1970.

Hosch, dean of the University of Georgia School of Law from 1935 to 1964, was cited for giving "unstintingly of his time and talents in support of Army missions and the furtherance of Army programs, in particular, the Reserve Officers Training Corps program, recruitment for the Women's Army Corps and the Army's Informational Program for Foreign Military Trainee and Visitors."

Dean Hosch served in the Army's Judge Advocate General's Corps from April 15, 1941, to June 17, 1946, and from July 22, 1946, to June 19, 1947. He retired as a colonel in the Army Reserve in 1962.

After returning to the University of Georgia, he was instrumental in establishing the Law School's Institute of Law and Government in 1963 and served as its director until July 1, 1957. He was a U.S. commissioner from 1933 to 1935 and has been Commissioner on Uniform State Laws for Georgia since 1940.

He is a member of the American, Federal, Inter-American, Georgia Western Circuit, and Athens, Ga., bar associations; American Law Institute; Harvard Club (Atlanta, Ga.); and Army and Navy Club (Washington, D.C.).

197th cagers net first half season title

By Bob Wise

Fort Benning has a new basketball champion.

The 197th Infantry Brigade soared to a 30-point lead Friday night and held on to crush The School Brigade (TSB), 94-81.

The play-off game victory broke a 9-1 season record tie held by both teams. In defeating TSB, the 197th became the champions of the first half of the USAIC 1970-71 basketball season. The season's second half began Monday and will run through Feb. 11.

The packed-in crowd at Briant Wells Field House saw everything exciting that basketball has to offer. A number of spectators even compared it to football because of the physical roughness that seemed to occur at times.

The 197th jumped off to a 4-0 lead in the first minute of play. Then, with less than three minutes gone in the game, the 197th found itself behind 4-6 on two field goals and free throw by Don Townsend and a free throw by Norm Springer. At the 16:55 mark, Don Campbell scored, tying the game at six all.

Will Brockington hit 25 seconds later and put the 197th in the lead, 8-6. But, Townsend came back on the next play with a two-pointer to tie up the game again.

Five-and-a-half minutes into the game, the 197th again found itself leading after a field goal by Campbell and a free throw by Maurice Travers. John Black hit a free throw, making the score 14-10 as the 197th regained the four-point lead with which it started.

Two more quick scores by Brockington and Slim Ingram broke the game open for the 197th, and at the 11:00 mark, the score was 12-12.

A determined TSB began driving to close the gap. Springer sank three field goals within the next minute and for the next five minutes, the lead changed hands four times.

With five minutes remaining in the first half, the 197th began ripping apart the TSB defense and terrorizing its offense, causing a great deal of turnovers. By the 3:44 mark, the 197th effort had brought it a nine-point lead.

During the final three-and-a-half minutes of the half, the 197th held TSB to only two points, taking a 50-33 half-time score into the dressing room.

The 197th jumped off to a 20-point lead in the first minute of the second half. Continuing to pull farther and farther ahead, the 197th increased its lead to 25 points after six-and-a-half minutes of play.

By the time nine-and-a-half minutes of the second half had been played, the 197th was enjoying a 78-48 lead, its largest lead of the game.

Behind 30 points, TSB went into a full-court press and a doomsday man-for-man defense around its goal, causing many 197th turnovers.

The 197th then stayed at 79 points for nearly four minutes. Not until Black hit a free throw at the 6:40 mark did the 197th get its 80th point.

A great deal of the 197th's inside strength was weakened when Ingram fouled out with 20 points at the 4:59 mark.

TSB continued to ravage the 197th until the 2:25 mark. At that point, TSB had cut the 197th lead from 30 points to 13 points.

Hustling to help TSB make a better showing, Townsend fouled Brockington, with 1:08 minutes left in the game.

A few words were exchanged between Brockington and Townsend and both were ejected from the game.

Black shot the one-and-one free throw on Townsend's personal foul and sank both shots. He got a third shot on the technical foul and sank it. As the ball was being carried to the other end of the court so that TSB could shoot on the 197th technical, TSB got called on a second technical foul. Black again went to the free-throw line and hit, giving him four straight free throws. Dixon Goodwin then sank two free throws for TSB on the 197th technical foul.

Scoring finished light in the final minute of the game as both teams appeared to be tiring. The score at the final buzzer, however, gave the 197th a 94-81 victory and a first-half season championship. Scoring had completely told the story; not rebounds or turnovers.

Scoring leader for both squads was Townsend with 30 points . . . four points above his season average.

TSB placed two others in double figures; Goodwin finished with 16 and Springer with 15 points. Leading TSB rebounder was Goodwin with 12 rebounds.

The 197th dominated the boards by a slim margin, 59-50. Leading 197th rebounder was Brockington with 21 grabs. Travers was second with 12 rebounds.

Fifty turnovers were committed during the game. Both TSB and the 197th finished with 25 turnovers each.

The 197th scoring was lead by Black with 22 points. Twelve of Blacks points were scored at the free-throw line.

Black was followed closely by Brockington and Ingram with 21 and 20 points, respectively. Campbell finished with 18 points.

ROD AND GUN CLUB Notes

By Bill Kloeb

Winners of the Fort Benning Rod and Gun Club 1970-71 deer hunting contest received prizes at the club headquarters last Friday evening.

Model 37, Ithaca Deerslayer Shotguns went to SSgt. Lemuel Boozer, HHC, TSB for the largest deer, Capt. George E. Dial, 20th Co., TSB for the buck with the largest rack and to Hazelton Cogar, the junior hunter bagging the largest deer.

The winner of a fourth shotgun was selected by chance from the names of all hunters who had registered deer kills during the contest. The lucky man was SFC (Ret.) John L. Davis, 3030 Clay Street.

The club also presented other prizes to eight members. Charles Rock, James Whatley, John Gause, Warren H. Green, John A. Smith, Sam Walls and Bobby Tucker each received five boxes of shotgun shells.

Ridley Bell, station manager of WRBL Radio and Television stations and Lt. Col. Charles Rock, club president, made the presentations... Members who missed the proceedings last Friday can see them on Bell's weekly show, "Sportsmans Lodge" on WRBL TV-3 tomorrow at 6 p.m.

Boat Show

Boat owners and would-be owners can see how sweet it could be when the Columbus Marine Dealers Association holds its thirteenth annual boat show at the Municipal Auditorium this weekend. For the next three days what's new in boats and boat supplies will be on display for inspection by the public.

The Auditorium will be open from 2 p.m. until 10 p.m. today and tomorrow and from 1 p.m. until 7 p.m. Sunday.

New models this year feature additional safety features, more economical use of space and more sophisticated accessories. You'll see all type models from the simplest outboard to the deluxe inboard models loaded with modern conveniences to make eyes pop, mouth water and pocketbook flat.

Hunters Are Cautioned

Hunters in Stewart, Quitman and Randolph Counties are cautioned to be alert for Fort Benning soldiers conducting individual and small unit patrol training.

Hunters should always make absolute identification of game before firing but it is necessary to be especially alert in these areas because of the subdued and camouflage garb of the soldiers.

Monthly Fishing Derby

The bream must not be biting too well. It's past the middle of the month and there hasn't been a single entry in the contest. The bass and catfish fishermen are doing well though. SSgt. Chester A. Constransith, 524th Personnel Services Co. leads the bass contest with a ten-pound fifteen-ounce entry he took from King's Pond using a hellbender lure, and Capt. Frank Shaw, Dental Section is still leading the catfish contest with an eight-pound fifteen-ounce fish he caught at King's.

The Rod and Gun Club holds a fishing derby each month. Members registering the largest bream, catfish and bass receive prizes. This month each winner will receive a fifteen dollar merchandise order.

To win in the contest, members must register at the club before going fishing, catch the fish from one of the reservation ponds and register them at the club headquarters.

Deer Season Results

The 1970-71 deer season is over and according to Roy Johnson, head of the Post Game and Fish Unit it was a big success. Hunters registered 487 deer at the unit check station. This was the largest number registered since hunting has been opened on the reservation.

During the doe season 73 females were examined by fish and game personnel. Ninety per cent of these animals were found to be pregnant. These results indicate another big season next year.

There was, however, one statistic that wasn't good. During the season the fish and game unit found 27 dead deer that had been wounded by hunters and allowed to escape. This indicates that too many hunters are not making enough effort to run down the deer they shoot.

Cycle races draw local competitors

By Bill O'Brian

Over 300 riders and spectators turned out in a cold drizzling rain for a motorcycle motorcross race Jan. 10. Everyone termed it a success.

The Tri-County Championship race was won by Mitch Burns on a 175CC Honda after a hard, determined battle. Following was Jim Brannon on a 250 CZ who spent time in the pits repairing damage received in a fall. Third was Bill Pace on a 360 Yamaha, and fourth was David Fendrick on a 125 Yamaha.

The Open Class Competition was won by Bill Pace who came to the track as a spectator and borrowed a 360 Yamaha from Tony Gamble, a Montgomery dealer. Following Bill's borrowed Yamaha, third and fourth respectively was Jack Pryor, Bultaco; and Ralph Olson, CZ.

250 class was a CZ ruoaway by Jim Brannon who showed everyone the fast way 'round. Following Jim was Jimbo Elliott, Bultaco; James Annis, CZ; and Maurice Steinbeck, Ossa. Elliott and Annis had the hardest fought race of the day between each other as neither one led for long at the time.

The 125 was won by David Fendrick, Yamaha; followed by Buster Barber, Yamaha; Tommy Wages Jr. Honda; and Steve Douglas Yamaha.

Mitch Burns Honda also won the 100cc class, followed closely by Tommy Wilkirtson, Hodaka; Gary Wood, Honra; and Bill Buckingham, Suzuki.

Bill Williams easily won the street class with John Alexander, Frank Duncan, and Jan Mitchell rounding out the top four.

The surprise event of the day was a Powder Puff race won by Sandi Knight on a Honda; second place, Michelle Summerlin riding a CZ, followed by Gloria Wages riding a Honda. The Mini Bike Class was won by Rudy Boutwell on a Yamaha who very easily ran away with it.

All riders expressed enjoyment and said they would be back Jan. 24 for the next race, as each race of the series gains points for a seasonal high-point championship trophy.

NCO wives set breakfast

The monthly breakfast for the NCO Wives Club will be held Jan. 27 at 9 a.m. at the Sand Hill NCO Club. There is no charge for the breakfast, but reservations are required. Any member, guest or prospective member wishing to attend is asked to call one of the hostesses, Mrs. H. T. Grice (545-4427) or Mrs. Milton Jumper (545-1428). Reservation deadline is January 25.

The menu for January's breakfast is scrambled eggs, home fries, sausage, toast, jam, tea or coffee.

A free breakfast is given on the fourth Wednesday of each month. All NCO wives attached to Fort Benning are invited to make reservations to attend.

Wives of retired NCO's or those whose husband's are stationed elsewhere may become associate members and attend all club functions. For further information, contact the club president, Mrs. Edward Kitchens (689-6337). Join your friends and meet new ones at the NCO Wives Club meetings.

3 Barracudas named to state all-star team

Three members of the Fort Benning Barracuda Swim Team have been named "All-star" swimmers by the Georgia State Amateur Athletic Union.

Robert Kenyon, John Misiak and Paul Bordon were selected for this honor because of their aquatic accomplishments during 1970.

Kenyon, a sophomore at Columbus High School specializes in the freestyle event. Last year he placed third in the 13- to 14-year-olds event at the State Junior Olympic Matches held here. He later placed third in the Regional Matches held at High Point, N. C.

John Misiak, who swam in the group for boys 10 years and younger last year established a time record for that group in the breast stroke event at the Junior Olympics. He was also a member of the Baracuda 200 yard medley team which placed first in a regional match at St. Simons Island, Ga.

Paul Bordon, an eighth grade student at St. Anne Elementary School competes in the 100 yard freestyle and 50 yard breast stroke events. He bettered Georgia State time standards in both events during the Junior Olympic Matches and the Atlanta Open Matches for 11 to 12-year-old boys.

Baker places first in Tam-Co matches

The Reserve Officers Training Corps of the Muscogee County School District held the ninth annual smallbore outdoor Tam-Co rifle matches between Muscogee County and Tampa, Fla. Schools at Parks International Rifle Range Saturday.

Rifle teams from Hillsborough, Chamberlain and Plant high schools of Tampa and teams from Baker, Carver, Columbus, Hardaway, Jordan, Kendrick and Spencer high schools from Muscogee County fired in the event.

Baker High School won the event to retain the Tam-Co team trophy for another year, Jordan High School was second and Hardaway was third.

Ralph Ghent of Hardaway won individual honors, Bob Aultman of Baker was second and Steve Burts of Hardaway third.

Engineers lose close bout with 197th basketballers

By Frank Cover

Wednesday was a challenging night for the 931st Engineer Group. The 197th Infantry Brigade proved to be tough "hoopball" competitors.

While the 931st Engineers never led on the score board, the scores were close until well into the fourth quarter. Final score was 68-50 in favor of the 197th Infantry Brigade.

High scorer for the Engineers was Jerry Young, scoring 17 points. With the pressure on, a close score, and the beginning of the game's second half, Engineer Anthony Frotho intercepted a pass intended for 197th's Addison Ingram; a quick relay to Michael O'Leary, who, with a quick layup shot, sank another basket for the Engineers. Bill Mavredes was a frequent shooter and scored 20 per cent of the Engineer's points.

Despite the Engineer's inability to gain rebound superiority, they managed to gain possession of the ball via frequent interceptions and stealings. Anthony Protho set the example with his ability to capture the ball with frequent interception of opponent's passes.

The word was in the back of the minds of thousands of Dallas fans when the Cowboys and Colts stampeded on the field for the fifth annual Super Bowl last Sunday.

The word was all but banished from their brains throughout the first half and well into the third quarter, as the Texans completely outclassed their stumbling, bumbling rivals from Baltimore. But it quietly crept back into their consciousness when the slumbering Colts caught fire in the final period. And it moved to the forefront of their thoughts the moment Tom Nowatzke zipped over from the Cowboy two to knot the contest at 13 all.

However, it was only when five seconds were left in the game, when the football, propelled from the toe of rookie Jim O'Brien, sailed loftily above the crossbars 32 yards away, and when the referee's arms swung up to the sky, that the word traveled swiftly through the larynx, to the mouth and then formed on the lips of countless, confounded Dallas partisans.

Choke!

This is a harsh term to pin on any sports team, particularly a pro club. It's a word that implies the inability to win under pressure, the tendency to let up when the chips are down.

But this stigma now is branded indelibly on the Cowboys like a Circle R or Lazy J is on fat Texas steer. Dallas has gone a long way to earn this dubious distinction. For the last several years, their repeated success at blowing the big ones has been legend. But this season, when they let some city slickers from Yankee Country rustle 'nway a victory that truly belonged to them, the patience of Cowboys boosters evaporated completely.

Always a Bridesmaid

The Super Bowl made its debut in 1966, and the Cowboys have been prime contenders every year. But each time they ended as gridiron bridesmaids. On two occasions they didn't come close, as Cleveland and Minnesota solidly hammered them. They had, however, two spine-tingling affairs with the titans from Packerville — and by the law of averages should have won one.

They didn't. In the first game, Dallas — a TD down — drove to the Green Bay two in the last minute of play. However, the stingy Packer defense mounted an impregnable goal line stand and when time elapsed on the Cotton Bowl clock, the score was the same.

The following year saw the reverse. With 11 seconds to play, Dallas nursed a 17-14 lead, but the persistent Packers were fourth-and-goal on the Cowboy one-foot line. Immortal Vince spurned the tie — and a shivering Wisconsin crowd exploded in happy bedlam as Bart Starr shoved the ball across on a quarterback sneak for the title-winning score.

Then came this year. A sports writer once suggested — in jest — that balletub standings include three results: games won, lost — and "should-have-won." The Cowboys should have won Sunday. They had every opportunity, and had they taken advantage of just one break, they might have put the match on ice.

Never Top Banana

In the first half, Baltimore seemed hell-bent to give away the contest — and its $15,000 per man purse. But Dallas wouldn't accept. "We made so many mistakes," Baltimore's fill-in QB Earl Morrall said, "for a while it looked like a re-run of 1969." Actually, for most of the game, the Colts had looked better against the Jets. With Unitas sidelined with fractured ribs, extra point conversions being blocked and people like Jim Duncan fumbling kickoffs, it appeared like the Colts were on the ropes. But Dallas could not turn Baltimore miscues into scoreboard points for themselves.

Dallas' luck was as wretched as in earlier years. It's as though that "Li'l Abner" character who sports a black cloud over his noggin and carries ill fortune like a tse-tse fly bears sleeping sickness, had been bugging the Dallas bench.

Dallas coach Tom Landry was red-eyed after the game. Tears may seem inconsistent with the steely image of a football coach. But coming on top of his other near-misses, this must have been the bitterest defeat of his career. Landry has become football's William Jennings Bryan. Bryan, you will recall from American history, is the gent who ran for the White House three times but never became a resident.

Like Bryan, it seems that Landry — and his Cowboys — are just not cut out to be top banana.

1-29 cagers battle to brigade tournament

By Bob Wise

Jerrel Frazier of HHC, 1st Bn., 29th Inf., poured in 32 points against Co. B, leading his company to an 85-51 victory last week and insuring it of a battalion championship.

HHC's victory brought its season record to 7-1. HHC will now compete with five other battalion champion teams in the 197th Inf. Bde. Tournament which begins in two weeks.

The only other battalion which has decided a champion is the 1st Bn., 58th Inf. The winner and runner-up of the brigade tournament will represent the 197th in the post-wide competition, next month.

The 5th Bn., 31st Inf., played its heaviest schedule of the season last week. Previously unbeaten HHC dropped its first victory but retained its first-place standing in the battalion. Defeating HHC on a 50-47 squeaker, was Co. C. HHC came back, however, to trample Co. E, 75-50, and Co. D, 63-52. Co D moved in to second place after beating Co. B, 78-71; Co. C, 79-61, and Co. E, 91-35.

Elsewhere in 5-31st cage action, Co. A outscored Co. B, 60-36, and moved up to third place; Co. E downed Co. B, 60-57; Co. B got by Co. C, 57-51; and Co. C beat Co. E, 69-53.

Two games were played in the 2nd Bn., 10th Arty., as B Btry., downed the officers of HHS, 60-40, and the HHS soldiers had to play an overtime to get by the combined team of D Btry., E Btry., and the 163rd Chem. Plat. (DE183), 54-52.

The 197th Support Bn., came closer to deciding its champion. The Bearcubs of Co. A took three more games, increasing their record to 8-0, on defeats of Co. D, 76-28; a forfeit from Co. D, 91st Engr.; and a 64-48 victory over the combined HHC, 197th Inf. Bde. and 72nd Eng. Co. team. Three other Support Bn., scheduled games last week saw Co. D, 91st Engr. Co. forfeit to both Co. D and HHC-72nd; and HHC-72nd won over Co. D, 59-41.

Benning House provides self-help for the alcoholic pling with the same problem. An alcoholic can pick up another's depression instantly. "And I'm sure that anyone involved in the program would be willing to assist a fellow resident, day or night.

"We have no magic wand here," the specialist said of the staff. "The most we can do is guide these people in the right direction. They do the rest. If there are experts on alcoholism, they are the alcoholics themselves."

One of the suppositions of the Benning House program is that alcoholism is an illness which must be treated. Nevertheless, the alcoholic still has an extremely unfavorable public image.

Commented one patient whom this reporter interviewed: "There is a stigma on the alcoholic. Put a cancer patient in the street and people will feel sorry for him. Not so with us."

Unlike society's general opinions of the alcoholic, the members of the Benning House staff do not view their patients as hopeless drunks who are unwilling and unable to assume any responsibility.

"We instill responsibility by putting it right on their shoulders," Conner stated. "At the resident council, for instance, the patients govern themselves. We are only consultants.

"If someone wants a pass, the residents vote on it. If they know the man has been drinking or otherwise disobeying the rules of the House, they probably will say 'no.'

"The staff rarely overrules their decisions. We only work with a man three hours a day. The patients live with him."

Residents tend to be strict with persistent offenders. "A man is allowed one slip here," Conner said. "After this, the council can take any action they wish — even boot him out if necessary." "And," he added, "they are usually right."

Conner related the case of one person who dropped the program, drank for a month, then applied to get back in. "The staff was skeptical" he recalled, "But the residents — after putting him through a real grilling — recommended he be readmitted. We concurred, and this particular patient graduated as one of our best students."

Has the program been a success? "It depends how you look at it," Henry said. "Of all the legal separations and divorces our patients had pending when they entered, not one materialized. None have been in an auto accident caused by alcohol. And only one was readmitted to the hospital for alcoholism.

"But," he continued, "too many people want us to guarantee that 100 per cent of our people will be sober evermore. We, of course, cannot promise this."

To lick alcoholism is difficult and requires a great deal of motivation. "It's a rough business," Henry granted. "A patient must have his mind made up to quit drinking, or he won't make it. They must want to be here themselves and not just to satisfy their wife or commander."

One of the staff's biggest problems has been publicity, letting people know that help is available.

Although post commanders have been overwhelmingly favorable to the program — and particularly delighted that treatment would take place during off-duty hours — the average soldier generally does not know about Benning House.

And many small-unit commanders still consider alcoholism a punitive matter. "It's like giving a person who has leukemia a bust," Henry said. "By treating alcoholism as a disease or behavioral disorder, the Army through updated treatment could save a lot of potentially good soldiers."

No pumpkin changes—only OCS students

Last Friday the members of Officer Candidate Class 7-71 sat watching the clock, like Cinderella, waiting for the bewitching hour.

But unlike Cinderella, nothing turned into a pumpkin — but 114 happy young men turned into Senior Candidates.

The reaching of senior status means more to the officer candidate than the mere exchanging of the accoutrements of an intermediate candidate for the white scarf and helmet liner insignia of the senior candidate. Senior status carries with it a greater amount of prestige as other candidates are required to give the senior candidate the same courtesy and respect given to a commissioned officer.

The reaching of senior status was determined by a Senior Status Review conducted Saturday at York Field.

ASK THE MAN FROM EQUITABLE ABOUT THE PLANNED SECURITY POLICY!

Find out how you can get a comprehensive life insurance program in one policy. A policy that provides for your family, if you die: 1. Lump sum cash payment for beneficiary. 2. Monthly income while children are growing up. For you, if you live: 3. Cash for your own retirement.

Planned Security combines permanent life insurance with term insurance. The permanent life insurance builds cash values and helps you save. The decreasing term insurance provides extra protection when your family needs it most. All at an unchanging, low premium.

To get the complete story on Planned Security, call The Man from Equitable.

Brushing up

It's easy to tell that Mark R. Meadows is "big" on keeping one's molars, bicuspids and incisors clean and white. With "Happi Tooth" looking on approvingly, Mark, a pupil at Fort Benning's Dexter School, holds high an oversized toothbrush in a symbolic gesture of support for National Children Dental Health Week, to be held Feb. 7-13. Youngsters — like Mark — in the post's elementary schools will be observing this special week with a poster contest.

Agencies must consult CSC on classifications

Federal agencies are now required to consult with the U. S. Civil Service Commission before committing classification actions affecting a significant number of positions.

As a general rule, consultation with CSC will be required when 50 or more jobs are affected, but circumstances may indicate consultation in some cases when fewer jobs are involved, CSC said.

Under the Classification Act of 1949, the commission is responsible for establishing policies, developing and issuing standards, and deciding appeals. Agencies are primarily responsible for classifying positions in accordance with guides and standards issued by the commission.

Having achieved pay comparibility with the private sector, classification action not in conformity with standards seriously distort the comparability process, the commission observes.

Also, the impact of position classification decisions affecting sizeable groups of jobs in one agency can frequently have an impact on other agencies. Thus, a significant error could distort the government's classification structure.

Handicapped veterans can get special tags

ATLANTA—With license tag offices all over the state now busy issuing the new five - year license plates, Georgia Veterans Service Director Pete Wheeler today reminded handicapped veterans of the new legislation now in effect regarding the special "HV" license tags which are granted to certain severely disabled veterans who lost limbs, use of limbs, or eyesight as a result of military service.

"As of Jan. 1, 1971," said Wheeler, "qualified veterans are allowed to use the free, distinctively marked 'HV' license tags on pick-up trucks, station wagons, van-type vehicles of three-quarter ton or less, or on automobiles, but the tag may be used only on one vehicle." Previously the special tag could be used only on passenger cars.

Wheeler added, "Eligibility for the 'HV' tags has also been extended to include those veterans who were disabled by the loss of only one eye due to service-connected causes."

Application for a special "HV" license plate may be made through the veteran's county tax collector who will then forward the request to the State Revenue Department for issuance of the tag.

Stamp guide goes loose-leaf

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — "Postage Stamps of the United States," the Post Office Department's perennially best-selling reference publication, has been updated and is now available in loose-leaf form.

The publication contains detailed data on stamps issued from 1847 to the National History commemoratives of May, 1970.

Price of the publication, with flexible 3-ring binder is $3.75. It is available without binder for $2. Mail orders should be directed to the Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. 204-29.

The illustrated text is 241 pages. Additionally, there is an appendix of philatelic statistics which lists date and place of issue, designer, engravers, covers cancelled, quantity printed and plate numbers.

In the future, this basic book will be updated with annual supplements, officials noted.

Sky marshals will soon train at Ft. Belvoir

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Treasury Department's Sky Marshal school will be moved early this year from Washington, D. C., to nearby Ft. Belvoir, Va.

The school will be operated as a division of the Treasury's Consolidated Law Enforcement Training Center, said Eugene Rossides, assistant secretary of the Treasury for enforcement and operations.

Lock-in is out

WASHINGTON (ANF) — The so-called lock-in policy that required a newly promoted individual to complete two years in the new grade before being eligible for retirement has been suspended until June 30, 1972.

Individuals serving in pay grades, 06, 05 W4, W3, E9, E8, and E7 who have completed all other service obligations and who are otherwise eligible may voluntarily retire between now and June 30, 1972, providing they have completed six months active duty in that grade.

Officers who meet the following description will not be release involuntarily from active duty as a result of the suspension: Officers of the reserve components and the Army of the United States (AUS) without component who are serving beyond 20 years of service as an exception to policy and who are serving on promotion lock-in or who are on recommended AUS promotion list.

However, such officers may voluntarily retire under the new policy!

HORNET SPORTABOUT: Roomy, economical, compact maneuverability and an option list that can turn it into the perfect first car, second car, third car, fourth car...

We'll solve a young family's transportation and entertainment problems by including a free GE TV with every new Sportabout.

Money problems often loom large during those first family years. And that makes economical, practical, low-cost transportation a must. Which is why American/Import Motors' 1971 Hornet Sportabout is an undisguished blessing. The standard Sportabout has a miserly six-cylinder engine and a very practical 60.8 cu. ft. of cargo space all wrapped up in a compact (but very snazzy) package. No other manufacturer has anything like it. And no other dar dealer will go to the lengths American/Import Motors will to put you in a Sportabout at a price you can afford.

Now American/Import Motors will make it even easier on the family cookie jar. Take delivery of a new Sportabout from American/Import Motors between now and February 28, 1971, and we'll include a free GE portable television set.

That makes for an entertaining deal in a lot of ways.

GET A FREE TV WITH EVERY NEW AMERICAN MOTORS CAR DELIVERED BY FEBRUARY 28, 1971! The set offered is the 12" General Electric Adventurer 74 monochrome portable with UHF-VHF tuning and solid copper circuitry.

*The rate of basic pay for employees at these rates is limited by section 5308 of title 5 of the United States Code, as added by the Federal Pay Comparability Act of 1970, to the rate for level V of the Executive Schedule (as of the effective date of this salary adjustment, $36,000).

Civilian pay scale

Shown are the new pay rates for appropriated fund employes in general service positions at Fort Benning. The pay increase, authorized Jan. 8 by the Federal Pay Comparability Act of 1970, will start Feb. 4, retroactive to the end of the first pay period in January. Increases for nonappropriated fund employes in Category A at the post become effective at the same time. The new schedule reflects an average increase of 5.9 percent in basic compensation rates.

VA changes rates on 2 programs

Interest rate changes on two G.I. insurance programs have been announced by the Veterans Administration.

Effective now, the interest rate paid by veterans on money borrowed on their government life insurance policies will be 5 per cent. The old rate of 4 per cent—in effect more than 24 years—will continue to apply to all loans made before Jan. 11.

The interest VA pays on insurance dividends left to accumulate by veterans holding World War II type National Service Life Insurance policies (with a "V" prefix) was increased from 4 to 4.25 per cent effective Jan. 1, 1971.

Dividends left with VA for these NSLI policies totaled about $283 million at the end of 1970, exceeding by $10 million the amount left with VA at the end of 1969.

The higher interest rate paid by VA results from greater interest earnings in the NSLI trust fund.

About 105,000 policy loans amounting to nearly $136 million were made to veterans in 1970.

Cemetery rules on traffic flow

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Tourist traffic in private vehicles through Arlington National Cemetery has been curtailed by the Department of the Army in an effort to eliminate traffic-jams and disruption of funeral ceremonies.

Under a traffic control plan effective Dec. 14, the only private vehicles permitted into Arlington are those carrying persons to visit the gravesite of a friend or relatives, those associated with funeral processions and those carrying the handicapped or aged. All other visitors must travel by special tourmobiles or official vehicle.

A Department of the Interior concessionaire is operating the tourmobile service throughout the cemetery.

Members appointed to post-wide Soldier's Council

Sp 4 Patrick McGlincy has been named president of Fort Benning's Soldier's Council, another outgrowth of the Modern Volunteeer Army (VOLAR) experiment currently in progress on post.

Sp4 John Blair was named vice-president of the council in its first meeting last week.

McGlincy is assigned to HHC, 1st Bn. 58th Inf. 197th Inf. Bde. Blair is a member of the 546th Med Co. MEDDAC.

Col. Jim D. Keirsey, chief of staff of the Infantry Center, was a guest at the first meeting of the council. He outlined some of the philosophy behind the council and the VOLAR experiment.

Center CSM Charles H. Fletcher, who is adviser to the council, also spoke to the group about VOLAR.

Besides electing officers at the first meeting, the council decided:

—To hold weekly meetings. Alternate members from the six major commands that appointed members to the post Soldier's Council will attend two meetings monthly.

—Compiled a list of topics to be discussed at future meetings. Topping the list were the VOLAR program and the problem of having persons assigned to jobs outside their Military Occupational Specialty.

Under the Modern Volunteer Army Program, each major unit, down to battalion level, is supposed to create its own soldier's council.

Members of the post-wide soldier's council were appointed on orders by each of the major commands.

49er or bust

These "old timers" are slowly making their way by covered wagon to the Daughters of the U.S. Army sponsored 49er Party on March 6 at the Fort Benning Officers Club. Tickets for the gold rush days gala event go on sale today at the Officers Club and its subsidiaries for $1 each. DUSA has set a $10,000 goal for the party. The proceeds will go toward construction of a day-care nursery in the proposed post exchange complex near Martin Army Hospital. Driving the covered wagon are (l-r) Mrs. Erik Van Brero, Mrs. Jame Wheaton (dressed as coal miner), and Mrs. Craiger Parker.

Motel units to expand guest house capacity

By Wendell Cochran

Beginning next week Fort Benning's guest house facilities will be moved off-post and be expanded and improved as part of the Modern Volunteer Army (VOLAR) experiment.

Fifty-two units in the Camellia Motel complex have been leased for use as guest houses from Feb. 1 through June 30.

The 52 units—to be located in a group at Camellia—will increase the guest house capacity from 154 to 182, Quentin E. Fagan, post billeting officer, said.

On-post guest houses will be closed during the period of the lease with Camellia, he pointed out.

Besides expanding the guest house facilities, the leased units also in-

Fletcher seeks successful transition to MVA

Permissive NCOs who don't do their jobs is one of the big problems impeding a successful transition to a Modern Volunteer Army, said Fort Benning's top noncom, CSM Charles Fletcher.

"We MUST require that these NCOs do the job they are paid to do," Fletcher said. "They MUST understand that there can be no relaxation of appearance or conduct standards just because sideburns can be worn to the middle of the ear, because a soldier can drink a beer in his quarters or because civilian society is more liberal than it was two or three years ago."

Fletcher's comments were made recently at a 3rd Army Sergeant Major's Conference attended by 17 senior NCOs from this Army area.

Fletcher said his commitment to a Modern Volunteer Army, of which Banning's VOLAR (Volunteer Army) is a pilot project, is "not because I've been told to do it. If I were against it and they told me to do it, I'd get out."

CSM Charles Fletcher

Some other comments by the senior sergeants major attending the conference supported Fletcher's views.

CSM Donald Meyer, Ft. McPherson CSM, said "the only thing wrong with the Modern Volunteer Army is that we are 13 or 14 years too late in starting."

CSM Bob L. Williams, formerly CSM of the Infantry School and now CSM of 3rd Army, said, "The challenge of the program is the greatest the Army has faced outside of the battlefield." In echoing Fletcher's observation about the NCO's role in a modern Army, Williams added: "One problem we could face is the lackadaisical NCO who won't accept it."

This, he said, may lead to bad feelings between higher NCOs and the lower ranking soldiers. He added, however, that good NCOs have long been in favor of many of the changes envisioned by VOLAR.

This post is one of three installations advancing new ideas to make Army life more attractive. Many of the ideas come directly from the soldier most affected, like elimination of KP.

Fort Benning is the first Army post to do away with military KPs and replace them with civilians. Soldiers will continue to perform details (other than KP) in their unit areas, but they are out of the mess halls for good if this VOLAR action is accepted Army-wide.

But these remaining details will make more sense, said Fletcher, who questions along with other VOLAR officials why a soldier must cut grass with a bayonet or pick up leaves by hand when lawnmowers and rakes are more efficient.

Good vibrations

The Lawson Field Officers Club has been reopened under the Modern Volunteer Army (VOLAR) program. The Lawson Field facility, located in the 4th Student Battalion area, caters mostly to young, single officers. One of the main attractions is rock music, provided primarily by local rock bands. The club is open Wednesday through Sunday nights.

Isaac honored graduate

2nd Lt. Garon J. Isaac was the distinguished graduate of Infantry Officer Basic Course (IOBC) Class 10-71, 24th Co., 2nd Stu. Bn., TSB, which graduated in ceremonies Jan. 21 at Marshall Auditorium.

Col. John L. Ostoch Jr., director of the Company Operations Department, delivered the commencement address to the 169 graduates.

Isaac, 22, is a graduate of Seattle University, Seattle, Wash., with a bachelor of science degree in chemistry.

The nine-week IOBC program is designed to provide branch training for officers of the active Army, National Guard, and the Army Reserve. The students were taught the duties and responsibilities of company grade officers. Included in the course of instruction were small arms, mortar, company and platoon operations.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT
by Bill King

If you like cream in your scrambled eggs, try adding it just as the eggs start to set, rather than before cooking.

The famous Long Island duckling industry began a hundred years ago, when a sea captain returned to Long Island with several white Peking ducks he brought from China.

For winter school lunches, put hot sandwich fillings—meat balls, meatloaf, "sloppy Joes", etc.—into small wide-mouthed vacuum jars, and pack bread or buns separately.

Slash broccoli stems lengthwise in several places so that they will cook as tender as the buds.

For cocktail calorie-counters: a general rule is that the proof of an ounce of liquor is about equal to its calories; that is, the ounce of 80-proof Scotch equals 80 calories. Add about 5 calories for low-calorie mixer.

Why not treat yourself to dinner here this week?

2 medals awarded posthumously to SFC

The Silver Star and the Purple Heart were awarded posthumously to SFC David B. Hayes for his gallantry in action against an armed hostile force in the Republic of Vietnam on July 13, 1970.

Mrs. Hayes and sons David, Jimmy and Richard, of Columbus, accepted the awards from Col. Robert P. Hatcher, assistant post commander, in ceremonies here Jan. 19. Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy E. Hayes, parents of SFC Hayes, Maj. (Ret.) and Mrs. Herman L. Andrews, parents of Mrs. Hayes, and the soldier's sister, also attended the presentation of decorations.

SFC Hayes distinguished himself while serving as an assistant team leader with the Special Operations Augmentation, Command and Control Detachment Control, 5th Special Forces Group (Airborne), 1st Special Forces.

As SFC Hayes and his comrades of a long range reconnaissance team maneuvered deep within enemy controlled territory, they were ambushed from the rear by an element of enemy troops.

"Although seriously wounded in the initial burst of fire," the citation said, "SFC Hayes remained in an exposed position to place suppressive fire on the hostile force, thereby enabling his comrades to organize a hasty defensive position. He continued his determined efforts in an effective manner until he collapsed from the severity of his wounds."

Prior to his death, SFC Hayes had been awarded the Bronze Star Medal, Air Medal, Good Conduct Medal with four Bronze Loops, National Defense Service Medal, Armed Forces Expeditionary Medal, Vietnam Service Medal, Vietnam Campaign Medal, Combat Infantryman Badge and the Expert Badge with automatic rifle bar.

Byline Bayonet

(Byline Bayonet welcomes questions of general interest about Fort Benning and the Army. Within space limitations, all reasonable questions will be answered. Questions of a purely military nature which obviously could be answered more properly by commander or supervisors within the chain of command will not be accepted. Questions must be signed with current unit of assignment indicated. Send questions to The Bayonet, Room 602, Infantry Hall.)

Q—Why has the Main Post Theater been holding only one movie showing a night, rather than the two they previously presented each evening?

A—Says the post theater officer: "Prior to Christmas, attendance was so low that, for economic reasons, the Army and Air Force Motion Picture Service decided to cut showings to one per night. However, beginning tonight the Main Post Theater will resume its regular two-shows-a-night schedule."

Q—In the past few weeks I have seen many styles of haircuts appearing in various lengths. Can you tell me what the policy is on this under VOLAR.

A—The policy has not changed! In a TWX (5-4412) dated 26 May 70, the Department of the Army gave us policy and guidance. The TWX had this to say:

"Haircuts, without reference to style, will conform to the following standards: The hair on top of the head will be neatly trimmed but will not be cut to less than one inch unless the individual specifically requests that it be cut shorter. The maximum length will not exceed 3 inches.

"In all cases the bulk of length of the hair will not interfere with the normal wear of all standard military headgear required in the performance of duty. The sides and back will be trimmed and evenly tapered. The sides and back of the head will not be shaven or excessively clipped unless specifically requested by the individual.

"Sideburns will be tapered in the same manner as the remainder of the hair on the sides of the head. The base of the sideburn will not extend downward beyond a line parallel to the ground and drawn horizontally through the center of the ear canal."

Q—I do not own a topcoat and cannot afford to buy one at this time. Is it permissiable to wear my field jacket during off-duty hours?

A—Yes! IF YOU ARE IN FATIGUES! You are not authorized to mix military and civilian attire. The field or flight jacket is issued for wear as part of the uniform only and will NOT be worn with civilian attire. Sponsors should prohibit their dependents from wearing this jacket with civilian clothing, with or without insignia, patches, etc. For further information you can call DPCA at 545-4811 or you may look in the regulation that covers this matter. The reg. is AR 376-5.

Q—I was a chaplain attached to an Army unit in Vietnam. Am I entitled to any veteran benefits?

A—You are entitled to the same benefits as any honorably discharged veteran. See and write your VA regional office for specific information on any benefit in which you are interested.

The judge says

'Act of God' hard to prove in court

USAIC LEGAL ASSISTANCE OFFICE — Where Charles Frost lived, winter temperatures often fell below zero. One day he scraped the frost from his windshield and headed to work. Near a bridge he saw a car coming toward him. Braking to slow down, he skidded his car into the oncoming car which Shirley was driving.

Shirley sued. Charles told the court that ice had made the road slick and through no fault of his own, he lost control of his car.

But the court awarded Shirley damages for her injuries. While in legal terms, ice, wind, and rain are "acts of God," winter ice where Charles lived was so common he should have allowed for it. Besides, Charles had often crossed the bridge and should have been prepared for a slick road. He would have to pay for Shirley's injuries.

For a defense of "act of God" to stand up in court, the defendant must show that the cause of the accident was extraordinary and unforeseeable, a hard thing to prove.

A hurricane where they are unheard of, an earthquake where they are unknown, a heavy snowfall where snow has been unknown before, might well be a defense against a suit for damages brought about by the "act of God."

Likewise, sometimes a person can claim "unavoidable accident" to defend a law suit. An apparently healthy young man who has a sudden heart attack and drives his car into another car is not likely to be held liable if he lives.

Sometimes, things are so unusual that no one could foresee an accident. In one case a woman was waiting on the platform to board a train near the scales. Some distance away, trying to help a man catch a train, a conductor shoved him as he boarded a crowded train. The shove dislodged a package of fireworks from under the passenger's arm. When they landed the fireworks flew up and overturned the scales which fell and injured the waiting women.

The woman sued and lost. No one could possibly have foreseen such a chain of events, court said. The poor woman was a victim of an "unforeseeable accident." Nobody was to blame.

Further inquiries concerning this or any similar legal matter should be referred to your lawyer or Legal Assistance Officer.

Let's all roll up our sleeves

President Richard Nixon has proclaimed this month as National Blood donor Month. Throughout the nation, local blood collection agencies will conduct concerted drives to gather, process, store, and administer the precious life-sustaining substance.

In line with the occasion, and to draw public attention to it, the Post Office will issue a special stamp, saluting blood donors and urging increased participation in blood programs.

Medicine has made vast strides in blood research since the first human blood transfusion was made in London more than 150 years ago. A vast variety of blood components have been identified and separated from whole blood; they serve to combat a variety of diseases.

In his Blood Donor Month proclamation, President Nixon noted: "Among the noblest acts of personal generosity is the gift of one's blood for the benefit of another. It is a contribution to health and life for which there is no substitute."

Let us all roll up our sleeves and get down to the serious business of blood donation. Make an appointment to donate blood today.

Soldiers can take course in HS math

High school classes in general math will be offered free of charge beginning Feb. 10 at the Sand Hill Education Center, Bldg. 3385.

The course runs for eight weeks from 6:30 to 9 p.m. Ending April 5, the course also will feature a review for the general test offered by the Army. A retest on this subject is offered to those wishing to improve their promotion possibilies, and this course will help prepare for it.

For further information call the Sand Hill Education Center at 544-7124.

Voice of VOLAR

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This feature will provide information about recent changes and proposals being made under the "Benning Plan" for a Modern Volunteer Army — VOLAR.)

CHANGES MADE

- The first Student Affairs Officer has been appointed by the Infantry School. His mission is to act as a point of contact between the students and the Infantry School.
- A five-month lease has been completed with Camellia Motel to provide 52 units for use as guest house facilities. Thirty of the units are to become available Feb. 1 and the other 22 will be opened Feb. 15.
- Details are to be performed on as equitable a basis as possible. The exempt-from-duty status will be eliminated from Fort Benning duty rosters where possible.

PROPOSALS

- As partitioned barracks and separate rooms become reality at Fort Benning, soldiers will be allowed to decorate their rooms, in good taste. Small furniture items also will be permitted.

January--a month for soldiers

A Tennessee soldier became a national hero on a foggy January morning 165 years ago when he resoundingly defeated an army of British regulars at the Battle of New Orleans.

Nine years later, also in the month of January, a boy was born to a rural couple in an area that is now West Virginia. That boy later also became a national hero by his skill and courage on the field of combat.

Coincidentally, both were named Jackson, and similarly, both their nicknames express solid, unswerving strength: Andrew, the hero of the Battle of New Orleans, was known as "Old Hickory;" Thomas, the boy who became a Civil War hero, was called "Stonewall."

Regardless of their accomplishments in other areas, both Jacksons were consummate soldiers.

Andrew's campaigns against the Creek Indians were swift, bold and decisive, as was his defeat of a British garrison later at Pensacola. His move, still later, to prevent the success of a British invasionary expedition into Louisiana was met in some military circles with shaking heads, but he was able to dash all doubts and carried the day to victory. (It was a battle that needed not be fought, peace had been declared only days before, but the word had not arrived.)

Following the conclusion of the War of 1812, Old Hickory executed a brilliant, successful invasion of Florida; that state was acquired as U. S. territory only because of his foresight and initiative. His personal, private life was replete with difficulties; his perservance enabled him to overcome those difficulties and serve as an effective and much-loved President.

Stonewall, a West Point graduate (class of 1846), first served with distinction in Mexico. Upon the outbreak of the Civil War, he opted for the side of the Confederacy. He was first put in command of an outpost at Harper's Ferry, Va., scene of some of his most famous exploits. His skill at tactics and as a leader of men soon led to his appointment as "Lee's right arm."

His Valley Campaigns remain classic examples of what can be achieved by a small force led by a man who knows the value of resolution, secrecy and mobility in war. In a tragic ease of mistaken identity, he was mortally wounded by one of his own sentries at a moment of victory.

Both Jacksons are representative of the best of our military tradition: Men of high moral character, dedicated and loyal to their cause, bold and overflowing with initiative and courage, able to assume the responsibility of an order and execute it to its end, and capable of leading and inspiring the men who serve under them.

Quite fittingly, January is a month for all servicemen to remember the two Jacksons — and emulate them, as well. (AFPS Editorial)

Gen. Talbott to be host for Prayer Breakfast

Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander, will be the host for the local observance of the National Prayer Breakfast at 7 a.m. Tuesday at the Fort Benning Officer's Open Mess.

The purpose of the Prayer Breakfast (previously known as the Presidential Prayer Breakfast) is to bring together the leadership of the United States in recognition of the moral and spiritual values upon which the nation is founded.

Congress convenes, men in leadership positions from various aspects of our national life meet together for discussion and prayer on the occasion of the annual Prayer Breakfast.

The breakfast normally is attended by the President, the Vice President, the Cabinet, members of the U. S. Senate and House of Representatives, the Supreme Court, government officials and other leaders from across the country.

At Fort Benning observance, special prayers and an address will be given by the Rev. George Zorn, pastor of the First United Methodist Church, Thomasville, Ga. The Rev. Mr. Zorn is the chairman of Committee on Chaplains, South Georgia Annual Conference, the United Methodist Church.

OWC offers class in tuba, trombone

Instruction in brass is being offered for the first time by the Officer Wives' Club (OWC). This activity will include lessons of instruction on the French horn, cornet, trombone and tuba. Classes will be held in the OWC lounge. For more information and registration please call Mr. or Mrs. Frederick Finch at 687-2330, extension 324.

Group instruction in guitar is also being offered. Anyone interested in registering for this activity should contact the music chairman, Mrs. Charles Orr at 545-4690.

A new art class for children is being offered by the OWC. This course will run six weeks at a cost of $12. This is a great opportunity to let your child explore the various fields of art through his own creativity in painting, drawing, papier-mache, scrap sculpture and other projects.

Kindergarten through second grade will meet every Tuesday beginning Feb. 16. Classes for grades three through five will be held every Wednesday beginning Feb. 17. Classes for grades six through eight will be made available if there is a sufficient demand. All classes will be conducted in the OWC lounge from 4 to 5 p.m.

A 6-week course in adult oil painting will begin Feb. 15. Classes will be held every Monday from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. in the OWC lounge. The cost for this activity is $16.

For more information concerning any of the art classes, please call Mrs. Martin Glaser at 689-3580.

SFC receives nation's 2nd highest honor

10 soldiers get medals in Marshall ceremony

SFC Jesse A. Isaac, 84th Co., 4th Stu. Bn, TSB received the Distinguished Service Cross, the nation's second highest medal for bravery, at an awards ceremony Monday in Infantry Hall's Marshall Auditorium.

Nine other soldiers also were cited during the ceremony.

Capt. James E. Mitchell, Brigade and Battalion Operations Department, was presented the Silver Star with first Oak Leaf Cluster and the Silver Star with second Oak Leaf Cluster.

Capt. James T. Hill, Ranger Department, received the Silver Star with second Oak Leaf Cluster, and SSgt. Michael V. Smith was presented the Silver Star and the Silver Star with one Oak Leaf Cluster.

Also receiving Silver Stars were Capt. Albert E. Van Winkle, Company Operations Department; Capt. Mark A. Smith, Ranger Department; SFC Clyde G. Tibbits, 14th Co., 1st Bn., TSB; SSgt. George Nixon Jr., 10th Co., 1st Bn, TSB and Sgt. Thomas G. Guffain, Co. D, 1st Bn, 29th Inf, 197th Inf. Bde.

Lt. Col. Paul E. Oakley, Office of Doctrine Development, Literature and Plans, was presented the Legion of Merit with 1st Oak Leaf Cluster.

Patterson Award to honor Ft. Bragg platoon leader

A platoon leader at Ft. Bragg, N.C., will come to Fort Benning Feb. 12 to accept the annual Robert P. Patterson Award.

The award, scheduled to be presented at 11 a.m. Feb. 12 in Marshall Auditorium of Infantry Hall, will be the highlight of the annual visit of Mrs. Robert P. Patterson to the post.

Mrs. Patterson is the widow of the late secretary of war and judge of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in whose honor the award was established in 1952. Except for two years in which the event took place in Washington and one year when it was held in New York, Mrs. Patterson has come to Fort Benning to present the award and address the students and faculty of the Infantry School and other officials of the post.

Davis was the honor and distinguished graduate of an Officer Candidate School Class which graduated Aug. 28. He excelled in leadership, academic and over-all standing, officials said.

While attending Officer Candidate School, he was a member of 50th Co., 5th Stu. Bn., (then) The Candidate Brigade.

Born in Lake City June 15, 1947, Davis attended Central Elementary School, Lake City Junior High School and Columbia High School. He attended Florida State University and the University of Florida, graduating from the latter school with a B.S. degree in 1969.

He entered the Army in September 1969 and received basic training at Ft. Dix, N.J., followed by advanced individual training at Ft. Jackson, S.C. He completed both Airborne and Ranger training at the Infantry School before reporting for duty at Ft. Bragg.

The Patterson Award is made from a $16,000 trust fund established by 120 friends of Secretary Patterson. Created in 1952, the fund provides an engraved service pistol and a cash award for each year's winner.

The honoree is selected each year by the commandant of the Infantry School from among the outstanding Infantry Officer Candidate School graduates.

The 1971 award will be made on the 80th anniversary of Patterson's birth at Glens Falls, N.Y.

Secretary Patterson's 21 years of government work included military service that earned for him the Distinguished Service Cross, Silver Star and Purple Heart.

He was an enlisted man on border patrol duty in 1916 and later served as an officer in France in 1918 and 1919.

A graduate of Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., where he received an A.B. degree, and of Harvard University in Cambridge, Mass., where he earned a bachelor of laws degree, Patterson was admitted to the New York Bar in 1915.

He was judge of the U.S. District Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit before his appointment as assistant secretary of war, July 21, 1940. Patterson was named undersecretary of war, Dec. 19, 1940, and on Sept. 19, 1945 succeeded Henry L. Stimson as secretary of war.

In 1920, Secretary Patterson married Margaret T. Winchester.

He was a member of the American and New York State Bar Associations, Phi Beta Kappa and Phi Delta Theta Fraternities and the Harvard and Lawyers Clubs of New York.

Secretary Patterson died in a plane crash at Binghamton, N.Y., in 1945.

Columbus hair stylists show wig style, care

The first coffee of the new year for the ladies of the 2nd Battalion, 10th Artillery was held in the Normandy Room, Main Officer's Open Mess, Jan. 12.

A presentation of wigs, wiglets, hair styles and the newest hair fashions was given by Miss Peggy Gray and William, from a local beauty salon. William demonstrated and explained the differences in, and the proper care for, wigs and wiglets. Using several ladies in the battalion, Miss Gray styled each in a wig or wiglet of their choice. The ladies appeared pleased with the finished look and amazed at the skill and speed with which Miss Gray styled each new wig to her model.

Following the program, Mrs. John Krisko introduced the special guests of the evening. They were Mrs. Jack Nixon, Mrs. Lee Smith, Mrs. Robert Thomas, Mrs. Robert Parker, Mrs. D. W. Lusk and Mrs. Allen Wesinger. Mrs. Geoffrey McMahon and [illegible] were introduced into the battalion by Mrs. Krisko.

Refreshments were served buffetstyle from a candle lit table centered with an arrangement of yellow gladiolas, burnt orange and white carnations. Coffee, hot spice tea, ice tea, chicken drummettes, orange mousse and petit fours were offered to all.

Mrs. Krisko and Mrs. Robert Stockwell were hostesses for the coffee.

Mrs. James Wurman conducted the monthly business meeting and announced that the hostesses for the February coffee would be Mrs. [illegible] Boggis and Mrs. Harry Abbott.

Surgeon general's wife guest at club meeting

Mrs. Martin F. Anderson, club president, introduced Mrs. H. Haskell Ziperman, wife of Col. Ziperman, commander of Martin Army Hospital, who, in turn, introduced Mrs. Jennings to the ladies. Mrs. Jennings spoke of her 29 years in the service including the years from 1964 to 1968 when her husband was the commander of Martin Army Hospital.

Entertainment for the luncheon was provided by the Polka Dots who sang a medley of favorite songs.

A color scheme of blue and white was used for the luncheon. The tables were covered with blue cloth with white and blue carnations and matching streamers. Head table was adorned with candelabra and a beautiful arrangement of blue and white flowers was the centerpiece.

Mrs. William G. Fadul and Mrs. Herbert G. See served as co-chairman for the afternoon and were assisted by Mrs. Robert G. Wallace, Mrs. John P. Wright, Mrs. Robert A. Wyers and ladies from the Social Work Service, Dental Clinic No. 2, Personnel, Ears, Nose and Throat Service, Radiology Department and Management Services Division.

Mrs. Anderson welcomed and introduced the new arrivals including Mrs. Richard Camp, Mrs. Leslie Cohen, Mrs. Samuel Cromone, Mrs. Wayne Ellis, Mrs. Frank Godwin, Mrs. Gary, Gore, Mrs. James Hicks, Mrs. Randy Kienstra, Mrs. Dennis Malott, Mrs. Arthur Marinari, Mrs. Allen Meril, Mrs. David Ohashi and Mrs. Les Perry.

Farewell was said to Mrs. Kenneth Case.

Mrs. Cyrus Beekey had as her guest Mr. Patrick Alia, Mrs. John Laszle had as her guest Mrs. Patrick Ingalls, Mrs. Cesar Lopez had as her guest Mrs. Peter Foss, Mrs. William Strong has as her guest Mrs. William C. Strong Jr., and Mrs. Joseph Weaver had as her guest Mrs. Chester Sutton.

The week's festivities ended Jan. 22 with a formal reception and dinner dance in honor of Lt. Gen. and Mrs. Jennings at the Main Officers Open Mess by the Medical Department Activity. In the receiving line with Lt. Gen. and Mrs. Jennings were Col. and Mrs. H. Haskell Ziperman, Maj. Archie D. Pollock Jr. and Capt. Henry M. Austin III. The Infantry Chorus sang after dinner and the Infantry Center Combo provided music for the dance.

Leadership wives take pot luck for function

The officers' wives of the Leadership Department held their January function Jan. 14 at the home of Mrs. George E. Palmer. The occasion was a pot luck supper enjoyed by 43 wives and guests.

Mrs. William B. Steele, wife of Col. Steele, director of the Leadership Department, welcomed all the new arrivals. They were Mrs. Oscar Patterson, management committee, Mrs. Timothy R. Love and Mrs. Victor L. Coulter, conditioning, combatives, and drill committee, Mrs. Robert E. Bonthuis, Mrs. David E. Ringrose, Mrs. Henry C. Butner, and Mrs. John M. Humphries, leadership committee.

Special guests of the department wives were Mrs. Jimmy Sloan, Mrs. Robert Willis, Mrs. Homer Haracourt and Mrs. John Riddell.

Mrs. Robert E. Pritchett was presented a Chelsea floral arrangement created by the ladies of Headquarters.

Hostesses for the "Potpouri" were the ladies of Headquartern, Mrs. William B. Steele, Mrs. George E. Palmer, Mrs. Patrick J. Lalley, Mrs. William E. Smith and Mrs. John E. Huffenberger Jr.

German sees School life

Col. Siegfried Weber of the German Army Schools Command visited Fort Benning this week to observe the activities of the Infantry Center.

During his visit he saw the diverse functions of the school, including the work and training in the Communications-Electronics Department and the use of the many training aids of the Infantry School.

After his two-day visit Col. Weber departed for home.

NCO wives 'come a long way' in 70s fashion show

NCO WIVES CLUB

Six members of the Fort Benning Noncommissioned Officers Wives Club were the guests of the Kelly Hill Service Club Jan. 21.

At the invitation of Miss Mary Van Leer, club director, the NCO wives presented a fashion show for the servicemen in the club. Styles of the 70s were shown under the theme "You've Come a Long Way Baby."

Participating in the fashion show were Mrs. Edward Kitchens, president; Mrs. Kenneth Simpson, Mrs. James Parsons, Mrs. Ecalta Dunn, Mrs. Paul T. Simmons, and Mrs. Gerald Fitzgerald. Refreshments were served after the fashion presentations.

The NCO Wives Club has presented many programs for the service clubs on post and are anxious to help with any facet of the services that the clubs offer. For further information contact the club program chairman, Mrs. Henry Meders, 689-8667.

80TH CO. WIVES COFFEE

The wives of the Noncommissioned Officer Candidates (NCOC), 80th Co., 8th Stu. Bn., TSB held their sixth week coffee, Jan. 15 in the 80th Co. dayroom.

Honored guests were Mrs. Robert B. Kenyon, wife of the battalion commander, and Mrs. Michael Deeb, wife of the battalion command sergeant major.

Hostess for the coffee was Mrs. James F. Brookhouse, wife of the 80th Co. training officer.

The program included a discussion on up-coming events, including plans to involve the NCOC Wives' Club in company activities. Special emphasis was paaeed on the company's graduation party in March, a field trip to a training area, and future coffees.

8TH BN. WIVES COFFEE

The home of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Robert B. Kenyon was the location of the January coffee held by the Battalion Wives Club of 8th Bn. TSB.

Hostesses for the Jan. 19 affair were Mrs. James F. Brookhouse, Mrs. William J. Principio, and Mrs. Jerry G. Edison.

Welcomed to the battalion were Mrs. Roland R. Parr, and Mrs. Gilbert L. Wainwright. A departing member, Mrs. Jimmie E. Jones, was presented a silver tray By the club.

197TH WIVES MEET

The monthly coffee for the ladies of Headquarters, 197th Inf. Bde., was held in the home of Mrs. Carl Marsh, 1218 Bunker Hill Road. Mrs. Shelton Wood was co-hostess.

Mrs. Lee Smith conducted the business meeting. The ladies seemed enthusiastic over the forthcoming brunch and luncheon that will be held in February.

Welcomes were extended to Mrs. Perry Hope, Mrs. Thomas Godwin, Mrs. Dan Harelson, Mrs. David Gillespie, and Mrs. Stephen Darnell.

29TH DISCUSSES LUNCHEON

The monthly coffee of the ladies of the 1st Bn., 29th Inf., 197th Inf. Bde., was held at the home of Mrs. Henry Doctor Jr., wife of the battalion commander. Co-hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. Robert T. Faucette and Mrs. Gregory Black.

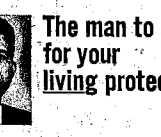
Newcomers welcomed into the group were Mrs. Earl B. Whited and Mrs. Brigham Shuler. It was then announced by Mrs. Docotr that, as of January, the ladies leaving the group would receive their farewell trays at the evening "hail and farewell" parties.

The main order of business for the day was the February brigade luncheon which will be sponsored by the 1st of the 29th ladies. The theme was announced by Mrs. Harold L. Hunter, decoration chairman. The program and menu were then decided upon by the group. Mrs. Robert Kelly Jr., and Mrs. John U. Moser will be in charge of reservations. Mrs. Shuler will handle the invitations. After door prizes were decided upon, the ladies were reminded that there will be an O.W.C. meeting Feb. 10.

It was also announced that there would be a "wives orientation," Jan. 28, at 9 a.m. at the Kelley Hill Service Club. All wives were urged to attend.

OC WIVES BID FAREWELL

"Aloha Flight 51" was the theme of the final luncheon for wives of Officer Candidate Class 51, held in the Coregidor Room of the Main Officers' Club Jan. 8.



Honored guests included Mrs. Orwin C. Talbott, Mrs. Frank L. Garrison, Mrs. Donald C. Bliss, Mrs. John Moscrip Jr., and Mrs. Phillip J. Cassibry. Special and company guests included Mrs. David S. Gardner, Mrs. Gary K. Miller, Mrs. Nick B. Halliburton, Mrs. Frank R. Vavrek, Mrs. Gary W. Quick Miss Sally Quillian and Mr. John Neely.

Entertainment for the luncheon was provided by representatives of a local airline, after which a medley of Hawaiian songs was given by a group of the candidates' wives including Mrs. Edgar A. Brookins Jr., chairwoman of the entertainment committee;

PRESENTATION
Col. Thomas (L) Accepts Award From Gen. Powell

Infantry Board receives safety award

The United States Army Infantry Board was presented with a safety award in a ceremony held Jan. 14 in the office of Col. Charles B. Thomas, board president.

Brig. Gen. Edwin L. Powell Jr., deputy commanding general of the United States Army Test and Evaluation Command, presented the Army Material Command Commendation for Safety to Col. Thomas.

The award is in recognition of the achievements of the board in the prevention of accidents and the maintenance of a sound safety program during fiscal year 1970. During that period the board boasted a flawless record in that there were no accidents or losses of manpower at the test activity.

"Safety means much more to the Army than just plaques and certificates," Gen. Powell commented. "A sound safety program allows any organization to operate more efficiently, and the Infantry Board is testimony to this fact."

Corporal honored with presentation

A Purple Heart and the Good Conduct Medal were awarded posthumously to Cpl. Rodney R. Sanders in recent ceremonies here. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Sammie F. Sanders of Phenix City, Ala.

At the ceremony the decorations were presented to Cpl. Sanders' parents. Cpl. Sanders's sisters, Lawanda Sanders and Mrs. T. Jamieson, and his brother, Chris Sanders, also were present. Col. Robert P. Hatcher, assistant post commander, presented the awards.

The Purple Heart was awarded posthumously to Cpl. Sanders for wounds received in military operations in the Republic of Vietnam, against hostile foreign forces.

Cpl. Sanders died on May 31, 1970.

Prior to his death, he had been awarded the Army Commendation Medal, the National Defense Service Medal, Vietnam Service Medal, Vietnam Campaign Medal, the Combat Infantryman Badge, the Sharpshooter Badge with rifle bar, and the Marksman Badge with automatic rifle bar.

For cost reduction

Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander, presents Lt. Col. Jack Casselberry, director of the Communications-Electronics Department, with a "Follow Me" plaque in recognition of having the highest rate of cost reduction of any directorate on post for fiscal year 1970. The department achieved more than 1,000 per cent of the goal set for its opening budget.

Writing to congressman may not be only answer

Communications of opinions to one's congressmen or senator is a well established right and responsibility of all citizens, including military personnel.

Some individuals take advantage of this right and responsibility to make unreasonable demands on elected officials. Most problems experienced by an individual could be more efficiently and satisfactorily dealt with by using the normal chain of command.

Many soldiers who do attempt to solve grievances through their chain of command, however, still involve themselves in embarrassing situations brought about by unnecessary congressional involvement. This involvement often comes as a complete shock to the service member even though it was indirectly initiated by him.

The involvement usually begins innocently enough with a letter to parents, girl friend, or in-law which emphasizes the deprivations and discipline of Army life. Civilians unfamiliar with military life can easily misconstrue statements made by service members about their life; so caution should be taken to avoid misconstruance of statements.

Junior NCO Advisory Council

197th soldiers get complaints solved

By Bob Wise

The 197th Infantry Brigade Junior NCO Advisory Council got off to a successful start as many problems and complaints brought up in the first meeting were easily solved.

The council is designed to be a direct line from the young soldier to the brigade commander. The second meeting was held Tuesday.

The following is a report from the first meeting of soldiers' complaints and how they were answered:

Many troops complained of transportation problems involving buses or cabs. It was found out that cab fares at Fort Benning are set on a distance basis by the Provost Marshal so that little could be done about the cab-fare complaint.

The bus problem was eased, however, by the bi-weekly printing of the schedules in the brigade daily bulletin. Schedules are now posted at all bus stops. In addition, a shuttle bus now runs through the brigade area twice a day, doubling the transportation facilities to brigade soldiers.

Soldiers who complained of not being able to wear fatigues in the brigade's two service clubs after 5:30 p.m. had their request taken care of. Such restrictions are no longer in effect.

Bed check has been completely eliminated. Travel restrictions on passes also have been eliminated.

Civilians have been hired to perform KP and many police details.

Late chow is now available for soldiers who have missed a meal, but rations still are not available to serve more than three meals per day. Attempts are being made, however, to serve snacks and bakery products at most any time of the day.

Many soldiers felt that they were not getting enough milk. A request has now gone forward to increase the milk ration from 32 ounces to 48 ounces per man per day.

A good career

Sgt. Richard L. Jackson, a dog-handler in the 51st Infantry Platoon (Scout Dog), 1st Bn., 29th Inf., 197th Inf. Bde., reenlisted because the "Volunteer Army program will make the Army a real good career." In doing so, Jackson, seen hwere with his dog, Katy, becomes one of the first soldiers in the 197th to be retained in Army service because he felt that the VOLAR program would "make it worth staying in the Army. doing so, Jackson seen here with his dog, Katy, becomes one of the nam. He revoked his Vietnam option because he "wanted to come back to his unit. It's the best one I've ever been in."

Bus transfers end on Kelley Hill route

Revisions in the post shuttle bus schedule, including changes to benefit residents of Kelly Hill, Harmony Church and Sand Hill, currently are being made.

Effective immediately, Harmony Church and Kelley Hill personnel traveling to and from main post no longer will have to transfer buses at Martin Army Hsopital, as direct routes will be available. Sand Hill residents still have to make the transfer, but immediate connections will be provided at the hospital.

In the past personnel from these areas had to wait up to 15 minutes to catch a bus going to their final destination.

In addition, buses at the main post bus station now will be leaving 15 minutes after each hour. Existing pick-up times at all other main post bus stops will change correspondingly.

However, shuttle bus hours of operations will remain the same, as will the present 30-minute service.

Surgical unit bought for Dental Clinic No. 6

The Community Activities Association and Fort Benning Chapter of Daughters of the United States Army have purchased a mobile oral surgical unit special supplies for the Dependent Dental Clinic No. 6 as part of their efforts for the Handicapped.

The Community Activities Association, a group which supports all welfare and recreational projects with non appropriated funds, contributed $1,000 for the special chair with removable parts which can be autoclaved before entering the operating room. Col. Woodrow H. Myers, chief, Maintenance Division, is president of CAA.

The local chapter of the Daughters of the United States Army provided $425 for obtaining special supplies to be used in conjection with the mobile unit. Mrs. William R. Guthrie, wife of Col. Guthrie, director of Non-resident Instruction, is president of the group.

Mrs. Armand G. Decesare, wife of Maj. Decesare of the Combat Intelligence Committee of the Battalion and Brigade Operations Department, served as coordinator between these two groups. She is chairman of the Army Community ervices' Handicapped Children's Committee.

Pedodontist (specialist in children's dentistry) for the U.S. Army Dental Company and Dependent Dental Clinic is Capt. Gerald H. Kreinces. Capt. Jay C. Feinglass serves as assistant.

Will give oath

Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, Fort Benning commander, administered the re-enlistment oath to Sgt. Louis Chiapponem, Hq. Co., 29th Inf., 197th Inf. Bde. Fabric Shop sets opening on Monday

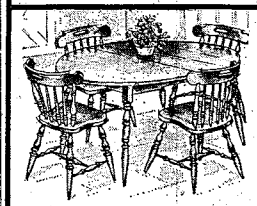
Official opening of the PX Fabric and Kiddie Shop across from the Main Commissary is scheduled for 10 a.m. on Monday as part of the installation's continuing plan to make Army life more appealing in a Modern Voluntary Army (VOLAR).

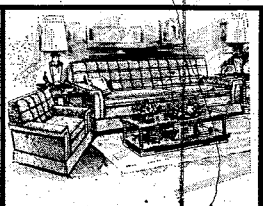
The new shop will stock a complete line of fabrics, draperies and sewing accessories, plus clothing, toys, furniture and nursery accessories for infants and toddlers.

The special order desk will be moved from the main store to a carpeted room with lounge furniture in the new shop.

Operating hours will be 10 a.m. until 9 p.m. on Thursdays and pay days, 1 p.m. until 5 p.m. on Sundays and 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. on all other days.



Clinic to give rubella shots



As a killer or crippler of unborn children, it probably has claimed more victims in recent years than polio, regular measles, mumps, chicken pox and scarlet fever combined.

The disease is rubella. Fort Benning's Medical Department Activities is urging all parents to have children between the ages of 1 and 12 vaccinated against this illness.

Inoculations will be given at the post Immunization Clinic (Bldg. 396) during the following times: Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday from 8 to 11 a.m., and 1 to 4 p.m., and Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon.

Significance of supplemental benefits reviewed

Department of Defense officials believe it is doubtful that the "first term" enlisted man fully understands and appreciates the significance of the supplemental benefits he receives in the Armed Forces and counts only his "cash in hand."

For this reason, the officials contend, every effort should be made to insure that the young serviceman has an adequate understanding of the value of these benefits to him in both the present and the future.

Maj. Gen. Leo E. Benade, deputy assistant secretary of defense for Military Personnel Police (Manpower and Reserve Affairs), testified to that effect before special House Subcommittee on Supplemental Service Benefits, Dec. 22.

The general said it was estimated, in a report that servicemen considerably undervalued the level of total compensation.

Also, recipients undervalue income "in-kind," current savings and deferred income, he said, noting that this occurs for a number of reasons: They forget it; it is "involuntary" income over which they exercise limited, if any, discretion; it is deferred to such a long time in the future that they do not count its full value now; its receipt is contingent on completing additional service; or they simply do not know what it is worth.

Gen. Benade continued:

Almost a fifth of military pay is received either in kind (quarters and subsistence) or as savings through the operation of PXs and commissary stores, provision of medical care, survivor benefits coverage, etc. This income tends to be undervalued because the member is not quite sure just how much he is saving. When one doesn't pay rent or utilities it is easy to underestimate the value of quarters furnished.

Even if accurately estimated, the value to the member may differ substantially from the government cost that is attributed to the member's compensation.

With respect to the cost and value of supplemental benfits, careful attention must be given to the meaning of the words "cost" and "value." In theory, they are opposite aspects of the same thing.

Cost measures the benefit from the standpoint of what the government loses or gives up. Value measures it from the standpoint of what the service member gains. In either case the unit of measure is the dollar.

Since cost and value are opposite aspects of the same thing, the question may arise as to why it is necessary to draw a distinction between them in evaluating the elements of supplemental benefits. There are two reasons, and both result from the fact that many supplemental benefits are in forms other than money, or are in the form of money paid otherwise than concurrently with the rendition of the service to which they pertain.

1-5th of military pay in kind or as savings

First, where a compensation benefit is in the form of goods, services, or "in-kind," the most satisfactory or practical way of estimating its dollar value to the service member may be by ascertaining or estimating what the goods, services, etc., cost the government.

Second, where the benefit is in the form of money paid in advance of or long after the rendition of the service to which it pertains, the cost to the government may be substantially different from the value to the service member, even though they are opposite aspects of the same thing.

In theory there is nothing obscure or complex about the term "cost." It simply represents the dollars paid out to obtain goods or services, or the use of an item of capital in some form. More often than not, however, the inadequacies of bookkeeping and the complexities of cost accounting make it difficult or impossible to determine the cost to the government of providing a particular element of compensation in a specific situation.

The term "value" presents a real problem of definition. In its most fundamental sense it refers to the utility of a specific thing to a particular individual. Value in this sense tends to become disassociated from the idea of cost. It exists only in the mind of the individual involved. A different individual would attach a different value to the same thing.

Time is sometimes an important factor in the relationship between cost and value. For example, in undertaking to show the value of the retirement benefit in relation to a particular period of active duty service, the ultimate dollar value of the benefits must be discounted sharply to compensate for the long delay in making payment. On the other hand, the value of the reenlistment bonus to the service member may be substantially greater than its cost to the government by virtue of the fact that it is received in advance of the period of service to which it relates.

It is the view of the Department of Defense that the values set on most supplemental benefits by servicemen are consistent with the values the department believes they should have. For example, the commissary privilege has a value to military personnel that exceeds its cost to the government.

It should be noted, however, that many variables are involved in the degree to which members of the military service enjoy the benefits of the commissary. The most important variable is whether the service member is married. The commissary privilege has virtually no value to the average unmarried service member.

Other variables are the availability of a commissary, the size of the service member's family, and how much the family spends per person for food. Similar variables also would determine the value of medical care to the married serviceman.

With respect to service efforts to bring to the attention of military personnel their authorized supplemental benefits, the Department of Defense, including the respective military services, tries to make available well-written, informative material which explains the range of benefits available and to encourage the serviceman to familiarize himself with those benefits. We believe, generally, those efforts are successful in the case of the career service member. As might be expected, however, it is doubtful that the young "first term" enlisted man fully understands and appreciates the significance of the supplemental benefits "package."

The tendency of younger service members, as is also true in private industry, to discount supplemental benefits in favor of cash in hand is well-known. For that reason we must try even harder to insure that the young service member has an adequate understanding of the value of these benefits to him in both the present and future.

Commissaries extend hours

Beginning next month Fort Benning personnel will be able to shop later on certain days at the main post and Custer Terrace commissaries.

Effective Monday, sale hours at the Custer Terrace commissary will be extended from 6 to 9 p.m. each Monday and Friday. Starting Tuesday, hours at the main post commissary will be extended from 7 to 9 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Opening times at both stores will not change.

The extension of sale hours is part of Fort Benning's Modern Volunteer Army (VOLAR) plan, which is designed to study ways to improve service attractiveness.

Dental clinics begin 'birth month' program

The USA Dental Company, USAIC, is initiating a dental care program for all personnel over 25 years of age based on the individual's birth month.

This does not rule out regular dental care during the year between birthdays if dental treatment needs arise. Over the years this will save the patient many hours of not sitting in the dental chair as well as enabling the dental personnel to care for many more patients on a more productive basis of dental health.

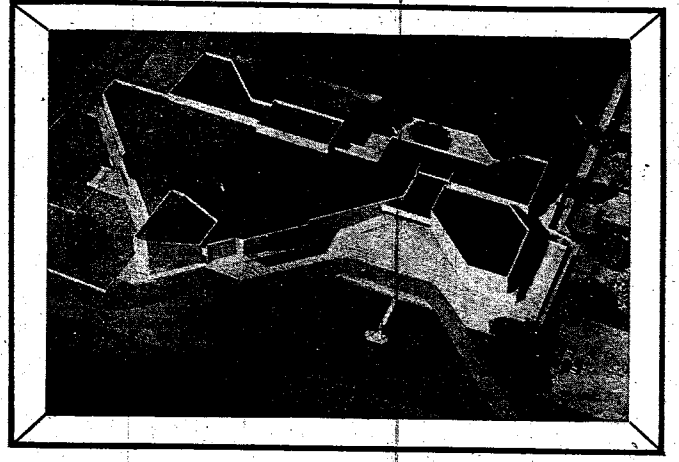
Personnel with birthdays occurring during February should report to their assigned dental clinic for priority in receiving an oral health evaluation and corrective dental care.

Dental clinics serves the area as indicated: DC No. 2 and Preventive Dentistry Clinic on Wold Avenue — IOAC, IOBC and Military Police. Bernheim Dental Clinic, Sightseeing Road—personnel assigned to Main Post excluding those listed for DC No. 2. DC No. 3 — personnel in the Kelly Hill area. DC No. 4 — Military personnel in the Sand Hill area, military personnel in the Harmon Church area, military dependents referred from DC No. 6, and retired personnel on a space available basis.

DC No. 6. Hourglass Road in South Harmony Church — military dependents. Martin Army Hospital dental clinic — hospital personnel and hospital patients.

Check with your personnel section concerning the dental clinic assigned your unit for dental care.

Monthly reminders will appear in the Bayonet Post Daily Bulletin Board and notices will be distributed to individual units for posting on unit bulletin boards. Your own natural teeth can accompany you throughout your life.



For personnel 25 and over the Oral Health Evaluation will be available in the designated clinic on Feb. 9-11 during the hours of 7:30 to 10:30 a.m. or 12:30 to 3:30 p.m.

Modern gladiators find pugil training just smashing

By Mike Keller

Clad in grotesque garb and armed with a heavy wooden stick, the two "gladiators" face each other nervously as they wait for the signal.

A whistle sounds. Instantly, the men lash out furiously with their sticks, exchanging stiff body blows. Ringing the combatants are numerous spectators — cheering on the fighters.

The contest lasts only seconds. One of the fighters, neatly parrying a wicked thrust by his rival, follows up with a smashing — and decisive — blow to his opponent's head.

Again a whistle sounds. The round is over — and two new competitors step forward, ready to do battle.

A cruel "struggle to the death" in an arena of ancient Rome? No. Rather, it is pugil stick fighting on a training field of Fort Benning. And its "gladiators" — Infantry School students here — are getting the most realistic taste of true-to-life bayonet fighting, next to the real thing.

"This is as close to actual combat conditions as you will get in bayonet training," said 2nd Lt. Tim Love, an instructor with the Leadership Department's Combatives, Conditioning-Drill and Command Committee. "We teach pugil because the Infantryman could find its lessons useful in a close combat situation."

Pugil training is the "practical work" portion of rifle-bayonet fighting, designed to polish the individual's bayonet fighting style, help him develop an aggressive bayonet attack and promote physical conditioning.

The bayonet itself is not even used in this training. Employed instead is a piece of hard wood, approximately the length and weight of the M16 rifle plus bayonet, and padded on both ends.

The target also is different. Gone is the defenseless scarecrow-like creation of formal bayonet drill. In its place is a human being — alive and able to think, react, evade and hit back.

At Fort Benning pugil's regular "customers" are officer and non-commissioned officer candidates and Infantry Officer Officer Basic Course (IOBC) students.

"OCs" get the full treatment — three hours of instruction to only one for the NCOC and IOBC classes. The training begins with a briefing from pugil instructors on techniques, use of equipment and safety procedures.

Then, it's up to the candidates, who must put into practice the principles they were taught in bayonet training. A warm-up period comes first. The students get the "feel" of the activity. Next, they are broken down into platoon-sized groups and engage in competitive two-man bouts.

'Your opponent will make on-the-spot corrections'

The candidates quickly learn the "dos and don'ts" of pugil training — some the hard way.

Speed. Agility. Coordination. Self-confidence! Taking the offense. These are the ingredients for a pugil victory. "A guy will discover that he can take on a bigger man by applying a little aggressiveness," Love maintained.

Hesitation or indecisiveness, however, are detected rapidly — and punished. Individuals too concerned with defending themselves are likely to fall victim to some pretty rough treatment. "Opponents will catch mistakes and make 'on-the-spot' corrections," Love stated.

Students soon learn that, in pugil training — it is better to "give than receive" — particularly when "receiving" means a hard butt stroke to the head or a thrust to the stomach.

As bone-crushing and body-bruising as pugil may appear, however, injuries are infrequent. This is due primarily to the pugil equipment, which, all participants are required to wear.

A football helmet, with stainless steel face mask, guards the head and neck. Other safety features are a canvas apron for the groin area and a chest pad to protect that part of the body.

Pugil training also fits in well with the recently adopted Instinctive Rifle-Bayonet Fighting System, which emphasizes the natural instincts of man and damage to the target, rather than the precise execution of certain bayonet movements or "footwork."

The second hour of pugil instruction ends with a company-level playoff to determine the unit's top pugil performer. Matches are held in each platoon, and the winners of these meet for all the marbles. Awaiting the champ-to-be is a letter of commendation — and a "victory ride" on the shoulders of his fellow candidates.

Last on the schedule is the Human Thrusting Assault Course — pugil's "final examination."

In this exercise, candidates literally "run through" what they have learned about the training. It is designed to be tough so as to give a student an idea of how he would react in an actual bayonet encounter on the battlefield.

The company's top 12 pugil fighters are selected to serve as targets. The remaining candidates assemble in a column of twos.

The command is given. With a loud, aggressive-sounding growl emanating from their throats, the first group charges their respective pair of targets. As they approach, the target calls out a particular offensive bayonet movement, which the candidate must execute.

If the maneuver is done correctly, the candidate can go on to his next foe. However, should he miss or attempt a wrong movement, his adversary is free to "follow-up" with a vigorous blow.

All very rugged training, to be sure. But consider the circumstances. One can suffer one, two or ten "fatal wounds" in a pugil match — and still walk away. In combat, the chances are a lot less.

Commission seeks doctor's assistants

The U. S. Civil Service Commission has announced the establishment of physician's assistant as a new occupation in the Federal service. The establishment of this occupation is the result of the commission's efforts, in collaboration with the medical profession, to develop innovative approaches to the critial health manpower problems facing this nation.

It has been estimated that there is a nationwide shortage of 50,000 physicians, with not enough medical schools to meet his need in the immediate future.

Dr. Walter Bornemeir, president of the American Medical Association (AMA), and other representatives of the medical profession have urged the development of this occupation as a method to increase the supply of health services. The AMA House of Delegates adopted guidelines for this purpose in December 1969, and about two dozen medical institutions have developed educational programs for physician's assistant.

A physician's assistant in the Federal service will be supervised by a medical doctor and will perform designated diagnostic and therapeutic tasks. He will carry out procedures such as taking medical histories, applying and removing casts, and suturing minor lacerations — work that traditionally has been performed by the physician. Such assistance in the conduct of the routine, time-consuming aspects of medical practice will enable physicians to make more effective use of their highly developed professional skills.

Most of the physician's assistant positions in the Federal service will be in the Veterans Administration. Other positions will be in the Public Health Service, the District of Columbia Government, and the military departments.

Col. Willard Latham, commander of the 197th Infantry Brigade, is reflected through the eye glasses of a soldier of the brigade as he speaks to the brigade during a command retreat ceremony held Jan. 22. Col. Latham congratulated the soldiers and units who had received awards during the ceremony.

Not easy to change dishonorable discharge

Legal assistance officers and the Army Council of Review Board officials comment that many soldiers have the mistaken impression that it is easy to have an unfavorable discharge changed following separation from the service.

Rumors include such erroneous information as the misconception that the character of a less than honorable discharge may be changed if the recipient obtains congressional interest, pays a fee of $500 or waits six months, after which the discharge will automatically be cbanged to honorable.

The only two agencies having the authority to change the type of discharge, once an individual has been released from active duty, are the Army Discharge Review Board and the Army Board for the Correction of Military Records (ABCMR). Both of these boards operate under the jurisdiction of the secretary of the Army.

Statistics for cases reviewed during 1969 indicate that out of a total of 1,498 cases of less than honorable discharge reviewed, only 114 were changed to a general discharge and only 79 were changed to honorable, or 6.8 and 4.7 per cent respectively.

ID card issuing gets consolidated

Recently Fort Benning ID card issuing activities were consolidated into four centralized areas. The one you go to for your ID card depends upon your unit of assignment. The issuing activities are located as follows:

—Bldg. 2748, Main Post: Service individuals assigned to The School Brigade.

—Bldg. 9000, Kelly Hill: All personnel assigned to 197th Infantry Brigade.

—Bldg. 2290, Room C103, Martin Army Hospital: Personnel assigned to MEDDAC.

—Bldg. 1827, Main Post: Assists all other personnel on the installation and individuals whose sponsors are absent, or deceased; retired personnel; and disabled American veterans.

In order to eliminate confusion and delay in obtaining an ID card for you or your dependents, the following guidance should be followed. Individuals in need of an ID card for themselves or their dependents should obtain an application from their personnel officer. Soldiers in grades E1 through E5 need to have the application form signed by the personnel officer. Officers and E7s, 8s and 9s may sign the application form themselves.

Dependents desiring an ID card must bring documentation to show the status of their sponsor, whether it be active duty, retired, deceased or DAV and documentation establishing their relationship to their sponsor. The dependent needing the ID card must go to the issuing point in order to have his picture taken.

Any individual unsure of his eligibility or lacking complete documentation should consult with the personnel at the issuing point. A 30 day temporary card may be issued. Each time an ID card is needed, proper documentation is necessary. The old card is not enough.

Should your dependents need an ID card while you are away, they may request a card from the nearest military installation. An application signed by you with the supporting documents attached must be sent with the request.

Some important things to remember: ID cards made before June 1969 cannot be remade solely to add a sponsor's SSAN. Cards cannot be reissued solely because of a change in rank. A new card will be made, however, if the card is over three years old, when an individual becomes an officer from an enlisted grade and change in grade from E5 to E6.

MP's versatility is evident in varied duties

By LES HAUSER

Most people know the MP as the white-gloved cop who stands on the corner directing the flow of traffic or as the soldier with the flawless appearance stationed at the main gate to answer questions for the visitors.

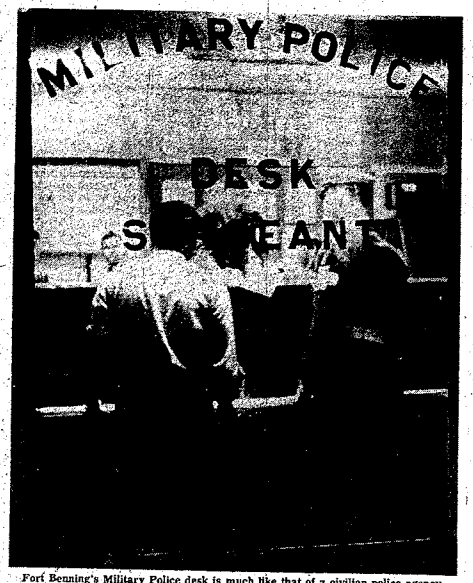
But he can be found patrolling the post residential area, investigating an accident at the PX or even manning a school crosswalk early in the morning.

Few people, including the veteran soldier, know the MP in the role of lecturer, fish and game warden, court reporter, drug counselor, or apprehension specialist. But the soldiers of the 139th MP Company perform all these jobs and many more.

The varied duties of the people of the 139th send them in many different directions at any time of the day or night. For example, if an MP is assigned to the absent without leave (AWOL) apprehension unit, he may travel as much as 500 miles during a 4-day period throughout the southern states picking up AWOL soldiers and returning them to the Special Processing Detachment. Fort Benning serves as the main collection point in the Third Army for AWOLs.

If an MP is assigned to the fish and game patrol, he will rotate with other soldiers in this section to provide a 24-hour patrol of some of the most dense forest in Georgia. With their 5 vehicles these MP's are in charge of the security of Fort Benning's 285 square mile expanse with its 22 ponds and lakes. His duties may range from a summertime safety patrol by boat of the Chattahoochee River, which runs through the reservation to keeping overeager hunters from wandering into restricted areas.

It is even possible to be an MP at Fort Benning and not even work on post if you are a member of the "Town Platoon" stationed at the Police Headquarters in nearby Columbus. Acting as a liaison between the Columbus Police Department and the Provost Marshal's Office, the "Town Platoon" provides its own desk and confinement facilities, a downtown MP patrol and a military court reporter to sit in on all the sessions of the local Recorder's Court. Its main function is to assist the local police in any matter involving military personnel.



The newest and perhaps most unique service the MPs are providing is the narcotics section of the Provost Marshal's Investigation Section. The soldiers, whose duty uniform is civilian dress, conduct a round-the-clock drug information program for the soldiers of Fort Benning and the surrounding civilian community as well.

The newly instituted "Dial-A-Drug" program allows an individual to dial a designated phone number (545-3784) and receive factual and concise information about the effects of different drugs.

This program is reinforced by the narcotics section's Drug Abuse lecture team which presents approximately 11 lectures a month to civilian clubs and schools. All the lectures are presented by MP's who volunteer for this duty.

Regardless of the job an MP performs, whether it be as accident investigator or a fish and game warden, he must possess the qualities of tact, good judgment and fairness. His ability in these areas is tested constantly on the job.

One MP seemed to best sum up the job when he said, "Being an MP is with you 24 hours a day—both on duty and off. You not only have to maintain the image of a good MP, but you also have to be a good soldier."

Fort Benning's Military Police desk is much like that of a civilian police agency.

A Fort Benning MP checks a suspect with a Columbus, Ga., policeman prior to beginning his patrol of the downtown area.

This is the flawless appearance of the MP as seen by the passing motorist.

You may no longer be obligated to file a tax return!

Income tax and you

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first in a series of articles on ways you can save on your income tax return this year. The articles are written by Henry Block, president of H and R Block, Inc., America's largest tax service.)

The tax year 1969 gave us a "new look" in the Federal income tax forms filed by millions of American taxpayers. No longer did we see the old familiar form 1040A, usually referred to as the "short form" or "card form." In its place we were greeted by the new form 1040 which was used by all taxpayers, regardless of income or deductions.

The new forms were based on the "building-block" system under which additional schedules were to be added to the basic form 1040 as needed. To the seasoned tax professional, this change in forms involved nothing more than re-learning schedule names and line numbers, since there was really no change in the basic tax law.

For the do-it-yourselfer, particularly the man who had been filing the short form, the results verged on the chaotic and the Internal Revenue Service learned to its dismay that its easy-to-follow instructions were not all that easy.

A major culprit was line 15b (Adjustments). The professional tax man knows that adjustments to gross income fall into four categories: sick pay, employe business expenses, moving expenses and contributions to a self-employed person's retirement plan. Nowhere on the form was there a definition of adjustments and the result was itemized deductions, exemptions, etc., all being placed on line 15b.

This year the tax forms themselves will remain substantially unchanged from last year. The major problem confronting the average taxpayer in 1970 will be the effect of the changes brought about through the enactment of the Revenue Act of 1969. This highly publicized piece of legislation could mean significant changes for many taxpayers, and could increase the burden placed on the individual who tries to prepare his own return. As a matter of fact the new law has been facetiously referred to as the "Attorneys and Accounts Relief Act of 1969" and for good reason.

Critics of the Treasury Department charge that the tax forms are becoming so complex that it is virtually impossible for the average individual to prepare his own return and that he has no recourse but to seek professional help. It is true that the tax forms have increased in complexity over the years, but it is important to remember that in order to be fair to everyone they must be complex.

The simplest form of taxation would be a flat percentage assessed against everyone's income, regardless of how large or small the income is. However, this method would be unfair, because it would eliminate tax advantages urgently needed by elderly or handicapped persons, or taxpayers with large families or excessive medical bills.

In past years you may have been in the somewhat bothersome position of being required to file a return even though you knew that there would be no liability for tax. Anyone under 65 with $600 or more of gross taxable income was required to file a return. If he was 65 or over the filing requirement was raised to $1,200. Thus a person over 65 who had $1,500 was required by law to file a tax return even though there would be no tax due.

For the tax years beginning with 1970 these filing requirements have been changed. If you are a married person filing a separate return, you still must file if you have more than $600 in taxable income; if you are single and are under 65 you must file if you have more than $1,700 in taxable income; if you are single and are over 65 you must have $2,300 in taxable income; a married couple filing a joint return and one of the spouses is over 65 - $2,900; and a married couple filing a joint return where both spouses are over 65 - $3,500.

If you received net income from self-employment of $400 or more, you must file a return; even though there is no income tax due, there will be a liability for self-employment tax (social security).

In addition, even though your income may be less than that required to make you eligible for filing a tax return, if you received wages and tax was withheld from your pay you must file a return in order to get a refund of any tax withheld. In many cases this can be a hardship for the elderly person who is working to supplement his social security or to the student who is only working part time or during the summer months.

You may now file a statement with your employer (form W-4-E) stating that you owed no tax last year and expect to owe none this year, and your employer will no longer withhold federal income tax from your pay.

TAX SURCHARGE

Did you notice that after July 1, 1970, your pay envelope seemed a little heavier? All people working for salaries or wages received a "raise" on July 1. Actually this raise only reflected a change in withholding as a result of the increase in the personal exemption from $600 to $650 (since the increase did not take effect until July 1, the effective exemption for 1970 is $625) and the discontinuation of the surtax.

The Revenue Bill of 1969 extended the surtax to June 30 of 1970 at the annual rate of 5 per cent. Therefore, for 1970 the effective surtax rate is 2½ per cent.

Caution. Before you automatically multiply your tax by 2½ per cent remember that the surtax on individuals does not apply to the two lowest tax brackets, or up to $1,000 of taxable income in the case of a single person, and up to $2,000 in the case of a married couple. For a Head of Household there is no surtax on income up to $1,500.

Swimmer's advice

Even if you don't know how to swim, says lifesaving Buddy Fraser of the Junior Chamber of Commerce pool, at least learn how to float with a minimum of effort. You don't appear to need any special skills, counsels Las Vegas Review-Journal.

Army computer can write news stories

U. S. ARMY COMBAT DEVELOPMENTS COMMAND, Ft. Belvoir, Va. — An Army computer used in wargaming imaginary battles deep in the future, also pauses to write news stories about today's individual soldier, it was announced by the Combat Developments Command (CDC), headquartered at Ft. Belvoir, Va.

The computer, located at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan., with CDC's Institute of Combined Arms and Support, shares its unique talents with the Army's Hometown News Center in nearby Kansas City, Mo., which prepares an average of 1,000 news items per day for release to press and other media throughout the world.

Since most of the center's stories on awards and promotions, for example, contain standard phrases and paragraphs, CDC's computer experts have coded them into program language. Specific data on an individual soldier and his event is merely fed into the computer where it joins this "planted" information to emerge as a complete news story.

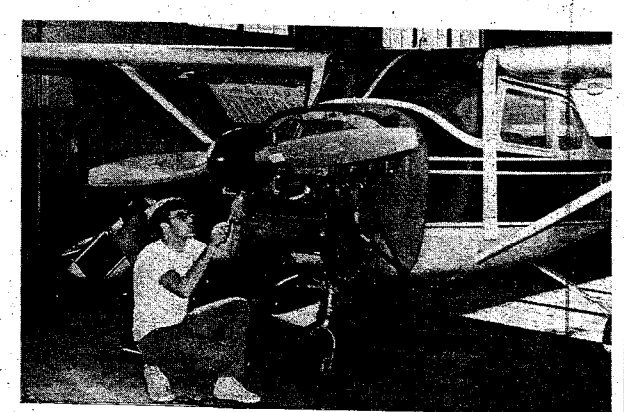
Not only is the story individually typed by the computer but it is also addressed to the soldier's local newspaper and nearby broadcasting stations. The whole process of reporting on the modern soldier formerly took a large staff of writers, typists and handlers. With CDC's computer-assist, the whole thing is done in a matter of minutes at less cost in money and errors.

Army nurses mark 70th anniversary

The Army Nurse Corps, established in 1901, celebrates its 70th birthday Monday. It is the oldest military nurse corps in the United States and the first women's component of the U. S. Armed Forces.

An all officer corps, its mission is to give the best possible nursing care to the American soldier and his family.

Benning members of the Army Nurse Corps will celebrate the anniversary with a party in the officers dining room at Martin Army Hospital from 2 to 5 p.m. Monday.



The birth of military nursing occurred years before the official organization of the corps in 1901. Civilian women cared for wounded and sick soldiers during the Revolutionary War, and they volunteered in large number to help in hospitals during the Civil and Spanish-American Wars.

4 conditions needed for reassignment

If you are unhappy about your assignment or in debt because of mismanagement don't ask for a compassionate reassignment to solve your problems. But if you have genuine problems of extreme hardship which would be alleviated only by an assignment to a specific area, you may have grounds for a compassionate transfer.

Four basic conditions must exist to justify a compassionate reassignment: The problem must involve a soldier's immediate family. This includes his wife, child, parent, minor brother or sister, persons in loco parentis (served as the soldier's parent five consecutive years when the applicant was a minor), or his only living relative. A problem involving parents-in-law may qualify, but applications must show that they are actually dependent on the soldier for more than half of their support with no members of the in-laws immediate family around to help.

Second, the problem must be such that it can be expected to clear up within a reasonable period of time — usually one year is maximum.

The problem must require an assignment to a specific area, so a person won't qualify if he can solve the problem by a leave, by letter, by power of attorney or through some other person. And the soldier won't qualify if the problem existed or was reasonably foreseeable by the man when he last came on active duty.

Here are a few "musts" to remember: Serious money problems must involve the soldier suffering substantial financial loss — not due to mismanagement of personal income — if he isn't reassigned. Military surgeon's must review applications concerning medical problems to see if there is really a need for reassignment. There is only one route to take when requesting a compassionate transfer. Discuss your problem with the first sergeant, commander and personnel officer. They can supply you with details for submitting an application.

Should a situation arise while you are on emergency leave or enroute overseas that you desire to submit an application for a compassionate reassignment, contact the Compassionate Review Branch, Washington, D. C. Area Code 202 OX 70621.

Clinics check for cancer

This past week has been designated as National Cancer Week.

A Martin Army Hospital spokesman reminds us that the OB-GYN Service at Martin Army Hospital has clinics for patients with symptoms or problems relating to cancer as well as screening clinics (no complaints, but on an annual or periodic basis) where examinations and test are performed to find anything abnormal that might be prevented from progressing.

For direct appointment, telephone 544-1701 or 544-3393.

BOQs called high risk areas

Persons living in post bachelor officers and enlisted quarters (BOQ and BEQ) are urged to lock up their possessions—or face losing them.

Thefts from BOQ and BEQ rooms have increased greatly in the past year, and this housing now is classified as a high risk area.

Unless there is evidence that individuals secured their outside room door as well as putting their valuables under separate lock within the room, claims for money or property resulting from thefts will not be approved.

USO to commemorate 30 years of service

By Howard Sessions

Thursday will mark the 30th anniversary of the founding of the United Service Organizations Inc., with the Columbus USO, planning a variety of entertainment and functions to mark the founding.

More than 25 million Americans who have worn the uniform since the beginning of World War II have been given the sign of welcome by the USO. The Columbus USO was founded in 1941 and has served Fort Benning soldiers since that time.

On Thursday open house will be held at the Columbus USO, with local citizens invited to view the work and facilities. Feb. 5 Junior volunteers will receive recognition and awards for service.

Saturday the USO will host the servicemen's ball. This affair is held annually for servicemen in the Columbus area. Feb. 7 is recognition day for senior volunteers working in the local USO. At this time the staff and volunteer workers will be recognized for their service.

The Columbus USO is just one of more than 200 such organizations serving the men in uniform both overseas and in the U.S.

At a USO club or lounge a serviceman may relax, write letters, enjoy television or listen to records or the radio. He may get information and tickets to sports events, stage and motion picture productions, get help in housing or personal problems or find information about places of worship. In addition, more than 1,000 entertainers annually give approximately 8,000 performances to audiences totaling more than 7 million servicemen.

USO is supported by voluntary contributions primarily through United Fund, Community Chest and other independent campaigns. It receives no financial support from the government.

'Showboat' to celebrate opera house centennial

by Micki Krolicki

In 1871, Francis J. Springer opened the doors of the Springer Opera House. Since that time, countless area residents have enjoyed the fruits of his vision. The Springer Theatre Company board of directors has chosen to celebrate this historic centennial by bringing to the Springer Opera House one of the greatest American musicals, the entertainment classic, "Showboat."

Jerome Kern and Oscar Hammerstein captured forever the spirit of the times with music and lyrics which have not been surpassed. King Cotton, back-breaking toil, simple pleasures and the inexorable majesty of nature live on in the unforgettable "Old Man River." Poignant loves and unswerving loyalties are voiced in the haunting sweet melody "Bill." The rollicking, foot-tapping theme, "Here Comes the Showboat," has the river townspeople responding with excited anticipation.

It should be a truly gratifying evening of entertainment especially suited to commemorate 100 years of Springer Opera House history.

ATHENS ART

Two exhibits, "Contemporary Craftsmen From Norway," and "Soft Images," photographs by David Ruether, is now open at the Georgia Museum of Art, University of Georgia, Athens.

The Norwegian works are in an exhibit organized by Lars Langaker, cultural attache, the Embassy of Norway, using selections by Tormod Alnaes for the Norwegian Association of Arts and Crafts. The American Federation of Art is circulating the exhibit in the United States.

The exhibit catalog notes that the "strict discipline . . . (of) Scandanavian design . . . is still a dominant factor . . . The cool, sober and functional elegance long associated with Scandanavian silver, crystal or china is increasingly replaced by a more robust approach as . . . craftsmen search for stronger personal forms of expression."

This exhibit includes 275 objects and will be shown through Feb. 18.

"Soft Images," organized by Andrew Dickson White Museum of Art, Cornell University, contains 24 photographs which have been cited for their "tonal complexity . . . technical perfection . . . understated romanticism," according to a statement in the exhibit's catalog.

Museum hours are 2 to 5 p.m. on Sundays, 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. weekdays and 9 a.m. until noon on Saturdays.

MOONSHINE MUSEUM

DAWSONVILLE, Ga. (UPI) There's a special kind of museum in this Georgia town - one devoted exclusively to the illegal art of moonshine.

Officials boast the museum has enough equipment to "float the whole state off in a sea of white lightning." But the American Automobile Association points out its location is less than ideal - it's right near the city jail.

Libraries' Books

Frank D. Gilroy's novel "Private" is best described in the words he used to answer the question "How does your book differ from others in the field?" — "It's based on what I saw, felt, smelled, heard and did, and no one knows that but me."

Len Deighton — "Bomber" - A novel that relates the events of the last flight of an RAF bomber over Germany in World War II.

"Long Rattler" by Endora Welty. Set in rural Mississippi during the 1930's, the action covers two days, but through flash backs a three generation history is revealed.

Charles C. Moskos Jr.'s "The American Enlisted Man" is an account of the norms, attitudes, and styles of life in the enlisted "culture." Included too are changes in the portrayals of enlisted men in mass media, plays, and novels over the past decades.

"The Road From War: Vietnam 1965-1970" is a collection of the Vietnam War kept by author Robert Shaplen. Included in the narrative are insights to the political situation, the Vietnamization program and the effects of the war on the society.

Practical advice on "How You Can Beat Inflation" is given by David L. Markstein. Information on causes of inflation, steps that have worked in the past, investments, taxes, and consumer information are all included.

"The Fabulous Century 1900-1910" is the first volume of a series

Synopsis

Tora, Tora, Tora (Rated G). In Japanese, this title means "Tiger, Tiger, Tiger." This was the code signal flashed by Lt. Cmdr. Mitsuo Fuchida back to the Japanese carrier Akagi to signify his attack squadron had achieved complete surprise in the strike against the U.S. Naval Base, Pearl Harbor.

Telling the story from both sides as it occurred on the highest diplomatic, political and military levels, "Tora, Tora, Tora," traces the events culminating in the attack of Dec. 7, 1941 — "the date of infamy" — that catapulted America into World War II.

Three years in the making, filming on location, "Tora, Tora, Tora," the most spectacular film ever made, is dramatically, visually and technically superb.

THE STRAWBERRY STATEMENT (Rated R). This movie is a plea for more compassion in our individual and collective treatment of one another.

Simon and Linda, played by Bruce Davison and Kim Darby, are students drawn together by their mutual involvement in a campus protest demonstration.

While they are not really revolutionaries, lack of understanding by the "Establishment" forces them into such roles, and the story moves toward the young people's emergency into adulthood and political commitment.

I WALK THE LINE (Rated GP). Sutton is a small town in the Tennessee hills, where Sheriff Gregory Peck keeps the peace. He meets Tuesday Weld, whose father, Ralph Meeker, and brother, Jeff Dalton, are moonshiners.

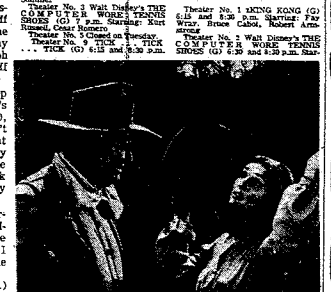
Tuesday's job is to keep Peck occupied. Peck's wife, (Estelle Parsons), daughter and father don't get along with him at home, and he willingly starts an affair. Revenue agents move in and Peck tries to persuade Tuesday to run off with him.

Johnny Cash sings several country ballads, including "Hungry," "This Side of the Law," "Cause I Love You," and the little song, "I Walk the Line".

KING KONG (Rated G.)

Towering as tall as a skyscraper, King Kong captures a woman and is ready to destroy an army to keep her.

King Kong, the all-time classic film is unsurpassed in its trick photography and is hailed as one of the fifty great films of all time by Bosley Crowther, former New York Times critic.



TICK . . . TICK . . . TICK . . . (Rated G.)

This is a power-packed topical drama, brought to the screen with a power-packed cast. Its stars are Jim Brown, George Kennedy and Frederic March.

Brown plays the role of the first Negro sheriff of Colusa County, charged with keeping order and enforcing the law.

Kennedy portrays the deposed white sheriff trapped between inborn beliefs of honor and duty and the reality of "now".

Fredric March, is seen as the town's veteran mayor, accustomed to controlling the county until he becomes the caustic catalyst around whom Brown and Kennedy build a formidable alliance.

Meets his match

Big John Wayne, fresh from his Oscar triumph, stars with Jennifer O'Neill in the new action packed western, "Rio Lobo," directed by Howard Hawks. Wayne stars as an ex-Civil War officer who frees a Texas town of carpetbaggers and settles an old score with a wartime informer. "Rio Lobo" is currently playing at a Columbus Theater.

Baker to present comedy

Take a bored rich lady, and her two lovely young nieces. Mix well with a second-rate con-man and his two apprentices. Add a befuddled old man and two fortune hunters, and what do you have? "Thieves' Carnival."

The Baker Players will present this delightful comedy by Jean Anouilh at 8 p.m. Feb. 4-6 in the Baker High School Auditorium.

"Thieves' Carnival" is the most successful of Anouilh's works in the United States, is an excellent lark, loaded with humorous whims, romances and masquerades.

The guiding spirit of the play is a musician who leads the characters through a merry round of escapades, winding up with the proverbial happy ending.

Tickets to "Thieves' Carnival" may be purchased at the door. Prices are $1.25 for adults and 75 cents for students.

Traveling theater to perform Shakespeare classic

The renowned National Shakespeare Company is scheduled to perform "Much Ado About Nothing" tomorrow. The performance is sponsored by the English Club of Baker High School and will be given in the Baker High Auditorium at 8 p.m. Tickets can be purchased at Baker or by mail (please enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope.)

The NSC, which is now in its eighth touring season, brings audiences across the United States and Canada the magic of theater as envisioned by the world's great playwrights. The professional acting ensemble, richly attired in period costumes, performs on an imaginative classical set especially designed to adapt to almost any stage. Constructed of aluminum, the set can be put up in any of 3,000 ways in just a few minutes, providing the basic playing areas necessary for faithful productions of the classics. The portable set is further enhanced with lighting and scenery, permitting the vigorous acting ensemble to bring alive the works of the masters.

Mario Siletti of The Metropolitan Opera has once again been chosen to stage the comedy.

Miss Sulka, the company's managing director, and frequently leading lady, notes that the company is continuing a tradition which began almost with the country's history—the touring entertainers. And while it is no longer necessary to place everything under lock and key when the vagabond players arrive, "the play is the thing" and the company rarely performs for less than standing room audiences.

Tickets are $1.50 for students—including college students—and $2.50 for adults.

Dramatizers seek art for display

In conjunction with the post Arts and Crafts Center, the Fort Benning Dramatizers are sponsoring an art exhibit for their presentation of the drama "Blues for Mr. Charlie."

Artists and craftsmen who want to display their work either for exhibit or for sale at the post playhouse (Bldg. 1287) during the performance of the play should contact Roy Lothner, entertainment director (telephone 545-2316). "Blues" will run Feb. 19, 20 and 22-25.

Lotherner said the exhibit will be placed in the lobby of the theater and the display will be protected at all times.

Artists are requested that their displays be in line with the theme of the play — a plea for equality and justice among blacks and whites. Also they are urged to attend rehearsals of the drama (held at 7:30 p.m. on weekdays and at 2 p.m. Saturdays at the playhouse) to obtain ideas. Those who do attend rehearsals should notify Lothener, the play's director, Totlee Brown; or the entertainment specialist on duty of their presence.

Final arrangements to exhibit should be made no later than Feb. 16.

'Soldiers want DUCFAB,' say general

WORMS, Germany (ANF) — What does the young volunteer soldier want? One general says the young soldier of today wants DUCFAB.

DUCFAB is an acronym coined by Lt. Gen. Charles W. Eifler, commanding general, U. S. Theater Army Support Command, Europe. In an address sponsored by the Worms Chapter, Association of the U. S. Army, the general said he had formed his ideas of what the young member of the military really wants.

"In my opinion," he said, "this will do it: D for dollars; more dollars, and a bigger dollar's worth, will help. U for understanding; officers and senior noncommissioned officers have got to bend a greater effort toward really understanding the young soldier, what he is and why. C for contributing; every man or woman in the military must be made to feel that he or she is really contributing toward a worthwhile objective.

"F for fairness; another word for equal opportunity, or justice, or whatever we may wish to call it.

"A for advancement; every human being wants his efforts to be appreciated — if they're not appreciated, by word or deed, he feels isolated, left out of the mainstream of events. And, B for belonging; man is basically a joiner. He wants to be a vital part of the organization in which he serves. If he is dealt out, he will join the dissidents, become anti-establishment.

"We must all work harder to make all men feel they belong to the team in a very real way.

"There you have it. That's DUCFAB."

POW wives eligible for VA home loans

The 1,000 wives of American servicemen missing or captured in Vietnam make up only a small percentage of the 560,000 women eligible for educational benefits, home loans, or both from the Veterans Administration, the agency pointed out today.

A law signed by the President last month made wives of servicemen listed for more than 90 days as missing in action, captured "or forcibly detained or interned in the line of duty by a foreign government or power" eligible for VA home loan and educational programs.

The largest group eligible for VA programs is 180,000 female veterans of World War II and the Korean Conflict.

Their unused expired loan benefits were restored by law last October.

Another 160,000 women now in service, or who served after Jan. 31, 1955, qualify under the current GI Bill for monthly checks for educational purposes and for the home loan program with loans guaranteed up to 60 per cent with a maximum of $12,500.

Under a new VA program 175,000 widows of deceased veterans can go to school, take training or make home loans under VA programs. Some 8,230 thus far have taken advantage of these major programs.

Wives of 64,000 permanently and totally disabled veterans are eligible for VA educational benefits. Some 1,800 have participated so far.

Women who think they may be eligible for benefits under any VA program are urged to contact their nearest VA office for further information.

AUSA

By Stan Hefner

The Association of the United States Army (AUSA) — dedicated to the premise that a strong, modern, mobile Army is vitally essential to our national defense.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY BENEFIT BALL

The local chapter of the AUSA will hold its first Washington's Birthday Benefit Ball Feb. 19, at 7 p.m. in the Fort Benning Officer's Club.

The event will be a formal dinner and dance featuring the best prime rib dinner the Officers' Club has to offer. The cocktail hour and dinner will be followed by entertainment by the Infantry Chorus and dancing with music provided by two bands.

The uniform for soldiers may be greens with bow tie or Army blues. Tuxedos are civilian dress for either soldiers or civilians.

Proceeds from the ball will be used to support chapter programs including ROTC Scholarships, Soldier of the Month awards, and ROTC rifle and drill competition.

The need for extra funds is because fewer soldiers are being assigned to Fort Benning and joining the AUSA. The chapter receives $1.75 from each new membership to be used on local projects.

Tickets for the ball cost $7.50 for E7 and above and officers and civilians. Tickets for soldiers, E6 and below cost $5 each. This includes the cost of the prime rib dinner as well as the program and entertainment. Non-members as well as members of the AUSA are urged to attend.

Tickets may be purchased at Room 602, Infantry Hall, (telephone 545-4792) or through major command headquarters on post. Civilian ticket sales are being handled by Col. Ned Mabry, USA ret., (telephone 327-1566), Joe J. Flowers, Jr. (telephone 322-6661)), and Col. Jake L. Riley, USA ret. (telephone 323-3891).

AUSA SUPPORTS THE MODERN VOLUNTEER ARMY

Brig. Gen. Robert F. Cocklin, USAR, AUSA director of public affairs, stated at an information conference in Atlanta this month that AUSA fully supports the move toward the Modern Volunteer Army.

Gen. Cocklin added in his remarks that anything which makes job satisfaction better and improves the living conditions of the soldier has AUSA support. He also pointed out the importance of maintaining a draft capability while the services move toward a zero draft.

ROTC DRILL COMPETITION

The Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning Chapter, AUSA, will again sponsor the annual competition between junior division ROTC drill teams and rifle teams of the 3rd Army area this spring. Tentative dates for the event to take place at Fort Benning are set for May 6, 7, and 8.

Last year's events saw 325 junior division ROTC students competing for the trophies and awards furnished by the local chapter.

Maj. William G. Newbold, USA ret., AUSA-ROTC committee chairman, said interest in this year's competition has already been expressed by schools as far away as the Canal Zone. He also stated that the program for this fourth annual competition would be basically the same as that for the last competition.

JANUARY AWARDS

During the month of January an AUSA plaque was awarded to PFC Jon. S. Vandivier as Soldier of the Month from Headquarters Command, USAIC. Vandivier is assigned to Company D.

Also receiving a plaque during the month was Sp5 Tony C. Boothby of the 609th Transportation Company. Boothby was selected as Soldier of the Month for USAIC Aviation Command.

An AUSA Plaque was presented to 2nd Lt. Michael W. Menser, distinguished graduate of 51st Co., 5th Stu. Bn., TSB at the graduation held Jan. 14. His plaque was presented by the Secretary of the Army Stanley Resor.

197th cagers net three victories

The 197th Infantry Brigade basketball team began the second half of the post season last week with three straight victories.

Declared the champions of the first half of the season, the 197th romped over The Student Brigade (TSB), Jan. 18; edged past the Headquarters Command (Hq. Cmd.), Jan. 20; and injured the Medical Department Activities (MEDDAC) team, Jan. 21.

The three victories extended the 197th regular season record to 13-1.

Not even a 37-point downpour by TSB guard Don Townsend could put out a raging 197th fire during the first basketball game of the second half of the season. The 197th jumped off to a 4-0 lead and stayed in front to take the victory, 95-81.

The 197th stretched its lead to 9-2 after the first three minutes of the game. Three turnovers committed by TSB in the early moments were the prime cause for its unfortunate offensive showing.

TSB began to close the gap and brought itself to within two points of the 197th after the first five minutes.

After about two minutes of close playing, the 197th romped to a 10-point lead at the 12:44 mark, and kept stretching the lead until half-time when the score read 47-29.

The 197th fought to a 20-point lead early in the second half, but a barrage of scoring by Townsend cut the 197th Infantry Brigade's lead to 15 points.

Half-way through the final period, TSB had sliced the 197th lead to nine points.

With about six minutes remaining, Calvin Williford, playing his first game ever for the 197th, came in to score 14 points, insuring the 197th of a victory. With three-and-a-half minutes left in the game, the 197th had regained its 15-point lead and held on to win 95-81.

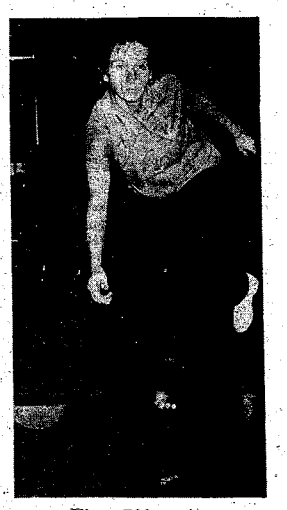
The game's high scorer was TSB's Townsend with his 37-point performance, but only two of his other teammates scored in double figures. William Mullen scored 10 points, all in the second half. Carnell Seals also scored 10 points.

TSB collected a total of 52 rebounds, which was only six less than what the 197th team grabbed. But, TSB committed 16 turnovers, and the 197th only nine.

Slim Ingram led the Infantrymen in scoring with 20 points. Five other 197th cagers finished in double figures to give the brigade one of its most balanced attacks of the season. Will Brockington ended up with 15 points. Williford collected 14 points. Don Campbell and Black both had 13 points, and Maurice Travers finished with 12.

The Hq. Cmd. led the 197th through most of the brigade-level basketball game, Jan. 20, but the 197th recovered in the final minutes to squeeze out a 78-71 victory. A basket-full of careless 197th turnovers and a lethargic shooting performance by the 197th early in the second half, nearly cost the Infantry Brigade its first loss since Nov. 30.

The Hq. Cmd. romped to a 37-31 half-time lead and continued to stretch its lead until 16 minutes remained in the second half. At that time, the 197th began a seven-minute drive that tied them with the Hq. Cmd.



At 8:16, the 197th pulled ahead, 62-60. But it was only a matter of seconds until a three-point play had the Hq. Cmd. again ahead, 63-62.

The game went nip-and-tuck for the next six minutes as the lead changed hands six times. At 1:22, 197th forward Black sank a field goal and a free throw, giving the 197th a 72-71 lead. The Hq. Cmd. did not score another point, as the 197th went on to win 78-71.

The game's leading scorer was Black of the 197th with 25 point's. George Robinson of the Hq. Cmd. led both teams in rebounding with 19 grabs.

On the following night, the 197th faced a determined MEDDAC team, but went on to win a close game, 85-66. The 197th did not pull ahead to stay until after the first six minutes of the game.

The 197th again started to increase its margin until the final buzzer when Ingram hit, making the final score 85-66.

First 700 series

Joyce O'Connell bowls scores of 212, 228 and 268 at the Fort Benning Main Post Bowling Alley to roll the first official three-game 700 series recorded by a woman bowler at local alleys. Her composite league average is 186. She has been registered to compete in the open division of the Women's National Bowling Tournament to be held in Atlanta in April.

Benning team places first in international rifle meet

An International Rifle Team from the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit (USAMTU) journeyed to Marietta, Ga., Jan. 23, where they participated in the two-day River Bend Mid-Winter International Gallery Rifle Championships, it was announced this week by Col. Robert M. Piper, commander of the Marksmanship Unit.

Competing with 40 other master shooters in the indoor meet, the local team managed to place first and second in the individual 3-Position matches and first and third in the team matches.

1st. Lt. Lanny R. Bassham won the individual matches with a 1,164 total. He had a 396 in prone, a 372 standing and 394 kneeling. Capt. Gregory Dalton placed second with 1,158.

In the team matches, the U. S. Army "Blue" Team won first place with 4,593. The team included Bassham, Capt. Clifford Davis, 1st. Lt. Robert Bach, and Sp4 William Lange. A. U. S. Army Reserve team placed second with 4,580 while the U. S. Army "Red" team placed third with 4,552.

Kathy Krilling, the teen-age daughter of MSgt. William Krilling from the USAMTU, accompanied the team and fired in the Junior's and Women's divisions. She placed first in both of these events with a 1,132 score.

RECORD-SETTING TEAM

Hq. Cmd. slides by 931st, 93-88

On Jan. 18, the 931st Engineer Group was the first to score and set the pace for the game with the Headquarters Command (Hqs. Cmd.) at Briant Wells Gymnasium.

As the game's first half progressed, scores were frequently tied. The game was close up to the final bell, with a final score, 93-88, in favor of Hq. Cmd.

Engineer Anthony Protho sank the first basket only seconds after the game's start. Protho scored frequently throughout the game. High scorer for the game was Bill Mavredes, who scored 28 points.

Of particular interest was the engineers' ability to capture 27 points, 32 per cent of the total points, from free shots given for fouling penalties. Engineer Mavredes obtained 50 per cent of the points received from foul shots.

Rebound superiority was obtained by neither team. Key engineers in rebound action were Jerry Young, Steve Kennedy, Bill Covington, and Bill Mavredes. The engineers seemed to have greatly improved their aggressiveness in rebound activity.

While a "toss-up" for rebound superiority was evident, the engineers' ability to steal the ball from the opponents was prevalent. On several occasions stealing activities resulted in engineers' scoring.

A successful stealing attempt by quick thinking Mavredes, who threw a fast, full-court pass to Jerry Lowery, resulted in another score for the engineers. Almost immediately after Lowery's score, Gene Miller snagged the ball from the opponent's control and threw the ball to Jerry Young for a 2-point basket.

An important improvement evidenced during the game was the engineers' increased reliance on team effort. When the team members "pulled together," scoring was achieved which most likely would not have occurred if individuals had played only for themselves. It is this continued practice of team effort that will push the engineers into a highly competitive position to aggressively challenge future opponent teams.

Bart Starr to visit 197th

Bart Starr, outstanding quarterback for the Green Bay Packers professional football team, will speak Monday at 10:30 a.m. in the Kelly Hill field house.

Chaplain (Maj.) David W. Hoh of the 197th Infantry Brigade said Starr's appearance is being sponsored by the Men of the Chapel on post.

"Starr was invited here because he represents a real man among men," Chaplain Hoh said. "He is a man who has worked with other men of all races and categories, not only in athletics, but in church, youth and community activities."

During his visit to the 197th Infantry Brigade, Starr will have lunch in one of the unit mess halls, Chaplain Hoh said.

Training unit entertains shooters at open house

The US Army Marksmanship Training Unit (USAMTU) was host to local sportsmen, police departments and gun and rifle enthusiasts Jan. 15 when they held Open House at the post skeet lodge.

Approximately 50 guests showed up for the afternoon affair, including 22 members from the Columbus Police Department. Colonel Robert M. Piper, commanding officer for (USAMTU) welcomed the visitors and gave them a brief orientation on the afternoon's program. Lt. Col. Dale S. Red, chief, Rifle Division, gave the guests a review on marksmanship history, its accomplishments and the unit's mission.

The visitors were then divided into three groups for stimultaneous trips to the shotgun range, Parks Range and Phillips Range. At each of the ranges, the groups witnessed demonstrations and heard discussion on proceedures and techniques used in the specific international competitive shooting.

At Parks Range, the guests were given an introduction to international rifle techniques by Capt. Gregory L. Dalton, while at Phillips they observed pistol demonstrations and listened to MSgt. Emil W. Heugatter Jr., discuss proven tehcniques in pistol marksmanship.

The groups observed international trap and skeet demonstrations at the shotgun range and heard Capt. Kenneth D. Gilbert discuss the finer points of successful skeet and trap shooting.

After thiry minutes at each range, the guests were rotated to a different range. With two rotations, each visitor was afforded a visit to each respective range and department of competitive marksmanship.

Following the demonstrations at the ranges, the guests were bused back to the marksmanship Unit headquarters where they visited the various gunsmith shops and participated in panel discussion.

The purpose of the USAMTU open house was to stimulate interest in marksmanship throughout the Fort Benning, Columbus and Phenix City areas in addition to giving the visitors an insight to the mission of the US Army Marksmanship Training Unit.

Shotgun winner

Mark Cogar, son of Sgt. Maj. Hazelton Cogar, accepts the shotgun he won in the Fort Benning Rod and Gun Club deer hunting contest from Ridley Bell, WRBL TV-3 station manager, Cogar registered the largest deer bagged by a junior hunter.

Tryouts begin for 3rd Army competition

The United States Army Infantry Center Marksmanship Unit is holding tryouts for the post rifle and pistol team.

Candidates who are selected will represent Fort Benning in the 3rd United States Army Rifle and Pistol Championships which will be held in April.

Interested personnel may obtain additional information by telephoning 545-5817 during duty hours or 545-1075 after duty hours.

Clark sweeps shooting tourney

Tournaments are made to be won and SFC Hezekiah Clark of the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit (USAMTU) proceeded to do just that last week when he fired the Grand Aggregate score of 2,669-109x to win the 3-Gun Short Course Aggregate tournament held recently.

The 3-Gun Aggregate tournament in which the 22 caliber, center fire and 45 caliber pistols are fired, develops 900 points for each category with the grand total of 2,700 possible. Of this grand total, Clark accounted for 2,669, just 31 out of a perfect score. The national record is 2,674.

There are four identical matches for each of the individual gun categories, which include 20 shots slow fire, 30 shots NRA short course, 20 shots timed fire and 20 shots rapid fire. These 90 shots with the possibility of ten points for each in the three categories, makes up the grand total of 2,700.

Of these twelve matches, Clark won the 22 caliber NRA short course with 200-15, the 22 caliber rapid fire with 200-13, the center fire NRA short course with 300-15 (new national record), and the 45 caliber NRA short course with 298-14.

In chalking these up, he also won the aggregate with each weapon; the 22 caliber individual champion with an aggregate of 891-39, the center fire individual championship with 890-37 and the 45 caliber individual championship with 888-33 to give him the grand aggregate of 2,669-109x.

ROD AND GUN CLUB Notes

By Bill Kloeb

If you were one of the crowds of the curious who visited the Municipal Auditorium last week to see the new enticements the boating industry is holding out to catch the imagination of the public you may be one of those who are now bitten by the boating bug.

Boating, once a prime factor in man's progress, has become one of his favorite and fastest growing sports. Originally it was a sport that only the very rich could afford, but now the cost is within the reach of millions. Each year thousands of Americans join the enthusiasts who spend their leisure hours on the water. Every weekend highways are thronged with cars carrying small boats slung over the top, trailers carrying runabouts and trucks hauling cruisers to the nearest shore or river.

Before you join this ever-growing group of water recreation lovers it would be a good idea to give it some serious thought. Owning and operating a boat is not a simple matter. Buying one requires at least as much thought as you give to buying an automobile. Getting a boat that will do what you want it to do, can be maintained, parked and moved takes a lot of thought and preplanning.

Right now is not too early for active duty personnel to figure what they are going to do with a boat when they get orders to leave Benning. This might also lead to an investigation of highway and transportation regulations or resale markets and values. Transportation regulations vary from state to state and resale values and markets are as variable as those for cars.

Of course, the best source of information on boats is the boat dealer, but, in all probability, after looking at umpteen different hulls and motors you will be quite confused. That's normal, and besides, it's not a one-stop buy. You can probably eliminate some models as being too elaborate or too small on the first go round. Take home some literature on the ones you think may interest you. Study this and you can probably eliminate a few more because of price, configuration or accessories. Take another look at the dealer's showroom. Study those models still in the running in detail. Make sure you saw what you thought you saw. Verify prices and capabilities with the salesman or dealer.

Get a set of Coast Guard Regulations. Study these to make sure you can do what you want to do in the boats you are considering. As an example, the boat must have the proper lights and certain navigational devices if you intend to operate in open water.

Check with boat owners who have boats of the kind you are considering. They will be glad to talk with you and will probably have invaluable ideas from first hand experience. They may have bought built in accessories you won't need or failed to get some necessary ones.

Before making a final decision, take a test ride. Try the boat in the various ways you intend to be using it. If it's going to be a family boat, take the family along. They will probably notice a few more things you overlooked.

Must items that may or may not come as accessories are fenders, bilge pump, anchors, line, paddles, tool kit, first aid kit and a multitude of personal items. Ask the local Coast Guard Auxiliary to make a safety inspection before you put the boat in the water.

Being a boat owner will increase your liabilities under the law. You should have additional insurance to cover you while on the water and during the times the boat is moored or stored. Talk over your requirements with an insurance agent who knows his business. Make sure the coverage you buy is adequate.

JUDO INSTRUCTOR NEEDED

Judo classes have been discontinued until further notice. Classes will resume when a qualified instructor is available. Qualified instructors willing to volunteer time for the program are asked to telephone 545-3803 for additional information.

17 records fall in pistol meet here

Seventeen national pistol records fell and new ones were established at Fort Benning over the weekend when master shooters from the Southeastern states competed in a 3-Gun Short Course Aggregate and Service Pistol Aggregate Tournament with team matches and an International Invitational Pistol meet. The U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit's shooters accounted for nine of the National records.

SFC Hezekiah Clark of the training unit, foremost among the new title holders, captured the National Rifle Association (NRA) Center Fire Short Course Open record with a 300-15X against a field of 65 competitors. At the same time, Clark wrested the Center Fire NRA Short Course Service Record from MSgt. (ret.) Ralph O. Thompson of West Point, Ga., who was a member of the Marksmanship Training Unit when he set the old record of 298-14X.

Clark also outgunned the entire field of master shooters in the Standard Pistol event of the International Invitational Pistol Tournament completed Friday when he fired a sizzling 586. He seized the National Service title in this event which had been held by SSgt. Marvin Black, a former member of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit. He also won the National Open title with this record score.

In the Standard Pistol, Clark started strong by placing 17 shots in the ten circle during the slow fire with three strays going into the nine ring of a count of 197. He almost equalled this score in the timed fire when he placed 15 well spaced shots in the center ring and five in the nine circle for a 195 combination. Not letting up, Clark drilled the rapid fire event target with a 194.

In the aggregate firing there is a total of 2,700 points possible and Clark came through with 2,669-106X, only five points below the national record of 2674.

Maj. Sallie Carroll, world champion air pistol shooter and member of the training unit, added three more national titles when she set new heights for women in the Service Pistol Slow Fire, Service Pistol NRA Short Course and NRA Short Course Aggregate. Her scores were 181, 287-6X and 849-20X.

Two more records and national titles were added by the Marksmanship shooters when the U. S. Army "Blue" team fired an aggregate score of 2,340 to gain the National Service and National Open Titles in Rapid Fire four-man team matches. The team members were SFC Aubrey Smith, Sgt. James McNally, SSgt. John Smith, and SSG Jimmy McCauley.

Of the eight other national titles captured here over the weekend, Thompson won the Center Fire NRA Short Course with a 299-13X, the Center Fire NRA Short Course Aggregate with 890-33X and the NRA Short Course Grand Aggregate with 2068-106X.

Thompson then teamed with Sgt. Maj. (ret.) William B. Blankenship Jr., Allan Fulford and Edwin Bradley as the Georgia Sport Shooting Associations four-man team to win the 45 caliber NRA Short Course Civilian title with 1159-44X, the 22 Caliber Short Course with 1170-39X, and the Center Fire NRA Short Course with 1165-42X.

EES can measure your job proficiency

The Enlisted Evaluation System (EES) is designed to measure the proficiency of eligible personnel in his Military Occupational Specialty (MOS).

To be eligible for MOS evaluation, a soldier must be serving in pay grade E3 or higher and must have completed a minimum of 24 months of active military service.

The EES is supported by more than 350 test control officers woo perform their duties worldwide. The test control officer determines the number of personnel, by MOS, to be tested and obtains rosters of individuals to be tested from commands in his area.

Completed tests are scored; however, the final test score is determined by combining the results of the written test, scores on an efficiency report and results from a performance test when required.

Eligible soldiers are evaluated annually in their primary MOS and every other year in their secondary MOS. Test scores are used in many different ways. For example, one's score may verify his proficiency in his primary or secondary skill, determine his qualifications for promotion in an MOS, or get him into the proficiency pay program.

There are four testing periods a year. To find out when the next one is for your MOS, see your personnel officer or first sergeant.

Facilities

crease and improve post services to the soldier.

Only six of the on-post units have kitchen facilities, while each Camellia unit has its individual kitchen.

More than half of the present facilities also have community bathrooms, Fagan pointed out. Each unit being leased has a private bath.

Priorities for use of the guest house facilities remain the same in the leased units.

Incoming and departing military personnel have first call on the units. Visiting relatives of military personnel stationed at Fort Benning have second priority, while invited guests have third priority on use of the units.

Service charges also will remain the same in the motel units, with the exception that a new maximum daily fee of $9 per family has been established.

Adults pay $2.50 daily and children under 12 $1 for use of the facilities. Minimum charge is $5 per family per day.

The service charges provide daily maid service and linens. They also cover miscellaneous charges such as breakage of small items.

Fagan said he does not expect the Camellia facility to completely handle Fort Benning guest house requirements and requests.

"We average about 90 to 95 per cent occupancy now," he said, "I expect that within a month we will have no vacancy days in the new units."

Ten persons—including managers and maids—will work in the Camellia facility, which will be operated on a 24-hour daily basis.

Persons using the guest house are expected to pay in advance for the length of their expected stay. There are no time limits on how long a family may use the facilities at present. This will be studied as the new operation begins, Fagan pointed out.

Checkout time for the guest house is noon. Persons not checking out by then will be charged for an extra day.

Signs directing incoming personnel to the guest house will be erected in the area of the Camellia complex.

New law to benefit disabled servicemen, veterans

About 52,000 severely disabled veterans and servicemen will benefit from a new law (P.L. 91-666) increasing allowances from $1,500 to $2,800 for the purchase of specially equipped automobiles.

The law also authorizes VA to provide adaptive devices to enable operation of the vehicles, and to repair and replace such equipment. For the first time in the auto grant program, severely disabled servicemen on active duty are eligible, Donald E. Johnson, administrator of veterans affair, pointed out.

He said the total program will cost about $17.5 million the first year. He also noted the $1,500 allowance for automobiles and conveyances had been in effect since 1945, and was increased to $2,800 when the President signed the Disabled Veterans' and Servicemen's Automobile Assistance Act on Jan. 11.

It was explained that 48,600 veterans who already have received the $1,500 car allowance are not eligible for additional funds for this purpose. However, VA is now authorized to provide, replace or repair adaptive equipment for their cars.

Veterans who have lost, or lost the use of, one or more hands or feet, or suffered a loss of vision to a prescribed degree as a result of service since Jan. 31, 1955, are eligible for the new law's benefits.

Veterans with similar losses as a direct result of the Korean Conflict or World War II also are covered.

Surgeon general speaks

Lt. Gen. Hal B. Jennings Jr., surgeon general of the Army, outlined the proposed plan for reorganization of medical services in his speech to the Armed Forces Management Association Jan. 21 at the Supper Club.

The plan, called the Worldwide Organizational Structure for Army Medical Support (WORSAMS), was conceived by a study group directed by the chief of staff to strengthen health services and yet remain compatible with the Army of today and beyond 1985.

The WORSAMS plan is pending approval of the chief of staff, Gen. Jennings said. If approved, it would be implemented in July.

The key to the success of WORSAMS is efficient management, the general emphasized. "We must remain flexible and sincere in trying to give total medical service," he said.

Gen. Jennings, the commander of Martin Army Hospital from 1964 to 1968, is commander of the 94,000 personnel in the Army's medical services.

The general received the "Doughboy Statue" from Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, Fort Benning commander, and an honorary membership to the association from Col. James H. Snelling, executive officer at MAH, and president of AFMA.

Boisvert, Gibbons tops in mechanic's course

Sp4 Robert J. Boisvert was the distinguished academic graduate and Sp4 John T. Gibbons was the distinguished honor graduate of Track Vehicle Mechanic's Course 17-71, which graduated Jan. 22 in ceremonies at Marshall Auditorium.

Guest speaker at the graduation was Lt. Col. Robert Skiles, Command Maintenance Department.

The seven-week mechanic's course provides personnel with working knowledge to perform organizational maintenence and recovery of tracked vehicles.

Included in the course of instruction are engine principles, valve adjustments, cooling and lubricating systems, carburation and fuel injection.

While the students are attending the course here they are assigned to the 15th Co., 1st Bn., TSB.

What's it like to get a discharge? 'Digest' tells

CAMERON STATION, Va. — Did you ever wonder how it will feel when, at long last, you receive that magic piece of paper called an Honorable Discharge? Wonder no more. Just find yourself a copy of the February 1971 edition of Army Digest.

"Their Last Formation," tells how it was for a group of soldiers leaving the service at Ft. Lewis, Wash. Your big day will be something like a commencement and — but read this lead article about the man who made THEIR last formation. Your discharge date will at least seem a little closer.

For those leaving or staying, "Portrait of a Prisoner" is a gripper. It's the true story of OFC Coy R. Tinsley; an account of how it is to be a prisoner of the enemy in Vietnam. It tells of his nearly 7 months as POW, of his life style while in captivity and of pressures placed upon his family back home as they sweated out his return. Their dreams came true, but not without a nightmare period of waiting and wondering. Read it and you'll stand a little taller.

Another action Army story is "Fit to Fight," a view of one of the U. S. Army's toughest training grounds located at Grafenwoehr, West Germany. The place is legend among troops stationed in this key U. S. security area. Cold weather, biting high winds, mud, dust and high heat accompanied by long, long hours are all part of Grafenwoehr's training challenges.

Also very much of the scene in Vietnam are helicopters really "the most" for cargo carrying. Which makes "Copters Carry the Cargo" a good title for an article. The "Iroquois," "Chinook," "Flying Crane" are all on hand, complete with photographs of their load-hauling feats in Nam.

The lighter side of this February edition of the Army's official magazine takes you on a "Visit to Mount Vernon." While George and Martha's place is nice to talk about, Army Digest went one better. We gave you photographs of this historic national shrine. So come on and take a trip — to Mount Vernon, that is.

And for those who think the whole Army is "over 30," turn to Page 48 and "Light Up Your Mind." It's all about the thrust of the Army's new character guidance program. The troops tell the chaplain like it is and he listens. It's rapping about things that are important, and all concerned say the program's a hit.

Rounding out these and other stories are "What's New" and "Dateline" capsules of news written with you in view. And of course, "Unofficially Speaking" spreads a few laughs via cartoons aimed at your laugh center.

New recruiting plan

Individual may enlist for 197th assignment

The 197th Infantry Brigade has been selected to test a new recruiting program which will allow an individual to enlist for one of seven major Army units in the Continental United States.

Under the new program, an individual selects one of the seven units upon joining the Army. He receives basic and advanced training at a U. S. Army Training Center, and upon graduation from this training, he may be assigned to the unit of his choice or to a short overseas tour.

Soldiers who are assigned to a short overseas tour return to the unit of choice upon completion of the short-tour assignment.

If initially assigned to a unit of choice upon completion of training, an individual is subject to a short or long overseas tour after six months with the unit.

The other major units participating in the program are: 3rd Armored Cavalry Regiment, Ft. Lewis, Wash.; 4th Infantry Division (Mechanized), Ft. Carson, Colo.; 1st Armored Division, Ft. Hood, Tex.; 2nd Armored Division, Ft. Hood, Tex.; 82nd Airborne Division, Ft. Bragg, N. C.; and 1st Infantry Division, Ft. Riley, Kan.

Participating units will conduct recruiting programs within a radius of approximately 150 miles of their loca-

AUSA Ball to finance scholarships

ROTC cadets and soldiers at Fort Benning stand to benefit from the proceeds of the Washington Birthday Benefit Ball that will be held by the local AUSA Chapter at 7 p.m. Feb. 19 at the Main Officers Club.

The Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning Chapter of the Association of the United States Army is holding this formal ball to raise funds to continue ROTC scholarships to local youths, support for the annual ROTC rifle and drill meet, soldier of the month awards and awards for honor graduates of the Infantry School.

Col. William R. Guthrie heads the AUSA committee which is completing plans for the ball. Soldiers and citizens are invited to attend.

The motif of the ball will be of Crime gets its week

Columbus Patrolman Harrol Anderson (r) assists Spc Vincent A. Solomon in putting a crime prevention bumper sticker on a military police vehicle. The post's Provost Marshal's Office is working in co-operation with the Columbus Police Department in observance of National Crime Prevention Week, Feb. 7-13. MPs are putting up posters throughout Fort Benning, passing out "anti-crime" bumper stickers to local motorists and distributing pamphlets at post schools. In addition, a "military policeman of the year" will be selected.

School appoints student affairs officer

By Wendell Cochran

Every civilian university is taking strides to get closer to its students, with many of them taking the action only after major on-campus disturbances.

The Infantry School which would rank as a large university by nearly every measuring stick is taking the same steps, with the appointment of Capt. Charles W. Anderson III as the School's first student affairs officer.

And while it isn't in the nature of Infantry School students to march on the Administration Building, Anderson already is finding that the students are quick to voice their dissatisfactions with the system.

Anderson's job was created by the Modern Volunteer Army (VOLAR) experiment. He is assigned to the Office of the Secretary in the Infantry School.

His job, as he sees it, is to "act as a liaison between students, and The Infantry School and Fort Benning community."

One of his primary missions at present is to publish a bi-weekly newsletter that appeared for the first time last month. The newsletter gives officer students facts about the school and about Army life in general.

"I hope to develop a personal relationship with the students," he said. "I would like to encourage students to visit my office and discuss informally the Infantry School."

The soft-spoken captain, a Vietnam veteran and an Officer Candidate School graduate, said he hopes these informal discussions would tell him "not only what is bothering students, but also what they like about their courses and The Infantry School." Both likes and dislikes will be reported to school officials.

As a recent graduate of the Infantry Officers Advanced Course, Anderson has a pretty good feel for the things

Museum solicits in new way

A completely new system is being used in the current $100,000 Infantry Museum fund drive. Here are facts Fort Benning personnel will want to know:

—Suggested tables of giving are just that, and are proportional by grade. The suggested pledge for colonels is $103; that for captains $48. The suggested pledge for E9s is $52; that for E7s $26. The suggested pledge for GS 13s is $103; that for GS9s $40. No individual is required to donate a specified sum. All pledges may be paid over and up to a 12 month period.

—Each individual's contribution is personal and will be kept private. Names and amounts are not given to any part of the chain of command.

—The Infantry Museum campaign is a one-time-only solicitation. No one who gives during this campaign will be asked again to give to the construction of the Infantry Museum.

—All funds collected at Fort Benning will be applied directly and solely to the construction of the new museum. No funds collected at Fort Benning will be used to underwrite costs of the Infantry Museum Development Program's national campaign.

—Officers (captain and above), non-

Museum drive starts off with 7,000 in 1st weeks

With the $100,000 Infantry Museum campaign at Fort Benning only two weeks old, post officials are hoping early returns have set a pattern that will last.

"The initial response from senior officers, noncommissioned officers and civilians has been very favorable," said Col. Robert P. Hatcher Jr., Fort Benning campaign chairman.

"We've received $7,000 from the first 91 donors," he said. "That's an average of $76.90 per donation."

"Of course, most people on post still are waiting to be approached," he said, "and it's their reaction that will determine the success of the campaign."

Two men who have been approached, and who in turn have called on their peers, are CSM Charles H. Fletcher, post sergeant major, and CSM John H. Bittorie of the Infantry School. Their evaluation of new methods being used in the current campaign is the foundation for Hatcher's optimism.

Bittorie thinks the new peer solicitation approach is an improvement:

"The climate for giving is a heck of a lot better under the peer system," he said. "A peer knows if a man has five kids and two in college, for instance, and if there has to be a little leeway. There's no pressure being used — everyone's on the same level — and people have a better appetite for it," he added.

Fletcher's evaluation is more cautious:

"This type of solicitation is something new in the Army," he said, "and we haven't gotten far enough into it for me to make up my mind. I think it probably will work, but I think we'll have to wait another couple weeks just to see what happens."

Under the peer system, officers captain and above; warrant officers W3 and W4; non-commissioned officers of pay grade E7 and above and civilian employes of pay grade GS9 and above are solicited by people of their own grade.

Another innovation which seems to be proving itself in the Fort Benning Campaign is credit card giving. The system allows donations to be paid in as many as 12 monthly payments using BankAmericard or Master Charge credit cards. For individuals who have neither, the Infantry Museum Association provides the same service with its own billing system.

John A. Boland Jr., president of Swift Textiles Inc., recently has been named chairman of the Columbus phase of the campaign.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

by Bill King

For an easy dessert, sprinkle blueberries with lemon juice and top with a mixture of blueberry pie filling and whipped cream.

You'll get a maximum flavor from commercially-prepared salt substitute if you do not add it to food until just before serving.

A sprinkling of ground ginger adds a deliciously different flavor to hot buttered carrots.

An American archeological expedition to the Middle East once discovered several well-preserved loaves of bread that were found to be more than 3,500 years old.

Speaking of stale bread, try putting a slice atop cabbage or other strong-flavored vegetables to cut down on cooking odors. Remove later with a slotted spoon.

If your appetite is getting stale, perk it up with a visit to

Q — Why were the members of the Soldiers Council appointed by their brigade commanders rather than elected by their fellow soldiers on a brigade-wide basis? If these men are to represent their comrades, then they should be elected by them. After all wouldn't this be following our nation's democratic traditions?

A — Yes, it would if the council was being established permanently, however, you must keep in mind that this council is purely experimental and designed to last for only six months. The VOLAR study group desired personnel participating in the experiment to be assured of at least six months longevity at Benning (the entire test period) and only commanders could know that. It was felt too that in view of Benning's turnover in personnel, soldiers would not know each other well enough to make fair and just choices. No two units at Benning are alike in composition. Lastly, this system had proven highly successful with the Company Grade Officers' Council.

Q — As a soldier on active duty, am I eligible for any type of governmental loan that would enable me to send my wife to college? If so, where do I write or go for information?

A — Simply because you are on active duty, you are not eligible for any governmental loans for a wife. However, there are various National Defense loans and scholarships available to you depending on what your wife wants to study. These loans can be secured with the option of repayment upon graduation. If the case so demands, the wife can be given up to 50 per cent forgiveness for the loan, i.e. she would pay only half the loan. The post education advisors have a complete log on loans and scholarships and may be contacted in Room 316, Building 35.

In addition you may be eligible for a loan through the local credit union. These loans are supported by both state and national government and are handled through the Georgia Higher Education Assistance Corporation. To apply you must be a member of your local credit union and a legal resident of Georgia. The corporation will be the determining party for your loan.

For more information contact your local credit union or write: Georgia Higher Education Assistance Corporation, P. O. Box 38005, Capital Hill Station, Atlanta, Ga. 30334.

The judge says

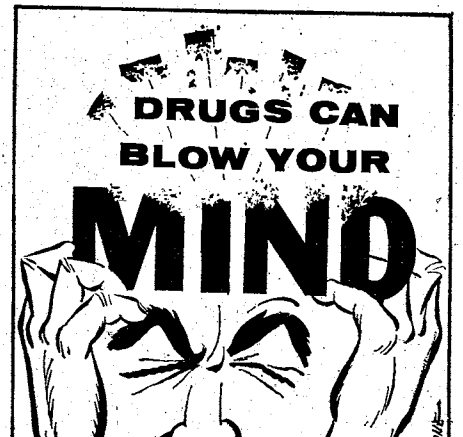
Beware of 'take or leave it' contracts

USAIC LEGAL ASSISTANCE OFFICE — Never sign a contract unless you have read what it says and know what it means. If you can't make it out, take it to a lawyer. He may save you grief later.

Take the case of Gus Gasman. He leased a gas station from an oil company. With the contract already printed Gus could either take it or leave it. Although the lease had some rather unusual terms Gus had no choice but to sign it.

One term said that Gus must "hold the company harmless" for any liability it incurred for anything it did on the station grounds. This would have made Gus responsible for anything the company might do while Gus ran the station.

One day an oil company man came out to fix a gas pump and he was showing Gus how to adjust it. Instead, the repairman accidentally sprayed Gus with gas. It ignited and burned Gus and his helper. They sued the employe and the oil company for damages and won.



Next thing Gus knew, the oil company sued him under his lease saying that he had clearly agreed to hold the company harmless for anything that might go wrong at the station. The court, however, refused to enforce that clause as "contrary to public policy." Besides, the clause was never brought to Gus' attention. He could not know of its far reaching implications.

When there is a great disparity in bargaining power between two contracting parties as was the case here, courts carefully check any terms which the stronger party demands.

Take another case. Bessie rushed her child to the community hospital where she would enter as a non-paying patient. Before the hospital would let her child in, she had to sign an agreement to excuse the hospital for any negligence by any of its staff. Later one of its nurses made a mistake which injured Bessie's child. When Bessie sued, the hospital said that the agreement barred her claim.

The court ruled the contract was "against public policy." The hospital's strong position made it grossly unfair since Bessie could do nothing else but sign in such an emergency. The hospital could not exempt itself from its own negligence in this way, the court said.

Further inquiries concerning this or any similar legal matter should be referred to your lawyer or Legal Assistance Officer.

Take pride in what you are

Keep your head down . . .

Cross the street . . .

Then you won't have to salute.

But who are you putting down? Him or you?

When you let your hand dangle along your hat brim or bring it up in the vicinity of your eye, and you drift by him almost not looking at him—who are you letting down; him or you?

The salute has a special meaning. It is the greeting of people who have pride in themselves. The pride you show today will help you stand taller tomorrow. In or out of the service, you are always going to have to live with you.

You bring your hand smartly to your forehead; that says "I recognize you." You smile, offer a greeting and look him in the eye. This act says: "I respect me and you've got to respect me too."

And when he responds, you bring your hand back down with a snap. You are a man in a special brotherhood and you have greeted such another man.

Not a better man, but a man you respect just as you want him to respect you. (AFPS Editorial).

Thayer, West Point's 'father'

Sylvanus Thayer, who served as superintendent of the U.S. Military Academy from 1817 until 1833, is known to history as the "Father of the Military Academy."

He completely rejuvenated the curriculum, teaching methods, cadet life, and the school's standards of conduct and discipline. The Cadet Honor System he introduced has profoundly influenced every generation of Army officers from his era to the present.

A native of Braintree, Mass., he entered the Academy in 1804, five years after it opened; and was graduated and commissioned a second lieutenant in the Corps of Engineers.

During the War of 1812, he served on the Canadian frontier and at Norfolk, Va. He was sent to Europe in 1815 to study military schools, fortifications, and armies, and two years later returned to the Academy as superintendent at the age of 32.

Thayer found the Academy in a deplorable state, without organization or system. He began examinations [illegible] organized the cadets into companies officered by members of their own body and appointed an Army officer as commandant of cadets, responsible for their tactical instruction and soldierly discipline.

He classified cadets according to their proficiency, divided classes into small sections for better instruction and greatly improved the training program.

Official and unofficial commendations were heaped upon him from many directions. He was recommended for brevet to colonel "for the highest development and effect" he had brought to the Academy. One commendation stated: "It is believed that he has at length given the school an excellence equal to the most celebrated in the world."

Army engineers trained at the Academy in the Thayer tradition are recognized as having been primarily responsible for the westward expansion of the United States in the early part of the 19th Century. Generations of Academy graduates have provided our country with leadership in the arts of peace as well as of war. (AFPS Editorial)

Time lengthened to make captain

First lieutenants with dates of rank of July 16, 1970, or later will have a longer wait before becoming eligible for promotion to captain due to a recent regulation change by the Department of the Army.

The change sets a time in grade requirement of 30 months for first lieutenants with dates of rank after Jan. 1, 1971. And the regulation centralizes promotions at the Department of the Army with dates of rank beginning July 1, 1973.

Beginning with dates of rank of July 16, 1970 to Oct. 15, 1970, the new regulation moves the time in grade requirement up one month over the previous 12-month requirement for each two-week period past the starting date of July 16. From Oct. 16, 1970, to Dec. 31, 1970, two months will be added to the time in grade requirement for each two-week period. Officers promoted to first lieutenant after Jan. 1, 1971, must have 30 months time in grade to make captain.

Official spokesmen also stated that promotions to first lieutenant and captain are not automatic and officers must be fully qualified and recommended for the higher grades.

Beer policy sent out

Beer in Fort Benning's mess halls has been a reality for several weeks. Last week the official guidelines for implementation of the Modern Volunteer Army (VOLAR) policy were sent out in a circular.

The circular says, "Beer will be made available for purchase by soldiers in their mess halls during the evening meal on weekdays and during the noon and evening meal on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays."

It also allows for sale of beer in the barracks area through vending machines as they become available. Major unit commanders were given the authority to determine limits and areas for beer consumption.

Beer sold in the mess halls and barracks areas will be purchased only through the Fort Benning exchange, the circular says.

Prices of the beer are 15 cents for regular and 20 cents for premium, when sold over the counter and 20 cents and 25 cents when sold through a vending machine.

This VOLAR action is one of many that have been chosen by Gen. William C. Westmoreland, Army chief of staff, for adoption throughout the Army.

Chow down

At Patterson Award ceremony

Army's comptroller to head dignitary list

Lt. Gen. John M. Wright Jr., comptroller of the Army and former Fort Benning commander, heads the list of dignitaries scheduled to come to the post for the annual Robert P. Patterson Award ceremony.

Gen. Wright will represent both the secretary and the chief of staff of the Army as 2nd Lt. Edmund Lee Davis is honored as the 19th recipient of the annual Patterson Award. Davis was selected for the honor from among the top graduates of Officer Candidate School last year.

The Patterson Award ceremony will be held at 11 a.m. Feb. 12 in Marshall Auditorium.

Mrs. Patterson, widow of the late Secretary of War Patterson whose memory the award honors, will present the award. She will be accompanied by two grandchildren, Robert P. Patterson III and Ann Patterson.

Maj. Gen. George S. Blanchard Jr., commanding general if the 82nd Airborne Division at Ft. Bragg, N.C., also will attend the ceremony. Others coming from Ft. Bragg will be Col. Alexander M. Weyand, who commands the division's 2nd Brigade. Lt. Davis, who will receive the award, is a platoon leader in Co. C, 3rd Bn. Abn., 325th Inf. 2nd Bde.

Others planning to attend the Patterson Award ceremony are Brig. Gen. Albert B. Jones, deputy chief of the U.S. Army Reserve, representing Maj. Gen. W. J. Sutton, chief of the Reserve; Sam Silverstein of Augusta, Ga., who served in France with (then) Capt. Patterson in World War I; and Davis' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clifton G. Davis, and sister, Clara, of Lake City, Fla.

Lt. Col. Dandridge M. Malone, who won the Patterson Award in 1955, will attend the ceremony. He presently is assigned to the U.S. Army War College at Carlisle Barracks, Pa.

Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, Infantry School commandant, and Col. Kendrick B. Barlowe Jr., deputy assistant commandant of the School, and Chaplain (Col.) Albert Ledebuh also will participate in the ceremony.

Davis will be presented an engraved service pistol, a cash award of $750, a plaque and the Patterson Award Certificate.

After the ceremony, there will be an official luncheon for Mrs. Patterson at the Supper Club. In addition to the visiting dignitaries, the guest list includes local community leaders, six students selected to represent Officer Candidates at the Infantry School, and members of the OCS Hall of Fame who currently are assigned to the post.

Plans for Mrs. Patterson include a briefing on the Infantry Museum. She is a member of the National Advisory Council to the Infantry Museum Development Program.

Mrs. Patterson will visit the 5th Student Batallion and the Patterson Room at Wigle Hall, accompanied by Davis. There will be an open house at the hall for members of Officer Candidate Class 7 (52nd Company).

Local USO to get certificate

Col. Robert P. Hatcher, post commander, will present a certificate of achievement from the Infantry Center to the Fifth Avenue United Service Organization (USO) in Columbus. The award will be presented at a ceremony held in conjunction with the 30th anniversary of the USO.

The ceremony will be held at the USO building located at 651 Fifth Ave. starting at 2:30 p.m. The public is invited.

The Infantry Center certificate of appreciation cites the local USO and its staff for long service to soldiers from Fort Benning and to other members of the Armed Forces.

It is estimated that approximately 5-million servicemen have used the local facility since it first opened its doors.

The national USO celebrated its 30th anniversary Feb. 4 and a number of activities were held at the local facility in conjunction with the observance. Included in the activities was an open house on Thursday. A Servicemen's Ball is scheduled to be held tomorrow.

Another feature of Sunday's ceremony will be the recognition of senior volunteer workers for the USO.

The USO is supported by voluntary contributions primarily through United Fund, Community Chest and other independent campaigns. It receives no financial support from the government.

The USO was created by the Young Men's Christian Association, National Catholic Community Service, National Jewish Welfare Board, Young Women's Christian Association, The Salvation Army and Travelers Aid Association of America.

180 officers, 5 soldiers pin on new Ranger Tabs

New Ranger Tabs were pinned on by 180 officers and five soldiers on Jan. 28 at Todd Field.

Capt. Billy Benham was named officer distinguished honor graduate, and Sp4 George H. Corn Jr., the enlisted distinguished honor graduate. Each received the William O. Darby Award, the guidon of Ranger Class 7-71, an award from the Association of the United States Army, and a letter of commendation from Brig. Gen. John Carley, assistant commandant of the Infantry School.

Guest speaker at the ceremony was Lt. Col. Elliott Sydnor, of the Combat Tactics, Company Operations Department. The climax of the ceremony came when a "Halo" free-fall team, led by Lt. Col. James Anderson, chairman of the Patrolling Committee, Ranger Department, glided to earth a few feet in front of the reviewing stand.

Six members of the Ranger Class 7-71 qualified as honor graduates by attaining 850 or more academic points. The six were second lieutenants Joseph Henn, Lynn Moore, Michael Haworth, Jonathan Severson and Kevin Connolly and Sgt. Willie Brown.

CHANGES MADE

- The official policy on beer in the barracks and mess halls has been established. Beer is available at evening meals during the week and noon and evening meals on weekends and holidays.
- Occupancy of the Fort Benning Guest House facilities that have been leased from Camellia Motel began this week. Guest house units on post have been closed until June 30, the end of the lease.
- Re-enlisting at Fort Benning has been made easier by opening of a central re-enlistment facility in Building 35.

PROPOSALS

- Civilians are being hired to assume some post details. Soldiers, of course, will maintain responsibility for their personal and unit areas.

February draft call 17,000

WASHINGTON (ANF) — The Department of Defense has requested the Selective Service System to provide the Armed Forces Examining and Entrance Stations with 17,000 inductees in February. All of these inductees are for the Army. This request supports currently approved strength levels and will assure a timely flow of replacements for personnel completing their terms of service. The draft call for January also was 17,000.

Former Army chief of staff visits post

Gen. (ret.) Lyman L. Lemnitzer, former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and now liaison officer to Supreme Headquarters, Allied Powers Europe, visited Fort Benning on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week.

Wednesday, he addressed students in the Infantry Officer Advanced Course classes. He also received a number of briefings before departing the post.

Gen. Lemnitzer served on active duty with the Army for 49 years before his retirement in July 1969. At his retirement ceremony at the White House, he became the first individual in history to receive the U. S. Army Distinguished Service Medal (with three Oak Leaf Clusters), the U. S. Navy Distinguished Service Medal and the U. S. Air Force Distinguished Service Medal.

A 1920 graduate of the U. S. Military Academy, Gen. Lemnitzer rose to the rank of general in March 1955. He was named Chief of Staff, U. S. Army, in July 1959, and chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff in November 1962.

His final Army assignment was Supreme Allied Commander, Europe.

Gen. Lemnitzer holds decorations from 22 foreign countries for distinguished service in peace and war. Among his civilian honors is the Bernard M. Baruch Distinguished Service Award, presented by the Veterans of Foreign Wars for contributions to the cause of American unity and world peace.

Girl Scouts to sell cookies at 4 sites

Coming in with the new year and the "new" Army Fort Benning's Girl Scout Troops have developed a new tenchique for their annual Girl Scout Cookie Sale.

Mrs. Fred Mayer, the 1971 Cookie Sale chairman, says scouts this year are selling cookies in six locations in post PX areas only. There will be no door to door sales as in the past. Sales will be conducted this weekend and next Saturday.

The main post PX area has four sales locations: the entrance of the Main Commissary, both front and back entrances of the main PX and the front entrance of the Toy and Garden Shop. Saturday sales hours will be from 9 til 5 p.m.

This Sunday cookies will be available at both entrances of the main PX and at the Toy and Garden Shop from 1 until 5 p.m.

Girl Scouts will be selling cookies at the Custer Terrace Commissary complex on Saturdays from 11 to 5 p.m. and this Sunday from 10 to 5 p.m.

Troops in the Lawson Field area will find cookies available on the Saturdays of the sale only at the Lawson Field PX from 11 to 5 p.m.

Martin Army Hospital will have a sales area on the hospital lower level on Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

This year's Girl Scout Cookies are available in four varieties: chocolate mint, peanut butter, butter flavored and assorted chocolate and vanilla sandwich cookies. Cookies will sell for 50 cents per box.

Proceeds from the cookie sale will be used for additional buildings, equipment and maintenance of Girl Scout camping facilities within the Concharty Council area.

Home economist to give talk

Members and guests of the Noncommissioned Officers Wives Club will hear Miss Lee Parker, a professional home economist from Washington, present a lecture and demonstrations at the Sand Hill NCO Club at noon, Wednesday.

Especially designed for military wives, this program will feature new recipe ideas, household hints, personal appearance tips, and ideas for gracious entertaining and hostessing. Slides featuring international dishes made with convenience foods will be shown. Many free samples and recipe booklets will be provided for all attending. The program will be climaxed by a presentation of gifts.

Miss Parker has traveled extensively in both the United States and Europe. She holds a Bachelor of Science degree in Home Economics from the University of Maryland. Upon graduation, she began a career by traveling as a Home Demonstration Agent for the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture. She later enriched her professional and business experience as a member of the Home Service Staff of the Washington Gas Light Company, and as an Interior Designer.

Since joining this worldwide organization, she has addressed thousands of military wives throughout the United States.

Reservations are required and the deadline is 8 p.m. today. The luncheon menu will consist of hot roast beef sandwich, french fried potatoes, orange sherbert, coffee and tea. The cost is $1.25.

Miss Parker will have many homemaking hints and recipe booklets for those attending.

Reservations may be made by calling one of the hostesses: Mrs. Gerald Fitzgerald, 544-1549; Mrs. Tom Simmons, 545-7096; Mrs. James Dixon, 689-7244.

'Bear' party no 'bummer' for 5th, 31st, members

"What you see is what you get," and the Polar Bears saw a lot of bums on a recent Monday night at the Custer Terrace Officers' Club. Alpha Company sponsored a Bum's Night for the first half and farewell of 1971 for the 5th Battalion of the 31st Infantry.

Bum's Night was definitely not a 'bummer.' With Custer Terrace Club at their disposal, the Polar Bear bums ate from the scrumptious buffet, danced to the swinging sounds of the Reflections, enjoyed a Bum's Fashion Show and participated in a dance contest.

Hail and Farewell parties can be cut and dried, but the Polar Bears have Super Bear, alias Capt. Lonnie Kirk, Co. A, commander, who missed his calling as a night club comedian and was given to the Polar Bears by Uncle Sam.

His quips and quotes on the mike kept the Polar Bears in stitches all evening. Super Bear called the bums off their benches to put on a fashion show such as has never been seen before. Among the models were XO Bear (Maj. Wendell Dillon) and his wife, Re-up Bear (Capt. Lloyd Collins), Wolf Bear — what kind of animal is that? (Lt. John Wolf), Billy Bear (Capt. William Sansone) and his wife and many others.

During the modeling, the rest of the Bears judged the models and selected the "Biggest Bum in the Battalion." This honor went to Lt. John Wolf who wore frayed pedal pushers, a once-white personalized T-shirt and a baseball hat.

For a welcome change of pace, more hails were made than farewells. Welcomed to the battalion were Maj. and Mrs. Eugene Wood, who are returning to the Polar Bears after a brief sojourn at the Brigade HQ level; Lt. and Mrs. Glen Pendergrass; Lt. and Mrs. Larry Clemens; Lt. and Mrs. James Costen; Lt. and Mrs. Cavin Carpenter and Lt. Michael Palbus.

A sad farewell was bid to Maj. and Mrs. Bernard Muller-Thym who is moving up to Brigade HQ. Maj. and Mrs. Muller-thym have been with the Polar Bears for 17 months and that is a longevity record, but as the saying goes, "once a Polar Bear, always a Polar Bear."

The ladies of the battalion received a pleasant surprise when Papa Bear gave each one a ceramic polar bear as a memento of the many days she had to keep dinner warm just a few minutes longer and as a special gift from Papa Bear to show his appreciation for the roles the wives play in the support of the battalion.

Check is given

Mrs. John E. Watts (l), wife of Maj. John Watts presents a check for $500, on behalf of the Infantry Officer's Advanced Class 6-70 to Mrs. Doris Hill, chairman, and Mrs. Ben Purcell, co-chairman of the Columbus branch of the Citizens Assistance Program for better treatment of POW's (prisoners of war) and MIA's (missing in action). Both Mrs. Purcell, who is Fort Benning's current Military Wife of the Year, and Mrs. Hill have husbands who are being held as prisoners of war in North Vietnam.

Infantry board holds its Winter Formal

Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbot was the guest of honor as the United States Army Infantry Board held its Winter Formal Jan. 23 at the Main Officers Open Mess.

The formal, sponsored by the Field Equipment Test Branch of the Board, was attended by some 35 officer and civilian members of the test activity and their wives. Col. Robert H. Siegrist, commanding officer of the USACDC Infantry Agency, also was present for the dinner.

Dinner was preceded by a cocktail hour in the Benning Room, at which time members of the board who are departing for new assignments were "farewelled" and new officer members were "hailed."

Those honored for their past service to the board were Maj. Donald J. Marion, chief of the Operations Branch; Lt. Col. Brutus A. Lowery, chief of the Methodology and Operations Division; and Capt. Wilbert Alphonse, who served as a test officer with the Supporting Weapons Test Branch.

Capt. Larry D. Walton and CWO Tommy L. Golden were "hailed" upon their arrival at the Board as test officers with the Supporting Weapons Test Branch.

After the cocktail hour the party adjourned to the Corregidor Room, where a dinner of beef wellington, salad, soup, lemon mousse, crab meat biscuits and assorted vegetables was served.

The Infantry Chorus entertained the guests after dinner, followed by dancing at the Supper Club.

NCO wives appoint new club president

Mrs. James Dixon is the new president of the Noncommissioned Officers Wives Club at Fort Benning. She accepted the president's gavel on Jan. 27 from Mrs. Edward Kitchens. Mrs. Kitchens will be remaining in the club as an associate member. The club awarded Mrs. Kitchens a silver chafing dish as a token of their appreciation for her services as president of the club.

Mrs. Dixon comes to the club with many offices to her credit and has worked hard for all club activities since joining. She has served the club as 1st vice president for the past few months. She has established a sewing class for the members and helped to instigate many worthwhile money making projects.

Mrs. Dixon will serve until the general election of officers in May.

Critic tries to turn on classes that turn students off

By Wendell Cochran

When Richard S. Kneisel speaks, Infantry School heads turn. For he is the special assistant for education to the Infantry School's commandant and assistant commandant. That makes him the School's resident education critic.

When he rips off a memo on a class he has just seen ("I try to spend 50 per cent of my time observing instruction.") or comes out with a "Kneiselism," he is speaking from a wealth of training and experience.

(Kneisel holds a master's degree in education from the University of Indiana. He hopes to complete work on a doctorate there this summer. "All I have left is the dissertation," he says.)

Somewhere in his busy schedule (before 8 a.m. and after 5 p.m. each day; homework, usually reading, every night; five educational conferences every year) he, no doubt will find time to tack the coveted Ed.D. to the end of his name. But it won't be easy.

Perhaps because of his own recent experiences as a student, Kneisel could be considered a student's educator.

"Some of our classes turn students off," he says frankly. His goal is to ensure that those classes are improved and that the Infantry School "teaches better, faster, more" in all its courses.

Kneisel wholeheartedly endorses the trend toward the increased application of technology in education. He also would like to see more education "tailored to the needs of the individual student."

"There's nothing wrong with the traditional ways of teaching," he says. "Sometimes that is what you need. But perhaps there are whole new modes of teaching that need to be explored."

One of these modes being tried at the Infantry School is the use of computer assisted instruction that allows students to move through instruction at their own pace.

Kneisel is also a chief proponent of an individual learning center in which the student, aided by computers and other electronic devices, teach themselves the necessary information.

In this area the education adviser — a World War II Chemical Corps officer who doesn't look old enough to be the father of three college students — faces the same problem as many of his civilian counterparts: Educational innovations are expensive and funds are short.

Instruction also could be better tailored to the students if more diagnostic tests were used. "We've got a long way to go on this," he says.

Today's Infantry School student doesn't just want new teaching techniques and innovations, Kneisel says. He also wants to know that the Infantry School has developed a social awareness.

"This social awareness idea is the biggest thing I see infusing the system," Kneisel says. "We've got a different man in our classrooms."

Giving credit where it is due, he adds, "The people in instructional and management positions are beginning to realize that."

In the last year the Infantry School had added classes on such subjects as drug abuse and has begun to emphasize a new style of leadership that depends less on the tough tactics of the past.

The school pioneered race relations instruction. All Army training now includes race relations classes that were developed, for the most part, at the Infantry School.

On the strength of these changes, Kneisel says, "I believe we are ahead of the colleges in facing up to some of the social changes that have come about recently."

As he travels around the nation, meeting educators from other military schools and civilian colleges, Kneisel tries to pick up still other new ideas in education. But he believes he has a lot to offer those who stop to listen to his education ideas.

It is his belief that the Infantry School and other military training agencies have a duty to the nation to use their vast resources to help enhance public education.

He pointed out that the military was a leader in use of audio-visual aids and standardized testing, for example.

And the Infantry School, at the urging of Brig. Gen. John T. Carley, assistant commandant, still is searching for "breakthroughs in education," Kneisel says.

When the breakthroughs come, it is an odds-on bet that the school's resident critic will have helped shaped the ideas.

163 NCOs graduate from 82nd

163 noncommissioned officer candidates of the 82nd Co., 8th Stu. Bn., TSB, graduated last week.

After the invocation, the epic poem, "I am the Infantry" was presented, followed by remarks from CSM Basial L. Plumley, TSB sergeant major.

Guest speaker at the graduation ceremonies was Sergeant Major of the Army Silas L. Copeland. Copeland spoke to the graduates about today's volunteer Army and views of leadership.

After Copeland's address, Harry D. Murley Jr., distinguished graduate of NCOC Class 4-71, received his promotion to sergeant. His stripes were pinned on by Copeland and SSgt. Garry W. Van Wieringen, a Tac NCO with the 82nd Co. Marley received a letter of commendation from Brig. Gen. John T. Carley, assistant commandant of The Infantry School, an engraved "Follow Me" plaque, and an engraved Association of the United States Army plaque.

Pentagon officer attends reunion

Lt. Gen. Melvin Zais, director of Operations of the Joint Chiefs of Staff at the Pentagon, visited Fort Benning last week to attend the reunion of the 101st Airborne Division at the Gold Bar Club.

During his visit he was briefed on the Fort Benning experimental plan for a volunteer Army (VOLAR) and attended the graduation of Infantry Officer's Advanced Course 6-70.

After a luncheon with Gen. Talbott at the Main Officer's Club, Gen. Zais returned to Washington, D.C.

Re-upping simplified

With all the paper work completed the soldier is given the oath of re-enlistment by the person of his choice. Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander, now conducts re-enlistment ceremonies monthly. The next trip is one of the most pleasant for the young soldier. Every person who re-enlists gets some bonus pay (right) with the maximum being $10,000 to a qualified person in a critical Military Occupational Specialty.

Museum official retires from Army

The last active member of Fort Benning's first Infantry Officer Candidate Class left the Army this week with the retirement of Col. William J. Higgins Jr. He was retired from active duty during ceremonies Monday in the offices of Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbot, Fort Benning commander.

Col. Higgins has been serving since last September as executive director of the Infantry Museum Society. He will continue with the association as a civilian.

Col. Higgins, who also served at Fort Benning as Infantry School director of Operations and Logistics, entered the Army in 1941. After his graduation from Officer Candidate School, he served as a platoon leader and company commander during World War II, and saw subsequent duty in Alaska, Germany, Taiwan and Korea with Department of the Army and Department of Defense staffs.

His awards and decorations include the Bronze Star, Army Commendation Medal and the Combat Infantryman Badge.

Col. and Mrs. Higgins will make their home in Columbus.

Flagless stamps

Three U.S. postage stamps that were issued in 1920 to mark the 300th anniversary of the Mayflower landing were the first that failed to bear the "U.S." designation. The only other two stamps to appear this way were the 1963 issue showing the flag flying over the White House and the 1962 Project Mercury Stamp.

Col. Hall takes over Industrial Op.

Col. Robert E. Hall became director of Industrial Operations of the Infantry Center Monday, succeeding Col. C. W. Youngman who is retiring. (Col Youngman has been named special assistant to Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbot, post commander, pending completion of retirement processing.) He goes to the position from that of deputy director, Directorate of Industrial Operations.

Lt. Col. Charles Rock has been appointed deputy director.

Col. Hall, a native of Coral Gables, Fla., received his original commission while a member of the Florida National Guard in 1940. During World War II he served with an anti-aircraft unit in the Southwest Pacific Theater of Operations and during the Korean Conflict he was an advisor to the Korean Army.

He is a graduate of the Artillery Advanced Course at Fort Sill, Okla. He was graduated from the Command General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kan., in 1952 and later spent four years as a member of the college staff.

Col. Hall has two sons in the military service. Robert E. Hall Jr. is a Navy lieutenant stationed at Monterey, Calif., and Timothy H. Hall is an Army captain with the Infantry Center Directorate of Communications and Electronics.

Rock who has been plans and operations officer of the Industrial Operations Plans and Operations Division, entered the service from Washington State in 1942 and served with the 30th Infantry in the European Theater of Operations during World War II. He received a direct commission as second lieutenant while serving at Camp Roberts, Calif., in 1952.

TSB sets up its soldiers' council

In accordance with the Benning Plan for a Modern Volunteer Army, The School Brigade has established a system of Soldiers' Councils.

The councils which are composed of soldiers in the grade of E4 and below will meet at least monthly and more often when needed.

The purpose of the councils is twofold. First, they are designed to improve communications between soldiers and their commanders. In addition, they are meant to provide a means for improving conditions for soldiers and their families by airing complaints and suggestions and recommending changes in policies.

The soldiers' councils are organized at three levels. Each battalion within the brigade will have a council composed of representatives from each company within the battalion. The Brigade Council, in turn, will consist of representatives of each battalion and separate companies.

One representative from the brigade will be appointed to serve on the post-wide, Fort Benning Soldiers' Council.

General urges civilians to support VOLAR plan

Civilian personnel at Fort Benning have been asked by Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander, to actively support the post's plan for a Modern Volunteer Army.

"Every service available at Fort Benning is provided, controlled or influenced by civilian employes," Gen. Talbott said. "The consideration and quality of service you render to the soldier and his family will determine in great part whether our plan is a success. I personally request your help. If our mutual efforts are successful, it will produce an outstanding civilian-soldier relationship, and a more satisfactory environment in which to work. It will also improve the U. S. Army and thereby, our national defense."

In a memorandum to post civilian personnel, Gen. Talbott noted that the Benning Plan provides for implementation and evaluation of a series of actions at Fort Benning designed to contribute toward a Modern Volunteer Army having an impeccable integrity, sensible management and enlightened leadership which will attract volunteers and retain them.

IOBC 11-71 gets award for training

Infantry Officer Basic Course (IOBC) Class 11-71, 22nd Co., 2nd Stu. Bn., TSB, has captured the Tiger Tactics Award presented by the Company Operations Department to the unit that demonstrates exceptional performance and capability in training.

Col. John L. Osteen Jr., department director, presented the award to the company and placed the orange streamer, emblematic of the award, on the company guidon.

Col. Osteen praised the students for their display of motivation, sense of purpose, and "espirit de corps." Attending the ceremony was Lt. Col. John L. Jones Jr., 2nd Stu. Bn. commander.

Officers group hears MAH head

Col. Haskell Ziperman, commanding officer, Martin Army Hospital, highlighted a recent meeting of the Fort Benning Company Grade Officers' Council with an in-depth discussion of the recently instituted "We Care" program, a plan to improve service at MEDDAC facilities.

Col. Ziperman also indicated that many changes in physician-patient relationships have been brought about as a result of the Benning Plan for a Modern Volunteer Army.

A discussion followed Col. Ziperman's presentation, after which the council concluded that the results of MEDDAC's campaign to personalize health service were becoming increasingly apparent.

The council passed a resolution encouraging commanders and supervisors to insure widest possible dissemenation of USAIC Pamphlet 40-1, "Your Community Health Service Benefits," October 1970. The pamphlet details the type of care available at each clinic, tells how to make appointments, lists phone numbers and contains other information on health services.

The council also urged that maximum use be made of the MEDDAC Orientation Team, which is available for groups of company size and larger units, to include wives' groups. The team's 45 minute presentation covers all areas of medical interest. Group presentations at Martin Army Hospital can be scheduled by contacting the Hospital Registrar at 544-1618.

Illinois rules that soldiers not residents

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Natives of Illinois serving on active duty are no longer "residents" of that state, according to a state ruling.

The decision, which removes them from the legal classification of "resident," is to the servicemen's advantage, though, because it exempts them from paying state income taxes. It also may bring refunds for many who paid 1970 taxes.

A fact sheet is available from: Illinois Department of Revenue, 1901 South 1st St., Springfield, Ill. 62708.

Airborne Assn. picks new chapter officers

"The Association serves as a manifestation of the esprit de corps of the Airborne family."

This is the way that the Airborne Association is viewed by Lt. Col. James Anderson, new president of the Fort Benning Chapter of the Association.

Anderson, chairman of the Patrolling Committee of the Infantry School's Ranger Department, took over as chapter president on Jan. 28, replacing outgoing president Col. John Geraci.

Other new chapter officers include Maj. Jack Helms of the Airborne Department as executive vice-president, 1st Sgt. Richard Rocha of 41st Co., TSB, as second vice-president, and MSgt. John Quirk of the Ranger Department as secretary-treasurer, and 1Sgt. James Harris, chaplain.

The Airborne Association is a national fraternal and professional organization of qualified military parachutists. The Fort Benning chapter serves a population of almost 500 soldiers in jump-type assignments in addition to thousands of Airborne-qualified troopers serving in other types of assignments.

The chapter's monthly meetings are held at Parachute Lounge, which has been its home since the opening of the chapter in 1967.

The monthly meetings, which sometimes feature beer and chicken, are open to all members. Membership is open to Airborne-qualified personnel. Foreign parachutists are invited on an associate-membership basis.

For further information on the association and how you may join, call 545-6211—6944 or attend the next monthly meeting on Feb. 24.

Dramatizers search for meaning of roles in 'Blues'

As opening night (Feb. 19) approaches for the Fort Benning Dramatizer production of "Blues for Mr. Charlie," the play's actors are groping for the essence of their roles, trying to fathom what the playwright wants to say through them.

Author James Baldwin created a challenge for any acting group when he wrote "Blues" as the drama tells of the murder of a young Southern Negro by a white store owner.

One Dramatizer who is searching for the essence of her role is Diane Savoca. She plays Jo, the wife of Lyle Britten, the store owner.

"She knows her husband is a murderer," she says of Jo, who nevertheless lies to protect her husband at the murder trial. The reason why Jo lies is the the key to her character, Diane feels.

"The most important thing to her is her baby. She must keep that baby safe, and in her mind part of keeping him safe is to bring him up properly."

Diane, a former Dramatizer president, claims that to do this, Jo needs her husband; but then she expresses concern for what she believes might happen to Jo after the play ends.

"After the trial I'm sure her pyschological well-being is going to be shaky and I'm sure she is going to wonder over and over again: Is this man (Lyle) worth it?"

Diane, who once was a high school instructor in theater and holds a B.S. in theater from Bowling Green State University in Ohio, points out that another reason for Jo's actions in the play is her background.

"Baldwin, I think, is telling a story he feels very strongly about—that there is injustice done to the Southern Negro. But I think he is saying that the cause of this injustice is a long-term corrupt society that gives birth to people who react instinctively instead of through rational or logical thought.

"That statement applies to both the whites and the blacks in the play."

How well Diane interprets her role is, of course, up to the play's audiences. However, she, as well as the rest of the cast, will be seeking the expert opinion of three people who will judge this play as part of the competition in the annual 3rd Army Tournament of Plays.

Plays entered by major 3rd Army installations will be judged in acting and technical categories. Diane, with her participation as an actress in more than 25 plays, promises to be a strong contender for acting honors.

For those wishing to see this post's entry in the tournament, tickets may be reserved by phoning the Fort Benning Playhouse (545-2316). All tickets are free to both servicemen and civilians but must be reserved in advance for the production which runs Feb. 19, 20 and 22-25.

Because of the nature of the play, entertainment director Roy Lothner says no one under 18 years of age will be admitted to the performances.

Library features books for Black Culture Week

Feb. 8 marks the beginning of National Black Culture Week. This is a week set aside each year to highlight and remind the world of accomplishments and landmarks in black history.

School studies are usually altered slightly to concentrate on black history and black culture. In addition, bulletin boards are usually adorned with displays depicting areas in which great accomplishments have been made and the people who made them. Here, then, is a time for the black soldier to remember and to study his own heritage.

The post library has many books that cover many areas of the black soldier in history. When you visit the library, here are a few that you might look for:

"The Negro in World War II," John D. Silvera.

"Negro Medal of Honor Men," Irvin H. Lee.

"Under Fire with the 10th U. S. Cavalry," Herschel V. Cashin.

"The Utilization of Negro Manpower in the Army," John Hopkins University, April 55, Amid.

"Ebony Brass; Autobiography of Negro Frustration and Asperation," Jesse J. Johnson.

"The Buffalo Soldiers," William H. Leckie.

"Negro Almanac," edited by Harry A. Polski and Roscoe C. Brown.

"The War to End all Wars," Edward M. Coffman, chapters 3, 6, 8, 10.

"History of the Black Soldiers," The Bayonet, July 31 to Aug. 29, 1970, in five parts.

Synopsis

The Owl and The Pussy Cat (Rated R.)

Academy Award winning actress Barbra Streisand and George Segal are costarred in the comedy "The Owl and The Pussycat." In her first non-singing role, Barbra plays a kooky would-be actress and part-time prostitute.

Segal plays a timid bookworm with whom she becomes involved. Blood, Sweat and Tears, one of the top pop music groups in the country, performs the music heard on the soundtrack.

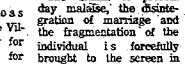
Villa Rides (Rated GP)

A series of incidents from the life of Pancho Villa (Yul Brynner) in which he fought insurgent military leaders determined to wrest power from President Madero.

Revenge roars across seething Mexico as the Villistas return blow for blow, murder for murder . . and a gringo gunrunner gets swept up in the blaze.

Diary of A Mad House wife (Rated R.)

The drama of present day malaise, the disintegration of marriage and the fragmentation of the individual is forcefully brought to the screen in the Frank Perry film "Diary of a Mad Housewife."



The film is the contemporary story of a young husband, Richard Benjamin, a self-centered and sickeningly status conscious lawyer, and a young wife, Miss Snodgress, who is driven to infidelity by his demands upon her.

VIEWING DONATION
OC Gammon Nesbitt (L); Snyder; Capt. David S. Gardner, 52nd Commander

DSC completes 52nd Co. goal

When Capt. Robert A. Snyder, an artillery instructor with the Brigade and Battalion Operations Department recently presented his Distinguished Service Cross to 52nd Co., 5th Stu. Bn., TSB, he completed a project started by the company more than eight years ago. The fruits of that project, a complete collection of Army decorations, branch, and rank insignia now is displayed in the company's dayroom.

All of the pieces in the collection were obtained from donations and each is accompanied by a letter from the doner.

Probably one of the most cherished of the pieces in the collection is the five-star insignia, emblematic of the rank of general of the Army, worn and donated by Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Snyder, an instructor with the artillery committee, made his donation after being approached by officer candidates of 52nd Co.

The awards in the collection span three wars. A Medal of Honor was donated by Col. R. B. Nett who was presented the medal for valor during World War II. Snyder's Distinguished Service Cross was presented to him for actions in Vietnam.

To prove the wetness of Rise, this man shaved without using any water.

And he actually got a smooth, clean shave.

The reason he got such a clean shave is the moisture in Rise.®

A lather needs moisture, needs wetness, so your beard won't dry out beneath it.

And you can't buy a lather that's wetter than Rise.

Slowly it seeps moisture into your beard and holds it there for as long as it takes you to shave.

The point we're trying to prove is this:

If our man can get a smooth, clean shave using Rise with no water, imagine what you can do using Rise with water.

CONARC to continue reward system test

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Gen. W. C. Westmoreland, Army chief of staff, has announced continued tests of a modified Merit Reward System (MRS) in basic training centers throughout the Continental Army Command (CONARC) except for Ft. Ord, Calif.

The system permits unit commanders to award privileges to basic trainees consistent with their individual performance, effort and motivation. These privileges include opportunities to visit on-post recreational facilities and week-end passes.

The test program's purpose is to determine whether the awarding of privileges will result in improved soldier morale, proficiency and performance in training.

Both the Navy and Air Force have expressed an interest in the program and have been provided information by CONARC. The Army will continue its inter-service cooperation and provide the other services with future test results as they are developed.

The modified system being tested by the Army incorporates the desirable features resulting from the eight-week test involving 20 basic combat training companies. The modified system will be simpler and less cumbersome to administer and will recognize efforts of the slower learner and the less physically-adept trainee while continuing to provide trainee motivation by rewarding performance.

In addition to the test of a modified MRS, CONARC plans to establish company councils in all companies at U. S. Army Training Centers. These councils will provide an additional means for exchange of information between trainees and instructors.

Bart Starr tells of Gridiron life

By Bob Wise

Number 15 of the Green Bay Packers visited Fort Benning Monday to talk to men of the 197th Infantry Brigade, in a program sponsored by the Brigade Men of the Chapel.

Speaking before a crowd of around 1,000 at the Kelley Hill Field House, Bart Starr talked mainly about personal experiences in the world of athletics. Some were funny and some were not so funny.

Starr spent much of his time talking about the late Vince Lombardi and his philosophy of life. "Everything you have ever heard, read, or seen about Vince Lombardi is true. He was as nasty and vicious as you have read," joked the Green Bay quarterback.

"But he was a fair man. He treated us all the same . . . like dogs. He was a super individual," said Starr.

Starr, an exceptional individual himself, has led his team to five national football championships, including two consecutive Super Bowl victories. Starr was voted Most Valuable Player in both the 1967 and 1968 Super Bowls. He was the National Football League's Most Valuable Player in 1966.

A 15-year veteran with the Packers, Starr was a 17th round draft choice from the University of Alabama.

The 36-year-old Montgomery, Ala. native was the nation's leading passer in 1962-64, and 1966. He holds the lifetime record for percentage of completions (56 per cent) and the life-time record for the lowest percentage of interceptions. He also holds the record of 294 consecutive passes without an interception.

Starr continued speaking about Lombardi and how the former great football coach thought of "football as a means to an end and how it was so much like life itself." Quoting Lombardi, he said, "In order to be successful in whatever you want to do in life, you have to have a good attitude.

Starr claims

'The Pack will be back'

The "Pack" will be back next year, according to Green Bay quarterback Bart Starr. Speaking to a group of soldiers of the 197th Inf. Bde., Monday, the 15-year pro football veteran said that he was very much impressed with his new coach (Dan Devine, formerly of Missouri) and "I looking forward to working with him."

The Packers' mediocre performance last season was due mainly to a lot of injuries, according to Starr. "Also, we didn't play as well as we should have," he added.

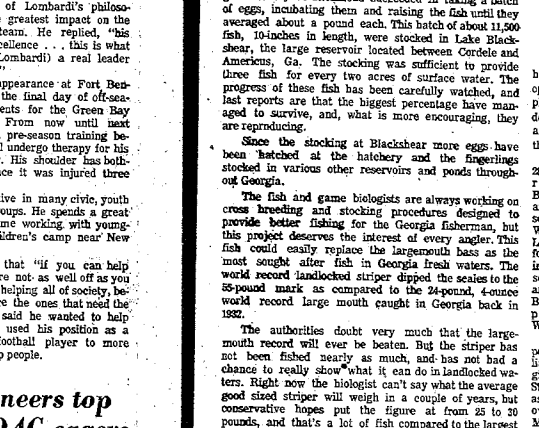
One soldier asked the Green Bay stalwart who he thought were among the best of the young, upcoming pro quarterbacks. Starr replied that he thought highly of Greg Landry of Detroit, Greg Cook of Cincinnati, and Terry Bradshaw of Pittsburg. According to him, there were many other fine athletes who would be great leaders in professional football.

Starr emphasized how professional football is so much more sophisticated now than when he entered it 15 years ago. "The game has improved greatly and is played on a higher and more complicated level," he said.

Asked if he thought the calibre of today's rookie has improved, he said, "it has improved . . . today's young players have better nutrition, better coaching and better training facilities."

Starr, however, did state his disappointment in the desire of today's rookies. "A lot of kids today don't seem to have the desire that they used to. Many of the men are not giving all they can give. Too many guys are content just to be a member of the organization and are not trying to be the best. I think it's a problem that's basic to today's society."

A person with a good attitude will channel his goals in life and most of the time he will attain those goals."



Starr went on about Lombardi's ideas of success. "Preparation is a vital key to success," he quoted, "if you're going to get to the top, you have to have the desire to do so. Winning is not the most important thing in life; making the effort to win is."

Following the brief talk at the Kelley Hill Field House, Starr ate lunch at the mess hall of HHC, 197th Inf. Bde. During a question and answer period following the luncheon, he was asked which of Lombardi's philosophies had the greatest impact on the Green Bay team. He replied, "his pursuit of excellence . . . this is what made him (Lombardi) a real leader in our society."

Monday's appearance at Fort Benning marked the final day of off-season engagements for the Green Bay quarterback. From now until next summer when pre-season training begins, Starr will undergo therapy for his right shoulder. His shoulder has bothered him since it was injured three years ago.

Starr is active in many civic, youth and church groups. He spends a great deal of his time working with youngsters in a children's camp near New London, Wisc.

Starr feels that "if you can help people who are not as well off as you are, you are helping all of society, because they are the ones that need the help." Starr said he wanted to help and that he used his position as a professional football player to more effectively help people.

'We tried everything but a shoehorn'

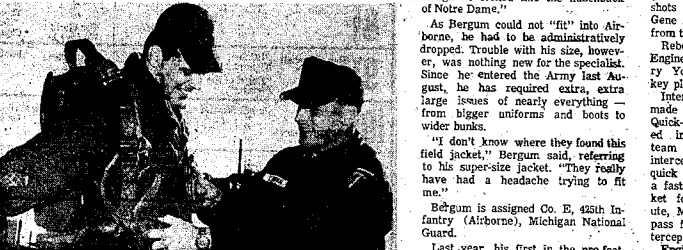
by Mike Keller

Sp4 Robert D. Bergum had all the attributes of a great Airborne trainee.

Weighing 250 pounds and 6 feet, 5 inches tall, he was in top physical shape. In civilian life he played professional football.

But in Airborne, the muscle-laden Detroit Lion defensive end never got off the ground. Trouble is he is so big he can't get on a parachute harness.

"We tried everything except a shoehorn," Bergum said, discussing the futile efforts to put a harness on his huge body. "But I just couldn't make it. I never dreamed fitting into a parachute would be such a problem."



Neither did the Airborne cadre. "This is the first time in five years that someone had trouble wearing a parachute," related 1st Lt. Doug Odom, an instructor with the Airborne Ground Committee, which conducts the first phase of the course. "And he finally managed to get into it although he looked like the hunchback of Notre Dame."

As Bergum could not "fit" into Airborne, he had to be administratively dropped. Trouble with his size, however, was nothing new for the specialist. Since he entered the Army last August, he has required extra, extra large issues of nearly everything — from bigger uniforms and boots to wider bunks.

"I don't know where they found this field jacket," Bergum said, referring to his super-size jacket. "They really have had a headache trying to fit me."

Bergum is assigned Co. E, 425th Infantry (Airborne), Michigan National Guard.

Last year, his first in the pro football circuit, the former Little All-American from Wisconsin State University, played two exhibition games with the Lions before starting active duty.

Engineers top MEDDAC cagers in 94-64 rout

The 931st Engineer Group had a triumphant basketball night at Briant Wells Gymnasium Jan. 25, to defeat MEDDAC, 94-64.

Despite MEDDAC's ability to score first, the Engineers took the lead only minutes after the game's beginning. The Engineers maintained the lead throughout the game.

By halftime, the Engineers had obtained a 15-point gain. MEDDAC was never able to close the score gap.

High Engineer scorers were Gene Miller and Bill Mavredes, capturing 26 and 21 points respectively. The Engineers obtained 18 points from free shots received from fouling penalties; Gene Miller scored most of the points from the free shots.

Rebound activity was dominated by Engineer action. Anthony Protho, Jerry Young, and Bill Mavredes were key players in rebound performance.

Interception of opponent passes made many Engineer scores possible. Quick-on-the-feet Protho made repeated interceptions which resulted in team members scoring. Jerry Lowery intercepted a pass and snapped a quick relay to Gene Miller, who with a fast layup shot, made another basket for the engineers. Within a minute, Miller sank another basket on a pass from Mavredes, who had just intercepted a MEDDAC pass.

Engineer scoring was the result of successful rebound activity and interception of opponent passes. Despite MEDDAC's efforts to catch up to the Engineers' leading score, their attempts were just insufficient.

ROD AND GUN CLUB

By BILL KLOEB

The Georgia Fish and Game Commission workers are experimenting around with a project that could really produce some great sport for fishermen in a few years. The project is to successfully stock and breed fresh water striped bass in Georgia reservoirs and lakes. The striped bass is similar in its habits to the salmon. Each spring they make a spawning run up the rivers. This has been one of the big problems in getting them to spawn in the reservoirs.

The early stockings of stripers came from hatcheries in South Carolina but the year before last the Georgia hatchery at Richmond succeeded in taking a batch of eggs, incubating them and raising the fish until they averaged about a pound each. This batch of about 11,500 fish, 10-inches in length, were stocked in Lake Blackshear, the large reservoir located between Cordele and Americus, Ga. The stocking was sufficient to provide three fish for every two acres of surface water. The progress of these fish has been carefully watched, and last reports are that the biggest percentage have managed to survive, and, what is more encouraging, they are reproducing.

Since the stocking at Blackshear more eggs have been hatched at the hatchery and the fingerlings stocked in various other reservoirs and ponds throughout Georgia.

The fish and game biologists are always working on cross breeding and stocking procedures designed to provide better fishing for the Georgia fisherman, but this project deserves the interest of every angler. This fish could easily replace the largemouth bass as the most sought after fish in Georgia fresh waters. The world record landlocked striper dipped the scales to the 55-pound mark as compared to the 24-pound, 4-ounce world record large mouth caught in Georgia back in 1932.

The authorities doubt very much that the largemouth record will ever be beaten. But the striper bas not been fished nearly as much, and has not had a chance to really show what it can do in landlocked waters. Right now the biologist can't say what the average good sized striper will weigh in a couple of years, but conservative hopes put the figure at from 25 to 20 pounds, and that's a lot of fish compared to the largest bigmouth of 13 to 14 pounds that are winning fishing prizes each year.

The size of the fish is not the only reason for the propagation of stripes in Georgia waters. Their presence is highly beneficial to the largemouth, crappie and bream because the striper's diet runs mainly to rough fish that eat food the game fish could use. Their large size also enables them to take on rough fish that are too big for the other fish to handle. We haven't heard of any of these fish being stocked in post ponds but it seems that Kings and some of the other larger ponds on post would be big enough to handle them.

Big Fish Contest

Each year the Georgia Sportsmen's Federation and the Georgia Fish and Game Magazine jointly sponsor a big fish contest. A Garcia 5,000 reel and matching Conolon rod are presented to the angler catching the largest fish in any one of six categories. Prizes are presented for the largest largemouth, white bass, crappie, bream, mountain trout and catfish. Entering catches requires a bit of administration but the prizes are worth the trouble. Members of the Rod and Gun Club can have attendents at the headquarters help them with their entries. The headquarters also has a copy of the regulation posted on the bulletin board.

Rod and Gun Fishing Derby

The Rod and Gun Club sponsors a fishing derby on a monthly basis. Each month the fisherman registering the largest bass, bream and catfish is presented a prize. The prizes are either merchandise orders that can be redeemed for merchandise at the Rod and Gun Club or items of use to fishermen. Interested anglers can get detailed information at Rod and Gun headquarters. Call 545-6028 or visit the club out on 1st Division Road.

Capt. Frank Shaw, Dental Unit, registered the largest catfish during the month of January. He caught his prize winner using a shiner at Kings Pond. It weighed 8 pounds, 15 ounces.

The largest bass was turned in by SSgt. Chester Constranstich, 524th Personal Services Company. This one also came from Kings Pond. It tipped the scales at 10 pounds, 15 ounces.

Six teams vying for 197th trophy

The 197th Infantry Brigade Basketball Tournament got under way Tuesday with six companies competing for the championship.

The champion and runner-up will represent the brigade in the post tournament which begins Feb. 15.

Competing in the double-elimination tournament are HHC, 1st Bn., 29th Inf.; Co. C, 1st Bn., 58th Inf.; HHC, 5th Bn., 31st Inf.; the soldiers of HHS Btry., 2nd Bn., 10th Arty., Co. A, 4th Bn., 68th Armor; and Co. A 197th Support Bn.

The HHC team from the 1st Bn., 29th Inf., landed its berth in the tournament after taking a 7-1 record in battalion play. Placing 2nd and 3rd, respectively, in the 1st Bn., 29th Inf., were Co. B and the combined teams of Co. A and Co. C.

The 1st Bn., 58th Inf. decided its representative to the brigade tournament earlier than any of the other battalions. The representative from the "Patriot" battalion is the Co. C Cougars.

The Polar Bear Battalion (5th Bn., 31st Inf.) is represented by HHC. HHC finished the battalion tournament with a 10-1 record, losing only to Co. A. Co. D finished 2nd in the battalion with an 8-4 record.

The soldiers of HHS Btry., wrapped up the 2nd Bn., 10th Arty. tourney with a 5-1 record. B. Btry. placed 2nd with a 3-3 record.

The Co. A Angels of the 4th Bn., 69th Armor took two victories over each of the three other companies competing for the Armor Battalion championship, securing a place in the brigade play-off. HHC was 2nd with a 4-2 record.

HHC's only two losses came at the hands of the Angels, 48-37 and 48-42.

The 197th Support Bn. played more games than any other battalion in determining its champion. The Bearcubs of Co. A kept a clean slate and managed a 12-0 record in battalion play. The only team to even come close to the Bearcubs was the combination team of HHC, 197th Inf. Bde. and the 72nd Engineer Co. The HHC-72nd combination finished with a 7-5 record.

YAC cagers end week of play

Youth Activities basketball in the PeeWee League opened the first week of play with the Hurricanes defeating the Roadrunners and the Miniguns dropping the Raiders.

The Hurricanes scored a 29-20 win over the Roadrunners with Timothy Booth netting 14 points and Keith Book scoring seven while Bill Jackson, William Lowry and Emett Lee had two points each for the winners. Ken Robinson led the Roadrunners scoring with eight points and Steve Darbonne and Bob Beaukulani had five points each and Brian Wright had two.

Keith Jenkins scored 10 points and teammates William Finch and Dave Coggins had four each and Steve Timm got two points as the Miniguns won 20-3 over the Raiders. Frank Muller scored three points for the Raiders.

The first week closed with the Globetrotters outscoring the PeeWee team 5 by 26-20. Trotter Cal Griffin zeroed in for 16 points and Dewey Caulder got eight for the winners. John Dorchak and Gus Schneider scored seven points each and Jim Dorchak had four points for PeeWee 5.

In last week's action the Roadrunners opened with a 26-15 win over the Globetrotters. Roadrunner Bob Beaukulani zipped in 10 points and Ken Robinson had nine points to lead their teams scoring. For the Globetrotters Dewey Caulder dropped in six points and Cal Griffin had 4 points.

The second game of last week was a 25-12 Hurricane victory over the Miniguns as Timothy Booth swished nine points and Dennis Yancy got six points for the winners. Hurricane David Driskill netted four points and Bill Jackson, Emett Lee and Keith Book had two points each to aid in the win.

Minigun Steve Timm led his teams pointmakers with six and Dave Coggins, William Finch and Keith Jackson each had two points in their team effort.

197th steals 33 turnovers; downs CAC, 116-79

By Bob Wise

The 197th Infantry Brigade basketball team kept its second-half season record untarnished last week by drubbing the Center Aviation Command (CAC), 116-79.

CAC held the 197th at bay throughout most of the first half, but a total of 33 Aviation turnovers and 197th domination of the boards spelled final disaster.

CAC jumped off to an early lead, but was tied by the 197th four times before pulling away from the Infantry Brigade five-and-a-half minutes into the first half.

The Aviation Command kept a substantial cushion for the next nine minutes of play, getting a nine-point lead over the 197th six times.

A 197th drive that started on John Black's lay-up with five-and-a-half minutes remaining in the half, brought it to within one point of CAC two minutes later. Black scored again at 2:16 putting the 197th ahead 37-36 and CAC never again saw the lead.

Three more consecutive field goals by the 197th within the next minute gave it a seven-point lead. At the half, the Infantrymen led 47-41.

Two-and-a-half minutes into the second half, the 197th had grabbed a 10-point lead and three minutes later had extended it to a 15-point lead.

Three quick 197th field goals within a 10-second period around the 11:30 mark gave the 197th a 20-point lead. Two of the field goals had been scored by Don Campbell and one by Slim Ingram. Each one had followed a CAC turnover around its own basket.

With just under eight minutes remaining in the game, CAC's player-coach Charlie Brown fouled out trying to block a Will Brockington lay-up. The disqualification of one of CAC's top performers helped the 197th easily get a 30-point lead within two minutes of play.

With five minutes left in the game, a Black free throw put the 197th at the century mark. The 197th continued to stretch its lead, finally squashing CAC by a 37-point margin.

Mike Beckelhimer of CAC and Brockington of the 197th shared the games high scoring honors. Both finished with 30 points apiece.

Two other CAC players finished in double figures. Brown had 18 and Bill Rhea ended up with 12. Rhea lead the Aviators in rebounds with 12.

Right behind Brockington on the 197th squad was Campbell, scoring 26 points. He was followed by Black with 24, Ingram with 16, and Maurice Travers with 10 points.

The 197th outrebounded CAC, 62-40, and committed 13 fewer turnovers.

Urban League to aid soldiers leaving Army

WASHINGTON (ANF)—Servicemen leaving the Army will now be aided in receiving assistance from the National Urban League Veterans Affairs Program.

The program provides advice on benefits available under the GI Bill and other Federal programs, counseling as to available educational and training programs, information about programs designed to assist in preparation for better job opportunities and other services.

Although the League's program is aimed primarily at minority group servicemen, all personnel may participate.

Under the new Army policy, servicemen within 90 to 120 days of separation who have decided not to reenlist will be advised by the Army that the League is assisting servicemen in their return to civilian life. The Veterans Administration and the Department of Defense also administer programs which benefit servicemen.

The program is voluntary and releasing names and other relevant information to the League will be done only with the serviceman's consent.

Bowling alleys open all night

Beginning this weekend the Main Post and Kelley Hill Bowling Alleys will extend hours of weekend operation until further notice.

Both alleys will remain open through the normal closing hour Friday night and remain open until 6 a.m. Saturday morning. The alleys will then be closed until 8 a.m. to permit cleaning and servicing. The alleys will open at 8 a.m. Saturday and operate continuously until 6 a.m. Sunday morning.

They will close at 6 a.m., open at noon and will close at 11 p.m. Sunday night.

Patrons may bowl from 11 p.m. until 6 a.m. for $2 or pay the regular fee of 35 cents per line.

Snack bar and lounge service will be available at all times the alleys are in operation.

YAC CORNER

The second week of 1971 Youth Activities Basketball season concluded Jan. 28. The five leagues, ranging from ages 8-15, consisting of 23 teams, gives all Fort Benning eligible youngsters a chance at team competition. This includes active and retired U. S. military personnel assigned for duty on or near this installation.

In the Biddy League, following its victory Jan. 28, team 1 has the starting of a perfect season with a 3-0 record. Biddy teams 2 and 4 are tied for second place with a 1-1 record. Teams 3 and 5 are in contention for the third spot.

The Pee Wee League race is led by team 6 with a 2-0 record. Four of the six teams will play to take sole possession of 2nd place the week of Feb. 1-4. Teams 1, 3, 4 and 5 have identical 1-1 records.

Team 3 of the Doughboy League has started the season with a 2-0 record to lead the league. Team 5, also undefeated, takes the second spot by winning its one — and so far only — game of this still young season. The Doughboy league promises a hot race for the top in this season's competition.

The fast breaking Pony League is led by the big noise of team 4, by playing to a 2-0 record to lead the league. Teams 1 and 2 take 2nd place with a 1-1 record in this fast league of young Fort Benning teenagers.

Team 1 leads the all girl Jr. Miss League by playing to a 2-0 record. Team 1 beat its competition, Teams 2 and 3 and placing their records at 0-1. Additional girls in age group 13, 14, and 15 are needed in Junior Miss League. Registration will be extended in this league only until Feb. 12.

The champion and runner-up team in each league will be determined at the conclusion of the regular season by the best won-lost record. In case of two or more teams having the same won-lost record, the champion and runner-up team will be determined by a play-off game.

All games are played at Youth Activities Gymnasium. Building No. 1055.

Fencing instruction will be offered at Youth Activities Gymnasium at 7 p.m. each Friday. The purpose is to organize a fencing program and form a Junior Olympic team to compete in intramural competition. The instruction will be conducted by Toni Mani of The Columbus School of Art. Mani has been a fencing champion since 1931. Participants in this program must be 13 years of age or older. Military personnel and their dependents are invited to attend.

RUN FOR YOUR LIFE

As of Feb. 1 there are 6,155 active participants in the Run For Your Life program. Of these, 46 have completed 500 miles, 20 have completed 400 miles, 114 have completed 300 miles, 196 have completed 200 miles, 602 have completed 100 miles, and 3,767 have surpassed 50 miles of running.

Poster contest to mark Dental Health Week

Observance of National Children's Dental Health Week this year will begin Monday. The week is a united effort of the dental profession in focusing the nation's attention and interest on the great need of safeguarding the dental health of tomorrow's leaders.

To highlight the observance here at Benning, there is a Dental Health Poster Contest among post elementary school children.

The posters were prepared by the students during January for individual school judging of 1st and 2nd place winners in grades 3 through 8.

The 1st and 2nd place winners of each grade level from the seven post schools are then submitted to a panel of judges for selection of 1st and 2nd place post-wide winners of each grade level.

Presentations of post-wide awards will be at the Dexter Elementary Post School at 10 a.m. Tuesday. Ribbons and electric toothbrushes will be awarded to the 1st place recipients and 2nd place recipients will receive a ribbon.

Making the presentations will be Col. Robert P. Hatcher, deputy post commander, representing Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott post commander.

Representing the Fort Benning Post Elementary Schools will be Earl L. Miley, assistant superintendent for instruction. Col. Justin S. Zack, post dental surgeon, will represent the USA Dental Company.

Judges for the Dental Health Poster Contest will be James F. Schoonover, secretary-treasurer, Community Activity Association; Evelyn C. Southwood, instructional supervisor, Fort Benning Post Elementary Schools; and Capt. Gerald H. Kreinces, pedodontist, USA Dental Company.

Your ETS can be smoother if you make it so

Many soldiers anxiously await their release from active duty and look forward to becoming a civilian again. The individual soldier can contribute to a smooth processing for release by taking the following actions:

—Take your Final Type Physical Examination not earlier than six months, but no later than 75 days prior to ETS.

—Report to your Unit Personnel Section approximately 30 days prior to ETS for completion of separation forms and to review your personnel records. Check status of your physical examination.

—Report to the OIC Transfer Point (Bldg 1204) 30 days prior to ETS for advance orders used to ship household goods and clearing of government family quarters. (Applicable to personnel in grade E4 over 4 years service and higher grades.)

—Pick up post clearance forms from your orderly room prior to ETS. Clear post as directed.

—Turn in clothing and equipment to unit supply room approximately two week prior to ETS.

—Report to OIC Transfer Point (Bldg 1205) in duty uniform for pre-separation processing at 12:45 p.m. as scheduled by your personnel officer. Bring a black ball point pen with you to complete and sign your separation forms. Pre-separation processing requires approximately four hours. You will reconcile pay matters and complete separation processing forms. During this processing you will receive a briefing on veterans' benefits, military reserve obligations and personal affairs. Upon completion of pre-separation processing, you must return to your unit for duty.

—When your separation date arrives, you will sign out of your unit and report to the Transfer Point in Class "A" uniform to attend a departure ceremony, receive your final pay, turn in your ID cards and those of your dependents.

Medical people show they care through 'We Care'

By Les Hauser

"We Care." Who Cares? The entire Medical Activities (MEDDAC) staff at Fort Benning cares, explained Col. H. Haskell Ziperman, commander of Fort Benning's Martin Army Hospital (MAH).

Through the newly instituted "We Care" program, "we are attempting to remove the irritants associated with providing medical service for huge numbers of military personnel and their dependents," said Col. Ziperman. "We are essentially trying to personalize our care for our patients.

"We have never been faulted for our treatment. I feel it is comparable to the best civilian hospital. But I feel we can improve our service and courtesy to the individual."

MEDDAC is achieving this through some new methods. For example, the "We Care" program will make itself most obvious to MEDDAC patients in the form of a questionnaire, which is being distributed to all persons treated at Fort Benning facilities.

The answers received through the questionnaire will be used to determine how to improve on MEDDAC services.

In addition to this program, MEDDAC is setting up special projects at troop medical clinics 1 and 4 on a 60 day trial basis. These projects consist of "Open Sick Call" or a "come when you are sick" policy which will allow the soldier to report to the clinic when he feels ill rather than at a predesignated time.

Also, all soldiers E6 through E9, warrant officers and officers will be allowed to make appointments at these clinics during the afternoon hours. This will be handled in conjunction with the regular "walk in" patients. If proved successful, this program will be expanded to other troop clinics on post.

"It is our goal to get our people to treat a patient as not just another case but instead as an individual." Col. Ziperman said. "We are presently disseminating information to our doctors, nurses, soldiers and civilian employes on the importance of prompt, courteous attention to patients."

Col. Ziperman emphasized that for any program of improved services to work, MEDDAC will need the cooperation of the individual. He related a recent incident which aptly illustrated the indifference some individuals take towards MEDDAC services.

A soldier brought his young daughter into the emergency room at MAH one weekend for nothing more than a routine checkup prior to taking a trip. This request could have been handled quite easily by the outpatient clinic, during normal hours of operation, but his presence at the emergency room on a weekend consequently helped delay the much needed treatment of real emergency cases.

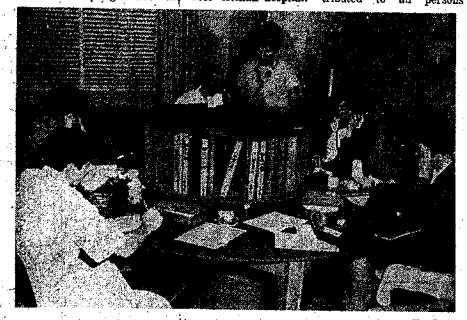
To Col. Ziperman, such abuse of MEDDAC services is inexcusable. "It is this kind of problem which adds to our problems."

Another large problem area that MEDAC is experiencing is people's reluctance to use the appointment system for the outpatient clinic. "If people come in at an appointed time, we know that we can handle them," said Col. Ziperman. "But too often this is not the case.

"On a recent weekend we had over 200 people show up for treatment within a few hours' time, many of which were not real emergencies."

MEDDAC is doing everything possible to improve its central appointment system which is one of the few in the Army. It recently added two new telephone numbers to call for appointments, 544-1064 —1065). These are in addition to 544-1066, 1067, 1068 and 1069. Six appointment clerks handle an average of 1,300 calls per day on these lines.

Because of the large number of calls, MEDDAC has advised a rotary system where the individual can call one number and check all six lines for an opening.



Appointments can be made on these numbers for all designated clinics at MAH from 8 to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

MEDDAC has distributed 17,000 brochures to Fort Benning personnel and their dependents describing MEDDAC services and its different clinics. These brochures also will be available in both the Main Post PX and Commissary.

MEDDAC also has had an orientation program available on request to clubs and organizations in the local area.

MEDDAC is also making a number of minor improvements such as improved night lighting for the comfort and convenience of those using MEDDAC facilities.

These are just some of the many steps being taken to improve MEDDAC services as part of the "We Care" at Fort Benning.

VA announces interest rate for guaranteed trailer loans

The Veterans Administration has announced that the rate of interest to be charged on loans to finance the purchase of mobile homes has been set at 10.75 per cent. This rate applies to mobile home loans guaranteed by VA.

Purchase of mobile homes under the GI loan program was authorized for the first time by the Veterans Housing Act of 1970, a measure which also approved loans for the purchase of condominiums. The law also revived expired, un-used entitlement for loans to all veterans.

Donald E. Johnson, administrator of Veterans Affairs, said that 20,000 veterans are expected to use GI loans to buy mobile homes during the first year of the program.

Johnson said that two-thirds of the loans would be granted to veterans recently returned from Vietnam, and other duty, but that the revived eligibility to nine million World War II and Korean Conflict veterans will provide a demand not anticipated when the legislation was first planned.

VA will guarantee up to 30 per cent of a loan for a mobile home, up to a maximum of $10,000 for the loan. Once the loan is paid off, the veteran is again eligible for a guaranteed loan on a conventional house, a guarantee that may go as high as $12,500.

Veterans of World War II and the Korean Conflict with at least 90 days of active duty and veterans and servicemen with at least 181 days active duty after January 1955 are eligible for GI loans.

Veterans discharged with less than the minimum length of duty because of service-connected disability, and widows of deceased veterans also are potentially eligible.

A picture, they say, is worth a thousand words. But these many words are not needed to express the subject and theme of the poster on which Dexter school pupil Kristen Runke, (c) is putting the finishing touches. The poster, which was drawn for National Children's Dental Health Week, urges all youngsters to brush regularly and stay cavity free. Posters such as Kristen's are being made by students at Fort Benning elementary schools in observance of the annual dental week, Feb. 7-13. The artwork will be judged at the post dental section, and ribbons and prizes awarded to the winners. Checking out Kristen's entry are third grade classmates Steve Wissinger and Judy Newcomb.

Having his cake

[illegible] six more years. After the swearing-in ceremony at his battalion, he and the members of his platoon were treated to cake and punch provided by the HHC mess hall. Albert, an aviation specialist, left only a few days after the ceremony for his new assignment with the 90th Aviation Company at Ft. Richardson, Alaska.

Of the 9,941 servicemen who have completed one of the many Project Transition courses designed to provide in-service training and educational opportunities for unskilled enlisted personnel to increase their chances for civilian employment, 92.4 per cent were either employed or were attending school full time two months after separation from the Army.

And 171 servicemen have re-enlisted in the Army during or immediately after completing a Project Transition course.

The program has received recently the renewed support of Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird. In a letter to the secretary of the Army, Laird said: "I am convinced that (Project) Transition is helping our re-enlistment programs, can assist us in the achievement of a volunteer force, and most importantly, increases the support of the Armed Services by the American people by demonstrating our direct concern for the men who have served with us.

"While we are reviewing the program in detail, I am asking that in the difficult days ahead you direct all commanders to give their full support to the (Project) Transition program and that current manpower allocations and financial support for the program be maintained at levels which will continue a strong and viable program."

Many have completed the postal training and automatic data processing courses. Other popular courses include auto mechanics, drafting, electricity and electronics, air conditioning and refrigeration, radio and TV repair, offset pressman and welding.

More than 600 servicemen have completed high school and intermediate courses. Over 580 have taken on-the-job training with Army agencies such as the post engineers or with private industry in Columbus and Phenix City.

Project Transition at Fort Benning began in January 1968 within the existing General Educational Development (GRD) program. The first course scheduled for Transition personnel — a postal clerk-carrier course — began March 18, 1968. Through December the course has graduated 2,562 servicemen who have qualified for employment with the Post Office. A course graduates every two weeks.

All Project Transition courses are conducted on post in the Harmony Church area. Current courses include the ones listed above plus law enforcement and cement masonry.

All of these courses except drafting and one of the three automatic data processing courses are taught on a continuing basis through the Manpower Development Training Act at no expense to the Army.

For further information, contact a Project Transition counselor at 545-2178-1183.

Death, divorce can cause similar taxation problems

Income tax and you

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second in a series on ways you can save on your income tax return this year. The articles are written by Henry Block, President of H and R Block Inc., America's largest tax service.)

Death, divorce, or desertion create certain common problems in the payment of Federal income taxes, and there may be special tax filing rules for those affected.

For tax purposes, a person who is legally separated or divorced on Dec. 31 of the tax year is considered unmarried for the entire year. In addition, a spouse who has been abandoned will be considered a single person if he or she maintains his or her home for more than half the year for one or more dependent children and the abandoning spouse was not a member of the household during the tax year.

The latter provision is new this year and is a definite advantage to the victim of desertion who in prior years could only file a return using the filing status of married filing separately. Now the single status makes even a person eligible to file as an Unmarried Head of Household.

CHILD CARE DEDUCTIONS

A divorced woman, widow, single woman or deserted wife with custody of her dependent children can deduct the costs of child care necessitated by her absence from the home while working or seeking gainful employment. The tax code allows a deduction of up to $600 for one child or $900 for two or more, assuming that the children are under 13 years of age or if over 13 are physically or mentally incapable of caring for themselves.

There is a possibility of a child care deduction for the working wife, but its application is extremely limited. If the JOINT income of the husband and wife exceeds $6,000 the amount of the allowable child care deduction must be reduced dollar for dollar by the amount of the joint income in excess of $6,000. Thus, if the joint income of husband and wife is $6,400 and there are two or more children under 13, the maximum allowable deduction would be $500 ($900 less $400, the amount of income in excess of $6,000). This provision cannot be avoided by the husband and wife filing separately since the measuring stick is the amount of joint income.

EXEMPTIONS

There is also a difference in the handling of exemptions in the case of divorce or death. One spouse cannot claim the other as a dependent in any case.

On a joint return both husband and wife are regarded as being the taxpayers and each is allowed his own personal exemption (plus possible additional exemptions for age and blindness). Thus, if you are divorced on Dec. 31, you cannot claim an exemption for your former spouse even though you may have supported that spouse for 364 days of the year, since you are not allowed to file a joint return.

If, however, your spouse died during the year and you did not remarry before the end of the year, you would be able to file a joint return for the year of death, claiming the personal exemptions and any deductions or credits which would have been allowed to your deceased spouse.

ALIMONY

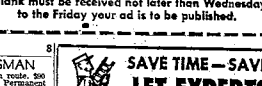
Alimony payments or separate maintenance payments may be deducted by the person making them if they are made according to the terms of a divorce decree, separation agreement or a written agreement connected with a divorce or separation; and if they are made in the discharge of the marital obligations (not repayment of a loan from one spouse to another) and are paid periodically for at least 10 years or until death or remarriage of the spouse.

Alimony payments only may be deducted if the taxpayer itemized his deductions on Schedule A. Such deductible alimony payments must be included as taxable income on the tax return of the recipient on Page 2, Form 1040 (miscellaneous Income).

It is important to distinguish between alimony payments and child support payments (intended for the support of the children of the marriage). Child support payments are neither taxable to the recipient nor deductible by the payer. The person making the child support payments may, however, be entitled to claim a dependency exemption for the child being supported, assuming that all other requirements of the law regarding dependents have been met.

BENEFITS IN DEATH

When a husband or wife dies, there are some tax benefits available to the surviving partner. If your spouse died during the year and you did not remarry, you may file a joint return with your deceased spouse assuming that you would have been eligible to file a joint return with him had he lived.



In certain cases your tax benefits resulting from death may continue for another two years. If you are a surviving widow (widower) with a dependent child, you may be able to use the filing status of surviving spouse for the next two years. For these two years you will be able to use the tax rates which apply to married persons filing joint returns, but you would not be allowed to claim a personel exemption for your deceased spouse. For many subsequent years, you may be able to file as a Head of Household assuming that you are still maintaining a home for a dependent.

Normally money which is inherited from a deceased person or the proceeds of life insurance are not subject to income taxes. Money paid to you in the form of death benefits from your deceased spouse's employer, other than insurance proceeds, may be subject to tax, but also may be eligible for a $5,000 death benefit exclusion.

If the total assets left by a deceased person including jointly held property and life insurance proceeds exceed $50,000 there may be a need to fill a Federal estate tax return. This is a completely different tax and should not be confused with the Federal income tax.

Signs book

Gen. Alfonso M. Gonzalez, commanding general, Institute of Military Studies, Uruguay, signs the guest book at Wigle Hall after a briefing on the Officer Candidate program by members of the 5th Stu. Bn. TSB. Faculty and students of the institute visited Fort Benning last week for an orientation tour of infantry School instruction and training.

3 Negro colleges among new ROTC unit schools

Three Negro colleges in the south are among 12 new ROTC units being established on college campus during fiscal year 1972, according to the Pentagon. This will bring the number of units to an all-time high of 286.

The Army is currently making a concerted effort to get more Negro Junior officers. The three Negro colleges entering the program are Alabama A and M College, Normal, Ala.; Alcorn A and M College, Lorman, Miss.; and Grambling College, Grambling, La.

Army Chief of Staff Gen. William C. Westmoreland, in a speech late last year, deplored the fact that only 1.9 per cent of the first lieutenants in the Army were Negro, compared to 3.5 per cent ratio in 1965.

ROTC units also are being established at the following nine colleges and universities: Austin-Peay University, Clarksville, Tenn.; Campbell College, Buies Creek, N. C.; East Central State College, Ada, Okla.; Missouri Western College, St. Joseph, Mo.; Southwestern State College, Weatherford, Okla. Stout State University, Menenonie, Wis.; University of Tampa, Tampa, Fla.; Weber State College, Ogden, Utah; and Wisconsin tate University, La-Crosse, Wis.

At present the Army ROTC program is conducted at colleges and universities in all 50 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico.

The Army says the 12 new ROTC units were chosen from among 42 senior educational institutions which had applied to host an Army ROTC unit. The ROTC program customarily provides more than 50 per cent of the junior officers entering the Army each year.

British to change change

WASHINGTON (AFPS)—If you're going to Britain after the middle of February, you're going at the right time.

That's when "D-Day" takes place. "D" stands for decimal, and on Feb. 15 Britain will change its currency, the first change in more than 12 centuries.

For centuries Britain's money has been a trial for school boys and visitors doing math or paying bills with half-crowns, florins, guineas, and half-pennies.

British citizens learned a system where shillings were totaled by twenties and pennies were totalled by twelves. From now on there will be pounds and pence, 100 of the latter equalling one pound.

In paper money there will be 1, 5, 10, and 20 pound notes in circulation One pound is worth $2.40.

The coins will be: Half-penny (pronounced 'hapenee'), 1 penny, and 2, 5, 10 and 50 pence. Some of the new coins have been in use since mid-1969, and you may still find some of the older coins in circulation since they are legal tender for one year after February 15.

Say goodby to 'pushup' leadership

by Wendell Cochran

Conjure up (in your mind) the meanest, crudest, cussingest SAR-junkt ever to have harassed a platoon of trainees. Put beside him the hardest-bitten, cigar-chewingest, unyieldingest senior officer to ever have given an unchangeable order.

Now take out your mental eraser and wipe the slate clean. Because the first steps are being taken by the Infantry School to wipe Fort Benning clean of that leadership style. Perhaps later the school will export its "Enlightened Leadership" Class to other Army bases.

The "enlightened leadership" style currently is being presented to all Fort Benning's officers and noncommissioned officers. The class is conducted by the Leadership Department of the school.

Each seven-hour class starts with the instructor telling the audience, "The angry, pushup style of leadership just won't hack it today."

That statement seems to "go down hard" for some in the audience, but it sets the tone for the class, which has the audience "squirming in their seats" much of the day.

First item on the "enlightened leadership" agenda is to disabuse many of the ideas that today's young soldier is simply a new, revised edition of his father.

One of the course's instructors, Col. Albert F. Ledehuhr, post chaplain, tells each group that today's young man, consequently today's soldier, is a searching individual who is seeking to apply a different set of values to the world than did his father.

Chaplain Ledebuhr ascribes the traits of honesty and compassion to the young soldier of today. He also says the youth of today have established for themselves a rigid set of moral principles. The youth revolt against "authority for authority's sake" also is brought out.

"You can't lead today's soldier unless you can talk to him and you can't talk to him if you don't know who he is," the chaplain says.

The same theme is followed in the next portion of instruction, taught by Maj. James P. Hales. "Treat your people as individuals," Hales implores the group. "They are not all OD. They are not all alike."

Hales also covers the importance of integrity and moral courage to the leader. He tells the group that such seemingly small items as falsifying a report (to make the unit "look good") can evolve into such matters as falsifying body counts and other flagrant examples of untruthfulness.

He says leaders must be guided by professionalism and the three precepts that have formed the spirit of the officer corps for centuries: "Duty, Honor, Country."

From the discussion of professionalism, Hales moves to discussion of specific leadership styles. Much of the presentation is based on video-taped television se-

Duck's-eye view

Daisi, a 180-pound-plus Saint Bernard takes a gander at a duck by the name of Penny while both were waiting to see the doctor at the Post Veterinary Clinic. If Penny looks a bit leary it's because her injuries were caused when a pack of dogs took her as fair game, which resorted to much more than just foul play. Holding the apprehensive duck is Mrs. Robert B. Kenyon, a Red Cross volunteer working with the clinic. Penny belongs to Kenny Canty, son of MSgt. Maurice Canty of the Leadership Committee. Patterson Award to be given in ceremony today

The Volunteer Army (VOLAR) program is a "sincere attempt to recognize the value of individuality without diminishing the sense of the mission or the solid attributes needed to perform a mission."

This will be the message today in Marshall Auditorium as Mrs. Robert P. Patterson speaks to an assemblage of Infantry Officer Candidates and military and civilian dignitaries gathered to honor the 1971 recipient of the Patterson Award.

Addressing the winner, 2nd Lt. Edmund Lee Davis, she will point out that the new emphasis in the Army is toward "individual freedom with accompanying requirements for each man to become responsible and accountable for his acts."

"The military is interested in making internal reforms in keeping with civil life; but only to the extent that the reforms do not degrade military discipline and effectiveness," the speaker is expected to say.

Mrs. Patterson will express her view that this new program promises

Post Finance prepares to convert pay system

The Finance and Accounting Divisions at Fort Benning is getting a jump on "JUMPS," preparing for conversion to the Army's new Joint Uniform Military Pay System by August of this year.

The Joint Uniform Military Pay System (JUMPS-Army) is a computerized system that will pay all active-duty Army personnel from the Finance Center, U. S. Army, Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind.

To familiarize post civilian and military finance personnel with the new system, the Pay-Examination Branch (Bldg. 85) and the Student Payroll Section (Bldg. 2524 and 2528) of the Finance and Accounting Division, now are closed during the morning hours while special training classes are held. Handling of pay complaints will be restricted to the afternoon hours, except in cases of bonafide emergencies.

However, commanders may make special arrangements with Finance and Accounting when numerous pay discrepencies must be resolved within their units.

The Continental Army Command (CONARC) has been alerted to consolidate military pay accounts by March 1. Small numbers of military pay accounts being serviced by CONARC disbursing stations located in close geographic proximity will be consolidated at one station where feasible. The consolidation includes the pay accounts of all Army military personnel without regard to command or agency.

Approximately 5,000 Army pay accounts that were being handled by Air Force and Navy disbursing offices have been turned over to the nearest Army Finance office providing military pay service. Travel payments casual and emergency-type payments

Fire destroys Lawson hangar

An early morning fire destroyed Stryker Hall, home of the Pathfinder Committee of the Infantry School's Airborne Department, Feb. 5. The building was one of the original two hangars at Lawson Army Airfield.

The blaze caused more than $1.25 million in property losses in both building and equipment, according to preliminary estimates by investigating officers.

No one was inside the building at the time of the fire, investigators said. A formal investigation is underway to determine the cause of the blaze.

An Air Force maintenance crew working in the vicinity reported the fire at 2:15 a.m. Although four Fort Benning fire-fighting units and one from Columbus responded to the alarm, the fire was out of control soon after it was spotted.

The maintenance crew said they first noticed the flames in the northeast corner of the building, an area which housed a three-story high parachute drying tower.

After reporting the fire the Air Force crew removed from danger sev-

Nixon proposes new pay increases for servicemen

A military pay increase proposal submitted to Congress last week by President Richard Nixon would primarily benefit the junior enlisted man.

Army Times has reported that the Nixon Administration is asking for increases ranging up to 50 per cent for enlisted men with less than two years service, quarters allowance increases up to $45 monthly and bonuses of up to $6,000 for men enlisting in the combat arms of the Army.

Also included in the proposal will be junior officers with less than two years service. Officers in the grades 01 and 02 with fewer than two years of service would be in for increases ranging about eight to 10 per cent in the proposal aimed for a May 1 effective date.

In addition to these proposed increases, the Administration also plans to raise all military basic pay about seven per cent effective next Jan. 1.

The quarters allowance proposal would give married men in grades E1 through E4 (with less than four years service) $105 monthly, a $45 per month increase over those presently drawing $60. However, adjustments will not be made for those presently receiving the $105.

The without-dependents rate for E-4s with less than four years of service would go up to the same $70.20 the senior E4s now get. All others (E1 through E3) without dependents would stay the same.

While all the details have not been revealed for the enlistment bonus, the plan apparently will offer a man enlisting in the combat arms up to a $6,000 bonus depending on the length of enlistment ($3,000 for a three-year hitch) and perhaps, on which of the arms he chooses.

The bonus would be divided into annual installments, the first of which would be paid to the soldier on the day he qualifies for the military occupational specialty (MOS) in which he enlisted.

The subsequent payments would be available to him on the anniversaries of that date. As with the variable re-enlistment bonus, a provision might be written to allow lump sum payments under certain circumstances.

The enlistment bonuses if passed as proposed will be retroactive to Feb. 1.

The proposed pay rate would raise the basic pay of an E1 with less than four months service by $67.50 to $201.90. The pay scale of E1s with more than four months would also be $201.90 (thus ending the "distinction between the two groups), but their pay would only be increased by $58.20.

Other proposed increases for enlisted men with under two years of service are:

E2s, $222.90 (up $73.80); E3s, $244.20 (up $63.90); E4s, $305.10 (up $58.20); E5s, $330.70 (up $33.30); E6s, $382.80 (up $38.70); and E7s, $443.40 (up $44.40).

Saluting policy clarified under VOLAR program

Saluting requirements at Fort Benning have been clarified under the Modern Volunteer Army program. A new directive says that salutes are not required, but are proper, when either person or both are in civilian clothes.

The directive states that "the exchange of salutes between military personnel is a form of greeting which is encouraged and gives visual evidence of courtesy and respect."

The directive requires saluting of officers in military vehicles, either when the officer is recognized or the vehicle bears special designation of the passenger's rank.

"It is not appropriate to salute passengers or drivers of civilian vehicles solely because the vehicle displays an officer's decal. However, it is appropriate to render the salute when the occupant is recognized as an officer," according to the directive.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

by Bill King

Creamed shellfish dishes take on a delicious, nutty flavor if you mix in some grated Swiss cheese and a little oregano before baking.

Beets will hold their color if cooked in their skins with a spoonful of vinegar added to the water.

For a guest-of-honor buffet party, instead of serving a large cake with a message, line up cupcakes with letters on each to spell out the congratulatory message.

If you chop onions for a special dish ahead of time, refrigerate in plastic throwaway bags rather than in plastic containers. Otherwise, the odor will permeate the container.

Years ago, in the Lorraine area of France, a pig farmer's daughter would send a young man a pig's foot tied with ribbons and bay leaves to indicate her love. But, if she sent him the pig's tail tied with a pickle, it meant, "Get lost!"

You can indicate your love by taking your special someone to a delicious dinner at

Byline Bayonet

(Byline Bayonet welcomes questions of general interest about Fort Benning and the Army. Within space limitations, all reasonable questions will be answered. Questions of a purely military nature which obviously could be answered more properly by commander or supervisors within the chain of command will not be accepted. Questions must be signed with current unit of assignment indicated. Send questions to The Bayonet, Room 602, Infantry Hall.)

Q — When a serviceman retires after 20 years of active duty, does he receive full benefits from the Staff Judge Advocate?

A — AR 608-50, para 5d permits the legal assistance shop to grant legal assistance to all retired personnel. However, at this installation, so says the judge, limited manpower has caused limited services. The main reason is the reduction in personnel here at Benning. Presently preference is afforded those going to combat zones that are not given to some active duty and retired personnel. It is planned that in the near future changes under VOLAR will permit a much greater service capacity.

Q — What can happen to soldiers caught sending drugs through the mail? Does the Army or the post office act?

A — Soldiers are subject to punishment under the UCMJ. Another little-known penalty can be imposed under 26 U.S. Code, Sec. 4741 through IRS's Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs. This is the imposition of a transfer tax of $100 per ounce for transfer of marijuana from one individual to another.

Q—If I offer someone a free ride from the Municipal Airport to Fort Benning, am I liable for prosecution for violation of the local ordinances?

A—The city attorney of Columbus states that there is no city ordinance prohibiting a person from offering another person or persons a free ride from Columbus Municipal Airport to Fort Benning or any other place. However, he pointed out that there is an ordinance prohibiting a person from soliciting riders if a fee of any type is charged the passenger. If a fee is collected, the person offering the ride is subject to prosecution for soliciting and or doing business without a license.

Q—I understand that VA will pay me full time benefits for taking 12 hours at college; is this correct?

A—Yes, if the college considers 12 semester hours full time.

The judge says

Law gives 2nd chance on contracts

USAIC LEGAL ASSISTANCE OFFICE — You have returned home to find your wife has just signed a contract to buy a $500 set of encyclopedias from a door-to-door salesman. What can you do?

Don't panic—the law may be on your side. You as a Georgia resident may be protected by "The Retail Installment and Home Solicitation Act," enacted in 1967 by the Georgia legislature.

This law is primarily concerned with your rights when you contract to purchase from a salesman at your home. You as a purchaser have the right to cancel this contract if the following conditions are satisfied: You MUST be sold the item, at your home, by the seller or his representative, on an installment contract and signed at the time of solicitation. All of the above conditions must be met for you to benefit from the act. Most contracts with door-to-door salesmen are likely to satisfy these requirements.

To take advantage of your right to cancel, you must act quickly. The statute requires you to send notice of your cancellation to the seller at his place of business by certified mail, return receipt requested, postmarked no later than midnight on the day following execution of your contract. This notice of cancellation doesn't have to be in any particular form as long as it indicates your intention not to be bound by the home solicitation sale.

Though you've acted quickly enough to cancel the contract, the seller has the right to charge you liquidated damages—$25 or 5 per cent of the gross sales price, whichever is less, is the amount you owe the seller for his efforts and inconvenience. After all, you did agree to pay the full amount, so the penalty is in effect a compromise.

Since you may have acted hastily in accepting the "Sales pitch," you are allowed to cancel the contract by midnight of the next day. The liquidated damages up to $25 rewards the seller for his work.

Within 10 days after cancellation, the seller must refund to the buyer all deposits including any down payment. If you receive the merchandise sold, you must return that merchandise unused in the same conditions as received. If you don't return the merchandise, the seller can pick it up at the place sold within a reasonable time after notice of cancellation, and the seller can receive from you $5 or the actual cost of picking up the merchandise, whichever is less. This is the extent of your and the sellers' obligations.

The Georgia law properly balances your right and those of the seller. You may have hastily accepted a "Sales pitch," yet you may cancel the contract by midnight of the next day. On the other hand you did enter into a binding contract, therefore the seller is allowed to collect up to $25 in liquidated damages.

If there are any questions, please contact your Legal Assistance Office (Telephone 545-1311-5441).

Great Americans

Mary McLeod Bethune (1875-1955)

The name of Mary McLeod Bethune may not be well known among those highlighting today's fast-paced America, but thousands of her former students remember her as an intellectual, an educator, and a courageous black woman.

Born 10 years after the Civil War to parents who had been slaves, Miss Bethune determined early in life to be educated. Through sheer determination she graduated from Barber-Scotia College in Concord, N. C., in 1893 when she was 18, and later attended the Moody Bible Institute in Chicago.

In 1904 she opened the Daytona (Fla.) Normal and Industrial Institute with six students and $1.20. She merged her school with the Cookman Institute for men in Jacksonville, Fla., in 1923. She was president of the co-educational Bethune-Cookman Junior College until she retired in 1942.

Miss Bethune was named by President Franklin D. Roosevelt to direct the Division of Negro Affairs of the National Youth Administration from 1936 to 1944. During World War II, she assisted the secretary of war in selecting the first black officer candidates for the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps, forerunner of today's Army WAC.

She also served the U. S. government as a State Department observer at the founding conference of the United Nations in San Francisco in 1945. She also was a vice president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Mary McLeod Bethune, daughter of former slaves and recipient of many honors for her service to the American people, died May 18, 1955, at age 76, after a life filled with hard work, solid achievements, and personal satisfaction.

When we assumed the soldier, we did not lay aside the citizen.

—George Washington

Veterans are more than just soldiers

What is a veteran? More specifically, what is the American veteran?

Well, the American veteran is many things, and many people. He's both tall and short and sometimes medium. He's both rich and poor and oftimes middle-income. He's Catholic, Protestant and Jew, and several other religions as well. He's also black, white, red, yellow and brown, and numerous shades between.

Above all, the American veteran is a patriot, and not ashamed to show it. Wherever and whenever his country's flag was in jeopardy — at Bunker Hill and Hamburger Hill, at Saratoga and Santiago and Salerno, at Lexington and Leyte and Luzon — he was there, standing steadfast to see the United Staes through storm and strife.

He curses like a Patton and prays like a Washington. He is as gentlemanly cultured as a Lee, and as plain and forthright as a Carson or a Crockett. He is as scientifically knowledgeable as an Armstrong or as matter-of-factly savvy as a Boone.

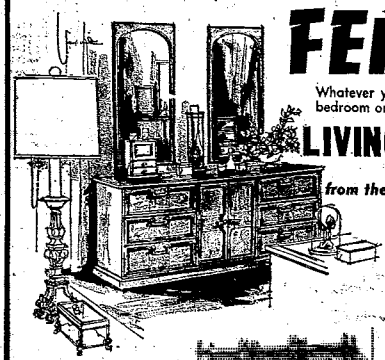
His courage is legend, and he has demonstrated it wherever the sun rose on crisis and set on peace: From the breakout following the bitter winter at Valley Forge to the surrender of the redcoats at Yorktown; from the struggle on Lake Erie to the defeat of the British at New Orleans; from the firing on Fort Sumter to the discussion of terms at Appomattox; from the hell of the Argonne Forest to the Armistice at Compeigne; from the landing at Algiers to the capitulation at Rheims; from the attack on Pearl Harbor to the end of the Pacific conflict in Tokyo Bay; from the burst of shells on Seoul to the parleys at Panmunjom; from the defense of Saigon to, hopefully, the final peace negotiations at Paris.

The American veteran has a heart. After a fierce battle, he can be seen passing out chocolate bars and gum to the children of the very men against whom he was fighting. Deadly serious when the occasion demands, his other side also has a sense of humor.

He is magnanimously civic-minded, too. Hundreds of schools, orphanages and hospitals in several dozen lands came into being and continue to exist only through the sweat and charity of the American veteran.

His name? Take all the names in all the telephone directories throughout the nation and add several million more who were veterans before telephones had become a way of life, and the list would be almost complete.

How old is the American veteran? He's as young as the rawest recruit that swore his oath of enlistment today, and as old as the nation itself. American veterans of battles at Vosges and St. Vith and in Vietnam and elsewhere stand with their peers of all nations who have defended human freedom, rights and dignity throughout history.



What is the American veteran? He is the very lifeblood of America — an American who is ready and willing to, and has on frequent occasions, shed his own blood to keep that nation, and the spirit upon which it was founded, alive. (AFPS Editorial)

Fort Benning's civilian 'boss' completes 30 years

By Mike Keller

T. A. Barefoot, whom approximately 6,000 Fort Benning civilian employes can call "boss," is retiring today.

Barefoot, who is completing more than 30 years of Federal civil service at Fort Benning, was head of the post's civilian personnel division, a position he held since September 1947.

A farewell reception for Barefoot was held Wednesday at the Main Post Service Club. He was presented a certificate of retirement, a Meritorous Civilian Service Award with a gold laurel leaf cluster signifying the fourth award, the Department of the Army's second highest award for a civilian.

As civilian personnel officer (CPO), Barefoot was responsible for the administration of much of Fort Benning's civilian work force. "We handle all the services that might be needed in a large municipality — which, in a sense, Fort Benning is," he said.

Civilians working with such activities as the post's fire department, roads, utilities, garbage collection and sewage all fell under Barefoot's supervision, as do ordinance and administrative personnel.

"It's hard to think of a job we don't have," Barefoot said. "We employ scientists, engineers, craftsmen, tradesmen and other professional people of all types." In addition, many of the employes have military-related jobs, such as tank repairmen and ammunition handlers.

Barefoot's office, however, does not have jurisdiction over post exchange personnel, contracted employes or individuals working in sundry activities.

Fort Benning's civilians work in co-ordination with the Army rather than as a separate entity. "We are part of the general staff," Barefoot said of his department, "and I am responsible to the post commander just as military chiefs are. I am an Army employe like the soldier — except for the suit I wear."

Barefoot began his climb to the top of Fort Benning's civil service world as a 40-cents-an-hour time and payroll clerk in 1940. He subsequently served with the old post utilities branch, as chief of the employe relation section of the civilian personnel division and as assistant CPO before becoming CPO.

He also was a flying cadet with the Army Air Corps in 1940.

The scope of Barefoot's responsibilities mushroomed since he first assumed the duties of CPO in 1947. "When I started this job," he related, "Fort Benning had about 2,000 employes — only one-third of the present size."

Barefoot, who plans to do "a lot of traveling and a great deal of fishing" in retirement, lives with his wife, Rilla, at 1006 Overlook Drive in Columbus, Ga. They have two sons, Steve, 22, and Don, 19.

CONARC commander to visit Benning

Gen. Ralph E. Haines Jr., commanding general of the United States Continental Army Command (CONARC) Fort Monroe, Va., will visit Fort Benning Wednesday and Thursday for a series of discussions and briefings on Infantry Center and Infantry School activities.

Also, Gen. Haines will address the graduation of Ranger Class 501 during ceremonies at Todd Field Thursday at 10:50 a.m. He also will view several demonstrations and observe classroom activities of Noncommissioned Officer Candidate and Infantry Officers Advanced Course students.

Gen. Haines is scheduled to arrive at 8 a.m. Wednesday at Lawson Army Airfield. An honors ceremony will be held on York Field starting at 8:10 a.m.

Gen. Haines, a native of Fort Mott, N. J., entered the U. S. Military Academy after his graduation from Texas Military Institute, San Antonio, Tex., in 1930. He was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Cavalry in 1935.

Gen. Haines became commander in chief of the U. S. Army in the Pacific in August 1968, with headquarters at Ft. Shafter, Hawaii. He was named commanding general of CONARC in August 1970.

Among his awards and decorations are the Distinguished Service Medal, Legion of Merit, Bronze Star and the Army Commendation Medal.

During his Army career, Gen. Haines has served a number of staff tours of duty in the plans and operations field, including an assignment as chief, plans division, plans and policy directorate, office of the Joint Chiefs of Staff in Washington.

In addition to commanding an Infantry regiment, he has commanded armored units in the 1st, 2nd and 6th Armored Divisions, at all echelons from a tank company to an armored division.

Party to aid nursery project

Let your mind wander back 100 years. Go to the barn, saddle up that old trusty mare and head for town where the biggest humdinger of a party you ever attended is about to begin.

This could very well be the scene at Fort Benning on March 6 when the Daughters of the U. S. Army (DUSA) bring their annual "49ers Party" back to town for an evening of can-can girls, a saloon atmosphere and vittles that take you back yonder with the least of effort.

Proceeds from the anticipated $10,000 goal will go toward construction of a new nursery annex in the proposed commissary-post exchange complex near Martin Army Hospital. The new nursery will cost approximately $100,000.

Girls, games, food and fun will be featured as the swinging doors open at 7 p.m. on March 6. Festivities will continue until the wee hours of the morning — about 2 a.m.

Costume prizes will be awarded to the best female, best male, most appropriate, most humorous and best couple. Preliminary judging will be between 7 p.m. and 10 p.m. for selection of finalists.

Beginning the day's activities will be an old west parade starting at the Fort Benning Hunt Club. The parade route will take the old west caravan through Custer Terrace and the main post area. It will end at the Hunt Club.

Chairman of the "49er Party" is Mrs. Eric Van Beero and military project officer is Maj. John B. Reese. Mrs. William R. Guthrie is president of DUSA.

Soldiers' Council urges bulletin board project

Fort Benning's Soldier's Council has urged all post company level units to set up an information center or bulletin board on the Volunteer Army (VOLAR) project.

In a recent meeting, the council representatives — seven personnel in grades E4 and below from the post's major commands — also passed a motion requiring members of the council to attend their respective major unit council meetings. Under the VOLAR plan each major unit, down to battalion level, is supposed to create its own soldier's council.

In another action the council agreed to discuss post transportation and soldiers' appearance at its next meeting.

The Soldier's Council was created as part of the VOLAR program presently being conducted at Fort Benning.

a military environment that "lives up to principles always held in the Army such as leadership, brotherhood at arms, integrity and sincere acceptance of duty."

Davis, now a platoon leader in Co. C, 3rd Bn. Abn. 325th Inf., 2nd Bde., 82nd Abn., Division at Fort Bragg, N. C., was honor graduate of his OCS class here Aug. 28, 1970. He was selected for the Patterson Award by Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, commandant of the Infantry School, from among honor graduates during the year.

At the ceremony, scheduled for 11 a.m. in Marshall Auditorium, Gen. Talbott will introduce Lt. Gen. John M. Wright Jr., comptroller of the Army and a former Fort Benning commander. Representing the secretary of the Army and the chief of staff of the Army, Gen. Wright will present to Davis a "Follow Me" plaque and the Robert P. Patterson Memorial Award Certificate.

Mrs. Patterson will give the lieutenant an engraved service pistol and a check for $750. These awards were made possible by a memorial trust fund set up by friends of Secretary Patterson, a former secretary of War during the Truman administration.

Among the dignitaries coming to the post for the Patterson Award ceremony will be officers in Davis' chain of command: Maj. Gen. George S. Blanchard Jr., commanding general of the 82nd Abn., Div., and Col. Alexander M. Weyand, who commands the division's 2nd Bde.

Another visitor will be Lt. Col. Dandridge M. Malone, the 1955 recipient of the Patterson Award. Col. Malone is assigned to the U. S. Army War College at Carlisle Barracks, Pa.

Others planning to attend the Patterson Award ceremony are Brig. Gen. Albert B. Jones, deputy chief of the U. S. Army Reserve, representing Maj. Gen. W. J. Sutton, chief of the Reserve; Sam Silverstein of Augusta, Ga., who served in France with Patterson in World War I; and Davis' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clifton G. Davis, and sister, Clara, of Lake City, Fla.

After the ceremony, there will be an official luncheon for Mrs. Patterson at the Supper Club.

Plans for Mrs. Patterson include a briefing on the Infantry Museum. She is a member of the National Advisory Council to the Infantry Museum Development Program.

Mrs. Patterson will visit the 5th Student Battalion and the Patterson Room at Wigle Hall, accompanied by Davis. There will be an open house at the hall for members of Officer Candidate Class No. 7 (52nd Company).

to Army personnel will continue to be made by Air Force and Navy disbursing officers.

In another action the Army is selecting highly competent personnel from all major commands for instructor training at the Army Finance School at Ft. Benjamin Harrison. The specialized six-week course will prepare those selected to be JUMPS-Army instructors. Upon completion of the course, instructor teams will be formed to train finance personnel in the field.

JUMPS-Army training at Fort Benning is designed to fully familarize finance personnel with the present Army pay system, and later to train them for the new system.

Finance personnel from Ft. McClellan, Ft. Rucker, Anniston Army Depot, Atlanta Army Depot and Redstone Arsenal will join Fort Benning personnel for the formal JUMPS-Army training during March and April.

eral parked aircraft near the burning building.

Destroyed in the blaze were eleven "jeep type vehicles," which were stored in the building, more than 3,000 parachutes and all of the committee's special equipment and training aids.

Also lost were the accumulated memorabila of decades of Pathfinder operations and training, a collection which will be impossible to replace, investigators said.

The Pathfinder Committee had occupied Stryker Hall since 1952. The building, named after Medal of Honor recipient PFC Stewart Stryker, had been remodeled into offices, classrooms and storage areas.

A formal investigation is underway to determine the cause of the blaze.

Shop talk

Bench shoppers poke new in the merchant list in built at years, some find specials or like Mrs. Thomas Ducker (L) clothing for that new addition to the family, might find what they need at the newest addition to Fort Benning's "family" of exchanges — the Kiddie and Fabric Shop. The store, which opened last week, offers a full stock of fabrics, draperies and sewing accessories, as well as clothing, toys, furniture and nursery items for infants and toddlers. The shop, located across from the Main Commissary, is part of the post's Volunteer Army (VOLAR) project to make Army life more attractive to servicemen and their families. Assisting Mrs. Ducker in her selection is exchange employe Mrs. Grafton Markham.

Women's News

Patriots, wives enter 'Age of Aquarius'

The 1st Bn. (Mech), 58th Inf. ("The Patriots") held an "Age of Aquarius" party at Kings Pond recently.

With lights down low, strobe lights flashing and audio lights blinking, the lodge took on a new life. The contrast between the mod music and the rustic roaring fire added an unusual atmosphere to the festive occasion.

In keeping with the concepts of the new Modern Army, the dress was mod and hippy. As appearance changed with the addition of long flowing hair and curly locks, distinguished guests (Lt. Col. and Mrs. Richard W. McKee, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Hollis D. Messer, Lt. Col. and Mrs. James W. Wurman, and Mr. and Mrs. Ray D. Roley) were unrecognizable.

In keeping with a battalion tradition, Lt. Col. Stephen R. Pawlik, battalion commander, presented baby cups to Capt. and Mrs. William P. B. Rader and 2nd Lt. and Mrs. Charles A. Pollut in recognition of recent additions to their families; and a serving tray to 2nd Lt. and Mrs. Daniel G. Sechel to commemorate their recent wedding.

School director visits

Maj. Gen. (ret.) William M. Lynn Jr. (L), director of the U.S. Army Comptrollership School, Syracuse University, talks with Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander, during a visit to Fort Benning recently. In addition to visiting with the post's comptroller, Gen. Lynn also received briefings on Infantry Center and Infantry School activities.

ACS honors efforts of volunteer workers

More than 80 Fort Benning wives — and two military personnel were cited for volunteer efforts with the Army Community Service (ACS) at ceremonies Monday at the Main Post Officers Club.

Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, Fort Benning commander, made the presentations. Also attending was Maj. Donald A. Myles ACS officer.

Expressing "special appreciation for what you have done for us," Gen. Talbott praised the workers for "your service to the community and especially the help you have given to those who needed it most." The general also urged the assembled volunteers to encourage others to get involved in the ACS program.

Among those honored for long ACS service were Mrs. Herbert G. See, Mrs. Marguerite Waldrop, Mrs. Armand DeCesare and Mrs. Hamor R. Hanson. Mrs. See was awarded a three-year service pin guard and 1,300-hour certificate; Mrs. Waldrop, a three and four-year guard and 800-hour certificate; Mrs. DeCesare, a one-year guard and 700-hour certificate and Mrs. Hanson, A 50-hour pin and 500-hour certificate.

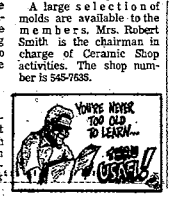
Panel design earns $100 award for major

An ground-to-air signal panel the size of a handkerchief has earned for its designer at Fort Benning a $100 cash award, an engraved replica of Rodin's statue, "The Thinker," and a certificate of achievement.

Maj. Nicholas Sellers, a National Guard officer from Philadelphia, Pa., currently enrolled in the advanced course at the Infantry School, thought that the signal panel used to mark a position for the benefit of aircraft was too bulky. He designed a smaller panel of lighter material. It is not only adequate for identification purposes but folds to the size of a handkerchief. The panel does not add to the weight nor bulk of the load the soldier carries.

For his efforts Sellers was awarded a Combat Developments Command (CDC) Certificate of Achievement. The award was established by the U.S. Army Combat Developments Command, Fort Belvoir, Va., to encourage meaningful contributions to combat developments efforts from students at the Army's officer advance courses at branch and service schools. The award program is one of CDC's primary sources of new ideas.

NCO wives club sponsors ceramic shop open house



The Noncommissioned Officers Wives Club held an open house on Feb. 8 at the Ceramic Shop, Bldg. 2422 (in the Lawson Field area) from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m. The public was invited.

Women's 'lib,' hearts depict themes for officer wives

IOAC WIVES LUNCH

The ladies of the Infantry Officer's Advanced Class, 1 - 71, held a luncheon and play Feb. 4 at the Supper Club.

Round tables were decorated with the patriotic colors: red, white and blue. White tablecloths centered with blue drums and red streamers emerging from around the drums were in the center. Individual flags stuck in candy kisses and red napkins by each plate completed the tables. The head table held a floral decoration of blue carnations and white chrysanthemums surrounding a red candle holder. Drums on each end of the table completed the decorations.

Highlighting the afternoon was a 3-act play entitled "Women's Lib-This is Your Army." The play, inspired by an idea from Mrs. William Wallace, and written by Mrs. Reave Ross, was presented as a television documentary in the year 1980 with an all women Army.

Between acts Mrs. Vernon Stevenson performed two comical commercials.

Members of the cast were: Mrs. Reave Ross, Mrs. Albert Stewart, Mrs. Edwin Smith, Mrs. Grover West, Mrs. Jerry Willard, Mrs. Calvin Wagie, Mrs. Jerry Winchester, Mrs. Harry Rothmann, Mrs. Gene Sparks, Mrs. Peter Waldo, Mrs. Harlan VanWinkle, Mrs. Gary Thornley and Mrs. William Wallace. Mrs. Robert Woodruff was assistant director for the play.

Mrs. Truman Sullivan, head of the decoration committee, was assisted by Mrs. Charles Whittle, Mrs. Harlan VanWinkle, Mrs. Michael Wimert, and Mrs. Lewis Swinehart.

The honored guests were Mrs. William Walker, wife of Lt. Col. William A. Walker, brigade executive officer, and Mrs. Daniel Harvey, wife of Cpt. Daniel B. Harvey, detachment executive officer.

LEADERSHIP BRUNCH

The Officers' Wives of the Leadership Department held a Valentine brunch at the Main Officers' Open Mess Supper Club, Tuesday, Feb. 2, at 10 a.m.

The club was decorated in the Valentine motif. White hearts bearing red carnations, trimmed with pink net, adorned the individual tables. The nametags were red and pink paper hearts decorated with strips of ribbon from which Valentine candy was hung. The programs were made of red and pink paper hearts with Valentine candy on the front cover.

Thirty-five wives and guests attended the program a Wig Show presented by Mrs. L. B. Killingsworth, of a local salon, and Mrs. Dennis Ortiz, model. Several different colors, styles, and hair pieces were shown. Mrs. Killingsworth distributed sample cosmetics to the guests.

Honored guests for the occasion were Mrs. Raymond E. Gunderson, president of OWC and wife of Lt. Col. Gunderson, secretary general staff; and Mrs. Albert F. Ledebuhr, wife of Col. Ledebuhr, post chaplain.

Mrs. Roy B. Burns' mother, Mrs. Pasco Fusco, was a special guest.

Hostesses for the event were the ladies of Management Committee, with Mrs. Robert I. Farris as chief hostess, and, the ladies of the Conditioning, Combatives, and Drill Committee, with Mrs. Edward F. Fiora, Jr. as chief hostess.

'RANGERS IN ACTION'

"Rangers in Action" was the theme of January's Ranger Officers' Wives' Club luncheon held in the Corregidor Room of the Main Club on Jan. 21.

After a hearty luncheon and a short business meeting, Ranger wives viewed a film depicting the various phases of Ranger training and instruction. As explained in the film, rappelling, night patrolling and a good bit of sludging through the mud are a few of the activities included in the rigorous training of a Ranger student.

Mrs. John P. Geraci bid farewell to Mrs. Robert M. Callahan, whose husband is leaving the department, and presented her with a Ranger charm and a copy of the Rangerette poem.

The ladies welcomed Mrs. Thompson, mother of Ranger wife Mrs. Richard J. Meadows, as an honored guest.

Hostesses for the luncheon were Mrs. Robert Jones, Mrs. Donald Madison, Mrs. Don B. Montgomery and Mrs. David J. Prybyla.

USO has reduced fares, tickets in Atlanta area

Free tickets to Atlanta events and shows are available to military visiting the city. The tickets are available through the Atlanta USO.

Lt. Col. R. A. Sebenoler, Fort Benning Special Services officer, says that the USO has tickets to many events including musicals, live theater presentations and sporting events for all military personnel visiting the Atlanta area. Also, hotel accommodations at reduced rates are available through the USO.

If you wish tickets to a particular event, you may contact the USO by dialing 404-525-4976 or 4977, or write Mr. Floyd Hoon, director, 151 Spring St. N. W., Atlanta, Ga. 30303.

Special Services also is sponsoring a Valentine Sweetheart contest which began Feb. 1 and ends Feb. 10.

To enter simply submit a picture of your wife, girlfriend or mother to the Main Post Service Club, Bldg. 2784 on Sightseeing Road. Deadline for entries is Feb. 10, and pictures must be submitted to the club staff by this date.

Winners of first, second and third place will be announced Feb. 14 at 3 p.m. in the club and winning sweethearts will receive Valentine gifts.

All pictures will be returned to owners after the contest.

Geographical wives attend dinner meeting

Twenty-one Geographical Wives' Club members and guests attended a dinner meeting recently.

The club is made up of wives whose husbands are serving in overseas areas where they cannot be accompanied by their wives.

The guest speakers were Mrs. Ruth Mock and Mrs. Betty Watkins of a local figure salon who spoke on figure control. Bruce Livengood, a local merchant, spoke on foods available for shipment overseas.

Hostesses for the dinner were Mrs. Raymond Walsh, Mrs. Omer Pigeon and Mrs. Eric Van Brero.

New members welcomed were Mrs. Samiel Conn and Mrs. Wendell Doody. Farewells were said to Mrs. Woodrow McMillan, Mrs. Raymond Walsh an Mrs. George O'Kelley.

Mrs. William Elrod and Mrs. Frank Hearn were introduced as the new chairladies.

For further information concerning the Geographical Wives' Club call Mrs. Elrod at 551-2279 or Mrs. Hearn at 563-1803.

Card party slated

A Pinochle Marathon will be held at the Main Post Service Club on Sightseeing Road Feb. 21.

Registration will open at 9 a.m. and continue until 9:30 a.m., when a member of the service club staff will give a briefing on house rules.

The marathon will begin at 10 a.m.

Winners will be awarded trophies. Play is open to the public.

NCOC wives hold coffee

The wives of Noncommissioned Officer Candidates of 80th Co., 8th Stu. Bn., TSB, held a coffee recently in the 80th Co. dayroom.

Hostess for the coffee was Mrs. James P. Brookhouse, wife of the 80th Co. training officer.

The program included the welcoming of new members and discussion of up-coming events. Plans were made for the wives' field trip to their husbands' training, and for the graduation party to be held in February.

Refreshments of coffee, orange juice, cakes and cookies were provided for the ladies.

Leadership

quences, many of which point out styles of leadership that are considered out-of-date in today's Army and must be eliminated by the man who hopes to be an effective leader.

From the reaction of the audience, the tapes also accurately portray styles of leadership that were being practiced at Fort Benning before the start of the class.

"Hales' finger often points back toward his audience as he emphasizes the points of instruction. "When was the last time you made an on-the-spot correction?" he asks an NCO who is complaining about alleged permissiveness in appearance.

In teaching the class, Hales points out that the concepts and principles of leadership are not being changed. But, he cautions, there is need to change leadership styles and the manner in which specific leadership concepts are applied.

He also says there still is a place for the boisterous leader, who still is not demeaning to his subordinate. And the instruction even leaves room for the "calculated burst of anger," that sometimes is necessary.

Three hours of contemporary leadership problems comprise the afternoon instruction.

Maj. Tyrone P. Fletcher, who pioneered race relations instruction along with Hales, teaches the first hour on "Leadership Aspects of Race Relations."

The class discusses such subjects as the Afro haircut and the so-caled black power salute. It also touches on the "dehumanization" of blacks through the slavery system.

Fletcher tells the leaders that they will find some racial problems in their units. "There are some blacks who just don't trust whites; and there are some whites who just don't trust blacks."

It is the leader's responsibility, he says, to understand the heritage of all the persons in his unit and to investigate all alleged racial problems quickly and fully.

"The young black soldier does not want special treatment," Fletcher says. "He just wants concerned leadership; fair and impartial leadership."

The second hour of race relations instruction is devoted to showing videotapes of situations with racial overtones and group discussion of these situations.

The last hour of the day is devoted to discussion of one of the Army's fastest growing problems, drug use and abuse. The major point in this instruction is the leader's responsibility to control the use of drugs in his unit.

Those in the audience are told they have the "legal and moral responsibility" to reduce or eliminate drug use and abuse. The class also gives leaders some guidelines for spotting drug use in their units.

It is pointed out that strong leadership, leadership that is knowledgeable and sympathetic with all the members of the unit and their needs, can help reduce the drug problem.

For that matter the instructors say that kind of leadership can handle almost any problem that arises in today's Army, from youth activism to race conflicts. And that is the point of the whole day's instruction.

Track Vehicle Course graduates 44 students

Track Vehicle Mechanic's Course Class 18-71 graduated 44 students Feb. 3 in ceremonies at Infantry Hall.

Guest speaker at the commencement exercise was Lt. Col. Robert L. Skiles, Command Maintenance Department, USAIS.

The distinguished honor graduate was Sp4 Thomas A. Pizza Jr. The distinguished academic graduate was Sp4 David L. Brixey.

The seven-week mechanic's course provides personnel with a working knowledge to perform organizational maintenance and recovery of tracked vehicles.

Included among the course of instruction are engine principles, valve adjustments, cooling and lubricating systems, carburation and fuel injection.

Farewell plaque

SSgt. Alsee N. Richardson receives a plaque from Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, Fort Benning commander, upon departure from the Fort Benning Airborne department. Richardson has been reassigned to Ft. Bragg, N. C. to be a member of the Army's parachute team, the Golden Knights.

Benning schools name Dental contest winners

The first and second place Dental Health Week poster contest winners were announced at Dexter School Monday morning.

The presentation of the post-wide awards were made by Evelyn C. Southwood, instructional supervisor.

The first place winners, who received a ribbon and an electric toothbrush, were Kristen Runke, Dexter School, 3rd grade level; Mary Casias, Lloyd School, 4th grade level; Reginald Hudson, Edward A. White School, 5th grade level; Sarah Cheatham, Faith School, 6th grade level; Gene Pendley, Faith School, 7th grade level; Terrance Tullin, Faith School, 8th grade level.

The second place winners, who received a ribbon, were Donald Nestor, Edward A. White School, 3rd grade level; Joi Jordan, Lloyd School, 4th grade level; Melissa Hope, Lloyd School, 5th grade level; Diana Hudson, Edward A. White School, 6th grade level; George Gonzales, Faith School, 7th grade level; Robert Reynolds, Faith School, 8th grade level.

Miss Southwood, who presented the awards said that "every person who made a poster is a winner if that person took the message to heart and actively fought tooth decay."

Earl L. Miley, assistant superintendent for instruction, welcomed the audience at the presentation in the Dexter school auditorium.

The presentation of the post-wide award for the posters, which were prepared by the students in January, highlighted the beginning of the National Children's Dental Health Week at Fort Benning.

Judges for the poster contest were James F. Schoonover, secretary-treasurer, Community Activity Association; Evelyn C. Southwood, instructional supervisor, Fort Benning Post Elementary Schools; and Capt. Gerald H. Kreinces, pedodontist, USA Dental Company.

Nation's cities mark Negro History Week

This week many cities in the United States are observing Negro History Week, which began in 1926.

A committee of the National Education Association coupled with the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History sponsor Negro History Week during the period from Lincoln's birthday to Frederick Douglass' birthday, Feb. 12 and 14 respectively.

Among other notables which can be commemorated in black history are:

Crispus Attucks, who, along with four white colleagues, was killed in the Boston Massacre on March 5, 1770.

Peter Salem, black American Revolutionary soldier, who fired the shot that killed Maj. John Pitcairn, second in command of the British expedition to Lexington. The shot was later called "the shot heard around the world," the start of the American Revolution.

Benjamin Banneker, mathematician and surveyer, who assisted in the laying out of the capital of our nation.

Frederick Douglass, black orator, writer, and abolitionist.

Martin Luther King, civil rights leader who worked to achieve social, political, and economic equality for blacks by peaceful means.

Museum names 2 to drive

Charles S. Daley has been named State of Georgia chairman and Sims Bray Atlanta chairman for the campaign to build a $8 million Infantry Museum at Fort Benning.

The announcement was made by former governor Winthrop Rockefeller of Arkansas at a noon meeting at the Marriott Motor Hotel in Atlanta. Rockefeller and J. W. Woodruff Jr. of Columbus are co-chairmen for the nationwide project.

Daley, who is president of the 4th National Bank of Columbus, is a 1942 graduate of Fort Benning's Infantry Officer Candidate School, and a member of the OCS Hall of Fame. Bray, is president and director of Johnson and Higgins of Georgia, Inc.

Huge complex

The world's largest privately-owned business and entertainment complex is Rockefeller Center in New York City. Radio City Music Hall, located there, is the largest in-door theater, with a seating capacity of 6,200.

92 confirmed at post chapel

The Most Reverend Gerard L. Frey, Bishop of Savannah, visited Fort Benning last weekend to give the Sacrament of Confirmation in the Main Post Catholic Chapel.

The bishop also celebrated noon Mass on Sunday.

The 1971 Confirmation Class consisted of 72 dependents and approximately 20 adults.

Immediately following the noon Mass the chapel held an informal reception in honor of Bishop Frey and the class in the Infantry Center Chapel Annex, next to Bldg. 101.

Officer gives clues on how to stop thefts

Thieves feel that frozen chickens are 'fair game'

By Mike Keller

Thieves, like beggars, are not particularly choosy. They will take anything — a clock radio, portable television sets, an old checkbook. Even 30 frozen chickens.

These are among the approximately 100 items which were reported stolen at Fort Benning last month. And all of these — except the chickens, which were "lifted" from a post mess hall — belonged to Fort Benning residents.

"Most of the crimes committed on post are small larcenies," Capt. James E. Lucas, officer-in-charge of the military police investigative section, said. "Anything that is not properly secured is 'fair game' for a thief."

Stopping petty crimes requires more than the efforts of the military police, he noted. Fort Benning residents also can take steps to both reduce the chance of a theft and increase the likelihood of stolen property being recovered.

Lucas, noting that this week is National Crime Prevention Week, offered several tips on how to prevent thefts:

— Soldiers living in barracks should put their names and initials on all important property not having serial numbers. An electric engraving machine is available at the provost marshal's office for this purpose. The items should be marked in an inconspicuous place to assist identification if the stolen article is found.

— When on pass or leave, a soldier should secure all valuables in the company safe. In addition, a person taking a long leave should inventory the personal items he is not taking and put them in the unit supply room.

— Barracks residents, before going to bed, should not place the keys to their locker in an easy-to-get location, such as in a shoe or under their mattress or pillow. The safest place to keep it is on a chain around the neck.

— Thefts from bachelor officers and enlisted quarters (BOQ and BEQ) have increased greatly in the past year, and this housing now is classified as a high risk area. Individuals living in those quarters should secure their outside room door as well as putting their valuables under separate lock within the room. In any case, large sums of money never should be left in the BOQ, BEQ or barracks.

— Persons should carefully guard their valuables when at Bryant Wells Field House. Property always should be placed in a secured locker.

— Personnel living in regular post housing should lock their homes when they are gone. Items such as bicycles or lawn mowers should not be left outside.

— Parked automobiles should be locked and their windows rolled up so that a person cannot gain entry to the car. Valuables should not be left on seats.

— Soldiers should avoid carrying large sums of money. Instead of heading downtown with their full paycheck, soldiers should deposit it. If they are unable to get to a bank — or similar savings institution — on payday, they should secure their money in the unit safe.

—Servicemen should avoid hitchhiking and accepting rides from strangers, particularly close to payday.

If, despite all safeguards, a person still is a theft victim, he should immediately notify the MPs.

"Many people never bother to call us after a theft," Lucas said. "But they should. We have found many stolen items in such places as downtown pawn shops, and returned them to their owners."

Next to human beings, the biggest victim of larcenies on Fort Benning are vending machines — candy, snda, cigarette and stamps. "In the past month, for example, 15 stamp machines have been broken into," Lucas noted.

Stealing property worth less than $50 can net even a first offender a bad conduct discharge (BCD), full forfeiture of pay and allowances and six months at hard labor.

Infantry Magazine under new editor

Lt. Col. Edward Bradford, who has returned from a battalion command in Vietnam, assumed the editorship of Infantry Magazine Monday.

Lt. Col. Robert Orkand, who served as editor during a year which saw a record number of more than 101,000 issues of the magazine sold, and who oversaw such innovations as the first regular use of full color in the publication will move to the Weapons Department of the Infantry School to fill the vacant deputy director post.

In June Orkand will assume a command in the Republic of Vietnam.

Bradford, a native of New York City, received his commission through the Reserve Officer Training Course upon his graduation from St. John's College of New York in 1951.

He is a graduate of the Armor School Advanced Course and the U. S. Army Command and General Staff School, and has done graduate work at Boston College.

During his recent tour in the Republic of Vietnam, Bradford served as executive officer of the 1st Bde., 25th Inf. Div., and as commanding oficer of 4th Bn., 23rd Inf., 25th Inf. Div.

Among his awards and decorations are the Bronze Star with "V" device and three Oak Leaf Clusters, the Meritorious Service Medal, the Air Medal with "V" device and seven Oak Leaf Clusters, the Combat Infantryman Badge and the Expert Infantryman Badge.

Bradford and his wife, Alice, have five children.

College announces registration

Spring quarter applicants to Columbus College should file their college admission applications with the Fort Benning Center office, Room 230, Building 35, before Feb. 26, Dr. J. F. Burgess, director of the center, has announced.

Admission forms are available from counselors at the Education Center, all branch centers, and the Fort Benning Center office.

All fees must be paid during registration, March 8-12. Courses offered through the center are $90 per five quarter hour course.

Eligible military personnel may use veterans educational benefits or receive tuition assistance. VA 21E-1990A and DA 2171 forms are available from education counselors.

The college began on-post operation summer quarter, 1970, and is offering 25 fully accredited college courses during the spring. Courses offered include business law, corporation finance, accounting, communications, education seminars, and introductory studies in several fields.

Voice of VOLAR

CHANGES MADE

● Enlightened leadership instruction for permanent party personnel E5 and above has begun. The class emphasizes less authoritarian techniques of troop leading.

● Saluting requirements have been clarified. Soldiers are reminded that the military salute is a form of greeting and an expression of camaraderie.

● A radio version of "Voice of VOLAR" featuring VOLAR news and the latest in Top 40 sounds, can be heard every other Saturday night 6-7 o'clock on WDAK.

PROPOSALS

● Furniture will be paced in barracks that have been partitioned and in separate rooms. Some of the furniture already has been installed.

South Carolina to hold congressional election

A special general election to fill the seat left vacant by the death of U. S. Rep. L. Mendel Rivers will be held in the first congressional district of South Carolina on April 27.

Members of the Armed Forces who are legal residents of the first congressional district in South Carolina may register and vote in this election by absentee ballot if they meet the election requirements of South Carolina.

Registration in South Carolina must be accomplished at least 30 days before an election.

Registration for the 1970 general election does not satisfy the requirements for the April 27 election.

Unless eligible voters are permanently registered, they must re-register in each calender year they wish to vote.

Permanent registration must be done in person and is valid for 10 years.

Capping services with candle snuffers at the Main Post Protestant Chapel are Kelley Griswold (L), son of Col. George M. Griswold, and Jim Morris, son of Col. James M. Morris. The two Boy Scouts were rehearsing their roles as members of some of the 12 post Cub Scout packs and Boy Scout troops who will assist in services Sunday at nine chapels in observance of the 61st anniversary of the Boy Scouts of America. The scouts, under the direction of Chap. (Capt.) Clarence M. Brooks, USAIC Chaplain's Section, will attend in uniform and will be accompanied by their scout masters in the services at Protestant and Catholic chapels on post.

Check cashing easier at PXs

Name, rank and social security number — that is the only information that active military personnel now will have to provide to cash a check at the Fort Benning exchanges.

The new policy is another development in the Modern Volunteer Army plan to increase service attractiveness by reducing minor irritant to personnel.

Duty free shipment allowed

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The personal and household effects of members of the armed forces and their families returning from extended duty assignments overseas may be admitted free of duty if they are shipped at the end of the overseas assignment.

The Bureau of Customs reports a serviceman qualifies for the duty exemption when his permanent change of station orders are dated prior to the shipment of the articles and the articles have been in the possession of a serviceman overseas before he leaves for the United States.

If effects are sent home before permanent chaoge of station orders are issued, or if articles are purchased overseas and are not delivered to the purchaser abroad, but are sent to his address in the United States, the special exemption does not apply.

The Bureau of Customs considers military personnel to be returning from extended assignments if:

—They are returning from an assignment with at least 140 days of continuous duration, or 120 days, in the case of naval personnel aboard ships which have deployed outside the country.

—They are returning to the United States, under permanent change of station orders, thus terminating an extended tour of duty abroad, regardless of the actual duration of the duty.

—They are ordered by the government from duty at one post abroad to duty at another foreign post, causing the return of their personal and household effects to the United States.

—They are evacuated to the United States under U.S Government orders or instructions.

The Bureau of Customs has a pamphlet, "Customs Highlights for Government Personnel," which outlines Customs guidelines. It is available from: U.S. Customs, P.O. Box 7118, Washington, D.C. 20044.

Local station features VOLAR radio program

A twice monthly radio program designed to help spread the word about the Modern Volunteer Army (VOLAR) project has begun over WDAK Radio (540 mc) in Columbus.

The program, aired every other Saturday between 6 and 7 p.m. is produced by 1st Lt. Jim Hickey, chief of the Radio-TV Section, U.S. Army Infantry Center Information Office, and is sponsored by the National Bank of Fort Benning.

The next program is scheduled for Feb. 20.

"The purpose of the program is two-fold," said Hickey. "It seeks to entertain through playing contemporary, popular music such as is heard everyday over WDAK. But, more importantly, its goal is to inform the public, and specifically, the soldier of the goals, actions and impact of Project VOLAR."

A feature of the program, dubbed "The Voice of VOLAR," is the recognition of individual soldiers' accomplishments such as promotions and awards. The name of any soldier in any unit on post who recently was promoted or received an award could conceivably be announced over the air.

"The Voice of VOLAR" also solicits comments and complaints about VOLAR. This can be done by writing to The Voice of VOLAR, Information Office, USAIC, Fort Benning, Ga. 31905.

Hickey said that an attempt will be made to reply to the comments during the program.

"The Voice of VOLAR" is scheduled to be aired between 6 and 7 p.m. on the following dates: Feb. 20; Mar. 6, 20; April 3, 17; May 1, 15, 29, and June 12, 26.

AUSA honors USO services

A framed certificate of commendation recognizing 30 years of service to the soldier and his community was presented Sunday to the Fifth Avenue USO in Columbus.

Willard Register, new chairman of the USO board of directors, accepted the certificate from Joe J. Flowers, president of the Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning Chapter, Association of the United States Army.

The award was presented at the USO during an observance of the organization's 30th anniversary.

STOP DON'T OVERPAY ON YOUR TAXES!

WITH MPS COMPUTER TAX SERVICE YOU WILL PAY THE LOWEST LEGAL AMOUNT OF TAX OR RECEIVE THE LARGEST REFUND.

This is your opportunity to have your own professional tax service using the most modern computer methods at a savings to you. YOU DON'T HAVE TO DO ANY FIGURING!

Once we have your facts and figures, then our computers take over. First, our tax experts check the forms for any errors. The form is then converted for electronic scanning and input into the computer (the same type used by the Internal Revenue Service).

The computer automatically selects the most economical way to calculate your tax. It performs the calculations and prints your completed return, perfectly, accurately. All you have to do is look over the completed return, sign wherever indicated (and enclose "Balance Due" check, if required). Then you mail your tax forms to the Internal Revenue Service.

But please don't wait to the last minute. Act now and MPS Computer Tax Service will be able to process your tax returns this fast, trouble-free way.

The Internal Revenue Service each year releases statistics which indicate that thousands of people like yourself overpay their taxes. Avoid overpaying and add accuracy with tax forms prepared by MPS Computer Tax Service.

ALL THIS FOR AS LITTLE AS $10.00

It takes you just a few minutes to complete the MPS Computer Tax Service's "Tax Organizer" tax form. You don't have to do any figuring. Just the facts as only you know them. Get computer accuracy, speed and expert tax auditing.

NOTE: MPS Computer Tax Service is only available to all active duty military personnel, all retired military personnel, all civilians in government employ.

HERE'S ALL YOU DO
1. Complete coupon and mail.
2. You will receive our "Tax Organizer" tax form by return mail.
3. Complete "Tax Organizer" form and return to MPS Computer Tax Service together with your check for the cost of computing your tax.
4. We will complete your income tax and check the figures for accuracy.
5. The completed tax forms are returned to you.
6. Just look them over, sign them...
7. Then mail to the Internal Revenue Service as per instructions supplied.

"Show Boat," an Oscar Hammerstein II - Jerome Kern musical based on a novel of the same name by Edna Ferber, opened last night at the Springer Opera House. The doors of "Show Boat" will be open through Saturday, Feb. 27. Evening performances are scheduled for 8:30 p.m. with special Sunday family matinees at 2:30 p.m. this Sunday and Feb. 21. The Springer will not be open on Monday nights.

The musical is generally acknowledged to be one of America's finest masterpieces. The Springer production stars Kathleen Devine as Magnolia, a shy belle, and Thomsa Williams as Gaylord Ravenal, a devestating gambler. Incidentally, Kathleen Devine is a former Miss Columbus and is in Columbus specifically to star in "Show Boat."

Several people in or associated with the Army at Fort Benning have various parts in the musical. They are Mrs. Karen Woodruff, the stage manager; Mr. Robert Haig, a gentleman on the levee; Mrs. Toni Walsh, a dancer; Mrs. Tricia Howington, singer; a mother-son team, Mrs. Betty Mabry and Cecile Mabry, Jr. age 14, and Sp4 Joel Nitz, a singer in the musical who is also with the Infantry Chorus.

Romance, scandal, a gambler and a bashful Southern belle mixed with a variety of "Old-favorite-type" songs results in a lightsomely evening.

REMEMBER 1580!

Today marks the beginning of a glorious 3-day weekend and, due to VOLAR, formal orders for weekend leave are no longer required. Therefore, I assume many of you will be flying to visit family or friends in different parts of the country. Before you rush out to the airport or down to JAMTO to purchase a ticket on "military stand-by" or "military reservation" please remember one thing (besides the money) — You need a Form DD 1580. The Form DD 1580 is a requisite for military personnel desiring to avail themselves of reduced air fares for travel. If you don't have the DD 1580 in your possession the airline personnel have no alternative but to collect the "full" fare from you. Don't ruin your weekend before it ever starts — remember Form DD 1580.

KIDDIES VALENTINE DANCE

A special from the Top 5 Supper Club is a Valentines Day dance for children on Sunday, Feb. 14. The show begins at 1 p.m. and will feature four different bands alternating every two hours to provide the children with constant entertainment.

Kids from one to their teens are invited to enjoy the antics of the bands plus good hot pizzas, burgers and hot dogs from the mobile burger stand.

AND MORE DANCING

Fort Benning personnel interested in participating in and organizing a square dance class are requested to call the office of the Post Service Club Director at 545-1719 or 545-1270.

YMCA

The Armed Services YMCA of Columbus is holding a formal dance under the theme of "Age of Aquarius," to honor the 1971 Girl of the Year tomorrow night. The recognition ceremony will take place at 9 p.m.

The Girl of the Year Court will be composed of the seven Girls Service Organization members who earned the highest number of points during the preceding year. The Queen has been chosen from among the seven nominees by vote of the GSO membership, and her name will be announced at the dance.

Col. Robert P. Hatcher, assistant commanding officer, Hq USAIC, here, will crown the Queen. The public is invited to attend.

The YMCA is located on 14 West 11th St. They offer a wide range of activities and a FREE home cooked meal every Sunday at 5:30 p.m.

Their "Moviemania" schedule for February is "Sports," Feb. 14, "Kenner," Feb. 21 and "Travel Travel" on Feb. 28.

The YMCA keeps the soldier in mind at all times and tries to please individual tastes — have you ever been there?

Icy holiday

This lovely ice skater and her 'hound-dog' are only one of the numerous acts which will be presented at the silver anniversary edition of "Holiday on Ice," which plays at the Municipal Auditorium in Columbus Feb. 23-27. Fort Benning soldiers and their dependents are being offered a special $1 discount on tickets purchased for the Feb. 24 and 25 performances. The tickets run $3, $3.50 and $4, however the $1 discount will apply only to the $3.50 and $4 tickets. Tickets may be obtained at the Special Services Office, Building 394. Deadline for the tickets is noon on Feb. 24. Performances will be at 7:20 p.m. Feb. 23-25, at 8 p.m. Feb. 26 and 27 with a 2:30 p.m. matinee on Feb. 27.

Tickets for post play free to anyone over 18

Free tickets are available for the Fort Benning Dramatizers' production of "Blues for Mister Charlie," a drama by novelist James Baldwin, to be performed at 8 p.m. Feb. 19, 20 and 22-25 at the Fort Benning Playhouse, Bldg. 1237.

Under the Army's Special Services program tickets are free to both civilians and serviceman and may be reserved by phoning the playhouse at 545-2316. No one under 18 will be admitted to the performances.

Baldwin's play tells of the murder of a black youth by a white store owner and the incidents which led up to it.

The New York Times said that in his play "Baldwin speaks fervidly for the Negro's anguish and passion. . .and brings eloquence and conviction to one of the most momentous themes of our era."

Synopsis

MIDNIGHT COWBOY (Rated R).

An unusual and controversial drama of a youthful drifter from Texas who comes to New York to make his fortune as a male prostitute.

Dustin Hoffman plays the part of a crippled two-bit chiseler who exploits and then befriends the Texan (Jon Voight).

THE TRAVELING EXECUTIONER (Rated R).

This is the story of a wandering con-man who travels from prison to prison with his portable electric chair.

Based on an actual incident of history, the action occurs mainly in an infamous Southern prison.

Stacy Keach portrays the "Traveling Executioner" who glibly plies his trade until he meets his downfall in the person of a beautiful convicted murderess (Mariana Hill) and his young apprentice (Bud Cort).

While not exactly moralizing, the film jabs a sardonic finger at the tradition of capital punishment.

TROC (Rated GP).

Joan Crawford portrays a noted anthropologist who is convinced she has found the missing link between man and the apes when she locates a living troglodyte, who remained frozen in a cave from a former ice age.

She and her associates invite disaster when they release the monstrous-looking creature from a scientific laboratory into a society of horrified and frightened citizens.

THE PURSUIT OF HAPPINESS (Rated GP).

Wry humor is the keynote of this movie as Michael Sarrazin and Barbara Hershey portray a young couple too aware to fit in present-day American society and too concerned to drop out.

Ruth White and Arthur Hill co-star:

David Susskind produced and the film was shot on location in New York City.

LET IT BE (Rated G) The Beatles, the world's most successful pop group, are presented in intimate views at work; rehearsing, rapping, recording, philosophizing and relaxing.

Highlight of the picture is a recording session on the roof of the Apple Building.

Part of our heritage

Two Edward A. White School students view a school display which is part of its observance of Negro History Week this week. The exhibit, which is open to the public during school hours, was coordinated by Mrs. Myrtle Wooten, school librarian. The display has a fine arts section and a section on George Washington Carver, the scientist.

TSB members get re-up awards

Col. Frank L. Garrison, commander of The School Brigade, presented re-enlistment awards to members of his command in ceremonies recently.

Awards were presented to Lt. Col. John L. Jones of the 2nd Student Bn., Lt. Col. Raymond J. McClean of the 4th Student Bn., Lt. Col. Donald E. Bliss of the 5th Student Bn., and Lt. Col. Robert B. Kenyon of the 8th Student Bn.

Individual companies receiving awards for exceeding second quarter re-enlistment quotas were the 10th, 13th, 14th, 15th, and 17th. In addition the 3rd Ranger Co. and the 40th Casual Co. were also presented certificates of achievement.

Exceeding its goal for the second quarter by 134 per cent, TSB returned in a total of 160 re-enlistments.

After the presentation of unit certificates, Col. Garrison presented the USAIC Re-enlistment Trophy to SFC Morris W. Dillard, SSgt. Robert Powell and SSgt. E. B. Davidson, TSB career counselors.

In his closing remarks Col. Garrison emphasized that the goal for the third quarter has been raised 2 per cent per month of assigned soldier strength. It is estimated the quarterly total will reach approximately 150.

Col. Garrison concluded by announcing that 32 soldiers re-enlisted in January and that 11 more were scheduled before the end of the month, for an expected total of 43.

Menser honored at graduate

2nd Lt. Michael W. Menser was named the distinguished honor graduate of Officer Candidate Class 2-71 in ceremonies Jan. 15 in Marshall Auditorium.

Menser received a letter of commendation from Brig. Gen. John T. Carley, assistant commandant of the Infantry School, an engraved "Follow Me" plaque, an engraved "Follow Me" statuette and an engraved Association of the United States Army plaque.

Menser accepted his commission in the Infantry. He currently is assigned as a tactical officer with the 51st Co., 5th Stu. Bn., TSB.

Green business

PX system vigilant for dangerous items

DALLAS, Tex. (ANF) — The Quality Control Division of the Army and Air Force Exchange Service (AAFES) is operating a new consumer protection program that alerts field exchanges to products and services which pose actual or potential hazards to customers.

In addition to reporting hazardous or potentially hazardous products to the field, the program functions as a means by which the field can alert AAFES headquarters to possible dangers discovered at local exchange level.

Under the alerting system, warning messages can be teletyped throughout the world in a matter of hours after AAFES receives and verifies a hazardous item report.

Where hazardous products or services are found in the field, the first action is to stop sale of the item in question.

"This AAFES program does not exist to point an accusing finger at any manufacturer," said Lt. Col. Robert E. Lees, director of quality control. "Rather it is to protect AAFES customers from a product or service that jeopardizes them."

AAFES also sees the consumer protection program as one which benefits the manufacturer because no false charges are leveled, and the Quality Control Division is able to make a full evaluation of the problem before taking any action.

Since early December when the program first became operational, AAFES has alerted field operations about more than 40 items.

197th cagers down three foes; boost record to 17-1

By Bob Wise

The 197th cagers downed three opponents on the key-hole court in games held last week.

The School Brigade (TSB) fell to the 197th drive Feb. 1, 107-83. Feb. 2, the 197th downed the 931st engineer Group cagers in a 101-79 rout, and the following night MEDDAC succumbed to the Infantrymen's onslaught, 91-82.

The 197th roared to a 58-40 halftime lead and held on to whip TSB, 107-98, in a post basketball game, Feb. 1, at Briant Wells Field House.

The 197th out-scored, out-ball-handled, out-rebounded and generally out-played TSB in bringing its regular season record to 16-1, and 5-0 for the season's second half.

The 197th broke the game wide open in the first two minutes of the game. TSB could only come to within ten points of the 197th during the rest of the game.

Part of TSB's failure to make a better showing may have been attributed to its slow start. TSB did not make its first field goal until three minutes of the game had been played.

The next TSB field goal did not come until four minutes later when Don Townsend hit. But, it was too late as the 197th had already romped to a 19-3 lead before Townsend's shot.

Townsend connected again a minute later, but the 197th still had a 16-point lead.

TSB mounted several threatening drives in the second half. At the 12.50 mark and the 10:45 mark, TSB closed to within ten points of the Infantrymen, but never any closer.

TSB's Norm Springer and Dixon Goodwin were benched with five fouls each around the eight-minute mark.

Two 197th cagers also fouled out in the late minutes of the game. Slim Ingram was disqualified at the 6:22 mark and Roosevelt Stidom fouled out with 34 seconds remaining.

John Black of the 197th led all scorers with 32 points. Teammate Will Brockington had 23.

The post's leading scorer, TSB's Townsend, finished at 26, two points below his average. Four other TSB players finished in double figures: Don Wood had 16; Springer and Robert Washington each ended with 14 points; and Tom Miller had 12 points.

Also scoring high for the 197th was Maruice Travers with 19, Ingram with 18, and Stidom with 13 points.

The 197th overcame a 20-point deficit in the second half, Feb. 4, to defeat the Medical Department Activities (MEDDAC) team, 91-82, in a USAIC League basketball game at the Kelley Hill Field House.

It appeared that MEDDAC would hand the 197th its first loss since Nov. 30, but a drive sparked by Slim Ingram and Will Brockington mid-way through the second half, put the 197th ahead to stay with six minues left in the game.

A 22-per cent shooting average in the first half was the factor most responsible for the 197th's poor showing. MEDDAC romped to a ten-point lead in the first six minutes of the game and increased it to lead at half-time, 41-23.

MEDDAC kept a sizeable cushion in the second half. At the fifteen-minute mark the medics had a 20-point lead.

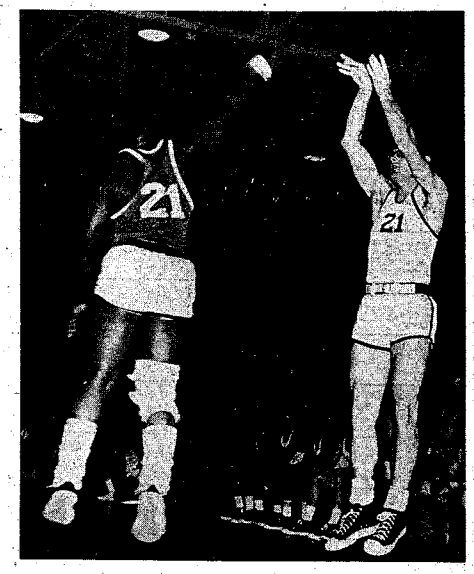
Halfway through the second half, the 197th had cut the MEDDAC lead to 14. Pete Ogle and Brockington scored within the next minute leaving the 197th only nine points in the red. Ingram added four more points a minute later, as the 197th further closed the gap.

In a 30-second period following the eight-minute mark, Brockington pumped in four points and Ingram put in two as the 197th tied the game at 67. The two teams exchanged baskets during the next minute.

With six minutes remaining, Brockington layed up making the score 71-69. MEDDAC never again saw the lead. The 197th gradually increased the margin to ten points with a minute-and-a-half left finally winning, 91-82

MEDDAC was led by big Jim Shurdivant with 25 points. Don Scales finished with 16 points. Lee Trexler and Dwight Littlefield ended up with 11 points each for the medics.

Ingram of the 197th was the highest scorer with 29 points; 22 of his points came in the second half. John Black scored 18 second-half points for a total of 27. The Infantry Brigade's season-leading scorer, Brockington, had only one point in the first half. He came back in the second half to finish with 18 points.



In a game played the night before, the 197th spotted the 931st Engr. Grp. five points in the first minute of play and went on to win 101-79 at Briant Wells Field House.

John Black and Will Brockington combined for 54 points and Slim Ingram and Maurice Travers added 25 more as the 197th took its 16th straight regular season victory.

Bill Mavredes, Gene Miller, and Tony Protho scored 24, 18 and 12 points, respectively.

The 197th committed eight turnovers more than did the 931st, but held a respectable 57-40 rebounding edge over the Engineers.

The game was much closer than the final score indicated. In the first half, the 931st stayed to within three to five points, finally settling for an eight-point halftime deficit.

Heugatter outguns competition; wins tourney

MSgt Emil Heugatter, All-Army Pistol Champion, outgunned all competitors to win the National Indoor Sectional Pistol Tournament held at Fort Benning, Jan. 22-24 with an 888-39X.

In the down-to-the-wire finish, Heugatter narrowly nosed out MSgt. Robert Whitacre, a stable-mate and fellow shooter from the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit, USAMTU, who posted an 885-31X.

Sponsored by the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club, the three-day tourney had 58 competitors from many of the Southeastern states representing the US Army Reserve, US Air Force, 3rd Army Marksmanship Training Unit, a civilian shooting club and USAMTU.

Striking early in the eight-match tournament, Heugatter won the initial event, a slow fire match with 194. He repeated his winning way in the fourth match, a 30 shot, three-stage course with a 297-14 mark. The second and third matches, timed fire and rapid fire events, were won by Whitacre and SSgt. Jimmy McGauley with a 200-17 and 199-14 respectively.

The number five match was an aggregate or "paper" match of the first four events and gave Heugatter his win with 885-39. Placing first in the civilian division was MSgt. (Ret.) Ralph O. Thompson of West Point, Ga., with an 882-31. Thompson, holder of National Center Fire and 22 Caliber International records, is a former member of USAMTU.

In the timed fire match which Whitacre won with his 200-17, he was a narrow vietor over Thompson who tallied up a 200-15X. Rasquale Melaragno of the US Army Reserve came in third with 200-14. For Whitacre, this equaled his previous National record of 200-17 and he remains the co-holder of the National Open title and sole owner of the Service title.

Melaragno's 200-14 gives him a new National Reserve title, beating out the old record by 1X.

The sixth match was a Sectional Team Championship team match of the three previous stage courses and was won by the US Army "Blue" team from USAMTU with a score of 1163-36. The team members were Heugatter, SFC Hezekiah Clark, SSgt. John Smith and SFC Samuel Hunter.

The seventh and eighth matches were National Individual Championships and National Team Championships. From this sectional, Heugatter and the US Army "Blue" team will be contenders for the National Championships to be announced in May, when all Sectional results have been reported to the National Rifle Association.

Co. C sweeps Hq. Cmd. tourney

Co. C, Hq. Cmd., recently clinched their brigade championship with a convincing 72-53 win over Co. D.

Using a devastating fast break, Co. C literally rapped up the title in the first half. The score at that time was 40-20. During the first few minutes of the game, the score see-sawed back and forth before forward George Thompsen started the onslaught with three consecutive steals.

It was here that Co. C started a scoring rampage that saw 14 of their points unanswered. Leading scorers for Co. C were Ron Brow with 23, Jack Melcher with 21, George Robinson with 14 and George Thompson with 11.

Co. D was led by frequent shooter John Martin with 24 and Robert Blose with 14. Although Co. D played a fine defensive game, the board work of Melcher, Robinson, and Thompson was too much to overcome in addition to the precision passing of Brow and Padron.

However the victory was a costly one for Co. C, as top reserve forward James May was injured during warm-up practice with a tendon pull in the right ankle. Despite this setback, Co. C enters the Post tournament with a highly talented bench.

ROD AND GUN CLUB

By Bill Kideb

The white bass are hitting lures in the Chattahoochee River. It's early but fishermen are catching them on all parts of the river. They are even being caught at the foot of Walker Street in South Columbus.

Most of the catches run about a half pound but some go as high as two-and-a-half pounds. No matter what the size, they put up a good fight. Best results have been reported from a white spotted shyster lure with a silver spinner and white feathered tail. The best method is to fish from a bend in the river where the water is calm. Throw the lure out onto the current and give it time to sink near the bottom. Retrieve the lure toward the quiet water. Invariably the fish will strike just as the lure leaves the current and enters the quiet water.

I wouldn't eat a fish that has been swimming around and eating in the water of the Chattahoochee below Columbus but it's still good sport on light tackle if you return them to the water. Be sure your hands are wet before handling a fish you intend to return to the stream.

Crappie are ready to Bed

The crappie are getting ready to bed also. Last weekend some good catches were reported from Oswitchee and Uchee Creeks near the points where they flow into the Chattahoochee River. Most of them had scraped tails from scraping sand to form nests on the bottom, and the females were usually full of roe. This should be a good weekend, if the weather doesn't get too bad. The fish probably had to start from scratch in their building programs. The gully-washer rains last weekend must have washed all previous work into the river.

The good crappie fishing should last for about another month, and by that time the bass and bream should be about ready to start spawning. So it looks as though it's about time for the fair weather fishermen to leave the armchairs and television sets and wet a few lines.

Lower Membership Rates

The Rod and Gun Club is offering some bargains to new personnel on the post. A membership from now until the current membership year expires in March is going for $2, a dependent membership is 50 cents and limited memberships are $4. You can sign up at the Rod and Gun Club located on First Divison Road about a quarter mile south of Highway 27.

Boats are Ready

All of the club boats have received their annual maintenance and are in top shape for the coming season. The boats have been located at most of the ponds on the reservation. The counter attendant at the club can give the locations. He's also ready to sell minnows, worms and other bait, or make arrangements for the rental of electric motors for those who want to take it easy.

Fishing Derby

The fish were really biting in the post ponds last weekend. Quite a few good bass and bream catches were brought to the Rod and Gun Club. Col. (ret.) Charles R. King, 2763 Dalewood Drive, registered the largest bass. His catch came from Harps Pond. He was using a black flip tailed worm.

The largest bream was registered by SSgt. Eugene Jones Jr., 255 Logan Ave. He took his fish from Kings Pond with a pink worm. It weighed in at one-pound, one-ounce.

There were no catfish registered but one disappointed angler brought in a ten-pounder to be weighed. He caught it at Twilight Pond but hadn't bothered to register at the club before going out. Don't let it happen to you.

The rules are simple for the Rod and Gun Club monthly fishing contest. You have to be a member of the club, register at the club before going fishing, take the fish from one of the ponds on the reservation and register the catch at the club after fishing.

Each month the club gives prizes for the fishermen registering the largest catfish, bream and bass. Winners of the contest this month will be permitted to seect $15 in merchandise from the club's counters.

3rd Army teams slate basketball tourney here

By Bill Kloeb
The Fort Benning Briant Wells Field House and Youth Activities Gymnasium have been selected as the sites for the 1971 Basketball Championships.

3rd United States Army Posts throughout the Third Army Area will enter teams in the tournament which will determine an "A" Division, "B" Division and Women's Division champion.

"A" Division and "B" Division games will be played in Briant Wells Field House. The Women's division games will be played in the Youth Activities Gymnasium.

Fort Benning, Fort Bragg, Fort Campbell, Fort Jackson and Fort Rucker will enter teams in the "A" Division. Teams from Fort McClellan, Fort McPherson, Fort Stewart, Redstone Arsenal, the Atlanta Army Depot and Homestead Army Air Base will play in the "B" Division. Fort Benning, Fort McPherson, Fort McClellan, Fort Gordon, Fort Jackson and Fort Rucker will field women's teams.

Military referees may be used to judge games

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Military basketball officials who have dreamed of officiating at the Olympics, Pan American Games and world championships may have a chance to realize that dream.

The first step is to pass the examination on international rules, which differ considerably from American rules, and secure a Federation International Basketball Amateur (FIBA) card.

For military personnel who think that they are qualified here is the procedure to follow:

— Write for an application and the name and address of the nearest approved procfor. This can be secured from: Mr. Stewart C. Paxton, Executive Director, International Association of Approved Basketball Officials (IAABO), P. O. Box 468, Hagerstown, Maryland 21740.

— Complete the application and return it to Mr. Paxton, along with your $7.50 check or money order and three photos size 1¾" x 1 3-16".

— Take the examination, under supervision of an approved proctor.

It was nice that Bart Starr dropped by the 197th Infantry Brigade last week for a huddle with the troops. And appropriate, too.

The Green Bay quarterback is a solid athlete, a winner. He has been one of the brightest fixtures in the Packer constellation of talent. Except for that sad era after the abdication of Vince I, when the titans of the North soured the ascension of defensive coach Phil Bengston by petering pitifully in offensive punch, Starr's standout status and needle-precise passing has been above reproach.

Dribbling Circles

It was fitting, from a sports viewpoint, that Starr's sojourn took him to the 197th. As he addressed a throng, 1,000 strong, in Kelly Hill Field House, his words echoed throughout an arena which, for the past weeks, has been the lair of a team as successful as the Pack of yore.

The sport is different. It is basketball. But the convincing performance of the 197th's representative in the Infantry Center cage championships should be enough to satisfy even the most demanding of Naismithians, to appease even a Red Aurbach. In amassing, to date, an impressive 14-1 record over two halves of a split-season, they have dominated court play — and all but dribbled circles around their unfortunate opponents.

With the first half already pocketed and — with a 5-0 record in Round II — they should wrap up all-post honors without even the formality of a playoff. Baring the biggest turnaround since pilot Corrigan mistook Irish clover for California oranges, they are certain to become the destiny's child of Benning's B-ball world.

But, on paper, fat margins can be misleading. For the 197th attained their first half flag only after a considerable tussle against TSB. Nevertheless, they won. And they did because they are what I like to call a "money team."

One for the Money

What's a money team? Here's my formula:

Axiom 1: A money team is one that does not collapse like a card castle upon the first wind of defeat; one that is not so wrought with an "if" complex that it spends the season looking over its shoulder, "replaying" lost heartbreakers.

The 197th wasn't always; 14-1. They were once 0-1. They lost their first game to TSB, 83-82. By all yardsticks, it was a tear-jerker. TSB won it with a field goal with four seconds to play, after the Infantrymen had led almost the entire game. Worse yet, 197th's Will Brockington sank — at the final moment — what would have been a desperation, game-winning shot, but the refs disallowed it. He failed, they said, to beat the buzzer. This kind of soul-gnawing loss in an opener might have shattered a less determined team. But the Infantrymen recouped quickly by storming back to league play, bombing MEDDAC, 94-54; Center Aviation Command, 104-81; Headquarters Command, 101-74; and so on to 16-1.

Axiom 2: A money team must beat whom they have to when they have to. Cleaning up the cellar-dwellers is fine, but this will never net a championship by itself unless a team can conquer their strongest rivals as well. The 197th lost to TSB once. It was the last time. In their next encounter, the Infantrymen knocked their School antagonists from their undefeated perch with a 109-90 drubbing, and the two teams lauded smack in a 9-1 tie as the initial half ended. In the ensuing playoff, the 197th mercilessly chewed TSB's offense and defense, roared to a 30-point bulge at one point and coasted to a 94-81 finale. TSB never recovered. In the season's second half, they faced the Infantryman twice — and twice lost.

Axiom 3: A money team has balance. No fewer than six members of the Infantryman squad have — in at least one game — led the team in scoring. They are Brockington, Maurice Travers, Don Campbell, Pete Ogle, Slim Ingram and John Black. In comparison, TSB's spectacular Don Townsend (or, more appropriately Townsend's TSB) may be the best in the league. He sports a 28-point-a-game average. In three of the four contest against the 197th, he contributed 30 points plus. In the first half playoff, he dunked in 37 — for almost 50 per cent of his team's total scoring effort.

That's [illegible] John Donne [illegible] no man is an island. Nor is a ballclub — as TSB has agonizingly learned.

197th splits two exhibition games

By Bob Wise

The 197th Infantry Brigade basketball team took a short vacation from its regular season schedule last week to play two exhibition games.

The brigade lost its first exhibition game to the Columbus College Junior Varsity, 77-64, but came back two nights later to drop the Columbus Police Department, 104-83.

The loss to the Columbus College Cougars was the first since Nov. 30 and brought the total record of the 197th to 17-2. The regular season record of the Infantry Brigade remained at 14-1. Neither exhibition game will count in the post standings.

Columbus College grabbed a 5-2 lead after three minutes of play, but a long jumper by Will Brockington and a Don Campbell, lay-up put the 197th ahead, 6-5. Four-and-a-half minutes into the game, the 197th had acquired a 10-5 lead.

For the next 10 minutes of the first half, the 197th kept at least a nine-point lead over the Columbus team, and at one point, was enjoying an 11-point lead.

At the 5:20 mark, Columbus College began to close the gap, and by the half-time, the Cougars were only four points behind.

The first half had been cleanly played. Each team committed only three fouls and Columbus College did not commit its first personal foul until about eight minutes remained.

The second half was a completely different story. Each team committed countless fouls. The 197th played its reserves until four minutes remained in the game.

Two minutes into the second half, the Cougars tied the score at 41. For the next four minutes the lead exchanged hands five times with Columbus College finally taking a four-point lead at 13:50 on two Ricky Ward field goals.

Within two minutes, the 197th had again tied the Cougars at 50. The 197th never again took the lead, however, but tied the Columbus cagers at 54 and 57. At the 5:25 mark, two Columbus College field goals gave the Cougars a four-point cushion.

From that point on, the Cougars went into delay tactics to put the game on ice. Most of the scoring after the five minute mark was made from the foul line as a ball-hawking 197th committed foul after foul in an attempt to get the ball.

But the 197th ball-hawking nearly turned the game around for the Infantry Brigade in the final minutes. Brockington scored at the two-minute mark and Dave Brown followed with a field goal and a free throw 20 seconds later, cutting the Columbus College lead to two.

The 197th, trailing 64-66, called a time-out at 1:27. The Infantry Brigade had possession of the ball and was behind by only two points. Brockington put up a 15-foot jump shot and missed. Columbus College rebounded and Reed Gash scored on the fast break and was fouled by Brockington. He hit his foul shot making the score 69-64.

The Cougars played catch in the final minute. With seven seconds remaining, the 197th fouled a Cougar cager, who converted for two free throws and a final score of 71-64.

Gash was the game's high scorer with 19 points. Slim Ingram of the 197th was second with 14 points ... 12 of his points coming in the first half. Brockington of the 197th, Bertoel Blount and Ward of Columbus College, all finished with ten points each.

The 197th faced what may have been the best team it has played all season when the Columbus Police Department cagers invaded Kelley Hill Friday night.

The Police Department led nearly half of the game. Realizing the challenge, the 197th spent the second half of the game making an all-out effort to catch up with and overtake the patrolmen.

The policemen jumped off to a five-point lead early in the first half, but two jump shots by Maurice Travers and a tip-in by Ingram put the 197th ahead, 18-14, by the 12:27 mark.

For the next eight minutes, the 197th managed to keep a four- to six-point lead. At the 4:28 mark, Travers committed his fourth personal foul and two free throws by patrolman John Brooks tied the game at 32.

The lead changed hands six times before the Police Department pulled ahead to lead 46-43 at half-time.

The patrolmen increased their lead to eight points early in the second half, but two straight lay-ups by Brockington put the Infantry Brigade back in the lead at the 13:40 mark.

Both teams began to exchange baskets ... one taking the lead, then the other. An exhibition of "nip-and-tuck" scoring went on for the next two minutes until two consecutive fast-break lay-ups by Brockington and one by Ingram gave the 197th the lead, 67-62.

The Columbus Police Department never again regained the lead. The 197th continued to pull farther and farther away until it had a 10-point lead with less than seven minutes remaining.

The Infantrymen kept pouring in points. Six of the last eight points which the 197th made in the last minute of the game were dropped in by Ingram.

Ingram finished the contest as the high scorer, putting in 27 points. He was followed on the 197th squad by John Black with 25 points. Brockington ended up with 17 points. Trayers and Roosevelt Sildom had 12 and 11 points, respectively.

The Columbus Police Department had three of its players in double scoring figures. Bill Crawford was their highest man with 24 points, Brooks was close behind with 22 points, and Jay Hazen finished with 12 points.

Some clinics to be closed this Monday

Some sections of the Martin Army Hospital Annex will be closed Monday in observance of the Washington's Birthday holiday.

Those sections that will be closed are Outpatient Clinic, Immunization Clinic, Physical Examination Section, Pharmacy Annex, Satellite and Serology Laboratory, Central Appointment Desk, Dermatology Clinic, Pediatric Clinic, Optometry Clinic, Mental Hygiene Clinic, Well Baby Clinic, and Allergy Clinic.

Troop Medical Clinic 9 will be open Monday; all other troop medical clinics will be closed.

Emergencies will be seen at the emergency room, Martin Army Hospital.

Teenagers can be earners, exemptions at same time

(EDITOR'S NOTE:) This is the third in a series on ways you can save on your Federal income tax return this year. The articles are written by Henry Block, president of H R Block, Inc., America's largest tax service.)

Studies show that the average American teenager earns from $400 to $900 annually and spends almost every cent of it to create a billion dollar market in everything from hot rods to high fashion.

You might think that this teenage earning and spending power would cause a problem for Mom and Dad when they are preparing their federal income tax forms, but in most cases it is not a serious problem at all.

Teenagers can earn as much as possible in their jobs and their parents can still claim each as a $625 exemption in 1970, as long as they provided more than half of their offspring's support.

Suppose your 16-year-old daughter worked all summer at a local department store and earned $850, which promptly went for swim suits, fancy hairdos, and mini-skirts. However, you, as her parent, provided all the essentials and extras amounting to far more than half of her support.

CAN RECEIVE REFUND

Your daughter can still be a $625 exemption on your tax return and also get a refund on the tax withheld from her pay checks by her employer by claiming her own personal exemption along with the new low-income allowance. Since her taxable income was less than $1,700, she is not required to file a return, but she was probably unaware of the new form W-4-E which can be filed with an employer telling him not to withhold Federal taxes since she had no tax liability last year and is anticipating none this year; therefore, she must file a tax return in order to get her money back.

PARENT AS EMPLOYER

But what if you, as her parent, owned the department store which paid your daughter the $850 she earned? On your business tax returns you can deduct "reasonable" wages paid to your child working for you. And this offspring will still be a $625 exemption on your personal income tax return.

SAVING ON YOUR CHILD'S EDUCATION

There is a little-known way you can make savings account pay for a good part of your child's education. Simply make gifts of money to your child and place the money in a savings account in his name, or with you named as "custodian." If your annual gift per child is less than $3,000 ($6,000 if your wife joins in making the gift) then you need not file a Federal gift tax return. The interest on the savings account should be left on deposit and the bank will automatically add it to the principal.

As long as the interest earned in 1970 does not exceed $1,700 (this amount will increase through 1973) and the child does not have other income which added to this interest will total $1,700, neither of you will have to pay income tax on it.

Income tax and you

And even if the interest and other income should exceed $1,700; your child's tax rate would no doubt be far less than yours. When your child withdraws his savings to go to college or for any other use, neither his nor your income tax will be affected.

If your child receives a $1,500 college scholarship, you would not have to consider this amount when figuring the per cent of support you give him. If you provided $1,000 which, together with the scholarship covered his expenses for the year, for tax purposes you have provided more than half of his support.

G. I. BILL IS DIFFERENT

But, if part of his college costs are paid by the government under the G.I. Bill, you cannot count these benefits as part of the support you are providing him. If the G.I. Bill benefits provided more than half his support for the year, you cannot claim him as an exemption on your return.

For example, if your son's benefits under the G. I. Bill totaled $1,000 and you contributed $800 to his support, you cannot claim him as an exemption.

If your daughter goes to a nursing school, the value of the room and board the school gives her has no effect on whether you provide half of her support for exemption purposes. The same would be true for the value of room, board and education provided a handicapped child by the state.

Once your child or foster child becomes 19 years old, or is not a full - time student for at least five months of the year, and earns $625 or more; you can no longer claim him as an exemption.

TEEN MARRIAGE

Suppose your child marries before reaching the age of 19. What happens to your exemption?

In some cases, newlyweds and parents can be of benefit to each other for tax purposes. For example, let's assume your 18-year-old daughter married on Sept. 10 of last year, and you provided at least half of her support for the major part of the year. Her husband, who is a college student, earned $1,200 during the summer. If she and her husband file a joint return, you would be prohibited from claiming her as a dependent for 1970, even though you did support her for most of the year. If your son-in-law filed a separate return, paying taxes at the single rate and claiming only his exemption, you could then claim your daughter as an exemption on your return.

The amount of tax the parents would save through such an arrangement could be considerably more than the tax due on their son - in - law's separate return. Therefore, the parents would be better off giving their son-in-law the money to make his separate return tax due payment so they can claim their daughter as an exemption on their return for that year.

USAMTU to shoot in warmer climate

Winter weather turns many a man's fancy to warmer climes and so it is with members of the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit, USAMTU, at Fort Benning. Today that fancy turns to reality as a Crack Marksmanship team boards an aircraft at Lawson Army Airfield and heads south for the warm days of a Panama winter.

The team, consisting of 22 shooter-instructors, will be enjoying the warmer weather no doubt, but have their work already cut out for them. They are flying south to conduct a clinic and serve as coaches at the 12th Pan American Invitational Military Rifle matches being held at Fort Amador, Panama Canal Zone. This has been an annual event for USAMTU since 1959.

The annual five-day match, sponsored by the US Army Forces Southern Command (USARSO), begins Feb. 15. It will feature more than one hundred crack-shot riflemen from 17 countries of North, South and Central America firing for team and individual honors.

Individual US Army Marksmanship team members will be working with specific national teams in the match as teams from Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Guatemala, Honduras, Jamaica, Mexico, Nicaragua, Panama, Paraguay, Trinidad-Tobago and Venezuela go to the firing lines.

Prior to the Inter-American match, the USAMTU team conducted a four-day clinic. During this period, marksmanship coaches checked the shooting equipment of individual firers, weighed trigger pull, briefed on range safety and outlined effects of weather, shooting techniques, and proper use of spotting scopes. At the completion of each day, each coach supervised organized care and cleaning of individual weapons.

During the clinic, coaches demonstrated pointers on approved positioning and body stances of shooters. The coaches supervised different rates of fire from the three competing positions at various ranges.

The coaching clinic presents classroom instructions and practical range safety, techniques in competitive shooting. The instruction develops coaching procedures which are used in teaching marksmanship within the individual countries. The efforts of the USAMTU's coaching staff has enabled competitors to raise the standards of marksmanship and maintenance of small arms in the Americas. Latin Americans can now boast some of the finest shooters in the world.

Learning the finer points of competitive firing is a long process, but the classes and individual instruction provided by members of the USAMTU are paying large dividends. The fact that Latin American sharpshooters are winning more of the trophies each year attest to the accomplishments of this training.

Results of the Pan American Invitational Military Rifle matches has done much more than improve the marksmanship of individual competitors and teams. It has been a source of Inter-American friendships, mutual understanding of each countries problems and a median of Good-Will Ambassadorship.

Gen. Talbott notes Negro History Week

On the occasion of Negro History Week, 7-14 February 1971, I wish to reemphasize the Army's policy and my own personal commitment to end racial discrimination and prejudice and make equal opportunity a reality and not just an ideal for all our military and civilian personnel.

Recently, the Secretary of the Army praised Fort Benning on its race relations efforts, particularly the Coordinating Group, Advisory Council, unit seminar program, and the development of race relations instruction for service schools and basic combat training throughout the service.

However, we should not confuse intentions with results and allow these official laurels to relax or deceive us. Each of us has the responsibility to insure that neither prejudice nor discrimination become a part of our military or civilian lives.

VOLAR provides funds for tuition assistance

Money provided under the Modern Volunteer Army (VOLAR) experiment has made it possible for 80 Fort Benning servicemen to take two college courses this semester. Without VOLAR funds, tuition assistance could have been provided for only one course per person.

Douglas J. Burrows, assistant director of education, said it is normal Education Center policy to provide assistance for persons wishing to take two courses a term. However, a cutback in money would have eliminated that policy during the current term.

Persons also may take two courses a term in the spring and summer terms.

The tuition assistance program provides 75 per cent of the cost of college courses a person takes while a member of the military.

FICA takes bigger bite

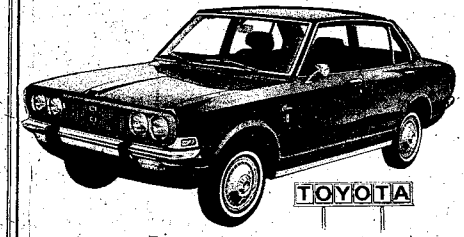
WASHINGTON (AFPS)—Along with a pay raise and increased commuted ration rates in January was a boost in the amount of money taken from servicemen's paychecks for Social Security.

Starting Jan. 1, the Federal Insurance Contributions Act (FICA) rate went to 5.2 per cent, with a maximum annual contribution set at $405.60.

The FICA increase amounts to $2.40 a month for those paying the maximum $7,800 payroll tax. For those earning $5,000 a year, the tax increase amounts to about $1.50.

The FICA tax includes contributions for Social Security and Medicare.

Military personnel became under Social Security coverage in January 1957. The tax is computed only on base pay.



Importers to need permit

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Any person engaged in manufacturing, importing or dealing in explosives will need a license from the Internal Revenue Service after Feb. 12.

The IRS also requires a Federal permit for any person who intends to obtain explosives from a licensee in a state other than his state of residence or from a foreign country. A permit is also necessary for anyone who intends to transport explosives interstate.

Licenses and permits may be obtained by filing with IRS district offices.

USMA offers chance for West Point future

CONARC is placing greater emphasis on procurring soldiers for the United States Military Academy Preparatory School.

The USMA Preparatory School, located at Ft. Belvoir, Va., provides an opportunity for highly motivated career oriented soldiers to gain admission to West Point.

The school year is approximately 10 months in duration — August through May prior to entering West Point in July. Candidates undergo rigorous academic and physical training to prepare them for the challenges they will face at the Military Academy and as commissioned officers.

To be eligible for consideration, an applicant must be a citizen of the U.S., be of high moral character, and be at least 17 and not more than 22 years old on July 1 of the year he plans to enter West Point. In addition, he must be unmarried and not previously married, a high school graduate and medically qualified.

Individuals desiring additional information on appointment procedures should refer to AR 351-12 and USAIC Reg 350-55, in addition to contacting their unit commanders for more detailed information.

College sees Benning team

A hand-to-hand combat team from Fort Benning presented a demonstration Wednesday at Fort Valley State College in Fort Valley, Ga. The group, headed by 1st Lt. Timothy L. Love of the Infantry School Leadership Department, included SSgt. Leroy A. Lopez, Raymond N. Pringle, Cary Austin, Donald L. Blaine, Robert E. Wilkins and Eddie Simmons.

Fire doesn't stop Pathfinder graduation

Today, one week after a fire destroyed Stryker Hall, home of the Pathfinder Committee of the Infantry School's Airborne Department, the committee is conducting graduation exercises for Class 6-71, right on schedule.

Some 43 students will receive their Pathfinder badges after remarks by guest speaker Col. John Geraci, director of the School's Ranger Department.

Honored at the ceremony will be Capt. Robert Wignall, of 2nd Ranger, Company, named as honor graduate in the officer-NCO category, and PFCs Anthony Wacker and John Maple, both of 43rd Co., 4th Stu. Bn., TSB, who have been named as honor graduate and runner-up respectively in the soldiers' category.

The Pathfinder Committee, led by Capt. Edward Chamberlain, showed "great spirit and determination in maintaining a normal training operation in the face of the loss of their equipment and office facilities," said Lt. Col. Ellis, deputy director of the Airborne Department.

"The committee continued to train students on noted committee operations officer Capt. Harold the day the fire occured," Maris.

Class 6-71 will graduate at 2 p.m. in Marshall Auditorium.

MI officers take Infantry training, too

Newly commissioned officers of the Military Intelligence branch are currently being assigned to the nine-week Infantry Officer Basic courses (IOBC) in order to learn basic officer skills and gain some feeling for the mission of the Infantry.

Capt. David Connor of the 1st Combat Intelligence committee of the Brigade and Battalion Operations Department, USAIS, pointed out that since military intelligence has no basic course of its own, it assigns its young officers to either Signal, Armor, or Infantry basic courses. Connor stressed that "since the mission of tactical intelligence officers is to provide necessary and timely information about the enemy in support of Infantry operations, the intelligence officer must be able to speak the Infantryman's language, to understand his needs and problems.

"The best way for intelligence personnel to familiarize themselves with these requirements is to learn basic infantry skills."

Upon completion of the IOBC course, Military Intelligence officers are generally assigned to either Ft. Holabird, Md., or Ft. Devens, Mass., for specific MOS training. Training facilities at Ft. Holabird are being closed down, however, and in the near future officers will be assigned to Ft. Huachuca, Ariz.

Many officers use their Infantry background when assigned to the tactical intelligence course at Ft. Holabird. These officers have responsibility for production of combat intelligence upon which commanders plan operations. Additional areas of support responsibility include aerial surveillance, signal intelligence, and ground security specialization — all of which support, directly or indirectly, the Infantry.

New construction part of MVA plan

New projects recently approved for development under the Fort Benning Modern Volunteer Army experiment include building construction and improvement of existing facilities and services.

One of the plans to convert a building near the Main Post Commissary and Post Exchange into a nursery to care for children of patrons while they are shopping calls for approval of the construction of a new building if a suitable building cannot be found for conversion.

New seats will be obtained for installation in Theater No. 2 which was renovated recently. Installation of the new seats will make this theater as modern as Theater No. 9 in the Sand Hill area.

Medical services will be improved with the renovation and modernization of hospital and clinical waiting rooms and a project to renovate three barrack type buildings used by the Benning House project.

Renovation of the latter facilities will provide semi-private living space for 48 patients and four sound proof group therapy rooms.

Partitioning of 130 barracks buildings to provide semi-private living quarters for approximately 8,532 men will require the procurement of 7,700 rugs, 3,100 lamps, 2,800 desks and 2,700 chairs.

ANNOUNCING!
"WE ARE HAPPY TO ANNOUNCE OUR APPOINTMENT AS A PENTON MOTORCYCLE DEALER FOR THIS AREA."

If you are one of the many serious competition riders who enjoy riding Enduros, Cross-Country events, Moto-Cross, Scramblers or Trials you either had to own two or more separate motorcycles or suffered serious equipment shortcomings in one of the other events.

The PENTON comes race ready trim. It can be raced Saturday in the most strongly contested Moto-Cross and win, then turn around on Sunday and win a National Enduro being completely street legal.

If you like riding more than one type of event or concentration on one specialty, PENTON is the way to go. If you want the finest, a machine you will be proud to own, a machine you can win on . . . then see Tommy Wages Motor Sports Today.

SEE THEM NOW!

HELD OVER
will give a free helmet and rear view mirror with purchase of full size new or used motorcycle again this month!

We finance privates and up! We sell motorcycle insurance!

New class may replace current OCS

Infantry Officer Candidate School as it is presently constituted may be in its waning hours.

A new course, the Branch Immaterial Officer Candidate Course (BIOCC), has been developed to possibly replace Infantry OCS, Engineer OCS and Field Artillery OCS.

The Department of Army currently is considering BIOCC, which was formulated by a Tri-School Committee comprised of Infantry School, Engineer School and Field Artillery School representatives.

If DA decides to move to the branch immaterial concept of officer candidate preparation, BIOCC would begin operation at Fort Benning sometime this summer, according to present plans.

Aimed at the college graduate who did not participate in the Reserve Officer Training Course, BIOCC would produce a lieutenant in 22 weeks—eight weeks of basic training and 14 weeks of BIOCC.

That cuts 17 weeks off current pre-commissioning time of officer candidates.

Currently, persons attending OCS must attend basic training, eight weeks of advanced individual training and then complete a 23-week course before receiving

POST'S MILITARY POLICEMAN OF THE YEAR
Sgt. Edward M. Schroeder Counsels Prisoner At Stockade

Top soldiers to receive free Atlanta excursion

Fifteen Fort Benning soldiers each month will be given an expense-paid overnight trip to Atlanta in recognition of their performances.

The soldiers, elected for outstanding performance, will receive free transportation and lodging, plus $25 expense money. In addition, Fort Benning Special Services will provide tickets to recreational and sporting activities.

The 15 personnel will be selected according to the following allotments for major units: 197th Infantry Brigade, five; U.S. Army Infantry Center Aviation Command (Provisional), one; Medical Department Activities, two; 931st Engineer Group, two; Headquarters Command, two; The School Brigade, three.

Winners may state their desires for their weekend activities. Their selections will be forwarded, along with their names, from the major units to Special Services before the 25th of each month.

Criteria for the reward system are: No conviction by courts-martial during the preceding year; conduct and efficiency rating of excellent at the time of selection; concurrence of immediate supervisor, when appropriate; be in grade of E-5 or below.

A trip coordinator selected by Special Services will accompany the group of soldiers each month. He will be responsible for escorting the soldiers, paying the hotel bill, distributing expense money and coordinating the return trip to Fort Benning.

AUSA official to attend benefit ball here tonight

C. E. Deremer, president of the 3rd Region of the Association of the United States Army (AUSA) will attend the Washington's Birthday Benefit Ball here tonight as a guest of the Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning chapter.

DeRemer, is from Fayetteville, N.C.

The 3rd Region of the AUSA controls chapter operations for the Southeastern United States.

The AUSA Ball is a benefit to raise funds for chapter activities. The motif will follow George Washington's birthday and the Revolutionary War era in decorations and menu.

The ball will start at 7 p.m. at the Fort Benning's Officers Open Mess.

Training instructor named year's best MP

A training instructor for prisoners in the Fort Benning stockade has been named the post's military policeman of the year.

Sgt. Edward M. Schroeder of the 139th Military Police Company earned the coveted honor in competition with soldiers from other MP duty sections. Selection was based on a recommendation from the man's supervisor as well as outstanding duty performance, military bearing, appearance and conduct.

Schroeder, a 25-year old Chapin, Ill., native, was cited last Friday at the annual awards dinner of the Columbus Exchange Clubs at the Martinique Motor Hotel. Also recognized was policeman Richard C. Weatherly as the Columbus patrolman of the year.

Each man was awarded a $250 check from the Exchange Clubs. Third District Congressman Jack Brinkley, guest speaker at the dinner, made the presentations.

The Columbus Exchange Clubs — along with the Columbus Police Department — worked in co-operation with the post's provost marshal's office in support of Crime Prevention Week, Feb. 7-13.

Whereas most MPs are concerned with catching crooks, Schroeder principally is concerned with rehabilitating them. "I help to conduct an education program for stockade prisoners," he said.

Through this program inmates are provided books "on loan" from the 17 receive incentive awards

Seventeen persons in the Supply Division, U. S. Army Infantry Center, were presented incentive awards in ceremonies Feb. 12.

Those persons receiving awards were:

Mrs. Dorothy G. Streetman, office of chief, a letter of appreciation for an adopted suggestion; Bruce W. Andrae, commodity management unit No. 2, an outstanding rating and sustained superior performance award of $150; Mrs. Margaret S. Conner, commodity management unit No. 2, outstanding rating and sustained superior performance award of $150; Orville Johnston, edit-control unit, outstanding and high quality performance award.

Mrs. Winifred C. Davis, commodity management unit No. 2, outstanding performance award; Martin L. Perry, clothing section, outstanding performance award; Albert L. Hall, supply center section, outstanding performance award; Jerome B. Redmond, reserve components branch, outstanding performance award; Woodrow W. CHANGES MADE

- Free trips to Atlanta will be given to 15 outstanding soldiers each month as recognition for outstanding duty performance.
- The Quartermaster Sales Store has expanded its operating hours. The store is now open until 8:45 p.m. weekdays and until noon on Saturday.
- Commanders are no longer permitted to put pressure on wives to join various clubs or participate in post activities.

PROPOSALS

- A "mod shop" will be opened in the Post Exchange. It will feature clothes in the latest styles.

Going overseas? Here's who to see for leave

So you're alerted for overseas shipment. You probably want to take some leave before you go, see your family and girl back home. You probably want 30 days leave to see everyone and get your personal affairs settled.

So as soon as you are notified officially or unofficially, that you are on levy for overseas shipment, report immediately to the overseas levy clerk at the personnel office supporting your unit. Let him know how many days leave you desire. You'll soon receive your orders.

However, if you don't receive orders on a date which allows you travel time (the number of days of leave you requested plus 10 days, plus travel time to get to the Overseas Replacement Station), see your first sergeant and inform him of the situation.

They're there to help you. They may be able to amend your orders and give you a new reporting date so that you don't have to use valuable leave time to clear post.

You, however, are responsible for insuring that you receive your orders and clearance papers on time.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

by Bill King

Americans favor white eggs over brown while Europeans favor brown eggs over white. It's just a matter of preference—both kinds are identical in quality and nutrition.

Try sprinkling some sesame seeds on top of a meatloaf for the last 20 minutes of baking.

When British planters discovered a potent West Indian libation the natives called "kill devil", they substituted an old Devonshire word, "rumbullion", meaning "great tumult". We have since shortened the name to "rum".

To cut neat-looking butter pats for the dinner table, cover the knife blade with a piece of waxed paper.

Rinse and pick over fresh cherries just before serving or making into a pie. Then put them in a large bowl of cold water and throw out any that float.

Better yet, let us do the work!

On race relations

Schools to compare notes on course

The Infantry School and other Army service schools will compare notes on race relations instruction Monday.

Representatives of the 20 Continental Army Command (CONARC) schools will come to Fort Benning to discuss addition of race relations instruction in their courses.

The one-day symposium — follow-up to a two-week meeting held here last year — will be monitored by the Leadership Department of the Infantry School.

It was the Leadership Department that developed the first race relations instruction taught in an Army service school. Last year CONARC directed all service schools to implement race relations instruction using the Infantry School's instruction as a model.

The service schools sent representatives to Fort Benning for a two-week course in August. Participants were briefed on the Infantry School's instruction, given an opportunity to do extensive reading of source materials and underwent some personal evaluation of their racial feelings.

Maj. James P. Hales, principal instructor for the Infantry School's first race relations class along with Maj. Tyrone P. Fletcher is optimistic about the upcoming symposium.

"The Leadership Department is hopeful that the follow-up symposium will provide valuable practical knowledge on racial problems encountered at the other service schools."

Fletcher pointed out that it is necessary to keep up with race relations developments at other posts if the Infantry School is to continue to be a leader in race relations instruction.

Q—Can military personnel living in barracks receive compensation from the Army if their property — whether in rooms or lockers — is stolen or damaged in an accident such as a fire?

A—Barracks residents—and all other inhabitants of government assigned quarters on post—may file a claim for "reasonable, proper or useful" property lost because of flood, fire, theft or other occurrence, unless the loss is due to their own negligence. Lockers must be properly secured and rooms should be locked from the outside and valuables or property inside placed under separate key. Under no circumstances should expensive items as jewels or large sums of money be kept in the barracks or in bachelor enlisted and bachelor officers quarters.

Q—What is the Army's policy concerning the assignment of additional duties to junior officers at the company level?

A—DA policy on this subject is spelled out in AR 1-27. It is essentially as follows:

—Undue delegation of miscellaneous, nonmission related functions to company size units should be eliminated. This is to preclude the assignment of an excessive number of time consuming additional duties to company level officers who often must perform these extra tasks at the expenses of their primary jobs and to the detriment of the Army's junior officer retention efforts.

—Only mission related functions which properly belong at the company level (e.g. mess, maintenance and supply duties) should be performed at that echelon. Nonmission type tasks (such as those carried out by voting and income tax officers) should be retained at battalion or higher levels of the command structure.

—Noncommissioned officers should, to the extent possible, be assigned the appropriate additional duty when it is imperative that a particular function remain at the company level.

Q — Under what conditions can abortions be performed in Army Medical facilities?

A — Abortions may be performed in Army medical facilities in keeping with standards of good medical practice, and subject to availability of facilities and the capabilities of the medical staff. Medical personnel are not required to participate in surgical procedures which violate their moral or religious principles. Decisions are made by Army hospital commanders on a case-by-case basis. Statistics on abortions that may have been performed at individual installations are not available.

The Judge says

Old laws can solve modern problems

USAIC LEGAL ASSISTANCE OFFICE — The law has to be flexible yet stable to meet new conditions.

For example, cities may one day soon have controlled climates under one big roof, recreational facilities, and huge shopping centers. These would be big private enterprises, not cities as we know them now.

Owners of such enterprises have great power over the "city" or center. Even so, the law limits their power.

For example, take the Giant Shopping Center in Central City. Central City's code says a person must leave when a land owner tells him to. The code also says that no one can distribute papers on someone else's property without his consent.

Seems reasonable, but workers were on strike at one of the stores in the shopping center. Two pickets kept several yards from the store, but still walked on the center's land. They were passing out handbills urging customers not to buy at that store.

The store owner and the shopping center manager ordered the pickets off, and told them to pass out their handbills on public property." When the pickets refused, police arrested them for breaking the city law. After conviction, they appealed their case, claiming that the city law violated their right to free speech.

The appellate court agreed. Though on private land they had been peaceful and would have been allowed to pass out handbills in places generally open to the public.

In an early case under the free speech clause of the First Amendment, the Supreme Court had ruled that a person could hand out religious pamphlets on a "business block" of a company-owned town. The company could not deny a resident the right of free speech.

Earlier, the Supreme Court also noted that the typical shopping center brings together individual stores on one large privately owned tract. It found the roadways and sidewalks within the center's mall are like the streets and sidewalks of a normal city. From these facts the court concluded that "the state cannot delegate to private owners the power through the use of trespass laws, to restrict the free exercise of constitutional rights."

The city can regulate sizes of signs, times for passing out handbills, numbers of people that may assemble, and the like. These rules must relate to health, safety, or some other legal goal.

Further inquiries concerning this or any similar legal matter should be referred to your lawyer or Legal Assistance Officer.

Education opens many doors

The Armed Forces—despite the age-old maxim that a serviceman is on duty 24 hours a day —offer most of their men a substantial amount of free time.

And seldom does a week go by when a serviceman — especially an unmarried one—isn't faced with the problem of what to do with some of this time. You might find the solution to this problem by having a chat with your education officer.

The Armed Forces have not only given their men off-duty hours, they also have established several educational programs, not the least of which is the United States Armed Forces Institute (USAFI), that will put these hours to good use.

USAFI offers courses at all educational levels and in a wide variety of subjects.

Education means many things to many people. For some, it is a means to open doors of employment; others find it a way to satisfy a general curiosity about a particular subject; still others feel it makes them more interesting people.

Whatever the reason, educating oneself can do no harm and will answer the question of what to do with your spare time. (AFPS Editorial).

Editorial

Man of many faces not forgotten

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Nearly 1,600 young men of the Armed Forces of the United States are prisoners of war (POW) or missing in action (MIA) as a result of the war in Vietnam. Locked in bamboo cages or filthy cells by an enemy who refuses to follow the rules of the Geneva Convention, these are men who have paid a dear price for their country and now ask that country not to forget them.

In this article reprinted from "Airman," the official magazine of the U. S. Air Force, author Maj. Jimmy K. Kilbourne shows that our POW-MIAs will not be forgotten.)

Who is the prisoner of war or the young man who is missing in action?

Simply, he is the Nation — an American fighting dedicated to the principles which made us free.

Collectively, he is a man of many faces . . . the guy next door . . . the fellow across the country. He is near and he is far.

He is of many faiths and philosophies. He worships as a Catholic, Jew, Protestant, or maybe a Buddhist — or maybe he does not worship at all, in the formal sense of the word.

His home is the car-choked streets of New York from Park Avenue to Harlem, the wooded hills of Appalachia, the brown-white sands of Miami Beach or the sun-splashed shore of Malibu — every state and territory is his own.

The American POW or MIA is every creed and color. He is a black man, white man, red, brown or yellow. His education ranges from the elementary school dropout of the ghetto to the high school graduate from suburbia. He could have worn the black gown and mortarboard of a graduate from USC, Harvard, "Ole Miss," Notre Dame, Purdue, Air Force Academy, West Point or Annapolis.

Back home his political philosophy may have been conservative or liberal. He may have voted Democratic, Republican or Independent — if indeed he was old enough to vote at all.

He is the son of a man who migrated from town to town picking grapes, or walked the halls of the Senate, or held a scalpel, or taught school. His father may have worn a badge, the eagle insignia of a colonel, gold stripes of an admiral, the chevrons of a sergeant, the blue suit of a banker — or the uniform of a serviceman now fighting in Southeast Asia.

He is the last of a dozen children. He has a family of his own or a girl who waits alone.

He is the teenager who left the drivein hamburger stand for the rice paddy, or a career soldier with 25 years of service. His average age is 29 years.

Before volunteering or being drafted, he clerked in banks and grocery stores, sat at office desks, pressed pants in a giant factory or picked cotton and tobacco.

Serving with distinction during World War II, he knew later of Checkpoint CHARLIE. He waded ashore at Inchon, flew the Berlin Airlift, blockaded Cuba and advised in Thailand, Loas and the Republic of Vietnam. He has been in and out of prison camps in Germany, Japan or North Korea.

In Southeast Asia, he served aboard Navy patrol boats or carried a rifle as a Marine or Army Infantryman. He flew helicopters, transport aircraft and fighters for the Air Force, Army, Marine Corps and Navy. As one of the nearly 1,600 POWs or MIAs he was shot down, ambushed, mined, cutoff or kidnapped. He has lived in captivity for as long as six years.

But, he continues to serve.

Despite deprivation and often inhumane treatment, he continues to serve — in solitary confinement, shackled, abused.

And, he keeps faith.

Refusing to participate in activities which might be harmful to his comrades, to himself or to the United States, he keeps his faith. Occasionally, but rarely, he returns to friendly lands and home.

He has won every combat decoration his country can bestow. He has been recommended for the Medal of Honor for extraordinary heroism. He has won the Air Force Cross, the Army Distinguished Service Cross, the Navy Cross, the Silver Star and the Legion of Merit.

His uniform is decorated with the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Bronze Star and the Purple Heart.

The POW-MIA represents distinguished service in the cause of freedom. His unparalleled contributions, achievements, sacrifices and decorations span an entire generation and encompass the broad spectrum of our free enterprise system.

Former OCS 'tac' gets DSC for Viet action

An Infantry Officer Candidate School graduate and former "tac" officer at Fort Benning has received the nation's second-highest award for bravery based on actions while serving in Vietnam.

Jerry T. Walden, of Columbus, was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross in a ceremony in Brig. Gen. John T. Carley's office.

Gen. Carley, assistant commandant of Fort Benning's Infantry School, presented the award.

According to the citation read at the ceremony, Walden exhibited "extraordinary heroism" while serving with Co. D, 3rd Bn., 187th Inf., 101st Abn. Div.

The citation went on to say that Walden took command of his company when the company commander was wounded during an assault by the company on an enemy position.

Continuing the assault, Walden was wounded, but personally destroyed four enemy bunkers with handgrenades. Wounded a second time, Walden continued to command the company. While crawling to the aid of a wounded comrade, Walden was injured a third time, but pulled the man to safety.

Walden refused medical evacuation until an officer arrived to assume command of the unit.

Walden is a 1966 graduate of Marshville (N.C.) High School. He entered the Army in 1967 and graduated from Infantry Officer Candidate School as an Infantry second lieutenant. Subsequently he was assigned as a tactical officer with the 53rd Officer Candidate Company at Fort Benning. He was transferred to Vietnam in January 1969.

Veterans benefits are exempt

Veterans benefits are generally exempt from taxation and need not be reported as income on income tax returns, the Veterans Administration has announced.

The VA said the only reportable item is interest earned on GI insurance dividends left on deposit or credit with the VA since this is considered earned income and a veterans' benefit.

GI insuraoce dividends themselves are not taxable, VA said, nor are proceeds from GI insurance policies.

Other major tax exempt benefits are compensation and pension, GI Bill and other educational assistance, subsistence payments to vocational rehabilitation trainees, and to severely disabled veterans.

'Brothers' befriend young boys

Every boy needs a father. No one could argue with that. But in too many cases young men are left without a father because of divorce, death or unaccompanied military tours overseas.

But Fort Benning's ACS (Army Community Services) is trying to fill this need by providing a "big brother" to boys between the ages of 6 through 14. As part of the Big Brother program, ACS screens mature active duty and retired military personnel to serve as big brothers to these young men. All proposed friendships between big and little brothers are supervised and followed up closely by ACS personnel.

It is hoped through such relationships that both big and little brothers can experience both a valuable and lasting friendship.

All persons who know of any little brother or big brother who wants to take part in this program contact Lt. Elton Harvey, Social Work Officer of ACS, at 541-1233 or 545-1633.

OCS history

OC Gammon G. Nesbitt presents Mrs. Robert P. Patterson, wife of the late secretary of war, with an album of the Officer Candidate School History. Mrs. Patterson was here last Friday to present the 1971 Patterson Award to 2nd Lt. Edmund L. Davis of Ft. Bragg, N.C., as the outstanding Infantry OCS graduate of the past year. The OCS album was prepared by the 5th Stu. Bn., TSB, of which Nesbitt is a member.

Museum drive so far nets $18,000 in pledges

With $18,000 in pledges from 350 donors under its belt, the $100,000 Infantry Museum campaign at Fort Benning enters its most important phase.

Through March 12, approximately 2,000 captains and 1,400 E7's (sergeants first class) will solicit their peers.

"Men from those two grades total about 70 per cent of our 5,000 prospects," campaign chairman Col. Robert P. Hatcher Jr. said. "Their participation will have a decisive effect upon the outcome of the campaign."

"Our initial approach to these men will be essentially the same as it has been to other groups," the colonel added. "We will emphasize the advantages of credit card giving and the fact that this is a one-time-only solicitation from which all profits will go toward the construction of the new museum. Of course, we also tell these people how important their participation will be."

The suggested pledge for captains is $48, that for E7's $36.

Advantages of the pledge card system to a prospect are apparent, Hatcher said.

"The only person who knows how much an individual gives is that man's solicitor," he said.

Critical to the pledge card system is whether peer solicitors are able to meet the turn-in dates that have been established, and thereby build campaign momentum.

Psychologically and time-wise, the Infantry Museum campaign should be more palatable than previous fund drives have been. The solicitation phase for each grade lasts from two to three weeks.

During that time, each individual within that grade will be contacted by a peer. Ideally, a prospect need be contacted only once, at which time he may give or decline to give.

1st man enlists under 197th Bde. program

By Bob Wise

Efforts to recruit men for the 197th Inf. Bde. under the new Modern Volunteer Army (VOLAR) plan are beginning to show signs of success. Not only is interest high within the brigade's 150-mile recruiting radius, but the first man to enlist for the brigade did so Feb. 9 in Dallas, Tex., 800 miles away.

Joseph Daniels, Temple, Tex., reported for duty as a truck driver in the "Forever Forward" Brigade Feb. 11. He was immediately assigned to HHC, 197th Inf. Bde., and became the first man to enlist for the 197th Inf. Bde. under VOLAR's unit-of-choice assignment option.

The 197th is one of seven units in the Continental United States for which an individual may specifically enlist.)

The 24-year-old specialist four had been discharged from Army service last April after a three-year hitch as a truck driver.

"I decided to come back in," said the Vietnam veteran, "because I felt that a career in a professional Army would be a rewarding life. Army life is far more attractive now and I want to make it a career.

"I picked the 197th because I like Georgia quite a lot. I used to work for a trucking outfit in Atlanta so I've been all over Georgia."

Daniels said the 197th seemed to be the most favorable place for him to be assigned because of its reputation of performance, its being the largest brigade in the Army and its location.

He and his wife, Mildred, have a three-year-old daughter, Requel.

Medal of Honor recognizes deed of Columbus man

Sp4 Donald R. Johnston, son of Mr. and Mrs. James D. Johnston of Columbus, Tuesday was presented the Medal of Honor posthumously by President Richard Nixon in ceremonies at the White House in Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnston received the medal for their son, who was killed in action in March 1969 in the republic of Vietnam.

Sp4 Johnston, who was 23, was cited for heroism while serving as a mortarman with Co. D., 1st Bn., 8th Cav., 1st Cav. (Airmobile), at a fire support base in Tay Ninh Province.

His citation states that Sp4 Johnston's company was in a defensive position under intense enemy rocket and mortar fire, and that the enemy moved through the perimeter and began hurling explosive charges into the main defensive bunkers.

Sp4 Johnston and six of his comrades had moved from the exposed position to one of the inner defensive bunkers, and while they were firing from the bunkers, an enemy soldier threw three explosive charges into their position.

According to the citation, Sp4 Johnston sensed the danger to his comrades, and with complete disregard to his own safety, threw himself on the charges, smothering the detonator with his body and shielding his fellow soldiers from the blast, saving their lives.

Sp4 Johnston entered the service in February 1968 and received his basic training at Fort Benning. After advanced training at Fort Polk, La., he was assigned to Vietnam in July of 1968.

3 states schedule elections

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — The Commonwealth of Kentucky will have primary elections for state offices including governor, senator, and representative on May 25.

Legal residents of Kentucky are advised to see unit voting officers for absentee ballot information. The voting age in Kentucky is 18 for all elections.

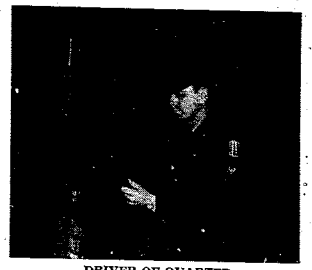
Towns in New Hampshire are having elections March 9 for local offices. Legal residents of New Hampshire are advised to contact unit voting officers for absentee ballot information.

New Jersey will have a primary election for state senators and assemblymen on June 8.

Driver receives $25 as Benning's best

Sp4 John S. Paul proved himself Fort Benning's "king of the road" by snagging first place in the post's "driver of the quarter" competition recently.

Paul, who is assigned to HHC, 5th Bn., 31st Inf., 197th Inf. Bde., won $25 for his exemplary motoring skills.



The specialist, who drove a jeep, in his winning effort, achieved a maximum score on both the vehicle inspection and personal appearance sections of the competition. The other contest categories were a written examination and a road test.

One person who was pleased with Paul's driving performance is Lt. Col. Gene H. Luthultz, 5th Bn. Paul is Luthultz's driver.

Finishing second and third respectively in the competition were PFC Lorenzo J. Torres of the 2nd Evacuation Hospital, MEDDAC, and PFC John J. Rogan of the 67th Main. Bn. 93ist Engr. Gp. Torres, who drove a quarter-ton jeep, was awarded $20, and Rogan, who used a douce-and-a-half, received $15.

Col. Robert P. Hatcher Jr., assistant post commander, made the presentations to the three men.

The winners of the major units' monthly driving contests in October, November and December were eligible to participate in this competition. The contest was sponsored by the post safety office.

School names top correspondent students

There are nearly 30,000 military personnel all over the world taking the Infantry School's Correspondence Course to improve their skills in areas such as drills and command, weapons, leadership and brigade tactics.

Recently the school named the top students for the course's second quarter.

Honored as the distinguished correspondence course student was MSgt. Donald Wilson of Fort Ord, Calif. He was cited for the period Sept. 30 to Dec. 31, 1970, the school's second quarter. Wilson will receive a letter of congratulations from Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbotton, School commandant.

The School named 11 other students as outstanding correspondence course students for the quarter. Each of these men will receive a personal letter of congratulations from Brig. Gen. John T. Carley, assistant commandant, for their efforts.

The 11 are Capt. Vincent J. Dacre, Baltimore, Md.; 1st Lt. Stephens D. Harkness, Stoutfield, Ind.; 1st Sgt. J. D. Hutchinson, 8th Stu. Bn., TSB, Fort Benning; 2nd Lt. Paul R. Dickens, Tampa, Fla.; SFC Edward E. Dawes, Ponca City, Okla.; 1st Lt. Robert E. Popken, Minneapolis, Minn.; and MSgt. Harry E. Glaze, Ft. Haynes, Columbus, Ohio.

Also Mallard K. Kolm, Mt. View, Calif.; Capt. R. L. Zastrow, St. Paul, Minn.; SSgt. James F. Tadsen, 7th Army, Germany and 1st Lt. Willie F. Lindsey, Ft. McCallister, Little Rock, Ark.

In addition to these students 92 others were named to the Infantry School Correspondence Course Honor Roll for the quarter. The honor is limited to students completing 100 or more credit hours in each quarter with an average rating of excellent or superior.

Each honor roll student will receive a personal letter of commendation from Col. William R. Guthrie, director of the Nonresident Instruction ROTC Affairs Department and also will receive an honor roll certificate.

AUSA helps ROTC teams

The Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning Chapter of the Association of the United States Army has contributed $175 to help pay hotel bills for Muscogee County School District ROTC Varsity Rifle Teams attending the Tampa-Columbus Match being held tomorrow in Tampa, Fla.

Rifle teams representing Baker, Carver, Columbus, Hardaway, Jordan, Kendrick and Spencer high schools will compete with teams from Hillsborough County, Fla., in the event to be held at the Tampa Police Department Rifle Range. A total of 45 cadets from the Muscogee County District will attend.

The Hardaway High Team is the defending champion.

Ash Wednesday begins Benning's Lenten services

Ash Wednesday, next week, ushers in the penetential season of Lent for most Christian denominations. Special services are planned for most chapels on post during the 40-day period of preparation for Holy Week and climaxing in the observance of Christ's Resurrection on Easter Sunday.

In the Main Post Catholic Chapel, ashes will be blessed at the noon Mass and will be distributed after this mass and the Mass at 5:15 p.m. In the evening at 7:30 p.m. there will be a communal penance service consisting of scripture readings, hymns, a community examination of conscience, private confessions and community absolution. Ashes also will be distributed at the conclusion of the service.

The Stations of the Cross will be conducted every Friday evening at 7:30. Daily masses will be held at noon and 5:15 p.m. with a three minute sermon each day at the late afternoon mass.

Throughout the period of Lent, Mass will be celebrated at 12:10 p.m. in Infantry Hall, Monday through Friday. Every Wednesday at 5:30 p.m. during Lent, Mass will be celebrated in the Kelley Hill Chapel. The resumption of the noon mass in Martin Army Hospital will be announced later.

For Protestant worshippers, special Lenten services are scheduled throughout the post. At The Infantry Center Chapel, a special Lenten Communion Service will be held every Wednesday, beginning Ash Wednesday, at 12:05 p.m. At the Indianhead Road Chapel, the Episcopal congregation will receive Holy Ashes and conduct a Holy Communion Service on Ash Wednesday at 6:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.

At Martin Army Hospital communion services will be held Monday through Friday at 11 a.m.

In Sand Hill Chapel No. 4, the Seven Last Words of Jesus from the Cross will be studied every Wednesday at 7 p.m. beginning Ash Wednesday and ending on April 7. In Sand Hill Chapel No. 5, Lenten devotions will be held every Friday from 12:45 p.m. These devotions will begin on March 5 and conclude on April 9.

Weekly Lenten services for the 197th Brigade will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Kelley Hill Chapel each Thursday, beginning the

Greetings

The Main Officer's Open Mess was the site of The School Brigade (TSB) winter formal. Col. Frank L. Garrison, TSB commander, and Mrs. Garrison (C), were the hosts for the event, attended by the officers assigned to the brigade and their ladies. After dinner, the group was entertained by the 52nd Company Chorus from the 5th Student Battalion. Senior Candidate Bob Baker was master of ceremonies for the program which included numbers by Senior Candidate Baker's wife, Lynn, and Senior Candidate Tony Hebson. The group then retired to the ballroom for dancing under the music provided by the "Rams."

PWOC to visit elderly citizens

The USAIC Chapter of Protestant Women of the Chapels (PWOC) will visit Highland House Nursing Home during the regular monthly meeting on Feb. 24.

The ladies will meet at the TIC Chapel Annex for coffee and then proceed to the nursing home as a group to participate in the vistation of the elderly and a hymn sing. All Fort Benning ladies are urged to attend.

The members are requested to bring canned goods to the meeting to be donated to the Valley Rescue Mission. Old sheets are desperately needed for use in making bandages for the American Cancer Society.

Crochet class to be offered

A six-week crochet class is being offered by the Officers' Wives' Club March 10. The class will be held every Wednesday at the OWC Lounge. The cost is $7. To register, telephone Mrs. Bryce R. Kramer at 545-4288.

Nursery uses Montessori concept to train youth

Remember the days when you were a child, and nursery school was a place your mother sent you to get you out of the house?

Well, not any more. Since about 1963 Fort Benning and other school districts have offered a nursery school designed to teach a child as young as 2½ years old to work with basic materials and concepts that used to be taught in kindergarten or first grade.

Called the Pre-Kindergarten School, the Fort Benning program takes children between the ages of 2½ and 4 - years - old. The classes are designed to give children the ability to follow directions, use equipment and heighten their understanding of the sense of touch. Also, the children dwell upon a major theme each month, and this past month it has been Space, emphasized in conjunction with the recent flight of Appolo 14.

To give the parents, the public and educators an idea of what is going on at the school the organization is holding an open house Feb. 22 in the classrooms at Bldg. 322, Martin Army Hospital Annex. It will be held during the morning session from 9 to 11 a.m. and will continue that evening from 7 to 11 p.m. Visitors will not have the opportunity to talk to the teachers during the morning hours because classes will be in session, the teachers will be available for discussion during the evening session.

The impetus for the school was the federal Head Start program which was designed to give a crash course in basic learning abilities to disadvantaged pre-school children.

Both programs took their style from the Montessori Method designed by Madame Maria Montessori to teach children as young as 18-months-old how to learn through following directions and handling equipment used in grade schools. If a child learns these things early, he or she is far ahead of the learning process and is free to begin learning more advanced concepts such as math at an early age.

The school originated before the outbreak of World War II as a Fort Benning Wives' club project, and was later taken charge of by Mrs. G. L. Brickhouse, the current principal. She changed the concept of the school from that of a custodial day care center to a full school.

The school, presently responsible for 174 young charges, is staffed by nine regular teachers, a recently hired full-time music teacher and a nurse who is on duty during school hours.

The pre-kindergarten program registers a child for a full nine month term, and each is admitted on a probationary basis for a period of two weeks before final acceptance. Each child receives a yearly progress report. The four-year-olds are given a diploma in a graduation ceremony held at the close of the school year.

Parents interested in enrolling their four-year-olds for the remainder of the school year may contact the school at 545-2492 or visit Bldg. 322, Martin Army Hospital Annex, and have their names put on the waiting list, currently very short. No distinction is made as to rank of parents, and the sole requirement is that tuition be paid. Additional information may be obtained by calling Mrs. Raymond McClean, School Board Chairman, at 545-2401, or Mrs. Brickhouse at the school.

A car pool system has been set up by the school and the children are tagged with the number of the pool they are in for easy identification.

Parents of children currently enrolled are urged to visit the school at any time, and if that is not possible they may call between the hours of 8:45 and 11 a.m. Monday through Friday.

'Showboat' cast entertains 300

Approximately 300 officers stepped aboard a "Showboat" in the ballroom of the Fort Benning Officers Club Feb. 10 at 10 a.m.

The ballroom was transformed into a river boat casino with swinging cafe doors at the entrance flanked by bales of cotton.

Guests, wearing "banjo" nametags, were greeted and served "Cotton Blossom Julips" by hostesses who were dressed as "dealers".

The brunch took place in the cabaret of the "Showboat's (Supper Club), where tables covered with pink cloths and avacado green napkins held fashion dolls dressed like Southern belles. Fresh Ivy and pink flowers formed a runner down the center of each table.

The backdrop for the program was a large painting of a "showboat" done by Mrs. Wendell Dillon and Mrs. Robert Sorenson, flanked by white lattice work, entwined with magnolia blossoms and foliage.

The menu featured a fresh fruit cocktail, baked seafood salad, cornbread, and "Mississippi Mud" (A spicy mocha coffee).

Various members of the musical, "Showboat", performed for the wives. Performers and the songs they sang were as follows: Miss Kathleen Devine, "Only Make Believe"; Mr. Marciano Jakes, "Ole' Man River"; Miss Barbara Freeman sang "Can't Help Lovin' Dat Man" and was joined in a finale by Mrs. Thelma Gibson, Mr. Phil Courington, Miss Devine and Mr. Jakes.

Mrs. Evan L. Parker, OWC program chairwoman, handled coordination for the program, menu and decorations.

49er celebration

This old miner is getting an early start on the fun and games for the upcoming 49ers Party at the Fort Benning Officers Club on March 6. The miner is Lt. Col. John Reese, military project officer for the party, and Mrs. Eric Van Brero, party chairman. Proceeds from the event will go toward construction of a new nursery in the planned post exchange complex near Martin Army Hospital. The party is sponsored by the Daughters of the U.S. Army.

Excess housing list announced

Continental Army Command has published its quarterly excess housing list of quarters available for dependents of absent sponsors.

The listing, by state, lists quarters available and describes each unit. They are:

Illinois, Savanna Army Depot, three officer quarters, 42 four-bedroom facilities, 139 two-bedroom soldier quarters, 343 three - bedroom soldier housing and 8 four-bedroom units for soldier dependents.

New Mexico, the Roswell Housing Authority, facilities for occupancy by officers and soldiers, 96 two-bedroom duplex units, 2 two-bedroom units, 135 three-bedroom units and 4 four-bedroom units; at White Sands Missile Range, 13 three-bedroom units available for noncommissioned officers and 22 officer quarters.

Utah, Dugway Proving Grounds, 20 two-bedroom and 100 three-bedroom units for officer and soldier occupancy.

Washington, The Port of Moses Lake Housing Authority, 44 units available for officers.

This housing is available to dependents of military personnel stationed overseas. Further information can be obtained by calling the Fort Benning Family Housing Branch at 545-5411.

NCO wives hear talk on home creativity

The members and guests of the noncommissioned Officers Wives Club heard Miss Lee Parker of Washington, D. C., on nutrition and creativity in the home on Feb. 10.

She represented the Overseas Service Corporation and the national retail companies whose products she gave as prizes. All those in attendance received samples of her sponsors' products as well as recipe books and leaflets.

Luncheon was served at noon by hostesses Mrs. James Dixon, Mrs. Henry Medders, Mrs. Gerald Fitzgerald, Mrs. Paul T. Simmons. The menu consisted of hot roast beef sandwich, french fries, sherbet, tea and coffee. A valentine theme was noted by decorative place mats decorated with red valentine doilies and foil hearts.

Anyone interested in joining the NCO Wives Club is asked to contact the membership chairman Mrs. Arthur Butts 545-1595.

Atlanta excursion discussed

The wives of Hq. 197th Inf. Bde. were entertained at a coffee Feb. 10 at the home of Mrs. Lee Smith, 200 Dial Street.

Mrs. Smith conducted a business meeting. The forthcoming trip in Atlanta, March 23, was discussed.

White cake squares topped with miniature valentines were served with coffee and cold beverages. The table, covered with a white lace cloth, contributed the decorative valentine scheme with red cups and candles perfecting the effect.

Newcomers welcomed into the group were Mrs. Bernard E. Muller-Thym and Mrs. Joseph Brand.

Goodbys were said to Mrs. Shelton Wood and Mrs. Anthony Addonizio, who received charms.

Food feature, breakfast slated

Mrs. Sara Spano, food editor for the Columbus Ledger-Enquirer, will be the guest Tuesday of the Fort Benning noncommissioned Officers Wives Club.

The members will assemble at 12:30 p.m. at the NCO Wives Clubhouse with covered dishes for sale and notified their friends.

The sale, which lasted almost three hours, featured about 50 items priced from one to 50 cents, was inspired by what Michelle said was "just a feeling" she had to do it.

The items, which ranged from puzzles, books, paint sets and other toys, brought in a total of $5.35, which Michelle gave as an offering in her Sunday school class the following Sunday.

Mrs. Spano to sample for a feature article that she will be doing on the NCO Wives Club in the near future. Foreign wives have been urged to bring along dishes from their home lands.

Wednesday the monthly NCO wives breakfast will be held at the Sand Hill NCO club at 9 a.m. The menu will consist of ham and eggs, grits, biscuits, coffee or tea.

There will be no charge for members and a charge of 75 cents for guests.

Reservations are required and may be made by calling Mrs. John Kennedy (545-3128), Mrs. Jack Thompson (544-3837) or Mrs. Marion Phillips (545-3700) by this evening.

Christianity pays -- at least among kids

An unselfish idea on the part of a sixth-grade student at Faith School resulted in an increase in her Sunday School offering recently.

Eleven-year-old Michelle Lynn Palmer decided that she would like to do something to increase her Christian stewardship. So, she sold a number of games and toys she had collected through the years and gave the money as an offering in her class at the Protestant Sunday School.

Michelle, the daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. George E. Palmer, consulted her parents about it and they said it was a fine idea. The following day, Michelle and two of her friends printed signs about the

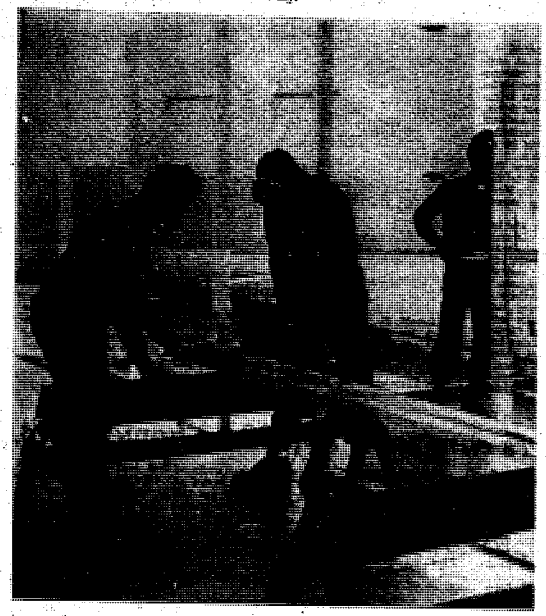
Before the advent of the Modern Volunteer Army, reveille would have been held in this area of Fort Benning. VOLAR has eliminated reveille and given the individual soldier responsibility for reporting to duty on time.

1000

A soldier of the 197th Infantry Brigade picks up a piece of paper in his duty area. But, before VOLAR, he might have been on road police. The VOLAR program has not eliminated the soldier's duty to keep his own area clean.



1200

Chow time, and what is in the pot — SOS? Not on your life. Fort Benning soldiers can choose from a list of short order foods when they pass through the chow line now. In the evenings and weekends, they even can add a beer to the fare.

1500

Work for these members of the 43rd Engineer Battalion is a pleasure. They are building partitions for their own barracks. VOLAR is responsible for the partitions and also leaves more men free for duty eliminating many of the details that used to fill the soldier's day.

Around the clock with VOLAR

By Wendell Cochran

The day in the life of a soldier at Fort Benning has changed drastically since the Modern Volunteer Army (VOLAR) program began here late last year.

Dozens of minor irritants—such as the practice of waking soldiers who are off-duty for barracks cleaning—have been eliminated.

More importantly, some major perennial military gripes such as kitchen police, have been removed.

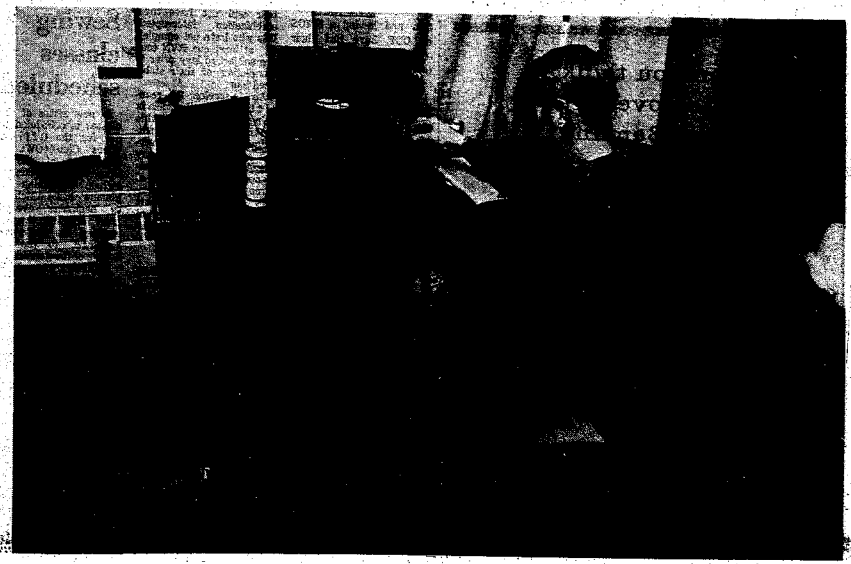
Efforts are being made to improve communications up and down the chain of command. The open-door policy of commanders has been reemphasized and two captains have been assigned to the post inspector general's office to handle soldiers' complaints.

Better communications are emphasized in "Enlightened Leadership" classes being taught to all post officers and non-commissioned officers. Developed by the Infantry School's Leadership Department, the class encourages leaders to look at their leadership styles and how they effect their subordinates.

Other major VOLAR changes include:

—Short orders in the mess hall, including the sale of beer at the evening meal. Beer also can be consumed in barracks areas at Fort Benning.

—A five-day work week that gives the soldier more free time to spend with his family and friends. Weekend duty still is required of some; however, compensatory time is granted to those persons whenever possible.



—Sign-out and sign-in have been eliminated, except for morning report entries, such as leave.

VOLAR also is adding to professionalism, taking soldiers away from non-military tasks, such as KP, and putting them on the job as much as possible.

One important effect of VOLAR has been to place more responsibility on the individual soldier. Those who live up to the responsibility will continue to enjoy the changes brought about by the VOLAR actions.

2000

The time between the end of duty and lights out used to be spent by soldiers sitting on foot lockers shining shoes, writing letters and just rapping. With VOLAR each man has been given more privacy, in some cases individual rooms have been provided. Now PFC William Taylor, HHC, 197th Inf. Bde., can listen to his stereo without distrubing his barracks-mates.

AUSA official addresses local chapter meeting

Brig. Gen. Robert F. Cocklin, USAR, National Director of Public Affairs for the Association of the United States Army, was a guest speaker at the Feb. 4 meeting of the board of directors of the Columbus-Phenix City - Fort Benning Chapter, AUSA, held at Infantry Hall.

In his remarks Gen. Cocklin stated that at no time in history had the work at the association been as important as it is at present. He stated that the association is pressing to have the Selective Service maintained as a system for providing men for the armed services if and when they are needed.

"While the AUSA supports efforts to improve conditions for those in the Army, and efforts to establish a volunteer Army, it is the organization's stand that the Selective Service Act should be renewed," said Cocklin.

In other business Col. William R. Guthrie discussed plans for the Washington's Birthday Benefit Ball.

Proceeds from the ball will be used in the chapter's ROTC scholarship program, the ROTC rifle and drill meet, and the Soldier Award Program.

Tickets are available in Room 602, Infantry Hall, and through major units at Fort Benning. Civilian ticket sales are being handled by Col. Ned Mabry, USA, Ret., whose office is located at the Chamber of Commerce Building phone 327-1566.

Soldiers can 'save' $3,000 on home loans

The latest reduction in interest rates on home loans guaranteed by the Veterans Administration will save a veteran or serviceman more than $3,000 on the average new home loan over a 30-year financing period.

Administrator of Veterans Affairs Donald E. Johnson, commenting on the reduction from 8 to 7½ per cent approved recently by Housing and Urban Development and VA, said the estimated saving is based on the $24,400 average loan on a new home.

Computed at 34 cents per $1,000, monthly savings on mortgage notes would be $8.43, or $3,035 over a 30-year period.

The VA administrator noted that the average loan on an existing home is $19,400, which works out to a monthly saving of $6.71 at the 7.5 per cent interest rate. The veteran or serviceman would save $2,416 over a 30 - year financing period.

VA guarantees 60 per cent up to a maximum of $12,500, whichever is less, of home loans made to veterans and servicemen.

VA's loan program covers veterans of World War II and the Korean Conflict who have served at least 90 days of active duty, as well as those who served at least 181 days after Jan. 31, 1955, provided they have not previously used their loan entitlement.

Veterans discharged for a service-connected disability, and widows of eligible veterans also are entitled to GI loans.

Drill sergeants' tours extended to 2 years

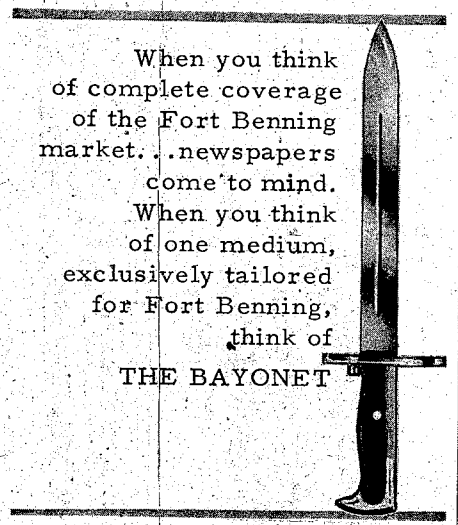
WASHINGTON (ANF) — All individuals serving in a drill sergeant (DS) position and having a PMOS of 00F have had their stabilization periods extended from 18 months to 24 months.

This action is part of an intensified effort to increase the number of drill sergeants.

Based on existing and projected overseas requirements, DSs who have completed at least one RVN tour will not have their stabilization interrupted. DSs who have not completed at least one RVN tour are subject to levy prior to completion of their stabilized tour.

An in-service DS reenlistment option also is being prepared. Under this provision, an eligible individual, in either an oversea area or CONUS, may reenlist for and be assigned to duty at one of three Army training centers of his choice. Short discharge for purpose of reenlistment is authorized for persons completing a normal oversea tour.

Sewing classes scheduled



A new series of sewing classes is scheduled to begin for the Officers' Wives' Club (OWC) at 9 Feb. 23 at the OWC lounges. These classes will include instruction in beginners' basic which teaches beginners everything from threading the needle, working the patterns and fabric, to the actual sewing of the garment.

Beginners also will learn how to sew with knits and how to put in the "Unique" zipper. The basic course consolidates up-to-date techniques in sewing and helps those who sew at home construct a quality looking garment in less time.

Tailoring also will be taught and will include techniques in such areas as lining, underlining, bound button holes, and molding the collar. These are all part of the Bishop Method of Sewing, i.e. no planing, no basting.

The classes last for six weeks. For further information, telephone Mrs. Larry Wood at 561-3516 or Mrs. Robert Ward at 689-8723.

Experimental course trains lieutenants better'

The Infantry School believes it will send more qualified lieutenants to lead platoons in units around the world if the Experimental Infantry Officers Basic Course (EIOBC) is adopted for permanent use.

An evaluation of EIOBC by the evaluation division of the office of the Director of Instruction (DI) concluded: "...the experimental course was 1) more effective in providing leadership positions that familiarized the student with the duties and responsibilities of a platoon leader; 2) more valuable in preparing the officer student to function as a platoon leader; 3) a more viable and challenging course which was conducted at a better overall pace of instruction and, 4) less repetitive of pre-commissioning training."

On the strength of these findings, the Infantry School has recommended permanent adoption of EIOBC as the first course taken by newly commissioned (except Officer Candidate School graduates) Infantry Officers. The recommendation is being studied at Continental Army Command.

The new course is the first major attempt to redesign IOBC in several years. The completely rewritten program of instruction adds three weeks to the present nine-week course and breaks the course into four distinct training phases.

More importantly, emphasis in the course is being shifted from classroom work to "hands-on" training in skills required of newly commissioned Infantry officers.

The mission of the course—to produce a lieutenant who is able to successfully lead a platoon—remains the same.

To determine the differences between the graduates of IOBC and EIOBC, two classes of IOBC students took the same performance tests and confidence tests as EIOBC students.

In evaluating the performance of the students, the DI's office found that EIOBC students were both more capable of performing their functions as platoon leaders and more confident in their ability to perform those tasks.

You may no longer have to compute tax

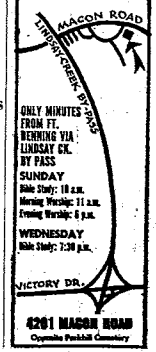
WASHINGTON (ANF) — There's a good chance you won't have to figure your income tax this year — the government may do it for you.

The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) is ready to compute taxes for up to 30 million taxpayers this year.

To qualify, your income must be less than $20,000 and consist only of wages or salaries, tips, dividends, interest, pensions or annuities. You also must take the standard deduction.

Previously, IRS could only compute the tax for those with less than $5,000 of income, primarily from salaries and wages. These limits disqualified many low and middle income taxpayers as well as retirees living on pensions or annuities.

If you want IRS to compute your tax, just follow the instructions for entries on the return and mail it, with attachments, to the IRS Service Center for your area.



Besides computing the tax, the IRS also will compute retirement income credit for those entitled to it. This computation has proven confusing to many taxpayers in the past.

Post team gives demonstration

A seven-man demonstration team from the Combatives Subcommittee, Conditioning, Combatives and Drill Committee, Leadership Department, gave a combatives demonstration for approximately 60 ROTC students at Fort Valley State College in Fort Valley, Ga., Feb. 10.

The demonstration, consisted of hand-to-hand, bayonet, and pugil fighting techniques, and was followed by a question and answer period.

'Blues' characters cited for superb performances

By Mike Keller

The Fort Benning Dramatizers' presentation of "Blues for Mister Charlie" is a double barrelled literary shotgun with a message aimed at the heart of all "Mr. Charlies" in the audience.

In the slang of hep blacks, "Mister Charlie" means "white people." And as the play's director, Totlee Brown, put it, "this play is going to make a lot of people upset."

Written by James Baldwin, the story tells of the tension in a small Southern town when a black youth is shot to death by a white shop owner. The play is the Dramatizers' entry in this year's 3rd Army Tournament of Plays, and the members of the post's little theater group did not duck controversy in choosing this production.

Superbly performed, "Blues" will have for many the effect of a dash of ice water in the face. It certainly will touch a few raw nerves, perhaps even provoke anger. But anyone who wants to understand America's explosive racial situation should see this play.

The three-act drama shows Baldwin at his best for those who are familiar with the works of the black author. Despite a deeply-imbedded tone of anger and sorrow throughout the play, it is not primarily an attack — either on the South, white men or the Establishment. It is a plea — for racial equality and social justice.

Although the production is fiction drawn from fact (the plot is based on the 1955 Mississippi slaying of Emmett Til, a young black), this play is more than a rehash of the worn theme, "Southern white represses Southern black." The characters — of which there are 23 with speaking roles — are not stereotypes of good and evil. It would have been easy for Baldwin to present them as — pardon the expression — all black or white, but he didn't.

Take Lyle Britten, the white murderer, admirably played by Steve Reid. Lyle is no knee jerk Simon Legree, no hater. By his own word he has "nothing against colored people," has a black friend (Papa D portrayed by Joe Watts) and openly boasts of illicit relationships with black women. He is what Parnell James calls him: "a poor white man, as victimized as any black." But one whose aching pride demands having at least one class of people below him.

Parnell, the town's "radical" newspaper editor, is played by Steve Anderson, whom Fort Benning's longtime playgoers will remember from his brilliant starring role in last year's "Man For All Season's," as the loyalty-torn Parnell, who tries to keep a foot in the door of both camps as a friend of the murderer and the murdered youth's father, he turns in a typical Steve Anderson performance.

Richard, the black youth killed by Lyle, is excellently portrayed by Dean Irby. Richard is a cured dope fiend who returns home to start afresh but finds his refusal to obey the caste servility of the Deep South a far worse — and fatal — addiction.

Tears of sorrow

Juanita Harmon (portrayed by LaBrenda Wilson) breaks into tears as she describes her life with Richard Henry, a young black activist who has been slain by a white store owner, in the Dramatizers' production of "Blues for Mister Charlie." The drama by James Baldwin opens tonight at the post playhouse, Bldg. 1237, and will be performed tomorrow, and Monday through Thursday. All performances are at 8 p.m. Tickets are free and can be reserved by phoning 545-2316. No one under 18 will be admitted to the play.

Two standout female performers are LaBrenda Wilson as Juanita, Richard's girl friend, and Diane Savoca as Jo, Lyle's wife. Whereas Juanita loved Richard for himself, Jo's concern for her husband was centered on a concern for the welfare of her baby.

In other lead roles are the Reverend Charles King as the Rev. Meridian, who lived his entire life as a Christian but was finding it increasingly difficult to quash the raging violence within him; and Laura Pinkston as Mother Henry, who had to lose a daughter and a grandson to earn the right to be called "Mrs." in a court of law.

The story is told through a series of flashbacks relating the incidents leading up to the murder. The flashback is a tricky theatrical device. If not employed properly, an audience can become confused and even lost. Through the skillful use of lighting by Jim Hickey, Tom Kober and Mike Wiblin and a series of dazzling flashback soliloquys in the climactic third act by Anderson, Miss Savoca and Miss Wilson.

Synopsis

HORROR HOUSE (Rated GP).

A group of Carnaby Street youths hold a party in a haunted house outside of London. Led by Frankie Avalon and Jill Haworth, they begin a tour of the house, where a series of grisly knife murders had occurred twenty years before.

The fun ends abruptly when Mark Wynter is viciously hacked to death.

Fearing that one of the group is a psychopath; and that the police won't believe their story due to an earlier encounter on a drugs charge, Avalon insists that everyone hush it up. Avalon becomes the prime suspect and persuades the gang to return to the house in an effort to find clues.

ANNE OF THE THOUSAND DAYS (Rated GP).

Richard Burton magnificently portrays Henry VIII, who defies the Pope, challenges the emperor of Spain, and destroys a ruling caste in England for the love of Anne Boleyn.

Genevieve Bujold is brilliant as Anne Boleyn, a dark, beautiful lady, endowed with intellectual sexiness who keeps Henry waiting for six years.

Boleyn, although a loving woman for the thousand days she remains with Henry, can be nearly as ruthless as the King in power politics.

Cromwell, his sneaking legal advisor, finally turns the tables on the new Queen, and instigates her death by arranging a trial which casts doubt on her loyalty to the king.

THE GOOD, THE BAD AND THE UGLY (Rated GP).

The film gives a retrospective glimpse back to the days on the American frontier when bounty hunters hunted men like they'd hunt beasts, for money and money only.

Three dangerous men search for a cashbox that contains $200,000. They have no loyalties except to their own violent and impulsive ends, and will either wear the Union or the Confederate uniform for brief periods, only as part of their schemes.

GOODBYE, COLUMBUS (Rated R).

A bittersweet and hilarious comedy about a wonderfully alive and perceptive love affair between a mismatched young man resisting routine mold and a rich (pretty) college girl rooted to her family background. If you enjoyed "The Graduate" you will enjoy "Goodbye, Columbus."

Taste The Blood Of Dracula (Rated GP).

Christopher Lee, as the dreaded vampire, Count Dracula, swears vengeance on the killers of his disciple, the depraved scion of an aristocratic British family (Ralph Bates).

He vows that they must die by the hands of their four children. His Santanic powers hold sway over all but one of them, and after many hair-raising and horror-filled episodes, Dracula is at last vanquished by him—forever?

45 students graduate from mechanic's course

The Track Vehicle Mechanic's Course graduated 45 students Feb. 10 in ceremonies at Infantry Hall.

Guest speaker at the commencement exercise was CW2 Charles R. Fletcher, Command Maintenance Department, USAIS.

The distinguished honor graduate was Sp4 Robert Hernandez, Salinas, Calif. The distinguished academic graduate was Sp4 Fergus W. Brown, San Jose, Calif.

The seven-week/mechanic's course provides personnel with a working knowledge to perform organizational maintenance and recovery of tracked vehicles.

Included in the course of instruction are engine principles, valve adjustments, cooling and lubricating systems, carburation and fuel injection.

While the students are attending the course here at Fort Benning they are assigned to the 15th Co., 1st Bn., TSB.

Both Hernandez and Brown are in the National Guard and will report to their hometown units.

Wedding date

The first president to be married in the White House was Grover Cleveland, who wed Frances Folsom on June 2, 1886.

Army seeks plant operators

WASHINGTON (ANF) — A career in the rapidly growing field of nuclear power production is open to qualified Army personnel. As an incentive, there is a full year of high-level training, followed by $75 a month proficiency pay and authorization to wear the Nuclear Powerman's Badge, Basic.

The Army Nuclear Power Program is looking for personnel in grades E6 and below for education and assignment as power plant operators.

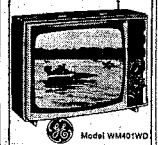
After the year of training, the operator will be assigned to one of three Army nuclear power plants: Ft. Belvoir, Va.; Ft. Greely, Alaska; or Panama Canal Zone.

The course of study is divided into three phases: academic, operations and specialty training.

The academics block of instruction includes lecture and laboratory classes covering mathematics physics, basic fundamentals of nuclear, electrical and mechanical engineering, health physics and water chemistry.

Operations training covers the operator's duties at a nuclear power plant, with actual practical experience at Ft. Belvoir's reactor.

At this point the student is selected for specialty training in health physics, electrical or mechanical operation and maintenance, or instrumentation.



To apply you must have a high school education or the equivalent, have at least two years left to serve in the Army upon completion of training be under 35 years of age and have served one year of active duty at the time of application.

AR 350-224 has the details for application. For further information see your career counselor or write to Director, U. S. Army Engineer Reactors Group, Attn: MSgt. Tom Cruse, Administrative Office, Ft. Belvoir, Va. 22060.

More 'RH' policies go to disabled vets

The Veterans Administration issued $212 million worth of low-cost "RH" life insurance policies to 22,000 disabled veterans in 1970—the most for any year since the 1951 start of the program.

VA insurance officials noted the 1970 total was an increase of about 50 per cent over 1969. The increase was attributed largely to the agency's intensified efforts to inform service-disabled veterans about the insurance designed especially for them.

A disabled veteran is eligible for $10,000 coverage under this insurance if discharged from service after April 1951 and if in good health except for his disability. He must apply for it within one year of the date VA notifies him of his disability rating.

Thus, a veteran disabled in military service can obtain $25,000 in life insurance coverage by taking out an "RH" policy, and converting his $15,000 Servicemen's Group Life Insurance (SGLI) to an individual policy.

Recently separated servicemen must apply for an individual policy from one of the private companies participating in the SGLI program 120 days after discharge from service.

If they are totally disabled at separation, however, they have up to one year while still totally disabled to convert their SGLI.

VA insurance officials pointed out that "RH" life insurance makes available this additional coverage for many disabled veterans who otherwise would find it difficult to obtain additional life insurance except at very high premium rates.

Veterans with service-connected disabilities who are interested in applying for "RH" life insurance were urged to contact their nearest VA office.

'They had a winning attitude'

197th cagers win post championship

By Bob Wise

"At no time during the course of any game did they feel they were going to lose . . . they had a winning attitude. They worked together and they pulled together when it was necessary."

These were the words of praise that Maj. Donald Tapscott, coach of the 197th Inf. Bde. basketball team, had for his team after they captured the 1970-71 Fort Benning championship.

Tha 197th finished the USAIC League season Feb. 11 on a winning note and with a winning record; 20-1. The only loss came at the hands of The School Brigade (TSB) Nov. 20.

According to Tapscott, the two main factors that made the 197th the outstanding team of 1971 were the physical conditioning of its players and their individual attitudes.

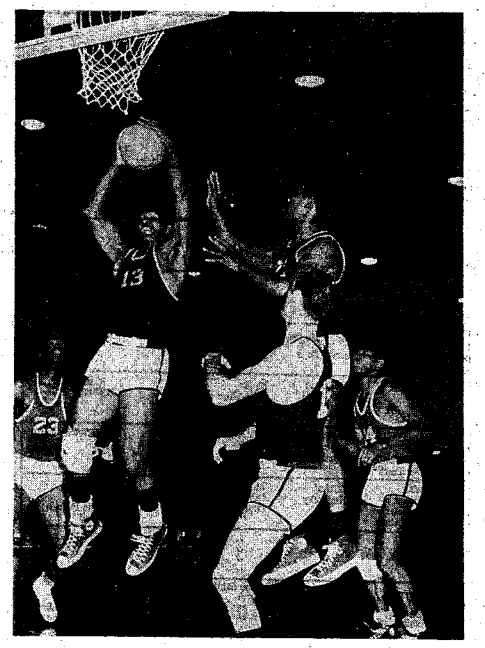
"Conditioning was a major factor. It was obvious to me, in some games, that stamina and the ability to run the entire game was the decisive factor. They knew they could run for 40 minutes at top speed without tiring."

"As long as you can carry the game and make the other team play your type of game, you are going to win. All the players felt this. It was instilled in their attitudes. We played a running game. We used speed to break down the other team's defense and upset their offense.

"We used our type of game to bring the ball down at maximum speed. If a team was in a zone defense we could have the ball down court before they could set up. I could replace guards from the bench and switch around players' positions without losing any ability or effectiveness. These factors made the difference all season."

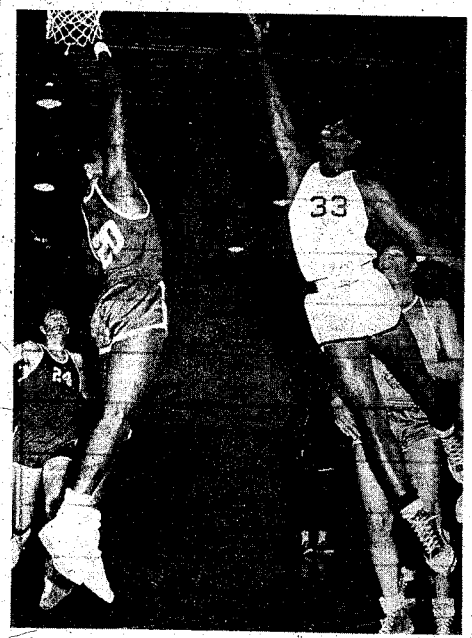
"No one was treated as a super star. The team wasn't built around any particular player. No player was so interested in his personal feats that he would take anything away from his teammates' performance," concluded Tapscott.

The 197th's final game was played against the 931st Engr. Grp. team It was a typical 197th performance. The Infantry Brigade won by a 36-point margin, 107-71.



The game was preceded by the awarding of the first and second place USAIC trophies. Making the presentation was Col. Robert P. Hatcher, deputy post commander.

To the 197th for winning first place, he presented the trophy to team captain, Will Brockington. To TSB for taking second place, he presented the trophy to Donald Townsend. Each player was recognized individually.



Not present at the ceremony was guard, Maurice Travers of the 197th. Singled out as one of Fort Benning's finest athletes, Travers was on leave in Tulsa, Okla., at the time, registering for college on an athletic scholarship.

The trophy presentation was preceded by TSB's final game with the Center Aviation Command (CAC). TSB was overcome, 82-24, as only seven of its players showed up. Three TSB players fouled out late in the game, leaving only four players to finish the game. It was the only loss the TSB team suffered all season from a team other than the 197th. TSB finished with a combined season record of 16-5.

The 931st Engr. Grp. placed third with an 8-12 record; CAC was fourth with a 6-13 record; Headquarters Command with fifth with a 6-14 record; and Medical Department Activities was sixth with a 4-15 record.

Engineers triumph over CAC

Despite the Center Aviation Command's (CAC) ability to score first and take the lead for the first five minutes of the game, the 931st Engr. Gp. rapidly caught up and pulled ahead to win the game, 82-60.

At half time the engineers led by only two points, but as the game progressed into the second half, the gap steadily increased until a 22-point advantage was achieved at the final bell.

Gene Miller was high scorer for the engineers, snagging 21 points. In the last few minutes of the game, Miller sank 10 points in a row; four points received from foul shots. Bill Mavredes, Tony Protho, and Jerry Young, also high scoring team members, scored 19, 12 and 12 points respectively.

Control of the boards in the game's first half was a toss up for either team, but the Engineers definitely dominated board action in the second half. Bill Mavredes, and Gene Miller were key engineers in rehound activities.

The game's second half progressed at a fast pace. Engineer play action quickened. CAC worked hard to try to keep the Engineers' leading score to a minimum. Engineer Jerry Young proved to be a valuable player in assisting his team members in scoring. Fast breaks resulting in quick scoring were prevalent; Gene Miller exhibited outstanding performance in successful fast breaks and assisting for scoring.

The night seemed to be one of the unequaled performance, despite a few playing errors resulting in point losses. Efforts to "pick" shots resulted in high scores. A main reason for Engineer success can be attributed to the intense effort in assisting team members and the lack of independent wild shooting.

ROD AND GUN CLUB

By Bill Kloeb

It's true that other parts of the country can lay claim to outstanding fishing for some particular species of fish but few if any can claim the good fishing we have for a great variety of fish.

About all the species of known game fish found in the United States can be found in Georgia and Alabama. The list includes the large and small mouth bass, rainbow, brook and brown trout, walleye, chain pickerel, white and striped bass, crappie, blue gill, bream, yellow perch and channel, flathead and bull head catfish. In addition the waters off the Georgia coast abound in all the salt water fish claimed by Florida and California.

Variety isn't the only claim this area can make. The area boasts national records for several fish. The largest bass were all taken from area waters.

Georgia Has Bass Record

Probably the most notable record was the largemouth bass taken from Montgomery Lake by George Perry back in 1932. His bass weighed an astounding 22-pounds, 4-ounces. Not only has that catch stood up over the years it has never been seriously threatened. Some 17-and 18-pound catches have been recorded but no fish in the 20-pound class have been brought to the attention of the people who keep the records. Whether this record will ever be topped, and if it is, what body of water the fish will come from has been the topic of many a winter cracker barrel conversation.

The name of the pond or stream that the record catch could come from, of course, is a matter of high speculation. Anyone making such a selection would probably have a better chance of being right if he picked a stream or an older lake. But there exists the possibility some farmer may have been growing a whopper in his farm pond and is about ready to pull him out.

South Has Advantage

One thing is fairly certain. If a record breaker is caught it will come from southern waters. Largemouth bass are found in waters throughout the United States but recorded catches to date definitely favor the southern fishermen. Catches in Florida, Louisiana, Georgia and Alabama are larger by far than those taken in other states. Fourteen- to 16-pound catches in these states are not common, but some are caught each year. Further north in the Ohio Valley are a catches from nine-to ten-pounds are considered trophies, and they get even smaller as you move north.

There is a scientific basis for the assumption that fish in the south grow larger than their northern brothers. The climate is the cause. The south has much warmer weather for longer periods each year and it takes warm weather for fish to grow. During the cold months they become sluggish and in cold water they practically hibernate.

Fishermen in this area help advertise the area as a place to catch all kinds of fish. The influx of fishermen from all parts of the country has caused a bit of confusion in identifying fish. Chain pickerel are also called jackfish, the redear sunfish is also called a shellcracker or sometimes a yellow bellied sunfish or in some cases it's just a plain sunfish depending on the origin of the fishermen.

Names Are The Games

When you start talking about bass around here you have to be specific. In this area there are smallmouth, largemouth, striped and white bass. And to make matters worse there are bass from two rivers that carry the name of the river. Supposedly the Coosa and Flint bass are caught only in the rivers whose name they bear. In some cases you have to be an expert and look close, but each of these fish do have some difference in physical characteristics.

When you see two or three of these different kinds of bass together it's not too hard to tell the differences but when you just see one by itself, giving it the wrong name is probably no worse than mistaking a mallard duck for a canvasback, a fox for a coyote, or being confused by hundreds of different names people have for poodle dogs.

The average person doesn't feel that he has to know all the names and be able to identify all the poodles. He shouldn't think he has to know all the bass either. The fact that they are fun to catch and good to eat should be enough!

Shooting championship set for Benning

Pistol marksmen will meet at Fort Benning Feb. 25 through 28 when the Rifle and Pistol Club will hold two pistol tournaments for the handgun specialists.

Two of the nations only four men to ever fire over 2,670 will be competing in the matches. These are Sgt. Maj. (ret) William B. Blankenship and MSgt. Robert Whitacre.

An eight-match International Invitational Pistol Tournament will be held the first two days of the four-day marathon with the monthly Open Handgun Pistol tourney occupying the last two days. The latter, a grand aggregate tourney, will place January grand aggregate winner and national champion, SFC Hezekiah Clark of the Army Marksmanship Training Unit, on the line to defend his title.

The international tournament, featuring both individual and team competition will include free pistol, rapid fire pistol, center fire pistol and standard pistol in that order for the first four matches. The free pistol or slow fire as it is often called, is fired from 50 meters while the rapid fire and center fire matches use 25 meters ranges. The standard pistol is fired on a 25 yard course using a 50 yard International slow fire target.

Team matches which make up the last four events will be the totaled scores of prior indicated team members who fired in the earlier individual matches.

Entries in the two tournaments are restricted somewhat as a maximum of 48 competitors will be permitted in the international matches and 150 participants in the National Open matches.

The Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club also will be host to an Open Sectional-National Indoor Rifle tournament on the indoor ranges here, Feb. 27 and 28.

The local tournament is one of the various sectional tournaments held throughout the nation between Jan. 1 and March 31 each year. Competitors in these sectionals are automatically entered in the national championship matches as all the sectional tournaments will be consolidated by the National Rifle Association into an open national indoor championship. Sectional winning scores compete with those from all over the nation.

Competitors participating in the two-day tourney will include Service, Civilian, Police and Reserve teams and individuals. The number of shooters will be limited to 56 competitors which is the capability of the range for the time alloted. These will be competing against approximately 4,000 smallbore marksmen throughout the nation.

In the eight match tournament, the first four events will be individual competition with the fifth an aggregate for the Individual Sectional Championship.

Reservists to shoot here

The 3rd U. S. Army Reserve Forces Rifle and Pistol Matches will be held at Andrews Rifle and Phillips Pistol Ranges Feb. 20 and 21.

Approximately 200 reservists will participate in the matches which will be fired from 8 a.m. until 11:30 a.m. each day. Winning teams and individuals will be awarded trophies in Marshall Auditorium at 2 p.m., Feb. 21.

Demonstration tour set by two post marksmen

Maj. Sallie Carroll, national woman's pistol champion and world champion from the US Army Marksmanship Training Unit, (USAMTU), Fort Benning, will head a two-woman pistol team which will make two guest appearances before the Fort McClellan, Ala. WAC companies Feb. 10 and 11.

The marksmanship team, including Maj. Carroll and SSgt. Barbara Hile, will make their initial appearance at 7:30 a.m. Feb. 10 and the second appearance at 1 p.m. the following day.

Seeking to promote enthusiasm and interest in marksmanship among the Woman's Army Corps within the 3rd Army area, Maj. Carroll and Sgt. Hile will be explaining the marksmanship program, its goals, accomplishments in national and international competition, the value of sharpshooting among the fairer sex and the thrill of receiving national and international recognition in shooting.

Maj. Carroll and Sgt. Hile, both holders of national and international honors, will set up static displays of weapons used in their marksmanship matches at each of their scheduled appearances.

In addition to the static display of guns, the ladies will also exhibit their many national and international medals and trophies won in marksmanship competition.

Tunnel class graduates

Sgt. Kenneth C. Olson was the distinguished graduate of the Mine and Tunnel Course Class 2-71 which graduated Feb. 12 in ceremonies in Classroom 55 at Infantry Hall.

Olson was one of 20 graduates of the seven-week Mine and Tunnel Course. Class 2-71 is the second class to graduate from the course. The first class, Class 1-71, graduated Nov. 23, 1970.

(Editor's note: A "forum," sayeth Dr. Webster, is "a medium of open discussion in which controversial issues can be discussed." This is the spirit in which this column is named—and written. It is a literary podium from which ideas and views in the realm of sportsdom can be addressed freely. This week, guest columnist Ralph Padron of Co. C, Headquarters Command Hq, Cmd. offers some not-too-complimentary statements on the 197th Infantry Brigade basketball team's successful championship drive.)

BY RALPH PADRON

As not to be accused instantly of sour grapes, I first would like to extend my congratulations to the members of the 197th Infantry Brigade basketball team for winning the post basketball championship last week. They truly had a great team, and their players deserve all the credit they can get. I will be the last to take this away from them.

But, upon closer examination, it will be found that the Infantrymen had a few things going for them which the other major unit teams lacked.

Police it all up!

You can see one of these things for yourself. Just get on the post shuttle bus some free afternoon and take the route to Kelley Hill. Keep your eyes peeled and you might just notice a large sign by a roadway, proudly proclaiming the following message: "This road policed by members of the 197th Infantry Brigade Basketball Team."

As part of their daily chores, the B-Ball team helps contribute to their unit's area beautification. Nothing wrong with this, to be sure. Unless it's the only thing they have to do all day — which, in this case, is exactly the story.

Let's take a peek at the rugged training schedule of the 197th team on a typical day. Monday, Jan. 25, is as good as any other. Depending on what time the player awakens, he goes on a very demanding police call from 8 to 9:20 a.m. From 9:30 to 11 the team practices. Then lunch, after which practice immediately is resumed until 2:30 when the squad takes a long break and rests up for their evening's contest against the Infantry Center Aviation Command. In between this rigorous schedule, the players must find time for such activities as personal affairs.

On the other hand

Now, how about the opposition? Do they get such favored treatment in their day's work? Do they get the same amount of practice time to get as well-drilled, in as good as shape or develop as much skill as their rivals from the 197th?

Don't fool yourself. A typical day for most of their opponents was the typical eight-hour workday at their respective duty sections, consisting of some kind of administrative or field duty. Such details as charge of quarters also interfered with their practice. The 197th apparently was exempt from these — as well as other fatigue duties. And who feels like playing ball after a rough day at the office — or the field.

This situation certainly was true in Hq. Cmd. — and, I believe, in other units as well. The Infantrymen probably would have beaten any of their rivals under any circumstances. They had the teamwork. No team — even mighty TSB — could prevail with just one star. And the School never came close to matching the 197th in the season's second half.

MEDDAC, despite their height just couldn't keep up. Hq. Cmd. got tired at the games' end and couldn't run with their rivals. The 931st Engineer Group also could not match strides with the Infantrymen and neither could the Aviation Command.

But, despite their fine record, the type of privileged status which the 197th ball squad enjoyed still was unfair to the rest of the league — and provided them with an advantage they should never have had — whether they were best or not.

Bearcubs bearhug cougars; win tournament

By Bob Wise

The amazing Bearcubs of Co. A, 19th Support Bn. became the first company in 197th Infantry Brigade history to capture back-to-back sports championships.

Last October the Support Bn. team won the brigade football championship. Last week they grabbed the brigade basketball title in a down-to-the-wire thriller with the Cougars of Co. C, 1st Bn., 58th Inf.

Both the Bearcubs and the Cougars are now representing the brigade in the post company-level tournament which runs through next week.

The Kelley Hill Field House was the scene of the climax to the weeklong brigade tournament. An empty seat could not be seen.

After a close thriller in the first three quarters of the game, the Cougars had moved to within one point of the Bearcubs. With one minute remaining in the game, the Cougars, trailing 45-46, got possession of the ball and called a time out.

Thirty seconds later, Maurice Travers, captain of the Bearcubs, stole the ball out of the hands of a Cougar. Two seconds later, Spencer Williams fouled Bearcub Ken Mahoney in an attempt to get the ball back.

Mahoney missed his free throw and the rebound resulted in a "jump ball." The Cougars got the tip, but the ball went out of bounds and became a possession of the Bearcubs.

Almost immediately, Travers was fouled by Cougar Calvin Williford. Travers hit his first free throw, giving the Bearcubs a two-point lead; but he missed his bonus shot.

Meanwhile, a technical foul was called on the Cougars for taking too many times out. With 20 seconds remaining in the game, Bearcub Sam Bolding converted on the technical and Co. A led by three points.

With eight seconds left in the game, Dave Westerfield of Co. C scored on a layup and was fouled by Bearcub Don Campbell.

The Cougars now had the opportunity to tie the game at 48-all with only seconds remaining.

A thousand soldiers rose to their feet. An electrifying, but eerie silence filled a usually noisy field house. Suddenly, a loud, triumphant cheer arose from the Support Bn. as Westerfield missed the free throw that would have tied the game.

At the four-second mark, Bolding put the game out of reach as he hit two free throws after being fouled in back-court by Westerfield. The score was now 50-47 and only four seconds remained.

The Cougars' only hope was to score, get fouled in the process, and tie the game with a free throw. They got the ball down court as quickly as possible. As the final second ticked off, Williams went up for a layup. He scored. He was not fouled. The game was over. The Bearcubs had come out with a 50-49 victory and a second-straight championship in a 197th Inf. Bde. sports tournament.

Overcoming insurmountable odds had been the Bearcubs' trademark in the tournament. The Cougars, who could very well be called Fort Benning's answer to Artis Gilmore's Jacksonville Five, were favored to win because of great height and shooting ability.

Going into the tournament finals, the Bearcubs needed one game to win the championship and the Cougars needed to win two games. The day before the final game, the Cougars handed the Bearcubs their first defeat of the season, 73-61, but the never-say-die Bearcubs bounced back out of sheer desire and determination the next day for victory.

Instrumental in capturing both the football title and the basketball title was the five-foot, ten-inch, 160-pound Maurice Travers.

PeeWee basketball ends season's 3rd week

PeeWee League basketball in the Youth Activities program opened the third week of play with the Hurricanes defeating the Globetrotters by a 46-29 count.

Hurricane Timothy Booth led his team in scoring with a game high of 21 points while teammates Keith Book, David Driskill and Joe Crowder netted six points each. The Hurricane scoring also included Emett Lee's four points, William Lowry's two points and Bill Jackson adding a free throw.

Trotter Cal Griffin had a 10 point game total with David Ehrhart chipping in eight points and Dewey Caulder adding 6 more. The Globetrotter scoring also included two points each by Harold Sayers and Leonard Cody and Dale Fletcher had one point.

In the second game of last week the Roadrunners outscored the Raiders by a 23-7 tally with Bob Beaukulani hitting 15 points for the winners. Mike and Kevin Hallinan combined their talents and added five more points to the Roadrunners score. Raider Frank Muller tallied all seven points for his team.

The week's final game was a 49-5 win for the high scoring PeeWee team as they defeated the Miniguns. Jim Dorchak zipped in 21 points for game scoring honors for the winners and Gus Schneider followed with 13 points. PeeWee 5 also had John Dorchak netting eight points, K. Grice hitting for four points and M. Glazier scoring three in the victory.

Scoring for the Miniguns, Keith Jenkins had two points and Dave Coggins, Steve Timm and William Finch had one point each.

Army, civilian youth handball starts

WASHINGTON (ANF) — The Army is undertaking a new program of team handball for both soldiers and civilian youths.

The project will work through existing programs and a Little League-type program for boys 13 through 16 years of age.

For the first time National Guard and Reserve units will also be involved in an intramural-type program of team handball activity.

Team handball differs from the handball now played in the U.S. It involves the skills developed in the games of basketball, soccer and volleyball. It is played either inside or outdoors on a court slightly larger than a basketball court.

The goal nets are similar in appearance and placement to those used in ice hockey. The ball used is similar to but considerably smaller than a soccer ball. Each team consists of seven players and four substitutes.

The game, which is popular in Eastern Europe and Scandinavia, requires that the ball be passed, carried, dribbled or struck, but not kicked.

In 1972 the United States will enter Olympic competition in team handball. The country's present team was formed recently from athletes who had competed in the Olympic basketball trials. Seven of the 11 members are Army personnel.

This small group, along with those who tried out for team handball but were not selected, are the only experienced players in the U.S.

By supporting the sport the Army hopes to develop a pool of trained athletes from which talent can be drawn for Olympic teams in the future.

The program, named Army Champs, will provide competition among post teams beginning in June, leading to team finals in 1972. National youth finals will be held at West Point and Active and Reserve Component finals will be held at Fort Belvoir, Va.

Further details on Army Champs will be provided by 12 National Guard and Reserve officers who will conduct briefings for units and headquarters in the field. Also, Army players will make exhibition tours and coaching clinics will be conducted under the direction of the Department of the Army Sports Office.

German officer finds a little bit of home at Benning

By Martin McWilliams

Ever feel like a stranger in a foreign land?

Lt. Col. Paul Schulz and his family are in a foreign land, but "we don't feel like strangers. We feel right at home," Schulz says.

Schulz is an Infantry officer in the Bundeswehr, the West German Army, currently serving as liaison officer to the Infantry School.

"Fort Benning's hospitality has been wonderful," Schulz exclaims. Of course, there have been some surprises.

"Your winter," observes the colonel is "comparable to our German summer. I was very pleased." He arrived at Fort Benning in December, leaving deep snow behind him in Germany.

"Also," continues Schulz "we were worried about the bread. We had heard that Americans ate only white bread, and we were relieved to find a very good German bread in the commissary."

Schulz' wife, Margarete, is able to find in the commissary almost all of the food she needs to prepare her family's accustomed dishes.

Schulz entered the army after graduating from Hindinburg College in his native Hanover. Like all German officers, he entered the enlisted ranks, and went to an OCS-type officer school to earn his commission.

Schulz says the greatest difference between the German officer training school and Fort Benning's Officer Candidate School is the inclusion of all service branches in one school. "The school discourages the bunching of soldiers from one branch," he explains. The aim is a breakdown of branch rivalry and maximum exchange of ideas.

Commissioned in the infantry, Schulz was a company commander during World War II. After being captured by the Russians, he was interned in a labor camp near Moscow for three years. He obtained his release by feigning illness, and made his way back to West Germany.

"Officers were not allowed to go to the university, after the war," remembers Schulz, so he found work as a merchant. With rearmament, in 1956, Schulz joined the Bundeswehr, and became an instructor in an officer school similar to the one in which he had earned his commission.

LT. COL. PAUL SCHULZ
West German Liaison Officer

After duty as a company commander and a staff assignment, Schulz became an instructor at his Army's version of the Infantry Officer Advanced Course.

"We have two infantry advanced schools," notes Schulz. "One is for mechanized infantry, the other for what you would call foot soldiers. We call them 'grasshopper infantry.'" Schulz taught at the mechanized infantry school.

Schulz next served as deputy commander of the Honor Guard Battalion, the German Army's spit-and-polish counterpart to the U.S. Army's Old Guard.

Before coming to Fort Benning, Schulz was assigned to a NATO staff slot. He used the opportunity to polish the English he had learned in college. He came to Fort Benning on his birthday, Dec. 10.

"Our arrival was very smooth," says Schulz. "The sponsor system was in my case very effective, very convenient." Schulz gives much of the credit to Lt. Col. James Cochran, of the Infantry School, who acts as his permanent sponsor, under a Benning program to assign permanent sponsors to assigned foreign personnel.

Schulz is also complimentary of the post's housing division, which did "a very good job of making our new house comfortable."

"Altogether," says Schulz, "the people at Fort Benning have been very friendly. Our whole family hasn't had the feeling at all that we are foreigners."

High school schedules barbecue

The Booster Club of Kendrick High School is sponsoring a barbecue from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m., Feb. 27. Tickets will cost $1.50. Ticket holders are entitled to a barbecue plate or three sandwiches.

Delivery service will be provided for two or more orders at the same place within the city limits of Columbus, Phenix City and Fort Benning.

Telephone numbers to call for pick up orders or delivery on Feb. 27 are 561-7772 or 561-7895.

Anyone wishing to purchase tickets may do so at Kendrick or call 561-4790, 323-3541 or 561-4831.

Proceeds will be used to purchase athletic equipment and to offset football expenses.

Processing changes for Puerto Ricans

The Department of the Army has changed separation processing procedures for non-CONUS residents from Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands.

Under this procedure, all non-CONUS residents from Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands will be interviewed by their personnel officers at least 90 days before their separation date. During the interview, the individual will elect whether he desires separation with immediate transportation back to his home or record or whether he desires to remain in CONUS after separation.

If he elects to remain in CONUS after separation, he will be entitled to government transportation back to his home of record for a period of one year for his release from active duty. If an individual desires separation with immediate transportation back, the Transfer Point should be notified at least 60 days prior to separation date in order that a port call be obtained.

If an individual desires to remain in CONUS, his request to do so will be forwarded by the personnel officer, to AG, USAIC, for approval.

Formerly, personnel of both categories desiring separation and return to Puerto Rico or the Virgin Islands were transferred to Ft. Hamilton, N.Y., for separation processing and return home.

USMAPS orientation to be held

An orientation on the United States Military Academy Preparatory School (USMAPS) will be conducted 4:15 p.m. Monday in Infantry Hall's Marshall Auditorium.

Persons qualified at attend USMAPS under provisions of AR 351-12 are urged to attend the briefing, said Capt. William J. Ervin, project officer.

The briefing will cover all phases of life at USMAPS (which is located at Ft. Belvoir, Va.) and at West Point.

Attempts being made to improve Army housing

WASHINGTON (ANF) — In an effort to make service life more attractive, the Department of the Army (DA) has several programs underway designed to improve the housing situation for both officers and enlisted Army personnel.

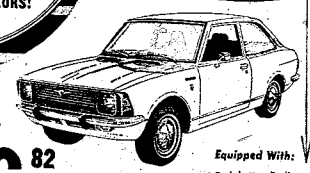
Foremost among these is a continuing effort to secure sufficient funding for this purpose. Among other actions in this area are the following:

DA is attempting, within available funding, to lease more family housing to help relieve the existing shortage of government quarters.

The Department of Defense (DOD) and the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) are cooperating on a pilot project which could ultimately lead to a substantial number of subsidized family-rental units in the United States for lower-ranking service personnel.

The test project calls for the building of 5,000 comparatively low-rent units for occupancy by military members of the Defense establishment. Fifteen hundred of these will be reserved for Army personnel and their families.

Initial construction should start in early 1971 near selected military installations in CONUS. The rental units are expected to take 12 to 18 months to build. This program will primarily benefit individuals not presently eligible for government family quarters.



Bachelor Housing

Revised AR 210-16, which became effective June 1970, established minimum standards of adequacy for bachelor housing which will apply uniformly throughout CONUS.

The building of more bachelor quarters is receiving high priority among Army construction projects. Additionally, dollar ceiling increases in the per unit statutory limitation for such construction have been approved.

Some benefits apply mainly to white collar workers

Income tax and you

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fourth in a series on ways you can save on your Federal income tax return this year. The articles are written by Henry Block, president of H and R Block, Inc., America's largest tax service.)

While collar workers frequently have felt somewhat neglected in past years when they filled out their Federal tax returns. Many tax saving deductions which were available to other kinds of workers were denied to office employes.

Although provisions granting relief to white collar workers have been in effect for some time, there are many people in this category who are not taking advantage of their rightful tax deductions. While these deductions are available to all qualified taxpayers, they apply primarily to white collar workers.

Deduction for Training

If the goal is right, cost for special educational training can be deductible. If the training is primarily to increase your proficiency in your present job, or if it is required by your employer, your costs probably will be deductible.

For example, an office worker is in charge of programming computers in the accounting department. His employer expects him to keep up with developments in the computer field, so he takes a special course. The cost of the course, to the extent it is not reimbursed by his employer, would be deductible. A man in the sales department in the same company wants to get into computer work, so he takes the same course. The cost of the course would not be deductible for him because it does not apply to his present post.

Maybe Car Expenses

An office worker cannot deduct his car expenses for transportation to and from work. But if he is required to run errands for his employer or to drive his car between job locations and he is not fully reimbursed for these expenses by his employer, they would be deductible.

Deduct Subscriptions

Office workers also can deduct subscriptions to professional journals relating to their work, membership fees in professional organizations, and of course, any charitable contributions made at work. Fees paid to employment agencies to find employment are also deductible.

Moonlighters

Many people take second jobs or "moonlight" in order to supplement their income. Such moonlighting can create special tax situations that are often misunderstood.

For purposes of withholding each employer is required to withhold taxes from you as if that were the only job you held during the year. This is true even though you may be making only $20 per week. On a job paying this amount there would be no withholding for Federal income taxes. Your annual wage would be only $1,040 and since a single person pays no tax until his income reaches $1725 there would be no tax liability. Of course in your case this money is added to the salary you receive on your regular job and the total amount is taxes.

Assuming you claim your normal amount of exemptions on your regular job your withholding there would be sufficient to cover your tax liability if that were the only job you held during the year. Combined with your part time earnings you may discover that you owe a balance of several hundred dollars to Uncle Sam come April when you file your tax return.

In order to avoid the possibility of this happening there are several possible courses of action open to you. You could claim zero exemptions on your part-time job. If this is not sufficient then you could ask your employer to withhold a greater amount from your pay each week. Another alternative would be to file a declaration of estimated tax, making quarterly payments to the government in the approximate amount of your additional tax liability.

In any case the best procedure to follow is to sit down, estimate your total income and deductions and calculate roughly what your tax liability will be at the end of the year. Then, after figuring your total withholding from your regular job, it is a fairly simple matter to determine how much additional tax should be paid to the government.

Another point to remember is that if your regular job pays you more than $7,800 you may have a credit for excess FICA. The maximum amount that can be withheld from your pay for social security is $374.40 (4.8 per cent of $7800). Again, each employer withholds social security as if that were the only job you had all year. If you have more than one job and the combined total of your social security withholding is more than $374.40 you can claim the difference as a credit against your tax.

People have often been heard to remark "I can't afford to take a second job" or "I can't afford to have my wife work since it will put us in a higher tax bracket." There is a great deal of misunderstanding about tax brackets and this must be clarified.

Our system is known as a progressive system of taxation, i.e., the more money you earn, the higher the tax bracket. It is important to note, however, that the lower tax dollars always are taxed at the lower level and only the additional tax dollars are in the higher brackets.

In other words, if you are single your first $500 of taxable income is taxed at the rate of 14 per cent whether you are a ditch digger or a multimillionaire playboy. Following this line of reasoning, there is no way that taking a second job could cost you money.

Of course there are many other economic factors to be considered in addition to taxes. If your wife decided to take a second job to augment your income at $50 per week and then proceeded to buy a new wardrobe, spend $10 a week on commuting, $10 for lunches and $30 for babysitters, you would indeed be behind the economic eight-ball and would be better off to have her stay home.

their commissions. OCS graduates do not attend branch basic officer courses.

From BIOCC, however, the newly commissioned second Lieutenant would attend the basic officer course of the branch in which he is commissioned..

Because the BIOCC graduate will attend the same branch basic course as the ROTC graduate, Infantry School officials believe the BIOCC graduate must have basically the same skills as the ROTC graduate.

For that reason ROTC curriculum was closely evaluated in preparing the BIOCC program of instruction. As with the ROTC graduate, the BIOCC graduate will have the basic officer qualifications without specific branch skills.

Current plans call for BIOCC graduates to take advanced courses in some Infantry Officers Basic Course subjects. Qualification for the advanced studies program will be based on results of diagnostic testing.

It is expected that other branch schools will follow the same pattern in their revisions of basic officer courses to be attended by BIOCC graduates.

New name for cost reduction

Resources conservation not fishy

By Les Hauser

Resources Conservation. It sounds like something from the Georgia Game and Fish Association. But it is actually the new name for Fort Benning's cost reduction program.

Perhaps resources conservation does not seem like a very interesting subject, but it is of prime importance at Fort Benning. Since the Fort Benning cost reduction program began seven years ago, more than $16 million has been saved on post. These savings are eventually passed on to the taxpayer in the form of reduced military budgets.

The original cost reduction program was fathered by President John F. Kennedy in 1962. At that time he issued the secretary of defense a directive requesting that he "procure and operate our military force at the lowest possible cost."

President Lyndon B. Johnson continued to support the program in his drive to "give the American people a dollar's value for every dollar spent."

In 1963 Fort Benning jumped on the savings handwagon and assigned individuals to monitor potential cost reduction areas.

Since then Fort Benning has compiled a very distinguished record in the program. Every year since the program started, Fort Benning has exceeded its specified goal as set by DOD. In 1968 Fort Benning received the DOD Unit Award for the most outstanding cost reduction program in the Army. During that year Fort Benning achieved over 250 per cent of its DOD goal.

In 1969 the post received the Army's Certificate of Merit for outstanding accomplishments under the cost reduction program.

In 1970 the Fort Benning program came through again by having the highest dollar saving in the entire CONARC (Continental Army Command) area, with a total dollar savings of more than $2 million or 281 per cent of its DOD goal.

To add incentive to the local cost reduction program, Fort Benning initiated in 1966 what is known as the Comanding General's Award for the organization on post which has made the best contribution to the success of the cost reduction program. This award program has since been used as a pilot project by a number of other military installations.

The Commanding General's award has been given twice to the Infantry School and twice to the Services Division. This year's award was presented to the Directorate of Communications and Electronics (Comm-Elect). Comm-Elect saved $94,000 or more than 1,000 per cent of its assigned goal.

To be sure, the resources conservation program is no empty title at Fort Benning.

Refreshing

Lissome, lovely Willy Rey, Playboy's February Playmate of the Month, adds a refreshing change to the new year. Willy is a nonconformist and admits to being close to her parents and actually enjoys living at home. The 21-year-old Vancouverite moved to Canada from the Netherlands in 1955, and currently is enjoying her occupation as a photographer's model. Future-wise, the 5-foot-4, 108 lb. strawberry blonde hopes for her long-time ambition to come true — an acting career. The men who feel they're missing out because of their lack of a beard and long hair can step forward, because hazel-eyed Willy states emphatically, "I want my dates to look like men." Three cheers for the home body.

son (her is the most emotion -evoking performance of the evening), the Dramatizers handled this technique convincingly.

The set, which was designed for three areas of acting on stage, was well constructed and arranged, particularly considering the antiquated stage facilities at the post playhouse. Ed Gibbs is an example of the hammer-and-nail operation. Commendations also are due to Within for the fine audio part of the production.

The show will be presented tonight, tomorrow and Monday through Thursday of next week at the post playhouse (Bldg. 1237). Performances will begin at 8 p.m. Tickets are free and can be obtained at the playhouse or reserved by phoning 545-2316. Because of the nature of the play, no one under 18 will be admitted.

Dangerous mail reduced from Southeast Asia

WASHINGTON (AFPS) —Most dangerous contraband items have been eliminated from the mails returning from Southeast Asia, according to the Air Force's top postal officer.

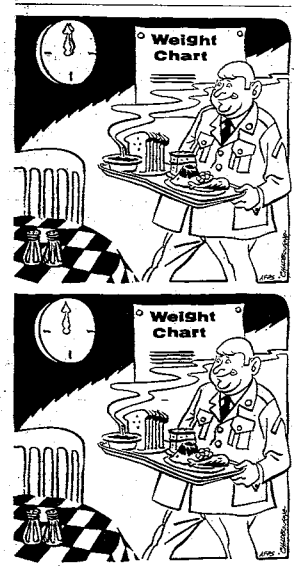
Col. Andrew J. DiAntonio, commander of the Air Force Postal and Courier Service, spent 17 days touring postal facilities in Southeast Asia with Myles J. Ambrose, U.S. Commissioner of Customs.

Their inspection came after a year's intensive effort to intercept large amounts of narcotics, explosive devices and weapons being mailed to the United States from U.S. post offices in the Pacific.

Some measures taken included requiring all persons mailing packages to present identification, outlining new proceedings in routing all packages through customs and explaining the need for corrective actions to eliminate contraband from the mails.

Mail terminals installed X-ray and electronic metal detection devices to help in screening mail coming into the United States.

Col. DiAntonio said that while "service" is the principal goal of the Postal and Courier Service, "we will not be satisfied until all materials of this nature are eliminated from our military postal systems."



Medic receives $405 award

Spc Harold Mowan, a member of Medical Company, was awarded $405 for a suggestion which resulted in an estimated annual savings of $7,051.

Mowan works in the Urology Clinic at Martin Army Hospital. He proposed that a person's last name and first initial be included on the x-ray film in addition to the last four digits of the social security number as a means of identification by the X-ray and Urology Clinics. Adoption of this suggestion expedited the replacing of X-rays to the proper file jackets, improved operations, conserved time in patient care, and helped to prevent the rescheduling of patients unnecessarily due to temporary loss of film.

Free bus to Columbus

Having problems getting downtown to see your chick? Is the lack of wheels keeping you away from that movie everyone is talking about?

Don't be hung up in the barracks watching "Lucy" reruns anymore. Catch the free bus to Columbus and have a night — or weekend afternoon — on the town.

Free bus to Columbus? That's right Starting this week free bus rides are available downtown — if you have the required ticket.

Tickets are available in each unit on post. Each ticket is good for a one-way trip to town. That means you need two tickets if you hope to return via bus.

Howard Bus Lines Inc. is providing the service under terms of a contract executed recently with the Central Post Fund.

The bus company will be reimbursed for each cancelled ticket it returns to CPF authorities. The amount of funds allocated for the free bus services — a program of the Modern Volunteer Army — is $122,500.

Lt. Col. Grady E. Oxford, who is administering the program for CPF, said approximately 150,000 round trips could be provided soldiers under the contract.

Initially, 100,000 tickets were printed, Grady said. More will be printed — up to the funding limit — as that supply is depleted.

Transportation to Atlanta' available, too

The post Special Service Office is now providing free weekend bus transportation from the Fort Benning Howard Bus Station to the Spring Street USO in Atlanta.

A 40 passenger Howard Bus Lines bus will leave the Fort Benning Howard Bus Station on Wold Ave. each Saturday morning at 9 a.m. and arrive at the Atlanta Spring Street USO at about 11 a.m.

15 officers inducted into OCS Hall of Fame

Fifteen officers were inducted into the Infantry Officer Candidate School Hall of Fame yesterday in ceremonies at Wigle Hall.

Brig. Gen. John T. Carley, assistant commandant of the Infantry School, presented the certificates of induction.

Three general officers headed the list of inductees. They were Brig. Gen. Frederic C. Krause, assistant division commander of the 1st Armored Division, Brig. Gen. Thomas Tackaberry of the office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel in Washington, and Brig. Gen. Harry H. Hiestand, assistant commander of the 8th Infantry Division. Gen. Krause was the only one of the three to attend the ceremony.

Attending the ceremony also were colonels James Hill, Eugene Perry, John Van Eaton, E. R. Fitzgerald, Robert Edwards, and Henry Austin.

Unable to attend were colonels Edger Poole, John Foulk, R. W. Aronson, Donald Lanier, Williams Patterson and Richards Stewart.

Induction ceremonies included the reading of the certificate of induction of each officer after which the portrait of the officer which will hang in the hall was unveiled.

After the induction ceremonies, Col. Frank Garrison, commander of The Post institutes race relations filing system

A separate filing system at the major unit, company and battalion level is being implemented at Fort Benning to give commanders ready access to information on policies, past experiences and actions relating to race relations on post.

Commanders have been instructed to use the separate file as reference for race relations seminars, investigations of racial incidents and complaints, and briefings to incoming personnel, especially those in leadership or supervisory positions.

The file is to be divided into sections covering Department of the Army, Continental Army Command, 3rd Army, Infantry Center and major unit and battalion policies on race relations.

A circular (USAIC Circular 600-30) on the new system notes a number of required references for the file, as

School's new class teaches care of environment

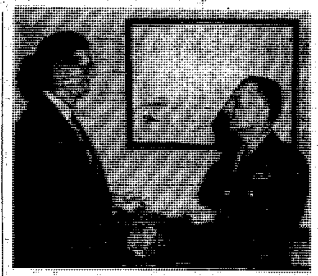
By Martin McWilliams

An experimental block of instruction being given to members of the Infantry Officer Advanced Course puts the Infantry School in the forefront of the Army's efforts in environmental control.

The new class — the first of its kind in the Army — is entitled "Environmental Quality." The instruction grew out of the concern of Brig. Gen. John Carley, assistant commandant of the Infantry School, over the impact of Army post operations upon the environment in which they took place.

Lt. Col. Thomas McClelland, chief instructor and one of the architects of the course, said the class is aimed at the tactically oriented officer whose career will encompass problems which will be mostly non-tactical in nature.

"We want to prepare those who will be holding staff and command positions for environmental problems which exist now, and for new ones which may occur in the future. We want to teach officers to consider actions in a context of total impact on natural, industrial and social environment," he explained.



McClelland, chief of the engineering committee of the Brigade and Battalion Operations Department of the Infantry School, considers the new block of instruction unique in the Army sys-

Museum check

Safetyman cites post's most dangerous area

"Have you ever given any thought to the most dangerous area of Fort Benning?" asked James E. Blount, Fort Benning's safety director.

"If we are to assume that the most dangerous area is where more people are killed in accidents, then indeed we must look at an area where motor vehicles operate. Far more deaths are caused on the reservation by motor vehicle accidents than any other single cause," Blount said.

"Among all of the locations where accidents have occurred during the past five years in a motor vehicle, none comes close to the unenviable record held by a short stretch of four lane highway on the reservation known as U.S. Highway 27," he stated.

"In a period of less than five years, beginning with the start of fiscal year 1967, eight lives have been lost on this stretch of highway. There have been from one to two fatal accidents each year on this part of the reservation.

"This is a greater hazard area than any several other areas combined. The total listed just above does not include other fatal accidents near the reservation on this highway which have claimed numerous lives, including Fort Benning personnel," he added.

"A slower speed, driving or riding in a privately owned vehicle with safety belts properly worn, and not driving on this area after drinking or when sleepy, would help reduce future fatal accidents on this high hazard stretch of highway. Keeping to the right except to pass will prevent being struck in the rear by a speeding vehicle.

"There are other ways to be safe when driving. These, however, and keeping extremely alert for the unexpected, along with practicing the principals of defensive driving, will help keep you from becoming a future victim of a fatal accident on this dangerous area," Blount concluded.

Specialist awarded 2 medals posthumously

The Bronze Star Medal and Good Conduct Medal were awarded posthumously to Sp4 James L. Jones in a recent ceremony here.

Col. Robert P. Hatcher Jr., assistant post commander, made the presentations to Mr. and Mrs. Lynn L. Jones of Chattahoochee, Fla., the specialist's parents.

Sp4 Jones was killed in action July 9, 1970 in the Republic of Vietnam.

Before his death, Sp4 Jones had been awarded the National Defense Service Medal, Vietnam Service Medal, Vietnam Campaign Medal, Expert Badge with automatic rifle bar and the Marksman Badge with rifle bar.

The ceremony also was attended by Dena K. Jones, the specialist's sister; Joseph M. Jones, his brother; Mrs. Hattie Lee Duce, his grandmother; and Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur D. Hill, his uncle and aunt.

Gardner honored

Col. Leonard R. Daems Jr., director, Command Maintenance Department, delivered the commencement address to the 171 graduates.

Gardner is a graduate of Auburn University with a bachelor of science degree in business administration. He received his commission in the Infantry.

The nine-week IOBC program is designed to provide branch training for officers of the Active Army, National Guard and the Army Reserve. The students were taught the duties and responsibilities of company grade officers. Included in the course of instruction were small arms, mortar, company and platoon operations.

Byline Bayonet

(Byline Bayonet welcomes questions of general interest about Fort Benning and the Army. Within space limitations, all reasonable questions will be answered. Questions of a purely military nature which obviously could be answered more properly by commander or supervisors within the chain of command will not be accepted. Questions must be signed with current unit of assignment indicated. Send questions to "The Bayonet, Room 602, Infantry Hall.)

Q — Which are the ten largest Army posts (by troop population)?

A — As of November 1970 they were Ft. Lewis, Wash., 39,493; Ft. Hood, Tex., 39,445; Ft. Bragg, N. C., 36,374; Ft. Knox, Ky., 29,820; Ft. Dix, N. J., 28,538; Ft. Carson, Colo., 26,625; Ft. Ord, Calif., 25,146; FORT BENNING, GA., 24,115; Ft. Riley, Kan., 21,448; and Ft. Wood, Mo., 21,107.

Q — What is Department of Army doing to make more and better quarters available for both officers and enlisted personnel?

A — DA recognizes that nonavailability of adequate government quarters can be damaging to both one's pocketbook and morale. Therefore, it is trying to improve the housing situation in a number of ways. Foremost among these is a continuing effort to secure sufficient funding for this purpose. Among other ongoing actions in this area are the following:

Family Housing.

— DA is attempting, within available funding, to lease more family housing to help relieve the existing shortage of government quarters.

— DoD and the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) are cooperating on a pilot project which could ultimately lead to a substantial number of subsidized family rental units in the U. S. for lower ranking service personnel.

The test project calls for the building of 5,000 comparatively low rent units for occupancy by military members of the defense establishment. Fifteen hundred of these will be reserved for Army personnel and their families.

Initial construction should start in early 1971 near selected military installations in CONUS. The rental units are expected to take 12 to 18 months to build.

The program, which is being sponsored by the Federal Housing Administration, will primarily benefit individuals not presently eligible for government family quarters. It could be expanded considerably should the pilot effort prove successful.

Bachelor Housing.

— Revised AR 210-16, which became effective June 30, 1970, established minimum standards of adequacy for bachelor housing which will apply uniformly throughout CONUS.

— The building of more bachelor quarters is receiving high priority among Army construction projects. Additionally, dollar ceiling increases in the per unit statutory limitation for such construction have recently been approved.

— DA is considering the possible leasing of bachelor quarters in areas where adequate facilities do not exist.

The judge says

When can a person be negligent?

USAIC LEGAL ASSISTANCE OFFICE — A person who does not act reasonable, and thereby causes injury is legally "negligent." Since the law assumes that the "reasonable man" always obeys the law, he is "negligent per se" (in itself) if his breaking the law brings about injury to someone. However, he sometimes has the right to show facts to excuse or rebut the "presumption" of negligence.

Take the notary public who notarized Hank's signature in the sale of real estate which belonged to Hank and his wife, Hannah. Hank sold their property without telling Hannah, by getting his secretary to forge the deed.

Although the real estate man often dealt with Hank, he had never met Hannah. Hank introduced his secretary to the real estate man as his wife. Together they went to the notary to sign the papers. The notary certified that they were "individuals personally known to her as the person who signed."

Learning of the forgery, Hannah sued her husband, the buyers and the notary. Hank was clearly liable for damages, but he was now divorced and broke. The buyer still had the property and might lose it.

The notary also was liable to Hannah and the buyer, the court ruled since it refused to allow her to rebut the presumption of negligence. This was so although it may have been customary, as claimed for the notary, to take the word of a responsible real estate man, since the law calls on the notary personally to know the signers. The notary didn't and had to pay.

Many negligent actions involved violation of motor vehicle laws such as failure to yield, speeding, improper lights and improper parking.

The court may excuse such violations only if the injured person was otherwise protected. For example, the law requires certain trucks or other heavy equipment to have warning devices when they back up. One such piece of equipment had no device, but the driver yelled out warnings when he backed up. In this case the court ruled out the presumption of negligence.

Inquiries concerning this topic or related legal matters may be directed to your Legal Assistance Office.

Economics of eating

In these days of increasing prices and inflation, one of the last great bargains for the U.S. serviceman is the military meal. Just how long it remains a bargain is a matter of how wisely service folk utilize their culinary bargains.

Food becomes more and more expensive by the day; ask any housewife—she'll verify the statement. Better yet, compare prices on the menu of any average restaurant with prices charged by the same establishment a decade ago. The high cost of feeding ourselves in that 10-year span has increased enormously, mostly due to increased farm, labor, processing and transportation costs in an ever-expanding economy.

Nevertheless; the amount the Government estimates as the cost of a military meal has remained, throughout that period, astonishingly low. The same amount of nourishment cannot be obtained elsewhere for such reasonable prices.

What it all boils — or broils, or bakes or cooks—down to is the same thing that some economy-minded soul advocated during World War II: "Take all you want, but eat all you take." To which might be added: "Within reason, of course." (AFPS Editorial)

Freedoms Foundation's winner

Freedom: Privilege or Obligation?

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Army Capt. Tibor Bierbaum has been named active duty winner of Freedoms Foundation's 1970 Letter Awards Program, an annual event sponsored by the foundation. For his efforts Bierbaum received $1,000 and a George Washington Honor Medal. Bierbaum, 31, is currently assigned to the John F. Kennedy Center for Military Assistance at Ft. Bragg, N.C. he was born in Sopron, Hungary, and fled from the Communist-dominated country right after the Hungarian Revolution in 1956. Bierbaum immigrated to the United States when he was 18 and enlisted in the Army in 1959.)

By Captain Tibor Bierbaum

I saw my little brother die unattended in a Communist hospital because my parents were not members of the Communist Party. My father was being "detained" for four years in Russia and I helped my mother support my two younger brothers. When Stephen died, I vowed to leave Hungary to escape this tyranny and, after my father's return, I fled to the United States.

When I left I knew I carried with me the obligation to help others resist such oppression. Wherever my shadow falls, I want this story heard. The countries who lie silent under Communist rule are not content to do so. They are fearful countries; they are helpless countries; they may not remember freedom in another generation. The communists in Vietnam would create such a silence there and the world would call it peace.

To be strong on the earth, a nation must first be strong in the mind of its youth for here it is the Communists prey. Strength of mind comes before all other strength, and youthful minds are being trained and controlled in all countries. Yes, here in the United States, too.

Idealism in the United States must not become the maudlin sentiment of pictures inside minds. Our "revolution" IS HERE and the Communists will take every advantage to increase discord and dissention in our country. HEAR ME! I've lived through it once and I cling to those old ideals of honor and morality, especially with respect to our country and the sanctity of freedom.

Enemy bullets are no different wherever I face them, but now I have my dreams of returning to my home, my family and choosing my way of life. I have been privileged to become a citizen in America.

Influence and man are inseparable. Those who have been as privileged as I will feel the obligation to protect and preserve the freedoms of the United States against all aggressors, within and without, and under the shadow of their strength, freedom will flourish. All the others who do not do so are the freeloaders—dead weight to freedom — and have no right to the privilege because they do not apply their obligation.

Post dependent receives West Point appointment

Tobert V. Walsh Jr., the 17-year-old son of SFC and Mrs. Robert Walsh, Fort Bennning, received notification Feb. 12 of his selection to the U.S. Military Academy at West Point by Presidential appointment.

The Baker High Senior was informed of his selection in a letter from the Department of the Army. He will report to the Plain of West Point on the Hudson July 1.

Young Walsh, an honor student at Baker, has contributed and achieved much in his brief years. His long list of achievements include: A member of The National Honor Society, National Merit Scholarship Finalist, Certificate of Merit Winner, Alternate to the Governor's Honor Program, member of the Society of Outstanding High School Students and a winner of the Civitan Club Award for two years.

In addition, Walsh has participated in the school's ROTC program where he attained the rank of major. He is presently the executive officer of the unit. Walsh is a member of the Baker High Rifle Team and has achieved distinction as being one of two youths in the City of Columbus to belong to the 275 Club. This select club membership is restricted to those rifle marksmen who have fired a possible 275 of 300 in marksmanship competition. The young sharpshooter has been competing for three years.

An extensive reader, young Walsh is also a very accomplished chess player and has been a member of the Baker High Chess Club.

The young appointee is active in his church and has been serving as president of his Junior Luther League.

Young Walsh and his family reside at 123 England Street at Fort Benning. He has two sisters, Eileen a sophomore at Columbus College and Barbara a seventh grader at Faith School. His father, a Vietnam veteran, is a machinist in the Ordinance Division of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit.

ROBERT WALSH
Presidential Appointee

Presenting Check

Mrs. James J. Dixon, president of the Noncommissioned Officers' Wives Club, presents a check for $200 to Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander, as the club's donation to the Infantry Museum fund raising campaign. Fort Benning's goal in the drive to raise $2 million for the new museum is $100,000.

Discussing benefit ball

CSM Charles H. Fletcher, Fort Bennings' senior noncommissioned officer, and CSM John H. Bittorie, the Infantry School senior NCO, talk with C. E. "Chuck" DeRemer, 3rd Region President of AUSA at the Washington Birthday Benefit Ball sponsored by AUSA, Feb. 19, at Fort Benning. Fletcher and Bittorie are on the local AUSA board of directors.

Plan horse, wagon parade

Army daughters set party

Covered wagon wheels will be rolling again at Fort Benning March 6 as the Daughters of the U.S. Army kick off the annual "49ers Party" Hunt Club Parade at 10 a.m. from the Hunt Club.

Costume judging for 10-18 year old contestants will be held at 9 a.m. in the upper ring at the Hunt Club. Prize categories will be for most representatives of the "49er Party" spirit, best cowboy, best Indian and most humorous and originiinal.

Prizes will be gift certificates from the Southeastern Saddle Shop. Judges will be Col. and Mrs. James W. Haley and Col. and Mrs. Charles C. Thebaud.

The parade will begin at the Hunt Club, proceed out the main gate to Arrowhead Road (Custer Terrace), to Craig Drive, to Custer Road, through the main gate, up Sigerfoos to First Division Road, to Lumpkin Road, to Yeager Avenue, to Bjornstad Street, to Running Ave., to Baltzell Avenue, to Rainbow Avenue, and back to the Hunt Club.

The parade, restricted to horse owners only, will include a western band and the Infantry Museum covered wagon.

The signup sheet for the parade and costume judging is on the Hunt Club bulletin board. In case of rain, the costume judging will be held in the barn at the Hunt Club.

For more information call Col. William Guthrie, Hunt Club president, at 545-1413; or Mrs. Curtis J. Herrick at 545-4506.

Commissaries open in evening

Courtesy is not a lost art. Especially not at the Fort Benning commissary stores.

In pace with the Modern Volunteer Army (VOLAR) concept, two major changes have been undertaken to improve customer service at the commissary

Sales hours were revised recently in hopes that customers would be distributed more evenly throughout the sales week.

The main store now remains open until 9 p.m. on Tuesday and Thursday. The Custer Terrace store is open until 9 p.m. on Monday and Friday evenings.

Hopefully, more customers will shop during the evenings to ease the congestion on Saturday at both stores.

The second innovation is a training program for employes to improve their ability to serve their customers. The main emphasis of the course is courtesy and responsiveness.

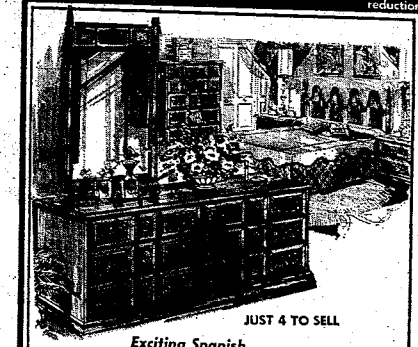
The ultimate goal is to make the commissary one of the friendliest facilities of the Fort Benning community.

'Driving' salute not required

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Salutes are no longer required to be rendered by or to personnel in vehicles, according to the latest word from the Department of the Army. An exception has been made for gate guards who will continue to salute recognized officers in official vehicles only.

In another change, salutes are no longer required to be rendered or returned if either the senior or subordinate or both are in civilian attire.

Word has been issued to local commanders to "carefully review saluting policies for their installations. Where considered desirable in their judgment, they will develop and publish modified saluting policies for congested student or high-density living areas where saluting would be highly repetitious or otherwise infeasible."



It has also been announced that personnel will not be required to wear military beadgear on or off a military installation while in a private or commercial vehicle.

'49ers Party' proceeds to help construct nursery

Proceeds from this year's "49ers Party" on March 6 will go toward construction of a new day-care nursery in the proposed Post Exchange shopping complex to be constructed near Martin Army Hospital.

The project and the party are sponsored by the Daughters of the U. S. Army who also run the existing Tot Town Nursery near White School.

The nursery cares for an average of 200 children per day and on the average feeds about 171 children daily. During a month the nursery's 35 employes care for more than 6,000 children.

It provides free diaper service, a car pool to four of the post's schools, and supervised play. Also the nursery will extend its normal operating hours for groups making special requests.

For the "49ers Party" the nursery will remain open until 2:30 a.m.

The present nursery, which was constructed at a cost of $175,000, was opened in the spring of 1968. Before that the nursery had been located in a wing of the old hospital, now the Martin Army Hospital Annex.

The Daughters of the U. S. Army took over operation of the nursery in 1957.

DUSA was formed at Fort Benning on Jan. 20, 1928, when the first meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Charles D. Roberts. The now national group moved its headquarters to Washington, D. C., in 1932.

The Daughters of the U. S. Army also sponsor the Junior Army Daughters, (JADA) a group of girls of high school age whose fathers are officers in the Army, active, retired or deceased.

They hold monthly meetings and sponsor parties at Martin Army Hospital and bake sales.

JADA is responsible for collecting "white elephants" for this year's "49ers Party." The "odds and ends" will be sold at the party. Chairwomen of the party's "Country Store" are Lyndajo Thomas and Kit Vinson.

Chairwomen for the party are:

Columbus College offering midnight courses

Midnight classes begin at Columbus College this spring, and students who were unable to get early morning classes before, will now have wee-early morning classes available to them.

"This is the first time to my knowledge that any institution in the University System of Georgia has offered 'midnight' instruction," Dr. John E. Anderson, dean of the college, said.

In its innovative effort to reach more people and to better serve the community, Columbus College is offering four courses from midnight to 2:10 a.m. Each will meet two nights a week.

Courses offered include government, U. S. history to 1877, music appreciation, and English composition and rhetoric. All are on the freshman and sophomore level.

Applications for enrollment must be made today. Those who are enrolling for the first time should call the college admissions office, 561-5134, extension 214, for further information.

Noting that the whole idea is experimental, Dean Anderson stated that if the response is good, the college will continue the program.

"This program is part of our continual effort to be innovative, responsive, and sensitive to the needs of students and potential students," Dean Anderson said.

"There are many, many people who work during the daytime and who cannot get to school during regular hours. Shift workers who get off at 11 p.m. may not wind down for awhile," he added.

Columbus College hopes to reach more people with this new and different approach, particularly those who, under normal circumstances, may not be able to attend college," Dean Anderson remarked.

"Columbus College is for all citizens, not just the 18 to 22-year-olds," he said.

"The college is also offering these courses in an effort to expand its community service and to make efficient use of its plant facilities," he explained.

Instructors who will be teaching the courses are all enthusiastic.

Dr. John H. Anderson, head of the fine arts department, is looking forward to teaching with a new approach. "Students will be enrolled only if they want to attend and want to learn. It will be a fine opportunity to experiment," he said.

"I often get some of my best work done after midnight," he added.

English instructor Paul Hackett commented, "Having worked in a mill myself — both swing and graveyard shifts — I cannot help but feel enthusiastic about this opportunity to meet the needs of those whose options for continued education are limited by the hours of their employment.

"If a modification of the college schedule will widen the availability of education to the entire community which supports the college, I am all for it."

One instructor, Monroe Smith, expressed "mixed emotions" about the idea but enjoys the chance to be among the first to teach a midnight class at the college and adds, "It permits me to be a full-time night teacher and gives me a long week-end for personal study and advancement."

The history instructor has not yet been named.

Women's News

Three Gold Star wives attend forum in D.C.

Three delegates of the Gold Star Wives in Columbus, Ga. were among the 1,500 women delegates to the Women's Forum on National Security in Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Lloyd A. Payne, Mrs. Jack W. Sanford and Mrs. David M. Leavitt heard Senator Henry M. Jackson, in a keynote address, warn that "America cannot cut and run from its responsibilities abroad."

The three-day meeting concluded Feb. 16 after hearing an address by Edward E. Masters, director of East Asian and Pacific Affairs of the State Department.

During the meeting a formal message was received from President Nixon, who praised the forum for the civic involvement of its members in the problem of national security.

In a major address on "America's Future Armed Forces," Lt. Gen. George I. Forsythe predicted the volunteer Army of 1973 will be a smaller Army, but it will be one where professionalism and high standards will be stressed. "Our military goals will be to improve the living conditions of the men, to let our men keep their human dignity, to get the junior grade officers above the poverty level, and to build up the public esteem of the Army," he said.

Mrs. Rae Shaw, national president of the American Legion Auxiliary, served as chairman of the Women's Forum on National Security, which concentrated on the forum theme of "America, Our Country."

Israeli officer visits Benning

Fort Benning's Infantry School was visited last week by Lt. Col. Josef Koller, commandant of the Israeli Army's Parachute School.

Koller had stopped at Fort Benning during a tour of military installations in the United States.

Koller had visited the School before. In 1964 he attended the Ranger and Pathfinder courses.

Clubhouse Assn. lunch scheduled

The Columbus Woman's Clubhouse Association will sponsor their annual Spring Bridge Luncheon and Fashion Show at the Club house March 19.

Bridge will begin at 10 a.m. and the luncheon at 12:30 p.m., with a short fashion show presented during the lunch hour.

A Bazaar and Sweet Shop will be available to the guests. For reservations, please telephone Mrs. Clifton Black, 561-6686, Mrs. P. B. Austin, 322-4673 or Mrs. Inez Goodroe, 322-6206.

February lunches, teas keep post wives 'in the know'

Patriots

The ladies of the 1st Bn. (Mech) 58th Inf. held their February Tea at the home of Mrs. Lane Wilton. Cohostess for the tea was Mrs. Michael Stoehr.

Welcomed into the Patriot Wives' group by Chairman Mrs. Stephen R. Pawlik were Mrs. Cecil B. Calloway, Mrs. Thomas C. Moss, and Mrs. Robert W. Milling Jr.

The evening was highlighted by an informative talk from the battalion commander of the 1st of the 58th, Lt. Col. Stephen R. Pawlik. Col. Pawlik discussed the history of the battalion colors. He explained that the 1st Bn., 58th Inf. is the only mechanized battalion east of the Mississippi River and therefore has a unique mission.

The complete battalion organization was reviewed as Col. Pawlik discussed the modern objectives of the 1st Bn. (MECH) 58th Inf.

Since Fort Benning is involved in the Volunteer Army Plan, the battalion's role in the program was discussed.

Recipe exchange

The ladies of the 4th Bn. 69th Armor held a coffee in the home of Mrs. Thomas Petty at 207A Christain Lane, Fort Benning recently. All of those attending brought their favorite recipe with enough copies for everyone. Everyone passed on "their favorite" and in return took home a new dish to try.

Following a discussion of the June luncheon, refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Thomas Petty and Mrs. Howard Abney. Before leaving a welcome was extended to Mrs. Donald McConnaughny, Mrs. Ron McDaniels, Mrs. Robert Sorensen, and Mrs. Joseph Williams.

Commissary discussed

The ladies of the 2nd Bn. 10th Arty., 197th Inf. Bde. held a coffee in the Corregidor Room of the Main Officers Club, recently.

A program was presented by Mr. C. L. Canington, the Commissary officer at Fort Benning. The ladies received information on important changes being made in the commissaries as well as brief instruction on the rules governing the management and operation of post commissaries. Mr. Canington answered individual questions the ladies had concerning products and personnel in the commissaries.

After the program, refreshments of hot ham biscuits, doughnut holes, punch and hot coffee were served from a buffet table centered with an arrangement of white gladiolas, red tulips and yellow and white carnations.

Mrs. James Wurman led a discussion of business and coming events within the battalion, brigade and Officers Wives Club.

In closing, Mrs. Wurman announced that Mrs. James Kalis, Mrs. James Whately and Mrs. Joe Parmer were the hostesses for the March coffee.

Kenneth Prater

Service cited

MEDDAC

Springer Opera House was the topic as the Medical Department Activity Officers Wives Club of Fort Benning met for lunch at the Holiday Inn Restaurant by the airport Feb. 12. Mrs. Welborn Freeze spoke to the group on the history of the Springer Opera House and Miss Kathleen Devine, star of "Showboat," sang.

A valentine theme was carried out for the luncheon as tables were decorated with red and white cloth and centerpieces were candles with greens and hearts.

Mrs. Mark S. Michelman was hostess for the afternoon and was assisted by Mrs. Cyrus Beekey, Mrs. Jon R. Clarke, Mrs. James F. Grow Jr., Mrs. Keith Kulow and Mrs. Joseph T. Spencer.

Mrs. Martin F. Anderson, club president, introduced and welcomed the new arrivals including Mrs. William A. Emmerson, Mrs. Leo Flynn, Mrs. Barry Johnson and Mrs. John Perchalski.

Mrs. Paul J. Anderson, Jr. had as her guest Mrs. John Blanks and Mrs. George E. Moore III had as her guest Mrs. Ronald Beck.

Parish Council gives laity voice in Church affairs

A new Catholic program is being established on post which enables the laity to have a greater voice in conducting social and spiritual affairs of the parish.

The program, the Catholic or Parish Council, was derived from the idea of Collegeality brought out in the Ecumenical Councils of Vatican II. Its overall purpose is to promote the spiritual welfare of all Catholics residing at or officially associated with Fort Benning, Ga. The Fort Benning Catholic Council is the first council in the 3rd Army area and is presently under experimental stages.

Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Francis J. Dolan, senior Catholic chaplain, explained, "We are trying to mold the spirit of community by giving the people an opportunity to express their desires, feelings and ideas concerning the parish. The promotion of religious and social activities, by the Catholic community, will be used to assist in the growth of Catholic, religious life."

"The people will determine how their money is spent and we hope the parents will voice their opinions as to the religious education of their children. The teen-agers should also have a voice in the council, he continued.

The Parish Council will hold its second meeting Sunday at 2 p.m. in the Chapel Annex, 201 Sigerfoos Road. All Catholics are invited to attend.

The Council itself acts as a coordinating and advisory body whose recommendations are considered by, but are not binding upon the assigned Catholic Chaplains. The Council speaks and acts for the Catholics in the parish.

It consists of the senior assigned Catholic chaplain or, an assigned Catholic chaplain designated by him and one member of the laity (or their spouse) assigned to each major unit at Fort Benning.

These units and their representatives are as follows:

The USAIS, Lt. Col. Jim I. Hunt; 197th Inf. Bde., Lt. Col. Stephen R. Pawlik; MEDDAC, Maj. James Newton; Hq. Command, Lt. Col. Steven Dorchak Jr.; TSB, SSG Frank S. Dean; CDC, Infantry Agency the Materiel Command, and Infantry Board, Lt. Col. Eugene R. Darbonne and 93ist Engr. Gp., to be appointed.

Also two members at large without regard to status or assignment, Lt. Col. Donald F. Hanson and Sp4 Mary M. Krolicki; two resident students, Capt. James Orwin and another to be selected; the president or representative of each formally constituted Catholic Lay Organization active on post, Mrs. Anthony DiLeonardo and the Religious education specialist, Sister Joan Kist.

These members will reside until August when the experimental stage of the Council is scheduled to end and a permanent Council will hopefully be established.

The Council includes commissions which, through their respective committees and sub-committees, achieve and implement the objectives of the Council. Each commission addresses the functional area identified for it.

The Community Activities Commission recommends social events and plans, coordinates and supervises the implementations of those which are approved by the Council. The commission also conducts and maintains a census of the Catholics on, or associated with, Fort Benning and serves as a sounding board and mediator for the suggestions or complaints of the Catholics. Assigned to this commission are: Lt. Col. Stephen R. Pawlik, Lt. Col. George Schneider, Therese C. Frandsen (Teen-age representative), Mrs. Peter Foss, 1st Sgt. Albert Kane, and Father Louis Vande Castle.

The Education Commission handles the education programs for children and adults and is staffed by Capt. Jack Keane, Capt. Tom Galvin, Mrs. Richard Sebenoler, Sister Joan Kist and Father Richard Gaellen.

The Finance Commission submits an annual budget for post Catholic activities, establishes goals and gives guidance to the Council for the collection and disposition of monies. Lt. Col. Manuel Alves, 2Lt. Edward A. Urban, Monsignor Francis J. Dolan; Lt. Col. Steven Dorchak and Father Charles Blindner are the members of this commission.

The Liturgy Commission consists of Mrs. Robert E. Hall; Mrs. Charles A. Williams, Maj. James Muldoon, SFC Florian Pasko and Father Michael Choma.

Red Cross to offer basic courses

A new field will be opened to the American Red Cross Volunteers in the spring.

Lt. Col. Patrick D. Tisdale, chief of Pediatric Services at Martin Army Hospital, has requested 40 volunteers to serve in the pediatrics outpatient clinic, located in Bldg. 396. The volunteers would work at least one morning or afternoon a week assisting doctors with the children in the examination rooms.

Additionally, the Basic Orientation Course for new American Red Cross Volunteers will be given on March 9 in the second floor conference room at Martin Army Hospital.

Dates will be announced later for Hospital Orientation, Hospital and Dental Assistant Courses, and Standard American Red Cross First Aid Course. Workshops will also be offered for Recreation, Personal Services, and Newborn Nursery.

Dependents of active or retired military personnel who wish to take the American Red Cross Volunteer courses should call 545-2124 between 9 a.m. and noon on weekdays.

Division keeps communicators clean

By Martin McWilliams

An Infantry Officer Basic Course student on a field exercise drops his PRC-25 into the mud of a swamp.

The safety officer of a training range spills his early-morning coffee on the field phone.

A non-commissioned officer candidate, digging in for a night training problem, throws an accidental shovel of dirt onto his squad radio.

Each one thinks to himself, "Boy, I'm glad I don't have to clean that thing." At the end of the day he turns it in. The next day it is reissued, clean and working.

How those radios got clean — along with the hundreds of others used by the Infantry School every day — is no mystery to 1st Lt. James Hartman and his crew. Hartman runs the Supply and Maintenance Division (S and M) of the School's Communications-Electronics Department.

S and M is the home of more than 6,000 major end items of communications equipment, enough to equip an Infantry division. The property book, held by CW3 Francis Mead, lists almost $5 million worth of equipment.

This huge equipment pool is used in support of all courses conducted within the Infantry School.

Familiar items of radio and wire communications equipment used in classroom and field instruction in the Infantry School are included in the pool, but that's not all. The Field Radio Mechanics Course requires special electronic trainers, circuit modules, and test equipment. Tactical communications equipment issued to other School courses includes speech secure (COMSEC) and radar equipment.

To insure that all of this complex gear is in working condition for reissue, S and M performs organizational maintenance on all of its equipment. Every item of equipment is checked, and repaired if necessary, upon its return to the pool and again prior to reissue. This requires a complete operational check and technical inspection of more than 1,200 major end items daily.

Hartman's crew of 35 has to work hard to keep up with the load of maintaining so much equipment.

To complicate matters, S and M is understrength in key areas: the division has six open radio-repairman slots (MOS 31E20) and will soon have an open radar-repairman job (MOS 26C30).

But "they do a great job anyway," says Hartman. "Few skills are more important to the Army than effective communication, and every member of S and M does his best to insure that communications training at the Infantry School is effective," adds Hartman.

New Infantry Museum will house 12,000 artifacts

By Bob Arnold . . .

"As far as overall quality is concerned, one of the better museums in the country. . ."

That, says John E. Hunter, is the goal leaders of the Infantry Museum Association had in mind last month as they began the nationwide campaign to build a new $6 million Infantry Museum here.

Hunter, who is curator of the present U. S. Army Infantry Museum, already is planning where in the new museum to put the 12,000 artifacts and 200,000 books, documents and photographs he now has.

Designed by Witteborg and Williams Inc., a New York architectural firm, the proposed museum will be 200 yards long and will vary in width from 100 feet at its narrowest point to just under 400 feet at its widest point. It will include 161,000 square feet of floor space, of which 71,300 square feet will be exhibit area.

The new museum will be built on seven acres just east of Infantry Hall, where the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit is located, and at a point to which the Lindsay Creek Bypass eventually will be extended. There, it should be equally accessible to off-post visitors and Infantry School students.

"The primary rationale behind the museum" Hunter said, "is to have a means of preserving American Infantry history and to create a memorial to the Infantryman. But the present museum is too small and not of the shape and construction that would lend itself to any further improvement or expansion.

"The purpose of a new museum — at least the one that has been proposed — is to drastically increase the space and to provide a better vehicle, a more attractive building."

"We now have between 12,000 and 15,000 artifacts, well over half of which ought to be exhibited," Hunter said. "Only about 20 per cent of them are. We have the space to exhibit a few more, but we don't because of lack of funding to create the exhibits."

The new building will be fireproof and environmentally controlled. The latter is important, according to Hunter, because "changes in temperature and humidity within a building adversely affect the artifacts."

As important as preserving artifacts will be the proposed museum's function as a tribute to the Infantryman.

"The present museum concerns itself almost entirely with materiel rather than with the man," Hunter admits. "The reason is our inability to create aesthetic exhibits using photographs and the most modern techniques of commercial art and layout to have an impact on the viewer. We consider ourselves doing real well when we can put up an attractive exhibit, containing nothing but artifacts, and identify them for the public," he says.

"In the new museum, we assume that we will be able to create modern exhibits. We will concentrate on telling what happened in American Infantry history, who made the history and what he used to make it with," Hunter added.

The Witteborg and Williams plan outlines 12 separate displays of exhibit areas, and Hunter is planning the arrangement of several of them:

"The single largest display will be the U. S. Infantry History exhibit," he says. "It will be a chronological survey of American Infantry history, in both war and peace, from the pre-Revolutionary War era through current times. I want to emphasize current — a museum has just as much responsibility to tell what is happening as to tell the public what has happened," Hunter explains.

Aside from being attractive and a tribute to the Infantryman, the Infantry Museum will be an educational medium for both Infantry School students and civilian visitors. As will its collections, the present museum's library and archives will provide a sound foundation for the new museum's 7,200 square foot research center.

From a military standpoint, Hunter feels that "if a new draftee, for example, comes in the museum and can be inspired by what he sees there, and thus recognizes that he is part of an important organization, then he will likely be a better soldier if not at least a more satisfied one, that he perhaps otherwise would have been."

Whatever the audience, however, the Infantry Museum's essential purpose will be the same:

"It will show the military man and the public those things of which they ought to be proud," Hunter says. "Everyone is ready to admit there are some episodes in American military history that ought to be forgotten. But there are many others that ought to be remembered, and those are what we're concerned with preserving.

16 soldiers finish police training class

Columbus College held its first graduation of the "Project Transition" Police Training Program Feb. 19 in the Fine Arts Hall on campus.

The sixteen graduates are about-to-be discharged servicemen who completed a six weeks' training program in police science held at Fort Benning by instructors of the college criminal justice department.

The project was designed to assist military men in their transition to civilian life by preparing them for police work when they are released from service.

A number of the men already have been placed in the police departments of several states.

Funded jointly by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare and the Department of Labor, the program was certified by the International Association of Police Chiefs, headquartered in Washington, D. C.

On hand for the graduation ceremony were Dr. Thomas Y. Whitley, president of Columbus College. Leonard Oxley, director of education at Fort Benning; Dr. J. Fred Burgess, director of the college community services program; Joe S. Webb, director of the criminal justice department; and Al Garcia, instructor in police transition.

Graduates included George Allan Bailey, Gary Michael Carrico, Eric Neal Curtis, David Clark Davies, Frederick Randle DeMarks, Jack Dale Franks, James Richard Fulmer, Charles Larimore Jones, David Paul Leroy, Covie Lewis, Franklin Lee McAbee, Wayne Shojt Nagata, Harold Olin Parker, and Samuel Paul Seay.

Race Relations men attend 5-day seminar

Two persons assigned to the Race Relations Coordinating Group at Fort Benning attended a five-day workshop on police-community relations in Athens, Ga., recently.

The two, Lt. William Marshall and Spc4 Mike Pearson, said that the workshop presented some useful guidelines on establishing a good program of police-community relations "as it pertains to race relations."

The workshop was held at the University of Georgia Feb. 14-19 and was co-sponsored by the Police Science Division of the University of Georgia's Institute of Government and the Georgia Region of the National Conference of Christians and Jews Inc.

Marshall said that 80 police officers from 13 states, primarily in the southeastern section of the United States, attended the workshop.

Marshall and Pearson, who have been members of the Race Relations Coordinating Group of the Equal Opportunity Office since it was established in March 1970, added that special attention at the workshop was given to ways of making full use of community resources as a means of furthering more effective police-community relations programs.

3rd Army civilian aides visit Infantry Center

3rd Army civilian aides from seven southern states and Puerto Rico have joined Lt. Gen. Albert O. Conner, 3rd Army commander, at Fort Benning for a two-day conference Feb. 25-26.

The group will depart today at 2 p.m. from Lawson Army Airfield.

Civilian aides attending the conference will be Will Hill Tankersley, Montgomery, Ala.; James B. Williams, Augusta, Ga.; Col. (USAR ret.) A. P. Drummond, Bonifal, Fla.; Frank E. Everett Jr., Vicksburg, Miss.; Holt McPherson, High Point, N. C.; Dr. Robert C. Edwards, Clemson, S. C.; Thomas F. Elam, Union City, Tenn.; Julian O. McConnie Jr., Puerto Rico, and Howard H. (Bo) Callaway, Pine Mountain, Ga., who is civilian aide for the entire 3rd Army area.

Also attending the conference will be Arthur W. Allen, deputy assistant secretary of the Army for manpower and reserve affairs and special assistant for the civilian aides program.

While at Benning the aides are receiving briefings on the Modern Volunteer Army program, the Infantry Center and Infantry School drug abuse program and other post activities.

They also will visit the 197th Infantry Brigade for a tour of mess halls and barracks.

Civilian aides are appointed to advise the 3rd Army commander and the secretary of the Army on civilian aspects of military affairs.

Benning fetes local Jaycees

Brig. Gen. John T. Carley, assistant commandant U. S. Army Infantry School, was the host at a Military Affairs Banquet for the Columbus Jaycees Tuesday at Fort Benning.

The banquet, held in the 70th Co., 8th Bn., TSB, mess hall, recognized the Columbus Jaycees for their patriotic programs and for creating a spirit of goodwill and cooperation within the civilian and military communities.

Approximately 100 military personnel and 100 Jaycees attended.

Adm. Moorer to attend West Point dinner here

The West Point Society of Fort Benning and Columbus has scheduled the 1971 Founder's Day Dinner March 12 in the Fountain Room and main ballroom of the Fort Benning Officers Open Mess.

The featured speaker will be Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Adm. Moorer also will be at Fort Benning to address members of the Advanced Officers Infantry Course.

The Founder's Day Dinner is in celebration of the 169th anniversary of the U.S. Military Academy. It will begin with a cocktail party at 6:30 p.m., followed by dinner at 8 p.m.

All graduates and ex-cadets of the U.S Military Academy, the U.S. Naval Academy and the U.S. Air Force Academy are invited to attend, Howard Synder, president of the society, said. He pointed out that membership in the society is not required for attendance.

Synder also urged members of the society to contact persons in this area who are eligible to attend and extend an invitation to them.

Those desiring to attend should contact the Director of Plans and Training, Headquarters, U.S. Army Infantry Center, Fort Benning, before March 9.

Pension bill liberalizes veterans' benefits

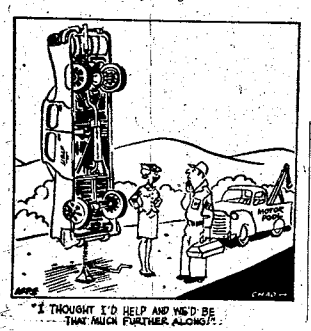
ATLANTA — The recently — enacted veterans' pension bill, liberalizing benefits being paid to veterans, their widows and children, will also benefit the dependent parents of veterans.

Georgia Veterans Service Director Pete Wheeler said, "The entire income and payment structure for dependency and indemnity compensation being paid to parents was changed when Public Law 91-588 became effective on January 1, 1971."

Income limitations for who died in service or from service-connected causes were increased $300. The income limitation for one surviving parent is now $2,300. The previous limit was $2,000. The income limitation for two parents who are not living together is also $2,300 for each parent. Where there are two parents living together or when a parent has remarried and is living with his spouse, limitation on their combined income is $3,500. Monthly payments to all qualified parents were increased on average of 9.5 per cent.

"In all cases," said Wheeler, "the term 'income' means other than that which is received as dependency and indemnity compensation. Parents previously ineligible for benefits because of excessive income might now qualify with these increases in income limitations."

Persons desiring information or assistance in filing for benefits should visit their nearest office of the Georgia Department of Veterans Service.



7 Ft. Benning building put on auction block

Seven buildings at Fort Benning will be sold to the highest bidder Thursday at the Savannah District Army Engineers' office at 2 p.m.

Included in the sale are three enlisted personnel mess buildings, three enlisted personnel barracks, and a detached day room.

All buildings are of frame construction. They will be sold "as is" and "where is" with all removal and restoration work to be completed within 120 days after a notice to proceed has been given to the successful bidder or bidders.

Prospective purchasers may inspect the buildings by contacting the Facilities Engineer at Fort Benning.

Prayer day announced

The Protestant Women of the Chapel Council of Fort Benning invites the public to special services on March 5 at 10 a.m. at the Infantry Center Chapel. This day has been set apart by the organization of Church Women United to celebrate "World Day of Prayer" with Christians around the globe.

The 1971 theme of World Day of Prayer is "New Life Awaits." Special music will be presented by folk artist, Mr. Phil Jarrell, featuring a West Indian chant of "The Lords Prayer." The order of service was designed by women all over the world. Chaplain Chester R. Steffey will bring the special theme message.

A Free nursery will be provided at Tot-Towe.

'INFO' supplies answer for military questions

By Tony Jones

As of last Friday, 119 questions had been answered by DIAL INFO, a relatively new service offered under the auspices of the Adjutant General's office.

1st Lt. Marilyn Wild, who is in charge of the service, said the most popular question so far has concerned locations of various activities or offices.

"We answer questions on just about any military subject," Lt. Wild said. "On some occasions we have had to refer the questioner to the proper office when the question has been of a very complex nature. Usually, though, we are either able to answer the question directly or are able to find the answer in less than 30 minutes."

The DIAL INFO service, 545-4636, has been in operation since Feb. 3, and, claimed Lt. Wild, "other activities and departments have been most cooperative in supplying answers to questions when we do not have the answer available immediately."

When one dials the number for DIAL INFO, it is usually answered by either SFC Rex L. Smith or SP6 Claude O. Stephens. Smith is a veteran of 16 years Army experience and Stephens has had 18 years of service in the Army.

Smith said, "I think it will prove to be a great service, especially to the younger soldier who has questions that he is unable to find answers to by using normal channels."

The DIAL INFO service, which operates from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, also has been tried with a great deal of success at Ft. Campbell, Ky. Lt. Wild noted that it is a permanent service and "will be used more in the future as more persons become aware of the service."

Academy prep school accepting application

The U. S. Military Academy Preparatory School (USMAPS) is presently accepting applications for the academic year 1971-72 which starts in August.

Local area persons interested in attending the school may obtain more information by contacting the Adjutant General's office at Fort Benning. Details of the requirements are contained in Army Regulation 351-12. Applications should reach USMAPS before June 30, 1971.

USMAPS prepares enlisted candidates for regular Army and enlisted reserve appointments to West Point. The last class sent 196 of its 241 enlisted graduates to West Point. Enrollment for the next school year will be about 300.

Those selected for the 10-month course will attend in an active duty status. Primary emphasis is on English and mathematics.

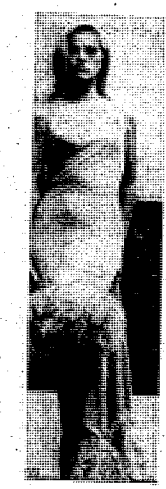
Military intelligence to regroup

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird has acted to strengthen civilian control of military intelligence activities.

By no later than Feb. 1, Laird ordered a reorganization which will have the director of the Defense Intelligence Agency reporting directly to him rather than to the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Laird also ordered the assistant secretary of defense for administration, Robert F. Froehlke, to continually review intelligence procedures and practices.



In a memorandum to service secretaries and the chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, Laird said he was taking the actions to eliminate past abuses in the intelligence area.

"I want to be certain that Department of Defense intelligence and counterintelligence activities are completely consistent with constitutional rights, all other legal provisions, and national security needs," Laird said. "Policy determinations governing such activities must be retained under civilian cognizance and control."

Gen. Bradley talks of knowing history's immortals

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following interview with Gen. Omar Bradley is reprinted from the Feb. 17 issue of Army Times. Pvt. Schwan is assigned to the Information Office at Ft. Jackson, S. C. Gen Bradley served as commandant of the Infantry School and Fort Benning from 1941 through 1942 and presently is chairman of the Infantry Museum Association Inc. and chairman of the board of the Bulova Watch Co.)

By Pvt. Gary Schwan

FT. JACKSON, S. C. — General of the Army Omar Bradley was known as "The Soldier's General" during World War II. His concern for his men was legendary. True to his concern, the only interview Bradley gave during this recent visit to Columbia was to this soldier.

During the interview in the general's suite at the Sheraton, Gen. Bradley's conversation drifted easily from his past memories to such present concerns as the volunteer Army.

"Gen. Westmoreland and the secretary of the Army are committed to making the concept work. I have high hopes that we will be able to achieve a volunteer Army by 1973.

"I think that we will have to change several things before we do, however," he continued. "We have to increase the wages. We are not competing well with industry. I am associated with industry and know something about the wages they pay."

Gen. Bradley recognizes the need for a different type of soldier in a volunteer Army. "I served in a volunteer Army. But I don't think that the type of man we had then would be up to handling the modern day weapons. Now you have a lot of college people in the service. We need more of them."

The nation's only living five star general has walked with some of history's immortals and remembers them kindly. Gen. Bradley spoke fondly of Gen. George Patton in the interview.

"He (Patton) was irritable sometimes," the general chuckled. "It would seem that he was cussing his men out for nothing. But I understood what he was doing.

"When he took over the II Corps, the discipline was poor. He had a limited time to make himself felt. So he took pretty drastic steps to make everyone in the corps realize what a II Corps commander expected. "You have to always consider that when you try to weigh his methods.

"We used to say that Patton had a sort of sixth sense," he continued. "He knew exactly how far he should advance, and when he should stop. I remember one instance when we advanced up to the Rhine. Patton's army hit the Rhine at Coblenz. He crossed the river and got behind the German army. He advanced very fast with his tank outfit, then he stopped suddenly and dug in.

"I remember some of my staff officers saying, "Goodness, why did he stop? He was going so well.' I said 'Just wait, he smells something.'

"The next day he was counterattacked by two German divisions. He knocked them off, then went on again. How he knew they were coming, I don't know."

The general was technical advisor for the movie "Patton." He and his wife submitted the technical script. It emerged from the Pentagon without a correction — the first time this has ever happened.

Gen. Bradley was with Charles DeGaulle at the liberation of Paris in 1944. He rememebers DeGaulle with a quiet respect "He had great character," the general said.

"He was a great patriot. While we don't agree with some of the things that he did, if you analyze them, you will find that he did them because he thought that it was good for France. He always thought of France first."

Gen. Bradley had some interesting comments about the fighting styles of the various armies during World War II.

"The Germans were good fighters," he remembered. "Their noncommissioned officers were something like ours. They were given initiative. That isn't true in the Russian army.

"When we met the Russians at the Elbe, our first lieutenants and captains had more initiative than their major generals. Everytime something came up our lieutenants made the decision. It may not have always been the best one in the world, but if it was a good one, we stuck to it. The Russians would have had to wire back to Moscow for a decision on what to do."

Our country's alleged suspicion of the military does not dismay the old soldier. "In war, we are heroes," he laughed. "When the war is over, we are bums. We shouldn't be too surprised at the attitude of the news media and the civilian population because it's always been this way."

Gen. Bradley, commander of the largest body of American combat troops ever assembled, offered some advice for young officers about to assume their first command.

"Anytime during his career, I would say that he should do every job about 110 per cent of what is expected. Never miss an opportunity to study, to improve your professional expertise. The better prepared you are, the greater credit you are to your cause and to your country."

He also had some advice for a young man considering the military as a possible career.

"If he wants to accumulate most of the world's wealth, he shouldn't go into the service. However, if he is looking for a fine way of life and the possibility of rendering service to his country, I think it would be a fine career. I have never regretted a minute of mine."

From General of the Army Omar Nelson Bradley, it is advice worth listening to.

Insurance option cancelled

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — A change to Joint Travel Regulations prohibits reimbursement to military personnel for the cost of extra collision insurance when renting an automobile for official business, when the extra insurance is optional and the fee is not included in the rental fee.

However, servicemen may be reimbursed for personal funds paid to rental car companies for damage sustained to automobiles that were properly rented but damaged during the performance of official business. Reimbursement is limited to $100.

Claims for reimbursement must be supported by receipts and itemized statements of the repairs.

Reimbursements for personal funds paid for damage to a rented automobile being used on other than official business is not authorized.

For about 26,000 persons around the world, "teacher" is the Correspondence Course Committee of the Non-Resident Instruction-ROTC Affairs Department at the U. S. Army Infantry School at Fort Benning.

The committee comprised of two officers, seven enlisted men and 14 civilians, administers free of charge correspondence courses which are comparable in quality to courses offered by well-known civilian correspondence course firms.

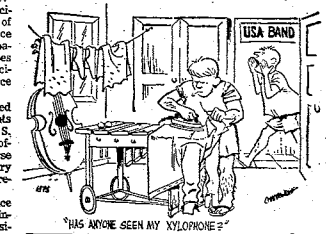
The courses, combined with similar departments operated by 20 other U. S. Army service schools, offer a course or subcourse for almost every military skill which the Army requires.

All correspondence courses are based on instruction presented to resident students at each service school and are changed only to meet the needs of a student who cannot raise his hand in the classroom to ask or answer a question.

The basic instructional packet is called a subcourse, usually covering one subject, such as map reading, leadership or patrolling, and consists of from one to nine lessons.

Each subcourse is assigned a number of credit hours, which is the approximate time required for an average student to study the lesson and examination assignment and solve the lesson and examination exercises.

The Infantry School correspondence course program provides instruction for members of the armed forces on active duty, members of Reserve Officers Training Corps at colleges and universities, members of U. S. Army Reserve and National Guard units, more than 700 members of the armed forces of 23 allied countries, and federal employes whose duties require knowledge of some subject offered by correspondence course program.



A prospective student begins his quest for knowledge by consulting the catalog of courses and subcourses and then completing Department of the Army form 145 and submitting it to his commanding officer, unit advisor professor of military science for approval.

The form is forwarded to the Infantry School and the student is then notified of his acceptance and receives his instructional material in about 10 days.

Enrollment is voluntary and free of charge. All necessary instructional material and postage paid envelopes are provided at no cost to the student.

After the student completes an assignment and it is received by the Correspondence Course Committee, it is graded by a high-speed computer. The subcourses deal strictly with military topics, some of the courses contain excellent instruction on such topics as effective writing and methods of instruction.

tem of education.

"No other school in the Army gives instruction like this to a similar group," says McClelland. "The Engineer School teaches 11 hours of environmental corrective action in one of its courses, but that is technical instruction and is given only to engineers."

The Infantry School's instruction, which lasts two hours, approaches the subject of environmental quality from two directions: A medical, problem identifying approach, and an engineering, problem-solving approach.

The class opens with selections of popular songs on the subject of environmental pollution, accompanied by a series of slides depicting pollution on Fort Benning. A short lecture follows, explaining the impact of rapid population expansion upon the environment, and the question is asked: "How does the Army officer fit into this picture? What are his responsibilities as an officer, and later, as a civilian citizen?"

Lt. Col. Richard Stolz, chief of the Office of the Staff Surgeon in the Infantry School, takes over at this point with a medical briefing on effects of environmental degrading on the mission-accomplishing apparatus of the soldier.

Stolz' presentation is supplemented by a 17-minute color film.

McClelland follows the staff surgeon briefing with a 25-minute presentation of specific environmental control problems at Fort Benning and the capabilities of the engineers in combating these problems.

The final portion of the class is a student discussion panel, with Stolz, McClelland, and representatives from Medical Department Activities and Facilities Engineering participating in open discussion with the students.

A manuel entitled "Environmental Quality," is distributed to the students well in advance of the class date. Accompanying the manual is a two-page questionnaire which is intended to encourage the students to examine their own day-to-day contribution to environmental quality.

"We know the questionnaires encourage the students to think about their own role," McClelland said, "because of the thoughtful and pointed nature of the answers which we receive."

McClelland said, one student wrote on the back of his questionnaire, "How many of these questionnaires have you had printed and what are you going to do with them after we return them to you? How are you going to dispose of them?"

"That is exactly the sort of question we want the students to ask, not only of us, but of themselves and their fellows," McClelland added.

Watch out below!

Digest features article about 58th Inf. sergeant

"The Man Called Top," a contemporary version of what a modern-minded NCO should be, is featured in the March issue of Army Digest.

The article on 1st Sgt. Vernon K. Snyder, Co. C, 1st Bn., 58th Inf., 197th Inf. Bde., was written by Sp4 Bob Wise, an information specialist at the 197th Brigade Information Office.

The article gives inside information about what makes a "top kick" tick. He can rap with the troops and yet be the company commander's right hand because he's a good communicator.

Also featured in the March issue is "Your Dollars Make Dollars," facts about the local Federal Credit Unions; "Education by Degrees," an account of the many opportunities you have while in service to get a high school or college diploma, and "Unofficially Speaking," a cartoon feature.

7 post civilians receive incentive awards

Seven individuals received awards Feb. 19 for "singular achievement above and beyond that normally expected" in a ceremony at the Management Information Systems Office at Fort Benning.

Four persons received special act awards of $250 each, along with Army Commendation Certificates, and three persons received certificates of achievement.

Those receiving cash awards were T. Grey Blanton, David H. Buckner Jr., Mrs. James W. McCain and Mrs. Winnie S. Reed.

Receiving certificates of achievement were Mrs. Dixie H. Kelley, Nelson V. Raines and Mrs. Hazel E. Willis.

The awards, signed by Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, commanding general, were presented by Col. James Kelsey, chief of staff.

The seven, who are all members of the Systems Analysis and Programming Branch, were recognized for their duty and determination in assisting with the successful installation of the IBM-360 computer.

According to the certificates, "their outstanding contributions played a major role in the station being ready to make maximum use of the newly installed computer much sooner than could be expected under normal circumstances and resulted in an estimated savings of $15,000 for the installation."

Auburn Univ. theater group to present 'Physicists'

"The Physicists," Swiss dramatist Friendrich Durrenmatt's most ambitious play, will be performed at the Auburn University Theatre March 1-8. Curtain time is 8 p.m., with tickets now on sale at the box office.

The setting for "The Physicists" is a madhouse. The principal characters: three male patients, all nuclear physicists.

One, Herbert Georg Beutler, believes he is Sir Isaac Newton; a second Ernst Ernesti, thinks he is Albert Einstein. Both are fairly recent arrivals at the asylum.

The third, Johann Wilhem Mobious, who has visions in which King Solomon appears to him, has been there for 15 years.

In charge: the efficient, aristocratic, hunch-backed woman-psychiatrist, Fraulein Dr. Mathilde von Zahnd.

With these ingredients, Durrenmatt has fashioned a work that probes beneath the surface of seeming comedy to ask a number of pertinent questions about today's world. For it soon becomes evident that the harmless, lovable lunatics are not as simple as they seem.

Are they, in fact, really mad? Or are they playing some murderous game, with the world at stake? Durrenmatt in "The Physicists" shows himself a master dramatist, capable of electrifying the theatre.

The play was performed at London's famed Royal Court Theatre and by the Royal Shakespeare Company, directed by Peter Brook. The Broadway production starred Hume Cronyn and Jessica Tandy.

In the Auburn production Newton is played by G. J. Koellstead of the theatre faculty, Mobious by John A. Elliott of Anchorage, Alaska, Einstein by Jeff Farr of Auburn, with Petrina McGowen of Auburn as Doktor Van Zahnd.

Others in the cast are Claire Marty of Auburn as Guhl; Lyn Babb of Montgomery as Marta Boll; Rad Holland of Athens as Adolf Ernstrich; Karen Drury of Chickasaw, Fla. as Monika Stettler; Kathie East of Auburn as Frau Rose; Wayne Moore of Leeds as Oskar Rose; Kerry N. David of San Antannio, Tex., as Inspector Voss; Jamie Connor of Birmingham as Blocher; Bill Collins of Anniston as Murillo; James H. Samford of Albany, Ga., as Uwe Sievers; Harold N. Brock of Florence as McArthur; John Bivins of Bowdon, Ga. as Jorg Lukas; Charles Markle of Auburn as Wilfried-Kaspar and Edward Pless of Dadeville as Police Doctor.

"The Physicists" is directed by Dr. A. Cleveland Harrison, professor and head of the Department of Theatre. Production deisgn is by R. C. Terri, with lighting designed by G. J. Koellsted, both of the theatre faculty.

All tickets must be reserved, with box office hours 1 - 5 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Friday; 12 -5 on Tuesday and Thursday; 9-12 a.m., Saturdays. The box office is in the basement of the Music Annex.

Reservations may be made by calling 826-4154, and tickets must be picked up at least 24 hours before the performance for which tickets have been reserved.

General admission is $3; student wives and high school students, $1. Auburn University students will not he charged admission but must make reservations.

Austrian Interlude

A holiday in Austria without a passport may cause one to end up in jail—unless, you take that holiday at Callaway Gardens.

Each year, Callaway Gardens has a full scale cultural event featuring different countries. This year Austria will be featured with all of its art, food, crafts, fashions, music, gardens and a true-to-life "Austrian Evening."

The three-day Austrian Interlude began last night with a reception in recognition of Austria and honored guests Consul General and Mrs. Robert Bunzl, and will continue until Saturday night.

The interlude opens today with a welcome from the wife of the founder of Callaway Gardens, Mrs. Cason J. Callaway Sr. at 10 a.m. At 10:30 a.m. Miss Margaret Perry, travel editor of the "Home Garden Magazine," will present a program on "Gardens in Austria," followed by Frank Marchese and the Alpine Polka Band at 11:30.

Special emphasis is being placed on the food prepared at the gardens, and today's luncheon at 12;30 features a "Salzburg Buffet" in the Plantation Room of the nearby Holiday Inn. Before or after lunch you might like to view an Austrian Art Collection in the Reception Room of the Convention Center Lobby or displays and exhibits of imported handicrafts and merchandise in the Callaway Ballroom.

This afternoon's program includes an illustrated slide lecture on the "Art Treasures in Austria," presented by Dr. Guenter Fruehwirth. He is the assistant director of the Austrian Institute of New York. The "Austrian Film Festival" will also be held this afternoon with films showing the different aspects of the country.

Following this evening's dinner, a special treat is planned with a concert by the Atlanta Sinfonietta conducted by Leonard Altieri.

Tomorrow includes a program on "The Austrian Gourmet" by Ernest Wally of the Plaza Restaurant in Atlanta. An organ concert at the Ida Cason Callway Memorial Chapel by Mrs. Alvin Davis along with a tour of the gardens and ending with a "Kaffee Mit Schlag" is the program for the afternoon.

As a grand finale to the Austrian Interlude, "An Evening in Austria" is programmed at 8 p.m. This black tie optional affair will feature the Atlanta International Dancers and the Vienna Symphonette-Atlanta as entertainment during dinner. The special guests of honor will be Dr. and Mrs. Peter Niesner, Cultural Attache, Austrian Embassy, Washington, D.C., the Honorary Counsul General and Mrs. Robert Bunzl and the Honorary Counsul and Mrs. Walter Bunzel, from the Austrian Consulate of Atlanta.

There is a nominal registration fee for the entire program and tours of $1 per person. However, the meals are at their normal price. The only part of the program that requires reservations is the "Austrian Evening."

Reservations and further information may be made through the Education Department of Callaway Gardens at Pine Mountain, Ga.

Taming of the Shrew

The students of Columbus College have been diligently working to construct an exact replica of the Shakespearean Globe Theatre in the college's Fine Arts Hall. The setting is for the all-college production of "Taming of the Shrew" which began last night.

The play will run through March 1 with performances each evening at 8 p.m. and a Sunday matinee at 3 p.m.

The general admission is $2, however students and military will be admitted for half price. Tickets may be obtained at the box office.

Azaleas

Mobile, Alabama is holding an Azalea Trail Festival which began Feb. 1 and will end March 31.

There is 35-miles of beautiful Azalea Trail with antebellum mansions, including 10-acre Long Gardens in Springhill, open to the public. In addition there is a host of colorful festival events [illegible]

Synopsis

LOVERS AND OTHER STRANGERS (Rated R). About to wed even though they've lived together for 18 months, Michael Brandon and Bonnie Bedelia have mixed emotions.

He's all for continuing as is, while she patiently agrees to go along with him, realizing she'll win out in the end.

The story uncovers the foibles of all the couples brought together by the pending marriage of the two attractive young people.

Academy Award Winner Gig Young plays the father of the bride.

THE VIRGIN AND THE GYPSY (Rated R). Yvette (Joanna Shimkus), a minister's daughter, returns home from her schooling to find everything and everyone around her suddenly provincial and repressed.

Catching sight of an itinerant gypsy (Franco Nero) one day, she elevates him into all that is romantic in her world, observing him whenever she can, and dreaming of his embrace. But only dreaming — for though he indicates that he is more than willing to turn dreams into reality.

Eventually, the intervention of a more liberal couple, and a surprise flash flood, bring about the expected liaison, and the girl, no longer a virgin, abandons her family — a wiser and more liberated woman.

THE CRIMSON CULT (Rated GP). Robert Manning (Mark Eden) arrives at Greymarsh Lodge, seeking his brother, Peter, who, from there, had sent some peculiar gifts and a cryptic message.

The lodge's owner, Mr. Morley (Christopher Lee), refutes Manning's contention that Peter had been a guest of the lodge. Manning learns that he has arrived on the night of the ancient and annual ceremony of "burning" the Black Witch of Greymarsh, who lived about 300 years ago.

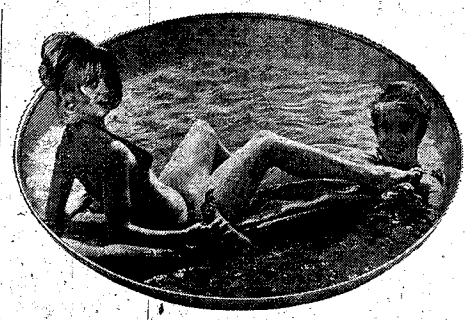
That night, Manning "awakes" confronted with the imprint of a blood-stained hand on the wall. Possible nightmare becomes reality as the walls of his room commence to open, and the sounds, smells and feel of horror engulf Manning and other inhabitants of the house.

BURN (Rated GP). Sir William Walker (Marlon Brando), a secret agent and adventurer, is sent by the British government to the Portugese Island of Quiemada in the Caribbean early in the 19th century to wreck the sugar trade monopoly.

Brando selects Jose Dolores, a slave of spirit and determination, to lead a slave revolt.

Teddy Sanchez becomes president of the new government, and Dolores returns into obscurity.

But, ten years later, Brando must return to Queimada. The slaves, led by Dolores, are in revolt again, and Sir William must destroy him.



MAROONED (Rated G). Charles Keith (Gregory Peck), Chief of the U. S. Manned Space Program, awaits the return to Earth, from Space, of the Ironman One. The ship misfires during re-entry, and its crew-Commander Jim Pruett (Richard Crenna), Scientist-Astronaut Clay Stone (James Franciscus) and Pilot Buzz Lloyd (Gene Hackman) are marooned in space.

Keith and Senior Astronaut Ted Dougherty (David Janssen) put into operation a desperate rescue plan, while the world and the Astronauts' wives watch and wait.

1st Sgt. gets 'bang' out of work

CAMP EAGLE, Republic of Vietnam — First Sergeant Don Sorensen's hot sauce has an explosive bang to it. It's good on rice, C-rations and long range reconnaissance patrol rations (LRRPS) and rumor has it that the stuff will cure the common cold.

1st Sgt. Sorensen of San Diego is "Top" to the men of Company B, 2nd Bn., 502nd Inf., 101st Airborne Div. (Airmobile). And "Top" mixes up a special concoction for his line troops, then he puts the hot sauce into small bottles. "We were putting the last batch he made up into sandbags to be shipped out to the different platoons," said Sp4 William Harden, Pontiac, Mich., "when one of them went off."

This time it was too much. The rear echelon personnel of "Battlin' Bravo" began removing the tops of the 50 or so small bottles. "As we removed each top — GUSH! — the stuff came spraying up all over the place," Harden added.

It all began when 1st Sgt. Sorensen decided to do something extra for his men. He obtained crushed red peppers from the "Strike Force" battalion's chief Luc Luong 66 scout, Doan The Me.

"First we tried mixing the peppers with water and vinegar," said the first sergeant. "That wasn't too good so we tried boiling the peppers in vinegar. Then we tried adding tomato paste."

The best mixture the Bravo Company first sergeant came up with was tomato juice, vinegar and the peppers — the one that exploded.

"We didn't let that batch ferment long enough before we bottled it," explained 1st Sgt. Sorensen. "It must have been a reaction of the two acids, the tomato juice and the vinegar, that caused the popping."

Warm breakfast puts you in agreeable mood

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Recent studies indicate a good warm breakfast not only puts you in an agreeable mood but provides the energy you need to keep alert.

By 8 o'clock in the morning most of us have had no food for 12 to 14 hours, the longest period without nourishment in our daily cycle. Our bodies are not only ready for food when we awake but actually seek it. All bodily processes are awaking the metabolic stimulation that only food fuel can provide.

A sense of fatigue, a feeling of tremulousness, and a certain amount of uncoordinated movement can be traced directly to the failure to eat an adequate breakfast.

It works this way: Sugar, or glucose, is the form into which starchy food is changed to be suitable for use by the body. Of all the energy-yielding materials supplied by food, glucose is the most readily serviceable. When the glucose intake drops too low, hypoglycemia, or low blood sugar, results. Fatigue, slight shakiness, and general lack of coordination set in.

2 pay days a month by end of this year

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Soldiers will have an option of being paid either once or twice monthly under the new JUMPS-Army pay system which is now being phased in and is scheduled for worldwide completion by December.

According to the lastest edition of the "Army Finance Journal," the new pay system as options for the soldier and features that will improve the pay service while saving the government money.

Other options and special features include:

— The option of being paid by cash or check.

— The option of specifying where the pay check is to be sent.

— A significant reduction in computation errors by using electronic computers.

— A check-to-bank option whereby automatic payment will be made to the serviceman's bank regardless of his location.

— Provision of a monthly leave and earnings statement.

— Elimination of the loss of members' pay records. A master military pay record will be maintained at the Finance Center, Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind., for all members.

— Provision of a data bank which will show, on a current basis, the location of all members.

ROD AND GUN CLUB Notes

By Bill Kloeb

The white bass are still hitting just about any type shiny lure offered to the Chattahoochee River. Last Friday seemed to be an ideal day for fishing. The river was clearing from the heavy rains, and the weather was just like spring, but Saturday the weather did it again. The rains came and the fish were hard to find. There were a few good catches, but on the whole it was a dissappointing weekend.

The crappie are still building beds. It seems that they just might give up the idea in frustration. All the catches have scratched up tails from fanning the sand and mud into a hollow for the female to lay her eggs, but then we get another gully-washer rain and all the work is washed away.

Best places for the crappie are at the mouths of streams flowing into the Chattahoochee. The mouths of the Upatoi, Uchie and Oswichie Creeks are favorite spots for a lot of fisherman.

Pond fishing on the reservation hasn't been too good so far this year. Of course, most of the anglers have been spending a lot of time at the river fishing for white bass and crappie, but with a few more warm days and nights the water in the ponds should warm enough for the bass and bream to start getting ideas about building beds.

If the crappie and white bass efforts keep getting washed out we could have a time this spring when they are all on their beds at the same time. If that should happen we would have a period of fishing to really talk about.

When we get those lousy, rainy weekends that tend to spoil the fishing, don't forget Victory and Twilight ponds. They are just loaded with catfish that don't seem to have any feelings about the weather or the condition of the water. They bite all the time on anything from minnows to something salvaged from the garbage can. If you don't have time to travel out on the reservation, try Russ Pond on the Main Post. There are some big ones in there and it can be fished when you only have a little time.

Rod and Gun Boats

A few thoughtless and dishonest people are endangering a good thing for a lot of sportsmen on the post. In the past month two Rod and Gun Club boats have disappeared from Smelling Pond. Additionally, several boats on other ponds have holes that appear to be from gun fire. The Rod and Gun Club does not plan to replace the two boats taken from Smelling, nor do they plan to replace any other boats which disappear in the future.

The club, of course, would like to have any information on the whereabouts of the missing boats and information concerning the frustrated hunters who apparently get a charge out of spoiling someone else's pleasure because of their bad luck or lack of ability to find game. This is another area where those who are concerned shouldn't have any compunction about reporting thieves and vandals. After all, if someone steals one of these boats it's really stealing your property, and when he thoughtlessly ruins a boat it's really damaging your property too.

Fishing Derby

As we said before, there hasn't been too much fishing action on the post ponds. SSgt. Eugene Jones, 255 Logan Ave., still leads the bream category of the Rod and Gun Monthly Fishing Derby. His entry was a one-pound specimen taken from King's Pond. He was using pink worms.

Colonel (ret.) Charles King has registered the largest bass this month. He took his 9-pound, 4-ounce entry from Harps Pond. A black flip-tailed worm turned the trick.

SSgt. Kenneth Hull, Co. A, Headquarters Command, leads the catfish entries with a seven pounder he took from Victory Pond. He was using beef liver for bait.

Sportsmans Lounge

All of the Rod and Gun Membership owe thanks to a few hard-working members who spent off-duty time last week to give Sportsmans Lounge a new look. It was a high-priced paint detail of a good cross section of the membership. The ones to thank are Capt. Joe Sylvia, a Marine Corps officer in an Advanced Course; Capt. Dial who was probably trying to show his appreciation for the fine gun he won in the banking contest; Lt. Col. Smith of Martin Army Hospital; MSgt. George Drake, TSB and Mr. George Drake, a limited member All the members are invited to see what a good job they did. The lounge is open every day from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m.

Hurricanes lead Pee Wee league

Youth Activities basketball in the PeeWee League reached the halfway point with the conclusion of the last two week's games and the Hurricanes were in first place with three teams tied for second place.

Hurricane Tim Booth netted 13 points in leading his team to a 36-11 win over the Raiders. The winner's scorers also included Emett Lee's eight points for game runnerup honors, six points by Keith Book, four points by Bill Jackson and two points each for William Lowry and Joe Crowder. The Raiders scoring was led by Everett Garrett's six points with Frank Muller netting four points and Charles Jones adding a free throw.

The Globetrotters beat the Minigums in a 19-18 last-second victory with Cal Griffin and David Ehrbart swishing six points each. The Trotter scoring was finalized with Dewey Caulder adding four points, Chris Fountain netting two and Leonard Cody hitting free throw.

Minigunner Gilbert Jenkins took game scoring honors with eight points and Steve Timm and Charles Casias zipped in three points each. Also scoring for the Guns with two points each were Dave Coggins and William Finch.

Hornet Jim Dorchak hit 14 points and Gus Schneider added 13 more to lead their team to a 31-20 win over the Roadrunners. The winners were also aided with two points by John Dorchak and a free toss each by Jeff Atkinson and Bobby Grow.

Roadrunner Bob Heaukulani led his team's scorers with seven points and Mike Hallinan and Steve Darbonne hit for four points each. Five more Runner points went on the board as free throws were made by Jim Pawlik, Ken Robinson, Matt McTiernan, Brian Wright and Kevin Hallinan.

In the first game of last week's action the Hurricanes downed the Hornets 25-14. Tim Booth zeroed in for seven points and Dave Driskill followed with six points to lead the winners. Hurricanes Keith Book and Emett Lee swished four points each and William Lowry and Bill Jackson hit for two points each.

Game scoring honors went to Hornet Jim Dorchak with nine points while Hornet Gus Schneider netted three points and Jeff Atkinson got two points for their team total.

The second game of the week was won by a heartbeat as the Roadrunners defeated the Minigums 25-24. Runner Bob Heaukulani led the victors with 13 points and Brian Wright scored four points. Greg Lewis, Jim Pawlik, Ken Robinson and Mike Hallinan all scored two points each for the Roadrunners.

The Miniguns' Gilbert Jenkins netted 11 points and Dave Coggins hit for seven points while Lane Bellamy and Steve Timm had two points each in an outstanding effort.

It was a 26-10 win for the Globetrotters over the Raiders in the week's final game. Cal Griffin led the Trotters with 10 points and mates Chris Fountain and David Ehrhart hit for six points each. Also scoring for the winners were Dale Fletcher with two points and Greg Rosher and Jeff Cody with a free throw each.

Raider Everett Garrett hit for five points and Tom and Charles Jones swished a bucket each while Tim Bridges picked up a free throw.

3rd Army teams slate exhibition games

By Bill Kloeb

Fort Benning Basketball fans can get an early look at some of the teams that will play in the 3rd Army Basketball Championship here Mar. 15 to 19 when the Fort Benning team is host to teams from Fort Rucker and Fort McClellan, Ala., in exhibition games over the next two weekends.

Tomorrow the Ft. Rucker team arrives for the continuation of a series started last week at Ft. Rucker where the two teams won one game each. These exhibitions should be especially interesting since Rucker and Benning are expected to be top competitors for the "A" Division of the 3rd Army Championship.

The first of the two games to be played this weekend will start at 7 p.m. Saturday night, the second will start at 1 p.m. Both games will be played at Briant Wells Field House.

The McClellan-Fort Benning series will consist of two games at Briant Wells Field House next weekend. The first game will start at 7 p.m. Saturday, and the second game will start at 1 p.m. Sunday afternoon.

Norwegian soldiers visit Benning for orientation

The Norwegian officers arrived on post Wednesday and are scheduled to depart tomorrow.

While on post they witnessed a number of demonstrations and were briefed on Infantry Center and Infantry School activities.

Today they are scheduled to visit Columbus Square shopping center and Bradley Museum downtown.

Accompanying Col. Oyri are Lt. Col. Thorgjorn Innset, commandant, Norwegian School of Artillery; Maj. Johannes Lunder, operations officer, Norwegian Army Command, and Maj. Karstein Arvid Kristiansen, commandant, Quartermaster Corps School and Training Center.

Escort officer for the visitors is 2nd Lt. Svall Ulvedal, HHD., 197th Sup. Bn., 197th Inf. Bde.

Col. Leiv Oyri, commanding officer, Regimental Combat Team No. 8, Royal Norwegian Army, and several fellow officers from Norway are visiting Fort Benning for an orientation tour.

The Forum

(Editor's note: Members of the "weaker sex", it long has been established, always have the final word in any matter. Even the manly world of sports is no exception. This week, Beverly Irwin of the WAC Company, Hq. Cmd., using The Forum's "guest writer" privilege, aims a few barbed rejoinders at Ralph Padron (also of Headquarters Command) for his contentions in last week's column. Pardon maintained that the 197th Infantry Brigade's championship basketball team had an unfair advantage over their opponents from the other major units.)

BY BEVERLY IRWIN

In last week's article, Ralph Padron began by congratulating the 197th for winning the post basketball tourney. Thank you, Ralph. I'm sure the men of the 197th appreciate the kind words. Here, the niceties end.

Ralph then went on to say how the 197th team "had a few things going for them which the other major unit teams lacked." Without repeating any of his arguments, the piece maintained that the Infantrymen had advantages which the players of Headquarters Command and other units lacked. In reality, the other commands really cheated themselves.

Tears Won't Help

Criticizing the 197th for the misfortunes of the other units is just out of bounds, like crying in one's soup after-the-fact. Everything the Infantrymen did was within the rules of standard operating procedures (SOP), regulations, — and ethics. It is not the fault of the 197th that some of the other commands did not give their teams the proper support or take the necessary measures to produce a winning team.

In the 197th's case, our "weapon" was Fort Benning's Volunteer Army (VOLAR) program. What the 197th did was quite proper and correct if one carefully follows the spirit and letter of the VOLAR plan. The 197th demonstrated its implementation of VOLAR in the area of more "effective utilization of personnel" and more "professional job specialization," to use the specific language of the VOLAR policy makers.

VOLAR is designed to make the Army an organization in which people will want to belong. What better way is there to do this than in giving men opportunities to do what they like? In this case, playing basketball. Other commands could have followed the 197th's lead in developing athletic programs on this scale. But they didn't.

All's fair, boys

Certainly, the 197th had some advantages over the other commands because of its full-time participation in basketball. And one can hardly blame last week's writer for his negative reaction to what he called the "privileged status which the 197th B-ball squad enjoyed." He and his teammates worked daily at their duty sections and had little time for practice, whereas the 197th practiced three to five hours a day developing their cage skills.

But they shouldn't fault the 197th for this. All is fair, they say, in love and war — and sport is the finest form of combat.

Apparently the 197th was the only team shooting for number one.

Attend a 197th basketball game at Kelley Hill Field House some night. Then go to a Headquarters Command contest at Briant Wells on Main Post. Compare the spectator turnout. It's the difference between a packed stadium and empty bleachers.

Anyone who believes that the "cheers of the fans" is not important to a team hasn't played much sports. Spectator support is a huge morale booster for any squad — whether they're participating in basketball, Polo or tiddlywinks.

And nearly everyone in the 197th, from brigade commander Col. Willard Latham on down, supported their team. Even the wives went to the games. The 197th should not be put down because they had a good, well-supported program. Rather, the other commands should lick their wounds and learn from the 197th's example.

USAMTU slates anniversary open house

The U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit (USAMTU) will take time off from its busy training schedule March 1 to observe their 15th anniversary in an Activation Day Celebration "Open House."

A get-acquainted affair, the celebration will be an occasion for the unit to host their families and friends, during the birthday observation and show them the unit's operation.

The festivities will commence at 8 p.m. with an award ceremony in which Vietnam veterans assigned to the unit, who have recently returned from the battle zone, will be decorated. This ceremony will be held at the unit headquarters.

The guest-oriented activities will commence at the Skeet Lodge off Dixie Road at 9 a.m. Here the guests will be given a brief orientation on the days activities. This will be followed by coffee and doughnuts.

Immediately following the coffee period, the visitors will be given demonstrations of Trap and Skeet, and other marksmanship activities.

Following the range tour a birthday cake will be cut by Colonel Robert M. Piper, Marksmanship Unit commander, for the many guests and marksmen. Colonel Piper will also give his comments upon the accomplishments of the unit, its background history and the goals of the marksmen.

The unit was established by the U. S. Continental Army Command in March 1956. The organization came about when the Army's pride in its long tradition of marksmanship hit a new low in the mid 1950s. Since its inception, the USAMTU has consistently come home in the forefront in both individual and team competition in national and international matches.

'Blue collar' workers eligible for many deductions

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fifth in a series on ways you can save on your Federal income tax returns this year. The articles are written by Henry Block, president of H and R. Block, Inc. America's largest income tax service.)

Persons employed in the fields of transportation and construction frequently have jobs which take them away from home overnight or longer, often have to own and maintain special uniforms or equipment, are likely to change jobs or job locations, and usually belong to unions. All of these circumstances involve special tax deductions.

'TAX HOME'

The home where you and your family live is not necessarily your "tax home." If you are employed in transportation or construction work, as well as other businesses which require considerable traveling, your "tax home" is the general area where you work most of the time and earn most of your income.

For example, suppose a professional baseball player maintains a residence for himself and his family in Omaha, Neb., but during the season plays for the New York Mets. New York, where the team is quartered and where it plays its home games is the player's tax home and the cost of meals and lodging while in New York cannot be deducted.

On the other hand a construction worker who normally works in and around the Chicago area is given a temporary assignment for three months in Syracuse, N.Y. In this case, he could probably deduct the cost of his meals and lodging while in Syracuse since he is away from his tax home — Chicago.

The "tax home" definition can vary from job to job and be somewhat technical, so caution and a thorough knowledge and understanding of the law is necessary before trying to apply it.

UNIFORMS AND EQUIPMENT

Any person required to purchase and maintain special clothing, tools or equipment for his job can deduct costs for tax purposes. Airline stewardesses, nurses, hotel doormen, and others are eligible for this deduction.

One stipulation requires that the clothing "not be adaptable to general wear," and this provision eliminates a deduction for dungarees worn as work clothes by a laborer. It would also eliminate a deduction by a member of the military for his uniforms, since they can be worn for general use (insignia can be deducted).

In addition to uniforms a deduction is allowed for certain types of protective clothing purchased by the employee. Safety shoes, safety glasses and rubber aprons would be examples of this type of deduction.

A deduction also is allowed for certain small tools used in the employes work. If the tools have a useful life of less than one year, the entire cost may be deducted in the year of purchase; however, if the life is longer than one year, the cost must be spread over the life of the asset (depreciated).

SLEEP IS SAVING

Generally, the tax rules do not let you deduct your meals and lodging expense unless you are away from your tax home overnight. But there are exceptions if you sleep while working away from home.

Often a truck's normal work day at the wheel is 10 hours but some trips require driving to a city six hours away and then returning to a home terminal the same day. After making a delivery, a trucker may pull up to a truck stop, rent a bunk and sleep four hours. Then he heads home again. Because he slept those four hours, he can deduct his food and lodging cost even though he was away from home less than 24 hours.

If you fall into any of the above categories and wish to deduct these expenses on your income tax return, you are required to provide receipts substantiating all of your expenses and to keep a daily "diary" indicating where you were and what your business purpose was. This may seem to be a tedious chore, but it may be well worth the extra effort when Uncle Sam's tax deadline comes.

UNION AND PROFESSIONAL DUES

You are allowed to deduct the expense of belonging to a union or other professional organization. If the organization is job related, you may deduct the cost of belonging even though it is not actually designated as a trade union.

"YOU SAID THIS HOP WOULD LAND ME NEAR HOME, BUT I NATURALLY THOUGHT..."

Income tax and you

In addition to union dues themselves, you can deduct initiation fees, certain special assessments and the cost of attending union conventions including your meals and lodging.

COMPANY SICK PAY PLANS

If you miss work for any length of time and your employer continues to pay you wages, you may be able to exclude at least part of these wages from your taxable income in the form of sick pay.

The amount which you are allowed to exclude depends on several different factors. If your employer continues to pay you your regular salary, then you must wait 30 days and then are allowed to exclude all of your sick pay up to a maximum of $100 per week. If you receive 75 per cent or less of your normal weekly wage, then you are required to wait only seven days, and this seven day wait is waived if you are hospitalized at any time during your absence from work. The sick pay exclusion for the first 30 days has a maximum of $75 per week and $100 thereafter.

Before you are able to exclude sick pay it must have been included in your taxable wages in the first place—you are not allowed to exclude that which has not already been included. Therefore if you receive benefits from State Disability payments or Workmen's Compensation, you cannot exclude them because they were not taxable in the first place.

Voice of VOLAR

CHANGES

- Free bus service to Columbus is now available. Tickets are available in unit areas.
- Renovation of the Benning House — Fort Benning's alcohol and drug treatment center — is continuing.
- Trips to nearby recreation areas, such as Atlanta, Callaway Gardens and Panama City, Fla., are being scheduled. The first trip is set for Atlanta this weekend. Transportation is free, but other expenses are borne by the soldier.

PROPOSALS

- Hiring of civilians to take over some soldier details is progressing. More than a third of those scheduled to be hired for road police have been placed on the payroll.

AUSA

The Association of the United States Army (AUSA) — dedicated to premise that a strong, modern, mobile Army is vitally essential to our national defense.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY BENEFIT BALL

Approximately 550 civilians and military were in attendance at the Washington's Birthday Benefit Ball sponsored by the Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning Chapter, AUSA, Feb. 19 at the Fort Benning Main Officers' Club.

Among the guests present at the occasion were "Chick" C. E. DeRemer, 3rd Region AUSA president; Joe J. Flowers Jr., chapter president; J. W. Woodruff Jr., and Oscar L. Betts Jr., AUSA national trustees; Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, and Brig. Gen. John T. Carley.

Both the Supper Club and the Fountain Room of the Officers' Club were used for the ball, with a band playing in each. Red, white and blue decorations dominated the areas which were decorated with muskets and portraits of George Washington to accentuate the Revolutionary War motif. The menu featured roast prime rib of beef with the traditional cherry pie.

Large contingents from the 197th Infantry Brigade and The School Brigade were in attendance at the ball. OCS support for the ball was in evidence with a large number of candidates attending.

Kudos are passed to CSM's Charles H. Fletcher and James H. Bittorie and SFC Paul A. Wheeler, who did an outstanding job in decorating the Officers' Club for the ball.

GEN. COCKLIN IS GUEST AT BOARD OF DIRECTORS MEETING

Brig. General Robert F. Cocklin, USAR, AUSA national director of public affairs, attended the monthly meeting of the chapter's board of directors held Feb. 4 at Fort Benning.

In brief comments at the meeting, Gen. Cocklin stated that at no time in history had the work of the AUSA been so important. He said the AUSA strongly supports moves to improve conditions for those in the Army. However, the Association is now concerned about the need to extend the selective service system when it comes up for renewal this summer.

"The AUSA supports a 4 year renewal to keep the machinery to provide men for the Army if they should be needed," said Gen. Cocklin.

In other business, the board of directors discussed chapter plans for the Red Carpet Tour in April, the ROTC Rifle and Drill Competition, and an AUSA display at Columbus Square Shopping Center during Columbus Festival Days.

AUSA SUPPORTS LOCAL ROTC

The local chapter contributed $175 to help pay expense for Muscogee County School District Varsity Rifle Teams attending the Tampa-Columbus Rifle Match held Feb. 20 in Tampa, Fla.

Local teams won seven out of the 10 awards offered at the match including first place won by Hardaway, second place won by Baker and third place which was won by Jordan.

High individual honors at the meet went to Cadet Major Bob Walsh of Baker High School.

AUSA GOES TO BAT ON AIR TRAVEL

A tariff recently approved by the Civil Aeronautics Board allowing airlines to give priority to civilian standbys over those from the military has been successfully challenged by the AUSA. The ruling, which was brought to the attention of AUSA officials Feb. 8, was protested because it would be a hardship to military personnel and it would create ill-will for both CAB and the airlines.

AUSA said the tariff has been withdrawn effective March 10 and members of the Civil Aeronautics Bord have been asked to advise the association on future matters concerning the military.

FEBRUARY AWARDS

AUSA plaques awarded in January but not included in last month's column went to Sgt. Harry D. Marley, selected as distinguished graduate of NCOC Class 4-71; Capt. Billy Benham and PFC George H. Corn, distinguished graduates of Ranger Class 7-71, and Spt James C. Fitzgerald, soldier of the month for January in the 93ist Engineer Group.

During February an AUSA plaque was awarded to Sgt. Keith W. Hicklin, selected as distinguished graduate of NCOC 5-71.

Soldier of the month plaques for February were presented to Spt James H. Swann Jr. from the 197th Infantry Brigade and Sp 5 William O. Aguew from USAIC Aviation Command.

Ceremonies honor 7 Benning retirees

In ceremonies held Wednesday at Fort Benning's York Field, Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander, honored the following seven individuals upon their retirements.

CW3 Jessie F. Addison Jr., Det. 1, USAIS, received the Army Commendation Medal with 2nd Oak Leaf Cluster. Addison will live in Columbus following his retirement after 20 years service.

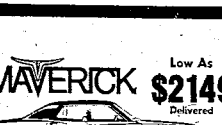
CW2 Charles L. Jones, Co. D, 197th Spt. Bn., 197th Inf. Bde., received the Army Commendation Medal with 1st Oak Leaf Cluster. Jones, a veteran of 20 years, will live in Montgomery, Ala., after his retirement.

SFC Ramon Ortiz-Ortiz, 209th MP Det., 93ist Engr. Gp., received the Meritorious Service Medal. He will live in Columbus upon retiring with 22 years of service.

SFC Charles E. Price, 13th Co., 1st Bn., TSB, received the Army Commendation Medal. He will live in Columbus upon retiring following 20 years service.

SFC John R. Sikes, Btry. A, 2nd Bn., 10th Arty., 197th Inf. Bde., received the Army Commendation Medal after 20 years of service.

SSgt. Jack M. Long, 586th Engr. Co., 931st Engr. Gp., received the Army Commendation Medal after 27 years in the Army.



SSgt. William J. Isaacson, Co. A, 43rd Engr. Bn., 931st Engr. Gp., received the Army Commendation Medal with 1st Oak Leaf Cluster. He will reside in Columbus after his retirement with 20 years of service.

THE LITTLE PROFIT SAVES YOU MORE THAN ANYTHING YOU EVER BARGAINED FOR

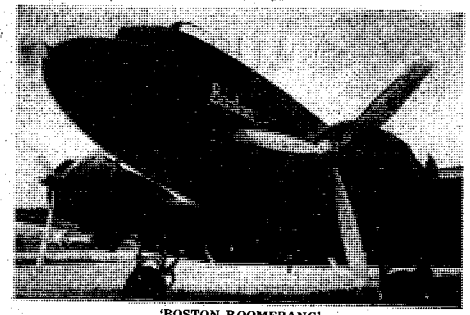
Though her age shows, she's proud of her past

By Les Hauser

A grand old lady recently retired at Fort Benning.

But during her 26 years of globetrotting, she has been known by some rather unladylike names, such as "Gooney Bird," "Puff," "Skytrain," and "Dakota." However, her reputation is best remembered under the name of C-47.

Despite her age, she has kept her shapely dimensions of 96 by 64 by 16 feet, and weighs a petite 16,000 lbs. In her day she was considered a fast gal, able to cruise at a maximum speed of 230 miles per hour. When she was loaded, she could get as high as 24,000 feet with an additional, 14,000 - pound load.



She was born in 1944 and soon became one of the youngest war veterans in history with a total of 1,300 hours of flying time during World War II (WWII). She spent a portion of this time on the Lend Lease Program to the Russian government.

The C-47 is a military prototype of the DC-3 airliner, which was first introduced in 1935. The DC-3 has been called "the most successful airliner in history." This reputation rubbed off on the DC-3's second sister, the C-47, which became known as the "workhorse" aircraft of World War II.

Fort Benning's lady has had some interesting experiences since WWII, such as spraying mosquitos in Alaska and flying through a volcanic eruption. But, in spite of her 25,000 hours in the air and the several million miles on her airframe, she arrived at Fort Benning's Lawson Army Airfield in surprisingly good condition on Aug. 19 from the 180th Tactical Fighter Group of Toledo, Ohio.

The mothball bound aircraft was given a last minute reprieve by Fort Benning's Infantry Museum. The museum plans some day to move the aircraft from her temporary home at Lawson Army Airfield and put it on display at the proposed multi-million dollar National Infantry Museum on a site next to Infantry Hall on post.

Until then, she has been adopted by the Airborne Department's Jump Committee. She has been stripped of most of her electronic gear, given a fresh coat of the Army OD green paint, and put on display at the committee's headquarters at Lawson Field. She has been given another, in her long line of names, and is now known affectionately as the "Boston Boomerang."

Black histories available

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Several valuable sources are available to anyone interested in studying black history.

"The Employment of Negro Troops," by Ulysses Lee, is one of a series of studies on the U.S. Army in World War II and the authoritative work on the subject. It is available in all Army libraries and may be purchased from the Superintendent of Documents.

The United States Armed Forces Institute (USAFI) offers two correspondence courses in Negro history. Course No. A210, "The Negro in American History," is high school level and uses the 600 - page illustrated text "Eyewitness: The Negro in American History," by William L. Katz.

Course No. A462, "History of the American Negro," a college course, uses two texts: "From Slavery to Freedom: A History of Negro Americans," by John Hope Franklin, and "The Black American: A Documentary History," by Leslie Fishel Jr. and Benjamin Quarles.

These courses and texts are available through post or unit education offices.

After 30 years active duty

'Short order' marks retirement

By Mike Keller

Few retirement ceremonies feature the delicious smells of baked ham, steaming green beans, grilled hamburgers and fresh apple pie.

The one for MSgt. Johnny L. Pruett did. Pruett, a Headquarters Command mess sergeant, completed 30 years of active duty in a ceremony in his own mess hall recently. And — for his final Army lunch — Pruett selected a "short order" platter of burgers and fries.

It was an appropriate choice. For when Pruett entered the service as a cook three decades ago, the idea of a short-order menu wasn't even a remote dream in the mind of the most hot dog hungry private.

Today, thanks to Fort Benning's Volunteer Army (VOLAR) project, it is a reality. And Pruett is all in favor of it — as well as other measures to make mess hall chow, operation and surroundings more appetizing to its patrons.

"VOLAR is one of the best things that has ever happened in the Army food service field," said Pruett, who served with Hq. Det., Hq. Comd., since January 1966. "It's a big morale booster for the young soldier. It should have started long ago."

Pruett recalled the conditions of "long ago" — the drab mess halls with bare tables seating 10 men or more, the seemingly endless chow lines and the "one-choice only" meals inside. And, for the less fortunate, the dreaded drudgery of kitchen police (KP).

"A soldier had only 30 minutes to 'eat up and get out,' " Pruett said. "Even if he had had time to light up a cigaret, smoking was forbidden in the mess hall."

This has all changed. "I've seen a tremendous, an almost 100 per cent improvement in mess service and operation since I started in 1941," Pruett said.

Now, on Fort Benning most mess halls are decorated — and some have piped - in dinner music. Serving hours have been lengthened and lines shortened or completely eliminated. For every course on the line, there is a choice — from the main dish to salads and desserts. A soldier can eat in leisure and — if he desires — smoke. And KP has been turned over to civilian employes.

Pruett feels that nearly all mess sergeants approve of the "new look." "Mess stewards want soldiers to come in and eat," he said. "Now that the men are getting more of a choice in their food and have a better eating environment, a lot more people will be going to the mess hall instead of to a snack bar."

Even before VOLAR, Pruett strived to maintain a "top notch" mess facility. He won the Hq. Cmd. "best mess" plaque for the past four years and the award for the best decorated mess at Thanksgiving and Christmas for the last three.

In recognition of his superb efforts, Pruett's fellow mess personnel presented him a silver serving tray at the retirement ceremony. Among those attending the event were Col. Robert Richmond, Hq. Comd. commander, and CSM William Hanson, Hq. Comd. sergeant major.

Pruett spent nearly half of his Army career at Fort Benning. In addition to his final tour, he was with the 34-40 Army Service Unit here from April 1947 to November 1953, with Co. B, 15th Inf. 3rd Div., between January 1955 and February 1958, with the 3rd Army Food School as an instructor from February to September 1958 and with HHC, 1st Bn., Center Troop Command, from June 1961 to September 1963.

He plans to live in Columbus with his wife Evelyn.

Portable missile fired from shoulder position

REDSTONE ARSENAL, Ala. (ANF) — A Dragon missile armed with a high-explosive warhead has been fired from a man's shoulder for the first time during a development test at Redstone Arsenal. The anti-tank missile scored a direct bit on a stationary target.

Weighing less than 30 pounds, Dragon is completely man-portable, yet powerful enough to destroy enemy tanks or other battlefield targets.

The shoulder-fired Dragon uses an automatic command-to-line-of-sight guidance system. A soldier simply aims through a telescopic sight, launches the missile and holds his sight on the target until impact. The missile is automatically and continuously guided by a sensor device which tracks the missile's course and transmits corrective signals through a wire link.

Virus needs host for sickly role

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — Nothing takes more advantage of a gracious host than a virus.

The result can be a bad case of the flu, a miserable cold, or any number of other diseases, including such familiar childhood ailments as chicken pox, mumps and measles.

A true parasite, the virus is a minute entity that shows no sign of life until it bumps into an obliging host cell. Then nucleic acid from the intruder may become part of the cell and the virus can reproduce itself — a prime characteristic of living things.

Every virus particle, or virion, contains a central core of nucleic acid surrounded by a protein coating, the National Geographic Society says. When a good match exists between virion and cell, the two may become attached. In some cases, the acid enters alone. More commonly, the cell swallows the virion whole, mistakenly treating it as food.

Like a well-trained saboteur, the nucleic acid causes the healthy cells to cease normal functions and start manufacturing copies of the virus. Within half an hour perhaps 100 to 200 viruses are produced. The cell bursts, and the viruses scatter, each ready to invade another cell.

Vaccines have effectively controlled many of the viruses that storm the body's natural defenses, reports the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases.

However, one of the most common virus-caused illnesses, the common cold, still defies preventive efforts since it is caused by at least 80 different viruses. Each would require a separate vaccine.

Some viruses live in peaceful co-existence with healthy cells for years before symptoms of infection appear. The cell continues its normal activities, even dividing into other cells. Then, for no known reason, one of these begins wildly producing copies of the dormant virus.

Viruses can take the form of pretzels, corkscrews, raspberries, tadpoles, toadstools, needles and cupcakes.

Whatever their appearance, they are fantastically tiny. About one million could fit into a single red blood cell. It would take one million-million-million polio viruses to fill a ping-pong ball.

No one ever saw a virus until 1939, though they were known to exist decades earlier. Only in the last 20 years, with the help of electron microscopes and high-speed centrifuges, have scientists been able to identify, photograph, and measure them.

Once in a test tube, a virus can enjoy a long life. A sample preserved for three decades in one laboratory could still kill rats.

Several hypotheses have been suggested to explain the origin of viruses. They may have evolved from disease-producing bacteria. Some virologists believe they were once part of normal cells that lost the ability to reproduce except by becoming parasites.

Army hospital costs reduced

WASHINGTON (AFPS) — A day spent in an Army hospital bed in 1969 cost taxpayers about $27 less than what they had to pay in civilian hospitals, according to a study by the Army Surgeon General's office.

At 19 Army hospitals the cost averaged about $48 per day, while the per day care in 211 large civilian hospitals averaged about $76.

The study also indicated:

Patient care in Army hospitals "has become more effective" partly because of increased Army medical research, which was expanded from $30 million in 1963 to $53 million in 1969.

The health of Army personnel between 1963 and 1969 was "excellent."

Post Office Building to be air-conditioned

Air-conditioning is in store for the Post Office building at Fort Benning, according ti the Savannah District Army Engineers.

A bid opening is planned for March 11 in Savannah, Ga., on the proposed $25,000 to $100,000 project of air-conditioning the building which was built in 1942 and is now mechanically ventilated.

The contract time for the project at the 12,000 square foot facility is 120 days.

Plans and specifications cost $10 and may be obtained by contacting the Savannah District Engineer, P. O. Box 889, Savannah Ga. 31402.

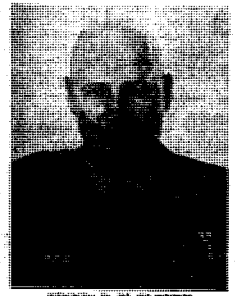
Benning soldier receives nation's highest medal

PSgt. Finnis D. McCleery received the nation's highest award for heroism, the Congressional Medal of Honor, in ceremonies held Tuesday at the White House. President Richard M. Nixon presented McCleery the award.

McCleery, presently assigned to Co. B, Hq. Cmd., distinguished himself on May 14, 1968, while serving as platoon leader of the 1st Plt., Co. A, 1st Bn, 6th Inf., Americal Div.

A combined force was assigned the mission of attacking a reinforced company of North Vietnamese Army regulars well entrenched on Hill 35, 17 miles west of Tam Ky in Quang Tin Province.



As McCleery led his men up the hill and across an open area, his platoon and other friendly forces were pinned down by heavy fire coming from the fortified enemy positions.

Realizing the damage the enemy could inflict on the allied forces if their advance stopped, McCleery began a one-man assault on the bunker complex.

He ran across 50 yards of open ground under heavy rifle, grenade and rocket fire and began returning fire as he neared the complex. Although wounded once by shrapnel, he continued the assault on the main bunker and killed all its occupants.

He climbed to the top of the bunker he had just captured and in full view of the enemy shouted encouragement to his men to follow his assault. As the friendly forces were advancing, McCleery began an attack on the re-

Sniffle stoppers

Feel a cold coming on? With rainy weather like we've been having the past week, it's no wonder. Well, don't just sniffle, trudge over to one of the troop medical clinics and pick up a "cold pack" like Mrs. Gerald Kozlowski, wife of Spc4 Kozlowski, and PSgt. Billy G. Marts (R) are doing from 1st Lt. Harvey Stowe. The packs are a new service Martin Army Hospital is providing so patients with colds will not have to wait to see a doctor for a prescription. The contents of the packs, which are avaiable only to persons over the age of 13, are aspirin, cough syrup, red cold tablets (Sudafed) and throat troches. The packs are available at the Outpatient Pharmacy Annex; Cilluis Pharmacy, MAH; troop medical clinics and the MAH Emergency Room.

And no more running around either

No more long lines for in-processing

By Wendell Cochran

. . .Remember when . . .

. . .In-processing was the biggest hassle in the Army? And even when you were through with the paperwork and the lines, you still barely knew where you were going.

. . .You were a company commander without a clerk? And you had a report due tomorrow but the new clerk was in-processing until at least the day after tomorrow.

Well, you can take those memories and put them in your mind's file marked "The Army Before VOLAR."

Because at Fort Benning, under the Modern Volunteer Army program initial in-processing has become a one-stop, half-day affair for most incoming personnel.

The Personnel Processing Center has nearly consolidated in-processing for E5s and below who are being assigned to the Infantry Center or the Infantry School. The provost marshal's automobile registration center will be moved to the center soon.

Maj. John Wiest Jr., processing center director, said initial in-processing time has been cut from "three or four days to four or six hours."

"It is our aim to get the new man to his unit and on the job as quickly as possible with money in his pocket," Wiest said.

"We want no more than 24 hours delay in getting a man to his unit," the major added.

Under the policy instituted at the center, the delay usually is much less than that. Personnel who arrive at the center in Building 83 prior to 2 p.m. are processed on the day of their arrival.

Those who arrive after 2 o clock begin in-processing and are housed overnight by the 18th Replacement Detachment, one of the units working under the processing center.

Besides the replacement detachment, the center also houses a finance pay team, an AG records processing team and an identification card

West Point Society to sponsor dinner for academy grads

All graduates and ex-cadets of the U.S. Military, Naval and Air Force Academies are invited to attend the 1971 Founders Day Dinner to be held by the West Point Society of Fort Benning and Columbus on March 12.

The dinner, featuring an address by Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, will start at 6:30 p.m. in the Fountain Room and Main Ballroom of the Fort Benning Officers Club.

Adm. Moorer is a 1933 graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy.

Maj. Gen. (ret.) Howard Snyder of Columbus, a graduate of the 1936 class at the Military Academy and president of the local West Point Society, said that membership in the society is not required for attendance at the dinner.

He urges that members of the society contact persons in this area who are eligible to attend and extend an invitation to the dinner.

Those planning to attend should contact the Director of Plans and Training, U.S. Army Infantry Center, Fort Benning, before Tuesday (Telephone 545-3102.)

51 Fort Benning workers receive incentive awards

Incentive awards were presented to 51 civilian and military personnel Wednesday at Fort Benning.

The awards were presented by Col. K. B. Barlow Jr., deputy assistant commandant of the Infantry School. All those who received awards are assigned to the Infantry School.

Those who received an outstanding rating from The School Brigade were Mrs. Virginia H. Mears, Leonard Frye, Mrs. Ruth G. M. Burrier, Mrs. Paula E. Dupree, Charlie Burns and Billy R. Weaver.

Those who received an outstanding rating from the Office of the Director of Instruction were Miss Carolyn Williams, Reuben E. Webster, Stephen Osbrach and W. Charles Harvey.

Those who received an outstanding rating from the Office of Doctrine Development Literature and Plans were James S. Dawson and Mrs. Annie G. Welch.

An outstanding rating was presented to three persons from the Nonresident Instruction Department. They were Mrs. Frances H. Martin, Robert T. Wright and Mrs. Romona B. Benton.

Also receiving an outstanding rating were Mrs. Emma Lee Jones and Mrs. Jane P. Rice, both of the Weapons Department, and Mrs. Anne M. Bodey and Mrs. Cheryl L. French, both of the Company Operations Department.

Three persons of the Brigade and Battalion Operations Department received an outstanding rating. They were Mrs. Joyce A. Queen, Mrs. Iva L. Brown, and Mrs. Nancy E. Gunn.

Others who received an outstanding rating were Theodis N. Grimes of the Command Maintenance Department, Mrs. Kathleen R. Meyer of the Airborne Department, Mrs. Blanche T. Anderson of the Communication-Electronics Department, Mrs. Priscilla V. Williams of the Management and Budget Office, Mrs. Rosalie B. Beach of the Ranger Department and Mrs. Elizabeth A. Jones of the Leadership Department.

Eight persons received an outstanding rating and an annual pay raise for high quality work. Four of these, all of the Office of the Director of Instruction, were Mrs. Sherry M. Wilkerson, $154; Miss Frances C. Dozier, $473; Mrs. Melinda W. Long, $174; and Mrs. Janet N. Smith, $195.

Others who received an outstanding rating and an annual pay raise for high quality work were Mrs. Christine M. Howard of the Command Maintenance Department, $195; Mrs. Margaret T. Carlyle of the Nonresident Instruction Department, $174; William L. Adkins of the Office of the Director of Operations and Logistics, $174; and Mrs. Elizabeth K. Snell of the Management and Budget Office, $218.

Five persons of the School Brigade received an outstanding rating and a sustained superior performance award. They were Mrs. Gladys P. Comer, $154; Omer J. Hatmaker, $200; Mrs. Jean K. Carey, $150; Mrs. Bobbie D. Pike, $150; and Mrs Isabell N. Whitt, $150.

Miss Bessie E. Monfort of the Company Operations Department also received an outstanding rating and a sustained superior performance award of $150.

Three persons received an annual pay raise for high quality work. They were Letcher Crawford of the Nonresident Instruction Department, $329; and Wilson R. Olive, $270, and Mrs. Lavonda M. Duncan, $195, both of the Office of the Director of Operations and Logistics.

Mrs. Gloria O. Dixon of the Company Operations Department received a sustained superior performance award of $200.

Five persons received a letter of appreciation for an adopted suggestion. They were Mrs. Martha J. Bahb and Capt. Paul A. Pressly, both of The School Brigade; 2nd Lt. Peter K. Serfass and Maj. Curtis J. Herrick, Jr., both of the Weapons Department; and Col. William L. Humphrey of the Management and Budget Office.

Drill meet to be held at Benning

The seventh annual Junior ROTC Invitational Drill Meet will be held on York Field beginning at 8 a.m. tomorrow.

The event, formerly held at Macon, has attracted 35 teams from five southeastern states.

Local entries will include teams from Baker, Hardaway, Kendrick, Carver, Central and Columbus high schools.

Team and individual competitions will be conducted. Team competition will include compulsory and precision drill. Individuals will be judged on movements in the drill manual.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

by Bill King

Crumble crisp bacon into hot buttered fresh spinach—it's especially good with a fish dish.

Five centuries before Christ, Hippocrates, the father of doctors, was prescribing milk as an all-purpose medicine.

The increasingly popular Italian "pesto" sauce—usually made of a blend of oil and cheese with basil, anchovies or other ingredients—is so called because it was traditionally ground with a mortar and pestle (pesto).

Keep a set of measuring spoons in each canister of flour, sugar, cornmeal or whatever. Saves time and wash-ups.

If an omelet is for dessert use, try beating whites separately until stiff, and then folding in beaten yolks. It will be nice and fluffy—just add berries and whipped cream and there you are.

Q — The rules were changed to allow female employes of the Infantry Center to wear pants and pantsuits to work during the winter. Will it be similarly acceptable for the ladies to wear "hot-pants" to work this summer?

A — USAIC Regulation 670-2 was altered in 1970 to include female employes wearing pants and pant-suits; however, the regulation also states that shorts of any kind are prohibited in such places as the Main Post Theater, post chapels, all offices, etc., and are not wearable as duty or work uniform. That means no "hot-pants."

Q — What do Army Regulations say about the wearing of wigs by soldiers in uniform?

A — Army Regulation 600-20 as changed by DA message of May 25, 1970, specifies that the wearing of a wig or hair piece by male personnel, while in uniform or on duty, is forbidden except under the following circumstances:

a. For cosmetic reasons to cover natural baldness.

b. When appropriate to cover physical disfiguration caused by accident or medical procedure.

c. When a wig or hair piece is worn as indicated above it will conform to standard hair criteria as stated.

Q — By what authority do Rangers wear black berets on post and downtown?

A — The Ranger Black Beret was never authorized at Department of the Army level. It is a unit policy and was approved by the Infantry School in 1965. It is to be worn only with fatigues and is not authorized to be worn off post. It also is not authorized to be worn by anyone other than Rangers.

Q — I used to enjoy reading the Boston Sunday Globe at the Post Library. There hasn't been a copy there since the issue of Jan. 24, 1971. The librarian told me many of the contracts for the Sunday papers were not being renewed. Is this the case with the Boston Globe? If so, why?

A — A spokesman for the Special Services Library said the contract for the Boston Globe will not expire until December 1971. However, the library has not received a copy since January 24. The Military Service Company which handles subscriptions for the libraries placed a telephone call to the Boston Globe. The circulation department of the Globe took responsibility for the error and has mailed the Sunday newspaper dated Feb. 28. The library regrets the mistake.

The judge says

Light shed on 'last clear chance' rule

USAIC LEGAL ASSISTANCE OFFICE — At night, parking lights or "flashers" warn other motorists. Do not drive with your parking lights on unless you also have the head lamps on. At night if you park off the roadway or within 18 inches of a curb the law may not require you to turn your lights on. (But it might be safer if you did.)

Officer Jones, for example, parked on the freeway wide shoulder with his lights off one night to catch speeders. Driving along watching cars front and back, Sam rammed the police car and injured Jones.

Jones sued Sam. Sam claimed Jones should have had his parking lights on. But Jones said he didn't have to: Not every part of the paved highway is a "roadway" the court ruled. A "roadway" is that part of a highway which is improved, designed, or normally used for traffic: Off the roadway on the wide paved shoulder, Jones was legally off the "roadway." He need not have his parking lights on.

Officer Jones might well have had his parking lights on for safety sake. But if Sam had acted "reasonably" the judge said, he should have seen the parked car, his "last clear chance" to avoid the crash.

The legal doctrine of "last clear chance" softens the harshness of the "contributory negligence" law.

What is contributary negligence?"

As a rule, the plaintiff whose own negligence helps to bring on his own injury, cannot collect damages from a defendant who is also negligent.

Take a jaywalker, negligent because he should not cross in the middle of the street.

Normally he could collect no damages. But suppose a speeding drunk driver runs him down. Clearly, the pedestrian helped to bring on his own injury by wandering on the road; but under the last clear chance rule, he can still recover damages. If the driver had been sober, he could and should have avoided the accident under the doctrin of the last clear chance. Since he did not, he was liable for damages, even though the pedestrian was also negligent.

The last clear chance rule does not apply if the defendant could not avoid the accident. He could not avoid the accident had the pedestrian, for example, suddenly stepped out between some cars, or had the sun blinded the motorist.

The last clear chance rule arises in situations where someone places himself in danger and cannot readily get out of it himself. Then if the defendant could avoid the accident, he has the burden of doing so. If he does not he is liable for damages. This shifts the burden from the plaintiff in the case to the defendant.

Letter to the Editor

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is a portion of a letter submitted to us this past week on the Modern Volunteer Army (VOLAR). The Bayonet welcomes letters on subjects pertaining to the Army and Fort Benning.)

For the first five days every month our dayroom is closed because those who have drunk-up their paycheck have a bad habit of breaking things up. Now, with beer even more readily available, what will happen? Furthermore, one of the greatest things about the Army is meeting people from every walk of life. Thus, the beerhall is a much better place to socialize and meet new people than the mess hall.

Personally I don't believe we can ever have an effective Infantry without drafting. Even if pay-grades were equal to those of civilian professionals. Very few people value money more than life itself.

No organization, large or small, can cater to the whims of every individual. This can't be done on the fairly level, much less in an organization as large as the Army.

Although I truly appreciate the fact that I am given more responsibility, such as setting my own reveille, I fear that the Army is being too radical in its changes. I suggest that we observe the armies of other countries and learn from them . . .why are they strong, why are they weak? Perhaps we fear that other nations would scorn and mock us, but a nation that is too proud to learn from others is on her way to defeat.

Respectfully,
Spt Patrick H. Throop

Editorial

Pinocchio had 'trip' problem, too

Pinocchio, the story of a puppet who became a boy, can be given a modern interpretation. Pinocchio was a user, a pot-head, pillpopper, speed freak, acid-head and a mainliner. He was a puppet with drugs as the invisible strings that gave him his make-believe life.

One drug made him jump, another made him stumble lazily, and still another simply blanked his mind so that he lay in a heap on the floor. One day one of his "strings" got tangled around his throat.

He had a "bad trip" and thought he was going to die or lose his sanity. After that he started cutting these strings, trying to stand by himself. And, he made it because he wanted to be more than just a puppet.

There are many thousands of people today living their own Pinocchio story. Some of them are in the military. They're not all tied, hand and foot, to drugs. Some only smoke marijuana, others use only speed, LSD, or even heroin. But many use whatever is available.

Those who use drugs in a casual, once-in-a-while fashion have only two things to worry about; getting caught and taking a bad dose. One will put you in prison and the other can kill you. The chronic user shares in the dangers of the casual user, but something else, something more terrible can and does happen to him.

The chronic user becomes a pitiful parody of a man, a puppet-creature existing through the effects of the drugs he takes. He may think that because he chooses to take them, he is still in control. But how much in control is he when he feels "bugged." He makes the problems go away, not by solving them, but by making himself indifferent to reality.

This indifference can take the form of making yourself feel happy when you're depressed, taking something to calm down when you're nervous or becoming more "aware" through the use of drugs because living in the real world is too difficult or painful.

Everything is right there, in the joint, the pill and the fix. You don't have to try anymore, just be pulled this way and that like a puppet. You don't need anything, anything except the drugs. You don't even need yourself because you no longer have a self. You are the drugs and the drugs are you. It is an equation that equals zero. (USARYIS-IO)

New law, new obligation

"If I'm old enough to wear a uniform, then I'm old enough to vote," was the common lament of the young servicemen for decades. Today that right to a vote in a national election is a reality for young service members 18 years old. In fact, it is more than right. It is an obligation.

Our obligation, like that of all United States citizens, is to vote intelligently. Obligation is a two-way proposition. The men we vote for also have obligations.

The elected official is obliged to serve all the people in his district, not just the people who voted for him nor a particular group of voters.

At the same time that candidate may assume that, by electing him, the people endorsed his campaign platform. The intelligent voter has considered the platforms of the various candidates and has made his selection accordingly.

The obligations of the voter don't end when his candidate is elected to office. The citizen must keep the representative informed of opinions on the public issues.

Federal law and Armed Forces regulations may forbid the citizen-serviceman from engaging in politics while wearing his uniform (to do so may be interpreted as a government endorsement of an issue or a candidate). However, Armed Forces members are encouraged to express themselves as private citizens of the United States of America. It is an obligation. (AFPS Editorial)

Civilian aides visit Benning

Civilian aides to the secretary of the Army from the Southeastern United States and Puerto Rico visited Fort Benning for two days last week.

Lt. Gen. Albert O. Conner, commanding general of 3rd Army, invited the civilian aides here to brief them on the Modern Volunteer Army (VOLAR) program and other Army matters. Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander, arranged the conference agenda.

Civilian aides attending were Howard H. (Bo) Callaway, president of Callaway Gardens at Pine Mountain, Ga., appointed to the post by the secretary of the Army in December, 1970, to represent the 3rd Army area as a whole; Dr. Robert C. Edwards, president of Clemson University, Clemson, S. C., South Carolina aide; Col. (USAR ret.) Addison P. Drummond, an attorney from Bonifay, Fla., Florida aide; Holt McPherson, chairman and treasurer of the Eastern Carolina Radio Corporation and editor of the High Point (N.C.) Enterprise, North Carolina aide.

Thomas F. Elam, a member of the law firm of Elam, Glasgow and Tanner, Union City, Tenn., Tennessee aide; Frank E. Everett Jr., an attorney from Vicksburg, Miss., Mississippi aide; Will H. Tankersley, vice president of Sterne, Agee and Leach, a finance and investment firm, Montgomery, Ala., Alabama aide; James B. Williams, president of First National Bank and Trust Company, Augusta, Ga., Georgia aide; and Julian O. McConnie Jr., an attorney from San Juan, P. R., Puerto Rico Aide.

Also attending the conference were Maj. Gen. B. F. Evans Jr., deputy commanding general, 3rd Army; Maj. Gen. J. M. Finn, deputy commanding general; Reserve Forces, 3rd Army; and Arthur W. Allen Jr., deputy assistant secretary of the Army for manpower and reserve affairs and special assistant to the secretary of the Army for civilian aides.

After briefings on current Army problems, the conference ended with a panel of media executives discussing with the civilian aides how the American media are fulfilling their role of informing the public about national defense issues.

Civilian aides serve as advisors to the secretary of the Army and the Army commander within whose area they reside. Their activities include advising the secretary and the commanders on public attitudes toward the Army within the aide's geographical area of responsibility; recommending actions which should be taken to correct erroneous impressions and broaden public understanding of the Army and its members; disseminating information about the objectives, role, requirements and major programs of the Army, and recommending ways and means of attaining the maximum in understanding and cooperation between the civilian community and the Army, and of promoting mutual appreciation of the needs and problems of each.

Civilian aides are appointed on an honorary basis without remuneration for their services. They are appointed for two-year terms, and are eligible for re-appointment.

Fixing wrecker

Spt Kevin M. McGrath, PFC Walter Kilgore, and SFC Tommy J. Melhorn (L to R), members of the 598th Light Maintenance Company's maintenance platoon, repair the engine on a wrecker. The company supports 32 units on Fort Benning with more than 5,514 pieces of equipment serviced. While small maintenance work usually is performed on equipment from the 10-ton truck size down, the company is capable of major repairs. Approximately 70 jobs per week are put through the company maintenance shops.

Infantry Agency officer goes to NATO school

Col. Christian F. Dubia, chief of the Doctrine and Organization Division, U. S. Army Combat Developments Command Infantry Agency at Fort Benning, has been assigned to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) Defense College in Rome, Italy.

Lt. Col. Albert W. Malone has succeeded Col. Dubia in the Infantry Agency post.

Col. Dubia was assigned to the Infantry Agency in June 1968.

After graduation from the NATO Defense College, Col. Dubia will be assigned to NATO Headquarters in Brussels, Belgium. He and his family left Fort Benning in early February.

Col. Malone is a native of Carthage, Mo., and is a 1956 graduate of Oklahoma City University. He entered the service in 1950 and received his commission through Officer Candidate School in 1952.

He also graduated fr the Airborne Course and the Advanced Course of the Infantry School at Fort Benning and from the U.S. Army Command and General Staff College.

His overseas assignments have included tours of duty in in Germany, Hawaii, and two tours in Vietnam. In Vietnam, he served as civil guard advisor to I Corps in 1961-62, and from November 1968 to May 1969 he was commanding officer of the 5th Bn., 12th Inf., 199th Inf. Bde., and from May 1969 to November 1969 he was operations and training officer of the 199th Inf. Bde.

Malone's awards and decorations include the Legion of Merit, the Bronze Star Medal with cluster, the Air Medal with five clusters, and the Army Commendation Medal with cluster.

He and his wife, the former Stella Fay Crowder, reside at Fort Benning. They have three children.

Dramatizers play is named 2nd best in 3rd Army contest

The Fort Benning Dramatizers production of "Blue for Mister Charlie" has been named second best production in the 3rd Army Tournament of Plays. The Dramatizers also took two top acting awards in the contest.

For winning second place, $500 will be awarded to the Entertainment Section, Special Services, which sponsors the post amateur theater group. The money is a non-appropriated welfare grant.

Acting honors went to Dean Irby, who played Richard in "Blues" and was named best actor in the contest. Named best supporting actress was Diane Savoca, who portrayed Jo in the Dramatizers production. They will receive a certificate and an award for their efforts.

The 3rd Army Tournament is an annual contest among dramatic groups of major 3rd Army installations. Awards are given for production, direction and in various acting and technical categories.

The Fort Bragg, N.C., version of the Greek play "The Birds" took the top production honors in this year's competition. Last year the Fort Benning Dramatizer's production of "A Man for All Seasons" was third place winner in the contest.

"Blues for Mister Charlie" was a play about racial tension in a small Southern town. The Dramatizers produced the drama the last two weeks of February.

Military academies accept post dependent

Stephen A. Turner, son of Maj. and Mrs. Alvin H. Turner of Columbus, as been accepted to attend the three military academies (Air Force, Army, and Navy) next fall.

Stephen is recognized for his scholastic performance and active participation in extracurricular activities at Baker High School. Some of his many achievements include Outstanding American High School Student, National Honor Society, The University of Georgia Certificate of Merit, Top Scholar, NEDT Certificate of Merit, first place winner in a science fair (biology and physics divisions), and a social science fair, and Speak Up for Young Americans Certificate of Appreciation by WRBL-TV.

Participation in extracurricular activities include track team, student council, debate team, class council, English club and math team.

Tall spire

The world's highest cathedral spire is the 528-foot spire of Ulm Cathedral in Germany. Although construction of the Gothic edifice began in 1377, the tower was not completed until 1890.

VOLAR has 'soul' sound on WOKS

Soul music enthusiasts are in for a treat tomorrow at 6 p.m. when "Soul Sounds of VOLAR" premiers on radio station WOKS.

The weekly half hour show, announced by Willie F. Johnson of the Infantry Center Information Office, will feature the latest soul hits and is designed to acquaint the listening audience with all aspects of the modern Volunteer Army concept.

As an adjunct to the emphasis being placed on improving the lot of the young soldier, "Soul Sounds of VOLAR" will complement the current hourly "Voice of VOLAR" show being aired bi-weekly on WDAK at 6 p.m. Saturdays with announcer James P. Hickey of the Center Information Office.

ARC assists 'walk, crawl, slither-ins'

By Les Hauser

The Ladies of the American Red Cross (ARC) Volunteers represent a proud heritage of service to many areas of the medical profession. But here at Fort Benning they have been called on to perform a service which is unique in the medical field.

Their patients may bark, bite, slither or crawl. But, regardless of their behavior, they are always given the tender loving care, deserved by a faithful pet.

These ladies work with the post veterinary clinic, a minimum of one afternoon a week. Most of them are assigned to the front office as receptionists where they answer phones, process health records and type health cards. Yet those who are brave of heart prefer to assist veterinary personnel in administering treatment to the animals.

These volunteers agree that the term "pet" has to be one of the most flexible in the world. Through the portholes of the post veterinary clinic pass not only the common household variety of pets, such as cats, dogs, parakeets, hamsters, canaries and ducks, but also, the more exotic like a boa constrictor and ocelot.

Through it all these undaunted volunteers are able to maintain their feminine composure with a hearty sense of humor. Quiped one volunteer, "there is nothing worse than a boa constrictor with a cold."

The idea of using American Red Cross Volunteers was first thought of by Col. George E. Rittef, Fort Benning Post Veterinarian; while he was stationed in Stuttgart, Germany in 1965. Short of Veterinarian Technicians, he was forced to call on outside help or "close down completely." When Col. Ritter came to Fort Benning in 1967, he once again called on the ARC Volunteers for help and has been using them ever since.

Col. Ritter states, "Their services are outstanding because they want to be here. They are the greatest workers we have." He knows of no other Post Veterinarians that have called on Volunteers; but, he said, "I suggest and encourage the idea whenever I can."

The pet clinic is operated on an out-patient basis and all pets are handled as "walk-ins, crawl-ins or slither-ins." But regardless of their mode of locomotion, at the Fort Benning Pet Clinic they will be greeted by ARC Volunteers with a friendly smile and a sympathetic ear.

PTA schedules March meeting

The Fort Benning Parent Teacher Association (PTA) will hold its next meeting March 9 at 7 p.m. at Dexter School.

James E. Blount of the Post Safety Office will be the guest speaker. The subject of his talk will be "How to Survive in the Modern World."

All parents with children in the post schools are invited to attend and learn how to be safe in the home, on the job, and on vacation.

The Tot Town nursery will be open for the convenience of the parents attending the meeting.

Yoga, slim 'n trim keep officer wives in shape

Yoga classes for the Officers' Wives' Club (OWC) will begin March 2 at 11 a.m. at the OWC lounge. Yoga is a method of exercising and breathing which tones and shapes the body with very little use of energy.

Yoga is great for all ages. It helps people become more relaxed, have more energy and lose or redistribute weight. The cost of this course is only $6. For further information call Mrs. Larry Wood at 561-3616.

Modeling and charm classes are being offered by the OWC beginning the first week in March. Each course consists of 6 lessons at a cost of $15.

Modeling positions right here in Columbus will be made available upon completion of the modeling course. The charm course is designed to give you more self-confidence and poise, and you will learn great tips on make-up, hair and fashion.

For more information and registration for either of these courses please call Mrs. Stephen Pawlik at 545-3987.

The Officers' Wives Club announces a new slim 'n trim course beginning March 8. This course will run for 7 weeks at a cost of $7 and will be conducted in the School of Dance building.

Morning classes will be held every Monday and Friday from 9 to 10 a.m. Evening classes will meet every Monday and Wednesday from 7 to 8 p.m.

Now is the time to start trimming away those extra inches for the slim new fashions of summer. For more information and registration call Mrs. Richard Stamm at 544-1325.

Luncheon has Leadership wives starry eyed

The officer's wives of the Leadership Department held their March luncheon in the Corregidor Room of the Main Officer's Open Mess Tuesday at 12:30 p.m.

Thirty-six wives and guests attended the social hour which preceded the "Look To Your Stars" luncheon.

The decorations were of the zodiac theme. The nametags and place cards were made of construction paper. The nametags were covered with star dust made of glitter. The place cards were faced with the zodiac sign of the individual guest and contained a selection of thought for each guest's individual zodiac sign. The seating was by the birthday of each guest at round tables covered with white cloths. In the center of each round table was a projectile star, made of cellophane straws, toothpicks and styrofoam, forming an astrological constellation.

The welcome was given by Mrs. George E. Palmer, wife of Lt. Col. Palmer, deputy director of the Leadership Department. Mrs. Palmer introduced the program which was a musical selection by the "Polka Dots", a local vocal group.

A special birthday gift of a Zodiac Book was presented to Mrs. Glenn F. Sweeney, whose birthday was March 2, the day of the luncheon.

Attending the luncheon as a guest was Mrs. David Mohr, sister of Mrs. John Smith.

Hostesses for the occasion were the ladies of Headquarters headed by Mrs. George E. Palmer and assisted by Mrs. Patrick J. Lalley and Mrs. William E. Smith; and ladies of the Leadership Committee headed by Mrs. Jim I. Hunt and assisted by Mrs. Michael M. Cogswell, name tags and place cards, and Mrs. Richard K. Wright, table decorations.

49er's Party

Games, food from Maggie's Chuck Wagon and girls such as Mrs. Sam Conn will be part of the festivities at tomorrow's 49 ers' Party. The celebration will get started at 7 p.m. at the Fort Benning Main Officers' Club. Sponsored by the Daughters of the U.S. Army, the affair is being held to obtain funds for construction of a new day-care nursery in the proposed Post Exchange shopping complex to be constructed near Martin Army Hospital. Earlier in the day the Daughters will hold their annual 49 ers' Party Hunt Club Parade at 10 o'clock. The parade begins and ends at the Fort Benning Hunt Club.

Social activities keep February lively for clubs

Comm-Elect Buffet

Food and merriment were the key ingredients for the Feb. 22 Hail-Farewell of the Communications-Electronics Department, USAIS. The informal buffet and party at the Country Club was held in honor of Lt. Col. Egon J. Arndt and CW3 Jessie F. Addison who will be retiring this month.

The officers and their wives were entertained by 2Lt. George P. Conbeer, MC and comedian; and by the singing of 1Lt. James J. Hastman.

Col. Robert D. Sweeney, director of the Comm-Elect Department, addressed the group briefly, welcoming four new officers and saying good-bye to the retirees.

Hobo Party

King's Pond Lodge provided the setting for a Hobo Party for approximately 40 officers and ladies of the Leadership Committee on Feb. 20.

Nametags were paper "patches" and small round tables were centered with newspaper dollies and candle stubs in tin cans.

Following a pot luck dinner, Lt. Col. Jim I. Hunt, chairman of the Leadership Committee, welcomed newcomers, Maj. and Mrs. Robert E. Bonthuis and Capt. and Mrs. Joe Pavaro, and said farewell to Maj. and Mrs. James P. Hales III.

Lt. Col. Hunt also announced that this marked the end of the committee's basketball season and several appropriate awards were made.

Honored guests, Col. William B. Steele, director of the Infantry School's Leadership Department, and Mrs. Steele assisted in the judging of the "humpiest" costume. Mrs. Richard K. Wright won the contest and received a kerchief on a stick containing such essentials as deodorant, bath soap, mouth wash, pork 'n beans, beef stew, and a wash 'n dri cloth.

The evening continued with dancing to the jukebox.

Hostesses for the evening were Mrs. Jim I. Hunt, Mrs. Frank Evans, and Mrs. Edward D. Kennedy.

931st Engineers Meet

The 931st Engineer Group held a social hour at the Group's Engineer Lodge Feb. 19. The Group's subordinate units attending the function were the HHC, 931st Engr. Gp., 139th MP Co., 988th MP Co., 209th MP Det., 524th Pers. Svc. Co., 18th Repl. Det., 23rd Repl. Det., and 89th Ord. Det.

This event gave the members of the unit an opportunity to meet informally and engage in discussions aside from the business activities that occur every day.

The group's "welcome committee" extended greetings to new arrivals and best wishes and farewells to departees. New arrivals include: 2nd Lt. Betty Roux, CW2 and Mrs. K. J. Pilcher, Capt. and Mrs. Robert S. Poe, Capt. and Mrs. Jack Avant, Capt. and Mrs. Jesse Minix, Capt. Willie E. Vasser, CW2 and Mrs. Daniel A. Wolverton, and 2nd Lt. David A. Chartier. Departees include: Maj. and Mrs. Richard Hudson, Maj. and Mrs. Micheal Torrans, and CW3 and Mrs. Jack Smith.

Weapons Dept. Fashion Show

Mini, Midi, or Maxi? was the question asked of the 70 ladies of the Weapons Department who attended a fashion show Feb. 17.

The Luncheon Fashion Show was held in the Patio Room of a local department store.

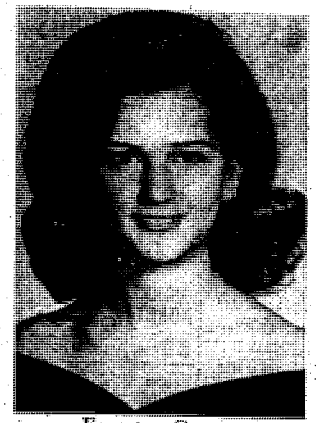
Fashion coordinator for the store, Mrs. Gunn, narrated the show. Featured were pant suits and dresses just right for spring. The pant suits were suitable for all occasions from the very casual to very dressy for evening. Dresses were shown that would take you from the morning coffee to the formal ball. Most of the clothing was made of washable knits.

Honored guest was Mrs. John Carley, wife of Brig. Gen. John Carley, assistant commandant, USAIS. Mrs. John Coryell, Mrs. Leslie Perry, and Mrs. John Gardiner were welcomed guests also. Mrs. Jack Conn, wife of Col. Jack Conn, department director, thanked Mrs. George Greer, Mrs. John Hyland, and the ladies of SPW subcommittee for hostessing the luncheon.

Mrs. Conn welcomed Mrs. Joel Sneed, Mrs. Byron Williams, Mrs. James Wamble, Mrs. Gary Digello, Mrs. Douglas Rogers, Mrs. Terry McKenzie, Mrs. Bruno Jacknann, Mrs. Stephen Bates. Mrs. Hans Knoff, Mrs. George Vakalis, Mrs. Charles Milton, Mrs. William Bowdren, Mrs. Charles Dwyer, and Mrs. William Eisenhart as newcomers to the department. Farewells were said to Mrs. Nicholas Colavito and Mrs. Curtis Ivy.

Protestant wives meet

The Sand Hill Protestant Women of the Chapel met at Sand Hill Chapel No. 4 Feb. 24 at 9:30 a.m. Mrs. Ruth Holmes from the non-English speaking group at the Post Religious Education Center was guest speaker.



The topic for the meeting dealt with teaching English to those who need help in this area. The speaker encouraged the 18 women present to participate in the center education program. Several new members and guests were in attendance.

The next meeting of the Sand Hill PWOC will be March 24 at 9:30 a.m. in Sand Hill Chapel No. 4. On that day the group will tour a local nursing home. An invitation is extended to all who wish to attend.

Army to get 17,000 men

WASHINGTON (ANF) — The Army will receive all 17,000 of the inductees the Department of Defense has requested from the Selective Service System for March.

This is the same number of draft calls as were made in January and February.

Forestry Queen

Miss Diane Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kermit E. Walker of Columbus was named 1971 Muscogee County Forestry Queen Feb. 22 during pageant ceremonies at Royal Crown Company Auditorium. Miss Brown, one of 11 candidates competing for the title, recently competed for the title of Miss Georgia USA in the Miss Universe contest. Walker is a former acting sergeant major of a transportation unit in Vietnam, and Mrs. Walker is a civilian employe in Personnel Division of MEDDAC.

Only 'quality' junior officers retained

Army now to be more selective

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Department of the Army has initiated a new competitive voluntary indefinite program to retain only quality junior officers in a career status.

Affected by the change in policy will be all officers who enter active duty in Fiscal Year 1971 and have not signed a voluntary indefinite extension prior to Feb. 1, 1971, starting date of the program.

Under the new policy those officers must compete with other officers of their branch who received their commissions in the same fiscal year if they want to receive voluntary indefinite extensions.

Not affected by the change are warrant officers obligated officers of the Chaplains, JAGC, AMEDD, Regular Army officers and officers who entered active duty prior to Fiscal Year 1971.

Officers who have a two-year active-duty obligation (OBV II) and desire an indefinite extension may be accepted by the career branches in a voluntary indefinite extension which commences the day following termination of the initial OBV II obligation.

After the seventh month of the special extension, the officers' records for the entire two years and seven months of active-duty commissioned service will be reviewed to determine the personnel best qualified to remain on active duty beyond the competitive voluntary indefinite obligation. This period is known as "competitive voluntary indefinite."

Eight months after the start of the voluntary indefinite extension (two years and eight months of active duty), voluntary indefinite officers will be notified in writing by their career branch whether or not they will be retained beyond three years of active duty.

Hopefully this notification will be made in sufficient time to allow non-selected officers to make alternative career plans.

Aviators will be notified during the second year and eighth month after completion of initial flight instruction.

OBV IV officers who apply for a voluntary indefinite extension will be notified of selection or non-selection for retention beyond the initial four-year obligation at the time of application.

Incentives such as choice of assignment, schooling and training, which are within Army requirements, will remain in effect.

NCO wives plan March activities

The ladies of the Noncommissioned Officers (NCO) Wives Club will hold their March luncheon at a local department store, March 17, for a showing of new spring fashions. The luncheon will begin at 12:30 p.m.

Hostesses for the event are Mrs. Cornell Crews (544-1205) and Mrs. James Dixon (689-7244). Reservations may be made by contacting either hostess and the reservation deadline is March 15.

The monthly breakfast will take place Wednesday (March 24) at 9 a.m. The breakfast will be held at the Sand Hill NCO Club. Members and guests are encouraged to make their reservations with one of the hostesses before March 19.

The menu will consist of sausage, eggs, hash browns, toast, coffee or tea. The breakfast is free to members and guests pay 75 cents.

Anyone interested in becoming a member may contact Mrs. Arthur Butts (545-1585), Membership Chairman.

'Change' to be subject for religious lecture

"Are You Receptive to Change?" will be the subject of a free Christian Science lecture at Fort Benning tomorrow at 3 p.m.

The speaker will be Robert H. Mitchell, CSB, of Edinburgh, Scotland, who, according to Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Francis J. Dolan, "has a broad background of experience in the most vital areas of his church's outreach."

Mitchell is an authorized teacher of Christian Science and is a member of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church in Boston. He is currently on a lecture tour in the United States and Canada.

An organ concert at 2:30 p.m. by Robert J. Everett will precede the lecture, which will be in the Main Post Infantry Center Chapel, Bldg. 101, and will last about one hour.

How many housing units depends on questionnaire

By Bill Kloeb

Why doesn't Fort Benning have more family housing units?

According to information received from Lawrence Mosley, chief of the family housing branch of the Directorate of Industrial Operations, one of the reasons may be you.

Each individual assigned to the post who is eligible to occupy government family quarters fills out a questionnaire concerning the quarters he occupies.

This questionnaire requires information concerning the number of dependents the individual claims and the type quarters occupied to include information concerning the structure itself, number of bedrooms, number of baths and whether or not the individual considers the quarters adequate for the needs of his family.

The information on these questionnaires is consolidated at post level and forwarded to 3rd Army which in turn consolidates the reports from 3rd Army installations and forwards them to Department of the Army.

At the Department of the Army the installation reports are evaluated to determine how much of the money allocated for family housing will go to each installation.

Army names new campaigns

New campaigns have been designated for service in Vietnam.

The 12th Campaign, starting as of Nov. 1, 1969, and ending in April 1970 has been designated "Vietnam Winter-Spring 1970."

The 13th Campaign is designated — commencing May 1, 1970. The name and termination date of this campaign will be determined and announced at a later date.

If you served in Vietnam or in contigious waters or airspace during the periods mentioned, you are authorized to wear new Battle Stars on your Vietnam Service Ribbon.

Later on, Department of the Army will publish a general order listing units that participated in these campaigns.

STUDYING DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE
Lewis (L), Hunter Look Over One Of 28 Documents

Infantry Museum gets 'freedom shrine' display

Newest display in the U.S. Army Infantry Museum at Fort Benning is a "freedom shrine" of 28 historical American documents.

Walter E. Lewis, president of the Exchange Club of Columbus, presented the 28-foot exhibit to John E. Hunter, curator of the museum.

"The purpose of the shrine is to instill in the American people a recognition of the greatest heritage we have," Lewis said. "In the museum, it will be seen by people who really count — young men defending our country."

Hunter agrees:

"By having the freedom shrine in the museum, we are able to show the public a selection of documents important in American history," he said. "We hope people will understand and appreciate their heritage more by having seen them."

Included in the 28 reproductions of famous documents are the Declaration of Independence, the Star Spangled Banner, the Emancipation Proclamation.

Guaranty benefit explained by VA

Veterans and servicemen who have used their GI home loan guaranty and, through no fault of their own, are forced to sell their homes for reasons of health, employment, condemnation proceedings of Federal, state or local government, or other compelling reasons may have their guaranty privileges restored.

The Veterans Administration noted that it must first be released from liability on the original loan before entitlement can be restored—usually by paying off the guaranteed loan in full.

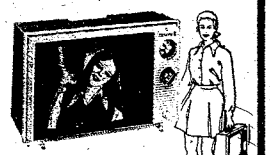
Direct loans must be paid off in full before entitlement can be restored, VA pointed out.

VA also will restore eligibility if the property was destroyed by fire or other natural hazards, as well as for certain other compelling reasons which were no fault of the veteran or serviceman.

Some of the reasons for which peoperty may be disposed of and entitlement restored by VA include:

—Loss of employment through a reduction-in-force, or curtailment of activities in the occupation where he is employed—if suitable employment is obtained in another locality.

—Transfer of employment from one locality to another by the veteran's employer.



—Voluntary change of employment to another locality offering the veteran more income and opportunity for advancement—provided satisfactory evidence is furnished VA.

—Retirement of a veteran, or transfer of a serviceman by his military department while his is still on active duty.

Army offers officers 4 school-plans

The Army provides four programs which enable selected officers to complete their civilian schooling or obtain advanced degrees. All of the programs are competitive and based on the officer's file.

The Degree Completion Program was originally set up as a six-month program, but has been expanded to a 12-month plan. An officer must have three years active duty prior to applying and will be required to serve two years upon completion of his schooling.

Priority is given to officers with the least amount of time required to finish degrees, whether graduate or undergraduate. The officer must pay for all academic and living expenses while receiving normal pay and allowances.

The Officer Undergraduate Degree Program enables an officer to obtain his degree in a two-year time frame. In order to apply, the officer must have an outstanding record and be between his second and seventh years of commissioned service. Ultimate selection is based on demonstrated manner of performance.

This program differs from the Degree Completion Program in that the government pays full tuition and up to $100 a year for text books, and that it is for undergraduate degree completion only. Participants in the program go on permanent change of station orders and remain on active duty receiving full pay and allowances. For further information on the program, see AR 621-5.

Officers who have a college degree and are between their third and 12th year of commissioned service may apply for advanced civil schooling. Those selected will spend one to two years to acquire their advanced degree and follow up with a subsequent tour in their field as determined by the branch.

Completion of the advanced course, command, and combat experience are some of the requirements needed by Infantry officers in order to apply. The officer also must show an aptitude for the course he wants to pursue as reflected from scores on the Graduate Record Exam.

A valid requirement exists in the Army for personnel with advanced degrees in the area one desires to pursue for further consideration in the program. In most cases a three-year tour will result immediately following completion of the degree.

AR 350-200 may be consulted for further details for those officers interested.

The Advanced Degree Program for ROTC instructor duty is defined in DA Cir. 621-6. It is designed to increase the academic qualifications of all commissioned officers assigned to ROTC instructor duty.

Applicants must have at least five years of federal service and hold an advanced degree or be willing to undertake graduate schooling en route to ROTC duty. Those officers selected will pay, at their expense, for the advanced degree.

The officer who already holds an advanced degree will be assigned to a three-year stabilized tour, while those who complete the degree en route will be stabilized for two years.

Applicants may submit preference as to geographic state and even college desired. Branch selection is based primarily on manner of performance. Officers applying must have held a company command assignment, be an advanced course graduate and have combat experience.

Voice of VOLAR

CHANGES

- A central Personnel Processing Center has streamlined and improved in-processing for the majority of soldiers being assigned to Fort Benning.
- Work has begun on renovation of a nightclub for soldiers E-1 through E-4.
- The "Voice of VOLAR" radio show will make its debut on WOKS tomorrow night. Listen for the show there each Saturday 6 to 6:30 p.m. "Voice of VOLAR" also is on WDAK every other Saturday 6 to 7 p.m.

PROPOSALS

- Free quarters cleaning for personnel leaving post soon will be a reality. A starting date of April 1 has been proposed for this civilian contracted service.

Ft. Bragg becomes 4th VOLAR post

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Ft. Bragg, N. C., has been selected as the fourth post in a test of the Modern Volunteer Army program.
