The term noise means any disturbing, harmful, or unwanted sound. According to Army audiologists, noise is the leading cause of hearing loss in the Army. Up to 60 per cent of Army personnel in certain areas have developed some significant noise induced hearing loss.

"This is why ear protection is so important," a medical center official said. Ear plugs, which come in several shapes, and sizes, are provided to employees in areas identified as having noise hazards. The plugs have to be fitted by technicians. Poorly fitted plugs offer little protection.

Decibels

Volume, noise, loudness, etc., is represented by decibels (dB). The decibel is a complicated unit to understand. Named after Alexander Graham Bell, it was first used to denote power loss in telephone lines. For the purpose of this article, a decibel is used to measure sound intensity or sound pressure. An increase of just 10 decibels is a doubling of the sound intensity.

The effective upper limit for humans without damage is 90-95 dB. From this point on, higher ratings over longer periods will cause extensive damage to the ear and result in deafness.

It is interesting that people who insist in pumping 100 watts of power into stereo speakers are producing in excess of 120 dB, and insuring that they will someday need a hearing aid. The average discotheque measures approximately 115 dB, enough to cause temporary deafness after lengthy exposure.

These figures may not be scary, but how about the following? A level of 155 dB in less than 30 minutes can burn the skin off the human body — 180 dB after seven minutes exposure causes death. This last fact becomes more interesting when one considers that 155mm howitzer peaks in sound pressure at 190 dB at the muzzle of the weapon.

Hearing Conservation

As far as ear protection is concerned, ear plugs are the best. Cotton has no effect. Sometimes soldiers on rifle ranges have put cartridge cases or cigarette butts in their ears. They won't help.

Although many of us do not work in noisy areas our hearing is still affected by our environment. A new term called socioacusis describes this gradual loss of hearing caused by noise in the environment.

According to WRAMC officials, the city's sounds get a decibel louder each year. A few years ago, a study was conducted which found that individuals living in the country suffered significantly less hearing loss than those who remained in the city.

The effectiveness of hearing conservation depends on all of us. Hearing conservation programs try to minimize the dangers of noise. Once the hearing loss occurs it can't be regained.

Defense Report

How much should we pay a soldier?

The Department of Defense has just issued a nine-volume report prepared by the Quadrennial Review of Military Compensation. In its various volumes the report touches on every aspect of military pay and benefits from recruiting bonuses to burial in a military cemetery. One of the unusual aspects of this mammoth two-year study was an effort to quantify the distinctive aspects of military service and to establish a basis for compensating military personnel for their special kind of employment. The study group called this the "X-factor."

The study didn't uncover any aspects of military life that had not been considered before but it examined the known factors in a way that strengthens arguments for adjustments based on the X-factor. It established two levels of military activity that are unique: Combat, which is found nowhere except in the military, and; the almost-totally unique experiences like having one's activities closely controlled, being told how to get your hair cut, being ordered to move frequently and not being able to quit if you are unhappy.

There was an effort, too, to evaluate the long-term loss to the military careerist who never stays in one place long enough to buy a home and accumulate capital in that manner. Questions were asked about the impact on a military family of having long separations; with children growing up with only sporadic exposure to a father figure.

The group recognized intangible compensations for military service such as the strength derived from membership in historic units and the vicarious reward from ceremonies and awards that tend to partially offset the negative factors. Citing experience with Alaska Pipeline construction crews the study concluded that in spite of high pay there was no group cohesiveness. This lack of dedication to working under unpleasant conditions caused the contractors to hire 16,000 people in 1974 for a work force totalling only 6,000.

Both the Canadian and British armies add an X-factor to their computation of military pay and there is precedent for it being done on U.S. civilian payrolls. In Vietnam, U.S. civilian helicopter pilots flying "non-combat" missions were paid a base wage of three to four times as much as the U.S. Army warrant officers flying both support and combat missions.

The Quadrennial Review staff recommended that the X-factor be reflected either in cash adjustments to future military pay scales or in increases to the fringe benefits such as commissary support and health care.

Pay taxes or face conviction--it's your decision

If you think paying taxes is bad, refusing to pay them is worse.

According to Internal Revenue Service officials, anyone who refuses to pay Federal taxes, fails to file tax returns, or files an incomplete return based on beliefs, can look forward to civil and criminal enforcement measures.

In recent years criminal convictions have been obtained against those who failed to comply with Federal tax laws because they felt the tax system was unconstitutional.

Federal courts have held that there is no constitutional right for anyone to refuse to pay income tax on religious or moral grounds or because the funds are used for government programs which the taxpayer opposes.

The courts have also rebuffed claims that the Federal income tax is unconstitutional since the authority for the levying of an income tax is the Sixteenth Amendment to the Constitution.

The IRS also has some bad news for some preparers of tax returns. Since April 1, some tax return preparers have been receiving penalty notices from the IRS.

Under the Tax Reform Act of 1976, anyone who prepares income tax returns for others is subject to a $25 penalty each time clients are not furnished with completed copies of tax returns. There is the same penalty for preparers who fail to include their identification number.

A tax preparer will also pay a $25 penalty each time he fails to sign a tax return that he has prepared. The IRS emphasizes that signatures on returns must be original. Labels with signatures affixed to the return, facsimile and photocopied signatures will not meet the requirement.

Good conduct a must for retirees

By Lisa D'Luhy

Retired service members often ask if there are certain standards of conduct that they must follow as an ex-servicemember. The answer is yes.

Retirees shouldn't engage in personal or professional activities that will reflect a bad light upon the military. Retired Regular Army officers, unless exempted by law, are subject to the same restriction as officers on active duty.

Another question often asked is about dual compensation. All retirees may accept civilian employment with the Federal government, but the amount of retirement pay that a retired officer can receive is limited. The retired officer working in a civilian position will receive the full civilian salary plus the first $3,859.89 or retired pay. He will also receive one-half of any amount in excess of $3,859.89. On the other hand, the retiree may waive his retirement pay and if eligible, accept compensation from VA. This pay is not regarded as retirement pay and isn't subject to the Dual Compensation Act.

Retirees may work for the Department of Defense, but employment is restricted for 180 days after retirement. There are some situations where this is not applicable.

Retirees of course can engage in business activities but there are restrictions as to what kind. The "Harbor Amendment" prohibits payment of retirement pay to RA officers during any period within three years after retirement in which they sell either for themselves or others, any supplies or materials to any agency of DoD, Coast Guard, National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration or the Public Health Service. There is also a penal provision permanently prohibiting retired RA officers from representing anyone in the sale of anything through DA to the government. The prohibition on sales is directed toward the elimination of favoritism and under influence.

Retirees interested in working for a foreign government cannot accept employment with the foreign agency without the consent of Congress. Retired members of the Reserve components cannot work with any of the above without consent of the Secretary of the Army.

If a retiree is thinking about running for a political office, nothing prevents the retiree from supporting political parties or running for any political office.

The use of military titles by retirees is permissable provided that it isn't used in regard to commercial enterprises which may appear to sponsor, sanction, endorse or show approval by DoD

Retirees planning to work for a cleared Defense contractor in any position requiring access to classified Defense informaton must convert their military security clearances to industrial security clearances.

Information on employment or non-employment of retired RA officers and warrant officers is required on DD Form 1357 within 30 days after retirement. These forms should be submitted to: Commander, US Army Finance and Accounting Center, Department 90, Indianapolis, Ind., 46249. All reports must be refiled when employment status changes.

In addition, retirees working for DoD or a Defense-related employer must file a DD Form 1787 if they:

- Retired in grade of major or above.
- Were on extended active duty for 10 years or more.
- Were employed by a Defense contractor who, during any part of a fiscal year, received $10 million or more in Defense contract awards.
- Receive an annual salary of $15,000 or more.

A report is not required for such employment if it begins three or more years after extended active duty is terminated.

Further information on these and other questions can be found in DA Pam 600-5, Chapter 3.

Airborne--A family affair

When Pvt. Terry Cunningham made his first jump at Ft. Benning's Airborne School last week he probably thought he was at a family runion.

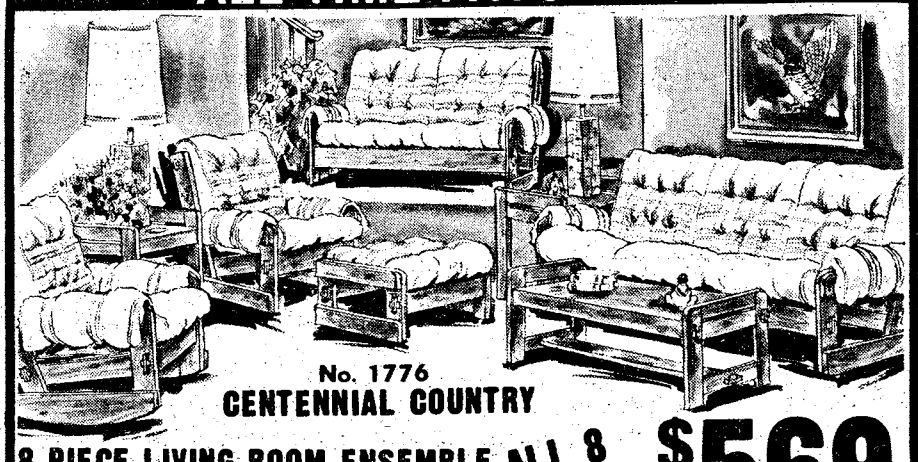
Jumping with him was his father, SFC Julian Cunningham, and his two brothers, SSgt. Guy Cunningham and Sgt. Gary Cunningham. With the exception of Guy, who is on active duty with a Special Forces unit at Ft. Bragg, N. C., the Cunninghams are members of Co B, 20th Special Forces, a National Guard unit in Tampa, Fla.

"When Guy was drafted out of college five years ago, he decided to go airborne," explained the elder Cunningham. "And when he came home on leave, all he talked about was how great it was to jump out of an airplane. He was so convincing that soon I went down to the reserve unit, put in my paperwork, and the next thing I knew I was at Jump School. I was 43 years old when I made my first jump," he said.



Gary was the next Cunningham to be bitten by the airborne bug and today is a qualified Jumpmaster.

"We thought it would be appropriate if we all jumped with Terry," Sgt. Cunningham said. "I'm just glad it all worked out."

There is one more male in the Cunningham household, a younger brother who vows "there's no way" he'll go airborne when he comes of age. But the last of the clan, twin sisters, aren't so sure they won't be going airborne in a few years.

Home-gardening time is here again

By J. Gorecki

It's a warm July evening and you just arrive home after a long and tiresome day.

You ask the wife matter-of-factly, "What's for dinner, hon?"

She replies with a knowing twinkle in her eye, "We'll start it off with a tomato, bean, onion and cucumber salad with radishes on the side. Then we'll have buttered corn and broccoli with the main course of baked zucchini and a stuffed pepper. For desert, it'll be either watermelon or cantaloupe. Iced mint-tea should top it off nicely."

You smile but add with a look of concern, "What about the eggplant? I thought it was just about ready this weekend?"

"The kids were playing football this morning," she says with an unsuppressable smile beginning to surface, "I didn't realize until too late that it wasn't a football they were playing with. Maybe next week," she muses.

Well, as the old saying goes, "Into every day a little rain must fall." But overall, not a bad harvest.

The price of a similar meal might run anywhere from $2.05 per person (family of four) at normal shopping prices to $6.50 a head, restaurant style (if you can get it at all).

Estimated grow-it-at-home garden cost minus labor and personal satisfaction — $7.09. However, there is almost no limit on the combination of meals or the number of servings.

THERE'S NO AGE LIMIT ON GREEN THUMBS — as two-year-old Erin Gorecki will attest. Last year she tilled the soil, planted the seeds, watered the crops and gathered the harvest, but she enjoyed the rewards of her labors most at dinner time. This year should be no different — except maybe for a larger zucchini.

If you haven't considered a family garden in the past, maybe this is the year to begin. With the recent drought in the West and late frost in the South, that home plot could provide not only a source of family togetherness and personal satisfaction but also a "healthy" cut from that already "growing" grocery bill.

A well-tended home-garden can supply a family with a variety of nutritious, healthful vegetables to enjoy not only fresh but also preserved for year 'round use.

Now is the time to begin that garden of summer vegetables. Starter plants for tomatoes, pepper and eggplant can be purchased at local nurseries and most other vegetables can easily be started from seed.

Occupants in family quarters on post can also take up this "fruitful" enterprise. Permission must be obtained from Buildings and Grounds, a division of the Directorate of Facilities Engineering (DFAE) and guidelines are set up in USAIC Reg 210-11 dated April 18th, 1975.

When space is limited, plan your garden wisely. Select those crops which you like best and will

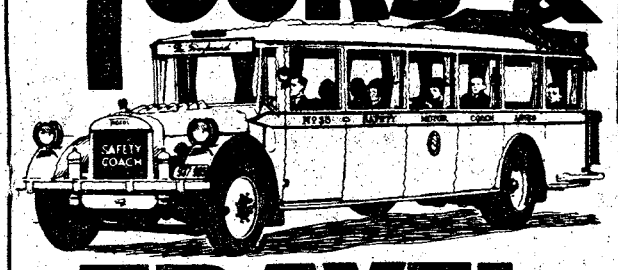
New CHAMPUS Reg covers policy, eligibility

A new DoD CHAMPUS reg is expected by summer. DA staffers say the regulation will simplify CHAMPUS interpretation for beneficiaries, claim processors, and for the government.

Provisions of the regulation will determine coverage, eligibility, cost-sharing and the procedure for submitting claims. The reg will also introduce an appeals procedure as a means of having disputed claims reviewed.

The regulation will go into effect on June 1 for outpatient services and new inpatient cases — care that is not in progress as of that date.

Generally, CHAMPUS will share the cost of any medical procedure or type of medical care provided by a civilian source which is accepted as being part of good medical practice. For inpatient care, however, some beneficiaries must obtain a statement that the care is not available at a nearby Uniformed Services facility before CHAMPUS will share the cost.



The regulation will set limits on previously ill-defined benefits. For example, supplements for special education under the Program for the Handicapped are scaled down by the amount now provided customarily by State and local school jurisdictions. Also, limits are being placed on some types of chronic care.

For inpatient care in progress, the regulation provides for a 90-day notice before any benefits that are no longer authorized are terminated. Any such notices will begin going out on August 1, following a case-by-case review.

The regulation will contain clear definitions of the benefits available through CHAMPUS, say DA officials. In the past, some beneficiaries have experienced financial hardships because they were unaware of the coverage and eligibility restrictions of the CHAMPUS until after the care was received, or because different State claims agencies interpreted CHAMPUS policy differently. Scouts preview new summer units

Ft. Benning was well represented by girls and adults when the Girl Scouts held its Camp Reunion and preview of Camping 77 recently at the Army Reserve Training Center in Columbus.

Ft. Benning Troops 104, 161, 187, 193 and 263 joined in the fun, fellowship, singing and games. Hundreds of girls and their parents enjoyed a brief glimpse of the adventurous camping being offered at Camp Concharty this summer.

The speciality units that will be offered at the 145 acre mountain woodland Girl Scout Camp, were highlighted by the staff.

The Job Opportunity unit dealing with nature in the out-of-doors at Callaway Gardens was discussed by Debbie Opalk from the Gardens. Debbie pointed out how this opportunity could help a girl towards camp counseling, being a nature trail guide or, with further study, eventually lead to a career in the Park Service or Forest Service. The canoeing and tubing unit (River Ramble) was presented by Debbie "Chevy" Ford, the canoeing instructor. She told of the exciting sport of riding a river in an inner tube. The highlight of this unit will be a three-day float trip this summer proably down the Flint River.

Another special unit scheduled is the Jester Quest where scouts can go to the Florida State University Circus and the outdoor drama, the "McIntosh Trail" at Peachtree City. Other special programs include horseback riding, backpacking and an International Unit with two Danish counselor sharing their culture, food, songs and dances with the girls.

Pat Dague, Camp Director, pointed out that these special camp units were filling up quickly and girls wanting to get their first choice of units need to register promptly. Girls from Ft. Benning may elect to enjoy Camp Concharty from June 26th to August 6th. Non-scouts are also invited.

For additional information on summer camp for girls, contact Concharty Council, Girl Scouts at 327-2646.

Gardening

produce an adequate supply on a few plants.

There are a few basic steps which should be taken to insure a good garden yield. Some guidelines to be followed according to Mr. Dick Collier of the Cooperative Extension Service, the University of Georgia, College of Agriculture are:

● First — prepare your soil by treating it for nematode (small worms) control. These worms are found in nearly all garden sites and must be eliminated before planting. Lime should also be applied before planting.

● Second — buy disease-free seed preferably western grown seed that has been treated with a chemical to prevent seeding rot. Saving seeds from your garden each year is not recommended as they are more apt to contain disease-causing organisms.

● Third — plant disease-resistant varieties applicable to the diseases prevalent in your area. For instance, wilt is present in almost all Georgia gardens and unless you plant a wilt-resistant variety, you will have disastrous results.

● Fourth — do not plant seeds too deep because they will rot before they can germinate. Place just enough soil on the seed to completely cover them.

● Fifth — use a mulch beneath all plants. It has three purposes — one, the mulch prevents spreading of soil diseases, two, it also preserves moisture and three, it reduces weed growth. Removing weeds with a hoe can injure the root system.

● Sixth — water the garden often enough to maintain a uniform moisture level. It is better to water in the morning so the plants will dry quickly because diseases spread easily on wet foliaes.

● Seventh — fertilize and spray for insects regularly for disease-free healthy plants.

● Lastly — harvest at the proper stage of maturity to get the highest quality vegetables. If crops such as beans, okra, squash and cucumbers are left on the vine too long, the plant will stop producing.

These are only basic points to follow, more detailed information is available in the form of brochures, advice and free soil tests from the Cooperative Extension Service on the ground floor of the Goverment Center.

Happy gardening!

Uchee Creek Recreation Area

Effective immediately, unit or group picnic outings will be limited to the Uchee Creek Recreation Building and the picnic grounds adjacent to the Recreation Building. The limited cleared grounds and parking space for vehicles beyond this point prohibit the safe use for unit and large group picnic outings.

Only individual family-size groups may use the covered pavilions and other cleared grounds within the area for camping and picnics.

The Uchee Creek Recreation Area is in a development stage and efforts are being made to expedite expansion. During the interim period, units and large groups are encouraged to use the Patton House Recreation Building located in the Sand Hill Area or another major unit picnic area.

Reservations for use of the Uchee Creek and Patton House Recreation Buildings and adjacent picnic areas may be made at the Information, Tours & Travel (ITT) Office located in Building 394, phone 545-7414.

Military Women's Softball Leagues

An organizational meeting for military women's softball will be held April 18th at Briant Wells Field House at 1 p.m. The purpose of the meeting is to ascertain if a sufficient number of military women are available to form softball leagues. Pass the word that all military women are invited to attend. For further information, contact the Sports Branch at 545-2281.

Local Notes

Infantry Museum to Close Temporarily

The National Infantry Museum will be closed to the public beginning Monday, April 18th and remain closed until July 1st.

During this period, the museum staff will relocate the collection from Bldg. 1234 to their new location in Bldg 396. The museum will not place on loan any item of property during this period.

Sponsors of Dependent School Children Take Note

Parents are reminded that for each day their child is absent from school, the Post Dependent Schools system loses $6.86. Operational funds are earned on the basis of average daily attendance. If only ten children are absent unnecessarily each day (1,800 students days), a loss in excess of $12,000 is created.

This school year, because of the cold winter and the unusually high incidence of colds and flu, the Dependent Schools are experiencing their lowest level of attendance in many years.

When a child is sick, he or she should not attend school, but unnecessary absences harm not only the child, but the school system's ability to finance necessary educational programs and maintenance projects.

7 ENROLL defensive driving course

National Safety Council

Editor's Note: The following is the final article in a three-part series concerning defensive driving. The articles were presented in conjunction with National Defensive Driving, Week, April 3 - 9th.

Everyday on our highways people are involved in the "two-car crash." Most crashes of this nature are a result of bad judgement and failure to drive defensively. Let's take a look at some situations which cause a two-car crash and what defense the driver has against such accidents.

- You're following another car in a stream of traffic when suddenly the driver ahead of you stops. You jam on your brakes but too late to prevent a crash. An alert driver should always be prepared for the driver ahead to stop without warning.

Following too close is dangerous. Allow one vehicle length for every 10 miles per hour of speed. On wet or icy roads allow even more.

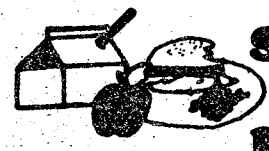
- You're out front with someone following you. You slow down suddenly for a turn, without warning, and . . .crunch.

Good drivers make their intentions known well in advance. If the driver behind is a "bumper-chaser" slow down and encourage him to pass.

- You approach an intersection and have the right of way. A driver entering from side road ignores the rule of right-of-way, or runs a stop sign, or ignores a red light. You can be dead right — and still dead.

A driver never assumes that the other driver willl yield the right-of-way. Look both ways and be prepared to stop. Only proceed when you can see it is safe regardless of stop signs or the law.
you don't.

- You attempt to pass another car on a two-lane road and suddenly find you can't make it. You risk a sideswipe if you cut back to the right or you risk a head-on crash if you don't



Good drivers know the speed and acceleration of their cars and estimate the speed of the vehicle they're trying t pass and the speed and distance of the oncoming car. A good driver also gives warning to the car ahead and returns to his lane when the passed vehicle can be seen in his inside rear view mirror.

A good passing rule: when in doubt, don't!

Today, with an ever increasing number of cars on the highways, defensive driving is a must — SO DRIVE DEFENSIVELY — YOUR LIFE MAY DEPEND ON IT!

Benning counselors honored

All three school counselors of the Ft. Benning Dependents' Schools have recently been honored by their colleagues for their professionalism.

At the annual banquet of the Georgia School Counselors Association, William Abrahamson, school counselor, was awarded the "Counselor of the Year Award for the Third District of Georgia" and was named the Elementary School Counselor of the Year for the State of Georgia. This award nominates him from the state for the annual American School Counselor Association Elementary Division Counselor of the Year Award to be made in Washington, D.C. in March 1978.

Abrahamson has been associated with the Ft. Benning Schools for thirteen years, as a teacher and a counselor. He received his BS in Education degree from Eastern Montana College, holds an MS in Guidance and Counseling from Indiana State University, and completed his Sixth Year Diploma at Auburn University. Abrahamson was cited for his professionalism, his work in career exploration, and his role in the developmental-preventative guidance in the schools.

At the Atlanta banquet of the Georgia School Counselors Association, Mrs. Fleda R. Glenn was installed as the Association Treasurer.

On March 25, 1977, Miss Ann Spencer, school counselor, was elected to the office of Secretary of the Chattahoochee Valley Chapter, Phi Delta Kappa Educational Society. She will be installed at the April meeting.

GARNISHMENT

Until January 1, 1975, the pay of a federal employee (civilian or military) could not be garnished, i.e. selzed, by a state court for child support or alimony. On that date Public Law 93-647 went into effect and made the US Government like any other employer in these matters. Congress had specifically waived the sovereign immunity which before January 1, 1975 had prevented such garnishments.

The Army has always expected its members to abide by the terms of separation agreements and court orders. Army Regulation 600-20 states that policy and goes on to prescribe the amount of support a member should provide his dependents when the husband and wife are voluntarily separated.

Under the new law "remuneration for employment" is subject to garnishment. This means that basic pay, incentive pay, special pay, and retired pay can be seized but not basic allowance for quarters and allowances. Also enlistment and reenlistment bonuses can be garnished for child support or alimony.

By the terms of the federal law the limitations imposed by state law on the total amount which may be garnished apply to federal employees. Thus it is important where the garnishment action is taking place. For instance, an Oklahoma court will garnish no more than 25 per cent of the employees' "wages".

In Georgia 100 per cent of a person's after-taxes earnings may be garnished for child support. The federal law itself does not contain any limitation. Action is pending in Congress to change this. It is important to note that the law is constantly changing in this area. Georgia has had three different garnishment statutes in the last three years.

As a practical matter, a person given notice of garnishment of his pay cannot afford not to obtain legal advice and representation. While the matter is pending, his pay is suspended at the Army Finance Center (in the case of military) in a sufficient amount to cover the garnishment.

There are legal defenses available in some cases. A Superior Court Judge recently dismissed a garnishment because of the lack of personal service. He further declared a portion of the Georgia garnishment statute unconstitutional.

If you are involved in a garnishment action, you should contact the Legal Assistance Office, Bldg 5, Room 13.

CRIME ON PAY DAY
THINK ABOUT IT!

fins, furs, feathers

By Denny Blankenship

Fishing continues to improve throughout the Valley area. Nice weather is expected to prevail this weekend and this should bring out hordes of fishermen and just plain folks who want to enjoy themselves.

A word of caution, each spring many lives are lost needlessly due to carelessness around the water. Keep an eye on the little ones and make sure approved life jackets are used when and where required.

While we're at it, let's also operate those boats in a safe manner and stay out of the water if it's a "no swimming" area. Use your head gang, it may save a life.

Most folks are catching fine strings of Crappie and Stripped Bass up feeder creeks. My son Jeffrey and his pal Sammy Bush have been hauling them in up Upatoi Creek. These two accomplished young anglers use "gigs" and minnows. I know its been said a thousand times but it's still funny how a coupla kids fishing from the bank can outfish adult anglers with thousands of dollars worth of equipment. Oh well, we were all kids once.

Some nice strings of bass are being caught down the river in shallow water. They're getting ready to go on the "beds" and this is the time to tear 'em up. Spinner baits are working good and so are most shallow running lures.

Fish shallow water during the early and late hours. Move out into deeper water during the day. You should get your limit. Now look gang, if you don't limit out, don't blame me, I can tell ya how to catch 'em but I can't catch 'em for you.

The next time you catch a fish and then release it, think of this. Psychologists say that fish that are hooked and then released have permanent problems. These researchers don't say what 'type' of personality problems. So if you catch a fish that acts weird, this may be the answer.

Speaking of trivia, did you know that a professional chicken sexer can determine the sex of chickens at the rate of 900 per hour with 100 per cent accuracy? Now that's the truth folks.

10-8 on the warpost

By "HOSS" KACI 4615

This is the story of a girl who lived with her cruel step-mother and two ugly step-sisters. Her step-mother and step-sisters made her do all the cleaning and housework and would never take her along when they went out to have a good time. Above all, she was never, ever permitted to touch the fancy 40-channel CB set which her step-mother and step-sisters were always using anyway. They called her CBer Ella.

One day the step-mother and step-sisters were listening to the CB when they heard an announcement that the owner of a local CB shop, whose handle was Prince Charming, was sponsoring a coffee break that very day. Now they knew that Prince Charming had been looking for a girl to marry and they thought that if they put on their fanciest clothes, surely he would propose to one of them. So they put on their best party gowns; and as they were leaving, the step-mother told CBer Ella to clean the house from top to bottom and then do it again from bottom to top. She also reminded CBer Ella that she was not to touch the expensive 40-channel CB set under any circumstances.

After they left, CBer Ella sat and thought for a while. Then she made up her mind: no matter what the consequences, she would go to the coffee break. Then she looked at herself in the mirror; she had no shoes, no clothes except the dirty, ragged dress she had on and no way to get to the coffee break but to walk.

"Might as well break all the rules," she thought as she reached for the microphone of the CB set. "Break channel 9. This is CBer Ella; I want to go to Prince Charming's coffee break, but I don't have any clothes or anyway to get there. Can anyone help me?"

She didn't really expect an answer, but in a few seconds a strange voice came from the CB speaker.

"Go open the door," the voice said.

At that instant there was a knock on the door. When she opened it, she saw a State Trooper standing there in a gleaming gold and velvet uniform.

"I am your Guardian Smokey," he said, "and I've come to help you go to the coffee break."

With that, he waved the base-loaded mobile antenna he carried as a magic wand and instantly the house became sparkling clean.

"Now then, you need some clothes. Where's this coffee break being held?"

"Oh, it's in a picnic area out in the woods."

"You'll need some outdoorsy-type duds then."

Again he waved the magic antenna and her ragged dress was transformed into a gaily colored cowboy shirt and a pair of expensive leather-trimmed bluejeans. On her feet appeared a dainty pair of hand-tooled, genuine leather cowboy boots.

"Now for a car. Have you got a pumpkin?"

"No, but there is a pumpkin pie left over from last Thanksgiving."

CBer Ella went to the refrigerator and got the pie, which was covered with whipped cream, and took it out to the Guardian Smokey.

"Close your eyes," he said, "and I'll turn it into a fancy car for you."

She closed her eyes and waited for him to tell her to open them. When she didn't hear anything for a few minutes, she looked anyway. The Guardian Smokey was lying in a heap on the ground and there were wisps of smoke curling up from the magic antenna. The pie, still covered with whipped cream, sat just where she had put it.

"What happened?" she shouted.

"Sorry lady, I guess you don't get to go to the coffee break after all. I forgot to adjust the SWR of my antenna and it blew out my final stage."

To get her revenge for missing her big chance, CBer Ella picked up the pie and squashed it right in the Guardian Smokey's face.

Moral: To avoid a pie in the face, check your SWR.

Superior junior cadets chosen

By Betty Zimmerman

Three Ft. Benning dependents were chosen as their respective JROTC classes' Superior Junior Cadet at Columbus' Spencer High School.

David Phillips, son of SFC David Phillips, MEDDAC, received the first-year award. Larry Hamon, son of LtCol. Clark Hamon, TSB, was the second-year recipient. And Wayne Smith son of CWO4 Jack H. Smith, USA Ret, captured the third-year honor.

The competition for these awards was stiff. Their selection was based on academic ratings in all subjects and performances in the JROTC program.

Phillips is a 14-year-old freshman who has hopes of becoming a doctor, possibly through an ROTC scholarship. He is active in Ft. Benning's Medical Explorer Post 99 and a straight "A" student. He competed against 84 classmates.

Larry Hamon is the drill team commander. This is the 17-year-old junior's second year in JROTC. He holds the rank of Cadet First Lieutenant and he too has his eyes on an ROTC scholarship. Hamon's class competitors numbered 30.

Cadet Major Wayne Smith, third-year winner and a senior, only had to beat out 12 classmates but that doesn't detract from his qualifications. Smith, the Battalion Executive Officer has also earned a scholarship to Georgia Military College.

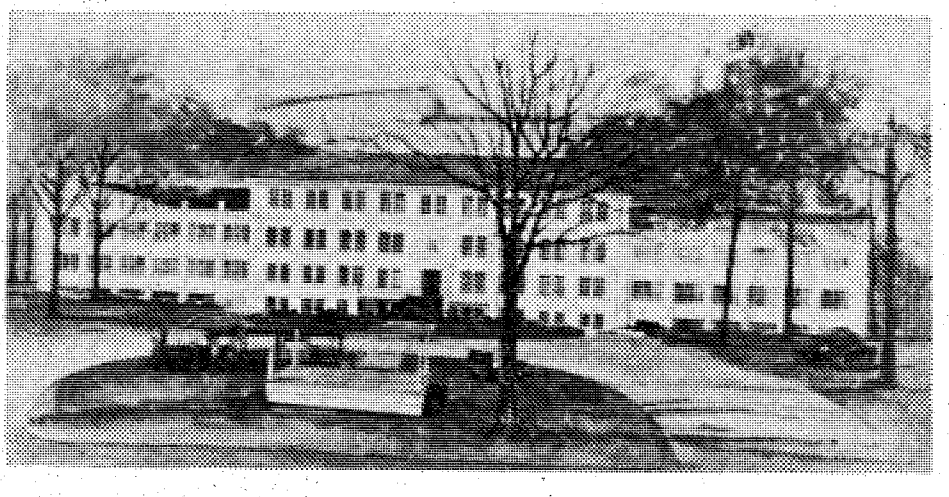
Infantry Museum closes temporarily



By Betty Zimmerman

This weekend is the last chance to visit the National Infantry Museum at it's present location, and the last chance to visit it at all — until its reopening on July 1.

The museum will be temporarily closed from April 18 through July 1. During this period, the staff will be moving the artifacts to the former hospital annex building on Baltzell Ave.

The Infantry Museum Association has raised the necessary $760,000 to convert Bldg 396 into a suitable permanent shelter for the valuable collection of Infantry memorabilia. And the contractors are putting the finishing touches on the renovation now.

The new museum home will have two floors of exhibit area; an auditorium where historical films of Ft. Benning and the Infantry will be shown periodically; and the basement which will be used for an administrative area and storage.

Wanted: Recruiters

Interested in being a recruiter? If you feel you meet the necessary qualifications and want to know what kind of life an Army recruiter leads, the USAREC recruiter selection team will be here May 3-5. The team will be interviewing in Bldg 75 on Main Post, Rm. 201.

A feature of recruiting which most people like is the independence offered. Do your job, get your recruits, and you can be your own man, or woman. There are many advantages in being a recruiter, all based, of course, upon doing a good job.

For additional information, call 544-2341 if you're assigned to the 197th Inf Bde, or call 545-7387 if you are from other units on post.

PCS housing procedure changes

It's not too early to start thinking about that summer PCS. Soldiers who haven't moved during the last year should be aware of a few changes in the procedures for applying for housing waiting list consideration.

Soldiers may now be placed on the waiting list at the new post with an effective date the day they departed their previous duty station.

The procedure is simple. Go to the family housing office and ask for a DA Form 1746 — the application form for family housing. The personnel office will validate it and send it to your next duty station.

If this isn't done, the soldier's name will not be placed on the waiting list until he or she applies for housing at the new station.

If the application forwarded by the MILPO at the last station gets lost, a copy should be in the soldier's 201 file and can be verified by the MILPO at the new station. Then the soldier will still be eligible for the waiting list as of the date he or she departed the former station.

Soldiers should plan on a 30 to 180 day average waiting time for family housing at most military installations, unless they arrive at a new stateside installation during June through August. Estimates of waiting time depend on the time of year, because 60 to 75 per cent of housing assignments are made during June through August.

All changes to the family housing regulation are designed to work to the soldier's advantage. But keep in mind that a short cut through procedures may cause a short circuit that can delay processing.

Army captures Interservice honors

Sp4 Dan Carlisle of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit broke 289 out of 300 clay pigeons, then cleaned a round of 25 out of 25 birds in a shootoff to clench the 1977 Interservice Trap Championship here on April 10. Carlisle edged out Army Reserve Sgt. Harry Skalsky who also had a 289 but managed only 24 out of 25 birds in the shootoff. Air Force SSgt. Terry Howard was third at 285.

Carlisle combined with teammate Pvt. Randy Voss to total 288 out of 300 to walk away with the interservice team title. The Army Reserve team of Skalsky and Sp4 Hugh Bowie was second at 280.

In the Interservice Running Target Championship also held at Ft. Benning last weekend, Army Reserve Capt. Mike Theimer won the individual standard and mixed runs events and led the Reserves to team victories in both events. Theimer, who won three National Running Target Championships while on active duty with the Army Marksmanship Unit, sported a total of 1697 in the standard runs and 375 in the mixed runs to outdistance MSgt. Charles Davis of USAMU who had 1661 and 371. Theimer and Davis were teammates last year when they helped set three new interservice running target records. Army Reserve Maj. Donald Harmon was third in the standard runs at 1646. USAMU's Sgt. Robert George placed third in the mixed runs with a 370.

Theimer teamed with Harmon, Majors Tommy Pool and Weldon Griggs to post a 4349 and beat the USAMU team score of 4337 in the standard runs thereby taking the top prize in that event.

SSgt. Mark McSheehy was added to the threesome of Theimer, Pool and Harmon for a 1455 total in the mixed runs to take mixed honors. The USAMU team was second at 1439.

Sp5 Diane Klimas, who has been shooting running target at USAMU for only six months, set a women's interservice record by firing 469 in a 60-shot aggregate. The old record was set in 1973 by Sp5 Joanne Stawski.

The 1977 Interservice International Shooting Championships will continue through April 17.

M203 Grenade Launcher

Editor's note: The following questions will test your ability to engage targets with the M203 Grenade Launcher and apply immediate action to reduce a stoppage. In order to score a GO, seven of the nine questions must be answered correctly. The ability to pass the test will not insure the level of proficiency needed to successfully pass your appropriate Skill Qualification Test, but it should provide you with an aid to studying.

Members of the Ft. Benning Provost Marshal's Traffic Section will soon become a familiar sight in and around post. With the increased emphasis on enforcement of traffic regulations, the radar-equipped patrol cars will be found behind every tree and shrub.

Moving violations keyed

Accidents up-post to take action

By Marshall Jones

Enforcement of traffic laws and regulations on post has gotten tough and it's going to get tougher.

Since last week Military Police have been cracking down on speeders, reckless drivers and other moving violations.

In the period from 6 a.m. April 11 to 6 a.m. April 18, MPs investigated 20 traffic accidents on post.

During the same period, the following numbers of citations for moving violations were made, broken down by the offender's unit:

197th Infantry Brigade	42
36th Engineer Group	23
34th Medical Battalion	9
1st Advanced Individual Training Bde.	25
The School Brigade	15
Headquarters Command	14
MEDDAC	6
Law Enforcement Command	0
Civilian employees	5
Dependents	14
Others	40
TOTAL	193

The following arrests were made for Driving under the influence (DUI):

197th Infantry Brigade	2
The School Brigade	1
Civilian	1
Other	1
TOTAL	5

Also, 22 persons had their on-post driving privileges suspended.

The number of tickets issued is expected to go up, as motorists will find it harder to escape Military Police detection.

The crackdown is being accomplished by increased radar surveillance and a stronger concentration by MPs on traffic violations.

The Military Police on post work on a selective enforcement system whereby they can concentrate on different types of violations. More personnel and resources are being committed to the traffic program, so drivers on post who break regulations can expect to be stopped and cited.

Energy conservation still a major problem

By William Darrell

With the recent record-breaking summer-like temperatures, it's easy for one to forget the cold winter and to believe that the energy crunch is over.

There is some truth to that. The severe crunch is past, for the time being anyway, but the problem is still with us. The effects of the hard winter will be felt for some time to come.

Relief from the intense cold has decreased the demand on energy, but with the heat comes the increased demand for more energy — for cooling.

The post's budget for utilities is presently at a $1.9 million deficit, and the need to conserve has become urgent. An energy shortage, such as the one experienced this past winter, must be adverted.

With this in mind, it has been decided to delay turning on post air-conditioners until later in the "warm season" to conserve cooling power until it's really needed.

In the meantime, the use of air-conditioners in post quarters and other than those work areas designated by policy is unauthorized.

Until it's decided to turn on the "cool," there are many things which can be done to stay comfortable.

Volks Fest draws 18,000 fun-lovers

By Betty Zimmerman

Saturday's Spring Volks Fest at Doughboy Stadium provided entertainment for some 18,000 people. Over 5,000 runners entered the timed races and another 200 took part in the "Run for Fun" and walking events.

The day was beautiful with the sun shining, food and beverages plentiful, entertainment galore and runners of all sizes and ages.

The two fastest runners of the day were from 50th Co., 5th Bn, TSB. Ron Straind and Robert Lees finished the 10-mile race with identical times of 54 minutes and 48 secods. Dirk Steen, only nine years old, won the 21 & under civilian category of the 10-mile run in one hour and 14 minutes. The fastest woman was Dana Routt, Co A, 1/58th, Inf, with a 5-mile time of 34 minutes and 44 seconds. (For complete list of top runners, see page 4).

The company runs drew 3,200 entries from the AIT Bde. The winning company in the five-mile run was Co C, 4th Bn, 1st AIT and winning in the 10-mile event was Co A, 5th Bn, 1st AIT.

Mortar Co, 3/7th Inf, won the 197th Inf Bde company run of five miles. The 197th had 350 entrants.

The all-girl band, "Lilith," drew large crowds with their fantastic music as did the belly dancers, "Kalila." The Auburn University Singers provided a nice change of pace with their renditions of popular songs and the Waterloo German band drew a crowd of dancers in the late evening hours with their polkas and waltzes.

The high school German dancing contest was won by a group that consisted of students from three Columbus schools, Kendrick, Spencer and Carver.

Miss Ft. Benning, Vicki Walton, and MajGen. Willard Latham made the award presentations in an impressive Olympic style ceremony.

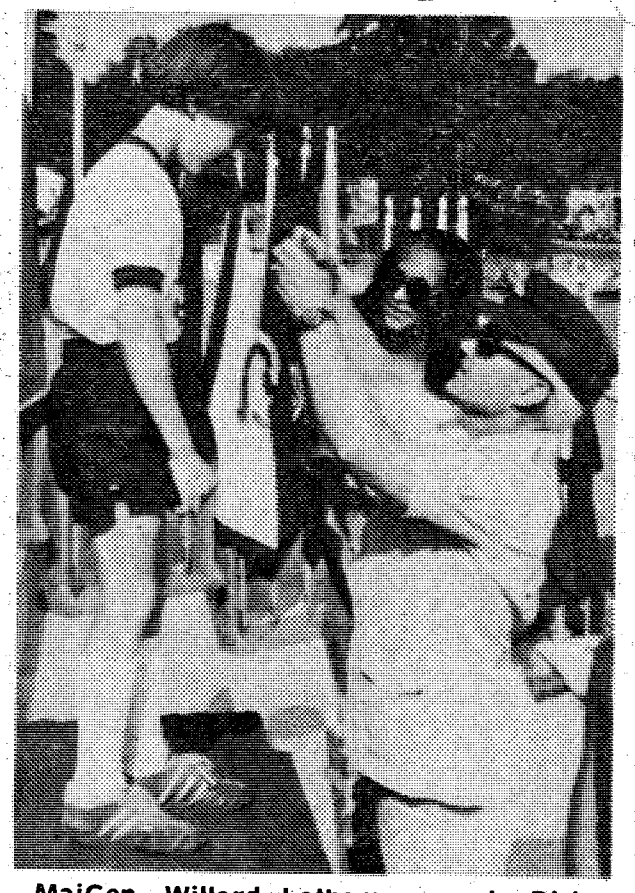
9 year old wins ten mile race

By Betty Zimmerman

An outstanding time of one hour and 14 minutes won first place for nine-year-old Dirk Steen in the Volksfest's under-21 civilian group's 10-mile run.

Dirk Steen began running last December but has trained hard, running three to five miles a day. He's so enthused about distance running now that he hopes to run in the Olympics some day.



Saturday's race was only the second time Dirk had ever run that distance before. He said, "I made it with only two or three steps. Once, my lungs were hurting, and then my side began to hurt. But I kept going because I wanted to win!"

Dirk also ran in the Inaugural 5-mile Road Race at Plains in January with a time of 54 minutes. He has improved quite a bit since then.

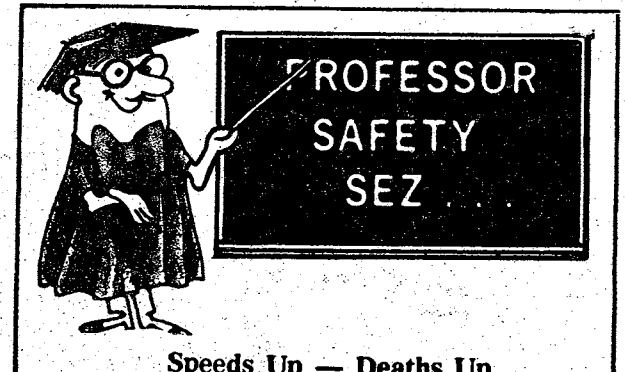
The talented runner enjoys basketball next best as evidence by his first place in the TRADOC Freethrow Contest. He made 19 of 25 shots to sweep the field.

The entire Steen family is involved in the post's Run for Your Life program and Dirk's total is right at 285 miles now. His sister, Tina, placed third in the 5-mile run and his father, David, was third in his age group in hhe 10-mile run.

Dirk finished the 10-mile course three minutes ahead of his father.

MajGen. Willard Latham presents Dirk Steen with the first place ribbon in the Volksfest's under-21 civilian group's 10-mile run.

Accident increase calls for renewed prevention effort



I am alarmed at the recent increase in accidents, personal injuries and property damage losses within the command. This matter is of grave concern to me and indicates a need for renewed emphasis on accident prevention efforts.

During the second quarter of this fiscal year there were 220 on-post traffic accidents, numerous training accidents and many accidents involving recreational activities. In the same quarter 5 military personnel were killed, 65 were seriously injured and the dollar losses exceeded $600,000. The grief and suffering and direct losses are incalcuable. This loss of manpower and materiel has a direct and adverse effect on mission accomplishment. Historically, an upward trend can be expected for the current quarter. Appropriate actions must be immediately instituted to reverse this trend.

The greatest single obstacle to the prevention of accidents and injuries is complacency. Every commander, supervisor and individual must be so imbued with accident prevention principles that safety consciousness is an integral part of day-to-day operations. Mission accomplishment with minimum risk is the basic concept of any Accident Prevention Program. Combat readiness is efficiency, and efficiency is safety.

It is my desire that commanders and supervisors review and update their Accident Prevention Programs and initiate immediate positive action to reverse this adverse trend.

Speeds Up — Deaths Up

A general disregard for the 55 mph speed limit is causing an increase in the nation's highway death toll, the National Safety Council reports.

The highway death rate in 1975 was the lowest on record, as fatalities dropped to 46,000, a decrease of 400 from the year before.

But fatalities rose again in the first half of 1976, and the most likely reason seems to be the failure of motorists to observe the 55 mph limit and the failure of the states to strictly enforce the rule.

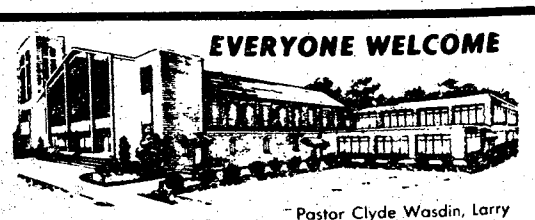
clothing during the heat of the day and wear a sweater if the mornings are cool.

- Open windows in the early, cooler part of the day to let cool air in and vent out the heat.
- Close blinds and curtains on the side of the building exposed to the sun's rays.
- When inside temperatures exceed 80 degrees, use a small fan in the area where you spend most of your time.
- Use exhaust fans in windows or attics prudently. Ventilation can reduce attic temperatures by as much as four degrees.
- Open windows on the shady side of the building.
- Do ironing and clothes washing early in the cool of the morning.
- Shut the door to the laundry room it it opens into the interior of the house when you do the laundry.
- Insure that clothes dryers are vented to the outside of the house.
- Do as much cooking at one time as possible to avoid prolonged overheating.
- Use the exhaust fan on the stove to vent out cooking heat.
- Use as low a temperature as possible when cooking.
- Use only the lights that are necessary; they generate heat.
- Use clotheslines to dry laundry whenever possible.

Natural ventilation must be used to the maximum until the approval date for air conditioning is decided. Air-conditioner start-up requests will not be accepted by the Directorate of Facilities and Engineering (DFAE) until that date.



Exceptions to delayed air conditioning will be considered by DFAE if presented in writing with sufficient reason to warrant use.

The energy shortage is with us now and will be into the foreseeable future. The steps outlined above can help to keep you cool and avert a real energy crisis come winter.

These are some of the "extras" but at no extra cost. Our 150 units are in separate buildings with usually four apartments in each building, which adds to a person's or family's privacy.

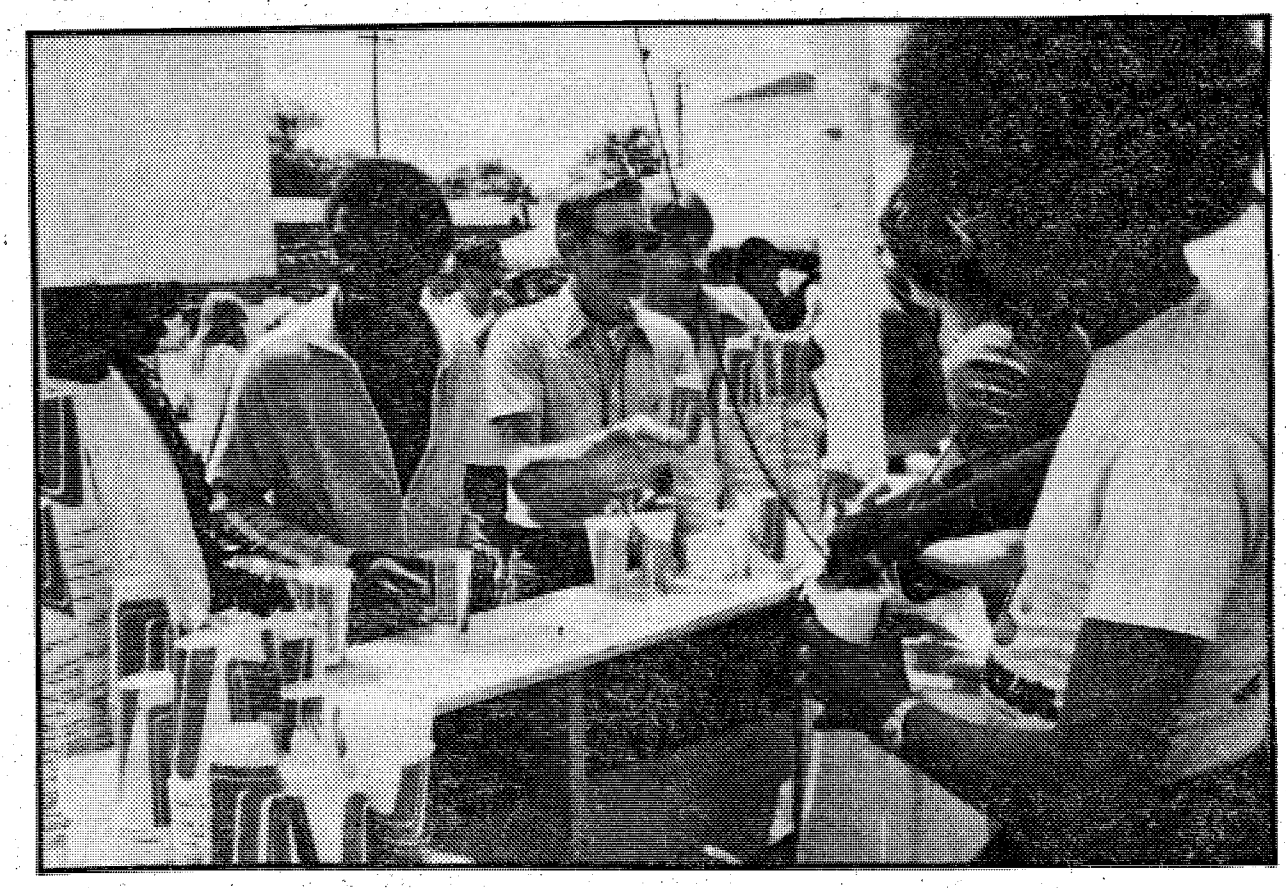
It's no myth; seat belts save lives

Prior to the pending holiday season, it seems like a wise thought to dispel some of the myths associated with seat belts. Many people have stated their reasons for not wearing safety belts. These reasons have no basis in validity and are poor excuses for not belting up. Some of these myths are shown below, along with the actual facts:

Myth: Safety belts don't really work.

Facts: Safety bells save lives and reduce the severity of accident-caused injuries. Ten to 20 thousand lives could be saved annually and millions of injuries prevented if people wear their safety belts.

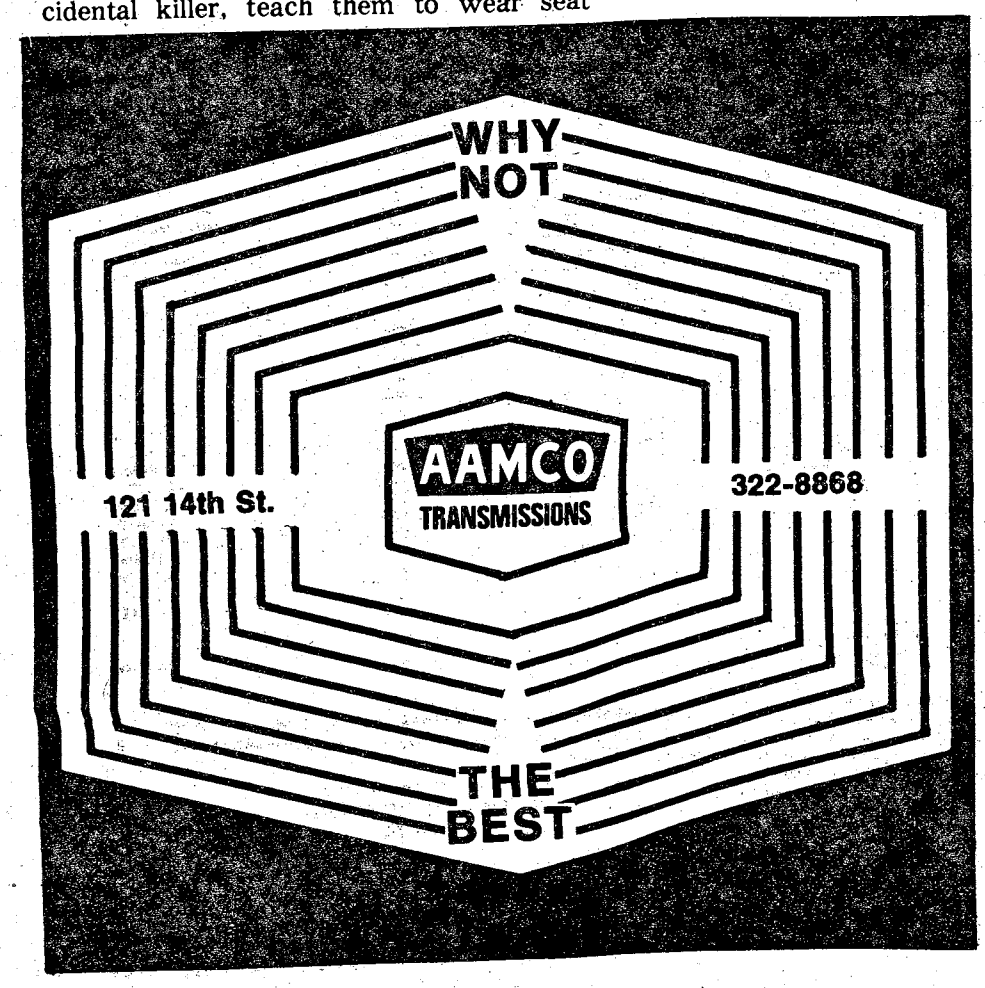


Myth: I don't need to wear one since I'm only driving down to the local store.

Facts: The accident rate is higher on city streets than on highways and turnpikes. Fatalities occur at speeds as low as 12 miles per hour to non-belted occupants. Over one-half of injury and death-producing accidents occur at speeds under 40 mph. Three out of four fatal accidents occur within 25 minutes of home. Speeds below 30 mph accounts for 90 per cent of accidents, two thirds of injuries, and 54 per cent of deaths.

Myth: Many people are saved by being thrown from the car.

Facts: The probability of death is five times greater when the motorist is thrown from the car. A station wagon carrying a family of six was struck from the rear. It ran off the road and turned over. The mother flew out the door and was killed when her head hit a rock. Three of the children stayed in the car; all had broken bones but lived. The father stayed in the car and was not injured. When the police came to the scene, the father was searching for the 18 month old baby the wife was holding in her lap. Half an hour later they found the baby. Unscratched, he had drowned because he was thrown into a puddle of water.



What's your excuse? There are no good ones, only bad ones. If you want your children to survive the single greatest accidental killer, teach them to wear seat belts. Buy safety restraining devices for infants. Most of all, teach by example — wear your own belt! Have a safe and enjoyable holiday, make sure you return.

Refreshments flowed fast and furious as the 18,000 participants dined on knackwurst, bratwrust and other German specialties.

GI Bill payment change brings checks at EOM

A change in GI Bill payment procedures, effective June 1st will bring checks at the end of the month rather than at the beginning to 1.5 million veterans, dependents and servicemembers enrolled in Veterans Administration education programs.These and other changes are explained in a "stuffer" to be sent with April and May checks, the VA said today.

Another June 1st change, brought about by law, modifies an arrangement which in the past automatically gave trainees a two-month money advance at the start of school.

Ending of the prepayment system will have the most noticeable effect on veteran-students continuously enrolled this summer. They will receive their last VA check under the prepayment system on May 1st, covering enrollment for May.

The next check, covering June enrollment, will be issued July 1st. Subsequent VA checks will follow each additional month of enrollment. A student whose enrollment ends in June will receive the payment for June on July 1st.

The modified advance payment procedure permits advance payment at the beginning of a school term for the first month or partial month, plus the following month only if the student makes a written request and the school agrees to process the advance payment.

Prior to this new legislation, all students got advance payments automatically, it was noted.

Students under the GI Bill or the dependents educational assistance program who wish an advance payment should contact their shool, because the student's written request for advance payment must be included on the school enrollment certification submitted to VA.

VA emphasized the enrollment certification containing the advance payment request must be received at least 30 days before the start of regular registration. Disabled vetereans under VA rehabilitation programs should contact their VA rehabilitation specialist for further information.

Eligible veteran-students requesting advance payment for the fall school session should be aware that no additional check will be forthcoming from the VA for approximately three months, a VA spokesman said.

For example, a veteran receiving an advance payment check in September, covering September and October, would not receive an education payment for November until December 1st, because of the elimination of the prepayment provision, it was explained.

Students with questions concerning VA educational checks are urged to contact the veterans representative on campus or their local Va regional office.

AUSA Defense Report

US foreign involvement will grow, not shrink

One of the arguments favored by those who would shrink the size of the annual defense budget follows the line that we are over-committed to foreign entanglements and should become more self-centered. By being more selective, the argument continues, we could reduce the likelihood of military involvement and permit a scaling-down of our military forces.

The argument has been called, among other things, "neo-isolationism." It chooses to ignore the deep philosophical commitment we have to advance the cause of personal freedom throughout the world. More practically, it ignores the hard fact that the United States is no longer economically self-sustaining. In many ways, oil and gas supplies most notably, we have become a "have not" nation, dependent on trade with far-off countries to keep our factories working, our homes warm and our automobiles rolling.

While we are all familiar with the problems created by dwindling petroleum supplies there is another measure of dependency that is just as dramatic—our lack of internal sources of strategic raw materials.

The United States is now importing at least 75 percent of its needs for ten strategically important metals and at least 50 percent of the necessary amount of two others. By comparison the Soviet union must import only five strategic metals and, even then, less than 50 percent of any of the five.

What does this have to do with the need for armed forces? Very simply, if we are to protect our access to the materials that are the life's blood of our nation we must be able to project adequate military power to any point on the globe. And, since we are in a very competitive situation for access to many of the scarce materials, our competitors must know we are prepared to use that force if the access is threatened.

The Soviet Union is covertly seeking special influence in several areas of mineral-rich Africa, including Ethopia and Somalia, and its Cuban satellite is openly involved in Angola. While it would be far better for the United States to protect the availability of African mineral supplies through peaceful means we must have the credible alternative of military force.

The welfare of the United States was not at stake in Vietnam and our experience there was a moral disaster. Hopefully, the next time we become involved in a far-off place our best interests will be on the line and we will be able to protect them with effective national determination.

Journalism class wins two Press awards

By Bev Lockhart

When Dr. Jerome Cox, princial of Don C. Faith Junior High School, asked Ronald Webb, a language arts teacher there, to teach an introductory course in journalism to the students, he never would have believed what lay in store.

The class, called Magazine Journalism, has won two first place awards from the Columbia Scholastic Press Association's (CSPA) Columbia University, Annual Magazine Contest in as many years.

The class started out in the fall of 1973 as an elective course for seventh and eight grade under the title of Exploratory Journalism, and was later renamed Journalism I. The students gathered information and created and published literature and art for a literary-art magazine which they called The Faith Journal. The first small mimeographed collection of literary-art was published in the winter of 1973.

The class transfered its journalistic efforts to a photo-offset format in 1974. Col. Raymond Funderburk, then editor of Infantry Magazine, gave them an introduction to the basics of modern magazine graphics and layout techniques.

On a field trip to Infantry Magazine, a graphic artist told the class about cover supoort, target audience, graphics, prestype (transfer letting) and non-photo blue pencils, among other tricks of the trade.

"Col. Funderburk also introduced me to several copies of "POST 30", the Army's 'workshop' newspaper for Army journalists, " Mr. Webb said. "We are learning to use the information in POST 30: graphics, rules, borders, novelty type, different kinds of layout."

The the spring of 1974 the first offset printing of Journaislm I's creative efforts rolled off the press bearing the name of The Faith Review and the logo of Lientenant Colonel Don C. Faith, in a double circle with the background of the school and a battlefield. Created and designed by former student, Stuart Karanovich, it is still used as a permanent part of the nameplate of the magazine.

In the 1974-75 school year, Journalism I and the Faith Review joined the CSPA. They entered the Association's Annual Magazine Contest for the first time and were awarded a First Place Certificate. The magazine was rated on typography, general layout, stories, editorial and essays, verse, general features, creative literary work and art illustrations.

The Faith Review went on to win another first place award for their Bicentennial edition in 1976.

The CSPA insignia was added to The Faith Review's nameplate logo and staff page in the 1975-76 editions, giving it creative and academic personalit.

The Association's Outstanding Service Medal was awarded to Kristi Hinds, a student at Faith School, for her art illustration used in the magazine. The medal is given to one student per year for being top magazine journalist. Individual staff membership pins are also given to outstanding student-journalists by the CSPA.

The Magazine Journalism class is reparing its new current literary-art publication to enter in the 1977 CSPA Annual Magazine Contest.

Pathfinders receive Golden Free-Fall Wings

By Marshall Jones

Two members of the Airborne Department's Pathfinders Division and the Military Free-Fall Demonstration Team recently received the United States Parachute Association's Golden Free-Fall Wings, awarded on the occasion of a member's 1000th free-fall jump.

Maj. Kenneth Johnston and SSgt. Jac Robinson received their Golden Wings from MajGen. Willard Latham, CG, after jumping from a helicopter 10,000 feet above a drop zone on Eubanks Field during the Airborne Department's weekly "Airborne 5000" demonstration.

Maj. Johnston and SSgt. Robinson were preceded to the ground by a team of three Pathfinders who rapelled from a hovering helicopter to set up and mark with colored smoke the triangular drop zone, approximately 100 meters on each side.

Exiting the aircraft together and separating after a few seconds of uninhibited flight, the men deployed their rectangular chutes at 2,5000 feet above the ground.

SSgt. Robinson touched ground first after skillfully guiding his red, white and blue Stratocloud parachute to the "DZ" which was deliberately small to reflect what is considered to be the minimum size for a safe airborne deployment.

Maj. Johnston followed about a minute later in a larger Stratostar parachute. Both chutes have the appearance of hang gliders and are capable of much faster lateral movement than regular parachutes.

Both men also have considerable experience in conventional military parachuting. SSgt. Robinson has over 250 static-line jumps to his credit and Maj. Johnston has 500.

The purpose of the Pathfinder portion of the "Airborne 5000" demonstration, which is an overview of the Airborne Department's training activities, is to simulate a tactical exercise involving a combat situation. Pathfinders are quick-reaction troops deployed to set up and defend a drop zone before the main body of Airborne forces arrives.

Send application ahead for family housing

It's not too early to start thinking about that summer PCS. Soldiers who haven't moved during the last year should be aware of a few changes in the procedures for applying for housing waiting list consideration.

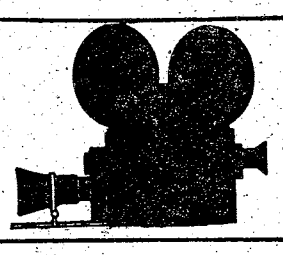
Soldiers may now be placed on the waiting list at the new post with an effective date the day they departed their previous duty station.

The procedure is simple. Go to the family housing office and ask for a DA Form 1746 — the application form for family housing. The personnel officer will validate it and send it to your next duty station.

If this isn't done, the soldier's name will not be placed on the waiting list until he or she applies for housing at the new station.

If the application forwarded by the Ft. Benning MILPO gets lost, a copy should be in the soldier's 201 file and can be verified by the MILPO at the new station. Then the soldier will still be eligible for the waiting list as of the date he or she departed the former station.

Soldiers should plan on a 30 to 180 day average waiting time for family housing at most military installations, unless they arrive at a new stateside installation during June through August. Estimates of waiting time depend on the time of year, because 60 to 75 per cent of housing assignments are made during June through August.



All changes to the family housing regulation are designed to work to the soldier's advantage. But keep in mind that a shortcut through procedures may cause a short circuit that can delay processing.

10-8 on the warpost

By "HOSS" KACI 4615

I heard a guy the other day discussing whether or not CBers on Ft. Benning were attempting to reserve Channel 1 for themselves. It may sound that way to the casual listener, but if you copy the mail all day on 1, you'll see that anybody who wants to can get a break on the channel.

This is due to the number of concerned and knowledgeable CBers with 10-8 base stations who volunteer to take channel control. If you don't think a channel control station is an asset to CB operation, just run around the dial sometime and listen to everybody walking all over each other.

Channel control insures that everybody gets his break without interference and gets it for the full 5 minutes if he wants it. For what it's worth here's my personal opinion on channel control operations.

Tips for channel controllers:

Have paper and pencil, a watch or clock, a 10-code list, a copy of part 95, FCC Rules and a bottle of aspirin on hand when you take control. Announce that you've got the control and ask breakers to come back with a handle or a number; write them down and then read the list and ask if there are any more.

Once you've got them all, start giving breaks in the order listed. Mark each one off as he takes his break and be sure that he's completed his break before going on to the next one.

Allow a little time for additional breakers to key up.

As for those people who want to "break for a quickie", I have heard people do this and then spend the next five minutes discussing how Aunt Fannie's cake fell when Uncle Elmer slammed the oven door. I would suggest asking the reason for the break and checking with the next handle on the list for an O.K. Just remember when you've got channel control, that there's no substitute for courtesy.

Tips for breakers:

When you ask for a break, give your handle, call sign or some other kind of ID. It's difficult to distinguish several people saying "Break 1, please" at the same time. Don't key up in the middle of someone else's conversation, but wait until they're finished or until control asks for breakers.

If channel control doesn't acknowledge you, try again in an appropriate spot or ask someone to 10-5 your break. When control has recognized your request, stand by until he gives you your break. If you have to go 10-7 before you get your break, let channel control know. This will avoid confusion and save time.

Once you get the break, as No-Luck put it the other day, "It's your nickle, spend it any way you want to." However, if there's a long list of breakers you might consider going to another channel once you make contact with your party.

The same applies to breaking for a quickie. I would discourage this practice unless there are compelling reasons for jumping ahead of others on the list, and it takes only a few seconds to go 10-27. When you've finished your conversation be sure to let channel control know.

Just remember when you're breaking that there's no substitute for courtesy.

Benning lieutenant earns EIB

Taking apart and putting back together the M60 machine gun in a specific time is one part of the EIB testing requirement. 1st Lt. Simpson demonstrates his technique which helped him earn the coveted badge.

By Betty Zimmerman

The first Expert Infantryman Badge (EIB) to be earned by a permanent party person at Ft. Benning in three years was awarded to a lieutenant from the School Brigade.

1st Lt. Robert Simpson, assistant S-3 of the 1/29th Inf (Pioneers), was awarded the EIB by LtCol. John Sharp, battalion commander, on April 14.

Infantry Officer Basic Course (IOBC) students have been afforded the chance to earn th badge since testing began last October and approximately 25 have passed. But Simpson was the only assigned soldier to pass out of at least 68 hopefuls.

The Eagle Rock, Va. native entered the Army in December 1974 through the ROTC program at Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Blacksburg, Va.

Practical experience gained at Fetal Heart Monitor workshop

By Edward Ponatoski

A Fetal Heart Monitor workshop was held recently at the Ft. Benning Officers Club.

The workshop was sponsored by representatives from the Corometrics Medical Systems, makers of the fetal heart monitor, and hosted by Martin Army Hospital.

Nurses and other medical personnel from Ft. Rucker, Ala., Macon, Augusta and through-out the state came to the workshop for practical experience in interpretation of fetal heart rate patterns.

The fetal heart monitor is an electronic device which records the heartbeat of the fetus and simultaneously records the uterine contractions of the mother. It enables the physician to obtain accurate information of the stress on the baby during contractions, which is the most critical time.

The fetal monitor is used in almost 100 per cent of the deliveries at Martin Army Hospital and at most hospitals in the Columbus area. It is felt that nation-wide use of the fetal monitor can reduce the number of tragic fetal deaths that occur at birth.

Maj. Aida River of the Education and Training Dept, at Martin Army Hospital examines a readout from the MAH fetal heart monitor.

Michael A. Mazza

SP5 Mike Mazza is a medic. He works in the emergency room of an Army hospital. "I think this job is great. It gives you a chance to see the real world. Me? I lived in a little town in Virginia for 18 years. Bam! The next thing I knew I was in Japan. Helping people. Like in a hospital ward. You do little things for them. And they think the world of you. I don't consider that kind of job to be work."

The Army needs people like Mike Mazza. People who are committed to doing a better job. If that's you, why not see your career counselor today. You may find out just how much Uncle Sam needs you.

Keep a good soldier in the Army. Reenlist.

Bicycle child carriers cause safety problems

Persons who own bicycle child carriers with the brand name, "Tote-Along," may have a serious safety problem.

The child carriers, manufactured by Hamill Manufacturing Company, Washington, Michigan, and Huffman Manufacturing Company, Dayton, Ohio, may separate from the bicycle if not properly installed.

Separation of the seat from the carrier has been caused by failure to push the seat onto the carrier far enough to secure the locking mechanism. Separation of the carrier from the bicycle in some cases may be caused by misalignment of the metal clamp or overtightening of the bolt passing through the clamp.

Persons who have these carriers should carefully inspect both the latching mechanism and the metal clamp which attaches the carrier to the bicycle frame. Further information may be obtained from Hamill Manufacturing Company, Consumer Relations Department, P. O. Box 255, Washington,Michigan 48094, or call Hamill collect at (216) 379-7792.

AUSA sponsors soldier's way to Winston 500 race

By Bev Lockhart

The Association of the United States Army (AUSA) is sponsoring an all expenses paid trip for 46 Ft. Benning soldiers to the Seventh Annual Winston 500 NASCAR-FIA Winston Cup National Stock Car Race in Talladega, Alabama on May 1.

Sergeant Majors of all units at Ft. Benning will choose outstanding soldiers to represent their unit at the race, according to post CSM Vincent Roegiers.

Also attending as guest of AUSA will be the 1976 "Soldier of the Year" and "Soldier of the Quarter" for the last two quarters.

An air conditioned bus has been chartered for the trip and will leave from Infantry Hall (Bldg. 4) at 7 a.m. on May 1.

Competitors will chase more than $200,000 in prize money while roaring down the 40-car field, keeping the fans on their feet as they rip around the five-story high turns.

The world's greatest drivers will swap the lead so often — about 50 or 60 times — that it's too close for comfort . . . THEIR comfort, the drivers say.

Last year Buddy Baker established an all-time speed record when he won the 1976 Winston 500 at the whopping average of 169.887 mph. This year's drivers will undoubtedly go for a new record.

Thurber Carnival tryouts scheduled

The Ft. Benning Dramatizers will hold open tryouts for James Thurber's hilarious comedy revue, "A Thurber Carnival" on Monday, April 25 at 8:30 p.m. and on Tuesday and Wednesday, April 26 and 27 at 7:30 p.m. at Bldg. 229, the new Music & Theater Community Activities Center (on the corner of Ingersoll Street and Dixie Road).

Parts are available for three men and one woman. Anyone interested in theatre is welcome, and further information is available by calling 545-5057.

According to Ann Morgan, Drama Director, the show was previously cast, but several members have had to leave the show due to other commitments, leaving vacancies which need to be filled rapidly.

"A Thurber Carnival" consists of a series of vignettes and choice excerpts from Thurber's writings and cartoons. Cast members portray different characters in each segment of the show, making this a fun and challenging experience for any actor or actress. The fast-paced revue is a complete evening's entertainment.

The production dates for "A Thurber Carnival" will be May 26, 28, and June 2, 3, and 4 at 8 p.m., at Bldg. 229. For ticket information, please call 545-5057.

fins, furs, feathers

By Denny Blankenship

The 1977 Georgia State Bass Championship tournament will be held on West Point Lake next Monday and Tuesday, April 25 and 26. It is only fitting that this week's space be devoted to those outstanding fishermen who will represent Ft. Benning in this prestigious tournament.

Benning's six-man team, selected on the basis of year-long competition, will carry some 60 odd years of bass fishing experience into the tournament.

Leading Benning's 'Top Six' is the Post Bass Club's Fisherman of the Year, SSgt. (Ret.) Bob Billman. Bob, an avid bass fisherman for 13 years, was born in Geneva, Ohio but claims Columbus, Ga. at his home. When asked about Benning's chances at West Point, Bob said, "We have a good chance to win this year. We're familiar with the water and with a little luck, we'll win."

The second member of Benning's team is Capt. Bob Kramer, who claims Columbus, Ohio as his hometown. Bob's been bass fishing since 1971 and employs a great deal of scientific knowledge in locating and catching his fish. He believes that, "the team that can establish a pattern early and stay with it, will win."

Benning's third team member is 22-year-old Jack Tibbs Jr. "Junior" has been bass fishing since he turned eight years old, and his experience is evident by the fine catches he makes. "Junior" always thinks positive and doesn't hesitate to say "this year Benning will win."

SSgt. (Ret.) Ted Burzynski, Benning's fourth team member hails from Milwaukee. He's been bassin' around for some ten years now and most of his fishing success can be attributed to hard work. Ted says, "we are familiar with West Point and have been making some good catches there. We definitely have a good shot at winning."

Holding down the fifth slot on Benning's team is LtCol. Tom Ray. Tom, one of the most experienced anglers in the nation, hails from Shelbyville, Tenn. He's been bassin around for some 26 years and is a former Lousisiana State Champion. When asked about West Point, Tom said, "we'll be there chunkin.'"

Rounding out Benning's team is Capt. (Ret.) Arch Caldwell. Arch was born and raised in Nicoma Park, Okla. and has been bass fishing for seven years. Arch's success can be attributed to many l ng hours on the water and he believes that, "our ability to work as a team will be the big factor. The best team effort will win."

We all join nn wishing these dedicated anglers "good luck" and hopefully their efforts will prevail over the other 46 teams entered in this tournament.

'With a little help from my friends . . .'

By Bill Walton

There is an old saying that the Army takes care of its own. On April 8, the old saying became a reality when the quarters occupied by SSgt. Johnny Hughes and family caught fire and destroyed most of their belongings.

Hughes, 498th Med Co (AA), 34th Med Bn and his family were offered a set of quarters in McGraw Manor. With the help of the troops of the 498th, the relocation was accomplished by late afternoon.

The company took up a special collection and gave the money to Hughes. Also all personnel with small children were asked to bring any clothing that could be spared to the company. These clothes were donated to and gratefully accepted by the Hughes family.

The 498th also provided a detail to assist Hughes in cleaning up the mess at the old quarters.

The McGraw Manor provided a detail to assist Hughes in cleaning up the mess at the old quarters.

The McGraw Manor Protestant Chapel congregation assisted by Chaplain (Capt.) David Myers collected clothing and also took up a collection that was given to the Hughes family.

"People have just been wonderful. Both my husband and I are farm folks and are used to setbacks, we appreciate all the kindness that everyone has shown us," stated Mrs. Vickie Hughes.

Mrs. Vickie Hughes, accepts a bag of clothing collected by the McGraw Manor Association from SSgt. Richard Hup, 2nd CS Hosp, 34th Med Bn.

Growth doesn't stop at maturity.

Everyone knows U.S. Savings Bonds reach full maturity in just five years.

But they don't stop there.

Bonds keep accumulating interest year after year after year after year.

So if you're enrolled in a Payroll Savings Plan at work (or the Bond-A-Month Plan where you save), you don't have to rush out and cash your Bonds at maturity.

You can sit back and watch them keep growing.

The older they get, the better they look.

Series E Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years (4½% the first year). Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Take stock in America.

200 years at the same location.

Don't let a DUD make a dud of you

DUDS KILL!

In the past several months, duds have taken an increasing number of victims. In four separate incidents, six youths were killed and several others injured while playing with small caliber dud ammunition.

In all cases, the children were playing with ammunition removed from Army firing range impact areas.

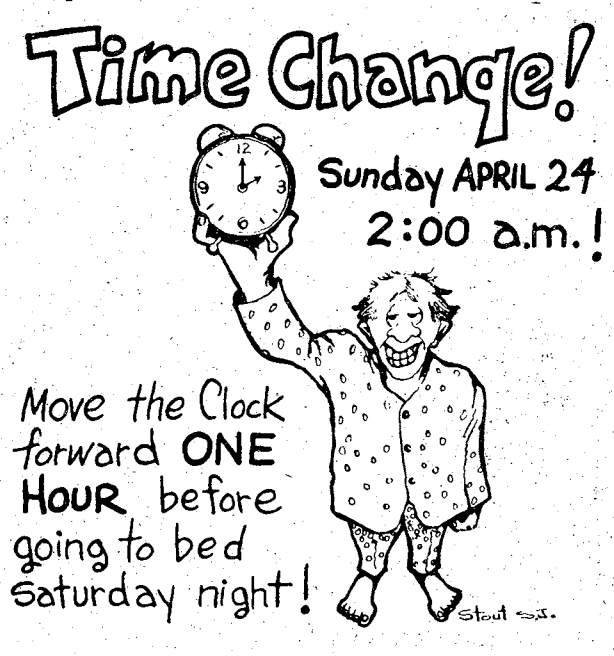
Many articles have been written about the dangers of dud ammunition but many people are still being injured or killed as a result of violating a basic safety rule — DO NOT TOUCH ANY UNEXPLODED ORDNANCE!

Accidents happen not only to members of the military but to civilians as well. One such incident resulted in the death of two children who were playing with a 106-mm recoiless round which had been taken from the impact area of a nearby installation. The round exploded after being dropped by one of the children.

In December 1963, two boys from Ft. Benning were killed on Hook Range as a result of handling dud ammunition which they found in the impact area.

All firing ranges and impact areas on Ft. Benning are clearly marked as OFF LIMITS areas. This should be sufficient warning for adults, but children are curious by nature and love to investigate. Unless parents make their kids fully aware of the hazards of range areas and dud ammunition, accidents of this nature could occur here, again.

Remember, regardless of the type, shape, size or color, ammunition is designed to destory — DON'T LET IT DESTROY YOU or someone you love.



Don't become a local headline such as "Wife and Daughter Killed by War Trophy"; "Boys Killed by Rocket"; or "Mortar Shell Kills Three, Injures One."

If you find a round of dud ammunition on post, contact the 89th Ordnance Detachment (EOD) at 544-4668 or the Provost Marshal at 545-5222. DO NOT TOUCH A DUD OR DISTURB IT IN ANY WAY!

If dud ammuntion is found off post, contact the local police.

These agencies have been trained in the disposal and handling of ammunition and are there to serve and keep you and your family safe — use them.

DON'T LET A DUD MAKE A DUD OF YOU!

43rd Engineers near completion of strongpoint defensive position

During a recent test of the mock Soviet defensive position constructed by the 43rd Engr Bn, an M-60 tank was driven through the position to test the capabilities of one of the five-foot deep, 15-foot wide tank traps. The project will be completed in May.

"A projected three months and 40,000 man-hours entails a great deal of work, but when the job's realistic and the training is meaningful, it's worth the effort."

That's the way LtCol. Stanley Domal, the commander of the 43rd Engr Bn expressed his unit's involvement in on-going construction of a mock Soviet Army defensive position on the northern part of the reservation.

Development of the strongpoint was ordered by Training and Doctrine Command as part of the Opposing Force Concept and could be the prototype of similar training sites at other facilities Army-wide.

The project, which is scheduled for completion in early May, has barbed wire fencing in front and consists of 4400 feet of trenches reinforced with logs, more than 60

Crackdown to continue

Moving traffic violations increase

By Marshall Jones

A step-up in radar surveillance of post traffic and an increase in personnel and resources committed to traffic enforcement have resulted in a rise in the number of traffic tickets processed last week.

From 6 a.m. April 18 to 6 a.m. April 25, citations for moving violations were processed for the following number of persons:

197th Infantry Brigade	100
The School Brigade	41
36th Engineer Group	23
1st Advanced Individual Tng Brigade	19
Headquarters Command	17
34th Medical Battalion	10
Civilians	9
MEDDAC	6
USA Infantry Board	2
TOTAL	227

The number of tickets was up from the week before, when MPs processed 193 citations. The number of traffic accidents investigated went from 20 to 21.

Apprehensions for driving under the influence (DUI) rose from five during the preceding week to six during the latest period:

1st Advanced Individual Tng Brigade	3
Civilians	2
The School Brigade	1
TOTAL	6

Traffic citation figures could increase dramatically this week as MPs reported approximately 100 tickets written in a 24-hour period early this week.

The traffic crackdown will continue, a military police spokesman said. He added that the measures are designed to reduce the number of traffic accidents on post.

Quarters cooling okay, temperature limits set

By William Darrell

The hot weather is here to stay and with it comes the desire to remain cool and comfortable. In the past an assumed abundance of natural sources of energy and its reasonable cost governed liberal usage policies.

Those times are gone — energy is scarce and its cost is ever increasing.

In light of the possibility of an energy crisis this winter, all efforts to conserve these vital resources must be made.

The following temperature settings for the use of air conditioning must be adhered to from the standpoint of cost and conservation:

77 degrees — in operating, delivery and recovery rooms; special treatment and diagnostic wards; clinics, physical examination areas and those performing similar functions.

78 degrees — in family housing, troop billets and similar living quarters.

80 degrees — in all administrative space; other hospital wards, corridors, waiting rooms, laboratories or similar support facilities; and in all other facilities not specified above.

These settings are considered to be minimums. Any setting above these standards is permissible and encouraged if it is consistent with health and mission requirements.

It's up to every one on post to do their share in reducing the needless waste of energy. Use it when you must but use it wisely.

Benning commemorates Law Day

May 1, marks the 20th annual observance of Law Day U.S.A. "Partners In Justice" is the theme this year as Ft. Benning commemorates Law Day, set aside for all Americans to reflect upon the importance of law in our society.

In MajGen Willard Latham's Law Day proclamation, he urges all citizens to rededicate themselves to the "principles of democracy and respect for law."

The post Staff Judge Advocate, Col. Robert Poydasheff, emphasized greater public awareness in this year's observance . All available media on post has been utilized, to include Poydasheff and members of his staff speaking at all of the dependent schools on post.

The seven dependent schools participated in Law Day with special lessons, bulletin boards, and assemblies. Also, an essay contest was conducted on the theme "Partners In Justice" by each school grades 4-8. Honorary Judge Advocate Certificates were awarded to each winner.

Essay winners by grade level were: Dexter School, Amy Samuels - 4th, David Masterson - 5th; White School, Dorothy Stahlman - 4th, Thomas Latham - 5th; Wilson School, Charnelle Harris - 4th, Julia Bechdolt - 5th; Loyd School, Phillip Chelf - 4th, Kevin LaStraps - 5th, Danny Chelf - 6th; Wilbur School, Anthony Dupuy - 4th, Roy Peake - 5th; Faith School, Mark Miller - 6th, John Masterson - 7th; Jonne Crick - 8th; and McBride School, Simon Hop - 4th and Charles Johnson - 5th. Congratulations to the winners and their family.

Law Day thoughts

The United States is not the greatest country in today's world, because it is the richest or the most productive. It is the greatest because its people enjoy the freedom to live and flourish without fear. The United States stands, unparalleled, in that respect.

We are free precisely because we are governed by laws rather than by men. Ours is the greatest country in the world because it has been guided by the convictions that individual rights and human personality are the things of paramount importance.

We Americans have privileges that no dictator can turn on and off at his whim. By our Constitution, Bill of Rights and statutes we may work where we choose, worship as we wish, vote in secret for those we select to govern, and have a fair trial if accused of a crime. We are protected from all domestic injustices by law administered in impartial courts.

As we approach Law Day on May 1, we especially, as members of a service dedicated to preserve our country, should think about our heritage and our traditions! We, and all Americans, are indeed partners in justice. We must strive continuously to revere our heritage. The world is rife with examples of what occurs when men rule and not law. The results of rule by men are sickeningly apparent in many lands over the globe where humans may be treated as beasts or short at the fancy of men, where their lives are ruthlessly regimented, and where they have not the slightest voice in their own government.

On this day, and everyday, let us take the occasion to re-examine those familiar words, "individual liberty under law." Let us give thought to the tremendous blessings that flow to us because we live by the "rule of law" and, because we are all partners in that preservation. Let us reflect on what it means to live by a system where the dignity of the individual citizen is assured. Finally, after our reflection and re-examination, let us vow to continue to cherish and respect this system; and, to support those who bear the responsibility of government.

Today, our nation still faces dangers. Not only must we be determined to stand by and defend our great system of law and government, we must train and maintain ourselves in the highest state of readiness so that if we are called upon to act, we can . . . successfully.

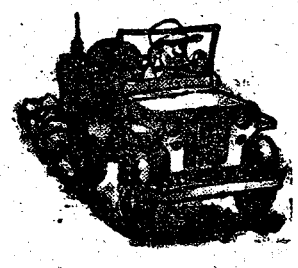
CWO4 Ken Jacobsen, 478th Avn Co, 34th Med Bn was the top man in the Ft. Benning Bowling Tournament held last week to decide the team to represent the post in the TRADOC Western Conference tournament. He completed the 18 games with a 197 average, including a high game of 224.



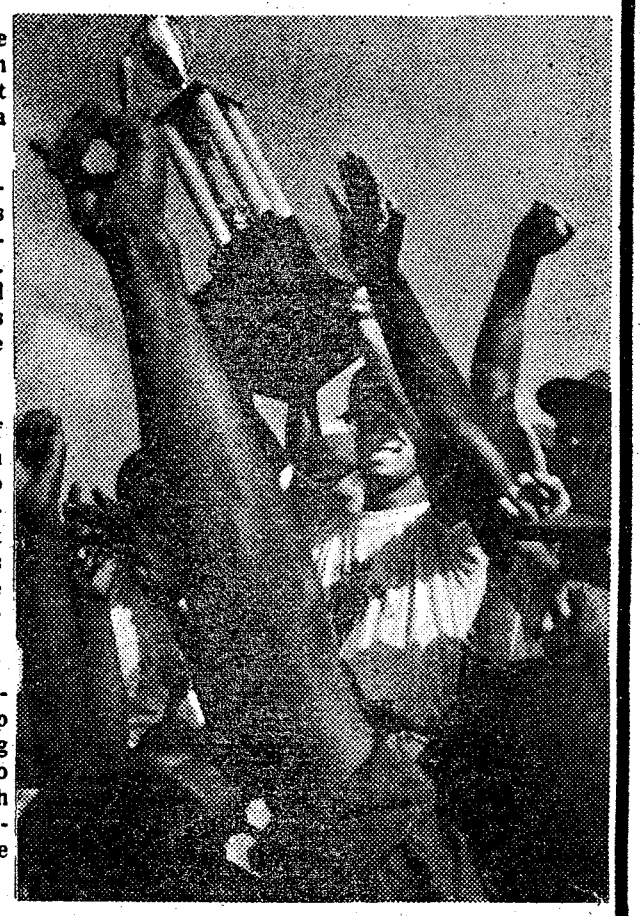
By Betty Zimmerman

TSB's undefeated 13th Co, 1st Bn, suffered it first loss at the hands of USAIB during the post volleyball tournament, but they bounced back to capture the championship.

The IOAC students took the first game easily 15-6 and it looked like the tournament would be a runaway. But USAIB came from behind to win the next two games with identical scores of 15-3 to capture the first match.

The three games of the second match seesawed back and forth with 13th Co pulling out the first game 15-12 and USAIB squeaking by the next one, 15-13.

The championship outcome went right down to the final minutes of the third game but 13th Co sneaked by with a score of 17-15 to become post champions.



C-4-1 tops all competitors

If you were anywhere near Doughboy Stadium last Saturday, you might have thought there was a World Series in progress.

But the yelling and cheering came from companies of the 1st AIT Brigade during a Brigade Field Day. The fun events test physical fitness, mental toughness and teamwork of the brigade trainees.

There were a total of eight events and Co C, 4th Bn outscored everyone to take the overall championship. They had first places in the fireman's carry, the shuttle relay, the steeplechase relay and the 5-mile run.

Co A, 4th Bn, won the 1-mile relay and the pull-up contest. The tent-building event was captured by Co A, 5th Bn while Co E, 5th Bn were declared the undisputed winners of the tug-a-war.

The agony of defeat? Not here!

Besting all 5-mile team competitors brought Co C, 4th Bn the win and more points toward their overall championship.

How it stacks up to its civilian counterpart

At one time it was fashionable to argue that civilian justice was superior to military justice. But as a brief review of key areas of the law will demonstrate, servicemembers do not forfeit all constitutional rights simply by putting on the uniform. Instead, they not only retain most of the rights available to their civilian counterparts, but even have certain important protections not available to defendants in the civilian community.

One of the key differences between military law and civilian law involves the decision to charge an individual with an offense. Normally, in the civilian community, when a victim of a crime has made a complaint or sworn out the warrant, the prosecution will proceed with the case. Likewise, if the victim decides he or she does not wish to press the charge, the case is dropped. In the military community, however, the victim does not have the right to drop the charge. Criminal activity in the military not only impacts on the values in our society, but also has an impact on military discipline. For this reason, the decision to charge or not to charge rests with the commanders, and not with the individual victims of the crime.

Grand Jury versus Article 32 Proceeding

Before a case is sent to a general courtmartial, an Article 32 investigation is required. Many people have compared the Article 32 investigation with the civilian procedures of grand jury proceedings and an indictment. The two are not exactly the same, but they do have a number of similarities.

The grand jury proceedings are closed proceedings from which the defense counsel and the defendant are usually excluded. The disclosure of the records of the grand jury are strictly limited. By contrast, the Article 32 investigation is an open proceeding at which the accused and his counsel are present. This proceeding serves as a valuable discovery device for the accused to discover the full extent of the evidence possessed by the government. He may not only call defense witnesses at government expense, but may also hear and cross-examine the government witnesses. Following the Article 32 investigation, the defendant is furnished a complete copy of the pretrial report, which in many cases may be verbatim and serve as a basis for impeachment of government witnesses at trial.

The standard of proof required to send a military case to trial is exactly the same as that imposed upon the civilian grand jury: "Probable cause to believe that an offense was committeed and committed by the individual charged." In some states, rather than using the grand jury and the indictment proceeding, the civilian courts proceed on an "information," which is a charge based upon probable cause, but without a grand jury hearing.

Lastly, the Article 32 is not designed to enable the military prosecutor to conduct a broad inquiry into the conduct of persons not facing UCMJ charges; however, the civilian grand jury proceeding has increasingly been used by civilian prosecutors to discover evidence against potential defendants.

Self-Incrimination Clause versus Article 31

Article 31, Uniform Code of Military Justice, as originally drafted was meant to insure to service members the protection of the self-incrimination clause of the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments. However, Article 31 as it has been interpreted by the courts is much broader than the fifth amendment protection available to our civilian counterparts.

In the civilian community, an individual involved with a forgery can be required to furnish handwriting exemplars under pains of a contempt proceeding. The same is true with voice exemplars for identification in the case of obscene phone calls, or the like. Likewise, blood samples may be forceably taken from our civilian counterparts. Article 31 protects the service member against all three of these activities by the commander of law enforcement authorities. Likewise, the Miranda warnings as to right to counsel, and the warnings as to the right to remain silent come in to play much earlier in the military community than they do in the civilian community.

Many of the last eight cases decided by the Supreme Court limiting Miranda do not presently apply to the military community. As a general matter, civilians are not entitled to Miranda warnings until they are taken into custody; but, a servicemember is entitled to an Article 31 warning, prior to questioning, as soon as he or she becomes a suspect, regardless of whether the person is in custody.

Eyewitness Identification

The same is true as to a right to counsel at eyewitness identifications. The right to counsel at a lineup at the police station comes in to play much sooner than it does in the civilian community.

Right to Counsel

When an individual is charged with an offense for which confinement might be adjudged, he is generally entitled to the assistance of an attorney. However, the Supreme Court has indicated that this rule does not apply to summary courts-martial in the military community, even where confinement is adjudged; however, by regulation the Army furnishes military counsel in many situations, even where there is a constitutional requirement for counsel. For example, the Army provides servicemembers with a right to free military counsel prior to making a decision on acceptance of an Article 15 or election of rights in an administrative board action.

Trial by the Fact-Finder

Approximately, 90 per cent of the cases in both the military and the civilian communities are tried by judge alone. However, in the military community, the court members serve as the fact-finder in determining guilt or innocence. In general, the education level of military court members is much higher than the average for jurors in the civilian community.

One of the complaints against the military community is the selection of court members and procedures for voting on a verdict. The selection of court members is done by the commanding officer, who picks court members to sit for approximately six months at a time. At that time, the commander does not know what cases will appear before the court and the defendant has the option whether to be tried before judge alone, or to go with the court members in civilian court, however, jury members are selected at random. In most civilian jurisdictions in the United States, a unanimous verdict is required before there can be a finding of guilty. In the military it must be a finding of guilty by at least two-thirds of the court members present. However, at least two jurisdictions in the United States have less than unanimous verdicts, similar to the military community.

Constitutional Right to a Speedy Trial

Both military and civilian defendants have a constitutional right to a speedy trial based upon the Sixth Amendment of the Constitution. This right begins when an individual is subject to restraint, or has been indicted or placed under charges. In addition, the Supreme Court has recently indicated that even where the Sixth Amendment right to a speedy trial under the Sixth Amendment does not arise, defendants have a due process right to speedy disposition of their cases in order to prevent substantial prejudice which would adversely impact on the right to a fair trial. These rights are available to the military member.

In addition, the military system has imposed a 90-day rule — that is, an individual must be tried within 90 days of pre-trial restraint. The remedy for failure to comply is a drastic remedy — dismissal of the charges whether or not the defendant has been prejudiced. Although federal civilian courts have adopted a similar time period, most state and local jurisdictions do not afford defendants such stringent protection for the right to a speedy trial.

Military law is a highly sophisticated branch of jurisprudence, designed to promote justice and discipline, while stringently protecting the rights of the accused. The active role of military lawyers in trials and administrative boards helps to insure that the system produces just results. In the area of criminal law, the Army Court of Military Review and the Court of Military Appeals provide appellate review of courtsmartial findings and sentences. This constant scrutiny is the servicemember's best protection of the right to a fair trial.

Summary

As can be seen, the military member has many more advantages from the criminal law system in the military, than he does in the civilian community itself. He has the Article 32 investigation as an open proceeding which serves as a discovery device; the rights under Article 31 are much broader than the Fifth Amendment; and, the same is generally true as to right to counsel.

The differences are noted in the area of the appointment of the court and the fact finders. Many might argue there that the military member is at a disadvantage; however, he has certain options to eliminate this arguable disadvantage.

Energy ... can it last forever?

There was a time when our energy resources seemed never ending — huge forests, unlimited coal reserves, ever gushing oil wells and limitless electrical power.

Those were the days — or were they? Our forefathers may not have faced up to dwindling energy reserves, but they had to tighten their belts for other hardships while building the nation.

Every age faces its own challenges. Our challenge is to conserve today's natural resources.

The energy we save now is buying time for the development of energy alternatives. If we are to see the day when these alternatives are available for wide use, the time to save is now.

In 1976 alone, Americans consumed 76 "quads" of energy. A quad is a new measurement of all forms of energy. It can be either one trillion cubic feet of gas, or 46 million tons of coal, or 180 million barrels of oil, or 293 million megawatt hours of electricity.

Experts are predicting that by the turn of the century, the U.S. will need 160 quads annually.

These are just a few of the ways we can conserve energy. Remember, energy saved today is for our future and the future of our children. (ARNEWS)

Look before you back!

Numerous accidents involving backing of vehicles indicate drivers are failing to insure that they have sufficient clearance prior to backing up. Although these backing accidents rarely involve personal injury, the unnecessary damage and resulting monetary losses of these accidents are substantial, and can be prevented if drivers observe the following precautions:

- Walk behind your vehicle prior to backing to insure no children, animals, bicycles, vehicles, or other obstrutions are in the way.
- If possible, let a passenger or someone else guide you back safely.
- If nobody is available to help you back up, walk around to insure the area is clear, and while backing, observe the rear and sides of your vehicle.
- Remember that in the instant you take your eyes off the rear of your vehicle, a child or car may dart into your path, so keep watching.
- Proceed slowly, whether backing from a driveway or a parking lot space.

- Never rely on the mirror for backing; the field of vision is not only reversed but drastically limited.

So far, backing accidents on Ft. Benning have not resulted in a tragic loss of life to a pedestrian or a playing child. The possibility of such an occurrence still remains, however, and the risk increases every time someone fails to look while backing.

Backing a vehicle remains the driver's responsibility, and the blame for a backing accident cannot be accepted by anyone but the driver. Protect life and property by backing safely.

Heat injury: A burning issue

By J. Gorecki

"If you can't take the heat, get out of the kitchen."

That's fine and dandy if you're a housewife or a cook, but what if your "kitchen" is the great outdoors and your occupation requires you to be there for extended periods of time?

Quite another matter, you say? Well, that's what it's all about in a military community. But there is a solution.

A sensible training program allowing for acclimatization, maintaining a balanced diet and above all realizing that you can't avoid the "kitchen of life," accepting that fact and learning to live with it.

Understanding the nature of heat injuries may be helpful.

Heat injuries may occur after prolonged exposure to, or vigorous physical activity under conditions of high temperature, particularly when accompanied by high humidity and a lack of air movement.

The usual cause of heat injury (prostration) is long exposure to excessive heat with a loss of body salts and dehydration.

Under normal conditions, persons in good health can withstand very severe temperature conditions. However, a malfunction of the body's built-in air-conditioning system will often create deficiencies in health that will aggravate the effect of temperature and slow down the normal body functions.

Among the factors which affect the body's ability to cope with heat are:

- Emotional stress,
- Being overweight,
- Use of alcohol and drugs,
- Lack of sleep,
- Sunburn or heat rash,
- Dehydration or loss of body fluids,
- Infections and recent immunizations or
- The recurrence of previous heat injuries

There are three basic degrees of heat injuries.

Heat Cramps

Heat cramps are painful spasms in the muscles of the arms , legs or abdomen with the body temperature remaining normal.

For relief, the person with heat cramps should be placed in shade or other cool place. Provide salt water. The full contents of one canteen or more should be consumed. Move and massage the arms and legs to help circulate the blood. Obtain medical aid if the cramps and spasms do not subside within 30 to 45 minutes.

Heat Exhaustion

Heat exhaustion usually results in cool, moist skin and profuse sweating and may be accompanied by a headache, a tingling sensation, weakness, mental confusion, shortness of breath, nausea or vomiting. Very frequently, no one will be aware that a person is suffering from heat exhaustion until the individual loses consciousness and collapses.

For relief, place the causalty in the shade, remove boots, loosen clothing, elevate the feet, massage the extremities and give the water, gradually increasing the dosage as the patient is able to take it. Obtain medical aid immediately and evacuate the casualty to the hospital as soon as possible.

Heatstroke

Heatstroke (sunstroke) is a condition representing a breakdown in the body's heat regulating system. IT IS A TRUE MEDICAL EMERGENCY. HEATSTROKE MAY CAUSE DEATH. It is recognized by hot, dry skin and an extremely high body temperature. Heatstroke occurs suddenly and is often accompanied by a rapid pulse, mental confusion, irregular breathing, loss of consciousness, convulsions or delirium.

It may result in death if quick action is not taken.

Immediately lower the casualty's body temperature by any means available. Place the casualty in the shade, douse with water, apply cold packs to the forehead and temples, sprinkle with water and fan—the body temperature must be lowered or the risk of dying is increased. The need for professional medical aid and evacuation is critical. EVACUATION SHOULD BE TO A HOSPITAL NOT A DISPENSARY. If the patient is conscious, give water, gradually increasing the dosage as the patient is able to take it. DO NOT ATTEMPT TO GIVE THE UNCONSCIOUS CASUALTY ANYTHING TO DRINK.

Prevention

- Gradually increase training programs. Initially excessive activity must be avoided. Experienced personnel can become acclimatized in five to seven days through a reasonable well-structured program geared toward building the body's resistance to the effects of heat. However, in some cases 10 to 14 days or even longer may be needed.
- Supervision by officers and NCOs should be routine in watching for signs of heat injuries.
- Breaks should be scheduled as needed in accordance with the goals of the programs and based on observation of the progress of the least physically fit members of the unit.
- Alternating short periods of work with short breaks is preferable to long work periods with long breaks.
- Use a commonsense amount of salt with all meals to replace salt losses through perspiration. The use of impregnated-type salt tablets to replace salt loss is discouraged.
- Care should be taken to avoid excessive quantities of salt to avoid intestinal problems.
- A special program for newly assigned personnel is a must.

In extremely high temperatures alternating short periods of work with short breaks is preferable to scheduling long work periods with long breaks.

Wet Bulb Glove Temperature Index (WBGT)

The WBGT is an arbitrary reading derived from the dry air temperature (10 per cent), the radiant heat (20 per cent) and the relative humidity (70 per cent). Based on this reading arrived at by the Environmental Health Section of Preventive Medicine at Martin Army Hospital, levels of physical activity for Ft. Benning personnel are modified accordingly.

The readings are based on the body's ability to cool itself through the evaporation of perspiration into the air. As increasingly higher readings are reached, the ability of the body to cool itself naturally decreases and the probability of sufferng from heat injuries becomes more likely.

Breaks should be scheduled as needed in accordance with the goals of the program and based on the observation of the least physically fit members of the unit.

From the WBGT index readings four categories of heat alert, which provide guidelines for participation in physical activity, are determined.

A transcribed weather briefing which includes the WBGT index reading is available by calling 545-5281. It should be noted, however, that if the index reading is less than 82 degrees, it will not be included in the briefing. This indicates that there is no category of heat alert in effect and that normally scheduled physical activity should be continued. This does not preclude the possibility of heat injuries.

Personnel conducting strenuous physical activity should be alert for signs of heat injury even when the environmental temperature is not high.

So, when the "kitchen of life" seems too hot to bear, but you can't leave it because you have a job to do, remember, there's a safe and practical way to get the "COOKING" done.

LAW DAY PROCLAMATION

On May 1, LAW DAY U.S.A., our nation is asked by Congress and the Prssident to pause and reflect on our great heritage of individual liberty under law. Every American should think anew of the central role of law in our society.

For over two centuries our nation has looked to its laws and courts for redress of grievances and protection of our freedoms. It is important for every citizen to realize the necessity of maintaining and strengthening an independent and effective judicial system. Our courts are the sentinels of democracy, ever watchful that ours is a government of laws and not of men.

The theme selected in recognition of the 20th annual observance of LAW DAY is PARTNERS IN JUSTICE. As individual citizens, we should recognize the importance of our legal process in protecting our democratic form of government. As members of the Army team, we are contributing partners in justice by fulfilling our mission to safeguard this republic and its legal institutions.

NOW, THEREFORE, I do hereby proclaim Sunday, May 1, 1977, as

at Fort Benning, Georgia and urge all citizens to observe this date by rededicating themselves to the principals of democracy and respect for law which are vital to the preservation of our American heritage. .

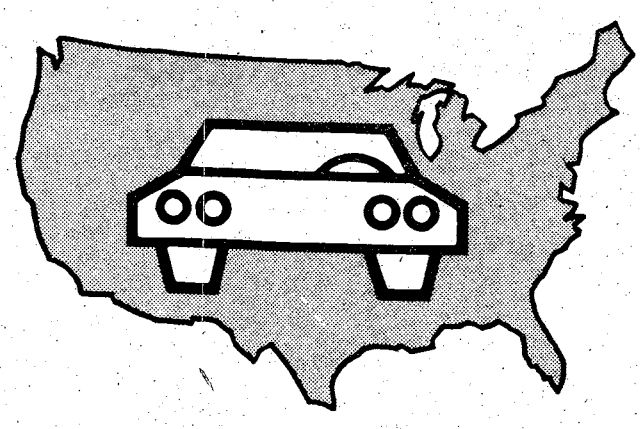
AMU selected a unit of choice

The U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit (USAMU) has been designated a unit of choice, according to DA officials.

Also included in this enlistment option are three marksmanship training units (MTUs) at Ft. Meade, Md., Ft. Riley, Kan. and Ft. Ord, Calif.

The option is open to first term enlistees as well as those reenlisting who have six years service or less. National Guardsmen and Army Reservists may enter active duty under the same provisions.

Enlistments for the unit will be in MOSs 11B (male) and 71B (female). Continued assignments, according to USAMU officials, will depend on the soldier's ability to remain competitive in national and international marksmanship matches.



Individuals may enlist for duty provided they have already received a letter of acceptance from the USAMU commander.

The primary mission of the MTU is marksmanship training of selected active Army, ROTC and Army Reserve organizations, and the conduct of FORSCOM regional matches.

Persons interested in joining the USAMU, but who do not have an acceptance letter, should call HQs, USAMU, 545-4916.

Post jogger receives national award

By Betty Zimmerman

The entire Steen family are avid joggers, and the head of the household, Maj. David Steen, is the proud owner of a National Jogging Association (NJA) Spirit of '76 award and a member of its Hall of Fame.

He earned this distinction by completing 1,776 miles during the period between January 1, 1976 and July 4, 1977. Actually, Maj. Steen, chief of Army Community Service,, finished his requirement on February 28th, and has earned another NJA award for logging an additional 1,000 miles in 1977.

The clinical social work officer sees jogging as a key to good health and his wife and four children happily agree. The children all participate in the post's Run For Your Life program. Tina, 14, and Dirk, 9, have earned the 200-mile path; Mara, 7, the 50-mile patch; and Rafaela, 3, is rapidly approaching the 50-mile mark.

Maj. Steen has logged more than 1,650 miles since he came to Ft. Benning in July, 1975. The Run For Your Program limits your creditable mileage to three miles per day, so even though Steen runs at least five miles a day, he can not count all of them.

Jogging is a family affair with the Steens. Shown here during their daily run are Maj. David Steen and his four children — Tina (14), Dirk (9), Mara (7) and Rafaela (3). They all, including the three-year-old, completed the Columbus Track Club Inaugural Five-Mile Run in Plains, Ga. on January 15th.

MARS helps get message home

When trainees in the 1st Advanced Individual Training (AIT) Brigade arrive on post, they are given forms to complete to have a message sent to their loved ones.

These messages should arrive within one day, even though they have to go to MARS first.

MARS, a United States Army Communications Command (USACC) agency, stands for Military Affiliate Radio System, and it's right here on post in a small, brick building with a slate roof near the credit union building.

It's hard to miss the MARS station because of its huge antenna, which broadcasts and transmits high frequency signals from 3-30 megacycles.

Besides relaying parsonal messages, the MARS station is a vital part of the Civil Defense communications network.

It was in this capacity that the station participated in a training exercise last week in a training exercise designed to stimulate a natural disaster situation involving several destructive tornadoes.

Preplanned messages were sent and received around the clock between the participating MARS stations in the eastern U. S.

The staff of the facility worked 12-hour shifts to accomplish their mission. Normal hours of the MARS station are 8 a.m. - 5 p.m. seven days a week.

To handle the large volume of messages submited by the AIT trainees, the station has a teletype machine. Since their permanent unit is out of order, the station has borrowed a field teletype unit mounted on a truck to ease the load of voice-transmitted messages.

Formerly, the MARS station was active in sending messages to personnel stationed in Germany.

Even though the station no longer transmits directly overseas, it stands continually ready to assist in the swift communication essential to the handling of a real emergency situation.

Make your rear seat passengers buckle up also. Insist on this safety measure for your own protection. In a traffic accident the rear seat passengers frequently are hurtled forward into the front compartment with terrific force. When the passenger's body collides with the driver or his front seat passenger, serious injuries can and do occur from these collisions. As a driver or front seat passenger you are increasing your safety by requiring the rear compartment passengers to buckle up.

Storm sewers not for refuse

Many residents of the family housing areas have been using the storm sewer system to dispose of their leaves, tree limbs, dead roots and grass clippins. The result has been clogged storm drains which requirer expensive corrective maintenance.

The purpose of the sewer system is to carry rainfall and other water runoff into natural drainage courses. The system is designed to prevent flooding and to eliminate standing water which could become breeding areas for mosquitos and other types of insects and germs.

In accordance with USAIC Reg. 210-28, "Refuse generated as a result of grounds maintenance activity (grass clippings, stones, leaves, etc.) will be put in bags or boxes. Residents of single or duplex type quarters will place packaged refuse at the curbside. All residents of multi-unit dwellings will utilize the area adjacent to the fenced garbage containers."

The rising costs of labor, material and machinery combined with reduced Army appropriations is demanding new emphasis be placed on preventive maintenance as a conservation tool. Proper disposal of refuse illustrates an area where significant cost reductions in corrective maintenance can be achieved with the application of very little effort and manpower. Make preventive maintenance a way of living rather than an Army program and help solve the clogged drains problem.

New CHAMPUS is coming

Editor's Note: This is the first in a series designed to assist in understanding CHAMPUS more fully. Each item deals with one particular aspect of the new CHAMPUS Regulation. The CHAMPUS program is one of the finest, most comprehensive medical benefits programs in existence today. A s with any such program, however there are limitations with respect to benefits eligibility, cost sharing, etc. This series is designed to outline some of the limitations and other aspects of the new CHAMPUS.

Treatment of Alcoholism

CHAMPUS will share the cost, up to seven days, for inpatient hospital care required to detoxify a beneficiary during acute stages of alcoholism when the beneficiary suffers from delerium, confusion, trauma, unconsciousness and malnutrition and is unable to function. Such detoxification usually takes from three to seven days.

Benefits under the provision of the Regulation covering treatment of alcoholism may be extended beyond the detoxification stage for inpatient rehabilitation in the hospital or in another type of authorized institution. Each rehabilitative stay is reviewed to determine whether an inpatient setting is required.

Benefits for treatment of alcoholism — detoxification and rehabilitation — are limited to 21 days per episode. Furthermore, CHAMPUS shares the cost for no more than three rehabilitative stays during a beneficiary's lifetime. There is no limit, however, on the number of inpatient stays for detoxification.

Psychotherapy

CHAMPUS will share the cost of one hour of psychotherapy treatment — individual or group or a combination — during a 24-hour period, up to maximum of five one-hour sessions per week for inpatient care and two one-hour sessions per week for outpatient care.

In crisis intervention cases, two hours of psychotherapy treatment during a 24-hour period will be cost shared.

Although previously used as guidelines, these specific limits are new.

Outpatient treatment is reviewed

An enlightening piece of information

In this country alone, lightning will strike and kill hundreds of people, injure thousands and cause property damage, which will reach losses into the millions of dollars. The toll taken by lightning has been on the increase the past few years, probably because of the increasing number of people who use the open areas for recreation.

The Lightning Protection Institute has stated that lightning will strike 6,000 times per minute somewhere on earth. Every time there is a strike, a powerful interchange of electric current takes place between earth and sky. Each bolt of lightning contains up to several millions of volts.

Thunderstorms build up tremendous electrical potential. The charges are either all positive or all negative. On the earth, immediately below the thunderstorm, opposite charges of equal potential gather. These charges attract each other and when they become great enough to overcome air resistance, they come together. This is referred to as "lightning."

Lightning seeks the path of least resistance; usually striking objects nearest the cloud mass. It is for this reason that isolated trees and those that tower above other trees receive many lightning strikes. People standing in open areas, particularly on high ground are also good targets. In some locations, and particularly in dry weather, lightning will run along the ground for some distance to seek a good conductor. Thus people near wire fences, communication lines, or large masses of metal such as vehicles or field weapons become very good targets for a strike.

In some cases where people have been struck by lightning, they receive a massive charge and are killed outright, while others are only temporarily stunned and paralyzed. Prompt use of resuscitation and treatment for shock may restore breathing in these cases. It is most important that a person stunned by lightning get medical treatment as quickly as possible.

There are certain things you should know in the event that you are caught in a thunderstorm. The most dangerous time is just before the storm when dark clouds appear and the air feels charged with electricity. Observers have reported that in many death cases, it was the first stroke of lightning which killed a victim.

If you are outdoors and your hair begins to feel as though it were standing on end, fall flat on the ground immediately. Get into a ditch or other depression, if possible, for you are a prime target for lightning. Some dangerous places to be caught during a thunderstorm are on a beach, in a boat, on high open ground, on a gold course, under an isolated tree, near a wire fence or communication lines, or riding on top of equipment.

The following safety precautions are based on the characteristics of lightning:

- Avoid flat, open fields or bare hilltops. If you are unavoidably caught in such a situation, lie flat on the ground, thus reducing the "target height" and chances of being struck.
- Avoid single, isolated trees or poles in large open spaces, or if in a wooded area, avoid the highest trees.
- Avoid large masses of isolated metal in open fields (i.e., mounted guns, fieldpieces, wire fences, and vehicles (except rubber tired vehicles which usually prevent injury, because the tires insulate the vehicles from the ground.)
- Do not huddle together in a group if you are caught in a flat open space on a bare hilltop. Scatter to reduce the attraction of lightning to a mass of bodies.
- Avoid standing near outer walls, waterpipes, wiring, or tall chimneys. (Buildings do afford some protection from lightning, particularly if grounded or if the outer walls and roof surfaces are wet.)
- Disconnect the lead-in wire to switchboards and telephones unless a tactical situation prohibits.
- Do not lie underneath a vehicle. Due to the insulating effect of vehicle tires, a body under a vehicle may become the path of an electrical charge from the vehicle to the ground. Get away from the vehicle or get inside, if possible.
- Disperse quickly if in a crowd on bleachers, especially if the bleachers are metal or metal supported.
- Get off or out of the water immediately upon the approach of a thunderstorm.
- Avoid carrying golf clubs over the shoulder or taking cover under isolated trees if caught while playing golf.
- Avoid carrying weapons over the shoulder while hunting or training during approaching storms.
- If you practice these precautions, nature's artillery is not apt to select you as its target.

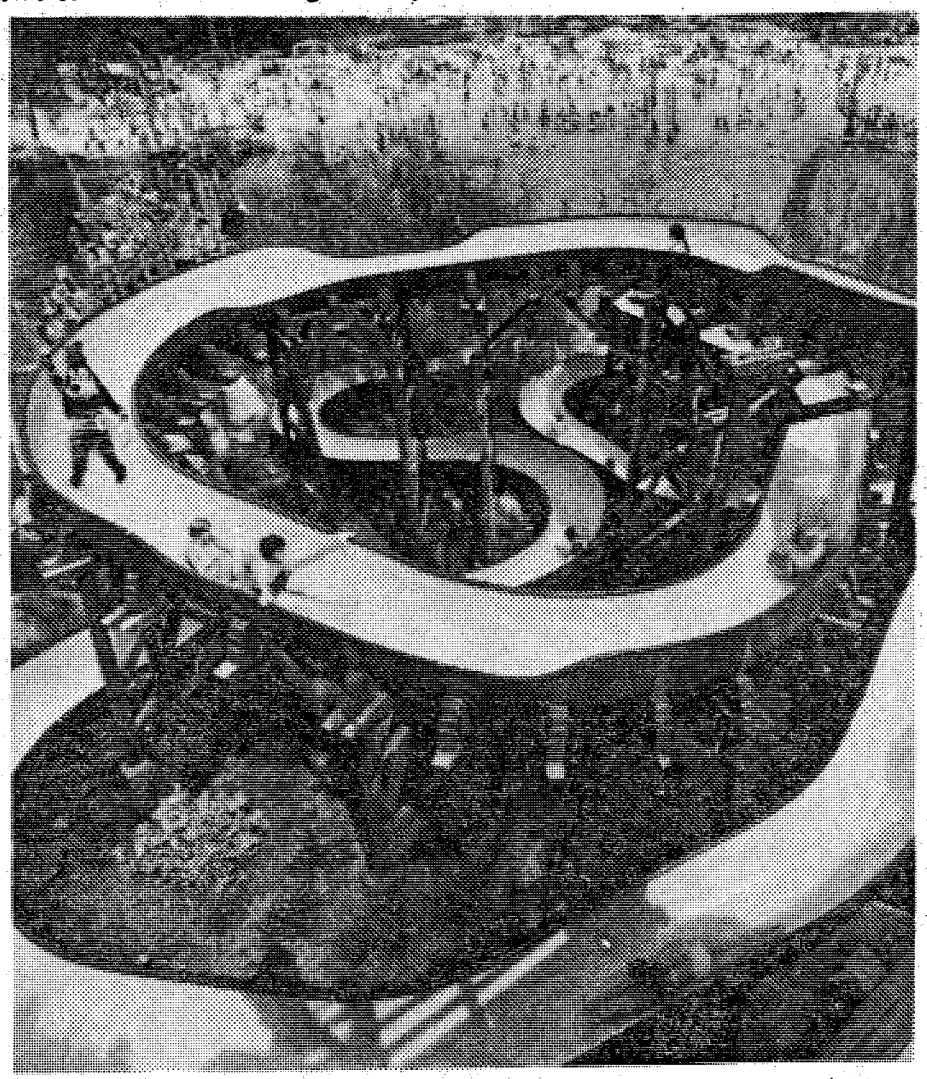
automatically by CHAMPUS at the eighth visit. If approved for continuation, it again is reviewed automatically at the 24th visit, although more frequent review may be made. At a maximum of 60 visits, the case must be referred for peer review before further care can be authorized.

The review requirement is new to the program. It results from recommendations by members of the psychiatric care community.

Surgical Assistance by a Physician

CHAMPUS will share the cost for surgical assistance by a physician provided that the procedure was complex enough to require a surgical assistant to be present and that a qualified intern or resident was not available. The Regulation imposes these restrictions as part of its overall emphasis on assuring that CHAMPUS pays only for care that is necessary.



A claim for services provided by a surgical assistant will be referred automatically for medical review if it involves one of the following circumstances:

- The surgery was performed in a hospital that has a residency program in a specialty appropriate to the surgery
- The surgery was performed by a team of surgeons
- There was more than one surgical assistant
- The surgical ssistant was a partner of the attending surgeon
- The surgical assistant was from the same group of practicing physicians as the attending surgeon.

Disney World sponsors Armed Forces Days

Tubing down White Water Rapids and sliding headlong down a 260 foot water flume are just two of the thrills awaiting military families at River Country, during Walt Disney World's Armed Forces Days, May 21-June 5.

River Country, the Vacation Kingdom's water recreation attraction, opened last summer to rave reviews. This year an enlarged beach and guest facilities have been added to handle guests seeking the fun and relaxation of the 'Ol' Swimmin Hole.'

Come join the fun at River Country! Goofy experiences the exciting adventures awaiting military families who visit Walt Disney World's River Country, during Armed Forces Days, May 21-June 5.

Located at Ft. Wilderness, just across Bay Lake from the Magic Kingdom, River Country offers military personnel and their families a water-filled day in the sun at special military rates during Armed Forces Days in addition to the established thrill of the Magic Kingdom's adventures.

Just minutes away from both Ft. Wilderness and the Magic Kingdom is another new attraction for service personnel, the riverboat Empress Lilly. It rises above Disney's Lake Buena Vista Village. Elegantly appointed, as were the sternwheelers which plied the Mississippi a century ago, the newly-opened Empress Lilly houses fine restaurants, lounges and a showbar.

Rich hand-rubbed wood finishes, complemented by custom-designed carpets, velvet drapes and crystal chandeliers highlight the 'Lilly's' interiors. Carefully selected antiques of the romantic era of the riverboats add a nostalgic touch to the full-sized vessel which is permanently moored in Lake Buena Vista Lagoon.

Adjacent to the Disney Village's 29 shops and restaurants is the Lake Buena Vista Hotel Plaza. Here overnight military guests will find a special accommodation rate of $29 per room at the Dutch Inn.

At Ft. Wilderness Campground military guests are offered a special $12 per site rate during Armed Forces Days.

A single-price Armed Forces Days tie-on ticket will cover admission, use of the Walt Disney World Transportation System and unlimited use of the 45 Magic Kingdom adventures (except Shootin' Gallery). River Country requires a separate admission at a special price of $3.50 for adults and $2.50 for children.

Tomorrowland's exciting Space Mountain, Hall of Presidents, Pirates of the Caribbean and Country Bear Jamboree are just a few of the adventures awaiting military families during the two week military event.

Scheduled performances by top military bands and drill teams will add to the Magic Kingdom enterta nment during the salute to the nation's military men and woman and their families. Military retirees and reservists, as well as DOD civilians and their families are encouraged to join the fun.

Advance sale Magic Kingdom tickets are available through the ITT Office, Doughboy Stadium for $6.25. Tickets purchased at Walt Disney World during Armed Forces Days will be $7.00.

Cherokees return to Georgia

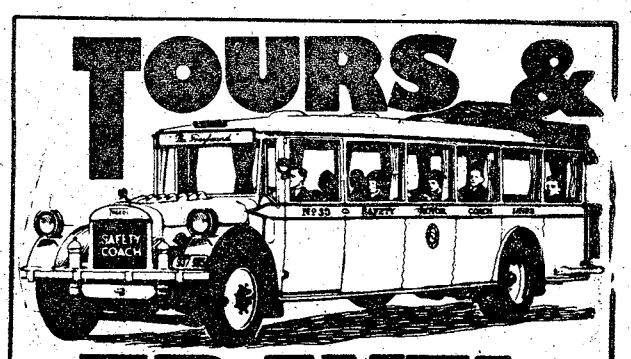
By Betty Zimmerman

The Cherokee Indians of Georgia will hold a council meeting at Columbus' Flat Rock Park on May 7. The colorful ceremonies will be open to the public with no charge.

The Cherokee association will relight the council fire which was extinguished in 1838 during the "Trail of Tears," when the Cherokees were forcibly moved by the federal government to Oklahoma. These ceremonies will begin at 6 p.m. and will include Indian dances, weddings, initiations, and presentations of peace pipes and clan beads to various dignitaries.

According to Principal Chief J. C. Whitecloud Reynolds and Vice Principal Chief Jim Big Oak Lower, the relighting of the council fire signifies the return of the Cherokee nation to Georgia.

Mrs. Fern Sluder, wife of SFC Roy Sluder, will be a guest of honor because she is the great, great granddaughterof Kowa Chief Stumbling Bear. His tribe was the first to sign and honor a peace treaty in the Oklahoma area and he was the only Indian Chief to be commissioned as a two-star general in the United States Cavalry.



The Kiowa's were the original owners of Ft. Sill, Okla. and only recently received their last payment from the government for this property. Mrs. Sluder is a native of Lawton, Okla. and very active in Indian affairs, not only of her nation but of all nations that she comes across during her Army travels.

The Kiowas were a peaceful tribe as portrayed in the Elvis Presley movie, "Flaming Star," in 1960. Mrs. Sluder was technical director for this film because of her historical knowledge of the Kiowas. She is also considered an expert in her tribe's major crafts which are featherwork, leatherwork and beadwork.

The mother of three grown children believes it is important to preserve their heritage by teaching all Indian children their native language, crafts and customs. But the dark-haired princess laughingly remarked, "I'm not against progress. I'm Indian, proud of my heritage, but I couldn't do without my television."

Fern Sluder talks about the history of her tribe with a bust of her great, great grandfather, Chief Stumbling Bear, in the background.

I attended a lively meeting of the local chapter of the North American Radio Sideband Association the other week. This is a well-organized group dedicated to single sideband use on the CB channels. At this month's meeting, eight new members were admitted and a resolution was passed adopting the Metropolitan Animal Shelter as a club project for fund-raising. If you're interested in finding out more about SSB or the NARSA, watch this column for announcements of future meetings.

The Federal Communications Commission has published a list of "trigger violations" which will receive top priority for investigation. The six violations are:

Failure to use an FCC Call sign

Use of a linear amplifier

Use of channels other than the 40 allowed for CB

Using CB to violate State, local or federal laws

Working skip

Using obscene or profane language

An FCC spokesman pointed out that for all but the indecent language violation the penalty could go as high as $500 a day, although it is usually only $100. Use of obscene or profane language is a criminal violation and carries a penalty of a year in jail and a fine of $10,000.

So if you're involved in one of these violations, or thinking about it, just keep looking over your shoulder for Uncle Charlie.

Pumper No. 1 responds to high school fire

By Marshall Jones

A fire in the gymnasium at Chavala High School near Seale, Alabama broke out Monday afternoon while occupied by students playing basketball.

The fire started in an upstairs supply room containing athletic and other equipment. No injures were reported as all students and faculty were quickly evacuated.

The Ft. Benning Fire Department received a call from Ft. Mitchell to assist volunteer units from Ft. Mitchell, Seale and Phenix City in controlling the blaze.

Pumper No. 1 left Ft. Benning's Fire Company at 1:20 p.m. and arrived at Seale to find the fire already under control.

Fire Depatment Captain Lloyd Johns, driver, Walter Screws and fireman, Danny Grantham assisted the other firefighers in clearing the building of smoke and assuring that the blaze was completely out.

The Ft. Benning firemen returned to post at 4:10 p.m. Johns said the building, constructed of brick, steel and wood, had apparently stuffered severe damage from the fire.

legal briefs

The Georgia and Alabama state legislatures have adopted without substantial modification the Uniform Commercial Code. This document is the product of the labors of many great judicial scholars. It is designed to offer protection to the average consumer as well as perpetuate our existing commercial system. We shall discuss in this article just a few of the protections afforded each and every one of you as consumers.

Let us suppose that you desire to purchase a good. The term "good" represents any type or kind of movable property which you may purchase. Further suppose that when you are at the seller's place of business discussing the qualities of this good you tell him that you intend to use it in a very particular way and that it must be able to perform a specific function.

For example, you need an air conditioning unit which will cool a 1500 sq. ft. area to a constant temperature of 74 degrees, otherwise your valuable orchids will perish. You make this fact perfectly clear to the seller, and he indicates that his product will do the job. During this discussion the seller also tells you that his product is the most efficient one on the market because it uses 30 per cent less electricity than any other brand. Due to the very high cost of electricity and the impending crunch, this statement by the seller does the trick and induces you to purchase this particular product.

When the good fails miserably, what recourse do you as a dissatisfied consumer have against the seller? If there has been an explicit oral or written representation by the seller of an affirmation of fact or promise which relates to the good, the seller may have created an expressed warranty, which provides you with a cause of action against him. The seller will most surely claim that his words, oral or written, upon which you are relying were a mere "puff" and should not be construed as creating an expressed warranty.

This becomes a question of fact which the courts may have to decide. Should you find yourself in this predicament, you should consult your legal assistance attorney as soon as possible. He will be happy to furnish you with advice. Remember that it is not necessary for the seller even to mention the word warrants in order to create an expressed warranty.

In our example the seller's conduct in furnishing you the air condltioner after he became aware of the particular requirements for which you needed the machine, probably caused the creation of an implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose. In order for this type of warrnaty to arlse, the seller must have reason to know your particular purpose, the seller must know that you are relying on his (the seller's) skill to furnish appropriate goods, and you must in fact rely on the seller's knowledge. This is a complicated legal situation, so you should consult your legal assistance attorney when you feel you are in a bind.

There is always an implied warranty of merchantability when a merchant sells goods to a buyer. This means that when the goods sold were not of the usual kind which would pass without objection in the trade and were not fit for the ordinary purpose for which they were designed the seller has wronged you. This warranty is less specific than the implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose.

It is necessary that the buyer who seeks a legal remedy for goods sold to him by a seller which do not meet this standard prove some damage or injury. It should also be noted that when you purchse food at a restaurant you are purchasing "goods." The implied warranty of merchantability comes into play in this situation. So if you swallow a nail which was in the milk shake you ordered at the restaurant and you suffer injury, you have a right to seek a remedy from the seller.

You should be aware that when you enter into a contract to buy goods all warranties may be disclaimed by the merchant seller. If the contract contains words such as "as is," then the seller probably has disclaimed all implied warranties.

You must also be aware that the term such as "as is" or "with all faults" need not be printed in bold type in order to be effective. The seller may disclaim the implied warranty of merchantability in writing or orally so long as he specifically mentions merchantability and, if written, the disclaimer must be in large print. The implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose must be disclaimed in writing, but the seller need use no magic words such as specifically mentioning the particular purpose.

We have discussed many complex legal issues with which only your attorney is able to help you. The important thing is that you realize that as a consumer you may be protected. If you have real questions concerning your consumer affairs, there is a legal assistance attorney in the Staff Judge Advocate's Office ready and willing to help you. Happy shopping, and we hope you get what you bargained for.

bunkers and several Russian tank and APC positions. It will be used in training by post soldiers as part of a new Army program to have soldiers know their likely enemy better.

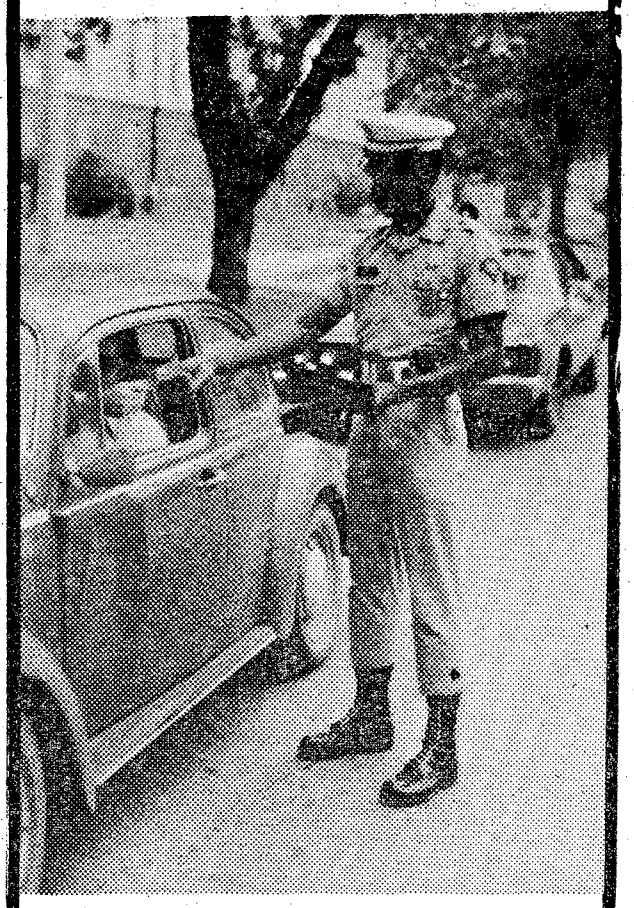
An aerial view of the strongpoint defensive in early stages of construction.

According to Domal, this construction endeavor provided excellent training for the 43rd combat engineers. "As this is the type of work we can be expected to perform in combat, it gave us the opportunity to demonstrate our capabilities," the colonel emphasized. "And the men of the 43rd were up for the challenging construction feat."

Maj. Ray Vejar, the chief of the Internal Defense and Development Branch of the Infantry School's Tactics Department has developed a scenario of Russian defensive tactics for use in Army training programs and the department is preparing presentation on the best methods to counter the strongpoint. "These countering techniques consider equipment now in the battalion inventory as well as equipment being developed for future use," an official said.

Methods for the reduction of the Soviet strongpoint will be demonstrated to a group of high ranking officers on May 11, after which, the site will be utilized as a training device for Infantry students at Benning.

E5/6 date of rank changes



DA has changed the way it computes dates of rank for soldiers who are up for promotion to E-5 or E-6.

The change will affect primary and secondary zone hikes for these individuals.

DA officials say that dates of rank are now based on the score that troopers make on the 1,000-point promotion worksheet kept at the unit. Soldiers with the highest worksheet scores will get the earlierst montly dates of rank.

Soldiers earn worksheet points for military and civilian schooling, EERs, MOS test scores, decorations, time in grade and time in service.

Drivers beware!

The crackdown on moving traffic violations will continue on Ft. Benning. Radar surveillance of post traffic and an increase in personnel committed to traffic enforcement has been stepped up. Drivers on post beware! The MPs are everywhere.

Service Notes

RMC tax advantage clarified

One of the least understood things about regular military Compensation (RMC) is the tax advantage resulting from the soldier's tax-free BAQ and subsistence allowances. Many people have a tendency to think of it as "tax avoided" instead of "tax advantage." Tax advantage is the additional income a military member would have to earn, if all pay and allowances were fully taxable, to yield the same takehome pay. To put it another way, it is the additional amount a civilian must earn to realize the same takehome pay as a military member. With tax time coming soon, RMC provides some pleasant food for thought. (ARNEWS)

Getting ready to retire?

The Army pays an authorized travel allowance from the last duty station to the home of record. But it can be paid from the last duty station to the home of selection — if travel is completed within one year from date of retirement from active duty. Home of selection travel is authorized if: you retire with eight or more years continuous active duty prior to retirement, if retirement is due to a physical disability and the retiree is placed on the Temporary Disability Retired List. Payment of all travel expenses for the soldier and dependents is made after completion of travel. (ARNEWS)

AMU soldier takes Trap, Skeet Championship

Sp4 Dan Carlisle of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit at Ft. Benning garnered the Interservice International Trap and Skeet Championships on successive weekends to accomplish the extremely rare feat of winning both titles in one year.

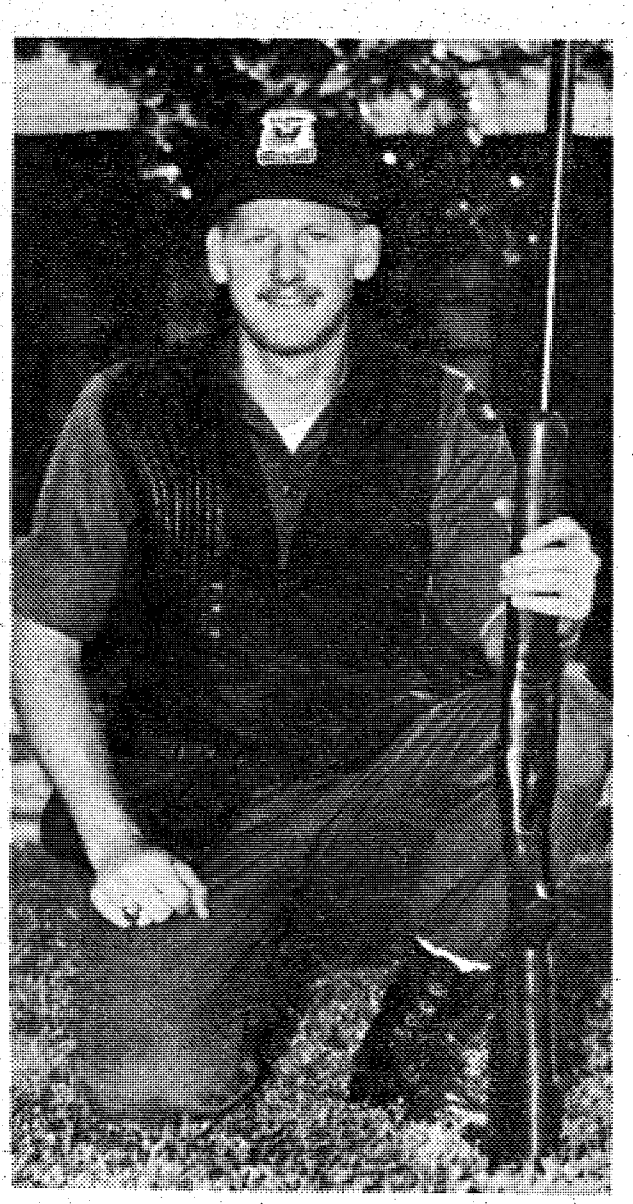
Carlisle began his dual feat by breaking 289 out of 300 birds then 25 out of 25 in a shootoff to lay claim to the trap title on April 10. Last weekend he fired a blistering 297 out of 300 to take the skeet title and set a new interservice record. The 21-year-old shotgunner from Houston, Tex., blasted seven straight perfect 25-bird-rounds, including a perfect second-day score of 100, in his march to victory in the three-day match.

Winning tournaments is nothing new to Dan Carlisle. He won a gold medal at the Benito Juarez Shooting Championships in Mexico City last year and is a member of the world record-holding U. S. Trap Team.

Pvt. Randy Voss teamed with Carlisle to win the trap team title. Sp4 Joseph Clemmons served as Carlisle's partner to win the skeet team match and take second place himself.

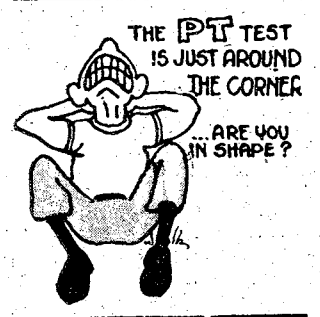
Maj. Lones Wigger, two-time Olympic gold medalist, exhibited his dominance in the Interservice International rifle competition by winning five out of the six events. Wigger's victories came in the English Match (598), Standard Rifle (579), Smallbore Free Rifle (1161), 300 meter Free Rifle (1154) and 300 meter Standard Rifle (575) events, leaving only the Air Rifle Match up for grabs. Lt. (AR) Ed Etzel won that match with 389 over teammate Sp4 Karen Monez who had 382. Wigger's 575 in the 300 meter Standard Rifle was a new interservice record eclipsing the 572 record set by Reserve Capt. John Writer just last year.

USAMU won five of six rifle team titles.



The pistol laurels were split three ways between the Army Reserve, National Guard and U. S. Army Marksmanship Unit.

Reserve SSgt. Frank Goza won the Free Pistol Match with a three-day aggregate of 1654 out of 1800 points. Teammate Sp5 Jerry Wilder added the Reserves' second victory in the Air Pistol event with a winning score of 1150 out of 1200.



Lt. (NG) Terry Anderson won Rapid Fire Pistol with a score of 1755 out of 1800.

USAMU's SFC Bonnie Harmon, three-time National Pistol Champion, fired 1742 out of 1800 to win the Standard Pistol title. SGM Emil Heugatter, also of USAMU, narrowly edged Harmon 1768 to 1767 to take the final match, the Center Fire Pistol event. USAMU took the Rapid Fire Pistol, Center Fire and Standard Pistol team titles leaving the Reserves with team wins in the Free Pistol and Air Pistol.

Capt. (AR) Mike Theimer romped to his fourth consecutive Interservice Running Target Championship with a score of 1697 out of 1800. Theimer has completely dominated the U. S. Running Target scene since 1974. He spent three years as a member of the USAMU Running Target Team and was a member of the U. S. Olympic Team to Montreal. He won his fourth consecutive national championship just last weekend.

Sp4 Daniel Carlisle, of the US Army Marksmanship Unit, won this years Interservice Trap and Skeet Championship.

The Ft. Benning Youth Activities Judo Club dominated the Georgia District Junior Olympics held in Atlanta on the 16th of April. Benning dependents placed in every weight and age class for which they had an entry.

For youngsters age 6 through 9, the district trials are the top of the competitive ladder, and the Ft. Benning winners earned the satisfaction of knowing they won the top honors possible for their class.

Qualifiers in the 10 through 18 age bracket will move on to the 5-state Regional Championships, held in Memphis, Tenn., May 21. Winners of the Regionals compete for National Junior Olympic Multisport Championships at the University of Nebraska this fall.

The Ft. Benning Judo Club is directed by LtCol. (Ret.) and Mrs. C. T. Keaton. A new class for beginners starts at 6 p.m. June 7, at Building 2592.

Can't give you any poop on the Georgia State Bass Championship this week. Mainly because I haven't gathered the necessary information. I promise to give you a complete readout next week. Bear with me now folks, the tournament was still in progress at press time.

If you're going fishing this weekend, my advise is to try some of the ponds on the reservation. Some nice catches are being hauled out of Kings, Harps and Weems Ponds. All species seem to be biting good in these ponds now. Let me know how you do.

Bass are moving up many of the feeder creeks down river. Try spinner baits in shallow water back up in some of these creeks and you might get your arm broken.

I've alerted the emergency room at Martin Army Hospital and they'll be standing by to take care of all casualties. Those 'Hawgs' can get mighty vicious at times. You might also take along a good first aid kit.

Crappie and Stripes are slacking off a bit down river. If you haven't tried it before, now is the time to night fish for these pesky little rascals. Fish with minnows at 6-8 feet of depth and you should haul them in. Be careful out there at night now. Keep safety in mind. Make sure you know what you're doing when you fool around with those lanterns. Don't say I didn't tell you.

Those annoying WACs in Bldg 4 seem to be good at almost anything except the great outdoors. One was bragging to me the other day about how she went 'Turkey hunt.' That's her words, not mine. She also said she goes 'fish' every now and then. Oh well, that's women for you. Heaven forbid.

Hey gang, the fuzz are out. They're writing tickets right and left for expired boat trailer inspection tickets. It's 18 bucks folks. Believe me I know from experience. A word to the wise, each weekend traffic check points are established by the Highway Patrol around the local area. Let's get those stickers up to date.

Ponder this until next week: Great minds discuss ideas, mediocre minds discuss events and small minds discuss personalities.

Tips for safe night driving

1. Always lock your doors, both when you're away from your car and while you're driving.

2. Travel with your fuel tank at least half full so that you won't run out of gas.

3. Park under a light in a shopping center parking area or on the street.

4. Approach your car from an angle which allows you to check underneath it for waiting assailants.

5. Check the inside of your car before unlocking the door. Someone with a passkey may have gained entrance and be waiting for you.

6. Tell someone at home your estimated time of arrival so that if you're later than you planned, he or she can check your route or alert the authorities.

7. Plan alternate routes to use in case of traffic or weather tie-up. Drive these routes during daylingt if possible so that your alternate route won't be in unfamiliar neighborhoods.

8. Drive in the center lane when possible, avoiding the outside or shoulder lanes where trouble can occur more easily.

9. Listen to your radio (or CB) for traffic conditions.

10. Use your flashers at the first sign of trouble, even while you're still driving in the traffic lanes.

11. Carry a handkerchief, flashers, or some means to alert traffic if you're disabled, and remember to raise the hood of your vehicle to signal trouble.

12. Remain in your car with the windows closed until a wrecker, police car, or other safety vehicle arrives to help.

13. Keep your car properly maintained and in good running condition. Check the fluid levels (gas, transmission and brake fluids, engine oil, wiper fluid, and water in battery) frequently. Make sure windshield wiper blades and headlights work properly, the heating and defrosting system are operating to keep the windows clear, and the tires have enough tread to provide traction on slippery surfaces.

Shooters reveal green thumbs

Each of the last three springs has signaled an increasing flurry of gardening activity in the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit. The "unit garden" has blossomed from its original ten plots to this year's 52 plots covering almost three acres.

The garden plots are more than just a leisurely pastime to most of the latter-day farmers. Pride, economy and simply the wonder of planting seeds and watching them grow are all part of the satisfaction which stems from this annual agricultural endeavor. Nothing tastes better than vegetables which have sprung from soil nurtured by your own hands.

MSgt. John Nettles worked the garden plots over with his rototiller before the planting was begun.

The first year's effort was less than spectacular — frost, too little lime, too much fertilizer, too many weeds. It appeared that 'a good rifle shot doth not a farmer make.' But last year, the veteran farmers produced bumper crops of everything from beans to zucchini, thanks to soil testing, weed control and a lot of hard work.

In order to provide expert advice to the unit's 28 after-duty gardners, LtCol. Buck Russell, Chief of the Competitive Division and "chief gardener," invited Mr. Emory Hambrick, formerly head of Callaway Gardens' vegetable garden, to speak to the "garden club." Mr. Hambrick's talk and slide show on soil preparation, insect and weed control, and seed selection will certainly bear fruit in the form of luscious vetetables gracing the tables of all the gardeners this summer.

With the price of vegetables sky high and most tomatoes tasting like the cardboard they are wrapped in, it is little wonder that gardening has become the number one leisure pastime of the "Champions of AMU."

Reservist wins Running Target Championships

The 17th annual U.S. Running Target National Championships were held at Ft. Benning April 14-17, with Capt. (AR) Louis Theimer III, of Wichita Falls, Tex. winning his fourth straight National title.

Capt. Theimer put together scores of 564,572 and 557 to dominate the championships with a total of 1,693 points. MSgt. Charles Davis, a member of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit and a native of Hazard, Ky., finished in second place with 1,686 points while Mr. John Anderson of Phoenix, Ariz. scored 1,658 points to edge Maj. (AR) Donald Harmon of Ochoppe, Fla., for third position. Maj. Harmon scored 1,653 points to finish in fourth place ahead of SSgt. Jim Reiber of USAMU.

Sp5 Diane Klimas, USAMU, won the High Lady award and set a new Army record for women in single day competition with a score of 484 points.

In the final day's "Mixed Runs" competition, John Anderson won his first national Running Target Championship by scoring 377 points to edge veteran competitor MSgt Davis by two points. Former World Champion MSgt. (Ret.) Loyd Crow of Columbus, won third place with 372 points.

In team competition, the U.S. Army Reserve Gold Team of Theimer, Harmon, and Majors Weldon Griggs and Tommy Pool won both standard and mixed team titles with scores of 1,438 and 1,454 points. The U.S. Army Blue squad of Davis, Reiber, LtCol. Harry Lucker and Sgt. Robert George finished in second place with 1,435 and 1,445 points.

This year's championships were hosted by the AMU and sponsored by the National Rifle Association. Mr. Michael Tipa, of the International Shooting Committee, announced the team of Capt. Theimer, MSgt. Davis, Mr. Anderson and Maj. Harmon would represent the United States during the Championship of the Americas International Shooting Championships to be held in Mexico City this November.

Donating can save a life & make you feel good

By Marie Russo

"Hardly anyone ever fainted from it," says Maj. David Cortenay, chief clinical laboratory officer at MAH. "Any of the adverse side effects come more from fear and anxiety rather than from actually doing it."

Another fallacy of donating blood is that you sit around for hours waiting, and then once the process is started, it is a long and painful one.

In reality it only takes 45 minutes to an hour from the time you walk into the donor center until the time you are finished.

The first thing that you do is to fill out a donor history card which is a medical questionaire. Then a limited physical examination is performed. This is nothing more than having your temperature, pulse, blood pressure and a blood sample taken.

After this is done you are ready to donate a pint of blood, and you don't have to lay on a table for hours with a needle in your arm. It only takes from five to seven minutes to draw a pint of blood. For the next 15 to 20 minutes you can wait in a rest area where refreshments are served.

Cortenay stated that the Pathology Department strongly advises that a donor have the remainder of the day off or at least be relieved from all strenuous activity such as running or marching.

Many donors feel a sense of personal satisfaction from donating —

"I came here today because it makes me feel great to know my blood may save some little kid's life," said one AIT soldier of Co. D., 2nd Bn, who donated a pint of blood Tuesday.

Another donor said, "My wife needed blood once but they didn't have enough of her kind and she almost died. So I figure it's worth an hour of my time to help save someone else's life."

"I donate blood every eight weeks. I feel good knowing I'm helping my post save lives and money," said one Ranger.

When the post's blood supply runs low, blood has to be purchased from outside sources. "We have over 20,000 troops here and should be able to support our own program," the lab chief emphasized.

You may be helping yourself and your family by donating to the post's blood bank. The post's supply is used strictly for active military, retired members, and their dependents.

A blood drive is held every Tuesday from 8 a.m. to noon at the blood donor center in Bldg. 5294 which is located in the AIT area. There is also a mobile unit which goes to the major units here on Thursdays. Its operating hours are also from 8 a.m. to noon. Additional information can be obtained by calling the blood donor center at 544-7324.

"If I ever needed blood, I would want someone to give for me," said Pvt. James Holland, Co D, 3rd Bn, 1st AIT Bde, as PFC Gregory Buck, MEDDAC assists him in donating blood.

Program needs 'Big Brothers'

Do you realize the importance of a male figure with in a household? This seems to be something many of us take for granted.

Just imagine being 12-year-old and not having that fatherly guidance, or being rejected by your peers because you do not participate in sports simply because there is no one to teach you or help you understand. This rejection may create many psychological problems in a young man's development.

You can help this young man's dreams become his reality by volunteering a few hours per week. You don't have to be a "Walking Money Bag", just sincere and willing to share your time with a "Little Brother."

The Army Community Service Big Brother Progarm is a program designed for this purpose. It enables responsible male adults to have a little brother of their own. The boys participating in this program come from broken homes, fatherless families, and from homes whose father is presently serving a tour overseas.

Help our future leaders become healthy productive young men. Please contact ACS Big Brother Coordinator at 545-1233.

Doughboys face Livingston in opener

The Ft. Benning Doughboys open the 1977 football season against a strong Livingston University team on Saturday night at 7:30 p.m. in Doughboy Stadium.

The Livingston Tigers represent the toughest challenge the Doughboys have faced since their reorganization for the 1976 season. Admission will be $1 for adults and $.50 for children under 15. Bring the entire family.

Quoting head coach Jack Barham, "The worth of all the many hours of practice, the lumps and bruises and the denial of other activities that the players have accepted as the price of representing Ft. Benning on the gridiron will show in the number of people who come out to support the Doughboy team."

Col. John Henchman is presented his fourth award of the Legion of Merit by MajGen. William J. Livsey during retirement ceremonies held at York Field Wednesday. Henchman, former chief of staff of the U.S. Army Infantry Center, is leaving the Army after more than 26 years service. See Page 2 for a story on Henchman's career and his message to the community.

Chief of Staff retires after 26 years service

A retirement ceremony for Col. John Henchman, former chief of staff of the U.S. Army Infantry Center, was held on York Field in front of Infantry Hall Wednesday, at 9 a.m.

Col. Henchman was Chief of Staff from September 2, 1975 until August 16, 1977.

Host officer for the ceremony was Maj. Gen. William J. Livsey. Upon his retirement, Col. Henchman was presented the Legion of Merit, his fourth award of that decoration.

Henchman bids community adieu

Wednesday, I completed more than 26 years service to this great Country of ours. It has been a time of great personal satisfaction.

As I left Benning Thursday morning, I knew there were many soldiers, noncommissioned officers, officers and civilians — all friends — that I had not had an opportunity to see before I departed.

I want each of you and your families to know that my duties as Deputy Commander and Chief of Staff were made much easier by your devotion to duty, and your willingness to pull up your socks and get going when the going got tough. Our Army is only as good as those who serve it. From what I see — from the AIT soldier struggling to become an Infantryman to the fine old soldiers and civilians who have served so long — our Infantry and our contribution to the Combined Arms are in good hands. I depend on you all to keep it that way.

To one and all, Betty and I leave our very best wishes for your every success. We shall not forget our days under the Shadow of the Infantryman Statue and all it means.

JOHN M. HENCHMAN
Colonel, U. S. Army Retired

Born in Burbank, Calif, on May 4, 1928, Henchman is a graduate of Hollywood High School, Los Angeles, and attended the University of California at Davis and Berkeley, majoring in botany. After transferring to the University of Washington, from which he was graduated in 1951, he was named an ROTC Distinguished Military Graduate and was commissioned as an Infantryman in the Regular Army on June 15, 1951.

Among his more recent assignments are: duty as executive officer, 1st Brigade, 25th Division; commander, 4th Battalion, 9th Infantry; and chief of staff, 1st Logistical Command, all in Vietnam.

In 1968 and 1969 he attended the Industrial College of the Armed Forces and then served three years in the Office of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

In 1972, he activated and commanded the 9th Infantry Division Support Command for 27 months. Moving to Alaska in June 1974, he was the deputy chief of staff for logistics, U.S. Army, Alaska. After its reorganization, he was the director of Industrial Operations, 172d Arctic Light Infantry Brigade (Alaska), and then became a deputy brigade commander.

His decorations include the Silver Star, the Legion of Merit with three Oak Leaf Clusters, the Bronze Star Medal, the Meritorious Service Medal and the Air Medal with V Device and two Oak Leaf Clusters.

Col. Henchman leaves the Army for a position as parish administrator in the Catholic Archdiocese of Seattle. The Henchman family plans to live in Olympia, Wash.

Army to study women during REFORGER 77

In a study related to the "MAX WAC" force development test, the Army Research Institute for the Behavioral and Social Sciences (ARI), will study the performance of women soldiers in REFORGER 77.

According to ARI staffers, some of the combat support units taking part in REFORGER contain 10 to 20 per cent women soldiers; these will give the Institute an exceptional opportunity to study the performance of the women in division-level exercises over an extended period of time.

The previous "MAX WAC" tests studied the effect of different percentages of women soldiers on small unit performance in 72-hour exercises.

The new research project, called "REF WAC" by the Institute, will gather data over a longer period of time and deal with larger units. Soldiers from CONUS installations taking part in REFORGER will be away from their home installations for about six weeks. Three weeks of that time will be spent under field condition in Germany.

"REF WAC" observer teams will collect data on the performance of women in a number of divisional combat support and combat service support units, including military police, signal, medical, transportation and maintenance units.

As a part of the study, units with a sizeable number of women will be compared with similar all-male units performing the same tasks. ARI will study the question of whether performance in an extended field exercise is affected more adversely by fatigue and stress in units containing women, compared with all-male units.

The ARI officials say the Army can expect to experience increasing difficulty in recruiting enough capable soldiers from the U.S. male population. One option open to the Army, say the staffers, is to increase the number of women soldiers in combat support and combat service support units. Present Army policy is that women are not assigned in combat roles.

The combat support and combat service support units do have potential "combat" roles, since such units must sometimes provide their own perimeter security, security for truck convoys, and other combat-related functions. The ARI study will help determine if women soldiers can comprise a sizeable proportion of Army support units without impairing unit capability in accomplishing battlefield missions, say the ARI officials.

6 year service obligation to apply to women

The 1978 Department of Defense Appropriation Act, Public Law 95-79, established a six-year military service obligation for women. Male enlistees have had the six-year obligation for a number of years.

Effective February 1, the six-year obligation will affect any women enlisting in the military service on or after that date. Upon completing their enlistment contract, the women will become members of the Individual Ready Reserve (IRR) pending completion of the six-year obligation.

This action will begin to influence IRR strength in February 1981, as the first of these women enlistees complete their three-year enlistment contract.

If the current programed women strength level remains constant, the projected strength increase in the IRR would be about 6,000 annually.

Two wrongs don't make a right

have a waiting room full of people, says a TMC medic, "but after working here two years, I can say this — if 50 per cent of the soldiers who show up for sickcall on a given day are sick, its a rare day indeed!"

"After a while it's hard to keep from getting a bad attitude . . . day after day you see the same kind of people . . . hear the same talk while they wait . . . watch the same 'I beat the system' looks. To add to the problem, you can't stop a soldier from reporting to sickcall because there's no way a supervisor can refuse to let him/her go," another sickcall medic replied.

And, so the problems seem to be defined — the system of sickcall is being misused and the TMC staffs have bad attitudes — or could it be the former problem leads to the latter?

The TMC system is set up to support active duty personnel when they are "routinely" sick and in need of medical attention. Benning has twelve TMCs; two are operated at the Ranger Camps, one each at Dahlonega and Eglin AFB, Fla.; another operates at the post confinement facility; and the remaining nine clinics support the sickcall for the rest of the post.

The clinics are used as screening facilities so that specialty clinics at the hospital are not overloaded with cases that may not need to be seen by a physician.

When patients report to sickcall, they are screened by a medic, then if necessary are seen by a Physician's Assistant (PA). If the PA feels the individual cannot be adequately treated at the TMC, the patient is referred to one of the specialty clinics at the post hospital.

According to the LtCol. Edward Griep, officer in charge of the TMC system, the clinics are authorized quite a good-sized staff. However, less than three quarters of the slots are filled, so the medics available have to carry the extra work load.

One of the clinic NCOICs feels that younger members of his staff become frustrated with the added work load. Especially when "about one-third of the patients we see each day have nothing wrong with them," says PFC Jeffery Hill, a medical specialist.

"It ticks me off to know I have to see extra patients every day and work longer hours just because some soldiers don't like their duty that day . . .so they come to the clinic," added another specialist.

One medic says "I treat them all as if they are 'shamming' until I find something wrong with them. "Now, if that's a bad attitude . . .I guess I've got one."

When Griep was asked how he felt about the situation, he replied, "Medical specialists are not in a position to be rash. The one small symptom they may overlook could turn out to be very serious.

"It's not so much an attitude problem as it is one of moral," says one senior medical specialist. "The clinics aren't where soldiers should go when they can't handle the day's training schedule. Sickcall is for sick people. The clinics are not meeting places for free loaders."

"If soldiers didn't misuse sickcall privileges, the person in need of medical attention wouldn't have to wait hours for treatment," the colonel concluded.

Are you doing your part?

"Can't you even say 'Thank you'?"

Recently much clamor has been raised concerning the reduction in health care benefits and the shortage of doctors both Army-wide and particularly at Ft. Benning. The reason for the first has come about as a result of the second and the Army is doing all that is possible to rectify the situation. However, the question raised is — Are you doing your part?

In the strictest economic sense, a shortage is caused by either excess demand or insufficiently planned for inventories. In the market place two things can happen when a shortage develops — raise prices or increase production if marketing surveys indicate long-term increased demand.

Since the Army is working on increasing the number of doctors, wouldn't it be appropriate that those affected did their part by reducing excess demand in the interim?

Granted the only cost to the user is other than monetary, but is that sufficient reason to abuse the privilege?

Would you see a civilian doctor (at $10 or more a visit) for the same reasons you use sickcall or Martin Army Hospital?

Unlikely.

So why for the least significant of illnesses do military, their dependents and retired and their dependents feel obligated to drum up business for an already overworked, understaffed medical treatment facility? Many of the common maladies for which hospital visits are made could easily be attended to through the use of the Medical Advisory published by the hospital or via a telephone call to hospital staff members on duty for the purpose of relieving out-patient overloads.

Unless emergency room, clinic and sickcall misuses are curtailed, the problems will continue, forcing further reductions in health care.

This can ill be afforded.

However, an alternative solution is possible. Each individual must do his/her part to insure that this, a key military benefit, is not further eroded through ignorance or indifference.

The Alcoholic: A sick person who needs help

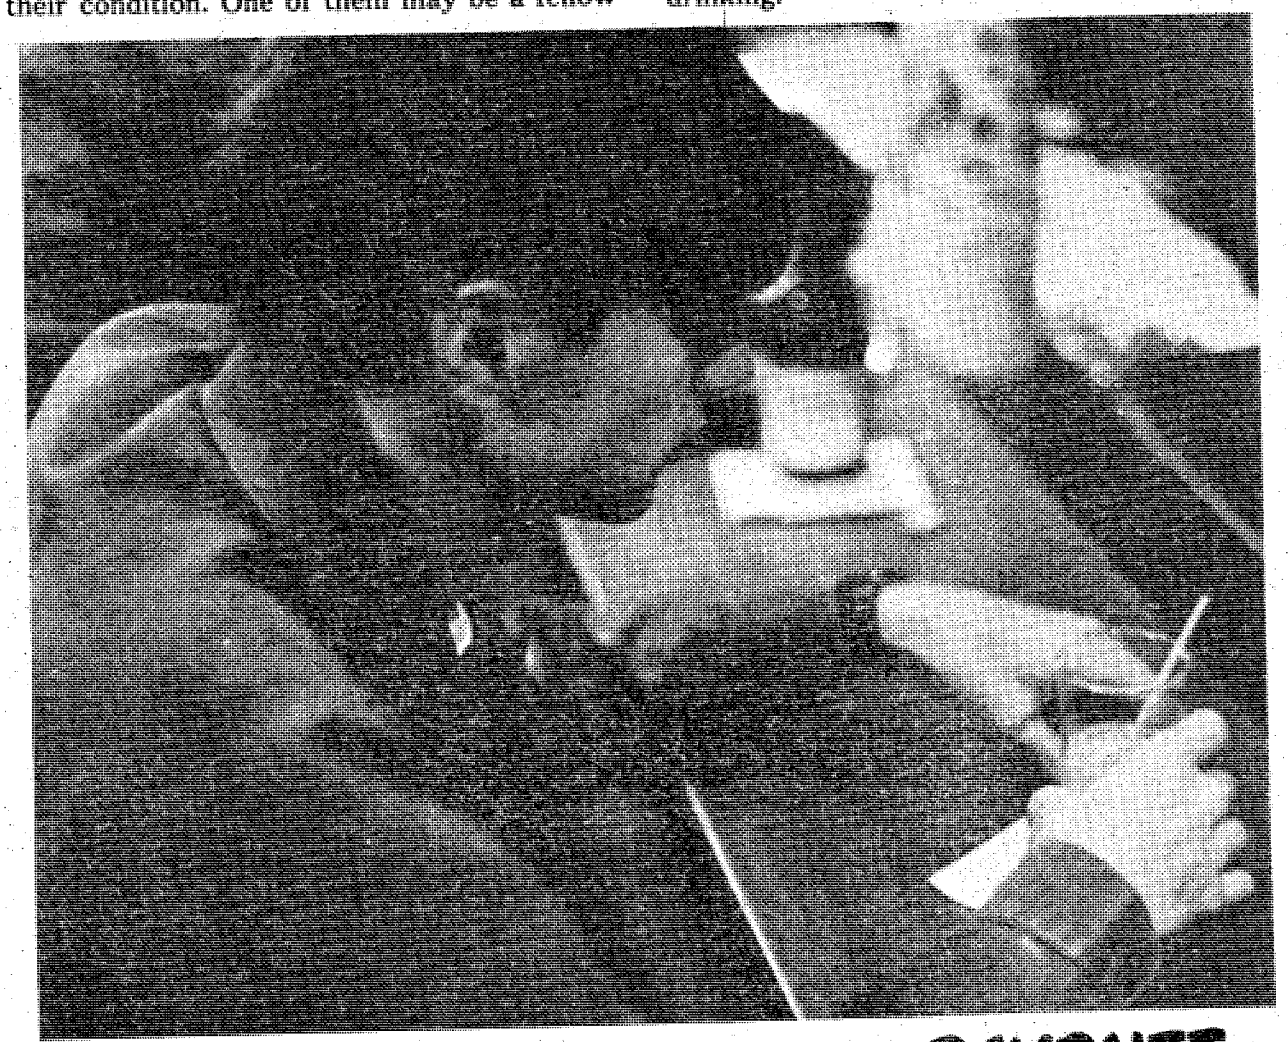
Alcoholism is a primary, progressive, chronic and fatal disease. It involves the whole person — physically, emotionally and spiritually.

Alcoholism is also a delusionary condition. It scrambles the mind of its victims. The very symptoms of the disease delude those afflicted into believing they are well people. It does this through a complicated mental alteration which causes them to rationalize abnormal behavior, project the blame for their behavior to others and repress those feelings which cannot be dealt with through rationalization or projection. Therefore, the victim won't do anything to correct his behavior because he doesn't see anything wrong with it.

The victim is not the only one deluded. Concerned friends who might help are "taken in" by statements made by the victim and by misconceptions they have concerning the nature of the disease.

Examine the statements below. Some of them may help you better understand the abnormal behavior of someone you know.

"I CAN'T BE AN ALCOHOLIC BECAUSE I'M NOT A SKIDROW BUM."



Less than three per cent of the alcoholics in this country reach skidrow. The other 97 to 98 per cent resort to extreme measures to hide their condition. One of them may be a fellow worker, the woman next door or the interesting man you talked to at the party last night.

Any person who drinks alcohol can become an alcoholic. So don't let the fact that a person still has a job, is making good money and still living at home fool you into thinking that alcoholism can't be causing serious problems.

Alcoholism is progressive. Anyone who has lost the ability to control the amount he drinks when he drinks has a drinking problem. If he doesn't alter his drinking habits, the problem will become worse.

"I CAN'T BE AN ALCOHOLIC BECAUSE I CAN QUIT ANY TIME I WANT TO."

More people have deluded themselves by this myth than by any other. People who can control their drinking don't have to quit, but the alcoholic goes "on the wagon" to prove to himself and others that he can control his drinking. Most alcoholics can manage to live for long periods without alcohol, but they aren't happy about it so they start again. When they do begin drinking again, they experience the same lack of control that caused them to go "on the wagon." The ability to "take it or leave it alone" isn't the real test. It's the ability to control intake once the individual starts drinking.

A more valid test would be to continue to drink but establish a limit (two or three) on the number of drinks in any one day. Anyone who can't adhere to these conditions for 60-90 days had better take a critical evaluation of his ability to control his drinking.

"I CAN'T BE AN ALCOHOLIC BECAUSE I DON'T DRINK BEFORE 5 P.M."

Many people believe no one is an alcoholic unless he has to have a drink in the morning. This is not true.

It is true that many alcoholics need a drink in the morning, but when one drinks is not as significant as the importance placed on the need and the ability of the person to control the amount he drinks. Anyone who often drinks more than he intended is in trouble. Anyone who "just has to have a drink" at 5 p.m. or at any time of day is also heading for trouble. Anyone who feels he "needs" a drink at any specific time of day needs to evaluate his drinking habits.

"I CAN'T BE AN ALCOHOLIC BECAUSE I NEVER DRINK ANYTHING BUT BEER."

Many people believe that low alcohol content in beer makes it "safe." No so. Ethyl alcohol is the chemical that causes alcoholism and there is about as much ethyl alcohol in a can of beer as there is in a four-ounce glass of wine or a one-shot ounce of whiskey.

Alcohol is burned up in the body by the liver. This is accomplished at a fixed rate. If alcohol is consumed faster than the liver can burn it up, intoxication takes place. How much alcohol you drink is not the important factor. The important factors are what it does to you and your ability to control the amount you drink.

"I CAN'T BE AN ALCOHOLIC BECAUSE I'M TOO YOUNG."

Many people believe that all alcoholics are fifty or sixty years old.

Age has little to do with alcoholism. What alcohol does to the individual and the amount of control the individual has over his intake determines the existence of problems.

The average age of members of Alcoholics Anonymous has dropped considerably in recent years. Many teenagers and young people in their 20s in the later stages of alcoholism are showing up in AA, hospitals and alcohol treatment centers.

Concerned people accept these myths as facts, then manufacture a few of their own. Most of these myths are contributing factors to the progression of alcoholism.

197th returns from Panamanian war games

By Jack De Lanoy

Soldiers of the 197th Inf Bde returned home last week from Ft. Sherman in the Canal Zone where they participated in tropical "wargaming" exercises at the Jungle Operations Training Center (JOTC).

During the three-week vigil, 618 troops representing the 3/7th Inf, 72nd Engr Co and the brigade's support battalion met the jungle head on in a fight for survival. Armed with basic Infantry skills, they navigated through dense jungle vegetation (day and night), lived off the land and faced an "opposing force" made up of units stationed in the Panamanian jungle.

"This type of training is right in line with our mission," said Lt Col. Roy Lombardo, commander of the 3/7th. "Since the 197th can be expected to defend the nation whenever and wherever it's called, the jungle becomes a possible area of deployment which must be understood and coped with."

The course of instruction was broken down into three phrases, beginning with a week of developing individual survival skills, followed by unit exercises and a five-day battalion operation against a "mock" enemy and the elements. Highlights of the three weeks included: instruction on survival techniques, waterborne and bridging operations, jungle casualty evacuation and resupply missions and tactical manuever in the tropics.

Billed as worthwhile experience, MSgt. Claude Gore praised the exercise and credited its success on the "Forever Forward" soldier's ability to work as a team, claiming, "When we put our minds and skills together, there's nothing the brigade can't accomplish."

The JOTC commandant echoed Gore's claim when he cited the 3/7th as achieving one of the best performance ratings in the school's history.

SOLDIERS most popular

Have you seen this month's SOLDIERS magazine?

SOLDIERS, the official U.S. Army magazine, is already the most popular Army magazine among soldiers, and surveys show that readership among both officers and enlisted men continues to climb.

But some soldiers don't read the magazine every month. The main reason they give is "I don't see every issue."

The problem appears to be in distribution, and the responsibility lies with each individual unit.

SOLDIERS is distributed free of charge to every Active Army unit on the basis of one copy for six individuals assigned (both officer and enlisted). However, to receive the magazine, each unit holding a pinpoint publications account must submit a DA Form 12-5 (Requirements for DA Periodicals) requesting the number of copies desired.

So if you haven't seen the latest SOLDIERS, check with your unit publications officer. Is the DA Form 12-5 current? Does it request one magazine for every six persons assigned?

Check it out. Help keep SOLDIERS on the magazine racks.

Springer Theatre Co. offers cultural growth

Are you aware that Columbus is favored among the cities of America to have live theatre in its enchanting, famed old Opera House?

The Springer Opera House Arts Alliance and the Springer Theatre Company entertains and is supported by the cultural community of which Ft. Benning is an integral part. However, according to Staff Judge Advocate Col. Bob Poydasheff, the first military officer to be elected to the boards of both the Springer Opera House Astros Alliance and the Springer Theatre Company, "the feeling is that Ft. Benning personnel aren't aware of the opportunities in cultural growth Springer has to offer."

Poydasheff is involved in both the management of the Springer Theatre Company's Little Theatre productions and the Springer Opera House Arts Alliance's background role of preserving the venerable theatre building as a center of cultural affairs for the area's residents.

The Springer's season will open September 15 with "Carousel," a Rodgers and Hammerstein musical. The winner of the New York Drama Critics Circle 'Best Musical' Award is one of the most popular and enduring musicals of all time, according to Joe Wheeler, President of Springer Theatre Company. Drama critic, Brooks Atkinson, called it "A masterpiece." The play is a heartwarming story of man's innate goodness, his need to love and be loved.

Other coming productions include Arnold Ridley's "Ghost Train" in November; Noel Coward's "Hay Fever" in February; Frank D. Gilroy's "The Subject was Roses" in April; and John Patrick's "Everybody loves Opal" in May and June.

The Springer Theatre Company encourages all those in the community interested in any facet of stage production to try out for a place in the cast or crew of the upcoming productions.

Seasonal tickets are available for $21 per person, representing a total savings of $6 from the box office price for the five performances planned for the upcoming season. The goal of the Springer Theatre Company is to provide the area with the best cultural events available at the least possible expense to the public.

Season's tickets are available at the ITT office, 545-7414.

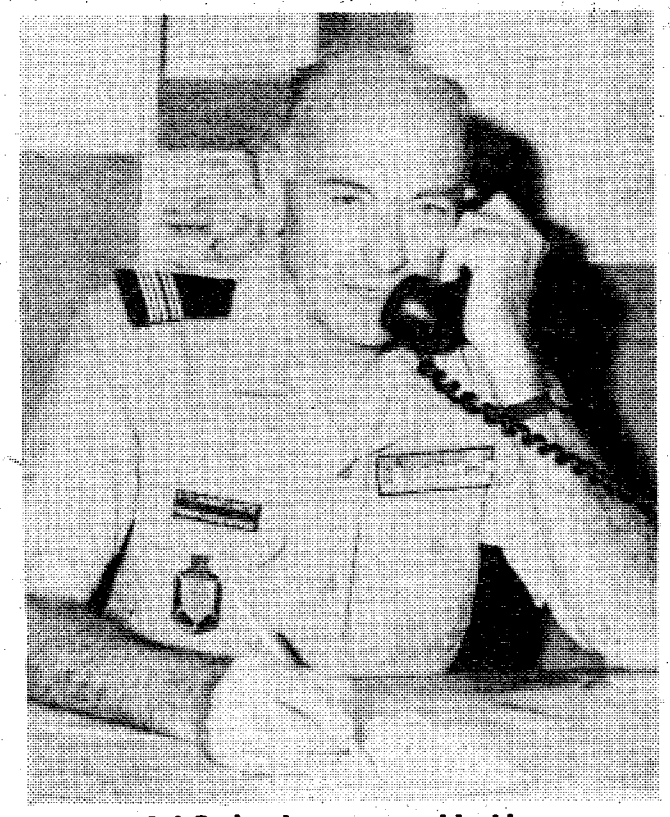
French Liaison former legionnaire

By Julie Casey

A former officer of the Foreign Legion, LtCol. Jacques Hatte, has assumed the position of French Liaison Officer at Benning.



The 51-year-old Paris-born soldier served in Vietnam from 1950 to 1952 as Platoon Leader and Executive officer in combat companies of the 13th Demi-Brigade with the Foreign Legion.

The Foreign Legion is considered the elite of the French Army. The discipline is tough and long according to LtCol. Hatte. "It is somewhat like the U.S. Marine's training," he noted.

His first assignment, after graduation from the Coetquidan Military Academy in 1948, was with the 99th Alpine Infantry Regiment as a Skiers Scout Platoon Leader along the French-Italian border.

Some of his other assignments have included stints as the Assistant Commander of the French Army School of Mountaineering, Military Assistant Commander with NATO, Allied Land Forces, Central Europe in Fontainebleau, and Chief of Staff for the French Mountain troops.

Colonel Hatte, who arrived a month ago, will be here for two years acting as the liaison between the French and United States armies.

Professional Class

Every profession has its true professionals. In the military they are obvious. PATRIOT® uniforms for men and women see to that. Performing as professionals, PATRIOT lets them look like pros. They exceed the standards. Just as their PATRIOT uniform is made to fit better, wear longer and be crafted with closer attention to finer details. There's a difference in uniforms. Just as there is a difference between people. PATRIOT uniforms are in a class by themselves. Like the pros who wear them.
Insist on the PATRIOT label in your next uniform purchase. If you need help in locating a PATRIOT uniform, just drop us a line at the address below.

Labor Day Message

Labor Day will be celebrated by millions of Americans this year. Unfortunately as is true of any holiday period, accidents will be numerous. The majority of these fall into two categories those resulting from motor vehicles and those involving water sports.

I urge you to take advantage of local and on post recreational facilities. They are convenient, less expensive, and often more satisfying then a hurried trip to some distant place.

If you must drive, plan your trip carefully. Be sure your vehicle is in safe condition, include rest stops, wear your seat belts and above all drive defensively. While swimming always use the "buddy system" and swim only in authorized areas.

Don't let an accident spoil your holiday. Obey all safety rules and take every precautionary measure to avoid obvious hazards. Remember, accident prevention is up to you.

Have a good holiday.

43rd Engrs building historical playground at McBride School

By Joe Hilton

A mysterious magical cruise aboard a replica of the Santa Maria, riding through the desert in a covered wagon and blasting off into the solar system on a lunar lander are but a few of the imaginative adventure rides being constructed by the 43rd Engr Bn, 36th Engr Gp for the children of McBride School and the McGraw Manor Community.

The new equipment is called the New American History Playground. As the name indicates, the playground equipment is quite different from the conventional type.

"The equipment is something the children have needed for a long time," said SFC Robert Spencer, PTAC chairman and initiator of the project.

For example, the log cabin, made from real logs, is actually a jungle gym for the children to climb on. The Conestoga covered wagon is another piece of climbing equipment with four rocking horses. And the blue and white lunar lander with its spiral staircase is actually two slides in one. Other equipment includes the Santa Maria, Liberty Bell swing, Rocky Rodeo, Oil Derrick Climber, and Atom Splitter Swing.

Although the children may be attracted by the different bright pastel colors, parents will be glad to know that each piece of equipment is functional. The equipment has been designed to build muscles and develop coordination and dexterity in children ages five to twelve.

According to 2ndLt Steven Hill, Co D, 43rd Engr Bn, the project supervisor, our biggest problem has been insuring that children in the area give the equipment time to set in its foundation before they play on it.

"The engineers have done a great job getting the equipment set up," said Jack Mahon, principal of McBride School. "It will be a real asset to the community."

Appointment no-shows causing MAH problem

"Hospital appointment no-shows are causing many lost work hours at Martin Army Hospital," according to 1stLt. Edward Ponatoski, the hospital Patient Affairs Officer.

During the month of July 523 persons did not show for scheduled appointments which amounts to approximately 10 per cent of the scheduled appointment workload. Of this number, 186 were active duty members and the remainder were retired personnel and their dependents.

"Fortunately some of the scheduled appointments were canceled in advance by the patients which allowed for rescheduling of others in need of the service, but timeliness is a prime factor in rescheduling," the lieutenant emphasized.

"If you can't make a scheduled appointment, call the Central Appointment Desk at 544-1051 as soon as possible," he concluded.

AMIC expands working hours

Effective September 6, the Acute Minor Illness Clinic, (AMIC) Clinic will be open from 8 to 7:30, Monday through Friday.

This service is being implemented as a convenience for one car families and other persons who have hardships coming to the hospital during normal duty hours.

Patients are requested to come to the Acute Minor Illness Clinic only if the Adult Medical Advisor recommends that medical care be sought.

Parents are requested NOT to bring children to the clinic due to the possible spread of communicable disease. Children under 12 years of age and Family Practice patients should call the information Desk at 544-2041 if an illness arises after duty hours. The Pediatrician-on-Call or the Family Practice Doctor-on-Call will return the call and suggest further action. Family Practice members are reminded that they should call the Family Practice Doctor-on-Call before coming to the Emergency Room after hours.

The success of the extended hours of the AMIC Clinic depends, to a great extent, on the cooperation of the community. Prudent use of the AMIC Clinic after duty hours will aid immensely in the success of the program.

Please save that broken toy

Ft. Benning Scout Troop 237 will be collecting used repairable toys for use by the post Army Community Services during the Christmas season.

The Scout will be visiting the various post housing areas September 10 and 11 in order to pick up any toys that could be repaired and distributed to needy families at Christmas.

The Scouts will pick up in the following areas:

McGraw Manor Bouton Hill Golf Course	Sept. 10 8-noon
Custer Terrace Miller Loop Bouton Hill	Sept. 10 1-5 p.m.
Lavioe Manor Fire Station (Main Post) Davis Hill Upatoi Terrace	Sept. 11 8-noon
Capehart Austin Loop & Ingersoll Main Post (900 block)	Sept. 11 1-5 p.m

School physicals still available

As a convenience to parents who have been assigned to Ft. Benning since Aug. 6, school physicals for children entering the Muscogee County School System for the first time can be obtained by calling the Pediatric Triage Desk at 544-4732 or 544-4492. A copy of PCS orders will have to be presented when the child is brought in for the physical. Persons who were on Emergency Leave or had some other hardship imposed on them during the time school physicals were given may call the Patient Affairs Liaison Office at 544-2788 for assistance.

Editor's Note: Are you aware of all the services available to you and your family while you're at Ft. Benning?

Ranging from financial counseling and well-baby care to pizza-on-call and auto repair, the services are almost too numerous to count.

In the interest of keeping you informed, the BAYONET has prepared the following list. It is by no means complete because of space limitations, however, care has been taken to insure its accuracy and in all cases a point of contact for additional information has been provided.

It is suggested that this list be cut out and kept for future reference.

Education Center offers high school diplomas

By DEBRA HILGEMAN

For one reason or another, many individuals do not complete their high school education and at Ft. Benning there are approximately 3500 enlisted personnel who fall into this category. However, the Army Continuing Education Program is trying to change that.

The high school programs, both diploma and general review, offer morning, afternoon or evening classes and students have a choice of both hours and days they wish to attend. The dates are staggered, so registration is always open and new classes begin as frequently as twice each month. Commanders are encouraged to take an interest in resolving conflict concerning duty obligations and classroom attendance. The program is free to servicemen since the total cost is provided by Army funds.

The DA has set a goal of 25 per cent participation quarterly by personnel below high school level or with a GT score below 90. Program staffers are making every possible effort to encourage more people to enroll in classes.

"We have an implied obligation to provide every serviceman with an opportunity to meet reenlistment and promotion goals during his first and subsequent enlistment," stated Leonard Ozley, post director of educational development. "We have our programs oriented toward career development at all levels. Priority consideration always goes to the needs of the service, but we don't neglect preparation for post-service careers. It would be a serious mistake to prevent service personnel from advancing both educationally and professionally while in the service."

In addition to offering GED classes to high school nongraduates, the educational program also offers high school review classes to improve verbal and quantitative comprehension to individuals with a GT score below 90. High school review classes also offer the same varied schedule as GED classes and commanders should encourage participation in these classes.

Auto mechanics and welding are also offered in vocational/technical (V/T) courses and may be used as electives in the high school diploma program. V/T classes are held mornings and afternoons, with staggered starting dates to permit maximum flexibility in enrollment.

Yet, despite all of the efforts made to enroll eligible personnel, total enrollments for the third quarter of the year were down 30 per cent.

"This decline is partly due to the summer vacation season," explained High School Program Director George M. Osborne.

The courses are instructed by teachers from the Muscogee County School District MCSD under a contract funded by the DA.

"Empty seats in a classroom are a serious waste of money and opportunity," said Ozley, "and that's another reason why we're pushing to meet enrollment quotas. It's also a reason why we have a good follow-up program with commanders. They are kept well-informed of who is enrolled, who participates and who graduates," he continued. "We had 72 men graduate from Jordan High School (MCSD) this June and there will be 38 more in August," concluded Ozley.

Enlisted personnel interested in enrolling in classes can obtain information from schedules posted on company bulletin boards or by visiting the Education Center

Holiday Inn SOUTH 3170 VICTORY DRIVE

Sportsman's Corner

By BILL RISTER

Sorry, my mistake folks. A couple of corrections to my last article need to be made. First, I stated that Ft. Benning was in the south dove season. That's incorrect. Hwy 280 which runs through the Post on its way to Cusseta is the dividing line for the north and south dove hunting zones. You can start hunting this Saturday in the North zone. Second, the Individual Learning Center is also open Monday - Thursday, 8 a.m.-8 p.m.

I haven't received any fishing reports during the past week. Fishing must be slow or people don't want everyone to know how they are doing. Benning's BASS Club will hold its next meeting at 7:30 p.m. on September 13 in Classroom 22, Bldg. 4. Anyone interested in joining the club and for those who aren't sure are welcome to come out and be with us.

The first white colonists, huddled in their tiny coastal settlements on the edge of the New World, looked upon the great forest as an awesome and forbidding wilderness. Yet that wilderness, for many years, had been home of the American Indian. The story of hunting in America, then, begins with the Indians, his ingenious weapons, techniques and his methods of conservation.

The American Indian was an expert hunter and fisherman — he had to be if he was to live. Although he enjoyed the hunt as a sportsman, he felt an urgent neccessity behind his search for game. Wild game gave him more than food. It also provided him with clothing, shelter, tools, weapons and much more. It is little wonder that the American Indian became perhaps the most accomplished outdoorsman the world has known. We have come a long way since then. We don't have to hunt like those earlier outdoorsmen or for the same reasons.

Remember to be a good sportsman one must be a good conservationist. Only take the game you can consume. Our children might like to try their skill at hunting in the future.

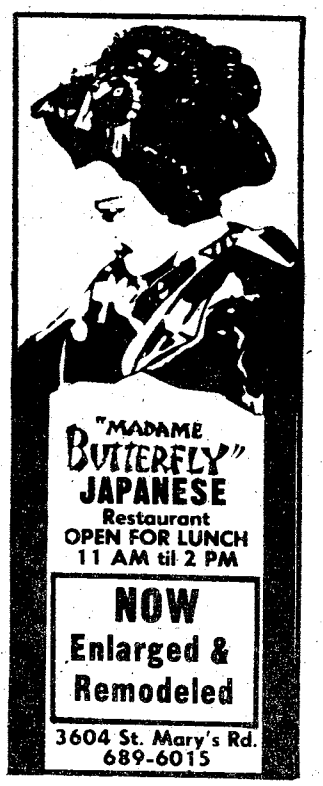
THINK ABOUT IT:

There was a hunter named Fred who refused to wear safety Red
A vest on his chest
A cap on his head.



Now Fred won't be with us this hunting season
He thought we were teasin'
Old Fred was mistaken for a Deer and now he's Dead.

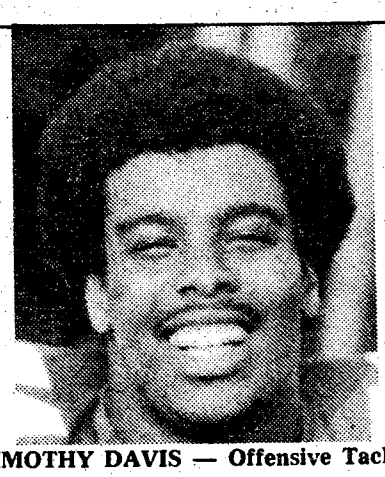
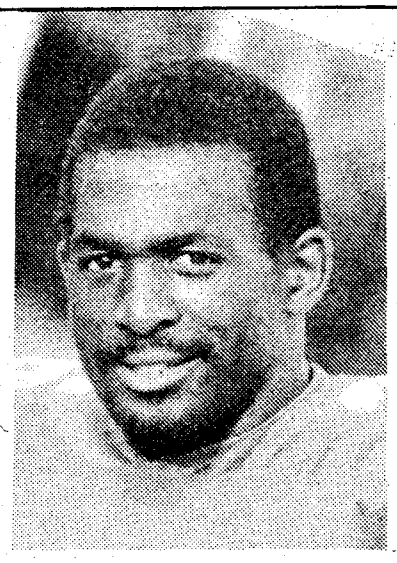
Doughboys to kick off season tomorrow night



The "eleventh hour" is at hand for the Ft. Benning Doughboys as they prepare to face-off on the gridiron against the fierce Livingston U. Tigers tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. in Doughboy Stadium.

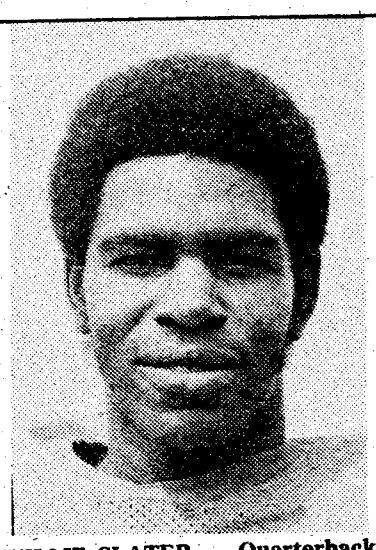
It promises to be a tight battle as the outnumbered Doughboy's rally forces against the powerful Tigers. Since the Doughboys are running two deep in each position, the Tigers' ability to run fresh players poses a serious threat in case of Doughboy injuries.

This game marks the culmination of six weeks of grueling training for the Doughboys and the team is confident of a first game victory. "We've been battling against each other for six weeks now and we feel we're ready to go beat on someone else," declared Coach Barham.

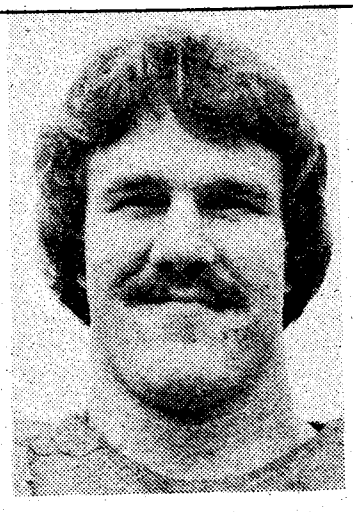


JOE DUENAS — Quarterback
The offensive leader of the 1976 Doughboy team, Duenas is a threat as both passer and runner. A recent OCS graduate, Duenas serves with Company A, Headquarters Command.

TIMOTHY DAVIS — Offensive Tackle
Another veteran of the 1976 season, Davis is one of the largest of the Doughboys. Another team leader, he is one of the strongest blockers of the offensive line. Quick and agile despite his size, Davis can play with left or right side tackle. He will be leaving the service soon and already has the interest of several college scouts. Tim is with the 608th Ord. Co.

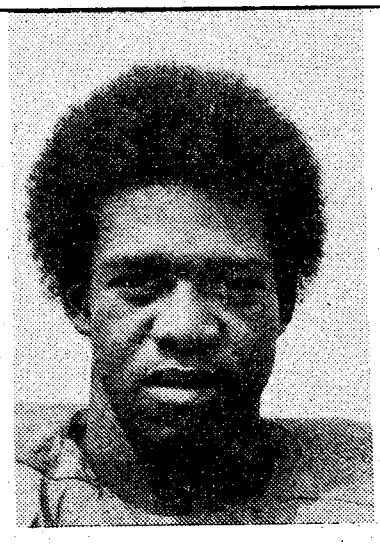


LONZIE McCANTS — Linebacker
Was defensive standout on the 1976 Doughboy team. McCants plays both inside and outside linebacker. He makes up in quickness and aggressiveness what he lacks in size. A defensive leader and always one of the most enthusiastic football players on the field. Lonzie is with Co. C, 1/58th Inf.



JAY THOMAS — Free Safety
A newcomer to the Doughboy secondary, Thomas combines excellent speed with exceptional size for a defensive back. Jay works as the armorer for the 121st Aviation Company.

Benning vs. Livingston



WILLIE SLATER — Quarterback
Has been a starter ever since his freshman year. Possesses excellent physical and mental football skills and is expected to be one of the key weapons of offense this year. Has scored 20 touchdowns, a school record. "Mr. Make Things Happen." 3 letters.

DAVID JOLLEY — Offensive Tackle
Was moved to offense from defensive tackle this spring. Was a three year starter on defense. Is expected to give good leadership as well as good line play to the offense this fall. 3 letters.

DAVID DEAN — Middle Linebacker
Returning starter from last year. A hard hitting and aggressive player. Always around the football. Has the ability to play both linebacker and nose guard. Had 43 tackles last fall. 2 letters.

STANLEY KING — Free Safety
Was NAIA and P All-American as a soph. Also MVP on defense in GSC as a soph. Recovered from knee surgery in spring but expected back again this fall for more of his awesome tackles. Had 103 tackles last year. 2 letters.

Ft. Rucker wins TRADOC softball tournament

By BETTY ZIMMERMAN

Ft. Rucker won the TRADOC Western Region Men's Slow Pitch Softball Tournament last Friday by defeating Ft. Leonard Wood in the "if" game.

Coming into the double elimination finals with no losses, Rucker was beaten in the first game, 6 to 3, by Leonard Wood, but came right back to defeat Wood soundly, 13 to 7, in the "if" game.

In the night's first encounter, Wood's left fielder, Richard Ashley, made several outstanding catches despite the rain-slickened field. And second baseman, Ed Tremper, ended the game with a fantastic diving catch of a solid line drive. The low scoring game was interrupted by rain after four innings, but the grounds crew quickly restored the field to playing condition after the storm so the tournament could continue.

It looked like Wood would continue their winning ways when after two innings of the second game, they led 3 to 1. But in the top of the third, Rucker's outfielder, Charlie Blake hit a three-run homerun to put them ahead. At the end of four innings, it was tied but Rucker scored four in the fifth and never relinquished the lead after that.

1st Game	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	Final
Rucker	0	2	1	0	0	0	0	3
Leonard Wood	0	0	0	3	1	2	-	6
2nd Game	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	Final
Rucker	1	0	3	1	4	0	4	13
Leonard Wood	3	0	2	0	2	0	0	7

In Thursday's semifinals, Leonard Wood eliminated Redstond Arsenal in the morning's game with a score of 8 to 7. That evening Wood also knocked out Ft. Sill (10 to 5). Sill had been the pre-tournament favorite because they won the title for the past three years, but this year Ft. Rucker reigns as the new slow-pitch softball champion.

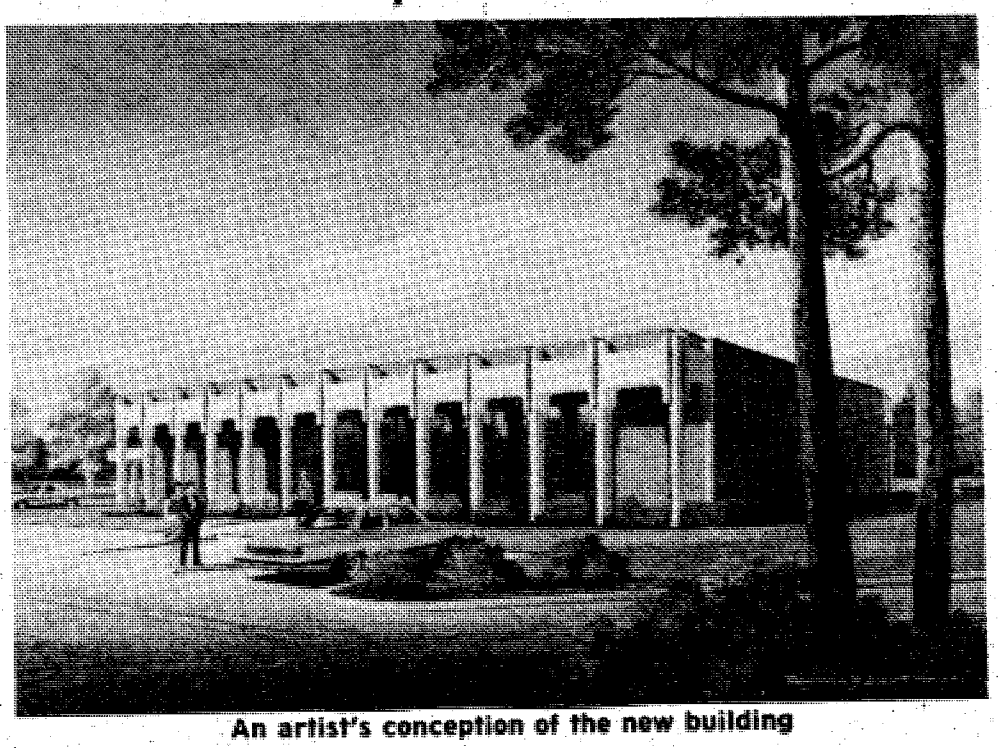
New Credit Union slated for completion in June 78



The Infantry Center (TIC) Federal Credit Union held a groundbreaking ceremony August 12 for their new branch office.

The $60,000 building, scheduled to be completed in June 1978 will be located on Eckel Street, just east of the main post Arts and Crafts Center.

The new facility being built by Financial Structures of Atlanta, will contain over 7,000 square feet. It will have drive-in windows, safety deposit boxes and other features not now available at the present location.

The start of the construction culminates seven years of effort by the building committee to expand Benning's credit union facilities to provide even better credit union services to its members.

"Membership has increased from 14,376 to 24,512 in the last six years. Assets are at $17.5 million, loans at $13.9 million and shares at $15.7 million," according to Marvin Arline, president of the board of directors.

By RON FOWLER

A new unit was added to the other elements of the 'Forever Forward' 197th Inf Bde last week during activation ceremonies conducted in front of brigade headquarters on Kelly Hill.

1st Lt. Terry Burke assumed command of the newly formed Air Defense Artillery (ADA) Btry, 2/10th FA in a colorful ceremony attended by Col. Fletcher Ware, commander of the 197th Inf Bde and LtCol. Furey, commander of the 'Rock's Support' 2/10th FA.

The new ADA Btry is composed of personnel from the 3/7th Inf, 1/58th Inf, 2/10th FA, and HHC, 197th Inf Bde who hold the Military Occupational Specialty of 16P (Chapparal/Redeye Missileman) and was authorized through the verbal order of Gen. Federick Kroesen, CG, U.S. Army Forces Command (FORSCOM).

"I challenge each and every one of you in our new ADA battery to maintain the highest standards of proficiency already attained by the "Rock's Support" battalion and the brigade," Col. Ware stated during the activation ceremony. "I'm sure that all of you will continue to maintain the 'Forever Forward' spirit and strive to accomplish all your missions, whatever they may be."

The new ADA Btry has already begun an intensive training program to bring it's "missilemen" up to the highest standards attainable for an ADA unit.

"One of our primary objectives in the ADA battery is to provide effective ADA training to all 197th Inf Bde assets," concluded Burke. "We're doing just that, and we're determined to become the best ADA unit in the Army!"

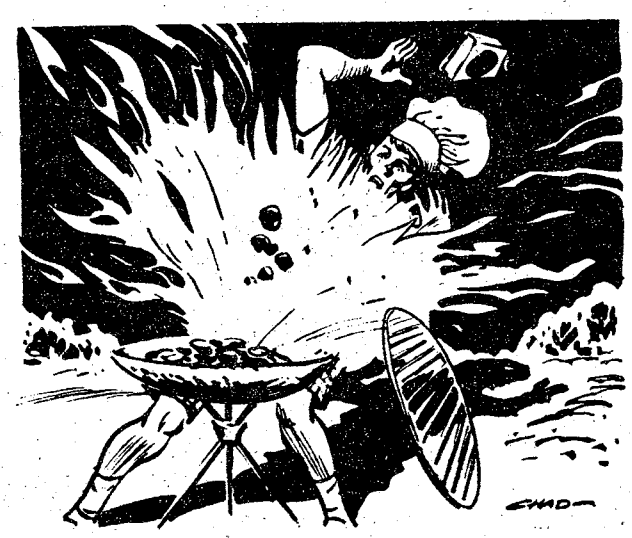
Substitute BBQ grills can be fatal



You're out in your backyard on a lazy summer evening getting ready to barbecue your dinner. But wait a minute. Where's the grill? Ah! You remember that there is a metal shelf in the old refrigerator you have hanging around that would do just fine.

But what you don't realize is that the shelf you're about to use as a grill is hazardous to your health. In fact, it could even be deadly.

Several deaths have occurred from barbecuing on old refrigerator shelves, according to the Medical Service Digest. Many of these shelves were cadmium coated and the cadmium released during the heating transferred the poisonous fumes to the cooked meat.

A few precautions on the part of the outdoor chef can lessen the chance of tragedy.

- Once a fire has been started, never add flammable liquid to it.
- Use lighting fluid sparingly and only those prepared for charcoal lighting. Never use gasoline, paint thinner or other volatile substitutes.
- Keep flammable liquids and other combustible material a safe distance away from the grill.
- Keep children away from the grill.
- Place grill on a noncombustible surface. (A painted picnic table will char as easily as bare wood.)
- Don't wear loose fitting clothing that can easily be swept into the fire. Most clothing will burn.
- Use charcoal grills and hibachis in well-ventilated areas away from the house to reduce the chance of accidental carbon monoxide poisoning. Burning charcoal does emit this unseen deadly gas.
- Store charcoal in a cool, dry ventilated area. Damp charcoal can ignite spontaneously.

VA questions & answers

Q — Who is eligible for service-disabled veterans insurance?

A — Eligibility is limited to veterans released from active duty after April 24, 1951, with a VA-rated service-connected disability of any degree which would be compensable at 10 per cent or higher, and who do not have nonservice-connected disabilities that render them uninsurable. Application must be made within one year from the date notified by VA of a service-connected disability.

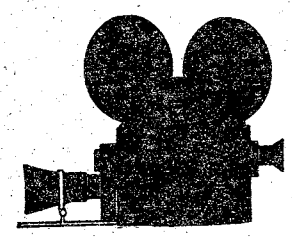
Q — I am a peacetime veteran. Would my wife be entitled to a widow's pension after my death?

A — The veteran must have had at least one day of wartime service in order for a widow to qualify for pension. However, if a peacetime veteran dies of a service-connected cause, his widow may apply for Dependency Indemnity Compensation.

Q — My father was killed on active duty. I am eligible for benefits under the Dependents Educational Assistance program. I am in the Navy. May I take advantage of this benefit?

A — No. Even though you are eligible for the benefit, you may not enroll while in the armed forces.

Q — I was discharged in 1953. Am I eligible for educational assistance under the current GI Bill?



A — No. To qualify under the present law you must have had service after Jan. 31, 1955.

Q — Is my deductible for outpatient treatment under Civilian Health and Medical Programs of the VA (CHAMPVA) payable by calendar year or fiscal year?

A — Payments must be made each fiscal year, Oct. 1 through Sept. 30.

Q — I am a World War II veteran. Can I apply for burial at a national cemetery before I die?

A — No. Applications may be made only at the time of death of the veteran or that of an eligible dependent to the national cemetery desired.

Rumor has it that the next big explosion in personal radio will be in the General Mobile Radio Service (GMRS), formerly, Class A Citizens Band.

GMRS is expected to take off because it's an FM service in the UHF band — around 460 MHz. This means no worry about interference from sunspots or skip; it's also less susceptible to ignition and atmospheric noise.

Other advantages of GMRS include: more power — up to 50 watts; use of repeaters is allowed, extending normal communication range to over 100 miles; GMRS equipment is becoming less expensive — one new transceiver now on the market is priced at about $400. Since there are only about 5,000 GMRS licensees now, there's no problem with crowded channels.

That's the rosy part of the picture. What most people don't know about GMRS is that the FCC assigns each licensee a specific frequency. Actually, frequencies are assigned in pairs; for example, 467.550 and 462.550 MHz. The former frequency is used to relay through the repeater; the latter is the transmit frequency of the repeater and is also used for mobile-to-mobile or base-to-base-or-mobile communications. There are only eight of these frequency pairs authorized for the entire service. So, in effect, GMRS is really a two-channel system.

Base stations in the GMRS are limited to directional antennas and are licensed only for communications with another base or with specific mobile stations. Once you leave your home area, there is no guarantee that you'll be able to use someone else's repeater.

Also in GMRS, you must obtain prior approval from the FCC before you can: increase the number of your transmitters; change the location of your base station; move, change the height of or errect an antenna; increase output power or change frequencies.

So, while GMRS may look like a good deal at first glance, it's quite a bit more complicated when you study it.

There's a lot going on this weekend and since it's the last holiday of summer, here's a reminder. Watch out for the other driver; he may not know that Smokey's hiding in the bushes up ahead.

The Chattahoochee Chatters are holding their annual Jamboree this weekend. Tonight is Hospitality Night at the Chatters' clubhouse at 45th Street and River road, with coffee and doughnuts. The Jamboree itself will be held from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. There will also be a dance Saturday night from 8 p.m. to midnight. Admission is $5 a couple and the money goes to charity.

Speaking of charity, we all know that Labor Day weekend is when a lot of people get together to help out Jerry's kids. If you're interested in helping, shout for Fat Cat on channel one. If you're out on the Manchester Expressway, turn to channel 21 and call for Unit Seven or some of his friends. They'll be on the side with a coffee break all weekend.

Volunteers needed to help with Springer productions

The Springer Theatre will open the production "Carousel" on September 15 with Robert Haddad directing.

Although this show is already cast and rehearsals are in progress, volunteers are urgently needed to build and paint sets. It's a good opportunity to meet new people.

All the volunteer needs is some basic carpentry skill or the ability to wield a paint brush. The hours can be of your choice as long as they are between 11 a.m. and 5 p.m. and 7:30-11 p.m. on Mondays through Saturday. On Sunday, the hours are from 2 to 7:30 p.m.

The work takes place at the Springer Opera House which is at 103 Tenth St. across from the Government Center. Mrs. Dae Lane is one of the stage directors and she promises a warm social atmosphere with refreshments as well as work.

Mrs. Lane may be called for further details at 322-6112. There will be other productions at later dates, so this invitation for set builders is continuous.

October promotions off

October promotions for grades E-5 through 0-6 are down from both August and September totals. DA officials say that October promotions will total 5,594. There were 7,942 September and 6,064 August hikes planned.

Total enlisted promotions number 5,129 and will include 3,259 to E-5; 925 to E-6; 675 to E-7; 214 to E-8; and 56 to E-9. After the October hikes, 2,433 names will remain on the E-8 list and 52 and the E-9 list.

Lists for E-5 and 6 are maintained by field promotion authorities and are made from local lists per published monthly promotion cutoff scores for each MOS.

DA officials forecast that October officer hikes will total 825. This is a drop of 245 from the total of promotions scheduled for September, 1,070.

Officer promotion schedules call for 50 hikes to colonel; 95 to lieutenant colonel; 385 to major; and 183 to captain. Also tabbed for promotions are 30 to CWO4 and 82 to CWO3.

After the October officer promotions, 1,490 will remain on the 0-5 list; 1,515 on the 0-4; 556 on the 0-3; 172 on the CWO-4 and 802 on the CWO-3 list.

Jewish rabbi joins chaplains

For the first time in over a year, Ft. Benning has a Jewish Rabbi on board in the chaplain section.

Chaplain (CGST) Kenneth Leinwand has reported in from the Army Chaplain Training Center in Ft. Wadsworth, New York. He is a graduate of the Hebrew Union College, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Jewish services are held on Friday nights at 8:30 in the Post Jewish Center, Bldg 2622. Chaplain Leinwand has plans for Saturday morning services beginning in the fall and will also publish a schedule for the upcoming Jewish holidays.

Accidents Down But Still a Major Killer

Death may not have taken a holiday in 1976, but the death rate was the lowest on record last year — 46.4 per one hundred thousand population. It was a decline of nearly 2 points over the 1975 rate of 48.1.

Accidental deaths dropped to their lowest level since 1962, according to the National Safety Council. Among the categories of accidents showing sharp declines were drownings, falls, poisonings and firearms accidents.

However, accidents involving motor vehicles were up 2 per cent, and accidents still rank as the nation's fourth leading cause of death, exceeded only by heart disease, cancer and stroke.

Labor Day calls for unlimited precautions

The Labor Day holiday, in recent years, has been marred with needless, disabling injuries and death-producing accidents.

Many types of accidents will occur during the holiday period, but the most significant will be those involving the privately owned vehicle.

If you must drive defensively: anticipate the unsafe acts of other drivers and make allowances for them. Give them the right of way if they demand it. Your pride may suffer by conceding, but you will survive. Before you depart on your trip inspect your vehicle for safety defects and correct them before you get on the road. While driving buckle up and avoid excessive speed. Do not drive when sleepy or fatigued or when under the influence of alcohol or drugs. Even if you are not driving, you should be aware of the hazards; never ride in an unsafe car or with an unsafe driver.

Accidents involving water sports are the second most frequent type of accident during the Labor Day holiday. To avoid these accidents obey the rules of water safety. When swimming always use the "buddy system and swim only in authorized areas with certified lifeguards on duty. Don't dive in strange waters. Never swim immediately after eating or after engaging in strenuous exercise or when under the influence of alcohol or drugs.

To avoid accidents while boating do not overload the boat and wear life preservers at all times.

Application of these simple safety rules, along with a good dose of common sense in all your activities, should prevent an enjoyable vacation from turning into a nightmare.

Project 77/77 continues

Ft. Benning is taking part in a Special Suggestion Campaign which is being held within the Department of the Army during the calendar year 1977. The campaign is titled "PROJECT 77/77". The purpose of the campaign is to obtain total savings, Army-wide, of $77,000,000 during the calendar year from adopted suggestions.

In an effort to support this special campaign, Ft. Benning is conducting a special drive for suggestions during the period July 1 - September 30. It is felt that through this special campaign. Benning will be assured of meeting the local goal of $500,000 savings from adopted suggestions during the calendar year, as well as making a substantial contribution toward meeting the Army-wide goal. To date, savings exceeding $358,000 have been identified at Benning resulting from adopted suggestions submitted during current suggestion campaign — Project 77/77. To reach the post goal of $500,000, by end of local campaign on September 30, each military member and civilian employee is challenged to submit at least one suggestion during the remaining period of his special campaign. While emphasis is placed on suggestions that will reduce costs and increase productivity by conserving manhours, materials or other operational costs, any suggestion that will result in a saving will be welcome.

Ranger and sky-diving demonstrations; vehicle, boat and pony rides, displays, a midway and food galore are just a few of the activities planned for the 1977 AUSA Annual Picnic at Victory Pond, September 24. The festivities began at noon and last for six hours. Tickets are available at the Columbus and Phenix City Chambers of Commerce, local banks, unit sergeants major and Ft. Benning Public Affairs Office.

DoD students must register with schools

Students residing on post who plan to attend public high school in Muscogee County must be registered with the Dependent Schools Officer.

The registration must be accomplished before the Schools Officer can release funds (presently $6 per student for each day of attendance) to pay the tuition charged by the School District for each student. Registration is also necessary before students are scheduled for transportation and can receive a bus pass.

Registration must be accomplished each year before attending school even though the student was registered with the Schools Officer during previous school years. Sponsors of those high school students who have not yet registered should stop by the Schools Office, Bldg. 880A, immediately to complete the necessary registration papers and be issued a bus pass. This does not apply to students who have already registered with the Schools officer.

If a high school student withdraws from school for any reason or ceases to reside on post, sponsors are reminded to notify the Schools Officer at 545-2500.

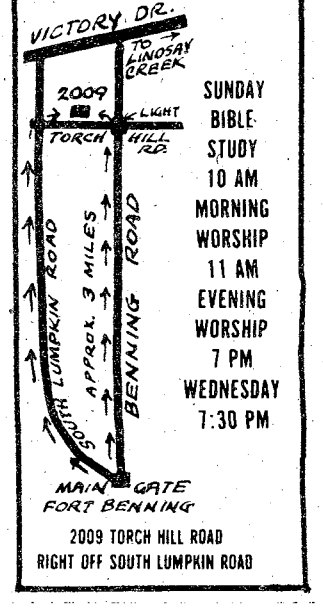
Alexander boosts Panama Canal agreement

Secretary of the Army Clifford L. Alexander Jr., has told a group of Midwestern civic and business leaders of the need to "close the book" on the difference existing between Panama and the United States.

Alexander spoke at Kansas City in support of the recently concluded "agreements in principle" that would govern future control over the Canal Zone after the expiration of the present treaty in the year 2000. Alexander said he hoped that the "renegotiation of the 1903 Treaty will initiate a thorough discussion and evaluation of the facts."

"Minus the emotionalism and myths that surround the present U. S. status on the Isthmus," he said, "I believe that the American people will see for themselves that realities must be faced and existing problems resolved."

Alexander said that the proposed now treaty relationship with Panama will be sensitive to that country's needs and desires as a sovereign state, while "continuing to insure U. S. commercial and defense interests and the continued effective use of the Canal by world commerce."



Responding to criticism that the new agreement will harm U. S. commercial and defense interests, Secretary Alexander stated, "I know I am not alone in my firm belief that the best defense of the Canal and U. S. security interests rests with the approval of a new treaty — one that responds fairly to the needs and sensitivities of the people of Panama."

He cited the support of the Joint Chiefs of Staff for the treaties now in final stages of drafting, and pointed out that "Panama's economic well-being is dependent on an efficiently operated canal that is open to all nations at competitive rates," noting that "Panama would and should have every motivation to protect their chief asset, and avoid any action which might jeopardize (its) effective and efficient use."

"The current treaty will permit a progressive assumption of responsibilities so Pamama will be fully prepared for the transfer of the Canal in the year 2000," he added. "This approach will encourage the continuation and development of the valuable services that have been provided by the Canal," concluded Alexander.

The Secretary of the Army is the Representative of the President in overseeing the operations of the Panama Canal Company on behalf of the United States. The Secretary is also the President's designee to supervise the operaton of the present Canal Zone Government. (ARNEWS).

Explorer Post No. 76 Colonial Band performs at Walt Disney World in Florida, on August 6.

Disney World officials laud Colonial Band's performance

By Julie Casey

Benning's Explorer Post 76 Colonial Band was awarded a Certificate of Appreciation by Walt Disney World officials for their recent performance at the park.

The 84-member band, directed by Maj. Bill Drollinger, performed twice at Sea World and once at the Disney World on August 5.

Maj. Drollinger felt it was the Band's best performance, "There are times when everything comes together and that day and time it happened.

"The crowds were just wild," the major continued. "Applause and cheers rippled the entire parade route."

Part of the band's rave reviews included over 200 calls requesting information about its appearances. Talent scouts, for various civil activities, came from as far as Washington D.C. and Texas to watch the band.

The new Drum Major, Charles Moller, a 17-year-old Jordan High School student, led the band for the first time at the Disney World performances. He had competed with 12 other Explorer Scouts for this coveted position and showed his skills with distinction.

The band, formed two years ago, has since received the National Freedom Foundation Award and was runner-up in the Spirit of Atlanta Parade to a Drum and Fife Corps for the title of best unit from the state of Georgia. In Georgia's Salute to America Parade, on July 4th, the band was named Most Outstanding Community Band.

In February the band was changed from a Drum and Fife Corps.

C&GSC diploma available through course taught here

A three year course which will lead to a Command and General Staff College (C&GSC) diploma will be offered to eligible officers in the Columbus area beginning October 3.

The classes will be taught in 24 four-hour weekly sessions, and will be held on either Monday or Tuesday evenings from 7-11 p.m. All instruction will be conducted by members of the 3294th United States Army Reserve (USAR) school located at 3001 Macon Road in Columbus.

Initial registration will be held on Wednesday, September 21, at the school between 7 and 9 p.m.

Criteria for enrollment are: Be a graduate of branch advanced course, have a minimum of seven years commissioned service, have not reached 42 years of age, and not have completed 17 years of commissioned service. There is no monetary charge or obligation to attend this course of instruction.

In addition to weekly sessions, the student will be required to attend a two week summer course at the University of Southern Mississippi in Hattiesburg following each of the first two years of instruction. Upon completion of the third year of study, the student must spend a two week residency at the C&GSC at Ft. Leavenworth, Kas, prior to receiving his diploma. The diploma received at the end of the three year program is as valid as those awarded the resident graduates of the Ft. Leavenworth C&GSC.

The USAR program is also highly flexible. If an officer is given a permanent change of station prior to completing the course in Columbus, he may resume his studies without interruption at his duty station.

The same course of study is offered at all major military installations in the United States, and currently there are six such schools in Europe.

Should an officer be selected to attend the Ft. Leavenworth C&GSC after enrolling in the USAR program, he will be better prepared for the in-residence course than his contemporaries. The instruction is also compatible with the C&GSC's correspondence program should the student be transferred to an area in which a USAR school is not available.

Deadline for registration is October 3. For additional information contact Lt. Col. (USAR) G.F. Schladensky at 545-4796 or Lt. Col. Phillip Wise, 322-4511.

$uggestion$ pay

A BIG surprise awaits Sp5 Richard Warren, formerly assigned to the 15th Finance Disbursing Section. A cash award of $905 has been forwarded to Specialist Warren, at his overseas unit, for an adopted suggestion he submitted while assigned at this station.

His suggestion concerned Government leasing of commercial motel rooms for the purpose of providing bulleting accommodations for permanent party military personnel placed on TDY to Camp Shelby, Miss. in support of Reservist Annual Training.

Adoption of this suggestion reduced the amount of Per Diem paid to each member per day from $35 to $16, provided adequate quarters acceptable by both the military members and officials, decreased support costs related to such training requirements, and resulted in an estimated annual savings to the Government of $40,100.

Ethnic luncheons are a monthly affair at 34th Med Bn

By BILL WALTON

Ethnic "togetherness luncheons" have become a monthly affair in the 34th Med Bn.

The idea is SFC Ernie Hamm's, the Consolidated Dining Facility manager. A different ethnic menu is served once a month to the soldiers, families and friends of the battalion. Past menus have featured German, Oriental, Spanish/Mexican, Soul Food and All-American.

"You say the sweet and sour ribs and pineapple chicken were good, but the part you enjoyed most was that you don't have to pull KP and clean up afterwards". Mrs. Beverly Greer, guest of honor at a recent 34th Medical Battalion Polynesian Togetherness Luncheon interviews Sp4 Kenneth Shipman, HHD, 34th Med Bn, to get his opinon of the special monthly meal.

The luncheon for August was held on the 24th and featured a Polynesian meal, complete with roast suckling pig. The guests of honor were Mrs. Beverly Greer, Living Today editor, Columbus Enquirer and Mr. and Mrs. Helmut Gerdes, editor and news editor, Columbus Times.

To go with all the good food there were decorations throughout the dining facility to carry out the Polynesian theme. Polynesian God ice carvings, decorated with fresh fruit, were surrounded by hidden bowls of dry ice which gave off smoke to simulate an erupting volcano. Appropriate music was played throughout the luncheon, which served some 400 people, including wives and children.

Mrs. Greer, who writes the "Dining Out" column for the Ledger-Enquirer, when asked what she thought of the meal said, "I can't give the dining facility a 'Forks Rating' as I do in the Dining Out Column as it isn't open to the public. But, I think it is outstanding that Hamm goes to so much trouble to give the soldiers a different meal. The food is good, there is an excellent variety and the superb decorations set the whole thing off."

The Togetherness luncheon for September will feature a Polish menu.

Sickcall: The first stop in VD cure

If you had a cold, sore throat or the flu, your first step on the road to medical recovery would probably be a routine visit to the dispensary.

Should it be any different if you contract a venereal disease?

Benning officials say no!

According to the post's VD Control Officer Sigsbee Mainous, "The procedure for reporting and receiving treatment for a venereal disease is a simple and strictly confidential matter."

"Persons who suspect or know they have VD should first report to their troop medical clinic or Martin Army Hospital to pick-up their medical records. He/she should then go to the office of the Health and Environmental Activity located in the old hospital annex area, building 322."

If a venereal disease is confirmed, the person will be treated and questioned concerning the names of his/her recent sexual partners. This is done in the interest of controlling the spread of the disease. The names are reported to the local health department if they are revealed.

Mainous said that all reports remain in medical channels and are strictly confidential. He further emphasized that in accordance with Army Reg 40-5, no disciplinary action can be taken against anyone contracting a venereal disease.

"Our office has been very successful in getting the cooperation of soldiers in obtaining the

Hispanic Week to begin with dedication of gym

National Hispanic Week will be observed at Ft. Benning during Sept. 11-17. A Mass will be held on Sunday the 11th at 1 p.m. in the Sand Hill Gymnasium and the dedication of the gym will follow.

The gymnasium is being named in memory of Hector Sanitago-Colon, a Medal of Honor recipient from the Vietnam Conflict.

There are presently 24,832 Hispanic Americans serving in the Army. The figure is 3.2 per cent of the total active force. Out of the total, there are 777 officers, 118 warrant officers and 23,954 enlisted personnel.

Hispanic Americans from many countries have provided the United States with the second largest ethnic minority, both in and out of uniform.

The Spanish-speaking soldier must deal with the same lack of understanding that confronts other minority group members, and some of the problems faced by Hispanics are compounded by language differences. Both the Army and Hispanic Americans in uniform are coming to grips with problems through the Equal Opportunity Program supported at all levels throughout the service.

The challenge is not unique to the service. Every American has been taught that among the first explorers of America were Spanish, but what are the feelings of an "Anglo" son or daughter, sitting next to a youngster with a Spanish surname, in school? Are they aware of the tradition and contributions made to America by the Hispanics?

Hispanic Americans have been great achievers in such diversified fields as the arts, education, sports, labor, entertainment, government, science, religion, communications and law. These are only a few of the fields in which Hispanic Americans have made major contributions.

Hispanic Americans have served in the military since the Revolutionary War. Thirty-seven Hispanic Americans have received the nation's highest award, the Medal of Honor.

In recent years, Hispanic American soldiers have had greater geographic and occupational mobility. This, coupled with exposure to foreign countries and diverse geographic locations through military service, has created a new awareness in Hispanic Americans of their role in the United States Army and the Americans born of the traditions, history and contributions that Hispanic Americans have made to the American culture.

Why is it important to know about Hispanic Americans? One significant reason is that Hispanic Americans are often labeled as "one people." They are stereotyped. Despite some common features, Hispanic American peoples are distinct ethnic groups.

Each group has its own heritage; is white, black, red or a mixture; may be Catholic, Protestant, Jewish, African or Indian spiritualist; and has its own folklore, holidays, arts and social structure. Hispanic Americans should be understood as they really are and for the contributions they make to the National culture.

Hispanic Week Proclamation

The week of September 11-17 has been selected by the Department of the Army as National Hispanic Heritage Week.

The Hispanic Americans have been one of the great contributors to our country. Among their contributions are their participation in the defense and growth of our great nation: as soldiers, they have distinguished themselves on the battlefields; as citizens, they have been instrumental in the attainment of our economic, social, and democratic goals.

The Hispanic Americans possess a rich culture. This culture, a product of their Spanish origin and historical experience, is an integral part of the American heritage.

So that we might become more aware of the contributions that the Hispanic Americans have made to our country and their culture, I do hereby proclaim the week of September 11-17 as Hispanic Heritage Week at Ft. Benning, Georgia and urge all citizens to observe and participate in the week's events.

Looks like something else has hit the market for the Bass Fisherman. Its called the Grip Lip. This device is in the shape of a small collar which is placed around the plastic worm about a half inch or so from the head. This device is filled with nylon loops. These loops are designed to grab hold of the Bass' teeth.

The material from which this device is made is produced by the 3M Company and is distributed by Cordell Tackle Company. You can also purchase this new material in tape form which can be used on your crankbaits, spoons and other places like your tackle box, boat or even around the home.

There are a few organizations around this country who would stop all hunting. Well, those people have a right to their opinion and so does the sportsman. From license fees, taxes on firearms, ammunition and archery equipment, the American sportsman provides almost all monies to research, habitat acquisition and restoration and game-law enforcement. In fact, over the past 50 years, the American sportsman has paid in more than 3 billion dollars. So you see, if it wasn't for the hunter and fisherman the game and fish population would be in sad shape.

The Deer season will be here shortly and Iknow you are ready to get that big buck. There are a few things to consider. First, like so many, we prefer to hunt early and late in the day. Now don't give up during midday. Once the hunting season gets underway the deer activity pattern can change. Some very big deer have been taken during the middle of the day. Second, let your eyes and ears do more work and your feet less. Its not in your best interest to move around too much, particularly during gun season.

Think About It: All hunting regulations contain such things as bag limits, types of weapons to be used, dates, license fees, etc., but nowhere does it have an open season on hunters, so be careful, know what you are shooting at before you do.

'Cadillacs' rollin' in

Do you ever wish you could go back in time to the era of the rock and rolling '50s? When "Sh-Boom," the "Duke of Earl," leather jackets, Brylcream and bobby socks brought you a feeling of pride, fun, heartbroken love and everything else that was a part of those "groovy" days?

"The Cadillacs," a dance and show band, is bringing that era back to Benning. They will be appearing at the Officer's Supper Club on September 17 and the Top Five Club on the 18th from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Admission is $2 per person in advance, $2.50 at the door at both locations. Tickets may be purchased from the respective clubs.

The ten-member band doesn't stop at the 50s. They carry their audiences into the early sixties and that soul sound, all the way up to the Beach Boy days of surfin' sounds.

names of individuals from whom they contracted VD." He estimated that, "in 90 per cent of the cases, we learn the name of the suspected carrier and this has aided considerably in controlling the disease."

What about dependents of military personnel who contract VD?

"The procedures are exactly the same," according to Mainous. Soldiers are seen and treated at the Health and Environment Activity from 7:30 to 10:45 a.m. and dependents from 1 to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday.

"Treatment of dependents is also confidential and minors can come in for treatment without the consent of their parents. No report will be made to the parents," the VD Control Officer stated.

The latest available statistics reveal that 526 military personnel were treated at the hospital for venereal diseases from Dec. 7, 1976 to March 18 this year.

When asked about the number of cases Mainous pointed out that during the holiday season the number of cases usually rises. He added that the number of cases is lower than the same period of time last year.

"Our primary concern is getting people who suspect or know they have contracted a venereal disease to report it so that the disease can be controlled," he concluded.

1978 CFC fund raising begins

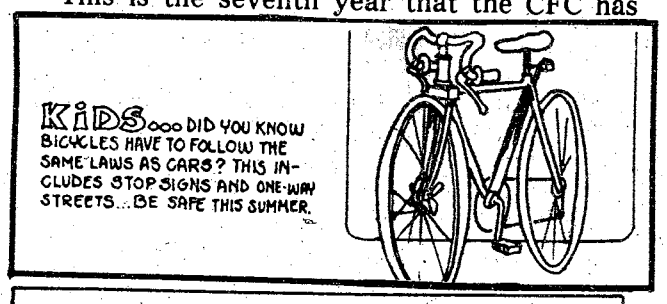
The 1978 Combined Federal Campaign (CFC) officially began Thursday, September 8 with a kickoff ceremony held at 1:15 p.m. in Marshall Auditorium. Deputy Commanding General, Brig Gen. Fred K. Mahaffey Jr., was the keynote speaker, and a number of civilian and military leaders attended.

A highlight of the ceremony was the presentation of a check for $1,000 to Gen. Mahaffey by E. G. (Buddy) Sparks, president of the National Bank of Ft. Benning, to get the fund raising campaign started.

Civilian heads of federal agencies in the Columbus-Phenix City area, major military commanders and their project officers and other community leaders heard remarks by Post Chief of Staff Col. Addison Davis III, Mahaffey and representatives of the three major agencies that benefit from CFC dollars: Mrs. Pauline Archer of the International Service Agency, Mr. William Myers Sr. of the National Health Agency and Mr. Sam Franklin III, chairman of this year's United Way campaign in Columbus and Phenix City.

This is the seventh year that the CFC has been held at Ft. Benning, but the post has been joining forces with the community for 27 years to contribute to worthwhile causes.

Based on current strength, this year's goal of $240,000 could be exceeded by more than $60,000 if each person assigned used the payroll deduction method of giving to donate just $1 a month for the coming year.



Last year the campaign raised more than $243,000 in the Columbus-Phenix City-Ft. Benning Community.

Traffic violations can cost . . .

Have you ever experienced that knot of fear in the pit of your stomach as you see a policeman wave you over? That fear of being caught lasts a few seconds, but then anger looms. Hopefully, you would be upset with yourself for being in the wrong; however, you're usually upset with yourself because you got caught.

The Ft. Benning military police have the responsibility for traffic control on the reservation. A major portion of this job means stopping traffic violators on post.

Speeding is just one of many violations involving traffic. The citations are given to protect you or your family. An unsafe vehicle or a speeding car can cause damage that leaves a mark for life.

On the other side of the coin you, as a violator, can bring many inconveniences upon yourself. Did you know you can lose your driving privileges on post? And if you do it's all on your own action. USAIC Regulation 190-5 (Vehicle Traffic Regulations) outlines the list of violations, along with point values. If you incur 12 points in 12 months or 18 points in 24 months, you may have to hitch a ride to work.

Points will be assessed for traffic violations based on the following schedule. The Traffic Regulations Enforcement Officer may suspend a driver's on post driving privileges when appropriate. Suspension may be based on a maximum of 15 days of each point accumulated.

Points assessed against an individual will remain in effect for a 24 month period or until separation from the service or termination of employment, whichever comes sooner.

One (1) year revocation is mandatory on conviction

Manslaughter (or negligent homicide by vehicle) resulting from operation of motor vehicle

Driving or being in physical control of a motor vehicle while under the influence (.10% or greater)

Driving while a habitual user or under the influence of any drug rendering the driver incapable or safe operation of a motor vehicle

Any felony in the commission of which a motor vehicle is used

Fleeing the scene — death or personal injury involved

Perjury or making false affidavit or statement under oath to responsible officials or under law or regulations relating to the ownership or operation of a motor vehicle

Unauthorized use of a motor vehicle belonging to another which act does not amount to a felony

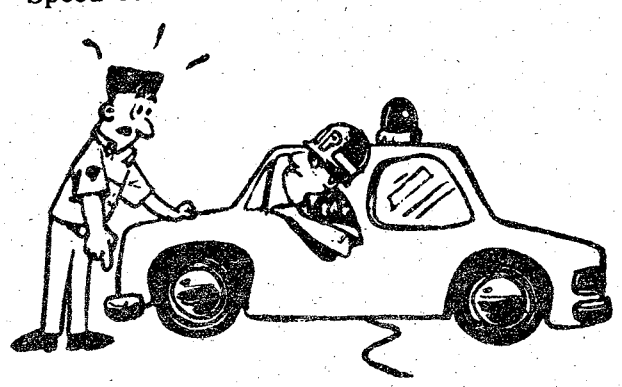
Six (6) months revocation is mandatory

Refusal to submit to chemical tests (implied consent)

Suspension for six (6) months or less or revocation for one (1) year or less is descretionary

Commission of an offense for which mandatory revocation is required on conviction

Incompetent to drive a motor vehicle (mental or physical impairment)



Has committed an offense off post which if committed on post would be grounds for suspension or revocation

Permitted unlawful or fraudulent use of an official driver's license

Has been convicted of fleeing or attempting to elude a police officer

Has been convicted of racing on the highway.

Revocation of Operating Privileges: The withdrawal of an individual's installation driving privileges for a period in excess of 180 days shall be considered revocation of operating privileges. Appropriate state motor vehicle authorites are notified of all revocations of driving privileges.

This is not a scare tactic; it's fact. Revocation or suspension is inconvenient and frustrating.

The military police have two hand-held radar guns, two globe radar units and two vascar units. These speed-detective devices are utilized throughout post on unannounced schedules. This is fair warning.

Do you want to stop worrying about radar? Drive safely!

Amateur radio is definitely a step up from CB. But ask yourself "Do I really need to step up?" Here are some things you should take into consideration for forming your opinion.

License

A CB license is inexpensive and no technical examinations are required; one license is good for all authorized CB frequencies and covers all members of your immediate family.

A ham license is also inexpensive but requires passing both an electronics and a Morse Code test (granted the Novice class exams are easy to pass, but frequencies, transmission modes and power are restricted).

There are several different classes of Amateur licenses carrying different privileges, all of which require separate exams and the license is only good for one person.

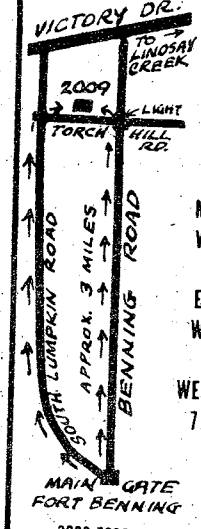
Equipment

CB transceivers are inexpensive (some are even cheap), easy to operate and require no elaborate antenna or installation.

Ham gear is generally more expensive, somewhat more complicated to access communication.

Ham radio is highpower, operate and may require several different antennas or special equipment.

General



CB offers low-power, short-range, universal-long-range, limited access communications.

So there it is — if you like the idea of building your own transmitter or receiver, or if you get a kick out of operating an amateur radio station that's more powerful than some commercial ones, or if you're into shooting skip from Podunk to Petaluma or Poughkeepsie to Patagonia, by all means get into ham radio.

But if you're more into finding out where the good restaurants are in a strange town; or always having someone to talk to, especially in an emergency; or just being able to listen in on the discussion of whether it was Aunt Fannie who threw an ironing board at Uncle Elmer or Uncle Elmer who threw a pie at Aunt Fannie; well, good buddy, welcome to the wild and wonderful world of CB-America's party line.

Doughboys lose tough opener to Livingston, 22-13

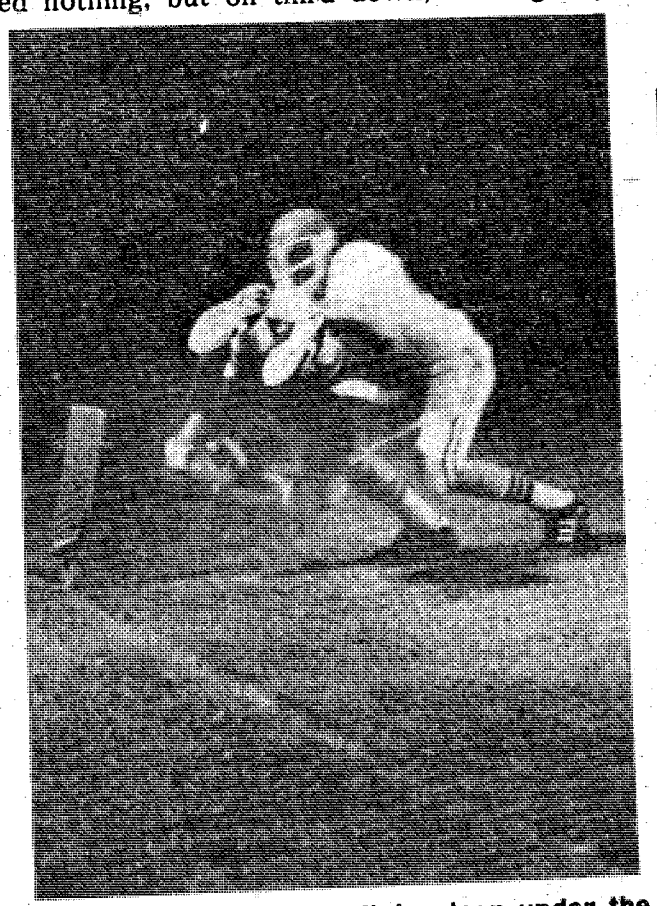
A bad snap from center to punter, a crucial pass interference call and two costly fumbles spelled an opening season loss for the Ft. Benning Doughboys to a populous and powerful Livingston University Team last Saturday night in Doughboy Stadium.

The Tigers, relentlessly pounding the wishbone attack against the Doughboy defense, took advantage of the breaks and good field position to take the game, 22-13.

In the wet first quarter, the Fort Benning defense dominated, repeatedly slamming Livingston runners to the grass for losses. Things looked bright for the Infantry when the defense took the ball on the Livingston 14 yard line. But tailback Arthur Hawkins was knocked loose from the ball two plays later, blunting the Doughboy thrust.

In the second quarter Livingston got the ball near the Benning goal. Two rushing plays earned nothing, but on third down, a Doughboy defensive back was called for interference and Livingston got new life on the Doughboy two yard line. Two plays later, Livingston quarterback Ricky Seale threw to end Waymond Edwards for the first score. The half ended with Dave Ward just missing a 36 yard field goal, and the Doughboys went into halftime scoreless.

Early in the third quarter a mishandled punt gave Benning the ball on the Livingston 28 yard line. Successive runs by Joe Duenas, Julian Williams and Arthur Hawkins carried the ball across the goal.

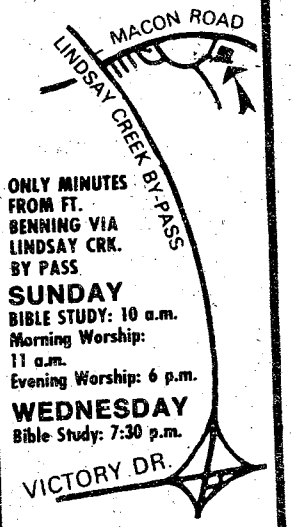


Things got bleak for the Doughboys following their first score. Fumbles and pass interceptions repeatedly gave Livingston the ball in Infantry territory. A touchdown and a two point conversion gave them a 15-7 lead, and a second touchdown proved to be the winning margin.

But far from collapsing, the Doughboys fought back with their longest sustained drive of the game, capped by Dave Simpson's not-to-be-denied romp to the end zone with a Duenas pass. Everyone knew the two-point conversion attempt was coming, and the Livingston defense buried Duenas as he fought for the goal line.

Tomorrow night the Doughboys tackle a big Ft. Bragg team. The old rivalry between Benning and Bragg will be revived in Doughboy Stadium.

"All we know about the Bragg team is that they're big and aggressive," reports Coach Jack Burham. "Beating us will make their season for them, so they'll come to play."



Barham gave no excuses for the Livingston loss. "We faced a very good college football team, and except for some bad bounces of fate and footballs we could have won it. If anything, we got outcoached, which can happen when off-duty amateurs face full time professionals. We wanted very much to repay the support and enthusiasm of the Benning community with a win. But the season is just starting and I'm confident that we are going to win a lot of ball games. Even amateur coaches can learn from mistakes."

Dave Simpson takes a flying leap under the arms of a Livingston defender for the final score of Saturday's game.

197th Support Bn gets new commander

Command of the 197th Support Bn, 197th Inf Bde changed hands last week in ceremonies conducted at brigade headquarters, Kelley Hill.

LtCol. William McDonald assumed command of the battalion from LtCol. James Bagdanov who commanded the unit since March 1976 and has been assigned as the Senior Army Advisor to the 122nd Support Group of the Montgomery National Guard in Alabama.

Prior to assuming his new duties, McDonald was the Assistant G-4 Advisor for the Ministry of Defense and Aviation Resources in Saudi Arabia.

Early outs are out

Most 'early outs' are out, say DA personnel staffers.

All Army personnel, both officer and enlisted, who have incurred service obligations, to include promotion lock-ins, should be prepared to serve the full obligation prior to separate.

In recent years a liberal waiver policy has been in effect as the Army decreased in size. But from now, unqualified resignations, retirement applications and requests for release from active duty which involved the waiver of a service obligation must be fully documented, say the staffers.

Generally, waivers granted will be based on documented hardships which did not exist at the time the obligation was incurred and which will be helped by the service member's separation from active duty. More details are in ARs 635-100, 635-120 and 135-200.

company-sized ARTEPs will be used by the battalion and brigade to evaluate the effectiveness of past training and assess future training needs."

Preparing for the ARTEP is a continuous project beginning with individual training in basic soldier skills during which each soldier must demonstrate proficiency; followed by squad and platoon level drills stressing teamwork and coordination.

Tactical Exercises Without Troops (TEWTs) are conducted to give squad leaders and platoon sergeants the opportunity to apply the techniques of tactical employment of their units without taking valuable training time from the soldier.

Command Post Exercises (CPXs) are conducted by commanders and staffs allowing them to concentrate on planning and exercising the tactical and administrative details of the battle.

The ARTEP will evaluate the unit's ability to function in all these areas and terminates with a three-day company exercise under simulated combat conditions. This includes a live-fire exercise in which the company pools its manuever and firepower assets to capture a designated objective. Evaluators will observe the company's maintenance, supply and administrative operations as well as its ability to take the objective using proven tactical doctrine.

According to LtCol. William Parks, the brigade S-3, "This in-house evaluation will be the stepping-stone to a battalion ARTEP administered by the Infantry Center in January. It should provide the commanders with an insight as to their strengths and shortcomings and advise them on where to place training emphasis."

"It's going to be a highly demanding and constructive training experience for the 1/58th Infantry," the colonel added. "In fact, additional evaluators will be on hand to insure that all aspects are thoroughly covered in the interest of getting the most from the ARTEP."

The Alcoholic: A sick person who needs help

Editor's note: The following is part 2 of a three part series explaining the symptoms of alcoholism, how the alcoholic thinks and rationalizes his or her condition and the way it affects family, friends and co-workers.

Alcoholism is a primary, progressive, chronic and fatal disease. It involves the whole person — physically, emotionally and spiritually.

It is also a delusionary condition which scrambles the mind of its victims. The very symptoms of the disease delude those afflicted into believing they are well people; consequently, the victim won't do anything to correct his/her behavior because he/she doesn't see anything wrong with it.

Examine the following statements. Some may help you better understand the abnormal behavior of someone you know.

"I Can't Be an Alcoholic Because I Only Drink on Weekends."

Many believe all alcoholics drink great quantities every day, but many alcoholics can go for weeks or months without taking a single drink.

It is not when or how often that indicates a drinking problem. It is the need for alcohol and the ability of the individual to control his drinking when he drinks. Anyone who has an uncontrolled, compulsive need to take a second, third or fourth drink is in trouble.

"He Drinks Too Much But He's Not That Bad Yet."

Abnormal drinking can and does remain hidden for a long time in our drinking society. People are so involved in their own problems that it takes time to notice a friend who drinks faster than others, more than others, more often than others and longer than others. By the time these habits become noticeable, the individual is definitely in need of help.

Alcoholism is progressive. Individuals in the earlier stages respond best to treatment. If intervention takes place early enough, the individual may be able to respond to reasoning once he understands the probable progression of his problem.

"I've Told Him He Drinks Too Much But He Will Not Listen."

General accusations pose no threat to the alcoholic. He doesn't see himself as different from normal, healthy people. He easily parries this type confrontation with one of his many automatic defenses. His responses are completely unpredictable but all are designed to discourage the concerned person from pursuing the subject. This is not difficult because the concerned person soon learns that rapid mood changes make the alcoholic a formidable person to confront. He is afraid to take a firm stand. He is afraid of the "bad scene" that may result. His attempts at intervention are feeble at best and in most cases the feeble effort is made primarily to ease the conscience of the concerned person.

"Why Doesn't he Stop? Can't he See What Alcohol is Doing to Him?"

The individual is usually in the advanced stages of alcoholism by the time relatives and other concerned people start to ask these questions.

He can't stop drinking but he wouldn't admit it to anyone. Not even to himself. A highly developed defense system keeps him out of touch with reality. Rationalization, to justify his behavior and projection of blame make it impossible for him to understand that he has a drinking problem. Denial becomes a compulsive defense. People believe he is lying but he is incapable of seeing himself as he really is. As his condition worsens his defense systems continue to grow so that he can survive in the face of his problems and this whole process is unconscious.

He is incapable of helping himself. He has become powerless over alcohol and his entire life has become unmanageable. He will continue to drink and his condition will get worse until someone establishes a situation that will make him understand his condition.

"Once an Alcoholic, Always an Alcoholic."

This statement is usually made when the alcoholic begins drinking again after a period "on the wagon." Friends feel that the victim has been "dry" long enough to get his thinking straight. They don't realize that nothing has really happened except that the alcoholic hasn't taken a drink for a period of time. He is still powerless over the effects of alcohol. Once he starts drinking, he is again overcome by an uncontrollable compulsion to drink more. His failure to control his drinking causes feelings of guilt and remorse too powerful to overcome by rationalization and projection and he can't repress them completely. He knows from experience that only one thing will quiet his quilt feelings — the euphoria provided by alcohol. So he drinks to forget then has to drink to forget again. He is on a merry-go-round he can't stop.

Alcoholism is chronic. Once you have it, you have it for life. But that doesn't mean there is no hope or help for the alcoholic. The disease cannot be cured but it can be arrested and will most certainly stay arrested as long as the alcoholic doesn't drink. This statement has visible proof in the recovery of thousands of alcoholics who are well today.

Concerned persons must realize the victim is powerless over alcohol. He needs help to stop drinking.

"You Can't Reason With Him. He'll Just Have to Reach Bottom Before He Stops Drinking."

The first part of his statement is correct. You can't reason with an alcoholic. His deluded condition precludes the acceptance of logic. This leads to the erroneous assumption that he will be unresponsive to any attempt to help him.

The alcoholic will respond to facts — facts presented in ways he must accept. Facts he cannot dispute. Specific and descriptive facts of events which have happened and conditions which exist. The alcoholic must be confronted with these facts in ways he can accept during a meeting with meaningful people. The atmosphere of the meeting should be serious but friendly and facts should be presented in a concerned manner. Judgmental or vindictive attitudes are counter-productive.

The purposes of a confrontation should be to present a volume of facts in a manner that will (1) demonstrate to the alcoholic that he is powerless over alcohol and that his life is unmanageable and (2) cause him to realize his need for help and to accept it.

Concerned people should keep in mind that these are the only objectives of the confrontation. Rehabilitation should be accomplished by responsible organizations specializing in this work.

Members of the post Alcohol and Drug Control Office (ADCO), telephone 545-5774 or 5880, are available to counsel and provide advice concerning the identification, confrontation and rehabilitation of the alcoholic.

T NCO earns academic honors

By LISA D'LUHY

Thomas Moore, Tactics Committee, 1st Bde, recently received a Certificate of emic Honor in Philsophy for the 1976-77 ol year from Columbus College. His emic excellence was cited by the Division anguage and Humanities.

oore has attended class at night since ember 1976 and has accumulated 55 ter-credit hours. He has also maintained a ect 4.0 average for three consecutive esters, which has been "the greatest ac-plishment I have ever made in my life," ac-ing to Moore.

has indeed been quite an accomplishment, idering that SFC Moore graduated from School in 1963, was then drafted into the y on April 8, 1964 and hadn't been to a an schooling until last September.

hilosophy is not a common course for most ple to dive into with the velocity that re did. "My mother always taught me t the way of life; philosophy is teaching the essence of life."

s personal philosophy is that "I will never d on my fellow man's head in order to e up." SFC Moore does not need to rely on rs for his own advancement. He proved — not only in his school work, but also in military career.

oming to Ft. Benning from Ft Dix, N.J. re he was a drill sgt for B Co, 1st Bn, 3rd BCT Bde. Moore was promoted to his present rank in May 1974. Shortly after that, he made a clean sweep of the Honor Drill Sgt. for the cycle by winning the title seven out of eight cycles.

Moore is presently the Principle Instructor for the Yellow Team of Squad Tactics.

Commenting on Moore's work in the classroom, Professor Charles Logue of Columbus College remarked, ". . . Sergeant Moore's personal convictions are involved in his Army career for he has not slighted his conscience to keep the excellence of his academic standards . . ."

NCOWC News

Craft Day

On September 6, members of the NCO Wives Club held their weekly craft day. Our quilt and the ceramic pieces for our upcoming October 3 ceramic games are really shaping up. With school opening and vacations coming to an end, we look forward to seeing more members participating, as we are two months away from our annual bazaar. Much work is ahead of us, and we need every member and their ideas to insure a successful bazaar.

Coffee Call and Gourmet Games

Chairman, Edith Morgan and her assistant, Lillian Lambert, along with other NCOWC members conducted the September 7 coffee call and the September 8 Gourmet bingo, at Martin Army Hospital. On the first and second Wednesdays of each month, coffee and donuts are served to the patients. Gourmet games is a special hour of games with the patients, one Thursday evening every month. Prizes for this event are various gourmet foods.

Monthly Coffee

43rd Engr Bn

The officers' wives of the 43rd Engr Bn met for their monthly coffee on September 1, at the home of Mrs. Stephen Barber.

Mrs. Stanley Domal, wife of the battalion commander, welcomed two new wives into the battalion; Mrs. Michael Faye, whose husband is the new commander of Co C and Mrs. Arnold Cheal, whose husband is the battalion S-3.

A fond farewell was given to Mrs. Anthony Cozier and Mrs. Scott Jackson. Mrs. Cozier will be joining the wives of the 36th Gp and Mrs. Jackson will be joining the wives of DFAE. The meeting was adjourned and groups were formed to work on the Christmas bazaar project. At the same time we all enjoyed the delicious fruit fondue and other desserts prepared by our hostess.

2/69th A

Hail and Farewell

The officers and wives of the 2/69th Ar met for their August Hail and Farewell at the Officers Club.

The farewells greatly outnumbered all other business, with eight Officers leaving us; Maj. and Mrs. Barry J. Roller, our battalion S-3 who will be going to Korea, Capt. Chaplain and Mrs. Michael Curzon, who have joined the 1st AIT Bde, Capt. Stephen P. Schultz, who has joined HQ Cmd. as commander of Co A, and Capt. and Mrs. Karl Zart, who will be attending IOAC. Leaving to attend Flight School at Fort Rucker are; Lt. and Mrs. Thomas Clark and Lt. and Mrs. Alexander Wells. Capt. and Mrs. Jack Pauling are leaving to join the ranks of a civilian life and job and will be working with Texas Instruments in Dallas. Capt. and Mrs. Harry R. Irwin are also leaving.

Welcomed into the battalion were; Capt. Chaplain and Mrs. James Holiday and two new little tankers. Our congratulations to Capt. and Mrs. Thomas Dudley, for their daughter, Laura Laine, and to Lt. and Mrs. Larry Lanzillotta, and their son, Lawrence Christopher. The parents were presented with a baby cup. A belated wedding tray was presented to Lt. and Mrs. Alexander Wells.

Farewell Coffee

A lovely coffee was the scene of the 2/69th Ar Officers' Wives meeting at the home of Mrs. Jeremy Miller.

The battalion was gathered for a farewell to Mrs. Fletcher Ware, who was the guest of honor.

It is impossible to say thank-you for all she has done and she will be greatly missed by all of us. She is an inspiration for all Army wives and we are sorry to see her leave the 197th Bde. Best wishes from all of us!

Farewell was also given to Mrs. Jack A. Pauling and a silver dish was presented to her from the battalion.

Welcomed at this event was Mrs. James Holiday.

Driving under the influence

Just when are you drunk?

A Georgia law which went into effect last year carries a stiff penalty for driving under the influence (DUI). It clarifies the obvious question — At what point are you "legally" too drunk to drive?

To begin with — if you're swerving down the highway or performing unsafe vehicular gyrations and the local constabulary sees you, chances are good that you'll be pulled over. Even if you are "stone sober," you're still subject to a routine check by the downtown or military police.

It doesn't matter if you have the smell of booze on your breath or not, or if you can function normally in every way.

In determining whether you're "legally drunk," a blood/alcohol test is given. If the alcohol content in your blood exceeds one tenth of one per cent (.10%), then you are drunk — simple as that. And one DUI conviction is all that's needed to cost you your driving privileges.

To put this .10% in better perspective, let's examine what it takes to get you "legally drunk" or better yet, what it takes to keep you sober from the standpoint of operating a motor vehicle.

Unless you weigh under 150 pounds or haven't eaten all day, four ounces of alcohol within the first hour you drink will keep you sober enough to drive — legally. However, this will not guarantee that you'll be able to drive safe and unimpaired. If you drink one ounce of alcohol or less each subsequent hour, you can be relatively assured of being legally safe to drive. If you're a beer drinker, substitute one 12-ounce serving of beer for each ounce of alcohol.

Under normal circumstances the body is capable of disposing of one ounce of alcohol per hour. However, the number and kinds of drinks that will get a person drunk vary from person to person. In fact, in the same individual the effect of alcohol will vary depending upon circumstances. Variables include:

- How fast the person drinks,
- Types of beverages,
- Body weight,
- Whether the person has eaten,
- Individual body chemistry,
- Drinking history and experience and
- Such things as current mood and attitude.

If the thought of losing your driving priviledges worries you and the blood/alcohol content percentages confuse you, there is a solution. Don't drink if you're going to drive.

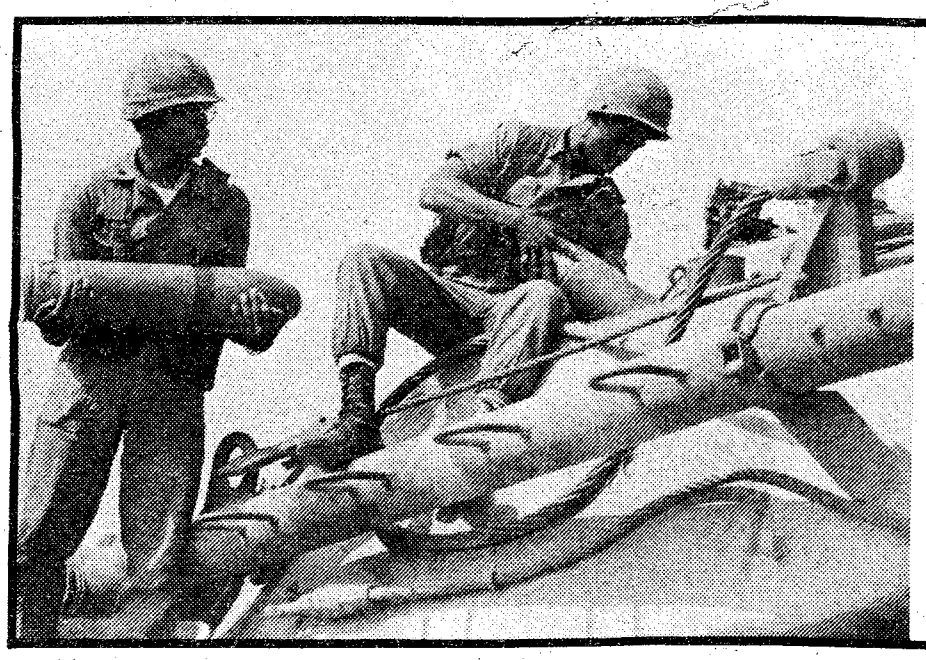
Last week 12 Ft. Benning Post Exchange patrons discovered the hard way that shoplifting is a crime punishable by Georgia and military law.

Between the two categories of shoplifters, professional and amateur, the exchange system world-wide is ripped off for approximately $10 billion annually. Some people do it for kicks, others for the money and a few because there is something mentally wrong with them. But no matter the reason, it costs you, the honest patron, additional dollars in higher prices passed on to cover the losses.



PX customers on post can help themselves by getting involved in the Army and Air Force Exchange System (AAFES) loss-prevention program. Every dishonest act by an exchange employee or customer should be of concern to all other customers and employees.

At Ft. Benning, the PX facilities have several store detectives walking around the store. If any individual appears to be acting suspicious or if he or she looks suspicious, such as the wearing of a large, heavy overcoat during a sizzling hot day, of if he or she makes certain

Soldier of the Year recognized in ceremonies

The first enlisted women to be named Ft. Benning Soldier of the Year was awarded the Army Commendation Medal by MajGen. William J. Livsey in ceremonies Wednesday.

In presenting the award to PFC Grace A. Hammack, Co B, HQ Cmd, Livsey noted that he often presented such awards to officers and senior enlisted personnel, but "Nothing," he emphasized, "gives me more pleasure than giving an award to a young soldier!"

Hammack, who considers herself "still like everyone else," worked and studied hard to compete against the other soldiers. "I was at a disadvantage because I haven't been in the service very long," the 20-year-old parachute rigger stated.

In addition to the Army Commendation Medal, she received a plane ticket for a vacation in Hawaii where she will stay at the Hale Koa Armed Forces Hotel at Fort DeRussy. The trip includes commercial airfare, hotel accommodations for six nights and a cash award of $150.

This weekend she will stay in Atlanta as the guest of the Marriot Motor Inn and see the Rams-Falcon football game where she will be introduced to Joe Namath at half-time.

In addition, Hammack will receive a $25 savings bond from the First National Bank of Columbus, a $50 savings bond from the Columbus Bank and Trust Co., a $50 savings bond from the National Bank of Ft. Benning and $100 from The Ledger-Enquirer newspaper.

The Association of the United States Army (AUSA) is giving her a three-year membership, a Certificate of Achievement and a trip to Disneyworld in conjunction with the Recruiting Command, with all expenses paid up to $250. She will also be an honored guest at the AUSA picnic on September 24.

Additionally, she will receive an Infantry statuette and plaque from the Sergeant Major Association, a Certificate of Merit and special recognition at various United States Army Infantry Center (USAIC) functions, including a luncheon with the USAIC Command Sergeant Major.

Other awards include a set of dress blues and recognition from the Columbus and Phenix City Chamber of Commerce. She will also be exempt from the duty roster for six months.

A native of California, Hammack has been in the Army a year. In addition to being named post Soldier of the Year, she was honor graduate of her airborne class and basic training cycle.

Air Force marks 30 years service

Sunday will mark the 30th anniversary of the United States Air Force. On Sept. 18, 1947, President Harry S. Truman signed the bill which established the Army Air Corps as a separate service.

The new service began proving its worth from the beginning when the Soviet Union clamped a land and rail blockade on West Berlin. The Air Force flew in nearly two and one-half million tons of food and supplies during the Berlin Airlift to save the city from Communist domination. Since then, it has proven its worth during the Korean and Vietnam conflicts.

During its first 30 years, the Air Force has grown from subsonic, reciprocating-engine aircraft to supersonic jets. Its intercontinental ballistic missiles and manned bombers have joined with submarine-launched missiles as the bulwark against nuclear aggression.

In addition to discharging its number one responsibility — the conduct of defensive and offensive air operations for the Nation — the Air Force has provided aid in time of natural disaster, not only in the U.S., but also throughout the world. Research and development in military technology has also yielded dividends in civilian business and industry. Health care has prospered from the Air Force research and development programs. As the primary space agency within the Department of Defense, the Air Force has also been closely connected with the U.S. space program.

New consumer products, materials and techniques generated by military departments are readily apparent. Less obvious is the great national contribution of human resources. The Air Force trains thousands of specialists each year. When these personnel return to civilian life, they take their skills with them.

The success of Air Force growth and maturity can be judged by the degree in which they have provided the President with a full range of defense options. The people of the United States can be proud of the contributions the Air Force has made to insure a safe international environment while furthering the goals of the American society.

The Alcoholic: A sick person who needs help

Editor's note. The following is the last in a series dealing with the symptoms of alcoholism. It describes the phases an individual typically experiences in developing the disease and is based on a study done by Dr. E.M. Jellinek of more than 2,000 alcoholics (men and women). Not all symptoms occur in each person. However, they do serve as a general guideline.

One of the first symptoms is a blackout or alcohol induced amnesia. The person appears to have normal functioning but has no rememberance of things that happened when he is drunk.

Sneaking drinks is also one of the signs. Because of increased drinking some drinking is hidden from others around him. Also, more and more emphasis is placed on drinking.

Due to increased alcohol tolerance, he must drink faster and down more alcohol to get a "high." A person on his way to becoming an alcoholic also avoids referring to his own problem by mentioning someone in a higher position who drinks more than he does.

Blackouts, or loss of memory while drinking, begin to occur with more frequency and with lower amounts of alcohol. The potential alcoholic begins to drink at inconvenient times, such as at work. He also finds it difficult to control the amount he drinks.

Rationalizations are used to explain the increased drinking. He finds that he needs to use alibis more and more.

The problem drinker tries to win over people by spending money lavishly on others. When this doesn't work he becomes aggressive and begins to have more frequent fights and arguments. Feelings of remorse sometimes set in. He feels bad about his agression and guilty about his drinking behavior.

Sometimes he gets on what is known as the water wagon. This means he stops drinking for a short period of time. When the drinking starts back again, it's usually in lower class taverns and bars where people accept his behavior.

He sometimes drops his old friends, or they stop associating with him. Drinking begins to cause problems with job performance. Problems with the law might also occur. For instance, he might be stopped by police for driving under the influence (DUI) or disorderly conduct.

The problem drinker's family might start to reject him. If this happens, he usually seeks help, not for his real problems but to help "smooth things over at home." This doesn't help, because he often resents any attempts to help him.

Sometimes these people seek to escape their problem by moving to another location.

To be sure there's always a drink available he buys extra bottles and hides them from his family. He often starts drinking on aday to day basis.

Signs of physical decay become evident and paranoia often develops. He drinks more often, stays drunk more often and is drunk for longer periods of time. His sense of ethics begins to deteriorate and he will do anything to maintain his supply of alcohol. Lying, cheating and stealing are seen by him to be solutions for his problem.

The alcoholic's thinking processes become impaired and illogical. Jealousy, both of his family and the people he works with, begins to set in. Indefinable fears also begin to grow in his mind. He might become afraid of automobiles, people who look like someone he knows or of what will happen in the future. Often he begins to imagine people to be other than they are.

His hands will probably start to shake and he'll start to complain of "bad nerves." He begins to feel imbalanced, starts walking with his feet farther apart and has poor coordination.

Often a religious need sets in. He begins to feel that he is dying and start to look for help higher up.

It's a vicious circle. He drinks, stops, drinks, stops, etc. until one of three results occurs: recovery, insanity or death.

This information is intended as a general guideline. If you feel that you or a member of your family is developing a problem with alcohol, call Ft. Benning Alcohol and Drug Control office (ADCO) at 545-5774 or 5880 for information or assistance.

Can you pass this test? Do you dare to take it?

A recovered alcoholic says that if you want to find out in secret whether or not you have alcoholic tendencies, you should try this simple, month-long test.

For 30 days, before every evening meal, drink one drink and no more: one ounce of liquor, or a 12-ounce can of beer, or a 7-ounce glass of wine. This one drink will be your sole intake of alcohol for the day. You must follow the rule exactly: no missing days and saving up drinks, or any excuse for compromising the test, such as joyous or troubled circumstances. You do have your druthers, however, on choice of beverages, since one ounce of liquor, 12 ounces of beer, or 7 ounces of wine are the same amount of alcohol.

If you take only the one drink each day, you are not alcoholic and you pass this test 100 per cent, unless you're one of those rare binge-drinkers who teetotals virtually all the time but blasts himself out of his gourd for a week two or three times a year.

Any scoring must be done with this principle in mind — an alcoholic can choose to drink or not to drink, but an alcoholic can never regulate the amount he drinks.

How do you score a minor failure, an extra drink on a day here, a day there? On days you couldn't control the amount, you were drinking alcoholically, though you may not be an alcoholic.

What if you busted the test? Or more likely called it stupid and didn't take it. If the latter is the case, beware — no real alcoholic will own up to his drinking, much less take a test on it. In either case, you have every symptom of the disease called alcoholism.

Would a social drinker who uses more than one drink a day flunk the test? Not necessarily, because the social drinker can stop any time.

The alcoholic who suggests this test is one of those who has recovered from the disease of alcoholism. At the moment, he works in one of the many Service alcoholic prevention clinics, but he has earned a promotion and is going back to line duty.

He truly knows the score; but the real test to pass on drinking, he says, is the day-to-day test — the one called the test of life.

How to cope with the alcoholic

Do:

- Try to remain calm, unemotional and factually honest in speaking with the problem drinker about his or her behavior and its day-to-day consequences.
- Let the problem drinker know that you are reading and learning about alcoholism, attending Al-Anon family groups, and the like.
- Discuss the situation with someone you trust — a clergyman, social worker, a friend, or some individual who has experienced alcoholism either personally or as a family member.
- Establish and maintain a healthy atmosphere in the home, and try to include the alcoholic member in family life.
- Explain the nature of alcoholism as an illness to the children in the family.
- Encourage new interests and participate in leisure-time activities that the problem drinker enjoys. Encourage him or her to see old friends.
- Be patient and live one day at a time. Alcoholism generally takes a long time to develop, and recovery does not occur overnight. Try to accept setbacks and relapses with calm and understanding.
- Refuse to ride with the alcoholic person if he or she insists on drinking and driving.

Don't:

- Attempt to punish, threaten, bribe, preach, or act like a martyr. Avoid emotional appeals which may only increase feelings of guilt and the compulsion to drink.
- Allow yourself to cover-up or make excuses for the alcoholic person or shield him or her from the realistic consequences of alcoholic behavior.
- Take over responsibilities, leaving the alcoholic person with no sense of importance or dignity.
- Hide or dump bottles, or shelter the problem drinker from situations where alcohol is present.
- Argue with the alcoholic person when he or she is drunk.
- Try to drink along with the problem drinker.
- Above all, do not accept guilt for another's behavior.

movements, the individual is carefully watched or followed.

Apprehension of the alleged shoplifter is not conducted inside the store. Once the customer is outside the store, he is followed outside by the store detective and brought back by the detective to the manager's office.

Under Article 121, UCMJ (Larceny), a military shoplifter may receive a verbal reprimand or receive the maximum punishment of a bad conduct discharge, six months to five years in jail, forfeiture of all pay and allowances and in addition to all that, the revocation of his or her exchange privileges to include those of his or her dependents as well.

Civilian shoplifters, including dependents, are liable to receive a stretch in jail and have their exchange privileges revoked.

Now . . . is all that worth stealing that pack of smokes or that luncheon meat? So what, you say? So, let's stamp out, or at least, cut down shoplifting at Ft. Benning! Shoplifting is a crime. It rips-off all of us!!!

New for the new as 6th moves in

By BETTY ZIMMERMAN

The newly activated 6th Bn of the 1st AIT Bde began moving into their new Sand Hill barracks September 6. Trainees are scheduled to begin arriving on September 22 and training will begin on the 26th.

The cadre are busy with last minute administrative preparations and working hard to get the furniture and equipment installed. The dining facility opened for limited business on the 13th and its personnel are making final preparations for serving the trainees next week.

The building is ultra-modern, air-conditioned and designed to efficiently use all space. Each complex houses five companies complete with cadre rooms, lounges, administrative areas, equipment scrub rooms, arms room, study areas and even covered drill and PT areas.

LtCol. Edmund Glabus is the 6th Bn commander with Maj. Raymond Wagner serving as executive officer. "Cadre of the battalion are really enthusiastic about the facilities and anxious to get the program started," offered Wagner.

Several NCOs with 20 to 30 years in the Army commented, "I wish I was just starting out again, these new trainees will have it made in these luxurious surroundings."

Five companies totaling 1,170 men will live in this battalion complex which contains 247,600 square feet.

Single beds, large built-in lockers and individual electric receptacles highlight the 55-man bay areas of Co A, 6th Bn in the first of the new complexes in Sand Hill.

The barracks presently housing the third platoon of C-2-1 were constructed in 1940 for temporary use during the World War II buildup, but must suffice until all of the proposed complexes are funded and built.

Double tiers of bunks and shoes under the bed are the customary sight in the current AIT barracks located in North Harmony Church.

State tax withholding makes tax records more important

Now that state taxes are being withheld from military pay for some states, soldiers should be especially careful about keeping their tax records straight.

Each soldier must declare a legal residence. In each case, the Form W-4 (Employees Withholding Examption Certificate) is the document which lists legal residence for federal and state tax withholding.

Army Finance officials say that the W-4 Form is required and must be submitted by each solider on active duty. Officials cautioned that when preparing the form the words "HOME ADDRESS" must be crossed out and the soldier's "LEGAL RESIDENCE" placed in this block.

The same W-4 prepared for federal tax will also be used for state tax withholding unless the number of exemptions claimed is different. In the case of conflicting exemptions, a separate Form W-4 should be submitted to show the number of exemptions claimed for state tax purposes.

At the end of the calendar year, when a solider retires, or upon separation from the Army, each soldier receives the Internal Revenue Service Form W-2. This form contains the year-to-date taxable income, federal and state tax withheld, FICA wages and FICA tax for the year. Each form comes in four copies: Copy B, which is attached to the federal tax return; Copy C, for the soldier's file; and Copies one and two for attachment to the state city or local return, if the soldier is required to file state tax.

Servicemembers leaving the Army before the end of the calendar year will be issued a W-2 Form from the last duty station and should store this record in a safe place until filing time.

Lost W-2 Forms can cause problems. Soldiers assigned to Benning who lose, do not receive or find mistakes on their 1977 W-2 must initiate a Pay Inquiry (DA Form 2142) through their unit to the local Finance and Accounting Office.

Requests for reissuance or correction of the W-2 Form for retired or separate soldiers should be sent to: Commander, USAFAC, Attn: Dept. 40, Indianapolis, Ind., 46249. The request must be signed by the former servicemember and must include the social security number and date of separation.

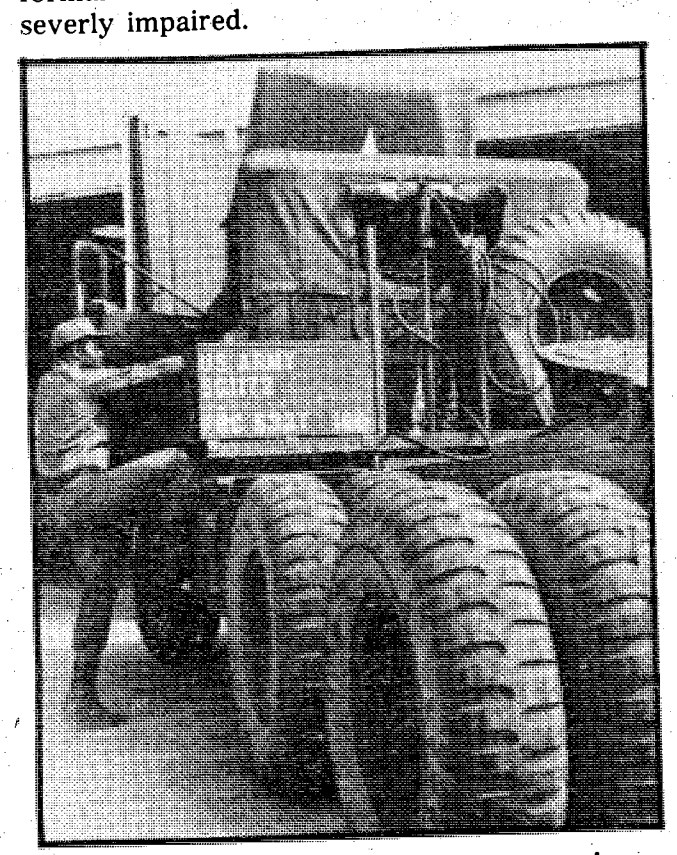
Transportation Corps crucial in war and peace

By PAT EVANS

Firepower and mobility — two ingredients important to success in tactical operations. Mobility is transportation. . .using vehicles and equipment to do the job in the best, fastest way. It also means people who know how to use them properly. That's where the Transportation Corps come in.

In wartime, the Corps is faced with the task of moving both men and material in enormous quantities to far flung corners of the globe. But during peacetime, the mission requirements are only slightly diminished. At Ft. Benning and other similiar installations, transportation support is critical to training and day-to-day operations.



Long Hard Hours

As part of the 67th Maintenance Bn, providing service and support through transportation is what the 533rd Trans. Co. (MDM-Truck) and the 444th Trans. Co. (Light-MDM-Truck) are all about. Whether transporting ammo to the ranges from the Ammunition Supply Point (ASP) or supporting the AIT Brigade and the Infantry School, the truck drivers from these two transportation companies work long hard hours to see to it that their trucks arrive at the designated point on time.

It's not unusual for drivers to start their day as early as 3 a.m. and work through late evening. During that time the driver may accumulate in excess of several hundred miles, depending on the committment.

Anyone would tend to get tired of the long working hours after an extended period of time, but for the most part the drivers are happiest when they are able to do their job — trucking!

In order to keep on trucking, the men and women of the 444th and 533rd spend a great deal of time pulling maintenance on their deuce and a halves and 5-ton tractor trailers. Without daily maintenance the safety and performance of each and every vehicle would be severly impaired.

Sgt. James Stathums, 533rd Trans., makes a safety and maintenance check on a ten-ton tractor trailer before going on a mission.

Pvt. John Savcedo (l) and Sp4 Alexix Guynn, both of 533rd Trans., work on repairing the valve covers of a ten-ton tractor trailer.

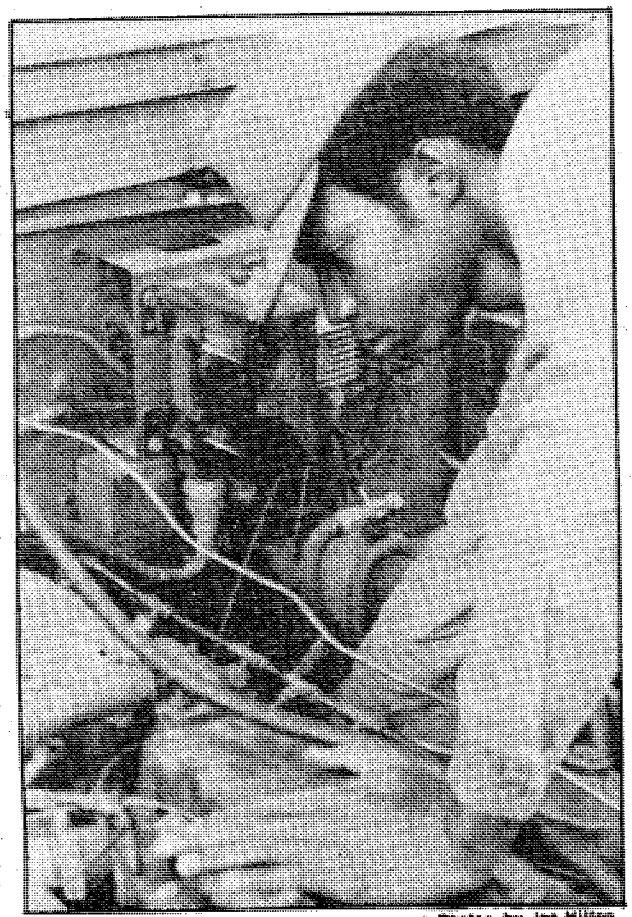
Many times the truck drivers must wait countless hours while on a particular committment, but waiting because of vehicular failure is another thing altogether. Without military radios or the CB's civilian truckers use, help is usually a long time coming when they break down miles from the motor pool.

Transporting Personnel

In addition to hauling cargo, the 444th is tasked with the transportation of personnel as well.

Naturally when transporting people, not only is it important to arrive on time, but also to arrive safely. To insure driving safety, all new drivers are required to meet the stringent standards of the two trucking companies. Even after AIT, the new driver must obtain a Defensive Driving Card, take an eye test, and is put through a rigorous road test.

The award most cherished by the truck driver is the safe-drivers award which is presented by the company commander for accident-free driving. Establishing ten-thousand or more accident-free miles isn't an easy task when driving the cumbersome Army trucks over terrain which is oftentimes best suited for jeeps.



Truck driving used to be the sole dominion of the male. Today the woman driver is not such an uncommon sight in Army motor pools. Most women truck drivers readily admit they encountered some initial problems with non-acceptance from their male counterparts and company commanders who were quick to relegate them to clerk status. The women who really wanted to drive have gained the respect and acceptance of virtually every man in the 533rd and 444th.

Distinguished War Records

During WWII, the 533rd served on practically every island in the South Pacific. Since then the company has served in the southern Philippines, Japan, Germany and Lebanon before coming to Ft. Benning.

In addition to its own travels, the 444th amassed an incredible record in Vietnam. The company participated in almost every major offensive and counter-offensive movement of the Vietnam Conflict. The truckers left Vietnam with over ten campaign decorations.

War records and daily committments adding up to millions of motor-driven miles each year don't impress you? Think about that last 25-mile road march or field problem you participated in when you and your buddies marched into the rest area and found a full course hot meal waiting for you . . . trucked in, of course.

Northern Ireland Conflict expert stationed at Benning

By JULIE CASEY

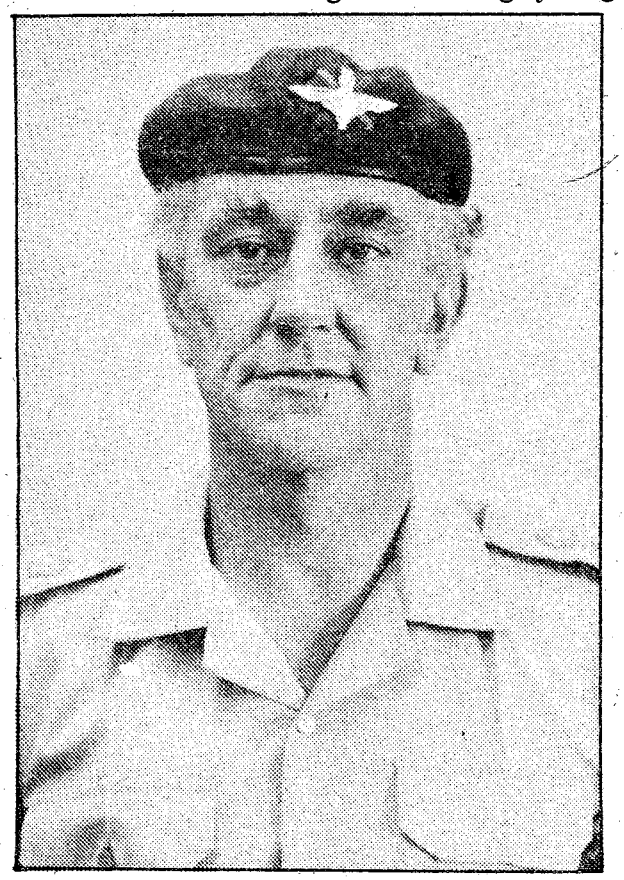
A veteran of the Northern Ireland conflict, LtCol. John E. Giles serves as British Liaison Officer here.

Asked how he liked Ft. Benning, he stated, "Oh I love it, great place . . . there is everything that you can possibly do here, from free style parachuting to needlepoint."

He is, in a sense, the ambassador between the British and the U.S. Armies. He is also here to observe training methods of the U.S. Infantry.

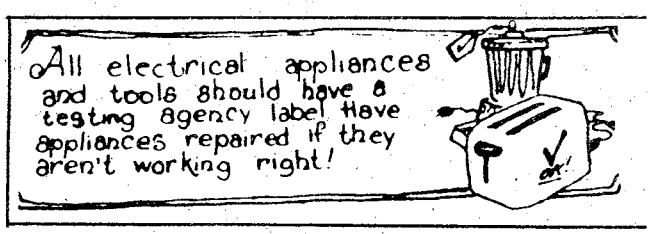
LtCol. Giles has served in Northern Ireland for nearly three years during the eight years of the Northern Ireland conflict.

When asked if he thought the average young British soldier was ready for battle, he replied, "Oh yes."



"You know, we are fighting a bit of a war in Northern Ireland," he remarked. "The self discipline of the private soldier, in particular, has got to be very hardy."

Four-man patrols operate in the cities and countryside, and are commanded by either a young officer or an NCO equivalent in rank to an E-5, according to LtCol. Giles.



He went on to explain, "They could be walking in downtown Belfast, for instance, then something will happen. You've got a riot, or maybe a sniper, or a bomb incident. You have got to react very quickly but in a very restrained and self-controlled manner."

He went on with strong emphasis, "The young soldier can't always have someone there to tell him what to do, and he has to act quickly and correctly. I have nothing but praise for these young men."

Because of his experiences, LtCol. Giles is considered an authority on the conflict in Northern Ireland and spends part of his time in the States lecturing across the country on the subject.

AFGE nixes military union

The American Federation of Government Employees (AFGE) local unions have rejected, by a 4 to 1 margin, the idea of organizing military personnel, according to AFGE officials.

In announcing the decision, AFGE National President Kenneth T. Blaylock told newsmen, "It is my intention to live by this decision. Press speculation to the contrary, we will not be acting to organize military personnel now, nor at any time in the foreseeable future."

Earlier, AFGE's 1,566 local unions were polled by mail-in ballot. More than 60 per cent of the union's membership was represented by the poll results. About 80 per cent of those responding voted "no" to the poll question: "Should the national president of AFGE be directed to commence organizing and representing members of the uniformed military service?"

When local memberships voted on the question, the results were marked on a ballot and returned to AFGE's national office. The response of each local union was weighted by the actual voting membership of the local union, say the AFGE officials.

Blaylock said the rejection vote seems to indicate that AFGE members want more of the union's resources to be spent on organizing a larger percentage of the federal civilian work force rather than the military.

Last month, the Senate Armed Services Committee unanimously approved legislation banning military unions. The Committee's bill is not yet scheduled for Senate floor action.

A draft of a DoD directive dealing with the subject of military unions appeared in the August 16 edition of the Federal Record. The public has until September 15 to comment on the draft directive. (ARNEWS)

'Cadillacs' rollin' in

Do you ever wish you could go back through the waves of time to that fabulous era of rock and roll?

"The Cadillacs," a dance and show band, will be appearing at the Ft. Benning Officer's Supper Club tomorrow and at the Top Five Club on Saturday from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Admission is $2 per person in advance, $2.50 at the door. Tickets may be purchased from the respective clubs.

The eight-member band, comprised mostly of Auburn University students, will be playing to bring its audience that feeling of pride, fun, heartbroken love and everything else that was a part of those rock and rolling fifties!

But they don't stop there. They lead into the early sixties and that soul sound, all the way up to the Beach Boy days of Surfin' Safari. Their music will conjur up thoughts of beach parties, drag races, sock hops and — last, but not least — hoods in leather jackets!

Maybe you were there, maybe you weren't. But now's your chance to be a part of those days that were fun to live and easy to sing about — the days of rock and roll.

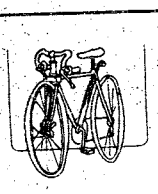
Sometimes, you can hear strange noises on the CB like clicks, buzzes, whistles and whines. But stranger still is the vocabulary of my friend the Mad Doctor. Here's just a part of my last QSO with him:

"How are you, MD? You sound a little strange today."



"A caucus of streptococci have taken abode in my elocutionary pandiculation causing rubescence, excruciation and a balneal proboscis."

"I dunno about that, sounds more like you got a cold. Are you taking anything for it?"

"I am preparing to repose myself in the arms of Morpheus, having imbibed a sufficiency of liquefaction and masticated a febrifuge of acetylsalicylic acid."

"You better be careful, that stuff will rot your teeth. I think you should take some aspirin, drink plenty of fluids, go to bed and call me tomorrow."

"Indeed, I shall endeavor to perceive your vocal presence upon the morrow."

Wheels set in motion for Annual AUSA picnic

This year's annual picnic sponsored by the Columbus-Phenix City-Ft. Benning Chapter, Association of the US Army will be held at Victory Lodge on September 24.

The 36th Engr Gp again will construct a 211 foot light tactical raft (bridge) across Victory Pond to make both sides accessible to rides, entertainment and games. The light-weight structure, assembled completely by hand, is capable of supporting up to 38,000 pounds.

Another feature this year will be boat rides for the kids. The engineers will provide two, 27-foot boats to transport youngsters back and forth across the pond.

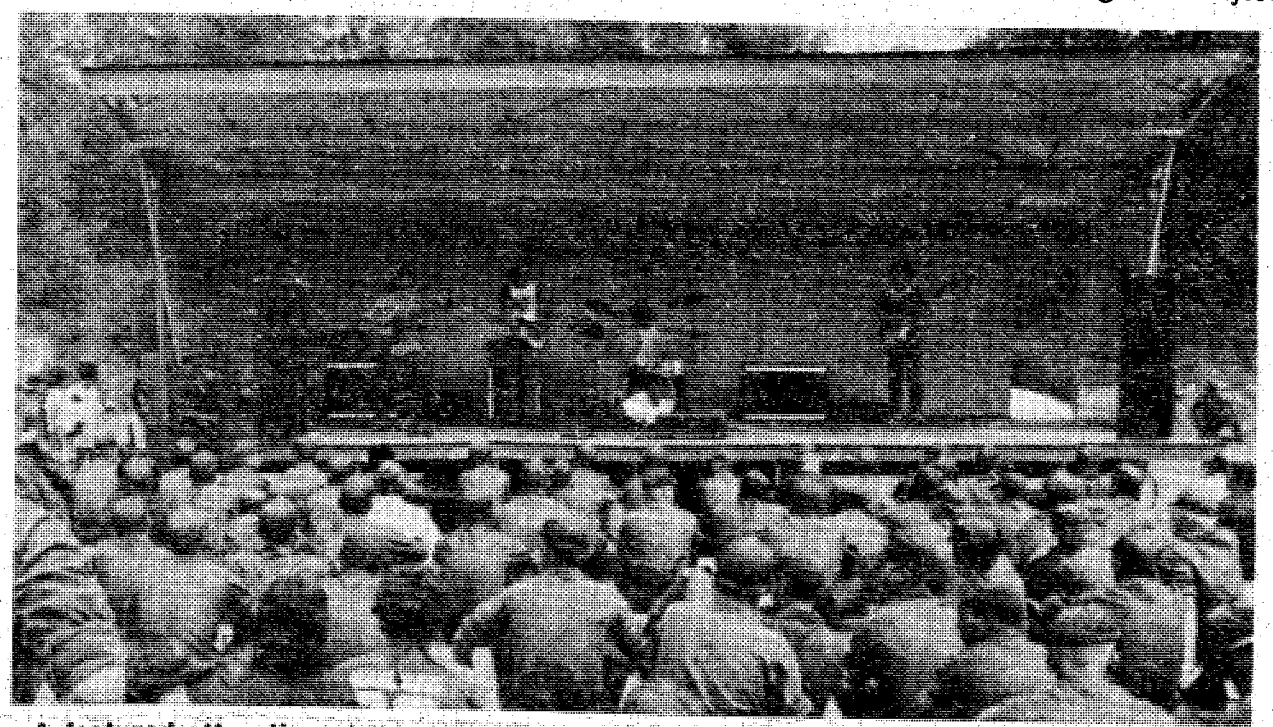
Another attraction will be a Battle of the Bands contest at 1 p.m. on a special dance floor adjacent to Victory Pond. First place winners will pocket $200 in cash, second place winners, $150 and third place finishers will take home $50.

Each band will judged on technical excellence, selection of material, showmanship and audience appeal.

Food, music, square dancers, demonstrations, kiddy rides, displays and a carnival-type midway are some of the other attractions to be found at this year's event. Festivities will start at noon and continue throughout the afternoon.

The picnic menu will offer a wide variety of food, ranging from barbecue to hotdogs and hamburgers. There will also be baked beans, cole slaw, and potato salad. Beer, soft drinks and coffee will be thirst quenchers.

Displays will include a tank, armored personnel carriers, jeeps, Gama Goats, parachute maintenance, marksmanship, medical equipment, Infantry Board weapons and communications equipment.



Rides for youngsters will include four ponies, a fire engine, Gama Goats, jeeps and boats. They will also receive helium-filled balloons.

Starting at noon will be an exhibition of Rangers in action, followed by sky diving and a scout dog show. Throughout the afternoon, the midway will feature such games as a shooting gallery, horseshoes, dart board, ball toss, coin toss with large and small prizes going to the winners of the curious games of skill.

Musical entertainment will be provided by the 283rd Band and the Infantry Chorus. Also, for the younger set, a soldier disc jockey, known as 'BJ the DJ,' will be spinning a variety of music including hard rock, jazz, soul and country and western, inside the Lodge for dancing and listening.

Two shuttle buses will be available to transport guests from Main Post, Martin Army Hospital, Kelley Hill and Harmony Church areas to Victory Lodge. The buses will begin service at 10:30 a.m. and provide continuous round trip transportation until the final guest has departed the picnic area.

Tickets for the picnic, $3 for adults and $1.50 for children 2 to 10 years of age, are on sale at the Columbus and Phenix City Chambers of Commerce, local banks, the post Public Affairs Office and unit sergeants major.

A featured attraction at the AUSA annual picnic again this year will be the Battle of the Bands. Beginning at 1 p.m. on a special dance floor adjacent to Victory Pond, local bands will compete for a first place prize of $200 in cash.

988th MPs 'max out' day early

Combined Federal Campaign underway

If everyone on post shows the same spirit and generosity as the 988th MP Co, Law Enforcement Command, Ft. Benning will have no trouble reaching its $240,000 goal in this year's Combined Federal Campaign (CFC).

One day before the official CFC kick-off on September 8, the 174-member company, commanded by Capt. Jean F. Burleson, announced they had already achieved 100 per cent participation with a total of $3530.00 received in pledges and cash donations.

"Unfortunately," stated John L. McCaskill Jr. post CFC project officer, "many units are not showing such commandable enthusiasm, and we are getting off to a slow start.

"It's my hope that major unit commanders and activity chiefs will canvass their personnel and solicit donations in the very near future so we can reach our goal as soon as possible."

The CFC, representing United Way, Inc., National Health agencies and International Services agencies, is a yearly, one-time solicitation for contributions from Federal employees, both military and civilians, in the Columbus-Ft. Benning-Phenix City area. A total of 46 individual agencies will benefit from contributions received during this year's campaign.

Persons wishing to contribute may do so either by payroll deductions or by cash or check contributions. However, most people contacted appear to prefer the payroll deducation plan as being the simplest way to contribute.

Civilian employees who choose payroll withholding will have the indicated amount deducted each pay period beginning in January 1978 and ending in December 1978.

Military personnel, even though they are paid twice monthly, will have the authorized amount withheld on a once-monthly basis, beginning in January and ending in December 1978.

Buddy G. Sparks, president of the National Bank of Ft. Benning, presents a $1,000 check to BrigGen. Fred Mahaffey, assistant commandant, of USAIS, who accepted it on behalf of the combined federal campaign at the official kickoff ceremony last week.

Sportsman's Corner

By BILL RISTER

Most Bass fishermen search for that big Hawg day after day, but never stop to think about how that big one got that way.

Well, the cycle begins with the spawning season. This usually takes place in the Spring during the full moon phase. In some lakes this spawning activity can continue into the Summer.

When the temperature reaches around 65 degrees, the male reacts to an ancient chemistry that changes his thoughts from existence to creation. First he builds a nest or occupies a vacant one. Then he seeks out an eligible female. The female produces some 5,000 eggs, which after being fertilized by the male begins their life cycle.

Having performed her role, the female deserts the nest, leaving the male to protect the eggs. Within a week the eggs begin to hatch. In another two weeks the small develop tails, enabling them to swim.

The male having no food during the past few weeks attacks his brood, devouring some of the young. This episode is the first step in teaching the young fry the facts about survival. Out of those 5000 eggs, only a very few will survivie the disease and predators.

As the bass grows, its diet will include such creatures as bees, worms, crickets and various other insects. When he attains his full muscular growth he attacks anything that looks edible. The first time he sees a man-made lure he engulfs it and quickly learns of the danger of a new adversary. He leaps for his life, shaking his head to eject this thing that would trap him. If he is lucky he escapes, thus beginning his awareness of man.

The day arrives when he becomes mature. He then mates, raises the young and so on. As each day passes he grows a little more wiser by shunning man-made dangers, eating only when he feels the urge. He is now known by fishermen as the BIG HAWG.

The years, as well as bouts with, black grubs, tumors and parasites beset him, thus beginning the ageing process. Blindness and fungi enfeeble him. The only thing left is death.

Have you read DA Pam 385-7, Firearm and Archery Safety? If not, try to get a copy. I recommend it for all hunters, young and old.

From furniture to combat boots

Thrift Shop is bargain hunter's heaven

Barbara Windslow tries on one of the many imitation fur coats currently on sale at the Thrift Shop. The Shop is located in Bldg. 1230 across from Dexter School on Main Post.

By JOYCE WALKER

From used furniture to combat boots, bargain hunters will find their heaven right here on earth at the post Thrift Shop.

The shop, located in Bldg. 1230 across from Dexter School is open on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. and the first Saturday of each month from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Sponsored by the Officers Wives Club, the store is run mainly by OWC volunteers. "Each month, a unit is taxed to send in volunteers to work in the shop," says Mona Mark, shop manager. "However", she added, "we have nine volunteers working here full time."

During the summer months, June through August, the shop hires teen-agers to work in the place of the volunteers. "It gives the kids a chance to work", explains Mona. She also noted that they didn't have to be the dependents of OWC members in order to work.

Anyone with a valid military ID card can turn their excess treasures into cash by displaying their wares for sale at the thrift shop for a period of 60 calendar days. Each family may bring in up to 16 items to sell per visit. The items must sell for more than 50 cents.

"We have taken in as much as $1,300 to $1,-700 worth of items per day," Mona revealed.

All clothing accepted on consignment must be freshly dry cleaned, laundered and in good repair. If electrical or mechanical items are not in working condition, a tag must be attached to the item stating the nature of the problem. This tag remains on the item for the prospective buyer to read.

Uniforms, lawn mowers, stereo equipment, bicycles, appliances, baby furniture, toys, are among the many items on display at any given time for sale. "Air conditioners are one of our biggest sellers," says Mona. "We can hardly keep them on the floor."

The shop has sold some uncustomary items such as mink coats and diamond rings. One day, Mona noted "we sold a $300 wedding

Laetrile not available under new CHAMPUS

Use of the drug, Laetrile, is not cost-shared under the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services (CHAMPUS), MajGen. Benjamin R. Baker, Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense (Health Resources and Programs) emphasized recently in a memo to the Military Departments.

Since Laetrile has not been approved by the U. S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) as safe and effective in the treatment of cancer for people, its use is excluded from the Program by the CHAMPUS Regulation, the general pointed out.

He further emphasized that it does not matter if it is prescribed by a physician or obtained legally — any drug that has not been approved by the FDA for general use by humans is not cost-shared under CHAMPUS.

Mr. William Lorfing Jr. transferred to the Don C. Faith 6th grade from Dexter School. He will team-teach this year with Mrs. Judi Ebert, 8th grade, and Mrs. Hattie Wells, 7th grade. Teaming in other 6th grade teaching are Mrs. Margaret Ann Webb with Mr. William Bradley, Mrs. Ruby Rumley with Mrs. Sue Coleman, and Mrs. Marjorie Search with Ms. Joan Elsner.

Counseling activities received a boost, with two counselors being assigned full time to the school. A new counseling facility has been added to accommodate both counselors and students.

Eighth grade social studies positions are being staffed this year by Ms. Robyn Levitt and Ms. Ann Cooper.

Scheduling this year is unusual in that each Tuesday the students go home at 2:00 p.m. instead of 3:15, but the teachers stay at school until 4:30 for inservice professional growth.

The Home Economics laboratory has had two new kitchens added, doubling its capacity for cooking instruction, while nine new sewing machines, new furniture and floor covering add to the beauty and instructional capacity.

In interscholastic competition Mr. Max Spurlin will coach basketball and boys' softball; Mrs. Susan Emerson, tennis and softball, and Mr. Bill Lorfing, soccer and track. Faith School will compete in sports with Brookstone Middle School, St. Annes, St. Patrick, St. Joseph, Our Lady of Lourdes and Mother Mary Mission.

A new program was initiated during registration to determine the reading achievement level of all entering students. An informal oral reading survey was administered as each student registered. The results of this survey were made available to all classroom teachers to assist them in organizing their instructional program to meet the individual needs of their students.

This survey is part of a total school plan which is child centered and emphasizes personalized instruction based on student needs and interests.

Language Arts classes and science classes were organized using the student reading levels as the basis for class organization and materials selection. Expected results from this basis for class formation are lower levels of stress on students, faster progress for all students in the classes, and greater retention of the material studied.

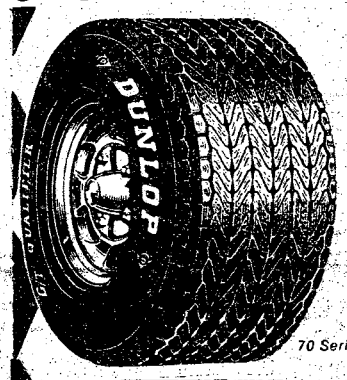
VA offers GI Bill work-study program



Veterans who are attending school on a full-time basis under the GI Bill and who anticipate having some money problems at fall-enrollment time should investigate the work-study programs offered by t e Veterans Administration.

Georgia Veterans Service Director Pete Wheeler said that the new GI Bill payment procedures might create some temporary financial hardships for students who haven't built up the necessary savings from summer jobs to pay for enrollment and subsistance expenses. Realizing this, the VA is making more workstudy jobs available.

GI Bill students can work up to 250 hours per semester for the VA, receiving $2.50 per hour. This is in addition to their usual education assistance allowance. Also, an advance payment of $250 convering the first 100 hours of work is available as soon as an employment agreement between the student and the VA is proceeded. After the first 100 hours of employment, payments are made upon completion of each 50 hours on the job.

"Uncle Sam needs me."

Linda R. Swann

Sergeant Linda Swann is a medical specialist at Fort Dix, New Jersey. "I wanted to reenlist for a 40-week school but I wanted to be sure I could get in. I found out about RETAIN, a new computer system our reenlistment counselor is using. In minutes, it tells you what's available. So, I put my request in. It said I had a choice of three including the one I wanted, 91 Charlie! I was elated ...and I felt really needed. It was so quick. Heck, with the RETAIN system it happens instantly. I like the way the Army does things these days."

Have a chat with your career counselor about the RETAIN system. You may be surprised to find out just how many options you have. You'll also find out just how much Uncle Sam needs you.

Keep a good soldier in the Army. Reenlist.

Many soldiers don't realize the importance of EPMS

"Although the Enlisted Personnel Management System (EPMS) began in January 1976, it appears that some soldiers fail to realize the importance of the system concerning career development. Many do not understand what is required of them to be promoted to the next highest grade," notes SSgt. Clem Kelsoe, NCOIC, enlisted promotions for Ft. Benning.

1. Qualifying score-80 per cent or higher on your Skill Qualification (SQT). If your SQT has not yet been implemented, see AR 600-200, Enlisted Personnel Management System, table 7-1, to find the rules that apply to you.

2. Training-You must have either the requisite NCOES course or the equivalent OJE (On the Job Experience). For grade E4, you must have 12 months OJE. The OJE requirements for both E4 and E5 are very recent changes.

Once you have met the qualifying score and the training requirements you will have earned the right to be considered for promotion the next higher leval. At this point, you will be evaluated by the familiar factors below.

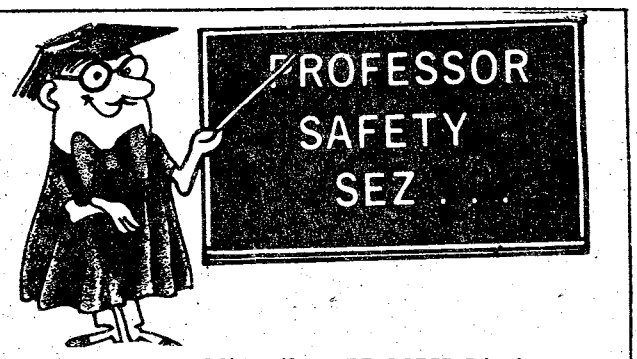
3. Education-Grades E1-E4-no educational requirements specified. Grade E5-completion of 8th grade or GED equivalency. Grades E6-E9-high school graduate or GED equivalency. If you are competing for promotion to E5 or E6, you will be credited with additional points for correspondence and college courses that you have completed. You will also get credit for any bona fide business or trade school courses you completed, provided you had already finished the 12th grade before taking the course.

4. Time in grade-Since requirements vary for each grade, you should see AR 600-200, chapter 7, to find out the times that apply to you.

5. Time in service — See time in grade above.

6. Recommending official's evaluation-Applies to soldiers competing for promotion to E5 or E6. You are evaluated in terms of your duty performance, attitude, leadership, etc. If you are outstanding in a category, you get 10 points; excellent-9 points; above average-8; and average-7.

The recommending official must also recommend you for promotion.

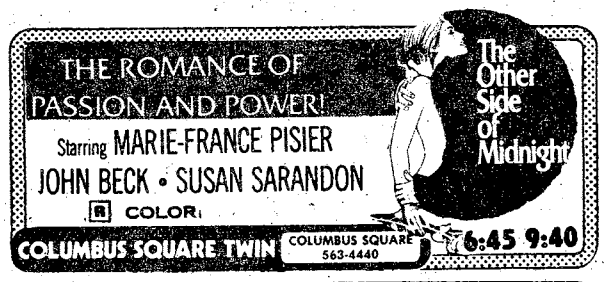


The last part of the process is when you review your 201 file with a personnel specialist, to make sure that your records are accurate and that you haven't lost any points due to omission or other error. The recommending official's evulation will then go to the promotion board to help them make the final appraisal.

7. Awards and decorations — Different awards and decorations have different values. Check AR 600-200, chapter 7, to find what applies to you.

8. Physical fitness-You should be physically able to perform the duties of your MOS in a combat environment.

9. Promotion board appraisal-Applies to soldiers competing for promotion to E5 or E6. You will be interviewed by your appraisal board, and evulated on factors such as knowledge of basic soldiering, communication abilities, knowledge of world affairs, awareness of military programs, etc.



Promotion to grades E7, E8, and E9 are decided at the centralized DA level. Your OMPF (Offical Military Personnel File) is reviewed, which contains your SEERs (Senior Enlisted Efficency Reports), past MOS results, duty assignments, awards and decorations, letters of commendation, etc. These materials are evaluated from a "whole person concept," and the decision about your promotion is then made.

By Public Likes 55 MPH Limit

At least 27,000 lives have been saved on U.S. highways since the 55 MPH speed limit went into effect more than three years ago. And in spite of scattered opposition, surveys show that the public favors continuation of the lower limit. In nine public opinion polls taken around the nation, approval of the 55 MPH limit ranged from a low of 58 per cent in Nevada to a high of 87 per cent in New Hampshire.

Special Medicare enrollment

Certain individuals who will lose their CHAMPUS eligibility at the end of this year will be able to sign up for Medicare's supplemental medical insurance during a special enrollment period — October 1 through December 31, 1977. Those eligible for the Medicare insurance include persons under age 65 who are entitled to Part A of Medicare's hospital insurance as a result of a disability or chronic kidney disease. Also included are widowers and husbands age 65 and older who are entitled to Medicare hospital insurance on the basis of their wives' employment, but not on the basis of their own employment. The special enrollment period will not be available to anyone outside these two categories. To enroll, those eligible should call or visit at a local Social Security Administration office. Outside of CONUS, those eligible should contact the nearest U.S. Consulate. (ARNEWS)

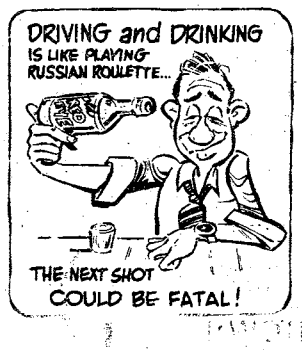
Vets must meet certain criteria for hospitalization

Veterans seeking hospitalization in facilities operated by the Veterans Administration must meet certain eligibility requirements, first of which is that the veterans must have been discharged or released from active military service under conditions other than dishonorable.

Georgia Veterans Service Director, Pete Wheeler, said that in order to establish priority of admission to a VA hospital other requirements must be met.



First priority, or immediate admission, is provided to those veterans needing hospitalization for treatment of disabilities, injuries or disease incurred or aggravated in line of duty while in active service.

Veterans who were discharged or retired for disabilities incurred or aggravated in line of duty, or who are receiving (or would be eligible to receive) compansation, except for receipt of retirement pay, and who are seeking treatment for an ailment not connected with their military service, will be admitted on a "bed-available" basis.

A third group of veterans, those who were not discharged or retired because of disability and who are seeking treatment for a non-service connected disability, also may be admitted to a VA hospital on a "bed-available" basis if hospitalization is deemed necessary, and if they state under oath that they are unable to defray the cost of hospitalization elsewhere.

The statement of "inability to pay" requirement, however, does not apply to any veteran who has been awarded the Medal of Honor, or who is at least 65 yeard old, or who is in receipt of VA pension.

Complete information about VA hospitalization may be obtained at any office of the Georgia Department of Veterans Service.

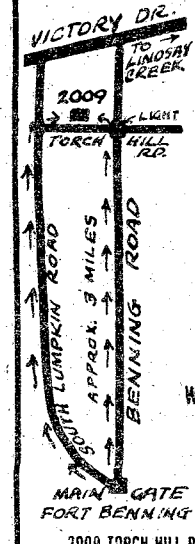
Housing gets new "home"



The organization which has responsibility for military housing has been revamped, according to officials in the office of the Chief of Engineers. The move will provide more responsive support in bachelor, family and recreational housing, say the officials. Organized as the Housing Division, the new office is now part of the Facilities Engineering Directorate of the Corps of Engineers. The military housing activity was formerly controlled by the Military Construction Directorate of the Corps.

The new division will serve as the principal Army agent in administering housing policy. It will also survey and determine Army housing requirements, formulate maintenance policies, and set policy for construction of new housing units.

Military family housing for FY 1978 will be getting a substantial boost. The FY 78 appropriation requests for more than $1,451,000,000, an increase of $147.1 million over the FY 1977 figure. The appropriation dollar figure is for overall DoD military family housing. (ARNEWS)

Jewish High Holy Day Greeting

During this season of Jewish High Holy Days, I extend my personal warmest regards to the Jewish personnel stationed at Fort Benning.

The proximity of the three observances, Rosh Hashanah, Yom Kippur, and Sukkot, combine to deepen your faith, commitment, and historical identification. May this New Year (5738), Day of Atonement, and traditional Thanksgiving fulfill your ideals of these Holy Days.

Doughboys march over Colts, 53-6

By DEBRA HILGEMAN

Placekicker David Ward scored three field goals, a 23, 25 and a 47-yarder capping Doughboy drives, as the Ft. Bragg Colts fell to Ft. Benning 53-6 at Doughboy Stadium Saturday night.

The victory evened the Doughboy record 1-1 after an opening game loss to Livingston University.

In Saturday's action, the first touchdown came with 11:33 remaining in the first quarter with a lateral pass from quarterback Joe Duenas to running back Arthur Hawkins. The play covered six yards and completed a 56-yard drive. An early 7-0 lead resulted when Ward added the extra point.

The Doughboys held the game in their pocket as they steadily increased their lead while time ran out for the outranked Colts.

Split end Anthony Craft scored a third-quarter touchdown with a diving catch of a pass from Duenas. More dominating action was provided by TB Robert Moore, LB Pat Carpenter and tackle Jim Manning.

Ft. Bragg scored its only points when Hawkins missed a Duenas screen pass from QB Harry Munsey to Marvin Nowell who dashed for a touchdown with 1:16 remaining in the half.

Asked how he felt about the overwhelming Doughboy victory, Head Coach Jack Barham replied, "All the weeks of hard work are paying off. If we had played against Livingston the way we played Bragg we would have had that game sewn up too. I'm very proud of the way we looked out there .."

VA Q&A

Q. — I have a $10,000 National Service Life Insurance policy. I would like to know if I can change my beneficiary designation through my last will and testament?

A. — No. Your request for a change in beneficiary should be sent to the VA insurance center where your premiums are paid.

Q. — I was receiving educational assistance under the GI Bill last semester. I terminated school attendance in the middle of the term and received two checks to which I was not entitled. I have been receiving notices to repay this debt. Since I plan to resume training sometime in the future, can I defer payment until then?

A. — No. The indebtedness will have to be liquidated. Please contact the Veterans Administration Center, Federal Building, Fort Snelling, St. Paul, Minn. 55111, ATTN: Centralized Accounts Receivable Section, to arrange for repayment.

Q. — I am a widow receiving Dependency and Indemnity Compensation. If I become employed, will this employment have any effect on my DIC? Also, does my late husband's estate affect my benefits?

A. — No, income and corpus of the estate are not factors in determining a widow's qualification for DIC.

Q — I have been overpaid approximately $300 in educational benefits. Can I repay the overpayment by having it withheld from my compensations?

A — Yes. The overpayment should be paid over a period not to exceed one year.

Q — My husband died recently and I was designated as principal beneficiary on his NSLI insurance policy. He specified that I should receive the money in 36 monthly installments. May I elect to have the proceeds paid to me in a lump sum?

A — No. Unless the insured specified that payment be made in a lump sum you may not receive the proceeds in that manner.

Q — How soon after military discharge may I file a disability claim?

A — You claim can be filed at anytime. However, it is to your advantage to file as soon as possible, preferably within one year.

Civilian hiring easing doctor shortage

By EDWARD PONATOSKI

The status of medical services provided to retired personnel and their dependents at Martin Army Hospital was discussed in a meeting held with leaders of retired military groups and key hospital officials this week.

The commander of the post hospital, Col. Anton L. Hitzelberger, stated that great strides to alleviate the doctor shortage have been made through the hiring of civilian physicians and that, "Twelve civilian doctors are presently aboard and arrangements for the hiring of six or seven more are in the mill." In comparing the situation to the past, Hitzelberger went on the say that the physician staff is 35 per cent less than it was in 1974 while the population requiring support has increased by 10,000.

A study to determine the feasibility of starting a General Medicine Clinic to handle patients who cannot be seen in the Medical Specialty Clinic is underway, according to Col. Costas Kleanthous, the chief of the Department of Primary Care and Community Medicine. "If the study is favorably received and the required civilian doctors can be hired, the clinic would be able to handle some of the chronic medical problems which have been curtailed due to the shortage of physicians in the Medical Specialty Clinic," Kleanthous said.

During the course of the discussions, the hospital commander pointed out that an average day at Martin Army consists of 1,800 outpatient visits, 28 admissions, 207 inpatients, 2,706 prescription fills, 3,959 lab requirements, 961 x-rays, 4 births, 2,074 dental procedures and 368 immunizations.

"These figures represent an enormous workload," Hitzelberger emphasized. "And the hospital staff is doing everything possible to meet the demands of the community."

197th gets new commander

Col. James R. Hall Jr. assumed command of the "Forever Forward" 197th Inf Bde Monday in ceremonies including a traditional pass in review held on Benning's York Field.

Hall, a 1958 graduate of OCS who is beginning his fourth tour at Benning, was the commander of the 4th Regiment of the United States Military Academy at West Point prior to his assignment here.

The native of Anniston, Ala., holds a Master of Science in Public Administration and is a graduate of the Armed Forces Staff College and the Army War College.

He is accompanied by his wife, Helen, and their three children who will reside at Ft. Benning.

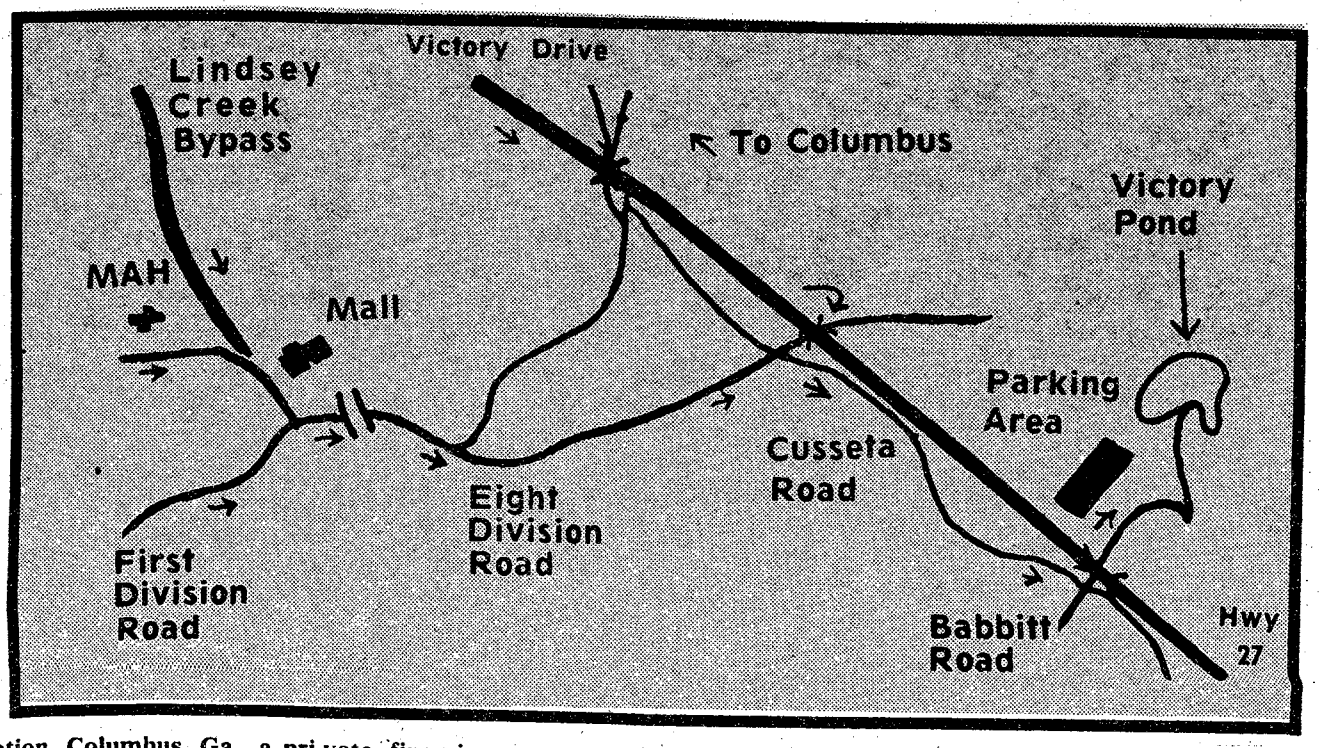
AUSA picnic slated tomorrow

The annual Association of the United States Army (AUSA) picnic will be held tomorrow at Ft. Benning's Victory Pond.

The picnic, sponsored by the Columbus-Phenix City-Ft. Benning Chapter of AUSA and hosted by Ft. Benning, will begin at noon with Ranger and skydiving exhibitions. Vehicle, boat and pony rides, displays, a midway and food galore will be available throughout the day. There will be 12 chowlines for fast service, and triple last year's drink dispensers.

At 1 p.m. a Battle of the Bands contest will take place on a special dance floor adjacent to Victory Pond. First place winners will pocket $200 in cash, second place winners, $150 and third place finishers will take home $50. Each band will be judged on technical excellence, selection of material, showmanship and audience appeal.



A 211 foot light tactical raft (bridge), constructed by the 36th Engr Gp, will span Victory Pond enabling both sides to be easily accessable to rides, entertainment and games. The light-weight structure, assembled completely by hand, is capable of supporting up to 38,000 pounds.

A carnival-type midway will feature the ever-popular dunking machine, two BB-gun shooting galleries, horseshoes, dart boards,

How to get there

Signs and arrows have been placed on all major routes leading to the Annual AUSA picnic site at Victory Pond, and Military Police will be directing traffic at all key intersections. If you're coming from Main Post, take First Division Road past the Mall turnoff to Kelly Hill to Eight Division Road. Take a right on Cusseta Road, then left on Babbitt Road and under Victory Drive to the parking area. If you're coming from Columbus, follow Victory Drive (Hwy 27) under the first overpass, take the next right to Eight Division Road and then left on Cusseta. From there take a left on Babbitt Road to the parking area. Buses will transport you and your family to the picnic site from there. For the on-post shuttle bus schedule see page 2.

Doughboys face Citadel

The Ft. Benning Doughboys face their fourth test of the 1977 season Sunday at 2 p.m. in Doughboy Stadium against the Citadel Junior Varsity team from Charleston, S.C.

The game will be the first test of strength for the untried Citadel team as they enter their three-game season. The Citadel Varsity team is expected to send some of its first stringers to strengthen the ranks of the juniors, so the action will be another challenge for the Doughboys who now hold a 2-1 record.

The game will feature a half-time performance by the 290-member Troy State University Band under the direction of Dr. Johnny Long. The band has the reputation as "The Pride of the South" and has made nation-wide appearances.

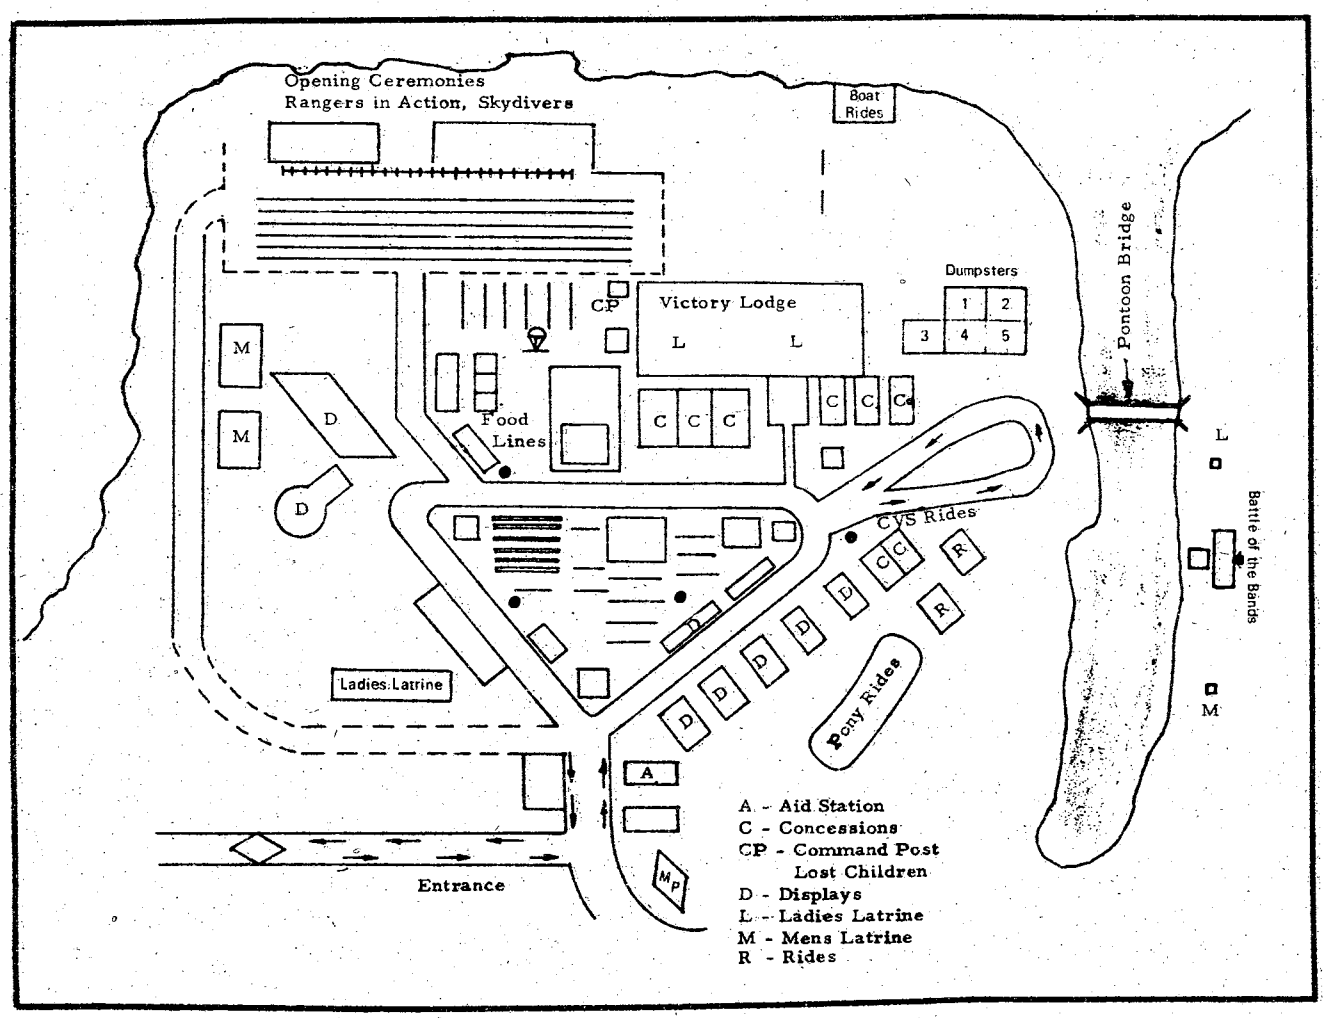
basketball and coin toss games and a fish pond for children with both large and small prizes awarded to winners of the curious games of chance.

Youngsters will have a wide choice of rides to choose from including ponies, Gama Goats, a fire engine and jeeps. Two 27-foot boats, also provided by the 36th Engr Gp, will transport the youngsters back and forth across the pond.

Displays will include a tank, armored personnel carriers, jeeps, Gama Goats, parachute maintenance, medical and communication equipment, markmanship, Infantry Board weapons and others.

The picnic menu will offer a wide variety of food, ranging from barbecue to hotdogs and hamburgers topped off with bakes beans, cole slaw and potatoe salad. Thrist quenchers will include beer, soft drinks and coffee.



In addition to the Battle of the Bands, the 283rd Army Band and the Infantry Chorus will also perform. Inside the Lodge a soldier disc jockey, known as "BJ the DJ," will be spinning a variety of music including hard rock, jazz, soul and country and western for your dancing and listening pleasure.

Two shuttle buses will be available to transport attendees from Main Post, Martin Army Hospital, Kelly Hill and Harmony Church areas to Victory Lodge. The buses will begin service at 10:30 a.m. and continue providing round trip transportation until the final guest has departed the picnic area.

Miss Ft. Benning 1977, Carla Calhoun, will be a special guest at the Annual Association of the United States Army (AUSA) Picnic at Victory Lodge September 24. She will participate in several scheduled activities during the fun-packed day, which is open to everyone.

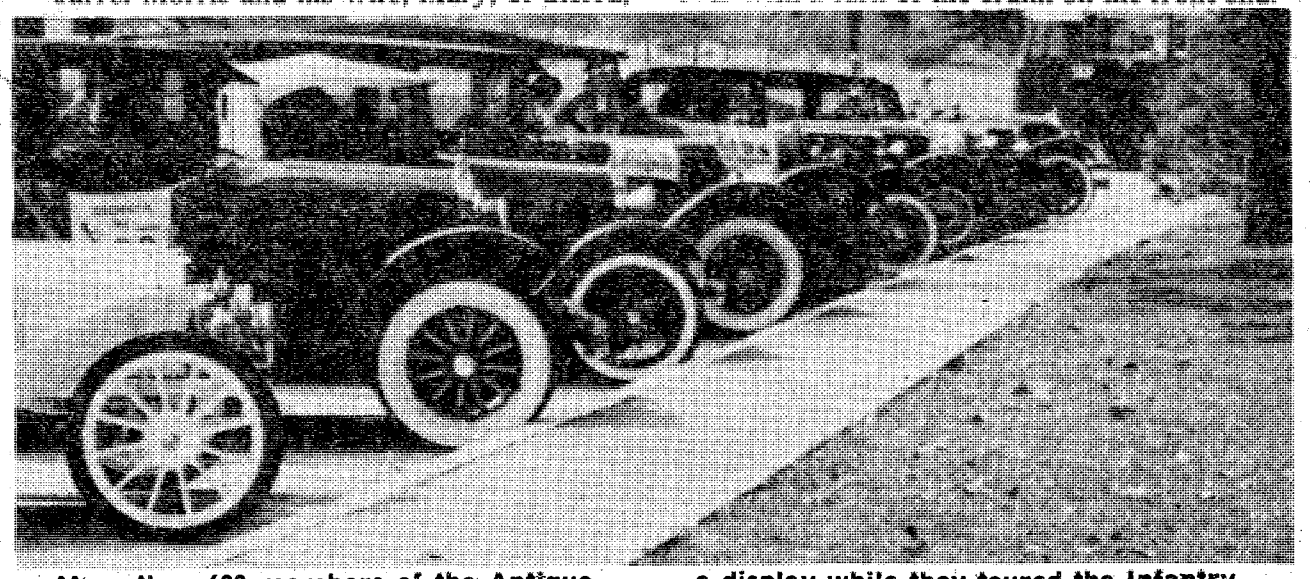
Glidden Tour rolls through Benning

The 1977 Glidden Tour rolled through Ft. Benning last week with more than 300 antique automobiles and their passengers giving post personnel the opportunity to view their beautiful machines.

Benning returned their hospitality by giving the participants a tour of the National Infantry Museum. Lunch at the Top Five Club and an official welcome by Chief of Staff, Col. Addison D. Davis III, accompanied by a presentation of the Airborne 5,000 demonstration at Eubanks Field were also on the agenda.



Jarrel Morris and his wife, Mary, of Sierra, Calif., drove in their 1922 Jewett from their home to the tour headquarters at Callaway Gardens. The only mechanical problems Morris reported were two flat tires. Rain, which hit them at least once a day, also slowed them down even though the Morrises tried to average at least 300 miles a day. "You don't go for speed on a trip like this," the antique automobile hobbyist said.

Rare cars included a 1927 Mercedes-Benz Roadster, a 1927 Hispano-Suiza Phaeton and a 1911 Rolls-Royce run by an engine that turned over with a turn of the crank on the front end.

Also driven in the tour was a 1930 Cord convertible which chauffeured Clark Gable and Vivien Leigh to the premiere of "Gone With the Wind."

Sam and Louise Butner of Montgomery, Ala. participated in their first tour driving a 1926 Rolls-Royce Salamanca Town Car. The Rolls still had its original upholstery and leather covering on the roof intact. The Butners were impressed with the number of cars and quality participating in the tour.

Their feelings seemed to be echoed by participants and spectators alike.

More than 600 members of the Antique Automobile Club lined up their cars for a display while they toured the Infantry Museum. Photo by Ed Vross

CFC contributions coming back through local agencies

By MARSHALL JONES

Members of the Columbus-Ft. Benning, Phenix City community who participate in the 1978 Combined Federal Campaign will see their CFC payroll deductions, checks and cash come back to the area through a number of voluntary health, welfare and youth agencies helping those local people who need it.

In all there are 46 individual agencies that benefit from CFC contributions. They are grouped into three organizations, the United Way, the National Health Agencies and the International Service Agencies. CFC donations may be made to any or all of the agencies, with goals for each organization being set up as follows: United Way, $188,880 or 78.7 per cent of the total; National Health Agencies, $38,400 or 16 per cent; and International Service Agencies, $12,720 or 5.3 per cent. The total goal of the 1978 CFC is $240,000.

Many of the agencies operate in this area. To name just a few:

THE URBAN LEAGUE is an interracial service agency dealing with problems of health, welfare, housing, job placement, delinquency and guidance.

Ft. Benning's own COMMUNITY ACTIVITIES ASSOCIATION is a permanent non-profit organization that administers contributed funds in support of the post's youth, recreational, welfare and service activities.

The CHATTAHOOCHEE COUNCIL of BOY SCOUTS and the CONCHARTY COUNCIL of GIRL SCOUTS develop in local boys and girls the qualities of leadership, initiative, teamwork and service and provide outdoor recreation and camping opportunities.

GOODWILL INDUSTRIES is a rehabilitation facilty using an industrial work setting to help handicapped persons become as nearly self-supporting as possible by teaching them job skills.

RUSSELL COUNTY MENTAL HEALTH ASSOCIATION meets some of the pressing mental health problems of Russell County and acquaints the public with the problems of mental illness.

The LISTENING EYES SCHOOL FOR THE DEAF conducts intensive training of deaf or hard-of-hearing children from infancy until they are able to attend public school, and also has a local training program for parents.

The METROPOLITAN and BROOKHAVEN BRANCHES of the YMCA help develop young people mentally, spiritually and physically through recreation and guidance programs for boys, girls, men, women and family groups.

The UNITED CEREBRAL PALSY CENTER has a program of therapy and instruction to help cerebral palsied children and adults reach their full potential.

MUSCOGEE and RUSSELL COUNTY RED CROSS organizations meet the emergency needs of military personnel and dependents, verify emergency situations, and conduct first aid and water safety training, provide disaster relief and a blood program to supply local hospitals.

If a contributor designates a particular agency to receive his or her donation, the amount will be credited to that agency and toward the dollar goal of the group in which the agency is organized. Undesignated contributions will be added to each group's designated contributions to achieve the group's dollar goal. Undesignated funds remaining after the goal of each group has been fulfilled will be distributed among the groups at the discretion of the local Federal Coordinating Group.

Conduct your unit or organizational CFC keyperson today for your contribution card.

Soldiering skills now part of AIT field days

Military skills and competitive physical events were combined for the first time in battalion-sized field day activities conducted in the 1st AIT Bde recently.

The previously held field days pitted battalions against each other in stamina, endurance and strength-testing events and athletic games to determine an overall winner. The revised field day adds typical basic soldiering skills such as assembly and disassembly of weapons, tents and other military equipment to include the procedures in using the M-72 LAW, M-60 Machine Gun, the PRC-77 Radio and the claymore mine. The military skills portion of the competition is scored on the basis of time and accuracy in determining individual and unit winners.

Last week the 2nd and 3rd battalions of the brigade gathered separately for a day of competition highlighted by skydiving demonstrations and a cookout for the men, cadre and dependents of the units. The overall winner for the 3rd Bn was Company A, commanded by 1stLt. Peter Larson, while 2nd Bn's Company A also came out victorious.

Including military tasks in the field day activities was acclaimed by members of the battalions as a great way to develop teamwork and esprit while simultaneously reinforcing basic soldiering skills. "It's right in line with what the troops are being taught in their training and it provides a great outlet for the pressures of the daily routine," a 2nd Bn drill sergeant was overheard to say.

Annual Talent Tree Craft Show scheduled

The Annual Talent Tree Craft Show will highlight the Grand Opening of the Talent Tree in its new location, Bldg. 1234 (the old Infantry Museum, Ingersol and Yeager, Main Post).

A reception will be held on September 29, 10 a.m.-2 p.m. to start off the twelve day show and introduce three local artists to the public.

Polly Blazek will display decorative country carving; Susan Havre will show stoneware pottery; and Cole Fagerston will present silk screening and batik. All artists will have items for sale and special orders will be taken. Proceeds go to the Officers' Wives' Club welfare fund. The public is invited.

Polly Blazek started carving three years ago, but her background as a commercial artist has enabled her to combine a unique blend of oil and stains to create an exciting style of her own.

Designer craftsman, Cole Fagerston, holds a degree in graphic design. She has worked as a crafts director at various Army posts, specializing in batik, copper enameling and silk screening. A strong Pre-Columbian influence, evident in her work, is a direct result of living and studying in Latin America for the past three years.

Susan Havre specializes in stoneware pottery. She finds working in clay a method of creative expression that has endless possibilities of form, texture and decoration. Her one of a kind functional pieces are high fired to be lead free, oven proof and dishwasher safe.

The Talent Tree is open each Tuesday and Thursday and the Saturday of each month from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Did you know a spare tire can be used to save a drowning person? Many drownings occur needlessly because rescuers are unaware of the lifesaving devices available to them. Such items as empty gas cans, styrofoam coolers, and thermos jugs may also be used to keep victims afloat.

Information sought in killing

CID offering a $5,000 reward

By MARIE RUSSO

The Ft. Benning Field Office, Third Region Criminal Investigation Division (CID) is offering a $5,000 reward for information leading to the apprehension and conviction of the person(s) responsible for the death of Pvt. Karen "KC" Hickman.

Pvt. Hickman's nude and beaten body was discovered in a ditch off Highway 27, September 6. She was assigned to Hqs Co, 1st AIT Bde as a company clerk.

CID investigators, working around the clock for three weeks, have questioned more than 300 people.

A CID agent has asked for anyone with information, no matter how general, about Pvt. Hickman or her whereabouts the evening of September 5 or morning of Sept. 6 to call 545-7950 or 545-2677 which has a recorded answering device where an anonymous message can be left.

All information will be kept strictly confidential.

The agent emphasized that it is very important for them to talk to anyone who knew Hickman since her arrival at Ft. Benning in July. "We need to talk to everyone and anyone who knew her; even mere acquaintances."

Investigators say that an autopsy shows that some of the woman's injuries were inflicted by an automobile.

The automobile is believed to be a 1976 Toyota Corolla, two-door sedan. The car is a medium brown color, has Georgia plates, and an enlisted member's post vehicle sticker, according to the CID spokesman.

"We know that she (Pvt. Hickman) left the Hideaway Club on Kelly Hill with a male, but we don't know who he is and we need to talk to him," stated a CID agent.

"He may not be the killer — she may have gone somewhere else afterward with someone else," explained the local CID commander. "But it is every important that we talk to him.

"We would appreciate a call from anyone who may have seen a car fitting the description driving around post in the early hours of the morning on September 6."

The agents emphasized over and over again the importance of their talking to anyone who may have seen or been with Pvt. Hickman prior to midnight on the night of her death.

The commander added that information from civilians may be important since Pvt. Hickman lived off post in the Camellia Apartment complex.

A $5,000 reward is being offered by the CID for information leading to the arrest of the person(s) responsible for Pvt. Hickman's murder.

If you have any information the numbers to call are 545-7950 - 5064 - 2677 or the Military Police desk sergeant at 545-5222.

The reward will not be paid to law enforcement agents, members of the Armed Services Forces or civilian employes of the US Government.

A $5,000 reward is being offered for information resulting in the apprehension and conviction of the person(s) responsible for the death of Pvt. Karen Hickman, who was found dead on Ft. Benning September 6. Contact the CID Duty Agent at 545-2677 or 545-7950 or the Military Police desk sergeant at 545-5222 if you have any information concerning the death of Pvt. Hickman. All information will be kept confidential.

MajGen. William J. Livsey accepted a General Creighton W. Abrams Commemorative Golden Eagle print on behalf of the Infantry Center from the Seventh Armored Division Association.

The golden eagle was painted by noted wildlife artist Ray Harm and is professionally framed. The presentation was made by three lifetime members of the association: Harry E. Edelmann of Macon, Ga., Kenneth R. Danielson of East Point, Ga., and Johnnie V. Danford of Columbus.

A plate at the bottom of the frame is inscribed, "Presented to Ft. Benning in Memory of Major General Lindsay McDonald Silvester by the Seventh Armored Division Association." MajGen. Silvester was commander of the Seventh Armored Division.

The division trained at Benning from August 1943 to April 1944 under the general and then participated in four campaigns in the European Theater of Operations. Although deactivated shortly after World War II, the division's memory is kept alive by the Seventh Armored Division Association.

Purchased from the Cavalry-Armor Foundation, Inc., a non-profit organization that raises funds for the Patton Museum of Cavalry and Armor at Ft. Knox, Ky., the print is named for the first Armor general to become chief of staff of the U.S. Army. It bears a stamped inscription, "First Day of Issue."

FEDERAL WOMEN'S PROGRAM

Book and Magazines for Women

Federal Women's Program Committee member Jo Ann Dingley recommends two publications as having special relevance for women. The magazine, though not available at the PX, can be purchased by single copy at local drug stores, book shops and by subscription. The book is available at bookstores.

WORKING WOMAN. WW Publications, New York, monthly, $1.25

This is a magazine that takes a practical approach to the problems working women face everywhere, and seems to make few assumptions. There is something for every woman here, including the full-time homemaker. In the October issue is a brief on the Houston International Women's Year Conference in November. There's an article explaining how employed women have slowed the recession and helped keep men employed. You'll find information on health and on how to deal with age discrimination, and profiles on a woman carpenter, a woman in business with her husband, the Director of Community Affairs for a major oil company, a veterinarian, and others.

Women's issues are also addressed, without the militancy of Ms., or the cute pap of Cosmopolitan. The magazine recognizes that women have a healthy interest in sex and social relationships. But you'll have to go to other magazines for soft porn. Let your family read it. It will bring everyone some understanding.

GETTING IT TOGETHER, the Divorced Mother's Guide to Life. By Lynn Forman, Berkley Medallion Books, New York, 1974. $1.50.

In this book, Ms. Forman gives divorced women (possibly widowed and separated women, too) some poignant, blunt, wryly humorous, no-holds-barred guidelines to rejoining the world, as a woman who has taken a lot of life's worst punches and come out still on her feet.

"Grisly details: I quit college at sixteen, dabbled briefly at assorted office jobs, then settled down at eighteen to full-time wife and motherhood, where I'd live happily ever after. Only I didn't.

"At twenty-four, I had two small kids, fresh divorce papers, many debts, a throbbing headache, no alimony or child support, and no preparation whatsoever for life."

This book is not a "buck up" pep talk, nor is it a place to wallow in self-pity. Losing your husband hurts — always — no matter how glad you may have been to dump the bum. If he divorced you, so much the worse. Ms. Forman recognizes the hurt and disorientation and leads you gently, but firmly, through it to the point where you can get your head on straight, again. She doesn't minimize the anger and ego destruction that follow divorce. She doesn't deny the struggle to find money and housing for your needs, let alone the frills; admits the frustration of finding that critical job, when you have no experience and no one hires without it; knows the depression and loneliness faced by the suddenly single woman who doesn't quite belong anywhere, any more. Not once will she let you use any of it as a cop-out, an excuse for going under and staying down, a reason to give up.

Parents requested not to bring kids into clinics

"Children are not allowed to accompany parents when they visit clinic waiting rooms in the hospital," according to 1st Lt. Ed Ponatowski, Martin Army Public Affairs Officer.

"The policy has nothing to do with the possible disturbance kids could cause," Ponatowski emphasized. "It's a matter of the real and serious threat of transmitting a not fully developed disease to other patients and to the children themselves that necessitates this policy. The consequences of a pregnant woman contracting German Measles from a child would be catastophic."

This policy is required to protect all parties concerned.

Parents should leave their children with a neighbor or at Tot Town when reporting to the hospital for medical treatment.

The 3rd Bde is located in Western Washington with its headquarters at Ft. Lawton in Seattle.

O death where is thy sting?
O grave where is thy victory?

The sting of death is sin;
and the strength of sin is

New ASP holding area eases ammunition customer hassles

By MICHAEL TUCKER

In ribbon-cutting ceremonies last week BrigGen Fred K. Mahaffey assistant commandant, USAIS, officially opened the new USAIC Ammunition Holding Area. The facility, which opened after fifteen months of planning and a cost of nearly $75,000, is believed to be the best and most modern facility of its type in the United States.

The 608th Ord. Co., 67th Maint. Bn., is tasked with the responsibility of operating and maintaining the USAIC Ammunition Supply Point (ASP) and the new holding area. The 608th, which currently issues more than one-half million rounds of ammunition daily to Ft. Benning units, will now be able to provide them with much improved service.

The holding area was first proposed by the 608th in June 1976 as a means of improving customer support. Gen. Mahaffey gave his enthusiastic support for the project. Detailed plans were made by the 36th Eng. Gp and forwarded through channels to the Department of Defense which approved the plans.

The Holding Areas currently will hold a minimum of 44 (12-ton) S&P trailors and trucks. It will be guarded 24-hours per day, seven days a week offering all units on Ft. Benning a safe and secure area to park their vehicles after they are loaded with ammunition.

There are many advantages offered by the holding area. It will allow customers to preload ammunition the day prior to a field training exercise or class, preventing them from having to arrive at the ASP at 4 a.m. It will also reduce delays and confusion caused by vehicles not passing the strict safety inspections prior to loading the vehicle with ammunition.

Units with late training will no longer have to spend additional hours at night to make a turn-in, they need only park their vehicle in the holding area and make their turn-in (unused portion) the next day. For units such as the AIT Brigade the ability to make all issues and turn-ins during the normal work day will increase training time and ease day-to-day operations.

The actual construction of the holding area meant an intense spring and summer of work for the men of the 43rd Engr. Bn. For "C" Company, 43rd Engr Bn, the holding area was the culmination of 20,000 man-hours of work and also afforded them the chance to use their engineering skills and equipment to the fullest degree possible.

BrigGen. Fred Mahaffey cuts the ribbon opening the new USAIC Ammunition Supply Point Area adjacent to the post Ammunition Supply Point. Assisting Gen. Mahaffey are Capt. Michael Fay (1), Co C, 43rd Engr Bn and Capt. Michael Tucker, 67th Maint Bn.

PV1 Christopher Mizner, B-2-1, of Pownal, Maine has been named Distinguished Graduate for the 1st AIT Brigade Cycle ending September 22. SFC Felmino Malate, A-2-1, was named Distinguished Drill Sergeant of the cycle ending September 22. SFC Malate is a native of Monterey, California.

Our Summer activities have been limited to a farewell brunch for our former Commanders wife, and a welcome tea for Mrs. Ayers, so it was great to get together again.

Our bazaar project was displayed, and work has started. Eight newcomers were also welcomed, and one baby cup was presented.

2nd Division home sought

The Army is looking for a future home for the 2nd Infantry Division. DA officials have announced plans for a study to determine the best location for stationing the division when it leaves the Republic of Korea to return to the United States.

The DA staffers believe the "Indianhead" division will be reorganized as a mechanized infantry division upon its return to the States, and will be composed of two Active Army brigades and one reserve component brigade.

At least two stationing options will be studied for the division, say the staffers. A single installation option will be studied for stationing the division at Ft. Bliss, Tex., Ft. Benning, Ga., or Ft. Drum, N.Y.

A two-installation stationing option will also receive consideration by the Army. The two-station option involves Ft. Devens, Mass. and Ft. Dix, N.J. — with Ft. Drum, N.Y. and the Camp Edwards/Otis Air National Guard complex in Massachusetts being used for training of division units.

A stationing decision is not expected to be made until after completion of the study early next year. No date has been set for return of the division to CONUS. (ARNEWS).

The Federal Communications Commission has awarded a contract to the Advance Research Resources Organization (ARRO) to develop an understanding of the public need for personal radio communications. Under this contract, ARRO will implement a national survey and analysis plan developed under an earlier contract.

ARRO will conduct interviews with both CB users and non-users from various backgrounds all over the country to provide a sample of personal radio needs.

The survey will collect information on the kind of equipment bought by CBers, how they use the radio, time spent using it and their intentions of buying new equipment of going to another service (Class A, Ham, etc).

Both CBers and non-users will be asked their opinion of how good CB is for various uses, as well as what they think of different features such as cost, range, privacy and interference. One essential part of the questionnaire asks which uses and features of CB seem most important to those surveyed.

When the survy is completed, ARRO will make projections of user satisfaction and demand for different types of personal radio services. These projections will be used to help the FCC formulate policy and evaluate proposals for new personal radio services.

Speaking of new personal radio services, some of the CB manufacturers are already testing some new equipment. The FCC has granted an experimental license, K12XAZ, to Kris, Inc. for a station to operate in the 26.96-27.41 MHz band also on 222, 900 and 462.650 MHz for testing modulation and propagation characteristics of various radios for use in either current or proposed frequency bands of the Citizens Radio Service.

Augusta falls to Doughboy attack, 9-7

By DEBRA HILGEMAN

The Ft. Benning Doughboys took an early lead over the previously undefeated Augusta Eagles, voted the number two semi-professional team in the country in 1976 by United Press International, and held on to it to take the game 9-7 Saturday night in Doughboy Stadium.

In a penalty-ridden first half, Doughboy running back Arthur Hawkins took a pitchout from quarterback Joe Duenas and made a one-yard run that gave the Doughboys their only touchdown of the game with 5:52 remaining in the first quarter.

The score remained at 6-0 as David Ward's kick went wide to the left.

After missing an attempted field goal early in the first quarter, Ward came back and made good on a 34-yarder with 9:44 remaining in the second, bringing the half-time score to 9-0 in favor of the Doughboys.

The third quarter remained scoreless as the Doughboy defense contained Augusta's offense, spear-headed by halfback Leroy Howard, the leading rusher in the Southern Football League, who is averaging 110 yards a game.

In the first play of the fourth quarter, Howard broke away on a run around the Eagles' right and was finally pushed out by Edgar Arnold but not before Howard's 72-yard run to the three-yard line had set the stage for an Eagle touchdown. It came three plays later when quarterback Jimmy Padgett dove across the line for the score. With 13:37 remaining in the game, Tripp Coleman followed up with the extra point and the score was 9-7.

With 9:16 left in the fourth, the Doughboy defense came through again when tackle Michael Dawkins and defensive end Rudolph Gordon teamed up to block a Coleman punt and recovered the ball. The play put the ball deep in Augusta territory and took the force out of Augusta's momentum.

The Doughboys held the upper hand throughout the game despite the formidable size of the Augusta team — ten players tip the scale at over 250 pounds. The ever-present threat of Howard, with his proven potential of scoring from anywhere in the field, gave the Doughboys some tense moments in the tight battle.

The half-time entertainment was a crowd-pleasing performance by the 270-member Jacksonville State University Marching Southerners with their special dance group, the Marching Ballerinas.

Among the thousands of cheering spectators in attendance was MajGen. William Livsey, who commented after the game, "This was the toughest game I've ever seen. I'm very proud way we played out here tonight."

The weekend victory gave the Doughboys a record of 2-1.

Doughboy quarterback Joe Duenas runs into backfield problems early in the first half as the undefeated Augusta Eagles put the rush on. Duenas managed to scramble back to the line of scrimmage with help from guard Jeffery Johnson.

Doughboy League

In the opening game of the 1977 DYA Doughboy League football season, the Crusaders defeated the Bears, 14-0. The Crusaders first score was set up by a pass play from Eric Thomas to Alfred Randell for a first and goal on the 4-yard line. The same pair connected for the touchdown two plays later, but the conversion failed. Later in the game Thomas scored around left end from 20 yards out followed by Toney Boston's successful PAT. The Crusader defense was led by Larry Smith with two recovered fumbles and support from Adam Weinbaum and Vivle Vavreu.

The second game saw the Green Hornets sting the Dolphins, 26-0. As the first half closed, a touchdown was set up by Maurice Black who ran for 30 yards to the Dolphin 1-yard line followed two plays later as Teddy Gallardo punched it in for the score. The PAT failed. In the third quarter Allen Johnson picked off a fumble in the air and returned it 45 yards to score. This time Robert Martinez added the PAT capping the score at 26-0. The Green Hornet defense was led by Johnson and Napoleon Robinson. Greg Lahr, Kevin Casey, Jack McCoy, Richard Helmuth and Bruce Russ lead the Dolphins in a losing cause.

The third game was a squeaker as the Patriots held off the Sharks, 6-0. Mark Crites scored the only touchdown of the game from the 5-yard line and Matt Cole led the offensive effort with more than 100 yards rushing. The Patriot defense was led by Joe Hashimutu, Mark Miller, Sherwood Williams and Merritte Wilson as Greg Robinson, William Quarterman and Eric Johnson dominated play for the Sharks in a losing effort.

Biddy League

By W. T. MILLER

The Biddy League Raiders dropped the season opener Saturday to a powerful Packer team, 13-0 at Blue Field No. 3. The Packers controlled the ball in the first quarter driving 53 yards to end the period with a touchdown score by Tyrone and an extra point by Allison.

Fletcher Walker returned the Packers kick to the Raiders 44 yard line to start the second quarter but momentum was lost as the Raiders quickly gave up the ball. Control was gained late in the quarter after hard-hitting tackles by Langendorf, Kelly and Johnson but to no avail. Langendorf moved the ball well with his quarterback keepers, but the Raiders failed to score as the half ended.

The Raiders mounted an offensive drive, spearheaded by McIntyre and Trevor Johnson, early in the third quarter, but were stalled by penalities.

Again in the fourth quarter both Raider offensive and defensive efforts were stopped short by penalties.

The Packers iced the game on the score on the first play from scrimmage after a Raider punt when Florence brought the ball in from the 12 yard line.

Biddy League action will continue tomorrow on Blue Field No. 3 with a Raider-Ram game at 10 a.m. and a Redskin-Packer game at noon.

Duty hours high school study axed

Army funding and use of duty time for high school education ends on September 30 for most soldiers.

As a result of Congressional directives, the Armed Forces can no longer fund or provide authorized absence to attend educational courses not related to job skills. The directive affects the Army more than other services because almost half of first term enlisted recruits entering the Army do not have high school educations.

Off-duty funding of high school programs will continue after the September 30 deadline for soldiers outside of the U. S. and for those who entered the Army in 1977 and are enrolled in the Veterans Education Assistance Program. Eligible soldiers who entered the Army before 1977 may pay for high school or college study with the GI Bill.

Last year, 65,000 soldiers were enrolled in on-duty high school education programs. But as a result of Congressional guidelines, only job-related courses may be funded during duty hours. The Congressional guidance also directed a review of Army polices which restrict promotions above the grade of E4 to persons with high school educations. (ARNEWS)

Scout Olympics slated

Cub Scouts throughout Ft. Benning are straining their muscles practicing for the upcoming Cub Scout Olympics to be held September 26, 6-8 p.m. on Lavoie Field.

The Olympics will consist of five events: the 50-yard dash, sit-ups, standing broad jump, push-ups and the softball throw. The overall winners in each age group will advance to the District competition to held later on this year.

Post Cub Scouts will also be starting a paper drive beginning October 17th. Residents are requested to save their papers in bundles in order to support this drive.

For information on the scouting program contact Sue Simoneaux, 682-1667 or Harold Jarrell, 682-0308.

VA Q&A

Q — I was honorably discharged in 1970 and have had problems in obtaining employment. Can I return to school under the GI Bill to obtain my high school diploma and then continue training to improve my employment possibilities?

A — Yes and the time you spend in school toward your high school diploma will not be charged against your educational entitlement under the GI Bill.

Q — I am rated 40 per cent disabled for VA compensation. Can I receive additional benefits for my wife?

A — Additional benefits for dependents of veterans with service-connected conditions are limited to those rate 50 per cent or more disabled.

Q — Why is my VA pension allowance reduced when I receive an increase in Social Security benefits?

A — VA pension is payable to wartime veterans with permanent and total disablities, not resulting from service. The monthly stipend is based on the amount of annual income a pensioner receives from other sources. Social Security payments and other retirement benefits, less a 10 per cent exclusion alloed by law, are included in the annual income.

Q. — I receive VA pension, and am also going to school under the GI Bill. Are my educational benefits considered income for pension purposes?

A — Yes, but amounts actually spent for educational expenses may be deducted from this. You should report the entire amount, along with any deductible expenses.

Q — Is the widow of a veteran killed in service entitled to a VA home loan?

A — An unmarried widow of a veteran who died while on active duty may receive VA home loan benefits on a one-time basis.

Q — I have lost my original discharge paper. Can the VA help?

A — Your local VA office can assist you in obtaining a certificate in lieu of the lost document.

Q — I would like to apply for a loan on my $10,000 five-year level term National Service Life Insurance policy. How much can I receive?

A — Term insurance has no cash value, consequently there is no loan available.

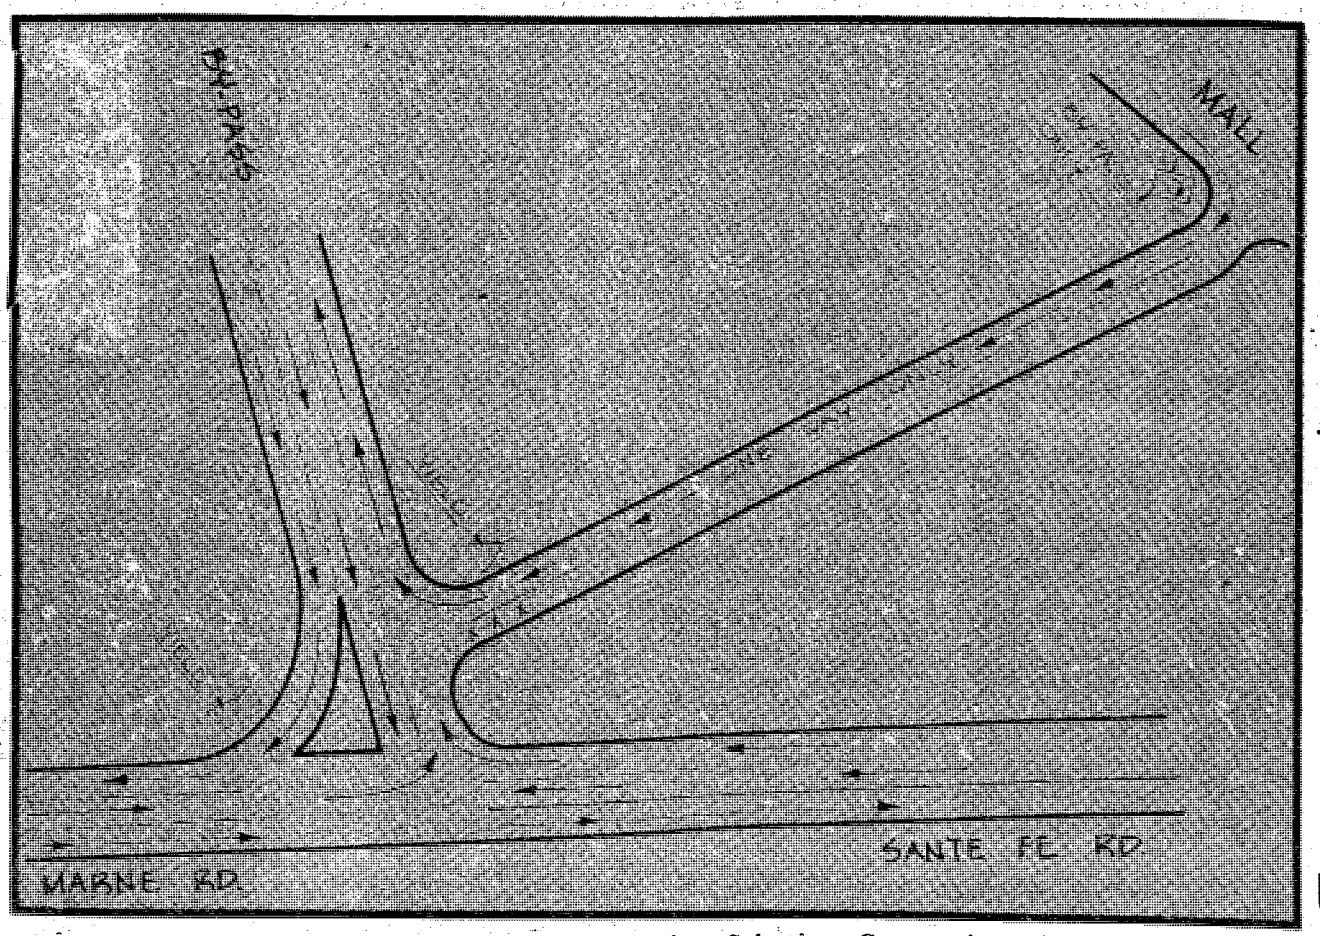
Avoiding Mall area urged

Traffic changes slated Monday

By Marshall Jones

Traffic at the southern end of the Lindsay Creek Bypass will be temporarily re-routed beginning 9 a.m. Monday, October 3, to accommodate trucks and other equipment used in the construction of bypass improvements.

Both northbound lanes of the bypass will be closed as far north as Custer Road and the southbound lanes will handle two-way traffic.



The existing access road leading from the end of the southbound lanes to the mall will reverse its traffic direction, becoming a one-way entrance to the bypass. New signs will be put up to direct traffic in the new routing.

The reason for the detour, which is scheduled to end in late November, is to make way for hauling 100,000 cubic yards of earth from the vicinity of Marne Road to the Custer Road interchange. Four new and more adequate entrance and exit ramps are to be constructed at Custer Road.

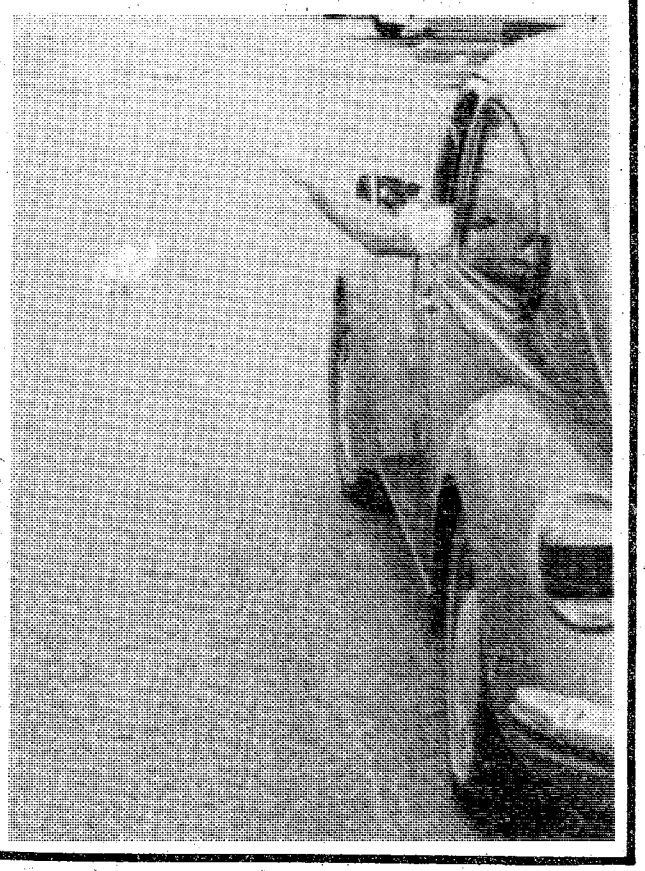
The bypass improvements also include the extension of I-185 to 1st Division Road, construction of a bridge connecting the two segments of Marne, two ramps at Marne and a family housing access road, and relocation of a portion of Santa Fe Road. According to the Facilities Engineers, work will be phased for a minimum of traffic interruption.

Persons entering and departing post are urged to avoid the Benning Mall area. The use of alternate routes to and from work will reduce the anticipated congestion.

The entire construction project is scheduled to last approximately two years.

Oktoberfest slated

Oktoberfest! A time of celebration in the best traditions of the Deutschland is coming to Ft. Benning in the form of the 1977 Fall Volks Fest.



Knackwurst, Volks Walk, Bratwurst, running events, Brotchen and lots and lots of dancing will highlight the festivities October 8 at Doughboy Stadium.

Activities will include five and ten mile runs and a Volks Walk. Each running event will have both timed and non-timed categories. Participants winning the timed category will be eligible for first, second and third place awards, while those individuals in the non-timed event will receive a certificate for completing the course.

Other events on the schedule include German and rock bands, an all-girl choral group from the University of South Carolina and a German dance contest.

All will be happening Saturday, October 8 at Doughboy Stadium. Bring a friend and enjoy the atmosphere of the Deutschland.

Secretary backs all volunteer Army

Secretary of the Army Clifford L. Alexander recently told a group of newspaper publishers there are "very positive signs" that the all volunteer Army is working, despite some "problems in meeting our goals in the Reserves and National Guard."

Alexander talked with the publishers at a meeting of the American Newspaper Publishers Association on September 14. He told the publishers that soldiers are engaged in training that is far more sophisticated than it was ten to 20 years ago and the state of discipline in today's Army is good.

Alexander pointed to some statistical indicators that "turmoil" within the Army has been reduced in the last couple of years. In 1974, Alexander said, there were 108 cases of absence without leave (AWOL) per thousand soldiers. In 1976 that figure was cut in half — down to 56 cases per thousand.

Desertion rates have also plunged, according

'You are what you eat . . . !'

"You are what you eat!"

Or, better yet, you are because of what you eat.

People are becoming more and more concerned about what they are eating, the nutrient content of foods, calories, vitamins, minerals, etc. There is no substitute for a balanced diet, one that provides all the essential elements to remain healthy and fit.

Medical authorities feel that six items, necessary for good health, are found in a balanced diet. These "blocks" are: carbohydrates, fats, proteins, minerals, vitamins and water. Any one of these blocks, in excess, can be dangerous and cause debilitating deficiencies.

- Carbohydrates. This block contains compounds made from carbon, hydrogen and oxygen and are sugars, starches and fibres. Carbohydrates are found in cereals, whole wheat and rye breads, paste, noodles, cakes, honey, maple syrup, grits, corn, rice, potatoes, jams and jellies for example.
- Fats. These are glycerides of fatty acids (animal and plant) that provide large amounts of energy but have double the calories of carbohydrates.

Fats are divided into two types: saturated and polyunsaturated. The difference between the two is a complex chemical bonding that causes saturated fats to produce more cholesterol in the body than polyunsaturated fats.

Examples of foods with saturated fats are: hot dogs, sausage, bacon, cheese, ice cream, coconut oil, whole milk, steak and just about any animal tissue. Polyunsaturated fats are generally plant fats and are used in margarines that contain liquid oil or vegetable oil.

- Proteins. These are the essential building blocks of all living cells and are required daily to remain healthy. High protein sources include peas, soybeans, unsalted nuts, peanut butter, lean meat, salmon, skinless chicken, eggs, yogurt and whole grain cereals. Dieticians warn that a constant diet of pure protein can be harmful because the body doesn't get enough of the other essential items.
- Minerals. These blocks are used in numerous ways by the body. Calcium for example helps the heart maintain a regular beat, builds sturdy bones and teeth, and helps keep nerves and muscles healthy. Good sources of calcium include: dairy products, oranges, mustard and turnip greens and eggs.

Phosphorus helps the body release energy as it is required and can be obtained by eating dairy products, eggs, whole grain cereals, fish and lean meat.

Magnesium helps keep muscle tone and prevents tremors and cramps. Magnesium is found in nuts, beans, meats, grains, molasses and dairy products.

Iron is another important mineral. Iron carries oxygen to the body through the blood stream and a lack of iron can cause anemia. Iron is found in liver, dried fruits, dark green vegetables, eggs, beans, oysters, clams, raisins and whole grain and enriched cereals.

- Vitamins. These blocks act as coenzymes and regulate the metabolism of the body. They do not "build" as do protein or minerals but are just as essential for maintaining health. Some necessary vitamins are: Vitamin A, B, Bc, B complex (B2, B6, C, D, D2, E, H, and K.

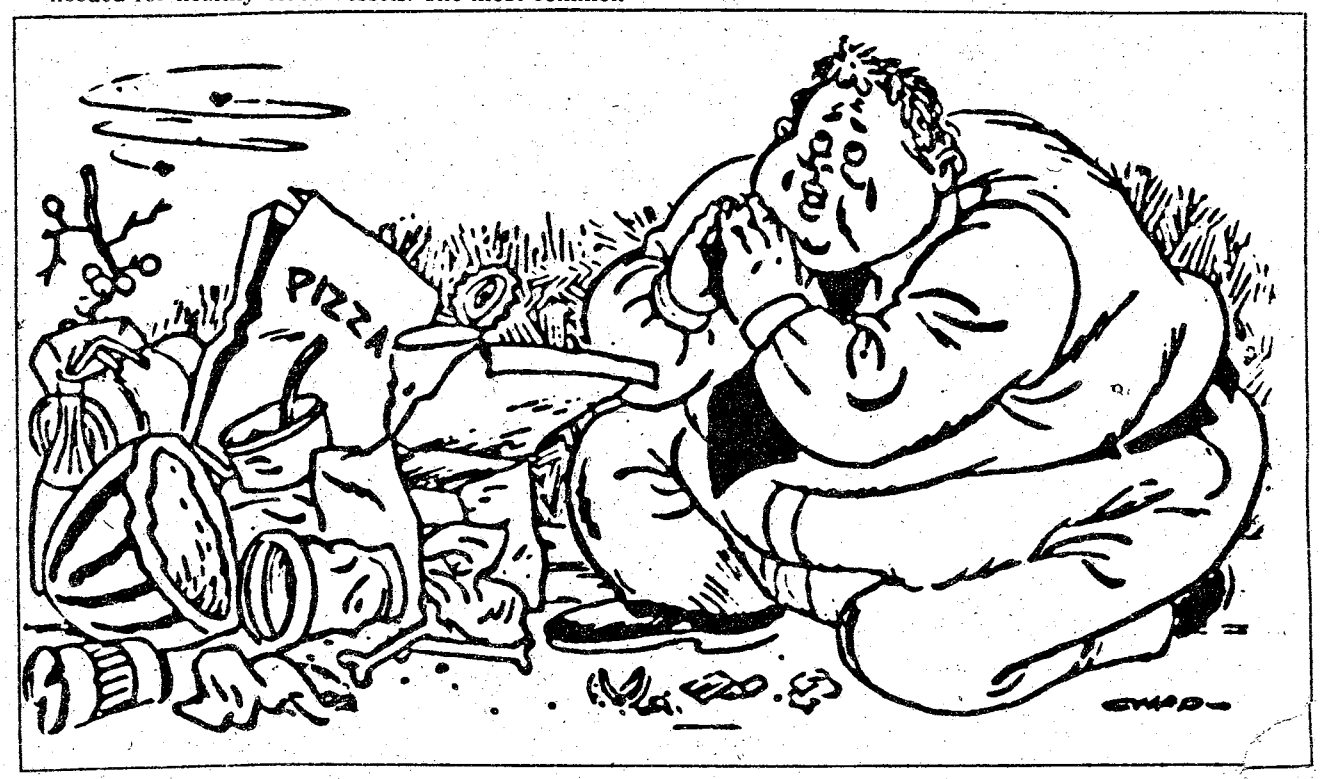
Vitamin A is necessary for good vision.

Vitamin B complex is a combination of the B vitamin niacin, riboflavin and thiamine.

Niacin is necessary for a healthy nervous system and aids in energy production. It is found in chicken, tuna, meats, nuts, liver, milk and eggs. Riboflavin helps the body use fats, protein and carbohydrates for energy and can be obtained by eating liver, lean meats, milk and whole grains.

Thiamine aids in the oxygenizing of glucose and helps energy production in cells. Good sources of Thiamine are: pork, fish, peas, beans, egg yolks, liver, rice and oatmeal.

Vitamin C builds resistance, speeds healing, aids in building the materials that hold cells together and is needed for healthy blood vessels. The most common source of vitamin C is citrus fruits but other good sources are: brussel sprouts, cabbage, tomatoes, green peppers and other green vegetables.



Vitamin D is essential for good bone and tooth structure and is found in dairy products, egg yolk and fish. Vitamin D2 helps build body resistance and is found in the same foods as vitamin D.

Vitamin E is not a wonder drug for potency but the absence of vitamin E in the diet is associated with infertility, and degenerative changes in muscles and blood vessels. Vitamin E is found in most green vegetables and whole grains.

Vitamin H or Biotin is a member of the B complex and helps stimulate growth of body cells. Vitamin H is found in yeast, liver and egg yolk.

Vitamin K produces the clotting material in blood. Without vitamin K in the diet, wounds and cuts would not stop bleeding. A good source of vitamin K is red meats.

- Water is one of the most neglected yet essential elements for good health. Regular exercise requires six to eight glasses of water a day, more in warm weather. Since the body is composed chiefly of fluids, water should not be neglected. Other than water itself, best sources are milk, fruit juices, soups, and bouillon followed by other drinks.

Booze big business in DoD

Liquor sales at some 400 DOD-operated package beverage stores both in the States and overseas was about $265 million in fiscal year 1976, according to a defense official.

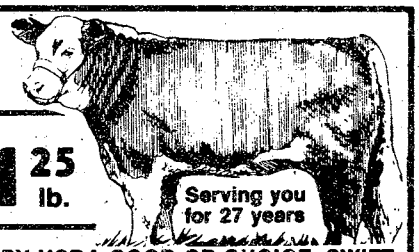
He said the Army's sales volume for the year reached $98.4 million at 152 outlets followed closely by the Navy and Marine Corps together reporting $95.4 million in sales at 153 outlets.

In an 11-month period, the Air Force reported sales of $71.5 million at more than 130 outlets, the official said.

For the Army, the highest volume of sales, $63.3 million, was done together by 62 of its liquor stores in the CONUS, Alaska, Hawaii, and U.S. territories.

In Europe, the Army operated 78 outlets that had a sales record of $25.5, in Korea nine stores had sales of $7.6 million, and three stores in Japan reported $2 million in sales.

A detailed breakout of the Navy, Marine Corps and the Air Force's sales records by geographic location was not available.



The defense official did not have net profit figures from the package beverage stores which are to be shared with the morale, welfare, and recreational fund activities, he said.

He said a Congressional panel began a study of the Pentagon's multi-billion dollar non-appropriated fund activities this week.

A five-member Congressional panel, chaired by Rep. Dan Daniel (Dem.-VA), will want a report on the package beverage operation.

In the coming months, the panel is expected to study military commissaries, exchanges, clubs, and related non-appropriated fund activities. (ARNews)

Top gets down on uniform violations

By Marie M. Russo

"Top, did you want to see us?"

"I sure do. Come on in ladies.

"I called you two in here because you're top ranking female NCOs in the company.

"Is there a problem with one of the women on our floor?"

"There sure is ladies, but it's not one woman it's two — the two of you."

"What's wrong, Top?"

"The younger women look up to you and just look at what they're looking up to: Romesburg you're out on the PT field bouncing around everyday without a bra and you, Williams, you enrolled yourself in the weight control program and yet you're wearing your hem four inches above your knee."

"The Army didn't issue me bras so I don't have to wear one. If somebody doesn't like what they see they don't have to look."

The change over from the summer to the winter uniform will be October 17. Are you ready?

"You're wrong Romesburg. Bras may not have been issued to you, but by regulation you are still required to wear one with all uniforms."

"What about me, Top?" The length of your skirt is a matter of personal preference."

"No young lady, that isn't so. According to the Reg your hem can be two inches above or one inch below your knee — and that's it!"

"Alright so I'll let my hem down a little. Can we go now, I have an appointment at Finance?"

"Wait a minute, I'm not finished with the two of you."

"Hey Top, you sound awfully hot under the collar. Is there something more to all this than what you're telling us? Two little minor infractions of a Reg and you're getting all excited."

"Romesburg there are more than two violations that we're talking about. For instance the two of you are standing here in front of me with two different hats on."

"Geez Top, give us a break. All the hats are authorized with all our dress uniforms."

"You're wrong Williams. The black beret may be authorized for wear with all your dresses, but not the garrison cap. "You can't wear it with the summer dress uniform."

"She'll go upstairs and change hats, okay?"

"No Romesburg it isn't okay. You're indoors and you still have your hat on."

"Before you called us in on the carpet, Top, you should have read the Reg. Wacs are authorized to wear their hats indoor."

"Williams that may have been true at one time, but it isn't any more. Everyone, male and female, officers and enlisted, are required to remove their hats when they're indoors. Drill Sergeants and anyone under arms are the only people authorized to wear headgear indoors."

"Alright Top, we'll take our hats off."

"Girls it's more than just removing your hats in front of me. You're soldiers in the United States Army, when you wear your uniform you not only represent yourself, but all service members as well. You should have enough pride in yourself not to wear your beret all crushed up. If it was supposed to be worn flat it would have been made that way."

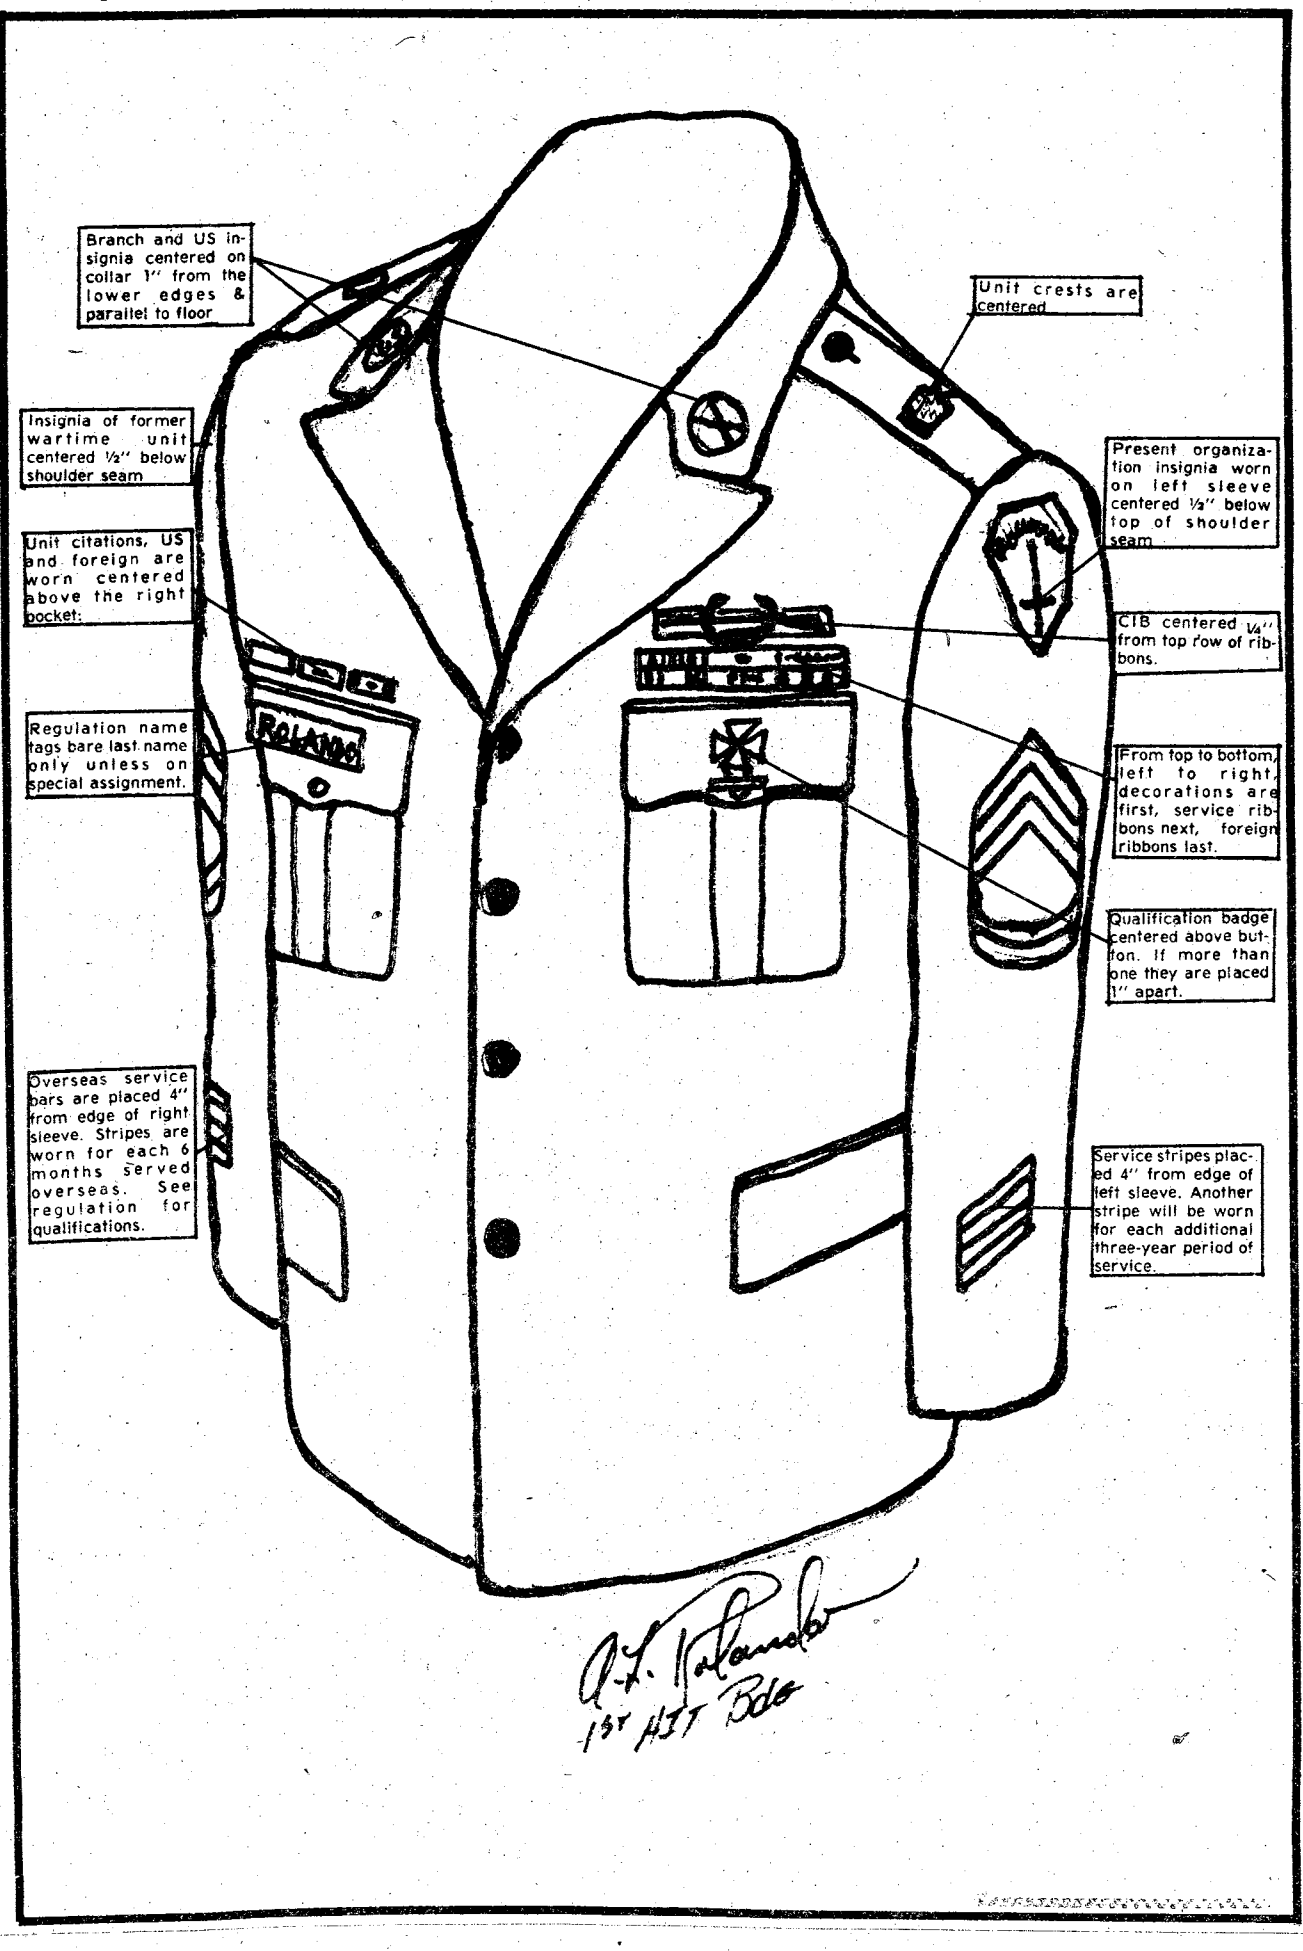
"Excuse me Top, but can you sign me out on leave?"

"Well, well, well. If it isn't Specialist Bruckner, in fatigue jacket and jeans. This is just what I'm talking about ladies, there are so many people that don't care enough about their appearance to know what the Regs say."

"Hey what did I walk in on? I can just get the old man to sign me out."

"Wait a minute fella, come back here. Did you know that you're out of uniform?"

"Top, I'm not even in uniform."



"Son, you have your field jacket on with civilian clothes and it's not authorized."

"Gee Top, I saw the XO at the bowling alley the other night with his raincoat on so I figured we could wear our coats with civilian clothes."

"If you would have looked closely or asked, you would have noticed that his rank insignia was removed and like you said, he had on his raincoat — not his field jacket."

"Okay Top, when I get back from leave I'll sit down and read the Reg, but right now can you just sign me out?"

"Alright, here and have a good trip and take Williams and Romesburg with you — I need a break!"

If the shoe fits ...

By Marie M. Russo

Lasting impressions are made on others by the manner in which you dress, your personal cleanliness and neatness and your military bearing.

A neat haircut, polished brass, shined shoes, a clean uniform and the correct wear of distinctive insignia, awards and decorations are direct indicators of an individual's self-esteem, discipline and esprit-de-corps.

When soldiers walk around post with unauthorized additions to the uniform i.e., jungle or zippered boots, commerically designed handbags and excessive jewelry and make up, it makes one wonder — who is at fault?

Is the individual soldier negligent for not conforming to the regulation or is it the NCO or officer negligent when he/she overlooks the violation.

It was pointed out to a second lieutenant that an enlisted service member working in his office was in violation of the uniform regulation on several counts.

This NCO wore rings on every finger, two bracelets plus a watch.

When this was brought to the attention of the officer, he replied in a rather sardonic manner, "Sgt. Jones (not the NCO's real name) also has a goatee that isn't authorized and needs a haircut too."

When the lieutenant was quired as to why, if he is aware that the sergeant is out of uniform, he allows it to continue his answer was, "Well gee, the guy only has nine months left in service before he retires so I'm not going to bother to say anything to him."

It should be pointed out that a young enlisted soldier brought the matter to the lieutenant's attention, so the question is raised — what kind of impression of the Army is this soldier going to get when an officer, who is supposed to be setting examples, makes a remark like that?

Is the young soldier to assume that once an individual attains the rank of E-5 or reaches predetermined tenure he/she is no longer subject to Army regulations?

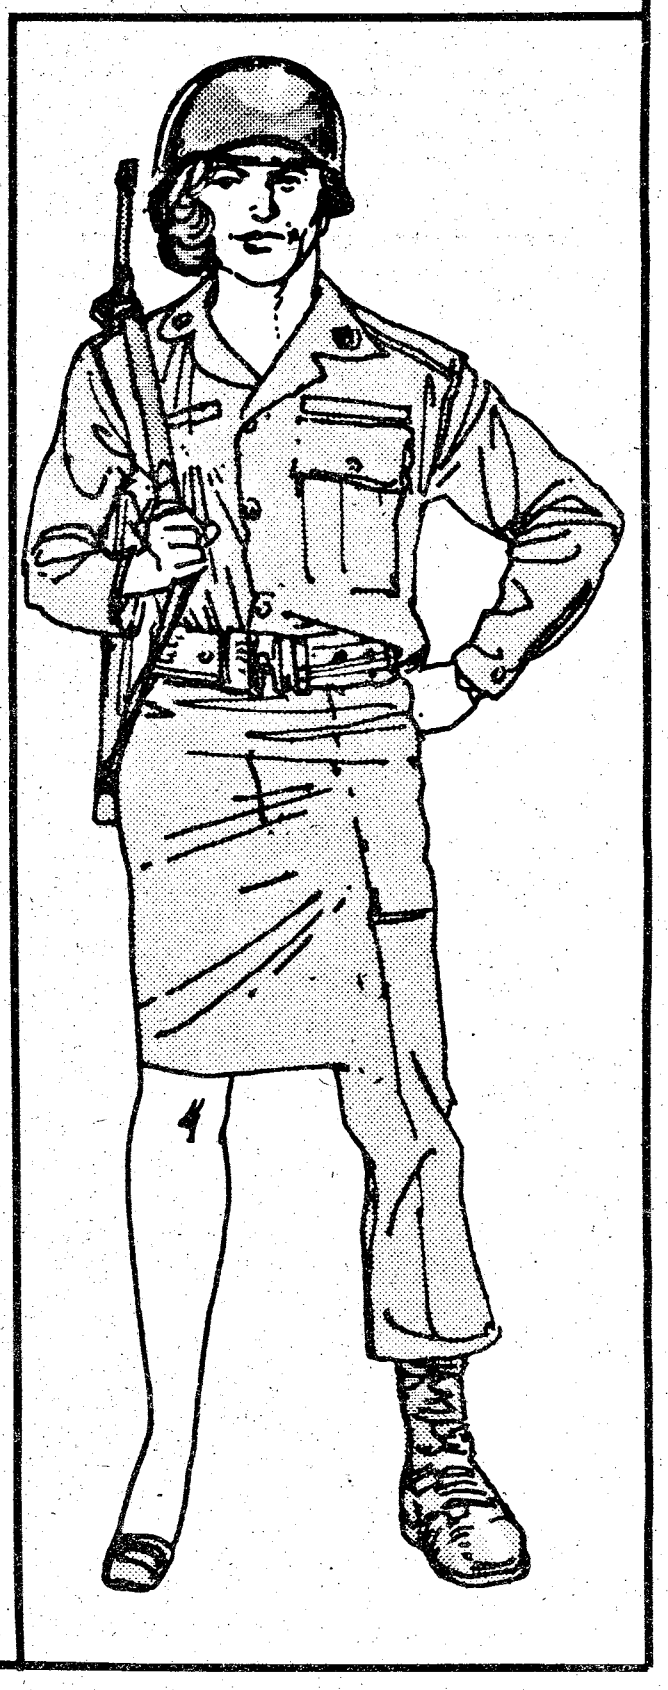
Uniform regulations (AR 670-5 for men and 670-30 for women) adequately prescribes the proper apparel for duty and off-duty wear.

Make it your job to know and conform to these regulations.

If a young soldier can take the initivative to find out what is authorized and what isn't why can't the NCO or the officer?

Army studying unisex uniforms

Due to the increase in the number of women in Army field and maintenance positions, the Army's Natick Research and Development Command is working on a field uniform that can be worn by both men and women.



A number of women soldiers have expressed dissatisfaction with their field clothing — especially in the areas of durability and warmth. As part of Natick's clothing research and development program, the R&D Command is evaluating and comparing the men's and the women's field items.

Because of the women's dissatisfaction with their field jacket and their preference for the men's field jacket, it was the first item selected for evaluation.

The problems with issuing the men's items to the women is that they are too large for many of the women. Excessive length is the biggest problem. Larger, taller, and broad-shouldered women can wear the men's jacket, but the smaller and shorter women cannot.

Testing of the items is expected to take place soon. If adopted, the concept would save money, as the women's jacket now in the system is more expensive than the men's. Additionally, just in case the unisex concept doesn't work out, planning is underway to model a field jacket for women after the men's design. Retaining the same design, the sleeves and length of the jacket would be shortened and the circumference reduced.

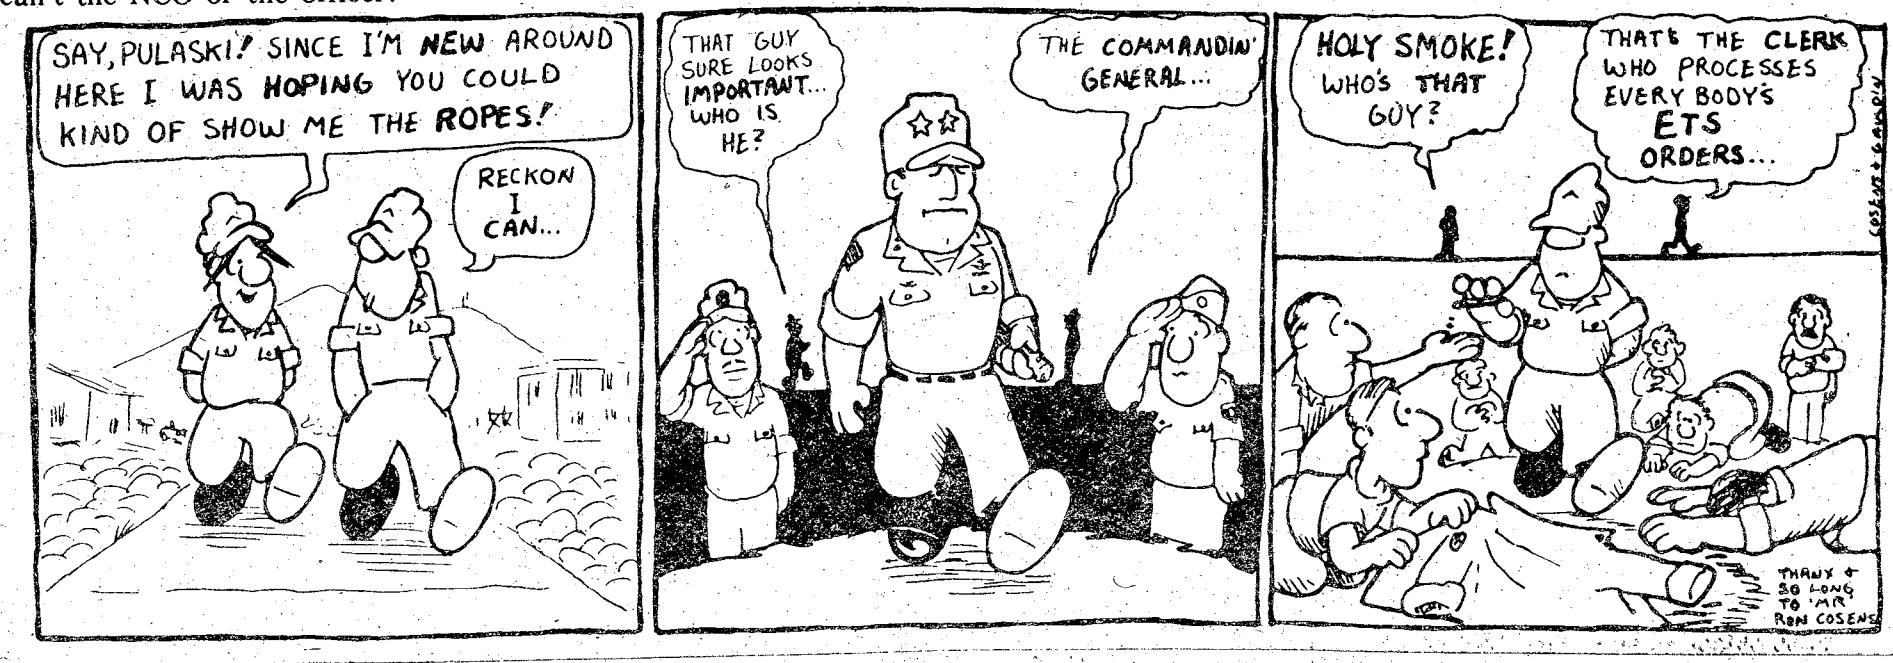
According to Rosemary Lomba, a clothing designer at Natick, and Dr. Carolyn Bensel, a human factors psychologist, the field jacket study is just the beginning of the program. All current and future field clothing and personal equipment will be evaluated for use by both men and women not only from the standpoint of sizing, but in terms of function as well, say the Natick staffers.

An editorial

Is it necessary

By Marie M. Russo

There is no telling how much all this research is going to cost the Army, but one can make a pretty good guess when you realize the project involves clothes designers, psychologists, data gatherers, typists and many more.



Is all this research really necessary?

The Army has been issuing present model field jacket to men for about 10 years and has found nothing wrong with it. Why then isn't it acceptable to issue the men's field jacket, manufactured in smaller sizes of course, to women?

They last longer, are much warmer than the present women's jacket, and offer more protection against bad weather conditions. They have a pull-out hood and sleeve extenders for cold weather.

After the field jacket is evaluated, all other items of field clothing and equipment are also scheduled for study. If women are supposed to be performing the same duties and jobs as men, why isn't it appropriate that they wear the same field clothing adjusted to the differences in body sizes?

Call of the MAST

By Bill Walton

As the call for help goes out, helicopter crewman of the 498th Med Co (Air Ambulance), 34th Med Bn respond as they have 577 times previously — to the call of the MAST.

MAST, the Military Assistance to Safety and Traffic, missions have become an almost daily occurrence to the company's operation section and its crewmembers since its inception in 1974, but to the beneficiaries of the service it's a more than routine matter — take MAST mission 578 for example:

At 12:23 p.m. September 21, the high risk nursery at Columbus Medical Center contacted the 498th and informed the operation section that a premature baby boy, Christopher Dean of Bainbridge, Ga. born on the 18th, was having respiratory problems and that medical evacuation by helicopter was deemed necessary to save his life. After preliminary coordination between the concerned parties; the Medical Center, the Bainbridge hospital and the 478th, a UH-1 departed Lawson Airfield at 1:30 p.m. enroute to the Medical Center. After landing atop the emergency facility to pick up two nurses, Janis Hart and Joyce Saville, from the high risk nursery, a transport incubator and the "dog," a wheeled medical chest filled with medicine and equipment, the aircraft was again airborne. Bainbridge arrival time was 2:50 p.m.

While the helicopter, crewed by Pilot CWO3 Charles Angle, Copilot WO1 Joseph Powell and Crewchief Sp4 John Schrivers, headed for Thomasville to refuel, the nurses, Flight Medic Sp4 Gerald Keister and Bainbridge Hospital personnel stayed behind to work together to prepare the baby for transport.

Local police and firemen stood by at the heliport site to offer assistance if needed as a large crowd of spectators gathered to watch the action. This was the first infant evacuated from the newly constructed facility at the Bainbridge Memorial Hospital.

When the transport incubator was brought up to temperature, the isolette was wheeled from the hospital just as the helicopter was returing from Thomasville. Once aboard, the system was plugged in and checked to insure that Christopher's "world" would function during the flight to Columbus.

At 4:15 p.m. the flight departed Bainbridge. Consultation between the pilot and Janis Hart resulted in an altitude selection that would least affect the patient enroute. Aside from a minor adjustment in the oxygen flow, the flight went without a hitch.

On arrival at Columbus at 5:20 p.m., Christopher was immediately wheeled to the high risk nursery for further treatment. The helicopter and crew returned to Lawson Airfield, refueled the aircraft and went back on stand by duty to await the next — call of the MAST.

The Operation section is the control point for all MAST missions. PFC Ken Napier, operations Clerk in the 498th Medical Co receives the telphone call and fills out the mission sheet to start MAST Mission 578.

CLEAR TO START!!! While Sp4 Gerald Keister (foreground) and Sp4 John Schrivers stand fireguard, CWO3 Charles Angle and WO1 Joseph Powell go thru the required UH-1 checklist to make sure that all systems are operating properly prior to departing Lawson AAF on the Medivac mission.

AUSA position paper outlines DoD, DA budgets

The Association of the U.S. Army has released a 10-page position paper — "Final Action on the Army Budget for FY 78" — that outlines the Army and Defense Department budgets for the coming year after budget revisions and final approval by both houses of Congress.

The paper reports the final defense spending total as $110.1 billion (new obligational authority), a reduction of $6.5 billion from the Ford administration's budget proposal. Of this amount, $2.7 billion came from cuts proposed by the Carter administration and $3.8 billion were shaved off by Congress.

The Army budget of $27.132 billion is approximately $.9 billion less than that recommended by the Carter administration. This leaves the Army with the prospect of continued weakness in a number of areas, most notably ammunition procurement, the paper says.

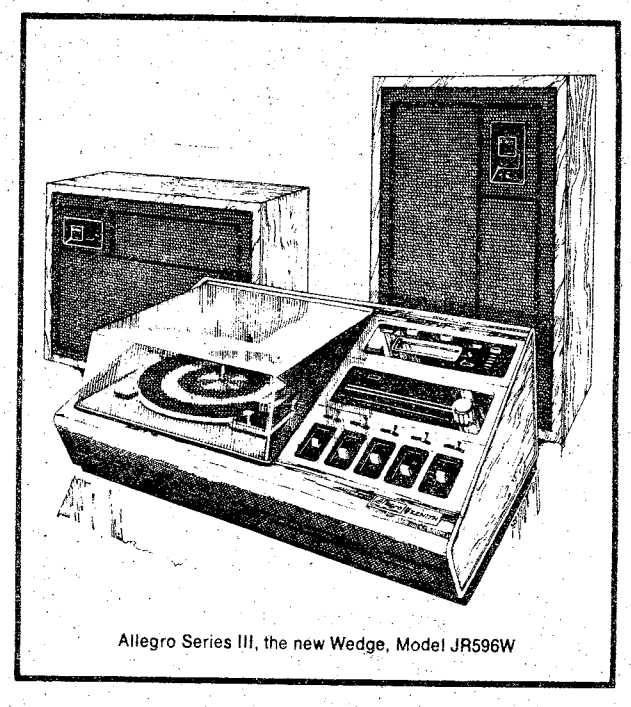
Congress also assessed a personnel cut of 3,680 for the Active Army, but left the Army National Guard and the Army Reserve at their current strength levels.

The paper goes on to detail AUSA's support for funding of defense programs and summarizes Congressional actions on 14 significant portions of the FY 1978 Defense budget together with a description of AUSA's actions on those issues.

The paper concludes, "This Congressional action on the FY 78 Army budget will barely sustain a satisfactory level of operations and readiness for the Army during the forthcoming fiscal year. There were, however, specific reductions in base operations and maintenance areas which will require internal Army adjustments in order to meet requirements. It may become necessary to seek Congressional reprogramming authority during Fiscal Year 78 in certain areas to preclude reduced levels of training, base operations and maintenance."

Copies of the report are available in the Public Affairs Office, Rm. 604, Bldg. 4 (Infantry Hall).

No Swine flu in this year's shots



This year's influenza will contain A-Victoria and B-Hong Kong components, but no Swine Flu component, according to Col. Joseph Bratley, chief of MAH Health and Environmental Medicine.

Military personnel will be required to take their annual immunization unless there is a medical contradiction. "Flu shots are strongly recommended for adults and children who have chronic disease of the heart, lungs, kidneys or diabetes," advised Dr. Bartley.

Civilians in essential government employ such as firearm, hospital workers will be immunized, other civilians may obtain the vaccine on a volunteer basis.

Vaccines will become available in early November and schedules will be announced as to what units will be given the immunizations at what time.

And because each Zenith modular stereo is designed around Allegro's Tuned-Port speakers, it would take comparable-size air-suspension speakers fully twice the amplifier power to match a Zenith's overall sound performance.

Presenting the new, more powerful Wedge

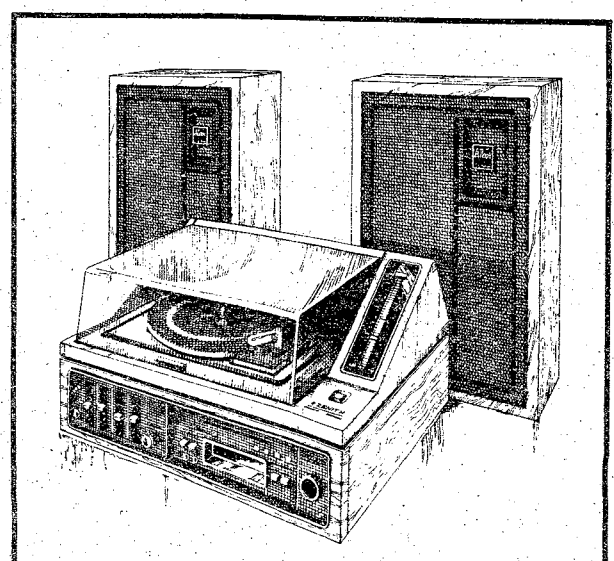
As a result of a new, high-performance AM/FM Stereo FM Tuner-Amplifier, the new Zenith Wedge with automatic record changer and built-in 8-track player-recorder delivers 15 watts minimum RMS power per channel with no more than 0.5% total harmonic distortion, from 40 to 18,000 Hz into 8 ohms.

More professional features, too

A Shure magnetic cartridge and diamond stylus for precise record tracking is now built into the Wedge's low-mass tone arm. And its 3-speed automatic-manual changer still features a smooth-performing, viscous-damped Cue Control.

New is a Lo Filter designed to remove low frequency noise such as rumble. A Hi Frequency Filter, FM Muting, and a Tuning Meter add extra convenience and better sound reception just as they did with the Wedge original.

And a microphone is yours, too, with this new Wedge. Plus a 3-position speaker switch to let you choose regular stereo sound from two Allegro speakers . . . or from an extra pair of remote Allegros . . . or both.



Introducing the all-new Mini-Wedge

It's new, all-new inside and out. Inside, a solid-state AM/FM Stereo FM Tuner-Amplifier with 3-speed automatic-manual record changer and built-in 8-track tape player-recorder.

Outside, you'll recognize at once styling dramatics that, though uniquely Mini-Wedge, still reflect innovations originally achieved in the now classic lines of its illustrious forebearer.

Truly surprising when you hear it perform is a price so comfortable you'll find it hard to resist this great, new Mini-Wedge.

See and audition both of these and Zenith's other new Allegro Modular Stereo Sound Systems at your Exchange soon. Or check, now, with your Special Order Desk.

Allegro Series I, the new Mini-Wedge, Model JR587W
Also available, as Model JR588W, with built-in cassette tape player/recorder.

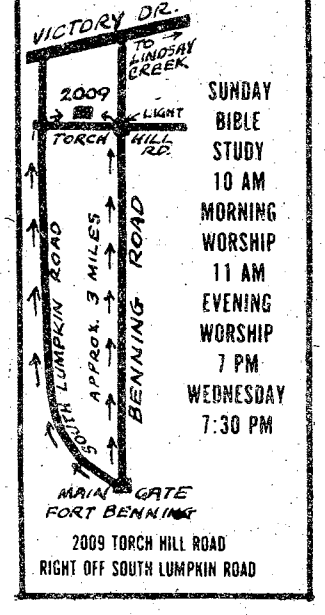
Junior EM entitlements get support

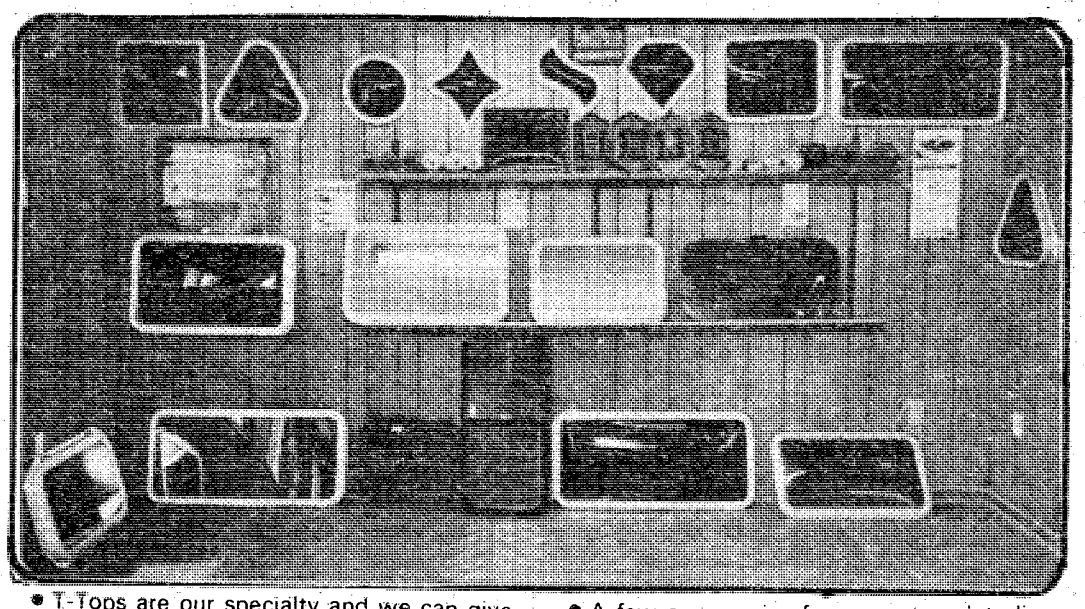
A Congressman with the reputation as a severe critic of military spending has gone to bat for junior enlisted members by endorsing a Department of Defense (DOD) request for funds to increase moving entitlements for junior ranks.

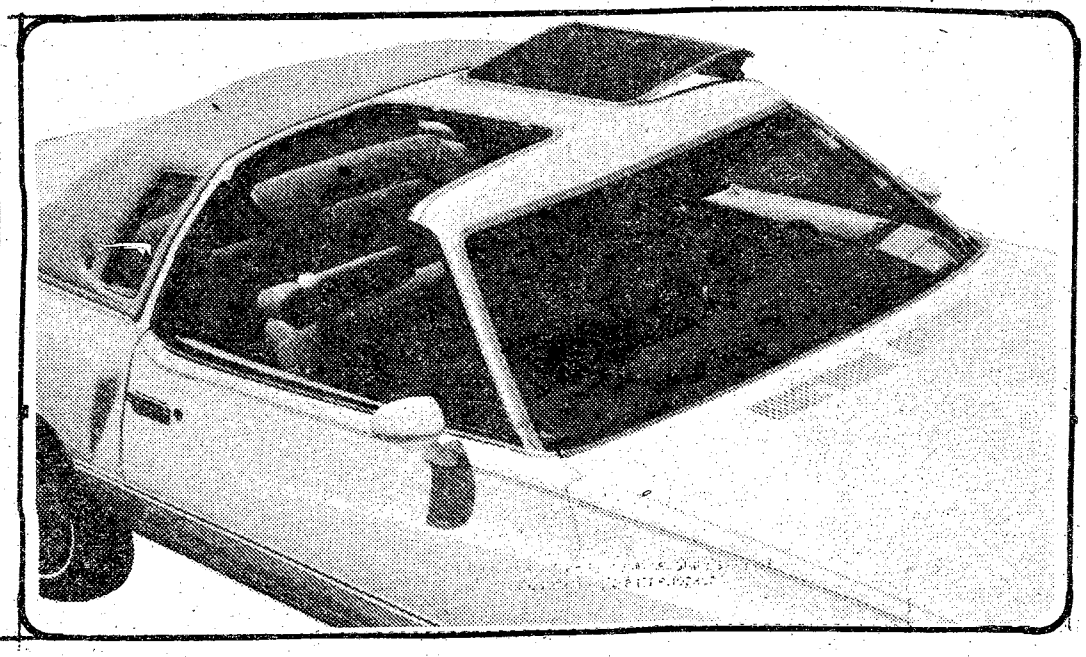
In a letter to Secretary of Defense Harold Brown last month, Rep. Les Aspin (D-Wis.) urged Brown to support the Army's FY 1979 budget request to extend the entitlements. In DOD, 275,000 married service members would be eligible for the $190 million increase.



About $90 million of the budget request is earmarked for the Army's E-1s through E-3s and E-4s with less than two years service, who are currently allowed to ship only 225 pounds when PCSing. The request would allow these soldiers additional weight allowance for shipping household goods and, in some cases, privatelyowned vehicles. In addition, the funds would allow the Army to pay for station, temporary lodging and cost of living allowances. These entitlements, however, vary in areas where certain shipments are restricted, and where dependents are not allowed to accompany sponsors.

In his letter to the Defense Secretary, Aspin stated, "The present system saves money, but it does so by imposing the burden exclusively on the lowest paid service families. The real issue here is equity. This is not a compensation or pay item; it is a reimbursement for expenses, a cost of doing business. We pay to move the families of generals making $50,000; we shouldn't shaft the private making $7,000. Besides being unfair, this restriction certainly doesn't encourage volunteers for the services."





Citing the $190 million price tag for extending the moving entitlements, Aspin added, "This is no small sum. But I believe it is warranted expense. The time is overdue for removing the shaft given young enlisted families." (ARNEWS)

Federal Women's Program Coordinator Norma Christian and FWP Committee members Peggy Hardaway and Jane Beachner recently participated in the instruction of 48 students in a two-week Unit Discussion Leaders' Course offered by the Race Relations Coordinating Group.

The FWP presentation, given on the afternoon of September 20, was designed to increase the students' understanding of the inequities for women in traditional hiring and promotion practices, to correct stereotyped views of women, and to enable the students to distinguish fact fron myth in common beliefs regarding the employment of women.

Maternity uniforms for female soldiers are being considered by the Department of the Army.

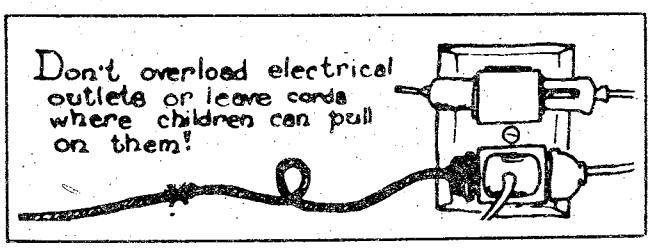
The issue surfaced late in 1976 when the Air Force proposed the development of uniservice maternity uniforms.

The uniforms were to be manufactured from identical patterns but in different colors to retain individual service identity, officials said.

While the Army and Marine Corps squabbled over the idea, the Navy came up with and approved its own design while the Air Force set the wheels into motion for production of their design.

WAC Director BrigGen. Mary E. Clarke and Clifford L. Alexander Jr., Secretary of the Army, have met together to revive the idea of a maternity uniform, according to DA officials.

No particular design was discussed, but according to Clarke, "There will be further meetings on the subject."



Currently, female soldiers may wear civilian maternity clothes when their duty uniforms no longer fit. A name tag which bears their name, rank and branch must also be worn, according to AR 670-30.

The Defense Advisory Commission on Women in the Service has been called "sexist" in a ruling issued by the Department of Defense General Counsel.

The commission, which advises the Secretary of Defense on matters concerning women service members, is composed entirely of women and should have male members, according to the DoD General Counsel.

The various services have been instructed to nominate male candidates for vacancies which now exist on the commission.

Airport information booth helping incoming personnel

By Madonna Simple

Arriving at a new duty station can sometimes be a little hectic. A person may be unfamiliar with the state or duty station itself. A person who is new to Fort Benning may not know where it is at or how to get there.

Incoming personnel to Ft. Benning need not worry. As soon as their plane lands at the Columbus Metro Airport, they will receive able assistance from personnel at the Ft. Benning Information Booth.

The personnel in the information booth give newcomers brochures about Ft. Benning, a copy of special newcomers edition of the BAYONET, the post newspaper and a list of standard taxi fares from the airport to main areas on Benning. They will also answer any questions about Fort Benning they may have.

Although there isn't a military shuttle bus available to take incoming personnel to Ft. Benning, there is commercial taxi cab service.

"Our job is to correct uniform violations, assist personnel going on emergency leave, aid personnel with charter flights and assist incoming personnel and their families," stated SFC Perry Campbell, NCOIC.

Assisting Campbell are SFC Aaron Isham, Sp6 James Godboldte and Sgt. Ray Moody. All are assigned to the 18th Replacement Detachment, 36th Engr. Gp. Two men are on duty from 6:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. and the other two work from 4 p.m. to 2 a.m.

"The personnel at the information booth were very helpful. When I arrived here I didn't know where I was to go and what Benning was like. They answered all my questions," stated Pvt. C. M. Sellers, a recent graduate of the Ranger course.

According to SFC Campbell approximately 100-150 military personnel are either arriving or leaving Benning daily.

"This is a very interesting job. We get to meet people and sometimes we meet a few dignitaries," Campbell said.

So if you need assistance at the airport, just go to the Information Booth. These men know what's happening at the airport and at Fort Benning. Just ask them, they will be glad to assist you.

Army Community Service slates Riverside tour

A tour of the "Riverside" home of MajGen. and Mrs. William J. Livsey will be conducted by Army Community Service (ACS) volunteers Sunday, October 2 from 1 to 4:30 p.m.

Admission to the tour will be cans of food or monetary contributions. Proceeds from the tour go to the Emergency Food Locker which is organized and run by the ACS. The Locker provides needy families on post with food and depends entirely on contributions.

"Riverside" was constructed in 1909 by Arthur Bussey, a prominent Columbus businessman, and served as a summer home for his family. In 1918, when Camp Benning was founded and the Infantry School moved from Ft. Sill, Ok. to Columbus, "Riverside" became a part of the Army reservation.

Since that time, the stately residence has served as the official abode for a succession of commanding generals. "Riverside" was designated a National Historic Home and accepted by the National Register of Historic Places in 1972.

Children 10 years of age and under will be permitted on the tour. However, a free nursery service will be available there. Cookies, beverages and toys will be provided.

The entire house and grounds will be open to the public.

D-I-V-O-R-C-E: Serious legal business

Editor's Note: The following article, written by Robert W. Scholz, a Legal Intern with the Office of the Staff Judge Advocate, reviews the residency requirements, procedures and grounds for divorce in the State of Georgia.

By Robert Wayne Scholz

Rising divorce rates in the United States reflect changing attitudes about marriage. Many believe this trend is a serious threat to the system of family life which underlies many of America's institutions.

Georgia divorce laws reflect this change in attitude to some extent by now allowing what is essentially "no fault" divorce where the marriage is "irretrievably broken." However, most grounds for divorce in Georgia still adhere to the "fault" view.

To separate cases of minor disagreement that may be worked out by the couple from serious incompatibility, divorce law requires that a substantial reason for dissolving a marriage be presented before a judge or jury. When a couple has intelligently and carefully decided that for good reasons their marriage cannot work the divorce process need not be a hostile one.

For service personnel, special rules apply under Georgia law regarding residency and under military regulations regarding support. The law of other states, such as Alabama, differs to some extent from that of Georgia.

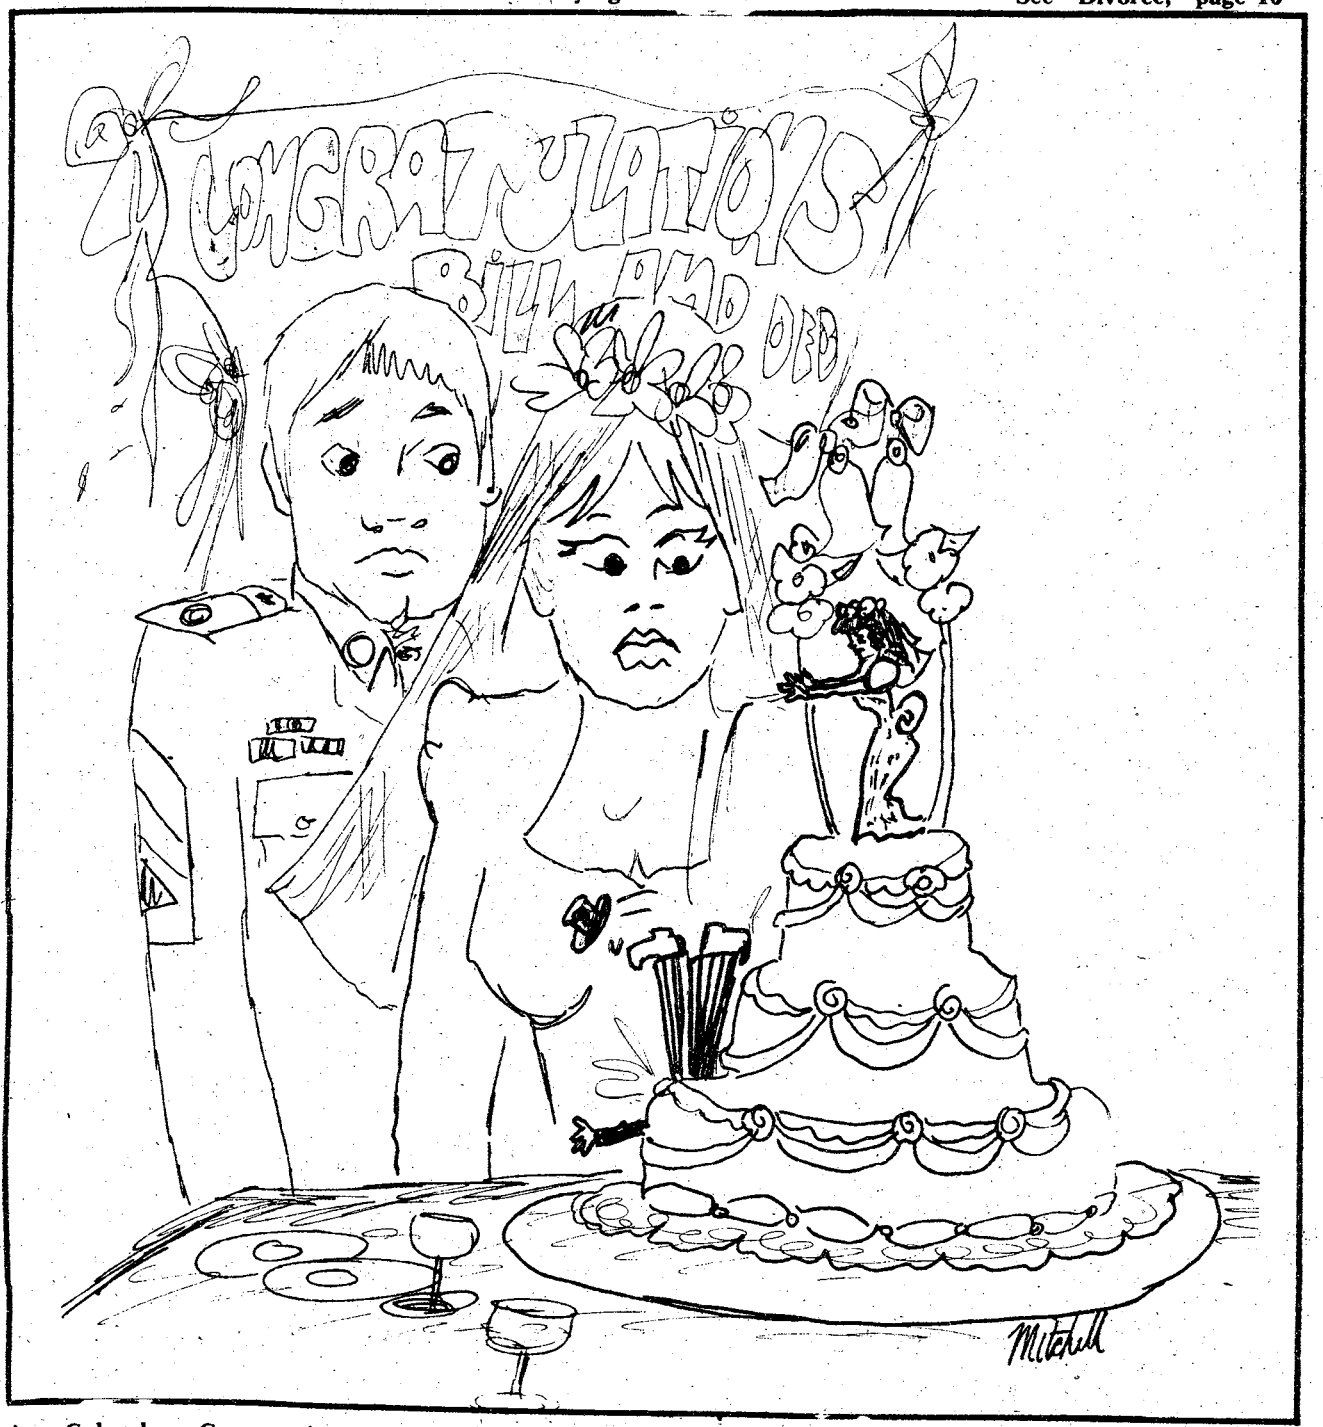
To meet the Georgia residency requirements service personnel must have resided off post for six months or on post for one year, prior to filing for divorce. A civilian must live in Georgia for at least six months. If a wife lives on post for one year she meets the residence requirement.

Formal divorce proceedings begin with the filing of a petition for divorce in the appropriate clerk of court's office. The other party called the respondent must be notified to appear in the action by means of a summons issued by the clerk. When the other party resides in Georgia, in most cases the sheriff will serve the notice. As an alternative, he may leave the summons at the current residence with a person of suitable age and discretion. When personal service is not possible, service may be made by publication in a newspaper. Service by publication as compared to personal service is more expensive, less effective, and may lengthen the divorce process by one to two months. Under the most ideal situation, personal service and uncontested divorce, it usually takes a month from the filing for the case to come to trial. Contested divorces take considerable longer.

Georgia has defined by statute 13 specific reasons which, if proven, are sufficient to support the granting of a decree of total divorce.

- Marriages of certain degrees of blood relatives.
- Mental incapacity at the time of marriage.
- Impotency at the time of marriage.
- Force or fraud in obtaining the marriage.
- Pregnancy of the wife, at the time of the marriage, unknown to the husband.
- Adultery of either of the parties after marriage.
- Desertion for one year or more by either party without legal justification.
- Conviction of either party for a crime resulting in imprisonment in the penitentiary for two years.
- Habitual intoxication.
- Cruel and endangering treatment, mental or physical.
- Incurable insanity, providing the insane party has been ajudged insane.
- Drug addiction.
- The marriage is irretrievably broken.

The party seeking divorce must present convincing evidence of the claimed mistreatment or condition whether the other party appears to contest the divorce or not. Either party may demand a jury trial and the other party may ask for a divorce in his favor at the same trial.



In cases of adultry, desertion, cruel treatment, or intoxication, if the party seeking divorce has consented to or evidently forgiven the behavior, a divorce will not be granted. Proof of like-conduct by both parties will also preclude divorce.

Custody of Minor Children

Custody of minor children goes to the parent who is found to be not 'at-fault' in the divorce unless the judge determines that the welfare and happiness of the child would be best served by placing him with the other parent or a guardian. Minors over the age of 14 may choose which parent to live with unless that parent is determined to be not fit and proper for custody. Unfitness may be found where a child is unreasonably beaten or otherwise treated cruelly, or if the child is being reared under immoral or obscene influences likely to degrade his moral character, such as unchastity, habitual drunkenness, or criminal activities. The question of custody may be reconsidered in the future following the divorce decree if change occurs affecting the child's future welfare.

Support must be continuously provided to dependents during litigation and thereafter as determined by the court. By Army regulations, the servicemember is expected to provide support payments in an amount not less than the basic allowance for quarters (BAQ) unless modified by court decree. Unjustified refusal of support may result in administrative separation or punitive action under the Uniform Code of Military Justice.

Once a court issues an order specifylng a certain amount to be paid for the support of dependents, this amount will be the extent of the serviceman's obligation. However, if a divorce decree is silent regarding the support of children, a serviceman is still responsible for their necessities of life, such as food, shelter and clothing. Should either party remarry, this normally will not terminate the obligation to provide support for the children unless there is a recognized agreement or a valid court order. Therefore, since children will usually remain dependents of the serviceman following divorce, they remain entitled to use military medical facilities so long as they remain actual dependents of the serviceman while he is entitled to military benefits.

Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act

Should one fail to provide dependents with adequate funds, they can obtain the necessities of life and the servicemember may become obligated to pay the bill. Georgia and most other states have passed legislation known as Uniforms Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act. The Act provides that court decreed child support or alimony may be collected or enforced in other states.

In most cases the divorce court may, upon application and appearance of the divorced parents, modify the support decree if there are particular facts justifying such action. Normally, the terms of the original decree will control the liability of the husband. If the former wife remarries, this does not generally eliminate the responsibility of the adopted parent who must pay the child support.

Alimony payments, on the other hand, are usually terminated upon remarriage. The wife will usually receive alimony when a divorce is granted in her favor; but this is not necessarily so since the amount of alimony is set according to the assets and earning capacity of the husband and of the wife, as well as any fixed commitments of the husband for the support of minor children. Within these limits, awards will attempt to enable the wife to maintain the family standard of living as established by the husband, considering the future needs of the wife and the children she obtains custody of. Alimony may be provided in a lump sum of cash, property, periodic payments to the wife, or a combination of these.

"By Army regulations, the service member is expected to provide support payments in an amount not less than the basic allowance for quarters (BAQ) unless modified by court decree."

The parties may agree in advance on the disposition of property and alimony payments. If approved by the court during the divorce proceeding, this contract is enforceable by the court to assure compliance. The court is allowed reasonable discretion in determining whether a breach by one side, such as, denial of visitation rights, is sufficiently serious to excuse further payments.

The decree of permanent alimony may be later modified if it can be shown by either party that a substantial change in the financial condition of the husband warrants a downward or upward revision in the alimony.

After permanent alimony has been granted, the husband is no longer liable for any debts of the wife and his obligation is defined by the decree. As indicated previously, prior to this order the husband remains liable for the items necessary to provide a reasonable means of support for the wife and any children in her custody. A formal court order may fix the amount of such support as "temporary alimony" pending the outcome of a divorce initiated by either party. Temporary alimony may include an award of attorney's fees if required to enable the wife to maintain her suit. A hearing on a temporary alimony is held to evaluate the financial needs and abilities of the husband, rather than the grounds for divorce.

It should be pointed out that divorce is a serious matter with permanent and long lasting ramifications. Thoughts of divorce should not be entertained until pastoral counseling and ali other available steps to save the marriage have been taken. Do not think twice about it — think three or four times.

If the problem does become a legal one and a divorce is sought, the Legal Assistance Branch of the Office of the Staff Judge Advocate can advise you regarding the specifics of a divorce action in Georgia, outlined above, or other states where appropriate. Contact the LAD for additional information, 545-3281.

New signs control post school zones

The school zone sign on Ft. Benning that requires the 20 mph speed limit during certain times has been replaced with a sign that requires a motorist to slow to 20 mph only when children are present.

Safety specialist Fred Young feels that the military times posted on the old signs were responsible for some traffic problems encountered by motorists and military police. "One problem," he said, is that not all drivers on the installation understand military times. Secondly, the old sign virtually required synchronization of watches between motorists and military police. The third aspect," he continued, "was that we had the reduced speed in effect when we really didn't need it. During noon hour, for instance, some schools don't let their children out, and some motorists who were aware of this became contemptuous of the sign."

The new sign is nationally recognized and is one of several school zone signs provided in the Manual of Uniform Traffic Control Devices. The sign is in effect only during school days and when a child is in the proximity of the roadway.

According to Young, the advantages of the new sign will be, "more motorists slowing down, less inconvenience of motorists being ticketed and a traffic environment on post that is similar to the civilian traffic environment."

CFC nears ⅓ of goal

By Marshall Jones

This year's Combined Federal Campaign (CFC) for the Columbus-Ft. Benning-Phenix City area is now in full swing, reports Post Project officer John L. McCaskill Jr., secretary-treasurer of the Community Activities Association.

As of September 26, approximately 30 per cent of the campaign goal of $240,000 had been collected. "I would like to see, in the first week of October, a 75 per cent attainment of our goal, which would make it easy from there on in," said McCaskill.

With such early participation, he added, it would be possible for the 1978 CFC to meet and go well beyond its goal.

"This being payday week," continued McCaskill, "everyone who has not yet contributed is encouraged to do so." Contributions to the campaign may be made by payroll deduction, check or cash, and of course they are fully tax-deductible.

Each unit and activity on post has at least one designated "keyperson" who will explain CFC and distribute copies of a booklet describing the agencies that CFC dollars benefit.

Your fair share supports 46 agencies grouped under the United Way, the National Health Agencies and the International Service Agencies in the Tri-Community area.

Doughboys capture Citadel in defensive battle

By Debra Hilgeman

The Ft. Benning Doughboys downed the Citadel Junior Varsity Bullpups 10-3 in a closely matched battle last Sunday in Doughboy Stadium. The score was set at 3-3 going into the fourth quarter till a Doughboy touchdown broke the tie with only 2:30 remaining in the game.

The Citadel Bullpups started the scoring early with a field goal that was matched by a 29-yarder from Doughboy kicker David Ward with 9:14 left in the third quarter.

The Ft. Benning Doughboys face a return bout against the Ft. Bragg Colts to be held at Ft. Bragg on Saturday at 7:30 p.m. Having fallen to the Doughboys 53-6 in the second game of the season, Ft. Bragg is undoubtedly out to even the score. The fifth game of the 1977 football season will be the first away game for the Doughboys who now hold a 3-1 record.

The only touchdown of the game was made with a long pass from the 30-yard line by Doughboy quarterback Joe Duenas to running back Arthur Hawkins. Hawkins broke through the unsuspecting Citadel defense to run unchallenged down the right sideline for the score. Ward's kick was on-target and the score was set at 10-3.

The indomitable Doughboy defense has been a stronghold in every game this season. Despite lacking size and experience — only three starters have played college football — the rugged defense is competing against and defeating college level opponents.

"Football games are won by the defense," declared defensive coordinator Dave Bankston. "Our men only train two hours a night, four nights a week but they're capable of comprehending and perfecting a very complex defensive system. The only reward they receive for their dedication is the satisfaction of winning."

Half-time entertainment was a precision performance by the 290-member Troy State University Band under the direction of Dr. Johnny Long. The "Sound of the South" has traveled extensively throughout the country appearing at professional and college football games.

The Doughboy defense closes in on a Citadel ball carrier, holding him at the line of scrimmage. The Doughboy defense played the largest role in holding the "Bullpups" to a field goal as the hard-charging infantrymen won 10-3.

'O' Club Update

Let us be your tour guide for a week of new and exciting experiences for dining pleasure at the Officers' Club.

We begin our tour on Sunday with a double treat. The day begins with a stop at the Sunday Brunch where we find a tasty assortment of breakfast and lunch items for the family. As the day wanes, we come upon the Beef 'n' Burgundy, something familiar from the past for the hearty of appetite. Zesty, vino, and hefty well-aged beef, with tantalizing salads to complement this traditional combination of standouts on the evening stop.

With the week ahead of us, we see on the horizon a totally new luncheon service Tuesday through Friday. Points of interest along the way include huge "Stack Em High" sandwiches, a fantastic soup and salad bar, and sumptuous hot daily specials.

Rounding the bend to Thursday, Steak Night lies ahead for our beef eating enjoyment. The landmarks of interest are the one low price, one menu, a crisp salad bar and 12 ounces of choice New York Sirloin Steak.

Our next stop ... Friday. The breeze freshens from the sea with the tang of Shrimp boiling. "Shrimp A Peel," is the end of the work week, all the shrimp you care for, round of beef, delicious vegetables and salads.

We've come full circle to Saturday evening, our last stop on this delightful tour of dining pleasures with an intriguingly new Ala Carte menu featuring your favorites.

These exciting and enjoyable dining experiences await your pleasure at the Ft. Benning Officers' Club. Let us be your tour guide through a week of these fine club features.

FY 77 CHAMPUS deductible certificates expire October 1

October 1 marks the start of a new year for CHAMPUS outpatient deductible certificates.

Defense Department officials remind beneficiaries of the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services (CHAMPUS) that deductible certificates issued for FY 1977 (October 1, 1976-September 30, 1977) will not be valid after September 30.

The outpatient deductible is the initial amount a beneficiary must pay each fiscal year before CHAMPUS assistance is available for outpatient expenses. For an individual, it is the first $50 of authorized outpatient charges in a fiscal year. A family group of two or more is not required to pay collectively more than the first $100 of authorized outpatient charges in a fiscal year.

To obtain a deductible certificate, a beneficiary should accumulate itemized bills or receipts for outpatient services during a fiscal year until they total $50 or more for one patient or $100 or more collectively for a family. Then, the bills or receipts should be sent, along with one claim form per patient, to the organization that processes claims for the geographic area where the beneficiary normally receives care.

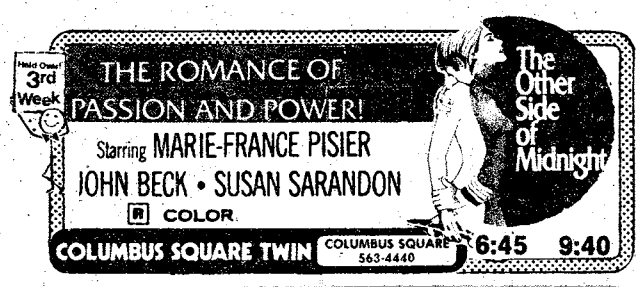
Golf Championship on slate for early October

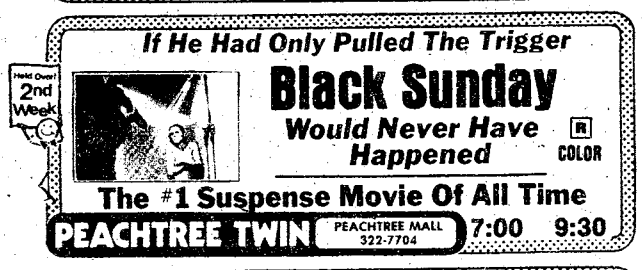
The "Follow Me" Golf Course will hold its 1977 Club Championship on October 1, 2, 8 and 9 on the Pineside and Lakeside courses.



The tournament will be a 72-hole medal play with a Junior Division. Tee-off time on both weekends will be 8:30 a.m. on No. 1 and No. 10 tees, weather permitting. All male members of the "Follow Me" as of October 1 are eligible. Juniors must not have reached their 19th birthday by October 9 to be eligible. All other male dependents 19 years old and up are eligible to compete in the regular championship.

The championship will be determined on the basis of the low medal score at the completion of 72 holes of play. At the completion of 36 holes, the field will be divided into flights. The low 18 players will be placed in the championship flight which will consist of "A" and "B" divisions. All other players will be placed in numerical flights according to score with a maximum of nine players to the flight.

Entry deadline is today at 12:30. Entry fees will be $8 per person and $3 for Juniors. The fees include cost for all merchandise prizes from the Pro Shop, trophies and the presentation ceremony and party. Due to time required for pairings, preparation of score sheets and charts, entries after the deadline cannot be accepted.



Awards will be presented for the top three finishers in each flight and both "A" and "B" divisions of the Championship flight. First place: Burton Golf Bag; Second place: Royal Golf Shoes; Third place: Izod Golf sweater. Special awards will be presented to the Club Champion; Medalist first 36-holes; longest drive and closest to the pin.

Entry forms are available at the Pro Shop. No refunds will be made after the deadline. For further information contact the Pro Shop, 687-1940.

ACS offers free citizen classes

By Sue Davis

The Army Community Service (ACS) will offer a six-week Citizenship Course to any active duty military personnel and their dependents beginning October 1 and ending November 5. The classes will be held in the Welcome Center, Building 83, on Saturday mornings from 10 until noon.

The primary objective of the course is to aid the prospective citizen in preparation for the U.S. naturalization process. A background of basic American political processes and history forms the nucleus of the course. Films, slide presentations, discussion groups and lectures will be used to provide a variety of viewpoints and interest levels. Sources for further study of U.S. history and government will be provided.

ACS volunteers organize and teach the classes. Instructors include some who have both teaching experience and graduate degrees in history and government.

Don Drach, a former citizenship course instructor, is serving as chairman this year.

Interested students may register by calling 545-1233 at the ACS center. There is no charge for the course, but a refundable deposit of $1.00 is necessary for the use of textbooks and materials.

Once a clown ...

By Madonna Simple

"I'm two different people ... as a clown, I do things that I normally wouldn't do everyday," exclaimed Sgt. Dave Slusser of Co B, 1/29th Inf, 197th Inf Bde.

Slusser, a professional clown who worked independently for 10 years prior to joining the service in 1973, is now an agressor at the Dahlonega, Ga. Ranger Camp. "It's a different world from the one-night-stand, 16-hour day, traveling routine that I became used to, but it's just as rewarding."

Playing the clown isn't an easy advocation but for Slusser it was a matter of family tradition. "I grew up with the circus ... both my parents were involved, so why shouldn't I take an active part," is the way he puts it.

There are no applauses or boos in the job he does today, but he still writes his own script, plays his role and gets the opportunity to let the clown in him shine through on occasion.

10-8 on the warpost

By "HOSS" KACI 4615

A new CB organization, called Citizens Band Emergency Assistance Association, is being formed on post. A meeting to adopt a constitution and by-laws and install a temporary Board of Directors will be held at the Kelley Hill Recreation Center October 8 at 7 p.m.

In contrast to other CB organizations, this one will be concerned only with providing emergency assistance to CBers by monitoring channel 9. Membership in the association will be open to licensed CBers, including holders of temporary licenses, who are active or retired military, DoD civilians and dependents.

The ultimate goal of the organization is to provide 24-hour monitoring of channel 9 in the Tri-community area. For more information on the Citizens Band Emergency Assistance Association, break for Ramjet on channel 1 or call Wagonmaster at 689-1445 after 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

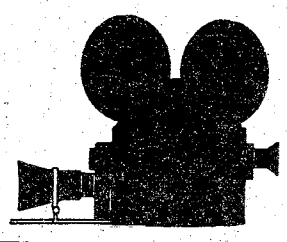
Range clean-up scheduled for November 2-5

By Madonna Simple

Ft. Benning personnel will participate in a post range and training area clean-up November 2-5 in an effort to upgrade the state of maintenance and police in these areas.

The units surveyed their areas this week to determine how much work and manpower will be needed to complete renovation.



Ranges and training area responsibility was determined by unit common use. The units were assigned these areas and tasked with surveying them before September 29.

The clean-up will consist of maintenance of target mechanisms, buildings, barricades, bleachers, flag poles and other objects in the area. Also included will be painting, grass cutting and picking up trash empty shell castings. Maintenance requirements beyond the capabilities of a unit should be submitted on work order requests and submitted to Range Division, Director of Plans and Training no later than October 5.

A stand-by clean up day has been set for November 5. However, during the three day clean-up period, all training activities other than USAIS and AIT training will shut down if deemed necessary by unit commanders to complete police and maintenance requirements.

Commanders are advised to make maximum use of self-help supplies and inventories should be taken to insure enough supplies and equipment are available.

Cyclic Support requirements will be reduced approximately one-half from October 30 to November 5 in order to allow maximum effort to be expended toward police and maintenance. All trash and refuse material will be disposed of at the post sanitary fill off Cusseta Road.

Biddy League

By William T. Miller

The Biddy League Raiders rolled over the Rams 20-0 Saturday on Blue Field No. 3. After winning the toss, the Raiders waited only nine plays to score on an end run by Fletcher Walker. For the remainder of the quarter, the Rams were held to only five plays.

In the second quarter the Raiders sprang "Torando" Trevor Johnson loose and the young quarterback rolled 33-yards for a second Raider TD. The rest of the quarter saw the Raiders on defense, starring Larry Kemp, as the Rams launched a serious attack at the Raider goal line.

Third quarter action was dominated by the Rams, but again the team was unable to score. Raider stars during the period included Randy Asburry and Stacy Burnam.

The fourth quarter was high lighted again by Trevor Johnson and a 53-yard TD run. Fletcher Walker made a conversion run to cap the game score at 20-0.

Biddy League action resumes tomorrow on Blue Field No. 3.

Bitter cold memories are brought to mind through this National Infantry Museum display illustrating the Infantry's role in the Korean Conflict. All items, including the captured North Korean battle flags, are of 1951-3 vintage. The museum is open Tuesday-Friday, 10 a.m.-4:30 p.m., Saturday and Sunday, 12:30-4:30 p.m. It is closed on Mondays, Christmas, Thanksgiving and New Year's Day.

Doughboy League

In a battle of blocked punts, the Patriots defeated the Green Hornets 8-6. Each team blocked several punts and converted one a piece for a score. In the first half Brad Yurchuck blocked a Patriot's punt and Joel Shumate picked it up and ran it in for a 15-yard TD. The try for PAT was stopped by Patriot's Matt Cole. In the second half Martin Wright of the Patriots blocked a Green Hornet punt and ran it in for a score. He also recovered a fumble for the PAT. In addition to Wright's scoring, Mark Crites led the offense with over 100 yards rushing and Rick McGee led the Patriot's defense.

On the Blue Field the Sharks broke into the winning column by defeating the Bears 6-0. The Sharks moved the ball at will on the ground picking up over 190 yards rushing, but could not put it over the goal line. The offense was led by Greg Robinson, Shelby Shipman and Paul Rivera. Robinson had over 100 yards rushing and led the defense with two interceptions. Darin Wade played a superb defensive game for the Bears.

$1,300 awarded in 'Project 77/77' campaign

By Madonna Simple

Two Ft. Benning soldiers and one civilian received cash awards for their suggestions under the Suggestion Campaign Program held in conjunction with the Army-wide "Project 77/77".

1stLt. Barry Lineback, Fire Direction Officer and 2nd Lt. Jack Hyde, forward observer of C Btry, 2/10th FA Bn, FA, 197th Inf Bde received $500 each for their co-authored suggestion. Mr. Julious King, Adjutant General Division, Directorate of Personnel and Community Activities received $300.

Lineback and Hyde's suggestion was the improvement of a procedure for teaching students the use of the M-16 plotting board when computing Terrain Gun Position Correction for 105 mm howitzers. The suggestion was adopted by the U.S. Army Artillery School, Ft. Sill, Okla. and eliminated long mathematical computations which was confusing for students. This new method also caused a change to Field Manual 6-405, "Modern Battlefield Cannon Gunnery."

King proposed to discontinue the use of warehouse building 1747 which supports storage requirements for paperstock used by the Federal Printing Plant. He also suggested that the vehicles used to load and transport paper be turned in as excess.

Adoption of this suggestion provided for direct issue of paperstock from the supply division warehouse to the Federal Printing Plant where it is stored and used as needed. It also reduced vehicle requirements, eliminated the need for one personnel space and resulted in an estimated annual savings in manhours and materials of $7,694.

Project 77/77, which ends today has resulted in an estimated $382,427 in tangible savings. This is approx. $100,000 short of Ft. Benning's $500,000 goal. Cash awards have totaled $5,310 to date.

Even though Project 77/77 is over, the suggestion program continues. If you have a suggestion, submit it today. Your ideas can be worth money to you.

Second Lieutenant Jack Hyde (l) and 1stLt. Barry Lineback each receive a $500 check from MajGen. William J. Livsey for their co-authored suggestion which improved the procedure for instructing students in the use of the M-16 plotting board.

Secretary backs all volunteer Army to the Army Secretary. "In 1974, desertions were 33 per thousand in the Army—in 1976 it was down to 14 per thousand soldier," Alexander said. "These are obviously positive signs," he concluded.

Today's soldiers tend to speak their minds, Alexander said. "When I ask them what's wrong, they'll tell me that our hospital benefits aren't coming the way they are supposed to, or our housing is not what it ought to be," he related.

Alexander told the publishers that some of the criticism of the all volunteer Army has come from people who don't take a hard look at the Army, and from "academicians who do learned studies sitting in a basement someplace." (ARNEWS)

Former British Prime Minister to speak at Columbus College

The Honorable Harold Wilson, who served four terms as British Prime Minister, will speak at Columbus College today at 2 p.m. in Fine Arts Hall auditorium under the auspices of the Student Union Lecture Series.

Columbus College is one of three sites that has been selected for the British leader to lecture while in this country. Off-campus tickets are $2. Students, faculty and staff will be admitted on I.D. Cards.

During the second world war, Wilson was employed in various ministries and while at the Ministry of Fuel and Power was joint secretary to the Greene Board which investigated and reported on miners' wages, and to the Anglo-American Coal Commission. From 1943-1944 he was Director of Economics and Statistics when he produced a comprehensive statistical digest of the mining industry. In 1946 he headed the British delegation to the preparatory commission of the Food and Agricultural Organization in Washington.

In 1947 he became Secretary for Overseas Trade at the Board of Trade and helped lead the British delegation to the United Nations preparatory trade conference then meeting in Geneva; he also visited Russia to open negotiations for a trade agreement.

While Harold Wilson was Prime Minister he resumed negotiations for Britain's entry into the Common Market, gained reappraisal of Britain's military responsibility overseas, worked with the Rhodesian crisis, and issues concerning the balance of payments.

Prime Minister Wilson has traveled widely as Leader of the Opposition, taken part in numerous meetings, discussions overseas with Heads of Government in Europe, the USSR, North America, the Caribbean and Africa.

He has been a member of the National Executive Committee of the Labour Party since 1952.

O death where is thy sting?
O grave where is thy victory?
The sting of death is sin;
and the strength of sin is the law.

But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.

VD not just a 'soldier's disease!'

Down through the ages, Venereal Disease (VD) has been known as the "Soldier's Disease." There are reports of VD afflicting troops in almost every war ever fought. The Visigoths, Huns, Romans, Moors, French under Napoleon, the Russians under Czar Nicholas, the trench fighters of World War I, the beach landers of World War II, the insurrection fighters of Korea and even the forces in Vietnam, have all fallen victim to veneral disease.

VD is no longer confined to the victims of war and poverty. Now runaways, dropouts and drug users run the greatest risk of contracting the disease. But, as with drug addiction, VD cuts viciously and impersonally across all lines of race, class, socio-economic backgrounds and sexual lifestyles. Syphilis and gonnorrhea, once the bane of the adventurer and fighting man, are now afflictions of the "girl and boy next door."

There are several things a person can do to avoid getting VD.

Know your sex partner and make sure he or she is VD-free. All moral judgments aside, the more sexually active you are, the greater the risk you run of coming into contact with someone who has VD and doesn't know it.

As an obstetrician/gynecologist observed, "No one ever died from not having intercourse."

Wash your genitals thoroughly with soap and water immediately after sexual contact.

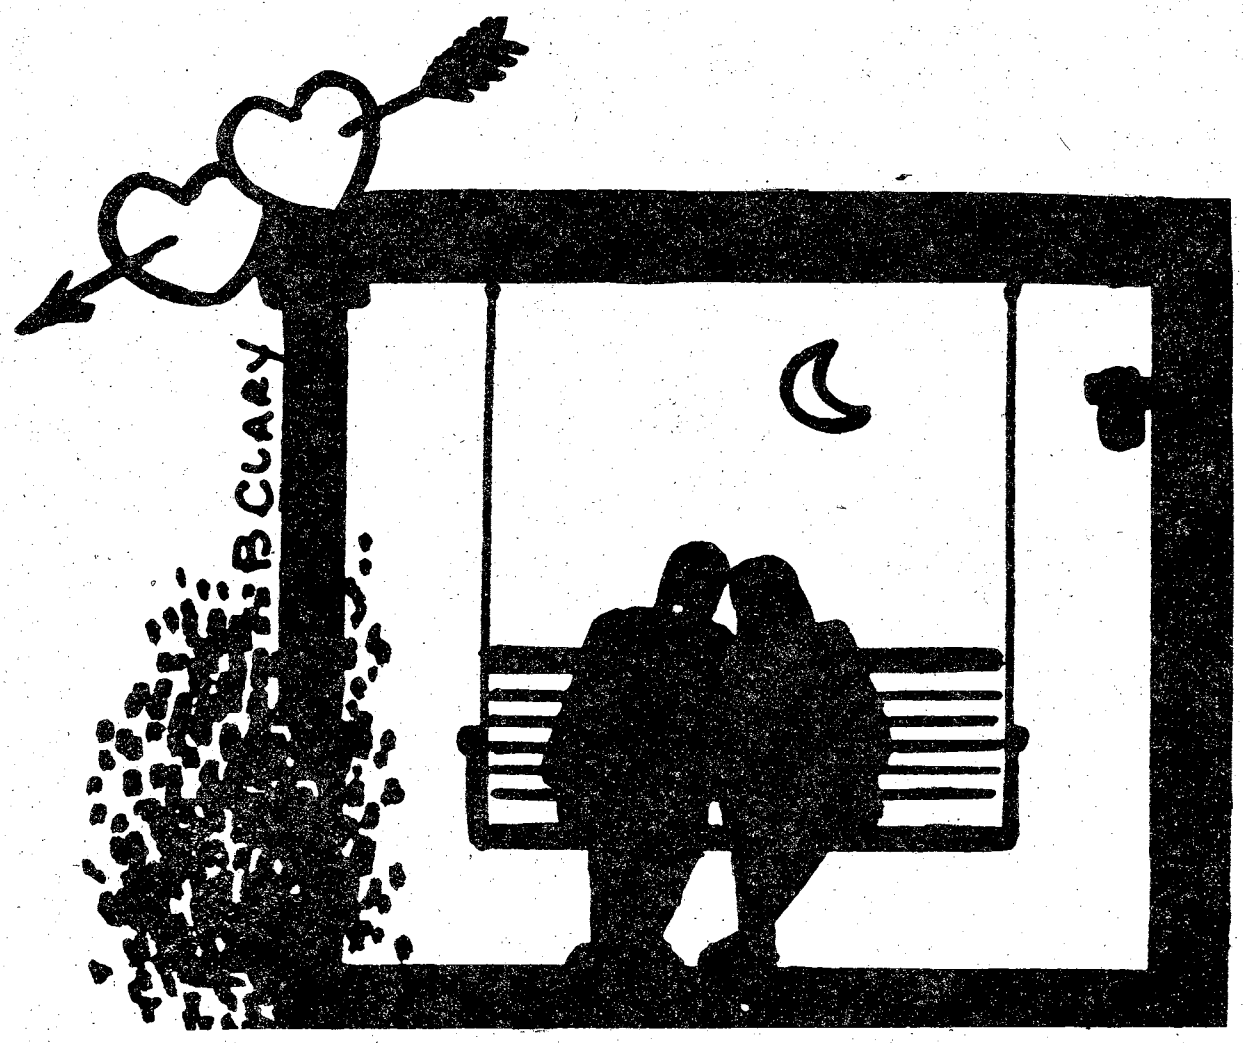
Urinating immediately after sexual intercourse can also help get rid of VD germs in the body.

Men can use a condom. Women can make sure men use a condom.

For women, washing and douching can help remove and kill gonnorrhea germs.

Review the facts, toss away the myths.

These considerations may be after the fact now, however, the following pertain to males and females.



If you've noticed an itch, a burning sensation when urinating, or if you notice a whitish discharge; or if you've noticed a painless sore called a chancre, which may look like a pimple or a blister, get help. Pick up your medical records and go to the office of the Health and Environmental Activity located in the old hospital annex area, Bldg 322. If you prefer, you can usually contact a free VD clinic by calling your local city hall.

All cases are treated confidentially.

At a clinic a blood test (a Wasserman) may be taken for syphilis or a sample of the discharge if gonnorrhea is suspected. The clinician will contact you and tell you if the "test reveals something that should be checked."

When you are notified of positive test results you will be asked where you may have contracted the disease and for the names of your most recent sexual contacts.

It's necessary for every male and female to ignore and overcome the social stigma associated with VD and seek early treatment.

Fear of social opinions and embarrassment are pretty poor excuses for risking sterility, blindness, insanity, and even death. By providing the names of your contacts you are serving the community effort to stamp out VD and showing a great deal of concern for the individual.

With changes in the living and loving standards and the advent of "the pill," today's young men and women suffer more because of their sexuality than ever before. The false sense of security offered by the use of "the pill" makes VD prevention doubly difficult. In fact, physiological changes by which "the pill" prevents conception actually encourages infection.

Getting down to the nitty gritty may take the magic out of "love story," but a little less magic and a little more caution will make for a "healthier" relationship.

Fall Volks Fest scheduled tomorrow

The serious runner, weekend jogger, family stroller and the "sit and watcher" can join in on Benning's Fall Volks Fest slated tomorrow.

It will be a day of races, music, food and entertainment set in a German atmosphere of festivity at Doughboy Stadium beginning at 7 a.m. for the 20-mile runners and ending 11:30 p.m. for the "sit and watchers."

There will be four running events — 5, 10 and 20-mile races with prizes for top performers and a two-mile fun run.

There is no registration fee for the racing events but runners must sign up prior to start times — 7 a.m. for the 20-miler, 8 a.m. for the 10 and 9 a.m. for the 5.

Beginning at 9:30, "Carolina Alive", a group of 50 talented singers and dancers accompanied by the University of Carolina band will begin the continuous entertainment slate. Miss Georgia, Pam Sounders, with the six young women of the "Miss Georgia Review "; Miss Black America, Claire Ford; Miss Ft. Benning, Carla Calhoun; the Alpine German Band; and the 283rd Army Band will fill out the day of festivities with performances 'til closing time.

Traditional German food and beer as well as hot dogs, hamburgers and soft drinks will be on sale until 11:30 p.m.

Join in the fun tomorrow at Doughboy Stadium.

7.05% pay raise okayed

Soldiers can expect to find some extra money in this month's pay check. President Carter has recently announced that he will grant a 7.05 per cent pay hike, effective October 1, to 3.4 million federal employees and military personnel.

The President has exercised his authority to reallocate 12 per cent of the military basic pay increase to basic allowance for quarters (BAQ).

Service members without dependents will receive an increase in the partial BAQ. This increase will be equal to the difference between the amount of the increase which would have been paid had the reallocation not been made and the amount of the increase which will result from the reallocation.

The intent of the reallocation is to raise the

BAQ rate to a more appropriate level. The average cost of off-post housing is still above the current BAQ rates. Thus, the 12 per cent increase is a move toward improving the current relationship of quarters allowance to off-post costs.

Uniform change slated

The winter uniform season begins Monday, October 17.

This would be a good time to check your closet and make sure that your Army Greens (Class As) are serviceable. Uniforms should be clean, neatly pressed and well-fitting when worn next week.

Uniform coats should fit loosely with a slight drape and there should be no visible strain on seams and buttons.

Men's trousers should fit at the waist just loosely enough so that the pockets do not gap. The length should be so that the front of the cuff should just touch the top of the shoe.

The length of the women's skirt should be no more than two inches above the knee or one inch below mid-knee.

It should also be noted that the wearing of the green wool sweater is authorized in administrative areas only. Also, you can only remove the uniform jacket in your immediate working area.

This means that if you're riding in the

In keeping with the tenants of "leadership-by-example," chaplains in the 1st AIT Bde accompany units on 5-mile runs, visit training sites and hold religious services in the field, similar to this service conducted by Chaplain (LtCol.) Walter C. Tucker, the brigade chaplain. AIT soldiers are given the opportunity to participate in two or more such services during their training cycle at Benning.

C/S, Chief of Naval Operations: $4806.60; Top Enlisted: $1754.40

Basic pay is limited to $3958.20 by Level V of the Executive Schedule.

In light of the recent increase in the number of murders, rapes and other violent crimes in the Columbus, Ft. Benning area, I feel it is both appropriate and necessary that the post community be advised to take safety precautions just as the Columbus community has been.

It must be remembered that Ft. Benning is not a closed post and is as vulnerable to crime as the city of Columbus. The Ft. Benning community has many waiting wives who reside alone or with small children. Many other wives are also alone as a result of their husbands being on field duty, staff duty or temporary duty elsewhere. While the military Police do an excellent job patrolling the housing areas, all of the post residents can and should assist.

Post families should be on the alert for unusual activity around their quarters. They should insure that homes are secured at night and that strangers be treated with the utmost of caution. All residents must also be sensitive to the safety of their neighbors.

Hopefully, through the joint effort of all the Ft. Benning Community further tragedy can be avoided.

COME TO THE PETTING ZOO

The life you save could be yours

By Debra Hilgeman

You're driving down the highway at 55 miles per hour when suddenly, a tire blows. Without even thinking, you jam on the brakes. All control of the car is now out of your hands, the wheels lock up, you can no longer steer and your vehicle goes into a dangerous, high speed skid.

According to Wesley Mason, instructor at the post's Defensive Driving Course (DDC), this is the deadly course of action that eight out of ten drivers would follow in the event of a similar situation. The DDC is trying to instill in drivers some common sense procedures which most drivers undoubtedly know but unfortunately, don't always follow.

"What really makes this course important is the fact that so many people are killed or injured in auto accidents each year," stated Mason. "It really doesn't have to happen because most accidents are due to someone's carelessness, ignorance or just plain recklessness," he continued.

Last year's national traffic accident rate bears this out. For instance, in 1976 there were 46,700 people killed in auto accidents, 1,800,000 were injured and the dollar loss from all motor vehicle accidents exceeded 20 billion. Furthermore, there were a total of 28,400,000 drivers involved in traffic accidents last year alone which means that ⅛ of our country's drivers were involved in an accident.

Meanwhile, the state of Georgia has been setting some record accident rates of its own. In 1973, Georgia was ranked 44th in the nation in the number of accidents; today, it ranks 14th. "In Georgia, the accident rate is extremely high for the number of drivers and the miles of roads it has," said Mason. "A major insurance company in Georgia in raising its rates strictly on account of this," he went on, "and who can the average citizen blame other than himself?"

To combat these accident rates, the National Safety Council designed an eight-hour block instruction, the DDC, that was developed by a group of traffic experts who analyzed traffic situations throughout the country and prepared the course based on their findings. The DDC is an international course that has been taught in Canada, New Zealand and other countries and has been taught to over seven million students. The course is taught here in four-hour sessions held on two days; Monday and Tuesday, and Wednesday and Thursday. The DDC is averaging about 100 students per week but that figure can vary, depending on the influx of personnel at Benning.

Who is required to take the DDC? By regulation, anyone who drives a military vehicle, civil service workers included, must first complete the course and obtain a DDC card before getting a military driver's license from post transportation. As far as registering a privately owned vehicle on post, regulation states that military personnel under the age of 26 or below the grade of E5 must complete the DDC.

While motorcyclists are not exempt from the DDC, they attend a separate course of instruction held every Friday. The motorcycle course consists of 2-2½ hours of classroom instruction and, depending on the skill of the rider, from 45 minutes to 1½ hours of outside riding requirements. "They have to actually take a riding skills test on a six-pylon course to determine how well they can handle a motorcycle," explained DDC instructor Frank Eaker. He went on to say that all military personnel, regardless of age or rank, must take the motorcycle safety course before permanently registering a motorcycle on post.

"The motorcycle is extremely dangerous," Eaker emphasized. "Most drivers in autos or trucks could care less about a motorcylce because it doesn't pose a threat and that's something the motorcyclist must be constantly aware of. He's gotto be a better defensive driver than any car driver if he wants to live."

Despite the dangers involved, Ft. Benning has seen a tremendous increase in the number of motorcycles registered here. "At the rate we're going, we'll probably process over 700 motoryclists by the end of the year," projected Eaker.

"The thing that most people don't understand," Mason concluded, "is the driving on this military installation is not a right; it's a privilege extended by the commanding general. It is through such efforts as the DDC and the installation's law enforcement program that more drivers will be alive next year to use this privilege."

Columbus Day Safety Message

Monday, October 10, is Columbus Day and the last day of a three-day holiday. If you are driving during the Columbus Day weekend, remember the roads will be unusually crowded, and there will be many tired drivers. The POV continues to remain the big killer of military and civilian personnel of Fort Benning. So far this year a total of 48 traffic accidents have occurred involving POVs, resulting in 11 military fatalities.

Columbus Day lends itself to increased interest in outdoor activity with cool and crisp mornings and warm afternoons. With the beaches empty, camping increases as a popular pastime in the fall. Camping in the woodlands and forests can be a relaxing change provided proper planning is included. Plan for the camp-out by checking maps, equipment, and weather forecasts. Place the camp fire in a cleared area, protect the environment that you enter, and protect little children by watching them continuously.

Be one of the many Americans who will return to work Tuesday with fond memories of the holiday. Avoid being one of the few victims by using safe practices in everything you do.

Judo

'The gentle way'

By Debra Hilgeman

JUDO — In Japanese, it means "the gentle way."

Lt. Col. (Ret) Tom Keaton, director instructor of the Ft. Benning Judo Club which he helped found in 1958, has been schooling pupils in "the gentle way" and consistently leading them to impressive wins at competition matches.

At the recent Region III Junior Olympics, all but two club entrants took first, second or third place at state level competition. "The two who were eliminated," explains Keaton, "were defeated by other members of our team."

The students are not the only ones who have fared well in competition. Keaton, a fourth level black belt, won the Army judo championship eight times. More recently, he took second place at the Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) Senior Nationals.

Although still a formidable adversary, Keaton no longer has the endurance of youth. "It's an old Japanese myth that age doesn't affect ability," he admits. "If we go three or five minutes, I can defeat my students but if it goes for a longer period of time, their youth starts to catch up with me. I get tired and careless and I make mistakes and risk injury," he elaborated.

In fact, Keaton is now recovering from an injury he received in a recent match. "Most injuries I sustain are the type where a joint gets twisted and feels sore of a couple of days," he explains. However, Keaton maintains that judo is not the main cause of student injuries. "For instance," he said, "I lose more judo players during the football season than I do all the rest of the year."

Tom Keaton (L) and one of his star pupils, brown belt holder Danny Jones, enact a ritualistic bow a courtesy opponents bestow on each other before a match.

Keaton's judo expertise began while he was hospitalized in Japan following the end of the Korean conflict. Daily judo training was prescribed as therapy during his four month stay. It helped him, and he liked it, so when he was assigned to Ft. Holabird, Md., Keaton took change of a section which taught judo and physical training at the intelligence school.

"It turned out that there were several black belt sergeants and a couple of brown belts in the division," relates Keaton. "I was in charge but I was learning from them. A black belt there at the time is currently one of the highest ranked judo men in the U.S." he added.

Instructor, Tom Keaton, hits the mat in a move executed by Danny Jones a student of Judo since 1972 and recent winner of a string of matches including first place in the Senior Division of the Region III Junior Olympics and second in the National Junior Olympics.

The Ft. Benning Judo Club has more than 100 members both male and female, age six and up. "Anyone who is eligible to use Recreation Services facilities can join the club," said Keaton.

Although there is no cost to join, there is a $7 charge for a year membership in the U.S. Judo Association (USJA) and $3 a year for the AAU membership. "If you're going to compete, you have to be a member of the AAU or in the case of military personnel, have a certificate from your commanding officer verifying that you are an amateur," stated Keaton. Membership in the USJA is necessary for belt grade rankings and promotions. "The USJA awards the ranks," explained Keaton, "I just test people and forward the material to them."

According to Keaton, body size is not a determining factor in judo. "The way judo was taught 20 years ago in, the traditional Japanese method a short, heavy person had an advantage," he noted. "But now, different techniques have been integrated so that a person with, say long thin legs will be taught to use them to his advantage."

Keaton also believes that men and women are not equal when it comes to judo. "A woman's center of balance is lower than a man's because of the size of her hips and thighs," he explained, "so that once she becomes skillful it's much easier for a woman to throw me than it is for me to throw her. It takes a lot of practice to get a woman to the point where she can defeat men," he continued, "but I know women in the U.S. that I would be very reluctant to get on the mat with."

Keaton, assisted by his wife Shirley who does most of the administrative work in addition to being the state AAU chairman, spends about 20 hours a week instructing and traveling to meets with his students.

Regarding future aspirations in judo, Keaton recalled knowing a judo player who was in his 80's and still throwing people around. "When that time comes for me" he mused, "I hope to find myself in the same situation."

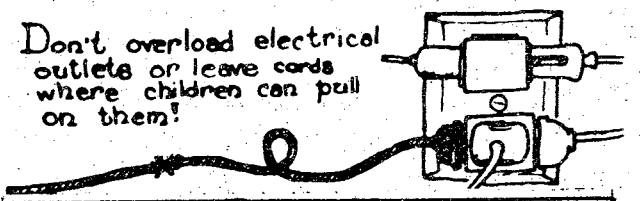
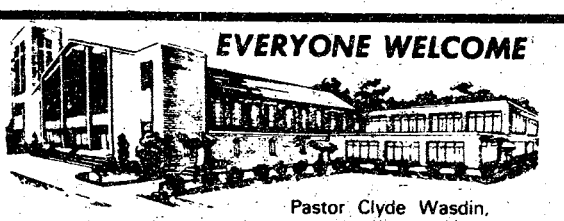
You're into CB and going to Germany — can you use your citizens band radio there?

The answer is yes, but first you have to get a Federal Republic of Germany (FRG) license. To qualify for an FRG license, a US soldier, civilian employee or dependent must first have a CB license from the US Federal Communications Commission (FCC). Incidentally, the FRG license for a mobile or fixed station is only good within the boundaries of West Germany. It is not valid traveling to West Berlin or anywhere outside of the FRG.

An application for an FRG CB license (AE Form 3477) can be obtained by a CBer having an FCC license from the 5th Signal Command's Communications Service Branch, Bldg 5813, Taukkunen Barracks, Worms, Germany, APO NY 09056. An agreement between the FRG and 5th Sig Com has cut filing procedures down to this one simple form.



However, you're still not set. The Fernmelde Technishces Zentralamt (FTZ) requires FCC recognized CB equipment be modified to meet the specifications for use in the FRG. The FTZ is the West German equivalent of the FCC. It costs approximately DM 50.00 (about $21) to modify stateside units and to get the FTZ users license.



Licnese fees are handled by the German postal authorities (German Bundespost). Cost is DM 5.00 (about $2.10) a month for operation of a mobile station and DM 15.00 (about $6.30) a month for a fixed station. Fees can be paid monthly to the German Telecommunications Officer upon receipt of the bill.

You are not authorized to use power amplifier units, single sideband systems or directional antennas in the FRG; CB operations are limited to the following frequencies: 27.005 MHz (Ch. 4), 27.015 (5), 27.025 (6), 27.035 (7), 27.055 (8), 27.065 (9), 27.075 (10), 27.105 (12), 27.115 (13) and 27.125 (14). Channel nine (27.065 MHz) is used as an emergency channel.

Violation of FRG laws, rules and regulations on CB operation is subject to punishment that may include a fine, imprisonment and confiscation of your equipment.

Selected exchanges in Germany are carrying CB radios and accessories. AAFES Europe is not authorized to grant FRG CB licenses. However, application forms and other pertinent information will be given to customers at the time of purchase.

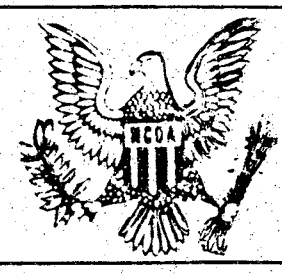
Theater No. 1 rennovation for comfort not looks



By Betty Zimmerman

The message on theater one's marquee is "Closed for Renovation," but don't expect this main post moviehouse to look any different when it reopens.

The extensive undertaking cost more than $113,000, but the work won't be evident to the patron's eye — only to their comfort. The renovation includes only replacement of the heating and air conditioning system.

According to the contract inspectors branch of DFAE, the contract begun in April was scheduled to be completed October 21. But an extension has been granted until November 21.

Mr. John Delaney of the post exchange administrative office expressed hopefully, "The theater will open for business soon after the work is completed and the engineers inspect it and declare it acceptable. It now looks as if this will be in early December," he said.

NCOA news

The Non-Commissioned Officer's Association (NCOA) Open House will be held Saturday, October 8 from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. Everyone is invited to attend members and non-members are welcome.

THE NCOA CREED

It is the conception and full understanding that many things of great need can be accomplished in unity and cooperation, that would otherwise be impossible. Top talks on retirement ceremonies

By Marie M. Russo

"Sergeant Peters will you come in here for a minute?"

"Mornin' Top. What's up?"

"I understand that you're retiring next month."

"You're not going to try to change my mind are you? Because it won't work. I'm an E-7 I've put twenty-one years in and I'm getting out, I got a good job lined up!"

"No this isn't a last minute reenlistment talk. I heard that you don't plan on going to the monthly retirement ceremony. Is that true?"

"You mean the ceremony that they hold out in front of Infantry Hall at the end of every month?"

"Yeah, that's the one."

"Geez, Top, why should I go?"

"Why? Why do you think they have the ceremony?"

"So that when some colonel retires they can let everybody know what a great job he did and pin on another pretty ribbon."

"Come on Jim, you know that's not so."

"Anyway, Top, nobody ever goes to those ceremonies. I've watched a couple of them and there's usually only a few people up there."

"And why's that? I'll tell you, because soldiers like yourself don't go to their own ceremonies."

"My ceremony? You know as well as I do that the only reason they have the ceremonies is for the officers."

"Oh Geez, Jim, you've been in the Army for twenty years and you still sound like some private E-nothing."

"Quit the snow job, Top, I've put in my time now let me go in peace."

"I'm not giving you a snow job, Jim. You've been in this unit for four years now and you've done a great job; you've been an outstanding soldier throughout your career. You've earned the ceremony. Even if you were retiring as a private after serving for twenty years you earned the right to stand up and be proud!"

"Top, if it's that important to you, I'll do it."

"Don't do it for me! Do it for yourself and for your family. They've backed your career all these years — they've followed you through fourteen states and three countries, haven't they earned the right to see you honored and to be proud of you?"

"Wow, I've never thought of it like that, but you're right. The wife and kids probably would get a big thrill out of it. Thanks a lot, Top, for opening my eyes. I'll give the AG section a call and tell them I changed my mind."

15 soldiers retire in September

By Marshall Jones

Two career soldiers, with more than 20 years of Army Service, were honored September 29 in a retirement ceremony at Marshall Auditorium.

The two men were each awarded army commendations by Chief of Staff, Col. Addision D. Davis III.

Lt. Col. Osacar G. Scoville received the First Oak Leaf Cluster of the Legion of Merit. And Sgt. Thomas P. Geary was presented with the Army Commendation Medal.

Scoville's last assignment was as the Deputy Inspector General, U.S. Army Support Command, Ft. Shafter, Ha. He plans to reside in Panacea, Fla. Geary was the detachment supply sergeant of the 10th Co, 1st Bn, TSB and will live in Pittsview, Ala.

There were 13 other retirees, all of whom opted not to participate in the monthly retirement ceremony. Those who will reside in Columbus are: Lt. Col. Wilson Hall, Maj. Leon Tomlinson, CWO Gary Kring, MSgts Robert Greenfiled and Justino Centeno-Burgos, SFCs Robert Kessler and Werner Schurr, SSgts James Moore and Paul Reed, and Sp5 Alfred Orton.

The remainder of September's retirees are: CWO Charley Wilhite who will live in Lake Butler, Fla., and SSgts Donald Seymour who plans to live in Hillman, Miss. and Gabriel Torres-Martinez, who will make his home in Cawuas, Puerto Rico.

Fire Prevention Week--A hot issue

By Madonna Simple

Sunday, October 9, 1871 started out like any other day, but a careless act ended it with 200 deaths, 17,500 buildings destroyed, 100 thousand people homeless and $168 billion in damages and losses. The place was Chicago and the event became known as the Great Chicago Fire. In 1922, the United States and Canada proclaimed October 9 as the beginning of Fire Prevention Week to observe this historic disaster and act as a reminder that fires can be prevented.

Fire killed 12,000 persons, injured 300,000 and damaged $3 billion in property in the US last year.

Fire has no preference as to age, sex, race or religion. It hits anyone and everyone. Fire brings panic and fear and leaves death and destruction.

Don't ever say "It couldn't happen to me." It can happen and will if proper precautions aren't taken.

Fire stations across the nation are emphasizing fire prevention and safety during Fire Prevention Week, October 9-15.

Fire Station No. 1, on post, is doing its part to inform the community by lecturing at luncheons, visiting schools, putting up posters and checking family quarters annually to insure safety.

In FY 77, the post fire department responded to 40 fires in family quarters. Six fires had an estimated damage of more than $250.

"The number of big fires on post may be small, but it's more than necessary," stated Samuel P. Morgan, chief, Ft. Benning Fire Station No. 1.

What can you do to eliminate fires in your home?

- Keep matches out of the reach of children.
- Never leave children, elderly persons or invalids without proper supervision.
- Extinguish matches and lighted objects in deep-well astrays.
- Close matchbook covers before striking. Light matches away from flamables, explosives or fumes that may ignite.
- Don't overload sockets with more than two plugs (avoid using extension cords). Have your wiring and electrical work done by professionals.
- Get rid of fire hazards (old newspapers, oily rags, paints, etc). Don't store combustibles near heat.
- Never smoke in bed.
- If possible, install smoke detectors. They should be installed on the ceiling or a high wall. If you own a mobile home, it should be placed on the 6-12 inches below the ceiling.
- Respect and use fire extinguisher as it was designed. Tampering, removing or playing with fire extinguishers is dangerous business because it might be the thing that will save a life.
- Work out a fire escape plan. Conduct periodical fire drills. If trapped in a room, stuff blankets and pillows into cracks of doors and find an alterate escape. Close all doors and windows when leaving house during fire.
- Protect mouth and nose with wet cloth (if possible). Never waste time dressing or gathering valuables, get out immediately.
- Never call fire department from your home. Get out of the house and use neighbor's phone. If you are calling from a Ft. Benning number, dial 117, if a Columbus number, dial 687-8117.
- The most important thing to remember is DON'T PANIC. Be calm and remember safety rules. Panicking could cost you your life.

When a person engages in a battle of wits with fire, he/she comes up the loser.

Remember it can happen to you! Don't get involved in a hot issue such as fire — protect yourself and your home by using safety precautions.

Schedule of Events

Fire prevention talks and demonstrations will be conducted by the Ft. Benning Fire Department in conjunction with Fire Prevention Week.

The purpose of these talks and demonstrations is to acquaint military personnel and civilian employees with fire prevention and safety at home and at the office. With the combined efforts of all personnel, Benning can be safe from fires.

The schedule for demonstrations is as follows:

Date	Time	Location
October 11	8 a.m.	36th Engr Gp, Peden Field
October 11	1:30 p.m.	TSB, Bldg 2747
October 12	10 a.m.	Troop Motor Pool, Bldg 222
October 12	1 p.m.	1st AIT Bde, Strump Field
October 13	8 a.m.	DAWTS, near Bldg 77
October 13	1:30 p.m.	2/10th FA, behind Bldg 9022
October 14	7 a.m.	1/29th Inf, behind Bldg 9007

Melissa C. Lemon, daughter of Sgt. Thomas Lemon and his wife Christine, was crowned 1977's "Tiny Miss Fountain City" at the Columbus Jaycettes' 2nd Annual "Tiny Miss Fountain City" Contest. Selected from 30 entrants and judged for personality, talent and beauty the 3½ year old "Missy" charmed, tap danced and smiled her way into the judges' hearts.

Fire Prevention Message

The week of 9 October 1977 is designated as "Fire Prevention Week." Special emphasis is to be placed on fire prevention and the removal of all fire hazards in areas where we work and live on post.

Unfortunately, some personnel are careless and negligent in observing simple fire prevention practices, and as a result, lives are lost and millions of dollars worth of government property are destroyed each year. Properties thus lost are extremely difficult to replace. During the current year Fort Benning has experienced a number of fires; the majority of which have been traced to carelessness in disposing of lighted smoking material, handling and misuse of flammable liquids, children playing with matches and misuse of cooking and heating appliances, such as leaving food cooking on the stove unattended.

Personnel are to acquaint themselves with fire prevention rules and regulations, and are enjoined to make a special effort to identify and eliminate fire hazards both at home and at their place of work. The cumulative efforts of all of us will go a long way in keeping the Post safe from unnecessary losses.

Foster parenthood--rewarding

By Bev Lockhart

The little waif-like girl turned and watched her house disappear in the distance as the caseworker from the county Department of Family and Children Services sped her away from an environment in which she had been both neglected and abused. The four-year-old was on her way to a new but temporary home. The county had found a foster home for her. A home in which she would be given more love and attention than she had received from her real parents.

Unfortunately, the caseworker had been forced to leave her with her real parents longer than they felt emotionally and physically healthy due to a shortage of foster homes. The shortage is forcing children to remain in bad home situations.

"There are several reasons why a child needs to be placed in a foster home," said Ms. Charlene Williams, Foster Home Caseworker, Chattahoochee County Department of Family and Children Services. "The main reasons are abandoment, neglect or abuse, either physical or emotional."

There is also the case when a family is unable to cope with the home situation and children must be removed temporarily. This includes unwed mothers who are unable to care for their baby immediately after birth and families with financial burdens.

In the past two years the majority of children placed in Chattahoochee County Foster Homes have come from military families, according to Mr. Michael J. Kessler, Protective Services Caseworker for that county. "We are hoping that military families will also respond to our need."

Robert and Paula Hancock are military parents who responded to that need. The Hancocks first became foster parents when SFC Hancock was stationed at Ft. Hood, Texas. After a short unaccompanied tour in Korea he was PCSed to Ft. Benning where his wife and ten-year-old son, William, joined him. The couple waited until they had local personal references before they applied to become foster parents here.

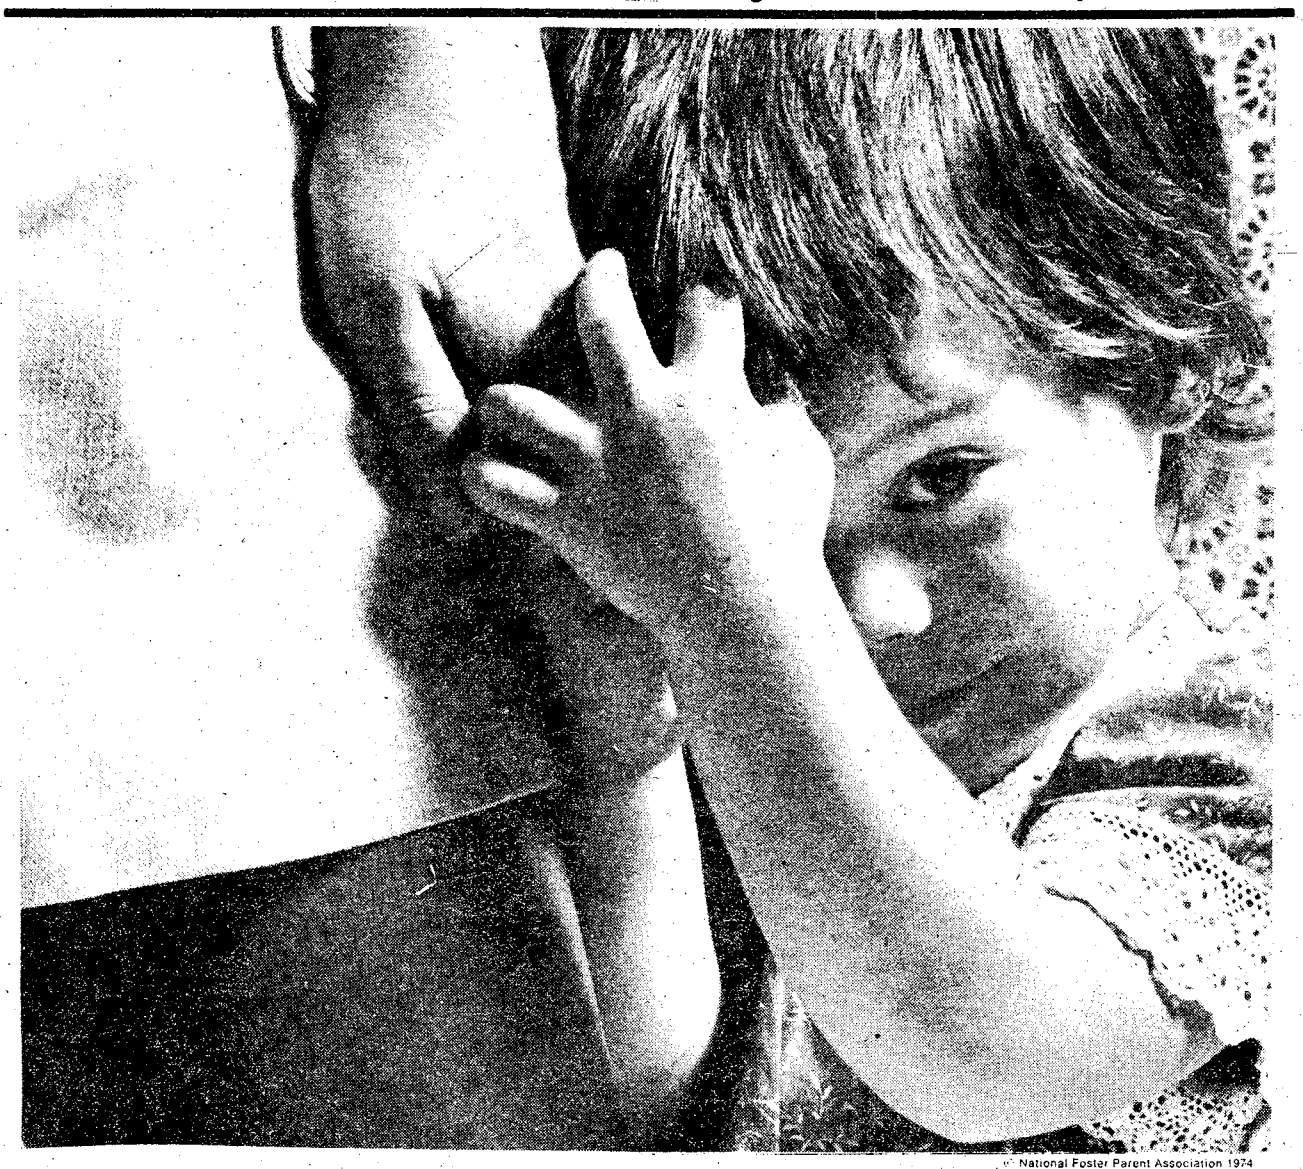
The case study the county does on foster parents is extensive and usually takes from one to three months to complete, according to Mrs. Rebecca Strong, Supervisor of the Foster Care Unit in Muscogee County. The study gives the caseworker a chance to get to know the prospective foster family. It also gives the family the opportunity to obtain information concerning children needing foster care. The more the agency knows about the family, its experiences, attitudes and problems, the better it will be able to help the family decide if foster care service is one in which they would want to be involved. In the Hancock's case, they were already certain they wanted to be involved in the program as they were while at Ft. Hood.

To become foster parents, you should have a steady income, good health, and be able to provide a child with normal family and community life without financial strain. Foster parents are not obligated to pay medical bills; the state or county pays for these. In addition, a daily rate is paid to provide the child's board, clothing and incidentals. The rate varies according to the age of the child.

"You certainly don't make money, if that's what you're looking for," said Mrs. Stella Modesitt. She and her husband, SFC Robert Modesitt, are the foster parents of an eight-year-old son. She added, "You should be a foster parent for what you can give to the child; your love, a good home . . . your reward will be far greater than cash."

Currently there are four on-post military families at Ft. Benning who are opening their homes to foster children.

SFC Donald Newkirk, a drill sergeant in Co D, 1st Bn, 1st AIT Bde, and his wife, Annie, have two adopted children; a seven-year-old boy and a five-year-old girl. But there are five children living in their home (the maximum number for foster homes is six). "When we got our first foster child — a 14-month-old girl — our daughter was kind of jealous because she was used to being the baby of the family. She's gotten over it now, though. I think it's been good for her, especially. It's taught her how to share." Their son was elated when they received their second foster child, a 17-month-old boy.



"He always wanted a little brother," according to SFC Newkirk. "Now he's got one, even though it's not permanent. We'll be sorry to see them go, but that's part of being a foster parent." The Newkirk's also have a two-year-old foster daughter in their home. When asked if she feels like she has her hands full, Mrs. Newkirk replied, "Not really. Our own children are in school — our daughter just started kindergarten this year — and I get them fed and off to school first. My husband is from a large family so he's used to a full house."

Some couples who are very successful parents with their own children cannot accept and love non-related children. It's best for the applicants and the agency to find this out prior to placement of a foster child. The study also helps the prospective foster family and the agency to decide which children may be most appropriately placed in their home.

Most foster parents seem to find it easier to care for younger children although, "One of our greatest needs is finding foster homes for teenagers," according to Mrs. LaVerne Wright, who is a member of the Adolescent Advisory Council of Chattahoochee County. "The majority of people will not accept teenagers and approximately 75 per cent of our children needing placement are teenagers."

SFC David Hale, 608th Ord Co, 197th Inf Bde, and his wife, Kathy are foster parents of a 10-year-old girl. They also have two children of their own; a 12-year-old daughter and a son who is six. Kathy got interested in the program because, "As a little girl, I was abused. I want to help others to prevent them from going through the same thing I did." When their foster child came into their home six months ago, she would get in bed and pull the covers over her head. "She would shake and cower away from men, especially. Now she's really close to my husand and has seemed to grow out of her fear of men," Kathy said. The Hales have been asked by the county if they would be interested in adopting her. "We'd be so happy if we could," Mrs. Hale relates. "Love is what she needs and we have plenty to give her. But that doesn't mean that we will stop fostering other children into our home."

Foster parenthood — no relationship will ever draw more heavily on your capacity for love, kindness, patience, flexibility, and sense of humor. Contrary to what many may think, the transient nature of military life does not hinder eligibility as long as a family is stationed here for at least a year. Ft. Benning personnel have a great deal to offer as foster parents.

SURPRISE YOUR HUSBAND WITH A CHILD THAT ISN'T HIS.

You might spring that idea on him tonight at supper.

A foster child. A kid whose parents can't care for him anymore. Or a kid who has no parents. A boy or girl who needs a home . . . for just a little while.

Naturally, your husband will have a few questions. So here are some answers, some facts. First of all, if a child doesn't have a family, he goes to an institution. Which isn't so bad . . . if you like institutions. Sure, they're clean. The food's nourishing. Most immediate needs are satisfied. All but two. A mother and father.

We know, kids cost money. And we're willing to help in the little ways we can. With a weekly allowance. And free medical and dental care. You supply the rest including the love.

Foster children, you see, need more than a bed. They need understanding. Many of them are too young to know what's happening to them. The rest are frightened and bewildered.

There's a deep human joy in saving a kid from that.

If your husband has some questions you both want answered, call one of the numbers below. We'll supply additional numbers of men who already have become fathers the foster way. They'll answer those questions. All except the big one: The one that asks, "Will you help?"

Professor Safety sez...

Some disposable diapers may pose a choking hazard to babies, a Seattle pediatrician warns. Dr John Sterner says that some diapers are made with a removable plastic strip that covers the adhesive fastener on the diaper until it is used. The plastic strip must be removed to use the diaper, and an absent-minded parent may leave the strip near the baby. In one case a child almost died after picking up a plastic strip and swallowing it. Sterner recommends that parents purchase diapers that do not have a plastic strip over the adhesive.

Doughboys whip Bragg Colts, 47-0

The Ft. Benning Doughboys whipped the Ft. Bragg Colts, 47-0, at Ft. Bragg Saturday night. Despite the home field advantage, the Colts were totally dominated in the first game the Doughboys have played away from home.

Seven different Doughboys took the football across the Ft. Bragg goal line, while Coach Dave Bankston's defensive unit permitted only one penetration into their side of the field. The outclassed Colt team never quit trying but the Doughboys frustrated every effort.

Ft. Benning kicked off and immediately forced a Colt punt but a 'roughing the kicker' call against Benning offered new life to Ft. Bragg. In the next three plays, the Colts lost sixteen yards and had to punt again. Another roughing call gave them the ball back. The third series cost them another eight yards. Once the Doughboys got the football the scorekeeper got busy.

Joe Duenas hit Rod Bradley with a 38-yard pass to the Colt 15-yard line. Two plays later Duenas ran a bootleg option, kept the ball and beat the Colt secondary to the corner of the end zone.

In subsequent first half drives, Chrles Holly and Lew Taylor scored for the Doughboys. The Benning defense forced two Colt turnovers — one an interception by Ronnie Carter and the other a fumble recovery after Ed Cochran knocked a Colt receiver away from the ball with an open field tackle that sent shudders along the Colt bench. The score at halftime was 19-0.

The second half was another thirty minutes of heartache for the outclassed Fort Bragg team. Julian Williams, Erogies Grigley and Robert Moore scored for the Doughboys. Roverback Jeff Bruckner stole a Fort Bragg pass and easily outran the frustrated Colt offensive team in a 28-yard sprint to the end zone. Dave Ward kicked five extra points, had one blocked and one — to the amazement of Ward and the Doughboy bench — called wide.

Head coach Jack Barham credited his assistant coaches and Ft. Benning command support for the victory. "Both the offensive and defensive coaches had the team ready to play and win," Barham said. "The Ft. Bragg team has more players than the Doughboys and individually there is some fine talent on the team. But they evidently get little command support. There were very few spectators. The playing field was in wretched shape. The officiating was amateurish, at best. Playing there made the Doughboy players and coaches really appreciate the way Ft. Benning has supported our program."

The Doughboys are idle this weekend. They'll meet another college team — St. Leo's University — in Doughboy Stadium on October 15.

One of the two Crusader's touchdowns came on an end around by Darril Williams from the Shark 6 yard line. The other came on a pass from QB Larry Smith to tight end Baxter Barber in the end zone.

Flyers to face Campbell

The Ft. Benning Rugby Flyers will play Ft. Campbell, Ky. Saturday on Benning's Stillwell Field at 2 p.m.

Rugby has been described as unorganized mayhem, but this is not true — actually rugby is organized mayhem. The game developed from soccer, and is similar to American football, except the players do not wear any pads.

Ft. Benning has had a rugby club since 1975 and it has earned the respect of the southeast rugby clubs by winning 75 per cent of their games. This fall, Benning will meet eight teams as well as compete in tournaments in Atlanta and Hilton Head Island, S.C.

The local team, made up of military personnal, is fortunate to have the coaching services of Major Chris Mullane from New Zealand, where rugby is a big sport.

The remainder of Ft. Benning's home games are:

8 Oct 77 — Ft. Campbell.
29 Oct 77 — Ft. Dix, N.J.
13 Nov 77 — Auburn, Ala.
19 Nov 77 — Emory University, Atlanta

All games are played on Stillwell Field on Hall Street across from the main post office at 2 p.m. and last approximately ninety minutes.

CFC nearing goal

Approximately 94 per cent of Ft. Benning's 1977 goal of $240,000 for the Tri-Community Combined Federal Campaign (CFC) had been realized as of Wednesday, according to John L. McCaskill Jr., post project officer.

"Two-hundred, twenty-five thousand dollars have been donated to the campaign and some units have already reached their goal," says McCaskill.

"However," he noted, "we don't want to encourage the 'let's meet the goal and quit' syndrome. Let's go all out to exceed the established goal."

CFC is being conducted through November among all military and civilian personnel in the Ft. Benning, Columbus and Phenix City area. Donations will help support 46 humanitarian agencies under United Way agencies, International Services Agencies and National Health Agencies in the local areas.

By giving through the CFC, the donor may make a blanket contribution to be divided among all the agencies, or he may designate his contributions for a specific agency.

Sergeants Carlos Jackson and Clifton Longley of the 72nd Engr Co, 197th Inf Bde lay an Armored Vehicle Launch Bridge (AVLB) across a 30-foot crater. The bridge folds upright and as it gets closer to the ground it scissors apart. The vehicle is capable of attaching itself to the other side of the bridge and picking it up after crossing. It can span a 60-foot gap and support any vehicle in the brigade including the M60A1 tank which weighs 52 tons.

Quarters slated for modernization

Housing officials have announced that 160 noncommissioned officer family living quarters, located in the 900 block on post, are slated to undergo modernization within the next 18 months.

A contract for $1,874,300 has been awarded to Geiger Co. of Columbus, which is expected to have the project underway by November 1, according to Don Mueller, area engineer, Savannah District.

Plans for major improvements include modernizing kitchens, updating electrical systems, installing central air-conditioning and first floor bathrooms, and enlarging parking areas.

The project is divided into two phases, each involving 80 units. Since the nature of the work to be done requires that the quarters be vacant, families living in units involved in the first phase received notice in late August they would have to be relocated. They were offered several relocation options which included:

- moving into on-post two- or three-bedroom adequate quarters.
- moving into on-post two- or three-bedroom inadequate quarters.
- Moving off-post.

Quentin Fagan, chief, Housing Division, DIO, states that of the 55 families who have already moved, 28 selected inadequate housing in Custer Terrace, two moved off post and the remainder moved into adequate three-bedroom quarters.

"The term 'inadequate' is somewhat misleading. DA housing standards are based mainly on space, although such amenities as a second bath for three-bedroom quarters, and central air and heat are considered. However, DA does not declare housing inadequate because it does not have these amenities. The

Doughboys to face St. Leo's

The Ft. Benning Doughboys will meet St. Leo's University Saturday night at 7:30 in Doughboy Stadium. St. Leo's, from San Antonio, Fla., has a 21-1 record while the Doughboy record now stands at 4-1 for the 1977 season. Recent Doughboy injuries and a planned change in strategy should prove to make this an exciting game.

NEWS in BRIEF

New Infantry mortar coming

Infantrymen who have wrestled with the baseplate or carried the tube of the 81mm mortar will welcome the Army's 60mm Lightweight Company Mortar System (LWCMS). The new infantry weapons system will be added to the inventory of field units in fiscal year 1980.

The LWCMS will replace the 81mm mortar in light infantry, airborne and airmobile units. The new mortar and its ammunition weigh half as much as the older mortar and ammunition.

The new weapon substantially retains current mortar standards with respect to accuracy and lethality. It has a maximum effective range of 3,500 meters.

The Army will develop two additional types of ammunition to go with the high explosive round already developed. These are an illumination round and a white phosphorus round. The new rounds should enter the inventory before 1982.

Some to lose VA eligibility?

Administrator of Veterans Affairs Max Cleland has warned that a large number of women whose husbands died or suffered total, permanent disability resulting from military service will lose their eligibility for certain valuable VA benefits if they don't act within 18 months. Skycrane: a stable platform

The venerable CH-54 Skycrane helicopter is a stable platform for parachute jumping, according to the Army's Airborne and Communication-Electronics Board (ACEBD). The board recently conducted a series of tests at Ft. Bragg, N. C., using the Skycrane equipped with a pod carrying Army parachutists.

The ACEBD made the tests at the request of the Alabama Army National Guard, using a CH-54A helicopter and crew from the Alabama Guard's 37th Aviation Company, Birmingham, Ala.

While the Skycrane is not being considered for tactical applications, the ACEBD considers the aircraft to be an exceptionally stable platform for paradrop training purposes.

Intel activities merge

On October 1, the majority of the Army's strategic level intelligence and counterintelligence activities merged into a single major command — the U.S. Army Intelligence and Security Command (USAINSCOM), headquartered at Ft. Meade, Md.

No purchase proof, no refund

Proof of purchase is required for refunds and adjustments at exchanges according to a recent Army and Air Force Exchange Service (AAFES) policy. Requiring proof of purchase is necessary to discourage shoplifters and other people who abuse the liberal AAFES refund policy.

PX sale slip minimum upped

The minimum sales price of exchange merchandise for which written sales slips are required has been increased to $75, according to the Army and Air Force Exchange Service.

The change is based on a recent House Armed Services Committee ruling that raised the minimum from $25. Inflationary trends in recent years have substantially increased the number of individual items stocked by the exchange system that sell for $25 or more.

According to the exchange service, the change is expected to "relieve those situations in which higher sales slip volume, particularly during holiday periods, has slowed customer checkouts and increased the administrative burden of recordkeeping."

"Can't I just pay for it?"

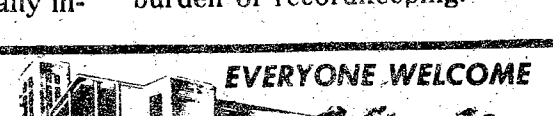
"Hey lady, wait a minute," pleads the young serviceman, lurching forward in his seat and taking out his wallet. The woman, whose nameplate reads Mrs. White, pauses, her finger still on the dial.

"Look, it's just junk — hardly a buck-fifty," he gestures toward the magazines and pack of gum on the desk between them. "Can't I just pay for them now, and we'll let it go at that? Please?"

Mrs. White begins dialing. She's heard it all before. Whether it's cameras or hose or flashlight batteries, most PX shoppers usually have enough money in their pockets or purse to pay for what they are trying to steal.

The different excuses could fill a book: "I didn't have the exact change;" "I forgot I had it in my pocket;" "I was just doing it for kicks."

The number was ringing and the phone on the other end was answered.



"Military Police Desk, Sergeant Brown speaking. . ."

A patrol is on the way, and the young man in the PX office will soon learn the truth of those posters that read: "A shoplifter gets something for nothing."

What does the PX shoplifter get? An Article 15 can be expected, in addition to loss of exchange privileges.

PREJUDICE

A barrier to human relations

By Marie M. Russo

A prejudice is an attitude toward a person or group of people. It is a feeling, favorable or unfavorable, toward a person or thing, prior to, or not based on, actual experience, according to the New English dictionary.

The word "prejudice" is commonly used to indicate a negative judgment; it suggests hostility toward another person, group or object. It is important to bear in mind that biases may be pro as well as con; people may be prejudiced in favor of others without sufficient cause. However, most prejudice is negative.

Prejudice can begin simply with a child's realization that some people seem different from himself and his family.

It has been shown, by psychological studies, that white children between the ages of two and six may regard dark-colored dolls as different from white dolls and therefore undesirable.

When such misperceptions are supported by parental attitudes, the seeds of prejudice are planted.

Since children's attitudes are largely shaped by their parents, it is not surprising that a positive relationship exists between parents' and childrens' prejudices. Unfortunately, prejudiced parents often train their children to be prejudiced, impressing upon them that members of a certain group are inferior. The children learn that to gain parental approval, they must behave as their parents do toward members of this group. The children are given specific reasons for disliking the group, with the parents themselves acting as models of hate for the children to imitate.

Children also develop prejudices from contact with prejudiced teachers and other adults, from their friends, and from misunderstandings resulting from carelessly presented information. Prejudices among children can be likened to a contagious disease; it is easy to acquire, and it spreads rapidly.

One child had the idea that all people living in Minneapolis were "monopolists," and from his father he had learned that monopolists were evil folk. When, in later years, he discovered the confusion, his dislike of dwellers in Minneapolis vanished.

Usually, prejudice results when an individual has a bad experience with a member of a particular group and generalizes his/her feelings toward the individual to all members of the group.

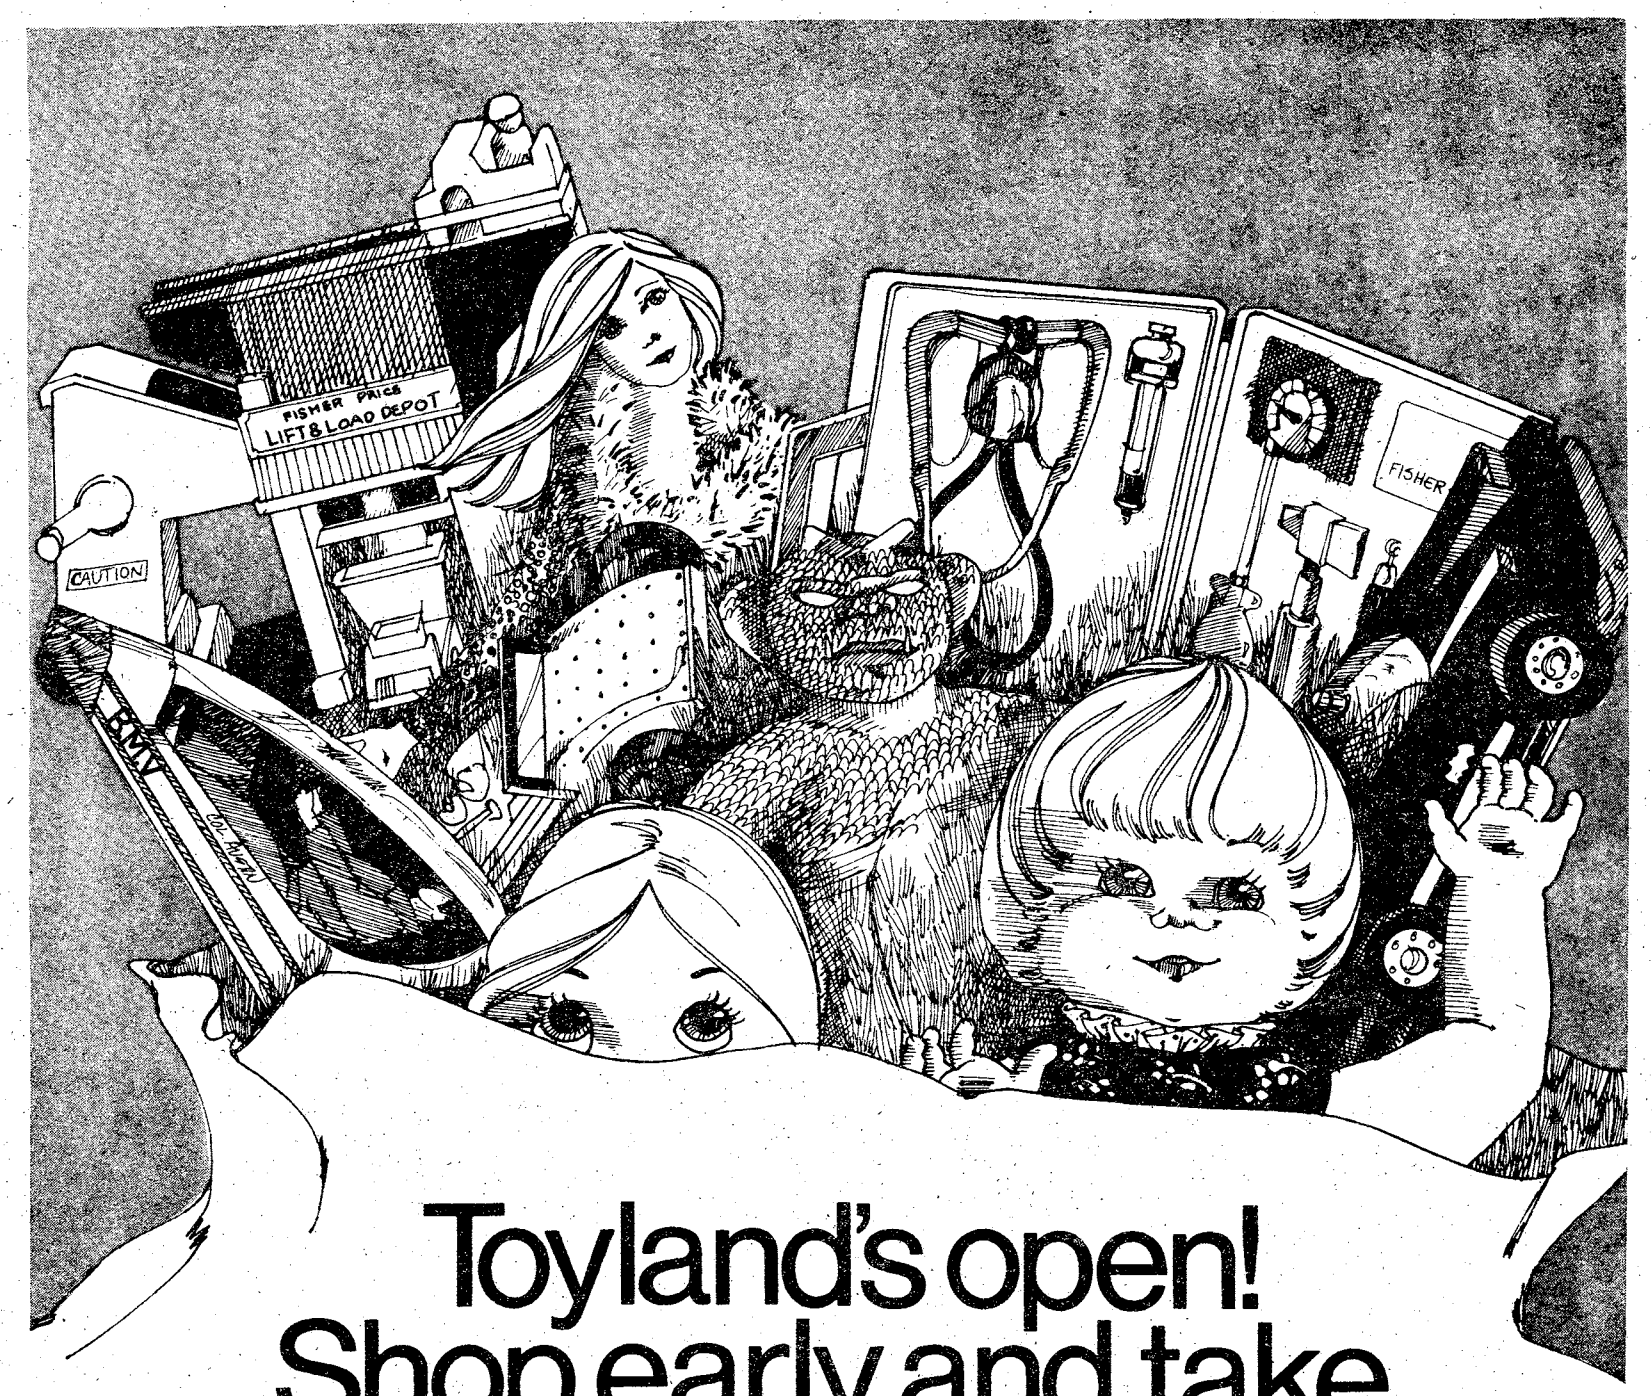
When an individual is insecure and defensive, he/she may respond to a negative experience with prejudice as a way to deal with his/her own feelings of inadequacy.

There have been many studies that indicate frequent contact between members of groups actually reduces prejudice.

During World War II, the Army organized its first racially integrated units. Although many white soldiers had displayed anti-black prejudice before serving in these units, their social attitudes were, on the whole, healthier and more objective after serving in the units. Enforced interracial contact weakened and in some cases destroyed long-held prejudices.

The social effects of prejudice are extremely unhealthy. Prejudice is one of the oldest and most serious problems of mankind. If enough people in society share a set of prejudices, a social condition that appears to provide objective evidence for their prejudice is created. An example of this can be found in our own society.

Consistent denial of educational opportunities has severely handicapped minorities in America, so that when they take intelligence tests designed by whites for whites, their lower scores support a common white prejudice that the minority is inherently less intelligent. The vicious and self-perpetuating nature of this system is obvious. In one form or another, it has been repeated many times, in many places.



Prejudiced people avoid the groups they dislike. They also work hard to persuade others that any contact with a member of a minority group is dangerous and unhealthy unless the circumstances are such that the superiority of the majority group is made absolutely clear. If enough people in a society share a prejudice against a minority group, the result will be segregation. The histories of almost all racial or religious minority groups, past and present, are incredible records of ghetto and humiliation, pogrom and holy war, abuse and extermination, segregation and degradation.

Can prejudice ever be eliminated on a mass scale? Is it possible to eliminate the influence of prejudiced groups on attitude formation? Can prejudiced responses be extinguished?

In theory, such goals are within the realm of possibility — people often know what must be done. But knowing is not the same as doing.

The Army's Race Relations Program is educationally oriented to, "develop changes in behavior that may lead to changes in attitude," according to 1stLt. Doug Rogers, the education and training officer of the post's Equal Opportunity Office.

Additional information about Benning's awareness program can be obtained by calling 545-3488.

Women 'one step away from combat'

By Marie M. Russo

Army women are "only one step away from combat," according to an official member from the Army Research Institute on hand to evaluate their performance during Reforger 77, in Germany.

This year, for the first time, female soldiers were directly involved in the Reforger field exercise which ended late last month.

More than 1,000 of the 43,000 US troops taking part in the simulated battles in southern Germany were women. Five hundred sixty of the women were from the Germany-based 3rd Inf Div alone.

The large number of WACS taking part in the war game was experimental and there were five teams of officers, from the Insitute, on hand to evaluate their performance. "The purpose of the valuation in Reforger is to evaluate women in the field for approximately three weeks and then to determine whether stamina and endurance have a great or small impact on the capability of the unit to accomplish its mission with women," explained Army Chief of Staff Bernard W. Rogers.

Until now, female soldiers have been judged on their performance in 72-hour field exercises. "Three days is not long enough to get a true picture," stated Rogers.

Currently the Army can assign its 50,000 female soldiers to non-combat jobs only, but most people don't realize the significance of women serving in combat support units, according to Cecil D. Johnson, technical area chief of the Institute.

"If a combat unit were run over, combat support units would find themselves in combat. The women are only one step away from combat," said Johnson.

"They (the women) carry rifles, pull guard duty, and in time of war, would almost certainly have to fight side by side with male soldiers," he continued.

During the Battle of the Bulge in World War II, a transportation unit pulled its trucks off the road and formed rifle teams to fight off the Germans. In the Vietnam Conflict during the Tet offensive, an MP unit was responsible for pinning down the Vietcong in Saigon.

"If those game events happened in today's Army, 10 per cent of the soldiers doing the fighting could be women," stated Johnson.

The position of women soldiers today was likened to that of black male soldiers a quarter of a century ago by Johnson.

Form errors cause delays

A warning that careless submission of a CHAMPUS claim could lead to temporary financial hardship for a patient or sponsor was sounded this week by Joseph C. Rhea, the program's director.

Under the new CHAMPUS Regulation, any claim form that does not provide required information must be returned for additional data, thereby delaying its processing, Rhea noted. Some doctors, hospitals, etc. will not agree to the extra wait for their money in which case the patient or sponsor will have to pay the bill directly, before the claim is settled, he explained.

Rhea's warning was issued amid rising concern among CHAMPUS officials over the increasing number of claim forms being returned because they do not contain all required information. Two particular problem areas are:

- failure to sign the claim form in Item 13 and
- failure to provide the Servicemember's (or retiree's) social security number in Item 8b.

Rhea also noted that a number of claim forms are being returned to patients and sponsors because the original submissions fail to include documents needed to process the claims.

Cited as particular problems by Rhea were failure to attach a non-availability statement when required and failure to attach an itemized bill when submitting a claim for care from a nonparticipating provider.

These are not the only problem areas, according to the CHAMPUS director, but they are the ones that seem to be causing the most difficulties at present.

Take a few extra minutes before submitting a claim form to make sure that it is complete and that all required documents are attached; it can save a few weeks when it comes to settling a claim, Rhea advises.

72nd Engr take it to the field

Common tasks manual due out in the field soon

Soldiers should soon start receiving a new manual that outlines the critical skills needed to survive on the modern battlefield — regardless of military occupational specialty.

The U.S. Army Training and Doctrine Command announced distribution would begin during November. Hopefully, every soldier regardless of MOS — will have the manual by January 1978.

Called the Soldier's Manual of Common Tasks (FM 21-2), it goes beyond the normal boundaries established by MOS and details critical skills needed by every soldier. These include such tasks as map reading, first aid, rifle marksmanship, personal hygiene in the field and other general soldiering skills.

TRADOC called the manual a significant addition to the new generation of training literature now getting into the hands of soldiers.

The Soldier's Manual of Common Tasks is similar in design to other manuals. It lists each task by number, details the task conditions, standards and where to find information on performing the skill.

The new manual should save time in producing those Soldier's Manuals which are due out in the future. Standards will not vary from specialty to specialty. Each proponent school has provided its expertise to development of the common tasks manual. (TNS) prime consideration is square footage," Fagan said.

"The Custer Terrace quarters are in good condition, and since the service member living in inadequate housing retains 25 per cent of his BAQ, we actually had more requests for inadequate housing than we could fill."

Fagan stated that so far there had been no complaints about the moves, although they had received some concerned queries. "For example, one man called and said his wife was expecting a baby at the time they were scheduled to relocate, so we changed their moving date."

According to Fagan, the people who will most adversely be affected by the modernization project are people on the waiting list for on-post quarters. He anticipated that it would extend their waiting time about three weeks.

Benning to Host CISM Matches

By Tommy Pool and Marshall Jones

The post will be well represented in this year's Conseil International du Sport Militaire (CISM) Shooting Championships, to be held here October 14-22. Eight Army shooters, all from the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit (USAMU), will go to the firing line with members of the other services to try to win the team trophy back from Finland, who broke an eight-year U.S. winning streak last year.

In the rifle competition, the USAMU will field Lt. Col. Phillip Cannella, a former CISM champion and winner of the 1976 Military Rapid Fire competition Maj. Lones Wigger, two-time Olympic Gold Medal rifle winner and former CISM champion; Capt. Robert Aylward, and 1st Lt. Dick Floyd, each a member of previous U.S. CISM teams.

Pistol Shooters from the USAMU will include Sgt. Maj. Emil Heugatter, former All-Army Pistol winner, 1976 National Trophy individual champion and member of several winning U.S. CISM teams; SFC Bonnie Harmon, three-timer national individual pistol champion, former CISM winner and member of several winning U.S. CISM teams. Also, SSgt. Thomas Woods, second-place finisher in this year's National Pistol Championships and member of the winning U.S. Army pistol team at the interservice and national matches; and SSgt. Marvin Black, former All-Army pistol champion and holder of a dozen national records for individual and team competition.

From the U.S. Navy, Lt. Cmdr. Webster Wright will join the Army shooters on the rifle team. Air Force TSgt. Bobby Tiner and Marine Gy Sgt. Michael Bonefede will compete on the pistol team.

Twenty countries will compete in the matches, making this the largest CISM shoothing competition in history. Denmark, Ecuador, Egypt, Finland, France, Germany, Korea, Libya, Mali, Nigeria, Norway, Portugal, Qutar, Rwanda, Saudi Arabia, Sweden, Switzerland, Thailand, Togoland and the United States will field teams in the event.

The first day of actual competition will be October 16. The matches are scheduled to last through, October 20.

Miss Universe, USA to participate

Both Miss Universe and Miss U.S.A will visit Ft. Benning during the Conseil International du Sport Militaire (CISM) shooting championships.

Miss U.S.A Kimberly Louise Tomes, will attend a welcome banquet for the delegations at the Officers Club Saturday, October 15, at 5 p.m. and the Doughboys-St. Leo's College football game at 7:30 at Doughboy Stadium.

The schedule for Janelle Penny Commissiong, Miss Universe, had not yet been confirmed but she is slated to arrive Thursday, October 20, the date of the awards banquet for the CISM teams.

CISM -- more than a shooting match

The Conseil International du Sport Militaire (CISM) is more than a shooting match. Each year competitions among the member nations are held in up to 22 different sports. Normally, a different country hosts each sport, using its existing facilities.

Ft. Benning will host the shooting championships this year for the second time, the first time being in 1970. Twenty of CISM's 71 member nations have elected to send delegations to the 1977 competition, scheduled to be held October 14-22.

Shooting is one of eight military sports in which CISM championships are held. Other military sports include parachuting; orienterring; skiing; diving; aerial, military and modern pentathons and orienterring.

CISM member nations also compete in individual sports, such as cycling, cross country and horsemanship; combat sports (fencing, judo, boxing and wrestling); and team sports (basketball, volieyball, soccer and field hockey).

The association also has an English designation, which is a literal translation of the French: International Military Sports Council. In fact, it was U.S. Army General Joseph McNarney who developed the idea of CISM to bridge language and cultural barriers and bring together the European Allied forces after World War II.

The Allied Forces Sports Council (AFSC), as it was known then, was designed along the lines of an organization of the same name set up by General John Pershing after World War I.

The success of the second AFSC was spoiled in 1947 when political factors led first the Soviet bloc countries, and then England and the United States, to withdraw.

But a nucleus of five countries (Belgium, Denmark, France, Luxembourg and the Netherlands) kept the idea alive. In February of 1948 the French Armed Forces organized a meeting in Nice and invited all countries interested in forming a permanent military sports association to attend.

The aim of CISM is to encourage military sports and the development of friendiy relations between the armed forces of its member countries. CISM is also active in research in the fields of sports-related medicine, military physical fitness and experimentation in new coaching methods and with new sports equipment.

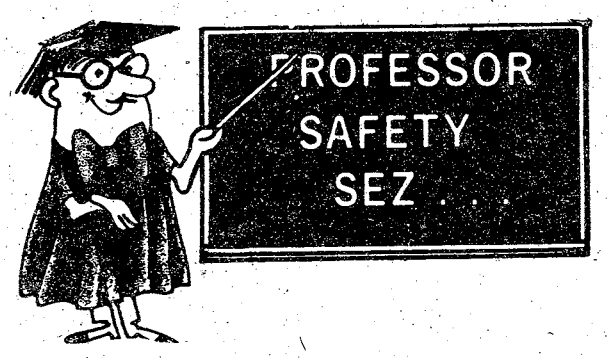
AUSA issues 'Bill of Rights' for servicemembers

The Association of the United States Army has issued a Special Report, "A bill of Rights for Those Who Serve," to improve the broad range of understanding of the military compensation system.

The report says, in part, ". . . this Bill of Rights for Those Who Serve is not intended as a brief against change. Rather, it is intended as a statement of principle concerning the military compensation system, its background, its strengths and weaknesses, and what must be done to emphasize the strengths while doing away with the weaknesses. It is intended as well to be a guide for the military people who must live with the system and for the legislators and civilian leaders who are charged by law to administer it."

While acknowledging that the extreme complexity of the system contributes heavily to its being misunderstood the report holds that the rash of changes to the system over the last ten years, coming from many different directions and most often without any coordination or examination of the ultimate impact, have created an atmosphere of distrust and apprehension in the military ranks.



The report calls for a straightforward acknowledgement — A true "Bill of Rights" — of the responsibilities of all the parties involved including the government's basic commitment to pay, house, feed and provide medical/dental care for active duty military personnel and their families. Other parts of the Bill of Rights include:

- A pay and allowances system that acknowledges the special nature of military service.
- A full range of medical and dental care for active duty service personnel and dependents and, as available, to retirees/families by military health care facilities with augmentation by CHAMPUS in its original form.
- Availability of complete commissary/PX systems with continued current level appropriated fund support.
- Appropriated fund support for essential military recreation programs.
- Equitable travel/transportation entitlements for all ranks.
- An expense reimbursement system which compensates for the actual expenses of official duty and travel.
- A retirement system modeled on the proposed Retirement Modernization Act which places a premium on longer service while retaining 20-year retirement at lower rates but would also provide equity in the form of separation pay for those involuntarily separated without prejudice prior to reaching retirement eligibility.
- A Survivor Benefit Plan as currently structured but with the Social Security offset reduced to 50 per cent of the benefit attributable to military service and eliminating the offset when the beneficiary is entitled to equal or greater benefits due to his/her own employment.

Because of the past hodge-podge of change, the association holds that in the future no single part of the compensation system should be adjusted without first determining its impact on the entire system.

The report serves as a reminder that loyalty is a two-way street, reaching upward from the lowest military ranks and ultimately reaching the President and the Congress. If it is to be respected, this loyalty must be reflected downward. The newest recruit must be sure that his Commander-in-Chief and the Congress will look out for his or her welfare.

Copies of the report can be reviewed at the post Public Affairs Office, room 600, Infantry Hall.

Did you know that every ten minutes accidents claim two lives, and 200 more persons are injured? Half of the accidental deaths each year occur from motor vehicle accidents, (46,000 in 1975). A third of the injuries occur from home accidents.

Counseling to be a must for pregnant soldiers

Counseling of pregnant soldiers becomes mandatory November 1 and regulations will be changed to require advice to both married service couples and single parents with less than three years service, according to DA personnel officials.

Mandatory counseling for pregnant soldiers will be provided to inform them of options to remain on active duty or separate. In addition, a unit commander's checklist counseling sheet will clarify policy for medical entitlements, wearing of maternity clothes, assignments, legal assistance, child care and financial responsibility.

Included among the 14-point checklist and form statements is a note which advises that "abortion is an ethical matter to be decided by the member after consultation with her physician and other professional staff as appropriate."

A personnel official said the policy was developed as a result of problems encountered with respect to pregnant soldiers. Such problems include lack of proper medical facilities in some locations, physical limitations during pregnancy, child care responsibilities that may detract from duty performance, assignment in areas where dependents are not allowed or where dependent hardships exist, and possible conflicts stemming from alerts, deployment or assignment overseas.

Some of these same conflicts apply to married service couples as well as single parents, the official noted.

DA will monitor the program, according to the official, to insure that pregnant soldiers are not coerced into leaving the Army.

Departing pregnant soldiers to receive maternity care

Soldiers who are pregnant before separating from the Army are eligible for maternity care in military medical facilities if they are honorably discharged. AR 40-3 authorizes pre-and post-natal care in these facilities and, in certain cases, at civilian facilities. More information is available through local military health care facilities.

Hunting season begins--Shoot for safety

Each year 2400 Americans are killed due to accidental discharge of weapons. In addition, six times this number are wounded. These accidents are caused by carelessness and mishandling and can be avoided.

More than half of the deaths each year occur in the home. Most of them happen while playing with weapons, examining or demonstrating them and when picking them up or setting them down while preparing to clean them. The key to safety is proper handling.

- Be sure all weapons are locked up and away from the inquisitive hands of children.
- Keep all weapons unloaded and never assume that it is unloaded or that the safety mechanism is a guarantee.
- Store ammunition separate from weapons.
- Know how to operate each weapon and know its safety features.

In the field the sportsman is prepared to fire and is a constant threat to himself and others. Poor judgment is the key factor in most injuries or deaths. They occur most often while climbing over a fence or up a tree with a loaded weapon; while transporting loaded weapons; when the hunter stumbles or falls; hunting with a weapon in poor condition and when a sportsman shoots without properly identifying his target. While hunting or target practicing remember and practice all the rules of weapon safety.

- Check your weapon and ammunition carefully before leaving and never load a weapon before transporting it.
- Lay the weapon down or hand it to a companion when empty or at least open the breech before climbing trees, fences or jumping a ditch.
- Be sure of the target before firing.
- Treat every weapon as if it were loaded. Remember their lethal potential and treat them with the respect they deserve.
- At home or in the field, "bullets and booze" don't mix. The target that is difficult to hit without a drink can never be as clear with one.

Doughboys to face St. Leo's

Doughboy Stadium will be the scene Saturday night, at 7:30, as the Doughboys are matched in their sixth game of the season against St. Leo's University. St. Leo's, a small college from San Antonio, Florida, is boasting a fairly new football program that is reported to have a very aggressive, hard-hitting young team.

St. Leo's has a 2-1-1 record while the Doughboys' record now stands at 4-1.

"Anytime you face scholarship ballplayers and a professional coaching staff, you've got to be ready for a tough football game," said Head Coach Barham.

In addition, a recent series of Doughboy injuries will leave the team with less than their usual strength on the field. Defensive end Robert Colie has a sprained knee, backup quarterback Willie Joseph is suffering from a pinched nerve in his back and offensive tackle James Manning has a badly bruised shoulder.

Also, as a radical departure from normal coaching procedure, coaches intend to start the ballgame with the players who did not get to make the trip to Ft. Bragg October 1. (Benning shut out Bragg 47-0). "These are the men who have worked hardest of all in practice and have never lacked spirit or hustle but just haven't had the chance to play much in the last two home games," explained Head Coach Barham.

The Doughboys will be following their normal game plan which is a balanced mixture of rushing and passing, but they are expecting their kicking game to be bolstered by the return of Walter Bridges who has been TDY at Redstone Arsenal for the last three games.

Coach Barham voiced some concern about the readiness of the Doughboys to take on a tough college team. "The easy win against Ft. Bragg and the two-week layoff may have contributed to a certain degree of complacency. It will be up to the coaches and the team leaders to revive the spirit that helped us win close games earlier in the season. If we don't get that spirit back before Saturday we could be in for a rude awakening," he predicted.

What do you do?

What do you do when the national anthem is being played?Perhaps this sounds like a silly question, but glancing around Doughboy Stadium during football games it is evident that many servicemembers aren't aware of the right position to take.

If you are out doors and in uniform you assume the position of attention and render the salute. If indoors, stand at attention only.

When in civilian clothes just assume the position of attention. If you are wearing a hat you would remove it and place it over you heart.

Football games aren't the only place where you'll hear the national anthem so be ready to render the proper courtesies. Make it your job to know the proper protocol you can stand proud when paying respect to the national colors.

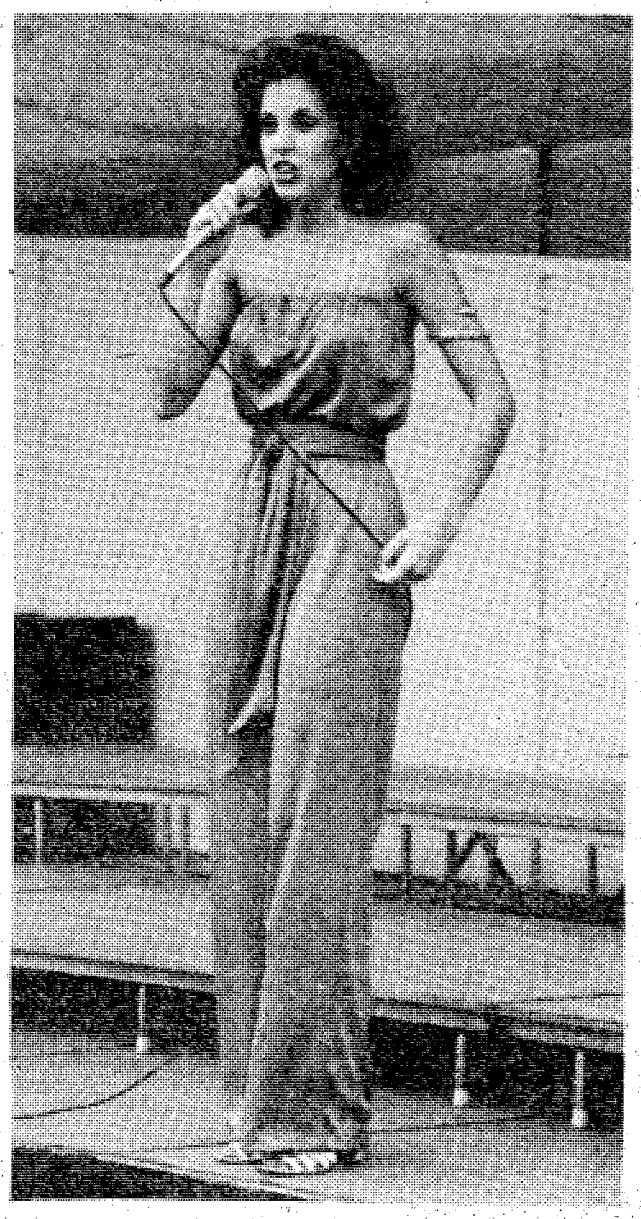
Rain fails to dampen Volks Fest spirit

By Sue Davis



It was a fun-filled day of food and lively entertainment set in a German atmosphere and periodic rain failed to dampen the hearty spirits of those who attended last Saturday's Volks-Fest.

The children seemed to have enjoyed themselves most of all. They were everywhere — laughing, jumping, dancing to the music and carrying balloons. Concession stands were a bustling of activity. Customers waited hungrily to be served plates of knackwurst, bratwurst, brotchen, as well as chicken, soft drinks and the favorite German thirst-quencher — beer.

The festive day began with a bang at 7 a.m. as competitors in the running events put their best feet forward in the 20-mile run. There were also 10 and 5-mile races. Major General William J. Livsey participated in the healthy fun and captured third place in his category in the 5-mile run. The first five place winners in the 20-mile jaunt provided a bit of confusion for the judges by joining arms and crossing the finish line together. They're members of the Ft. Benning track team who will defend their title in the All-American marathon at Ft. Bragg on November 12. Awards to the first three winners in each running category were presented by Gen. Livsey; Miss Black America, Claire Ford and Miss Georgia, Pam Souders.

Entertainment was provided by "Carolina Alive," a group of 50 talented singers and dancers, the Alpine German Band and the 283rd Army Band performed throughout the day. A German dance competition was held which required audience participation. Festivities ended at 11:30 p.m.

When asked what he thought of the Volks Fest, CWO4 Bill Walton replied — "I think it's a great idea and should be continued. I especially enjoyed the German band and their singers. However, the festival could be improved by moving the bands to the center of the big tent so that they can get the attention they deserve."

Miss Georgia, Pam Sauders takes her turn entertaining Volks Fest goers after assisting in the presentation of the running events awards.

No sex in open dating-- it's all about packaging

To help consumers obtain food that is fresh and wholesome, many manufacturers date their products. Open dating, as this practice often is called, includes four commonly used categories.

To benefit from open dating, the consumer needs to know what kind of dating is used on the individual product. (Check the fine print next to the date.)

Here are the four kinds of open dating and what each means:

- Pack Date—This is the day the food was manufactured or processed or packaged. In other words, it tells how old the food is when you buy it. The importance of this information to consumers depends on how quickly the particular food normally spoils. Most canned and packaged foods have a long sheif life when stored under dry, cool conditions.
- Pull or Sell Date—This is the last date the product should be sold, assuming it has been stored and handled properly. The pull date allows for some storage time in the home refrigerator. Cold cuts, ice cream, milk, and refrigerated fresh dough products are examples of food with pull dates.
- Expiration Date—This is the last date the food should be eaten or used. Baby formula and yeast are examples of products that may carry expiration dates.
- Freshness Date — This is similar to the expiration date but may allow for normal home storage. Some bakery products that have a freshness date are sold at a reduced price for a short time after the expiration date.

AMIC expands working hours

The Acute Minor Illness Clinic (AMIC) is now open from 8 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

This service is being implemented as a convenience for one car families and other persons who are unable to come to the hospital during normal duty hours.

Patients are requested to come to the Acute Minor Illness Clinic only if the Adult Medical Advisor recommends that medical care be sought.

Parents are requested not to bring children to the clinic because of the possible spread of communicable diseases.

Children under 12 years of age and Family Practice patients should call the Information Desk at 544-2041 if an illness arises after duty hours. The Pediatrician-on-call or the Family Practice Doctor-on-call will return the call and suggest further action. Family Practice members are reminded that they should call the Family Practice Doctor-on-call before coming to the Emergency Room after hours.

The success of the extended hours of the AMIC depends, to a great extent, on the cooperation of the community. Prudent use of the AMIC after duty hours will aid immensely in the success of the program.

MEDDAC orientation slated

The next MEDDAC Orientation Briefing for all newly arrived personnel will be on October 19 at 7:30 p.m. in Marshall Auditorium.

According to Maj. Sam Brown, chief of the Administrative Support Branch for the Department of Primary Care and Community Medicine at MEDDAC, "The MEDDAC Orientation Briefing is designed mainly for newly arrived families at Benning and covers the services that are available at MEDDAC, how to most effectively use the outpatient system."

There will also be a question and answer period and medical screening for persons who have conditions that require immediate care.

The MEDDAC Orientation briefings are presented first on the first and third Wednesday of each month at Marshall Auditorium in Bldg 4 at 7:30 p.m.

The orientation is mandatory for all newly arrived active duty sponsors accompanied by their families.

Doughboy League

The Dolphins finally broke into the win column this week squeezing by the Sharks 14-8. The Sharks scored first in the first quarter with Shelby Shipman going in from 28 yards out and he also added the PAT. In the second quarter Greg Lahr scored for the Dolphins from the 6-yard-line and Mark Gilbert added the PAT. The score was 8-8 at half time. In the third quarter Greg Lahr ran a punt back 65 yards for a TD. The PAT was no good.

Sharing the offensive honors with Lahr and Gilbert was Richard Helmuth. The Dolphin defense was led by Jack McCoy, Kevin Casey, Jesse Runfola and assisted by Wayne Jordan, James Brittingham. Gilbert had a pass interception and Derrick Gillespie a fumble recovery.

The Patriots fell behind 18-15 at half time but the defense stiffened in the second half and they beat the Bears 33-18. Mark Crites completed 2 TD passes to Mark Miller; one after an interception by Matt Cole who ran it back 53 yards to the Bears 3-yard-line. Crites took it in from there for a TD. The second half saw Chris Baird handling the ball to Rick McGee who scored twice. Matt Cole kicked one PAT and McGee ran for one. The Patriots defense that shut out the Bears in the second half was led by Bill Moore, Mike Brand, Shannon Smith, Sherwood Williams, Joey Hashimoto and Donald Cruce.

The Bears' Darren Wade returned a fumble 55 yards for a TD. James Higginbottom hit Terrance Black with a pass good for 60 yards and a TD and the third TD was scored by James Higginbottom from the two-yard-line. Larry Chapman and Teddy Leonhart were outstanding on defense.

Next week the undefeated and unscored upon Crusaders will meet the undefeated Patriots.

Biddy League

By Wm T. Miller

The Biddy League Raiders rolled relentlessly to wrestle a 14-0 win from the Cowboys. The first quarter was slow. The Raiders couldn't seem to mount any kind of drive and the Cowboys were plagued with penalties. As the quarter ended 0-0, notable Raiders included Ken Gonzalez and game co-captain, Jason Miller.

The second quarter again saw a Raider offense which couldn't seem to get going and what looked like an extremely powerful Cowboy team plagued by crucial penalties such as a 40-yard TD run called back for holding. As the half ended in no score, Chris Cassibry and Antwan Harris joined the ranks of Raider notables.

The third quarter saw a charged-up Raider team finally begining to click and finally the team sprang Trevor "Tornado" Johnson loose to storm seventy yards for the first TD of the game. Eletcher "Fearless' Walker ran the conversion to make the score 8-0.

The fourth quarter finally showed fans fine football by any standards. Both teams played a hard-hitting, hard-driving quarter. About midway through the period, Johnson again broke loose, driving 30 yards for the final Raider TD.

"Henry "Hammering" Langendorf was named outstanding defensive Raider and "Pee Wee" McIntyre was named, along with Johnson as the offensive player. The Raiders meet the Redskins tomorrow morning.

After an 18-0 win over the Cowboys a week ago, the Redskins went all out for a 44-0 win over the Rams.

It was an outstanding game of offense for the Redskins with Anthony Bruce in the first quarter going for a 40 yard TD. The extra point was made by Kevin Smith.

In the second quarter Kevin Schnicker ran in a 10 yard TD for the Redskins, with Bruce following with another 20 yard TD.

The third quarter saw more action from Damon Dorr scoring on a 60 yard run TD with key blocking from Smith.

In the fourth quarter Dorr scored the fifth TD on a pass from QB Greg Jones, with Smith going for the extra points. The final TD of the day was a 15 yard run by Smith with Tim Bryson adding the PAT. The Defense was led by Dorr Paul Leatherwood, Schnicker, Scott Ariail, Barry Fox, Curtis Rucker, Christother Johnson, Patrick Ariail, Smith Alfred Lewis, and William Brickner. It was a great team effort by the Redskins.

255 take ACS Riverside Tour

The Army Community Service (ACS) sponsored a Riverside Tour on October 2 to build up its Food Locker Program while giving the community a chance to view the historical home.

Through the admission price of non-perishable food items and cash donation, 566 cans of food were collected and $56 was donated. The tour can only be termed a success, according to Capt. David Ebron, ACS officer.

While the ACS Food Locker Program was reaping the benefits of the Army Community's generosity, 255 people enjoyed guided tours of the Commanding General's living quarters. Ten volunteers from ACS staffed the tour which ran from 1 to 4 p.m.

The Riverside Tour is sponsored by ACS through the generosity of MajGen. and Mrs. Livsey. If you missed the October 2 tour, be sure to attend the tour of the historical home the next time it is offered.

Back to school--A hazardous journey

With schoolbells ringing amid groans, grumbles and some mixed cheers, 40,000 children in the tri-city area — give or take a few — are settling down to the serious business of getting an education.

Will your child be among them?

Of course there's no reason that he or she shouldn't be, but if you neglect a few basic safety precautions, the question could become — FOR HOW LONG?

Whether your child walks to school, rides a bicycle, takes a bus or relies on you for transportation, there are certain precautions that should be considered in the interest of safety.

If you drive your child to school, don't load or unload across the street from the school, don't stop on the crosswalks as this is unfair both to the children and safety patrols directing them, don't double park or stop too close to crosswalks. Pool rides with neighbors to reduce the number of cars in the school area, have a designated location for meeting your child, and use more than ordinary caution when approaching a school zone.

If your children ride a bike, make sure they understand they must follow the same rules as motorists—observing traffic lights and signs, yielding right of way and giving proper hand signals indicating turns, slow and stop. A bicyclist should never cut in or out of traffic, ride against traffic, ride two abreast or perform bike stunts on a public thoroughfare.

For children riding the bus, crossing the street or highway to and from the bus stop is probably the greatest single hazard they face.

Your children should always cross at designated crosswalks after they have looked both ways to be sure no traffic is coming. They should arrive at the bus stop in plenty of time, but not so early they have time to loiter. Get them up early enough to avoid last minute scramble for the bus stop. They should board the bus without delay, in a single line and without pushing. They should remain seated while the bus is in motion and avoid loud or boisterous conversation enroute.

Teach your child to obey all traffic signs and signals, cross the street in marked crosswalks at intersections. Never jaywalk, by crossing diagonally, or in the middle of the block, or against the light, or from behind parked cars.

Parents who heed these tips will enhance the safety of their children, preventing them from becoming involved in accidents as they make the hazardous journey. Back to school — a dangerous journey.

Dependent Schools testing basic skills

The Iowa Tests of Basic Skills is being administered to students at Benning's Dependent schools in grades three through eight.

The basic skills tested in the Iowa Tests are: vocabulary, reading comprehension, language arts — spelling, capitalization and punctuation, work-study skills — reading maps and graphs, alphabetizing, using reference materials and mathematics.

According to Dr. Richard Vickrey, assistant superintendent, the testing is used as a means of program evaluation and to secure information about the individual student.

A student's performance on the various subtest aids in planning individualized instruction. Last year's test results have already been used to identify areas of potential strengths and weaknesses, and some curriculum revisions have been made as a result of these findings.

Test administration at Wilson, McBride and Dexter Schools began on Tuesday and will be completed today. Testing at the Faith School is slated for October 18-21 and at the Wilbur, Lloyd and White Schools for October 25-28 beginning at 8:45 a.m.

Parents are requested by Melisha Miles, psychometrist, to arrange appointments during other times if possible.

After the test results are machine scored and returned, group conferences will be scheduled in each school. The school counselors will also be available for individual parent conferences.

Army, Air Force Exchange credit plan tabled

By John Hart

The Army and Air Force Exchange System (AAFES) board of directors has "tabled" credit plan that had been under consideration, an AAFES official at the Pentagon said Thursday.

Earlier this year, the board's chairman, AF LtGen. Charles E. Buckingham said in an interview that "credit at the exchanges would help the junior enlisted grades in their financial situation." He said a survey had shown that 70 per cent of the enlisted people and 57 per cent of the officers would have liked to use credit in the exchanges.

While the board decided against a credit plan, "it recognized the need to relieve some of the financial burden from younger military personnel especially those stationed overseas," according to the AAFES official.

He said the board of directors at a meeting September 7 in Dallas, "directed AAFES to explore alternative means to alleviate this burden."

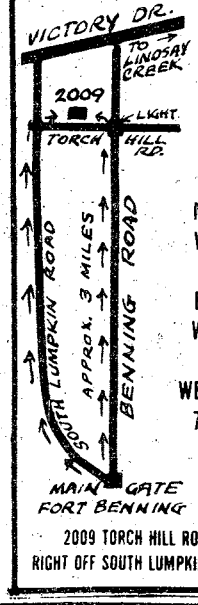
"This could take the form of broadening the existing deferred payment plan now authorized for military uniform items to other selected merchandise," AAFES Commander, AF MajGen. Bobby Presley said in Dallas.

Such a broad deferred payment plan would probably be tested at selected overseas locations, according to the AAFES official.

He said that before embarking on such a test program the commander concerned, Office of Secretary of Defense, and the Congress would be consulted.

Pentagon sources speculated Thursday that the board's decision not to adopt a credit system was "influenced by potential Congressional opposition."

For the past 20 years, the House Armed Services Committee has rejected the idea for two reasons.



One reason is that the committee feels that service members might over-extend themselves with such a credit system.

Second, the committee has felt that credit given to exchange shoppers may increase the competition between AAFES and private exterprise.

When Buckingham, the AAFES board chairman, was interviewed, he said any credit system proposed by AAFES would require approval of Congress.

In early April this year, the National Federation of Independent Businesses, representing thousands of independent firms, said it opposed the AAFES credit plan and would seek Congressional support to reject the idea.

10-8 on the warpost

By "HOSS" KACI 4615

The following article by Arnold R. Lambert is reprinted from the US Army Aviation Digest:

On a recent holiday weekend trip, I played a game that could have been deadly. Traffic was much heavier than usual for Friday night. Northbound on I-65 in Tennessee and getting close to the Kentucky line, I was monitoring channel 19.

Lightning flashes revealed huge black cloud formations and it was obvious that a bad storm was brewing. Southbound 18-wheelers confirmed that after crossing the state line we would be in the middle of a lot of liquid sunshine. My lapbelt was fastened and the windshield wipers going when I crossed into the Bluegrass State. Then the clouds really opened up.

The rest areas were filling fast with motorists pulling in to wait for the storm to pass. Two 18-wheelers were jawing with each other about whether to stop or continue. One of them called himself "Gabby"; the other was "Leadfoot." It didn't take long for me to decide that both were aptly named. They agreed they couldn't make any money parked and decided to keep moving. That was when I decided to play follow-the-leader. I keyed my mike and called, "Breaker one-nine." The reply came from Gabby and I told him I wanted to tag along through the storm.

The storm got worse and I fastened my shoulder belt and turned the wipers on high. Suddenly Gabby wasn't so gabby because he had his hands full just trying to see where he was going. At times, all I could see were blurry red lights in front of me because of the hard rain and the vapor caused by the truck tires on the wet pavement.

Gabby was in the lead and I was bringing up the rear. We were not speeding but we were moving too fast for the weather conditions. Leadfoot signaled and moved into the left lane. I followed. We went around Gabby and this put me with about 45,000 pounds on front of me and about the same behind me.

The thought of this caused more than a little discomfort. My thoughts were interrupted by a flash of lightning, followed by a flash of brake lights and a simultaneous swerve to the left. I followed suit and started skidding. I did a complete 360 and came within inches of hitting the truck in front of me and an overturned car. I could almost feel myself being crushed between 90,000 pounds of steel but fortunately we all got stopped.

The car had apparently skidded on the wet pavement and overturned. It was partially blocking the right lane. The driver was not hurt and helped the trucker set up warning flares. Leadfoot said the only thing that kept him from hitting the car was the bright flash of lightning.

There was nothing I could do to help so I drove to the nearest rest area. I parked and sat there shaking. I was startled out of my thoughts by the sound of engines starting. The storm was over and people were getting on their way again. I got back on the road and vowed never to play follow-the-leader again, especially through a storm.

'Watch trust plans'--IRS

The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) warned last month that taxpayers may be duped by schemes that promise tax shelters if they establish certain trust plans.

The IRS cited plans sometimes known as Family Estate, Pure or Educational Trusts and added that such plans "have been grossly and improperly misstated . . . and have no legal justification."

Promoters of such schemes, the IRS warned, charge substantial fees for erroneous advice. The advice, for example, promises "compensation," "fringe benefits," "pension rights," "tax-free use of a residence" and "educational endowments for children" for the trust creator. The taxpayer is misled to believe that the trust allows for legal tax deductions.

The IRS, citing several cases, warned that various court decisions have rejected the legality of such trust schemes.

Soldiers should consult their legal assistance office with tax and trust questions. (ARNEWS)

"Hi Stanley, uh . . . Steffan or are you Steven?" This is a typical question asked of the Cheatum triplets, who have been at Benning four months. The triplets, the sons of SFC Steve and Lillie Cheatum, Co C, 197th Support Bn, are enrolled in Wilson Elementary School on post.

Documents that outline the long anticipated disestablishment of the Office of the Director, Women's Army Corps has been forwarded to DoD attorneys, according to Pentagon sources.

After the document is approved by DoD, it will be forwarded to Congress. Unless Congress acts to disapprove the move, within 30 days after the necessary paperwork arrives on Capitol Hill, the inactivation will take effect.

The office, headed by BrigGen. Mary E. Clarke, has four military slots and one civilian position. According to sources, they will probably be transferred to other positions in the Pentagon.

Early next year, the Army will take a look at the possibility of putting some women into "close combat units," according to LtGen. DeWitt C. Smith Jr., deputy chief of staff for personnel.

He believes the Army is "proceeding with an open mind," on the future number of female soldiers and the roles they will play in today's Army.

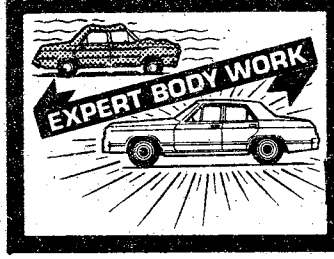
A proposal to open more drill sergeant positions to women is being considered by DA according to a MilPerCen spokesman.

The proposal would permit the assignment of women to additional noncombat arms drill sergeants by changing training unit manning documents so they can be filled by male or female drill sergeants, the official said.



Currently, female drill sergeants are generally assigned only to training jobs involving female trainees.

The expansion to drill sergeant jobs for women will make more of them eligible for the $50 monthly special duty performance pay authorized for drill sergeants.

Commissary hours to change

By Debra Hilgeman

Army commissary stores will begin operating Tuesday through Saturday as a result of Congressional demands to reduce operating costs and an expected cut of more than $5 million from last year's budget.

Stores will also close on Saturdays preceding the seven three-day holidays which run between Saturday and Monday during this fiscal year.

Jose Fantauzzi, commissary officer, anticipates, "The new operating hours will provide improved check-out service, item selection, adequate time for personnel who can only shop after duty hours, and at the same time allow commissary management to improve established sanitary requirements."

Another change in policy will allow Army commissioned officers to cash checks without facing verification against a bad check roster which will result in reduced lines.

Since February, 23 permanent job slots were eliminated at the post commissary and 11 part-time job slots have been lost since June. "Most of the employees involved in this were either reassigned or left through resignation," explained Fantauzzi. "The employees will probably be delighted with the new schedule," he speculated. "They won't have as much shift rotating under the five-day week."

When asked what he thought customer reaction would be to the commissary's new hours of operation, Fantauzzi replied, "I don't know yet. This is taking hours away from the customers but we're hoping it will result in better service."

"As far as we know," he concluded, "the new schedule is permanent."

Beginning November 7, the commissary will be open at the following times:

Sunday and Monday	CLOSED
Tuesday	9 a.m.-6 p.m.
Wednesday	9 a.m.-6:30 p.m.
Thursday	9 a.m.-7:30 p.m.
Friday	9 a.m.-6:30 p.m.
Saturday	9 a.m.-6 p.m.

CFC over the top

The 1978 Combined Federal Campaign (CFC) has reached 106% of its goal as of October 17, according to post project officer John L. McCaskill Jr., secretary-treasurer of the Community Activities Association.

The drive will end sometime in November, said McCaskill. "Response has been much greater than anticipated, and most gratifying to the command," he added.

The goal for this year's campaign was $240,000. Funds are divided between the United Way, the National Health Agencies and the International Service Agencies. These large organizations group together a number of health and social service agencies.

Doughboys to meet Bears

The Ft. Benning Doughboys will meet the Asheville Bears, a semi-professional team from North Carolina, tomorrow night in Doughboy Stadium at 7:30. The Bears who presently lead the semi-pro Dixie Conference with an 8-1 record will be put to the test by the 5-1 Doughboys in what promises to be a tough contest.

Hypothermia: It'll kill ya

Add the word "hypothermia" to your vocabulary. Your understanding and awareness of its seriousness could save your life.

Hypothermia, more commonly referred to as exposure, can cause death as the skin temperature lowers.

The body begins to lose heat faster than it can be generated, blood circulation is restricted, the blood does not carry enough oxygen to the brain, the brain slows down and panic follows — leading to wild, irrational physical exertion until physical collapse and then death.

It never gets that cold here in Georgia you say?

Wrong!

Under certain and usually unanticipated condictions, a person can actually "freeze" to death at temperatures as high as 50 degrees.

Exposure is a starting point — add fatigue, a little rain or sweat, wind, the wrong clothing, poor preparation, a failure to recognize the symptoms and the lack of a "buddy" for help — and you're a goner.

Anyone who participates in winter sports should be especially careful. Particular attention should be given to preparation for emergencies such as being stranded with a broken ski or snowmobile. A survival kit should be carried by each person. As a bare minimum it should include some chocolate bars and some kind of wind breaker such as a large plastic garbage can liner.

Survival experts advise wearing wool garments for winter outdoor sports. Wool does not absorb moisture so rapidly; moisture generated by the body is passed through the fabric to evaporate on the outside of the garment. If the moisture evaporates near the skin, it cools the skin surface even more.

The best defense against hypothermia begins

AUSA calls for GI 'Bill of Rights'

A special report calling for a GI "Bill of Rights" to "restore" military trust in benefits was published last week by the Association of the United States Army (AUSA).

The report, "A Bill of Rights for Those Who Serve," indorses the 1976 report by the Defense Manpower Commission which recommends enacting such a bill. The AUSA report is essentially a Bill of Rights by itself, although it has no official defense sanctioning.

In outlining a proposed GI Bill of Rights, the AUSA report says it must include an understanding of service members', Congressional and leadership responsibilities.

It should predominantly serve to inform GIs about their benefits system and to restore confidence in it, according to the report.

Calling for a specific explanation of pay, specialty pay, medical entitlements, retirement and the entire gamut of military benefits, the report also injects a proposal that the "hodgepodge" change in the system be replaced by a more careful assessment.

See related commentary on page 6

The report suggests that the unique risks and responsibilities of military duty be carefully considered by lawmakers who determine benefit funding.

Although civilian workers are usually not well informed about the specifics of their benefits, according to the report, military personnel are much more sensitive to changes because their benefits are not protected in the same manner as civilian benefits.

Summarizing the gist of the proposed bill, the report emphasizes that future "military compensation systems must have far greater stability than they have had under current practices."

Enacting a GI Bill of Rights will contribute to restoring respect and admiration of the American public in the armed forces, the report concludes. (ARNEWS)

NEWS in BRIEF

Alcohol abuse problems cited

A recent report from the General Accounting Office (GAO) says there is a large alcohol abuse problem in the Army.

The report, entitled "Most agency programs for employes with alcohol-related problems still ineffective" and released September 7, presents some figures which seem to be cause for alarm.

The report cited an Army study, based on responses from 9,910 subjects, that showed 20 per cent of the officers and 32 per cent of enlisted men are heavy or binge drinkers and an additional 17 and 35 per cent, respectively, have drinking problems.

The report listed a "binge drinker" as one who had been continuously drunk for more than one full day at a time. "Heavy drinkers" were defined as those who consumed five or more drinks on four or more days of the week.

One of the focal points of the study was the lack of knowledge of those in command positions as to the scope of the problem. With at least 67 per cent of the enlisted responses admitting to a problem with alcohol, command perception of the extent of the problem was low. Only two per cent said the problem was thought to be significant, while 38 per cent said it was moderate and 51 per cent said it was minimal.

Another significant figure released in the report showed that of 2,660 supervisors responding, about 25 per cent said they had encountered a subordinate with an alcohol problem.

State tax withholding updated

Three more states Maine, Minnesota and Oregon will withhold state income from military pay of their residents beginning November 1.

These three states join 24 others which require withholding of state income tax in some form, including: Alabama, Colorado, Delaware, District of Columbia, Idaho, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Massachusetts, Nebraska, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Utah, Virginia and Wisconsin.

New conduct reg being staffed

A new regulation on standards of conduct for DA personnel is currently being staffed and will be distributed shortly after final approval. The revised regulation (AR 600-50) clarifies appropriate policy and laws. Although some of its more stringent provisions apply to certain officers, employes involved with contracts and money and people in high responsibility jobs, it will have some degree of impact on all DA personnel — military and civilian.

TDY civilian policy changes

Civilian personnel on TDY at military installations no longer have to use government quarters. However, when adequate quarters are available and not used, the quarters portion of per diem will not be paid except under certain conditions. Civilian personnel offices have details on the exceptions.

Vets still get job preference

Veterans will continue to receive job preference in some fields as a result of a ruling by the U.S. Supreme Court last week which upheld the veterans preference practice. The court upheld the veterans preference laws of Massachusetts, despite their disadvantage to women and non-veterans. Forty-six states and the Civil Service Commission currently give similar preference to veterans.

The G.I. Party--a necessary evil?

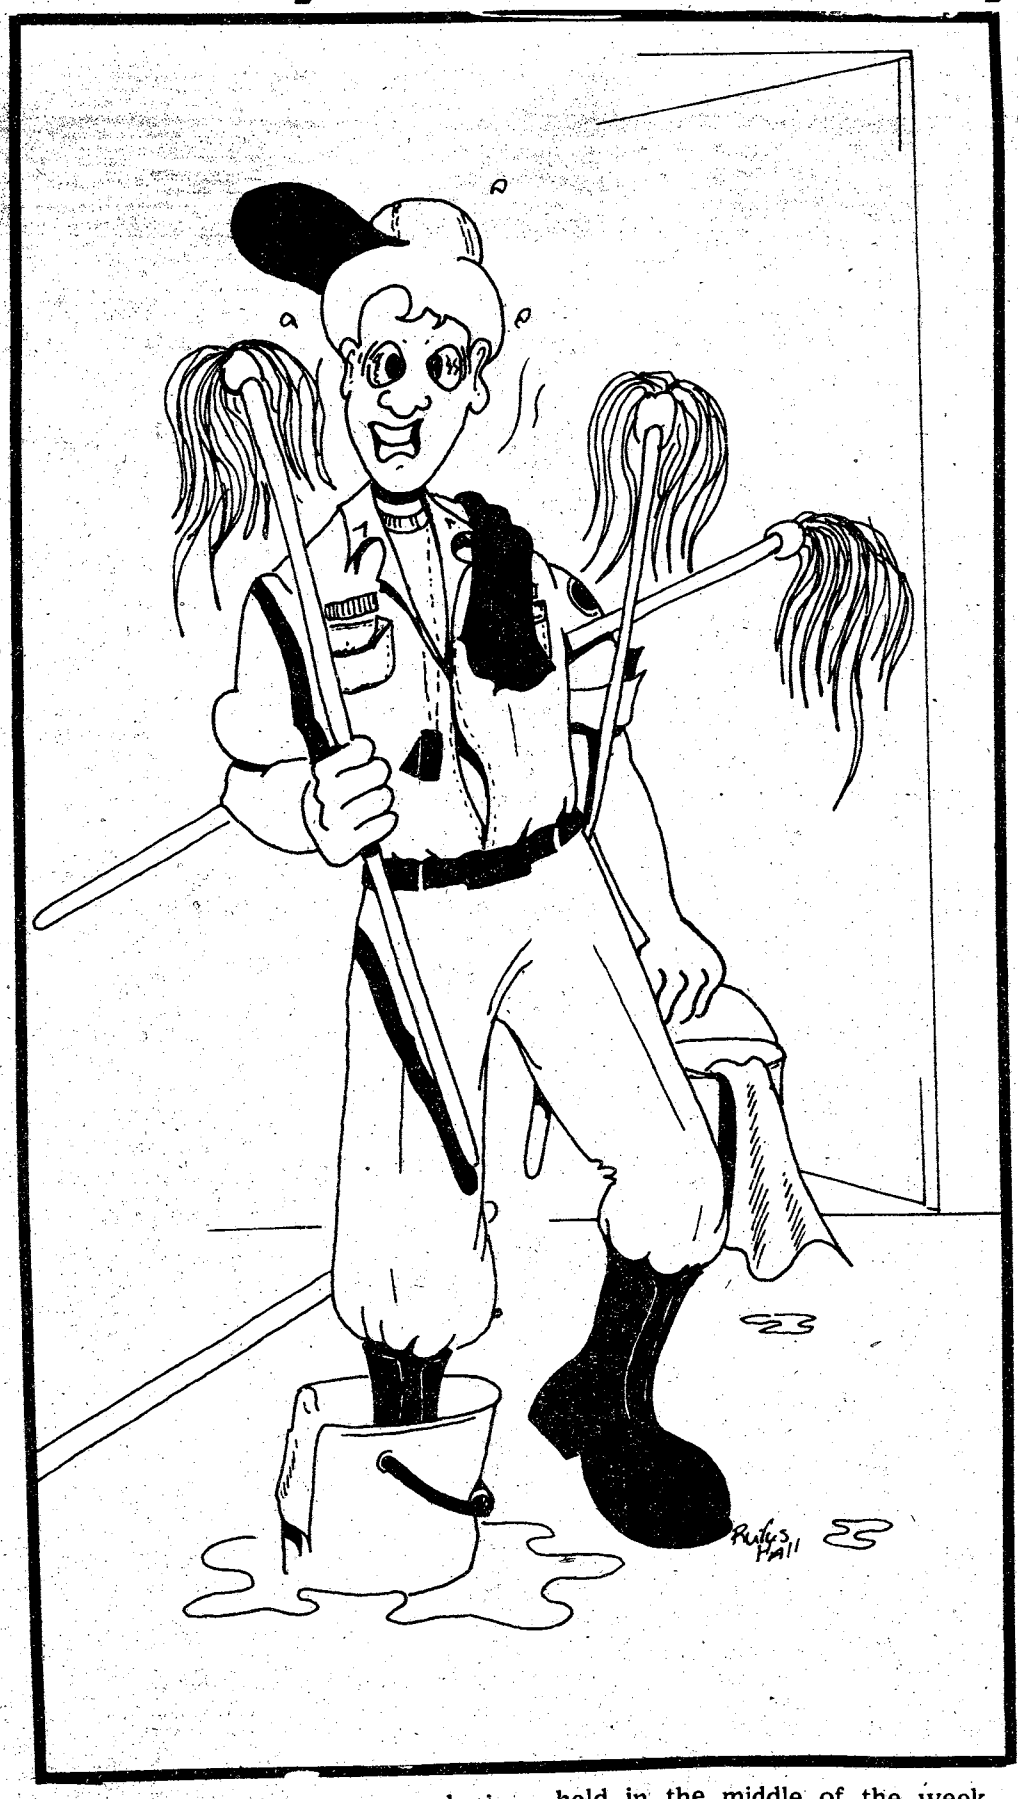
By Bev Lockhart

"Hey Smitty, you going to the party tonight?" the first sergeant asked with that look only top sergeants can give.

"Naw, I didn't get no invite. Besides, I got big things happenin' in the ville," Smitty says flashing a row of pearly whites. "You know how it is, sarge. Maybe next time."

"Could be you should make it this time, Smitty. The CO's counting on your being there — it's kind of a command performance — if you know what I mean."

"I shoulda known better than to plan anything on a Thursday night," Smitty says as the vision of an evening on the town fades. "I thought the old man was gonna cut this G.I. Party stuff out, top. Why'd he change his mind?"



"Could be you know the answer to that one, too, Smitty," the top soldier says, ending the conversation.

Yes, Smitty knows the answer just as other soldiers living in the barracks do, whether or not they're willing to admit it.

Rumor has it that the G.I. party, as it's known today, has been around since WWII. That's when the activity earned its present name. Tagged during the Korean conflict as a 'neccessary evil,' the G.I. party was a time consuming and dreaded affair.

"When I enlisted in the Army 24 years ago," says CSM S. G. Gunn, 36th Engr. Gp, "It was an Army tradition that after chow on Friday evenings all personnel assigned to the unit would remain in the area and GI. Not only did we have to do 'normal' details like cleaning the latrine and our personal areas, we also washed windows, painted and did grounds work."

The old pro continued by saying, "the Friday evening G.I. party would usually be followed by a company or battalion inspection on Saturday morning. If the areas met the commander's approval, we were free to do what we wanted the rest of the weekend. If not, we G.I.ed until it was up to par. This was a regular weekly routine."

Today, G.I. parties are usually held in the middle of the week. Commanders realize that weekends are precious to the soldiers and many feel they get more cooperation if they schedule the "parties" at a time when the soldier doesn't have other plans. They also try to give the soldier some notice of the pending G.I. party or else have a regular set day so the soldier won't make conflicting plans.

The average permanent party enlisted soldier at Ft. Benning, grades E-1 through E-4, spends approximately 20 hours per month in attendance, and the average NCO (usually E-5 through E-7) spends a bit less than that supervising.

Sometimes even married soldiers not living in the barracks are required to participate, but not so often as in the past.

As one sergeant on Kelly Hill put it, "I have to spend four hours supervising a G.I. party at the barracks, then go home around 10 p.m. and supervise my wife as she G.I.s the house."

Of 50 persons questioned concerning the G.I. party, 47 said they're neccessary only because people aren't doing as good a job as they should on their regular details, 2 said they didn't know what a G.I. party was, and one felt the Army should hire civilians to clean up the barracks.

"A G.I. party is the correction of failure," says Capt. Dale Lucas, commanding officer of Hq Co, HQ Comd. "Sometimes G.I. parties are held because there's something to be done that isn't on the daily list of details. Most of the time, though, it's because the soldiers haven't kept up their daily routine the way they should."

But is the G.I. party the only way to get the job done?

An NCO assigned to the 1st AIT Bde offers an answer to that question: "If everyone does their part on their own there should be no need for G.I. parties. But, unfortunately, there are always a few 'shammers' in the crowd and as long as there are 'shammers' there has got to be compensation for their lack of work. So far, the only way to cover for them has been to hold G.I. parties. And it looks like it's going to be that way for a long time to come."

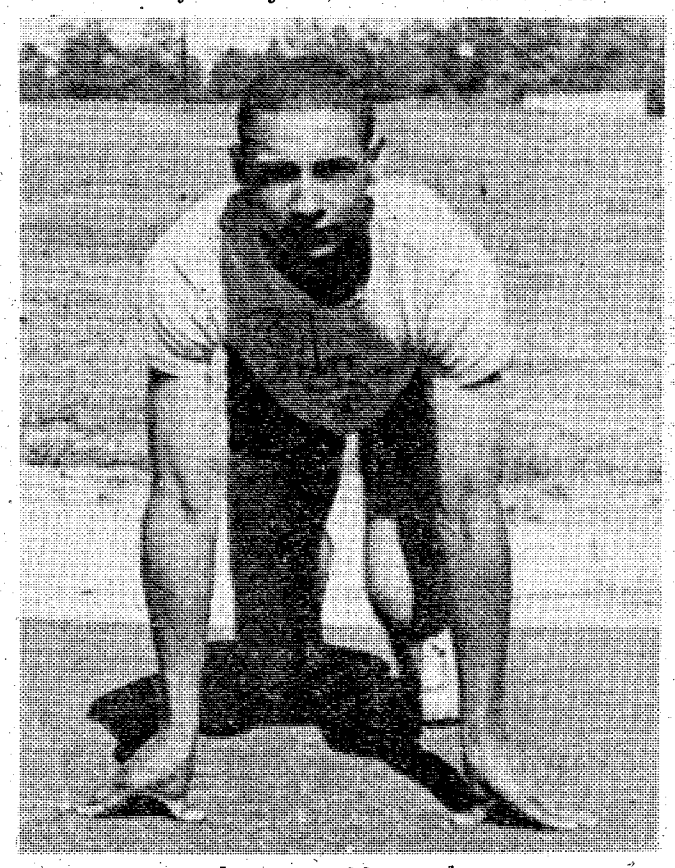
From the track to the field . . .

By Lisa D'Luhy

Running is practically a way of life for most people in the Army who are trying to stay physically fit. This especially holds true for one soldier from "Charlie" Company, 6th Bn., 1st AIT Bde.

Pvt. James Heard, an 18-year-old graduate of Sacramento High School in Sacramento, Calif., is currently attending AIT, for 11C, more commonly known as indirect fire crewman. He came to Benning after basic training at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., and will report for Airborne School after AIT, and then on to Ft. Bragg, N. C. for Special Forces Training.

Aside from being an outstanding soldier, Jim has excelled as a runner and is presently ranked fourth in the nation in the 440 run in high school track.

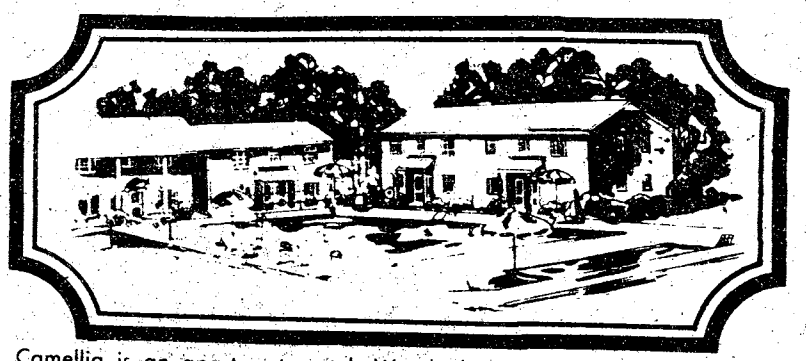


While in his sophomore year at Sacramento High, Heard was named Nation's Best in the 440 after winning state, AAU, and National Titles. With high hopes for an equally successful junior year, Jim was taken out of competition with a pulled muscle.

"That had to be the most discouraging thing that could have happened to me," said Heard. "I really feel that if I had been able to run, I would have ranked higher nationally in my senior year."

Jim didn't let the memory of a pulled muscle hinder him in the slightest during his senior year. He ran three events in track that year; the half-mile, the mile and the 440, the latter of which gave him national recognition for high school athletes in track and field.

Pvt. Heard also excels in Army PT and proved that by scoring 497 on his last Advanced Physical Fitness Test.



"Track was, and still is very important to me but for the time being, the Army is where my main concentration will be placed," concluded Heard. I'm looking forward to my training in Special Forces and I am even considering attending Drill Sergeant School after that. Who Knows?"

A case against the AUSA "Bill of Hope"

By Bill Lopez

An AUSA report calling for "A Bill of Rights for Those Who Serve" states that the bill of rights ". . . is intended as a statement of principle concerning the military compensation system."

A statement of principle isn't going to pay the rent, gas up the car or feed the family.

Although the idea of a bill of rights may ring hope for a better benefit system in the minds of soldiers, the term "bill of rights" is a coined phrase that offers no more than hope.

Unlike the American Bill of Rights which guarantees rights denied American colonists, a GI bill of rights will not be embedded in our Constitution and it does not address a soldier's "Constitutional rights" to "adequate" compensation — if there are any such rights.

A GI bill of rights would only amount to Presidential and Congressional recognition of military service — its hardships and responsibiilities — and mutual military and government acknowledgement that benefits are a sound expense. . . after consideration of other increasing defense costs, taxpayer demands for cost reductions, campaign promises, administration and Congressional changeovers, etcetera.

There are two principles to consider here: first, asking government to state its loyalty to the military and second, the fact that a bill of rights would not be law or serve as a plan to increase or even stabilize benefits.

AUSA support for a bill of rights is certain to make the association popular with "benefit erosion" sympathizers, especially among defeated pro-union supporters. But who's to say that a bill of rights will not suffer the same fate as unionization bids? Although a bill of rights doesn't endorse organizing or bargaining, it could easily insult or offend government and leadership.

The proposed bill of rights does offer one very valuable feature: a plan to inform GIs on the status of benefits and helping them understand the changing system. This is a fair and realistic approach to addressing "benefit erosion" and the future of compensation. An intelligently informed Congress, military and civilian public should be compelled to see that military benefits are justly granted.

We don't need a "bill of hope." What we need is intelligent information on which to base our course of action.

"Bill of Hope" my foot

By Phil Nesbitt

"Bill of hope" my foot. The special report published by the AUSA should be seen for what it is; namely, a valid and successful attempt to decipher all the complex parts — military personnel management, pay and compensation — of a system that confuses 90 per cent of those who deal with it.

The "Bill of Rights" may be one devil of an eye opener for congressmen and political leaders. It successfully equates pay and benefits for civilian workers and military personnel. More notably, it points out the lack of equity between the two groups.

As far as this document is concerned, the old saw, "Rome wasn't built in a day," more than applies. The AUSA is not organized to create laws, to demand or bargain. They do, however, create awareness where it counts, Washington, D.C.

The first step in solving any problem is to define the problem. That is just what AUSA has done, and done well. The most minute aspect of military pay and compensation is explored and conclusions have been drawn.

Unless those individuals who have the power to form this country's laws are aware of the problem, they can't take action to change or solve the situation.

Another aspect of the report is getting the word to the rank and file of the Army. This creates understanding on the part of the soldier, where there was only confusion before. Very few of today's soldiers understand the pay and compensation system. The Army and the civilian media have attempted in their own ways to address the subject; the Army operating from the standpoint that an informed soldier is a better soldier, the media appealing to the civilian population discussing the high pay, over compensation and free and easy life of the men and women in uniform.

The "Bill of Rights" approaches the situation from an entirely different standpoint; through a logical, step-by-step process, it speaks to both groups, explaining the complexities of military personnel management, military compensation and the costs of keeping the national defense a viable alternative to war.

After years of bits and pieces legislation and bits and pieces information, the "Bill of Rights for Those Who Serve" gives the whole picture and offers total "package" solutions — the fog has been lifted. The only way this document could not be effective is if it had not been published and were not read.

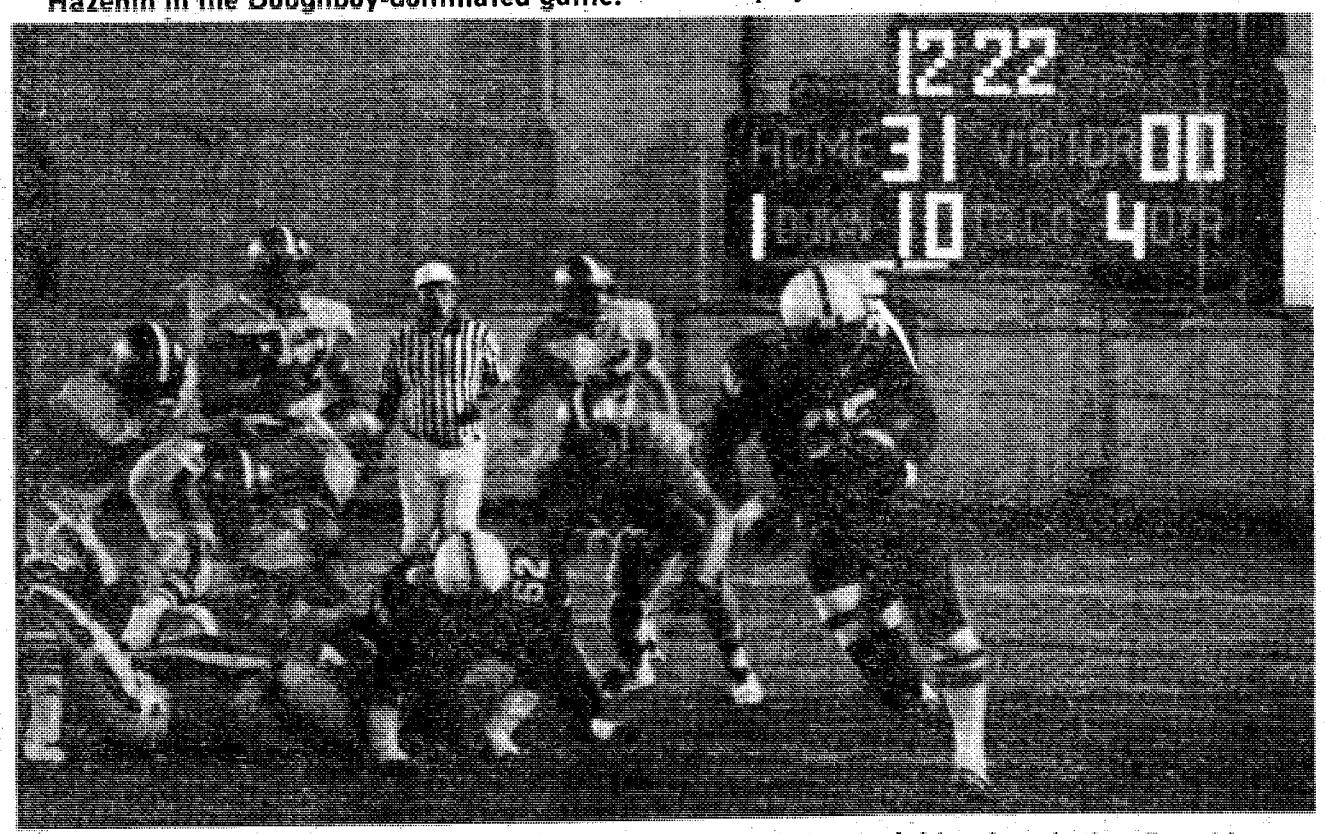
The Ft. Benning Doughboys trampled the St. Leo's Monarchs 38-3 in Saturday night football action at Doughboy Stadium. The Doughboys had the game sewed up from the onset and held the Monarchs scoreless until they finally made it on the board with only 14 seconds remaining in the game.

The Doughboy onslaught began with 2:43 remaining in the first quarter when Julian Williams scored a touchdown from 5 yards out, capping an 81-yard drive. David Ward's kick was dead center and the Doughboys took an early 7-0 lead.

The Doughboys moved in again only seconds later when Rodriguez Williams recovered a fumble on the two yard line. Another Doughboy touchdown was inevitable, and Erogies Grigley plunged over the line in the next play for the score. Ward's faultless kicking for the extra point gave Benning a 14-0 lead at the end of the first period.



With 9:04 left in the second quarter, Ward came through again with a 39-yard field goal, capping a 45-yard drive. The score stood at 17-0 and the Doughboys kept rolling. Four plays later, Grigley broke through the line on the sixteen and bounded down the right sidelines for a touchdown. Ward could do no wrong and the extra point gave the Doughboys a masterful 24-0 half time lead.

The second half was more of the same as the Doughboys crushed every Monarch effort. The Doughboys relentlessly mowed down everyone on the field and the Monarchs seemed barely able to stay in the game. With 1:29 left in the third, Doughboy tackle John Tytla took a pass interception from the 12 yard line and Benning scored again. True to form, Ward's kick was good and the score was set at 31-0.

The final touchdown came with 12:26 left in the game. Julian Williams took a handoff, broke two tackles at the line of scrimmage and sprinted 90 yards — a new stadium record — down the left side in a clear field for the score. Ward's kick was again on-target and the Doughboys controlled the score 38-0. The last minute field goal by the Monarchs capped the score at 38-3.

Miss U.S.A., Kimberly Louise Tomes, was at Ft. Benning for the day and made an appearance at the game during the half.

The Doughboy record now stands at 5-1.

Julian Williams takes off for the 90-yard run that gave the Doughboys another touchdown and set a new stadium record in the fifth straight win of the Doughboy season.

Biddy League

The Biddy League Raiders bowed to a more disciplined and powerful Redskin football team, 14-0 last Saturday on Blue Field. The strong Redskin offense scored after only six plays with Tim Bryson busting his way through on a 45-yard run for the score. Throughout the first and second quarters the Raiders could not mount an effective offense against the well-coordinated Redskin defense led by Damon Dorr, Kevin Smith, Curtis Rucker, Anthony Bryson, Barry Fox, Pat Ariail, Alfred Lewis, David Wilson and Wade Coultas.

The Redskin's offense led by Greg Jones, Cyrus Howard, Kevin Scnniker and Bryson scored again in the second quarter on a 10-yard run by Anthony Bruce with Bryson converting the extra point.

At the half the score stood at 14-0 and the Raiders came looking for TDs unfortunately the Redskins again held them from the goal, but the Raiders defense led by Robert Cammargo and co-captain, Charles Wilson also was able to hold the Redskin offense out of the endzone. Neither team was able to score in the second half. The game ended with the Redskins on top 14-0.

Doughboy League

The Dolphins swamped the Bears in DYA Biddy League action last Saturday, 14-0. Both touchdowns were scored by Greg Lahr on a 2-yard run in the second quarter and a 3-yard run in the fourth quarter. Mark Gilbert scored both PATs. In addition to scoring both TDs Lahr gained 107 yards rushing in leading the Dolphins to victory. Running behind the excellent blocking of James Brittingham, Jimmy Lawrence, Terry Jackson, Jesse Runfola, Kevin Casey, James Simms and Patrick Daily the Dolphin backs Lahr, Gilbert, Richard Helmuth and Derrick Gillespie dominated the game. The defense, again led by Lahr with two interceptions and a fumble recovery along with Jack McCoy, Timothy "Too Tall" Douglas, Jesse Runfola, Wayne Jordan and Patrick Dailey effectively stopped the Bears in the shutout.

After being tied for first place with the Patriots for four weeks and unscored upon the Crusaders fell 12-6 to the Patriots in a hard fought game last Saturday. Aided by blocking guards, Mike Miller and Joey Hashimoto, Rick McGee scored both of the Patriot TDs keeping the Crusader defense on the run throughout the game. The Patriot defense led by co-captain Merritte Wilson's six unassisted tackles, a fumble recovery and blocked pass four behind the line of scrimmage, held the Crusaders to a last minute 15-yard TD by Toney Boston. Other Patriot standouts on defense were Mike Crities with a first quarter interception and 80-yard run back; Marin Wright and Matt Cole with fumble recoverys and fine defense pursuit by Donald Cruce, John Hannon, Robert Overshown, Kevin Lane and Mike Brand. Patriot Chris Baird's quarterback keeper in the final minutes effectively prevented the Crusaders from recovering the ball and attempting to tie the game.

In a tough defensive struggle, the Sharks defeated the Green Hornets 8-0. Both teams could not mount effective offenses throughout the game. The game's only score was set up by the Shark's Gary Hicks recovery of a bad snap on a Green Hornet punt. Shelby Shipman carried the ball in from the 8-yard line for the Sharks. Outstanding defense was played by Eric Johnson, Greg Poole and Hick for the Sharks. James Lyons led the Green Hornet's defense with several unassisted tackles and succeeded in stopping many plays behind the line of scrimmage throughout the game.

Eglin firefighters "continue to train, remain ready ..."

By Joe Hilton

"I didn't say anything, nor did Billy. I looked up at his eyes. They are almost fully closed, but I can see they are wet and tearing, the corneas are red, I wish my wife, my mother, everyone who has ever asked me why I do what I do, could see the humanity, the sympathy, the sadness in these eyes, because in them is the reason I continue to be a firefighter". . . Dennis Smith, Report from Engine Co. 82.

The quote by Dennis Smith is inscribed on the wall of the 1st Ranger Company, Fire Station at Elgin Air Force Base, Fla near Ft. Walton Beach. The members of the 520th and 597th Firefighting Det, 36th Engr Gp converted the old barracks, into a fire station several years ago. Their primary mission has been to support the 1st Ranger Co at Camp James E. Rudder.

Although there haven't been any major incidents this year, the firefighters train consistently and stand alert to handle every type fire situation from an airplane crash to a domestic fire.

Occassionally, emergencies do occur. Fires in family housing, brush fires or Ranger training accidents account for most of their incidents.

Despite the fire prevention programs set up by the detachment, the firefighters encounter a lot of the same type of fires annually. Fires in family housing are perhaps the most frequent emergencies. These fires not only account for over half the detachment emergencies, but is the cause of over half the deaths in the U.S. every year.

The relatively unknown 15-man firefighting team is proud of their achievements. "We will probably never be famous but we will continue to train hard and always remain ready for action," noted Sgt William Lewis, fire chief of 520th.

Sp4 Thomas Watts may appear to show signs of smoke inhalation, however, he is only being a good demonstrator for Sp4 David Craig and Sgt Jerry Cash in an emergency oxygen exercise.

Soccer's hard on shins

Shin guards for soccer players should be mandatory, advocates Dr. Howard R. Sloan of the National Institutes of Health, Bethesda, Maryland. Injuries to the shin account for more than 50 per cent of the soccer injuries Dr. Sloan has seen.

From a study of soccer injuries among amateur players in Montgomery County, Maryland, Dr. Sloan concluded that rule changes, better playing fields and better qualified officials would help reduce soccer injuries in the United States.

43rd Engrs test their combat skills in FTX

PFC Timothy Lorello scrubs out a pan during his voluntary duty of field KP.

By Pat Redmond and Joe Hilton

Moving to the field last week in a tactical road the units of the 43rd Engr Bn, 36th Engr Gp began their annual Field Training Exercise (FTX).

The exercise was the culmination of a year's worth training for the hard-working combat engineers. Each of the 43rd's companies conducted training in the demolition of obstacles and road craters; patrolling techniques; culvert construction; NBC defense and minefield implacement and removal.

With co-ordinating support from the 586th Engr Co, companies from the 43rd manually erected light tactical rafts and fixed (dry span) bridge units with sections weighing up to 250 pounds.

Working against time and cooler temperatures, D Company's earthmoving platoon assembled a light tactical raft (4 pontoon/3 bay) in a record breaking time of 21.15 minutes, crushing the existing Ft. Benning record of 22 minutes held by the 586th.

According to platoon sergeant, SFC Thomas Wooley, the earthmoving platoon worked well together on their practice assembly of the light tactical raft — so on the final construction the men gave it everything they had to try and break the post record.

The remarkable image of the 586th Engr Co remains evident in their unchallenged record for assembling float bridges. "There is no doubt in my mind that the 586th will set a new post record for assembling the light tactical raft in our upcoming field training exercise," boasted SFC Cornell Strickland, operations NCO from the 586th.

Members of the first platoon, Co D. huffed and puffed their way to a new record in the assembly of the M4T6 fixed bridge (dry span) of 21 minutes and 15 seconds.

Dear Ann Landers:

In answer to your column which appeared in the Enquirer on October 14, let me offer a couple of thoughts on the Federal Communications Commission.

First, the FCC is both understaffed and overworked. They just don't have the money to hire the number of people necessary to police the CB frequencies properly. The problem is that Congress hasn't provided adequate funds to the FCC. This is compounded by the fact that the FCC has not been allowed to collect license fees since January 1977. The solution is for concerned citizens to write to their representatives and senators and urge them to support the FCC with more money.

Second, it has long since been established that in the majority of cases of television interference, the fault lies with the TV set, not the CB transmitter. The interference can be eliminated by installing an inexpensive filter between the antenna wire and the TX set. Any reputable CB or TV dealer should have the filters.

As for what you can do when you hear a CBer operating illegally, the answer is to report the violation to the nearest FCC Field Office. Include in the report all information you can get (a tape recording of the illegal transmission is helpful). The FCC may not be able to do anything immediately, but they will accumulate information until they have enough to send an investigating team out.

And when Uncle Charlie sends a team out Ann, as the CBers of the Columbus-Ft. Benning-Phenix City area can testify, they get results.

LtGen. Fulton to address IOAC

LtGen. (Ret) William B. Fulton, Director of Public Affairs, National AUSA (Association of the United States Army), will address the combined IOAC (Infantry Officer Advanced Course) classes on October 26 from 10:15 a.m. until noon in Marshall Auditorium.

The subject of his speech will be "Marketing an Adequate National Defense."

Fulton, who joined the AUSA staff May 1, retired from the Army April 1 after 34 years of active service.

As a troop commander, staff officer, administrator and educator, Fulton places a wealth of talent at the disposal of the association. One of his most significant assignments, which had the greatest impact on the Army, was in 1974-75 when he commanded the Army Recruiting Command, with responsibility for obtaining a sufficient number of quality soldiers to insure a volunteer Army.

Military and civilian personnel are cordially invited to attend.

"Uncle Sam needs me."

Roger D. Nadeau

Sergeant Roger Nadeau is a wheeled vehicle mechanic. He's in charge of a motor pool section. "I try to take care of my people. Once or twice a month we get together and hash out problems. Last month, one of the guys had his doubts about reenlistment. I told him why I was for it. The promotion set up is good. The travel is terrific. So this guy starts thinking about all this. I think he'll stay. Qualified people are needed. That's how the Army gets things done."

Have a talk with your career counselor today. You may be surprised to find out just how much Uncle Sam needs you.

Keep a good soldier in the Army. Reenlist.

34th Med to support Joint Readiness Exercise

By Bill Walton

The 34th Med Bn will be providing support for the Joint Readiness Exercise "BOLD EAGLE" to be held today through November 3 at Eglin AFB, Fla.

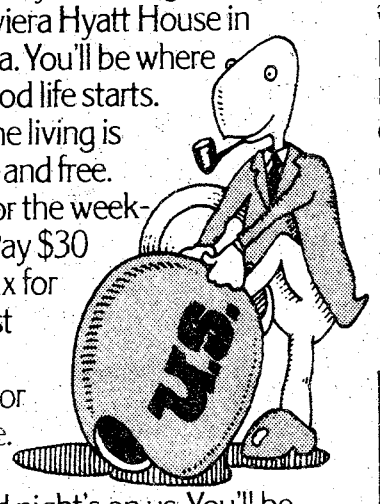
The JRX will pit the airborne troopers of the 82nd Abrn Div against the mechanized soldiers of the 5th Inf Div and will include units from the Air Force and Navy as well as Army.

The five units of the medical battalion that will support the 10,000 man exercise are the 121st Avn Co, 478th Trans Co, 498th Med Co, the 676th Med Det and the 187th Inf Plt (Pfdr).

The 121st will be utilizing their UH-1 aircraft to support COSCOM and the Exercise Director HQ. They have already been involved in BOLD EAGLE since mid-September when two aircraft went to Florida to assist the DoD environmentalists in marking the nesting trees of the Red-Cockaded Woodpecker, an endangered species that makes its nest in mature pine trees. Approximately 1000 trees were marked with a painted band six feet above the ground and the areas were posted on all exercise maps.

The 478th Trans Co. will undergo its annual ARTEP and during the JRX provide heavy lift support to both maneuver forces with its Ch-57 also "Skycranes."

The 498th Med Co will have four helicopter ambulances at Eglin to give MEDIVAC coverage to the whole maneuver area.



The 676th Med Det will operate a dispensary and provide medical support for the Joint Task Force Headquarters.

The main mission of the 187th Inf Plt (Pfdr) during the JRX will be two-fold. It will perform the pathfinder mission for the 478th Trans Co and in addition will operate the MEDIVAC communications net for the 498th Med Co.

Hypothermia:

It'll kill ya

with recognizing the symptoms. Shivering is the first sign. It is the body's attempt to generate heat by expanding and contracting the muscles. The next symptom is slow, slurred speech, followed by loss of memory and meaningless babbling instead of conversation. At this stage, because the brain is not functioning, the person may get the feeling everything is great.

In the more advanced stages the hands become immobile, the feet become numb, drowsiness sets in — exhaustion and death follow.

Hypothermia treatment must get the body temperature back to normal as soon as possible. If the victim is conscious, remove wet clothing, pat the skin dry, put the victim in a sleeping bag and give him a warm drink. Never offer alcohol. Alcoholic beverages, while they make the victim feel warmer, actually cause more heat loss.

If the victim is unconscious or the body temperature is dropping rapidly, external heat is necessary for the person to survive. Survival experts advise that body heat is the most effective source to return the victims body temperature to normal. They recommend the victim be stripped and dried — and then placed between two naked persons in a sleeping bag.

Hypothermia can be avoided by following rules for winter survival: Be in shape for the sport, always participate in a group or with a companion, be properly clothed, carry a personal survival kit — and know hypothermia danger signals and the corrective measures.

Girl Watcher

By Mario M. Russo

The Army plans to add about 6,700 women to its active duty rolls in the fiscal year that started October 1. This would bring the total female strength to 57,889 in an Active Army with a total strength of 777,700 by next September.

The objective the Army is seeking to achieve over the next five years, as part of the fully structed 24-division force, is more than 155,000 women soldiers — Nearly double the present strength, officials said.

Women are now taking basic training alongside men in the 1st Signal Training Bde at Ft. Gordon, Ga. The integrated training is part of the Army's one-unit-station training concept.

The women are assigned to the same units, billets and will have the same training (except for the modified PT test) as the men, according to the brigade commander.

Later this month TRADOC will conduct a limited test of OSUT for women recruits going into the Military Police Corps.

Fifty female soldiers and 150 male soldiers will participate in the program.

"Women soldiers should not be excused from duties solely because of their gender," according to a DA message to commanders last month.

Citing difficulties associated with the employment of women soldiers because of their non-combat status, the message stated that women are not to be assigned to Cat I units or given "close combat support" MOSs.

The intent of the policy is to prohibit the assignment of women in combat units as combatants. Commanders are authorized to employ women to accomplish unit missions, so long as the assignment policy is not violated.

DRIVE THE 1978 RABBIT.

It's just a wonderful car.

We had an advantage: we started with a wonderful car and made it even better.

Over a million people all over the world have been impressed enough to buy them.

What's so impressive?

Easy. If you trade up to a Rabbit from a Mercedes-Benz 280E, believe it or not you'll get better acceleration.†

If you trade up to a Rabbit from a Cadillac Seville, you'll get more trunk space. And there are 32 cars you can trade up to a Rabbit for more people space.*

The '78 Rabbits look better than ever, too. Handsome metallic colors. Touches of chrome here and there to make them even snappier.

The biggest news of all for '78 can't be seen. And barely heard. We've refined the Rabbit's fuel-injected engine to make it quieter and more efficient.

Once we were famous for making a car that looked ridiculous.

Now we make one that makes the others look ridiculous.

Crime prevention efforts stepped up

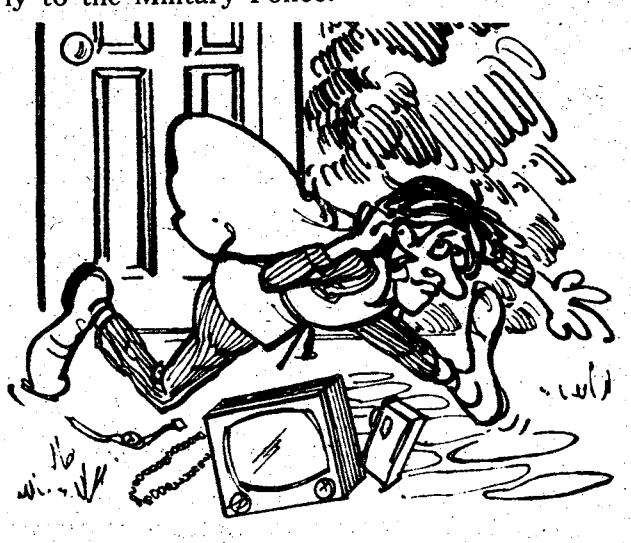
By Debra Hilgeman

Crime prevention needs your help!

Ft. Benning has seen a recent increase in larceny over the past two months and despite intensified efforts by Military Police to contain the problem, your efforts are needed.

Due to the recent increase in larceny on post, the Military Police are conducting nightly checks of housing areas, parking lots and other randomly selected areas where crimes are occurring.

"The main reason for the increase is the availability of unsecured personal property," explains Maj. Bobby Martin, Chief, Military Police Investigation Section. "People just aren't being cautious. Our men have been finding unsecured bicycles, tricycles, automobiles, motorcycles, even an electric fan left sitting in someone's front yard."



If this description fits you, don't be surprised if you answer your doorbell and find a Military Policeman on your stoop. "Our men are going out in both uniforms and plainclothes and when they spot unsecured property, the procedure is to inform the owner. As we locate unsecured articles, we record them and send a letter to the commander of that area. We're taking the offensive in an effort to eliminate the availability of things to steal."

"A certain amount of stealing will occur no matter what we do. The best crime deterrent is cooperation and assistance by the people we're trying to protect," stressed Martin.

Remember, all the help in the world isn't going to make the Crime Prevention Program work unless you give your support.

Here are some common sense tips to insure that you don't become the victim of a thief:

- Secure valuable property and funds prior to leaving the billets (or home) or retiring for the night.
- Cash checks and money orders promptly.
- Secure money above that required in the bank or in the company safe.
- Keep wall locker (or anything that has a lock) locked when not in use.
- Record the serial numbers of all valuables.
- Remove the ignition key and lock the car when it's not in use.
- Do not display large sums of money.
- Don't leave valuable property in cars if the property is in plain view.
- Report the occurrence of crime promptly to the Military Police.

TO ALL FEDERAL EMPLOYEES:

ONE HEALTH CARE PLAN LOOKS AS GOOD AS THE NEXT. UNTIL YOU GET SICK.

When people buy a health care plan, they often base their decision only on cost. And that's too bad.

How much the plan covers is what's really crucial. Because if you aren't covered adequately, you might find out later. The hard way.

That's why you should know how much help you can expect from your health coverage. And just how much it's going to take care of if you get sick and end up in the hospital.

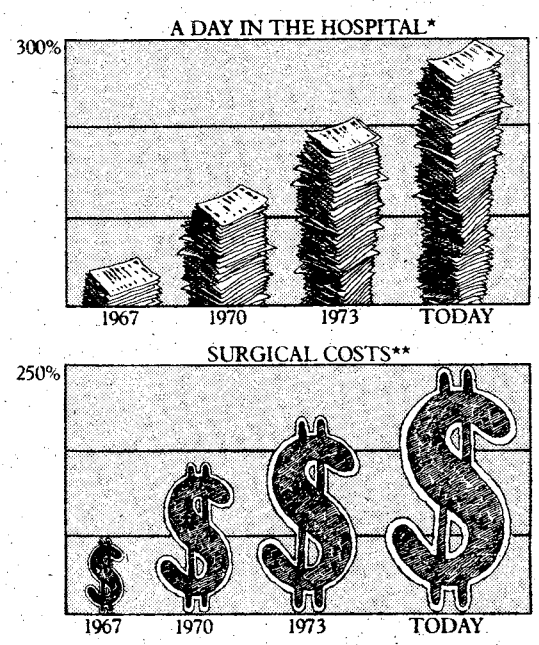
Or if someone in the family needs X-rays. Or emergency room treatment. Or ongoing outpatient treatment.

BLUE CROSS AND BLUE SHIELD COVERAGE IS BETTER.

In almost every case, when you buy one plan because it's cheaper than another, you'll get what you pay for. Less.

But enroll in the Blue Cross and Blue Shield high option program and you get better coverage. Period.

True, our program costs more. But when you consider how high the cost of health care has gotten, it's worth every dollar.



LET THE FIGURES SPEAK FOR THEMSELVES.

Treatment for almost anything nowadays simply costs more than it used to.

So if you have to spend time in the hospital, chances are you could have to spend a lot of money. Unless you have Blue Cross and Blue Shield coverage.

These charts tell the story. The first shows the jump in cost for a day in the hospital. If you were hospitalized tomorrow, the bill could be 300% higher than it would have been ten years ago for the same treatment.

Surgery costs are higher, too. The second chart shows the increased costs for common surgical procedures and required medical services—up as much as 250% in just ten years.

Blue Cross and Blue Shield Plans all across the country are working harder than ever to develop programs to try to keep these costs down.

But buying cheaper health care coverage really doesn't help. With rising health care costs a fact of life, you need the comprehensive coverage of our program more than ever.

So even if you pay more for Blue Cross and Blue Shield coverage, it's worth it. Because what you really can't afford is coverage that costs you less in the first place, but ends up costing you more later.

When it counts.

Army goals spelled out

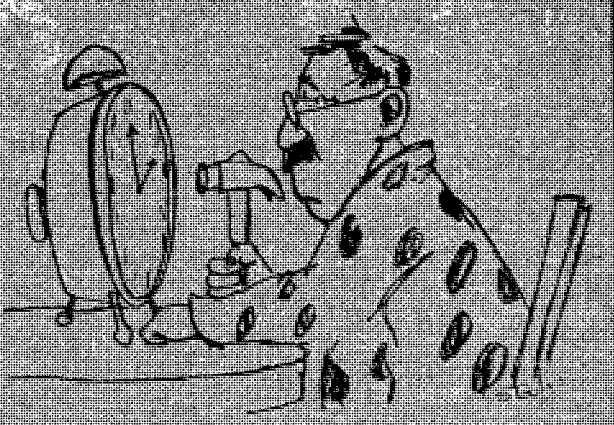
The Army's leadership and management goals and its support of national defense have been spelled out by Secretary of the Army Clifford L. Alexander Jr. and Army Chief of Staff Gen. Bernard W. Rogers.

In a 13-page statement, the Army's top civilian and military leaders reaffirmed the Army's commitment to national defense through the combined efforts of the Active Army, the Army National Guard, Army Reserve and civilian employes.

The statement sets forth the Army's broad aims dealing with readiness, human goals, materiel, strategic deployment, future development and management. It is the intention of the Army to narrow the gap between peacetime training and wartime realities, according to the leaders.

'COME AS YOU ARE' READINESS

The Army's leadership commits the Force to full readiness, stating that "Units will be ready, equipment on hand and operable, soldiers fit and trained, leaders and led confident of their abilities. Our units will be ready to 'come as they are' should war begin with little warning."



The Readiness Goal stresses the importance of maintaining cooperation with European and Asian allies through deterrence of aggression by staying ready to fight wars of varying intensity.

"The effectiveness of the Army can be measured by its ability to mobilize quickly and deploy tailored forces to any area with the necessary support," according to the policy statement.

Training goals are to be achieved by units striving for high standards, improved training techniques and cost-conscious operations, the policy directs.

Fraternization explored

By Marie M. Russo

It is Army tradition that an officer does not associate with enlisted service members in ordinary social affairs, nor does he gamble, borrow money, or drink alcoholic beverages with them.

The reason for this, according to the Officer's Guide, is that the relationship between a commander and his men must be developed to stand the strains of campaign and combat, as well as the less demanding conditions at Army posts during peacetime.

When an officer fraternizes with enlisted service members, his impartiality can be questioned and then eventually weakened, which could lead to serious dicipline problems.

An officer who has social companions, obvious favorites, among his enlisted subordinates, and who has to sponsor one or more of them for promotion or a special assignment destroys the essential standard of mutual trust and respect within the unit, according to the Officer's Guide.

This can raise the question — what if the officer and enlisted soldier are not in the same unit? Well, from many of the servicemembers who were asked, ranking from privates to colonels the majority of them feel that if the relationship isn't publicized, there aren't any major problems that can arise.

"If the two people don't go announcing to everyone what they're doing, who's really going to care?" asked a Specialist 4.

A captain who was commissioned through the ROTC program says, "I wouldn't encourage the start of an officer-enlisted relationship, but if one is already there and the two people aren't in the same unit. I don't think that any problems would come about.

Total Army goals spelled out

FIND AND KEEP GOOD PEOPLE

The "People" Goal is stated as the intent to "Provide the Total Army with highly effective and morally responsible military and civilian personnel capable of performing reliably in war; provide quality of life support for our soldiers and their families and require from them reciprocal dedication to service."

The Army will be dedicated to recruiting and retaining good people, a task that is the responsibility of the "Total Army Team." Providing equal opportunity, respect for human rights, quality of life awareness, good leadership and recognition of people is the key to the Army's strength and effectiveness, the policy states.

MATERIEL AND FUTURE DEVELOPMENT GOALS

Emphasizing the need to eliminate shortages in the supply system and encourage proper maintenance, the document expresses a commitment to standardized equipment for allies, continued development of equipment and improved materiel.

STRATEGIC DEPLOYMENT

Strategically, Army Goals call for establishing a program "to review and improve existing deployment plans. Deploying forces will be tailored and make the best use of lift provided by the other services. Unit plans and operating procedures will be reviewed and rehearsed so that we can meet or better our minimum deployment times."

FOCUSING ON THE FUTURE AND MANAGEMENT

Citing a requirement for improved fighting techniques in the first 60 days of a war, the document promises development and acquisition of new weapons and equipment needed by 1985.

Future efforts will focus on lightweight and practical equipment and full chemical and biological defense, with improved cooperation between commanders and the research and development community, according to the Army chiefs' policies.

More efficient use of manpower, improved training of reserve componenents and continuing program evaluation are some of the key management goals called for in the policy statement.

The two senior Army leaders said the goals they have established for the Army are "the objectives towards which the Army strives and the principles upon which the Army rests."

NEWS in BRIEF

DoD takes stand on smoking

No smoking signs are cropping up at installations around the world as a result of a recent DoD policy prohibiting smoking in some areas and permitting it in others.

The policy prohibits smoking in auditoriums, elevators, shuttle vehicles, conference rooms, classrooms and most parts of medical facilities in all DoD buildings.

Eating areas are now required to include both smoking and nonsmoking areas and work areas are restricted for smoking only when adequate space and ventilation exist, according to the policy. Smoking is also restricted to staff lounges, private offices and specially designated areas of medical facilities.

Smoking will continue to be allowed in corridors, lobbies and restrooms, the policy states, since people spend little time in these areas.

Citing the health hazards of smoking, the policy states: "The Surgeon General of the United States has determined that smoking of tabacco can constitute a hazard to health. DoD recognizes the right of individuals working or visiting in DoD-occupied buildings to an environment reasonably free of contaminants. DoD also recognizes the right of the individuals to smoke in such buildings, provided such action does not endanger life or property, cause discomfort, or unreasonable annoyance to nonsmokers or infringe upon their rights."

In addition to the health restrictions of smoking, fire, explosive and other safety considerations still apply, the policy noted.

Errors in forms cause delays

Anyone who has ever had to use CHAMPUS knows that it sometimes takes a while to get your money. However, it seems that users of CHAMPUS are causing some delays because they aren't filling out the forms correctly.

Under the new CHAMPUS regs, any claim from that doesn't have the required information must be returned for more information, therby delaying its processing. The two problems that show up the most are failure to sign the form in its 13 and failure to put the servicemember's (or retiree's) social security number in item 8b.

Also, a number of forms are being sent back because the original submissions fail to include documents needed to process the claims. Most of the times those documents are non-availability statements or an itemized bill when submitting a claim for care from a non-participating provider.

New CHAMPUS reg available

Copies of the new regulation governing the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services (CHAMPUS) are now being distributed to CHAMPUS advisors. Copies are available to the public for $4.25 each. Copies many be obtained by writing the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington D. C. 20402. Ask for CHAMPUS, Stock number 008001 00101-9. Checks are to be made out to the Superintendent of Documents.

You've come a long way...

Of the more than 8,100,000 soldiers in the U.S. Army of 1945 approximately 156,000 were women.

They served limited functions compared to the jobs performed by Army women today.

Women soldiers now perform in 348 (92 percent) of the 377 military occupation specialities. Army policy currently precludes their assignment to the remaining eight percent, which are combat or close combat support skills.

Today's Army of roughly 775,000 includes almost 49,000 women. Department of Defense planners project the strength of Army women to have reached 80,000 by the end of FY 1983.

Fraternization issue explored

That is, except for offending a few people."

"I can understand the problems that could possibly arise if both parties are in the same unit, but the Army shouldn't interfere with peoples' personal lives. After all, the only difference between the two people is a uniform that comes off at night," says one private.

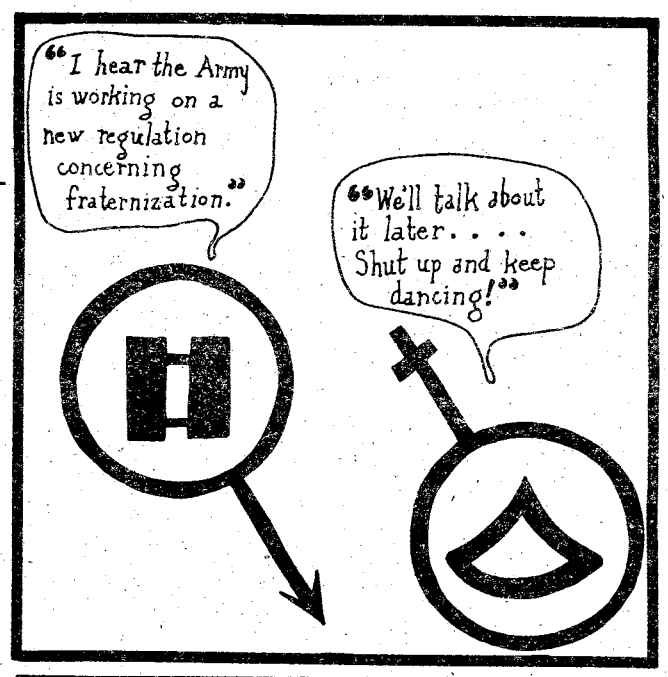
A highly placed post official explains that, "If an officer was to take an enlisted soldier to the Officers' Club, with both of them in uniform, a lot of people would be upset. However, if they used some discretion and went in civilian clothes their ranks wouldn't be known, and no one would have to be offended."

Benning's Chief of Military Justice, Capt. Paul Anderson, commented that even though fraternization is governed by laws of tradition, it is still an offense punishable under the Uniform Code of Military Justice.

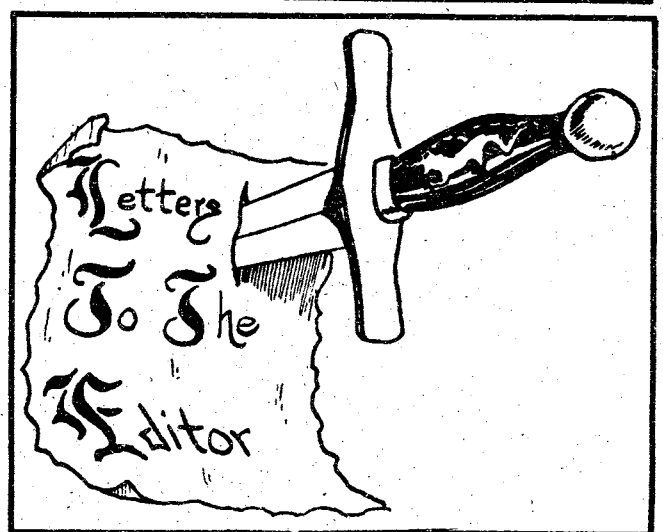
Anderson pointed out that very few cases are actually brought to courts-martial today because, "fraternization just doesn't seem to offend that many people anymore."

"As a matter of fact," he continued, "The last time an officer was dismissed from the service for fraternizing with an enlisted soldier was in the 1940's."

This doesn't mean that, today, an officer wouldn't be punished or dismissed for dating an enlisted soldier. Article 133 of the UCMJ states, "Any commissioned officer, cadet, or midshipman who is convicted of conduct unbecoming to an officer and gentleman shall be punished as a courts-martial may direct."



What does "conduct unbecoming to an officer . . ." mean? The only real answer to this question, though very vague, is found in the Manual for Courts-martial. Conduct in violation of Article 133 is, "action or behavior in an official capacity which, in dishonoring or disgracing the individual as an officer, seriously compromises his character as a gentleman, or action or behavior in an unofficial or private capacity which, in dishonoring or disgracing the individual personally, seriously compromises his standing as an officer."



If it sounds like the only person who is going to hang, when an officer and enlisted service member develop a social relationship, is the officer, that's right. There no regulation or article of the UCMJ that tells an enlisted soldier not to see a commissioned or warrant officer socially.

It should be noted that the Manual for Courts-Martial mentions that not everyone is or can be expected to meet ideal moral standards, but there is a limit of tolerance below which the individual standards of an officer cannot fall without seriously compromising his official standing.

With this in mind and taking into consideration that it's been so long since any one has been dismissed from the service for fraternizing, many persons feel the time has come to explain precisely what fraternization is and who it affects.

As a captain put it, "Either cast away the traditional pressures or define it to the letter as a violation in written regulations."

I am writing in regard to the Department of the Army current study on the possibility of a regulation addressing the subject of fraternization between officers and enlisted soldiers.

Who is the Army to determine whose heart cupid's arrow strikes? Do you think that cupid can tell the difference between officers and enlisted personnel? The Army has regulations governing almost every factor in a soldier's life, but does it have the right to regulate a soldier's emotions also?

Just because my boyfriend wears a bar on his collar while he's on duty doesn't mean that he can't look at me as a person and not feel any emotions. The fact that I wear "mosquito wings" on my collar doesn't stop us from seeing each other, but we do have to be discreet. And no matter how discreet we are, there will always be a few people who know, either by a slip of the tongue or because they see us together when we're off duty.

If we ever decide to marry, we would have to wait until at least one of us is out of the Army or else risk his being prosecuted under Article 133 of the UCMJ — conduct unbecoming to an officer.

The old social pressures and unwritten rules that have traditionally discouraged fraternization among officers and enlisted soldiers, especially between the sexes, are no longer valid.

Where does the Department of the Army get off telling its soldiers who to love? Granted, when I took the oath for military service, I agreed to comply with the Army's regulations. But to my knowledge there is no regulation governing fraternization and further more, there shouldn't be.

Adjust Gross Income '76 tops a trillion dollars

Total adjusted gross income (AGI) reported on 82 million 1976 individual income tax returns processed during the first six months of 1977 topped one trillion dollars for the first time, according to Internal Revenue Service officials.

Salaries and wages, representing about 84 per cent of the total figure, amounted to $840 billion. Gross dividends and interest totaled nearly $25 billion and $45 billion respectively, while the income tax liability on these returns amounted to $132 billion.

Returns with AGI of $10,000 or more numbered 39 million, almost 48 per cent of the total number of return Forms 1040 and 1040A processed. These returns also accounted for 92 per cent of the total income tax liability reported on returns processed during this six-month period, according to the IRS.

Last year, the number of returns processed through June 30, and the amounts of AGI and individual income tax reported on 1975 returns, represented over 96 per cent of the totals for the entire year.

The regular IRS preliminary statistics report for 1976 individual returns filed during 1977 will be available early next year. (ARNEWS)

Glad you asked . . .

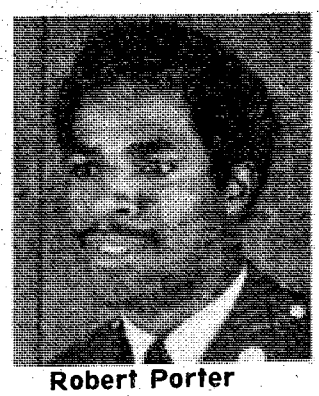
Does the Army need a fraternization reg?

By Sue Davis

PFC Gerald M. Fleming
HQ Co, HQs Cmd
No, because I think a person should be able to choose his own friends whether they be officer or enlisted.

Gerald Fleming

Franklyn Santiago



Capt. Franklyn M. Santiago
HQ Co, HQs Cmd
No, I believe that there is a time and place for everything. As far as I see it, people of equal rank should fraternize with each other. This does not mean one should segregate or polarize; for example, at a unit party. But as far as enlisted members using the Officers' Club or officers using the EM Club or the NCO Club, I don't think it to be in the best interest of our Army.

Robert Leosh

SFC Robert J. Leosh
HQ Co, 1st AIT Bde
As long as the Army's structure remains as it is, I believe policies are needed. The Army isn't any different than any large civilian corporation and even though they may not have policies, the people in leadership positions refrain from fraternizing with co-workers.

Wanda Arceneaux

1stLt. Wanda A. Arceneaux
10th Co, 1st Bn, TSB
Ideally, the Army should not have to have a written policy on this matter. It should be up to the discretion of service members. As long as personal relationships do not interfere with job performance and mission accomplishment, such a policy should not be necessary. However, realistically, some service members do not exercise good discretion in conducting their private relationships, thereby making a written policy necessary.

What people in the Army do on their own time is their business. People should socialize with whomever they feel comfortable with.

Lisa Georges

Sp4 Lisa Georges
HQ Co, HQs Cmd
Fraternization will continue to occur whether or not an Army policy is instated. The fact that individuals be officer or enlisted should not matter. We all put the uniform on daily; we are all soldiers. Why should we be obligated to direct our human feelings only towards members within our ranks?

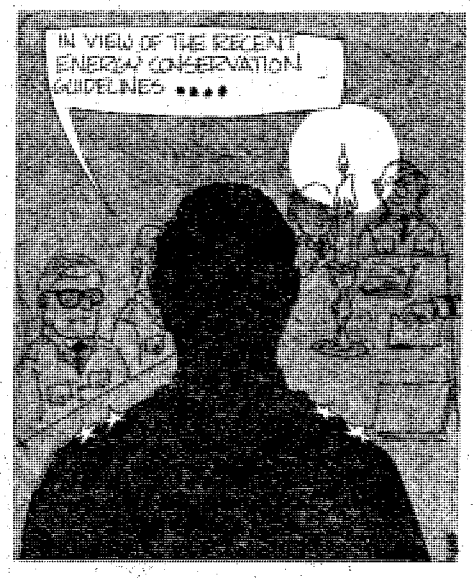
Age of Petroleum ending

The Age of Petroleum, as it has been called, began along Oil Creek, Pa., on Aug. 27, 1859, when Colonel Edwin L. Drake proved that oil could be found in quantity by drilling into the earth.

During the early 1860s, U.S. oil production was about 2,000 barrels; there was no foreign oil. Near the end of that decade, U.S. production had increased to 509,000 barrels annually; production for the rest of the world was 5,000 barrels.

By 1870, U.S. oil production jumped to 5,261,000 barrels and production outside of the country totaled 538,000 barrels. While this seems impressive, by 1970 the United States was using three times as much oil in a single day as it produced in an entire year a century earlier.

At the end of World War I, Lord Curzon of the British War Cabinet said, "The Allies floated to victory on a wave of oil." In addition, the burden of meeting Allied military requirements for oil during World War II fell largely upon the United States. Between December 1941 and August 1945, nearly 7 billion barrels of oil were produced to meet the U.S. and Allied requirements, almost 6 billion barrels of which came from the United States.



Today, with enormous increases in use, oil has become more expensive, and there is much less of it. Yet, oil is still vitally important to America's domestic and national security needs.

According to present energy estimates, the United States, with its five per cent annual increase in energy consumption, will need about four times as much energy in the year 2,000 as it does today. Couple this with the forecast of some experts that the world's oil will be exhausted by that date, and the picture is a rather dim one.

This Nation has been the beneficiary of the Age of Petroleum for many decades, but now our dependency on oil and petrol-chemical products is causing overwhelming concern. Tanker spills, shortages, high prices are common topics of conversation.

Drastic problems often require drastic solutions. As President Jimmy Carter has pointed out, we must face up to this situation in the same way that we have confronted past national emergencies.

If this country takes immediate and necessary measures for conserving energy and developing alternate energy sources— measures now under way in the military, public, and private sectors, the energy picture for the United States can be bright, despite the eclipse of the Age of Petroleum. (AFPS)

"It's OK kid, everybody does it"

By Chaplain John Cottingham

When Johnny was six years old, he was with his father when they were stopped for speeding. His father handed the officer a twenty dollar bill with his driver's license. "It's O.K., Son," his father said as they drove off, "Everybody does it."

When he was eight, he was permitted at a family council, presided over by Uncle George, on the surest means to shave points off the income tax return. "It's O.K., Kid," his uncle said, "Everybody does it."

When he was nine, his mother took him to his first theater production. The box office man couldn't find any seats until his mother discovered an extra five dollars in her purse. "It's O.K., Son," she said, "Everybody does it."

When he was twelve, he broke his glasses on the way to school. His Aunt Fran persuaded the insurance company that they had been stolen and they collected $72.00. "It's O.K., Kid," she said, "Everybody does it."

When he was fifteen, he made right guard on the high school football team. His coach showed him how to block and at the same time grab the opposing end by the shirt so the official couldn't see it. "It's O.K., Kid," said the coach, "Everybody does it."

When he was sixteen, he got his first summer job at the supermarket. His job was to put the over-ripe tomatoes in the boxes and the good ones on top where they would show. "It's O.K., Kid," the manager said, "Everybody does it."

When Johnny was nineteen and in college, he was approached by an upperclassman who offered him a set of test questions for twenty dollars. "It's O.K., Kid," he said, "Everybody does it."

Johnny was caught and sent home in disgrace. "How could you do this to your mother?" his father asked. "You never learned anything like this at home," his aunt and uncle interjected. Everyone was shocked that Johnny would do such a thing.

If there is anything the adult world can't stand, it's a kid who cheats.

TO ALL FEDERAL EMPLOYEES:

ONE HEALTH CARE PLAN LOOKS AS GOOD AS THE NEXT. UNTIL YOU GET SICK.

When people buy a health care plan, they often base their decision only on cost. And that's too bad.

How much the plan covers is what's really crucial. Because if you aren't covered adequately, you might find out later. The hard way.

That's why you should know how much help you can expect from your health coverage. And just how much it's going to take care of if you get sick and end up in the hospital.

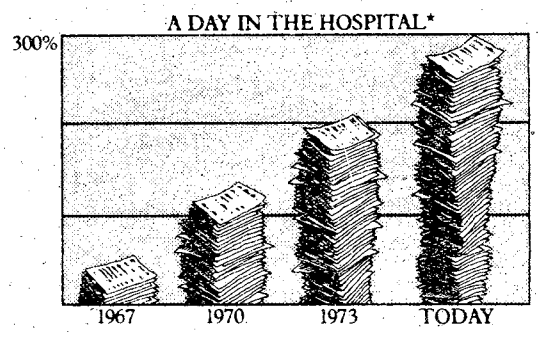
Or if someone in the family needs X-rays. Or emergency room treatment. Or ongoing outpatient treatment.

BLUE CROSS AND BLUE SHIELD COVERAGE IS BETTER.

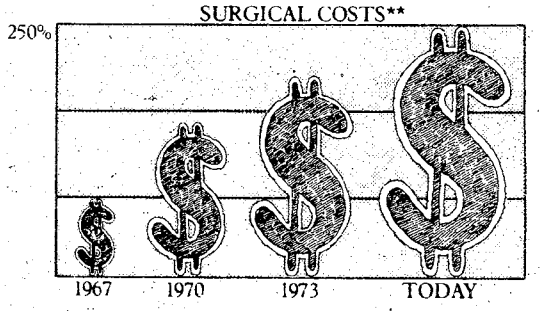
In almost every case, when you buy one plan because it's cheaper than another, you'll get what you pay for. Less.

But enroll in the Blue Cross and Blue Shield high option program and you get better coverage. Period.

True, our program costs more. But when you consider how high the cost of health care has gotten, it's worth every dollar.



LET THE FIGURES SPEAK FOR THEMSELVES.



Treatment for almost anything nowadays simply costs more than it used to.

So if you have to spend time in the hospital, chances are you could have to spend a lot of money. Unless you have Blue Cross and Blue Shield coverage.

These charts tell the story. The first shows the jump in cost for a day in the hospital. If you were hospitalized tomorrow, the bill could be 300% higher than it would have been ten years ago for the same treatment.

Surgery costs are higher, too. The second chart shows the increased costs for common surgical procedures and required medical services—up as much as 250% in just ten years.

Blue Cross and Blue Shield Plans all across the country are working harder than ever to develop programs to try to keep these costs down.

But buying cheaper health care coverage really doesn't help. With rising health care costs a fact of life, you need the comprehensive coverage of our program more than ever.

So even if you pay more for Blue Cross and Blue Shield coverage, it's worth it. Because what you really can't afford is coverage that costs you less in the first place, but ends up costing you more later.

When it counts.

Horan named one of America's best

By Betty Zimmerman

A Ft. Benning Army captain has been selected as an Outstanding Young Woman of America for 1977.

Each year the Outstanding Young Women Program of America, a patented organization, selects 10,000 young women from applications submitted by various organizations. Capt. Linda M. Horan was recommended by the University of Montana Alumni Association.

As the title implies, Linda McDonald Horan is no ordinary woman. She has been recognized many times in her 33 years for being the first of her gender and or the best of both sexes genders in her field. The field depended on what segment of her life she was "into" at the time.

The multi-facets of Linda's talents have provided her with a varied and interesting life. Presently she is test pilot and maintenance officer for the large General Support Aircraft Maintenance Shop for the southeastern United States located at Lawson Army Airfield, Ft. Benning, Ga.

The Honolulu-born adventurist was the first female graduate of the U.S. Army Maintenance Test Pilot School, Ft. Eustis, Va. in 1975 and the second female graduate of the U.S. Army Aviation Flight School, Ft. Rucker, Ala. in 1974.

Linda is also the first of the 28 women Army pilots to get her commercial helicopter instrument license from the Federal Aviation Agency (FAA).

The petite brunette began receiving honors in high school when she was picked Outstanding 4-H'er of the Year in Nevada County, Calif. She designed, made and modeled her own clothes. This interest has carried over to the present as she dabbles in modeling for local department stores even now.

As a high school senior, Linda was chosen as an outstanding young artist in the Bank of America's selective nationwide listing.

Her talents and achievements led her to a career in art and her studies took her to Sierra Junior College, San Jose State College and Chico State College, all in California. She received her Master of Fine Arts Degree in 1969 from the University of Montana and then went to work as a director of arts and crafts for the U.S. Army Korea Special Services.

As an aviation maintenance officer and test pilot, the then 1stLt. Horan pulls a preflight inspection on a UH-1 Huey helicopter engine.

While in Korea, Linda acquired an interest in helicopters and abruptly decided to become a pilot. Since she is a self-assured extrovert, the prospect of completely changing careers held no fear or apprehension for her, it was simply another goal to achieve.

She returned to the states and worked as a project analyst for Serendipity, Inc., a research consultant company in Washington, D.C. until she joined the Army in August 1972. While waiting for flight school, the then 1stLt. Horan was an assistant adjutant at Ft. McNair.

Upon graduation from flight and maintenance school, Linda was assigned to Benning as a MEDEVAC pilot and maintenance officer for the 498th Med Co in 1972. Dothan, Ala. honored her with a key to the city on "Linda Horan Day" in recognition of her aviation achievements and she was named Military Woman of the Year for Ft. Benning in 1975.

Honors continue to be bestowed on this vivacious young woman. Just recently, she was nominated to be listed as a distinguished graduate of the University of Montana. And she was previously honored at the International Woman's Year Banquet, Washington, D.C. as one of ten women recognized for their noteworthy aviation achievements.

Somehow she finds time to be active in the local chapter of the Army Aviation Association of America, the Daughters of the American Revolution, Business and Professional Women's Club, Ft. Benning Flying Club and is one of the staff art consultants for the Officer's Wives magazine, the Communique.

What's next for this talented woman? Well, she missed out on the astronaut program because she doesn't have a physics degree, but she does intend to stay in the Army's aviation program. "Thirty years, if they'll let me," she said, "where else can I find so much variety and opportunity for fulfilling my personal ambitions?"

"And I haven't discarded my art work, I'm constantly involved in some project like macrame, jewelry designing and ceramics. I can always look forward to continuing this career when I'm too old to fly."

Linda is the daughter of Bruce and Leontine McDonald of Grass Valley, Calif.

Teaching pottery making was only one facet of Linda Horan's duties while serving as an arts and crafts director in the Republic of Korea.

The versatile Linda Horan is as comfortable in her formal attire while entertaining in her home or participating in a fashion show as she is in her flight suit.

Indian Pow Wow slated November 5

The post will hold an Indian Pow Wow November 5 at 2 p.m. on Gowdy Field in celebration of Native American Week.

A welcoming address will be delivered by MajGen. William J. Livsey and Columbus Mayor, Jack P. Mickle. Other highlights of the Pow Wow will be Indian songs and dances, a peace-pipe ceremony and comments by the Chairman of the Florida's Governor's Council on American Indians, Mr. Joe Quetone.

The peace-pipe ceremony traditionally takes place when the chiefs or "headmen" gather together and put aside their past difference to smoke the pipe of peace. In Benning's Pow Wow the chiefs will be MajGen. Livsey, Mayor Mickle and Mr. Quetone.

"Kiowa Drum," a nationally known singing group, who will be performing at the Pow Wow are representatives of the Kiowa Indians from the area surrounding Andarko, Okla.

Post Chaplain (Col.) Ronald F. Day will deliver the invocation during the ceremony, to be held on the field behind Doughboy Stadium.

Players and crew needed for Springer production

The Springer Theater Company will present Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" from December 8-18.

Parts in the 45-member cast are open for singers, non-singers and dancers age 7-70.

Anyone wishing to try out for a part in the play should meet at the Springer Theater with music and be prepared to read, sing and dance. Auditions will be on October 31 and November 1 at 7 p.m.

Those people without acting talents or who are a bit shy and wish to help with the carpentry, painting, lighting, box office, publicity and other such areas should meet at the same time and place.

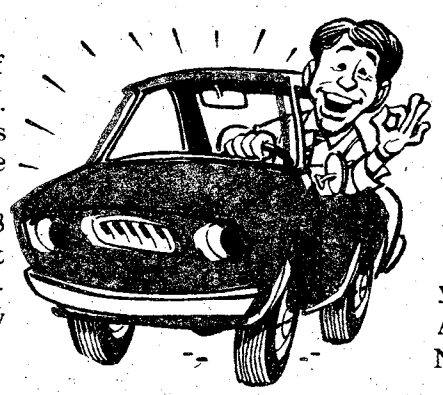
Native American Proclamation

Fort Benning will observe the week of 30 Oct - 5 Nov 77 as Native American Week, in a continuing effort to provide experiences to bring about better understanding of all racial and ethnic groups in our society.

The area surrounding Fort Benning and Columbus abounds in cultural and historical experiences relating to American Indians and their involvement with the United States Government, military and civilian communities. Many of the foods, clothing, and language we have today are a result of American Indian interaction with the White, Spanish, and Black segments of our society.



Fort Benning will sponsor an authentic Indian Pow-Wow at Gowdy Field, 1400 hours, 5 November 1977, to support multi-cultural awareness of its military and civilian population. The Indian Pow-Wow will demonstrate various songs, dances, and styles of dress of Indians from different parts of America. Guests will include Kiowa Indians from Oklahoma and the Southeastern Indian Cultural Association.

I urge all Fort Benning personnel and their families, both military and civilian, to attend this activity in support of cultural awareness in our society.

Army Reserves arrive for training with AIT

Elements of the 3rd Bde (AIT), 70th Div (Trng) Army Reserve, have begun to arrive at Ft. Benning to train with units of the 1st AIT Bde.

The brigade, commanded by LtCol. Billy Smyser and headquartered in Fort Wayne, IN, has been designated under the "Total Force Concept" to assume the operational training mission of the 1st AIT Bde during a mobilization of forces.

Members of the brigade will actually take over training instruction, supervision of training as well as various other command positions within 1st Bde units. Because the 3rd Bde will completely assume the mission of advanced infantry training at Benning during mobilization, administrative personnel, cooks, supply specialists as well as instructors and drill sergeants will be training alongside their active duty counterparts.

The 140 enlisted and 42 officers here already are from the 2nd Bn, commanded by LtCol. Robert Taylor and headquartered at Grissom AFB, IN. They will be joined later by the 3rd Bn from Munice, IN and additional Committee Group personnel from Richmond, IN.

November promotions down

November promotions from grades E5 through O-6 are down from October totals. November promotions will total 5,676 which is 278 less than October totals.

Total enlisted promotions number 5,263 and will include 3,438 to E-5; 903 to E-6; 720 to E-7; 161 to E-8 and 41 to E-9. After November hikes, 6,900 remain on the E-7 list, 2,258 on the E-8 list and 10 on the E-9 list.

Promotions to E-5/6 are made from local lists per published monthly promotion cutoff scores for each MOS.

DA officials forecast that November officer hikes will total 413. This is a drop of 412 from October promotions.

Officer promotion schedules call for 19 hikes to colonel; 72 to lieutenant colonel; 116 to major and 91 to captain. There will be 86 promoted to CWO3 and 29 to CWO4.

After November, officer promotions, 596 will remain on the O-6 list; 1,421 on the O-5; 1,399 on the O-4; 460 on the O-3; 143 on the CWO4 and on the CWO3 lists.

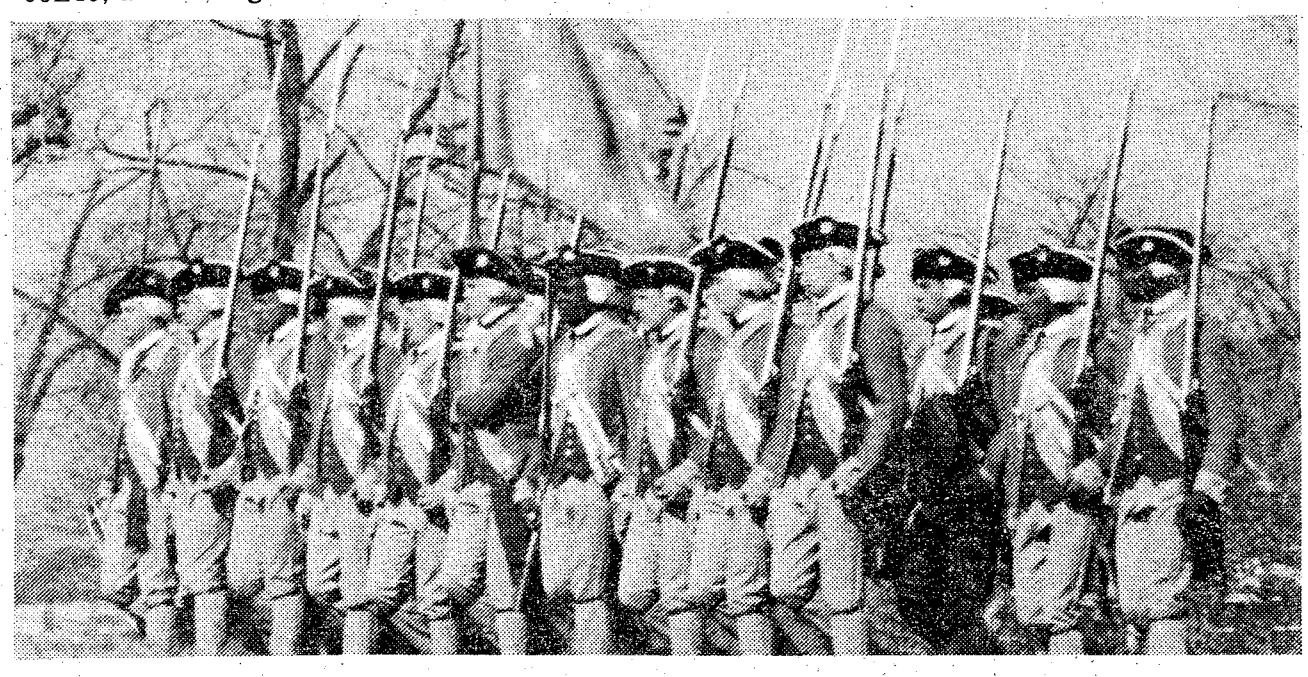
Commander-in-Chief's Guard needs troopers



"The Old Guard," the 3rd United States Infantry, is looking for qualified soldiers for assignment as members of the Army's official ceremonial unit. The unit was established in 1784, and is one of the oldest active infantry units in the U.S. Army. Stationed at Ft. Myer, Va., The Old Guard has a proud heritage.

Besides providing security for the nation's capital in times of civil disturbance or national emergency, The Old Guard is also responsible for military ceremonies in the Washington, D.C. area. Members of The Old Guard are trained for ceremonial as well as infantry and security missions.

The Old Guard's specialty units include: The Old Guard Fife and Drum Corps; Sentinels at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier; The Caisson Platoon; The Continental Color Guard; The U. S. Army Drill Team and the Commander-in-Chief's Guard, all of which are well-known throughout the country.

Not everyone can qualify. Being accepted as a member of The Old Guard is an honor. Army personnel desiring to become members must be at least 5'10" and not more than 6'4" tall, have a high school diploma or equivalent, have a score of 100 or more in the appropriate aptitude area of the ASVAB, and must possess a record which indicates good potential for a White House Duty Access Clearance.

Volunteers meeting these requirements and holding primary MOSs of 11B10, 11B40, 31G40, 36K20, 43M20, 54B40, 63B10, 63B20, 64C10, 71L20, 71Q20, 71R20, 73D20, 76Y10, 81E20, 84B20, 94B20, 94B30, 94B40, 02S20, or 00E40, and having at least 16 months remaining on active duty, can obtain information about assignment to The Old Guard by calling CPT Cullinan or SFC Dent at Autovon 222-2731/32 or 202-692-2731/32 or by writing to Headquarters, 3rd U.S. Infantry (The Old Guard), ATTN: Public Relations Office, Ft. Myer, Va. 22211.

The Commander-in-Chief's Guard is organized into a 66 man company of two platoons as prescribed by Baron Friedrich von Stueben. Armed with 12 pound replicas of the British Brown Bess muskets and thirteen-inch bayonets the Guard performs at official ceremonies and provides the official escort to the President.

Army looks again at women soldiers in combat roles

The Army is re-looking at the combat environment and the woman's role in that environment. Army officials recently discussed a number of studies involving women soldiers and their role in today's Army.

The Army wants to bring more qualified women into the service an official said, but the service is not sure how many women will be ultimately recruited.

The Army intends to increase the number of women recruits over the next two years, requiring DA to continue a series of studies on how best to employ the women. Additionally, staffers feel that the two year study period will allow women already in the Army to advance and not be clustered in the lower grades.

The projected strength of enlisted women in the Army is 50,400 by the end of FY 79 and that figure is expected to increase. "In any event, it is safe to say that we do not see a reduction or even a leveling in the numbers of women coming into the Army in the immediate future," said one official.

There are presently eight studies being conducted by the Army to determine possible future roles of women:

- Definition of the Direct Combat Role. The Army is looking for a new definition of "direct combat." Major Army Commands have submitted comments which will be studied by DA.
- ADMINCEN Evaluation. This evaluation is being conducted to determine the percentage of women that could be used in all Army units. Units will be evaluated by MOS and grade and the results are expected at DA on Mar. 1, 1978.
- MAX WAC Test. Conducted to determine the effectiveness of varying the percentage of women soldiers assigned to selected Category II and III TOE units. The test will assess the ability of the unit to perform its mission under field conditions. The testing portion of MAX WAC has been completed and analysis of the test results is under way.
- REFORGER 77 (REFWAC 77). Conducted to determine the impact women have on a unit mission during deployment and operations during extended field conditions. REFWAC 77 is an extension of the MAX WAC concept and the results are expected at DA on Mar. 1, 1978.
- Comparative Data Collection. Conducted by personnel centers and Deputy Chief of Staff, Personnel to determine lost and nonproductive time of men versus women.
- Attrition Analysis. This analysis will determine the number of women leaving "nontraditional" (vehicle driver, missile repair, etc.) for "traditional" MOSs such as administrative, medical, and clerical.
- Cost Analysis. Presently being developed to determine the difference in cost of men versus women. This analysis will cover all aspects of Army life such as training, housing, clothing, etc., from initial entry through a 20-year career to retirement.
- Physical Fitness Standards. This study is designed to establish standards appropriate for all MOSs and condition anticipated in the field environment.

Officials said that at present, 92 per cent of the MOSs are open to women, but as a result of the studies under way, this figure might increase. (ARNEWS)

GAO reports on military stores

The General Accounting Office (GAO) says that prices in the military exchange stores can be increased by 7.8 per cent and still leave a savings of 16 to 18 per cent below commercial prices for their consumers.

In a report to the Senate Appropriations Committee GAO said: Exchange prices could be increased to yield substantially more profits for supporting morale, welfare and recreation (MWR) activities.

The GAO report deals with the government spending of $600 million annually to subsidize Department of Defense activities such as exchanges, clubs and recreation facilities.

GAO prepared the report for Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark.). The report recommends shifting more costs from taxpayers to the users of the MWR activities. That means "across the board" price increases in all nonappropriated fund resale activities, should the Congress adopt the recommendation.

Defense officials are "now reviewing GAO's recommendation," according to a Pentagon staffer.

According to GAO, military resale outlets have "substantial potential for generating additional nonappropriated funds," with the exchanges reporting $3.7 billion in direct sales at the end of January 1976.

Allegro Series III, the new Wedge, Model JR596W

Built together to go together—Zenith Allegro® Modular Stereo Systems

Now you can forget about the confusion, the uncertainty and, even more important, the risk of wasting your money by trying to match up different brands of complicated, expensive audio components.

With Zenith Allegro Modular Stereo Sound Systems all functions are matched and balanced for you.

And because each Zenith modular stereo is designed around Allegro's Tuned-Port speakers, it would take comparable-size air-suspension speakers fully twice the amplifier power to match a Zenith's overall sound performance.

Zenith re-invents the Wedge. More powerful. More professional. And introduces the Mini-Wedge.

Presenting the new, more powerful Wedge

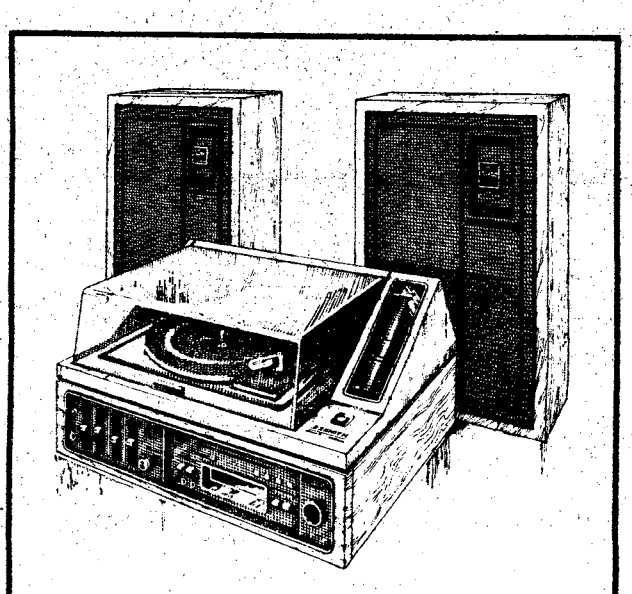
As a result of a new, high-performance AM/FM Stereo FM Tuner-Amplifier, the new Zenith Wedge with automatic record changer and built-in 8-track player-recorder delivers 15 watts minimum RMS power per channel with no more than 0.5% total harmonic distortion, from 40 to 18,000 Hz into 8 ohms.

More professional features, too

A Shure magnetic cartridge and diamond stylus for precise record tracking is now built into the Wedge's low-mass tone arm. And its 3-speed automatic-manual changer still features a smooth-performing, viscous-damped Cue Control.

New is a Lo Filter designed to remove low frequency noise such as rumble. A Hi Frequency Filter, FM Muting, and a Tuning Meter add extra convenience and better sound reception just as they did with the Wedge original.

And a microphone is yours, too, with this new Wedge. Plus a 3-position speaker switch to let you choose regular stereo sound from two Allegro speakers . . . or from an extra pair of remote Allegros . . . or both.



Introducing the all-new Mini-Wedge

It's new, all-new inside and out. Inside, a solid-state AM/FM Stereo FM Tuner-Amplifier with 3-speed automatic-manual record changer and built-in 8-track tape player-recorder.

Outside, you'll recognize at once styling dramatics that, though uniquely Mini-Wedge, still reflect innovations originally achieved in the now classic lines of its illustrious forebearer.

Truly surprising when you hear it perform is a price so comfortable you'll find it hard to resist this great, new Mini-Wedge.

See and audition both of these and Zenith's other new Allegro Modular Stereo Sound Systems at your Exchange soon. Or check, now, with your Special Order Desk.

Allegro Series I, the new Mini-Wedge, Model JR587W
Also available, as Model JR588W, with built-in cassette tape player/recorder

Don't be tricked out of a treat--practice safety

By Julie Casey

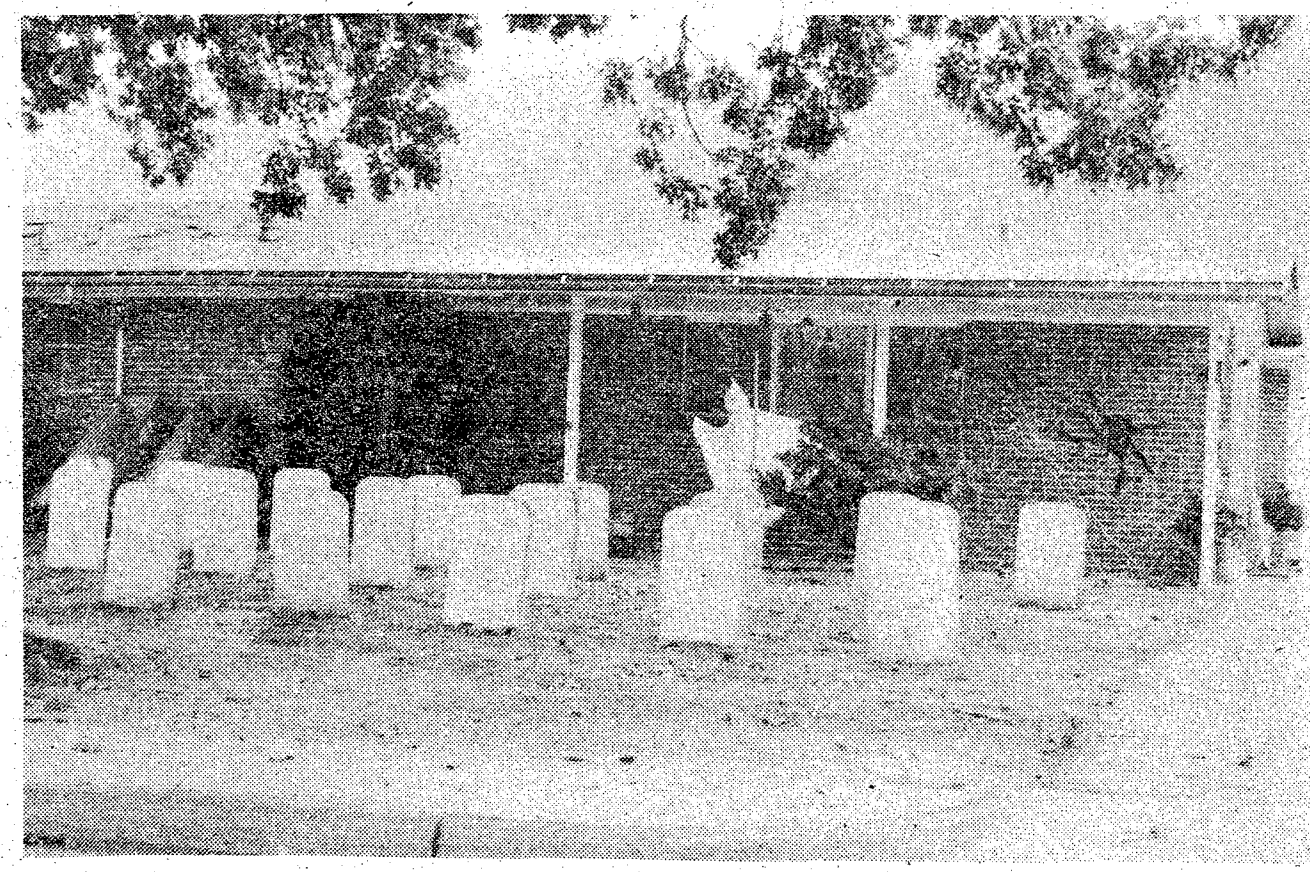
Halloween — a night of witches, goblins, gargoyles and ghosts. Brave young souls will venture into the dark unknown while their parents strive to change horror to fantasy and keep their child-monsters safe and happy.

In the past few years the rising occurance of tricks played on — instead of treats given to — children has given parents cause to become concerned about the holiday. The trick or treating tradition is slowly being replaced by private home parties or neighborhood carnivals.

Mr. Clair McBride of the Safety Office suggests the following for those who partake in the traditional celebration, in hopes that it may make Halloween a safe holiday for all involved.

● Trick or treating on post must be completed prior to 7 p.m. Parents are requested to keep their children under supervision while they are out.

●Childrens costumes should be made of bright colors, fit well and be flame proof. Using reflective material is a good way to make your child known in the dark.



●Costume garments that drag on the ground can be very hazardous. They can easily catch on fire or cause your child to trip.

●A good way to flame retard their costumes is by soaking the costumes in a solution of three quarts of warm water, seven ounces of borax and three ounces of boric acid.

●For those who are giving out treats, keep your walkways well lit and free of obstacles. Make sure your dog is tied up.

●Tell your children not to get any of their treats until you have examined them. Needles, pins, and even fishhooks and razor blades have been found in candy and fruit. Fruit should be washed and cut into sections before eating.

Watch out for those little monsters and have a happy Halloween!

A little bit of yarn, a carpet, recycled shooting targets and alot of imagination created this Halloween specticale captured by BAYONET photographer Ed Vross. CWO2 Daniel Beasley and his wife, Heather started decorating for Halloween two years for their children, Chris, 6 years old; Rachael, 3 years old; and Keith, 13 months and have continued each year since.

Commissary Officer discusses store changes

New commissary hours, the result of a budget cut in excess of $5 million, goes into effect at Ft. Benning on November 7.

Previously open Monday through Saturday, the new commissary schedule entails closing on Mondays and on the Saturdays of seven federal three-day weekends this year.

Commissary officer Jose Fantauzzi doesn't anticipate further cuts for Ft. Benning's commissary program and has taken measures to minimize any inconvenience to customers due to the new schedule.

With over 60,000 customers per month, the problem of long waits at checkout lines was an irritant to store patrons. To combat this, the policy was recently begun of only authorizing 12 carts at each of the 22 registers. "Keeping the carts at the authorized level allows customers to shop at leisure," explained Fantauzzi. "We began this about two months ago and it's working beautifully. There have been no complaints so far; people shop fast and checkout fast. I should have done this about three years ago."

Fantauzzi doesn't forsee any problems resulting from dissatisfied customers taking their business elsewhere. "I believe some customers may go elsewhere if they are only out shopping for a few minor items, but I don't think it will cut into our business," he predicted.

Another point Fantauzzi stressed is that the baggers at the commissary are independent, self-employed licensees who work for tips only. Commissary personnel have no supervisory authority or jurisdiction over bagger personnel.

"We're going to try this schedule but we can be flexible. We'll conduct an hour-by-hour count for the next two or three months to determine if additional changes in hours are needed. I feel these changes will be beneficial to both customers and commissary management," Fantauzzi concluded.

Biddy League

The Biddy League Packers extended their winning steak to fives games by overpowering the Raiders, 26-0 last Saturday.

The Raiders led by Mike Pachler and co-captain, Pat Riccinto received the kick-off and was able to move the ball for five plays before giving it up. Packer tailback Philip Florence scored the first touchdown of the game going off left tackle for a 40-yard score.

The Raiders came back again with a strong drive but were stopped at the 11-yard line by the fired-up Packer defense led by Donnie Allsion and Ricky Bush. On the next Packer possession full back Allison bulled over right tackle and broke several tackles in scoring a 65 yard touchdown. The rest of the half was scoreless as the Raider defense led by Mike Wilson with four unassisted tackles and three assists was able to contain the Packer offense. The half ended with the Packers in front, 12-0.

The Packers started out the third quarter with Florence sweeping around the end and scoring from 45 yards out to increase the Packer lead to 18-0. Defense again was the key, as Raider Lawrence Kemp recovered a Packer fumble to break the Packer's momentum, while on offense Raiders Stacy Burnam and Trevor Johnson were able to keep the ball moving and out of the hands of the Packers. But the Packer defense was able to keep the Raiders out of the endzone for the rest of the third quarter.

The fourth quarter again saw both team's defense dominating the play. The Raider offense using Johnson to Langendorf passes were not able to mount an effective drive throughout the last quarter, but their defense was able to contain the powerful Packer offense.

But in the last minutes of the quarter, the league-leading Packers showed why they were on top as quarterback and team captain Jay Bryan rolled right to pass, could not find a receiver open, reversed his field and threw a 20 yard strike to Tyron Hudson to put the Packers firmly on top, 26-0.

Packer coaches acknwoledged the play of the offense led by QB Bryan along with Kieth George, Orlando Jones, Terry Phoenix, Matt Gresham, Pat Danford and Sammy Houston. While Packer defense notables were Ben Gresham, Reggie Bush, Junior Ware, Mark Gilliland and Craig Relford. Notable among the Raiders were Mark Hebert and Jay Harris.

Doughboy League

In a close contest at Gordon Field the Crusaders got back on the winning track by defeating the Bears 12-6. Both Crusaders' TDs came in the first quarter. The first by Baxter Barber from two yards out. The second was set up by Eric Thomas who picked up a Bear fumble on the Bear 45-yard line and returned it to the Bear 5. On the second play quarterback Larry Smith while being tackled passed to wide receiver Sean Smith for the TD. The lone Bear TD was scored by Terrance Black. Other Bears who performed well on the offense were Teddy Leonhart, Harold McLane while Robert Woods and Larry Chapman stood out on defense. The Bear offense moved the ball well between the 20-yard lines but could not get into pay dirt. Their last drive in the fourth quarter was stopped when Eric Thomas intercepted a Bear pass on the 11-yard line and ran it back to his own 45. The Crusaders' defense was superb, stopping everything the Bears threw at them.

Patriots rolled on to their sixth victory last Saturday by beating the Sharks 12-0. A Mark Crites pass to Mark Miller set up the first score by Ricky McGee. A pass for the PAT to Cliff Purcell was short. In the third quarter Patriots scored after an interception by Matt Cole and a four-yard gain up the middle by Scott Brand. Shannon Smith, Merritte Wilson, Mike Brand, Martin Wright, Billy Moore and Joey Hashimoto led the Patriots' defense. Gary Hicks played outstanding defensive football for the Sharks.

The Dolphins avenged an early season loss to the Green Hornets by defeating them 16-0. The Hornets found out that the "D" in Dolphins also stands for DEFENSE. The Dolphins intercepted three passes and recovered two fumbles. Greg Lahr and Mark Gilbert led the defense. Lahr had eleven solo tackles and Gilbert had two interceptions; one he returned back for 85 yards and a TD. Jack McCoy had six solo tackles and a fumble recovery, Jesse Runfola seven solo tackles and a fumble recovery, and Wayne Jordan with an interception. They were ably assisted by Kevin Casey, Pat Dailey and Derrick Gillespie. In addition to returning the interception back for a TD, Gilbert added a PAT. The first TD was scored by Greg Lahr who played an outstanding game both offensively and defensively; he also added a PAT.

New class of volunteers welcomed by Red Cross

The American Red Cross of Fort Benning had its fall awards at the Top Five Club this month. Col. Anton Hitzelberger, Commanding Officer of Martin Army Hospital, welcomed the new class of volunteers and stressed their role in assisting the health care provided at Martin Army Hospital. Col. Juanita Atchison, Chief of Dept. of Nursing, presented the pins to the new volunteers.

The guest speaker was Dr. Rose Gantner, professor at Troy State. Dr. Gantner congratulated the men and women volunteers for their demonstrated concern for others. Service given to others when there is no pay involved, is one measure of the truly concerned person. Towards the close of the program, Dr. Gantner presented several awards. One went to Mrs. Jane Harvey, Post Chairman of Volunteers, for 17 years of service. The Clara Barton Medal went to four ladies for outstanding service — Mrs. Elfriede Watson, Mrs. Wanda Funderburk, Mrs. Gladys Goettman and Mrs. Shirley McGrann.

For those interested in becoming a volunteer, the next class will be in November. For further information, call 544-3288/4122.

SHADOW ON THE GREEN

The "What You Will" Players will present SHADOW ON THE GREEN, an interpretation through song, dance and the spoken word, of a nation at war with itself at 7:30 p.m., October 29.

From the literature, songs, letters and diaries of the Civil War, SHADOW ON THE GREEN presents a picture of a people with so much in common that the distinction between North and South becomes blurred. Using mime, dance interludes, and songs of the period the "What You Will" players present a fascinating panarama of an experience that was both grim and humorous, tragic and inspiring.

It is the intention of SHADOW ON THE GREEN to present an impression of a people caught in struggle, not to present a commentary on the issues of the war. As such, its treatment of a particular war assumes a universality.

PNCOC/CA --- the first step in becoming a leader

By Betty Zimmerman

So you're a sharp, combat arms E-4 who knows the basic soldiering skills, stays out of trouble, soldiers hard and wants a promotion. What about leadership qualities? Do you realize an M-5 in the combat arms is a team leader, one who trains and leads within his company.

With this idea in mind, the Primary Noncommissioned Officer Course for Combat Arms (PNCOC/CA) was created to develop the basic leadership abilities required by the combat arms soldier to train and lead his peers in common, basic soldier-craft tasks.

The United States Army Infantry School (USAIS) and the Noncommissioned School of Infantry (NCOSI) conducts the four-week live-in course at Benning which received input from six Army posts in this region - Fort Stewart, McClellan, Rucker, Gordon, Jackson and Benning.

Twenty-seven handpicked cadre train an average of 72 soldiers in each of the nine classes conducted yearly. The students are young E-4s who have been recommended by their unit commanders because they have shown the potential to become a noncommissioned officers (NCOs). Motivation, demonstrated ability and desire for responsibility are the important selection criteria.

Primary emphasis is placed on performance-oriented training in a realistic field and garrison environment with a minimum of formal classroom instruction. Training is not restricted to a forty-hour week.

PNCOC/CA is expected to become a mandatory prerequisite for promotion to grade E-5 in the future. It will be the initial school in the Noncommissioned Officer Education System (NCOCS) under the provisions of the Enlisted Personnel Management System (EPMS). Its graduates will have the confidence and knowledge to meet the challenge of leadership.

An interesting aspect of D Company, NCOSI, The School Brigade is that it is staffed entirely by enlisted men. The company commander, George Ikner, is actually a first sergeant and the first sergeant is a master sergeant. The tactical officers are also enlisted men.

The principle that NCOs should train NCOs was initiated in 1974 and has been steadily expanded since then. Ikner believes the student's association with these top-notch instructors, who emulate leadership is an important aspect of the course.

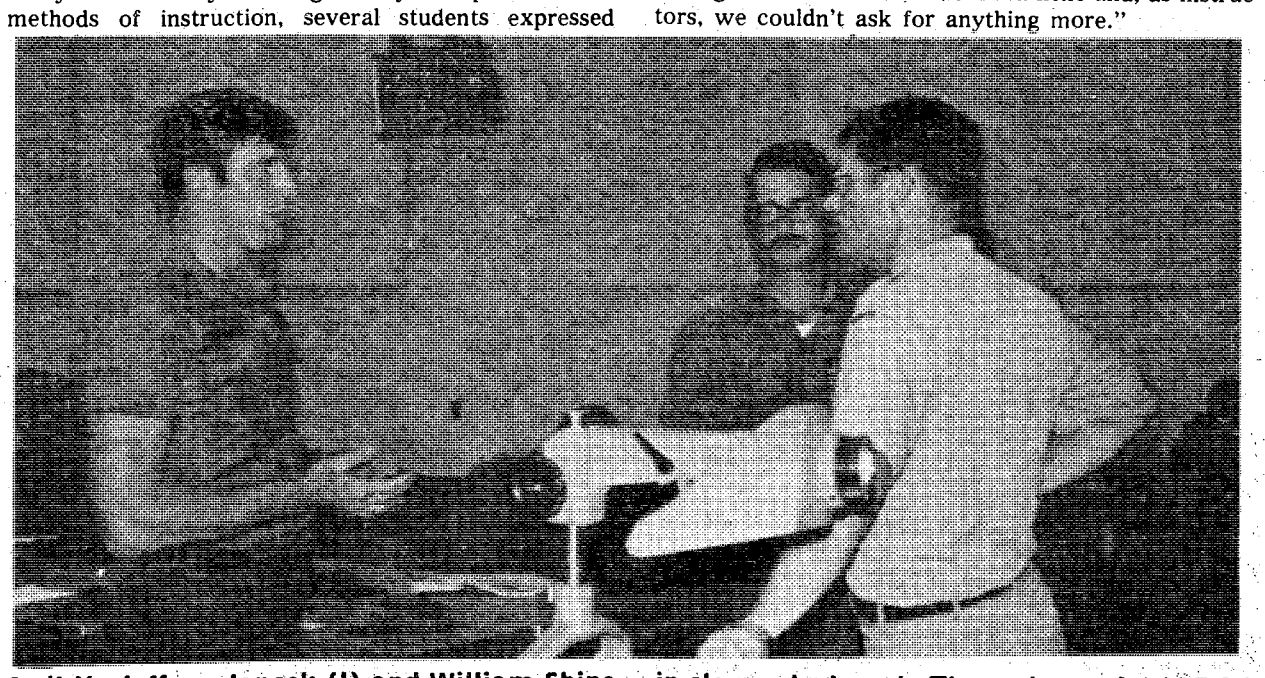
Infantry School students to try 'new hat' on for size

By Charlie Schill

Infantrymen the world over have grown accustomed to "wear-many hats," but students in the Infantry School's Basic and Advanced Officer courses and in the Advanced Non-commissioned Officer course will be trying a new one on for size this fall. Beginning with the Fiscal Year '78 courses, thousands of officers and NCO's will be introduced to an innovative management technique called Organizational Effectiveness.

"In essence, what we're trying to do," says instructor Capt. John Mays of the Command and Staff Division, "is provide our students with a set of skills that have been used successfully by management consultants in the civilian business world for some time. Organizational Effectiveness can be described as a method of making good units better. It keys on the character of the unit as a whole, rather than merely considering the personality of its commander. We hope that our students will use this new management technique at unit level."

Department of the Army adopted Organizational Effectiveness (OE) more than two years ago and conducts a 16 week course at the Organizational Effectiveness Training Center (OETC) at Ft. Ord, Calif., to qualify selected officers as Organizational Effectiveness Staff Officers (OESO's). These officers are then assigned at division, installation and separate brigade levels to advise unit commanders on more effective ways to organize and manage their units.

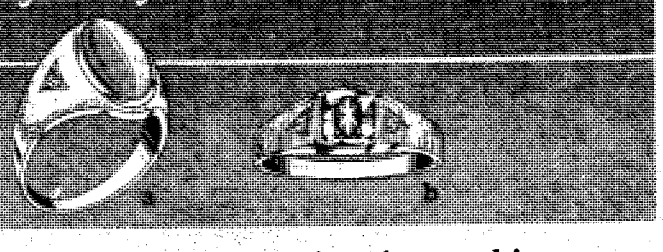


On request of the unit commander, the OESO acts as an impartial observer during routine unit operations, gathering data, asking questions and surveying opinions. By examining the unit's sub-systems — its environment, people, structure (chain of command), objectives, technology or equipment and the functions of its leader the OESO is able to conduct an overall assessment of the organization, listing its relative strengths and weaknesses. After completing his assessment, the OESO holds his findings in strictest confidence, acting as a personal consultant only to the commander on how to plan and implement programs to improve any problem areas that might be revealed. His function is similiar to that of a civilian management consultant and, like his counterpart in the private sector, the OESO completes his work by conducting a follow-up evaluation to gauge the unit's progress after an appropriate period of time.

"Obviously, we're not trying to make our students full-fleged OESO's," says SFC Richard Hines, one of only three NCO's in the Army who have completed the OE course at Ord. "Our purpose is to acquaint the Infantry School student with the OESO's systems view of assessing and correcting unit weaknesses. Then, as either a commander, platoon leader or platoon sergeant, the student has the option to employ OE skills himself or can call upon the OESO for assistance. In any case, he will at least understand the OESO's methodology and terminology, they'll speak 'the same language' and be able 'to read off the same sheet of music!"

The Command and Staff Division validated their instruction on September 19 and 20 with a test class of 15 captains selected from Advanced Course 4-77. "We gave them a slightly abbreviated version of the 19 hours of planned instruction," explains Capt. Burt Lockwood, "as they had already been exposed to the role and function of the OESO in an earlier class. We were somewhat surprised by the mixed reaction we got from them initially. While they were generally receptive to the methods of instruction, several students expressed serious doubts as to the viablity of the Organizational Effectiveness program as a whole."

In retrospect, the instructors attribute some of that reaction to natural resistance to change and fear of the unknown. A similiar aversion is often noted among workers in businesses who have been confronted with efficiency experts conducting time and motion studies literally nobody wants to work with someone watching over their shoulder.



"In general, the validation went well," Lockwood concludes. "Observers from the Organizational Effectiveness Training Center and from Training and Doctrinal Command gave our instruction a 'thumbs up' and several of the students who were the most vocal doubters in the beginning ended the instruction expressing some interest in becoming OESO's. We apparently managed to turn them on to OE a little and, as instructors, we couldn't ask for anything more."

Benning runners compete in Georgia 20-kilometer race

Members of the Ft. Benning-Columbus-Phenix City Track Club were highly successful last weekend at the Georgia 20-kilometer State Championship Road Race in Bainbridge.

Competing on a scenic, but very difficult course against opposition from around Georgia as well as strong representation from Florida and Alabama Track Clubs, the Tri-City runners placed five members in the top ten and ran off with three age group titles. Finishing in the top ten from Benning were: Sp4 Tony Coniglio, 197th Inf Bde (3rd overall); Sp4 Kirk Fechter, 1st AIT Bde (8th overall), and Maj. Dave Fields, CSLD, USAIS (9th overall).

Dave Fields also won his age group, 35-39, as well as LtCol. William Schuler winning the 40-44 age group title.

Even though the race was not a qualifier for the Boston Marathon, many of the Tri-City runners used the race as preparation for the upcoming Ft. Bragg All-American Marathon where a fast enough time will qualify them to run in Boston.

Grease Fires

Numerous home fires start in the kitchen. Many are caused by burning grease or fat. These fires may be extinguished by placing a lid over the burning grease. This cuts off the supply of oxygen to the fire. Salt or bicarbonate of soda can also be used to smother a frying pan fire. If a fire starts in the kitchen try to turn off the heat source immediately.

By Jim Silva

The Ft. Benning Flyers Rugby Club defeated Atlanta R.F.C. 17-6 on Sunday in regular season play.

The Flyers scored early in the first half with a 25 yard penalty kick from fullback Jim Mohney who put the Flyers ahead, 3-0. Later in the first half, wingback Jerry Williams raced across the goal for a touch-down which made the game 4-0 Flyers.

The second half also went to the Flyers with scoring runs by Williams and Larry Summers and an additional penalty kick by Mohney.

The Atlanta team scored a touch-down on a daring kick to their wing which ended the score 17-6 in favor of the Flyers.

Both teams brought a second side to play after the first game. The result was Flyers 14, Atlanta 10.

Ft. Benning is having an outstanding season of Rugby football. On the 15-16 October, Hilton Head Island hosted a tournament, which the Flyers participated in coming away with the second place Trophy.

During tournament play, Ft. Benning defeated Clemson University and Georgia Medical College which gave them a berth in the finals. Although the Flyers lost by a slim margin in the final game, they succeeded in gaining the respect of all teams present as a top contending Rugby team in the Southeast. The Ft. Benning team has several games remaining in the fall season and welcomes all to Stillwell Field on game day for an enjoyable afternoon.

Doughboy stomp Bears, 52-7

Benning Doughboys stomped the Asheville Bears, 52-7, in Doughboy Stadium, Saturday night, giving the Doughboys a 6-1 record.

Early in the first quarter, Quarterback, Joe Duenas completed a 4-yard pass to Anthony Nimmons who made the first touchdown of the game. The extra point kick was good and the score was set at 7-9.

With 3:17 left in the quarter, David Ward's field goal attempt was blocked and the Bears took over the ball. Their possession was short-lived, and Ronnie Carter intercepted a pass on the 40-yard line and the Doughboys took over on the 10. Two plays later Erogies Grigley ran down the right side from the 4-yard line and Benning scored another touchdown. Duenas carried the ball for a two-point conversion and the score was 15-0.

Doughboy Elbert Robinson intercepted another pass with 11:26 in the second quarter and sprinted down the left side, well-portected by the defensive team and scored a touchdown. Ward's kick was good and the score was set at 22-0.

The Bears made their only touchdown with 10:10 left in the second. On the Bears first down, Buster Gary broke through the line and carried the ball from the 10-yard line for the score. The extra point good and the Bears got on the board, 22-7.

Ward upped the Doughboys score again with a 15-yard field goal that came with 6:49 remaining in the half. Ward came through once again with 17 seconds left in the half, when his end kick sent the score to 29-7.

The third quarter was more of the same as the Doughboys kept the touchdowns coming. With 4:10 left in the third, Cedric Antrum took a Duenas pass and carried it from the 20-yard line for a touchdown. Ward's kick was dead center and the score was raised to 35-7. This was followed by a 27-yard Ward field goal that kicked the score to 38-7 with 17 seconds remaining in the period.

With eight minutes remaining in the game, Duenas set up the next touchdown and Charles Holley took the ball in from the 11-yard line for the score. Ward's faultless kicking for the extra point sent the score 45-7.

The final touchdown came with 4:09 left in the period when Julian Williams dashed out from the 55-yard line, leaving the field behind as he ran the ball in for the score. Ward's kick was true and the Doughboys took the game 52-7.

Baseline, other programs to revitalize Army PT

Baseline physical training (PT) at Ft. Benning is the first of three programs originating under the direction of Headquarters, (TRADOC) to revitalize physical training throughout the Army, announced two of the program's developers who are here at Ft. Benning.

The field testing phase of Baseline PT began here this March and is being implemented on staggered dates at Forts Bliss, McClellan, Dix and Jackson.

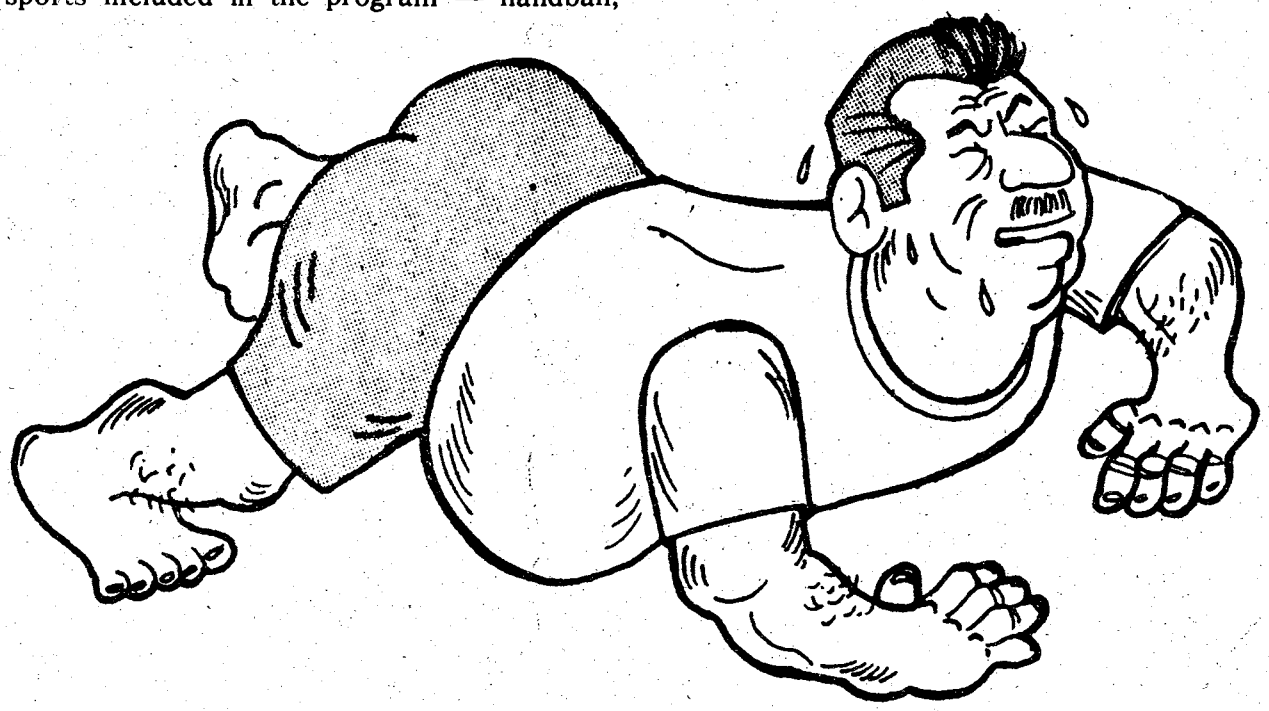
Baseline PT is designed to provide minimum fitness required to perform common soldiering tasks, to promote good health and appearance and will apply to soldiers who have no demanding physical requirements in their (MOS).

"If you follow the Baseline program," explains Maj. Harold Fields, assigned to the Command and Staff Department, USAIS one of the program's developers, "it brings you slowly along to a high level of physical fitness. "You can start at the level that suits you," he continued, "thus eliminating over-stress injuries. Benefits of the program will be, ultimately, a good level of physical fitness."

Although sit-ups, push-ups and running are the only exercise in Baseline PT that will be counted in an individual's evaluation, the program does provide an opportunity for a variety of exercise and sports. The type of sports included in the program — handball, cycling, squash, tennis, back-packing, swimming, racquetball and badminton—all develop respiratory muscles and the cardiac-vascular system and may be substituted for one workout each week after an individual reaches the conditioning phase.

Another program developer here, James Dawson, Education Specialist, stated his belief that Baseline PT is as well-suited for women as for men. Dawson also stated, however, that some women have complained of difficulty in doing push-ups. "One of the reasons for field testing is to see just what women can do," he continued.

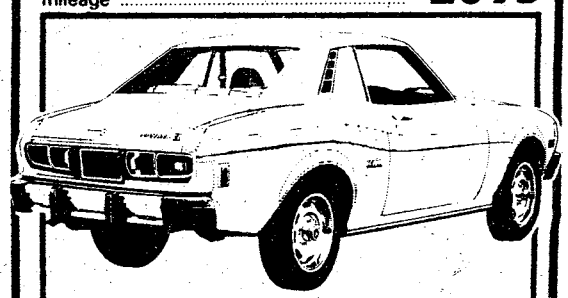
Although Baseline PT is still being researched, program developers already foresee future modifications. "Some standards may come up," they said, "others may go down and some activities may be restructed." The expected completion date for the final draft of the Baseline program is December 1977.



The second program being developed by Dawson and Maj. Fields, MOS PT, is for individuals with jobs that require a high degree of physical fitness. A final draft of this program is expected to be completed by April 1978.

MOS PT will be in effect for 32 per cent of the current Army MOS's while Baseline PT will be in effect for the remaining 68 per cent of current Army MOS's.

While the Baseline and MOS programs are both individual, the third program being developed by Dawson and Fields, Collective PT, is being designed from the team approach and will be adapted by units with a particular high-stress mission. The expected completion for the final draft of the Collective PT program is July 1978.



Several outside agencies — TRADOC schools, Health Services Command, US Army Research Institute of Environmental Medicine Surgeon General, FORSCOM and various scientific and educational institutions — are participating in researching the three programs. "We have not worked in a vacuum; we rely heavily on outside sources," agreed Dawson and Maj. Fields.

Although initial response to the Baseline PT program has been highly favorable, program developers are waiting to receive further field-testing results before calling the program a success.

Barracks dedication slated Thursday

The first of four training barracks being built in the Sand Hill area will be officially dedicated Thursday, November, 3, at 1:30 p.m. by Maj. Gen. William J. Livsey.

Training Barracks 1, which has been occupied by trainees since September 6 of this year is being named in honor of William C. Roush U.S. Army Infantry, who received a posthumous award of the Distinguished Service Cross with Oak Leaf Cluster for extraordinary heroism while conducting a combat mission near Bo Thuc, Republic of Vietnam, on Jan. 5, 1968.

Major Roush's company had completed an airmobile assault near a North Vietnamese landing zone when they were infiltrated by the enemy, who pinned down a number of troops with heavy machinegun fire. The enemy also fired upon departing helicopters, causing one of them to explode and crash, leaving its crew members stranded amid enemy position.

Despite a withering hail of bullets Roush made repeated trips across exposed terrain until he had guided all his troops to cover. He then organized a patrol, and daringly leading his team through a maze of occupied enemy positions, he successfully reached the helicopter crash site, and maneuvered the group to safety. His gallant and determined actions in the heat of battle saved the lives of many of his fellow soldiers and are in keeping with the highest traditions of the Infantry and the U.S. Army.

Roush entered the Army in June 1955 as a second lieutenant. He completed the Ranger's Course at Ft. Benning and was graduated from Airborne School at Ft. Campbell. He later returned to Ft. Benning to attend the Infantry Officer Career Course and the Pathfinders' Course. During the period February 1963 through February 1968, this combat Infantryman served three tours in Vietnam for a total of 28 months.

In addition to the Distinguished Service Cross, Maj. Roush was awarded the Silver Star, a posthumous award of the Legion of Merit, the Bronze Star Medal with V Device and two Oak Leaf Clusters, Air Medal, Army Commendation Medal, Purple Heart, Ranger's tab and Master Parachutist Badge.

Mrs. Gale Roush Shober, Major Roush's widow, and local dignitaries, have been invited to attend the ceremonies.

With only 57 shopping days left before Christmas, it should come as no surprise that CB prices are dropping again. 23-channel sets selling for under $40 are quite common.

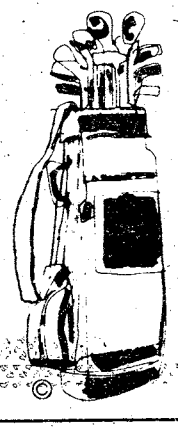
Prices are also likely to drop some more as the end of the year approaches. The reason for this is that dealers and retailers are afraid of being stuck with a load of CBs they cannot sell.

The majority of the cheap CBs will be those which were type-accepted by the FCC prior to September 10, 1976. The FCC banned further manufacture of these sets as of August 1st, 1977. However, they may still be sold through December 31st, 1977, after which the FCC has ordered marketing of those sets to cease.

Prices on 40-channel sets are also being cut somewhat. The latest catalog from a major mail-order house includes a 40-channel base station with built-in SWR meter for $99. They've cut their 40-channel SSB base station a little too.

So if you're planning on giving someone a CB for Christmas or want one for yourself, just hold out a little bit more. The longer you wait, the better deal you're likely to get.

Davis captures second Running Target title



MSgt. Charles Davis, US Army Marksmanship Unit, won his second consecutive Georgia State Running Target Championship September 25, sponsored by the Ft Benning Rifle and Pistol Club and sanctioned by the Georgia Sport Shooting Association.

Davis put together scores of 574 and 565 for a total of 1,139 points to edge this year's National Champion, Capt Louis Theimer, USAR, from Wichita Falls, Tex., by 11 points. Theimer finished with a two day aggregate of 1,128 points. Finishing in third place was SSgt. James Reiber, also of the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit, with 1,108 points, three better than fourth place finisher LtCol. Harry Lucker.

Claiming high civilian honors in the match was Mr. Roy Welch, Athens, while Mr. Bob Reiber, Stone Mountain, Ga., won the high new shooter award. Sp5 Diane Klimas, the 1977 Women's National Rifle Champion, was high lady.

In team competition the U.S. Army squad of Lucker, Davis, Reiber and Sgt Robert George, combined their scores to win over the U.S. Army Reserve squad 2,949 points to 2,903.

DRIVE THE 1978 RABBIT.

It's just a wonderful car.

We had an advantage: we started with a wonderful car and made it even better.

Over a million people all over the world have been impressed enough to buy them.

What's so impressive?

Easy. If you trade up to a Rabbit from a Mercedes-Benz 280E, believe it or not you'll get better acceleration.†

If you trade up to a Rabbit from a Cadillac Seville, you'll get more trunk space. And there are 32 cars you can trade up to a Rabbit for more people space.*

The '78 Rabbits look better than ever, too. Handsome metallic colors. Touches of chrome here and there to make them even snappier.

The biggest news of all for '78 can't be seen. And barely heard. We've refined the Rabbit's fuel-injected engine to make it quieter and more efficient.

Once we were famous for making a car that looked ridiculous.

Now we make one that makes the others look ridiculous.

President's Commission to visit local community

A Presidential Commission on Military Compensation will visit Ft. Benning, Columbus and Phenix City on December 12 to discuss pay and benefits with military personnel and to hold a public hearing on the subject in the tri-community area.

The nine-member commission, headed by Charles Zwick, a former director of the Office of Management and Budget, will meet with military personnel on post during the morning and will hold a public hearing that afternoon at a location not yet determined.

The commission desires to hear from representatives of all groups who wish to testify on the matter of pay and benefits to the military. Prepared presentations will be limited to 10 minutes. The commission will provide time for questions and answers.

A spokesman said the commission hopes that those testifying are representative of various organizations whose members are primarily concerned with the military pay system. He emphasized that the hearing is for anyone, military or civilian.

The commission was appointed by President Carter to review previous studies of the military compensation system and, if appropriate, recommend changes to current pay and benefit programs. The President also charged the commission with making a fresh review because previous attempts to provide an equitable and efficient total military compensation system failed to reach general agreement.

The commission has stated that its major thrust is to get the current mood of the military, understand the issues, and try to integrate them into a total package.

Additional information regarding the commission's visit may be obtained by telephoning the Public Affairs Office, 545-3512/1516.

Indian Pow Wow slated

A traditional peace-pipe ceremony and Indian songs and dances will highlight Ft. Benning's Indian Pow Wow to be held at 2 p.m. tomorrow on Gowdy Field.

The Pow Wow is sponsored by the Kiowa Indian Tribe and the southeastern Indian Cultural Association (SEICA) in conjunction with the post's observance of Native American Week.

Welcoming addresses will be delivered by MajGen. William J. Livsey, Columbus Mayor Jack P. Mickle and Mr. Joe Quetone, president of the Florida Governor's Council on American Indians.

After the opening ceremonies, dancers and singers from "Kiowa Drum" a nationally known group representing Kiowa Indians from the area surrounding the cultural center of Andarko, Okla. will perform the "Round Dance," one of the few Indian dances that includes women dancing as equals with the men. It will be followed by the "Gourd Dance" performed by members of the Gourd Clan, an honorary warrior society. The dance is used to honor military veterans.

Following the opening dances, MajGen. Livsey, Mayor Mickle and Mr. Quetone will participate in a peace-pipe ceremony. The ceremony traditionally takes place when the chiefs or "headmen" gather together and put aside their past differences to smoke the pipe of peace.

"Kiowa Drum" will then perform the "Feather Dance," a fast paced, exhausting dance featuring fancy footwork and brightly decorated costumes.

The Pow Wow will conclude with the "Straight Dance" or as it is better known as the "War Dance." This dance was formerly used by tribal warriors to tell in pantomime of their brave deeds in combat. Today it has become a social dance for young and old to show their ability to dance in the traditional manner of their forefathers.

Post Chaplain (Col) Roland Day will deliver the invocation during the ceremony, to be held on the field next to Doughboy Stadium.

Commissary times to change Monday

The Ft. Benning commissary store will begin operating Tuesday through Saturday as a result of Congressional demands to reduce operating costs beginning November 7.

The store will also close on Saturdays preceding the seven three-day holidays which run between Saturday and Monday during this fiscal year.

The following operating hours become effective Monday:

Sunday and Monday..... CLOSED
Tuesday ..... 9 am.-6 p.m.
Wednesday ..... 9 a.m.-6:30 p.m.
Thursday ..... 9 a.m.-7:30 p.m.
Friday..... 9 a.m.-6:30 p.m.
Saturday ..... 9 a.m.-6 p.m.

Doughboy action slated tomorrow

The Doughboys will face the semi-professional Lexington Blue Devils from North Carolina tomorrow night at 7 p.m. in Doughboy Stadium.

The Blue Devils are runners up in the Dixie League-Continental League playoffs and should present the Benning team with a stiff challenge.

CFC over the top

The 1978 Combined Federal Campaign (CFC) has reached 132 per cent of its goal by attaining $316,446 in contributions as of November 1, according to Post Project Officer John L. McCaskill Jr. secretary-treasurer of the Community Activities Association.

Active solicitation of funds ended November 1, but voluntary contributions and pledges previously made will be accepted, says McCaskill.

"Units and activities are requested to make the final turn-in at the earliest possible date after they are received," he added.

The goal for this year was $240,000.

NEWS in BRIEF

Personnel files converting to fiche; copies to be mailed

The Army has been converting paper official military personnel files (OMPF) to miscofiche since January, 1976. Conversion of officer records is scheduled for completion by tht end of 1977. Senior NCO records for E8s and E9s have been converted, with E7 files to be completed soon. Microfilming of E6 records will be finished by the end of 1978, while conversion of junior enlisted records — E1 through E5 — will be completed by late 1979.

As records are converted to miscrofiche, they are being put into use in place of paper files. Consequently, as the fiche OMPF becomes the basis for management and selection actions at Headquarters, Department of the Army, maintenance of the original OMPF becomes unnecessary. Only the fiche files are being updated as additional documents arrive at MILPERCEN and the U.S. Army Enlisted Records and Evaluation Center (EREC), Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Ind. Inactivated paper files, the source document for creating the initial fiche records, are placed in temporary storage pending disposition.

During the conversion process, great care was, and is taken to ensure that only — and all — documents authorized for filing were put on the microfiche OMPF. In addition to the quality controls used during the conversion process, MILPERCEN is implementing another program to assure the completeness and accuracy of the microfiche files.

A program has begun to mail to each soldier — commissioned and warrant officers and senior enlisted in grades E6 through E9 — a free copy of his or her microfiche OMPF. Accompanying the fiche will be a letter of instruction explaining briefly how the records were converted, how to have discrepancies corrected, how to acquire additional copies of the fiche and how to purchase the paper documents from which the microfiche OMPF was created. Mailings will generally parallel the sequence in which the records were converted.
