Post Schools to hold Art Show

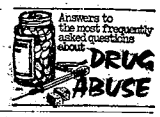
In recognition of American Education Week the National Infantry Museum is hosting a special art show. Students of the seven dependent schools here at Fort Benning will show examples of their artistic expressing during this Education Week activity. Students of all grades one through eight are participating. The show features works in nearly all media including water color, cut paper, posted paint, tissue paper, pen and ink, sponge painting and acrylic. Several of the works being shown were exhibited at the 1973 Chattahoochee Valley Fair.

Mrs. Southwood, an instructional supervisor with the Fort Benning Dependent Schools, said that the students, under the direction of Misses Carolyn Bickett, Marsha Bailou, Mrs. Janice Oldak and Mrs. Ron Cox, all of the Fort Benning Dependent Schools Art Department, have shown a great deal of imagination, creativity and talent.

The show, which officially opens on Tuesday, October 23, will run through Sunday, November 11.

The Columbus, Phenix City, Fort Benning community is cordially invited to visit the National Infantry Museum to view this special American Education Week feature. Mothers and fathers of the artists are especially welcome.

The Museum, which is located on Ingersol Street at Fort Benning, is open to the public Tuesday through Friday 1000 hours to 1630 hours and 1230 to 1630 hours on Saturdays and Sundays. The Museum is closed to the public on Mondays.



Huntsville to host NCOA

The Non-Commissioned Officers' Association (NCOA) will have a general membership meeting Tuesday, Oct. 30. The NCOA Symposium, to be held November 15 - 16 in Huntsville, Alabama, will be the main topic of discussion. Also discussed will be future Christmas projects.

Master Sergeant Cyril E. Robke, DPCA, chairman; Sergeant First Class William Payton, Small Arms Committee, Weapons Department, USAIS, vice chairman; and Specialist Four Barbara Zweckert, data analyst, Adjutant General-Military Personnel Accounting Section, treasurer have been elected to the NCOA Board of Trustees.

Also elected were Sergeant First Class Luther Kirby, ANCOES student; Staff Sergeant Howard Alpaugh, chief analyst, Adjutant Genral-Military Personnel Accounting Section; and Sergeant First Class Jack Childers, platoon sergeant, Headquarters and Headquarters Command, 2nd Battalion, 69th Armor.

The NCOA Ladies Auxiliary appointed these officers — Mrs. Herme Whitley, chairman; Mrs. Raye Alpaugh, vice chairman; Mrs. Hilda Holmes, treasurer, Mrs. Gussie Crowtll, secretary; and Mrs. Sharon Boyette, publicity chairman.

Civilians get pay increase

The Department of Defense has issued a new wage schedule for the Columbus, Ga. wage area. The schedule covers blue collar employees in the trades, crafts and laboring occupations.

New pay rates are based on a survey of rates paid by private industry in this area. The increases average $.36 per hour for non-supervisory employees. $.35 per hour for leaders, and $.43 per hour for supervisory employees.

The pay increase averages 8.1 per cent. The excess over 5.5 per cent is a result of increases at rates under $3.61 per hour which are exempt for limitations in accordance with Public Law 93-28, dated April 30, 1973.

Workers in the wage area affected by the new schedule are located principally at Fort Benning, Ga., Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala., Craig Air Force, Ala., Gunter Air Force Base, Ala., National Geard technicians, District Engineers, and the Veterans Administration offices.

Top grads receive recognition

The 2nd Battalion, 69th Armor, 197th Infantry Brigade has awarded plaques and battalion certificates of achievement to each of three top graduates of its Advanced Individual Training (AIT) course for mortar crewmen.

Private Clarence Stanfield was recognized as outstanding class graduate. The others receiving awards were Private Willie J. Traylor, who achieved the highest score in his class on the physical training test and Private Clifton Spruill, the top academic graduate.

There were 26 graduates. They are assigned to the battalion's combat Support Company. During the nine - week course the men were instructed in land navigation, leadership, maintenance and detailed aspects of mortars.

This included use of the M-2 aiming circle and aiming stakes, laying in mortars, descriptions of the 81-millimeter and 4.2-inch mortars and operational differences of each. In addition, they learned techniques of forward observation, types of ammunition, and how to call for and adjust fire.

Lieutenant Colonel Theodore B. Voorhees, the 197th Infantry Brigade deputy commander, was guest speaker for the occasion. In an address to the graduates, he discussed leadership principles and stressed their importance in successful military operations.

THE BAYONET Inside Front

Miss World-USA, Marji Wallace of Indianapolis, Ind. visited Fort Benning Wednesday to visit with soldiers and patients at Martin Army Hospital. She visited with the men of the 197th Infantry Brigade, the 36th Engineer Group and the 145th Aviation Battalion.

First all check payday

The 31st of October will mark Fort Benning's first all check payday. Any service member who was previously paid in cash and has not previously submitted a DA Form 3685 (Election of Pay Options) will be paid by check to his unit.

If the service member does not desire to receive his check in the unit he may select the check-to-bank or check-to-address option by forwarding a DA Form 3685 to the Finance Office through his unit orderly room.

Limits set for Halloween night

Thousands of young goblins, ghosts and witches will sally forth next Wednesday for traditional trick or treating on Halloween night. On post these activities should be limited to 6 to 9 p.m. Oct. 31. Troop billet and bachelor quarters areas are off-limits.

Make sure your children are supervised by a responsible adult as they make their ghostly rounds.

Keep a close rein on the youngsters to keep them from dashing into the street.

Give your child a flashlight to make him more visible, and make sure his costume is fire resistant.

A costume should not be so long or loose that the wearer will trip over it.

Masks should be chosen carefully to avoid those which will interfere with the child's breathing.

Restrict activity to familiar neighborhoods, avoiding dark, unlighted houses.

Children should be cautioned not to eat candy or fruit until their parents have examined it. Wash fruit and cut into small sections before allowing children to eat it.

Clear your lawn and porch of any obstacles which might cause youngsters to trip. Keep your house and lawn as well lighted as possible for the protection of the trick or treaters.

If you have a dog, make sure he cannot harm the children. Remember — even the friendliest dog may become agitated by the costumes and antics of children.

If you do any driving on Halloween night, be especially careful on residential streets.

Make this Halloween a happy night for our children by observing these safety precautions.

Sing Out For America

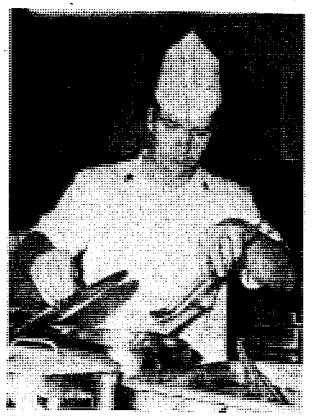
The newest perfroming ensemble of the United States Army Field Band, the Satin Brass, will perform with the Soldiers' Chorus at Columbus' Three Arts Theatre at 7:30 p.m. on November 2.

"The "Sing Out for America" performance, sponsored by the Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning chapter of the Association of the U.. Army (AUSA) is free. However, tickets ae limited. They may be obtained in advance are either the Columbus or Phenix City Chambers of Commerce or at Room 604 at Fort Benning's Infantry Hall.

Tickets may be ordered by sending the coupon with a self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2036, Fort Benning, Ga.

Since 1946, the Field Band has performed throughout the world thrilling millions with its striffing, traditional band concerts. At the same time, it has been a standard bearer for the new, the daring, the provocative, and the untried.

Its Studio Band of recent years, featuring bold, exotic tone colorings, set a pace that other jazz ensembles across the country are still seeking to emulate. The combination of the Army Field Band's Soldiers' Chorus, the "voice" of the organization, with the Studio Band in a youth-oriented musical review resulted in enthusiastic critical acclaim wherever it performed.



Satin Brass is but another step forward in a new direction for the Field Band. Created by the Band's commanding officer and conductor, Lieutenant Colonel Hal J. Gibson, Satin Brass extends the limits of conventional brass-playing concepts to become literally a complete orchestra.

"While the noble, majestic, full-bodied brass section is most familiar to every music lover, we felt that the full spectrum of brass possibilities remained unexplored," Colonel Gibson explains. "By exploiting the complete family of brass, from the tuba up through and including the piccolo trumpet, we have created a sound that is at once soulful, endearing, exhilarating, exciting and ebullient."

"When orchestrated in concert with an expanded modern rhythm section," Colonel Gibson adds, "we achieve a depth and dimension that we consider to be unique."

According to Colonel Gibson, there is tremendous variety in the writing. One tune may evoke sentimentaility with male vocalizations cleverly interwoven with flowing French horn obligatos over a tuba and bass trombone ostinato. The following arrangement may unleash a hurricane of thirteen brass with each of the virtuoso players responding to the virtuoso demands of his individual part.

"This is the ultimate in exciting brass playing," Colonel Gibson emphasizes. "It can be described as a musical adventure."

8th straight time

c, 3-7 wins dining hall award

By BOB THOMAS

"Number one," stated Specialist Four Nardie Andrews, Company C, 3rd Battalion, 7th Inf. (Cottonbalers), 197th Inf. Bde., "There is just no doubt about it."

Andrews was speaking about his company's dining facility when he said that, and evidently a lot of other people around Fort Benning and the brigade agree with him. The company's dining facility recently took the post best dining facility award for the eighth consecutive time — that's every month since the competition originated last February.

In addition, the company was named the Fort Benning representative in All-Army competition for the Phillip A. Connelley award for food excellence and captured a brigade "Best Dining Facility Award" for the past five quarters in a row.

Under the supervision of Sergeant First Class Howard Garrett, the cooks of Company C prepare 500 meals on an average weekday.

"It is the best food I have ever eaten in a mess hall!" stated Private Daniel Dees, who has been with the unit for 12 months. "The cooks are friendly and really try to please you."

Two of the cooks who work in the award winning facility have won the Fort Benning Cook of the Month award previously. They are Specialist Five James Williamson and Specialist Five Malcolm Johnston. Williamson has won the honor twice.

Specialist six Thomas Clevenger is the assistant dining facility steward. Also on the 12-man staff are Specialist Five Fred Pierce, Specialist Four Taylor Harris, Specialist Four William Watson, Private Andrew Colston, Private Billy Wilson, Private William McConnell, Private Gregory Gross and Private First Class Danny Muzichuk.

"Everybody knows what they are supposed to do and they do it," said Muzichuk, who has been a company cook for two months. "I've worked in other mess halls and this is the most organized by far."

"Working together," explained Harris, "That is the key. There is not much confusion here." Harris added, "Each man knows his responsibility" and everyone cooperates."

After one of his daily, informal cooks meetings, Garrett explained why his dining facility has won.

"Everyone of my cooks works hard," Garrett said. "They all help one another, look out to see that every job gets done and when someone slips up, the other cooks usually correct him before I get a chance."

BAYONET OPINION PAGE

Sergeant First Class
Morris Dillard
Co. C Hdq. Cmd.

It helps the morale, but there is less control of the troops. What these young soldiers think is that the Army is an eight-hour a day job. But it isn't. The Army mission is never finished. The Army needs more discipline. The way it is now, the soldiers dictate their needs to the Army. It should be the other way around. Most of the men coming into the Army have a higher degree of civilian knowledge but they don't have the military knowledge.

Staff Sergeant
Merle Creekbaum
Co. B 2/69 Armor

I think we should get back to the old Army concept: bed checks, more discipline, formations and having to get a pass to leave post. A lot of soldiers complain that food in the mess halls isn't good. I say that most of them haven't eaten so well in their life. We need formations at least twice a day. Some of my men I only see about once a day.

Do you believe recent changes made under the Modern Volunteer Army concept will improve the effectiveness of the Army?

Staff Sergeant
Bobby McBride
11th Co. TSB

No. I don't go along with the MVA concept at all. It was a lot better when I first came in. There was a lot more discipline.

Master Sergeant
Zolton Toth
HHQ Hdq. Cmd.

I believe that some of the changes will improve the Army in the long run such as barracks modernization. We have to get away from the little picky things with the young soldiers. Pay increases always help.

Sergeant First Class
Joseph Williams
533d Trans.

Yes. Under the MVA concept a soldier has a better chance of getting his problem solved through his chain of command. A lot of noncommissioned officers are changing with the Army. They realize that young men coming in the Army are better educated and are treating them like men.

Great fishing in post ponds

Most fishermen at Fort Benning hear about the great fishing in post ponds, but usually only learn of three or four major ponds. Newcomers usually hear of Victory Pond, Kings Pond, Twilight Pond and maybe if they are lucky, Harps Pond. Fishermen are missing a treat if they don't fish some of the other ponds on post . . .

If you like to make your fishing trips into family outings, or just like to get your family outdoors, several ponds offer picnic areas suitable for the family. Information concerning some of these ponds is listed below. Maps showing the locations of these fishing spots may be obtained at the Rod and Gun Club.

Kings Pond

The largest and most popular pond on post is Kings Pond. It is a 75-acre pond located off of Hourglass Road and Black Hawk Trail. It combines a family atmosphere with some of the best fishing on post. The area around the pond has been cleared and planted with grass. Picnic tables, latrine facilities and a lodge have been constructed in this area to make it a perfect picnicking area or camping ground. Bass, catfish and panfish predominate in this pond. It is open seven days a week and harbors 11 boats for fishing. As Sergeant First Class Don Carr puts it, "Since I'm married, it's a good pond for the wife. It's clear and there aren't a lot of snags to worry about.

Harps Pond

Harps Pond probably produces some of the largest fish, but it is located in a major impact area. Fishing is limited to weekends and holidays. This pond is located off the beaten path. Management is limited to clearing the shoreline of weeds and brush. It is located on Keystone Trail about eighteenths a mile south of Buckeye Trail. Fourteen Rod and Gun Club Rental boats are available for recreational purposes at this 56-acre facility. Bass, catfish, and panfish are taken from this pond.

Staff Sergeant Richard Patterson tells of this being his favorite pond because of the wide variety of fish. "When I go to Harps Pond, I'm almost assured of landing some type of fish. When I fish at ponds like Twilight, which are strictly catfish, and catfish aren't biting; I go home empty handed."

"Harps Pond is a place where I go by myself because of the snakes. If I'm going with my family, I go to Victory Pond, Twilight or Kings Pond. They are safe for the family. I can enjoy myself for the day, picnic, and it really doesn't matter if I catch anything. I have fished most of the ponds on post and caught fish at most of them, but everyone has a perference and mine is Harps Pond."

Twilight Pond

Twilight Pond, with good fishing, picnicking areas and playgournds, is an excellent place for family outings. Catfish are the main fish taken here, with a few bass and panfish also present. It is located off First Division Road. There are eight Rod and Gun Club boats available for recreational purposes on this 25-acre facility.

Victory Pond

Victory Pond is another of the popular, regularly used ponds on post. Victory is a good place for a family outing or a day of serious fishing. It is located along Eighth Division Road. This 15-acre pond is primarily a catfish pond, some estimated over 20 pounds, but it produces big bass and panfish. Seven Rod and Gun Club boats are available for recreational purposes.

Weems Pond

Weems Pond located on Jamestown Road is accessible on a hardtop road and is one of the favorite bass ponds on the post. The shoreline along the western portion of the pond has been cleared, planted to grass, and picnic tables placed in this area, making it an excellent camping and picnicking area.

This 40-acre pond also produces channel catfish and bluegill. Two Rod and Gun Club boats are located at this pond for your convenience.

Averetts Pond

Averetts Pond, a slightly smaller pond of 12 acres, produces good catches of bass, catfish and panfish. Indications are that this pond, is located off Americo Trail, is in excellent condition.

For Youngsters

Headleys Pond is a good place to take the youngsters to fish. Plenty of panfish keep them busy and interested while you enjoy the day and indulge in some serious fishing. Bass and panfish are taken from this pond. It is located on 10th Division Road.

Why Kids Experiment With Drugs

Chaplain Fraker speaks out on drugs.

On using addicts to scare kids out of using drugs: "This method of drug abuse prevention is counter productive."

In the first article of the series, Chaplain Fraker discussed social conditions contributing to these problems. In this, the second article, he discusses why kids experiment with drugs and the challenges of maturation.

Kids will reach toward the highest example they know. One young man said of his "hero on the block,"

"HE NEVER TOLD ME NOT TO DO DRUGS. HE NEVER LECTURED ME ABOUT BEING STRAIGHT. HE JUST LIVED AN EXCITING LIFE. HE WAS REAL, HONEST, AND I WANTED TO BE LIKE HIM."

This is filling the void with a viable alternative. This is being the priest at a youth's ritual of passage to adulthood. When youth do not have a strong dynamic adult companion to guide the passage to adulthood, they often are thwarted in their growth and become emotionally immature. Some seek substitutes, such as marriage, drugs, or communes, and some just drop out.

Much of this ritual is wrapped in muscles, bravery, and daring for boys and very ill-defined feminity for girls. In our sterile, bland, safe society we force boys to dare on motorcycles and girls to test their femaleness in bikinis and hot pants. By making drugs seem dangerous through scare tactics, we encourage kids to see adult identity in them. If they can do drugs and not succumb to the dangers described by most drug educators, then they feel powerful (adult); they beat the adult system.

Drug education is often its own worst enemy and makes drug experimentation appealing in two ways: it causes the young to look for their hero in "one who knows how to guide the explorer;" and it gives the challenge to "climb mountains and dare the unknown;" a tantalizing promise of self revelation.

The whole process of maturation hinges on adult home and community leaders allowing and encouraging youth to earn and experience the dangers and privileges of responsibility. When youth prove worthy, they must be recognized and openly rewarded in a celebration rite, be it words of praise or a full scale honors party, by the leaders at the leve of victory, whether it be a father presenting a drivers license, a mayor rewarding community service, or the president holding a national honors ceremony. Maturation is a continuous process of challenge, opportunity, acceptance of responsibility, achievement, reward, larger challenge, more opportunity . . . with youth and adult sharing the total process.

The heroes and heroines of every generation are those who seem just a little braver and smarter than everyone else. In our chemically oriented, feel-good-all-the-time society, is it strange that the heroes are often (though short-lived) drugabuser oriented? They have discovered a little greater high in a little more dangerous drug. They have dared the unknown and survived (without explaining the years of discipline and training that made this possible)

This is one of the greatest dangers of the drug scene. When athletes, pilots, military veterans and scientists were our heroes, there were built-in checks on kids getting hurt by imitating them. With drug and revolutionary heroes this check is gone. It takes no training to take pills and break windows. We can instantly become heroes ourselves.

Every time we parade a former addict into a classroom we further drug abuse for the above reason. We make a hero of him. We unconsciously say, no matter what story he tells, "he is a hero because he won the fight with drugs. Drugs are terribly destructive, but this person is a rare, powerful person. He got off of them. Don't you dare try them; you aren't strong enough to win." The student hears a challenge and sees a chance to some day be a guest in the classroom — the greatest honor he can now imagine. Guests are very special, powerful people.

The major reason for using former addicts is to scare kids out of using drugs. This method of drug abuse prevention is counterproductive. Kids thrive on challenges, they mature facing danger, and they dream of being victors over anything.

Moreover, how many adults recognize what is taking place? Seldom do we notice in our society, until it is too late, that our children have painfully made the transition to the adult world. Often we go on for years "babying" them and talking down to them, when outside the home our kids are living mature, responsible adult lives.

Primitive cultures did have rites of passage. The energies of youth were accepted and used for the good of the community. The most important people of the tribe participated in the rites with the youth. The rites became a symbol of the giving of responsibility by adults to the youth, and the acceptance of that responsibility by the youth. The youth became intimate allies with adults.

Next week the third article will deal with the requirement for a definite period when a boy realises he's become a man and when a girl realizes she's become a woman.

WHO WHAT WHERE

By JUDY JAKUBOWSKI

Officers and wives of the U.S. Army Infantry School's Brigade and Battalion Operations Department Staff Group dined and danced to the music of "The Sands" band during the monthly Group Hail and Farewell party. The party was held at Kings Pond Lodge. Lieutenant Colonel Paul Schulz, German Liaison Officer, and his wife, Margaret, were special guests.

Three newcomers, all assigned to the Staff Actions and Communicative Arts Committee, were welcomed at the affair. They were: Captain William Kohler, Captain Eugene R. LaRocque and Captin John Ball. These officers were awarded their Instructor Training Course Completion Certificates at the same time.

Lieutenant Colonel Robert B. Simpson, Staff Actions and Communicative Arts Committee Chairman, was also the recipient of an Instructor's Training Course Certificate.

Colonel Cortner, Staff Group Chief, awarded two more certificates, one to Lieutenant Colonel John D. Jackson, newly-assigned Chairman of the Intelligence Committee and the other to Major Michael Downes of the Personnel Committee.

Following the welcomings and awards, the group returned to the main business of the evening, fried chicken and music.

The ladies of Tactics Group, BBOD, met for their monthly coffee on Oct. 17 at the home of Mrs. John S. McCord, Rainbow Ave. After a short business meeting conducted by Mrs. Joseph R. Franklin, the ladies were entertained by Mrs. Thomas H. Griffin and Mrs. Lloyd W. Kleinstiver, who gave a delightful preview of the program for the upcoming BBOD luncheon.

197th INF. BDE. HQ.

The ladies of the 197th Infantry Brigade Headquarters attended a Recipe Exchange Tasting Party, Oct. 16, at the home of Mrs. Judd Walton, Eames Ave., Fort Benning. Cohostesses were Mrs. Jeffrey Bauer and Mrs. Paul Flebotte. Everyone brought favorite dishes; the recipes will be compiled into booklets for all Headquarters members.

Mrs. Richard Gillem conducted a short business meeting and also welcomed the following new ladies into Headquarters: Mrs. Bernard Miller-Thym, Mrs. Ronald Smith-erman, Mrs. Kenneth Meredith, Mrs. Robert Jones and Mrs. Thomas McCrary.

The officers and ladies of the 2-69th Armor Battalion gathered at the home of Capt. and Mrs. Michael W. Maasberg on Ukraine Drive, Columbus, for a Hail and Farewell party on Sept. 28. Highlighting the social event was the first annual presentation of the Alfagator Awards, in recognition of the singular talents and accomplishments of various members of the group. Lt. Col. W. J. Eddins Jr., Battalion Commander, was given the Rip Van Winkle Award (a box of No-Doz) to help combat the resultant ennui from late Hail and Farewell parties and interminable meetings with his staff; Maj. Harold A. Thorn received the Sergeant Rock Memorial Award (two tickets to "Fists of Fury" and six free lessons in judo); Lt. Harry Irwin was presented the Betty Crocker Recognition Award (a copy of Good Housekeeping) to recognize his sterling accomplishments in the Mess Hall; Mrs. Ronald W. Tyree (followed closely by runner-up, Mrs. James D. Davis) recieved the Talent Award — a chance to lead the all male 2-69th chorus in singing cadences on their two-mile run; Capt. John Fountain was the recipient of the Rocky The Flying Squirrel Award, a simulated helicopter control stick; CW2 Jerry Schewe received the Support Award and all the free black coffee from the Mess Hall that he could consume; Lt. Allen Handyside was given the Speed and Power Award and the Speed And Power Certificate for his impromptu but expeditious renovation of the Motor Pool fence; Capt. Ronald W. Tyree received the Ever-Ready Award, in recognition of his "be prepared" posture on field exercises; Capt. Jerry Ooster received the Choir Boy Award, a halo and robe, in recogniton of the serenity with which he faces all tasks; Lt. and Mrs. Richard Timboe accepted the Parents Of The Year Award, a copy of Parents magazine; Mrs. Donald Ching was given the Teacher Of The Year Award, a pencil; Mrs. W. J. Eddins Jr. was presented the Jack Of All Trades Award, a copy of the Motor Officer Manual and a commission as the new motor officer; Capt. John Fortune was given the Maintenance Award, a bent silver screwdriver; Lt. Thomas Clark was given a copy of Taking Command as his Junior Leader Award; Maj. Richard Rockwell recieved the Coach of the Year Award, his first draft choice next season; and Lt. Larry Reese was the recipient of the VOLAR Award, a chance to air all views on the Army or to take an early out — later.

FEMHINTS and Kitchen Helpers

By JUDY JAKUBOWSKI

Witches, ghosts and skeletons are coming out of hibernation for their favorite holiday. Hallowe'en is for the YOUNG. If you're two or 318 years old, you'll enjoy every minute of the bobbing for apples, disguises, spooky sights and sounds.

If you're having a party and looking for some new ideas for your Hallowe'en buffet, take a look here:

Jack-O-Lanterns usually grace the holiday table, but have you ever filled him with an assortment of donuts?

"BOBBING APPLE" PUNCH BOWL

Makes 32 half-cup servings.
1 gal. apple cider
2 tsp. whole cloves
2 tsp. whole allspice
2 sticks cinnamon (3 inches long)
2-3 C. sugar
2 whole oranges, washed
Whole cloves
3 medium red apples, washed

Heat cider, 2 tsp. cloves, the allspice, cinnamon and sugar to boiling; cover and simmer 20 min. Stud oranges with cloves. Strain punch and pour into punch bowl. Float oranges and apples in bowl.

If using a glass bowl, first pour in warm water to heat bowl.

ORANGE PUMPKIN PIE

1 C. sugar
1½ tsp. cinnamon
½ tsp. ginger
¼ tsp. salt
1 Tb. grated orange rind
2 eggs
1½ C. canned pumpkin
1 2-3 C. undiluted evaporated milk
9 inch unbaked pie shell

Combine sugar, spices, salt and orange rind. Stir in eggs, pumpkin and evaporated milk. Pour into shell. Bake in a prebeated 425 F. oven for 15 minutes; reduce heat to 350 F. and bake another 40 min. Cool.

Serve with Orange Whipped Topping and garnish with orange slices, if desired.

ORANGE WHIPPED TOPPING

Chill 2-3 C. undiluted evaporated milk in refrigerator tray until soft ice crystals form around edges of tray (15 to 20 min.). Whip until stiff (about 1 min.). Add 2 Tb. lemon juice; whip until very stiff, 2 min. longer. Beat in ¼ C. sugar and 1 tsp. grated orange rind.

Don't forget the ever favorite candied apples and old-fashioned popcorn balls always are a hit.

HALLOWEEN SAFETY

As parents, we can't forget to take precautions with our over excited bobgoblins. While they're anxiously dressing for a night of tricks and treats, make sure they won't be tripping over the foot of their costume and that they'll be visible to drivers in a minimum amount of light.

Check their masks for good vision and remind them to remove a mask when crossing the street. Makeup can replace a mask entirely.

It's best for adults to accompany very small children, but if an older sibling takes on the job, let him be aware that the little one may tire fast and want to return home before the older children have had their fill. It's also recommended to "go-begging" in a familiar neighborhood.

Unfortunately we must warn our children not to eat their treats until they can go through them at home with parents and proper lighting. Don't let them eat any candy not in its original wrappers and check to see if the wrappers have been hampered with. Suggest they don't even accept fruit, donuts or cookies, unless they really know the donor.

Each year more tragedies are brought to our attention, children being cut by glass bits hidden in fruit or drugs having been added to the goodies. Don't take chances with your child's health or safety; help keep Halloween a fun-time for kids.

"As kids, we started smoking because it was smart. Why don't we stop for the same reason?"
Harold Emery in The Reader's Digest
American Cancer Society.

Americas students tour U.S.

A group of 30 students from the U. S. Army School of the Americas at Fort Gulick, Canal Zone, have left Fort Benning to continue on a tour of U. S. military installations after visiting the 2nd Battalion, 69th Armor, 197th Infantry Brigade. While here they discussed facets of the Modern Volunteer Army with officers and soldiers of the battalion.

Representing 10 Latin American countries and the United States, the students, all in the ranks of major and above, stopped at Fort Benning during an annual three-week tour of U. S. military posts conducted by the institution.

Along the fem line

OWC Publicity Chairman: Marsha Graham; Co-Chairman: Jane McPherson Editor: Judy Jakubowski; Typist: Pat Rice.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Due to a change in the Bayonet's deadline, effective Oct. 31, the Femline Deadline will be changed to Wednesday noon for publication the following Friday.

FALL FASHION LUNCHEON

The OWC's first fall function was a "Sew and Show" fashion luncheon held Oct. 10. Special guests were Dr. Andrew Galos, head of the Columbus College music department; violinist Lisa Tusey; and painist Marge Harvey. Ms. Tusey was last years recipient of the OWC scholarship. She and Ms. Harvey entertained the ladies during the luncheon.

Karin Thompson and the women of the 36th Engineer Group were the hostesses for this inspiring event. Bettie Burnett was the fashion show coordinator and Pam Girtman was in charge of the decorations. Jo Hughes, who was the OWC coordinator for this luncheon, gave the lively commentary for the show, while Mrs. Robert Linder provided the piano accompaniment.

The twenty-seven talented models were 36th Group officers' wives and daughters. All of the garments shown were entirely hand sewn. Some outfits were a combination of several different patterns.

Modeling "at-home wear" were Jacqui Willey, Yvonne Latta, and Anita Betke. These girls made and modeled two or three outfits apiece as did Carole Seife and Linda Dey. Susan White, looking as though she were on her way to the hospital, carefully modeled a maternity pantsuit. Barbara Anderson and Renee, Sandy Albert and Melissa, and Jan Erkman and Tonia were fashionable mother-daughter ensembles. Other daughters who modeled their own or their mothers' handiwork were Lisa Davies, Rhonda and Vicki Burnett, Denise Anderson, Sheree Pilcher, and Denise Betke, Gwenn Beasley, and Michell eTaylor.

Long evening dresses were worn by Margie Davies and Janie Beasley, while Tina Harrison and Judy Bolt wore daytime dresses. Carolan Brownell, Ina Libera, and Janel Shaul modeled suits.

The highlight of the show was the Pygmalion type transformation of Bettie Burnett from "Bettie Blah" to "Bettie Beautiful." Surely everyone could identify with both the before and after images, hopefully mostly the latter. After all, we're "Getting Better."

CERAMIC STUDIO

If you are on the waiting list to join the Ceramic Studio and your telephone number has been changed, please call Bea Andrews at 689-0419.

Current members of the Studio are requested to record changes on their membership cards in the green box in the Studio.

At the General Membership meeting on Oct. 15, the following rule was voted upon and will be enforced. On the 15th of the second month in which dues are not paid, firing tags will be pulled. They will be returned when payment is made to the shopkeeper on duty. She will immediately put the payment (preferably by check) into the Treasurer's box. Members will be dropped the third month. A list of members who are delinquent is posted monthly on the bulletin board. If you have any questions regarding your status, call Mrs. Whitt at 687-3537. Dues remain $2 per month.

The last two Bazaar workshops will be held on 29 Oct., 9:30 a.m. (glazing) and 5 Nov., 9:30 a.m. (staining.) This is an excellent way to learn finishing techniques and earn your workhour credits at the same time. Remember one hour per month is required of each member (6 hours each 6 month period.) No pouring is alloed during these workshops. We apologize for the inconvenience this has caused for members who use the Studio on Mondays.

The Studio will be closed Thanksgiving weekend (22 thru 25 Nov.) and on 28 Nov. (OWC Bazaar).

OWC ACTIVITIES

TERRARIUM: Another set of Terrarium workshops will be held on Wed., Oct. 31 and Wed., Nov. 7, if there are enough interested ladies to hold a class. The workshops are held at the OWC Activity Bldg. from 9:30-2:30 and cost $12 for the two workshops. Call Mrs. J. M. Morris, the instructor, at 563-5128 to sign up.

FLEA MARKET

Mark down Nov. 3 as the date of the next Fort Benning Flea Market held in the Thrift Shop Complex from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Rental space for booths are open to all military personnel, dependents and retired. Call 687-4630 to reserve a single booth for $4 or a double for $7.

A concession stand will be run by students from Spencer High School as well as a Bake Sale booth.

In case of rain the Market will be held Nov. 4 from 1-5 p.m.

VOLUNTEER

The Georgia Heart Association conducts a year round educational program to combat heart disease. Volunteers are needed in several areas; such as office work, publicity, and coordinating health programs. Also, in the near future volunteers will be needed in the blood pressure screening program. If you are interested in helping, please call the Georgia Heart Association office at 324-5518.

Let GAC put a jingle in your dufflebag.

The way prices are going right now—you may need more money than you thought you'd need. GAC wants to lend you all the money you'll need to help beat prices and to buy the bargains you want before they're gone.

You don't have to make a lot to borrow a lot at GAC. The size of your loan depends on many things: the bills you have or have had. What you own or want to buy. The kind of work you do. And, because you wear a uniform, the kind of work you do rates very high with GAC. A steady income makes it easier for you to get a loan. But, more important, GAC wants to serve you because you serve your country.

Whatever your needs, whatever the reason, let GAC put a jingle in your dufflebag.

Destin

a great place for all fishermen

The United States Army Infantry Center Recreation area located on the Gulf of Mexico at Destin, Fla. is for fishermen who like salt water fishing. The fresh water lakes and streams in the area also provide sport for the fisherman who likes fresh water fishing.

The fresh water fisherman will find bream, catfish, largemouth bass and pickerel. The salt water fisherman will find the Gulf waters produce an abundance of blue marlin, white marlin, sailfish, wahoo, dolphin, black fin tuna, school dolphin, shark and barracuda as close as 22-25 miles off shore. King mackerel, bonita, Spanish mackerel, school dolphin, black fin tuna, jack cravalle, trigger fish, blue fish and blue runner can be caught only one-15 miles from seabuoy.

Individuals can rent fishing gear, but hooks and sinkers are not provided. Rods with reels and cane poles are available. There is also a deep sea fishing boat available for renting. Trolling offshore for game fish cost $70 per day or $30 for a half day. The fee includes ice, bait and fishing gear. Bottom fishing is not available. A 14-foot boat with outboard motor can also be rented for $4 per day.

The Follow Me, the 38-foot deep sea fishing boat, must be requested by submitting a request in writing to the Special Services Officer, Bldg. 394, not more than 30 days prior to the date requested.

The recreation area is located on a 17-acre beach site and has two and three bedroom cottages, trailer pads; camp sites, bath house, snack bar and various kinds of boats. It also has barbecue pits, picnic tables, marina facilities and other outdoor equipment.

The cottages are centrally heated and air conditioned. They are equipped with cooking, dining and sleeping accommodations. Reservations are made on a first come basis. Active duty personnel have first priority and retired personnel have second priority. Two bedroom cottages, sleeping seven, rent for $8.50 per day and the three-bedroom, sleeping 8-12, cost $10 daily. One crib is available per cottage, but rollaway beds are not provided.

There are 17 trailer pads with water, electricity and sewage for trailers under 18-feet long. They are rented at $1 per day with a 15-day limit. Trailer parking, off pads, cost 75 cents per day with no time limit.

Camp sites with a bath house available also cost 75 cents per day. Campers are assigned space on a first come basis. Water and electricity are available throughout the camping area.

A 7-11 type facility has a snack bar, groceries, supplies and fishing equipment. Laundry facilities are also available on a first come basis. For more information and reservations call the Recreation Services Division at 545-7414, 1270.

Music Center

If you have a special love for the soft strains of "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer" or "Jingle Bell Rock" then the Recreation Services Music Center is the place for you.

In a constant effort to branch out into all forms of musical experience, the music center is organizing three choruses to sing during the Christmas season. The male, female, and combined choruses have openings for all military, military dependents and civilian workers from age 14.

A series of Christmas concerts are planned with old-fashioned Christmas caroling around post. Instrumentalists and-or ensembles are cordially invited to participate.

Rehearsals are held at the Music Center across the street from the Airline Ticket Office. For further information, please call 545-1870.

Cook of the Month

The Fort Benning Cook of the Month for September, Private First Class William A. Shewman of the 609th Transportation Company, 145th Aviation Battalion, enjoys preparing meals for more than 200 people.

"I like being a cook and working with the guys that I work with," he said.

Shewman started his service in the Army at Fort Jackson, S.C., in March, 1972. After completing basic training, he stayed at Fort Jackson eight more weeks to finish the course at Cooks School. He volunteered for Airborne Jump School which he completed in September, 1972 and then spent four months at Ft. Bragg, N.C. with the 205th Aviation Company before coming to his present unit here.

Shewman commutes from his home in Unadilla, Georgia where he and his wife, Cindy, live with their 10-month old twin boys.

For being Post Cook of the Month Shewman received a $25 U.S. Savings Bond, a three-day pass and a Letter of Commendation from the post commander. He also received a three-day pass and Letter of Commendation from his unit.

Allied Spotlight

Ana Velasquez and her husband, Capt. Teodoro Velasquez, are enjoying their first visit to the United States. Capt. Velasquez is attending the Infantry Officer's Advanced Course 7-73 at Ft. Benning. The Velasquez and their four children, Leonardo, 13 yrs., Juan, 11 yrs., Marcela, 10 yrs., and Jorge, 4 yrs., are living at the Camellia Apartments.

According to Ana, "It is so pretty here. I am happy to be in a place where people are so good and so friendly. I have made many friends, and thanks to them I'm learning a little English."

Ana met her husband while he was a second lieutenant stationed in her hometown of Tumbes, Peru, close to the Equadorian frontier. She describes military life as "one of frequent moves." "In spite of the inconvenience I am happy to accompany my husband wherever he is assigned."

Ana enjoys all aspects of keeping a home, especially cooking and sewing. She recently received a letter from her friends in Peru asking her to learn American handicrafts and come back to teach them. So Ana has enrolled in the OWC quilting class which begins in November.

Anna Bravo is the wife of Marine 1LT Roberto Bravo, a student in Fort Benning's Infantry Officer Advanced Course 2-74. The Bravos and their three sons, Fernando-4 yrs., Pablo 3-yrs. and Andres-2 yrs., live at 2462 Broadmoor in Columbus. Anna's home is Buenos Aires, Argentina, but she and her family move often — 7 times in the past 5 years.

Anna is a member of the OWC International Cooking Group, and will hostess the group's October meeting in her home. She plans to serve Empanada, a type of hamburger pie, and Locro, a vegetable casserole made with corn and sweet potatoes.

According to Anna, "The difference in eating habits was the first thing I noticed when I moved to America. In Argentina, our breakfast consists of coffee and toasted bread. For lunch we have a large meal, and then eat our dinner at nine or ten o'clock in the evening. I am getting used to the customs of the United States now. My husband and I enjoy living here very much."

Soldiers of Co. B, 27th Engr. Bn., 18th Airborne Corps, Ft. Bragg, N.C., made their initial jumps onto Fryar Field, recently before being trucked to the bivouac site in the Victory Pond Area, where they were trained in "Float Bridge" construction by the 586th Floatbridge Co., 36th Engineer Group. Paper Moon

The story takes place in the Midwest during the days of the Great Depression. Ryan O'Neal, is a con man whose specialty is selling Bibles to newly bereaved widows. Tatum O'Neal, is an orphan and daughter of O'Neal's old girl friend. The nine year old girl tricks him into taking care of her for a while. The girl proves to be even better than Ryan at swindling the customers. O'Neal takes up briefly with carnival dancer Madeline Kahn, to the displeasure of young Miss O'Neal, who shrewdly gets rid of this female with the willing help of the latter's much put-upon maid (P. J. Johnson). Ryan leaves Tatum with an aunt but the girl, wise beyond her years, prefers the man who may be her real father. This is a touchingly, funny film, featuring a 9 year old girl who smokes, cusses and swindles with the guile of a professional. Her antics could constitute undesirable film fare for the younger set.

Melinda

Supercool disk jockey Calvin Lockhart, picks up beautiful, mysterious, "MELINDA", (Vonetta Mc Gee) in a nightclub. After a brief affair, MELINDA is murdered. Lockhart's ex-love, Rosalind Cash, becomes his chief ally and support as he searches for the killer. His life is turned upside down as the police, the syndicate (MELINDA, was ex-girl friend of the boss) and a few friends and enemies make his life miserable. Lockhart solves the mystery of what everyone is after and battles the mobsters in a gruelling fight for survival, using his karate prowness with brutal effect. Filled with action, MELINDA has a mixture of violence, drugs and profanity which may offend.

Travel With My Aunt

TRAVELS WITH MY AUNT combines the Academy Award winning talents of director George Cukor and Actress Maggie Smith who protrays the title role, a delightfully unorthodox English lady cavorting about the capitals of Europe with a devoted entourage of unconventional characters. The witty, fast-paced motion picture was filmed on location in England, France, Italy, Morocco, Spain, Turkey, and Yugoslavia. The distinguished co-starring cast includes Alec McCowen as Aunt Augusta's staid, middle-aged nephew who receives a worldly education during erratic travels with his aunt. Lou Gossett portrays her manservant and constant companion, while Robert Stephens is the former lover who inspires her frantic schemes to raise a small fortune. Sexual overtones, drug usage, and language in this contemporary comedy are unsuitable for children.

The Friends of Eddie Coyle

Alex Rocco's gang perfects their bank robberies holding as hostage the families of the respective bank managers to make sure they will have a clean getaway. In Quincy, Massachusetts, outside Boston, aging hood Robert Mitchum is a go-between for Rocco and youthful gun dealer Steven Keats. Facing sentencing on a job he did for saloon owner Peter Boyle, Mitchum is concerned about his wife and children. Treasury Agent Richard Jordon uses both Mitchum and Boyle as informants. Mitchum exposes Keats in exchange for a suspended sentence but Jordon tells him it isn't enough. When Mitchum decides to inform on Rocco, he's told that someone else has already done so. Boyle is given the assignment of killing Mitchum. Violent overtones and strong language of this underworld drama are not suitable for the young set.

Trader Horn

British West Africa in 1916 is affected by the World War, as English and German Soldiers inhabit the area. Trader Rod Taylor, a British subject, wants no part in the war and deals with both sides. When British Colonel Don Knight tries to arrest him for trading with the Germans, Taylor escapes into the jungle. Meeting fellow trader Jean Sorel and his mistress Anne Heywood, Taylor is told of a platinum mine they wish to find. On Safari, Taylor and Heywood progress from mutual dislike to love. The Germans are using natives as slaves in the mine and Taylor is wounded. Knight is frustrated by Taylor's new-found loyalty.

CALL 545-4792

DEAR BAYONET

Q. While returning from leave I was picked up in a small Georgia town and held in jail for two days, thereby, making me two days late returning to duty. I was told that I would have to make up that lost time. Does the time I spent in a civilian jail count as good time or bad time? S.L.D.

A. If a soldier is busted while on leave, any time spent in civilain jail counts as part of his leave and does not have to be made up. But, in your case, at the end of your leave time you were in jail. Therefore you were carried AWOL by your unit so you make up the lost time.

DEAR BAYONET

Q. I live in the barracks; I saw a neat little gun — down town that I would like to own. I told my buddy who also lives in the barracks about it, and he told me I could not have a gun in the barracks. He said it must be kept in an Arms Room. Is my buddy right about this? J.D.S.

A. Yes your friend is correct. Enlisted men quartered with their organization are required to register all privately owned firearms with the Provost Marchal Office and the firearm and the ammunition must be kept in the organizational storeroom. J.D.S.

DEAR BAYONET

Q. What is the policy of Martin Army Hospital or the Army on ambulance service? Some people have called and an ambulance has been sent. At other times others have called and they have been told to find another way out there.

A. Martin Army Hospital dispatches their ambulances in accordances with MEDDAC REGULATION 700-1, para 4e,f, and g, which states that when a request for an ambulance service is received, personnel on duty in the Emergency Section will make an effort to dispatch an ambulance as soon as possible, exercising a liberal interpretation as to the need for ambulance service.

The nature of the injury or illness should be determined. In some cases it might be suggested to the requestor that the use of private vehicle to bring the patient to the hospital would save time.

If the caller appears to be a competent individual and states that an ambulance is needed, it will dispatched without further discussion. (It is better to err on the side of safety and accept the judgement of the person at the scene who is requesting service.)

DEAR BAYONET

Q. Is there any regulation stating that an individual cannot pull duty on nights they are attending college classes? After having consulted my First Sergeant about my school schedule, I found my name on the duty roster on a school night anyway. I was told that all I could do was to find somebody to exchange nights. Doesn't it mean anything when the CO signs the tuition assistance form? And, with the great emphasis put on education in the Army, why would the First Sergeant and the CO be deliberate in making it difficult?

A. You have a problem sbared by countless others who have a conflict with duty and class. My research shows that your only recourse is to establish a line of communication between your commander and yourself concerning your educational priviledges. As of this printing there is no regulation stating that you are exempt from duty the night of your classes.

Yes, the commander's signature on the tuition assistance form does mean something. It guarantees your eligibility to the assistance program and your availability for classes, but it does not legally commit the commander to exempt you from duty.

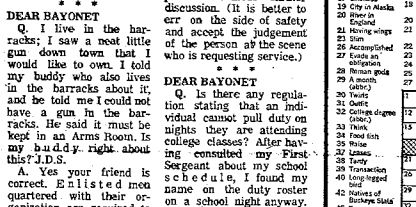
Many times soldiers will head off to purchase sporting supplies or hobby equipment that they find out later is available at a minimum charge or free for soldiers and dependents at Fort Benning.

This article will touch just the surface of the things available to you in hopes that these findings will interest you enough to take a little of your time to check out what is offered.

My first stop was at the Recreation Services boats and campers rentals (Bldg. 1707). Talking with Charles Harp, who works at the rental section, I learned that boats and canoes were rented on a weekly schedule. The fishing boats equipped with motor, anchor, and fire extinguisher were rented at $2.25 a day with a $.25 charge for each life preserver. The canoe rentals include two paddles and free life preservers to each member of the canoes at a $1 a day fee. If camping interests you, for $1.75 a day you can obtain a trailer-type camper capable of sleeping six. A stove, 3 beds, a sink and an ice box are included with the camper.

I know that there are many hunters on post that left shotguns at home when joining the service. You now can sign out for a shotgun for the weekend through your major unit A and R Officer.

Tennis rackets and balls, and most other normal gym type equipment is at your disposal at a regularly scheduled basis at Bryant Wells Field house or your closest gym. You may also check out some outdoor sports equipment through your company.



There is also Destin, Fla., where camping and fishing is offered. Fishing equipment is offered along with the chartered fishing trips or you may rent a small boat and venture out for the big one on your own.

Golfers can find reasonable rental fees at the Sand Hill Golf Course. All of the following are rented on a daily basis — golf clubs 75c, pull cart 25c, shoes 50c and a bucket of driving balls are 30c. If you want to drive instead of walking, electric carts are available at the rate of $2.50 for nine holes and $4 for 18 holes.

The craft shops on post offer you a chance to do it yourself. Offered at the shops are auto painting, photography, art, wood and boat building to mention only a few.

Maybe this will get you started investigating into the possibility that it just might be you that is lagging in the department of keeping yourself busy.

The Fort Benning Bass Club

by George Stevenson

A dynamic and effective organization

One of the most unique clubs at Fort Benning is the Fort Benning Bass Club. Organized in 1972, the club received official military recognition in early 1973, making it one of the first bass fishing clubs to be officially sanctioned by the Army. Other clubs have been organized at Fort Rucker, Ala.; Fort Campbell, Ky.; and Fort Leavenworth, Kans.

A great number of BASS clubs have been organized across the United States during the past five years. Almost every town has one, and most big cities have several, Columbus, for example, has two clubs. This makes it possible for a fisherman to transfer to another club when he has to relocate.

The purpose of the Fort Benning BASS Club, as stated in the Club's Constitution, is:

"To stimulate public awareness of Bass fishing as a major sport. To offer Fort Benning and local state conservation departments our organized moral support and encouragement. To promote full adherence to all conservation codes and to demand adequate water standards and legal enforcement of existing regulatory standards. To detect and report any polluter and call public attention to his crime. To improve our skill as Bass Anglers through a fellowship of friendly exchange of expert Bass catching techniques and ideas, and to promote and encourage youth fishing, and a love for this great recreation. To function as a dynamic and effective link with other chapters embracing the principles and purpose of Bass Anglers Sportsman Society." The Bass Anglers Sportsman Society or "BASS" is the parent unit for all BASS clubs. Organized in 1968 by Ray Scott, the society now has more than 132,000 members and has its headquarters in Montgomery, Ala. All the local club members belong to BASS.

Officers for the local club are elected from the general membership each year. At present the club officers are: President—LTC Gregg Walls, USAIS, Airborne Department; Vice President—SFC Mike Boyd, BBOD, USAIS, and Secretary/Treasurer—MAJ. William Sawczyn, USAIS. To assist these officers several committees have been appointed for areas such as programs, tournaments, and entertainment.

Active duty or retired, military personnel are eligible for membership. There are 40 active members in the club. Most of the bass fishermen in the club own boats but boat ownership is not required. Members with boats are paired with those without boats for the monthly tournaments.

The club is always in need of new fishermen; if you are interested in learning how to catch bass, then why not investigate? If you are already an accomplished bass fisherman, then the club coulduse your expertise. One thing every bass angler has in common is the desire to learn more.

For more information on times and dates of the twice monthly meetings, contact any of the club off

Rod and Gun Club

by Bill Kloeb

a place of relaxation and outdoor activities

The Rod and Gun Club is the central point for outdoor activities of more than 3,000 men, women and children at Fort Benning.

The clubhouse, located on First Division Road in the Harmony Church area, provides a relaxed and rustic setting for reliving exciting moments of hunting or fishing. Here members relax while they recall the details about the large buck they didn't get or the big bass that got away. Mounted deer heads, turkeys, ducks, various species of fish, and rattlesnake skins decorating the club walls offer lasting proof of successful trips to the woods and waters of the reservation.

Members of the club enjoy numerous conveniences that make outdoor recreation more enjoyable. The lounge is a handy place to pick up a quick sandwich or hot meal before taking to the fields and a good place to relax over a cool drink at the end of the day.

The sales outlet stocks all types of fishing bait and accessories, shotgun shells and other hunting equipment and has a rental service that allows members to go first class with a minimum expenditure of money.

Members may rent boats located on most of the reservation ponds. Car top carriers are available for fishermen who want to fish a pond that has no boats. Boat paddles, electric trolling motors, batteries and life preservers are also available on a rental basis.

The club operates four skeet ranges, a trap range and two field archery ranges. These facilities are among the best inthe Southeast and have been used for state, sectional and regional championships.

Various types of hunting and fishing contests are open to members. Each year big deer and small game hunting contests are held. A fishing contest is held each month. Prizes are awarded for the largest bass, bream and catfish. Fishing derbies are held over the weekends of various holidays. Turkey shoots, ham shoots and swap days are some of the other activities open to members.

Members actively participate in conversation and ecology programs to improve the fish and wildlife conditions on the reservation. Last year the club contributed more than $8,000 toward the Fish and Wildlife program.

The Rod and Gun Club is the post agency for the sale of state hunting and fishing licenses and issue of the post hunting and fishing permits.

Membership is open to active duty and retired military personnel, civilian government employees working or who retired while working at Fort Benning, and their dependents. Civilians not eligible for a regular membership may obtain a limited membership. The limited membership entitles the member to participate in all activities related to the trap and sheet ranges, archery ranges and the clubhouse.

'Wagon Train' star at Benning

Robert Horton, star of the televisin series "Wagon Train," made a personal appearance at Fort Benning Tuesday October 23. He was at Theater Number 4 (Kelley Hill) to speak about the Alcohol Safety Action Program (ASAP) and the fatalities caused by drinkers who drive.

"The program's specific aim is not to bring back prohibition," Horton said. "What we're trying to do is remove from the road the problem drinker and driver who is the cause of an unbelievable number of traffic fatalities."

Horton accepted the invitation of Secretary of Transportation Claude S. Brenniger to help develop 25 Alcohol Safety Action Projects in cities around the country, including Columbus. The public education program is under the supervision of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration of the U.S. Department of Transportation.

The program is organized on the community level. Horton will be visiting many areas to make people aware of the continuing threat posted by the drinker who drives. Columbus, like other cities with ASAPs, is working through law enforcement agencies, the courts, and rehabilitation and education programs to help reduce the problem.

He is concerned with the appalling number of deaths in America caused by drinkers who try to drive. "There are also a million and a half injuries because of people who drive when they shouldn't," said Horton.

"Alcohol-related accidents aren't only a police problem. It's you, the member of the public who knows who the drinking driver is, who is likely to be in the car with him, or in the car he hits. Getting the drunk driver off the road is in your interest," concluded Horton.

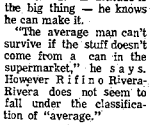
Retirement not so bad

How often have you spoken to someone who has put a good 20 or more years of his life into the Army and now looks at retirement with mixed emotions?

Realizing at last that long-awaited end of spit-shines and pay lines, he's not so sure the "outside" looks so promising after all.

Not so with specialist six Rufino Rivera-Rivera. Rivera-Rivera was enthusiastic about his Army career, most recently in the 609th, Transportation Company, 145th Aviation Battalion, but, because he had a little foresight and ambition he also can be enthusiastic about his post-Army days.



For army years he had been socking away that Army pay into the bank and last March he bought himself 30 acres of Alabama wilderness. He says he got it at a "steal" and to hear him talk you'd think it's a gold mine. It is four miles west of Smith's Station, Alabama, and Rivera-Rivera has attacked the challange with the true pioneer spirit.

He has single-handedly cleared four acres — trees, rocks, stumps and all — built a driveway to his proposed mobile home site, had a septic tank, well, lights, light pole, and mail box installed, and put in a winter garden. What's more, he has plans for a pump shed, storage shed, chicken house, tree farm, and even a lake after he moves his mobile home out there next month.

What does his wife have to say about all this? Well, it seems she's a farm girl from South Carolina and talked him into it. "She is the kind of girl who can grow anyth ng," he declares admiringly, obviously pleased with his choice of "farm hand."

Rivera-Rivera realizes this isn't going to be any picnic though, he's being realistic. He knows he won't make money on his farm, so to supplement his Army pension he plans to attend Columbus Tech for a year in order to obtain a Refrigerator and Air Conditioning Repairmans' license. But his attitude is the big thing — he knows he can make it.

"The average man can't survive if the stuff doesn't come from a can in the supermarket," he says. However Rifino Rivera-Rivera does not seem to fall under the classification of "average."

Hunting accidents can be reduced

Safe handling of guns and other hunting equipment and training in first aid can reduce accidents, prevent injury and save lives.

"A good hunter recognizes the possible hazards involved and takes steps to minimize them," says Donald L. Fredell, Red Cross Field Director, Fort Benning. "Since a significant number of firearms accidents occur in the hunting field — far from most medical facilities — hunters should be prepared to care for themselves and their companions in case of emergencies."

Fredell said that while the Red Cross does not actually conduct classes in hunting safety techniques, the organization cooperates with and supports organizations which do. "The Red Cross urges hunters to take every precaution to insure against fatal or serious accidents caused by firearms."

He recommended that when not in use, guns should be stored, unloaded in a sturdy cabinet under lock and key. Ammunition should be locked up separately from guns. Both should be kept out of the reach of children.

"Sturdy, warm boots and durable clothing are necessary for a hunter going out into fields or woods," Fredell said. "Even more important hunters on the Fort Benning Reservation must wear a vest of flourescent orange material as an outer garment and headgear of the same color.

Most important items for the hunter's survival kit are map and compass. While compasses, unless obviously broken, are seldom incorrect, topographical maps furnish important information concerning the hunting area. Other equipment for the hunter's survival kit should include a small flashlight, steel matches, or matches in a waterproof case, strong knife, rope or cord, a sewing kit, bandages and first aid materials and a loud whistle — important to any hunter as a call for help.

Fredell says that the safety-minded hunter will let someone — a friend or relative — know where he's going and when he plans to return.

In an open field or in brush, hunters should walk abreast making sure no one gets out in front. Because of his tendency to swing right, a lefthanded hunter should be placed at the right end of the line.

The gun muzzle should be inspected frequently to make sure it hasn't inadvertently gotten plugged with mud, earth, or weeds. If a plugged barrel is fired, it will generally explode or split causing serious injury to the hunter, Fredell warns.

Whether hunting alone or with companions, a safety-conscious hunter will never try to cross a fence with gun in hand. "When alone, open the action of the gun or unload it," he said. "Push the gun, muzzle first, laterally under the fence, then climb through or over the fence at the butt end of the weapon."

If two or more hunters are involved, one should hold both guns while the other climbs the fence. The weapons should then be passed across the fence, muzzle up.

An experienced hunter will wait until his target is fully visible and a good shot is available before he pulls the trigger. He knows the possible consequences of an over anxious shot at movement or noise: a wounded animal wandering off to die a slow, agonizing death; or worse, a maimed or killed fellow hunter.

While firearms are the hunting weapon of most sportsmen, a growing number of hunting enthusiasts are turning to bow and arrow. Techniques for this type of hunting differ from hunting with firearms, but safety measures must be followed just as carefully.

Since this hunting range is considerably shorter, the bow and arrow hunter usually wears camouflaged clothing and depends upon stealth in stalking his quarry. "This places him in greater danger from other hunters in the area," Fredell says.

Gun Club members can win prizes

The Fort Benning Rod and Gun Club will hold a Big Deer Contest during the 1973-74 deer hunting season.

Remington, Model 1100 automatic shotguns will be awarded to the hunter taking the heaviest deer and the hunter taking the deer with the most antler points. A third shotgun will be awarded to some member who registers a deer in the contest but doesn't win one of the other two prizes.

Hunters must comply with all state and post hunting regulations. Deer must be taken on the reservation. They may be taken with a gun or bow and arrow. Rod and Gun club members or dependents of members can enter the contest, but only members are eligible to win the bonus prize.

All deer must be taken to the Fish and Wildlife Deer Check Point in Building 5883, Harmony Church Area then to the Rod and Gun Club for registration in the contest.

All prizes will be awarded at the Rod and Gun Club at 7 p.m. on Jan. 25.

fish and wildlife are in abundance every year

Each year more than 9,000 people register to hunt or fish on the Fort Benning reservation. Most of them catch fish or bag game.

"Fishing is always good in the post ponds," according to Rube Holliway, deputy of the Post Fish and Wildlife Unit. Holliway is predicting a good deer hunting season this year. He said "Every year since 1967 the deer harvest has exceeded the harvest of the preceding year. Last year more than 650 deer were taken from the reservation. We anticipate that this year's harvest will exceed that number."

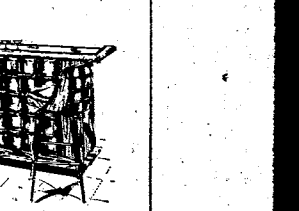
Holliway also had good news for other hunters. He said there are more quail this year than last year or the year before. "Squirrels are plentiful and the rabbit population is about the same as last year. Dove hunting hasn't been too good so far this year but we expect the last part of the season to produce more migratory doves."

Both hunting and fishing on the Fort Benning reservation are as good as any hunter or fisherman will find in the southeastern part of the United States. It isn't that Fort Benning has been blessed with an area that has an abundance of game. It takes a lot of planning and work by a lot of people to provide a balanced fish and wildlife conservation program.

The Fort Benning Natural Resources Management Board is the governing agency for conservation programs on post. This board coordinates the activities of a number of installation activities to insure a balanced action. These agencies work together to insure maximum military use of the land, control vegetation to prevent destructive fires, to aid in the productivity of timberland and encourage the propagation of fish and wildlife. The board also establishes open hunting seasons and bag limits.

The Fish and Wildlife Unit of the Directorate of Facilities Engineering is the coordinating agency for the post fish and wildlife program.

Six species receive emphasis in the wildlife management program. Maximum effort is made to promote the welfare of the white tailed deer, the cotton tailed rabbit, the grey squirrel, bobwhite quail, eastern wild turkey and the eastern mourning dove.



Adequate populations of these species are maintained by developing adequate food supplies and living conditions. Food patches are planted by the Fish and Game Unit and habitat is maintained through planned burning of areas and good timber management programs of the Post Forestry Section.

The permanent opening concept of game management was started at Fort Benning during the summer of 1961. This concept involves clearing of forest land, plowing, discing and planting food for game.

The program provides a variety of living conditions not otherwise found in a continuous pine forest. Brush and other growth at the edges of the openings provide nesting areas for quail and turkey. The openings also enable the growth of many desirable berry and seed producing plants which require the sunlight.

Planned conservation practices have also increased good hunting areas on post. This has been done by providing water to areas that have no natural water supply. The introduction of water has also encouraged growth of plant food necessary to provide good living conditions for game.

These changes include: change in color of vehicle, a change in the motor number, a change in the state tag number, selling or disposal of registered vehicle. If you are sellin gor disposing of your registered vehicle, you must remove the registration decals and present them to the Vericle Registration Branch located in Bldg. 83. For further information call 545-3933.

Shipping Christmas gifts

Individuals are cautioned about including Christmas gifts and decorations in with shipment of household goods that may arrive late at destination. In previous years, many complaints have been received relating to the dcay in movement and delivery of personnel property during the holiday season. Overseas shipment picked-up after Oct. 26 and domestic shipments picked-up after Nov. 12 probably will not reach its destination on the desired date. For further information, call 545-3315.

Hunting License requirement

Are you going hunting this year? Do you have your hunting license yet? All military personnel stationed at Fort Benning, interested in hunting on the reservation, must have Georgia resident hunting license and post permit. Post permit must be obtained at the Fort Benning Rod and Gun Club.

Civilian personnel authorized hunting and fishing privileges on the reservation and reside in Georgia must, prior to hunting or fishing on the Alabama portion of the reservation, possess a valid nonresident Alabama license. Civilian personnel authorized hunting and fishing privileges on the reservation and reside in Alabama must, prior to hunting and fishing on the Georgia portion of the reservation, possess a valid nonresident Georgia license.

Benning deer check station

Hunters are required to bring all deer taken on the Fort Benning reservation to the deer check point for registration and inspection. The deer check station is located in Bldg. 5833, Harmony Church, and will be open daily from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m.

A record of the number of deer taken from the reservation aids the fish and game personnel in preparing plans for propagation of the deer herd. The inspection provides them with information concerning the general epidemic type disease.

Warning to hunters

The Ranger Department of the United States Army Infantry School will be conducting field training exercises in Quitman County on Nov. 17-20, Dec. 5-9, and Dec. 15-19. All hunters are cautioned to be extremely careful. Be sure of your target before you fire.

Hunting safety a must

Will you be introducing your son or daughter to hunting this season? If so, now is the time to teach the fundamentals of hunting safety.

First, you set the groundwork at home. Talk to the youngster about hunting safety, impress upon him the responsibility he will be assuming by shouldering a firearm. Show him the proper way to carry the gun and where the safety is. Make sure that he has a gun he is able to handle safely. As a beginner, he won't need a large powerful weapon. Choose one that is light and simple to operate.

When you are out in the field, again go over the fundamentals with your youngsters. Show him by doing — demonstrate the proper way to cross a fence, how to make certain of your target and how to load and unload. Ask him frequently if the safety is on. The sooner you familiarize your child with firearm safety, the easier he will learn and retain it. This is important whether you are an avid hunter or a skeet shooter. Your child will enjoy the lessons, you will rest easier, and it is a good way for you and your son or daughter to get together more often.

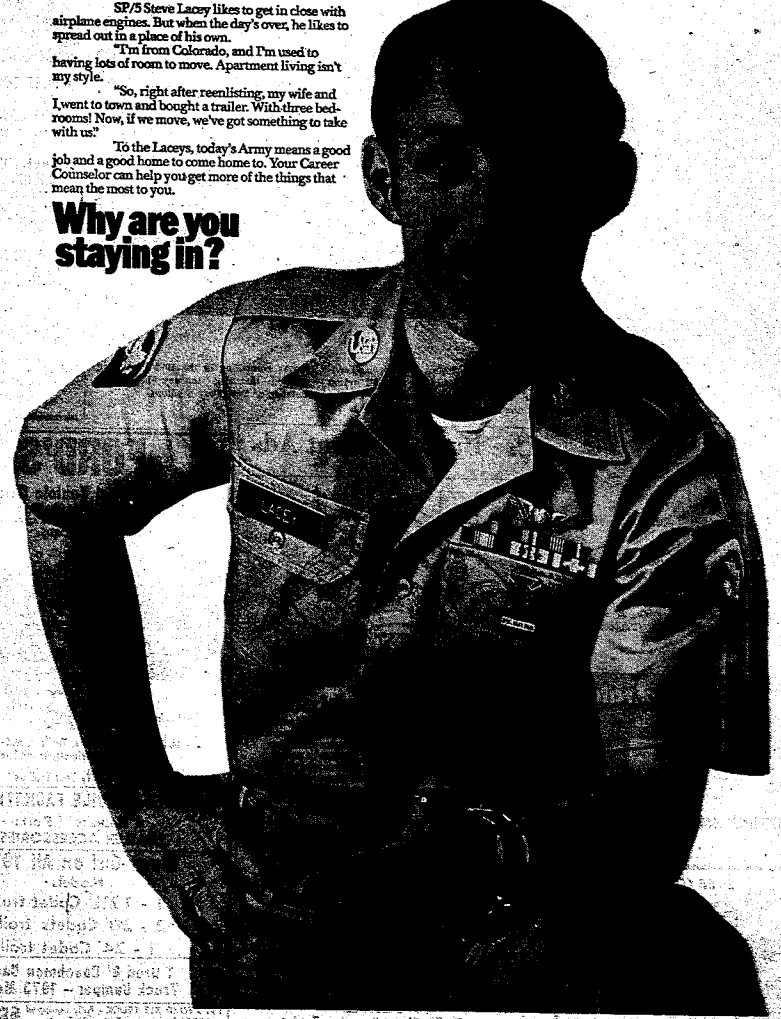
"The bonus paid for our 65-foot trailer."



SP/5 Steve Lacey likes to get in close with airplane engines. But when the day's over, he likes to spread out in a place of his own.

"I'm from Colorado, and I'm used to having lots of room to move. Apartment living isn't my style.

"So, right after reenlisting, my wife and I went to town and bought a trailer. With three bedrooms! Now, if we move, we've got something to take with us."

To the Laceys, today's Army means a good job and a good home to come home to. Your Career Counselor can help you get more of the things that mean the most to you.

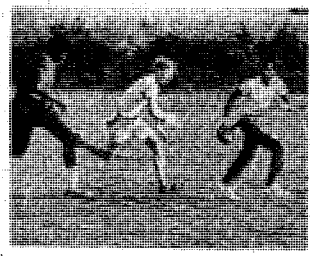
Why are you staying in?

Top teams square off

The top 10 flag football teams on post begin squaring off Monday to determine the 1973 U. S. Army Infantry Center championship.

The winner of the double elimination competition will be determined on Thursday, Nov. 8. During the first part of the tournament both Doughboy Stadium and Gowdy Field will be used, with two games on each field each night.

The 10 teams were selected from the respective leagues on post. The larger leagues — The School Brigade, 197th Infantry Brigade and 36th Engineers — will have two teams each. Smaller leagues will have only one team each.



Representing Martin Army Hospital will be the MEDDAC entry while the 690th Medical Co. will carry the 34th Medical Battalion colors.

Headquarters Command will be represented by the U. S. Army Infantry Board eleven and the 145th Aviation Battalion by the 121st Aviation Co.

Both representatives from TSB, 36th Engineers and the 197th had not been decided at press time. However, two likely entries from the 197th Infantry Bridge, based on season records, were Company A, 197th Support Battalion and the 296 Signal Battalion.

In opening night action at Gowdy Field, TSB No. 1 will face the 690th Medical Co. at 6:30 p.m. and Meddac will face the 197th Infantry Brigade No. 1 team at 7:30 p.m.

Monday night action at Doughboy Stadium sends the 197th Infantry Brigade No. 2 team against the 36th Engineer Group No. 1 team at 6:30 p.m. and the 121st Aviation Co. against the TSB No. 2 team.

(L) Spt Wayne Parker and (C) Spt Danny Chapman of C Battery, 83rd Artillery, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry (The Pioneers), are in hot pursuit of Sgt. Willie Davis of Co. B, 1-29th during flag football action in the Pioneer league. The Artillerymen caught up with Davis and the championship by defeating Co. B 8-6 for a first place finish in the 1-29th league. Janet Reeves, "Miss American Teenager" 1973, is ready for football action and wishes "Best of Luck" to all the Football Tournament. Everybody is reminded that the tourney begins 29 teams competing in the 1973 Post Flag October at Doughboy Stadium.

The Rod and Gun Club will operate Brinson Range tomorrow and Sunday to give those who intend to hunt during the coming season an opportunity to get acquainted with their weapons.

Hunters can bring out shotguns or rifles from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. either day.

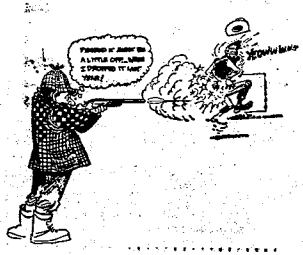
Hunters may use only shotguns of more than 410 gauge to hunt deer on post. Hunting with rifles is illegal but rifle zeroing will be permitted as a convenience for those who intend to hunt off the reservation.

Sight-In is Important

Everyone knows the necessity of zeroing a rifle, but few people understand that it is even more important to take a shotgun out and shoot it a few times before going hunting. You have to find out how a shotgun shoots. It was not designed as a point accurate weapon. Most are not equipped with sights and all are smooth bored. With a shotgun the hunter probably has less than a 50 per cent chance of hitting his target unless he knows what "Kentucky Windage" to apply.

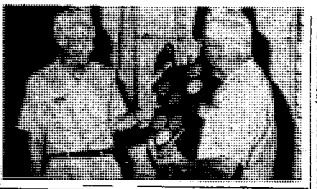
Out on Brinson Range you can become familiar with your weapon. You can zero your rifle as you desire and find out how you have to aim your shotgun to hit a target. No one will hurry you. You can take it slow and easy. It's an opportunity you shouldn't miss.

One of the most frustrated hunters in the world is no doubt one who sees a trophy buck on opening day, takes careful aim and scores a complete miss only to find out at a later date that he was actually aiming about a foot too high, too low, too far to the right, or too far to the left, to hit the deer with the gun he was using.



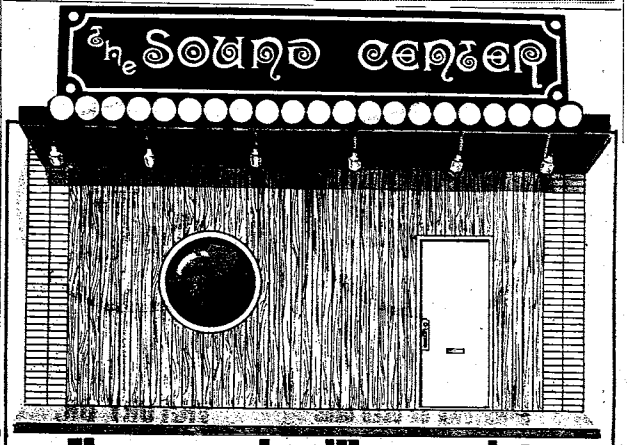
Worse still, in a lot of cases the gun is not that far off and the hunter wounds the deer. The deer escapes to die later in the woods. The chances of this happening should be reduced to the minimum. Zeroing rifles and sighting-in shotguns will go a long way toward realizing this goal. For this reason the Rod and Gun Club is not restricting the range to the use of club members. Anyone, military or civilian, who intends to hunt deer this year is invited to come out and make use of the range.

Ask For Help



The range will be operated by Rod and Gun Club members. Most of these people have a lot of gun savvy. They want to help anyone having problems. If you are having trouble with your weapon, contact the man in charge of the range. If he can't help, he'll find someone who can.

Hunters who haven't had a lot of deer hunting experience or some newcomers to the post may get some valuable information concerning hunting areas and hunting techniques. There are always a few dedicated hunters who come out to these affairs and make a day of it. For them the next best thing to hunting is talking about hunting. They just might tell a newcomer where the second best deer stand on post is located.



Brinson Range is located on the Jamestown Road in the Harmony Church Area of the reservation. From Columbus, travel south on Highway 27. Turn right onto Eighth Division Road at the second bridge over Highway 27. Turn right onto Eighth Division Road to the fire station at the junction of Jamestown and Eighth Division Roads. Turn left onto Jamestown Road and proceed to the Brinson Range signs.

The heat goes on and on. And, so does the mileage for those participating in the Run For Your Life program. Lieutenant General Orwin C. Talbott (then Major General), deputy TRADOC commander, started the program while he was Fort Benning Commander. The program has spread throughout the Army, and thousands are now running to stay in shape. The program's creator believes in running, as shown by his mileage. Here he accepts a plaque from Major General Thomas M. Tarpley, Fort Benning commander, signifying the completion of 1,000 miles. (U.S. Army Photo)

Packers top Steelers in doughboy action

The Packers outlasted the upset minded Steelers, 18-8, in Doughboy League action last week. The Packers jumped to a 12-0 halftime lead on two second quarter scores, one by quarterback Dwight Burnett on a seven-yard run and the second on a 23-yard run by Tony West.

The third period was scoreless. In the fourth stanza the Steelers came to life when quarterback Zack Buckner dropped back and fired a scoring strike to flanker Daniel McCrumb. The extra point was good and the score was 12-8.

An intercepted Steeler pass with a little more than one minute remaining in the game killed the Steelers last hopes, Burnett plunged over from the one-yard line for the final score.

The Biddy League Redskins blanked the Cowboys 20-0. This was the 'Skins fourth win against one loss.

The Redskin offense sparked late in the first quarter when quarterback Bryan Bouchelion raced 35 yards for the first touchdown. During the second stanza Bouchelion, also playing defensive safety, intercepted a Cowboy pass and sprinted for a 45-yard touchdown.

Sale takes golf tourney

Fort Benning golfer John Sale fired a one under par 143 to take top honors in the Veteran's Day Golf Tournament at the Sand Hill Golf Course.

Sale, a pharmacist at Martin Army Hospital, added this tourney to his early season victories in the Bi-City tournament, the Fort Benning championship and the All - Army championship.

Jimmie Gary finished 13 strokes off the pace set by Sale to take the runner-up spot with a 156.

First flight honors went to Timothy Debay with a 172, after a sudden death playoff with runner up Bill Blankenship who also ended the 36 hole medal play tourney with a 172.

W. Lewis took second flight trophy with a 172, three strokes ahead of runner up Jeff Yourbough at 175.

Frank Heady's 185 took third flight honors but Ricardo Muniz was close behind at 186.

PFC Predicto PICKS!

Only one madcap medic missed being harpooned as Predicto did it once again, this time his victims were from the 34th Medical Battalion. The lone lucky picker was First Lieutenant Manley Branham. This week it will be those from Department of Plans and Training getting the AX from Predicto. You too can become gunridge in my pot by dialing 545-4622/7841 and asking for Predicto.

AN INTERESTING SPECIES OF GEORGIA WILDLIFE...THE JACKALOPE (ANANAE PREVARICTUS) ON GOOD AUTHORITY IS REPUTEDLY THE PRODUCT OF A MISALLIANCE BETWEEN A NEARSIGHTED JACK RABBIT AND A SMALL ANTELOPE/. LITTLE IS KNOWN ABOUT THIS CREATURE...BUT IT IS SAID TO BE ONE OF THE FASTEST RUNNERS IN THE WORLD...SINCE BOTH ANTELOPE AND RABBITS DON'T LIKE THE SIGHT OF IT AND TRY TO DO IT BODILY HARM...IT FEEDS EXCLUSIVELY ON BEES AND SMALL BIRDS...WHICH IT OVERTAKES FROM BEHIND WHILE IN FULL FLIGHT... THE ONLY KNOWN METHOD OF CAPTURE IS TO SHOOT 50 FEET AHEAD OF A SPEEDING ROAD-RUNNER WHICH HAS JUST BEEN PASSED BY A JACKALOPE.

IT BREEDS ONLY ONCE IN A LIFE-TIME...AND THIS IN ITS 1ST ADULT YEAR, SINCE THE YOUNG ARE BORN WITH HORNS AND THE MOTHER DOESN'T WANT TO GO THROUGH THAT AGAIN...THE ONLY PORTION OF THE JACKALOPE THAT IS OF USE IS THE HORN WHICH MAKES A FINE CAN OPENER...

...THE LAST KNOWN SIGHTING OF A JACKALOPE WAS MADE BY TWO MEMBERS OF THE BENNING ROD AND GUN CLUB, WHO WERE RETURNING FROM A LATE PARTY AT THE CLUB IN 1971...ed.

Benning host to skeet tourney

Skeet shooters from the southeastern U.S. will be converging on Fort Benning this weekend for competition in the first annual U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit International Open Skeet Tournament.

Sponsored by the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club, competitors in the two-day match will include a mixture of top civilian and service 12-gauge marksmen.

The weekend guests, along with entries from the Army Marksmanship Unit, will be zeroing in on the fast moving small clay discs as they vie for the championship of this first fall international 300-bird-tourney. The 300-bird action, normally a three-day affair, will give each competitor 150 birds each day and will be fired on two adjacent ranges of the Army Marksmanship Unit's Skeet and Trap complex.

Leading Army contenders for the championship will include Captain James Whitaker and Specialist Five Louis Sembrowich of the Army Marksmanship Unit. They are members of the U.S. International Championship four-man team that won the crown in Savannah, Georgia, in July.

A companion marksmen, Specialist Four David Smith, can be expected to give the veteran shooters cause to worry, even though this is his first season. He won the Peach State International Open at Fort Benning in June with a record shattering 297 birds of a possible 300. His first 200 straight tied the world record and beat the Olympic and national records.

Smith, from Dallas, Texas, also won the Tall Pines Open International Skeet Tournament held at Fort Benning in September with a 291 total.

Among top civilian competitors registered for the fall tournament are George Teubekman, Cincinnati, Ohio and Evelyn (Pat) Volkringer, Pompano Beach, Fla. Both are well known on the International Skeet circuit.

Dragging Around

David Morris cleaned house Oct. 16 to take home the money at Phenix Dragway. He defeated the other three "ET" bracket trophy winners. They were Jimmy Parker and Max Hall with two bracket wins.

Some new faces and new cars were there. Among these wtre Specialist Four Buren G. Wambley, 698th Transportation Company, Specialist Four Joseph B. Baker and Private First Class Joel W. Donaldson, 598th Light Maintenance Brigade, and Airman First Class Glenn M. Tate from Warner Robbins AFB, Georgia.

On Nov. 3 and 4, there will be a big guints meet. There will be fuel dragsters, funny cars, pro stocks and right on down the line. There will also be a "ET" bracket run. So here's a chance to race with some of the biggest name professionals in the business.

This will be the last big race under NHRA sanction. Next spring the Phenix Dragway is switching to IHRA. The IHRA Winternationals may be held here in March.

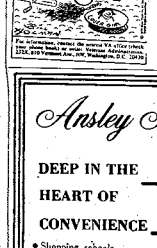
Ray sweeps Bass Tourneys

Tom Ray, USAIS made a clean sweep of two Bass Tournaments held by the Fort Benning Bass Club at Lake Eufaula on October 14th and 15th. Ray made his victory complete by also landing the biggest bass on both days, a 6 lb. 8 ounce on Saturday and a 6 lb. 12 ounce on Sunday. Other winners in the unique double tournament were: On Saturday second place — Owen Schroeder and third place — Gregg Walls. Sunday's contest saw second place go to Jack Tibbs Jr. and third place to Paul Wuestney. Schroeder was fishing for the first time in the local area, having joined the Bass club at the last meeting.



The winner reports catching fish in water 4 to 8 feet deep, near brush or other cover. He used a "Big O" exclusively on both days. Club members were generally in agreement that bass are beginning to move into shallow water, but are somewhat scattered. Plastic worms in blue, purple, and black caught fish, but better results were reported on crank type baits.

Gregg Wallas, Club President, expressed satisfaction at the number of fishermen that participated on both days. Walls, stated "We were fishing on both days during a period of the full moon, and bass probably had done a lot of feeding the night before. We had some very good catches and everyone seemed to enjoy the outing."

The Fort Benning Bass Club normally holds a one day tournament each month. Next month's tournament will be planned at the November 6th meeting and all members are urged to attend.

Beard? legal the painful way

Look at that G.I. with the beard! What's happened to the Army? How can he get away with that?

A wise old Indian chief once said, "Never judge a man until you have walked a mile in his moccasins." All water is not the same as it looks on the surface. The soldier may not be a fugitive from a company 1st Sgt. Don't judge him until you have the facts.

He may be afflicted with PSEUDOFOLLICULITIS.

Pseudofolliculitis of the beard (Pseudofolliculitis Barbae) is a skin condition that develops in the beard area, primarily under the chin and on the neck. It is caused by the hair curling in a small arc and turning back on the skin where it causes irritation. As growth continued, the hair finally penetrates the skin, causing irritation.

The curved hair eventually becomes "ingrown." Individuals with curly hair, including many blacks, are particularly susceptible. pseudofolliculitis barbae has been grouped with other "Black Diseases" such as the sickle cell conditions. The medical problem, however, is not restricted to blacks, and all blacks are not affected.

Once pseudofolliculitis barbae becomes an established condition, shaving is a real problem. The sharply cut ends of the hair are more likley to penetrate the skin, and the skin, cut and irritated by the blade. When the afflicted person stops shaving and allows the beard to grow, the hair penetration is limited by the tougher deep layers of the skin. Increased length of the hair results in a loop above the skin surface. This loop provides a force that pulls the ingrown tip out of the skin, removes the source of irritation and allows the condition to clear.

The medical treatment of pseudofolliculitis of the beard proceeds in two phases. First, the skin must be healed and secondly, the process must be prevented from recurring.

Limitation of shaving in the affected areas, with good bygiene, will allow the condition to clear. The beard in these areas need not be long, generally one-quarter inch is sufficient for medical purposes.

When a clear skin is obtained, several techniques are used to prevent the recurrence. Simple cases may respond to avoiding a close shave—others to the use of dipilatories. In more severe cases the individual must stop shaving until the irritation clears.

Successful management is contingent on three areas: proper medical treatment, patient cooporation, and command awareness.

Hydrick to address congregation

Columbus Mayor Bob Hydrick will address the congregation at Chapel Four (Sand Hill), the 38th Engineer Group Chapel, at the chapel meditation 11 a.m. this Sunday.

Mayor Hydrick is a Christian layman and belongs to several religious organizations in the Columbus, Phenix City and Fort Benning communities.

The 36th Engineer Group Chaplain (Major) Donald Burnett said, "We plan to invite other outstanding community and religious leaders in an attempt to broaden the chapel's program and its appeal to both military and civilians."

Sing-Out-For-America

The newest concept in musical organizations — not only for the Army Field Band but for any Army band — will be presented at 7:30 p.m. Friday, November 2 at Columbus' Three Arts Theatre.

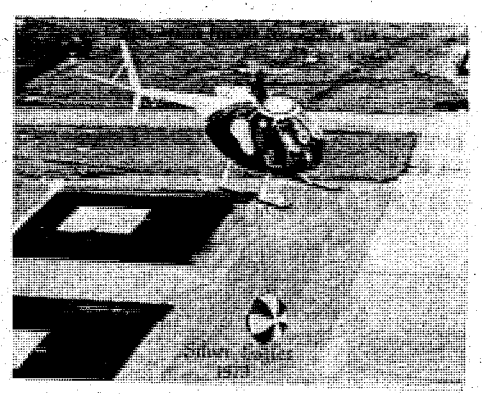
The U.S. Army Field Band's Satin Brass and Soldiers' Chorus will perform "Sing Out For America" in an admission-free concert.

The appearance of the world famous Band is being sponsored by the local chapter of The Association of the U.S. Army (AUSA) with the cooperation of banking institutions in Columbus and Phenix City.

Tickets are available at the Columbus and aPhenix City Chambers of Commerce and Room 604 at Fort Benning's Infantry Hall, Building 4. All ticket holders should be seated by 7:15 p.m. Non-ticket holders will be admitted at 7:20 p.m. to fill any empty seats.

The 18-piece Satin Brass - 13 Brass and five Rhythm —is in keeping with the Army Field Band's tradition of being the standard bearer for daring musical innnovations.

Both "Sing Out For America" and Satin Brass were created by the band's commanding officer and conductor, Lieutenant Colonel Hal J. Gibson.



According to Colonel Gibson, Satin Brass extends the limits of conventional brass-plaing concepts to become literally an entire orchestra.

"While the noble, majestic, full bodied brass section is most familiar to every music lover, we felt that the full spectrum of brass possibilities remained unexplored," Colonel Gibson explains. "By exploiting the complete family of brass from the tuba up through and including the piccolo trumpet, we have created a sound that is at once soulful, endearing, exhilarating, exciting and ebullient."

Satin Brass is teamed with the 25-voice Soldiers' Chorus, one of the senior components of the Army Field Band. For 27 years, the Chorus has traveled throughout the world lending its special brand of excitement to performances before audiences numbered in the millions.

Silver Eagles

To appear for special performance at Lawson

The Silver Eagles, newest of the military's flight demonstration teams, will appear at Fort Benning's Lawson Field at 4:30 p.m. on Thursday, Nov. 15.

The appearance of the special demonstration team is being sponsored by the Columbus-Phenix CityFort Benning chapter of the AUSA and the public is invited.

There is no admission for the 40-minute show which consists of helicopter aerobatics, precision flying, solo helicopter capability maneuvering and the comedy antics of Bozo the Clown.

Following the performance, at approximately 6 p.m., the local AUSA chapter will hold its annual Fall outing. A special buffet is scheduled and guest speaker will be Senator Sam Nunn.

18th year for Save-A-Toy

The Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning Chapter of AUSA again is taking part in Project Save-A-Toy this year, along with Army Community Service, the Mortar Committee, the Post Confinement Facility and the USAIC Chaplain Division.

Joe Windsor, local AUSA chapter president, and Colonel Allan Goodson, the secretary-treasurer, presented a check for $300 Monday to Lieutenant Susan R. Marsh, the Save-A-Toy project officer.

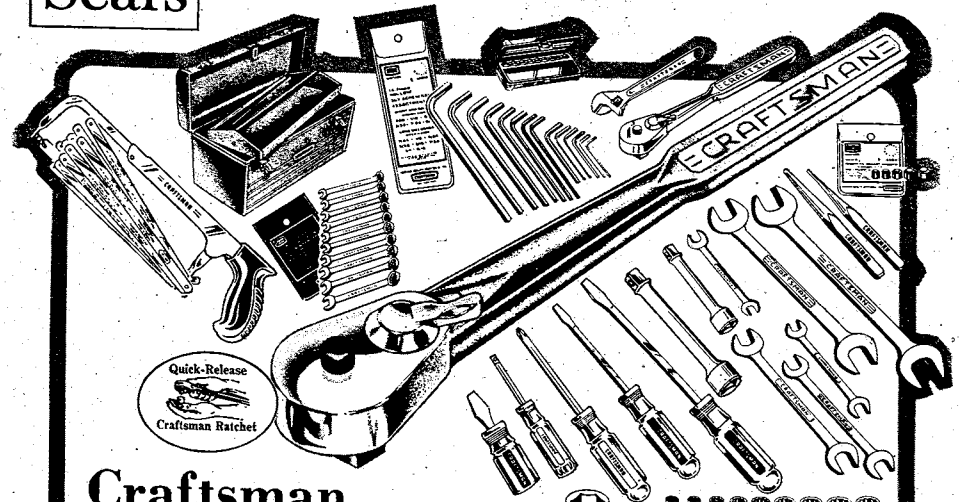
The Fort Benning organizations collect and repair toys and gather clothing and provide food to need families selected by Army Community Service. According to Captain Donald F. Gilbert Jr., Army Community Service Chief, Project Save-A-Toy gave 425 Fort Benning children a merrier Christmas last year.

Toys may be dropped off at the confinement facility and Eiler Hall, Mortar Committe. Soldiers from both units have been making repairs for several weeks.

Women can benefit from Reserves

Women have always had equal opportunity with men in rank, pay and advancement in the Army Reserve. That's why women planning to leave active service should check out the possibilities of Army Reserve enlistment after their active duty.

Signing up for the Reserve, while still on active service, can cut 90 days from active Army obligation under the "early out" program. Also, women can continue in their present MOS, or train for a new skill. All MOS's are open to women, except for combat duties.



A woman can hold on to her present rank and pay as a citizen-soldier. That means she makes a substantial "part-time" sum for just 16 hours of work per month with a unit, plus two weeks annual training each year, right in the town in which she settles.

Benefits include meeting people in your unit who may be able to help you get a job.

For more information call 545-4132, 2710 or visit an in-service recruiter in Bldg. 35, Rm., 109 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

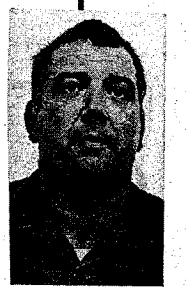
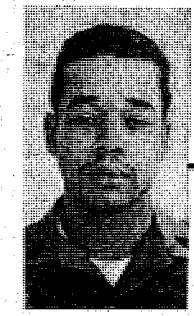
BAYONET OPINION PAGE

What change(s) would you make in the NCOES program?

SOUND OFF!

Sergeant First Class August Dawson, Company A, 1st Battalion (Mech), 58th Infantry (Patriots): "The number one things I would make would be to cut out repetitious courses, such as map reading and weaponry, and concentrate on company administration, which students in the course haven't had. I would also add on race relations training to the NCOES program so that when students of the course eventually become first sergeants, they can teach subordinate NCOs how to handle various race relations situations."





First Sergeant William D. McGinty, HHC, 197th Infantry Brigade: I went to the first NCOES class held at Fort Benning in the 11G (First Sergeant) Military Occupational Specialty (MOS). There was too much detailed instruction in such areas as basic weapons and tactics. Senior NCOs don't need this detailed teaching. What they need, as future first sergeants, is a lot of administrative instruction, to create a comfortable transition from tactical to garrison situations.

I would also modify the process of selecting students to attend the course. Major field commanders should be able to send NCOs who they think are qualified, but have not been selected for the course.

Sergeant First Class Harold L. Manning, Battalion Supply Sergeant, 3rd Battalion, 7th Infantry (Cottonbalers): "The instruction I was given in the NCOES course for supply personnel, at Ft. Lee, Va., went only down to the Direct Support Unit (DSU) level. I would change the course to include instruction down to at least battalion level, since this is the size of the units most graduates in my grade are assigned to."

First Sergeant Edward E. Garrett, Company A, 1st Battalion (Mech), 58th Infantry (Patriots): "During the instruction in my class, the first given at Fort Benning, about 80 per cent concerned first aid, weaponry and basic leadership, which a senior E-7 has had plenty of. This course was preparing us to become first sergeants but did not teach enough administration. I would change the course completely around, so that most of the instruction would be in company administration."

Good NCOs

Training is key for professionals

"Let no man's soul cry out, 'Had I been properly trained."

That's the motto on the memo pads from the desk of Command Sergeant Major Harvey Parrish of the 197th Infantry Brigade. This eye-catcher prompted checking into since it relates to personal development and the Noncommissioned Officers Education System (NCOES). So, we asked questions.

BAYONET: Sergeant Major, since you really believe in this statement, has Infantry NCOES made it easier for today's NCO to become properly trained?

PARRISH: Yes it has. But too many soldiers seem to feel that they already know it all. Unfortunately this is not true and there is still much to be learned by all of us.

BAYONET: Do NCOs look forward to their commanders' recommendation or Department of Army selection for attendance at NCOES?

PARRISH: Generally they do not. They somehow feel that their current unit mission or training requirement is too important to leave the unit and attend NCOES. But this attitude must change and NCOs must recognize the need for further education, no matter what their duties may be. General Omar Bradley once said, 'For most men, the matter of learning is one of personal preference. But for Army Officers (commissioned and noncommissioned), the obligation to learn, to grow in their profession, is clearly a public duty.' General Bradley's statement is more relevant today than ever before and therefore unit commanders have an obligation to motivate their NCOs and change their attitudes toward formal military schooling such as NCOES.

CSM PARRISH

BAYONET: What are some of the other reasons for not being enthused abont formal military training?

PARRISH: Many NCOs remember the days of the old NCO Academy where spit and polish, and harassment were a major part of military schooling. In addition some soldiers, as I stated before, seem to have the know-it-all attitude in their particular MOS. They are not really looking forward to new and more challenging duties that are surely to come with the next promotion. I guess I can classify NCOs into two categories — the 'lifer' and the 'professional'. The 'lifer' seems to be content with holding his own while the 'professional' is constantly striving for the Army's highest enlisted grade. Formal military schooling is of enormous value to the 'professional' and the 'lifer', but the 'professional' realizes it more. When the chance comes for more schooling, the 'professional' grabs it and does well.

BAYONET: The brigade has NCOs who have completed NCOES and returned to their units. What is your assessment of them?

PARRISH: Of the half dozen NCOES graduates that I am in almost daily contact with, there is a noticable improvement in their performance. To cite examples, the brigade established an NCO Development Course for new E5s and acting sergeants. Two NCOES graduates were most instrumental in organizing the classes, conducting research, preparing lesson plans and presenting the instruction. They used the skills and techniques learned in NCOES to their advantage and the benefit of the brigade's soldiers attending our NCO Development Course. Without their newly acquired skills the task would have been more difficult and time consuming. The other example is two E7s who graduated from NCOES and shortly thereafter were promoted to E8s and are now company first sergeants. They too are tremendous assets to the brigade. Of course, all four were Department of the Army selectees, which speaks well for the DA selection boards.

BAYONET: In general, is the Infantry NCOES meeting its objective of insuring a highly professional NCO Corps?

PARRISH: I am speaking only for the graduates who are assigned to the 197th Infantry Brigade and in our case the Infantry NCOES is meeting its objective. However, there must be a change in attitude concerning formal military training for NCOs. This is the task placed on the NCO himself and counselling from his commander or supervisor.

Viet vets watch benefits

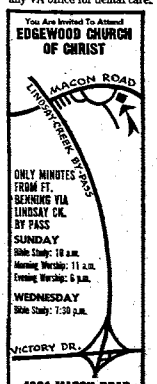
Recently returned Vietnam Era veterans are advised to "keep an eye on the calendar" to avoid overlooking important federal and state obligations.

Following up on information already provided, VA advises each veteran shortly after discharge of this recommended schedule:

As soon as possible, register with local state employment service office. (Veterans have up to one year to apply for unemployment compensations, but applications filed after a long period of unemployment could result in a lower rate of unemployment compensation).

In 10 days report address to Selective Service though local board (in person or by mail).

In 30 days, register with Selective Service or any local board, if not already registered.



In 90 days, apply to former employer for reemployment.

In 120 days, (one year if totally disabled at time of separation) convert Servicemen's Group Life Insurance (without examination) to private, commerical policy.

Within one year from date of notice of VA rating on disability, apply to any VA office for G.I. life insurance based on service connected disability.

Within one year, apply to any VA office for dental care.

Transition

by Chaplain Thomas Fraker

from boy to man, girl to woman

In the first article of this series, Chaplain Fraker discussed social conditions contributing to the problems of young people. In the second article he discussed why kids experiment with drugs and challenges of maturation. In this, the last article of the series, the chaplain deals with the requirement for a definite period when a boy realizes he has become a man and a girl realizes she has become a woman.

In the search for self-esteem and belonging, everyone needs a "war story", not of a combat-shooting war, but of conquest and victory relating to a difficult, dangerous, and fulfilling encounter — fulfilling in the context and personal concept of being shared and admired by at least one other important person. It is progressing from one level of maturity to the next through crisis encounters.

Most war stories are not just one-time experiences, but they are "success breeding success." When one challenge is conquered and praised, others follow. However, each person, in order to experience individuality, needs that one-time "ritual of passage" from boy to man, girl to woman. This does not mean that suddenly in one experience all childish ways and feelings are left behind. Quite the contrary — none ever leaves all of the child behind. It means that individuality demands a pivot-point from which to look backward and forward — from youth to adulthood. Reaching a desirable level of self-esteem is parallel with and almost identical to attaining a desirable level of maturity.

As our social mores make adult ways more plausible at an ever younger age, adult identity becomes more and more nebulous. As kids start driving sooner, putting on football pads younger, wearing hose, military, graduating from school, etc. at earlier ages, the achievement is less marked, and its responsibility less relevant. This has two major effects on people — adults feel less need to work for and accept responsibility and youth experience a vague, fleeting awareness of what "adult" really means. It is awfully difficult to mature under these conditions.

There is a beautiful and viable theory of maturation that says that we progress through stages in growing up and if any stage is missed or vulgarized, then the person is uncomfortable in the next stage. When one stage is bypassed completely, the person will likely come back to it later — "second childhood"? Or when a person does not find the means of transition and becomes stagnated in a stage, maturity is thwarted.

The term, "flower-children", is no misnomer. The group "temper-tantrums" on college campuses are symptomatic of frustrated maturation. Are they acting like children? Yes, or rather they are reacting like children who have reached the time for transition from youth to adult and the wall has no door in it. We have demanded that they grow up fast; have denied them access to confrontations that lead to emotional responsibility; have said for them to act like adults but demand that they stay out of the world of danger and social responsibility.

SHOWCASE HERE

197TH INF. BDE.

On Oct. 10, the wives of 1st Bn., (Mech.), 58th Inf., 197th Inf. Bde., received a view of how their husbands spent a day at work.

The afternoon started with a treat, lunch with the husgands at their respective mess halls.

Lt. Col. Robert E. Orkand welcomed the ladies and along with a slide show, "A Day in the Life of a Patriot," told them how the men spent their working hours. He also explained how a husband could be assisted in accepting his day's work. Why a husband has to pull duty and other "why's," concerning his job were also discussed. Next was a tour of the Company commanders offices, the company area, and the men's barracks. The men should be commended for their interest and desire to keep their barracks comfortable and attractive.

Refreshments were served in the company mess hall, which gave the ladies energy for the tour of the battalion motor pool area that followed.

They were then taken to Warner Field, where they proceeded to drive a jeep, a gamma goat, and an APC.

After a full afternoon, they understood why their husbands come home tired from their day's work.

The ladies of the 3d Bn. 7th Inf. attended an evening coffee, Oct. 18, at the home of Mrs. Robert James on Oakland Ave., Columbus. Co-hostess for the affair was Mrs. William Richards. Special guest at the coffee and warmly welcomed by the ladies was Mrs. Richard Gillem, wife of the Executive Office of the 197th Inf. Bde. Many working wives took advantage of the evening coffee and were in attendance, including Mrs. William Windhara who was attending her first coffee since becoming a part of the "Cottonbalers."

After the ladies enjoyed the homemade desserts with punch and coffee, a short business meeting was held during which the ladies planned their upcoming trip to the Westville Fair on ov. 2 and discussed ideas for a Christmas project to help a needy group or family. Mrs. Charles Arnecke, Jr., wife of the battalion commander, thanked all the wives for their time and effort in helping to complete the OWC Christmas Bazaar project.

The next monthly coffee for the 3rd Bn. ladies will be held Nov. 15 at 1 p.m. at the Main Officers' Club, Ft. Benning.

The Officers' Wives of the 197th Support Battalion held their monthly coffee Oct. 17 at Hickory Farms. Hostesses for the coffee were Mrs. Barbara Chester and Mrs. Ann Byoken.

Mrs. Stephanie Morris, wife of the battalion commander, conducted a short business meeting. Plans were discussed for a Nov. tour of Columbus area home.. Mrs. Morris welcomed Mrs. Sharon Ganslen to the battalion.

The meeting was concluded with a delightful tour of Hickory Farms

RANGER DEPARTMENT

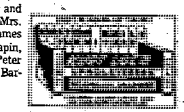
A crisp fall day greeted the Ranger Department wives Oct. 17 when they gathered for coffee at the home of Mrs. James Bowers, wife of the new Director of the Ranger Department. Mrs Bowers introduced the new wives, Mrs. Robert Farris, Mrs. William Spies and Mrs. Tom Hiter. Mrs. Ruth Seifert, mother of Mrs. Henry Osterhoudt was a guest.

Preliminary plans for a Christmas party for underprivileged children were discussed. Plans for Department Christmas dinner party were also made.

The next coffee will be held Nov. 14 at the home of Mrs. Gabino Caballero.

MEDDAC

King's Pond was the setting for the Pot Luck Supper held Oct. 12, for Meddac officers and wives. Mrs. Herbert G. See was the chairman for the supper and she was ably assisted by Mrs. Chrles Morton, Mrs James Huff, Mrs. George Chapin, Mrs. Billy Burk, Mrs. Peter Sereque and Mrs. Ron Barton.



COMBAT ARMS TRAINING BOARD

The ladies of CATB met for a brunch on Oct. 18, in the home of Mrs. Franklin Hart. Co-hostesses were Mrs. Harold Smith, Mrs. Roger Wray and Mrs. Wesley Roberts.

An egg souffle, adorned the table along with a variety of fresh fruits sweet rolls and sausage-cheese balls.

Mrs. Hart brought the grup up to date on OWC activities and plans. She gave a grateful thank you to all the ladies wh helped make the units bazaar projects.

The November coffee will be held at the home of Mrs. James Xuir.

Expectant parent classes to start

The Army Health Nursing Service, in conjunction with the Obstetrics Department, Martin Army Hospital, will begin a series of Expectant Parents classes on Nov. 6. The series consists of four classes, each two hours long. Classes will be held in the conference room on the second floor of Martin Army Hospital at 7 p.m. each Tuesday in November.

The sessions include movies, slides, short talks, and discussion groups to explain the physical structure of the male and female, reproduction, body changes, signs of labor and infant care.

The first class includes prenatal care, psychological aspects of parenthood, and exercises. The second class is Martin Army Hospital procedures and tour of the Labor and Delivery Suite. The third is labor and delivery, and the fourth is infant care, with a special session on breast feeding. It is best to start with the first class in the series and continue with the same group. However, if you should miss one class, you can make it up. Particular care is taken to make each expectant mother and father aware of forthcoming events. Fear and uncertainty are results of meeting the unexpected. For assurance and knowledge, you are encouraged to attend a series of Expectant Parents Classes during your pregnancy.

The Obstetrician, Pediatrician, Pediatric and Obstetric Nurse Clinicians, Physical Therapist, Head Nurse of Obstetrical Ward and the Army Health Nurse all participate in the series.

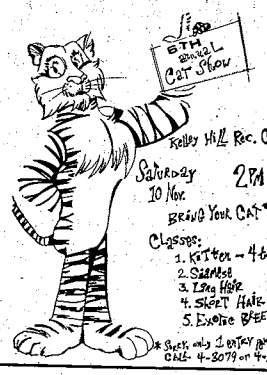
Because of limited space, you are asked to pre-register for these classes by calling the Army Health Nursing Service, 545-5431, Monday through Friday, 8 A.M. - 4:30 P.M.

Faith School Band

The public is invited to attend a special band concert this Sunday in Marshall Auditorium at Infantry Hall.

The concert is being presented by the Faith School Instrumental Music Band beginning at 2 p.m. Selections will include "Yellow Jacket March," "The Firebird Suite," and "Astro Overture."

The concert is dedicated to the Officers Wives Club and Non-Commissioned Officers Wives Club in appreciation of their support of the band. These two organizations raised money to buy band uniforms for more than 80 members.



The Advanced Band, Intermediate Band and Lab Band will participate. Lieutenant Jay Taylor will be a special guest soloist with the Advanced Band.

Cat Show Highlights National Cat Week

National Cat Week, Nov. 4-10, will be highlighted by the sixth annual Fort Benning cat show on Saturday, Nov. 10 at the Kelley Hill Recreation Center. The show, which will begin at 2 p.m., is open to both military and civilian cat-fanciers.

There is no entry fee, and ribbons will be awarded to first, second and third place winners in each of five classes. Kittens must be four-to-eight months old.

Other classes are Siamese, Longhair (Turkish Angora, Balinese, Birman, Himalayan, and Persian), Shorthair, and Exotic Breeds (Abyssinian, Burmese, Colorpoint Shorthair, Exotic Shorthair, Havana Brown, Japanese Bobtail; Korat, Manx, Rex, and Russian Blue).

Cat owners are urged to keep feline distemper and rabies shots up-to-date. Declawed cats are not eligible. There can be only one entry per person and each individual is responsible for his or her own cat.

Last year's feature was the Maine Coon Cat. This year the star will be the Rex Cat, a rare breed which will be shown by Mrs. Evelyn King. Mrs. King will be glad to answer any questions about the Rex breed.

This year's judges are Ms. Candice Brothers of the Metropolitan Animal Shelter, Mrs. Alice Peacock of the Chattahoochee Valley Humane Society, and Mrs. Evelyn King.

Through the courtesy of the Chattahoochee Valley Humane Society, a film entitled "The Animals Are Crying" may be seen during the cat show.

Individuals who wish to enter their cats are urged to call 544-1721 or 544-3079 immediately.

Columbus Square Art Exhibition

The Ninth Annual Columbus Square Art Exhibition begins tomorrow and lasts until Sunday, November 4. The show is one of the largest in the southeast, and is sponsored jointly by the Columbus Junior Women's Club, the Columbus Museum of Arts and Crafts, and the Columbus Square Merchants Association.

Last year's show attracted more than 65,000 viewers, and featured the works of artists from throughout the eastern United States, as well as Canada. Total sales from the show were over $15,000, and $1,625 was awarded in prizes.

This year's prizes will be $800 for first place, a second prize of $900 to be divided at the discretion of the judges, and a special student award of $100 to be given in a separate category from the other judging.

The judge for this year's show is Mrs. Larue Storm. Mrs. Storm is a member of the art faculty at the University of Miami, and has studied painting, sculpture, and print-making. She received her training at the University of Miami; the Florida Art Students League; Woodstock, New York; and has studied privately in Michigan, California and Paris.

The Junior Women's Club receives a fifteen per cent commission on all sales from the exhibit, which it uses to provide art scholarships for Columbus College students. The club has also donated funds to the Springer Theatre, the Springer Ballet, and the Children's Theatre.

Let GAC put a jingle in your dufflebag.

The way prices are going right now—you may need more money than you thought you'd need. GAC wants to lend you all the money you'll need to help beat prices and to buy the bargains you want before they're gone.

You don't have to make a lot to borrow a lot at GAC. The size of your loan depends on many things: the bills you have or have had. What you own or want to buy. The kind of work you do. And, because you wear a uniform, the kind of work you do rates very high with GAC. A steady income makes it easier for you to get a loan. But, more important, GAC wants to serve you because you serve your country.

Whatever your needs, whatever the reason, let GAC put a jingle in your dufflebag.

Did you know you can panbroil in a heavy skillet without fat? Just sprinkle salt over the bottom, add meat and cook to desired doneness.

Try grating hard-cooked eggs instead of chopping them when the eggs are to be used in a salad. Use coarse side of the grater. The same holds true for onions.

Grating saves time and energy, and the pieces are more uniform in size.

Looking for a new hot lunch menu? How about hot salmon sandwiches and a green salad with creamy herb dressing. Start with chilled tomato juice and top the meal with butterscotch pudding.

1½ Tb. sugar
1 tsp. prepared mustard
¾ tsp. oregano
½ tsp. rosemary
1 tsp. salt
¾ tsp. caraway seeds
2 Tb. flour
1 egg beaten
¾ C. milk
2 Tb. lemon juice
1 Tb. butter
½ C. cream

Put first 7 ingredients in top of double boiler; blend in egg. Slowly add milk and lemon juice. Stir over hot water until thick. Add butter and cream; stir until butter melts. Chill well. Makes about 1½ cups.

HOT SALMON SANDWICHES
Serves 4

8 oz. can salmon, boned and flaked
3 hard boiled eggs, chopped or grated
3 Tb. mayonnaise
½ tsp. paprika
pinch salt
¼ C. chopped peanuts
1 Tb. drained capers
4 slices white toast
4 slices Muenster cheese

Combine salmon with eggs, mayonnaise, paprika, salt, peanuts and capers in top of large double boiler; stir over hot — not boiling — water until well heated. Heap mixture onto toast slices and top each with a slice of cheese; place under broiler until cheese is melted and lightly brown.

Rashomon

Interview with a Fashion Designer

By GINGER NICHOLSON

Susan Gross is the costume designer and head of construction for the upcoming production of the Dramatizers, Rashomon. The show is set in ancient Japan. I asked Sue a few questions about the costuming business and found a few surprises!

SUE, WHAT IS IT LIKE TO DESIGN AND CONSTRUCT COSTUMES FOR THIS PARTICULAR PLAY?

"It's relatively easy compared to former productions of the Dramatizers. I had to research the Japanese Komono and men's wear. I found little change over the years in the Japanese traditional Komono".

WILL YOU USE THE TRADITIONAL STYLES AND COLORS THEN?

"Everything had to be modified somewhat for the stage. The bandit, for instance, is wearing garb designed by the director instead of traditional clothing. The director, Anni Disbrow, has also requested that the colors be brighter and that the prints show up well on stage. To fill these requests and to make the clothing "look like silk" I chose underlining material for most of the garments. The wigmaker and woodcutter, however, are in burlap since they portray poor people. We are following tradition by using black for the medium and the mother. The Japanese only use bright colors on young girls and Geishas."

WILL THE ACTORS WEAR THE STRANGE WOODEN SHOES?

"No. These would be too difficult to get used to in just a few weeks. Besides, they would be impossible during the sword fight scene." Anni has requested that the men use almost knee-hi black socks while the women use white or black tights. The wigmaker and thw woodcutter will have their feet bandaged in rags.

MOST PEOPLE WOULD THINK THAT JAPANESE COSTUMES ARE DIFFICULT TO PUT ON. HAVE YOU MADE ANY ALTERATIONS TO MAKE THEM EASIER ON THE ACTORS?

"Of course only a trained eye could detect the changes, but we did alter the large Komono sash a bit to make it easier to assemble. One costume must come apart on stage in a sword fight. This had to be altered and basted where the tear will show."

IT MUST TAKE A LOT OF MATERIAL FOR THESE CLOTHES. HOW MUCH WOULD YOU SAY YOU USE ON ONE GARMENT?

"Each of the womens' Komonos take between 6 ½ and 7 yards. The mens' garments take 4 yards. Besides these, I made muslin "under Komonos". These are used in rehearsals so that the actors may aquaint themselves with the feel of the costume. They will be used in the show under the "silken" Komonos."

ARE THERE ANY COSTUME CHANGES?
"None".

ARE THE ACTORS FINDING THE COSTUMES RESTRICTING?

"Not really, they're quite comfortable as a matter of fact. The only problem that came up was when the men wanted pants. They felt insecure without any on. I assured them the outfits would not come undone but that they could wear shorts underneath if they wished".

Sue and the rest of the staff of Rashomon, would like to invite everyone, both military and civilian, in Fort Benning, Columbus and Phenix City, to come "feast their eyes" on our costumes.

Play dates are November 15, 16, 17, 23 and 24. Show time is 8 p.m. at the Playhouse, and tickets are free. Call 545-5057 for information.

TB Association kicks off Christmas Seal Campaign

Major General Thomas M. Tarpley, Fort Benning commander, received his Christmas Seals Monday by special delivery. Making the presentation in front of Infantry Hall was Mary Jo Werp, Miss Columbus, 1973.

The presentation kicked off the 1973 Christmas Seal Campaign on post. Contributors received their seals this week and a mailing to all Fort Benning residents will go out Nov. 15.

The Christmas Seal Campaign is the money-raising event of the Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association of the Chattahoochee Valley. The association is active in the fight to prevent respiratory diseases. At Benning the association works through Mrs. Dixon Olive, Faith School registered nurse, to distribute more than 31,000 monthly health tips to elementary school children each year.

Breathing tests were given by the association to members attending the Officers' Wives'' Opening Tea in September, and plans are being made to test the NCO Wives in the near future.

Heritage Singers scheduled

The Heritage Singers, whose concerts are designed to reveal the fundamentals of Christian love through music will be at Fort Benning on Tuesday, Nov. 20.

They will present at concert in the second floor conference room of Martin Army Hospital at 2:30 p.m. as part of the hospital "Working Day with God" program.

Patients and staff are invited to attend.

The singers will also appear at the Indianhead Road Chapel, located in the Airborne area, at 7:30 p.m. Everyone is invited and the concert is free.

The group, from Placeerville, Calif. spends 10 months of the yar traveling and presenting more than 200 concerts with 18 singers and musicians. They have released 10 stereo albums available for purchase.

NCOES under constant evaluation for the best possible program

By ILEANE KATZKER

"We have realized from the beginning that a program of the importance and magnitude of the Noncommissioned Officers Education System would require constant evaluation to insure the best program possible. The program has been improved materially since its conception and will continue to improve in the future.

"Consturctive suggestions and recommendations from instructors, students and study groups at the Infantry School are incorporated into the program as they prove feasible.

"We are determined that this program be the basis for creating a high degree of professionalism at all levels of the Noncommissioned Officer Corps."

This statement by Major General Thomas M. Tarpley, commandant of the Infantry School points up the team work involved in the continuing effort to improve the quality of the Noncommissioned Officers Education System at Fort Benning.

Non-Commissioned officers have demonstrated a keen interest system and want to have something tossay about future plans for the program.

Numerous interviews with noncoms attending Noncommissioned Officers Education System courses and recent graduates of courses at the Infantry School indicate tht students have definite ideas about the effectiveness of the program and the areas in which changes should be made.

Comments of students, cadre personnel and members of the group with overall responsibility for the operation of the program are varied and not always in agreement, but all indicate there is a desire for some changes and that everyone involved is not hesitant to voice an opinion.

"The Non-Commissioned Officers' Education System (NCOES) is a turning point in the Army. People who have been trained will get better jobs and better assignments. We should have had it 20 years ago," says First Sergeant Edgar C. Burkhalter, first sergeant for advanced students, 56th Student Company.

"We have to take a real strong look at NCOs at all levels and start demanding that they stop complaining about all areas and start doing theor jobs," Burkhalter says.

What are some of the opinions of advanced and basic NCOES students? How do they view the role of the NCOES course?

Referring to the tighter discipline placed on the present cycle, Specialist Four Adrien H. Vincent, BNCOES class 2-74, says, "We're getting the same kind of treatment as officer candidates, but we're not getting commissioned. We just get 42 promotion points."

"I like it," says Sergeant Larry B. Kelley, BNCOES class 2-74. "We have real good classes and leadership programs. But most of us weren't prepared for an NCO academy."

A recent graduate from BNCOES class 1-74, Sergeant Dennis S. Urbanski, feels the course was a good experience. "It's a good school for E-4s to refresh them on everything they've learned. It could have been shorter, though."

Specialist Four David H. organ, another graduate from BNCOES class 1-74, says, "Most of us enjoy the field training because it wes realistic. The training schedule should be reviewed, though. It should have been harder."

"Right now there's a problem because the course is in transition from being a school to an academy-type situation," says Sergeant Dane M. Kelley, BNCOES class 2-74.

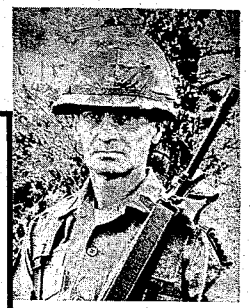
"The advanced course helps in promotions," says Sergeant First Class James T. Westbrook, ANCOES class 2-74. "We have some real good instructors. Basically, it's an administrative course."

"The instructors do not grasp eality. They don't know what we go through because they have been instructors too long. They should be out in the field," says Sergeant First Class Edward R. Soyk, ANCOES class 2-74.

Sergeant Jack E. Green, BNCOES class 2-74, feels more time should be given to the men for study. "The retainability of what we've learned will be low unless we're given more time to lreceive what we've been taught," he says.

"We came here to become more proficient in our MOS, and we're being treated like privates, says Sergeant John B. Smith, BNCOES class 2-74.

Master Sergeant Richard H. Johnson, course monitor, answers much of the criticism. "The course was developed on what we assumed the man needed to know. After a year and a half many changes have been made."



Johnson continued, "If the man is ging to be an NCO he's got to maintain high standards. A lot of discipline was dropped under VOLAR concepts and reinstituted because of student observations."

"The standards aren't the same as Officer Candidate School, but they're comparable," explains Captain Jessie O. Roland, commanding officer of 54th Student Company, BNCOES. "Previous classes said it wasn't a challenge, wasn't hard enough. There's a marked improvement over the last system in just five weeks."

Changes have been made, are being made, and will be made in the future.

The Non-Commissioned Officers' Education System is constantly under study, according to Lieutenant Colonel Cornelius F. McGillicuddy, who heads up the current study group. McGillicuddy said, "General Tarpley has directed the study group to see what we in the Infantry can do to make the system better. The concepts in the study include improving instruction in the school, improving assignments the students get upon graduation, selection of students, getting more information to the field about the program and incrasing NCO participation." He also said that the studies indicate that NCOES is a critical step in career progression.

The study group, which started six months ago, is looking at career progression, MOS structure and the definition of the role of NCOES.

NCO The backbone of the Army

By SUSANNE BOSTICK

Throughout the history of the United States Army, many of its great leaders have referred to the Non-Commissioned Officers Corps as "the backbone of the Army."

This accolade has been well-earned. However, in the earlier days of the Army's history, the NCO controlled his men primarily through the power invested in his rank and any natural leadership ability he possessed. It was enough for him to know "close order drill," have a working knowledge of the weapons in his squad or platoon, and be able to supervise a work detail.

During World War II and the Korean and Vietnam conflicts, though, it became apparent that NCOs needed more knowledge and training to be effective as small-unit leaders. Various academies and schools were established for the non-commissioned officer. These training facilities were usually organized at unit or area command headquarters.

The Army recognized the need for a professional program for NCOs in 1967, and in 1971 an Army-wide non-commissioned officer training system began.

There are three NCOES courses of instruction for infantrymen: the Basic and Advanced courses, taught at Fort Benning, and the Senior course, held at Fort Bliss, Texas. The Basic and Advanced courses are each 12 weeks long, while the Senior course lasts 22 weeks.

The two courses at Fort Benning started in 1972. The Basic course is for Specialists Fourth and Fifth Class and Sergeants. Staff Sergeants and Sergeants First Class attend the Advanced course. The Senior course, known as the Sergeants Majors' Academy, is open to Master Sergeants and First Sergeants.

The Basic and Advanced courses are similar in some areas, but the first is designed to train squad leaders and the Advanced teaches students the duties of first sergeants and intelligence and operations sergeants.

Some of the subjects are "critical," or required for all courses. These include map reading, land navigation, and physical training. According to Master Sergeant Richard H. Johnson, course monitor in the Systems Engineering Branch of the Directorate of Instruction, some of the subjects are more difficult than others.

"If a man has been away from a subject for a long time," he said, "it takes him a little while to get the feel of it again. Some of the men are being retrained in an MOS they may not have worked in for years. The instruction goes back to basic subjects, so that all the students are brought to a common level and can advance together."

According to First Sergeant Edward C. Burkhalter of the 56th Student Company, the most difficult subject areas — land navigation and physical training — are the critical ones. "We feel that the physical training program should be enhanced," said Burkhalter. "Many senior NCOs need more physical training."

Sergeant Burkhalter also added, "You've got people with 18 and 19 years of service here, but when did they get out of high school? Nineteen years ago. We must go by the book, not by what they've learned in the field."

Students for the Basic course are selected at company level, based on MOS test scores and length of time remaining on active duty. Advanced course students are picked at Department of the Army level, and must have no more than 17 years of active duty service and an MOS test score of 100 or more.

Graduates benefit from the courses in several ways. Basic course graduates receive 42 promotion points, and Advanced course graduates have the opportunity to take college courses as electives. The major advantage, though, is professional development.

In the beginning, some NCOs said there was too much "Mickey Mouse" in the program. According to Master Sergeant Johnson, "Some of the more repetitious instruction has been deleted, and other types have been added."

"Courses are evaluated annually," he continued, "but regulations govern some subjects that must be taught. Others, such as race relations, are taught at the discretion of the assistant commandant."

What about senior NCOs who attained their grade before the NCOES program went into effect? They are eligible for the Advanced or Senior course because there was no Basic course during the earlier part of their careers.

Correspondence courses are also available, Sergeant Johnson said, for those who want them. "The men get out of the course what they put into it," he added.

Sergeant Johnson feels that the course fulfills its original mission, and will do so to an even greater extent when the selection process is improved so that the best men from every unit are sent to enroll in NCOES.

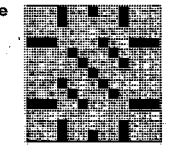
Coming to the screen



During a party, Hollywood columnist Yvonne Romaine is killed by a hit-and-run driver. Later, her husband James Coburn, a powerful producer, invites some friends — one of whom could be the killer — to his luxury yacht, "SHEILA," on the French Riviera. THE LAST OF SHELA is an adventure in a grotesque murder game played out in the bizarre cruise where seven Hollywood personalities, are suspects of murder and they themselves possible victims. This highly diverting mystery is spiced with comedy and bizarre touches and contains violence which may prove offensive for young viewers.

In the title role, Angela Mao, a 23-year-old Hong Kong horn Chinese girl, is the newest Kung Fu karate queen and the first to demonstrate that this oriental art of self-defense is not wholly a man's art. Mao, a black belt kung fu artist, uses her body to attract and destroy lovers and opponents alike. LADY KING FU is an action-filled martial arts feature in the tradition of FISTS OF FURY and THE CHINESE CONNECTION. Violence and some mature scenes usually found in films of this genre may prove offensive and are not suitable for the young.

The Terrible Trio, Hermie (Gary Grimes), Oscy (Jerry Houser) and Benjie (Oliver Conant), graduate from high school. The year is 1944 and there's a war on. Benjie enlists in the Marines and Hermie and Oscy head for college. On campus, Hermie meets Julie (Deborah Winters), a coed reporter, who promptly gets them involved in a fraternity. The initiation that follows is like basic training in the Marines with "a chilling end." Meanwhile, Oscy discovers a luscious 32-year-old noncollegian whose dormitory activities get him thrown out of college. Alone, Hermie, who has had a spat with Julie, gets a phone call that his father has died. After the funeral, Oscy, on leave from the Army, appears and the two go out on a drunk. They salute Hermie's dad, they salute Benjie and, unknowingly, they bid a farewell salute to the boyhood they had just left.

Combining incredible adventure with scientific authenticity, THE NEPTUNE FACTOR is the story of four aquanauts who travel to the unknown depths of the sea in a submersible and encounter a never-before-seen underwater world inhabited by creatures hundreds of times their normal size! The group, led by Commander Ben Gazzara search the ocean for a missing habitat. THE NEPTUNE FACTOR is the most fantastic undersea odyssey ever filmed and suspenseful solid total motion picture entertainment for the whole family.

HUNTERS TAKE NOTE

There will be game warden checkpoints on the Fort Benning Reservation throughout the hunting season. "Big Game Tags", which should be in the hunters possession when hunting, must be filled out in INK immediately after the deer is killed. Hunters should be thoroughly familiar with United States Army Infantry Center hunting regulations 210-2 and 210-4. Ignorance of USAIC hunting regulations is no excuse when hunting on the reservation.

RELEASE OF MEDICAL RECORDS

Adult medical records will not be released without authorization from the adult. The authorization of the patient must be authenticated by a Notary Public or a member of the Martin Army Hospital Patient Administration Division. Wives must come by the Martin Army Hospital Annex, records room, to sign for their records, and the records of children when records are to be delivered to another military facility. However, should the sponsor desire to pick up the records of his wife, he must present an authorization for release and a copy of his PCS orders.

EXPECTANT PARENTS COURSE

An expectant parents course, for active duty and retired personnel and their wives, will begin Tuesday, Nov. 6, in the second floor conference room in Martin Army Hospital. The course consists of four classes. The classes will be held from 7-9 p.m. each Tuesday in November. Interested prospective parents may register for the course by calling the Army Health Nurse at 545-5481.

SMOKERS CLINIC

So you want to quit smoking but you don't know how. Then attend the Smoker's Clinic to be held at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 5-9 at Infantry Hall in Room 7, Martin Army Hospital is sponsoring the clinic presented by Dr. A. Thrash of Columbus. Registration will be held at the door on Nov. 5 at 7:30 p.m. The only qualification is a desire to quit smoking.

CLEARANCE TO ENTER AREAS

During the hunting season, all military and civilian personnel engaged in any outdoor activity on the Fort Benning Reservation are reminded to personally check the range clearance maps prior to entering training areas. Maps are posted at the Provost Marshal office, Bldg. 215, Ranger Division office; Bldg. 2621, and the Rod and Gun Club, Bldg. 4040, Harmony Church.

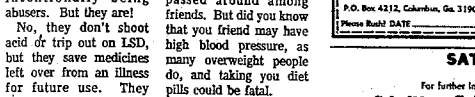
FREE SPEEDOMETER CHECKS

Do you know how fast you drive? Does your speedometer register the correct speed? If you aren't sure, bring your privately owned vehicles to the entrance of Fryar Field on the Alabama side of the reservation between 9 a.m. and noon, Nov. 8 or 9, Provost Marshal

Benning tops campaign goal for the third straight year.

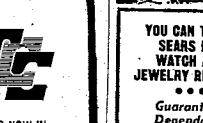
Individual contributions at Fort Benning have passed the post Combined Federal Campaign goal for the third straight year.

According to James Schoonover, post project officer, "Individuals on post have contributed more than $173,000 and the total should go to about 180,000 when final donations are counted".



The contributions from 31 Federal Activities in the Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning area were actually 21 per cent more than the established goal of $150,000.

"This compares favorably with the $190,000 received last year, at which time a greater number of personnel were on duty or employed in the area," said Schoonover. "Nearly all activities at Fort Benning and four downtown agencies have surpassed their assigned goals."



This is the third year that fund frives for the United Way and the National Health and International Service Agencies have been combined into a single campaign among all Federal employees. Federal officers have found that this joint project saves time and effort and reduces expenses, allowing the majority of funds raised to be devoted to their intended purpose.

The contributions will be distributed to the various agencies on a formula agreed to before the campaign got undereay in September. Under the agreement United Way should receive approximately $141,000; International Services, $10,000 and National Health Agencies, $22,000. The exact distribution will be computed when all contributions have been received.

Colonel Kendrick Barlow, Jr., Assistant Commander, Fort Benning is this year's campaign chairman. His principal assistants on the Federal Coordinating Committee included Mr. Lee Jones and Mr. Robert Greene of the U.S. Postal Services, Mr. Robert O'Neil, Social Security Administration; Mr. Michael Kelly and Mr. Dan Sassaman, Internal Revenue Service; Mr. Arthur Medlock, Civilain Personnel Office, and Colonel Charles H. Reidenbaugh, Director Personnel and Community Activities, Fort Benning.

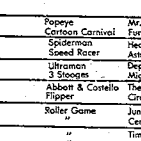
Me: abuse drugs?

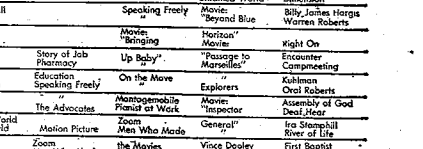
All drug abusers are not mixed up kids out for kicks or running from reality. They are often "square" members of the establishment who wouldn't dream of intentionally being abusers. But they are!

No, they don't shoot acid or trip out on LSD, but they save medicines left over from an illness for future use. They volunteer some of their "pills" to a friend with similar symptoms. They just don't realize how dangerous these practices are.

Old medicines often lose their effectiveness. While you think that you are adequately treating yourself, you may actually be getting worse because the old medicine isn't doing you any good and the illness is getting a good headstart. Discard leftover medicine when you recover from an illness. The chance that it will help you the next time is remote.



Helping a friend or relative by loaning some of your medicine is equally dangerous. You don't know what other medications he or she may be taking. Many drugs such as antibiotics are not compatible with other drugs, or alcohol. The combination can cause a fatal drug interaction.



Diet pills are often passed around among friends. But did you know that you friend may have high blood pressure, as many overweight people do, and taking you diet pills could be fatal.

Tranquillizers and sleeping pills combined with alcohol can be a passport to eternal sleep.

The dosage of some medicines are prescribed by body weight. What is effective for a 200-pound man may be fatal to his 100-pound wife!

So kick the habit! Clean out your medicine cabinets — stop loaning out medicines — and keep perscriptions out of children's reach.

HHC 197th

Squeezes by 8-7 in championship game

The 197th Infantry Brigade's Headquarters and Headquarters Company flag football team squeezed past the 298th Signal Platoon, 8-7, to win the Kelley Hill flag football tournament Oct. 25 at Essebagger Field.

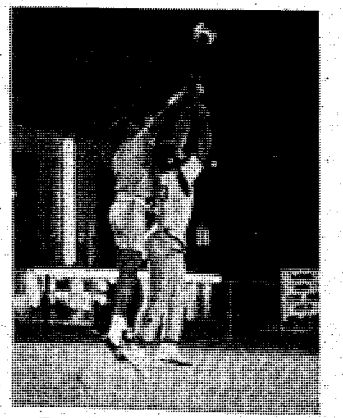
Returning from that defeat on Oct. 26, however, the 298th bounced Co. A, 197th Spt. Bn., 18-6, to gain second place in the tournament and a spot in the post tournament.

The U.S. Army Infantry Center flag football tournament opened Monday with 10 teams competing. The double - elimination competition runs through Nov. 8.

The champions were ragged early in the season, but finished confidently to earn a second straight trip to the post competition.

The deciding points in the championship game were scored on a safety when the Brigade Headquarters Company's Russell Davis tackled the 298th Signal Platoon's quarterback in his end zone. The score followed a defensive charge by Headquarters Company, which pushed the 298th back from its own 40 to its five-yard line before the safety.

Teams in the tournament and their records were: Brigade Headquarters (2-0), 298th Signal Platoon (1-2), Co. A, 197th Spt. Bn. (1-2), Co. D, 197th Spt. Bn. (0-2).



In last season's post flag football tournament, the Brigade Headquarters Company team finished second behind the champions, HHC, 1st Bn., 29th Inf. (then a part of the 197th Bde.).

Henry Wallace, playing-coach of the Brigade Headquarters Company team, remarked after his team had won, "Defense will determine the post championship, and our defense has proven it can do the job."

BAYONET SPORTS

Everett Stull, (left), 121st Aviation Company 'A' team, and Robert Kirce, 121st 'B' team, go to mid-air tactics in a fight for possession of the ball.

121st Co. A captures League title in 145th Aviation

Last Wednesday the 121st Aviation Company "A" team sealed its title in the 145th Aviation Battalion Flag Football League by coming out on top of a see-saw battle with the 121st Aviation Company "B" team, 14-13, in double overtime. The win gave the 121st 'A' team a 8-0 record.

Until the last few seconds of the game the 'A' team was leading 13-6 but Bob Maybew pulled in a 30-yard bomb to put the 'B' team back in the game.

The extra point conversation was good extending the battle into an overtime. But, one overtime was not enough. On their fourth down of the second overtime Archie Zanders, 'A' team quarterback, connected on a short pass up the middle and the 'A' team ran the rest of the way down the field for that last penetration drive point win.

Football, golf, fishing and even girl watching will take a back seat tomorrow when the Georgia 1973-1974 deer season opens.

Many hunters have been planning for this date for a long time. A lot of other hunters haven't given it much attention, but intend to be out in the woods looking for that trophy buck at sun-up tomorrow.

Despite the off-handed attitude of many hunters, this is not a day to take lightly. The odds are stacked in many ways against the hunter who just grabs his gun and heads for the woods.

Most experienced hunters have been spending hours in the woods reconnoitering for deer and building shooting stands at the most likely places. They have sighted in their weapon and checked out all the other hunting gear they intend to use. They also have all of the permits and licenses required by law.

Weapons Must Be Registered

Before any hunter takes to the field, he should be sure he is operating within the laws.

Weapons used for hunting on post must be registered with the Provost Marshal Registration Division located in Building 83. The weapon must be brought to the registration point for the initial registration. Provost Marshal personnel will check the weapon for safety and verify any identification numbers on the weapon. The gun owner will receive a registration card when the registration has been completed. He should keep his card in his possession whenever he uses the gun on post.

There is also a requirement to register weapons. The registration card has a date in the upper right corner. Weapons to be used after this date must be re-registered. The card, but not the weapon, must be brought back to the provost marshal. Cards not having a date in the upper right hand corner have expired. If you have any questions on the legality of your weapons, call 545-4591.

Everyone Needs Licenses

All personnel hunting on the reservation must have a state hunting license. All military personnel on active duty and Georgia residents must have a Georgia state license. All other persons authorized to hunt on post must have a Georgia state non-resident hunting license. All deer hunters must have a Georgia Big Game tag.

All personnel hunting on the reservation must have a post hunting permit. Post permits and Georgia licenses may be purchased at the Rod and Gun Club sales counter.

The Rod and Gun Club is located in the former Victory Lodge at Victory Pond.

Big Deer Contest

The Rod and Gun Club will hold a big deer contest again this year. The contest, open only to club members, will provide awards for the deer with the most number of antler points and the deer weighing the most after being field dressed.

Only deer taken on the Fort Benning reservation may be entered in the contest. Personnel authorized to hunt on post may obtain a Rod and Gun Club membership when they come to the club for the post hunting permit. Detailed information concerning the contest is available at the club.

Be Careful

From all indications, tomorrow will see a record number of hunters in the field. There are many deer and many days available in the hunting season to bag one. Don't let opening day excitement cause an accident.

Take the time to check one of the range maps to be sure the area you intend to hunt is actually open for hunting. One of these maps is located at the Provost Marshal's Office, Building 215, Main Post, the Range Control Office, Building 2821, Main Post, and at the Rod and Gun Club, Building 4050, Harmony Church Area.

If you do bag a deer, remember that it must be tagged with your Georgia Big Game license and brought to the Post Fish and Game Unit check point at Building 5883, Harmony Church. After it has been checked there, bring it to the Rod and Gun Club for entry in the Big Deer Contest. Deer will not be entered into the contest until they have been checked by the Fish and Game Unit.

Barracudas 2nd at Halloween meet

Tricia Lunsford and Laura Chapin teamed to take first place plaques and four second place ribbons while leading the Fort Benning Garracudas to a second-place finish at the Halloween Invitational Swim Meet held at Bryant Wells Field House last weekend.

Miss Lunsford, swimming in the 8-and-under class, led the Barracudas with six first place finishes. Her wins came in the 25-and 50-yard freestyle, 25-and 50-yard fly, and the 25-and 50-yard backstroke events. Miss Chapin, swimming in the 10-and-under class, scored her victories in the 50-yard fly, 50-yard backstroke and the 50-, 100-, and 200-yard free-style events.

The Haloween Invitational matched 11 teams from Georgia, Alabama and Florida in the AAU-sanctioned meet.

Columbus's Windsor Park swimmers were impressive in taking first place in the team completition while placing first, second, and third in individual honors. High individual honors went to 12-year-old Janice Jones with 10 first places — seven in her own age group and three in the senior girls category. John Musiak and Ed Griffin took second and third places to give the Windsor Park team a sweep and the first.

Other Barracuda winners in girls competition were Sheila Cannan, Jennifer Warren, Debbie Cannan, Toni Hampton, Leigh Lunsford and Ann Rose. In the boys competition winners for the Barracudas were Jeff Warren, Mike Fry, Kirby Pilcher, Joe Rodriguez and A. Rodriguez.

Ward wins tourney

Sp4 Michael Ward of the U. S. Army Marksmanship Unit grabbed the championship of the Open International Skeet Tournament Sunday from a group of mixed civilian and military competitors here. He posted a 144 Sunday for a two-day total of 286.

Going into the final six rounds of the two-day tourney, Ward shot steady scores and gained a tie with Capt. James Whitaker who Saturday led by one point at 143-142.

In the shoot off to determine the championship, Ward allowed only one bird to escape while Whitaker missed two.

Third place overall was claimed by Sp4 David Smith, Houston, Tex., who posted a 284 total. The Texan shot three perfect rounds of flawless skeet Sunday to claim the high mark for the final day. Two perfect rounds were also posted by Whitaker and one by Ward.

In the high civilian and military class awards, Dr. Edward Sweat, Atlanta, won the first with his 281 total. M Sgt. Burl Branham of the Army Marksmanship Unit captured the latter with 272.

James Elkins, Naples, Fla., was second high civilian with 269 while Kenneth Hadcock, a teammate from Naples, was third with 266.

Team honors were claimed by Ward and Sweat with their combined 567 in the two man pairings. A team led by Wtaker and Smith won the four-man team honors with 1100 of a possible 1200 birds.

STAGECOACH

Just south of Steamboat Springs are 12,000 of Colorado's most spectacular acres. We've named the area Stagecoach, and dedicated it to serve as nature intended — for family recreational living.

You'll enjoy the activities of a ski resort, a summer resort which will encompass two magnificent areas with potential for 20 lifts. The Stagecoach master plan also includes two 18-hole championship golf courses, an 860-acre lake and marina for sailing, water sports, and fishing, 12 tennis courts, two clubhouses, equestrian facilities, and hiking trails. Not just near Stagecoach — within Stagecoach.

Stagecoach will be the complete year-round residential-recreational community.

A unique territory now open to settlers.

I would like more information about the 12,000 acres of land known as Stagecoach.

4th Stu. Btn. represents TSB in playoff

Infantry Officer Advanced Course class (IOAC2-74) took top honors in The School Brigade flag football league by rolling to a 8-1 record. However, the 4th Student Battalion team is representing TSB in the playoffs for the post championship.

IOAC teams are in a student status, and are not allowed to participate in post-season competition. The 4th Student Battalion tied for second place with the 2nd student Battalion and the U.S. Marines team, but won the right to play for the Post championship by beating both teams in regular season play.

The 4th Student Battalion met the 2nd Student Battalion in the final game of the year and just managed to beat them in overtime by penetration. Neither team could manage a touchdown in the bruising defensive struggle.

In another final game IOAC 2-74 defeated the Marines, 6-0.

C Battery took first place by one game over A company in the 1-29th infantry league they will also represent TSB the post tournament.

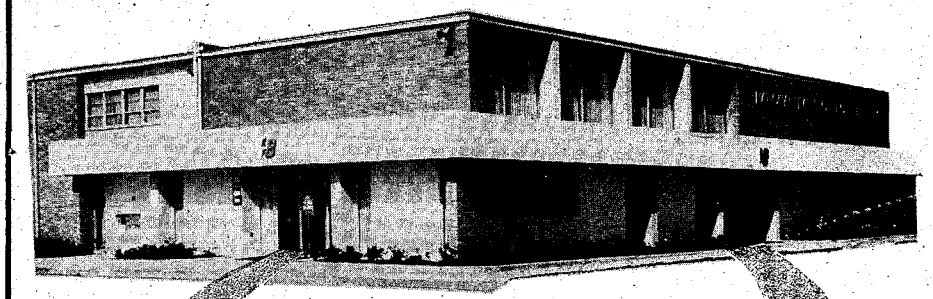
Canadians train here for 76 Olympics

Canada, the host country for the 1976 Olympics, is sending 27 marksmanship coaches to Fort Benning to train for the event.



This group of northern visitors, all members of the Shooting Federation of Canada, will be guests of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit for training in the fine arts of marksmanship and coaching techniques. The Canadians will arrive Sunday, Nov. 4 for two weeks.

The visitors will be offered classroom instruction and actual experience on the firing lines in their drive to be champions in '76. The group will be equally divided between handgun and rifle coaches and placed under the international pistol and rifle divisions of the Marksmanship Unit.

U.S. Army marksmanship instructors for the Canadians will include some of the nation's elite marksmen. Among these are an Olympic gold and silver medalist, a Pan American Games medalist, world record holders and national champions. Many of these champion marksmen returned to Fort Benning his past week from Mexico City where they aided the U.S. in winning a lion's share of the medals in the Tournament of Americas.

Major Lones W. Wigger Jr., Olympic gold and silver medalist who established a new world record in three position smallbore rifle at Mexico City last week, will be demonstrating his champion style shooting techniques, along with gold medal winners Sergeant First Class Hershel Anderson, Staff Sergeant Jimmy McCauley, Captain Boyd Goldsby and Army Marksmanship Coach William (Bill) Krilling.

RED CARPET TREATMENT

Our Red Carpet is "WALL-TO-WALL" all over the Fort Benning area!

We have red carpet in the lobby of the National Bank of Fort Benning. However, the red carpet treatment was initiated long before the carpet was installed. We're proud of our bank. It may not be the largest in the world but we try to make it the friendliest. We offer full service banking to both military and civilian personnel and try to meet the needs of our customers in the best possible way. We'd like to show you some of our services. So come by one of our offices. You'll find the red carpet treatment at Main Post, Sand Hill and Mobile Facility. If you can't make it to the bank, that's all right too. We can provide practically any service through the mail that we can at the desk. Give us a try. You'll be glad you did!

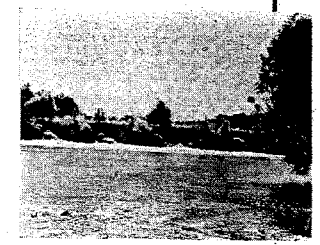
197th Combat Engrs. test their skills

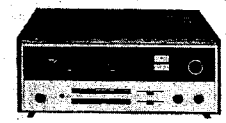


Combat engineers from the 197th Infantry Brigade and Fort Benning's Infantry School combined skills to destroy an abandoned bridge on Highway 238, west of LaGrange, as part of clearing operations for the West Point dam and lake projects.

The engineers, members of the 197th Infantry Brigade's 72nd Engineer Company, led by Capt. Richard Craig and the Infantry School's Engineer Committee, began preparations for the explosion when they dug holes for the charges and rehearsed the operation.

When the blast was touched off at 2:15 p.m. the entire center span reverberated mightily then crashed straight downward into the Chattahoochee River.

The bridge, a potential obstacle to future boat traffic on the lake, was removed and the engineers involved gained practical experience in their jobs. The careful rehearsal and precise conduct of the blowup created a perfect destruction and allowed for successful filming of the operation by a film crew from the Department of the Army.



McIntosh

Completely new circuits have reduced the noise and distortion below that of any other amplifier. This improvement allows you to take full advantage of the sensational new low noise records and tapes. Not content with this vast improvement, McIntosh engineers provided new and useful flexibility in this professional preamplifier. • Use three tape recorders • Copy from one tape recorder to another while hearing a totally separate program • Built-in headphone amplifier

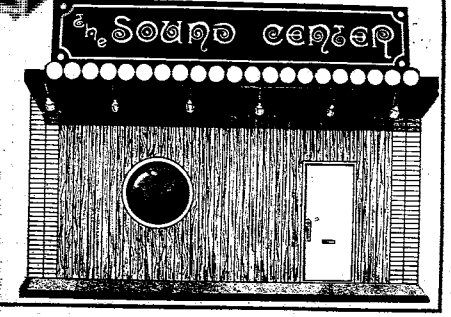
Why You Should Buy McIntosh

• McIntosh instruments have been designed and manufactured for long life. Long life with low maintenance costs and high quality performance have always been design objectives of McIntosh. Adherence to this policy has produced instruments that have exceptional long life. Most McIntosh instruments, regardless of age, are still in use today! With the introduction of McIntosh instruments, a new level of performance was established for the high quality amplifier industry. Amplifier clinics held all over North America have shown that more than 80% of the McIntosh instruments ever manufactured are still in service today and still meet or exceed the exacting requirements for performance that was required of them when new.

• Used McIntosh instruments enjoy the highest resale value in this field. Retailers report that they constantly have customers searching for used McIntosh instruments. A McIntosh does not remain on the "Used" display long. You'll get more when you trade-in your McIntosh which assures you of maximum return on your investment.

• McIntosh instruments have been and are LAVORATORY STANDARD for the world. This reputation was earned with the introduction of the first McIntosh amplifier in 1949. The performance requirements for a McIntosh had been long dreamed of but had never been a commercial reality.

• McIntosh is the only company in this field still under the same ownership and management.



• McIntosh has been and is still dedicated to the best possible values.

• For more than eleven year McIntosh Laboratory has conducted audio clinics in retail locations. Gain-frequency-distortion characteristics are measured on submitted customer equipment. About 15,000 amplifiers and preamplifiers are measured per year. McIntosh has accumulated an extensive appraisal of our own instruments and, of course, of equipment made by others.

• McIntosh dedication to fundamentals and solid improvements has justified many patents on its instruments - ! - not tricks or gadgets.

• McIntosh customers indicate that we should continue this quality theme without compromise, and to continue our concern after the sale is made.

• McIntosh investment in professional testing instruments is staggering. On a percentage basis McIntosh probably invests more of its sales dollars in testing facilities than anyone else in a like business. As new testing instruments are produced that update the McIntosh ability to know, McIntosh invests in them - - - wave form analyzers - real time analyzers - low distortion signal generators, etc. etc. Only through this impressive investment, through continuous testing and research, through product analysis and endless measurement can McIntosh promise and deliver to you reliability, long life, performance, highest value, and freedom from service.

A welcome visitor at the 36th

Miss Wallace, Miss World-USA visited members of the 586th Float Bridge Company at Victory Pond, while they supervised training of C Co., 307th Airborne Engineer Battalion from Fort Bragg, N. C.

During her visit she chatted with the soldiers and autographed pictures for them. She was escorted by Private David Roberts of the 533rd Transportation Company who is from her home state of Indiana. Miss Wallace says she likes traveling and visiting with the people she meets. At one point during her visit, she met a young man from her hometown and they exchanged the usual talk about high schools and people they knew.

The Engineers showed Miss Wallace how they constructed floating platforms and floating footbridges. She was amazed at their proficiency. In addition, the 586th took Marji for a ride around Victory Pond in one of their power boats.

"No contestant from the United States has ever won the Miss World Contest" explained Miss Wallace to members of the 586th. "I do hope you will give me your support at the Miss World Contest in London."

145th wins dining award

The 145th Aviation Battalion's Dining Facility, under the supervision of Sergeant First Class Robert C. Swantek, mess steward, has been recognized as the best large category mess on Fort Benning for four consecutive months.

The 145th Aviation Battalion Dining Facility serves the 121st Aviation Company, the 478th Aviation Company, the 609th Transportation Company, and HHC, 145th Avn. Bn., and several units of Headquarters Command.

This tradition of excellence was started under Sergeant First Class James Lee, who piloted the 145th's Dining Facility to three consecutive "Best Mess" awards. Swantek is continuing this performance under the guiding philosophy, "Know your men and their eating habits and feed them what they want."

With 19 years exclerience in the food service field, Swantek, a native of Cheshire, Conn., possessed a thorough knowledge of dining facility problems and their solutions, insuring that the individual soldier receives the best service possible.

Prior to his assignment at Fort Benning, Swantek spent two years at Camp Red Cloud, Ouijongbu, Republic of Korea. As mess steward of a large category dining facility there, his mess was one of the 11 All-Army finalists in the 1972 Philip A. Connelly Competition. To arrive at that level, his facility took Eight U. S. Army honors and first place in USARPAC competition. The winner in the 1972 All-Army contest was never chosen due to a tragic plane crash which claimed the lives of several contenders. However, the following year found Swantek's Dining Facility again among the top 11 finalists. His was ultimately chosen the best Dining Facility in the entire U. S. Army for 1973.

When asked what is the most important factor in successful operation of a dining facility, both Swantek and Warrant Officer Christopher LaCosta, the battalion mess officer, agreed that command interest and support were essential. In addition, they were quick to point out that one can never rest on past accomplishment.

LaCosta is deeply involved in remodeling the interior of the dining hall to make it more attractive and relaxing. In his words, "the dining room is a place for the soldier to get away from it all and enjoy a good meal."

Maintaining the patron's interest in the facility is of paramount concern, and Swantek is working on what he terms an "International Supper" which will feature meals of foreign cuisine on a regular basis.

Marine Corps

198th birthday

Marines at Fort Benning will be celebrating the 198th birthday of the Marine Corps tomorrow. Since its founding in 1775 in Philadelphia, the Marine Corps has proudly accounted for itself in battle and in peace.

November 10 has traditionally been the day when Marines reflected upon the deeds of past Marines and celebrate the founding of the Corps.

A tradition that has stood since 1922 is that of sending selected Marine Officers to Fort Benning as students in the Infantry School. In the past 50 years more than 300 Marine Officers have attended the officer career courses offered here.

Many of these officers have later distinguished themselves as leaders. Nine of these former Marine students were promoted to the rank of lieutenant general.

Hundreds of Marines attend Airborne and Ranger courses each year, and throughout the world Marines and Soldiers have always worked besides one another.

Engineers visit King center

More than 40 members of the 36th Engineer Group recently attended a one-day race relations seminar and took a tour of the Martin Luther King Jr. Center for Social Change in Atlanta.

Sergeant First Class Herbert Hughes, the group race relations coordinator, commented, "This trip gave me a clearer view of some of the racial problems facing us in the military and civilian communities."

The group toured the King Center, and attended several business and social functions with the Center's staff personnel. An informal question-and-answer session, press conference style, was held with Mrs. Martin Luther King Jr. The session also included a talk by Colonel James M. Thompson, the 36th Engineer Group Commander, on the group's race relations program. Staff Sergeant Robert L. Adams, a race relations coordinator for the 36th Engineers, remarked, "I was very impressed with every aspect of the trip. I thought the seminar with Mrs. King was the most informative part of the tour. During the question-and-answer period, Mrs. King was quite frank in answering questions about Dr. King's views on the non-violent movement."

The Reverend Calvin S. Morris, recently appointed executive director of the King Center, delivered a lecture on Dr. King and his movement. Afterward, he also answered questions from the audience. The entire trip was filmed and recorded for future reference. Information on how to obtain the recording for use by other race relations groups at Fort Benning may be obtained by calling Second Lieutenant Clifford B. Jordan, unit race relations officer, at 544-4091.

CFC

Benning over goal

Fort Benning's Combined Federal Campaign has topped the $200,000 mark — more than $50,000 above the goal of $150,000.

Colonel Kendrick Barlow Jr., assistant commander and post CFC chairman, made the announcement Friday that the drive had netted more than $206,000, and that more was still being donated by individuals at the U.S. Army Infantry Center.

Approximately 15,000 people contributed to this year's campaign, which broke last year's record total of $190,000. This was accomplished even though there were fewer personnel on duty or employed in the area this year.

This is the third year that fund drives for the United Way and the National Health and International Service Agencies have been combined into a single campaign among all Federal employes. Federal officers have found that this joint project saves time and effort and reduces expense, allowing the majority of funds raised to be devoted to their intended purpose.

The contributions will be distributed to the various agencies on a formula agreed upon before the campaign started in September. The exact distribution will be computed when all contributions have been received.

Bozo the Clown

to highlight Silver Eagles' appearance

Bozo the Clown will highlight the U.S. Army Silver Eagles' appearance at Fort Benning's Lawson Field at 4:30 p.m., Nov. 15.

Bozo, part of the newest military flight demonstration team, is a specially designed hellicopter. Among the many trials, Bozo will attempt to manipulate a five foot diameter yoyo.

Seven helicopters and 30 men make up the Silver Eagle team. Performances include a close formation with six helicopters, capability formations with multi-colored smoke, vertical take off and landing formations and a "Starburst" maneuver.

This demonstration, sponsored by the Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning chapter of the AUSA, is free and open to the public.

Following the Silver Eagles' performances, the local chapter of AUSA will hold its second annual Fall Outing. A special chirken buffet is scheduled. Guest speaker will be Senator Sam Nunn.

Staff Sergeant Steve W. Beinert, Airborne Department, Tower Committee, was surprised when he made his 2,000th freefall jump. Brigadier General William Richardson, assistant commandant of the U.S. Army Infantry School was waiting for him. The general punned the gold freefall jump wings on the sergeant marking the event. The sergeant is a member of the Fort Benning Sport Parachute Club.

Army Bands to perform special concert

"An Old-Fashioned Band Concert" will be presented for the public's enjoyment on Sunday, Nov. 18 at Watson Field beginning at 4:15 p.m.

Both Fort Benning's 283rd Army Band and the 98th Army Band from Fort Rucker, Ala. are participating in the concert. The combined membership of the bands totals 55.

Admission is free, and a special welcome is extended to local high school and college band members. Chief Warrant Officer Brian D. Arnold, commander of the 283rd Army Band, said, "We want young musicians to learn about the excellent opportunities available to men and women who decide to serve in an Army Band."

Chief Warrant Officer W. R. Easter, who commands the 98th Army Band, noted as an example Warrant Officer Ralph Williams, who now commands the 82nd Airborne Division Band at Fort Bragg, N.C.

Williams was formerly an enlisted member of the 98th Army Band. His advancement, Easter stressed, was achieved through schools offered by the Army to qualified musicians.

Selections from the concert program will include: "Band of America March" by Paul Lavalle; "Slavonic Dance" by Anton Dvorak; "A Tribute to Glenn Miller" arranged by Henry Gass; selections from the musical "South Pacific" by Richard Rodgers; and "When the Saints Go Marching In," Arranged by Harold Walters.

"Pop! Goes the Weasel" by Lucien Cailliet will also be featured for the audience's listening pleasure, along with the "1812 Overture" by Peter I. Tchaikowsky and "The Stars and Stripes Forever" by John Philip Sousa.

Actual cannons will be fired during the playing of the "1812 Overture."

Faith School's principal tries out as tank driver

Specialist Five Silas Ford and Specialist Four Raymond Roland of Co. A, 2nd Bn., 69th Artillery do not usually give tank driving lessons to civilians, but they made an exception for Dr. Jerry Cox.

On a recent visit to the tank battalion, part of the 197th Infantry Brigade, Dr. Cox glanced at a number of armored vehicles and casually asked, as he saw the imposing hulk of an M-60 main battle tank, "How long does it take to learn how to drive one of those?"

Within a half hour Dr. Cox, Fort Benning's Faith Junior High School, principal, had answered his own question as he stepped out of the driver's compartment of the monstrous, 50-ton tank after completing a two-mile tank driving course.

His instructors, Ford and Roland, said they were not surprised at the principal's quick learning. Although his instruction was very basic, Ford remarked, "He wouldn't make a bad tanker."

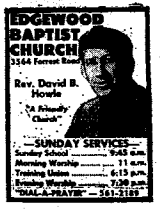
ACS holiday meal

Army Community Services is sponsoring a Thanksgiving Day meal for unaccompanied military dependents, widows and retirees, Nov. 22 from 1 - 2:30 p.m. in the Follow Me Dining Facility (Henry Hall.)

Reservations can be made in the Welcome Center, Bldg. 83.

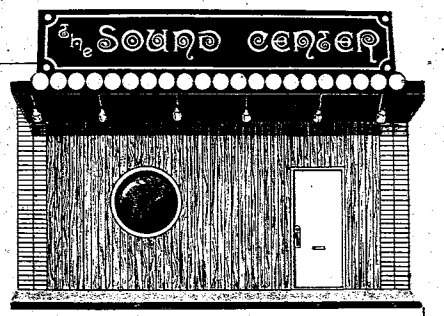
Price for adults is $1.65 and 85¢ for children under 12 years of age. No money or reservations will be accepted later than Nov. 14.

For more information call Lt. Marsh at 545-1233-1633.



Runners needed for relay

The National League of Families will sponsor a "Run For Freedom" Nov. 17 to honor the memory of persons missing in action during the Vietnam Conflict.



Volunteer runners will begin the run from the Columbus Government Center at noon. Relays of runners will then proceed to the State Capitol Building in Atlanta.

Volunteers are needed to complete the run. For additional information call Mrs. Eugene Lednicky, 687-7856 or Captain Jon Dolan, 545-4050.

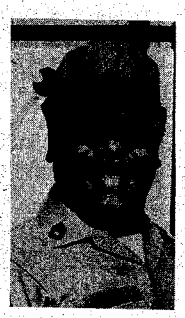
BAYONET OPINION PAGE

Staff Sergeant
James Jackson
11th Co. TSB

It has increased my overall knowledge of my job as mortar instructor. The material is eminently factual and realistic. The material on mortar shows how to use your minimum strength effectively.

Staff Sergeant
Bobby Williams
533d Transportation Co.

I've never used it fully. With my work, their isn't any contact with the Infantry School material.



Sergeant First Class
Bobby Meadows
2d Ranger Co.

The correspondence material was a lot of help to me in the Infantry course for first sergeants.

In what way has the Infantry School training material helped you?

Sergeant First Class
Richard Drane
533d Transportation Co.

I've been in the Army 13 years and I've never seen any material the Infantry School has put out.

Captain James Koch
12th Co. TSB

It has developed my professionalism and confidence. The material that has been published is excellent. I feel the manuals and aids are very realistic.

Cold season is here again

The hot, muggy Georgia summer has finally come to an end and with it goes the sunburn and the mosquito bites. Following closely though is "the URI season." The "Upper Respiratory Infection" season appears every fall and every winter.

The principal action the common cold, is an infection of the upper part of the respitory tract to include the nasal passage, the throat, and the sinuses. Typically, a URI lasts about seven days and is characterized by a stuffy nose, watery eyes and sore throat. It is a viral infection as opposed to a bacterial infection and that is why antibiotics are of no value.

Modern medicine is derided for not having perfected an immunization against, or a rapid cure for, the common cold. However, following some simple guidelines and the proper medication can provide symptomatic relief until the body's own defense mechanisms can actuate the cure.

The guidelines are:

- avoid excessive cold temperature and excessive fatigue
- eat a well-balanced diet
- drink a large glass of a non-alcoholic liquid every hour
- stop smoking.

This advise will shorten the life of a cold, but it must be followed; simply reading about the guidelines is of no merit at all.

A reasonable reserve of aspirin, throat lozenges and cold tablets should see you through any uncomplicated URI. All of these medications are available on a non-prescription basis at the Martin Army Hospital Pharmacy, and the Outpatient Clinic Pharmacy, or the Troop Medical Clinics.

You do not have to have been seen by a physician, a nurse clinician, or a physician's assistant in order to get them.

URI is usually a simple disease process and patients are encouraged to manage it at home. However, complications or secondary disease processes can develop. If any of these occur — temperature over 101 degrees, increase in throat pain, white or yellow spots on tonsils or throat, shaking chills, chest pain, shortness of breath, earache, skin rash, pain in teeth or sinuses, cough productive of yellow, green or grey sputum — you should be seen and treated by a nurse clinician or by a physician. Assuming there are no complications, the "Patient Medical Advisor" is the best information resource. It is a 30-page booklet covering a variety of minor medical conditions and their home treatment. This pamphlet is available in the Outpatient Clinic or at the information desk of Martin Army Hospital.

COMMAND INFORMATION

MOS Learning Center

the key to 150 points of opportunity

by Edith Martin

"I've got an MOS test coming up. I need to study but there's nowhere to go." Sound familiar?

The MOS library and learning center which opens here soon has 11,000 publications for the 334 MOSs stationed at Fort Benning.

Mrs. Susan Lehner, an MOS counselor, directs the center. "When a soldier comes in, I explain the study guide for his MOS and locate all the publications he needs. For group study, I can give lectures."

11B is largest MOS

"There are over 3,000 men in 11B MOS series," Mrs. Lehner says. "The center has five copies of all publications necessary for the 11B test. All levels of study are indexed and available. In addition, we have the consoldiated study set of all the references."

Similar materials are in stock or on order for all MOSs. Every three months, the stock is updated to keep only the most current material on hand.

Facilities available

The MOS center, in Bldg. 1369, is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. Mrs. Lehner hopes to have evening and weekend hours later.

"Right now, we have 25 individual study carrels and a room for group study. Unfortunately, we must keep all the materials in the building because of the large number of people in each MOS," she explained.

"In the future, we will have audio-visual materials to help in studying," she continued.

The center also has a rack of current publications such as "Soldiers", "Army Logistican, and others Pamphlets on the enlisted evaluation system and the MOS testing program are available for soldier pick-up.

Soldier comments

Although the center opens officially next week, over 200 soldiers used the center while it was being set up.

Specialist Four Heyward Jackson, an 05B20, says "I've got an MOS test coming up. The center had everything I needed. In fact, they had several things that would be on the test that I'd not had in previous training."

Initial MOS tests are now given on the second and fourth Friday of every month for all people completing 16 months of active federal service.

Each test has several major areas. The individual must score above the minimum for each area or he has flunked the entire test.

Soldiers may use the center to improve scores in their current MOSs or prepare for changing MOS.

Specialist Four Richard Evans took his MOS test last Friday. He says "I brushed up on some material at the center. The study was helpful. They had all the basic material."

Sergeant First Class J. F. Jackson is admin NCO for the center. "I think it's great," he says. "I was stationed at Benning for 30 months before and never could get all the publications. Now, every man can get everything he needs."

197th has special inspections

Maintenance experts teams in seven special maintenance areas last week began the first in a series of revised inspections in the 197th Infantry Brigade.

Each team is headed by at least one non-commissioned officer who is qualified by technical training in the maintenance area being examined.

These specialists are members of the Brigade Maintenance Office (BMO). Captain Allen Baldwin is in charge of the unit and has supervised the fundamental changes in types and procedures of inspections.

"When the (197th Brigade's) mission was changed," said Baldwin, "we gained more equipment of all kinds, especially vehicles and were faced with the task of keeping this additional equipment in a high state of readiness."

To evaluate the readiness of such equipment as radios, small arms, tanks, jeeps, personnel carriers and road graders, the BMO specialists conduct roadside spot inspections, driver evaluations, maintenance management inspections, equipment evaluations and assistance inspections.

These inspections also evaluate the supply procedures of a unit. Under the new proceedure units are inspected more frequently.

"But all of our inspections are constructive in nature," Baldwin emphasized, "and designed to let commanders know which area of maintenance need quick and effective attention."

Baldwin does not believe that the revised type of inspection burdens commanders. "Under the former system," he noted, "commanders would not be able to gain a true indication of their maintenance readiness in terms of the new mission."

WHO WHAT WHERE

Cottonbalers attend Football Game

It was "Auburn, here we come," as a group of officers and ladies of the 3rd Bn. 7th Inf. met for a pre-game brunch at the Fort Benning Officers' Club on Oct. 27. After a hearty meal the spirited fans (thermos in hand) boarded a bus and headed for the Auburn-Houston Football Game at Auburn University in Alabama. Spirits were in high gear as evidenced by the conintual joking and heckling during the bus trip to and from Auburn. At the game the "Cottonbalers" rooted with enthusiasm for their favorite team (the Houston fans in the group drawing some menacing glares from the surrounding Auburn fans) and consumed more than their share of hot dogs and soft drinks as they watched Auburn defeat Houston 7-0. It was a tired but happy group that returned in the early evening to Fort Benning, having enjoyed a typical "Cottonbaler" outing — a day filled with fun for all!

DDTD Party

A Halloween theme was the setting of a dlightful evening for the officers and ladies of DDTD.

A cocktail-social hour preceded a buffet style dinner. Highlighting the evening was entertainment provided by the Infantry Chorus who sang a medley of both military and contemporary numbers.

In conclusion, the Director of DDTD, Col. James Armstrong welcomed into the group: Lt. Col. & Mrs. Raymond Funderburk, Lt. Col. & Mrs. Warren Jones, Lt. Col. & Mrs. John Lorms, Maj. & Mrs. Michael McCormick, Maj. Thomas Ray, Capt. & Mrs. Daniel Shamanski, and Capt. & Mrs. Jared Ogden.

Weapons Dept. Trip

The ladies of the Weapons Dept. took advantage of the lovely fall weather by taking a trip to Callaway Gardens. The day started with coffee and doughnuts served by Mrs. Harold R. Johnson Jr., and ladies of the Mortar Committee, who hosted the trip. This was followed by a drive down "Five-Mile Drive" to the Greenhouse, where the ladies were given a guided tour. Inside and outside the greenhouse, beautiful chrysanthemums and other fall flowers were blooming. In addition to the pleasure of seeing the beautiful plants, much information was gained about the planting and care of them.

After the tour the ladies met in a wooded area for a picnic-lunch, and then stopped for a visit at the Country Store on the way home.

Monthly Coffees

TSB

The officers' wives of the 1st Battalion 29th Infantry held a coffee on Oct. 18. Hostesses were Mrs. William Higgins and Mrs. Phillip Underwood.

Plans were discussed to attend a tour of Raymond Rowe's Furniture Store in Nov.

Mrs. Robert Brumback and Mrs. Joseph Smith will be hostesses for the groups next coffee in Nov.

The ladies of the 1st Battalion met at the Kessler Drive home of Mrs. Alan Love, Oct. 10, for coffee and decoration plans for the TSB Fall Formal.

Mrs. John Moske was welcomed to the group. Mises Jennifer Love and Alicia Liza Jakubowski were guests.

43rd. Eng. Bn.

The ladies of the 43rd Engineer Battalion (Construction) met for their monthly coffee at the home of Mrs. Michael Taylor, Merrill Lane. Co-hostesses were Mrs. Robert Royer and Mrs. Wayne Albert. A short business meeting was conducted by Mrs. Howard Guba. A silver tray was presented to Mrs. Douglas Lewark on behalf of the Engineer Officers' Wives' Club as Capt. and Mrs. Lewark will soon be departing Fort Benning.

The ladies received instructions from Mrs. Lewark on how to prepare a Korean dish, then all sampled the dish. The ladies agreed to bake cookies which would be given to a local nursing home prior to Thanksgiving.

Contemporary Subjects Committee

The ladies of the Contemporary Subjects Committee held their monthly coffee on Oct. 16, at the home of Mrs. James S. Tarpley. Some business subjects were discussed including a cookie bake to be held on Nov. 20 for patients at Martin Army Hospital.

IOAC

Mrs. Donald C. Bowman, wife of the commander, 1st Battalion, The School Brigade, hosted a coffee on Oct. 24 for the wives of the class staff, IOAC 3-74. Mrs. Gordon E. Marlor and Mrs. Laurence K. Collings helped to welcome the wives and to provide them with information on their activities for the remainder of the nine-month course. Mrs. Max H. Kennedy is the class commander's wife.

HAWAIIAN SAUSAGE CASSEROLE

A speedy autumn casserole is really welcome by busy Mothers or working wives. Serve the Hawaiian Sausage Casserole with a tossed salad and finish the meal with a sour cream pound cake recipe in the Golden Heritage Cookbook.

1 20-ounce can pineapple chunks in pineapple juice
1 18-ounce can sweet potatoes, sliced 1 inch thick
1 12-ounce package smoked link sausages, slashed at 1-inch intervals
3 tablespoons brown sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon butter or margarine

Drain pineapple, reserving juice. Add water to juice if necessary to equal 1¼ cups. Arrange pineapple chunks, sweet potatoes, and sausages in 10x6x1¾ inch baking dish. In small saucepan, combine brown sugar, cornstarch, and salt. Gradually blend in reserved pineapple juice mixture. Cook and stir till thickened and bubbly; cook and stir 1 minute more. Remove from heat; stir in butter or margarine. Pour over sausage mixture in casserole. Cover and bake in 350 oven for 35 to 40 minutes or till heated through. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Bring out the sweetness of corn by adding a tablespoon of corn syrup to the water in which you cook the corn.

Reduce calories of deep-fried foods by reheating the foods on brown paper in a moderate oven. All the excess fat will drain off and the foods will be crisper & crunchier, too.

WHAT IS AN ALLIED STUDENT?

Approximately 130 officers from 33 countries of Europe, Asia, Africa, Central and South America presently attend the Infantry Officers Advanced Courses (IOAC) at Fort Benning. The respective foreign services finance the officers' tours here, much the same way out government pays for overseas assignments of our servicemen. However the U.S. Government has funds set up to aid the students' education here. A prerequisite to their attending the IOAC is a working knowledge of the English language.

In IOAC class 1-74 alone, there are eight Allied Officers from Napal, Zaire (Belgian Congo), Laos and Iran.

Through the Allied Student Training Division (ASTD) these newcomers to Fort Benning and America receive sponsors, an American Army officer and a civilian family.

The military sponsor makes sure that the student keeps to his busy schedule, introduces him to classmates and helps him with classwork.

Both the military and civilian sponsors volunteer their time to give the Allied Student a family with which he can identify. The student is included in family outings such as sporting events, picnics, tours, concerts and movies, but is happiest learning the everyday ways of American life. He is interested in our customs, backgrounds, businesses and industries.

At this time only seventeen foreign officers are accompanied by their families. The students usually have to pay all expenses to bring their families to the United States.

The Allied Students have activities which are prepared solely for them. Personnel at Fort Benning go all out to help the student learn more about the United States from personal experiences. Beside the strictly social functions for students and sponsors, local and national sites are visited. Many tours and outings are sponsored by the ASTD or local organizations such as the Columbus Kiwanis Club. The families may accompany the students at their own expense.

Tours include Columbus College, Westville, Callaway Gardens, Alabama nternational Speedway, industrial areas, Cape Kennedy & Disney World. A six day tour of Washington, D.C., is paid for with funds out of Washington and is for students only.

The ASTD distributes The Allied Interpreter to students, ex-students (up to one year), sponsors and embassies. The Interpreter is an Allied newspaper printed monthly on Fort Benning "to present a consolidated report of interesting and informative events to our Allied personnel" It contains upcoming events, interviews, recipes, articles by Allied Students about their homelands and other features of interest to the student.

Learn more about the Allied Students each Wednesday morning when the Rozelle Show (Channel 9, 8-9 a.m.) presents interviews with the students.

For information about sponsoring an Allied Student during his stay at Fort Benning or just for an outing or a holiday dinner, call Mrs. Margaret Sandy at ASTD, 545-4212 or 545-3894.

Whatja wanta Know? ask the BAYONET

CALL 545-4792

DEAR BAYONET

Q. While on leave in New York, I bought a car and had it registered there. When I returned from leave I was informed that I must re-register my car since New York is not my home state nor my duty state. Why must I go through another hassle.

A. The Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act provides that if a soldier has registered or licensed, in his name alone, his automobile in his homestate, he cannot be required to registered it in his duty state. However, if a soldier does not have his car registered in his home state, he must register it in his duty state. Registration in some other state will not protect him.

DEAR BOYONET

Q. Under what conditions may a commander have his men's MOS reclassified? A friend of mine just had his MOS reclassified by his commander and I asked why and he told me that he did not know; he thinks the commander has it in for him.

A. The unit commander may recommend reclassification of any awarded MOS when the individual concerned demonstrates inefficient performance of duty in the technical, supervisory, or other requirements of the MOS, or attains an MOS test score of less than 70. Reclassification also is in order when an individual concerned commits an act of misconduct which unfavorably affects the eligibility of that indivdual to perform his duty in his present MOS, for example when a Medic becomes an addict or alcoholic, or Finance Clerk commits larceny.

DEAR BAYONET

Q. I just received my latest EER and it was unfavorable. I don't think I deserve such a low rating. I was told that I could submit a Rebuttal Statement to counter the low EER. What is the purpose of a Rebuttal Statement?

A. These statements are not formal appeals; the primary purpose of a Rebuttal Statement or any other accompanying documentation is to add information to the EER for the consideration of those who review it in the course of personnel actions. They will, along with any accompanying documentation, become a part of the EER and will be filed in the individual's Official Military Personnel File.

DEAR BAYONET

Q. I just took a MOS test a year ago and now I am scheduled for another. What do they do with the MOS test Scores?

A. MOS evaluation scores of initial, regular and reenlistment testing will be used for all pertinent personnel actions. These include promotions, reenlistment, proficiency pay, qualitative management, reclassification, and school selection.

DEAR BAYONET

Q. I have been in the service for 18 months and am still an E-3. One of my friends has been in service one month more and he has been promoted to E-4. I heard that they revised the promotion system for E-4's. Is this correct?

A. Yes, soldiers in the primary zones must have at least 21 months time in service. Commanders are authorized to promote to E-4 individuals with at least 12 months but less than 21 months, service as long as those promotions will not go over the 35 per cent of the command's assigned E-4 strength with less than 21 months service. In the past, promotions for E-3 personnel with between 12 and 21 months time in service were based upon the number of promotions made to E-4 for personnel in the primary zone. The new E-4 promotion policy limits the secondary zone promotion to 35 per cent of a command's assigned strength.

Rashomon

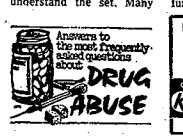
two important parts of a play

By Jack Sean

The set and its construction for the Dramatizer's forthcoming play, "Rashomon," have required the talents of two men—Specialist Five E. Linton Gross III and Specialist Four Samuel I. Moorhead.

Gross, who designed the set, is no novice in designing for the playhouse productions. Audiences will remember his unique design in the play group's last production "The Mouse That Roared." Gross reported that "after numerous readings of the script, I started researching Japanese architecture at the libraries. The play takes place about 1,000 years ago and thus presented a challenge in searching out authentic drawings of that era. The stage is divided into three acting areas—the police court, the forest, and the Rashomon gate itself. The set focuses upon a rock and a tree stump".

The first and major undertaking was the construction of a model set built to scale. The finished product was utilized as a visual representation of the entire set. "The advantage of a model," explained Gross, "is that anyone can easily understand the set. Many people have difficulty in mentally picturing a drawing of a blue print of a set design."



Moorhead said "my primary job is to take th designer's paper creation, plus his model, and put them into the real thing. When the lights come up on opening night, it will be the set which will fix the audience's mood." The rock probably caused the most trouble.

"Can you imagine," asked Moorhead, "a rock constructed of wood; chicken wire, and pounds of paper mache?"

Moorhead, whose set constructing and designing skills go back to his high school days, says "it is not unusual for me to build someone else's sets. However, I have to make sure to coordinate with both director and designer to insure satisfaction." The only requirements one needs to learn about set construction is interest.

"We're more than glad to assist anyone in gaining the experience both on and off stage," offered Moorhead.

"Rashomon" will be presented free on Nov. 15, 16, 17, 23 and 24 at 8 p.m. at the Playhouse, located behind the Infantry Museum. Call 545-5057 for tickets and further information.

Sgt. James E. Myers explains the operation of a .50 caliber machine gun on an M-114 Armored Personnel Carrier to one of the wives of a Patriot soldier during the annual 1st Battalion (Mech), 58th Infantry's wives tour held recently.

Patriots wives tour husband's home

More than 50 wives of soldiers in the 1st Bn. (Mech), 58th Inf. (Patriots), 197th Inf. Bde. recently took an annual tour of the battalion to see their husbands' home away from home.

The ladies arrived at the Patriots Wives' Club where they were greeted by Lt. Col. Robert Orkand, battalion commander. After a short briefing on the unit's mission the wives divided into groups and were given guided tours of the battalion area.

The tours started with a visit to the barracks and orderly rooms. Many soldiers were commended on the decor of their rooms.

The ladies were then taken to the dining facilities where refreshments were served.

The next stop was in the motor pool, where the women received instruction and demonstrations on how to operate the various vehicles in the unit, including armored personnel carriers. One wife was so impressed with this tracked vehicle that she asked to operate the 50-caliber machine gun.

While the wives were touring the battalion area, their children were cared for by two Patriots in the battalion's nursery.

WO's social

The Fort Benning's Warrant Officers' chapter held its second social at the Officer's Club Oct. 26. More than 50 warrant officers and their wives attended, representing all major units at Fort Benning.

One of the special guests was Warrant Officer Jo Ann Nick, the only woman Warrant Officer on active duty at Fort Benning.

Chief Warrant Officer "Flash" Gordon, chapter president, presented news from the national Warrant Officers' Association. He said there are more than 3,000 active members and 29 chartered chapters in the association. He emphasized that all eligible warrant officers should join the local chapter.

American Graffiti

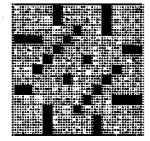
The action takes place one night in a northern California town in 1962, as four buddies cope with ex-girlfriends, pickups, baby sisters, the police, drag racers, and their own futures, meanwhile participating in more dramatic incidents than most kids experienced in a week. From beginning to end, the soundtrack rocks with songs of the period - 42 in all, beginning with the classic "Rock Around the Clock" by Bill Haley and His Comets. The overall film is a joy for any age bracket but may prove to be a little mature for the younger set.

The Man called Noon

Now at last a classic film has been made to match the excitement of author Louis L'Amour's greatest western novel . . . "THE MAN CALLED NOON." Start with violent gunplay, desperate chases, beautiful but deadly women, and a lightning fast gunfighter who really enjoys his work. Acclaimed director Peter Collinson molds these dynamite action ingredients into a story of greed and revenge set against jagged mountains, ominous ghost towns, and outlaw fortresses. Every scene explodes with unexpected fury as a seasoned professional cast is propelled toward a fiery bullet-ridden climax. Violence in this explosive western may prove offensive and is not suitable for preteenagers.

Cold Turkey

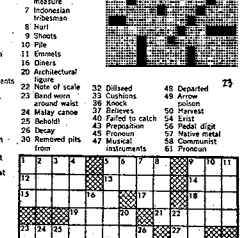
Bob Newhart, a Madison Avenue public relations expert, talks the owner of the Valiant Tobacco Company, into sponsoring a contest giving $25,000 to any town in the United States whose entire citizenry will give up smoking for 30 days. The Reverend Dick Van Dyke, an ambitious minister, energizes the town of Eagle Rock into taking up the challenge. Pippa Scott, the Reverend's brow-beaten wife, gladly gives up smoking when she discovers that more frequent marital set is a good substitute. Kooks of all types hit the town to take advantage of the carnival atmosphere resulting from the no-smoking pledge, which has become national news. The citizens of Eagle Rock keep their pledge with surprising results despite near fatal lapses by heavy smokers, and under cover tobacco agents trying to sabatage the campaign. Sexual overtones and language may prove offensive.



Shaft in Africa

Harlem detective Richard Roundtree is hired by African tribal leader Cy Grant to investigate a modern slavery racket. Grant's son has been killed by agents of Frank Finlay, Parisian based head of the ring. After undergoing a rugged endurance test and intensive teaching by Grant's daughter Vonetta McGee, Roundtree heads for Addis Ababa to take up his new role as tribesman. Several attempts are made on his life, but Roundtree survives all encounters and manages a romantic interlude with McGee. Roundtree joins a group of Ethiopians headed for Paris by boat, where he traces Finlay to his hideout for a final showdown. This SHAFT sequal contains material that may prove offensive.

The Legend of Boggy Creek



Over the past decade in Fouke, Ark., a small farming community near Texarkana, Ark., a huge hairy monster has been seen by people and has frightened many. Eyewitnesses have described this monster as seven feet tall, weighing 250 pounds, and able to walk upright and run unbelieveably fast. The creature emits a terrifying scream and its eyes reportedly shine bright red. The numerous attempts to track down the monster have failed. Fearless hunting hounds refuse to track it. THE LEGEND OF BOGGY CREEK, a story that will intrigue both the young and the old, is a visually stunning film that will excite and entertain; however, may prove too scary for young set.

Up to now, Uncle Sam may have made the moves, but where will you live when you retire... and what are you doing about it?

It's strange, but many career military personnel delay thinking about retirement. When they do get around to it, their choices are often limited . . . by many things, including the rising cost of property in desirable areas.

Today, The Deltona Corporation, headed by the famed Mackie Brothers, are building ideal communities in Florida for future retirement . . . with all of the things you'd expect in a hometown . . . and with military hospital, commissary and exchange facilities accessible at a nearby military installation.

The time to make sure you'll have a Florida lifestyle in your future is now. Why? Because you can select the area with greater freedom, you'll deal confidently with a reputable community builder, and you can select a convenient payment plan which will make sure your homesite's paid for and ready when you are. You'll be surprised how little it takes to start. And remember, if tomorrow in Florida is like yesterday, those real estate prices continue to rise. Call, write or drop by today. If you don't plan a sunny future for yourself, who will?

The World is your classroom

Art: Bill Dolan

Stories: Bill Kloeb

An Infantry operations sergeant on attache duty in South America has to maintain proficiency in his MOS.

An operations officer in an infantry unit in Korea must set up company tactical exercises for his unit.

An advisor to the Turkish Army must organize a basic combat program for the unit he advises.

An ROTC cadet in Kansas wants information to help him decide what branch of service to choose.

A specialist five at Fort Benning wants to advance his professionalism through home study.

Another soldier at Benning wants to prepare for his MOS proficiency test.

What do all of these people have in common? DAWTS.

The Department of Army-wide Training Support (DAWTS) of the U.S. Army Infantry School helps people with these and many other similar type problems every day.

Last year this department shipped more than 600 tons of Infantry-oriented instructional material to units and individuals in all parts of the world. The department also operates Customer Service in Building 1690, Main Post. This service provides personnel at Fort Benning the opportunity to obtain free Infantry School instructional materials by visiting the facility and asking for waht they need.

Correspondence Course Program

DAWTS also manages the Infantry School Correspondence Course Program.

This program includes 11 separate courses of instruction from Basic Noncommissioned Officer courses to the Infantry Officer's Advanced Course. Included in these courses are more than 200 separate subcourses, each applicable to an Infantry Military Occupational Specialty (MOS).

Enlisted men in grades E-4 through E-6 can earn 125 promotion points for successfully completing subcourses at the rate of one-half point for each credit hour completed. Each time a subcourse is completed, a certificate of completion is sent to the student through his commander. Copies are also sent to Department of the Army (DA) for inclusion in the student's official military personnel folder.

When all subcourses in a course are completed, a diploma is sent through command channels so that permanent entries may be made in qualification records. Copies of all such notices are sent to DA.

According to Colonel William R. Guthrie, the DAWTS director, the courses are available anytime, any place in the world. All required material is provided free of charge. The student studies what he wants, when he wants, where he wants. When he moves, he takes his classroom with him. The student has the option of enrolling for an entire course or for one or more selected subcourses. Thus, each student can establish his own curriculum.

More than 26,000 students located in all parts of the world are currently participating in the program. Complete information on the program is outlined in the 1973-74 USAIS Correspondence Course Catalog. The catalog is mailed to every Infantry unit in the Army down to company level. Catalogs can also be obtained from the correspondence course Committee of DAWTS, located in Bldg. 67, behind the Main Post Exchange. Phone numbers are 545-7011-5677.

Reserve Components Support

DAWTS also provides training support for the Reserve Components of the Army. The Reserve Components Committee (RCC) provides training literature for two U.S. Army Reserve Schools programs involving 12,000 students. The National Guard Officer Candidate programs receive training programs and all supporting training literature from the Reserve Components Committee.

A special catalog, listing available staff training instructional material is distributed to all Reserve Component units.

The effectiveness of the program is constantly evaluated. Liaison groups and mobile training teams visit Reserve Components units and key personnel from the units come to the Infantry School for training courses and and briefings concerning the program.

ROTC Training Support

DAWTS provides support to the 150,000 cadets in 1,000 Army ROTC units in colleges and high schools through its ROTC Affairs Committee. The ROTC Affairs Committee prepares Infantry motivational and instructional material to assist ROTC cadets in making their branch selections. Direct contact is maintained with each Professor of Military Science. The committee coordinates with ROTC units and the Ranger Department concerning the ROTC Ranger Summer camp, coordinates visits of Professors of Military Science to the Ranger Camp, and monitors the progress of the program.

Liaison visits to Senior ROTC units are made frequently to insure that Professors of Military Science and cadre personnel are receiving the support available to them. DAWTS representatives also participate in regional conferences and maintain close contact with the four ROTC Regional Headquarters.

"Do-it-yourself"

instructions made easy so they can be understood

Most "do-it-yourself" kits are frustrating. They make a man wish he had never seen the mixed-up jumble of junk that emerges after many hours of toil.

The U.S. Army Infantry School's Department of Army-Wide Training Support expends a lot of effort to make sure its customers don't feel this way when they get their training material.

Soldiers who have completed courses say these efforts have produced a good product. Staff Sergeant Carl L. Doyle, 13th Public Information Detachment has completed several courses. He said, "The course packets are complete and self-explanatory. The include everything a student needs. All you have to do is follow the instructions". Other soldiers voiced essentially the same opinion when asked what they thought of the instructional material.

Much of the DAWTS training literature is prepared by the department, and all of it is "tailor made" for the unit or individual who is going to use it. Correspondence Courses, Programs of Instruction for the Army Reserve, National Guard and ROTC instructional material are all prepared by the Instructional Material Preparation Committee of the department.

The writers do not originate tactics or doctrine. They take a resident problem taught in the Infantry School, and adapt it to the type of nonresident student who will use it. The final product is such that individuals in the field, whether in Reserve Components or the active army, can receive instruction equivalent to training at the Infantry School.

When a writer receives an assignment, first he contacts the resident department responsible for presenting the particular problem. Next, he visits the classroom, training areas' or ranges where the resident problem is actually being presented. He pays particular attention to student questions and to areas that students have trouble understanding. The writer then builds these items into a manuscript that students and instructors away from Fort Benning may have the advantage of the USAIS instructor's experience.

The next step for the writer is to prepare a draft of the problem, then go over it with the principal resident instructor. This insures that he adheres to proper terminology, tactics, and doctrine.

The final product is typed by one of the committee's skilled typists and then goes through an internal review within the committee. The major portion of this review (including checking the material for completeness, adequacy, and accuracy of references, punctuation, grammar, format, and validity) is performed by the editors.

These civilian editors have had extensive training and experience in editing and contribute a valuable service to the overall mission.

The final steps in the preparation of a problem are final review and concurrence by the responsible resident insturctional department and the DAWTS Education Advisor. The program is then ready to "go to press" at the Army Field Printing Plant.

Regardless of the soldier's location, the Department of Army-Training Support provides him with the very latest Infantry School doctrine, tactics, and techniques.

Non-Resident Instruction

Learning more about your military occupation

The decision to take courses through non-resident instruction was natural one for First Lieutenant Nicholas C. Utter after he completed two resident Air Defense Artillery courses at Ft. Bliss, Tex. two months ago.

"I was satisfied with what I learned in the Redeye Gunner's Course and the Chapparal/Vulcan Officer's Qualification course.

I'll be more effective as a Redeye Section leader and air defense advisor."

Utter is a Redeye section leader in the Combat Support Company, 3rd Battalion, 7th Infantry (Cottonbalers), 197th Infantry Brigade. He gained the assignment, which was created when the 197th Brigade was reorganized as a Strategic Forces (STRAF) unit in March, by transferring from Infantry to Air Defense Artillery.

The courses he took in residence at Fort Bliss, home of the U.S. Army Air Defense Artillery School, provided Utter with the qualification necessary to lead a Redeye section.

"I elected to study the Redeye Missile System Controller's Course in a non-resident status," said Utter. "It is a technical course which provides detailed instruction in air defense tactics for the combat employment of the Redeye missile."

Although he has just begun this latest course of study, Utter believes that it will be significant to him. "The complete package of manuals and self-examinations can be as valuable as classroom study," he said.

The Air Defense Artillery School provides non-resident students, like Utter, with comprehensive tests to determine qualification in the various specialties offered under the program.

"This probably won't be the last non-resident course I take," he noted, "because air defense is a highly technical field and is constantly under revision. "The introduction of new air defense weapons also compels the conscientious Air Defense Artillery officer to broaden his expertise and keep pace with advancements in his specialty."

Utter's initial schooling qualifies him for duty as a Chapparal/Vulcan platoon leader as an alternative to his present assignment. "To prepare for a possible assignment in this area, I may take further related instruction through the non-resident program."

Owing to the technical nature of most assignments in his Redeye section, a number of soldiers assigned to Utter are completing appropriate courses at Fort Bliss. "When they return," he mused, "I think I'll put in a pitch to them for non-resident instruction."

197th holds first Formal Dining-In

The veteran officer does not have to be 'sold' on the importance of tradition and customs of the U.S. Army, but the young officer must be made aware of them. One such tradition and custom was brought to the forefront for the young officers of the 197th Inf. Bde. during its first Formal Dining-In on Nov. 1, at the Officers Club.

Major General Jeffrey G. Smith, deputy chief of staff for operations, U.S. Army Forces Command, Colonel K. B. Barlow Jr., assistant commander, Fort Benning and Charles Black, associate editor of the Columbus Enquirer were honored guests for the evening.

Second Lieutenant Marvin E. Bridges, 2nd Bn., 10th Field Arty., proposed the first toast after the colors were presented by a color guard from Co. C, 3rd Bn., 7th Inf. (Cottonbalers) and Command Sergeant Major Harvey Parrish, the brigade sergeant major. This started the formal activities of the evening where dress blues and bow ties were the attire for the occasion.

Bridges and many other junior officers of the Brigade had not attended a Formal Dining-In prior to this one. "This is really impressive, the formality and informality. The comradeship and esprit-de-corps being shown here is real heart warming. It gives one a true sense of belonging to the bridage."

Bridges and other officers were surprised at the musical ability of Lieutenant Colonel Curtis F. Hoglan, 2nd Bn., 10th Field Arty. commander, who played the national anthem on trumpet.

Comments of other junior officers who were attending their first Dining-In were just as complimentary as that of Bridges. The mood of all in attendance was, "When is the next one to be held? I'll be back."

Every year has a 600 ton problem

It's difficult to imagine 600 tons of training material. The problem of getting the right material, in the right amounts, to the right people boggles the mind, but a small group in the Department of Army-Wide Training Support accomplished this mission each year.

Captain William Logan, chief of the Mail Order Program, said, "We provide military units and individuals with Infantry School instructional material not available through any other source."

The instructional Material Support Division, the organization responsible for completing this task, collates, catalogues, stores, packages and ships Infantry instructional material to thousands of individuals located in all parts located in all parts of the world.

One of the most important functions of this division is the operation of Individual Mail Branch. The Mail Branch stocks approximately 475 different Infantry School publications. It assembles, packages, and ships the material to the requester.

During 1972, the branch handled 15,230 requests for material, and the figure is expected to increase by at least 1,000 requests for this year.

One of the more popular functions of the division is the maintenance of a Customer Service Facility, located in building 1690. Customer Service offers personnel at Fort Benning an opportunity to obtain free Infantry School instructional materials by simply picking up what they need.

This division is responsible for collation, bulk shipments, and Army Correspondence Course shipments. At present the infantry School is the only service school employing a fully automated collating-packaging system. This division also handles bulk shipments of instructional material for use by U.S. army Reserve Schools and National Guard State Officer Candidate programs. It also stores and ships all Army correspondence courses prepared by the Department.

Three teams remain in contention for post football title

Three teams reamined in the U.S. Army Infantry Center flag football championships at press time Tuesday. The title contest of the double elimination affair was held Wednesday and Thursday night.

The 139th Military Police Co. was assured of at least second place by winning the winner's bracket with four straight wins.

The big win for the MPs to gain the championship finals was a 18-7 verdict over C Battery, 83rd Artillery. The loss dropped the artillerymen into the loser's bracket with the 298th Signal Co.

The 298th Signal Co. had qualified for the loser's bracket finals in a close contest with the 121st Aviation Co. on Monday night. The two clubs ended regular play in a 6-6 tie and the contest was settled on penetrations.

The Tuesday night battle between the Signalmen and the artillerymen determined who faced the MPs in the champimonship finals.

The MPs were heavy favorites to take the crown as they needed only one win on Wednesday night or Thursday night. The loser's bracket winners would have had to win on both nights to earn the title.

Despite a heavy rush put on by the 690th Medical Company, quarterback Ronald Tillery of co. C 83rd Artillery, 29th Infantry, succeeded in picking apart the Medical company's defense 12-0 in the opening game of the Fort Benning Post Flag Football Championship. (Photo by Rick Wasser)

PFC Predicto PICKS!

Predicto threw a monkey wrench into the gears of his foes and defeated Post Transportation. He missed one lone gear by the name of Staff Sergeant Rodriquez who escaped the damage and out picked the great Prognosticator.

Now, with blood in his eyes, Predicto vows to destroy this week's opponents, Directorate of Industrial Operations. There is only one thing that infuriates the Magician of the midfield more than being beat. That is wasting his time prognosticating against the opposite sex. D.I.O. puts two females on the firing line this week. How could three "libbers" have the audacity to say they are confident of outpicking the oracle. I will whack their picky fingers and make the name Predicto ring in their ears forever!!!!!! You too can attempt to outdo Predicto by dialing 545-4622/7841.

It's that time of year again—a brisky nip in the air, early sunsets, and a Pied Piper migration to local crappie waters. The crappie are really biting. "Speckled Perch" anglers can anticipate the best season this area has seen in years.

Even though crappie can be caught throughout the year, most catches occur during the colder months. A favorite method of filling a string with crappie is to fish at night. A burning lantern hung over the water will attact insects and small baitfish. The crappie then rush in to feed.

A modest investment in a cane pole, a few yards of line, small hooks, split-shot and bober is all you really need. Crappie aren't as wary as bass so there's no reason to make those 50-yard casts. In fact, a certain amount of noise can help, if done right. Churning your boat motor or slapping the surface with a pole may activate crappie into feeding.

Crappie are Frustrating

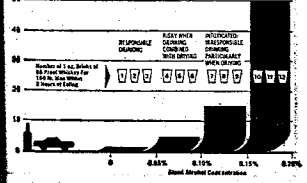
Traditionally, best baits are live minnows or small jigs and spinners. Crappie love submerged tree-tops, bushes, stumps, dock pilings, etc. Fish right in the structure or as close to it as possible. It all sounds so simple, but crappie can often frustrate even the most accomplished angler. Their feeding periods are probably the most distinct of any species. There will be times when you can actually see scores of crappie swimming around your bait, but they act like they have lockjaw.

Another important consideration is depth. Sometimes crappie will hit at two-foot depths, and at times you have to sink your bait into the 20-foot holes. Keep experimenting until you hit them. The way a crappie strikes also seems to vary with his mood. Sometimes crappie will grab your bait so forcefully, the bobber makes a popping sound as it dips under. At other times they'll just sort of sneak up and inhale your bait without moving the cork. Be alert. Watch that bobber with eagle eyes. Check out any unusual moves or twitches.

Boats, motors, and trailers may be rented for less than a couple of bucks at Recreation Services, Bldg. 1707 on Main Post. Boats with electric motors can be obtained from the Rod and Gun Club. Don't try to conquer the Chattahoochee River with only a paddle.

You Don't Need a Boat

The crappie are biting everywhere with good catches being reported around Bluff Creek. Anglers who prefer to fish without a boat should try the waters around the boat ramp at Uchee Creek. A lot of folks have pretty good luck at the boar ramp on the Chattahoochee behind the animal cemetery on 10th Division Road. Lake Oliver Marina, north of Columbus, has public fishing docks that produce bragging-size catches.



A lot of crappie are taken from the river just below the dam in downtown Columbus. Pond enthusiasts may try Bussey's Lake in Phenix City, Flat Rock Park, and of course Kings Pond at Fort Benning.

Crappie can be taken in large numbers, it doesn't take any special experience or equipment, and they are some of the finest tasting fish that swim Southern waters.

Remember it does get a little chilly out on the water at night. Dress warmly. Pay special attention to your feet; a metal boat floor can seem like ice. Use a small net to dip minnows out of your bait bucket; wet hands and night air don't mix. You may want to unplug your trailer lights prior to launching your boat; shorted out tail lights are no fun.

If you're one of those folks who hang up the rods for the winter, you're missing out on some real action. Give crappie fishing a try.

Warriors upset Packers

In a crucial Doughboy League contest the Warrior's Jimmy Jenik drilled a pass to Richard Hartless with only 26 seconds remaining to beat the league leading Packers 26-22. The win was a very important one for the Warriors as it kept their championship hopes alive.

The Warriors jumped to a 12-0 lead in the first quarter on a pair of scores by John Mitchell. In the second quarter Todd Thompson took the handoff and raced around left tackle for 45 yards and the Warriors third score. The points after touchdown by Greg Lang to put the Warriors out in front 20-0.

The Packers got on the scoreboard before halftime on 39 yard pass play from Tony West to Martinese Tarrance. Jeff Dean scored on the point after touchdown to close the gap to 20-8 at halftime.

In the second half the Packers came back on a pass from Tony West to Martinese Tarrance for the score. Dwight Burnett scored the PAT.

In the fourth period with only two minutes left on the clock, Dwight Burnette caught a pass from Tony West and raced 62 yards for the T.D., to put the Packers in the lead for the first time 22-20.

With only 25 seconds left the Warriors came right back with a scoring strike from Jimmy Jenik to Richard Hartless good for 39 yards and the winning T.D.

Pee Wee championship on the line Friday night

The Pee Wee League championship will be on the line at 7:30 p.m. Friday when the American Conference champion Razorbacks square off with the National Conference champion Raiders.

The Raiders had the toughest time making the playoffs, needing a 28-8 verdict against the Redskins last Saturday to beat out the Dolphis for the conference title by only one game.

The Razorbacks meanwhile marched through competition in the American League to finish with a perfect 7-0 season record and 4½-game edge over the second place Vikings.

In last Saturday's 22-0 verdict against the Dolphis, the Razorbacks were led by Julius Drew Jr., who scored on runs of 19 and 60 yards.

Bobby Mickle scored two touchdowns in the first half for the Raiders against the Redskins for a 14-8 lead at the intermission. Jon Erickson scored in the second half on a 45-yard run and Mickle returned a pass interception for the other touchdown.

The championship contest could turn into a running battle between Drew and Mickle. Mickle had a total of 174 yards rushing Saturday while Drew was leading his team with his effort.

In Biddy League competition, the Redskins edged the Falcons, 6-0, to regain the league lead. The win avenged the only loss for the Redskins in the first half. The winning touchdown came on a five-yard run by Jimmy Morgan as the whistle blew to end the game — the third straight shutout for the winners.

Sportsmen have big weekend

Fort Benning hunters harvested 73 deer during the first weekend of the 1973-74 Georgia deer season.

According to Roy Johnston of the Fish and Wildlife unit, located in Bldg. 5833, 46 deer were registered at the unit check point on Saturday and 27 on Sunday. The largest deer was registered at the check point by Staff Sergeant (Ret.) Robert Herrington of Columbus. His deer, field dressed, tipped the scales at 175 pounds.

Sergeant First Class Julian L. Smith, 11th Company, TSB, registered the deer with the most antler points in the Rod and Gun Club Big Deer Contest. His eight-point buck, taken in area "D", leads the contest in this category. Daniel Tharp of Columbus registered a 150-pound deer in the Big Deer Contest. His deer was heaviest registered over the weekend.

Fishermen also had a big weekend. Sergeant First Class (Ret.) Gabriel Ring registered a 12-pound catfish in the November Fishing Derby at the Rod and Gun Club. Chief Warrant Officer (Ret.) Brayton M. Davis had the largest bass. His 6-pound 14-ounce bass was taken from Kings Pond.

4th Bn. squeaks by C Battery

The 4th Battalion took advantage of penalties to earn a 2-0 victory over C Battery, 29th Infantry and win the School Brigade Flag Football Championship last week.

Neither team could effectively move the ball throughout the first half. Finally, with only four minutes left in the second quarter 4th Battalion's Willie Dudley shot through the left side of C Battery's offensive line to nail the quarterback in the end zone for the only score.

Late in the final period, aided by a 15-yard penalty on the 4th Battalion, C Battery drove to within five yards of the 4th Bn. goal. Again in a crucial situation, 4th Bn. sacked the C Battery quartergack before a penalty forced them further back.

The post playoffs were a different story. The 4th Battalion dropped its first two games and was eliminated. C Battery won three straight, and was a strong contender for the post title.

Basketball Clinic scheduled

Recreation Services will hold a basketball Coaches and Officials Clinic at Briant Wells Field House Nov. 9, 12, 13 and 16. Each session will be held from 7-9 p.m.

The clinics are open to all military personnel and free of charge. Individuals who will coach unit teams or desire to officiate in the major unit intramural leagues are cordially invited to attend.

Recreational service will require 48 officials for leagues scheduled during the coming season.

Sand Hill hosts golf tourney

A Thanksgiving Turkey Tournament will be held at the Sand Hill Golf Course on Nov. 17 and 18. The 36-hole, medal play tournament will be open to all male military personnel, active and retired.

After the completion of the first 18 holes of play, participants will be divided into flights according to score. Flight winners will be determined based on the low medal score for the 36 holes of play.

Tee off times for the tournament start at 8 a.m. each day. Tee times will be posted at the Golf Pro Shop no later than 5 p.m., Nov. 1 Players not present at scheduled tee time may forfeit their right to compete.

An entry fee of $3.00 will be charged. Fees will be used to defray cost of the awards. Entry fee must accompany entry form.

Entries must be submitted to the Sand Hill Golf Course Pro Shop not later than 5 p.m., Nov. 16.

Turkeys will be presented to the winner and runner-up of each flight. The player closest to pin on the second hole for first 18 holes of play, and closest to pin on the fourth hole for the second 18 holes of play.

Only one turkey will be awarded to a participant.

In the event a minimum of 30 players have not entered by deadline date, the tournament may be cancelled.

For additional information contact the Golf Pro Shop, Sand Hill Golf Course, telephone number 544-4131.

MARION OAKS
FLORIDA

Florida's Mackle brothers say:

"No matter what you like to do, you'll find the place to do it... near Marion Oaks."

Ever notice how so many Florida communities seem to be built around the idea that everyone likes to do exactly the same thing?

Not Marion Oaks. The Deltona Corporation's newest community now taking shape just 16 miles from Ocala.

The big idea behind Marion Oaks is variety. It's for all you people who enjoy the golf—fishing—tennis—swimming—riding—birdwatching—bicycling—gardening, even just plain loafing that this part of Florida offers.

Marion Oaks is in the heart of Central Florida's horse farms and orange groves. Rolling hills. Pine forests. Nine kinds of native oaks.

The fabulous Gulf of Mexico is just 30 miles away and bass-filled Withlacoochee River and crystal Lake Weir are within 18 miles.

A community recreation center has been completed. A regulation golf course and country club will be built by Deltona. Sites are set aside in the masterplan for shops, schools, houses of worship, park areas, and professional buildings.

And at Marion Oaks you won't be living in a cookie-cutter, mass-produced environment, either. You have your choice of lifestyles — a standard homesite, a town estate of a half-acre, or an acre country estate. And there are six easy payment plans — to make your homesite purchase easy.

For full details on the many different ways you can lead the full life in Mackle-built Marion Oaks, telephone or write today.

Shooters hold first fall-winter tourney

The initial handgun tournament of the fall and winter marksmanship season commenced at Phillips Pistol Range yesterday.

The first two days of the four-day tourney are devoted to International type competition using five different guns. Saturday and Sunday shooters will be offered national competition in a Three-Gun 2700 Grand Aggregate Championship.

The International matches, featuring competition in Free Pistol, Rapid Fire Pistol, Center Fire Pistol, Standard Pistol and Air Pistol, are the type fired in the olympics, Pan American and World Championship Games.

Competition in the 2700-aggregate national match includes a four-match series for 900 points in each the 22-Caliber Pistol, Center Fire Pistol and 45-Caliber Pistol with team matches.

Sponsored by the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club, the four day series of matches has attracted top civilian, police, reserve forces and active military competitors from areas throughout the Eastern part of the nation.

This first handgun event of the 1973-74 season, inaugurates a series of more than 20 tournaments through July to include an Indoor Sectional, Regional and Rifle matches, the Georgia State Rifle and Pistol Championships and monthly Open Handgun tournaments to be held on the Fort Benning ranges.

Shooters in these matches will be competing for individual championships an seeking to establish new national records as all the events are recognized by the National Rifle Association.

OC holds contest

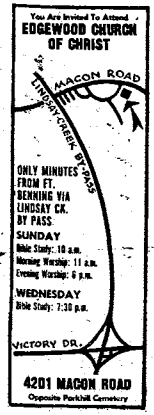
The Annual Fall Golf Championship for members of the Fort Benning Officers Club will be held on the Pine Side Course of the Fort Benning Country Club Golf Course Nov. 18 through Dec. 17.

Contestents will be assigned to flights according to established handicaps.

The tournament will consist of a series of 18 hole matches. Each player will be required to complete one match each week until he is defeated or wins the competition in his flight.

Entries are now being accepted at the golf pro shop (687-1940).

Turkey Shoot scheduled



The Fort Benning Rod and Gun Club and the Fort Benning chapter of the United States Army Warrant Officers Association will hold a Thanksgiving Turkey Shoot at the Rod and Gun Club Skeet Ranges Nov. 17.

The shoot will start at 9 a.m. and run continuously until 4 p.m.

Ten-to twelve-pound frozen turkeys will be awarded as prizes.

Contestants may use their own shotguns or weapons provided at the shoot. All ammunition will be furnished.

Finance and Accounting receives award

The Commanding General's Cost Reduction Program award, "The Infantryman Plaque," presented to the post activity which has made the most outstanding contribution to the program, has been presented to the Finance and Accounting Division, Comptroller, Fort Benning.

Major General Thomas M. Tarpley presented the award to Lieutenant Colonel F. J. Wadsworth, finance and accounting officer, in a ceremony held Monday at Infantry Hall.

Factors determining the recipient of the award were the total savings validated under the Cost Reduction Program in Fiscal Year '73 in relation to assigned goals, the dollar value of validated savings and the number of actions reported to the program and the number of management improvements projects completed in FY 73.

"The Finance and Accounting Division had validated savings of $129,900 versus an assigned goal of $23,000 -- an achievement of 562 per cent of the goal and the highest percentage of any activity on post. The division displayed initiative and enthusiasm in developing and reporting improved procedures, and had an outstanding overall Cost Reduction Program during FY 73," said Colonel Robert W. Seaman, Fort Benning comptroller.

The principle action contributing to finance and accounting's savings was a procedure which provided xeroxing of morning reports at the initial processing stage, enabling each copy to be processed as a single entry rather than processing several entries from the same copy.

MAH commander will work on new helipad

Colonel John W. White, Martin Army Hospital commander, will cut the first tree Monday at 9 a.m. to start work on the new helipad being built for the hospital.

The helipad will be used by medical evacuation aircraft bringing emergency cases to hospital. It is being built between Santa Fe Road and the Lindsay Creek Bypass extension directly across Santa Fe Road from the hospital.

The permanent helipad will replace the temporary pad now being used. The temporary pad has been used because construction on the new addition to the hospital eliminated the old permanent pad.

The 43rd Engineer Battalion of the 36th Engineer Group at Fort Benning will be clearing approximately 40 acres of trees and then constructing the new pad and landscaping the area.

Officials report the project should be completed by the end of the year if the weather holds up. Trees cleared for the project will be sold through the Savannah District office of the Corps of Engineers.

The permanent pad is necessary to improve safety conditions for emergency medical evacuation aircraft.

Pam Thomasson, a lovely sorceress from Sunken Gardens, Florida, asks all the troops at Fort Benning to slow down when driving. Remember fuel is precious so don't waste it!

Is go carting for kids?

A piston expands and sticks in the cylinder while racing down a straightaway at 60 m.p.h., 8-10 inches behind Specialist Five Jack Brown frantically jars his cart to the left while trying to miss the distressed cart. But it's too late. His cart strikes and flies over the back of the cart tearing off a muffler, ripping at the tire, cutting his speed to 40 m.p.h. he is able to gain control, straighten up and continue on.

Jack Brown is part of a sport that is catching on like wild fire across the nation, GO-CARTING. The tiny carts appearance remains the same as you probably used to watch or maybe even have driven. The big changes in the past few years has been in the chassis, motor and tires. The small carts now are attaining speeds in excess of 90 mph, with the twin engine carts hitting speeds in the range of 125 mph.

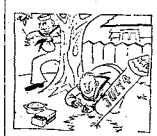
Brown's cart is priced at around $1,000. The thirty horse power, 100cc Italian B-M motor pushes the small cart to speeds exceeding 90 mph.

Brown's carting career began in 1970 in Ohio when a friend, Tracy Stevens now a Grand National Champion, helped Jack into the sport. The pair formed a partnership and worked in Steven's father's home shop creating and testing new carting inovations. At one time they were able to finance their own operations by building expansion chamber for cart motors. But they decided to quit (even though they were offered up to $100 apiece for them) because it ruined their own competitive edge.

When Brown joined the Army the partnership was terminated but this wasn't the last of Jack and Tracys meetings in the sport.

While in basic and advanced individual training at Fort Eustis, Va. Jack would travel home 1500 miles round trip whenever he could get the chance to race his cart.

After advanced training Brown was sent to Vietnam where his cart racing activity was limited to planning and purchasing some leather clothing that he would wear for driving. "I couldn't believe how carting had progressed in one short year. "Tire widths had jumped from 4½ inches to 6¼ while RPMs had vaulted to 1000." "Vast improvements in chassis building and tire design enabled the drivers to maintain high speeds on the turns raising the speeds to 75-90 miles an hour," exclaimed Brown.



After returning from Vietnam in September of 72, Brown was assigned to the 609th transportation company, 145th Aviation Battalion as a helicopter repairman and took up carting where he left off.

After assembling a competitive cart he set off on weekends to Barnsville, Ga., where he has been a big winner and is currently points leader at the track. Bransville is not a hole in the wall track, it is known throughout the Nation as a top cart track and is also home of the Winternationals. "My greatest thrill in carting came at last year's Winternationals where I placed tenth among 34 participants in my class. The Winter Nationals is one of the biggest races of the year and the first of the season, commented Brown. After winning numerous meets in the Winter Nationals he journied back to Ohio to try his luck in the Grand Nationals.

Brown placed tenth — a very respectable performance competing against the top racers from the U. S., Canada and England. His buddy Stevens took the checkered flag and is now the Grand Nationals winner. "I'm very satisfied with my placing but being without the workshop necessary to maintain a finely tuned and competitive cart, I was certainly hurting." "Carting is a great hobby and while I'm in the Army it keeps me busy on the weekends and up to date in the sport. It also keeps my cart driving from getting rusty," said Brown.

Brown hopes to open a cart shop of his own when he gets out of the Army.

FOOLING AROUND with fireworks is dangerous business under any conditions, and practical jokers add that much more risk. Use extreme caution this July 4 if you plan to shoot the works. For a quieter diversion, find the six differences in these two cartoons.

ANSWERS
1) Right hand of sailor behind tree is missing a finger. 2) Bottom line of joker's jumper is missing. 3) Ring around the knot in tree trunk is missing. 4) Top line of siding on house is missing. 5). Foot missing off sailor on right. 6) Circle missing off top of match box.

Prestige.

BMW Bavaria.
To people in the know, the brilliant new BMW Bavaria may well be the most prestigious car in the world today. All over Europe, for example, it's replaced another famous German make as the "in" car. With all its great elegance and superb craftsmanship, the Bavaria gives you fantastic performance and matchless roadholding, making it one of the best road machines going. Come in and take a test-drive. Find out the real meaning of the word prestige.

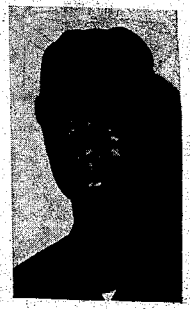
Private Gary Pickett
23rd Replacement
It's real, but from what I hear it's not as big a problem as they say. Even though the energy crisis isn't as bad as they say, it's still a problem and something ought to be done.

Second Lieutenant James Toler
23rd Co. The School Brigade
I worked for the government in Arkansas before I came in the Army and I know there is definitely an energy shortage. They are playing it up bigger than it is though. They have to do that to conserve the energy for future use. Look what would happen if we were attacked by another country. We'd be hurting for fuel.

Do you think the energy crisis in this country is real?



SOUND OFF!

First Lieutenant Michael Nolan
Hqs. Co. The School Brigade
There definitely is. There's bound to be after all the energy we've used. The way the government is handlig it, we'll be in the same predicament 15 years from now. We need a way to get completely out of the kind of energy we're using now.

Specialist Five Charles Locke
Co. C 1/29
No, I don't think there is. I think that the big companies are trying to do away with the independent companies. Once they accomplish this, there won't any more talk about an energy crisis.

Private First Class Dewyane Nelson
12th Co. The School Brigade
I really think there is an energy crisis in this country and from what I read in the papers and hear on television other countries have the same problem. Why would they want to scare us if other countries have the same problem?

An Old-Fashioned Band Concert

"An Old-Fashioned Band Concert" will be presented for the public's enjoyment at 4 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 18 at Watson Field, near InfantryHall. In case of inclement weather, the concert will be held in Marshall Auditorium, Infantry Hall.

Both Fort Benning's 283rd Army Band and the 98th Army Band from Fort Rucker, Al. are participating in the concert. The combined membership of the bands totals 55.

Admission is free, and a special welcome is extended to local high school and college band members.

The concert will be fashioned to reflect the mood of an old-time Sunday afternoon park concert. There will be no pre-arrangd seating. Bring a blanket or a lawn chair and enjoy an afternoon of relaxation and good music.

The selections from the concert program will include: "Band of America March" by Paul Lavalle; "Slavonic Dance" by Anton Dvorak; "A Tribute to Glenn Miller" arranged by Henry Gass; selections from the musical "South Pacific" by Richard Rodgers; and "When the Saints Go Marching In," by Harold Walters, a Dixieland Jazz number highlighted by a tenor sax solo by Specialist Five Pheneas Johnson.

"Serenade for a Picket Fence" will be highlighted by a duet on the xylophone by Keven Tade and Raymond Appling. "Pop! Goes the Weasel" by Lucien Cailliet, will also be featured for the audience's listening pleasure, along with the "1812 Overture" by Peter I. Tchaikowsky and "The Stars and Stripes Forever" by John Philip Sousa. Actual cannons will be fired by the 2nd Battalion, 10th Artillery during the playing of the "1812 Overture."

Chief Warrant Officer Brian D. Arnold, 283rd Army Band, commander said, "We want young musicians to learn about the excellent opportunities available to men and women who decide to serve in an Army band."

The concert will give high school and college musicians a chance to see what the Army has to offer in the field of marching and concert bands.

A musician who wants to enlist may audition without obligation at any Army post with a band. If accepted, he or she can enlist for the band of his choice under the music option. The new enlistee is guaranteed a six-month basic music course taught at Norfolk, Va. after completion of basic training. Upon successful completion of the music course, the graduate will be sent to his chosen band. He or she may choose from 72 Army bands located all over the world.

A Variable Re-enlistment Bonus of up to $6,000 is offered to those who re-enlist who play certain instruments. They may also choose another stabilized tour at the band station of their choice. Three music courses besides the basic music course are also available to band members — intermediate, advanced and Warrant Officers Band Masters course.

Arnold attended the University of Texas at El Paso and received a Bachelor of Music Degree. Upon graduation from college, he enlisted in the Army and served in Army bands at Fort Benning and Monroe and in Frankfurt, Germany.

In June, 1969, Mr. Arnold became a warrant officer, bandmaster and was sent to command the 291st Army Band at Fort Benning. Since then, he has served as the bandmaster for military bands in the U. S. and in the Republic of Vietnam.

Thanksgiving work schedule

Thursday, Nov. 22, will be observed as a legal holiday by all military and civilian personnel, except those military personnel required for essential duties.

Friday, Nov. 23, will be observed as a training holiday for all military personnel, except those required for essential duties. Civilian personnel who wish to observe the Friday training holiday will be required to take annual leave.

THANKSGIVING DAY MESSAGE

Traditionally, Thanksgiving reminds us of the manifold blessings which are ours. It should be a time to encourage and inspire each of us to demonstrate our faith in and dependence on God and our country by striving to live our life in harmony and peace with one another.

As we express our gratitude, let us pause and remember our fellow servicemen and women wherever they serve. May this be the beginning of a new era of peace and brotherhood in our nation.

I take this opportunity to wish you and your family a safe and Happy Thanksgiving.

First women sign up for Airborne

Joyce Kutsch and Rita Johnson are about to take a big step — or in this case a big fall — for women, the Army and the country.

The two will begin Airborne training at the U. S. Army Infantry Center later this month and become the first two women in the history of the Armed Forces to earn the Airborne wings.

The two were the first women to enlist in the Army for training to become parachute riggers — MOS 43E2P. All parachute riggers are required to be Airborne qualified.

"No, I have never jumped out of an airplane in my life," explains Private Kutsch, who was the first to enlist for the option when it became available for women.

"My recruiter asked me if I thought it would be an interesting job. I thought that since I had been active in sports, it would be different and something I would like to do," the 19-year-old added. "I didn't know I was the first woman until I was sworn in and saw all of the TV cameras."

The Sarver, Pa. native attended college for one year with the goal of becoming a physical education teacher. "Then I realized that there wasn't any future in that when I graduated because the jobs weren't available."

That's when she decided to join the Army. "I wanted some training which would qualify me for a good job. And, of course, the Army has other opportunities — for travel and to meet people."

Private Kutsch graduated from WAC basic training at Fort McClellan on Wednesday, Nov. 7. She is slated to report to Fort Benning on Nov. 19 and begin training on Nov. 25.

Private Johnson is schedule to graduate from her basic WAC training at Fort McClellan on Nov. 14.

"No, I'm not afraid of making that first jump. On the contrary, I can't wait to get there and get started," continued Private Kutsch.

"I am proud that I am the first woman to enlist for the option and that I will be one of the first two women to go through the Airborne training. It's a big step for the Army and the country, but even a bigger step for me."

Fort Benning officials have been preparing for the initial WAC students and have been working on the necessary modifications to the Basic Airborne course.

The WAC Airborne course designed by the U. S. Army Infantry Center's Airborne Department will provide the technical proficiency necessary for a WAC to participat4 as a parachutist in order to occupy a position as a parachute rigger.

"Naturally, there are some changes required in the PT portion of the training," explained Colonel Robert Tully, Airborne Department director. "However, the physical training will be such that the women will be able to make jumps without endangering their safety."

The course designed for the women will stress the technical proficiency. A higher instructor-student ratio will make it possible for the women to at least equal, if not exceed, the technical proficiency of the men.

WAC students who complete the course will be awarded the parachutist badge and receive a diploma indicating successful completion of the WAC Airborne Course.

Brothers take top Airborne honors

There isn't anything unusual about a graduating airborne class having an honor graduate and a distinguished graduate. But, when these two have the same last name, look alike, come from the same hometown and call each other brother, that's a rarity.

Privates Michael and Alfred Pendrak are a togetherness story. They enlisted togethsat Fort Lewis, Washington where their father is a mess sergeant with the 9th Inf. Div. They went to basic at Fort Leonard Wood, AIT at Fort Polk, and jump school at Fort Benning. Next comes Ranger school.

"I'm not too sure why I signed up for the Rangers," said Mike. Alfred was quick to offer that "I talked him into it." Neither one was sure of the difference in their awards, but each was sure the other was more important.

At first glance they look like twins. But, at 19, Mike is a year older than Alfred. Their father is a career soldier and that influenced them into joining the Army. "We knew he wanted us too," said Alfred, "but I think he was surprised when we told him we'd enlisted for the Airborne Rangers."

What did they think about jumping. "Who has time to think" said Mike. "I was thinking about position and watching the ground come up to get me," Alfred said.

Neither one is definite about future plans. Alfred said "If it turns out to be what we want, we'll stay in." Mike had about the same feelings, "Right now it's a little too early to tell."

Education

too much around to say "I don't have a chance"

Art by Brent Swainston

By Edith Martin

Army promotions and good civilian jobs are two solid reasons for getting a high school diploma. With so many opportunities at Fort Benning, soldiers have to work hard to miss the classes they need.

While stationed here, a soldier can work on his diploma, improve his reading skill, go to college or take vocational training.

By talking to an education counselor now, the soldier can plan to start school in the new year.

Trained counselors first step

A soldier wanting civilian education should see his education counselor first. These trained, professional men are available in the education centers. No appointment is necessary to drop in and chat.

The counselors are available from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., on main post in Bldg. 35, in Kelley Hill in Bldg. 9003, in Harmony Church in Bldg. 5153, and in Sand Hill in Bldg. 3355.

Before starting any program, check with the counselor. He will check the reputation of any schools or businesses the soldier may choose for individual study.

The education counselors can do more. They can set up on- or off-duty programs that fit the soldier's needs and finances. The counselor can also explain the educational benefits available under the GI bill and the availability of financial aid for soldier students.

Command Information

Reading—background for any job, any schooling

No soldier at Fort Benning has to worry about his reading ability. Free classes in remedial and speed reading are taught on a regular basis.

For soldiers needing help in reading, the understanding and speed classes begin with pre-high school levels and work through to college level programs.

Individual programs are worked out with personal instruction, group study, and reading machines as keys to better reading ability.

Speed reading students can only be accepted on a space available basis.

Soldiers wanting to improve their reading skills should talk to the education counselor and their unit commander.

High school courses offered in two programs

High school courses are available in two different programs for soldiers needing a diploma.

First, he goes to a counselor and takes an achievement test to find about his weak areas. The counselor can then arrange a program suited to the soldier's individual need. Classes are taught two days a week in afternoons and evenings.

After completing his necessary courses, the soldier can take the general educational development (GED) test. Testing areas include the social sciences, natural sciences, mathematics, and humanities.

When he passes the test, the soldier receives a certificate from the U. S. Armed Forces Institute (USAFI). With this, the soldier can then apply to his home state's education department or his high school for a high school diploma.

Whether or not he receives this diploma depends on the policy of his state, his high school and his GED scores.

High school courses and the GED testing are free, and the teachers and courses are state certified.

PREP is the other way to finish high school

Project PREP is a Veterans Administration financed program for soldiers who need to finish their high school work or review for college.

Any soldier who enters the program does not lose any of his GI benefits after leaving service.

Classes in general high school review are offered Monday-Wednesday and Tuesday-Thursday in the morning and afternoons. For soldiers who can't come during the day, the same classes are offered Monday-Tuesday-Thursday in the evenings.

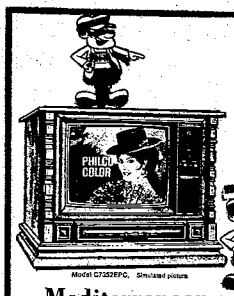
The high school PREP courses in specific subjects earn the soldier a diploma from Jordan Vocational High School. These courses are taught in Bldg. 35 in the afternoons and evenings.

A separate PREP review is taught for soldiers planning to enter college. The material covered goes beyond the level of the general high school review. This section is taught in Bldg. 4 in the evening.

Project Transition—learn a marketable vocation before ETS

Soldiers within six months of ETS can learn a skill through Project Transition. The program offers counseling in job and program section, class work, on-the-job training and job placement interviews.

Currently, 15 marketable skills are handled in Transition's classrooms. Work experience is available with employers in the local area.



College work with three schools

In addition to high school and vocational training, a soldier can take college work at Fort Benning. Columbus College and Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University offer undergraduate work.

Graduate students can work in the Georgia State program or with Columbus College's new graduate program. Specific information can be obtained in Bldg. 35 in the colleges' offices.

Mail call is music

"Mail Call", a cry that has been music to the ear of every American soldier since the Revolutionary War, is still music.

Not all mail to a soldier has been good news but no matter what information a letter contained, as long as it was from home, the soldier felt needed and wanted by his loved ones.

The same is true today for soldiers of the 197th Infantry Brigade, and a man who knows is Specialist Four Gerald Cagle, of the brigade's headquarters company.

"I am an Army Brat," says Cagle, the son of a retired Army master sergeant. Cagle spent his childhood traveling with his family to many Army posts as the Cagles accompanied their father whenever they could. "I know the value of mail for the entire family," said Cagle, "especially when we were overseas."

So now what is Cagle doing? He's delivering the mail to the men of his company. During a recent brigade field exercise Cagle was at the ready. "Mail Call" was the cry and again, as in the past, soldiers were standing by for "the letter from home."

Marriage seminar scheduled

The monthly Pre-Marital Seminar sponsored by the Fort Benning Chaplain's Office will be held Nov. 18 from 2 - 6 p.m. at the Infantry Center Chapel Annex (Building 101).

Couples of all faiths who are planning to marry, or who have been recently married, are encouraged to participate.

Topics of discussion will include the religious, moral, social, emotional, physical and economic aspects of marriage. The seminar is supported by Protestant, Catholic and Jewish Chaplains on post and will fulfill the requirements of some denominations for pre-marital counseling.

Engineers switch missions

The "construction engineers" of Company C, 43rd Engineer Battalion switched roles and performed as "combat engineers" during a recent week-long field training exercise.

Charlie Company was directed to construct a reinforced raft. The 586th Engineer Company (Float Bridge) provided bridging equipment and instructional support personnel.

The operation was conducted at night with personnel and equipment arriving at about 6:30 p.m. at the Victory Pond site. Perimeter security was set-up with Specialist Four Harl Williams manning the M60 machine gun and supervising, while the platoon flood light sets were placed in position.

Approximately two hours into the project Charlie Company was hit by an aggressor unit. The attack consisted of M60 and M16 fire and several tear gas attacks. Charlie Company suffered several minor mock battle casualties and in turn captured two aggressors.

Though inexperienced in Float Bridge construction, and in spite of night construction conditions and the aggressor attacks, the raft was successfully erected.

WE ARE INTERESTED IN ENERGY CONSERVATION

We at the National Bank of Fort Benning would like to go on record as saying "We will be glad to do our part in the energy conservation effort."

We're serious about this. We have begun by cutting back on electricity when possible. We have adjusted the heating and cooling thermostats in order to use less power. We have encouraged car pools by employees and have reworded those who participate. We even offer reduced rate loans to those customers who finance a car with four or six cylinders.

Our port in the conservation program is relatively small, but if we can influence our neighbors to caoperate, we feel our efforts are well worth it.

We encourage our friends, both individuals and businesses, to join us in this step toward a better econamy and a better environment.

Christmas Bazaar

Get your shopping list ready, the Annual OWC Christmas Bazaar is almost here.

Nov. 28 is the date set for this year's colorful, bustling bazaar. It will be held from noon til 5 p.m. at the Fort Benning Main Officers' Club.

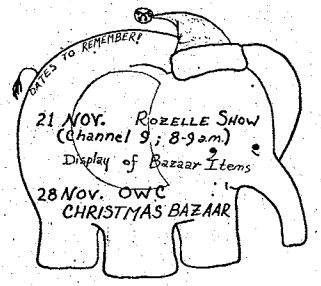
This year a special children's Room has been set aside. It opens at 3:30 p.m. and no one over 12 years old will be admitted. Items in this room, only, will be priced below $5.

Price reductions begin at 3:30 p.m.

The bazaar is open to military and civilian alike. Come one, come all.

Spotlight: An OC Wife

"Honey I just got my orders and we're going to OCS!" Every wife who hears these words receives them with mixed emotions. The opportunities great, but the stories about Officer Candidate School may be a bit frightening to the wife of a prospective candidate.



Margaret Rose is the wife of a candidate who began the program in September and will graduate in December. Sheand her husband, Officer Candidate Mike Rose, were faced with the same choice that many other couples must make — should she come to Columbus? Some friends advised them against the move, becausethe men must live in the barracks and spend most of their time working. But Margaret and Mike decided to store their furniture, and bring their 13-month old son and his crib to furnished apartment near Fort Benning. It's a decision both have been glad they made.

Margaret feels that her moral support for Mike is the most important aspect of living here. The few hours spent together more than balance any hardships they might encounter, although she has been disappointed to find that there is so little time to see him. She often picks up Mike for his weekend off on Saturday morning, only to find that he hasto run back in to the company for "a little while" that may stretch into hours. She says, "There are 101 things they end up having to do on the free weekend, and sometimes his Saturday evening at home is spent doing paperwork." The only offter time they are together is from 6:30 to 7:30 on Wednesday evenings. The OC wives' grapevine says that things will change for the better as soon as they "turn blue" — or achieve the snior status that comes after ten weeks.

In spite of the separations, Margaret could not say that this temporary independent way of life has been boring. She handles all the errands that Mike can't accomplish, and may also pick up "2 or 3 extras" for Mike's fellow candidates who are unmarried or are geographical bachelors.

Aside from errands, Margaret is kept busy with the OC Wives' Club. A get-acquainted coffee was held soon after the beginning of the course. Mrs. Dan Johnson, the company commander's wife, told them about they activities they could plan for the next three months, and what they could expect. An ACS tour of Ft. Benning, and a trip to the OCS Leadership Reaction Course were just a sample. They can participate in a variety of things, including coffeesand luncheons; and even a Bingo-Bake Sale was held in early November. These activities plus the much-anticipated parties with their husbands combine to make the weeks fly.

Like many others before her, Margaret found the first few weeks of adjustments to be the worst. She was encouraged when, shortly after her arrival, she volunteered to help at a reception for newly commissioned officers and their families. While talking to the graduates of the course and their wives, she learned that the feeling is "It's all worth it." As for living here, she says, "I'm very glad I came, because I think it's a boost for Mike. I enjoy Army life, and I am sure that the experience I've had with the Wives' Club will be valuable in the future. The wives who didn't come are missing a lot."

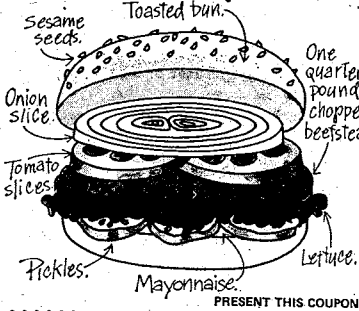
Former POW will speak on

"The Chapel in the Sky"

Lieutenant Colonel Floyd J. Thompson, a former prisoner of war, will speak at the Infantry Center Chapel this Sunday, November 18 at 9:30 a.m. and 11 a.m.

Lieutenant Colonel Thompson, who was held captive in North Vietnam for nine years, is assigned to the office of the Director of Instruction in the Infantry School. He came to Fort Benning in September.

He will speak on the topic "The Chapel in the Sky." The general public is invited to attend. Lieutenant Colonel Thompson has spoken to various civic organizations in the area since his return to the U. S.



He is a native of Englewood, N. J. and has received OCS, Ranger, and Airborne training at Fort Benning. Lieutenant Colonel Thompson entered the Army in 1956, and has served at Fort Bragg as well as here and in Korea and Vietnam. He also attended school at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind.

Speaking before the Rotary Club of Columbus last month, he said his "strongest reaction toward his captors . . . is pity," and that he and the other prisoners "could not have survived without faith in God."

TSB

Oct. 27 was an evening of dress blues and fall formals for the officers and ladies of The Student Brigade (TSB).

After dinner the brigade commander, Col. Allen Goodson, gave the floor to the honored guest Maj. Gen. Thomas M. Tarpley, post co mander. Special guests welcomed by Col. Goodson were Mrs. Thomas M. Tarpley and the USAIS department heads: Col. and Mrs Wm. R. Guthrie,Col. and Mrs. Wallace F. Veaudry, Col. and Mrs. John J. Walsh Jr., Col. and Mrs. James M. Bowers, Col. and Mrs. Robert L. Rollier, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Richard B. Stoltz and Lt. Col. and Mrs. Bruce L. Brown.

Wedding trays we presented to newlyweds in the brigade: 1st Lt. and Mrs. James MB, 2nd Lt. and Mrs. Melvin Johnson, 2nd Lt. and Mrs Birge Miller and 2nd Lt. and Mrs. Robert S. Martin.

Those receiving baby cups were Capt. and Mrs. Richard D. Fluharty and 1st Lt. and Mrs. Henry Logan.

The group was entertained by the Infantry Chorus and later danced to the music of The Sands.

The formal was hosted by the first battalion.

197th INF. BDE.

1-58 Inf.

On Oct. 25, Mrs. Robert Orkand received the ladies of the 1st Bn; (Mech), 58th Inf.; 197th Inf. Bde., into her home for their monthly coffee.

Mrs. Jerry Marinelli was welcomed into the battalion and Mrs. Bob Walsh was welcomed to her first battalion coffee. Mrs. John Fifth's sister, Mrs. Joan Founler was introduced and welcomed.

Farewell trays were presented to Mrs. Cecile Callaway and Mrs. Bernard Muller-Thyme.

During the business meeting the ladies were reminded of the forthcoming Brigade Christmas formal Dec. 1.

2nd Battalion 10th Field Artillery

October was a socially busy month for the 2nd Bn., 10th Field Artillery. The monthly coffee for the ladies of the battalion was held in the lovely town-house home of Mrs. John McEwen on 20th Ave. in Columbus. Mrs. Jeffrey Carter served as co-hostess.

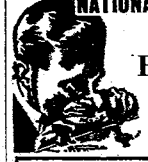
A visit to the Parkwood Nursing Home was discussed. And as had been previouslypromised, a prize was given to the person who collected the most recyclable items. Ceilia Balog received a miniature rocking chair fashioned from tin cans.

A welcoming coffee was held at the home of Mrs. Curtis Hoglan, wife of the battalion commander, to honor Mrs. Kenneth Emerson, whose husband is the new Battalion Sergeant Major. Mrs. Arthur Davison served as co-hostess and invited guests included the wives of the battery first sergeants.

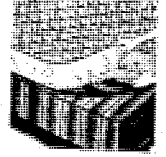
The "ghosties and ghoulies" appeared a few days early when the officers and ladies of the 2nd Bn., 10th Field Artillery, held a Halloween hall and farewell at the Metro Building in Harmony Church on Oct. 27. The "eerie evening" was hosted by all the lieutenants of the battalion, who had decorated with the traditonal jack o'lanterns and black and orange crepe paper. They also provided a tub full of aples for bobbing, and a bottomless pot of hot buttered rum.

The officers and ladies arrived in a variety of unique costumes. Among them were Tarzan and Jane, Evel Knievel and Bobby Riggs, several pairs of dice, and a few pretty "girls" who have never been seen before. But first honors were awarded to "Grandma and Grandpa" Duckworth, who hobbled up to receive their door prize, which was exactly that, a n old door tied with a ribbon. It was presented to them by Lt. Col. Curtis Hoglan, who could have been the sole survivor of Custer's Last Stand.

Lt. Col. Hoglan welcomed the special guests of the evening and also presented farewell gifts to Lt. and Mrs. Gary Carlson, who were departing the battalion.



Finally, a bottle of pink champagne was awarded to Capt. Mike Wells as the surprising winner in the last moments of the "pin game."



2-69th ARMOR BN.

For their October coffee, the ladies of B Company, 2-69th Armor Battalion, treated the ladies of the battalion to the Heritage Tour of Homes on Wed. morning, Oct. 17. Included on the tour, which began at the Georgia Welcome Center, were the Rankin House, the Springer Opera House, and Iliges House, and the Walker-Peters-Langdon House. After the bus tour, thegroup met at the home of Mrs. Donald Davis on Arrowhead, Fort Benning, for refreshments and a brief business meeting.

By Judy Jakubowski

Thanksgiving is coming up and menus are being planned for the "feast-of-the-year." With all the little details of the meal mounting, why not use a simple vegetable dish as well as a second dessert. (The first is always pumpkin pie, isn't it?)

LIMA BEANS WITH MUSHROOMS

Prepare 2 packages (10 ounces each frozen baby lima beans as directed on package. Drain 1 can (16 ounces) sliced mushrooms. Add mushrooms and 3 tablespoons soft butter to the drained beans; toss. 6 to 8 servings.

ORANGE CREPES

1 eggs
2 more egg yolks
½ Cup milk
½ C orange juice
2 Tbs salad oil
1 C flour
¼ tsp salt
1Tb sugar
1 tsp grated orange rind

Beat eggs together; add remaining ingredients. Beat until smooth. Let stand at room temperature for at least one hour. Brush a hot 7 or 8 inch skillet lightly with salad oil. Pour 2 Tbs batter onto skillet. Tip skillet so that mixture covers the bottom evenly. Batter will set immediately into a thin, lacy pancake. Cook for about 15-20 seconds until brown, loosen with spatula and flip over. Brown other side and turn crepe out onto foil or waxed paper. Repeat until all batter is used.

ORANGE SAUCE

½ C soft butter
½ C confectioner's sugar
1 Tb grated orange rind
3 Tbs grenadine
1/3 C orange juice
1 C orange sections

Cream butter with sugar and grated orange rind. Gradually blend in grenadine. Spread about ½ tsp. of this mixture over each crepe, spreading it on the last-browned side. Roll up crepes so that the side first browned—the most attractive side—shows. Place the rest of the butter mixture in a large chafing dish. Add orange juice. Heat in a dish until bubbly. Add rolled crepes and heat, spooning sauce over top. Add orange sections, and heat for 2-3 minutes longer.

To shell those holiday nuts so they come out whole (for fruit cakes, decorating or just eating), soak the nuts overnight in salted water before cracking them.

You can prevent fat from splattering when you are frying by sprinkling salt in the skillet before you add any fat or food. This saves cleaning stove area and clothes.

For the holidays coming up you'll need lots of extra ice cubes, when the guests start arriving. Stockpile ice cubes in your freezer, pop them out of their trays into a plastic bag and back into the freezer. Keep emptying and refilling the trays as soon as the water freezes.

Teapot Drawing

Make use of that extra tea pot you got as a gift or the one you just couldn't pass up at the curio shop. Clean it up real good (for show) and place inside that big ball of string sitting in your kitchen drawer. Thread the end of the string through the spout and you'll not have to worry about a tangled up mess again!

Ladies your ideas, suggestions or questions are welcomed. Just drop them in the yellow Femline boxes at each commissary door. We'd like to give you credit for your ideas, so put your name on them.

Arts and Crafts week

Fort Benning's crafts centers are going all out for Army Arts and Crafts week, Nov. 20-25.

The highlight of the week's festivities will be the Arts and Crafts Trading Fair where all military personnel, active and retired and their dependents, will be able to trade or swap their own hand crafted articles with other amateur artisans.

The fair will be set up on the grounds adjacent to Bldg. No. 2783, the main post craft shop. In addition to exhibits and helpful hints, those entering articles in the fair will be eligible to receive cash awards for their entries.

Let GAC put a jingle in your dufflebag.

The way prices are going right now—you may need more money than you thought you'd need. GAC wants to lend you all the money you'll need to help beat prices and to buy the bargains you want before they're gone.

You don't have to make a lot to borrow a lot at GAC. The size of your loan depends on many things: the bills you have or have had. What you own or want to buy. The kind of work you do. And, because you wear a uniform, the kind of work you do rates very high with GAC. A steady income makes it easier for you to get a loan. But, more important, GAC wants to serve you because you serve your country.

Whatever your needs, whatever the reason, let GAC put a jingle in your dufflebag.

SHOWCASE HERE

On Wed. evening, Oct. 17, the officers and ladies of the 2-69th Armor Battalion met at the Country Club to hail new arrivals and bid farewell to those departing. LT. Roger Kelley, his wife, Connie, and daughter, Jennifer, and LT Stephen Arango, his wife, Carolyn Mary, and son, Michael, were welcomed to the battalion. Lt. Col. W. J. Eddins, Jr., presented an engraved plaque to Capt. Thomas M. Petty on the occasion of the Pettys' departure from Fort Benning and the Army. Capt. and Mrs. Petty, Jennifer Kathryn and Thomas Christopher will make their new home in Richmond, Virginia. A special welcome was given to Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Gates, grandparents of Lt. Richard Timboe. Lt. Col. Eddins then presented to Lt. and Mrs. Delane F. Moeller an engraved baby cup for the newest member of the battalion social group, their son, Scott.

Mrs. W. J. Eddins Jr., hosted the ladies of the 2-69th Armor Battalion for a farewell luncheon for Mrs. Thomas M. Petty at the Eddins' home on Eames Ave., Fort Benning, on Thurs., Oct. 18. In addition to a very special luncheon menu, Mrs. Eddins served Orange Blossoms and assorted snacks to the assembled group. On behalf of the ladies of the battalion, Mrs. Eddins presented Mrs. Petty an engraved silver Revere bowl as a memento of her stay here and as an expression of the esteem and best wishes of the group.

3rd BN. 7th INF.

A group of ladies of the 3rd Bn. 7th Inf. (Cottonbalers) enjoyed a beautiful day at the Westville Fair at Lumpkin, Ga. on Nov. 2. They departed from the home of Mrs. Charles Arnecke, Jr., on Yeager Ave., Ft. Benning, and spent the day touring the historic old town of Westville and the flea market and other attractions in Lumpkin. The ladies thoroughly enjoyed themselves, winding up their excursion with an early dinner at the Bonanaza Restaurant in Columbus.

Allied Spotlight

A group of Allied Officers and their families, accompanied by members of the OWC Allied Liaison Committee, spent the weekend of November 9-11 at Callaway Gardens. The International Weekend was sponsored by the Southern Baptist Foreign Mission Board. Highlighting the weekend was a fashion show featuring the Fort Benning Allied Wives in their native dress.

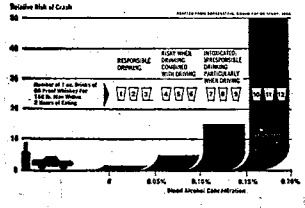
There is something to do in Columbus

Nothing to do in Columbus? The Recreation Services Reservation Office knows different.

For instance, you can become a "Puttnut" at the Putt Hut, 1230 Broadway. This is an all new family recreation center open in the downtown Columbus area. Tired of having your golf game rained out? Come on — enjoy yourself on a beautiful nine-hole indoor championship miniature golf course and adjacent arcade room.

Discount prices for the military are 40c per game or 75c for 18 holes. The Putt Hutt is open from noon until 10 p.m. Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays and from noon until midnight on Fridays and Saturdays.



Pick up your tickets at the Reservations Office at Bldg. No. 394.

Still looking? How about the movies? Recreation Services has received discount tickets to the Columbus Drive In, and the Bradley and Plaza theaters.

But if you would like to get away, The Reservations Office offers a Christmas Shopping Spree to Cumberland Mall on Dec. 1. For $5 you can travel by bus to Atlanta's newest shoppers paradise. Make your reservations now.

Coming up in February is a skiing week-end in Gatlinburg, Tenn. So, you see, there's plenty to do and costs are moderate. Call 545-7414 for further information on any of these activities.

EASTERN IS WORKING HARDER FOR YOUR DOLLAR

When you have a 72 hour pass every minute counts.

This is the time of year when you want to fly home and see your family. Celebrate the holidays with some old friends.

And take hold of your girl and tell her you've missed her.

Whether home is a big city or a small town, let Eastern take you there.

We take over a half million servicemen home for the holidays each year. So if you have a 72-hour pass or a two-week holiday leave, we know what it's like to have a lot to do and only a little time to do it in.

From Columbus to Atlanta, we have 2 daily nonstop flights.

Military Reservation Fare $11. Military Standby $9. From Atlanta you can pick up connections to New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Washington, and Chicago to mention a few of the cities we fly to.

If home is in the southwest, our connecting service via Atlanta to Houston and Dallas/Ft. Worth can get you home quickly with more time to spend with family and friends.

Regular Military fares are good on every Eastern flight, anywhere in the U.S. Any time, except 2 pm to midnight on Fridays and Sundays. And Military Standby is available at any time on all Eastern domestic flights.

Call your SATO office or Eastern at 324-4781 in Columbus. Then call home and tell them you're on your way.

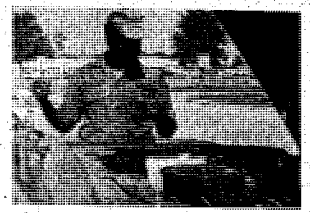
First WAC assigned to the PIONEERS

Private First Class Judith Kohli became the first WAC assigned to the 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry (THE PIONEERS), The School Brigade.

The petite Miss hails from Phoenix, Ariz., where she enlisted for the Women's Army Corps on Jan. 15, 1973.

She came to the PIONEERS from Fort Lee, Va., where she completed her Military Occupational Specialty training.

PFC Kohli is assigned to Headquarters and Support Company of the PIONEERS, and works for the Prescribed Load List Section of the S-4 shop. Her initial reaction to being assigned in a battalion where she is outnumbered in sex by 1200-1, was a little apprehensive, but, "Now that I've been here a few days, it's like any other job — I do my share of the work, and everyone else does theirs. I don't expect any special treatment because I'm a woman."



Private First Class Judith Kohli checks the card file system on an incoming parts order. Miss Kohli is assigned to Headquarters and Support Company, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry, The School Brigade, and is the first WAC to join the PIONEERS. She is presently working as a clerk for the S-4 section of the 1-29th.

PIONEER mess wins award

The Company A (Mech) 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry, The School Brigade, dining facility has received The School Brigade best dining facility (temporary) award for October.

The PIONEER mess hall won the award the first time in competition for the honor. For the last five months the 23rd Replacement Company of The School Brigade, has walked away with the top award for temporary dining facilites. But it has been currently dethroned by Company A dining facility manager Sergeant First Class Clifton Edwards and his staff.

The School Brigade commander, Colonel Allen M. Goodson, along with PIONEER commander Lieutenant Colonel Robert M. Brumback, presented the first place plaque to Edwards, and commended the entire staff on a job well done.

Post truck driver of the quarter, Private First Class Gary Loyd of the 444th Trans. Co., 67th Maint. Bn., shows here what it takes to be "No. 1." Plenty of hard work. After winning the competition at battalion and 36th Group level, PFC Loyd competed against representatives from units all over Fort Benning and emerged the winner.

Leon J. Roy of Headquarters and Support Company, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry (THE PIONEERS), The School Brigade, was promoted to Master Sergeant, E-8, in a ceremony at the PIONEER classroom by the battalion commander, Lieutenant Colonel Robert Brumback. The newly promoted master sergeant is the operations sergeant for the 1-29th.

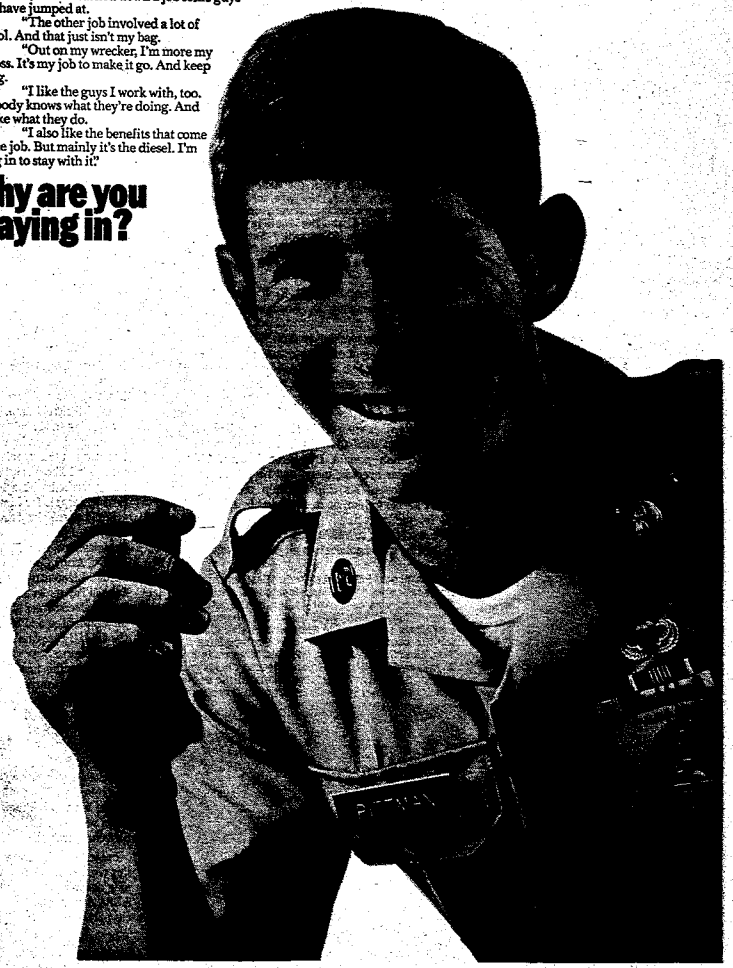
"I love that big diesel engine."

SP/4 Larry Pittman digs diesels. So much in fact, that he turned down a job some guys would have jumped at.



"The other job involved a lot of protocol. And that just isn't my bag.

"Out on my wrecker, I'm more my own boss. It's my job to make it go. And keep it going.

Save-A-Toy

Twenty years old and still playing Santa

By Susanne Bostick

To a child, Christmas without toys is worse than having a tooth pulled. Almost 20 years ago, Sergeant First Class J. Christ Lohere started to see that toys were provided for children of men in his unit (the Mortar Committee) who otherwise would not find them under the Christmas Treee.

Over the years, more and more people and organizations became interested in Project Save-A-Toy and now it has grown to such proportions that the overall coordination has to be handled by Army Community Service.

In the early days, SFC Lohere and the men of the Mortar Committee would collect and repair dolls and bicycles. In their own cars, they delivered the toys to needy families as determined by the commanding officer and first sergeant, or to families suggested by others. They also donated toys to local church missions.

Today, Project Save-A-Toy is handled on a much larger scale, but in a similar fashion. Basically, it's a matter of getting toys and children together, sometimes with a Christmas dinner added for the family.

But in the beginning, the sergeant and his men and their wives did all the work themselves. They used their own money to buy bicycle parts and spray paint. They worked on Saturdays repairing the bikes, and their wives spent evenings making doll clothes.

Lohere even had his men dressing the dolls with the clothes their wives had made! To quote one man who was also assigned to the Mortar Committee at the time, Sergeant First Class John Maruhnich of Company D, Headquarters Command:

"First, he had us working on dolls. We must have fixed up 60 dolls—put on dresses, socks and shoes, and combed their hair. From dolls, we graduated to bicycles. We recepaired them, put new parts on them, put them back together, and spraypainted them."

About the man who made all this possible, he said, "Sergeant First Class Lohere was one of the most unselfish people I've ever known. His generosity was overwhelming, and he was always willing to donate his time to help others. We couldn't say no to him, no matter what he asked us to do for the project.

"We worked in a building at Harmony Church then, and he would collect toys all year long and bring them there. After we repaired them, we would separate them by families after he found out what kinds of toys each family needed, by the sexes and ages of their children.

"Getting a bunch of sergeants to put dolls together might sound impossible, but he could do it because of the example he set. All this might make him sound like a saint, but I mean it when I say I never worked with a finer person. I have a great deal of respect for him."

SFC Lohere also collected donations of food and money from local merchants and civic organizations, as well as other units on post.

Now, Army Community Service, in the person of Second Lieutenant Susan Marsh, has taken Project Save-A-Toy under its wing. For several years, ACS has received names of needy families from the Mortar Committee and other units on post, as well as the USAIC Chaplain's office. Individuals may also submit names.

Work on the toys is done by the Mortar Committee and by men in the Post Confinement Facility. Other units and organizations on post, such as the 4th Student Battalion and the Occupational Therapy Ward at Martin Army Hospital, have helped repair toys in the past.

This year, the doll clothes are being made, and the dolls dressed, by Mrs. Margaret Senechek of Columbus and her children. Mrs. Senechek was one of the wives who helped make doll clothes in the years when her late husband, Sergeant Major John Senechek, was assigned to the Mortar Committee.

Project Save-A-Toy received a donation of $300 this year from the Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning chapter of AUSA. This money will be used, as AUSA donations in the past have been, to buy bicycle parts and spray paint.

In September, the Post Exchange held a special bicycle sale in which old bikes or parts could be traded in for discounts on new ones. These used bikes and parts were donated to Project Save-A-Toy. This part of the project was coordinated by Chaplain (Lieutenant Colonel) Edward J. Karnis of the USAIC Chaplain's office.

Units now play another role in the project. In addition to submitting names of families who might need toys, they "sponsor" families by contributing food for Christmas dinners, which they deliver along with the toys.

Units are asked to help with the screening process, and make contact with the families to be sure there is an actual need. Most of the families have an urgent temporary need (a husband may have been transferred overseas, for example, and his family's allotment has not started yet).

Other cases involve families which are too large to provide an adequate Christmas on the husband's income; widows and orphans of deceased military personnel; and families who, for various reasons, have difficulty managing their finances.

All told, Project Save-A-Toy provided 5,000 toys last year, 3,000 of which went to 500 children in 125 different families. The remaining 2,000 toys were given to the Valley Rescue Mission in Columbus and the Mercy Mission in Phenix City, so Project Save-A-Toy has its domestic action aspects as well.

But now is the time for everyone to help. Toys can be left by donors at the Post Confinement Facility, or at Building 83 where Army Community Service headquarters are located. For large donations of toys, call 545-1967 or 545-7566 for pick-up at your home. Give those old toys now so they can be repaired in time for Christmas for some child.

From one man and his unit on their own Christmas goodwill mission, to a whole post involved in helping those less fortunate than the average family, Project Save-T-Toy has come a long-way. The dream of SFC J. Christ Lohere is now a reality, and hundreds of children are happier every Christmas for it.

Sergeant First Class (Retired) J. Christ Lohere, the man who started Project Save-A-Toy at Fort Benning, was assigned to the Mortar Committee at the time he first began collecting toys and repairing them for needy children. Almost 20 years later, the project has grown to such proportions that several major units on post are involved, and the whole program is coordinated by Army Community Service. Sergeant First Class Lohere has played "Santa Claus" to more children than he will ever know in his lifetime!

Mrs. Margaret Senechek, who first worked on Project Save-A-Toy when her late husband, John Senechek, was Sergeant Major of the Mortar Committee, is still involved in the annual project. Here she works in her home on doll clothes for the used dolls turned in to Project Save-A-Toy. Mrs. Senechek said, "I spent 26 years in the Army, and I still like to keep in touch. This is one way of doing it, and helping others at the same time." (U.S. Army Photo by Rhonda Brownell)

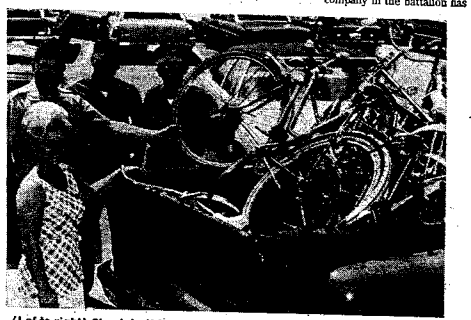
TSB helping out

By George Korda

The soldiers of Headquarters and Headquarters Company, The School Brigade are helping to make Christmas a happier time by collecting toys for some little children who otherwise wouldn't have any. Their toy collection project is also part of ACS's annual "Project Save-A-Toy."

Unit members with children are being asked to decide which toys their children either can't or won't use, and to contribute these to the toy drive. Toys that are beyond repair can't be accepted.

"How would you like to get a toy at Christmas that was all smashed up?" said SP-5 Carl Crittenden.



"Right now we're passing the word around to other men in the company to help out. I know my own kids have outgrown toys that would make a younger child very happy," said Crittenden.

As the toys are collected they will be stored in an unused room in the company. Weekly turn-ins will be made to Project Save-A-Toy.

Private First Class Dirk Dallman, said, "I remember as a child how many really nice things my parents threw away just because I got new toys at Christmas. If we can get those toys to give to those less fortunate, it will be a merrier Christmas for them, and for us."

Private First Class Robert J. Eisenmenger paints a bicycle part during the annual ACS "Project Save-A-Toy." Karnis, Staff Sergeant Bill Howell, and Sergeant Bill Huler, along with Sonja Nill of the Post Exchange Boy & Garden Store, examine bicycles turned in during the PX bicycle sale held in September. During the sale, old bicycles or parts were turned in for discounts on new bikes. The old parts were then turned over to Army Community Service by Chaplain Karnis for use in repairing bicycles in the annual "Project Save-A-Toy."

43rd doing their part, you can help too

By Jim Lee

Do you have disfigured, broken, or unwanted toys taking up storage space in your closets or garages? You can solve your storage problems and at the same time help needy children have a happier Christmas.

The 43rd Engineer Battalion (Construction) has already emptied its storage space by taking an active part in the annual post-wide "Save-A-Toy" project. Every company in the battalion has been busy collecting unwanted toys, dolls, and games from their own homes and from other families in the community.

The project was started with the distribution of "Save- a Toy" leaflets to all members of the command. After the toys were brought into the units, several volunteers assisted in the collection of toys from the units and in the transportation of the toys to the Post Confinement Facility.

Private First Class Curtis R. Moore, the October winner of the Battalion Driver of the Month Award, volunteered his services and the use of his vehicle. He helped pick up the toys from each unit. Private First Class Sherrill L. Benton, the Battalion Operator of the Month, and Private First Class Michael A. Farrell, the Battalion Soldier of the Month also helped take the toys to the Personnel Control Facility.

Farrell said "This is the type of activity that really puts a guy in the true Christmas spirit." The three men made sure the toys were turned over to First Lieutenant Grant Harris, the Assistant Correction Officer at the Control Facility. The toys will be repaired at the PCF and they wil later be given, through ACS, to needy children in the Fort Benning-Columbus-Phenix City area.

White Lightning

Burt Reynolds portrays an Arkansas backwoods car enthusiast who got caught by the law running bootleg whiskey ("WHITE LIGHTNING"). While in jail he learns his younger brother has been murdered by a crooked sheriff so he makes a deal with the federal authorities that in return for his freedom he will collect evidence on the moonshining activites of the lawman and bring him to justice on both counts. For excitement, WHITE LIGHTNING has car crashes, fights, and a gunshoot-out at the climax to please action fans. Violence and language in this rough, brawling action film may prove offensive and is not suitable for the young set.

The Legend of Hell House

In London, physicist Clive Revill is hired to investigate the haunted Belasco mansion for evidence of life after death. Revill, his wife Gayle Hunnicutt, Pamela Franklin, a mental medium and Roddy McDowall a physical medium, take up residence in the old Victorian house. Strange things begin to happen right away: inanimate objects such as ash trays candelabra and mirros menancingly assume a life of their own and attack the humans; an evil spirit possesses the body of the female medium and speakes from her lips. Violence and the festering horror brooding within the Hell House may be too strong film fare for pre-teenagers.

Scorecrow

The funny and moving mis-adventures of two drifters crossing the country to find a happier life are dramatized in SCARECROW. Academy Award Winner Gene Hackman stars as Max, the tough brawler who follows the dream of one day owning his own car-wash. Al Pacino, Academy Award nominee (THE GODFATHER), stars as Lion, a clowning kid just home from five years of life at sea. Together they go from California to Reno and Denver to Detroit, hoping to find a life that will loose all the skidrows and jails that they've known in the past. The violence, langague, and mature scenes contined in SCARECROW may prove disagreeable, particularly to the young set.

The Good, the Bad, and and the Ugly

The film gives a retrospective glimpse back to the days on the American fronter when bounty hunters hunted men like they'd hunt beasts, for money and money only. Three dangerous men search for a cashbox that contains $200,000. They have no loyalties except to their own violent and impulsive ends, and will either wear the Union or the Confederate uniform for brief periods, only a part of their schemes. Violence acquainted with early fronter life may offend.

197th holds live fire exercises

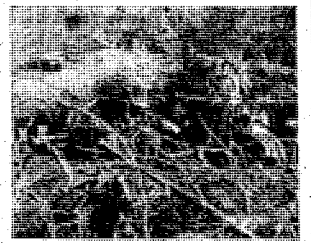
By BOB COWLES

Since the reorganization of the 197th Infantry Brigade seven months ago, the 1st Battalion (Mech), 58th Infantry (Patriots) has been spending a lot of time on field training exercises (FTX) to reach a combat ready status.

During one of the more recent FTXs, Company A participated in Squad and Platoon attack exercises.



"This exercise is the beginning of bigger and better things to come, such as the platoon and company Annual Training Test (ATT)," said Captain Larry H. Pogue, the company commander..

Private First Class Al Hope, a machinegunner said, "We laid the fire right on target. I never realized my job was so important until that assault. I could really see the results of well placed fire on an objective."

"Live fire exercises are great experiences. I did not think our platoon had the fire power it has until we went through the problem. We hit hard," stated Private First Class Edward Balkcom.

Last week bigger and better things came just as Pogue predicted. This time it was the Annual Training Test for his platoons. These were the first rifle platon ATTs in the 197th Inf. Bde.

"Realism is our main purpose in planning and conducting the ATTs," stated Major Gale R. Zink, the battalion S-3. "If the problem is not realistic, we have not accomplished our training mission."

Providing automatic fire to repel the attacker is the job of Private First Class Al Hop (left) and his assistant, Private First Class Theodore Brown, both of the 3rd Plt., Co. A, 1st Bn. (Mech), 58th Inf., 197th Inf. Bde. (U.S. Army Photograph by Major Willie R. Cage Jr.)

Engineers move "mountains"

Elements of the 43rd Engineer Battalion (CONST) put their earth-moving resources to work during a recent field training exercise by constructing a Squad Automatic Weapons Range Facility for the U. S. Army Infantry Board.

The project, known as Griswold Range, was a rolling piece of terrain covered by brush and scrub trees.

The mission was to level two hills, construct a berm 4.5 meters high and 150 meters long, construct firing positions and target "coffins" and to place a 50 foot by 50 foot concrete pad for computer vans.

This project was scheduled during a five-day exercise designed to test the battalion's earthmoving capability during both day and night operations. Upon receipt of the construction directive, and prior to any construction taking place, a ground reconnaisance of the existing terrain was made in order to estimate the scope of the project.

The proximity to impact areas of other ranges and the frequent use of facilities in the area, required completing the project as quickly as possible.

Analysis of the project, using the "Critical Path Method of Scheduling," showed that the resources of more than one construction company were required so task force was established. Company D was selected as the control headquarters to spearhead the effort and acted as the "prime contractor."

The task force included attachments from all companies of the battalion and included the earth moving platoon of "B" Co., earth moving support from "C" Co., maintenance support from "A" Co. and surveyors and quality control personnel from HHC.

On Oct. 15 the task force went to its bivouac location at Griswold Ranges. Initial construction efforts were made immediately upon arrival at the site and by 2 p.m. that day the entire work force was in action.

By the next evening, Griswold Range had taken on a new appearance. The scrub brush and timber rattlers were gone. In their place were the 50x50 concrete pad, seven firing positions, 40 target coffins and 1100 meters of open terrain ending at a 4.5 meter high berm.

To clear this terrain, a total of 50,000 cubic yards of earth was moved in a four-day period. A high of 19,000 cubic yards was moved on the second day. This was accomplished by using 10 wheeled tractors with scrapers — each capable of moving 22 cubic yards of earth in every haul — and eight bulldozers.

The total yardage of earth moved was the equivalent of a standard military road — 24 feet wide, 6 inches thick — some 7.1 miles long.

PROJECT TRANSITION

Offset printing, lineman and cable splicing, and welding—these classes are being offered by Project Transition to all military personnel who are within six months of their ETS or retirement date. Classes will begin Nov. 19, 1973 and end Jan. 18, 1974. Classes will break for the Christmas holidays from Dec. 19, 1973 until Jan. 7, 1974. Anyone interested in attending one of these classes should contact the Project Transition Office at 545-1183 or come by Bldg. 35, room 241.

SPOKEN GERMAN I

The Army Education Center is offering a course in Spoken German beginning Nov. 26, 1973, and ending Feb. 20, 1974. No classes will be held during the holiday period. Classes will be held on Mondays and Wednesdays, from 7-9 p.m., in Bldg. 35, Room 300. Books will be provided on a loan basis. Dependents of military personnel may enroll only if sponsor is enrolled in the course. For more information or enrollment call 545-7250, Monday through Friday between the hours of 1-4:30 p.m.

BONDS SENT TO WRONG ADDRESS

WASHINGTON (ANF)—Are you missing a savings bond? The U.S. Army Finance Support Agency could have it. More than 110,000 U.S. Savings Bonds have been returned to the finance support agency because service member had moved and did not submit a change of address. A program has been established to obtain unit addresses for remailing of these bonds, however, correct addresses are hard to obtain. If you are missing a savings bond, you should contact your finance officer. Remember, when you move, be sure to submit a change of address for bonds.

FIREARMS REGISTRATION

All privately owned firearms brought on the Fort Benning Reservation must be registered with the Registration Section of the Provost Marshal's Office located on the second floor of Bldg. 83. The hunters must have the firearm registration card in his possession at all times while hunting on the reservation. The Registration Section is open Monday-Friday from 8 a.m. until 4:30 p.m., except holidays. For further information contact Sergeant First Class Overton at 545-4590.

1/29th receives first unit of choice enlistee

Company B (Mechanized), 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry (THE PIONEERS), The School Brigade, has received its first unit-of-choice enlistee since the battalion's reorganization in March of last year.

Private First Class Ronald Eastman enlisted for the 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry, in Boston, Mass. "I told my recruiter that I was interested in joining a mechanized Infantry unit in the Southern United States," said Eastman, "and he told me about the 1-29th — how they had been newly organized, and that the battalion was an elite group of men."

Eastman finished his Advanced Individual Training at Fort Polk, La. in October, but military service is not new to him. The 31-year-old Trinidad, West Indies native, spent four and a half years in the British Army, long before he entertained thoughts of joining the American Army.

"The most noticeable difference in the two armies," said Eastman, "is that the British Army puts a little more emphasis on discipline and rigidity than the America, and the physical training standards are a little higher in Trinidad than over here."

Eastman compared an American Ranger company to that of a typical British unit in so far as physical training is concerned, but stated that American units are of a more professional calibre in everyday training.

"Another big difference in the two armies," continued Eastman, "is that I received more small weapons training in basic and advanced individual training than I did in my entire four-year hitch in the British Army. The small arms training is much more varied and detailed in the United States. In Trinidad, there is great emphasis on the rifle, and not much else."

Originally from Port of Spain, Trinidad, in the West Indies, Eastman now calls Boston his home. He enlisted on the 'buddy system', with a fellow Trinidad native, Herman Samuel, who will be joining him soon at the PIONEER home at Harmony Church.

Eastman is very enthusiastic about his assignment as track commander with the PIONEERS. "I really didn't expect as high a position so soon with my company," he confided. "I guess my past military experience helped me to get the job."

"I really like the PIONEER slogan, 'We Lead the Way,' " said Eastman, "and I am looking forward to supporting my first Infantry School problem, as part of this elite unit, so that I too, may lead the way."

"My husband found himself a younger woman... me."

Donna Danio—Scranton, Pennsylvania

"Elaine Powers gave my husband something I couldn't—a trimmer, younger looking wife. At 174 pounds, I looked and felt years older than 25. Dieting didn't help much, so finally I went to Elaine Powers. The instructors really took a personal interest, and that made a difference. When I got to my goal of 144 pounds, they told me I could be even slimmer. I made it all the way to 124, and size 9! My husband says if I looked any younger, he'd be embarrassed to go out with me."

Win Title

Billy Grant shows his champion form as he hurls a pass

The 139th Military Police Company "Pigs" won the Fort Benning flag football championship to the delighted squeals of their mascot — a buge hog.

The MPs went through the double elimination affair unbeaten, stopping the runner-up 298th Signal Platoon of the 197th Infantry Brigade twice. The final time was a 12-0 shutout for the championship.

The "Pigs" didn't wait long to score as Billy Grant tossed a long scoring pass to Clarence Henderson on the first play from scrimmage.

"All year long we've been a rushing team due to our size and speed," explained Grant, "so everybody expected us to keep on running. We ran the first play like a power sweep, but then I dropped back and threw to Clarence, who was wide open. We really caught them by surprise as we had hoped."

It was a good thing they caught the Signalmen by surprise, because the battle turned into a defensive contest. The Signal Platoon threatened once with an interception return to the MP 20-yard line. But, penalties and a defensive effort by the champions held.

The 139th mounted its second scoring drive following its own interception. Grant threw to Ronald McKenzie for 10 yards and the touchdown that put the game on ice.

This was not the first time MP coach Ron Braddock has been a winner. He piloted the 36th Engineer Group champion basketball winners last year.

"I knew we had the potential to go all the way," he closed, "because we were in some tight ball games this year and never gave up. That makes a difference between losing and winning."

As for the mascot, the MPs showed up with a lively hog dressed with an MP armband and white hat. Everytime the MPs made a good play, which was quite often, the hog would send reverberations through the stadium with his grunts and squeals.

Little wonder the MPs hogged the limelight.

The Rod and Gun Club is now well established in Victory Lodge and all services are in full operation. The entire setup is a big improvement over the old facilities on First Division Road.

The club now has a much larger area for the sales counter, better kitchen facilities and a stag bar where men can come to tell war and hunting stories and a large room for family-type gatherings.

Make plans now for a family visit this weekend. You can go fishing, too. Victory Pond is only a few yards from the club back door.

The skeet, trap and archery ranges are still operating at the First Division Road site.

Turkey Shoot

The club will sponsor a turkey shoot at the skeet ranges tomorrow. The Fort Benning Warrant Officers Association has volunteered to provide the manpower to run the range.

Shooting will begin at 9 a.m. and continue until 4 p.m. Frozen turkeys, weighing from 10-to 12-pounds will be awarded to winners.

All ammunition for the shoot will be provided by the Rod and Gun Club. Competitors may use their personal shotguns.

Range Maps

Provost Marshal personnel are apprehending a large number of hunters for post regulations violations.

The most numerous violators are those hunting in closed areas. The most common excuse is that the hunters became lost. All of those who make this claim aren't soldiers who have just completed basic training. Quite a few have spent a considerable number of years in the Army. They should be able to read a map.

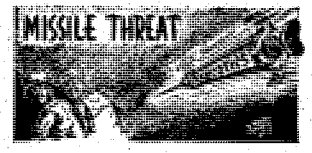
I really believe that most of the people picked up in off-limits areas never bother to check the range maps. These maps show "closed" and "open" areas. They are posted every day and they change just about every day so they must be checked every day.

The maps are located at the Post Range Division, Bldg. 2621, the Provost Marshal Office, Bldg. 215, and at the Rod and Gun Club, Victory Lodge.

Those who don't heed them stand a good chance of being injured or killed and, if this doesn't happen, the odds are that one of the 50-plus game wardens patrolling the reservation will pick them up.

Going into dud and firing areas has to come under the heading of stupidity. All of the deer on the reservation are not worth one human life, or even a foot or leg for that matter.

MP Check Points



More than 1,000 hunters have been checked out at the Provost Marshal check points. Numerous violations have been detected. Most common violations are hunting, or intending to hunt, without a post hunting permit or state hunting license, not wearing the proper safety clothing and carrying loaded weapons in automobiles.

These check points will be operated throughout the hunting season. Hunters can expect to be stopped. You will feel more at ease if you know you aren't violating any regulations. These regulations are available at the Rod and Gun Club. Get a personal copy. Study them. Comply with them, and you will get much more enjoyment out of your hunting trips.

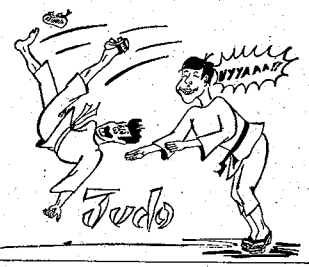
Report Unusual Situations

Accidents will happen, even to the most careful people. A man has a heart attack while hunting, another sprains an ankle or breaks a leg, a hunter might shoot himself. There are any number of accidents that can turn a normally self sufficient individual into one as helpless as a baby. Accidents of this type happen every year. Sometimes the lives of these accident victims depend on someone finding them and finding them can at times depend on the barest lead as to their location.

Hunters can help by reporting unusual situations or happenings to the Provost Marshal Desk Sergeant (545-5222).

Judo Club holds tourney

The Fort Benning Judo Club is inviting the public to an Open Judo Tournament this Saturday, Nov. 17 at Briant Wells Field House.



There will be a Randori exhibition starting at 10 a.m., for ages 6-8. Boys and girls in this age group will be classified using the USJA pool system.

The actual competition will begin at 11 a.m. The Senior divisions are 139,154,176 and the 205 pound heavy-open.

The Junior divisions are from 9-16 years of age and the open division for 171 pounds and over.

Trophies will be awarded to the top three places in each division. The exhibition winners will receive trophies for best technique, best fighting spirit, and sportmanship in the mat.

The tournament is expected to attract contestants from throughout the South. Admission is free. For further information contact SFC Valenzula at 545-4622.

Turkey Tourney starts Sat.

Its still not too late to enter the Recreation Services Turkey Tournament set for Nov. 17-18. The tournament is open to all military, both active duty and retired, with the main course of your Thanksgiving dinner offered as the prize.

An entry fee of $3 will be charged to defray the cost of the prizes.

Turkeys will be awarded to winners and runners-up of all flights. The player who gets closest to the second hole in the first 18 holes and the fourth hole in the second round will also win a turkey.

For further information and registration, please call the Sand Hill Golf Course.

PFC Predicto PICKS!

Drat's!!! Disaster struck Saturday as a Lippy Libbist from D.I.O. was the only one to outpick Predicto's pronostieal powers. That lucky libbist was Sandra Ship.

This weeks victims will be from A-G Military Personel Accounting Section. You couldn't have picked a worst time to go against the Seerer of the Sidelines! He will be using every prognosticating power he has this week to redeem his failure last week.

You too can try to outwit the great predicto by dialing 545-4622/7841.

197th reorganizes sports program

The 197th Infantry Brigade will be trying out a new concept in its organized sports program when the basketball season opens this week.

In the past the brigade has had two leagues, Kelley Hill and Harmony Church. Now each of the five battalions will operate a league.

Each battalion league will have six teams. Five of the teams will come from companies organic to the battalion. The sixth team will come from a company attached to the league for the basketball season.

The 3rd Bn., 7th Inf. league will be made of teams from its five companies and a team from the 179th MID.

HHC, 197th Inf. Bde. will be playing in the league with the batteries from the 2nd Bn., 10th Artillery. A Troop, 15th Cavalry will be with the 2nd Bn., 69th Armor.

The 1st Bn., 58th Inf. league will be joined by the 298th Signal Platoon, and the 72nd Engr. Co. will be playing with the 197th Spt. Bn. league.

Every team will play the other teams in its league at least one time. The games will be scheduled by the individual leagues.

At the end of league play, the first and second place teams of each league will compete in a brigade tournament. The brigade play-off will be a 10-team, double-elimination tournament.

The brigade tournament's winner and runner-up will then go into intensive training for the post championship. The best coaching will be picked from leagues in the brigade to help train the top two teams. The brigade play-off dates are scheduled for Jan. 28-31 and Feb. 4-7.

Marksmen take skeet tourney

Marksmen from the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit were busy pounding out championship scores Nov. 11 on adjoining ranges as a Skeet competitor grabbed the championship of the Fort Benning 300 bird Open International Skeet Tournament and a quartet of handgunners hung up a new national record in the weekend 2700 Grand Aggregate Pistol Championship.

Sp4 David Smith

On the skeet range, young Specialist Four David Smith, Irving, Texas, claimed the two day skeet title when he powdered five rounds of perfect 25s of the six fired Sunday for a high count of 146 which coupled with his leading mark of 142 on Saturday gave him the championship at 288. Runner up honors fell to companion shooter Captain James Whitaker, Baton Rouge, La., with a two day total of 284 while four points further back in third place Sergeant First Class Phillip Rice narrowly edged two top civilian competitors for that honor. The two, Elwood Hunsberger, Philadelphia, Pa., and Dr. Ed Sweat, Cedartown, Ga., each compiled 278 and in the ensuing shoot off, Hunsberger took the fourth place.

On Phillips Pistol Range, a new national record of 1185 in 45 Caliber Pistol was placed in the record books as a four man quartet led by National Pistol Champion Sergeant First Class Hershel Anderson made a clean sweep of the three gun competition. The Army "Blue" team won the Center Fire Pistol event with their 1175 and the 22 Caliber Pistol match with 1181 to go with their winning score in the 45 Caliber Pistol contest. A fourth match, the 45 Caliber Service Pistol, was also taken by the "Blues" when they posted a 1166 of a 1200 possible score. The team, fielded by the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit, included Anderson, Sergeant First Class Harland Rennolds, Sergeant First Class Bonnie Harmon and Sergeant Marvin Black.

JBL SPEAKER CLINIC AT THE SOUND CENTER

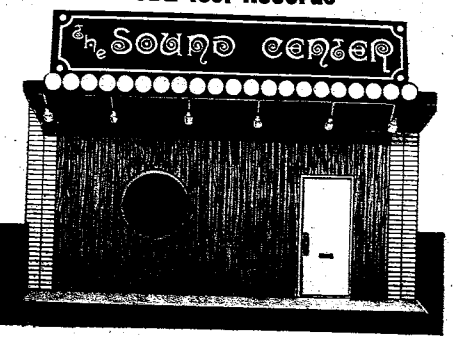
If you are planning to buy a speaker system, now or in the future YOU SHOULD COME TO THIS CLINIC. We will have a complete break down of JBL speakers, with a cut-away of one on display. There will be a film from the JBL factory to show you how the JBL speaker is put together. You will find out why you should buy JBL Speakers. Come by Today!

JBL's Aquarius 4: Don't let the quiet looks fool you. Aquarius 4 started a revolution.

It's a different sound, on everywhere sound. If you want to fill a room with sound, not furniture; if you're even thinking about 4-channel sound, start here.

JBL's Century 100: The most successful loudspeaker ever made, and it's not even an original. It's a copy. JBL stole it from the leading maker of professional recording studio monitors: JBL.



JBL's Lancer 55: Take our word: a pair of JBL Lancer 55's and your 10-Watt amplifier are everything you need to get excited.

JBL's New 88 Plus: The "Plus" is a way to buy a great two-way bookshelf speaker (the JBL 88) that has specifically been designed for conversation to 3-way (the JBL 100). All you'll need is $69, fifteen minutes and a screwdriver.

JBL's Studio Master 200: It's JBL's big studio monitor dressed up for company: oiled walnut enclosure and sculptured grille in Smoke, Raven, Aegean, or Burgundy.

JBL's Flair 45: JBL has what they think is the right sound system for the Flair enclosure; but for the irrepressible buff, JBL offers seven other sound systems for Flair. Some for more, some for less. Come listen to ours first.

LITTLE USED BUT EFFECTIVE WAY TO COVER DIFFICULT AREAS LIKE HEAVY LILY PADS AND WEED BEDS IS TO SKITTLE PLASTIC WORMS OVER TOP OF BASS COVER.

USE UNWEIGHTED WEEDLESS HOOK. TO PREVENT SINKING AND SNAGGING. EITHER HOOK WORM CONVENTIONALLY TO END OF WORM, OR IN MIDDLE. WHILE ACTION IS COMPLETELY UNWORM-LIKE, ACTION ATTRACTS BASS AND WILL PRODUCE STRIKES.

Cook and Ringrose take top honors

More than 200 spectators saw Fort Benning Amateur Dog Handlers Rod Cook and David Ringrose take top honors in their classes at the Amateur Bird Dog Field Trials held Nov. 10 and 11 at Houston Range area on the Alabama side of the Reservation.

Rod Cook teamed with his dog Juniper Buck to place first in the Amateur Derby category while David Ringrose and his dog Juniper Joe were taking the top spot in the Walking Bird Hunters category.

Bird dogs and handlers from throughout the southeast competed for trophies in the meet, sponsored by the Fort Benning Rod and Gun Club.

In the Amateur Derby class it was Rod Cook with Juniper Buck, first; Melvin Kelly with Tough Stuff, second; and Art Yates with Yates Red Rex, third.

The Amateur Shooting Dog winners were: Ed Kilgore with Alex Leslie Lee, first; Ric Coody with Bess, second; and Martin Beasley Dothan with Rip placing third.

Dentists visit schools

All seven schools at Fort Benning were visited recently by twenty teams of dentists and dental hygienists who showed them how to apply fluoride toothpaste and brush their teeth correctly.

The program was sponsored by the Oral Health Clinic under the directionof Colonel Ronald F. Barton. In the past, the self-application programs have taken place over a period of months instead of one week, using only Oral Health Clinic personnel.

This is the first year tht dentists on post have been able to show the children at the dependent schools how to brush their teeth correctly and apply the fluoride paste. A new toothbrush for each child was also provided.

Any parent with a child under school age who wants the treatment for his or her child may come to the Oral Health Control Clinic, Building 1697, or call 545-5972. This also applies to military families living off post.

Jenny Blair brushes her teeth during the self-application program sponsored by the post Oral Health Control Clinic recently.

Bishop wins Derby

Gene Bishop of Cub Pack 39, Fort Benning took high honors in the pack's annual rocket derby.

The son of Staff Sergeant Wilfred and Pat Bishop took first place in the double elimination competition by beating 28 other boys.

Finishing second was David Smith, son of Sergeant First Class Pat and Betty Smith. Robley Evans III, son of Sergeant First Class Robley and Liane Evans was third. All three boys are 10 years old and members of the Webelo den.

Nine-year-old Michael Ring from Den 5 received a trophy for best display. This was judged by the amount of work done by father and son together and by the amount of work and effort the boy did himself. He is the son of First Sergeant Paul and Louise Ring.

The event was made possible by Staff Sergeant Fredrick E. Horn, Pack 39, cubmaster, and Sergeant First Class Pat Smith, committee chairman.

Ten-year-old Gene Bishop, Fort Benning Cub Pack 39

Scouts hold adult appreciation night

The Fort Benning district of the Chattahoochee Council of Boy Scouts will hold its annual Adult Appreciation Night Friday, Nov. 16 at 7 p.m. in the Columbus Municipal Auditorium.

Awards will be given to adult volunteers who have worked with the Scouts during the past years and to parents of some 40 troops or packs in the district.

Guest speaker for the dinner will be Mayor Bob Hydrick of Columbus. Other distinguished guests will include Major General Thomas M. Tarpley, Fort Benning commander; Colonel James M. Thompson, Fort Benning Scout district chairman; Colonel Sterling Wetherell, post chaplain; and Mayor Pro Tem A. J. McClung.

More than 700 people are expected to attend this annual event.

Red Cross brightens patients' holiday

For patients at Martin Army Hospital Christmas Eve is the climax of efforts by hospital Red Cross recreation staff and the community.

During the preceding days and weeks, groups from Fort Benning and civilian community make their holiday contribution of time, refreshments, and sometimes presents or prizes.

Then on Christmas Eve, all patients receive stockings, made and packed by Fort Benning Girl Scout troops. The contents are contributed by individuals and community groups through eight Red Cross chapters in surrounding Georgia counties, and Phenix City. The gifts are packed by Future Homemakers of America at Baker High School during a "wrap-in" at the patients' recreation lounge.

Santa Claus, also known as Captain Richard L. Gladfelter, with his Red Cross Recreation staff helpers, distribute the stockings as local volunteers provide music.

MAPTOE

A new concept in management

What is MAPTOE? A new navigational aid? A treatise on anatomic science? Well, it's neither one.

MAPTOE, Management Practices in Table of Organization and Equipment Units, is a new long range program designed to help unit leaders and soldiers do their job easier and better through the use of modern management techniques.

The purpose of the program is to increase productivity and improve quality, making optimum use of men, material, money and time.

The MAPTOE Training Committee, organized at Fort Benning under the comptroller, presents all periods of MAPTOE instruction. The committee consists of one officer and four noncommissioned officers.

The program is presented to senior commanders and staff personnel in a one-hour orientation course. A four-hour appreciation course is presented to company commanders and command sergeants major and a 24-hour course of instruction is given to first line managers.

In the MAPTOE program, the first topic is a review of basic principles of management process. Next, MAPTOE teaches how to analyze a work center and its personnel through the use of task lists, activity lists and a work distribution chart.

Next, MAPTOE students learn how to use a flow process chart. Then comes training in developing and using a layout chart. This chart gives a pictorial display of how work flows through your work center in relation to its physical arrangement.

The aim of all these techniques is to help study the work center and come up with improvements.

Once this is accomplished, the next major area is work measurement. Here the students learn how to develop these standards, based on historical data and experience.

The student also learns simple quality assurance techniques. Two techniques stressed are management by objectives, using work measurement standards to set goals for your personnel or your center and management by exception, whereby the manager can quickly identify problem areas that need attention and take appropriate action.

Classes are from 8 a.m. to noon, Monday through Thursday during the first week and ending on Friday during the third week with a result session.

By the end of the first week, the student should be able to apply the management techniques he has learned in class to his work center and compile them into a manager's handbook.

During the second week the student stays in his work center and applies what he has learned. Instructor personnel visit the students during that week to assist them with any problems with their manager's handbook and applying the MAPTOE techniques.

On Friday of the third week, students are required to bring their completed handbook in for examination at a "result session." Finally, each student must submit an acceptable suggestion for the improvement of the operation of his work center.

Upon satisfactory completion of the course, the students receive a certificate of satisfactory completion of MAPTOE training signed by the commanding general. Honor students receive a letter of commendation for their personnel records.

The general goal of MAPTOE is to get soldiers and Department of the Army civilians to think about management and to use manager techniques and terms in a relatively uniform and consistant way.

MAPTOE is located in Bldg. 2531 on main post. For further information concerning MAPTOE, please call 545-1012-7661.

The Heritage Singers will present a program of inspirational music for the patients and staff at Martin Army Hospital at 2:30 p.m. Nov. 20. They will also perform at the Indianhead Road Chapel at 7:30 p.m. These singers are a group of modern day gospel singers on a nationwide tour.

Prestige.

BMW Bavaria.

To people in the know, the brilliant new BMW Bavaria may well be the most prestigious car in the world today. All over Europe, for example, it has replaced another famous German make as the "in" car. With all its great elegance and superb craftsmanship, the Bavaria gives you fantastic performance and matchless roadholding, making it one of the best road machines going. Come in and take a test-drive. Find out the real meaning of the word prestige.

Old motor oil is recycled for heating

The Directorate of Facilities Engineering didn't wait for a crisis to develop a proceedure for using old motor oil for heating.

According to Mr. Hilton Roberts, Chief of Mechanical Branch, this system has been in effect at Fort Benning since October 1972.

"Once the oil is drained from the vehicle," explains Mr. Roberts, "the different organizations bring it to a central drop-off point located on main post. The oil is then pumped out of the drums and into storage tanks which hold 40,000 gallons."

One of the main contributors of oil for this project is the 197th Infantry Brigade.

"Within the last six months," states Captain Charles W. Likens, assistant S-4 of the 197th Inf. Bde., "the 197th has contributed 5,500 gallons of oil for the project."

Private Julio R. Malavez, a mechanic with C Battery, 2nd Battalion, 10th Field Artillery, 197th Inf. Bde., thinks that the operation is a good idea.

"With the way population and inflation is going," says Malavez, "who knows what will happen in the next few years as far as petroleum for heating is concerned."

"I think that this is a great idea for conserving fuel," Pvt. Malavez continues, "but I feel that everyone should consider ways to save their old oil for similar projects."

"It's no extra work for us," states specialist four Steve W. Harmon, a mechanic for C Battery, 2/10th Art., "we had to drain the oil into drums before this new project was started."

The oil is then kept in the storage tanks for one to two weeks to permit the oil to separate from any water or sludge that may have been mixed in with it.

"On an average," Mr. Roberts continued, "we receive more than 5,000 gallons of oil each month. During the past year we have received over 65,000 gallons."

The oil is then pumped out of the storage tanks and taken to the Central Boiler Plant Number One. Here it is mixed with a Number Six fuel oil at a ratio of one to three and is placed in another storage tank to keep until it is needed.

"As far as we know, Fort Benning was the first Army installation to start using this proceedure," states Mr. Roberts.

Lung cancer

is a preventable disease

"Dying from most forms of cancer is needless dying. Usually, early diagnosis and treatment will save a life from the disease," says Dr. Robert H. Vaughan, Chairman of the Board of the Columbus-Ft. Benning Unit, American Cancer Society. "But lung cancer is very difficult to diagnose early, and once it is discovered the odds for survival are not in the patient's favor. Currently, only about nine per cent of those with lung cancer are being saved.

"Still," Dr. Vaughan went on to say, "dying from lung cancer is usually needless dying because three out of four cases are caused by cigarette smoking. It is largely a preventable disease. The increase of lung cancer among men has reached epidemic proportions as more who have been smoking for several years reach the age groups that are critical for the development of the disease. In fact, Dr. Vaughan said, lung cancer is the most common and the most deadly type of cancer for men.

"As more women take up the cigarette habit, their death rate climbs too. And smoking during pregnancy affects the unborn child as well as the mother. Women who smoke during pregnancy have more miscarriages, stillbirths, and premature births than women who abstain. And the later health of the child after birth may be affected.

"Many people have quit smoking. About 75% of the doctors who used to smoke have given up the habit. We are the American Cancer Society believe that the choice of whether or not to smoke is a personal one, but we want everyone to have all the facts before the choice is made.

"If you are a young person who is thinking about smoking, you owe it to yourself to get all the facts before you get all the habit. Or if you are a seasoned smoker who wants to quit, we have some ideas that may make it easier for you. Please call the ACS in Columbus today." 324-5614.

Letter to the Editor The energy crisis

In response to the appeal made by the President in his recent analysis of the current energy crisis, all possible means of solving the problem are being explored. Steps are already being taken, in government, industry and by concerned private citizens, to conserve fuel through elimination of wasteful practices, reduced speed on the highways, and cutback of fuel consumption for nonessential activities. Fuel rationing is being considered as a real possibility for the near future.

Legislation to permit use of highway funds for mass transit, year-around daylight savings time, relaxation of environmental protection standars, and the accelerated development of new sources of energy is being given top priority in an effort to provide a permanent solution to the dilemma.

One of the most disturbing aspects of the current crisis is the adverse impact many of these solutions will have upon other equally ciritical problems — those of pollution and the conservation of our natural resources.

With the shortage of petroleum based fuels, more coal will be used to take up the slack. Limitations on its usage will of necessity have to be relaxed. Many clean air standards designed for public health and safety, will go by the boards. While some of this is unavoidable let us try to minimize the use of "dirty fuels". Our fight to clean up the filthy air and water around us is only in its infancy and we are taking our first faltering steps to repair the damage done by many years of carelessness. Let's not reverse the process. Caution and restraint are clearly indicated in the relaxation of our clean air standards.

In our haste to develop new sorces of energy, we must be careful that they cannot be abused. We must be very sure that we do not "steal from tomorrow" to take care of today.

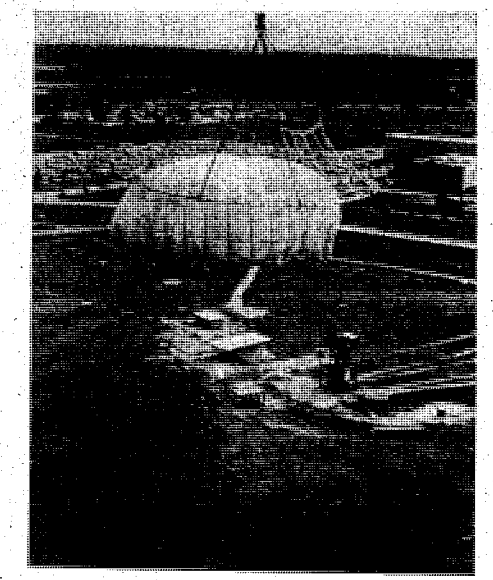
First WAC's in history of Army go Airborne

A new dimension was added to the Airborne training program at the U. S. Army Infantry School when Privates Joyce Kutsch and Rita Johnson become the first women students in the three-week parachute training course.

Arriving Monday Nov. 19, after completion of the WAC Basic Course, both women plan to graduate in mid-December and go on for specialized training to become parachute riggers, one of the previously all-male military specialties recently opened to women. While Army policy clearly precludes women from combat, assignment of women as riggers will release male riggers for combat unit assignements.

Parachute riggers have a creed that they will "jump" any chute that they or a fellow rigger packs. Thus, all riggers — including women — must be able to jump. During World War II this rule was relaxed and about 100 women were trained as non-jumping parachute riggers, but Privates Kutsch and Johnson will be the first women since that time to be trained for the job, and the first ever to undergo airborne training.



Colonel Robert Tully, director of the Infantry School's Airborne Department, reports that the women will undergo similar training to the man's, with a few exceptions. The physical fitness qualifications will be slightly modified in recognition of the anatomical differences between men and women, and of the fact that, unlike most of the men in the course, the women will not be training to be combat paratroopers.

"For instance," he says, "they will not be jumping with any type of equipment. They also will not be jumping under dangerous weather conditions onto rugged drop zones. And they will not be having to make forced marches behind enemy lines. So we modified the physical requirements to fit the conditions. These women will have to be physically fit before they can jump, but that's only as fit as they must be for their jobs as women parachute riggers. We ran some tests to see what physical ability a woman would have to attain to jump safely. And, we put the stress on safety; we will not let anyone make a jump who we feel cannot do so safely."

Here is the physical fitness test for the WAC Airborne course contrasted to the Basic Airborne course for males:

Exercise	WAC Number	Male Number
Standing press with barbell (25 lbs.)	6	6 chinups
Knee benders	50 in 2 min.	80 in 2 min.
Situps	20 modified	20
Pushups	22 modified	22
One mile run	10 minutes	8½ minutes

They will do the woman's situps and pushups instead of the man's. And, because of the smaller stride while running, the women will have a longer time period to complete the mile run.

The standing press with barbell is replacing the chinups because most women can't pull their weight up. The standing press will develop the same muscles needed to pull on the risers above their head when they are jumping.

There have been no modifications in the equipment. The women will jump with the same parachutes as the men, since these are the chutes they will be jumping with when they become riggers.

"There is a great deal of difference in the military parachute and the sport parachute used by women and men who jump as a sport," Col. Tully points out. "You land much harder with the military chute, so you must be in better shape and know what you are doing. We expect the women to at least equal and possibly exceed, the technical proficiency of the men. This will offset any physical limitations."

Because this is the first time women have attended airborne, some "special attention" will be given to Privates Kutsch and Johnson. They are arriving ahead of the men students to get oriented and familiarize themselves with personal gear and equipment that men use during basic training but women don't. They will receive individual attention from assigned instructors during the course to make sure that no unforeseen problems arise. They will take physical training separately from the men, and they will be billeted at Wilkin Hall with those WACs who attend other courses at the U. S. Army Infantry Center.

Tankers become foot soldiers

Tankers are coming out of their tanks at Fort Benning to conserve fuel.

That's right. Tankers in the 2d Battalion, 69th Armor of the 197th Infantry Brigade at Fort Benning will become foot soldiers for a change of command ceremony.

Instead of the traditional mounted review, tankers will pass in review dismounted. The move is being taken as another step to reduce fuel consumption due to the national shortage.

It is estimated that approximately 75 tracked and wheeled vehicles would normally take part in the mounted pass in review. These vehicles — counting the two normal practices prior to the ceremony — would consume approximately 2500 gallons of diesel fuel and 750 gallons of gas.

Lieutenant Colonel Warren J. Walton will be assuming command in the 11 a.m. ceremony on Friday, Nov. 30 at York Field. He will assume command from Lieutenant Colonel Watha Eddins, who will assume duties as deputy commander of the 197th Infantry Brigade.

WE ARE INTERESTED IN ENERGY CONSERVATION

We at the National Bank of Fort Benning would like to go on record as saying "We will be glad to do our part in the energy conservation effort."

We're serious about this. We have begun by cutting back on electricity when possible. We have adjusted the heating and cooling thermostats in order to use less power. We have encouraged car pools by employees and have rewarded those who participate. We even offer reduced rate loans to those customers who finance a car with four or six cylinders.

Our part in the conservation program is relotively small, but if we can influence our neighbors to cooperate, we feel our efforts are well worth it.

We encourage our friends, both individuals and businesses, to join us in this step toward a better economy and a better environment.

Inattention is cancer's greatest danger

Woman, know thyself

By Edith Martin

Cancer may be the most frightening word in today's vocabulary. Yet, if detected early, it is the most curable of all major diseases.

As a woman, you should look after the organs that make you physically a woman. Your health is very much your business and nobody can take care of it for you.

The two most common forms of cancer in women are breast and uterine.

However, many women fear the loss of femininity associated with treatments of these diseases.

With simple, easy methods of checkup, the danger of death and disfigurement can be greatly reduced.

Next week, Nov. 25- Dec. 1 is cancer awareness week at Fort Benning. For information on programs during the week, see the box.

Cancer Awareness Week

Classes for all women on post will highlight Cancer Awareness Week, beginning Nov. 26, at Fort Benning. Two films, on breast self-examination and uterine cancer, will be shown during the Nov. 27 class at 10 a.m. and the Nov. 30 class at 2 p.m. at the Main Post Theater.

Dr. (Col.) Donald Ellis, chief of surgery at Martin Army Hospital, will be present both days for a question-answer period. Nurses will also be present to answer personal questions.

There will also be a free Pap Test and breast check at the Health Center on Talbotton Rd. Nov. 28 and Nov. 30 from 6-9 p.m.

Uterine Cancer

Cancer of the uterus is the presence of abnormal cells which multiply and destroy the tissue they live in.

This form of cancer usually begins in the lower part of the womb, or cervix. If allowed to develop, the cancer cells can spread to the vagina, bladder and rectum. These cancer cells can also travel through the blood stream and lymphatic system to attack other parts of the body.

Symptoms of uterine cancer are unusual bleeding and discharge. These are the signs of the established disease.

Pap Test

There is a better and earlier way to catch this disease. Get a Pap test.

The Pap test is simply collecting some cells from the vagina and examining them under the microscope. This test finds cancer before bleeding starts. It can also locate precancerous conditions.

If every woman had such a test every year, most uterine cancer could be caught and cured. In the 40 years since the test was developed, death from this disease has dropped 65 per cent.

Treatment

Once uterine cancer is discovered, treatment varies for the individual patient. In surgery, the goal is to remove all the cancerous tissue. The extend of the operation depends on the extent of the cancer.

The other treatment is radiation. Here, X-rays or cobalt doses are used to kill the cancer without harming the healthy tissue.

Breast Cancer

Cancer of the breast may be the most feared disease to strike a woman. The very name of the disease calls up visions of removed breasts, disfigurement, and loss of feminine appeal.

Yet, breast cancer like uterine cancer is easily cured in the early stages.

Detection of breast cancer starts with self examination. Most women, about 95 per cent, who have the disease, found it themselves.

The important thing to remember about a breast lump is that 80 per cent are not cancerous but only your doctor can tell for sure.

Self Examination

Breast self-examination (BSE) starts after the menstrual period. Just after a shower, slide your fingers gently over each breast feeling for a lump or thickening.

Then, lie down with one hand behind your head. With your free hand, feel the breast under the uplifted arm. Keep the fingers flattened and press lightly. Don't forget to repeat the process for the other breast.

The best way is to begin over the nipple and work in circles to the outside of the breasts. Be sure to go all the way down to the armpit.

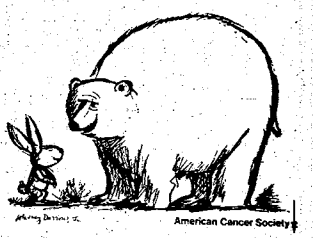
The entire procedure takes five minutes a month and could add years to your life if you are one of the 75,000 women who will have breast cancer next year.

Treatment

Again, surgery and radiation treatment are the two most successful ways of treating breast cancer. Specific methods will be worked out for each patient based on the spread of the disease.

Other methods of detection

There are three other methods of discovering breast cancers.



Mammography is a simple X-ray exam of the breast.

Xeroradiography is mammography with the picture coming out on a piece of paper, rather than film.

Thermography shows an image of heat patterns flowing from the breast. The cancerous areas produce more heat.

These three methods can detect breast cancer before it turns into a lump.

And the earlier the detection, the better the cure.

All cancer affects women

Although breast and uterine cancers are the most prevalent cancers in women, the ladies are not immune to other types.

The best protection against all forms of cancer is a regular periodic health examination. The checkup should include a chest X-ray, a procto of the lower bowel area, and, of course, a pelvic exam and Pap smear, and a breast exam.

Cancer has several warning signals. Know these and consult your doctor. Usually, these do not mean cancer but only your doctor knows for sure.

1. Change in bowel and bladder habits.
2. A sore that doesn't heal.
3. Unusual bleeding or discharge.
4. Thickening or lump in the breast or elsewhere.
5. Indigestion or difficulty in swallowing.
6. Obvious change in wart or mole.
7. Nagging cough or hoarseness.

Don't stay away from the doctor. Get your yearly exam and practice BSE.

If you should develop a cancer, your doctor knows best how it should be treated. Don't trust quacks. The cure rate of cancer is good. Today, more than 1.5 million Americans can say "I had cancer and am cured."

With regular exams and trust in your doctor, you can be part of that group if you should develop cancer.

SHOWCASE

83rd FIELD ARTILLERY

The officers' wives of C Battery, 83rd Field Artillery enjoyed a relaxing lunch at Ireland's Restaurant on Oct. 31. The gals enjoyed a day off with no business involved. The hostess for the occasion was Mary Kathrine Horner.

On Nov. 8, the wives of the officers of the 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry enjoyed a tour of Rowe's Furniture.

BBOD

On Nov. 8, the BBOD wives attended a luncheon at the Supper Club in the cheerful setting of the "country store". The event was hosted by the ladies of Tactics Group.

Mrs. Lawrence L. Mowery, wife of BBOD battalion commander, welcomed Mrs. Robert L. Richardson as well as several other guests.

The highlight of the afternoon was the program in which Tactics Group ladies modeled fashions from the OWC Thrift Shop. "Second Hand Rose", an important customer at the Thrift Shop, was played by Mrs. Thomas Griffen, the fashion coordinator was played by Mrs. Wayne Kleinstiver, and guest entertainer was Mrs. Michael Downs, who sang "I Enjoy Being a Girl" and "I Feel Pretty". The OWC choral group, Benning Belles, were also guest entertainers. The well-received program was written and directed by Mrs. Eugene Lednicky.

5th BATTALION, TSB

The Bingo Bake Sale sponsored by O.C. wives on Nov. 7 was very successful. All types of bingo games were played: postage stamp, T-type, and completely covered cards were among some of them. The prizes for winners were donated by the wives.

* *

Nov. 8 was the Senior Status Coffee. Guests were Capt. Johnson, Mrs. Robert Farris, and Mrs. Allen Goodson. Capt. Johnson gave a very informative talk on the meaning of Senior Status; including the extra privileges and the added responsibility.

2nd BN., 10th FIELD ARTILLERY

Sixteen ladies from the 2nd Battalion, 10th Field Artillery visited the elderly residents of Parkwood Nursing Home in Phenix City. With the proceeds from a tour of Raymond Rowe Furniture Co. in Columbus, which the ladies made in the summer, they were able to purchase refreshments and nail polish to take with them. This charitable project was suggested to the battalion by Mrs. Jerry Nowels, who at one time was employed as a nurse at Parkwood.

Some of the battalion ladies were kept busy washing and setting hair, others did manicures, while others spent time talking with the residents. The men and women especially enjoyed having young children around, as some of the ladies had brought their children with them. Mrs. Curtis Hoglan, wife of the battalion commander, has suggested that another trip to a nursing home be planned for the spring.

Mrs. Richard Noack, instructs several of the ladies of the 2nd Bn., 10th F.A. in the intricacies of making beautiful pine cone wreaths.

DAWT

Few individuals know the full scope of any one department supporting The School Brigade (TSB). The Department of Army-Wide Training (DAWT) helped a small group, Nov. 13, understand better their function in TSB.

Col. Wm. R. Guthrie, department director, and Lt. Col. Edward Monahan presented a briefing explaining the purposes and procedures of DAWT. The function of DAWT is to supply written texts to support training of the National Guard, ROTC, some 300 Army Correspondence Courses as well as the Infantry School here a Fort Benning.

Col. Guthrie went on to explain the long process of putting the text together, getting it printed, packaged and sent to the instructors, commanders, or individual students.

Catalogs are compiled and sent to company commanders throughout the active and reserve Army and systems are set up to respond to the needs of the CO's with speed, accuracy and very little expense.

All this is only a portion of DAWT. They are also coordinating experiments in sending training teams to visit reserve units. Training facilities are also available at Fort Benning.

A tour of the DAWT's offices and warehouses rounded out the fascinating study of this department's contributions to TSB and the Army.

A luncheon followed at the Fort Benning Country Club for the officers, civilians and wives of DAWT. After lunch, Mrs. Wm. R. Guthrie welcomed the special guests for the tour and luncheon, Capt. and Mrs. Joseph M. Jakubowski. Capt. Jakubowski is the commander of the 14th Company, 1st Battalion, TSB, to which all the military personnel of DAWT come under.

SHOWAT HERE

Also welcomed were Capt. and Mrs. Philip A. Richey, Capt. and Mrs. Ronald Grinnel and Mrs. Harold Clark.

Bazaar items, made by the ladies of DAWT, were previewed on a display table during the luncheon.

NCOWC HARVEST BAZAAR

Santa's helpers were busy for weeks before the day of the NCOWC Annual Harvest Bazaar, Nov. 10. Ceramics and other handicrafted gifts that filled the porch of the Fort Benning Christmas Store, were made by NCOWC members.

Other items for sale were contributed by NCO Wives' Clubs across the nation and around the world. A silver tray from England was sold, as were native dolls from Hawaii and Japan. A club in Okinawa donated a black lacquered plate with matching chopsticks, a stein was sent from Germany and a small replica of the "Pieta" arrived from Italy.

The bazaar was almost a sell-out, with the proceeds going into the NCOWC General Fund. Mrs. Thurston Massey was this year's bazaar chairman for the Ways and Means Committee.

USAIS

The officers' wives of the Office of the Secretary held their monthly coffee Nov. 8, at the home of Mrs. Paul Mueller.

Mrs. Dan Richard conducted a short business meeting and assigned the work schedule for the upcoming OWC Bazaar. She also announced plans for the Office of the Secretary Christmas Party on Dec. 22. Farewells were said to Mary Ellen Miller whose husband, Capt. Jerry Miller, is leaving the Army to get his masters degree. Special guest at the coffee was Mrs. William Richardson.

The recent weekend in Destin was discussed and all agreed that this should become an annual event. A great time was had by all. The weather was beautiful, the fishing was great off the pier and even though the water was cold some of the braver members of the group went water skiing. The only changes that need to be made at Destin before an outing next year are the legalization of bonfires and the liquidation of those flies.

The next coffee will be held Dec. 13 at the home of Mrs. Robert Rivielle.

COMBAT DEVELOPMENTS

Combat Developments found itself shipwrecked on the Officers' Club main ballroom decks. Material Systems Division created a tropically nautical atmosphere to host a buffet and dance.

Recent castaways were hailed: Lt. Col. and Mrs. Francis Percy, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Ronald Weiher, and Maj. and Mrs. George Venti Jr.

Farewells were bid to those whose ship had arrived: Maj. and Mrs. Wade Whitley, Maj. and Mrs. Donald Whitlock, Maj. and Mrs. Joseph Blinkewicz, and Maj. and Mrs. Douglas Hughes.

Prizes were awarded for three categories of costumes. Most creative was rescued by Lt. Col. Howard Parks in his dashing yachting attire. Ugliest was swamped by Mr. Richard Gile, who was a seasoned fisherman. "Workingest" was carried away by Lt. Col. Richard Knutson, who left the engine firing room as the ship floundered.

The Blue Notes provided music for dancing.

The ladies of Combat Developments gathered for a fall fling on Oct. 17 at the Keith Bissell's quarters. Hostesses for the coffee were Madames Keith Bissell, Wade Whitley, and Walter Jones.

The crisp, autumn air was soon forgotten — lost in the warmth of hot apple cider, coffee, and bloody Marys.

Mrs. Ronald Weiher and Mrs. Francis Percy were warmly welcomed. Sad adieus were bid to Mrs. Douglas Hughes, Mrs. Roger Watson, Mrs. Robert Thompson and Mrs. A. F. F. H. Robertson.

The November coffee will be hosted by Madames Walter Ginger, Richard Knutson, and Lawrence Reddell.

AIRBORNE WIVES

Nov. 7 found the Airborne Wives at the home of Mrs. Mark Ponzillo Jr. for their monthly coffee. Mrs. Jerry C. Goodenough was the co-hostess.

It was suggested that the Dec. meeting be a luncheon-Christmas Party, and plans are being formulated for having it at the Villula Tea Gardens in Seale, Alabama, on Dec. 1. All Airborne Ladies will be contacted by phone when the arrangements are complete. In addition, each lady is to bring a gift of not more than $2 to exchange at the luncheon.

Thrift Shop volunteers for Thurs., Dec. 6, are Mrs. Kenneth R. Johnston and Mrs. Raymond E. Clay.

1st BATTALION, TSB

A trip to Hamilton House is a delightful change from the regular monthly coffees, say the ladies of the 1st Battalion, The Student Brigade (TSB).

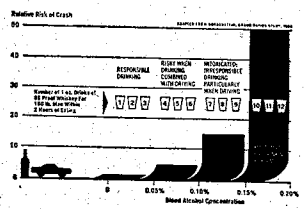
Mrs. Allen Goodson, wife of TSB commander, was welcomed as a special guest and a short business meeting was conducted in the Fort Benning home of Mrs. Gordon Marler before the ladies set out for Hamilton, Ga.

The elegant old house converted to a restaurant is still in the process of remodeling, but the excellent menu dismissed all other thoughts or diversion.

When the ladies finally bid farewell to Gen. Robert E. Lee, they vowed to return and hoped the proposed Hamilton House shuttle bus and nursery will be in effect on their next trip.

Price increases announced

DALLAS — Major General C. W. Hospelhorn, Commander of the Army and Air Force Exchange Service (AAFES), today announced price increases for some items of merchandise.



Effective immediately, increases have been added to greeting cards and light bulbs, plus some food and drink items.

Customers in the Continental United States will likewise begin paying more for books and periodicals.

"The Exchange Service strives to hold prices stable, "General Hospelhorn said, "but the rate of inflation leaves no alternative."

The general said price increases continue to face the customer. Around the first of the year, prices will go up on a broader range of items and services worldwide. He also added that price increases not withstanding, the customer will continue to receive a substantial savings by shopping at the exchange.

M.A.H. holds casualty exercise

Martin Army Hospital conducts a mass casualty exercise annually. This training is required by the American Hospital Association for purposes of accreditation.

This year the mock disaster occurred at 1:15 p.m., Friday, Nov. 16, with a simulated collison of two chinook helicopters landing at Dickman Field, Fort Benning, Georgia, during an air-assault training exercise. Approximately 50 casualties with various injuries, both external and internal, and many in shock were brought to the Emergency Room, Martin Army Hospital.

For purposes of realism the 1st Bn., 58th Inf., 197th Inf. Bde. provided personnel to act as the casualties. The 34th Med Bn. provided a helicopter to transport some of the casualties from Dickman Field to Martin Army Hospital.

The big print shouts about tobacco taste and pleasure; the small print gets to the nitty gritty: how much tar and nicotine each cigarette contains. Protect yourself: smoke low tar and nicotine brands; better yet, don't smoke at all.

EASTERN IS WORKING HARDER FOR YOUR DOLLAR

When you have a 72 hour pass every minute counts.

This is the time of year when you want to fly home and see your family. Celebrate the holidays with some old friends.

And take hold of your girl and tell her you've missed her.

Whether home is a big city or a small town, let Eastern take you there.

We take over a half million servicemen home for the holidays each year. So if you have a 72-hour pass or a two-week holiday leave, we know what it's like to have a lot to do and only a little time to do it in.

From Columbus to Atlanta, we have 2 daily nonstop flights.

Military Reservation Fare $11. Military Standby $9. From Atlanta you can pick up connections to New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Washington, and Chicago to mention a few of the cities we fly to.

If home is in the southwest, our connecting service via Atlanta to Houston and Dallas/Ft. Worth can get you home quickly with more time to spend with family and friends.

Regular Military fares are good on every Eastern flight, anywhere in the U.S. Any time, except 2 pm to midnight on Fridays and Sundays. And Military Standby is available at any time on all Eastern domestic flights.

Call your SATO office or Eastern at 324-4781 in Columbus. Then call home and tell them you're on your way.

EASTERN The Wings of Man.

"The Wings of Man" is a Registered Service Mark of Eastern Air Lines, Inc.

Vows exchanged in hospital

Specialist Five Earnest Edwards, 2nd Ranger Company, Fort Benning, Georgia and Miss Carrie Hammonds were married on Ward A-7, Martin Army Hospital, Tuesday November 13.

Sp5 Edwards and Miss Hammonds had already made plans to be married before his admission to hospital, so they decided to change the place — not the plans.

The hospital personnel rallied to the occasion. The ward and Red Cross personnel decorated the ward and food service personnel furnished a wedding cake and punch.

Best man, Sgt. Michael Bradford watches intently while Sp4 Earnest Edwards and Miss Carrie Hammonds exchange wedding vows in the ward at Martin Army Hospital, Fort Benning, Georgia.

Captain Ronald B. Foss bade farewell to the 10th Co., 1st Bn, TSB in a change of command ceremony held Monday, Nov. 12, in Wigle Hall. Gaking up the helm ofsthe company is Captain Dennis M. Savage. The traditional passing of the guidon was witnessed by numerous guests, including Colonel Allen M. Goodson, Commander, TSB.

Savage comes to 10th Co. from battalion headquarters, where he served as adjutant. He is Ranger qualified, a master parachutist, and wears the combat infantry badge.

Foss departs the command for an assignment with the Recruiting Command. In his remarks Lueutenant Colonel Donald C. Bowman, Commander, 1st Bn, TSB, eited the hard work and splendid performance of Foss, and the accomplishments of 10th Co. under his command.

The 145th Aviation Battalion has cited Specialist Five William K Haris of the 121st Aviation Company as its outstanding Soldier of the Month of October.

Harris who works as the 121st Aviation Company's Flight Operations NCOIC, entered the Army at Fort Polk, La. where he completed Basic Training in March of 1967. He then spent three tours in Viet Nam beginning in 1968 with the 1stCavalry; in 1969 with the 199th Infantry Brigade at Long Bien; and in 1971 with the 48th Assault Helicotper Company at Marble Mountain Army Air Field. Prior to being assigned to the 121st Aviation Company in October of 1972 Specialist Harris was with the 205th Aviation Company.

For his achievement Harris received a Letter of Appreciation from his Battalion Commander, a twenty-five dollar savings bond, a certificate of achievement and a plaque from the Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning Chaptvf the Association of the United States Army.

Brightening up the 524th Personnel Service Company's Field Training Exercise last week were these five smiling faces. They served the evening meal to more than 80 men undregoing the training. 524th completes training exercise

More than 80 members of the 524th Personnel Service Company and two members of the 13th Public Information Detachment completed a 48-hour Field Training Exercise on Nov. 18. "The men proved, to our satisfaction, that they are a top notch unit," said Captain Artha L. Grace, 524th commander and First Sergeant Robert Hymes agreed.

"The exercise was very successful," Grace added. He explained that the main mission during the FTX was to qualify with the M16 rifle and to become more familiar with the M79 Granade Launcher and the M60 machine gun.

The main function of the 524th Personnel Service Company is to maintain the personnel records for the 36th Engineer Group, 145th Aviation Battalion, 34th Medical Battalion and Headquarters Command.

Soldiers of Company C, 1st Battalion (Mech), 58th Infantry (Patriots), 197th Infantry Brigade enjoyed a Thanksgiving feast composed chiefly of roast turkey, such as this succulent bird, served by one of the company's cooks, Pvt. Ricky L. White of Crossett, Ark. (Photo by Bob Cowles)

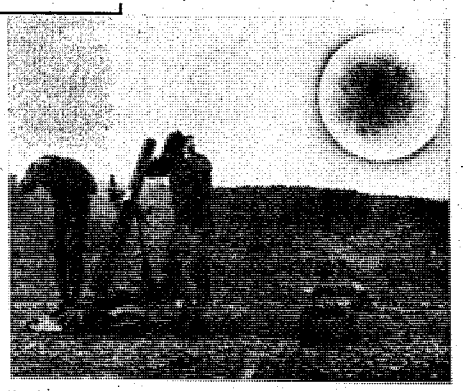
Job opens for retired NCO

Non-commissioned officers who have recently retired or who plan to do so in the near future may be interested in applying for a position as physical training instructor at Valley Forge Military Academy and Junior College in Wayne, Pennsylvania.

A retired NCO with combination background as paratrooper and/or drill instructor is wanted for this position. He must be an individual of high standards, physically fit and able to work with young men.

The salary for the position is $7,000 plus, with benefits including housing allowance. Those interested in applying should call or write Colonel Walter R. Badham, Director of Physical Training, Valley Forge Military Academy and Junior College, Wayne, Pennsylvania 19087, telephone 215-688-1800.

2/10th observes safety day



The Redlegs of the 2nd Battalion, 10th Field Artillery disdained the use of alcoholic beverages to emphasize their safety awareness during a battalion-wide Safety Day Nov. 21.

A young go-go dancergyrated to the beat of a rock music band as the 197th Infantry Brigade's artillerymen drank nonalcoholic beverages, and observed safety slogans and posters. They also received characteristic jolts from rides on the "seat belt convincer," a device which simulates the shock of impact from a five mile-per-hour collision.

In conjunction with the Safety Day observation, each Redleg owning an automobile submitted the vehicle for a safety inspection conducted by the battalion.

The modern Army is in a constant state of change. New ideas and concepts are taking hold every day. However, some things will always be with the Army. Specialist Four Greg Poole of HHC, TSB demonstrates one of them as he performs the age old tradition of shining shoes. (Photo by George Korda)

Recycle—it saves energy

Recycle — it saves energy! How? The answer is simple: it doesn't take as much power to produce items out of recycled materials as it does to manufacture entirely new products out of raw materials.

Use the Recycle Point at Fort Benning; take your old newspapers and other paper products, as well as cans and glass bottles and jars, to the Recycle Point on Gaudette Street between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. any weekday. All magazines are acceptable, but paper towels and paper napkins are not.

No wax-coated items such as milk cartons or paper cups can be turned in. Any type of metal is acceptable, including aluminum foil. Carbon paper cannot be recycled, but almost any other type of paper can.

Avoid buying items packed in plastic. They are not recyclable, and do not decompose; long after you and I are gone, they will still be here, littering the earth. They also consume petroleum and other fuels in their manufacture.

Here are some ways to save on plastics; wash and reuse plastic plates and cups for your picnics and barbecues. Buy returnable bottles; they're cheaper and the glass can be sterilized and refilled or crushed and reformed. Use a metal lunch box. You'll cut down on both paper and plastic.

Choose fresh vegetables over frozen ones. The frozen variety need multiple wrapping and uses a lot of electrical power for preservation. When you must use plastic containers, such as the ones frozen meats and eggs come in, clean them and store them for handicraft projects. Many arts and crafts clubs will accept them.

Here's another way to save electrical power: leave off the Christmas lights on your tree. Use your imagination instead, and ecorate it like an old-fashioned tree, or around some other theme that doesn't use electrical lights.

Hot water heaters use lots of electrical power too. When you rinse your dishes, try using one or two sinks full of hot water instead of running hot water constantly to rinse every individual item. If you can remember the days of single-basin sinks (or before that), you may recall the pan of hot water kept by the sink for the same purpose.

Pioneers form a 'Demonstration Squad'

The "Demonstraton Squad," Company D, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry (PIONEERS), The School Brigade, will begin travelling all over the world teaching Infantry tactics to other soldiers, as soon as their training period is over and it is approved by the Department of the Army.

Company D is the home of the Demonstration Squad, though the majority of its time is spent rehearsing at Rowan Hill, a problem site Northeast of Harmony Church.

According to Staff Sergeant Robert Betcher, NCOIC, the squad's mission is to train Infantry School students — such as IOBC, NCOES, and OCS — and to put on demonstrations for visiting dignitaries and personnel of the 197th Infantry Brigade.

"The students," said Betcher, "are taught a variety of combat-oriented tactics — to include squad tactics and formations, Infantry in the offense and defense, and the old method of setting up a combat formation versus the new one."

The Demonstration Squad completed eight weeks of rigorous training, before it began teaching the USAIS students and performing for VIP's. Team chief is Major Richard Wright, of the Platoon Tactics Committee, of Company Operations. But the man in charge of training the PIONEER squad is Captain Daniel Butler, also of Company Operations.

Captain Butler is responsible for setting up demonstrations and for narrating them and explaining each maneuver performed by the demonstrators. "We are responsible," said Butler, "for implementing current doctrines on Infantry formations and such, as they are represented by the Infantry School."

The energy crisis affects you, so do something to affect the crisis

You must do something if it's going to work By Susanne Bostick

Right now everyone wants to know, "How will the energy crisis affect my life?" Americans are used to living in a land of plenty; we don't like the idea of tightening our belts. Some of us may remember fuel rationing and electrical blackouts from World War II. It may not be that bad, at least not yet. But unless immediate action is taken, not just by the government but by all of us, the energy crisis will most certainly reach the stage of chronic power failures and may get worse, to the point of real hardship.

If all this paints a pretty bleak picture, take heart,. Here at Fort Benning, steps are being taken to correct the situation as much and as soon as possible. There are also a number of things individuals and families can do to conserve power in troop units and housing areas.

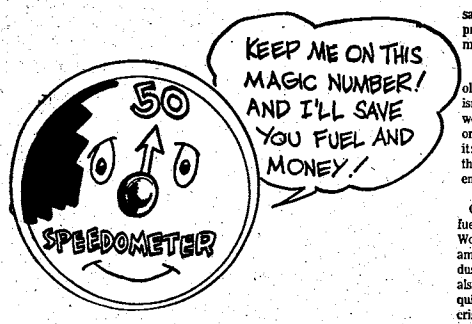
Fort Benning has had a Utilities Utilization Board, like all other Army posts, for at least seven years. Recently, though, the board has been revised, and its emphasis has been expanded to include conservation of energy and fuels. The Deputy Commander, U. S. Army Infantry Center, Colonel Charles C. Thebaud, is chairman of the board. Each major command and directorate on post has a representative, either military or civilian, usually the commander or someone appointed by him.

The units and directorates will also appoint, in the near future, utilities utilization/conservation officers, who will see that a unit plan for the conservation of fuels is developed and put into action. Each plan will take into consideration the needs of the activity, the number of people assigned there and the type of buildings used. At meetings of the utilities utilization board, these unit plans will be discussed and changed if necessary to meet any requirements that may be set for maximum conservation of fuels.

The Director of Facilities Engineering, Colonel James F. Boylan, is the technical advisor to the board, and will meet with its members. Each utilities utilization/conservation officer will also attend the Facilities Training School, taught by the Directorate of Facilities Engineering, to learn more about exactly how their units can conserve fuels.

Some suggestions for fuel conservation in troop unit areas are:

Be sure your buildings are insulated properly to conserve fuels. Poor insulation requires more heat to keep a building at adequate temperatures. Consider winterizing unused buildings; if they won't be used at all, turn the heat off or down very low. Increase the temperature of your air conditioners so they don't run on as often. It may also be possible to turn off field floodlights in your area at night, or leave fewer of them on.



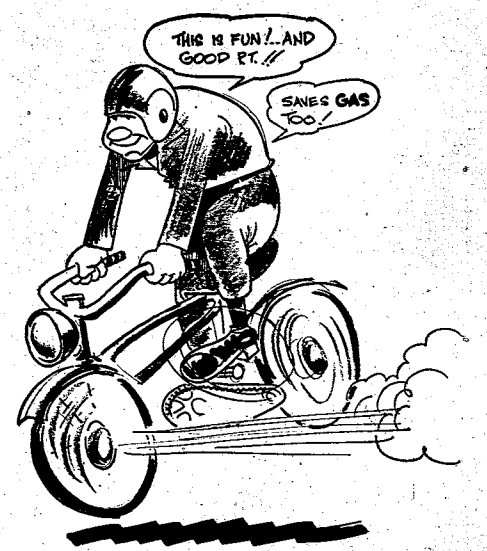
Temperatures in office buildings can be lowered at night and increased the next morning before duty hours. Be sure your air conditioners are properly sealed around windows, and lower the heat in your buildings during the day when troops are out in the field.

Familiarize yourself with your heating system and learn what type of controls it has, and how they operate. Check your mess halls; their kitchens are often heated only by ovens which may he left on all night so that the area will be warm the next morning.

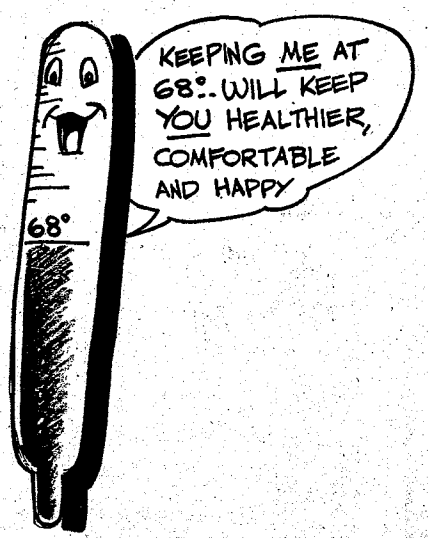
What can the individual or family do at home to conserve fuel? Here are some more suggestions:

Keep your thermostat between 65 and 68 degrees instead of 70 degrees or more, and wear a sweater, it's healthier. When you go to bed at night, check all lights to be sure they're turned off, particularly outdoor lights that aren't needed to keep your home safe. Turn out lights that you aren't using during the day; make it a habit to do this whenever you leave a room. Leaving light bulbs on does not save electrical energy, contrary to popular belief.

Try using fewer "convenience" electrical appliances, such as can openers and clocks. Don't leave appliances plugged in when you aren't using them, either. Leaving windows open when the heat is on is a waste of energy; simply turn the heat down. Conserve hot water by having dripping faucets repaired, and by turning on the cold water first instead of the hot water. This wastes less hot water.



Try preparing two meals at once in your oven, and don't ever use it to heat the kitchen in the morning. Don't leave burners on when they're not in use. Close blinds and drapes to provide additional insulation, and keep fireplaces closed except when the fireplace is in use.



Don't turn on your dishwasher or washing machine until it's completely loaded. Recycling saves energy too, because it eliminates the need for producing entirely new products out of raw material.

The energy crisis is a reality. It isn't a plot by gasoline and utilities corporations to raise prices, and it isn't just a result of the recent Middle East War. It won't be solved by building an Alaskan oil pipeline or drilling for oil offshore. There's no way around it: America, the richest and most powerful nation in the world, is running out of natural resources, and energy is among the most precious of these.

Our technology depends on energy, and burning fuels is one of our principal energy sources. Since World War II, that technology has used vast amounts of fuel to provide power for our huge industrial centers. The number of homes and cars has also been increasing steadily, and all of them require fuel for heating and operation. The energy crisis is the result of post-war progress and the population boom, not of a small group of men meeting together to plan ways to make life harder and more expensive for the average American.

What is the answer to the energy crisis? We don't know it yet; it may be some time before adequate methods are developed for supplementing our present energy sources, which are rapidly running out. But in the meantime, one thing is certain: if we don't change our lifestyle voluntarily, while we still have time, we'll be forced to do so later. Turning off one light switch when you leave a room may not seem like much — but what if everyone did it?

Car pools will help by Neil Daniel

Suddenly, the energy crisis is a reality. People everywhere are beginning to realize that only through the combined effort of all, can a solution be found. Here on Fort Benning, we have already felt the effects of the initial shock. The situation can worsen.

There are approximately 49,400 vehicles registered on Fort Benning. It has been estimated that, during peak hours (6:30 a.m. to 8:00 a.m. and 4:00 to 5:30 p.m.), the traffic flow on Main Post involves some 17,000 vehicles. This figure does not take into account the traffic to outlying units like the 43d Engineer Battalion in Harmony Church.

This traffic has always been the cause of two problems — congestion and pollution. Now the gasoline shortage is threatening to add another dimension to the problem.

The heart of the energy crisis is a lack of economy. If every American used one gallon of gas less each week, there would not be a fuel shortage. One soldier says that although he is "aware of the energy crisis" he does not worry about it. "I drive my car just about everywhere." This is the sort of attitude that has led to the present crisis.

The average car can carry five passengers. Yet most cars, are used to transport only one person. If every car was used to its maximum efficiency, the rate of gasoline consumption would be cut by more thn 50%. At present, American is gulping 17.5 million gallons of petroleum each day.

A quick look at a couple of units in the 36th Engineer Group may serve to illustrate the matter. HHD, 67th Maint. Bn. has 106 men. Of this number, 90 drive cars to work each day. Although many of the men try to avoid unnecessary trips, a car pool would be a good idea.

Staff Sergeant Billy J. Leonard of the 67th owns two cars. The idea of a car pool never occurred to him. He has never been in one. However, he does keep his engine "properly tuned at all times." He avoids "unnecessary trips" and uses the smaller car for trips to work "for economy."

At HHC, 36th Engineer Group, the picture is alarmingly similar. Of a total of 196 men, 161 drive cars to work each day. More than half of that number make four trips per day.

Private First Class Jerome Duncan of HHC, 36th is trying to cut down his fuel consumption because, in his words, "gas costs too much. It's just common sense to try and save it."

Perhaps this is the key to the solution. Just plain common sense applied on a day to day basis. Some practical suggestions; conbine trips. Plan to do several small errands during one trip. Drive slower to save gas. Driving at 50 mph instead of 60 mph will cut gas consumption by 10%. Walking a little more can save a lot.

For people who work in the same building or area, a car pool is an ideal solution. Car pools should present no problem for onpost personnel who work in the same place. For maximum efficiency, the vehicle must be full but even two people riding together is a step in the right direction.

For on-post transportation, the shuttle buses can be very efficient. The buses run on a 30 minute schedule from 6:00 a.m. to 11:00 p.m.

Specialist Four Gary Cathcart of HHC, 36th Engineer Group describes the shuttle bus service as efficient. "It takes anywhere from 30 to 40 minutes to travel from Main Post to Sand Hill. With privately owned vehicle you would only save 10 or 15 minutes at most."

The energy crisis is the result of a combination of many factors. Solving the problems that it has created, will require action on the part of every individual American.

Whatja wanta Know? ask the BAYONET

CALL 545-4792

DEAR BAYONET

Q — I initiated a power of attorney for my wife's assistance while I was overseas. During my overseas tour our marital relationship changed and she filed for a divorce. While I was overseas she moved out of our old apartment into a plushy one, bought a new wardrobe and new car — all with the assistance of the power of attorney I left her. We have since divorced. Am I liable for all those debts of my former wife?

A — I am assuming from your letter that you initiated a general power of attorney without an expiration date. So, therefore, you are liable for all the debts that your former wife piled up using that power of attorney. The power granted by a power of attorney not limited as to time, will continue in effect until revocation by operation of law, or by the death of either maker or agent. It can be revoked through newspaper notice and by notification of the maker to all banking institutions or outlet that the agent frequent for purchase.

DEAR BAYONET

Q — A couple of weeks ago you stated in your column that a Rebuttal Statement was not a formal appeal concerning adverse action on EER's. When may an individual make an appeal regarding his EER?

A — An EER may be appealed by an individual if it is believed that the report violates the intent of the government regulations. Submission of an appeal is advisable only if the rated individual can provide substantial evidence in support of his belief that injustice or administrative error has occurred. The mere allegation of an unjust rating is not substantial evidence. For further information consult AR 600-200.

DEAR BAYONET

Q — I am receiving a lot of hassle from my CO and First Sergeant about the length of my hair. I have cut my hair to adhere to the regulations but they still hassle me because it is not cut low enough for them. I have thought about going to the IG, but I am afraid of reprisals. Is there any way for me to report their action without being punished?

A — Army regulations prohibit adverse action to be taken against an individual for submitting a complaint to an Inspector General. However, if any person on duty with the Department of Army, under the guise of presenting a legitimate complaint to an Inspector General, makes statements which are known to him to be untruthful, he will be subjected to disciplinary action.

Coming to the screen

Enter the Dragon

Martial arts expert Bruce Lee is asked by British intelligence officer Geoffrey Weeks to participate in a mysterious Kung Fu tournament to be held on the island hideout of Oriental mystery man, Shin Kien. Also participating in the matches are American John Saxon, fleeing gambling debts; Jim Kelly, a U. S. black militant and friend of Saxon; and Peter Archer, a bullyish New Zealander. Later, Kelly sneaks into Kien's underground headquarters and the kingpin slays Kelly by the deft use of an iron fist. Saxon later kills the huge bodyguard Yang Sze, in mortal combat. In a room filled with mirrors, Lee stalks Kien to seek revenge and in a lethal weapons showdown, the two masters of the martial arts battle to the death. Bruce Lee's last and probably finest film is not for the young set because of the action packed violence of the Kung-Fu Karate battles.

Escape from the Planet of the Apes

This time it's Earth-1973! . . . and it's the most surprising and captivating of all! Meet the first family of apekind: Mr. Cornelius, Dr. Zira and Baby Milo. It's Baby Milo who has Washington terrified. They've come from a distant planet, and America gives them a hero's welcome. Suddenly the warm welcome turns into the most chilling suspense filled ape hunt in history. The President wants Baby Milo stopped and the Military Advisors want Baby Milo captured. It's a race against time to save the human race . . . from a baby ape? What is Baby Milo's incredible secret? The answer is in ESCAPE FROM THE PLANET OF THE APES, in the biggest, hairiest, the most surprising shocker of them all!!

Conquest of the Planet of the Apes

Caesar (Roddy McDowall) the offspring of the two intelligent apes Cornelius and Fira, is in the care of circus owner Ricardo Montalban, who had originally given aid to his parents. Apes have been converted into a slave force. Montalban takes McDowall to the busy city where he observes his fellow simians in abject servitude. Through the years their resentment has grown to near defiance, but they are uneducated, lacing in weaponary and untrained in its use. McDowall heads a revolt and leads his army in an uprising which culminates in a violent battle in which the primates, armed with homemade primitive weapons, are opposed by the well-equipped security forces of the state. Violence contained in battle sequences could be offensive for the young.

Cahill, United States Marshal

Weary from a grueling manhunt in the hills, U. S. Marshal J. D. Cahill (John Wayne) returns to the little town of Valentine, Texas, to find the bank has been robbed, the sheriff and a deputy murdered, and four new prisoners in jail. Wayne's son, Gary Grimes, 17, has been jailed along with George Kennedy, Morgan Paull, and Dan Vadis for fighting. During a fire, Grimes' brother, Clay O'Brien, 11, releases them so that they can rob the bank and then return unsuspected to their cells. Wayne's sons have turned against their father and the law but have a change of heart and decide to return the loot but are threatened by Kennedy. It remains for Wayne to set the boys right and bring Kennedy to justice in a bloody gunfight. Violence and language of this western adventure are not for the young set.

Maurie

Based on the story of the late Maurice Stokes, black basketball player for the Cincinnati Royals, MAURIE tells in comic and dramatic terms the touching story of Stokes' battle to regain use of his body after a crippling stroke and the complete devotion of white teammate and friend Jack Twyman. Twyman at enormous personal sacrifice, obtained legal custody of Maurice Stokes and over a ten year period, he raised more than $1 million for Stokes' rehabilitation. MAURIE is an unusual and inspiring story which will provide total screen entertainment for the whole family.

David Crosby (L) and Graham Nash will appear in Auburn Monday, Nov. 26.

—Engineers work to conserve oil—

Specialist Four William Webster, A Co., 43rd Engineer Battalion is doing his part to help with the energy crisis by recycling oil from his motor pool as well as service stations and auto craft shops throughout post. Webster and Private Rickey Frost (not shown) have turned in over 10,000 gallons of oil to the oil reclamation point on main post since January.

Company A, 43rd Engineer Battalion (Construction), has been working more than a year on a project to help conserve oil and at the same time preserve the post ecology.

The Equipment Platoon of C Company, 43rd Engineer Battalion (Construction) has been assigned the task of picking up waste oil and transporting it to the Oil Reclamation Point on main post.

Specialist Four William Webster, from Winfield, Alabama, is in charge of the project. Since January, Webster and his assistant have delivered more than 10,000 gallons of used oil to the reclamation point. This is enough oil to change the oil in a standard size car every day for almost thirty years! As Private Ricky Frost, Webster's assistant from Monroe, Georgia, says, "That's a lot of oil!"

Webster and Frost supervise the pickup of waste oil from the A Company Motor Pool, and 3rd echelon maintenance shop.

The team also makes periodic rounds of other activities on Fort Benning that accummulate waste oil. The Main Post Exchange Service Station and the Main Post Garage are the biggest contributors, and Webster and Frost make pickups there on a regular basis.

They also make occasional runs to the Custer Terrace Service Station and several auto craft shops. The oil from these outside sources account for 75% of the oil the team delivers to the reclamation point.

A Company is willing to extend the service to other activities that accummulate oil. A Project Transition shop, for example, recently called to ask for help in transporting waste oil, and Frost immediately made a run out to the shop. It will now be visited on a regular basis.

The oil that the team delivers to the reclamation point can be filtered, cleaned, and eventually used again.

The emphasis on the saving of oil also lessens the chances of waste oil being allowed to "leak" into the ground, where it can destroy vegetation and he harmful to wildlife and even man.

Frost spends a lot of time on the project. Equipment Platoon Sergeant Lupe Diaz states, "We don't worry too much about the time because we consider it a worthwhile project." Webster echoes the sentiment: "A lot of people might consider it dull work, but I like it because I know I'm accomplishing something.

Defensive driving can save your life

THE DEFENSIVE DRIVING In the following true story, a soldier discusses the importance of the Defensive Driving Course and how it saved his life:

"I was on my way home from the local college. There I was at the red light waiting for the green so I could cross a busy four-lane highway. It was dark, and the red light was just about to change. I looked again and saw the yellow caution light come on for the expressway traffic. At the same time I saw a car in the left lane of the expressway come to a stop for the caution light.

On my left a large tractor-trailer rig was making an easy right turn into the street I was leaving. Because of this truck I could not see the right lane of expressway traffic on my left.

I put my foot on the gas pedal and was getting ready to spurt forward as soon as I got the green light. Somebody was surely watching out for me on this night! A premonition told me that I'd better see that right lane before I moved into the intersection, regardless of what color the light happened to be.

I switched my foot back to the brake. In the next instant a speeding blur went by in front of me so fast that I couldn't tell if it was a car or a truck. This vehicle had been zooming up the right lane of the expressway trying to make the light.

Well, he didn't make the light, and had I moved into his path, even though I had the green light, then you would have been reading about me in the morning paper. That extra second I spent is the best second I've ever spent in my life.

Now that I think about it that wasn't a premonition. Somehow or other I remembered what I learned in the Defensive Driving Course. And that was that ALL intersections are dangerous. DDC is what saved my life."

ENGLISH AND MATH CLASSES

Classes in English and general math are being offered, by the Education Center, to all military personnel.

English classes will be held on Monday and Wednesday in Bldg. 5153 from 7-9:15 p.m. beginning Nov. 26.

General math classes will be held on Tuesday and Thursday in Bldg. 5153 from 7-9:15 p.m. beginning Nov. 27.

Military dependents may attend on a space available basis if sponsor is enrolled. For more information, or enrollment, call 545-6269.

NOTICE TO SHOTGUN OWNERS

Attention shotgun owners, Ithaca Gun Company has identified the Ithaca shotgun, model 66, as being potentially dangerous. The reason being that it can be discharged if dropped accidentally. This item may be returned to the Ithaca Gun Company, ATTN: Mr. Ted Shaw, 123 Lake Street, Ithaca, New York 14850, for credit.

PROJECT TRANSITION

Radio and TV classes are being offered by Project Transition to all military personnel who are within six months of their ETS or retirement date. Classes begin Nov. 26, 1973, and end Jan. 25, 1974.

Personnel interested in attending this course should contact the Project Transition Office at 545-2178 or come by Bldg. 35, Room 241, Main Post.

BENEDICTINE COLLEGE VISIT

Reverend Nicholas Senecal, Benedictine College's Director of Admission, will be in room E-25, Infantry Hall, from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. on Nov. 29. Rev. Senecal will discuss degree completion programs available at Benedictine College. Evaluations can be made at time of interview.

Appointments for interview can be made in room E-25, Infantry Hall, or by calling 545-4031.

SPOKEN RUSSIAN

The Army Education Center is offering a course in Spoken Russian beginning Nov. 27, 1973, and ending Feb. 19, 1974. No classes will be held from Dec. 20, 73, through Jan. 4, 72, because of the Christmas Holidays.

Classes will be held on Tuesday and Thursday from 7-0 p.m. in Bldg. 35. There is no cost for the course and text books will be furnished on a loan basis by USAFI. Dependents may attend on a space available basis when accompanied by military sponsor.

For more information, or enrollment, contact the Education Development Section at 545-7250 between the hours of 1-4:30 p.m. or come by Bldg. 35, Room 300B.

CAR WASH

The Fort Benning Parent Teachers Action Committee (PTAC) will sponsor a car wash on Dec. 1 at Faith School between the hours of 9:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. Cost will be $1.50 per car. Proceeds will be used to achieve PTAC goals.

BUYING ON CREDIT

Before you buy on credit, ask yourself, Do I really need this item — Can I really afford it at this time? Salesmen are professionals at selling people what they really don't need or can't afford. If you have any doubts at all, walk away from the purchase and sleep on the deal. A legitimate deal will be there the next day. If you wonder about the advisability of buying on credit, see your unit commander or the financial management officer, located in Bldg. 83, in the Welcome Center.

ALIEN ADDRESS CARD

Military personnel who married overseas, and whose wives haven't become U. S. citizens, are reminded that all aliens in the United States, must report their address to the Attorney General during the month of January. The alien address cards will be available at all United States Post Offices during January.

1/29 companies compete for honors in APFE

Grim determination is evidenced on the face of Specialist Four John Hunter of Battery C, 83rd Artillery, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry, as he runs through the horizontal ladder in the Army Physical Fitness Test held recently at Weatherby Field. (Photo by Rick Wasser)

The early morning frost was still on the grass at Weatherby Field when approximately 900 members of the 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry (THE PIONEERS), gathered there this week to prove their virility in the Army Physical Fitness Evaluation. (APFE).

With their spirits slightly daunted by the frosty cold ground and snapping chilly air, the officers and men plunged into the five-part test nonetheless determined and hopeful of high scores. Minimum standards established by Department of the Army (DA) call for each examinee to score at least 60 points on each event, with a minimum total of 300 points.

It has been traditional in the PIONEER Battalion of The School Brigade however, for participants to attempt to score at least 400 points on the test. The five events, sit-ups, push-ups, run, dodge and jump, horizontal ladder, and two-mile run — require a maximum output of energy.

Each part of the test strains a particular set of muscles acutely and each compels the person being tested to think carefully of the actions necessary for completion of each event.

The APFE was a culmination of months of daily physical training — an integral part of the schedule for soldiers in the PIONEER battalion — packed into those five events.

There was keen competition between companies within the battalion, to score the greatest amount of points. Part of the reason for this competition, is the presence of Company C, 75th Infantry (Airborne-Ranger) within the battalion. The Rangers have been long known to thrive on physical training, and set an example for the rest of the companies to follow.

LTC Walton has served the past three months as special assistant to Colonel William B. Steele, 197th Infantry Brigade commander.

The 1958 graduate of Alabama Polytechnic Institute has served as an armor officer for more than 15 years. He is a native of Greensboro, Alabama.

The Senior Army Aviator commanded an assault helicopter platoon and an assault helicopter company in the 1st Cavalry Division (Airmobile) during Vietnam duty in 1967.

LTC Walton served an earlier tour in Vietnam as a fixed-wing aviator. He has been graduated from the Armor Officers Advanced Course and the U. S. Army Command and General Staff College.

Prior to his assignment to Fort Benning he served as personnel management officer in both education and personnel action and officer assignment sections of the Armor branch with DA in Washington, D. C.

He has earned the Senior Aviator Badge and has been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross, Bronze Star Medal, Meritorious Service Medal, 22 awards of the Air Medal, Army Commendation Medal and the Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry.

OUR VOLVO WAGON IS THE SAME SIZE AS OUR VOLVO SEDAN, BUT BIGGER.

Any parking spot you can squeeze a Volvo sedan into, you can squeeze a Volvo wagon into.
Which is about 3 feet less space than most big cars need because our sedan and wagon come with 3 feet less car.
But our sedan comes with room for 5 six-footers and 6 two-suiters while our wagon fits 5 six-footers and 12 two-suiters. Or, with the rear seat down, 3 six-footers (2 adults and 1 sofa).
Come in and test our sedan-sized wagon.
Just don't be fooled by its size.

If you haven't been out to the new location of the Rod and Gun Club at Victory Lodge you are in for a surprise. The place is hard to believe after the cramped areas in the old location on First Division Road.

Every thing is bigger and better. The place really looks like a club house.

The atmosphere seemed to have a good effect on the Board of Governors. The Board held the first monthly meeting in the new location last week. Everyone appeared optomistic. Of course the club has been losing money at the old location for some time. It also took a few dollars out of the club fund to finance the move to the new location.

Mike Brickner, chairman of the hunting committee got the meeting started right with an announcement that the Field Trials the club held a couple of weeks ago had been a successful venture. More than 80 dogs were entered in the seven events. Owners brought dogs from locations all over the southeast. One owner came from Tennessee and announced it was worth the trip and he would do it again any time he was invited.

Plans for events and activities in the future were the first items on the agenda. Colonel Jack Whitted, president of the board was of the opinion that possibilities are just about unlimited at the new facility. Everyone agreed and there were all kinds of suggestions.

No final decisions were made but there is going to be a lot more activity at the new club than the space limitations at the old club permitted. The board did decide one thing though. The membership should decide what they want their club to do. There is no reason that Victory Lodge can't become the focal point for the social activities of a lot of families. Members of the board will be questioning members concerning their desires. If your representative doesn't question you it may be that you have been so inactive he doesn't know you are a member. Look him up and tell him what you think the membership wants. Before you do that though come on out to the lodge and see what there is to work with.

You Should Know

Recent editions of the Post Daily Bulletin have contained information of interest to all hunters and other persons using the Fort Benning Reservation should know. Since everyone doesn't have a chance to read the bulletin, I'm going to use this space to give additional publicity to some of the more important information.

Firing any caliber rifle on the reservation is authorized only on established ranges after clearance has been obtained from proper authority. Anyone observed with a rifle in an area where hunting is permitted will be presumed to be hunting in violation of post regulations.

Hunting is permitted in some non permanent impact areas. These areas have been searched for duds but there is the possibility that all have not been found. These areas are marked. Use caution when you travel in them. If you do find a dud report the location to the Range Division. Call 545-5186.

The Kunzig Range Complex, located north of Sunshine Road is off limits to all hunting. Individuals who must enter this area should clear through the Range Division.

All hunters harvesting deer on the reservation must tag the animal with a big game tag immediately. The animal must be brought to the Fish and Wildlife Unit Check Point in Bldg. 5883, Harmony Church prior to the end of the day that it is killed.

Get A Buddy

I see a practice that bothers me — hunters going into the field alone or with youngsters not old enough to be of any help in an emergency. I don't know of any regulation that requires hunters to use the "Buddy System" while hunting, but personally I think there should be one. When something happens to a lone hunter he can be in bad trouble. If he has youngsters with him who must depend on him he's in worse trouble. Hunters have died in the field because of injuries or illness that would have only inconvenienced them had they had a friend to help. Play it safe — double up and even then make sure someone knows which part of the reservation you are going to hunt. It would cut down considerably the amount of time requred to find you if you do get into trouble.

Kelly Hill bowling center to give free games

The Main Post and Kelley Hill Bowling Centers will put into effect on November 19, 1973, a Free Game, Red Head Pin Policy. The Red Head Pin will be used for the purpose of promoting the open bowling play. The following conditions will apply:

a. Free games certificates to be awarded in Open Play only.

b. Free game certificate awarded as Red Head Pin comes into No. 1 pin position and the bowler strikes.

c. The fall of the Red Head Pin must be witnessed by the manager on duty.

d. Free game certificates will be awarded whenever open lanes are available, except on late night bowling.

e. Only one free game per person will be used per day.

f. Free game certificates will not be used for payment of league lines bowled.

g. Free game certificates are not good for redemption on the same day won.

h. Free game certificates valid for 90 days only from date won.

i. Upon redemption of a Free game certificate, regardless of number of lines bowled, the first game will be declared as being paid for with a certificate.

j. No free game certificate may be won during a game being bowled and paid for with a free game certificate.

k. Free game certificate will be pre-numbered and accounted for by the manager of each respective Bowling Center.

l. No AJBC card holder or dependent under 18 years of age will be eligible for a free game certificate.

Jones takes honors in judo meet

Nineteen-year-old David Jones of the Fort Benning Judo Club took top honors in his division then went on to defeat the other division winners to claim the "Grand Champion" honor at the Fort Benning Open Judo Meet held at the Briant Wells Field House November 17.

More than two hundred contestants from 16 clubs throughout the south vied for top spots in the 25 divisions offered to the contestants at the AAU meet.

Another top competitor from Benning was Mark Keaton who placed first in the 16 year old class then moved up into the mens 139 pound division and placed third.

The Benning Judo team placed at least one member in one of the top three spots in each division.

Faculty and students bump heads in second annual Liniment Bowl

So you think the Miami Dolphins are terrific! And the Crimson Tide is stupendous. No one better than Paul Warfield, huh? Well you haven't seen the game of the year yet.

The great Second Annual Liniment Bowl with all its color, clatter and breaking of heads promises to be one of the highlights of the Fort Benning Sports Calendar.

For the squeamish in the crowd, it should be emphasized that the Liniment Bowl is a Tackle football game. This colossal fracas pits the USAIS Staff and Faculty against the USAIS Students.

The game, bringing together teams made up of professional, semi pro and college level football players, is set for 15 December 1973 at 1300 hours in Doughboy Stadium. It's a benefit game with all the color of a professional tangle, with all the proceeds going to Fort Benning's Dependent Youth Activities.

Funds will be generated from donations and concession sales. Admission donations are suggested at $1.00 per adult and 50¢ for kids under 12. Tickets for the event will be available at all Recreation Services Facilities and from the teams themselves.

A half-time show to include the Little League football players is planned so put it on your calendar now.

Redskins win championship

The Biddy League "Redskins" won the Championship last Saturday when they rolled over the Bengals by a score of 38-0. This was the Skins seventh win, as opposed to one loss.

Sparked by a superb defensive containment of the Bengal offense, to include a safety caused by Teddy Gallardo, an intercepted pass by Greg Lahr and fumbles recovered by Brad Stone, Eduardo White and Scott Hillmer, the Redskin offense had a field day.

John Teachey, the League's highest scoring running back carried the pigskin into the end zone for four touchdowns, plus once for an extra point. Jimmy Morgan also aided the cause by scoring a touchdown and an extra point.

Bass club has guest speakers

During the regular November Club Meeting, the Fort Benning Bass Club was presented an enlightening program by two guest speakers from the Creme Lure Company.

Mitchell Thorpe and Larry Blakey, members of the Georgia-Alabama Bass Club of Columbus, and Field Representatives of Creme Lure Company of Jasper, Texas, were guest speakers at the November meeting of The Fort Benning Bass Club. They discussed the Creme Worms, Spinners and crank type baits, and the techniques that have been successful in local waters.

Kelley Hill to hold bowling tournament

If all your gutter balls counted as strikes would you be considered one of the best bowlers in seven or eight counties? Then Kelley Hill Bowling Center has the answer for all you pin spotters! From December 1 through January 5, the Center is running a Holiday No-Tap Tournament.

"No Tap" means that 9 pins constitutes a strike, so for those enthusiasts who seem to have a problem in knocking all the pins down, this lunacy is the greatest.

Entry fee will be $2.50 for three (3) games. This cost will amount to $1.35 for bowling, plus $1.15 for the prize fund.

The tournament is open to all active and retired military personnel and their ladies. Each entry may bowl as often as he or she likes and may bowl when any pair of lanes are available during open play.

Chairman for the Holiday "no tap" Bowling Tournament at Kelley Hill is LTC Herman Bethe. Deputy Chairman is Capt. Bob Russell. For further information, please contact the Kelley Hill Bowling Center, 544-1486.

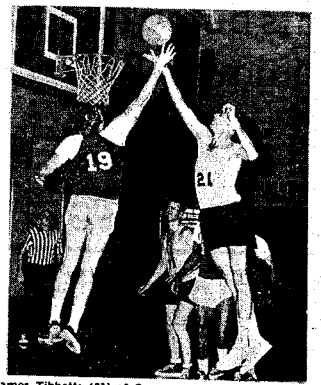
TSB opens basketball season



Company C, 75th Infantry (Airborne-Ranger) of the PIONEERS lost the opening game of the season to 13th Company, 1st Battalion, TSB, by a score of 44-42. The contest was not, however, as close as the score seemed to indicate, as the Rangers had to play catch-up ball throughout the entire game.

High scorer, and the only man to reach double figures for the PIONEER Ranger team, was James Tibbetts with 24 points.

On Wednesday evening, Headquarters and Support Company of the 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry also lost their ballgame, but the story was a little different in this contest. They led their opponents, IOAC-7, until the final minutes of the hard-fought game.

High scorer for the PIONEERS was Jerome Wilson, with 12 points, followed by Eddie McClendon with 10.

In the final quarter of the game, IOAC-7 capitalized on a barrage of personal fouls by the Headquarters company, and tied the game, coming back from a 15 point deficit at half-time. Both teams then scored a pair of field goals, but with less than a minute to go, another PIONEER foul enabled IOAC-7 their final free-throw of the game, which was all they needed to win 44-43.

Winners get turkeys in Sand Hill tourney

The annual Thanksgiving Golf Tournament was held at the Sand Hill Golf Course Nov. 17-18.

A total of 60 active and retired military personnel participated in the 36 hole competition.

Winner in the championship flight was Nathan Williams. Second place went to Lynn Tuttle.

First flight winner was William E. Webb with Victor Montanez finishing second.

In the second flight, Walter Johnson took top honors while Robert Latimer finished second.

Third flight winner was Joe Pearcey with M. C. Bannister finishing second.

George Heider was closest to the pin winner on hole number two and Robert Heshize was the closest to the pin winner on hole number four.

Turkeys were presented to all the winners and runners-up.

Rec. sponsoring skiing trip

Wow man, I just shoosh boomed right over that mogul.

If you can translate the above statement, then you'll be able to join the fun in Gatlinburg, Tennessee.

Recreation Services' Reservations Office is sponsoring a Skiing Trip to Gatlinburg, Tennessee over the Washington's Birthday Three Day week-end.

Definite plans are still in the scheduling stage, but it promises to be a terrific weekend for everyone making reservations for the most well known skiing resort in the south.

P.S. Translation: I just skied (very badly) right over that (very, very, small hill.)

Packers capture doughboy league

The Packers of the Fort Benning Doughboy League completed a successful season by posting a 16-0 shutout over the Steelers. The game was dominated by the Packer defense which allowed the Steeler team across the 50 yard line only one time and permitted only one Steeler first down, that via a penalty. The win established a 5-1 record for the Packers, with the lone loss coming at the hands of the Warriors by a score of 26-22.

The successful Packer season, while punctuated by outstanding individual performances, was the result of a total team effort. Everyone of the 29 team members contributed to the effort. The ability of the team to "pull together" was exhibited during the last game when four starting players were out because of injuries or illness and the team was able to adequately fill the gaps and win the game.

The offensive team, for the season rushed for 981 yards on 190 carries for an average of 5.2 yds per carry. Passing output was 44 completions for 284 yards. This average of 14.2 yds per pass was marred by 20 incompletions and 3 interceptions.

The defensive team was equally outstanding. Twenty-five of the twenty-nine Packer players saw defensive action and contributed to the defensive statistics. These statistics include 121 individual tackles attributed to 20 separate players, eight interceptions, and 7 fumble recoveries.

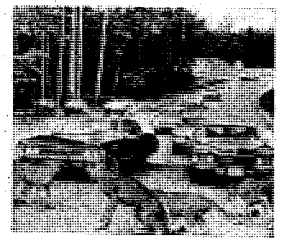
Animals roam free—people are caged

Everyone longs for something really unique, on occasion, and Fort Benning personnel do not have to travel far to find it. Lion Country Safari — Georgia, located just 90 minutes from Fort Benning in Henry County, south of Atlanta, offers the experience of an African safari — without the trip to Africa.

In a bit of Africa seemingly transplanted to the rolling hills of Henry County, lions roam with hundreds of other African animals — restricted only by their own energy and a few distant fences.



The more than 100 species in the Greater Atlanta preserve include lion elephant, white rhinoceros, cheetah, giraffe, hippopotamus, cape buffalo, zebra, various apes and monkeys, ostrich, exotic birds and a wide variety of antelopes. Some of the more commonly known antelope at Lion Country include addax, eland, Grant's gazelle, springbok, waterbuck, and wildebeest.

Lion Country visitors safari through the 250 acre preserve in the safety of their own private cars. The narrated tape tour gives every Lion Country visitor provides interesting facts and anecdotes on the scores of species prowling the preserve — the animals themselves provide the illustrations.

Births and frequent new acquisitions constantly add to the animal population at the African preserve. The ever changing population, now hovering around 600, will eventually go over 1000.

At the end of the trail the Safari camp provides 30 acres of rides, shops, snack bars, picnic areas, a delightful Pets Corner and animal displays. This African-motif area is provided for visitors at no extra cost.

"Animals roam free people are caged," is the concept at Lion Country which is open every day of the year, rain or shine. Fort Benning personnel and their dependents may enjoy a military discount at the gate merely by presenting their military I. D. cards. Pets are not allowed within the preserve and a free kennel is provided for their care while their brave owners tour Lion Country.

Cheetahs — one of the many hundreds of African species roaming wild at Lion Country Safari, located just 90 minutes from Fort Benning in Henry Country. Military personnel enjoy a special discount by presenting their I.D. cards at the main entrance to the park.

David Ringrose and his four year old pointer, Juniper Joe, winner of the Walking Bird Hunters Competition in the Bird Dog Field Trials sponsored by the Fort Benning Rod and Gun Club. The trials drew more than 80 dogs and handlers from all parts of the southeast.

Hunt club holds fall horse show

The Hunt Club of Fort Benning will conduct its annual Fall Horse Show on Saturday, Nov. 24, at French Polo Field. In the event of inclement weather, competition will be held the following day.

The public is invited to attend the 26 horsemanship events which will include English and Western classes. Competition for the show is scheduled to commence at 9 a.m. and last through mid-afternoon. Ribbons will be awarded in each class.

The Fall Horse Show sponsored by the Hunt Club is an annual event and has traditionally served as a training ground for the Spring Horse Show held at French Polo Field.

The show will include events for adults as well as junior riders. Additionally, Shamrock Stables in Columbus has been invited to compete with the Fort Benning riders in the western classes.

This year the show committee is headed by lieutenant colonel Jerry Bryant. Judges include Mr. Lamar Anthony and Mr. Mike Cameron.

Admission is free to the public and military community. Refreshments will be available at nominal prices.

For further information, contact the Hunt Club at 689-3863.

Soc. Sec. Admin. asks help

The Social Security Administration is asking for help in getting information to people who may be eligible for the supplemental security income payments that start in January for people with little or no income who are 65 or over, or blind, or disabled. That request was made by Robert E. O'Neal, social security district manager in Columbus.

Supplemental security is being publicized in the news media O'Neal said. And people getting public assistance payments because they're 65 or over, or blind, or disabled generally will be eligible for the Federal payments and don't have to apply.

"But we are still concerned that there might be people who will not hear or know about the program," he said. If you know of someone 65 or older who is in need, or a blind or disabled person, regardless of age, who needs financial help and they aren't getting public assistance now, please tell them about the new program. And suggest that they call the social security office to get more information.

PX and Commissary can save you money

All shoppers are familiar with the high cost of living. However, Fort Benning consumers have a way to reduce the price squeeze on their budgets.

The commissary and post exchange system work daily to fight inflation as Benning residents tighten their money belts.

C. L. Cannington, commissary officer, and A. J. Parrinello, PX general manager, explain how their operations are designed to offer the lowest possible prices.

How much does the average Army family save by shopping at the commissary-PX?

Commissary: "If the monthly food bill is $115, the Benning family has saved about $30." Food savings

No-show patients cheat others

When you make an appointment at Martin Army Hospital and don't keep it, you're denying another patient the chance to see a doctor.

This happens about 190 times every day, for an estimated 7% of the 2900 appointments that are seen daily in all the hospital clinics.

With the acute doctor shortage caused by the end of the draft last July, this problem is especially serious. Last year the hospital had 104 staff physicians; this year there are only 78.

Because of this 25% reduction, it is more important than ever that appointments be kept whenever possible. A phone call to the clinic or the appointment desk will make it possible for another patient to use the physician's time, which otherwise would have been wasted.

Many patients still use the emergency room for conditions such as sore throats, colds, backaches, and other minor problems. Such ailments are not emergencies and should be handled by the outpatient clinics.

Over-use of the emergency room by patients who do not really require emergency treatment can only have one result: to delay the care, and perhaps even endanger the lives, of patients with true emergencies.

The emergency room is now staffed as an extra duty by specialty physicians assigned to other services. This is because the hospital has lost so many general medical officers that there are no longer enough of them to cover the emergency room.

Some other changes have been made in the hospital's operation: doctors are working longer hours and are on night calls more frequently. The night clinic, held for the convenience of outpatients, had to be discontinued.

Trained nurse clinicians are now helping physicians treat patients in the medical, pediatric, and ob-gyn clinics. These nurse clinicians, along with physicians' assistants, are trained to care for some types of illnesses.

A nurse has been assigned as a patient educator to show military personnel and their families the best way to use the medical facilities available to them. Another goal is to educate patients in self-care of minor illnesses.

To achieve this, a patient medical advisor pamphlet has been published for use in self-care of illnesses that do not require professional attention.

The number of medications that can be obtained at the hospital pharmacy without a doctor's prescription has been increased. Now, many over-the-counter medicines that can be purchased at drugstores without a prescription can also be obtained from the pharmacy on request.

Without the cooperation of all patients, the staff Martin Army Hospital cannot continue to provide the same quality medical care as always without curtailing its services.

197th soldier returns from home after 60 days of recruiting

Specialist Four Gary Newell, a company clerk in HHC, 2nd Bn., 69th Armor, 197th Inf. Bde., has just returned to his unit after spending 60 days in his hometown of Chesapeake, Va.

Newell was working as a unit-of-choice canvasser for the Chesapeake recruiting station, helping Staff Sergeant Ron Hawkins, one of three recruiters working there. Newell's primary job was getting prospective enlistees into the recruiting station to talk to recruiters.

"I enjoyed the job and I enjoyed being home," Newell emphasized. "I would do just about any job to be able to spend that much time at home, but the job was really a challenge."

During the 60 days Newell spent in Chesapeake, he assisted in enlisting 25 men. Seven of these enlisted for the 197th Inf. Bde. at Fort Benning.

"I used the brigade's film on life in the 197th quite a bit," Newell stated. "I spent a lot of time talking to prospective recruits in the area and I felt that this close contact helped to bring some of them to the 197th."

Newell said he mingled with young men in the area, talked to them about the Army and asked them to visit the recruiting office.

"Specialist Newell was of great value to our recruiting effort here," explained Hawkins. "He was personally responsible for a number of our enlistees during the 60 days he spent here, in addition to the good relations he established with the young men in the Chesapeake area."

Presentations made to four retiring soldiers

Four Fort Benning soldiers with a total of 82 years of service to the Army retired and received awards during the monthly awards and retirement ceremony held Nov. 29, 11 a.m. on York Field.

Major William E. Davis, Headquarters Company, Headquarters Command retired with 21 years of service and received the Meritorious Service Medal. He resides at 4026 Tifton Dr., Columbus, Ga.

Chief Warrant Officer Manly C. Buxton, Company B, 43d Engineer Battalion retired with 21 years of service and received the Army Commendation Medal, 1st Oak Leaf Cluster. He resides at 2848 Wise St., Columbus, Ga.

Sergeant First Class James D. Brooks, 16th Company, Headquarters Command, retired with 20 years of service and received the Army Commendation Medal. He resides at 600 Hines St., LaGrange, Ga.

Sergeant First Class Andrew J. Moody Jr., Company A, 3-7 Infantry, 197th Infantry Brigade also retired with 20 years of service and received the Army Commendation Medal, 2d Oak Leaf Cluster. He resides at 215 N. Gordon Ave., Adel, Ga.

Major General Thomas M. Tarpley, Fort Benning commander, made the presentations.

Cannons of the 2nd Battalion, 10th Field Artillery boom out as Fort Benning's 283rd Army Band and the 98th Army Band from Fort Rucker combine forces to present the "1812 Overture" by Tchaikovsky. The overture was one of several numbers performed during "An Old Fashioned Band Concert" held on Watson Field. More than 2,000 people came to sit on blankets or lawn chairs and enjoy an afternoon of relaxation and good music. (Photo By Robert Bailey)

Post to receive new type flu vaccine

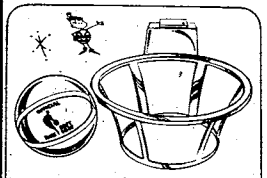
A new influenza vaccine will be available at Fort Benning next month. This vaccine has been developed to provide additional protection against a new virus detected in 1972 in Hong Kong, and later in Austrailia and England.

This vaccine should be available within the next few weeks and will be used as a supplement to the vaccine presently being administered, not as a replacement.

The influenza vaccine that is now being given at Fort Benning contains both type A and type B virus particles. It is too early to tell whether the new virus, which is a type B virus, will take the place of the more common type B virus in the U.S. this winter. However, it is reasonable to expect that it may become widespread.

Influenza occurs to some extent in the U.S. every year, though the numbers of people and the areas affected vary. It is an acute infectious respiratory diesease, and sometimes reaches epidemic proportions. Sudden chills, fatigue, headache and general body aches are symptoms of influenza. Fever and a dry, hacking cough often accompany these. The disease usually runs its course in three to four days.

Body symptoms are more common than respiratory symptoms in most cases. Complications are not infrequent, however, and are likely if fever and symptoms persist beyond the fourth or fifth day.



Active-duty military personnel are required to receive both of the influenza vaccines available this year. Both vaccines are recommended for civilians of all ages who have chronic conditions such as heart disease, asthma, bronchitis or emphysema, or diabetes.

Elderly individuals should also be immunized, because influenza causes a higher-than-average percentage of deaths among older people.

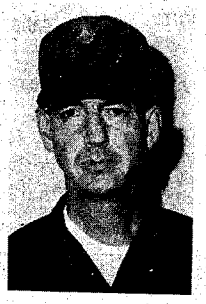
Do you think gas should be rationed?

SOUND OFF!



Staff Sergeant Rafael Hernandez
HHC 197th

We definitely have to ration gas. There is a gas problem and a lot of people don't realize it. The idea of closing gas stations on Saturday nights and Sundays won't be effective. People will just buy all their gas on Fridays and on Saturday mornings. Most of the gas stations were not open on Sundays a few years back.

Warrant Officer Charles Cook
121st Aviation Co.

Right now, I'd say no. As soon as it's realized that people aren't going to listen to the president's proposals I'm sure they'll ration then. Members of the 145th Aviation Battalion now have to insure before going on a long trip up north or south that gas will be available before leaving and before returning.

Sergeant Bernard Maddux
HHC 197th

In my opinion if everyone would observe the president's proposals of a 50 mile per hour speed limit and the closing of gas stations on Sunday, there won't be any gas rationing.

Specialist Four Bernard Miller
HHC 197th

Yes, I think it should be rationed. People who feel all the talk about gas rationing is a scare, are wrong. They'll have to face the problem now because it is a serious one. If they take it upon themselves to ration now, they won't have to face the gas shortage later.

Why do you hate my hair?

Letter to the Editor

Dear Mr. Military

I do not have the words to express my discontent with you. I feel out of place where I am and would rather not be here with you. I think quite often of the unrealistic ways you do things and how long it will be before you come to your senses. How can you expect me to ever do my best for you when all I get from you is harassment?

I would really like to leave you, but how can I? The only way would be to go AWOL or crazy. But I'm married and care for my family, so I try not to think of such actions. Besides if I was AWOL I would not be able to live in the peace that I seek. I would constantly be wondering when you would come to take me back. So what do I do? I just continue to live in misery.

You probably are curious as to what actions took place to cause me to sit down to write you. It is what you call "a military appearance".

What is this anyway? is it a tool you use to come down on peoples head? I think it is, literally. I don't understand your absolute hatred toward me when you see my hair touching my collar or ears. I'll be honest with you. I'm not trying to overthrow the government, assassinate the president, or squeeze off your oil supply.

Why is it then that you continue to point me to the barber shop. You may be saying that I'm just a drug taking freak then, bent on destroying my mind and taking someone with me in the process. Well, you're wrong again. I would like to see the poisons taken off the street, and in the same sweep clean up the alcohol problem, the prostitution, the gambling, the murdering.

But will it be done? You can answer that yourself. You're involved in most of the things mentioned. Put down your rocks, I'm not finished. When I am, then you can stone me, if you can wait that long. Tell me, what is it about my hair you hate? My hair is important to me. I really don't know why, but nevertheless it is and it will continue to be.

There is nothing you can do to make it unimportant to me. True, you can continue to make me keep it cut, but you will never be able to keep me under your surveillance. I look forward to the day I can walk away from the military dictatorship that I'm a part of. Don't waste your time trying to get me to stay in. It will not do a bit of good, but I know you will try anyway.

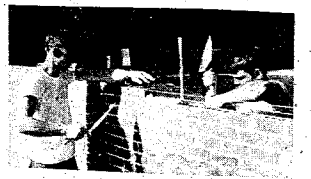
I don't blame you for trying though. After all you don't have the draft to depend upon anymore. You want to know what's wrong, why you're not getting the men you need. You're even asking for suggestions about what can be done to help recruit men. But, I don't think you're listening very closely. This has been an issue for many years now. You made a small step in the right direction, but as usual, you stopped to soon.

I'm not saying this is the answer to all of your recruiting problems, but it is something to consider.

Mr. Military, don't look for my continued service. I really can't handle the pressure you put on my head. It eats at my insides and believe it or not, there are many, many people who feel the same way. I'm sorry, but I must deny you my reenlistment.

An unhappy soldier

Engineers enlarge cemetery



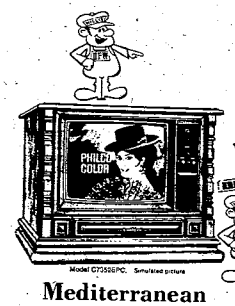
Under the supervision and direction of Acting Sergeant Joseph B. VanHoozer, the enlargement of the Main Post Cemetery is progressing rapidly.

VanHoozer and his crew of six men have completed 75 percent of the project and in the process have laid approximately 50,000 bricks to build an extension to the brick wall around the cemetery.

Upon completion of the project, an additional 15,000 square feet of ground will have been added to the cemetery grounds.

VanHoozer was selected by the 43rd Engineer Battalion Commander to direct the construction of the cemetery wall, because of his enthusiasm and knowledge of masonry and brick laying. During the period March 73 to April 73, VanHoozer attended the Fort Benning Masonry and Bricklaying Course and was selected as the most outstanding student in the class. He worked three years as a bricklayer apprentice prior to entering the service in 1972. VanHoozer has also been instrumental in giving on the job training to Private First Class Charles Steed and Acting Sergeants Thomas Monroe and Robert Gentry.

Van Hoozer commented that the construction of the brick wall was a learning experience for himself and the other soldiers.



Sergeant Thomas Monroe and Private First Class Charles Steed of Co. B, 43rd Engr. Bn. (Const.) are shown laying brick on the cemetery wall at Main Post. The two soldiers are working on a post construction project being handled by the 43rd Engr. Bn. (Const.)

Santa is coming to town and he might be bringing dangerous toys

Of all the bad times to have a child hurt, Christmas is probably the worst. Especially, if that injury comes from an unsafe toy given as a Christmas present.

As you do your Christmas shopping this year, be wary. Examine all toys carefully before buying. Inspect for sharp edges or points; easily removed knobs, buttons, etc.; mechanisms that can pinch fingers; and other signs of faulty design, materials or workmanship.

Always read instructions for toys that might be difficult to use — and dangerous if misused, such as chemistry sets. If you can't understand the instructions, odds are good that your child won't.

Try to keep the toys appropriate for your child's age and abilities. It might be helpful to think of other children who might be using the toy also, especially the younger ones.

Suggested toys by the National Safety Council

The National Safety Council has developed some guidelines for toy buyers. The council says children up to the age of two should not have heavy breakable toys, stuffed animals with glass or button eyes, or toys with sharp edges.

They suggest toys such as washable stuffed dolls with embroidered eyes, blocks with rounded corners, colored balls, and non-breakable objects that can be chewed on.

For children two to four years old, the council advises parents to avoid flammable costumes on dolls, poisonous paints, and objects with removable parts.

Sand boxes with buckets, toy telephones, peg boards, and large crayons are good gifts according to the council.

For the four to eight year olds, avoid shooting target toys which can endanger eyes, sharp edge tools and large or complicated toys.

The council suggests construction sets, modeling clay, puzzles, games, small sports equipment, and non-toxic paints.

Things to watch for when shopping

Dolls, stuffed toys, and squeeze toys are among the most dangerous. Be alert for straight pins or needles hidden in the hair or clothing; eyes and other small parts that are not securely fastened. Check to be sure that hair, clothing, and stuffing are non-flammable.

On stuffed toys inspect the wire frame to see if it is well covered with stuffing and strudy fabric so that it won't break through.

Plastic toys must be strong so as to stand heavy use. Brittle plastic can shatter into sharp pieces just right for jabbing an unsuspecting child. Rattles are a toy to check carefully for this danger.

Even though they won't shatter, wooden toys also need to be inspected. All wood should be smoothly finished so it won't splinter. All painted or varnished toys should be labeled non-toxic. Screws, nails, and other fasteners should be securely in place.

Electrical toys require special care in selection and use. All such toys should have the United Laboratories (UL) seal on the toy and cord. Toys with areas that heat should have the heating area labeled. According to government regulations, surfaces must be non-burning. Check the heat level before the child plays with the toy.

Electrical toys should be given only to older children who will understand the proper use and care of the toy. Parents are advised to read the instructions with the child and check the toy periodically to be sure it's working well. At the first sign of malfunction, have the toy repaired.

Guns, rocket, and archery equipment should be given only to older children who understand their dangers. Dart guns should not be able to function with pencils and sticks, and suction cups on darts should be firmly attached. Cap guns are dangerous if fired close to the child's ear.

Bicycles, tricycles and skate boards are among the most dangerous toys. Go over all riding toys for projections that will hurt if a child falls on them. Handle bar grips must be firmly in place. Nuts, bolts, and screws should be tight. Pedals should be skid-proof and spin freely.

Any bike used after dark should have reflectors.

The bike or tricycle should fit the child's age and skill. A child should be able to sit on the bike and grasp the handlebars as though he were riding. Adjust the pedal to its lowest point with the knee slightly bent while the ball of the foot touches the pedal. If the child has to stretch to reach the ground, he will be unstable and more likely to have an accident.

Tricycles should have a broad wheelbase for balance. The main seating area should be well forward of the rear axle.

Costume headgear designed like football helmets, race drivers' helmets, or firemen's hats are not designed for safety. Be sure the helmet is impact-resistant material, such as acrylic. The helmet should not limit or distort vision.

Science sets and craft kits should be well labeled. Directions should be complete and easy to follow. Read the directions with the child. Chemicals and equipment should be stored well away from the reach of smaller children.

Merry Christmas

Only you can protect the children you give presents to. Inspect each toy and use good sense. If you have doubts or don't understand, check with the sales clerk. You should be able to handle a sample of the toy you are considering.

Aid for Santa Claus

The Consumer Product Safety Commission provides consumers with a list of all toys the government has declared unsafe. This list may be obtained free by writing:

Product Safety Commission
Bureau of Information & Education
5401 Westbard Ave.
Washington, D.C. 20207

Parents may notify the commission of any unsafe toys by giving a description of the toy, its name, model number, manufacturer or distributor, and the name of the store where bought.

The PX and Toys

"As far as I know, all toys sold in the Fort Benning Garden and Toy Store are not dangerous," says Rudger Junes, assistant retail operations manager. "Our retail operations regional headquarters in Montgomery, Ala., does all the buying in the area. They are the ones to insure that all toys are safe.

"If the regional office or the national office in Dallas told us a toy is considered dangerous, we'd recall that item, destroy it, or send it back to the vendor or seller," Jones added.

Command Information

WE ARE INTERESTED IN ENERGY CONSERVATION

We at the National Bank of Fort Benning would like to go on record as saying "We will be glad to do our part in the energy conservation effort."

We're serious about this. We have begun by cutting back on electricity when possible. We have adjusted the heating and cooling thermostats in order to use less power. We have encouraged car pools by employees and have rewarded those who participate. We even offer reduced rate loans to those customers who finance a car with four or six cylinders.

Our part in the conservation program is relatively small, but if we can influence our neighbors to cooperate, we feel our efforts are well worth it.

We encourage our friends, both individuals and businesses, to join us in this step toward a better economy and a better environment.

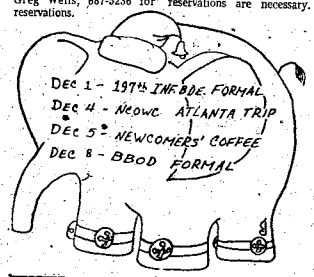
NEWCOMERS

The OWC has planned a Newcomers' Coffee to be held on Dec. 5 at 10 a.m. in the OWC Lounge (Thrift Shop Complex). This is a good opportunity to learn about the Fort Benning Officers' Wives' Club, their activities and projects as well as other activities and services available at Fort Benning. For further information, call Mrs. P. Kearns at 689-3443.

ATLANTA TRIP

Make your reservation now to be on the bus, Dec. 11, as the Offifers' Wives' Club takes off for a day of shopping in Atlanta. A box lunch, tea, and fashion show are also part of the schedule. The entire trip is just $6.50 and guests are welcome. Call Mrs. R. C. Miller, 687-5827 or Mrs. Greg Wells, 687-5236 for reservations.



COLLEGE CHRISTMAS PARTY

Coming home from college for the Christmas holidays but afraid you'll have nothing to do? Would you like to meet other students and make this a more sociable holiday season?

The Annual College Christmas Party, sponsored by the Fort Benning OWC, is open to ALL dependent college students. It will be held Dec. 22 from 7-12 p.m. at the Playboy Lounge (Bldg. 2396, by Lawson Air Field).

This is your opportunity for a free evening of entertainment and the chance to make new friends.

A dance band and refreshment should contribute to a "fun" evening for all. Dress is casual. No reservations are necessary. For more information, call Mrs. Herman Betke at 687-8683.

OWC ACTIVITIES

Do you play bridge, but are a little nervous about trying Duplicate Bridge. There is a solution for you. On the first Wednesday of each month at 12:30 p.m. Novice duplicate bridge is played at the Country Club. Anyone who would like to learn may come, provided you bring a partner. If you cannot find a friend who would also like to learn to play, call Mrs. Paul Serff at 689-6087 and she may be able to put you in contact with someone.

SHOP THE TALENT TREE

Are you in a quandry over Christmas? Do you have last minute shopping to do? Do you want special gifts for special people? Your answer to all these questions may be found at the Talent Tree. This art boutique, located on Main Post near the Thrift Shop, is full of gift items to please children and adults. Everything is handcrafted from decorative paintings and watercolors.

The shop is open every Tues. and Thurs. from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. In December, for your shopping convenience, the store will be open three extra days — Saturdays — Dec. 1, 8, and 15.

TTT CONSIGNMENTS

The Talent Tree workers would greatly appreciate it if consignment items were brought to the shop on MONDAYS, between the hours of 10 a.m. and noon.

HARMONY CLUB SETS HOLIDAY MOOD FOR COLUMBUS EPICUREANS

Corks popping, trays of tempting confections, elegantly gowned ladies and handsome men will grace the holiday scene at 8 p.m., Dec. 14, when the Columbus Chapter of the Epicurean Society of American hosts a Champagne and Dessert Tasting.

A variety of imported and domestic champagnes appealing to novice and wine connoisseur alike will be served to accompany a tempting array of holiday desserts prepared by the Society's Consultants and Members.

Tickets and information are available by calling Mrs. Mary Shannon at 687-5389 or Marcel Carles at 563-1886 (evenings).

MAH honors civilians

Col. John W. White, Commander, Martin Army Hospital, Fort Benning, Georgia presented four Outstanding Awards to MAH employes. They were Mrs. Mary Gainey, Personnel Division; Mr. Marvin L. Houglum, Food Service; Mr. William Lennit, Food Service; and Mrs. Helen Walter, Personnel Division.

Jack S. Lindsey, an employe on the children's ward, was honored with the quarterly "WE CARE" award for repeatedly displaying qualities of concerned care.

The monthly "WE CARE" awards were presented to Major William B. Ralph, a doctor in the allergy clinic; Specialist Four James E. West, Med. Co.; Mrs. Kathleen L. Adams, Ward B-6; Wyatt Bolin, Outpatient Records room; John W. Childs, Social Work Service; Miss Shirley I. Conway, Radiology Clinic; Mrs. Bennie, B. Johnson, Ward D-2, Mr. Clarence M. Poole, Professional Services office; and Mrs. Anna B. Wilson, Ward B-6.

KEEP THE KIDS BUSY

With more holidays to bake for coming up you might be trying to think of ways to keep the little ones occupied and out of the floor. Toddlers love to be in the same room with Mommy and would be perfectly happy to sit and color, with nontoxic felt pens or crayons. For those who don't want to sit, now that they can stand, tape paper on the front of the refrigerator door.

Crayons may not be novel enough for some youngsters, so why not buy a can of (nonmenthol ated) shaving cream. Let them "finger-paint" on the kitchen table or other nonporous surface. If you have some powdered tempera paint, sprinkle it in the cream. The children will be delighted.

Clean-up is easier than real finger paints since a few drops of water will soften the dried cream so wiping up is a whiz.

To eliminate any clean-up for yourself (the kids can take care of this one alone), let the children "draw" on a carpet or floor with yarn or ribbons. Left over pieces of varied colors are recommended, but you could also buy a small skein for older children who would prefer to do large, detailed drawings.

If they're old enough to handle scissors and glue, they could glue the yarn to cardboard shapes (large or small) in a Christmas design for Mum or Dad to spray paint later. Then add a touch of glitter and-or paint, along the yarn, and you've got holiday decorations. The kids will be very pleased with themselves and so will you.

Now that the kids are taken care of, you can get back to the kitchen (unless you prefer housework).

If you're shelling nuts (or you finally got your husband to do it) why not do extras for later cooking and baking. You can store the shelled nuts even if they're ground or chopped, in the refrigerator. Pack them in airtight jars, tins or plastic bags and they'll keep for months.

To save time when baking, sift flour right from the sack into your flour canister. You won't need to sift again when you bake if the canister doesn't get bounced around — and why should it?

A baker recommends reheating dinner rolls for 20 to 30 minutes in a 175 degrees-200 degrees oven rather than for five minutes in a hot oven. This way, they can be reheated meal after meal without becoming too crisp or hard.

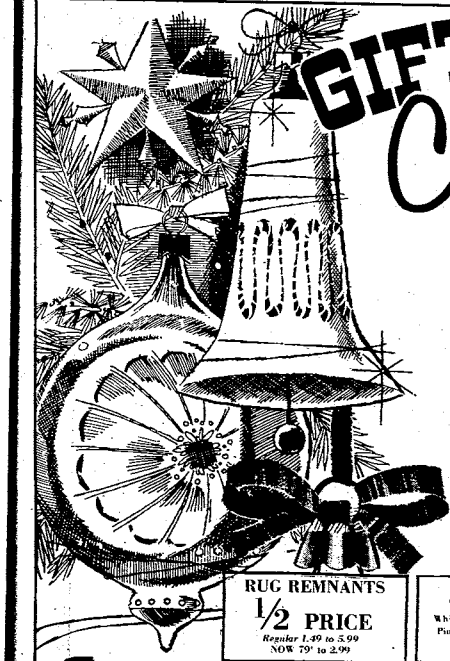
COMMISSARY SPECIALS

As promised, this week a new feature is added for the money conscious shopper. The main commissary runs specials to help the buyer get more for her (or his) money.

In the month of December there will be a 6¢ deduction from the regular price of Saran Wrap on Dec. 1-4.

Reduction coupons on Scotts and Johnsons products will be in effect Dec. 5-14; Viva — 7¢ off; Rain Barrel — 7¢ off; Step Saver — 15¢ off; and Klean & Shine — 15¢ off.

Be sure to take note of the cranberry display Dec. 12-14 and stock up for the holidays.



BABY GIFTS

New mothers often get many blankets, as gifts, for their babies. There's a new idea in bed coverings for infants that is very practical. A zippered quilt can also double as a bunting. It allows more space for growth and is a soft lightweight blanket for all climates.

The PX now carries them in various colors, and at a very reasonable price.

Allied Spotlight

Nany Ibanez

Nany Ibanez, wife of Major Eduardo T. Ibanez, senior Allied officer of IOAC 6-73, arrived in the United States two months ago.

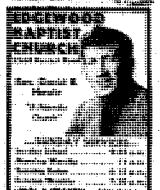
"Eduardo, my husband," she says, "is attending the Infantry Officers' Advanced Course here at Fort Benning, and he has recently received his promotion to Lieutenant Colonel."

"Having experienced little difficulty with the transition from Spanish to English, Nany's daughters are attending Key Elementary School and Baker High School in Columbus.

During her stay in Columbus, Nany has developed two main hobbies, learning the English language and participating in the Officers' Wives' Club Ceramic Studio. She hopes to continue her work in ceramics upon returning to Chile in January 1974.

Nany states, "I have enjoyed my stay in the United States very much, having found over here very nice people and many friends who have assisted me in everything while at Fort Benning.

Maznah Shaharon



Maznah Shaharon and her husband, Capt. Jaafar Shaharon are from Benang, Malasia. Capt. Shaharon is attending the Infantry Officers' Advanced Course at Fort Benning.

The Shaharons have two children, a son, Shamsul (3) and a daughter, Shahrir (6 months).

A former sixth grade teacher in Malasia, Maznah speaks excellent English. She says, "I have thoroughly enjoyed learning more of your culture. The recent trip we made to Westville was very interesting."

Maznah recently appeared on the Rozelle Show to discuss plans for the International Weekend at Callaway Gardens, sponsored by the Southern Baptist Foreign Mission Board.

EASTERN IS WORKING HARDER FOR YOUR DOLLAR

When you have a 72 hour pass every minute counts.

This is the time of year when you want to fly home and see your family. Celebrate the holidays with some old friends.

And take hold of your girl and tell her you've missed her.

Whether home is a big city or a small town, let Eastern take you there.

We take over a half million servicemen home for the holidays each year. So if you have a 72-hour pass or a two-week holiday leave, we know what it's like to have a lot to do and only a little time to do it in.

From Columbus to Atlanta, we have 2 daily nonstop flights.

Military Reservation Fare $11: Military Standby $9. From Atlanta you can pick up connections to New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Washington, and Chicago to mention a few of the cities we fly to.

If home is in the southwest, our connecting service via Atlanta to Houston and Dallas/Ft. Worth can get you home quickly with more time to spend with family and friends.

Regular Military fares are good on every Eastern flight, anywhere in the U.S. Any time, except 2 pm to midnight on Fridays and Sundays. And Military Standby is available at any time on all Eastern domestic flights.

Call your SATO office or Eastern at 324-4781 in Columbus. Then call home and tell them you're on your way.

WHO WHAT WHERE

NCOWC TEA

Ladies of the Fort Benning NCO Wives' Club gathered for a Membership Tea at The Club House on Nov. 14.

Special guests included Mrs. Thomas M. Tarpley, wife of the post commander, and Mrs. Robert P. Kenirnes wife of the post sergeant major.

The tea concluded a long membership drive that offered a $25 savings bond to the member that recruited the most new members for the NCOWC. Mrs. Tarpley presented the bond to Mrs. George Crimmel. A close runner-up was Mrs. Isaac Brown.

COMBAT DEVELOPMENTS USAIS

The ladies of Combat Developments held their Thanksgiving Coffee on Nov. 14 at the home of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Walter Ginger. Hostesses for the coffee were Mesdames Ginger, Lawrence Reddell and Richard Knutson. Becky Craig filled in for her mother, Mrs. Knutson, who was called away for the birth of a grandchild.

Lt. Col. Richard Knutson received special recognition for his contribution to the refreshments, a cinnamon coffee cake.

Newcomers were Mrs. Joseph Venti Jr. and Mrs. Ralph Loney. Maj. and Mrs. Donald Whitlock's new son was an honored guest.

The December coffee was cancelled in lieu of the busy holiday schedule.

197th INF. BDE CHRISTMAS TEA

Invitations were the order of the day for the ladies of the 2nd Battalion-69th Armor and the 72nd Engineers on Nov. 2, and Nov. 5 at the home of Bev Eddins. Invitations for the 197th Inf. Bde. Christmas Tea were designed by Invitation Chairwoman, Jab Sautter. She demonstrated the technique of sponging the background for the linoleum-cut invitations.

The wives, who will host the Christmas Tea at the Rankin House on Dec. 19, set to work sponging and printing Christmas trees on the invitations.

The second meeting was to put things together, namely the inserts to the invitations. Ladies of the 197th Inf. Bde., please note the "signature" in the bottom right-hand corner of the invitations! It's 2-69 (Armor) and 72 (Engineers) welded to form a tank.

TANKERS-ENGINEERS COFFEE

Tanker and Engineer wives met at the home of Trish Fountain for the November Coffee of the 2-69th and the 72nd Engineers. Business was conducted by Bev. Eddins, wife of the battalion commander.

As a farewell, Maggie Thorn presented the traditional silver tray to Mrs. Eddins and expressed the sense of loss the wives would feel on her departure.

This coffee doubled as a baby shower for Lee Timboe. She received gifts for the baby, ranging from a stroller to plaques for the nursery.

FAREWELL LUNCHEON

"Surprize! Surprize! Surprise!" — Gomer Pyle, U.S.M.C. That was the reaction of Bev Eddins on Nov. 14, as she walked into the Villula Tea Garden and found the wives of the 2-69th Armor and 72nd Engineers there to bid her farewell.

Maggie Thorn presented the first copy of the 2-69 Armor and 72nd Engineer Wives Cookbook to Mrs. Eddins and a silver casserole server as a farewell gift from the ladies.

The luncheon was supervised by Mrs. Thorn, Jan Davis, Jan Sautter and Peggy Rockwell.

COTTONBALERS COFFEE

The ladies of the 3d Bn. 7th Inf. attended their monthly coffee on Nov. 15, in the Normandy Room of the Main Officers' Club. Hostesses for the affair were Mrs. Gerald Risovi and Mrs. Richard Beauchamp. Warmly welcomed to the "Cottonbalers" was Mrs. Gary Nichelson and Mrs. Apolonio Garcia. The Ladies fondly bid farewell to Mrs. William Richards, Mrs. Richard Bennett and Mrs. Phillip Crawford.

During the business meeting, the ladies decided to sponsor a needy family, as a Christmas Project, by supplying them with their Christmas dinner and gifts for the children. It was also decided to visit a local nursing home on a monthly basis and help out in any way needed.

The ladies discussed the upcoming 197th Inf. Bde. Christmas Formal to be held Dec. 1 and the Brigade Christmas Tea to be held Dec. 19. The next coffee for the battalion ladies will be a Christmas Coffee on Dec. 20 at the home of Mrs. Charles Arnecke Jr. on Yeager Ave. Each lady is asked to bring a handmade or homemade gift to exchange.

Two changes of command scheduled for 197th

Fort Benning's 197th Infantry Brigade will have two battalions change commanders within a space of four days.

Lieutenant Colonel Warren J. Walton will assume command of the 2nd Battalion, 69th Armor in ceremonies at York Field today. Relinquishing command will be Lieutenant Colonel Watha Eddins, who will assume duties as deputy commander of the 197th Infantry Brigade.

Then at 2 p.m. Monday, in ceremonies at Martin Range, Lieutenant Colonel Theodore B. Voorhees will assume command of the 1st Battalion (Mech) 58th Infantry. Voorhees, who has been the deputy brigade commander, will replace Lieutenant Colonel Robert E. Orkand.

Orkand, who has been the battalion's commander since June, 1972, will leave Fort Benning for an assignment with the Office of Chief of Information, Department of the Army, in Washington, D.C.

Voorhees has served as deputy commander of the 197th since November 1972. Prior to that he was assigned to the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel, Department of the Army, in Washington, D.C.

The colonel has served two tours in the Republic of Vietnam — his first tour as an advisor to a Ranger battalion. He was operations officer for the 2d Brigade, 1st Infantry Division during the second tour.

Voorhees was graduated from the United States Army Military Academy in 1957 and has since graduated from the Infantry Officers Career Course, the Naval Post Graduate School and the Armed Forces Staff College. He's a qualified Senior Parachutists and a Ranger course grad.

He has been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross, Legion of Merit, the Bronze Star with two oak leaf clusters and "V" device, the Air Medal with 11 oak leaf clusters, the Meritorious Service Medal and the Army Commendation Medal with one oak leaf cluster.

His decorations from foreign governments include the Vietnam Gallantry Cross with Gold Star, the Vietnam Armed Forces Honor Medal and the Vietnam Civic Action Honor Medal.

Both change of command ceremonies usually involve a mounted pass-in-review. However, due to the fuel shortage, both will be dismounted.

MPs at Kelley Hill praised by soldiers

The military police have long been the target of criticism, but such is not the case on Kelley Hill with the 197th Inf. Bde. M.P. Platoon.

Since the 28-man unit began operation a few weeks ago, they have received praise rather than complaints from fellow soldiers.

"I think they are more concerned about their job," stated Specialist Four Sidney Smith, HHC, 197th Inf. Bde. "They seem to treat everyone equal and show no favoritism. Most importantly, I feel a whole lot better about leaving my car in the parking lot at night. I know that they patrol the area and it makes me feel more secure."

"We will probably get more complaints once we begin full operation, hopefully by November 30," stated Second Lieutenant Jeffrey P. Bauer. "At that time we will have regular patrol shifts and a desk sergeant on duty 24 hours a day."

Redlegs move out

Battery A, 2nd Battalion, 10th Field Artillery, better known as the Redlegs, moved out on the battery's live-fire Army Training Test, Nov. 19, and interviews with some of the participants show that the Redleg soldiers enjoy working in the field.

Private Kenneth J. Clause said, "I like the artillery very much. I am learning something new each time we go out. My job is taking care of the powder charges. When the gun chief calls for an extra powder charge I take it up to the gun. This may not help me too much when I return to my civilian job, but I think every young man should come into the Army to travel and see places that he might not be able to see otherwise."

Private Harvey Johnson said, "I am learning a lot about laying the guns in and also learning how to do a fire mission along with my gun crew."

Private Johnny M. Shelton said, "I am a loader and I also assist the gunner. I have learned a lot about the artillery. We get to work in each position."

Let GAC put a jingle in your dufflebag.

The way prices are going right now—you may need more money than you thought you'd need. GAC wants to lend you all the money you'll need to help beat prices and to buy the bargains you want before they're gone.

You don't have to make a lot to borrow a lot at GAC. The size of your loan depends on many things: the bills you have or have had. What you own or want to buy. The kind of work you do. And, because you wear a uniform, the kind of work you do rates very high with GAC. A steady income makes it easier for you to get a loan. But, more important, GAC wants to serve you because you serve your country.

Whatever your needs, whatever the reason, let GAC put a jingle in your dufflebag.

"Jack Boles belongs."

That's the way Staff Sergeant Jack Boles sums up the kind of job satisfaction he has.

"I had a lot of options before I came in the Army. But I don't think I could have gotten as involved, with my work and with people, as I am now.

"You see, talking is my thing. And in the Army I get to do plenty of it. As a re-enlistment NCO, a member of the post's Race Relations Advisory Board, and as a high school speaker.

"I think that a man has to feel that he's making a contribution, and today's Army gives you that opportunity. That's why I'm staying in."

Why are you staying in?

The commissary and PX can help you beat the price squeeze works out to 20 per cent. The overall savings in the Commissary, including food, health and beauty items, household supplies, etc. is more than 30 per cent.

PX: "A recent survey of all Army and Air Force exchanges indicated that Army shoppers save about 22 to 25 per cent across the board.

How does the pricing system work?

Commissary: "We sell at cost plus a minimal surcharge. If an item costs us 10 cents, we sell it for 10 cents plus three per cent. The utilities, equipment and maintenance, and every operational expense except the staff are paid for by the 3 per cent surcharge."

PX:-As you know, the PX does operate with a profit motive. The PX, which is the third largest retail operation in the world, is in business to provide necessary items to the military community. A secondary mission is providing funds for the Welfare Board which go for recreation and other services for the soldier.

The exchange makes 95 per cent of the contributions to the welfare fund. We work for the generation of these funds, but it is always our second motive.

We mark items up by a percentage given us by Army and Air Force regulations. These markups can range from five to 25 per cent (the maximum). Items of necessity have the lower markups. Convenience and luxury items receive higher markups.

The gist of that is, Dept. of Defense tells us by category of item, how much profit we will make. Regulations prevent us from selling below the actual cost of the item.

How are items selected for sale?

PX: The basic list of items to be sold is carried in an Army regulation. These items have been approved by Congress.

Some brands are chosen through open purchase with a regional vendor. In this method, we go to local vendors and find which one can meet our specifications at the lowest price. We then contract with him for purchase for a specified period of time.

In the case of soft line goods such as ladies' dresses and men's sport coats, our buyers in Dallas participate in the selection. The buyers go to New York and choose on the market what they feel are the best selections.

This mother is taking advantage of the commissary's at-cost prices to stock up on baby food. Her cart is one of 3000 to check out of the commissary daily.

The commissary sells 50 sides of beef every two days. Continuous sales require continuous preparation in the meat department.

For standard items like toiletries, we have a stock selection based on the best sellers nationally. These items are shipped in daily from a regional source.

Commissary: Our system is somewhat like the PX. The Army, of course, tells us what the commissary can carry. From that, we determine the size and brands through customer survey and advertising. The commissary advisory board, with members from all areas of the Benning community, also suggests what it feels the customers want. All commissaries are able to determine at the local level what brands and sizes they will carry.

Secondary, of course, to the popularity of the item is the variety of other services available in the area, and the prices in the area. The commissary makes savings possible by buying in large quanities and passing the savings on to the customer.

We try to carry several of the popular, quality brands. Sometimes, we supplement this with an economy brand or a product that would be popular in the local area. An example would be collard greens, or Southern style foods.

Why do the Commissary and PX carry the same items in different sizes? Usually, the commissary has the larger size.

PX: This isn't planned.

Commissary: We lean to family sizes.

PX: Our stock assortments are set up to be as complete as possible. A customer can go to the commissary and get savings or he can run into the PX for a different kind of service. In other words, the customer can choose. Too, the soldier out in Harmony Church doesn't get into the commissary every day. He uses the PX near him.

Do you feel the bachelor soldier here at Benning makes maximum use of the commissary?

Commissary: No, I don't. In fact, we don't feel we are reaching more than a small percentage of the bachelor soldiers. I wish we could reach more of them. There are things in the commissary the soldier in the barracks has a need for. Unfortunately, the single soldier is conditioned to going to the PX.

PX: Also, you have to understand the commissary is a supermarket, and the exchange store is many things. There's more of a browsing atmosphere, like a department store compared to a supermarket. Apparently, the soldier does not want to go through the supermarket atmosphere with a bunch of ladies and kids to save 40 to 50 cents on cigarettes.

Commissary: We are part of the soldier's pay, but we aren't sent to him. He has to come to us. A soldier who doesn't come here has missed part of the compensation to which he is entitled.

Do you have any limits on the items you can carry?

PX: Yes. We can carry stereo home units but not components. Likewise, we can't carry major appliances. We do have the smaller things like mixmasters, etc. Just recently the House subcommittee approved sewing machines for sale.

Why does the commissary only stock at certain times of the month?

Commissary: We stock every day of the week. It's just that the volume of business gets ahead of us. We average 3,000 entries on our cash registers every day. That's not items; that is 3,000 customers.

Why do certain items in the PX not carry store guarantees?

PX: The manufacturer's warranty the PX carries is the same as anywhere else. With this addition: the PX has a liberl refund policy. We do encourage people to use the warranty from the manufacturer. The customer is entitled to that service. For faulty products, we do prefer he deal with the company. We don't have the personnel or facilities to handle repairs with the volume of business we do.

Why is the PX food service not competitive with fast food operations?

PX: You can't compare apples and oranges. You have to look at the entire operation. We offer a caferteria service.

Our operation is like a regular cafeteria downtown. When we survey for pricing, we don't survey fast food places because we offer a total service.

Compared to regular cafeterias, we can offer the exchange system's usual 20 per cent lower price.

In The Chute Snackette, we run a cost price on the hot dog or hamburger, the bun, and so on. Then we add on our overhead. Our overhead is different from a fast food operation.

Also, look at the product. We have certain standards in food content we must meet. Our hamburgers must be four ounces of all meat. Some other places can use soybean additive in their meat. Also, there could be a disparity between portions.

New Mall scheduled for spring opening

By TIM PURDON

The Fort Benning Mall, scheduled to open in April, will offer military families a wide variety of facilities.

The ultra-modern mall, the only shopping complex of its kind in the Army, will have a Commissary store and Post Exchange, warehouse space for both, a service station and a bank.

It will also house a bookstore, a 24-lane bowling center, barber and beauty shops, a florist shop, a snack bar, a photography shop, a nursery, a car wash and a coin-operated laudnry. Other shops will include a tailor shop, shoe repair, television repair, optical shop, an unmanned post office and space for a proposed theater. The complex will cover approximately 205,000 square feet, excluding exterior covered walks and smaller facilities housed separately. Parking space for 1500 cars will surround the cmplex.

The mall will bring about the consolidation or reduction of present Commissary and Exchange branches. However, according to George Perdue, Directorate of Facilities Engineering's project officer for the mall, reduction or consolidation of the facilities won't come about until the mall is opened.

The mall is located on a 48-acre site across from the proposed extension of Lindsay Creek Bypass near Martin Army Hospital and will be convenient to the intersection of Marne and Santa Fe roads.

Up until now, shopping complexes of this type have been only featured in civilian communities.

Contractors for the construction of the mall are Pearce, DeMoss and King from Decatur, Ala. with the total cost of construction, furnishings, etc. being $11,000,000.

Money for construction of the mall was generated through non-appropriated funds from money producing organizations within the Army such as post exchanges and commissaries. Each facility within the mall has to pay for its particular installation and a proprortional part ox the cost of common mall facilities such as the parking lot.

Other work to be done before opening of the mall will include plumbing, electrical, central heating and air conditioning, along with necessary site development, paving, grading and the installation of exterior utilities.

Groundbreaking ceremonies for the mall were held in May 1972 by Lieutenant General Orwin C. Talbott, former post commander, along with Colonel James P. O'Callaghan Jr., former Third Army Engineer, Colonel H. L. Strohecker, Savannah District Engineer, and Murray DeMoss, president of Pearce, DeMoss and King contractors.

In addition to the mall's other advantages of an ideal location as a modern "all-in-one" shopping facility, it will make Fort Benning, and the Army, more attractive to the constant flow of soldiers who pass through the area.

For those who are assigned here for longer periods, or who plan to retire in the area, the mall will definitely be a bonus.

The mall is situated between the four major areas of the post — Sand Hill, Kelly Hill, Harmony Church and Main Post. It can easily be reached from all four areas.

A Christmas tradition from Germany and many other parts of Europe as well, which many of the foreign born wives at Ft. Benning still celebrate is the Advent Wreath pictured above. Four Sundays before Christmas the first candle is lighted and an additional candle is lighted each Sunday until all four are burning on the last Sunday before Christmas. Traditionally Christmas carols are sung and homemade cookies and Stollen are served with coffee while the Advent candles are burning. (Photo by Bill C. Walton)

Coming to the screen

The Heartbreak Kid

Lenny (Charles Grodin) and Lila (Jeannie Berlin) have just been married and are on their way for a Miami honeymoon. While there Lila gets a bad sunburn and is confined to her hotel room while Lenny takes to the beach alone. There he meets sexy young Kelly (Cybill Shepherd) who is visiting with her rich parents (Eddie Albert and Audra Lindley) from Minnesota. Lila's maddening idiosyncrasies freak Lenny and he leaves her to pursue and wed Kelly against some strong resistance. HEARTBREAK KID is an excellent adult comedy which is certain to be talked about because it is frankly uninhibited and rash, while also being entertaining and pleasing.

Dillinger

In the Depression years of 1933, a crime wave broke out in Middle America the likes of which this country had never seen and hopefully never will see again. It was John Dillinger who personified this time of lawlessness, and this movie retells the legend of his short, violent career: daring bank robberies, bloody federal ambushes, spectacular escapes from prison, and entrapment outside a Chicago movie theater after being fingered by the Lady in Red. The violence and language used to portray this brutal period in American history is not for the young set.

Harry In Your Pocket

HARRY IN YOUR POCKET is a refreshingly offbeat and frequently fascinating story about a team of pickpockets - Harry (James Coburn) and Walter Pidgeon, his cocaine sniffing, gentlemanly partner, an old pro who originally taught Coburn everything about the business and now serves as the finger man and receiver of all the money. The two experts hire an amateur but aspiring pickpocket (Michael Sarrazin) and his newly acquired girlfriend Trish Van Devere. The foursome travel from city to city taking on countless victims with a stylish ease and machinelike timing that elevates their work to sheer artisy. The use of drugs and the offbeat theme of the film are not for the young set.

Mary Poppins

Julie Andrews is captivating in the role of Mary Poppins, who has magical powers and uses them to transport to mystical lands her two young charges, a boy and a girl in a household run by a tyranical Victorian father and a mother more interested in the suffragette cause than running her own home. As Bert, the jack-of-all-trades and friend of Mary, Dick Van Dyke really stops the show with his singing and dancing in the big production number "Step In Time," in which he cavorts over the roof tops of London with a chorus of chimmney sweeps. MARY POPPINS is a bright, bouncy and sheerly delightful motion picture entertainment for the whole family.

Main Post Theater to show cancer films

Today is the last day of "Cancer Awareness Week" that women can take advantage of the free Cancer Information Program sponsored by the Columbus-Fort Benning unit of the American Cancer Society. The Main Post Theater at Fort Benning will show films on breast and uterine cancer at 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. today, and the Muscogee Health Center on Talbotton Rd. will provide free Pap tests and breast checks from 6-9 p.m.

Speaking of cancer, Mrs. William C. Cook, chairman of the Breast-Uterine Task Force of the unit, says, "women want to know what it is, how it develops, how it can be detected and what can be done about it."

According to Mrs. Cook, one out of every 15 women will develop the disease. "Through research we are learning more every year about how to treat cancer, but now most of the early detection lies with you," she said.

CHRISTMAS PLANE RESERVATIONS

If you are planning on flying home for the Christmas holidays, and haven't made your plane reservations yet, you may be in for a long lonely Christmas. Commercial flight schedules have been cut back due to the current energy crises, so there won't be many flights going out. If you haven't made reservations yet, do so to insure you do catch a round-trip flight.

ENDEN DANDRUFF SHAMPOO

If you have bought a 5-ounce bottle of Enden Dandruff Shampoo at the PX recently, you may be in for a hair raising experience. One batch of this shampoo gives off a very unpleasant odor. The defective batch is marked with the number "48" near the bottom of the black label. If you have purchased such a bottle, you may return it to the PX for a complete refund.

WATER SAFETY INSTRUCTOR CLASS

The Recreation Services Sports Branch is offering a Water Safety Instructor Course to all active duty military personnel and their dependents who have a current Senior Lifesaving Certification Card, or individuals whose Senior Lifesaving Certificate has expired within the past year. Interested personnel should contact the Recreation Services Sports Branch at 545-1516. If a sufficient number of personnel are interested in the course, a class will be organized at the indoor pool at Briant Wells Field House.

EUROPEAN PX PRICES

The dollar devaluation, accompanied by the rising cost of living in Germany, has sharply increased prices in the Army's PX, commissary, clubs, and recreation centers in Europe. Officials report that since last January, commissary prices have gone up by 19 per cent, PX prices have increased by 15 to 20 per cent, Officer's and NCO clubs have raised their prices by 10 per cent, and recreation centers have raised their prices by 10 to 20 per cent. Officials say that overall European Commissary and PX prices are now higher than state side prices.

CORRECTIVE GLASSES

Personnel that use government issue glasses are requested to call 545-2052 or come by Bldg. 76, Room 11, and make any suggestions they might have concerning the improvement of these glasses.

NOTICE TO HUNTERS

The Ranger Department, United States Army Infantry Center, will be conducting a field training exercise in Quitman county from Dec. 5-9. Hunters are cautioned to make sure of their target before they fire.

CLEARANCE TO ENTER AREAS

During the hunting season, all military and civilian personnel engaged in any outdoor activity on the Fort Benning Reservation are reminded to personally check the range clearance maps prior to entering training areas. Maps are posted at the Provost Marshal's office, Bldg. 215, Range Division office, Bldg. 2621, and the Rod And Gun Club, Victory Lodge, Harmony Church Area and the Fish and Wildlife Game check station, Bldg. 5883, Harmony Church.

PILFERAGE IN SHIPMENTS OF HOUSEHOLD GOODS

Increased pilferage of household goods and unaccompanied baggage continue to be a problem. Members shipping household goods and personal property should insure that manufacturer and personal markings which specifically identify high value items are removed from the outside of the container. Identification markings on such items as tape recorders, camera equipment and radios, on the outside of the container permits the potential thief to be selective.

Chaplains are still there to help with problems

By Robert Cowles

Remember the old saying, "That sounds like a personal problem, go see the chaplain"? Although it is not heard as often these days, the chaplain is still there to help the soldiers.

"We have an open door policy," says Chaplain Charles R. Gatty. "Soldiers go through the chain-of-command prior to coming to usee us, however, we make ourselves available by being with them in their daily work so that much of our counseling is 'on the spot'."

Within the 197th Infantry Brigade, there are five chaplains available to the soldiers.

Chaplain (Lieutenant Colonel) Charles R. Gatty is the 197th Inf. Bde. Chaplain. Chaplain (Major) Robert E. Bell Jr. is the Deputy Bde. Chaplain and works with the 2nd Bn., 10th Field Artillery. Chaplain (Captain) O. Wayne Smith works with the 2nd Bn., 69th Armor and the 197th Spt. Bn. Chaplain (Major) Randolph G. Spry is attached to the 3rd Bn., 7th Inf., and Chaplain (Captain) John R. Kelly is attached to the 1st Bn., 58th Inf.

According to Chaplain Gatty, soldiers come to chaplains with various problems. These problems include drugs, AWOLs, administrative problems, financial difficulties, family and marital problems, re-assignments, adjustment problems and many more.

"Most of the soldiers don't come to see us until they have exhausted other avenues of help known to them. We are usually their last resort for help.

"Ond of the main things we are working for now is to try to get the lower level of command such as squad and platoon leaders to be more sensitive to the problems of the young soldiers."

The chaplains in the 197th Inf. Bde. listen to each problem that is brought to them. They weigh all the problems individually and assist the soldier the best they can.

"When a soldier comes to us with a drug problem, we try to encourage him to get professional help," states Gatty.

"The men who have drug problems need to feel confidence in a chaplain before they can come in and talk about drugs.

"When a man comes to see us because he can not adjust to military life," we first try to evaluate him. We check his civilian life style and try to find out if he has had similar problems.

"With this evaluation, and through cooperation with other post agencies, we then weigh this problem and the mission of the unit to see if the man is a detriment to the service, if, through careful evaluation, we feel the man should get out of the Army, we will recommend it to his superiors.

"Of course, we recognize that this can only be done through the methods contained in pertinent Army regulations," Gatty added. "One of the misconceptions a soldier may have is that the chaplain has some means other than the usual channels made available through Army regulations to get him out of the service or to get him reassigned to another section of the country.

"We have no magical methods.

"I conceive the Chaplain's mission to the young soldier to be that of a friend and counselor helping him to confront his problems in a mature and objective manner. This helps him to grow as an individual. There are times of course when the Army and the soldier are better off going their separate ways."

"We do get a few men who will come in that really don't have an adjustment problem," says Chaplain Smith, "they are just trying to get out of the Army. It is very difficult to sort out the real problems."

"Many times a man comes into the Army to escape something, like a pregnant girlfriend, or to find himself," states Chaplain Kelly. "This makes it harder for him to adjust to military life and presents a real problem."

"I feel that a lot of the men coming into the Army today," says Chapain Gatty, "are extremely immature. I think we can help these type of men through exposure and visability."

"Many times a man will come to us because he feels that he needs a leave and can not get one," sas Chaplain Gatty. "Things that do not warrant a leave, based on a unit's current training mission, may truly be a crisis to the man."

"We look at each of these cases individually," continues Chaplain Gatty. "If we feel the man needs a leave, we will work with the commanding officers in getting it approved."

"We are fortunate in having commanders in the 197th who will listen to the chaplains," states Chaplain Spry. "I am overwhelmed with the amount of co-operation we get from the commanders."

"We're the bread and butter maintenance unit for this brigade," said Co. D First Sergeant Richard H. English.

"If we don't function properly, the 197th Brigade can't do its job in combat."

Complex maintenance problems are the stock-in-trade of Company D (Maintenance), 197th Support Battalion, 197th Infantry Brigade.

Using technical equipment tailored to meet a variety of specific needs, men assigned to the company perform the maintenance and return the repaired items to units. Items requiring maintenance beyond the company's capability, are forwarded to depot maintenance locations.

In some cases depot maintenance can be avoided by work at maintenance shop at Fort Benning's Main Post. Although unable to perform depot level maintenance, this shop can complete some maintenance which Co. D cannot, thereby returning the equipment to parent units faster.

English has served as the maintenance company's first sergeant since it was organized last March.

Specialists assigned to Co. D include automotive technicians, parts supply specialists, recovery and evacuation specialists and electronics repair specialists.

"Our men are highly enthusiastic about their jobs because they are skilled in specialties they were trained for in many of the Army's technical schools," said English.

Although most of the men are trained at other posts and subsequently assigned to Co. D, automotive technicians can also be trained within the company through a 90-day on-the-job-training program. After completing this program, trainees are assigned the 63H (automotive technicians) MOS and placed in appropriate positions in the unit.

MOS learning center opens

The Fort Bennine Military Occupational Specialty (MOS) Learning Center was officially opened with a ribbon cutting ceremony by Colonel Kendrick Barlow Jr., assistant post commander and Susie Lehner, learning center counselor.

The learning center has over 11,000 publications for the 334 specialities at Fort Benning. In addition, 25 study carrels and a room for group study is also provided.

The center also has a rack of current publications such as "Soldiers," "Army Logistician" and other pamphlets on the enlisted evaluation system.

Initial MOS tests are now given on the second and fourth Friday of every month for all people completing 16 months of active federal service.

Each test has several major areas. The individual must score above the minimum for each area or he has flunked te entire test.

The center may also be used by soldiers who want to improve scores in their current MOS or prepare for changing MOS.

The MOS Learning Center, located in Bldg. 1389, is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

How much do you like to hunt? Is a day of hunting worth the loss of a foot, a leg or your life? Some people seem to think it is. At least they are willing to take the chance of paying that price for a day of hunting in a closed area on the Fort Benning reservation.

During the first 20 days in November more than 30 hunters were apprehended in areas closed to hunters. All these people weren't in dud areas, but they could have been. They hadn't checked the Range maps.

Some hunters seem to feel that these maps are a nuisance thought up to harass them. They are anything but that. They are primarily for the safety of the hunter

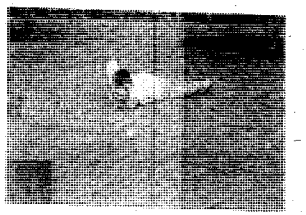
The maps are located at the Provost Marshal Office, Main Post, outside the Range Control Division on Dixie Road, the Rod and Gun Club at Victory Lodge and at the Fish and Wildlife Unit Game Check Point in Bldg. 5833, Harmony Church. These maps show the areas open for hunting and the areas that are off limits to hunters.

Most areas are placed off limits because they are adjacent to contonement areas, permanent dud areas or areas being used for training.

Safety's Prime Objective

Safety is the prime objective in all closures. Containment areas are closed for the safety of people living or working in the areas. The dud areas present a hazard to anyone who enters them. Hunting in areas where troops are training creates a hazard to the troops or to hunters and troops if the troops are using live ammunition.

Quite a few hunters check the maps once, then assume the area they intend to hunt will be open for the entire hunting season. This is a bad assumption. An area open today might be closed tomorrow. The maps are posted daily at noon each day for the next 24 hours and change quite a bit from day to day. Anyone who doesn't check one of these maps each day before going into the field is just asking for trouble. If he doesn't get involved in an incident causing injury to himself or others the chances are good that he is going to get into trouble with the law enforcement people.



The post has more than 60 game wardens patrolling the reservation. These men keep a close check on the areas that are off limits. They also operate road blocks to check for game illegally harvested.

Persons hunting in areas where troops are training are usually reported. When troops are conducting training with live ammunition the safety officer has to stop training until the range has been cleared. When troops aren't conducting live fire training, the troop commander or instructor objects to the presence of hunters because worrying about being shot is distracting to the troops. In either event Range Control is notified and they request the Military Police to eject the hunters from the area.

You Can't Win

Hunters apprehended in off limits areas lose post hunting privileges for 180 days. That just about uses up the rest of the hunting season. In addition, active duty military personnel are liable to action under Article 15 and civilians usually appear before the Federal Magistrate.

Parents sometimes compound the problem. They take small children hunting with them. They take the small fry into dangerous areas with them. The kids probably wouldn't go into the area themselves but after they have been led in once by a parent they get the idea that it is OK and sometimes venture into these areas alone at a later date. Some of these excursions have had heartbreaking results.

Faculty team shows promise

Pains and strains are evident as the USAIS students and faculty head into their second week of practice for the upcoming "Liniment Bowl" tackle football game to be held at Doughboy Stadium, 1 p.m., Dec. 15.

According to offensive faculty coach Wayne Boles, ex Arkansas Razorback halfback, "With a minimum of practice sessions the faculty team showas great ability and are responding very well to the coaching of the Power I formation.

The squad presently consists of approximately 60 players with cuts due in the middle of next week to bring the squad size to 40 players.

Team spirit is excellent with good football experience evident during the practice sessions. The running and throwing part of the practices has brought favorable comments from the faculty coaches.

Boles said that they expect to have a polished football team ready for the student "Preppies". In the coaches opinion, the name "Liniment Bowl" is a misnomer when looking at the experience, quickness and speed of the faculty football team. The coach feels that the game should be a rough and exciting contest that will highlight several outstanding football players from various colleges across the nation.

Stagg bowl to decide champ in NCAA div. III

A national collegiate football title will be decided in Phenix City December 8 when two of the best NCAA Division III teams in the nation collide in the third Amos Alonzo Stagg Bowl.

Kickoff time is 12:30 in the 8,500 capacity stadium. Fort Benning fans may obtain tickets through Special Services.

Teams competing for Stagg Bowl berths are Bridgeport, Conn.; Juniata, Pa.; Wittenburg, Ohio and San Diego University. All are involved in playoffs scheduled for tomorrow.

The Stagg Bowl, sponsored by the Phenix City Lions Club, has been played at Phenix City Stadium the past two years. But this year marks the first time the bowl has been used to determine an NCAA division championship.

Following the 1972 season, 324 NCAA institutions were organized into three divisions with post-season playoffs determining Division II and Division III championships.

Bridgeport and Juniata were selected as Eastern representatives for the two-week Division III playoffs on the basis of this season's records. Wittenburg and San Diego University were chosen as West representatives on the same basis.

How to retire in country club style.

Florida's answer across from fish-laden Indian River.

BAREFOOT BAY

A unique community of mobile home estates 16 miles north of Vero Beach, on U.S. 1. Many retired military families are now enjoying the fun of Florida's Barefoot Bay — awarded the highest Five-Star rating in official Woodall's Mobile Home Directory. No wonder! Here's your own private Golf and Country Club, a million dollar complex. All it costs for full family social membership is a one-time, life of ownership fee of $49! A luxurious clubhouse. Tennis and shuffleboard courts, tournament rated. Heated pool and patio. Sporty 9-hole executive golf (greens fees are very reasonable). Private ocean beach, a scenic 20-mile drive — or by boat, just across Indian River. Barefoot Bay even has its own 776-foot lighted pier that reaches into the fisherman's paradise of Indian River.

Your choice of not just a house . . . but your own mobile home estate where you can have carport, patio, lush landscaping. Handsome spacious interiors, wall-to-wall carpeting, draperies. Community services including cable TV, underground utilities, paved streets, water and sewage systems, police and fire protection. New Bass Hunters need basic Baits

BY DAVE DEUTECHER

So you're new at Fort Benning and you'd like to go fishing. It's your first time down South and you really don't know where to begin. Well, ask for directions to the Rod and Gun Club right now.

The club can supply the necessary permits as well as maps and up-to-date fishing tips. Fort Benning has some terrific fishing year round. A visit to the PX Garden Shop will reveal an assortment of lures that you may have never been up North.

Which ones work best? Ask 10 anglers and you'll get 10 different answers. So, your best bet is to invest in a few that will suit almost every situation at the lowest practical cost. Here's some suggestions:

PLASTIC WORMS: Cheap, effective, and wasy to use. Our warm water bass seem to show an exceptional liking for purple or blue color patterns. A pack of off-set hooks and bullet-type slip sinkers are also essential. When fishing shallow water, you may find it necessary to remove the sinker to help prevent weed hang-ups. Fish the worm very slowly through deep holes and around any structure. If a big bass grabs it, set the hook with force.

SPINNER BAITS: These are the safety pin type lures with a blade attached above a small plastic grub. They come in varying sizes, and many fishermen prefer the heavy bass size. Personally, I've had my best best luck with the small size in a yellow color. Toss it next to stumps, bushes, and other structure. Run it anywhere. It's really a hot item this time of year. When fishing in a reedy shallow lake, you may have to start reeling before the lure hits the water. When a fish inhales it, you may think you just hit a snag; hang on. My favorite model is available at the PX for less than a half buck.

ALPHABET PLUGS: Start digging through your money belt: these baits aren't cheap. I'm referring to the Big-O and similar models. These lures are new, hard to find, and are destined to make fishing history. Alphabet plugs are fat, ugly, and extremely bouyant. Work them any way you like. Crank them through the water at full speed or just let it sit still next to a stump. Retrieve it with sharp jerks or glide it smoothly across the surface. Simple.

FLOATING MINNOWS: Baitfish imitations such as the Rapala or Rebel. Follow directions on the box and always make sure the hooks are completely clean. Even a small strand of grass can ruin its action. There are scores of other baits that will work fine, but these four are a good basic load. With them you can cover just about any depth from surface to lake bottom. And fish have got to be somewhere in there.

Next time you light up a cigarette, get a look at your kid's face

Prestige.

BMW Bavaria.

To people in the know, the brilliant new BMW Bavaria may well be the most prestigious car in the world today. All over Europe, for example, it has replaced another famous German make as the "in" car. With all its great elegance and superb craftsmanship, the Bavaria gives you fantastic performance and matchless road-holding, making it one of the best road machines going. Come in and take a test-drive. Find out the real meaning of the word prestige.

Exchange stations announce Holiday hours of operation

In response to the energy conservation program outlined by President Nixon on Nov. 25, the Army and Air Force Exchange Service has issued a number of instructions to AAFES service stations in the continental United States.

Fort Benning exchange service stations will not dispense gasoline between the hours of 9 p.m. Saturday and midnight of each week.

During hours of operations, bulk sales are limited to one gallon in refilling portable gasoline containers except those approved for use with outboard motors.

Reduced fuel allocations contributed to the decision to close the exchange service stations located in the Sand Hill, Custer Terrace and Kelly Hill areas of Fort Benning. Presently the Main Post and Harmony Church annexes operate under reduced hours.

The Main Post annex hours of operation through Dec. 19 will be: Monday-Friday, 7 a.m. through 6 p.m.; Saturday, 10 a.m. through 4 p.m. and closed on Sundays. On Dec. 20, 21, 26-28 the hours will be 9 a.m. through 5 p.m. Dec. 22 and 29 the Main post annex will operate between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. Main Post service station will be closed on Dec. 23-25 and Dec. 30 and 31.

The Harmony Church service station will operate Monday-Friday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., closing on Saturday and Sunday for those days through Dec. 21. It is anticipated that the Harmony Church annex will close Dec. 22 for the remainder of the month.

In the near future, the exchange service station will begin a program of alerting its patrons to ways of increasing gas mileage. The program will consist of signs placed on the windshields of vehicles as they are having their gasoline tanks refilled. These signs will present ways to increase the performance of motor vehicles to the drivers as they receive service.

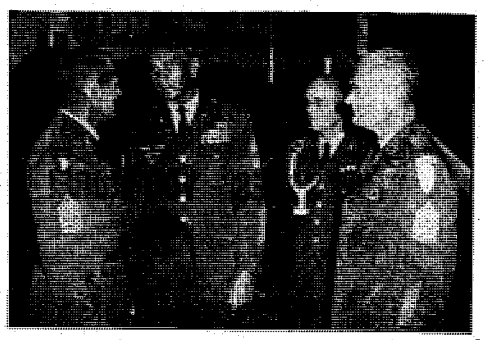
Army Sergeant Major will visit Fort Benning

Sergeant Major Leon L. Van Autreve, sergeant major of the Army, will be visiting Fort Benning on Thursday and Friday, Dec. 13-14 to address the graduating class Advanced Non-Commissioned Officer Education System (ANCOES) Class 2-74.



While he is here he will witness a weapons demonstration at Brann Range and a Ranger demonstration at Victory Pond. He will also visit the 36th Engineer Group Headquarters and will have lunch with the 197th Infantry Brigade troops and NCO's.

Van Autreve entered the Army in 1941 from Delphos, Ohio. After basic training he participated in the invasion of Port Lyautey, Africa with the 9th Infantry Division. He was discharged in 1945 and attended Ohio Northern University until he enlisted again in 1948.

After a tour in Germany he served as an ROTC instructor at the University of Toledo until 1958. He then served at Ft. Knox, Ky. on the CONARC Armor Board, in Korea and then Ft. Belvoir, where he was promoted to sergeant major in 1962. He also served in Indonesia, another tour in Germany, Vietnam and then in Alaska, where he remained until his appointment as Sergeant Major of the Army in June, 1973.

Van Autreve has attended George Washington University, University of Toledo, University of Maryland and Alaska Methodist University.

He has been awarded the Legion of Merit with two oak leaf clusters, Soldiers Medal, Bronze Star, Medal with first oak leaf cluster, Air Medal with two oak leaf clusters, Army Commendation with three oak leaf clusters, the Good Conduct Medal and the Parachute Badge.

Left to right- Command Sergeant Major Theron V. Gergen, sergeant major of the Infantry School, Sergeant Major of the Army, Leon L. Van Autreve, Sergeant Major Jessie Deloach, Department of Industrial Operations Maintenance Supervisor and Command Sergeant Major Robert P. Kearnes, sergeant major of the Infantry Center at the National meeting of the Association of the United States Army at Washington, D. C.

"Women can make it in Airborne"

The original Airborne test platoon went through training at Fort Benning from June-August, 1940. Now, some 33 years later, the first women are undergoing Airborne training at the U. S. Army Infantry Center.

Two members of the original test platoon — George Ivy and Lemuel Pitts — believe the idea of allowing women to become Airborne qualified was a good one.

The two women — Privates Joyce Kutsch, 19, of Sarver, Pa. and Rita Johnson, 18, of Eldon, Mo. — are the first to enlist for a parachute rigger option which previously had been for men only.

Parachute riggers have a creed that they will jump with any parachute that they or a fellow rigger packs. Since only men could go through Airborne training to qualify as jumpers, the jobs were held only by men.

"Women can make it in the Airborne

Private Rita A. Johnson, one of the first two women to attend the Infantry School Airborne Course, exits from the mock door during the ground phase of the course.

Orphanage seeking donations

The Pattaya Orphanage Council in Thailand is seeking donations for the construction and operation of an orphanage.

"Our goal is to construct and equip an orphanage here in Pattaya, opened to all those in need regardless of their race, religion, color or nationality," said Father R. A. Brennan, pastor, St. Nicholaus Parish, Thailand.

A five-month goal of $65,000 has been set for the cost of construction, equipping and initial operation of the orphanage.

According to Clifford Rowland, Camp Samae San command sergeant major and the director of the Orphanage Council, only 900 American troops are stationed there and even though they have donated generously, it would take a great deal of time to raise funds.

Donations should be made by check or money order, payable to the Pattaya Orphanage Fund Account Number 495. Send donations to CSM Rowland, Hqs., Sattahip Detachment, USARSUPTHAI, APO SF 96232.

1/58th receives new commander

Lieutenant Colonel Theodore B. Voorhees assumed command of the 1st Battalion (Mech) 58th Infantry in ceremonies at Martin Range Tuesday.

He succeeded Lieutenant Colonel Robert E. Orkand, who has been the battalion's commander since June 1972. Orkand leaves for an assignment with the Chief of Information, Department of the Army, Washington, D. C.

Voorhees has served as deputy commander of the 197th since November 1972. Prior to that he was assigned to the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel, Department of the Army, Washington, D. C.

The colonel has served two tours in the Republic of Vietnam — his first tour as an advisor to a Ranger battalion. He was operations officer for the 2d Brigade, 1st Infantry Division during the second tour.

Voorhees was graduated from the United States Army Military Academy in 1957 and has since graduated from the Infantry Officers Career Course, the Naval Post Graduate School and the Armed Forces Staff College. He's a qualified Senior Parachutist and a Ranger course grad.

He has been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross Legion of Merit, the Bronze Star with two oak leaf clusters and "V" device, the Air Medal with 11 oak leaf clusters, the Meritorious Service Medal and the Army Commendation Medal with one oak leaf cluster.

His decorations from foreign governments include the Vietnam Gallantry Cross with Gold Star, the Vietnam Armed Forces Honor Medal and the Vietnam Civic Action Honor Medal.

Outside lights Not Allowed

Due to the current energy crisis, the use of outside illuminating Christmas lights is prohibited on Fort Benning this year, except for the Main Post Nativity Scene. Occupants of dependent quarters should not purchase exterior Christmas illuminating sets as they will not be permitted on the exterior of family quarters. The traditional Christmas tree lighting ceremony at Building 4 is canceled this year.

Warrant officers selected

Eleven warrant officer Aviators from the 121st Aviation Company have been selected to receive Instructor Pilots training at Fort Rucker, Ala. After training they will remain as instructors in the school.

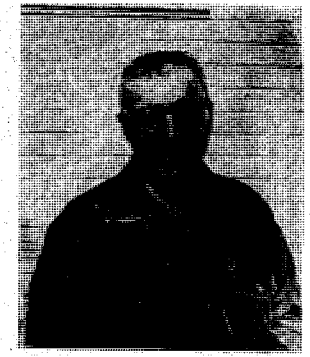
Staff Sergant William C. Darrell-HHC 36th Engr. Grp.

Not only have I received valuable training through educational programs and schools to further my military standing, but the Army's tuition assistance program has given me the opportunity to obtain two years of college credits at Columbus Colle e. If young soldiers in today's Army are planning to continue their career in the military, they should take full advantage of all the benefits offered.

Private First Class John G. Crisman-HHC-36th Engr. Grp.

The job I now hold is in legal assistance, and I enjoy my work. I received my training at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., and feel the school trained me to my satisfaction. To continue my education I am currently enrolled at Columbus College and through the Army's tuition assistance program I have received enough credits to earn my degree when I enter the civilian world.



SOUND OFF!

Do you think the educational benefits offered through the Army's educational programs are of significant value to you?

Private First Class Roosevelt Merriwether-HHC-36th Engr. Grp.

Before entering the Army I didn't have an opportunity to get all the college credits I needed. Because of the Army's tuition assistance program, I am able to attend classes two nights a week to gain the necessary credits for my degree.

Sergeant First Class Edward L. Leeson-HHC-36th Engr. Grp.

I have been in the Army for more than 20 years. Because of the programs established by the Army for a man to further his education, I have been able to attend classes in several different areas, and am currently working towards a degree in business administration. Feeling as I do about the military and its benefits, I think all soldiers should take advantage of the educational opportunities offered to them. If I would have had the benefits 10 years ago that are offered now, I would already have my degree.

New 197th deputy CO takes Over

Lieutenant Colonel Watha J. Eddins, Jr. has assumed duties as deputy commander of the 197th Infantry Brigade following 18 months of service as commander of the 2nd Battalion, 69th Armor.

He succeeds Lieutenant Colonel Theodore B. Voorhees, who left the position to assume command of the 1st Battalion (Mech), 58th Infantry (Patriots).

Eddins, an Armor officer, is a 1955 graduate of the U.S. Military Academy at West Point. He holds masters degrees in both aeronautical and instrumentational engineering from the University of Michigan. He is also an Army parachutist and graduate of the Ranger school. He completed the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kan. in 1966.

An instructor and assistant professor at West Point, he also served as a squadron advisor with the 5th Armored Cavalry Regiment while assigned to the Military Assistance Command in Vietnam (MACV). He was a training advisor for the Vietnamese National Military Academy.

Eddins' awards and decorations include the Legion of Merit, Bronze Star Medal, Meritorious Service Medal, and Army Commendation Medal.

The Republic of Vietnam awarded him the Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry and the Vietnamese Combat Armor Badge.

In addition, Eddins holds the Combat Infantryman's Badge and the Office of the Secretary of Defense identification badge.

VISIT THE GEORGIAN ALPS

You're driving north along highway 17 in Northeast Georgia. The mountain forests and ranches are beautiful, even at this time of the year, not many leaves left on the trees but the pines are green and fragrant. You pass the Old Sautee Store and the Indian mound at Nacoochee, then a few more curves and you see a sign reading "Helen, Georgia-City Limits." Then, more curves.

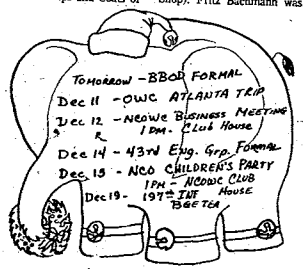
The sun is shining, the kids are giggling in the back seat and all seems fine, but did you make a wrong turn? Suddenly, you're in the center of a bustling little Alpine Village and you don't remember crossing the Atlantic. No, it's not Central Europe nor is it the "Twilight Zone." You're just in the midst of a delightful village right here in Georgia.

It could be quite a shock if you weren't expecting it.

(Helen is about 30 miles north of Gainesville, between Nacoochee and Robertstown, if you can't find it on your map.)

The village was filled with tourists from Colorado, California, Michigan and all over Georgia,the day we were visiting. We started at one end of the street and worked our way through almost every store.

First stop was The Import Shop full of gifts from Europe and a special Scotland Room with the plaids of many Scottish clans as well as historical maps and Coats of Arms. A small room was also set up with the Helen Story." Newspaper articles and sketches of the beginnings of the village covered the wall and large display table. It told of the residents deciding to improve the appearance of their town in 1969 and the local artist, John Kollock, who designed new facades for existing buildings. He was obviously influenced by the villages he saw while in Bavaria for a year. He found the landscapes were similar and had often wished for an Alpine village in Northeast Georgia. His dream was realized and now thousands can see a bit of the Old World without a passport.



Our next stop was the Glasblaser (Glassblower's Shop). Fritz Bachmann was creating a graceful swan to the amazement of our children watching through the shop window. (With three children under six, it's safer to watch from outside.) The shop sparkled with beautiful and itricately crafted figures of people, animals and flowers, as well as ships, pianos, hanging bird-cages and jewelry.

On special order, Mr. Bachmann makes glass cricifixes and chains. The price is steep, but as he said, ". . . the chain alone takes me two hours to make and I guarantee it won't break." I couldn't pass up a small glass elephant for my collection but I fought off the urge to do next year's Christmas shopping.

In the same building was a summer stock theatre and a Flower Shop overflowing with dried flowers and ornamental containers.

The Antique and Gift Shop would thrill antique enthusiasts as would the Moundain Do Store which 197th INF. BDE.

The ladies of the 197th Infantry Brigade, Headquarters, held their monthly coffee the night of Nov. 20, at the home of Mrs. John Boler, Gibson Ct., Fort Benning. Co-hostess was Mrs. Stephen Wells. In keeping with the holiday season, the refreshments were a variety of pumpkin recipes and eggnog. Each lady was given a copy of the recipes used.

Mrs. Richard Gillem conducted the business and welcomed the following into Headquarters: Mrs. Gary Carlson, Mrs. Ronald Tyree, Mrs. Edward Quinn and Mrs. James Bond. Farewells were paid to Mrs. Theodore Voorhees, Mrs. Judd Walton, Mrs. William Benline, Mrs. Robert Ariyoshi and Mrs. Russell Calvert.

MEDDAC OWC

The MEDDAC Officers' Wives' Club will hold a Christmas Tea on Fri., Dec. 14 from 1:30-3:30 p.m. at the residence of Mrs. John White 507 Baltzell Ave., Fort Benning. Reservations must be made before noon Tues., Dec. 11 with your regular reservation chairman listed in the Musings.

Hostesses for the tea will be the wives of Anesthesia and Operative Service and Dental Clinic No. 3 with Mrs. Robert C. Moore Jr. and Mrs. Girard J. Dipietro as co-chairman.

OWC CHRISTMAS PARTY

Coming home from college for the Christmas holidays but afraid you'll have nothing to do? Would you like to meet other students and make this a more sociable holiday season?

The Annual College Christmas Party, sponsored by the Fort Benning Officers' Wives' Club, is open to all dependent college students. It will be held Dec. 22 frm 7-12 p.m. at the Playboy Lounge (Bldg. 2396, by Lawson Air Field).

This is your opportunity for a free evening of entertainment and the chance to make new friends.

A dance band and refreshments should contribute to a "fun" evening for all. Dress is casual. No reservations are necessary. For more information, call Mrs. Herman Betke at 687-8683.

OWC JANUARY SIGN-UP TEA

Be sure to watch for information about the free OWC sign-up tea in January. There'll be lots of classes and activities available so set aside Jan. 9 to come to this fun filled event.

also stocks finished handcrafts and the supplies to "make-your-own." This shop also houses a huge hutch from the Joseph Haberham plantation collection.

Next door, Fain's Village, an ice cream shop, also contains antiques and imports. I like their suggestion to use an old coat stand they were selling, in the bahtroom as a towel rack with the seat (that opens) as a hamper. Great idea but it would have to sit in my bathtub to fit.

My husband couldn't pass up the Cheese Shop and the kids enjoyed the many shops filled with imported toys, gifts and Christmas decorations.

The Clock Shoppe wa also a bit hit. (We very carefully bypassed the Candy Store.) There was also a jewelry store, local handcraft store called The Loft, a Tearoom, bakery, woodcraft store and a Vietnamese restaurant. I'm not too sure how that fits in an Alpine village but we contemplated entering after reading the menu tacked on the bulletin board near the entrance. Then we noticed the sign on the door stating they don't serve hamburgers, hot dogs, sandwiches or anything but Vietnamese food. We decided squid wouldn't go over too big with the youngsters.

As we left this unique village, we were glad to see the Real Estate Booth was unmanned, for we'd fall en in love with North Georgia and may have bought our own chalet in the mountains.

There are many attractions and pints of interest including several antique and country stores, lakes campgrounds, waterfalls, and historical sites near Helen and in the surrounding area.

"Go abroad this year . . . visit Helen, Georgia."

Some tips on choosing your vocational school

Choosing a private Vocational school is a big decision. You probably want to know: "What is the cost?" "How hard is it?" "How long does it take?" These are good things to find out. But don't be fooled about how much the training will help you get a good job. Before you sign any vocational school contract, get the straight facts.

First, and most important, contact prospective employers. These are the people who may be hiring you. They know what they want in the employee. Their opinions and general impressions are valuable even if they don't have the exact answers to your questions.

1. Go to the yellow pages of the telephone book. Make a list of three companies in your field of interest who might be possible imployers.

2. Visit, write or call the Personnel Offices to get answers to the Four Most Important Questions:

Would you hire graduates of the school?

How many have you actually hired in the last year?

Were they hired because of school training?

Did training make any difference in salary?

3. Get more facts.

Are there jobs available for the skills you want?

Are there complaints or recommendation about the school course?

Get personal counseling and further information from V.A. and military education counselors.

4. The final question. Don't sign anything until you ask . . . What happens if you don't finish the course? Find out what refunds are given. Find out what part of the total payment you get back if for any reason you do not complete the course. Get this information from reading the contract, not just talking with the salesman. Ask questions until you are satisfied.

"Women can make it in Airborne"

course," explained Ivy, "if they have what it takes." He retired from the Army in 1961 as a master sergeant after 24 years of service. Of those 24 years, he served 21 in a jump status.

Ivy received his master parachutist badge in 1949 along with the other members of the original test platoon who were still on active duty. He's now a commissioner in Phenix City, Alabama — across the Chattahoochee River from Columbus, Georgia and Fort Benning.

"We started training at Lawson Field in June 1940," he continued, "and lived in five-man tents. There were 50 of us — 48 enlisted men and two lieutenants. I had been a corporal before starting training, but had to take a reduction in rank so that I could enter the course.

"We ran around Lawson Field during physical training and used dumbbells for calisthenics. Every afternoon we packed parachutes. We didn't jump until August, and then we had to go to Fort Dix, New Jersey and take the bus to Highstown to use the towers there. Fort Benning had no towers at the time.

"We jumped from the 125-foot towers at Highstown," he remembered, "for a week in July. We then returned to Fort Benning in August to get practice jumping from B-18 bombers and C-39 passenger planes."

Originally, all parachutists were also packers. Later, the Army decided it was more efficient to have specialists actually pack the parachutes and have other specialists as parachutists. In fact, approximately 100 women served as parachute riggers during World War II, although none of them went through Airborne training or jumped.

"While we were jumping at Fort Benning," Ivy added, "a movie titled 'Geronimo' was playing at the post theater. One night a couple of trainees went to see it and the next day, while we were jumping, they started hollering 'Geronimo' as they left the plane. Shouting Geronimo is a custom that has lasted to this day."

Yelling 'Geronimo' may have become custom and popular through the subsequent publicity and use in movies, but it is not taught by the Airborne Department at Fort Benning. Trainees are taught to count and then check if they haven't felt a jerk from the chute opening by a certain count.

"The first time we jumped we drew numbers out of a hat to see who would go first. I drew number six, but ended up jumping fifth when the man with number one wouldn't jump. He was the only one of the 50 who ever refused," he said.

Later that year the platoon jumped at Rio Hati, south of the Panama Canal Zone. This time Ivy was the first man out of the plane and became the first American paratrooper to jump overseas.

"That first test platoon was just that — a test. We were trying to prove that the Army needed paratroopers, and we did. Secretary of War Henry Stimson and General George C. Marshall came to watch us put on a mass jump in September and at the end of the month they told us the Army would have paratroopers."

The other member of the original test platoon, retired Army Captain Lemuel T. Pitts, was a buck sergeant at the time. He reinforced Ivy's comments on the original test platoon and his memories.

"They deserve a pat on the back for volunteering," he added when asked about the women now going through the training. "It shows a lot of courage. Everyone has the same feeling when they look out the door of the plane — whether they're male or female."

Colonel White receives Meritorious Service Medal

Colonel John W. White, commander of the US Army Medical Department Activity, was awarded the Meritorious Service Medal, first oak leaf cluster, from Major General Thomas M. Tarpley, Fort Benning commander. Mrs. White and numerous members of the Medical activity attended the ceremony.

Col. White's citation praised his performance of duty while assigned as the commander of Brooke Army Medical Center, Fort Sam Houston, Texas. Under his leadership Brooke General Hospital was phased out and the Brooke Army Medical Center reorganized.

Born in Washington, D.C., he received his undergraduate and medical degrees from George Washington University in 1944. Beginning his career in 1945, his assignments include that of Chief, Department of Surgery, Fitzsimmons General Hospital, Denver; Chief, Surgical Consultant; Office of Surgeon, United States Army Europe; and Chief Surgical Consultant for the Office of the Surgeon General, Washington, D.C.

Col White has also received, the Bronze Star Medal, Meritorious Service Medal, Army Commendation Medal, the World War II Victory Medal, Korean Service Medal, and the United Nations Service Medal.

He is a member of the American College of Surgeons, the American Medical Association, the George Washington University Medical Society, the American Medical Society of Vienna, and the Association of Military Surgeons of the United States.

Let GAC put a jingle in your dufflebag.

The way prices are going right now—you may need more money than you thought you'd need. GAC wants to lend you all the money you'll need to help beat prices and to buy the bargains you want before they're gone.

You don't have to make a lot to borrow a lot at GAC. The size of your loan depends on many things: the bills you have or have had. What you own or want to buy. The kind of work you do. And, because you wear a uniform, the kind of work you do rates very high with GAC. A steady income makes it easier for you to get a loan. But, more important, GAC wants to serve you because you serve your country.

Whatever your needs, whatever the reason, let GAC put a jingle in your dufflebag.

AUSA

LOCAL EVENTS

The appearance of the "SILVER EAGLES" at the Fall Outing at Lawson Army Air Field was attended by more than 3,000 members. The helicopter demonstration and the display of different aircraft were outstanding. Later, the chapter held a general membership meeting in the Lawson Hangar, hightlighted by the telephonic presentation of Georgia Senator Sam Nunn. He discussed important national and international events and participated in a question and answer period.

Local AUSA chapter president Joe Windsor has extended his appreciation to the members of the 145th Aviation Battalion for their outstanding assistance to make this event a complete success.

1973 RESOLUTIONS

Members of the local AUSA chapter will be interested in the Resolutions adopted by National in October. These are some of the stands that AUSA takes on behalf of its members.

THE VOLUNTEER ARMY

Reaffirms its support of all measures designed to improve the attractiveness of a military career and encourage quality volunteers to serve in the Armed Forces — both active and reserve — seeking to enhance professionalism, improve service life, and increase public understanding and support.

US MISSING IN ACTION

Supports the federal government in its continuing effort to secure a prompt and responsible accounting for all personnel missing in action in Southeast Asia.

DEPENDENT EDUCATION

Urges the federal government to recognize its responsibility for quality primary and secondary education of dependents, and to provide the necessary long-range committed budgetary support to federally-impacted school districts and DOD overseas dependent school system.

EQUITY IN SERVICE PAY

Recognizes the extent of military base pay adjustments made over the past 10 years to achieve approximate comparability with the civilian wages. However, certain inequities remain; therefore, AUSA resolves to support appropriate action to obtain:

—All feasible support for non-command-sponsored service families in overseas areas to cover effects of the dollar devaluation.

AMNESTY

Declares and reaffirms its opposition to any action which would grant general amnesty to those who have unlawfully avoided military service, and that each case be adjudicated in accordance with applicable military or civilian regulations.

PFC Walter L. Hollon, Hq. Company, TSB, gets a "hands on" demonstration of proposed new equipment on display in the industrial exhibit areas of the AUSA annual convention.

Brigade maintenance uses new system

The 197th Infantry Brigade maintenance team recently began inspecting units under the new maintenance meter inspection system. Company C, 197th Support Battalion, was the first unit to be inspected in the brigade.

The maintenance meter is designed to let commanders know which area of maintenance needs quick and effective attention.

The inspection consists of vehicle maintenance, shop operation, chemical equipment maintenance and engineer equipment readiness.

Staff Sergeant William H. Paul, a member of the maintenance team, said, "I am very sure this new concept of maintenance will turn out to be very helpful to the units."

Sergeant Arthur J. Heidelberg, of Company C, 197th Support Battalion, said, "I think these inspections are very good. Each one of our companies has its own inspection section, but they are not as specialized as the brigade team. These guys are experts at this type of work and they can really locate a deficiency.

Specialist Five William D. Mays, of Company C, said, "I think it helps a lot to get inspected by experts like these. I think we need to have this type of inspection because a lot of things we overlook the team will be able to find and poijt out to us."

Specialist Five Eddie E. Thornton, of Company C, said, "I am a mechanic and I know it is a great help to us when we get inspected by the brigade team. Our vehicle maintenance is better.

EASTERN IS WORKING HARDER FOR YOUR DOLLAR

When you have a 72 hour pass every minute counts.

This is the time of year when you want to fly home and see your family. Celebrate the holidays with some old friends.

And take hold of your girl and tell her you've missed her.

Whether home is a big city or a small town, let Eastern take you there.

We take over a half million servicemen home for the holidays each year. So if you have a 72-hour pass or a two-week holiday leave, we know what it's like to have a lot to do and only a little time to do it in.

From Columbus to Atlanta, we have 2 daily nonstop flights.

Military Reservation Fare $11. Military Standby $9. From Atlanta you can pick up connections to New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Washington, and Chicago to mention a few of the cities we fly to.

If home is in the southwest, our connecting service via Atlanta to Houston and Dallas/Ft. Worth can get you home quickly with more time to spend with family and friends.

Regular Military fares are good on every Eastern flight, anywhere in the U.S. Any time, except 2 pm to midnight on Fridays and Sundays. And Military Standby is available at any time on all Eastern domestic flights.

Call your SATO office or Eastern at 324-4781 in Columbus. Then call home and tell them you're on your way.

Coming to the screen

The Stone Killer

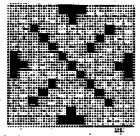
This is a super-action yarn that pulls in the Mafia-Panthers and other bodies associated with death and violence plus auto chases, wrecks, and collisions that will have audiences on the edge of their seats. After killing a teen-aged thief, in Spanish Harlen, tough New York Detective Lt. Charles Bronson accepts a reassignment to Los Angeles. Investigating the murder of a junkie and a pusher, Bronson invades the hideout of Mafia boss Martin Balsam and closes in for the explosive showdown with Balsam's professional killers and the Mafia chieftain. Violence and language of this Mafia-Police action drama is not for the young set.

The Hammer of God

Tiao Ezh, a student in the art of Chinese boxing, is forced to leave his hometown but vows revenge. Tiao returns with a Japanese karate expert, Kitashima, and two of his disciples. In a bloody display of violence they kill or mutilate all the students except Lei Ming who later is nursed back to health. Lei trains day and night . . . until his strength becomes almost superhuman. Tiao's bullies go to battle with Lei but Lei overcomes them all and in a martial confrontation with Kitashima an unbelievably bloody battle ensues. The violence and brutality of the arts of karate and kung-fu displayed here are not for the young set.

Butterflies Are Free

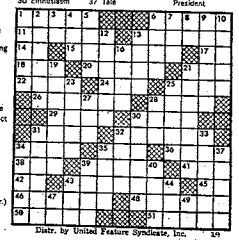
The plot of this unusual love story concerns a blind boy (Edward Albert) who moves away from his overly protective mother (Eileen Heckert) into a Greenwich Village apartment next door to a hippie-type girl (Goldie Hawn). Responding to his loneliness and courage, Hawn tries to help Albert maintain his independence from his mother. Just as the boy begins to realize he is falling in love, mother arrives intent on returning the son to the security of her home. Language and mature storyline are not for the young set.



Slaughter's Big Rip-Off

Slaughter's back and still living up to his name with a vengeance. Jim Brown has got his suitcase-arsenal with him and it seems that the men Slaughter so blithely disposed of in the first episode last year had connections — French connections, Chinese connections, and especially L.A. connections. So, the mob is already after Slaughter in his new locale and mad enough to reward every assassin who fails with assassination. Ed McMahon, czar of the drugs-prostitution combine orders the finger put on Slaughter, but Slaughter gives the mob the finger right back, curled around a trigger. This is a rough, violent, action film with the seamy world of the hoodlums exposed and is not for the young set.

One Little Indian



After the Civil War, Cavalry Corporal James Garner is sentenced to be hung for mutiny and desertion. Escaping on Rosebud, one of the last mounts in the camel corps, he meets Clay O'Brien (of THE COWBOYS), a white boy raised by Cheyennes, who is anxious to return to his Indian mother. Hoping to avoid capture, Garner and Clay cross into Mexico. They encounter Vera Miles (a widow) and her daughter; Jodie Foster, who want to return to Colorado. Garner is caught and nearly hung but is saved by a stampede started by Clay. Captain Pat Hingle tells Sergeant Woodward that Garner can't be hung twice. Garner takes charge of Clay and heads for Colorado.

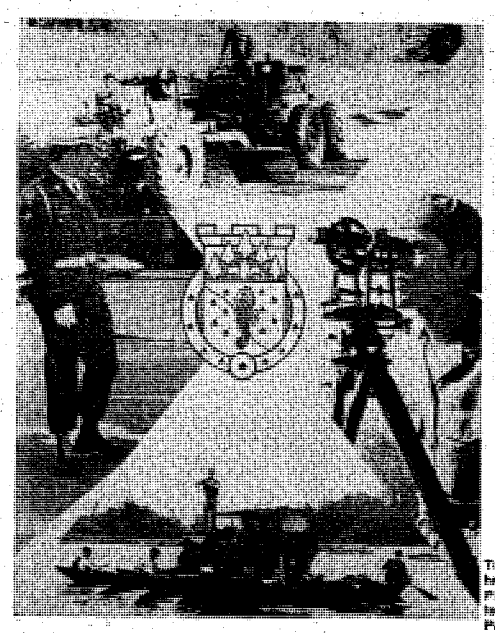
A diverse and unique unit–36th Engrs.

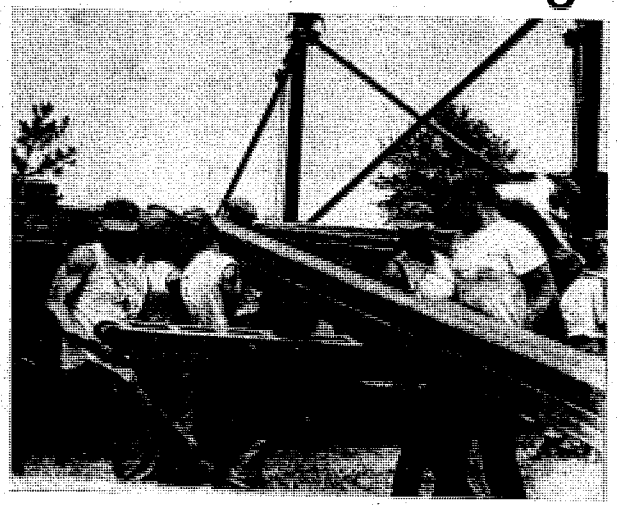
By William Girtman

The 36th Engineer Group (Combat) formerly the 931st, is a combination of many types of units, all essential to the operation of Fort Benning. In the group are engineer construction units, military police units, a float bridge company, finance units, a public information detachment, and ordnance and administration units.



This diverse group provides engineer, logistical and administration support to Fort Benning and the Infantry School. Whether you are inprocessing, outprocessing, asking the military policeman for directions, or receiving assistance with a pay problem, you are probably dealing with an individual from the 36th Engineer Group.

The 43rd Engineer Battalion supports the Infantry School and Fort Benning with general construction and earthmoving projects. Most recent project includes work for the Army Community Service (ACS), the repair of River Road, construction of Griswold Range for Small Arms and the building of a new heliport for Martin Army Hospital.



The 43rd Engineers additionally were involved in civic action projects in Columbus, Ga., Dalton, Ga., and Montgomery, Ala.

Direct support maintenance transportation and ordnance support are provided by the 67th Mintenance Battalion to Fort Benning and the rangers at Dahlonega, Ga.

As a STRAF command all of the units within the 36th maintain a high degree of individual, equipment and unit readiness.

"We do for others first"

By BILL SAMS

Soldiers of the 36th Engineer Group (Combat) believe in their motto "WE DO FOR OTHERS FIRST."

During recent months the 36th Engineer Group has not only completed military missions, but has also established itself as an effective and productive unit in numerous civilian community projects throughout the southeastern United States.

Company D, 43rd Engineer Battalion, 36th Engineer Group, completed construction on several civic acton projects at the Albert P. Brewer High School, Decatur, Ala., during May. The projects included constructing a basehall field, making improvements on the track and football fields, and also building a small bore rifle range.

This year Lake Eufaula was selected for the National Championship Races of the American Power Boat Association in conjunction with the Lake Eufaula Festival, Ala. Again as last year, the 586th Engineers (Float Bridge Company), 36th

Many people—civilian and military—enjoy the U.S. Army Infantry Center's Fourth of July Carnival each year. This is the second consecutive year the 43rd Engineers have manned, constructed, and operated the carnival's midway, with more than 300 engineers involved.

The 586th Float Bridge Company and the Columbus Municipal Marina agan combined efforts in another joint military and civilian project. The unit constructed an 80-foot platform in the marina, allowing the city of Columbus to operate equipment for dredging operations to deepen the marina.

Clearing a four-acre land site for future construction of the Columbus Metropolitan Animal Shelter was yet another project recently completed by soldiers of Company D, 43rd Engineers. Careful planning and supervision was essential for the preservation of large trees and shrubs which will surround the animal shelter and provide shade and beautification.

Engineer Group were called upon to provide support.

More than 40 soldiers participated in the festival, supplying pneumatic assault boats, foot bridge erection boats, truck drivers, radio communications and divers.

Specialist Six Tommy McKay, 586th diver, remarked, "We welcomed the opportunity to combine practical diving experience with rescue operations at the Lake Eufaula Festival." On several occasions the divers were called on to rescue—not only divers but also hoats.

"Projects of this type not only benefit the men by providing excellent training, but also the civilian community," stated Staff Sergeant James C. Rawles, Company C, 43rd Engineers, referring to a construction project recently completed at the MgGinnis School for retarded children in Montgomery, Ala. Engineers and equipment were supplied by the 43rd Engineers.

Specialist Six Glen Parker supervised the project. He said "The men worked together as a team to complete the job on time and conducted themselves as professonal engineers."

Dalton, Ga., was the scene for the next project completed by the 43rd Engineers during Nov. 6-21. The soldiers constructed footbridges, sidewalks, a playground area, and a pavaillion type structure, for the Brookwood Park. The park is part of the Community Improvement Program of the Dalton Junior Women's Club, area garden clubs, youths and environmental organizations.

According to Sergeant First Class Gerald Tate, 36th Engineer Group, Unit and Station of Choice Recruiting NCOCI remarked, "Civic action projects of this nature are a great asset to the unit recruiting program. When the civilian community sees the Army working for its wellbeing and satisfaction, it provides better professional job representation and improves greatly the image of the Volunteer Army."

It takes two men to handle a whopper? These men from C Company, 43rd Engineer Battalion (Construction) helped cut logs for sidewalk construction and a playground area in Dalton, Georgia.

Specialist Four Franklin Smith, C Company, 43rd Engineers, cuts boards for the construction of a gazebo at Brookwood Park, Dalton, Georgia.

The history of the 36th

The 36th Engineer Group was originally activated June 1, 1941 as an Engineer Combat Regiment at Plattsburg Barracks, New York. It remained a regiment until March 1945 when it was redesignated the 36th Engineer Combat Group.

During World War II the unit performed all types of combat engineer projects, often fighting side by side with the infantry.

The first campaigns were in support of the Army in Algeria, French Morroco and Tunisia which included a beachhead landing. The group also helped take General Patton's Seventh Army into Sicily, again via beachhead. The 36th was then assigned to the Fifth Army in the Italian campaign.

At Anzio the 36th held a seven-mile defense perimeter for two long hard months. Later they supported the Seventh Army invasion of Southern France. The 36th also participated in the Rhineland and Ardennes-Alsace campaigns.

The 36th entered combat again in the Korean conflict at Pusan in 1950. As a unit of the IX Corps it performed a variety of engineer projects in support of several offensives.

In October of 1954 the 36th was attached to the I Corps of the Eighth Army.

The colors of the 36th Engineers are distinguished by 20 battle streamers with five bronze arrowheads representing assault landing. The unit has also received the Republic of Korea Presidential Unit Citation, with streamers embroidered KOREA 1950-1952.

The 36th was inactivated on May 30, 1972 at Fort Lewis, Washington. The colors had been brought from Korea by a special color guard. One of the members of that color guard, Command Sergeant Major George W. Ratliff, assigned to the 43rd Engineer Battalion here at Fort Benning.

In June of this year the 36th Engineer Group was activated at Fort Benning to replace the 931st Engineer Group.

The 533d and 444th Transportation Companies are the two units from the 36th Engr Gp (CBT) who support Reforger exercises in Germany. Here members of the 533d are seen preparing to load up for last year's Reforger IV.

—A unit that lives up to its' motto—

SERVICE" is the motto for the 43rd Engineer Battalion 36th Engineer Gp. and once again the unit has lived up to the motto.

Eighteen soldiers of Company C, under the leadership of Second Lieutenant Robert Hughson, began construction work on Brookwood Park in Dalton, Ga., Nov. 6.

The park, sponsored by several area garden clubs and environmental organizations in Dalton, will aid the city in the maintenance of park plants when spring planting begins.

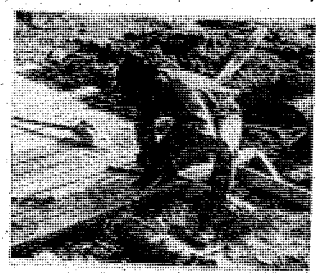
"I like these projects because when you get up in the morning you know what you are going to be doing all day," says Private First Class Harry Duffy, Company C, 43rd Engineers. Duffy described the work as being, "very tiring sometimes, but when the end of the day comes, you can see the progress that you have made."

The construction work in Dalton was a joint project with the civilians providing the materials and the 43rd Engineers suppling the labor.

Captain James Wigglesworth, operations officer, 43rd Engineers, explained that "projects of this type accomplish two objectives — the civilian community receives aid and the men receive excellent training."

Many of the men working on the Dalton project indicated that one of the greatest benefits was being able to get on the-job training in a variety of jobs.

Private First CLASS John Plymel came to the 43d Engineers as a draftsman, but worked as a surveyor on this product.



When asked if everyone worked on jobs requiring their particular specialty Plymel replied, "We all used our specialties on the projects, but we also helped each other."

"For myself and others who might plan to do engineering work, should they leave the Army, this kind of work exposes you to all kinds of jobs and is great experience," Plymel said.

Sergeant First Class Will Anglin, NCOIC for the project, had nothing but praise for the excellent job the men performed. "The enthusiasm and teamwork displayed by the men was outstanding and allowed us to finish the project ahead of schedule," he explained.

The community gave the unit full support. Refreshment were brought to the men daily, and Mrs. Clay Dykes gave a dinner for the 18 men at her home.

Local Army recruiter for the four county area around Dalton Sergeant First Class Larry Young, said "The Brookwood Park Project goes a long way to improve the image of the Army. People are sometimes skeptical about the work of the Army but projects of this type offer tangible proof of the high caliber of soldiers and shows the fine work the Army is able to accomplish."

—Post to conserve energy—

Santa Claus may have trouble finding Fort Benning this year. Christmas lights will be dimmed as part of the post plan to conserve energy. Other measures being taken include concentrating activities in a minimum number of buildings, winterizing unused buildings, and setting temperature standards that vary according to the use of a particular building.

Outdoor Christmas lights will not be allowed in family quarters and troop unit areas. The post chapels will be allowed to use outdoor lights. They will be turned off by 10 p.m. each night. Indoor Christmas tree lights and other decorations will not be affected.

Only those buildings absolutely necessary in order to accomplish the mission of a particular unit or office will be kept open. Troop quarters, administration, and maintenance functions will be consolidated in the minimum number of buildings. Supplementary buildings that can be closed without impairing unit effectiveness will be shut down.

All buildings not in use will be closed and utilities will be disconnected. Buildings scheduled to remain open during the winter will be weatherized by sealing window openings, closing attic and basement doors, adjusting exterior door closers to insure tight door closure, and closing unused fireplace flues.

Temperature standards have been established for all buildings, in order to insure that only the minimum amount of heating fuel is consumed. Special hospital wards, operating and delivery rooms, clinics, X-ray and recovery rooms are allowed to maintain a maximum temperature of 80 degrees Fahrenheit.

Other wards and hospital corridors have set their thermostats at 72 degrees Fahrenheit. Living quarters, lavatories, and showers will maintain a temperature of 68 degrees.

Thermostats in offices, hangars, warehouses and shops where little or no exercise is performed by employes have been set at 65 degrees; where employes receive moderate exercise, at 50 degrees; and where considerable exercise is involved, 40 degrees.

While occupants are sleeping, thermostats will be set at 60 degrees at night. During periods when a normally occupied building is unoccupied, temperatures will be reduced to 40 degrees.

When buildings are heated, ventilation will be limited to the minimum necessary for the health of its occupants. Except in medical and other special facilities, heat will be provided only when outdoor temperatures are under 62 degrees.

Other measures being taken to conserve fuels include the use of portable heaters to heat buildings at night when a duty officer or NCO is present, instead of using the building's entire heating system.

Temperature settings on water heaters in office buildings will also be reduced to a maximum of 110 degrees.

The following instructions have been issued to individuals:

- Close shades or drapes when the sun goes down to provide additional insulation, and do not block radiators with furniture or drapes. This restricts air circulation and overworks heating equipment.
- Do not use hot water if warm or cool water will do. Whenever possible, operate your washing machine with cold water and with a full load.

CRIME PREVENTION

With the current energy crisis and the indications of possible gasoline rationing in the very near future, larcenies and pilferage of gasoline from vehicles are expected to increase. In order to preclude this from happening, motorists are encouraged to install a gas tank locking device on their car which will convenience any culprit who may attempt to siphon gas from your vehicle.

COLUMBUS COLLEGE REGISTRATION

Registration for the winter quarter at Columbus College will be held in Building 35, Room 330, from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m., on Dec. 17 and 18. A total of 30 undergraduate courses, leading to B.A. and B.S. degrees, and two PREP courses, will be offered during the evening hours. Eligible personnel may utilize the Veterans Education Benefits or Tuition Assistance. Class schedules and information about the registration are available at all Fort Benning Education Centers.

CHRISTMAS LEAVE PARKING

Recreation Services has space for parking of privately owned vehicles of personnel going on leave. The parking area is located at the Boat and Camper area, Building 1707, main post. This area is paved and fenced in. Personnel may park their vehicles there for the duration of their leave. Vehicles will be parked and secured by owner at owner's risk. The Boat and Camper area is open Monday-Friday, from 7:30 a.m. until 4 p.m., Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. until 1 p.m. For more information call 545-2641.

PATIENTS AFFAIRS REPRESENTATIVES

A new service is being provided by the Social Work Services, for both in-patients and out-patients, at Martin Army Hospital. A Patient Affairs Representative (PAR) is available toassistyou and your family with any problem or questions concerning your care at the hospital. The PAR is mainly concerned with providing freer lines of communication between patients, their family, and the medical staff, and with alleviating as much inconvenience and discomfort as possible. If you have any questions, or complaints, and want to get something done, contact the Patients Affair Representative located in Room C800, Martin Army Hospital or call 544-2702.

NEW MILITARY LOUNGE IN KANSAS CITY

If you are flying home for the Christmas holidays, and pass through the Kansas City International Airport, and you have time, head for gate one in terminal "A". That's where a new, ultra modern military lounge has just been opened. The new facility offers travel information, rest, conversation, and entertainment, seven days a week. The lounge is a project of the Military Affairs Committee of the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce, and was donated by Braniff Airlines. The lounge is operated by Red Cross volunteers.

CHRISTMAS PARTIAL PAY

Don't plan on getting a partial pay from finance for holiday expenses. Because of the mid-month pay option available under JUMPS-ARMY, a Christmas partial pay will NOT be made to service members during the month of December.

CHAMPUS

Eligible personnel who use civilian hospitals are reminded that they must notify hospital officials, upon admission, that they are entitled to use the Civilian Health and Medical Program (CHAMPUS). Failure to inform admission clerks and hospital billing offices of their eligibility to use CHAMPUS can cost the individual.

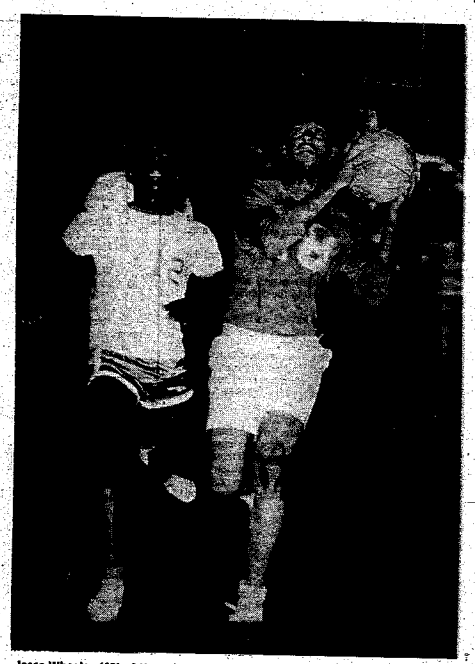
"He's happy and I know he's happy."

Pat Fundum's husband, Gene, works as a Personnel Specialist. He's just reenlisted, but that was no surprise to her.

"Actually, it wasn't something we had to discuss. He knows how I feel about the Army.

"I like it here. The shopping. The activities. The services. And the people we've met.



"But what's more important, I know he likes his job. He's proud of the way he's advanced. And he's always saying there's no way he could have moved up as fast as a civilian.

"Neither of us would say that the Army's right for everyone. But it's right for us!"

Why are you staying in?

Pioneers win big in TSB league

In The School Brigade company level basketball league, Headquarters and Support Company of the 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry (PIONEERS) defeated Headquarters Company, TSB, 51-20, in action at Bryant Wells Fieldhouse.

The Pioneers dominated the game, leading by 21 points at halftime, with special efforts by Rick DeNike and Eddie McClendon.

With five minutes left in the game the Pioneers had built up a 30-point lead when Pioneer coach Patrick Doe decided to give his starters a break and put in substitutes.

High scorers for the Pioneers were Rick DeNike with 12 points and Jesse Wheeler with 10. Although Eddie McClendon scored only six points, he was credited with seven assists and 15 rebounds.

ROD AND GUN CLUB Notes

By BILL KLOEB

The Rod and Gun Club will hold a turkey shoot at the club Skeet Ranges Dec. 15. Shooting will start at 9 a.m. and continue until 4 p.m.

Frozen turkeys, weighing from 10- to-12 pounds will be awarded as prizes.

Contestants may use privately owned shotguns but must fire ammunition furnished by the club. Everyone is welcome to participate.

The club Skeet Ranges are located on First Division Road about one quarter mile south of Highway 27. For additional information, call 697-0562.

Captain Thadeus Davis, club skeet and trap committee chairman, is in charge of preparations and running the shoot. He needs volunteers to help. Anyone interested in donating a little time can contact him at 545-5657.

Too Little Hunting Area

There have been many complaints from hunters about all the areas on post closed to hunters this season. It happens every year but this year has produced more complaints than usual. I checked the Range Division Maps several times and found that most of the reservation is closed to hunting most of the time. There are some good reasons for this.

First, hunters must remember that the primary purpose of the land on the reservation is to provide adequate training areas for units at Fort Benning. This hunting season more areas are closed because there are more units training. The 197th Infantry Brigade, the 36th Engineer Group, the 145th Aviation Battalion and the 34th Medical Battalion became Forces Command units during the reorganization of the Army last July. These units now have operational missions and must reach and maintain readiness capabilities. This requires unit training and a lot of field work. The combined training areas required by these units is no doubt at least equivalent to the area required for training an Infantry division.

When contonement areas, dud areas and training areas have been blocked off there isn't a lot of hunting area remaining.

Hunters say the situation isn't much better on weekends when the school and most of the units aren't training. They are right but there are reasons for that too. Anyone who has had any experience in training knows that a lot of preparation goes into good training.

The training area must be reconnoitered. Plans must be made to fit the Terraine and, in almost every training situation, training aids and facilities must be built. Some of these aids and facilities are elaborate, detailed and take a lot of manpower and time to prepare. Quite a bit of this preparation must be done during normal off duty time.

TWO DIFFERENT VIEWS

There is still another factor involved. Once these training aids and facilities are constructed, commanders want to keep them in good condition. Experience has shown that this can't always be done when the areas are declared open for hunting and other activities. I don't lay all the blame on the hunters but some hunters have a bad habit. They feel that when they go to the field with a gun they have to shoot it. When they don't see game just about any old target will serve the purpose. Road and other control signs are prime targets. Steel barrels, plyboard and other items used in the construction of training sites also come in for their share of buckshot and shotgun slugs. On occasion people have relieved frustrations by plain vandalism of training sites. That takes us to the last but not least important reason why areas are not open.

Commanders and others responsible for training take a dim view of sending work details into training areas to repair or rebuild them every time they must be used. It's a lot easier to keep people out.

What can help the situation? Responsible hunters are the answer to the problem. Hunters must demonstrate that they can use an area without ruining the work of other people. More training areas will no doubt be available for hunting during the Christmas holiday season. Whether those responsible for training keep them open when the holiday season is finished will depend a lot on the behavior of the hunters.

Co.C,3rd Bn.Cottonbalers leap to top of standings

Unbeaten Company C, 3rd Battalion, 7th Infantry (Cottonbalers) streaked to the top of the 197th Infantry Brigade's basketball league by dumping the Cottonbalers' Combat Support Company, 38-36 for its third straight win.

Three teams in the league have registered 2-0 slates in the early roundball action, while the 1st Battalion, (Mech), 58th Infantry (Patriots) and 298th Signal Platoon await their first games, which have been delayed because of training commitments.

Basketball teams in the 197th Brigade this year are organized under the Brigade's five battalions -- creating five leagues.

No teams in the 1st Battalion (Mech), 58th Infantry (Patriots) league have played yet. The following standings reflect the results of early season play in the four active leagues:

GOOD THRU DECEMBER 9th

Says ex-pilot Terry Lutes, Ætna's director of military recruiting:

This year we're talking to 7000 success-oriented short-timers all over the country. We'll hire 366

We're not being choosy just because we're one of the world's leading insurance and financial service organizations. What we are offering is real opportunity, a chance for college-trained individuals to translate personal and military qualities into business leadership.

Bring us decisiveness, discipline and self-reliance. Prove to us you can work under pressure. Show us you're goal-oriented, with a pattern of success in the things you've tackled. Tell us about what you plan to accomplish in the future. Convince us you've really got what it takes to succeed.

Here's what we'll do. We'll pick your brains, test you, make sure you have the temperament, ability and desire to handle the work. Because we're talking about careers—a possible lifetime association, not a two-year hitch. When we're through, we'll both know if you're right for the job. And if the job is right for you. We want winners.

We'll not only march you to the job. Most of the time you can pick the location you want. After all, offices in over 115 leading cities offer a pretty wide choice.

Here's what you can do. Pick up the phone and make a collect call to our military recruiter in this area. His name and phone number are listed below.

If you're hired, we'll offer you all the opportunity and support you need. We'll give you the chance to advance as fast and as far as your ability takes you.

Make no mistake about it. We're talking about hard work. But it's satisfying. And the rewards are large. If that sounds good to you, you're already taken a first tentative step. Now take the second one, give us a call.

Juniata-Wittenberg Meet in Stagg bowl

Juniata College from Huntington, Pa., will meet Wittenberg University from Springfield, Ohio, in the National Collegiate Athletic Association college division championship game in the Amos Alonzo Stagg Bowl in Phenix City on Saturday.

The game will be played at the Phenix City Stadium with pre-game activities beginning at 12:30 p.m. and kickoff time at 1:30 p.m.

Tickets for the NCAA title game are on sale at the Fort Benning Recreation Services office, Bldg. 394, at any Phenix City financial institution, Neil's Sport Shop, Baker Office Supply or from any Lion's Club member.

In order to advance to the championship game, Juniata College defeated favored Bridgeport, 35-14, in Connecticut.

"Our game plan worked as we hoped it would," said Juniata coach Walt Nadzak. "We thought we could pass on them and we did. Now we're looking forward to some of that warm weather in Alabama."

Wittenberg defeated San Diego University 21-14 to earn the right to play in the championship game at Springfield, Ohio.

"We're tickled to death to be going to the Stagg Bowl and are looking forward to some of the Southern hospitality we've heard so much coach Dave Maurer, who played in the same college team with Juniata coach Nadzak at Dennison University.

Carl Jones, chairman of the Stagg Bowl viewed the game at Bridgeport and expressed delight with the prospects for the title contest.

"As far as I'm concerned, we've got a real winner coming to Phenix City. Both teams appear totally dedicated to winning the national championship.

Profits from the game will go to preserve the eyesight of both children and adults. Following last years' game, the Lions Club donated $1,000 in proceeds to the Alabama Sight Conservation Association.

Boucher predicts 26-7 victory for Students

"We predict a 26-7 Student Victory."

So stated head coach Dave Boucher, when asked about the outcome of the 2nd Annual Liniment Bowl, to be played on Saturday Dec. 15.

Coach Boucher has gathered an enthusiastic staff together to make his prediction come true at the annual clash between the USAIS Students and Faculty scheduled at Doughboy Stadium. Kick off will be at 1 p.m. Lee Hector will be guiding the defense through its paces while Tom Hubbard composes strategy for the line.

The Students will be spearheaded by a lightning offense, the keys to which will be quarterback Eric Marshall, a graduate of Michigan State and a former Denver Bronco; Mike Kunzig, veteran fullback from the University of Georgia, and Joe Bodenhour, a graduate Sun Devil from Arizona State.

Professional expertise and enthusiastic attitudes are apparent as other members of the offense, including Joe Williams (Texas Southern), John Stubey (St. Johns University), Bill May (Army) and Joe Betts (Shippensberg State) push forward to the goal line.

A quick cut defense designed to dampen any faculty aspirations will be highlighted by the efforts of such players as Rudy Jones of the Clemson Tigers and former University of Colorado linebacker Rich Bardsley. Faculty hopes will continue to dim as the defense pounds against the wall set by Arkansas Razorback Jim Braddock. Dave Plumer from Cal Poly, University of Utah graduate Bill Pulsipher.

The Liniment Bowl, a benefit tackle football game for Dependent Youth Activities, invites everyone in the Tri-City area to come out and see two truly professional teams participate in one of the greatest gridiron battles in the area.

Moeller takes lead in Big Deer contest

Dave Moeller has taken over the lead in the most antler points in the Rod and Gun Club Big Deer Contest.

Moeller, son of Sergeant First Class Edmund Moeller, U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit registered a deer with 11 antler points.

Holding the lead in the heaviest deer since the contest started is Staff Sergeant (Ret.) Robert Herrington. His deer, field dressed, tipped the scales at 175 pounds.

In the November fishing contest, Warrant Officer (ret.) Brayton M. Davis took first place in the biggest bass competition and Sergeant First Class Gabriel Ring (Ret.) was first in the largest catfish competition.

Redskins defeat All-Stars

The Biddy League Redskins proved why they were champions this past season by thumping the Biddy League All Stars, 22-6.

The All Stars put points on the board first as running back Mark Hubbard bulled his way in from eight years out. The Redskins bounced right back in the second quarter as quarterback Bryan Bouchelion kept the ball on an option play and raced 60 yards to even the score at 6-6.

Jimmy Morgan scored the last Redskin TD on a six-yard run, then added the extra points to give the Redskins a 22-6 triumph over the Allstars.

The second half sarted off with a bang as redskin running back John Teachey took the opening kickoff and rambled 60 yards for a touchdown. Jimmy Morgan added the extra points to give the Skins a 14-6 lead.

He loves to hit people

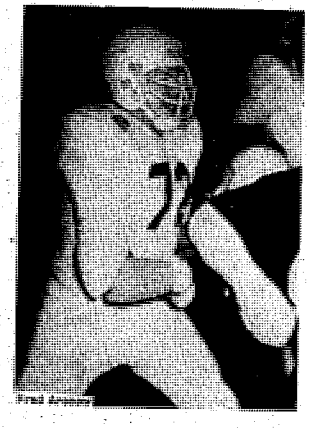
A famous football coach once said, "Football isn't a contact sport, it's a collision sport."

At 1 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 15, a lot of bodies will be colliding when the USAIS faculty meets the USAIS students in the Second Annual Liniment Bowl.

Players from such football powerhouses as Ohio State, California, and Alabama dot the lineups of both teams. However, Number 72 for the faculty team will be W. Fred Aronow from Gonzaga State University in Spokane, Washington. That's right: G-O-N-Z-A-G-A.

At 6'2" and 230 pounds, he'll be manning the left defensive end and right offensive guards spots. He doesn't like to hit people, he LOVES it.

"When I hit someone hard enough that he has to be carried off the field, I feel bad about it, for a minute. After all, it's better him than me."



He attacks everything with a ferocity which makes his teammates definitely happy he's on their side. When Aronow hits the tackling dummies the field echoes with shouts of "Good shot, Fred, way to hit!"

Twice during a recent practice, the team burst into applause as Aronow turned his opponents in the one-on-one practices every way but loose. He hit one 220-pound lineman so hard the unfortunate individual completely left his feet.

Aronow is playing this way against his own team in practice. They just shake their heads when asked what he'll be like against the real opposition.

"You've got to go all out, every play if you want to win," he said.

On one play he made a vicious charge and came out with a gashed chin. He wiped the blood off his face with his sleeve and said quietly, "You've gotta love it," then he dug in for more.

Special Services hosts boxing card

The boxing card will highlight major unit boxers matched in Amateur Athletic Union weight classes. Novice and open divisions will be offered to the fighters.

Fort Benning boxers will be making a resurgence as Special Services will host a special installation boxing card at 7 p.m., at the Harmony Church Field House.

According to the team boxing coach Staff Sergeant Lucius Oliver "The boxers have been in training since September and these exhibitions will give us a chance to see what they do in the ring.

121st ends training

The 121st Aviation Company completed its second Field Training exercise of the year Nov. 12-14. Readiness was stressed during the three days that the 121st occupied the fields around the Eelbeck drop zone. The 121st camp was set up to accent the security necessary in a hostile environment. Missions were planned and completed as though under similar tactical conditions.

A Physical Training Test was given on the first day to stress the importance of physical as well as mental proficiency. Flight personnel received instruction on Cold Weather Flying and Mountain Flying by experienced aviators in these subjects. With winter coming experience in cold weather flying will be important, and missions with the Ranger Department at Camp Frank D. Merrill in Dahlonega, Ga., make proficiency in mountain flying a must.

Children's sleepwear has to meet federal standards for flame-retardant fabrics. The standards require robes, nightgowns, and pajamas in all sizes through 6X to be made of flame resistant material.

All garments made before July, 1972, are exempt from the standard and will not have any label.

If a garment is labeled flammable, it does not meet the standards.

Garments that meet the requirements carry a label reading "complying." These fabrics have all been tested under the new standards.

What does a ghetto mean to you?

Editor's Note: First Lieutenant Marcus Disbrow is the 197th Infantry Brigade Race Relations Education Officer. He holds a B.S. degree in psychology from Ripon College, Ripon, Wisconsin, and is a graduate of the Department of Defense Race Relations Instructor Course. His reason for contributing this article to the Bayonet was: "People attach many different meanings to a word like 'ghetto.' I am attempting to make some of these meanins clear and thus bring about a common understanding. If we can talk to each other, and really listen at the same time, we have already come a long way."

By MARCUS DISBROW

A few years ago, a popular song by Simon and Garfunkel included the lyrics "people talking without speaking, people hearing without listening." Those words hold as true today as they did when the song was written. All too often effective communication is hampered because we simply do not cue in to one another when talking. This breakdown in communication usually leads to misunderstanding and misinterpretation, especially when sensitive topics are discussed. One of those topics is what the word ghetto means.

To Specialist Four Gene Aaron, Co. C, 3rd Bn., 7th Inf., 197th Inf. Bde., a ghetto "is the area of a city which is filthy where the schools are crowded and the houses are run down. The people are poor, uneducated, hungry and full of hate."

Leanne Gomez, a young dependent, sees it as a "dump in the middle of paradise, an obstacle in the path of good health and a clean environment, or a prison where people are forced to live."

This last idea is seconded by Staff Sergeant Freddie Owens of HHC, 197th Inf. Bde., who says "a ghetto is a small community in a city or town to which members of a racial minority are largely restricted. The live there chiefly for economic, social and political reasons."

Another reason people stay there is "their unwillingness or inability to fit into mainstream America," suggested Staff Sergeant Harold Mildleton, HQ CMD.

Private First Class Charles Lanier, HHC, 197th Inf. Bde., believes "it is a place where low income families have to live because they don't make it in the white man's society."

When asked to describe what one would see in a ghetto, Miss Velma Hunter, a civilian employe, reports "you see children running around without good clothes and houses that are not equipped with the right things. Most of the places are dumps. Actually, a ghetto is what the people make it, it could be a safe place. However, while some try to make it better and safer, others don't care and make it worse." An officer from TSB added "you see plenty of drugs and drug traffic, while most of the people are on welfare."

Is there any type of "official" definition of a ghetto? The 1968 Report of the National Commission on Civil Disorders wrote that it "refers to an area within the city characterized by poverty and acute social disorganization and inhabited by members of a racial or ethnic group under conditions of involuntary segregation."

It seems that although the preceding opinions and feelings do not coincide, one thing stands clear. A ghetto is definitely not conducive to a happy and satisfying life. What do you think?

Toys for children project progressing at TSB

The Christmas toys for children program is picking up a full head of steam at Headquarters, Headquarters Company, The School Brigade.

Each day more and more toys are being collected as the word spreads through TSB. Puzzles, games, dolls, toy rockers, and even bicycles have begun filling out the unit's inventories.

"The response to this whole idea has been really great," said Specialist Five Carl Crittenden. "I was worried at first that we might not get what we needed but now it looks real good."

Many of the toys are in excellent condition, and could be given away immediately. Others will need some work, but will look like new when members of the unit have finished fixing them.

"We'll probably have a week-end G. I. party," said Private First Class Dirk Dallman, "in order to repair what needs to be repaired and paint the toys which need painting."

Daily calls come into TSB's S-1 section telling where toys can be picked up. The calls come mainly from people whose children have outgrown the toys.

"It's nice to see these toys come in, knowing how happy they'll make some little child," said Specialist Five Albert Smith.

Fort Benning has half of Army's PA's

Fort Benning's Martin Army Hospital has one of only two women Physician Assistants (PA's) in the United States Army. She is Warrant Officer JoAnn Nick.

PA's are skilled health workers that are neither nurses or doctors. They perform certain tasks previously performed by doctors only.

Presently PAs works in the troop medical clinics, outpatient clinics and emergency rooms. They screen patients to determine the seriousness of their problems. They treat minor illnesses, suture lacerations or prescribe X-rays, perform physicals, etc.

The Physician Assistant expands the physician's capability and will counter the acute shortage of general medical officers. The PA works under a physician who delegates the tasks for him to do and supervises his work.

One of the qualifications for the intensive 74-week program is that the applicant is a top Non-Commissioned Officer in the medical field.

Miss JoAnn Hick was a Sergeant First Class with 10 years of experience as a clinical specialist. She received training as a Licensed Practical Nurse and two years of college while in the Army. Then she entered the PA Program in February 1972 and graduated in August 1973.

Miss Nick explained her reason for entering the program was her desire to be directly involved in patient care. Top NCO's and nurses usually become administrative personnel and Miss Nick didn't want to be saddled with paper work.

The training program covered all phases of medical care to provide an overall picture. Although the emphasis is on outpatient care, the PA needs to have a thorough knowledge of all types of medical care. Upon completion o the program the PA earns an Associate of Science Diploma from Baylor University and a commission as a Warrant Officer.

Warrant Officer JoAnn Nick, Physician Assistant, examines patient at Martin Army Hospital.

Bed, Bath and Boudior Sale to be conducted

"Bed, Bath and Boudoir." Sounds as if it should be rated "X". Actually it is the theme of the annual Army and Air Force Exchange Service (AAFES) white sale.

The sale will be conducted from Dec. 27 through Jan. 5 at the Fort Benning exchange.

During the sale, exchange customers will find the shelves loaded with sheets, pillow cases, pillows, towels, bedspreads, blankets, scatter rugs and bath mats — and all at prices so low they may never be seen again.

But shoppers also will find kitchen towels, tablecloths, place mats, garmet bags, wall mirrors, stationery and even ballpoint pens tagged with special prices.

The "white goods" will be a riot of color this year. New fibers, new colors and new style will be found in top-name brands. A designer-styled print towel and calico and polka dot sheets will be among the special buys.

The exchange layaway plan is expected to be especially popular during the sale as shoppers take advantage of the one-item low prices to take care of their present and future linen needs.

The management of the Benning Exchange advise that customers shop early as stock will be limited. At the same time they remind all shoppers that the exchange policy of granting rainchecks during sales will apply to out of stock items.

WHY BUY A COLEMAN TENT CAMPER?
1. BECAUSE during the energy shortage tent campers with low towing families do not affect gas mileage as the big ones do.
2. BECAUSE when you reach your campsite, you can set it up in less than 7 minutes and enjoy luxurious camping.
3. BECAUSE if you own a small economy car Coleman makes a camper specially for you.

Greenville citizens impressed by 197th

By A. ANGELLE

A high school student counselor was "pleasantly surprised" and a gift shop owner "favorably impressed", after completing an orientation tour of the 197th Infantry Brigade with 24 other citizens of Grennville, Miss.

The visit, conducted by the 3rd Battalion, 7th Infantry (Cottonbalers) in conjunction with the brigade's unit-of-choice recruiting efforts in and around Greenville, was arranged through the auspices of the battalion's unit-of-choice recruiting section (S-5) and the Greenville Army Recruiting Station.

Sergeant first class Robert C. Jackson, one of the Greenville recruiters, was with the group and talked with several members of the 197th Brigade he had enlisted.

Jackson and Robert Steverson, a student counselor at Simmons High School in Greenville, discussed their joint roles in advising senior high school students concerning post-high school plans.

"I point out alternatives to the students," said Steverson. "The final choice is always theirs."

Jackson spends much of his time talking to high school students and discussing prospective enlistees with their student counselors. "The student counselor helps me because he knows the student's character and attitudes better than anyone else," said Jackson.

Counselors like Bob Steverson are looking out for the welfare of high school students," Jackson added. "I try to convince students to finish high school and then join."

"I like Sergeant Jackson's straightforward approach," said Steverson. "He is trying to offer a young man a choice — not merely trying to get a number for his recruiting total."

Steverson added "When I see Sergeant Jackson I view his purpose as I would any other prospective employer."

One of the Cottonbalers Jackson and Steverson talked to was Specialist four L. D. Byrd, who re-entered the Army last January after a brief period following two years of service.

"I talked to Sergeant Jackson and Bob Steverson before I decided to enlist again," said Byrd. A native of Greenville, Byrd said he based his decision on a desire "to work with heavy trucks and equipment."

Byrd is now a vehicle recovery specialist. "I feel I have job satisfaction now," he said.

Steverson remarked, "I am very surprised at what I've seen in contrast to what I've heard about the Army. I think the group feels the same way, especially considering such things as two-man rooms and excellent dining facilities."

"It really does look like all of this represents a new Modern Volunteer Army and definitely not an old one," he added.

James Starks, who is a purchasing agent for Greenville's King's Daughters Hospital and a mall gift shop owners said, "I expected to find things here different from what I've seen."

The Air Force veteran added, "I think it is much superior to what I experienced in the service.

The room accommodations and dining facilities look pretty good."

He added, "Sergeant Jackson's frequent activities at the mall, for such things as recruiting displays, aid the merchants and help to create what we think is a good image for the Army in our area."

First women finish airborne

The first women to ever undergo Airborne training successfully completed their first two jumps Tuesday at the U. S. Army Infantry Center.

Privates Joyce Kutsch, 19, of Sarver, Pennsylvania, and Rita Johnson, 18, of Eldon, Missouri, successfully jumped from a C-141 aircraft Tuesday at a height of 1250 feet above Fryar Field.

The two women were scheduled for two more jumps on Wednesday, and a final jump on Thursday. The final four jumps qualified them as the first women in the history of the U.S. Armed Forces to wear the Airborne wings.

Their graduation ceremony was held at 11 a.m. Thursday at Fort Benning's McCarthy Hall.

The two are the first to enlist for the parachute rigger option since the U.S. Army made it available to women. All parachute riggers have a creed that they will jump any chute that they or a fellow rigger pack.

During World War II the requirement was relaxed and about 100 WACs packed parachutes. None were Airborne qualified or made jumps.

Having completed the WAC Airborne course, which is similar to the Basic Airborne course, the women will undergo parachute rigging training at Fort Lee, Virginia.

Airborne training dates back to June 1940, when a test platoon underwent three months of training at Fort Benning. The results were so impressive the decision was made that the U.S. Army would have paratroopers. In the last 33 years some 466,431 men have completed training to qualify to wear the Airborne wings.

Approximately 15,000 successfully completed the tough Airborne course last year at the Infantry Center. The three-week course has an attrition rate of about 13 per cent. The trainees are of all ages, ranks and branches of service.

When they complete the parachute rigging course at Fort Lee, Privates Kutsch and Johnson will be assigned to a parachute rigging unit at Fort Bragg, North Carolina. However, they will not be assigned to a combat unit.

The only women eligible to undergo the WAC Airborne training at this time are those who enlist for the parachute rigging option. Several women have done so and future classes are planned.

The regular physical fitness qualifications have been slightly modified for the WAC Airborne course in recognition of the anatomical differences between men and women and because the women are not being trained as combat paratroopers.

Privates Rita Johnson (L) and Joyce Kutsch (R) as about seen after receiving their Airborne wings.

"They will not be jumping with heavy equipment under dangerous weather conditions onto rugged drop zones. And they will not have to make forced marches behind enemy lines," explained Colonel Robert Tully, director of the Airborne Department. "We modified the requirements to fit the conditions. All women will have to be physically fit before they can jump, but that's only as fit as they must be for their own safety."

Privates Kutsch and Johnson both indicated a desire to undergo the same training as the men prior to beginning their training. Last week they changed their minds.

"No way. We have enough trouble keeping up with the men even marching, because of the difference in strides," explained Private Kutsch, "and are happy to have the difference."

She added that she had a bit of advice for other women who want to go through WAC Ariborne training. The 19-year-old, who played basketball at Butler (Pennsylvania) Community College said simply, "Have muscles. If you don't when you enter, you will by the time you leave. The training is much harder than we expected. However, it has been very challenging."

Private Kutsch has found the Army so challenging she has decided to make it a career, and wants to attend Drill Sergeant School next.

The Airborne Department was pleased with the way the women underwent training. "As we said when they started," reported Lieutenant Colonel Greg Walls, deputy director, "we expected to change some of the requirements for PT once there had been several women complete training. These first two indicate several modifications can be made once others have verified the findings."

The women, due to the difference in strength, were not able to train as long a time on some of the apparatus because they tired sooner. However, they have received extra training to make them technically proficient.

"Those two were at technically proficient as the men," explained LTC Walls. "On technical proficiency they would rate above average if compared to the men. We feel this proficiency more than offset any disadvantage in the physical department."

Privates Kutsch and Johnson will be required to jump at least once every three months once they report for duty at Fort Bragg in order to qualify for jump pay. However, they will probably jump at least once every month.

Energy tips are handy

The first ideas in the Bayonet's campaign to collect energy saving tips have come in.

For quarters occupants, are you keeping that temperature at 68 degrees? Are family rooms, living rooms, and dining rooms seeing more group and individual activities? Are empty rooms closed and the lights off?

If you live in a mobile home, there are several things you can do. For instance, hay bales under the house cut out a lot of ground draft and make the house easier to heat. Insulating tape around windows also cuts down draft and lowers heating requirements.

Any home can use insulation around doors and windows. Another idea is to lower the temperature control on the water heater. Then you won't need as much heat to get comfortable water.

Families who are gone during the day can turn the heat way down. Rooms used only a few times during the day can be closed off and the heat register closed. That would save a lot of heating expense for bedrooms, bathrooms and dining rooms.

These are a few of the many ways possible to save heat in your home. If you have any ideas, submit them to the Bayonet, Bldg. 4, Room 604. As many as possible will be printed. All ideas will also be sent on to the utilities utilization board for postwide consideration.

NCOA will have Christmas party for nursing home

Several organizations around the Fort Benning area have Christmas parties and gift exchanges scheduled this year to help the needy.

The Noncommissioned Officers Association Follow Me Chapter and its auxiliary will give a Christmas party for some 132 people from the Muscogee Manor and Highland House Nursing Home, Dec. 15.

They will give gifts to the residents, including such items as shampoo, deodorant, tooth paste, slippers and pajamas.

Those who wish to donate to the gift fund may contact Master Sergeant Cyril Robke, 687-8645, or June Brubaker, 687-8208, Fort Benning; Irma Donner, 689-2503, South Columbus; Susan Spears, 327-0721, North Columbus; Hilde Holmes, 687-5417 and Hermie Whitley, 6894615, St. Marys Road area; or Sharon Boyette, 298-8391, Phenix City.

The Warrant Officers Chapter of Professionals will hold a Christmas dinner for some 30 people at the Columbus Highland House Nursing Home.

"We decided to get involved with community activities, and because of our own age bracket, the nursing home was chosen for our Christmas dinner," said CW4 Flash Gordon, president of the chapter.

The Junior Army Daughters of America, will hold a Christmas party for the patients at Martin Army Hospital, Dec. 15.

Each of the girls attending the party will bake cookies and cakes and will visit and talk with the patients and treat them to their baked goods.

JADA will also send a Christmas present to Nguyen Dinh Hong, a Vietnamese orphan boy they are sponsoring through the World Vision International Organization.

Will the gasoline shortage change your Christmas leave plans?

SOUND OFF!

PFC Tyrone Makell
D Co., 1-29

Yes it will! I don't want to take a chance on running out of gas either on the way to or from Maryland. I have decided not to go at all. Mother will have to have Christmas without me.

Spc James Eidson
D Co., 1-29

The gas shortage shouldn't hurt me since I only live in Florida. I really don't have enough leave accumulated to take a long leave but I will head home for the Christmas weekend.

E-7 Odus Beaver

It won't affect my Christmas season. I'm going to stay in Columbus and try to get my second deer of the season. If the gas is rationed at that time I'll still be close enough to walk out to my favorite hunting grounds.

Cpt. Gene Boger
13 Co., TSB

No, I only live 450 miles away from here so the gas shortage shouldn't affect me. The thing that will hurt will be the reduced speed limits. It will take me another two hours to get there. Everyone should pitch in. It's not a problem that we can't overcome.

When drunk kills, host guilty too

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following editorial by Wade Saye, Editor of The Columbus Enquirer, was originally published on The Sunday Columbus Ledger- Enquirer editorial page. It is published again for the consideration of Bayonet readers.

It's awfully difficult to have compassion for the drunk driver — particularly when his being inebriated leads to the death or serious injury of others.

But have you ever realized that many drunk drivers have a partner in crime?

I'm referring to the host who sent him on his way or the bartender who was more intent on making an extra buck than keeping a drunk motorist off the road.

Isn't it time the person who allows a drinker to stagger out to his car to become a killer be recognized — and punished — for what he is: An accessory to the crime?

There are plenty of them around.

Although problem drinkers make up less than 10 per cent of the total driving population, alcoholics are behind the wheel in more than 50 per cent of all traffic deaths.

Safety researchers warn that the 60 million social drinkers who drive appear to be as accidentprone as the full-blown alcoholics.

About 30,000 Americans will die and 800,000 will be injured in accidents this year involving drunk drivers, or about half the total highway toll.

A study by American Youth magazine, published by General Motors, showed that more than half the traffic deaths involving problem drinkers occur in single-car accidents. It also found that 80 per cent of the passengers who die with alcoholic drivers are heavy drinkers. And four out of 10 pedestrians killed are alcoholics or heavy tipplers.

How much alcohol is too much?

Somehow the dangers of alcohol mixed with gasoline seldom rate attention in a party atmosphere. The thought just doesn't occur beforehand. And when the danger point has been reached, nobody seems to care.

I have known very few hosts who thought ahead. One I know insists that drinking guests consume at least one cup of coffee before hitting the road. Coffee doesn't have sobering qualities, despite popular belief to the contrary. But it sure beats the traditional "one for the road." And it buys some time, allowing some of the effects of the alcohol to wear off.

One of the most sensible, although unorthodox, ways of coping with the road hazards of social drinking was employed by an Air Force officer I served with. Every time he attended a social function, he hired an airman to drive him, to wait in the car while he partied, and then to drive him home.

It was rather expensive, but it kept an imbiber away from the wheel.

I would like to see this officer's common-sense idea adapted by bartenders and party hosts. Wouldn't it be a practical thing to hire a couple of drivers to chauffeur home individuals who soak up too much spirits?

Again, it would be an added expense. But such expense would become incidental if a guest left my home, or a customer left my place of business, and killed somebody on the highway because alcohol had dulled his reflexes or impaired his vision.

It would become a blessing if I had to share a prison cell with the person I sent away drunk.

Why shouldn't an accessory to an alcohol-provoked tragedy be identified and punished for his part in the crime?

Such a law probably would take some of the spirits out of partying, but it just might save a few lives.

I'll drink to that.

Do-It- Yourself Carpool Locator is easy

First of all, the Bayonet will run a list of people looking for carpools each week. In addition, two locator boards are available. The first is in the main lobby of Bldg. 35, the other in the main lobby of Bldg. 4.

Instructions for using the locator are simple. Find yourself on this map. Use the grid system and always read right and up. For example, Murray Hills is in C4.

On a card or sheet of paper, put your name, duty phone number, building, and work hours. Send this information to the Bayonet or place it on the carpool bulletin boards.

The bulletin boards will be sectioned into general areas. Please place your card in the appropriate area.

Each week, the Bayonet staff will check the board for new additions. Cards will be removed after three weeks.

If you are not in those two buildings send your cards or coupons to Bayonet, Bldg. 4, Room 604.

PIONEERS

The Company A, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry, The School Brigade, dining facility has won the post best mess award for the month of November.

The PIONEER facility, headed by SFC Clifton Edwards, was selected the best facility of any temporary structure on Fort Benning, and will be in competition for the Fifth Annual Phillip A. Connelly Award for foor excellence.

In addition, the Company A dining facility has recently won the Best Dining Facility in The School Brigade award for the second consecutive time. Company A has only been in the competition twice.

JROTC

Junior ROTC Cadet Lieutenant Colonel Charles E. Lyons, Commander of the Corps of Cadets at Baker High School, today received the Legion of Valor's Bronze Cross, the highest award given in the JROTC program.

Cadet Lyons, son of Master Sergeant (Retired) Leo A. Lyons, President of AFGE Local 54, and Mrs. Lyons, received the award during a special student assembly. He is the sixth cadet in the past seven years in Muscogee County to receive the honor.

Selection for the award is based on "excellence in military and academic scholoarship and leadership, and qualities of discipline, courtesy and character," according to Major (Retired) William G. Newbold, Director of Army Instruction for the Muscogee County School District.

The award was presented by Major (Retired) Robert F. Blumhagen, winner of the Distinguished Service Cross, who represented the National Legion of Valor of the United States of America, Inc. Major Blumhagen is an American history teacher at Baker High.

Cook of the Month

Private First Class George L. Johnson of Fort Valley has been selected November Cook of the month at Fort Benning.

Colonel Kendrick Barlow, assistant post commander, U.S. Army Infantry Center, presented Johnson a $25 savings bond and a letter of commendation from Johnson's company commander.

The cook of the month is chosen from interviews with cooks from each major post command. The winner is selected for personal appearance, professional knowledge and military hearing.

He cooks for the 34th Medical Battalion and is assigned to the 498th Medical Company, Fort Benning.

Certificates received for CFC participation

Twenty-three post activities and units received certificates from the Combined Federal Campaign for exceeding their fair share goals in the 1973 campaign.

They are:

Directorate of personnel and community activities, directorate of plans and training, directorate of industrial operations, comptroller-finance and accounting.

Also Headquarters Command, 197th Inf Bde., The School Brigade, 36th Engineer Group, medical department activity, and the information office.

Further, 145th Avn. Bn., USAIS, HUMRRO, property disposal, CATB, communications command, and staff judge advocate.

In addition, inspector general, security division, MISO, 34 Med. Bn., and race relations coordinating group.

One satisfied specialist

Specialist Four Carolyn Woods was all smiles when she received her reenlistment bonus check. She was given an $8,000 bonus for a six-year obligation in the U.S Army.

Specialist Woods considers this a bargain because she likes the military life. She enjoys her work as a medic at Martin Army Hospital's Outpatient Clinic. She is also looking forward to the medical training available to her in the future.

When asked about her plans for the money, Specialist Woods said she was going to invest it in cattle with the help of her father.

Specialist Woods is the daughter of Orval and Bernice Woods from Vinemont, Ala.

PV2 Emery Mackey, 524th Personnel Service Company, demonstrates how the excellent service and food preparation enabled the 524th Mess Hall to receive the "Best Mess Award" throughout the 36th Engineer Group, for 1973. The 524th services personnel from the 524th PSC, 15th Finance, 13th PID, 18th Replacement and a number of visiting units from other posts.

Holiday driving

Tis the season to be jolly

By Edith Martin

Sp4 Bob Trooper: Hey, Steve, wanna go to my house for Christmas? My old lady cooks up a storm.

PFC Steve Groundpounder: Thanks, I can do that. How are we going?

Bob: I'll take my car; we can take turns driving.

Steve: What about gas?

Bob: Let's leave on Thursday. We'll be home before the weekend. No problem there.

Steve: Good idea. I'll chip in with some coin.

* * a week later * *

Steve: Wow, that was some steam the captain blew about safe driving.

Bob: Cripes. The old man is always hot about something. The easiest way to get through those things is to close your eyes and sleep.

Steve: But, Bob. He made some good points. My brother is a highway cop and he says a lot of what the captain says.

Bob: Yeah? But I don't drive over the speed limits.

Steve: It's not the limit that's important. It's the situation. Speed limits are set for good weather and dry highway conditions. Rain, snow, water spills, oil slicks, they all change the conditions.

Bob: I never thought of it that way. I see what the captain meant about the big picture now. I don't plan to have an accident but the "other" guy might not see me.

Steve: Now you're getting the idea. Vehicles parked at the curb can pull out suddenly, and you know how many times somebody just has to speed up and make that light. You may see red because he didn't slow down for it.

Bob: Didn't the captain say more than half of highway deaths occur at less than 40 m.p.h.?

Steve. Sure did. And he wasn't fooling. Slowing down for bad weather, intersections, and parked vehicles is only part of the safety habits. My brother is always talking about trip planning to avoid sudden lane changes.

He's got a big thing about seatbelts too. He says the chance of survival is five times greater if you aren't thrown from the car.

Bob: You know something I just thougbt of is pedestrians. Those people don't give a damn about where they walk. I'm always worried when I drive through congested areas.

Steve: Yeah. The secret to safe driving is keeping your eyes open and moving. Too many people stare at one object or light and miss a lot of what's happening around them.

Bob: From now on, I practice some rules for driving I just made up. One, I'm gonna keep my eyes awake and moving. Two, whenever something looks funny, I'll slow down instead of assuming it'll be O.K.

Three, When I can, I'll change lanes and give a signal with my lights or horn.

Steve: Good thinking. By the way, I'm getting sleepy. Drive for a while will ya?

Mail early

Individuals waiting until after this weekend to do their Christmas mailing should not be disappointed if packages arrive late.

Dec. 6 marked the deadline for Christmas mailing in order to assure delivery before Christmas. The only exception is greeting cards, sent airmail within the continental United States. They can be sent as late as Dec. 21.

The Fort Benning post office will be open Saturday, Dec. 15 from 8:30 a.m. until 5 p.m. for last-minute mailers. For Saturday, Dec. 22 the post office will observe regular hours of 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

Due to the cutback in airline flights during the energy crisis, all Christmas mail should be delivered to the post office as soon as possible.

Along the feminine

A hardy "WELCOME" goes out to Mrs. Cyril Robke, who has just become co-editor of the Social and Women's News for the Bayonet. Although Jackie and I belong to the NCOWC and OWC, respectively, we do not represent our clubs in our duties as co-editors. Instead we plan to work together in coordinating all items of interest to the military wife and her family.

To achieve our goal we need the cooperation of all publicity chairmen. If you have any questions on what kind of articles to submit, deadines or appearance of the copy, free to call Jackie Robke, 687-8645 or Judy Jawnbowski, 322-3596.

Mrs. Thornton Massey has also joined our staff. She has our appreciation for volunteering her time.

Look for announcements and write-ups of unit or individual social functions in the WHO, WHAT, WHERE column. Due to the limited space alloted "Women's News", articles will not be accepted if more than 10 days old. (The deadline is NOON, WEDNESDAY.)

FEMLINE will continue to bring you announcements of military and civilian organizations as well as feature stories. (The Femhints column has been dissolved.)

Our staff is looking forward to serve you.

NEW OWC PUBLICITY CHAIRMAN

Farewell was said to Marsha Graham at a recent OWC board meeting. Appreciation was given for her work as publicity chairman from May-Dec. of this year.

The new chairman, Jane Macpherson has been hard at work to keep the publicity committee running smoothly. Any questions concerning OWC publicity should be directed to Jane at 687-8501.

THE TALENT TREE

Only 3 shopping days left — at the Talent Tree! SATURDAY, Dec. 15, TUESDAY, Dec. 18, and THURSDAY, Dec. 20. The "Tree" then closes for the holiday break, reopening MONDAY, Jan. 7, for consignments and on TUESDAY, Jan. 8, for regular shopping.

OWC CERAMIC STUDIO

The Studio will be closed Dec. 20 through Jan. 4. Dolly Sibley, chairman, asks that you please pick up fired pieces prior to Dec. 20, as the Studio will be cleaned during the holidays.

RED CROSS

Again the call is out for Red Cross volunteers who are interested in helping out with MAH Coffee Call (Wednesday mornings) on an "on-call" basis. If you'd like to be put on the list please call Judy Jakubowski, 322-3596.

COMMISSARY SPECIALS

Don't forget to pick up price reduction coupons at the door of the main commissary. The coupons, for Stokley and Betty Crocker products, are still valid until Dec. 31.

A POLISH CHRISTMAS

Every country has its own holiday traditions and here in the United States many families carry on the traditions brought over with their parents or grandparents. Our house is no different. We hold onto the few Polish customs we were brought up with and share them with our children and friends.

Our Christmas tree is covered with ornaments made in Poland. Also hanging from the pine are small old-world-decorated spheres that open and are filled with candy by Santa

Every Polish recipe I have is used at this time, from Galombki (stuffed cabbage) and Pierogi (filled duplings) to Babka (a bread-like cake) and Chruszczyki or angel wings (a pastry). Polish sausages, imported from a Detroit delicatessen once or twice a year, are defrosted for

Kieng Hong

Parvin Kirimi

Kieng Hong is the wife of Capt. Kech Hong, an Allied student attending the Infantry Officers' Advanced Course (IOAC). Kieng arrived in August from her home in the Khmer Republic, about 200 miles from Phnom Penh.

King and her husband have two sons. While in the United States, Keing has enjoyed learning about the customs and culture of our country.

"I have enjoyed our participation in activites with American families," comments Kieng, "I like to eat American food very much, and enjoy the family entertainment here." Kieng and her husband have also been impressed with their visits to American cities and national parks.

Sribudhi Soeyono arrived in the United States in Sept., with her husband Capt. Soeyono, who is attending IOAC.

Sribudhi's home is Kakarta, Indonesia, where she learned to speak English at the Foreign Language Academy. Her hobby is Javanese dancing.

"I am very happy to have had the opportunity to visit and study in the USA," says Sribudhi. "I am also very happy to have made many friends from the United States and many other countires during my stay at Fort Benning. This has been the most unforgetable experience of my life."

Parvin Kirimi, wife of Capt. Bahman Kirimi, an IOAC student, arrived at Fort Benning in October. Her home is Karmanshah, Iran.

Parvin is a high school graduate and a seamstress. She would like to become an interior decorator. Parvin and her husband have been married only six months. She is presently enrolled in English classes offered on post.

The Kirimis recently took part in an International Weekend sponsored by the Foreign Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention. Parvin was a model in the fashion show featuring clothes of various countries.

the Christmas dinner. Homemade applesauce fills the house with a heavenly scent.

Before the table is set, small piles if pine straw are placed under the corners of the tablecloth. This is a variance of the tradition to cover the Polish farm table with hay, beneath the best table linen. It's a humble reminder that Christ was born in a manger.

After grace is said, the Oplatek, a large flat wafer with holy pictures pressed on it, is brought out. (Ours was sent from relatives in Poland.) The father breaks off small pieces and gives them to each person present. The pieces are broken and exchanged with each other and Christmas good wishes are expressed, like toasts bid with champagne.

I bid them to you, from the Femline staff: "Wesolego Bozego Narodzenia" (Happy Christ's Birth) and "Szczesliwego Nowego Roku" (Successful New Year.)

Whatja wanta Know? ask the BAYONET

CALL 545-4792

DEAR BAYONET:

Recently a close friend of my husband's retired and his wife received a certificate of appreciation signed by the Secretary of the Army. Who determines whose wife gets one and why is one given? Mrs. PGH

A) The Secretary of the Army has approved a new certificate of Appreciation for wives of Army retirees as of March 31, 1973. The decision to present the certificate will be left to the discretion of the retiree's commanding officer and will also rest with the desires of the retirees. The certificate is intended to give recognition to the service wife who has faithfully shared the hardships and separations of military life with her husband.

DEAR BAYONET:

My wife is pregnant and lives with her mother miles from the nearest military installation. She is in need of pre-natal care. The civilian doctors have refused to accept her I.D. Card in lieu of partial payment for her medical expense. Instead, they have demanded the full payment. Aren't all doctors supposed to accept the I.D. Card and be reimbursed by the government?

A) No, not all physicians and medical facilities participate in the CHAMPUS Program, so it is understandable that those doctors refused to accept the I.D. Card in lieu of cash.

When dependents apply for medical services from civilian physicians and medical facilities, they should make sure that doctors or medical facilities participate in the CHAMPUS Program and will accept their I.D. Cards in lieu of cash payment.

DEAR BAYONET:

I recently married a man who is also in the service. He is stationed at another military installation. I have only four months before I ETS. Why won't the Army let me transfer to the same installation as my husband? Pv2 LMJ

A) Whenever possible, the Army tries to assign married couples, where both are in the Army, to the same installation. The Army will approve reassignments for one member of the family to join the other when the newcomer has enough time left to serve at least 12 months at the new location. In addition, there must be a valid requirement for the spouses' military skill at the new installation.

Cut your own Christmas tree

Military units, dependent schools, and occupants of on-post family housing will be able to cut Christmas trees again this year on the Fort Benning reservation.

Trees may be obtained only in specified areas of the reservation. Individuals who want to enter these areas must obtain clearance by checking the Range Clearance Map at the Provost Marshal Office (Building 215), Range Control Office (Building 2621), the Rod and Gun Club (Victory Pond) or the Fish and Wildlife Unit, Harmony Church (Building 5883).

The areas specified for cutting of Christmas trees are: Areas U-1, 2, 3 and 4, located northeast of Sand Hill; Area "P," southeast of Sand Hill; Area A-14, south of River Road in the southern portion of the reservation; Areas G-1, 4, 5, 6 and 7 in the southeastern portion of the reservation; Areas C-2 and C-3 located north of Highway 27 and bounded on the east by the reservation line; Areas I-3, 4, and 5 in the vicinity of Patterson's Pond and Areas F-1, 2, 3, 4, and 5, which are bounded on the north by Old Buena Vista Road and on the South by Red Diamond Road. The Range Clearance Map depicts the boundaries of these areas.

Tree cutters are cautioned to avoid danger areas and to be aware of hunters who may be in the immediate area.

The Forestry Office (Building 5843) also has a limited supply of longleaf pinecones available for decorating purposes.

Cottonbalers preparing for holidays

The soldiers of Company A, 3rd Battalion 7th Infantry (Cottonbalers) 197th Infantry Brigade, are hard at work completing their field training for 1973 and preparing to take time off for the holidays.

Many soldiers in the company are worried about the fuel crisis because it may limit their travel on weekends, especially for long distances, because of the closing of gas stations on weekends.

PVT. Lionel C. Williams, of Company A, said, "I think the fuel crisis is a disaster for the ones who will be traveling by privately owned vehicles. I am flying home on leave because of the fuel shortage."

PFC Walter E. Saffold, also of Company A, remarked "I don't live too far from post and all I am taking is a pass, but I am very concerned about the fuel shortage because it affects everyone who plans to drive any distance on any weekend."

Pvt. Artis L. Smith, another member of Company A, said, "I think the fuel crisis is very serious. I plan to use my motorcycle for my transportation home for the Christmas holidays. This way I will be able to save on fuel."

Pvt. Jeffrey W. Ward, of Company A, said, "I think this fuel crisis thing is very bad. People are having to stop driving on weekends because all the gas stations will be closed. This will really make it bad for the Christmas holidays. I will have to cut my leave short so I can make it back before the weekend because gas stations will be closed."

Commercial Transportation might be just what you need this holiday season

Fort Benning officials are hoping that military personnel will take maximum advantage of available transportation and reduced fares offered by the rail, bus, and air carriers during Christmas leave travel. This is for fuel conservation as well as the usual safety reasons.

The Army has authorized leave for the Christmas holiday season from 7 a.m. December 20 to 5 p.m. January 6. The Fort Benning commander, Major General Thomas M. Tarpley, has authorized individual commanders to approve departure from duty station at noon December 19 and return to duty station by midnight January 6 — if commercial transportation is used.

All personnel in the Armed Forces are eligible for reduced fares when they are on leave, pass or within seven days of separation and traveling at their own expense. However, all modes of travel have different requirements that military personnel must meet for the reduced fares.

For the nation's railroads, travelers must present their green identification card when purchasing tickets or upon request. Uniforms are not required on AMTRAK routes. Fort Benning personnel can make connections for AMTRAK trains in Montgomery, Ala. for travel to Chicago or south to Florida. Also available is Southern Railway service out of Atlanta for Washington, D. C. and New Orleans with connections to Los Angeles and New York City.

AMTRAK fares are reduced about 25 per cent on both one-way and round-trip coach fares with no weekend restrictions.

Bus lines require the traveler to present his leave orders or pass papers and his I.D. card at the time of ticket purchase or upon request. Reduced fares are limited to selected points in the Eastern and Midwestern states. There are no uniform restrictions for bus travel.

Airlines offer two different fares for service members — standby and military reservation fare. The standby fare is about one half of the regular price and there is no guaranteed seat on a particular flight. Local airline representatives caution against military personnel traveling on standby status. The fuel crisis has caused some flights to be cancelled and the chance that extra flights will be added for the holidays is very remote.

Military reservation fares are about two-thirds the cost of the usual fare and a seat is guaranteed on a particular flight. This fare is restricted by the airlines during weekend rush hours.

Travel and reservation agents urgently suggest that you get your reservations now if you want to insure your Christmas travel plans.

Military space available travelers may be out in the cold

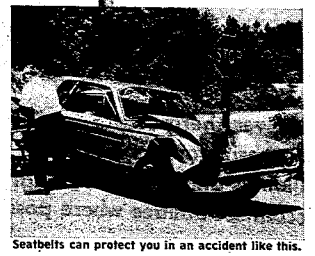
Fort Benning personnel considering military space available travel during the holidays might do better to look for their own "sleigh and eight tiny reindeer" or something else short of a miracle.

Space available travel has been used by servicemen and families for years, often providing worldwide travel ventures at little personal expense. Such travel is often referred to as a "military hop".

To enjoy this benefit, space available travelers should be aware of certain conditions — reservations cannot be made; there is no guarantee to continue a passenger's travel nor to return him to his point of origin.

Inquiries as to possible departures from Fort Benning can be directed to Lawson Airfield flight operations located in Building No. 2485 (Telephone: 545-2424). Applicants must have a valid leave order and ID card. Travel must be accomplished in military uniform.

The majority of space available flights out of Lawson are provided by Air Force aircraft supporting Airborne training. The present fuel crisis has limited this support to two aircraft a week. For the remainder of December and until the third week of January the only such flights are scheduled to leave Dec. 19 for Charleston, S. C. and Texarkana, Texas.



Possibility of other transient aircraft leaving Lawson is remote, as the fuel crisis has decreased military flying operations by as much as 60-70 per cent. Contact with Maxwell AFB, Warner Robins AFB and Charleston AFB confirms that space available applicants are experiencing long delays.

Space available passengers are listed in four categories and moved on a "first in, first out" basic starting with the list of personnel on emergency leave and proceeding through military on leave status and retired military members.

Passenger service people are aware of the personal anxieties encountered when traveling space available. Travelers can help relieve problems by frequently reviewing the terminal flight status board for possible flights, being aware of their position on the space available register and listening to terminal announcements. Travelers should be prepared to defray lodging cost while waiting for flights and for return travel by commercial transportation. They should also be prepared to pay for other essential personal expenses, if necessary.

Sp4 Robert M. Sapp

Seatbelts can protect you in an accident like this.

Pay attention while you are driving this holiday season or you could end up like this.

SP4 Richard Carver, a clerk typist in the intelligence section of the 1st Battalion, 58th Infantry, is instrumental in writing his battalion's safety slogans. One of Carver's slogans is: "Speeders are like cheaters. They never win."

According to Carver, "We change the slogans frequently as they don't become stale. People interpret our slogans in different ways because they are usually short. However, I believe they all get the point — safety first."

"Belt your Wife and Save Her Life" is one of the many eye-catching safety slogans in the 197th Infantry Brigade area.

A first reading of this slogan may draw laughter, but it is thought-provoking and the reader soon realizes the "belt" is the safety belt in his automobile. So "Belt Your Wife and Save Her Life," because "A Car is not the Only Thing That Can be Recalled by its Maker."

"Driver and individual safety are at the top of our priority list in the brigade," states Colonel William B. Steele, brigade commander. "This includes safety at all levels."

"In late September we initiated a renewed safety program which has paid dividends," said Col. Steele.

"There are safety slogans on exits out of all of the brigades's areas, to include Harmony Church, where we have the 2nd Battalion 69th Armor, 1st Battalion, 58th Inf. and 197th Support Battalion," noted the commander.

Steele also said, "Our last traffic fatality was Sept. 20 and we are convinced that the slogans in the brigade area have been a major reason for our two months without a fatality. This excellent trend must continue."

"As commanders," he continued, "we are responsible for the accomplishment of our mission and the welfare of our troops. To me, safety in training, especially driver safety, is all-important in our responsibility for the welfare of our soldiers."

The 2nd Battalion, 10th Artillery uses the old Burma Shave type series signs on Ivy Rd. leading out of the Kelley Hill area. The most recent message reads: "Drive Safely, Soldiers of Steele (with reference to the brigade commander) are Non-Expendable."

Another sign in the Artillery battalion's area reads, "Redlegs are Non-Expendable," and directly behind that sign the competition and unit spirit comes into play. The 3rd Battalion 7th Infantry (Cottonbalers) has a sign which reads, "Neither are Cottonbalers," while the armor battalion's comment reads, "Take Heed, Tankers are a Rare Breed."

"We spend a lot of effort trying to come up with slogans that are geared to the 18-to 25-year-old soldier in the battalion," says Master Sergeant Billy Terry, the battalion intelligence sergeant, "and that has helped."

"Also," continued Terry, "the reduced driving speed on highways should help reduce highway accidents. We are not only concerned with highway safety in POV's but also in driving during our training exercises, and, of course, weapons safety."

SSgt. Dempsey G. Meherg, the medical platoon sergeant and reenlightment NCO of Headquarters Company, 2nd Battalion 69th Armor, believes the slogans have helped reduce accidents.

"I need live, healthy soldiers to reenlist. Have you ever tried to reenlist a dead soldier?" he asked. "Seat belts confine your torso — a coffin even more so," is a favorite slogan of SP4 Robert M. Sapp of HHC, 197th Infantry Brigade. One of his duties is to change slogans on the marquee leading out of the Kelley Hill area.

Commenting on the brigade's safety program, Pvt. Artis L. Smith, Company A, 3 rd Battalion Infantry says, "I think safety slogans are very good. I read them everytime I pass them. I also think the wrecked cars put on display in the brigade are a good reminder to drive safely." "We need you back," and other safety slogans are found in the 197th Support Battalion area in Harmony Church. "We are not just playing it safe," said SGM Cooper D. Trego, the unit's sergeant major, "We are really working at safety."

"This is especially true with the upcoming Christmas season when many of our soldiers will be driving home for the holidays. We need all of them back, safe and sound."

Bang the Drum Slowly

This is basically a deeply moving story of human relations set against a background of big league baseball. The story centers around the team's hottest pitcher, Michael Moriarty and a so-so catcher, Robert DeNiro. Outside their ballplaying, they have very little in common until DeNiro learns he's suffering from a fatal disease. It is then that Moriarty schemes to keep the news from the ball club, including the raspy tongued manager, who has intended to send DeNiro to a farm team. The tensions increase slowly as the manager and players try to discover why the pitcher has such deep concern for the catcher who was never a star. This is a story of baseball and the "heroes" who are unknown to the fans. Language is rough and in keeping with the surroundings.

The Mackintosh Man

Paul Newman plays an Australian super-agent recruited by British Intelligence Chief Mackintosh (Harry Andrews) to engineer a diamond theft that will land him in prison, where he can infiltrate a jail-breaking spy ring that is preparing to spring a British Communist agent (Ian Bannen). Mackintosh wants proof that the head of the ring is James Mason, a leading law-and-order Member of Parliment. The plan works up to the point at which the ring manages to extricate the two men from prison and secrete them in Ireland where Newman's real identity is discovered by the Communists. The excitement and suspense of this spy thriller are brought to a head in a showdown climax of the top magnitude. The violence in this James Bond type caper may prove undesirable for youngsters.

They Call Me Trinity

A western satire THEY CALL ME TRINITY stars Terence Hill as a lazy drifter-gunslinger who is so fast with a gun he is called "the right hand of the Devil." Bud Spencer is his burly outlaw brother, who has just been made sheriff of a Southwestern town. The brothers are bogus lawmen hiding behind badges until their gang can join them. They continue the charade by protecting a peaceful group of Mormon farmers from a gang of Mexican bandits.

Cycling at wrong time can be dangerous

As the Benning workday begins and ends nearly 14,000 automobiles enter or leave the Fort Benning reservation. Drivers experiencing the bumper-to-bumper traffic at these times have to be constantly on the alert. One of their primary concerns is the number of children on foot or riding bicycles along major traffic arteries on post.

While drivers are ever alert for children and cyclists it is often difficult to judge what actions others will take.

Parents are urged to keep children off heavily traveled roads during the hours of 7 a.m. and 8 a.m. and again during the hours of 4:15 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. Children should be cautioned to stay away from Custer, Lumpkin, 1st Division and Dixie roads and Benning Boulevard during these hours.

A spokesman for the Provost Marshal Office suggests that bicycle riders obtain the fluorescent safety flag for easy identification while moving in and out of traffic during the day and at night. He also pointed out that numerous bicycle riders have been observed riding at night without lights or reflectors on their cycles.

Soldier finds art a creative expression

SFC Weston butler, 2nd Battalion, 10th Field Artillery, 197th Inf. Bde. captured a first place in the recent Fort Benning Arts and Crafts Exhibit.

His charcoal drawing "Mother and Child" took first place honors while a second drawing received an honorable mention. Butler's artistic endeavors began last fall when he won two first place awards in the Third Army Arts and Crafts Exhibit. In February the talented Redleg won two first place awards in a Third Army Poster Contest.

The Raleigh N.C. native works in the operations section of Fort Benning's only artillery battalion. Butler plans to pursue a career in commercial art when he retires next year. "To me, art is a creative expression," Butler stated, "a means of displaying my inner thoughts, or the principles of making things of form and beauty."

Butler plans on attending the New England School of Art in Boston before he makes a career of his creative hobby.

Post scouts presented highest scouting honor

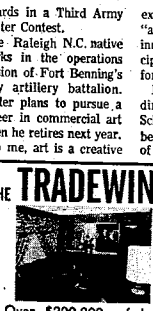
Two Fort Benning Boy Scouts were presented, the Eagle Scout Award, the highest honor in scouting, during Troop 54's Court of Honor held at Wigle Hall.

Billy Millar and Ronald Walker were presented the Eagle by Colonel Lawrence L. Mowery.

In other awards Tim Williams, Val Trainham and Paul Kuntz were advanced to Scout; Keith Westmoreland received his Tenderfoot advancement; Steve Walker and Pete Shaul received their Second Class advancement and Owen Searcey and Rick Thomson received their Life advancement. The Eagle Palm award was presented to Roger Millar.

For the troop's 20-mile hike through the Horseback Bend Trail and National Historical Trail, 12 boys received awards.

For the 73-mile backpacking trip through the Appalachian Trail, 14 boys received awards.



Thirteen boys were presented awards for a camping trip at FDR State Park.

VOLUNTARY RECLASSIFICATION

A surplus of 400 personnel in grades below E-6, and a slight overstrength in the grade of E-7 has developed in MOS 11C40. The Infantry/Armor Branch is looking for E-6's, with MOS 11C40, to request voluntary reclassification into another Infantry or Armor MOS Voluntary reclassification may have the bonus of increasing an individual's chances for a promotion.

In the event the voluntary reclassification actions are insufficient to balance MOS 11C40, the Enlisted Personnel Department's Combined Arms Division might have to resort to involuntary reclassification actions.

VOLUNTEERS FOR ROTC INSTRUCTOR

The Infantry Branch, Combined Arms Division of the Enlisted Personnel Department is looking for high caliber E-6's to serve in ROTC Instructor Group assignments. All interested individuals should submit their applications by DF, in accordance with AR 611-50. Applications should be submitted to:

Department of the Army
U.S. Army Military Personnel Center
ATTN: DAPC-EPC-CI
2461 Eisenhower Avenue
Alexandria, Virginia 22331

Experience as an instructor will be helpful in gaining acceptance for these positions.

NCOES SELECTION BOARD

The Advanced NCOES selection board will meet in March, at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., to select E-6 and E-7 attendees for the fiscal year 75 Advanced NCOES classes. The basic qualifications for consideration are: No more than 17 years service and an MOS test score of no less than 100. Those in the zone of consideration should check to make sure that their Official Military Personnel Files are up to date.

THE LIVING CHRISTMAS CARDS

A Christmas program, The Living Christmas Cards, will be held at 7 p.m. on Monday, Dec. 17, in the Infantry Center Chapel Annex. The program is presented by the Protestant and Catholic Junior Choir and the Protestant Junior High Youth of the Chapel. A playlet, Christmas Has Been Cancelled, will be presented by the "Follow Me Group." The public is invited to attend. For more information call 545-4334.

TOT TOWN NURSERY

Tot Town Nursery will be closed Dec. 24-26 because of the Christmas Holidays. For your convenience, the Nursery will be open New Year's Eve from 6:30 p.m. until 3 a.m. Children will be accepted on a reservation basis only. No meals will be served.

Santa Claus will visit the nursery at 3 p.m., Dec. 20. For more information contact the nursery at 689-8698.

LARCENY OF TAPE PLAYERS AND TAPES

Incidents of larceny of tape players from vehicles on the Fort Benning Reservation have increased greatly over the past six months. In the future, the Staff Judge Advocate's Office will deny all claims of theft of tape players and or tapes unless the owner has a military police report indicating a forced entry and documentary evidence of the purchase of the tape player or tapes.

Scouts and Patriots get together

Explorer Scouts from Columbus' Kendrick High School tried to teach some football pointers to a team of flag football players from Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 1st Battalion (Mech), 58th Infantry (Patriots) in a season finale, instead, they learned something about the game themselves.

"The Headquarters Company team was better organized and harder to beat than we expected," said Jack Culberson of the Explorers, who are sponsored by the Patriots.

The Patriots' 20-0 victory attested to their domination of the Explorers, but Culberson remarked, "We had a great time." He added, "This was the first time ever that we played an Army team in sports. It really gives us a change to know the men in Headquarters Company who sponsor us."

Former Headquarters Company Commander Capt. Jerome and Faust and present Commander Capt. John Ooley arranged for the game. The Patriots' Headquarters Company sponsors a Scout Troop unit from Columbus' Carver High School as well as Troop unit from Columbus' Carver High School as well as Troop 254 from Kendrick.

The Second Annual Liniment Bowl tackle football game promises to be one of the highlights of the Fort Benning Sports Calendar.

The contest pits the Infantry School staff and faculty against the students.

The game is set for December 15, 1 p.m. at Doughboy Stadium, Fort Benning. It will feature teams made up of professional, semi-pro, college and high school players.

It is a benefit game with all the color of a professional tilt, with all proceeds going to Fort Benning's Dependent Youth Activities.

When questioned about the game, faculty head coach Horace Bouchelion said, "I feel that the game will be close and exciting; however, the staff and faculty team will win by a substantial margin. A very visable defense, coupled with an explosive ground and aerial attack will see us through to victory." The team spirit is exceptionally high with all team members highly keyed up for the game."

A half-time show will include a selection of music presented by the 283rd Army Band.

Funds will be generated from donations and concession sales. Admission donations are suggested at $1.00 per adult and 50¢ for kids under 12. Tickets for the event will be available at all Recreation Services facilities.

Everyone is invited to the Rod and Gun Club Turkey Shoot at the club's Skeet Ranges tomorrow.

The shoot will start at 9 a.m. and continue until 4 p.m. Frozen turkeys weighing from 10-to 12-pounds will be awarded as prizes.

Contestants may use privately owned weapons or those provided by the club. The club will furnish all ammunition.

The club Skeet Ranges are located on First Division Road about one quarter mile south of Highway 27.

Captain Thadeum Davis, club skeet and trap committee chairman, is in charge of preparations and running the shoot. He needs volunteers to help. Anyone interested in donating a little time can contact him at 545-5657 or at the Skeet Ranges tomorrow.

Twilight Pond is Closed

Twilight Pond has been closed to fishermen. According to Roy Johnson, chief of the Post Fish and Wildlife Unit, the pond has been placed off-limits because more fish are being added to the pond population. In the past week about 5,000 channel catfish, each weighing approximately one-quarterpound have been placed in Twilight Pond. In addition, 300 channel catfish weighing from 5 to 15 pounds have been stocked in the pond.

Women win Victory

Female Civil Service employees on post won a victory for equal rights when the Post Resources Management Board changed the wording of the Post Hunting and Fishing Regulations.

The change made in paragraph three of the regulation enables the husbands of all female Civil Service workers on post to obtain permission to hunt and fish on the post. Under the interpretation of the old wording dependent children of the female worker were granted hunting and fishing privileges but the worker was required to show her husband was actually one of her dependents before he could obtain a permit.

The board also made an addition to paragraph 5a of the regulation to clarify inddentification requirements for pbtaining post hunting and fishing permits. Military personnel and their dependents must produce a current ID card. Civilian employees may prove eligibility by producing a DA Civilian Identification Card (DA Form 1602) or a current earnings and leave statement. A civilian employee's spouse and dependents must accompanied by the eligible sponsor at the time of registration.

The Fort Benning Rod and Gun Club located in Victory Lodge is the only place on post authorized to issue the Post Permits. Hours of operation are 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 5 a.m. until 5 p.m. on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays.

The Board also modified the regulation governing hunting by children under 16 years of age. Under the new regulation a dependent under 16 years of age must be accompanied by the sponsor or the spouse of the sponsor. One hunter between 10 and 15 years of age may accompany the adult. An exception to this regulation may be obtained only from the USAIC Chief of Staff. Children under the age of 10 are NOT authorized to hunt or accompany hunters on the reservation.

Learn tennis from a pro

Attention tennis buffs! How would you like to be able to have a forehand smash similar to Arthur Ase or a backhand like Billie Jean King? YOU CAN!!!

The Individual Learning Center offers you six 30-minute video tape programs narrated and demonstrated by Billie Jean King and Arthur Ashe, two of the top pros in tennis, giving you personal lessons on the techniques that gained them fame in the sport.

The tapes will cover the forehand, the serve, the backhand, specialty strokes, and the strategy from inside the professional world of tennis.

The Individual Learning Center is located in Bldg., 4, Room 236 and is open from 8:30 a.m.-8:30 p.m., Monday thru Thursday; 8:30 a.m.-5 p.m., Friday; and 9 a.m.-2 p.m. Saturday.

Boxing card held at harmony church

Twenty boxers competed in ten matches during the Smokers Boxing Card held at Fort Benning's Harmony Church Fieldhouse, Dec. 7

Matches on the boxing card included general weight classes, novice and an open division.

In the welter weight division, Paul Palmer defeated Bernard Lamb by a technical knockout.

Willie Smith defeated Tommy Yancey by a decision in the light heavy weight class.

In the light middle weight class Nadine Andrews defeated James Turrentine by a technical knockout.

Erbie Vickers fell to the gloves of Leroy Kemp by a decision in the lightweight class.

In the middleweight class, Charles Mitchell won by a decision over Cal Grahm.

Thomas Lawson beat Jimmy Surles by a technical knockout in the light heavy weight class.

The light weight class saw Robert Grandham defeat Earl Williams by a split decision.

Two exhibition matches finished the boxing card.

According to Lucius Oliver, post boxing coach, plans are being made to continue the Smokers Boxing Card in January and February with the program ending in a post championsbip.

Outstanding players in the January matches will be offered the opportunity to compete in tbe Department of the Army boxing trials held Feb. 18 through April 19 at Fort Campbell, Kentucky.

Christmas trees are beautiful, but dangerous

By Bruce Andrae

Every Christmas season people die as a result of home fires caused by Christmas trees. Christmas for those people and their loved ones is certainly not merry. The precautions are simple and should be adhered to. Putting up a tree is a once-a-year occasion. Take your time. Follow simple precautions and have a safer and more restful sleep during the holidays:

Fresh Christmas trees do not catch fire as easily as dry ones do. Christmas trees will not dry out as readily if kept in a container of water. Christmas trees should not be placed near heating units or fireplaces. Lighted candles, matches, and other open flames should be kept away from the trees. Indoor Christmas tree lights should be turned off before going to bed or when leaving the house unattended, even for short periods.

Before using, inspect Christmas lights carefully for short circuits, broken insulation, and exposed wires. Avoid overloading circuits when hooking up your Christmas lights. Do not use metal foil under burned out light bulbs hooked in series to keep other burning.

Christmas tree lights should be approved by Underwriters Laboratories for the intended use. Outdoor lights should not be used inside. Outside lighting at Fort Benning is prohibited due to the energy crisis.

Frequently fires start with the wrapping paper which is strewn about on Christmas morning. Tissue gift wrapping paper catches fire readily. Gift wrapping paper and wrapped parcels should be kept away from open flames. Used gift wrappings and other paper materials should be discarded as soon as possible. Accumulated waste paper invites a fire in your home.

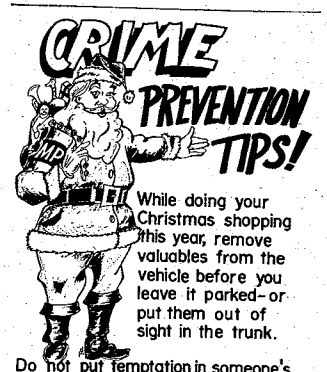
Will your Christmas holidays be merry?

By Bruce Andrae

Unfortunately for many Americans the Christmas-New Year holiday season changes from one of merriment to deep sadness because a loved one has been killed or injured in an accident. The principal hazard is exposure on the nation's highways. Personnel planning to travel long distances are urged to use commerical transportation. The chances of safe arrival are much improved by leaving the driving to the experts.

If you do plan on driving or riding with someone else in a privately owned vehicle, consider these safety tips:

- Plan the trip in advance.
- Be sure the vehicle is in safe operating condition.
- Check the weather report between points of departure and destination.
- Plan rest stops and use them.
- Use the Interstate highway system as much as possible. You will be much safer on these controlled high speed arteries. You will also make better time. However, drive at 50 m.p.h. to conserve fuel. You can save almost 25 per cent by slowing from 70 m.p.h. to 50 m.p.h. and be safer.
- Insist on no drinking. Save your drinking until after you arrive.

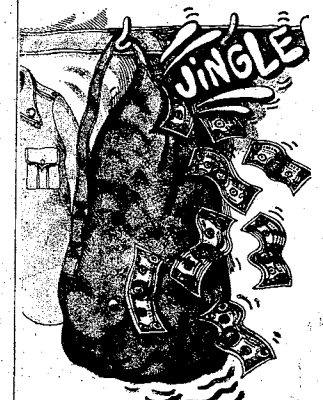


While on leave, remember to obey the rules of defensive driving. You can get killed after you arrive.

If by chance you find yourself exposed to the very serious danger of riding with a reckless, careless or drunken driver, you must remove yourself from this potentially fatal situation. If you can do so safely, turn off the ignition, remove the switch key and get out after the vehicle dtops. Above all, remember you have only one life. Don't let some fool squander it for you.

Plan your return trip as carefully as you did the trip home. If you are going to be late, accept it. Call your unit. They would rather have you back late than not at all.

Christmas can be merry for you and your loved ones if you will think and act safely.



Take Stock in America.
With higher paying U.S. Savings Bonds.

While doing your Christmas shopping this year, remove valuables from the vehicle before you leave it parked or put them out of sight in the trunk.

Do not put temptation in someone's way by leaving packages or other personal items on the seat.

Let GAC put a jingle in your dufflebag.

The way prices are going right now—you may need more money than you thought you'd need. GAC wants to lend you all the money you'll need to help beat prices and to buy the bargains you want before they're gone.

You don't have to make a lot to borrow a lot at GAC. The size of your loan depends on many things: the bills you have or have had. What you own or want to buy. The kind of work you do. And, because you wear a uniform, the kind of work you do rates very high with GAC. A steady income makes it easier for you to get a loan. But, more important, GAC wants to serve you because you serve your country.

Whatever your needs, whatever the reason, let GAC put a jingle in your dufflebag.

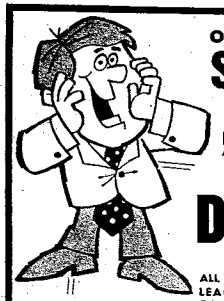
Release change

Two changes in the permissive enlisted early release program outlined, in AR 635-200, have been cancelled.

Effective immediately, early separation to enter or return to school, and separation to accept employment with established law enforcement agencies, is terminated for all personnel with ETS dates on or after May 31, 1974. Early separation is not authorized after Feb. 28, 1974.

The early release policy for the purpose of joining the National Guard is still in effect. For more information about the early release program contact CW4 Jackson at 545-1014.

Museum holds tea party



Some 200 years ago American patriots, raided the ships of the East India Company which were docked in Boston Harbor and dumped their cargoes of tea into the ocean.

In observance of this tea party the Infantry Museum, with the cooperation of the Daughters of the American Revolution, will sponsor a birthday tea party at the Museum on Sunday, Dec. 16 from 1:30 - 3:30 p.m.

Three of the Museum's displays will feature Revolutionary area items. The central attraction will be a large brass American eagle made by the St. Lewis Lightning Rod Company in 1876 for the nation's 100th anniversary.

How am I going to run my life?

That question we each must answer. We can decide to run our lives by playing the role of personal policeman — which suggests that all issues have been decided and life is simply a matter of obeying rules.

Or we can play the role of personal lecturer who has "all the facts" — which tends to cut out the ideas and opinions of others; Or we can play the role of a practitioner of complete personal license which tends to be a cover-up for having no sense of direction in life.

In each case we would not be effective moderators of our own lives. An effective moderator presides over his affairs in a way that will produce a maximum of personal and social harmony. This suggests that moderation is positive rather than negative and that it is life-affirming rather than a system of self-denial.

FIRST, practicing moderation is more than avoiding extremes. To some people moderation is a negative virtue. The need to relate the whole concept of moderation to an intelligent and creative way of running our own lives is essential. A person who practices personal restraints is in a position to be an agent of reconciliation in our world of conflicting extremes. A moderate person accepts the fact of growth and change and the power of feelings, and works to reconcile conflicts.

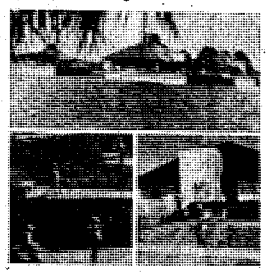
SECOND, moderation is the key to producing both a sense of harmony with ourselves and harmonious relationships with others. Moderation is not a characteristic of childhood. However, when a child matures he accepts the fact that he must moderate his appetites and desires if he is to live in harmony with others.

Moderation is one of the characteristics of the mature human being that marks him as one who is dependable and trustworthy in his social relationships. Practicing moderation is the key to controlling passions that break relationships, managing frustrations and stress, and developing a sense of proportion in daily living.

THIRD, it is important to understand that true moderation is not the result of external restraints. It is the result of internal commitment. This internal commitment is what makes moderation morally significant. A person who grasps this moral significance will experience a kind of personal freedom which will enable him to keep his mind open to new ideas and relationships, and have the capacity to be affirmative when things seem to be going wrong.

43rd Engrs. work at Darby

Members of Company D, 43rd Engineer Battalion (Construction) recently began work on projects aimed at renovating several buildings at Camp Darby. Construction also involves placing a concrete slab and erecting a metal building with approximately 3500 square feet of classroom and office area.



Work began on Nov. 26 with the second platoon taking on the responsibility for renovating eight planning bays, planning and constructing a new roof for the dining Hall, and building a twelve by twelve foot shed on the Mess Hall.

First platoon began preparing and clearing the site for the concrete slab with leveling and surveying the slab boundaries taking the first priority. Members of EM Platoon began disassembling the metal building which will be relocated to the concrete slab site at Camp Darby.

How to retire in country club style.

Florida's answer across from fish-laden Indian River.

BAREFOOT BAY

A unique community of mobile home estates 16 miles north of Vero Beach, on U.S. 1. Many retired military families are now enjoying the fun of Florida's Barefoot Bay — awarded the highest Five-Star rating in official Woodall's Mobile Home Directory. No wonder! Here's your own private Golf and Country Club, a million dollar complex. All it costs for full family social membership is a one-time, life of ownership fee of $49! A luxurious clubhouse. Tennis and shuffleboard courts, tournament rated. Heated pool and patio. Sporty 9-hole executive golf (greens fees are very reasonable). Private ocean beach, a scenic 20-mile drive — or by boat, just across Indian River. Barefoot Bay even has its own 776-foot lighted pier that reaches into the fisherman's paradise of Indian River.

Your choice of not just a house . . . but your own mobile home estate where you can have carport, patio, lush landscaping. Handsome spacious interiors, wall-to-wall carpeting, draperies. Community services including cable TV, underground utilities, paved streets, water and sewage systems, police and fire protection. And from the Barefoot Bay entrance — just 31 miles to the entrance of Patrick A. F. B. — 16 miles to the city limits of Melbourne and Vero Beach.

All this and more starting at prices under $12,000! Come see.

Learn how you can "retire" for 2 days/1 night at Barefoot Bay in beautiful Indian River Country. Invitation for two — for both husband and wife. Price Controls On Autos Lifted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Cost of Living Council lifted wage and price controls from the auto industry Monday after three of the big four auto makers agreed to limit their price increases on 1974 models.

It was the biggest decontrol action yet as the administration gradually moves out of its price control program.

As a result, Ford and General Motors may immediately increase their wholesale prices for all autos by up to an average $150, and American Motors is to increase its prices by up to $100 quickly on some cars.

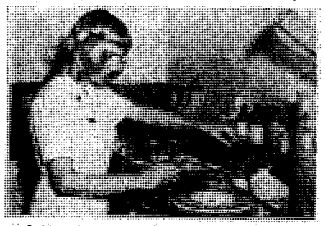
Hospitals benefit from weekend warriors



Area hospitals benefit from the weekend services supplied by the 3297th General Hospital, Columbus Army Reserve unit.

These medical reservists spend one weekend a month working at a hospital. Some work at Cobb Memorial Hospital, Phenix City, some at the Medical Center, Columbus, and some at Martin Army Hospital. Two weeks each summer the Columbus unit goes to Fort Sam Houston, Texas for refresher training.

Their reasons for enlisting are as varied as the people themselves. Some sign up strictly for the extra money, some for the medical training, and some for the draft deferment.

The committment is for six years. If you have not had prior service you must take eight weeks of basic training and 14 weeks of advanced training. You are on active duty during this period. If you enlist soon after your release from active duty you need not repeat the basic and advanced training.

The 3297th General Hospital unit is a 1,000 bed hospital. Approximately one-fourth of the unit's members are from Columbus. The rest are from Georgia counties.

Sp4 Wanda Carpenter is a laboratory technician in the Reserves and also in her civil service job, both at Martin Army Hospital. Her husband is a member of the Reserves too. Specialist Carpenter said that she signed up because she likes military life and that she has aspirations of eventually entering the Physicians Assistant program.

PFC Andy Speed joined the reserves because he did not want to interrupt his schooling with a tour in the active army. Speed plans to be a doctor. He is shown here doing his duties as a laboratory technician at Martin Army Hospital, Fort Benning, Georgia on the weekend.

Board checking on energy use

The 197th Infantry Brigade has formed a Utilities Utilization Board to help the Brigade commander develop policy for an effective utilities utilization and space conservation program.

Each unit commander will serve as the Utilities Utilization-Conservation (U-C) Officer for his unit. He may appoint deputies as necessary.

As soon as the Fort Benning Installation Facilities Training School is in operation, all brigade conservation personnel will attend. This will include all brigade personnel working in a dining facility.

A check list has been incorporated in the garrison standard operating procedures in each unit. This check list will be provided to each brigade Staff Duty Officer.

Staff Duty Officers will be required to check units during tours of duty to insure utilities conservation.

Some items that appear under the electrical section, are lights turned off when not in use, hall lights held at a minimum, electrical cold water fountains are unplugged, and coffee pots not in use are unplugged.

Under the section dealing with heating are all windows closed except those necessary for ventialation, all entrance doors are to be in good repair and kept closed, temperature is to be set at 68 degrees or below, and all dining facility ovens will be turned off when facility is not in use.

Prepare your car for the worst

Fort Benning has mild winters but other parts of the country will not. Benning personnel who will be driving home for the holidays should have their cars prepared for the worst of winter elements.

Waiting until that first below-freezing morning at home may mean you waited too long.

Drivers should have the cooling system flushed, checked for leaks, and anti-freeze added. Service station operators have a chart to show the amount of anti-freeze needed for the part of the country that you are traveling to.

If you cannot obtain snow tires, then make sure that the tread of your tires is good enough to get a good bite into the snow. You should carry a set of tire chains. Remember that with chains or snow tires, you must travel at a slower than normal speed.

Make sure that windshield wipers are in good condition and have adequate arm pressure. They must be able to sweep snow and sleet off and not just slide over it.

Winter brings early nightfall. Make certain that headlights, tail lights, brake lights and directional signals are clean and in working order.

Safety belts are a must at all times but especially in hazardous winter driving conditions. Use your seat belts and bave a safe drive home.

Post-Korean vets short on time to use GI Bill

Post-Korean veterans are down to about their last semester of eligibility under the GI Bill. However, an extra year remains for those interested in farm cooperative training, apprenticeship or on-the-job training, and those qualied for advanced flight training.

The standard eligibility period for GI Bill training for all veterans is eight years after separation from military service. However, post-Korean veterans — those with service from Feb. 1, 1955 through May 31, 1966 — were not eligible until the current GI Bill became effective on June 1, 1966.

As a result, the eight-year period for this group of veterans expires May 31, 1974 — for all but several forms of GI Bill educational training.

Additional educational benefits were added to the GI Bill in 1967, thus the extension of the expiration date to 1975 for these benefits.

VA officials explained that eligible veterans may qualify for flight training only when it is generally accepted as necessary to attain a recognized vocational objective. This can be in the field of aviation or where it is recognized as ancillary to the pursuit of another vocation.

Applicants for flight training must possess a valid private pilot's license and meet medical requirements for a commercial pilot's license, officials added.

The delay in providing post-Korean veterans entitlement for GI Bill training is seen as the primary reason why only 34 per cent of this group has taken advantage of its education benefits.

Comparatively, 47 per cent of servicemen separated after enactment of the current GI Bill have enrolled in educational training under provisions of the bill.

"Some of the post-Korean veterans have been out of the service for as long as 11 years before the GI Bill gave them their entitlement," a VA spokesman said. "By that time many found it impossible to take advantage of the GI Bill because of family or other responsibilities."

Age also deterred many post-Korean veterans from pursuing school enrollment.

Military Wife Of the Year applications are to be delivered to Cpt. Hodge RM 602 Bldg 4 by close of business Dec. 19, 1973. For additional info. Contact Cpt Hodge 5-2791.

Motorcycles Offer economical and safe transportation

Now that the energy crisis is upon us and gas rationing seems inevitable, motorcycles might bear consideration as a means of transportation. However, one who has not owned one should check thoroughly into the necessary accessories and the advantages and disadvantages of being a cyclist.

BUYING A BIKE

Buying a used motorcycle requires greater caution than a new one. Watch for rubber tires wearing away. Cracked and treadless tires should be replaced. All cables require oil or grease occasionally, or they will become stiff and cease to function properly. Inspecting the frame and other major parts for signs of excessive wear, bends, dents and cracks is a must before buying.

RIDING A BIKE

Many people might think, "I can drive a car, so I don't need any training to ride a bike." Motorcycles, like cars, should only be operated after inspection and sufficient practice in uncongested areas.

Here at Fort Benning, a four-hour motorcycle safety course is given every Friday morning. At the conclusion of the class work a practical examination is given to insure proper control of the bike through a series of tests.

"We teach the course as outlined by the National Safety Council," says Staff Sergeant Emmel Boren, instructor. "We instruct students to operate a motorcycle the safest way."

Major areas of instruction given during the course are on learning to ride, protective clothing, carrying passengers, lending your bike, parking and prevention of theft.

CLOTHING

If you already own a bike or plan to, clothing plays an important role. Lace-up boots are the best for feet, but if these are not selected, the next best are high-top boots or shoes that give your ankles firm support.

Clothing that covers the body completely is best. With winter and cold air moving in, heavier material is more protective. Choose bright colors so that other vehicles may more clearly see you. A protective helmet is the cheapest kind of life insurance. Strapping on a helmet before riding should be as automatic as turning on the ignition key.

PROTECTIVE GLASSES

Whether you choose to ride with a windshield or not, you should always wear glasses, goggles or a face shield to protect your eyes. A bug flying into your eye would take your attention from the road long enough to cause an accident. If you drive at night, be sure you have something other than sunglasses with you. Clear lenses are best for night riding.

PROS AND CONS

Motorcycles have disadvantages and advantages. A motorcyclist is more vulnerable in collisions or impacts because he doesn't have the protection that a car affords.

With a bike, however, more accidents can be avoided. When someone in front of you stops suddenly, for instance, it's easier to come to a quick stop.

The road condition is another disadvantage to the cyclist. It's easier to keep a four-wheeled vehicle under control when road conditions are bad than it is to keep a two-wheeled vehicle under control.

A quicker reaction time is another advantage, since a motorcycle's controls do not require movement of the operator's feet, the reaction time is less than a car's. The rear brake pedal is right at one foot and the front brake is at the operator's fingertips.

Another advantage is high gas mileage.

Uncle Sam's First

Lady Jumpers Finish Training

Five Fatal Feet of Training is making five female Army first aircraft at Fort Benning, Ga. Here the two are ready to board the plane on the Morning and the West Point, U.S. Army Photo)

Uncle Sam now has two Airborne WACs and more are on the way.

Privates Joyce Kutsch, 19, of Sarver, Pa., and Rita Ann Johnson, 18, of Eldon, Mo., last Friday, December 14, made their fifth training jump and then received their wings from Lemuel Pitts and George Ivy, two members of the original Airborne test platoon.

The two women will begin parachute rigging training at Fort Lee, Virginia right after the Christmas holidays. While they are starting that 12-week course, four other women — Privates Maria Allsopp, Ruth Thomas, Bonnie Q. Adams and Joyce Ann Higgins — are programmed for Airborne training at the U.S. Army Infantry Center.

Privates Kutsch and Johnson became the first women in the history of the American Armed Forces to wear the wings. Some 466,431 men had qualified to wear the wings since the training started at Fort Benning in 1940.

Women had previously not been eligible for Airborne training, since they are not assigned to combat units. Those WACs now taking the training will also not be assigned to combat units. They will all be assigned to parachute rigging positions in non-combat units.

The Army last had WAC parachute riggers during World War II. At that time, approximately 100 WACs who were not jump-qualified served in these jobs. The Airborne requirement is necessary because of the parachute rigger's motto that he will jump with any parachute that he or a fellow rigger packs.

With the decision that women could become parachute riggers, the Airborne Department prepared a WAC Airborne

Students trampled in Liniment Bowl

An 85-yard touchdown return with the second half kickoff highlighted the second annual Liniment Bowl held Saturday at Doughboy Stadium.

James Brown returned the kickoff, helping his faculty teammates to a 20-0 victory over the students in the annual event.

The game until then had been a defensive one until a drive by the Blue Owl team. Quarterback George Galloway found wingback Richard Fluharty open in the end zone for 10 yards and the first six points. This came with only 30 seconds left in the half and broke a scoreless deadlock.

After Brown's exciting runback, Galloway added the extra two points from a run around the end making the score 14-0.

Minutes after the kickoff return, Blue Owl's Willie Dudley picked off an Eric Marshall pass on the student's 15-yard line to set up the last score. On the second play fullback Mack Strong ran an off tackle play into the end zone for 13 yards. The extra point was missed leaving the score 20-0.

The students sustained a drive and, with an interference call against the Blue Owls in the end zone, had the ball first and goal on the one. On the very first play Blue Owl Henry Mitchell recovered a fumble to end all hope of the Preppies scoring. The game ended with the Blue Owls in possession of the ball.

"The Students played exceptionally well, but they were no match for the suberb talent of a keyed up faculty team. All players and coaches had their full heart in the game," said faculty coach Tobe Bouchelion.

According to Bouchelion, the victory was donated to three-year-old Brian Dudley, the "Owls" greatest fan, who missed the game due to hospitalization.

An awards presentation ended the Liniment Bowl with the game trophy going to the winning coach. The Most Valuable Player trophy was presented to fullback Mack Strong. Best defensive trophy went to tackle Vernon Frilot, and best offensive player to Richard Fluharty.

The special halftime show was given by the 283rd Army Band and the Military Police Dog Detachment.

Ideas can be worth a lot of money

Cash awards of $1,105 were presented to two Fort Benning personnel for their adopted suggestions which resulted in an estimated savings of $937,536. to the United States Army.

Chief Warrant Officer Larry B. Harrelson, Command Maintenance and Communication Department of the Infantry School was presented an additional award of $500 for an adopted suggestion proposing the use of available radio teletypewriter sets AN-VSC-2 in lieu of AN-VSC-3 for student instruction in the Field Radio Mechanics Course.

This action permitted the cancelation of an outstanding requisition for 22 sets, turn-in of 12 sets to Army inventory, and lateral transfer of one set. Adoption of this suggestion enabled substitution of different types of teletypewriters without detracting from the quality of instruction, reduced financial inventory essential to training support and resulted in an estimated savings of $927,500.

Mr. Harrelson received an initial award of $1,000 for this same suggestion and a further additional award is pending approval.

Mr. Thomas E. Long, Department of Army Wide Training Support, United States Army Infantry School, was presented two awards for a total of $605 for adopted suggestions proposing the pre-printing of return address, postage and fee indicia or order blanks provided in sub-course booklets issued to non-resident students and for imprinting code letters and numbers on instructional material catalogs identifying edition, bin number and shelf number to expedite filling of orders.

Mr. Long's suggestion enhanced the operational efficiency of the Infantry School and improved service to non-resident students resulting in savings in manhours of $10,036.

Brigadier General William R. Richardson, the U. S. Army Infantry School's commandant, made the presentations.

Santa's elves decorate tree

Santa's little helpers were busy last weekend decorating the Christmas tree in the lobby of Infantry Hall.

Of course, one would find out that it wasn't little elves who did it. It was decorated by Fort Benning Cub Pack 39 and Santa in this case is their cubmaster, Fred Horne.

The boys, along with some of their parents and sisters, put more than 150 decorations about the 16-foot high tree. Because of the energy crisis, no lights were used.

The tree, a Canadian Balsam Fir, was bought through the Central Post Fund from Southern Importers Incorporation, Greensboro, N.C.

Although Santa wasn't there to supervise the decorating, Pat Smith, the pack's committee chairman, played the role of Mrs. Claus. All decorations for the tree except the icicles were hand-made by the Scouts.

2/69th ends phase of ATT

Company B, 2nd Battalion, 69th Armor, 197th Infantry Brigade recently completed its company phase of the Army Training Test (ATT), a field examination that all units in the 197th brigade are undergoing.

Sp4 Stanley Sampsel, a unit-of-choice enlistee for the 197th Inf. Bde. and a member of the unit being tested, has been in the armor battalion for seven months and admits that life as a tanker is much better than he expected.

"It has really turned out to be a good job," he stated, "although I can't say I enjoy staying in the field. We have been preparing for this test for some time, so we will all be glad once we complete it."

"I just returned from Germany," stated Sgt. Saul Appleton, "and I enjoy this type of training. This is the first time a lot of these guys have had a chance to do something like this.

POWs tell it like it is Capture a Nightmare

For nine long years Lieutenant Colonel Floyd Thompson was held prisoner in North Vietnam.

For what seemed an eternity he was a "stranger in a strange land", 10,000 miles from home and family, undergoing the strain of an environment most people would encounter only in a nightmare.

He emerged from this ordeal with a belief that soldiers were not being trained to withstand the pressures met in captivity.

On Monday, Dec. 10, in a presentation before the combined Infantry Officer Advanced Courses, LTC Thompson and three other former POW's, — Captain Richard Anshus, Captain John Parsels and Staff Sergeant Jon Cavaiani, — attempted to explain what a POW is faced with, and what they feel needs to be done to improve a soldier's chances of withstanding the misery of captivity.

CPT Anshus, a prisoner for two years, who is now attending IOAC, opened with a description of what happens during capture.

"Surprisingly, in most cases, treatment at capture may be rough, but not brutal. Prisoners will be moved to a secure area as soon as possible. Prisoners who for some reason can't keep up, or are about to be liberated by friendly troops, may be killed.

CPT Parsels, also a student in the Advanced Course, was a prisoner in North Vietnam for 3 years. He described conditions within the prisons, particularly the infamous "Hanoi Hilton." "Some typical tortures encountered during captivity are partial burial, beatings, being chained to trees, and solitary confinement can be particularly rough."

LTC Thompson spent 5½ years in solitary confinement. All eyes in the audience turned to the field grade officer who sat erect, eyes forward.

He launched into an attack on the anti-war movement. "I believe that the war would have been over much sooner if not for the anti-war activities taking place in the U.S. and around the world."

When captured, he was the highest ranking American officer held prisoner and he expressed his disbelief that the North Vietnamese did not interrogate him for three months. "When they finally did, they instructed me for a full month on the history of Vietnam." He said that the NVA knew they had no chance to win militarily, so instead they used American public opinion and anit-war sentiment against the POW's to break them down.

LTC Thompson presented to the hundreds of officers in attendance highlights of the briefing given by former POW's to the Senior Army Staff. In it they recommended establishment of a SERE School (Survival, Evasion, Resistance, and Escape).

"Soldiers were not holding up under pressure quite as well as they could have with better training," he said.

He praised President Nixon for bringing the POW's home. "How he stood up under all the pressure put on him, I'll never know. I owe a great deal of gratitude to him."

In closing, he said, "It is important that our enemies know that freedom and democracy go hand in hand, and that challenging the freedom of one free nation means challenging all."

"Soldiers not trained to withstand pressures"

DANGER

Several serious accidents have occurred at Fort Benning as a result of individuals handling artillery simulators which have been abandoned on maneuver areas throughout the post. These innocent looking white paper tubes 7 inches in length can cause severe burns, loss of sight, loss of fingers or hands, even loss of life.

They should be respected as and treated as any other dud you may discover. Do not touch or move them.

Every effort is made to account for and remove simulators which have not detonated during training exercises. Some, however, are missed and they lay in waiting for the curious, the uninformed, the foolhardy.

Report the location of duds and artillery simulators to Range Division, DPT, at 545-5186 (24 hours a day, 7 days a week).

Swantek wins Connelly Award

The Philip A. Connelly Award for excellence in the Army Food Service Program was presented to Sergeant First Class Robert C. Swantek, presently assigned to Headquarters Co., 145th Avn. Battalion at Fort Benning.

Major General Thomas M. Tarpley, Fort Benning commander, made the presentation.

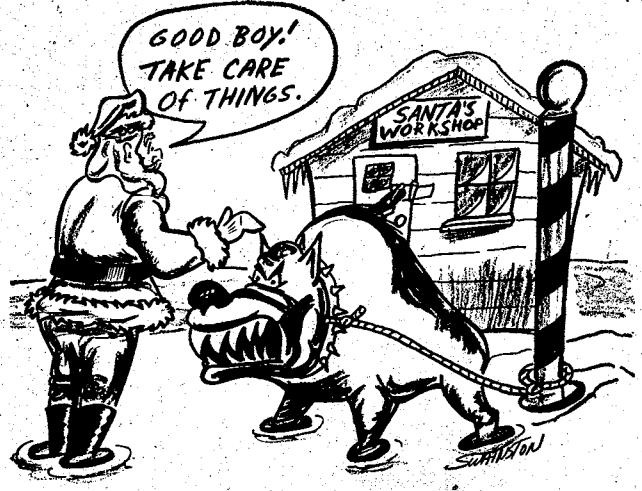
Swantek received the award for operating the dining facility at Camp Redcloud, Korea which was judged the best large unit facility feeding 201 people or more throughout the Army Food Service Program for the Fiscal Year 1973.

The Philip A. Connelly Award Program was established on March 23, 1968 to recognize excellence in the preparation and serving of food in Army dining facilities. The program was named for the late Mr. Philip A. Connelly, who was instrumental in the Food Service Executives Association sponsorship of the Air Force Hennessey Award, the Navy Ney Awards, and now the Army's Connelly Award.

"The Army's what you make of it. And I'm makin' it."

Sergeant James Thomas likes his job, and likes to talk about it.

"I'm in light vehicle maintenance. And every day there's something different. That's what keeps it interesting.



"Whenever I go home, my friends are always complaining about their jobs. And some of them aren't even working!

"But I like what I do. And my wife and I like the life. The shopping's good. The schools are good. And the medical service is great. So we're making it fine."

Why are you staying in?

Don't make it easy for burglars while you're away

During the Christmas season, many Fort Benning personnel will depart in all directions to spend the holiday with family or friends. Unfortunately, some people will return to find that they have been victims of burglars or thieves.

Safeguarding our homes is an individual responsibility that is often neglected in the hustle and bustle of the holiday. Some people will actually make it easy for burglars to work! Here are some tips to keep your house safe.

The burglar's favorite manner of entering your home is through a door. Make sure all doors are locked and that a chain latch is on both your front and back doors. You should have the type of hinges that cannot be forced from the outside. If your doors have windows in them, you need locks that must be opened by a key, from the inside as well as the outside.

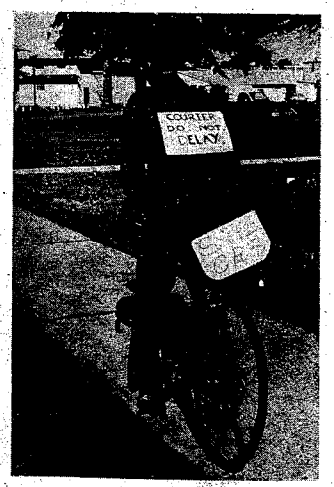
If the intruder cannot enter your home through a door he will try a window. Those located on the first floor are particularly attractive to burglars. Make sure that your windows have locks on them, too.

You are asking for trouble if you keep valuables in your home. Keep cash, jewelry and bonds or negotiable securities in a bank deposit box. Maintain a list of the serial numbers of such items as radios, cameras, watches, binoculars, televisions and appliances.

Do not advertise the fact that you are away from home. Avoid the accumulation of newspapers or mail. Arrangements can be made with neighbors to collect them. The impression can be given that someone is at home by leaving lights on or having a radio playing.

There are automatic devices available that will turn on your lights at dusk or arrangements can be made with your neighbors to turn on your lights.

Let the military police or other local law enforcement officers know when you are going out-of-town. They will pay special attention to your home as they patrol the neighborhood.



Remember that it's easier and safer to prevent a crime than it is to discover, solve, apprehend, convict and punish an offender for a crime which you might have prevented in the first place.

COLLEGE CHRISTMAS PARTY

Don't forget the College Christmas Party tomorrow night from 7-12 p.m. at the Supper Club. Admission is free to all college students with ID cards. Meet your friends, make new ones, have refreshments and dance. For more information, call 687-8683.

SONS & DAUGHTERS PARTY

The Annual Army Sons and Daughters Party will be a cocktail dinner dance on Feb. 9, 1974 at the Main Officers' Club, Fountain Room. There will be a cash bar beginning at 6:30 p.m., followed by a buffet dinner at 7:30 p.m.

DUSA invites all sons and daughters of active duty or retired commissioned officers in any of our Armed Forces to join us for this gala event. For more information, please contact: Mrs. Robert H. Taylor Jr., 687-8492 or Mrs. Arthur A. Rice, 687-2459.

CCDC

The Leadership Department held their annual Christmas Formal dinner and dance, Dec. 7 at the Fort Benning Officers' Club. The Command Leadership Committee was host of the successful event and the theme was "To An Old Fashioned Christmas." The main room was beautifully decorated with a gigantic snowman that reached the ceiling, a tall Christmas tree and a sleigh filled with wrapped packages as well as many other Christmas decors.

Special guests were Col. and Mrs. Robert Rollier, Col. and Mrs. Billy Rutherford, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Bruce Brown and Lt. Col. and Mrs. Richard Stoltz. The guest speaker was Colonel Rollier.

Entertainment was provided by the Infantry Chorus, who sang Christmas carols. After dinner there was dancing to the Sands Band.

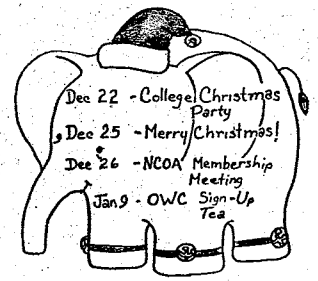
1st. Bn. 29th Inf.

The officers and wives of the 1st Bn. 29th Inf. attended a party at the Ramada Inn, in Phenix City, sponsored by the executive officers of the battalion.

Following a buffet dinner, farewell was said to Capt. and Mrs. William Macpherson, Lt. and Mrs. mel Johnson. Welcomed were Lt. Robert Ashworth, Lt. and Mrs. Harry Logan, Lt. George Sumers, CWO and Mrs. Charles Cain, and WO and Mrs. James Dowdy. Guests were Lt. Col. and Mrs. William Duncan, Susan Ford, Poo Young, and Anna Spencer.

The formal activities ended with a skit and the "Wagon Master" revealing his deep secrets. Afterwards everyone adjourned to the lounge for dancing.

The officers and wives also attended a Christmas cocktail party at the home of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Robert Brumback.



The officer and NCO wives of the battalion are planning a Christmas party for the children on Dec. 21. Santa in his throne and Mrs. Claus in her rocker will be there with gifts and refreshments for the children.

The officers wives are also busy making plans to sponsor a luncheon in January for The School Brigade wives.

SHARING CHRISTMAS

On Dec. 15 at 2 p.m., a Christmas party was given by the Non-Commissioner Officers Association "Followettes Auxiliary" of Fort Benning. Hermie Whitley, Chairwoman; Hilda Holmes, Christmas Project Chairwoman, and many other N.C.O.A. members lent a helping hand to bring the spirit of Christmas to 135 residents of the Muscogee Manor and Highland House. Gifts were presented to residents and everyone participated in the singing of seasonal carols as directed by Irma Donner.

Much appreciation from the Followettes goes to the Fort Benning "Follow Me" Chapter, who gave a donation of $150 for the party. Other donations were made by Farmbest Dairy Foods, K-Mart and Piggly Wiggly stores.

HANUKKAH — FESTIVAL OF LIGHTS

In 165 B.C. the Jewish festival Hanukkah or Chanukah (Hebrew for "dedication") was instituted by Judas Maccabeus to commemorate the miraculous burning of oil for eight days, in the sacred temple in Jerusalem, when there was only enough oil to burn one day.

The traditions of Hanukkah are almost universal among the world's Jews. The holiday usually falls in late December on our calendar, this year it begins Dec. 20 and ends Dec. 27. But on the Jewish calendar the first day of Hanukkah always falls on the 25th day of the Month Kislev.

The holiday candle holder, called a menorah, holds eight candles, one for each day the sacred oil burned and one, the Shamash or work candle, to light the others. The women have the privilege of lighting candles in the Jewish household and on the eve of Hanukkah, at sundown, the shamash is lit. Three prayers are said that first night. Another candle is lit each night at sundown, with only one prayer, except for the last night of Nanukkah, when all three prayers are again said. The menorah is usually placed near a window so it can be seen by others.

A Festive Holiday

Hanukkah is a festive holiday with parties, games and fine foods. Menus may vary from family to family, but one dish is always served at this time and that is Potato Latkes (or pancakes) topped with sour cream or applesauce.

A small four-sided toplike toy, called a drada, is played with by the children. On each side is a Hebrew letter symbolizing four Hebrew words meaning Great Miracle Happened There. The game is usually played with chocolate pieces as stakes and the child wins or loses candy with each spin of the drada.

Gifts are also given on this holiday and usually one gift is received each of the eight days. In some families only the children receive the gifts.

Unlike some of the more solemn Jewish holidays, the Jews are allowed to attend school and work during the days of Hanukkah.

Happy Hanukkah and Shalom.

WOs sponsor party

The Fort Benning Chapter of Warrant Officers sponsored a Christmas Party for the Muscogee Manor and Highland House Nursing Home on Dec. 16. The members and their wives served cake, ice cream and punch to some 130 patients, and the Infantry Chorus performed Christmas carols.

The Warrant Officer Wives also washed and set hair for some of the female patients on Dec. 14. The members are looking forward to sponsoring monthly birthday parties starting in January.

Red tape

horror story laced with frustration ends after four years

"I want others who might be in the same position to hear about what happened to me, so they can avoid the misery I went through," said Sergeant First Class Richard J. Elks of 10th Company, 1st Student Battalion, The School Brigade.

Earlier this month he was promoted to SFC in a ceremony that should have taken place almost four years ago. His promotion was backdated to Jan. 22, 1970. Between that date and his promotion ceremony he was plagued by a horror story of red tape and frustrating circumstances.

Originally he was placed on a promotion list to E-7 in June, 1969, in MOS 11B40. By November the 10 above him on a list of 48 had been promoted, but allocations for an 11B had run out and he was passed over. He was denied an appearance before the promotion board in November 1969 because he had not been on the original list for six months.

In January 1970, he was number one on the promotion list, but he wasn't promoted because his section, The Army Training Center, was being phased out.

He was transferred to The School Brigade and his new section was the Artillery Committee of the Infantry School. He didn't discover until March that sergeants with fewer points than he had had been promoted at ATC on January 23.

Upon checking, SSG Elks learned that if he had transferred from Fort Benning he would have been promoted. But, he was placed on The School Brigade list and missed it again.

In desperation he went to the post Inspector General. The IG said that he had come too late, and tat he was the victim of unfortunate circumstances. All the IG could do was check allocations and inform SSG Elks that he should be promoted in April 1970. April came and went, and no promotion.

When the CONARC IG came to Fort Benning, Elks went to see him. The IG agreed that he had grounds for complaint. After looking into his case, he reported to Elks that since his name had been on the list that long, he would be promoted on the DA list. When the DA list came out, his name wasn't on it.

Finally Elks wrote a letter to Department of the Army explaining his plight. In November he received a reply from Under Secretary of the Army Herman R. Staudt, informing him that his promotion to E-7 would be backdated to Jan. 22, 1970. On Nov. 23 he was informed in a letter the Board of Corrections for Military Records was making the proper changes in his records, and that if ed with a situation like applicable the Chief of that. No one should ever Finance Support would have to go through it." review his case to determine if money was owed him. He is likely to receive nearly $4,000 in back pay, if eligible.

RA COMMISSION SELECTION BOARD

The next selection board for regular Army commissions will meet in March 1974. Applications must be received by Headquarters, Department of the Army, no latter than Dec. 31. All applicants in overstrength career branches must have a favorable endorsement by a General Officer in their chain of command. The March selection board will not consider applications in such branches as the Army Medical Department, Chaplains, or Judge Advocate General's Corps.

SIPHONING GAS IS DANGEROUS

Anyone who siphons gas through a simple rubber tube is taking a tremendous risk. Did you know that four ounces of gasoline, if swallowed, can be fatal? Even smaller amounts can cause headaches, nausea, vomiting, nerve damage, visual disturbances, loss of coordination, convulsion, or respiratory depression. Even if the siphoner should vomit after swallowing gas, he is likely to inhale some and this can lead to chemical pneumonia.

PROJECT TRANSITION

A Law Enforcement Class is being offered to all military personnel who are within six months of their ETS or retirement date. Classes begin Jan. 7 and end Feb. 15. Those interested in attending this course should contact the Project Transition office at 545-2178 or come by Bldg. 35, Room 241.

ALIEN ADDRESS CARDS

Military personnel who were married while overseas, and whose wives haven't become U.S. citizens yet, are reminded that all aliens in the United States must report their address to the Attorney General during the month of January. The alien address cards will be available at all United States Post Offices during January.

HOME INSURANCE

According to the Army Times, insurance companies have warned home owners that their insurance may be voided if gas is illegally stored in the home. The Times also said that the same companies are studying data from World War Two, when speed limits were lowered and gas rationed, to see if car insurance rates could be lowered. Officials report that burglary insurance could go up as cities extinguish street lights to conserve energy.

PX PRICES

Post Exchanges have hiked their prices for some merchandise because of inflation. Worldwide increases include most jewelry, sporting goods, electronic equipment, and some foods. All overseas exchanges feature a slight increase on selected household items and hardware. All overseas areas, with the exception of Europe, increased prices on beef and most phogorph records by five per cent. Europe, hardest hit by the recent dollar devaluation, implemented beer and record increases earlier. Major General C.W. Hospelhorn, Army and Air Force Exchange Service Commander, said that while further prices adjustments may be necessary, exchange prices will still be lower across the board then civilian rates.

Save-A-Toy will put Santa to work

Thanks to the Save-A-Toy project at Fort Benning, Santa will be hard at work on Christmas Eve delivering gifts to 350 under-privileged children here at Fort Benning.

Save-A-Toy was initiated almost 20 years ago when SFC J. Christ Lohere decided to see that toys were provided for the children of the men in his unit (Mortar Committee), who otherwise would not have received them. Since then Save-A-Toy has grown to such proportions that the overall coordination has to be handled by the Army Community Service.

The men from the Mortar committee took on the task of collecting and repairing the larger toys such as bicycles, wagons, tricycles and rocking horses.

According to Capt. Thomas Frazier, "We started the collection and the repair of the larger toys in early fall. All of the help we received was voluntary. I feel that this was a very successful year and I'm happy that the men from our committee played a large part in the success of the Save-A-Toy project."

Two more big contributors to Save-A-Toy success were the Provost Marshal's office and the Post Confinement Facility. The men from these sections took the small toys (except for dolls), sorted and repaired them so that some of the less fortunate children would have a Merry Christmas.

Mrs. Margaret Senechek, who first worked on the project Save-A-Toy when her late husband, John Senechek, was Sergeant Major of the Mortar Committee, took charge of the repair and outfitting of the dolls. Mrs. Senechek said, "I enjoyed working on the dolls while helping others at the same time. Mrs. Senechek and her three children rpaired approximately 300 dolls for this year's Save-A-Toy project.

Second Lieutenant Susan Marsh, ACS administrative officer, expressed her gratitude by saying, "If the units and individuals involved in this years project hadn't combined their efforts, many children would not have had presents under the tree on Christmas Day."

To make this year's Christmas a little nicer, each child, will receive three gifts instead of the two allowed last year. The remainder of the presents collected and repaired will be given to the Valley Rescue Mission in Columbus, the Mercy Mission in Phenix City, and to the 3rd Ranger Company to distrbute to needy families in the Delonega Area.

The value of a smile

It costs nothing, but creates much.

It enriches those who receive, without impoverishing those who give.

It happens in a flash and the memory of it sometimes lasts forever.

None are so rich they can get along without it, and none so poor but are richer for its benefits.

It creates happiness in the home, fosters good will in a business, and is the countersign of friends.

It is rest to the weary, daylight to the discouraged, sunshine to the sad, and Nature's best antidote for trouble.

Yet it cannot be bought, begged, borrowed, or stolen, for it is something that is no earthly good to anybody till it is given away!

And if in the last-minute rush of Christmas buying some of our salespeople should be too tired to give you a smile, may we ask you to leave one of yours?

For nobody needs a smile so much as those who have none left to give!

CATB wives play Santa

The wives of the Combat Arms Training Board gave Santa Claus a big hand this year and helped make Christmas merrier for the children of the Columbus Head Start Program. In addition to giving their time and money, the CATB wives donated clothing, wrapped gifts, and solicited other Fort Benning organizations for help with the project.

Each of the 100 children in the program received a "nice" toy according to Laura Diehl, the project coordinator. The toys were purchased by the wives out of their own funds, plus an additional $50 contribution by the Fort Benning Officer's Wives Club and the Daughters of the U.S. Army.

The CATB Wives also purchased a table and two chairs, and donated two more chairs, to replace a broken set in one of the classrooms.

Cub Scout Den 2, Pack 27 and Den Mother D'Ann Stone, also participated in the project. They gave some hand-made toys, used toys, and clothing to the children. More clothing had been donated by several wives and was distributed by the Head Start Program.

All of the children in the program are 4 years old and are from the Columbus area. About 10 per cent are military dependents.

The Head Start program is administered by the Lower Chattahoochee Community Action Agency, under the direction of Mrs. Nancy J. Casey. The program seeks to prepare disadvantaged children for their entry into the public school system.

43rd Engrs. give Christmas trees to post schools

While driving around on post during the holidays, notice the seasonal decorations enhancing the grounds of seven post schools.

This holiday season each post school received Christmas trees from soldiers of Company D, 43rd Engineer Battalion, 36th Engineer Group.

More than 150 trees were cut, trimmed, and delivered by the men of the 2nd Platoon, Company D, 43rd Engineers.

Schools receiving the Christmas trees were the Dexter School, Faith School, Loyd School, McBride, Edward White School, Wilbur School, and the Wilson School.

New concept in dental care

First DTA's graduate

MEDDAC has just graduated its first class of Dental Therapy Assistants. On Dec. 12, nine civilian employes received their graduation certificates in a ceremony which marked the beginning of a new concept in dental care for the Army.

The Dental Therapy Assistant program was designed to increase the Army Dental Corps' capacity to provide dental care to more patients without compromising the quality of the care.

This training program teaches the therapy assistants to take over some of the responsibilities previously assumed by the dentists.

Relieving the dentist of these responsibilities makes it possible for him to devote more time to diagnosis and treatment, planning procedures, and problems involving specialty areas such as oral surgery.

Personnel eligible for this program must have a civilian GS-4 rating, and a minimum of one and one-half years experience in a dentally-oriented position. The applicant also has to meet any civil service requirements indicated, and be interviewed by a panel of dental officers.

The training program lasts 48 weeks, and is divided into 3 phases — 12 weeks of classroom and laboratory instruction, 12 weeks of clinical instruction at the training clinic (Dental Clinic No. 5), and 24 weeks of clinical training at one of the other dental clinics on post working as a team of ten dental therapists, one dentist, and one chairside assistant. Upon completion of the course, he or she is then eligible for promotion to the civilian grade of GS-5.

The nine graduates were Mrs. Martha B. Bacchus, Mrs. Hazel E. Bradley, William D. Nowell, Mrs. Patricia T. Clemens, Mrs. Betty S. Pippins, Mrs. Daisy H. Broadwater, Mrs. Edna K. Kelly, Mrs. Ina R. Kazmin and Mrs. Brenda P. Johnson.

Mrs. Patricia Clemens, one of nine graduates of the first dental therapy assistant class at Martin Army Hospital, cleans a patient's teeth. Dental therapy assistants are trained to perform over many of the jobs that were formerly done by dentists. (Photo by Jack Stroud)

Widow thanks her friends

Mrs. Nita Valent, widow of the late Command Sergeant Major Othan O. (Jumpy) Valent, of Miroda, California, would like to thank her husband's many friends at Fort Benning who sent their expressions of sympathy to her after the recent death of her husband.

Mrs. Valent plans to send individual acknowledgements to everyone possible, but wants anyone she may have missed to know that she appreciates their thoughtfulness in her bereavement. She asked THE BAYONET to publish this expression of her sincere thanks.

He knows his job and performs with pride

Private First Class Jerome Duncan, of HHC, 36th Engineer Group (Combat), is a field radio mechanic. He is qualified to repair any type of radio which the group is authorized.

"I chose this job," he stated, "because I wanted to learn how to repair radios. In the field of communications you get a chance to do a lot of jobs, and you learn other jobs as well as your own."

PFC Duncan attended his Advanced Individual Training at Fort Benning and learned the basic operations of radios and all the paper work that goes along with it.

Duncan is one of two 31B20's in the group, and he is proud of it. As he says, "It's not complicated, but it keeps me quite busy."

"Like any other job, mine also has its disadvantages. That is, no matter where I may be, or whatever I may be doing, if someone's radio is inoperable, I have to quit what I'm doing and go repair it."

Duncan is a Unit of Choice Enlistee here at Benning. He is married and lives in Columbus.

Decorations without lights can be nice

Individual units of the 197th Infantry Brigade are setting up Christmas decorations in preparation for the holiday season. This year the units are passing up the use of lighted decorations in order to conserve energy.

Specialist Four Jonathan F. E. Elliott, of Headquarters Company, 3rd Battalion, 7th Infantry, said, "I think Christmas decorations without lights are a very good idea in order to save energy. We can make the Christmas holidays just as nice without using lights on decorations."

Private First Class Cale O. Leggett, of Headquarters Battery, 2nd Battalion, 10th Field Artillery, said, "I personally like lights on Christmas decorations much better than without lights. But, in order to save energy, I go along with the decorations without lights."

Specialist Four Teryl L. Porter, of Headquarters Headquarters Company, 197th Inf. Bde., said, "I think if they have one big tree with a few lights on it to remind us of the Christmas holidays it won't hurt the energy situation too much. But, if we can't have lights on the decorations, we will just have to do without lights in order to save energy."

Private Theodore Riley, of Headquarters Headquarters Company, said, "I am sure not having lights on the Christmas decorations will help the fuel crisis. It won't be as nice without lights, but I go along with doing without them, and I think others will too. We all understand the necessity."

Get a good thing going: CAR POOL

Carpooling is easy to start. Follow the instruction for the Bayonet locator service and save on your gas.

Instructions for using the locator are simple. Find yourself on any Columbus map. Use the grid system and always read right and up. For example, Murray Hills is in C4.

On a card or sheet of paper, put your name, duty phone number, building, and work hours.

Send this information to the Bayonet or place it on the carpool bulletin boards.

The locator boards are available. The first is in the main lobby of Bldg. 35, the other in the main lobby of Bldg. 4.

Truck Home Safely

Get your car checked

With the Christmas holidays approaching, the 197th Infantry Brigade maintenance team will be setting up roadside inspection points throughout the Harmony Church and Kelley Hill area.

The team will have these check points so all members of the brigade can take advantage of the opportunity to have their privately owned vehicles inspected at no cost to them.

Some of the items looked for are unsafe tires, worn windshield wiper blades, inoperative turn signal lights, headlights and taillights, horns, brakes, windshield and rear window for cracks, loose steering rods and safety belts.

If you want to have a safe and worry-free trip for the Christmas holidays and then return ready for duty, go by one of thee check points and bave your vehicle inspected.

Christmas comes in many forms

Christmas! Santa Claus, presents, turkey. But, what's Christmas like in other countries? A visit with some allied officers in the Infantry Officers Advanced Course answered the question.

"Christmas in Ethiopia, after christianity became the official religion has been our traditional holiday," explained Major Tessema Kebede.

"Liddet or Genna is the name for Christmas and is celebrated Jan. 7 due to a calendar discrepancy. On that day the family gathers for a big supper with the main dish being turkey.

Liddet is a day filled with joy, presents and festivities.

Quiddus Bala Wal is another form for Christmas in addition to Liddet and Genna. Genna is also a name for a Christmas game played by boys and grown men for the celebration. The game is like polo."

"Christmas in Lebanon is no different from the United States," sid First Lieutenant Abou Fawzi. "The children go to different stores to see Santa just like here. On Christmas day a big turkey with rice is the supper. After an exchange of presents the rest of the dayis spent on congratulating friends and relatives on the holiday season."

"The Christmas celebration in Greece is a little different than here," said a captain from Greece. "It is our second most important celebration of our religion, the first being Easter.

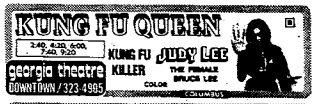
The celebration begins Christmas Eve with midnight mass. After that everyone goes home and has a big breakfast, then some rest. Early in the morning a gift exchange takes place and around noon the family, including relatives, sits down to their Christmas dinner consisting of ham and turkey. Then, we go out in the town square and have a party which lasts until late at night."

"In addition to the festivities on Christmas day, the next day is for celebrating all those who are named after Christ, which is about 15 per cent of our people. Friends, neighbors and relatives are invited to each others homes for a big dinner and another party. The rest of the day is spent helping the needy with presents and money. During the whole Christmas season, all the stores are decorated with Christmas trees in the windows along with other colorful decorations."

The members of the 67th Mainteanance Battalion had an early visit by the jolly old man from the North Pole at its annual children's Christmas party. Santa Claus talked with each child and took a long list of gifts back with him that his helpers will have to work on. (Photo by Bob Dempsey)

Santa Drops by

The 67th Maintenance Battalion, 36th Engineer Group, sponsored its annual Children Christmas Party on Dec. 8. The party was organized by Mrs. Thomas A. Bolt and Command Sergeant Major Billy J. Woodard.



Highlight of the party was the arrival of Santa Claus. For many of the children, this was the first time they had ever seen Saint Nick in person. Santa visited with each child and took a long list of Christmas gifts for his elves to work on.

Major Leonard H. Taylor, commanding officer of the Columbus Salvation Army, receives 200 boxes of chicken from warrant officer David M. Brown, information officer of the 145th Aviation Battalion, after it was leftover from the recent Association of the United States Army (AUSA) fall outing. "We figured they could use it more than we could," Brown said. (Photo by Phil Reid)

THE OPERA HOUSE SALOON
DOWNTOWN - 1003 FIRST AVENUE
324-1661

By Bill Kloeb

There will be a Western and Country music band at the Rod and Gun Club tonight and tomorrow night. Curly Money and his Moon Huskers will begin playing in the Victory Lodge Ballroom at 7 p.m. each evening. A cover charge of $1 per person will be collected. The public is invited.

The club plans to have music each Friday and Saturday night for the next month. The idea is on trial. The attendance will determine whether or not these functions become a part of the weekly activities.

The club also plans to hold a New Year's Eve dance. The details are not solid but there will be live music and a reasonable cover charge will be established. Call now to reserve a table.

Call 687-0555 for additional information concerning the weekly or New Year's Eve functions.

The move to Victory Lodge should turn out to be a big improvement for members if the monthly profit and loss figures continue as they started.

The club showed an overall profit for the first month of operation at the new location. This was difficult to accomplish at the old place on First Division Road.

Two special activities were especially profitable. The Thanksgiving Turkey Shoot gave a net profit of more than $200 and the Field Trials netted nearly that much.

Monthly Fishing Derby

Participation in the monthly fishing derby has fallen off since the club moved to Victory Lodge. Apparently it's inconvenient for members to register before going fishing.

During the December meeting, the board decided to eliminate this requirement. Other regulations of the contest remain in effect.

So far this month, the contest has a 3-pound, 10-ounce bass and a 4-ounce bream registered. Both of these fish were brought in by 1SGT (Ret.) John Zebreski. There have been no catfish registered.

Honorary Deer Tags

The Rod and Gun Club has honorary deer tags for issue to members who intend to hunt with dependents under age 16. These tags will also be issued free to any member over age 65. People in these age brackets are not required to have a state license, but must have a deer tag for any deer killed in the state.

Quite a few hunters will probably want to take advantage of the antlerless deer season. During this season a hunter can take one buck without antlers, or one doe. The season for Georgia is open now and will remain open until Jan. 1. Alabama will have an antlerless deer season Jan. 22, 23 and 24. Hunters should know that these seasons are not intended to allow a hunter additional bag limits. The deer limit for the reservation is two animals. Final dates for hunting all deer on the reservation are Jan. 1 for the Georgia part of the reservation and Jan. 24 on the Alabama part of the reservation.

Big Deer Contest

The holiday season will be the last good chance most hunters have to win one of the shotguns the Rod and Gun Club will give to the hunters who bag the heaviest deer and the deer with the most antler points.

The club will award one Beretta automatic shotgun to the hunter who takes the heaviest deer from the reservation, another to the hunter taking the deer with the most antlers and a third to so do hunter who registers a deer in the contest but does not win one of the other prizes.

A complete set of rules for the contest may be obtained from personnel at the club sales counter.

34th Med. Bn. holds FTX

At 4 a.m., Dec. 6, an alert was called for headquarters and headquarters detachment, 34th Medical Battalion, Fort Benning.

Within a couple of hours personnel from the detachment had signed in. Soon afterwards field equipment was drawn from the warehouse and they were ready to go.

A briefing was held between key personnel as to what route would be taken, elements of the tactical situation and time to deploy the men to the field.

At 1 p.m. the detachment took off from the motor pool and moved out in a tactical road march to the assembly area. The march was intended to orient everyone as to final destination, routes and alternate routes to take. An equipment check was to be made at this point.

As soon as the detachment arrived at the assembly area, troops were sent out to guard the perimeter. The enemy attacked soon afterward, but fortunately the guards on the perimeter held them.

At about 3 p.m. a quartering party went ahead of the convoy to the objective point. The party arrived there as the sun set and rain began to fall. Since there was a blackout, no lights were to be used except flashlights with red lenses in them.

Tents were pitched for adminstration, training, security and communications, and supply. After equipment and tents were up the convoy arrived in the darkness. Following that the enemy hit the area with artillery fire. Thing quieted down afterward and people began settling down to bed in the rainy weather.

The next day began at 6 a.m. with breakfast. After a briefing around 9 a.m., perimeter guards were set up with weapons to ward off the enemy. During the day, air strikes, ground attacks, gas attacks and artillery fire were poured on the detachment. Several soldiers were "wounded" and "killed" the second day.

Evening fell and the temperature dropped. Stoves were set in the tents to heat things up. Guards were pulled off the perimeter around 9 p.m. to be sent back at 6 a.m. the following day. During the morning hours enemy fire discontinued and briefings were held for time of deployment of troops back to Fort Benning.

The whole operation was a part of a Field Training Exercise conducted by the 34th Medical Battalion. The objective to check the field readiness of the detachment. The exercise was held on post near 2nd Armored Division Road and Buena Vista Road.

At the end of the exercise, a special control unit which had been observing the detachment gave a critique. According to the control unit, with a few exceptions the detachments had excellent responses.

Bat. C mauls BBOD in TSB basketball league

Battery C, 83rd Artillery, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry (PIONEERS), The School Brigade, opened a slight lead on first place in the Blue Division of the TSB basketball league, by mauling BBOD 46-11.

The one-sided contest, at Briant Wells Field House, had the C Battery PIONEERS out in front at half-time 24-6, and the BBOD players never recovered enough to get within striking distance.

High scorer for the Artillerymen was Thomas Kelley with 12.

The C Battery PIONEERS are now the leaders in the Blue Division with a 3-0 record, which they previously shared with the 2nd Student Battalion.

Standings in The School Brigade basketball league are:

444th squeezes by 598th 39-36

One of the more exciting games in 36th Engineer Group basketball action last week was played between the 444th Transportation Company and the 598th Maintenance Company.

Both teams came into the game with identical 6-1 records with the 444th leading the Eastern League and the 598th tied for the Western League lead.

The 444th jumped out to an early lead, but the 598th battled back to be only four points behind at half time. The 598th knotted the score at 31-31, with just five minutes left to play in the game. It looked as if the 598th might pull the game out until PFC Robert Coleman drove the length of the court to put the 444th ahead to stay.

When the final buzzer sounded, the 444th had won a real squeaker 39-36, increasing its lead over the Eastern League with a 7-1 record.

High scorer for the game was Coleman with 22 points. Coleman now leads all scores within the 36th Group with a total of 154 points for eight games. High man for the 598th was PFC Calvin Williams with nine points.

Judo club controls tourney

The Fort Benning Judo Club completely dominated the Dixie States Open Judo tournament here at the Five Points YMCA in Atlanta.

The team from the U. S. Army Infantry Center, with only 17 competitors, captured 15 awards. Sergeant Francis Garren of the 3rd Ranger Company doubled up with first places in both the men's light heavyweight (under 205 lbs.) and the Outstanding Competitor award.

Mark Keaton took a first place in the 15-16 year old lightweight division and second in the men's lightweight division. All Fort Benning entries in men's competition placed in the top three in their divisions. Other Fort Benning competitors were:

Heavyweight (over 205 lbs.): PFC Jack Hollingsworth (Company C, 75th Rangers, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry), first place; Sgt. Jerry Criswell (U. S. Army Infantry School), second place.

Light Heavyweight (under 205 lbs.): Sgt. Gene Garren (3rd Ranger Company, USAIS), first place; David Jones (dependent), second place.

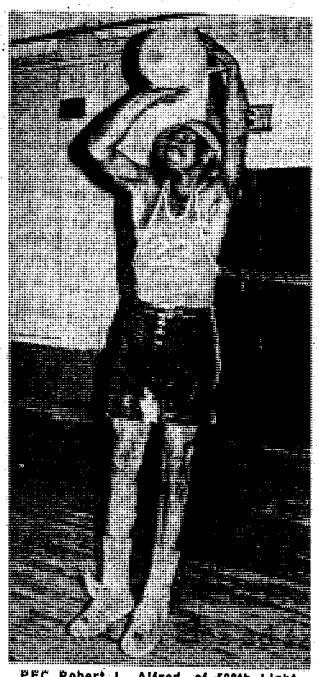
Middleweight (under 176 lbs.): CPT Joe Ponds (Infantry Officers Advanced Course), third place.

Light Middleweight (under 154 lbs.): PFC Andrew Connelly (Company C, 75th Rngers, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry), second place; Charles Williams Jr. (dependent), third place. Actually, the first three were tied for first, with the places awarded on penalty points.

Lightweight (under 139 lbs.): Mark Keaton (dependent), second place.

Four of the eight boys entered in the junior competition placed in the top three in their divisions. The other four finished fourth. Representing Fort Benning were:

Donald Mansman — second place, 15-16 year old heavyweight.



Mark Keaton — first place, 15-16 year old lightweight.

Terry Caballero — second place, 15-16 year old lightweight.

Danny Jones — first place, 13-14 year old heavyweight.

Fourth place finishers were David Pichel, John McCord, Skip Schmidt and Bruce McDonald.

Tessie Pierce was second in the girls' heavyweight and Terry Hammond third in the women's lightweight.

20 MPG IN A LUXURY CAR? THAT'S BMW.

Can one of the best cars in the world actually be economical to operate? It can if it's a 3-liter BMW from Germany's famed Bavarian Motor Works.
Motor Trend Magazine, November 1973, says "BMW is unexcelled among the world's automobiles. And what other car can deliver 17 mpg at a steady 80 mph—with automatic. And an amazing 20 mpg with stick shift!" And of course you get even better mileage at lower speeds.
Test-drive the 3-liter BMW at Hughes now.

BMW has a complete line of 3-liter, four-door sedans and sports coupes from $8,145 to $12,034.
Also 2-liter and fuel injected 2-liter models from $4,798 to $5,633.

BMW. For the joy of driving.

Chanukah A time of giving and celebration

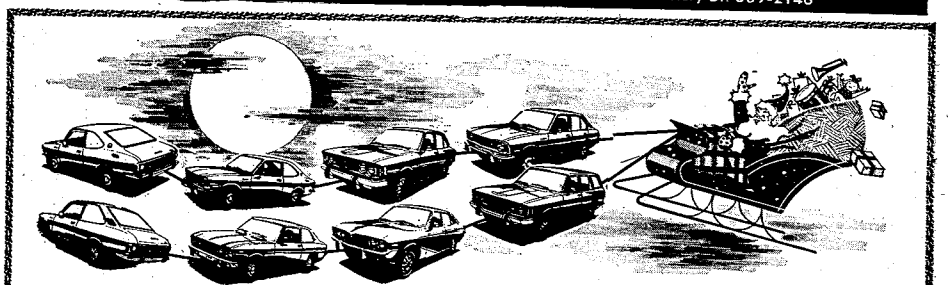
Chanukah, the Jewish Festival of Lights, began Dec. 19 this year and will end Dec. 26. The Fort Benning Jewish Center will host a Chanukah party on Dec. 23 from 2-5 p.m., with food, entertainment and gifts.

Chanukah commemorates an episode in Jewish history which occurred 160 years prior to the event marked by the celebration of Christmas.

The origins of Chanukah go back to the 25th of the Jewish month of Kislev, 168 C.E. (Common Error, or by the Jewish calendar). This was a tragic day in Jewish history, for a statue for the Greek god Jupiter was set up in the Holy Temple in Jerusalem by the troops of Antiochus Epiphanes, rules of Syria.



He declared the death penalty for anyone caught practicing Judaism, and swore to uproot the Jewish way of life and replace it with the Hellenistic culture and religion of the Greeks. Jews were forbidden to observe their Sabbath, and were forced to observe all Greek festivals.

A group of determined Jews fought this oppression. Mattathias, the Hasmonean, and his five sons began an open revolt against the ruler of Syria, fleeing to the hills to start their fight. They were called the "Maccabees."

Even though they were outnumbered, they defeated Antiochus' soldiers. In thankfulness for this miracle, they began to rebuild the shattered gates and walls of their temple. They were ready to light the Menorah, the traditional candelabra of Judaism, for the temple service, but they found that they had only one pitcher of oil for the Menorah—enough for one day. But the oil from the pitcher burned for eight days. This was their second miracle.

Jews around the world celebrate Chaukah for eight days in commemoration of the miracle of the oil. It is a time of giving and of celebration.

Down, down, down. Privates Johnson and Kutsch found the ride too short. Even the 1250-foot jumps from the aircraft "weren't high enough." (U. S. Army Photo) course with training similar to that for the men in the Basic Airborne course.

How well did the girls perform?

"Outstanding," summed up Sergeant First Class Freddie Manning. "They were technically as proficient as the men. Before they arrived, I could only hope they would be in condition physically and motivated. These two were excellent students who bore up to the added pressure of being the first women as though it didn't bother them."

Manning and Sergeant First Class Walter West were the two instructors who took the two women through the three-week course. They will also have the next group.

What did the girls think about their first jump?

"It didn't last long enough," proclaimed Kutsch. "I wanted it to last longer. Let's go back up."

"Those people who have to use drugs to get high should jump out of an airplane," added Johnson. "Drugs couldn't possibly give you such a wonderful feeling. It was like being outside of your body looking at yourself. It was great."

How about their training? Well, the two didn't want to leave for Fort Lee, but wanted to stay here. And, they wanted to be assigned at the Infantry Center.

Was it worth it?

As Private Johnson was heard to say on numerous occasions during the three weeks:

"Airborne!"

Whatja wanta Know? ask the BAYONET

CALL 545-4792

DEAR BAYONET:

I am 23 years old and had to stop working in September because of an auto accident. I do not receive a pension or sick pay. My claim for disability benefits has been approved. Must I wait until March 1974 before I can receive any help?

A) You may not have to wait that long. Under the Supplemental Security Income program the Federal Government will make payment to people who are in financial need or severely disabled beginning January 1974. Applications are being taken now and you should contact any Social Security office for more information about Supplemental Income payments.

DEAR BAYONET:

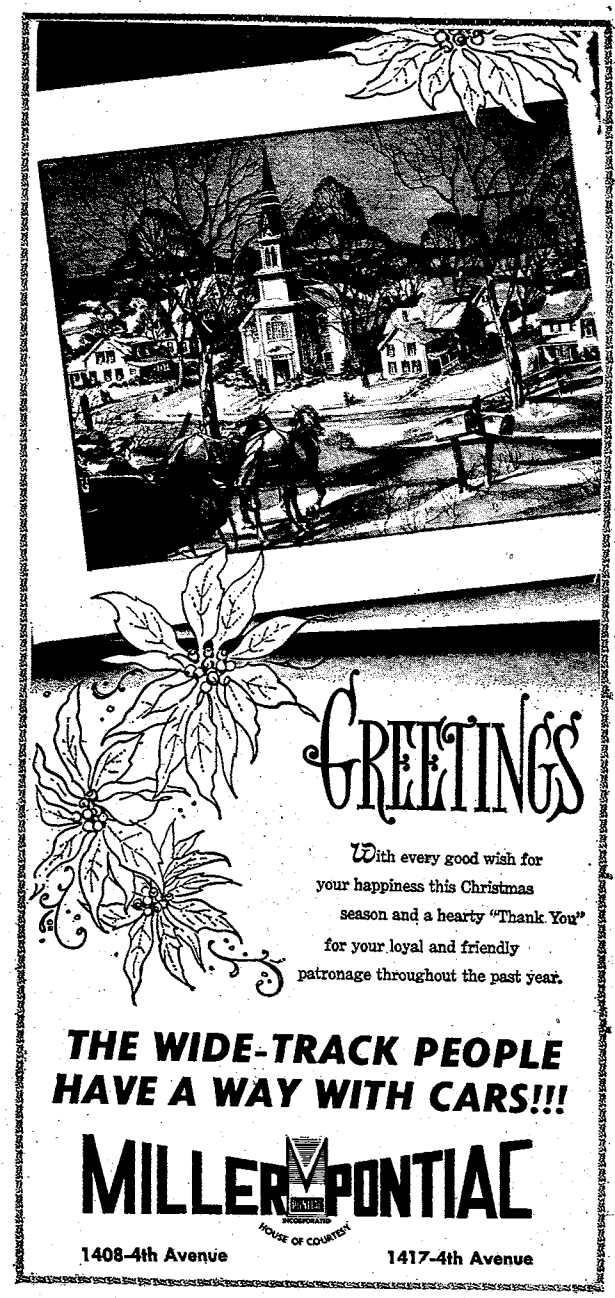
I was on leave when I became violently ill and was hospitalized. During this period I did not notify my command of the change in my status. Consequently I was declared AWOL by my unit. I have been informed that I must pay for my medical treatment because during the AWOL period I was not entitled to medical treatment. Is this true?

A) Yes. Soldiers in AWOL status are not entitled to medical care at government expense. When AWOL status is terminated and the soldier is returned to military control, then charges for treatment may be laid. However, in your case there may be extenuating circumstances that bear investigation.

DEAR BAYONET:

My neighbor mentioned to me about a Federal program under Social Security. Can you tell me who is eligible?

A) The Supplemental Security Income Program will begin payments January 1974. People who are 65 and older, blind, or disabled and whose income and resources are below specified levels may be eligible. If a person is not receiving state or local assistance he should contact any Social Security office for additional information. If the person is eligible an application will be taken.



DEAR BAYONET:

When will the next NCOES Selection Board meet again?

A) The advanced NCOES selection board will meet in March, at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana, to select E-6 and E-7 attendees for FY 75.

Law: it could save your life

If you plan on driving home for the New Year holidays, remember: traffic laws are meant to protect the lives of everyone, both driver and pedestrian.

Perhaps you think you know everything contained in this article, but keeping up to date and staying abreast of things may prevent an accident, or even save your life or that of someone else.

One of the most important things to remember is that traffic regulations vary in detail in states and local areas.

The posted maximum speed, however, is permissible only under safe conditions. Drivers should decrease speed when hazards exist because of weather or road conditions.

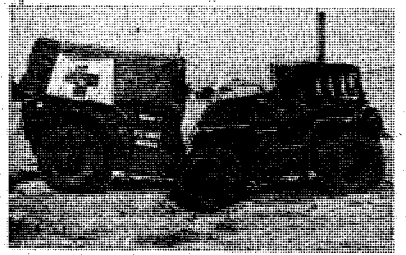
Most rear end collisions are caused by following too closely. A driver is required to allow such space as may be considered "reasonable and prudent."

Adequate following distance means that you will be able to stop in time if the driver ahead of you suddenly applies his brakes. The rule of "one car length for each 10 miles per hour, or two seconds behind the car in front of you" applies only on dry pavement when visibility is good

Anyone intending to pass must look ahead to make certain that the roadway to the left is clearly visible and free of traffic, then into the rear view mirror to see if anyone is approaching from behind, and last to the side and rear to make certain that there is no vehicle in the blind spot. Signal with your turn indicator before pulling out. Pass as soon as possible, and then return to the right hand lane as soon as safety permits.

Most states permit passing on the right when the vehcile being overtaken is making a left turn. Passing on the shoulder of the road is strictly prohibited.

Headlights are intended so that you can see and be seen. They must be turned on when driving between sunset and sunrise, and at any other time when visibility becomes limited and it is difficult to recognize cars without lights.



Make certain that headlights are aimed correctly and that they function properly. Have your lighting system checked, or check it yourself by turning on your lights in front of a wall or garage door.

If you, as a driver, are involved in an accident: stop as soon as possible in a safe place; assist the injured if necessary; give required information to persons involved; and notify the nearest police station.

Any driver who leaves the scene of an accident involving death or injury is subject to a fine, imprisonment and revocation of license.

If these safety tips are taken seriously, they should help you have a safer and happier drive home.

Goats provide mobility for medical unit

No. It isn't broken. It's made to do that. Members of the ambulance platoon, Company B, 197th Support Battalion, 197th Infantry Brigade, demonstrate the capability of the gamma-goat ambulance over rough terrain. (Photo by Bob Cowles)

Company B, 197th Support Battalion, 197th Infantry Brigade, is going through a new type of training for a medical company.

The men of the ambulance platoon of Company B are being trained on a new type ambulance, the M792, 6x6, gamma-goat.

"The gamma-goat is a great vehicle," states Staff Sgt. P. Abreu, the platoon sergeant. "It requires less maintenance, its easier to operate, floats, crosses high obstacles and is able to go across deep ditches."

"Each man goes through no less than 40 hours of training on the gamma-goat," states Abreu. "After this time, they go through the confidence course. If they do well on the course, they are then issued a license to operate and maintain the gamma-goat."

"Another factor with the gamma-goat is the way that it rides," concludes SSG Abreu. "It is very rough riding in the rear. Therefore, it is important that the driver remembers to go quite slow when transporting patients."

"Hooray! We've had our proctos, and we're fine, thank you!"

Ironic award

Fraker honored for doing his thing

Chaplain (Capt.) Thomas Fraker, of the Drug and Alcohol Abuse Office, has received the 1973 Columbus Sertoma Club's "Service to Mankind" plaque for his work in alcohol rehabilitation.

"It is ironic that I received an award for doing something that I love. That is helping and counseling people," said the chaplain. He believes that his desire to help people was probably instilled in him by his parents through their desire to help the unfortunate, and continued by his wife who he counts as a great source of strength.

The presentation was made by Allen Nicar, chairman of Sertoma's board of directors and "Service to Mankind" committee, at ceremonies held Dec. 17 in the Martinique Motor Hotel.

A brief address was given prior to the ceremony by Colonel Charles Reidenbaugh, director of personnel and community activities at Fort Benning.

This is the first time the award has been made to a military man or a member of the Fort Benning community. The presentation is made annually to a citizen of the area for outstanding service to the community, nation or the betterment of mankind. The local winner enters competition for the state and finally international awards.

The person receiving this honor is selected from nominations submitted by various local organizations. Members of the Sertoma Club are not eligible for the award. Chaplain Fraker was sponsored by the Officers' Wives Club of Fort Benning for his efforts to educate the people of the area on the problems of drugs and alcohol and their abuse.

He has made numerous personal appearances at schools and civic clubs throughout the state in support of this program. His work has also carried him to neighboring states and to well known college campuses such as Yale University.

Prior to being given the "Service to Mankind" award, Chaplain Fraker had been honored by being named Jaycee Young Man of the Year in 1960 in Dayton, Tenn., where he was then living. In 1965 he was named as one of the Jaycees' Outstanding Young Men of America.

Chaplain Fraker has written for the Bayonet on several occasions, with his articles being noted for the TRADOC Copy Desk Award for Journalism Excellence.

Benning is out of POV gas

All Fort Benning gas stations are closed until Jan. 2. Fort Benning personnel have used up more than 381,000 gallons of gasoline during December — this month's entire allocation — according to Robert W. Bonner, Services Manager.

This resulted in the Dec. 21 closing of both the Harmony Church and Main Post service stations until Jan. 2 when the new allocation will be delivered.

All five stations were open last year at this time and received some 60,000 gallons above the prsent allocation. The allocation is based on last year procurements less 15 per cent due to the shortage.

Bonner reports that there may be some 8,000 gallons total left in all five underground tanks. "There must be some left," he explained. "Based on the water level, the tanks need a certain amount of gasoline so they won't float out of the ground. This also prevents getting the water and foreign debris that lies at the bottom of the underground tanks from getting into the car tanks."

Bonner doesn't think that less gas is being used, even with the allocation. He attributes this to the fact that fog and smog devices use more gas, and this has forced the customers to use more gas. "The only time people seem to buy gas off post is when we're closed," he concluded.

Mayor Ford raps with the 36th Engineers

Johnny Ford, mayor of Tuskegee, Ala., addressed soldiers of the 36th Engineer Group (CBT), during a race relations seminar at the Sand Hill Theatre on Dec. 13.

The guest speaker based his presentation on the economical, industrial, and historical development throughout the South and the necessity for improved race relations.

Ford, 30 years old, is the first black elected to the office of mayor in Tuskegee, although 80 per cent of the voting population is black.

Using his own personal and political experiences, Mayor Ford illustrated vividly a word picture of the cross section of our American society. Ford placed special emphasis on southern culture and it's upward trend.

"The areas I am most concerned with are in our cities' historical attractions, tourist trade, economical improvements in rural and urban areas, and the importance of producing better jobs in industry and businesses," the mayor remarked.

"In order to bring about definite changes in our society, Ford said, "it is the responsibility of the community leaders to be aware and act accordingly to the needs of the people. It is not only the responsibility of the government officials, but also the responsibility of each individual citizen to take special pride and respect in his city.

"There has been a time in our cities' history, when citizens in the rural community were leaving the farms and coming to the city, in hopes of finding a better way of life. Instead of finding prosperity, many found disappointment because of low income, housing shortages, and improper sewage disposal."

"In recent months," Ford said, "the city of Tuskegee has received more than $5.7 million for new sewage disposal plant and almost $3 million allotted for low income housing. Important changes such as these can influence our concrete resources and the development of better jobs, improved educational systems, and our overall social development," the mayor said.

"Our city's economical and commercial development will continue to increase due to the $1.5 million shopping complex scheduled to be under construction in the near future," he remarked.

"In offering our citizens a better means of economic achievement, the city will prosper and continue to grow," the mayor reiterated.

"The South Shall Rise Again"

Mayor Ford also stated that a $2 million municipal center will be built, and will house the cities government offices along with a 2,500 seat auditorium.

"The new civil rights movement will provide equal opportunity for all people. Each individual deserves a chance to prove himself as worthy as the next man," Ford explained.

Mayor Ford stated that, "We must have more and better government representatives to work for the welfare and betterment of the city and its citizens."

The young politician from Tuskegee concluded by saying, "It is time for the rest of the nation to take notice and watch as the South Shall Rise Again — in economic, industrial, and social development."

The young mayor has appeared on national television and radio throughout the United States in support of minority relations in business, industry, and social occupations. Ford has also been in influential candidate in supporting the model cities program. During the 1968 Prsidential election, he was closely associated with the late senator and presidential candidate Robert Kennedy.

Air Force joins Infantry

An Air Force Section has joined the Army. The 197th Infantry Brigade has been assigned a Tactical Air Control Party (TACP).

The Tactical Air Control Party is the forward operations element of the Tactical Air Control System which functions with the ground force.

The mission of the TACP is to assist the 197th Inf. Bde. in planning, requesting, and coordinating tactical air support and controling these mission furnished in support of ground forces.

The TACP works directly with the btigade S-3. They will assist the brigade in their training missions, and if the 197th should deploy to a combat area, the TACP would accompany it.

Three officers and three enlisted men will make up the TACP. Two of the officers have fighter background while the third has airlift experience. Two of the enlisted men are communications specialists while the other is in administration.

The Air Liaison Officer, Maj. Robert B. Jones, has many functions and responsibilities. These include representing the Air Force Component Commander and serving as the senior air advisor and planner for the 197th Inf. Bde. commander.

Maj. Jones will also advise the 197th Inf. Bde. commander and his staff on the capabilities, limitations and employment of tactical air resources. This includes, but is not limited to, close support, reconnaissance, and tactical airlift.

The Airlift Operations Officer, Capt. James F. Bond, is the advisor to the Air Liaison Officer and the ground commander's staff on the capabilities, limitations, and employment of tactical airlift resources. He also assists and advises in the development of tactical airlift requests.

SSgt. Andrew L. Ficklin and Sgt. Michael R. Blackburn are the communications specialists for the TACP. They are responsible for maintaining and operating radios used in the Air Force Request Net and in other communication nets.

"This is Capt. Bond's and my first experience in working with the Army in this capacity," states Maj. Jones. "I volunteered for the job and I am truly looking forward to it."

"I spent one tour in the Army," SSgt. Ficklin says. "Since joining the Air Force I have worked in one other job similar to this, with an Armor Division in Germany. I enjoyed my assignment there and am looking forward to my next two years with the 197th."

"The only difference between Fort Benning and a typical Air Force Base," explains Maj. Jones, "is that there is so much more real estate here."

"We have had a certain amount of 'growing pains' while getting set up," Maj. Jones continues. "However the 197th has given us outstanding support in all respects. The brigade has been extremely helpful to us."

"We have been training since we arrived here September 1, and our internal training should be completed by January 1," Maj. Jones concludes. "At that time we will be fully manned and ready to support the 197th."

Rumble of tanks means ATT

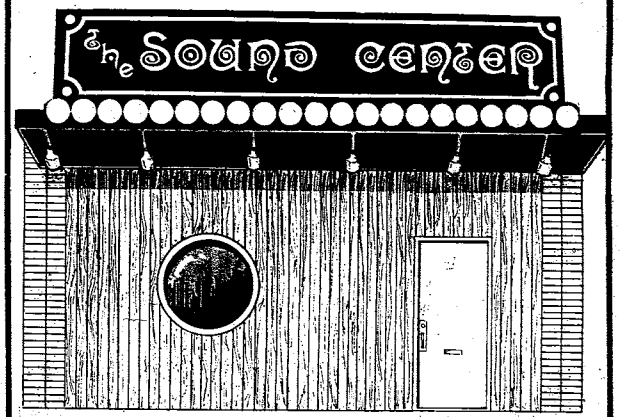
Company C, 1st Battalion (Mech), 58th Infantry (Patriots), 197th Infantry Brigade recently completed its Army Training Test (ATT) in a true mechanized fashion.

The Patriot's began their test when 13 of their armored personnel carriers rumbled out of the motor pool toward the test area. Among the problems encountered along the way was a mined bridge, where the soldiers were required to show their proficiency in detecting and marking mines.

Private William Glenn was the units first casualty in the mock warfare, when he was shot during an aerial attack. "I think this whole test is very realistic," the M-60 machine gunner stated. "I regret that I got knocked out of the problem so early but I hope to get back soon."

"We have been practicing for this ATT for a long time and I'll be happy once we complete it," stated Private Richard Haygood, a team leader from Polk City, Fla.

A total of 126 men participated in the exercise and the unit received an overall satisfactory rating.



The Patriots also participated in a 10-mile night road march in their track vehicles, during the two-day test.

"Our men have been practicing for this test for quite a while," explained Sergeant Lawrence Johnson, a senior team leader. "They completed squad and platoon ATTs last month and most of them are looking forward to this test."

What one event do you think highlighted this past year at Fort Benning?

Sergeant First Class Freddie Manning
HHC, 4th Student Bn.

For me it was being able to instruct the two WACs who went through airborne training.

CWO Brian Arnold
283rd Army Band

The one event would be the Outdoor Old Fashioned Park Concert that we put on last month. It was very exciting to feature the 1812 Overture with the live artillery fire from the guns of the 2d Battaion, 10th Artillery.

Staff Sergeant Richard Roy
Co. B, Headquarters Command

I think it was the Youth Activities dependent football season. I arrived late in the season but the few games I managed to see were real exciting.

BAYONET OPINION PAGE

SMA: "Call it as it is"

FIRST OF A TWO-PART SERIES

Sergeant Major of the Army Leon Van Autreve addressed the graduating class of NCOES 2-74 at Fort Benning on Dec. 14 during a visit to the U.S. Army Infantry Center. His remarks to the graduating class would be of interest to both enlisted men and officers at Fort Benning. Here are excerpts from that address:

COUNSELLING:

People seem to think that counselling is a tremendously hard thing to do. I would say that counselling on the average takes no more than about 30 secons of your time. How much time does it take for you to go to a soldier and tell him, "You are doing a real fine job and we appreciate it."

How many times have we done that with a private or PFC? And don't tell me you don't like it when the old man or first sergeant says to you, "Sgt. Dokes, you are really doing a fine job." Well, you have got to do it to your soldier.

Conversely, when there is something wrong, you should be told. We cannot afford to catch a man off balance, allowing him to go day-by-day thinking he is doing a good job. We are satisfied with it and all of a sudden he is put out of the Army and he can't figure how he got there.

We must counsel him either favorably or unfavorably and it takes a very, very short part of your day. Get that counselling out to the soldier whether it be good or bad. We are not doing enough of it. We don't let him know where he stands.

MORAL COURAGE:

Another thing we talk about is moral courage. And I say this to you — moral courage is more demanding than physical courage. The man who goes out into the battlefield is exposed to a one-time condition, and reacts very much, as a hero may never be exposed to that situation again.

But moral courage is an exercise a man has to practice each day of his life. That is telling the soldier the way that he is supposed to be told. That's utilizing your influence on the EER and calling it as it is. You have got to have moral courage. Call it as it is.

You know, in line with this we talk about backing, and those of you who read the Army Times know that the Sergeant Major of the Army hasn't done too well in the Army Times lately. We have had several articles (three or four) that have made much to do because I had made a statement some time ago that a good Non-Commissioned Officer does not have to look for backing.

Well, first I was misinterpreted somewhat. I do believe you do not have to look about for backing because I believe that the Army backs the Non-Commissioned Officer.

Cold weather challenges Batt. B

Braving sub-freezing weather, 91 men from Battery B, 2nd Battalion, 10th Field Artillery, 197th Infantry Brigade recently completed its Army Training Test (ATT) with a satisfactory rating.

The test began with an alert on one of Fort Benning's coldest mornings this winter and the unit was on the road, moving toward its first position by 8:30 a.m. During the movement the soldiers were tested on air defense tactics as well as their reactions to different types of ambushes.

"We are going to pass this test," stated Private First Class Lewis Scott prior to moving out. "We have practiced for about a month and none of us is worried. We know we'll max the test."

Private Marvin Johnson, a powder man on his gun crew, said he thought the Georgia weather was too cold to be out in the field.

"But I'm here and ready." He enlisted for his current job and has been in the "Forever Forward" brigade for 10 months.

One of the problems incurred by the batter was what artillerymen call a "hip shoot." While on the road, the unit received a fire mission. They were chrged with the task of finding a position, setting up their guns, and firing.

From the time the first truck stopped at the selected position to the time the first round was fired, less than three minues had elapsed.

"I don't mind going to the field," said Specialist four Willie Rogers, an assistant gunner. "The men in our gun crew are all prepared for this test and even looking foward to it. I just wish it wasn't so cold!"

"We were allowed eight-and-a-half minutes for the hip shoot," explained First Lieutenant Roger Duckworth, the battery's executive officer. "The men handled the situation very well."

During the test the unit was tested for reactions and tactics toward numerious situations, including gas and chemical attacks, simulated artillery attacks, and ambushes

Tired drivers face more danger

Motorists who drive for long stretches are impairing their ability to drive safely.

Families planning to drive home for New Year's should know that tired motorists take 20 per cent longer to stop than fresh drivers. This is the result of a test conducted by the Cornell Aeronautical Laboratories.

The tired driver needs extra time to make steering corrections and he drifts more from the center of the lane. After a blow-out, his car will swerve about three times as far before he regains control.

The tests were conducted on a auto simulator where the "driver" faced the same conditions and unexpected mishaps that occur on actual motor trips.

NCO WIVES' CLUB

"The Army takes care of its own", but that is not all the ladies in the NCO Wives' Club do. By attending just one of their many functions we can see that they are concerned with the Community and the welfare of those who surround them.

These are a few examples. In the Spring of this year they had a clothing drive for St. Johns Orphanage, then there were two Scholarships of $1,000 awarded to a son and a daughter of an NCO, in the fall the Youth Club received a helping hand for their Halloween party and of course in its second year the ACS foodlocker receives $25.00 each month to help those in need. The Boy and Girl Scouts weren't forgotten when they asked for financial help with their scout huts. One thousand dollars was awarded to Faith school to furnish the band with uniforms, and when Christmas time comes around the NCO Wives' Club of true spirit of Christmas hy giving food baskets to needy families. The ladies of the NCO Wives' Club have opened their hearts to a plea of support from the An Loc Orphanage, South Viet Nam.

It takes a lot of fund raising and the support of all our NCO Wives to make all of these projects possible. If you would like to join this fine group of ladies and join in their efforts please call: Membership Chairwomen, Karen Kelly, 687-8783, or Pinkie Brown, 687-1017. It has been a good year and the NCO Wives' Club of Fort Benning extends their best wishes for a Happy New Year.

OWC ACTIVITIES

A special invitation is extended to all wives of active duty and retired officers to attend the Officers' Wives' Club Activities Tea on Jan. 9 from 1-3 p.m. at the Officers' Club. The tea gives officers' wives the opportunity to sign up for activities to be offered during the coming season.

A multitude of classes will be offered, including: Allied Liaison, Acrylics, Benning Belles, Bridge, Cake Decorating, Candlemaking, Ceramics, Children's Literature, Creative Stitchery, Crochet, Decorative Painting, Drawing and Watercolor, Flower Craft, French Crafts, Furniture Refinishing, Garbage Art, House and Garden and Interior Decoration.

Other classes will be: International and Gourmet Cooking, Knitting, Macrame, Oil Painting, Picture Framing, Needlework, Potpourri, Quilting, Self Defense, Sewing, Slipcover, Terrariums, and Yoga.

The January Tea is a free event and no reservations are necessary. Tables will be at entrances to the club where half-year memberships will be sold. Individual tables for each activity will enable the members to sign up for classes and also provide more information about the classes.

There is an activity offered for every Army wife, and each is urged to lend her support and valuable experience to the OWC.

THE TALENT TREE

The Talent Tree is planning a needlework show for late January. The show would include all facets of the craft from quilting, embroidery, crocheting, creative stitchery, rug making to needlepoint. Anyone interested in participating should contact Lee Morris at 687-4634 or 563-5128.

ART TEACHER NEEDED

The OWC is in need of an art teacher for children's art classes to start after Jan. 9.

For further information, call Patsy Maddox, 687-2967.

Expectant Parent Classes to begin

The Army Health Nursing Service and the Obstetrics Department, Martin Army Hospital, is beginning another series of Expectant Parents Classes on 8 January, 1973.

The series consists of four classes, each two hours long, on Tuesday nights. Classes are held in the conference room on the second floor of Martin Army Hospital.

The purpose of the Expectant Parents' Class is to help parents prepare for their babies before they are born. The course is designed to help expectant parents feel more secure about pregnancy, childbirth and infant care. It will present factual information through group discussions, illustrations, lectures, movies and active participation in performing exercises necessary for childbirth.

Because of limited space, you are asked to pre-register for these classes by calling the Army Health Nursing Service, 545-5431, Monday through Friday, 8 A.M. - 4:30 P.M.

WHO WHAT WHERE

Bn. 69th ARMOR and 72nd ENGINEERS

Tankers' wives of the 2-9 Armor and Engineers' wives of the 72nd Engineers met at the home of Maggie Thorn, Dec. 6 for the Battalion coffee. Hostesses Maggie Thorn and Peggy Rockwell welcomed the wives with refreshments ranging from stain-glass window bars to cranberry sparkle punch. Mrs. Thorn introduced Mrs. Carol Walton, the new battalion commander's wife.

The Battalion Thrift Shop representative slot was assumed by Jan Sutter and Kathy Craig volunteered to be the representative for the Protestant Women of the Chapel for Harmony Church.

The coffee ended on happy and sad notes. The happy note was welcoming Eileen Gibbs, who hails from New Jersey, to the battalion. The sad notes were bidding farewell to Dish Fountain, whose husband will be attending the Career Course here at Fort Benning, and to Inga Diaz, whose husband will be going to Warrant Officer School at Fort Gordon.

197th INF BDE
3d Bn 7th Inf

The ladies of the 3d Bn. 7th Inf. (Cottonbalers) attended a Christmas coffee on Dec. 14 given by Mrs. Charles O. Arnecke at her home on Yeager Ave. Special guests attending were Mrs. Watha J. Giddins Jr., Mrs. Theodore Voorhees, Mrs. Richard Gillem, Mrs. Curtis F. Doglan and Mrs. Warren J. Dalton. The ladies all brought homemade or handmade gifts which were exchanged around the Christmas Tree in a game that evoked much merriment amongst the gathering.

Warmly welcomed by the Battalion ladies were Mrs. Edward DeVoss, Mrs. Raymond Miley, Mrs. Gary Graber, Mrs. Edward Grenchus and Mrs. Apolonia Garcia, with a fond farewell bid to Mrs. Donald Young. Mrs. Arnecke thanked the ladies who had done volunteer work at the Muscogee Manor Nursing Home in December and signed up more volunteers to go again in January. The group was informed that a needy family had been selected to sponsor for Christmas dinner and the ladies voted to also donate gifts for the children of the family.

The next coffee for the "Cottonbalers" will be held Jan. 17 at the Main Officers' Club, with an evening coffee planned for February.

Santa Claus

The officers and ladies of the 3d Bn. 7th Inf. gathered to see Santa Claus at a Hail and Farewell held on Dec. 15 at the home of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Charles O. Arnecke Jr. on Yeager Ave. Sponsoring the holiday affair were the members of Co. A, commanded by Capt. Jimmy Arnold. Everyone brought a gag gift and got to sit on Santa's knee (so aptly portrayed by Lt. Edward Grenchus) while they opened their surprise. Lt. Col. Arnecke took homemovies of the proceedings, which, when viewed, will surely prove to be a hilarious memento of the evening.

On a more serious note, the "Cottonbalers" welcomed to the battalion Lt. and Mrs. Gary Graber, Lt. and Mrs. Raymond Miley, Capt. and Mrs. Edward DeVoss, and Mrs. Edward Grenchus, the new bride of Lt. Grenchus (Santa). Lt. and Mrs. Donald Young were bid a fond farewell and were presented with gifts as a remembrance of their stay with the 3d Bn. 7th Inf.

It was a most enjoyable holiday affair, with Christmas cheer much in evidence among the "Cottonbalers."

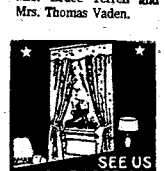
WEAPONS DEPARTMENT CHRISTMAS TEA

The ladies of the Weapons Department enjoyed a lovely tea in the home of Mrs. Michael Kovalsky on Lumpkin Road.

The house was beautifully decorated, following a theme of red poinsettas and Christmas greenery. Refreshments were served by the ladies of the Small Arms Committee.

Christmas gifts were exchanged during the social hour. The program that followed was a rendition of Christmas Carols presented by the Benning Bells under the direction of Mrs. Paul Joplin.

RANGER WIVES



Gathering at the beautiful home of Mrs. William Steiger on Dec. 12, the Ranger Wives enjoyed Christmas cookies and cake, punch and coffee. Co-hostess's were Mrs. Kurt Pierce, Mrs. James Hascal and Mrs. Philip Lamneck. Mrs. James Bowers, wife of the Ranger Department Director, welcomed newcomer Mrs. Lavern Foreman. Mrs. Bowers announced Mrs. Robert Farris as the new Hospitality chairman and Mrs. Henry Mitchell the new Reservation chairman. Farewell trays were presented by Mrs. Chan Greene to Mrs. Steiger, Mrs. Pierce, Mrs. Lamneck, Mrs. Gabino Caballero, Mrs. Robert Fullerton, Mrs. John Grimsley, Mrs. Joseph Trez, Mrs. William Jacobs, Mrs. Ronald Marks, Mrs. Leroy Opp and Mrs. Arthur Williams. On Dec. 15, wives of the Ranger Department met to complete eleven food baskets to be given to needy families at Christmas along with small gifts and clothing.

THE OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY, USAIS

The wives of the officers of the Office of the Secretary, USAIS met Dec. 13, for their monthly coffee. Christmas was definately on everyone's mind including the hostesses, Mrs. Robert Riviello and Mrs. Richard Brooke. Mrs. Riviello's home was beautifully decorated for Christmas and the refreshments on the table looked like a page from Woman's Day magazine's Christmas issue. The ladies feasted on Yule Log, Cream Cheese Bars, Fudge, Blueberry Muffins, Brownies, and Chocolate Chip Cookies. It was very festive.

Mrs. Paul Mueller conducted a brief business meeting and told of the success of the OWC Christmas Bazaar. A great deal of discussion centered around the new OWC monthly publication, which will print its first issue in January. Welcomed was Mrs. Mike McClaren, whose husband is assigned to the Officer Personnel Section. Farewells were said to Mrs. Charles Ostick. Major Ostick will be attending the Armed Forces Staff College in Norfolk, Va. in January. Mrs. Ostick was presented with a pair of silver ice tongs by the ladies as a farewell gift.

Hostesses for the January coffee will be Mrs. Bruce Terrell and Mrs. Thomas Vaden.

Carpools are way to gas savings

As midwinter sets in, now is the time to think about saving gas.

Instructions for using the locator are simple. Find yourself on any Columbus map. Use the grid system and always read right and up. For example, Murray Hills is in C4.

On a card or sheet of paper, put your name, duty phone number, building, and work hours.

Send this information to the Bayonet or place it on the carpool bulletin boards.

The locator boards are available. The first is in the main lobby of Bldg. 35, the other in the main lobby of Bldg. 4.

Staff team has purpose to help

The 197th Infantry Brigade has established a staff assistance team to help units keep their management and maintenance records up to date.

The team was devised by Major Layton C. Matt, 197th Inf. Bde. Inspector General to help subordinate commanders determine the status of their units.

"We hope to be able to assist the units in keeping themselves in good shape and avoid last minute efforts in preparation for the annual general inspection," stated Matt.

In a department from the old "brown shoe" Army, no gigs will be issued for blunders. In fact, the program does not call for formal written reports.

With a goal of visiting each separate unit in the "Forever Forward" Brigade twice annually, the team will check a number of areas, including administration, security, supply, arms rooms, training, maintenance and the dining facility. But since the purpose of the team is to assist, no formal reports are required and errors or dificiencies will be corrected on the spot.

No work stoppage or unusual preparation is required of the unit being inspected. The unit being checked will be notified one day prior to the visit.

SMA speaks out

Now there are times when you meet an isolated case where you don't feel that you are getting backing. Does that mean that you stop, cease and desist? Absolutely not.

Back off and attack again. How far do you think I would go if I were to go to General Abrams and say, "General Abrams, I need your backing." He would back me right out the door, or out the window.

Army backs NCO

The Army backs the Non-Commissioned Officer. Backs him all the way. It is just an isolated case where he finds a problem and it seems that there is no backing. But it certainly has backed me, throughout my career. And, when you have been in the Army for 25 or 30 years, I expect you will realize that it has backed you. Because if you're a good Non-Commissioned Officer, you are backed by your superiors, in some cases no, but in 90 percent of the cases — and you can't expect to win every time — you are backed.

CHAIN OF COMMAND:

Now you have just been exposed to the blacksmiths who helped forge the links in the chain of command. And the blacksmiths have been your instructors in your past weeks of attendance at school. Now, gentlemen, the links — the chain of command — are rusty and bent, and it is our fault. Soldiers must have the ability to come to us with a problem, and, when we cannot answer it, we don't slough it off, but we pass it off until somebody answers the question. If you have a problem, you want that same courtesy. And don't forget, the chain of command is not monologued. You don't just talk dialogue; you talk and you listen. I must say that God in all of His infinite wisdom did great things. He presented us with two ears and one mouth. And that is the proporation with which they should be used. In other words, we listen twice as much as we talk.

We've got to get that chain of command to work. It has got to be a viable product. Do you realize that when I took this position, almost a hundred people a day came to my office, or wrote or telephoned, with problems. I realized that 80 percent of those problems are of man's own making. He's using us as a court of last resort. Well, that is not what disturbes me. What disturbs me is the 20 per cent that come to us who have not been listened to and who have not been assisted. There are those who have gone to their non-commissioned officer and he has sloughed off the problem. We must never forget that the young soldier, if it is to him a problem, then we must recognize it as a problem.

Did you listen?

We can't ever forget that. We must put ourselves in his shoes, go back to the time when we first came into the Army, and realize how little we know about what was gongnon. That's what we must do. We've got to make the chain of command work because that is what we are all about.

If we can't get the chain of command to work, then they are not going to need a lot of us. We not only train people, we assist people. We want to reduce the number of congressionals. We don't want the man to have to go to the chaplain, or to the IG, we want him to come to us. We want him to listen to us.

COMMUNICATIONS:

Now I would like to talk about communication. And I guess of all the things that disturb me the most, it' the lack of communication. I think it is very much misunderstood. Communications has about 25 different definitions, hut what it basically involves is the message, a messenger to send the message, a recipient or receiver, and a reaction. The man has got to read the message. He has got to understand the message and react to the message.

Now stastically, about 70 percent of our time each day is spent in communication. Some 65 percent of the 70 percent is spent in what is known as nonverbalized communication. What do I mean by nonverbalized communications?

Body language?

I mean your actions supporting what you say. I will give you a good example. My daughter was home from college. She was talking to me while I was watching a very interesting TV program. So, while she was talking to me, I was really not listening. All of a sudden it was commercial time, so I turned to my daughter and asked her what the problem was. She said, "It is all right, dad, you have already promised me a trip to Florida." "No, I did not." "You certainly did."

She said that when Johnny was shooting Joe, she asked me about a trip to Florida and I said, "Yes, go anywhere you want to go."

Well, let's not do that with the soldiers. And, gentlemen, when you call them in for a counselling session and are verbalizing, and you are talking to him and counselling, make darn sure that you are in a non-verbalizing manner backing up what you are saying.

Now, let's have an example. You young man comes in to see the first sergeant with a problem. The first sergeant says, "OK, you have a problem, son, have a seat. What is it all about?"

But, while the young man is talking to the first sergeant, the first sergeant is looking at his watch, making some notes on a piece of paper, looking up at the clock, or looking out the window. How many times has that happened?

Specialist Five Fred Pierce serves Sergeant Major of the Army Leon Van Autreve his dinner choices during his visit to the 3d Battalion 7th Infantry, 197th Infantry Brigade dining facility. SMA Van Autreve expressed how essential the quality of the food at the mess halls is to the morale of the troops. (U. S. Army Photo by Philip Reid).

That soldier walks out and he has absolutely no no faith in that non-commissioned officer because he realizes he really didn't care about the problem.

When a soldier comes to you with a problem, and you know only too well that you have the same situation, you look at the soldier and you indicate in every respect that you really heard what the problem was that he had to present. Be sure to do that. That is one of our faults. And that young soldier doesn't miss a trick.

Soldiers saw a lot of both at Benning in 1973

The Modern Volunteer Army is here to stay but the Fort Benning events of 1973 left little else as it was.

January

The year began with Fort Benning pausing to observe the anniversary of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s birth date with special memorial service on January 15.

Colonel William R. Guthrie, director of the U.S. Army Infantry School's Nonresident Instruction Affairs Department announced "We are open for business" only one month after a fire destroyed almost all the correspondence course instructional material.

Colonel H. Haskell Ziperman, Martin Army Hospital commander, left Fort Benning on January 27. He was succeeded by Colonel George S. Woodard Jr.

January 29th saw the official opening of the Individual Learning Center located in Building 4.

February

Second Lieutenant Thomas L. Ferguson received the 21st Annual Robert P. Patterson Memorial award on Feb. 12 Mrs. Patterson, widow of the late Secretary of War made the presentation in ceremonies attended by Gen. Creighton Abrams, Army Chief of Staff; Major General Talbott and Brigadier General William Richardson.

Fort Benning welcomed a new commander as Maj. Gen. Thomas M. Tarpley succeeded Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott on Feb. 16. Lieutenant General Talbott is now deputy commander, TRADOC. He had commanded Fort Benning since September 1969.

March

Colonel Willard Latham, assistant post commander, was promoted to brigadier general effective March 1.

March 21st marked an historic event for the 197th Infantry Brigade as it was redesignated a STRAF unit and Colonel William B. Steele assumed command from Colonel Edwin L. Kennedy.

Women infiltrated the military police as Privates Diane Hinshaw and Nancy Abrams assumed duty with the 139th M.P. Co.

Fort Benning shrunk in land size as 20 acres of the reservation were transferred to the city of Columbus under the President's Legacy of Parks program.

The Main Post Gym on Sightseeing Road was named in honor of Leiutenant Audie L. Murphy, the famous World War II Medal of Honor awardee.

Colonel Allen M. Goodson assumed command of The Student Brigade from Colonel A. G. Norris on March 30.

April

April 1st began the 67th year of the U.S. Army Infantry School. Captain Jo Rusin became Fort Benning's first female protocol officer.

The April general membership meeting of the Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning chapter of the AUSA was addressed by the Honorable Robert F. Froehlke, then Secretary of the Army.

Four soldiers traveled to Atlanta on April 11 to place a wreath beside the tomb of the Rev. Martin L. King Jr. to honor the fifth anniversary of his death.

Mrs. Betty I. Ashley, civilian employe of Fort Benning was named the 3rd Army Handicapped Employee of the Year.

May

An honors ceremony was held at York Field on May 7 for Colonel Benjamin H. Purcell, the highest ranking Army officer held prisoner during the Vietnam conflict.

The first unit race relations instructor training course at Fort Benning was held on May 10. Mayor Johnny L. Ford of Tuskegee was guest speaker.

The 145th Aviation Battalion was activated at Fort Benning on May 15. Lieutenant Colonel Lawrence A. Bell assumed command upon the activation.

Ground breaking ceremonies for the multi-million dollar addition to Martin Army Hospital were held on May 11.

June

Fort Benning units continued to reorganize as the 931st Engineer Group became the 36th Engineer Group.

July

July saw the end of some major commands as Third U.S. Army and Continental Army Command were eliminated. Created were Forces Command (FORSCOM) and the Training and Development Command (TRADOC). Major units at Fort Benning were reorganized under new commands due to the major Army reorganization.

Brigadier General Mildred C. Bailey, director of the Women's Army Corps, visited the WAC Detachment on July 25-26.

August

Colonel John W. White was named Martin Army Hospital commander succeeding Brigadier General George S. Woodard Jr.

Specialist Five John M. Hibbard became the first to complete the Pre-Discharge Education Program (PREP) at Fort Benning.

For the third year ROTC cadets attended Ranger School during the summer and ROTC Ranger Class 502-73 graduated August 31. Former astronaut Frank Borman's son was a member of the class.

September

Fort Benning personnel took an active part in "All About E.V.E." events as Columbus presented a week of programs devoted to women.

By September the post was beginning to feel the pinch of the fuel shortage as Department of the Army issued orders calling for a 6 per cent cut in projected heating fuel supplies for FY 74.

October

October 1st began a test period offering one-stop shopping for military uniforms and accessories at Benning. Under agreement between the Army and the Army-Air Force Exchange Services, the PX Uniform Store and Post Clothing Sales Store were combined into one operation located in Building 1608.

The dining facility of Company C, 3rd Battalion, 7th Infantry, 197th Infantry Brigade captured the post best dining facility for the eighth consecutive time — that's every month since the competition began last February.

October 31 marked the first all check payday for Fort Benning as soldiers were no longer able to receive cash payments.

November

For the third straight year Fort Benning exceeded its goal in the Combined Federal Campaign, as personnel contributed more than $200,000.

Marji Wallace, Miss World USA, visited the installation and later in the month was crowned Miss World.

The Silver Eagles, the Army Aviation precision demonstration team appeared at Lawson Field on Nov. 15 at the fall meeting of the Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning chapter of AUSA.

The Military Occupational Specialty (MOS) Learning Center was officially opened.

Privates Joyce Kutsch and Rita Johnson became the first women in the history of the Armed Forces to earn the Airborne wings.

December

Sergeant Major of the Army Leon L. VanAutreve visited Fort Benning on Dec. 13-14 to address members of the Advanced Non-Commissioned Officer Education System (ANCOES) Class 2-74 during graduation ceremonies.

The holiday season began on Dec. 9 and events geared down as many personnel departed to spend this time with family and friends elsewhere.

The staff of the Bayonet wishes to extend to all personnel of Fort Benning a "well done" for the accomplishments of 1973. It was not possible to mention all the performances of individuals and units. However, in a year of change, it is recognized that personnel fulfilled the mission of Fort Benning with the pride and determination of professionals.

AIRBORNE! Private Rita Ann Johnson, front, puts on her parachute with help from Private Joyce Kutsch as the two prepared to become the first women to jump out of an aircraft during Airborne training. The two became the first women in the history of the U.S. Armed Forces to wear the Airborned Wings when they graduated this month. (U.S. Army Photo).

"Firsts" highlight MEDDAC year

The U. S. Army Medical Department activity saw three commanders and underwent a major reorganization during 1973.

Colonel H. Haskell Ziperman retired and was followed by Colonel George S. Woodward Jr. Col. Woodward was promoted to brigadier general a few months later and transferred to Letterman Army Medical Center. Colonel John W. White assumed command in August.

The biggest event during the year came when the Army established the U. S. Army Health Services Command at Fort Sam Houston, Texas and placed all medical treatment facilities under it.

More emphasis was placed on screening and detecting sickle cell anemia. Within the past 15-month period a total of 2,300 soldiers and dependents were screened for this disease.

Martin Army Hospital was selected to provide Phase III training for the Army Physician Assistant's program. The first four students arrived at Martin Army Hospital on February 20 for 26 weeks of intensive clinical work under a physician's supervision.

Construction on a $3.2 million addition to the hospital was started on May 11. Under construction is a two-floor clinic addition and a single floor supply and services addition which will provide 89,600 square feet of floor space. It is scheduled to be completed in the spring of 1975.

The night clinic in Building 396 was eliminated during the summer due to the doctor shortage. However, a second family practice clinic was opened on July 18 under the Family Practice program.

Martin Army's first female dental intern arrived in July. Captain Barbara Sias is undergoing a rigorous program at Bernheim Dental Clinic.

Patient Medical Advisor, a pamphlet aimed at educating patients in self-treatment so they may safely treat minor medical conditions at home, was published in September.

Construction on a new helipad was started on November 9 when the first tree was cut by Col. White. The new permanent pad is necessary to improve safety conditions for emergency medical evacuation aircraft.

A final first was established for the year when nine civilian dental therapy assistants graduated on December 12. The Dental Therapy Assistant program was designed to increase the Army Dental Corps' capacity to provide dental care to more patients without compromising the quality of the care.

ROD AND GUN CLUB Notes

By DAVE DEUTSCHER

In the wake of today's deluge of scientific anglers armed with electronic depth finders, temperature gauges, oxygen scales, and who knows what next, its refreshing to sit down with an "old timer" and listen to his rules for catching fish.

He's relied on adages and proverbs for years with no regard whatsoever to modern preachings. And you know what? They work! There has to be some scientifically-oriented reasons behind the consistency of these rules of thumb. Let's look at a few.

A FISH OFF EVERY POINT

It is only logical that in a lot of instances the visible terrain will continue a similar pattern under the surface of the water. A point that continues under the water for a few yards will provide a beautiful feeding shelf for bass with deeper water on the sides. On the other hand, the point may be a bluff that will drop steeply into the water. This is also a prime area for moving fish.

BLACK DAY-BLACK BAIT

For the most part, fish see your lure against the background of the sky. On cloudy days, a dark colored bait will silhouette with sharper contrast and be easier to see. A light colored or metallic lure will reflect the sun's rays on bright days, which seems to trigger the striking instinct in a lot of bass.

BIGGEST FISH IN THE MIDDLE

Possible, but not always true. The fact is that big fish will hold up in deep water. In a small, man-made pond this may be the middle. In large impoundments these deep holes could be almost anywhere.

HUSHI DON'T SCARE THE FISH

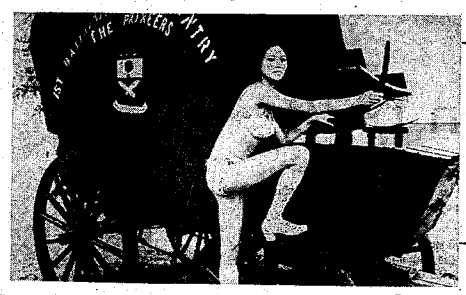
Fish are extremely sensitive to vibrations. They can even feel the vibrations of a minnow swimming yards away. However, vibrations of a person's voice will probably not be significantly transmitted through the water. But, don't bang your feet around in the boat or drop anything; this will definitely send the fish to cover.

LIGHTS DRAW FISH

It doesn't take much experimenting to prove the attractiveness of a burning lantern to mosquitoes and other night-time pests. Small fish will love that free meal. Also light seems to attract minnows and other bait fish, which in turn will draw in bigger predators. But note that most big fish are a little more cautious and will probably be found in a nearby shadow cast by your lamp.

SPIT ON YOUR BAIT FOR LUCK

This may work for a youngster with a mouthful of Lifesavers gum or for the old timer with his jaw packed with Bull-of-theWoods tobacco. Fish do have a sense of smell, and they just don't cotton to the scent of any human being. Chewing gum or the like may sufficiently cover up the smell we leave by handling our bait. Did you ever notice how a brand new plastic worm seems to work better than the one you've handled all day?



HEED THE REEDS

Unlike most underwater vegetation, reeds grow where the bottom is relatively hard. If this type bottom is found near a deep dropoff, it's a sure bet for finding bass.

CAST TO THE SUN

This precludes the chances of fish being frightened by your moving shadow when the sun is low in the sky. It also allows your bait to work on the shady side of the target structure.

These are but a few from the infinite list. No one rule is a sure guarantee for catching fish, but the principles behind them are logical and should at least improve the odds.

The Life and Times of Judge Roy Bean

In the role of the legendary "Hanging Judge," Roy Bean, Paul Newman is a self-proclaimed dispenser of Western Justice. Whether gunning down outlaws, arguing with a stubborn grizzly bear, revealing his affections for the unattainable Lily Langtry (Ava Gardner), or at age seventy tangling with tommy-gun gangsters, Newman is totally brilliant. Jacqueline Bisset and an outstanding gallery of guest stars enter the Judge's life and times in John Huston's epic saga which is laced with salty language and violence.

The Outside Man

French killer Jean Louis Trintignant arrives in Los Angeles with a contract to shoot gang leader Ted DeCorsia and hopefully return home undetected. DeCorsia's young widow, Angie Dickinson, and his son Umberto Orsini (her lover) are Trintignant's unknown employers and assign Roy Scheider to kill the assassin. Trintignant makes his way to Ann-Margret who is a topless hostess in a club and is in touch with his boss. The ruthless Scheider has definite ideas how he can bring Trintignant's stay in Los Angeles to a definite halt. There are some overtones of sex, violence, and profanity in this tense crime drama which may offend.

Horror Express

Murder and mayhem take place aboard the Trans-Siberian Express in the year 1905, in the Chinese province of Hangchow. English anthropologist Christopher Lee discovers a fossil of very special characteristics: a strange humanoid being which he believes to be the "missing link" with humanity. Shortlyafter the train has left Shanghai, the baggage man is discovered dead, his body is in the crate which had contained the fossil which is now missing. Dr. Peter Cushing is attacked by a hairy beast who is shot and killed. It becomes clear to Lee that the creature is one from another galaxy, and that he has passed on his strange powers through his eyes to another creature. Following a series of mysterious deaths, it is decided that all the passengers must be sacrificed in order to destroy the creature and end the nightmare. Violence may be a little too brutal for pre-teen-agers.

The Shanghai Killers

Swordsman Yi Yi is forced to slay two members of a gang whose leader holds the secret of the Blood Swords. Several ambushes are prepared for Yi, but more gang members are wounded and slain. Yi's main asset in his Blood Sword, one of a pair of sacred and powerful swords used in a duel between the Shih and Yi families. Beautiful siren Yun Tsai switches swords with Yi, stealing his precious Blood Sword. Yi fights his way into the camp of gang leader Han-I-Chu who is desirous of finding both swords which together are invincible. THE SHANGHAI KILLERS death-dealing blows will please kung fu-karate fans; however, violent action may offend.

Willy Wonka and the Chocolate Factory

Poor but honest paper boy, Peter Ostrum, wins the Wonka Chocolate contest by finding one of the five Golden Tickets in a bar of candy. Being a winner entitles him to a lifetime supply of chocolate and a tour of the Wonka factory. Bringing his grandfather with him, the two run into a crooked rival of the Wonka Chocolate factory. The story is geared for the young and should leave a very favorable impression with them. Disobedience is frowned upon and the punishment dealt out to misbehaving youngsters in the story should make youngsters think twice.

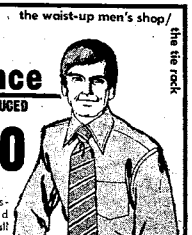
Rules on clothing allowance broadened

Rules on the $150 annual clothing allowance paid by the Veterans Administration have been broadened to include disabled veterans and military retirees who wear colostomy, ileostomy, or similar devices for service-connected conditions.

Annual clothing allowances are authorized under Public Law 92-328 for service disabled veterans whose prosthetic or orthopedic devices (artificial limbs, braces, wheelchairs, etc.) tend to wear out or tear clothing.

Eligible veterans and retirees should apply for the clothing allowance to any VA office. Those on the VA compensation rolls will receive the allowance automatically each year after initial application.



Retirees need not waive any portion of their military retirement pay to qualify for the allowance but must file annual claims for it with VA.

Providence canyon

recently turned into a state park

Providence Canyon, located just south of Fort Benning in Lumpkin, Ga. on Highway 27, is one of the area's most unusual and interesting natural attractions.

There are actually 15 individual canyons covering a 1978-acre area. The land was recently acquired by the State of Georgia and turned into a state park. The official opening was held in July 1971, and Robert F. Baxter is the park's superintendent.

The area is still in much the same condition it was in when the sea receded from the southeastern part of the country. Dr. Alvin L. McLendon of the Columbus College Science Department said the phenomenon was formed during the latter part of the Cretaceous Period, 70 million years ago.

McLendon also said Providence Canyon's antiquity was first recognized in 1859 by Sir Charles Lyell, an eminent 19th-century English geologist, during a field trip to the Southeastern United States.

A visitor can reach the floor of the main canyon by following a path that skirts the southern rim and descends to the deepest part of the canyon, which is 125 feet.

Baxter, the park superintendent, has the job of maintaining the canyon area and protecting it from human destructiveness as well as natural erosion.

He believes that by exercising a little care and courtesy, visitors can enjoy the park for many generations to come. Some people haven't always displayed that attitude, unfortunately; yet for every vandal, there have been a dozen visitors who restore Baxter's faith.

Fossilized evidence can still be found in the Lumpkin area, though not in the canyon itself. Since the canyon walls are composed of various types of clay, iron ore and large amounts of sandstone, they have been too soft to preserve fossils.

From the canyon floor a strange world of eroded fantasy can be observed. A gallery of faces, animals and scenes can be pictured by the imaginative viewer. Man-made canyon carving or "clay graffiti" line the canyon walls as well.

This type of "art work" is discouraged by Baxter, and by anyone else who cares what the canyon represents in the history of the earth. The canyons are across the road from a very old cemetery with several graves dating back to the Civil War.

Providence Canyon is free and open year-round.

On a clear day, the color pattern reflected by the canyon walls is breathtaking to geologist and tourist alike. Anyone interested in nature would find it a worthwhile trip.

Seatbelt myths are untrue

MYTH: I might be saved if I'm thrown clear of the car.

TRUTH: It is highly unlikely! The probability of death is almost five times greater when the motorist is thrown from the car. Under almost any set of collision circumstances, people are better off belted up inside the car. If belted, the driver and passengers won't — plunge through the windshield — fly out the door and hurtle through the air — scrape along the ground — be crushed by their own car. The forces in a collision can be so great as to fling an ejected person as much as 150 feet (approximately 15 car lengths).

MYTH: With my lap belt fastened, I don't need to fasten my shoulder belt.

TRUTH: A shoulder belt can prevent your head and chest from striking the steering wheel, dash, and windshield, in the event of a crash. The lap belt will protect you from serious injury, but you are still subject to possible facial and chest injuries unless you wear your shoulder belt. Together, the lap and shoulder belts offer you the best possible protection in the event of a crash.

MYTH: I don't need a safety belt when I'm traveling at a low speed or going on a short trip.

TRUTH: All driving can be dangerous. Low speeds and short trips are potentially as hazardous as high speeds and long trips. More than half of the accidents causing injury or death occur at speeds less than 40 mph. Fatalities involving non-belted occupants have been recorded as low as 12 mph. (That's about the speed you'd be driving in a parking lot.) Three out of four accidents causing death occur with 25 miles of home. Belt up before driving to your shopping center, just as you would for a superhighway vacation trip.

MYTH: It takes too much time and trouble to fasten my safety belt.

TRUTH: Well, a safety belt might take some time and trouble, but not too much, when considering the safety of a motorist. The time and trouble depend on . . . complexity of the belt — familiarity with the belt — size of the person who used it last — difficulty in finding the belt ends. But, those are things we can live with . . . if we want to live.

MYTH: I'm uncomfortable and too confined when I wear a safety belt.

TRUTH: Adjusted correctly, safety belts can help maintain proper driving and riding posture. They may also relieve fatigue by improving posture. Belts are designed to allow access to the necessary driving controls. In reaching for things other than the controls, it's safer to use other methods (get passenger help, pull off the road, etc.) Most people find that the initial discomfort soon goes away. Many drivers eventually feel more comfortable wearing belts. However, even if the feeling of discomfort persists, it's a small price to pay for the added safety that belts give.

MYTH: If I wear a safety belt, I might be trapped in a burning or submerged car.

TRUTH: Without a belt the motorist might be stunned or knocked unconscious by the crash. This would considerably lessen his chances of getting out of the car alive. Less than one half of 1% of all injury-producing collisions involved fire or submersion. However, even in these cases, a person is far better off wearing a safety belt. The motorist is more likely to be unhurt, alert, and capable of escaping quickly.

NOTICE TO SHOTGUN OWNERS

Attention shotgun owners. Ithaca Gun Company has identified the Ithaca shotgun, model 66, as being potentially dangerous. The reason being that it can be discharged if dropped accidentally. This item may be returned to the Ithaca Gun Company, ATTN: Mr. Ted Shaw, 123 Lake Street, Ithaca, New York 14850, for credit.

BUYING ON CREDIT

Before you buy on credit, ask yourself, do I really need this item — Can I really afford it at this time? Salesmen are professionals at selling people what they really don't need or can't afford. If you have any doubts at all, walk away from the purchase and sleep on the ideal. A legitimate deal will be there the next day. If you wonder about the advisability of buying on credit, see your unit commander or the financial management officer, located in Bldg. 83, in the Welcome Center.

RELEASE OF MEDICAL RECORDS

Adult medical records will not be released to an individual other than the person that the records pertains to unless a signed authorization for release of medical records is presented to the Medical Treatment Facility.

The signature of the patient must be authenticated by a Notary Public or a member of the Martin Army Hospital Patient Administration Division. Because of this requirement, it is suggested that dependent wives go by the Martin Army Hospital Annex, records room, to sign for their own records, as well as for their minor children, for delivery of records to the next military facility, or between clinics. When a sponsor is in receipt of PCS orders and desires to hand carry his dependents outpatient medical records, the dependent wife must present a copy of his PCS orders, along with her ID card and medical treatment card to the outpatient records room and sign a receipt for records. However, should the sponsor desire to pick-up the records of his wife, he must present an authorization for release as noted in the above statement, and a copy of his PCS orders, and sign a recepit for the records.

BONDS SENT TO WRONG ADDRESS

WASHINGTON (ANF) — Are you missing a savings bond? The U.S. Army Finance Support Agency could have it. More than 110,000 U.S. Savings Bonds have been returned to the finance support agency because service member had moved and did not submit a change of address. A program has been established to obtain unit addresses for remailing of these bonds, however, correct addresses are hard to obtain. If you are missing a savings bond, you should contact your finance officer. Remember, when you move, be sure to submit a change of address for bonds.

FIREARMS REGISTRATION

All privately owned firearms brought on the Fort Benning Reservation must be registered with the Registration Section of the Provost Marshal's Office located on the second floor of Bldg. 83. The hunter must have the firearm registration card in his possession at all times while hunting on the reservation. The Registration Section is open Monday-Friday from 8 a.m. until 4:30 p.m., except holidays. For further information contact Sergeant First Class Overton at 545-4590.

The Modern Volunteer Army may be the big thing today, but shades of the "old" Army still exist. Private Billy Nix and Specialist Five Ronald D. Wolf, Co. A, 197th Spt. Bn., 197th Inf. Bde., lay out their TA50 Field Gear for an inspection. (Photo by Bob Cowles)

Going STRAF is busy work for 197th

By Alex Angelle

Hundreds of soldiers and their leaders in the 197th Infantry Brigade are engaged in a series of Army Training Tests (ATTs) at Fort Benning as the unit moves onward toward attaining the combat-ready posture dictated by its new Strategic Army Forces (STRAF) mission—the highlight of the year's activities for the 4,000-man brigade.

Blending the various skills of soldiers in each unit being tested, these ATTs are the final exams—conducted during company and battalion operations—which gauge each unit's ability to successfully execute its mission.

Having completed nine months of activity as a STRAF unit, the 197th Infantry Brigade is, according to its operations officer, Lt. Col. Haines Hill preparing to begin "more specialized training" in 1974.

"We'll begin operational readiness training when we've completed our battalion ATTs at the end of February," he said. "This training will prepare us for Operational Readiness Tests, which follow ATTs and are also conducted at company and battalion levels.

"During this phase of the brigade's training," said the training chief, "soldiers will be trained to perform their duties in any environment which a contingency mission might eventually call for.

"It will also provide experience in a variety of modes of movement for soldiers and equipment, including rail, water and road transportation."

Soldiers who enlisted to serve first in the 197th Infantry Brigade comprise the bulk of this STRAF organization. These unit-of-choice volunteers came to the unit under a variety of special options through the Army's recruiting network, with which the "Forever Forward" brigade is closely allied through a system of liaison personnel and canvassers.

More than 2,200 men volunteered for the 197th Brigade in 1973, highlighting its unit-of-choice recruiting efforts in seven states. The infantry unit began new recruiting activities at the Beckley, W.Va. and Richmond, Va. Recruiting Main Stations while continuing these endeavors at stations in Columbia, S.C.; Raleigh, N.C.; Jackson, Miss.; and Jacksonville, Fla., which also controls recruiting in part of Georgia.

Sgt. Saul Appleton, Co. B, 2nd Bn., 69th Armor, 197th Inf. Bde., is a tank commander and enjoys spending time in the field. "I enlisted for armor and I like it," Appleton stated. "This ATT is the first time a lot of these men have actually had the chance to train like this." (Photo by Bob Thomas)

Key additions of special units and equipment in conjunction with its March reorganization also received much of the 197th Brigade's attention in 1973 as it manned, equipped and began training the 197th Support Battalion (for combat service support), 298th Signal Platoon, 179th Military Intelligence Detachment, Troop A, 15th Cavalry and new tank companies of the 2nd Battalion, 69th Armor.

An aviation section and a military police platoon, both part of the brigade's Headquarters and Headquarters Company, were also born and developed following the reorganization. In addition, six members of the U.S. Air Force, forming a Tactical Air Control Party (TACP) began serving with the brigade as air liaison advisors.

As it continued a lesser, but consistent, degree of support of the Infantry School and Center, made possible by the establishment of the 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry as the primary School support force, the 197th Brigade also maintained its involvement in community affairs in 1973 through participation in a number of community assistance projects.

The 197th Brigade also sent many color guards and artillery salute batteries into the public domain to supply military formality and honors for a variety of events, including ceremonies for the late President Lyndon B. Johnson, patriotic holiday observances, public military displays and sports events.

Civilian and military visitors from throughout the world toured and observed the 197th Brigade in 1973 during official and social stops aimed at evaluating the unit's organizational and training progress under its new mission.

Groups of interested citizens, business and industrial leaders, sports figures and individual personalties toured the brigade during the year.

News media representatives joined visitors during 1973 as they reported on such subjects as recruiting, training and the volunteer soldier's lifestyle.

ABC and NBC network news teams headed the parade of newsmen and women, which included members of the Hearst News Service, United Press International, Newsweek, The Christian Science Monitor and a variety of others from local, state and national media.

The brigade added a new capability to its Race Relations/Equal Opportunity program in 1973 by developing a Race Relations Instructor Course, designed to train selected unit representatives for duty as instructors for race relations classes.

The 40-hour course is patterned after a similar course taught at the Department of Defense Race Relations Institute, Patrick Air Force Base, Fla., which trains instructors for duty in major units.

PIONEERS

1st-29th Inf.

Richard Barker, of the communications platoon, Headquarters and Support Company, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry (PIONEERS), The School Brigade, installs a new radio in an armored personnel carrier. Communications are vital to the 29 Infantry, in their Infantry School support missions.

Private First Class [illegible] of Company B, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry (PIONEERS), The School Brigade, readies himself on the M-60 machine gun in a PIONEER support problem at [illegible] of NCOES students found themselves looking down the barrel of Lawson's gun as they approached the clearing, during an [illegible] problem.

While temperatures at Fort Benning continue to reach near freezing, the 1-29th PIONEERS continue to 'Lead the Way' no matter how difficult the mission, including swimming in the icy waters of Specker Stream. Specialist Five Tom Jones (L) and Private First Class Carl Folk, both of the Engineeer Platoon of Headquarters and Support Company, of the PIONEERS, demonstrate for a class of Officer Candidates, one method of crossing a stream when one of the men is a non-swimmer.

Variety is the spice of life

Caution, safety, and security are watchwords in combat. Here a 3rd Ranger Company, TSB, Ranger student carefully examines an enemy casualty, actually a membeor of a simulated aggressor force of the 1-29th Inf. Bn., TSB. (Photo by George Korda)

"No one wants to be an expert"

First post baby gets $100

The first baby born in the new year to a military family will receive a birthday present of a $100 savings account, compliments of the National Bank of Fort Benning, the bank announced.

The baby must be born to the wife of a member of the active military at Martin Army Hospital or one of the Columbus area hospitals. In the event of multiple births the prize will go to the first child born. In the event two are born at the exact time the prize will be shared. The father who thinks his baby qualifies for the savings account should contact Ronald Rice or Mike Coggins at the advertising offices of the Bayonet in the Ledger-Enquirer Building at 17 West 12th St. by Jan. 8. The father should bring a doctor's certificate to verify the actual time of birth.

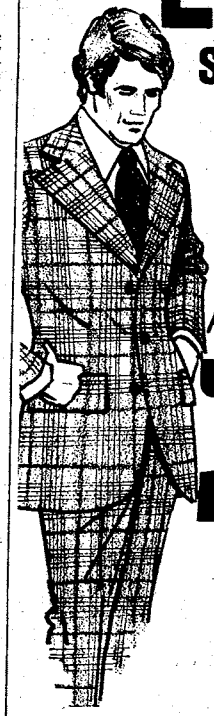
Officers' wives sing carols

The officers of the 197th Infantry Brigade participated with their wives in the second annual Christmas caroling extravaganza this week.

Accompanied by mascot vehicles from battalions within the "Forever Forward" brigade as well as a group from the 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry (Pioneers), the carolers began their journey at the country club parking lot. The 2nd Battalion, 69th Armored supplied its Stuart tank while the 2nd Battalion, 10th Field Artillery contributed an early World War I horse drawn caisson.

The carolers started at 4:30 p.m. and traveled throughout the main post housing area and concluded at the quarters of Major General Thomas M. Tarpley, Fort Benning commander.

"I'm not a demolitions expert, I'm a demolitions specialist — an expert has a few of his fingers missing."



These are the words of Specialist Five Tom Jones, of the Engineer Platoon, Headquarters and Support Company, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry (PIONEERS). "No one," Jones continued, "wants to be an expert with demolitions. When you learn all there is to know, you begin to get careless, and that is one thing you don't want to do with demolitions."

The Engineer platoon has 25 demolitions specialists who support the United States Army Infantry School (USAIS) on all problems where explsoives are required. These men teach Infantry School students to work with explosives such as TNT, composition C-4, detonation cord, military dynamite and bangalore torpedos.

After students have received preliminary instruction and observed demonstrations, they move to the demolitions pit. While the principal instructor discusses aspects of the problem, and leads students through each phase of the training, the demolitions specialists from the 1-29th are beside them, guiding them through each movement and making corrections whenever necessary. Most of the training is conducted at Brown Range.

Safety is stressed in the classes. Students are taught to respect explosives.

Ruck sack: getting better all the time

Major Ignatius E. Stefaniw shows Colonel Walter E. Meinzen, President of the U. S. Army Infantry Board, the modified load carrying equipment that won him a $1,000 Suggestion Award. The new pack is much lighter than the old one and will save the Army close to $500,000 annually. (Photo by Phil Reid)

Major Ignatius E. Stefaniw, a test officer in the Field Equipment Test Branch, has received a $1,000 suggestion award for his modifications of the Army's load-carrying equipment, or ruck sack.

Maj. Stefaniw realized that the LCE was noisy and uncomfortable. In some three months he made several modifications, resulting in a quiet, comfortable piece of equipment, capable of being custom-fitted to each individual soldier.

Maj. Stefaniw saved the Army money by modifying the equipment himself, and by proving to Natick Laboratories, developer of the LCE, that it could be manufactured for less than the present equipment. A savings of almost $500,000 in first year procurements was the result.

Because his modifications were considered beyond what would normally be done by a test officer, the major put all his changes in the form of a suggestion. The savings were computed and he was awarded $1,000 for his ideas. He is now senior combat arms project officer at the U.S. Army Natick Laboratories in Natick, Massachusetts.

And, even the Marines are now using the modified ruck sack.

Specialist Four Ammon L. Sullivan, of Battery C, 83rd Artillery, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry, The School Brigade, was selected Soldier of the Month for the PIONEERS, in the first competition of this type since the battalion was reorganized. Sullivan, a cannoneer with the PIONEERS Artillery battery, was selected from six candidates for the award, and will enter the competition for The School Brigade Soldier of the Quarter. Price Controls On Autos Lifted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Cost of Living Council lifted wage and price controls from the auto industry Monday after three of the big four auto makers agreed to limit their price increases on 1974 models.

It was the biggest decontrol action yet as the administration gradually dismantles its price control program.

As a result, Ford and General Motors may immediately increase their wholesale prices for all autos by up to an average $150, and American Motors by an average $100. The exact figures depend on the specific cars and ...

Barracudas splash to first place

Six members of the Fort Benning Barracuda swim team took first places in the Shark Invitational AAU swim meet here Saturday, Dec. 15.

Anthony Rodriquez led the team from the U.S. Army Infantry Center with first places in three events — the 100-yard butterfly, 100-yard breast stroke, and the 200-yard individual medley — for boys 15-17 years old.

Double winners for the Barracudas were Bobbie Scovia in the 13-14 age group and Debbie Cannan in the 9-10 year old group. Single event winners were Sheila Cannan, Tricia Lunsford and Sherry Pilcher.

Rodriquez is the son of SGM Jubel Rodriquez, Command Maintenance and Communications Department at the U.S. Army Infantry School.

"The team performed very well as hard work paid off in this meet. I'm looking forward to even better results in the next few months," explained coach Gary Bolton.

The team is still accepting new members. Those wishing to join should call 687-3065 for information.

Those receiving ribbons Saturday were:

43rd Engineers build concrete drainage ditches in LaGrange

Members of Company D, 43rd Engineer Battalion recently completed construction of over 80 feet of concrete drainage ditches in a Civic Action Project for the LaGrange area sheltered workshop in LaGrange, Ga.

The project was directed in an effort to control an erosion problem. The workshop was having in which excessive runoff from a hill above the workshop had eroded a large ditch under a cyclone fence, plus several minor erosion problems.

It was determined that the solution would be to cut a ditch above the problem area and divert the excessive runoff. Also two 40-foot concrete ditches would be constructed to carry water out of the area without eroding the hill side.

The project was given to the first platoon of Company D, 43rd Engineer Battalion. Earth Moving Platoon furnished a grader and scooploader for the project. The men began work early on the morning of the Dec. 10

SUPPLEMENT TO BAYONET

Whether you're preparing now for civilian life or planning to move up in the service . . .

Today's Opportunities Are for the Trained Man

The man who makes the money is the man with specialized training. Because he is needed.

Right now you have the opportunity to get valuable job training—in your spare time, at your own pace, while you are still in the service.

You may complete your entire training in the service—or you can start now and continue after your discharge. Either way, you may be entitled to repayment under the new GI Bill of Rights.

Free Career Guidance Booklet

Take a minute to think about the career fields listed on the card opposite. Then check off the one you would like to specialize in and mail the card to ICS for a free Career Guidance Booklet. There is no obligation.

Your free booklet will tell you all about the opportunities for income, security and advancement in your chosen field. It will also explain how ICS can prepare you for this field in your spare time, regardless of your past experience.

In addition, we'll include a free Demonstration Lesson. This way you can see for yourself how practical ICS training can be for you.

Right now. While you're still in the service.

Get Ready To Move Up, Move On.
