Soldiers are community relations specialists

FORT MONROE, Va. — You, the professional soldier, are the real "community relations specialist" in today's Modern Volunteer Army.

Sure there are trained community relations specialists in the Army Information Program and they do a fine job of publicizing the Army by such means as scheduling a popular events, sponsoring speaker bureaus, and conducting orientation visits. It is a proven fact, however, that the public reacts most strongly from personal contact, and you are the means of that contact, especially if you live in off-post housing.

The way you handle yourself, the professional pride you take in your uniform and profession, as well as the way you treat your neighbors, all have a profound effect upon the image of the Army held by the public.

A good example of a positive "good neighbor" policy took place in the recent flooding which inundated areas of Hampton, Virginia September 21.

'Extremely heavy rains the night of the 20th and the morning of the 21st of September took the weatherman and the populace by surprise. Most people did not realize what was taking place and slept right through it. The water reached the two foot level in some homes.

Reacting quickly to the emergency, CW2 George H. Honaker of 1826 Rawood Drive, Hampton Virginia, Maintainance Officer of the 445th Transportation Company, Ft. Eustis, started rousing his neighbors and, using a small boat, removing them to the dry saftey of his own home.

After the water receded, he aided them in getting their cars running and obtained the use of two Army trucks, as well as other volunteer Army personnel, to aid in the removal of trash and water damaged goods.

CW2 Honaker's unselfish efforts helped put a "higher shine" on the image of the Army held by the people of his neighborhood. These people in turn will communicate this image to their acquaintances and so on and so on.

This was just a small, sonal community relaisolated instance of "per- tions"

Recent field problem includes live fire

Live fire aerial gunnery highlighted the 121st Aviation Company Gun Platoon's recent field training exercise on November 28.

The platoon deployed to a field location at Concord OP on the Fort Benning Reservation. The platoon proceed by means of motor convoy covered enroute by a light fire team of AH-1G Cobra gunships. Upon arrival at the Concord O. P., the element was deployed in a tactical field location for the purpose of conducting live fire aviator training. The remainder of the day was spent preparing ammunition and aircraft for the live exercise the next day.

On November 29 rearming and firing was begun at 7:30 a.m. and continued throughout the day utilizing various firing tables. Some of the weapons systems employed were the 2.75" folding din aerial rocket, XM - 18 mini-gun pods, 40 mm grenade launcher, and turret mounted XM - 28 - minigun.

Program set up to improve communications between soldiers

Race relations, one of the most popular topics of conversation discussed at the many rap sessions taking place at the Coffeehouse, is being met head-on by the soldiers of Fort Benning. The Race Relations Coordinating Group (RRCG) headed by Maj. Tyrone Fletcher and the Equal Opportunity Officer, Robert Galer, has a massive program to ease racial tensions at Fort Benning.

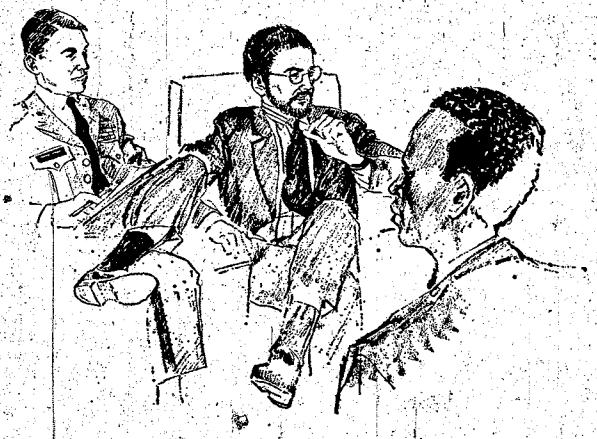
The RRCG grew out of a 1969 staff study ordered by Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander, to determine the extent of racial tension, if on post. When the study group discovered that the possibility of a confrontation did exist, immediate action was taken to reverse the trend. All units began to schedule regular meetings with their commanders in order to bring the problems out into the open.

The first meetings were effective in making unseen problems visible to both commanding officers and soldiers, but they failed to eliminate racial tension among the troops in all cases. Thus the Infantry Center set up its Moderator Training Program (MTP) to take up the existing slack in the area of understanding racial problems.

This new course of instruction was set up to give designated soldiers, regardless of race or rank, the basic skills needed to improve communications among the troops. It was felt that both seminars and rap sessions at the various levels of command would be the tools needed for an effective race relations program.

The five-day course, with a new class starting each month, spans a wide range of related topics. Students are trained in the use of audiovisuals, group psychology, and modern techniques of instruction.

The Moderator Training Program also incorporates one of the more popular trends in modern education, roleplaying. Just as its name suggests, role-playing is a realistic form of acting out a theme of an idea that is being taught. Much like theater or stage, each person in the class is assigned a specific character to portray. He is then encouraged by the class to give his own interpretation of the role as he has encountered it in real life.



At the end of the session both officers and enlisted men are able to see themselves as others see them. They observe both the good and bad qualities of everyone in the room. The lessons each participant learns, while taking part in role-playing helps to eliminate the doubts and misunderstanding that cause so much dissension and racial strife.

This is the toughest part of the moderator's job. He has to identify and control racial problems that may arise in the class. He must identify trouble and find the cause before it gets out of hand. Once the student has a clear picture of the existing problem it is hoped that the student will learn to deal with it with an open mind and a sense of fairness no matter how heated the class becomes.

Group members agreed that in order to absorb the new material, prejudices and long-held beliefs have to be put aside. One member, Pvt. Larry Henderson from Watts (district of Los Angeles), said "I thought I had all the answers. I was down on the system. Now I'm not so sure. At least I've got some doubts about my doubts, and that's something."

Pfc. Sgt. Lacy Starks Jr., a black man from Birmingham, Ala., felt that even after 18 and a half years in the service. "I've learned a great deal from the moderator class. If you want to lead you've got to know what the kids are thinking. After all, they're the majority of the men in uniform."

Although Fort Benning's Moderator Training Program deals primarily with black white tensions, (the most likely basis for conflict) it is very flexible. Moderators are able to apply their moderating skills toward other groups as well, such as, problems within other ethnic groups.

Black vets

'Nam returnees have hard time readjusting

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is an article reprinted from a U.S. Continental Army Command series on "Blacks in American History.")

Black Soldiers In Vietnam

"We will probably never know exactly what motivated Sergeant Dwight Johnson (a Congressional Medal of Honor recipient, Vietnam) to rob the grocery store near his home, but as correspondent Jon Nordheimer makes abundantly clear, it had a great deal to do with being a black soldier."

Excerpt from The Black Soldier
(from the May 25,1971 article
"From Dakto to Detroit," New York Times, Jon Nordheimer.)

Dwight Johnson seemed to be a typical G.I. until he went to Vietnam. His childhood had been normal for a young black growing up in a Detroit ghetto neighborhood, and neighbors there remembered him as a gentle boy who hated to fight. This character trait of nonviolence remained with him when he entered the Army. A friend of his at Ft. Knox, Ky., and other members who served with Dwight remembered him as being "easy-going, hard to rattle, impossible to anger."

On April 30, 1971, Dwight Johnson was shot and killed as he tried to rob a grocery store just one mile away from his home. The store manager told local police that the tall black man had walked in, pulled a revolver, and demanded money. After a struggle in which seven shots were fired, Dwight (Skip) Johnson died in Detroit General Hospital from five gunshot wounds.

If Skip Johnson had been a typical robber in a city where over 13,000 armed robberies occur each year, the case would not have stirred up much attention. But Johnson was a war hero and a Congressional Medal of Honor recipient. He was a black hero honored by both the nation and the city of Detroit.

He had taken on a battalion of Vietcong troops one day in 1967 near Dakto, after his tank platoon had come under heavy attack and been rendered helpless.

Changed

From that moment on, his life had changed. Apparently he had gone temporarily insane and killed more than 20 enemy soldiers. When he returned to his home in Detroit, he looked the same, but people closed to him sensed something different about his personality. He was quiet and fell into moments of depression.

Later, an Army psychiatrist would explain this change as pent-up aggression and post-Vietnam failure to adjust. He would find that Skip Johnson was constantly plagued with the dream of facing death as a Vietcong soldier faced him with an AK-47, ready to fire This actually happened that day in Dakto, but the enemy soldier's weapon jammed and Dwight killed him.

Sgt. Dwight Johnson's experience in Vietnam was not typical. Not every black solider who re-

Best mess goes to 524th

The 524th Personnel Service Company Mess Hall has done it again. As consistent winners of the Best Mess Hall Award they seem to be working at taking the award again this year (72-73), having won the monthly competition four times out of the five awards given this year. The Mess Hall has also won the award for being the best decorated dining facility for Thanksgiving.

If there is one quality that is immediately obvious to a visitor to the Mess Hall it is the spotlessness of the entire area. The tables are all clean and decorated. The total effect is one of comfort without over-elaboration. There are no crystal chandeliers, and wine is not served with every meal but eating there is no less pleasant.

A glimpse of the kitchen reveals an overall picture. Here is a model of efficiency. Nothing seems to be wasted; there are no dirty dishes lying around, no scraps of food to be seen anywhere. In fact, the only indication that one has that clearly identifies this as a kitchen is the wonderful conglomeration of smells that assaualts th olfactory sense in a delicious manner.

"The food here is good all the time, often exceptionally so," said SPS Felix Roman of the 524th Pers. Serv. Co. Judging from the number of people who eat here, the food must be something special. In fact, the mess hall has acquired something of a reputation on post for the quality of its meals.

How do you as moderators think you are helping the race relations program?

Moderators discuss program

14th Co. 1st Brig. TSB

"The biggest part I play in the race relations program is being here so that anyone who has problems can come to me and talk them out. The biggest problem facing race relations is getting the problems out in the open. I try to help solve the problems before they get out of hand. I also keep the commanders informed of the Racial problems that arise."

MSG Ralph Jackson
HHC TSB

"The moderator assists the commander by conducting open discussions where individuals may express their opinions about incidents both actual and alleged discrimination. This discussion is governed by only prior agreement to conduct ourselves with common courtesy and fair play. I channel and encourage honest discussion. We make recommendations to the commanders on the aspects of seminars and the methods to improve racial harmony."

HHC TSB

"I feel the moderators are bringing the people a little closer together through the awareness of each other. I don't feel moderators are effectively trained enough to bring into prospective the awareness of the other minorities. The soldier because he is not geographically stabilized should be aware of all minorities and their cultures to further enhance their awareness."

1st Lt. Anthony F. Krug
11th Co. TSB

"In my capacity at the moment, I'm in a departmental structure. We have advisory board meetings twice a month. I try to bring problems to the surface before they come to a boil. You have to change people's ideas that they have been raised with before racial problems can be fully understood."

CSM George H. Hamill
HHC TSB

"After going through the moderators course I have a better understanding of the problems that face many people. Most of the time just sitting down and talking the problems out, with each person giving their side of the argument, you can find out that it's not always racial problems — it's a lack of communication or misunderstandings. There is a lack of education telling what different races have went through to get where he is today. I think all NCOs should have the chance to go through the moderators course."

16 tested ways to encourage your child to use drugs

1. Never eat together as a family.
2. Never have family traditions which occur weekly, monthly or annually that children can look forward to.
3. Never listen to your children — talk at them but not with them.
4. Never let your children experience cold, fatigue, adventure, injury, risk, challenge, experimentation, failure, frustration, discouragement, etc.
5. Teach them to "do as I say - not as I do."
6. Leave the responsibility of spiritual training and development to the schools and church, but don't teach them at home.
7. When confronted with the choice of whether spending your time or money on a material pursuit or a family activity, always choose the material object.
8. Expect your child to achieve, to win, but don't teach him the principles of life, of living. Let him learn them on his own.
9. Take a "pick-up pill" in the morning followed by a "relaxant" at night.
10. Never correct your children appropriately but uphold them before the law, school, church, and friends as "not my little boy."
11. Undermine the role of the father in the home - never have the father's influence in the home - stay together for the sake of the children - or better yet, get a divorce.
12. Keep your home atmosphere in a state of chaos.
13. Always pick up after him - never let him take any responsibility.
14. Always solve his problems - make his decisions.
15. Be too busy with business, civic, or social life to spend time with your children. Or, if you do happen to have time, spend it together watching television.
16. Don't teach them while they're young. Wait until they are old enough to learn and decide right or wrong for themselves.

The black 24th

Infantry Museum houses the history of black regiment

BY BILL KLOEB

Infantry Museum visitors have the opportunity to view exhibits which show the history of the 24th Regiment — a unit made up of predominantly white officers and black enlisted men. The unit spent many years at Fort Benning during the period between the two World Wars.

Organized in 1869 at Fort McKavitt, a western outpost about 38 miles from what is now the city of San Antonio, Tex., the regiment was a major deterrent to Indian and Mexican raids and marauding bands of robbers who harassed settlers and immigrants during the settlement of the Southwest.

During this period the unit occupied several garrisons in the Texas and Mexico areas. All of the necessities of life except weapons and combat equipment had to be provided by the unit. Since they were living in isolated garrisons and camps, they had to be self supporting, depending on wild game and local crops for food, living quarters and clothing. When units were not in the field chasing Indians and renegades or on mapping expeditions, much of the garrison life was spent in scouting, hunting and fishing.

After 28 years of duty as border and security troops, the regiment was ordered to Fort Douglas at Salt Lake City, and for the first time, the entire unit was garrisoned at the same post. But this condition was not a lasting one. Two years later, in 1898, the regiment was ordered to Cuba to fight in the Spanish-American War.

During this war the unit participated in many separate operations and received national recognition when elements combined with the 6th, 13th and 16th Infantry Regiments forming the vanguard of Teddy Roosevelt's charge against the San Juan Blockhouse at Santiago.

While in Cuba, individuals of the regiment also gained glory individually and for the regiment when scores of soldiers volunteered and gave their lives while working in the yellow fever pest camps at Siboney.

The next campaign found the regiment fighting the Moro and Tuegegarao tribesmen during the Philippine Insurrection. They participated in actions at Santa Ana, Arayat, San Nocolas, Tayug, Bayombong and Salono, where the regimental commander accepted the surrender of the commanding general of the Tuegegarao.

After the Philippine campaigns the 24th spent the next few years at various posts and garrisons in the United States — broken only by a period of duty as garrison troops back in the Philippines.

The unit also saw duty in Montana at Madison Barracks and Fort Ontario, N. Y. and the Presidio of San Francisco, Calif. In 1917 it moved to border control duty at Camp Furlong, Columbus, N.M., where it spent the next few years chasing the Mexican bandit Pancho Villa.

In August of 1922 the regiment was transferred to Fort Benning, Ga., where conditions were not dissimilar to life on the border. A new post struggling for survival against the reduction of the Armed Forces brought about by the end of the First World War, Fort Benning offered a rugged existence. Money, quarters, equipment and even food were in short supply. Nevertheless, the unit settled down to make a home at the post which would be their home station for nearly 20 years.

The mission of the regiment was similar to the mission the 197th Infantry Brigade performs today — support training conducted at the Infantry School.

In the early days of the post this mission was complicated by multiple tasks required for every day living. Government quarters for families did not exist. Families of married personnel had to live in nearby Columbus, Ga., in tents on the post, or the soldier had to build his own quarters on the post.

Commissaries and the food service system for troop messes had limited operations. Mess sergeants were allocated sums to purchase food at civilian markets or grow it in gardens tended by soldiers. Laundry was a personal problem or, at best, organized in each company. Just about all personal services taken for granted in our modern Army were performed by individuals.

Troops from the 24th provided details to perform all these tasks and at the same time they accomplished their primary mission in support of the School. Just how well they accomplished the mission was attested by the availability of trained Infantry leaders during the massive build-up of the Army in preparation for World War II.

During World War II the 24th was the first Negro Regiment overseas, joining other units island hopping in the Pacific Theater of Operations. And in 1950, the unit saw action as an element of the 25th Infantry Division during the Korean War.

On Oct. 1, 1951, the regiment was inactivated and personnel were placed into other units in accordance with a new integration policy of the Department of Defense.

The history of the 24th Infantry Regiment parallels the history of the Negro in the U.S. Army. The feats and accomplishments of its men were as historic and notable as the history of the unit. There were the men who served well and faithfully without distinction and the men whose deeds and accomplishments have become a part of the history of the Army and the Nation.

From the time of its activation in 1869 to inactivation in 1951, many soldiers of the unit received awards and decorations for gallantry, bravery and heroism above and beyond the call of duty. The list

Sister Newman to help parents educate children for reception

Sister Mary Pierre Newman, S.S.N.D., of Baltimore, Maryland is the guest of the Catholic Activity Center at Fort Benning. Sister Pierre, a graduate of the College of Notre Dame of Maryland and Villanova University, is an experienced teacher, supervisor, and religious educator. Sister will be the guest speaker for the first of a five part series aimed at helping parents to educate their children for the reception of the Holy Eucharist.

Renewal in the Catholic Church strongly urges parents to prepare their own children for the reception of the sacraments of the Church. Since most parents need some help in doing this the Catholic Activity Center offers series of courses throughout the year to aid the parents in preparing their children for the sacraments.

Sister Pierre will present the first two sessions in this curent series. These are scheduled January 9, 9:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. at the Catholic Activity Center, Building 2611, Fort Benning. All parents are urged to attend one of these sesssions.

The Catholic Women of the Chapel were privileged to hear Sister Pierre Friday at their monthly meeting, when she spoke on "Christian Attitudes and Today's Woman." Sister is also involved in a retreat for the Catholic Youth of Fort Benning which is taking place this week-end at the Blessed Trinity Shrine Retreat House, Holy Trinity, Alabama.

Drug testing no longer required for soldiers 29 and older

FORT MONROE, Va. — Assistant Secretary of Defense (Health and Environment) Dr. Richard S. Wilbur today announced that beginning August 1, 1972, mandatory drug testing no longer will be required for members of the Armed Forces who are 29 years of age and older.

Results of the mandatory urinalysis testing program which began in June, 1971, indicate that drug abuse is concentrated in the age categories 28 years and below.

Because of the decrease in the number of individuals to be tested, Defense officials stated that the Military Department now can administer an additional million urine tests where epidemiological data show drug abuse to be at the highest risk. The cost per test is $2.50.

Commanders retain the option of including individuals from the older age groups in random urinalysis testing for drug abuse.

Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense (Drug and Alcohol Abuse) Brigadier General John K. Singlaub said the Military Departments have administered nearly two million urinalysis tests in the first year of the program.

General Singlaub noted that the data obtained from these tests have shown that an extremely small fraction of drug abuse in the Armed Services occurs among older personnel.

War hero

turns is presented the Medal of Honor or is held up to society as the model soldier. But most black soldiers who return still have similar battles to fight.

Sol Stern, editor of Ramparts Magazine, has written:

"If lack of skills and education drive young blacks to the army in the first place, the military system could turn out to be a contributor to social equity in civilian life. By providing vocational training that blacks would otherwise not receive, the army could send back men qualified for jobs and reduce the number of hard core unemployed.

On the other hand, the military teaches men to lead in combat situations. If ghetto conditions do not improve, if equal opportunity is not forthcoming, the black ex-soldiers provide excellent material for combat leadership in the cities."

Blacks represented about 12 per cent of total U.S. forces in Vietnam as of 1970. Black and white returnees face similar problems of getting a job, of picking up where they left off, of forgetting the war . . . of readjustment of society and realization of its changing face. What differs among blacks is attitude — about the Vietnam War, about the racial situation, about society.

Facts to keep in mind for those asking early out

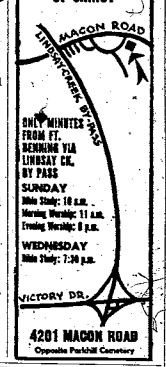
For those who are hoping to be released from active duty early for the purpose of accepting civilian employment should keep the following facts in mind. Paragraph 6-21a, AR 635-200 is quoted for information of all personnel:

Eligibility:

The member's service must not be essential to the mission of his unit of assignment.

It is not necessary that the employment be continuously active during all 12 months of a calendar year, but it must be regular, fulltime employment which, (a) contemplates a continuous period of at least 6 months or (b) offers employment for a continuous period of at least three months which will provide the individual's primary source of income for the twelve consecutive months immediately following separation, (c) will not be available to the individual if required to serve to normal ETS.

Scout Dogs to inactivate



The inactivation ceremony for the 51st Infantry Platoon, (Scout Dogs) 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry, 197th Infantry Brigade, Fort Benning, was held on Pioneer Court, Kelley Hill, Dec. 19, 10 a.m.

The platoon was activated in August, '67 and was assigned to Fort Benning in Aug. '67.

This was the only Scout Dog Platoon at Fort Benning and was assigned here to support the Infantry School by providing Scout Dogs and handlers for patrolling trainings.

The Platoons was also involved in the unit-of-choice recruiting for the 197th Infantry Brigade.

The Military Dog Committee, who train the dogs, will remain at Fort Benning.

WORLD WIDE BANKING
we've got night depositories all over the WORLD
Yes, our World Wide banking services give us night depositories all over the globe.
Here is how it works:
While we sleep, National Bank of Fort Benning customers are making deposits all over the world, by mail, or through the JUMPS program, whichever is most convenient. All of our full service banking programs are operated with the traveler in mind, so NBFB can be your bank, no matter where you live or are stationed, on no matter how long you might be away.
The programs were invented with the military in mind, but it works just as well for civilians who find their business takes them far from home.
It's a matter of convenience, and convenience is what people want in their banking. We ARE the "People Bank."

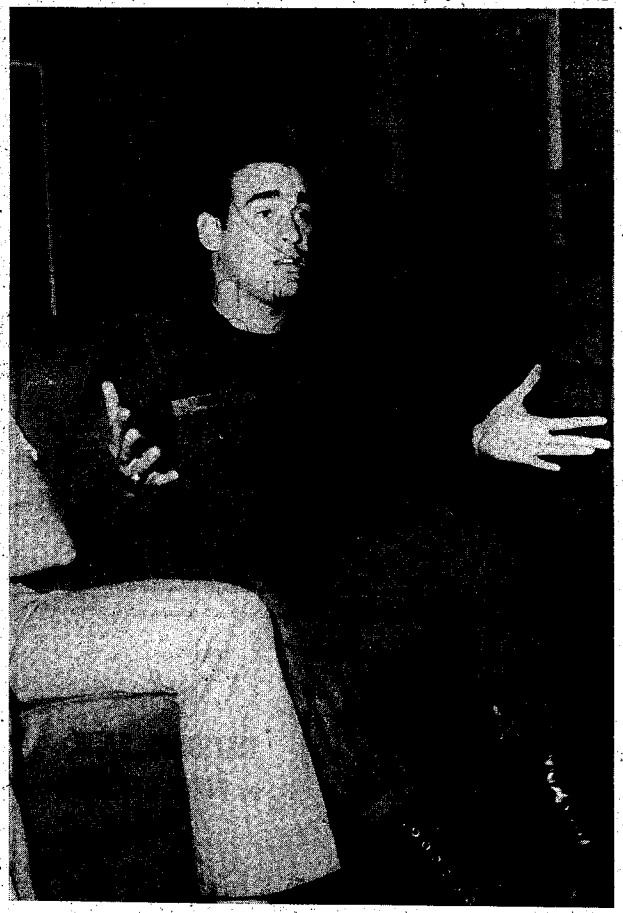
Human relations

Benning's RRCG establishes black-white link

A sound, well-coordinated program to foster better race relations in both military and civilian communities has made Fort Benning, a recognized example of what can be accomplished in this critical field.

The Benning race relations program was originated by Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott soon after he assumed command in September 1969. Realizing that decisive steps were necessary in establishing a better rapport between white and black soldiers, General Talbott ordered an extensive study to determine the degree of racial tension existing post-wide and possible solutions to identified problems.



Stating that false promises and meaningless appeasements to black soldiers were not conducive to good race relations, General Talbott called for forward-looking leadership to meet the problem head on and bare the nerves of racial prejudices.

"Each of us has the responsibility to insure that neither prejudice nor discrimination become a part of our military lives," General Talbott has said.

One of the first steps taken, and a major one, was the establishment of a Race Relations Coordinating Group (RRCG), believed to be the first of its kind in the Army. The RRCG is composed of six-full-time members, three black and white, both officer and enlisted. The personnel were chosen for their interest and experience in race relations and academic backgrounds.

The mission of the RRCG is to assist the Commanding General and the command in identifying potential areas of racial tension and taking necessary action to lessen or eliminate these tensions.

The outgrowth of the RRCG was the Race Relations Seminar, held post - wide in all units and all levels of command. The purpose of the seminars is to bring together soldiers of different and ethnic background to openly discuss race relations.

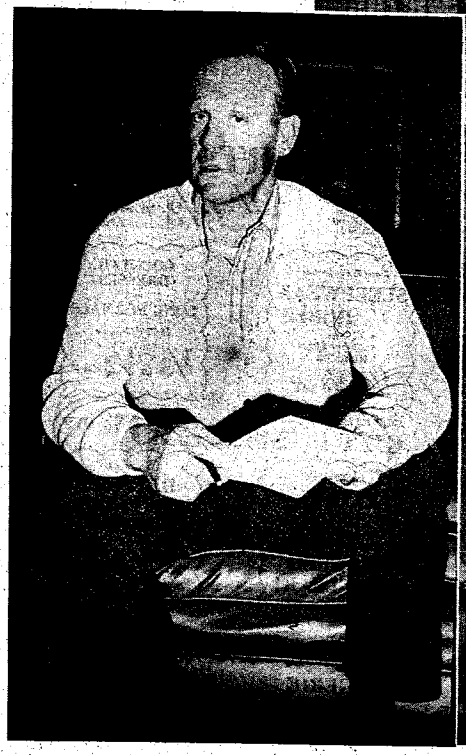
The seminar program has proved invaluable in identifying areas of potential and actual racial tension and electing recommendations for easing these tensions. Also, the free exchange of ideas has helped to open a positive avenue of communication between the black and white soldier. Black soldiers are frequently quite vocal in expressing their views and frustrations. And, the sessions often lead the white soldier into making a revealing introspection of his personal racial attitudes and prejudices.

The RRCG works closely with commanders in providing technical assistance in planning and conducting these seminars. In 1971 the RRCG recognized the need for trained seminar discussion leaders (moderators) on a unit level and began regular training classes, lasting 5½ days, to fulfill this need. Each unit moderator has the mission of assisting his commander in the area of race relations and equal opportunity.

The RRCG does not have the mission of taking all race relations and equal opportunity functions and placing them under one office, but each staff agency and command has responsibility for their own RR-EO activitites. To this end, the RRCG monitors complaints of a racial nature and provides the command with the technical advice needed to carry out RR-EO programs.

Through the seminar program it became apparent that a significant amount of mistrust existed between the black soldier and those in command positions, particularly senior NCO's and company grade officers. To combat this problem and also increase the understanding of the program, General Talbott directed the Infantry School's Leadership Department to develop a block of leadership instruction which would help sensitize those in command positions to racial problem as it exists. This introduction is given to all officers and noncommissioned officers in the Infantry School by a team of one black and one white officer.

In addition to the seminar, RR-EO programs have been developed in the following areas: Orientation briefings to familiarize all military personnel, dependents, and civilian personnel, newly assigned to or employed in any unit area with command policies on race relations and equal opportunity, to include command commitment to fairness and receptivity to complaints-grievances. An education program of required classes which will cover the history of minority contributions and minority-majority relations in America, an explanation of racially prejudiced attitudes and behavior, and the role of community institutions (e.g., education, business, government, church; in race relations. As of December 15, 1972 at Fort Benning had two complete teams of instructors trained by Defense Race Relations Institute. An indoctrination program which will insure an on-going development of understanding and compliance with Army and command policies requiring fair and equal treatment of all personnel. A rehabilitation program which establishes procedures to positively respond to allegations of unfair treatment, or irritants with possible overtones.



The requirement for continuous information on the post race relations program involves the Public Information Office of Fort Benning. The Information Section has prepared a number of fact sheets on housing discrimination, community activities and other areas of both military and civilian interest for the soldiers.

The programs and projects represent not so much heralded accomplishments, but a step forward by the Fort Benning community to meet the need for racial harmony and understanding.

But one thing can be safely said of Fort Benning's race relations programs — any success that the program experiences lies not in its accomplishments, but rather in the dynamic atmosphere which surrounds it. It is unending and ever growing. Its scope reaches allll the way from the office of the Commanding General to the dayroom of the smallest unit on post.

Fort Benning has every right to be proud of its giant step toward a far-reaching goal.

WOMEN'S NEWS

By JUDY JAKUBOWSKI

197th Inf. Bde.

The ladies of the 197th INFANTRY BRIGADE welcomed the Christmas season with a tea held at the Supper Club on Dec. 13. The event was hosted by the ladies of the 1st Bn. (Mech.), 58th Inf., 197th Inf. Bde.

Decorations made of holly and red Christmas balls were hanging from the chandeliers. A beautiful centerpiece of multi-level candles in an array of red and green adorned the table. The center of attention was an old-fashioned Christmas tree.

The highlight of the afternoon was a selection of Christmas carols sung by the 7th and 8th grade girls' chorus from Faith School.

Mrs. Edwin Kennedy, wife of the 197th Inf. Bde.'s Commanding Officer, welcomed everyone and wished them all a very Merry Christmas. She introduced Mrs. Charles O. Arnecke, Jr., whose husband recently took command of the 1st Bn., 29th Inf., 197th Inf. Bde., and Mrs. Robert Brumback, the new TDA Bn. Commander's wife.

Mrs. Robert Orkand thanked all the ladies of the 1st Bn. 58th Inf., 197th Inf. Bde. for their very special efforts in arranging the tea.

As the final event, drawings were made for a door prize and three raffle prizes consisting of home-made candy and a decorative item.

A very big thank you was extended to everyone who brought clothing or a gift for the Harris County Children's Service.

Ranger Department

The PATROLLING COMMITTEE'S last coffee in the year 1972 was held in the home of Mrs. Roger Bauer on Dec. 14th.

A variety of sweets were served which included brownies, white snowballs and thumbprint cookies along with coffee and hot apple cider.

Among the group of ladies were two guests: Mrs. Roger Bauer's twin sister, Mrs. Kenneth Holland; and Mrs. Donald W. Gluck.

After refresbments were served the business meeting commenced with Mrs. Frank Scott reminding everyone of the upcoming Christmas parties to be held during the month of December. Mrs. Henry Mitchell asked for donations of cookies and cupcakes to be used by the Community Helping Hands Committee for the Christmas parties they will be giving for underprivileged children. Mrs. John C. Grimsley volunteered to hold the January coffee in her home on Jan. 11.

On Dec. 17 the wives of THE BENNING RANGER COMMITTEE met at the home of Mrs. Gregory Wheeler, Bunkerhill Rd., Columbus.

After a short business meeting the ladies enjoyed Russian tea, coffee, Christmas cookies, tea sandwiches and an assortment of fruits.

Special guest at the coffee was Mrs. David Grange.

The Jan. coffee will be held at the home of Mrs. Karl Hurdle, Miller Loop, Fort Benning.

Command Maintenance Department

The officers and ladies of COMMAND MAINTENANCE DEPARTMENT started the Christmas season early at a party hosted by our department director, Col. and Mrs. Thomas Fitzpatrick, on Dec. 9 at their home. Festive decorations, notably a mirror tiled serving table with white candles and snowflakes, and food galore put everyone in the Christmas spirit. Fifteen pounds of shrimp and bottles of champagne disappeared very quickly. A very special thank you to our host and hostess for a wonderful eveoing.

Surprise was indeed the word at a baby shower given by Mrs. Norman Otis on Dec. 5 for Mrs. William Steele. The ladies enjoyed the refreshments and passing around the new baby gifts. Capt. and Mrs. Steele are happy to announce the birth of a daughter on Dec. 9.

CMD ladies gathered at the home of Mrs. William Higgins on Arrowhead Road on Dec. 13 for their monthly coffee. Hostesses were Mrs. Higgins and Mrs. Walter Howard. Holiday punch, fruitcake, and plum cake were eaten without regard to calories.

CMD ladies are proud to report that their Raggedy Ann and Andy plaques were a complete sellout within the first hour of the OWC Christmas Bazaar. All that work paid off and again thank you to all the ladies who worked to make the project successful.

4th Student Battalion

The ladies of the 4th STUDENT BATTALION met on Dec. 18 for their monthly coffee in the home of Mrs. Jackie Dawson, Wedgefield Court, Columbus. Mrs. Billy Duncan

Libraries offer hours of enjoyable reading

"Wake," Steve Allen: Memorable characters highlight Steve Allen's autobiographical novel of a large family's disintegration. The entire story unfolds at the funeral and wake of their 86-year-old mother in Chicago's early depression days.

"Hurricane Hunters," William C. Anderson: All the fury of a hurricane, the courage of the men who track the storm and the tragic consequences of those in its patb are caught up in this dramatic novel.

"Sadness," Donald Barthelme: The newest collection of Barthelme's stories looks at changes in people's lives; a man who develops a surrogate self to handle daily life, a woman freed of her husband and ready for a new life.

"Ears of the Jungle," Pierre Boulle: A novel of military intrigue set in Southeast Asia. Centers on the jungle ears, or listening posts, that stand conspicuously in the jungle.

"Waiting for the Morning Train," Bruce Catton: A Pulitzer Prize winning-historian, Bruce Catton fondly creates his boyhood in a small Michigan town at the turn of the century.

"Blackberry Winter," Margaret Mead: Anthropologist and extraordinary person Margaret Mead reviews her youth, education, and field work in the South Pacific. This account of private and professional life closes at the beginning of World War II.

"Miller's High Life," Ann Miller: The autobiography of Ann Miller, dancer, singer and movie star of the 1940's and 1950's proceeds through several marriages and some scandal to her success in Broadway's "Mame" in 1969 and 1970.

"Impossion Chain," Louis Nizer: The story covers the Julius and Ethel Rosenberg case from the time Mrs. Rosenberg's brother, who worked in atomic bomb laboratories, became involved, through the trials that ended in the Rosenbergs' death sentence for stealing atomic bomb secrets for the Russians.

"Surgeon's World," William Nolen, M.D.: The author of "The Making of a Surgeon", Dr. William Nolen tells of his years of practice at hectic Bellevue Hospital in New York. Covers why he moved to Minnesota, what his life and work there have been like.

"Time Element," John O'Hara: Over 30 short stoviously published and the others found among O'Hara's papers after his death. All believed to have been written during the 1940's.

"Transparent Things," Valdimir Nabokov: A new novella featuring Nabokov's sardonic comments on many things, along with the story of American intellectual Hugh Person, editor and killer.

"Persian Boy," Mary Renault: A novel about the last years of Alexander the Great, narrated by the Persian boy who is his friend, lover, and confidante.

Hospital gets new shelter

Are you tired of waiting to see the doctor? Are you soaked by rain waiting for the bus? Look for a new addition to Martin Army Hospital Annex. "Charging Charlie Company", 43rd Engineer Battalion (Construction), has begun the groundwork and "come to the rescue.

In front of the Annex is a large concrete pad designed to let the soldier rest his weary bones and keep dry, the Pick Up Point was built by the 2nd Construction Platoon, C Company, under the guidance of Engineer Staff Sgt. Curtis N. Baker.

Spc Edward Spaulding, Co. A, 43rd Eng. Bn., is operating a bucket loader to remove debris.

Plans for a cleaner world

The Directorate of Facilities Engineering has announced that general refuse collections in family housing areas will be changed from twice to once per week effective Jan. 1, with no notice of the actual day of collection.

This is due to recent changes of policy on pickups resulting from personnel being restricted to short pick-up schedules have been temporarily cancelled. The patient co-operation of all personnel involved is requested.

In an effort to offset the labor problem, a new collection technique will be tested in the Boulton Heights area. It consists of a general issue of 32-gallon size plastic bags which, when set out on the pick-up day, will be collected in half the time of the present method.

It is expected that this will reduce the number of cans required, keep the family housing refuse will be cleaner without washing. This will provide another means of collection for the occupants to dispose of their general trash, storage for leaves and grass and other debris, and decrease the refuse collection costs. Another benefit will be the elimination of the best will be made when the bags become available.

Also in January, the first phase of the plan to fly housing collections.

The administrative and troop areas will not be affected by the planned changes.

Historical Society plans meeting

The Fort Benning Historical Society will conduct its first open meeting at 7:30 p.m. on Jan. 17, in the Officers' Wives' Club Lounge. The guest speaker will be Lt. Col. Dick D. Grube, curator of the Infantry Museum, who will address the value and importance of the Societies' effort as part of the new Infantry Museum. All interested personnel are welcome to attend.

The Main Post Service Club will sponsor a dance on Jan. 28 from 7 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. Music will be furnished by the "Liberation" band from Atlanta, a nine piece group that plays rock, soul and all types of music. Something for everyone. All military personnel and their ladies are invited to attend. Dress casual. For more information call 545-6404 or 1375.

'Shavetail' comes from the old Cavalry troops

By Lee M. Hunt
and Robert A. Winters

The newest second lieutenant or the youngest or newest rank, grade, or most recent arrival in a group has for many years been referred to as a "Shavetail." There are several possible sources of this term.

Shaveling in early English was a term used contemptuously to describe a young man. Later it referred to the clergy who were clean - shaven while the laity were wearing beards. The term also referred to the shaved spot on the heads of some orders of monks.

There was in the U.S. Cavalry the practice of cutting a bell-shaped notch or notches in the tails of the animals belonging to the various troops of a cavalry regiment. Troop "A", one bell, Troop "B" two bells, and son on. These bells were cut with a razor-like knife, thus shavetails were the newest animals in the troop.

In the great days of the U.S. Cavalry, daring the Indian Wars, the troops of these regiments were often on detached, almost isolatedduty. When someone received a commission he would have a set of epaulets made. Being a great distance from supplies of such a nature, the new officer would volunteer the tail of his shirt to make the epaulets or badges. Thus, shaving the tail of the shirt made him the shavetail of the outfit.

WHEN THE LEGENDS DIE — P G — is a carefully constructed, very moving and honest study of a young Indian's (Frederic Forrest) progression along the rodeo circuit from neophyte to practiced rider to casual killer and finally to the point where he must desperately backtrack upon himself and try to right what went wrong. Richard Widmark as an old rodeo hand rescues Forrest from the reservation and sets about teaching him all the tricks of bronc riding. Profanity could offend some.

THE DEADLY TRAP — PG — deals with an American mathematician (Frank Langella) who has fled the 'organization' and taken refuge in a publishing job in Paris with his wife (Faye Dunaway) and two children. But all is not well; husband and wife seem alienated, the husband is preoccupied, the wife mentally disturbed; an air of menace overhangs the household. And then the children disappear.

TOYS ARE NOT FOR CHILDREN — R — At 19 Marcia Forbes still treasures her dolls and toys above anything else except her thwarted love for her father, Peter Lightstone whom Mother Fran Warren had thrown out when Forbes was a child. The girl gets a job in a toy store and clerk Harlan Cary Poe immediately falls in love with her. After an argument with her mother, Forbes cannot assume the role of a wife as she goes deeper into the world of the emotionally disturbed. Overtones of sex may offend some.

THERE'S A GIRL IN MY SOUP — R — Peter Sellers plays a TV personality who has a roving eye for the girls. An accidental encounter with Goldie Hawn, who is having some free-love domestic problems with mate Nicky Henson blossoms into unexpected love and compassion between the unlikely pair. At the fadeout Miss Hawn is (probably) going back to Henson because as she says, 'He needs me', while Sellers simply has gone straight. Sexual overtones and profanity may be offensive to some.

STAR SPANGLED GIRL — G — based on Neil Simon's hit play, concerns a patriotic small town girl (Sandy (Duncan) who moves to the big city and becomes involved with two underground newspaper publishers (Tony Roberts and Todd Susman). Duncan, a patriotic swimmer, captivates Susman so that he can't work for love of her. Roberts hires Duncan as a secretary, in a vain attempt to keep Susman at his typewriter, and learns that it's he who's really in love with her and she with him. It's a comedy riot when the boys in the underground are unearthed by a STAR SPANGLED GIRL.

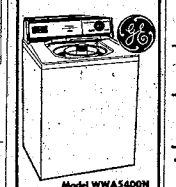
Reputation built with construction

The soldiers of the 43rd Engineer Battalion (Construction) have built their reputation upon their constructive efforts such as the Volar Partition Project, Red Mill Creek Culvert System, and the paving of Sightseeing-River Road Complex.

Late on the afternoon of Dec. 20, a call was received by the battalion directing them to utilize their "construction" equipment for sme meaningful "destruction." Building 1691, which had burned the week before had been released by the Fire Inspectors and the area needed to be cleaned up and left presentable.



Reacting to this mission from the Directorate of Facilities Engineering, Bravo Company was mobilized from their holiday schedule and all the dump truck effort of the battalion task organized to support the removal of the debris.

Early on the morning of Dec. 21, bulldozers began knocking down and crushing the burned structure and as the rain and cold winds continued to buffet the troops, some 150 loads of debris were removed to the sanitary land fill. By the middle of the morning on Dec. 22, the area was clear, washed down, and swept off.

is a long one, extending from Sgt. Benjamin Brown and Cpl. Isaiah Mays who were presented the Medal of Honor in 1890 to PFC William Thompson and Sgt. Cornelius H. Charlton who earned the same medal while with the unit in Korea.

The list of former members whose deeds have shaped the destiny of the Negro and the Nation is equally long. There was a Maj. Dwight D. Eisenhower, who commanded the 1st Battalion in 1923 and later became General of the Army and President of the United States. There was a young lieutenant named Benjamin O. Davis Jr., a platoon leader in Co. F on his first assignment after graduation from the United States Military Academy. Peach Bowl Marathon

Jon Nolan

Some of the 200 plus runners receive final instruction prior to the start of the 1972 Atlanta marathon.

Fort Benning walks off with top honors

"Who are those guys and what do they do?" Those words echoed through Atlanta's Westminster High School Field House during the Peach Bowl Marathon awards ceremonies as a group of Fort Benning soldiers walked off with top honors in the grueling 26 miles 385 yard marathon, December 30.

The Fort Benning entries consisted of Sp4 Don Kennedy "Retired"; a graduate student at Appalachian State University, Boone, N.C. and a former member of the Ranger Department's Orienteering Team, Capt. Ed Strabel and Sp4 Don Stanley of the Orienteering Team and Capt. Greg Camp, an Advance Course student.

The small Fort Benning Team running in a 200-man field including teams from Ohio State University, University of Georgia, Canada, and 22 states easily out-scored the other teams to take the first place team title as Don Kennedy won the race with a time of 2:32:29.5, Capt. Greg Camp running his first marathon placed 9th with a time of 2:41:48, Capt. Ed Strabel 15th 2:49:25 and Sp4 Don Stanley placed 22nd with a time of 2:54:45. In addition to the team trophy each member received an individual trophy and Don Kennedy received a Peach Bowl Watch for winning.

Kennedy's time was more than three minutes slower than his sixth place finish a year ago. "It was a great deal hotter out there than it should be for a marathon. We also had to contend with the heavy traffic and dogs chasing runners," Kennedy said. The heat proved to be an important factor as the race progressed. Capt. Jon Nolan and Sp5 Bill Mellars of the Orienteering Team passed out Gatorade to the Fort Benning runners and to other top contenders but several outstanding runners wilted in the heat.

Following the race the Orienteers returned to Fort Benning to prepare for the up-coming Orienteering season. On Saturday the 13th of January the team will be offering an informal clinic and orienteering course at Walter Hill for everyone interested in Orienteering. For more information contact the Ranger Department, 545-6021.

Runners take a hard earned rest following the marathon. (Front to rear) Don Kennedy, winner of marathon, Fort Benning, Capt. Ed Strabel, finish 15th, and Eddy Leddy, East Tenn. State, University and Olympic Steeple chase runner, finished 7th.

"Meeting people is my thing."

Sergeant Cornell Russell is a drill sergeant. He's a friendly guy. He likes people and they like him.

"I chose this job because I always wanted to work with people. When I came into the Army the drill sergeants who trained me were really enthusiastic and they gave me that same enthusiasm.

"One of the great things about the Army is that you meet a variety of people from all walks of life. Every day you meet somebody new and interesting and you get to know them and like them. To me that's important.

"I've worked hard at my job and I'm proud to say that I have always had 100% graduation in my classes. I feel good about that."

The Army is giving Sergeant Russell plenty of opportunity for job satisfaction.

The Army gives a man a lot of other opportunities, too. Job and educational opportunities. With the hundreds of jobs in the Army, there's bound to be a dozen or so that will give you the kind of challenge you're looking for.

And travel opportunities in Europe, Korea, Hawaii, Alaska, Panama. And the time to get to know a country the way no tourist ever could.

The opportunity to save money on everyday things. Like free housing, dental and medical care. Commissary and post exchange privileges. Low-cost life insurance, to name a few.

Your Army Career Counselor has a whole book of job, duty station and training opportunities just waiting for you.

He'll give you lots of other reasons for staying in.

SPORTS

BY ROGER PAVEY

Caught within the darkness of a New Year's night, bowl pageantry, and popping champagne corks the sports world lost a legend somewhere between life and Managua, Nicaragua.

Roberto Walker Clemente, aging superstar of baseball's Pittsburgh Pirates and four others were killed Sunday as their cargo plane crashed off the island of Puerto Rico, as they attempted to fly food and supplies to the Managuan earthquake disaster area. Clemente was serving as head of the Managuan relief effort set up to aid that stricken South American country.

What can a guy say about another human being that meant so many things to so many people? I guess I can only relate what Roberto Clemente meant to me. I moved to Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania during the summer of 1965, but a Pirate fan I was not. I still owed my allegiance to the Boston Red Sox and I could never see myself rooting for any other team, especially one in the National League.

But Pittsburgh is a funny place, it's large by population standards but smalltown in its attitudes. This is best reflected by the Pirates' team of announcers at the time Bob Prince and Jim Woods and Don Hoak. They were so biased that at first they made me sick. I couldn't believe my ears. But what was even more incredible was that everyone in town listened to the ball games and those three unbelievable announcers. They made Clemente and the Pirates seem real, human but most of all they loved their team.

Perhaps Clemente's biggest fan was Prince himself. He seemed to be hypnotized every time number 21 took the field. He couldn't wait until his Bobby came up to bat. I guess he, like everyone else, thrived on the electricity that Clemente seemed to generate. But I was always amazed at the crowd's reaction to this man. He always took his time in getting to the plate and during the seemingly endless stroll he gave the crowd their chance to chant "Arriba, Arriba, Arriba," the Clemente war cry. He always responded in a spectacular way, even his foul balls brought fans to their feet. He was the beart of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Great One as he was affectionately called came to the Pirates in 1954 by way of the minor league draft. Branch Rickey, the then general manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, tried to hide Clemente on their Montreal farm club roster, but Pittsburgh picked him up for the $4,000 price. Rickey later said of the transaction, "the worst deal I ever made."

A permanent fixture in Pittsburgh's right field Clemente went on to rap out over 3,000 hits and was named to the National League All-Star Team in every year since 1960. A perennia golden glove award winner he thrilled crowds in old Forbes Field many times with his cannon like arm. In his later years no one dared chance the arm on "The Great Roberto."

Always a winner Clemente never got the publicity he deserved. Perhaps living in the city he loved was his undoing for Pittsburgh does not have the glamour of a New York or Los Angeles and many of Clemente's feats never got much national play.

After leading the 1960 Pirates to their first National League title in 33 years the men from the steel city faced the powerful New York Yankees in the World Series. The see-saw series was won on the 10th inning heroics of Bill Mazeroski and the fact that Roberto Clemente hit safely in all seven games went unnoticed as Maz collected all the glory.

It took the Pirates 11 years to reach the World Series again but this time it was all Clemente. He once again hit safely in all seven games as he led te Bucs to a stunning upset over the Baltimore Orioles. It was here, 17 years after he first donned a Pirate uniform that this man received the true recognition that he deserved. He was their leader, the one the Pirates looked up to when they were down two games to none. Clemente responded by saying "Don't worry, I'll pick you up when we get back to the rug." He held true to his word as the underdog Pirates won three in a row and went on to win the tense seventh game and the World Championship on Clemente's 4th inning homer.

The four-time batting champ won the MVP award in 1966 after enjoying his finest year as a major leaguer. Clemente batted .317, slugged 29 homers and drove in 119 runs. Not noted for his power Clemente proved to his critics that he could hit the long ball if the team needed it. He always left most of the homeruns to the

Co. A defeats arch rival 64-34

The game billed as "The Battle of the Undefeated," in the HQ COMD Basketball League, was played at the new Post Gymnasium, Dec. 14. Coming into the game, Company A and Company D sported undefeated records of 6-0 and 5-0, respectively. But, at the final buzzer, the Orange Wave of Co. A had overwhelmingly defeated their arch rival.

The Wave made their intentions known by taking command of the game early in the first quarter. Under the coaching of James Tanner, the Orange clad men maintained a frantic pace, wearing down the opposing team to a 64 to 34 loss; boosting Co A's record to 7-0. The victorious hoopsters were led by guard PFC Bill Atkinson with 20 points, and forward Pvt. Theroniand Billingslea with 17 points.

After action evaluations of ball handling, shooting, and team effort, confirm that the Orange Wave is the team to beat at the play-offs. Company A's next scheduled contest is Dec. 27 against 16th Company at the New Post Gymnasium.

RED CROSS The good neighbor.

Air used to be 60 per cent cleaner

That's how the 1930's song went. That song was talking about forests, the trees and animals; the air and water; the moon and stars and love.

Well, about the only thing left in that category is love — and that can get expensive sometimes, too.

In the 1930's the air and water were approximately 60 per cent cleaner than they are now.

Today to get cleaner water takes time effort and money. Clean air will take even more.

You can't see the forests for the litter, and oil spills and dangerous litter is taking its toll among the animals and birds.

It's easy to leave the problems to the government, but in the United States, the government is the people. If the people don't care about polution, the hands of the government are tied.

YOU'RE RIGHT, HE DOES HAVE CAVITIES IN THE VENTRICLES. WE MADE FOR HIM LAST WEEK.

The individual cannot do the whole cleanup job by himself, but he can lend and show his support to those governmental representitives who are trying to legislate for a cleaner life.

But most important, the individual can avoid adding to the pollution problem and he can clean up the small area around him.

This is a new year, let's try to make, if not a new world, at least a cleaner and better world to live in.

power boys, but he always seemed to come through when the Bucs were down. He always started the winning rally or was in some way a part of it. He was charactertistic of the Pirates famous come-from-behind victories. They seemed to best reflect his personality and how he played the game.

I'll never forget the never ending hope in Bob Prince's raspy voice as he anxiously waited for Clemente to do something — anything. It wasn't so much that Clemente led the Pirates to another victory, but how hard he tried. He attacked opposing pitchers, runners and the game with a kind of frenzied style, that was absent from any other man.

He was a true showman, a crowd pleaser, he was the guy the fans went to see, the guy they counted on when the chips were down, Roberto Clemente was the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Sure, the Pirates will have a team in 1973 and they'll also have a new right fielder, they may win, they may lose, but whatever they do Roberto Clemente, the great one, will be there. He is as much a part of the Pirates as their name. He will never be far from the minds of those who knew him, but even more important he will not be forgotten by those like me, who never got the chance to meet him.

Yes, opening day 1973 will begin on a sad note, for someone else will be starting in right field, Three Rivers Stadium, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania for the first time in 19 years. It may be fitting for the over 55,000 fans who are sure to be there to all stand up and sing together "Old Lang Syne" for Roberto Clemente will never be forgotten.

ROD AND GUN CLUB Notes

By BILL KLOEB

The awards for the Rod and Gun Club big deer contest will be made at the club lounge at 7:30 p.m., December 12. All members are invited to attend.

Ridley Bell, host of the WRBL-TV program, Sportsman Lodge and a winner of the Georgia Sportsman Federation communications conservation award will make the presentations.

Three Model 1100 Remington automatic shotguns will go to members who participated in the club contest. One gun will go to the hunter who registered the heaviest deer and the winner of the third gun will be selected from those members who registered a deer in the contest but did not win one of the other two prizes.

The winner of the third gun must be present at the club at the time of the awards.

MSgt. Julian Guzman, Airborne Department currently leads in the antler contest with a ten-point buck weighing 130-pounds. SFC (ret.) William Malueg registered the heaviest deer of the season. His entry tipped the club scales at 170-pounds. Members still have a few days to top these entries. The Alabama deer season will not close until after Jan. 10.

Call 545-6028 for more information concerning the deer contest.

HALF PRICE MEMBERSHIPS

Personnel who arrived on post lately and had misgivings about putting out the money required for a full membership in the Rod and Gun Club can join now at bargain prices. Membership have been reduced for the rest of the 1972-73 year which ends on March 31. A regular membership is now $2, a dependent membership is 50 cents and a limited membership is $4.

All retired and active duty military personnel and Department of Defense civilians working on post are eligible for regular membership. Dependents of these people are eligible for the dependent membership. Other individuals may be authorized limited membership. For clarification of membership eligibility call Tom McCullough, club custodian at 545-6028.

Regular members and their dependents enjoy a multitude of privileges and conveniences available only to club members. They have use of club trap and skeet ranges, archery ranges, snack bar and lounge, the short order lunch counter, camping facilities on the club grounds, rental of boats, electric motors and trailers and a convenient place to purchase fishing bait and fishing and hunting equipment at reasonable rates. They are also able to enter the various contests the club holds throughout the year.

Limited members may use the club skeet, trap and archery ranges and the clubhouse facilities.

The club also promotes and supports ecology and conservation programs on post by providing man power and funds. Membership in the organization is a painless way of aiding in these worthwhile efforts.

DECEMBER FISHING DERBY

The Rod and Gun Club holds a fishing derby each month of the year. Prizes are awarded to the member who registers the largest catfish, bream or bass at the club during the month.

Rules of the contest are simple but rigidly enforced. The member must register at the club each day he intends to compete in the contest. He must catch his fish at one of the ponds on post and bring it back to the club for weighing and entry in the contest. Fish caught after the close of business at the club may be registered the next day.

Lloyd F. Smith, 2068 Mason Street won the bream contest for December. His entry weighed in at one-pound, one-ounce. Smith took the fish from Kings Pond while using a pink worm and a cane pole.

First Sergeant (ret.) John Zebreski, 4005 Bowen Street won the bass entry with a four-pound, four-ounce catch from Kings Pond. He was using a black flip-tailed plastic worm for bait.

Staff Sergeant (ret.) Mathew Sypniewski, 3014 Colonial Drive registered a six-pound, eleven-ounce catfish taken from Kings Pond to win the catfish contest. Sypniewski was using shrimp for bait.

197th Inf. gets bakers

Each of the 197th Infantry Brigade's four battalions is richer by one qualified baker as a result of the brigade's latest pastry school graduation.

The graduates were PFC Ronald D. Owens of HSB, 2nd Bn., 10th Arty., a native of Richmond, Va., Pvt. Dennis E. O'Hara of HHC, 1st Bn., 28th Inf., a native of Davenport, Fla. PFC James A. Ralston of Co. H, 69th Ar., 197th Spt. Bn., a native of Mt. Vernon, Ohio and PFC Danny J. Smith of HHC, 1st Bn., 58th Inf., a native of Mobile, Ala.

Each of the men successfully completed a three-week basic course in pastry baking. The course is scheduled and taught by the 197th Infantry Brigade.

Maj. Ronald L. Formulak, S-4 (logistics officer) for the brigade, addressed the group briefly and told them, "You will be called on to use your baking skills to give soldiers a choice of desserts with their meals."

Each graduate received a certificate of completion marking the occasion.

While still students of the pastry school the four baked a number of holiday cakes, pies, tarts, turnovers, cookies and specialties. Much of this was used for a children's Christmas party sponsored by the 1st Bn., 29th Inf. on Dec. 16, while another quantity was presented to the Honor Graduate, PFC Smith, for consumption by his fellow "Patriot" soldiers.

The four graduates proved the worth of their talents in a post-graduation coffee and pastry gathering with visitors when they quickly devoured two pies and some tarts and cookies.

Civilians play important role in MVA

FORT MONROE, Va. — Civilian employes play an important role in the Modern volunteer Army (MVA). The manner in which both military personnel and civilians support this volunteer concept will greatly influence its success.

The emphasis upon the contribution of the civilian to the MVA was reiterated by Gen. Ralph E. Haines, Jr., Commanding General CONARC, who designated professionalism, service attractiveness, and public esteem as areas in which civilians can assist in moving the Army to a volunteer basis. In all these areas the civilian manager and civilian employes have a role to play.

Many civilian employes come into close, daily contact with military personnel. The attitude and outlook of civilians employed in medical facilities, commissaries, service clubs, finance offices, and other service-type functions have an impact on the young soldier. Prompt and courteous treatment of the "customer" at these facilities is an important factor in influencing soldier attitude.

Cooperation between civilians and soldiers in the work situation is vital. Though one man wears a uniform and the other does not, both are involved in the same effort and working toward the same goals. The one-team concept is not a myth — it is a reality.

Beginning with the Reception Station, and extending throughout his career, today's soldier has contact with Army civilians. By their performance on the job and through their contacts in their communities, civilian supervisors and employes can contribute greatly to the image of Army as a dedicated professional organization; an organization in which young men will be proud to serve.

"A good manager is a man who isn't worried about his own career but rather the careers of those who work for him. Don't worry about yourself. Take care of those who work for you and you'll float to greatness on their achievements."—H.S.M. Burns.

WANTED
PROFESSIONAL
REAL ESTATE SALESMEN

We are expanding with RECOA. We need four additional Sales People. Jefferson Company, one of the oldest and most progressive Real Estate Companies in Columbus and Alabama for Jefferson Co., in Phenix City, are the only representatives in this area for RECOA, Inc.

RECOA, INC. IS A coast-to coast net work of Realtors. It is a professional organization helping to locate families nationally. . . A Progressive Organization, creating modern ideas for the Realtor. Statistics show that over 35% of the families who move each year will relocate outside their original home area. RECOA helps Jefferson Company serve these families—RECOA, INC. offers our sales force an opportunity for extra income.

We are not seeking PART TIME SALESMEN or any one who would be satisfied with a $10,000.00 DOLLAR ANNUAL INCOME. We want only those willing to become full time Realtors and earn from 12,000 to 35,000 dollars plus have the opportunity for additional income by being associated with our company. It is not necessary for you to already have a Real Estate license. If you meet our requirements, we will help prepare you to obtain a license. For appointment for confidential interview call

IN MEMORIAM

The birth date of the Reverend Martin Luther King, 15 January, will be an opportunity for all Americans to express their respect in memory of one of our outstanding leaders.

Doctor King was a man of peace. His wise counsel and great faith in the dignity of every man were an inspiration to mankind all over the world. His untimely and tragic death serves to remind us of our responsibility to seek liberty and justice for all.

In observance of Doctor King's birth date special memorial services will be conducted in all chapels at Fort Benning and in Marshall Auditorium, Infantry Hall. I join with you in these observances as together we work to achieve the ideals which Doctor King perpetuated.

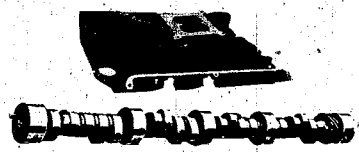
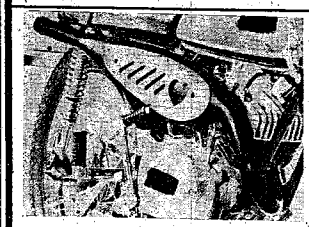
New books available at post libraries

The following is a representative listing of new books available at the Special Services Libraries:





"On the Way to the Future" Hans Schwarz, 1972: A Christian view of eschatology in the light of current trends in religion, philosophy and science. In this book Dr. Schwarz presents a Christian view of the future. He examines such exchatological themes as death and resurrection, heaven and hell, and God's love and judgment in light of Old and New Testament teachings. The importance of this study of eschatology is that it presents a confident, but realistic hope for the future based on God's love for the world.

"A God Within" Rene' Dubos 1972: A positive philosophy for a more complete fulfillment of human potentials. This important and eloquent statement, reflecting the powerful thinking of a world-famous scientist, offers a rational hope in a time which tends toward despair. If we continue to make choices for our future only, in relation to negative issues such as pollution and over-population, says Dr. Dubos, our civilization will become increasingly dreary and meaningless. Instead, we must learn to cultivate the positive values that exist in man's nature and in the external world.

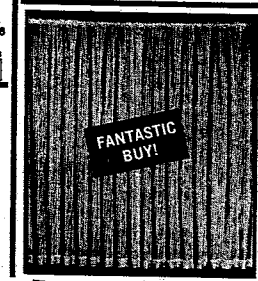
For any Hooker tuner in our stock!
HOOKER HI-PERFORMANCE EXHAUST TUNER
You can now get out of the two-stroke "racket" with the revolutionary new Hooker Exhaust Tuner. Functions at maximum efficiency with the exclusive "tuned-core" muffler in place. The Hooker Exhaust Tuner reduces noise while the dyno-tested shape increases horsepower and torque up to 25%. Comes with all the hardware necessary to mount it.
THE NEW EDELBROCK VEGA "ULTRA FLOW" MANIFOLD



This new two-plane Edelbrock design is built to accept the stock Rochester 2-bbl carburetor, Part No. 7047254 for automatic transmissions and Part No. 7047257 for stick transmissions, normally found on the 110-horsepower Vega engine, incorporating distribution and mixture velocity features found in the basic Edelbrock Torquelo, the VG-1 has shown measureable reductions in acceleration elapsed times, even with automatic transmission-equipped cars.
Intended as a direct replacement of stock intake manifolding, the VG-1 will accept all original equipment pieces such as vacuum lines, hot water connections, etc. Another of Edelbrock emission-oriented manifold designs, the VG-1 is a simple bolt-on unit that shows an immediate performance gain. No installation kit is required.

Memorial service for Dr. King held in 11 locations

The anniversary of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s birth date will be observed Monday at Fort Benning. Special memorial services will be held in eleven locations.

From 11:45 a.m. until 12:15 p.m. on Jan. 15, services will be held in the following locations: The Infantry Center Protestant Chapel, Main Post Catholic Chapel, Martin Army Hospital Chapel, the Post Stockade Chapel, and Sightseeing Road Chapel.

Services will also be held at Indianhead Road Chapel, Harmony Church Chapel, the 197th Infantry Brigade Chapel, the 93ist Engineer Group Chapel, and the 43rd Engineer Battalion Chapel, as well as Marshall Auditorium in Infantry Hall.

The services will include a memorial litany and comments by one of the chaplains. At the Marshall Auditorium service, Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott will deliver the Commanding General's message.

Mrs. Jimmy Thomas, who sang at the funeral of Dr. Martin Luther King in 1968, will sing a solo at the Marshall Auditorium service. Mrs. Thomas is a member of the Ebenezer Baptist Church in Atlanta.

King was assassinated in Memphis Tenn., on Apr. 4, 1968, while he was helping sanitation workers on strike.

Thousands of people mourned the death of a great leader, and black people the world over felt his loss acutely.

Dr. King, born in Atlanta in 1929, became the third black recipient of the Nobel Peace Prize in 1964. At the age of 35, he was also the youngest man ever to receive the prize.

He graduated from Morehouse College in Atlanta in 1948. In 1947, he had been ordained in Ebenezer Baptist Church, founded by his grandfather, and entered the ministry.

In 1951, Dr. King received a bachelor of divinity degree from Crozer Theological Seminary in Chester, Pennsylvania. He was elected president of the student body there, and received a prize for excellence in scholarship.

In 1953, Dr. King married the former Coretta Scott of Marion, Ala. In 1955 he earned his doctor of philosophy degree from Boston University, while pastoring the Dexter Avenue Baptist Church in Montgomery, Ala.

In December 1955, he organized a landmark bus boycott in Montgomery in protest of the segregation of city buses. He led the boycott, which lasted 381 days, and managed to keep Montgomery blacks united and non-violent the entire time.

The boycott began when Rosa Parks, a black

NRI-ROTC

Department open after last month's fire

"We are open for business." Those were the words of Col. William R. Guthrie, director of the Nonresident Instruction (NRI)-ROTC Affairs Department, one month after a fire destroyed almost all the correspondence course instructional material.

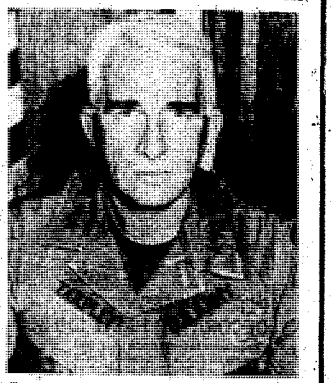
The fire destroyed all the NRI-ROTC Affairs Department's lesson solutions and examination booklets. It also destroyed the majority of the Officer Basic and Advanced Courses material, 300,000 collated correspondence course packets, 75 mail bags and an expensive envelope stuffing machine.

The NRI-ROTC Affairs Department was seriously hampered by the fire but has not been put out of commission, Col. Guthrie said that file copies of the courses and the student records were not destroyed, and that subcourses in the Noncommissioned Officers Education System (NCOES) program and the precommission course were in a different warehouse and are available on a limited basis.

Col. Guthrie said that by 4 p.m. on the day following the fire, printing priorities had been established and plans to bring the department back to full scale operation had been finalized.

He explained that the priorities had gone first to the printing of lessons and examination and then to the printing of the subcourses. The printing is being done by the Army Field Printing Plant at Fort Benning and by private companies in the southeastern United States. Col. Guthrie said the department has set up suspense dates for the printers and the printers have been most cooperative in meeting these suspense dates.

All subcourses, solutions, and examinations had been revised prior to the printing of any material. By the end of the first week, subcourses were mailed out and printed material began arriving in quantity from the Army Field Printing Plant and contract printing. By Jan. 3, some 60 subcourses had been received, collated and were ready for mailing. There were also 150 solutions and examinations reprinted, and placed on shelves ready for mailing.



The Infantry School's Army correspondence course (ACC) program has 32,000 students enrolled. Gus Luckett, deputy of the correspondence course program, said that between 1600 and 2200 students

Fort Benning will get a new commander on Feb. 16 when Maj. Gen. Thomas M. Tarpley succeeds Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, who is being reassigned. Gen. Tarpley is currently commanding officer of the Delta Regional Assistance Command in the Republic of Vietnam. A veteran of over 28 years service, he holds a number of awards and medals, including the Legion of Merit (with three Oak Leaf Clusters), Bronze Star Medal with "V" Device (with Oak Leaf Cluster), Air Medal (18 awards), Combat Infantryman Badge (2nd Award), and Army Aviator Badge.

DFAE changes refuse pick-up

The Directorate of Facilities Engineering has announced that general refuse collections in family housing areas are reduced to once per week, effective Jan. 1, with no notice of the actual day of collection.

This is due to recent changes of policy on prisoners and personnel hiring, resulting in a shortage of labor. Regular pick-up schedules have been temporarily cancelled. The patient cooperation of all personnel involved is requested.

In an effort to offset the labor shortage, a new collection technique will be tested in the Bouten Heights area. It consists of a general issue of 32-gallon size plastic bags which, when set out on the curb, can be collected in half the time of the present method.

It is expected that this will reduce the number of cans required, keep the cans clean without washing, provide additional trash storage for leaves and grass and other debris, and decrease the refuse collection costs. Announcement of the actual beginning of the test will be made when the bags become available.

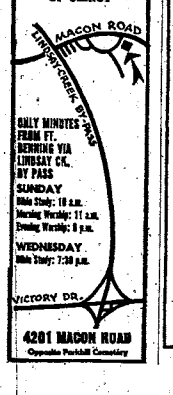
Radio-TV gets new member

The Radio and Television Department of the USAIC Information Office, added a new member to its staff recently. His name is Specialist Four Charles R. Farrell.

Farrell lives in Columbus, Georgia and joined up as a until-of-choice enlistee for the 13th Public Information Detachment, 93ist Engineering Group, Fort Benning, where he is guaranteed 16 months of active duty here.

Farrell came here after completing 10 weeks of Advanced Individual Training at the Defense Information School, Fort Benjamin Harrison, where he was taking the Information Specialist Journalism class.

Farrell was assigned to the radio and television department due to his extensive broadcast background at several local radio stations in the Columbus, Phenix City, Fort Benning area.



He went to Kendrick High School, Columbus, and graduated in 1970 and went on to the National School of Broadcasting, Atlanta, where he graduaed in 1971.

Farrell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. V. J. Farrell, reside at 508 Claradon Ave. in Columbus and Charles and his wife, Grace, live at 3308 Matilda Lane.

What da you plan to do with your 6.67 per cent raise in pay?

How do you cope with cost of living?

Spc Samuel Lafouche
14th Co. 1st Batt.

"My raise in pay will mostly go into getting caught up on my rent and keeping it that way. Now if they could raise it a hundred, I'll buy a new car."

Spc Robert Kirce
121st Aviation

"I've already taken out a larger allotment to be sent to my bank. With this raise I'll be able to have a better start when I get out, a better bank account. I'm going to live off what I have been getting and just make believe that I didn't even get a raise."

E-5 Willis H. Witt
Co. B HHC

"Our new pay raise will barely defray the rise in living these days. It was given to us to keep up with the cost of living and will be ate up by it."

Spc Raymundo Garcia
A Co. HHC

"With my extra money I'm hoping to go back to Korea to be with my family. I can buy more things that we normally need. Every time we get a raise costs go up so I expect this raise will cover it. I'm glad that the government realizes that we needed this pay raise, especially after the Christmas holiday."

Spc Charles Cashion
121 Aviation

"With the extra pay I'll be getting from the raise I'm going to save up until I have enough to buy me a car. I need transportation."

Hair

Give me a head with hair

Dear Editor,

I would like to commend Lt. Gen. H. W. Hollis, chief of the office of reserve components for the Army, for recommending a change in current grooming rules concerning primarily the out-dated hair restrictions enforced by today's Army.

As an officer of the Bundishier, put it, if it's necessary to function, okay, but long hair doesn't impede performance and we can operate radars without knowing how to march in step."

Although it is believed that the Chief of Staff, Gen. Abrams, will lighten the regs for reserves and active, I have a sneaking suspicion that something similar to the last hair reg change will happen again. And that is a lot of confusion. Last time a poster came out, if you remember, it gave regs and pictures of the way to keep your hair. So I am told that the poster is the way you can't have your hair. How stupid.

The guy starting that order of appearance sure has a lot on the ball, but nothing in the head. I can see the new reg now, you can have your hair the way the poster indicates.

Dieting

Understanding weight control could save you a lot of grief

Despite all the dieting theories, eating fads and crash dieting plans, these facts about body weight still hold true: Calories do count. If we are overweight, it is because we've taken in more calories than our bodies can use. If we want to cut down on these stored calories which have become excess weight, we must either eat less or increase our physical activity, or both.

Most people generally eat more calories than the body can consume because food is plentiful and we've been taught in childhood that it is necessary for health and strength. Additionally, modern conveniences discourage the physical activity that would normally use up these extra calories.

EXERCISE

Most people find it more practical to eat less than to substantially increase their daily physical activity. Exercise alone is no substitute for good eating habits in a weight reduction program. Moderate exercise under guidance can be a useful supplement, however, as it improves, muscle tone and imparts a general sense of wellbeing. Contrary to popular belief, moderate exercise has little effect on appetite.

FAD DIETS

Many fad diets recommend drastically reduced intake of some kinds of foods and greater use of others. You may lose weight on these fad diets, but only because you have reduced the number of calories you consume. Then what is wrong with fad diets? They often leave out important nutrients. For example, on a low carbohydrate diet, you might avoid milk and fruit juices (high in carbohydrates) and miss important supplies of calcium and vitamin C. They often encourage bad eating habits. For example, low carbohydrate diets usually include some foods that are high in calories. If you stop dieting and add other sugars and starches to the high calorie foods you've already been eating, you are likely to gain the weight back again.

Fads often include foods that are high in cholesterol. High-fat diets can increase the cholesterol content of the blood. High cholesterol is associated with arterial problems and may play a significant role in heart disease. They pose special problems during illness. For example, a high-protein diet can make a kidney disorder worse. Low-carbohydrate diets which do not limit alcohol consumption can create serious difficulty for you if you have liver ailments. (Moreover, alcohol is high in calories and carbohydrates.) They often make false claims which may lead you to believe they are medically sound. For example, one diet, trading on the name of a famous medical clinic — but not proposed by it — maintains that grapefruit, when taken with meals, will help burn off excess fat. There is no sound medical evidence that a particular combination of foods will more effectively burn off fat. If such a diet works, it is because it reduces the number of calories you consume.

The medically sound diet is a balanced diet with reduced caloric intake. It's as simple as that. Eat less, and you'll weight less. But, eat wisely.

DIETING TIPS

1. Include the following foods in your menu every day : a fresh fruit; either meat, fish, poultry, or cheese; eggs; milk; two or more vegetables.

2. Variety can help you control your appetite. Eat small amounts of a wide variety of low-calorie foods.

3. Keep low-calorie snack foods handy in the refrigerator, such as celery, carrots or dill pickles.

4. Don't skip meals. If you do, you will probably overeat at the next meal.

5. Eat slowly and chew thoroughly. That will give your stomach time to tell your appetite when it's had enough.

6. Instead of second helpings, eat a low-calorie dessert.

7. Try to stick to your planned menus, even if you eat certain meals such as lunch in a restaurant or cafeteria.

8. Engage in some extra physical activity every day.

11. Strenuous exercise tends to be exhausting and increases appetite. Moderate exercise will serve to tone up muscles in the abdomen or elsewhere after fat has been lost; but it is ridiculous to attempt to "exercise away" a protuberant abdomen. Physical fitness includes a capacity to perform work, and, generally, military life requires a greater capacity for strenuous work than is required by civilian jobs. However, no person should suddenly challenge his heart and body with physical exertion to which he is unaccustomed. Just as dietary limitations must be carefully set and continually observed, so should a program of physical exercise be adjusted to the individual under medical advice.

THREE CALORIE-SAVING IDEAS

Consider using "Teflon" cookware, which requires no cooking fat, oils or butter. Besides saving calories, you will be able to prepare such things as scrambled eggs with the same calorie value as boiled eggs.

Substitute skim milk for regular milk. Once you have acquired a taste for skim milk, you will probably find it as palatable as whole milk, and the calories saved are worth the small sacrifice — skim milk contains approximately half the calories of whole milk.

If you have been drinking regular colas, switch to low-calorie or no-calorie diet colas. The savings in calories are enormous. Also, they seem to satisfy the urge for something sweet.

Statistics say overweight persons die younger

Life insurance statistics have amply demonstrated that overweight persons die younger and suffer more intensely from many diseases (heart disease, in particular). Further, it has been proven that overweight persons, who have been successful in losing weight, do in fact improve their survival and state of health. The loss of excess weight improves personal appearance, gives the weight-loser a feeling of well-being and provides a greater capacity to enjoy life.

Physiologically, life is much easier for a man who relives himself of a heavy load of fat. Remarkably, a twelve per cent loss of weight reduces heart work during exercise by thirty-five per cent. Officers and men who are overweight will obviously have less agility, less stamina, and less enthusiasm for an active military life.

Any program to lose weight is a difficult one. As the presence of overweight may be a sign of additional disease and also because over-zealous weight-losing is a health hazard, each grossly overweight person should be evaluated and counseled by a medical officer prior to and during his weight-reduction program.

The following are general recommendations for would-be weight losers:

1. Get medical advice, if indicated.
2. Regard "fad" diets with distrust; only a permanent change in one's way of life as regards eating (habits) will serve any useful purpose.
3. Learn to stop eating before you are satisfied — get accustomed to feeling a little hungry. Permanent weight loss involves many months (even years) and requires a permanent change in well established eating habits.
4. Weigh daily before breakfast.
5. Drink a full glass of water before each meal.
6. Never eat between meals; eat only three well-spaced meals each day.
7. Eat a relatively large breakfast and a small supper.
8. Avoid fats and starches, emphasize salads, greens and yellow vegetables, and lean meat. A balanced diet, including all the essential proteins, minerals, and vitamins, must be administered as prescribed by medical personnel.
9. Count your calories. Know, in fact, how much you are eating.
10. Participate in activities which provide mild and moderate exercise. Exercise alone is not a way to lose weight. To lose one pound of body fat (4,320), the average sized trained athlete (155 pounds) would have to:

a. Run 43.2 miles (at rate of 1 mile per 6 minutes), or,

b. Do 5,714 pushups from the floor, or,

c. Shovel 114,739 pounds of sand into a wheelbarrow, or,

d. Saw wood for 14 hours.

(A non-athlete would burn relatively more fat with less work.)

Aviation Command

HEADQUARTERS and Company Commander's Wives of Aviation Command met on December 12 in the home of Mrs. Alan Wooley. The theme of the holidays was carried out in the decorations and refreshments which included an assortment of holiday cookies and candies, coffee and a sparkling punch.

Mrs. Lawrence Bell and Mrs. William Spence were presented with red and white corsages. Mrs. Bell was welcomed by the ladies to Aviation Command. Mrs. Joffre Fillon made a farewell announcement to Mrs. Spence and presented her with a gift for all her help to the ladies of Aviation Command.

Many items of business were presented to the ladies by Mrs. Bell. The new classes and activities of OWC were also discussed.

The next monthly coffee will be held Jan. 9 at 10:00 a.m. in the home of Mrs. Bell.

The Officers and Wives of AVIATION COMMAND held their annual formal Christmas Party on Dec. 20 at the Supper Club. Arrangements and decorations were provided by the members of the 213th Aviation Company. Those present were greeted in a receiving line by Lt. Col. and Mrs. Lawrence Bell and Lt. Col. and Mrs. William Spence. Cocktails and dinner then followed.

After dinner, Lt. Col. Bell presented to Lt. Col. Spence a scroll describing the achievements and escapades of Lt. Col. Spence during his stay at Aviation Command. Major George Twiggs also helped with the presentation.

Soon after, the couples enjoyed and danced to the music of the Rams.

Children full of excitement and happiness anxiously awaited the arrival of Santa Claus on Dec. 21 in the hangar of the 609TH TRANSPORTATION COMPANY.

With the assistance of Major Richard Pope, CWR Bryce Gordon, and several ladies of the 609th Transportation Company, Santa Claus was the main attraction of a party held for the children of Aviation Command. Each child was presented with a gift from Santa and an opportunity to put in their last minute requests for the "big night." Oranges, apples, bananas, and cookies were also provided for the children.

Red Cross

There will be an American Red Cross training class starting Feb. 5. If you want to be part of this dynamic service organization call Mrs. Anthony Slovacek, 545-2235, for more information.

Sports Widows

Why slave over a hot stove while hubby's cheering-on his favorite team in front of the TV set? Here's two easy, no-mess recipes to serve your "Armchair Quarterbacks" while the bowl games are on:

CHEESE 'N FRANK CRESCENTS

1 can Pillsbury Refrigerated Quick Crescent Dinner Rolls
8 frankfurters
8 strips Cheddar cheese

Oven 375 F., Yield: 8

Unroll dough; separate into 8 triangles. Cut a narrow slit lengthwise in each frank; insert cheese strip in each. Place frank on wide end of triangle and roll up. Place on ungreased cookie sheet, cheese side up. Bake at 375 F. for 10 to 15 min., until golden brown.

TUNA FILLED LOAF

4 cans Pillsbury Refrigerated Country Style or Buttermilk Biscuits
2 cups shredded Cheddar cheese
1 1-3 cups flaked tuna
2-3 cup softened butter
2 tablespoons chili sauce
2 teaspoons instant minced onion
1 teaspoon poultry seasoning
1 teaspoon garlic salt
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
2 egg whites, slightly beaten sesame seeds, if desired

Oven 350 F., Yield: 2 loaves

Use two cans of biscuits for each loaf. Stand biscuits on edge on ungreased cookie sheet; press together and shape ends to form long loaves. Brush with egg white; sprinkle with sesame seeds. Bake at 350 F. for 30-40 min., until golden brown. Combine remaining ingredients. Slice loaves diagonally and spread with tuna mixture. Return to oven for 3 to 5 min., until hot.

The guidon of the 533rd Transportation Company, 931st Engineer Group is placed aboard a C-141 aircraft prior to the unit's departure for Germany this week from Lawson Army Airfield. The unit will participate in "Reforger IV," a winter field exercise being held for elements of the First Infantry Division.

533rd Trans. supports operation Reforger IV

The 533rd Transportation Company of the 931st Engineer Group departed Monday and Tuesday to participate in "Reforger IV," a winter field maneuver to be conducted in Germany by elements of the 1st Infantry Division, the "Big Red One."

The Fort Benning soldiers, commanded by Capt. Bobby Wade, departed from Lawson Army Airfield.

For the exercise, the U.S. Air Force Military Airlift Command will fly approximately 10,000 U.S. based soldiers and more than 1,000 tons of equipment to Rhein, Ramstein and Echterdigen Airfields in the Federal Republic of Germany.

The U.S. dual-based members of the 1st Infantry Division will link up with the 3rd Brigade, Big Red One, stationed in Germany. The focus of the maneuver is on exercising procedures and techniques for receiving, equipping, assembling and deploying Army units once they arrive in Germany, rather than on the rapid air transport of troops from the United States.

The redeployed units will draw combat gear and vehicles from prepositioned storage sites in Germany and move to an exercise area extending between Wuerzburg and Nuernberg. A five-day field maneuver begins Jan. 22.

Following the field maneuver, Reforger units will test fire artillery and tanks at the U.S. Army training area at Grafenwoehr before returning equipment to storage sites. The main body will fly back to the U.S. from Nuernberg, while those who complete final maintenance and turn-in of equipment will fly to the United States from Ramstein.

Reforger IV marks the fourth exercise in a series which started in 1969 and is designed to fulfill United States commitments to NATO and those made in the 1967 trilateral agreement among the United Kingdom, the Federal Republic of Germany and the United States.

GI Bill eases tutor financing

ATLANTA — Students attending school under the GI Bill and who are having problems with their studies may now find it easier to get financed tutoring through the Veterans Administration.

According to Georgia Veterans Service Director, Pete Wheeler, Public Law 92-540, which increased GI Bill educational benefits, also removed the requirement that a student must be failing a course before he could be eligible for a VA-paid tutor.

"The new law also made such tutoring available for the first time to wives, widows and children studying under the VA's Dependents' Educational Assistance Program."

Tutorial assistance was first made available in March 1970 under a provision of Public Law 91-219. Its purpose was to aid veterans and servicemen, studying on at least a half-time basis above the high school level, who needed help in passing courses essential to their chosen programs of education.

2-10th Arty colors in Bowl

An artilleryman from the 2nd Bn., 10th Field Artillery, 197th Inf. Bde. carried the brigade's colors in a troop formation leading an Army float in the Orange Bowl Parade Dec. 30 in Miami.

Spc Nicholas Lauritano, a native of the Bronx in New York City and a member of Battery A, was one of the representatives of unit-of-choice units in the Army selected to march in the formation preceding a red, white and blue float whose theme was the Modern Volunteer Army.

Each of the Army's unit-of-choice divisions and brigades was represented in the nationally televised formation. The float and formation concept was sponsored by the United States Army Recruiting Command (USAREC), and Third Recruiting District in Conjunction with the Miami Recruiting Main Station.

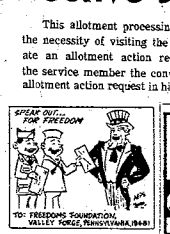
New allotment system becomes effective Jan. 15

Beginning January 15 the Fort Benning Finance and Accounting Office will change the method for processing allotment action requests.

This change was brought about to save man-hours at unit level by not requiring soldiers to go to the Finance Office to initiate, change, or stop a routine allotment and to reduce the workload at the Military Pay Section. Allotment action requests will be prepared in the unit on a DA Form 1341-½ and forwarded to the Finance Office for processing.

No personal visits to the Finance Office for the purpose of initiating an allotment action request will be permitted with the exception of service members in grades E-4 with less than four years service and below desiring to start, stop, or change a class Q allotment. Officers and enlisted men in grades E-7 and above who are assigned to the USA Infantry Center Staff and Directorates and the USA Infantry School Staff and Departments may use the Finance drop box located on the first floor near the cafeteria in Infantry Hall.

Requests for start or change actions on allotments must be received by the Finance Office by the 20th calendar day of the month prior to the desired effective month. All requests for initiation of allotments to insurance companies for personnel in grades E-3 and below must be accompanied by a properly completed DA Form 3066. Stop action requests will only be accepted for allotments that have been in effect for over six months (unless a bona fide emergency exist) and must be received by the Finance Office by the 20th calendar day of the month of final deduction.



Upon completion of the allotment action, the Finance Office will forward the service member's copy of the DA Form 1341 to the appropriate unit by transmittal letter.

This allotment processing system will eliminate the necessity of visiting the Finance Office to initiate an allotment action request and will provide the service member the convenience of initiating an allotment action request in his unit.

WANTED BY AMERICAN INDUSTRY:

SEPARATING MILITARY WITH A COLLEGE DEGREE

If you are getting out of the service, the career you decide to enter is one of the most important decisions of your life. Your job search should be carefully planned, and should include interviews with many different types of companies, not just one or two.

Take advantage of the fact that college graduates separating from the military are the most sought after group in the employment market today. Instead of besieging companies with unproductive calls and resumes, actually meet with company recruiters in face-to-face interviews in a results-oriented environment. Lendman Associates, a unique, nationwide military placement firm, brings the nation's top employers together with job seekers like yourself, by means of Career Weekend held in major cities throughout the country. Through career seminars, panel discussions, and presentations by hiring companies, the Career Weekend educates the applicant about the job market and provides exposure to a large number of hiring companies, companies that represent the whole spectrum of job opportunity. This service is provided at no cost or obligation to the candidates.

Lendman Associates will conduct a Career Search Seminar in the Ft. Benning area on January 30 at 7:30 in the Holiday Inn (Columbus-South) The purpose of this seminar is to discuss effective job search methods, today's market, salary expectations, and interviewing techniques. The Career Weekend approach will be discussed in depth and invitations will be extended to qualified applicants to a Career Weekend in Atlanta on February 9 & 10, where some thirty companies from across the country will be interviewing. Plan now to attend by contacting Project Transition for information or calling Tim Hoffmann on January 30 at The Holiday Inn.

Break the Hate Habit.

We invented National Bank of Fort Benning to provide services not readily available at outher banking institutions.

Our customers would have banking problems not shared by the general public, like changing banks when they are transferred, or banking for TDY personnel, or what to do while on a hardship tour.

So we built in world wide banking.

That means no matter where you are, either temporarily, or permanently, or if you just happen to be traveling, we can serve you.

"Mobile East"

Bayonet reviews book written by retired GI

Mobile East is a sensitive novel based on little known historical fact that has been overlooked in the onward crush of progress. The story follows the incredible life of Rebecca Sherwood, a little English girl orphaned at age five in 1770 not far from what is now Mobile, Alabama. The child was rescued from a watery grave by Creek Indians who gave her to William Panton, a rich trader of the territory who took her on his journeys throughout the young wild country.

The reader meets such real life people as Andy Jackson, Sam Houston and the not so well-known General John Coffee as the story unfolds. Another true life character is Menewa, the Creek war chief who became a legendary god to his own people and a scourge to his enemies.

Robert Dews did years of research on his project — and it pays off. The reader is transported back to the days of the young Republic when James Madison was running the government and such cities as Birmingham, Atlanta, Montgomery, Macon, Tallahassee and Jacksonville were just beginning to make noises like big cities to be.

The tale is awash with rugged adventure as the Creek Indians were turned into pirates by the villainous William Bowles, Director General of the Muscogee who warred on and looted the Spanish traders' ships on the Gulf of Mexico.

The heroine Rebecca is a great character and don't be surprised to see her portrayed in a movie. This rule could start a new casting campaign, like the hunt for the girl to play Scarlett in Gone With the Wind.

Author Dews writes with the simplicity of a true story teller, unfolding a tale of an exceptional heroine who, while apparently losing everything, gained a place in the changing savage world she helped make endurable.

A book to appreciate and enjoy. Out of a possible four I give it three and a half literary luncheons.

Callaway Gardens to hold Tenth Art Festival

Celebrating its tenth year the Callaway Gardens Art Festival will be held at Callaway Gardens January 13-19. Included in the week-long festival will be a variety of events, demonstrations, workshops and tours.

Artists from throughout the U.S. will be sending their works to the festival to be judged by Dr. David W. Scott, Consultant for the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C.

A record $2,500 in awards will be presented for the best works of the Gardens Art Festival 10. Featuring the works of over 100 artists, the Gallery will open to the public on Saturday, January 13.

A new feature added this year will be a gala Beaux Art Ball on opening night. "Paris in the Springtime" is the theme of the event which will include dining and dancing in the midst of a French atmosphere.

On Sunday evening, January 14, the Awards Banquet will be held with Mr. Charles W. Springman, Southeastern States Art Regional Coordinator of the Endowment of Arts, as the featured speaker. The Banquet will begin at 6:30 p.m. and the public is cordially invited. Reservations are required.

The Gardens Art Festival 10 will feature a week-long variety of workshops. On January 15, a needlepoint workshop will be conducted by Mrs. Nancy McCauley of Oak Ridge, Tennessee. Mrs. McCauley will show the techniques of designing and painting a needlepoint canvas.

Once again, Mrs. Ouida Canaday will return to this year's festival to instruct a painting workshop for adults.

Everyone is waiting for 'The Getaway'

Few films in recent years have come down the pike with as much advance excitement as "The Getaway," the First Artists presentation going out under the National General banner. The film brings together for the first time three of the hottest screen names now on the scene.

The casting of Steve McQueen with Ali McGraw is a boxoffice natural. As if the lure of these two weren't enough to guarantee the film's success, producers David Foster and Mitchell Brower have included in their cast last year's winner of the supporting actor Oscar Ben Johnson, Sally Struthers of TV's top-rated "All In the Family," and Al Lettieri who scored so strongly in "The Godfather."

Very few film-makers have captured the public's eye as has Sam Peckinpah. He has carved his own film legend with such movies as "Wild Bunch", and "Straw Dogs."

McQueen and MacGraw play Doc and Carol McCoy, a husband and wife reunited after his parole from prison who plan a daring bank holdup which they hope will be their biggest and last. The film is chockful of those things now expected in a "Peckinpah Film."

"The Getaway" is now appearing at a local downtown theatre.

An American co-star with Steve McQueen in "The Getaway," a First Artist Production released by National General Pictures. "The Getaway" is now appearing at a downtown theatre.

Dramatizers pick new officers and next play

The following newly elected officers will usher in 1973 with the Fort Benning Dramatizers: President, Anni Tufts Disbrow; Vice-president, Kathy Kettrick; Secretary, Sue Gross. Publicity Chairman, Katleen Swain; Members at Large, Dave McQueen and Marcus Disbrow.

The next production being undertaken is George Orwell's 1984, to be directed by Joanne Burns and Dave Hoyt. Tryouts for the play will be held January 10, 11, and 12 at 19:30 hours at the Ft. Benning Playhouse, located behind the Infantry Museum. Your talent is needed and welcomed, as all parts are open and all types of technical positions are available.

Chapel holds dinner

The Infantry Center Chapel will hold its January Chapel Fellowship Dinner at 6:30 p.m. on 14 Jan. '73 in the Chapel Annex. The Dinner will be a covered dish supper (Salad, Meat, Vegetable, Dessert). Those who plan to attend (open to all who desire to attend) are asked to contact the following to make reservations no later than 3:00 p.m., 14 Jan '73: The Infantry Center Chapel, 545-2050 or 545-7534 or 545-1623 or after duty hours, 545-1789.

The dinner will be followed by a Special Program that will be presented by Mr Michael A. Chalverus, General Manager of the Wilson Division in Columbus of the Affiliated Hospital Products. Mr. Chalverus, whose parents were born in Russia, returned to Russia with his mother this past July. He will tells us of his impressions of today's Russia and her people.

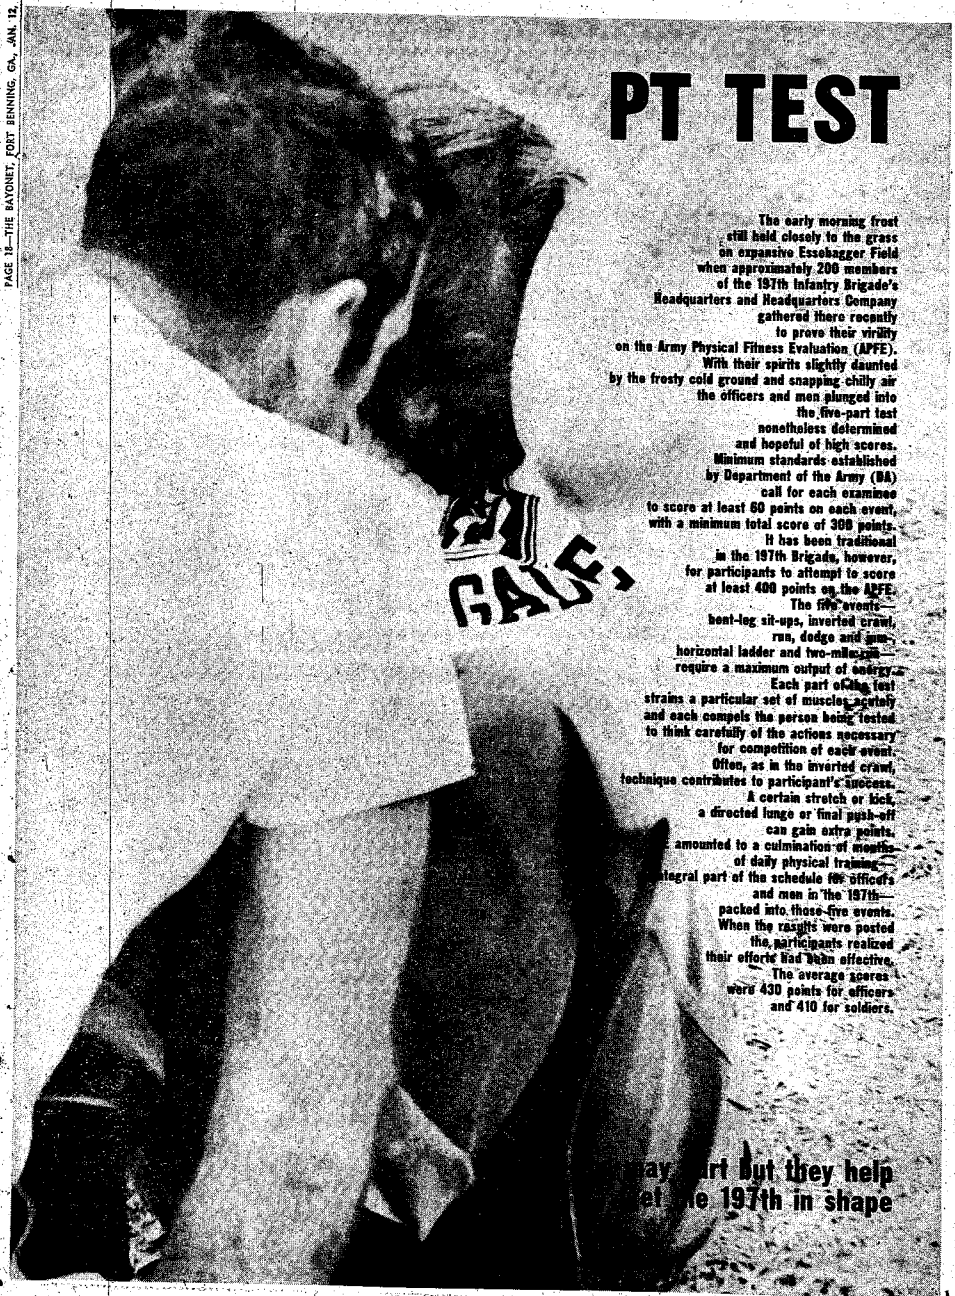
Benning offers many differeht types of activities to keep todays soldiers in tip-top shape



RECREATION

How many times during your stay at Fort Benning have you used the vast amount of special services compiled for you as a member of the military family?

Now that the amount of personnel is at the lowest level since the early 1950s, there is little chance that there will be competition if you wish to use our facilities. In no other community of people could you have so many outlets just waiting for you to take advantage of—and this at rock-bottom prices, or for free.

Maybe you don't know what sports you would like, or wish to compete in. There are ample activities made available by Special Services.... basketball, volleyball, softball, handball, football, bowling, swimming and diving, tennis, golf, scuba diving, judo, boxing and wrestling. Facilities include the Field Houses and Gymnasiums, the indoor and the outdoor pools, the stadium and the golf courses.

PT TEST

The early morning frost still held closely to the grass on expansive Essobagger Field when approximately 200 members of the 197th Infantry Brigade's Headquarters and Headquarters Company gathered there recently to prove their virility on the Army Physical Fitness Evaluation (APFE). With their spirits slightly daunted by the frosty cold ground and snapping chilly air the officers and men plunged into the five-part test nonetheless determined and hopeful of high scores. Minimum standards established by Department of the Army (DA) call for each examinee to score at least 60 points on each event, with a minimum total score of 300 points. It has been traditional in the 197th Brigade, however, for participants to attempt to score at least 400 points on the APFE. The five events— bent-leg sit-ups, inverted crawl, run, dodge and jump, horizontal ladder and two-mile run— require a maximum output of energy. Each part of the test strains a particular set of muscles, acutely and each compels the person being tested to think carefully of the actions necessary for competition of each event. Often, as in the inverted crawl, technique contributes to participant's success. A certain stretch or tick, a directed lunge or final push-off can gain extra points. amounted to a culmination of months of daily physical training— integral part of the schedule for officers and men in the 197th— packed into those five events. When the results were posted the participants realized their efforts had been effective. The average scores were 430 points for officers and 410 for soldiers.

Fire

are enrolled in the program each month. Luckett said the students were still being enrolled in spite of the hampered operations.

The NRI-ROTC Affairs Department sent out a letter to all students enrolled in the ACC program. The letter informed the students of the fire and asked them to continue with their work. The letter said that subcourses would be sent out to the students where the subcourses were available and where the ACC records showed that a student did not have enough study materials on hand.

Luckett was asked about the 75 bags of mail that had been lost in the fire and he explained that the mail bags contained graded lessons and solutions. Luckett said the students who had graded lessons on those mail bags had all been identified by computer print outs. By utilizing the information from the computer print outs a complete reconstruction of the student's lessons and grades can be accomplished.

King

woman, was arrested for refusing to offer her seat on a bus to a white man. It ended over a year later, when the city government officially stopped racial segregation on city buses following a court ruling.

In 1956, Dr. King organized the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, which he headed until his assassination in 1968. The SCLS became a real force in the civil rights movement in 1963, when massive demonstrations were held in Birmingham.

On Aug. 28, 1963, at the March on Washington, thousands of blacks heard King's famous "I have a dream" speech. The march brought pressure on Congress, and in 1964 the first Civil Rights Act was passed.

Co. C, 197th selected for Connelly Award

The scramble for top honors in Fort Benning's competition for the Phillip A. Connelly Award for excellence in Army food service has ended with a representative from the 197th Infantry Brigade in first place for the second consecutive year.

Company C, 1st Battalion, 29th Infantry (Pioneers) captured the honor, scoring 99 of a possible 100 points in nine judging categories and qualifying as Fort Benning's representative in judging by officials of Third Army for the best small unit dining facility (serving 200 or fewer).

Last year the 197th Brigade's Headquarters Company dining facility swept through the Fort Benning, Third Army, and Continental Army Command (CONARC) competition, winning at each level, before being named runner-up in worldwide judging. It marked the furthest any Fort Benning unit had reached in the annual contest.

Five other major commands at Fort Benning were rated along with Co. C, 1-29th in post-wide inspections. The School Brigade (TSB), the 931st Engineer Group, Headquarters Command, Aviation Command and the 34th Medical Battalion were represented and judged for superiority in the following categories: Administration; recipt and storage of food; preparation and serving of food; serving and troop acceptance; personnel and supervision; equipment safety and maintenance; appearance of dining area; food service sanitation and command relations.

SFC Howard Garrett, steward for the Co. C dining facility, attributed the first-place rating to "outstanding support from the Brigade and great relations within the battalion."

"Each of the men working in this dining hall," said SFC Garrett, "takes time to put in extra effort and initiative into the work here."

Judging at the Third Army level begins this month, but exact dates have not been announced.

Sp5 James Williamson, PFC Taylor Harris and Pvt. Jackie Jordan, all of Co. C, 1st Bn., 29th Inf. "Pioneers," 197th Inf., serve fellow soldiers in the "Best Mess" at Ft. Benning. The Co. C dining facility has been selected as the best on post in competition for the annual Phillip A. Connelly Award. (Photo by Robert Thomas)

ROD AND GUN CLUB Notes

BY BILL KLOEB

Prizes for the Rod and Gun Club Big Deer Contest will be awarded in the club lounge at 7:30 p.m. tonight. Ridley Bell, host of the WRBL-TV Sportsmans Lodge Program 2nd winner of the 1971 Georgia Sportsman Federation Communications Conservation Award will make the presentations. All club members are invited to attend.

Three Model 1100 Remington automatic shotguns will go to members who participated in the contest. MSgt. Julian Gunman, Airborne Department, will receive one for registering the deer with the most countable antler points. His specimen had 10 points and weighed 130-pounds.

SFC (ret) William Malueg will also receive a shotgun for registering the heaviest deer. His entry tipped the club scales at 170-pounds.

The winner of the third gun will be determined tonight. He will be some member who registered a deer in the contest during the past hunting season. The winner of this gun must be present at the club at the time the selection is made.

More to Come

For a large number of hunters the 1972-73 hunting season is finished but those who hunt squirrel, quail and rabbit still have until February 28 to enjoy their sport. The rabbit hunters will really just begin to enjoy hunting to the fullest. They can use their dogs from now until the season ends. Squirrel quail and rabbit hunters can take to the field with a greater feeling of safety. Hunters use smaller shot for this game and they don't have to worry about a deer hunter loaded with slugs or buckshot hiding in a blind.

Duck hunters also have a few more days of sport. The duck season in both Alabama and Georgia will run until January 20. Jump hunting, where the hunter attempts to walk up on ducks and shoot them on the rise can be good sport if you have a way to retrieve birds that fall into the water. Protected coves on backwaters and ponds usually contain a few ducks looking for a quiet place on these cold blustery days. Just be especially careful that you don't surprise and infuriate an all weather fisherman on any of these expeditions. Be sure also that you have a duck stamp and anything you shoot is legal game.

The November issue of the Outdoors In Georgia Magazine, official magazine of the Georgia Department of Natural Resources has an excellent chart to aid in the identification of ducks. This is a publication that should be on the subscription list of every sportsman. They publish timely articles on a variety of activities in the state. The information is localized and can usually be applied in our area. Subscribers get information related to hunting and fishing, camping, boating, skiing, state parks, scenic nature trails and varied activities from panning for gold to canoeing on the Flint or rafting on the Chattahoochee Rivers.

The magazine is published monthly. Subscription rates are $3 for one year or $6 for three years. The publisher's address is Trinity-Washington Building, 270 Washington Street, Atlanta, Ga. 30334.

Fishing Derby

There hasn't been much activity in the Rod and Gun Club January Fishing Derby. The only fish registered so far was an eight and a half-ounce bream registered by WO (ret.) Brayton Davis, 3030 Luckie Street. Davis has won prizes in the fishing derby before and if the inclement weather continues to keep the fair weather fishermen in front of the television he may win another with this bream.

Most fishermen take up other activities during the winter but the winter months produce some exceptional results for those who are willing to put up with the cold. Some of the record catches for the state of Georgia have been made during the winter season. The largest Flint River Smallmouth Bass was taken in February of 1967, a 17-pound, 9-ounce largemouth bass was taken from Lake Lanier in February of 1968, the state record White Bass that tipped the scales at 4-pounds, 14-ounces was taken from Lake Lanier in January 1966 and the state and world record chain pickerel was taken at Homerville, Ga. in February of 1961.

Winter fishing pays off and will provide a pleasant diversion now that the football games are just about finished.

Handball clinic

Fort Benning will conduct the 3rd Army team handball Clinic on the 28, 29 and 30th of January. The clinic will train coaches, officials and individual players in the techniques of play and officiating of team handball. All male military personnel desiring to learn and participate in this relatively new sport are eligible.

Major unit commanders, separate units and staff sections of USAIC and Infantry school are encouraged to send representatives to the clinics.

"$8,000 helped."

Sergeant Roy Smith was going for more than the bonus when he reenlisted.

"The $8,000 helped. But part of my reason for staying in the Army is I can get the rest of my college credits for a degree. I've got 2 years in already.

"I enjoy the job I'm doing now as a drill sergeant. But I'd also like to try military intelligence. And eventually get to go to OCS.

"It's all there. It's completely up to me and my qualifications for it."

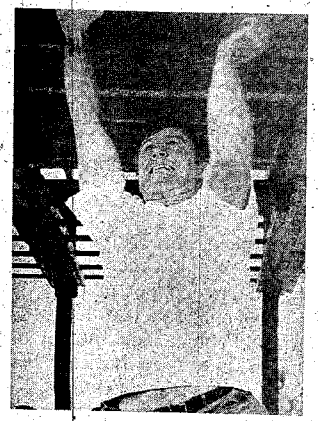
Sergeant Smith views the Army as one big opportunity for a guy who wants to get ahead.

There are job and educational opportunities. In advanced electronics. Cryptography. Foreign languages. Data processing.

Communications. Traffic analysis. And lots more.

And travel opportunities. In Europe. Korea. Hawaii. Alaska. Panama. And the time to enjoy it. To live it. In a way no tourist ever could.

And the opportunity to save money on all the everyday things.



Like free housing. Free dental and medical care. Commissary and post exchange privileges. Low-cost life insurance.

It's all here. It's up to you.

Your Army Career Counselor has a whole book of job, duty station and training opportunities just waiting for you. He'll give you lots of reasons for staying in.

Sergeant Smith has good reasons for staying in.

Why are you staying in?

Holt fastest footer

At a special awards presentation formation for the 43rd Engineer Battalion, Charlie Company was number one again in the person of PFC Larry N. Holt.

Holt participated in the 12 mile march with the rest of the Battalion and came out on top with a record-breaking time of one hour and 41 minutes which beat his nearest competition by more than 20 minutes.

Holt was assigned to Charlie Company Operations section as a draftsman in August 1972, from Ft. Devens, Mass.

Currently, his drafting skills are being utilized in the planning and design of a new drainage system for Munson Heliport on Kelly Hill, one of the largest projects ever to be undertaken by the Engineers on the Fort Benning Reservation.

He makes his home in Gallon, Ohio.

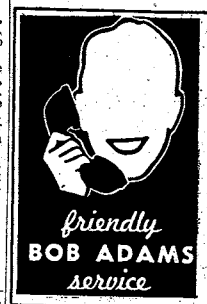
Over 300 swimmers expected for meet

Barracuda

The Fort Benning Barracudas Invitational Swim Meet for class "B" swimmers will be held at the Briant Wells Field House, Saturday, Jan. 13.



The meet, an Amateur Athletic Union recognized contest, is scheduled to begin at 9 a.m.

Swimmers, aged 6 to 17, will compete in 56 events. The meet is estimated to last until 6 p.m.

Twenty-three teams have been invited from Georgia, Alabama, and Florida. Over 300 swimmers are expected to participate. Ribbons will be awarded for the first 6 places in each event.

Teams of local interest that will be participating besides Benning's Barracudas are the Columbus YMCA, the Auburn, the Windsor Park, and the Pensacola swim teams.

According to one informed source, the Barracudas are probably one of the top five swim teams in the state. They are expected to make a strong showing in relay events that require team effort. The Columbus team on the other hand has two or three strong swimmers that will probably place well in several individual events.

197th CTC renews AIT at Kelley Hill

The 197th Infantry Brigade's Central Training Command (CTC) is set to renew Advanced Individual Training (AIT) classes for unit-of-choice enlistees in five Military Occupational Specialties (MOSs) beginning Jan. 8 at Kelley Hill.

Beginning more than a year ago as part of the unit-of-choice enlistment option, the program is the first step in a 16-month guaranteed tour of duty with the 197th Brigade in keeping with the soldier's enlistment contract.

The AIT program dwindled in the 197th Brigade when the unit met its quotas for combat MOSs, but many of the original enlistees are completing their tours, allowing room for more and necessitating renewal of the AIT program.

All of the trainees who receive AIT in the 197th will have completed Basic Combat Training (BCT) at other posts in the U.S. before starting the AIT program.

The MOSs to be trained for are: 11B (rifleman), 11C (mortar crewman), 11H (direct fire crewman) 11E (tank crewman) and 19A (cannoneer). There are allocations for personnel in each of these specialties in the 197th Brigade's organizational table.

CTC will conduct the entire 9-week program for soldiers in the 11B, 11 C and 11H specialties and will provide the first four weeks of training for men in the remaining MOSs. Units containing these MOSs (11E and 13A) will conduct the technical training and testing for men in these areas during the last five weeks of training.

Subject areas for the program include brigade orientation, general subjects, rifle squad tactics, field training week, MOS technical training and testing and graduation.

1st Lt. William Benline, commandant of CTC said, "We plan to maintain squad integrity throughout the training and to conduct the program according to the standards and procedures of an Army training center."

Approximately 750 soldiers were graduated from the AIT program in the 197th Brigade last year. Benline said he expects about 60 men to begin training the first week, with class sizes varying during ensuing weeks.

Hardaway ROTC honored

Hardaway High School of Columbus, Ga. has been awarded the Department of the Army Honor Unit with Distinction Rating for the outstanding performance of its ROTC department during the school year 1971-72.

The ROTC Department of Hardaway High School, headed by Master Sgt. (Ret.) Wilson S. Nelson, Senior Enlisted Instructor, was cited for its superior accomplishment and standards in the areas of support by the institution, the military detachment, supply, training, and the ROTC Cadet Corps in an evaluation of all Army Junior ROTC units.

Of the 594 Army JROTC units located throughout the United States at the time of the inspection, only the top 29 per cent received the Honor Unit with Distinction Rating.

Hardaway High School has 149 students currently enrolled in its JROTC program; with a total of 884 students enrolled throughout the Muscogee County School District.

For further information on High School ROTC and other military education and career opportunities open to high school and junior college graduates contact Maj. (Ret.) William G. Newbold at 324-4834.

Saga ends for Sp 5

A nine month saga of hope and frustration ended on a happy note with the reenlistment of Sp5 James R. Bunker of Company D, 43rd Engineer Battalion (Construction) in a simple ceremony held in the Company Commander's office.

Bunker's problems started when he took his annual MOS test earlier this year. The machinery at Ft. Benjamin Harrison would not program his results, since his Enlisted Evaluation Report from his last duty station in Vietnam was missing. Fortunately luck was with Bunker as his former platoon leader was now serving in the 43rd Engineer Battalion and the needed EER was provided.

His problems did not end. Now Sp5 was removed from the E6 promotion list; Qualitative Management Program barred him from reenlisting. With the results of his EER now in hand he was reinstated and received a board standing. Reenlistment was now just a formality.

WANTED
PROFESSIONAL
REAL ESTATE SALESMEN
We are expanding with RECOA. We need four additional Sales People: Jefferson Company, one of the oldest and most progressive Real Estate Companies in Columbus and Alabama Jefferson Co. in Phenix City, are the only representatives in this area for RECOA, Inc.

RECOA, INC. IS A coast-to-coast net work of Realtors. It is a professional organization helping to create families nationally. . . A Progressive Organization, creating modern ideas for the Realtor. Statistics show that over 35% of the families who move each year will relocate outside their original home area. RECOA helps Jefferson Company serve these families—RECOA, INC. offers our sales force an opportunity for extra income.

We are not seeking PART TIME SALESMEN or any one who would be satisfied with a $10,000.00 DOLLAR ANNUAL INCOME. We want only those willing to become full time Realtors and earn from 12,000 to 35,000 dollars plus have the opportunity for additional income by being associated with our company. It is not necessary for you to already have a Real Estate license, if you meet our requirements, we will help prepare you to obtain a license. For appointment for confidential interview call

Come Inspect the 100 Rooms We've Furnished—To Give You Some Ideas!

What a way to get those ideas! It's like walking through the pages of a home decorating magazine! Only here are the settings in real life—you can touch, and feel, and even sit on the furniture.

You see the furniture handsomely displayed in actual room settings—so you can visualize how it would look in your own home! (Best part is the prices—very modest for such quality!)

Here's a city block full of these exquisite rooms. Each is complete—with pictures, carpeting, wall hangings, odd chairs and tables. Here's infinite variety under one roof.

Maybe you'd like to know about our free, expert decorating service that folks appreciate. Ask us. You're welcome to browse.

We're open Monday through Saturday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. and on Monday night until 9 p.m.

Come in soon. You'll see famous names such as Heritage, Drexel and many others!

Hinson Galleries is delighted to announce the addition of Mrs. Ann Petrof to our decorator staff. She has 17 years experience as an interior decorator.

Leaning Tower?

Eng. Bn. helps heat barracks

A Company of the 43rd Engineer Bn. (Const.) at Fort Benning is helping to keep the barracks on post warm.

The Equipment Platoon's rock crusher is being used to crush coal into the proper size for use in the furnaces that heat many of the older buildings on post. The Directorate of Facilities Engineering is providing the trucks and coal for the operation.

Alpha Company will continue crushing as long as needed this winter. The 15 man quarry section, which operates the crusher, led by SSgt. Jerry Peters, is proud to be playing an important role in providing services for the soldiers at Fort Benning.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

by Bill King

Heavy cream whips up to a higher volume if it is a day or two old. The bowl and beaters, as well as the cream, should be thoroughly chilled.

Put leftover meats and vegetables through a blender and into a container or cube tray for the freezer. The mixture will be handy and nutritious as a base for creamed soups or stews.

VIPs in ancient Rome had fish from northern waters shipped to them preserved in honey.

Mix butter with blue cheese or herbs and roll into little balls. Chill and serve with a sizzling steak.

If you're wondering what to do about the soft rind of a Brie or Camembert, the answer is that cheese connoisseurs eat it along with the cheese.

If you're wondering what to do about dinner tonight, treat yourself and the family to a relaxing meal at

Clerks

Typists paddle down river in canoes

The job of a clerk-typist is usually a routine one, consisting of interminable hours of typing and filing of what must often seem the same things. Day after day sees an endless procession of DF"s and morning reports among others.

But for six clerks from the 93ist Engineer Group, the routine was broken last week when they took off on an adventure training trip down the Chattahoochee River. For three days, they paddled their canoes down the river camping each day at nightfall.

The trip began on Friday afternoon at Uchee Creek on Fort Benning. Led by SP4 Dennis Metz of the 988th MP Co., they left in three canoes, carrying the minimum equipment necessary for the trip.

The end of the third day saw the group tired but happy; some fifty miles down the Chattahoochee. "It was a lot harder than we thought it would be, the wind was too high for the canoes, we managed though," said Sp4 Metz, "we all enjoyed it and the experience was invaluable."

The men all agreed that it was by no means an easy trip, yet it was more than worth the effort. "The confidence gained in this type of training is immeasurable, the experience of traveling across country, camping out, the contact with our natural environment, all this combined to make the whole thing worth-while," said sp4 Metz.

Gen. Talbott gets new post

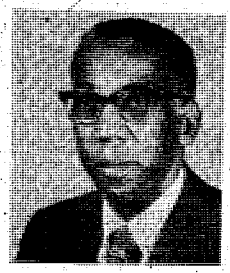
Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott will be reassigned as special assistant to the commanding general of the U.S. Continental Army Command, effective March 8, the Fort Benning public information office announced at presstime today.

Gen. Talbott has been commander of Fort Benning and commandant of the U.S. Army Infantry School since Sept., 1969.

Gen. Talbott is being succeeded in the Fort Benning post by Maj. Gen. Thomas M. Tarpley whose appointment was announced last December by the Department of the Army.

Gen. Tarpley is slated to assume his new duties Feb. 16.

Army to undergo reorganization



The Army will soon undergo a massive reorganization. On January 11th, Secretary of the Army Robert F. Froehlke announced a series of major actions designed to modernize, reorient, and streamline the Army's organization within the continental United States. Improved efficiency is the main purpose of the plan resulting in an annual savings of over $190 million.

The plan is the result of a special study announced in April 1972 by Sec. Froehlke. The plan was under the direction of Maj. Gen. James G. Kalergis. Improved readiness, training, material and equipment acquisition process, quality and responsiveness of management and support for the soldier in an era of constrained personnel and budget resources are the targets of reorganization. The plan is expected to be implemented by the end of this calendar year.

Such common terms as Continental Army Command (CONARC) and the United States Army Combat Developments Command (USACDC) will be replaced with TRADOC and FORSCOM. With a single field headquarters to be located at Ft. Monroe, Va., the Training and Doctrine Command (TRADOC) will pick up the job of directing all individual training, education and the development of organizations, material requirements and doctrine. The creation of the Forces Command (FORSCOM) as a single field headquarters was designed to supervise unit training and combat readiness of all Army units to include the Army Reserve and the National Guard.

Other highlights include the elimination of major administrative levels between all major Army posts and the Department of the Army. This means increased responsibility, authority and flexibility for installation commanders.

Dr. Hayes to give lecture on race relations problems

Dr. Robert E. Hayes Sr., United Methodist minister, will visit the 93ist Engr. Gp. for a week to give a series of lectures and participate in company level discussion groups. The lectures will center on race relations and social problems. He will arrive on January 22.

Dr. Hayes' education includes being an undergraduate at Wiley College where he graduated in 1941, with an A.B. Degree. In 1944, he earned his B.D. from Gammon Theological Seminary in Atlanta, Georgia. In 1946, while attending Boston University School of Theology, he earned his S.T.M. Degree and majored in the New Testament. During this time he wrote a thesis on "Jesus and the Pharasees," which is now part of the research documents in the Boston University of Theology Library. In 1969, he was given an Honorary Doctor of Divinity Degree from Wiley College.

Dr. Hayes has worked as an Instructor of Religion at Texas Southern University from 1946 to 1946.

From 1946 to 1957, he served as Executive Secretary of Christian Education in the Texas Annual Conference.

He served as pastor of the Pleasantville United Methodist Church in Houston, Texas, from 1953 to 1957. In 1957 as pastor of the Trinity United Methodist Church for six years. Then, in 1963, he served as the Superintendent of the Houston District for six years. In 1969 he worked as the Assistant to Bishop Kenneth W. Copeland for two years.

Dr. Hayes has served as a pastor in the Gulf Coast Annual Conference for twenty-seven years. While a pastor in Houston, Texas, he founded the Brooks Chapel United Methodist Church and the Pleasantville United Methodist Church. Currently, he is president of Wiley College in Marshall, Texas.

In 1969, Dr. Hayes was sent by the Methodist Boards of Missions and Evangelism to Central America as an Evangelist. He was a delegate to the World Methodist Conference in London, England, in the summer of 1966. In 1964, 1968, and 1972, he was a delegate to the Central Jurisdictional Conference.

Dr. Hayes is married to Mrs. Dorothy Willis Hayes and they have four children.

What did you enjoy the most about Adventure Training?

Scuba diving, girls, sharks, all a part of training

[illegible] that I've participated in. This gave them their open water scuba classification.

We were diving in the Gulf at Destin, Fla. when we heard over the citizens band radio that ¼ mile away the sharks were thick. We kept our eyes open at all times but were able to finish the classes. The water was hazy and visability was only six feet."

E-5 John Swope
58th Eng. Co. Float Bridge

"The first adventure training to Lake Eufaula was the one I enjoyed the most. We took 17 enlisted men to Lake Eufaula by boats going down the Chattahoochee River.

The men were in MOSs that didn't have many opportunities to get to the outdoors. Most of the men were clerks, drivers, cooks and mechanics.

We fished, camped and supported the trip which lasted three days and covered 73 miles of waterways."

PFC Willie Richey
586th Eng. Float Bridge Co.

"I enjoyed supporting the WACs down the Chattahoochee River. I had a lot of fun showing the girls how to skin and clean catfish, cook outdoors, and navigate the boats. It was a very interesting trip."

Capt. Jerry Herman
586th Eng. Float Bridge Co.

"Scuba diving in the Gulf was my most enjoyable adventure. I took a class of 6 people to Destin, Fla. for two inland dives and one gulf dive. One man ran out of air 70 feet down and I was able to help him to the surface using the buddy system technique where both people share the same regulator and air supply.

We also supported the hydro plane races at Lake Eufaula last August as a safety aspect. Four boats flipped over and we had to go down to rescue the occupants then hook onto the boats and pull them out. It was an adventure."

Cancer

How to protect yourself

"A greater awareness about cancer and the opportunities to protect ourselves against it could result in the saving of some 100,000 lives in the United States and in Columbus," said Col. (ret.) William McNally, Chairman, Public Education Committee, Columbus-Fort Benning Unit, American Cancer Society.

Because of this realization, the Columbus-Fort Benning Unit sponsored "Cancer Awareness Week" in December "This is only a portion of our total year-round Public Education Effort" emphasized Col. McNally. "Through this effort we hope to create a momentum among the people of Columbus and Fort Benning to want to learn more about safeguards against cancer—we want people to take personal action to protect themselves against cancer," Col. McNally continued.

In Infantry Hall was a tremendous display on the seven safeguards against cancer. This display included life saving information available to all passersby. Mrs. Anna Wagner and Miss Glorida Werner demonstrated the mini-quiz, "Do You Know How to Protect Yourself Against Cancer?" When you take the test, a light appears when you have the correct answer. Many people found this quiz to be very fascinating and informative.

The brochure "Cancer Detection Examination" outlines what every individual should ask for when they go to their doctor for an adequate cancer detection examination. If everyone would have this examination each year, many more lives could be saved from this dreaded disease.

In conjunction with a nation-wide objective, the Columbus-Fort Benning Unit will be concentrating on awareness about two particular safeguards against two particular types of cancer—cancer of the breast and cancer of the uterus.

Dr. John D. Watson Jr., Chairman of the Board, Columbus-Fort Benning Unit, American Cancer Society, outlines that "95 per cent of all breast cancers are discovered by women themselves." "About 85 per cent of women with breast cancer will be alive and well five years after treatment—if the disease is discovered in the early stages and properly treated."

As a safeguard against cancer of the breast, the Columbus-Fort Benning Unit will be emphasizing programs on breast self-examination. This simple personal health habit is a vitally important technique that every woman should practice. Through regular monthly examination by women themselves, lumps in the breast can be brought to the attention of their doctor in the early stages when the chances of cure are the greatest," emphasized Dr. Watson.

Awareness about the PAP Test, a simple, quick, painless test that can detect cancer of the womb or uterus when just starting, is another major priority of the Columbus-Fort Benning Unit. "Uterine cancer can be dramatically reduced as a cause if death—if every adult woman would have a Pap Test annually," said Dr. Watson.

Uterine cancer mortality has declined 65 per cent during the last 35 years. But despite the effectiveness of the Pap Test, only 53 per cent of women over 20 have ever had it. With a greater awareness and wider application of the Pap Test, many thousand more lives can be saved.

"I sometimes wonder if we are ware of the cancer facts in our own city," said Col. McNally. "For instance, last year in Columbus 201 people died needlessly from this disease. And in fact, 21 died of cancer of the breast while seven died of cancer of the uterus," said Col. McNally.

The Cancer Awareness Week of the Columbus-Fort Benning Unit was designed to make you aware that your health is your business, and that your ACS is there to provide you with information and materials.

Inadequate housing occupants to get relief

Five-hundred fifty Wherry housing units in Custer Terrace and ten duplex units on McIver Street were designated inadequate by the Department of the Army. All residents of inadequate houses have been notified by letter.

This designation gives new privileges to the company grade officers who live in these quarters. Henceforth, they will not be charged their full quarters allowance (BAQ) for the inadequate housing. They will not be mandatorily assigned to live in the substandard quarters. They will be able to move out of the quarters at government expense while still stationed at Fort Benning.

Effective Jan. 1, occupants of inadequate housing are being charged only 75 per cent of their BAQ. This reduction is a temporary adjustment. The Army District Engineer is appraising the housing units for a fair market rental rate. When this project is completed, residents may be charged either more or less than 75 per cent of their BAQ. Whatever amount is finally established as fair rent will not be retroactive though. Occupants will begin paying the new rental rates only when they are established.

Also effective immediately, only volunteers will occupy these quarters. This means no one will be required to live in them even when some are vacant. Before being declared inadequate, junior officers were mandatorily required to live in vacant Custer Terrace houses.

Anyone who now lives in them may be moved out at government expense. He can move to either adequate on-post housing or to off-post housing of his choice.

If no adequate on-post housing is vacant, a person's name can be placed on an active waiting list the day he applies to move. The government will move him when his name is reached and an adequate on-post housing becomes available.

The government will also move an individual from inadequate quarters to any dwelling off-post within a 50-mile radius. After being moved off-post, one can still be moved on-post later at government expense if he applies for and gets adequate government quarters.

The chief of the Family Housing Branch, Lawrence J. Mosley, said that he could not predict how long it will take residents of the inadequate houses to get adequate post housing. On Jan. 17 there were 37 on the active waiting list for adequate government quarters and 35-40 who had already applied to move. He said that no one knows how many occupants of inadequate units will want to move.

In the beginning of the week, a junior officer who had just arrived on post would have to wait four to five weeks to get adequate post housing. This, however, will change to a higher figure as applications come in to move from inadequate quarters.

All incoming junior officers will be given three choices. They can apply for adequate post housing, be placed on an active waiting list; and live off-post until adequate post quarters become available. They can move into inadequate government housing in Custer Terrace right away. Or they can choose to live off-post.

Mosely anticipates that most of the occupants of Custer Terrace will still be junior officer families. However there probably will be an increase in the number of wives and children living in Custer Terrace whose husbands are serving overseas in unaccompanied tours of duty.

In a letter sent to all the occupants of inadequate housing units Col. Henry E. Hutcheson, Director of Industrial Operations, said, "The majority of 'Wherry' housing in Custer Terrace has been considered by this headquarters to be substandard. Numerous reports of this situation have been forwarded to higher headquarters . . . (recommending) the housing be declared inadequate or that major improvements be made."

Rappelling Adventure Training

BY ALEX ANGELLE

Training areas are often where one finds them.

It appeared so to 10 members of Battery C, 2nd Battalion, 10th Field Artillery, 197th Infantry Brigade, who learned rappelling techniques outside their battery building as part of an adventure training program which will lead to an advanced rappelling class later this month.

The artillerymen gathered outside Parsiola Barracks on Kelley Hill Dec. 5, and were instructed by one of their peers, SP5 Craig Massey, a recent graduate of the Ranger course.

SP5 Massey demonstrated basic rappeling techniques, including body positions, commands, safety procedures and knots.

Following each segment of instruction and demonstration, those involved tried to perform some of the movements — although somewhat apprehensively. They began at the top of the three-story barracks — about a 30-foot height.

The most common technique taught to the artillerymen was the seat rappell, in which the rope is tied around one of the soldier's thighs and held with one hand in front and the other behind in a seat-like manner.

The most unusual and difficult technique presented was the Australian Commando Rappell. In this action the rope is tied in such a manner that the soldier can rappell while keeping one hand free for another purpose, such as signaling or shooting.

SP5 Massey said the men "were interested and enthusiastic, especially after they overcame an initial fear of the height."

When they try the taller, 55-foot tower at Todd Field later this month "they will be ready if this class is any indication," said Massey.

Sp5 Craig Massey prepares a rope for arrangement into a seat knot. He instructed a group of artillerymen from the 197th Infantry Brigade in rappelling techniques during adventure training at Kelley Hill Dec. 5. On his shirt is a snap link used during rappelling.

Chaplains

Two Chaplains now teaching in USAIS

Most people are unaware that chaplains teach classes at the Infantry School, and the idea is a relatively new one.

However, two chaplains were recently assigned to the USAIS Leadership Department. They are Sylvester L. Shannon and Meredith R. Standley, both majors.

The Chief of Army Chaplains, Maj. Gen. Gerhardt W. Hyatt, has begun a model program in which selected chaplains are assigned to various service schools for duty.

This program is carried out through the various commandants, and Chaplains Shannon and Standley are part of it. They follow Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Martin Heinecke, who pioneered the chaplain's role in this area during the period July 1971 to July 1972.

Their assignments, like those of other chaplains in CONARC service schools, are extensions of their ministry. They are instructors, research writers, and co-workers with other instructors and staff representatives.

One area of impact, among others, is the moral aspects of leadership. Chaplain Shannon is assigned to the Contemporary Subjects Committee, and Chaplain Standley to the Command and Leadership Committee.

Along with other instructors, Chaplain Shannon is working on the development of the Unit Race Relations Instructor Training Program (URRITP). He also teaches classes on methods for instructors to use in small group communications and in leadership aspects of race relations.

He recently served on the U. S. Army Chaplain Board in the area of ministry to minorities. A former Infantry officer, Chaplain Shannon has been previously assigned to the Infantry Center as a training officer, Office of Plans and Training, and to the Communications Committee in the Infantry School.

A native of St. Petersburg, Fla., he was granted a bachelor of science degree from Florida A and M University. He holds the master of divinity degree from Duke University, and has completed advanced studies in applied psychology and psychotherapy at Duke University and the University of Colorado.

Chaplain Shannon is a recent graduate of the U. S. Army Command and General Staff College. While there, he completed requirements for the master of arts degree in speech communications and human relations at the University of Kansas.

Chaplain Standley, who is with the Command and Leadership Committee, teaches ethics and discipline, value formation, disruptive influences, and human behavior. He is currently helping to re-write lesson plans for the program of instruction.

A former ROTC student, he graduated from Virginia Polytechnic Institute with a bachelor of science degree in sociology. He also received a master of divinity degree from Emory University's Candler School of Theology.

Chaplain Standley holds a master of arts degree in sociology from George Washington University, and a master of science degree in counseling from Long Island University. He has done additional work at the University of Texas in social values.

According to both chaplains, their assignments are "among the most creative, interesting, and challenging experiences we have encountered thus far."

Jewish film series started

The Jewish Center of Fort Benning is beginning a new and interesting program. They will be sponsoring a "Jewish Film Series." Once a month during the period of January thru May 1973, a full length feature film will be shown at the Jewish Center Building 2622. The public is invited. Admission is free.

RED CROSS

The Red Cross Basic Orientation Class for those who want to become Red Cross Volunteers will be Feb. 5, 8:45-1:00, at the Main Post Chapel Annex. For more information call Mrs. Anthony Slovacek, 545-2235.

TYPIST NEEDED

The Femline staff is losing its typist soon and is in need of a replacement. If you enjoy typing and are interested in giving some of your time to our staff, contact Judy Jakubowski, 322-3596.

MEN, HELP.

The OWC Cookbook is desperate for recipes men like to make. Any type from Beverages to Sandwiches. Submit them through your wife, the "femline" boxes, (at the two commissaries); or call Mrs. Richard Stoltz, 545-1845, 399 Miller Loop, Fort Benning.

TSB

The ladies of HEADQUARTERS, TSB, met for their monthly coffee Dec. 20 at the home of Mrs. Mike Greeson, Austin Loop, Fort Benning. A Christmas decor was attractively used by the hostess throughout her home. The decorations featured a gingham patchwork "kissy ball" and a wreath made by Mrs. Greeson.

Plans were made to attend the Brigade luncheon on Jan. 11. Mrs. Wayne Karonovich was extended a warm welcome into the group. Mrs. A. G. Norris honored departees, Mrs. Eugene Britt and Mrs. Bill Bowdren, by presenting both a silver tray. A special guest was the hostess' mother-in-law, Mrs. Earle Greeson, from Durant, Oklahoma.

After an exchange of gifts, the hostess invited everyone to a lovely refreshment table. There were many expressions of delight over the centerpiece—a Della Robia cake with Marzipan fruit. Plum pudding, sandwiches, divinity, egg nog, and coffee were served by the hostess.

The ladies of the FOURTH PLATOON, IOAC 2-73, hostessed a buffet luncheon for the entire class at the Ralston Hotel, Georgian Room, in Columbus on Jan. 17.

Sara Spano, Columbus Ledger food editor, was the guest speaker. Coordinating with the speaker, the tables were decorated with cook books and cooking utensils.

S.A.C.

The ladies of the SMALL ARMS COMMITTEE started the New Year with their monthly coffee, Jan. 4. The coffee was held at the lovely home of Mrs. Douglas Fletcher, Whippoorwill Lane, Columbus. Cohostess was Mrs. Thomas Lemley.

After home-made cookies, bread, bite-size sausage and biscuits served with coffee, tea and punch; Mrs. Jules Trepagnier announced to the ladies that S.A.C. will be responsible for giving the Weapons Department tea in April. Ideas were needed for this spring function and a Spring Fashion Show was suggested by the ladies. Final plans will be made at upcoming monthly coffees.

FRIENDSHIP BEE

The opportunity of a life time was missed if you did not attend the Friendship Bee featuring the Allied Wives. The Friendship Bee gave us the chance to "visit" countries not on the usual military tour list. If you have the chance at our next meeting say hello to our lovely Allied visitors.

One can never claim boredom after viewing the activity sign-up tables at the Friendship Bee. Even the most discriminating woman would have found something to her liking. If you were not able to sign-up before, look for information on the activities in the "Femline."

OWC ACTIVITIES

Did you miss the OWC Friendship "Bee" Tea? If so, you missed a lovely get-together but you don't have to miss out on all of our super classes.

There are some classes being offered for the first time that have openings left. They are:

American Woman — Who is She? A discussion group and seminar on the woman question in philosophy, history, sociology, politics, and literature. To be held Wednesdays from 1:00 till 2:30. Seven weeks for $12.50. Call Mrs. Franklin Hart at 545-4108.

Baby Sitting Course — Instruction for teens ages 12 and up on infant care and feeding, toddler care and discipline, and first aid. Certification follows successful completion of the course. The instructor will keep a list of "graduates" for recommendation to parents. To be held Tuesday evenings 7 to 8. Four lessons for $5. Call Mrs. Wm. Higgins at 545-2926.

"Bee" low the Belt — Learn to sew jeans and pants for boys and men. Special instruction will be given on sewing pockets, flys, and waistbands. You'll have a finished product upon completion of the class. To be held Fridays 9 to 11 a.m. Four lessons for $8. Call Mrs. Norbert Otto at 545-1207.

China Painting — Learn to paint on China. You'll have a lovely decorated plate and bowl upon completion of the course. To be held Tuesdays from 9 till 12. Six lessons for $24. Call Mrs. Justin Zack at 545-7748.

Creative Stitchery (crewel) — Make a sampler of 25 stitches to be made into a tote bag upon completion of the course. To be held on Mondays or Friday, 9:30 to 11:30. You'll also learn to make and transfer your own patterns and to mount and finish your needlework. Six lessons for $12. Call Mrs. Arthur Richards at 545-2748.

A Knack with Knits — Become an expert in sewing with knits. Learn to make tee shirts, slacks, and unlined coats and jackets, etc. Also to be covered are pattern choice, design and measurement. To be held Thursdays 9 to 11 or 1 to 3. Four lessons for $10. Call Mrs. Michael McCormick at 545-7248.

Scuba Diving — Learn to scuba dive. A lecture session plus a pool session each week. Upon successful completion of the course, you become a certified diver by the NASDS and RADI. Equipment provided. Two courses in the personal management series conducted in Infantry Hall by Mr. D. Earl Zook are scheduled. Course I (Monday-Wednesday, 1815-2025 hours) begins 15 Jan. and ends 29 Jan. 73. Course II (Tuesday-Thursday, 1815-2025 hours) begins 16 Jan. and ends 30 Jan. 73. Subjects include: "How to get the most out of your Income"; "How to plan your Financial Future"; "How to invest wisely"; "Financial Problems of Military Personnel and how to Avoid Them!"; "How to save $1,000 per year in the Purchase, Operation and Maintenance of Automobiles"; "An Evaluation of Future Trends which Affect you and Preparation For Retirement". No fees or books are required; class size limited. To enroll, contact Mr. Alderfer, Room E-25, Infantry Hall, phone 545-4031.

Spoken Russian

The Army Education Center will offer a course in Spoken Russian beginning 22 January 1973 and ending 2 April 1973. Classes will be taught 1900-2100 0hours on Monday and Wednesday. Dependents may attend on a space available basis when accompanied by military sponsor. There is no cost to the individual and textbooks are furnished on a loan basis by USAFI. To enroll call 545-7250 from 1300-01645 hours Monday through Friday or come by Room 3900B, Bldg. 35.

Reenlistment Eligibility

Effective 1 February 1973 personnel serving on their first term of active service will no longer be permitted to re-enlist upon completion of eight months' service. Personnel will be required to complete twenty-one months' active federal service before becoming eligible to reenlist. Personnel who incur a service remaining requirement prior to completion of twenty-one months' service may be extended, if qualified UP Chapter 4, AR 601-280.

DA Poster Contest

Enter the DA Soldier Artist's Poster Project Contest. This contest is designed for promotional and publicity posters depicting Special Services Activities. Poster designs should promote one of the seven Special Services core programs; i.e., Arts and Crafts, Youth Activities, Entertainment, Music and Theaters, Libraries, Outdoor Recreation, Service Clubs, and Sports. Captions should include active verbs such as, "visit", "see", "attend" or any invitation to participate in the Special Services Program. Designs should be limited to two colors; i.e., black on white, and be 14x20 inches in size. There will be a winner chosen in each of the seven core programs. The prizes are as follows: Installation level - $10.00 cash award per core level, 3rd Army level - $500.000 savings bond, Department of the Army level - $100.00 savings bond. All entries must be turned in by 9 February 1973.

Reenlistment options for MOS 71 and 73

Department of the Army has announced a new innovation in acquiring reenlistment assignments for qualified personnel in PMOS 71 and 73 (personnel with PMOS 71T or 71U not included). Effective immediately, E-4's and below and a limited number of E-5's may qualify for overseas assignment (their choice, short tours only) with the additional option of choosing their Post of assignment upon rotation prior to reenlistment. Further, this option could offer advanced school training in certain MOS prior to assignment to new duty station or overseas theater. In addition to the above a limited number of special assignments are available to such areas as India, SHAPE Headquarters, MAAG's and Missions. For additional information, contact your command career counselor.

10th Anniversary Reunion

Westmoreland encourages new officers

Gen. (ret.) William C. Westmoreland encouraged graduating officer candidates at Fort Benning today to assume their new leadership roles with honesty, integrity, and concern for the men they will lead.

The former Army Chief of Staff told the newly commissioned second lieutenants that most of their careers will probably not be spent in combat. Their job will be to keep the Army ready to deter conflict.

"Resolve to maintain the standards you have learned here," he said. "Protect your men from injustice. You assume greater authority, but with that authority you assume greater responsibility.

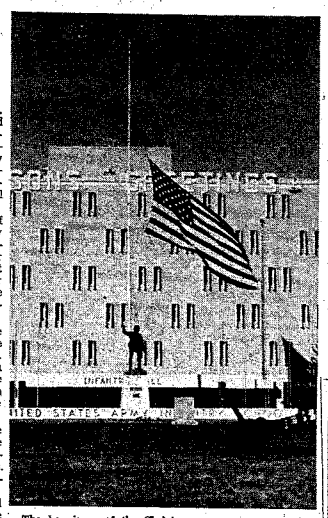
"The problems you face today are the same as the problems outside the military. Race relations. Drugs. Crime. Disrespect for authority."

He felt the greatest need for the country and the Army today is quality leadership and humane management in the midst of technology.

"Technology must remain our servant, and never become our master."

Among the graduates was a former driver of Gen. Westmoreland, James Payne. He drove for the Army Chief of Staff until July when he began Officer Candidate School.

After the graduation, Gen. Westmoreland visited a ranger class graduation reception, an official luncheon, and the Combat Arms Training Board before leaving Fort Benning by plane in the afternoon.



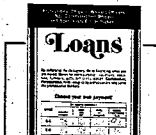
Buena Vista Rd. to be shut off from post

The part of Buena Vista Road that runs through the Fort Benning military reservation will be permanently closed to all traffic beginning Feb. 15.

The road, which runs east and west, will be blocked at both ends of the reservation with locked gates. The west barrier will be placed at Schatulga and Buena Vista Roads. The east barrier will be at Buena Vista Road and the Chattahoochee-Marion County line.

The action became necessary because of malicious vandalism of range facilities and unauthorized dumping of trash along Buena Vista Road.

Buena Vista Road was closed to all through traffic the first time in 1963, when Georgia turned control of the road over to Fort Benning. The federal government had just completed two roads then to serve as a bypass for motorists who used the Buena Vista Road.



The happiness of the Christmas season and the sadness of a great man dead are visible as the Season's Greetings sign on Infantry Hall is partially obscured by the Fort Benning flag at Half-mast in memory of the late President Harry S Truman, who died on Dec. 26. The guns used to salute the deceased President rest on York Field, and these guns and four more like them fired a 50-gun solute for the man who many consider to be one of the greatest leaders of the century.

Twenty-one playgrounds to be constructed on post

Twenty-one new playgrounds are being constructed at Fort Benning by the Directorate of Facilities Engineering in coordination with the Directorate of Industrial Operations.

The playgrounds are being located in the Family Housing areas along Custer Road, on Main Post and in Bouton Heights, the newly constructed quarters near Martin Army Hospital.

The $30,000 project includes the allocating and preparation of land and the installment of equipment.

At the present time, there are five playgrounds completed, approximately 32 per cent of the total.

There are 120 items of equipment to be installed among the 21 areas, including benches for both the children and their parents.

The project was begun Nov. 7, 1972 with the completion date projected in the late spring.

The installation of equipment includes the pouring of cement for supporting rods, and parents are reminded to keep children off the equipment until the warning signs are removed, after 72 hours, to allow the cement to harden with supporting rods at the correct angles.

Soldiers honored

The Infantry Board observed a rare ceremony in their conference room recently. Although only company size, USAIB had five soldiers honored with awards for service from the Army. Two individuals received Bronze Star Medals, while three were awarded Army Commendation Medals. The awards were presented to the soldiers by Board president, Col. Walter E. Meinzen.

Sgt. John E. Prince received the Bronze Star Medal for his meritorious service in Vietnam. He served an eight month tour of duty in 1971 and 1972.

Also receiving a Bronze Star was Sp4 James E. Haley. Haley served in Vietnam throughout the year of 1971. Both men earned the medal for their initiative, loyalty, and devotion to duty.

Master Sgt. Larry K. Ferguson received his Army Commendation Medal for his service as First Sergeant of the Infantry Board, and as the Principal NCO of the Technical Test Support Branch of the Infantry Board. In relation to his work as the Principal NCO, he was especially commended for his problem solving ability and excellent judgement that directly influenced both testing and administrative functions.

An Army Commendation Medal was also presented to Sgt. David L. Jones, who distinguished himself by his service in Vietnam. Jones served as a squad leader for two different units. His responsibilities in these positions were varied. He also served as the NCOIC of a force of command security guards. Here he was responsible for personnel scheduling on more than 25 widely separated posts.

Sp5 Herman L. Browning was also a recipient of an Army Commendation Medal. Browning received his award for his service in support of allied counterinsurgency operations.

Marriage Seminar to be held Sunday

The Seminar will be conducted by Chaplain Richard Nybro. Chaplain Nybro is a 1971 graduate of the American Institute of Family Relations in Los Angeles and is well qualified in the field of marriage counseling. His topic will be, "Transactional Analysis—how it works and how it can promote understanding."

Love, the primary purpose of the conjugal union, can be strengthened and increased in any and all marriages. Don't miss this opportunity to enhance the quality of your marriage.

Symphony Concert to be Jan. 23

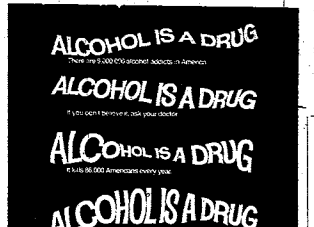
On Tuesday evening January 23 at 8:00 in Columbus College's Fine Arts Hall the Columbus Symphony Orchestra, Harry Kruger conductor, will present the second subscription concert of the 1972-73 season.

The major selection on the evening's program will be "Lincoln Portrait" by Aaron, Copland, outstanding contemporary American composer. The work calls for a narrator with the orchestra. A surprise guest celebrity will do the narration. Announcement of his identity will be made in local news media at a later date.

Opening the program will be the charming "Brandenburg Concerto No. 4" by Bach, featuring Natalie Kruger and Nancy Vinson, solo flutes, and Andrew Galor, solo violin. Mrs. Kruger is the wife of the conductor and principal flutist with the orchestra, and Mrs. Vinson plays in the flute section. Dr. Galor is the symphony's concertmaster.

Rounding out the evening's music will be Mendelssohn's Fifth Symphony, known as the Reformation Symphony.

Tickets for the concert are priced at $2.000, $2.50 and $3.50, with students and enlisted men half price. They may be purchased on the day of the concert from 10:00 to 4:30 at the symphony box office, 1100 3rd Avenue in Columbus, and after 7:30 that evening at the Fine Arts Hall box office.



For further information and advance ticket reservations write the Columbus Symphony Guild, P.O. Box 5361, Columbus, Ga., 31906 or call 323-5059.

Volunteers spend a day in the nursery

Most wives and mothers have interests and activities away from the home to give them a change of pace from laundry, scrubbing diapers, and continuous childish chatter. Some women play bridge, some jog, some go to craft classes. But two of us change diapers away from home as well as at home. We work as American Red Cross Volunteers in the Martin Army Hospital newborn nursery.

While most of us know what the routine of a maternity ward is, not many are familiar with the nursery routine. Here is the typical schedule for the Red Cross volunteer. In the nursery, cleanliness is of prime importance, so first of all our uniform is exchanged for a green "scrub dress". Hardly the latest fashion — but utilitarian. When we enter the nursery our first duty is to scrub our hands, and scrub and scrub and scrub. It's hard on the skin, but helps to insure safety against infection for the newborns.

When we make a quick turn around the nursery, we usually find one of two things to do. First we assist in feeding the premature babies, those not large enough to go home yet. Some of these that are large enough to be out of an incubator but babies may be several weeks old, so, often we are rewarded with first smiles. Our next duty is to prepare the other babies for their mothers to feed them. We make sure they have on clean diapers and shirts, wrap them in a receiving blanket, put the bottle of formula in the crib, and check to make sure each baby has a supply of clean diapers, shirts, and waterproof pads. Then the babies are wheeled out and placed next to their mother's chair for feeding. This general activity takes a while — especially since we thoroughly wash our hands between preparing one baby and the next.

Another of our duties is to talk with the mothers while they feed their babies. We answer what questions we can or refer the mother to one of the nurses when we can't, and give pointers on the fine arts of diapering, clothing, changing and burping. After feeding we reverse the process and bring the babies back in and check for wet pants, and tuck them in for a nap (amazingly, on occasion they all sleep). We also record how much each baby ate.

Now, assuming everyone is asleep, we can attack the chores that always need to be done. Such as folding diapers. Do you have any idea how many diapers 20 babies go through in one day? Checking and refilling supply trays can always be done. Also there are occasional errands to the various labs (blood, ray, etc.) Each trip we wear a coverall gown to keep our nursery gown clean, and we scrub our hands when we re-enter the nursery.

There are lots of fringe benefits with our nursery work. Watching a baby get his first bath a very few minutes after he comes squalling into the world is always exciting. So is watching a new daddy see his child for the first time.

Best of all, it's standing nursery policy to love the babies from the minute they're born. It's the main purpose of our job — holding, cuddling, spoiling, and loving babies.

1st. Bn. TSB needs help in tracing battalions history

Lt. Col. Donald C. Bowman, Commander, First Battalion, TSB, recognizing the need to trace the battalion's history back to its beginning, has initiated a project to reconstruct that history in as much detail as is possible.

Unit histories have always been a major source of pride and esprit de corps. First Battalion is no different in this respect from any other unit of the Army. As "The Home of Leadership," we take great pride in our mission as it relates to the Infantry School. It is known that over the years the battalion has always been a staunch supporter of activities here at Fort Benning. Many trophies adorning our headquarters attest to the success of former members in many and varied post events. One wall of the battalion trophy room is filled with pictures of former commanders, dating back to Aug. 1939. Our history back to this date is partially complete.

The period which remains a mystery is that period from 1939 back to the birth of the battalion, then known as the Infantry School Detachment, which appears to be sometime around 1908. Lt. Col. Bowman seeks to fill that gap with as much information as can be gathered by whatever sources are available.

Sources here at Fort Benning have been tapped and some information has been garnered, but a large block of information is still missing. We seek the names of every former commander, his picture and the dates of his tenure. In addition, we seek information regarding the activities in which the unit participated to include athletics and social activities. Our ultimate goal is a trophy room filled with a complete pictorial and written history of this unit.

Anyone having pictures, articles or personal knowledge of activities surrounding the First Battalion or the Infantry School Detachment is asked to contact the Commander, First Battalion, ATTN: S1, Fort Benning, Georgia 31905.

Roughing it

Benning WACs spend three days adventuring on an island

Why do 15 women choose to float down a river and spend three days roughing it on an island?

These women were members of the Women's Army Corps (WAC) Company, Headquarters Command, Fort Benning. The trip was part of the popular adventure training program here.

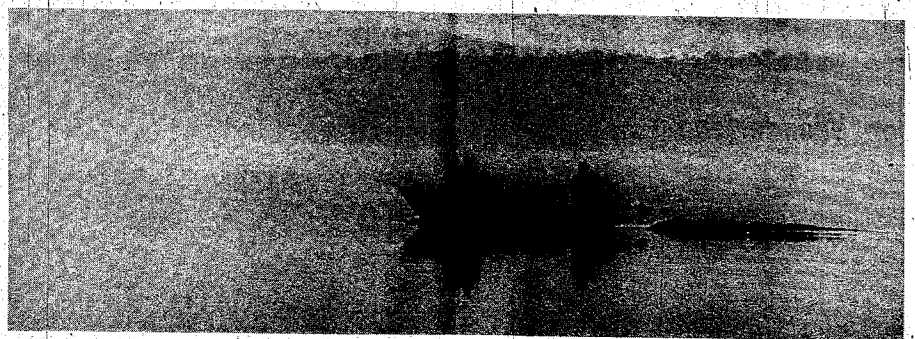
The four day trip involved using pontoons to go 80 miles down the Chattahoochee River in south Georgia. The WACs then spent three nights on an island in Lake Eufaula near the mouth of Fateula Creek.

Lt. Laura Whitaker, officer in charge of the WACs, said "The purpose of the trip was to have fun while developing outdoor skills. Also, this builds spirit by working together in fun while accomplishing something."

She said "Training like this is necessary because women are an important aspect of military life. They learn responsibility and discipline by working in small groups."

Why did the girls volunteer?

PFC Bunny Reed, a suspense clerk in finance, said "I went because it sounded like a lot of fun. I wanted the nature training too."



PFC Kathleen Reilly, a medical lab technician, felt, "It's pretty cool. I like to do things like this, camping and outdoors stuff."

For Elsie Perry, a private who works as a finance control clerk, this was her first camping trip. She said "I went because I thought it would be fun. We did a lot of the same things we did in basic — putting up tents, exploring, cooking outdoors."

The only woman orienteer at Fort Benning, Sp5 Debbie Kruse went because "It sounded real interesting. Basically, it was just outdoor stuff — camping, fire, stuff like that."

Support for the trip was supplied by Headquarters Command and the 586th Engineers (Float Bridge), 93ist Engineer Group. Basics survival skills covered included, camping, outdoor cooking and fishing.

"1984"

Dramatizers name cast for new play

After four talent-filled tryout sessions, the Director of "1984," Joanne Burns, and her Assistant Dave Hoyt announced their choices Monday evening at the Dramatizers' weekly meeting.

Sheila Plank, whose credits are numerous and include performances as Maggie in "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof" San Francisco Summer Stock Players), Rose in "Bye Bye Birdie" (Kagnew Players, Titania in "A Midsummer Night's Dream" (Fort Benning Playhouse), and Tessie in "Gypsy" (Springer Theatre) will play the female lead as Julia.

Capt. Robert Herzog, who has recently come to Fort Benning from Ft. Hamilton, N. Y. to attend IOAC, will portray Winston Smith. Credits he accumulated while at St. John's College include the Common Man in "A Man for All Seasons," Harry in "You Can't Take It With You," Daniel Webster in "The Devil and Daniel Webster," the bore in "The Bore" and Swedish Gentleman in "Mother Courage."

The Dramatizers are also pleased to welcome Art and Dae Lane, two highly experienced and very talented stage veterans who will be seen in Fort Benning for the first time. Mr. Lane will play O'Brien, a powerful member of the Inner Party. Mr. Lane's recent performances at the Springer Threatre include Doolittle in "My Fair Lady," W. D. Grant in "Look Homeward, Angel," Col. Mitkitt in "Black Comedy," Mayor Sheen in "M'me" and Gen. Bourgoyne in "The Devil's Disciple"" Mrs. Lane will appear as the Landlady in "1984." She has performed at the Springer Theatre as the Pickalittle Lady in "The Music Man," Mrs. Eyneford Hill in "My Fair Lady," Mrs. Bedwin in "Oliver," Miss Mangle in "Look Homeward, Angel," and Electra in "Gypsy."

Syme, translator of "Oldspeak" into "Newspeak," will be portrayed by Bob Swain, who directs the Dramatizers' weekly acting Workshop. Bob's credits include Hercules in "Rape of the Belt" (Stratford College), Paris in "Tiger at the Gate" (Stratford), Kenneth Dowey in "The Old Lady Shows Her Medals" (Stratford), and the Boy in "Tantasticks" (VPI Theatre).

David McQueen will appear in two roles, as Parsons and Goldstein. He has been seen recently in the Dramatizers' productions of "Carnival" as Dr. Glass, as Egeus in "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and as William Winter in "Edwin Booth," as well as having participated in various productions at the University of Iowa.

Another Dramatizer of long standing, Leanne Gomez, will be playing the roles of Gladys, a young spy, and of the messenger. Miss Gomez has appeared at the Fort Benning Playhouse in the role of Peaseblossom in "A Midsummer Night's Dream," as Piglet in "Winnie the Pooh" and as Boy Edwin in "EdwinBooth."

A newcomer to the Dramatizers and to the stage, Meri Hensler will play the Coffee Vendor.

Playing the Guards will be Phillip Lyman, new to the Dramatizers, who attended Stanford University in Palo Alto, Ca. and in England. Drew Fuller, whose stage experience includes the Sheriff in "The Rainmaker" at Harding College; Glen Sandy, who played Lenny Newwark in "Up the Down Staircase" in high school and appeared as Starveling the Tailor in "A Midsummer Night's Dream" (Fort Benning Playhouse), and has worked extensively in hackstage captcities; and Keko Swain, whose credits from the VPI Theatre include the Maid in "The Boyfriend," German in "The Night of the Iguana" and Miss Petfisky in "The World of January."

Ed Gross, who is Production Coordinator, will also play Big Brother, who is heard but not seen. With credits too numerous to list, he has appeared in productions at Webster College and, Fontbonne College in St. Louis, Mo., and with the Loretto-Hilton Repertory Company. At Fort Benning, he has played Will Roper in "A Man for All Seasons," the Fin Woodsman in "The Wizard of Oz," Madame Arcati in "Blythe Spirit" and more recently, as Obtron in "A Midsummer Night's Dream." Winnie the Pooh in "Winnie the Pooh," and Edwin Booth in "Edwin Booth," which he also directed. In addition, he has served as set designer and technical director on a number of shows. He has also designed the set for "1984."

The cast runs the gamut of talent and experience, and promises to make this adaptation of George Orwell's modern classic of negative utopia exciting theatre fare for all.

Tryouts to be held for 'Allison Wonderland'

The Springer Children's Theatre has announced tryouts for the upcoming production of ALLISON WONDERLAND a new rock musical for young people by Thom Racina. Auditions will be held Monday and Tuesday, January 15 and 16, at 7:00 p.m., at the Springer Opera House.

The play, which is a very new version of a very old story, calls for 18 cast members ranging in ages from 10 years (for the Heralds) to adults. To play the roles of Allison, the White Rabbit, the Caterpillar, the Mad Hatter, the March Hare, the Dormouse, the Queen, the Mock Turtle, and the Duchess, the Company will need young men and women who can act and sing, and, in some cases, dance a little. In addition to these roles, the cast will also include four Heralds, Allison's mother and father, the Knave, the King, and, of course, the Cheshire Cat.

Those who wish to audition for roles in ALLISON WONDERLAND should come to the auditions with something prepared to sing. Those wishing accompaniment should bring their own music. Any individual who is interested in working backstage for the production in areas such as costumes, set construction, props, or publicity, should also attend the auditions to fill out application cards.

Post families selected for recycling project

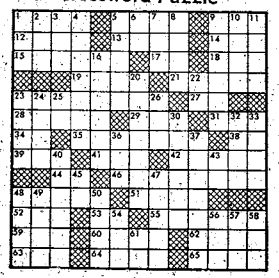
A number of families at Fort Benning have been selected to participate in a pilot recycling project beginning Jan. 15. Recyclable materials will be picked up each week at three groups of field grade officer housing.

Quarters in the test group are being asked to place recyclable materials in specially marked containers. Recyclable materials include glass (clear and white), paper, and aluminum or steel ("tin") cans.

Unrecyclable items such as household waste, table scraps, wood, plastic, will be picked up as usual each week.

Recyclable glass must be rinsed clean, and snap rings and tops must be removed. It is suggested that the glass be placed on the bottom of the container marked RCYCLE, but it may also be placed separately in a paper sack.

Recyclable paper is uncoated or unwaxed paper or cardboard. This should be placed in the container in a bundle, or in a separate paper sack. Recyclable cans are aluminum or steel (tin).



Cans must be rinsed clean, have paper labels, tops, and bottoms removed, and be flattened or crushed as much as possible. They should be placed in a paper or plastic bag or in a small cardboard box within the larger container marked RECYCLE.

Participants are encouraged to separate, clean, and remove tops and snap rings from brown and green glass and bring these to the Post Recycle Point, located on Guadette Street next to the Post Exchange Auto Rental.

If it is successful, the program will benefit Fort Benning in several ways. These include conserving natural resources, and reducing the operating cost and size of the post sanitary landfills.

The sale of recyclables by the Property Disposal Office also provides funds for the U.S. Treasury. Individual cooperation is encouraged, since it is necessary for the program's success.

Answer to Puzzle

'Duffer's Drift' now available at book store

Lieutenant Backsight Forethought (BF to his friends) has been left in command of a 50-man reinforced platoon to hold Duffer's Drift, the only ford on the Shloassvogel River available to wheeled traffic. Here is his chance for fame and glory. He has passed his officer courses and special qualifications. "Now if they had given me a job," says BF, "like fighting the Battle of Waterloo, or Gettysburg, or Bull Run, I knew all about that . . ."

This humorous but thought provoking story of a lieutenant and his first command has been reprinted by INFANTRY Magazine in conjunction with the Fort Benning Commandant's Welfare Fund's program to distribute a copy of "Duffer's Drift" to all IOAC and IOBC officers as part of their study of the platoon and company in the defense.

"The Defense of Duffer's Drift," this classic in small unit tactics, is now available in paperback at the Fort Bennnig Bookstore at 50 cents a copy.

WORLD WIDE BANKING
we've got night depositories all over the WORLD

Yes, our World Wide banking services give us night depositories all over the globe.
Here is how it works:
While we sleep, National Bank of Fort Benning customers are making deposits all over the world, by mail, or through the JUMPS program, whichever is most convenient. All of our full service banking programs are operated with the traveler in mind, so NBFB can be your bank, no matter where you live or are stationed, and no matter how long you might be away.
The programs were invented with the military in mind, but it works just as well for civilians who find their business takes them far from home.
It's a matter of convenience, and convenience is what people want in their banking. We ARE the "People Bank."

205th Avn. Co. takes Escape and Evasion Survival course

Escape and Evasion courses and survival courses have long been an important aspect of Army Aviator training.

Army Aviation, by its very nature, has concentrated primarily on land survival. But with the ever-increasing role of Army Aviation, more and more missions require flight over water. In addition, should a flight crew find themselves in a survival situation in a remote area, the fastest and easiest, or possibly the only, means of reaching civilization might well be through utilization of water routes.

To prepare for this eventually, the men of the 205th Aviation Company, Aviation Command at Fort Benning have established a water survival-escape and evasion training program in conjunction with the Aviation Command's emphasis on Adventure Training.

The high point of the program is an expedition down the Chattahoochee River by raft to an island in Lake Eufaula, where the crew establishes a camp for the night. The next day the men and their raft are recovered by CH-47 "Chinook" the men boarding the aircraft by troop ladder while it is at a hover. The raft is transported back to Fort Benning as a sling load.

The men of the 205th have constructed their own rafts from aircraft wingtip fuel tanks as well as scrap wood and metal. An effort is made to use only those materials which would be available to the crew of a downed aircraft.

The feasibility of the project was put to a test on September 5, 1972. A single raft under the command of Capt James D. Davis, Aviation Command S-4, departed Fort Benning at noon. The raft was crewed by CW2 Donald Garnto, SFC Harry E. Jaynes, SSG Donald J. Gorski, Sp6 Kenton H. Minor, and Sp6 Stanley W. Steger.

Aviation Cmd. starts Adventure Training

The USAIC Aviation Command has developed a program of Adventure Training for the men assigned to the Aviation Units here at Fort Benning. Adventure Training is a concept developed by the Army to provide interesting and meaningful training to troops. It is often an attempt to do something that hasn't been done before.

The first of a series of Aviation Command Adventure Training expeditions was a tour of the Lockheed facility at Marietta, Georgia, the plant that produces the 6-130 Hercules, the C-141 Starlifter, the four-engine Jetstar, and the giant C-5 Galaxy, the world's largest airplane.

The group of 28 enlisted men and 2 officers left Lawson Army Airfield at eight a.m. in a CH-47 Chinook furnished by the 205th Aviation Company. When they arrived at Dobbins AFB, adjacent to the Lockheed Plant, they were met by a representativ eof the Lockheed public relations department and conducted to a conference room where they saw a movie on the C-130 Hercules and talked with the chief engineer of the C-5 project.

Following a briefing on the plant's operation, the group toured the assembly and repair areas. The high point of the trip was unquestionably the C-5 Galaxy, which they were able to examine in detail. Test pilots and engineers were on hand to answer questions and explain the unique aspects of this most extraordinary air craft.

Additional tours of the Lockheed facility are planned for the near future as well as expeditions to other areas of interest to aviation personnel.

MAH participating in national electronic injury surveillance

If you have been treated at Martin Army Hospital during the last five months for an injury involving a product you are a statistic on file with the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Martin Army Hospital began participating in the National Electronic Injury Surveillance System (NEISS) administered by the Bureau of Product Safety of the Food and Drug Administration on July 10. Since that time over 1400 injury cases have been reported.

The reporting system is comprised of 119 hospitals throughout the country that are connected by teletype to the FDA master computer located outside Washington, D.C. Martin Army Hospital is one of three Third Army hospitals selected to participate in this important and interesting program.

The purpose of the system is to discover national trends in injuries related to products and, when indicated, to investigate specific cases. Ultimately, the investigation may result in the removal of potentially harmful products from store shelves; or recommendations to manufacturers for modifications which will make their products safer for consumers. Exceptions to reporting are industrial or occupational injuries, assaults, auto accidents, and animal bites.

Each injury involving a product, whether it be a cut from an exploding soft drink bottle or a burn from a toy baking oven, is reported to the hospital admission and dispositions office. Here the report is coded and such things as the product involved, extent of injury, and the age and sex of the injured are punched onto a teletype tape. Each night the master computer in Washington automatically queries and receives the reports from Martin Army Hospital along with those of the other 118 hospitals throughout the country.

Boxing

Fontanez is 197th 'fly weight' favorite for tourney

BY ROBERT THOMAS

When the U. S. Army Boxing Tournament at Ft. Campbell, Ky. opens on January 22, the overwhelming favorite to take the "fly weight" division will be Luis Erique Perez Fontanez, of the 197th Inf. Bde.

The 18-year-old boxer, who is currently serving as a company clerk with HHD, 197th Spt. Bn., 197th Inf. Bde., will join four other Fort Benning boxers on the trip. It will be the second such tournament for the 106-pound fighter. He won the event in April of 1972, when it was held at Ft. Bragg, N. C.

Perez Fontanez began boxing about 15 years ago, when he learned about the sport from his father in his native Puerto Rico. He credits his father for his success.

"I have been boxing for as long as I can remember," explained the agile fighter. "My dad boxed in the Coast Guard. He started teaching me then."

Spending almost all of his own time training for the tournament, Perez Fontanez has been training rigorously over the past several months. Much time has been spent running, lifting weights and punching the heavy bag. Speed and endurance are important factors in a tournament. Perez Fontanez concentrates on both.

Nicknamed "The Fighting Flea," Perez Fontanez has won 9 of 11 matches since he joined the Army and completed basic training in 1971. Last year in a pre-Olympic tournament he missed going to the Munich games by one bout.

"I would have really liked to have gone to the Olympics," he confirmed. "It would have been a great thrill to represent the United States and my home of Puerto Rico. But right now I am thinking only of the U. S. Army Championship. I would like to win it again."

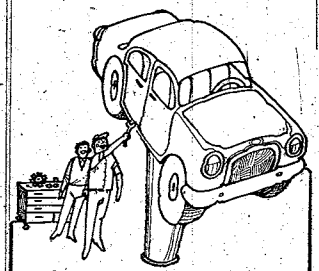
Allstar selections



Towering Nate Thurmond, named Tuesday as player-coach of the Golden State Warriors for a week in the absence of ailing Coach Al Attles, also was selected to play in the National Basketball Association's All-Star game Jan. 23 at Chicago.

The 6-foot-11 Thurmond was picked for the West Division team by Coach Bill Sharman of Los Angeles, along with Chet Walker of Chicago, Dave Bing and Bon Lanier of Detroit, Gail Goodrich of Los Angeles, and Bob Dandridge, of Milwaukee.

East Division Coach Tom Heinsohn of Boston completed his squad by naming Bill Bradley of New York, Elvin Hayes of Baltimore, Jo Jo White of Boston, John Block of Philadelphia, Jack Martin of Houston and Bob Kauffman of Buffalo.

An overflow crowd gathered at the Rod and Gun Club last Friday to watch the presentation of two Remington shotguns to the hunters who had registered the heaviest deer and deer with the most antler points in the club big deer contest. M. Sgt. Julian Guzman received the gun for the deer with the most points and SFC (ret.) William Malueg received a gun for registering the heaviest deer during the 1972-73 season. A good number of the spectators were more interested to know the winner of the third gun. The lucky hunter turned out to be SFC Frank O. Long. His name was selected from all the members who had registered a deer of any type in the contest during the hunting season.

Ridley Bell, host of the WRBL-TV Sportsman Lodge Program presented the awards. Highlights of the activities of the evening were taped and will be aired on the program at 6 p.m. Saturday, January 27.

A record number of harvested deer were checked through the Fish and Wildlife Check Station during the 1972-73 hunting season. A total of 112 more animals than were registered during the season. During this past season 629 deer were registered. Ten of these, four bucks and six does were taken in Georgia during the bow hunting season. During the gun hunting season 407 bucks and 141 does were taken on the Georgia side of the reservation and 41 bucks and 20 does were taken on the Alabama side of the reservation.

During the 1971-72 season a total of 517 deer were registered at the check point. The Georgia side of the reservation produced 364 bucks and 108 does. The Alabama side produced 45 bucks and 10 does. The total harvest for the 1971-72 season topped the 1970-71 harvest by 25 animals.

The deer harvest on the reservation has been increasing steadily since immediately after World War II when a harvest of 40 animals was considered a good year. According to Roy Johnson, chief of the Post Fish and Wildlife unit the record harvest this year hasn't hurt the deer herd. He feels that the present population is about right for the amount of cover and forage available.

This rapid growth of the deer population on post didn't happen accidently. It required quite a bit of planning and work involving a multitude of varied tasks including the planting of permanent feed patches, building permanent openings in the pine forest, building of firebreaks, a systematic burning of dense underbrush areas and the clear cutting of other areas to name a few.

The check point maintained each year by the Fish and Wildlife Unit also contributes considerably to the health and growth of the population. Examinations of carcasses by wildlife technicians give them valuable information concerning the health and reproduction activities of the herd and the density of the population in various sections of the reservation.

Predator control has also played a definite part in the increase of the deer herd. Fort Benning has its share of wild dogs. Most of these animals have been deposited on the reservation by former owners who had no more use for the animals. They are the primary danger to deer. The animals gather in packs and subsist on deer they can run down and catch. Elimination of these packs is one of the main objectives of the predator control program. Hunters and fishermen can help in this program by reporting locations of any packs observed to the Fish and Wildlife Unit (545-6120).

Enforcement of the post regulations has also contributed materially to the increase in the deer population. The Provost Marshal Office aided by about 50 dedicated sportsmen who act as part time game wardens has reduced game and fish regulations. These men have also contributed considerably to the knowledge needed to properly carry out the conservatinn program.

All of this work continues thruughout the year. The deer hunting season is over but those who made it possible are already at work to insure that next season will be as good as or better than the season just completed.

There are others who will continue their operations to the detriment of the deer herd and all legitimate hunters. These are the poachers. They don't recognize open or closed seasons. Using salt licks, spotlights and other illegal practices takes the sport out of the hunting for them. They get their sport from outwitting the law. When they are sucessful they cheat each of us. You can do your part by reporting any suspicious activity to the Provost Marshal Fish and Game Law Enforcement Branch (545-1333).

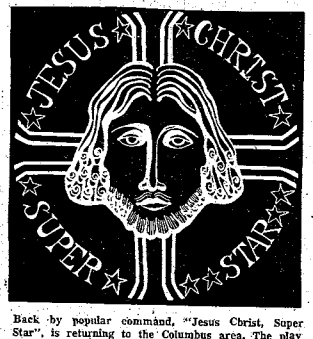
TSB league has plenty of talent

The School Brigade basketball league has been under way for nearly two months, and several players out of the thirteen teams in the league have emerged as the main scoring threats.

Easily the class of the league is Rhett Jenkins of IOAC 4-72. After a dismal opening game in which he scored only 7 points, Jenkins has come strong with two games of 24, one of 21, and after eight games he is carrying a hefty 16.2 point per game average.

Only three other players have scored consistently in enough games to be rated. Buddy Ellis of 5th Bn., Cadre is averaging 11.5 after 6 games. His best scoring effort of 23 points is second in the league to Jenkins' high of 24.

William Taylor of the 4th Bn., Cadre is next, currently pumping in 11.14 points per game, after 7 contests. His nearest competition is Mark Sims of the parachute riggers who is only three-hundredths of a point behind, averaging 11.11. Sims has played in 9 games.



The consistency of these two players is what keeps them high on the list. Neither one has a particularly high game. Sims' best is 16, while Taylor's is 15. However both men have not scored below 10 in a game.

The top scoring team is IOAC 4, of which Jenkins is a member. It is currently burning the nets at a 41.2 points per game, 5 points ahead of its nearest rival, 11th Co.

The two games with the lowest scoring output are separated by only five-tenths of a point. HHC, TSB is managing 25.7 points a game, while IOAC 6-72 is struggling at a meager 25.2.

"$8,000 helped."

Sergeant Roy Smith was going for more than the bonus when he reenlisted.

"The $8,000 helped. But part of my reason for staying in the Army is I can get the rest of my college credits for a degree. I've got 2 years in already.

"I enjoy the job I'm doing now as a drill sergeant. But I'd also like to try military intelligence. And eventually get to go to OCS.

"It's all there. It's completely up to me and my qualifications for it."

Sergeant Smith views the Army as one big opportunity for a guy who wants to get ahead.

There are job and educational opportunities. In advanced electronics. Cryptography. Foreign languages. Data processing.

Communications. Traffic analysis. And lots more.

And travel opportunities. In Europe. Korea. Hawaii. Alaska. Panama. And the time to enjoy it. To live it. In a way no tourist ever could.

And the opportunity to save money on all the everyday things.

Like free housing. Free dental and medical care. Commissary and post exchange privileges. Low-cost life insurance.

It's all here. It's up to you.

Your Army Career Counselor has a whole book of job, duty station and training opportunities just waiting for you. He'll give you lots of reasons for staying in.

Sergeant Smith has good reasons for staying in.

Why are you staying in?

Barracudas

Claim 2 relays, 6 individual first places

Swim teams from the Atlanta area dominated the Fort Benning Invitational "B" Swim Meet held last week at Briant Wells Field House. The Decatur-DeKalb "Y" team won 10 relays and placed first in 12 individual events. The Benning Barracudas made a very good showing, winning 2 relays and 6 individual first places.

Joe Rodriguez and Carnie Hanson each won two first place ribbons. Rodriguez (USAIS) took first place in the 100 yard freestyle and backstroke events and also a second in the 50 yard freestyle event in the 13-14 age group. Hanson, daughter of Lt. Col. Donald Hanson, Hdqs. Cmd., swam in the 13-14 year age group and came in first place in both the 50 and 100 yard freestyle events.

Over 200 swimmers competed in the meet. It was the last meet for Barracudas coach, Capt. Scott. The "B" team is now without a coach until another volunteer is found.

Jenny Blair, swimming with the Windsor Park Swim Team of Columbus led her team by winning all four individual events for girls 8 and under. She is the daughter of Lt. Col. John H. Blair, who is assigned to Fort Benning as the Marine Corps Liaison representative to the Infantry School.

Other Fort Benning Barracudas who placed in the girls 8 and under class were, Diane Borden who took a 2nd in the 25 yard backstroke and third place ribbons in both the 25 yard breaststroke and the 25 yard freestyle and Sheila Cannan who took a third in the 25 yard backstroke and 6th in the 25 yard butterfly.

In the girls 9-11 age group Laura Chapin took a sixth in the 50 yard backstroke and a 5th in the 50 yard breaststroke while Gail Otto was finishing 4th in the 50 yard breaststroke and backstroke and a 5th in the 50 yard freestyle.

In the Girls 11-12 group Grace Kelly took a 5th in the 100 yard Breaststroke and a 2nd in the 50 yard freestyle. Linda Borden finished 2nd in the 100 yard backstroke and Angel Hunt finished 4th in the 50 yard freestyle and a 6th in the 100 yard backstroke.

Girls in the 13-15 year age group that placed were Tammy Otto, 1st in the 100 breaststroke, 3rd in the 100 yard freestyle and 4th places in the 50 yard freestyle and the 100 yard butterfly; Michele Otto, 5th place in the 50 yard freestyle, and a 4th in the 100 yard freestyle; Jennifer Hanson, 2nd place in the 100 yard breaststroke, and sixth places in the 50 and 100 yard freestyle and the 100 yard butterfly, and Chris Rogers who placed 4th in the 100 yard breaststroke.

Peter Lee placed 6th in the 25 yard breaststroke in the boys 8 and under class while the boys 9-10 year old group Kirby Pitcher placed 1st in the 50 yard backstroke and a 6th in the 50 yard freestyle.

Keith Toone finished 2nd in the 100 yard butterfly and 5th places in the 50 yard and the 100 yard freestyle, while Charles Jelly took a 3rd in the 100 yard breaststroke and a 6th in the 100 yard butterfly.

Four cadets visit MTU

During their holiday vacation, four of Fort Benning's own U.S. Military Academy Cadets, all members of the West Point Varsity Rifle Team, took time off from their visit with Columbus friends and relatives to visit the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit.

The four young men, Robert Walsh, son of SFC and Mrs. Robert V. Walsh, 123 Englander St., Fort Benning; Robert Fierro, son of CSM (ret.) and Mrs. S. V. Fierro, 2575 Mesa St.; Robert Aultman, son of SFC(ret.) and Mrs. William Aultman, 3322 Yeomans; and Ralph Ghent, son of W-C (ret.) and Mrs. Fred Ghent, 1949 Woodmont Dr., are all graduates of Columbus area high schools where they excelled in marksmanship and in ROTC activities.

Young Walsh, whose father is assigned to the Army Marksmanship Unit, introduced his schoolmates around the unit where they met Olympic Gold Medalist, Maj. Lones W. Wigger Jr., and other champion shooters. Naturally the topic of conversation centered on championship rifle shooting.

Four-day handgun marathon starts today

Handgun enthusiasts from the surrounding area will be having a ball as they gather today to compete in one of three pistol matches, the first handgun competition offered in the New Year.

Commencing today for the pistol shooters will be a three day Indoor Sectional which is expected to attract over 50 of the southeast United States best handgun experts. Among the competitors, according to Tom Kirkman, Tournament Director and Manager of the Fort Benning Rifle and Pistol Club which is sponsoring the matches, will be top Marine marksmen from Cherry Point, N.C., outstanding civilian entries, Army and Army Reserves along with marksmen from USAIC and the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit.

The two other handgun tournaments will include a three-gun championship with Service Pistol Championship which will be fired Saturday and Sunday and an International Invitational Pistol Tournament to wind up the four day handgun marathon on Monday.

Pitting the cream of the nation's handgun expertise in scoring duels, the Indoor tourney competitors will be swapping shots not only for sectional championships but national championships and records. Winners of this sectional actually compete with every other Indoor Sectional throughout the nation for the national titles each year during the period of January through March. This sectional champion's scores along with the winning team's scores will be forwarded to the National Rifle Association to be compared with the other sectional winners.

The National Indoor NRA Sectional Championship held at Fort Benning each year has supplied the National Individual Champion in ten of the past 15 years while it has had the National Team Champions 12 of the past 15 years. Individual defending Champion and national record holder is SFC Hershel Anderson of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit who fired his all time high score of 896-40X in winning last year.

Eight national records set

While the Miami Dolphins were establishing new football records, a band of hard shooting Running Boar competitors were doing their own thing on Hibbs Range. The group of mixed Army and civilian competitors, led by SFC Charles D. Davis of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit, set eight new National records in the three day moving target meet which terminated Sunday.

Davis, the number one selectee on the U.S. Olympic team to Munich last summer, dominated the action as he took both the slow and fast run aggregates for the three day Grand Aggregate Championship with a total of 1,680 points. Runner-up honors fell to SFC Edmund C. Moeller Jr., companion shooter with 40 less points.

The Hazard, Ky., native faltered only on the second day in his championship drive when Moeller beat him by one in the fast run competition. Despite the adverse weather and numbing cold, particularly on Friday, Davis ruled supreme in the remaining matches.

On his way to the moving target crown, Davis set a new national record in fast runs with his 279 inthe first day of competition on Friday and led his team to Open and Service National records in both slow and fast runs on Sunday.

Other high level marks placed in the record books during this first match of the New Year included three National Civilian Team records and three National Individual Junior Running Board records.

The latter were all set by David Moeller, the young son of SFC and Mrs. Moeller. Young Moeller set his first record on Saturday when he posted a 190 in fast runs and wound up his high scoring spree with a record 248 in slow runs and a 430 in the 6 shot ISU course Sunday.

The young marksman, firing on a four man civilian team, was then instrumental in their setting the three new National Civilian Team records.

Georgia vets may be eligible for VA dental care

ATLANTA — According to Georgia Veterans Service Director Pete Wheeler, there are many veterans in Georgia who may be eligible to receive outpatient dental treatment from the Veterans Administration. He said that in many cases there are certain time restrictions which must be observed in order to secure such dental treatment but that there are some exceptions.

Wheeler explained, "A veteran with a service-connected, compensable dental disability or condition will be provided dental treatment without regard to time limitatimns. He may apply for treatment at any time. Also, he will not be restricted as to the number of treatments which may be required to correct the condition.

"These same dental services with no time limitation also be provided to a veteran having a service-connected, noncompensable dental condition or disability resulting rom combat wounds, service trauma or if he was a prisoner-of-war.

Time limitations on applying for and completing VA dental treatment apply to those veterans having service-connected, noncompensable dental disabilities or conditions shown to have been in existence at the time of discharge from active service. Application must be made within one year of the date of discharge and an examination must be accomplished within 14 months of the discharge date. Wheeler emphasized ahtt misvs ii ut tvtpithieo that it is "imperative that the application for treatment be filed before any examination is made. Otherwise," he said, "the VA will not provide dental service or treatment."

Under these restrictions treatment will be authorized on a one-time completion basis and the treatment must be completed within three years of the date of discharge unless delayed through no fault of the veteran.

Wheeler said that the problem of long delays in securing dental service and treatment from VA medical facilities has been substantially alleviated." And he added, "Inasmuch as the conditions and circumstances whereby a veteran might qualify for VA dental work are many and complex. I advise any interested veteran to contact the nearest office of the Georgia Department of Veterans Service to find out about his possible eligibility."

TSB aids 26 needy families

All of us at one time or another have heard that often used and unfortunately infrequently meant Christmas time cliche "it is more blessed to give than to receive." At The School Brigade this yuletide season it wasn't just a tired old phrase, but it became a reality for 26 needy military families.

Eight units in TSB, HHC, 23rd Replacement Det., 1st Stu. Bn., 2nd Stu. Bn., 4th Stu. Bn., 5th Stu. Bn., 8th Stu. Bn., and the 2nd Ranger Co. were all given names of needy families that needed assistance by the Army Community Service. Each unit distributed to the families food bought from money they had collected, and toys to the children acquired from Project Save-A-Toy.

All the toys and food were given to the families between the 18th and 21st of December. The families in all cases were very appreciative of the help they received.

The program is extremely beneficial in that it gives families that have less than others a chance to spend what little money they have on more necessary aspects of life.

Christmas in TSB; a giving, and receiving experience.

Be A Charter Partner!

How many times in your life have you gotten in on something really great—really rewarding—right at the start?

Well, that's exactly what you can do now when you become a Charter Partner of PGI's new Park Lane communities.

You're not just purchasing a dream in the Florida sun. Neither are you just buying a retirement homesite. Instead, you become a Partner with us in building a new kind of Florida community. You're in at the beginning of something great. We call it the Park Lane "Green Belt". You'll call it a community like no other community you've ever seen. And, Partner, you'll be right.

What Does A Charter Partner Do?

A partner enjoys. Because after you've selected your homesite, after you receive your Charter Partner certificate, that's all there is to do. You see, no matter whether you choose to build immediately or in the future... or whether you consider this a means of saving for your future, you'll be absolutely delighted at the way PGI has anticipated your every need for your new life in Florida.

What Is The "Green Belt"?

Park Lane "Green Belt" communities are something completely original... completely new... a unique ingredient that has been ignored by most other community builders. This special ingredient is open space... a network of inter-connecting, meadow-like green fairways. Every home (or homesite)... every one... has a strip of green right behind it, land you do not pay for. With each homesite facing on one of these lush, grassy lanes... you enjoy a feeling of privacy, of open space, of living room.

Fun? We Have It!

Take your boat out in nearby Charlotte Harbor and tackle tarpon, pompano, snook and kingfish. Swim, dive or sail. Enjoy golf on a challenging, scenic golf course, play a fast game of tennis on superb courts, dine in style at the "Isles" Yacht and Racquet Club or just relax in our mild year-round pleasant climate. At PGI communities, this is Florida living at its finest.

And Air Condition Your Lungs!

The freshest air to breathe! Here in Punta Gorda, Florida, the ecology is protected in the only section of Florida that (according to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency) has "no air pollution problem."

Remember: (1) Quality... (2) The "Green Belt" Approach... (3) Location... (4) Recreation... (5) Saving For The Future.

Even if you're not planning to move to Florida now or in the near future, when you consider all the facts and growth potential, maybe you'll decide a PGI Park Lane community is the perfect place for a long-term investment potential.

MILITARY PERSONNEL ONLY! In PGI communities you are only 99 miles from Tampa, home of MacDill Air Force Base, with its commissary, BX, hospital, NCO Club, Officers Club and other facilities all available for your use. YOUR FUTURE STARTS TODAY AT PGI PARK LANE "GREEN BELT" COMMUNITIES.

FLORIDA IS DISAPPEARING!

Don't misunderstand this dramatic statement. The state of Florida is not sinking into the sea. But Florida land... really good land is becoming more and more scarce. And as the supply of land decreases you know what happens.

You've read many promises about Florida land, but with Punta Gorda Isles, Inc., FACTS COME FIRST!
We are proven successful community builders. We've invested our money in outstanding well-located Florida property. We've created a new kind of community concept with open parkways adjacent to every homesite... we call them Park Lane "Green Belt" communities. We've priced them reasonably and are offering them on a long-term, convenient, payment plan.

Florida holds a great potential for the wise serviceman who wants to save for the future. The question is HOW?
Our answer is: Become a Charter Partner with us in a new Florida community.

Servicemen Praise PGI Communities

Jack Emery
"...after spending much time checking out the entire state, we decided to purchase retirement property in Punta Gorda Isles. We felt the high quality of land and PGI's high standards of development offered the most value for the money of any place in Florida."
Jack R. Emery, USA (Ret.)

Clarence Curtis
"...we had seen many developments on our annual trips to Florida but the 'Isles' had it all. It is a clean, well-maintained environment with a versatility of recreational programs sponsored by the Civic Association and the 'Isles' management. That's why we like it here."
Clarence E. Curtis, Jr., USA (Ret.)

J. Wallace Page
"...when you're brought up on the theory to own land, the next problem is to find the right land!...the only place that seemed right for us was a PGI community. We especially liked their Park Lane 'Green Belt' approach. Living here means looking to the future."
J. Wallace Page, USA (Ret.)

John W. Kindell
"...I guess it's only natural after time in the service to crave privacy at home, and lots of it. We looked at every major development and decided that PGI offered the best per dollar potential. My dream is a reality here at PGI."
John W. Kindell, USA (Ret.)

Is this a return to the "Brown Shoe Army?" No. This is just the PX cooperating with the Infantry Museum in preparing an exhibit of W.W. I artifacts to be displayed at the Infantry Museum. Awaiting to be shined the two pair of W.W. I boots are shown towering over the paratrooper boots of today's army.

Aviation's top soldier selected

Sp4 John G. Heustess, Airfield Operation Specialist at Lawson Army Airfield, has been selected as the Aviation Command Soldier of the Month for January.

Heustess is a 1966 graduate of Conway High School in Conway, South Carolina, his home town. He received his B.A. from the University of South Carolina in 1970, and joined the Army in November of that year. He attended Basic Training at Fort Jackson, S.C., and the Army Air Traffic Controller's School at Fort Rucker, Ala. He spent a tour as an air traffic controller at Tuy Hoa Airfield, RVN, before coming to Fort Benning and the Aviation Command.

Sp4 Heustess works in Lawson AAF Operations as a flight dispatcher. His duties include filing flight plans and maintaining and posting Notices to Airmen.

Before joining the Army, he worked as a math teacher. After completing his tour with the Army, Heustess plans to teach history. His hobbies include football and basketball.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

by Bill King

When making piecrust, use ice water instead of tap water and you'll get a flakier crust.

Cream of tartar, the mysteriously-named powdered ingredients in many candies and frostings, is made from grapes.

If you use a hibachi indoors, be sure to put it near an open window, or in the fireplace.

Mushrooms should never be peeled. Just wipe them with a damp cloth and cut a thin slice from the base.

If you've oversalted the soup or stew, bring it to a boil and top with a sliced raw potato. After about ten minutes, you can remove the potato along with the excess salt.

Benning salutes former president at honor ceremony

The U.S. Army Infantry Center Tuesday conducted a special honors and salute ceremony on York Field at 10 a.m. in observance of the death of former President Lyndon B. Johnson, who died Monday in Texas.

At the same time, special formations were held by all major units on post.

During the ceremonies, the official death notice was read.

Also Tuesday the post salute gun was fired every half hour beginning with reveille and ending with retreat.

On the day of the funeral the Infantry Center Salute Battery will fire a 50 gun salute on York Field at the close of the day, with the salute being fired at five-second intervals immediately following the lowering of the flag.

Also, on the day of the funeral, a 21 gun salute will be fired by the Infantry Center Salute Battery on York Field at noon. Firing will be at one-minute intervals. The post flag, already at half mast due to the recent death of former President Harry Truman, will be flown at half mast for 30 days.

Following the death of President Johnson, the following statement was made by Robert F. Froehlke, secretary of the Army:

"It becomes my sad duty to announce officially to the members of the United States Army the death of the Honorable Lyndon Baines Johnson, 36th President of the United States, who died on 22 January 1973.

"We are deeply grieved at the untimely death of our former Commander in Chief. President Johnson won the unstinting respect and confidence of the people of the United States by the calm, decisive manner in which he assumed the duties of the presidency under trying circumstances.

"His thirty-two consecutive years in the service of his country had prepared him admirably to occupy the nation's highest office. He had been a dynamic leader of the Senate. As Vice President and President he continued to be a leader in wide ranging activities to protect and enhance basic human rights throughout the world.

Gen. Talbott on TV Monday

"A Conversation With the General" will be the title of a special 30 minute program to be aired Monday, Jan. 29, by WTVM (Channel 9) at 7:30 p.m.

The program will highlight activities at Fort Benning since Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander, was assigned here in September, 1969. Gen. Talbott will be interviewed by WTVM newsman Jim Hickey during the prime time show.

Gen. Talbott will depart Benning next month to assume duties as special assistant to the commanding General, U. S. Cintinental Army Command.

OCS

Second Lieutenant to receive highest award

A second lieutenant with three combat tours in Vietnam will receive the highest award any graduate of Infantry Officer Candidate School can earn.

On February 12, 2nd Lt. Thomas L. Ferguson will accept the Robert P. Patterson Memorial Award from Mrs. Patterson, widow of the late Secretary of War. Lt. Ferguson is currently attending Ranger School at Fort Benning.

Secretary Patterson died in a plane crash in 1952, and the award was established the same year to honor his memory. It is presented each year on the anniversary of his birth, Feb. 12, 1891.

Ferguson will receive an engraved service pistol, a cash award, the Patterson Award Certificate, and a plaque. The award is financed by the earnings from a $16,000 trust fund established by 120 friends of Secretary Patterson.

Ferguson entered active duty on Feb. 19, 1964 in the Marine Corps. He served in Vietnam on three different tours, and was on inactive duty with the Marine Corps Reserve from December, 1966 until December, 1968.

From December, 1968, until June, 1971, he served on active duty in the Marines again. On March 16, he entered the U. S. Army and began OCS at Fort Benning.

He received various decorations for actions in Vietnam, including three Bronze Stars with "V" for valor, the Navy Commendation Medal, the Purple Heart, the Combat Actions Ribbon, and the Vietnamese Campaign Medal with seven stars.

Ferguson was born in Memphis, Tenn., on Aug. 12, 1942, but spent most of his life in Detroit, Mich., where he attended Wayne State University as a pre-medical student. His parents live in Detroit.

He was married to the former Elizabeth Slater in January, 1972, before entering Infantry OCS. His current assignment is Fort Ord, Calif.

Ferguson is an example of the finest type of soldier that the Infantry Officer program can produce. Selection for the award is made each year by the Secretary of the Army from honor graduates in each OCS class at the Infantry School.

The late Secretary of War, Judge Robert P. Patterson, was a native of New York state. He graduated from Harvard University Law School, and served in the Infantry during World War I.

139th M.P.s place eighth in pistol match

The 139th M.P. company of Fort Benning placed 8th out of a field of 55 teams representing M.P. units worldwide during the 1972 TPMG-Pistol Match.

In the individual ranks Sgt. Melvin D. Black scored an outstanding 399 out of 400 points placing 2nd and receiving a gold medal. Daniel R. Lowery placed 11th with 395 points and received a silver medal while Spt Nelson M. Collier placed 28th receiving a bronze medal.

"My Dad was in the Air Force and I always wanted to fly. I enlisted for the warrant officer candidate program and flight school. Later I went through O.C.S. and received my commission. I am the Service Platoon Leader and helicopter qualified."

Spc Kennith Doyle
121st Aviation Co.

"I volunteered and went through the Avionics course at Ft. Gordon, Ga. After which I went to Vietnam where I worked in my field as a navigational equipment repairman."

Spc James Jackson
121st Aviation Co.

"I got into this field through MOS producing school at Fort Gordon."

USMAPS; a good way to launch your career

Ft. Monroe, Va.—"They had to be the best group of men I've worked with," said Captain Michael F. McGovern, commanding officer of Company A, 1st Battalion, 2nd Basic Combat Training Brigade, Fort Dix.

The men Capt. McGovern was referring to were the 188 men enlisting for the United States Military Prep School at Ft. Belvoir, Va., who recently completed basic combat training at Fort Dix. This marked the first time that men enlisting for the prep school trained together in one basic combat training company.

A West Point graduate by way of prep school, Capt. McGovern believes that the men will have a better chance than he did, because they are fresh out of basic training and are used to the discipline and long hours.

He went on to explain that although the men enlisted for the school it doesn't guarantee their entrance into West Point. They must compete for appointments and if their initiative is the same as it was here, competition is going to be tough.

Sergeant First Class Natividay Rios-Castro, company first sergeant, could praise the men enough. "Their morale had to be seen. They pulled, pushed and worked together for four hard weeks."

The men completed a normal eight weeks of BCT in four weeks, including instruction in the various light weapons, rifle marksmanship, land navigation, communications and land mine warfare.

In addition, the men set a physical training record for a company-size unit with an average of 421 out of 500 points per man.

The qualifications for enlistment are stern. The men must be at least 17 years of age and not 22 by July 1 of the year following that in which their application is submitted.

The "preps" must be high school graduates, with four years of high school English and three of Mathematics, with high grades in both. Aptitude scores must also be high; 110 on their General Technical Aptitude area, 115 on the Officer Candidate Test and 75 on their Officer Qualification Inventory.

If is helpful if the men have held positions of leadership while in high school, civic clubs, scouting or fraternal organization.

The men must be in excellent physical condition and it is recommended that they play some type of sports while at the prep school and have competed in high school sports.

The police record of these future leaders must be spotless and any ideas of marriage have to be forgotten until graduation from West Point.

Capt. McGovern, who has departed Ft. Dix for duty at the prep school, concluded with, "Despite the physical and academic load placed upon them to complete basic training in four weeks, not one man was recycled for any reason.

C Battery participates in training

Fifty soldiers from C Battery, 2-10 Artillery, participated in adventure training conducted by the Ranger Department's Patrolling Committee on January 18 at the Committee's Todd Field training area in Harmony Church.

In the morning, the soldiers were given instruction on orienteering by the Fort Benning Orienteering Team, which is a part of the Patrolling Committee. After instruction in land navigation techniques peculiar to orienteering and some basic orienteering principles, the soldiers were divided into three groups. Each group ran a different course of approximately 3000 meters. By the end of the morning the soldiers had gained an appreciation of this interesting and increasingly popular way to have fun while you run.

After lunch the group had a chance to get their feet off the ground for awhile during rappelling training. Rangers presented instruction on and demonstrated the equipment and knots used in rappelling. During the afternoon the soldiers progressed from an eight-foot platform to the 34 and 55 foot towers, and then finally to a helicopter. The enthusiasm of the class spread to onlooking support personnel when even the sound man and pilots got into the act. To the delight of all present, even a pretty Army Nurse took part.

Taxes

Each unit to have a tax officer to help soldiers

EDITOR'S NOTE: Each major unit will have a tax officer of their own to help the individual soldier with his problems. Starting Feb. 1 the Judge Advocate Office will start helping those individuals with difficult problems that the unit can not handle. For further information contact Capt. Stanowski at the JAG Office or call 545-5411.

Some new rules and figures must be taken into account when servicemen fill out their income tax returns for 1972.

Temporary lodging allowances will have to be reported as gross income. Child and dependent care deductions have been liberalized. Personal exemptions and standard deductions are higher. The wives of war prisoners can exempt all of their husbands' active duty pay.

And the usual special rules and laws continue to make military income tax returns at least as complicated as those of any group in similar incofe brackets.

Helping things along for many service members is the new short Form 1040A. It is a one-page quickie return that can be used by anybody whose income was entirely from wages and salary, whose dividend and interest income was $100 or less, and who does not itemize his deductions.

Grace Periods

Froms 1040 and 1040A normally are due April 15, but that date falls on Palm Sunday this year, so the deadline will be April 16—except for those who served in the Vietnam area during 1972. Those who are in their first enlistments or first two years of commissioned service can delay paying, but not filing.

Those who were in combat areas during the year, or who were hospitalized as a result of a combat zone injury, have until 180 days after leaving the combat area or arriving in the U.S. from the hospitalization in which to file their returns.

This 180-day grace period doesn't cut tax liability. It just gives these people more time to straighten out their affairs.

First termers—both enlisted people and officers—don't have to pay their taxes on time if their ability to pay "is materially impaired by reason of being in the service." They must file on time but don't have to pay until six months after leaving active duty or after finishing their initial period of service.

Exemptions

While the tax rates for 1972 are the same as the 1971 rates, personal exemptions went up from $675 to $750. At the same time, the standard deduction has gone up from last year's 13 per cent with a $1500 maximum to 15 per cent with a $2000 maximum.

In addition, taxpayers now may claim exemptions for dependent foster children on the same terms as for natural children.

On the other hand, amounts received during 1972 as temporary lodging allowances in connection with a permanent change of station must be reported as gross income. However, hotel-like costs are deductible as moving expenses for the first 30 days at the new station. In most cases, they should just about cancel each other.

Travel pay, including mileage and per diem allowances, must be reported as gross income—but this, also can be offset by expenses actually paid.

The moratorium on requiring servicemen to account in their tax returns for the value of transportation and household goods movement furnished by the government remains in effect for tax year 1972. If Congress does not act this year, and if Internal Revenue does not extend the moratorium, government-paid travel will have to be reported as income on next year's returns.

Chances are, Congress will eliminate the reporting requirement for servicemen before next year.

Officer Pay Rules

New rules are in effect for the pay of military officers classified as missing or captured in Vietnam or nearby areas.

Congress changed the law so that all of their military pay will be tax free. Before, the officers could claim only the maximum $500 per month combat zone exclusion. Captured or missing enlisted men, of course, could always exempt all of their military pay.

The new above $500 exclusion for officers, is retroactive to Feb. 28, 1961.

Wives' Returns

Wives of men serving in the war zone have several choices regarding their 1972 tax returns. A wife now can file a joint return, or a separate return if she had any income and amend it to a joint return when her husband returns.

Or, she can postpone the filing of a return until her husband leaves Vietnam and the 180-day rule starts.

If she files a joint return while her husband is in Vietnam, she should write in the place for his signature, "In military service in Vietnam."

Wives who can't cash tax refund checks because their husbands—named as payee—are at sea or overseas, can take or send by registered mail the check to the nearest Internal Revenue office, along with proof of the husband's status, and new checks made out to the wives will be forwarded in about two weeks.

Itemizing Tip

Military people who itemize deductions frequently need help in filling out their returns, and there is plenty available. The pocket-size booklet prepared by the Navy for all services should handle most cases. It is "Armed Forces Federal Income Tax: For 1972 Income Tax Returns, NAVSO P-1983 (15th edition)."

Legal and disbursing officers should have their copies, or you can buy your own for 45 cents (it was 25 cents last year) from Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

Military legal officers should know the subject thoroughly, since many of them will have gone to Defense-sponsored schools by now.

2-10th Arty. trains

ROTC students from Wofford College in Spartanburg, S.C. toured Kelley Hill and the 2nd Bn, 10th Field Artillery Jan. 19 as part of an information-gathering exercise during their semester break.

The future officers, interested in leadership principles and problems learned of leadership as related to the artillery unit's basic mission and typical operations as well as key factors and objectives of race relations and drug abuse provention programs.

Later the cadets observed maintenance activities in the battalion's motor pool. They also viewed the conglomeration of artillery pieces contained in the 2-10th's howitzer park.

The students will use information gathered during the tour for a research project being conducted by the Wolfford College ROTC department.

Main Officer's Club. The hostesses were Mrs. Roger M. Millar, Mrs. Henry Lee and Mrs. Ernest A. Levasseur.

Mrs. James T. Dunn, wife of the group chairman, welcomed a special guest, Mrs. Lawrence L. Mowery, and presented farewell charms to Mrs. John E. Johnson and Mrs. Howard G. Robbins. Special mention was made of the arrival of twins, a boy and a girl, at the home of Capt. and Mrs. George W. Aux, II. Stephanie Leigh and George II were born Dec. 26.

Discussion at the coffee centered around the work to be done for the OWC "Tasting Bee" function on Feb. 14. All of BBOD will be working on this.

Mrs. David L. Carl volunteered to be the Thrift Shop representative for the group.

The next coffee will be March 7.

The Columbus home of Mrs. Donald R. Taylor was the scene, Jan. 11, of a coffee for the officers' wives of the Artillery Committee. The hostess served an assortment of cookies, complemented by a cranberry punch and coffee.

Mrs. A. E. Stripe conducted a brief announcement and discussion period at which time mention was made of the upcoming Committee party at King's Pond in late January or early February.

The next coffee will be Feb. 8, at the home of Mrs. James R. Siket, Fort Benning.

STAFF GROUP, BBOD wives held their monthly coffee in the home of Mrs. Jacob Couch, Jr., at 10 a.m. on Thurs., Jan. 11. The wives of the Communicative Arts Committee were co-hostesses for the event. Assisting Mrs. Couch were Mrs. Thomas Patterson and Mrs. Richard Stewart. Mrs. Sanders A. Cortner conducted a short business meeting, during which plans for the February OWC luncheon were discussed. BBOD wives will be decorating for the luncheon which will be a "Tasting Bee" on Feb. 1.

AIRBORNE WIVES

The new year was kicked off with coffee and refreshments at the home of Mrs. Charles F. Manning, who assisted by Mrs. Michael R. Barnes.

The first order of business was to welcome new members. Mrs. Robert B. Tully introduced Mrs. Hamilton M. Henson Jr., Mrs. Raymond Clay and Mrs. Michael Menser. We are most happy to have these ladies with us.

Plans are in the works for a joint get-together with the Ranger Wives for sometime in the near future. A committee will be appointed to look into the possibility of a day at Westville.

Volunteers for the Thrift Shop in February are Mrs. Manning and Mrs. Jerry C. Goodenough.

Next month's coffee will be held at the home of Mrs. Goodenough, with Mrs. Clay as co-hostess.

AVIATION COMMAND

The Headquarter's and Company Commander's Wives of Aviation Command met in the home of Mrs. Lawrence Bell, Miller Loop, Fort Benning, on Jan. 9 for their monthly coffee. A lovely arrangment of finger sandwiches, nut breads and pastries were served aloug with coffee and tea.

Mrs. Bell began the business meeting by telling the ladies about the upcoming events of OWC which included the January Tea, the February Tasting Bee and the March function for which the ladies of Aviation Command will serve as hostesses. Many themes and decorating ideas were discussed.

During the month of February, the ladies of Aviation Command will be helping to stock the Army Community Service food locker. Collection points for food stocks will be set up in the individual companies of Aviation Command as well as a place in Headquarters. In addition, wives will be able to donate their goods at the February coffees.

The next coffee will be held on Feb. 13 at 10:00 a.m. in the home of Mrs. Richard Wilson, 500 Forrest Rd., Columbus. Mrs. Edward Damon will serve as co-hostess.

Leadership Department

The doors of The Talent Tree opened for the ladies of the Leadership Department on Jan. 10.

The ladies of the Conditioning, Combatives and Drill Committee had prepared a variety of pastries which everyone enjoyed as they browsed and admired the hamdmade arts and crafts.

Mrs. Richard B. Stoltz presented the ladies with information on the history of The Talent Tree and variety of gifts that are available. A scrap book containing pictures and write-ups of events over the past year was on band for everyone to enjoy.

The door prize, an artificial arrangement of daisies in a basket from The Talent Tree, was won by Mrs. Rudolph Baker.

This month the 197TH SUPPORT BATTALION welcomed not only the new year but also a host of new faces. At the ladies' monthly coffee on Thursday afternoon, Jan. 11, Mrs. Thomas Rodman and Mrs. Michael Maasberg entertained at Mrs. Rodman's home on Plantation Road in Columbus and introduced to the group newcomers Mrs. Joseph Conn and Mrs. Richard Timboe. Mrs. Rodman figured in the afternoon's activity not only as hostess, but also as one to whom, with regret, the 197th must bid farewell. Her friendliness and cooperative spirit will make her absence felt.

Mrs. W. J. Eddins Jr. presided over the business meeting, guiding a discussion of plans for a proposed spring trip by the officers and families to the Army Recreation Center in Destin, Fla., and reported on various pieces of OWC news of interest to the ladies. She then presented to the group Mrs. Ann O. Todd, Service Case Worker for the Chattahoochee County Department of Family and Children Services. Mrs. Todd explained the desperate need for volunteers to assist with the Department's programs and was pleased to find that several ladies of the group offered their services in various capacities.

The afternoon's congenial atmosphere was magnificently concluded by Mrs. Rodman's refreshments, including orange bundt cake, cookies, chocolate fondue, and champagne punch with sauterne and orange sherbet.

The officers and ladies of the 197th Support Battalion assembled at King's Food Lodge for a combination hail and farewell and "Country Hoe-Down" party, sponsored by the 72nd Engineer Company, on Jan. 19.

Lt. Col. W. J. Eddins Jr., Battalion Commander, welcomed newcomers: Capt. and Mrs. Michael W. Maasberg, Capt. John O. Fortune, Lt. David Henry Fleming, Lt. and Mrs. Richard L. Weiberg, Capt. and Mrs. Robert L. Steele, Lt. Charles Eaton, Lt. Harry John Clark, Lt. and Mrs. Richard Ray Timboe, Lt. and Mrs. Donald F. Ching, Lt. and Mrs. John D. Criswell and Lt. and Mrs. Joseph Oscar Conn.

Those who are leaving the Battalion were then presented plaques by Lt. Col. Eddins; Capt. and Mrs. Thomas Rodman, Capt. and Mrs. Mark L. Disbrow, CW3 and Mrs. Conrad Berghoefer, Lt. Henry J. Lawson, Lt. and Mrs. John G. Craven, and Lt. Steven Sullivan.

As an added treat, Lt. Col. Eddins surprised newlyweds Capt. and Mrs. James M. McBee and Capt. and Mrs. Robert L. Dunshie with marriage plates in honor of the recent happy events. There followed, in somewhat logical and sequential order, the presentation of baby cups to the newest and cutest additions to the Battalion — Miss Elizabeth Reed Kays, daughter of Lt. and Mrs. Dale B. Kays, and Miss Jennifer Kathryn Petty, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Thomas M. Petty.

Lt. Col. Eddins then laid the foundations for a new tradition in the Battalion by presenting an engraved miniature sabre to the outgoing commander of H Co., Capt. Thomas Petty.

The 72nd Engineers provided dinner for the group, including barbecued chicken, spareribs, potato salad, baked bean casserole, French bread, and brownies — all of which was followed by square dancing, bad jokes about the bales of hay used as decoration, and, in general, a good party.

Talent Tree celebrates 1st Ann.

"The Talent Tree" will celebrate its first anniversary with a gala festival week. The Fort Benning boutique and art gallery — reputed to be an "Army first" — proudly opened 27 January 1972 and has enjoyed great success as a showcase and outlet for the creative talents of the military community. Since the opening, other stateside posts have expressed a desire to initiate similar activities and have requested information from "The Talent Tree."

The public is cordially invited to attend the three day reception which will feature a display of creative stitchery. The theme of the display, Creative Stitchery Around the World, will present the fine talents of many Fort Benning residents to include crewel, needlepoint, tapestry and Japanese bead art. Also displayed will be collections from various homes of Molas from Panama (layered materials that form a specific pattern either symbolic or telling a story); Austrian, Ukrainian, Dutch and Danish cross-stitch wallhangings; Dutch telephone stools of Kelim (the objects look knitted, but actually are embroidered on canvas); and fine needlepoint artwork designed by Mrs. Aris Mitsopoulos, wife of a Greek allied officer presently attending the Infantry Officer Advanced Course. Mrs. Mitsopoulos will demonstrate her talent and answer questions at the shop during the week.

The anniversary festivities will be celebrated Tuesday, January 30th, Thursday, February 1st and Saturday, February 3rd from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. (the normal shop days and hours). Special refreshments will be served.

"The Talent Tree," operated by the Officers' Wives' Club Thrift Shop as a volunteer project, donates all monies received toward welfare activities within the Columbus-Fort Benning-Phenix City area.

Three Arts League presents 'Applause'

The Three Arts League of Columbus, Ga. will present the hit musical comedy "Applause" at 8:30 p.m. January 27 at the Three Arts Theatre.

Patrice Munsel is starred in the musical's famous central role of a popular (state actress who must fight the schemes of an ambitious former protegee seeking to overthrow her.

This authentic glimpse into backstage maneuverings was first told in a memorable successful movie, "All About Eve," which was derived from a story by Mary Orr. The story and film version were turned into a musical by the team of Betty Comden and Adloph Green, authors of other successes . . . "On the Town," "Wonderful Town" and "Bells are Ringing."

Applause won the Tony Award in 1970 as the best musical of its season.

Tickets are available in three price ranges. The box office is at the Three Arts Theatre, 1020 Talbotton Road. It will be open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. starting January 22. Three Arts telephone number is 323-5511.

Post marrieds to have seminar

Harmony and bliss or dull routine? Need a refresher course to enrich your marriage? The Catholic Education Commission of the Fort Benning Parish Council is sponsoring a Marriage Seminar on Sunday, January 28, from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. in the Infantry Center Chapel Annex.

The seminar will be conducted by Chaplain Richard Nyhro. Chaplain Nybro is a 1971 graduate of the American Institute of Family Relations in Los Angeles and is well qualified in the field of marriage counseling. His topic will be, "Transactional Analysis — how it works and how it can promote understanding."

Love, the primary purpose of the conjugal union, can be strengthened and increased in any and all marriages. Don't miss this opportunity to enhance the quality of your marriage.

the OWC news while the ladies relaxed with champagne punch, canapes, coffee and Kalterhund, a German cake, and "Cold Dog."

Col. James Thompson, commander of the 93ist, was the guest speaker. Armed with slides, facts and figures concerning the organization of the unit, he ably met a barrage of questions. The ladies not only discovered the purpose the unit has in today's modern Army, but they were enlightened about the jobs and activities of their husbands.

During the meeting several women expressed an interest in forming a bridge group. All interested wives should contact Mrs. Dallas Miller, telephone 544-3085.

Drafting Class

A Drafting Class is being offered at Project Transition to all eligible personnel. This class started on 9 Jan. 73, however, it is an open ended class and students can be accepted at any time for a 6 weeks period of training. Any interested personnel who are within 6 months of their ETS or retirement date, please contact Project Transition at 5-2178.

Big Brother Program

Are you familiar with the Big Brother Program? If not, please read. Big Brothers are engaged in the best conservation work of all — the conservation of our youth. Every child craves friendship, recognition, and adventure. Big Brothers attempt to fulfill these desires of fatherless boys.

NCO Club

On 1 September 1972, the NCO Club instituted an experiment of a "No Dues" or "Free Dues" policy which was to be carried out for a six month period. Anticipated increases in revenue and participation did not materialize. As a result of declining revenue, it was decided the experiment be discontinued.

Effective 1 February 1973, dues will again be assessed at the NCO Clubs. With the added revenue, we hope to revitalize the operation of your clubs. One of the first actions is to initiate a monthly FREE buffet for members and dependents (SORRY, NO GUESTS). The first buffet will be held 18 February 1973. Check your club calendar for time.

The club needs an active membership and you need an active club. Join and urge your fellow Non-Commissioned Officers to become a member on a continuing basis.

Suggestion boxes are being placed throughout the clubs to enable you to help in the club revitalization program. Help us help you by making suggestions. They need not be signed, however, all signed suggestions will be answered by the General Manager.

Motorcycle Safety Class

A special motorcycle safety class will be given on Saturday, 3 Feb. 73, 0080O hours to 1100 hours, at Bldg. 1306. This class is for all military personnel and dependents who cannot attend the normal motorcycle safety class presented every Monday morning. All fathers of military dependents are encouraged to attend. Personnel must bring their motorcycle and wear a helmet and face shield.

Fort Benning Sports Parachute Club

There will be general membership meeting of the Fort Benning Sports Parachute Club at 0900 hours Saturday, 27 January 1973. Purpose of the meeting is to elect a new board of directors. All members are encouraged to come and vote. Meeting at Club House.

Curtailment of Movie Schedule

Effective, Sunday, 28 January 1973, Theater Number 4, Bldg 9076, Kelley Hill area will be closed on Monday and Friday. The new hours of operation will be one evening performance at 1900 hours, Sunday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Saturday.

Team Handball

Third U.S. Army will conduct a team handball clinic at Fort Benning during the period 28-30 Jan. 1973. The purpose of the clinic is to train coaches, officials and individual players in the techniques of play and officiating team handball. The clinic is open to all male military personnel desiring to learn and participate in this relatively new sport in the Army Sports program. The clinic will be conducted at Briant Wells Field House as follows: Sunday, 28 Jan. 73, 1800-2200 hours. Monday, 29 Jan. 73, 0800-1600 hours. Tuesday, 30 Jan. 73, 0800-1600 hours. Participants should be dressed in appropriate athletic clothing with gym shoes.

TSB park under way

The 4th Stu. Bn., TSB has embarked on a new project designed to enhance both the ecology and the scenery at Fort Benning. The battalion is building a "Parachute Park" in the area just south of the Airborne Ground Training facility, and north of the Bernheim Dental Clinic.

Lt. Col. James L. Anderson, commander of the 4th Stu. Bn., has decided on an interesting theme for the park. Different areas of the park will depict various periods of Airborne history. Each company in the battalion has volunteered to construct an area with information on the Airborne past. It will be a walk through chronology which will tell the story of Airborne from the first test platoon set up at Fort Benning, to the present day.

Work has already begun on the park which will take several months to complete.

Delta Co. wins

With the emphasis on maintenance during the month of January, the earthmoving platoons of the 43rd Engineer Battalion (Construction) have come up with some innovative methods of rewarding themselves for the skinned knuckles and pneumonia gained maintenance periods in the chilling Georgia cold.

The concept of the idea centered around three cases of "chilled bubbly" going to the platoon with the best maintenance on a random selection of four pieces of heavy equipment. The platoon sergeants of the respective earth-moving platoons performed the Technical Inspections on the other platoon's equipment and tallied the results.

Delta Company won the competition by the narrowest of margins, as only five points separated the equipment.

Special dividend on WWII GI insurance just hoax

"Veterans of the State of Georgia are cautioned not to be misled about false rumors of a special dividend on World War II GI Insurance," said A. W. Tate, Regional Director for the Veteran Administration for the State of Georgia. "It is simply not true," said Tate. "The rumor of the special dividend continues to crop up in many areas of the nation and the Veterans Administration wants every World War II veteran to know that no special dividend windfall is now being paid; nor will there be one in the future," Tate stated.

The hoax that has swept the nation involves accumulated dividends that were supposed to have piled up on World War II National Service Life Insurance policies — even though no premiums have been paid on the policies since the end of the war. The stories may stem from an action taken in 1948 when a payment of special dividend on these same policies was authorized. These dividends were derived at that time from premium overpayments because of a lower than anticipated casuality rate during World War II; however, all payments of these special dividends ended years ago.

The Administrator of Veterans Affairs Donald E. Johnson announced on January 4 in Washington that veterans who hold WW I and WW II GI insurance will receive record dividends in 1973. The 3.8 million holders of WW II National Service Life Insurance policies will receive an average dividend of $72, compared with the 1972 dividend of $68.

Tate pointed out that all veterans receiving dividends on National Service Life Insurance policies do not have to apply for these increased dividends since they are paid automatically by the Veterans Administration.

The total anticipated dividends to be paid in 1973 approaches the $300-million figure.

Honor Co. changes command

For Benning's Honor Company, Co. C, 1st Bn., 29th Inf. (Pioneers), 197th Inf. Bde., welcomed a new commanding officer Jan. 16 when Capt. Bruce A. Blake assumed command of the crack infantry unit.

Outgoing commander Capt. Jerome Wicker had served in that capacity since December, 1971. During his tenure as commander the Honor Guard soldiers performed in many post ceremonies as well as in a large number of activities in civilian communities. Their efforts are credited with enhancing the Army's image and aiding the 197th Brigade's program for recruiting volunteers to fulfill objectives connected with forming an all-volunteer Army.

Capt. Blake, a native of Claymont, Del., was commissioned through the ROTC program at the University of Delaware, where he earned a bachelor of science degree in physical education. He has served two tours of duty in Vietnam.

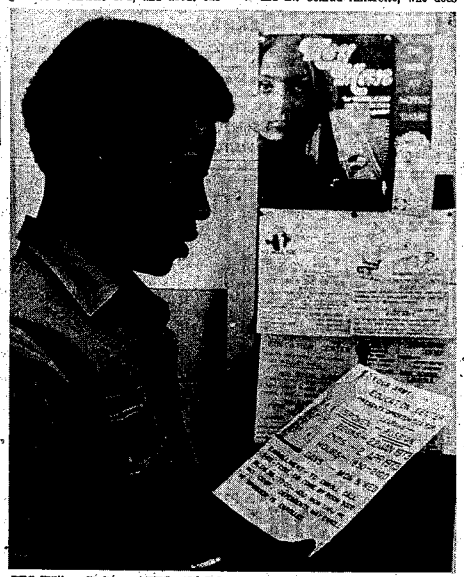
School Brigade legal section wants to help students too

The legal section of the School Brigade is a complete facility which can be a great help to TSB soldiers, or it can, if people make it so, be very harsh part of a person's life.

The section is a busy one. Each month it handles approximately eight special court martials, two or three brigade level Article 15's, and about one hundred and fifty company grade Article 15's. The office can, and does, handle the prosecution of men being court martialed.

In these cases 1st Lt. James E. Culhane, TSB Legal Officer, reviews the facts of the case and if he sees that action is necessary he turns the case over to 2nd Lt. Conrad Ambrette, who does the prosecution.



Lt. Culhane is a graduate of the University of Vermont, and the Fordham University Law School. His main mission in the office is that of advisor. He studies case information and recommends to Col. A. G. Norris, TSB commanding officer, what action should be taken against a man who has been given a brigade or who has been convicted of a crime by court martial.

His job is not only counseling about punishments to be given out, but also giving sound legal advice on matters which affect the average soldier.

"Above all, the TSB legal section is here to serve the men," sayd Lt. Culhane. "When they have a legal matter they can certainly come here and be counseled on anything through the legal spectrum."

Lt. Culhane says he tries to be impartial in his judgements. "I think I'm unbiased. I try to be fair, whether it's a private, or a captain, who is here for counseling, or because he's in trouble."

The TSB Legal Section. It makes a better friend than enemy.

Wives
197th holds second husband-wife seminar

During the secood in a series of unique race relations seminars involving soldiers and their wives from 197th Infantry Brigade units, participants discussed traditional prejudices and argued their opinions of racial theories.

Acting racial seminar moderator Sp4 Ronald Jones of Headquarters, 1st Bn. (Mech.), 58th Inf. (Patriots), asked the soldiers and wives to consider the possible origin of such theories as white supremacy. He also elicited comments on other pointed issues, like interracial marriage.

Sp4 Jones said he was surprised by some of the answers to his questions and reactions to his own statements of conjecture.

Mrs. Vicki Hughes, wife of Sgt. Tom Hughes of Co. D, 1-58th, remarked, in answer to the question 'Why is it that whites think blacks are inferior,' "I don't think they do." She added, "Those (blacks) I have come in contact with are not inferior."

Mrs. Aserina Hill, wife of SFC Clenzo Hill of Co. A, 1-58th said she solved some past incidences

Frazier here to check out race relations

Col. Ernest R. Frazier, director of the Army Equal Opportunity Programs, Washington, is visiting Fort Benning for a series of briefings on post race relations and equal opportunity activities.

Tuesday, Jan. 23 he received a briefing on race relations programs in the 197th Infantry Brigade and had a "coffee call" with troops. Also he was briefed and held a discussion with the post Race Relations Coordinating Group and had an office call with Brig. Gen. William Richardson, assistant commandant of The Infantry School.

Additional briefings and discussions are scheduled for Wednesday prior to Col. Frazier's departure from Columbus Metropolitan Airport at 5 p.m.

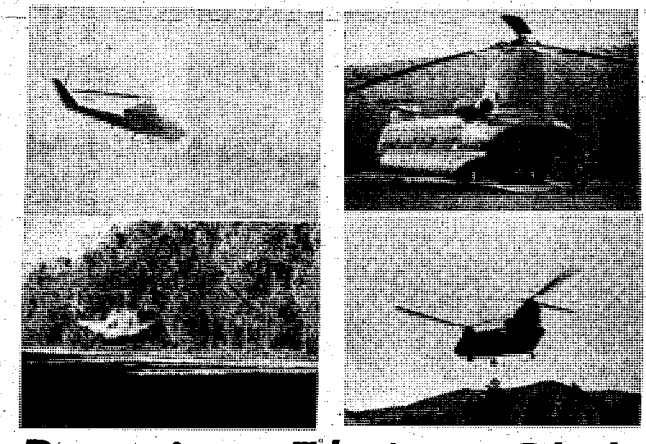
AVIATION COMMAND

Air Power

USAIC Aviation Command provides Benning with air support

THE USAIC Aviation Command (Provisional) provides command, staff planning, and control of operations and training for aviation units at Fort Benning. In a word, the Aviation Command is air power at Fort Benning.

One of it's most important functions is to provide support to the Infantry School and the Infantry Center. The air support provided by the command includes such diverse areas as training Pathfinders, dropping skydivers, providing troop lifts and combat assaults for IOBC, OCS, and other students, supporting the Ranger and Airborne Departments in their diverse operations, as well as providing aerial gunnery support to school field problems.



The Aviation Command also provides support for CONARC and Third U.S. Army. Last summer elements of the 121st Aviation Company (AH) provided support to both the Democratic and Republican National Conventions in Miami.

The Aviation Command is responsible for evaluating the flight standards of all assigned and non-assigned aviators at Fort Benning. The Command insures that all aviators on flight status maintain the required degree of proficiency.

The Aviation Command exercises supervision over flying within the Lawson Army Airfield Traffic Area, the Lawson Control Zone, and Restricted Area 3002. Through Lawson Army Airfield Operations, the Command operates, and maintains Lawson Army Airfield to include aircraft servicing of other installations and government services.

In addition to providing air support, the Command and it's subordinate units maintain a high degree of readiness to function as separate Aviation elements should the need arise. Frequent Field Training Exercises, both on the Command and unit levels, insure that Fort Benning's Aviation elements are always prepared to fulfill their mission in any situation.

Units currently assigned to the Aviation Command include the 121st Aviation Company (Assault Helicopter), a Huey and Cobra company, the 205th and 213th Aviation Companies (Assault Support Helicopter), Chinook companies, the 609th Transportation Company (Aircraft Direct Support), an aircraft maintenance company, the 931st Engineer Group Aviation Platoon, a light observation helicopter Platoon, and the 187th Infantry Detachment (Pathfinder Airborne).

Benning Flying Club open to everyone on post

The Fort Benning Fly Club brings the joy and exhilaration of flying within the reach of everyone at Fort Benning. "Our primary purpose," said Mrs. Helga Sapp, the Club's business manager, "is to stimulate interest in aviation."

Although Fort Benning has had a flying club for many years, many people stationed here are either unaware of it's existence or are not familiar with what it has to offer. "Some people," according to Mrs. Sapp, "seem to be under the impression that the Flying Club is only for Aviators or Officers. Nothing could be further from the truth. Those eligible to join the Flying Club include all military personnel on active duty, their dependents, retired personnel and their dependants, DA civilians, appropriated and non-appropriated fund civilian employes, members of reserve components, and Allied Students here at the Infantry School."

Mrs. Sapp went on to point out that "rank is irrelevant in the Flying Club. Everyone is treated the same. From private to general, they receive the same instruction. When you walk in here, your only object is to become a good pilot."

The Flying Club is noted for its very high standards and it's professional staff of instructors. Ralph Ingle, the club's Chief Flight Instructor, has logged over 14,000 hours.

The Flying Club is a Federal Aviation Agency (FAA) certified school and is also VA approved. This means that if you are eligible for VA benefits, and you have a private license, the G.I. Bill pays 90 per cent of the cost of earning higher ratings. People who went to fly can start with zero hours and progress all the way to Instrument Flight Instructor at the Flying Club. The available ratings include Private, Commercial, Instrument, Flight Instructor, and Instrument Flight Instructor. The Club is now in the process of acquiring a twin Piper Apache PA-23, which will then make it possible for club members to earn their multi-engine rating.

Ex-WAVE is air traffic controller

After seven years as a Navy Wave, SSG Ann Standeven, recently assigned to the Aviation Command as an air traffic controller, decided that the Army had more to offer women than did the other services.

After graduation from Palm Beach High, West Palm Beach, Florida, she joined the Navy and was stationed at Charleston, South Carolina. "My brother was in the Navy, so I guess he influenced me to join." When asked how she happened to get into Air Traffic Control, Standeven replied, "I really didn't know what it was, but it sounded interesting so I asked for it and I got it. It's very interesting work, not routine. There's always a challenge to it."

The primary responsibility of Air Traffic Control is to provide safety to the aviators at all times by maintaining strict control of traffic, both in the air and on the airfield itself.

While in the Navy, Standeven worked as a tower operator and as a radar operator for approach control. Upon release from the Navy, Standeven attended Jacksonville Junior College, Jacksonville, Florida, and Florida Atlantic University, Boca Raton, Florida, where she majored in geography.

In Jan. 71, she joined the Army with the rank of E-4, and attended basic training at Fort McClellan. With eighteen months, she had been promoted to SSG and in November 1972, she was assigned to the Aviation Command here at Fort Benning.

When asked how ATC in the Army compared to the Navy, Standeven replied, "The traffic in the Navy was more interesting because there was more variety. At any given time, you might be working four different types of aircraft — jets, props, seaplanes, and helicopters. But there is definitely a challenge to working Army helicopters. Often you're working several helicopters and they all want something different. One might want a normal landing, another wants an autorotation.

She went on to say that "Fort Benning is a good place to work. Lawson Field is the third busiest Army Airfield."

Standeven is quick to point out that the Army has more to offer women than do the other services, including more chance for travel and faster promotions.

In January 1972, Standeven received a letter of commendation from Fort McClellan, Alabama, for placing first in the NCO Leadership Course. Since arriving at Fort Benning, she has received the Army Commendation Medal for her work at Fort Ord, Calif. Her hobbies include bowling and making plaques, mobiles, and household decorations from driftwood.

She is definitely making a career of the military and will be reenlisting later this year. Now in training for the job of Tower shift supervisor, SSG Standeven hopes to cross-train in Ground Controlled Approach procedures.

Avn. Cmd. helps soldiers work out racial problems

BY EDWARD L. MOLLOY

With an ever increasing emphasis being placed on racial issues today, Fort Benning soldiers are often unaware of what the Army is doing to combat the always present problem of racial misunderstanding and prejudice. The Aviation Command has attacked this potential trouble area with the Race Relations team of Capt. Roger P. Bowers and SSgt. Frank W. Brantley. It is the full time job of these two soldiers to conduct, monitor, and participate in Race Relations Seminars.

In addition to these seminars, Bowers and Brantley assist the Unit Commanders within the Aviation Command in developing race relation policies and promoting interracial understanding. The team also trains individuals from each unit to be Unit Race Relations Moderators.

To better prepare themselves for this imprtant task, both Bowers and Brantley attended the Defense Race Relations Institute (DRI) 8 week course at Patrick Air Force Base, Florida. Additionally, both men have contributed countless hours to discussions and "Rap" sessions, thus further increasing their awareness of the often subtle and hidden causes of racial tensions.

The basic objective of the Aviation Command Race Relation Seminar program is to instill in the participants an appreciation of such diverse cultures as Black, Chicano and American Indian, which reduces or elliminates racial stereotypes and myths.

Each unit within the command has a minimum of 2 moderators, who conduct seminars at least twice a week with 15 to 25 participants in each. Discussion is guided by a moderator to encourage each individual's involvement. These seminars deal with subjects pertinent to the units and the personal lives of the participants.

"Meeting people is my thing."

Sergeant Cornell Russell is a drill sergeant. He's a friendly guy. He likes people and they like him.

"I chose this job because I always wanted to work with people. When I came into the Army the drill sergeants who trained me were really enthusiastic and they gave me that same enthusiasm.

"One of the great things about the Army is that you meet a variety of people from all walks of life. Every day you meet somebody new and interesting and you get to know them and like them. To me that's important.

"I've worked hard at my job and I'm proud to say that I have always had 100% graduation in my classes. I feel good about that."

The Army is giving Sergeant Russell plenty of opportunity for job satisfaction.

The Army gives a man a lot of other opportunities, too. Job and educational opportunities. With the hundreds of jobs in the Army, there's bound to be a dozen or so that will give you the kind of challenge you're looking for.

And travel opportunities in Europe, Korea, Hawaii, Alaska, Panama. And the time to get to know a country the way no tourist ever could.

The opportunity to save money on everyday things. Like free housing, dental and medical care. Commissary and post exchange privileges. Low-cost life insurance, to name a few.

Your Army Career Counselor has a whole book of job, duty station and training opportunities just waiting for you.

He'll give you lots of other reasons for staying in.

Why are you staying in?

Coming to the screen

JOE KIDD — The story is set against turn-of-the century New Mexico and is based on an explosive regional issue-ownership of land on the American side of the Mexican-American border, which resulted in bitterness, bloodshed and lingering animosities. Joe Kidd (Clint Eastwood), a hunter - guide is hired by wealthy landowner Robert Duvall to track down revolutionary John Saxon. However, Eastwood, feared and distrusted by both sides, finds himself once again the man in the middle. Duvall wants Saxon dead and has also hired sharpshooters to see his plan is carried out. Eastwood is determined at all costs to accomplish his self-ordained mission — bring Saxon to justice before he is killed.

M.A.S.H — Donald Sutherland, Elliott Gould and Tom Skerritt star in a service comedy about skilled and professionally dedicated surgeons who develope a lunatic life-style in order to function and keep their sanity in a mobile army surgical hospital (M.A.S.H.) during the Korean War.

"Pajama Game"

Springer Theatre presents broadway musical

The success scored on Broadway and elsewhere by the musical comedy, "The Pajama Game," which is to open at the Springer Theatre on February 8, proves that a good way to make a fortune is to read a book — and then follow up with a lot of work.

The book in this case was a best-selling novel called "7 Cents" in which a pajama manufacturer named Richard Bissell spun a yarn about a love affair between a pajama-factory superintendent and a pretty sewing-machine girl, a romance that got complicated when a strike broke out and put the boy and girl on opposite sides of a labor dispute.

A man named Robert E. Griffith read this book while commuting on New Haven railroad trains between his home at Rowayton, Conn., and his job as a stage-manager in New York for the musical comedy called "Wonderful Town." He became convinced that a rousing musical comedy could be made from this rather unlikely story centering around a management-versus-workers conflict and he similarly convinced the man who shared his stage-managing responsibilities, Harold S. Prince.

As unknowns in play-producing, they realized that they couldn't even obtain the rights to the novel without some form of reputable backing. So they first enlisted the interest of George Abbott, the author, director and producer of the American theatre's longest string of hits, from "Three Men on a Horse", "Brother Rat", "Boy Meets Girl", "Kiss and Tell" down to their then current hit, "Wonderful Town".

As their next step they descended upon Harold Matson, the author's agent who represented the man who wrote the novel. Matson rather airily waved aside their offer to buy stage right to "7 Cents". He was, he said, weighing several big offers for the movie rights, and would probably accept one within the next day or so. When Griffith and Prince then revealed that they had George Abbott interested in writing a stage musical version, and directing it, Matson dismissed the movie offers and did business with the two young stage-managers.

However, Abbott likes to write in collaboration, not alone. Who could be found to team up with him? Who, that is, with an established reputation, for every young, aspiring playwright in the country would make bargains with the devil for the chance to write with Abbott.

Griffith and Prince began at the top. They asked George Axelrod, who had just become a white-haired boy among playwrights with his hugely successful "Seven Year Itch". Axelrod said no. He had other plans, but he liked the idea so much he wanted to invest some of his "Itch" royalties as a partner in the production.

Next they approached William Inge, Pulitzer Prize winner with "Picnic". No again. F. Hugh Herbert, author of "Kiss and Tell" and "The Moon is Blue" also said no. Abe Burrows, co-author of "Guys and Dolls" and "Can-Can" ducked the capital-labor angle. At last it was decided to ask the man who wrote the novel that was to be converted into a musical, Bissell. He said yes.

Succeeding step: to recruit someone to write songs for the show. Griffith and Prince again started at the top by going to Frank Loesser, whose scores for "Where's Charley?" and "Guys and Dolls" put him in the top rank of song-writers. Loesser was too engrossed in completing his next project, which turned out to be "The Most Happy Fella" (no small hit, either) and he refused. But he recommended two young song writers, Richard Adler and Jerry Ross, who had never written music for a Broadway show, but had a lot of promising material. Griffith and Prince listened to some samples and said "sold."

Pia Zabora leads the "Gypsy" production number in the Broadway musical hit "Applause."

Bobby Dews

Book gives recipe for 'Successful Failure'

BY CHARLES BLACK

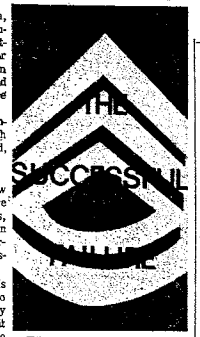
If you take baseball, World War II, Korea, Vietnam, depression times, growing up in Southwest Georgia, good times, bad times, country courthouses, medical difficulties, combat tips fit for basic doctrine — if you take all of them, mix them up into a pure-D-male mash and spread it thick and happy — you could have written this book if you were old enough, had seen enough, and done enough.

It's just a story about a man born up in Nashville, Tenn., in 1915 and how he's made it through to 1971 the hard way, failing at everything he tried, successful at everything he did.

Book Length

And you can't hope to understand exactly how a man can be a successful failure if you don't have it explained at book length by Robert P. Dews, who is now retired from the Army, involved in baseball and sometimes football, and running various lumber, cotton storage-and-marketing businesses in Edison, Ga.

There isn't any fancy prose involved in this book. A man couldn't have banged so hard at so many things and taken time out to learn fancy writing too. Sometimes it seems impossible that it isn't fiction simply because it's hard for anybody to realize that a life-time has this much span to it — until it comes to a reader that HIS has been like that to some degree or another.



I think this is one of the most truthful books I've ever read. It doesn't fudge on a detail in war or whatever, and details which I'm also familiar with (the author served his last war tour with the 1st Air Calvary Division in 1967, judging from the events he describes) come right back in vivid reality when I read them in here. It's hard to describe just how well Dews remembers what he did and saw and heard and how he felt about it, and it's even harder to describe the rough cut, splintery, oak-strong writing he uses to chronicle it, but it's not an experience to deny yourself finding out about.

Vibrant Prose

The jacket blurb says his writing is "set to the page with a vibrant prose reminiscent of Mark Twain." It is that, it is more robust than vibrant sounds, of course, and Mark Twain was a skilled stylist who used words like that deliberately for the effect they produced and the way they served his story. This man couldn't write any other way. And he's spoil it if he did.

It's his life story. Barefoot baseball catcher, soldier in three wars — and an individualistic and talented NCO he was — and all the rest, it's just the way life could be for a man if he was born in 1915 and worked hard at being involved in a lot of colorful things that have come his way ever since. It's the kind of a book I can't judge, it's too near being a kind of classic to be called "good," it shouts at being great, and if somebody ever makes that kind of a short and misses, it's got to be at least what the author maintains his life story has been — a successful failure.

One thing I do know, I wouldn't miss reading it.

Wives attend seminar of racial abuse by not acknowledging their presence. "When my children suffered verbal abuse by white children," she recalled, "I told them not to pay any attention — that stopped the name-calling."

Through this discussion, the question of semantics arose, notably the usage of the words "black" and "colored." SFC Hill said in his experience the term "black" carried a negative connotation. His wife contended "The younger generation brought the word 'black' into use."

Sp4 Jones, the moderator, asked members of the group to identify their prejudices. SFC and Mrs. Hill disagreed, the former stating, "Everyone is prejudiced in some way," while Mrs. Hill asserted, "I am not prejudiced."

Sp4 Timmy Reid of Co. D, 1-58th said, "You cannot categorize people by their color or prejudice. The only way to describe a person is according to his individual merits — character, principles and morals."

Following this portion of the seminar, the participants viewed a motion picture in which a boy is forced to become closely acquainted with a black family in the rural South when the boy's father seeks assistance after his automobile stalls.

After watching the film, the soldiers and their wives discussed its meaning and implications.

The team from the Columbus Police Department included Officer Blanton, Officer Frazier, Officer Landress, Officer Stubbs and Mr. Sargiss. Director of Public Safety for Columbus. They defeated the 123th MP team of Sgt. Marvin Black, SSgt Hayward Dykes, Specialist Nelson Collier, Sgt. George Morgan and SFC Jack James. High score for the match was Sgt. Marvin Black of the 123th MP Co. with a score of 580 out of 600 points.

Ice Hockey

Helicopter pilot spends weekends in Atlanta

One might well believe that basketball is the only winter season sport available to soldiers at Fort Benning. It seems, however, that this is not the case. WO1 Bradley Maas, a helicopter pilot with the 121st Aviation Company, spends his weekends playing ice hockey with the Atlanta Knights.

Hockey has long been a popular sport in the northern part of the country, but is just now gaining a foothold in the south. Undoubtedly, the exploits of the Atlanta Flames will attract considerable attention to this exciting game, the fastest team sport in the world.

Although Maas, who hails from Minneapolis, Minn., claims to have had a late start — "I didn't begin skating until I was six or seven years old," he has managed to stay with his sport ever since. In Junior high school, he played Bantam League Hockey, then went on to play varsity hockey for the West High School team in Minneapolis. The summer of 1970, following his graduation, he played Junior A League Hockey in Minneapolis.

Maas joined the Army in November, 1970, took basic training at Ft. Polk, La., then reported to Ft. Wolters, Tex. for Primary Helicopter Training. While stationed at Ft. Wolters, Maas played hockey on weekends with the Broken Wings, a Fort Worth team. When asked how he managed to play hockey wherever he was stationed, Maas replied, "I have a nose for ice, I guess. I seem to be able to find it wherever I go."

Soon after arriving at Fort Benning and the Aviation Command, he "Asked around until I found a team playing hockey." Now he commutes to Atlanta each weekend to play.

According to Maas, the newly formed Atlanta Knights has members ranging in ability from a former semi-pro to people just learning to skate. Team members come from all over the country and from many occupations, ranging from high school and college students to one man who is a pilot for Eastern Airlines, another who is a cab driver, etc. Presently, Maas is the only Army member of the team, although he hopes more soldiers will become interested in playing hockey.

A new, full-sized hockey rink, The Igloo, is nearly completed in Atlanta and will offer year-round ice skating. Maas is hopeful that the availability of ice will encourage people to try this sport. For excitement and action, you can't beat ice hockey.

11th Co. Squeaks by Parachute Riggers

Friday nights basketball game at the TSB gym, 11th Co. vs. Parachute Riggers, was a close battle all the way. 11th company squeeked by with a 30 to 29 point victory.

Both teams displayed poor offense in the first half of the game. The score after 11 minutes had been played stood at 2 and 2. Then finally with about .8 minutes left in the half, the teams began to score. 11th company led at the end of the half 11 to 7.

The Parachute Riggers played better basketball in the first 10 minutes of the 2nd half. They took a 17 to 12 point lead over 11th Co., but then something happened.

With just 10 minutes remaining to be played 11th company began to move. They tighted up their defense, and put their offense to work.

One minute and 45 seconds to play the score was Parachute Riggers 27, 11th Co. 26. The few fans watching the game all seemed to be pulling for the Parachute Riggers.

Fifty-eight seconds remained in the game and the Parachute Riggers led 29 to 26. But, that wasn't enough. They could not hang onto the ball long enough to run the clock out. 11th Co. came up with 2 field goals and won the game 30 to 29.

These are the current TSB basketball standings,

197th All-stars to play Columbus College Feb. 1

An all-star basketball team from the 197th Infantry Brigade will face Columbus College's junior varsity in the opener of a cage doubleheader beginning at 7 p.m. February 1

The Columbus College varsity hosts Valdosta State College in the second contest, a regularly scheduled game for the Cougars.

Fort Benning's 283rd Army Band and Infantry Chorus have been added to the agenda for a special entertainment program between games and during the halftime periods of each battle.

Twelve players, representing various units within the 197th Brigade, form the opposition for the JV's from Columbus College.

Sp4 John Black, 6'2", of Co. B, 1-58th Inf. leads the Brigade all-stars with a 20 point-per-game scoring average. He is joined by Sp4 John Halverson and Sp4 Ronald Whiley in the scoring race. Halverson, a 6'4" center from Co. D, 1-58th Inf., averages 24 points while Whiley, a 6'1" guard from the 197th's Headquarters Company, carries a 22 point-per-game average.

The remainder of the 197th Brigade team includes Sgt. Abe McCall (6'5"), PFC. William "Slim" Dottery (6'6"), PFC James Green (6'1") and PFC George King (6'), of Brigade Headquarters, PFC. Jerry Hardaway (6'3") and PFC Don Loper (6'1"), of the 72nd Engr. Co., 197th Spt. Bn., PFC Louis Johnson (6'4"), Co. D, 1-58th Inf. and PFC Leo Cannon (6') and PFC Wilbur Adams (6') of Headquarters, 2-10th Artv.

Fort Benning personnel may obtain reduced-price tickets for the event for $1 at the Post Special Services Office.

Military personnel participating in the event will not receive a share of the monies derived as a result of the admission price charged to observe the game.

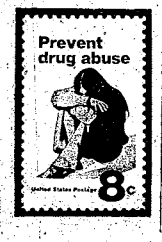
Mitchell takes top spot in match

In a two day Excellence-in-Competition match Monday, 1st Lt. Robert Mitchell of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit, captured the top spot in the rifle competition with his 291 points.

The match, offering competition on Monday for rifle shooters and handgun participants on Tuesday, is commonly called a "Leg Match" by competitors. The M16 Service Rifle was fired in the Monday matches while the 45 Caliber Service Pistol will be fired today.

The competition in these matches is open to all Army, Army Reserves, Army National Guard, USMA and Army ROTC individuals who have not previously earned a Bronze Excellence-in-Competition Badge.

In winning the rifle match, Lt. Mitchell along with the runner up Capt. Jesse Reynolds and third place winner, Capt. Francis Drake, will each receive the Army Bronze Excellence - in - Competition Badge and will be awarded four credit points toward the Distinguished Shooters Badge.



Monday's rifle match allowed each shooter a possible 250 points and was fired from four different distance ranges. Two shots were fired on each the 100, 200 and 300 yard lines while 20 shots were made from the 400 yard line.

Post Judo tourney

Judo enthusiasts and experts from throughout the Southeast will gather at Briant Wells Field House Saturday to compete in an open judo tournament sponsored by the Fort Benning Judo Club.

The Fort Benning Judo Club, a member of the United States Judo Association, is coached by Lt. Col. Charles Keaton, a second degree black-belt holder. The team's assistant coach is 1st Sgt. Jesse Chewning, Co. G, 69th Ar., 197th Spt. Bn., 197th Inf. Bde.

The 197th Spt. Bn. will enter at least one contestant in each of the senior weight divisions of the tournament. These men also participate in the sports as part of a 197th Brigade team. They, along with members of the Fort Benning team, are also planning to compete in the Georgia National Judo Tournament next month in Atlanta.

NEW Modern FAR EASTERN HISTORY from ISLAM

Get all the details... at your Education Center

By BILL KLOEB

There still basn't been much activity in the Rod and Gun Club January Fishing Derby. The entries so far this month bave been few and the leading fish are small in comparison to most months.

Loyd F Smith, a retired civil service worker leads the bream contest with a 12-ounce fish he took from Kings Pond on January 17. A 2-pound, 12-ounce catfish caught by SSgt. (ret.) Mathew G. Spniewski leads the catfish contest and SSgt. (ret.) Don Whitley leads the bass contest with a 4-pound, 13-ounch catch at Harps Pond.

January weather is less than ideal for fishing but there have been a few nice days that should have produced some bigger fish by this time of the month.

It could be that fishermen are not fishing deep enough in the deep waters. During this time of the year the fish have gone to the bottoms of ponds to find the warmest water available or are hanging around areas where the water is warmer because of underground springs or is warmed a bit by movement. This is the time of the year that it really pays off to know the bottoms of the waters you fish. Deep holes, spring areas and moving water in the channel of the streams that feed the ponds are most productive at this time of the year.

Winter sets a requirement to change tactics too. The fish are more sluggish and move slower because of the cold water. Still fishing will pay off. When casting, the lure has to be manipulated slow and easy to give the fish a chance to catch it if he becomes interested.

According to reports the boat show at the Municipal Auditorium last weekend was a big success. Boats seem to get more sophisticated and complicated each year. Buying one taxes the mind as much as the purchase of an automobile. There are doubtlessly quite a few new boat owners in the area this week and quite a few who intend to take the plunge in the near future.

Owning a boat these days involves quite a bit more than putting up the purchase price. There are Federal and State laws that establish many more requirements. Registration, safety equipment requirements, regulations concerning moving the boat from its storage place to the water and of course many regulations concerning the operation of the boat. A new boat owner has a lot of learning to do before he can actually begin to use his new recreational device. Most boats come with a considerable amount of standard equipment but in most cases there is quite a bit more needed before the craft is suitable to perform the mission desired by the new owner. There are many pitfalls involved in the procurement of these items. The new enthusiast can spend too much money in their purchase or save money by buying cheaper items only to find out be has to make the purchase again because he purchased inferior equipment that wouldn't bold up.

There is help available to the newcomer in the boating game. The local United States Power Squadron has a good cross section of owners of all kinds of boats in their membership and according to Sam McGarvy, president there are some members who don't own a boat. This strikes me as a good idea for those who haven't committed the dollars yet. A little education may change quite a few ideas in the minds of prospective owners.

The Power Squadron, which now has approximately 60 members will start a course in basic boating on March 6. The couse will consist of 10 classes held in the Naval Reserve Training Center each Tuesday evening from 7:30 until 9:30 p.m. It will include information concerning Federal and State regulations, navigation and operations and boat trailering. Attendance will also provide an opportunity to meet and rap with a lot of people interested in boats.

Additional information concerning the Squadron and its activities may be obtained from McGarvy, 545-7496, Dick Ulrick, 545-1893 or Major James Newton at 544-3942.

There are quite a few popular boating magazines that provide some excellent pointers on boating and a book entitled Recreational Boating Guide may be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D.C. 20026. Talk to others and read all you can find on your new recreation. The more you know the more you will enjoy it.

Strongest man plans visit

Paul Anderson, who holds the distinction of being called the World's Strongest Man, will be appearing at Fort Benning on Feb. 24 for a demonstration of strength and to speak.

Anderson is world-famous for his physical prowess, and has been a good-will ambassador for the United States numerous times in many different countries.

He makes his home in Vidalia, Ga., and spends the vast majority of his time travelling around the country speaking to Christian groups.

Anderson was recognized as the World's Strongest Man when he lifted a total of 6,270 pounds in 1958.

Marksmanship team from here leaves for clinic in Panama

A crack Army Marksmanship team boarded a plane Thursday for Panama where they will conduct a rifle marksmanship clinic in conjunction with the 14th Annual Pan American Invitational Military Rifle Matches to be held at Fort Amador, Canal Zone, it was disclosed by Col. William H. Harper, Commander of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit.

The 23 champion shooter-instructors and "Ambassadors of Good Will," will be presenting their marksmanship clinical instruction and demonstrations to shooters from Central and South American nations who will be competing in the Invitational Rifle matches.

The distinguished champion rifle shooters and ambassadors are guests of the four-day rifle match which is held January 30 through February 2 on Empire Range, Canal Zone.

According to Pan American officials, a major contributing factor in the success of the annual rifle matches is the exceptional guaidance rendered by the U.S. Army shooter-coaches. This southern pilgrimage has been an annual event of the elite marksmanship coaches since 1950.

The 1973 matches, hosted by the U.S. Army Forces Southern Command (USARSO) in the Panama Canal Zone, will have over 200 rifle competitors from 20 South and Central American countries.

During the period January 27 through 29, the Army Marksmanship coaches will conduct prematch rifle clinics, check weapons and perform last minute armorer duties for the competition. They will also conduct a match demonstration but will not compete in the shoulder to shoulder matches.

The coaches will be giving marksmanship pointers on approved positioning and body stances in the three competing positions, instruction on range safety, shooting techniques along with zeroing in rifles and conducting practice firing on each of the distance ranges.

In the Pan American matches, a designated Army Marksmanship coach will be assigned to work and coach with each of the 20 national teams.

The efforts of these coaches in past years has enabled competitors to raise the standards of marksmanship and maintenance of small arms in the Americas. The Latin Americans can now boast some of the finest shooters in the world.

Results of the Pan American Invitational Military Rifle matches has done much more than improve the marksmanship of individual competitors and teams. It has been a source of Inter-American friendships, mutual understanding of each country's problems and a medlan of Good Will Ambassadorship.

The marksmanship team is headed by Maj. Tommy G. Pool while his coaching staff will include top rifle competitors in the Army. Among these will be National Rifle Champion SFC Martin Edmondson and the 1971 Champion MSgt. James L. McQuien.

Two rifle gunsmiths will be supporting the competitors through weighing of trigger pull and performing necessary rifle repair during the competitive matches. These experienced repairmen are MSgt. Gerald Boutin and SSgt. Shelva Smith.

Handball clinic

Representatives from Third Army Special Services office will hold a Team Handball clinic for players, coaches and officials at Briant Wells Field House on Jan. 28, 29, and 30.

All interested personnel are invited to attend. For additional information call the Fort Benning Special Services Sport Section, 545-1516.

Veterans licenses optional

According to Georgia Veterans Service Director Pete Wheeler, Georgia's new legislation pertaining to drivers' licenses has created considerable confusion among the state's drivers, particularly with Georgia veterans who are provided with a free lifetime driver's license.

In a Sunday morning address before the Third District Convention of The American Legion and its Auxiliaries at Post 35 in Columbus, Wheeler said that the prime area of confusion centers around the little-publicized fact that a veteran still has the option of retaining his old, original driver's license if he so desires.

Wheeler told the Third District Legionnaires and Auxiliary members, "If a veteran desires to have a new license, then his current free license will be voided and a new license complete with his photograph will be issued to him.

"If however, the veteran wishes to retain his original free license he may do so. In this case the results of the eye examination will be noted on the license together with the expiration date, which will be four years from his birthday month in 1973 since all veterans' licenses must be renewed this year. Should a veteran fail the eye examination, however, then his license would be voided until his sight condition is improved to meet minimum standards. At that time he would then be issued a new license."

Other requirements for a free veterans driver's license remain the same. These include: a veteran's military service must have been during a wartime period; the veteran's discharge must be under honorable conditions, and the veteran must have been a legal resident of Georgia at the time he entered service.

There are instances whereby a non-veteran may be entitled to a free veteran's license. Wheeler explained, "Under certain conditions, the surviving spouse of a deceased veteran may qualify for a free license. In addition, the spouse of a veteran still living, but so disabled that he cannot drive, might also be eligible."

Veterans may receive their certification for a free driver's license at any office of the Department of Veterans Service.

Army improves confinement

The Army has moved to improve its confinement procedures by ordering that soldiers convicted and sentenced by court martial proceedings be confined at Fort Leavenworth or Fort Riley instead of post stockades.

Benefits from the move will be two-fold. First, prisoners will receive more efficient and effective correctional treatment and psychiatric help where needed; and second, the centralization of the correctional treatment centers will result in a savings in manpower and funds.

The new prisoner transfer system went into effect on Dec. 4.

Maj. Frank G. Willey Jr., Fort Benning confinement officer, said centralizing correctional centers will mean that prisoners will no longer spend long periods of time in the post stockade waiting for the convening authority to approve a sentence. Prisoners will be sent to Fort Riley or Fort Leavenworth as soon after trial as possible.

Prisoners sentenced to punitive discharges, or more than six months confinement, are now sent to the U.S. Disciplinary Barracks at Fort Leavenworth. Prisoners sentenced to less than six months, or without punitive discharge, or with punitive discharge suspended, are being sent to the U.S. Army Retraining Brigade at Fort Riley.

Maj. Willey explained that the Army Correctional System was designed to provide correctional treatment and rehabilation for prisoners and that Fort Riley and Fort Leavenworth have better facilities than does the average post stockades.

According to Willey, prisoners will not be kept in the post stockade unless exceptional circumstances warrant the convening authority to defer transfer.

Willey noted that the new system will limit the post stockade primarily to use as a pre-trial confinement center.

Gaines talks at memorial

Memorial services were held in the 931st Engineer Group (CBT) Chapel January 15, in memory of the late Dr. Martin Luther King. The guest speaker was Reverend Nathaniel Gaines who spoke of Dr. King's accomplishments as a man and as a human being.

The highlight of the service was the playing of a recording that included excerpts from tapes that were recorded when Dr. King, John F. Kennedy and Robert Kennedy were assassinated. The tape was played with the background recording of "Where Have All the Flowers Gone," which had a definite effect on the gathering.

This was but one of the many services held on Fort Benning and throughout the nation. In some areas, businesses and schools were closed to observe the memorial services.

Prayer breakfast at Club

The annual national prayer breakfast will be held Feb. 1, at Fort Benning's Main Officers Open Mess, beginning at 7:00 a.m.

This breakfast, a 20 year tradition established by President Eisenhower and Congressional Prayer Groups, brings together people in leadership positions from various aspects of our nation's life for discussion and prayer.

Those invited to attend the breakfast here are Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, Fort Benning commander, Brig. Gen. William R. Richardson, assistant commandant of the Infantry School, CSM John F. LaVoie, post sergeant major, CSM William T. Mixon, Infantry School sergeant major, unit commanders and their sergeant majors, Fort Benning chaplains and layman groups affiliated with religious programs.

The guest speaker will be Doctor Robert I. Shinn, author of 12 books and writer and narrator of a television program.

Leave tension and trouble behind.

Follow the sun to Port Charlotte, Florida, where the living is relaxed.

Maybe you've dreamed about getting away from it all. The urban sprawl. Overcrowding. Noise. Pollution. Turmoil.

Well, your getaway can be easier than you think. In unspoiled Port Charlotte, you can enjoy the things you like about city living, in a setting of tranquility and charm.

Here the streets are clean and safe. You have fresh air, trees, green grass, and a warm sun all year 'round. There are good schools, houses of worship, shopping centers, medical facilities; cultural and social activities of every kind.

And as an added bonus, you get resort living for a lifetime. You have miles of waterways for boating and fishing. Fully equipped marinas. Championship golf courses, pools, and uncrowded beaches.

It doesn't cost a cent to find out how easily you can make your getaway, to Port Charlotte. Just mail the card. No cost or obligation.

Expectant parents' classes start Tuesday

Pregnancy and childbirth are normal, natural happenings. It is believed that through a thorough program of education, the expectant father and mother can be prepared both physically and emotionally to make childbirth and parenthood a satisfying and rewarding experience.

The Army Health Nursing Service, in conjunction with the Obstetrics Department, Martin Army Hospital, is beginning another series of Expectant Parents' Classes on 6 February 1973. The series consists of four classes, each two hours long, on the first four Tuesday nights of each month. Classes are held in the Conference Room on the second floor of Martin Army Hospital.

The sessions improve your knowledge of pregnancy, childbirth, and newborn babies. Movies, slides, short talks, and discussion groups help to explain the physical structure of the male and female, reproduction, body changes, signs of labor and infant care.

The first class includes prenatal care, psychological aspects of parenthood, and exercises. The second class is labor and delivery plus a tour of Labor and Delivery, the third is Martin Army Hospital procedures and the fourth is infant care, with a special session on breast feeding. It is best to start with the first class in the series and continue with the same group; however, if you should miss one class, you can make it up in the next series.

Particular care is taken to make each expectant mother and father aware of forthcoming events. Fear and uncertainty are results of meeting the unexpected. For assurance and knowledge, you are encouraged to attend a series of Expectant Parents' Classes during your pregnancy. The Obstetrician, Pediatrician, Optometrist, Chaplain, Nursery Nurse, and the Army Health Nurse all participate in the series. It is an excellent opportunity to ask question.

Because of limited space, you are asked to pre-register for these classes by calling the Army Health Nursing Service, 545-5431, Monday through Friday, 8 a.m.-5 p.m.

Music center to give lessons classroom style

Learn guitar in the class room. Why not? Special Services Music Center offers an immediate musical experience with the "Guitar Magic" audio-visual guitar teaching laboratory. You learn from a well established programmed text presented thru full color visuals onto a screen at the front of the class room. Through head phones, you hear the guitar magic lessons, your instructors voice, with musical examples and a backup combo.

The guitar is small, portable, economic instrument, that is not limited to any one type of music-if can reach from rock and folk music to the classics. What will it cost for two one hour lessons a week for six weeks? Downtown, from $72.00 to $129.50. At Special Services Music Center only $8.50 for the greatest start in music available anywhere. Like to enroll or get more information? Drop by Bldg. No. 1684 or phone Special Services Music Center 545-1870.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

by Bill King

Stash a few X's across the navel of an eating orange before putting it into the school lunchbox. Makes it easier for little fingers to peel.

For unusual crunchy flavor and extra nutrition, add sauteed, salted bamboo shoots to buttered rice you're serving with roast pork or spareribs.

Caffe Cappuccino suggests a delicious way to combine dessert and beverage for a winter supper. Mix steaming espresso coffee with an equal amount of scalded milk and top with cinnamon or nutmeg.

Smoked fish tastes extra good if you saute it gently and serve a curried cream sauce accompanied by lemon wedges.

The Swiss, who should know, say that whoever is first to drop his bread from the fork when dipping into cheese fondue must buy the wine for the next fondue party.

If you have a social obligation to meet, treat your guests to a fine dinner prepared by the experts chefs at

C, Co., 43rd Eng. ahead for Ischtner Award

Charging Charlie Company, 43rd Engineer Battalion is stepping out number one again as Fort Benning's entry in the annual competition for the Ischtner Award. The award is presented each year by the Society of American Engineers in cooperation with the United States Army Corps of Engineers to the best company in the Corps selected in Army-wide competition.

The entries in the competition are judged on the basis of several indicators of performance observed during calendar year 1972. The Board of Judges examines a unit's AWOL rate, reenlistment rate, construction tasks accomplished, and dynamic training conducted for soldiers within the unit and for the unit as a whole in such things as field training exercise and construction training. Further, the companies compete in their participation in the Zero Draft Environment programs and involvement in local area community activities and domestic action programs. This year the candidates for the award found a much expanded format in which to present their case. The proposed format called for an extensive narrative rather than the use of a fill-in form. Charlie Company presented its case in the form of a book which not only provided the necessary statistics but described the company's accomplishments in detail, complete with pictures.

Charlie Company is basing its case this year on a record of project accomplishments which total over $170,000.00. The company accomplished that feat while it averaged only 70 per cent of its authorized strength and going over four straight months without an AWOL and seven straight months without a larceny. Other of the company's accomplishments are also outlined in the more than forty pages of its proposal book.

Now that the proposal has been forwarded to Third United States Army in competition with the representatives of other posts in the area, Charlie Company has its hopes up to go all the way. These hopes are strengthened by the fact that this is the second straight year that Charlie Company has represented Fort Benning in this competition.

Hayes visits 931st

Dr. Robert E. Hayes, president of Wiley College in Marshall, Texas, last week gave a series of lectures on the subjects of race relations and social problems to units of the 931st Engineer Group. At the units, Dr. Hayes also participated in company level discussion groups.

Dr. Hayes was an immediate hit with the men and succeeded in arousing their interest with his challenging and direct manner.

It is hoped that he will find the time in the not too distant future to visit the 931st again.

A workman installs pipes at Fort Benning Mall, the new multi-million-dollar shopping complex located on the extension of the Lindsay Creek Bypass. Completion is scheduled for October, 1973. The project will house the Commissary, PX, and various other facilities. It is the first shopping center complex to be built on an Army post.

The Mall

PX-Commissary to be 30 per cent finished by the end of January

Fort Benning Mall, the new multi-million-dollar PX-Commissary complex on the extension of the Lindsay Creek Bypass, is rising into the sky on a framework of masonry and steel.

The unique project will be 30 per cent complete by the end of January, according to the Savannah district engineer's office. Target date for its completion is October 1973.

Up until now, shopping complexes of this type have been featured only in civilian communities.

The ultra-modern facility will include, when completed, a Commissary and Post Exchange, warehouse space for both, a service station, and the National Bank of Fort Benning.

It will also house a bowling alley, barber and beauty shops, a florist shop, photography shop, snack bar, Tot Town Nursery, and the U. S. Army Infantry School Bookstore.

Other shops will include a television and radio repair shop, an optical shop, and a tailor shop. The complex will cover a total of approximately 205,000 square feet, with exterior covered walks and smaller facilities housed separately.

The Mall will bring about the consolidation or reduction of five present Commissary and Exchange branches, and make possible the destruction of thirteen obsolete buildings, dating back to early World War II.

Ground was broken in ceremonies held last May for the project, which will cost a total of $8 million. This money comes from various Commissary and Exchange funds and other nonappropriated funds, rather than from taxpayers' money.

Current construction includes the structural framework, and the roof is presently being installed. Work on both exterior and interior masonry is proceeding, and concealed wiring and pipes have been roughed-in.

Foundation work for the service station has been completed, along with underground pipes and wiring for the whole Mall. The site has also been graded in preparation for the placing of curbs and gutters.

In addition to the Mall's other advantages of an ideal location as a modern "all-in-one" shopping facility, it will make Fort Benning, and the Army, more attractive to the constant flow of young officers and NCO's who pass through the area.

For those who are assigned here for longer periods, or who plan to retire in the area, the Mall will definitely be a bonus. It will also make the post a more likely place for permanent units to locate in the future.

The Mall is situated between the four major areas of the post, Sand Hill, Kelley Hill, Harmony Church and Main Post. It can be easily reached from all four areas.

ILC classroom officially open Jan. 29

"Let Us Help You Help Yourself" — is the motto of the Individual Learning Center (ILC), one of the most modern and elaborate classrooms in the U.S. Army which opened on Jan. 29 at Fort Benning.

According to Capt. Stephen C. Darrah, the chief of the ILC, "The primary mission of the ILC is to provide remedial instruction and reenforcement for students enrolled in academic courses at the Infantry School."

The majority of the programs contain military related materials in the fields of tactics, weapons, communications, and military history. However, instruction is not limited to military subjects alone.

There are also many enrichment programs. The center has a program on how to improve your golf score with Jack Nicklaus as an instructor. Another program features eight lessons on speed reading with Dick Cavett. Other selections include how to prevent a heart attack, how to avoid a backache, and many more.

The ILC is a completely voluntary program open to military personnel and their dependents, retired military, and employees of Fort Benning.

The ILC has 12 individual carrels (learning booths) with 35mm slide projectors that are synchronized with an audio-cassette tape player. In addition, the center has 30 color television sets for videocassette use, three super 8mm film projectors and two 35mm sound film strip projectors.

Darrah said, "The advantages offered to the student by media assisted instruction are unique. Unlike the conventional classroom, the student can control the rate of instruction being presented to him. The student can bypass what he is strong in and review as many times as necessary instruction that is more difficult for him to understand." Darrah also pointed out that using media assisted instruction creates an ideal student-teacher ratio of one to one.

Capt. Darrah said, "The instructor can not be replaced by this method of instruction because the vital exchange of ideas between student and teacher can not take place with the automation. The automated program can ask students questions, but can not answer questions a student has about the material covered."

The ILC began in March, 1971, with 29 carrels. It was expanded in March, 1972, to 50 carrels because of its popularity with students in the Infantry School.

Strongest man to visit Feb. 24

Paul Anderson, known world-wide for his Samson-like feats of strength, will be appearing on Fort Benning Sat. Feb. 24, for The School Brigade's "Duty Day With God."

The appearance by Anderson will begin at 9 a.m., and will last until 1 p.m. that afternoon at TSB's Sightseeing Road Chapel.

At 5' 9" tall and 375 pounds Anderson is an imposing figure. He can lift a heavy wooden table with 8 men on it and can drive a 10-penny nail through two solid inches of board.

When he first began weight-lifting he was playing on a college football team. After a few weeks he was breaking long standing school records, and in several months he was shattering world records. He dropped football and took up weight-lifting full time.

SOUND OFF!

What do you like or dislike about the Bayonet?

Opinions given about Bayonet

Spc Daisy Jackson

I enjoy the Sound-off column the most. I like any articles on activities that are going on-post that involves what women are doing. Courses such as mechanics which women can use and need just as badly as men do. I would also like to see information on sickle cell and when clinics are held.

E-2 Netzel Henry
45th Co. TSB

Recently I have enjoyed the adventure training stories. I enjoy reading the special articles the most. The only Army material that I read and use are the rules and regulation changes. Too much unusable Army material.

Mrs. Leland Jones

As far as dependents go there is very little of interest in the Bayonet. I read the entire paper but only the Movie schedule and a few articles interest me.

E-5 Earl Washburn
Co. 43, 4th Student Bn.

I enjoy reading the Bayonet. It contains a lot of useful information that I can use. I just came from Ft. Jackson and their post paper is very small and doesn't contain information that was really useful to me. I was really surprised at the size of the paper. I'm satisfied with it the way it is.

Mrs. Bob McLemore

What I dislike about the Bayonet is the fact that it does not inform the dependents when on post services will be closed and the operating hours of dependent facilities. I do like the T.V. program section.

The Bayonet staff would like your help on a couple of items.

First of all we would like to know what you want to hear about. If you can think of a subject that you would want to hear opinions on send it to us. We will be able to use it in our Sound-Off section.

The other subject has to do with letters to the Editor. If you have any complaints, praises, or would like to express yourself on a subject concerning the Army, Fort Benning, or other local interest, please write a letter to the editor.

Be sure to sign your name and company to the letters.

Taxes

Each unit to have a tax officer to help soldiers

War Zone Exclusions

For those who served in the Vietnam area during 1972, it is important to remember that the combat zone exclusion continues to apply, including those who served outside the combat zone but who were serving in direct support of military operations in a combat zone. This means a tax break for many men serving in air crews in Thailand and Okinawa, and crews operating on or from ships that are outside the combat zone. This broadened exclusion is retroactive to Jan. 1, 1964.

A reminder: Combat zone tax exclusion applies to any period of hospitalization resulting from injury in a combat zone, even if the hospitalization is in the serviceman's home town. But the provision giving war veterans an extra 180 days in which to file applies only to combat zone service and hospitalization overseas resulting from that service.

The combat zone tax exclusion law can be valuable in many ways. For example, cash awards under the DoD Incentive Awards Program for suggestions submitted while serving in a combat zone are not taxable, even if the award is approved or paid after the man has left the combat zone.

However, the man must pay the tax on an award paid while in a combat zone for a suggestion submitted before the man arrived in the combat zone.

Re-Up Bonuses

A similar rule applies to the reenlistment bonus. If a man reenlists during a month when he served in a combat zone, the initial installment of the regular or variable bonus and all subsequent installments are excluded from gross income.

But if he reenlists elsewhere and collects any of the money while in a combat zone, he must pay the tax.

Exclusion of the pay of officers who retain their enlisted or warrant pay (saved pay) upon temporary promotion to O-1 or above is limited to the amount of combat zone exclusion applicable to the temporary rank—$500 a month.

Incidentally, moonlighting money earned in nonappropriated fund activities in combat zones is taxable. This applies, for example, to bartenders in Saigon military clubs.

Casualty Tax Breaks

The families of Vietnam casualties can get substantial tax breaks. Tax liability is canceled for the year in which the serviceman died as a result of combat zone service, and for every preceding year going back to the first day he served in a combat zone.

Theoretically, this could mean that a Korean War veteran who was killed in Vietnam in 1972 would have his entire federal income tax wiped out for the years from his first combat in Korea in the early 1950s, to 1972.

But the Internal Revenue Service is enforcing the three-year statute of limitations on such refunds.

Relocation Expenses

Many moving expenses became deductible for the first time in 1970, a benefit that is especially valuable to the mobile military population. The law now allows taxpayers to deduct the cost of up to 30 days of temporary lodging at the new place of work. It also permits deduction of an advance house-hunting trip by husband and wife, as well as the costs related to getting out of the old house, such as agents' fees, settling leases and the like.

To qualify, the new place of employment must be at least 50 miles farther from the old residence than the old place of employment was. The new job must be for 39 weeks or more, with exceptions due to death, disability or involuntary separation.

Sick Pay

Servicemen, like civilians, can exclude "sick pay" after the first 30 days of an illness. They can exclude up to $100 a week or $14.29 per day after the first 30 days of continuous absence from work.

Those who get sick or wounded in a combat zone cannot exclude more than their total pay, even though they are entitled to separate combat zone and sick pay exclusions.

Chow Bills

Mess bills afloat are not deductible if they are paid by an officer assigned to permanent duty aboard a ship. But such bills may be deductible as travel expenses by members of mobile units in a travel or temporary active duty status while away from their permanent ship or station.

Such travel expense deduction is available to air squadron members when away from the squadron's home base on TDY, crews of two-crew submarines assigned to temporary duty ashore while the submarine is manned by the other crew, and to soldiers and marines while on field duty or maneuvers in a temporary duty status.

Reserve Travel Pay

Reservists can deduct the one-way cost of driving to drills from their places of work when they work and drill on the same day. They can deduct travel costs—including meals and lodging—when they are required to remain away from their principal places of business overnight because of training.

Reservists must include as taxable income all basic pay for attending drills, training duty and annual training. Also taxable are state pay for emergency duty, incentive pay for hazardous duty and special pay.

However, basic allowances for subsistence and quarters that were paid on active duty or at annual training are not subject to tax.

Reservists generally can deduct uniform costs that exceed the uniform allowance.

Sale of Home

If you lost money when you sold your house in 1972 because of a transfer, you cannot deduct the loss. If you made money on the sale of the house you lived in, the law offers servicemen a special advantage that civilians don't have.

The general rule is that a taxpayer can postpone the tax on the profit resulting from the sale of his residence if he buys another house costing at least as much as the "adjusted sale price" of the old one—provided he occupies the new house within the two-year period beginning a year before and ending a year after the sale of the old one, or builds and occupies a new house within 18 months after the sale of the old one.

This period-after-sale is suspended during the time a taxpayer is on active military duty, up to four years.

"Adjusted sale price" on the old house means the selling price minus such selling expenses as commissions and advertising and certain fix-up expenses.

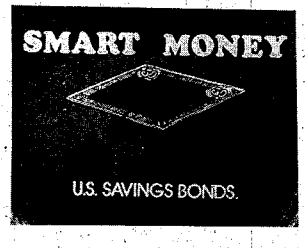
POLICE OF FAMILY QUARTERS AREA



Family Quarters occupants are reminded that the season for leaves to fall is over. Accumulated leaves, pine needles, and gumballs are to be raked from lawns and placed in containers near garbage pick-up points. The efforts of all concerned are solicited to insure the highest standards of beautification in housing areas.

HUNTERS

There is training being conducted at Fort Benning which requires that dud producing weapons be fired into non-permanent dud areas. These areas have been searched for duds, but some may have been missed. Portions of the dud areas on post have been cleared and will be open for hunting. Use these areas with caution and report any duds to Range Division, 545-5186.

SENIOR-MASTER PARACHUTIST BOARD

If you are concerned about someone with a drinking problem the Fort Benning Al-Anon Group can help you.

The group meets in Building 2212, Airborne Area each Monday evening at 8 p.m.

Al-Anon was founded by families of alcoholics who had gained sobriety in Alcoholics Anonymous but today many Al-Anon members are finding serenity despite a loved one with an active drinking problem.

The Al-Anon Family Groups are a fellowship of relatives and friends of alcoholics who share their experience, strength and hope to solve their common problem of living with an alcoholic and to help others do the same. They believe alcoholism is an illness which can be arrested and that changed family attitudes can often aid recovery.

The only requirement for membership is that there be a relative or friend who has a drinking problem. There are no dues for membership. The fellowship is self-supporting through contributions of members.

Al-Anon is not allied with any sect, denomination, political entity, organization or institution. It does not engage in any controversy or support or oppose any cause.

Major goals for the Al-Anon member are to grow spiritually through the program, give encouragement and understanding to the alcoholic and to give comfort and knowledge to the families of alcoholics.

In the early days the primary concern of those who came to Al-Anon was to preserve their sanity and help in adjusting to a situation which was considered hopeless. However it has been determined again and again that development of a real understanding of the alcoholic and initiation of proper approaches can lead to acceptance of help by the alcoholic.

Alcoholics Anonymous and professional therapist have found that persons brought to treatment through definite pressure of some sort respond as well as those who go of their own volition.

SFC Butler turns to art

SFC Weston Butler, First Sergeant of Headquarters and Service Battery, 2nd Bn., 10th Arty., 197th Inf. Bde., displays some of the paintings for which he has become known as an outstanding artist.

SFC Weston Butler has followed an unpredictable course in the world of art — or so it appears to the casual observer.

When his high school class signed for preferences in the diversified education program Butler immediately chose display advertising, stemming from his affinity for attractive layouts in large store windows. Shortly thereafter, however, the Raleigh, N. C. native enlisted in the Army, where he has served for 17½ years.

"I joined the Army to fulfill an obligation and to take advantage of the family benefits and the G.I. Bill," said the veteran artilleryman and 1st Sgt. of HSB, 2nd Bn., 10th Arty., 197th Inf. Bde.

In just two and one-half years Butler will retire from the Army to pursue a career in commercial art, beginning with formal school at the New England School of Art, Boston, Mass.

"I don't think I could have enrolled in a good art school without the help of the G.I. Bill," he remarked. "Most of the schools I applied to required quite a fee, more than I could have afforded."

Though he has been detoured slightly by Army service, Butler's work shows success — not digression. Last November the artistic artilleryman garnered two first-place awards in the Third Army Art Contest held at the Main Post Service Club.

His "Two Glasses of Wine" claimed the top prize for oil paintings while his entry in acrylic painting, "Suspended Figure," also gained a first-place ribbon.

Butler, who next plans to enter two posters in the upcoming Special Services-sponsored Third Army Poster contest, likes the communicative aspect of art.

"I have pursued various aspects of art — printing, sculpture, collages and design — in order to grasp the many parts of window display advertising," said Butler.

OWC Old Fashion Tasting Bee

On Feb. 14, an old fashion tasting "Bee" will be held at the Supper Club. Sherry will be served at noon, with lunch at 12:30.

Each lady attending should bring a dish from one of the following categories, preferably in foil-type disposable dish: salads, meats or main dishes, vegetables, breads or desserts. There will be escorts at the door to direct you to the correct table. If you wish to share your recipe be sure to bring a few copies with you.

To relax the atmosphere wear a granny dress, long skirt and blouse or whatever makes you happy. In keeping with the mood the Follow Me Travelers (square dancers) will appear, along with the Fort Benning Belles. "Calamity Jane" will be unmasked.

There will be visitors from Muscogee and Pine Manor nursing homes at the Tasting Bee.

Reservations should be in by noon Feb. 8. There will be a 50 cent charge at the door to cover coffee and tea.

NEWS FLASH

Don't forget the OWC Tasting Bee on Feb. 14, being held in the Supper Club at noon. Remember to bring a dish (disposable) of your favorite recipe. Deadline for all reservations is noon, Thurs., Feb. 8. For reservations, please call:

Mrs. Arthur Osborne 545-1548
Mrs. Bruce Blake 545-3608
Mrs. Mike O'Connell 687-7897
Mrs. Donald Gluck 545-5728

OWC ACTIVITIES

There are still openings in the Yoga classes. Yoga is held Wednesdays at 11 a.m. Six lessons for $12. Call Mrs. Alfred Burer, at 322-3752. Call soon.

Interested in learning to sew lingerie or body suits? Join the OWC's "Cinch to Stitch" class. It meets at 9 a.m. Tuesdays at the OWC lounge. Three lessons for $6. Call Mrs. Norbert Otto at 545-1307.

The Environmental Workshop will host a timely program entitled "Gas —The Energy Crisis." The speaker will be Mr. Jack Bell, president of the Gas-Light Company of Columbus. Everyone is invited to hear Mr. Bell at 10 a.m. in the OWC lounge on Feb. 7.

The OWC is beginning a new class for children—Baton Twirling. Taught by a former majorette at the University of Tennessee, the class will teach the students to work with one baton, two batons, and fire batons. Majorette, solo, strutting, and dance-twirl routines will also be taught.

The classes will be open to girls 7 years old and up. The classes cost $7 monthly and will be held once a week on Thursday evenings at 7 p.m. or Saturdays at 9:30 a.m. or 1 p.m.

If interested in having your child participate in this course, call Mrs. Jerry Hines at 687-1403.

ATTENTION SEWERS!

Woodward's of Cross Country extends an invitation to all sewers to a free "Cutting Out" Fashion Show on Friday, Feb. 9. 4:30 and 7:30 p.m. The one-woman fashion show is sponsored by Mademoiselle Magazine, Butterick Patterns, and Cohama Fabrics.

PWOC BIBLE STUDY

The women of the PWOC Bible Study group wound up the old year with several Christmas projects. They contributed much needed articles to the Muscogee County Jail, Juvenile Detention Home, three needy families at Fort Benning, and the ACS Food Locker. Mrs. James Hughes hosted a Christmas party in her home where Mrs. John Waldrop was presented with a special gift for service.

The slate of officers for the new year is as follows: Chairman, Mrs. Russell Mayhall; Hospitality, Mrs. Lin Wallburg and Mrs. Phillip Jarrell; Secretary, Mrs. Michael Walsh; Sunshine, Mrs. Donald Ellis; Membership, Mrs. Wade Whitley; Publicity, Mrs. George Trick; Bible Leaders, Mrs. Henry Haga and Mrs. James Hughes.

On Jan. 24, the Bible Study women went on an informative tour through Benning House which ended with a stimulating group discussion about drug and alcohol abuse.

The Bible Study group is open to all women. In January and February the book of I Corinthians and The Christian Home by Shirley Rice will be studied. The meetings are held at the Religious Education Building on Dixie Road at 9:30 a.m. every Wednesday except the 4th Wednesday of the month. Come join us!

MEDDAC WIVES' CLUB

Friends and admirers of Mrs. H. Haskell Ziperman joined together at the January MEDDAC Wives' Club luncheon to pay tribute to a "great lady." The luncheon held at the FBOOM Supper Club was a farewell to Mrs. Ziperman whose husband is retiring as MEDDAC commander.

Special guests attending the function were friends of Mrs. Ziperman's from the Fort Benning and Columbus area. These included Mesdames Orwin C. Talbott, Charles Merrill, James C. McConaughy, Douglas G. Tucker, Clay Aldridge, Joseph W. Stillwell, Robert Yocum, Joe Rothschild, E. G. Sparks, Charles S. Daley, Howard Snyder, James F. Cochran, Jack A. Bell, Talton W. Long, Joy Browning and Charles Thebaud. Several guests gave speeches concerning the time and encouragement Mrs. Ziperman has given to so many organizations.

A medley of tunes from "My Fair Lady" was turned into a musical salute for Mrs. Ziperman. Mrs. Paul Kaufman rewrote the lyrics to describe Mrs. Ziperman and her activities in song. Performing the numbers were Mrs. Billy Burk, Mrs. Harold Plank, Mrs. Herbert Gamber, Mrs. Justin Zack, Mrs. George Trick and Mrs. Gregory Meyer. Mrs. Peter Sereque accompanied the group on the piano.

At the end of the luncheon Mrs. Ziperman was presented with an original handmade macrame hanging planter which she has long admired.

Hostesses were wives from the Departments of General Surgery, Dental Clinic No. 6 and Pharmacy with Mrs. Donald Ellis as chairman.

The Feb. 9 MEDDAC Wives' luncheon will be in honor of Mrs. George Woodard, wife of MEDDAC's new commanding officer. There will be a receiving line during the sherry half-hour which begins at noon. The luncheon itself, to be held at the FBOOM Supper Club, starts at 12:30 p.m.

HEADQUARTERS COMMAND

Mrs. John P. Miller, assisted by Mrs. Michael B. Nelson, held a coffee at her home for the ladies of HEADQUARTERS COMMAND, on Jan. 17.

During the coffee, Mrs. Leon R. Livingston Jr. discussed the Officers' Wives' Club Old Fashioned Tasting Bee, being held on Feb. 14. Mrs. Robert W. Hall and Mrs. Leigh J. Blood were appointed Hospitality Chairmen and Mrs. Brian D. Arnald was appointed Farewell Chairman.

Coffee and punch was served with an assortment of sweet breads, including banana bread and pumpkin bread.

COMMAND MAINTENANCE DEPT.

Warm, springlike weather brought all the ladies of COMMAND MAINTENANCE DEPARTMENT out to the January coffee given by Mrs. David Walters and Mrs. Frank Sharp at Torch Hill Road, Columbus. Enjoying sweet rolls, donuts, coffee, hot chocolate, and tea, the ladies chatted, and Mrs. Thomas Fitzpatrick presented the new business to the group for discussion.

LEADERSHIP DEPARTMENT

Ladies of the LEADERSHIP COMMITTEE met Jan. 16 for a coffee at the home of Mrs. Nathan Vail. Hot ham biscuits, banana bread, petit blueberry muffins and cookies with hot coffee and tea served from mugs lent a casual atmosphere.

Plans were discussed for the April Department function which the Leadership Committee will host. Plans are also underway to organize a monthly Pot-Luck Card Night for all couples in the Committee interested in bridge or canasta. Mrs. Nathan Vail and Mrs. Tom Harrison were hostesses for this delightful coffee. Mrs. Meredith Standley will host the February coffee.

The ladies of the HEADQUARTERS COMMITTEE met in the home of Mrs. James W. Dingeman on Jan. 16 for their monthly meeting.

Tasty hot coffee and pastries were the first order of business. A short business meeting was held and minutes of the board meeting were discussed. Plans were made for the Leadership Wives' Brunch to be held in the Benning Room on Feb. 6 at 10 a.m.

The February meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Lee A. Goff.

197TH

The 197TH HEADQUARTERS ladies began the new year with a coffee in the Normandy Room at the Main Officers' Club. Mrs. Thomas Woods and Mrs. Harold McClelland were co-hostesses for the occasion.

An arrangement of red and white mums and roses, created by Mrs. McClelland, was used as a centerpiece and later presented to Mrs. William Benline.

Mrs. Robert Kelley introduced special guest, Mrs. Paul Kaufman, recruiting chairman for the Red Cross. She gave a most interesting and informative talk on "How you might become a part of this organization."

The next brigade function, a luncheon, is scheduled for March 21. Two new members were welcomes to the group: Mrs. James T. Short and Mrs. William D. Benline. Farewell was said to Mrs. Ronald Smitherman.

The staff of the 1ST BN. 29TH INF. were sponsors for the battalions' Hail and Farewell held Jan. 20. The USAIC recreational area was the setting for the potluck supper.

Welcomes were extended to Maj. and Mrs. Bob James and Lt. and Mrs. Peter Cutler. Farewells were said to Maj. and Mrs. Duane Knockx, Capt. and Mrs. Dick Holley, Capt. and Mrs. Gerald Heard, Capt. and Mrs. Anthony Giles, and Lt. and Mrs. Bill Benline. A baby cup was presented to Lt. and Mrs. Richard Beauchamp, proud parents of a new baby girl.

After presentations and announcements, cards and games were played.

The ladies of the 1ST BN. 29TH INF. held their monthly coffee in the Fort Benning Officers' Club on Jan. 18. Hostesses for the coffee were Mrs. Dick Holley and Mrs. Jim Johnson.

Farewell was said to Mrs. Dick Holley. She and her husband, Chaplain Holley, will be leaving for Germany next month.

After a brief business meeting conducted by Mrs. Charles Arnecke, the group discussed a brief history of the battalion and the battalion's Coat of Arms. Customs and courtesies of the military were also discussed.

The ladies of the 1ST BN. (MECH), 58TH INF., 197th Inf. Bde. held their monthly coffee at the home of Mrs. Robert E. Orkand with Mrs. Richard Williams acting as co-hostess.

Mrs. Orkand welcomed Mrs. Donald Sutton and Mrs. Steve Baber into the Battalion.

After a brief business meeting everyone enjoyed a social hour and refreshments consisting of cheese cake, date bars, ham rolls, and coffee.

The ladies of the 10TH FIELD ARTILLERY met for their first coffee of the new year on Jan. 17 in Mrs. Bennie William's home on Southern Pines Drive in Columbus. Mrs. Williams and Mrs. Don Baldwin, co-hostess, greeted the guests and presented them with colorful nametags.

The ladies were delighted to find that the group had expanded over the holidays. Arriving since Christmas and attending their first coffee were Mrs. Bill Echols, Mrs. Mike Benline, and Mrs. Joe Farrell. Also attending their first Battalion coffee were Mrs. Larry Hineline, Mrs. Mike Hays, and Mrs. Ron Killpack.

In the business session, Mrs. Curtis Hoglan discussed several upcoming OWC functions, as well as the 2-10-sponsored Brigade luncheon in March. Plans were made for invitations, decorations, publicity, and other details for the luncheon, which will feature a program on furnishture buying and decorating hints by Mrs. Pat Walters of the Carriage House. The group also discussed keeping a Battalion scrapbook, secured volunteers to work in the Thrift Shop, and listed dates for future Battalion functions. Mrs. Williams and Mrs. Baldwin served the ladies punch, coffee, and an assortment of cookies and cakes.

ODDLP

Couples from ODDLP gathered at the home of Maj. and Mrs. Arthur Osborne on Jan. 12 for a most enjoyable potluck supper. The table groaned with an abundance of hearty meat and vegetable casseroles, tangy green salads, and rich desserts.

After the supper hour, Mrs. Myron Lyman and Capt. Charles Anderson shared their guitar and vocal talents with everyone and provided the party with fine entertainment. From the beginning to the end, the evening was filled with good food, song, and great fun for all.

The pleasant atmosphere of the Corregidor Room was the setting for the January ODDLP coffee given by Mrs. Walter Ginger. Mrs. Ginger graciously served the ladies a fine assortment of breakfast biscuits and pastries which were centered by a lovely arrangement of red and white carnations. After a short business meeting, a schedule was set up to continue "those great potluck suppers."

DIO

The ladies of DIO held their monthly coffee at the home of Mrs. Edward Schowalter on Baltzell Ave., Fort Benning With such cold weather, good hot coffee and goodies warm from the oven were very popular. Mrs. Henry Hutcheson poured. A short business meeting was held. The February activity will be a luncheon held at the Villula Tea Garden in Seale, Ala.

Company Operations Dept.

The ladies of the COMPANY OPERATIONS DEPARTMENT were entertained at a coffee on the morning of Jan. 16, in the Corregidor Room of the Main Officers' Club. Hostesses were the ladies of Company Operations Department Headquarters. Coffee, tea and punch were served along with miniature sandwiches and sweets. The table was decorated with a lovely floral centerpiece.

Brief announcements were made by Mrs. Herbert L. Frandsen, wife of the department director. One newcomer, Mrs. Cecil N. Neeley, was welcomed into the group.

A delightful program was given by Mrs. Joan Tabor, home economist for the Gas Light Company of Columbus. As Mrs. Tabor presented recipes and helpful hints for party planning, she related amusing incidents concerning her personal experiences in entertaining.

Following the program, a drawing was held for the floral arrangement centerpiece. The winner was Mrs. Robert D. Yearout.

As the morning's activities came to a close, Mrs. Tabor invited the ladies to sample the party foods which she had prepared during her presentation.

Infantry Agency

The ladies of the INFANTRY AGENCY held their monthly coffee on Jan. 17 at the lovely home of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Robert Parker. Co-hostesses were Mrs. Steve Himic and Mrs. Walker Williams. The ladies chatted about Christmas leaves and guests and upcoming events as they sipped coffee or tea and nibbled cheese snacks, bundt cake and homemade nut loaves.

Mrs. Gudgel, wife of Gen. Gudgel from Combat Systems Group at Ft. Leavenworth, was an honored guest. She is here awaiting the birth of grandchild. Other guests were Mrs. Douglas Hughes, Mrs. Anthony Bisantz, Mrs. Ben Malcolm, Mrs. Gaye Morgan (mother of Mrs. Robert Siegrist), Mrs. Eugene Darbonne and little Miss Jeanne Renee Darbonne. A special welcome was extended to the liasion wives: Mrs. Jean Salvan, Mrs. Paul Schulz and Mrs. A. F. F. H. Robertson.

Mrs. Keith Bissell, Mrs. Willis Bacon and Mrs. Jack Todd were welcomed as newcomers.

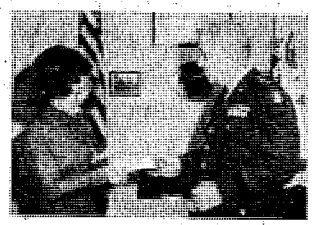
Mrs. James Hughes was congratulated on being selected from many Combat Developments Command ladies as Combat Systems Group's nominee for Military Wife of the Year. Mrs. Hughes is active in various OWC activities as well as chapel and unit functions.

Combat systems military wife of year named

Mrs. James Hughes, wife of Maj. James Hughes of the Combat Developments Command Infantry Agency, has been named Combat Systems Group Wife of the Year for 1973. She will compete for the 1973 Military Wife of the Year Award.

The award was presented to Mrs. Hughes by Brig. Gen. E. F. Cudgel on Jan. 16, in a ceremony held at the Infantry Agency. Brig. Gen. Cudgel is Combat Systems Group commander, U. S. Army Combat Developments Command, Fort Leavenworth, Kans.

Mrs. Hughes is a member of the Officers' Wives Club at Fort Benning, and serves on the program committee. Last fall she wrote and narrated a fashion show sponsored by the Officers' Wives Club.



She is Bible study leader for the Protestant Women of the Chapel, and assistant adult Sunday School teacher at the Religious Education Center here.

Jo Hughes, who is the mother of four boys, is a Cub Scout Den Mother, and has participated in the Run For Your Life Program at Fort Benning.

A native of Albany, Georgia, Jo's outside interests include bowling, golf, bridge, ceramics, and swimming. She is a Red Cross first aid instructor, and taught first aid at Fort Rucker, Ala., to 5th and 6th graders.

She was runner-up in the Mrs. Macon contest in 1969, and was vice-president of the Geographical Wives (similar to Waiting Wives) Club there. She was also vice-president of the Macon Newcomers Club.

In Albany, she had her own television shows, one for adults and one for children, for three years. While at Fort Rucker, she was part of a regular program to visit Vietnam returnees at Lyster Army Hospital.

Mrs. James P. Hughes, wife of Maj. James P. Hughes of the Combat Developments Command Infantry Agency, is Combat Systems Group Wife of the Year. She will compete for the title of 1973 Military Wife of the Year. Mrs. Hughes received the award from Brig. Gen. E. F. Cudgel, Combat Systems Group commander, Fort Leavenworth, Kans.

Gracious Lady

Fort Benning says good-bye to Mrs. Talbott

Story by Ginger Merrill

To capture with words, the graciousness, the friendliness, the warmth of Mrs. Orwin C. Talbott would be quite a feat. In her role as Fort Benning's first lady, many different facets of her personality emerge. Mrs. Talbott is a complex lady. She is so many things to so many people.

An elegant appearance and a quick smile — this is Nell Talbott.

She's an anonymous volunteer in familiar Army Community Service green, talking with a distraut young wife unable to cope with her problems. And she's that ACS Volunteer at Baker Village explaining the Financial-Home Management Program to a young couple with limited income.

Mrs. Talbott is a concerned citizen of Fort Benning and Columbus. In 1971, recognizing a need for the Federal Food Stamp Program in Muscogee County, she brought this need to the attention of the proper authorities. As a result of her initial concern, this program became a reality in June of 1972.

The NCO Wives Club finds Mrs. Talbott a loyal friend always ready to give encouragement to their welfare and scholarship projects. She serves as "Fair Lady" and Honorary President of the OWC, willing to lend her support and presence to any of their many worth-while projects.

Mrs. Talbott is very much a lady of today, but her interest and concern is also focused on the preservation of Fort Benning's proud past. She is enthusiastic in her love for Riverside, the home of the Commanding General. Through her untiring efforts and desire to preserve its yesteryear charm, Riverside was accepted by the Historical Columbus Foundation and placed on the National Registry of Historical Places by the U.S. Department of the Interior.

Each year the great, important, and famous visit Fort Benning. Mrs. Talbott is there to welcome and entertain them. Her presence assures that Fort Benning will long be remembered as a warm and friendly post.

Mrs. Talbott attends hundreds of formal balls, luncheons, coffees and teas each year. Whether it be welcoming a new Colonel's wife or sharing the head table at an OCS wives luncheon, all who are privileged to know her have a clear image of the "ideal" Army wife.

Mrs. Talbott is a knowledgeable lady; she knows about Fort Benning, the Army and the country. Her concerns are many and varied. She gives of herself, not just because it is expected, but because she cares. She radiates love for people in all walks of life.

Whether we know her as Nell, Mrs. Talbott, dedicated ACS Volunteer, First Lady of the OWC, or the Commanding General's wife, she has touched our lives and her loving presence will long be felt at Fort Benning.

Dental health week underway for children

February 10-4 is the 25th annual National Children's Dental Health Week. As part of the observance, the Bayonet, in cooperation with the Fort Benning Dental Service, today begins a series of six articles on facts you should know about dental health.

I recently had my regular dental examination and, while my teeth were being cleaned, the hygienist started talking about something called dental plaque. What is plaque?

Dental scientists have now determined that dental plaque — often called bacterial plaque — is the chief factor in both tooth decay and gum disease. Gum disease, as you know, is the primary cause of adult tooth loss.

Basically, plaque is a sticky, colorless layer of harmful bacteria that is constantly forming on your teeth.

For a long time, dentists have known that sugars and starches are acted upon by bacteria in the mouth to create acid. It is this acid which attacks tooth enamel, eventually eating through it to create what is called a carious lesion, or decay.

And, because bacterial plaque is constantly forming on teeth, the acid is almost ever-present, reaching peaks when sugars are eaten. Now, that describes plaque's role in tooth decay. Let's discuss how it is also the chief factor in gum disease.

Because plaque is constantly forming in the mouth, it is found on other oral structures, including the gums. And plaque and bacteria find it especially comfortable to lodge in the areas between teeth, right around the gum line, where the toothbrush doesn't reach.

This means that the bacteria in plaque are constantly irritating the gums and, if the plaque is not removed effectively at least once a day, the gums eventually become inflamed.

Plaque begins to build up on the tooth structure, especially near the gum line causing the gums to recede. Plaque will also eventually harden into a substance called calculus, or tartar. Even after the formation of calculus, plaque will damage the gums by its continued presence.

Newest facility opens

It's a new thing based upon new ideas. There are 127 individual, private positions where you can sit alone and watch television tapes, motion pictures, or sound tape-slide picture presentations of your choice.

All of the above. That is what you can get by coming to the newest facility on the Post. On Jan. 29 the ribbon was cut and your Individual Learning Center was officially opened.

Come to the second floor of Infantry Hall, Room 228, anytime between 7:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday's.

If you're after knowledge, it's there. If it's just information, that's available too. Blown head gasket, try the show on engine overhaul. Slicing down the fairway, meet Jack Nicklaus on TV tape. Too much poop to read in too little time, Dick Cavett will lead you through speed reading. Maybe it's the MOS test that's bothering you. The cure for that could be one or more of the 6 sound-slide shows in that area. Straight information without frills or extra words, it awaits your selection.

How does this relate to money you ask? Thought you knew that. Use our television, our tape decks, and our facility to gain more knowledge and skills which can lead to more promotions and pay. The Individual Learning Center is for you, the individual.

Dental Class to visit schools

The Dental Therapy Assistant Training Class which is currently in progress will make classroom visits to two local grade schools and give oral hygiene presentations. The presentations will be conducted during Children's Dental Health Week, February 2-9, and are a part of a state-wide program under the auspices of the Georgia State Division of Public Health.

During the initial visit the Dental Therapy Assistant will instruct the students how to properly care for their teeth. These instructions will include the significance of maintaining proper oral hygiene and its impact on oral health. They will demonstrate detection of dental plaque by use of disclosing tablets and control of dental plaque through proper tooth brushing methods and through proper use of dental floss. Disclosing tablets consist of harmless red colored vegetable dye which stains dental plaque which is otherwise colorless.

The second visit one week later will reinforce the information given during the initial visit.

The program will involve nine classrooms, 22 fifth grade students, two forty-five minute presentations a week apart and nine dental therapy assistants. The schools involved are Georgetown Elementary and South Columbus Elementary.

AUSA HONORS STAUNCH SUPPORTER

Wednesday, January 24, the local AUSA chapter honored Ft. Benning Post Commander General Orwin C. Talbott at their board of directors meeting.

Talbott, who was on hand to receive the plaque honoring his role in the chapter's achievement during his tenure at Ft. Benning, will be departing Ft. Benning in February. He has recognized the importance of AUSA and has backed the local chapter wholeheartedly since he became post commander in 1969. Since that time the chapter has been the world's largest chapter, having won eight awards during the last three national conventions held in Washington, D.C.

Talbott, whose face has become a familiar sight at AUSA functions, was active in all phases of AUSA. He was the main speaker at last June's general membership meeting, at the FBOOM. As post commander he headed the military sector of AUSA and spearheaded the membership drive on post.

RECENT AUSA ACTIVITIES

—provided tickets and transportation for 30 soldiers to attend Peach Bowl game in Atlanta. Seven local businesses provided the funds.

—sponsored free performance of the U.S. Army Field Band at the Three Arts Theatre. Over 1900 persons saw this grand performance. Look for this event to be repeated later this year.

—supported Christmas projects of the Valley Rescue Mission and the Ice and Coal Fund through appropriate donations.

—donated $300 to Project Say-A-Toy. The Army Community Service coordinates this project which repairs toys for needy children at Christmas time.

FEBRUARY 23RD FUNCTION

The chapter's next big activity will be the annual George Washington Ball, scheduled for February 23. Last year's Ball was a huge success. Over 900 members attended. Check the BAYONET for information on getting tickets or see your Sgt. Maj.

INFLATION HITS AUSA

Effective July 1, 1973, the membership rates for AUSA membership will increase to meet the demands of higher costs. The dues will be $100.0 0fo ra one year membership and $36.000 for a three year one.

These increases will give AUSA the financial resources to meet current and future objectives. The rates, which were established at the December Council of Trustees, will mean added income for the local chapters as well as the National Headquarters. An article will appear in the March issue of ARM YMagazine which will announce the dues increase to the general membership. It was also announced that the year-end strength for 1972 exceeded 90,000, an increase of more than 4,000 members for the year.

Maj. Gen. Orwin Talbott presented plaque by AUSA President Charles Daley.

SIR!

Fort Benning says thank you

By SUSANNE BOSTICK

Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, who departs Fort Benning in mid-February to take up a new assignment, leaves behind a post much changed because of innovations he helped bring about.

Foremost among his achievements is the Modern Volunteer Army Program. Fort Benning was selected in 1970 as one of three pilot posts, and the "Benning Plan" was put into action. The thrust of this program was to improve professionalism.

Major improvements in Army living and working conditions such as elimination of KP and work on weekends and holidays, an end to reveille formations, a more liberal pass policy for off-duty time, and longer Post Exchange hours, resulted from the Benning Plan.

Some innovations were simplified in-processing methods, half-days off on paydays, short order meals at mess halls, and beer in the barracks and in mess halls at suppertime. The five day work week was begun for most of Fort Benning.

Soldiers' advisory councils were held on a regular basis, and a shuttle bus from Fort Benning to Columbus and back was provided free for soldiers, as well as busses to Atlanta and Panama City on weekends.

In connection with the Modern Volunteer Army Program, a one-day race relations course was taught. This was part of a larger program begun by Gen. Talbott.

The Race Relations Coordinating Group, composed of both blacks and whites from officer and enlisted ranks, was formed after the completion of a study ordered by Gen. Talbott on his arrival here. Post-wide seminars were held in order to get problems and grievances out in the open.

Courses on race relations were begun in the Infantry School, both for officers and NCO's, and the Race Relations Coordinating Group worked closely with local groups to foster better relations between the civilians and military communities.

The General stated, "Each of us has the responsibility to insure that neither prejudice nor discrimination become a part of our military lives."

The race relations program is an example of how today's Army is moving forward under the leadership of men like Gen. Talbott.

Another example is the environmental management program at Benning. The Environmental Management Division was formed in May 1971 at the direction of Gen. Talbott.

Organized as part of the Directorate of Facilities Engineering, it was to be "a division concerned solely with the environmental implications involved in everything the Post does."

Its functions included solid waste monitoring; recycling of paper, metal and glass; land management and control of endangered species; fuel conversion; tissue monitoring; and education and research.

The Environmental Management Division has served to make Fort Benning more aware of the importance of maintaining a balanced ecology and of conserving our natural resources.

Fort Benning was abead of its time in the establishment of an ecology section here. Gen. Talbott's foresight in this area resulted in another much needed and very beneficial innovation.

One of his major projects during his tenure as Commanding General has been the planning for the construction of a new Infantry Museum. Ground was broken for the building in a ceremony held last November.

When the $6 million Museum structure is completed, it will be a showcase for military artifacts and a memorial to the thousands of Infantrymen who have served their country. Gen. Talbott's efforts greatly enhanced the fund drive for the new Museum.

The new Commissary-Post Exchange complex, Fort Benning Mall, is almost one-third complete now. Ground was broken for the Mall in ceremonies held last May, and the target date for its completion is this October.

Gen. Talbott was the major force behind the construction of the new shopping complex, which will include warehouse space and various other facilities, such as a bank, service station, and bowling alley. Total cost for the structure will be $8 million.

The unique project will bring about the consolidation of five present Commissary and Exchange branches, and will eliminate traffic and parking problems on Main Post. It will also make Fort Benning more attractive to active duty and retired personnel.

Gen. Talbott has been an enthusiastic supporter of the "Run For Your Life" program for physical fitness. He gave command emphasis to the program, and was instrumental in its adoption on an Army-wide basis.

Since the program was begun in January, 1970, a total of over 15,000 personnel have enrolled. Out of these, 91 have received 750-mile badges to date, and 54 have received the 1,000-mile badge. Gen. Talbott himself received the 750-mile badge in June, 1972.

The General is one of 200 people in the United States who have received the Distinguished Eagle Scout Award. An Eagle Scout in his youth, Gen. Talbott has been an active supporter of the Scouting program while at Fort Benning.

Gen. Talbott's interests extend to the humanitarian sphere as well. He has given added impetus to the Benning House rehabilitation center for drug addicts and alcoholics; to the "We Care" program for individualized medical services; and to Army Community Service, which offers financial and domestic aid to military personnel who need it.

THE POSEIDON ADVENTURE — Based on the best-seller by Paul Gallico, THE POSEIDON ADVENTURE is an action-packed adventure drama in the classic motion picture style of the "Grand Hotel." It features a distinguished cast including five Academy Award Winners. The story tells of the heroic and dramatic struggle of ten survivors battling to escape from the capsized, rapidly sinking, luxury liner "The Poseidon," which was struck by a 90 foot tidal wave and wracked with explosions during a gala New Year's Eve celebration. With their varied backgrounds, the survivors react differently under the terrible pressures imposed upon them. In escaping four are lost but six are saved — never to be the same again.

Dramatizers' new play under way

Mrs. John A. (Joanne) Burns, the speech and Drama instructor at Columbus High School, and Sgt. David R. Hoyt, NCOIC of the Infantry Chorus, are the director and associate director, respectively, of the Fort Benning Dramatizers new production of George Orwell's "1984."

Mrs. Burns, the wife of Lt. Col. (ret.) John A. Burns has traveled all over Europe. She says that the high points of her travels were teaching in Turkey and seeing the Passion Play at Obermergau, Germany. While teaching in Turkey, she met her husband.

Joanne's teaching is added to by being adviser of the Footlighters Club and the school's chapter of the Thespians, the national honorary drama society, as well as being a co-adviser of the Debaters' Club. She produces and directs the great majority of all Columbus High plays.

Among her directional efforts have been "Tom Jones," "The Great Cross Country Race," "Feifer's People," "Apple Tree," "J. B.," "Up the Down Staircase," "The Physicists," "Manequin's Demise," "The Mouse That Roared," "Ten Little Indians," "Silver Whistle," and "The Night of January 16th." These plays were performed at the University of Georgia, the Musement Fine Arts Camp, Columbus High School and the Springer Theatre.

Joanne has received a Master's of Fine Arts (MFA) in Drama from the University of Georgia.

Another Orwell story directed by Joanne is "Animal Farm," which was selected as a candidate for one of the eight outstanding productions of Thespian groups in the United States.

Joanne's first experience with the Dramatizers came when she was asked to be the assistant director of "A Midsummer Night's Dream." After this initial experience, she became a regular member of the Dramatizers and has wished to direct a play with the club.

The opportunity for this play came when Dave Hoyt asked her to direct "1984," which she had wanted to produce, at the Fort Benning Playhouse.

Joanne first saw Dave as Bottom in "Dream," where she was impressed by his perceptiveness and versatility in all aspects of the theatre. She feels that he has the qualities that enable a director to get the most out of his actors and she feels that the opportunity of assisting Dave in learning directorial techniques will be an easy task.

George Lawson retires after 50 yrs.

Mr. George Lawson, Sr., who retired recently as Maintenance Supervisor at the Fort Benning Officers' Open Mess, has had a total of fifty years' government service.

He entered the Army in 1922 at Fort Benning, and upon retirement from active duty, began working for the Officers' Club. During his military career, he served at Fort Benning for all but thirty months.

During that time, he served with the 2nd Armored Division.

The 2nd Armored Division took part in the invasions of North Africa, Sicily, and France during World War II. Mr. Lawson retired as the senior master sergeant of the 66th Armored Regiment, 2nd Armored Division.

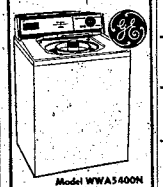
He began at the Officers' Club as a bartender, did maintenance work, and was made maintenance supervisor in the early 1950's. He has been in charge of all general maintenance since that time.

While he was in the military, he helped build Doughboy Stadium, Gowdy Field, Russ Pool, and cleared the area where Infantry Hall now stands, at that time a swamp. He also cleared trees for the golf course fairways at the Country Club.

A native of Kite, Ga., his home is in Columbus. His wife, formerly Myrtle Reese, is a native of Adrian, Georgia.

Classes to start Feb. 6

The Army Education Center at Fort Benning will sponsor a series of classes devoted to high school subjects starting Feb. 6.



The classes, to start at 1 p.m. Tuesdays through Thursday, will be devoted to general math, American history, English, American literature, and general science. Classes will be held in Room 309C, Building 35.

Persons interested in enrolling in the classes are asked to contact a counselor at the nearest education center to obtain a form-letter application which requires approval by their unit commanders.

TSB soldier shot in foiled holdup attempt

As long as there is money, people will be trying to forcibly take it away from other people. Because of this unfortunate fact of life a young soldier was senselessly attacked and shot on Mon. Jan. 22. Ironically, the thieves didn't even get the money they were trying to steal from him.

Gary Wilcox, Billy R. Bishop, and Gary L. Bishop, all assigned to the 46th Co. 4th Stu. Bn., TSB, were walking through the 47th Co. area on the evening of the 22nd when they noticed three telephone booths and decided to call home. Finding that none of the phones worked they continued walking. Then two men approached them, and one of the men had a pistol.

The three were ordered by the gunman to stop, and to hand over their money. Two company guards were standing nearby and Billy Bishop, who is Gary Bishop's brother, desperately tried to signal them by putting his hand behind his brother's back and waving. The guards didn't see him.

Rather than run the risk of being seen he had to stop signalling and give up his wallet. At this point the guards noticed the suspicious looking group and shouted at them. Then says Billy Bishop "Wilcox was bent over slightly with a tape-player between his knees, and he was reaching for his wallet. As soon as the guards yelled the guy with the gun shot Wilcox and the two robbers ran."

Barracudas Win three blue ribbons

Fort Benning's Barracudas participated in the 7th annual invitational swim meet, held at the Scenic Hills Country Club in Pensacola, Fla. last weekend.

The tournament, which took place Jan. 27 and 28, included 600 swimmers from 5 states. The Barracudas took three first-place blue ribbons in the meet.

John Misiak took first place in the 100-meter freestyle competition, and Jonathan Warren took first place in the 200-meter individual medley. Both boys competed in the 13-14 year class.

Anthony and Joe Rodriguez, John Misiak, and Jonathan Warren won first place in the 13-14 year boys' 200-yard freestyle relay. The Barracudas also won several second-place ribbons.

Jonathan Warren won second place in the boys' 200-yard freestyle, and also in the 13-14 year boys' 100-yard backstroke. Michelle Borden won second place in the 15-17 year girls' 100-yard backstroke, and in the 100-yard freestyle.

Linda Borden took fourth place in the 100-yard individual medley for 11-12 year girls, and in the 50-yard breast stroke.

BY BILL KLOEB

February isn't an ideal month for fishing but an event that usually gets a lot of fishermen out of hibernation is about to begin. The white bass are about to start moving up the Chattahoochee River to spawn.

These fish spend most of the year in impounded waters such as the Bartlett Ferry and Goat Rock reservoirs and Lake Eufaula. Each year, sometime during February they leave the impoundment and travel up stream. The run will normally last for a month and during this period fishermen enjoy some of the best fishing to be found anywhere.

The white bass has the look of a game fish. His basic coloring is silvery white. Striking black strips extend along his body from his gills to his tail. A humped back further distinguishes him from his other bass cousins. Most fish taken during the spawning season run from about one-half to two-pounds. Three-pounders are not rare but a four-pounder is a trophy size fish. The world record tipped in at four-pounds, fourteen-ounces nothing close to the twenty plus pound record largemouth but these fish are fighters. You can't predict the size of the fish by the fight he puts up. They all seem to have a natural ability to foul your line or take advantage of the current to apply more pressure on your line.

During the spawning run the bass seem to hit almost anything that moves. If you plan to use bait a small minnow is the best. They will strike a large assortment of artificial lures. Small lead headed jigs like the Dol-Fly or Potgut, small spoons such as the Little Cleo, spinners like the shyster and small plugs such as the Thinfin Rapala or Rebel are the favorites in this area.

Fishing for white bass is a good way to build up confidence as a fisherman. He is no problem to catch. Once the run begins you can find fish in just any part of the Chattahoochee. The males move out of their lake homes into the tributary streams, going upstream until they are stopped by a shoal, dam or other obstruction to their travel. Soon after the females join the males for the brief spawning period.

All of the fish don't decide to spawn at the same time so the run will usually last about a month. During this period there are peaks in these runs. During these peak periods a hot spot will produce a strike just about every time your line bits the water. The creel limit in Georgia is 30 fish per day. If you fail to keep an accurate count you can get over this limit in a very short time during the peaks in the spawning runs. Then after the runs have been completed there isn't a white bass to be found in the river. They have all moved back into the impoundment waters.

Bank fishing for these fish is most productive. They seem to prefer the shallow slower moving current close to shore rather than fighting the swifter current in the middle of the stream. Fishing is also good behind some obstacle that breaks the current. The downstream side of rocks, trees and shoals are good spots. The quiet water caused by an outcropping in the shore is usually a hot spot. The best technique is to cast your bait or lure beyond the quiet water. Slow retrieving with occasional short jerks of the line usually works good but when the white bass are really biting a steady slow retrieve without any other action at all will produce results. Most strikes come when the lure leaves the fast current and moves into the quiet water.

All of this probably sounds like a tall fish story to those who have never fished the Chattahoochee for white bass during the spawning season. A fisherman has to see to believe. These fish are just great to build a man's confidence. They are also great for novice fishermen. A white bass will even set the hook if the novice gets excited and forgets that important detail.

A word of warning to bank fishermen. The banks of the Chattahoochee are high, steep and unstable in most areas. This time of the year the river current is swift and the water is cold. Be careful. Especially if you intend to expose youngsters to these hazards.

Miss Mercy wants to remind all the troops to fasten their seat-belts. "I buckled-up," she states, "and I'm still alive."

Super Athelete

Milton Johnson's records make him super

Spt Milton Johnson is Fort Benning's super athlete and a record of outstanding performance proves it.

The 22-year-old Johnson is from Orlando, Fla. where he attended Jones High School. While there he starred in track, baseball and football.

"Sports has always been my favorite way of spending time," Johnson stated. He has spent the past year and a half as the recreation director of his battalion, 1st Bn., 29th Inf. 197th Inf. Bde.

His favorite sports at Fort Benning seem to be team handball and flag football. He has excelled in both and seems to express no preference.

As the coach and quarterback of his company-level flag football team, HHC, 1st-29th, he led them to two consecutive post championships in 1971 and 1972. He was selected to the Fort Benning All-Star team and again as coach he led them to a second place finish in the Third Army Tournament. Because of his performance at Ft. Rucker, he was named to the Third Army All-Star team also.

The slim and agile Johnson has equally proved himself in team handball. The versatile athlete led Fort Benning to a second-place finish at Third Army level and was then named to represent Third Army for the national title.

While playing in the national tournament at Ft. Wadsworth, N. Y., Johnson impressed the U. S. Olympic team handball coach and was asked to tryout for the Olympic team.

"I'll never forget when the coach told me he thought I might be able to make the team," Johnson explained. "It was a great thrill just to try out."

Recently the enthusiastic Johnson reenlisted for his present duty assignment with the 197th Inf. Bde. He is now working at the Atlanta Recruiting Main Station with the 197th recruiting program.

"I am enjoying my new job here," Johnson confirmed in a telephone conversation. "It is a definite challenge. I get to work with people which is the one thing I like almost as much as sports."

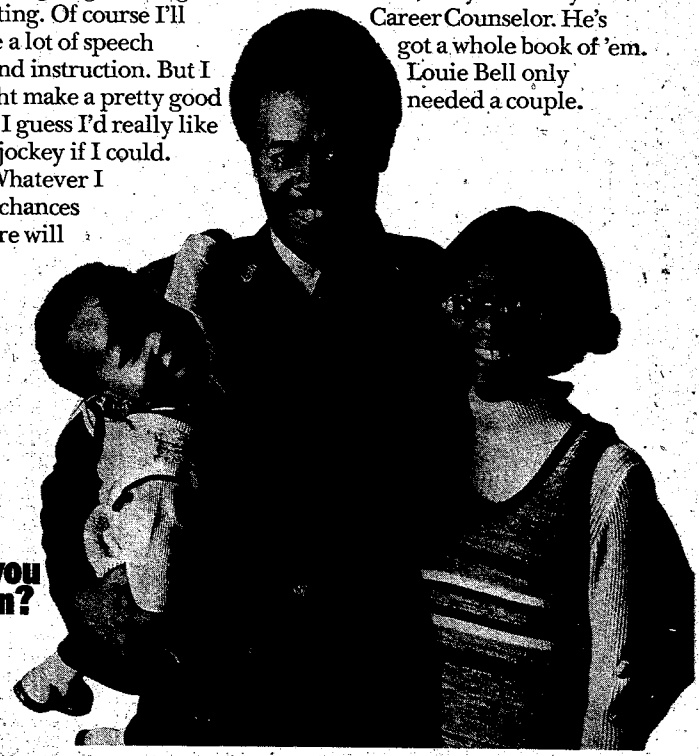
"When I came in I didn't have anything."



Sergeant Louie Bell just reenlisted for the first time. And he had some pretty good reasons.

"Look what I've got now. A steady income, a good job and a family. It's a lot more responsibility.

"I was studying business administration when I came in, but I think I'm going to change to broadcasting. Of course I'll have to take a lot of speech schooling and instruction. But I think I might make a pretty good announcer. I guess I'd really like to be a disc jockey if I could.

"Whatever I decide, my chances for the future will definitely be better now that I've decided to stay in the Army for a while. I'll be getting more education for when I get out. And Martha and Darrell will have a lot more security."

The education. The bonus. The security. Louie Bell found some pretty good reasons for reenlisting. If you're looking for reasons, see your Army Career Counselor. He's got a whole book of 'em. Louie Bell only needed a couple.

Why are you staying in?

Co. D, 43rd Engr. Bn. orienteering champs

Recently, Company 'D' 43rd Engineers Battalion took part in a Conquest of the Woods, which was a race through the Orienteering course south of Todd Field.

As announced, the officers of the unit came through first to demonstrate their leadership qualifications. To encourage the men, a three day pass was offered for the team that completed the course first. To the dismay of the officers, the soldiers who work in the company Operations Section, on the second try through the woods, came through for the men.

The team of Spc Randall and PFC Lorin Nessan outran, outthought and orienteered better than the team of 2nd Lt. Childs and SFC Gardner. This feat won for them the title of Champion Orienteers of Delta Company, 43rd Engrs.

Keep on Truckin'

Early to bed — early to rise . . . Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander, may not always be the first to bed but he is one of the first to rise each morning. Gen. Talbott is a member of the 750 Mile Club in the Run For Your Life Program.

Basketball tourney slated

The Fort Benning Company Level Basketball Championships will be held in the Main Post Gymnasium from February 5 to 15.

Each major command on post will have teams participating in the tournament. The 197th Infantry Brigade and 93ist Engineer Group will each field two teams. Headquarters Command, Aviation Command and Medical Department Activities will each be represented by one team.

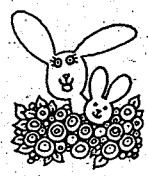
Co. D downs Co. B. clinching 1st place tie



Company D of the 43rd Engineer Battalion, 931st Engr. Gp., clinched a tie for first place in the 43rd Engr. Bn. league by defeating Co. B in the final seconds of play, 71 to 68.

High scorers in the game for Delta Company were McHenry Sellers with twenty-one points and Wendell Jackson with twenty.

The game was hotly contested with the lead changing hands several times but in the final seconds of play D Company pulled ahead with a three-point play to secure the victory.

The win insures the team a spot in the playoffs for the championship in the 931st Engineer Group League.

Our business is built on these commandments! Both of our sales and service departments live by them. Over 20 years of automobile experience has taught us, that this is the only way to operate a business.

1. Our customers are our most valuable asset — and the most important people in our business.
2. Our customers are NOT dependent upon us — we are dependent upon them. They don't owe us any favors.
3. Our customers are the purpose of our work — without them there would be no jobs.
4. Our customers are not just names on our books but flesh and blood human beings who have as much right to be satisfied as we ourselves.
5. Our customers are not outsiders — but a very necessary part of our business.
6. Our customers do us a favor when they buy what we have to sell — and we owe it to them to see that they are completely satisfied.
7. Our customers are free to take their business wherever they wish — whenever we fail to satisfy them.
8. Our satisfied customers are an army of Ambassadors of Good Will for our company (your company).
9. Our profits and our jobs depend not only on getting customers — but on keeping them satisfied with everything we do in their behalf.
10. Satisfied Customers are the Life Blood of our business — and every business in America — for without them there would be no business.

33 Years With Ford

Pvt. Charles Brickman of HHC 931st Engineer Group, uses the machine provided by the Harmony Church education center for increasing reading speed.....

Are you putting me on?

Speed reading course

Frontiers are only temporary barriers to progress and the exploration of the areas behind the frontiers is an adventure that, so far, has been the province of a few brave men. But there is one area of human endeavour where the frontiers are always changing and can never be completely removed, an area where each of us can explore on our own and that is the search for knowledge.

Today, many exciting advances are being made in the field of education, advances which follow so quickly upon the heels of one another, that they are often ignored.

One such dramatic advance was made in the area of reading techniques and is more commonly known as "speed reading". With this technique, the average individual can more than double his or her reading speed.

The course is based on the fact that the mind can comprehend at speeds much higher than that at which the average individual reads. Once the eyes then, are trained to see in a more economical manner, the rate of comprehension increases.

The course is offered at the education center in Harmony Church and many soldiers of the 931st Eng. Gp. have successfully availed themselves of the facilities offered.

However, Mrs. Margo Smith, who is in charge of the program at Harmony Church, remarked that the course was not used as much as it could be and that it appears that the men simply are not aware that such a program is available to them.

Soldiers taking this course can work at their own speed with the reading machines increasing their rate as they feel sure of themselves. It is a course which all of us can benefit from and which requires only that we invest some times each day for incalculable returns.

What's Wrong With This Room?

Home is not so sweet when you consider that accidents there kill or disable more than 4 million Americans a year.

The major domestic dangers that take 27,000 lives each year are listed by the National Safety Council under falls, fires, poison, firearms, sharp objects and electricity.

How do each of these effect you?

FALLS: Two-thirds of all falls occur at floor level. They can be caused by an object on the floor, spilled liquid, a turned up rug edge, or unnoticed pets.

The steps in the trailers are quite hazardous. Many times they are unnoticed by visitors and misjudged by the occupants, causing falls which cause leg injuries. The stairs in family housing can also be hazardous, especially for small children or adults if small children leave toys on the stairs.

Bathrooms need non-skid rugs on the floor and a rubber mat in the tub. Night lights are recommended in the bathrooms, hallways and bedrooms.

FIRES: Among the many ways fires start is by careless smoking habits. A forgotten cigarette is dangerous and remember to keep matches and lighters away from children. Keep flamable liquids, such as the gasoline for the lawn mower, stored in safety cans away from heat. Put oily rags in tightly covered metal cans or hang them in the open.

With summer coming up soon remember to be careful with the charcoal grills. Never use gasoline to start your charcoal.

A blown fuse is a warning that something is wrong. No matter whether it is a short or an overloaded circuit, both are fire hazards. Find the cause and correct it before replacing the fuse or resetting the circuit breaker.

ANSWERS

1. Household cleansers under sink, within reach of little children.
2. Electric outlet overloaded.
3. Mother testing mix with finger while mixer is working.
4. Toaster cord dangling over side of counter, within reach of small child.
5. Mother's dress has wide, floppy sleeves which can be dangerous at stove.
6. Mother's high heels a hazard during housework.
7. Water on floor can cause someone to slip.
8. Wheeled toy on floor near doorway can cause a fall.
9. Can opener juts into doorway.
10. Pot handles should be turned toward back of stove beyond reach of child.
11. Back burner lighted without pot on it.
12. Tea kettle spout should be turned toward back of stove.
13. Mother has left bottles of medication on counter within reach of child.
14. Scissors, knife and long fork are within reach of small child.

Break the Hate Habit.

Hate Blacks! Hate Whites! Hate Jews! Hate Gentiles! What sane person needs any of that noise? So how do you turn it off? With love. And all the caring, kindness and consideration that love means. Start today, love.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

by Bill King

A wise old Gaelic rule for a properly brisk cup of tea: "Always bring the pot to the kettle, not the kettle to the pot."

When preparing stews or casseroles for the freezer, shorten cooking time slightly to allow for additional cooking when the dish is reheated.

Many people confuse Mexican cooking with Spanish. If you visit Spain, remember that if you order a tortilla, you'll get what we know as an omelet.

Whipped cream mixed with a bit of prepared horseradish is delicious as a topping for green pea 'n ham soup.

For extra nutrition, when a recipe calls for a breadcrumb coating, use sesame seeds instead. Especially tasty with chicken.

You'll always get extras in nutritionand value when you dine at

LAKEWOOD SAFETY BELLHOUSINGS

Auto manufacturers customarily use cast iron for clutches and flywheels. The material may be "red lined" at 6,000 rpm., sufficient for normal use, but when racing enthusiasts modify their cars, the engine rpms often exceed 8,000. The heat and fatigue generated at these higher speeds overstresses the cast iron to the point where it may "explode" or disintegrate. In the past, drivers, and even spectators, have been injured by this kind of accident. As a result, national sanctioning organizations require the use of one-quarter inch thick, 360 degree steel scatthershields surrounding the area of escaping shrapnel. Lakewood Industries' revolutionary dual purpose Hydroformed safety bell housing eliminates the need for both the stock casting and the scattershield. The steel bell housings are Hydroformed because this process does not thin or stretch the material. As a result, the steel has a uniform thickness — the ideal construction feature. Formed of ¼" flat steel plate, the product has the ability to absorb flywheel or clutch explosion by slight elongation under stress. The Lakewood Housing is the lightest safety housing available. It meets and exceeds SEMA specs and is accepted by all racing associations.

OCS's Patterson Award to be held at Infantry Hall

Mrs. Robert P. Patterson, widow of the late Secretary of War, will present the 13th annual Patterson Memorial Award to 2nd Lt. Thomas L. Ferguson on Feb. 12.

Mrs. Patterson will be met by Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, Fort Benning commander, on Feb. 11 at Columbus, Metropolitan Airport. She will visit Wigle Hall, the OCS Hall of Fame, on Feb. 12 before the ceremony.

The award will be presented to Ferguson, a former Marine who has served three combat tours in Vietnam, in Marshall Auditorium at 11 a.m. The Patterson Award is the highest honor any graduate of the Infantry Officer Candidate School can earn.

After the presentation and a luncheon at the Fort Benning Officers' Club, Mrs. Patterson will leave from the airport for her home in New York.

Ferguson will receive an engraved service pistol and a cash award, in addition to the award certificate and plaque. The award is financed by earnings from a trust fund established by friends of the late Secretary Patterson, who died in a plane crash in 1952.

This year's recipient of the coveted award entered on active duty in the Marine Corps in 1964. He entered the Army and began OCS in March, 1971, and is currently attending Ranger School.

His home is Detroit, Mich., where he attended Wayne State University. He is married to the former Elizabeth Slater. Lt. Ferguson's next assignment is Fort Ord, Calif.

He has received various decorations and medals, including three Bronze Star Medals with "V" for valor, the Navy Commendation Medal, the Purple Heart, the Combat Actions Ribbon, and the Vietnamese Campaign Medal with seven stars.

Congressmen come here to visit 197th

Two U.S. congressmen will visit Fort Benning Friday, Feb. 9, for an orientation tour and briefings on post activities.

In the party will be Rep. Jack Brinkley, 3rd District, and Rep. John Flynt, 6th District, Georgia. A legislative assistant to Rep. G. V. Montgomery, 4th District, Mississippi, will also be in the party of visitors.

While on post the congressmen will visit the 197th Infantry Brigade for a briefing on the Modern Volunteer Army program; have lunch with soldiers of the 1st Battalion, 58th Infantry; visit the Individual Learning Center, and receive briefings on leadership and race relations.

Farewell ceremonies to be held for Gen. Talbott here

Farewell ceremonies for Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, Fort Benning commander, will be held at 4 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 14, on York Field.

Gen. and Mrs. Talbott, who have been at Fort Benning since September 1969, will depart post Thursday morning, Feb. 15.

Gen. Talbott has been assigned as special assistant to the commanding general, U. S. Continental Army Command, Fort Monroe, Va. The new Fort Benning commander, Maj. Gen. Thomas Tarpley, will assume his duties on Friday, Feb. 16.

During the farewell ceremony for Gen. Talbott, there will be an airborne drop and a fly-by by military aircraft.

Following the York Field ceremony, a reception will be held in the ballroom of the Main Officers Open Mess.

Free G.I. Bill bennies for high school dropouts

Free G.I. Bill entitlement for high school dropouts and marginal graduates is bringing more "educationally disadvantaged" back to classrooms, a Veterans Administration report reveals.

Administrator of Veterans Affairs Donald E. Johnson disclosed today that more than 20,000 veterans were drawing "unearned" G.I. educational benefits by attending high school and college preparatory courses.

Veterans who have completed a tour of military service normally earn enough G.I. Bill entitlement to complete four years of college, Johnson explained. Those who need extra work to qualify for college can receive extra months of G.I. Bill allowances while taking the preparatory work and still have four years of educational benefits remaining for college, he said.

Enrollment in such courses in November — normally the peak month — was up 36 per cent over the 1971 mark to a total of 21,300. A total of 125,000 have used the program since it was authorized in 1967.

The 125,000 figure includes 70,000 veterans and servicemen who completed up to 11 years of schooling, and 55,000 high school graduates who lacked prerequisites for higher education.

While 125,000 educationally disadvantaged persons trained under free entitlement, another 282,000 trainees who failed to complete high school used VA education benefits to attend vocational and trade schools, or take correspondence courses and on-job training.

Veterans and servicemen are considered educationally disadvantaged, it was explained, if they were high school dropouts, or have not earned a general development equivalency certificate. High school graduates who need remedial or refresher courses to qualify for higher education also are eligible for free entitlement.

G.I. Bill allowances for educationally disadvantaged trainees and college students are the same. The rate is $220 per month for single-full time trainees, with proportionately higher rates for trainees with dependents. However, free entitlement training is not charged against education benefits earned in military service.

Veterans and servicemen earn education benefits after at least 181 days on active duty, any part of it after Jan. 31, 1955. Veterans discharged because of service connected injuries vice organizations, officials are eligible, regardless of said.

length of service.

VA urged servicemen interested in education benefits, including free entitlement, to contact base education officers. Veterans should contact the nearest VA office, or representatives of local veterans ser-

Feats of skill highlight Cub Pack meeting

Feats of skill was the theme with all Cubs participating and "doing their best" in the Pyramid, the Chinese Pull, and the Standing Broad Jump.

On January 31 when the Cub Scouts of Pack 77 took to the competition floor, the winners of the Pyramid were Den 13 and Webelos Den 1. Den 5 and Webelos Den 1 won the Chinese Pull and the Standing Broad Jump was won by Den 7 and Webelos Den 1.

Awards were also presented during the meeting by Henry Remppel to the following Cubs: Bobcat- James Thurman; 1 yr Pin-Gus Ziskie; 2 yr Pin-Richard Hall.

The wolf awards were presented to Carlray Boswell, Mark Ariyoshi, Fred Betteridge, James Benning, Richard Dermeyer, and Roger Watson. Bear presentations to Doug Arthur, Wade Whitley, Robert Balbaban, Kurt Rumkie, Gary Cody, Jeff Hunt, and Joe Cargo.

Webelos awards were presented to Rick Schmidt, Tony Fairris, Edward Hanson, Lloyd Gomey, Neils Wilson, Art Osborne, Macgregor MacIntosh, Frederick Salvan, Stuart Moeller, Dan Glumaker, Jay Socks, Richard Remppel, Todd Schatzman, Michael Schuler, Steve Wessinger, Steve Walker, Ronnie Presley, Robert Cuyle and Phillip Lee.

The following Cubs were presented the Tri Colors by Larry Moeller in a special ceremony honoring Cub Scouts going into Webelos: Robert Balbaban, Richard Hall, Richard Dermeyer and Doug Arthur.

SOUND OFF!

Are Army educational benefits good enough to attract young men and women that are thinking about joining the Army?

Army benefits Include education

Pvt. Tony Smith
43rd Student Co.

I don't think so! There are so many opportunities on the outside I don't see any reason why people would join the Army to get an education, unless they hadn't previously had any chance to get one on the outside. I think most people would join to receive the benefits that are entitled to you after you get out not while you are in.

SP4 Reijo Aho
15th Finance

It depends on the individual and what he's after. You do get some sort of schooling plus job training. It gives you a chance to figure out what they really want. Officers have better opportunities to further their education because of less duties and more time off. I had a chance to go to a speed reading course held on post but because of my duties on Tuesdays I was unable to take advantage of it. Another problem is that the program might be there but most EM do not know about it.

1st. Lt. Viki L. Brown
Special Services
Theater Officer

For enlisted women I'd say yes! Most come straight out of high school and are now furthering their education through week-end courses and night courses. I knew a PFC that only needs 2 credits to complete her masters degree and she has accomplished it entirely in the service. They also receive a valuable education while traveling throughout the world. I've benefited through courses that I've taken. I plan to use my G.I. Bill for my Masters. I would say that persons in critical MOSs have a problem to further their education because of their job but on the other hand a critical MOS can also help a person receive more Army schooling. I would say that EM have better opportunities to further their education because officers have more responsibilities, and jobs to perform.

PFC Columbus Williams
81st Co. TSB

No! I don't think the educational opportunities are there for EM. At least for low ranking EM that applies. In the Infantry it is especially bad because my duties took too much of my time and ruined any chances I had of furthering my education. And when I get out I won't have any acquired skills to get out with! I only know how to shoot a gun. It depends on what field you are in how much education you are going to get. I got out of the infantry a month ago just because of that.

SFC Robert Miller
83rd Co. Adv.
NCOES Course

I think there are. Right now the Army offers a wide variety of educational programs for officers and EM. If he has not had the chance on the outside, the Army gives him an excellent opportunity to receive an education both while he is in the service and after he gets out. The one big problem that exists is the lack of briefing the person gets when he comes into the service about the educational benefits available to him. I just came from Ft. Dix and they are starting to orient the soldiers during their first week of basic training on the army's educational opportunities.

If you can do it, why go to school?

Dear Editor:

Why does a man who is well experienced and praised in his field, practically need a college education to get promoted?

I have been in the field of broadcasting since 1969. I am a graduate of Career Academy School of Broadcasting, and I graduated from the Army's Defense Information School of Broadcasting with top honors. I was praised by all of the instructors at Fort Benjamin Harrison, those considered as the Army's best in the field. I have worked at four radio stations and have left each of them with excellent recommendations.

In the field of Broadcasting I have been told countless times that experience is more important than a college education. Now don't get me wrong, a college education is a very valuable asset and upon leaving the Army I plan to attend college. Before coming into the Army I had neither the opportunity nor the money to attend college.

This discriminatory practice takes place every day in the Army.

Also just because a man goes to college ROTC he is commissioned as an officer. Just because of his college education (education doesn't mean leadership). I have seen it happen time and time again where an officer is put in charge, who has absolutely no experience in the field, only a college degree. Meanwhile the enlisted man who has years of experience remains at the bottom of the list.

I firmly believe the Army will not achieve an all volunteer Army until they realize what's going on. When a man reaches a certain point he can go no further, he cannot get promoted and he loses all initiative.

While senior officers sit around and tell enlisted men to get haircuts, shine their shoes and brass, they receive thousands of dollars each month for this menial task. The enlisted man, however, receives only a couple of hundred dollars a month and has to struggle to do his best while putting with this undue harrasment.

I say the Army should clean house and get more professional. Give incentives to soldiers, stop hasseling enlisted men, etc.

Jim Gilbert

Survivors may get VA benefits

Some widows, children and parents of veterans may be eligible to receive certain veterans' benefits from the Veterans Administration.

Georgia Veterans Service Director Pete Wheeler said that widows and children of veterans who died as the result of service-connected disabilities are eligible for educational benefits. This educational assistance is also available to wives and children of veterans who are permanently and totally disabled as a result of a service-connected disability, or of servicemen listed as missing in action or as prisoners of war.

Other VA benefits such as compensation, home loans and pensions may be available to certain widows, minor children and parents of deceased veterans.

Wheeler said, "Positive identification of a veteran is necessary in the filing of any claim. If a veteran has ever filed a claim with the VA, and his family knows his file or 'C' number, there will be no problem of identification.

"Otherwise, it will be necessary to establish a veteran's identity by submitting a copy of his military discharge, his military service number, or the branch of service along with the dates served."

CONARC gets new commander

General Walter T. Kerwin Jr., assumed command of the Continental Army Command (CONARC) 1 February 1973. Assumption of Command ceremonies were held at Fort Monroe, Va. Feb. 2.

CONARC is the US Army's largest command including the Continental United States and the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico and the US Virgin Islands.

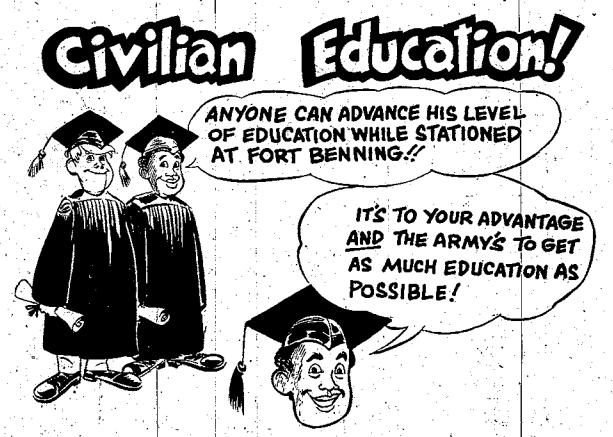
As Commanding General CONARC, Gen. Kerwin will also command US Army Forces Readiness Command and the US Army Forces Atlantic.

Gen. Kerwin was previously assigned as Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel, US Army, from August 1969 to November 1972, and Special Assistant to the CG CONARC, from November 1972 to the present.

NAB clearing house

The National Association of Broadcasters (NAB) is beginning an Employment Clearing House, a service designed to assist commercial stations in finding minority personnel.

They are developing a resume file of minority group people that falls into three categories: people who have had experience in broadcasting, people who have been trained to do a particular job in radio or television but have not had working experience, and people who have had neither training nor experience but have desire to get into the industry at an entry-level position or through an on-the-job training program.



Soldiers with American Forces Radio Television Service (AFRTS) or other radio and television experience nearing retirement or the end of their service obligation may prepare resumes covering present assignment and address, radio and television experience, starting salary desired, availability date, physical limitations, licenses held and other information.

Resumes may be sent to the Coordinator of Public Affairs, National Association of Broadcasters, 1771 N. Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

Education

Fort Benning offers many different learning opportunities

There is no lack of civilian education opportunities for any soldier at Fort Benning.

While assigned to Fort Benning, a soldier can take graduate, college, or high school courses. Language, reading, typewriting, and vocational technical courses are also available for him.

TRAINED COUNSELORS

The first step for a soldier who wants more civilian education should be to see a trained Fort Benning education counselor. These are professionally qualified counselors. They are available at every education center. No appointment is needed.

Counselors are available from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. at main post Bldg. 35, at Kelley Hill, Bldg. 9003, at Harmony Church, Bldg. 5152, and at Sand Hill, Bldg. 3355.

Before starting any education program, even if it is independent study with a civilian school or business, a soldier should see a counselor. The counselor will check the reputation of the school or business to protect the soldier's interests and finances.

Education counselors can also do more for the soldier. They can set up on-duty and off-duty education programs that will suit the soldier's needs. They can give advice on receiving financial aid and on using the Veteran Education Benefits (GI Bill) while the soldier is on active duty.

LANGUAGE

Soldiers, their wives and their children can study a foreign language as beginners or as intermediate students at Fort Benning. Conversational skills are stressed in these courses. Group study courses are scheduled in ten week cycles.

A completely equipped language laboratory is open Monday through Thursday 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. and 6:15 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. and on Friday from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. The laboratory is available forclasses and for individual study.

GRADUATE PROGRAMS

The graduate level education programs are provided by a resident branch of Georgia State University at Fort Benning.

Graduate programs have been established for earning master degrees in education and business. Graduate courses are also offered in history, political science, special education, and business management.

In addition to on-post evening classes, graduate courses are provided at the Columbus College campus, a 20-minute drive from Fort Benning.

The Army's tuition assistance program or the GI Bill are available to reduce the cost. Graduate classes can also be taken as supplemental course work during duty hours for those in the Infantry Officer Advanced Course.

UNDERGRADUATE PROGRAMS

Columbus College provides resident college courses during off-duty hours at Fort Benning. These classes can lead to earning Associate Degrees, Two Year Department of the Army College Level Evaluations, Bachelor Degrees, and professional degrees.

The classes normally meet two evenings each week on the post. Evening classes on the Columbus College campus are also available.

College level correspondence and extension courses are also available through the US Armed Forces Institute (USAFI). These are for soldiers who cannot attend regular classes because of their duties.

Any soldier who has been on active duty for more than 120 days can take these courses. Costs can be reduced by tuition assistance program or the GI Bill.

HIGH SCHOOL COURSES

High school classes are available for any soldier who needs a high school education. These classes are scheduled during off-duty or on-duty time, two afternoons or two evenings a week.

The normal route for one who needs a high school diploma must start with seeing an education counselor. A soldier can take an achievement test to determine what areas he is weak in. A counselor can then set up an education program that will strengthen the soldier's weak areas.

When a soldier thinks he is ready, he can take the high school GED test. He is tested in English, social sciences, natural sciences, mathematics, and humanities.

A soldier will receive a certificate from the US Armed Forces Institute (USAFI) after he succeeds in passing all five areas of the GED test.

With a USAFI certificate he can apply for a high school equivalency diploma from his home state's department of education. He can also apply to the high school he attended for a regular diploma. Whether a soldier is awarded a diploma depends on the policies of his home state, his high school, and his test scores.

It is of utmost importance that any soldier pursuing a high school education see an education counselor first. Many soldiers have enrolled in courses that were advertised in magazines to get a high scool diploma. But, after spending their money and after finishing the courses, they found out that the diplomas they earned were not recognized by any state or school.

There is no charge for high school testing and high school classes at Fort Benning, and the teachers and courses are all state certified.

READING

Fort Benning offers speed reading classes and remedial reading classes. These classes are designed to increase vocabulary, develope comprehension, and advance reading speeds.

The classes are open to all military personnel. Opportunities for speed and comprehension work is offered to all levels from pre-high school to college graduate.

There is no charge. The classes are scheduled during duty hours and written approval of unit commanders is needed.

Speed reading students are accepted as space is available. Priority, enrollment, however, goes to men with the greatest need.

Individualized instruction, group study, remedial reading machines, and reading rate adjustment machines are used as needed.

Education counselors have application forms for the reading courses.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING!

PROJECT TRANSITION

Project Transition is intended to help reduce the unemployment rate of discharged soldiers. It gives training to those who are within six months of being discharged in a marketable vocational skill.

The training includes interviewing eligible personnel, counselling, selecting a program, class work, on-the-job training, job placement interviews, and follow-up action.

PURPOSE

The reason Fort Benning offers such extensive educational programs, according to USAIC Pamphlet 621-1, Opportunities in Education, is to help all soldiers to do the following:

(1) Perform their military assignment more effectively.

(2) Prepare for increased responsibilities and increase their chances for promotion.

(3) Maintain academic or vocational ahilities begun before entering the service.

(4) Prepare to continue educationally and professionally after they leave the service.

(5) Increase each man's value to the civilian community when he leaves the service.

(6) Increase each man's value to the civilian community when he leaves the service.

Each of these is a worthwhile goal. A soldier would have a hard time in answering, "Why should I not take advantage of the education Fort Benning wants to give me?"

OWC ACTIVITIES

The OWC is offering several classes for children now. Two new ones will begin in February. They are:

CERAMICS FOR CHILDREN—for children 10 to 12 years, this class will teach how to clean and glaze greenware, etc. The children will bave thre finished pieces upon completion of the four week course. To be held Saturday mornings at 10:45 beginning Feb. 24. Four lessons for $12, supplies included. To sign up your child, call Mrs. Randolph O'Connor at 545-2105.

BATON TWIRLING—for children 7 years and up, they will learn to twirl 1 baton, 2 batons, and fire baton. Several different types of routines will also be taught such as Majorette, solo, strutting and dance-twirl. Classes begin Feb. 15 or 17 and will be held each week on Thursday at 7 p.m. or Saturday at 9:30 a.m. or 1 p.m. $7 a month. Call Mrs. Jerly Hines at 687-1403 for further information or to enroll your child.

BABY - SITTING COURSE — for teens 12 years and up to teach baby-sitting techniques. Subjects to be covered are infant care and feeding, toddler care and discipline, and first aid. Certification follows successful completion of the course and the instructor will keep a list of "graduates" for recommendation to parents. To be held Tuesdays at 7 p.m. beginning Feb. 20. Four weeks for $5. Call Mrs. Wm. Higgins at 545-2925.

CHILDREN'S ART CLASSES — for children ages 4 to 14 years. To be held each Saturday from 10 until 11 a.m. for ages 4 to 8 years. They will explore lines, shapes, and colors. Clay and other mediums will be used. Six lessons for $15, supplies included. New session will begin on March 10.

The older group (ages 8 to 14 years) to meet from 11 until 12 on Saturdays. They will learn perspective, colors, and other basics of art. They will also work in several mediums. Six lessons for $12. New session to begin March 3.

OWC SPONSORED ACTIVITIES

Call Mrs. Jon Stillman at 544-1196 to enroll in either of the Children's Art classes.

The OWC also has interesting classes beginning for adults. Among them are:

CANDLEMAKING — learn to make spectacular color co-ordinated candles. Create personalized gifts for friends, or add color and warmth to your own home. Four lessons $10. To be held Thursday mornings from 9:30 until 11:30 beginning Feb. 22. Call Mrs. James Miller at 323-2505 for further information.

MACRAME' — the ancient art of knotting is a creative art that will inspire anyone who enjoys working with their hands. The variety of items to be created with Macrame' is limitless — jewelry, belts, wall hangings, room dividers, purses, plus many more. Four lessons for $10, supplies included. To be held on Thursdays from 1 until 3 p.m. beginning Feb. 22. Call Mrs. James Miller at 323-2505 for more information.

The ENVIRONMENTAL WORKSHOP is having a project meeting on Feb. 14 to discuss the group's several projects. On Feb. 21 the group will view a film entitled "The Environment," a portrait of the current dilemma posed by benefits and hazards of technological expansion. Everyone, military and civilian, is invited to join the Environmental Workshop at 10 a.m. in the OWC Lounge each Wednesday.

TEACHER NEEDED

The Fort Benning Pre-Kindergarten is taking applications for a possible teaching position for the rest of the present school year. Send a resume listing qualifications and experience to P. O. Box 1852, Fort Benning, Georgia, 31905.

PANHELLENIC NEWS

On Jan. 30 the PANHELLENIC ASSOCIATION met in the home of Mrs. John York on Kessler Dr., Fort Benning. Mrs. Philip Kearns, Miss Diane Boatwright, and Miss Sharon Ross were introduced and welcomed to the group. Mrs. George Lovelace, Panhellenic President, announced that all Columbus area alumnae should be encouraged to join in activities and it was decided to hold more evening meetings so the working girls can participate.

The highlight of the meeting was a report given by Mrs Edward Scholwater, who attended the Presidential Inauguration with her husband, Col. Scholwater. She told us of their activities in Washington and brought several of the official mementos they had received.

The next meeting will be held Feb. 20 at 1:30 p.m. The hostess will be Mrs. Art Bradshaw. For information concerning the group please call Mrs. George Lovelace, 687-4187.

R. N. CLUB

The R. N. Club will have a meeting Feb. 12, 9:30 a.m., fourth floor classroom Martin Army Hospital. Capt. Helen Rutledge, Director of the Nurse Clinician Course, MEDDAC,, will speak on "Nursing Management and Hypertension." All nurses from the Fort Benning, Columbus, and Phenix City area are selcome.

TSB

Ladies of the FIRST BATTALION, TSB, met for a coffee, Jan. 31 in the home of the first lady of the battalion, Mrs. Donald Bowman, on Running Ave., Fort Benning.

During the business portion of the meeting, Mrs. Bowman welcomed Mrs. Harry Morton and Mrs. Joseph Jakuhowski to the battalion. Farewell gifts were presented to Mrs. Richard Yoest and Mrs. Terrence Aligood.

The February coffee will be given by Mrs. Bruce Presley.

The first monthly coffee of the new year for the ladies of the FIFTH BATTALION was held on Jan. 17 at the home of Mrs. Leroy Childs, Custer Terrace, Fort Benning. Hostesses for the coffee were the wives of 50th Company. Following the business meting which included discussion of the Tasting Bee on Feb. 14 and other OWC news, refreshments were served. Mrs. Gordon Hunt bid farewell and presented an OCS charm to Mrs. Jon Mackey and welcomed newcomer Mrs. Cardell Hunter.

Senior Status was the theme for the January coffee of the 52ND COMPANY Officer Candidate's Wives' Club. Capt. Dennis Carrell, the company commander, presented procedures for the Senior Status review. Mrs. Carrell discussed customs and courtesies for the banquet and ball.

The centerpiece, a basket of blue and white pom-pom flowers, was presented to Mrs. Aubrey Norris, the guest of honor.

A welcome was extended to Mesdames Eli Combs, Ralph Griffith, Scott Hennessey, Gareth Nicholson, Marc Trimmer and Dorsey Hill.

Hostesses for the month were Mesdames Richard Powell, John Brown, Michael Jennings, Phillip Johnson, Roy Kauffin and Richard Rohison.

Music from around the Benning Room of the Officworld was heard in the cer's Club by the ladies of IOAC 6-72. This fifth monthly function was hosted by the ladies whose IOAC 6-72 with Mrs. Jose husbands are on the staff of A. Chapa as chairwoman.

The patriotic color scheme of red, white and blue was very apropo for being held in such an eventful week of national happenings. As one greeted the honored guests, i.e. Mesdames Orwin C. Talbott, William R. Richardson, Sanders A. Cortner, Walter L. Phillips, Gordon E. Marlor, Bruce W. Presley, Maximo Cruz, and Charles P. Ervin Jr., the patriotic background seemed more perfect than ever.

After a sherry hour liberally filled with sherry, orange juice and much chatter, everyone sat down to lunch. Immediately afterwards the Fort Benning Infantry Chorus, under the direction of Lt. John R. Guice, entertained all with a special selection of songs chosen just for the ladies.

The highlight of the all-too-brief afternoon was Major Ivan De La Fuente, who is an officer in the Chilean Army attending IOAC 6-72, playing a melody of Latin American songs on the piano and ending with popular selections from the United States.

RANGER DEPARTMENT

The ladies of the BENNING RANGER COMMITTEE gathered at the home of Mrs. Karl Hurdle, on Miller Loop, Fort Benning, for dinner and surprise baby shower on Jan. 24. Guest of honor for the occasion was Mrs. Richard Epting.

Mrs. Hurdle displayed her culinary talents with rolled chicken breasts, lasagne, three bean salad, fruit salad, and rolls. While Mrs. Epting was showered with many lovely baby gifts, the ladies enjoyed gaily decorated cupcakes, apricot squares and coffee.

A short business meeting was held during which Mrs. James C. Warren was named the new editor of the BMF Reporter. Mrs. Warren also volunteered to have the February coffee in her home.

The ladies of the Infantry School Troop Support Battalion (Prov.) enjoyed coffee and refreshments at a monthly gathering hosted by Mrs. Robert Brumback, wife of Lt. Col. Robert Brumback, battalion commander, Jan. 17, at the Brumback residence, on Yeager Ave.

Professionalism

Volunteer force concept working here at Benning

If there is a key word in the Army's ultimate goal of an all-volunteer force it's professionalism — instilling in the individual a pride in the job he is doing, teaching him the necessary technical skills and giving him the tools to perform.

At Fort Benning professionalism is being stressed and enhanced at all levels with emphasis being placed in three main areas: Job satisfaction, living conditions and working conditions.

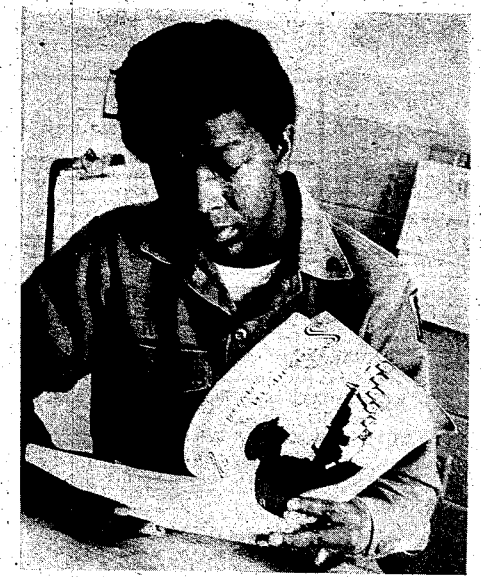
Is the move toward professionalism working? The answer at Fort Benning is definitely yes.

Three years go, 80 per cent of those reenlisting at Benning wanted to leave for another post. Now about 80 per cent of the reenlistees want to remain here.

Another indicator is the fact that three years ago, soldiers with intentions of making a career of military service amounted to approximately 5 per cent of the total, while the current figure is more than 20 per cent. Also, officers with career intentions have risen in three years from 21 per cent to more than 40 per cent.

What are some of the innovations put into effect at Fort Benning that have brought about such an upsurge in the number of individuals who want to make the military a profession? There are many.

First, soldiers today are being treated as individuals and not just faces in the crowd as in years gone by. No looger does a recruit walk into a barracks and find 20 or 30 bunks aligned along bare walls. Today a Fort Benning barracks closely resembles a college dormitory with semi-private rooms decorated to suit the tastes of an individual. Many soldiers select colorful bed spreads, draperies and rugs, and spend off-duty hours listening to hifis or watching their own television sets.



Another important factor is the elimination of KP, a chore now handled by civilians. Soldiers now have more time to work at becoming professional in the occupational specialities.

Other irritants have been removed, such as formations, signing in and signing out, and travel limits. Soldiers now receive advance notice of duties. "Hurry up and wait" activities have been eliminated, and realistic deadlines are established on work requests.

Job satisfaction is a must if the Army is to achieve true professionalism throughout its ranks, and at Fort Benning steps have been taken to insure that a soldier performs the duty for which he has been trained, and that repetitive, non-essential training be eliminated.

Indication that job satisfaction exists among the soldiers at Fort Benning is the fact that AWOL rates have been greatly reduced, drug abuse as it existed several years ago is at low ebb and crime against persons and property is at an all-time low level.

Fort Benning's drive for professionalism has made believers out of those who felt a zero draft was impossible. Even the most outspoken skeptics now see that the idea is not far fetched — that all-volunteer force of professionals — men who know their jobs and are proud to serve in the military — is fast becoming a reality.

Post named for award

Fort Benning has been named recipient of the Third US Army "Spartan" Crime Prevention Award for crime reduction during the second quarter of the current fiscal year.

According to Sgt. Ron White, provost marshal statistician, the crime rate at Fort Benning has gone from a high of 14.5 crimes per 1000 soldiers in February 1972, to a low of 7.5 crimes per 1000 soldiers in September of the same year. "We expect the January 1973 rate to be even lower than that," White said.

The most appreciable reduction in crime during the second quarter were in the number of larcenies committed, 174 larcenies in the second quarter as opposed to 211 larcenies for the first quarter. Robberies decreased from 24 in the first quarter to 12 in the second quarter.

In announcing the award, Lt. Gen. Melvin Zais Third Army Commander, said in a letter to Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, Fort Benning Commander, "This award certainly pays tribute to the comprehensive and imaginative crime prevention programs that you have established at Fort Benning."

The award will be presented at a future date.

MP of the year to be announced

The "Military Policeman of the Year" will be announced at 2:30 p.m. Feb. 13 at the Main Post Service Club. The award will be presented by the presidents of the Exchange Clubs of Columbus.

The week of Feb. 11-17 has been designated "National Crime Prevention Week." "National Crime Prevention Week" is sponsored by the Exchange Clubs of Columbus, Ga.

To kick off N.C.P.W., the Columbus Police Department will hold an "open house" Sunday, Feb. 11, from 10:30 till 5:00 p.m. The "Patrolman of the Year" will be announced at 2:30 p.m.

The Safety Patrolman of the Year will be announced on Feb. 15.

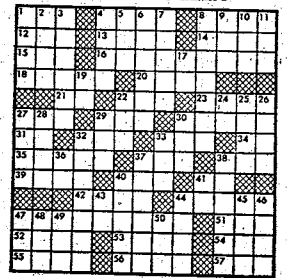
The three recipients will be honored at the weekly luncheons of the Exchange Clubs of Columbus.

There are 3 Exchange Clubs in Columbus. They are: The Columbus Exchange Club, the Muscogee Exchange Club, and the Metro Exchange Club.

"You've Just Been Robbed" is the Theme for Crime Prevention Week.

Birthday Golf Tourney

The Washington's Birthday Golf Tournament will be held at the Sand Hill Special Services Golf Course on the 17th and 18th of February.



It will consist of a 36 hole medal play divided into flights. All male military personel active and retired are eligible to compete.

All entries must he submitted to the Sand Hill Golf Course Pro Shop before the deadline date of the 16th of February. For further information call 545-4131.

Mrs. Orwin C. Talbott, wife of Fort Benning's departing commander, Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, reigned as "My Fair Lady" for an afternoon on Jan. 31 at a farewell tea given in her honor by the Officers' Wives Club.

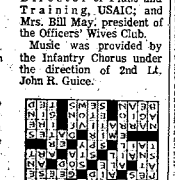
General's wife is fair lady



Mrs. Orwin C. Talbott, wife of Fort Benning's departing commander, was honored with a farewell tea on Jan. 31 by the Officers' Wives Club.

Hostesses for the tea were the officers' wives of the Department of Plans and Training, USAIC. The theme was "My Fair Lady."

A poem composed by Capt. Gilbert E. Hyland for Mrs. Talbott was read by Mrs. James P. Hughes, and a framed copy of the poem was presented to her. She also received a macrame handbag as a gift from the Officers' Wives Club.

Receiving with Mrs. Talbott were Mrs. William R. Richardson, wife of the Assistant Commandant of the Infantry School; Mrs. Roy R. May, wife of the Director of Plans and Training, USAIC; and Mrs. Bill May, president of the Officers' Wives Club.

Music was provided by the Infantry Chorus under the direction of 2nd Lt. John R. Guice.

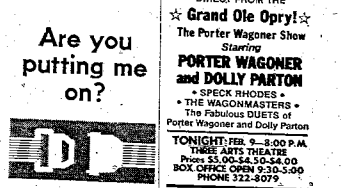
THE GETAWAY . . . Steve McQueen and Ali McGraw play Doc and Carol, a husband and wife reunited after his parole from prison. They plan and execute a bank robbery with the help of crooked politician Ben Johnson and brutal gun man Al Lettiere. Things go wrong and several people are killed. Doc and Caro net a half million dollars and it seems that everybody else is planning a double cross. Violent and bloody action involving chases in cars, across rooftops, in train terminals and shootouts with police; and a climatic shotgun duel in a seedy Texas hotel will keep audience excited and tense.

SUPER FLY . . . Ron O'Neal is "Priest," a tough, cool dealer in "coke" with the customized Eldorado who is maneuvering for 30 "keys" so he can make a killing and get out. His partner Eddie, (Carl Lee) is concerned with ever expanding and making more money. As "Super Fly," O'Neal is a slugin', lovin', needlin' and philosophizing pusher with a heart of gold, wanting to get out — but only after making his easy $1,000,000. Complications follow when it turns out the police and a New York City commissioner want in. Super Fly fantasizes the brutal world of drugs, drug usage, and related sex, violence and police corruption.

THEY ONLY KILL THEIR MASTERS . . . In a small California coastal town a dead woman, fully clothed, is pulled from the ocean by her pet Doberman. The dog is a prime suspect for her murder. Swinging, local police chief, James Garner is a cynical individual who hates dogs, yet adopts the animal in spite of himself. Garner falls for Katharine Ross, assistant to veternarian Hal Holbrook, while investigating the murder-by drowning. Holbrook and his wife, June Allyson, have something to hide and Garner means to find out what.



TRINITY IS STILL MY NAME . . . Brothers, Trinity (Terence Hill) and Bambino (Bud Spencer), arrive at a village controlled by a crook named Parker. Hearing of the brothers' amazing feats of gun and fist, Parker mistakes them for federal agents and bribes them to leave town. Trinity and Bambino accept the bribe and after leaving town discover a plot to sell a wagon train of arms to Mexican revolutionaries. Parker, who is behind the plot, arrives at the local mission and a fight breaks out. Trinity and Bambino, with the help of the mission monks, battle Parker's men while Father Superior calls in the rangers.

Oriental film star, Miss Mercy, showed her support for "the Rock's Support," the 2-10th Arty., by paying a visit to some of the soldiers.

THE SIGN points out the obvious. Fair Clara Le-Bleau, daughter of an Air Force Sergeant stationed in Italy, attended the Jobs For Veterans Information Fair held in Naples to find out about employment possibilities when she returns to America. Clara wants to be a model.

AUSA prepares for dance

AUSA EXTRAVANGA

"Enjoyment at its best" could well be the theme of this years AUSA George Washington's Birthday Dinner Dance. This year the gala and patriotic event will take place February 23 at the Harmony Church Field House.

The activities are planned to make it an enjoyable evening for those who attend. A free cocktail hour from 7 to 8 p.m. kicks off the affair. A roast beef dinner follows at 8 p.m. Highlighting the evening's entertainment will be the women's and men's ROTC drill teams from North Georgia College. The Fort Benning Infantry Chorus will also perform. Following the entertainment will be dancing until 1 a.m. to the music of the Kingsmen.

AUSA sponsors the event each year to foster a friendly relationship between the civilian and military communities. Proceeds from the dinner-dance go towards the chapter ROTC and awards program. It is also an excellent chance for non-members to become acquainted with AUSA and to find out about the Association from the members themselves.

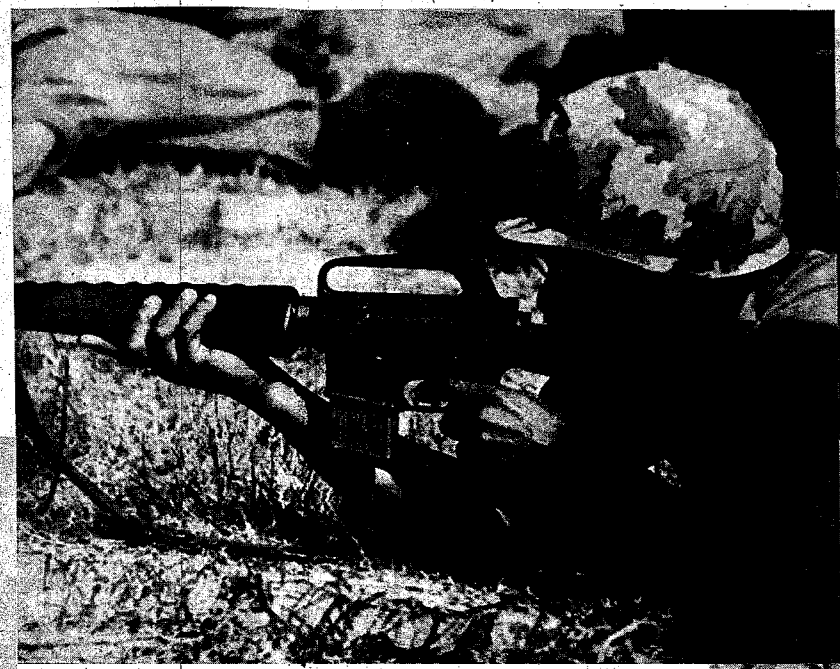
Pride starts with the individual

Maintaining the highest possible state of training has long been the goal of artillerymen with the 2nd Bn. 10th Arty., 197th Brigade.

On Feb. 2 and 3 however, the Redlegs participated in their quarterly Gunners' Qualification Test to find out, in fact, which section contained the best Artillerymen in the battalion.



"This test, given to all artillerymen, is one of the most thorough and difficult examinations given in the Army," said Capt. Wayne Smoot, officer in charge of the testing.

Each of the three firing batteries sent their best sections to participate in the test. Each individual rotated among four different stations where he was tested on his speed and accuracy in the operation of the 105mm howitzer. After each individual was tested, his score was averaged with the other members of his section to determine which section had been trained to achieve the highest degree of artillery proficiency.

After six hours of continous testing, C Btry., was named the winner. Each member of the winning section will receive a certificate named him "Top Gun" and a patch to be worn on his fatigue shirt pocket. The "Top Gun" artillerymen included SSgt. Albert Sullivan, Sgt. Robert Kolb, Sp4 Bobbie Bryant, Sp4 Jimmy Riddle, and Pv2 Hudgins (Ken), all from C Btry., 2-10th Arty. The highest individual scorer on the entire test was SSgt. Tyson Garrett of Alpha Battery.

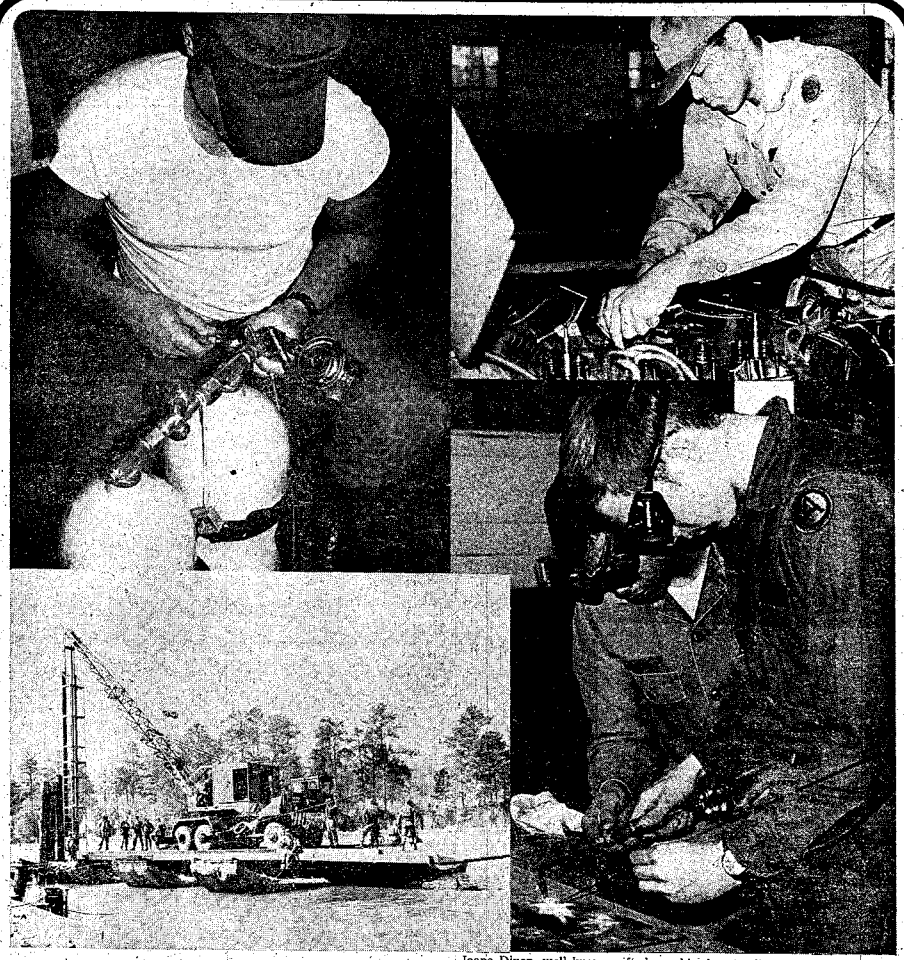
1-58th Refresher Training

By Rick Wasser

It's basic training all over again for men of the 1st Bn. (Mech.), 58th Inf., PATRIOTS, 197th Inf. Bde.

The Patriot soldiers are currently undergoing refresher training in their combat MOS'

The first item covered under the refresher program was a review of the CODE OF CONDUCT. It was covered in a skit form with soldiers from the 1-58th acting out their respective parts as the enmy and as prisoners of war. The NCOIC for the Code of Conduct Class was Sgt, Gene McKinney. He used the idea of presenting the class in skit form because the soldiers of the 1-58th are well known for their ability to act.



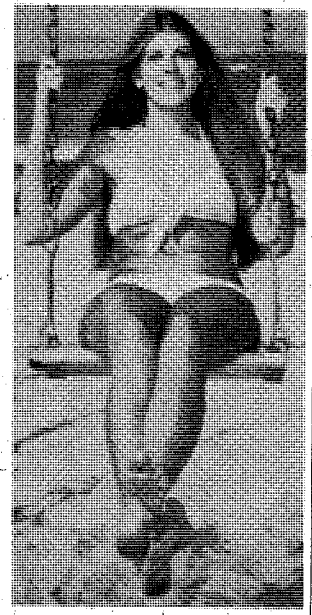
The acting ability of the Patriot soldiers was certainly in evidence several months ago when they were selected to pose for some pictures being used in an Army advertisement campaign.

The next phase of the refresher training was the assembly and dissassembly of the M-16A1 rifle and familiarity with the weapon. The class was given by Sgt. Kenneth Cash but it differed from the old boring nomenclature classes one remembers from basic combat training. Sgt. Cash got each individual involved with different segments of the class by utilizing the soldiers as demostrators and assistant instructors.

After the PATRIOT soldiers became again familiar with their weapons, they went to the range to see just how accurate they were in the actual utilization of it.

The initial phase of the live fire class included "zero" ing the weapon. Each soldier fired different shot groups with the M-16 until his weapon was "zeroed". Following this, the men were required to shoot for qualification. Based on their efforts, they were awarded marksman, sharpshooter, or expert.

The final class in the refresher training was the chemical, biological, and radioactive (CBR) training. Included in this phase of the training was, of course, the gas chamber. As in basic training, the PATRIOT soldier had to enter a room filled with tear gas with a protective mask on and then remove the mask. This class is designed to prove the effectiveness of the protective mask and certainly did that, as it prompted one teary eyed soldier to mutter, "I believe, I believe."



Job satisfaction 931st style

Jeane Dixon, well known gifted psychic, has predicted that although the zero draft level is not in the cards for the immediate future, "the army will remain professional and hard." Indeed, alook at the soldiers of the 931st Engineer Group hardly requires any psychic ability to realize that Mrs. Dixon is right on the mark again.

To many of the men, the army represents a special kind of freedom that can only be appreciated by a professional. SP4 Harl Williams of Company C, 43rd Engr. Bn., spent two and one-half years as a civilian before he decided to reenlist. "I'm going to stay in this time", he explained, "because I've been able to compare and judge things for myself. In the army, I find that I have room to really grow in my chosen field that I just couldn't find in civilian life."

Indeed, this satisfaction with their jobs is one of the things that make these men professionals. In many cases, this satisfaction is the result of the coincidence of the needs of the army and the desires of the individual. As PFC Larry Brown of HHC, 931st Engr. Gp. puts it, he came into the army with the option of choosing what he wanted to do. "Well," he said, "I chose something that I would enjoy doing and that, in the event that I got out of the army, would serve me in good stead in civilian life. The army made me a professional and that's the way its going to be."

This young swinger would like to remind everyone that $5 is being given to those who wear their seat belts while driving on post. Check the daily bulletin for details.

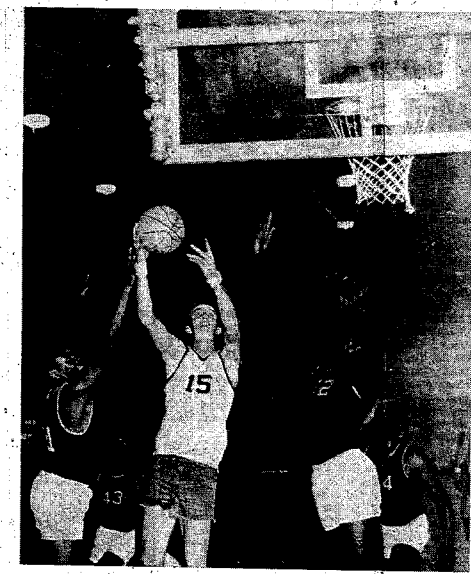
Victory doesn't come easy

BY RICK WASSER

The reigning post basketball champions, D Co., 1-58th Inf., 197th Inf. Bde., discovered that they would have tougher competition this year in their own brigade team than they had gotten from the entire post last year.

The Delta Co. Dragons, as they are nicknamed, entered the final game of the 197th championships feeling confident of a win over the Headquarters company team. But victory doesn't come that easy over a team that has been winning on a little skill and a lot of spirit since the season opened.

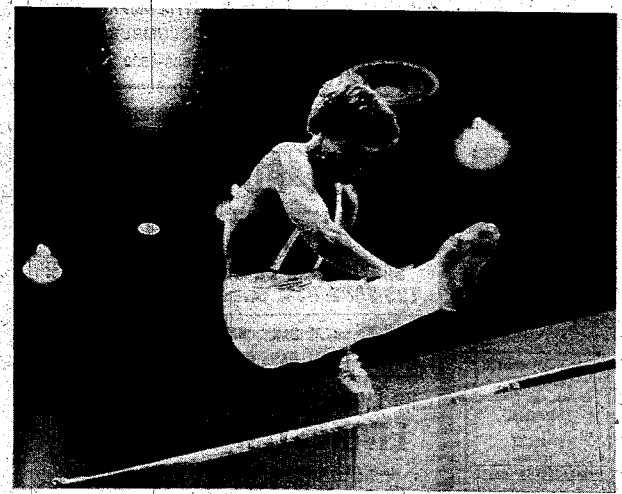


HHC, 197th Inf. Bde., narrowly missed being the Post Flag Football champions this year, and were defeated only by another team in the 197th Inf. Bde. Perhaps this is part of the reason that they have been determined not to finish No. 2 in the basketball tourney.

Grim determination and fierce competition was evidenced by the HHC team from the opening moments of the game until the final buzzer sounded. The brigade headquarters company team got off to an early lead by successive field goals by William Dottery and Abraham McCall.

At the half, the score was 21-18, and the 1-58th Inf. was beginning to score more often. A barrage of personal fouls committed by the Headquarters company team in the third quarter enabled the 1-58th to come within two points of HHC, the closest they had been all night. But, the fourth quarter drive, for which HHC has become famous, took effect again and they went on a scoring rampage, putting the game far out of reach of the 1-58th Patriots. Final score: HHC 46, D-1-58th, 41.

After the championship game, Brigade commander, Col. Edwin L. Kennedy presented the winners with trophies and wished both teams luck in the upcoming post championship, which the 197th is a 3-1 favorite to win.



Up, Up and score

PFC Larry Dirk (15) of D Co., 1-58th Inf. 197th Inf. Bde., attempts a basket while double-teamed by Sp4 Gerald Green (L-21) and Sp4 William Dottery (12) of HHC, 197th Inf. Bde. HHC won the championship game by a score of 46-41. (Photo by Rick Wasser)

Olympic try

Gymnastic All-American now at OCS

Dale Fage works out.

Olympic competition is something an athlete dreams about all his life. For Dale Fage, a Basic Candidate in Officer Candidate School's 50th Co. 5th Stu. Bn., TSB, the dream came very close to reality.

Fage is a gymnast who began his training in high school. After high school he spent a tour of duty in the Air Force. He excelled in adventurous training and became an Airborne Pathfinder, and also was a distinguished graduate of Marine Amphibious Reconnaissance School.

After his service Fage enrolled at Long Beach City Junior College, where he resumed his work in gymnastics. He transferred to the University of South California, and then to California State University.

At Calif. State he was named one of the nation's top 25 gymnasts, was selected a gymnastic All-American, and was cited as the Helm's Foundation "Athlete of the Year" for 1971. He was now competing against the best gymnasts in the world and was driving himself toward the Munich Olympics.

But what he had hoped was not to be as last May while working a benefit at his high school with female Gymnastic Olympian Cathy Rigby, the high bar he was performing on collapsed, and he watched the Olympics on television with a broken hand and chipped elbow.

Although disappointed Fage is still glad he worked so hard at gymnastics in that it paid for his education. He now hopes to coach at the United States Military Academy, West Point.

Fage has spent a great deal of his time working with children. One project he supports and worked with is the Mentally Retarded Olympics Program. He is still furthering his education, and hopes to have his Master's degree in Business Administration within two years.

Candidate Fage is the Physical Training Officer at 50th Co., and has achieved a maximum score on the Basic Combat Proficiency Test.

ROD AND GUN CLUB Notes

BY BILL KLOEB

Major Myrtis Roach Jr., chairman of the archery committee announced at the January meeting of the Rod and Gun Club Board of Governors that the club ranges have been selected as the site for the 1973 Georgia State Archery Championships.

The Pre State Shoot will be held on the weekend of June 2 and 3 and the championships on July 14 and 15.

Planning has already started for these contests. Last month Gene Stalcup, president of the Rod and Gun Club Chattahoochee Archery Council and Bobby Gunn, current Georgia State Open Bow Champion went to Griffin, Ga. to attend a conference and preliminary briefing on the range requirements and conduct of the championships. The club has two championship rated field archery ranges which are considered among the best in the country. They will require some repair and renovation to meet the standards for championship matches.

The club also operates an indoor archery range. This is located in Building 5310 in the vicinity of Operation Transition in the Harmony Church Area. The range is opened at 6 p.m. on Tuesday and Thursday. It is also open on afternoons Saturday and Sunday when weather conditions are too severe for use of the outdoor ranges. You can get more information concerning the operations of the indoor range from Tom McCullough, club custodian at 545-6028.

Interest and activity at the archery ranges is increasing after a long period of inactivity. Someone is always using the range on weekends. As the daylight increases there will probably be some activity after duty hours during the week. There are quite a few younger members interested too. The club is now sponsoring an Archery Explorer Scout Post. The members of this group meet at 2 p.m. on the second and fourth Sunday of each month. The post is looking for new members. Any male or female between 15 and 20 years of age is eligible to join. Those fourteen years old who have started high school are also eligible. Anyone interested can get more information about this from

Skeet Activities

Lt. Col. Paul Anderson, chairman of the skeet committee announced two National Skeet Shooting Association sanctioned shoots to be held at Fort Benning.

The first to be known as the Tall Pine Open has been scheduled for April 27 and 28. The second called the Club Open Shoot will be held July 14 and 15. Any member of the National Skeet Shooters Association is eligible to compete. These two events should be good spectator affairs. Some of the best skeet shooters in the world will probably compete in both events.

You don't have to be a champion shooter to use the club skeet ranges. There are four of them and they never get crowded. They are open to all members each Wednesday, Saturday, Sunday and holiday from noon until 6 p.m.

If you want more information concerning skeet activities call Lt. Col. Anderson at 544-1531.

Col. Anderson at 544-1531.

A New Club House

Rumors have been flying thick and fast about the Rod and Gun Club House. Some of the rumors are correct and some are completely off mark but may be right later on. The situation is rather vague just now.

There is a possibility that the club move to Victory Lodge. It's available and seems to have many advantages over the present club house facilities. It also has some disadvantages. The least of these is not an estimate of nearly forty thousand dollars to repair and renovate the Victory Lodge building to be compatable with club functions and requirements. The deal hasn't been dropped completely. A committee from the Board of Governors will resurvey the building to determine the cost of minimum repairs and changes the club would require to make the building usable. In the meantime other possibilities are being explored. Everyone agrees that the present building doesn't begin to meet the requirements of the club but no one is in favor of making a quick move that could prove to be wrong. The problem is a heavy one and members of the board would appreciate any ideas members might have.

Benning Archery Range selected for championships

The Fort Benning Rod and Gun Club Archery Ranges have been selected as the site for the 1973 Georgia State Archery Championships.

A Pre-State shoot has been scheduled for June 2 and 3 to provide contestants an opportunity to become familiar with the ranges and range procedures to be in effect during the championship shoot on July 14 and 15.

Officials of the Georgia Bow Hunters Archery Association, the organization supervising the championships have already started planning for the event. Last month, Gene Stalcup, president of the Rod and Gun Club Archery Group and Bobby Gunn, secretary of the group and current Georgia State Open Bow Champion attended a meeting at Griffin, Ga. to discuss range requirements and the conduct of the championships.

The Fort Benning Rod and Gun Club has two four star rated championship field target ranges considered to be as good as any in the country. Only minor repairs and inovations will be required for these ranges to meet the championship requirements.

Getting the state championships fired at Benning this year is only one of the activities planned to generate local interest in the sport.

Anyone interested in joining the Explorer Post or the Rod and Gun Club Archery Group should call the Rod and Gun Club, 545-6028 for additional informa-

4th Bn. Cadre

Wins TSB basketball championship

The 4th Stu. Bn. Cadre used devastating team speed and outside shooting to offset a brilliant performance by IOAC 4-73's Rhett Jenkins and take the School Brigade league's basketball championship 48-37 Tuesday night Jan. 31 at the Main Post Gym.

Fourth Bn. pulled away in the early stages of the game, relying on a fast break led by William Taylor. 4th Bn. also capitalized on the inability of anyone besides Jenkins scoring for IOAC-4. The first half ended 23-16. Taylor had 10 points, while Jenkins had scored 12 of his teams 16. The only other player who even managed to score for IOAC-4 was Jim Gerdeman, who scored 4.

In the second half the two teams played nearly the same. Teaming with Taylor, Wyman Ashford, the other 4th Bn. guard pumped in 20 footers to kill IOAC-4 every time they started to close the gap in the third period.

In the fourth period Jenkins almost singlehandedly brought IOAC within 2 points with only five minutes remaining. The other members of IOAC-4 were totally ineffective against 4th Bn. When 4th Bn. used a swarming defense around Jenkins to shut him off for several minutes, IOAC-4 quickly fell 10 points behind. Then 4th Bn. put a semi-stall on, and just ate up the clock until the final buzzer.

Taylor led 4th Bn. with 20 points, followed by Ashford with 11. Jenkins, whose previous high game was 24, saved his best for the last game as he scored 27 points. Jim Gerdeman scored 6 points.

At the games end 4th Bn. received the Championship trophy, and IOAC got the runner-up trophy. Each player was also presented an individual trophy from Col. A. G. Norris, TSB commanding officer.

Girl's Judo Club dominates meet

The girls of the Fort Benning Judo Club dominated Girls Competition by taking first, second and all but a lone third place in all weight classes during an open judo tournament sponsored by the Fort Benning Judo Club at Briant Wells Fieldhouse last Saturday.

Pvt. Roger Bryant of the Fort Benning Judo Club received the Sportsmanship award during the meet.

The overall champion was Ronnie Nickolson of New Orleans. Nickolson competed in the 176 - pound division as a representative of the Crescent City Judo Club.

The tournament attracted 185 participants from 20 clubs in Georgia, Alabama, Florida, South Carolina, Louisiana, Tennessee and Mississippi.

When Anderson talks it's not hard to listen

Paul Anderson driving a twenty-penny nail through 2 inches of lumber with his hand.

When Paul Anderson, "the World's Strongest Man", talks, it's not hard for you to convince yourself to listen. At 5'10" tall and 375 pounds, he looks like a barrel with trees for arms and legs. His thighs measure a yard around. He is a weightlifter who has lifted a combined total of 6,720 pounds to win the 1956 Olympic Gold Medal for weightlifting.

On Sat. Feb. 24th he will be at Fort Benning to demonstrate this awesome strength.

Anderson estimates he makes at least 500 personal appearances a year on college campus, Army bases, and churches. He does so for two reasons; to speak on God's love to those who come to the gathering, and to support the Paul Anderson Youth home in Vidalia, Ga.

A Methodist, Anderson speaks with a flair of a revival preacher. He believes that God loved him enough to send His son Jesus Christ to die on a cross for him, and now his life is involved in telling others of this love.

To grasp the attention of his audience, he does a variety of sight-boggling things. He will put eight men on a heavy wooden table, and lift it off the floor. He'll drive a 20-penny nail through two 1 inch thick boards. He'll lift more weight on a barbell, than 2 average men weigh, and he'll be doing all this at TSB's Sightseeing Road Chapel from 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. on the 24th.

B-ball Tourney under way

The 1973 USAIC Company Level Basketball Tournament got underway Monday at the Main Post Gym with Company A, HQD, pulling a resounding win over 4th Student Bn. 54-40 while the 139th M.P. Co. was squeaking by 546th Med. Co. 46-44.

During aetion Tuesday the 11th Co, TSB won over the 606th Ord. by the narrow margin of 48-46. D Co. 1st of the 58 defeated Inf. Board 65-57.

The tournament will continue weeknights 1830 and 1930 hrs., at the Main Post Gym through Feb. 16th.

The 'Fighting Flea' is only a PFC

Despite a controversial decision which cost the light flyweight division title in the Third Army Boxing Championships at Ft. Campbell Jan. 26, PFC Luis Perez-Fontanez has again gained nomination to the all-Army Boxing Team.

Claiming that a low blow in his final bout forced him to concede to a technical knockout, the little battler from HHD, 197th Spt. Bn., 197th Inf. Bde., was surprised to learn that judges Bernie Callahan and Pat Nappi had selected him instead of his adversary, Bernard Banuelos, to fight on the All-Army team which has already begun practicing at Ft. Bragg, N.C.

Nappi was also a judge last year, when Perez won outright nomination to the All-Army team by winning the light flyweight title.

Perez was accompanied by only one other boxer from Fort Benning, PFC Allen Lewis of the 1st Bn., 29th Inf. (Pioneers), who was defeated in his first match by PFC David Webb of Ft. Campbell.

The "Fighting Flea" earned a spot in the title fight by stopping PFC Cesar Ostolaza of Ft. Jackson.

"I couldn't believe it when they told me I made the all-Army team after that fight with Banuelos," said a pleased Perez. "I wanted to win that fight but I was hurt too badly by a low blow."

The All-Army team fights throughout the country at the invitation of various civic and professional representatives. No members of the team accept any money or renumeration for fighting.

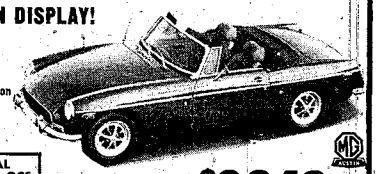
Star athlete attending OCS

During the years that Officer Candidate School has been in operation at Fort Benning, a long list of fine athletes have come and gone through the program. The latest of these is Officer Candidate Danny Watson, 80th Co. 5th Student Bn., TSB.

In high school at Greenville, S.C., he captained both the baseball and football teams, was an All-State football player and was voted Most Valuable Player on the baseball team. He earned a total of seven varsity letters in his three years there.

After graduation he accepted a four-year football grant to Elon College of Burlington, N.C. While not known as one of your collegiate football powerhouses, Elon has fielded players such as Rich McGeorge, tight end of the Green Bay Packers. At Elon Watson played four years of varsity football, and played third base on the baseball team for one season.



A defensive back in college football, Watson was selected to the All-NAIA district 26 team, and was named an All-Carolina's Conference defensive back for two years. In his senior season he led the Elon Team in punt returns and interceptions. His seventeen career interceptions rank second on the all time list at the school.

Watson joined the Greenville Bulls of the Dixie Football league when he graduated from Elon, and immediately led this team in his favorite two categories, punt returns and interceptions. He slithered and sped his way into running punts back for touchdowns in six consecutive games.

Watson was being scouted by the Oakland Raiders, Atlanta Falcons, and Buffalo Bills when he was drafted. When he leaves the military he is planning on trying out with either the Raiders or the Bills.

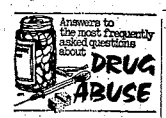
POW inducted into OCS Hall of Fame

It was 1944 when Robert L. Shinn, a young US Army company commander was captured by the German Army. He was taken to a prison camp where a Nazi Major interrogated him with beatings, starvation, and physochological warfare. The Major, finding out that Shinn was a graduate of Officer Candidate School at Fort Benning chided him with "Fort Benning I see. One of the ninety-day wonder boy officers." Although he was heavily abused Shinn didn't betray his comrades and answered the Germans only with his name, rank and serial number.



Now 31 years later, on Feb. 1, 1973, Dr. Robert L. Shinn, adjunct Professor of Religon at Columbia University, retdrned to Fort Benning to be inducted into the Infantry Officer Candidate School Hall of Fame at TSD's Wigle Hal. The basis for his induction were the outstanding achievements of Dr. Shinn in civilian life.

Dr. Shinn left the Army in 1945, after attaining the rank of Major, and being decorated with the Silver Star.

He attended Union Theological Seminary in New York City, where he received his doctorate in religion. He then began lecturing and teaching in some of the nation's finest universities.

Dr. Shinn is also an influential force internationally, as he was co-opted staff member on the World Council of Churches Conference on Churches and Society based in Geneva, Switzerland.

A prolific writer, "Life, Death, and Destiny, The Existentialist Posture," and most recently "Wars and Rumors of War", for which he won the 1972 Abingdon Award. Dr. Shinn also wrote and

Goodbye Sir

Maj. Gen. Talbott stands at attention as Fort Benning says good-bye to him during a farewell ceremony held in his honor Feb. 14.

Benning honors Gen. Talbott

More than 400 soldiers from Fort Benning's major units paraded past Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott Thursday afternoon as the post said farewell to the outgoing commander.

Gen. and Mrs. Talbott, who have been at Fort Benning for more than 40 months, will depart post tomorrow by automobile. He is to become special assistant to the commander of the U. S. Continental Army Command at Fort Monroe, Va.

Representing Lt. Gen. Melvin Zais at the ceremony and presenting Gen. Talbott with the Distinguished Service Medal was Lt. Gen. John H. Hay Jr. commander of the 18th Airborne Corps Ft. Bragg, N. C.

Gen. Talbott was cited for his leadership as commander and commandant of the world's largest Infantry Center and Infantry School. The citation continues "General Talbott demonstrated leadership qualities of the highest order, profound professional competence and the highest degree of executive ability in accomplishing this awesome mission. His hidden perception, creative imagination and unsurpassed ingenuity affected the introduction of revolutionary training and teaching innovations to keep pace with the changing demands of modern warfare."

The colorful ceremony included a fly-over by military aircraft and a free fall jump by members of Airborne Department.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT
by Bill King

Shelled nuts keep best if stored in a plastic bag in the refrigerator before or after opening.

Vary your favorite cole slaw recipe by using Chinese cabbage and adding sliced stuffed olives and chopped tomatoes for eye-appeal.

Whether you grind it yourself or have the butcher do it, you'll get juicier burgers if the beef is ground coarsely, and just once.

A pinch of powdered cumin adds a nice taste to deviled eggs.

On September 15, 1776, the day British troops landed in Manhatton, the top British officers were invited for sherry and cakes by Colonial sympathizer Mary Murry, whose husband Robert was a Tory. Mrs. Murray's diversionary tactics enabled Gen. George Washington to mass his troops for the next day's battle.

New Unit Fund System provides more benefits

The Department of the Army has initiated a new system for the distribution of non-appropriated funds designed to provide more services and benefits for each dollar spent.

Non-appropriated funds, derived primarily from profits of the Army-Air Force Motion Picture and Exchange Services are distributed by Department of the Army to subordinate headquarters on the basis of a pro rate share for each soldier.

The new system provides for a larger share of these funds being held and disbursed by a central fund maintained at post level but subordinate units on post actually profit by getting relief from the requirement to purchase certain items and services.

In the future the unit fund need not be used to obtain a variety of items which formerly constituted a heavy drain on the fund. A partial list of such items includes athletic clothing, equipment and trophies, services of sports officials, pool tables, unit crests, dining and day room accessories and similar items. Requests for these type items will be made through normal supply channels.

The central fund will disburse money to supplement the operating budgets for post religious activities, service clubs, libraries, post fish and game programs, sports programs and other recreation activities.

Central funds will also be used to construct and maintain recreation areas, support youth activities programs and to promote and provide awards for contests designed to benefit the individual and the command.

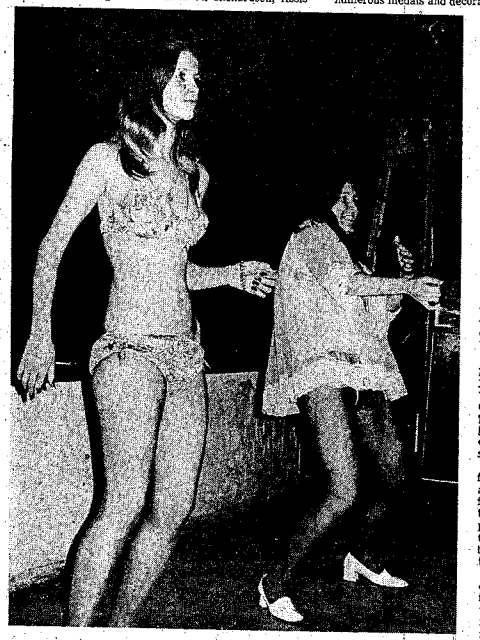
Gen. Abrams at 'Patterson' ceremony

2nd Lt. Thomas L. Ferguson received the 21st annual Robert P. Patterson Memorial Award from the late Secretary of War's widow on Feb. 12. Ferguson was presented with an engraved service pistol and a cash award, made possible by friends of the late Judge Patterson.



Mrs. Patterson, who arrived Sunday night by plane from her home in New York state, was met at the airport by Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott. She visited Wigle Hall Monday morning before the ceremony, where she was presented with a painting as a gift from the 5th Student Battalion (OC), TSB.

On hand for the ceremony was Gen. Creighton Abrams, Army Chief of Staff, as well as Gen. Talbott and Brig. Gen. William R. Richardson, Assistant Commandant of the Infantry School.

Mrs. Patterson, in her speech, warned against the dangers of insidious aggression by the enemy and urged all nations to "organize and involve their citizens in the task of peacekeeping."

Mrs. Patterson and Ferguson were honored with a luncheon at the Supper Club of the Fort Benning Officers' Club after the ceremony. Following the luncheon, Mrs. Patterson left by plane from the Columbus Metropolitan Airport.

Ferguson, who is currently attending Ranger School, will be assigned to Fort Ord, Calif. for his next tour of duty. A former Marine, he has served three combat tours in Vietnam, and has received numerous medals and decorations for bravery.

The Brigade Hideaway Club, located on Kelley Hill, has undergone a recent change that includes the addition of a new bar and bikini-clad go-go dancers. "We have built a completely new bar in a room that is for E-4s and below," stated SSgt. Donald Dykstra, club manager. "Our other room is for NCOs only." The Hideaway has become a popular spot for soldiers of the 197th Inf. Bde. that live on Kelley Hill. However, Dykstra indicated that he felt men who do not live on Kelley Hill are not aware of the unique facility. The club opens at noon seven days a week and closes at 11 p.m. It is open to all enlisted personnel. Monthly club cards are $2 for E-4s and below, $3 for NCOs. (Photo by Bob Thomas)

AUSA dance Feb. 23

The Blue Ridge Rifles of North Georgia College will add their talents to this years AUSA George Washington Birthday Ball to be held Feb. 23 at the Harmony Church Field House.

This fine drill team consists of both male and female units and will provide entertainment for the evening along with the Fort Benning Infantry Chorus. Attending the affair will be Dr. John Owen, president of the North Georgia College.

The activities are planned to make it an enjoyable evening for those who attend. Dress will be coat and tie for military personnel or Class A greens if desired. Women can wear either long or short dresses.

A free cocktail hour from 7-8 p.m. kicks-off the affair. Roast beef dinner follows at 8 p.m. and entertainment begins at 9 p.m. Dancing from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. to the music of the Kingsmen concludes the affair.

AUSA sponsors the event each year to foster a friendly relationship between the civilian and military community. Proceeds from the dinner-dance go towards the chapter's ROTC and awards program. It is also an excellent chance for non-members to become acquainted with AUSA and find out about the association from the members themselves.

43rd Engrs. remove snow during blizzard

The record snowfall that blanketed Benning Feb. 9-10 is now history but the accomplishments of the 43rd Engr. Bn. during this crisis will be long remembered.

At noon on Feb. 9, the battalion was informed by HQ that assistance had been requested by the Directorate of Facilities Engineering. The battalion had been on a self-imposed alert since early Friday morning and contingency plans developed which facilitated immediate response to the emergency needs of the Infantry Centre.

In direct conference with DFAE and the Provost Marshal's Office, the priority traffic and emergency routes were established and the battalion task organized to complete the mission.

As the afternoon progressed and USAIC employes cleared the reservation, the prime efforts were concentrated towards emergency routes from post residential areas to Martin Army Hospital. The soldiers and equipment operators displayed spartan effort and endurance as they worked straight through blizzard conditions clearing snow from roads and spreading sand by hand from the beds of dump trucks.

SOUND OFF!

Would you advise your buddy to re-up?

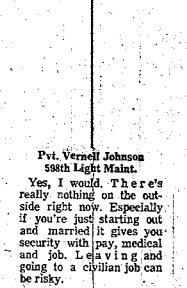
With a little help from my friends

Sp4 Earl Beck
72nd Eng.

NO I WOULD NOT! The Army is alright if you are the type of person that can take it or are married. There is too much harrassment and once you sign those papers you are committed 3 to 6 years more. No way to quit if you don't like your job or just feel like quitting. You also have to go where they say and when they say.

PFC Dana Ahl
81st Co. NCOES

It depends on what he has planned for the near future. It's his choice. If he is undecided and doesn't have anything for him on the outside I would probably say yes. Just the schooling and the pay would be enough to keep a man in the service. The benefits are another thing that would make him think twice.



Sp4 Robert Massie
NCOES 81st Co.

Yes. . . Most of my friends are re-enlistees and they enjoy it but it has a lot to do with the individual. The VRB and the chance to be at a stabilized tour would also make them listen to me. Unless the person has a job waiting for him, I would advise him to stay in.

Michael Utley
44th Co.

I would first have to find out what he is re-enlisting for, if I thought it was worth it then I would try to help him make up his mind probably advising him to re-enlist. The Army offers alot more than the outside. I think it's a cleaner job, you receive all the benefits plus the big thing these days is that check every month. Job security is guaranteed. . . . .

Pvt. Verneil Johnson
598th Light Maint.

Yes, I would. There's really nothing on the outside right now. Especially if you're just starting out and married it gives you security with pay, medical and job. Leaving and going to a civilian job can be risky.

Dear Editor

Is There a danger in the Army's educational policy?

The Army wants everyone in its ranks highly educated. Its goal is to have all officers get bachelor degrees and to have 20 percent of them earn graduate degrees.

Besides this, the wants all warrant officers to earn associate degrees, all new enlisted men to complete high school, and all non-commissioned officers to finish two years of college.

Not only do I think that graduate degrees for 20 percent of the officers and two years of college for all warant officers and NCOs will be an example of over-education, but also I think there is a real danger in this education policy.

The danger is relying on formal education programs to automatically produce military professionalism.

Normal education does not produce professionalism, and neither will over-education.

Military professionalism is brought about by the use of military leadership, not by civilian education. Leadership harnesses and puts to use educated minds. But a unit can have a college degree in every personnel file and remain an unprofessional outfit because its leaders fail to apply the military leadership principles found in FM 22-100.

Two years of college or graduate school are not tion can serve as a useful tool in the exercise leadership. The professional soldier will get all he can get. But most of the Army's problems are unit level problems, and the sensible application of leadership principles and military training will bring about their solutions.

Sending key officers and NCOs for extra civil schooling will actually cause greater inefficiency in unit operations while they are gone. When they return to full-time duty, their leadership ability will not be improved significantly. They may even have to regan some leadership skills they lost.

Here are some personal observations of what professionalism is not. Leadership at unit level would correct these unprofessional practices. Sending leaders away from units for extra civil education will probably make things worse.

Professionalism is not closing the 7-11 store during a none-duty day when at least a thousand military families needed to use it as indicated by the traffic jam up of cars going to and from the store.

Professionalism is not giving more deference to an officer than to an enlisted man who is in your office seeking the same assistance the officer is seeking and who has just as much business being there.

Professionalism is not making a soldier wait an hour and a half for a finance record inspection to find out why his pay check did not arrive.

Professionalism is not making a soldier use duty time (to supply the clout his wife did not have) just to get satisfactory medical treatment for his child who had a temperature of 102 - 104 for four days but whose throat culture reading is "negative."

Professionalism is not making guards walk or ride posts that are ineffective or unproductive.

Professionalism is not making your subordinates report unsatisfactory living conditions more than one time.

Professionalism is not assigning a soldier to a job for which he was not trained and not giving him clore, rewarding, on-the-job training.

In summary, leaders taking pride in their work will build a professional Army, not leaders who are away from units earning extra degrees or credits.

—Peter A. Foreman

Post CB Club helps motorists in storm

The members of the Fort Benning CB Club began offering assistance to motorists soon after the storm began Friday morning. 1st Lt. Jack Davison, Administration Officer for the 121st Aviation Company and CB Club secretary, reported that the group worked well into Friday night directing traffic, monitoring road conditions, and assisting snowbound motorists. Whenever they encountered an accident, the CBers with car radios would call to a base unit operator, who would telephone the police or the MPs to arrange for assistance.

At approximately 10 o'clock Saturday morning, one of the club members mentioned a call from a CB operator for help in Cusseta, who reported that the town had been without power and water all night. In addition, the roads were impassable and the phones were not operating. A message was relayed to Fort Benning's Emergency Operations Center and help was dispatched to Cusseta.

The radio operator in Cusseta also relayed a call for help. A motorist with a CB radio was stranded with seven other cars on Route 280, fifteen miles south of Cusseta. Several members of the CB club set out for Cusseta and helped divert traffic and dig out snowbound vehicles until they were finally relieved by the Sheriff's Department that afternoon.

SpS Bob Fletcher, Avionics Specialist with the 121st Aviation Company and president of the CB club reports that the various police departments were very enthusiastic about the help the CB's rendered. In addition to the Fort Benning Club several civilian CB clubs and many independent enthusiasts worked throughout the weekend in many capacities.

Big incentive for that six year burst

$10,000 can be a big incentive towards reenlistment for anyone, yet it is by no means the main reason for most reenlistments. For many men, it is not something that they would refuse but is simply icing on the cake. Factors like security, education and a sense of accomplishment are the things that the soldier considering reenlistment really takes into account.

If was these very reasons that Sp4 David Skinner gave in explanation of his decision to reenlist; "I'm after an education and the chance to do something that I really like." Married, security rates high on his list of reasons. He readily admits that he could use the GI Bill to go to school in civilian life "but," he adds, "in the Army I have a guaranteed job and that's very important to me with a wife to take care of."

Yet Sp4 Skinner has not lost sight of his main objectives; an education that will enable him to "get into" something that he really likes. Thists an aim that he shares with many first term enlistees. To today's soldier, doing something that he really likes is very important.

So important is this item of job satisfaction, that SFC John R. Boeck, 93ist Engineer Group Reenlistment NCO noted that it seems to be the number one factor in reenlistments. "In fact," he stated, "the units that work the hardest, in MOS related duties that is, are the ones with the highest reenlistment rates. The MP's work twelve-hour shifts in some cases and they complain about it till the time. Yet, they are the ones with the highest rate in the Group."

This relationship between job satisfaction and a high reenlistment rate is one that bears up under investigation. The 524th Pers Svc Co., next on the list with MOS related duty is also next as far as the reenlistment rate goes. The importance of job satisfaction becomes very clear when individual jobs are compared. Men who hold MOS's in which they are active have higher reenlistment rate than those who hold MOS's that are not 'mission essential' on a daily basis.

Conversely, lack of job satisfaction is one of the biggest reasons advanced for not re-enlisting. One soldier explained his stand by pointing out that he was a volunteer, "I came in expecting to learn something and to put into practice what I learned. I want to work. I mean, I don't mind doing nothing but it's not going to pay off for me. All I do can be done by anyone; I'll be a good janitor by the time I get out but I don't think that it's what I want to do for the rest of my life."

It seems that what is needed is, in the words of SFC Boeck, "the establishment of realistic training programs for the men who find themselves in this unfortunate and deplorable situation." It will not raise the re-enlistment rate to 100 per cent but it will eliminate one of the worst aspects of Army life and will give to the sincere and intelligent young soldier one more reason to re-enlist.

Reenlistment Yes or No

Why is it, some soldiers will reenlist, while others completely refuse to consider it? What are the reasons for a man deciding to sign up for three or six years? Why won't some think about any additional time? A random sampling of several TSB soldiers was taken to find out their reasons, pro and con on reenlistment.

Sp4 Carl Crittenden TSB S-1 sectinn re-upped he says, "to go back to school. I'd like to eventually go to law school, and my reenlistment bonus will help pay for it."

PFC Mark A. Sohlgren assigned to the TSB Message Center was very straight-forward. "I needed the money. There's no other reason. I just needed the money."

Sp4 Gary Perry, driver for TSB Commander Col. A. G. Norris, re-upped so his wife could be with him. "I signed up for the year stabilized tour here so I could bring my wife out here with me when she finished school on the west coast."

Sp4 George Korda, TSB information specialist liked the Army benefits. "I'm getting married soon and when I examined the free medical and dental care, the commissary, the PX, the reenlistment bonus, and all the other benefits, I decided it would be the easiest way to start out a marriage. Besides, I like my job."

The main reason given by soldiers who wouldn't enlist seemed to be a desire to start, or to go back to college.

Pvt. Dirk Dallman, who is also an information specialist at TSB, feels that way. "I was drafted during my second year of college, and I want to go back. I don't mind putting 2 years into the Army. It is giving me a chance to live away from home, plus I am doing a job here similar to what I want to do as a civilian, and majoring in at college."

Sgt. Jeff Eggers, 45th Co., 4th Stu. Bn., TSB, feels his time is wasted. "I know I could be using my time much more usefully outside the Army. I wanted to go to school and major in history, or maybe law school. I'm not really doing anything here. There's no way I'd sign up again."

Sp4 Phillip Waldrup of the TSB personnel center wants to be a veterinarian. "I hope I can get accepted into the school, but even if I can't I won't reenlist."

Avn. Cmd. E-5's give their views

Sp5 Bobby C. Byrd, Avionics Technician with the 609th Trans. Co. Avn. Cmd, recently took a burst of five for his second tour with the Army. We asked him, why?

"The technical experience I'm gaining in my job places me in a good position. If I decide to stay with the Army for 20 years, I have a good job. If I get out after this hitch, the experience I'll have should set me up for a good civilian job."

"I like electronics. It's interesting, challenging, and you learn something new every day."

"I have financial security, normally, when Finance doesn't mess up. I make a decent living. The re-up bonus helped a great deal in this area."

"The free medical care is good and the educational program offers a lot as far as I am concerned. You can get just about anything you want in education. Also, I like the job security.

"About the only thing I dislike about the Army is always moving around from one place to another. Other than that, I like my job and the people I work with."

Sgt. Thomas Lilley, 187th Pathfinders, volunteered for three years and is now on his last six months of that enlistment. Sgt. Lilley has decided not to reenlist.

"There is no discipline in the Army now and there is no respect for NCO's. After training to be a pathfinder, I went to Vietnam and was told there were no slots for pathfinders. I later found this wasn't true. They put me on OJT as an MP. Four months later after going to the I.G., I finally got into a pathfinder unit."

"The Army has rules and regulations, but they are not applied equally to everyone. If you're a yes man or if you know your AR's well enough to protect yourself, you can make it in the Army."

"I'm not bucking the system. You've got to look at it from both sides. If you don't have any skill, it might be hard on the outside. But if you have drive and ambitions you can make it. The Army offers a good secure future and has a variety of jobs, but trying to get them is really difficult, unless you're a dud. If you're a good man, they don't let you go. You're stuck where you are."

IOAC Students

A recent change in academic policy for students in IOAC requires that all academically marginal IOAC students, as well as those who are academically deficient will mandatorily appear before a Faculty Board during the 18th week. The prerequisite for an IOAC student to appear before the end of course Faculty Board will remain unchanged.

Traffic Accidents

Traffic accidents can affect a soldier's military service and personal life. If a soldier is found to be at fault for a POV accident, he could be:

Subject to suspension or revocation of his state driver's license.

Barred from reenlisting in the Army (AR 601-280).

Passed over for promotion.

Reduced in grade for civil court convictions (para. 7-30, AR 600-200).

Eliminated from the service (AR 635-105; 635-200; 635-212).

Subject to punishment imposed pursuant to Article 15, UCMJ, or to trial by courts martial.

Germany Bound

Germany Bound. Soldiers taking their car to Germany must be prepared to meet expensive insurance premiums, according to a just-released Army circular.

Drivers in Germany must have enough insurance to pay 750,000 Deutschmarks (about $240,000) in damages for an accident which causes at least two injuries. In addition, drivers must carry a heavy load of property damage and other types of damage insurance. For E-8s, E-9s and officers the premiums are fairly reasonable, but for a $3200 car, E-7s and below would pay according to the following schedule:

Married, under age 25, $260, with comprehensive and collision insurance added, $740.

Married, over age 25, $230, with comprehensive and collision added, $620.

Single or not accompanied by wife, $360, with comprehensive and collision added. $975.

In addition, the Germans put each imported car through a strict inspection before allowing it to be registered. To pass this inspection cars must have both inside and outside rear view mirrors and seatbelts for the driver and every front seat passenger.

Piano And Accordian Lessons

The Special Services Music Center is now enrolling military personnel, employes and dependents in new piano and accordian classes beginning in mid-February. Several levels of skill on piano will be meeting for one hour two evenings a week, for a total of twelve one-hour lessons. A fee of $8.50 is charged per student to cover the instructor's fee and music center materials that are needed. For additional information and enrollment, call LT Taylor, 545-1870, Bldg. No. 1684.

TEACHER NEEDED

The Fort Benning PRE-KINDERGARTEN is taking applications for a teaching position for the rest of the present school year. Send a resume, if interested, listing qualifications and experience to P.O. Box 1852, Fort Benning, Georgia, 31905.

NCO WIVES' CLUB ACTIVITIES

The February luncheon will be held on Feb. 21 at "D e n i o ' s Pizza Inn", Cross Country Plaza, time is 1 p.m. The guest speaker will be Chaplain Richard Nybro.

A Hail and Farewell is Feb. 22 at 9:30 a.m. at the Wives Clubhouse.

The "Little Miss NCO P a g e a n t" will be held Feb. 23 at the Main Post Service Club at 6 p.m. This is a "covered-dish supper", but meat and beverage will be provided by the Wives' Club.

Feb. 28 at 9:30 a.m. brings the "Breakfast Bingo" again at Crain Hall. You might be the lucky winner.

OWC ACTIVITIES

The OWC is offering several classes for children now. Two new ones will begin in February. They are:

CERAMICS FOR CHILDREN — for children 10 to 12 years, this class will teach how to clean and glaze greenware, etc. The children will have three finished pieces upon completion of the four-week course. To be held Saturday mornings at 10:45 beginning Feb. 24. Four lessons for $12, supplies included. To sign up your child, call Mrs. Randolph O'Connor at 545-2105.

B A T O N TWIRLING — for children 7 years and up, they will learn to twirl 1 baton, 2 batons, and fire b a t o n. Several, different types of routines will also be taught such as Majorette, solo, strutting and dance-twirl. Classes will be h e l d each week on Thursday at 7 p.m. or Saturday at 9:30 a.m. or 1 p.m. $7 a month. Call Mrs. Jerry Hines at 687-1603 for further information or to enroll your child.

* * *

BABY - S I T T I N G COURSE—for t e e n s 12 years and up to teach baby-sitting techniques. Subjects to be covered are infant care and feeding, toddler care and discipline, and first aid. Certification follows successful completion of the course and the instructor will keep a list of "graduates" f o r recommendation to parents. To be held Tuesdays at 7 p.m. beginning Feb. 20. Four weeks for $5. Call Mrs. Wm. Higgins at 545-2925.

CHILDREN'S ART CLASSES—for children 4 to 14 years. To be held each Saturday from 10 till 11 a.m. for ages 4 to 8 years. They will explore lines, shapes, and colors. Clay and other mediums will be used. Six lessons for $15, supplies included. New session will begin March 10.

The older group (ages 8 to 14) to meet from 11 til 12 on Saturdays. They will learn perspective, colors, and other basics of art. They will also work in several mediums. Six lessons for $12. New session to begin March 3. Call Mrs. Jon Stillman at 544-1196 to enroll in either of the Children's Art Classes.

The OWC also has interesting classes beginning for adults. Among them are:

CANDLEMAKING—learn to make spectacular color co-ordinated candles. Create personalized gifts for friends, or add color and warmth to your home. Four lessons for $10. To be held Thursday mornings from 9:30 till 11:30 beginning Feb. 22. Call Mrs. James Miller at 323-2508 for further information.

MACRAME' — The ancient art of knotting is a creative art that will inspire anyone who enjoys working with their hands. The variety of items to be created with Macrame' is limitless — jewelry, belts, wall hangings, room dividers, purses, plus many more. Four lessons for $10, supplies included. To be held on Thursdays from 1 til 3 p.m. beginning Feb. 22. Call Mrs. James Miller at 323-2508 for information.

There are openings in the Monday evening classes of DECOUPAGE and TOLE PAINTING. The new classes will begin at 7:30 p.m. on Feb. 26. The cost is 5 lessons for $7.50 plus supplies. If interested in j o i n i n g either of these classes, call Mrs. Edward Maceyka at 545-3502.

Learn to SEW JEANS AND PANTS for men and boys. Special instructions given on sewing pockets, flys, and waistbands. New class to begin on Tues., Feb. 27 at 9 a.m. Four lessons for $8. Call Mrs. Norbert Otto at 545-1307.

Interested in learning to sew lingerie and body suits? Join the OWCs "CINCH TO S T I T C H" class beginning at 9 a.m., Fri., March 2. Three lessons for $6. Call Mrs. Norbert Otto at 545-1307.

H a v e you ever been stranded on the expressway with a flat tire? Or heard a s t r a n g e noise coming f r o m your car when your husband was out of town? Don't be in the dark about your car. The OWC-sponsored AUTO MECHANICS c o u r s e is starting again in March. It is a four-week course for $8. For more information call Mrs. Richard Runke at 545-4140.

The ENVIRONMENTAL WORKSHOP will view a movie entitled "The Environment", a portrait of the current ecological dilemma posed by benefits and hazards of technological expansion, on Feb. 21. Everyone, military and civilian, is invited to "See With Us" at 10 a.m. at the OWC lounge.

Joe Wise to perform at two post chapels

Joe Wise will be featured at the Main Post Catholic Chapel and the TIC Chapel Annex at Fort Benning for the two days of February 18th and 19th, 1973.

Mr. Wise's work deals with the explanation and demonstration of the use of Contemporary Liturgical Music in today's worship services. His melodies and lyrics sing out his conviction that Jesus Christ is still very much enfleshed in this twentieth century world. Mr. Wise has travelled throughout the U. S. and Canada giving concepts, workshops, lectures, and retreats to all ages, groupings, and all faiths. His music is widely known and used.

The following is a schedule of events which Mr. Wise will be conducting at Fort Benning:

SUNDAY, February 18th:
9:45 A.M., Mass, Sightseeing Road Chapel.
11:00 A.M., Mass, Main Post Catholic Chapel.
3:30-4:30 P.M., Folk Group Seminar, Main Post Catholic Chapel.
5:00 P.M., Mass, Main Post Catholic Chapel.
7:30 P.M. FREE CONCERT, TIC Chapel Annex (Public Invited).

MONDAY, February 19th:

ing by thanking the ladies for their generous contribution of food to be presented to the ACS food locker.

Plans were then discussed for the OWC Tasting Bee which BBOD hosted Feb. 14. A warm welcome was extended to Mrs. Allen M. Buckner.

TSB

The ladies of HEADQUARTERS, TSB, began the new year with their monthly coffee Jan. 17, at the home of Mrs. Wilson Ray, Sargent Court, Fort Benning. Mrs. A. G. Norris conducted a brief business s e s s i o n. Several members of the group volunteered to work at the Thrift Shop. The hostess, assisted by Mrs. Harvey Foster, served s a u s a g e and cheese biscuits, cake, doughnuts, and coffee.

Mrs. William Miller of Arrowhead D r i v e, Fort Benning, gave the coffee for the 4TH STUDENT BATTALION on Jan. 25. Mrs. Miller served cream puffs, a Golden Bubble ring, chocolate chip cookies, peanut butter cookies, Brown - eyed Susans, and Cobblestones with the coffee and tea.

The ladies of the battalion welcomed Mrs. Marc A. White and Mrs. Alphonso Hromalik. During the discussion of business, a reminder was given of the following dates: Feb. 17, farewell for Col. and Mrs. Anderson at the Sandhill NCO Club; March 1, a pot-luck function at the home of Mrs. Roland Parr; March 2, luncheon for 4th Student Battalion Officers and wives; March 16, Change of Command ceremony for the 4th Stu. Bn.; March 20, Champagne Brunch for Mrs. A. G. Norris; and March 24, TSB Format.

SAC

The ladies of the SMALL ARMS COMMITTEE held their monthly coffee Feb. 1 at the home of Mrs. David Lambert, O a k l e y Dr., Columbus. Co-hostess was Mrs. George Axtell.

Mrs. Jules Trepagnier announced to the ladies that SAC will be responsible for planning the Weapons Department function coming up in April. A definite agreement was made among the ladies to have a Spring Fashion Show Luncheon at Kirvens. Other activities that were suggested and discussed, were group trips to Destin and the upcoming Department Formal which will be in March.

Afterwards, home-made apple b r e a d s, brownies, bite-size blueberry muffins and "Whoopie pies" were served with coffee and cherry punch.

A special welcome was made to Mrs. Norman Larkee, a newcomer to the committee. Next month's coffee will be held at the home of Mrs. R o n a l d Grace.

Bonnie Hall, daughter of CW2 and Mrs. Terry Hall, will be one of the Fort Benning Cadet Girl Scouts participating in the annual Girl Scout Cookie Sale starting today on post. Proceeds from the sale will be used for a variety of activities throughout the year. Also participating will be Brownie and Girl Scouts. The sale ends Mar. 3.

Girl Scout cookie sale to begin Feb. 16

"Take a Girl Scout cookie to Munch" is the slogan for this year's Girl Scout Cookie sale. The 1973 sale will begin at Ft. Benning February 16th and end on March 3rd.

Proceeds from the sale will be used for a variety of activities throughout the year.

In the past, cookie sales have provided funds to build Camp Concharty which is used by all our area troops, and also for Day Camps, flags, floored tents, lodges and the Opportunity Fund. Two of our Ft. Benning Senior Scouts have just been named to receive a national opportunity, and a scout from Columbus has been chosen to attend an International opportunity in Jamaica.

Troops and individual girls can qualify for prizes by selling boxes of cookies. A scout selling fifty or more boxes will have her name placed in a drawing for three ten-speed bicycles. The drawing will take place on the Rozelle Show on April 2nd at 8 a.m. Three lucky scouts will be the Cookie Wheels in their troops.

When a troop averages 26 or more boxes per girl they will be awarded a ten dollar bonus.

Cookies will be available at the Main Post Commissary and PX, Custer Terrace Commissary and PX, Sandhill, and the Book store on Main Post. This year there are assorted sandwich cookies, peanut butter cookies, mint cookies, butter cookies and Chip 'n Nut cookies.

Retired Officers meet

The Fort Benning Retired Officers Council hosted Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott at a farewell luncheon in his honor at the Fort Benning Officers Club, Wednesday, Feb. 7.

The Council Chairman, Col. (ret.) James G. McConaughy expressed the council's appreciation for Gen. Talbott's leadership in establishing the first retired council at installation level.

The purpose of the Fort Benning council is to provide the commanding general an insight into the problems and needs of the Fort Benning retired Army communities; provide the Army retirees and their dependents a means of participating and communicating with the active Army of Fort Benning; and to establish a closer affinity between the retired and active Army personnel.

Mr. Maynard Ashworth of the Columbus Ledger-Enquirer and Major (ret.) John Nugent, a member of the Department of the Army Retired Officers Council, from Atlanta, were also honored guests.

Maj. Nugent spoke to the council on the importance of installation councils and their purpose as a sounding board and means of official communication between the retired and active Army personnel.

Other members of the Fort Benning retirees and their dependents a means of Retired Officers Council are: Col. (ret.) Talton W. Long, Military Order of World Wars (MOWW); Col. (ret.) Thomas B. Ross Jr., Retired Officers Association (ROA); LTC (ret.) Edgar S. Burroughs Jr., Ri A; LTC (ret.) Jack H. Johnson, ROA; LTC (ret.) Donald R. Mortenson, MOWW; Chief Warrant Officer (ret.) Philip W. Local Orchestra to be conducted by Paul Lavalle

The Columbus Symphony Orchestra is presenting a special concert for Benning personnel at Marshall Auditorium at 8 p.m. on Feb. 20.

The Orchestra will be directed by the guest conductor, Mr. Paul Lavalle, director of music at Radio City Music Hall, New York.

Besides being the director of music at Radio City, Mr. Lavalle has, for six years, been the head of the McDonald's All-American High School Band and the NBC radio programs, "Chamber Music Society of Low Basin Street," and "Highways of Melody."

Mr. Lavalle has spent considerable time and effort encouraging the youth of the country in music. For his work with young people, Lavalle has received the "Christopher Award" and the "Man and Boy Award," the only other recipients have been Bing Crosby and Joe DiMaggio. The trophies were presented to him by the Christophers and the Boys' Clubs of America.

Just recently, the national boad of Boys' Clubs elected Lavalle as one of their directors and also as their national musical consultant.

Admission to the concert is free, and tickets are available at the Special Services facilities or at the Fort Benning Playhouse.

No fantasy

'The Poseidon Adventure' now playing

The central event in Irwin Allen's production of "The Poseidon Adventure" at 20th Century-Fox is the capsizing of the Poseidon, a superannuated liner of the Queen Mary class, by a monstrous wave formed by a submarine earthquake. Without this there would be no story.

To some, this might seem to put the film into the area of fantasy: that nothing like this could happen to a ship of 81,000 tons. Let us consider the history of the Queen Mary, herself.

Her first few voyages in the Summer of 1936 were tranquil enough, but in October she was struck by a 55-knot gale on a voyage from New York to Southampton. According to Foster and Frost's authorized history of the ship, "She began to roll—suddenly and unexpectedly. One of the stewardesses described it: 'it was in the middle of the night and she suddenly started to go and she went, so simply, down and down and down. I was thrown out of my bunk and thought she was never coming back. I remember thinking to myself, even as she went down, this is the end. She can never come back from this angle.'

" 'Slowly she righted herself and then began a horrible corkscrew motion that went on and on, even after the sea had become calm. She just didn't seem to be able to stop it.'

"Kay Stammers, the tennis star, was among the passengers and she reported the liner rolled so much that some passengers became hysterical and many were injured."

It was after this that chairs in the dining saloons and elsewhere were rigged so they could be anchored and which is why the chairs remained fixed to the ceiling in the invested saloon set for "The Poseidon Adventure." This feature was the source of more questions than any other in a thoroughly unusual series of settings.

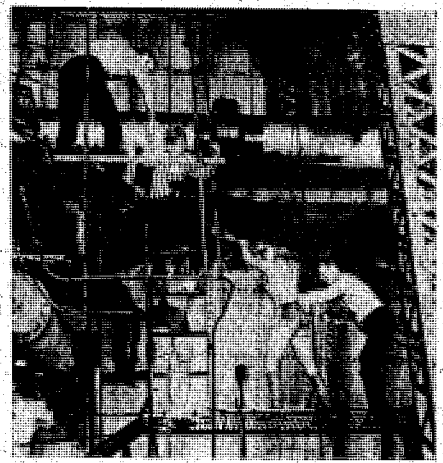
This wasn't the only time the Queen Mary rolled. In fact, it was a similar experience aboard her that inspired Paul Gallico, author of the novel on which the film is based, to write his sea adventure.

In further support of this possibility is the fact that during World War II, the Queen Mary carried 10,000 troops in winter as against 15,000 in summer because of the possibility of a roll-over as she zigzagged across the stormy Atlantic.

It was not until 1957 that stabilizers were added and pretty well eliminated her rolling propensity. Her designers had thought she was too large to have any such problem.

It is certainly no parallel, but an interesting coincidence, that Queen Mary's sister-ship, the Queen Elizabeth, lies capsized today in Hong Kong harbor, as the result of a fire which destroyed her.

Another interesting coincidence is that many sequences of "The Poseidon Adventure" were shot aboard the Queen Mary, now safely moored and roll-proof in the harbor at Long Beach, California.



The giant wave created by a submarine seismic disturbance is not the creation of science-fiction writer either. These are called tsunami (Japanese: port wave) and the first report of this phenomenon was reported in 356 A.D. in the Mediterranean — by still another coincidence the site of the Poseidon disaster some 1600 years later.

Such a disturbance off Sanriku, Japan, created a wave 93 feet high and the Queen Mary is only 85 feet from her waterline to the top of her superstructure. Thus, improperly ballasted as Poseidon is in the story, a complete roll-over is not an impossibility. And the story point in which the owner's representative threat to relieve the captain of his command in mid-ocean if he reduces speed is also within the realm of possibility. The Queen Mary carried three other officers with master papers in case of disability of the captain. This foresight was to be validated when her first master was fatally stricken in his cabin aboard her.

In 1946, a tsunami hit the Hawaiian Island, leaving 173 persons dead and destroying $25,000,000 in property. These waves are said to reach a speed of 400 miles an hour.

"The Poseidon Adventure," a Ronald Neame film, stars Gene Hackman, Ernest Borgnine, Red Buttons, Carol Lynley, Roddy McDowall, Stella Stevens, Shelley Winters, Jack Albertson, Arthur O'Connell, Pamela Sue Martin, Eric Shea and Leslie Nielsen.

Springer Theatre holds auditions

Ye who have fits, prepare to throw them now.

The Springer Theatre Company announces auditions for that pageant of alluring horrors, DRACULA. The bloodthirsty Count will stalk his victims on the Opera House stage April 5 through April 14 with two performances on Friday, the 13th.

Auditions will begin Monday evening, February 19, at the Opera House at 7:30 P.M. All those interested in trying out may read the play at the reference desk of the Bradley Library.

The roles are Dr. Seward, an English psychiatrist who runs an asylum; Dr. Abraham Ivan Helsing, a Dutch scientist who specializes in weird diseases; Lucy Seward, who suffers from a strange anemia; Johnathon Harker, her fiancee, who gives her his own blood to save her; mad Renfield, who tries to prolong his life by eating flies, spiders and mice, alive; Butterworth, the hapless asylum attendant who can't keep Renfield under control; the Maid, who fails to protect Lucy from horrible dreams; and Count Dracula, the King of Vampires.

Directing this production is David Dannenbaum, Managing Director of the Springer Theatre Company. Dannenbaum majored in directing at the University of Texas, where he studied with B. Iden Payne and Francis Hodge. He has directed high school, college, community theatre and professional theatre groups. Among his directorial credits are GUYS AND DOLLS, ANTIGONE, BALLAD OF THE SAD CAFE, DEATHWATCH, THE BALD SOPRANO, JB, TAMING OF THE SHREW, and CITY SCENE, for which he received the "Best Director" award from the National Collegiate Players at Florida State University. He received his Master's Degree from FSU last June.

During the auditions, production staff and committee assignments will be made. This technically complex production promises excitement for all who are connected. The Springer Theatre invites everyone to try out for a role and volunteer for a position in one of the many production crews.

Rehearsals begin March 6.

Parts hard for chorus girls in play

The life of chorus girls gets harder and harder. Once they merely had to look pretty and know a few simple tap-dance steps. But musical comedies have been revolutionized. In recent years chorus girls have also had to be expert ballet-dancers as well as singers of such various styles of music as calypso, hill-billy, romantic-ballad, operatic and jazz—all in the course of one evening. In "Wish You Were Here" and various Aquacades they've also had to know how to swim.

The chorus-girls in the Springer Theatre's next attraction, "The Pajama Game" have to be expert seamstresses. Because the action of this big New York musical comedy hit takes place in a pajama factory (and at an employees' picnic and at the locale made famous by one of the show's big song-hits "Hermando's Hideaway"), the chorus pretties are required in several scenes to run sewing machines briefly.

Robert Redford stars in the title role of Warner Bros.' "Jeremiah Johnson," as a man who decides on the lonely life of a mountaineer in the 1800's. Redford is pictured as he braces himself in a fight with an Indian. "Jeremiah Johnson" is now playing at a theatre in the Columbus area.

Coming to the screen

DOCTOR ZHIVAGO . . . To play the characters in the world-famed novel, which won the Nobel Prize for its author, the filmmakers secured an impressive cast. Omar Sharif is the doctor-poet Zhivago, the sensitive man who can see qualities of right in both sides of the Russian Revolution and consequently never takes a firm stand himself. Geraldine Chaplin is Tonya, the hero's selfless wife, while Julie Christie is Lara, the married woman who becomes the mistress of Zhivago and the great love of his life. Tom Courtenay is Pasha, husband of Lara and ardent revolutionist who turns his back on his family to become a Red general. Produced on a magnificent scale, Doctor Zhivago recalls the glories of film-making in its epic greatness and grandeur.

THE HERO . . . An essentially delicate human relationship story about an over-the-hill soccer player (Harris) and his friendship for a hero-worshipping 10-year old Israeli youth (Kim Burfield), is an engrossing study in human anguish. Kim, disregarding his father's pleas and punishments, makes up his mind to see his hero play his advertised last match and runs away from home. Harris, a likeable but unstable child-man with a quick unthinking temper, finds himself suddenly caught in the trap of age. At 40 he is getting too old for soccer, but he has never faced that reality.

THE STRANGE VENGEANCE OF ROSALIE . . . Indian girl, Bonnie Bedelia, buries her aged grandfather and his gold on the grounds of the family farm. She is given a lift by traveling salesman Ken Howard. Immediately attracted, she asks him to stay and slashes his tires to insure that he does. When Howard attempts to leave, she breaks his leg with the dull side of an axe. Bedelia, a backward teenager, doesn't understand why Howard won't return her affection. Bedelia decides to go off with motorcycle hood Anthony Zerbe, another Indian. Howard manages to fix the flats and drives off.

TRICK BABY . . . Two black con artists, Kiel Martin and Mel Stewart, con a shady Italian buyer into parting with $10,000 for a cache of fake diamonds. When the elderly Italian discovers the fake diamonds and dies of a heart attack, the man's revengeful relatives employ killers to dispose of Martin and Stewart.

TORA TORA TORA . . . Tora, Tora, Tora in Japanese means "Tiger, Tiger, Tiger". This was the code signal flashed by Lt. Cmdr. Mitsuo Fuchida back to the Japanese carrier Akagi to signify his attack squadron had achieved complete surprise in the strike as it occurred, TORA TORA TORA traces the events culminating in the attack of December 7, 1941 — "the date of infamy" — that catapulted America into World War II.

AN ARMY CAREER IS..

A CAREER OF MANY CHOICES

Take a burst...

BY PETE FOREMAN

The end of the draft has brought an end to the automatic filling of the Army's ranks. Today the Army must depend much more on reenlistment to keep its units filled with men.

Commanders must work harder than ever before to give their men desire to stay in the Army.

Of primary concern is the first term soldier. He is young and able to start a civilian career as well as reenlist. If he gets out, the Army loses him and its investment in him.

The first term soldier will probably not reenlist unless he thinks his commander and his first line supervisor really want him and need him.

"First term soldiers are those who at ETS (discharge date) will have completed 3 or less years of service," explained MSgt Joseph A. Dailey, Fort Benning's chief career counselor.

"The officers and NCOs of a soldier's unit are the chief influences that make him decide whether to stay in or not," said Dailey. "They must let him know that he is doing a good job and make him feel wanted and needed.

"All a career counselor can do is show a soldier the benefits of Army life and his options for reenlisting. But a soldier must be identified as a person with needs, wants, desires, and goals. And he must be treated as such by his platoon leader, platoon sergeant, and section chief or he will get out."

Capt. L. J. Hendly III, commander of Headquarters Command's 16th Company (Project Transition) has proven this over and over again. By taking a personal interest in the good soldiers of his company, he has had a great amount of success in reenlisting.

The 16th Company is made up of soldiers who are within six months of their discharge date. Each one has decided to get out. He has volunteered to attend project transition to learn a skill and get a job on the civilian market.

Although each of the soldiers of the 16th Company has already decided to get out of the Army, the unit has won Headquarters Command's first place reenlistment plaque for August, September, October, and December.

Why do more first term soldiers in the 16th Company reenlist than in other units?

"We stress reenlistment in our orientation," said Hendly. "The soldiers see new buildings being built, increase in pay, and compensation time. They know the Army is changing. The Army is now competitive with the civilian market.

"The credit for our reenlistment success goes to all the platoon sergeants in the company though. They take interest in the men and talk to them about reenlisting."

Sgt. McLamb was one of the many men of the 16th Company who changed his mind and stayed in the Army.

McLamb had returned from Europe and was preparing to get out. He was 21, single, and had 13½ years of education. Nevertheless, no one in his European unit had taken the time or interest to make sure that he understood all the benefits the Army has to offer.

In his billets one day, his platoon sergeant, SSgt Delbert Harrison, asked him, "Have you ever considered reenlisting?"

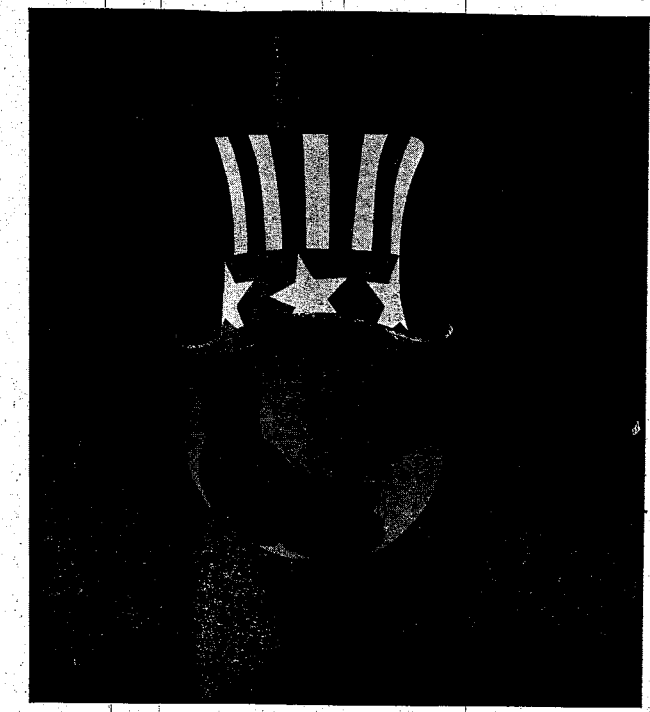
Harrison had already impressed McLamb with his leadership. He had made McLamb feel wanted. When Harrison made clear some of the Army benefits, McLamb decided to see the unit's career counselor.

Suddenly the military made sense to McLamb. He reenlisted for six years for $10,000 variable reenlistment bonus, for more education, and for Fort Sill to be close to his home.

Sp4 Steward was a top quality soldier in project transition. He was ready to separate from the Army, although he had liked his unit in Europe. He was 23 and had twelve years of education.

"I got to talking to him in the billets," said Harrison, "and he decided to reenlist. When I asked him later why he reenlisted he said it was because of me. He watched how I ran the platoon and he wanted to run a platoon of his own someday just like I ran mine."

Stewart reenlisted for six years and got a $10,000 variable reenlistment bonus. He is now a platoon sergeant himself at Fort Benning.



Sp5 Winn was another project transition soldier who decided to reenlist because of the influence of his first line supervisor. He had returned from Vietnam, was 20, and has 12 years of education.

His platoon sergeant asked him one day if he would be eligible for a variable reenlistment bonus.

Winn found out that he was. When he also found out that he could go to drill sergeant school and get stationed at Fort Ord, California, in addition to getting a $10,000 bonus, he stayed in.

It all worked out perfectly for him because he got married at that time. His wife was from California and the bonus helped pay for a new house.

The 16th Company has many more examples of soldiers who changed their minds about getting out because their first line supervisors took personal interest in them.

"A few men had it set in their minds that they wanted to get out," admitted Capt. Hendly, "and they got out. But most of them were highly educated and had special professions they wanted to work in, such as school teaching."

Soldiers who do decide to reenlist must first see their unit reenlistment NCO. He sends them to the brigade career counselor who finds out what options the soldier wants and what options he is eligible for.

From the brigade career counselor the soldiers are taken by VIP sedan to the post finance office and to the reenlistment control processing office. They have their paperwork completed and then return to their units.

On the day for reenlistment, the soldiers are again picked up by VIP sedan. They are taken to the offices they need to go to, such as the finance office to collect bonus money.

Soldiers may be eligible for the variable reenlistment bonus (VRB) if they are on their first or second reenlistment, if they have never received a bonus of any type, if they have completed 21 months in their current enlistments, and if they will be committed for 69 months after reenlistment.

A variable reenlistment bonus multiplies the regular reenlistment bonus from two to four times. Different MOS have different multipliers.

If a regular bonus would be $2,000, a VRB designator of 4 would add $8,000 giving the soldier a $10,000 bonus all together. Not all MOS have a VRB designator. A soldier should see his career counselor.

The 197th Infantry Brigade has seven career counselors; the 931st Engineer Group has eight; the School Brigade has six; MEDDAC has three; the Aviation Command has two; and the main post reenlistment section has six in the Reup trailer in the commissary parking lot.

Fort Benning's reenlistment posture has been standing tall recently. Department of the Army gives a reenlistment objective to meet each month. Benning has not only met this figure, but has reenlisted three to four times that figure every month from July to January.

72.4 percent of Benning reenlistments have decided to stay in their present duty assignment. This indicates that morale and leadership are good.

Starting February 1, however, the reenlistment picture changed. Before, a soldier could reenlist after he had completed eight months of service. Now he can reenlist only after he has completed 21 months of service.

"This makes a whole new ball game," said Daily. "It's a proven fact that the closer a soldier gets to his ETS (discharge date), the more he tends to want to get out."

The reduced time to talk to a soldier about reenlisting plus the fact that Fort Benning has very few soldiers who have completed 21 months of service (only 1,167) will probably make the reenlistment rate drop.

So far only 4.3 percent of February's reenlistment objective has been reached so far and the month is half over.

The solution to keeping Fort Benning units filled, though, is reenlistment.

"If the soldier's good work is never recognized," says Dailey, "if he goes home every night and complains about his work to his wife, if he is off on extra duty most of the time, then he won't want to reenlist. If he ever thinks about reenlisting, his wife will say no, no, no.

"The retention program has become a commander's responsibility unlike before. Before there was a draft that a commander knew would fill his ranks. But now there is no draft. He must make the soldier's environment conducive to reenlist."

Why some can't take that burst

Every day three or four career soldiers walk into SFC Marvin Lewis' office to reenlist and find out they cannot.

Lewis is the career counselor supervisor for Headquarters Command.

A career soldier is one who will have been in the service for more than three years at his ETS (date of discharge).

"Most of the career soldiers who find out they can't reenlist," said Lewis, "have not taken an MOS test in the last year.

"They usually come in late, just a few weeks before their ETS. And they seem shocked that they can't reenlist because they don't have an MOS test score."

When this happens, Lewis arranges for a special make-up MOS test.

However, if the soldier's ETS arrives before his test score gets back, then he must be extended on active duty without being reenlisted. This causes extra hardship for the soldier and for his family.

He can no longer be paid by JUMPS. Every pay day he must stand in line at the finance office to get his pay check.

His family ID cards expire, although his own ID card remains valid. Until he is reenlisted, his dependents' ID cards must be renewed every 30 days.

There seems to be little excuse for a career soldier not having a current MOS test score. All career soldiers know that they must take an MOS test every year.

"If his name doesn't come up on a test roster," says Lewis, "then he should high tail it to his personnel section to get scheduled for testing."

Another reason career soldiers find themselves ineligible for reenlistment is lack of education. An E-5 must have the equivalent of a high school education.

"When their ETS comes before their GED test score come back, they must be extended. They then run into the same problems as those who can't reenlist because of not having an MOS test score."

A soldier should see his career counselor about his reenlistment 100 to 90 days before his ETS.

"This gives us about enough time to get done whatever needs to be done and to get him qualified for reenlistment," explained Lewis.

Still another major reason for a soldier finding himself ineligible for reenlistment is number of years in service.

A soldier cannot reenlist if he is a SP4 with eight years of servive, and E-5 with 12 years, and E-6 with 20, an E-7 with 24, an E-8 with 27, or an E-9 with 30. Soldiers on promotion lists can be excepted.

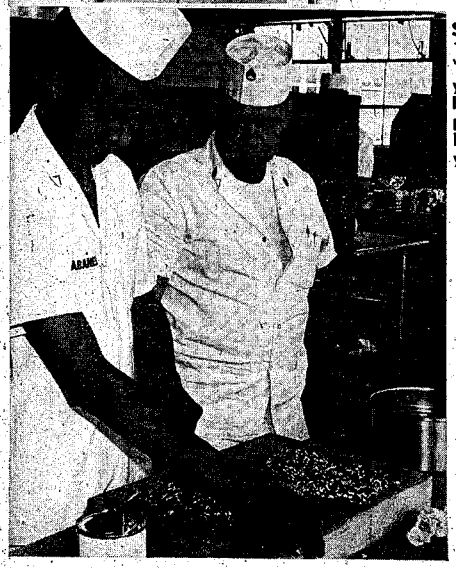
"If a soldier has too many years in service, he must be granted a waiver to reenlist," said Lewis. "We have had roughly one waiver granted out of a couple dozen requests."

Lewis uses an informal checklist to determine whether a man is eligible for reenlistment. His checklist has over a dozen possible reasons for ineligibility.

He believes that much time and grief could be saved if soldiers would keep closer track of their careers.

Whydja Reenlist??

PFC Harold Prince, wheeled vehicle mechanic, HSB, 2-10th Arty., "I re-enlisted because I just like Army life. Being assigned to the 197th keeps me close to home too, so that's convenient."



PFC Ernest Waters, S-4 clerk, 197th Inf. Bde.; ". . . mainly because I felt the civilian community didn't offer me the opportunities that the Army does. I think I've made a wise decision."

". . . I'm close to home, and I knew re-enlisting for my present duty would mean another year's stabilization." Sp/5 Richard Brown, mail clerk, HHC, 197th.

SSgt. Roy Moore, NCOIC 197th Pastry School: ". . . to get my 20 years. The Army has been good to me for the past 17 years, and now I'm on my last three year hitch."

PFC David Garrett of HSB, 2-10th Arty. . . . "I like working with and repairing vehicles. Also, the maney I got for re-upping was a pretty important factor."

Teaming up to clear a tree stump near their barracks are two 1-58th Infantry Patriots, Pvt. Horrace Powers and PFC Howard Alderman, both from the Mortar Platoon of the battalion's Headquarters Company. (Photo by Lester Yanaguchi)

Bayonet wins award

The award-winning BAYONET newspaper has continued its tradition by winning its eighth United States Continental Army Command "Copy Desk Award;" CONARC officials have announced.

The award was "based on quality, originality, editorial and technical professionalism, as well as overall support of the Command Information Program," and for "marked editorial and technical improvements during the period June through December 1972," Col. Gerald C. Burch, CONARC information officer said.

This is the second Copy Desk Award won by the BAYONET during 1972, and the eighth since the awards inception in 1968.

FORT BENNING, GEORGIA 31905
E. G. SPARKS
PRESIDENT

Dear Customer:

If you are a member of the Officer's Club you are probably aware that some time in March you will be issued another club card.

This new card will be strictly for club use and will in no way be connected with a charge card used for normal purchases outside the Officer's Club.

At the National Bank of Fort Benning we would like to take this opportunity to offer you the most versatile and widely accepted card available - the Georgia BankAmericard. Once this card is issued you may take it wherever you go. The Georgia BankAmericard is good for purchases nationwide and in other countries as well.

We at the National Bank of Fort Benning feel that a Georgia BankAmericard would be the perfect mate for your checking account with us. This combination would give you a more consolidated financial picture and would give us the chance to serve you better.

Please contact us concerning any questions you might have in regard to the issuance of your Georgia BankAmericard.

Sincerely yours,
E. G. Sparks
President

Anderson is top cook

Sp5 Paul B. Anderson, 84th Company, 8th Student Battalion, The School Brigade, Fort Benning, has been selected January Cook of the month.

This has been the second time Anderson has been chosen for the cook of the month. The first time was July 1972, the first month of the program.

He and his wife Phyllis reside at 5649 Mill Branch Road, Columbus, Ga.

Col. Henry E. Hutcheson, director of industrial operations, U.S. Army Infantry Center, presented Anderson a $25 savings bond and a letter of commendation.

The cook of the month was chosen from interviews with cooks of each major post command. The winner is selected for personal appearance, professional knowledge and military bearing.

Anderson received a degree from Florida State University in hotel and restaurant management before he came into the Army and after he came in he was an honor graduate from the Food Service School at Fort Lee Virginia and was promoted to his present rank.

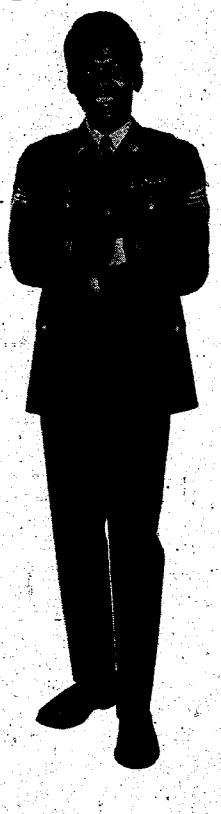
"Meeting people is my thing."



Sergeant Cornell Russell is a drill sergeant. He's a friendly guy. He likes people and they like him.

"I chose this job because I always wanted to work with people. When I came into the Army the drill sergeants who trained me were really enthusiastic and they gave me that same enthusiasm.

"One of the great things about the Army is that you meet a variety of people from all walks of life. Every day you meet somebody new and interesting and you get to know them and like them. To me that's important.

"I've worked hard at my job and I'm proud to say that I have always had 100% graduation in my classes. I feel good about that."

The Army is giving Sergeant Russell plenty of opportunity for job satisfaction.

The Army gives a man a lot of other opportunities, too. Job and educational opportunities. With the hundreds of jobs in the Army, there's bound to be a dozen or so that will give you the kind of challenge you're looking for.

And travel opportunities in Europe, Korea, Hawaii, Alaska, Panama. And the time to get to know a country the way no tourist ever could.

The opportunity to save money on everyday things. Like free housing, dental and medical care. Commissary and post exchange privileges. Low-cost life insurance, to name a few.

Your Army Career Counselor has a whole book of job, duty station and training opportunities just waiting for you.

He'll give you lots of other reasons for staying in.

Why are you staying in?

197th reenlistment programs successful

The reenlistment program in the 197th Infantry Brigade is a saga of success explained in terms of satisfied soldiers and dedicated professionals seeking to enhance their careers in the Army.

Since early in 1972 the Kelley Hill unit has led all commands at Fort Benning in reenlisting eligible soldiers serving their initial tours of duty. This achievement is credited with contributing significantly to the Post's honor of winning the Third Army reenlistment trophy late last year.

In addition, a striking correlation exists between unit-of-choice enlistees and their original units of choice, as evidenced in the 197th Brigade. Statistics dated to Jan. 31 reveal that 305 unit-of-choice enlistees have reenlisted, with 205 of them choosing to remain with the 197th Brigade.

This has been an encouraging sign to observers of the Modern Volunteer Army Program, indicating that the majority of those enlisting at the program's start have liked it enough to stay, and primarily in their original units.

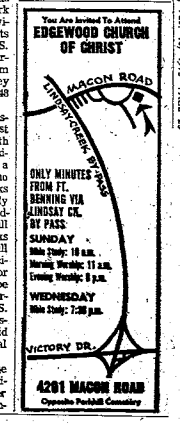
When started out as a lot of fun for soldiers in the [illegible] unit, soon proved to be just another time-



MAH to provide Phase III training

Martin Army Hospital, Fort Benning, Georgia has been selected to provide Phase III training for the Army Physician Assistant's Program. Four students will report here on February 20, for 26 weeks of intensive clinical work under physician supervision. The P.A. students come to us from the U.S. Army Medical Field Service School, Fort Sam Houston, Texas where they have already undergone 48 weeks of formal training.

What is a Physician Assistant? He is the newest member of the health team. He is not a physician or a nurse, but a skilled health worker who can perform certain tasks heretofore undertaken only by physicians. Upon graduation the Army P.A. will have undergone 74 weeks of formal training; will hold an Associate of Science Diploma from Baylor University; and will be commissioned as a warrant officer in the U.S. Army. He will then be assigned to a Battalion Aid Station or troop medical clinic.

The P.A. will expand the capabilities of the physician and will help counter the acute shortage of General Medical Officers. He will work under a physician who will delegate the tasks for him to do and who supervise the work performed by the Physician Assistant.

PFC picks 93Ist as his home

PFC Lorin L. Nessan of Company D, 43rd Engineer Battalion (Const.) is one of the many Unit of Choice personnel that have chosen the 93Ist Engineer Group as their home.

PFC Nessan enlisted under the Unit of Choice program in his hometown of Sioux Falls, South Dakota. Along with choosing the 93Ist, PFC Nessan picked Construction Drafting to be his military occupation specialty. He attended the USAES Construction Drafting Course in Ft. Belvoir, Va., where he finished second in his class.

At the present PFC Nessan is the Construction Draftsman for Company D, 43rd Engr. Bn. During his tour he has drawn the plans for a subterrain drainage system for an athletic field at the University of South Alabama community relations project and a partition design for the orderly room at the 15th Finance Company.

ROD AND GUN CLUB Notes

By BILL KLOEB

The 1972-73 deer hunting season is over for legal hunters but another element of the population which recognizes no open seasons or bag limits is still at work harvesting deer.

Fortunately there are not many of these people because most of them are professionals who are familiar with all the successful methods of taking deer legally or illegally. They usually operate all year long, and they harvest a lot of game.

The wildlife rangers wage a constant battle against these poachers but have a terrific handicap in having to provide surveillance over many square miles of real estate with a limited number of men. The poachers have the additional advantage of being able to pick the time and place for their operations.

Law enforcement personnel alone just can't begin to cover the reservation in an effective manner.

Public recognition and support of the conservation law enforcement program is vitally necessary for the success of any efforts made to improve hunting and fishing. Law enforcement is the heart of any conservation program. Night hunting, illegal use of dogs, nets, dynamite, gigs, shockers and game hogs of many descriptions account for a drastic loss of game, fish and birds causing the reduction or elimination of open seasons for legal hunters.

Most sportsmen who obey the laws have the idea that poaching is conducted only on a limited scale. They don't see the complete picture. A sportsman sees a man with a rifle on post where rifles are forbidden, another sees an area that has been salted to attract deer, another observes men working a net in the Chattahoochee River. Each act in itself doesn't seem to be important but add them together and consider that they probably occur somewhere each and every day and you have a considerable amount of game and fish taken from the legal hunter whose license fees and taxes made it possible in the first place.

The reasons for poaching are varied. The most common reason is for profit. There are quite a few ways a poacher can turn a good profit for a night of hunting. Deer carcasses will bring as much as $25. The poacher has a known market for his catch before he ever goes to the woods. Four deer in one evening is a good nights work under these conditions.

Other poachers carry out their operations simply for the thrill they get from outwitting the law. These men are not too hard to pinpoint because most can't help from bragging about their exploits in public.

Deer are the primary target of poachers. Because of certain characteristics and habits they are also easy prey. Deer are compelled toward a man made salt lick like a fly is to jelly. At night when most poachers operate the deer is especially vulnerable. When a light is flashed on him the deer doesn't react with a great leap toward freedom as he does when he is disturbed during the daytime. Instead he becomes more or less fascinated by the light and in some cases will move toward it. Shooting a deer at night is about as difficult as shooting a quail on the ground with a shotgun.

Law abiding hunters have a tendency to forget hunting and take up another form of recreation as soon as the open season is finished each year. The poacher continues to operate and will continue to deplete the game population as long as he has the idea that people don't care, don't want to get involved or won't take time to do something about his illegal operations.

A population of sportsmen who feel that everyone should obey the laws can add a lot to the surveillance effort of the law enforcement people. It doesn't take any great effort to make a phone call. You can get the information into the proper hands by calling the Provost Marshal Desk Sergeant at 545-5222. The information you have may not seem important to you but it may be just the thing some warden needs to nail down a case against a poacher.

This young lass takes her seat by the Rod and Gun column this week to remind you about poachers in the last paragraph of the column.

Competition for reserves demanding

Virgil Hooe tries a hook shot in some of the basketball action on Post.

If you are a commissioned officer of the U. S. Army Reserve, either on extended, active duty or in the ready reserve you have the opportunity to be selected as a member on one of the six three - men teams to represent the United States at the 26th Annual Congress of Interallied Confederation of Reserve Officers (CIOR) in Rome, Italy during August 1973.

Competition will be in: shooting pistols, rifle and submachine gun; obstacle courses, both running and swimming courses (run a 300 meter horseshoe shaped track with 20 obstacles); military orienteering (land navigation using map, compass and visual orientation over a 10-14 kilometer course through various checkpoints against time).

To be eligible for selection, officers must be in superb physicial condition and be able to run five miles in approximately 35 minutes; swim 100 meters freestyle in approximately one minute and 15 seconds; and, be in excellent upperbody condition.

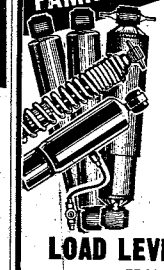
Alpha Company, the Support Company of the 43rd Engineers, won the basketball championship of the Battalion by defeating Delta Company 90 to 75 in a playoff game on January 31 at the Harmony Church Field House.

Each team had regular season records of seven wins and one loss, having lost to each other.

Alpha won the first encounter of the season, but Delta came back with a 75-73 win to tie the regular season records. Delta also started the playoff game in front, often leading by five points in the first ten minutes. Alpha forged ahead midway through the first half and was ahead at halftime 46-35.



The high tension for the teams led to many fouls and several players fouled out. Alpha held off Delta's charge and kept scoring at a fast pace to take the championship.

Take 931st basketball crown again

The 139th Military Police Co., a perennial power in 931st Eng. Gp. athletics, has captured the Group Baketball Championship for the second rear in a row.

The 931st Eng. Gp. sponsored a fourteen team league during the 1972-73 season, and boasts some to the finest cagers on Fort Benning.

The 139th M.P.'s, utilizing height, speed and teamwork, broke away from the field to paste a perfect 13-0 record. This is the second season in succession the M.P.'s have breezed through league play without a loss.

Capt. James E. Lucas, commander of the 139th M.P., Co., takes great pride in the success of his athletic teams. He believes "physical fitness and athletics are an integral part of the total readiness of the individual soldier."

At press time, the 139th M.P.'s have advanced to the quarter-finals of the USAIC Post Basketball Tournament. The M.P.'s drew a vye in the first round of play, defeated Medical Co. from MEDDAC in the second round by a tight score of 48-46, and are now preparing for HHC, 197th, smallcase opponent.

The 139th M.P. team is coached by an ex-high-school coach, 2nd Lt. Ron Braddoch.

Bragg dominates boxing

FORT CAMPBELL, Ky.—Ft. Bragg has once again dominated the annual Third Army Boxing Championships. With a total point score of 49, and six individual weight class champs, Bragg managed to beat, literally, their closest competitor and yearly rival Ft. Campbell in the Jan. 26 finals at Ft. Campbell.

Only eleven points behind in overall scoring, Ft. Campbell boxers clinched four class championships and led third place Ft. Jackson by 26 points.

Ft. Jackson pulled out 12 points; Ft. Gordon, Ga. went home with even points and a champ in the 139 lb. class; while Ft. Benning closed out the competition with four points.

Washington's birthday Golf Tournament

Special Services will sponsor a Washington's Birthday Golf Tournament at Sand Hill Golf Course, Feb. 17-18. The tournament is open to all male military personnel, active and retired.

The tournament consists of 36 holes medal play with competitors divided into flights after the first 18 holes.

Awards will be presented to the medalist and flight winners. Entry fee for the tournament is $5 and will be accepted at the Pro-Shop Sand Hill Golf Course through 4 p.m. today, Feb. 16. For further information call the Pro-Shop 544-4131.

Infantry Board wraps up title

A hard fought come-from-behind upset victory by the 121st Aviation Company, set the stage for a second "If" game, Feb. 2, in the Aviation Command basketball tournament.

The United States Army Infantry Board (USAIB) came into the final day of tournament play with a 2-0 tournament record, after posting a 12-0 league record. The 121st Avn. Co. wound up the Aviation League with a 9-3 record and were underdogs to the Infantry Board with one win and one loss coming into the final day of the tournament.

Consistent playing by the 121st "Tigers" finally paid off when they rallied from an 8 point deficit at halftime to coast to a 51-42 victory over the previously unbeaten IB team.

However, repeated turnovers in the second game by the 121st proved too much to overcome as the Infantry Board rolled to a 62-48 win, to wrap up the league title. This insured them a playoff berth in the post tournament.

The trophy presentation was made by Lt. Col. Lawrence Bell, commander Aviation Command, to Capt. Harold Bennent Jr., commander of the Infantry Board.

It is the strong feeling of personnel in the Aviation Command that the USAIB is the team to beat in the post tourney. Says Sgt. Prince, head coach of the IB team, "I feel we have the necessary talent to go all the way in the upcoming post tournament."

Benning celebrates Black History Week

In celebration of National Black History Week (Feb. 12 to 16) the 197th Support Battalion sponsored a lecture on black history by a Columbus College professor.

Prof. John B. Myers, who teaches Afro-American history at Columbus College, gave the lecture at Kelley Hill Theater (No. 4) on Thursday, Feb. 15.

Myers holds B.A. and M.A. degrees from Florida State University, and plans to receive his Ph.D. from FSU this August. He has published several articles on black history in various journals.

The 197th Infantry Brigade Race Relations-Equal Opportunity Office also sponsored a film series on black history during the week. From Feb. 13 to 16, a group of five films was shown each morning and afternoon in the Race Relations Building at Kelley Hill.

The films were intended to show the cultural and historical accomplishments of the black race, to supplement traditional educational materials, which have usually been void of black history and contributions to the U.S.

The films were shown from 9 to 12 a.m. and 1 to 4 p.m. Tuesday through Friday. Titles in the series were "Black History: Lost, Stolen or Strayed?" "Black Heritage;" "The Fayette (Miss.) Story"; "Black Music in America"; and "Urban Crisis."

Ga. Tech Cadets train here

In spite of the worst snow storm to hit Fort Benning in more than 30 years more than 203 cadets and 18 cadre officers and NCO's took part in a three day Field Training Exercise (FTX) from Feb. 8 to Feb. 11.

The snow storm forced the cadets to postpone many of their demonstrations and outdoor classes. However, the cadets took their classes indoors and managed to make the most of a snowbound weekend at Fort Benning. The entire FTX was run by the cadets.

Col. Andrew J. Waldrop, the Professor of Military Science at Georgia Tech, said, "The cadets get more out of this three day FTX, than they do out of an entire quarter of drill on campus." The cadets were given an option of attending this three day FTX in lieu of a quarter of drill.

Col. Waldrop explained that 53 Officer Candidate Company, The School Brigade, provided rations, billets, and equipment, while the Infantry Center provided the facilities and advice to make the FTX possible.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

by Bill King

When preparing lunchbox sandwiches, wrap lettuce, tomatoes or other moist ingredients separately.

Easy egg-drop soup: while heating beef or chicken broth, beat an egg slightly. Remove soup from heat and pour egg in a thin stream into the soup, stirring constantly with a fork until the egg forms threads.

Use your blender when you have a large amount of parsley to mince.

Next time you make a lemon meringue pie, try adding a bit of grated lemon peel to the egg white mixture before beating.

From a 17th-century cookbook: "We have observed in France that those who live almost entirely on shellfish and fish are more affectionate."

We can guarantee that you'll fall in love with all our fine dinners at

COMPU-DWELL Pays For Itself With One Tune-Up
SIMPLE, FAST POINT & TIMING TUNE-UP - 100% ACCURATE
$4.95 WITH THIS AD!
3216 VICTORY DR. LOCATION ONLY!
Compu-Dwell is a revolutionary new machine-an instrument which measures direct physical relationship between angle of dwell and position of the distributor body. It's the only instrument that is used with the engine off for both point and timing tune-up. Completely safe for breakerless and breaker type ignitions. The frustrating trial and error or meter deviation is cleared the user. Compu-Dwell works on all 4, 6, and 8 cylinder engines—domestic and imported automobiles, trucks, motor homes and buses. A Compu-Dwell tuned engine guarantees clean exhaust emissions and same money on gas and engine repairs.

43rd Engrs. build SOC room

Since Christmas time two carpenters from Charlie Company, 43rd Engineer Battalion, have been applying their particular skills to a project to assist the Infantry Center in its station of Choice Recruiting Program.

Spc Leartis Davis and PV2 Gary S. Densmore, both representing the company's two vertical construction platoons, are assisting the Carpenter Shop of the Maintenance Division in the construction of a station of choice room. The actual job called for a complete new interior for a 12½ ton van trailer. Under the direction of the Industrial Engineer, the two carpenters have built and installed three display cases, a projection room, and paneled the walls. Considerable work was also involved in the modification of the van for installation of heating, air conditioning, and indirect lighting. All the work is specifically designed to provide an attractive and comfortable setting for various displays and pictures which tell the story of the modern day pride of the United States Army Infantry Center.

Charlie Company is pleased to have contributed two of its finest to a project of such merit for Fort Benning. A task such as this one reflects just one facet of the many contributions the highly trained skills of the personnel of the 43rd Engrs.

Infantrywoman?

Two WAC captains bring the distaff side to IOAC

By Steve Vitucci

Will Follow Me become a more pleasing command for the American Infantryman? It may. At least it is not beyond the realm of possibility. This command may very well come from the lips of a female commander. Two Wac Captains have been enrolled in the Infantry Officer's Advanced Course (IOAC).

Up until this time women have never worn the crossed rifles of the Infantry Branch. The U.S. Army has had its women cannoneers, but it has never had an "INFANTRYWOMAN." Capts. Theresa H. Netherton and Patricia P. Hickerson hope to find infantry related jobs upon completion of IOAC. Neither woman has any desire to lead a company into combat. However, they both feel that it is possible for a woman to serve in the infantry. Capt. Netherton said, "There are many jobs in the infantry that a woman can do."

Capt. Hickerson explained that she was very interested in applying what she is being taught at the Infantry School. She does not envision commanding a regular infantry company, but feels that it would be possible for her to serve in various staff positions or to command a support unit. Capts. Hickerson and Netherton have both commanded a company size unit.

Capt. Netherton expressed the hope that her attendance in the course might open the eyes of some of the young infantrymen. Most infantry officers do not get to work with Wacs until late in their careers. She hopes that the officers might realize the potential of the Wacs during this course by working with them.

Since the two women have started the course they have attracted quite a bit of attention. The young ladies have been filmed, interviewed, and photographed more times than they care to remember. All eyes are on the women pioneers as they journey through the course in pursuit of their objective of becoming the first Infantrywomen.

A question that is often asked of the two women concerns the connection of Women's Lib with their attendance to a previous all-male course. This question was answered by Capt. Netherton for a local TV interview. She said, "I don't think Woman's Lib is the reason we are attending this course. The Army is trying to utilize personnel to its fullest advantage. I think this is an example of men and women being properly utilized. When people say Women's Lib, I think the term becomes synonomous with radicals and radicalism. I do not think that is why we are here."

Another question that seems to come up often is the question of how the men in their class are reacting to having women in their class. Capt. Hickerson said that her classmates were "somewhat reluctant and apprehensive about having women in their class." "It seems that the novelty has worn off. They are all very helpful. It's like having 208 brothers," said Capt. Hickerson.

The reaction of their classmates is mixed. There are some who feel that women should not attend a combat arms branch school. There are others who feel that this is a big step in the right direction.

Capt. James L. McCullough II said, "I don't mind that they are in our class. However, I do feel that the Infantry is not a place for a woman. The Infantryman, is often called upon to lead by example. There are many instances where I don't feel a woman could do this."

Capt. Carl C. Craddock Jr. feels differently. Capt. Craddock said, "I think the Army has done the right thing. I do not expect that these women (Capts. Netherton and Hickerson) will be used as combatants, but I do think there is room for them as staff officers and commanders of support units. Why deny a position to a person because of sex? We would only be handicapping ourselves."

Capt. Harry C. Morton, Commander of 13 Student Company, (The company the Wacs are assigned to) said, "Many of the subjects covered in the course are new to the Wacs. They have never dealt with map reading, land navigation, tactics and the like. The average Infantry Officer has to work hard to stay ahead of the Advanced Course. The women officers have to work even harder just to keep up."

THE BAYONET Inside Front

Mayor J. R. Allen, right, visits with Columbus boys who participated in the Summer Action Maneuvers at Fort Benning. Allen was an enthusiastic supporter of the SAM project which brought 50 boys a week to Fort Benning for physical training, sports, post tours, movies, books, and various demonstrations. Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, the former Fort Benning commander, was also a supporter of the program.

Benning mourns Mayor's death

The Fort Benning community mourned the untimely death of Mayor J. R. Allen.

Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, a close friend and associate with Mayor Allen, had departed from Fort Benning before news of his death arrived.

Maj. Gen. Thomas M. Tarpley assumed command of Fort Benning the day after Mayor Allen's death. In an assumption of command ceremony, muffled in respect for Mayor Allen, Gen. Tarpley said, "Although I did not have an opportunity to

Crime

Provost Marshal reports lowest crime rate

By Pete Foreman

While crime throughout the nation surges upward seriously, less crime took place on Fort Benning in January than during any previous month since the Provost Marshal began keeping crime statistics.

January's record low in crime is a "culmination" of Benning's crime fighting effort. It is a continuation of a downward trend in crime on the post that began early in 1972.

"Greater law enforcement capability, selective law enforcement, and the concern of all Fort Benning commanders have been responsible for the reduction in crime," says Col. E. J. Murdock, the Provost Marshal.

Crime is measured in two ways. It is measured by the total number of offenses committed and by the number of offenses committed for every thousand individuals living on the post.

The total number of offenses decreased from 289 per month in Jan. 72 to 132 per month in Jan. 73. This could be explained possibly by Benning's decrease in population.

However, Benning's rate in crime has also dropped from 13.72 crimes for every thousand persons to 6.66 per thousand. This cannot be attributed to a mere decrease in population. Crime has, in all aspects, fallen off at Fort Benning during the past year.

The decrease has been noticed by higher Army headquarters. Lt. Gen. Melvin Zais, commander of Third U.S. Army, announced that the post will receive the Spartan Crime Prevention Award. Although this is a quarterly award, it has been presented only twice so far.

"This award pays tribute to the comprehensive and imaginative crime prevention programs you have established at Fort Benning," wrote Zais. "The effectiveness of these programs has enabled Fort Benning to reduce on-post crimes of violence while Third Army, overall, has suffered an increase."

One reason for Benning's effective law enforcement program is the close cooperation that exists between the military and civilian police. This cooperation was displayed as the post observed National Crime Prevention Week, Feb. 11-17.

Sgt. Roy R. Porter was named military policeman of the year and Officer Ralph Cotner was named patrolman of the year. Both were honored at several meetings of the Metropolitan, the Muscogee County, and the Columbus Exchange Clubs.

Besides cooperation between military and civilian authorities, Fort Benning is also fortunate to have special law enforcement capabilities, such as helicopters and marijuana dogs.

"Narcotic offenses are not counted in Third Army's evaluation of crime because Fort Benning has better capability to identify and find illegal drugs with its detection dogs," said Murdock. "The dogs have been responsible for 95 percent of the illegal drug finds on post."

Unlike Benning, many other military posts cannot keep marijuana dogs because they lack kennels and other needed facilities for dogs.

The crime most often committed on post in Jan. was "larceny under $250."

"Most of these larcenies took place because of the owner's nonchalant attitude in taking care of his property," said Murdock.

"People leave packages exposed in their parked cars. They leave large sums of money in their wallets and leave their wallets laying around in their rooms. They leave bicycles unsecured outside. They don't lock their cars.

"Many people don't write down the serial numbers of their property. Some can't even remember the color of their stolen property.

Airborne training a family affair

With hundreds of students going through Airborne training every few weeks it isn't uncommon to find brothers in the same class. But when two sets of brothers go through the Airborne course in the same class, in the same company at the same time, its something that happens next to never. In Airborne class number 22, which graduated Feb. 15, it happened to Ralph and Frank Diaz, and Earnest and William Randall, all of 47th Co. 4th Stu. Bn., TSB.

For Ralph and Frank it was a complete surprise. They had no idea when they signed up for Jump School that they would be going at the same time. They came into the Army 4 months apart. Frank came in in May, while Ralph enlisted in Sept. When the two of them volunteered for Airborne it was at separate times, and they were assigned here together by chance. They may not be together much longer, however, because Ralph is on his way to Germany, and Frank is awaiting assignment.

The Randall brothers entered the Army on the family plan. They went through basic training at Ft. Jackson South Carolina together. Since they enlisted in the Army on an Airborne option they came immediately to jump school. Now that its finished they are both on their way for permanent duty with the 82nd Airborne Div., Ft. Bragg, North Carolina.

Feb. is ecology month

The month of February is Ecology Month for the tri-city area. This weekend (Thurs., Feb. 22 to Sat., Feb. 24) an Ecology Fair is being held at Columbus Square, with displays from local ecology groups and Fort Benning.

The Association of the United States Army is coordinating the Fort Benning displays at the fair. The Environmental Management Division of the Directorate of Facilities Engineering, the Medical Department Activity, and the Officers' Wives Club Environmental Workshop are participating in the fair.

Other displays will be furnished by the State Department of Natural Resources, the Environmental Protection Agency, the Georgia Conservancy, and the Columbus Audubon Society. The Columbus Jaycees are in charge of the entire project, and are coordinating these displays.

A Foul Photo Contest is also being held as part of Ecology Month. The purpose of the project is to make the public more aware of current environmental problems and what is being done about them.

What would your reaction be to having a female commanding officer?

Stick by your guns ladies

SFC Harrell Spraggins
14th Co. TSB 1st Bn.

You had to ask me that question!?! I don't think so. I'm in the infantry and the position of a female would not fit very well as a commanding officer. I don't think a woman commanding officer may fit in such cases such as areas of personnel, processing and in some cases transportation.

SFC Richard Grier
(Special Forces) connected with Airborne Dept.

I once had a WAC major that I was directly under at a national guard division and she was alright as long as she had her own way. No woman could survive under the conditions that the green berets have to live with. So I would have to say that in some cases maybe, if she is qualified and going to be in a field such as administration.

PFC Wilma Olson
Co. A HHC

I don't think women are capable of commanding men. They wouldn't receive the respect of the men as a commanding officer should. Women are too used to having men make the big decisions.

Sp4 Bruce Plitman
Med. Co.

I wouldn't mind it if she had been through the infantry style of training that the men go through to qualify her for battle situations.

Sp4 Larry Stewart
608th Ordnance

NO. Women could not make the decisions that men do. I work with explosives in Ordnance and I think that fields of battle should be commanded by men. Women just would not fit.

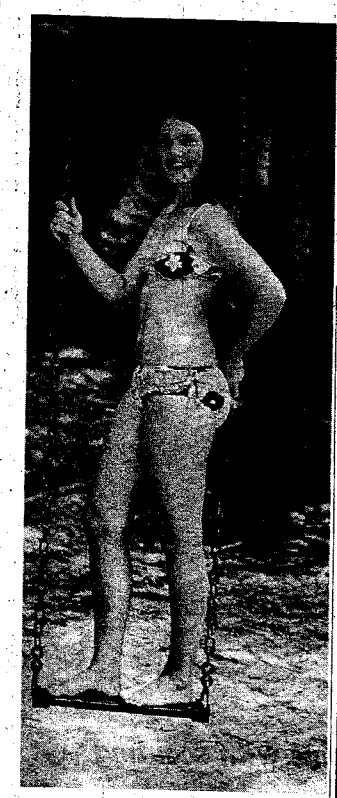
Dear Editor,

Education improves a professional

The Foreman letter outlining education versus professionalism (Bayonet, Feb. 16, 1973) prompts me to write my first letter in 52 years of life to a publication. Mr. Foreman's summary "leaders taking pride in their work will build a professional Army, not leaders who are away from units earning extra degrees or credits" is a nittering nihilistic negativism.



The summary could be rewritten "parents taking pride in their work will build a better family, not parents who are away from families earning extra degrees or credits."

Foreman implies that professionalism is synonymous with some magical process of osmosis whereby just being in the job day after day (albeit being pridefully professional) will increase professionalism. Unfortunately no amount of pride or professionalism inherently assures the individual that he can write a better letter, understand the subtleties or nuances of government, or compute or perform arithmetical functions.

We, the military, are frequently charged with possessing military minds, the infference being that we are incapable of flexibility of the thoughts and actions imposed by the "real life" non-military society. The charge is wrong now, has been in the past and will be in the future. Mr. Foreman's point only gives substance to the charge. Education improves a professional.

Of course, there is a danger that a leader may opt for academic kudos and accolades at the expense of his unit - but then that ain't no leader.

—Charles H. Reidenbaugh meet Mayor Allen. I felt I knew him personally through correspondence and conversation about him with General Talbott.

"He was a friend of Fort Benning and the Army. General Talbott spoke higly of him as a dedicated leader whose concern for the welfare of Fort Benning and his beloved Columbus was always paramount.

"I feel we have lost a true friend, an I share the grief and great sense of loss of this entire military and civilian community."

Brig. Gen. William R. Richardson, the Assistant Commandant of Benning's Infantry School, said in the ceremony, "J. R. Allen's warm friendship . . . and his contributions to the military community were valuable and valued assets. We are deeply grieved by his untimely death."

Col. Willard Latham, the Deptuy Commander of the U. S. Army Infantry Center, said, "Mayor Allen's dedication has brought about many improvements in the economic, social, and political posture of the community."

Col. Charles C. Thebaud, Fort Benning's chief of staff said, "As the Commander's representative to the City Council, I worked very closely with Mayor Allen and considered him a personal friend. He was a sincere and hard working public servant. Our military and civilian community has lost a dedicated leader."

J. W. Woodruff Jr., chairman of the Columbus - Fort Benning-Phenix City Civilian and Military Council said, "We have been enriched by (Mayor Allen's) dedication and leadership and shall always be inspired by his untold contributions to not only the Council, but to his community and fellow man."

LADIES, MEN — Put on your thinking caps. For the next couple of weeks, you will still have a chance to submit names for the Fort Benning OWC Golden Anniversary Cookbook. The person submitting the name chosen will be presented with a free copy of the cookbook when it comes out in March. ANYONE AND EVERYONE is eligible to enter, but don't forget: The deadline is St. Patricks Day, March 17. Call Mrs. Richard Stoltz, 545-1845, today.

OWC ACTIVITIES

More classes are beginning new sessions at the OWC Lounge. Now is your chance to take some of the many and varied classes your OWC has to offer.

This is the year of the knit — the layered look, halter sweaters, "shrins". Join our CROCHETING class and have fun making your own specialties. Instruction is free. The new class begins on Feb. 28 at 1 p.m. Call Mrs. H. A. Furman at 563-5469.

WRITING FOR PUBLICATION is a new course which will cover the basics of article writing. Discussions will include terms, research, writing, editing, manuscript preparation and marketing of non-fiction articles. The class will be held Tuesday evenings beginning March 6. For more information or to enroll, call Mrs. Wm. Highlander at 545-2239. Six weeks for $12.

DECO-PURSE has openings in new classes beginning March 6 and 7. A great idea for Mother's Day giving — a decoupaged purse; or make one for yourself — they're beautiful. Four lessons for $7.50. Tuesday evenings 8 til 10, Wednesday mornings 10 til 12. Call Mrs. Billy Arthur at 545-5089.

If you are interested in inexpensive and ingenious ways to bring your army quarters to life, you'll want to take the OWC's INTERIOR DECORATION course. A new class will begin on March 12 from 7:30 til 9:30 at the OWC Lounge. 6 lessons for $12. Call Mrs. John Partin at 544-1106 for further information.

It will soon be bathing suit weather, are you ready for it? A new session of SLIM 'N TRIM will be starting on March 5. I Classes are held Monday and Thursday from 10 til 11 a.m., or Monday and Wednesday evenings from 7:30 til 8:30. Six weeks for $7. Call Mrs. Stephen Mowe at 544-3997 to sign-up.

EPICUREAN SOCIETY OF AMERICA

The Epicurean Society of America will hold it's next seminar on Wed., Feb. 28 at 10 a.m.; Columbus Gas Light Auditorium.

Pretty, imaginative, creative, talented and gifted. These are some of the terms most often used to describe Mrs. Chiquita Berry, who will conduct the February seminar on Cake Decorating from Many Lands. For reservations call Mrs. Donald Shannon, 545-4636.

USAMTU

The United States Army Marksmanship Training Unit Officers' Wives' Club held an evening coffee Jan. 31. It was at the home of Mrs. Jim Clauson and co-hosted by Mrs. Ronald Petty. The Army Community Service project was discussed and the wives also bid farewell to Mrs. Petty, Mrs. Gordon Horner and Mrs. Ed Shumacher whose husbands are leaving the unit.

This first evening coffee was rewarding since several wives who work were able to attend.

DIRECTORATE OF EDUCATIONAL TECHNOLOGY

The ladies of the newly formed DIRECTORATE OF EDUCATIONAL TECHNOLOGY recently met for their organizational coffee at the home of Mrs. James F. Lane. A brief business meeting was held with the women settling such details as the organizing and funding of a hospitality committee to be headed by Mrs. Lane. The first Thursday after the second Tuesday of each month was chosen as the Department meeting day. The next coffee will be at the home of Mrs. Stephen C. Darrh on March 15. The ladies have planned a tour of the Directorate facilities.

BBOD

STAFF GROUP, BBOD wives held their monthly coffee Feb. 8, in the home of Mrs. Hal G. Mann. The "Candlelight Coffee," as it was dubbed, due to all power being off that morning, was a very pleasant gathering, thanks to the ladies of Intelligence Committee. Those who helped co-hostess the coffee were Mesdames Paul Flebotte, Edward Cramer, Raymond Giles, Ronald Crosby, Fred Stepaniak, Richard Smart and James Flynn.

Special guests attending the morning event were Mrs. Lawrence L. Mowery and Mrs. Allen M. Buckner. Out-of-town guests attending were Mrs. Charles Powell, mother of Lt. Col. Russell Miller and Mrs. R. O. Will, Col. Miller's aunt.

Mrs. Sanders A. Carter extended a warm welcome to Mrs. Purdy B. McLeod Jr., who recently married Lt. Col. McLeod. A warm welcome was also extended to Mrs. Peter C. Boukalis whose husband is with Logistics Committee.

The February coffee for the ARTILLERY COMMITTEE wives was held on Feb. 1, at the home of Mrs. James R. Siket on Craig Dr., Fort Benning.

Mrs. Siket, using a valentine theme, served a mocha roll cake, cookies, stuffed cherry tomatoes, a strawberry punch and coffee.

Following refreshments, Mrs. A. E. Stipe presented farewell charms and aprons to Mrs. Curtis L. Lamm and Mrs. T. P. Ross. No goodbyes were said, for while their husbands have new assignments at Fort Benning, these ladies are cordially invited to come to future coffees.

TSB

5TH STUDENT BATTALION

The Officer Candidates' Wives of 50th Company met for their third coffee on Jan. 31 in the company's dayroom. Honored guest, Mrs. Gordon M. Hunt, gave an interesting presentation on customs and courtesies of the military. Following a brief refreshment break, a business meeting was held which included discussion of upcoming club functions.

The Holiday Inn, Phenix City, was the setting for 50th OCS COMPANY'S 12th Week Intermediate Status Party on Feb. 2. Honored guests were Lt. Col. and Mrs. Gordon M. Hunt and Capt. and Mrs. Cordell S. Hunter. Also present were the Tactial Officers and their wives. Attending were Officer Candidates of 50th Company and their wives or dates. The music was provided by two rock groups, The Hot Cross Buns and The Ozz. Bouquets of red and white carnations provided a lovely atmosphere and a good time was had by all.

COMBAT ARMS TRAINING BOARD

The Goetchius House was the scene for the monthly meeting of the ladies of CATB. The luncheon menu consisted of stuffed flounder, cole slaw, fried potatoes, peas and strawberry shortcake. Special thanks go to Mrs. Robert Dirmeyer and the ladies who assisted her with the luncheon arrangements.

Mrs. John Seigle informed the group of changes in publicity and reservations. Mrs. Larry Jordan has taken over publicity for Mrs. John Stone and Mrs. Ronald West has replaced Mrs. John Barrows. Mrs. Paul Joplin is chairperson of the newly formed handicrafts circle which meets the first and third Wednesday of each month at 1 p.m. Ella Prices Journal by Dorothy Bryant, and Stepford Wives by Ira Levin will be the first books discussed by the book group on Feb. 26.

Dramatizers give life to Orwell's 1984

For "1984," the newest production offered by the Fort Benning Playhouse Dramatizers, a number of seasoned and talented craftsmen, together with some tireless students of theatre, have donated their time and services so that George Orwell's futuristic drama can live on the stage.

E. Linton Gross heads the production crew with his design for set and lights for "1984." To capture the thoughts and ideas of the author, Gross has built a surrealistic playing area and futuristic furniture.

He has increased the play's overall effect by lighting specifically designed to produce a show that is totally "Orwellian." The directors of "1984," Dave R. Hoyt and Mrs. Joanne Burns call it "a modern classic of negative utopia," and so Gross has taken this concept and brought it sometimes painfully close to the audience. Assistants in the lighting area have been Chuck Sandy and Lynn Wyatt.

Sound enters into the complete enjoyment of an evening at the Playhouse. Sound technicians, Peter Carpenter and Turk Brown have combined talents to set the mood — or warn all visiting the era of "1984." Special music has been prepared by Jay Taylor.

Rounding out the pattern of uniformity that Orwell's novel and play create, Mrs. Mark Disbrow, Mrs. Ed Gross and Mrs. Laura Whitaker are designing and constructing costumes that suggest the bureaucratized society into which Orwell has hurled his characters.

Karol Cipra and Helen Stanley, makeup artists for the production, are busy guiding the actors to living their characters upon the stage.

The run of the show crew aids the audience in its travels from mini-tru to mini-love and leads them through the dark passages of Orwell's prison world. They are Kathy Kettrick, Sheila Dowse, Jeff Slotnick, Jimmy Sandy, Pam Burns, Bob Yeager, Ron Frees and Don Walburg.

"1984" is produced by Roy Lothner, entertainment director for Special Services at Fort Benning.

Performances will be in the Fort Benning Playhouse Feb. 23 and 24 at 8 p.m. Tickets and any further information for "1984" may be obtained by calling Fort Benning Playhouse 545-2932, or 5057. Admission is free.

Mrs. Drucilla Crawford demonstrates the art of hairstyling at the Custer Terrace Beauty Shop.

Beauty Shop sponsors clinic

Custer Terrace Beauty Shop, a Post Exchange activity, recently sponsored its second hairstyling clinic for the care and treatment of curly hair.

The clinic was taught by Mrs. Drucilla Crawford, who has her own beauty school in Columbus. She has attended various beauty schools in Atlanta, Philadelphia, New Orleans, Oklahoma City, and Columbus and Albany, Ga.

She has taught advanced cosmetology at Columbus Area Vocational-Technical School, and conducted the first beauty clinic of this type at Fort Benning in 1971. Models at the clinic were PFC Brenda Murray and Pvt. Cheryl Dooms.

Fort Benning customers are reminded that complete facilities for hair straightening and other types of work on curly hair are available at Post Exchange Beauty Shops, and all work is done by trained personnel.

Gold Star Wives elect officers

Two brothers join 197th for two different reasons

The distinguished reputation of Fort Benning, Georgia and the 197th Infantry Brigade recently expanded westward to Salt Lake City, Utah and reached the ears of Terry Miyake who decided he liked what he heard so much that he made the 197th Infantry his unit of choice. PVT. Terry Miyake is now in Company D, 1st Bn. (M) 58th Inf. the (Patriots) going through advanced individual training. When questioned about what motivated him to join the Brigade Miyake responded by saying he was impressed with the fact that he would be in an all volunteer unit. Miyake went on to say that the idea of a five day work week, compensatory time, and good food and housing was appealing to him. He also noted that he wants to go on to ranger school here at Fort Benning once he completes his AIT.

Privates George and Jim Edwards are two brothers who joined the Army for different reasons — neither in fact knew the other had joined originally — but their satisfaction with the Modern Volunteer Army is mutually shared.

Both of the Columbus, Ga. natives, presently in Advanced Individual Training with HHC, 1st Bn., 29th Inf. (Pioneers), 197th Inf. Bde., were attending high school last fall before volunteering for the 197th Brigade under the unit-of-choice enlistment optional.

George's decision stemmed from his desire to enter the field of electronics while serving in the Army and remaining near his home in Columbus, Ga.

He found the solution to this threefold problem at the Columbus Army recruiting station, where he discussed his wishes and took several tests. When George decided he like the Army's offer, he quickly took the next step, which led him to Atlanta, where he signed his enlistment contract to serve with the 197th Brigade at Fort Benning and be trained in the Military Occupational Specialty (MOS) 82A10 (electronics technician).

Simultaneously, he learned that his brother, Jim had made the same decision, and had even chosen the same MOS to work in. Jim's path to the 197th Brigade followed his marriage and discontent with jobs in the civilian realm. "I told my wife that in the Army I could finish high school and learn a trade," Jim said.

But Jim was elated further when he learned that he would also be serving at Fort Benning, near his Columbus home, and thus near his wife. "It all sounded so good to me because, I was going to be with my wife and in the Army at the same time," he remembers thinking.

Some veterans eligible for second home loan

Veterans who have used their GI loan can have their eligibility restored and get another VA-guaranteed loan under some circumstances, the Veterans Administration reminded veterans today.

The basic qualification is that the first home was sold for compelling reasons, and in addition, VA must have been released from liability on the original loan. This usually happens when a home is sold with new financing, it was explained.

Some of the reasons for which property may be disposed of and entitlement restored by VA are:

— Transfer of employment from one locality to another by an employer.

— Destruction of home by fire or natural hazard.

— Voluntary change of employment to another locality offering more income and opportunity for advancement — provided satisfactory evidence is furnished VA.

— Retirement of a veteran, or transfer of a serviceman by his military department while he is on active duty.

— Limited space in a veteran or serviceman's home, if a doctor certifies that space is a health question. An increase in size of his family, however, is not in itself sufficient grounds for restoration of entitlement.

— Loss of employment through a reduction-in-force, or curtailment of activities in occupation where he is employed — if suitable employment is obtained in another locality.

VA guaranteed home loans are available to eligible veterans and servicemen with at least 90 days of active duty during World War II and the Korean Conflict, or at least 181 days in the Vietnam Era. Loan benefits also are available to eligible widows, and wives of servicemen missing in action or prisoners of war for more than 90 days.

Filmmakers shoot Benning

The most important shooting on the Fort Benning, Ga., reservation Feb. 6-7 was not done by a weapon.

Its effect, however, could be more valuable to Fort Benning and the Army than the impact of any weapon in the current Army inventory. For the shooting was done by a film crew from The Screen News Digest.

Producer Cloyd G. Aarseth and his four-man crew compiled audio and visual material to depict highlights of Modern Volunteer Army life for a film entitled "Zero Draft." The movie, approximately 20 minutes long when edited, will be part of a monthly series of films, on various subjects, shown to junior and senior high school students throughout the United States.

Its distribution will reach a total audience of about seven million viewers.

Although it is not intended as a recruiting film, according to Aarseth, its content could prove to be extremely significant to the volunteer recruiting effort.

Scenes, filmed primarily at the 197th Infantry Brigade, show soldiers eating in refurbished dining facilities that feature the short-order menu and civilian kitchen workers. Also shown are two-man billet rooms and an interview with a unit-of-choice enlistee working in the job he volunteered for — mechanic for wheeled vehicles.

In addition, the crew filmed an airborne drop at Fryer Field advanced individual training students of the 197th Infantry Brigade participating in a simulated attack near Twilight Pond and scenes of the individual learning center in Infantry Hall.

Aarseth, a veteran producer with the Hearst organization, said the 197th Brigade was chosen as the setting because of an article published in the "Wall Street Journal" describing the Modern Volunteer Army (MVA) program as practiced by the Kelley Hill infantry unit.

"This film will trace the draft from its inception in World War I to its demise in 1973 and show what the Army has done to attract volunteers and fulfill President Nixon's plan to eliminate the draft and keep a strong Army," Aarseth continued.

At Harmony Church, he directed the filming of a brief speech on the Modern Volunteer Army by Lt. Col. Robert E. Orkand, commander of the 1st Battalion, (Mechanized), 58th Infantry (Patriots). Orkand noted the contrasting features of the draftee-filled Army with those of the volunteer concept, particularly the improvements in living conditions, working conditions and job satisfaction which are credited with making the program a success.

Aarseth said the speech will be used "to define the Modern Volunteer Army in a way that young students can understand, without confusing technical language."

Cameraman Edmund Reek Jr. zoomed in on the action as AIT students of the 1st Bn., 29th Inf., 197th Inf. Bde. practiced rifle squad attack movements. Reek spent two days at Fort Benning filming soldiers for a movie on the Modern Volunteer Army. (Photo by Robert Thomas)

NCOs study MOS with group method

The NCOs assigned to the Engineer Committee, Combat Support Group, Brigade and Battalion Operations Department, USAIS, found a method for making study for their annual proficiency pay test both effective and interesting. The eight NCOs assigned to the committee all have a 12B40 (Combat Engineer NCO) primary MOS. They started a group study program in April 1972. But this was no ordinary study program.

They divided the MOS into different areas and each NCO was made responsible for a specific area according to his experience and specialties. Each NCO then researched his specific area and when fully prepared, gave an informal class on his area to the other NCOs. These classes varied in format according to the instructors and the area being covered. A list of questions covering each topic of a specific area was then prepared by each NCO within his area. There followed many planned and impromptu question and answer periods with an abundance of good-natured goading and derision for anyone slow in answering a question and no pity at all to anyone who completely failed to answer. Written questions would mysteriously appear on someone's desk and that individual received no rest until the question was answered correctly.

The study program came to a halt in August when the 12B40 pro pay test was administered here at Fort Benning. Each of the NCOs feel that this program was much more effective than any of their previous attempts at strictly individual study and it was certainly a lot more fun.

Oh yes, what about the test results? The test cut off score needed to establish eligibility for the award of superior performance pay ($30.00 monthly), MOS 12B40; was established at 120. The eight committee NCOs and

USAIB

The United States Army Infantry Board recently honored several of its members at a ceremony with medals, commendations, and certificates. Board President, Col. Walter E. Meinzen made the presentations during a ceremony in the USAIB conference room.

Maj. Michael D. Haynes received the Bronze Star Medal for his meritorious service as a senior advisor to the Army of the Republic of Vietnam. He advised his unit in all aspects of combat operations. Haynes' accomplishments did much to nurture the Vietnamization program. The Air Medal was also presented to Major Haynes for his participation is aerial flight in Vietnam.

SSgt. Wyland A. Miles was the recipient of the Army Commendation Medal. The medal was presented to him for his service as a platoon sergeant in the 1st Armored Division in Germany.

Also during the ceremony, Col. Meinzen presented a letter of appreciation to Lt. Col. Larry S. Mickel, chief, Field Equipment Test Branch, for a suggestion made. The suggestion was adopted and has resulted in simplified procedures, minimized costs, earlier availability of a product, and an estimated savings of $2,432.

A Certificate of Achievement was the award received by Sp4 Robert S. Johnston. He received the award because of his selection as the USAIB Soldier of the Quarter, First Quarter, 1973. His selection was made from previous Infantry Board Soldiers of the Month, signifying the keen competition involved, and the outstanding qualities he possesses.

During the ceremony, several civilian workers from the Board received awards, also. Hazel N. Waterhouse was officially commended for her performance as clerk-stenographer in the Small Arms Test Branch. Her outstanding performance of administrative and secretarial duties earned her the award.

Annie R. McDuffie was commended for her outstanding work as a card punch operator in the Management office of the Board.

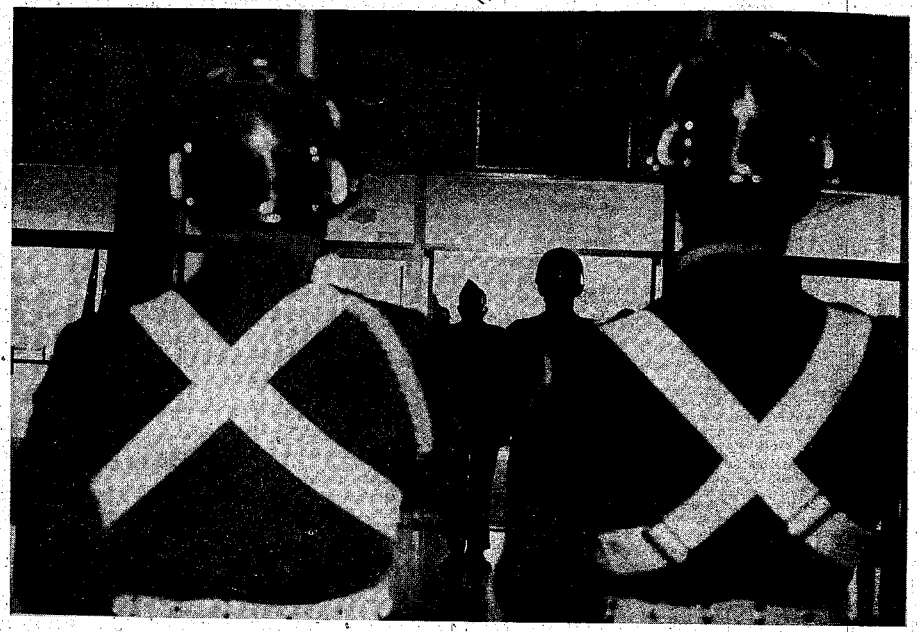
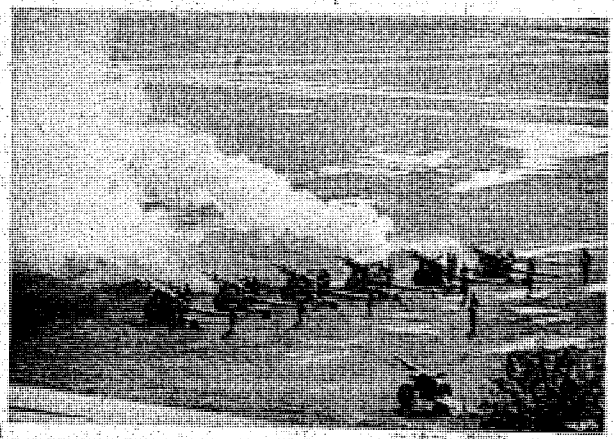
SSgt. uses own flag to re-up



SSG Kelver K. Dowlen, HHC 331 Engineer Group (CBT), re-enlisted February 5, 1973 for the final 4 years of a 20 year Army career. He was sworn in by Cpt. Robert W. Wentz, CO HHD 67th Maint Bn (DS).

SSG Dowlen, a native of Walters, Oklahoma, has a unique way of re-enlisting. he provides his own American Flag. He acquired the flag while serving with the 68th Chemical Company before its deactivation in 1966. As a result of the deactivation, SSG Dowlen had received orders for Korea. There were just three people left in the company. SSG Dowlen, the CO and the company clerk. Since the orders assigning him to Korea were the last official orders to be recorded in the company, the CO gave him the flag. He has since used it to extend once in Germany and re-enlist once here at Fort Benning.



Presently, SSG Dowlen is an instructor for the Intermediate Leadership Course. He is the NCOIC of the gas chamber for the 95ist Combined Unit Training Committee.

We invented National Bank of Fort Benning to provide services not readily available at other banking institutions.
Our customers would have banking problems not shared by the general public, like changing banks when they are transferred, or banking for TDY personnel, or what to do while on a hardship tour.
So we built in world wide banking.
That means no matter where you are, either temporarily, or permanently, or if you just happen to be traveling, we can serve you.

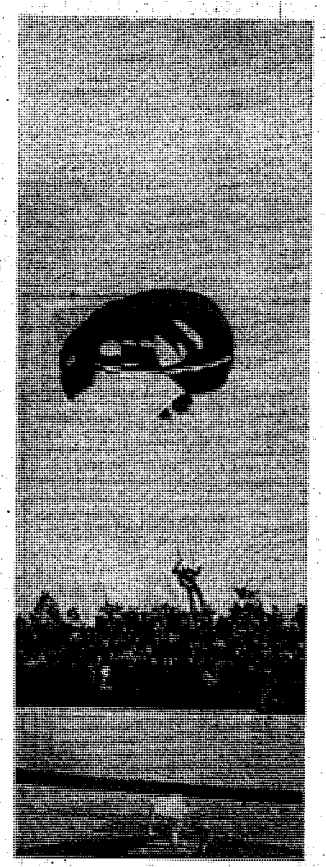
Hello... Goodbye...

Fort Benning said goodbye to its former commander, Major General Orwin C. Talbott, with a ceremony on York Field, Feb. 14, and said hello to Maj. Gen. Thomas M. Tarpley, the new commander, Feb. 16 with an indoor ceremony.

Gen. Tarpley's ceremony was held inside Infantry Hall because of the death of Columbus Mayor, J. R. Allen, who died in a plane crash.

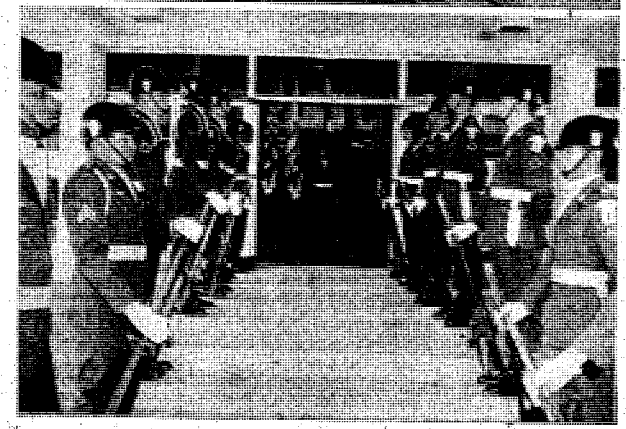
Brig. Gen. William R. Richardson, assistant commandant of the Infantry School, introduced Gen. Tarpley.

Gen. Tarpley spoke of Mayor Allen, "Although I did not have an opportunity to meet him, I felt I knew him personally through conversations about him with Gen. Talbott."



Gen. Tarpley said he had conferred with Gen. Creighton Abrams, Army Chief of Staff, three days before arriving. Gen. Abrams gave him three primary missions: They were to manage the Infantry Center efficiently, to insure that the Infantry School maintains the reputation as the finest tactical infantry school in the world, and to "foster the spirit of mutual regard between Fort Benning and its tri-community in Columbus and Phenix City."

During Gen. Talbott's farewell ceremony, he was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal, the Army's highest medal for service, by Lt. Gen. John Hay Jr., commander of the 18th Airborne Corps, Fort Bragg, N.C.P. who represented Lt. Gen. Melvin Zais, 3d Army commander.



The Infantry School colors and troops from 15 units gave a review.

Skydivers from the Airborne department jumped from a Huey helicopter and landed on the street between the viewers and the reviewing stand.

'Who controls the past, controls the future'

George Orwell's novel "1984," from which the play currently being produced by the Fort Benning Dramatizers is adapted, seems to be a criticism of life in the twentieth century as he had experienced it in his travels.

The Fort Benning Dramatizers' production of "1984" will run Fev. 23 and 24, at 8 p.m. at the Fort Benning Playhouse, Bldg. 1237, behind the Infantry Museum on Ingersoll. Admission is free.

The world of "1984" depicts with great power the horrors of man's fate in a society where everything that is not compulsory is prohibited; where Big Brother is always watching; where every citizen knows only too well that "War is peace — Freedom is slavery; and Ignorance is strength."

Eric Blair, whose nom de plume was George Orwell, was born to a minor official in the Indian Civil Service in 1903 in Bengal. He was educated in England, attending Eton on scholarship in 1917.

There he came into contact with the socialist and liberal ideas popular just after World War I. Upon graduation in 1921, he decided against continuing his education and became a sergeant in the Indian Imperial Police. He was stationed in Burma until 1927, when his intense dislike for his role as an enforcing agent of British imperialism caused him to resign from the civil service.

Orwell chose to spend time living among the working class and among tramps in both England and France. His experiences were the source of "Down and Out in Paris and London" (1933), his first book. Its publication marked his first use of George Orwell as his pen name.

Orwell taught school for several years, married and published a novel, "Burmese Days," in 1934. He then kept a village pub and general store with his spouse, but income from these sources was meager.

In 1936, Orwell published "Keep the Apidistra Flying," based on his experiences as a bookstore clerk. It was around this time that he began to acquire socialist leanings. He expressed his personal conviction in "The Road to Wigan Pier" in 1937.

Orwell enlisted on the Republican side during the Spanish Civil War though he had gone intending only to observe and report. He fought with an anti-Stalinst Marxist militia, and was severely wounded. When Communist groups had succeeded in dominating the government, Orwell and his wife were forced to flee Spain or face imprisonment and possible execution.

The author returned to England, and in 1939 published "Coming Up for Air," in which he predicted the advent of World War II. The novel was his first success.

In the early 1940s, Orwell did much political writing, including a column for the London "Tribune," and contributions to the "Observer," Manchester Evening News," "Partisan Review" and other publications.

"Animal Farm," one of his two most widely read and accolaimed works, was published in 1945. The satirical, anti-utopian novel was especially popular in the United States, bringing Orwell an unprecedented income.

After his wife's death in 1946, Orwell moved to the Scottish Hebrides where he wrote "1984," a modern classic of negative utopia. It was published in 1949, a year before Orwell's death from the tuberculosis and ill health which plagued him for many years.

Tickets for the Dramatizers' productions are available through Special Services, at the Playhouse, and from stands set up at the main post post exchange complex. For further information, call 545-5932.

Coming to the screen

THE LIFE AND TIMES OF JUDGE ROY BEAN . . . In the role of the legendary "Hanging Judge," Roy Bean, Paul Newman is a self-proclaimed dispenser of Western Justice. Whether gunning down outlaws, arguing with a stubborn grizzly bear, revealing his affections for the unattainable Lily Langtry (Ava Gardner), or at age seventy tangling with tommy-gun gangsters, Newman is totally brilliant. Jacqueline Bisset and an outstanding gallery of guest stars enter the Judge's life and times in John Huston's epic saga which is laced with salty language and violence.

PRIME CUT . . . This is a hard-hitting drama about gangland rivalry and violence in America today. Lee Marvin, a hard-as-nails "enforcer," accepts Chicago mob chieftain Eddie Egan's offer for the "collection" from Gene Hackman's Kansas City drugs and prostitution at the Jayhawker Fair. Hackman's gunmen move in on Marvin and company; however, Marvin escapes and stops off to see Tomkins at her riverfront houseboat to find out Hackman's whereabouts. After a short romantic overture, Marvin obtains the information, leaves an infuriated Tomkins, and casts her boat adrift down the river.

'Where have we gone wrong?'

"Where have we gone wrong?" This is the most common phrase used by parents when their children commit a delinquent act, but who is actually at fault when the child commits a delinquent act? There have been many books and articles published on Juvenile Delinquency, but has anyone come up with a solution to possibly eliminating Juvenile Delinquency? Perhaps the answer lies with the most common denominator for the causes of Juvenile Delinquency, the parents

A very high percentage of runaways have said the reason for running away was because of a problem at home or at school. Seven out of every ten runaways that come to the attention of the Military Police have said that their parents don't listen to them, that their parents are old fashioned, that their parents are too busy with their own activities to care enough, that a particular teacher has prejudice against the child, and it goes on and on. There is not a human being alive that does not have problems. There are many problems that cannot be anticipated, and this problem to a growing child sometimes even to some grown ups would appear as if their dream world had collapsed.

The growing child must learn to cope with problems, not evade them by running away, or by releasing frustrations through acts of vandalism or other forms of delinquency. The only way a child is

"$8,000 helped."

Sergeant Roy Smith was going for more than the bonus when he reenlisted.

"The $8,000 helped. But part of my reason for staying in the Army is I can get the rest of my college credits for a degree. I've got 2 years in already.

"I enjoy the job I'm doing now as a drill sergeant. But I'd also like to try military intelligence. And eventually get to go to OCS.

"It's all there. It's completely up to me and my qualifications for it."

Sergeant Smith views the Army as one big opportunity for a guy who wants to get ahead.

There are job and educational opportunities. In advanced electronics. Cryptography. Foreign languages. Data processing. Communications. Traffic analysis. And lots more.

And travel opportunities. In Europe. Korea. Hawaii. Alaska. Panama. And the time to enjoy it. To live it. In a way no tourist ever could.

And the opportunity to save money on all the everyday things.

Like free housing. Free dental and medical care. Commissary and post exchange privileges. Low-cost life insurance.

It's all here. It's up to you.

Your Army Career Counselor has a whole book of job, duty station and training opportunities just waiting for you. He'll give you lots of reasons for staying in.

Sergeant Smith has good reasons for staying in.

Why are you staying in?

The Champs

Brotherly love is exhibited by members of HHC, 197th Inf. Bde., after soundly defeating Co. D., 1-58th Inf., for the post basketball championship.

HHC ends family squabble

It was strictly a family squabble, and though it was for the Fort Benning championship in basketball, the teams agreed to stage the melee in their own front yard, at the Kelley Hill Gym.

The 197th Brigade's Headquarters and Headquarters Company team, clad in black uniforms with yellow numerals, bounded onto the court Friday night in a confident, boisterous mood. They were rested, having played days earlier, while the upstart challengers from Co. D, 1st Bn. (M), 58th Inf. (Patriots), were admittedly weary, having earned their spot in the championship game by crunching the MP team a scant night earlier.

Worse still, for the ambitious Patriots, was their record against the team from HHC — no wins, four losses. Despite considerable support from a throng of eager and vociferous fans, the Patriots lost 74-70 in a bruising contest that they seemed determined to win.

Unfortunately for the Patriots, the demonstration of their determination, either through aggressive offensive and defensive maneuvering or precision shooting from any part of the court, only riled the irascible HHC squad and kept them ornery on defense and accurate on offense.

Most of the offensive blasting for HHC was done by Sp4 Gerald Green (16 points) and Pvt. George King (14 points). The pair combined a dazzling array of long and medium-range swishes with twisting, spinning short-range tosses and layups to keep HHC in front of the rushing Patriots.

Sgt. Abe McCall (12 points) usually found his way to the hoop when the ball was thrown in that direction and his efforts resulted in tip-ins and rebounds for HHC. His chief adversary, Sp4 John Halverson, turned in a fine performance for the Patriots, who found the going rough during the first half.

The teams traded baskets early in the clash, but the Patriots found themselves distantly separated from HHC immediately following an arching one-hand push shot by Sp4 Raymond Whiley (12 points) which dropped neatly through the open circle of steel while hardly disturbing the netting. That gave HHC an 8-6 lead, which it promptly increased, then padded until the men from Headquarters stomped off the court at halftime with a 48-36 lead.

By the end of the third stanza the Patriots had dented HHC's lead, which stood at 62-54. This slight success resulted primarily from the accuracy of PFC Louis Johnson, who found a niche in one of the corners and pumped in several scores and Sp4 John Black (14 points) who scored points from virtually all sports on his half of the court.

These efforts were contagious for the Patriots, who soon realized they had a chance to grab the golden ring. But their temerity in attempting to storm past HHC only made the battle more interesting.

For a sudden splurge of field goals which narrowed HHC's margin to 72-70 near the end of the struggle proved to be the last burst left in the Patriots' arsenal.

Green was fouled when he took the inbounds pass for HHC following the Patriots' score. He spun both free throws accurately, winding up the scoring at 74-70 and concluding the monopolistic Fort Benning basketball season, which saw all competition bowing to the strength of an enthusiastic gang of teams from the 197th Infantry Brigade.

Col. Bruce Fraser, post assistant commander lent a note of summary and finality to the proceedings when he remarked, as the awards were about to be presented, "This is the best tournament we have had in several years." He added, "My congratulations to the 197th for having their all-197th tournament."

As the HHC team posed for a championship picture with Company Commander Capt. Larry D. Aaron and Brigade Commander Col. Edwin L. Kennedy the mood was apparent: The players were giving the "Number One" signal.

BY BILL KLOEB

It appears that it won't be long now and the large mouth bass will be displaced as the king of southern fresh water game fish.

State Game and Fish Commission biologist throughout the southeastern states have been working on a project that should produce in numbers a fish that grows more than twice as big as the big mouth. The project has been in effect for several years and now some of the large reservoirs in the state are producing keeper sized fish.

The fish is known in these parts as a "striped bass" or "rock fish." Originally an anadrmous fish, living most of the year in salt water and traveling up fresh water streams for spawning, the rock fish had his habits changed by the construction of the many dams forming large lakes on the rivers of the southeast. Some of the fish going upstream each year didn't return because during the period they were spawning at the headwaters of the river engineers had closed a dam which locked them into fresh water for life. Biologists soon found that this species could survive while spending a lifetime in fresh water. They also found that the striper was compatible with other game fish already in the impoundment waters.

Stripers weighing from 40 to 50-pounds are often caught during the spawning runs. The fresh water record stands at 63-pounds. It was caught in the Oconee River near Dublin, Ga. a couple years ago. The largest stripe caught in salt water weighed 73-pounds.

Initial stocking programs began in Georgia in 1967 with fingerling fish provided by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Services. State hatcheries began projects to obtain fingerlings and plan stocking program for their states during the same year. South Carolina biologists were the first to produce fish from eggs in hatcheries and the first fish stocked in Georgia reservoirs came from that state. Other southern state hatcheries soon mastered the techniques and Georgia began a program of its own. The first stockings in Georgia waters were made in Lake Seminole on the Chattahoochee River and in Lake Blackshear on the Flint River between Americus and Cordele, Ga. The next impoundments to receive the rock fish in considerable numbers wer Lakes Jackson on the Ocmulgee River and Sinclair on the Oconee River. Rockfish are now being taken from all of these lakes. Some are in the five to six-pound category but others have been caught that tipped the scales at more than fifteen-pounds.

Biologist are not sure just how big the fresh water variety will get but most figure that in a few years catches from twenty to thirty-pounds may be frequent. Of course anyone who is looking for a record or trophy fish should go to one of the Georgia rivers in the spring time during the spawning run. The rock fish make these runs up just about all of the rivers emptying into the Atlantic but the Savannah, Altamaha and Ogeechee Rivers are said to attract the biggest fish. The Savannah is also known as one of the most polluted rivers in the nation so anyone who intends to eat what he catches would do well to avoid it.

Those who fish the Ogeechee River may have an opportunity to actively participate in this project. Recently this river was stocked with a number of striper fingerlings as part of a program to determine whether or not fish who entered the rivers would stay in fresh waters. Each of these fish had a plastic tag fastened to their their dorsal fin. Any fisherman catching one of these fish should notify the Georgia Game and Fish Department at Richmond Hill, Ga.

Quite a few local fishermen would probably like to get in on this action and there is no reason why they can't. All of these spots are just a few hours drive from Columbus and Fort Benning. Those who own camping outfits will find plenty of camping places along the rivers and lakes. Information concerning commercial campsites, state parks and marinas can be obtained at the Georgia Welcome Center on Victory Drive.

Those who don't have camping equipment or a boat needn't give up the idea. The Recreation Division of Special Services has camper-trailers, boats and boat motors available for rent to active duty and retired military personnel.

You can rent a fourteen foot aluminum boat with ten horsepower motor for $2.25 a day and a camper trailer which will sleep six people for $1.75 per day.

Gamblers, Bullets win season's first

Youth Activities basketball got underway last Saturday with the Doughboy League Gamblers defeating the Grasshoppers by 46-21 and the Bullets winning over the Bucks 45-14.

In the league's opening game between the Gamblers and the Grasshoppers, Keith Presley garnered high scorer honors with his 14 point effort and Ken Robinson hit for 10 points in the Gamblers win. Hoppers Cal Griffin and Dewey Caluder each had 6 points and tied for team high point man.

Well balanced scoring was one highlight of this contest as both teams had 7 players putting points on the scoreboard. Gamblers Bernard Thomas and E. Grisson netted 6 points each and Ronald Walker and H. Grisson hit for 4 points each with Dennis Yancey tallying the final 2 marks. The Grasshoppers got 2 points each from Kevin Kaczmarek, David Baker, Steve Rodgers and Randy Rennaker. Hopper Jim Bell added the final point on a free throw.

The second game of the day saw the Bullets obunce the Bucks 45-14 as 7 Bullets hit the scoreboard. Bullets Bob Heaukulani and Tim Booth scored 11 points each for game high point honors and Emett Lee zipped in 8 points for runnerup honors.

Brad Scott swished 7 points for the Bucks and took scoring honors for his team. Runnerup honors went to William Hicks as he dropped in 6 points and the final point for the Bucks came on a free throw by Samuel Norris.

Well balanced scoring by the Bullets was also a big factor in this game. Wally Archie netted 7 points, Steve Darbonne hit for 4 points and Keith Bock and Len Cody tallied 2 points each for their team.

World's strongest man to do his thing

On June 12, 1957 Paul Anderson, the World's Strongest Man, stood by a table on which 6,720 pounds of weights had been placed. Anderson was then the World Champion weightlifter, having won the Gold Medal at the 1956 Olympic Games. He crouched beneath the table, placed his back against it, and lifted the enormous weight off the ground. It is the weight roughly equivalent to 3 tons, or the combined weight of 3½ Volkswagens. This feat broke the world-record by 2,000 pounds, and it is a record that still stands today.

An achievement of this sort would naturally be the crowning moment of an athletes life. Fame, recognition, and the knowledge that he was the most powerful man in the world were all his. When asked, Anderson will explain what his greatest thrill is. "It's a thrill to be called the World's Strongest Man," he says, "but the greatest thrill in my life is being a Christian and telling people about Jesus Christ."

An unusual minister, Anderson doesn't look at all like the image a minister usually brings to mind. He is 5' 10" tall and weighs 375 pounds. At 41 years of age, it is said he can still lift more weight than the Gold Medalist of the 1972 Olympic Games.

Anderson makes over 500 personal appearances each year, speaking at churches and Christian rallys. He performs this often to support the Paul Anderson Youth Home, a home he founded for unwanted kids, who might otherwise have turned to a life of crime.

At these meetings Anderson will perform several demonstrations of his incredible strength. Probably his most famous stunt is taking eight people out of the audience, putting them on a table built to his specifications, then lifting the table off the ground.

After he has thoroughly gotten the crowd's attention, he presents a talk on his "greatest thrill," Jesus Christ.

Tomorrow, Feb. 24th, TSB's Duty Day With God, Paul Anderson will be appearing from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Sightseeing Road Chapel. Also appearing with him will be Celeste Menser, the current Miss Fort Benning, Elder Brown and his choir from Columbus and L. C. Lane playing the guitar.

Anderson slams competition

SFC Hershel Anderson, Tracy City, Tenn., and the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit, slammed a high aggregate of 2,658-105X into his targets Feb. 19 at Phillips Pistol Range to claim the championship of the Monthly Open 2,700 Grand Aggregate Pistol tournament.

Anderson, one of the Army's outstanding Olympic Pistol competitors, easily outdistanced his nearest opponent by eleven points as he took two of the three sub-aggregates which make up the Three Gun 2,700 point tourney. He won the 45 Caliber Pistol NRA Short Course four match series with an 890 of a possible 900 points and the Center Fire Pistol sub aggregate with an 885. Companion marksman SFC Roger Willis, Ferndale, Calif., captured the 22 Caliber Pistol series with his 890.

Shooting in the shadow of the champion, Sgt. Marvin Black, a talented Third Army handgunner, grabbed the runner up spot in the tourney while MSgt. Samuel Hunter of the Army Marksmanship Unit placed third overall with his 2,636.

In the individual match results, Black edged Anderson five to four in the first place honors but Anderson surged into a surmounting lead in the overall total places in the 12 match tournament. His constant pressure and steady aim gained for him the championship crown.

Following his individual victory, Anderson then led the Army "Blue" four man squad into victories in Center Fire and 45 Caliber Pistol but lost the 22 Caliber Pistol crown in a close decision to a sister team, the U. S. Army "Gray". Both teams are fielded by the Army Marksmanship Unit.

In a fourth tean encounter, the final competition of the weekend tourney, a Fort Bragg, N. C., quartet grabbed the high honors of the 45 Caliber Service Pistol contest.

TSB eliminated from tourney

After 15 consecutive victories TSB basketball champion 4th Stu., Bn Cadre was shocked 52-40 by Co. A, HQ Command in the opening game of the Post basketball playoffs.

4th Bn. led after a see-saw first half 24-22. The lead was short lived as a fired up Co. A team outscored them 30-16 in the second half.

William Taylor, usually high scorer for 4th Bn., could manage only 10 points. His sidekick at guard, Wyman Ashford, scored 10 points also for the 4th Bn.

Only two nights later 4th Bn., suffered their second straight setback, falling 61-42 to the 546th Med. Co.

Once again it was close at halftime with the 546th holding a scant 22-19 lead. But 4th Bn. went on the second half skids again, getting blasted 39-21. William Taylor found the range again tossing in 17 points, but it wasn't enough.

The other TSB entry into the tournament had a flickering hope for a while, but it was soon snuffed out.

The 11th Co. 1st Bn. team won their first game, dropping 608th Ordnance in a tight 48-46 decision. 11th Co. held a 7 point halftime lead, but saw it dwindle to two by the final buzzer. Richard Simmons rammed the nets for 17 points to lead 11th Co.

In their next outing 11th Co. was smashed 67-46 by Co. D-158. In this game Simmon's 22 point heroics were not enough to thwart Co. D as they doubled a 29-19 ten-point halftime lead.

The third and final game for 11th Co. was a close 54-49 loss to the Co. A who defeated the 4th Stu. Bn., in the first round. Once again le Simmons led all scoring with 17 points, but it wasn't the number needed to keep the TSB basketball season from coming to a close.

TSB's leading scorer for the post basketball tournament, Richard Simmons, number 30, watches intently as a shot he has just taken heads for the basket. A teammate screens out an opposing player in 11th Co.'s 54-49 loss to Co. A, HQ Command.

Delinquent

going to cope with problems is if the parents are willing to meet the child half way, and are willing to sit down and not only try talking but listen and try to understand the future generation. Perhaps the key to the provention of Juvenile Delinquency lies in three words: Parents, Love and Care.

There are several ways to raise a Juvenile Delinquent. 1. Begin at infancy to give the child everything he wants. 2. When he picks up bad words, laugh at him. 3. Never give him any spiritual training. 4. Pick up everything he leaves lying around — books, shoes, clothes, toys. Do everything for him so that he will be experienced in throwing all responsibility on others. 5. Quarrel frequently in his presence. 6. Take his part against neighbors, teachers, policemen. 7. When he gets into real trouble, apologize for yourself by saying: "I never could do anything with him."

Benning airs programs

The Radio Section of the Post Information Office produces several programs that are aired on most of the Columbus-Phenix City radio stations.

Weekly half-hour music programs are heard on Saturday and Sunday. "The Soul Session" is heard Saturday evening between 6:00 and 6:30 p.m. on WOKS. The "Queen of Soul Hour" is heard at 7:00 p.m. on WFDR-FM. WCLS airs "The Benning Sound" at 9:00 a.m. Sunday mornings. Two other music programs heard on Sundays are "The Benning Preview" heard at 7:30 p.m. on WXLE-FM, and "The Benning Salute" heard at 6:00 p.m. on WHYD.

The Radio Section also produces daily news shows for downtown stations. The Fort Benning News can be heard Monday through Friday at 6:00 a.m. on WPNX and at 6:45 p.m. on WXLE-FM. WOKS carries The Fort Benning News at 5:55 a.m. Monday through Friday. On Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays WRBL Radio carries the Fort Benning News at 4:35 p.m. These newcasts are five minutes long and provides information for Army personnel as well as keeping the civilian community up to date on Fort Benning Today.

Anderson leads team to championship here

SFC Hershel Anderson, Tracy City, Tenn., and the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit led the U.S. Army "Blue" team into the Championship circle of an International Invitational Pistol tournament at this west Georgia Infantry post Friday.

The Anderson led team grabbed the top honors in a Standard Pistol match with 2,261 and repeated its winning combination in the International Center Fire contest where they totaled the top score of 2,285.

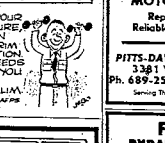
In the individual action, Anderson who is an Olympic and Pan American Games competitor, won the Standard Pistol competition with his top score of 572 while SFC Steven Arnold of Ft. Bragg, N.C. placed second with two less hits. SSgt. George Moss of the Army Marksmanship Unit was third with 569.

SFC Elmer Myers, an outstanding pistol marksman from Bragg, took a commanding lead in the Center Fire matches and won easily with a 588, seven points ahead of his nearest competitor, Anderson. In third place, SFC Roger Willis, posted a similar 581 to fill out the top honors.

Top honors in the women's division was equally divided between National Women's Pistol Champion SSgt. Barbara Hile, Lapeer, Mich., and the Army Marksmanship Unit and Capt. Sharon Best, a companion shooter. Hile placed high in the Standard Pistol with her 556 while Best posted a similar score to win the honors in the Center Fire contest.

The U.S. Army "Blue" team fielded by the U.S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit included Anderson, Willis, Capt. Robert Merritt and MSgts Samuel Hunter.

Runnerup honors in team action fell to a Fort Bragg team in Standard Pistol while a Third Army fielded team took that distinction in the Center Fire matches.



Did you know?

Did you know that your chances of surviving an automobile accident are tremendously increased if your body is contained inside the padded interior of your car?

If you can imagine the effects on your body as it bounces along the concrete roadway at speeds as low as 30 mph, you will agree that padding is safer than concrete.

Always buckle up regardless of the length of your trip.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

by Bill King

For nutrition and a good, nutty taste, sprinkle wheat germ into the crumb mixture for meat loaves or stuffings, or into the crumb crust for a pie.

Are you fond of braised or baked stuffed artichokes? Try mixing some minced Greek olives into your favorite artichoke stuffing.

When making chocolate pudding, add a pinch of powdered cloves for a spicy taste.

For a diet salad dressing, mix undiluted canned tomato soup with 2 tablespoons of lemon juice and a ¼ cup of water. Season to taste, adding some grated onion and prepared mustard.

It's Leap Year, and any bachelors who haven't yet been claimed might heed Swift's advice: "But lest your kissing should be spoil'd, your onions must be thoroughly boil'd".

USO needs volunteers as guides

On March 29th, 30th, and 31st the United Service Organization will hold its National Convention in the city of Atlanta. Attending this convention will be approximately 100 Junior Volunteers from the USO Clubs of the United States. These young ladies will participate in a number of functions and we must have escorts for them. One of the functions will be a trip to Underground Atlanta and we would like to be sure that each young lady has an escort to see that she'd receive the generous portion of the good old Siuthern hospitality that Atlanta is famous for. Here's a chance to meet some very outstanding young ladies from many areas of the United States and to be part of an "Experience" that you certainly will remember.

Latham gets star

Willard Latham, deputy post commander, was promoted to brigadier general in ceremonies held Thursday morning in Infantry Hall.

Gen. Latham's stars were pinned on by his wife, Myra, and Maj. Gen. Thomas M. Tarpley, Fort Benning commander. An honor's ceremony for the new general officer followed on York Field.

Gen. Latham was first assigned to Fort Benning in 1949 for airborne training and the Infantry Officers Basic Course after receiving a direct commission. Following assignment to the 8th Cavalry Regiment, 1st Cavalry Division, he served with that unit in Korea for two years and five campaigns as a heavy mortar and rifle platoon leader.

After returning to this country, he served tours of duty with the 82nd Airborne Division and the 31st Infantry Division as a rifle company commander, and later was with the Seventh Army Headquarters in Germany.

He returned to Fort Benning in 1956 for the Infantry Officers Advanced Course and Ranger training, and then served three years as an ROTC instructor at the University of Texas.

In 1960, Gen. Latham attended the regular course at the Command and General Staff College at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan., and then was assigned to the Iceland Defense Force.

Following attendance at the Armed Forces Staff College, he served as personnel management officer in the Infantry Career Management Division in the Pentagon and later was assigned to the Office of the Chief of Staff.

Gen. Latham left staff duties in 1966 to assume command of the 2nd Battalion, 6th Infantry in the Berlin Brigade. He attended the Army War College in 1967, and then was placed in command of the 1st Battalion, 16th Infantry, 1st Infantry Division in the Republic of Vietnam. He also served in Vietnam as commander of the 5th Battalion, 60th Infantry, 9th Infantry Division, and as assistant chief of staff of the 1st Infantry Division.

Gen. and Mrs. Latham have six children.

Willard Latham promoted to Brigadier General.

SSgt. Larry G. Montgomery, a TSB Career Counselor, explains the advantages of reenlisting to an interested listener.

Decision Time

TSB

Career Counselors working for the soldier

In times past a first term soldier would walk into a career counselors office after eight months service and announce he wanted to reenlist. The counselor would happily fill out some forms, tell the man what he needed to do, then send him on his way. Then the counselor would sit down and carve another notch in his pen.

That was the mistaken idea that many people had of a counselor and his job. At The School Brigade reenlistment center the image is totally different. Six reenlistment NCO's are there for only one reason; to assist the soldier in determining his or her future.

SSG Larry G. Montgomery, is typical of this type of counselor. His interest is in the man as an individual, not as a number on a quota sheet.

SSG Montgomery estimates between 40 and 60 people a day come to the TSB reenlistment center to talk. His first order of business is usually trying to calm down someone he's counseling.

"Usually when I'm talking to a man and his answer to every question is "yes sergeant" or "no sergeant," then I know he is afraid of the stripes. If that happens I'll change the subject, talk about his home, baseball, anything to make him feel more at ease. When this is accomplished, SSG Montgomery explains to the soldier the facts on reenlistment. He tells the man what the Army has to offer him by way of bonuses, benefits, and security. If the man is interested in changing MOS's, then he'll explain that to him too, and if he can't explain it he'll ask one of his counseling partners who can.

One of the new facts he is having to explain is that the Army has stopped allowing soldiers to reenlist after only eight months of service. Beginning Feb. 1, a soldier must be in the Army for 21 months before he can re-up. SSG Montgomery feels it will have a sweeping effect on the Army and its people. He says "sure it will cut down on the number of reenlistments, but it will help to improve the overall Army structure."

Agreeing with him was SFC John R. Ross who says, "it's the smartest thing the Army has ever done to improve the quality of the reenlisting soldier. After eight months a man wasn't really sure if he wanted to stay in or not. He reenlisted for the bonus, then found that he didn't like the Army that much. However, after 21 months there should be no doubt in his mind, that he wants to stay in."

SFC Robert J. Powell, another TSB counselor, emphasized that "if there is a man who is near his 21st month of service and wants to reenlist he should let us know. If for some reason he can't come and see us, then we'll definitely go see him."

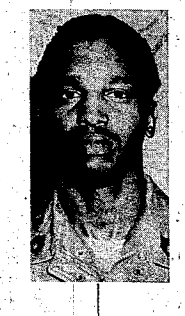
What, if anything, would you change in the 197th Brigade's Advanced Individual Training (AIT) program, if you had the authority to do so?

Some wouldn't change a thing



Spc Gerald McDonel
4th Plt. (AIT) Co. C.
1st Bn., 58th Inf.
(Patriots)

"I would eliminate the 'time filling' parts of the training schedule to maintain constant, meaningful training instead of adding in boring classes we don't need. If something causes training to be called off, that should be it. We shouldn't have a class thrown together to fill time. I would make the training tougher, like the airborne training program."

Pvt. Albert Oates
Wpns. Plt., AIT
Co. D, 1st Bn., 29th Inf.
(Patriots)

"I wouldn't change any of it. I think it's a very good program. The way it is set up I can learn what I need to know about my skill, recoilless weapons. And the instruction on the weapons is great; I really like to fire them."

Pvt. Levi Prim
4th Plt. (AIT) Co. C.
1st Bn. (M), 58th Inf.
(Patriots)

"First, I would increase the amount of physical training to make men more physically able to fight in combat. Also, to make them stronger and able to handle the increased physical training, they should be given more food and told to eat it. I also would start an earlier wake-up time. This would allow more time to clean the barracks and square away field gear and uniforms."

Pvt. Larry Christy,
Weapons Plt., (AIT),
Co. D, 1st Bn. 8 29th Inf.
(Pioneers)

"I wouldn't change anything. So far I like the program in general, especially the food and classroom instruction."

SFC Ernest Jones Jr.
PSG, Weapons Plt. AIT
Co. D, 1st Bn., 58th Inf.
(Pioneers)

"As it stands, the program is outstanding, however, to improve the effectiveness of soldiers training under this program I would give these men Basic Unit Training (BUT) immediately after AIT. This would make the AIT more meaningful by putting these basic skill principles to work in a unit-oriented environment."

Dear Editor,

Army doesn't rely on education alone

This letter is written in response to Captain Peter A. Foreman's letter "Is There a Danger In The Army's Educational Policy?"

I take exception to Capt. Foreman's letter. Capt. Foreman makes the assumption that the Army is relying on formal education programs to produce a professional.

"The danger is relying on formal education to automatically produce military professionalism."

I think this assumption is unwarranted and unfounded. Unfortunately there is no one program in the world that will automatically produce a military professional. If there were I am sure it would not be limited solely to the military.

The Army places a great deal of stress on formal education and rightly so. Formal education gives an individual a greater awareness of other people and exposes a person to a much wider spectrum of life. Today's leader must understand more about people and more about the environment. The leader of today's Army must be able to respond to those he leads. A formal education makes a person broader minded, more flexible and more aware of what is going on. It helps a person to develope problem solving techniques.

If we look at Webster's New World Dictionary of The American Language we find professional defined as: "having much experience and skill in a specific role; of, engaged in, or worthy of high standards of a profession".

Experience is something a person gains by repetition of a job or a task. Skills are something a person learns. Skills are not gained by magic or by some process of osmosis. They are learned — a process of education. Education comes in many different kinds of packages. One of these packages happens to be formal education. However, I do not think the Army has ever had the intention of relying solely on the means to develope its professionals. Formal education is only one program of many programs the Army has available to produce the professional. Steve Vitucci

Dental Health Service gives tips for clean teeth

This is the second in a series of articles on dental health published by the Bayonet, in cooperation with the Fort Benning Dental Service in an attempt to educate readers on correct dental health procedures.

Well, now I'm pretty convinced that it's important to control dental plaque so I can prevent being afflicted by decay and gum disease. But just how do I go about it?

Essentially, you must develop good home oral hygiene habits to effectively clean the teeth at least once a day to disrupt the plaque-forming process. And, of course, you should continue to have periodic professional check-ups to make sure your efforts are keeping things under control.

Learning the basics of a good home program begins with the disclosing tablet. These tablets are made up of harmless vegetable dyes that stain plaque. After chewing a tablet, rinse your mouth out with water. Then observe the areas that are stained, so you can see just where the plaque is located. You might want to use a mouth mirror to see the back sides of the teeth.

The toothbrush, if used properly, will remove a major portion of plaque. Use an end-rounded, soft-bristled brush and gently scrub the outside and inside surfaces of the teeth until the stain is gone. Then, vigorously scrub the biting surfaces on the tops of the teeth.

Now, examine the teeth to see where he stained areas still remain. Most likely, you will find the greatest concentration in the crevices between the teeth. These areas can be cleaned by using dental floss. The floss should be worked between the teeth and each side of the tooth should be scraped by the floss.

A word of caution: let your dentist show you exactly how to use floss. Improper usage can injure sensitive gum tissue. And, the dentist will also recommend waxed or unwaxed floss, depending on your individual need. If you like, you can complete the cleaning process by using a water-jet irrigator to flush out any oral debris that may still remain in the mouth. Remember though that the irrigator used by itself will not remove the dental plaque.

Once the disclosing tablet has shown where plaque is hiding, you only need to use the tablets on a periodic basis, just to check up on your oral hygiene practices.

Of course, as stated earlier, you still should have regular check-ups for calculus removal and so the dentist can catch any dental problems that may be starting before they become serious.

And, it doesn't matter what age you begin the plaque removal program. Children can be taught the method when they're quite young, and adults can begin at any age. It's never too early or too late to protect youroral health.

Ten civilian employes receive cash awards

Ten civilian employes of the Directorate of Industrial Operations at Fort Benning have received cash awards for outstanding performance and achievement.

The awards were presented by Col. Henry E. Hutcheson Jr., Director of Industrial Operations, in several ceremonies held recently on Post.

Mrs. Edith E. Formulak of Procurement Division received an Outstanding Performance Award and a Superior Job Achievement Award of $150.

Mr. George E. Wells received a Quality Step Increase of $204, Mr. James D. Dykes received an Outstanding Performance Award, Mr. Ogrell Golden was presented a Superior Job Achievement Award of $150, and Mr. J. C. Grimes was presented an Outstanding Performance Award. All four employes work in Supply Division.

Mrs. Sophie H. Thomas and Mrs. Elizabeth T. Strong, both of Services Division, each received Superior Job Achievement Awards of $150.

Mr. Eddie Miles of Maintenance Division received an Outstanding Performance Award and a Superior Job Achievement Award of $150. Mr. Jimmie H. Askew, also was presented an Outstanding Performance Award and a Superior Job Achievement Award of $200.

Unit of Choice display creates understanding

The 197th Support Battalion, 197th Inf. Bde., recently went to Pascagoula, Mississippi with their "old and new" tank display to bring back fond memories to the World War II tankers who remembered driving the old M3, Jeb Stuart.

SSgt. Samuel Shaver and PFC Dennis Veelotch of the Sheridan Section of Co. H, 69th Armor, 197th Spt. Bn., showed these veterans and their families around the newer M551 Sheridan and explained its new and sophisticated weapons system. Though obviously impressed with the modern day Sheridan, the veterans indicated they would have rather climbed back aboard the old Jeb Stuart.

The sons and daughters of these men were, however, more interested in the newer M551, and the Modern Volunteer Army.

The tankers and engineers of the 197th Spt. Bn., got together to answer their questions regarding the equipment and the lifestyle within the 197th Inf. Bde. Along with the soldiers from the 197th Spt. Bn., were many recruiters from the New Orleans Recruiting Main Station. They were able to show the young people the benefits of a career in the Army and specifically a 16 month tour with the 197th Inf. Bde. Many of the young men and women were impressed and made appointments to see their local recruiter again.

The Unit-of-Choice display helped to create a better understanding of the Modern Volunteer Army in the communities it visited, and indicated the advantage of a no draft environment. It also helped to build a bond for future combined efforts.

The Dap

Black handshake makes some wonder what's going on

BY RICK WASSER

To the casual observer, two black soldiers slapping their hands together and making wild-like motions, would surely indicate simultaneous attacks of epilepsy.

In actuality, what has been observed, was the black handshake, known in contemporary jargon as "the Dap."

When the Dap first became popular at Fort Benning, about a year ago, there was a lot of controversy on it by white soldiers who saw it being done. Some ignored it, and some disliked it intently, but for the most part the white soldiers feared it, not knowing what it was or what it meant. As one black PFC put it, ". . . most of the white guys that see us doin' the Dap, they think we're up to some kind of trouble or something, like we're giving the Dap as some sort of preliminary action to a fight or something."

The Dap, per se, originated in the Republic of Vietnam and is named for a black enlisted soldier, John Dap. Pvt. Dap, as the story goes, was shot to death in the back by a fellow American soldier who was white. As a kind of a requiem to the deceased John Dap, other black soldiers in the unit originated this handshake, and in his memory appropriately named it the Dap.

"It symbolizes the togetherness of the blacks," one soldier said. "If you notice," he continued, "the Dap is always given face to face, so that each of the brothers can watch the other's back." This is obviously in reference to that fateful shooting in Vietnam.

Another soldier felt personal pride in giving the Dap as he said, "There are about a thousand different ways of giving the Dap, but it doesn't matter how you give it, it's what you feel inside that counts."

"When I give the Dap," he went on, "and the brother gives it back to me real good, something in my heart just swells up."

Not every black soldier in the Army gives the Dap. Some of them don't even know what it is and don't particularly care. The reason for this, one soldier volunteered, ". . . is that they have finally found a place (the Army) where they are almost accepted as completely equal, and they are afraid that giving the Dap, will turn whites against them, and that they will make waves." Other blacks don't participate in the black handshake, particularly older blacks, for other reasons. "If a senior NCO was caught giving the Dap to an enlisted man," a black SSgt. said, "he would be ostracized in the company." "First, his superiors would look down on him for fraternization, and secondly, they just don't approve of the Dap."

Another senior NCO had a different point of view for not giving the Dap, "I just don't feel I have to give the Dap to express myself as being black." "If it makes the younger soldiers feel good, then fine, but it just doesn't prove anything to me. Plus the fact, there are so many different ways of doing it, I just can't keep up with them all."

An SFC summed up what the majority of the older generation blacks feel about the Dap: ". . . I don't think that giving the Dap has anything to do with being black. I've been black for as long as I can remember, and it doesn't make me any less black because I don't give the Dap. Black isn't Dap, and Dap isn't black."

About 90 per cent of the younger generation blacks are in direct opposition to the viewpoints of their senior NCOs, but there is no visible hostility between the two factions. The Army has made extremely good progress in the last year where race-relations are concerned, and there is better understanding throughout the command.

A young black private confided that, "When I first came to Fort Benning, I saw all the other blacks giving Dap, so I asked them why they did it. They told me that it showed that the blacks cared for each other, and that they would stick by one another, no matter what." "So now I do it, because I think we should stick together. Also, it's a way of saying hello, you know, greeting."

For the most part, the Dap is indeed a greeting of sorts. It lets the black soldiers identify with one another, and helps them to feel more secure in a world where they have been oppressed for so long. However, there will always be the bad apples in every bunch, and the black society is no exception. Some of the blacks, and they are in the minority, still feel that they are totally oppressed, and that there has been no progress for them whatsoever in the last two-hundred years. One teen-age Spt supported this by saying, "The Dap keeps the brothers together, man, when you see a black, you give him Dap to show him you understand what he's going through."

This, of course, is one of the more radical views expressed by a black soldier. On the other hand, there was a radical theory offered by a white PFC who said, "I don't see any necessity in the blacks doing that Dap . . . they feel pressured if you ask me. They do it as a means of antagonism to the whites; they think it makes them feel superior, knowing that we can't do the Dap."

For the most part, the majority of the white soldiers felt as did the white Spt who said, "whites have their handshake, their greeting, and I see no reason why the black man shouldn't have his." "It certainly doesn't bother me, and I'll respect theirs if they respect mine."

Retired Officers start drive

The Chattahoochee Valley Chapter of The REtired Officers Association approved a revised edition of the chapter constitution and by-laws at the February meeting of the chapter held in the Fort Benning Officers Club last Thursday.

During the meeting LTC (ret.) Jack Johnson, president of the local chapter announced that the annual membership drive will begin March 1.

The local chapter is affiliated with The Retired Officers Association, a national organization with regional and local chapters located throughout the country and overseas.

The objective of the national organization and local chapter is to promote the welfare of the nation and the retired officers of the uniformed services. The local chapter provides retired officers the opportunity to participate in discussions and activities of local and national importance to military retirees, maintain contact with the active military and to aid in the promotion of legislation in the best interest of retirees and the nation.

All retired warrant and commissioned officers of the uniformed services are eligible to join the local organization. For additional information call LTC (ret.) George Hardgrove, 689-0637, LTC (ret.) Jack Pritchard, 687-3529, LTC (ret.) John Blake, 687-7321 or CWO (ret.) Fritz Lammers, 689-5707.

RRCG gets new head

Fort Benning's Race Relations Co-ordinating Group (RRCG) recently received a new member. Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott appointed Major George Moss, of the 67th Maint. Bn., 93ist Engineer Group, to hold the position of Chief of the RRCG and to serve on the Commanding General's personal staff.

In an interview with Major Moss he stated the RRCG's primary mission as being "the orientation, education, indoctrination and rehabilitation of all personnel in the community on race relations and equal opportunity matters." Major Moss sees the RRCG as "essential to all personnel, military and civilian, associated with Ft. Benning."

MEDDAC Wives' Book Club

BURY MY HEART AT WOUNDED KNEE by Dee Brown is the book club selection to be discussed at the March 7 meeting of MEDDAC wives. This book is an Indian history of the American West and the powerful story that haunts the nation. The meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Thomas Chisholm 450 Henson Ave. Columbus at 7:30 p.m. Please call the hostess at 687-3513 if you wish to attend. Anyone interested is invited to attend whether they belong to the MEDDAC Wives or not.

April's book selection is JONATHAN LIVINGSTON SEAGULL by Richard Bach.

MEDDAC Wives' Club

"You've Come a Long Way, Baby, could easily describe the theme for the March 9 MEDDAC Wives' Club luncheon. A lively presentation and discussion coordinated by Mrs. Franklin Hart will explore the role of women from the past through the present. Mrs. Hart, a consultant for women's programs at Columbus College, teaches the OWC course, "American Woman — Who Is She?"

The luncheon to be held at the PHOOM Supper Club begins with a sherry half-hour at noon. During this time there will be a receiving line to introduce MEDDAC wives to Mrs. George Woodard Jr., the new MEDDAC Commander's wife.

Hostesses will be wives from the Departments of Orthopedics, Nursing Service, and Dental Clinic No. 5 with Mrs. Lyle Bundt as chairman. Reservations or cancellations should be made by March 6.

Quarters Cleaning Policy

At the present time, there is no Government sponsored contract for cleaning family quarters at Fort Benning. Cleaning of Government family quarters upon termination of assignment is the responsibility of the individual occupant. There is no objection to the occupant contracting with a commercial cleaning firm and-or individual for cleaning services. However, neither the Family Housing Manager nor any Government agency is responsible for such contractual services. Under the provisions of paragraph 2c, AR 210-7, Personal Commercial Affairs, this service is considered to be related residence services, and therefore does not require an installation permit.

classes and the Headquarters Command future Hail and Farewell.

Served with coffee, tea, and a refreshing punch, Mrs. Rogers baked special valentine refreshments, including chocolate cream puffs and little cream cheese-raisin confections, and an assortment of sandwich tid-bits.

197th

The ladies of the 1st BN, 29th INF, held their monthly coffee on Feb. 15 in the Fort Benning Officers' Club. Hostesses for the coffee were Mrs. Al Burer and Mrs. Paul Tiberi. The Valentine's Day theme was carried out in the table decorations and the refreshments.

Welcomed to the group were Mrs. Bob James, Mrs. Bill Stallings and Mrs. Vince Risevi.

Important coming events were discussed. A Farewell Tea will be held for Mrs. Edwin Kennedy, wife of the 197th commander, on March 15 in the home of Mrs. Curtis Hoglan. Hostesses for the tea are the wives of the Battalion Commanders of the Brigade.

The ladies of the 197TH SUPPORT BATTALION gathered at the home of Mrs. Dennis Lott on Squires Lane, Fort Benning, for their monthly coffee on Feb. 15. Mrs. Lott and her co-hostess, Mrs. Dale Kays, welcomed the ladies to a congenial afternoon of business, discussion, champagne punch, chicken and ham salad loaf iced with cream cheese, cherry-filled sponge cake, and cookies.

Mrs. W. J. Eddins Jr., wife of the Battalion commander, presided over the business meeting along with Mrs. Richard Rockwell. They reminded the ladies of various OWC, Brigade, and Battalion events that will highlight the upcoming months. The Battalion Commanders' wives will host a tea for Mrs. Edwin Kennedy, wife of departing commander of the 197th Infantry Brigade, on March 15. The Brigade will sponsor a luncheon on March 23 at the Supper Club, featuring Mrs. Pat Walters, a retired Army wife who presents hints on what to do with government quarters, including the smartest buys when starting out, establishment of decor that will "go and grow," etc. Of special interest to the ladies will be the door prizes from the Carriage House and Carpet Mill Store. Wives in the 197th Support Battalion who plan to attend are reminded to make their reservations, if they have not already done so, through their company commander's wife by March 15.

The 197th proudly welcomed its newcomers: Mrs. Dennis Palmer, Mrs. Nicholas Licht, Mrs. Robert Steele, Mrs. Richard Weihurg, and Mrs. Steven Kriz.

The suggestion was made by Mrs. Eddins that future coffees make use of "local talent" within the Battalion and Brigade. Of particular note are some of the artistic talents, including painting, macrame, sewing, and home decorating ideas, in which members of the 197th staff can claim some expertise. The ladies agreed that their afternoon gatherings could be made even more enjoyable by such programs and delegated to the hostess for each coffee the responsibility for coming up with an idea.

Ranger Department

The officers' wives of the RANGER DEPARTMENT held a luncheon Feb. 15 at the FBOOM Supper Club, in honor of Mrs. Karl V. Hurdle, who will soon be leaving the Ranger Officers' Wives Club. Mrs. Hurdle's husband, Lt. Col. Karl V. Hurdle is presently the chairman of the Benning Ranger Committee.

The highlight of the luncheon was a special expose of Mrs. Hurdle's life entitled "This Is Your Life." Amusing slides were shown and narrated by Mrs. Victor Arndt. Following the slides, Mrs. Michael Brennan and Mrs. Gene Cole presented an amusing skit depicting some of the activities in which Mrs. Hurdle is involved. Mrs. Richard Horn, president of the Ranger Wives Club, presented Mrs. Hurdle with a silver gallery tray as a farewell gift from the Club. She was also presented with a framed original composition of "An Army Wife" composed by Mrs. Brennan.

Many of Mrs. Hurdle's friends and co-workers were special guests at the luncheon. They were Mesdames R. L. Brownlee, Daniel Robertson, Edgar Kelly, Russell Miller, David Lambert, William Sweeney, Michael Brennan, Robert Mayor and Gale Garnant.

A warm welcome was extended to Mesdames Dean Knox, Charles Cosand, Alan Holland, and Raymond Hitchcock.

Sad farewells were bid to Mrs. David Hennigan and Mrs. Jack Petri and they were presented with silver trays.

Company Operations Department

A tour of the Springer Opera House and a luncheon at the Opera House Saloon were enjoyed by the ladies of COMPANY OPERATIONS DEPARTMENT on Feb. 20. Hostesses were Platoon Tactics Committee wives.

The tour was conducted by Mrs. Arthur G. Springer, assistant to the Opera House business manager. Mrs. Springer's husband is the great-grandson of Francis Joseph Springer, the builder of the Opera House, and she generously shared her knowledge of the theatre's interesting past and present. A lovely Opera House calendar was presented to each of the ladies as a souvenir of the tour.

The luncheon fare at the Opera House Saloon consisted of the daily special and a variety of sandwiches ordered from the menu. The Gay 90's atmosphere was enhanced by the piano playing of "Mom" Whaite, a regular feature at the Saloon.

Mrs. Charles W. McInnis won the door prize — a gift certificate for five-dollars worth of enjoyment at the Opera House Saloon.

Shortly before the activities came to a close, announcements were made by Mrs. Herbert L. Frandsen, wife of the Department director.

Dramatizers hold open house

The Fort Benning Dramatizers will hold an open house reception on March 10, from 7-8 p.m. at the For Benning playhouse on Ingersoll behind the Infantry Museum for anyone interested in learning about the club.

Entertainment will be provided by members of the Dramatizers, including skits from various productions that the Dramatizers have performed.

Anyone is invited to attend the reception, military, civilian or dependent, who is interested in learning more about theater and theater organizations.

The purpose of the reception is to invite interested persons to join the theater group.

Dramatizers announce next play

The Fort Benning Dramatizers announce the selection of the next play to be produced at the Fort Benning Playhouse.

The play will be "The Cave Dwellers" directed by 1Lt. Shiela Dowse, the entertainment officer for the Playhouse.

Auditions will take place March 14, 15 and 16.

Further information may be obtained by calling the Playhouse at 545-2932.

Pancho Villa rides again in ward 5-A of hospital

The infamous Mexican Bandito, Pancho Villa rides again—at least in the memories of two retired soldiers in ward 5A of Martin Army Hospital.

MSG. Alberto Garcia Sr., and SFC Mike Henley, two retired soldiers found themselves next to each other on ward 5A. The two men began talking about their old Army days and found that they had fought against each other during the Mexican Border incidents in 1917.

Garcia was a soldier in Pancho Villa's Army before becoming an American soldier. Henry was with the all black 24th Infantry Regiment, which chased Pancho Villa back and forth across the border.

Garcia reminisced: "We were chased many times by the American troops, but we always stayed ahead of them. We hid in the hills and in the woods. Many times the American troops came within a few hundred yards of us."

"Those Mexicans were always too fast for us," said Henry. "They knew the territory very well and they could easily outdistance us, since we were dismounted." Henry stated, "Many times we came close to catching the Mexicans, but they managed to always stay ahead of us sometimes leaving their chow behind. We ate that chow and it was good."

Garcia joined Pancho Villa in Zacatecas, Mexico on June 24, 1914. He served with Pancho Villa until 1919 when he returned to his hometown. On March 5, 1924, Garcia joined the 7 U.S. Cavalry at Ft. Bliss, Texas.

Garcia saw action during World War II in Africa. He retired from active duty in 1952 after serving more than 34 years in the U.S. Army. Garcia is 74 years old and celebrated his 50th wedding anniversary on Feb. 11. He has four children and 11 grandchildren.

Mike Henry joined the U.S. Army on Dec. 29, 1913 in Columbus, Ohio. He spent from 1915-1917 in the Philippines. In 1917, he was sent with the 24th Infantry Regiment to Texas to fight against Pancho Villa.

Henry retired from active duty in 1947 after spending more than 32 years in the Army. Henry is 79 years old and has 16 boys and four girls scattered throughout the country.

Storm victim receives first aid.

931st participates in storm plan exercise

Many times mountains of paper are used to prepare plans which are filed away and never put to a test to see if they actually work. On Feb. 6 and 7th, the 931st Engineer Group supported by the 36th Medical Battalion conducted just such a test of their storm plan at the 3100 area of Sand Hill and Wetherby Field. Former Post Commander, Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott and 931st Commander, Col. James M. Thompson were also on hand to review the operation.

The Sand Hill area was arranged to simulate a business area struck by a tornado. The scene was complete with downed power lines, an overturned vehicle, a simulated burning building, casualties, and other sights which might be encountered should downtown Columbus actually be hit by a twister.

Units of the 931st Engr. Gp. were given the mission to provide general search, rescue, and life sustaining operations by providing light mobile rescue teams, a mortuary team, a water supply team, an electric light team and a food service team.

The exercise began with a storm warning followed by an order from the emergency operating center for the emergency teams to deploy to their designated sites. Teams arriving at the simulated business area were briefed by civilian liaison officers (acting as test evaluators) and then the members were dispatched with picks, shovels, and axes to clear wreckage and give aid to the "casualties." The civilian casualities wore tags denoting the degree and type of injury sustained. The rescue teams treated minior injuries while the seriously injured were taken by ambulance to Wetherby Field where Medivac was performed by the 36th Medical Battalion.

In addition to the rescue work, a water purification site was set up and the food service team provided food for the civilians evacuated from the storm wrecked business district.

According to Lieutenant Gene Pospicil assistant plans officer for the 931st, "the operation was a success and provided dynamic training for the individuals involved." The exercise was both valuable and timely for the real storm which hit the Columbus and Ft. Benning area a few days after the operation.

West Point Society to host Founder's day

"They are here in ghostly assemblage the men of the Corps long dead,
And our hearts are standing attention,
While we wait for their passing trade.
We sons of today, we salute you
You sons of an early-day;
. . . ."

Bishop Herbert Shipman
1910

The above words from the very moving hymn The Corps explains why each year members of the Long Gray Line gather all over the world to commemorate the founding of their Alma Mater. This year will be no exception. On March 17, the West Point Society of Fort Benning and Columbus will host a Founder's Day dinner in the Main Ballroom of the Fort Benning Officer's Open Mess.

The dinner will honor the 171st anniversary of the U.S. Military Academy at West Point. All graduates of the Military Academy and the Naval and Air Force Academies are invited.

General William C. Westmoreland (Ret.) will be the guest speaker for this "stag" dinner.

Gen. Westmoreland was graduated from the Military Academy in June 1936. He took his commission as a Second Lieutenant in the Field Artillery. Gen. Westmoreland was the Cadet First Captain and Regimental Commander. During his four years as a cadet he played basketball, ran cross country and participated in the pentathlon.

Gen. Westmoreland has commanded the 101st Airborne Division, the U.S. Army Republic of Vietnam, and the Military Assistance Command Vietnam. Gen. Westmoreland has also served as the Superintendent of the Military Academy and retired as the former Chief of Staff of the U.S. Army.

Usually the dominant figure in the scoring for HHC, 197th, PFC William (Slim) Dottery, (12), concentrated soley on rebounds for the HHC team in the championship contest. The strategy proved effective as HHC became the new post champions by defeating Co. D, 1-58th Inf. by a score of 74-70.

Sec. Richardson revises disability retirement

FT. MONROE, Va.—Secretary Elliot L. Richardson announced that revised guidelines have been issued to the Military Departments for administering physical disability retirement laws.

Secretary Richardson said the purpose of the guidelines are to insure greater consistency in the way determinations of unfitness for duty are made. Previously, the four Services had not been uniform in the handling of disability requests.

The revised guidelines require that a Service member be found fit for active duty unless he is unable to satisfactorily perform the duties of his office, rank, grade or rating. If the member has performed his normal duties until his time of separation, it will be presumed that he is fit for duty. While a member may request review of the presumption of fitness, evaluation boards normally will be required to give greater weight to his continued performance than to clinical estimates by health personnel of his ability to perform his duties.

It is expected that the guidelines will result in a decrease in physical disability retirements.

The Office of Assistant Secretary of Defense (Health and Environment) has been directed by Secretary Richardson to closely monitor determinations of fitness under the new guidelines.

The guidelines are not intended to affect the future physical disability retirement of those few disabled members, such as amputees, who, although not qualified for normal military duty, are retained on active duty in a limited assignment status because of their special skills or expertise.

The revised guidelines are being incorporated in Department of Defense Directive 1332.18, "Uniform Interpretation of Laws Relating to Separation From the Military Service by Reason of Physical Disability."

197th survey team completes schooling

A survey team from the 72nd Engineer Company, 197th Support Battalion, 197th Infantry Brigade has completed a one-week course at the Interservice Nuclear Weapons School in Albuquerque, N.M.

The engineers attended the annual Nuclear Emergency Team exercise held at the school, which contains the only live alpha radioactivity contamination sites in the U.S. for nuclear emergency team training.

Members of the survey team worked in realistic nuclear emergency situations, utilizing radiation defection instruments. They learned the importance and techniques of decontaminating persons exposed to radations in a nuclear accident.

One method used to train men to react to such situations is the "hot line." Using this system, a control point or "hot line" is established in the event of a nuclear accident. It then is used as the center of operations.

Persons exposed to radiation are segregated at this control point and decontaminated.

At the conclusion of the course members of the survey team viewed mock-ups of the nation's nuclear weapons arsenal in the Classified Weapons Museum.

One of the 197th Infantry Brigade's contingency missions calls for reaction to nuclear accidents in the local geographical area and providing safety for the local population. The education and information derived from attendance at the Interservice Nuclear Weapons School is one method used to assure preparedness in the event of such an emergency.

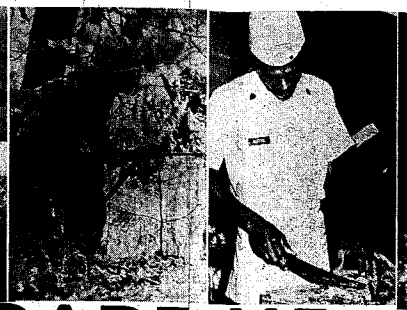
INFANTRY ARMOR ARTILLERY



From its inception late in 1962 to its achievement of the modern Volunteer Army objectives ten years later, the 197th Infantry Brigade has maintained a position of uniqueness and significance Army wide, but particularly in its role at Fort Benning. Originally organized with 11 units, including three battalions of infantry and three of Artillery, the 197th Brigade played a critical part in training soldiers for combat in Vietnam through its primary mission of supporting the U.S. Army Infantry School at Fort Benning. Arranged under the Reorganization Objective Army Division (ROAD) concept, the 197th Brigade met its mission objectives by utilizing a variety of units some featuring specialized equipment and troops trained in unusual but necessary skills.

Early entries in the specialty category were a chemical platoon, equipped to perform such tasks as providing smoke screens in amphibious operations and a scout dog platoon (only recently inactivated) which aided the Infantry School's instruction in techniques of employing scout dogs to detect mines, booby traps and enemy troops. Some of its original units provided the 197th Infantry Brigade with solid historical ties to units formed when Army units were organized locally. The 1st Bn., 211th Arty., activated with the 197th Brigade in 1962, traces its origin to a Rhode Island company which fought in the American Revolution, War of 1812, Civil War and eventually found a place in Gen. George S. Patton's Third Army in Europe in World War II. Another of the 197th Brigade's original units, Co. D, 151st Inf. (attached to 5th Bn., 31st Inf.), was organized in 1846 and fought in the Civil War as part of the Indiana Volunteers. When it was assigned to the 197th Brigade, Co. D, 151st Inf. was the only unit of the Indiana National Guard in active federal service.

THE BRIGADE MEANS MEN

Clockwise, from top left: Sgt. Willie G. Wells (left) and PFC Jacob Tharpe check the sighting on a 4.2 inch mortar prior to firing during a demonstration for a class of students at Redcloud Range. Both soldiers are members of HHC, 1st Bn., 29th Inf., 197th Infantry Brigade.

An Infantryman from the 1st Bn., 29th Inf. (Pioneers,' maneuvers through woods while supporting an Infantry School field problem. A "straight leg" infantry battalion, the 1st of the 29th lends basic infantry support to many phases of training conducted by the Infantry School.

Sp/5 Lorenzo Nottage of HHC, 197th Inf. Bde., was recently selected cook of the month for the 197th Inf. Bde. for the month of February. Nottage is first cook for the headquarters company dining facility.

Soldiers from the 1st Bn., (Mech) 58th Inf., 197th Inf. Bde., demonstrate the "fire" power of a mechanized infantry unit for IOBC class 2-73.

The Pioneer Drill Team from the 1st Bn., 29th Inf. (Pioneers), demonstrates its drill and marching maneuvers at Golden Park in Columbus as it has in many locations throughout the Southeast, spreading the message of the Modern Volunteer Army.

Two M-48 tanks from Co. H, 69th Ar., 197th Spt. Bn., 197th Inf. Bde., move out on a field training exercise in support of training at the Infantry School.

INFANTRY ARMOR ARTILLERY

By 1970 the Kelley Hill unit contained more than 5,000 men, ranking it as the Army's largest brigade. Eventually, however, a reduction in manpower needs caused the unit to be trimmed in both numbers of units and men. But despite a smaller size (four battalions and about 3,150 men), the 197th Brigade has retained sufficient men, equipment and unit divisions to continue its support of the Infantry School's instruction. Due to its mission and proximity to the Infantry School, Combat Developments Command Infantry Agency, Combat Arms Training Board and other similar agencies, the 197th Brigade has participated in the testing of new weapons and equipment on a recurring basis. Notable examples of this work include the TOW weapon system, tested by th 1st Bn., Mech, 58th Inf. Pioneers and the Dragon weapon system, tested by the 1st Bn., (Mech), 58th Inf. (Patriots). Early in 1971 the 197th Brigade undertook the most crucially important mission in its history when, along with Ft. Bragg's 82nd Airborne Division and at that time Ft. Lewis' 3rd Armored Cavalry Regiment, it was tasked with testing the Benning Plan for a Modern Volunteer Army and conducting unit-of-choice recruiting. The initiation of sweeping changes designed to improve living conditions, working conditions and job satisfaction proved to be catalysts in the program's success. In conjunction with the unit-of-choice recruiting effort the 197th Brigade sent men and equipment to a number of cities throughout the Southeast to perform, provide displays and complete community action projects which improved the Army's image and provided the impetus for service-oriented men to volunteer for the 197th Brigade under the fledgling program. [illegible] were being filled by volunteers and by late last year draftees had become scarce items, reminders of outdated era. The unit-of-choice enlistees which loom as the keystone of the Modern Volunteer Army concept now fill the ranks of the Brigade's four battalions— 1st Bn. 29th Inf. Pioneers), Ya Bn. (Mech), 58th Inf. (Patriots), 2nd Bn., 10th Arty. and 197th Spt. Bn. —and its Headquarters and Headquarters Company, [illegible] used at Fort Benning [illegible]

Coming to the screen

THE HEARTBREAK KID . . . Lenny (Charles Grodin) and Lila (Jeannie Berlin) have just been married and are on their way for a Miami honeymoon. While there Lila gets a bad sunburn and is confined to her motel room while Lenny takes to the beach alone. There he meets sexy young Kelly (Cybill Shepherd) who is visiting with her rich parents (Eddie Albert and Audra Lindley) from Minnesota. Lila's maddening idiosyncrasies freak Lenny and he leaves her to pursue and wed Kelly against some strong resistance.

WHAT BECAME OF JACK AND JILL? . . . This is the story of a Jack and Jill (Paul Nicholas and Vanessa Howard). A young man, Jack to us, has spent a good deal of his 22 years waiting hand and foot on his granny (Mona Washbourne). Granny's not enormously wealthy but her money would do him and girlfriend Jill just fine if she would conveniently kick the bucket. Ruthlessly hungry — not only for each other — but for the "good things" of life, Jack and Jill climb up the hill to murder rich granny.

PICK UP ON 101 . . . The film tells about three people of very different ways and means who happen to come together on the open road. Aging hobo, Jack Albertson, hopes to get back a piece of farmland he once owned in Lower California. Beautiful coed, Lesley Warren, has an itch for communal life and is on her way to a settlement in New Mexico. Itinerant folk singer, Martin Sheen, is Los Angeles bound in his old Cadillac. The "highway musketeers" join forces for a journey of surprises and unusual relationships.

RED SUN . . . Tagged the first East meets West Western, RED SUN is based on a true event in the American West of 1870 when an outlaw, a gunfighter, a prostitute and a Samurai warrior join together in the pursuit of greed, glory, and gore. Robber Alain Delon has a stolen and very valuable Samurai sword in his possession. Toshiro Mifune, guard to the Japanese Ambassador to the USA, wants it for honor's sake; Charles Bronson wants it for money's sake. Bronson and Mifune kidnap Ursula Andress, Delon's girl, and these truly magnificent four become the greatest fighting machine the West has ever known.

SNOWBALL EXPRESS . . . Dean Jones inherits a rundown hotel in the wilds of snowbound Colorado. He decides to take his wife, Nancy Olson, children, Johnny Whitaker and Kathleen Cody, and a St. Bernard dog, and escape the rigors of the New York insurance game rat race. Arriving, they discover there is a lot of work to do. Overcoming disillusionment, they fix the place up nicely. Jones discovers that there is a lot more than he bargained for as he takes on crusty old mountaineer Harry Morgan and money-hungry local banker, Keenan Wynn. Jones enters a snowmobile contest in order to get some money and the ensuing results provide a good deal of excitement for both him and the audience. This Walt Disney production is guaranteed to keep youngsters and parents alike entertained.

Post theaters need your help in controlling noisey atmosphere

Results of recent surveys conducted by the Personnel Management Development Office, HQ DA, indicate that military personnel feel that a noisy atmosphere is the most disturbing feature of Army and Air Force Theaters. In the interest of operating military theaters for the maximum enjoyment of all military personnel and their dependents, steps are required to eliminate the inconsiderate action of some theater patrons because of the adverse effect it has on theater participation. The attendance of family groups, couples, and others is discouraged by the boisterous conduct, audible off-color comments, "cat-calls," objectionable and inconsiderate behavior of a few.

USO to have convention at Atlanta branch

On March 29th, 30th, and 31st there will be a convention in Atlanta, Georgia, for the United Service Organization. Attending this will be the Executive Councils and the Executive Directors from all statewide USO operations.

The Atlanta, Georgia, USO has been asked to supply the entertainment for each of the nights of this convention.

We are looking for all types of talent — singers, actors, actresses, dancers, and musicians or small combo groups.

If you would be interested in performing, please contact Sam Little and advise when you would be available for an audition.

The Atlanta USO discotheque operates on Friday nights and Saturday nights each week and we will be very glad to make a break for those people wishing to audition for us before a live audience.

Tryouts open for next play

The Fort Benning Dramatizers will be holding tryouts for their next production, William Saroyan's "The Cave Dwellers," March 14, 15 and 16 at the Fort Benning Playhouse, Bldg. 1237, on Ingersoll behind the Infantry Museum at 7:30 p.m.

"The Cave Dwellers" has parts for five women and nine men and is the story of some out of luck actors who take refuge in a theater which is about to be demolished.

Also needed are people to work on the play in such capacities as: set construction, costumes, makeup, lighting, sound, publicity, house beautification and other positions. People interested in being on a technical crew are also asked to come to the tryouts to talk to the technical director.

Tryouts are open to anyone interested, military, civilian or dependent. All are welcome to come. Further information may be obtained by calling the Playhouse at 545-2932.

Super-fun

'Allison Wonderland' opens March 2

When the Springer Children's Theatre production of ALLISON WONDERLAND opens on March 2 at the Springer Opera House, the first-nighters will be seeing the initial performance of the Southeastern Premier of Thom Racina's super-fun rock musical for everyone.

ALLISON WONDERLAND was first produced two years ago while Racina was completing his MFA degree at the Goodman Theatre and School of Drama in Chicago. The production marked the first time the Goodman Children's Theatre had produced an original work by a student, and it was a good thing they decided to do this one because it was a smash hit and broke all box office records.

The play, originally titled ALICE IN WONDERLAND, ran for three and a half months at Goodman and was described in the Chicago Sun-Times as "the theatrical surprise of the year." Critics and playgoers found the surprise package of ALLISON WONDERLAND loaded with familiar characters with brand new images—from a hippie caterpillar to an ex-movie queen duchess. The updated characters belted out delightful, bouncy songs and witty dialogue as Allison made her way through a television generation Wonderland.

Thanks to the glowing reviews the play received in Chicago area newspapers and theatrical publications, news of Thom Racina's many talents reached far beyond the Goodman School and its patrons. After all, not only had he written the book, music and lyrics of ALLISON WONDERLAND, he had also directed the production.

This first major success opened many doors for Racina. Following quickly on the heels of ALLISON was the Goodman production of another Racina delight, THE MARVELOUS MISADVENTURE OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, which ran successfully for three months. Both plays will soon be published by Samuel French, Inc., the world's largest theatrical publisher. After leaving Goodman, Racina, a Kenosha, Wisconsin native, found himself bound for the West Coast under contract to Warner Brothers.

Looking Forward To Being A Civilian?

Look Forward To Colorado

WHY COLORADO? Because the natural attractions of this state are just now being discovered. The majestic mountains—the clear rushing streams—the pure, crisp air—the green, fertile land—the healthful climate—the opportunity to get away from the noise, the dirt, the crowds, the pollution of city living—all this is making land in Colorado sought after all over America.

NOW, you can be a part of this re-discovered America—you can own land in this amazing state at Colorado Mountain Estates. And, you may own this land on low, easy budget terms—good, fertile, scenic land backed by a company with an outstanding reputation in the development field.

This land at Colorado Mountain Estates was purchased years ago before good land in this area became scarce—before other developers began searching for property where people could return to the happy, healthy life that is fast becoming a thing of the past.

Colorado Mountain Estates has so much to offer you—so many wonderful advantages it is impossible to list them all here. But we would like you to know more about our property. It may be just what you have been looking for. So, we have prepared a kit of materials with actual color pictures of the property—maps showing where it is located—and how you may own part of Colorado Mountain Estates on our budget terms. We'd like to send it to you. We believe Colorado Mountain Estates is worth considering as a home for you now, or in the future—a vacation spot for years to come—or as a long term investment in an area where good land will not be available forever.

Colorado Mountain Estates is within 41 miles of three military installations offering the advantages of BX, Commissary, Military Hospitals, NCO and Officers Clubs.

See the coupon? Your name and address on this coupon will bring you complete information on Colorado Mountain Estates—no cost, no obligation—just a stamp and we'll do the rest. Send it today. All right?

ROD AND GUN CLUB Notes

By BILL KLOEB

Rod and Gun Club skeet shooters have planned several activities for the next two weekends.

Tomorrow the club will hold a four gun shoot open only to members of the club. The shoot which will start at 9:30 a.m. will feature competition with the 12, 20, 28 and 410 gauge guns. Entry fee is $5 for each gun. Patches will be awarded to champions.

The club will also hold registered shooting to allow members an opportunity to qualify for classification. Shooters may shoot with the gauge gun of their preference with 100 targets being available for each shooter each day. Cost is $6.75 per hundred targets.

On Saturday, March 10 at 9:30 a.m. the club will hold a clinic for beginners. Ladies and juniors are specially invited. The clinic will include demonstrations by experienced shooters and instruction concerning, safety, weapon handling and the skeet course. Those who do not have a shotgun may use one furnished by the club. The club plans to hold one of these clinics each month providing the turnout for this session indicates sufficient interest. The only cost for the clinic will be 75c for targets.

The skeet ranges and trap range will be open to other shooters who do not want to participate in these events from noon until 6 p.m. each of these days. Current hours of operation for the ranges are from noon until 6 p.m. each Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday.

Spring Gobbler Season

Georgia and Alabama Game and Fish Commissions have announced the open periods for turkey hunting this spring. Of course the dates are different for most of the counties and some don't have any open season at all. Anyone who intends to travel to hunt had better check the entire lists but for the Alabama side of the reservation the open season will run from March 15 until March 25. On the Georgia side of the reservation, Chattahoochee and Muscogee counties, the season extends from March 24 until April 28.

Only gobblers or male turkeys will be taken on the reservation and each hunter may take only one bird from the entire reservation. Hunters on the Georgia side of the reservation must have a Georgia Big Game Stamp. All kills must be registered at the Fish and Wildlife game check point telephone 545-6120 within 24 hours after the turkey is taken.

In addition to the open seasons some of the game refuges will schedule special hunts. These hunts are usually limited to a few days and the number of hunters are also limited. The first hunt to be announced is the 1973 Spring Gobbler Hunt on the Piedmont National Wildlife Refuge at Round Oak, Ga. This one will go six days from April 16 to 21. Only 300 hunters will receive permits. Applications should be mailed to the Refuge Manager, Piedmont National Wildlife Refuge, Round Oak, Ga. 31080. Enclose a self addressed stamped, business sized envelope for each two applications desired. Get them in early because the applications must be returned by March 28.

Hunting Takes Planning

Anyone who wants to take a turkey during the coming season had better do some planning and field reconnaisance. Turkeys are hard to find in this area. Back in the nineteen fifties turkeys were plentiful. The annual turkey harvest approximated the annual deer harvest which ran at about forty or fifty animals a year. While the deer population and harvests on post continued to increase by great percentages the turkeys haven't done so well. About 1964 and 65 there was a downward trend in the turkey population. Some people blamed the large numbers of helicopters used by the 11th Air Assault Division which was training at Benning during that period but the reduction wasn't just local. It happened all over the two state area. They seemed to be doing okay one year and had practically disappeared the next. The Game Commissions limited the open seasons to a short period each year and cut them out entirely in some counties but the birds have been slow in making a comback.

If you want a turkey this spring you are going to have to locate them before the season starts. From the lack of signs this year now would not be too early to start.

Bullets move into first with victory

In last week's Youth Activities Doughboy League basketball action the Bullets moved into sole possession of first place with a 47-26 win over the Gamblers. In the second league game the Grasshoppers dropped the Bucks by a 53-19 count.

The Bullet-Gambler contest was close after the first two quarters of play and the Bullets went into the locker room with an 18-13 halftime lead. In the third and fourth quarters the Bullets continued to build their lead and by the end of the contest they had 7 players hitting for points.

Bullet Tim Booth netted 15 points for game high point honors and Steve Darbonne hit for 12 points for game runnerup scoring honors. Bob Heaukulani and Wally Archie scored 6 points each and Keith Book hit 4 points for the Bullets. Ernett Lee and John Seigel rounded out the Bullet scoring with 2 points each.

For the Gamblers Bernard Thomas zipped 8 points for team high point honors and Keith Presley scored 6 points for team runnerup scoring honors. Gamblers Ken Robinson and Egon Grissom notted 5 points each and Harry Grissom tallied 2 points to complete their team scoring.

In their 53-19 win the Grasshoppers led the Bucks throughout the contest. At halftime the Hoppers held a commanding 30-10 lead primarily because of the hot hand of Dewey Caulder.

Caulder scored 28 points for game high point honors and Hoppers Jim Bell and Cal Griffin hit for 8 points each. David McCarit netted 5 points and Reginald Crocker zipped 4 points in their team's victory.

Brad Scott led the Bucks scoring with 9 points which also gave him game runnerup scoring honors. Buck Gus Schneider lit the board for 6 points and Samuel Norris hit 4 points to complete the Buck scoring.

Company of the Month

Winner of the first award for the Outstanding Company of the Month of the 43rd Engr. Bn. for January is C Company with 599 points. The point totals were gathered from twenty indicators of performance that included such items as AWOL rate, participation in the paper recycling program and soldier's award programs.

In addition, points were also awarded for winning one of the already existing incentive programs like soldier and driver of the month. Points can be lost by a company for crime, racial incidents, failure to meet operational committments and missing suspense dates.

C Company as winner of the award, receives a training holiday and a streamer for its guidon, which was presented to the company during a Battalion Ceremony on 13 Feb. The streamer will be awarded to the winning team with trophies and medals presented to members of the winning team and individual winners.

Official referee, scorers, and challenge judges were furnished by the U. S. Army Marksmanship Training Unit, Fort Benning.

Jordan High School sets record

A smallbore outdoor Junior Reserve Officer Training Course Rifle Match was held at Parks International Range, Fort Benning, 17 February.

The ten teams participating were represented by two counties, Muscogee County School District High Schools, Columbus, Ga., and Hillsborough County High Schools, Tampa, Florida.

Jordan High School won the match with an overall score of 1302, which set a new record. Members of the winning team are Billy Frost, MSG (ret.) coach, Harry Lehman, Barry Lee, Ronnie Tillostson, Faron Brooks, and Eddie Carden.

Hillsborough High School finished a close second with a score of 1301, and Columbus High School came in third with a score of 286.

Each team was composed of five men and fired 10 record shots each from the prone, kneeling and standing position.

The combined score of all five members of a team constituted the total score.

High individual winner was Harry Lehman of Jordan with a score of 277. Following him was Joseph Males of Hillsborough with a score of 274. John McNally of Columbus finished third with a 272.

Are you putting me on?

This man was just asked to wait for another flight.

If time is money, Eastern's Leisure Class may be the most profitable way you could waste your time.

Leisure Class costs the same as you'd pay for a military reservation coach ticket (65 regular coach fare). But we don't guarantee you'll get on your scheduled flight because Leisure Class is a conditional reservation.

If you do, it's the same as Coach. If Coach is full, you may fly First Class. (Without paying anything extra.)

Here comes the good part: If the whole plane is full, you won't get on at all. But, you get your money back. And we put you on the very next flight that has seats available to your destination.

There are a couple of qualifications. Leisure Class does not apply to some reduced fare tickets. Or to the Air Shuttle, or Bermuda, Jamaica, Mexico and Bahama flights.

Or when the originally scheduled plane is grounded due to adverse weather conditions, equipment failure or equipment substitutions.

In order to qualify for a free ride, ask for a Leisure Class reservation and present your ticket at the boarding gate twenty minutes before flight time. And if you have to wait, it will be from several minutes to several hours. But if you've got more time than money, you probably won't mind at all.

Call Eastern or your JAMTO office for more details. (As if you didn't have enough already.)

Sergeant Cornell Russell is a drill sergeant. He's a friendly guy. He likes people and they like him.

"I chose this job because I always wanted to work with people. When I came into the Army the drill sergeants who trained me were really enthusiastic and they gave me that same enthusiasm.

"One of the great things about the Army is that you meet a variety of people from all walks of life. Every day you meet somebody new and interesting and you get to know them and like them. To me that's important.

"I've worked hard at my job and I'm proud to say that I have always had 100% graduation in my classes. I feel good about that."

The Army is giving Sergeant Russell plenty of opportunity for job satisfaction.

The Army gives a man a lot of other opportunities, too. Job and educational opportunities. With the hundreds of jobs in the Army, there's bound to be a dozen or so that will give you the kind of challenge you're looking for.

And travel opportunities in Europe, Korea, Hawaii, Alaska, Panama. And the time to get to know a country the way no tourist ever could.

The opportunity to save money on everyday things. Like free housing, dental and medical care. Commissary and post exchange privileges. Low-cost life insurance, to name a few.

Man's best friend used to achieve professionalism

By Pete Foreman

"Whenever the term military dog is mentioned, nearly everyone pictures a mean and vicious animal," says Capt. Roger H. Sellers, Deputy Chairman of Fort Benning's new Military Dog Detachment. "The tactical dog is in reality . . . trained to save lives of American fighting men."

Improvements in dog operations are helping the soldier do his job with more professionalism and safety.

The Army closed down the last of its tactical dog units last year and is keeping its experts in dog training in the Military Dog Detachment. Now that the top dog trainers have been gathered under one roof, they are pooling their experience and knowledge and are training dogs to do new jobs for the soldier.

The Vietnam War, for example, showed a need to help the infantryman maintain or regain contact with a fleeing enemy force. He needed a means of tracking.

Traditionally, the tactical dog was really two dogs. There was a German Shepherd Scout Dog to detect unseen enemy personnel, and a German Shepherd Mine and Tunnel Dog to detect mines, boobytraps, and other enemy equipment. Neither of these dogs was suited for tracking.

To give the infantry soldier tracking capability, the Army adopted the British technique of using Laborador Retrievers. The dogs proved successful throughout the Vietnam War in tracking down enemy troops.

Last year, the Military Dog Detachment perfected the tracking technique. The Detachment trained visual tracking soldiers to handle the tracker dogs. These tracking teams have turned out to be the most professional the Army has ever had.

"All tracker dogs need are known start points to give them a scent," said Lt. Col. Bob Lomax, Commander of the Military Dog Detachment. "They can follow the trail of a person faster than a man can walk."

Apart from the Vietnam War, recent natural disasters have pointed out other possible uses for the tactical dog.

The Army has been called on several times to locate the victims of hurricanes, tornadoes, and earthquakes. To do this unpleasant but necessary task with a degree of professionalism, the Army again turned to the Military Dog Detachment.

"We have to locate bodies that are buried in mud, water, and debris," said Lomax, "Woody (Capt. Woodrow L. Quinn Jr., the Detachment's Research and Development Officer) was the first to experiment with a body recovery dog in Hurricane Camille, in 1969.

When we formed the Military Dog Detachment we worked closely with the Land Warfare Laboratories in Aberdeen, Md., to develop a reliable body recovery dog. We now have four trained recovery dogs on hand. They can distinguish between human and animal smell and will alert the handler when they locate a human."

Lomax was quick to point out that, although research and development is a main activity, the Military Dog Detachment has other missions. The unit is under the control of the Infantry School's Company Operations Department, directed by Col. Herbert L. Frandsen. Training handlers and tactical dogs and assisting Infantry School classes are also part of the Detachment's job.

The Detachment is developing some dog techniques for the future, however, that will greatly help the professional soldier. One of their goals is to combine the three different types of tactical dogs into one.

Another goal is to develop a remotely controlled dog to locate enemy targets. Experiments with the Office of Medical Research and Development have proved that a dog's heart beat and skin temperature change when he detects the enemy. With an attached monitoring device a dog working a mile away from an infantry unit could be used to detect enemy forces or equipment.

How will the much publicized superdog affect military dog operations?

"First of all," answered Lomax, "the term super-dog is misleading. What is being developed at Edgewood Arsenal is an improved breed of German Shepherd. The breed will be more intelligeot, trainable, and not afflicted with the problem of hip dysplasia, which is the separation of the hip socket.

"They estimate that the breeding program will take seven generations. They are on the third now. The results so far have beeo successful.

"We have a few of their second generation dogs. They were a little shy at first but were very quick to learn and have turned out to be real fine dogs."

With an improved breed of dog and with all the expert dog trainers working together at Fort Benning, the Army can look forward to significant developments with the military dog.

"I think we have the highest concentration of professional dog trainers that the Army has ever collected in one place," concluded Lomax. "They are convinced of the long term value of the military dog and are doing all they can to keep the momentum of the program alive."

Ten get silver dollars

Ten more persons at Fort Benning each have five silver dollars to jingle in their pockets as a result of the post seat belt program.

The latest drivers to receive silver dollars for demonstrating safety awareness by wearing seat belts and requiring their passengers to do the same are:

Mrs. Diane F. Lister, wife of SFC Lister, 1st Battalion, The School Brigade, E5 Lester A. G. Tuzieka, Company D., Headquarters Command; Capt. Richard N. Elliott, 1st Battalion, The School Brigade; Mrs. Frank Bonvillain, wife of Capt. Bonvillain, 1st Battalion, The School Brigade; Mrs. Rhonda Grace, wife of Capt. Grace 1st Battalion, The School Brigade; E6 Jose C. Arispe, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, The School Brigade; E4 Franklin D. Eldridge, E4 Milton Davis and E5 Leonard A. Anheien, all of the 43rd Engineer Battalion, 93ist Engineer Group, and E7 Floyd M. Smith, Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 197th Support Battalion, 197th Infantry Brigade.

Seat belt safety promotion is a continuing effort by the post Safety Office, which has $300 a month in non-appropriated funds to support the program.

THERE'S A LOT OF EXCITEMENT GOING ON IN OUR SHOWROOM

IT'S CALLED THE '73 LAGUNA.

Laguna is our new top-of-the-line Chevelle. It's elegant and stylish. As exciting as its name.

This luxury Chevelle has a sleek new look all its own—a front end of tough urethane that's both beautiful and practical. Together with the hydraulic bumper system, it cushions the shock of minor impacts.

There's also excitement under Laguna's hood—a 350-2 V8 is standard.

Like to get in on all this excitement? Come on in and take a test drive. You, like many others, may find that Laguna is all the car you need with all the luxury you want.

Avn. Cmd. relocates gate

The USAIC Command today reached the pinnacle of achievement in the Self-help program.

After first gaining permission of the Post Engineers to relocate an unused gate, men of the Aviation Command S-4 Section, under the supervision of SFC Nolan Hamilton, removed the gate from its previous location, transported it to Lawson Army Airfield, and installed it as a part of the security fence surrounding the Aviation Cmmand.

Maj. Alan N.Woolley, Deputy Commander, Aviation Command, played a prominent part in ceremonies marking this auspicious occasion by cutting the silver ribbon and declaring the gate fully operational and ready for immediate use.

"It couldn't have been done better by the Post Engineers themselves," remarked one observer.

Engineer school starts

Company A, 43rd Engr. Bn. is going to provide the AIT-OJT for twenty new graduates of Basic Training. The trainees will arrive at A Company in Harmony Church later this month. After approximately six weeks of on the job training, the men will be awarded the MOS of 62B10, Engineer Equipment Repairman.

Their trining will be conducted by the maintenance platoon of A Company, which provides direct support maintenance of engineer equipment to the rest of the battalion, Director of instruction will be CW-2 John A. Bovaird, Engineer Maintenance Technician.

Tax time again

Here it is income tax time again. With April 15, the Federal Income Tax deadline faces millions of American taxpayers. It becomes paramount that each individual prepare his tax form intelligently to reduce any unwarranted overpayment and at the same time pay "Uncle" that which is due him by that date.

Each taxpayer who is required to file, has a somewhat distinctive circumstance and therefore different result. For best results, each should study the tax rules for his particular situation.

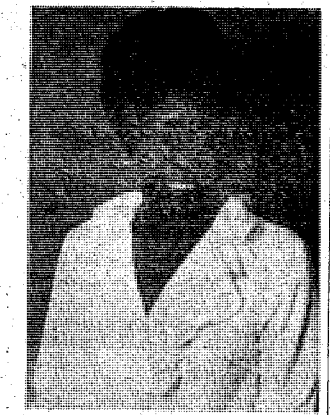
Until six years ago, the American soldier had a case in the income Tax laws in which he felt that he was being discriminated against. The GI had been denied the deduction of the cost of maintenance of his fatigue uniform while other uniformed persons such as nurses, policemen and letter-carriers, were permitted to deduct this expense item in their federal 1040.

All this has changed. Thanks to retired Army Maj. Frederick W. Young, Jr., a modern crusader, who took up the challenge, and after due course of time, won for the discriminated class (soldiers) a reprieve and the privilege of a just deduction.

Young, who is now a Safety Officer in the Fort Benning Safety Branch, waged a modern battle with the IRS in Washington on behalf of the soldier. He didn't storm the capitol city on a white charger brandishing a gleaming two-edged sword, but he did perform battle with a mightier weapon — the pen.

It was in January 1966, that Major Young first picked up the challenge and commenced his letter duel with the Income Tax Branch, requesting that they allow the soldiers to deduct the cost and maintenance of fatigue uniforms. His request was denied.

Young didn't give up that easily. In April, he wrote IRS again, setting forth in detail the reasons why the duty uniform (fatigues) should be a deductible item, and asked that his request be reconsidered.



"It was my contention", Major Young stated, "that since other uniformed persons were allowed to deduct the maintenance cost of their duty uniforms, the Army fatigues should also be allowed."

According to Young, the criteria established for the deduction by the IRS was that the uniforms be specifically required as a condition of employment and not of a type adaptable to general or continued usage to the extent that they take the place of ordinary clothing.

Young stated, "I felt strongly that the Army work uniforms met the criteria, and that the soldier was being doubly penalized in that he was prohibited from wearing the duty uniform in public places such as shopping, in a theater or a restaurant, while this privilege was allowed other uniformed workers who were allowed the itemized deduction of the cost of uniform maintenance."

"Maintenance alone, including laundering and repairs, cost the soldier well over a hundred dollars a year," he added.

Finally in October 1966, Major Young received a letter from the U.S. Treasury Department stating that following a review of his request they had reversed their decision and a deduction would be allowed for the maintenance cost of the fatigue uniforms.

Gotta complaint—write down and send it to the Bayonet. No sense in being silent when something bothers you.

'Red Carpet' sale at commissary

The Main Commissary at Fort Benning is holding a "Red Carpet" sale beginning next Tuesday, Mar. 13 and lasting through Saturday, Mar. 17.

Approximately 100 items will be on sale throughout the store, in various departments (not including meat and produce). There will be markdowns on all 100 of these items.

In addition, customers may use coupons which have been given out this week at the Commissary for further discounts on the sale items.

This sale is the first of its kind in a Comtussary store the size of Fort Benning's. It is part of a new policy allowing Commissaries to hold sales.

There will be several more sales of this type between now and June, in connection with a Department of the Army customer relations improvement program.

Door prizes will be given out each day, and a drawing for the grand prize will be held on Saturday. Grand prize is a set of tires, and other prizes are a gift certificate for the Post Exchange and a portable television set.

Five metal doghouses, 20 baskets of groceries, 6 hostess warmer trays, 6 American flags, and 12 insulated food containers will also be given away.

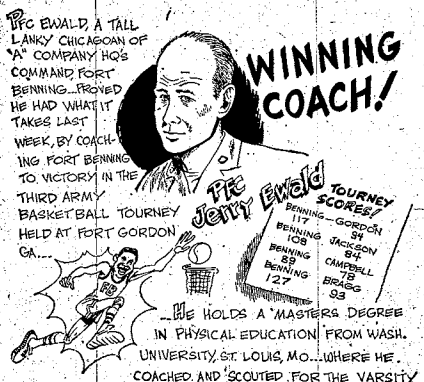
Benning bags Bragg for Basketball Trophy

Paced by center Abraham McCall's 36 points (tournament High) a balanced team attack and seven players scoring in double figures, Fort Benning easily handled Ft. Bragg 127-93 last Friday night at Fort Gordon bringing home the Third U.S. Army Basketball Tournament Trophy.

John Black and Timothy Griffin were both voted to the Third Army Allstar Team with Griffin grabbing the "Most Valuable Player' for Fort Benning.



Griffin ended with 89 points for the four game series and top scorer for the Fort Benning team. Tim was able to put the points on the scoreboard when they were needed. Griffin attended Misawa Dependent High School and played college ball at Yakima Valley College, both in Japan.

John Black had 85 points for the four game tournament also adding leadership and was an outstandingly consistant player during the entire series.

A big factor that enabled Benning to take the championship undefeated were the high quality of players from the bench. Coach Gerald Ewald expressed that "We have a running team and that means that our entire team gets a workout. I could go to my bench at any time without worrying and know that I had men that could not only do the job but do an outstanding job."

The Fort Benning Post Team will play in the Bibb City Invitational at Comer Auditorium the 19-24 of March.

Secretary of Army to talk to local AUSA

Secretary of the Army Robert F. Froehlke will address the Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning Chapter, Association of the U.S. Army (AUSA) at the organization's annual general membership meeting April 10 at 7:30 p.m. in Marshall Auditorium.

Announcement of the meeting and guest speaker was made by Charles Daley, president of the local AUSA chapter. Daley also said a social hour will be held from 6 p.m. until 7 p.m. at the Supper Club of the Main Officers Open Mess.

Secretary Froelke, an Infantryman during World War II with service in the European Theater of Operations, was nominated by President Nixon to be Assistant Secretary of defense in January of 1969 and took office a short time later.

On August 1, 1969, he was assigned responsibility for all intelligence resources in the Department of the Army, and, on Aug. 26, 1970, Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird named him chairman of the Blue Ribbon Action Committee. He was named chairman of the Defense Investigative Review Council.

Following nomination by the President and confirmation by the U.S. Senate, he was sworn in as Secretary of the Army on July 1, 1971, by Laird.

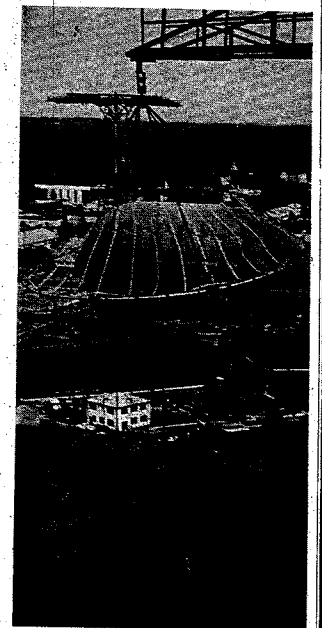
A native of Wisconsin, Froehlke graduated from the University of Wisconsin Law School.

He and his wife have four children.

For understanding

Lt. Gen. Zais to confer with civilians

Seven Third Army area civilian aides to the Secretary of the Army will confer at Fort Benning March 14-15.



They will be joined by Lt. Gen. Melvin Zais, Third Army Commander, and Maj. Gen. S. H. Matheson, Third Army Deputy commander.

Aides scheduled to attend the conference are Will Hill Tankersley, Alabama; William G. Mateer, Florida; James B. Williams, Georgia; Robert L. Gavin, North Carolina; Joab M. Dowling, South O. McConnie, Jr., Puerto Rico.

Also attending will be Arthur Allen, assistant to Carolina; Thomas F. Elam, Tennessee, and Julian the Secretary of the Army.

Civilian aides serve a four-fold purpose. They recommend to the Secretary of the Army, actions which should be taken to correct erroneous impressions and broaden public understanding of the army and its members; they advise the Secretary and the pertinent major commanders on public attitudes toward the Army within the aide's geographical area of responsibility; they disseminate information about the objectives, role, requirements and major programs, of the Army, and they recommend ways and means of attaining the maximum in understanding and cooperation between the civilian community and the Army, and of promoting mutual appreciation of the needs and problems of each.

Aides are appointed on an honorary basis by the Secretary without remuneration for their services. They are appointed for two-year terms.

How do your buddies influence your drinking?

Drinking is not something you should be talked into

Spc Joseph Thomas
Co. B HHC

I don't touch it. I don't care too much for alcohol, and since I've been in the Army, I have not let any of my buddies influence me to drink, not even socially.

SSgt. Larry Connor
HHC USAIB

Well, I hate to admit that my friends influence me to drink but I think I do drink more when I go out with them, than I do when I go out alone.

Sgt. Willy G. Wells
HHC 1st Bn, 29th Inf.

I like to drink when I'm out with the fellas and we're just talking and out to have a good time. Even social drinking, I don't drink very much.

Pvt. 2 Rickey Kuhn
10th Co. 1st Bjt.

I just hang in there with the gang and do whatever they do. If they drink a lot, so do I. If they drink a little, so do I. Sometimes the drinking gets carried away, so I guess my buddies do influence my drinking.

PFC Charles Holmes
Co. B 1st of 58

None what so ever. My buddies don't influence my drinking, not even socially. If I go out with my friends I drink only if I feel like drinking.

What kind of drinker are you?

When most people think of alcohol abuse or alcoholism they picture the skid row or bowery bum or if they came from a small town they think of the village drunk.

They see the end result of the progression of a disease that in most cases first attacked the individual years before. It's hard to imagine that one time these people were children without a thought about alcohol. That at one time they were social drinkers without a thought of ever having a problem with alcohol. But in most cases they began as social drinkers who thought that alcoholism could never bother them.

Alcoholism is an insidious progressive disease. Victims rarely realize of their own accord that they have fallen under its spell, but your honest answers to the following questions may give you an indication of your personal position at this time.

1. Have you ever tried to stop drinking for a week or longer, only to fall short of your goal?
2. Do you resent the advice of others who try to get you to stop drinking?
3. Have you ever tried to control your drinking by switching from one alcoholic beverage to another?
4. Have you taken a morning drink during the past year?
5. Do you envy people who can drink without getting into trouble?
6. Has your drinking problem become progressively more serious during the past year?
7. Has your drinking created problems at home?
8. At social affairs where drinking is limited, do you try to obtain extra drinks?
9. Despite evidence to the contrary have you continued to assert that you can stop drinking on your own whenever you wish?
10. During the past year have you missed time from work as a result of drinking?
11. Have you ever "blacked out" during your drinking?
12. Have you ever felt you could do more with your life if you did not drink?

If your answer is "YES" to one or more of these questions you had better take a good inventory of your drinking habits or pattern. If your answer is yes to four or more of the questions in all probability you now have or will have a serious drinking problem.

AA

Programs fill social need

By Bill Dolan

In June of 1935 a New York stock broker and an Akron, Ohio physician, both alcoholics, met in Akron and began discussion that led to the founding of one of the largest and most successful self help programs known to mankind.

Bill W., the stock broker and Doctor Bob, the physician, unknowingly at the time were laying the ground work for the organization of the fellowship of Alcoholics Anonymous. Over the years Alcoholics Anonymous or AA as it is more often called grew from this small beginning to a membership of nearly one million men and women in chapters located throughout the world.

Alcoholics Anonymous is a fellowship of men and women who share their experience, strength and hope with each other that they may solve their common problem and help others recover from alcoholism.

The only requirement for membership is a desire to stop drinking. There are no membership dues or fees. Each chapter is self supporting through voluntary contributions of members. AA is not allied with any sect, denomination, politics, organization or institution. It does not wish to engage in any controversary, neither endorses or opposes any causes. The primary purpose of the membership is to stay sober and help others achieve sobriety.

Members do this in various ways. Each person works out his own program based on twelve principles the AAs refer to as the "twelve Steps." They approach these steps with three pertinent ideas. (a) That they are alcoholic and cannot manage their own lives. (b) That probably no human power could relieve them of alcoholism. (c) That a higher power could and would if He were sought.

Several hundred members regularly attend meetings at one of the nine Alcoholics Anonymous Chapters in the Columbus-Phenix City-Fort Benning Area. There is also an inter-group meeting each Sunday evening at the AAA gape Club on Warm Springs Road.

Chapters usually hold two meetings a week. One is called an open meeting, the other is a closed meeting. Closed meetings are limited to individuals with a drinking problem. During these meetings those present gather into a circular formation and discuss some aspect of the AA program. The purpose of these discussions is not to acve at a group opinion. They provide each member information and based on his evaluation of this information he makes his own decision.

Open meetings are open to anyone interested in the Alcoholics Anonymous program. Considerable numbers of the families and friends of the alcoholics are usually in attendance. These meetings usually feature a guest speaker who tells what his life was like while he was drinking, what happened and how life is now.

Alcoholism is known as a family or social illness. AA recognized this in its early beginnings: Two other organizations have been founded to provide help for the families and friends of the alcoholics. One is known as the Alanon Family Groups, the other as the Alateen Groups. While these organizations are separate from AA they generally follow the same principles and have similar goals.

The Alanon Groups are made up of the adult relatives and friends of alcoholics. They usually operate in conjunction with one of the AA chapters and hold meetings on the same evening and vicinity as the AA chapter holds its closed meeting. Their primary purpose is to help the families of alcoholics. They do this by practicing the "twelve steps", learning to understand and encourage their alcoholic relative or friend and by welcoming and giving comfort to new members. The only requirement for membership is to have a relative or friend who is an alcoholic. The friend or relative need not be a member nf Alcoholics Anonymous. Alanon claims considerable numbers of alcoholics became sober because of the information their friends or relatives gained through Alanon.

Alateen Groups attract quite a few children of alcoholics. The purpose of this program is to give the young people an understanding of alcoholism and help them cope with the problems peculiar to being the child of an alcoholic and to concentrate on their own growth and development. The Alateen Group for this area meets at 8 p.m. each Monday evening at 4338 Saint Mary's Road.

Additional information or help call 327-6078. This is the AA answering service. It operates 24 hours each day. The operator will put the caller in touch with some member of Alcoholics Anonymous. For additional information concerning Alanon call 561-2468 and for more information on the Alateen program call 327-2256.

NAME THAT COOKBOOK

The OWC Cookbook Committee appreciates the GOLDEN response to their plea for a name for the GOLDEN Jubilee Cookbook, set to come out in May. You are urged to "KEEP THOSE CARDS AND LETTERS COMING IN" though. EVERYONE'S eligible to submit a GOLDEN name and try to win the GOLDEN cookbook.

This is your last GOLDEN chance, as the deadline is March 17. Contact Mrs. Richard Stoltz, 545-1945.

If you think there's a GOLDEN hint being given, you're right.

EASTER CRAFTS SOUGHT

The Talent Tree plans an April showing of Easter Crafts, and needs your help. ALL military persons and dependents are urged to submit items they've created, with an Easter theme. Anything from eggs to baskets, aprons to bonnets or gift items are acceptable for display and-or sale. Contact Mrs. James Morris, 563-5128 or at the Talent Tree, 545-ARTS.

OWC ACTIVITIES

Mrs. Thomas M. Tarpley, wife of the Commanding General of Fort Benning, was honored at a welcoming brunch, Feb. 28, by the Officers' Wives' Club board members and the Commanders Wives group.

The setting was the Corregidor Room at the FBOOM. Decorating the yellow-clothed round tables were lovely bouquets of yellow and white daisies. Centering the head table was a basket of tulips in an array of beautiful spring colors.

After proposing a toast to the Post's new First Lady, Mrs. Bill May, OWC President, presented Mrs. Tarpley with the number one membership card of the Officers' Wives' Club.

Spring is coming and the Officers' Wives' Club of Fort Benning is anxious. "Spring Fling" is the theme for the OWC Luncheon on March 14.

The Sherry Hour will be from 11:30 to 12:30 in the main ballroom of the Officers' Club. During that time there will be an Art Exhibit presented by ten local artists from Fort Benning and Columbus. Everyone will have the opportunity to personally discuss the exhibit with the individual artists. The artists will be: Louise Ross, Allison Christie, Marge P. Tilley, Manon S. Hicks, Anna Jendze, Evelyn S. Patterson, Sandra Hunt, Shirley Little, Gloria Christensen Sampson and Barbara G. Pound.

Lunch will begin at 12:30 in the Supper Club and conclude with a guest performance by Dr. Andrew Galos, a violinist and the Music Chairman of Columbus College. Accompanying him on the piano will be Professor Rexford Whidden, Professor of Piano at Columbus College. Following this performance will be the guest speaker, Mary Margaret Byrne, the Women's Editor of the Columbus Ledger-Enquirer. She will be speaking, from a woman's point of view, on the cultural activities offered in Columbus.

There will be six guests of honor at the luncheon, all of whom are prominent women of Columbus. These women will represent a cross section of cultural, educational and civic groups in Columbus. They are: Mrs. James W. Biggers, the Executive Vice-President of the Historical Columbus Foundation; Dr. Katie Mahan of the Fine Arts Department of Columbus College; Mrs. Charles Flowers, President of the Three Arts League; Mrs. Perry Borum, President of the Junior League; Mrs. Joseph Spano, Food Editor for the Columbus Ledger-Enquirer and a member of the Columbus School Board; and Mary Margaret Byrne, the Women's Editor for the Columbus Ledger-Enquirer.

Mrs. Bill May, OWC President, (at) hands Mrs. Thomas Tarpley, wife of the Commanding General of Fort Benning.

Mrs. Lawrence A. Bell and the wives of the officers in Aviation Command will be the hostesses for the luncheon set for Wednesday, March 14. Reservations may be made through individual units or by calling Reservations Chairman Mrs. Arthur D. Osborne, 545-1548. All reservations must be in no later than noon, March 8. See you there.

INTERIOR DECORATION course. A new class will begin on March 19 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the OWC Lounge. 6 lessons for $12. Call Mrs. John Partin at 544-1106 for further information.

A new class in CAKE DECORATING is beginning at 9:30 a.m. on March 13. The classes will cover the decoration of birthday and special occasion cakes with emphasis on borders and flowers. Your family and friends will be thrilled when they receive personally decorated cakes for birthday, Father's Day, Promotion Party, etc. 7 lessons for $16. Call Mrs. James Huff at 545-1946 to enroll in the class.

ADVANCED CAKE DECORATING will be offered beginning in March if enough interest is shown. The course will cover sugar molding, panorama eggs, marzipan fruit, more ornate flowers and borders, and wedding cake decorations. 7 lessons for $16. If interested call Mrs. Huff.

New sessions in CHILDREN'S ART are beginning soon. Starting March 17, ages 8-14 will meet at 11 a.m. at the OWC lounge to learn perspective, use of color, and other basics of art. The group will work in several mediums. 6 weeks for $12. Starting on March 10, ages 4-8 will explore lines, shapes, and colors. Clay as well as other mediums will be used. 6 weeks for $15. Call Mrs. Jon Stillman at 544-1196, or Mrs. Warren Williams at 545-1897 to enroll your child.

The OWC BATON TWIRLING classes have begun but there is still room left for girls ages 7 years and up. They will learn to twirl one and two batons, learn several types of baton routines such as Majorettes, strutting and dance twirl. Classes are held Thurs., at 7 p.m., or Fri. at 4 p.m., or Sat. at 9:30 a.m. $7 a month. Call Mrs. Jerry Hines at 687-1403 for more information.

The BABY SITTING course for teens 12 years and up teaches baby sitting techniques. Subjects to be covered are infant care and feeding, toddler care and discipline, and first aid. Certification follows completion of course. The instructor keeps a list of "graduates" for recommendation to parents. To begin Tues. evening, March 20 at 7 p.m. 4 lessons for $5. Call Mrs. Wm. Higgins at 545-2925.

Learn to sew knit slacks for men and boys, "SEE-LOW THE BELT" will give special instructon on sewing pockets, flys, and waistbands. You'll have a finished pair of pants upon completion of the class. 4 lessons for $8. Call Mrs. Norbert Otto at 545-1307. To begin Tues. March 20 at 9 a.m.

Interested in learning to sew lingerie and body suits? Join the OWC's CINCH TO STITCH class beginning Fri. March 16 at 9 a.m. 3 lessons for $6. Call Mrs. Otto at 545-1307.

Grab your empty cereal box, dried weeds and ribbons to join the gang for a demonstration of "something from nothing." GARBAGE ART classes are beginning again on Wed. March 21 from 9 to 11 a.m. You'll finish the class with a beautiful plaque for kitchen or wall grouping. Three lessons for $7.50. Call Mrs. Dane Maddox at 545-4297 for more information.

BASIC SEWING for beginners will begin on March 21 at 9 a.m. at the OWC Lounge. 6 weeks for $16. Call Mrs. Curtis Hoglan at 545-1838 for more information.

The ENVIRONMENTAL WORKSHOP will be holding a project meeting on March 14. On March 21 the group will hear Mrs. W. S. Stewart of the TB and Respiratory Disease Assoc. of the Chattahoochee Valley, Inc., speak on "Environment and Respiratory Disease" at the OWC Lounge at 10 a.m. On March 28 the Workshop will travel to Callaway Gardens to participate in "Nature Awareness and Activities." Only a limited number can participate in this event so call Mrs. Paul Anderson at 545-2925 now for more information or reservations.

WOMEN'S NEWS

Technique of Prepared Childbirth will be offered March 14-April 11, each Wednesday from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. The five classes are open to any expectant parents in the Fort Benning-Columbus area. For further information, contact Marylee Millman, R.N., at 545-2100. Please register in advance.

Personal Note: Unfortunately, most women grew up hearing all sorts of gory, frightening stories about childbirth, never hearing about what a glorious experience it could be. Most rewarding jobs are accomplished with hard work and most require training of some sort. Having a baby is no exception.

Why be in the dark about what is actually happening during labor and delivery? The best way to eliminate fear is with knowledge.

The Lamaze classes offer enlightening information and practical techniques that help make childbirth an experience worth remembering, rather than a dreaded nightmare.

PANHELLENIC NEWS

The Panhellenic Association held its monthly meeting Feb. 27 at 1:30 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Art Bradshaw. Mrs. Steve Darrah was introduced and welcomed by Mrs. George Lovelace, Panhellenic President. The group discussed plans for a tea to be held in April for the Panhellenic members of the Columbus area. A tentative date was set and Mrs. Edward Schowalter volunteered to hostess the event.

The next meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. on March 21 in the home of Mrs. Steve Piper. Newcomers are welcome and are encouraged to call Mrs. Lovelace, 687-4197, for information.

REGISTERED NURSES CLUB

March 12, 9:30 a.m. the RN Club will have a special monthly meeting. Lt. Col. Jerry Hahan, CO, 498th Med. Co. Air Ambulance, will inform the RN Club members on what to do during an emergency evacuation. His presentation will include viewing slides and a demonstration of the air ambulance helicopter and its equipment.

The meeting will be held in the American Red Cross Recreation Room in the basement of Martin Army Hospital. All Registered Nurses from the Fort Benning, Columbus, and Phenix City area are urged to attend this informative meeting.

NCO WIVES' CLUB

The NCO Wives' Club held their monthly luncheon Feb. 21 at "Deorio's Pizza Inn," with Chaplain Richard Nybroe as the guest speaker. Chaplain Nybroe gave a very interesting talk on "Communicating with your Husband, Wife, Children and People in General." Although he inserted humor in his talk, the Chaplain made one stop and think. Everyone enjoyed their lunch and especially enjoyed Chaplain Nybroe's talk.

The NCO Wives' Club held a "Little Miss NCO" Pageant Feb. 22 at the Main Service Club.

A program was presented and three groups of children entertained. Mr. Jim Evans, Band Director for the post schools had a combo consisting of a small group of students from post schools.

The proud winners of the Little Miss NCO Pageant were: Lisa Ballous, Kathy Smith and Jackie Smith. Congratulations girls.

197th HEADQUARTERS

There was a feeling of sadness with Headquarters, 197th Infantry Brigade ladies at the monthly coffee, Feb. 21, when the following farewells were announced: Mrs. Edwin Kennedy, wife of the Brigade Commander, and Mrs. Larry Aaron, wife of the Commanding Officer of Hq and Hq Company.

Mrs. Ronald Formulak and Mrs. Robert Ariyoshi hosted the event.

The table was covered with a red cloth, and a centerpiece of red roses created by Mrs. Ariyoshi contributed to the ornamental scheme. Perfecting the effect, was a colorfully decorated cake with "Farewell Dolly" honoring their first lady.

During the business meeting, Mrs. Robert Kelley announced the following: There will be an OWC Luncheon March 14 and the theme is "Spring Fling." A Brigade luncheon, sponsored by the ladies of the 2nd Battalion, 16th Field Artillery, March 23, at the Supper Club. The Infantry Museum needs volonteers to sort pictures, etc. Your assistance would be appreciated.

Mrs. Gary L. McClendon, a new member, was welcomed to the group.

The March coffee has been cancelled. The next coffee will be April 17.

1st BN., 29th INF.

The Supper Club was the setting for the 1st Bn. 29th Inf. Sweetheart Dinner held Feb. 24. In keeping with the Valentine theme, the tables were decorated with red cloths and white hearts. The head table was adorned with a red and white floral centerpiece.

Guests of honor at the dinner were Col. and Mrs. Edwin Kennedy, Col. Kennedy, Commander of the 197th Inf.-Bde., was presented with a bouquet of red and white carnations.

Welcomes to the group were Chaplain and Mrs. Grady Spry, Capt. and Mrs. Bill Stallings, Capt. and Mrs. Tom Whitley, Capt. and Mrs. Vince Risovi, and Capt. Mike Williams. Farewells were said to Capt. Sherry Meyers and Capt. and Mrs. Joseph Smith.

A surprise presentation, a bouquet of yellow roses, was made to Mrs. Charles Arnecke, first lady of the 1st Bn. 29th Inf.

1st BN., 58th INF.

The ladies of the 1st Bn., 58th Infantry held their monthly coffee at the home of Mrs. Ed Quinn with Mrs. Roy Hollins acting as co-hostess.

The ladies welcomed Mrs. Ronald Petty and Mrs. Richard Parrish into the Battalion.

After the business discussion, everyone enjoyed a social hour and refreshments consisting of a variety of cakes, creme puffs, nut roll, coffee and tea.

tillery was held Feb. 20 in the home of Mrs. Robert Balog, Arrowhead Road, Fort Benning. Co-hostess for the coffee was Mrs. John Routon. Mrs. John Hagen and Mrs. Bruce Minger are newcomers to Fort Benning and to the battalion. Mrs. Tom Atchison, a newlywed, was welcomed to the group; and Mrs. Larry Aaron was extended a slightly premature welcome back after several months with another group. Mrs. Charles Peterson, who is visiting with her daughter, Mrs. Jim Graham was a special guest for the evening.

In the business session, Mrs. Curtis Hoglan made special mention of Mrs. Bennie Williams who is recuperating from surgery. Congratulations were extended via their wives to Lt. Richard Bray and Mr. Charles Ames who were recently promoted. Mrs. Bob Veen, Mrs. James Pongonis, and Mrs. Jim Graham presented the program on tips in etiquette for the Army wife. Mrs. Balog showed the group the basic knots in macrame.

The ladies were served a special out-of-season treat — fresh strawberries, strawberry desserts, and strawberry punch.

TSB HEADQUARTERS

The ladies of Headquarters, TSB, met for their monthly coffee the evening of Feb. 21 at the home of Mrs. Teb Stocks, Lake Crystal Trailer Park, Columbus. Mrs. A. G. Norris reminded everyone of the Spring Formal, March 24. Mrs. John Yawn, Mrs. Bill Reed, and Mrs. Fred Smith were extended a warm welcome into the group. Mrs. Norris honored departee, Mrs. John R. Outler, Jr., by presenting her a silver tray.

The guests gathered around a table and helped themselves to cheese fondue. The hostess also served brown sugar pound cake, sandwiches, and coffee.

The ladies of 51st Company were the hostesses for the Fifth Battalion monthly coffee on Feb. 21, at the home of Mrs. Dan Johnson of Columbus. Newcomers welcomed into the battalion were Mesdames Theodore Wright, James Carriker and Hampton Dews. Farewells were extended to Mrs. Larry Robertson and Mrs. Philip Roberson. Preparations for an upcoming Hall and Farewell on March 3 and the March luncheon were discussed. Following the business meeting refreshments consisting of a coffee, nut ring, various sandwiches, beef rolls, coffee and punch were served.

4th STUDENT BATTALION

Valentines was the day and setting of the February coffee for the ladies of the 4th Student Battalion. Mrs. Billy Duncan of Pembrook Drive, Columbus, was hostess and Mrs. Warren Todd, co-hostess. The refreshments were in keeping with the February theme as cherry tarts, pink and white spritz cookies, Red Velvet cake and pigs in a blanket were served with frothy pink punch or coffee.

During the business meeting small silver trays were given as farewell remembrances to Mrs. Leonard Scott, Mrs. Randolph Spry and Mrs. William Jones.

Correction: The ladies who joined the 4th Student Battalion in January were Mrs. Alphonso White and Mrs. Marc Hermalik.

A farewell pot-luck dinner was given for Mrs. James Anderson by the ladies of the 4th Student Battalion on March 1. Mrs. Roland Parr, Perkins Street, Fort Benning, was hostess. Mrs. A. G. Norris was an invited guest, as were Mrs. Randolph Spry, Mrs. Leonard Scott, and Mrs. James Hruska.

Mrs. Anderson was presented a silver champagne cooler and a silver battalion tray as farewell gifts.

AIRBORNE DEPT.

Feb. 14 found the Airborne wives meeting at the lovely home of Mrs. Jerry C. Goodenough for a Valentine's Day coffee and short business meeting. Mrs. Raymond B. Clay and Mrs. Leonard S. Cody were able assistants to Mrs. Goodenough.

Two new members were welcomed to the group: Mrs. Alan J. Sariego and Mrs. James C. Avery. Each of these newcomers was presented with a plant by Mrs. Jack C. Helms, on behalf of the wives.

Plans are firming up for a proposed day's jaunt to Westville. The date is set for March 14, with the chartered bus leaving from the Officers' Club at 9 a.m. The activities for the day include a tour of historic Westville, lunch at June's Country Restaurant, and return to the Club around 3 p.m. All the Airborne and Ranger wives interested in attending should contact Mrs. Gregg P. Walls and please bring guests if you like.

Mrs. Robert L. Howard and Mrs. Michael W. Menser volunteered for work at the Thrift Shop on March 1.

Since the Westville trip will take the place of the March coffee, the next regular coffee will be held in April at the home of Mrs. Walls.

COMMAND MAINTENANCE DEPARTMENT

The ladies of Command Maintenance Department enjoyed a "belated" Valentine's Coffee on Feb. 21, given by Mrs. Norman Otis and Mrs. Mitchell Willis at Regal Drive, Columbus. Without regard to calories, the ladies helped themselves to coffee cake, nut bread, muffins, and hot fruit. Mrs. Thomas Fitzpatrick discussed the new business, then presented letter openers to Mrs. William Higgins, Mrs. Norman Otis, and Mrs. Mitchell Willis, who are leaving the department.

Command Maintenance Department was sorry to say farewell to Capt. Martin Hammer and Capt. John Patterson and was glad to welcome Capt. Thomas Speck back after his stay at Walter Reed.

An evening of fun is planned for the department on March 9 at the Springer Opera House Saloon.

DDTD

Ladies from DDTD met at the home of Mrs. Thomas Phifer for their February coffee. Mrs. Phifer favored her guests with an assortment of homebaked breads, fruit-filled breakfast rolls, and tastepleasing cakes.

Following a business meeting, which included plans to attend the March OWC Luncheon, Mrs. James Armstrong led the ladies in a discussion of "what's-new-to-do" during the coming spring months. Places and plans were tossed about and a tentative schedule was set up for the group to lunch at new places and to see the sites of interest in the Columbus area.

DPT

The ladies of DPT gathered at the home of Mrs. Robert O. Rushing, Feb. 21, for a light luncheon. The color scheme was red, white and blue, with silhouettes of George Washington. The ladies enjoyed an array of sandwiches, vegetables and, naturally, cherry tarts.

A short business meeting was conducted and Mrs. Ronald Phillips and Mrs. William Spence were welcomed.

Following the luncheon, Mrs. Alan Ramsey gave the ladies a very interesting tour of the Training Aids Center.

INFANTRY AGENCY

The ladies of the Infantry Agency held their last luncheon before reorganizing Feb. 21, at the Goetchius House. Co-hostesses, Mrs. Joy McDonald and Mrs. Ben Malcom, were credited with planning the delightful occasion.

Honored guests were Mrs. C. J. Bushaw, Mrs. Douglas Hughes, Mrs. Eugene Darbonne, Mrs. Gay Morgan (mother of Mrs. Robert Siegrist), Mrs. Ford (mother of Mrs. Harold Whitlock), Mrs. Roddy Smith, and Mrs. John O. Ensor. Special guests were Mrs. Jean Salvan (wife of the French liaison officer) and Mrs. A. P. F. H. Robertson (wife of the United Kingdoms' liaison officer).

Farewell was bid to Mrs. Robert O'Neil who served as treasurer for the wives.

The Infantry Agency held its final function Feb. 23 at the Main Officers' Club. The evening was highlighted by farewell speeches, as the Army loses several faithful toilers to retirement. Col. and Mrs. Joy McDonald, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas O'Byrne, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Michael Kaido, and Lt. Col. and Mrs. Robert O'Neil were all bid farewell.

Lt. Col. and Mrs. Jean Salvan were special guests. Lt. Col. Salvan is the French liaison officer. Other guests were CWO (Ret.) and Mrs. John R. Humphrey, Mr. and Mrs. David H. Atchley, Lt. Col. (Ret.) and Mrs. Paul W. Lavender, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Eugene Darbonne, Col. Marcus Coyle, and Mrs. Ben Malcom.

Red, white and blue decorations adorned the tables of the Fountain Room where a delightful meal of cornish hen or prime ribs was served. Later the South Winds provided dance music in the main ballroom.

RANGER DEPARTMENT

Mrs. Donald L. Smith hosted a coffee in her quarters on Rainbow Ave. BAY 4 of 4 ALONG the fem line Merritt nue, Fort Benning, on Feb. 21. The coffee was held to welcome Mrs. Dean Knox to the Ranger Officers' Wives' Club. Major and Mrs. Knox are not newcomers to the Ranger Department. They were previously assigned to the Florida Ranger Camp. Major Knox has been assigned as Operations Officer of the Ranger Department.

Members of the Ranger Officers' Wives' Club Board were guests at the coffee. While the ladies conversed with Mrs. Knox and among themselves, Mrs. Smith served cherry cobbler topped with vanilla ice cream, mint cookies and coffee.

WEAPONS DEPARTMENT

The Benning Room was the setting for the February luncheon of the ladies of the Weapons Dept. This gala affair was hosted by Mrs. Fox McCarthy and the ladies of the Mortar Committee.

The Mardi Gras theme was carried out in colorful decorations of masks, streamers and balloons. The menu featured shrimp creole (a specialty of old New Orleans) and during the luncheon beautiful slides of New Orleans and Mardi Gras were shown.

The door prize, which was a lovely fruit and vegetable basket, was won by Mrs. Douglas Fletcher.

Mrs. Michael Kovalsky introduced two newcomers, Mrs. Harry E. Hall and Mrs. David M. Nypaver, and said farewell to Mrs. Jerry L. Watson, who has been with the group for two years.

Tryouts to be held for play

The tryouts for the Fort Benning Dramatizer's next production of William Saroyan's "The Cave Dwellers" will take place Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, (March 14, 15 and 16) at the Fort Benning Playhouse, building 1237 on Ingersoll behind the Infantry Museum.

Tryouts will take place at 7:30 p.m. There are roles for nine men and five women; also available are positions on the many technical committees that are needed to put on a production such as the costume, makeup and set committees.

Tryouts are open to anyone interested, military, civilian or dependent. Persons interested should come to the Playhouse on the nights indicated or call 545-2932 for further information.

Calloo, Callay!

Allison Wonderland now playing

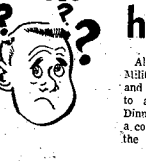
Calloo! Callay!

The Mome Raths will not outgrab, but the Wondrous Wonderland Band is gonna really grab you in the Springer Children's Theatre Company's upcoming production of ALLISON WONDERLAND by Thom Racioa.

Imagioe a band of three dozen kazoos, belting out Bizet's Children's Chorus from CARMEN! Or a rock combo whose members go by such sumptuous soubriquets as "Fingers", "Thumper", "Strings", and "Sticks". These things, and more, can be seen on the Opera House stage beginning Friday evening, March 2, 1973.

Leading this mad group of mellifluous musicians is "Fingers" who is known in real life as Mrs. Florence Hines. Mrs. Hines for two years has been musical director for the Children's Shows at the Lakewood Musical Playhouse, a professional summer stock company in Barnesville, Pennsylvania. She has also served as musical director or assistant director for 1776, MAN OF LA MANCHA, FIDDLER ON THE ROOF, BELLS ARE RINGING, PETER PAN, GUYS AND DOLLS, HELLO, DOLLY and FUNNY THING HAPPENED ON THE WAY TO THE FORUM.

The electric bass player, suitably called "Thumper" in the play, is Doug Conley, a sophomore at Keodrick High School. Doug, who also plays classical guitar and piano, holds down first chair clarinet in his school band. He is a semi-finalist for the All-State Band and Governor's Honors in music. When not practicing all those instruments, he plays church league basketball or softball and umpires and coaches Little League Baseball.



The drums are beaten by "Sticks", who is actually a native Texan, Gordon Gray. Gordon is a member of his high school band and performs with the Columbus Symphony as well as a popular rock group called "Captain Gordy and the Ragtime Band". He and his family moved from San Antonio, Texas, to Fontainebleau, France, and then to Columbus where he became, in his sophomore year in high school, a member of the All Bi-City Band.

David Ragsdale, who plays "Strings", the electric guitar man, has lived in Columbus for five years. In that short period, he has beeo a member of two school bands and two All-State orchestras. David is also a member of "Captain Gordy and the Ragtime Band".

Come join the fun! ALLISON WONDERLAND is a frabjus show!

Calloo! Callay!

WHATJA WANTA KNOW?...? ASK THE IO!

The following letter was received by the staff of the Bayonet for consideration:

Dear Editor:

My husband and I have been stationed at Fort Benning for three years and I personally feel that the Bayonet has improved tremendously during that time.

There is, however, an additional service which you could provide your readers, and that is a "Question and Answer" column, similar to "Action Line," but aimed at the military family. It wouldn't be necessary for you to have all the answers — letters could be printed in the hopes that your readers could supply the information. I'm sure many families on orders would appreciate the chance to ask about conditions at various posts.

Please consider this. It would be a great help not only to dependents, but active duty and retired personnel as well.

Thank you,
Mrs. Roger L. Theodore

After giving this matter careful consideration and looking back at the results from the last time that we printed an article of this nature, we have decided to give it another chance.

The last time that an article of this sort was ran in the Bayonet, we received very little response. We hope that this time it will be better. We realize the need for this type of article, but we cannot run it without the cooperation of the readers.

If any reader has any questions concerning this post or a post that he is being sent to, the civilian community, or even a regulation, please send it to us, so that we can publish it.

Include your name, rank and unit with your questions. If you do not wish to have your name publicized simply state so. Send your questions to The Bayonet, c-o Whatja wanta know, Room 602, Infantry Hall.

West Point Graduates hold Founders Day dinner

All graduates and ex-cadets of the Military Academy, the Naval Academy, and the Air Force Academy are invited to attend the Annual Founder's Day Dinner. The Dioner will be preceded by a cocktail hour in the Fountain Room of the Main Officer's Open Mess at 6:30 P.M. The Dinner will be held at 8:00 P.M. in the Main Ballroom. Dress for the affair is Dress Blues with bow tie, Mess Blues, or Tuxedo.

General William C. Westmoreland (Ret.) is scheduled to be the guest speaker for this "stag" dinner.

The Infantry Chorus performs for many functions, such as the National Prayer Week breakfast. The Chorus needs people to join them as vocalists and instrumentalists.

Looking for a few good men

The Infantry chorus of the U.S. Army Infantry Center Special Services is looking for talented people to join the chorus.

The Chorus performs for distinguished visitors to Fort Benning and other important events that involve Fort Benning and Fort Benning personnel. The Chorus has performed at such events as the National Prayer Week breakfast; the Chattahoochee Valley Council of the Boy Scouts' Adult Appreciation Banquet; the Action Army Expo; and for the Association of the Big Red One.

Needed by the Chorus are vocalists and instrumentalists.

Interested personnel should contact the director of the Infantry Chorus, 2Lt. Jay S. Taylor at 545-1973 or 545-3093 for further information.

Bamberg Symphony to perform locally

The Bamberg Symphony under the distinguished conductor Eugen Jochum, will be presented at the Three Arts League Auditorium on Friday, March 9 at 8:30 p.m.

The Symphony is one of only a few such major European ensembles yet to make a first tour of the United States. The orchestra was founded shortly after World War II in a city unmarred by that conflict. To reinstate Bamberg's musical life, citizens welcomed musicians who had fled East Germany and nearby cities of Czechoslovakia. Soon recognized as one of Germany's best orchestras, the orchestra toured throughout Europe, in South America, the Orient and the Near East.

The good neighbor.

"Hippo", the nickname given to the tank recovery vehicle of the 197th Spt. Bn., 197th Inf. Bde., is used primarily to aid mired tanks and other large vehicles. The 56-ton "Hippo" is also used to move old tank hulls on ranges where the stripped vehicles are used as targets. (Photo by Robert Steele)

Most sought after vehicle

Hippo

BY ROBERT THOMAS

Although Fort Benning has no zoo, it does have a "Hippo".

Hippo is the nickname given to the 56-ton tank recovery vehicle of the 197th Spt. Bn., 197th Inf. Bde. The huge piece of equipment is probably the most sought after vehicle on post in times of heavy rain or the unlikely event of snow.

Under the care and guidance of Spc Don Williams, Hippo has been called on at all hours of the day and night, seven days a week, to pull tanks, personnel carriers, self-propelled howitzers and even airfield tractors from the mud and mire. Moving large pieces of junk that include the discarded hulls of old tanks is a regular part of Hippo's job that contributes to the beautification of Ft. Benning.

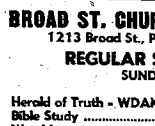
"Although I often get called upon after duty hours," Williams admitted, "this is one of the most rewarding I've had in the Army. After you've pulled a 50-ton tank from a mud-hole, you feel like you have really accomplished something."

In addition to handling Hippo, Williams has taken on the extra job of taking care of the 32-year-old mascot tank of the 197th Spt. Bn. The M3 Stuart tank, affectionately called "Tinker Toy," probably runs better than any of the M3's that are left today, most of them in museums.

Williams took on the project of taking care of the Tinker Toy as a result of his regular job in the maintenance section. Old tanks happened to intrigue the talented mechanic and he now does most of the work on the vehicle on weekends.

"Before I started working on Tinker Toy," Williams states, "no one seemed to care much if it worked or not. I have spent a lot of time reading about this rare piece of armor I guess I just got the bug to see it run again."

The M3 tank first saw action in Northern Africa in WWII when the Americans joined the British forces in Libya and Egypt. Today the tank's action is confined to displays and parades.



IG plans visit

Lt. Gen. William J. McCaffrey, The Inspector General of the Army will be making a two-day visit to Fort Benning on Tues., March 6, and Wednesday, March 7.

Lt. Gen. McCaffrey will arrive about 4 p.m. on the 5th at Columbus Metro Airport. From the airport he will be flown by helicopter to the Marshall House, where he will spend Tuesday night.

After an early breakfast on Wednesday Lt. Gen. McCaffrey will attend briefings on USAIC-USAIS activities, and the Television and Learning Center. At 10:30 a.m. he will present the commencement address to an Infantry Officer Advanced Course graduation.

Wednesday afternoon an official luncheon will be held for him at the Fort Benning Officer's Open Mess. Immediately after the luncheon Lt. Gen. McCaffrey will leave by helicopter for Columbus Airport where he will depart for Washington D.C. at 1:45.

Abuse

Don't let yourself become the next victim

Tonight at Fort Benning someone will bend over his table heating a spoonful of heroin, getting ready for that wonderful wave of pleasure that will rush over him with the injection.

Someone will laugh until tears form as he tries to roll his fourth "joint" of marijuana in non-gummed papers.

Someone will lose at liar's dice and good-naturedly order another round of drinks at "happy hour" prices. And someone will listen to the symphony of the sun setting as he trips on LSD.

Tonight at Fort Benning someone will steal a tape-player to pay for another fix. Someone will be arrested for illegal possession of marijuana. Someone will come home to an empty house because his family couldn't stand living with an alcoholic any longer. And someone will experience the terror and panic of a bad trip on Black Acid.

Scare tactics? No, Sir; just wanted to illustrate that there are two sides to every situation, and drug abuse is no exception. Less than two years ago, President Nixon directed that a counter-offensive against drug and alcohol abuse be conducted nationwide.

Fort Benning has taken an active part in this fight using a variety of methods. This installation pooled all available assets and coordinated efforts in the areas of education, rehabilitation, and suppression. It is a community approach to a community problem and requires the active support of every individual of all levels, both civilian and military, male and female, heads and straights.

The purpose of the Benning drug education programs is not to scare people into abstinence; nor to sell a pack of lies. Rather, it is an exchange of factual information to help a man understand WHY he might use drugs. It is also geared to provide enough basic information about drugs so he won't abuse them through ignorance.

Can LSD cause birth defects? Can a person overdose from acid? What's the length of time in which a flash-back can occur? Is withdrawal from barbiturates worse than withdrawal from heroin? What are the proven dangers of smoking marijuana?

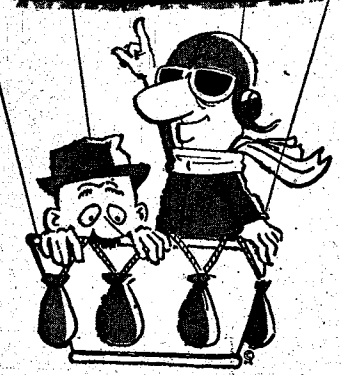
If you don't know the answers to those questions, maybe you should ask. Drug and alcohol seminars can be scheduled by calling the Alcohol and Drug Abuse Control Office (ADCO), the Provost Marshal Drug Lecture Team, or the USAIS Leadership Department.

Drug Abuse Control cadre realize that everyone who uses drugs are not necessarily addicts. The post rehabilitation program is set up to provide help in a manner tailored to each particular individual. We know that drug abuse is just a symptom of a problem.

Rehabilitation helps a man confront his problems and deal with them effectively. Rehab may consist of counseling within his unit or section. It may include periodic attendance at group meetings such as Alcoholics Anonymous. The Benning House even offers a resident program whereby the drug-dependent individual can make progress with the help of individuals who have recently shared a similar experience.

How does a man obtain help? Simply by asking for it. There are no contracts to sign and the individual need not fear prosecution for any prior drug use. It's called the Exemption Program.

Exemption begins the instant an individual notifies someone in his chain of command that he wants help with his drug - alcohol problem. The man is then examined by a medical doctor to determine the extent of drug dependence. If detoxification is required, the individual will be admitted to Martin Army Hospital. Normally detoxification takes from 2 to 5 days. Next he'll talk to rehabilitation professionals to select the rehab program best for him.



For more information talk to your unit commander, unit drug education specialist, or call 545-LIVE.

ASAP

By Bill Kloeb

Makes Columbus a safer place to drive

The Columbus Alcohol Safety Action Project, better known as ASAP is not totally oriented to police operations, according to Jerry Mullinax, project director.

Mullinax thinks some members of the community may have gained this impression because the 20 man special police enforcement unit assigned the primary duty of patrolling for drinking drivers is the most visible portion of the operation.

However according to Mullinax, the primary thrust of the program is to reduce problems caused by drinking drivers through education, treatment and rehabilitation. The arrest of a person for driving under the influence of alcohol (DUI) is just the first step that moves him through the courts and into some form of education or rehabilitation.

The Columbus ASAP is a special department of the Consolidated Government, directly under the Mayor's office, according to Mullinax. The funding is entirely federal from the U.S. Department of Transportation.

One of the most important functions of the ASAP is the Traffic Information Program School better known as TIP School. Every DUI offender found guilty in court is required to attend. For the past year the school has offered one level of information to the DUI offender, a classroom presentation of facts. ASAP Judicial-Rehabilitation Coordinator Leonard Cottongim said, "Our plans are to expand the TIP School operation to have two classes; one for the DUI offender who may be in the beginning stages of a drinking problem and the second for the person who has a definite problem with drinking."

"With this change," he said, "we are moving directly into rehabilitation or attempts to get people to change their behavior. The modification of TIP School is one of the major program changes we expect to implement in 1973.

As the Columbus Garrard Clinic for Alcoholism begins to implement expanded programs we are referring more and more people there, according to Cottongim. The services of this clinic include—physical examination, chemotherapy, routine laboratory studies, psychiatric evaluation, occupational therapy, individual therapy, group therapy, family therapy, recreational therapy, marraige counseling, and psychological evaluation.

"The operations of the enforcement unit will be basically the same for the upcoming months," Mullinax said. "We still plan to patrol areas which have shown from past records to be high alcohol related accident and arrest areas."

"Although the area surrounding Fort Benning is one of the major patrol areas," Mullinax said, "we are not 'after' the military person. We are interested in the driver, military or civilian, who has had enough to drink to make him a very real hazard on the road. ASAP operates a rolling patrol," Mullinax emphasized. "The officers don't set up roadbooeks or park near bars and liquor stores. The Enforcement Unit officers have very clear and strict orders to avoid any activity which might even look like we are doing this. In both the Enforcement Unit and Project Management we are very much aware of feeling in some parts of the community that ASAP is just a police entrapment operation. I can assure you it isn't," Mullinax stated.

ASAP Enforcement Unit Director, Jim Wetherington, has emphasized that in stopping a motorist, a police officer needs some "probable cause" . . . that is, some reason to suspect that he may be DUI. "Sometimes," Wetherington said, "this is a traffic violation or perhaps unusual driving patterns. Our officers are trained to spot these, sometimes very innocent but dangerous driving patterns. Our goal is to make the streets safer for travel."

Benning House

Helps break the drinking cycle

"It's the weirdest school you ever saw."

"It's where a guy can wake up and remember himself."

"It's a place where you can examine your life style and see if you want to continue in it."

"It's an environment to learn how to live without using chemicals."

"It's help."

These are descriptions of the Benning House — Fort Benning's facility for helping people who have problems from using drugs or misusing alcohol.

The Benning House is a self-help rehabilitation center. During the day the participants lead normal lives, working at their military or civilian jobs. In the evening they return to the house to eat, sleep, and get help for their problems.

"Most of the people who are in the Benning House program are here because they have fallen asleep," says Maj. George J. Trick, Chief of the Benning House. "We help them wake up."

Recognized recently to be operated under the post's Drug Abuse Control Office (DACO), the Benning House approach to alcoholism is tailored to suit anyone's needs.

"It's a place where anyone can learn how to get out of the cycle in which they have to drink," says Trick.

"The significant part is that the people in the program are pulling their duty and are not laid up in a hospital. They take part in rehabilitation on their own time."

The alcoholic in the hospital is a double loss to the Army. He is getting a pay check and he is also occupying a $60 a day bed. Because hospital commanders do not like to keep drunks, they give alcoholics back to unit commanders as soon as possible.

"Before the Benning House program," said James E. Henry, Chief of Administration for the Benning House, "a unit commander had two choices to make in regard to the problem drinker. First, he could hide him until he retired. The commander could get about 27 working days each month from the alcoholic, but he would be drunk at least 4 days a month. Second, the commander could kick the alcoholic out of the Army and then really feel bad about spoiling his chances for retirement."

Henry feels that both of these approaches were wrong.

"What we were doing was making the problem drinker problem worse," said Henry. "When we let him retire, we were only giving him the opportunity to devote full time to drinking, because he could then live off his pension and not have to worry about being fit for work."

Although the Army has had problems with alcoholics for almost 200 years, the Benning House program was the first of its kind for solving the problems. Its services are now available for soldiers, for their dependents, for retired persons, and for civilian employees of the post.

Civilian and military men and women of all ages and ranks take part in the Benning House rehabilitation (rehab) program. Alcoholics and drug time. The oldest person to go through the program was a 71-year-old. The youngest a 14-year-old girl.

"The Benning House has four major functions," explained Maj. Trick. "They are outreach, intake, nonresident rehab (rehabilitation) and resident rehab."

Outreach publicizes the Benning House. It explains Benning House resources to commanders, supervisors, non-drinking family members and friends of the alcoholic, and to the problem drinker himself.

The intake function tries to show the alcoholic the extent of his problem. If he is receptive, a rehab plan is set up that will bring about positive change.

The rehab plan could call for monitoring the individual's progress twice a month or it could involve him in group counselling sessions twice a week in part of the nonresident rehab program. The rehab plan could also involve the individual in full participation in the Benning House resident rehab program.

"In the resident rehab program an individual can being to examine himself and make some decisions about what he wants to do with his life," says Trick. "He volunteers not to use drugs or alcohol and to live at the Benning House for about 60 days.

"The amazing thing we've found is that a guy with a drinking problem of ten to fifteen years can come into the resident rehab program and stop drinking right away."

After pulling duty during the day, members of the resident program take part in rehab activities during the evenings and on weekends. One evening a week is devoted to alcoholics anonymous or narcotics anonymous. Another evening is devoted to explore intellectual subjects or community activities. Three evenings a week are for intensive interaction groups.

A key part of the rehab program seems to be the interaction groups. They last about three hours and involve a very personal exploration of each person's feelings, attitudes, and behavior. A person's responsibility for himself and for others is emphasized.

The interaction groups make possible to a large extent the Benning House policy of providing a "voluntary self-help program." In these groups most of the personal examination of feelings and attitudes is done by an alcoholic's peers, not by professional counselors.

"We live publicly," said Henry. "That's where it's at. We don't give the men anything. They earn their way through by helping themselves as they help others."

When men complete the resident program, they are encouraged to get involved with some nonresident alcohol abuse program or some other constructive activity.

"If they don't keep involved," said Henry, "they tend to let their guard down. We know of people who have gotten drunk after being dry for over ten years."

A singular advantage of Benning House is the number of programs and resources it has gathered under one umbrella. A person with the Benning House can find some program that will suit his needs.

The family group program, for instance, has proven very valuable to friends and family members of the alcoholic.

"Every time you have an alcoholic you have other people involved," explained William C. Kloeb, chief of Fort Benning's Civilian Personnel Alcoholism Program. "Often an alcoholic's spouse has more problems than the alcoholic. Family groups help solve these problems."

Other on-going programs include alateen for teenagers, and alanon for adult family members and friends of Army Civilians, and alanon for adult family members problem drinkers.

"When an alcoholic recovers because of rehabilitation," said Kloeb, "He undergoes a transformation in reverse. He starts to get human again. This often causes a traumatic experience for his family.

"For example, he will want to start managing the money he has earned. But his wife, who has been managing the family budget since he became an alcoholic, is not about to trust him with all of the family's money. She just wants to give him his usual drinking money.

"Another problem will arise when he tries to get involved with his children again. But his kids will have developed a close relationship with his wife and often don't want his companionship. They virtually have had no father since he started heavy drinking.

"Alanon teaches adults how to cope with the transformations of the recovering alcoholic."

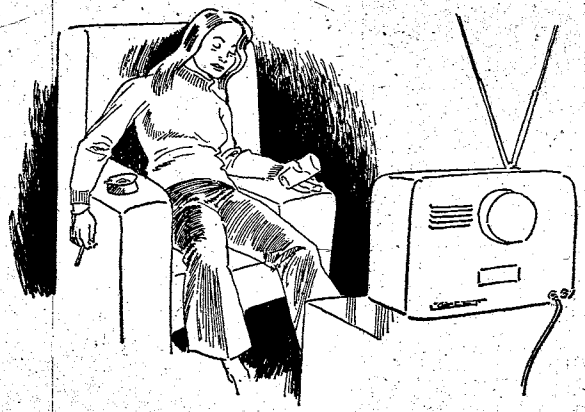
How successful is the Benning House program?

"When we see a number of people who were more dead than alive start to live again," said Henry, "when we see families that had fallen apart come back together again, and when we see careers that were almost ended start to surge ahead, then we can say we may have had some success. We have seen all of this happen."

Henry was careful to point out, though, that the Benning House program does not guarantee success.

"A number of people have gone through and have changed the direction of their lives," he said. "They now live more comfortably. But just because a man is not drinking today does not mean he won't get as drunk as all get out tomorrow."

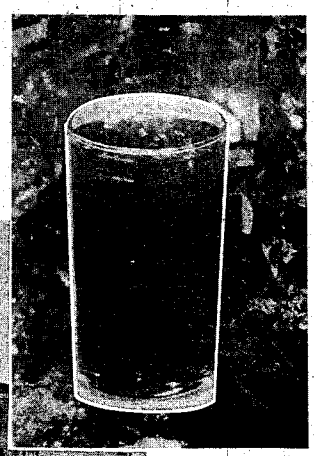
"Thirty to fifty percent of the people who come into the Benning House program with a serious drug or alcohol problem finish the program," said Trick.



"Completing the program, however, is not a real measure in itself of the value of the program," Trick continued. "How participants perform their duty is. Recent figures indicate that of 146 who completed the resident program in the first year of its operation, only 25 percent got into trouble again.

"That's not bad and should offer hope to those who don't think they can change. They can.

"Those completing the resident program are viewed by their commanders as having an increased sense of responsibility and discipline; by their families as having more concern with family problems; and by themselves as having more interest in life."



So what is the Benning House? Trick's description seems to sum it up appropriately—"a place where people can grow in their capacity to work, love, and have a good time."

931st helps break the drinking problem

SP5 Albert Coakley, HHC 931st DES

I think that alcohol is a dangerous drug that is too often abused. It is especially dangerous because of its availability and the fact that its use is approved by the society at large.

This is an area where the Army, in particular, was guilty. A soldier almost had to drink. You can still see the effects of this attitude today. If a Ranger or Marine or someone like that, you know, a real rough, tough soldier, told you that he never drank, wouldn't you be surprised? You see what I mean then. Possession of marijuana can lead to imprisonment but alcohol carries no similar punishment.

The really dangerous thing about alcohol though, is the fact that it's the people who are not problem drinkers or alcoholics who cause the greatest problem. These are your holiday drinkers who do not realize the potential danger and try to drive home after a party. Many of them never make it. How can you stop something like that? I know this much, its not going to be easy.

I'm the DES for my unit, but my hands are tied as far as alcohol abuse is concerned. Anytime I hold a 'class', the attendance requirements are "personnel E-5 and below". These are not the men with the problems, we need to talk to those E-6 and above.

SSgt Hugh Davies, NCOIC Unit Alcohol Abuse Program:

Alcohol abuse is an area that was neglected by the Army for far too long. That is unfortunate but we are doing all we can to change that attitude. The main problem is education. People just don't realize what they are dealing with. If a soldier were to have a heart-attack one morning in formation, he would receive the most considerate treatment possibility hospitalization, R and R, light-duty, I mean, the commander would bend over backwards to help him and he would have everyone's sympathy.

But let a man fall over in a drunken stupor in the same formation and I guarantee that the treatment he receives will be a lot different. This is wrong and must be changed. The man with the drinking problems is just as sick as the one with the heart condition and needs to be helped, not punished.

To complicate matters the problem drinker himself often doesn't realize that he has a problem. You know the old story about the drink being the last one to admit that he is drunk. The man with a drinking problem cannot be helped until he is willing to admit the existence of a problem.

Currently, the 931st is engaged in the process of sending these men to a new school, which deals with the new approach to the problem of alcohol abuse, that the Army is adopting.

Lt. Donald Hayden, 67th Maint. Bn. DES (Drug Education Specialist)

I enjoy a drink now and then and its no problem. But I can see how easily it can become a problem for some people. It's a habit forming thing, like smoking, and people do get 'hooked' on it. It is difficult to say where the problem starts, to find the cause; a man may only start drinking after his induction into the Army but that does not mean that he started drinking because he came into the Army.

Social drinking is another factor that is important but cannot be blamed as the cause of a drinking problem. It can lead to a problem though and may well be one of the causes in some cases.

Yet I see a change coming: The young soldiers are slowly changing the whole image of the Army. Some people advocate the removal of all bars and liquor stores from Army posts but I don't think that would solve the problem, it'll just send men off the post to do their drinking. They are a lot safer on post, here there is more control of the situation.

There is another important point that many people seem to be overlooking. If you were to take the beer machines out of the day-rooms and make it really difficult to get alcohol, it would be like issuing a challenge to the men. The beer machine sits right next to the soda machine in the day-room and many times the soldier will buy a soda instead of a beer because its cheaper. Making it easily available, at least, takes the excitement out of it.

Coming to the screen

UP THE SANDBOX — Miss Streisand, married to Professor David Selby, is harried by two children and fears the effect on her marriage of accommodating the birth of a third child. Given to fantasies while avoiding the perpetual barangues of barracuda mother, Jane Hoffman, Streisand is able to cope with her crumbling surroundings and the threat of personal breakdown. Disaster always befalls the female Walter Mitty in her dreams while real life proves to be ultimately more rewarding. Streisand is commander of her own ship because she is able not merely to escape her frustrations and blocks but even to transcend them.

PRETTY MAIDS ALL IN A ROW — This is a contemporary story concerned with the manners and morals in a suburban high school. Rock Hudson is the popular guidance counselor and football coach at Oceanfront High School who has designs on teacher Angie Dickinson until some of his female pupils start turning up very dead. State Police Captain Telly Savalas takes over the investigation into the mysterious deaths from the inept local police chief. Hudson gives his job a broad interpretation with the girls who eagerly seek advice from him.

ELVIS ON TOUR — MGM presents a very different motion picture that captures all the excitement of Elvis Live! ELVIS ON TOUR offers the first intimately revealing look at the man and the legend, his life and music. It shows Elvis in action before his screaming fans and also during rehearsal and while relaxing. Elvis goes through a repertory of not only current hit songs but also many from the past, including "Love Me Tender," one of his earliest hits. Now almost 100,000,000 single records and approximately 25 million-selling albums later, "ELVIS" marks his 33rd motion picture. Elvis is one of the most exciting and durable figures in American show business today. The film explains why.

SNOOPY, COME HOME — The "Peanuts" comic strip characters of Charles M. Schultz are back on the screen in the perfect family film. Snoopy, the philosophical beagie, decides to leave Charlie Brown when he receives a letter from his long lost previous owner, Lila, who languishes in a hospital in a faraway town. So Snoopy and his "secretary" Woodstock, who makes his debut as the bird that flies upside down most of the time and makes quite a few crash landings, start off to see Lila. The two travelers encounter harrowing situations and misadventures on their journey.

"I just want to remind everyone not to drink and drive. Don't become Fort Benning second POV fatality this year."

TSB to hold Kite Contest

The second annual TSB Kite Flying Day Contest will take place on 24 March 1973, at BLUE FIELD (next to the Polo Field, at the intersection of Yeager Ave and First Division Road). The affair will fly off at 1300 hours, and all TSB cadre, students, and their families are urged to attend.

The competition itself, sponsored by the Fifth Student Battalion (OC), will be judged by a panel of TSB officers. Among the many prizes will be those for the best homemade kite, the highest flying kite, and a special prize for the battalion with the most entrants. Refreshments will be available all afternoon, as will garbage cans for any resulting refuse.

Soapers mixed with beer for a high will get you six feet down.

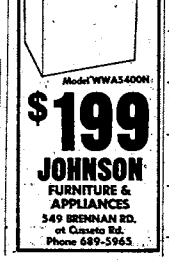
Gold rush days return to Benning

By STEVE VITUCCI

The rip roaring days of the California Gold Rush of 1849 will return to Fort Benning on the night of April 7th at the Daughters of The United States Army's (DUSA) annual "49er Party" at the Post Benning Main Officers Club.

This year the swinging doors to the Saloon will open at 7 p.m. and the Old West games, music, and entertainment will last until 2 a.m. Can-can girls and other beauties will enlighten festivities. Food will be plentiful for those wishing the dinner meal; snacks and breakfast at "Maggie's Chuckwagon."



The Nursery will remain open until 3 a.m. Mrs. Thomas Schatzman, chairwoman of the 49er party recommended advance reservations be made for the nursery.

Those attending the gala event are encouraged to come in costumes characteristic of the gold rush days. Judges will select the most appropriate, most humorous, best female, best male and best couple costumes. The winners of each category will receive prizes.

Mrs. Craiger Parker, acting president of the Fort Benning Chapter of DUSA said that all proceeds will go toward the building of a nursery annex to be located at the new Benning Shopping Center. Mrs. Parker also said that the proceeds would be used for other worthy post projects.

Volunteers are still needed to help with some of the Wild West games. Anyone interested in contributing to the evening of the rollicking Old West should contact Capt. Clinton J. Cole at 545-3491 or 1492.

Credit Union sponsors contest

The Georgia Credit Union League is sponsoring a contest for young writers who can win up to $50 for writing an essay on "Credit Union Membership —What it Means to Me."

Because of the accent on youth, entrants in the contest cannot reach 18 years of age before April 7, 1973. Entrants must be a member of a League affiliated Credit Union, and a letter from that Union must accompany the entry to insure eligibility. Entries must be at the League office by April 2. Winners will be announced at the League Annual Meeting Banquet on April 7 in Atlanta.

In addition to $50 the first place finishers will receive an engraved plaque. The second place winner gets $25 and a plaque, while third place wins $15 and a plaque.

Open house at playhouse

Anyone interested in theatre and theatre groups is welcome to come to the open house of the Fort Benning Dramatizers on Saturday, March 10, at the Fort Benning Playhouse, building 1237 on Ingersoll behind the Infantry Museum.

The open house will be held from 7-8 p.m. and will consist of exhibits of past Dramatizer activities and plays. Entertainment will be provided by members of the Dramatizers who will perform skits, comedy routines and musical numbers.

Any interested person, military, civilian or dependent is welcome to attend the open house or the Dramatizers meetings, which are held each Monday evening at 7:30 at the Playhouse.

Further information may be obtained by calling the Playhouse at 545-2932.

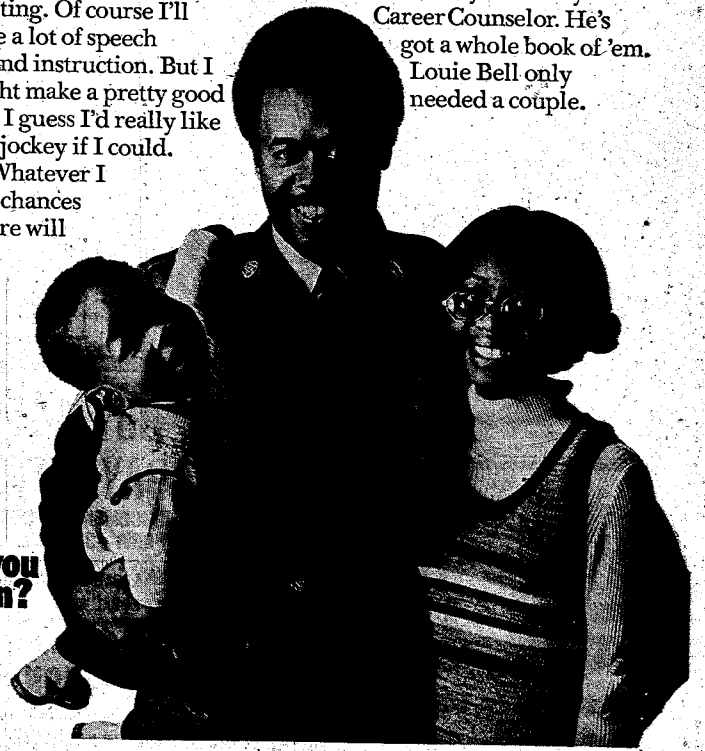
"When I came in I didn't have anything."



Sergeant Louie Bell just reenlisted for the first time. And he had some pretty good reasons.

"Look what I've got now. A steady income, a good job and a family. It's a lot more responsibility.

"I was studying business administration when I came in, but I think I'm going to change to broadcasting. Of course I'll have to take a lot of speech schooling and instruction. But I think I might make a pretty good announcer. I guess I'd really like to be a disc jockey if I could.

"Whatever I decide, my chances for the future will definitely be better now that I've decided to stay in the Army for a while. I'll be getting more education for when I get out. And Martha and Darrell will have a lot more security."

The education. The bonus. The security. Louie Bell found some pretty good reasons for reenlisting. If you're looking for reasons, see your Army Career Counselor. He's got a whole book of 'em. Louie Bell only needed a couple.

Why are you staying in?

Local bass club officially recognized

The Fort Benning Bass Club, after months of a semi-official quasi existence, achieved official status on 15 February 1973, when the Club's constitution and Bylaws were approved. In announcing the approval, Club President, LTC Robert Farris, pointed out that the local club is one of the first all military clubs to be recognized as an affiliate of the Bass Anglers Sportsman Society, the nation largest organization of Bass Fishermen.

As constituted the Bass Club of Fort Benning is a private organization whose stated purpose is to stimulate public awareness of bass fishing as a major sport, and to offer Fort Benning and local states conservation departments organized moral support and encouragement. The Club will promote, full adherence to all conservation codes, emphasize water standards, and encourage legal enforcement of existing fishing and boating rules. Two very important aims of the club is to improve the skill of the members as Bass Anglers and promote a program of youth fishing.

The club has been in operation for about eight months on an unofficial basis, and boast a membership of approximately 50 fishermen. Membership consist of both active and retired of all ranks. Club officers are: President - LTC Robert Farris; vice President - SFC Mike Boyd; and LTC Eugene Darbonne - Secretary-Treasurer. Additionally the organization include several committees that assist in programs, meetings and conduct of Fishing Tournaments or other activities.

The Bass Club of Fort Benning meets twice monthly, on the Second and Fourth Tuesday. Club "Fish-Offs" or Tournaments are held monthly with prizes awarded for the fishermen who catch the largest overall string of Bass. The Angler catching the biggest single fish wins an extra jackpot.

President Farris says that the local club fills a real need, and should be a big asset to the military community through service to members and the post itself. "I hope," said Farris, "That we can render a service to Fort Benning. Our membership is dedicated to good sportsmanship and conservation - both areas of significant public awareness."

All club members can be identified by their dark blue windbreakers with "Bass Chapter of Fort Benning" patches on shoulders and back.

Pro Stock Showdown held at Phenix Dragway

Professional and amateur drag racing stars from all over the nation will be participating in the second annual Pro Stock Factory Showdown at Phenix Dragway, Phenix City, Alabama on Wednesday night, March 14, 1973. A special four car Pro Stock match race highlights the evening's entertainment, which kicks off the 1973 "Spectacular" series at Phenix Dragway. Headlining the star-studded attraction is World Champion, Bill "Grumpy" Jenkins of Malvern, Pa. at the wheel of his all-new Chevy Vega. Defending Champion, Ronnie Sox (Burlington, N.C.) will carry the Sox and Martin Plymouth colors into battle while Phenix Dragway track record holder, Melvin Yow, will field the notorious Bill "The Kid" Dodge (Dayton, Ohio) in an effort to keep the record. The man to beat at Phenix City is "Dyno Don" Nicholson of Atlanta, whose 1973 Pinto captured the first two "national" events this season in Arizona and California.

In addition to the three round match race, a separate Pro Stock eliminator (8 cars), Modified, and Super-Stock eliminator will be run, featuring top drivers from across the nation and Canada. "tuning-up" for the forthcoming NHRA Gatornationals at Gainesville, Fla. Many local drivers will be debuting new cars, also. Gates open at five on Wednesday, March 14 and the racing program begins at 8 p.m. Phenix Dragway is located at the intersection of Sandfort Road and Woodland Drive, Phenix City, just south of Alabama route 80. Rain date has been set for March 15.

"Dyno Don" Nicholson is one of the many famous racers that will be appearing at the Pro Stock Showdown at Phenix Dragway.

Activity at the Rod and Gun Skeet Ranges is still on the increase. The club four gun shoot and registered shooting held at the ranges last week drew a very respectable number of shooters.

Tomorrow at 9:30 a.m. the club will hold a skeet clinic for beginners. There will be no charge except that the participants will have to pay for ammunition and targets that they use during the clinic. Those who do not have a shotgun may use one furnished by the club.

The clinic will include demonstrations by experts, instruction concerning gun handling and range safety and familiarization with the skeet course.

The clinic is open to everyone. Ladies and juniors are especially welcome. The future of any sport of course is dependent upon the interest followers can generate in the youth and I found out early in my marriage that if I wanted to spend spare time engaging in some sport there was more harmony at home if my wife participated too.

It's difficult to plan for these clinics when you don't have any idea as to how many people will come so it would help if those who plan to attend would call and tell Tom McCullough, the club custodian today. (545-6028). Besides the number is limited to 50 participants. Calling would insure that you are one of them.

Fishing is Improving

SSgt. Richard Thurman, 58th Infantry and Sp 5 Gary Johnson, 43rd Eng. Bn. got off to an early start in the Rod and Gun Club March Fishing Derby. Thurman registered a three-pound-four-ounce catfish he took over the weekend and Johnson came in with a five-pound-eight-ounce bass he caught out at Harps Pond. These are both good sized fish but if the statistics hold out these catches will be beaten before the month is out. March has always been a good fishing month in this area and from indications the bass should be on the spawning beds before the month is over. Several fishermen who made bass catches over last weekend reported the females were full of eggs.

There were no bream registered at the club as of last Monday. I haven't heard any reports but the bream should go on the spawning beds about the time the bass go and during that period everyone catches fish.

Everything points to good fishing during this month. The white bass have begun to move up the Chattahoochee. Not in large numbers yet but there have been several reports of the more persistant fishermen getting full creels. They should be in our area in greater numbers this weekend. Anywhere on the river seems to be a good spot when they really start running.

The Rod and Gun Club will provide prizes for the bass, catfish and bream. A $15 merchandise order goes to the member registering the largest bass, catfish or bream during the month of March. There are just a few simple rules but they are rigidly enforced.

Members must register at the Rod and Gun Club prior to going fishing. This registration is required each day the member intends to compete in the contest. Fish entered in the contest must be taken from one of the named ponds on the reservation and the catch must be brought to the club for weighing and registration. Fishermen taking fish after normal operating hours may bring the catch in the next day.

Fort Benning Bass Club

The Fort Benning Bass Club has received official status on post. The club constitution and by-laws were approved last week.

The club is a welcome addition to sports and ecology aware people here. In addition to promoting bass fishing and educating their members in the techniques of that complex sport the club promotes adherence to all conservation codes and enforcement of existing fishing and boating regulations. They also promote a program to interest youth in the sport of fishing. Besides these activities the club members find time to participate in ecology projects on a volunteer basis. All fishermen who use Kings Pond owe the members of this club a vote of thanks for the clean-up job they did at Kings Pond last winter.

The club now has a membership of about 50 active duty and retired military personnel of all ranks and is accepting membership applications.

You will probably be seeing more and more of these people around. They can be identified by their dark patches on the shoulders and back.

Doughboy

Bullets hold lead, beat Grasshoppers

In last Friday's Youth Activities Doughboy League basketball action the Bullets defeated the Grasshoppers 73-19 and with the win kept their first place position. The Gamblers moved into second place with a 64-41 win over the Bucks.

In the Bullet-Grasshopper game the first quarter of play was a decisive factor in the Bullet win when the Bullets scored 31 points and held the Hoppers scoreless. Another factor was that 7 Bullets put points in the scorebook with 4 of the 7 hitting in the double figure scoring department.

Game high point honors went to Bullet Tim Booth who netted 20 points while Emmett Lee popped 13 points for game runnerup scoring honors. Wally Archie hit 12 points and Steve Darbonne scored 11 points for the Bullets. Bob Heaukulani put 9 points on the board and Keith Book tallied 6 points with Len Cody scoring 2 points to complete the Bullet pointmaking.

Hopper Cal Griffin scored 11 points [illegible] man. Grasshoppers David McCartt, Steve Rogers and Jim Bell hit 2 points each and Kevin Kaczmarek and Dwight Burnett got 1 point each to round out their team's scoring.

In the Gambler-Buck contest two players tied for game high point scoring honors as Gambler Ronald Walker and Buck Brad Scott hit for 17 points each. Another tie took place for game runnerup scoring honors with Gamblers' Keith Presley and Bernard Thomas netting 12 points each.

Overall in this high scoring contest there were 7 Gamblers scoring points and 4 of those 7 Gamblers and 3 Bucks were hitting in the double figures scoring.

For the Gamblers Egon Grissom tallied 11 points and Harry Grissom zipped in 6 points. Ken Robinson got 4 points and Andrew Steverson scored 2 points to complete the Gambler scoring.

Bucks Gus Schneider and William Hicks netted 11 points each and 2 points by Samuel Norris rounded out their scoring.

Strongest

Paul Anderson gives speech, performance

Paul Anderson, The World's Strongest Man, could also be called The World's Strongest Crusader for God. Anderson was the guest speaker at TSB's Duty Day With God, held at the Sight Seeing Road Chapel on Sat. Feb. 24. He makes over 500 such appearances a year all around the country talking about God's love, and giving demonstrations of his strength.

Anderson demonstrated his strength by driving a 20 penny nail through a board 1½ inches thick with just one blow of his hand. He also lifted a table on which 6 men and 3 boys, from the audience, were sitting, the table had a combined weight of over 1,400 pounds.

Along with these demonstrations of his physical prowess, used to captivate the audience's attention, Anderson talked about his thrill of being a Christian. "God's love is one of the best things a person can have," he said, "and I'm proud to be called a Christian. I believe in going on the offense for God. That is, telling everyone I meet of God's love."

Anderson hasn't always been a crusader for God. He was like many people who go to church on Sunday, but are shy when it comes to admitting they are a Christian.

"In the beginning of my career, I wasn't that close to God," said Anderson. "In fact, it was in Russia, while I was lifting weights in competition, that I realized I needed God. I had been running a temperature of about 104 for a week, and had lost needed muscle weight. It all came down to the last lift of the night. I had failed to put the bar over my head on my first two attempts, and it was then I prayed to God for help. I hadn't done much praying since I was a young boy. I plainly told Him that I would follow Him from now on. Then I added, wouldn't it be a good idea to start by getting these weights off my chest? Sure enough, I pushed, and the weights went straight up over my head. I won with the help of God." This weight, of 402½ pounds, exceeded the previously set, world record by 7½ pounds.

The money that Anderson receives from his appearances goes to a very worthwhile cause. "As a lot of people," said Anderson, "I have founded two youth homes, one in Vidalia Ga., and the other in Dallas Texas.

Founding the two homes for young boys was a lifelong dream of Anderson's. The homes give neglected, unwanted boys a chance to grow up in an environment where they are wanted, needed, and most of all, loved.

The Airborne Chaplain Kevin A. Richards obviously enjoying the ride Paul Anderson lifts a heavy oak table with eight other people on it during his appearance at the Sightseeing Road Chapel for TSB's Duty Day With God on Sat. Feb. 24th. The table weighed approximately 1,400 pounds...

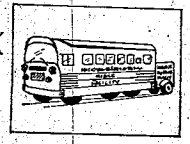
Doughboy Bullets beat Columbus Boy's Club

In a thrilling see-saw contest played last week the Youth Activities Doughboy League leading Bullets defeated the 13 year old South Columbus Boy's Club All-Stars by a 50-46 score.

The first half of the game was mostly a defensive standoff and the half time score was All-Stars 18 Bullets 13. Scoring by Willie Stanford and Ricky Hall kept the All-Stars ahead in the half while scoring by Bullets Wally Archie and Tim Booth kept their team within striking distance.

Play in the second half was in direct contrast to the first half. Both teams opened up offensively and the Bullets came out on top in that department. Tim Booth and Wally Archie continued to have a hot hand and finished the game with 18 and 14 points respectively. Booth's scoring tonk game high point honors.

For the Bullets Bob Heaukulani scored 7 of his 9 total points, Emmett Lee hit 4 of his 6 game points and Keith Book scored 3 points in the Bullet dominated second half.



All-Star Ricky Hall garnered game runnerup scoring honors with 15 points and his teammate Willie Stanford netted 11 points in the game. Karl Johnson and Tony Jones tallied 6 points, Daryl Tyson hit 4 points and Joe Hall and James Harris scored 2 points each for the All-Stars.

Bullets Greg Boles, Keith Shannon, John Seigle and Len Cody did not score but helped their team throughout the game with their offensive and defensive playing. Bullet Steve Darbonne missed the game due to an injury.

Small Games Tournament to be conducted

The 1973 U.S. Army Infantry Center (USAIC) Small Games Tournament will be conducted at the Main Post Gymnasium, Bldg. 2818, during the period April 9-13. Competition will be held in horseshoes, badminton, table tennis, squash, handball and racquetball.

All military personnel on active duty at Fort Benning are eligible to participate. Entries will be submitted on an individual basis, to the Sports Office, USAIC, Bldg. 394, not later than 4 p.m., Mar. 28. Entry forms will be available at all athletic houses and gymnasiums.

The tournament will be conducted in two divisions; men's open division and women's division. Singles and doubles champions in each spot will be determined by single elimination. All matches or games will be the best two out of three.

A men's team will be selected from participants in the USAIC Tournament to represent Fort Benning in the 1973 Third U.S. Army Tournament to be held at Fort Bragg, N.C., April 23-27.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

by Bill King

Add fun and protein to a Saturday soup lunch for the children. Cut fanciful shapes from cheese slices and float them atop vegetable or tomato-rice soup.

If you're caught short when you need an ounce or square of unsweetened chocolate, substitute 3 tablespoons of cocoa mixed with 1 tablespoon of softened butter.

"Bubble 'n squeak" is the appropriate name early Irish-Americans gave to left over corned beef and cabbage sautéed until crisp.

Mix a cup of currant jelly with 2 tablespoons each of grated lemon peel and finely chopped mint (1 tablespoon if using dried mint). Great with roast lamb or chops.

Dinner candles will burn slower and look pretty longer if you freeze them first.

Display features new items

The public is invited to a display of developmental Infantry equipment at the Fort Benning Rod and Gun Club from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. Friday, March 16.

The display, sponsored by the Infantry Research and Development Liaison Agency, Army Material Command will feature individual clothing and equipment for the infantryman of the future. Clothing displays will include fatigues, boots and summer uniforms. Visitors will get a chance to view combat rations, sleeping gear, tents, communications equipment and numerous other items in the developmental stage.

The Army Material Command wants ideas from the average soldier, according to MSgt. Alvin Grimes who will be in charge of the display. The items will be shown in other locations on post in the future to solicit ideas, comments and criticism from the people who will have to use the equipment.

AER

Fund drive Starts today

The annual fund drive for the Army Emergency Relief (AER) and Army Relief Society Campaign begins today. The drive will last through April 30.

The goal is $20,000 to be used for loans for active and retired Army personnel and dependents in times of emergency and stress.

Last year, more than $131,600 was loaned to 1,125 soldiers and families in the Fort Benning area.

These loans were for emergency travel, medical expenses, and for supplemental income when pay and allowances were not received.

In urging military people to support the fund, Maj. Gen. Thomas M. Tarpley, Fort Benning commander, said, "This material assistance cannot begin to measure or express the overall benefit that has accrued through your compassion and concern for the welfare of others."

Worldwide, the emergency relief fund helped more than 36,000 military people in difficult times last year. The amount of this help was over five million dollars. Total contributions to the program last year exceeded $567,000.

CG urges generosity

Throughout the years, we have given assistance to members of our Army family when they have been confronted with financial emergencies. In the last twelve months the local Army Emergency Relief Fund and the Army Relief Society, acting as your personal agents, rendered financial aid to 1,125 active and retired military personnel and dependents in the Fort Benning area. A total of $131,605.40 was disbursed in loans and grants. This material assistance cannot begin to measure or express the overall benefit that has accrued through your compassion and concern for the welfare of others.

The continued financial support for members of our Army family is possible only by your contribution to the Army Emergency Relief Fund and the Army Relief Society. I urge each of you to be generous in your support of the Joint Fund Campaign to be conducted at this installation during the period 16 March - 30 April 1973.

Early Outs

Leaving the scene

WASHINGTON (ANF) — The Army has restricted its policies for officers and enlisted personnel seeking early releases for employment, teaching and short tours.

The early release for Active Army enlisted personnel accepted for National Guard and Army Reserve units has been expanded.

The changes resulted from an in-depth analysis of all current programs with the objective of streamlining them to meet the changing environment of the volunteer Army.

Specifically:

—Early separation to accept employment is terminated effective for all personnel with expiration-term-of-service (ETS) dates on or after Oct. 1, 1973. Separation will not be authorized after June 30, 1973.

— Early separation to accept teaching positions is terminated effective for all personnel with ETS dates on or after Dec. 1, 1973.

— The current 150-day early release policy for enlisted personnel returning from short-tour areas is reduced to 90 days effective for personnel with Date Eligible for Return from Overseas (DEROS) on or after May 1, 1973.

Soldiers who prior to the date of receipt of DA Message 022045Z Mar. 73, "Early Release Policies," had an approved extension of their DEROS so as to take advantage of the 150-day policy are not affected by this change.

Voluntary extension of DEROS to take advantage of the new 90-day policy is authorized.

Enlisted personnel with more than 90 but less than 121 days to ETS upon completion of normal tour and who do not intend to reenlist will be involuntarily extended to qualify for the early release under the above provisions.

— The Reserve Components in-service recruiting program which is currently operational in the continental United States and Hawaii and which authorizes a 60-day early release for all categories of Active Army enlisted personnel accepted for National Guard and Army Reserve unit assignments is expanded to authorize a 90-day early release effective upon receipt of DA Message 022045Z Mar. 73.

Salute

WRBL honors Fort Benning soldiers

During WRBL's (channel 3) Rozelle Show this week, 11 young soldiers from Fort Benning were honored. The weeks' program was entitled, "Speak Out For Young Americans."

Col. Bob Nett, assistant to the Director of Facilities Engineering, was the master of ceremonies for the hour-long program March 12 that honored "young men in uniform." Seven senior officers and commanders from Fort Benning were introduced by Col. Nett. These men, in turn, spoke on behalf of one or two soldiers who had performed their necessary duties in an exemplary manner.

Those soldiers honored include: Sp4 Willie B. Thomas and Sgt John R. Stanley from the 197th Infantry Brigade; Officer Candidates Dale Fage and Eldon Bargewell from the School Brigade; PFC Lorin L. Nessan and Pvt. David C. Partyca from the 93ist Engineer Group; Sp5 Terry A. Stanger from Aviation Command; Capt. Lanny Bassham and Sp4 William Jarnigan from MEDDAC; Sp5 Glenn Harris, USAIS; and Capt. Richard Gerding, USAIS.

A banquet for all the "Young Americans" honored during the week was held last night at the Ralston Hotel.

The Bayonet salutes WRBL and Rozelle for this unique contribution in recognizing some of the young leaders stationed at Fort Benning.

Pvt. James Barber of the 72nd Engr. Co., 197th Spt. Bn., 197th Inf. Bde., places another bundle of newspapers on the scale to be weighed before being trucked to the Fort Benning re-cycle point.

197th collects 7 tons of paper

A brigade-wide paper drive was held recently by the men of the 197th Inf. Bde., Fort Benning. Brigade personnel collected nearly 7 tons of newspapers simply by bringing in the papers they had stashed at home.

Newspaper drives do not net much money for those involved, but by collecting and selling newspapers to recycling plants one objective can be reached. That objective is — resources recovery.

By recycling the collected newspapers, the brigade helped to solve the national and local problems of reclaiming reusable solid waste materials. Also, it helped promote economy of our natural resources, as less trees will need to be cut to supply the needs of paper mills.

After the drive was completed, and a tally was made it was learned that the men of the 197th Support Battalion are the best paper collectors. The battalion collected nearly three-and-a-half tons which average out to be 12.23 poucds per man. Brigade-wide each man collected, on the average, 4.41 pounds.

According to Capt. Adrien Goulet Jr., 197th Inf. Bde., S-4, the paper collected by the brigade will be recycled into cardboard. "It's easier to make cardboard from recycled paper than by processing timber," he said.

What do you think your chances are of becoming a success in civilian life with less than an honorable discharge?

Undesirable, undesired by the wise

Pvt.-2 Michael Lewis
Co. B, 1st 58th

I don't think a man would have a very good chance of succeeding without an honorable discharge, especially in a small town. I'm from a small town and I think it would be to a real disadvantage to me if I got out with anything less than an honorable discharge. People in a small town tend to look at your military record as something beneficial to an individual.

Pvt. 2 Jerome Calhoun
47th Co.

I don't think a man would have a chance to be a success because the job he may be interested in would be very difficult for him to get because of his discharge. Even if a man has a college degree, he may still find it hard to find a job.

Spc Don Rush
609, Trans. Co.

I really don't know very much about the problems the men have that get out on anything less than an honorable discharge. But I think it would depend fully on the attitude of the individual, the type of job he is interested in and applying for and then opinion of the employer.

Pvt William Smith
47th Airborne Co.

I don't think it would be very easy because people tend to be suspicious and overly cautious of a person who has been discharged, either undesirably or dishonorably, and it makes finding a job very hard, especially a job you really want.

Pvt. John Benson
45th

It's according to who you know. For me I don't think it really matters. My father owns his own business, so I wouldn't have any trouble finding a job I liked. But every one can't be as lucky as I am, to some it would be to a great disadvantage.

Give Indians Equal Time

Dear Editor,

Dear Editor,

I have something that I would like to bring to the attention of the Army.

Ever since I have been in the service, all I have heard is race relation. Seems like every time I turn around there is something going on for some small minority group.

Don't get me wrong, I am not prejudice all that much, and I feel that every one should have their night.

Let's take a look at this thing more deeply.

All of the NCO and Enlisted Clubs here at Fort Benning and on most other post have what is called Soul Night. This night is set aside at the clubs for the entertainment of the Black men on that post. The same holds true at most of the Service Clubs on military installations.

On some of the installations I have been to the Service Clubs and Enlisted Clubs have even had Mexican Night.

Now, what I want to know is what about my race?

I am half Indian, Cherokee to be exact, and I have never heard of a military installation having any type of club ever holding an 'Indian Night' for the sole purpose of entertaining the Indians.

What I want to know is why not. After all we are the true American people. This was once our land, and we helped right along with everybody else to build this country into what it is today. So how about giving the Indians equal time?

R.E.C.

Boxing program needs help

Dear Editor:

I am the Fort Benning boxing coach. I have been trying to get a boxing program started for about a year. I feel that Fort Benning could have one of the best boxing teams in the States.

We had a Third Army Novice Tourniament in November which was held at Ft. Campbell, Ky., and an open Third Army boxing tournament in January and we only had five men for the novice team and two for the open team.

Fort Benning is supposed to be the home of the Infantry. I feel that the sports program could be much better, if we could get better unit commander support. I feel that if Forts Jackson, Bragg and Campbell can have a good boxing program, why can't we. We have the personnel but they aren't given the time to train. Condition is the most important part in any sport. I feel that a good boxing program will provide free entertainment for the troops and their dependents, help the moral of the unit, self confidence mentally and physically, plus it will keep most of the troops off the street and out of courts.

SSG Granville Walker

The soldier in the story next to me is going to miss alot. Don't you make the same mistake.

Soldier gets 18 yrs. at hard labor

A soldier convicted by general court martial at Fort Campbell in connection with a shooting and robbery at Fort Benning on Nov. 11 of last year has been sentenced to 18 years at hard labor, a dishonorable discharge and forfeiture of all pay and allowances.

The soldier was identified as PFC James Michael Epps, Company C, 2nd Battalion, 327th Infantry, Fort Campbell. Epps was charged with attempted murder and robbery of PFC Jonathan C. Stiles, 23rd Replacement Company.

Authorities said that Epps entered a barracks, shot Stiles in the abdomen and robbed him of a wallet containing $2.

Stiles recovered from his wound.

Drug Abuse

Exemption on your mind

The exemption program for individuals involved with drugs was originally established as the Drug Amnesty Program. The title has since been changed to the Exemption Program to end any misunderstanding. The basic objective, however, has remained the same.

What It Meaps

Exemption means protection from punitive action not already instituted under the Uniform Code of Military Justice (UCMJ) or from administrative action leading to a discharge under other than honorable conditions for drug use solely because of volunteering for treatment. If an individual's later inability to respond to rehabilitative efforts leads to administrative separation from the service, discharge will not be under other than honorable conditions solely for such use or possession of drugs. The provisions of the exemption policy also apply to individuals involuntarily identified as "drug abusers" through urinalysis and clinical evaluation.

Exemption will be given only for the illegal use or possession incident to such use of marijuana, narcotics, inhaled substances, or other controlled substances occurring prior to obtaining exemption and revealed through a member's voluntary disclosures at the time of the request for exemption.

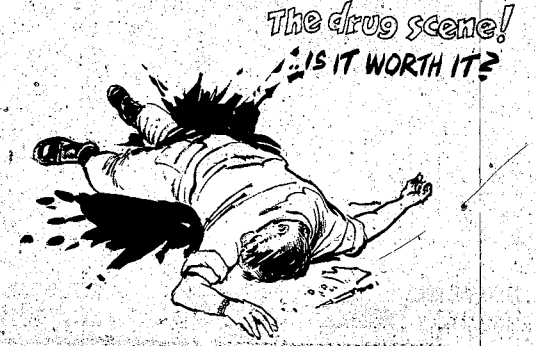
Administrative and Disciplinary Actions

Exemption given to an individual does not preclude commanders from taking administrative and disciplinary actions. A commander can suspend the abuser's access to classified information or deny or revoke his security clearance.

The abuser's reclassification or withdrawal of his Military Occupational Specialities (MOS) and suspension or revocation of his hazardous duty orders can also be executed. The commander may feel that the abuser can no longer do his job without jeopardizing other lives or the unit mission.

Administrative discharge from the Army under honorable conditions can be effected when the degree and form of drug involvement precludes rehabilitation and restoration to full duty and the overall character of service. The commander can also use disciplinary or other legal action under the UCMJ for violations of applicable laws and regulations other than those covered by the exemption. This includes those laws and regulations relating to the sale to others.

Everyone Must Take A Part



The commander has the most important role in implementing the exemption policy. When service members do not seek treatment, the commander should examine the administration of the exemption policy within his unit.

A soldier with a drug problem may seek help through a variety of means. It could be through the staff of the medical treatment facility. Halfway House (Benning House) or Rap Center, sick call, or by contacting any officer or noncommissioned officer. When an individual requests help, his unit commander is notified immediately.

The commander has several avenues in which to approach the problem. He should thoroughly explain to the individual the cope and limitations of the exemption program. He should also explain to the abuser how he can dispose of illegal drugs which he may still have in his possession and encourage the individual to provide information on drug sources although this is not a requirement for treatment or participation in the rehabilitation program.

The commander should also remember not to require the individual to sign any agreements or contracts.

Drug abuse is everyone's job. That means you and me!

Take Me In Your Arms

MISS HEROIN

So now Little Man you've grown tired of grass,
L.S.D., acid, cocaine, and hash.
And someone pretending to be a true friend
Said, "I'll introduce you to Miss Heroin."

Well Honey, before you start fooling with me,
Just let me inform you of how it will be.
For I will seduce you and make you my slave,
I've sent men much stronger than you to their graves.

You think you could never become a disgrace
And end up addicted to poppy seed waste.
So you'll start inhaling me one afternoon;
You'll take me into your arms very soon.

And once I have entered deep down in your veins,
The craving will nearly drive you insane.
You'll need lots of money (as you have been told)
For darling, I'm much more expensive than gold.

You'll swindle your mother and, just for a buck,
You'll turn into something vile and corrupt.
You'll mug and you'll steal for my narcotic charm,
And feel contentment when I'm in your arms.

The day when you realize the monster you've grown,
You'll solemnly promise to leave me alone.
If you think that you've got the mystical knack,
Then, sweetie, just try getting me off your back.

The vomit, the cramps, your gut tied in a knot.
The jangling nerves screaming for just one more shot.
The hot chills, the cold sweat, the withdrawal pains
Can only be saved by my little white grains.

There's no other way, and there's no need to look;
For deep down inside, you will know you are hooked.
You'll desperately run to the pusher and then,
You'll welcome me back to your arms once again.

And when you return (just as I foretold)
I know that you'll give me your body and soul.
You'll give up your morals, your conscience, your heart,
And you will be mine until DEATH DO US PART.

At TSB

Majority, minority--side by side

When Abraham Lincoln said "A house divided against itself cannot stand," he was speaking about slavery. Slavery in America is now a thing of the past. However, due to lack of knowledge and insensitivity between different races, problems still exist.

An organization like the U.S. Army where so many majority and minority groups work side-by side, cannot function when there is friction between them. The Army has working a number of programs to insure equal opportunity to all, and the School Brigade's Office for Race Relations and Equal Opportunity sees that they are working in TSB.

MSG Ralph M. Jackson, a friendly, outgoing man is NCOIC of the office. He explains its function. "Our office is here to report to the Brigade Commander how well the Dept. of the Army racial equality program is being implemented in TSB."

He is quick to point out that it is not a place where people should run bringing complaints of discrimination unless they have gone through proper channels first. "If someone feels that they have a definite complaint they should first go through their company commander. Then if they still feel that that they are getting no action they can come to us. We are basically an office of referral, where commanders can come in and inform us as to their particular racial situations."

One of the methods used to determine what is bothering minority groups in TSB is the Race Relations Advisory Council. Started in Nov. of 1972, the council members, and invitees, meet once monthly to discuss racial problems in TSB. They talk about the problems of blacks, whites, Mexicans, Indians, and other groups that help make up the brigade.

MSG Jackson has his own feelings on what it will take to solve the racial problem. "Talking alone won't do it. It's a problem, that stems all the way from a person's childhood. In most cases racism has been a part of the person all his or her life. The only thing that will cure it is a change in the minds and hearts of people."

197TH BRIGADE

On Fri., March 23, the ladies of the 2nd Battalion, 10th Field Artillery will hostess the 197th Brigade Spring Luncheon in the Supper Club. The program will focus attention on decorating hints for the Army wife — especially tips on decorating government quarters, mixing and matching furniture for the young marrieds and choosing accessories to brighten the home. Presenting the program will be Mrs. Pat Walters, a prominent Columbus decorator.

Mrs. Walters was born and educated in Columbus. She graduated from Auburn University with a major in art. For a year she worked for a decorator in Atlanta before launching her own career here. For the past eight years she has worked in Columbus as a free lance decorator.

Mrs. Walters and her husband Joe have three children, ages 12, 7 and 3.

The luncheon will begin at 11:45 a.m. Ladies of the Brigade should make their reservations through their unit chairman as soon as possible.

BRDD ARTILLERY COMMITTEE

A coffee for the ladies of the Artillery Committee was held March 1, at the home of Mrs. Toney Stricklin on Claradon Ave. in Columbus. The hostess served a cherry dessert, assorted cookies, punch and coffee. The evening event was purely social, highlighted by a tour of the Stricklin's new home.

STARS

The lodge at King's Pond, Fort Benning was the scene March 3 of a pot-luck supper for the officers and their ladies of the Artillery Committee. Following dinner, Lt. Col. A. E. Stipe welcomed the guests, Lt. Col. and Mrs. James T. Dunn and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Brown. Baby cups were given to Maj. and Mrs. Curtis L. Lamm for their son, Clint and to Capt. and Mrs. George W. Aux for their son and daughter, George

'Spring Fling' held by OWC

The Officers Wives Club of Fort Benning held its monthly luncheon Wednesday, March 14 at the Supper Club. "Spring Fling" was the theme for the luncheon.

Miss Mary Margaret Byrne, women's editor of the Ledger-Enquirer newspapers, was the guest speaker. Her topic was the cultural and educational opportunities offered in Columbus.

Dr. Andrew Galos, head of the department of music at Columbus College and professor of music, performed a violin solo. He was accompanied at the piano by Rexford Whiddon, assistant professor of music.

Guests of honor were Mrs. James W. Biggers, executive vice-president of the Historic Columbus Foundation; Dr. Katherine Mahan, associate professor of music at Columbus College; and Mrs. Charles Flowers, Three Arts League president.

Other guests of honor were Mrs. Perry Borum, Junior League president; Mrs. Joseph Spano, food editor of the Columbus Ledger-Enquirer and a Muscogee County school board member; and Miss Mary Margaret Byrne, the guest speaker.

At the sherry hour before the luncheon a number of works by local artists were on display in the main ballroom of the Officers' Club. The artists were also present to discuss their work with the luncheon guests.

The exhibit included works by Louise Ross, Allison Christie, Marge P. Tilley, Manon S. Hicks, Arnis Jenze, Evelyn S. Patterson, Sandra Hunt, Shirley Little, Gloria Christensen Sampson and Barbara C. Pound.

Hostesses for the luncheon were Mrs. Lawrence A. Bell and the officers wives of Aviation Command.

and Stephanie. In addition, Capt. and Mrs. Aux were given farewell tokens from the Committee. Thanks were extended to Capt. and Mrs. Robert Kimbrough for planning the party and to Capt. Ernest Levasseur for providing the entertainment.

SAC

The ladies of the Small Arms Committee held their monthly coffee March 1 at the home of Mrs. Ronald Grace, Miller Loop, Fort Benning. Co-hostess of the coffee was Mrs. George Vakalis.

Invitations were discussed for the coming Spring Fashon Show and Luncheon at Kirvens this April. Mrs. Jules Trepagnier announced that a work shop will be held at her home March 15 at 10 a.m. to make the invitations. Also discussed was the group trip to Destin on the week-end of March 9.

Afterwards, a choice of home-made cookies, cheesecake, ham and egg filled biscuits, coffee and a cool, green, frosted beverage was served by the hostesses.

Next month's coffee will be April 5 at the home of Mrs. Michael Kovalsky.

Montessori School to start here

Efforts are being made to start a Montessori school for pre-school children in the Fort Benning-Columbus area. To be opened this fall, enrollment at this school will be for children ages 2 to 4½. The school will be a fully certified Montessori school with a Montessori trained teacher and certified Montessori equipment.

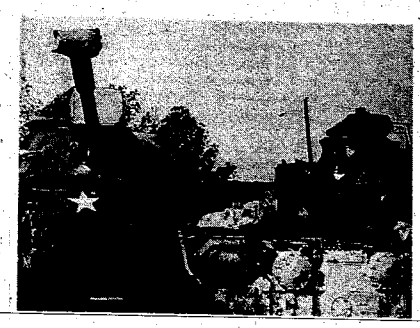
Retirement orientation

One hundred and twenty-eight military personnel attended a Phase I pre-retirement orientation session on Feb. 22 in Infantry Hall. The meeting was sponsored by the Post Retirement Services Section, a branch of the Adjutant General's Office.

The meeting was open to all military personnel with over 18 year's service contemplating retirement. Since 1970 the retirement services office has conducted the orientation at least annually.



Speakers at the meeting included Maj. William E. Davis, assistant adjutant general and chief of the retirement services office, Mr. Wentworth Bethea of Household Goods section Transportation Division, Mr. Russell Bakey from the Georgia State Employment Office.

Other speakers were Mr. Ernest Casady from MAH, Mr. Lyle Herman of the social security office in Columbus, 2nd Lt. Jeff Loetun from the Retirement Services Office, Mr. John Tidwell from the Veterans Administration in Atlanta, and Mrs. S. V. Fierro from the Fort Benning Project Office.

After the scheduled presentation there was an open question and answer period. The Retirement Services Office's next Phase I Orientation will be tentatively in September of this year.

Beginners shooting clinic to be held

A beginners shooting clinic will be held Mar. 10 from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the Fort Benning Rod and Gun Club. The clinic is open to all interested beginners in the Columbus-Fort Benning area. Guns will be furnished if necessary and ammunition will be sold. Qualified instructors will present lessons in safety, gun handling, selection, and skeet and trap shooting. The cost of the clinic is 75 cents per person. Call 545-6028 for more information.

Col. Steele takes command

Col. William B. Steele will assume command of the 197th Infantry Brigade during ceremonies at York Field on March 29. Col. Steele will succeed Col. Edwin L. Kennedy. Col. Kennedy will be assigned as the Senate Liaison Officer for the Department of the Army.

Col. Steele's last assignment was as the Secretary of the U. S. Army Infantry School. Prior to that, Col. Steele was director of the Leadership Department.

The new brigade commander is a native of Atlanta and is a graduate of the University of Georgia in Athens. He received a master's degree in international affairs from George Washington University.

Col. Steele has completed the Infantry officer basic, Infantry Officer advanced, and basic Airborne courses at the Infantry School. He is also a graduate of the Army War College and the Navy War College.

Steele has served as the executive and senior aide to the chief of staff of the Army. He has commanded a battalion and been chief of staff of the 9th Infantry Division in Vietnam.

Among Col. Steele's decorations are the Silver Star with one oak leaf cluster, the Distinguished Flying Cross; the Bronze Star Medal with "V" device and one oak leaf cluster, 17 awards of the Air Medal, the Combat Infantryman Badge, the Senior Parachutist Badge and the Vietnamese Gallantry Cross with Palm.

Col. Steele and his wife, Virginia, have two sons, Wade, 22, and Bill, 19.

Something is going on

Training in the 197th Inf. Bde. goes on as usual in spite of the reorganization and change of command.

197th Inf. Bde. marks two historical changes

By Alex Angelle

Fort Benning's 197th Infantry Brigade will mark two historical unit changes with a formal ceremony and review on York Field at 11 a.m. March 21.

First in the dual-event ritual will be the reorganization of the 197th Brigade from a General Support Force Brigade to a Division Forces Strategic Army Forces (STRAF) brigade. In this phase of the ceremony several units will be activated, including the 3rd Bn., 7th Inf., 2nd Bn. 60th Art. and Trp. A 15th Cav., while the colors of the 1st Bn., 29th Inf. (Pioneers) will be transferred, as the unit will become the primary support unit for the Infantry School under a separate table of distribution and allowances (TDA).

The 197th will become a modified table of organization and equipment (MTOE) outfit and will initially, have the job of training and preparing for any task assigned to it by its higher headquarters. In addition, the 197th will have the task of remaining combat ready and prepared for immediate deployment.

Immediately following the reorganization Col. Edwin L. Kennedy, who has commanded the 197th Brigade since Nov. 20, 1971, will relinquish command and Col. William B. Steele, Infantry School Secretary, will assume command.

Including the units to be activated, those participating in the ceremony are: 3rd Bn., 7th Inf., 1st Bn., 29th Inf. (Pioneers), 1st Bn. (Mech), 58th Inf. (Patriots), 2nd Bn., 60th Ar., 2nd Bn., 10th Arty., 197th Spt. Bn., HHC, 197th Inf. Bde., 72nd Engr. Co. and Trp. A, 15th Cav. The 283rd Army Band, which will provide appropriate music for the occasion, will also be part of the troop formation.

An array of equipment from the 197th Brigade's units will be on public display on Gardner Field (adjacent to York Field). The 3rd Bn., 7th Inf. will display a jeep, 5-4-truck and jeep mounted with a 106mm recoilless rifle. An armored personnel carrier (APC), tracked reconnaissance vehicle and command tracked vehicle will represent the 1st Bn. (Mech), 58th Inf. (Patriots).

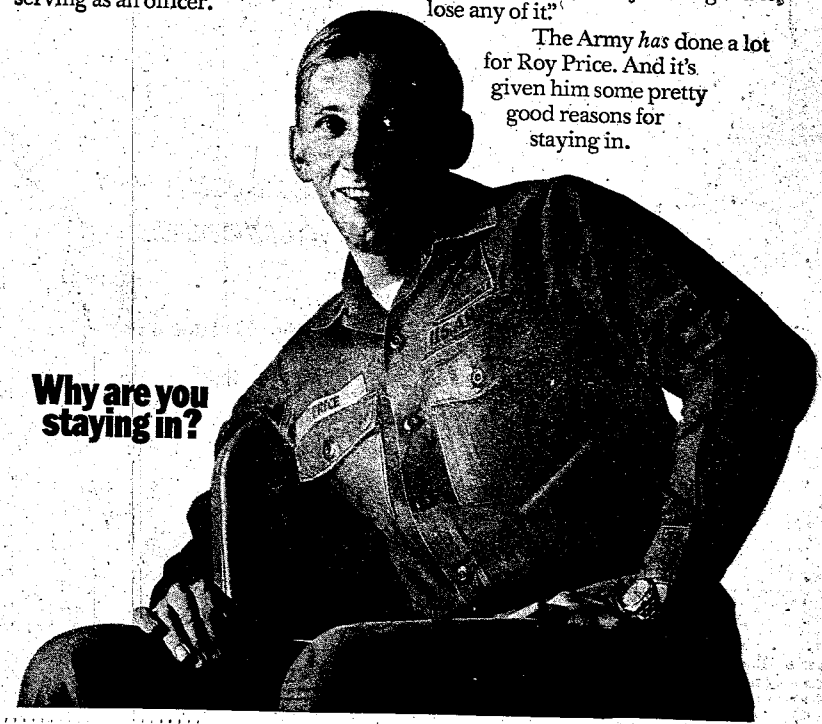
A variety of artillery pieces representing the 2nd Bn., 10th Arty. will include a 105mm towed howitzer, 155mm towed howitzer, 155mm self propelled howitzer, 175mm self propelled gun and an 8-inch self propelled gun.

The 2nd Bn., 60th Ar. display makes a virtual tour of the history of armor, including an M-3 Stuart tank, an M-4 tank of early World War II vintage and an old M-41 tank with 76mm main gun. The modern examples of armor in the display will be an M-48A3 tank with 90mm main gun, M-60A1 with 105mm main gun and the M-551 Sheridan of the type used in combat in Vietnam.

"It's too good to get out."

Sergeant Roy Price has put a lot into his Army career. And he's gotten a lot out of it.

"Maybe it's just me. Maybe I'm lucky. But the more I find out about the Army—what it has to offer, what you can do—the more I'm convinced that staying in was the best move I could make.



"Take college. I've got two years of it already, most of it paid for by the Army. And since I'm reenlisting, I'll be able to finish the other two. When I graduate I'll even have the option of applying for OCS and that'll give me the chance to start serving as an officer.

"The Army tries to help you out in any way they can, from what I can figure. When I finished my tour in Vietnam I asked to be stationed at Ft. Hood, and here I am.

"It all worked out pretty well, because my wife and I just had our first baby—cost about $7.00—and I hate to think what it would've been on the outside.

"When I look at everything—the schooling, the cost of living, where I'm stationed—the Army's done an awful lot for me. I don't know...right now it's just too good to lose any of it."

The Army has done a lot for Roy Price. And it's given him some pretty good reasons for staying in.

Why are you staying in?

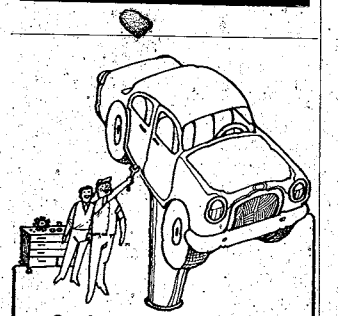
Residents of Fort Benning, beware of the Allied Publishing Company.

The Allied Publishing Company, according to the Columbus Better Business Bureau, is a traveling company that offers magazines at what seems to be a "low" price.



According to the BBB, the company contacts people by phone or post cards, asking easy questions. If you answer them correctly, they offer a five year subscription for 57c a week, to a magazine of your choice.

However, some of the magazines are published only once a month and the price you pay the "Allied Publishing Company" is about $2.57 a month. Newstand prices on magazines printed once a month are much cheaper than this.

The company also requires you to write a story on how well you like the magazine. In most cases, this causes the unsuspecting buyer to think he is getting a better deal.

The best way to deal with this and other companies is to contact the Columbus Better Business Bureau and check the reliability of the company offering the product.

84th Co. wins Connely award

Winner of third place in Third Army's Phillip A. Connley award for dining excellence is 84th Co. 8th Student Bn., TSB.

Brigadier General William R. Richardson, Assistant Commandant USAIS, presented the award to SFC Willie J. Baldwin, 84th Company's Mess Sergant, on March 7.

84th Co. won the award in the large mess (feeding 200 or more) category.

SFC Baldwin said the judging was based on "administrative management of the mess hall; quantity, quality, and preparation of the food; and troop reaction to the food."

The 84th Co. mess has also been chosen TSB's best mess for January and February, and was selected Fort Benning's best large mess for January.

Goodwill

Engineers lend hand

On March 9, 1973 Co. B of the 43rd Engineer Battalion completed site preparation of a future site for the Goodwill Industries.

Future plans call for construction of a factory. The preparation took one month to complete with 22,000 cubic yards of earth being moved. Dignitaries gathered to break ground Friday March 9, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

The work done by B Company brought Military and Civilian relations one step closer in harmonious relations, also the Engineer personnel continued living up to their motto of Power for Service.

Oriental film star Miss Mercy says that any man without an honorable discharge won't make it to first base.

Bum discharge spells sad times

by Steve Vitucci

Many soldiers think they can get a general discharge by just asking for it—a sort of less than honorable early out. They believe that a less than honorable discharge will not hurt them, or that it con be changed later. But they are wrong.

The Army has five types of discharges. From highest to lowest, they are: HONORABLE, GENERAL, UNDESIRABLE, BAD CONDUCT (BCD), and DISHONORABLE DISCHARGE (DD). The majority of soldiers will receive honorable discharges. But 4.5 percent will receive less than honorable discharges.

According to Capt. Abbott B. Walton Jr. of the Staff Judge Advocate office at Fort Benning, the discharges of a less than honorable nature can be grouped into two categories. The judicial discharges and the administrative discharges. The judicial discharges are brought about by result of Court Martial. The Administrative discharges are brought about as necessary by the commander.

Walton explained that the judicial discharges included the DD and the BCD. He said soldiers should avoid these discharges at all costs since they bring with them the loss of many benefits. Simple things like getting a loan, financing a car or a house become incredibly difficult.

"Many civilian agencies," said Walton, "look at the discharge as a measure of worth for employment and will just not hire a man with a DD or BCD." The BCD and DD are considered felonies and end up on the FBI records. Walton said that these discharges are automatically reviewed, however.

"The administrative elimination generally falls within the provisions of Army Regulation 635-200," said Walton. This is the regulation covering "Unfitness" and "unsuitability".

Walton explained that there is very, very little difference between the two. Most G.I.s mistakenly believe they can get out on a general discharge by asking for an unfitness or unsuitability discharge. It is up to the commander to initiate action in the administrative elimination.

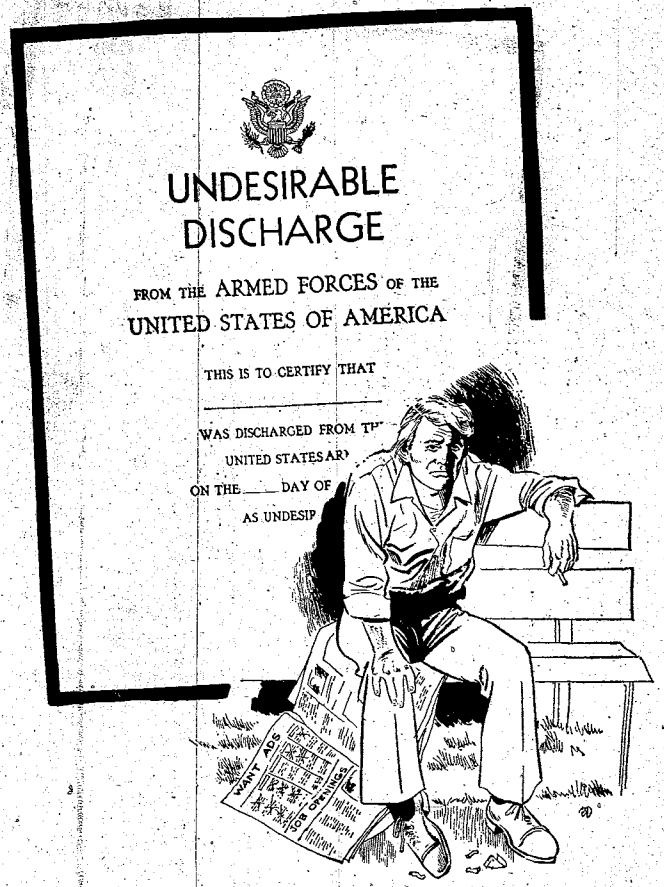
Unfitness can result in an undesirable discharge, general discharge, and an occasional honorable discharge. Unfitness includes such things as frequent violations of the law, excessive indebtedness, AWOL, aggressive homosexuality, a pattern of shirking duty, or drug use.

Unsuitability is considered by the Army to be a less serious offense than unfitness. Characteristics of unsuitability are: apathy, alcoholism, or non-aggressive homosexuality. Unsuitability discharges usually end in general discharges.

Since interpretation of Unsuitability and Unfitness is determined by the commander, and there is a very slight difference between the two, the offending GI is at a disadvantage. The GI who chooses to go before an elimination board is not guaranteed to get any special kind of discharge. In fact, he is more than likely to get a rehabilitive transfer.

Soldiers waiting to be tried by Court Martial are sometimes given a chance to take an undesirable discharge in lieu of standing trial. As serious as this discharge is it offers them a break, since trial by Court Martial would bring a DD or BCD, as well as a felony conviction. However, this option is subject to approval by the Commanding General and those who have committed a serious offense will in all likelihood stand trial.

When the young veteran leaves the "Green Machine" and looks for employment, he is asked on almost every job application: "Do you have an honorable discharge?"



If the answer to this question is no, there are very few employees who are interested in him. If he was a problem to the Army, very few people want to risk taking on another problem in their business enterprise.

The stigma of a dishonorable discharge makes it worth looking at real closely. Society has always looked at a person with a less than honorable discharge as cowardly and disloyal. There is no differentiation between the less than honorable discharges. Society tends to lump them all into one category—"DISHONORABLE".

The less than honorable discharge can be a source of embarrassment and shame for the rest of a person's life. The former boxing middleweight champion of the world, Rocky Graziano, tried to keep his dishonorable discharge a secret, but it always came back to haunt him. The following is quoted from the Oct. 13, 1947 issue of Time magazine:

"Rock's past had come back to haunt him. The Department of Defense confirmed the fact that the champ had been AWOL from the Army for four months during the war. During that time, he picked up cigaret money—sometimes as little as $25—fighting in preliminary bouts. It took the Army awhile to catch up with Rocky, perhaps because it was looking for a man named Rocco Barbella (his real name). Caught and court-martialed, Rocky was sentenced to twelve months hard labor at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas and dishonorably discharged. His manager insists that the dishonorable discharge was "suspended" because Rocky behaved so well in jail.

"When they heard about Rocky's war record last week, Illinois, Minnesota, and Pennsylvania banned him from their rings. The National Boxing Association had not yet taken action, but declared itself in favor of "rejecting any participant in boxing who had not fulfilled his trust to his country." Rocky would have a tough time finding a place to defend his crown."

Fourteen states later banned Rocky from the ring as a result of his Army record. The dishonorable discharge remained a source of embarrassment and shame as Rocky later said in his autobiography, Somebody Up There Likes Me.

Some soldiers believe that a less than honorable discharge can be changed very easily. This is not true. The Army Discharge Review Board and the Army Board for Correction of Military Records are the only agencies which can change a discharge. In the past 25 years more than 96,000 discharges were reviewed and only 15.3 percent of them were changed.

With these facts the soldier can choose. The honorable discharge route is a smoother and easier route than the rough and hard route of the less than honorable discharge.

Wounded Knee

What does it mean to be an Indian?

What does Wounded Knee mean to you? Does it mean anything? To Pvt. Owen T. Brown, HHD 197th Support Battalion, member of the Catawba Indian Tribe (S. C.) Wounded Knee holds deep feelings and emotions.

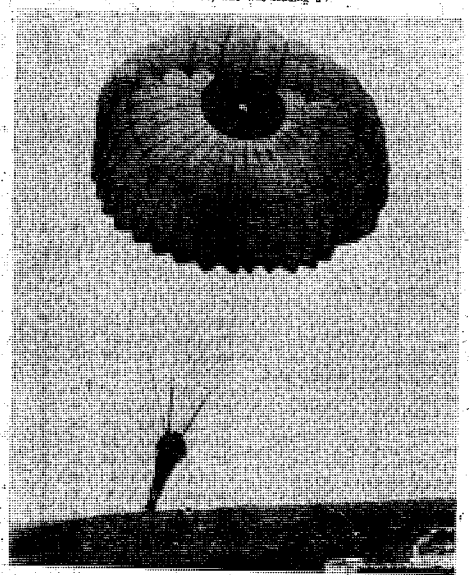
Pvt. Brown believes that "Wounded Knee symbolizes the white man's feelings that the Indians were the lowest type of individuals in the country. The Whites socialized, worked, and lived with every other nationality but the Indians. The White man only wanted to take the best of the Indians' land. The American Indians have always been a very proud people and fought very hard for what they thought should rightfully be theirs."

Why would Private Brown have such moving thoughts about an 1890 incident in the history of the Indian wars?

Some historians label Wounded Knee as a "battle", others call it a "clash," a "tragedy" and a "massacre." What really occurred during the cold month of December at Wounded Knee, South Dakota?

On December 17, 1890, the War Department issued an order for the arrest of Minnecojou Chief Big Foot, who was seriously ill with pneumonia. Big Foot was leading a total of 120 men and 230 women and children toward Pine Ridge, South Dakota when intercepted on Dec. 28 by Major Samuel Whitside, who was leading a portion of the Seventh US Cavalry. Whitside ordered the Indians to head toward Wounded Knee and allowed the hemorrhaging chief to ride in his ambulance where it was slightly warmer than the freezing temperatures of the December snow and wind.

When they reached Chankpe Opi Wakpala, the creek called Wounded Knee, Whitside issued them food, tents, and had his physician treat Big Foot, who was given a stove to warm his tent. The small band of Indians was encircled by two troops of cavalry while two Hotchkiss cannons were so positioned that they were able to cover the entire Indian area. That evening the Seventh Cavalry Commander, Colonel James W. Forsyth rejoined his forces and ordered two additional Hotchkiss cannons to be placed overlooking the Indians.



On the morning of December 29, with soldiers surrounding them, Forsyth ordered the Indians to stack all their weapons. Not satisfied with the quantity of arms, the soldiers began to search the Indians' teepees and tents and confiscated axes, knives, and tent stakes. These additional finds were still not sufficient, so the Indians themselves were searched, which resulted in the discovery of two rifles. One was a new Winchester which belonged to a deaf Black Coyote.

The deaf Indian held the rifle over his head, shouting that he had bought the rifle and it was his. Several soldiers spun him round trying to grab the rifle — a shot was fired and immediately the soldiers' carbines opened up. Big Foot fell dead just before the Hotchkiss cannons roared out their thunder of death. Bullets and shrapnel killed men, women and children without discrimination.

At the end of the bedlam, 153 Indians were known dead, with estimates running as high as 300 to include those wounded who crawled away. The majority of the 25 dead soldiers fell from their own bullets and cannon fragmentations. With a blizzard approaching, the wounded Sioux, four men and forty-seven women and children, were transported to Pine Ridge. The dead were left where they fell, freezing into shockingly distorted shapes.

At Pine Ridge, the bleeding, nearly frozen survivors were left in the open wagons until they were allowed to enter the Episcopal mission where hay served as their mattress. There, hanging about the pulpit was a sign; "PEACE ON EARTH, GOOD WILL TO MEN."

Was Wounded Knee a battle? Was Wounded Knee a massacre? What do you think, reader?

Delta company takes motto to heart

Members of Delta Company, 43rd Engineers have taken the Battalion Motto of "Power for Service" to heart as construction crews spread throughout the Fort Benning Area this past week. The hardworking Engineers have begun or completed construction on six projects ranging from placing a culvert and upgrading Plymouth Road and Helmet Trail on north post to redecking the Laundry Creek Bridge behind Lawson Air Field.

The Delta Engineers completed a sidewalk for the Sand Hill Chapel and devoted skilled carpentry effort to installing partitions, panelling, and hanging a false ceiling to enhance the decor of the Infantry Museum. Work was also initiated on the road net and sundries building for the USAIC Special Services Recreation Park under Construction at Uchee Creek.

In addition to this "at home" work, the earth-moving platoon is still actively engaged in the preparation of ground for the athletic complex at the University of Alabama in Mobile.

Wasser places 10th Nationally

Fort Benning photographer, Sgt. Rick Wasser of HHC, 197th Inf. Bde., recently placed tenth in the "Focus on Politics 1972" photo contest sponsored by Newsweek magazine.

Wasser, who works for the 197th Inf. Bde. Information Office as a writer as well as photographer, captured tenth place with a photo taken at a Republican political rally last fall when Vice-President Spiro Agnew visited Columbus. The talented photographer has won numerous other photo awards, including the BAYONET's own "Phoul Photo" contest last October.

"I have to admit that I didn't think this particular shot was good enough to place in a national contest," Wasser confided. "I guess it was just the type of thing they were looking for. It was different."

"Wasser became interested in photography long before he entered the Army. Even now, taking pictures is as much a hobby as a job.

"Photography is the greatest thing I've ever been involved in," he said. "At times it is as simple as recording a visual moment in time, while it can be so complicated that no single person can be an expert in every photographic field. That's what I like most. There is always something else to learn, experiment with. You never run out of new things to try."

April spells sales

DALLAS — Army and Air Force Exchange Service shoppers, take heed: April 8-14 is national Let's Play Ball Week, and April 15-21 is Garden Week.

Even if your local exchange may not be aware of the significance of the dates, you can be sure it will have a good supply of sporting goods and gardening needs anyway.

Easter is April 22. Selections of traditional baskets, candy eggs and bunnies and stuffed animals are waiting for you and the children. And don't forget that new Easter bonnet or outfit. Look for special buys on fashion items.

The annual Mother's Day event will begin in the exchange on April 22. But anytime is the right time to buy a card or shop for gifts for the loved ones you plan to remember on that special day May 13 — or any day.

Items especially right for outdoor living will be available in most retail outlets throughout April, as will fresh new linens, curtains, bathroom accessories and other needs for indoor spring freshening-up time.

The April food special — a hot roast beef sandwich with gravy and french fries — will be offered on the 26th and 27th at most AAFES food outlets.

TO OUR FRIENDS & CUSTOMERS OF FT. BENNING:

Historic tours planned throughout Valley for April

There was a time when people throughout the Chattahoochee Valley recited the short verse "April showers bring May flowers." But that was yesterday. Travel enthusiasts and Valley residents now know that April is the month when people across the nation join the annual pilgrimage to and tour of historic Valley homes.

This April, a trio of such tours awaits the arrival of the interested traveler. Eufaula, Alabama, Columbus, Georgia, and Cuthbert, Georgia offer the public an unusual opportunity to view the architectural elegance of yesteryear.

An Old South welcome will greet you during the seventh annual Eufaula Pilgrimage April 5-8, and the Pilgrimage Antique Show and Sale, Friday through Sunday, April 6-8 at the National Guard Armory. In addition, the tour will include a number of special events this year.

Those homes scheduled to be open are the Shorter Mansion, Fendall Hall, Bray-Barron Home, Highland View, Drewery-Mitchell-Moorer Home, Dean-Page Hall, Sparks-Flewellen Home, Carlton-Hurlbert Home, Simpson-Thomas Home, and Thornton-Petry-Steward-Honan Home. The last named residence will be seen for the first time.

The homes will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day except Sunday when the hours will be 1-5 p.m.

A candlelight tour will be conducted at selected homes on Thursday and Saturday nights, 7 to 9 p.m. During the candlelight tour Saturday night, the Wiregrass Sacred Harp Singers will perform at Fendall Hall.

Other special events include: daily band concerts by the Eufaula High School Band in the parkway in front of Shorter Mansion, an arts and crafts fair at the Wellborn House, an antique silver display valued at $62,000.00 at a downtown jewelry store, and a concert which will be presented by the Camerata Music Club at the high school auditorium on Friday night. The White Oak Promenaders will have a square dance exhibition Saturday night.

Also, plan to take a jaunt to nearby Lumpkin Georgia to visit Bedingfield Inn, a restored stagecoach inn, and historic Westville, the reconstructed village where it's always 1850. These attractions are being operated in conjunction with the Eufaula Pilgrimage and may be viewed daily. All craftsmen employed at Westville will be available to display their skills.

Journey a few miles up the river and participate in Spring Festival Days in Columbus, Georgia featuring a tour of homes, a Salisbury Fair, an antique show, and a bass fishing tournament which will be staged April 13-14.

The tour of homes in Columbus' historic district, April 14-15, will include visits to the Walker-Peters-Langdon House, Pemberton House, Rankin House, and the Springer Opera House. A tour of residences will include five homes and two gardens which abound in native Georgia flora.

The tour will be held Saturday, April 14th, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and again on Sunday from noon until 6 p.m.

Salisbury Fair is fun for the whole family. A flea market and crafts show, musical and choral groups, a children's art show, and a carnival for the youngsters will be featured. In addition, the Fountain City Antique Auto Club will display classic models from throughout the South. There will be a judo demonstration and displays from Six Flags over Georgia, Westville, and the Columbus Museum of Arts and Crafts. These attractions will be located on lower Broadway between 4th and 9th streets; the hours of operation are the same as for the tour of homes.

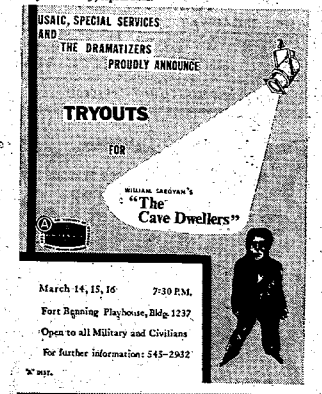
The antique show will be in the Fine Arts Building at the fairgrounds behind the Municipal Auditorium. Hours are: April 13th, 6-9 p.m.; April 14th, 10 a.m.9 p.m.; April 15th, noon to 6 p.m.

The Bass Fishing Tournament will take place on Lake Oliver in Columbus from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday, April 14th.

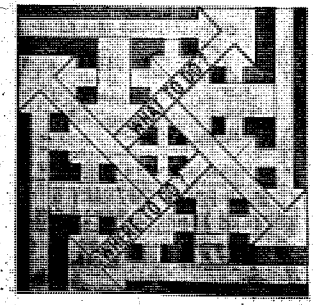
Cuthbert, Georgia, a newcomer to the pilgrimage scene, will sponsor its first tour of homes on April 14-15 from 1 to 6 p.m.

Those homes scheduled to be open are the King-Stapleton House, Dan Harris Home, Martin-Muse House, Moye-Goode Home, W. C. Kiker House ,Sam Sawyer House, Pulaski-Barnes House, C. B. Whatley House, and the Farmer-McPherson House.

Also featured will be Andrew College, chartered in 1854, and several ante-bellum law offices. Cuthbert has the distinction of having more of these typical little porticoed offices for lawyers and doctors than any other town in Georgia.



There are no special events planned in conjunction with this tour but preparations are being made for a drive-by tour later this year. Twenty-six or twenty-seven homes are expected to be on this driving tour.



For further information on these tours, write Historic Chattahoochee Commission, P. O. Box 33, Eufaula, Alabama 36027.

MAN
By Poss-72

A total man in Spirit, Mind and Body.
Lived, in living,
Gave, in giving,
Loved, in loving,
Died, in dieing.
Lived.
And tho he walked
But not far.
And what he said was simple.
But complicated.
And what he presented.
Was not understood.
The world has been changed,
Because,
One man lived and loved.

Dear Bayonet,

I want to know why the dental clinic won't consider putting some people in the hospital for a day or two, if there is a lot of work involved. R.N.B.

According to MEDDAC authorities, dentists do indeed hospitalize patients but only in those instances where the poor medical condition of the patient is such that dental proceedures must be accompanied in a hospital environment, when patients are unable to cooperate such as the extremely apprehensive, the very young and the mentally retarded. In addition, oral surgery patients are routinely hospitalized for extensive procedures.

Why don't they routinely hospitalize patients? There are a number of reasons:

1. Expense to the government (tax payer) in a military hospital, to the patient in a civilian hospital. (a) High daily cost of hospital care ($79 for room and board alone). (b) Cost of routine admission laboratory procedures (c) Operating room costs (d) Plus the fee for the procedure in non-military dentistry.

2. Equipment — Due to high cost, few hospitals are equipped for maximum efficiency in dental procedures.

3. Time — Requires more time away from duty, school, etc. than when accomplished on an outpatient basis.

4. Unavailability of sufficient hospital beds or operating room time to accomplish this for all the patients requiring extensive dental work.

5. Additional non-productive time required of the dentist and secretary in dictating and typing all the paper work required in every admission, treatment and discharge.

6. The patient is usually more uncomfortable when many procedures are accomplished at one time.

In summary, while there are situations where it is best to hospitalize a patient for dental care, the great majority of the time it is to the advantage of the patient, the dentist, and the government, to accomplish dental procedures on an outpatient basis.

For more information on dental procedures call 544-3141.

Coming to the screen

2001: A SPACE ODYSSEY . . . This film is an adventure which spans the whole history of the human race. It takes you on a voyage of discovery into the great age of exploration that is opening up for mankind among the planets and beyond. And in the mind-stretching finale, you find yourself hurtling through immense star clusters, past clouds of exploding gas where whole suns are being born, and on into strange regions of space and time where forces rage forever incomprehensible to man. And here, at the end of your journey, you will meet the powers that watched over the birth of our species — and have been waiting ever since for us to emerge from our planetary cradle.

LADY LIBERTY . . . Sophia Loren arrives from Italy to meet fiance Luigi Proietti in New York. She carries with her a Mortadella (a large Italian baloney) for a wedding present but she is told it cannot be brought into the country (the law states no meats can be carried through Customs). Sophia persists and soon the affair becomes a cause celebre. Fiance Proietti sides with the authorities. Daily News reporter William Devane and councilman Danny DeVito intervene on Sophia's behalf as do several others who have their own needs in mind while presumably aiding her.

THE MAGNIFICENT SEVEN RIDE . . . Lawman Lee Van Cleef is on the trail of Darrell Larson, a young punk whom he freed at the urging of his own wife, Mariette Hartley. Larson later helps rob a bank, seriously wounds Van Cleef, and kidnaps Miss Hartley with his companions. The revengeful Van Cleef has five convicts paroled and along with newsman Michael Callen "THE MAGNIFICENT SEVEN RIDE" into adventure. In a climatic shootout with a gang of bandits, they defend a town filled with women led by Stefanie Powers.
